CAMP NEWSPAPER SERVICE
The past year—the first full year of peace since 1940—was a busy one, during which the nation's Army, Navy and Marine Corps made numerous far-reaching adjustments to peacetime conditions. The armed forces largely completed demobilizing their large wartime establishments. In January there were in the Army alone 3,850,000 men, quite a reduction from peak strength of 8,300,000. On July 1 the Army was down to 1,715,000 effectives and today it is even smaller. Personnel of the combined services totaled about 2,500,000 men and women, a drop of approximately 9,859,000 since V-J Day.

Navy Reduced
The Navy, whose top strength reached 3,400,022, was cut to a peacetime operating strength of 527,314—35,104 officers and 492,210 enlisted men—on August 10. By September 1 every man in blue, eligible for demobilization, except volunteers and medical personnel, was discharged.

Secretary of State James Byrnes disclosed before the United Nations Assembly that the U. S. now has "less than 50,000 troops outside of American territory." In the Philippines, he said, we have 26,000 troops but only about 30,000 are combat forces. These include 17,000 Philippine scouts.

Financing occupation forces will be only one of the fiscal problems facing the services in 1947, despite the largest peacetime military budget in the history of our country. The budget provided $11,382,201,700 for the fiscal year that began July 1. (The 'sun is more than one-fourth of the nation's unprecident over-peace time budget of $41,500,000,000.) However, not all of this, or will be, actually available, for in August President Truman ordered a $1,650,000,000 budget cut—one billion dollars by the Army, the rest by the Navy. He also ordered the services to absorb the cost of military pay increases estimated at about 600 million dollars this year, out of budget amounts.

Pay Increased
The military pay increase signed by the President June 9, boosted servicemen's salaries from fifty to ten per cent, with a Turn to Page 2

W. D. Sets Up Disease Council

The War Department announced today the establishment of a Venereal Disease Control Council for the purpose of insuring that all possible control measures are employed and to reduce the rate of venereal disease in the Army. The Council will meet each month to consider the venereal disease problems as they affect service personnel, develop standard educational and control measures, and review control procedures adopted in the field. In addition, it is authorized to take immediate corrective action when reports indicate the existence of unsatisfactory conditions that are beyond the control of the local or Army commander and to establish policy for reduction and control of venereal diseases based on appropriate research studies, surveys and field experience. It will also coordinate and assist the Joint Army and Navy Disciplinary Control Board on disciplinary problems related to venereal disease control.

Major General Willard S. Paul, director of personnel and administration, has been designated as chairman of the council. Other members already appointed are Major General Norman T. Kirk, the surgeon general; Major General Floyd L. Parks, chief, public relations division; Chaplain (Major General) Luther D. Miller, chief of chaplains; Brigadier General Russell B. Reynolds, chief, Special Services division; Brigadier General Blackshear M. Bryan, the provost marshal general; and the recorder, Lieut. Col. John J. Easton, personnel and administration division.

Home For Christmas? Collect Pay Jan. 6.

Fort Benning enlisted personnel, who are spending the holidays of the Post, will not be regimined from the payroll but will be paid January 6, the Finance Department announced today.

Regular pay-day was December 31, and unpaid money will be bagged and tagged and returned to the Finance office for safekeeping over the holidays of the holidays. The customary fund returns will be made in the finance office within 24 hours after completion. It was pointed out that the finance officer will assume no responsibility for contents of sealed bags deposited with him for safekeeping purposes.

New Year's Greetings

As the holiday season draws to a close it is gratifying to pause in the rush and hurry to review the many accomplishments of the past year. Prominent among them is the great progress the Army Air Forces have made in the task of reconstructing an effective peacetime establishment.

I am well aware of the substantial part each of you at Lawson Field has played in making 1946 such a successful year, and I wish to express my appreciation to you for having given so fully of your strength and loyalty.

Since I have not had the opportunity to greet you personally and wish you a Merry Christmas, I take this occasion to do so by letter. I sincerely hope that the coming year will bring you more success and happiness than any which has gone before.

Benning personnel will dominate the cast of the Kaufman and Hart comedy to be presented at Columbus High school January 16-17. Sgt. The extent of Benning representation can be seen by a glance at the following cast of characters:

- Annabella Gladys Gilbert
- Newton Fuller Dave Bowen
- Madge Lyle Lamont
- Steve Lt. Walter Dumas
- John Capt. George Smith

"Geo. Washington Slept Here" is the hilarious story of how a farmer gets a house in the country, and of how they struggle to keep it from a conniving neighbor, the bank and the hurricanes.

Newton Fuller buys the house without his wife's consent to start the ball rolling, but this is only the beginning of trouble for him as his desire for a country house leads him to a series of situations to another.

Typical—Kaufman and Hart comedy and the most-tragic scenes cause the play to move along from the time the family arrives to look over an old "revolutionary" house where George Washington slept" to the final surprise scene in the third act.

The plot is thickened as needed by the appearance of a summer theater actor and actress, a rich uncle, who turns out to be a blessed heel, a gracious neighbor, a wealthy nephew, a handful of weekend guests and by the disappearance of the family's daughter, Madge.

Chicken Feed, Fly Swatter, An old map, a well digger, chicken feed and a fly swatter are the properties for some of the hilarious comedy scenes.

It. Robert L. Wetmore is stage manager; Leonard Harris designed the set and was production manager; Harry Phillips is costume supervisor; Mary Godard is art director for scenery and costumes; Mrs. Edna Scott is assistant director; and Mrs. Betty Tyler is in charge of properties.

Admiral Doenitz Reports On Why Nazi Navy Lost

By Camp Newspaper Service

Reasons for the complete rout of the German Navy in World War II gleaned from the secret documents of the man who really knew the answers—Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz—were released by the U. S. Navy.

Putting their faith in the efficiency of the submarine, Admiral Doenitz reports, the Nazis kept their U-boats in the Atlantic prior to Pearl Harbor in order to avoid incidents that would have hastened the entry of the U. S. into the war. When this country finally declared war, the U-boats were concentrated in the coastal waters off the U. S., where they found easy pickings among the convoys leaving Newfoundland and Halifax. For nine months, the merchant ship toll was disastrous, and then the wartime blockade began to come to the rescue. Conditions for the Nazis grew steadily worse, and with the development of Allied air-sea radar, it finally became necessary for the U-boats to work submerged at all times.

The German scientists set to work to improve submarine construction, and the results were very good. Eighty U. S. submarines are being outfitted with some of the improvements today. First, the Germans increased the speed of the U-boats from 9 to 20 knots. Then they made the hulls stronger by welding the pressure plates, permitting them to submerge to great depths for security.

The greatest improvement, however, came from a device known as the "Schork" apparatus, of which only a few nations have been seeking for years—a device for refueling air repeatedly, thus permitting submarines to remain under water indefinitely.

Luckily for the Allies, however, the German High Command, and the masterminds of the Nazi political machine failed to press the research branches of the government for improved radar and other inventions so that by the time these things became available, it was too late to make any difference in the situation. The highly-touted U-boat fleet was doomed to Davy Jones' locker.

Red Cross Looks Back On Activities Of 1946

"The first full peace year at Fort Benning shows no let-up or lack of need for Red Cross service," stated Murray E. Hill, Field Director, American Red Cross, at Fort Benning. "In fact," said Mr. Hill, "a greater number of requests per man were received in 1946 than in 1945."

Service was rendered to 44,336 individuals throughout the year. It must be remembered that this figure only indicates those to whom actual service was rendered, as the Red Cross keeps no statistics on the so-called brief service cases, of which throughout the year there are literally thousands. This constitutes minor requests from servicemen of which it is not necessary to carry forward any case work.

532 Ask Family Aid
A breakdown of these figures shows that 532 men asked for financial assistance to their families. This assistance, of course, was rendered by the chapters in the servicemen's home town unless the dependent was living on the post. Requests for verification were received from either the military or the serviceman in 4,167 cases. Nearly 5,000 separate letters were rendered. Red Cross service prior to leaving the post. Approximately 4,000 of these were aided in veterans claim Form 596 and 3,600 of this group gave the Red Cross power of attorney to aid them in their claims at a future date.

"Of the above 24,000 cases handled during the year, it was necessary to request the aid of 5,085 chapters. This proves conclusively the importance of the American Red Cross chapters, which is of course the backbone of this great organization."

There were received at this post 7,894 requests from chapters in which the families instigated the service requested. To carry on this tremendous case load, approximately 50,000 communications were necessary. Through the teletype in the Main Red Cross Office, 10,120 wires were sent and 11,269 wires were received. It was necessary to write and mail from this post 8,419 letters and 10,565 letters were received.

1,400 Soldiers Helped
Approximately 1,300 servicemen were aided financially during the year with loans or grants totaling $35,580.96. These figures of course did not include the grants and loans made by the Red Cross chapters throughout the year to the families of servicemen at Fort Benning, but it has been estimated that over $100,000 has been loaned or given by the Red Cross chapters to the dependents of servicemen at Fort Benning during the year of 1946.

Mr. Hill points out that while his staff and the staff in the chapters have been busy as indicated above by the figures, the American Red Cross yet found time to carry on its tremendous program of foreign relief, disaster service, First Aid and Water Safety, Junior Red Cross and its many other humanitarian programs.

It is of paramount importance to point out in closing that these figures represent only those figures covering service rendered to the able-bodied as statistics for the service rendered in the Fort Benning hospital have not yet been compiled. Yet in the hospital is where some of the greatest service is rendered by the Red Cross.

the biggest raises going to men in the lower grades. Despite the cuts, the Army and Navy still have a sizeable sum on which to base plans for postwar defense of the country. As passed by Congress, the 1947 military budget provides for the maintenance—but reduction—of occupation forces overseas; establishment of a reserve training program, to be expanded in future years, and for considerable scientific research and development.

On June 11 the Army made the most sweeping changes in its organization since the war began. The Service Forces and the nine Service Commands, Army geographical sub-divisions within the States, were abolished. They were supplanted by six Armies, under Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General of the Army Ground Forces.

Doelittle Committee
Sounder relationships between officers and enlisted men were insured by actions, resulting from recommendation of the Doelittle investigating committee. Off-duty social barriers were abolished and the off-post salute was eliminated in the States and some overseas areas.

Other major developments in 1946, in capsule form, were: A new universal military training plan advanced by the Army and will be presented to the 80th Congress; Army food received a thorough investigation, an investigating committee recommended founding of a Food Corps; several revisions of the GI Bill of Rights liberalized insurance, eased up on loan and educational provisions for veterans; GI families went overseas.

First Formal Set Friday At 25th

Annual Check To Begin Soon

The annual general inspection of all Fort Benning organizations, separate units, and installations will get underway January 14, it was announced today.

The inspection will be of the continuing type and will be conducted by a team from The Infantry Center headquarters. No schedule of inspections will be furnished so as not to interfere with demonstrations and normal school activities. The Inspector General will contact the commanding officers of the units to be affected direct regarding dates and order of inspection.

Each unit, it was announced, has received a set of inspection check lists to be used by the organization commanders on their preliminary inspections to correct deficiencies prior to arrival of the IG.

Officials said that troops would be inspected in ranks when practicable and that equipment would be displayed in quarters. Among the records to be inspected are all unit or organizational records, Army regulations, files or memoranda, directives and orders from higher headquarters, menus, mess records, food handlers' certificates, mail orderly's authorization and records, council book and unit fund account, records of property, classified documents, and a copy of the last annual general inspection report.

Bar Committee Recommends Changing Court Martial Plan

WASHINGTON, (CNS)—Seven basic defects in the operation of the present Army courts martial system and a comprehensive plan to correct them were laid before the War Department by the Advisory Committee on Military Justice.

The committee, comprising nine civilian judges and lawyers, was appointed by the American Bar Association to study the courts martial system at the request of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. Highlights of the report are:

1. There was an absence of sufficient attention to and emphasis upon the military justice system, and lack of preliminary planning for it. 2. There was a serious deficiency of sufficiently qualified and trained men to act as members of the court or as officers of the court. 3. The command frequently dominated the courts in the rendition of their judgment. 4. Defense counsel were often ineffective because of a lack of experience and knowledge or lack of vigorous defense attitude. 5. The sentences originally imposed were frequently excessively severe. 6. There was some discrimination between officers and enlisted men, both as to the bringing of charges and as to convictions and sentences. 7. Investigations, before referring cases to trial, were frequently inefficient or inadequate.

In submitting the report to the Secretary of War's office, the Advisory Committee, after hearings investigations, and studies which began last March, declared that it was not so much the system itself but its operation which was to be criticized.

Stating that the "starving of the Army's legal branch" was one of the reasons for the inadequacy of the present courts martial system, the Advisory Committee recommended a greater emphasis upon the system's operation by the Secretary of War, the General Staff, and the Army, and a substantial enlargement of the Judge Advocate General's Department, with an increase especially in the number of technicians for its administration.

A revision of the present Manual for Courts Martial was proposed. The law member of the court and the defense counsel should be required to be trained lawyers, the Board stipulated.

In another move to strengthen the present courts martial system, the Board recommended that all sessions of court should not only be open but attendance of spectators be encouraged. Qualified enlisted men should also be eligible to serve as members of general and special courts, the Board said.

To assure equal treatment of both officers and enlisted men, the committee declared that officers should be subject to disciplinary action by commanding officers under Article of War 104, permitting pay reductions and other punishment at company level. The committee also stated that the Article of War requiring thorough investigations before reference of charges to a general courts martial should be enforced.

Other recommendations offered by the Advisory Committee include the elimination of the death penalty for a new type of discharge for "unfitness" so that dishonorable discharges could be reserved for exceptional grave cases, and finally, the creation of a board of officers to make continuous study of military justice. The War Department has made public the committee's report and stated it would receive prompt and careful consideration and the War Department's action thereon and any recommendations for legislation in connection therewith will be announced in the near future.

Origin of New Year's Day

When England changed New Year's Day from March 25 to January 1 in 1552 and adopted the Gregorian calendar, thousands of Englishmen suffered a profound "lost week" and it wasn't caused by an excess of holiday conviviality.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the change in the calendar made it necessary to wipe out 11 days of the year, which was done by declaring that the day after September 3 was September 14, not September 3. This brought England into step with the Catholic countries, which had adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582.

Incidentally, George Washington was born on February 22 (old style February 11).

During the early Middle Ages, March 25 was considered the first day of the new year, but most Christian people, but in Anglo-Saxon England and New Year's Day fell on January 1, Christmas—December 25. At the time of the Norman Conquest of England, however, William the Conqueror ordered that the year should start on the first of January, possibly, it is believed, because his coronation was scheduled for that date.

Still later, England reverted to the custom observed by the rest of Christendom and began her year on the 25th of March, and that date remained the first legal and ecclesiastical year until 1552, when the calendar was adjusted to the Gregorian system which is still in use today.

The ancient Egyptians, Phoenicians and Persians began their year at the autumnal equinox, September 21, and used the fifth century before the birth of Christ, the Greeks regarded the winter solstice, December 21, as the first day of the new year. The notion of celebrating New Year's Day on January 1 was introduced by Caesar when he adopted the Julian calendar and postponed the Roman holiday of New Year's from December 21 to January 1.

Even today, New Year's is celebrated on a wide variety of different days. The beginning of the Jewish year, for instance, falls some time between September and October 5, depending on the date of the beginning of the month of Tishri, the new civil year for the Chinese begins "with the first" of which the sun enters into the sign of the zodiac, which corresponds with our sign Pisces." The sun enters Pisces about February 19.

The Mohammedans keep holy the first ten days of Mobararr, the first month of their year, the Britanics report that in Siam, the new year is celebrated for three days.

The Year 1946

The year 1946 has passed into oblivion; that is, for the most part. There are some things which some of us will remember—little things, such as those which brought us happiness or pleasure, emotion, interest, or perhaps, pathos. Most of us forget the big things, either purposely or because we are too busy to take time out from inhaling all the worldly things of our everyday existence. We are too busy to see and see what was happening in the world—our world. We are too busy to see and see what was happening in the world—our world.

The average American citizen is an idealist. He sees and knows only what he wants to see and know. Anything that might cause him to open his shell of security and cast his eyes around at the other peoples of the world is too much trouble. In the first place he might see something that he doesn't care to see. He might learn that there are troubled spots in the world, places where peace has not meant the defeat of misery but only a continuation of suffering and degradation of the blitz era. He might discover that there are families, even in whole countries, literally starving to death. His mind's eye might see little children, even and bare feet, denied even the little luxuries that we Americans accept as necessities.

There have been many items in the news the past 12 months of dazzling importance. These things may affect the destiny of all mankind to one degree or they should be of primary interest to every true American, but there are many things that we never tell you where the UN is meeting. Many cannot tell you what was accomplished at the Paris peace conference or the meeting of the foreign ministers in London. Many so-called average citizens do not even know who has control of the atom bomb, or what progress has been toward disarmament. These same persons do not know that an old and Fort Benning being in the war is in the smoldering stage in China, ready to burst out in full force as soon as the wind can fan the embers to make it a full-grown blaze. Americans know about the Wisconsin hotel fire and LaSalle hotel fire because they were thrilling and gory. There were pictures of hurtling bodies and shattered remains to tell the gruesome story. But do all American citizens also know that there was one of the worst earthquakes a few days ago over in Japan? No, that was too far away for that about. Everything that happens in the world should be of interest to us because it affects peace. And anything that affects peace affects us, maybe not directly but in some way that is important to each of us. History is in the making every day, but we are too absorbed in good times to take advantage of learning what is going on around us every day.

There could be no better way to start the New Year off right than to promise to keep up with the events of the world every day; for a well-informed public is a requisite for democracy and freedom!

Tribute

Editor, The Bayonet: I am writing this little script for myself and all the other buddies. T-Sgt. Alvan Y. Birge who knew him of the T. C. Squadron, Lawson Field, and I am sure every one in the outfit knew him, and besides he had lots of friends at the main post. It was one day not so long ago when he all alerted of Sgt. Birge's son departure for overseas, and that was the day of sadness and regret because we as a whole in the 75th are just one big happy family together and when one goes we dearly miss him and that's the motto we have always tried to carry which we think is good.

T-Sgt. Birge has spent the most of his career at Lawson Field and Fort Benning being in the service a little over nine years and is an outstanding soldier in every respect. He resided on the main post until

Chaplain's Corner

The New Year

By Chaplain J. H. Freedman

As we begin the New Year, there are many lessons that we can learn from the year just closing. And from those lessons, we have an insight into the future. There are many things we would change. For many of us the last 12 months have not been entirely satisfactory or beneficial. We have not been able to realize all our ambitions and aspirations. Many of us have been called upon to do tasks little to our liking and far from our own choice. Then again, some of us have not been able to use the skills and specialized knowledge we may have acquired in a particular field of endeavor. But sometimes our limitations are not only those imposed upon us from the outside but have their origins within our own persons. Some of us have had opportunities for service, for creative endeavor, and we have not taken advantage of these opportunities. There has been times when we performed the thrill of some exciting moment, to the low peace of self-improvement, times when we have thrown aside every chance for our own good because our mood has changed. If we were called upon to re-live the last 12 months, most of us could think of all the unkind acts and thoughtless deeds that we needlessly engaged in. We would regret the moments of anger, when we lost our heads completely. But the year just closing has signified, and is gone from sight. It is now one with history, and history we cannot change.

Although we cannot recall the things we did, we can re-solve to do better during the coming year. In a sense, that is even better than recalling the last 12 months. For the coming year is a completely open book, and its pages are for all to see. The things which we write those pages depend largely upon our actions. We have within our power to make the record a happy one, or useless. The way in which we can rectify the griefs and errors of the past is to so live in the future that we have nothing to regret or to be ashamed of. The New Year is a great adventure for all of us, and each one is given anew another opportunity to live fully, to love creatively, to live his part in the service of God and his fellow men. May each one of us use this great opportunity to the fullest extent that the year just beginning may be truly new.

Just recently when he and his family moved to northeast Columbus to live in their own home.

Now, speaking in behalf of the entire 75th T. S. Sqn, I wish to express my love and again and wish T-Sgt. Birge the best of luck while on his tour of overseas duty, and may he be able to return to us again some day.

Sgt. Ralph Miller, Motor Pool.

He ain't no gold lace Belvedere
 He ain't no gold lace Belvedere
 He don't parade with gay cockade, or posies in his gun.
 He ain't no pretty soldier boy
 So lovely spik and span,
 He wears a crust of tan and dust,
 The Regular Army Man.

No state will call him Noble Son,
 He ain't no ladies pet,
 Edid let a row start, anyhow
 They'll send for him, you bet.
 He don't cut any ice at all;
 In fashions social plan;
 He gets the job to face the mob,
 The Regular Army Man.
 'The Millin', Drillin', always willin'
 -Regular Army Man.

There ain't no tears shed over him
 when he goes off to war;
 He gets no speech or pray'ful preach-
 From Mayor or Governor;
 He gets the job to knapsack up,
 And trots off in the van,
 To start the fight and start it right,
 The Regular Army Man.

 He don't talk big-or brave;

 But he does the best he can,
 And he's the chap that wins the scrap,
 The Regular Army Man.

Historic 36th Squadron First 'All-Boxcar' Unit

The war-famed 36th Squadron of the 316th Troop Carrier Group, based at Pope Field, N. C., is the first post-war AAF unit to be completely equipped with the new Fairchild C-47 "Flying Boxcars." Major General Paul J. Williams, Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force, announced today.

The revolutionary airplane, C-47 with a boxcar-like fuselage got into production too late to see action in World War II, but the big, twin-engine giants has been adopted as the standard troop carrier aircraft and is replacing the Douglas C-47 and Curtiss C-46 in the Ninth Air Force.

Link With 82nd

Employing 16 C-47s, the 36th Squadron, one of the most colorful in the AAF, is currently receiving a long-and-memorable association with the U. S. Army's most famous divisions—the 82nd Airborne.

Back when troop carriers were an unheard of part of the air forces, known to many as "troop ferries" and constantly being confused with other transport organizations, the 36th, now a Ninth Air Force Unit, of the Tactical Air Command, participated in the original training of the then 504th Parachute Battalion and the 505th Parachute Regiment of the 82nd Airborne.

In the intervening four years, however, the 36th pumped into the 82nd in such places as Sicily, Italy, England, Normandy, Holland and Germany.

Battle Honors

The sign outside the squadron's orderly room at Pope Field tells the story more graphically than words. On it is emblazoned the 36th's war record—battle stars for Egypt-Libya, Tunisia, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Normandy, Northern France, the Rhineland and Central Europe. In addition, the sign also bears reproductions of the three Distinguished Unit Citations, which the 316th Troop Carrier Group, of which the 36th is a part, won for its outstanding work overseas.

The 36th's first job was the supplying of the British Eighth Army and the American Fighter Forces in Africa. Following the successful completion of this mission, the squadron met up with the 82nd for the first time overseas. That was in the airborne invasions of Sicily and Italy. In February, 1944, the 316th Group, along with the 36th, moved to England where in anticipation of D-Day, it participated in the intensive invasion exercises, again with the 82nd.

The invasion of Normandy, June 6, 1944, was followed by resupply and air evacuation missions, the invasion of Holland, the Rhine crossing and the Central Europe campaign. The outfit returned to the United States in May 1945.

Under 316th

At present the 36th, still under the 316th, works with its 82nd Airborne in carrying out its mission of airborne operations. Its routine work, however, is still being highlighted by outstanding records. In late May 1946, planes of the 36th participated in "Operation Meteor," the transcontinental mass flight of jet planes. The C-82s, carrying engines and other equipment, followed the speedy fighters to service them throughout their flight. They proved conclusively their versatility in high speed, long-range operations.

On the return flight from the west coast to Pope Field, one of the C-82s set an unofficial cross-country record for twin-engined cargo planes of 9 hours, 14 minutes, 5 seconds. And on December 2, Lt. Colonel William Mandt and a crew of six set their C-82 down at Pope Field after a six-month, 25,000-mile tour of Europe in which they tested and demonstrated the plane before thousands of occupation GIs and civilians. In Prague alone, 400,000 persons gathered at the municipal airport to see the 36th aircraft go through its paces. Colonel Mandt estimates that more than 1000 paratroopers overseas made exhibition jumps from his plane, called by the GIs in the occupied areas, the "misproportioned P-38".

KNOW ABOUT BOMBS

SYDNEY, Jan. 1.—(P)—Atomic Scientist Prof. M. L. Oliphant told reporters today that Britain knew "all there was to be known" about the production of atomic bombs, because her scientists, including himself, had worked on production of the missiles in the United States.

Negro Veteran Back In Army

An article carried in the January 1947 issue of Ebony Magazine on the six Negro soldier winners of the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action during World War II states that Cpl. Jack Thomas of Albany, Ga. was discharged and now is living in his home town as a civilian.

Cpl. Thomas, contrary to the magazine's statement, re-enlisted into the Army on February 1, 1946 for a three year period. From that date up until the present, he has served with Service Battery 37th Field Artillery Battalion of the 25th Combat Team (Provisional) Fort Benning, Ga. At the time of his heroic deed, Thomas was a 370 squad leader. He had volunteered from a Quartermaster Service unit to the 60th Infantry Regiment of the 9th Infantry Division.

The Citation

The citation, dated September 18, 1945, reads: "Private First Class Jack Thomas, 3474804, Company E, 60th Infantry Regiment, 9th Infantry Division, United States Army. For extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy in Germany.

"On 9 April, 1943 during action near Harzerode Germany, Private First Class Jack Thomas courageously led his squad on a mission to knock out an enemy tank providing heavy calibre support for a hostile road block. Skillfully directing the deployment and firing of his squad, he advanced upon the enemy position, and hurled two hand grenades, wounding several hostile soldiers.

When two of his men manning a rocket launcher, were wounded and with utter disregard for the intense small arms and automatic weapons fire, carried his comrade to safety. Private Thomas' heroic leadership and unflinching devotion to duty are in keeping with the finest traditions of the military service. By command of General Patton: Paul D. Harkins, Colonel, General Staff Corps, Acting Chief of Staff."

Saved Comrade

"This gallant soldier then picked up one of the rocket launching team who was seriously wounded and with utter disregard for the intense small arms and automatic weapons fire, carried his comrade to safety. Private Thomas' heroic leadership and unflinching devotion to duty are in keeping with the finest traditions of the military service. By command of General Patton: Paul D. Harkins, Colonel, General Staff Corps, Acting Chief of Staff."

On April 19, 1945, Cpl. Thomas became a benedict. Mrs. Thomas being the former Elizabeth Childs of Albany, Ga.

Benning Scouts Played Santa

Fort Benning Boy and Cub Scouts played Santa Claus to three Fort Benning families, the Columbus Orphanage, and Salvation Army Christmas Eve with a truck load of toys and food. Scoutmaster Harry P. Duffield announced today.
 Canvassing quarters on the Post for used toys and canned food, the Benning scouts repaired thousands of dolls, wagons, and other small items for distribution at Christmas. Two of the service families reside on the Post, while the third is quartered in the Peabody Apartments in Columbus. All three were provided with Santa Claus for their children and food for their Christmas diners.
 It was also announced that both the Scouts and Cubs spent last Thursday and Friday on an overnight camping trip at the old 28th Infantry Rest Camp. Gene Falmer, local magician, accompanied the boys on the trip and provided entertainment Thursday night. Friday was spent in hiking and taking Scout examinations. The group returned late Friday afternoon.

Keeping TABS

In between biting my nails and tearing my hair over the lack of life on the beautiful premises of Fort Benning during this merry Xmas holidays I continually wonder why I am so worried about lack of news. Any one smart enough to be able to read would have figured out a way to vacate these environments for a short while. The few remaining G.I.s, who like me, still have been on duty these long endless days will be too fed up with things in general to read anything pertaining to the beautiful Fort Benning. So I couldn't knock out a beautiful picture and who'd give a hoot.

Sure Xmas mess in the various mess halls was BEAUFUL. I swellegant. The cooks outdid themselves—not only in the tasty menus, but also in decorating the mess halls. She, my wife I mean, decided to partake of—army fare on merry merry Xmas. Transportation was really snafu. No Buses, no taxis, no nothing. Finally managed to catch a lift and arrived at Hq. Co. The airborne section mess hall and I'll be nobody there! At least we didn't see any one around. Upon investigation of the company mess hall, the dinner guests were found. Just a courageous few.

Of course 1st soldier George P. Echols was present—with his lovely family and baby. So was 1st Sgt. Vance, with his family. Staff Sergeant Frost, Hq. Co. was also displayed here of spring and bragged that his boy could lick any baby in the hall. Well—maybe he was right. At least he was safe as far as was concerned, for I had not lugged my BOY. WONDER with me—so I sat Sgt. Frost's statement go.

It seems a shame that poor old Santa Claus never quite made it at the 801st Parachute Infantry Battalion diggings. The poor old fellow tries to arrive by parachute from a plane in flight—and he's still on his way down. Suspended about 25 feet from the Xmas tree beside the battalion Hq. Poor Sandy, he's neither here nor there!

Army Families Moved By Plane

Major General Edmond H. Leavey, Army Chief of Transportation, announced today that in its first week of operation, 214 dependents of American service personnel and War Department civilian employees have been flown to Europe under the War Department's new plan to speed reunion of overseas personnel with their families.

Distributed among nine flights, the dependents were flown in planes of the American Overseas Airlines and Pan American Airways, under arrangements made by the War Department with the commercial airlines.

The plan was inaugurated because of a critical shortage of suitable first class accommodations aboard surface vessels. Priority is given dependents with children under the age of seven. Women with children in that age group have been unavoidably penalized until now because of the fact that many extra facilities are required on ships carrying them and only the highest type accommodations are considered suitable. By this plan, the War Department hopes to effect as many family reunions as possible before Christmas.

Upon completion of the project the Transportation Corps will be in a position to maintain the dependent program on a current level and thereafter it is expected that dependents authorized to join husbands and fathers overseas will be moved with a minimum of delay.

MANY VICTORIES IN 1946

25th CT Sport Season Successful In All Phases

Sports in retrospect for the 25th Combat Team and units for '46 resulted in all phases of games being successfully administered under the direction of a hard working group of commissioned and enlisted supervisors, and with all seasonal sports clubs ending their schedules well on the win column side of the ledger.

Early in April, when the entire role of the Combat Team might have totalled several hundred, the 25th Infantry Regiment entered a basketball team as a last minute replacement in the annual "V" Basketball Tournament, used the proverbial dope bucket by surging to the finals, and came to the ninth degree of knocking off the Crusaders, a team of favorites who setback the 25th by a close 31 to 28 count.

Baseball Record
Baseball, under the coaching reins of 1st Lt. Jerry G. Capke became the number one team in home games both at Sand Hill and Gowdy Field. The Combateers soon became local favorites evidenced by the large following on hand during their home games. The Sand Hillers closed the diamond season with 40 wins, 10 losses, and 2 tie games called off on account of darkness.

The 99th F. A. Battalion won the "Little World's Series" from 1st Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment, and both teams have successfully won their respective league titles during the intra-mural diamond contests.

2nd Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment started something by organizing a Boxing Team under

Boxing Team
25th Infantry Regiment solved the lapse of boxing by creating a team set up with the four Infantry Regiment Battalions, 99th and 51st Field Artillery Battalions participating.

Interest over the bouts soared overnight with capacity attendances overflowing the outdoor arena at Lester Theater No. 6, Sand Hill to capacity during the regular Thursday night showings. Due to the ever increasing patronage, the shows were placed on a semi-weekly basis with Tuesday night headlining the two night a week affair.

With the advent of football season, Lt. Eddie J. Williams, former U. of Iowa luminary took over the coaching assignment. Missions against powerful Tuskegee Institute, Lane U. and Clark College dropped the Combateers rather easily to the losers side, but the Sand Hillers turned the tide of 8 wins, 5 losses and 2 ties.

Playing under the 25th Infantry Regiment's banner, coach - Lt. Lloyd Jones has a veritable wealth of medals in his basketball club which is captained by Norman Skinner, former Columbia University instructor and all- Ivy League Star. The team goes into its regular playing season on January 8 when it stacks up against Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee.

Sport Report

By Mr. Bill Moskowitz
With the end of the year here again, realms of newspaper space are being devoted to the summing up of the sports events of 1946. Since no one else will do it, we figured that a look at Fort Benning sports would not be entirely uninteresting—nothing else—of its kind.

After looking at baseball, football and basketball here for the past six months, we've come to the opinion that sports at "America's most complete Army post" is of pretty high caliber.

Post personnel are still aware that they were looking at a football team this fall that deserved all the superlatives tossed at it by the Bayonet and Columbus papers. General O'Daniel hit the well-known nail on the head when he said that the 1946 Doughboys came closer to matching a good college eleven than any previous team he could remember.

The shame of the situation is that the country as a whole doesn't want to have anything to do with the military. After the war years, any connotation of the Army is anathema, even a fine football team.

Even though Doughboy statistics, both individual and team, compared favorably with those of the leading football powers, it was extremely difficult to beg, borrow or steal a line of space in the big papers.

Now, with the season completed, there still wasn't a player in the nation who scored as many touchdowns — eighteen — as Hillary Shands, Doughboy halfback.

We hate to boast, but Fort Benning seems to have come up with another champion in the Doughboy basketball team. Here's a team that's as hard to beat as the gridder were.

Only a one-point defeat to a tough Atlanta Sports Arena five majors the "hoopsters" record, and they will have an opportunity to avenge that loss later on in the season.

Basketball players don't come any better than Claude Anderson, Doughboy captain and former University of Illinois cager. "Bud" scores an average of 30 points a game and is one of those men who does everything right on the court—an answer to a coach's prayer.

Either basketball isn't a popular sport, and countrywide attendance figures seem to contradict that, or else Benning personnel do not know what kind of a team they have. We say this because attendance at the Doughboy games hasn't been good at all.

The team rates better support than what it's been getting. Maybe the Doughboys have to win a few tournaments to wake everyone up. Believe us, they will!

Alexander To Head 'March Of Dimes'

Major General John W. O'Daniel prepared for Fort Benning's 1947 'March of Dimes' drive (Jan. 15 to 30) with the appointment this week of Lt. Col. Walden L. Alexander, The Infantry School as Co-ordinator of the activities for raising funds at this post.

General O'Daniel announced that the outstanding results of last year's efforts by members of the garrison, and civilian personnel, will be equalled, if not bettered, under the impetus of inspiration fostered by the nation's first full year of peace.

Lt. Col. Alexander will coordinate the activities of the representative units of the entire post, including the Infantry School, AFG Board No. 3, 25th Combat Team (Prov), ASU 8440, Lawson Field, The Airborne Section, A.A. Regional Hospital, and will accord opportunity to contribute to the fund drive to all military and civilian personnel.

25TH ST PACES ATLANTA
Playing under the banner of the 25th Infantry Regiment, the 25th combat team basketball team will face Morris Brown (Atlanta) College at Harmony Church Arena Wednesday evening, Jan. 8 in their first contest of the New Year.

Col. T. Wessels Named Member Of Rifle Board

Colonel Theodore F. Wessels of Portland, Connecticut has been appointed a member of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, the War Department announced today. Col. Wessels will also serve as Executive Officer of the board and as the Director of Civilian Marksmanship.

The National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice encourages and assists recognized clubs and schools in the practice of military marksmanship.

Col. Wessels was a member of the Infantry Rifle Team of 1922. From 1937 to 1940 he conducted instruction at the Small Arms Firing School which is an integral part of the national Camp Perry matches. From 1939 to 1942 he was an instructor in the Weapons Section of the Staff of the Infantry School. A veteran of both World Wars, Col. Wessels received his commission in 1917. Early in World War I he was assigned to the Infantry School for Chinese Officers in Kunming and later was appointed Staff Sergeant, Liaison Officer with Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command. Following this assignment he served as Commanding Officer of the Myitkya Task Force in the North Burma Campaign in 1944. He became a temporary Brigadier General March 17, 1944. Transferring to the Army Theatre, Col. Wessels served first as Deputy Commanding Officer of the 1st Army Theatre Reinforcement Command and then successively as Deputy Theatre Provest Marshal and Theatre Provest Marshal.

120 Pass Exams For Commissions At Ft. Benning

More than 120 candidates for Regular Army commissions have passed preliminary examinations at the Fort Benning Screening Center and are awaiting final approval of the War Department, officials announced today.

To date 1300 applications for RA commissions have been received from Army Reserve Forces officers. The Fort Benning center has completed processing procedures on 139 candidates with only 18 failures reported at this time, officials said.

An interview board, composed of six Air Corps officers, and a flight surgeon are expected to arrive at Fort Benning January 2 for the purpose of processing Air Force applicants for commissions. The AAF contingent is scheduled to begin interviews and examinations January 8 or the more than 1000 candidates. It was announced that approximately 75 per cent AAF officers must be completely processed, while an estimated 25 per cent need only appear before the interview board.

Approximately 75 Fort Benning officers are among those who have been screened by the Benning center, while an additional 25 Benningites slated for interview and examinations January 6-7. Two six-man boards will handle all applicants for commissions in the AGF and ASF.

The Fort Benning center was established December 4, along with four others in the Third Army Area, to process candidates for Regular Army commissions in Georgia and Florida. Deadline for applicants for war was December 31, but the center will continue in operation until March 31. Officials pointed out that results would probably not be made known until all recommendations have reached Washington. They will likely be the latter part of April or sometime in May, they said.

Army Commanders Assume Control Of Replacement Training Centers

The Army Commanders of the First, Second, Sixth and Seventh Armies will assume control of seven replacement training centers in the United States on January 1, General Jacob L. Levers, Commanding General of Army Ground Forces announced today.

Simultaneously, it was announced that the Band Training Unit at Camp Lee, Virginia, will be discontinued.

Three training centers, where recruits receive initial training prior to assignment in this country or overseas, will be under Lieutenant General Oscar W. Griswold, commanding the Seventh Army, with headquarters at Atlanta, Georgia.

They are the replacement training centers at Fort Jackson, South Carolina; Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Training centers—these at Fort Lewis, Washington, and Fort Ord, California—will pass to the control of Major General George P. Hayes, Sixth Army, with headquarters at San Francisco.

General Courtney Hodges, First Army, New York, will receive the replacement training center at Fort Dix, New Jersey, and Lieutenant General Albert C. Wedemeyer, Second Army, Baltimore, will get the replacement training center at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The training centers, with the exceptions of those at Fort Lewis and Fort Dix, have been under the Headquarters of the Army Ground Forces since abolition of the Replacement and School Command last November 1. Until November 10, when they came under the Commanding General, Army Ground Forces, the Training Center at Fort Lewis was under the Chief of Engineers and that at Fort Dix under the Chief Signal Officer.

Decentralization of their over-all control, General Levers explained, is in the interest of efficiency and economy. While the Army commanders will exercise command and disciplinary jurisdiction, direct the training operations and maintain services, including supply and procurement, headquarters of the Army Ground Forces will continue to prescribe program of training.

AAF Will Study Eclipse With National Geographic Society

The mysteries of the effect of the sun's eclipse on the earth's atmosphere will be studied by scientists at a joint Army Air Forces-National Geographic Society expedition into the interior of Brazil to observe and record the next solar eclipse on May 20, 1947.

Using the latest types of scientific instruments to record the effect of the eclipse on the ionosphere, the astronomers hope to add to their knowledge of the phenomenon and to obtain photographs of the sun's corona in black and white and in color. Spectograms will provide the scientists with data on changes of the properties of the atmosphere during the eclipse.

Ionosphere Probed
Current studies of the ionized layers will continue with radio observations of changes in the ionosphere. The brightness of the crescent of the sun will be measured as the total eclipse is approached.

The National Geographic Society scientists also will continue their study of cosmic rays. Equipment which had been used in the recent joint AAF-NGS flights in a Boeing B-29 Superfortress will be shipped to Brazil for additional experiments.

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, former director of the National Bureau of Standards who is now chairman of the National Geographic Society's Research Committee, will head the civilian group of scientists and technicians, and Brigadier General Byron E. Gates, chief of the AAF delegation to the joint Brazil-U. S. Military Commission, will command the military personnel.

is the closest practicable point to the center of the total eclipse's path. It was chosen after extensive weather studies and aerial photographic reconnaissance were made by Army Air Forces experts.

Path of Eclipse
The total eclipse will follow a path from Salvador (Bahia), Brazil, southwest to Santiago, Chile. The eclipse, which will not be seen in the United States, will last less than four minutes.

Additional participants will include scientists from the National Bureau of Standards, Lick Observatory, Yerkes Observatory, Georgetown Observatory, Naval Research Laboratory, and the National Broadcasting Company with its scientific research equipment. The expedition's camp will be erected in an open field on a cattle ranch. The AAF personnel will construct a tent community where the scientist will set up a portable laboratory to be flown from the United States.

Officer Personnel Due For Physicals

All Fort Benning officer personnel, including nurses and warrant officers, with the exception of those who fall within the provisions of paragraph 1, War Department Circular No. 347, 1946, will be given an annual or final type physical examination during the period January 1 through March 31, military officials announced today.

Examinations will be held in Ward B-11 located in the Cantonment Area of the Station hospital beginning January 7. Hours for the physicals are 1-5 p. m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. It is contemplated that 100 officers will be examined each afternoon. All officers are cautioned to bring their immunization records with them when they report for examination.

Schedules for nurses and student officers will be announced later.

Jet Plane Makes 400 Mi., 51 Min.

NEW YORK—(CNS)—Aerial photography, one of the Army Air Forces' major weapons during World War II, will play an even greater part in any future war, Col. George W. Goddard, chief of the photographic research laboratory at Wright Field, Ohio, said here. Col. Goddard recounted a recent test flight in which a P-80 jet fighter photographed a wide area along the 400-mile route from Dayton to Washington, D. C., in 51 minutes.

Photographic coverage from horizon to horizon at a 40,000-foot altitude, Col. Goddard said, was provided by the particular equipment used in the test flight. Its accuracy, he added, reveals even the curvature of the earth.

Death March Survivor Hopes Paper Will Avert Japan Trip

Blonde, bushy-haired Corporal Dick Biljey doesn't want to return to Japan to testify in war criminal trials and the veteran of the Bataan Death March is doing everything to prevent it.

A Fort Benning soldier who was filling out an affidavit recently, which he hopes will answer any questions inquiring about the march, said he's definite about one thing: "I never want to go back to Japan again."

Tells of Brutal Beatings
Requested to testify in the trial of guards and labor pitchers at the Japanese Onine Machi prison camp, the corporal, still edgy from three and one half years spent in Jap prisons, told fully in the affidavit of the brutal beatings and punishment inflicted on the march. "It was a foregone conclusion," he remarked, "that as soon as we (the prison details) left our barracks in the morning our guards would begin to abuse us." The 28-year-old corporal's home is in Walnut Shade, Mo. He has

Truman Requests Continued Draft

President Truman told Congress Monday in his "State of the Union" message that the Army will not be able to get along entirely on volunteers. Telling the representatives that the responsibility for maintaining the Army rests with them, the President asked the legislators to heed the suggestions of the War Department.

Although the draft law has been in operation during the past months, the Army hasn't found it necessary to draft anyone since last May. Now the Selective Service Act is due to expire on March 31, and the War Department fears that without it the Army will not be able to reach the strength called for under present mobilization plans.

Army Plans for UMT
Universal military training is what the Army is plugging for. Just before the opening of Congress, the War Department prepared and issued to each legislator, a twenty-four page booklet emphasizing the need for such training.

There exists, in and out of Congress, a bitter controversy over the merits of universal military training. Scientists and educators have insisted that the atomic bomb relegates the military to an unimportant role in modern war.

AGF Board 3 Members Visit 'TF Williwaw'

Members of Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, Fort Benning, Georgia, who recently visited Task Force Williwaw, currently testing equipment and tactics in the wet-cold of Adak Island in the Aleutians are Col. Dwight A. Rosebaum of St. Joseph, Missouri and Major James K. Terry of 310 South Elson St., Kirksville, Missouri.

Col. Rosebaum spent overseas with the 7th Armored Division in the European Theater of Operations and in the Pacific with the 4th Tank Group and 11th Replacement Depot. He is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, class of 1920, the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the Command and General Staff School at Leavenworth, Kansas. Col. Rosebaum has been decorated with the Silver Star and the Legion of Merit.

Major James K. Terry, who is a graduate of Northwest Missouri State College, class of 1938 and recently commissioned in the Regular Army, served 28 months in the Alaskan Department during the war, with the 138th Infantry.

7,000 Processed Through Benning

More than 7,000 officers and enlisted men have completed separation procedures at the Fort Benning Separation Point, according to figures released today by military officials.

A breakdown of the total number who have passed through the center reveals that 6,635 enlisted men and 433 officers are now leaving. The Benning Separation Point was in full operation throughout the Christmas vacation.

'47 Baby Derby Won By Neely Midnight Entry

At exactly 30 seconds past midnight January 1, Paul Oliver Neeley became the undisputed winner of the 1947 Baby Derby at Fort Benning.

Weighing seven pounds and six-and-one-half ounces at birth, Mr. 1947 is the son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Vincent T. Neeley, 165 Poplar Drive, Columbus. Sgt. Neeley is a member of the M. P. Detachment.

Ten Rivals

Approximately ten patients at the Fort Benning Regional hospital were expected to vie for honors of giving birth to the first child of the New Year and winning the 1947 Baby Derby which is sponsored by Columbus merchants in cooperation with The Bayonet. The second child born in 1947, however, did not see the light of day until 3:36 p. m.

Columbus merchants have presented 29 gifts, ranging from free meals for the entire family to expensive toys for the lucky baby, to Sgt. Neeley.

Gifts Listed

Among the free gifts were two cases of RC Cola, a framed picture from Columbus Photo Service, a baby's high chair from Montgomery Ward, Johnson De-Luxe baby set from Lane Drugs, a hair brush from the Village Beauty Shop, a genuine Go-Car from the Foremost Auto Stores, a baby book from White's Book Store, $5.00 worth of merchandise from the Y and M Radio Service Co., $5.00 worth of cleaning or dyeing from Phillips Cleaners and Dyers, a baby ring from Harris Jewelers, a wool sweater from Wee Moderns, a walking lamp from Kenmore Auto Stores, free dinner for mother and father at the Goo-Goo Restaurant, two half-galons ice cream from Wells Dairies, 12 portraits from the Cor-day Studio, a combination swing and auto seat from the Village

Must Sign Up Autos Here

All privately owned vehicles operating on the Fort Benning reservation must be re-registered with the provost marshal before April 30, it was announced today.

The 1947 registration tags are now available at the provost marshal's office, and all Fort Benning personnel, both military and civilian, are requested to re-register as soon as possible. The only change in registration this year will be the elimination of the windshield sticker.

It was announced that the civilian who has the longest service on the Post will receive tag C-1, while the enlisted man with the longest period of service at Fort Benning will receive E-1. Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding general of The Infantry Center, will receive tag G-1. ME officials also pointed out that the 1947 Georgia State automobile license plate is also due, and all personnel who expect to be in the state after April 1, deadline, are urged to register their automobiles immediately. Personnel at the Provost Marshal's office will be in filing out application forms, it was announced.

REHEARSALS FOR NEW PLAY PROGRESS— Designer Leonard Harris points at Dave Bowen, Beaming drum-beater, as members of the cast of "George Washington Slept Here," a Kaufman and Hart comedy to be presented Jan. 16-17 by the Christian Fellowship Association at Columbus High School auditorium.

Hart comedy to be presented Jan. 16-17 by the Christian Fellowship Association at Columbus High School auditorium.

Rehearsals Enter Last Week

Rehearsals for "George Washington Slept Here" entered the last week today, as final finishing touches were given the Kaufman and Hart comedy being directed by Sgt. Earl Allen for Christian Fellowship Association Little Theatre. The play will be the initial production of the theatrical group.

Sgt. Allen, who doubles as Uncle Stanley, the rich relative, studied dramatics at Bob Jones College prior to entering the Army, and plans to resume the study of dramatic arts following his discharge.

Other Fort Benningites featured in the cast of GWSH are 2nd Lt. Walter A. Dumas, 1st Lt. Robert L. Wetmore and Pvt. George K. Emch, who appeared under the nom-de-plum of George Stanley with Clara Tree Master's repertoire children's theatre before entering the Army. Dave Bowen, civilian employee at publicity, and an Army of about a million-and-one-half men is needed to guard against any unexpected attacks and to provide occupation troops.

The Army would like Congress to approve its plans for universal military training, under which youths of 18 would be taken for a minimum service of six months. Until that is passed, the War Department will probably continue to press for another extension of the Selective Service Act.

By July 1, the Army is supposed to be down to a strength of 1,070,000 men. The deployment schedule for this force is as follows:

Europe—One division, two regimental combat teams, ten constabulary regiments, and eleven air groups.

Northwest commands (The Greenland-Labrador-Newfoundland area)—Two air groups and no ground troops.

Caribbean—One regiment, two air groups.

Pacific Islands—One and two-thirds divisions, sixteen air groups.

Japan-Korea—Six divisions, six air groups.

United States—Four divisions, thirty-one air groups.

The War Department is in for heavy sledding in Congress, if recent utterances by some representatives carry any weight. The occupation forces in Germany have been under fire from visiting Congressmen for being badly trained and unequipped for their task.

Senator Johnson of Colorado, a ranking member on the Senate Military Affairs Committee, as well as Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, another member of the committee, will be out to give the Army a rough time, as they have both stated that they would oppose any training which will be under control of the Army.

President Truman has not yet given his full backing to the Army's universal military training plan, as he is waiting for the report of a commission he appointed to investigate the question. The commission is headed by Dr. Karl Compton, Massachusetts Institute of Technology head who helped in the development of the atomic bomb, which indicates that the reports may not be too favorable to the Army standpoint. In establishing the commission, President asked for a study of, and recommendations on, universal training, and the absence of the word "military" was conspicuous and was commented on by observers.

Gyp! The visitor paid his greens fee, fixed up a match, and went out to the first tee. Taking his stance, he made a wild swing and missed completely. "By jove!" he said to his opponent. Fansler Attends Inspector School

Lt. Hershel E. Fansler, Assistant S-1, at Lawson Field, left the base today for Craig Field, Alabama, where he will attend the AAF Air Inspector's School. At the termination of a ten-weeks training course he will return to Lawson Field. Lt. Fansler, graduate of Columbus High school and the son of Lt. Colonel Paul N. Fansler, U. S. Army, retired, reported for duty at Lawson Field last July. He and his wife, the former Miss Agnes Onger, of Cleveland, Ohio, reside at 560D Perkins street on the Post.

Other Lawson officers attending school in Craig Field are Capt. George B. Quinsberry, a member of the 74th TC Squadron, and Capt. Wilson Deparis, of 16 Benning Drive.

Each of the guards. "Donald Duck," "The Apple," "The Frog," and "The Weasel"—these were a few. Quacking at the Jap, whom they called "Dorad Duck," the members of the detail finally got him so furious, Dick says, that the guard set out to find what the name meant. He found out much to the sorrow of the detail's members.

Brutal beatings followed. "The clubs that these men used were wooden sabers which all Japanese carried for the purpose of beating the prisoners on work details," the former prisoner declared, "and when the guards' hands got sore they lined the two ranks of the detail up, facing each other, and we were forced to beat each other in the face."

Prison work usually lasted ten to sixteen hours a day, he said, and the rations that detail received amounted to a total of 550 grams. "All that we got to eat was plain rice without salt or any other seasoning and a small bowl of soup."

The corporal says he will do almost anything else, but he doesn't want to go to Japan.

An extensive course in photography for all enlisted men and officers who may be interested will begin January 13, under the sponsorship of the Information and Education Office of the Personnel Section TIC, Lt. Gerald C. Kimbrell announced today.

The course will be held at no charge four nights a week, Monday through Thursday from 6:00 to 9:00 p. m. and from 8:00 p. m. until 10:00 p. m. in a building adjacent to the I and E office.

Registration must be made in person at the I and E office from 8:00 a. m. Tuesday until 10:00 p. m. Friday. Late registrants will be admitted, however, for one week, thereafter.

Taught by T-4 Benjamin C. Zarr, a photographer of superior artistic and craftsmanship, the class will cover the entire range of the subject from family photography for personal pleasure to dark room technique, and the professional field including commercial photography and portraiture.

The first two weeks of classes will serve as Orientation to determine the previous photographic experience, aptitude and ultimate goal of each pupil. After that the pupil will be divided into beginners and advanced classes, each meeting two night a week.

This is a golden opportunity to learn photography thoroughly from the ground up. However, only those sincerely interested are urged to join.

Infantry, Armored Divisions Increase Size, Firepower

Increases in size, firepower and shock action of U. S. Army infantry and armored divisions were announced today by General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces, in a sweeping reorganization which takes into account lessons learned in World War II and which looks forward to the atomic age.

"American Army divisions, proven equal or superior to the best of friend and foe alike in the war just won," General Devers said, "will henceforth be unparalleled fighting machines. With an increase of only one-fifth in the strength of the infantry division, we have tripled the number of artillery weapons and more than tripled our firepower. Shock effect, striking power, flexibility and maneuverability are all increased."

Goal of Ground Forces planning, General Devers added, is an infantry division which will be completely transportable by air.

"Triumphous" Goal
"The infantry division of the future," he said, "will not be merely amphibious, striking at the enemy by land or sea. It will be 'trifibious,' capable of swift mechanized movement by land, sea and air."

General Devers' announcement was made upon notification that the Chief of Staff, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, had approved new organization plans for the infantry and armored divisions. For reasons of economy in personnel and equipment, the present strength of divisions in the United States will be approximately 14,000 officers and men, but for experimental purposes Army Ground Forces has been authorized to make variations in this figure.

The approved changes in division organization were based on recommendations submitted by former division and unit commanders, the General Board of the European Theater of Operations which sat at Bad Nauheim in 1945-46, and the Infantry, Armored and Artillery Conferences held at service schools in spring. Combat lessons learned in all theaters of action during the war were incorporated in the changes.

"In World War II," General Devers said, "our rocket attacks upon our troops and the civilian population in Belgium and England did not stop until our ground forces had penetrated to the launching sites, destroyed the Nazi launching forces and demolished the sites and stockpiles."

"In any future war the mission of our ground forces would be the same. Attacks upon the civilian population of the United States itself would not cease until our Army's ground forces—infantry, armored cavalry and artillery—descended upon the enemy's airfields, launching sites, depots and factories to seize or destroy them."

The New Infantry Division
"Atomic and nuclear weapons will not alter the nature of warfare to such an extent that the ground combat need for a mobile, multiple and hard-hitting division will be diminished or altered," General Devers continued. "The infantry division will remain the versatile combat unit of a field Army, organized basically for hard-hitting shock action. It will have a degree of training in special operations that will permit its rapid conversion for jungle, arctic, desert or mountain fighting, and for movement by motor, ship or plane."

The war strength American infantry division of the future will number between 17,000 and 18,000 officers and men, an increase of more than 3,000 over its World War II strength.

The more important changes include:

- (1) Inclusion of an organic tank battalion
- (2) Inclusion of an organic anti-aircraft artillery battalion
- (3) Addition of two more howitzers to each of the twelve firing batteries of the division artillery, increasing its firepower 50%
- (4) Reduction of the infantry squad from twelve to nine men
- (5) Addition of a fourth company and a bridge platoon to the engineer battalion

Included in each regiment will be a headquarters company, a service company, and three battalions consisting of a headquarters company, heavy weapons company and three rifle companies each; a tank company in addition to the headquarters and three combat companies of the organic battalion under division control; a heavy mortar company armed with the 4.2 mortar, and a medical company.

Eliminated as a result of this new alignment will be the anti-tank and cannon companies, and the collecting company which was a part of the divisional medical battalion.

During World War II, especially in the Mediterranean and European theaters, each division habitually had separate battalions of tanks and anti-aircraft artillery detailed to provide it with their types of specialized support. Organically, this arrangement proved sound, but administratively it left much to be desired. By including these battalions organically in the division, it is believed that greater efficiency may be achieved.

Tanks With Regiment
The inclusion, however, of a company of tanks in each regiment as well as a battalion in the division means that the number of tanks working with the division as a whole will be doubled. In World War II each division usually had three tank companies working with it, but the division of the future will have six, armed with the big M-26 "General Pershing" tank mounting a 90-mm. gun.

All of the additions to the new division will, of course, be armed with the latest weapons. There is no better illustration of this policy than the anti-aircraft artillery battalion. In the last war, the AAA Battalion was provided with towed 40-mm. Bofors guns. In the future, it will have self-propelled carriages mounting either quadruple 50 caliber machine guns of dual 40-mm. guns. It will be under the control of division artillery.

Division artillery will still consist of three battalions of 105-mm. howitzers and one battalion of 155-mm. howitzers, but the number of pieces in each firing battery will be increased from four to six. Combat experience indicated that a battery could handle six guns without materially increasing its command and administrative overhead. This increase will give the division fifty-four 105 howitzers and eighteen 155 howitzers. During World War II all artillery in the infantry division was towed; it is still towed, but it is contemplated that towed guns will be replaced with self-propelled guns as soon as suitable models are developed.

A reduction in the size of the infantry squad from twelve to nine men was made because combat experience indicated that a squad leader could not control more than eight other men in the future squad which will have, besides its leader, an assistant squad leader, five riflemen, a Brownie Automatic Rifleman and the latter's assistant.

A fourth company has been added to the engineer battalion to give the division a spare. One company is habitually detailed to each regimental headquarters combat team, to afford close, front-line support. When the battalion has only three companies, the division frequently was left without any engineers to handle other front line jobs. The added bridge platoon will have certain types of bridging material heretofore issued only to corps and army engineer units.

Medic Ba. Reduced
"The new medical battalion has been greatly reduced in size and scope since World War II. It had, besides its headquarters company, three collecting companies and three medical companies. Litter sections have been removed from the collecting companies and the medical regiments to achieve better control and services. Ambulance platoons of the old medical battalion's collecting companies have been combined to form an ambulance company.

Three changes have been made in the division's special troops. The old headquarters for special troops has been abolished. The recent creation of a military police company in certain divisions has been standardized. A replacement company, supervised by seven officers and four enlisted men, has been added; this company's job will be to receive the division's replacements and to prepare them for their battle assignments.

Several important types of equipment have been increased in the division, or added to it. During World War II, all the liaison planes were in division artillery, but an experimental increase from ten to sixteen planes is standard in the new setup. The division's "stratopoppers" will be assigned one to each regiment and three to division headquarters. The new equipment, which had been supplied to an interim-type division, has been made organic to the headquarters of division artillery and each regiment, to facilitate the location of enemy tanks and mortars. Forty-two 75-mm. anti-tank guns, which are recoilless rifles will be included in the division's armament.

The U. S. armored division of the future will consist of approximately 15,000 officers and men, and will undergo an important change in its command organization. Modifications will be made to fit peacetime restrictions of personnel and material. During the war, the combat elements of the division were grouped under Combat Command "A" and "B," and a small fraction held for contingencies under Combat Command "C" headquarters for the old reserve. The new setup will substitute a Combat Command "C" headquarters for the old reserve headquarters, creating three command headquarters of equal capabilities.

"The U. S. armored division," General Devers said, "will continue to provide, in fulfillment of its primary mission, an highly mobile, hard-hitting combat units which were so spectacularly successful in breakthrough and exploitation in the recent war. During the war the United States had sixteen armored divisions, all of which saw action in either the Mediterranean or European theaters, and many in both. Thirteen of these had an authorized strength of 10,000, but the 2nd and 3rd Armored Divisions were activated under a table of organization which authorized 14,000. The 1st Armored Division fought in Africa and part of the way through Italy with an authorized strength of 12,000. Being reorganizing on the same basis as the majority of the divisions.

Regardless of the type of organization, combat experience indicated conclusively that the ratio of infantry to tanks was insufficient. To remedy this shortage, an entire battalion of infantry will be added to the division, and the strength of each company will be increased from three to four rifle companies, increasing the number of rifle companies from nine to sixteen.

Squad Reduced
As with the infantry division, the strength of the tank battalion squad will be reduced in size, but in this case to ten men. The tenth man will drive the squad's full-tracked personnel carrier.

An added heavy tank battalion will be equipped with the M-26 "General Pershing" tank. Like the division's three medium tank battalions, it will consist of three tank companies of four platoons each, making the tank battalions of the armored division identical with the tank battalions of the infantry division.

The M-26 has recently been classified as a medium tank, but will be issued to the heavy tank battalions with its new heavy tank is brought out.

Artillery and anti-aircraft battalions are also added to the armored division. The division artillery headquarters. The additional artillery battalion will be equipped with eight self-propelled 155 mm. howitzers, and each of the other three battalions will have four self-propelled 105 mm. howitzers. The anti-aircraft battalion will have four self-propelled weapons, half of them quadruple 50 caliber machine guns and the other half dual 40-mm. guns.

Other changes in the division include a bridge company and an additional line company for the engineer battalion, and a supply battalion of two truck companies. A major deletion will be the tank destroyer battalion which was habitually attached to work with the division in combat; its work will be taken over by the extra tank battalions with their own tanks.

The division special troops will include signal, military police, replacement and headquarters and service companies. The division trains will consist of a headquarters company, an ordnance maintenance company, three medical companies, and a medical battalion of headquarters and three medical companies. The supply battalion will be included in the division trains.

"An important change in equipment will be the addition of 530 full-tracked personnel carriers to transport the infantry. During the war, the armored infantry rode into battle in half-tracks. The division will lose twenty-eight light tanks, but will gain 130 medium tanks, for a total strength in mediums of 325.

37 YEARS IN COLUMBUS, GA.

RIFLE CREW—Taken during the recent field test maneuver of Task Force Williwaw, the above photo shows a restless rifle crew preparing its firing position. These men are simulating combat conditions to determine the effect of wet-cold climate on men, tactics, and equipment for Army Ground Forces. The task force will operate at Adak in the western Aleutians, through March 30th, 1947.

A MOTOR CONVOY of Task Force Williwaw, currently testing tactics and equipment for Army Ground Forces in the wet-cold of the Aleutians, is shown above December 13th moving to a bivouac prior to beginning its test maneuvers. The task force is scheduled to complete test operations March 30th, 1947.

Williwaw Task Force Hits Last Trip Of Adak Training

With three months testing of men, tactics and equipment still to be completed, Task Force Williwaw is undergoing the final stages of its December tests, on Adak Island, in the Aleutians.

After experiencing several days of comparatively mild weather early in December, the Williwaw force's test activities were met by two severe wind storms, reported as the worst for December in five years.

Probably the most important test result to date appeared from a tactical field maneuver conducted from the 12th through the 21st December.

Having received warning of an assumed invasion, Task Force Williwaw moved into the field on December 12th prepared to counter-attack an invasion force. Prepared defensive positions were established in order to determine the tactical efficiency of such positions in the wet-cold Adak climate.

4 Days And Nights

After four days and nights of exposure to the elements the Infantry company, as part of a larger simulated force, made a counter-attack South to contain the invader, pending airborne reinforcements from the mainland.

With packboards and equipment averaging about 110 pounds per man the Infantry company plodded over five miles of rough terrain to bivouac for the night, but were attacked, not by the enemy but by winds and driving snow up to 80 mph. Temporary two-man shelter tents tipped from end to end and collapsed, pulling pins and breaking poles in the process.

Probably the most important discovery to date shows that a more satisfactory portable shelter must be developed for the fighting man to endure extended periods, the winter wet-cold of the Aleutians, characterized by its wet, marshy fogs, rain, sleet, snow, and hurricane winds. Other experimental tent shelters to be tested in the succeeding months may prove to be the answer.

Capt. Jack E. Smith, test officer for Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, Fort Benning, said that: "The timely testing of this Army Ground Force Equipment Board save many an American soldier from unnecessary exposure under similar conditions, as none of the portable shelters tested thus far have proved adequate in the Aleutians." The Jamesway Shelter, similar to the Quonset hut but capable of construction in two and one half to three hours, has been torn asunder and strewn for 300 to 500 yards as a result of the high winds experienced December 20th. Further tests and modifications are contemplated for this type shelter.

Weapons satisfactory to most Infantry weapons tested thus far have proved satisfactory even though subjected to the elements for several days at a time. Stock swelling on one type weap-

Red Cross Speeds Emergency Action

When the Red Cross has a very urgent case to can, and does, get all the balls to rolling at the same time. David Jackson Cooper, assistant field director at the Airborne Red Cross office, proved this recently. The story goes like this:

A few days ago, at about eleven-thirty in the morning, Pvt. Smith entered Mr. Cooper's office greatly agitated. He had just receive a telegram from his father advising him that his mother was hospitalized and an operation for cancer was pending. The soldier seemed to have an unusual love for his mother and was truly greatly concerned.

Mr. Cooper immediately dispatched a telegram to the chapter in the man's home town requesting a "rush reply" as to the situation. The old saying "a watched pot never boils" seemed to hold true in this case as the worried soldier hung around his office the greater part of the afternoon, awaiting his verification. In view of his evident concern, Mr. Cooper and hoped strongly to get him on the M.A.T. plane, the Alamo, which leaves Fort Benning at 6 p.m. for Washington, D. C., where he could make connections with another M.A.T. plane, the General Patton, which would get him to Dayton, Ohio, the nearest point to his home in Indianapolis, Ind. But as time wore on, three o'clock having come and gone, the soldier must have given up in despair, because he disappeared.

Finally, at 3:30 p.m. the verification came. The chapter wired that the soldier's mother was hospitalized, condition serious, that she was to undergo an operation and that the soldier's presence was strongly recommended. But where was the soldier? In view of his having disappeared, there was nothing to be done except to report the wire to his first sergeant and then await developments.

The first sergeant must have experienced some difficulty in locating Pvt. Smith for at exactly 3:50 he walked into Mr. Cooper's office with his furlough and asking if he might ride up the Alamo to Dayton. This was the exact moment that the Alamo was due to set down on Lawson Field. In addition to this, the soldier stated that he was dead broke and would need round-trip fare and sustenance from Dayton to his home at Indianapolis. To arrange air transportation, Mr. Cooper took up his baggage at his orderly room, leave his duplicate furlough and get him to his plane was a large order for twenty minutes, but Mr. Cooper and his secretary, Miss Van Horn, sprang into action. She, luckily having anticipated his request, had typed up priority furlough papers were signed by Mr. Cooper. The M.A.T. office was called, all pertinent information given as the soldier's name entered on the manifest. Mr. Cooper was informed, though, under no circumstances could the plane be held up, that it had already landed, but that they would get the soldier on the Red Cross could get him there in time.

That over, fifteen minutes were left. A loan was written up in short order, and the soldier underwent what was probably the most rapid fire interview in Red Cross history. A check was written, and then the soldier and Mr. Cooper hopped into the car and for the soldier's orderly room to get his bags. The first sergeant was not in the orderly room, and therefore a precious minute or two was consumed by the executive officer who was on unfamiliar ground in releasing the soldier for furlough. However, soon he was back in the car which had been turned around in the meantime and we headed for Lawson Field for a ten-five miles an hour. Mr. Cooper states that it seemed as if they were crawling but they made it.

The M.A.T. officer had all the necessary papers ready and seemed most appreciative of the Red Cross efforts to get the soldier there on time.

The Red Cross hopes that Pvt. Smith found his mother's condition much improved since his arrival home, and this is just a sample of the speed with which the Red Cross at Fort Benning works when it meets the relief and peace of mind of a soldier.

Extensive Tests

During the months of January and February tests will be even more extensive than in December and will include many new experimental items of equipment.

Army Ground Forces planned that three task forces be established to determine whether equipment for the current operation and what new equipment and tactics are required for the ground team to fight under different types of winter conditions.

Task Force Frost is currently testing equipment at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, while Task Force Williwaw tests at Fairbanks, Alaska. Further tests at Task Force Williwaw will complete its test operations by March 30th, 1947.

SET JANUARY 10

Post NCO Club Opening To Be Marked By Dance

The Post Non-Commissioned Officers Club will officially be launched January 10 with a Grand Opening buffet supper and dance held in the clubhouse, a rustic log-paneled building located on South Kilgore Street.

The first NCO Club to include all non-coms on the post from the grade of T-5 through Master-Sgt., regardless of branch of service, the organization received an initial boost when Col. Ben Harrell yesterday presented 1st Sgt. Charles W. Lowe Jr., President, with a check for $500 from the Special Welfare Fund of School Troops, TIS to cover decorating and opening expenses.

O'Daniel To Attend

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel is expected to attend the formal opening as an expression of his approval and support of this project. All NCOs, their families and friends are invited to the celebration which will be a gala occasion featuring attractive door prizes, refreshments and music by the 72nd Army Ground Forces Orchestra. Buffet supper will be served from 2100 to 2145 with dancing from 1900 to 2430.

The club itself, a rectangular building with a broad veranda in front has an interesting past having been at one time Master-Sgt. theater on the post. Later, it was known as Pine Lodge because of the abundant greenery surrounding it on all sides. Now, although the exterior remains the same, the club has taken on a new aspect inside. Billowing green and white parachute forms a low canopy ceiling accentuated by blue drapery along the side windows. A gay-nineties-western motif is carried out in murals painted on the south wall and behind the dais at the far end of the room which is lined with maroon and green leather chairs with chrome-trim. Mirrors are by Sgt. Bob Varreyer and Cpl. Pam Bronseau.

Behind Swinging Doors

On the left, behind appropriate swinging doors is the bar, a long structure with sides covered in brown quilted leather, over which beer, soft drinks and set-ups will be served. The bar is also equipped to serve short orders.

Tables with red and white checkered cloths will be a permanent feature of the club which will be open from 11:30 a. m. until 12:30 p. m. weekdays with the bar closing at 11:00 p. m. On Saturdays and holidays the club will open at 9:00 a. m. and be in continuous operation until midnight.

On opening night Friday hundreds of multi-colored balloons will be clustered under the canopy to be released simultaneously and float down among the dancers.

The club schedule will include two regular dances a week, on Wednesday and Saturday nights with a special treat for the men—Stag Night—to be held each week.

Keeping TABS Lawson Briefs

By this time most of you lucky guys have returned from leave. Let me tell you that it has been the bane of my existence to put chattered into this busy little thing called "Keeping TABS." What I did read—the one that poor egg-head who printed it. I have suffered the pangs of a beaten man—friendless and forlorn—so much so that now I don't care whether I win the Most Popular Man In Fort Benning Contest.

Maybe I should tell you about "The Most Popular Man In Fort Benning" deal? — I don't know why I should—excepting that my telling will fill up this column. To begin with: Is there a really popular figure here in Fort Benning—besides myself? Somehow, I am inclined to believe that there is. The Airborne gang have a lot of possibilities.

Looking around with my slightly myopic eyes, I can see a stout fellow named Lt. Murphy, who certainly has contributed a lot to the entertainment of you sky-ypers. You have a GOOD time over in the Alabama Rec Center? Did you ever stop to think that Lt. Murphy is the one—no, not you, my moments of relaxation over there is the boss-man in charge of activities? Don't believe me, he does a good job of it.

Another fellow soldier who is very popular is that boy Swallow who conducts the Airborne Rhythm Makers for all the Alabama "Most Popular" men. Has any one of us ever said "Thanks, keep, for a swell time? Naw!

Oh for another contender for the title: Capt. John Marr stands out among the most popular. All your sports activities come under his jurisdiction, including enticing all those pretty young gals from nearby towns to dance with you at the various shindies. Consider Capt. Marr well, he can't be beaten for doing his best to keep you egg-heads happy.

Just look around you and take a kook look at the many men who are always doing something for the "other fellow", believe me, there are plenty of 'em. Let's find out who "The Most Popular" man is, then I think up a way of saying "thanks." Maybe throw a big party or something?

I can hear a lot of you saying "That's kinda nice idea little of 'Keeping TABS' has."

Sure it is!

Let's not just sit on our D.A.—let's do something about it! Send your vote on the "Most Popular"

Reporting for work last Monday morning was just the beginning of another week to those who stayed on the job through the holidays, but for the holiday vacationists, brother, getting up early and back into harness again wasn't easy, they fell. But ringing telephones and clicking typewriters quickly snapped them out of the spell, Christmas furloughs were soon filed away under memories and in no time the old place started buzzing with the 1947 business as usual.

The new year certainly started off right for Pvt. Peter G. Ridgion, the 15th; according to the latest orders he is now a corporal.

M-Sgt. Lester S. Long and S-Sgt. Robert J. McGowan Jr., from the MP's Office, are attending MP Investigator's School at Carlisle Barracks in frigid Penna. They are glad to return to the Sunny South when their two months training is over?

Lt. Ernest C. Ford, Purcell Lt. Lloyd E. Byrd, Phillip S. Miller and Troy Morris will spend forty days in Greenville, S. C., taking glide pilot training.

Rachel Newman Howell, photography artist and formerly with the base Signal Section, used her camera and Jersey City (her hometown) snow scenes and made some clever Christmas greeting cards.

Tank NCO Club Dance Dates Set

The Tank Battalion NCO Club, in Harmony Church Area, announces a change in dates in the club's activities.

The dances are held each Sunday and Tuesday night, with music by the "Swing Masters" Orchestra featuring Jewell Martin and her orchestra. The party bus will leave the Ledger building at 8 p. m. All young ladies are invited to attend.

AAF ex-Captains Now Sergeants

Richard B. Mercer and Aubrey R. Vaughn, former Army Air Force captains, re-enlisted as master sergeants with the AAF at Lawson Field last week, base recruiting officials have announced.

Master Sergeant Mercer, a veteran of five re-enlistments and holder of the Legion of Merit, is an Air Force pioneer having joined that branch in 1933 when it was known as the Air Service.

At Lawson Before
He was previously stationed at Lawson from November, 1940, until February, 1942, and went overseas from Daniel Field, Ga., later in 1942. A ground crew specialist, he served overseas for 33 months and received direct appointment to warrant officer in December, 1942, while based in Africa. He received his lieutenant's commission in Italy.

The former officer received the Legion of Merit award for his work as a technical inspector. His wife is the former Miss Eileen Tudor of Ozone Park, N. Y.

Flew in Burma
Master Sergeant Vaughn, a native of Collins, Miss., entered service in 1938 and transferred to the Air Forces in 1941. He served a tour with the Infantry in the Canal Zone and later served as a pilot with the 3rd Combat Cargo Group in Burma. He reported for duty at Lawson in August and had been assigned as a pilot to the 1st TC Squadron since that time. He will remain at Lawson until the Base unit and serve with the Base Legal Officer.

His wife is the former Miss Melba W. of Ovid, Fla., and his mother is Mrs. Katie Vaughn, of Collins, Miss.

Sailor, Marine Get Army's Chevrons

Among veterans re-entering the service at Lawson Field recently were former Marine and Sergeant 2/c Donald D. Veasey of Pensacola, Florida, Robert Rentz of Colquitt, Ga., and former Marine Corporal Arthur L. McManious of Columbus. The three re-enlistees at Lawson are being assigned through the 319th AAF Base Unit recruiting officials announced.

Veasey, who formerly served aboard the USS Aguir and saw action on Midway Island, had been out of service since last August. He was re-enlisted with the rank of sergeant. He is the son of Mrs. Francis Veasey, of Pensacola. McManious entered service in 1942 and served 31 months in the service with the Marine Corps. He is the brother of J. T. McManious of 753 43rd St., Columbus. He will be assigned to the Base Sheet Metal Shop.

Sgt. Rentz, formerly with Engineers, saw action on Luzon and Japan and spent 13 months with the Army of Occupation in Japan. He is the son of Mrs. Carrie Rentz of Colquitt, Ga.

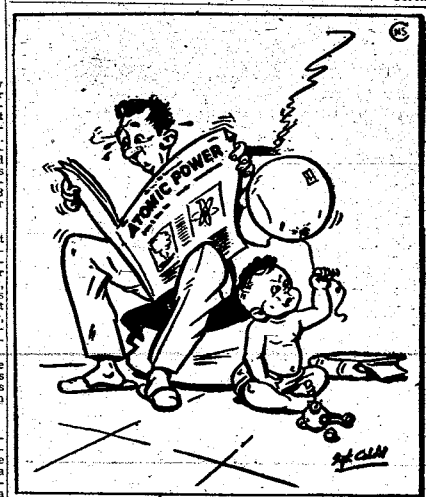

Casualty Branch Back To Normal

Major General Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General, announced today that the War Department's Casualty Branch located in his office has reverted to its peacetime status as a part of the Personnel Bureau.

Expanded from 5 employees to nearly 2,400 after the outbreak of war, the Casualty Branch had the duty of notifying parents and relatives of the death or injury to hundreds of thousands of America's fighting men.

Since cessation of hostilities, the work of the Casualty Branch has consisted chiefly of clearing the status of the unidentified dead and of those men listed as "missing in action". According to General Witsell, only a small number of these cases remain unsolved. The section, however, is still receiving hundreds of inquiries from relatives of deceased personnel and those still listed as missing.

Lt. Colonel William D. Cartwright, of Brooklyn, New York, is in charge of the section which now numbers about 175 employees.

Army Ordnance Aim Lighter Guns, Tanks

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Army weapons tanks, and motor vehicles are now under examination in Army Ordnance research labs here. The research is being carried by one of two men and fired from a machinegun tripod.

Ordnance research workers have also perfected light, recoil-less, large-caliber cannons, and are currently redesigning small arms, aiming at lighter weapons with ample seating capacity for approximately 2,500 persons.

Big guns are being reduced in weight more than 33 and one-third per cent with the use of lighter metals. Tank and trucks are being constructed of magnesium so they can be transported by plane.

Gen. Saylor said that Ordnance workers are substituting magnesium and other light metals for steel wherever possible. He said that all research at greater range and velocity with lighter weight. Ground weapons too large to transport in planes are also being redesigned in smaller units, to be assembled after landing.

The Jains, a religious sect of India, believe that the soul has colors, three good and three bad, indicating its character, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Ground pig pens used by entomologists in their study of insects are so small that it takes about 1,500 of them to weigh an ounce, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

POST POLO VETERANS HAVE BEEN IN GAME FROM 17 TO 22 YEARS

Under the heading "Polo Players Still Going Strong at 45," a Columbus paper this week carries an article on Marty Christensen, poloist who claims to have found the fountain of youth in eighteen years rough play.

Shucks, Marty needn't think he's the only one. Right here at Fort Benning are five players who have been at it for 17-22 years, even though they may not be 45 yet. Three of them, Col. Robert L. Dulaney, Col. William W. O'Connor and Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran, each playing on a different post team have starred on these teams at every game played during the fall season, and will continue to chalk up the goals in the winter season which starts next Sunday on French Field.

Veteran of 18 Seasons
The fourth, Col. Joseph "Picky" Nicholls will play later in the season, while the fifth, Lt. Col. O. "Zero" Wilson, chief coach of all teams and veteran of 18 years play will not compete this year due to injuries. Experience seems to pay off in polo, as a breakdown of goals scored during the five games played at Benning last year show Colonel Moran well in the lead with 12 goals. Moran played a total of 18 chukkers.

Colonel Dulaney, captain of the 25th Combat Team Blue Devils scored 9 goals in a total of 17 chukkers play, with Colonel O'Connor making only 2 goals, a fact possibly accounted for by the fewer periods he played, 7 in all.

However, on the other hand, proving that mere number of years play does not tell the whole story, second highest number of goals was made by Lt. Barnes C. Hopkins Jr. with 10 scores. Hopkins is in his second season at Benning having played with Peter Hurd's team in New Mexico in 1941-1942. A hard hitter and a skillful rider, he shows promise of even more improvement as the season wears on.

Background of Players
It is interesting to note the background of each player at Benning brings to the game. On the Scholastic Troops Red team, present champions by dint of an 8-6 win over the 25th Combat Team Blue Devils in the fall play-off, Colonel Moran, team captain, led the Governor's Horse Guard in Hawaii, Honolulu Sector and the student team at Benning in 1922.

Major Gerald "One Hoss" Shea played at Virginia Military Institute in 1937-1938 following a year at New Mexico Military Academy, and at Benning for a total of four years.

Lt. William B. Castle has played a total of nine seasons with Oklahoma Military Academy, one with Oklahoma University and four with the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Col. Richard G. Collins, British liaison officer, has played two seasons here at Benning and one at Fort Shafter.

Col. Nicholas and Colonel Wilson were both playmates of polo as both played at Fort Benning in former years. Colonel Nicholas has played in China, Fort Hamilton and Fort Leavenworth with a national handicap of three goals and a local five goals. He will swing a mallet later in the season.

Colonel Wilson was formerly rated at three goals nationally and has played at Fort Hamilton, N.Y., Fort Francis E. Warren and in the Philippines from 1932-1935 and in 1939 finishing each season in the hospital with broken bones.

Lt. Stimson, of the Red team, played at West Point.

two seasons in Java with a one-goal handicap.

Yellow Jackets
Colonel O'Connor has played in the Philippines, at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, with a local three-goal and national two-goal rating.

Lt. Col. Robert N. Skaggs played two seasons at the University of Arizona managing the varsity and coaching the freshman teams. The team he managed in 1931-1932 was classed as the outstanding inter-collegiate polo team, composed of Harry Wilson, Lewis Brown, William Dridd and Leonard Smith who toured the eastern states and were assisted by Will Rogers who gave a special performance financing the tour with the proceeds.

Capt. William A. Roope played 2 seasons at River Military Academy schooled polo horses in Los Angeles and played in Arizona and California for a total of four seasons.

Capt. George S. Beatty Jr. played one season at Fort Leavenworth and two at Benning and Lt. Walker played at West Point.

Lt. Col. Rooke, British officer of the Queens Own Royal West Kent Regiment, has played polo in England and India.

Nicholls Played in China
Colonel Nicholas and Colonel Wilson were both playmates of polo as both played at Fort Benning in former years. Colonel Nicholas has played in China, Fort Hamilton and Fort Leavenworth with a national handicap of three goals and a local five goals. He will swing a mallet later in the season.

Colonel Wilson was formerly rated at three goals nationally and has played at Fort Hamilton, N.Y., Fort Francis E. Warren and in the Philippines from 1932-1935 and in 1939 finishing each season in the hospital with broken bones.

Lt. Stimson, of the Red team, played at West Point.

Doughboys Meet Phenix City Cagers Here Tonight

Fort Benning's Doughboys move back into action tonight, Thursday, against a Phenix City five, in what amounts to a warm-up game prior to the pair of tough games scheduled with Cherry Point over the weekend. The Phenix City game will be played in the main post gym here at Benning. Starting time will be 7:30 p. m.

Benning's schedule was rearranged slightly over the holidays and the following changes have been made. The Albany game, scheduled for last Tuesday, the seventh of January, was cancelled, and the game with the Birmingham Vulcans, originally slated for the eighth of January, has been postponed until the twenty-third of the month. It was due to these arrangements that Captain Tallis, Doughboy Coach, scheduled the Phenix City team.

Marines Last Victims
The Benning's last game was played against the Marines of Cherry Point, and, although Benning won handily, Coach Tallis is taking nothing for granted and wants to be positive his squad is in the best possible condition for the games with Cherry Point over the coming weekend.

Tallis will start the usual five with one exception. Bob Lohan will be in one of the forward positions instead of Cal Luther, who arrived for practice a little late, and will be sidelined temporarily as a result. "Scooter" Baker will hold down the center forward position, and Bill Miller will be at center, with Claude Anderson and Bob Seibert at the guards.

each other, and give them a keen competitive edge for tonight's game.

Tough Schedule
Benning has an exceptionally tough schedule in the next two months, with nineteen games scheduled, eight of which are to be played on the road.

Besides the Cherry Point encounters, Benning is pointing towards the two games they have left to play with the Atlanta Sports Arena team. "The Sports Arena handed Benning their only loss of the season thus far in a one point thriller, and the team is more than eager to have their revenge.

Foursome Best-Ball Score Drops 12 Below Links Par

Conversation at the Fort Benning golf club house recently has centered around the subject of what would happen to par figures if a best ball score were kept by a "hot" foursome. Over the Christmas holidays, this was put to a good test.

The four top golfers of Fort Benning, playing in a foursome, set out one bright day to see what could be done about upsetting the par figures for the course. The course was torn apart and "par" took a beating when the foursome consisting of Col. Fay Boss, Lt. Col. Joseph Chabot, Lt. Col. Ray Cole and Capt. William Wikoff turned in a record-breaking best ball to break all previous records.

Three individual scores of the foursome were sub-par rounds. Lt. Col. Cole shot a three under par 69 and both Col. Boss and Capt. Wikoff turned in a one under par 71. Fifteen birdies were made by this group in shooting this record and the foursome turned in a best ball of 80, 12 strokes under regulation figures. The score, hole for hole, as compared with par figures was:

Sports Report

BY PFC MILT MOSKOWITZ
With almost half of the season completed, there aren't many undefeated basketball teams left in the country. In fact, the sole survivors seem to be out on the west coast, Oregon and Washington still retaining its records.

The Oregon five went through the nation during the Christmas holidays dropping off teams as it went along. The Webfoot cagers handed New York University its only loss, trouncing the Orange nineteen points in Madison Square Garden. Washington has been victorious against mid-West and West competition.

The Pacific Coast is blossoming with good teams. Santa Clara, California and Southern California all represented with top-notch outfits.

In the rest of the country, Kentucky, Oklahoma A. M. New York University, Wisconsin, and Syracuse are the runners for the national title, on their records up to now.

The Aggies, champions for the past two years, have another great team, even without the gigantic Bob Kurland. Only a one-point loss to Long Island University mars their record, and their victory-streak is impressive.

Coach Henry Iba's quintet cleaned up the best of the Big Six and the Southwestern Conference in the Oklahoma City tournament, and knocked off Kentucky in a pre-Sugar Bowl contest. Up until then, the Wildcats had been considered the number one five in the country.

Only one man, Blake Williams, is back from last year's team; but the men playing for the Aggies now all sat on the bench last year, taking basketball lessons from one of the best coaches in the game. The Oklahomans play a slow, conservative game, with the accent on defense and accurate shooting. They are hard to beat.

In New York they think NYU can beat any team in the country on certain nights. The truth of the matter is that the Violets blow hot and cold. They have been hot enough though to beat UCLA-SMU Rochester, Arkansas, Connecticut, and other local opposition.

Sid Tanenbaum, playing his fourth year for New York U is on his way to repeating as an all-American. The anemic-looking Brooklynite looks better every season.

Wisconsin appears to be this class of the Big Ten teams at the class. Illinois' White Eds haven't quite lived up to their reputation and the Champion five has taken it on the chin a few times already. The Badger five holds victories over Notre Dame, Illinois and Iowa.

Basketball comes nowhere near football's popularity in the Southland. With the exception of Kentucky, the South is woefully deficient in good teams, although L. U. and Tulane are above-average.

The state of Kentucky is a storehouse of good basketball teams. In addition to the University, there's Eastern Kentucky, Western Kentucky, and Marshall which play high-caliber ball.

Flare-ups over racial discrimination invaded the basketball world in the past few weeks. First there was an outbreak at a scheduled game between Tennessee and Duquesne in Pennsylvania.

Duquesne has a Negro player and Tennessee refused to take the floor unless it received a commitment that he wouldn't be used. The Duke's coach said he probably wouldn't play, since he's a substitute, but wouldn't make a definite commitment. Whereupon Tennessee went back home without playing the game.

Duke was preceded by the Duquesne-Eastern Kentucky game in Louisville, when this Negro scored the winning field goal in a tight game. That was supposedly the first time in Louisville's basketball history that a Negro played on a white team.

Wyoming's coach, Erv Shelton, was the center of another storm in New York, where his team played City College. Toward the end of the contest, which Wyoming was losing badly, Shelton reportedly began to make aspersions on the racial background of the City players, some of whom are Negro and Jewish.

Nat Holman, City College's coach, had to be physically restrained from taking a punch at Shelton, and a near-riot almost resulted. After the game, Shelton was given a severe going-over by the New York press and other organizations. Telegrams were sent to the University of Wyoming and a resolution passed by CCNY left no doubt that a Shelton coached team would never again appear in the Garden.

The Wyoming mentor said he didn't intend his remarks to be insulting, which is how they were taken. He said that when his team plays out west against schools which have Indian players, he yells, "Get those Indians." He said he was doing the same thing here.

Nat Holman however says Shelton said a great deal more. One New York sports writer wanted to know if Shelton would yell, "Get those Catholics," when Wyoming plays Holy Cross.

S-Sgt. Goss Dies After Car Crash

S-Sgt. Miles Willard Goss, 26, of Ellijay, Ga., died at 6:08 a. m. Sunday at the Fort Benning Regional hospital. He was admitted to the hospital November 10 for serious injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Chipley November 9.

He was a member of the 75th Troop Carrier Squadron at Lawson Field and a veteran of the CBI theater.

A guard of honor accompanied the body from Lawson Field to Ellijay. Graveyard services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at Ellijay cemetery.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Roberta Walton Goss, of West Palm Beach, Fla., and his mother, Mrs. Laura Seeshire, step-father, Landrum Brookshire, and two brothers, Roy and Arville Goss, of Ellijay.

Corporal Killed In Auto Crash

Cpl. Juan F. Medina-Santos, of the 54th Army Truck and Training Regiment, was killed early last Thursday morning when the automobile in which he and four other soldiers were riding overturned and burned on the Macon highway, about 22 miles east of Columbus.

Corporal Medina-Santos' death was caused from cerebral hemorrhage due to multiple skull fracture, according to Fort Benning hospital attaches.

Three of the other passengers were admitted to the hospital for routine check-ups, and hospital officials reported that they were suffering from minor cuts and bruises. Pvt. Robert V. Perry, driver of automobile, Sgt. Genaro de Milan, and Sgt. Modesto Colon underwent treatment at the hospital, while Sgt. Leon Felix was treated without treatment.

Private Perry stated that the vehicle, a rented car, got out of control on a curve at a bridge, overturned twice and burned.

Corporal Medina-Santos, a native of Orocoyoc, Puerto Rico, is survived by his parents, Juan Medina and Victoria Santos of Manila. He was a member of the Regular Army.

PRO Chief Here On Visit With Friends

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of the Army Ground Forces public relations division, who arrived at Fort Benning last Monday afternoon for a short vacation, leaves today for Atlanta and his return trip to Washington.

Gen. Parks has spent the past two days visiting friends at Fort Benning. He was accompanied by Col. John R. Francis, retired, who is en route to the West Coast.

The general is a familiar figure at Fort Benning having been assigned to The Infantry School as a student from 1932 until 1933. Following his graduation from the Command General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, he was serving as secretary of the First Section, Infantry, from 1935-1937. His last assignment at Fort Benning was as a member of the Second, Armored Division from September 1940 until July 1941. He is also a graduate of the Army War College.

The 50-year old major general entered the Army in January 1918 as a private, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the 65th Engineers upon completion of officer's training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. The 65th was the original tank corps organization in the U. S. Army.

Supersonic Craft May Require Refrigerators

BOSTON—(CNS)—The new supersonic airplanes racing through the intense cold of the upper atmosphere may need built-in refrigeration to keep the pilots from roasting, Brig.-Gen. Malcolm C. Grow, Army Air Force Surgeon, disclosed in a recent speech.

The General, addressing the American Association for the Advancement of Science, explained that at supersonic speeds above the 750 mile-an-hour level now being approached, the heat from air friction against the skin of the airplane will raise cockpit temperatures to 300 degrees.

Several other problems of physiology are now under medical study, he revealed, which are involved in flying the new super-altitude, super-speed aircraft. Some of these include the problem of how to accelerate and decelerate jet and rocket aircraft data on human performance at altitudes above 60,000 feet, and how to provide means of escape from planes flying at super speeds.

"It Ain't Right!" "What am I arrested for?" asked the corrupt voter. "You are charged," said the officer, who was entering the arrest in the station house ledger, "with having voted eight times." "Charged, hey?" muttered the prisoner. "That's queer. I expected to be paid for it."—Andrews Field News.

SPOKE OUT OF TURN

The youthful mountaineer was serving his first week in the Army. He walked out of the barracks and came face to face with his commanding officer.

"Mawwin, mister!" he said in greeting.

The C. O. halted him, and then proceeded to take him to task for not saluting.

"Lard sakes," the youngster said when the lecture was finished. "If I knowed you was gonna carry on so, I wouldn't spoke a-tall."—Wall Street Journal.

Sports Quiz

1. Q—Which is considered the faster game, handball or jai alai?
A—Jai alai, because the player, by hurling the ball out of the cesta (basket) can get far greater rebounding speed than can be achieved with a hand-batted ball. The ball is harder, too, and when it crashes against the wall, the rebound is lightning fast.
2. Q—In what Olympic games did Sonia Henie win her first figure skating title? How many Olympic titles did she win?
A—The 1928 Olympiad. Three—Miss Henie went on to win the figure skating crown in 1932 and 1936.
3. Q—Skiing, as a competitive sport, is divided into five sections. What are they?
A—Jumping (most spectacular); Flying Kiltomereer (most dangerous); Slalom (most graceful); Cross-country (most gruelling); Skijoring (a horse pulls you across the ice—a novelty sport).
4. Q—The decathlon contestant takes part in ten different track events. How many can you name?
A—100 meters; running broad jump; 16 pound weight throw; running high jump; 400 meters; 110 meters high hurdles; discus throw; pole vault; javelin throw; 1500 meters.
5. Q—With what sports are the following famous trophies associated? Bend Sin; Heisman; Stanley Cup; Walker Cup; International Gold Challenge Cup; America's Cup; James E. Sullivan.
A—Aviation; football; hockey; golf; polo; yachting; track and field.
6. Q—John L. Sullivan, who never earned more than $14,000 for any fight, actually carried over a million dollars during his career—but only a small part of it came through actual ring efforts. How much did the Boston "Strong Boy" earn when James J. Corbett dethroned him?
A—Not a red cent; in fact, Sullivan suffered a ten grand deficit! The fight was for a $25,000 purse and side bets of $10,000, on a winner-take-all basis.
7. Q—Nat Holman, City College of New York cage coach and one of the finest basketballers of all time, once listed the ten greatest pro cage cagers he had ever seen in action—and Holman has seen the best. Can you name at least half of these cage greats?
A—Harney Sedran, Ed Wachter, Jack Inglis, Johnny Beckman, Marty Friedman, Dutch Dehnert, Joe Lynchick, Joe Brennan, Joe Fogarty, Chris Leonard.
8. Q—The word "hook" is a familiar term in five of these six sports: baseball, basketball, boxing, bowling, tennis, golf. In which is the term not used?
A—Tennis.

Army Surplus Disposals In U.S. Total $21 Billion

The Army is virtually up-to-date on disposition of surplus war-time equipment in the United States, and future declarations of civilian-type items will be relatively small, Roy Secretary of War Kenneth C. Underhill said today.

Army dispositions of domestic surplus to date, exclusive of real estate, total approximately $21,000,000,000, of which $7,000,000,000 has been disposed of directly by the War Department and $14,000,000,000 declared to disposal agencies.

Under Secretary's Statement

The statement of the Under Secretary follows:

The Army's domestic program of surplus personal property disposition is currently being completed with the exception of certain electronics equipment. The total to date is approximately $21,000,000,000. To complete the Army's part of surplus property disposition it normally takes a maximum of 30 days after the property is found to be excess to the Army's needs. And by currently complete it is meant that all domestic personal property which became surplus to the Army's needs within the past 30 days has been disposed of by the Army or declared to disposal agencies in accordance with requirements of Surplus Property Act and regulations.

The largest part of this property, approximately $4,000,000,000, has been declared to the disposal agencies, of which the War Assets Administration is by far the largest. Seven billion dollars' worth has been disposed of directly by the War Department and disposal agencies have removed from War Department possession three-fourths of the $14,000,000,000 declared surplus.

"Electronics equipment valued at $500,000,000, has been inventoried for the War Assets Administration, and its formal declaration as surplus deferred until that agency can determine what portion is commercially salable and what portion should be declared scrap.

Materials Surplus

"Materials declared surplus included all such items as would not be classified as real estate—items other than land, buildings, improvements, etc. Roughly $8,400,000,000 of this total was made up of Army Air Forces equipment. The balance was made up of properties of the Technical Services, of which ordnance material was the greatest single surplus, amounting to more than $1,700,000,000.

"The largest single item turned over by any Technical Service for disposal was trucks, an Ordnance Department supply. More than 182,000 trucks of all types—excluding "jeeps"—with a value of about $195,000,000 were declared surplus by that service.

"All figures as to the value of the property declared surplus are based on the cost at the time of purchase, which is not a true reflection of the present value. Wear and tear and other depreciable factors reduce the value of the property and the Army does not have sufficient market and other information to estimate these factors.

Future Factors

"There will, of course, be additional surplus generated in the future with changing personnel and other Army requirements. On the other hand there may be certain items which the Army does not have additional Army requirements develop. The future factors are too uncertain to admit a definite estimate of these future declarations but from the best information now available it is believed that they may reach $1,000,000,000.

"The War Department has made a special effort to declare rapidly and to the maximum extent possible civilian type items for which there is a demonstrated demand or for reconversion purposes. It is unlikely that any substantial amount of this class of items will be declared in the future even with changing requirements.

"The Army itself disposes of articles which are unsalable commercially and therefore classed as scrap, and transfers usable equipment to other government agencies and educational institutions. The total to date is $4,000,000,000, of which $160,000,000 represented donations to other agencies, including the Navy Veterans Administration, and Red Cross. The Army's disposition of scrap is also current.

"Another class of surplus which the Army itself disposes of arises in connection with the termination of contracts and consists of government-owned tools, equipment and property which had been used by private contractors. Under the termination procedures, the contractor has the first opportunity to buy this property if he offers a fair market value for it. Approximate $1,500,000,000 worth of contractor inventory has been disposed of by the War Department. This is 99.2 per cent of the amount of such inventory which has been generated."

FUN ON THE PHONE--SURPLUS, THAT IS

CAMP-NEWSPAPER SERVICE

Need a rocket launcher? Bargain, really! Get 'em cheap, in lots of 21,000 only. Or how about a Navy Blimp—deflated? Take it to Washington and fill it up with hot air for free. Maybe a Quonset but perhaps?

Well if you are prepared to buy these things and others, like periscopes, telescopes, horses, homing pigeons or flyers' leather jackets in large wholesale lots, you might try calling Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson at the War Assets Administration surplus property office in New York. Mrs. Thompson is the head of the Customers' Service Room, and finds that her life is just one long phone bell.

Just before Christmas word got around (by means of surplus Signal Corps equipment, naturally) that attractive bargains were stacked on tables and dangling from hangers waiting to be disposed of. Enterprising young mothers intent on bargain basement methods, started to clog the phone lines, forgetting that you do not get U-n-c-l-e S-a-m like M-a-c-y's.

"Will you please take this order and I want it sent to me C.O.D.," a very demanding voice told Mrs. Thompson one morning. And this party went on in order to a field jacket for her son, before she startled Mrs. Thompson could explain that the WAA was not a Santa Claus.

Hour after hour, Mrs. T. and eight assistants explain the vagaries of purchasing from the WAA to people who wait the right answer. Sounds of patience and fortitude mingle from the eight telephones and two rows of desks in the long, narrow room.

"We sell Air Force jackets in lots of 75 to a customer."

"No, those Wac woolen undies will not be sold this week."

"No, the leopards and ears are all gone—trucks, too."

"I'm sorry, mister, we cannot let you have the 80 telescopes on approval."

"Sewing machines will be sold later to dealers only."

"The most sought after items seems to be anything on wheels, said Mrs. Thompson in a free moment between calls. Then her telephone rang again.

"I'm afraid you have the wrong office, Madam. Hadn't you better call a lawyer?" she suggested.

The woman at the other end complained, "I've tried and tried and my line is busy. I thought that maybe you could help. It seems she wanted to inquire how she could get her marriage annulled."

Occasionally, a combination of circumstances helps both the WAA and the disappointed material-seekers. A case in point is the Connecticut man who had come to the office looking for bars from which to make nails. There were none. On the way out, however, he spotted samples of huge wire roping that had done service on ship anchors during the war, and that were going begging for the want of customers. He bid for the wire, which now goes in one

ROTC Camp Will Reopen

Tentative plans for the accommodation and training next summer at Fort Benning of approximately 1,100 ROTC students from colleges and universities throughout the Third Army Area are now being made, Infantry Center officials said today.

Orders for the resumption of the six-weeks training period for ROTC cadets, suspended in 1941, were issued by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces. Tentative date for the camp period is June 23 to August 2.

According to a Seventh Army directive, the availability of funds for training as well as for transportation and supply will be the deciding factor in the resumption this summer of the training camps.

$6,000 For Revamping

The commanding general of The Infantry Center has been given responsibility for operation of the camp at Fort Benning which is slated to be located in Areas P-3 P-4.

It is understood that $6,000 will be made available by April to rehabilitate the camp area. The Infantry Center will furnish items of supply, medical facilities and transportation.

The Infantry School will assist to a limited extent in the training of the ROTC cadets by holding from six to eight practical demonstrations at company or lower levels. In addition ROTC groups not to exceed 500 in number.

Deputy Chaplain Chief Visits Colleagues Here

Col. Patrick J. Ryan, deputy chief of chaplains, who arrived at Fort Benning late Monday for a one-day visit with Post chaplains, left by plane from Lawson Field Wednesday on the second leg of his tour of Southern and Western Army installations.

Col. Ryan had a conference with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding The Infantry Center, at nine o'clock Tuesday morning after which he visited Fort Benning chapels and conferred with Post chaplains. After lunching with the 26th Combat Team, the deputy chief of chaplains held a brief informal conference with all the post chaplains during the afternoon.

Col. Ryan was night guest at a supper Tuesday night at the Main Post Officers' club. He was scheduled to leave Fort Benning sometime Wednesday.

Benning NCO Club Opens With Gala Supper Dance

Strains of soft music floated out over the air Friday night as crowds gathered at the Fort Benning Non-Commissioned Officers' Club on South Kilgore Street for a grand opening buffet supper and dance that was an outstanding success.

Close to a thousand guests turned out including NCOs and their families, 100 college girls from Alabama Polytechnic Institute and 80 young ladies from Columbus to enjoy dining and dancing in the pleasant atmosphere of the newly decorated clubhouse.

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel spoke briefly congratulating the NCO's on their new club and wishing them every success and best of luck in its further development and activities.

Thirty door prizes donated by Columbus merchants were awarded to winners of the lucky numbers and presented by 1st Sgt. William D. Milliken who acted as master of ceremonies, keeping festivities rolling along.

The first NCO club to include all non-coms on the post from the General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, declared last Thursday at a press conference that Fort Benning will always be a permanent installation and "it is as small now as it will ever be."

The four-star commander of the AGF, who arrived late last Wednesday for a one-day whirl-wind inspection tour of the post, said that accommodations for 90 officers and their families were needed at Fort Benning, and added that although a large radius had been surveyed, no such number could be found.

Busy Morning

The press interview followed a morning filled with conferences with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding The Infantry Center, and the heads of the various Infantry School activities, and an inspection of the 26th Combat Team. The slightly greying general also visited Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Caffey Jr., commanding general of the combat team.

"Actually," Gen. Devers said during the brief press conference, "Fort Benning will increase in size and scope when the Reserve and National Guard training programs get underway." He asserted that he looked for no immediate cut in appropriations for the Army's five major school commands, but said that he expected the Congress to curtail funds of the Army's building program.

"This budgetary cut," he emphasized, "will not affect the training of the Army ground forces."

Citing the need for well-trained officers and enlisted personnel, the general said that the United States Army must have good officers and non-coms. "Poor officer personnel is the cause of many breakdowns in the Army," he said.

Gen. Devers re-emphasized his faith in the mud-slogging infantryman, pointing out that even though the atom bomb is a deadly weapon, it is still the ground forces who have to go in for the mopping-up campaigns. He also

High British Army decorations were awarded two Fort Benning officers at ceremony Tuesday at Doughboy Stadium by Major General Alec Lee, deputy commander of the British Army Staff in Washington, who arrived at the post by plane shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Lt. Col. G. E. Mabry, member of the officers' advance course, 3rd Company, STR, The Infantry School, received the Honorary Companion of the Distinguished Service Order. Capt. J. W. Marr, regimental headquarters, Airborne Regiment, was awarded the Military Cross.

British Army citations of the two officers were not available at the time of this writing.

Originally scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field late Monday evening, inclement weather prevented General Lee's plane from landing, and the party was forced to proceed to Orlando, Florida, from where they flew to Fort Benning Tuesday morning. Shortly after 10 o'clock Monday, the plane made three passes over Lawson Field, but the pilot was unable to find an opening in the flow overcast.

General Lee, who was assigned to the post two years ago with the British Army Staff and who was recently made ADC to the King, left Fort Benning yesterday morning after spending almost a day and a half in viewing special demonstrations by The Infantry School.

General Lee is second now in command of the British Army Staff in Washington. General Lee came to Fort Benning in the absence from Washington of Field Marshal Wilson, it was learned today.

March Of Dimes Campaign Opens

The March of Dimes officially opened at Fort Benning Wednesday with Lt. Col. Walden J. Alexander heading the Infantry Center campaign.

The fund-raising drive will continue officially until January 30, but it was pointed out that Fort Benning will probably extend over the January pay day in order to allow military personnel an added opportunity to contribute. No quota has been set for Fort Benning personnel, and there are no plans to set up drive booths anywhere on the reservation.

Polio Increases

More cases of poliomyelitis were recorded in 1946 than in any previous year in the United States. A total of 25,204 cases of the dread disease was reported by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. States hardest hit were Minnesota, Illinois and California, each with more than 2,000 cases.

The foundation also revealed that the state with lowest number of

COLONEL WILEY H. O'MOHUNDRO
... Serves 33 Years

Col. O'Mohundro Celebrates 33 Years Service In Army

"The first thirty years are the hardest" said Col. Wiley H. O'Mohundro Sunday on the occasion of the 33rd Anniversary of his entry into the military service. Currently serving as a member of the 7th Army Interview Board which scrutinizes candidates for the Regular Army, the towering, gray-haired Colonel enlisted as a private on January 12, 1914. In 1917 he received a commission as 2nd Lt. of Infantry in the Reserve Corps, serving throughout World War I as an officer and receiving his commission in the Regular Army in 1920. Immediately before his present assignment Col. O'Mohundro managed the 7th Army Rifle Tournament, a job for which he had special qualifications having been a member of the National Rifle Team from 1921-1936. He placed second in individual shooting in the National meet in 1923 and was team captain in 1935 and 1936.

After serving as chairman of the Staff Committee of the Infantry School Col. O'Mohundro became C.O. of the 1st STR in November 1945 and remained commanding officer when the 1st STR was combined into the Academic Regiment.

His overseas service in World War II began when he went across with the 1st Armored Division landing in Northern Ireland. He served in England and North Africa and landed at Salerno with the 86th Division. He joined the 3rd Division as commander of the 7th Infantry Regiment at Anzio, going on through Rome and landing in Southern France.

The Colonel is the father of one girl June, and twin boys Donald and David. Mrs. O'Mohundro is the former Miss Millie Calkins of Syracuse, N. Y.

"I have certainly enjoyed the service" concluded the Colonel. "It has given me a great deal and I hope that I have given it something in return."

City, Post To Cooperate

Both T. G. Reeves, chairman of the Messegue County Commission and Walker A. Richards, mayor of Columbus, pledged their support toward measures which will be of benefit to both the local community and Fort Benning, at the regular monthly meeting of the newly organized Citizens and Military Council which met at the Officers Club last Friday afternoon.

The council, which was organized by Major General John W. O'Daniel last October, is composed of city and county officials, civic leaders and military personnel, in order to serve both the community and the Army, through interchange of ideas and the presenting of the views of all concerned. Similar councils are functioning throughout the country where the Army has installations closely to large communities.

General O'Daniel shares the co-chairmanship of the council with Maynard E. Ashworth, publisher of the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, who understands the Army viewpoint, having served at Fort Benning during the war. Attention has been focused on these particular matters by the council, that of securing the use of Lawson Field for the proposed reserve squadron, which is expected to become an actuality in the near future; the betterment of recreational facilities for Army personnel in downtown Columbus, and particularly additional facilities for Negro soldiers, and the cleaning up and maintenance of the Victory Memorial Drive from the city to the Fort Benning Circle.

'Dreamboat' Chief Stationed In U. S.

Col. Clarence S. Irvine, of St. Paul, Minn., pilot of the Boeing B-29 Superfortress, "Pacusan Dreamboat," which flew non-stop from Hawaii to Egypt across the magnetic North Pole region last October, will be stationed in the Washington area after Jan. 15.

At the time of the flight, Colonel Irvine was assigned to the operations division at headquarters of the Pacific Air Command, and "Pacusan Dreamboat" was named for his command. PACUSA is the ACP abbreviation for Pacific Air Command, U. S. Army.

He was sent to the United States on temporary duty to the non-stop flight, and then obtained a leave before reporting back to duty at PACUSA. He has been transferred to Strategic Air Command at Andrews Field, Maryland.

SAC headquarters announced that he would be assigned for duty in the maintenance program.

Overseas Troops Unaffected By Two-Year Limit

Secretary of War Patterson announced today that troops serving overseas will not be affected by the present by the restoration of the statutory provision of a two-year maximum for duty in certain foreign stations.

The statute, one of a number involved in the President's year-end proclamation of the cessation of hostilities, became effective again at noon December 31. The statute by its terms places a two-year limit on foreign service of troops in the Philippine Islands, on the Asiatic Station, or in China, Hawaii, Porto Rico, or the Panama Canal Zone. It stipulates further that the amount of the two-year maximum shall be subject by certain exceptions. One of these occurs when, in the discretion of the Secretary of War service for longer than two years is necessary for temporary emergencies.

Insofar as the provisions of the act are concerned, Secretary Patterson stated, temporary emergencies do exist in the areas listed and therefore the statute will have no effect at this time on troops stationed in those areas. Troops stationed in areas not listed in the act, such as Germany, Austria, Italy, Japan, Korea, and Alaska, were not affected by the President's proclamation inasmuch as they have never been within the scope of the act.

Officer Increment To Be Announced During January

The first increment of officers qualifying for Regular Army commissions under the second officer integration program will be announced the last week in January, military officials said today.

Individuals to be included on this list are being selected from high score applicants whose completed records were first available to the War Department. Officials pointed out that the inclusion of an individual in the January increment will not preclude future acceptance of any applicant with equal or higher qualifications.

It is anticipated that the second increment will be announced in about three or four months.

More than 120 candidates for Regular Army commissions have already passed examinations at the Fort Benning Screening Center. Final approval of their applications, however, will come from Washington.

These officers will be drawn from those applicants whose papers have been completely processed and who have received their final interviews for Regular Army commissions. As of January 6, a total of 60,000 persons had indicated desire for Regular Army commissions, but the papers of the majority of these individuals have not yet been processed. Principal delay is experienced in the receipt of Officer Evaluation Reports from former commanding officers, many of whom have been released from the service.

It was emphasized that the integration of the first increment this month will in no way prejudice the grade or date of rank of

AGF Bd. 1 CHIEF VISITS

Colonel Guy O. Kurtz, president of AGF Board No. 1 at Fort Bragg, was a visitor at Fort Benning's AGF Board No. 3 last Friday in connection with a demonstration of a new portable radio set. Board officials announced today. Col. Kriz arrived by plane and departed the same day also by plane.

Persons to be commissioned in future increments. Regular Army grades and dates of rank within of 1947 grades are arrived at on a positive rather than a comparative basis, the age or length of service of each individual being the determining factor for that individual, General Paul explained.

"The second and larger increment of officers is expected to be drawn three or four months later, and the third and final increment of 1947 sometime in the late summer."

No breakdown as to proportions of air, ground and service personnel to be appointed is available at this time.

Former Benning PRO In Charge Of Pacific S & S

Capt. Charles B. Taylor, former Fort Benning public relations officer has been appointed officer-in-charge of Pacific Stars and Stripes, an Army newspaper published daily in Tokyo, according to word received here.

Col. William Niederperger, chief of the Information and Education Division of the AFAC, GHQ designated Capt. Taylor to this position two days after his arrival in Tokyo on December 16, 1946. The paper, which has a circulation of about 85,000 is distributed throughout the main islands of Japan and in Korea.

Capt. Taylor, a horseman and raconteur of no little fame, has the duties of post public relations officer here on January 1, 1945 succeeding Capt. Richard E. Tucker. He and Capt. Tucker were one of a group of seven officers who became members of the "Caterpillar Club" when they were forced to jump for their lives from an Army plane which crashed in the Soerenga mountains in the fall of 1945.

Capt. Taylor, remained at Benning until July, 1946 when he was ordered to 7th Army Headquarters in Atlanta to serve as assistant PRO, 7th Army.

Both Gen. Devers and his G-3, Maj. Gen. Herbert L. Earnest, agreed that the Army's consolidation program would be completed by next September. Fort Benning's consolidation move was completed before Christmas.

During Thursday afternoon Gen. Devers visited ACG Board No. 3 and conferred with Brig. Gen. Reubar E. Jenkins, president of the board. Later he watched demonstrations of virtually all the weapons of the modern infantry, including the recoilless weapon.

Before inspecting Army Officer Candidate classes No. 3 and 5, Gen. Devers departed from Fort Benning by plane late Thursday afternoon for the Air University at Maxwell Field, Ala.

Red Cross Sets Record In Aid To Separates In December

The American Red Cross office at the Separation Point under the direction of John MacKee set a record during the month of December in aiding veterans passing through that Point for separation.

Of the 3,444 veterans separated during the month of December, the Red Cross aided 2,596. This is indeed a remarkable record. This great percentage is due to the very careful orientation given all service men reaching the Separation Point by both the military and the Red Cross, where it is explained to them how important it is to fill out this veterans form before leaving the service.

The stamping in the filing of Form 526 is not the only service rendered by the Red Cross at the Separation Point. They also prepare the serviceman for his return to civilian life by orientation talks, printed pamphlets and motion pictures. Veteran passing through the Separation Point has an opportunity to see the "Best" in aid, entitled "Facing Tomorrow" in which the serviceman is given a visual view of the contacts he and his family should make with the Red Cross chapter in his own community in event he needs aid.

Each veteran is given a printed 16-page pamphlet prepared by the Red Cross entitled "Service to Veterans and their Dependents" in which not only Red Cross service as rendered by the chapter is explained but all benefits to which the veteran is entitled to is explained.

In addition to this, each group of servicemen reaching the Separation Point is given a talk by Mr. Reeves, the Assistant Field Director in charge of the Separation Point. During the time in which the serviceman is passing through the Separation Point, Mr. Reeves and his assistants are available for personal interviews.

Money contributed to the March of Dimes will be divided between Muscogee county and the National Foundation. The National Foundation provides funds for research carried on in medical centers and laboratories throughout the United States. During 1946 more than 80 grants were made and 13 former long-term grants were carried over. Although much work has been discovered, a specific serum disease has not been found. In time of epidemics, the foundation sends money to the scene of the outbreak, appliances are shipped in, and nurses and special operatives are provided from other places where there is no epidemic.

Funds from the National Foundation and local chapters insures medical service, hospitalization with all the expenses paid near the home of those stricken with infantile paralysis. The National Foundation is supported almost entirely from contributions made during the March of Dimes.

Assisting Col. Alexander at Fort Benning are Maj. A. W. Petroski, representing The Infantry School headquarters; Capt. R. L. Wilson, representing the Academic department; Lt. Thomas M. Ringold, representing School Troops; WOJG Edwin E. Garrison, representing the Infantry School Detachment; Lt. Irving Gordon, representing the Student Training Regiment; Lt. Lawrence A. Ballard, representing ACG Board No. 3; Lt. Col. Harry A. Mayfield, representing the 25th Combat Team; Capt. Randolph Crockett, representing ASU 840; Lt. Maurice Brewer, representing Lawson Field; Maj. Leonard H. Estes, representing the Regional Hospital; and Lt. Edward Sotaker, representing the Separation Center and the Screening Board.

C. O. Samuel, State College of PMS&T, N. E. has been designated camp commander. Senior instructors for the training camp as named by Seventh Army are: Col. George M. Handcock, PMS&T, Mississippi State Infantry; Col. George M. Williamson, Jr., PMS&T Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Field Artillery; Col. James Van V. Schufelt, PMS&T University of Georgia, Cavalry; Col. William R. Egan, Jr., PMS&T University of Tennessee, Coast Artillery (AA).

Legislation now pending in Congress may increase the training camp from six to eight weeks. It was learned here. Students in the Advanced Course of the Senior ROTC (third and fourth year college level) will attend at least one of the summer camp sessions as a required supplement to the training received by them during the regular academic year. Attendance will normally be during the summer preceding their final year of college.

While attending camp, students will receive the pay of an army private—$75 a month—and will be paid for necessary travel at the rate of $100 per month per mile from the school to the camp and return.

Approximately one-half of the training period will be devoted to instruction in subjects common to all branches of the service, with the remaining part devoted to the tactics and techniques of individual branches.

The training will consist of either five 8-hour days, or four 8-hour days and two 4-hour days, at the discretion of the camp Commander.

Individual branch ROTC units, exclusive of Air Forces, Medical Department units, include Infantry, Field Artillery, Anti-aircraft Artillery, Seaboard and Armored Cavalry, Military Police, Corps of Engineers, Signal, T, a transportation, Quartermaster, Ordnance, and Chemical Corps.

The traditional reveille and retreat formations will be held daily except Sunday or when the schedule calls for no afternoon training.

AAF To Draw Pilot Trainees From Ranks Of The 'Regulars'

Candidates for aviation cadet day of March, July and October pilot training, which will reopen at Randolph Field, Tex., this spring, will be drawn solely from the ranks of the Regular Army Air Forces, Gen. Carl Spaatz, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces, announced today.

General Spaatz said the decision to open the course to enlisted men only reflected the Army's desire to have as many officers as possible drawn from the ranks. Graduates of the 52-week course will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army of the United States.

Expand Eligibles
"The Army has long looked forward to the day when it could regard every enlisted man as a potential commissioned officer," General Spaatz said. "The high calibre of the youth volunteering from every section of the country is steadily bringing that day nearer. While we are now limiting the field to enlisted men of the 48 States, it is only a matter of time to expand the list of eligibles to include every enlisted man in the Army."

Pilot training is now being given at Randolph Field to combat aviators, and to those on active duty with the Army Air Forces during the war. The pilot training program is scheduled to be expanded this spring will be the first for student cadets since the discontinuance of the wartime schedules.

Present plans call for training approximately 1,600 men in three classes of approximately 500 each, but the exact numbers to be trained hinges upon Congressional determination of the status of the nation's armed forces.

From 18 to 28
To be eligible for admission to the pilot training courses, enlistees must be on duty in the continental United States, unmarried, between the ages of 18 and 28 years and six months and have excellent character and health. In addition, they must have two years of service remaining under their present enlistment, be graduates of four-year high school courses and be able to pass the physical and aptitude qualifying examinations. Under the new pilot training schedule, classes normally begin on the first day of March, July and October of each year. Qualified applicants will be selected under a priority plan with college graduates heading the list. Enlistees must indicate in writing his willingness to extend his present enlistment to accept discharge up to the full three-year period in the event he is accepted for pilot training.

Graduates of the school under the new program will be assigned to flying duty with the Army Air Forces.

Furlough Rates To End Jan. 31

Furlough rates for military personnel travelling on buses and trains will be definitely suspended on January 31, and fares will go up to the full civilian level, the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled last Friday.

Plans had been formulated to suspend the reduced rates on December 31, but a last-minute plea by the Army and Navy won a month's extension. However, the ICC said that no reasonable ground had been presented for investigating the fares, and ordered the cancellation of the GI rate to go into effect as of Jan. 31.

Soldiers buying tickets now in order to be able to use them three months hence are due for a rude awakening—as the rail and bus lines will not honor any furlough tickets after the 31st.

Polio Girl

(No connection with the March of Dimes program which got underway at Fort Benning yesterday, the following article is reprinted.)

For her beauty, charm, courage, and service to the nation, four-and-a-half-year-old Nancy Drury, whose picture is on the March of Dimes poster, is nominated as America's 1947 Foster Girl.

She is the polio-poster girl—selected by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to symbolize the 1947 March of Dimes.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drury, of Louisville, Ky. Two years ago last July she was stricken with poliomyelitis. Her life was despaired of. Even if she recovered, it was thought, she would remain hopelessly crippled. But hot packs and physical-therapy treatment, paid for with March of Dimes money, restored her to health and almost normal use of her limbs.

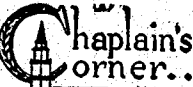

Her cheerfulness, under the laborious and often painful treatment, her high spirits and determination to walk and play with other little girls, has as much to do with her recovery as the efforts of doctors.

The poster shows her with her crutches. There is a slight muscle weakness in her right leg. But last summer Mrs. Drury saw something that made her weep with joy. Nancy, her crutches abandoned, was wrestling with a neighbor's dog for possession of one of her hot packs. And Nancy won.

Today Nancy can even climb ladders. Appreciative of what care and treatment she has done for her, she applies the therapy diligently to her doll. You see, the doll has never been able to run, or even walk.

Infantile paralysis attacks in children. The lovelest, healthiest and best are often victims. It must be counter-Nancy symbolizes the challenge.

Chaplain's Corner

The Manifestation

By CHAPLAIN E. G. JONES

We are now in the season of the church year when we commemorate the manifestation of Christ to the three wise men, the Epiphany.

The story is old and quite as well known to children and adults as that of the birth of Christ. How the three wise men saw the star and came and found Christ in the manger. And "they fell down and worshipped a nd presented unto Him gifts.

These wise men did four things: they saw the light, they sought out the source of it, they worshipped, and they presented gifts. In these four acts of the wise men we have the whole of the Christian Religion.

We, too, in our present time of joy or trouble must look outside ourselves for eternal salvation, for the power, for the strength to solve the problems of our very complex existence and overcome the obstacles that surround us. We, too, must seek this light that we may see through the haze of the maze of the complexities of our everyday existence.

Jesus Christ is the source of all power. He is the light of the world. We as the wise men must seek out the source, stop and listen to "that still small voice."

Only when we have found the Christ, we, too, must give Him his full worth. We place a value on everything that we own. The way in which we live our daily lives manifests to the world our attitude toward Christ and His teachings. This method of worship is far more important than any lip service to our God.

We, too, must present unto Him gifts. Christ was most generous with us. He gave us His life that we might have life more abundantly. Few are the things which are ours to give. The only one that is wholly our is OURSELVES. This we can and should give to the following of Him and His commandments. We can, should, and must give ourselves as a bringing into its fullness the Kingdom of God. The newness that we bring to our lives is our resolutions. Let us make a new resolution for all time to follow Christ and then let us manifest, show forth, to our families, our friends, our associates, our fellowmen, to the world, that we are the children of God and fellow heirs with Christ of the Kingdom of Heaven.

Army Counselor

(This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans, and their dependents. If you have a problem that is not discussed, take it to your Army Counselor. Items of interest to all are discussed in G. I. BILL, EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS, College and other education, and other items still available to enlistees in the Regular Army. Men who were discharged after January 1, 1947, are not eligible up to the official end of the emergency. Financial allowances also remain unchanged. President Truman's termination of hostilities has no effect on the rights, benefits and privileges of veterans. Financial allowances, however, there are now 1,565,899 vets actually in School. Another 178,497 are in educational institutions on job-training under Vocational Rehabilitation Public Law 18.

DEPENDENCY ALLOWANCES—Misinterpretation of the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1946 has led many men to believe that dependency allowance provisions under the law expired July 1, 1946. Such is not the case. Anyone enlisting now may collect allowances for his dependents. The principal distinction, as in G. I. Bill benefits, between those entering before and after July 1, 1946, is that those joining the armed forces before that date are, while dependents allowance for the full period of enlistment, granted those joining after the date may collect the benefits only for the duration of the war plus six months.

A. E. R. Financial assistance from AER funds for the purpose of seeking divorce, separation or annulment proceedings is no longer authorized, except in those cases already under investigation, when assistance was promised prior to Nov. 22, 1946.

UNDESIRABLE PRIVILEGES FOR RETIRED PERSONNEL—Army Exchanges are authorized to sell to retired personnel of Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, to persons on active duty, and to persons on active duty and Marine Corps, and to honorably discharged veterans of those services who are domiciled for medical treatment in VA hospitals. Veterans in general, however, with exceptions noted above, are NOT entitled to Army Exchange privileges.

DENTAL CARE FOR VETERANS—Reports from VA indicate a tremendous increase in the number of applications for dental care on the basis of presumed service-connected disability. The new 100-hour year limit after separation from service. The number of applications would be limited to September 1 and November 1. VA officials state it is more difficult to get into dental offices than to get into national dentists to provide free dental care for the nation's veterans.

NSLI INSURANCE—All NSLI business may now be conducted through the VA. Branch offices in North Dakota, South Dakota, and own state. All branch offices are now in operation. Following is a list of the offices, with their location and areas served.

- Boston—Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Where's The Crowd?

Attendance at the Doughboy basketball games this season has been miserable. Only a small gathering has showed up for the contests in the Main Post gym.

If the Doughboys were a losing team, then there might be some justification for this case. The team is a good one, and has lost only one game, and that by a single point.

Yet, despite the team's record, no support seems forthcoming. Everyone is off at the movies or laying around in the barracks.

The real losers are the Benning personnel who stay away, because they are missing out on some good basketball.

Up at Sand Hill the 25th Infantry Regiment has a fine basketball team also. Their games are played at the inaccessible Sports Arena in Harmony Church, however there is always a good crowd for the home engagements.

A 25th Infantry game has been played on the soldiers' spirit on account of the soldiers who turn out to watch their team play. Four MPs have to be assigned to the Arena on the night of a game.

There's no need for any MPs in the Main Post gym when the Doughboys play. Why they would outnumber the spectators. Tomorrow night, January 17, the Doughboys play their next home game. The time is 8 p. m.

the opponent is Brockley Field, the place is the Main Post gym. How about coming around to watch the men pouring in baskets for Fort Benning?

Having read your article, "Army Not to Blame," I wonder whether you would print the other side of the picture.

I am in no sense a griper, yet in all fairness to persons who literally were robbed of time, money and the belief that they had in the American Army I would like to present the opposite view.

Just in revising the terminal leave act it hurt the old soldiers who had shown their loyalty through thick and thin, and did not in any way touch an AUSA man.

Second—The Army could have spent a little less on advertising and more on keeping its promises.

Lastly, I have waged with approximately 40 men here in the Tank Battalion that they would not print this letter. I am willing to lose this bet, however, in order to present a Regular Army soldier's point of view.—Corp. Nathan Cohen.

The Shore Dimly Seen

Today when accounts of such organizations as the notorious Ku Klux Klan in Columbia incorporated fill the newspapers throughout the country, it is indeed refreshing to know that there are still capable leaders attempting to show the uneducated and apathetic right track to freedom and democracy. The man who has been in the midst of all this unfavorable publicity, who has participated but as a champion of the oppressed, is Ellis Arnall, governor of the State of Georgia.

Ever since taking office, Gov. Arnall has worked for the good of Georgia and at the same time has endeavored to make it more a part of the nation, not a colony to the rest of America. His effort to reach the American citizenry as a whole and to clear up the misunderstandings, Ellis Arnall wrote the brilliant, absorbing, satirical "The Shore Dimly Seen," a chronicle of his tenure of office—at least, that it what it started out to be. The youth of Georgia was so full of new ideas, good ideas, too, about how to make the outside world a better place in which to live that he almost overdid himself.

"The Shore Dimly Seen," one of the best non-fiction works that can be done to assure all the peoples of this great land of a prosperous and happy life.

Gov. Arnall has written at length about America's colonial system. This he describes as being the Southern and Western States. As an example of what he means, he points with an accusing finger at the large railroad commissions controlled by the Eastern railroads. He flays the unfair transportation rates, rebargos, and economic serfdom to which the Southeast has been reduced by monopolistic industries of the East.

A great believer in decentralization, this brilliant politician says that the South does not apply only to the government but also to industry and population. He says that the South's poverty, he explains, is the lack of concentrated industry. Accounting for Arnall's Eastern interest in refusing to allow competing industries to get a foothold in the South. He says that the best working agreement between companies, the Eastern magnate prospers, while the South prospers as a state of near-slavery. Elaborating on the subject, Arnall goes even further by pointing out that there are many ghost-towns, or near-ghost-towns on the American continent because of established manufacturers' greed.

Gov. Arnall also reveals that he is a strong advocate of de-centralizing government. He thinks that the counties, cities, and townships are failing in their responsibilities by not taking full advantage of the power vested in them by the Federal Government.

Georgia's soon-to-be-replaced governor is frankly outspoken in his hatred of the hate groups, and assures the reader that Georgia is not the only hot-bed of unAmerican activity. He also points out that Georgia, and also deserves practices common to other Eastern states, especially New York and her restricted schools.

Throughout the entire chronicle Arnall is a beautiful satirist. He does not overclaim he will have to literary fame. The book is good in many other respects, however, and one will forget that the governor has scattered passages at random on the pages of his book. One especially good chapter deals with his six-point plan for a better life for the American people. He says that the employment for all of America's millions must be assured, but fails to tell you how this can be accomplished. He also gives a sound foreign policy and here again he does not give you a clear picture of what his policy would be. On the employment angle Mr. Arnall stresses the idea that, for America to maintain its place on the top rung of the economic ladder, government officials must immediately decide what to do about the Western "Okies" and the Southern sharecropper. The advent of machinery to Southern farms is an infamous dust storm of the West. He says that the West to make these families America's displaced persons. He lashes out against the removal of the vital industries which were established on the West Coast and says that the removal of these industries will create the gigantic transportation problems, pointing out that it will depopulate entire sections of the country.

Gov. Arnall in all probability has presidential aspirations, and this book gives the reader a peek to the every day problems of this country. No matter what part of the country you call home, there are certainly parts of the book with which you can do nothing but agree. The overall picture is one of truth, fairness, and a desire to present a clear picture of America today as seen in his travels with such people as Governor Cox of Ohio and the late President Roosevelt. The Shore Dimly Seen should be a must!

Posthumous Awards Made

At impressive ceremonies held in Fort Benning's Doughboy Stadium Saturday morning Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding General of the Infantry Center, presented three high Army awards posthumously to relatives of Columbus war heroes.

Prior to the presentation of the medals, two companies of The Infantry School's School Troops paraded before a small gathering of relatives and friends of the late Lt. Colonel Kenneth S. Olson, Captain Jack Amos, and Cpl. William B. Stockberger. Martial music was provided by the 72nd Army Ground Force band.

Bronze Star to Widow

Accepting the bronze star medal for her husband was Mrs. Kenneth S. Olson, 2 Park Drive, Col. Kenneth S. Olson, according to the citation accompanying the medal, rendered meritorious service while a prisoner of the Japanese near Davao in the Philippine Islands. "Although not the senior officer present," the citation continues, "he voluntarily assumed command of the prisoners during an emergency, and by his superior leadership and sound judgment was able to restore the seething camp to a state of normalcy."

William George Amos, son of the late Capt. Jack Amos, was presented the oak leaf cluster, awarded to his father for gallantry in action on Corregidor in April 1942, when he was rescued and carried to safety by Col. Arthur W. Parker in spite of an intense enemy bombing and without regard for his own personal safety, the citation reads.

Second for Amos

This was the second award made to Capt. Amos posthumously, the first having been presented to his son September 21, 1946 at a similar ceremony.

Mrs. Alma S. Stockberger, mother of Cpl. William B. Stockberger, accepted the Air Medal which was awarded posthumously to her son "for meritorious achievement in aerial flight as a combat crew member in successful combat missions against the Japanese Empire." Cpl. Stockberger was a member of the 20th Air Force.

'Biggest Hoax Of War' Nets GI 40 Years

Described by the Army as "perpetrator of the biggest amnesia hoax of World War II," Pvt. Gene F. Jackson, of French Lick, Indiana, was convicted of desertion last Friday and sentenced to 40 years in prison at a court-martial in Frankfurt-On-The-Main, Germany.

Jackson was picked up in the French zone of Germany last July 12, saying he couldn't remember anything since leaving his unit in France on September 27, 1944. He was listed as dead after his disappearance.

Miss Helena Deutsch, supposedly Jackson's "German girl friend," testified that he seemed normal when she had first met him September, 1945. In finding Jackson guilty, the court-martial board ruled that the missing soldier had been mentally competent when he left his unit.

For the opening occasion clusters of vari-colored balloons were hung about the room and were released during the evening's dancing to music provided by the 72nd Army Ground Forces Band. The club schedule will include two regular dances a week on Wednesday and Saturday nights, the first of which was held Saturday with music by the Merry Makers Band. Wednesday night Swingmasters will be heard. A special treat for the men—Stag Night—will become a weekly feature in the near future.

Special guests at the opening night were Miss Katherine Cater, Dean of Women at Alabama Polytechnic Institute and staff members of the college, Miss Jane Walden, Miss Helen Finch, Miss Betty Cosby and Miss Wynelle Johnson who sat at a special table. Accompanying General and Mrs. O'Daniel were Col. Harry M. Grizzard, sponsor of the club and Col. Ben Harrell, commanding officer of School Troops, TTS, who Thursday presented President of the Board of Directors, 1st. Sgt. Charles W. QM Salvages $150 Million

BOSTON (CNS)—From mess kits to mobile bakeries, from shirts to typewriters—nearly $150,000,000 worth of Quartermaster Corps equipment has been salvaged, repaired and returned to Army stocks for re-issue in the past year, Col. Henry W. Bobring, Commanding Officer of the Boston Quartermaster Depot, disclosed in an announcement.

About 67 per cent of the total salvage consists of clothing and textiles but no garments were accepted for repair unless it was possible to make them at least 75 per cent as wearable as the original. Most clothes therefore have been reissued to a CS (Combat Serviceable) classification, which ranks second only to Class A, or New Issue Equipment. The standard of repair is whether or not it can be used by a well-dressed soldier.

The major repair jobs involve worn coat cuffs and trouser seams, torn pockets, missing buttons, and worn buttonholes. Other salvaged equipment is classed according to cities in which repair facilities are available. Thus typewriters and office supplies are repaired at the Chicago and Charlotte Depots, heavy tentage and canvas is shipped to the Philadelphia and Ogden Depots and bakery equipment is repaired at Jeffersonville.

1,500 Superforts Saved By Unique Storage Method

Approximately 1,500 Boeing B-29 Superfortresses, destined to become spare parts unless an expensive maintenance program was installed, will be saved for future use at a minimum expense to the Army Air Forces through the use of a new "cocooning" process.

Now in storage status at various Army Air Forces bases, the big Superfortresses are in danger of being destroyed or seriously damaged by heat, cold, or other factors of the elements.

Recent experiments at Warner-Robins Field, near Macon, Georgia, have proved it possible to preserve the giant planes by spraying on them an air-tight covering so that they may be used at a future date with little reconditioning.

Worth approximately $750,000 each, the 1,500 B-29's have been grounded by a limited budget, personnel reductions, and reduced flying operations. At the end of the war, the bombers were placed in temporary storage at the different bases to be held on a stand-by basis. Experiments were undertaken immediately to eliminate the large maintenance crews necessary to prevent deterioration.

A B-29 is so heavy and so large that it must be stored out of doors, which necessitates processing to prevent rust and corrosion from exposure. Loss of this strategic reserve in very heavy type aircraft would cripple present operating units since it comprises the only available essential replacements.

The first protective process developed out of the experimentation involved a thorough cleaning of the plane, removal of all corrosion, spraying the interior of engines and other vital parts with oil and corrosion preventive, and sealing various parts of the ship to keep out moisture. This method also required an additional use of man-power to make periodic checks of the aircraft to discover the first indications of any corrosion.

The latest process now adopted eliminates the necessity for such time-consuming office work. It is enveloped in an airtight case, seven times stronger than rawhide, and designed to keep out humidity and moisture for approximately 10 years.

ARMY GROUND FORCE CHIEF MAKES FAST VISIT TO BENNING

In a whirlwind tour of inspection of Fort Benning last Thursday, genial General Jacob L. Devers, commander of all the Army ground forces, assured personnel that Fort Benning would always remain a permanent post.

At a press conference Thursday noon at his quarters, General Devers appeared amused over all the excitement caused by the announcement that the Army Officers Candidate School would be moved from Fort Benning next September. "Fort Benning is probably the greatest post in the world and always will be," he said.

Pictures on this page illustrate to some extent the jam-packed schedule maintained by the General during his inspection of the post. Actually he stopped at more places than these pictures indicate. Some of his stops were "spur of the moment" visits not included in his carefully arranged schedule. He inspected the recently-opened meat cutting plant operated by the post quartermasters and observed how quarters of beef are cut and issued to troops ready for the frying pan or pot.

CHIEF OF THE ARMY GROUND FORCES—General Jacob L. Devers—arrived at America's most complete Army post, Thursday, Jan. 9, for a lightning one-day review of the post's facilities. Stepping from the plane upon his arrival at Lawson Field, he was welcomed by Lt. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, Seventh Army Commander, (who hurried from Atlanta to greet his Chief,) and Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel. General Devers immediately swung into his lightning-like pace maintained throughout his one-day scrutiny of installations, with a brief but thorough inspection of the Honor Guard at Lawson Field, accompanied by Lt. Gen. Griswold, center, and Maj. Gen. O'Daniel, right.

AIR TRANSPORTABLE ARMY TALKED—Lt. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold discusses a future entirely air-transportable U. S. Army, with Brig. Gen. William M. Miley, Airborne progenitor since 1918. General Griswold, right, outlines while Fort Benning's famous parachuting general outlines the great strides toward that goal since the first War Department directive toward establishing an experimental Parachute Test Platoon in 1940. The discussion was chaired by Maj. General O'Daniel, shortly after the picture was snapped, while the three great men awaited General Dever's arrival.

IN AN HOUR AND A QUARTER OF OPEN DISCUSSION—with Staff officers of The Infantry Center, General Devers outlined a brilliant future for Fort Benning. Promising that the function of this post would remain an integral part in the over-all post war plan of the Army Ground Force training and instruction, he prophesied a far more powerful Fort Benning than its present status. As shown above, his presence was calm and forceful throughout the entire discussion. General Griswold, left, and Generals O'Daniel, and Miley, right, listen intently as a question from the floor is presented General Devers.

'AN EXCELLENT POST AND AN EXCELLENT JOB' says General Devers, right, as he bids General O'Daniel good-bye, with a firm hand clasp. Although General Devers' inspection of Fort Benning was completed in one short day, he lived up to his reputation as one of the Army's most energetic commanders, by displaying an inhaustible interest in his minute inspection. General Devers evinced a keen interest in "the man on the job" rather than the job itself. "There," he avers, "is the secret of a proficient army. Get the right man on the job, and the job will be done right."

Army Wives Organize Club For Wednesday Meetings

An Army Wives Club for Columbus' GI wives has been formed and is meeting every Wednesday at the Army-Navy YMCA USO.

Set up by an organization committee of the USO, the club will provide recreational and educational facilities for the benevolent wives living in town.

Mrs. Arthur Baise, who is staff assistant of the committee, stated that "with so many Army wives in and around Columbus who don't know what to do with their spare time, and who are finding it hard to get acquainted with their surroundings since moving here, the need for such an organization as the Army Wives' Club is apparent."

Mrs. Baise said that among the programs being planned by the club is the maintenance of a prenatal clinic for expectant mothers. A doctor as well as a registered nurse will be available for consultation, she declared.

Other plans include bridge groups, sewing and cooking classes, book reviewing, studies in budgeting and planning, good grooming, and dancing.

Mrs. Baise said that the organization had applied for a charter in national group known as the "Y Wives."

All Army wives interested in becoming members of the club should contact the USO on 11th Street and attend the group's meetings on Wednesdays.

Members of the committee who helped organize the club are Mrs. Anthony Varga, chairman; Mrs. Lucien Dineen, Mrs. Paul Rector, Mrs. Floyd Francisco, advisor, and Mrs. Baise, staff assistant.

Keeping TABS

Sometimes ye olde editor of this here column has his doubts about his readers. — Let me broaden that statement a bit—in one syllable contest what is going to pick the most popular Airborne Soldier—MI or officer? will be a nice thing to win, eh? Well, you please, try to win it myself. Nossir! And I am not counting the votes myself either. So will you please stop voting for me? Even at two bits per vote—I will not pay up—not even for five cents a vote.—Cut it out will yuh?

More fun than a barrel of monkeys at the Alabama Recreation Area. The Roller Skating Rink is a new and good deal for the Sky Troopers. There's guys and gals swooping all over the joint having a h-u-v-a time for themselves at 15 cents per session. The sessions are two hours in duration—and whaddya know—there's no charge for the skates.

Officers May Still Reenlist In First Grade

Seventh Army Headquarters in Atlanta announced that all former officers, warrant officers, and flight officers can still reenlist in the first grade, providing they reap for a three year period within twenty days after the date of their release from active duty.

However they will not be reenlisted in the Army Air Forces unless they served with the Air Corps. And all Air Corps officers wanting to reenlist in the first grade must do so before June 30, 1947.

On and after July 1 all Air Forces officers will be enlisted in grades to be determined by the Commanding General of the AAF or by the appropriate Army commander of the branch in which they ask to be reenlisted.

30 New Records Are Set By AAF

Twenty-three international and two U. S. national records were broken, and four new international records were established by the Army Air Forces during 1946, according to a summary of the year's results of the AAF record-breaking program.

One record, that of the helicopter flight duration, was broken twice in 1946 by AAF crews and equipment, making a total of 30 records created by the AAF during the year.

A number of unofficial records were established by the AAF during the year. These included the speed run by the Republic F-4 Thunderjet, which flew at 619 miles an hour at Muroc (California) Army Air Base. The official record of 616 miles an hour, town College Theatre where he majored in speech and radio.

GEORGE K. EMCH, whose professional non-de-plume is George Stanley, brings the precise training of Clare Tree Major to his role as First Lt. Tommy Hughes. Private Emch, currently assigned to Headquarters, 1st Cavalry Division, Fort Benning, is a native of Youngstown, Ohio, and received his theatrical training there at the Playhouse. Prior to entering the Army early in 1946, he toured for one season with Clare Tree Major's repertoire children's theatre. Among the more than fifty productions he participated in at the Youngstown Little Theatre are "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Junior Miss," "Best Foot Forward," "The Royal Family," "Night Must Fall," "The Male Animal," "Only an Orphan Girl," "Wings Over Europe," "The Moon is Down," and "Out of the Frying Pan." On tour he was cast in "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp."

In addition to being an "Army brat," the first Fort Benning-Little Theatre, known as the Fort Benning Players, in 1920. Although that was a little before his time, Wait hasn't missed much in the way of Army or theatre in his short, happy life. While at West Point he was featured in "100th Night Show," annual cadet production, two years consecutively, and was in charge of set construction during his last year. Since graduating from the Army in June, 1946, Wait has appeared as Frank Lippencott in the Fort Benning Players' "My Sister Elsie." He is cast as the long-suffering Steve Eldridge, Mudge's beau.

which must be exceeded by at least five miles an hour to become a record, is held by England.

Distance Flight

Another unofficial record was that of the Pacusan Dreamboat's flight over the polar wastes. Colonel C. S. Irvine flew the giant Boeing B-29 Superfortress from Hawaii to Australia, over the new route in 39 hours and 36 minutes. The flight of approximately 10,000 miles was less, however, than that established a few days before by the "Truculent Turtle" a new U. S. Navy patrol bomber, which flew from Perth, Australia, to this country. Though no record was broken for the distance, the Pacusan Dreamboat's flight pioneered a new route and provided the AAF with invaluable data which will be used by very long-range bombers of the future.

All the records now held by the AAF were established in standard types of aircraft, and, with the exception of the new jet-propelled fighters, such as the Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star, all the other present types were used in combat. These include B-28s, Douglas A-26 Invaders, and the Sikorsky H-3 helicopter.

Newer Models

The AAF has received experimental models of aircraft capable of even greater record-breaking possibilities, but these were not used in the present program which will continue until the United States holds all important speed, altitude and endurance records possible.

The record-breaking program began in December, 1945, after the AAF received orders from Gen. Henry H. Arnold, then commanding AAF, to determine the full value of standard AAF equipment. Such a complete test program had not been possible during the war.

Mr. Bowen as Newton is responsible for most of the laughs in GWSH, though many of them are on him rather than with him. LIEUTENANT ROBERT L. WETMORE, last person to join the "George Washington Slept Here" cast, has seen almost everything the Army can offer. During the six years he has been in the Army, he has had tours of duty in Panama, the South Pacific and all over the forty-eight states, both as an enlisted man and, more recently as an officer. WIRT TOPS SCORING

Doughboy Cagers Trim Phenix City Tigers 65-32

Last Thursday evening, the Doughboys resumed their winning ways after the holiday layoff with a resounding 65 to 32 triumph over the Phenix City Tigers, before a crowd of approximately 50 persons. Despite the lack of support, the Doughboys put on their usual good show, coming back to score 36 points in the second half after a slow opening session.

Bill Wirt, a comparative newcomer to the Benning squad, started the game at center, replacing Bill Miller, whose injured knee needed rest. Wirt turned in a sterling effort, racking up 16 points to lead the scorers, although he played only slightly more than half the contest; and using his lanky 6-foot 4 inches to good advantage under the boards.

The Doughs jumped off to an lead on successive baskets by Wirt, Anderson and Baker. The Doughboy's shifting zone defense kept the Tigers at bay, and forced them to resort to long shots, which they employed with a notable lack of success, hitting only four times from the field in the opening stanza. Deadeye Wirt kept the Doughboys well out in front during the half as he swished the netting 8 times during the period, for a total of 12 points. The halftime score was 29-16, in favor of Doughs. The Benningmen turned on the heat in the second half, employing their fast break to score virtually at will on the now disorganized Tigers. Coach Tallis used every-one he had dressed for the game during the half, and all but two of them broke into the scoring column at least once.

Doughs Split 2 With Marines

The Doughboy basketball team ran into unexpected trouble up at Cherry Point, North Carolina, over the week end. Having beaten the Marine five by twenty-five points last December 21 here at Benning, Coach Cedric Tallis and his hoopers weren't too worried.

However the leathernecks put on a spurt in last Saturday's contest and edged the Dough, 49-43 to hand Benning its second loss of the season.

Claude Anderson, Doughboy captain, was high man with thirteen point, while Taylor Baker and Bill Wirt each put in eleven.

Sunday the Marines seemed on their way to repeating the previous night's triumph but the Doughboys rallied in the closing minutes to tie up the game and send it into overtime. A free throw sunk by Claude Anderson gave the Doughs a one-point lead, 49-48, and they were able to maintain that slim margin until time ran out.

The "A's" five is led by its player-coach, Lt. Charles Carney, and operates under the Airborne Welfare and Recreation office, which is headed by Captain John Marr.

Other Paratroop hoopers are: Lyle McCauley, Elvin Pickett, Al Richards, Phil Montamble, Aubrey Stephens, Leo Kolbeck and Robert Ward.

ISD Keglers Trim STR

In the windup game of the School Troops Bowling League, the ISD squad triumphed the Student Training Regiment three games to none, to earn undisputed possession of first place with a season record of twenty wins against only one loss. The match was a holiday from December 19, and was originally postponed because of the holiday layoff. An elimination tournament is now being bowled as an extra curricular attraction. The ISD team, two of whose members were on the post all-star bowling team, which won the seventh army area tourney, is favored to win.

COLLEGIATE STAR—Here's Norman Skinner, captain of the 25th Infantry Regiment quinet which is undefeated in league competition. Skinner is a former New York City star, having played for Columbia University during the 1944-45 season when he led metropolitan scores. He is high scorer for the 25th also.

After about a month's practice, the 12-man post boxing team takes off this weekend for Fort Bragg, N. C., where the Seventh Army boxing tournament gets underway on Tuesday.

The tournament will last three days—January 21, 22, and 23—and Lt. Ed Thomas has high hopes of bringing back the bacon to Benning.

Trainers John Wilson and Louis Piatas have been working with the boys since early December and have lined up six first-string fighters.

First String
They are: Frank Moreno, heavyweight, Milo Novak, light heavyweight, Art Urbino, middleweight, Irv Branson, senior welterweight, Jessie Underwood, lightweight, and Ralph DiFebbe, junior welterweight.

The Airborne Section continues its dominance of athletic teams here also, as the first four out of this six are paratroopers. The 37th Infantry is next in line with a total of four on the squad.

Tough Training
Right behind the first line come Takata Takash, a lightweight, Billy Pratt, lightweight, Len Colobrooke, welterweight, and Jim Senter, light heavyweight.

The squad has undergone a tough training schedule to get the fighters in tip-top shape. Calisthenics and stiff workouts in the Harmony Church Sports Arena

Boxing Bouts Set Tonight

Keen interest will be manifested tonight when 25th Infantry Regiment presents another auspicious showing of its popular weekly six-team boxing tournament in the spacious 25th Combat Team Field House.

Located on Scott Avenue, Sand Hill, in Building No. 3723, the vast indoor arena, conveniently converted to seat over 2500 fans will provide perfect visibility to the bouts from any seat within the arena.

Competition among the six teams has reached a high pitch, and although the 1st Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment increased its last week lead of 45 to 66 points, Regimental 2nd Battalion surged from fourth position to tie with the 3rd Battalion for second position, while the last place 4th Battalion had a partner in the 999th P.A. Battalion. In third position is the 371st F. A. Battalion which is, but 10 points behind the tied second position holders. The bell will echo for the first bout at 8 p. m.

Doughs End Home Stand Against Brookley Friday

Tomorrow night, the Doughboys conclude a brief, two-game home stand against Brookley Field in the main post gym at 8:00 p. m.

Never Lost To AAF The fliers from Brookley Field are not expected to pose much of a problem for Coach Tallis's charges, but this is no year to make predictions, as was evidenced in Cherry Point last week end. The only basis this department has for comparison between Brookley Field and the Doughs is the indisputable fact that the Benningmen have never lost to an Air Corps team. (But then, they singing, terpsichorean artists, comedians, and highlights by the 196th AGF Dance Orchestra will feature during the evening.

had never lost to a Marine team (till that fateful 11th of January.) So this department refuses to make book on the contest, but mentally we'll string along with the Doughs.

Following the Brookley battle tomorrow, the Doughboys will begin preparing for the game with the Atlanta Sports Arena in Atlanta Sunday night. The Sports Arena is the only team which holds an edge on the Doughboys in seasonal play. In the one game played, the Rebels came out on top by one point, with the issue in doubt right up to the final gun. The Doughs were leading in the fourth quarter, at one time by 7 points. Their comparatively inexperience eventually cost them the game, as the veteran Sports Arena five capitalized on Benning mistakes, and then, after taking a one point lead in the last minute of play, "froze" the ball expertly to walk off with the decision.

It would be well worthy a journey up to Atlanta for the game. The Sports Arena puts a team on the floor averaging six feet four inches per man, and none were strangers to a basketball before joining the Arena five. "Bo" Johnson and "Whitey" Kendall starred at Georgia Tech at one time. Walter "Ship" Kersulis was a member of Benning's championship Snappers of last year, besides playing end for the Dough-boy football team this season in a very supple manner. Another performer, who you may have heard of is Lloyd Gearhart, although perhaps not in connection with Dr. Naasmith's sport. Gearhart was a star performer in the outfield for the Atlanta Crackers last year, and is being brought up by the New York Giants for a trial next spring. He is very fast and is supposed to be quite an able performer on the hardwood as well as in the outer garden.

200-Pound Tusker Nabbed After Chase Of Two Hours

Sunday morning a two-hundred pound pig was captured between Mary's Falls and the Chattahoochee River after a two-hour chase by members of the Infantry School Hunt.

The animal was finally cornered by three kennel hounds aided by Fluffy, a veteran big dog, a Spitz and a Kerry Blue Terrier. Sgt. Erwin Tweed, son of former Huntsman M/Sgt. Thomas Tweed carried the large flunked pig out of the swampy ground on the front of his saddle, plunging his horse hock-deep in mud and scrambling with him up a fifty degree slippery incline.

Three harmless falls occurred. First Lt. Bob Case and Miss Katharine Weber did a dual flop into the mud, later an unidentified major was forced to dismount after becoming entwined in tangled undergrowth. The Major's horse stood resolutely on the Major's coattails until forcefully shoved aside by the MPH.

Coffee and rolls were served in the Tack Room of the Stables at 7:30 p. m. by the Detachment Mess to members of the hunt staff and field after which all riders hocked to the Kennels to pick up the hounds. Those participating: Lt. Col. Frederick R. Weber, MRH, Lt. Col. Earl F. Holton, Lt. Col. Richard Collins, British Liaison Officer, Lt. Col. John Hitchings, Maj. George S. Berry Jr., and Capt. Frank Lillyman, all whippers-in; Lt. Evelyn Haas ANG, Lt. Frances Haas, ANG, Lt. Mary Shindichow, ANG and Miss Elizabeth Clark; Shirley French, Katharine Weber, Mrs. John Hitchings, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Weber, Lt. Col. L. A. Curtis, Major C. E. Bass, Maj. C. R. Bass, Maj. J. L. R. William F. Astly and Lt. William Cloud.

STR Hoopsters Begin 2nd Half

The School Troops basketball league swung back into action last week after their holiday layoff to open the second half of their tournament. The Infantry School Detachment will lead most of their men via the discharge route over the holidays, have come up with another powerhouse, if their opening game is any indication. They breezed by Hq. and Hq. Co. 57 in a walk. Ellis of ISD looped in 16 points to lead the scorers. Honorable mention goes to Darnell of Hq. Co. who tallied fifteen.

That same evening the 204th TC Bn. led by Lt. Crowley, walked all over the 756th Tankers, second place in the first half of the tourney, 41-25. Lt. Crowley scored twenty points to lead the scorers.

The 501st Paratroops scored a lopsided win over Service Co. 44-15 and the 83rd FA Bn. beat the 1st Bn. 37th Inf. 32-28 in the only close game of the week. Scoring leaders were Jabin of the 83rd and Beck of the 1st Bn. with 12 and 11 points respectively.

The 129th Engineers, a new addition to the league, did not play last week, and will open their season next week against the 501st.

Dimes March Drive Enters Second Week

$300 Collected For Polio Fight

As the March of Dimes campaign enters its second week, Fort Benning officials report that enthusiasm is high on the post and that more than $300 have been collected from sales just placed in the lobby of the Main Post theater.

Known as the Parade of the States, the theater drive to collect funds for Fort Benning's contribution to the fight against infantile paralysis has been the most successful program in years, according to campaign leaders. Large jars bearing a picture map of each of the 48 states have been placed on a three-tiered platform in the center of the lobby, and Benningites are asked to drop their donations into the jar representing their state.

'New York' Leads

Leading contenders for the title of largest contributing state are New York, California, and Pennsylvania, theater officials report. An average of more than $60 daily has been realized to date, according to the officials. The largest contribution for a single day was last Sunday's total of $106.

During the 1946 March of Dimes, the average per capita contribution at Fort Benning amounted to $1.25 for officers and $40 for enlisted men. It is hoped that this year's drive will be as great or greater. Lt. Col. Walden J. Alexander, Fort Benning chief of the March of Dimes, said today.

All military and civilian personnel will be given an opportunity to participate in the fund-raising campaign, and Fort Benning's drive will continue until the January 31 pay-day. Organization of the Benning campaign has been completed down through company level.

2 Argentine Generals Visit

Two members of the Argentine Air Force, Brigadier Juan Luis Garramby, Argentine attaché, and Brigadier Aristobulo F. Reyes, Argentine air delegate to the Inter American Defense Council, were visitors at Fort Benning Monday.

Arriving at Fort Benning Sunday afternoon, the two Argentine airmen spent Monday in viewing various demonstrations and installations of the Airborne and other sections of The Infantry School. They left the post Tuesday.

Both are among the oldest pilots in the Argentine Air Force and have had distinguished records. They are presently visiting War Department installations in the United States. Their accompaniment by Major Fernandez, a member of the AAF attaché branch.

Approximately 138 flats and gondolas from Fort Benning's narrow-gauge railroad will be sold at public auction by the War Assets Administration sometime in February, it was announced by a WAA representative today.

Catalogs containing pictures of the cars to be sold are being prepared for distribution to prospective buyers in the United States and Latin America, officials said. It is hoped that some mining companies, fruit growers, sugar cane growers, banana planters,

MISS LACY DARTER... New Red Cross Official

New Official Joins Red Cross

Among new people around the Station Hospital is Miss Lacy Darter, new Assistant Director for the hospital Red Cross staff. Miss Darter came to Fort Benning after serving as Field Director for 18 months with the Navy at Pensacola, Florida. She began her Red Cross career three years ago as a social worker at La Grange, Louisiana. Since then she has been an Assistant Field Director at the Station Hospital, Selman Field, Monroe, Louisiana and Station Hospital, Camp Gordon Johnston, Point.

Miss Darter came to Fort Benning with a varied background of training as well as experience. From Hollins College, Virginia she received an A.B. degree and received her graduate training from the School of Social Work, Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana. At present Miss Darter's home is in New Orleans but she has spent most of her time in Philadelphia. (Turn to Page 2)

Army, Navy, Agree On Merger Plan

A merger plan acceptable to both the Army and Navy was announced last Thursday by the Administration at a Washington news conference.

Under the proposed set-up there will be three departments—the Air Corps finally becomes a separate branch—with a secretary at the head of each. They will all be under a secretary of national defense. Each department will therefore be able to carry out its activities as it has been, with one head making over-all plans for national defense.

Needed cooperation between the or small lumber companies in the bidding. The cars were originally valued at $11,000 each, but a WAA spokesman expressed doubt that any such amount would be realized from the sale. A more WAA figure, according to the dollar, would be ten cents on the dollar.

Further information concerning the sale may be obtained from the War Assets Administration, Railroad Department, 699 Ponce de Leon Ave., Atlanta, or telephone.

Fort Benning's Army Area Regional hospital has been reduced from a 900-bed to a 800-bed capacity effective February 1, hospital attaches reported today.

Veteran allotted beds will be cut from 150 to 50, leaving a total of 750 beds for military personnel. No explanation was given for the unexpected reduction in the capacity of the Benning installation.

The directive ordering the cut came from Seventh Army headquarters in Atlanta, and follows a survey of all Army hospitals. Fort Benning's hospital is not the only one affected by the cut, it was pointed out. The reductions were made on a basis of size and number of patients.

Station Complement Unit Made 'Sep. Bn.'

The station complement unit at Fort Benning, which was redesignated 348th ASU last November, has been made a separate provisional battalion with Colonel Jesse A. Ladd as commanding officer in addition to his duties as Post coordinator, military officials announced today.

Adjutant and assistant to Col. Ladd is Capt. Francis B. Smith, formerly with the Separation Point. The 348th, known as the housekeeping unit, boasts more than 1,000 officers and men. The organizations composing the new battalion include Headquarters and Headquarters Detachments I and II, commanded by Maj. Paul Westerner Military Police Detachment Sections I and II, commanded by Capt. Marshall E. Bullock and WAC Detachment, Section I, commanded by Capt. Hannah J. Ashby.

COL. T. M. BURGESS... 25th CT commander

Colonel Burgess Commands 25th

Colonel Thomas M. Burgess, veteran of World War II service in the South Pacific Theater, is the new commanding officer of the 25th Combat Team (Provisional), it was announced last Saturday by Infantry Center officials.

Col. Burgess succeeds Brig. Gen. Benjamin F. Caffey Jr., who left recently for duty in the Pacific. During the war Col. Burgess served as chief of staff of the IV and II Island Command Headquarters and also chief of staff of the Company Officers, Field Officers, Infantry Command and General Staff Schools. He later served with the 25th Combat Team from August 1945. Col. Burgess has served as executive officer of the 25th Combat Team from last August up until this new assignment.

Col. Burgess wears the Legion of Purple Heart, Bronze Star Medal, and he is an Honorary Officer, Order of The British Army.

478th RTU CO Expected During Week

Lawson Field has been designated a Reserve Air Training base and personnel and equipment will begin arriving around January 25, officials announced Friday.

The announcement of Lawson Field's selection comes in the wake of two surveys made last year by Lt. Col. T. E. Wadston, representing the Fourteenth Air Force. The surveys were requested by the Muscogee county chapter of the Army Air Force Association, a which was backed up by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the city and county commissions.

To Open Saturday

The 478th Army Air Force Base Unit (Reserve Training), assigned to Fourteenth Air Force with headquarters at Orlando, Fla., will be established at Lawson Field January 25 for the purpose of training the 478th Air Group, and maintenance of the aircraft.

Gordon Flournoy, president of the Columbus AAF association, expressed deep gratification over the materialization of the association's plans. He praised the help given the association by Oscar Betts Betts, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, Richard E. Tukey, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. GI Insurance Holders May Get A Dividend

All former and present holders of National Service Life Insurance (and other men in the service) are scheduled to receive dividend payments from the Veterans Administration in a general statement announcing the proposed dividends of $1,000,000. It is expected that it will take statisticians at least a year to check the existing $1,000,000. Upon completion of the computations, dividend payments will be mailed out.

VA spokesmen announced that the dividends payments will be on the basis of the GI Insurance. The VA estimated that approximately 15,000,000 servicemen and veterans will be entitled to a dividend.

PILOT TRAINING RESUMED

Air Cadet Applications Will Soon Be Available

Application forms for the aviation cadet pilots training program will be available to AAF enlisted personnel at Lawson Field headquarters in the near future, according to Major John J. Moore, Base S-1.

Re-opening of the aviation cadet training program was announced by the AAF recently. First quotas will be filled by qualified Regular Army enlisted men of the AAF.

Indefinite Period

The program will extend over an indefinite period, according to present plans, with larger quotas scheduled each year if funds are available. This will furnish a steady source of new pilots as replacements for tactical flying units.

Under the aviation cadet training program during the war, more than 1,200,000 men volunteered for air crew training of whom 700,000 were qualified.

When Pearl Harbor was attacked on December 7, 1941, the AAF had only 11,840 students receiving pilot training. Between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day in August, 1945, the aviation cadet program trained 173,367 pilots, and 66,023 of these received their wings and commissions in 1944 alone.

Four types of schools were operated for air crews—pilot, navigator, bombardier, and gunner. Air crew training reached its most intensive peak in December 1943, when 37,000 men were ordered to the various types of schools in the program.

Reopened For Replacements

Flying training was discontinued near the end of the war because of an excess of pilots over anticipated requirements. It was re-opened on a small scale for officers late in 1944 when replacements became necessary for pilots who became service or grounded for physical reasons.

The 1947 program provides for most intensive training than in the past with the war with the instruction course increased to 52 weeks.

House Group's View On Draft Awaits Foreign Policy Briefing

The House committee on armed services, a new group which will handle all military legislation in that chamber, will not act on fundamental policy questions until the State Department reports to it on the nation's diplomatic status and world-wide commitments, it has been announced by committee chairman, Rep. Walter G. Andrews, Republican from New York.

This means that legislation regarding draft extension and universal military training will not be considered until answers are received from the government on these specific points: (1) What is the present state of our foreign relations as it affects the Allied powers? (2) What, definitely, are our commitments to supply military force to the United Nations? (3) What are the prospects for success of the various disarmament proposals?

Representative Andrews remarked that the Army and Navy have already submitted its requests. It is believed that the War Department wants universal military training for the nation's youth before it will give up Selective Service.

However, the committee is going to make a thorough investigation of the foreign policy situation to see what military force is necessary. Only then will it attempt to decide fundamental policy.

The present Selective Service Act, which the War Department hasn't been using in the past months, expires March 31 and it is expected that the committee will have reached a decision by that time.

2 Supply Sections Absorbed Monday

Two sections of the Supply Detachment, 3440 Army Service Unit, were disbanded as of Monday, January 20, and their personnel have been absorbed by other sections. Orders for their discontinuance came from the Infantry Center.

Section one and two of the Supply Detachment are the units affected and their personnel were transferred to section one and two, respectively, of the 3440th's Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment.

Tentative plans characterize a total of 33 cadetmen, including 17 civilians, to carry out the housekeeping duties dependent upon a base unit. Of the total 4 will be officers and 12 enlisted men. Equipment for training will include one AT-7, one AT-115, four AT-6s, and one P-51.

Training will continue throughout the year and former Air Corps personnel in the entire Chattahoochee Valley area will be allowed to take advantage of it.

Col. Edmund F. Freeman will command the 478th Army Air Force reserve training unit at Lawson Field according to an announcement received at the Base Tuesday morning from the reserve unit headquarters at Orlando, Florida.

Col. Freeman and a 14th Air Force representative are scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field Friday, January 24, to complete preparations for the activation of the unit on January 25.

Lawson officials said the reserve unit would occupy the area formerly used by the 378th Fighter Squadron at the southeast section of the field. At present housing accommodations for the 478th include two barracks, a mess hall and one office building.

 Regular Army, currently on duty with the Army Air Corps, United States, unmarried citizen, between the ages of 18 and 26 1-2 years, high school graduate, able to pass mental and aptitude examinations; good health; recommended by commanding officer, at least two years' service remaining under current enlistment; or indicated intention of extending enlistment.

Priorities for selection of applicants for training will be given on a basis of the number of years' schooling completed by the individual and scores made on the qualifying tests.

Grades Protected Enlisted men appointed as cadets and later eliminated from pilot training will revert to the grade held immediately prior to their appointment and their names will be forwarded to their former major commands for reassignment.

In the event that quotas are not filled by AAF enlistees, former aviation cadets who had entered training during 1944 and 1945 and whose training was terminated by the end of the war may be eligible to re-enter training this year.

AAF headquarters announced that should enlisted men fail to fill the 1947 quotas, former cadets will be chosen who are all interested in flying training and meet physical, age, and marital requirements. Former cadets who wish to re-enter training may write the Commanding General, Headquarters Army Air Force, Attention: AFPMP-3, Washington 25, D. C., giving their age, educational attainment, home address, and marital status. This information will be kept on file for use when additional men are required to fill quotas.

FOR SAFER AVIATION

Long-Range Radar Units Installed In Washington

Long-range radar units, designed for the exact plotting of aircraft and valued close to $1,000,000, are being installed at Washington National Airport and Andrews Field, Maryland, by the Army Air Forces for use by the Little Abner Flying Service and the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

The radar units are being installed by the Air Materiel Command and are approximately half completed. When installed, the equipment at National Airport will be operated by Air Defense Command personnel and the units at Andrews Field by Airways and Air Communications Service controllers.

Specially constructed steel towers are being constructed by AAF engineers, with a 26-foot tower being built at Washington National Airport, and a 28-foot tower at Andrews Field.

"Little Abner" Two long-range radar units will be operated from the Washington National site, including a MEW (Micro-Wave Early Warning) system with a range of about 200 miles and a T-F-5-10, a weather finder known as the "Little Abner."

Traffic Control Radar, the C.P. N-18, with a range of about 40 miles, will complement the radar ground control. A p.p.o.c.h. equipment now functioning at Andrews Field.

The MEW radar units will have five scopes rotated to the CAA traffic control center for use by Air Traffic Control operators at Washington National, as well as scopes manned by AAF controllers. Two other remote scopes will be made available to CAA Weather Service. The MEW radar units are considered excellent for plotting the position of convective weather conditions and thunderstorms within the range of the radar sweep. This will materially improve weather forecasting and reporting from the Washington area.

The radar units were installed at the request of the All Weather Flying Service to provide complete radar coverage for AAF height limited flights under all possible conditions. The AAF will assist CAA in instructing their controllers in the use and interpretation of the radar scopes to be used in the Washington traffic control center. It is expected that CAA eventually will make full use of the radar equipment for the control of air traffic over the normally-congested Washington area.

Eliminate Error: When all the radar units are functioning, the MEW and the "Little Abner" units will plot the position of incoming aircraft up to 200 miles away, determining their location and exact altitude. Using the radar scopes, the controllers will contact the aircraft and provide navigational data to the pilot, eliminating any chance of navigational errors or possibilities for accidents due to an aircraft's proximity to mountains or other hazards.

When the aircraft arrives within the 40-mile range, the Traffic Control radar unit at Andrews Field will take over the control, and through the controller, maneuver the aircraft into a position where the radar GCA operators can assume control for the final landing.

The same procedure, in opposite sequence, prevails on an outgoing flight.

Army Announces New 'Jeep' Plane

The Boeing L-15A, newest addition to the "Flying Jeep" family of liaison aircraft, was announced today by the Army Air Forces and the Army Ground Forces.

This all-purpose craft is one of the first light planes specifically designed for liaison work. The early models of the liaison type used in the Army were modifications of airplanes designed for civilian use.

The L-15A will be primarily utilized in the Army Ground Forces for direction of artillery fire, reconnaissance, aerial photography, and emergency supply operations. Powered with a 125-horsepower Lycoming engine, this all-metal, two-place aircraft is designed to operate in and out of relatively small areas as well as in extreme temperatures.

600-Foot Takeoff
The plane is designed to take off with flaps fully extended and clear a 50-foot obstacle in 600 feet, and similarly land over a 50-foot obstacle, coming to a full stop in 517 feet.

Distinguishing features include the "pod" or gondola enclosure, which houses the power plant, the pilot, and the observer, and a long boom extending back from the top of the gondola which supports the twin rudder controls. The gondola makes up the entire fuselage of the airplane and hangs below the level of all flight surfaces. It allows full visibility in all directions to both the pilot and the observer.

The plane is designed to remain airborne for 2 1/2 hours at a normal cruising speed of 100 miles an hour. This endurance range can be extended to 3 1/2 hours by the addition of an external fuel tank suspended from the gondola. Simple attachment of wings, landing gear, tail boom, and control surfaces permits the entire airplane to be disassembled quickly and loaded on a standard 2 1/2-ton Army cargo truck.

With its propeller in place, the L-15A can be towed in glider fashion by another airplane up to a speed of 165 miles per hour. The engine may be started prior to release from the tow plane. Skis can be installed in place of wheels or the landing gear can be replaced with a landing gear and take-offs on a cable permitting operation from otherwise inaccessible areas, as is possible through the installation of a Brodie gear.

The length of the L-15A is 26 feet, 1-2 inches, the wing span 40 feet, and the over-all height is 8 feet, 3 1/2 inches. Normal gross weight is 2,050 pounds and the useful load will be 541 pounds. Service ceiling is 16,400 feet.

4 Redesignated

A redesignation of four Infantry Center officers has been announced, creating a chief of staff and three assistant chiefs of staff. Colonel John C. Biltzard, who was the executive officer of TIC, is now chief of staff, and Colonel Daniel P. Buckland, who was S-1, Colonel Walter M. Johnson, the former S-3, and Colonel Thomas M. Brinkley, the S-4, have been named assistant chiefs of staff.

Officers Urged To Apply Early For Leaves Due

All officers and enlisted men who have accrued leave time are urged to take advantage of it as soon as possible, military officials announced today.

Each Infantry Center staff section chief is requested to submit an informal memorandum to TIC Chief of Staff stating the period he desires to be placed on leave between now and June 30. Included on the memo must be the name of the officer's replacement during the leave period.

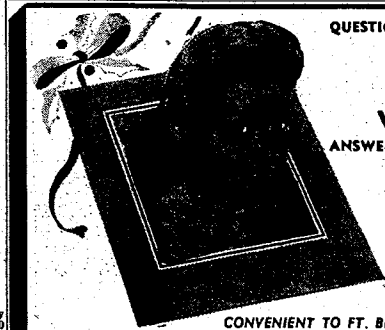

Each staff section chief will also submit a list of the officers and men of his section, indicating the period he has approved for each to be on leave prior to June 30.

Ships Clear Backlog Of Dependents

Maj.-Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, Chief of Transportation, announced today that as the result of specially arranged air transportation and increased accommodations aboard "dependent" vessels, the backlog of dependents of American servicemen waiting to join their families in the European Theater has been cleared up, and that "Port calls" have been issued to all dependents on the January priority list.

General Leavey explained that in an effort to speed reunion of overseas dependents with their families, the War Department on December 7 inaugurated a special project to move dependents by air in order to reduce a backlog which had been built up faster than acceptable shipping could be provided. In the month that the special air movement operated, more than 1100 dependents were safely transported to the European Theater aboard 41 separate flights operated by American Overseas Airlines, Pan-American Airways and Trans-World Airlines. The special project is being discontinued now that the waiting list has been reduced to a current operating level. In addition to reductions made possible by the special air lift, accommodations suitable for infants and children have been increased on several "dependent" vessels, increasing their dependent capacity from 20 to 40 per cent.

General Leavey released the following figures on movement of dependents who were furnished transportation during the calendar year 1946 from the United States to the Theaters indicated:

European Theater (including France, Belgium & United Kingdom)	16,829
Mediterranean Theater	1,759
China, Burma and India Theater	479
Mid-Pacific Theater	2,535
Western-Pacific Theater	2,813
Japan and Korea	4,283
Total	39,783

Wright Field Team Films Airborne Course

A four-man delegation of civilian photographers from Wright Field's technical intelligence section are recording on film training at the Airborne section of The Infantry School.

Scheduled to remain here another three weeks, the photographers are taking pictures of all malfunctions of parachutes to determine the cause of collisions and other air accidents. They expect to get complete coverage of the airborne training.

The film will be sent to Wright Field for processing after which it will be returned to Fort Benning for study by the Parachute Training Committee, headed by Lt. Colonel A. T. Taylor. This committee will report its findings and adjustments will be made accordingly.

The Wright Field group is headed by Earl Rossman and includes Carl Burmahin, Lou Hansler and William Wheeler.

SOUND GROUP IS ALWAYS BUSY

Infantry Conference Here Recorded For Sixty Hours

The Sound Group of the Communications Section of The Infantry School, located on the Main Post behind the post exchange, is something taken for granted by most of the units utilizing its many services. Some of its activities are depicted here, but to cover them completely would require the use of quite a few Bayonet pages.

Supervised by Chief Warrant Officer James McAllister, and manned by 21 operators, this organization supplies, maintains and operates all the public address, visual aid and recording systems for the post.

The public address equipment for instructors in the field and in classrooms, the recordings heard in post theaters, the training films shown to troops—all this is part of the Sound-Group's work.

Twenty-eight vehicles are required for the sound department for their daily problems. T-Sgt. Verne S. Bunch, a veteran of 19 years service in the Army, five of which has been spent at Fort Benning with the Sound Group, is the chief dispatcher, and he sends the men and cars out on their jobs, checking equipment as it leaves.

Sgt. Bunch says that the section has about 80 dispatches a week. During the war 100 men were assigned to the group, and there was a yearly average of from five to six thousand problems.

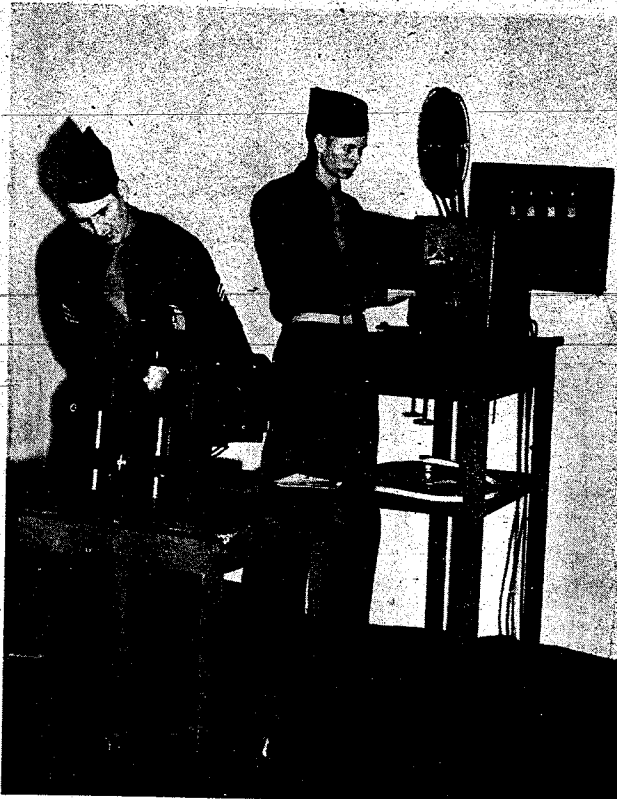

Personnel drive their own vehicles and are expected to have first-hand knowledge of the equipment with which they are working. Among the special problems the group deals with is setting up amplifying systems to cover large areas. One of the group's biggest jobs is the installation of such a system for the Airborne Section on its jump problems.

The Group boasts of having 131 amplifying systems, with two microphones for each system; the largest battery shop on the post and two 35 mm. regular theater projectors.

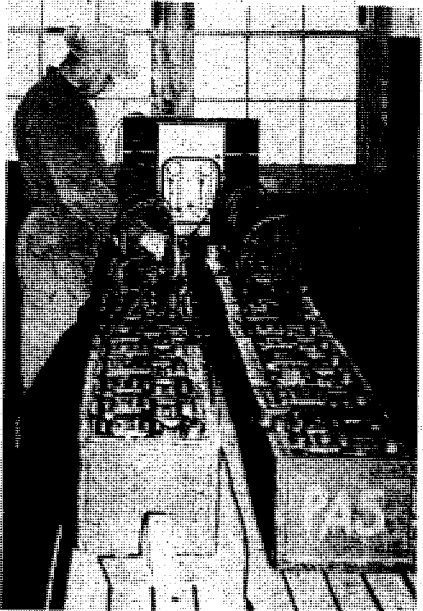

Example of Work

An example of the work done by the recording division of the Group is the discs on file covering almost every spoken word at the Infantry Conference held at Fort Benning last June. Mr. McAllister said the Group recorded almost every word spoken during the 15-day conference. It amounts to 60 hours of recording. In other words, it would take about three solid days to hear it all.

M-Sgt. Minor Turner has been a member of the Sound Group for the past two and one-half years. He is the Group's "top kick" and specializes in setting up public address systems for problems covering a large area such as large-scale attack demonstrations staged by The Infantry School for visiting dignitaries.

PARACHUTE JUMPERS IN THE AIR can hear their instructor's voice through the loudspeaker system being demonstrated above. M/Sgt. Minor Turner and Sgt. Joe Connor use this equipment for problems going on over large areas.

A GLIMPSE OF THE LARGEST battery shop on the post. Cpl. Serio Canale of the Sound Section is making the connections preparatory to charging a loudspeaker system.

AAF Jet Aircraft Get First Combat Testing

The extensive testing of jet propelled fighter aircraft under combat conditions was completed in the recent joint amphibious training exercises in Southern California when Army Air Forces Lockheed P-80 Shooting Stars and their photographic prototype, FP-80's, were used in large numbers during the training operations. Combat-trained pilots of the famous 1st Fighter Group have been engaged in developing the new jet fighters for military use and establishing or breaking aviation speed records. This group includes personnel who, flying existing-type aircraft, helped to destroy the Luftwaffe in North Africa and Europe, and now also includes pilots who fought the Japanese in the Pacific. In the first simulated combat testing of these speedy fighters, their pilots had an opportunity to utilize their experiences in conventional type fighters in actual combat as well as many months of training in jets. The group, under the command of Colonel Gilbert L. Meyers, was used in the "softening" of San Clemente Island prior to the assault by amphibious forces. After the ground forces took the island, the jet fighters flew patrols over the San Clemente Island waters adjacent to Oceanside, California. Later the group engaged in close-support operations, strafing the beachhead in front of advancing infantry. When not supporting the ground forces, the jet fighters "went up stairs" to fly top fighter cover for bombing missions and aerial reconnaissance in the field.

supply flights. The fighter group left their home base at March Field, California, and set up advance operations at the El Centro Marine Air Base. Having to maintain their fighters away from home contributed valuable information on problems of supply and maintenance of these new type aircraft in the field. Observers Pleased AAF observers expressed complete satisfaction with the jet fighter as first-line equipment for the post-war Air Force. Until jet aircraft replaces all conventional types, the striking force of Shooting Stars will complement the latest models of North American P-51 Mustangs and Republic P-47 Thunderbolts still being flown by AAF pilots. Along with the jet fighters of Major General William D. Old's 12th Air Force, fast FP-80's of the 12th Photo Reconnaissance Squadron of the Ninth Air Force were attached to the 12th Air Force for the exercises. More than 95,000,000 vehicles have passed through the Holland tunnel, entering New York City, since its completion in 1927.

Miss Lola Lasseter Weds Sergeant James McIntosh

The wedding of Sgt. James E. McIntosh, of Fort Benning, to Miss Lola Frances Lasseter was solemnized in a beautiful double ring ceremony Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 15, at the Pastoral of the Rose Hill Baptist Church in Co. officiating.

Another attendant of the brides, Mrs. Elizabeth Lamb, was attired in a beige suit with white accessories, a white carnation corsage, and she carried a nosegay of dainty flowers.

AFI As Permanent Agency Is Urged

Emphasizing the continuing need for educational opportunity for service personnel, the retention of the U. S. Armed Forces Institute as a permanent War-Navy agency was urged at a quarter-meeting of the War-Navy Committee on the U. S. Armed Forces Institute held over the week-end at National Education Association headquarters, Washington, D. C.

According to Major Glenn L. McDonough, commandant of the Institute, headquarters of which is at Madison, Wis., there are approximately 200,000 current individual enrollments under the USAFI program. This figure approximates one out of seven men and women, now in the armed forces. In a supplemental report, Commander O. W. Geopner, Deputy Commandant pointed out that cumulative enrollments since the inception of the USAFI program in 1942 exceed 1,700,000.

Army Reveals Units Decorated By Allied Nations

Three outstanding Army Divisions, the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions and the 1st Infantry Division, were named by the War Department today as heading a list of American units which the governments of Belgium and the Netherlands have decorated for bravery in action against the German invader.

The 82nd Airborne Division was decorated by both the Netherlands and Belgium, and certain units to the 82nd have been decorated by France. The 101st Airborne Division and the 1st Infantry Division have been decorated by France and Belgium. The government of France also decorated some American units in World War I.

Display of Colors

The award of a Belgian citation to the 1st Infantry Division entitles the unit to display the colors of the Croix de Guerre as a streamer on its flag, standard or guidon. Individual wearing of the Croix de Guerre is not permitted unless the individual has been officially named in the citation.

When a unit has been awarded two citations for bravery in action, the governments of France or Belgium, by separate official decree, may award the Fourragere or shoulder cord to wear by members of the unit. Those men who went with the unit at the time of both actions for which it was cited may wear the Fourragere as a permanent part of their uniform. Those who joined the unit after one or both actions for which the Fourragere was awarded may wear the Fourragere only while serving with the unit.

Number of Citations

The colors of the French Fourragere indicate the number of times the unit has been cited. Two to three citations entitle the unit to eight citations entitle the unit to wear the colors of the Medaille Militaire, yellow and green; and seven to eight citations entitle the unit to wear the color of the Legion d'Honneur, which is red. The Fourragere is worn on the left shoulder. The Belgian Fourragere is red and green, predominantly red, and is worn on the right shoulder.

The Government of the Netherlands has cited two American Divisions for gallant action in the Netherlands, the 82nd and the 101st Airborne Divisions. This citation was awarded by the Minister of War of the Netherlands, entitles the units to wear the Orange Land. The cord is looped over the left shoulder, and the sash is placed in the pocket on the right side. The Queen of the Netherlands also awarded citations to the Willem's Orde to the Divisional Colors of the 82nd Airborne Division.

Can Wear Colors

The following units of the 1st Infantry Division are entitled to wear the French Fourragere in the colors of the Medaille Militaire, wearing four to five citations to the Order of the Army of the Netherlands, 18th Infantry Regiment, 26th Infantry Regiment, Field Artillery Battalion, Field Artillery Battalion, 1st Engineer Combat Battalion, and the Signal Company.

Arms Makers Endorse U. S. Preparedness

Leading manufacturers of military and civil small arms and ammunition have given unopposed backing to a continuing industrial preparedness program to keep the United States free from aggression.

Citing that the element of time was vital in maintaining the "flow" of mass production of the "finest small arms the world," the industrialists pledged their continued support to the U. S. Army Chief of Ordnance, Major General Everett S. Hughes.

Dr. C. K. Davis, President of Remington Arms Company, presided over a committee representing the leading manufacturers of small arms and ammunition who met in the offices of General Hughes under the sponsorship of the Civilian Army Ordnance Association.

Back Program

In backing the preparedness program, the arms men at the same time disavowed any desire to receive future Army contracts to the exclusion of government arsenals engaged in similar activity. "The arsenals definitely have a place in peacetime research and development," they said.

The industrialists unanimously agreed that it is necessary to keep the manufacturing machinery of the nation operating alive to save the nation repetition of almost insurmountable financial facing it at the beginning of the past war. At that time, one sporting arms manufacturer, who about 4,000 years old and older who had military experience in World War I, was in the command nucleus and later as instructor to younger men while company personnel was growing to more than 80,000.

The arsenals should have the primary job of research development in both product and processes, as well as in improvement of the necessary machinery, but should also perform a mass production job on the end-item, the Strategic Air Command, and Brigadier General Roger M. Ramey has moved up from Deputy to Commanding General of the Eighth Air Force, it was announced today by General George C. Kenney, Commanding General of Strategic Air Command.

The two moves were made after Major General St. Clair Streett, SAC deputy commander since his activation last March, received a new assignment with the War Department today.

The following units are entitled to wear the Belgian Fourragere, 1st Infantry Division, 2nd Infantry Division, 2nd Armored Division, 3rd Armored Division, 4th Infantry Division, 5th and 6th Engineer Special Brigades, 9th Infantry Division, 9th and 29th Air Force Commands, 36th Infantry Division, 82nd Airborne Division, 99th Infantry Division, 101st Airborne Division, and Antwerp X, AAF, Command.

Final Chapter In History Of '9th' Is Ended

Inactivation of the Ninth Infantry Division brings to a close the active service of one of the outstanding divisions of World War I.

With the inactivation of Headquarters, Headquarters Company, the Ninth Quartermaster, Signal, Ordnance and Military Police Companies and the Ninth Medical Battalion January 15 at Augsburg, Germany, the final chapter in a brilliant history was written in a special statement, General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces, said:

"Our feeling at the passing of a distinguished unit may well be tempered, however, by its units upon the brilliance of its record in World War I, in which its regiments added new glory to their World War I history. . . . World Return

"Should any future emergency confront our nation, so proud a division as the 9th would not be merely reactivated, it would be reincarnated, to fight again to even greater fame."

Sometimes referred to as "Hitler's Nemesis" during the fighting in Europe, the 9th Division made one of the most brilliant records of any division in World War I. The cessation of hostilities found the Ninth with battle credits for Tunisia, Sicily, Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe.

A regular Army division, the Ninth was first activated in 1918 and reactivated in 1940 at Fort Bragg under the command of General (then-Major General) Jacob L. Devers.

The division went into action November 8, 1942, when its units landed at Algiers, Saff, French Morocco and at Port Lyautey, Morocco. When hostilities ceased in that area, the 9th was given the job of guarding the Spanish Moroccan border, but it moved into action again in Tunisia in March, 1943. On May 7, it drove towards Bizerte, entering the city to meet up final resistance in Tunisia.

Its next combat assignment was in Sicily. It went into action August 9 and by August 12 had occupied Randazzo, keypoint of the enemy's last defense before Messina, and the final surrender of that area. The division was transferred to the United Kingdom in November of the same year, and immediately began preparations for the invasion of the continent.

Cut Off Peninsula

coast, crossing the Douve River, and cutting off the Cotentin Peninsula. With this job done, the division turned north toward Cherbourg, liberating the Cap de la Hague by July 1. For that month it spearheaded the St. Lo breakthrough and joined in the chase which closed the Falaise Gap. On September 2, 1944, the division became the first Allied force to begin the liberation of Belgium, entering the country near Mommignies. By September 15, it was in Germany south of Roetgen. During the German winter offensive, it relieved the 88th Division in the Manschaft Forest area, and in March the division became one of the first two units fighting in the Remagen Bridge area. The closing days of the war found the Ninth concentrating on the Ruhr pocket.

Preliminary figures show the 9th to be fourth among all divisions in the number of casualties — 22,685. In commending the Ninth Division, General Bradley remarked: "The American Army studied with splendid divisions, but rarely have two (1st and 9th) learned so expertly; never have two divisions fought longer and harder with greater skill or courage."

Biggest Land Plane Nearly Ready For Test

The Army Air Forces' XC-99, the world's largest land-based airplane, built by Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corporation, has been moved out into the experimental yard at the company's San Diego plant to permit installation of main landing gear and outer wing panels. None of the plant's buildings is high enough to house the giant plant with its landing gear in place.

The cargo version of Convair's B-36, which made its initial flight last August, the double-decked XC-99 spans 230 feet across the wings and 182 1/2 feet long. The tall structures stretch 7 1/2 feet into the sky. The plane will carry and tows 330,000 pounds, or 100,000 pounds of cargo. Like the B-36, it is powered by six Pratt-Whitcomb 3,000-horsepower, Pratt-Whitcomb engine, turbine 18-foot reversible pitch propellers.

The gross weight of the XC-99 is 260,000 pounds. The huge transport will have a maximum range with reduced loads, of more than 4,000 miles, and will be capable of speeds in excess of 300 m. p. h. Flights of this distance will require a major overhaul and installation. Initial flights of the XC-99 must await completion of this work and an extensive ground testing program.

A busy schedule lies ahead of the Doughboy basketball team in the coming week. Five games are scheduled, three of them at home.

Today the Benning hoopers go to Birmingham, Ala., where they will face the Birmingham Vulcans, a professional outfit reputed to be one of the best of the independent fives in the South.

Monday the Tallmen are on the road again, playing in Dawson, Ga., against the Lions Club team there.

Tuesday it's back at Benning again, for a contest with the YMCA cagers of Albany, Ga.

And Wednesday the Birmingham Vulcans cross the state lines to meet the Doughboys in an 8 p. m. game at the Main Post gym.

After this stretch the team will begin to get ready for the tournaments which will be starting up in February. The first will be the Seventh Army tourney, to be held at Fort Bragg, in the second week in February.

After that the Southeastern AAU and ABC events, both of which will take place in Atlanta.

The winner of the AAU tourney will go to Denver, Colo., to play in the Nationals there.

Oliver General 'Easy Pickings'

The Doughboys travelled to Augusta Monday night to score an easy 62-30 victory over Oliver General Hospital.

It was the twelfth triumph of the season for the Benning team, against only three losses. High scorer for the night was Bill Miller, with eleven points, followed by Taylor Baker with ten.

Coach Cedric Tallis used the game as a test for many of the men who have been sitting on the bench, sending in the entire squad to play.

The box score follows:

'Thermalites' Invite Model Fans To Meet

The School Troops Public Relations Office at Fort Benning and the "Thermalites", the model airplane builders of Columbus, Ga., extend an invitation to all who are interested in model airplanes to attend their first meeting, Sunday, February 2, at Deckers Strip, located in the Alabama area of Fort Benning. The game models will start flying at 10 a. m.

At least one hundred participants are expected from Fort Benning, Columbus, and other nearby localities.

The main contest of the day will be a gas-powered, control lined, speed contest. With the maximum speed of one hundred miles per hour and up are expected.

Exhibitions to all who are interested in model airplanes will be held throughout the day.

Prizes will be offered for each of the three classes for high speed, and also for the most detailed and scaled model in flight that day.

coincidence in all of the Dough's losses their opponent's score has been 49.

Sunday's game was decided by an ex-Doughboy, if that can provide any solace for Benning rooters. It was "Slip" Geris, who anchored the Doughboy line this fall and sparked the post five to the Georgia state championship last year. Playing a great game under the boards, from where he put in twenty points, "Slip" was the most valuable player on the floor, showing very little mercy to his ex-teammates.

The game was as exciting as the previous one, but the Doughboys did give the Rebels a scare with a third period rally that almost overtook the pros.

The sad statistics are:

25th Hoopsters Conquer Two In Row On Weekend

The 25th Infantry Regiment's basketball team turned on the heat during two contests played last week to defeat Atlanta College of Mortuary Science 60 to 26, Friday, and on Saturday night, outscored the vaunted Clark College 44 to 42 in a thrilling rip-snorting battle.

Both games took place in the Harmony Church Sports Arena.

Using every available man on his squad, coach Jones had an easy time of it during the game with the future morticians. The starting team of Skinner, Travis, Parker, Green, and Coxson set up a withering scoring and defensive attack to surpass their opponents in all departments of the game. 25th was leading 28 to 15 at the half.

Second Half
At the start of the second half, the entire second team started for the frontlines, with Burke, Griffey, Dunn, Griffey, Winchester, Graham and Gibson sparking 80 to 26 victory.

Clark College invaded Harmony Church Sports Arena with an impressive array of wins over Tuskegee, Xavier, Morris Brown, and Morehouse Colleges, having upset the S. I. A. C. group following an earlier in the season, 47 to 26 defeat by the 25th.

The setto, started off on a fast pace with the locals netting the first basket, and from there on first one club and then the other holding the lead momentarily. At half time, Clark in the second half the 25th mentor substituted Burke, Gibson, Dunn, Gibson, Griffey and Graham for his first team while Clark withdrew their starters for a fresh team, both coaches resting their stars for the final onslaught.

STC CHAMPIONSHIP BASKETBALL TROPHY—is awarded by Colonel Irvine C. Scudder, commanding officer of the Student Detachment in Captain Preston O. Gordon, commanding officer of 13th Co. STC, who represented its champion 13th Co. basketball team. 13th Co. went undefeated during the STC season in the trophy. Two 7th Co. stars, Garys Claude Anderson and Mark Foss, now play for the Beaming Doughboys. Anderson is the team's individual scoring leader.

Norman Skinner, 25th Cage Captain, Was Columbia Star

Captain and leading scorer for the 25th Infantry Regiment basketball team is Norman Skinner, one of the finest players to come out of New York City in the past ten years. During the 1944-45 season Norm was the city's leading scorer while he was starting for the Columbia University five.

He's been in the Army for seven-eleven months now and is waiting for an imminent discharge, so that he can get back to Columbia.

There isn't much that Skinner can't do on a basketball court, something he's demonstrating every time the Combaters play. He has an "eagle eye" that allows the game announcer to call his baskets before they're caged.

Plays Guard
Norm plays guard for Lt Jones' quietest, taking the ball down-court and setting up the plays. He throws bullet passes that are sometimes hard to hold, but which are often converted into scores.

The 25th cagers use a zone defense and Norm holds down the important spot under the basket. In league play the team has yet to be beaten, while it holds victories over Morris Brown College, Tuskegee, and Alabama State.

Against Morris Brown last Wednesday night Norman played a little more than half the game, and managed to score nineteen points. "It was like old times again," he said after the game. "Skinner is a master at making impossible shots, off his shoulder, around his neck—anyway, it always seems to go. It's no wonder he made the all-city five in high school (he played for Stuyvesant High in Manhattan and in college.

Norm is no slouch when it comes to studies either. He had been preparing for electronics at Columbia and plans to continue in that field on his return to school.

A basketball fan missing a good bet when he doesn't go up and see Norm play in the 25th's games at the Harmony Church Sports Arena, because you don't see much better.

However you had better hurry, because he may be gone soon. The same night the 25th beat Morris Brown, and Norm was scoring 18 Columbia U. was losing to Lafayette, 52-43. If the Lions' luck begins to change in the latter part of the season, you'll know the reason why.

Infantry Pin Team Champ

Final game in the school troops bowling tournament was run off tonight. The Infantry School Detachment's team came through with a decisive victory, collecting nine wins and remaining undefeated all the way through. In tournament play, LaRue came out with the highest individual average of 181. Close behind the ace kegger was Short and Burns with 164 averages each.

Standings for the end of the elimination tournament were: Infantry School Detachment won 9 and lost 4 Student Training Regiment won 8, lost 3; 756th Tankers won 5, lost 4 and the 204th Truckers won 1 and lost 8.

In regular season play the ISD team came near keeping a clean slate, winning 29 games and losing only a single game. The closing rival throughout the regular season was the Student Training Regiment but never a real competitor.

Bombers Win 1st Hoop Tilt

The "Bombers" of Sqdn. F won their first basketball game of the season last Friday night when they defeated the Carver Commercial High School by the score of 39-22. Although they have lost a number of key men through discharges the Bombers still seem to have plenty of good basketball talent, as the Friday night score shows.

The team is coached by S-Sgt. Tatie and Pfc. Fred Williams, who was the high scorer of the game with 10 points, is the captain.

The next game on the schedule for the Bombers is with Albany State College, which will be played at Albany on the 24th of January.

At some English airports, it is possible to hire an airtaxi at six cents a mile.

Sport Report

Much as we would like to have them, we don't feel that there was enough justification for the big stories in Atlanta and Columbus papers about the probability of Davis, Blanchard, and Tucker coming down to Fort Benning when they graduate and playing football for the Doughboys next fall.

The Columbus paper seems to have lost sight of the fact that General Devers has ordered the removal of the Basic Officers' Course from Fort Benning to Fort Riley. It was for this course that the West Point graduates came to Benning last year and Johnny Green and Johnny Sauer were thereby made available to the Doughboys' football team.

However, with that course switched to Fort Riley, there doesn't seem much hope for the Cadet graders playing in Doughboy Stadium, at least not next fall.

There is the possibility that once they have completed the course at Riley, they may be assigned to the infantry, and then they would be sent to Benning. Mention was also made in the Columbus paper that Glenn Davis is "one of the finest basketball forwards in the country." This, we think, is a bit exaggerated also. Glenn is a good hoop player, but not so extraordinary as that. In fact, this year he isn't even playing basketball, as he decided to go out for track instead, where he utilizes his speed as a sprint runner.

The Wyoming basketball team and its turbulent coach, Evr Shelton, finally arrived home at Laramie, Wyoming, where the board of trustees looked into the report of Shelton's alleged, anti-Semitic remarks on the night of the CCNY game in New York. The board decided that Shelton did not mean to be insulting, and absolved him of any blame.

At the same time it called for an investigation of Nat Holman, coach of the City College five, who gave Shelton a verbal going-over and almost became embroiled in a fist-fight. The Wyoming trustees said that Holman had been guilty of using vile and depraved language that could not be repeated anywhere.

The board's retort to CCNY's resolution never to play against Shelton-coached team was that it could arrange a satisfactory eastern schedule without CCNY.

Here, however, Wyoming has another guess coming. Akron brought its team to the Garden in New York a few years ago for a game with St. John's, and its players were guilty of insulting Jewish hoopsters who opposed them.

After that Akron has never appeared in the Garden again, and no team in the east will play them. It is certain that Wyoming will never again play in New York's Madison Square Garden, as all of the city's coaches included the CCNY resolution, and

Hoopsters Have Busy 2nd Week

The second week of School Troops basketball play saw a new team in action, when the 129th Engineers defeated the 83rd FA, 68 to 30, with Long and Janasiewicz of the 129th scoring 13 points each, and Viola of the 83rd FA with 14 points.

Also on Tuesday night the I. S. D. defeated the 76th Tankers by the score of 45 to 23, with Ellis of I. S. D. scoring 14 points while Coht of the Tankers had 8 points.

Thursday night the 501st Para. Bn. defeated 1st Bn. 37th Inf., 40 to 21. High point man was McCable of the 501st with 10 points while Beckett of the 37th had 7 points.

Friday night in a close game, the 204th TC beat Service Co., 37th Inf. 33 to 31. Kusch of Service Co. had 10 points and Cowley of the 204th had 22 points.

Airborne Students Of-Co. A Hailed As Outstanding Again

Company 'A' Airborne students have established a record of excellence by receiving a citation for being the outstanding company of The Airborne Regiment, for the fifth straight week.

Capt. Tomothy A. Moran, C.O. of Company 'A' attributes the fine example of leadership in airborne training, established by the students under his command, to the high standard of morale maintained by cadre officer and EM personnel.

An important morale boosting factor in maintaining the high 'esprit de corps' among Company 'A' personnel, is the practice of conducting a program of diversion for the students on off-duty hours. This recreational program includes colored lectures, orientations, and company parties.

Company 'A' students are in their sixth week of Airborne training, and are scheduled to make their first jump from a plane this week.

Reserve Unit Shaping Up Air Benning

Personnel of the 478th AAA Base Unit, designated the air reserve training unit for Muscogee and surrounding counties and presently in the process of cultivation at Lawson Field, began arriving Tuesday and have already set up administrative offices, officials today.

Lt. Col. Edmund Freeman, who has been appointed commanding officer of the reserve training unit, arrived last week-end, and Lt. Col. James Holt, Jr., 149th Air Force liaison officer, was scheduled to reach Lawson Field during the middle of the week. Eleven additional enlisted men arrived Tuesday, bringing to 13 the total number now on duty at the 478th. Full strength, according to officials, will be 38 enlisted men, four officers, and 17 civilian employees.

Few Pilots

The officers and enlisted men who compose the unit will put together the 4th Army Heavy Bombardment group, an inactive unit which, according to Colonel Freeman, would be a B-29 group if called to active duty. Colonel Freeman pointed out that a group is made up of 2500-3000 men, with only a fraction pilots. "This means," he said, "that this thing is for enlisted men in the Reserves, too."

Flying is scheduled to get underway in approximately four to six weeks. Colonel Freeman said that there would be no B-29 group at Lawson base because their presence would pose too great a maintenance job. It was announced that trips would be made to a B-29 base from time to time.

To Maintain Planes

"Maintenance will be one reservist job," Col. Freeman revealed, "and bombardiers and navigators will use the same planes they used in training."

"Pilots will receive a maximum of 80 hours a year flying time, ten of which will be night flying. There will also be cross-country and Link training."

All former AT-11 men in Muscogee county are eligible for the training, but it was pointed out that anybody within driving distance would also be eligible to take advantage of the opportunity to get in flying time.

One AT-11 type aircraft arrived at Lawson Field last Thursday, and the others will be sent as soon as they are made available, Colonel Freeman said. The aircraft to be used will include six AT-6s, two AT-11s, one AT-7, and one P-51.

RETAINS AT LEAVENWORTH

Command, Staff College Placed Under Hq. AGF

The War Department announced last week that it has transferred the Command and Staff College, at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to the Army Ground Forces.

The transfer, made for the sake of economy and closer coordination, now is being carried out. Little or no change in the operation of school is anticipated as a result of the official transfer, since it is merely another step in the reorganization of the War Department. The college had been directly under the War Department, and its passing to the control of the Army Ground Forces has the effect of further decentralization of War Department activities. Operation of the college now will be directed by General Jacob L. Devers, the AGF commander, with headquarters at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

FORT BENNING'S MARCH OF DIMES GIRL—Little three-year-old Sheila Patricia Graham, victim of infantile paralysis since birth, will be assisted in her fight for health by members of the Block 12 NCO Club next Saturday night when proceeds of their "March of Dimes Dance" will go toward purchasing a "walker" for her. Sheila is the daughter of Mr. Clifford Graham, a civilian employee of the Post Ordnance shops.

POST DONATES $800 TO MARCH OF DIMES

(Related story, Page 10)

More than $800 have already been donated by Benningites to the March of Dimes campaign at Fort Benning and the fund-raising drive is coming along satisfactorily, it was announced today by Lt. Col. Walden J. Alexander, Fort Benning chairman.

The $810 have been contributed by Morris, manager of the Main theater. "Last year only $598 were contributed during the entire campaign, but it is obvious that this year's contributions will exceed that amount," Sgt. Morris said. The theater campaign, known as the Parade of States, will continue over the weekend.

A March of Dimes dance will be sponsored Saturday night by the Block 12 NCO club, an NCO club spokesman announced today. Proceeds from the dance will be used to purchase a walker for Sheila Patricia Graham, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Graham, of Baker Village, who has been a victim of infantile paralysis since birth.

The Fort Benning drive for funds to continue the fight against the dread polio disease will continue.

500 25th CT Personnel Train For Nippon Duty

Group's Departure To Join 24th Infantry Due Early In February

More than 500 officers and enlisted men, presently assigned to the 25th Combat Team (Provisional) at Fort Benning, have been selected to train for occupation duty in Japan with the 25th Infantry division's 24th Infantry regiment, military officials announced today.

New Man Joins Red Cross Staff

Charles P. Parker, Halifax, West Virginia, has been transferred from the field director's office, American Red Cross, at Fort McClellan, Alabama, to the staff of the field director, American Red Cross, at Fort Benning.

Mr. Parker was born in Halifax, West Virginia, in 1911 and received his A. B. degree from the University of Virginia at Richmond in 1932. Immediately following he joined the teaching staff of the school system at Catwaba in Halifax, West Virginia. For eighteen months he was County Agent in the Agricultural Department of his home county. Just before joining the Red Cross, Mr. Parker was Director of Religious Education of the Public School System of Halifax, West Virginia.

Shortly after December 7, 1941, Mr. Parker volunteered for service with the American Red Cross and entered the Red Cross service in March, 1942. On completing his training, he was assigned as Assistant Field Director at Camp Shelby, Miss., and from there to the Hattiesburg Army Air Field. Mr. Parker was promoted to the position of Training Supervisor and transferred to Fort McClellan, in the capacity as Training Supervisor he had the direct training of scores of Red Cross men who, on completing their training in Washington were sent to the field for special field training. Mr. Parker is married and has two children. He will make his home in Benning Park. Mr. Parker is replacing Mr. David Jackson Cooper in charge of the Red Cross Office in the Benning School. Mr. Cooper, retiring from Red Cross service January 31.

Charleston Receives Photography Award

Philip Charleston, former Army corporal and photographer for the Fort Benning Signal Corps photo lab, won second prize in the February Popular Photography magazine contest for amateur photographers, it was revealed today.

The Negro group, which is slated to leave Fort Benning for a San Francisco port of embarkation early in February, is composed of 536 enlisted men and 200 officers. They were carefully selected and screened from the provisional combat team, officials said. The training has actually been under way for the past several weeks, according to the announcement.

Joseph Sandlin has been appointed provisional commanding officer with Maj. C. W. Fackler serving as provisional executive officer. The two officers are responsible for the training program.

According to Maj. Patten, some troops have been selected from personnel already on duty in Japan.

The 24th Regiment will replace the Fourth Regiment, a white unit of the 25th Division. Although Negro units of company of platoon strength were integrated with white troops in the First Division in combat during the European war, this will be the first time that integration of Negro combat units with white troops has been followed.

USMA Tightens Entrance Needs

Toughening up its requirements for admission to West Point, the War Department has announced a stricter physical examination for those applying to the Academy.

All candidates, "regardless of the type of appointment held," will be given a new test, which lasts for an hour.

A future West Pointer will have to be a super track man to get by the mile run, the Army officials taking the next test on March 4 will find out. Here are some of the requirements they will have to meet:

- Standing broad jump—6 feet 9 inches
- Standing start jump for distance (standing start with three successive jumps) — 20 1-2 feet
- 300-yard run (indoor track, eleven laps to the mile)—46.7 seconds
- 100-yard run (shuttle on gym floor between two turning blocks, twenty-five yard apart)—18.9 seconds
- 50-yard run (also a shuttle)—8.7 seconds
- 100-yard pick-up race (carry a large ball within ten pounds of one's own weight, shutting around 27 stakes two-and-a-half yards apart)—27 seconds.

Fill Plan Gets Wide Notice

More and more interest is being shown in the sanitary fill process now employed by Fort Benning's engineers to dispose of refuse and in the reclamation of health departments throughout the United States as well as from South America, Poland and Greece.

Under the supervision of J. I. Humphries, chief engineer of sewage treatment at Fort Benning, the engineers have developed a method of refuse disposal which has attracted visitors from public health departments throughout the United States as well as from South America, Poland and Greece.

Uses Trench

The sanitary fill process utilizes the trench method of disposal. According to H. E. Necht, superintendent of utility plants on the post, a eight foot deep, ten foot wide ditch is dug with the excavated dirt placed to one side to form a ramp. Trucks bearing the refuse back up to the ramp and the garbage, ashes, rubbish, or trash is dumped in the trench. A bulldozer is then employed to pack the refuse into a compact layer. The trench is covered with dirt excavated from another trench parallel to the disposal ditch. This dirt is packed over the refuse to a minimum of two feet.

From time to time bulldozers run over the disposal trench to insure that the two foot covering of dirt is compact. This method usually requires only a two-foot covering of soil, but, according to Necht, a larger amount is sometimes necessary.

Aids Reclamation

This same method of sanitary fill has also proved beneficial in land reclamation at Fort Benning. The dirt is packed so thickly to be completely useless because of improper drainage have been reclaimed. Mr. Necht said that Army engineers are working on an area behind the Main Officers' Club. Other areas previously reclaimed by post engineers include the land surrounding the paratroop towers and the section behind the salvage yard. These areas are kept packed down by rimping trucks over the reclaimed land.

NOTICE

The Alabama Recreation Area is open throughout the week for all post personnel. On Tuesdays there is a weekly dance, and a skating rink, an archery course, and beer parties are available at all times.

Buses leave from the Air Force area every half hour.

MAJOR ROYAL R. TAYLOR—Returns to command 501st Parachute Battalion in which he once served as enlisted member.

WAS PRIVATE IN SAME UNIT

Former EM Returns As Commander Of 501st Bn.

Major Royal R. Taylor, former parachuting enlisted member of the original 501st "Geronimo" Parachute Infantry Battalion of early 1940 has returned to command its recently activated counterpart, replacing Capt. Magnus L. Smith, who will assume duties as 501st Executive Officer.

Nearly seven years of Major Taylor's Army service have been spent in the airborne command. Originally assigned to the famous 29th Infantry, Fort Benning, he was selected from that unit with the first group of 40 enlisted volunteers to activate the Parachute Test Platoon.

'Geronimo' Chartist

When the tremendous value of the infant parachute unit was established beyond doubt, through the efforts of the indomitable members of the Test Platoon, the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion was activated. Major Taylor then became a charter member of the famous "Geronimo" battalion. Later, he was transferred to assist in the activation of the 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment.

Well on his way toward 50 parachute jumps, the major recalls his regret upon leaving his 503 EM pals to attend OCS in July 1942. After graduating class honor student three months later, he was assigned to the 508 Parachute Infantry Regiment, and with this unit participated in combat overseas through Norway, Holland, the bloody Belgian Bulge, and the occupation of Germany.

Twice decorated for gallantry in action, and awarded the Purple Heart Medal, Major Taylor remained with the 508 until the unit was returned to the United States. Shortly after its deactivation, in November, 1946, he enjoyed a 45 day terminal leave before returning to Fort Benning for duties with the Airborne Section of the Greatness Unit.

Now that Major Taylor has returned to command the unit in which he once served as an enlisted member, he finds that its old greatness has not dimmed in his over five years absence. "The men are the same type of select soldiers who made up the personnel of the old 'Geronimo' Battalion," he stated. "The type soldier any officer would be proud to command."

Both Major and his wife Edna, natives of Doerun, Georgia, are maintaining a temporary home in Columbus while awaiting a vacancy on the post.

The long-billed curlew has a beak seven inches long.

4 Army Schools Are Established At Carlisle Bks.

Four Army service schools will be centered at historic Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, beginning February 1 when the Chaplains' School starts classes there, it was announced today by the War Department.

The Chaplains' School is being moved to Carlisle Barracks from there had Norwich, Georgia. The Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. The Adjutant General's School moved there last November and the Provost Marshal's School was transferred early in January from Camp Bullis, near San Antonio, Texas. The curricula of these schools are supervised by the chiefs of the respective administrative services.

The Army Information School, which trains public relations and information and education personnel, has been at Carlisle Barracks for a year. Its courses are under supervision of Lieutenant General L. Lawrence China, War Department Chief of Public Information.

Carlisle Barracks housed the States history, the School for Artillery, established in 1777. The post itself was established by the British in 1752, at the time of the French and Indian Wars. It served as a supply depot during the American Revolution, and as an infantry and artillery post in the War of 1812. It was burned by the Confederates in the War Between the States and in 1867 became a school for veterinarians. The barracks passed from the War Department to the Interior Department in 1879, and the famous Carlisle Indian Industrial School was established there. It returned to the War Department in 1918. It was converted into a hospital and housed the Army Medical Field Service School until World War II.

The 25-acre reservation is only three hours by automobile from Washington. Centralization of the schools there was decided upon by the War Department in the interests of economy and efficiency.

Four AAF P-80's Fly 752 Miles Over Water

Four Army Air Forces jet-propelled Lockheed P-80 Shooting Stars of the 13th Air Force have completed the world's first long-over-water jet flight from Laog, on the northern tip of Luzon, Philippine Islands, to Okinawa, a distance of 752 miles.

Landing in perfect formation, the planes reached Yontan Airfield at 1:41 p. m. (Philippine time), an hour and 41 minutes after taking off from Laog.

In a silver P-80 with red-tipped tanks and nose, Colonel Homer A. Boushed, of San Francisco, California, landed first. The other planes followed at 10-second intervals. Colonel Boushed, commanding officer of the 18th Fighter Group at Florida Blanca Airfield, Luzon, is a pioneer in jet plane development.

In addition to setting an over-water record, the flight was outstanding from a navigational viewpoint, as none of the planes carried radar navigational devices or "radio" compasses. The pilots reached their objective entirely by dead reckoning until they came within distance of VIFF radio homing devices of the Okinawa control center a few minutes before landing. The planes had only 20 minutes of fuel left in their tanks when they landed. If they had miscalculated, they probably would have had to bail out for there were no emergency landing fields within range.

Colonel Boushed reported encountering dense cloud cover from the first navigational check-point 175 miles out of Laog, almost all the way to Okinawa, making it impossible to get expected visual fixes from tiny islands along their path. Once arriving over Okinawa, the four jets circled for several minutes before they found an opening in the overcast. When they appeared below the 3,000-foot ceiling, they were in perfect formation.

TALENT SCOUTS SCAN ARMY FOR 1948 OLYMPICS

Seventh Army headquarters has directed all installation commanders to be on the lookout for possible candidates in the Olympic Games, which will be held in London in 1948.

Commanders are asked to initiate programs to encourage individuals and teams which are potential Olympic material, and to report to the Atlanta headquarters the name, rank, serial number, and organization of all personnel who may qualify.

Capt. William Fannin, of the post Athletic and Recreation office, acknowledged receipt of the directive, and said that he was keeping his eyes open. He said that he could obtain a better line on possible budding competitors when the Seventh Army track and field meet is held here in May.

Leavenworth

(Begins on Page 1) Regular courses were resumed in September. One three-month associate course designed for qualified officers of the civilian components will begin each January, and extension courses will be re-established by September.

Students for both regular and extension courses will be chosen from the Regular Army, Organized Reserve Corps, National Guard and Army of the United States. Selected from the highest rated officers eligible, they must have at least seven years of commission, including service in civilian components, and must be less than 41 years old and physically qualified for general service.

The purpose of the regular course is to prepare officers for commanding divisions, corps and staffs of divisions, corps and armies and comparable levels in the communications zones, and for duty on theater, zone of interior and War Department General Staff levels in the staff functions of personnel, intelligence, operations or supply—in which they specialize at the College. The associate course will be similar in scope to the regular course but will be condensed in order that officers of the civilian occupations for the duration of the regular course.

Post Donates

(Begins on Page 1) continue over the January 31 payday in order to allow all personnel an added opportunity to contribute to this worthy cause, Col. Alexander pointed out.

Seventh grade pupils at the Fort Benning children's school are sponsoring their own campaign, Miss Annie Lee Grimes, principal, announced today. Posters are to have been placed in all classrooms and response has been good, Miss Grimes said.

Publicity, in addition to posters scattered over the reservation, includes the showing of two films to troops depicting the light against polio, Col. Alexander urged. Campaigning is being urged on all Fort Benning personnel, both military and civilian, to contribute as much as possible.

Sterptomycin No 'Sure Shot,' Halloran Clinical Reports Say

Sterptomycin is not a "sure shot" medicine.

The new anti-infection agent in the same general class as penicillin appears effective in appropriate doses against more than half the infective bacterial organisms ordinarily encountered by surgeons.

On the other hand, it apparently has specific poisonous effects when given over an extended period, and bacteria soon become resistant to it so that it probably can be used only once with maximum effect within a limited period on the same patient.

Such is the report to the Surgeon General's office from the Halloran General Hospital where clinical reports of the use of the drug throughout the Army have been submitted and evaluated.

Still Scarce

The drug became available only late in the war and is still scarce and expensive.

Army experience with the drug is probably the most extensive to date due to the ability to compile and follow results. Outside the service, because of limited opportunity to observe results in large numbers, there have been varied, and sometimes quite exaggerated, reports on its value and it often is referred to popularly as a "miracle drug." From the first, careful observations of its effects have been carried out by Army doctors by orders of the Surgeon General, and these are being continued. The findings to date are summarized in the Army Medical Bulletin of November, 1946.

The observation of the ability of bacteria to develop resistance to the drug after a few days may be of particular importance at this time. The same has been noted in respect to both the sulfa drugs and penicillin, but apparently the phenomenon is more pronounced with streptomycin. In at least one case, test tube experiments showed, there was a 100-fold increase of the resistance of an organism in ten days. Given indiscriminately, the drug may lose any value for a particular type of infection in an individual for the rest of his life. Improper use may cause variation and selection in disease agents so that streptomycin is no longer effective for the infection where it is of greatest value at the present time.

In Two Classes

Bacteria, on the basis of certain chemical reactions, ordinarily are divided into two classes—gram positive and gram negative. The new drug, in test tube experiments, seems effective in varying concentrations, against 60 per cent gram positive and 80 per cent gram negative organisms ordinarily encountered in surgery.

Of paramount importance, in determining whether a specific micro-organism is susceptible to the drug before it is administered by mouth, by injection or direct application.

The Army experience bears out previous claims that streptomycin is of especial value in clearing up infections of the urinary tract, provided that the organisms causing the infections are susceptible ones. If the treatment is not entirely effective in three days, ordinarily no good results can be expected from its continuation. In general, the drug, which has proved resistant to both sulfadiazine and penicillin outstanding results have been obtained.

Use in Army hospitals gives no support to claims that the drug is of value in infections of the prostate. The drug is not concentrated in that organ.

Little Value

It was found to have very little value against bone infections except when used in conjunction with surgery where there could be direct application.

This far streptomycin has not given dramatic results in peritonitis but its continued use as an auxiliary treatment seems justified.

In various dysenteries due to susceptible bacteria considerable benefit has been noted, sometimes when the drug is given by mouth alone.

In septicemia — still provided that the organism responsible for the infection is susceptible — streptomycin has proved very effective, but it is still essential that unabsorbable foci of infection be removed by surgery.

The substance has little value, so far as its specific activities goes, against typhoid fever and it is apparently of no use in controlling carriage of the disease.

Clinical Arrests

In undulant fever there have been apparent clinical arrests of the infection from the combined use of streptomycin and sulfadiazine after each drug given alone had failed. Further study will be required, however, before any valid conclusions can be reached.

It is very effective against tularemia, or rabbit fever, provided the specific organism responsible has been demonstrated in test tube experiments to be susceptible to the drug.

Up to date experience with only a few cases of meningitis have been reported and the results, in conjunction with other treatments, have been quite good. The Army doctors found, however, that it must be given by injection into the space between the thick membranes surrounding the brain and spinal cord and the brain or spinal cord tissue. Circulating in the blood stream, it cannot pass this barrier to reach the existing organisms.

Excellent Results

Excellent results have been obtained with direct application of the drug to infections of the external ear, the nasal cavity and the brain. Injections elsewhere will not reach local foci of infection in sufficient concentration to be effective.

One of the hopes of the medical profession has been that streptomycin would prove of some value against tuberculosis. The Army experience, neither confirm nor refutes this since a much longer series of investigations will be required before there can be any valid conclusions.

Balances against the demonstrated value of streptomycin in suitable cases are some apparently toxic effects. Some of these are probably due to impurities in the drug but others seem to be specific for the drug itself. The most serious of these is what seems to be an irreversible damage to part of the eighth cranial nerve which appears when streptomycin is given in large doses by injection for more than ten days. This means that one's sense of balance may be disturbed for a long time, with possible attacks of dizziness and nausea. This was found in two Army cases. A third patient showed partial deafness, indicating that there had been a poisonous effect on the other portion of the eighth cranial nerve, which is the path of hearing. Toxic effects also were noted on the kidneys. All this demonstrated that the drug should be given only by physicians, and then only after careful consideration of the organisms involved and the safe dosage.

Press, Radio Visit Arctic Task Forces

More than 20 representatives of news photo services, press associations, news-reels, newspapers, news magazines and radio networks left Washington by plane Sunday January 19 for Alaska and the Aleutian Islands where they will observe the activities of Army Ground Forces and Army Air Forces task forces engaged in winter, cold and wet weather testing operations.

The first leg of the journey will take the party to Great Falls, Montana, arriving at this aerial port of embarkation about 8:00 p. m. Sunday. The group will stay overnight at Great Falls where they will receive additional briefing and orientation and will be issued heavy winter clothing needed to protect them from the sub-zero Alaskan temperatures.

Departing Great Falls on January 20 for Fairbanks the party will make a luncheon stop at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, arriving at Fairbanks after a flight of approximately 12 hours duration.

At Fairbanks the group will observe the winter testing activities of ACF Task Force "Fright," and the AAF Cold Weather Testing Force at Ladd Field.

Here the observers will witness the testing of weapons, tanks, vehicles, clothing and other materiel in the extremes of cold weather temperatures, since the thermometer frequently dips to 50 to 60 degrees below zero during the month of January. The Army Ground Forces testing force at Fairbanks is testing its equipment and supplies in this cold weather in various tactical exercises to gain first-hand knowledge of changes that must be made to enable a fighting force to be effectively employed in such temperatures.

Information Centers Set Up in U. S. Zones

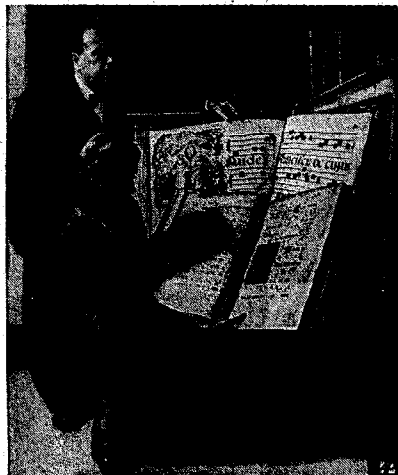

Forty-nine United States Information Centers have been established in areas administered by American Military Government to revive the free interchange of cultural, scientific, and educational information in the former enemy countries, the Civil Affairs Division of the War Department announced today.

These centers, as well as providing library facilities for the local population will be used as channels for distributing books, pamphlets, and periodicals for aid to designated individuals and institutions in the areas served by them.

Twenty centers have been established in the U. S. Zone in Germany, 17 in Japan, seven in Korea, four in Austria, and one served jointly by the British and U. S. Military governments, in Trieste.

To each of these 49 centers an identical collection of approximately 3,000 to 5,000 titles (insofar as present depleted book stocks can provide 49 copies of the titles selected) and 300 current periodicals will be sent during the year. These basic collections are to be extensively supplemented by special collections for centers having special areas of interest.

AAF 'Climatic Hangar' Nearly Finished At Eglin

The Army Air Forces' Climatic Hangar is nearing completion at Eglin Field, Fla., home of the AAF's Proving Ground Command. The hangar, which can simulate extreme weather conditions, was developed by the AAF to meet the need for a central testing site where new aircraft and equipment might be subjected to climatic conditions which might be encountered in operational use. To meet AAF specifications, aircraft and equipment must operate satisfactorily in temperatures ranging from minus 65 degrees Fahrenheit to plus 160 degrees Fahrenheit. The hangar will enable climatic testing to be carried on continually, thus eliminating the loss of time in waiting for proper weather conditions for field testing.

$2,500,000 Cable Feet
The hangar, in itself, is 250 wide by 200 feet long, with ceiling heights varying from 38 1/2 feet at the sides to 70 feet at the center. The volume is approximately 2,500,000 cubic feet. In addition, there will be a main test room 133 feet by 30 feet, which is 45 feet high.

Special construction features have been incorporated to insure operation under extreme temperature and weather conditions, such as floor and ceiling insulation and a duct system to take engine exhaust gases out of the hangar.

In the hangar and test room controllable temperatures between minus 70 degrees Fahrenheit and plus 165 degrees can be produced and maintained at any time. Provisions have also been made for simulated wind storms of velocities up to 100 miles per hour in combination with sleet, snow, rain and sand. In addition, artificial sunlight equivalent to noon-day desert sun can be simulated.

Completely assembled aircraft can be tested within the hangar. In the rear wall of the hangar five gun ports have been constructed at different elevations to allow testing of armament within the hangar. In the floor of the hangar is a bomb-dropping pit which will permit dropping of dummy bombs for testing of bomb racks and release mechanism.

Jungle Test Room
Other features of the hangar included a jungle test room, a tropical marine test room and a desert test room; a strato-chamber which can produce pressures and temperatures corresponding to those encountered at an altitude of 80,000 feet, and a jet engine air unit, which can supply up to 163,000 cubic feet of air per minute for jet intake. Observation rooms are located high up on both sides of the hangar, which will permit test personnel to observe tests in progress through non-freezing glass windows. In addition, there will be wheeled observation rooms within the hangar. Test personnel may work outside of these observation chambers by means of a specially designed air conditioned suit.

No date has been set for the opening of the hangar, although it should be in operation by summer of this year.

Ex-Coast Guard, 3 Former Navy Men Now 'OC's

Company 12, Student Training Regiment, reports that among its candidates in Army Officer Course Class No. 2 are three former U. S. Navy men and one U. S. Coast Guard Reserve man. All these men had active Naval service before enlisting in the Regular Army.

Candidate F. A. Campbell, former seaman first class, offers probably the most colorful experiences. He has almost four years of Navy service to his credit, most of this time being spent on destroyers operating in the Asiatic-Pacific theater.

With Carriers
His ship, the USS Aylwin, was with the famed carriers, Lexington and Yorktown, when they were sunk, and within 20 miles of the Franklin when she exploded. The Aylwin also boasts of being the first U. S. ship to Tokyo Bay after hostilities with Japan were declared ended. Candidate Campbell has endured four typhoons and estimates he traveled three hundred thousand miles in his Navy career.

Candidate R. R. Dishar, former chief boatswain, served 22 months with the U. S. Coast Guard Reserve.

During his tour of service he was connected with counter-intelligence activities in San Francisco, Calif.

Many times he was posted on the water fronts, piers, and docks disguised as a civilian dock employee. His main duty was to check the loading and handling of ammunition.

There are two other candidates of 12th Company who have U. S. Navy service. They are Candidate E. S. Brooks and Candidate Lee Stolifus. Candidate Brooks has two years and seven months. Most of his duty was in the states with the exception of one cruise to the Philippine Islands. Candidate Stolifus has 20 months to his credit. He made one cruise to the South Pacific where his ship was hit, thus having to return to the states for repairs.

All these men are now in their fifth week of training.

Curtain Falls On European Camp Shows

It was curtains for USO-Camp Shows in the ETO January 21 when 221 USO artists arrived in New York harbor. This was the last group of performers left in the theater. The players were divided into 14 companies and during the last six months they played five nights a week before a total of more than 50,000 GIs stationed throughout Europe.

Supported by contributions from American communities interested in entertainment for their men overseas, USO-Camp Shows activities in World War II embraced 42 countries and to an inestimable degree accelerated esprit de corps of American troops in the Theaters of War.

In the European Theater during 1945 alone, 83,353,000 soldiers attended 178,000 performances by USO performers among them nearly half of Hollywood's top-ranking stars. The over-all attendance figure for USO performances in all theaters on those of any single entertainment organization except motion pictures.

USO-Camp Shows will continue to play in the Pacific Theater for an indefinite period, and a number of hospital units will continue to provide Army and Veterans hospitals with first class shows. Their work in the European Theater is being replaced by soldier shows directed by civilian actress technicians, civilian employees of Army Special Services, and by entertainment indigenous to urban centers of Europe where troops are stationed.

Air Force Equips Polar Expedition

The Finn Ronne Antarctic expedition, which has left Beaumont, Texas, on the first leg of the trip to the South Polar region, will use approximately a quarter of a million dollars worth of specialized equipment which has been furnished to the Ronne group by the Army Air Force.

In return, the AAF will receive a complete report of the cold weather testing of the equipment as well as restating the most-up-to-date charts, maps and scientific data compiled by the small group of scientists and explorers headed by Finn Ronne.

The equipment is being given to the expedition by authority of War Department directive which permits the gift, or loan of such non-essential items to scientific groups engaged in research work. The Ronne group has agreed to return all equipment which is not expected or damaged, upon its return to the United States.

AAF equipment (which has been obtained from its own stocks and from other Army agencies) being used by the Ronne expedition includes three light aircraft; a Beechcraft C-45 Expeditor, a Northrop U-61 Norseman, and a Consolidated L-3 Sentinel. Other items include photographic equipment, cameras and portable (darkrooms) reuse and survival equipment, cold weather clothing, tentage, trail equipment (skis, mountain climbing equipment, sleds, etc.) and the new "E" rations.

The material will receive a complete testing in the south polar region and a report will be made by Finn Ronne to the Air Materiel command, Wright Field, Ohio, upon his expedition's return to the United States.

Two Local Men At Overseas Depot

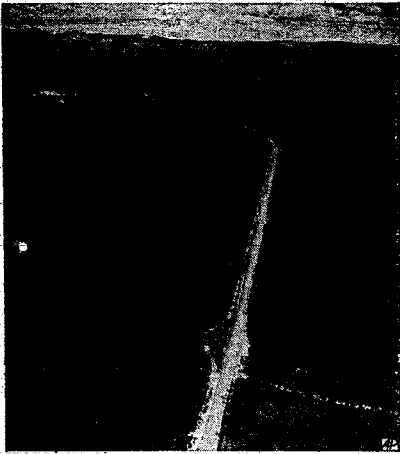

T/Sgt. Bernard J. Silver, 2834 Brooklawn road, Columbus, and T/Sgt. Owen E. Watkins, of Phenix City, were among eight non-commissioned officers from Lawton Field who were transferred to the AAF Overseas Replacement Depot in Hamilton Field, Calif., last week, according to base officials.

The men will spend 17-day furloughs at their homes prior to reporting to the ORD the early part of next month.

In addition to the local men the group of non-coms included: 1st Sgt. Wendell Graham, Paducah, Ky., Charles C. Heibel, Galesburg, Ill., T/Sgt. Henry D. Cone, Chicknee, Ga., James H. Archet, Mountain Grove, Mo., Albert J. Rose, Sedalia, Mo., and Ross E. Pitts, Garfield, Ark.

Area Hospital Serves Thousands

Modern Plant, Skilled Staff Available To Ill

THIS SOLDIER'S BROKEN LEG is covered with a cast of plaster in the hospital cast room by technicians Mc. Blair A. Faulson and Fvt. Charles C. Hadley.

Inside the spotless white walls of a sodate four-storied stone structure on Ballzell avenue thousands of men, women, and children come yearly for treatment of injuries, disease, and operations, knowing that they will receive the best and most modern treatment that medical science can provide. That building is the Fort Benning Army Area Regional hospital.

To look at the hospital plant, located in a tree-surrounded area of breathtaking beauty, the average passer-by would never imagine the extent of bustling activity that goes on within those walls. Ladies with the lamp move noiselessly in and out among those seriously ill, white-coated men of the medical profession diagnose their ailments and suggest treatment. At the same time ward boys help to feed those unable to feed themselves and bathe their sick bodies with knowing hand.

Technical Services

These nurses, doctors, and ward boys, however, are not the only ones who take care of the sick and wounded. Equally helpful in the continuous fight against disease is the chemistry department with its geometric apparatus and spectro photometer. These two pieces of intricate medical analysis equipment analyze rodents in the blood b gas-valence or reveal prevalence of blood sugar or hemoglobin, two extremely important in diagnosis.

For the most beneficial method of treatment. Closely connected with the chemistry department is the bacteriology section which, through the use of powerful microscopes, analyzes cultures of various body organisms in an effort to detect germs causing disease. The basement of Fort Benning's well-equipped hospital houses the complete X-ray department with its dark room, control room, chest X-ray and body X-ray machines. Here patients come to have pictures taken of broken bones, their chests, stomachs, and other parts of the body which are not visible to the eye. A few doors away from the X-ray department is the cast room with its raised platforms where patients with broken bones are placed to have plaster of Paris cemented over the mangled parts of their bodies. These little-discussed departments of Fort Benning's hospital are just as important in the over-all pattern of mercy missions as the emergency operating room or life-saving drugs.

Occupational Therapy

Over to the wooden annexes a walking patient is sent for rehabilitation. In the occupational therapy ward, men whose muscles need exercising may work on leather craft or wood work to flex their finger muscles. They may operate one of the printing machines for their shoulder muscles, or another printing machine to exercise their feet muscles. There are lathes, saws, looms for weaving, clay for molding, carving equipment, or ropes for tying knots. These are only a few of the many crafts which may be utilized under the supervision of a registered occupational therapist.

Down the corridor from the OT ward is the physiotherapy department. Patients go there immediately after the cast has been removed. The whirlpools filled with swirling warm water relax their cooped up or strained muscles; the foot weights in the gym help them to regain control of their feet; and the heat lamps relax their strained back and shoulder muscles.

The physical therapy department provides supervised exercise for patients while still in cast. Designed to keep circulation at a maximum, patients go there for callisthenics or for a workout on the oars, horizontal bars, weight pullers, punching bags, or stall bars.

Has Own Farm

The Fort Benning hospital, which is complete in every detail, also boasts a farm. Located about two city blocks from Ballzell avenue, the hospital farm furnishes almost all the foodstuffs for the hospital kitchens. Scattered over its more than eight acres are vegetable gardens where potatoes, turnips, beans, tomatoes, corn, cabbage and many other green foods thrive in the fertile soil. The chicken brooders are filled with thousands of hens and layers, while a few turkeys forlornly peck at the gravel in one section of the large chicken yard. A wire-enclosed artificial lake across the road from the chicken area is the home of more than 200 ducks. Nearby may be heard the suckling noises of 17 satisfied hogs and wild pigs. The dog kennels house 13 hunting dogs which are used to supply the hospital kitchens with wild game, while two mules augment power equipment used in planting seeds for next year's garden.

Commanded by Col. Robert B. Hill, Fort Benning's Army Area Regional hospital is one of the nation's finest.

BEAUTIFUL BUT NOT DUMB are these two Kilgore peers through her microscope, while Caroline Puckett prepares a smear for testing. Mary

TOM THORNELL, civilian X-ray technician, prepares to take pictures of Pfc. Clarence Dolson's middle region.

THESE TWO PATIENTS prove the worth of the occupational therapy ward at the Fort Benning Hospital. Pfc. Harold O. Leavitt is about to complete a leather wallet, and Fvt. Herbert E. Marquis files the rough edges off a piece of wood which will be placed on the nearly completed lamp base at right.

'GEE, THAT FEELS GOOD' is what Pvt. Jimmy Frederick seems to be thinking as he watches the swirling warm water splash over his strained leg. 'March Of Dimes' Dance To Aid Post Polio Victim

 Highlighting the social scene at Fort Benning Saturday night will be the "March of Dimes Dance" sponsored by members of Block 12 NCO Club. Bulk of the proceeds from the dance will go toward the purchase of a "walker" for little three-year-old Sheila Patricia Graham, a victim of specific paralysis since birth and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Grimes, Baker Village.

According to a spokesman of the Block 12 club, nothing has been spared to make the dance Saturday night one of the best of the season. It will be held at the clubhouse located in the old Area Engineer Building across from the Post Gymnasium. Music will be furnished by the "Swingmasters" from Columbus. The dance, which will get underway at 8 o'clock and continue until midnight, will be open to all club members and their guests.

Crippled since birth, Sheila has been unable to play with other children her own age. She now wears braces which were fitted at the Warm Springs Foundation. The braces permit her to walk to a limited extent provided she is able to hold onto something. Members of Block 12 NCO Club decided to go all out to assist Sheila regain the use of her legs. Present plans call for the purchase of a "walker" especially designed to assist polio victims in their effort to walk.

 In the event the purchase of a "walker" is not immediately possible, complete plans for the construction of the device have already been obtained and the services of an expert craftsman will be engaged in order to build one with the least possible delay. The club also plans to help Sheila in other ways than with the "walker".

A certain percent of the funds from the dance Saturday night will be given to the Post March of Dimes Fund, club officials stated.

An informal dinner-dance will mark the re-opening of the newly decorated and remodeled NCO club at Lawson Field next Saturday night.

The club rooms were completely rearranged and one of the features added to the main lounge is an unpriced bar stand equipped to accommodate a 15-piece orchestra.

The 25th Combat Infantry "Combs" will provide the music for the re-opening celebration. Sixteen valuable door prizes will be awarded.

Non-coms who are not club members and their guests have received special invitations. Dinner will be served, buffet style at 8 p. m. and dancing will take place until midnight.

Hears WRBL's Woman's Club Mr. Hennessy

An enthusiastic and interested group of ladies heard Ed Hennessy, program director of radio station WRBL, speak Monday in the Officers' Club lounge of the subject of radio—its operation from a production standpoint in a program presented by the Current Events section of the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

Mr. Hennessy's discourse, in which he explained how radio functions in the public interest, convenient and necessary, was followed by an open forum discussion in which many points of doubt in the audience's mind were cleared up by the speaker.

Four copies of "The First Quarter Century of American Broadcasting" by E. P. Shurtleff, were donated to the club by Mr. Hennessy at the close of the meeting.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Elmer F. Wallender, president of the Woman's Club, in the absence of Mrs. Dennis Moore, current events chairman, who had made all arrangements for the meetin, but was unable to attend. Mrs. Moore was assisted by the co-chairman, Mrs. Joe S. Lawrie.

Keeping TABS

Give a look! Read news yet!—I don't have to write this mess of type this week—the boys at the Airborne I (P) E have sent in a flock of items as follows:

As usual, Saturday night was a big night for the "Super-Dooper Paratroopers" at the Airborne Cadre Club (old NCO Club). The guys and gals—hubbies (oops) and wives, were all dressed up and stuff. The dance music was played by the 25th Combat Team Band—and a swell job they did, too. Stoo had that Sgt. Going and his (woo-woo!) lovely young wife didn't show up. However, all of TABS are looking forward to the next Jump-Boot shuffle.

Cpl. Raymond W. Cothren, waiter at the NCO club, has left his faithful bartending and bouncing (not really) to his co-workers for the next 30 days. Ray said that for the next month, he would let others wait on HIM. Back here, we all wonder if he will let others BOUNCE him also? Huh?

Seems as though Hq. Co. has forgotten about that good old "Southern Hospitality". They claim that so many visitors from Co. Hh have just dropped in" that the boys in the company have to show their Class 'A' passes in order to get in forchow—into their own chow hall, yet!

Doughs Score 88 Points; Beat Generals, Set Record

The Doughboys chalked up a new team scoring record in defeating the Oliver General Hospital five last Saturday 88 to 37. It was the Doughs' second victory in a week over the hapless Generals, and was their thirteenth of the season.

There was no doubt as to the outcome at the end of the first ten minutes of play. At that time the Doughs held a 22-8 lead, and hadn't even worked up a sweat.

Coach Tallis ran in an entire new team at that juncture, but the substitutions made no material difference in the pattern of the game. The second team outscored their opponents 17-10 in the quarter to bring the halftime count to 39-18.

No Comeback
The second half wrought no miraculous comeback for the Generals. The tireless Doughs worked their fast break to perfection, continually springing two, three, and even four men loose on one weary General beneath the Oliver basket. Eventually, the Oliver defense was reduced to a weary wave at the ball, and shouted, "There they go!" as the Doughboy five would thunder down the court and converge on the defenseless basket.

This maneuver eventually paid off for the Generals. When one of the less skillful of the Doughs was driving down the court, he lost control of the ball and inadvertently batted it into the hands of an onlooking Oliver man. The General player quickly passed to one of his teammates who was standing beneath the Doughboy basket waiting for the play to come his way. That worthy promptly distinguished himself by scoring two points, a feat not all of his mates could accomplish.

Gets 18 Points
Claude Anderson of Benning got 16 points to lead the individual scorers, although he played only about two quarters.

Referee Sam Harris added much to the colorful aura of the game, rebuking the contestants for rule infractions in a loud, clear voice and keeping the play pretty much under his thumb. No subtlety of the game has escaped Sergeant Harris' notice and his games often bristle with as many technical fouls as a female basketball contest.

Last Saturday's game was something of an exception, with only one technical. That was at Mark Foss' expense, and was for "delaying the game."

Foss went up in the air after an expected rebound. The shot went through instead, and Mark brushed it aside as he and the ball were coming down. The officials were forced to chase the ball, causing said delay and the ensuing penalty.

McCauley Leads In 88-33 Win

Lyle McCauley continued in his high scoring way to lead the Airborne Section team in its tenth win over Pine Mountain Valley 88-33 Saturday night, at Hamilton, Ga.

McCauley, who has been consistent in hitting the hoop for the Paratroopers, came up with 20 points for Saturday's fracas. Close behind was Jack Kinshlow, pivot man on the Airborne team, with 20 points to his credit.

Bill Mosley led the Pine Mountain Valley club's attack, chalking up 14 points, close to half of his team's total.

Tuesday night the Troopers meet the Lawson Field Flyers in the Airborne gym at 8 o'clock. Thursday night they play the Columbus Reds and Friday night "Halholton" and their Columbus team.

Sunday afternoon in a double header they will be played to raise money for the "March of Dimes" campaign the 501st Parachute Battalion will play Columbus-Mills and in the second game the Airborne Section team will tangle with the Phenix City Tigers. The game will be played at the Ninth street USO.

So far this season the Airborne team has beaten Greenville, The Six City, Callaway Mills, Fort McClellan, Maxwell Field, Columbus Mills, Pine Mountain Valley, and three times they have turned back the Craig Field team. They bowed to the superior Atlanta Sports Arena team 48-44, were beaten by Howard College, Mac Hill Field and twice submitted to defeat from Fort McClellan.

Post Golfers Win Match

A four man golf team representing Fort Benning defeated the Oliver General Hospital Golfers in the first match of a home to home series. The Benning Golfers ran up a total of 16 1-2 points out of a possible 18 to practically shut out their opponents.

The Benning team line-up was Lt. Col. Joseph Chabot, Lt. Col. Ray Cole, Lt. Col. Matt Bristol and Major William Wikoff. Results of the team match were:

1ST LIEUTENANT RE-ENLISTS AS MASTER HERE

First Lt. William F. Herre, Cantrell drive, Columbus, who returned to Lawson Field recently for his third tour of duty at the Ninth Air Force Base, has been re-listed as a master sergeant at the base recruiting office, base officials announced today.

A native of Columbus, he has over 13 years service and was stationed at Ft. Benning and Lawson Field from 1937 to 1942. He served in the Pacific with the Fifth Air Force and received direct commission to second lieutenant, while stationed in the Philippines.

In January 1946, he was assigned to Lawson and served as base recruiting officer until the following April when he was transferred to California to attend an AAF Airfield engineering school. He was promoted to first lieutenant before graduating from the school last November.

M. Sgt. Herre has been assigned to the 319th AAF Base Unit and will serve as a line chief, Lawson officials said.

Doughs And 'B' Team On Road

Both the Fort Benning Doughs and the B team will be on the road tonight. The Doughs are in Mason for the first of two games they will play with Mercer University. Mercer boasts a win over Auburn of the Southeastern conference. They have a six-foot, seven-inch center operating for them who will pose a real problem for six foot, three inch Bill Miller of the Doughs.

The "B" team is at Fort McEllen, Ga. The Rifle of McEllen edged out the "Choppers" here on Jan. 24 and are probably fairly confident another win tonight. The Dough "B" team's starting five will probably prove a rather rude jolt to their nerves.

No Chances

Coach Tallis is taking no chances with this one. He plans to start Johnny Renee, ex-West Point captain, Pat Cizer, another Pointer who was instrumental in the "B" team win over the "Goose" last Saturday and forward Balleit, a lieutenant-colonel whose duties on the post have prevented him from playing regularly. Balleit is a comfortable six-foot, four inches tall, and played at Yale before entering the service.

Backing that threesome up will be Bill Wirt and Bob Seibert, both of whom have seen more duty with the regular Doughboy five than with the "B's".

Dawson Bows To Doughboys

A surprisingly strong Dawson quintet slowed the Doughboy attack to a walk within the first half last. Monday night in a game played at Dawson, but the Doughs turned on the heat to score 49 points in the second half and win going away, 75-58.

Dawson fought fire with fire in the first half. They unveiled a potent fast break that had the Doughs reeling in the first quarter. Morgan kept the Benning defense well spread with accurate long shots, while Thornton and Dozier worked in under the basket. The lead was 12-9 at the quarter.

be right." But it was and that's the way the game ended, 75 to 58. Morgan of the Lions scored 22 points to take individual honors. Claude Anderson of the Doughs was a close second with 20, 17 of which were scored in the last half.

Carry Offense

Baker and Miller carried the Doughboy offense in the second period, as the soldier five began to hit their stride. They hit for four the Doughs respectively to push into a 25-22 at the half. Bill Wirt got a deep gouge over one eye in a scuffle under Benning's basket late in the quarter, and was forced to retire. One of those streaks in the third period where no one could miss. They scored 12 points in something under a minute and a half, six of them by Anderson, four by Miller and a pair by Baker, and added 12 more during the stanza. The Lions refused to roll over and played dead, but kept plugging along to score 21 points, and bring the third period up to 50-49.

Shift Into High

Benning finally shifted into high in the final ten minutes. They scored 20 points so fast and so early that most of the onlookers were quite unaware of how far ahead they were. One old gentleman sitting next to the scorer's table happened to notice what the score was in the final few minutes. "Hi!" he said. "You better check that again, son. That can't

Dough 'B' Team Downed By Fliers

The Lawson Field "Fliers" defeated the "Doughboy" "B" team at the Main Post Gym last Wednesday night. The score was 65-55, So close was the game that with but 4 minutes left to play the score stood 48-48. The "Fliers" broke loose with 17 points in the last 4 minutes of play.

The Fliers were again paced by Sgt. Paul Baker who scored 23 points. Sgt. Baker is also high scorer of the year for the "Fliers." Also leading in the scoring were Cpl. Frank Wilson with 20 points and Pfc. John Ferbes with 18 points.

Coach Capt. Warren Smith announces that the team is preparing for the Ninth Air Force basketball tournament. The schedule for the tournament will be released in the next few days. Meanwhile the team has scheduled local games with the 328th Ordnance on Jan. 24th, and the Airborne Section team on Jan. 28.

FLIERS CONQUER 61-7

The Lawson Field "Fliers" won a smashing victory over the 328 Ord team last Friday night at the Post Gym. The score was 61-7. The outcome of the game was never in doubt. Coach Capt. Warren Smith used every man on the bench in an effort to keep the score down. The score at the half time was 32-4. John Ferbes was high scorer in the game with 20 points with almost every man scoring at least a point.

Benning Places In Glove Meet

Benning, with one championship to its credit, came in second to Fort Bragg in the Seventh Army boxing tournament held at Bragg last week.

Four Benningites—Billy Pratt (featherweight), Jessie Ewart (lightweight), Ralph DiFebbe (welterweight), and Irving Branson Sr. (welterweight)—managed to win their opening bouts and reach the finals. However, only Branson was able to come through, defeating Ernie DeGarmo of Fort Bragg to become the Seventh Army senior welterweight champion.

Seven titles were taken by Fort Bragg boxers, who represented the 82nd Airborne Division, and one was won by a Fort McClellan fighter. The following are the champions:

Bantamweight, Conrad Blair (Fort Bragg); featherweight, Carl Libratoro (Fort Bragg); lightweight, Jimmy Jones (Fort Bragg); junior welterweight, Ray Gill (Fort McClellan); senior welterweight, Irving Branson (Fort Benning); middleweight, Lelan Ellis (Fort Bragg); light heavyweight, Jessie Wilson (Fort Bragg); heavyweight, Junius Emerson (Fort Bragg).

The Fort Benning boxers are planning to take part in the Golden Gloves tournament, which will be held next week in Atlanta.

In Chicago, a woman may be fined for driving a car in a hat that covers one eye.

Devils Beat Jackets 5-3 On Soft Field

On a field still soft and uneven because of recent rain, the 25th Combat Team's Blue Devils Sunday defeated the Academic Regiment Freebooters (Yellow Jackets) 5-3 in the Fort Benning's first polo match of the winter season.

Off to a flying start in the first chukker with three goals, all made by Lt. Barney Q. Hopkins Jr., the Blue Devils scored twice in the second period and that was all. Taking over the scoring the Yellow Jackets tallied two goals in the third period and one in the fourth. Although the last two periods were hard fought neither side scored.

One of the best bits of teamwork of the day was exhibited by the Blues when Col. Robert L. Dulaney picked the ball from the sideboard with an offside under-the-neck shot, passed it up to Lt. Hopkins who carried it toward the goal and then came through to drive the ball between the goalposts.

The Yellow team was handicapped by the absence of Col. William W. O'Connor, although Maj. Gerald Shea, Maj. George S. Beatty Jr. and Lt. Col. Robert N. Skaggs played outstanding games. Beatty and Skaggs were in the game steadily throughout the six periods.

An interesting sidelight was the fact that the thoroughbred pony "Concha" owned by the late General George S. Patton appeared in this match for the first time, ridden by Lt. Patton.

Music during intermission and between periods was provided by the 72nd AGF Band for the hundreds of spectators lining each side of Blue Field.

Polo matches are a regular Sunday sports feature with the next game scheduled February 2 on French Field.

AS RUGGED AS HE LOOKS is Irving Branson, a Benning paratrooper who last week pounded his way to the senior welterweight championship at Fort Bragg, deciding one opponent and knocking out another. Though he is a St. Louis boy, he is in the Army for about a year now. He fought four fights before entering the Army.

Benning Trims Birmingham 5

The Birmingham Vulcans played the perfect host to Fort Benning last Thursday, allowing the soldiers to walk off with a 37-30 victory. The Doughs, although held to their lowest point total of the season, had little trouble in taking their twelfth victory. The Vulcans were missing two of their regular forwards and had only five men in uniform for the game.

Consequently, when Red Glasgow of that team committed his fifth personal foul in the waning moments of the game, there was no one to take his place and the Vulcans were forced to use only four men for the remainder of the contest. The Benning team refused to take advantage of the opportunity to run up the score. Instead, they froze the ball until the final gun went off.

Previous to the final Glasgow "faux pas," the game had been close, the soldiers holding a 31 to 28 edge with four minutes remaining. Then Bill Miller came through with three quick baskets from close in to provide the Doughboy margin.

Claude Anderson and Cal Luther led Dough scoring with 9 points apiece, although Wheeler Leath, ex Benning Sniper forward, took home individual honors for the night with 13 points, and was a thorn in his Alma Mater's side all evening.

N. Y. Plans AAF Radar Installation

Army Air Forces long-range radar equipment, valued at approximately $500,000, will be installed on the grounds of Queens College, three miles east of La Guardia Field, New York, beginning early in February, and will be used by the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Airborne Instruments Laboratory, an affiliate of the Air Transport Association, in tests to determine the value of such radar devices in the control of heavy air traffic over cities similar to New York.

The equipment, including a large MEW (meter-wave early warning) unit with a smaller radar height finder will have a sweep range of about 150 miles and can be used to plot the exact location and altitude of aircraft flying in and out of the New York area as well as determining other weather conditions of convective activity.

The radar units, which have been used by the Airborne Instruments Laboratory for use in a contract from the AAF for research and experimental tests, are now at the laboratory's site in Mineola, Long Island, New York.

Initial installation work will begin in the next few weeks, and engineers of the Airborne Instruments Laboratory hope to have the radar functioning by the middle of February. The City of New York is providing the site for the radar units and is assuming the costs for the necessary construction at the site. The AAF is providing the radar equipment and the heavy transportation to move the unit to its Queens College location.

In the joint project, the CAA, through its technical development service and the Federal Bureau of Operations will provide the required operational and maintenance personnel who will cover operating costs. The Air Transport Association is contributing the installation costs for modifications to the equipment required for the move and for further research and testing. The use of radar in civil aviation is a three day food supply and medicine. "Many of the missions of the Scouts," he said, "were to go into the interior of an island and organize guerrilla forces to harass the Japs. Often times some of our officers would be commanding over 500 natives in guerrilla warfare, the natives being armed from anything from rifles to blowpipes.

"The natives hated the Japs and didn't have any use for American money," he added. "Most of the times we paid them off with a teaspoon of salt a day."

C. C. Perot Whiting, chief field supervisor of the Georgia Department of Veterans' Service, spoke to the assembly telling them of the many benefits which his department offers the veteran.

Waives Claims
He enumerated them and said that numerous veterans did not know of all the services offered. "I would like to see," he said, "the CVVA acting as a huge information service for the veteran."

"Take the case of the veteran who is so glad to get out of the army that he waives filing any disability claims because of time consuming delay," he declared. "That is not fair for him, his family or his future. Sometimes a bad case injury may disable him and at that time it would be very difficult to establish a service-connected disability. Through our counseling service we try to point out the necessity of taking care of these matters as soon as possible."

Joe Mitchell, chairman of the board of directors, acting as master of ceremonies introduced Col. W. L. Carbine, local manager of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service and Joe R. Walters, local official of the U. S. Veterans Administration who were special guests of the association.

John H. Land, president of the CVVA, explained the purposes of the organization, saying that it was not political in nature but kept a close watch on politics. He said their twofold purpose was to assist the veteran in solving his problems and to help better the civic welfare of the city and community.

Other officers of the organization present were George Wolford, district president; Vincent McCauley, secretary; and Clayton Mouring, treasurer.

The next meeting date of the organization was set for Jan. 27. Forest crops rank tenth among all farm crops in farm value.

AAF's P-82 Set For Record

The Army Air Forces will attempt to establish a dual record for speed and endurance for fighter-type aircraft soon when a North American P-82 takes off on a 500-mile flight from Honolulu to New York.

Leaving Hickam Field, Hawaii, the "Twin Mustang," named "Betty Jo" in honor of the pilot's wife, will cross 2800 miles of water, reaching the California coast at a point 17 miles south of Point Arena, California. Following a great circle route across the United States, the "Betty Jo" will fly over Reno, Nevada; Rick Springs, Wyoming; Detroit, Michigan, and Erie, Pennsylvania, before landing at Langford Field in New York.

The plane will fly at an altitude of better than 20,000 feet and at an air speed of approximately 300 miles per hour. The flight will be the longest ever attempted by a fighter-type aircraft and will take about fifteen hours. The P-82, the world's first twin engine military aircraft, is a two-place fighter, spanned 51 feet 3 inches across the wing and 38 feet 1 inch long. It is powered by two 12-cylinder, 2200-horsepower Packard-built Rolls-Royce engines and is capable of attaining a maximum speed of 475 miles per hour. The plane was constructed by joining two North American P-51 "Mustang" fuselages by a single wing section. Designed as a long range fighter, it carries a pilot in each fuselage, minimizing pilot fatigue on long missions.

Purpose of the flight will be to investigate the problems of long range fighter escort missions and to determine what future research and development must be made in order that planes and pilots will be able to withstand the rigors of extended high altitude flights on long range escort missions.

Veteran Alamo Scout Relates Thrilling Pacific Exploits

First Lieutenant Martin Grimes, formerly of the Alamo Scouts, and now attached to the Tank Battalion at Fort Benning, told the members of the Chattahoochee Valley Veterans' Association of some of the thrilling exploits of his famous outfit scouting patrol throughout the Pacific at a meeting at the Goo-Goo restaurant Monday night.

Lieutenant Grimes, frequently provoking bursts of laughter with his dramatic comments, said the Alamo Scouts were organized in the latter part of 1943 by General Walter Kreuger to provide accurate information from enemy territory.

"General Kreuger," he said, "got together a bunch of volunteers and put them through one of the toughest schools in any service. In one part of the training every man was required to swim at least three miles."

The Alamo Scouts was the only organization in which the enlisted men chose their own officer, he said.

Each scouting party consisted of one officer and four enlisted men and, if at any time the officer or the men were dissatisfied with the other, they were permitted to change.

The Scouts, often landing six months before an attack on a Japanese island, were allowed to carry any type of weapon that they wanted, Lieutenant Grimes declared. On most missions, he stated that the men would carry a knife, a shot-gun, sub-machine gun or M-1 rifle along with a

Veterans' Survivors May Claim Terminal Leave Pay

Widows, children or parents of former soldiers who died after honorable discharge from the Army and who had not claimed their terminal leave pay prior to death are entitled to collect these payments, the War Department announced today. An estimated 40 million dollars is due eligible survivors of Army personnel in this category.

Due to the small number of claims of this type received by the Army so far, Major General William H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, U. S. Army, urged survivors of deceased former soldiers of World War II who had unused furlough time payable under the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946 at the time of their separation from the Army, to write immediately to the Finance Officer, U. S. Army, Army Finance Center, Building 204, St. Louis 20, Missouri, for an application.

claims must have been honorably discharged from the service. Benefits under this law are due the survivors of those soldiers who died while in active service or who were killed in action, he said, since the usual death benefits in these cases have already been paid to eligible survivors and no further benefits are due them under the terms of the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946.

Reynolds Soloist For City Recital

Homer Lamar Reynolds, 1347 12th street, Columbus, was the baritone soloist at a musical recital sponsored by Mrs. J. O. Methvin at her home, 908 Second avenue, recently.

4,800 Claimants
 Up to this time the Finance Officer, U. S. Army, at St. Louis, has received 4,800 claims from survivors for terminal leave pay due former soldiers who have died since leaving the Army, General Kasten pointed out that the St. Louis office is the only Army finance office handling survivors' claims for unused leave and all inquiries must be addressed to that office only.

Survivors who may be eligible are defined as a wife who was lawfully wedded to the deceased former serviceman on the date of his death, or child or children in equal shares. In the event that there is no wife or children, settlement will be made to the parents of the deceased former soldier. The term "parents" includes father and mother, grandfather and grandmother, stepfather and stepmother, father and mother through adoption, and persons who, for a period of not less than one year prior to the death of the former soldier, stood in place of parents to such former enlisted man. This applies equally to deceased women of the Womens Army Corps.

Payment by Check
 Payment of claims filed by such survivors will be made by U. S. Treasury check and not in savings bonds as in the case of settlements made to living veterans who make their own claim under the Armed Forces Leave Act.

General Kasten emphasized that the former soldier on whose behalf eligible survivors make

Courses In Air Support To Be Operated Here

With the first exercise officially open on February 24, double-barreled Tactical Air indoctrination course is being established at Lawson Field under the direction of the Tactical Air Command's Ninth Air Force.

The primary purpose of the Tactical Air indoctrination course is to effectively demonstrate to Army Ground Force training units and Service School classes the full capabilities of air support as given by a tactical air force.

Air Training
Secondly, the indoctrination courses will provide valuable tactical air training for participating AAF units, which are expected to include elements of the following Tactical Air Command groups and squadrons:

The 36th Troop Carrier Squadron from Pope Field, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; 62nd Troop Carrier Group, Bergstrom Field, Austin, Tex.; 47th Bomb Group, Biggs Field, El Paso, Tex.; 20th Fighter Group, Shaw Field, Sumter, S. 82nd Division
The 82nd Airborne Infantry Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C., will furnish airborne troops for the demonstration.

Two exercises, on Feb. 24 and March 24, will precede the indoctrination program. The last presentation in the program is slated to open May 2.

The indoctrination course will be given under the supervision of the Tactical Air Command, headed by Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, and will be directed by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, Ninth Air Force Commanding General, and Gen. James V. H. Dugan, Deputy Ninth Air Force Commander.

Combat Training
Stressing training under simulated combat conditions, the graphic air support demonstrations will be directed from a control center composed of a series of mobile trailers set up at Lawson Field. Advance "combat" headquarters, this control center, being

A gaud of honor and the 196th Army Ground Forces band were on hand Wednesday when more than 500 officers and men of the 25th Combat Team (Provisional) boarded trains for San Francisco where they will await transportation to Japan and occupation duty with the 25th Infantry Division.

The Negro group is slated to form the nucleus of the 24th Infantry regiment which is expected to take over the responsibilities of Gifu, Shizuoka, and Aichi. Composed of 535 enlisted men and 20 officers, the cadre were carefully selected and trained from among Negro units stationed in the South.

The 24th Infantry was the first sizeable Negro unit to see combat in the war, and ended the war on that 500 offer, the responsibilities of the 25th division will be the Army's initial implementation of a report on the use of combined troops made by a board headed by Lt. Gen. Alvin C. Gillem and reported to the War Department policy May 6, 1946.

The cadre for the 24th is expected to sail around February of this month to join the remainder of the regiment which is already stationed in Japan. Commanding officer of the Fort Benning unit is Capt. Raymond A. Duggs.

Plans Formulated For WAC Reserve

A tentative plan for the organization of a WAC Reserve Corps has been formulated by a committee composed of members of the War Department General Staff, it was learned today.

The WAC Reserve Corps plan has received concurrence of the War Department and in the near future will be presented to Congress along with other proposed legislation concerning the WAC.

JUST LIKE COMMERCIAL STATIONS

Studios Contemplated To Give Beside Network 'Live' Shows

The Armed Forces Radio Service is contemplating the erection of studio facilities for the bedside network station WFB at Fort Benning. The Regional Hospital that will rival studios of most commercial broadcast stations in the South," according to an announcement released today by John Johnson, manager of WFB.

Tentative plans call for the construction of one main studio measuring 31 feet in width and 19 feet in length, a control room, transmitter room and workshop, an auditorium, and an office. Mr. Johnson reported, it is also hoped to obtain a Hammond electric organ and a grand piano, he said.

'Live Shows'

At the same time it was announced that as soon as the new station is completed, approximately 50 per cent of all programs emanating from WFB will have been tentatively scheduled for daily or weekly broadcasts, including hillbilly bands, dance bands, and two Columbus vocalists, Ann Perry and Doug Trethewey.

Mr. Johnson said that there was a possibility of obtaining Associated Press teletype service for the near future, pointing out that WFB will continue to receive the support of the Columbus radio stations and newspapers. Among the proposed improvements planned for the WFB bedside network are the addition of three enlisted men to the increased traffic. At present there are only two assistant announcers in addition to Mr. Johnson and Capt. Harry A. Devore, administrative officer.

Hospital funds have provided WFB with additional popular recordings bringing to 5,100 the total now on hand. A daily 15-minute "live" religious broadcast has replaced a transcribed program. Plans are underway to bring a new program called "Patrol Parade" to hospital patients direct from the airborne area. Old programs to be retained include the Sunday night variety show broadcast from the stage of Service Club No. 1.

The installation of two two-way FM communication carriers will in the future be used to broadcast direct all sports events from the Arena. This will eliminate the necessity of transcribing the program for rebroadcast the next day.

Construction will be completed within the next 30 to 45 days.

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—President Truman's Dec. 31 declaration proclaiming the end of hostilities does not affect veterans enjoying benefits under the GI Bill of Rights, the VA announced. The deadline for education, loan, and employment allowance provisions would be based on the official termination of the war rather than the end of hostilities, VA spokesmen declared. Under the GI Bill of Rights, loans may be guaranteed or insured by the VA up to ten years after the end of the war and education or job training may be started up to four years. Unemployment allowances expire two years after the war's end. The VA reported that disabled veterans eligible for training or education under the GI Bill face no specific deadline, but must complete their training within nine years after the end of the war. Domiciliary care and burial allowances in non-service-connected death and disability cases will be accorded only to those who served between Dec. 7, 1941, and the date of the President's proclamation.

To leave there by plane for Tokyo, February 27. General Miley, now in his 30th year of service in the United States Army, began his career as West Point Cadet in early 1914. Graduating from the Academy on June 12, 1914, with top honors, he was promoted to first lieutenant four short months later, thereafter establishing a reputation for brilliancy which has followed him throughout his entire career. Assigned to Fort Benning in June 1938, as athletic officer of The Infantry School, General Miley (then Major) continued in this capacity until October 1940, when destiny directed his participation in the United States Army Paratroop experiment as commanding officer of the original 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion—the progenitor of the mighty U. S. Airborne Army of today. From the 501st Parachute Battalion, General Miley continued on in the great airborne effort of the Army to command the 503 Parachute Infantry Regiment, the 1st Parachute Infantry Brigade, and in July, 1942, he became the Assistant Division Commander of the 82 "All American" Airborne Division, Camp Claiborne, La. In September, 1943, with the rank of Major General, the parachuting general became Commanding General of the 17th "Golden Talon" Airborne Division which stemmed the tide of German hordes in the bloody Belgian Bulge during the winter of 1944. operated entirely under simulated combat conditions. Two phases comprise the Tactical Air Indocination course: 1. Reconnaissance, intelligence sections, model and equipment displays, planning conferences for joint operations center and a tour of Advance Headquarters. 2. Tactical demonstrations employing fighter planes, bombers, troop carrying gliders and troop carrying transport planes. Jet Planes Climax of each course will be the second phase, which will carry out generally the following missions: Airborne glider leading demonstrations, F-40 Jet plane reconnaissance flight, low level and high level bombing by Ninth Air Force A-26s, rocket attack on an "armored column" by F-51 fighter planes, the laying of smoke screens, dive and skip rocket and incendiary attack by A-26 bombers, glider drop, rocket and incendiary attack by A-26 bombers, and resupply and wounded evacuation by Ninth Air Force gliders. The present schedule for Army training units to attend the indocination exercises has been announced as follows: February 24: Armed Forces Staff College. March 24: Command and General Staff School. March 31: Infantry School. April 7: Armored School. April 14: Coast Artillery School. April 21: Field Artillery School. April 28: Ground General School. May 4: Air University.

Scientists Observe Flies' Health In Control Tests

Scientists at Rutgers University, working on a research project for the Army Quartermaster Corps, are studying the problem of raising healthy houseflies in order to insure the accuracy of experimental work being done in fly control. The subjects of the experiments must be as healthy as wild flies if the results are to be used as a measure of the effectiveness of various control methods. These studies are a part of the basic research being conducted into the life cycle and behavior of houseflies under various environmental conditions. The program seeks to ascertain how houseflies react to temperature, light, humidity, wind, carbon dioxide concentrations, odors, and other factors. How to Attract Them In an effort to learn whether the application of agents to destroy the eggs or the larvae in selected localities may be better used as a means of control, the Rutgers scientists are studying the breeding habits of flies as well as conditions that affect the eggs, the pupae, and the adult. Consideration is also given to the development of attractive baits and their possible use for the baiting of traps or poisons. Although much study and research have been devoted to the housefly heretofore, there are many unanswered questions concerning their behavior. For instance, there is the question of their ability to see color, and if they can see it, whether they have a preference for one shade over another. Three sets of tests have thus far been used. One test uses colored glass fibers, transmitting various colored components of daylight. Another test uses colored cards in which the total reflecting portions of the different colors are carefully matched. In a third test, flies are allowed their choice of foods containing different dyes. Some results of these studies appear to show, from among seven colors, a preference for green. Many Questions Answers to many other questions are being sought. Where does a fly prefer to rest, with respect to the shape, size and angle of the surface, and its texture and temperature? What distance can a fly travel in a single flight? How far can it migrate in its lifetime? Under what wind conditions will the fly seek shelter, rather than attempting to fly? All of these considerations will help to determine where and how to use insecticides for best control at least cost. A cage was devised for studying the duration of life and the number of eggs deposited by isolated pairs of flies. The greatest egg production was during the first 10 days of egg laying, after which egg production gradually decreased. Although eggs were often deposited on consecutive days there was a tendency of the flies to rest for one or more days between egg laying. The greatest number of eggs deposited in one day was 12, and the greatest number for one fly during its life was 1,500. The longest duration of life for males was 32 days and for females 41 days.

Post Fish, Game Commission Named

A fish and game commission has been appointed at Fort Benning to act in an advisory capacity to the commanding general on all matters pertaining to the preservation and conservation of wild life on the reservation, military officials announced today. Col. Edward P. Passaglia has been named president. Other members of the commission include Col. Robert H. Chance, Lt. Col. Jacob R. Moon, Lt. Col. Frederick L. Ackerson, Maj. Harvey E. Reuter, Lt. George R. Britto, and Capt. Charles H. Jervay, secretary.

Army Ration Costs Go Up 32 Per Cent

The Army is spending up to 32 per cent more today to feed a soldier than it did a year ago, a War Department study released today indicates.

In a recapitulation of the master menu for 1946, the Quartermaster Corps stated that the value of the garrison ration, which stood at 60.07 cents in January, 1946, was now 79.88 cents, or 32 per cent higher than a year ago. In the same period the field ration, which is served to most troops, jumped 21 per cent in value, from 60.07 to 72.89 cents.

General cost-of-living rises, which have been felt by housewives all over the country, were responsible for the jump, the study indicated. The calorific content and general structure of the master menu in 1946 was not changed appreciably over that of the previous year.

Designed to yield approximately 3800 calories, the menu actually provided an average of 3611 calories a day, trimmings and such waste as bones and grease representing about a five per cent loss. Over a period of a year, a soldier was served about 1829 pounds of food, of which 395 pounds were meat, 506 pounds vegetables and potatoes, 281 pounds milk and milk products and 190 pounds cereals and breads. The remaining 600-odd pounds of food included fruits, sugars, citrus fruits and juices, eggs, fats, beverages, dried fruits and condiments.

Of the meat consumed, nearly one-third was beef. Pork loin, chicken, veal, smoked ham, lamb, bacon, pork sausage, fresh fish, frankfurters, spare ribs, liver, sausage, canned fish and corned beef made up the remainder in that order of volume.

RIBBON FOR ROCKET

Wac Corporal Now Has King-Size Parachute

The successful launching of the first time of a ribbon-type parachute from the nose of a "WAC Corporal," the Army's rocket which is similar to the German's V-2, and thereby aiding in the recovery of the missile from a height of 200,000 feet was announced last week by Army Ordnance rocket experts. This is the first time the feat has been accomplished in over 18 months of intensive research on the liquid-fuel rocket, according to Colonel H. N. Toffey, chief of the Rocket Development Division and Lieutenant Colonel James G. Bain, chief of Guided Missiles Branch, of the Army Ordnance Department.

Colonel Bain, in checking the results with Colonel Ben Mesick, in charge of the WAC Corporal program at the California Institute of Technology, was informed that "this is the first time such a large weight has been lowered by parachute from such a high altitude." Earlier parachute tests had failed.

The WAC Corporal, though considerably smaller than the German V-2 which the Ordnance Department is firing every two weeks at White Sands Proving Ground in New Mexico, nevertheless has a top speed of close to 2,800 miles per hour. The WAC plummeted to earth at about 2,000 miles per hour as determined by instruments. Its weight, however, is 655 pounds with full fuel-load as compared to the 14 tons of the V-2, which rose to a new altitude of 114 miles last December 17 in the first night shot.

In the WAC Corporal tests, as the rocket was successfully launched, it was determined to slow down the missile during descent, to salvage the rocket and instruments for study. Heretofore, both the WAC and the V-2 would shatter as they crashed to earth. On two occasions the V-2 warhead, filled with scientific instruments designed to study the cosmic rays and upper atmosphere, was not recovered.

A parachute was placed in the nose of the WAC Corporal, according to Colonel Bain and steps were planned to pop out the chute by a special release mechanism designed by the Ordnance Department.

Colonel Bain said a clock-work mechanism set off an explosion of primacord and the nose of the WAC was ripped off, activating the release mechanism for the parachute. At the top of the flight, as the WAC tilted to tumble to the earth, the parachute billowed out and lowered the rocket, which had consumed all its fuel of nitric acid and nitroline. The experiment was successful. Further tests will be conducted along the same lines next spring.

If the moon's diameter were 140 miles less than it is, a total eclipse of the sun could not occur.

The diesel engine was patented by Rudolf Diesel in 1892.

Current Events Lectures Keep STR Informed

If others have forgotten why the recent war was fought members of the 12th Company Student Training Regiment haven't. A highly concentrated program of current events has been originated by candidates and officers of the company. Lectures and movies form the basis of this program, which promotes a better understanding of the duties and responsibilities in connection with the occupation of Germany and Japan.

Lieutenant Short, brother of the 12th Company CO, James H. Short, gave a lecture on occupation in Europe and went on to enumerate the many difficulties in setting up a "there."

Captain Short also delivered a lecture on the military policy of the United States since the Revolutionary War bringing it up to the present day.

Resulting from these lectures were thought-provoking views on occupational duties.

Army Plane To Spray DDT On Ft. Myers

At the request of citizens of Fort Myers, Fla., Army Air Forces Headquarters dispatched a Douglas C-47 Skymaster cargo plane fitted with DDT spray dispersal equipment to Fort Myers to try to prevent wide-spread fly breeding.

The request came after thousands of dead fish were deposited by the tides on the benches and in swamps in the Fort Myers area. Death of the fish was attributed to a minute sea organism.

Representatives of the Public Health Service at Fort Myers removed fish from beaches but were unable to penetrate swamps to complete the cleanup.

Residents complained that it would create a fly-breeding area. City officials decided that DDT spray would help in remedying this situation and forwarded a request through Florida congressmen to AAF Headquarters for the spray plane.

Ninth Air Force headquarters requested to furnish the plane and spray equipment for the mission. The plane flew today from Greenville Army Air Base, S. C., to MacDill Field at Tampa, Fla.

Spray operations are scheduled for the first of next week. The plane will spray the swamp area with a 20 per cent DDT solution in oil. To prevent injury to any form of wildlife, only 2.4 pounds will be used per acre. Col. Raymond T. Jenkins, Ninth Air Force command surgeon, will be in charge of spray operations.

The area of Japan proper, including the islands of Honshu, Shikoku, Kyushu and Hokkaido, is less than the state of California. The islands cover 147,707 square miles.

SNUBS EAGLE—World War II vet John G. Scott, New York City, recently appealed to his Congressman for aid in returning to the U. S. Treasury $344 world of unwanted partial disability pension checks. Scott, who was awarded a $35 monthly disability pension for permanent injury of his right eye, maintained he injured his eye prior to military service. The confused veteran tried to return the checks to the VA, but to no avail. His Congressman, a bit confused himself, said he would be very happy to see that the money was returned to the Treasury.

Overseas Dead Slated To Return Starting In August

The tentative date for the return of the first wave of America's World War II dead from the temporary military cemeteries at Lawson Field, August 1947, the War Department announced today.

The preliminary operational schedule prepared by the Office of the Quartermaster General contemplates that those who fell at Pearl Harbor and other armed forces personnel who now rest in seven cemeteries in Hawaii will reach the San Francisco Port of Embarkation about August 18. Those who are buried in the Henri Chapelle temporary cemetery in Belgium are scheduled to arrive at New York about August 25.

Only the remains of those whose return is requested by next of kin will be brought back to the United States for final burial in either a private cemetery or a National Cemetery, Maj. Gen. T. B. Larkin, The Quartermaster General of the Army, said in announcing the tentative schedule. The schedule is based on the assumption that present casket manufacturing requirements will be met, that full-scale deliveries of caskets will begin in May, 1947, and that deliveries will continue without interruption until all orders have been filled. Current estimates are that 89 per cent of the recovered remains will be returned to the United States or the homeland of the deceased and that 20 per cent will be interred permanently overseas. The accuracy of these estimates will not be known, however, until all next of kin have responded to letters of inquiry which are to be mailed by the Office of The Quartermaster General.

Sergeant Wins Cheney Award

Selection of First Sergeant Lawrence Lambert, of Dayton, Ohio, as the recipient of the Cheney award for 1946 was announced today by Army Air Forces headquarters on the anniversary of the death of First Lieutenant William H. Cheney, in whose memory the award is presented.

Sergeant Lambert is the first to be selected for the award since 1939. No one was selected to receive the award in 1940 and 1941 and selections were discontinued for the duration of the war in 1942.

As a member of the Parachute Branch of the Personal Equipment Laboratory at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, the sergeant volunteered to risk his life to test an ejection method of escape from high speed aircraft. Engineers tested the new ejection seat with dummies to the stage where it was complicated knowledge involving human reactions and effects was essential. These dummy tests indicated the severe force might be induced against the body by violent tumbling action. That was of such a nature that there was a possibility of failure of explosive charges or danger of malfunctioning of any one of several complicated automatic devices, either or both of these might result in serious physical injury or loss of life for Sergeant Lambert.

Siam Chiefs See Benning

Major General Khemayothin, of the Siamese Air Force, who arrived at Fort Benning, Ga., August 1, 1946, is spending today visiting the Airborne Section and watching demonstrations by Army officers candidate classes at The Infantry School.

Accompanied by a four-man delegation, Gen. Khemayothin landed at Lawson Field at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon and was met by a guard of honor. The general's party includes Col. Bisoul J. Cols. Ayuthaya and Chulachant, and Maj. Adolphus.

Following a conference with Major General John W. O'Daniel, commanding The Infantry Center, the Siamese officers toured the Siamese barracks. Later they witnessed puff bomb demonstrations, saw an ammunition and leaf-propelled weapon display. At 10:45 the general and his party saw Army officer candidate class 1115 pass in review, and from 11:15 until 11:30 viewed assault demolitions by Army officer candidate class No. 6.

Attending departments of the Airborne section Thursday morning, Gen. Khemayothin will witness further demonstrations of modern infantry weapons during the afternoon. He also will watch Army officer candidate class No. 5 undergoing physical training exercises.

During Friday the Siamese air delegation will visit the communications section of The Infantry School and will watch demonstrations of special weapons and night-vision night goggles. Prior to leaving Fort Benning by plane late Saturday afternoon, Gen. Khemayothin and his party will visit the automotive section and visual aids exhibit.

AAF Seeks 883 Weather Officers

Army Air Force headquarters announced today that it is seeking 883 former meteorologists or aerologists to return to active duty with the AAF Weather Service.

Since the end of the war, the Air Weather Service has lacked personnel, and has been critically handicapped by a shortage of meteorologists. Personnel requirements of the service were not drastically lowered by the reduction in AAF flying operations.

The Air Weather Service is charged with forecasting weather conditions for every AAF base and along the thousands of miles of air routes in foreign countries.

Authority has been given to return to active duty all former AAF weather officers who volunteer to and to give Army of the United States commission equivalent to the rank formerly held by weather officers of other branches of the service who volunteer with the AAF. Under this program, any qualified meteorologist or aerologist is eligible to be returned to active duty or obtain a commission in the AAF even though his former military service was not with the AAF. Applications should be sent to the chief of the Air Weather Service, Washington 25, D. C.

ARMY NEW IG—Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyrche, former commanding general of the First Service Command, has been named by Pres. Truman to succeed the late Lt. Gen. Daniel L. Sulton as Inspector General of the Army. He will hold the rank of Major General in the Regular Army during his four-year term.

Furlough Fares Ordered Ended

The War Department has instructed all Army area and Air Force commanders to give wide publicity to the discontinuance, effective January 30 of the special round-trip furlough fares for military personnel on rail and bus lines operating generally east of the Mississippi river.

The carriers concerned—all eastern railroads and bus lines except four rail lines in Southern Passenger Association territory—have been upheld in their petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission to cancel furlough fares in effect since late in 1940.

The excepted eastern carriers operating the Southern Passenger Association territory are: Central of Georgia; Gulf, Mobile and Ohio; Illinois Central; and St. Louis-San Francisco.

The War Department emphasized that military personnel should consult local agents of carriers in each instance for travel details, particularly to or from places bordering on the approximate general dividing time.

On through journeys involving both kinds of carriers which do not continue the sale of furlough fare tickets, it will be necessary for military personnel to purchase separate tickets to and beyond the transfer point between such carriers, paying furlough fare for one ticket, where authorized, and regular fare, plus tax, for the other ticket.

Army Research Attacks Problem Of Splitting Seams

An extensive study to determine methods of improving the efficiency and of improving the efficiency of sewn seams in Army clothing and tentage was announced by the War Department today. Short life of some items of clothing and equipment caused by rupture of seams has caused this research project part of an overall plan to improve the construction and longevity of Army clothing and fabric equipment.

Threads, needles, sewing machines, finishing materials and the objective of developing seams which will last as long as the fabric. Important phases of the project have been virtually unexplored heretofore.

Many failures in Army clothing and tentage occur because of rupture of the seams. In some instances the stitching breaks, in others, probably in tentage, the material may be so weakened by the perforations of the sewing needle that the fabric gives away. In the case of water-resistant fabrics the stitching often serves as a wick to let water through the fabric. Improperly treated thread may be weakened by mildew or by the action

Thermalites Hold Air Model Show

The Thermalites of Fort Benning and Columbus, sponsored the first model airplane meet in this locality Sunday, February 1. The little planes took to the air from Dekkar Strip in the Alabama Area about 10 a.m. and continued flying until darkness set in.

Over 250 spectators were present to watch the flight of more than 55 entries in the different contests.

Because of high winds it was necessary to delay the speed trials until mid-afternoon and to cancel altogether the stunting contests.

Among the winners from Fort Benning were Bill Todd, who won an award for the most detailed and scaled model. Runner-up in the hobby-contested speed trials was Captain Charles W. Kilpatrick. School Troops public relations officer, Capt. Kilpatrick's plane was clocked at 50 miles per hour.

Although the stunting exhibition was called off they were stunting their model planes anyway in their effort to keep the little ships in the air. Just a fraction of an inch in the movement of the controls meant several yards to the flight of the plane. Many planes crashed and were badly smashed.

Although the Thermalites is a civilian club, the members from Fort Benning were predominant among the participants.

Army Regulars Find Egg Defects Can Be Many

Soldiers attending the Meat and Dairy Hygienists Course of the Veterinary Detachment, Chicago Quartermaster Depot, learn there is more to an egg than just breaking the shell. The group is shown observing "induced" egg defects during a laboratory period. When the course is completed, the "graduates" will qualify as meat and dairy inspectors, one of the many skilled trades taught in the new peacetime Regular Army.

RED CROSS 'LAYETTE' SERVICE OFTEN AIDS NEEDY MOTHERS

A little known service of the Red Cross is the giving of layettes to needy mothers for their newborn infants. This service has been called upon at the Station Hospital frequently.

On one occasion a mother was struggling on the meager maintenance provided for her in her allotment without assistance from any other source. Her husband had lost interest in her and contributed nothing other than the allotment for her support. She had managed living expenses fairly well for her two-year-old child.

and herself but had been unable to make provisions for the new baby that was expected. When she came to the hospital she had no clothes for her new baby.

When this was learned a layette consisting of two dresses, several shirts, bands, gowns, kimonos, jackets, caps, booties, slippers, receiving blankets and one dozen diapers were given to the mother for her baby. These garments had all been made by Red Cross volunteer workers in various communities in the United States.

This mother along with thousands of others who had received similar services was made happy by the gift of the layette. She also had the feeling that this was a token of welcome to her baby and felt alone in her problem of providing for her children.

3rd Army To End Reich Police Duty

The Third Army occupation of Germany will end Feb. 15, it was announced this week by U. S. Army headquarters at Frankfurt on the Main.

Taking over as the main occupation force for the next two months will be the United States Constabulary. At the end of that time it is expected that the Third Army will have moved its headquarters back to its area in the states, and the Seventh Army, which has been occupying the southeastern area of the country for the Third, will go to Germany for occupation duty.

No comment has been made yet by Seventh Army headquarters in Atlanta.

Atlanta Key Depot For Posts In South, Caribbean Area

Virtually all Army supply distribution functions for the southeastern United States and the Caribbean area have been centralized at the Atlanta General Depot effective Feb. 1, the War Department announced today.

The centralization, which has been undertaken on an experimental basis, is expected to simplify supply procedure for using units and to effect considerable economies in the distribution of supplies for the Army.

The plan was initiated in the Service, Supply and Procurement Division of the War Department and adopted after consultation among War Department staff officials and Generals Jacob L. Devers, Army Ground Forces commander, and Carl Spaatz, Air Forces commander. Only the distribution of specialized Air Forces equipment, perishable foods, petroleum products and ammunition will be excepted for centralized distribution. In the case of these items, existing supply channels are considered adequate.

The new plan calls for all units in the Third Army Area, comprising North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, to submit requisitions for supplies to the Atlanta depot. Units in the Caribbean will, requisition from the New Orleans Port of Embarkation, which will draw the supplies from Atlanta. The depot will fill requisitions from its stocks and will was announced today by General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces.

The huge aircraft carries 125 fully equipped combat troops—more than half of an infantry company—or a cargo pay load of 49,000 pounds, with ease. Adapted for use as a hospital plane, it will accommodate 100 hospital litter cases accompanied by five attendants.

By means of an elevator located immediately to the rear of the wing, 24 men may be lifted into the plane's interior at a time. In a recent demonstration, 15 jeeps were loaded aboard the plane in this fashion, two at a time.

The Case For Merger

Admiral Sherman's description of the new of the proposal as a team integrated at the top is an apt one. And it is the point on which champions and opponents of the plan are most likely to disagree. One section of opinion sees the plan as not "unification" at all, but a pyramiding of functions, a "merging" (they say with intentional sarcasm) of the services into a single autonomous Air Force and an all-powerful Secretary of National Defense means to be the other division of effort and divergence of thought. It makes, they say, a bad thing worse. We are not certain we know just what these people expected of merger, but in some quarters the view seems to be that the Navy and War Secretariats should be abandoned forthwith, giving place to a sort of superchief of all armed forces. In our opinion, this would be a mistake. The present plan is the wisest of the ways of creating a new, strong Cabinet post—the occupant of which has been given power enough to enable him to resist the inevitable pull of the services—it retains civilian heads at the top of the individual arms. They will be sub-secretaries, outside of the Cabinet, but with the right to bypass their immediate chief and appeal directly to the Commander-in-Chief (the President) on important matters. This strikes us as being completely in line with the American system of checks and balances in government. To give unhindered control of the military to one man, even though a civilian, might at some future time prove embarrassing, if not dangerous. The important thing, it seems to us, has been the necessity to put an end to separate planning and separate efforts in the fields of scientific development, procurement, recruitment and training. Such methods have long been unmoderated, inefficient and wasteful of the taxpayer's dollar. With central control at the highest level, we may expect a steady but gradual improvement in these matters. Those who look for immediate results in economy of money or sudden and dramatic changes in quality will be disappointed. Extra expense at the start may be anticipated, but in the end the savings will prove its economic worth. Military effectiveness and not money has always been the prime aim of merger, anyway.

This effectiveness will come about as the result of an evolutionary process, rather than a revolutionary one. Over a period of several gradual stages, a number of functions will take place. Each change in itself will have little apparent effect on the joint organization as a whole. But each will add to the whole. In the end we shall find that the real power of command has shifted to a higher level—to the War Council and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the purely administrative tasks to the sub-secretaries of each arm. In time, too, the recent Military Affairs committees will lose their service predilections and come to act like truly representative armed-force bodies. The choice of a new Secretary of National Defense, of course, is a most important decision for President Truman to make. Much depends on the wisdom and strength of the man chosen. No one can say, at present, who he will be. Almost certainly he will not be a man who has been closely associated with any one branch of the military. He will probably be a man who held a high executive post with the government during the war. Whoever is picked for the top job, it lies now with the lower echelons of all services to put aside the bickering and self-interest of the past and join in the common undertaking. Agreement must have been reached on top—that is important. No less important, it seems to us, is the readiness for brotherliness and comradeship in the lower ranks, now.—Army Times.

Chaplain's Corner..

God's Book

BY CHAPLAIN S. T. JOHNSON
It does not seem possible that a mistake can be made in declaring that these are by far the most strenuous and critical times in the world's history. The battles in the campaigns of the greatest war have ended. But the battles in the campaigns for peace are in the initial stages. Statesmen, businessmen, artists, diplomats, professional men and in fact all classes of persons are asking the question: "How can the interests of all the world be best protected and served?" The answers to this question are nearly as numerous and varied as are those who attempt to reply.

Great opportunities are said to lie before us in the scientific world, but no less important is the opportunity for a successful effort in the religious world. The minds of multitudes are restless with regard to things spiritual. The foundations of faith have not been disturbed though they may appear to some to have been shaken. The spiritual needs of the world are great and are being measurably realized—through the answers to be found in the true Christian. Now is the time of all times for the children of God to let their light shine, to be bold and humble in their efforts to lead others to the Cross of Christ and to the Kingdom of God.

The teachings of the great teachings of the word of God is at least a partial explanation of the forces that struggle among the world's nations during the past several years. The denial of the authority of the Scriptures affected a wide divergence from the simple and fundamental truths of the Bible. The result was the plunging of man into the horrible carnage of the past six years. When individuals in their personal and official relations accept and honor the word of God, reading it, studying, obeying its instructions and commending it to others, there will come to be a greatly improved world. The word of the Bible is a most precious gift to man. It is applicable to all peoples in all ages. The Scriptures are complete, they are up-to-date in their teachings. They embody the wisdom of God and afford both guidance and comfort.

CAREER PROGRAM FOR NCOs... A recent issue of ARMY TIMES gives front page headlines to the following information: A greater number of first grade sergeant-master and first sergeant have been approved for the Army but the Budget Bureau, and the present temporary ban on promotions to the first two grades will be lifted soon. Actual resumption of promotions for these grades since October, 1946, is awaiting revision of tables of organization and allotments. The Budget Bureau authorized an overall number of first graders, and this number in turn has been divided among the Army Air Force and the Army's major commands. As one means of clearing the way for promotions to the first grade, the Air Force effective July 1 expects to limit enlistment in the first grade of former officers and warrant officers and flight officers. Army those who are qualified to perform duties of master and first sergeants. (Because of enlistment as master and first sergeants of many ex-pilots, the Army Air Force has so many extra first graders that an excess was produced for the Army as a whole.) The career plan for enlisted men has been under study, and is now up to the highest War Department level for approval. The plan in general is designed to keep an uninterrupted flow of promotions, will call for uninterrupted service of first three graders in command positions. Enlistments and re-enlistments will be abolished for these non-coms, it is proposed, and they will serve until they retire or obtain warrant officer appointments.

WAC NEWS... Volunteers for re-entry into the WAC are now being accepted provided they waive their right to discharge because of marital status. Former members discharged because of marital status are not eligible for re-enlistment unless such marital status has changed subsequent to date of discharge. AF 106-115, cs, 18 November 1946, provides as follows: (1) Leave members of the WAC married to a member of the Armed Forces, so far as practicable, will be granted concurrent leave with leave of husbands, such leave not to exceed 60 days. (2) Any member of the WAC who is stationed at a continental limits of the United States, upon her request will be granted concurrent leave when her husband, a member of the armed forces, is returned from overseas for temporary duty or reassignment.

G. I. INSURANCE... The House Veterans Affairs Committee this week considered a bill to extend for 6 months or a year the February 1st deadline for renewing G. I. insurance without physical examination. General Bradley has authorized the Veterans' Administration Division of Inspection to investigate and report to the War Relocation Office, to determine the cause of the SNAFU in the insurance division there.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS TO DEPENDENTS OF DECEASED VETERANS... Any individual who has served in the active military or naval service of the United States at any time on or after September 16, 1940, and who has been discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable, after active service of ninety days or more, or because of a disability or injury incurred or aggravated in service in line of duty and who dies within three years after discharge, is considered to have died a fully insured individual for purposes of the act. An insured individual must have paid $160 and to have been paid not less than $200 of wages in each calendar year in which he had thirty days or more of active service on or after September 16, 1940.

That has the effect of making a deceased veteran a beneficiary and his dependents therefore become eligible to apply for survivors' insurance, regardless of whether he had previously ever worked in a social security covered job or whether his former pre-service covered employment was interrupted by his military service.

February 1, 1947, is the deadline for full retroactive payments on survivors' insurance benefits (under this law) to survivors of veterans who die within three years after discharge. Certain retroactive payments of benefits are made for the three months prior to the date an application is received by the Social Security Board Field Office.

For survivors of persons who died either in service of active discharge should contact the nearest Social Security Board Field Office for a determination of their rights to receive benefits. Any Post Office in the United States can provide the address of the nearest Social Security Field Office.

Devotion To Duty

Editor, The Bayonet: When the phrase, "Devotion to duty," is mentioned most of us think of some heroic deed or action such as a Company Commander's gallant leadership in a military situation of this kind. It is not always the case, however, that the deciding factors in success or defeat.

This situation is hypothetical and could be considered impossible. Nevertheless, I maintain that we must perform, to the utmost of our abilities, the duty of observing and absorbing everything that takes place within our sight or hearing while at the Infantry School.

"EAST RIVER"
The United States is fortunate in having such people as Sholem Asch, one of the world's greatest living novelists, counted among their citizens. His contributions to the world of literary work have been many, and in spite of his prolificacy, Mr. Asch's mastery of the English language is undoubted on the wane. This is evidenced by his best work to date, East River.

Mr. Asch has chosen for his background an area along the East River in New York, around the turn of the century. On the pages of his book the reader finds all the suffering, persecution, filth, degradation, and humilitation no prevalent in the crowded slum areas in the early 1900's. The author's profound understanding of the human race, his respect for a man's beliefs, and his heart-warming tolerance for all religions are perhaps the most outstanding characteristics of Sholem Asch; but equally as important are his character descriptions and his apparently limitless knowledge of the various religions, particularly the Jewish and Catholic.

Here for a refreshing change is a novel worth reading. Here is a book that is destined to be one of the best of the year. East River is the tragic-comic narrative of Moshe Wolf Davidowky, his wife Deborah, and his two sons, Nathan and Irving. It is also the story of Mary, a devout Catholic, and her unprejudiced and uncompromising cynicism; it is the story of beautiful Rachel, whose loveliness almost wrenched two eyes from the eyes of Dr. Charanowitch and a kosher butcher named Schmeulevitch.

This is an insight into a Jewish home. Moshe Wolf chants his morning and evening prayers, celebrates the Sedar, and observes the Jewish custom of using certain dishes for dairy products and others for meats. Moshe Wolf's kosher kitchen is a kosher kitchen, and the ritual of eating is adhered to strictly.

Nathan, Moshe Wolf's oldest son, is stricken with infantile paralysis during his freshman year of college and is forced to return to the Davidowsky household, where he is dependent upon his father for his every need. His younger brother, Irving, has already begun to show marked business success, and Moshe Wolf's daughter Deborah turns to Irving for love and affection which she lavishly bestows upon him.

Irving is his promised bride, the beautiful Rachel, for a Gentile and Catholic. Mary. This un-

Twin Mustang Will Try Long Non-Stop Run

WASHINGTON — (CNS) — An Army Air Force Twin Mustang soon will attempt to fly 5,000 miles non-stop from Honolulu to LaGuardia Field in New York, the longest flight ever made by a fighter plane.

The plane will take off from Hickam Field, Hawaii. Dubbed the "Betty Jo" in honor of the wife of the pilot, Lt. Col. Robert E. Thacker, the twin-engined P-52 will streak across 2,600 miles of ocean to the California coast, 17 miles south of Point Arena.

The AAF said the flight is being made to test long-range fighters needed to provide protection for its new super-bombers, the B-29 and B-36.

Another purpose, the AAF said, would be to determine the effect on pilots of extended high altitude flights on long-range escort missions.

After hitting the California coast, the Betty Jo will follow a great circle route over Reno, Nev.; Rock Springs, Wyo.; Detroit, Erie, Pa., and land at LaGuardia Field.

The P-52 Twin Mustang was made by cutting one wing off two Mustang fighters and fusing them into a single, twin-fuselage fighter.

Special Service Unit Reveals Name Change

The name of the Special Service Division of the War Department has been changed to Office, Chief of Special Services, the War Department announced today.

The Office will be continued as an administrative service of the War Department in the postwar military establishment, and will have Army-wide functional responsibility for Post Exchanges, Post Theaters, recreational athletics and liaison with USO and Red Cross agencies. An appropriate allotment of officers will be made to Special Services.

Brigade General Russell B. Reynolds, Chief of Special Services, was appointed to the office in June 1945 to succeed Major General Joseph W. Byron, who returned to the civilian status after holding the post of Special Services Director during the war years.

Dimes March Nets $6,000

Incomplete reports from Fort Benning March of Dimes campaign managers reveal that more than $6,000 has been collected and the total amount is expected to far exceed that figure, Lt. Col. William J. Alexander, chairman, said today.

Fort Benning's participation in the fight against infantile paralysis is hoped to be greater than any previous year, Col. Alexander said. (Last year's contributions totaled $10,857.53.)

Greatest interest in the fund-raising drive was shown by theater patrons who filled glass jars in the lobbies of the post theaters almost to overflowing. The Main Theater's Parade of States, however, led all others in collections.

All Fort Benning personnel, both military and civilian, were given ample opportunity to contribute, and campaign managers expressed satisfaction over the results. Civilians made their donations through the activities to which they were assigned, while military personnel contributed through all others in collections. The Fort Benning campaign was extended through the January 31 pay day.

Final returns will be published Friday, Col. Alexander said.

INFANTRY SCHOOL PACES POST

Academic Department To Train 3,000 In '47

Established in 1918, the Infantry School has always been the sine qua non of Fort Benning. All post activities are centered about it, and through the years the Army's top men have passed through its portals to go on to greater success.

Its mission has been, and still is, to train officers and enlisted men for leadership in all fields connected with infantry operations.

The core of the Infantry School is the Academic Department, which can be compared with the faculty of a college or high school. It is this section that is charged with the instruction and training in the infantry school, including preparation of all extension courses.

A total of 339 officers and 601 enlisted men are authorized for the Department to carry out its instruction in the calendar year of 1946-47, which began in September, 18 courses are listed, with about three thousand enlisted men and officers to receive the instruction. At the war-time peak, 15,000 men were attending courses in the Academic Department.

The following are the eighteen courses now being given:

For Officers
Officers' courses—Basic (22 weeks) for newly commissioned officers in infantry; Associate Basic (thirteen weeks) for new officers; Reserve Officers' Corps, National Guard, Regular officers other than infantry, and all Army Officer Candidate graduates; Advanced (37 weeks) to give further instruction for infantry officers; Associate Advanced (13 weeks) for officers of Organized Reserve Corps, National Guard and Regular Army (other than infantry); Communication (18 1-2 weeks) to train selected officers in technique, characteristic installation, and maintenance of infantry communication systems; Motor (12 weeks) to produce Motor Transport and Motor Maintenance officers; Basic Airborne (6 weeks) to train volunteer officers as qualified parachutists and glidermen; Advanced Airborne (6 weeks) to train selected officers in basic staff duties required in Airborne battalions, regiments, and divisions; Pathfinder (6 weeks) to train officers to precede an Airborne force in a predetermined operation area; Air Transportability (3 weeks) to instruct officers in movement of troops, equipment, and supplies by air.

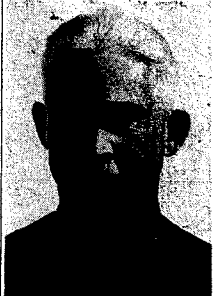

For Enlisted Men
Enlisted men's courses—Army Officer Candidate (24 weeks) to qualify enlisted men for commission in the Army of the United States; Non-Commissioned Officer (18 1-2 weeks) to prepare selected enlisted men for tactical and administrative duties in the Infantry; Communication Chiefs (18 1-2 weeks) to produce communication chiefs; Radio Repairmen (18 1-2 weeks); Motor (15 weeks) to train enlisted men to perform first and second echelon maintenance on wheeled vehicles; Basic Airborne (6 weeks) to train enlisted men as parachutists and glidermen; Parachute Rigger (8 weeks) to instruct students in parachute packing, maintenance, and repair; Pathfinders (8 weeks) to train parachutists to precede an Airborne force and direct and

The four colonels pictured above come directly under General Shepard in the organizational set-up of the Academic Department.

First in line is Colonel Johnson, who is the department's secretary. He is the assistant commandant's administrative executive and has supervision over the library, Army field printing plant, and of military and civilian personnel assigned to the Academic Department.

Custodian of Records
The secretary is also custodian of the academic records and is in charge of all correspondence pertaining to the personnel planning policy and overall administration of the Academic Department.

Colonel Lloyd Brown, as coordinator of training, runs the training program used by the Academic Department in the instruction of its courses. He reviews all the training problems, formulates training standards, and maintains an inspection of problems and records.

In addition he acts for the assistant commandant in coordinating training problems and arranges for training facilities, equipment, manuals, and material.

Engineer Real Estate Headed By Col. Goerz

Col. Peter P. Goerz has been named director of real estate, office of the Chief of Engineers, succeeding Col. Albert H. Burton, the War Department announced today. Col. Clarence C. Haug succeeds Colonel Goerz as executive officer, office of the Director of Military Construction. The changes were authorized by Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, Chief of Engineers.

The director of real estate has charge of the acquisition and disposition of all real estate purchased or sold for the Army. During the war this office handled hundreds of thousands of acres of real estate. Colonel Goerz, a native of New York City, was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1918 and from the Engineer School in 1921. He has served with various units in the United States, was instructor for the National Guard, and served in the Pacific during the war. He wears the Bronze Star Medal with Cluster.

His supervision also extends over the Operations Office.

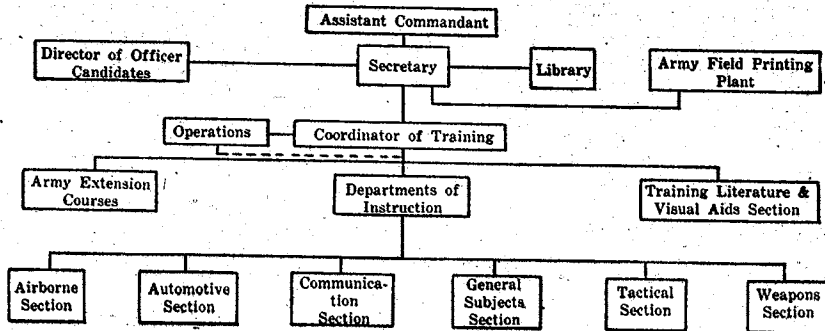

The operations officer, who is Colonel Sandusky, directs all matters concerning class schedules, troop requirements, transportation of students and instructors, and assignment of areas, classrooms, material, and facilities.

Safety Officer
Col. Sandusky also acts as safety officer of the Academic Department.

Colonel Julian H. Gist, the director of officer candidates; is—as his title implies—the man in charge of the future officers in the Benning Officer Candidate School. He is the liaison officer between the assistant commandant and the commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment.

Col. Gist exercises general supervision over the selection of officers from student personnel attending officer candidate classes.

ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT THE INFANTRY SCHOOL ORGANIZATIONAL AND FUNCTIONAL CHART

General Shepard Now In Second Year As Academic Department Head And Assistant TIS Commandant

Assumed Duties In August 1945

Brigadier General Whitfield P. Shepard became assistant commandant of the Infantry School and head of the Academic Department in August, 1945, succeeding Brigadier General George H. Weems.

General Shepard has served a great many years at Fort Benning, and took part in both World Wars. It was during World War I, when he fought through the Meuse-Ardenne offensive, that he won a commission as a second lieutenant in the Infantry.

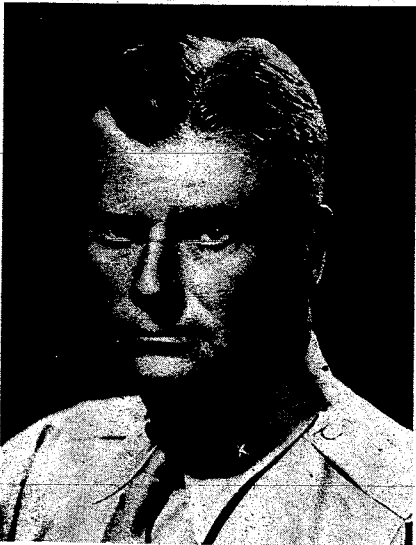

To Benning in 1921
He came to Fort Benning in 1921 to take a 10 months' course in the then three-year-old Infantry School, not leaving the post till 1928, when he went on an assignment to Tientsin, China.

During that time at the Infantry School he was an instructor, personnel officer of the School Division, and assistant secretary in the department which he now heads.

The general served three years in China, coming home in 1931 to become an assistant professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Maryland. In August, 1933, he was assigned to the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and was graduated in June, 1934.

He then joined the 26th Infantry at Plattsburgh Barracks, New York, and Pine Camp, New York. In August, 1934, he was sent to the Army War College, Washington, and upon graduation returned to Fort Benning as an instructor. He was promoted to captain on October 1, 1934.

Remains Till 1940
General Shepard stayed at Benning until 1940, when he became

BRIGADIER GENERAL WHITFIELD P. SHEPARD
... Assistant Commandant

assistant chief of the Statistics Branch at the War Department's General Staff in Washington, D. C. In September, 1941, he was made chief of that branch.

He then wore the gold oak leaf, having been promoted to major on July 1, 1940. On September 15, 1941, he was elevated to lieutenant colonel. Six months later he was made a full colonel.

Chief of Staff of the Armored Division, North Camp Folk, Louisiana, was General Shepard's next assignment in August 1942. Shortly after that he served in the same capacity at the Desert Training Center, California, with the 7th Armored Division at Fort Benning.

In November, 1943, he joined the 16th Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, for duty with Combat Command "A."

He was promoted to the rank of brigadier general on February 22, 1944. He became assistant commander of the Third Infantry Division, and landed with this outfit in Southern France in the east of Europe.

Holds Many Honors

General Shepard holds the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the French Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerra with Palm, and the European Theater Ribbon with four battle stars and an arrowhead for amphibious landing. For his service with the Third Division in France he was awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge.

As assistant commandant, General Shepard is in charge of all instruction, administration in regard to instruction, and instructional personnel. He also has supervision over preparation of texts, reference books, and mailing list material. Army Extension courses and preparation and revision of field manuals and other publications come under his surveillance, too.

It may be questioned why so much space is devoted to this one department, but it's really just that the main function of the Infantry School is carried out without a faculty, there could be no school, and—consequently—no Fort Benning.

Devers Surprised
It is for this reason that General Devers was so surprised that Columbus citizens should be concerned about the transferring of the AOC and BOC to Fort Riley. For this is only a drop in the bucket, merely the elimination of two courses. The importance of Fort Benning as the place to go to become an Infantry leader remains undiminished.

In the next few weeks the various activities of the Academic Department will be highlighted in the Bayonet, so that a better understanding of its work can be obtained.

All the sections will be covered, as they operate in the field and in office—how each aids in the instruction of the infantry leader of tomorrow.

Bouquet to 'Bulleur'

The Bulleur, one of the Army's oldest newspapers and an unofficial spokesman for the 25th Infantry Regiment, has rejoined the Fourth Estate. The Bayonet would like to take this opportunity to express its good wishes and hope for the staff to enjoy complete success in their effort to provide the readable newspaper for the 25th's personnel.

Experienced Officers Head Sections

On this page are the pictures of the seven men whose departments dispense the instructional matter taught at The Infantry School.

All phases of the infantry in action are part of this curriculum. Probably the largest of the departments of instruction is the one headed by Colonel Lindquist. Known throughout the war as The Airborne School, this department is the only one in the U. S. Army offering the basic airborne course.

It is a six-weeks course, taken after enlistee's or officer's primary basic. Trainees are instructed not only in parachute-jumping, but in technique of landing by glider, in operation and maintenance of airborne equipment. There is also the advanced course for special training in functions of staff officers of airborne units up to and including the airborne division.

This past fall the Airborne School was made part of The Infantry School. It continues in the same capacity, only now it is the Academic Department curriculum.

One of the most important divisions of the Academic Department is its Army Extension Course Section, with Colonel Wayne Archer in charge.

Infantry officers throughout the Army take these courses, which cover all infantry subjects and are prepared by the same sections at The Infantry School that deliver the residential instruction. This extension course program is tied in with the Army system of residential schools and is a vital part of the system of education proposed by the Army. To those vast numbers of officers who have not the opportunity of attending one of the resident schools such as The Infantry School, the Army Extension Course offers the parallel of the resident instruction to the enlisted officers corps. As far as possible the entire curriculum of the school is set down on paper for the benefit of those Army officers unable to take advantage of the actual instruction at The Infantry School.

The Automotive, Communication, Tactical and Weapons Sections each courses relative to their fields, for both officers and enlisted men.

The instructional matter of the General Subjects Section is not so simple to pin down. It is charged with the preparation and presentation of instruction in all subjects necessary to the efficient combat operations of the infantry and airborne units not specifically allocated to the other sections.

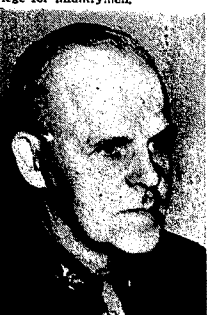

It also conducts a training course for the instructors teaching

TIS 'Simply Magnificent,' Visitors Say

"The Infantry School is simply magnificent."

"I had not supposed that any Army school could be so good, and I am somewhat chagrined that, in spite of an entire life in studying educational methods, I am not able to suggest anything which would appreciably affect the quality of the work."

These comments were made by two prominent educators, Dr. James Grafton Rogers, of Yale, and Professor Warren A. Seavey, of Harvard Law School, respectively, after observing the way the Academic Department does its instructional job.

That its methods are highly regarded can be seen from the numerous visits paid to Fort Benning by so many military leaders not only in the U. S. Army, but from all over the world.

Here is a list of the visitors to Benning just in this past month:

Jan. 6—Maj. General Floyd L. Parks, Chief of Public Relations Division, Office of Chief of Staff, and Col. John R. Francis, USA, retired (unofficial visit); Jan. 7—Col. W. I. Sherwood and Major John W. Page, Office of IG, Washington; Jan. 8—Lt. General Oscar W. Griswold, CG, Seventh Army; Jan. 8—General Jacob L. Devers, CG, Army Ground Forces, and Major General Herbert L. Earnest, G-3, ASF; Jan. 14—Col. Robert Q. Brown and 14 other officers (inspection team from Seventh Army); Jan. 16—Lt. Col. S. Hwang, Asst. Chinese Military Attaché, USA; Col. Hung Fao and Lt. Col. Kuli Su Lin (all of Chinese Army).

Jan. 20—Brig. Juan Luis Gargamendi, Argentine Air Force, Brig. Aristobulo Reyes, Argentine Air Force, and Major Fernandez, Air Corps, USA; Jan. 22—General Wei Li-Huang, Chinese Army, Mrs. Wei Li-Huang, and Major Joseph Lowe, Chinese Army, Mr. Chung An-Min, Secretary, Miss Eleanor Brees, and Col. David Barrett, U. S. Army; Jan. 23—Brig. General Wood Col. Van Duzee, and Lt. Col. Watson (all of Army Exchange Service); Jan. 24—Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham, Chief of I & E Division, War Dept. Special Staff.

Bronze Star Awarded Late S-Sgt. Lands

A Bronze Star medal was presented posthumously to the late S-Sgt. William A. Lands at special ceremonies at Gowdy Field last Saturday morning and was accepted by his mother Mrs. Eva L. Copeland, of Newnan, Ga. Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, made the presentation.

According to the citation, Sgt. Lands performed "meritorious service against the enemy of the United States from July 18 to September 28, 1944." He was a member of the 35th Infantry division.

Following the presentation of the award, companies of School Troops passed in review.

The subjects at The Infantry School that the standard of instruction may be kept on the high level necessary at this Army college for infantrymen.

AIRBORNE REGIMENT HOST TO WARM SPRINGS GROUP—The Infantry School Airborne Section displayed its pomp and ceremony, plus a view of parachute operations to seven patients from the Warm Springs Foundation, Saturday, Feb. 1. Accompanied by Dr. Harriet Gillette, well known Warm Springs Fellow specialist, and Miss Helen Vaughn, the Foundation's Chief Physical Therapist, seven patients were escorted on a tour of the Airborne Section installations, and afforded a close view of actual parachute drops at Normandy Field. The tour was preceded by being presented to their hosts, the enlisted personnel of the Airborne Section, who passed in review. Lt. Col. Paul Smith, Airborne Regimental Commander, presented each patient with a small gift in behalf of the men in his command. Albany Publisher Speaks To Benning Woman's Club

The Fort Benning Woman's Club held its third general meeting Monday, February 3 in the Main Lounge of the Officers' Club, followed by tea served in the Palm Room.

Guest speaker for the occasion was James H. Gray, owner and publisher of the Albany, Ga., Herald, who addressed the ladies on the subject, "What Can We Do," concerned with the importance of the individual in a modern democracy.

"Peace," said Mr. Gray, "can only be made in the minds of mankind and not by leaders alone."

Pvt. Marie Calise of the 72nd Army Ground Force band entertained with three accordion solos, "Trust Overture," "Tico-Tico" and "Temptation."

Prior to the entertainment, which was arranged by Mrs. Julian Dayton, program chairman, a business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Elmer E. Wallender, president, who outlined the need for a volunteer leader for "Brat Barracks," Fort Benning's version of a teen tavern. Mrs. Wallender also announced the reopening of the Thrift Shop at a date in the near future. Mrs. Brookner W. Brady gave a report on the Nursery School, announcing a teacher vacancy as well as a raise in the tuition fee for each child.

Mrs. Wiley O'Moahundo reminded the ladies of the Bridge Group meeting on February 14 at 1:30 p. m., with a special program and prizes. Mrs. Robert H. Smith announced the next Book Review meeting, which will be held Monday, February 10.

The next general meeting of the Woman's Club will be held March 3 at 1:00 p. m., featuring a Spring Style Show preceded by luncheon. The show is being arranged by Mrs. Les Lilienthal of the Columbus firm Kayser-Lilienthal. Mrs. Jess Ladd, hospitality chairman, stated that reservations for the Style Show must be made before February 28.

With the business and entertainment finished, the ladies enjoyed tea served from a lace-covered table centered with delicate Japanese magnolias. Pouring were Mrs. O'Moahundo, Mrs. Paul Hayes, Mrs. Wesley U. Moran and Mrs. William C. Shure. During the tea soft organ background music was played by Miss Frances Gladden, hostess at Service Club No. 1.

Keeping TABS

Coach Lt. Carney of the TABR basket-ball team urges all Paratroopers to attend the basket-ball games played between the Airborne Troopers and the local and out-of-towners. The Troopers have been playing a swell game of ball this year, but need the support of their buddies.—There's NO AD-MISSION FEE fellers!

At eight o'clock Tuesday the TABR cagers met the Junior Airmen at Lawson Field for a hard fought game in the 'A' Stage Gym. The turn-out was good, but not as good as had been expected. Whadaya say, Gang? They're purty boys and they need our support from the bleachers. Hows about coming to the next game? Watch your team climb to the top of the 47 basket-ball roster.

TABR seems to have a wizard of billiards in its midst. The man in front of the eight-ball is T/S Jerome J. Curl, of HQ Co. Curley has a foot locker full of medals and certificates to back up his claim to "Master of the Cue." He will play anyone on the Post (enlisted) any type of game played on a billiard table. The games are not to be played for monetary gain but for the sport alone. It's a good chance to learn something about "Balls and Cues" fellers.

The sole purpose of the Separation Center isn't only to discharge men. Ask any Trooper on DS there. It has also brought romance with a great big Ahhhhh! to "Boots" Cook of Co. H and Peggy Bowers' strong woman gal. Four old Boots is having a rough time beating the competitors away from his "Light of Life" dear. Sounds like a good case for the famous Mr. Anthony, to me.

T/Sgt. Myratt: All of your friends are anxiously waiting for you to check in at the Psychopathic Ward at the Stoen Hospital. You're not going to disappoint us after all, are you. While you are there, look in on poor old Quinn, for us, huh?

LIBRARY NOTES

Five hundred new books were put into circulation at Library No. 2 during the month of January. Numerous mystery and western stories, as well as "best sellers," may be found on the shelves.

Music lovers will enjoy the weekly record concert each Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The program for Tuesday, February 11, will be: Strauss; Der Rosenkavalier Suite, Brahms; Symphony No. 2 in D Minor; Prokofiev; Classical Symph in D Major.

The rush for nylon, shortage of men's suits and the high price of beer in the old civilian world, has already brought many of our old and (loved) troopers back to the fold. One of our latest returns is back Sgt. Snares—Welcome back Doc, glad to see you.

Miss Joyce Vincent Weds Lt. William C. Powers

Of widespread interest is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Joyce Vincent, daughter of Mrs. Isabelle Star, Vincent of Columbus, to William Clinton Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Powers of Fredericktown, Pa., which was celebrated Saturday at the Post chapel with Chaplain Lt. Col. William C. Shure performing the ceremony.

The chapel was beautifully decorated. A large fern tree sprayed with white gladioli was just above the altar with urns of gladioli, stock, and lilies of the valley on either side. On the altar were placed five and three branched candelabra. Baskets of gladioli and lilies of the valley were on either side of the chancel rail. Candelholders tied with satin ribbon and sprayed with lilies of the valley and gladioli were arranged alternately down the aisle.

Mrs. L. H. Averitt presented a program of nuptial music which included "Ava Maria," "Clair de Lune," "I Love Thee," and the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Miss Ellen Garrett, soloist, sang, "I Love Thee," and "Because."

Lt. W. S. Jungerheld served as best man.

The ushers included Lt. L. B. Tixer, Lt. W. B. Castle, Lt. H. G. DeMoya, and Lt. T. J. Lepski.

Mrs. Billie Lewis of Nashville, Tenn., was her maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Gloria Baggett, Miss Katherine Jenkins, Miss Mildred Bobo and Mrs. D. B. Anderson. They were gowned alike in dresses fashioned with a white faille bodice and full skirt with a medium faille band around the skirt with two small bows in front. The gowns featured deep sweetheart necklines with a net yoke and three quarter length shirred sleeves. The new wore Mary Queen of Scot bonnets in their hair. They carried bouquets of deep pickery gladioli.

The lovely young blonde bride was picturesque in her wedding gown of heavy ivory skinner satin designed with a long trail and a sweetheart neckline designed with five rows of seed pearls, and long sleeves which came to the point over the hands. She wore a fingertip veil of ivory illusion with a flat heavy satin coronet trimmed with seed pearls. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls. The bride's bouquet was centered with an orchid and showered with Stephanotis.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the Palm room of the Officers Club.

Nearly 500 Guests Enjoy Dancing At New NCO Club

Almost 500 NCO's, their wives and dates were swinging and waltzing last night to the music of Johnny Mack and his orchestra at the Post Non-Commissioned Officers' Club, recently reopened on South Kilgore street.

In addition to ball dancing, a half hour broadcast of Mack's music was made over Columbus radio WDAF, with Sgt. William A. Dilliken, chairman of the entertainment committee, officiating as master-of-ceremonies.

Heard on the program were Chris Hadley, lovely songstress; and former Powers model featured with hand and Jimmy Norvell NCO drummer and four-star vocalist as well as Don Angelo, one of America's finest pianists.

Johnny Mack's orchestra is an outstanding seven-piece versatile combination playing both sweet and swing and filled with solid and novel entertainment.

Johnny Mack's orchestra was the first of a series of headliners in big-name bands who will play every other Wednesday at the NCO Club. On the slate for March are the bands of Bob Sylvester and Hal McInyre.

'TRIPLE DRIBBLE'—Three kegs of Doughboy dynamic converges on the opposition. The trio shown above, consisting of Cal Luther, Scooter Baker, and Bob Logan have dumped 415 points through enemy nets, in the Doughboys' first 20 games this season. Right now they are up at Fort Jackson, S. C., with the Doughs, helping to wrap up the 7th Army tourney.

Doughs Carry Best Win List To 7th Army Meet

With a record of 18 wins against 3 losses in seasonal play, the Doughboys of this post must be regarded as the team to beat in each of the three tournaments they will compete in this month.

The first meet on the ledger is the 7th Army tournament already under way, being played at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. The Doughboys should be a shoe-in winner, since they have already scored 10 heavy wins over most of the teams represented. The tourney, which started February 5, is scheduled to end on the 7th.

From Jackson, the Doughs will travel down to Atlanta to defend their state championship in the State Open Basketball tourney. Once again the Doughboys are regarded as the team to beat in a field of better than twenty teams from all over Georgia. The tournament will be run off between Feb. 9 and 13.

The team will meet their toughest test in the Southeastern A. A. U. meet, scheduled to run from Feb. 15 to Feb. 20. The toughest teams from the State Open will be entered as well as all the top independent teams from the surrounding states. Included will be the Bessemer Royals of Birmingham, general regarded as the best independent five in the Southeast, and the Atlanta Sports Arena, whom the Doughboys have never beaten in Atlanta.

Coach Tallis, Doughboy mentor, refuses to worry too much about any of the tourneys, and for good reason. The Doughs have averaged 60 points a game to their opponents' 43 in regular season play, and have not suffered a setback since January 19. Since that time, they have compiled a string of eight straight wins, including among their victims the Birmingham Vulcans and the Atlanta Sports Arena.

The Doughs appear to have hit their real stride in recent games. They have a versatile offense, and have frequently surprised their opponents by switching tactics in the middle of a game.

Miller, Logan Stand Out
Among the individual Doughs, Bill Miller, ETOASHRDEHTASHRRR, Bill Miller, and Bob Logan have shown the greatest improvement over the season. At the start of the year, when Coach Tallis was experimenting with various line-ups to find the most effective five, Logan found himself warming the bench.

When Tallis finally decided to use him regularly, he worked into the Dough attack like a charm, really hitting the stride in one of the Oliver General Hospital setos when he scored 30 points for a new Dough individual scoring record.

Miller's case was a little different. Bill had himself a regular job, and one day he slipped into a Doughboy uniform. His 8'3" frame and all around savvy of the game made him a natural for the Doughboy pivot spot. Miller is a brilliant play maker and a top-flight rebound man, but he never shot very much, and consequently he never scored many points.

Coach Tallis finally got on him about shooting a little more, and Bill began to pay some mind. He developed an effective pivot shot with either hand, and began to put it to use. The change was little short of amazing. In Bill's last four games he scored 60 points for an average of better than 15 per, a remarkable contrast to his average of roughly 5 a game before the renaissance.

Foul Trouble
The Doughs had a lot of trouble with their foul tosses during the first half of the year, barely making 50% of their tries. The deficiency cost them two of the three losses they suffered during the year. Coach Tallis decided something would have to be done, so he ordered a crossover to the man who had the highest free throw percentage during the year.

The Doughs came along gradually, but now they are averaging better than 60% in each game. Miller alone dropped in 10 tosses in one night a week in which he's yet bettered.

The Bennitigmen were forced to cancel three home games in week in order to participate in the tourneys, one with the Dawson Lions, one with Blackhill Field, and another with Jacksonville NAS. The game with the Jacks will be played off early in March. The only other home game to be played will be with Mercer University on either the 13th or 14th of February.

Meek Takes Coaching Job At Maryland

"Fort Benning's loss is the University of Maryland's gain," Lieutenant Bill Meek, who coached the Fort Benning Doughboys through the past undefeated season and led them to the National Service Championship, has announced his signing at Maryland University. He will go to the university in the capacity of back-field coach.

For the past two seasons Meek led the Doughboys. In the 1945 season he acted as player and coach until the last game, when the badly crippled club called on his services to carry them through their last game with the powerful Jacksonville Naval Air Station team in Jacksonville.

To Work with Tatum
Jim Tatum, head coach at Maryland, had ample opportunity to see Meek in action because it was in 1945 when Jim Tatum brought the Jacksonville Navy team here to Fort Benning, and soundly trounced the Doughboys. Tatum was coaching at Jacksonville Navy, but in the return game Meek and his Doughboy team went to Jacksonville with revenge on their minds and that is just what they got as they set the team's team 47-7 in one of the biggest upsets of the season.

Meek graduated from the University of Tennessee in March, 1945. At the Southeastern Conference school Meek made quite a record. He played the work-horse role in the blocking back spot of the single-wing attack used by Tennessee. He played in the All-Star game at Chicago in 1945.

After graduation from the Volunteers Meek was made an assistant by the Detroit Lions of the National Professional Football League to play with them. He had to enter the service and that put the damper on his pro career for the present.

Another Pro Offer
Just before he signed with the Maryland team he was approached by the Detroit officials again who proposed they could make the offer a little more interesting.

Lieutenant Meek, his wife and two children just returned from a short vacation in Florida and it is quite evident that that Florida sunshine was what the doctor ordered. The lieutenant is back to his slightly over two hundred pound weight and looking fit to take over his new position. The

Fliers Strafe 1290th, 48-40

The Lawson Field Fliers defeated the 1290th Engineers last Friday evening at the Airborne Gym by the score of 48-40. The score at the half time was 23-22 in favor of the Fliers.

The game was closely fought all the way with the Lawson Field team maintaining a slight lead throughout. Cpl. Frank W. Wilson, captain of the team, was high scorer for the Fliers with 12 points.

The Fliers will participate in the Ninth Air Force Tournament which will start in the early part of February.

Doughs Come From Behind To Defeat Mercer Five

Sparked by Bill Miller's 22 points, the Benning Doughboys came from behind in the third period to defeat the Mercer University Bears 65-55, last Thursday night in Macon.

It was an uphill pull all the way for the Doughs, principally because of overzealous officiating. Coach Tallis of the Benningites was forced to spit his squad, sending nearly all his reserves to Ft. McClellan for a game on the same night. He took only six men with him to Macon, which should have been ample under normal circumstances.

But Mercer had had a good deal of trouble with the officiating in recent games. The arbitrators had showed a tendency to call only the most obvious fouls, and, as a consequence, a couple of the recent games at Mercer got completely out of hand and degenerated into player brawls.

The officials in the Doughboys game had been cautioned about a recurrence of any such incident, and they made sure nothing would happen.

At the end of the first four minutes of play, Cal Luther, first string Doughboy guard, had four personal fouls. Coach Tallis has-tened him in Dave Gardner, his only reserve, and in less than five minutes Dave had three personal fouls himself. Eight more fouls were called on the Doughs in the first half, an average of almost three per man.

The Doughboys, in spite of the numerous charity fouls awarded the opposition, trailed only 31-27 at the half, but with four fouls on Luther, four on Baker, and a pair on Miller, the outlook was not good.

After a brief council-of-war the Benning men returned to the floor with Luther back in harness. Miller promptly fouled Bob Shuler, who sank the foul toss to bring the score to 32-27. Miller was fouled a moment later, trying to get a shot off under the Mercer basket. He sank both his free throws, but Dykes dropped in a field goal a moment later to restore the Bear's five-point edge. Miller countered with a hook from the free throw line for two points bringing the count to 34-31.

Bears Lead

Then Snow, Shuler, and Dykes tallied in rapid succession for Mercer, giving the Bears a nine-point edge, 40-31. Miller was still operating as a one man task force. He dropped in a bucket to shorten the lead, but committed his fourth personal foul a moment later on Tom Dykes, who sank a pair of free throws. Snow fouled Miller in return, and the big Kentuckian dropped in a pair of charity tosses. Sutton balanced his efforts with a field goal, score, 44-35.

In the next four and a half minutes, the Doughboys treated the crowd to some of the best basketball ever seen at Mercer. Baker hit on a free throw. Logan hit twice from the field, and Baker followed suit with a long from the right side. Sutton showed them up briefly with a field goal, but Miller quickly retaliated with a pivot shot. Baker scored from far out, and so did Luther. Logan dropped in a pair of free throws, and Baker hit on another long shot. Dykes took the lead and a free throw for the Bears, but there was no stemming the tide. Anderson connected with a fifteen foot-

WIVES TO MEET

The Army Wives Club of Columbus will have a luncheon on Monday, February 10, at 1:30 p. m. in the Army-Navy YWCA at 14th and 11th St. Mrs. Emily Anderson will address the group on "The Magic 7" a talk concerned with meal planning. For reservations to this luncheon army wives are invited to telephone Columbus 3-8421.

Since the first recorded commercial production of petroleum in the 1850's, the earth has been tapped for more than 23,000,000 barrels of 42 U. S. gallons) er from the left side, and Baker scored on a long shot. Logan followed up a moment later on another break. Stewart dropped in a long for the home five, bringing cheers from the stunned spectators, but the soldiers weren't through yet. Miller made his tenth free throw of the night, and followed it up with a tally on a fast break. Dykes scored again for the Bears.

Doughs Move Ahead

Miller hit on another pivot, and Logan dropped in a long, bringing the score up to 65-53, this time with the Doughs out in front. Anderson called for a time out, and the Doughboys held a brief consultation. When play resumed, the Doughs took the ball over and began to stall. There was still seven minutes of playing time left, but it was the only thing the Benningites could do. With four fouls on each of three key men, they couldn't afford to take any chances under the basket.

From the time the Doughs took the ball out, 'till the end of the game, Mercer got to feel it only three times. They scored once, Dykes dropping in the last tally of the game.

ISD Student In Home Loop

The ISD took the lead this week in the School Troops Basketball league by defeating the 1st Bn. 37th Infantry team 78 to 15. The little man Hook had field night for ISD as he dropped in eight buckets and two free shots for 18 points. Johnson and Gasale scored 4 points apiece to take honors for 1st BN.

But the game of the week was between the 756th Tankers and Service Co. 37th. The lead changed hands six times with both teams never leading by more than three points, then with fifty seconds to go, the Tankers put in a shot to put the score at 33. It looked like there would have to be an overtime period after Service Co. missed a free shot, but Kusich got the rebound and was forced to pass it out to Petrie. With four seconds left in the game he had no time to work it in and had to shoot from the middle of the floor. The shot was good and Service won a game with story-book finish 35 to 33. Kusich was high man for Service Co. with 22 points while Fogle was high for the Tankers with 10 points.

In other games this week the 501st Parachute Bn. beat the 83rd FA 63 to 22 to stay close to the top of the standing. Bowling was high man for Troopers with 18 points, with Stevenson high for the loggers with eight points.

On the same night the 1290th Eng beat the 204th TC BN, 75 to 51. As always Lt. Cowley of the Tankers was high man with 30 points. Nicklos led the Eng. with 18 points.

Benning Cagers Beat Sports Arena, 48-39

Sweet, sweet revenge was exacted by the Doughboys on the night of Feb. 1 when they beat the Sports Arena 48 to 39. It was win number one for the Doughs over the Rebels this year, and they proved to Coach Tamm by being saying all year, "The Doughboys can beat any team on their home floor."

The biggest home crowd of the season was in attendance as the Doughboys humbled their biggest (literally) rivals. The soldier five made the win look easy. They played slowly and cautiously, rarely using their fast break, resorting instead to a set weave on offense, or individual breaks.

Golf Winner To Participate In 'Master's'

An invitation to participate in the famed Masters Tournament will reward the winner of the Interservice Golf Invitational Tournament to be held at Oliver General Hospital, Augusta, on March 28, 29 and the War Department-announced today.

Referee Harris scored the first basket for the Doughs on a long shot by Luther, which fell short. Old Eagle eye (Harris) caught Chuck Kemnitz with his finger inside the net as he went up to retrieve the Luther shot, and awarded the basket to Mr. Luther and the Doughboys.

All service personnel stationed within the continental limits of the United States who can meet the rules of the United States Golf Association governing eligibility to amateur classification are eligible to compete if approved by their service or army command. Watchful eyes on his activities, Kersulis put in a total of 4 points, 2 of them on free throws. Sid told Kersulis bucketed the last time the teams met.

Miller and Luther earned individual plaques for their floor work. Luther drew the night's toughest assignment, that of guarding the formidable 6-foot-11-inch star, Slip Kersulis. Kersulis held a 5-1/2" height advantage many points, but to mention young Calvin hadn't heard about it. With Luther keeping an ever watchful eye on his activities, Kersulis put in a total of 4 points, 2 of them on free throws. Sid told Kersulis bucketed the last time the teams met.

Bill Miller spent an enjoyable evening demonstrating the value of a good fake, properly executed, and the fortunate souls given the choice of receiving Miller for their scoring a large number of points. The first victimized Kemnitz, Baker and Miller who scored 11 and 10 respectively.

Best medal score for 36 holes will determine the Continental Interservice Invitational Golf champion. Appropriate awards will be presented to the winner and runner-up and to the winning team.

Seventh Army is official sponsor of the tourney. Colonel Hew B. McMurdo, M.C. Commanding Officer of Oliver General Hospital, who first conceived the invitational, heads a committee representing the various services which has been at work since November formulating plans and regulations.

The following number of entries have been allotted among the services:

U. S. Navy (to include Marine Corps) 60	U. S. Coast Guard 12	Army Air Forces 60	each of the six Army Armies 10
each of the six Army Districts of Washington, 4 each	22

2nd Bn Tops 25th Boxers

BY S-SGT. ALYSEN E. WISE
Lumping into the helm of the five-team tourney for the first time in several months, 2nd Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment's boxing team were once again masters of all they surveyed when by winning four matches last Thursday night during the 25th Infantry Regimental tourney in a C. T. Field house, they snatched the lead away from 1st Battalion. Tonight, eight bouts will be presented in the Sand Hill emporium of legalized mayhem. First bout, 8 o'clock.

25th Boxer Held Year's Top Athlete

Acclaimed as 25th Combat Team's athlete of the year, T-4 George W. Wardell, 4th Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment's current heavyweight boxing sensation has been a member of all top sports teams representing the Sand Hill organization.

A howling, enthusiastic crowd of boxing fans representing both sexes jammed the spacious Field House to the veritable rafters. Sparkling tunes by the popular 18th ACF Dance Orchestra played loudly rendered the tourney day with CWO Harry H. Hallow, directing and Pfc. David Johnson supplementing vocal embellishments.

Transferred to the 25th in early April '46, Wardell served as second string catcher, performed admirably as a utility player, and won several ball games for his team in a pinch hitting role. With the advent of football season, he continued his athletic activities as first string tackle, was a sixty-minute a game player, and on other occasions covered himself with glory by initiating plays which turned the tide of defeat to victory for his cohorts.

Conceded but a small chance of usurping a top role in the heavyweight class of the regular 25th Infantry Regimental weekly boxing matches, Wardell, starting in class-V showed his ability in the 25th and take department by setting current favorites to surge to his present position of one of the top fighters in class-11.

Possessing an apt talent for sports which began in his school days at his home town in Erie, Pa., entered six events during the Penn Relays at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1936 winning first place in 100 Yard Dash Finals, and second in the finals of the Mile Run.

Joint Schooling For 900 Officers Aims At 'Unity'

Approximately 900 selected officers of the Navy, Army Ground Forces and Army Air Forces will, by February of 1947, be studying together in advanced service schools, according to a joint statement issued today by the War and Navy Departments. The increasing emphasis being placed upon joint schooling of officers from the three services is illustrative of the continuous study being given to the problem of attaining senior officers the best possible preparation for key command and staff assignment.

Thirty officers, each from the Army Ground Forces, Navy and Army Air Forces, and 10 from the State Department were registered in September for the course at the National War College in Washington. Forty-seven Ground Force, 20 Air Force and 30 Navy students are studying at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. Officers from three of the three services are enrolled in the new Armed Forces staff college, which the first course is scheduled to begin Feb. 1. These schools are operated jointly by the armed services.

In addition, officers are studying in schools operated separately by services other than the one to which they belong. For example, the Navy War College has 33 Ground Force and 13 Air Force officers in attendance with the 90 Naval officers enrolled there. Students at the new Air Force staff college, Maxwell Field, Ala., has nine students from the Ground Force, three from the Marines, and one from the Navy enrolled in addition to 140 Air Force students. Six Marine and seven Air Force officers join 240 Ground Force officers in attendance at Fort Leavenworth's Command and Staff college.

The new joint study plan was put into operation in September, 1946. Although officers of the various services had long foreseen the need, and joint schooling on a limited scale was being conducted even before the war, implementation of the expanded plan had necessarily to wait upon the successful end of hostilities. As soon as it was feasible, steps were taken to set up a system designed to eliminate some of the problems that had developed during the global, tripartite war.

Civilian Group To Aid Army in UMT Test

FORT KNOX, Ky.—(CNS)—An advisory committee of 30 civilians will be named to aid in the experimental universal military training program underway here, Army officials have announced.

The experimental unit is testing proposed training methods which the Army plans to put into effect if Congress approves a peacetime UMA program.

After studying the experimental unit, the advisory committee will report its findings to Brig. Gen. John M. DeWine, unit commander, and to Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the Army Ground Forces.

Of the 664 volunteer enlisted men scheduled to undergo a year of training, 435 had arrived on Jan. 28, up to which time one company had completed a week of the first six-month program.

'Ike' Would Keep Forces In Foe Lands

NEW YORK—(CNS)—Continued occupation of Germany and Japan is among the greatest contributions the United States could make to future peace, according to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff. In an address to the Bond Club, he said that American occupation forces have been reduced to such a level that "we have reached the point of danger."

Gen. Eisenhower explained that the nation faced a short-term, as well as a long-term problem in obtaining relative security through arms. The short-term problem, he said, is getting rid of the "expensive type of volunteer enlistments."

The Chief of Staff referred to draftees as "the expensive type of soldier" in that they served only a short time in relation to the amount spent on their training.

He declared that the long-term problem is obtaining relative security, a state which involves keeping the Army up to date through scientific research and development.

Gen. Eisenhower emphasized the fact that no amount of armed might ever produced absolute security. "There could be no security in the absolute sense," he said, "unless it is enjoyed by every nation. That is why the concept of the

ISD 5 Splits Varied Pair

The Infantry School Detachment five broke even last week in two games winning its league against the 37th Infantry's First Battalion Thursday night, but losing for the second time this season to the Atlanta YMCA, 30-45, Friday evening.

In the first engagement, played at the Harmony Church Sports Arena, the Profs had no competition at all, romping over the First Battalion, 73-15. Every man in the ISD lineup broke into the scoring column, with Don Hook leading the way with 18 points. Gunnerup was Ken Nowles, who is, in 14, followed by Lloyd, coach, who accounted for 11 markers.

Friday night lack of height and poor shooting were the downfall of the Profs, as they lost a close encounter to the Atlanta quintet. The ISDers had trouble getting started, as the YMCA casters leaped to a 16-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Benning five then began whittling away at the lead, and, sparked by the play of Jim Cowley and Ken Nowles, came within two points of the Atlantians, 38-34, at the close of the third quarter.

However, in the final stanza, Cowley fouled out, and with the visitors controlling the backboards, the Profs never got a chance to turn the tables. The final score was 50-45.

Nowles was high man for the ISD with 15 points, and Cowley was next with 11. Byrne and Braddock, with 12 apiece, paced the Atlantians.

The next game for the ISD basketballers, who have lost only a one-point game to the 75th Tank Battalion in league play this season, will be Friday night against the 129th Engineers in the Main Post.

Photography is one of the activities that takes much of the spare time in that area. Candidates Ward, Fricke and Pauli do all their own work in a dark room which they have set up. Candidates Watkins, Harris and Kant are working on model airplanes with gasoline engines. Another gasoline operated model, that of a racing car is being built by Candidate Rankin.

Discussions would be of an informal nature, it was said.

CAA Offered Radar Units

The Army Air Forces has offered 50 radar Ground Controller Approach units on a loan or lease to the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Air Transport Association, and other aviation organizations "who may find them of use in their air traffic control and instrument approach problems."

These units are similar to that being used at Mitchell Field, New York, which enabled three aircraft to make safe landings under severe weather conditions last week.

The CCA units, which could be installed immediately and at minimum expense have been made available to civil aviation for the next 12 to 18 months on either a loan or lease basis due to the acute lack of some key personnel to place these units on operation at AAF bases.

On receipt of the offer from the Army Air Forces, the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics, T. P. Wright, stated that he appreciated the loan and recognized that these were not surplus CCA units but would be needed by the Army Air Forces as soon as sufficient personnel had been trained to operate the equipment to meet AAF needs.

Mr. Wright pointed out that these CCA units were not the modified type of equipment and therefore for around-the-clock civil aviation operation would require a total crew of 26, of which 22 would be operators and four maintenance technicians making an annual cost per installation of approximately $125,000.

"Plans are under way," he added, "for possible modification of these units in order to decrease maintenance and operation costs. These modifications will be similar to those made on the three sets borrowed from the Army Air Forces which are in process of installation at Washington National Airport, LaGuardia Field at New York and Chicago.

Did you ever take a picture with a cigar box?

Well, probably not, and it does sound impossible out this as that has been accomplished in Sgt. Benjamin C. Zar's photography classes which were begun recently under the sponsorship of the Airborne School Information and Education branch.

The classes are divided into two groups one meeting Monday from 8:00 p. m. to 9:00 p. m. and from 9:00 p. m. to 10:00 p. m. and Thursdays at the same hours. Sgt. Zar says that it is still not too late to join the classes as a few more agencies are available. For further information telephone I and E, The Airborne School.

Getting back to the cigar box, however, it is Zar's intention that each member of the classes construct his own cigar-box camera and learn to operate it in order to become thoroughly grounded in the theory and background of the subject of Photography without the necessity for expensive equipment.

Repair Programs Slated To Start

A general roof replacement and repair program of all temporary wooden buildings at Fort Benning, including those now in use in the Harmony Church and Sand Hill areas, is scheduled to begin sometime in March, Lt. Col. Fred L. Ackerson, Post engineer, reported today.

Officials estimated last week that extensive repairs on 523 temporary structures, which have been selected for "indefinite" future use, would cost approximately $200,000. Bidding for this job, which involves more than 2,100,000 square feet of roofing, will be closed March 3 and the contract is expected to be let within 10 days.

5 Years' Use

"The wooden buildings' roofs have not been repaired or replaced since their construction more than five years ago," Col. Ackerson revealed, "and we feel that money can be saved by carrying out the repair and replacement program now."

Fort Benning engineers are at present repairing stairways, fire escapes, and outside woodwork preparatory to letting a paint contract, Col. Ackerson also announced.

Meanwhile, workmen continue

478th RTU Inactivated

The inactivation of the 478th Army Air Forces Reserve training unit at Lawson Field was announced to reservists by Lt. Col. T. R. Waddleton, 14th Air Force representative, at a meeting of local AFA group in Columbus last Friday night.

The short life of the project, which began at Lawson only recently, was brought about by a slash in Air Defense Command's budget from $57,000,000 to $33,000,000, Col. Waddleton said.

Enlistment Rule Changes Bared

After July 1, 1947, the commanding general of the AAF will determine the grade in which former officers, warrant officers and flight officers of the Army Air Force may be enlisted, the War Department revealed today.

With several exceptions, only those officers who have a total of 10 years active service in a commissioned status at the time of separation may enlist in the grade of master sergeant after the July 1 deadline. Active duty as an officer with the Civilian Conservation Corps may be counted, the War Department ruled.

One exception covers officers and warrant officers who possess the MOS of weather officer or pilot weather officer and who were serving in the AAF as of February 1, 1947. They may also enlist in the first grade.

Officers who served in an enlisted status in the Regular Army Air Corps with grade of sergeant or higher prior to December 10, 1941, may enlist in the first grade. It doesn't make any difference whether their enlisted grade was permanent or temporary, but they

STARTS FEB. 24; 300 TO TAKE PART

The biggest "show" of military might to be staged at Fort Benning in many years will get under way February 24, when the Ninth Air Force's gigantic Air Indocctrination course is scheduled to begin.

Hundreds of basic and advanced students from the Armed Forces College, Norfolk, Virginia; the Command and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; the Infantry School and other leading service schools including the Air University will attend the courses which will continue until sometime in May. The largest single class to attend will be 400-odd students from Fort Leavenworth.

The opening demonstration February 24 will be followed by another full-scale exhibition March 24. Weekly demonstrations will be held thereafter.

Headquarters

Tactical Air Command's Ninth Air Force Headquarters, Greenville, S. C., has established advanced combat headquarters at Lawson Field. "An extensive preparatory work is under way for the inauguration of TAC's Air Indocctrination Course for Army training units and Service Schools personnel on February 24. Brig. General James V. Crabb, deputy commander of Ninth Air Force, will direct the course from his mobile trailer headquarters.

"What we aim to do," General Crabb explained, "is to present a demonstration of the employment of tactical air support in a consolidated form, so that the student can comprehend the scope of organized air support, instead of giving the picture piecemeal."

How It's Done

Approximately 300 officers and men have arrived at Lawson Field from other Ninth Air Force bases throughout the country to organize the course which will be presented entirely under simulated front-line conditions. The course will demonstrate how a tactical air force plans and maintains aerial support for ground units in combat.

Hundreds of TAC's aircraft ranging from giant transports to jet-propelled fighters will participate.

A flight of eight lightning-like jet-propelled P-80s arrived from Langley Field Monday, and will be used to perform aerial photographic and reconnaissance flights for the event, Ninth Air Force officials announced.

Newest In Radar

Many newly developed techniques of radar communications will be employed by the 502nd Tactical Air Control Group when called for to operate over the target from far-flung bases of operations.

Various AAF units with colorful World War II combat records will take part in the exercises. They will fly A-26s, B-25s, P-51s, P-80s, C-82s, P-47s and cargo gliders.

Lawson Field's own 75th Troop Carrier Squadron has been assigned to aid in the new project and will use 12 of its 16th C-82s and 12 CG-15 cargo gliders in the exhibitions.

Lt. Col. Lewis A. Curtis, 75th commanding officer, will serve as one of the Airborne-Troop Carrier instructors in the course.

The 75th will carry out para-troop drops, resupply flights, and glider drop and glider evacuation missions.

Infantry's Role

The Infantry School will figure prominently in the demonstrations given before students of the Armed Forces Staff College beginning February 24 and the Command and Staff College beginning March 24.

A reinforced company of the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, TIS, will stage a spectacular airborne demonstration February 26. The Infantry School's top drawer demonstration of an infantry, artillery and tank team in the attack will be staged on two occasions, February 23 and again on March 23. TIS will also feature other demonstrations to include a battalion in defense, night vision exercises and the "mad minute," which is an exhibition of the full fire power of an infantry regiment.

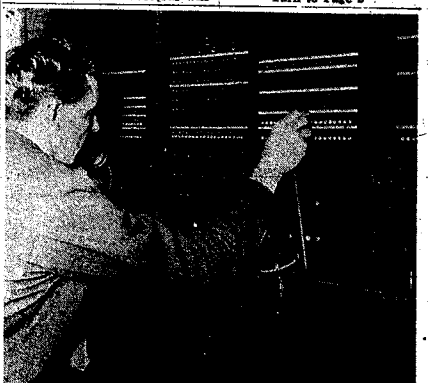

Jet Squadron Here For Course

Latest addition to the mass of Ninth Air Force equipment to arrive at Lawson Field for use in the AAF's far-reaching post-war training air conditioning program are eight jet-propelled P-80 planes which are counted among the fastest craft of the AAF.

Nicknamed the "Shooting Star," the P-80 has traveled at speeds approaching that of sound and has been under test and in use by the AAF for some time.

The planes, first jets ever to land at Lawson Field, make up the 161st Reconnaissance Squadron of the 363rd Reconnaissance Group

JUMPING JACKS—T/5 LaVern Shulters, 934th Signal Co., tests the 300-drop switchboard through which control for the tactical air support demonstration Feb. 26 will be maintained. The jacks will be jumping from now until May, linking Lawson Field with air fields of the Ninth Air Force within a 254-mile radius.

Repairs.

Begins on Page 1 the dismantling of some 2,000 other temporary wooden buildings on the East which were used only during the emergency. Engineers said last week that there is no indication when the work will be completed.

A total of 1,529 wooden hutments will be turned over to the War Assets Administration for sale or to the Division Engineer office at Mobile, Ala., to be torn down. A number of the temporary buildings will be turned over to the Departments of Education in both Alabama and Georgia for use in the school systems.

Dismantling Policy Dismantling and sale of these buildings is in accordance with a War Department policy to turn over building materials to civilian enterprise in an effort to alleviate the housing shortage, it was announced previously. At the same time the Division engineers also reported that in the event a building program got under way in this area the salvaged materials would be used for construction of quarters for the military. The quartermaster, purchasing and contract officer, telephone Fort Benning 2221, has issued an invitation for bids on the roofing, replacements and repairs.

'THE I. P. WILL BE HERE' Col. Thomas R. Ford, AC of S. A-2, informs Brig. Gen. Jarred V. Enlistment

Begins on Page 1 must have been at least a sergeant or higher when either entered on active duty as an officer or received an appointment as an aviation cadet. It was stated that certain technician and specialist ratings held could be converted to the noncommissioned officer grade of sergeant or higher.

If an officer, warrant officer or flight officer held the rating of air mechanic first or second class at the time of entering on active duty, he may enlist in the first grade of master sergeant.

As an example of how technicians' or specialists' ratings may be converted, the old rating of private, specialist second class is equal to that of sergeant, and private first class, specialist third class is also equal to a sergeant. The rating of technician fourth grade is equal to sergeant.

Former Air Force officers who do not qualify under the new enlistment rules may submit application for enlistment direct to the commanding general, Army Air Forces, Washington, D. C. Applications will be reviewed and grade determined in which the applicant may be authorized to enlist, the War Department announced.

As in the past it will still be necessary for former officers to enlist within 30 days following last day of terminal leave.

Commenting on the new enlistment regulations the War Department advised that because of the constantly changing conditions affecting personnel of the Army, the Air Force is not able to commit itself to any specified period of time the new enlistment policy will remain in effect.

Big Show

Begins on Page 1 and are based at Langley Field, Va. Commanded by Maj. D. E. Anderson, the squadron will act as the reconnaissance unit during the air indoctrination course, scheduled to get under way Feb. 24 and continue until May.

The jets have been employed during the week in takeoffs and landings designed to familiarize the pilots with the Benning air-planes.

Begins on Page 1 a circuit rider system whereby planes will be flown to Lawson Field from Birmingham once a week to provide minimum training.

Colonel Waddleton also announced that Air Defense Command's initial purpose to provide reserve training here has not been abandoned and that maintenance of a reserve VHB group headquarters and headquarters squadron will depend on the active participation of reservists to assure maximum use of aircraft.

Explaining the operation of the "hub" system Colonel Waddleton said a local reserve group would operate under a Reserve Very Heavy Bombardment Wing headquarters based at Birmingham, Ala. and that the planes would be flown in weekly from Gunter Field, Montgomery, Ala. "At first, At-6s, At-11s, and P-51s will be flown in," he said, and at a later date heavier aircraft will be provided. The local AFA chapter will remain the contact agency for local air training program, he added.

AFA Protests
 Gordon Flournoy, president of the Columbus chapter, urged members to wire Georgia congressmen to protest inactivation of the 478th and to ask support of future air reserve operations here. The AFA will continue "ground school" training, using packaged programs of training films and lectures provided by the 14th Air Force headquarters.

Following the announcement of the inactivation of the unit, 14th Air Force Headquarters recalled Lt. Col. E. F. Freeman, 478th commanding officer, back to Orlando and other personnel associated with the unit were ordered to stand at Lawson for further instructions and reassignments.

Fuller Brown

He was chief signal officer in the North Atlantic Theater, also commanding officer of the Special Signal Detachment of the Sixth Army in New Guinea, Leyte, Mindoro, Luzon, Okinawa and on into Japan. In Japan Capt. Fuller took command of the 58th Signal Battalion. In April 1946 he returned to the states and to Camp Shelby, Miss., where he became post signal officer.

Warrant Officer Brown, who is a 20-year man, entered the Army in March 1926. Overseas duty carried him to Panama, Hawaii, Tonga, Fiji Islands and Guadalcanal. During the war he held the rank of captain. He was Island Radio Officer at Fiji. Thirteen months of his time overseas were spent on Guadalcanal as commanding officer of the 342nd Ordnance MAM Company.

Forsyth He was also an instructor at the Motor Transport Signal Corps School, Officers Branch, Fort Monmouth, N. J. T-Sgt. Forsyth has 14 years service in the Army most of which has been with the Signal Corps. Beside his year and a half with the OSS in China, Sgt. 76 Instructors Finish Courses

The Army got 76 brand new instructors on the morning of February 10, when Infantry NCO Class No. 1 graduated on the stage of Theatre No. 11 in Harmony Church.

The ceremony began at 10 a.m. with selections by the 72nd A.G.F. band. Chaplain Daniel P. Jenkins then gave the invocation, following which the guest speaker, Captain Samuel B. Wilson, famed for his combat achievements with "Merrill's Marauders," was introduced.

Captain Wilson spoke for several minutes about his combat experiences, and of outstanding examples of leadership he witnessed on the battlefield.

Colonel Irvine C. Scudder, commanding officer of the STR, then awarded the certificates of graduation.

This was the first of the revamped NCO classes to complete the seventeen week course, covering all-infantry—weapons—administrative duties, and so on. Most of the men will go to RTC camps throughout the country, while a few will get the much coveted ROTC assignments in various schools.

The home company of Infantry NCO Class No. 1 is 17th Co., under the command of Captain William V. Church.

'GOOD THINGS AT THE HAND OF GOD'

By Captain Paul Schmal
 Always on the "Folied Hands" illustrated as a cover design for religious bulletins in army chapels are familiar to American soldiers everywhere. There is portrayed an attitude of prayer by a couple's hands uplifted to God, because greedy hands of fellow human beings have joined with many enemies to destroy the very hope of life. Throughout the world strong and mighty hands of evil seek to gain a stranglehold on mankind. A thoughtless and stultic generation falls into other than the provident hands of God. From the Creator's almighty hand flow endless blessings. Other than the hands of sinners turn loose torrents of suffering. Their hands cannot accomplish what they begin, though by craftiness they succeed in delivering the poor into the hands of their enemies. The hands of right-thinking men join to remove the world's physical and moral evils, but the hands of men based on justice, bound together by charity and the hand-come in fraternal life to live and to let live. Into the hands of the starving everywhere, men cooperate in a loaf of bread, milk into the hands of famished children, support and lift up the crippled and helpless; let corporal works of mercy be practiced in every new arising emergency. While man lives not by bread alone, to sustain the life of man, not only an occasional, but constant sacrifice will be required, and the life is known not what the right doeth. Only by constantly doing good turns, their hands open in benediction, and entitle you to the hope of life's end, that the innocent in this blessing receive from the Lord, and mercy from God" (Ps. 23:4).

No Cause For Alarm

It was almost inevitable that a further adjustment in atomic energy control would be brought by the services before the newly appointed Atomic Energy Commission was allowed to get up shop. The move came this week.

It came in the form of charges leveled at Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the commission, whose appointment and those of his four fellow-members were yet to be approved by the Congress. The Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy hearing will get up short on two admissions he made:

1. He did not agree with a proposal by the Senators that members of the military's atomic liaison board attend every commission meeting.

2. He had not conferred with Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, former head of Manhattan Project since the civilians took over the enterprise from the Army.

"Senators Vandenberg, Millikin and Knowland put a big 'Why?' to him. He said that the practice would be to set up that it would stifle free discussion and reduce the meeting to purely formal affairs. Besides, he reminded his questioners, it was the military board, not the commission, which would determine what data the armed forces were to have. It remained only for the military to ask for it.

"This attitude was acceptable neither to the Senators nor the services.

"In my opinion," said Senator Vandenberg, "it will not be satisfactory if there is a single closed door anywhere to the military liaison board or to the joint congressional committee." Senator Millikin found it "incredible" that the commission had not sought Groves since the project was taken over from the Army, even though Groves was "the most valuable single source of information" on atomic matters.

There they left the matter for the moment. It seemed apparent, however, that before they go to their committee and the services sitting with Lillenthal's commission.

"Behind this—according to the usual 'informed' sources—which might mean anything on the White House lanes—was the Army's fear that security measures taken by the civilian commission to safeguard our atom secrets might be inadequate. It was said that the security force set up by the Army in the days of Manhattan Project was being done away with and replaced by an ineffective one.

The "spokesman" also said that Lillenthal's commission is planning a separate counter-intelligence agency which will cooperate with Army or Navy Intelligence, but will coordinate instead through the Central Intelligence Agency. (Since under the new merger plans, CIA will include State, Navy and Army intelligence, this fear seems somewhat groundless, but that is what the man is supposed to say.)

For our part, we see no cause for alarm thus far in the recent activity of Lillenthal and his commission. He has repeatedly said that it would be "foo" who to think of defense and security as being of less than top importance. He has never given evidence of being prejudiced against the military. He has believed that it is impossible to separate purely "peaceful" developments in atomic matters from those of military importance. It seems apparent that as chairman of the commission, Lillenthal simply does not think it necessary that other experts sit in on every commission meeting.

In the absence of proof that his work has been less than satisfactory so far, we are inclined to go along with Lillenthal.

Most important thing, of course, is to get some system of international atomic control set up. Meanwhile, in leaving the atom in civilian hands we are following a precept laid down by Senator Brian McMahon, who made that possible in the first place. He stressed an important point, and one which is sometimes lost sight of: The conservative outlook of military men, which often leads them to view as aesthetically any new advance in warfare. McMahon said:

"We must exercise continued vigilance lest we permit the conception of laissez faire in our armaments to lead us to catastrophe. If we do not use all our best judgment and wisdom in weighing the security situation and in guarding against the conception of traditional defenses, we may have the shades of Billy Mitchell—Army Times.

- ZERO LEAVE CREDITS—In those cases where leave computation of military personnel on duty as of 21 August 1946 results in a minus balance, authority is granted to responsible commanders under the provisions of Cr. 265, WD, 1946, to give such personnel a zero leave credit as of Sep. 1, 1946. Personnel who have incurred a minus balance as a result of re-enlistment taken after the enactment of the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946, will retain the minus balance, and will be given credit for their leave credits from Sep. 1, 1946, in the manner prescribed in AF 800-115.

- UNIFORM DISCHARGE PROCEDURES FOR ENLISTED PERSONNEL OF THE ARMY, NAVY, MARINE CORPS AND COAST GUARD—In order that all services may have uniform discharge procedures for enlisted personnel, the War Department has approved and will adopt five types of enlisted discharges in lieu of the present three. The five types will be as follows:

Name of Discharge	Character of Separation	Effect on Service
Resignation	Honorable	Administrative Action
General Discharge	Under Honorable Conditions	Administrative Action
Unfavorable Discharge	Under Other Than Honorable Conditions	Administrative Action
Bad Conduct Discharge	Under Other Than Honorable Conditions	General or Special Court
Disbarred Discharge	Disbarred	General Court of Action

Appropriate instructions to the field with new discharge forms will be distributed as early as practicable. Legislation is required for the new Bad Conduct Discharge, since this is a new type of discharge certificate. Publication of necessary changes in Army Regulations will take an appreciable time (WD Personnel Ltr. 4, Dec. 26).

- EXCHANGE OF UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN CURRENCY—Military personnel having in their possession foreign currency are advised to direct their claim to the Office of the Chief of Finance, Receipts and Disbursements Division, the Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

- RETURN OF DISCHARGE CERTIFICATES—Use of photographs rather than original discharge certificates as supporting evidence for claims under the Terminal Leave Act is urged by the War Department. Since a veteran is required to have his benefits, it is to his advantage to obtain the certificate at all times. Veterans should be advised of bond received from photo-service and veterans organizations. It is emphasized that both sides of the certificate must be photostated and submitted.

- PROCEEDS OF ARMED FORCES LEAVE BOND—Veterans Administration Form 5-2625 (Oct. 1946) "Discharge Leave Bond" are available through normal channels for use by military and former military personnel who desire to assign the proceeds of bond received from unused Life Insurance. This form acts as a letter of transmittal and is presently obtainable at all Veterans Administration Branch Offices.

- TRAVEL OF DEPENDENTS—The State Department advised by letter, Nov. 1946, that dependents of military personnel and War Department civilian employees may travel to Two Jim, Guam, Okinawa and the Marianas area without passports, on the conditions set forth in the State Department's letter of 13 June 1946, regarding travel of Army dependents to Japan, which provides that:

- Army dependents will execute formal applications for their passports before leaving for the ports of embarkation.
- Dependents will be sent to the ports of embarkation in the order of their priority whether or not their passports have been received.
- Approximately 48 hours before each sailing date the War Department furnishes to the Department of State a list of persons to be embarked who have not received their passports.
- A duplicate list is furnished to the collector of customs by the Department of State, to permit such dependents to sail without passports.
- The War Department receives from the Department of State a list of persons to be transmitted to such Army dependents. (Letter, Dept. of State, 13 June 1946, and WD AGO letter, 14 Nov. 1946).

New Orleans Woman vividly Woman is also one of the most entertaining biographies to be presented to the reading public in many years.

New Orleans Woman is the chronicle of Myra Clark Gaines' fight to obtain possession of a fabulous fortune. Myra Clark Gaines' father bequeathed Louisiana's greatest city expanded along Canal Street. Mr. Gaines takes a Myra's battle for her property, but he can be forgiven for that since he had married a dull subject into a sparkling novel with clever dialogue and brilliant descriptive passages. There are several weak spots which should have been developed more fully and logically, but on the whole the author shows considerable flair for consolidation of unrelated parts into an integrated whole.

Myra Clark, heir to approximately $25,000,000 in real property in New Orleans, has been branded the natural child of Daniel Clark and a resident of the bulk of what rightfully should be hers. To make it even more curious, the author's majority of the judges and venemen before whom she appears own portions of her father's fortune. Myra takes her case to the Supreme Court of the United States before her struggle against overwhelming odds is finally overcome.

In spite of her constant courtship with a woman who is not only a divorcee but a widow, she appears to find happiness with two different husbands, both of whom she marries. Myra's life for her case. During her lifetime Myra raised children, educated them, often overworked to feed them and lived to regret her generosity to her son. It is not until Myra meets and marries the man who becomes the father of her mother, the beautiful Creole Zulma, who has the secret wife of Daniel Clark, but

FROM THE AIRBORNE OFFICERS AND THEIR LADIES—reads the inscription on the silver and mahogany plaque shown being presented to General and Mrs. William M. Miley, by Colonel Roy E. Lindquist. The popular Airborne general, due to leave for assignment with the 11th Airborne Division in Tokyo February 23, was feted by the officers and their ladies of the Airborne Section with a "Farewell Ball" Saturday February 8.

General And Mrs. Miley Feted At Farewell Ball

Brig. Gen. William M. Miley, leading figure in the founding of the modern U. S. Airborne Army, was feted by the entire officer personnel of the Infantry School Airborne Section at the B Stage gymnasium Saturday evening, Feb. 8 with a farewell ball. Airborne officers and their ladies in formal attire started arriving at an unprecedented early hour, filling the huge gym to capacity almost an hour before General and Mrs. Miley, guests of honor, arrived.

Created by an unanimous and spontaneous display of genuine affection from all, General and Mrs. Miley were officially welcomed in the name of the entire airborne staff by Colonel and Mrs. Roy E. Lindquist.

General Miley, who has been acting as deputy commander of the Infantry Center since the closing of the Airborne School, Nov. 1, 1945, is assigned to the 11th Airborne Division in Japan and will leave Fort Benning for Tokyo, Feb. 23.

Speaking of his reluctance to leave so many genuine friends, General Miley said that this farewell was the fourth he has made to Fort Benningites. "Somehow," he said, "I feel that though I may be saying farewell to Fort Benning, I am not saying farewell to you, my friends. During my military career, here at Fort Benning, I have been forced to bid adieu to my friends. Kind Fate intervened, and I discovered that almost magically, familiar faces began to appear within the precincts of my new post—faces of my friends I thought I had left behind. A great number of you who are present now, here were with me at those other posts, and I am selfish enough to hope that you—at least some of you, will be with me at my next. Therefore, I say, I am saying farewell to Fort Benning, perhaps, but never farewell to you."

A silver and mahogany plaque, sponsored by the wives of the officers under the popular general's command and inscribed "From the Airborne officers and their ladies" was presented General Miley by Colonel Roy E. Lindquist. The general was visibly affected as he accepted it. He was interrupted in his expression of gratitude by the entire assembly singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Waving and smiling, he retired to his table where he was joined by Colonel and Mrs. Lindquist, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Smith.

General Miley is presently enjoying a short leave prior to his Tokyo assignment, he plans to close her Balize Ave. home as soon as her Japanese quarters are selected.

Post Printing Plant Is Big Outfit

Able To Produce Complete Books, Maps, Or Charts

Contributing no small part to the effectiveness of The Infantry School in training enlisted men and officers is The Reproduction and Army Field Printing Plant, located on the Main Post behind, and adjacent to, the Main Theatre.

The organization is equipped with extensive machinery in every department, some of which is shown in the pictures on this page. The activity in the plant covers every phase of printing, and the personnel turn out work without the aid of any other commercial or Army establishment. The plant can produce a complete book by itself.

Production of mimeographed and printed instructional matter and the making and procurement of maps, charts, and other visual aids for instructional purposes are all jobs of this organization.

In the teaching of its courses, the Academic Department tells the plant what it will need, and the forces of 63, six of whom are civilians, proceed to fill the orders.

The various section chiefs at the plant are, for the most part, old-timers. M-Sgt. Ernest Gilmore, Production Manager, has been at the plant for nineteen years, and M-Sgt. Harvey Allen, Plant Superintendent, is a veteran of ten years.

A description of the plant's five sections—the field printing plant, bindery section, lithographic section, drafting section, and photographic section—demonstrates the wide scope of the activity.

The Army Field Printing Plant is the biggest section. During the war it printed pamphlets at the rate of over two million per month, with each pamphlet averaging twenty-five pages. These instructional booklets were shipped to units all over the world.

Mimeographing is done in the bindery section. At one time more than four thousand reams of paper were mimeographed every month.

All maps, charts, and cuts are produced by the lithographic section. Any printing, which includes pictures or other art work, is done in this section by the offset method.

PFC. EARNEST HISER, FIELD PRINTING PLANT CAMERAMAN, dangles at an angle suspended in a parachute harness 20 feet over the camera subject. The intricacies of photography sometimes force the cameraman to adopt the tactics of a human fly, dangling from ropes and rafters to get the proper camera angle. Pfc. Hiser remained in this torturous position over a half hour in order to obtain the best shot of the difficult subject below. The results were used in illustrating a text on Parachute Artillery equipment bundles.

THEY GO IN LIKE THAT, COME OUT LIKE THIS — Here's Pvt. Ralph Coult checking over the products of the folding machine in the printing section. This machine takes individual sheets of paper and folds them into a booklet. Most of the work now being done in the section is Army Extension Course material, which wasn't put out during the war.

A war-time output of 3,000 per year was attained by the section. The plant's photographic section has the most modern available equipment for processing of all types of pictures. It has its own photographers and can develop their own pictures right there. Since the war's end the output at the plant has fallen off some, as was only natural. During the war rush the plant printed more than three times as much instructional literature and other matter for The Infantry School alone as F. Zinser, Lt. Col. Harry L. Mayfield, Lt. Col. DeWitt Ballard, Lt. Col. William C. Shure and 1st Lt. Maurice G. Brewer.

FUND COUNCIL NAMED

SPORTS

8-Week Pin Tournery Set

An eight-week post bowling tournament opens up Monday night, with thirteen units being represented with teams.

All the matches will be held at the bowling alleys on the post, and there will be twelve trophies awarded to individual and team winners.

Here are the units which had entered teams up to last Monday: 121st Evacuation Hospital group, Headquarters, 30th Medical group, H Company of Airborne Section, 53rd Field Artillery Battalion, Headquarters of Second Battalion, Airborne Regiment, 328th Ordnance Battalion, 501st Parachute Battalion, 204th Truck Company, 756th Tank Battalion, IS Battalion, 97th Infantry, Infantry School Detachment, Army Ground Forces Board No. 4, and 1290th Engineer Combat Battalion.

This list includes almost every unit on the post, and is the largest representation achieved in any recently-held post tournament.

Any unit still wishing to enter a team in the tournery should contact the Athletic and Recreation Office as soon as possible.

Printers Claim Volley Crown

It's a little-publicized fact, and very few people are aware of it, but the post volleyball championship happens to be held by the team representing the Army Field Printing Plant.

This team is managed by M-Sgt. Harvey Allen and captained by M-Sgt. Greene of the printing plant. In the back of the plant there's a field and the printers can be seen practicing there every morning at about eleven o'clock.

The printing team played the officers of the 37th Infantry last night, and are willing to play all challengers. Contact Sgt. Allen at the plant to arrange for a game.

Doughs Come Home

The Doughboys will be home tomorrow night. After they play their final game tonight in the Georgia State tournament up at Atlanta, the Doughs will return to the post to play a return game with Mercer University at the Main Post gym. On January 30 the Doughboys beat Mercer on its home court by ten points. The game will begin at 8 p. m.

As soon as tomorrow's game is played, the Benning five will head back for Atlanta, where the Southeastern AAU tournament opens up Saturday night, lasting until next Thursday.

The winner of this tournery is eligible for the national AAU competition to be held at Denver, Colorado. Last year the Benning five lost a one-point contest to Memphis in the Atlanta final.

Teams from over the southeastern area will be entered in this tournament, including the Atlanta Sports Arena, Cherry Point Marines, Trysland Field Tornadores, Bessemer Royals, and Birmingham Vikings.

The tournery will be held on the home court of the Sports Arena Rebels in Atlanta, where the Doughboys have never fared well. It looks as if tomorrow's game at the Main Post gym will be the last opportunity post personnel will have to watch the Doughs in action.

Doughs To Vie For State Title In Atlanta Tonight

Tonight in Atlanta, if the experts' ratings were correct, the Fort Benning Doughboys will be squaring off with the Atlanta Sports Arena five to decide the state championship.

The Doughs, who are defending Georgia champs, were seeded as the number one tournament team, and the opening round games were so arranged that the Benningites and the Sports Arena, the second-seeded team, would meet in the grand finale tonight.

Early Games Easy

Both hoop teams romped through their early tournery games on Sunday and Monday, with Fort Benning scoring an 83-20 triumph over a five from Stone Mountain and 57 over a team from the Lithonia firemen. The Sports Arena took a strong Greenville air base team in tow for its first triumph.

No other team entered in the tournament seems formidable enough to challenge the Doughs, as the third seeded team was Piedmont College from Demaree, Ga., a five that was child's play for Benning in a regular season fray.

Having lost the Seventh Army tournament via a two-point defeat at the hands of the Fort Bragg Rebels, the Doughboys are out to cop this one. However the Sports Arena Rebels, sparked by ex-Doughboy "Skip" Kerulis, will probably have something to say about the outcome.

The Rebels have met the Benning basketees three times this season, coming off with the victory twice on those occasions. The last time they met, though, it was the Doughs who triumphed, and in a convincing manner.

How the battle was played here at the Main Post gym, where the Doughs are invincible. The other two games were played on the Rebels' hardwood in Atlanta, which is smaller than the post court.

Both times the Doughboys have made poor showings on this floor. At the 22 and 24 calibre Georgia State tournament is being held on this very same court.

1290th Leading Post Hoopsters

BY MILT MOSKOWITZ

Polishing off the Infantry School Detachment basketball team, 45-35, last Friday night in the Main Post gym, the 1290th Engineer hoop team established itself as the No. 1 unit team on the post.

The Engineers flashed a brand of basketball that smacked off brilliance, playing a fast, aggressive game. They simply rushed the ISD basketkeeters off the court.

Defensively the 1290th cagers played heads-up but also, interestingly passed all the time. Not too tall a team the Engineers from Harmony Church rely on speed and a hard-hitting attack.

Leading scorer Friday night was Joe Harmonis with twenty points. Bob Nichols, Paul Long, and Fred Jordan were instrumental in the Engineer triumph also, playing sparkling games.

Not to be left out is Ray Hewitt, 1290th guard and former football player at Vanderbilt University. Hewitt is an ace on the defense and a big help under the boards.

It's the man bringing the ball downfield on the offense, setting up the fast-breaking plays in which the Engineer cagers specialize.

There aren't too many people coming to the games played by the various units, and in most cases the lack of interest is perhaps justified, as the play is slipshod and not worth watching. However this doesn't hold true when the 1290th plays.

The Engineers play the type of basketball that can be called "high class." Those who have seen them play say they are on a par with the B team of the Doughboys. They are certainly the team to watch in the post tournament coming up next month.

Baker, Anderson Star For Doughs

Box-scores from the Seventh Army tournament held at Fort Jackson last week indicate that the Benning hoopsters were—as usual—led by "Scooter" Baker and Claude Anderson.

Little Baker hit close to a fifteen-point average per game, with Anderson coming right behind that figure. Next on the scoring list was the Doughs' center, Bill Miller.

Bob Logan and Bill Wirt, starting forward and substitute center respectively, each came through for sixteen points in a game.

The Fort Benning five was handicapped in the finale by the absence of Cal Luther, Doughboy guard and playmaker extraordinaire.

Pistol Match Set Feb. 23

A pistol match will be held at Mitchell range Feb. 23 to determine the pistol champion of Fort Benning and to select qualified personnel to represent The Infantry Center in the National Mid-Winter matches scheduled to take place in Tampa, Fla., March 6-9, officials said today.

Trophies will be awarded, the winner of the 22, 38, 45 calibre aggregates, while the total aggregate will determine the Fort Benning champion.

All rules of the matches will be in accordance with the National Rifle Association pistol rules, and targets will be official NRA targets.

Courses to be fired include slow fire at 50 yards, timed fire at 25 yards, rapid fire at 25 yards, and National Match course at 25 to 50 yards.

Ammunition for the 45 calibre will be available to all competitors, but the 22 and 38 calibre ammunition must be furnished by the individual, officials said.

Keglers Win 5 In 'Bamo

Fort Benning's Bowling team took a five game match from a Montgomery five Stars Sunday afternoon. The local team took four of the five games rolled compiling 5443 pins while Montgomery collected 4804.

Lt. Bob Ziegler had the high single game bowling for Benning, with a 238. Canada was high for the losers carrying a 222. Other high games included Lt. Eliza 228 and 204, M-Sgt. Short 212 and 204, and Capt. Milligan 201.

The Fort Keglers will go to Montgomery for a return match March 9.

Golf Tryouts Produce 4-Man Tourney Team

Try-outs for the golf team to represent Fort Benning in the Seventh Army Golf Tournament which begins here February 17 ended Saturday. A four-man team was announced with one alternate. The team will consist of Lt. Col. M. C. Bristol, Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, Major A. L. Tait and S-Sgt. F. H. Markland. Lt. Col. J. Chabot was named as alternate.

With a disappointing field of only seven contestants vying for team positions and a stage of bad weather, golf scores for the 64-hole try-outs were high. Some favorites were unable to participate in the event because of heavy class schedules. However, Fort Benning will be represented by a strong team that should be a top favorite to win team honors.

Teams and contestants from other posts throughout the Third Army Area are expected here in the latter part of this week. After a few practice days the participants should begin to show their ability.

The tournament officially gets under way Monday, February 17, which will be devoted to practice rounds. Thirty-six holes of medal play will be played by all contestants on Tuesday, February 18 and 18 holes on the following day. Formal presentation of prizes will be made at the Fort Benning Clubhouse Wednesday afternoon, February 19. Prizes will be awarded to the winning team and the runner-up. Also, individual prizes will be awarded to the lowest scorer and runner-up for individual honors.

The four lowest scorers will represent the Seventh Army in the Inter-service Invitational Golf Meet to be held at Oliver General Hospital, Augusta, Ga., late in March.

Scores of the contestants in the 64-hole try-out for team positions were as follows:

ISD Cagers Lose, 45-35

The ISD basketballers were swept from the undefeated ranks last week when they lost their first game season to a strong 129th Engineer Coe, 45-35. This win put the engineers on top of the league.

In other games last week the 37th Infantry's 1st Battalion broke the ice by putting Headquarters and Headquarters company away with a score of 41-32. Davis was big gun for the winners with 16 points, while Kossin dropped in 10 points to take honors for the losers.

Tuesday's engagements brought together Service company and Headquarters company of the 37th with the former walking away champions to the tune of 41-24. Kusch of Service company led the parade with 22 points as Donnel of the losers chalked up 7 points. The 204th Truck company won by forfeit over the 83rd Field Artillery.

25th Boxers Attack Bragg Here Tonight

Undefeated during the 1946 summer months which resulted in their being forced to hang up their gloves due to the lack of outside competition, 25th Combat Team's boxers will return here again when they meet an impressive array of leather pushers representing the 558th Paratrooper Battalion from Fort Bragg tonight in the 25th Combat Team Field House.

Many of the battlers showing here on the 558th team served a prominent part in helping Fort Bragg win the 7th Army Boxing Tourney which was held recently in Fort Bragg.

Despite the impressiveness of the invaders record, the 25th also has a star-studded group of talent which it thinks is on par with any team in the U. S.

Lt. Anthony S. Priole, 25th C. T. Director of Boxing has an even half dozen former Golden Gloves, European Theater, and Camp Champions on his roster.

Starting promptly at 8 o'clock, ten bouts representing all standard classes will highlight the show.

9th Street USO Hoop Loop Starts

The Ninth-Street USO basketball league got off to a slippery start Thursday night, with Company C, 37th Inf., by the score of 41-37.

The floor has just recently been refinished and at times the game looked as though it was a comedy of errors. For the conditions under which the game was played, there were very few fouls, ten to be exact.

C. V. Myers was high man of the evening with 14 points. His teammates from C Company were right behind him; six with 12 points, and Cerselle with 10 points. Patterson was high scorer for Company B, with 12 points.

Fort Bragg 5 Win 7th Army Loop Championship

Fort Bragg won the Seventh Army basketball championship last Saturday morning, edging out the Fort Benning Doughboys, 59-48, after the Benningites had taken four straight games to force a playoff with the North Carolina hoopers.

That the Doughs would lose to the Braggmen was entirely unexpected, as only the day before they had beaten them by fifteen points, 62-47.

However this erratic play was typical of the Doughboys throughout the tourney, which was originally scheduled to end Friday night, but was extended to another day when the Benningites came through with two victories on the final evening.

Double Elimination
The tournament was run on a double-elimination basis, meaning that a team was out of the running as soon as it lost two games.

Going into the competition with a record of eighteen won and three lost, the Fort Benning hoopers were regarded as top-heavy favorites to bring home the bacon. It seemed otherwise, however, when the Doughboys dropped their opening game, 52-50, to the Fort Jackson cagers on Tuesday night. Holding a 31-24 lead at halftime, the Benning five faded in the final stanzas, and the lack of height were the determining factors.

Thursday afternoon the Doughs hit the comeback trail, as the reserves pushed a weak Fort McClellan team all over the floor in winning, 24-23.

Friday the Doughboys had a herculean task facing them, and they measured up to it in championship style. They had two tough opponents to play in one day—Fort Jackson in the afternoon and Fort Bragg at night. With only ten men available for use, Coach Talis had a master job at juggling.

In the afternoon the Doughboys avenged their opening-day defeat with a nineteen point victory over the Fort Jackson hoopers, 53-34. The dope had called for the Jackson five to beat the Benning team and meet Bragg in the finale that night. In the event that the Doughboys did beat Jackson, it was thought that the Bragg cagers could handle Benning that night.

The Doughs upset the appellation then by playing Talis' next game of the tourney. Using a dazzling fast break with clever ball-handling, the Benning "courtesans" ran Bragg into the ground, 62-47. Little Taylor Baker played one of his greatest games, and Bob Logan, who replaced Cal Luther after the Doughboy starting guard injured his ankle, led in the scoring column with sixteen points.

So Saturday morning the playoff between Bragg and Benning was held, and this time the Doughboys were on the small end. The hoopers from North Carolina won out, 50-48, and Benning had to be satisfied with second place.

2nd Battalion Holds Ring Lead

Second Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment "tightened" its grasp on first place of the five-team Regimental Boxing Tourney while the 47th Field Artillery Battalion fighters hurred from third position to second place following the compilation of the results of six matches featuring the regular weekly bouts last Thursday night, in the 25th Combat Team Provisional Field House. Tonight's action features a brief moratorium on team action as the undefeated 25th Combat Team battlers tangles with Fort Bragg, 7th Army Camps for 1947 in 25th C. T. Field House, first bout, 8 p. m.

The Second Battalion engaged in four bouts, splitting even for their night's work, 571st Field Artillery of 84 to 51. Nickolas led his teammates from C Company with 26 points. Meyers and Casale followed with 17 points and 15 points, respectively. Tita lead Service Company with 14 points. The game moved fast from beginning to end with the edge on speed going to Company C.

Results of last Thursday's bouts follow:

Post Boxers Split Title With Tech

Fort Benning came through in grand style in the state Golden Gloves tournament held in Atlanta last week, coming home with five individual championships, a sportsmanship trophy, and the team title.

The post boxers almost made an even greater sweep of the tourney, but lost out by two close decisions in the finals, Ralph DiFobbo and Milo Novak winning runner-up spots.

The post did come up with the number one boxer of the tourney in Jessie Underwood, a featherweight Jessie, who is a private from Great Mass, pounded his way through all the preliminary bouts and scored a second-round technical knock-out over William Dean of Marietta Air Base to win the featherweight championship.

Underwood was voted the outstanding boxer of the tournament, and was awarded the sportsmanship trophy.

The three other Benning champions were Enrique Martinez, a flyweight, Takashi Takata, a bantamweight, both of whom won on defaults, and Larkie Colebrook, who won the welterweight championship in the novel class of sixpounder.

Harold Rosenthal of Tech, High in the finals.

Ralph DiFobbo and Milo Novak, welterweight and lightweight respectively, fought right down to the wire, but lost out in the final bouts. DiFobbo lost a decision to Eugene Shurling of the Atlanta Boys Club, and Novak lost a hair-line decision to Oscar Cox of Emory University.

The Benning pugilists got back into action right away, as they leave today for Fort McClellan, fighting the post boxers there on the night of Feb. 14. Next week, Feb. 21, trainers John Wilson and Louis Platus will have the Benning boxers home fighting the McClellan men in the Main Post gym.

She said some very foolish things to her boy friend that night—"Yes," being one of them.

HOME-MADE LURE — Floridan fish as yet have not devised a special shift to halt the piscatorial skill of Terrible Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger and one of baseball's most colorful characters. The diamond shift, phenomenally successful against Ted's death-defying hitting, was not carried to the briny deep by the fishes. Jump Pay Out For 'Chairmen' Of Paratroops

No more pencil-pushing paratroopers seems to be the order of the day.

Army Ground Force Headquarters at Fort Monro, Virginia, has released a directive which outlaws parachute pay for officers and enlisted men not actually working in airborne units.

The directive states that parachute pay will be authorized "for personnel in a duty status with staffs or within units, not airborne, only when it is clearly demonstrated that the duty cannot be performed without so being designated."

It goes on to state further that "the concept that rated parachutists who are no longer on duty where parachute jumping is an essential part of such duty should draw parachute pay for the sole purpose of maintaining their proficiency in jumping is not in accord with the policy in this headquarters. Such funds will be used to train additional personnel in order that the maximum number may be rated."

2,800 Yule Mail Sacks Lost In Pacific Storm

The loss in a hurricane of approximately 2800 sacks of Christmas mail for military personnel in Korea was announced today by Major General Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General, who operates the Army Postal Service. The sacks contained parcel post, magazines and newspapers, only two letter mail being lost.

The lost mail was aboard the SS Lakeland Victory which left San Francisco on November 27 carrying 3,598 sacks. About 1700 miles from its destination, Jinsen, Korea, the ship encountered a terrific hurricane and sustained severe damage and the loss of the mail sacks, all of which were stowed below decks. When the Lakeland Victory was able to dock for repairs at Yokohama on December 13 what remained of the mail cargo, including 200 sacks waterlogged beyond recognition, was transhipped to Korea. The other mail was stowed in the bow and was washed into the sea when sides of the bow were torn open.

Indemnity is payable on insured parcels that are lost or damaged. General Witsell pointed out Post offices will accept claims covering the loss or damage of insured parcels mailed to military personnel overseas after four months have elapsed from the date of mailing. General Witsell suggested that persons whose packages may have been affected contact their local postmasters for further information after the four-month waiting period has elapsed.

March Of Dimes Gamers $11,312

Fort Benning's March of Dimes campaign pushed over the top mark with a grand total of $11,312.11 collected during the three-week drive to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis.

Approximately $300 of the total amount, representing Lawson Field, was forwarded directly to Ninth Air Force headquarters in Greenville, S. C.

New Post Telephone Directory-Readied

A new Fort Benning telephone directory is now being consolidated and all organizations and activities have been requested to prepare an alphabetical listing of all telephones, currently in use and forwarded through intermediate headquarters to the assistant chief of staff before Feb. 15.

It has also been requested that activities and organizations report separately all telephones no longer needed so that they can be removed. Officials pointed out that there is a shortage of telephones and that all sections heads should report those for which there is no justifiable need.

COMMANDANT RETURNS

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel returned to Fort Benning today from Atlanta where he attended a three-day conference of all commanders within the Seventh Army. The session was called by Lieutenant General Oscar W. Griswold, commanding general of Seventh Army.

Major General John D. O'Daniel announced this week that Lt. Col. Walden J. Alexander, chairman of the recent March of Dimes campaign, has been appointed chairman of the 1947 American Red Cross Fund Campaign, which is slated to begin March 2 and continue throughout the month.

Immediately upon his appointment Col. Alexander called a meeting of the following sub-chairmen: Military—Major A. W. Petrosky, 1-Lt. C. F. Bruce, Capt. W. H. Stewart, 1-Lt. William P. Curran, Lt. Col. Harry L. Mayfield, Capt. Francis B. Smith, 1-Lt. Maurice C. Brewer, Major L. H. Estes, Capt. John W. Marr and Capt. William A. Lyon.

Civilian—Mr. J. C. Herring, Mrs. Dorothy W. Bruner, Mrs. W. A. Ford, Mr. H. B. Hugg, Mr. W. C. Vining, Mrs. Mabel Hacker, Mr. Richard A. Friedlander and Mr. T. A. Barefoot.

"The Red Cross is asking for $60,000,000 this year," Col. Alexander explained to the sub-chairmen at a session last Tuesday, "we have a promise to keep, an obligation written indelibly in our hearts, and it is through the Red Cross, and only through the Red Cross that such a promise can be fulfilled."

Col. Alexander pointed out that the American people are the Red Cross, and the Red Cross by its charter assumed the responsibility to mitigate suffering in the wake of war or disaster.

Murray E. Hill, field director of the Red Cross at Fort Benning, said the campaign will officially start the first of March throughout the nation and would run through the entire month in such locations as might be necessary in order that the quota be fulfilled.

Civilian Head For Red Cross Fund Named

J. C. Herring, chief clerk at the Post Ordinance Department, was named last week as chairman of the civilian committee for the 1947 Red Cross Fund Campaign beginning March 1. Lt. Col. Welden Alexander, campaign manager, announced today.

Meanwhile, in a memorandum to all troops at Fort Benning, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel endorsed the annual appeal for American Red Cross funds. "Each and every officer, enlisted man and civilian employee at this station will be afforded an opportunity to contribute an amount commensurate with his or her means," General O'Daniel said, adding, "the American National Red Cross has contributed immeasurably to the mora of this command by their very prompt attention to the welfare of the soldier and his family."

No quota has been set for the Red Cross Fund at Fort Benning, General O'Daniel said, but a scale of "anticipated contributions per individual experiencing enlisted men has been announced which, based on past experience, would enable the Infantry Center to go over the top in doing its part in the drive.

Enlisted men will be encouraged to participate voluntarily and contribute by any amount they desire. The "target" for other categories is as follows:

General officers, $5.00; colonels and lieutenant colonels, $3.00; majors and captains, $2.00; first and second lieutenants and warrant officers, $1.50; and civilian employees, $1.00.

Women Leaders

Mrs. John W. O'Daniel was named honorary chairman for the Fort Benning ladies in the Red Cross drive with Mrs. Irvin E. Scudder as chairman.

Following his appointment as chairman of the civilian committee for the Red Cross Fund Campaign, Mr. Herring called a meeting of the seven sub-committees of the civilian committee Feb. 12 at the Red Cross office.

Mr. F. Hill, field director for the Red Cross at Fort Benning, explained how the Red Cross was able to administer their funds economically in the sub-committee basis. He cited two reasons:

1. For every paid employee there are 150 volunteer workers in the Red Cross.
2. Of all the 11,900 employees of the Red Cross, 6,462 earn less than $2,500 and another 5,204 earn less than $5,000, leaving a small number in the higher bracket.

"There are two paramount reasons why the American public received so much return for every dollar donated," Mr. Hill said.

All Furlough Fares To Be Cancelled

The War Department announced today that it has been officially informed that all special rail and bus furlough fares for service personnel remaining in effect within the continental United States will be cancelled, effective with the close of business Friday February 28.

Furlough fare tickets purchased prior to March 1, the announcement said, will be good for passage at furlough rates between the points and within the time limits on the tickets.

On January 30, the carriers cancelled furlough fares on rail and bus lines operating generally east of the Mississippi river. The action announced today will apply throughout the United States.

Furlough fare for service personnel, granted voluntarily by the rail and bus lines, have been in effect since late in 1945.

The War Department is advising all Army Area and Air Forces commanders by radio of the discontinuance of an.

Three Disabled Veterans Ask On-The-Job Training

Three disabled veterans currently employed at Fort Benning have made application for on-the-job training under a recent cooperative agreement between the War Department and the Veterans Administration. Mr. George Wofford, civilian training supervisor, reviewed today.

The first veteran to sign up for job training is an ex-marine, John H. Sanders, who has been employed at Fort Benning since September 1944 in the Post Engineer's office and cold storage plant.

Approximately 50 disabled veterans altogether have been interviewed for on-the-job training at the post, Mr. Wofford said.

The War Department reached an agreement with the Veterans Administration to accept into the civilian training program individual disabled veterans for on-the-job training in order to assist in furnishing the veteran a course of vocational rehabilitation. Fort Benning is one of the first military posts to accept into the civilian training program this agreement for disabled veterans, who are selected by the office responsible for civilian training at the post in cooperation with the Veterans Administration.

In order to qualify for on-the-job training a veteran must be at least 10 per cent disabled and already employed on the post.

Boineau Heads Civil Service Board Of TIC

Establishment of a seven-man Civil Employment Board to serve as the nucleus of the U. S. Civil Service Board of Examiners for the Infantry Center, was announced today by TIC officials.

In addition to its main function of certifying applicants as being eligible for Probationary appointment, the board will also make recommendations to the commanding general on such matters as veterans reemployment, retention of status employees, employ training standards of performance, working conditions and the internal alignment of positions.

Colonel Leon C. Boineau, adjutant general of the Infantry Center, was named chairman of the board.

Other members include: Colonel Charles M. Crawford, Colonel Carl W. Stonefield, Colonel Helmut E. Heine, Colonel Robert B. Hill, Lt. Col. Frederick L. Ackerson and Mr. Herbert A. Rininsland, chief of the Civilian Personnel Branch.

Here's Indoctrination Course Schedule

Air Force Show Plans Completed

Complete readiness for the initial presentation of the gigantic Air Indoctrination course before students of the Armed Forces Staff College was announced today by Brig. Gen. Jared V. Crabb, chief of the advance Ninth Air Force headquarters at Lawson Field.

The announcement climaxed six weeks of feverish plans and preparations, including the influx of hundreds of technicians and tons of special equipment to Lawson Field from all parts of the country to help in preparing the largest aerial demonstration seen in the U. S. since the ending of the war.

Preview Provided
A preview of some of the late developments in aerial warfare to be presented during the course was afforded local residents the past week with the eric swishing roar created by the jet-propelled 300-mile-per hour P-40 "Shooting Stars" during daily practice flights over the area.

A preview of the castiness of the operation is a huge control center established at Advance Ninth Air Force mobile headquarters in one corner of Lawson field that controls the flights of hundreds of aircraft based at fields as far distant as Pope Field, Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Notables Present
Among the early arrivals of AAF leaders are the course director, Maj. Gen. E. R. Quesada, commanding general of the Tactical Air Command and Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, chief of the Ninth Air Force.

Other colorful AAF officers, Col. William M. Gross, Ninth Air Force chief of staff and leader of the first Eighth Air Force bombing raid on Hitler's Europe, is scheduled to arrive over the weekend to lecture to the first class.

Third Army Due To Replace 7th

The Third Army, which returns to the United States from Germany about April 15, will replace the Seventh Army in the Third Army area, with headquarters at Atlanta, prior to June 30, 1947, it was announced today by General Alexander, commanding Army Ground Forces.

A majority of the personnel and all equipment of the Third Army, now commanded by Major General Ernest N. Harmon, is being transferred to the United States. The use of this ration breakdown truck places Fort Benning on a competing level with large meat packing companies," Colonel Fitzpatrick asserted.

The change-over will complete the parallel between armies and army areas in the United States as originally planned in the reorganization from nine service commands to six army areas last June. The Third Army area embraces the states of Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

The Third Army won its fame in World War II when, under the command of the late General George S. Patton Jr., it swept from the rugged shores of Normandy to the Bobber plains. The Seventh Army was activated in North Africa and fought through Sicily, France and Germany under General Patton. Lieutenant General Wade H. Haislip, Lieutenant General Geoffrey Keyes and the late Lieutenant General Alexander M. Patch.

Small Arms Stand Up At 35 Below

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (CNS)—Army airplanes with task force Frigid had difficulty in leaving the ground in 35 degrees below zero weather.

A Herman-Nelson heater is used to warm up the planes before flight. The heaters must warm up the Herman-Nelson heater, and a blow torch must warm up the heater.

Small arms—the M1 rifle, carbine, and light machine gun—were used favorably in the sub-zero climate, reports disclose.

New Meat Truck Is In Use Here

A new ration breakdown truck, embodying the latest in sanitation and compactness, has been introduced at Fort Benning and is now being used to deliver all meat to messes on the reservation. Lt. Col. Lyle J. Fitzpatrick, food service supervisor, said today.

The large truck is lined with steel shelves which hold the covered meat cans picked up from the central meat cutting department and delivered directly to the messes. The truck is equipped with built-in messes. This single ration-bus truck is large enough to transport all the meat consumed by Benning personnel, eliminating the use of a separate vehicle for each mess.

A refrigeration unit is scheduled to be installed in the ration truck before summer.

Approximately 14,000 rations are handled daily with a money value amounting to about $10,000, the colonel revealed. There are about 100 messes at Fort Benning and cash collections for meals average between $8,000 and $10,000 monthly, he said.

The use of this ration breakdown truck places Fort Benning on a competing level with large meat packing companies," Colonel Fitzpatrick asserted.

Sanction Phone Calls To Troops In Germany

NEW YORK, (CNS)—Telephone calls now may be made from the United States to U. S. military and other personnel in the American occupation zone of Germany, the American Telephone and Telegraph company has announced. The charge is $12 for three minutes.

In order to allow time to locate the person called and bring him to one of nine telephone exchange points, calls will have to be placed 24 hours in advance.

In the past, only personnel in Germany have been able to place calls to this country.

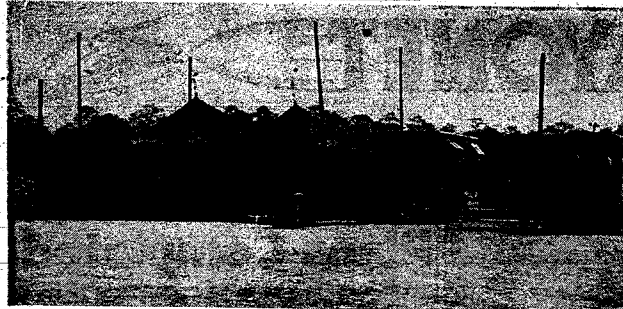

Dulaney Takes 25th Command

Col. Robert L. Dulaney has been appointed commanding officer of the 25th Command (Provisional) succeeding Col. Thomas B. Burgess, who has been made commander of the 34th ASU (Provisional) Battalion, military officials announced today.

Col. Dulaney, who served as the 25th command's commander until replaced by Brig. Gen. Philip E. Gallagher in May of the same year, had been in the Infantry prior to his reappointment.

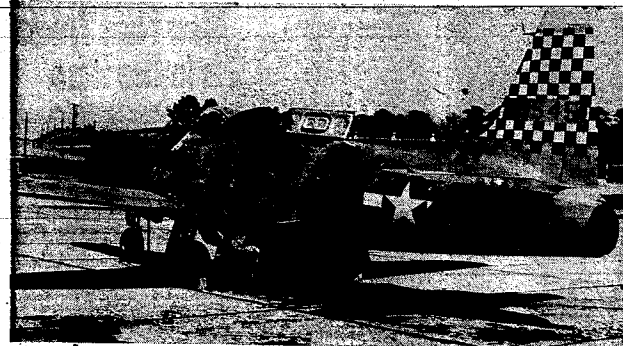

The new commander of the combat team was the war-time commander of the 108th Infantry regiment and led the unit through the Battle of the Bulge. A hero of campaigns and the invasion of Southern France. Later he served as assistant division commander of the 44th Infantry under General Patch's famous 7th Army. When the 44th returned to the States in July 1945 and was subsequently deactivated, Col. Dulaney was assigned to Camp Swift, Texas, where he commanded the 5th Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Special Troops, and the 25th Command.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy in 1923, Col. Dulaney was stationed at Fort Benning with the 10th Infantry in 1939.

MOBILE HEADQUARTERS of the Ninth Air Force is readied in one corner of Lawson Field, Ft. Benning, Ga. in preparation for the presentation of the Tactical Air Indoctrination Course, scheduled to begin February 24. The huge tent

Air Forces Celebrate Purchase Of 1st Plane

The Army Air Forces February 20 celebrated the 39th anniversary of the signing of the first contract to purchase an airplane. The contract, signed February 10, 1908, called for the purchase of "one heavier-than-air flying machine" for $25,000, to be delivered on or before August 28 of that year. The document was signed by Captain Charles S. Wallace, representing the air service; Orville Wright, for the Wright brothers of Dayton, Ohio; and Brigadier General James Allen, chief signal officer.

Although the contract called for delivery in August, 1908, the actual acceptance flights were not made until almost a year later, due to a plane accident suffered

General Reveals 71st Group Planned

Among the former members of the 71st Infantry Division interviewed by Major General Williard G. Wymann, commanding general of the old 71st Division, who visited Fort Benning last Wednesday, were Officer Candidates Keith Kerr, Vernon Bunch and George Kennedy. General Wymann informed the men of the proposed organization of a 71st association.

Progress Great

Three days later, before 7,000 spectators, the Wright brothers completed the second acceptance flight with Orville Wright as pilot and Lieutenant Benjamin D. Foulois (now Major General) as passenger. Since the contract called for 40 miles per hour, Orville Wright from Fort Meyer, Virginia, to Shuter Hill at Alexandria. Average speed for the flight was a trifle better than 42 miles per hour.

A clause in the agreement provided for a 10 per cent bonus payment over the $25,000 contract price for each mile per hour of speed over the specified 40. The Wright brothers, therefore, received $30,000 for the nation's first military airplane. Instruction in handling the plane for the flying officers of the Air Service was included in the contract's terms.

In the 39 years since its first airplane acceptance, the Army Air Forces has made tremendous aeronautical progress. The Wright brothers' fabric-covered, open-cockpit plane has been replaced by a fleet of new serial developments including plane, manufacturer, type and power-plant:

- 1. P-50 Consolidated Vulture, Very Heavy Bomber.
- 2. P-50 Consolidated Vulture, Very Heavy Bomber.

- 7. P-38 Republic Fighter, 1 J-35 General Electric Jet Engine.

M'Arthur Guard Now At Benning

"Honor guard is good duty." That is the opinion of Officer Candidate Bert Miner, former member of General MacArthur's Honor Guard Company in Tokyo, who is now a member of the 10th Company, 2nd Battalion, Student Training Regiment.

One day while on guard mount in the Japanese capital, T-Sgt. Miner was informed that his application for OCS had been accepted. He was promptly flown to the States, given a 21-day furlough at home and then assigned to AOCN Number 6, where he lives up to his former status, being a member of the Honor committee and one of the company's honor students.

Candidate Miner fought with the 25th Division into Manila with General MacArthur. In Manila, Miner was selected to be a member of the Supreme Commander's Honor Guard at GHQ.

Says Candidate Miner: "I hope General MacArthur doesn't finish the job too soon. I want to go back."

Tests Slated For Technicians

Open competitive examinations for probational appointments to the positions of medical and X-ray technicians and draftsmen were announced today by Miss Frances Hug, executive secretary of the Board of Civil Service examiners for the Infantry Center. Deadline for making applications is March 6.

The positions of medical technicians carry ratings of SP-4 and SP-5 with a pay rate of $2168.28 and $2394 respectively per annum, a minimum of one year's experience is required for the SP-4 and two years' for the SP-5. Persons applying for the position of X-ray technician, which carries an SP-5 rating, must have had at least two years' experience. The position of draftsman carries an SP-7 rating with a pay rate of $3021 per annum and requires four and one half years' progressive experience.

No-written examination will be required of applicants, Miss Hug pointed out. Prospective appointees need only file their applications showing their experience to the executive secretary of the Civil Service board at Fort Benning.

It was also announced that all war service employees are urged to apply for the examination in order to be placed on a probational status.

10,000 MORE REGULAR RANKS ALLOTTED TO AAF OFFICERS

Approximately 10,000 officers in the Army Air Forces will be commissioned in the Regular Army in additional increments of the total 50,000 Regular Army officers authorized by the War Department during 1947, AAF headquarters announced today.

Major General Fred L. Anderson, Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Personnel, described the 591 commissions which were announced this week as a "token" list.

"We are unable to process a sufficient number of applications in time for the January deadline to commission in the Regular Army Air Forces desires to keep," General Anderson said.

Re-screening of previous applicants for the commissions is being completed by AAF boards in addition to the screening of new applications by men who applied during the extension period which will end January 31 unless extended again.

"Every effort will be made to screen as many applicants as possible for the next integration, which is now planned for May, 1947," according to Brigadier General Edwin Lyon, Senior Member of the Officers' Selection Board. "It is expected that the last integration will be in the fall when those whose applications have been delayed for various reasons will be considered for commissioning," he added.

As many of the 10,000 new commissions as possible will be granted this year, depending upon the number of qualified candidates and completion of the required processing.

General Lyon pointed out that only a minimum number of applications had been rescreened by AAF boards in time for consideration by the selection board for the group of commissions awarded this week. The Army Air Forces was given authority by the War Department to rescreen all applicants before boards composed of AAF officers only following the first list of Regular Army commissions last July.

Army Cooks Secure From Transfers—WD

WASHINGTON (CNS)—Army personnel trained in food service will be secure against transfer to other jobs and will enjoy high grades with more pay. This was decreed by Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, in a move to make Army cooking a career job in the new postwar Army.

For months Army messing facilities have been under study by a committee of restaurant, hotel, and wholesale food experts. The committee, after a year's investigation, recommended that the practice of transferring men on mess duty to other jobs be stopped and called for the establishment of a special food service corps.

There is No Truce

For the Red Cross, there is no truce. The mighty army under the Red Cross banner must still fight for the alleviation of suffering and the mitigation of despair.

For those who serve now, or will bear the burden of their service—the young boys and occupation forces far from home, the veterans wounded, weak, in hospitals throughout the country—the program of hope remains a task. To the Red Cross program of good will and service to the Nation's people, the Red Cross asks for funds. Each one shares the task. Must you raise the goal set—the $60,000,000 which the Red Cross needs.

must still bring hope—the victims of disaster—flood, tornado, hurricane and wreck—they look to the Red Cross.

To build the nation's health, conserve its life, the Red Cross still must fight. To establish in every community the principles inherent in the Red Cross, the implement of compassion and the sign of hope remains a task. To the Red Cross program of good will and service to the Nation's people, the Red Cross asks for funds. Each one shares the task. Must you raise the goal set—the $60,000,000 which the Red Cross needs.

The Gold Dust Twins

For some little time now the United States Military Academy at West Point has been in the news. This was due in no small measure to the football exploits of two twins, Ed and Felix Blanchard, aptly called the "Touchdown Twins."

This week the nation's press had the unusual experience of reporting that the Secretary of War had turned down the applications of Ed and Felix and another West Point football player of no mean ability, Barney Foote, for post-graduation furloughs in order that the three might play professional football and thereby earn more money in four months than they could acquire probably in a lifetime of Army service.

The fact that the three applied for the furloughs to pick up much folding money indicates, it seems to us, that West Point is a diet for the cadets these days including great amounts of raw nerve.

We just can't seem to forget that while the three were basking in the limelight of their football accomplishments, for all of other young men were running up beaches.

And the fact that the Army bucked the applications in one big hurry right up the Secretary of War's desk makes one wonder if the same consideration would have been given a similar application by some private stationed on your Army post you care to name. We think not; we think the private application would have been junked somewhere in the maze of Army administration.

The incident—its intents and purposes, is closed. The "Twins" say that they never had entertained thoughts of abandoning their Army careers. This should reassure the boys, who were at Anzio and Normandy in the steaming Pacific jungles that West Point's prime reason for existence is to produce two cadets, military leaders and not football players.

Actually, this position already has been stated by West Point's superintendent, Maj. Gen. Maxey Taylor. He has said that college football has gotten out of hand and that West Point is headed for a period of de-emphasis.

Perhaps it is, but this week's other story concerning West Point shakes confidence. This story reported that a young Philadelphia scholastic football star, Johnny Papp, had decided to go to West Point. Johnny, it seems, was much sought by the leading colleges and universities. But he made up his mind that West Point was the place for him after talk with West Point's assistant football coach.

There is no harm, of course, in Johnny's doing his football playing for West Point. But coming on the heels of the Davis-Blanchard incident, it classifies the Army as a place where the school overlooking the Hudson is in business to produce future Eisenhower or future Roosevelt.

Youth Grows Up

By Chaplain Robert P. Casis

It is wonderful to be young! There is only one trouble with youth. Some folks never want to grow up. They are content to grow up as children all their lives. Physically they mature, but mentally and emotionally they remain childish in their concept of life. St. Paul once wrote something on this matter: "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child, but when I became a man, I put away childish things." These words in no way contradict Jesus' earlier words: "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." The greatest of scientists, inventors and explorers become as little children faced with the magnitude of some new discovery or adventure. But in applying that adventure or discovery to life, they employ the mature reason and logic of a man, wised-up by years of study and research.

All youth maturing to manhood must learn this proper balance between childhood and adulthood with mature reason. Immature manhood, especially in a soldier's life, leads to two evils: stupidity and homesickness. The other is the abandonment of the moral and social obligations of manhood. In both cases—complicated problems arise which could be solved if the individual would accept his maturity and face life with the desires, ambitions, and aspirations of one who has grown to full manhood. It is God's wisdom when our wisdom fails us.

Who! A Signal Corps Colonel and his young enlisted jeep driver in Italy were fleeing down a bumpy road in his shells and bullets flying around them. As they desperately tried to reach safety the E.M. jeep driver hit a tree trunk and flipped. Finally after one particularly bad bump the Colonel remarked: "I take it, jeep, you ain't no more as young as I used to be." Turning a soiled face to the officer who driver replied: "Yes Sir, I'm just as old as I'd like to be." —Scott Field Broadcaster.

Army Counselor

(This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans and their dependents. If you have a problem not discussed here, take it to your Army Counselor, Rm. 26, Post Hq. Bldg.)

1. EXTENSION ASKED FOR PARKED ALLIGATOR.—Legislation which would extend payment of dependents' allowances until six months after official end of the war or until July 1, 1949, which was introduced in Congress at the request of the Navy Department. The Navy, with the approval of the Senate Armed Forces Committee that the present law will discriminate between men who enlisted before July 1, 1946, and those who enlisted after that date.

2. REPATRIATION OF WAR DEAD—A bill was introduced into the House last week which provides that parents may make disposal on return of body of deceased soldier from overseas if widow is next of kin and does not request such return.

3. RETIREMENT FURLOUGHS—Have been discontinued. Prior to the enactment of the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946, military personnel who were eligible for 20- or 30-year retirement were entitled to receive 120-day retirement furlough, less the amount of time of an furlough received during the last year of service. Under the 1946 Act, all military personnel in the Army are to be given leave of absence before release to inactive duty or discharge, in amount of unused leave they have accrued.

4. EMERGENCY MATERNITY AND INFANT CARE—Is a child born outside the United States to the alien wife of a soldier, entitled to benefits under the EMIC program? Children born to American military personnel of alien mothers, outside the continental limits of the U. S., are not eligible for EMIC benefits. This program is administered by the State Board of Health in the various states.

5. OVERSEAS ASSIGNMENTS—All military personnel are eligible for overseas duty at the discretion of military authorities, if they are physically qualified. Until 1 Jan. 1947, all personnel who had been overseas were assured a minimum of six months' service in the U. S. before becoming eligible for foreign service. After 1 Jan. a minimum period in the U. S. will be computed to include all time elapsed since return to the U. S. Men with 30 months or more service overseas will be allowed one year service in the U. S. before being assigned for foreign duty.

6. HOMESTEADS FOR VETERANS—Public Law 434, 78th Congress, 7 Sep. 1944, provides that for 10 years after that date, honorably discharged service persons who served at least 30 days in the U. S. Armed Forces during World War I, are entitled to preferred right of application for 90 days before the general public may apply for entry on Public Land. A serviceman is also entitled to a 10% discount on his land. If the land is not acquired within 2 years of the 3 years' residence and cultivation required under homestead laws, for those with the maximum service credit of 2 years, the actual residence will be required. Since 6 months' leave of absence may be taken during a year, the actual residence for the veteran is thereby reduced to 7 months. For information on procedure for entry and filing of claims, and addresses, see your Army Counselor.

7. INCOME TAX—Mr. Carl L. Schomburg, Deputy Collector, will be available for assistance with your income tax problems from 11 to 2 p. m. daily, desk in Personnel Affairs Office, Rm. 36, Post Hq. Bldg.

8. WAIVER OF ACCRUED LEAVE—Military personnel who have unused accrued leave to their credit and are entitled to discharge, retirement or relief from active duty under honorable conditions, and desire to forego their accrued leave in order to secure such discharge without delay, are authorized to do so in the following instances:

A. Personnel to be discharged on certificate of disability for discharge when the reason therefor is a result of a physical handicap or inability to a degree that availing themselves of accrued leave would not necessarily be considered as affording beneficial recreation or vacation (such as amputees, blinded personnel, etc.).

B. Personnel who require further hospitalization or treatment at a Veterans Administration, state or institutional facility.

C. Personnel discharged or retired who are entrusted to the care of a member of the family, or other duly authorized individual.

D. Personnel discharged for the convenience of the Government to accept commissions, appointments as warrant officers (except as provided for in par 2b, AR 600-115), appointment to the United States Military Academy, Naval Academy or Coast Guard Academy.

Individuals concerned will be required to execute a statement to the effect that they do not desire to avail themselves of unused accrued leave. (WD Cir 358, 46.)

Annual Hunt Ball Ushers In Week Of Activity In Field

A full week of intensive horse and hunting activities was ushered in last Saturday night at the Officers' Club with the annual Infantry School Hunt Ball which also coincided with the 53rd birthday of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding general of the Infantry Center and Honorary Master of the Hunt. The gay party, which also made a brilliant climax to the winter hunting season, was therefore a double celebration.

In one highlight of the colorful evening the Hunt staff presented the general with a large birthday cake, glowing with green candles and topped with frosted roses and the legend "Happy Birthday."

The club, specially reserved for the occasion, was decorated throughout with unusual horse and hound cutouts fastened to the walls, and with scenes depicting the complete chase, ranged around the main dining room. Around 500 officers and ladies attended, their olive drab uniforms and glittering silk and satin evening gowns in strong contrast to the bright "dress hunting-pink" coats with blue facings worn by the Hunt staff who arrived booted and spurred.

Dancing Music
Music for dancing was provided by Sgt. Ben Cortese and his "Army Blue" Orchestra, with dinner being served to all guests from 8:30 to 10 p. m.

The Hunt Ball, which was revived last year, was held in connection with the Hunter Trials, a sporting event which will take place this afternoon at 2 p. m. at the beginning of the drag course on Hook Range, Dixie Road and to which the public is cordially invited.

Another important social event of this weekend is the Exhibitor's

Luncheon at noon today at the Skeet Club. The meal will be served buffet style to contestants in the Hunter Trials, their families and houseguests.

Several out-of-town guests were seated at the Staff Table, set up in front of the fireplace under the blue "Follow Me" emblem of the Infantry School. They included Dr. and Mrs. Urton Mann, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Elsas, and Mrs. David Hedeck, all of Atlanta, Col. and Mrs. James Callout of Fort Bragg, N. C., and Mrs. Frank C. Sinsel, Hunt Hostess, Maj. L. L. Sexton, On the Staff are Lt. Col. Richard G. Collins, Lt. Col. John Hitching, Lt. Col. Jacob Loomis, and Capt. Frank S. Lillyman, all of whom were present with their wives.

No-Host Parties

Col. and Mrs. Ernest C. Peters, Maj. and Mrs. James K. Terry, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas M. Cathcart, Capt. and Mrs. William L. Young, Capt. John M. Davis, Miss Barbara Overfelt, Lt. Col. Name' Band Is 4-Star Hit At NCO Club

The Post Non-Commissioned Officers' club scored another four-star entertainment success last night at Pine Lodge with an evening of dancing to the smooth rhythm of Bob Sylvester and his orchestra.

A four-hour broadcast of the dance music was made over the "bedside network" Station WFBS the Armed Forces Radio Service direct to the patients in the Regional Station Hospital. A half-hour broadcast was also made over radio station WDAE.

The Sylvester orchestra is the second big-name band to appear at the recently opened Pine Lodge clubhouse located on South Edge Street where regular Wednesday and Saturday night dances are now being held.

Song stylist Eloise held the audience enthralled with her sparkling melodies and the band really brought down the house with the currently popular "Open the Door Richard."

Membership of the NCO club continues to increase as more and more NCO's realize the advantages of belonging to this attractive club which is eligible to all NCO's of the post regardless of branch or service.

Included in the building is a bar and kitchen which is now open during the day and serving light snacks on short order. The ceiling of the club is covered with red, white and green parachutes in a graceful canopied arrangement.

75th TC Celebrates Anniversary

D-Day Veteran Unit Fetes 4th Birthday

The 75th Troop Carrier Squadron, veteran of a series of D-Day invasions in the ETO, will commemorate its fourth anniversary at Lawson Field on February 25.

Climaxing the 75th's birthday celebration next Tuesday will be the major troop carrier role it will play in the second day of the Ninth Air Force Air Indoctration Course which begins at Lawson Field on February 24.

The 75th was activated at Bowman Field, Ky., on February 24, 1943, with only two officers and 39 enlisted men. One of the officers, Capt. Paul W. Dahl, is still a member of the squadron and serves as its executive officer.

Lt. Colonel Lewis A. Curtis is the squadron's commanding officer. He has commanded the unit since he joined it as a first lieutenant at Sedalia AAF, Mo., in May 1943.

Strength Increased
The squadron was gradually increased to full strength and underwent intensive training at Pope Field, N. C. It was processed for overseas service at Baer Field, Ind., and from there went to England on October 1943.

Its first overseas base was in Northern England, later it was moved to Reading in Southern England where it was located for over a year. From January until June 1944 the 75th operated on joint airborne missions with the 82nd and 101st Airborne Infantry Divisions and British and Polish Airborne Divisions.

Its outstanding record of D-Day invasions began on June 5, 1944. The initial D-Day.

The evening was dull and overcast, loaded C-47s of the 75th grimly lined the broad runway of an English airrome. General Eisenhower noted the time; it was 2235. The Allied Supreme Commander exchanged a few words with other officials and departed for another base.

Cherbourg Landfall
Two-and-one-half hours later, led by Col. Curtis, the 75th which was part of the 435 TC Group, made landfall over the west side of Cherbourg Peninsula of France, and the long awaited invasion was on.

The planes ran into instrument weather and formations were difficult to keep intact. German anti-aircraft met the troop carrier planes with all they had, and caused heavy damage but troop carrier ships flew on with their valuable cargo. The drop zone was not marked as previously planned but the area was located and the 75th delivered its load of 82nd Airborne Division personnel and started the return trip to the mainland through thick enemy fire. Ninety percent of the airplanes suffered battle damage and the squadron's operations officer was shot down in flames.

On the following evening the 75th again crossed the English Channel carrying troops of the 82nd. The mission was scheduled to make the drop at dusk but the heavy overcast made it pitch dark. Through the darkness and enemy anti-aircraft fire the 75th glider pilots searched for a suitable landing place among the Normandy hedgerows. A large number of the gliders were damaged by enemy fire and many others were forced to crash land.

Allied Patton Troops
Shortly after the Normandy invasion the 75th began flying equipment, food, and supplies to airstrips on the continent, a function it carried out for the duration of the war. When General Patton's tanks made their thrusts across France and Belgium all of their gasoline was flown to them by troop carrier planes. On the return trips the ships evacuated casualties.

On July 17, 1944, the squadron flew to Italy to take part in the invasion of Southern France. They dropped British Hogra gliders in that invasion, and on D-Day plus one carried out resupply missions. The 75th returned to its England base on August 23.

D-Day of the Holland invasion found the unit dropping the 502nd parachute Regiment on the 1st. For days later it continued flying in troops and resupply missions. Enemy anti-aircraft again inflicted serious damage on its unarmed aircraft.

On Christmas Eve 1944 the 75th flew sorely needed supplies to the 101st, locked in the historic battle of the "Bulge" at Bastogne. Through hazardous weather and flak the 75th continued flying vital supplies to the besieged 101st.

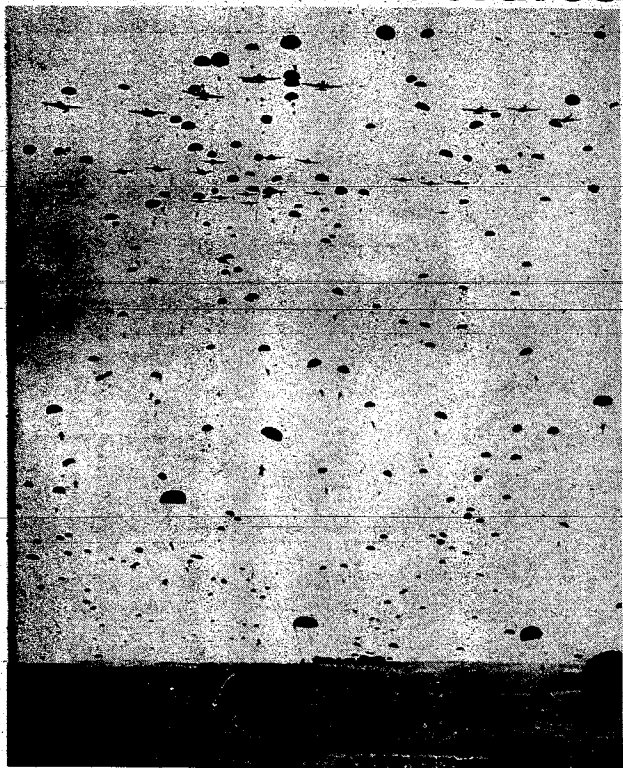

In February 1945 the squadron left England and set up its home base near Paris.

"Over The Rhine"
On the final airborne assault of World War II, the "Over The Rhine" mission on March 1945, the 75th airplanes suffered severe battle damage but successfully dropped its load of paratroopers and gliders.

After 22 months of overseas service the 75th packed its equipment and returned home in June 1945. After all personnel had received thirty day furloughs the squadron was reassembled at Baer Field, from where it was sent to Keilburg, Germany. Shortly afterward it returned to Baer Field where it lost many of its wartime members through separation and new personnel was taken on.

The squadron arrived at Lawson Field on November 1945 to take up its peacetime troop carrier mission of flying paratroop and glider training missions for Fort Benning's Airborne Infantry School.

In September 1946 the 75th was given charge of the Ninth Air Force Pathfinder School at Lawson. The school trains complete crews in the technique of pathfinding.

PRACTICING FOR THE INVASION—Aircraft of the 75th are shown participating in a pre-invasion maneuver in England in 1944. The Squadron used earmarked C-47s for all troop carrier operations during the war. The wartime aircraft has been replaced by a bigger and newer ship the Fairchild C-82 "Packet."

Brewer Heads AFA Campaign

Lt. Maurice G. Brewer, Lawson Field special service officer, has been appointed local membership chairman for the Air Force association, base officials announced today.

The local membership drive is in coordination with the national membership campaign recently launched by the organization headquarters, Lt. Brewer said.

Veterans and active members of the AAF in this vicinity may contact him for further membership information at Fort Benning Exchange 2708. The national membership drive will end in March according to Lt. Brewer.

Letter From Doolittle
In a recent letter to all AAF personnel, Jimmy Doolittle, president of the association, stated: "The war against Germany and Japan is over, but the kind of peace we fought for has not been won."

"Today we are as vulnerable to surprise attack as we were in the years preceding Pearl Harbor."

By joining the AFA, Doolittle continued, active personnel, as well as AAF veterans can insure peace by working for unified, equal Air Force status with ground, sea and branch services.

Benefits Gained

Besides the personal satisfaction of participating in the Air Force association, it was said, members receive a year's free subscription to "Air Force," an official journal of the society; embossed membership cards that identifies you as an air veteran and entitles you to visit on occasions any AAF installation in the country; a distinctive lapel marking you as a member of the organization and a former air man (if you are discharged), as well as an opportunity to continue service friendships after separation.

Annual membership dues for the organization are $3.00 a year.

New Jet Bomber Near Completion

The Army Air Forces' newest jet bomber, the Northrop YB-49 is nearing completion at the Northrop plant at Hawthorne, California.

The YB-49, a jet-propelled version of the Northrop B-35 "Flying Wing," spans 172 feet across the wing, but is only 53 feet long, due to the absence of the conventional fuselage. It is powered by eight General Electric J-35 jet engines, capable of producing a total of 32,000 pounds thrust, arranged in groups of four on either wing. The plane has a service ceiling in excess of 30,000 feet.

Crew capacity of the jet-propelled "Wing" is thirteen men, including a pilot, co-pilot, navigator, radio operator, flight engineer, bombardier and gunner, with space for six reserve crew members for relief work on long-range missions.

The landing gear of the YB-49 is of the tricycle type, consisting of two main wheels, five feet six inches in diameter, and a single nose wheel, four feet eight inches in diameter.

Like the B-35, the YB-49 is controlled by "Northrop-designed elevons," a control surface which performs the functions of both elevators and ailerons. The plane is equipped with four vertical air separators, which extend above and below the wing surface, to increase directional stability.

The plane is expected to make its first flight this summer.

Civilian Personnel Notice

The next meeting of the local chapter No. 34, American Federation of Government Employees, will be held at 8 p. m. February 21 at the Carpenter Hall Building located at ninth and Broad in Columbus. All members are urged

THREE BATTLE STREAMERS awarded to 25th Infantry Regiment.

Three Battle Streamers Are Awarded '25th'

For "gallant and distinguished" service during World War II the 25th Infantry Regiment was awarded three battle streamers at a ceremony Saturday on the Sand Hill parade grounds.

The citations—the North Solomon streamer, the Bismark Archipelago streamer and the New Guinea streamer—were affixed to the regimental standard by Col. Robert L. Dulaney, commanding officer.

First of the three awards was made for the organization's service on the Solomon Islands from January to March, 1944. The second and third citations were presented on the Bismark Archipelago and in New Guinea during 1944 and 1945.

Prior to World War II, the 25th Infantry Regiment, one of the oldest Regular Army units in the United States Army, had, for distinguished service during national emergencies, been awarded four Battle Streamers, namely: the Comanche Streamer for service in the Indian Campaigns, 1874-1890; Pine Ridge Streamer for service during the Pine Ridge Campaign, 1890-91; the Santiago Streamer for service during the Spanish American War, 1898; in Cuba; the Luzon Streamer for service on the Islands of the Philippine Archipelago during the Philippine Insurrection, 1898-1900.

Music for the ceremony and review was furnished by the 25th Infantry Band.

Better Clothes Due For Future Soldiers

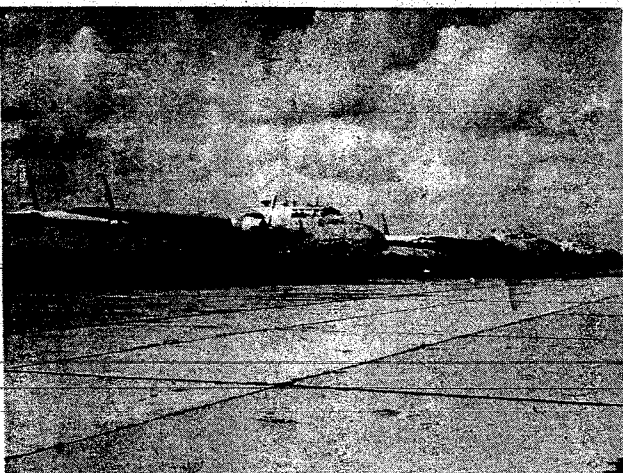

WASHINGTON (CNS)—The soldiers of tomorrow will wear clothing resistant to fire, water, mildew, shrinkage, sunlight and abrasion.

This is the promise of the Army Quartermaster Corps. Clothing for the combat GI of the future is being designed to cope with every climate from 60 degrees below zero in the Arctic to 150 degrees above in the tropics.

The Army says it has taken the lessons learned in World War II to heart and intends to do better by its combat soldiers of the future. It is carrying on further tests in Alaska and with the Byrd expedition at the South Pole.

All future clothing, tentage and equipment must not only afford ample protection, the War Department declares, but it must be lighter and more adaptable to the soldier's movement.

to be present as well as Fort Benning government employees who are not members. The last meeting, February 7, was attended by over 100 members.

PRIDE OF THE 75TH—Fairchild C-82 "Packee" aircraft shown on the line at Lawson Field are used by the 75th for its airborne training missions. The squadron has eight mighty C-82s and expects to be fully equipped with these aircraft in the near future. More commonly known as the "Flying Boxcar" it can carry 42 fully equipped men or a small Army tank.

Sports Arena Takes State Tryout Assured Cage Crown From Doughs Norman Clark

ACTION GALORE, featured the underdog 555th Paratrooper Battalion's fighters last Thursday night in the 25th C. T. Field House. Although Claude Wilburn, 159, classy 25th Middleweight put the slammer on 555th's James Holley, 155, and had him hanging on for dear life on several occasions, the doughy 25th battler lost valuable points and the bout by touching his gloves too many times to the canvas during his weaving tactics.

Inspired 25th C. T. Boxers Defeat Ft. Bragg Ringmen

BY S/SGT. ALYSEN E. WISE
Faced with two losses which came with breath-taking rapidity, a do or die 25th Combat Team boxing club battled a capacity crowd of some 2,500 fans by winning six of 10 bouts over a highly touted 555th Paratrooper Battalion team from Fort Bragg, last Thursday night in the 25th Combat Team Field House.

In the two initial sets, 555th's Charlie Madison, 120, left-handed, his way to a clean-cut decision over a willing James Sharp, 125, of the 89th F. A., while in the second bout, Lucien Cooper, 135, of the visitors, calmly awaiting an opening, delivered a smashing right hook to the mid-section of 89th's Hank Williams, 135, for a layo in 1:51 of the first round.

Billy Gray, 57 1/2 F. A., 132, 46 T. O. titleholder and Fort MeClellan champ, hammered his way to a unanimous decision over James Jones, 135, recent winner of the lightweight crown during the Eleventh Army Boxing tournament.

Gray, employing a consistently moving criss-cross, hooking style, reminiscent of the immortal Joe Gans, conducted a withering hooking and chopping offensive which had the champ continually on the defense during the entire three rounds. His victory was the first for the Sand Hillers.

Scoring a hard right hook to his opponent's jaw for the first blow of the bout, 25th's Norman Clark, 145, dropped Lillard Sems, 139, for counter-punching a hairline decision of 9 and 8 before the towel sign over Russell Wainwright, 145, saved the Paratrooper from further damage.

The time, 1:51 of the first round, Clark, looking in the greatest shape of his career, brought his undefeated record up to 10 knockouts out of 13 bouts.

With the standings on an even basis for the first four matches, the 555th surged to the fore during the next two bouts by gaining decisions. James Holley, 155, won over Claude Wilburn, 159. Wilburn outscored his rangier opponent continually throughout the set. He lost a number of points through his weaving tactics which had him touching his gloves to the canvas several times and was warned during those occasions by the referee. Carl Jones, 155, back-tracked and counter-punched his way to a split decision over Billy Williams.

The 25th returned to the victory through Jimmy Gurr, 169, who, in giving hooking weight and reach to Charlie Strong, 175, outscored his opponent by his bewildering style. Cignotic Howard Williams, 235, staked 555th's current, Seventh Army Heavyweight champ, Junius Emerson, 190, for about 50 seconds, right hooked him to the floor for a no-count, floored him immediately after 9, then delivered a solid right hand smother to the jaw for a 1:10 first-round fuis.

Sammy Davis, 175, won a unanimous decision over 55th's elusive, and back tracking Richard Donaldson, 175, and 25th's Noel Math-dison's back-tracking tactics by 144, dropped Lillard Sems, 139, for counter-punching a hairline decision of 9 and 8 before the towel sign over Russell Wainwright, 145, saved the Paratrooper from further damage.

The Georgia State Crown left the Fort Bragg Doughboys trophy shell last week and moved its residence for the next year to the Atlanta Sports Arena, as a result of that team's triumph over a field of some 20 others in the Georgia-State-Open-Basketball-Tourney played last week in the Sports Arena.

The Doughboys were favorites to retain their title in Pre-Tourney. A fairly strong Atlanta Aces team was the Doughs third rung opponents. They were prime for what they figured to be the toughest game of the tourney, but even so, their coach stated publicly before the opening whistle that he would be satisfied if his boys came within 10 points of the much-respected Doughs.

It was obvious throughout the first half that the Benning five were not playing up to their usual standard. They were pressing, for the first time all-year, and as a result they couldn't connect on their shots.

The Crackers, on the other hand played like a team inspired and, with Rabbit Jordan and Bobby Moore, former Georgia and Georgia Tech footballers, making the team go, they held a 27-24 halftime edge over the worried Tallismen.

The Doughs have a reputation as a strong second half team, and several times have come from behind in the second stanza to win by top heavy margins, so nobody was looking for an upset—yet.

The last 20 minutes closed the book on the Doughs as far as the Georgia State tourney was concerned. The Atlanta five never slowed up, and the Doughboys never got started. They did manage to stay within range until the first two minutes, but during those last flying 1:20 seconds, Messert, Jordan and Moore lengthened their lead to seven points, 33-46. Let it not be said the Doughboys ever gave up. Even in the face of certain defeat, Anderson and Wirt sparked a rally in the final 20 seconds that scored a pair of field goals, but it wasn't enough. Final score, 53-50.

In their opening contest the Benning five met and annihilated a weak Stone Mountain team 83 to 20. After the first five had run up a 25-4 score in the first quarter, the Doughboy "Hungry Five" took over and completed the rout, rolling up a 42 to 7 halftime score, continuing on to an eventual 63 point margin.

Their second opening was a red garbed outfit bearing the title of the Lithonia Fire Department. The Doughs all the way, but with their game with the Benningites, but they just weren't in the same class. They pushed the Doughs all the way, but with their game with the Benningites, but they just weren't in the same class. They pushed the Doughs all the way, but with their game with the Benningites, but they just weren't in the same class.

Bill Miller, lanky 'Doughboy center from Eastern Kentucky, was honored in the post tournament all-star selections. He was named a guard on the second all-tourney honor. He was put on the first string all-star five of the Seventh Army meet two weeks ago, as were Claude Anderson, and Scooter Baker.

Norman Clark, 145, sensational and undefeated welterweight battler from Second Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment, will receive a try-out as an aspirant for the 1948 U. S. Olympic Boxing Team in the very near future, it was announced by Lt. Anthony S. Priola, Assistant Athletic and Recreation of the 25th Regimental Combat Team announced Monday.

Clark, a native of Junction City, Kansas, was inducted into his home town High School, Class of 1940, he had, between his graduation and induction been employed as an apprentice tailor. His first experience with the leather mitts occurred 10 months ago when Lt. Priola, assisted by Col. Leo Swafford, former Joe Louis and Tony Galento sparring mate, started a boxing team under the banner of the 25th Infantry Regiment's Second Battalion.

Clark, despite his being a novice, started kayocing all opponents with the frequent regularity of a champion. His amazing record to date is 12 kayocoes out of 14 battles.

Enlist-re-enlist. The Regular Army soldier is exempt from income taxes, has free first-class mail privileges and can purchase government life insurance at much lower rates than commercial insurance.

Engineers Grab Cage Loop Lead

There was little change in the School Troops Basketball League last week.

The 1280th Engineers put a head lock on first place when they walked all over the Regimental Headquarters of the 37th Infantry '77 to '24. Hewitt was high scorer for the Engineers with 17 points with Kosmine high for the losers with nine points.

The 750th Tankers lost to the First Battalion, 37th Infantry, in a close match last week. Coming from behind the Tankers were not into a two-point lead with only a minute or two left to play. Then the Tankers ran out of gas and let the infantrymen overtake them to the tune of 50 to 47. Nicklois was the big wheel for the winners with 28 points. Ulin was high man for the Tankers with 12 points.

McClellan Ring Team To Be Here

Fort McClellan will bring its boxing team to the post Friday night to meet the Benning fighters, recent winners of the State Golden Gloves tournament in Atlanta.

The bouts will be held in the Main Post gym, beginning at 8 p. m.

Earlier in the week 1-Sgt. John Wilson, co-trainer of the Benning team, said he wasn't sure yet how many fighters McClellan will bring. He said when the Benning punchers went down to fight at McClellan on the 14th, the Rifleman only consented to matching four of their boxers, and they were all in the novice class.

Sergeant Wilson said he hoped McClellan will have more fighters for tomorrow night, as he wants to let post personnel get a look at Ray Underwood, Ralph DePebble, Larkie Colebrooke, and other classy clouters on the Benning roster.

In addition to the Benning-McClellan bouts, there will be fighters from different units on the post appearing. These are men who are unable to travel with the team, and can only fight on the post.

There also was a possibility that the fights scheduled for the 25th Combat Team area for Friday may be switched to the Main Post gym, and the two affairs will be combined.

BEST PUNCHER IN PEACH STATE—Ray Underwood, Benning featherweight clouter, can claim to be the No. 1 fighter in the state of Georgia, for in the state Golden Gloves tourney held in Atlanta he punched his way to the featherweight crown, won the sportsmanship trophy, and was voted the outstanding boxer competing. Ray is a Massachusetts boy, has been in the Army six years now. He expects to make boxing his career, so let this be fair warning to Willie Pep, Beau Jack et al.

Co. C, 37th Inf. Wins Touch Football Crown

Enlist—re-enlist. The Regular Army soldier can retire after 20 years with one-half of his base pay; three-fourths of his base pay after thirty years service.

Time Of Boxes Matches Changed

Due to the basketball game between Xavier U. and 25th Infantry's Bullets being held on the Regiment's regular fight night—Thursday—the five team tourney matches will be held in 25th Regimental C. T. Field house Friday night of this week. First bout will start at 8 o'clock.

Golf Schedule Is Changed To Avoid Jamming Course

By COL. FAY ROSS
The Officers' club golf course continues to be one of the most popular spots on the post. This is true even during the winter months. When the longer and warmer days arrive and the less ardent golfers join the more hardy, the problem of starting play and finding space for all on the course, during the popular hours, will increase. The course cannot accommodate all the golfers who wish to play at one time.

The club professional and philosopher, Frank Goss, has this to say on the subject:
"The only way to put one and one-half dozen eggs in a basket made to hold one dozen is to scramble the eggs."
Revised Schedule Set Up
To avoid scrambling the golfers, a revised schedule for starting has been put into effect, extending the times for starting over a longer period. These times, arranged for busy and crowded afternoons—Wednesdays and Saturdays, allow six minutes for each foursome to clear a tee and move out of range and one hour and 48 minutes to complete nine holes.

Officers Team Scores Victory

The 1st Battalion, 37th Infantry, officers volleyball team defeated the 501st Parachute Bn. officers team Friday, Feb. 7th, by the score of 4 to 2 games. This was the second straight match taken from the Troopers by the Infantrymen.

The individual scores by games were: 21-18, 17-21, and 21-14. The teams were evenly matched, and it was a tough fight all the way. In the last and deciding game, with the score all tied up at 14 all, Capt. Bryant began service for the Infantrymen. Before the Troopers recovered he ran the next seven points, to win the game.

Lt. Col. Flynn, CO of the 1st Battalion, smashed out five of the last seven scores to again head the team to victory.

The undefeated Infantrymen led by Major Hathaway, are accepting challenges; anyone desirous of playing the 1st Battalion team are asked to call Major Hathaway at 3880.

the turn without having to stand around and wait to start the other nine. To accomplish this, foursomes starting from the first tee between the hours of 1200 and 1336 leave at six-minute intervals and continue around the entire course uninterrupted. Starting from the 10th tee discontinues after 1336 hours, at which time the first foursome to leave the first tee is due to make the turn. The foursomes starting from the 10th tee leave at 12-minute intervals between the hours of 1200 and 1336 and, upon reaching the turn, alternate with the starters from the first tee, who, after the hour of 1336, start at 12-minute intervals.

Same Method Repeated
At the hour of 1536, as early golfers finish and leave the course, the same method of starting is repeated.

Players who start between the hours of 1024 and 1200 may start from the first tee at 12-minute intervals so as to alternate with players starting from the 10th tee after the 1200-hour.

The back nine is closed to all but nine-hole players at the hour of 1024.

The following schedule, approved by the Logistics Committee, General Section, is now in effect:

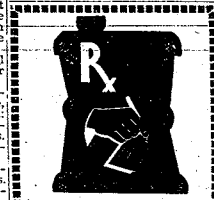

- No. 1 Tee—1024 to 1200, foursomes start at 12-minute intervals.
- No. 1 Tee—1200 to 1336, foursomes start at 6-minute intervals.
- No. 1 Tee—1336 to 1524, foursomes start at 12-minute intervals.
- No. 1 Tee—1524 to 1712, foursomes start at 6-minute intervals.
- No. 10 Tee—1024 to 1200, closed to all but nine-hole players.
- No. 10 Tee—1200 to 1336, foursomes start at 12-minute intervals.
- No. 10 Tee—1336 to 1524, closed to all starters, open to those who has completed front nine.
- No. 10 Tee—1524 to 1712, foursomes start at 12-minute intervals.

Boxing Matches Draw Big Crowd

Practically every installation on the Post plus an appreciable number of civilians were represented at the fights last Thursday night between the 555th Paratrooper and 25th Combat team boxers in the 25th C.T. Field House.

Attending in an unofficial capacity were: Col. Logan W. Boyd, Post I.G. and party; Lt. Col. James M. Tubbs, 1. G. Infantry Center, and Major Roy L. Shaw, Infantry School I. G. Capt. William C. Fannin of the Post A & B Office witnessed a few bouts before leaving for the regular weekly boxing meet, while 1st Sgt. John Wilson of the Post A & B Office, officiated as referee along with Major Edwin M. Dodd of the 25th C. T.

Performing a highly appreciable role as ringside officials from the main post were: Major Charles Holland and 1st Lt. Barney G. Hopkins, Judges.

Sunfast Jamaica Cops Hunt Honors

By GAYLE RAYES
Ladies Sports Editor

Sunfast Jamaica, nine-year-old gelding and a three-quarter-thoroughbred, owned and ridden by Major George F. Beatty Jr., won major honors in the renewal of the Hunter Trials over the Drag Course at Hook Range Sunday before well over 1,000 spectators.

Sunfast Jamaica took the feature event in the Open Class of Working Hunters, after winning the Handy Hunters' run, and was a member of the Hunt Team to take fourth place. For the victory in the Open Class, Major Beatty received the Master's Plate and the blue ribbon which goes with it to add to his trophies in the Handy Hunters.

But while Jamaica scored a double-victory, the old master of them all, Blue Point, still stole the show, and might have been the double winner except that she—rather her owner—did not choose to run in the open event.

Blue Point Wins Easily

Blue Point, a former champion in almost everything she has run in during the 21 years of her life, took the Ladies' Hunters' with ease, with Miss Leslie Tibbetts on her back, and was a heavy favorite to score in the Open Class with Capt. Frank Lillyman up. But Blue Point gave the other entries a chance, and withdrew, but did run the half-mile jumping race, without a baffle, just to prove how easy it was to do the job.

Blue Point, a half-thoroughbred who stands 16 hands high, is owned by Lt. Col. J. R. Moon, and has been a show horse all over the southeast. She was sired by Blue, out of Miss Point.

There were plenty of spills, but all were minor. In the final event of the day Lt. Walter A. Dumas, as Three Sox, was thrown as his horse stumbled while clearing the final barrier. Since the spill occurred in the Team event and the three horses I was closely bunched on the last obstacle, the accident might have been bad, but the rider pulled clear of his mount to escape injury. He was shaken up, and Three Sox appeared lame, but there was no serious damage.

Miss Clark Unseated Twice

Miss Elizabeth Clark, one of the best of the women riders, was unseated twice in the Ladies' Hunters' when she saw the "green" horses nervous, and Boston, Miss Clark's mount, seemed most nervous of gelding, refused the first obstacle, and tossed Miss Clark, and after getting back into form the horse went all right for three barriers but "acted up" again at No. 4, and tossed his rider again. Miss Clark was thrown again, and she rode Boston again in the open class, but the horse refused the final barrier again and was eliminated.

Mrs. James L. Walker, on Brady, was thrown on the No. 10 barrier and her horse had four feet to dismount on the fourth jump.

Sam Walker, ridden by Lt. Robert H. Case, was the winner in the Novice Hunters, followed by Brownie, ridden by Lt. Thomas L. Owens; Comstock, with Lt. Col. Lewis A. Curtis up; and Our Hero, ridden by Lt. W. F. Ashby.

In the Ladies' Hunters, Blue Point, handled by Miss Tibbetts, was first, with Reno Hastings ridden by Mrs. Frederick R. Weber second; Hamlet, ridden by Mrs. John W. White second; and Tommy, ridden by Miss Madge Barclay, fourth.

Competition Keen

The competition was keen in the Handy Hunters, with the wind blowing against the riders and making the opening of the fence a difficult part of the job. Sunfast Jamaica scored the second half of his double victory in this event, ridden by his owner, Major George S. Beatty Jr.

Reno Jason, handled by Capt. Frank Lillyman, who was "in the money" in four of the events, finished second in the Handy Hunters, with Reno Hastings, with

River Will Be Closed February 20, 21, 26

The Chattahoochee River between Bradley's Landing and Wright's Bar will be closed to all navigation and traffic February 20 between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.; February 21 from 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. and on February 26 between 8 a. m. and noon, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, post commander, announced last week. The river will be closed to traffic because of tactical exercises during those days, it was explained.

Scouts Observe National Week

The Baker-Village Scout Troop 26 and Cub pack joined Fort Benning's Troop 27 and Cub pack in a parade and rally Saturday afternoon in observance of National Scout Week.

The scout units assembled at Doughboy Stadium at 2 p. m. and marched in formation to the Post Children's School. The rally, attended by Scout Executive L. L. Stanley of Columbus, was held in the auditorium. Main feature of the program was the showing of the technicolor film, "Scout Trails to Citizenship."

Scoutmaster Harry P. Duffield has announced that the Fort Benning Scout week is such an extent that an additional pack is now being formed to handle the growth. It was sponsored by the Post quartermaster, Walter Dumas acting as Cub master. The old quartermaster rest camp has been turned over to the Athletic and Recreation office for use by Benning Scouts, he said, and will open for use by Scouts during the month of July.

The Benning senior scouting movement is going forward, according to Sgt. Duffield, and Fort Benning personnel from the age of 15 and up are eligible for membership. The senior scouting movement is sponsored by the Post chapel.

FEBRUARY 22 HOLIDAY

Washington Birthday, Saturday, February 22, being a holiday, all duties at Fort Benning except the necessary guard duties and administrative duty will be suspended. Infantry Center officials announced today.

Lt. Col. Frederick Weber up, third, and Columbo, handled by Lt. Thomas A. A. Hitchings, and Captain Lillyman, in addition to his four ribbons, was aboard Blue Point on his run over the course without a baffle.

Following Sunfast Jamaica in the Open Class were Tim, under Lt. Col. Earl F. Hitchings, second; Hardluck Jr., ridden by Major J. H. Ealse, third, and Reno Jason, Captain Lillyman's mount. Our Hero, Brady, and White Eagle resumed jumps and caused their riders to flinch.

Team Event Most Elaborate

The No. 3 team of Kangaroo, Jimmy, and Handluck Jr., handled by Lt. Col. John L. Higgins, Mrs. John L. Hitchings and Captain Howard A. Schaudt, took top honors in the team event, most elaborate event of the day, with Reno Jason, Light Tail, and Sir Milton, mounted by Captain Lillyman, Captain Loye L. Daniels, and Capt. Howard A. Schaudt, fourth behind the No. 5 team of Cruster, with Major John L. Strauss up, Tolo, ridden by the British officer, Lt. Col. Richard G. Collins, and White Eagle, with Lt. Col. David R. Rooke up, which was second, and the third place team of Inman, ridden by Lt. George S. Patton Jr. Sunfast Jamaica, ridden by Major Beatty and Tommy, handled by Miss Madge Barclay.

The entire program was run off smoothly, and capped by a grand box luncheon for all, but with plenty of hounds) in which nearly the entire cast appeared.

General John W. Daniel, commanding general of the Infantry School, awarded the prizes and viewed the proceedings from his box near the No. 1 obstacle.

Windup Of AAU Is Slated Tonight

By Pfc. MILT MOSKOWITZ

The Southeastern AAU basketball tournament is scheduled to wind up Thursday night in Atlanta. We'd like to say that the Doughboys are in the finals, but after getting burned badly on two previous tournaments (the Seventh Army and the Georgia State), we're a little wary.

In both of these previous tournaments the Doughboys were regarded as the logical favorite. On their record—and past—performances, they were expected to come through with flying colors.

However, in the Seventh Army meet, after trouncing Bragg and Jackson on the same day, and losing their star guard, Cal Luther, via a sprained ankle, the fatigued Doughs, were nipped in the final seconds the next morning by Fort Bragg. So out went the Seventh Army championship.

Next came the Georgia State. Here the opening games were arranged, so that the two top-seeded fives, the Doughboys and the Atlanta Sports Arena, would meet in the final. It was a natural rivalry, as the two teams had met three times already this season, the Rebels holding a two-to-one lead. The Benning hoopsters were the defending champs.

Well, after coming through the two opening rounds, the Doughs fell prey to the Atlanta Crackers, who just didn't miss that night. The Fallisemen, as usual, couldn't find their bearings on the Atlanta in a thriller.

court, while Rabbit Jordan and Bobby Moore of the Crackers found themselves entirely at home.

The Doughs lost that one, 53-50, and the next night in the tourney Piedmont College of Demorest, Ga., defeated the Crackers. During the regular season play the Doughs had walked all over Piedmont, scoring at will. In the finals the Sports Arena scored an easy win over Piedmont.

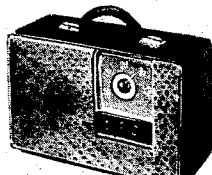

Coming back to Benning, the Doughs looked like their superlative selves at home, beating Mercer University. And Sunday they went back to Atlanta to try again in the AAU, the tourney winners to go to Denver, Colorado, for the national playoffs.

If the Doughs' luck continues they should be back on the post right now, having lost out in their third straight tournament. On the other hand, once Anderson, Miller & Co. start clicking, it will take a powerful bunch of cagers to stop them.

The field in this AAU competition is much stronger than anything the Doughs have run up against so far. Entered are Fort Bragg (the Seventh Army champs), Fort Jackson, Fort McCallan, Chestatee Point Marines (whom the Doughs beat in two out of three games during the season), Atlanta Sports Arena, and the Royal Cleaners from Bessemer, Ala., the team generally regarded as the probable winner in the journey.

Also entered is a team representing the Airborne Regiment here at Benning. The Paratroopers won their opening contest Sunday night, beating Sauley Field, from Pensacola, Fla., 43-41, and their bearings on the Atlanta in a thriller.

'Cooperate And Graduate That's 'Operations AOC 6'

BY O/C STEPHEN D. SMOKE
After months of careful screening at various Army installations throughout the United States, a force of 183 hand-picked officer candidates along with eight Chinese officers closed in on The Infantry School Jan. 2 and formally initiated "Operation AOC No. 6" early on the morning of Jan. 6.

The group of 191 students comprise Company 10 of the Student Training Regiment. The company, under the command of Capt. Theodore B. Colmer, has advanced through five of the 24-week campaign and shows promise of producing a class of second lieutenants comparable to any previous class. The company's tactical officers include 1st Lts. George Sallick, Robert E. Dickenson, Donald B. McAfferty, and James B. Tooley.

Only 12 casualties have been suffered so far via resignation, and the remaining 171 candidates are determined to see the battle won by June 26.

A unique feature of AOC No. 6, and one to which fellow students point with pride, is the presence of the eight Chinese officers delegated by the Chinese National government to familiarize themselves with U. S. Army weapons, equipment, military science and tactics, and methods of training. These officers were chosen through a nationwide competitive examination based on military knowledge and knowledge of the English language.

All the Chinese officers are graduates of the Central Military Academy, China's West Point, and during the Sino-Japanese war, Lieutenants Sze, Hsu, and Kuo advanced to the rank of major. Several others became captains. An example of the type officer representing this Chinese group is Lt. Chen-Chih Hsu, graduate of Chih Kiang university. After serving some time as a newspaperman on one of China's largest dailies, he enlisted in the Chinese Army at the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war in 1939. After graduation from the Hang Kow branch of the Central Military Academy, he became a platoon commander in the province of North Hunan. In 1941 he was promoted to captain and company commander, and in the same year, as leader of guerrilla troops in Yang, he was promoted to the rank of major. From 1942 until the end of hostilities, Lt. Hsu served as a staff officer in several capacities, and in the spring of 1946 served under Gen. George C. Marshall on the latter's peace mission to China.

Although the average length of service is only six months for each candidate, there are many seasoned troops interspersed among the new. The oldest member from point of service is Candidate Wolcott with 108 months to his credit. Candidate Dodge, who has 70 months service, served in the ETO during the war and was first sergeant of the detail which set up the communications for the historical Potsdam conference. Candidate Feuerborn with 65 months service was a platoon sergeant with the 10th Mountain division in 1941. Candidate Eastham served 42 of his 48 months service in Japanese prison camps in Java, Singapore, Burma, Thailand, and French Indo-China. Candidates Downey and Smitz were members of the Third and Sixth Armored divisions, respectively, and both emerged with sergeant status. Downey has 55 months in the Army, while Smitz boasts 51 months.

THESE EIGHT ENGLISH SPEAKING Chinese officers are members of Army Officer Candidate class No. 6 which is scheduled to graduate June 26. The lieutenants were selected to study U. S.

Army infantry methods because of their general Army knowledge and ability to speak and understand the English language.

PRIZES RANGE UP TO $6,000
Civilian Employees' Suggestions Saving Dough For Uncle Sam
Ideas submitted by the War Department civilian employees have effected first-year savings of nearly $170,000,000 in War Department operations since June, 1943, it was announced today.
Under the War Department Civilian Employees' Suggestion program, employees have submitted 335,040 ideas calculated to economize, on time, effort and money since the program was instituted on a Department-wide basis three and a half years ago. Of that number, 58,615 have been adopted and put in operation with beneficial results.
As an incentive to employees, cash awards are made to those whose suggestions are adopted and put to use. Such awards are based on the savings it is estimated the proposals will effect during the first year they are in operation. Awards have ranged from $5 to more than $6,000. The highest amount was paid for a single suggestion—estimated to save the government more than 27 million dollars yearly—put forth by three civilian employees of the Air Technical Command at Wrights Field, Dayton, Ohio.
The trio, rank Skrobak, William D. Durgy and Robert D. Hoke, developed and proposed the "Production" system of supply, and as a result divided an award of $8,250. Prior to adoption of their idea, a complete set of parts were shipped overseas when production changes were made in any type airplane. The practice loaded overseas theaters with items already plentiful and burdened the transportation systems in the United States and overseas. The three men's suggestion resulted in a kit containing only those parts necessary to effect a particular production change, eliminating bulky shipments and preventing the accumulation of surplus items.
During 1946, more than 7,200 ideas were adopted from among 80,650 submitted. It is estimated they will save in excess of $15,000,000 in the first year of their utilization. Savings from many, of course, will continue to accrue indefinitely.
In addition to monetary savings, the War Department has gained through the suggestion program the over-all benefits of

COLONEL JOHNSON

Belgium, Dutch Honor Johnson

Colonel Walter M. Johnson, Infantry Center plans and training officer and former regimental commander of the famed 117th Infantry, 30th Division, has been awarded two more foreign decorations, it was revealed today.

Already a wearer of the French Croix de Guerre and the Russian Order of Alexander, Col. Johnson was recently notified that he had been awarded two more foreign military decorations. They are the Belgian Government's Order of Leopold with Palm, Grade of Officer, and the Croix de Guerre 1940 with palm, and the Netherlands' Order of Orange-Nassau, degree of Knight, Commander with Swords.

Commanding the 117th Regiment through almost the entire European Campaign, Col. Johnson also wears the Silver Star Medal with two clusters, the Bronze Star Medal with three clusters and the Legion of Merit.

CIVILIANS REMINDED

Civilian employees at Fort Benning were reminded this week that the privilege of using the Officers' Club grill is limited to the noon meal only and does not include other facilities in addition to the grill.

AAF And AGF Join In Massive Power Display

The Air Corps and The Infantry School again joined forces this week when the Ninth Air Force's Air Indoctration course was presented for more than 200 students who arrived at Lawson Field from Norfolk, Va., Sunday afternoon.

Designed to show Army service school students the advantage of tactical air support, the air indoctrination course utilizes Air Force men, infantrymen, and airborne troops in a gigantic display of air-ground power. The Armed Forces Service College is the first of eight service schools to take the five-day course.

Units participating in this greatest post-war training course included troop carrier, fighter and bomber groups from Biggs Field, Tex., Lockbourne Army Air Base, Ohio, Pope Field, N. C., Greenville Army Air Base, S. C., Shaw Field, S. C., Myrtle Beach Army Air Field, S. C., Langley Field, Va., and Lawson Field. Ground units taking part in the dramatic demonstration of joint operations were elements of the 32nd Airborne division from Fort Bragg, N. C., and elements of the 501st Parachute Infantry, artillery, tank, and infantry troops from The Infantry School.

Started Monday are submit lump sum bids on each group. Bids may be submitted on one group or any groups as desired. Bids will be opened April 1, 1947, and awards will be made shortly thereafter. It is hoped the entire painting project will be completed prior to the advent of cold weather later in the year. This work was ordered by the War Department as a preservation measure to prevent deterioration of existing structures which it is expected may be used in the next few years. The plan does not preclude any interior painting or any work solely for the purpose of beautification, Col. Ackerson said.

It is contemplated that all wooden structures on the main post will be painted, and also the occupied buildings in the Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas. Col. Ackerson said this painting project is a part of the War Department's deferred maintenance program. Approximately $5,000,000 has been allocated for this type of work within the Third Army Area, comprising the seven Southeastern States, Col. Ackerson said. These projects make up for the almost total lack of maintenance on post buildings during the war.

Bids On Painting Buildings Asked

Invitation for bids on the exterior painting of about 1,300 wooden buildings at Fort Benning was issued today by the Purchasing and Contracting Officer, Office of the Quartermaster, at the post. The estimated cost of this project amounts to more than $400,000, according to Lt. Col. Fred L. Ackerson, post engineer.

Buildings to be painted are the war-time constructed wooden buildings located throughout the post. The estimated cost of the Fort Benning painting project. The buildings have been arranged in groups of nine, and interested parties are to submit lump sum bids on each group. Bids may be submitted on one group or any groups as desired.

Woodliff Joins AGF Board 3

Lt. Col. Clifford L. Woodliff, formerly with the Communications Section, The Infantry School, has been assigned to AGF Board No. 3, it was revealed today.

Col. Woodliff has a long and continuous record of Army service beginning as a private in the Infantry Brigade, Wisconsin National Guard, rising to the rank of master sergeant. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1939 and called to active duty with the 2nd Division in October 1940. He served in the Southwest Pacific campaigns until the liberation of the Philippines and with the 1st Division in the final assault on Hollandia. He also saw service with the SWPA Amphibious Training Center.

Returning to the States in 1945 for recuperation, Col. Woodliff was assigned to Camp Robinson, Ark. Later he attended the Infantry Officers' Course at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, of which he was assigned to the Infantry School. In July of this year he received a commission in the Regular Army.

Eight-Man Team Will Model New Army Dress Here March 5

Fort Benning personnel will have their last opportunity to see and judge the four new Army dress uniforms now pending approval when an eight-man team models the styles at Doughboy stadium at 2 p.m. March 5.

The team, currently touring Fort Benning, arrived Feb. 27 from Eglin Field, Florida for two-weeks stay. During their visit they have paraded before practically all Benning troops and have passed out questionnaires for suggestions, approval or disapproval.

WACS and Civilians

Included on the team in addition to the enlisted men are seven WACS and four civilians. The enlisted personnel model eight combinations of the uniforms in four shades of blue with varying types of insignia, branch of service, and stripes, while the WACS model duty uniforms in two colors, khaki tropical worsted, two moss green garradine, and a new cut in the OD.

These women's uniforms are in four cuts and styles. The four civilians were selected by the Quartermaster General's office in Washington in order to eliminate bias or prejudice in the final selection, according to a team spokesman.

Touring U. S.

At present there are four similar teams touring the continent in the United States, two in Europe, and one in the Pacific area. The surveys to select a new Army dress uniform is being conducted by the Survey Research Center branch at the University of Michigan. Demonstrations are held in theaters and in various organization houses. Tentative plans call for an appearance of the 72nd Army Ground Forces band for the March 5 showing in Doughboy stadium.

Results of the survey which will end in April will be compiled by Command-Alborno Corps level. During the afternoon additional skits and lectures down through group or regiment levels took the spotlight with emphasis on air-ground communications, tactical air communications, and reconnaissance intelligence in tactical air operations.

The second day of the indoctrination course dealt with Ninth Air Force skits on joint operations visits to the tactical air control center and tactical air direction center of Ninth Air Force Air-voice headquarters, and radar displays and films. Other Air Force operations included skits of an air ground situation, an air-ground commanders conference, and joint operations center planning, followed by an actual group briefing.

'Live' Show

The preliminary exercises Monday and Tuesday were a build-up for the feature highlight of the week-long air-ground activity which began early Wednesday morning with the display of modern infantry weapons at Hook range. Tanks, new and modified mortar launchers, flame throwers, and standard small arms were viewed in a "live" show during which every weapon used in a ground combat is fired simultaneously.

Climax of Wednesday's big show was an airborne carrier demonstration of the close cooperation between airborne division and troop carrier commands. Company A of the 501st Parachute Infantry supported by a platoon of the 502nd Infantry team spilled into the skies from troop carrier aircraft to take their assigned area and a simulated combat attack in Fort Benning's Alabama area. Fighters, bombers, and jets supported the troops in the bombing and strafing missions while reconnaissance planes before and after the attack.

Today the 200 students of the Armed Forces Staff college are touring the airborne section of the Infantry School, and promptly at 1 o'clock this afternoon they were to witness a demonstration of air transportability.

This exercise will demonstrate the possibility of transporting non-airborne personnel and equipment in current types of military aircraft. Troops will actually be loaded into aircraft to emphasize techniques. A display of automobile equipment will end Thursday's day-time exercises.

The only night problem scheduled for tonight's show will take place tonight at Hook range when Infantry School elements will demonstrate the airborne section's useful illumination through the use of searchlights. Other highlights of tonight's show will be the use of the sniperscope, an infrared light attachment to the carbine which the infantryman to see his target 50 yards away. Also participating in the night demonstration will be Ninth Air Force aircraft which will drop flares to aid in illuminating the battlefield.

Friday will be the signal for a display of infantry weapons and communications equipment which will consume the entire morning. Appropriately ending the five-day air indoctrination course for the Armed Forces Staff college students will be an infantry-artillery-tank team in a simulated attack Friday afternoon.

The Second Battalion of the 25th Infantry regiment, the entire 83rd Field Artillery, and the 16th Tenth Battalion will share honors in the mammoth demonstration of a joint attack.

Instructors and participants will get almost a full month's rest before another class gets underway again March 24 with the arrival of students from the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Other service schools to attend the Ninth Air Force Air Indoctrination course before its cessation May 3 include: The Infantry School, March 31-April 4; The Armored School of Fort Knox, Ky., April 7-11; The Artillery School (Advanced class), Fort Sill, Okla., April 14-18; The Artillery School (Basic class), April 21-25; Kansas General School, Fort Riley, Kansas, April 22-May 2; and the Air University, Maxwell Field, Ala., May 2-3.

Enlist—re-enlist. The Regular Army provides the soldier with all his major needs and pays him a good salary besides.

'EYES' FOR THREE HUNDRED MILES in the vicinity of Lawson Field is the job performed by the AAF technicians at the triangulation table of the huge Tactical Control Center established at Lawson Field as part of the gigantic Air Indoctrination Course. They take readings from radio coil-stations near Birmingham, Ala., and Madison, Ga., and are equipped to relate to pilots of aircraft in trouble or lost within three hundred miles exactly where they are and where the nearest airdrome might be. They are (left to right), Sgt. D. J. Teschari, Pfc. R. B. Dames, S/Sgt. J. J. Beron and Pfc. H. W. Brooks.

Colonel Kendall Named Exchange Service Chief

Colonel William H. Kendall has been appointed chief of the Army Exchange Service, Office of the Chief of Special Services, War Department, succeeding Colonel Frank S. Townsend, who has returned to civilian life. Colonel Kendall has served as deputy chief of the Army Exchange Service since August 1946.

Upon assuming his new office, Colonel Kendall explained the procurement policy of the Exchange Service. He made it clear that the policy does not preclude anyone from selling merchandise to post exchanges, either manufacturers or wholesalers. This policy he said, combines all the advantages of buying from prime sources with the advantages of local procurement.

Chief Signal Officer Will Retire On July 1

Major General H. C. Ingles, chief signal officer of the Army since July 1, 1943, will be retired from active service on his own application on March 31, 1947, War Department announced today.

During the crucial years of the Signal Corps in its mission as the aggressor of the most popular unit in the Army, "This mission... involved many diverse responsibilities including the training of thousands of personnel and the maintenance of billions of dollars in communications equipment, the training of thousands of communications and photographic specialists and the installation and maintenance of the Army Command and Administrative network, which, at the height of the war, encompassed more than 80,000 circuit miles of radio, telegraph, telephone and submarine cable networks.

Main Activities

One of the Red Cross' main activities on the post is the cheering of convalescents at the Benning Regional Hospital. Colonel Alexander pointed to this work as deserving of "the backing and consideration of liberal donations of all of the post."

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel appealed for contributions in a special memorandum post personnel. The post commandant said that no quota had been set for the drive, which will run through March 31, adding, "Each and every officer, enlisted man, and civilian employe at this station will be afforded an opportunity to contribute an amount commensurate with his or her means. The American National Red Cross has contributed immeasurably to the morale of this command by the very attention to the welfare of the soldier and his family."

AAF Aims To Smash Sonic Speed Barrier

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Four new supersonic rocket planes, with which the Army Air Forces hopes to pierce the sonic speed barrier, are being developed and planned, the AAF has revealed. Details of the models are secret. Performance of experimental rocket plane XS-1 will govern future experiments. The XS-1 was designed for a top speed of 700 miles an hour at 80,000 feet. When it reaches the speed of sound—about 750 miles an hour—military officials fear that the strain may rip it apart.

If this happens, new models will be revised in the attempt to meet the aerodynamics problem. The XS-1's final supersonic test is yet to be made. Four tests, the last in secret on Jan. 18, have been made since it first was flown two months ago.

On the first flight it was dropped from a B-29 mother ship at 16,000 feet over the Murco, Calif., air base. It climbed to 24,000 feet quickly on three of its four rocket cylinders, then zoomed to 30,000 feet on one cylinder. After that it cruised at 460 to 550 miles an hour "idling" on only a third of its power and at 13,000 feet it made a "stabilized run" at 550 miles an hour.

Engineer Says V-2 Not Nazi Invention

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., (CNS) The V-2 Rocket, with which the Nazis spread death and destruction in the latter years of World War II, was an American invention, J. F. McAllister, a General Electric company engineer, said here.

The V-2, McAllister said, was a refinement of a rocket designed in 1936 by Dr. Robert Goddard, a rocket pioneer, through funds chiefly provided by the Smithsonian Institution.

McAllister said that Dr. Goddard was the first to use rocket powered by liquid fuels, to recognize the necessity for stabilization in long flights and to build a rocket with gyroscopic stabilization.

Film Explaining Return Of War Dead From Abroad Available

"Decision," a motion picture which explains the program for return and final burial of World II dead, is available from the Quartermaster Corps libraries for showing before interested groups, the War Department announced today.

Showing how a typical American family might arrive at the decision as to where it wants final burial to be made of a member of the armed forces who died overseas during World War II, the film is designed to answer many questions frequently asked by next of kin. The picture will be shown, upon request, to veterans' groups and other interested organizations.

Requests for showing of "Decision," which is about fifteen minutes in length, should be made to the commanding officer of the nearest of the 15 distribution points of the American Graves Registration Service. These are located as follows: Schenectady General Depot at Schenectady, N. Y.; New York Port of Embarkation at Brooklyn, N. Y.; Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot at Philadelphia, Pa.; Columbus General Depot at Columbus, O.; Chicago Quartermaster Depot at Chicago, Ill.; Atlanta General Depot at Atlanta, Ga.; Charlotte Quartermaster Depot at Charlotte, N. COMBAT TEAM ABSORBED

The 25th Combat Team (Provisional) has been absorbed by the 25th Infantry regiment commanded by Col. Robert L. Dulaney, officials announced today.

Units attached to the regiment now include the 551st Field Artillery, 98th Field Artillery Battalion, and the 375th Medical Collecting Company.

SIMPLE TO OPERATE

Liquid Oxygen Converter To Be Revealed By Army

The development of a liquid oxygen converter for breathing purposes which meets flying operation and maintenance requirements will be disclosed by the Army Air Forces in a meeting of AAF and Navy medical research officials at the AAF School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field (San Antonio), Texas.

Known as the Bendix converter, the unit is simple in operation and greatly reduces the weight and space requirements of low-pressure oxygen equipment now in use. It resulted from the combined efforts of the AAF, the National Bureau of Standards, and the Bendix Aviation Corporation.

Records of experiments on the use of liquid oxygen for breathing purposes date back to 1921. Developments continued intermittently in the AAF until 1935 when the project ended. Experiments were resumed in 1941.

Since 1941 various types of electrically-operated converters were developed, but none proved practical. The Bendix converter, known as the heat transfer type, is preferable to the previous models in which vaporization of the liquid oxygen was induced by an electrically-operated immersion heater.

Advantages of the Bendix converter over the low-pressure system now in use and the electrically-operated liquid converters include: less weight, less maintenance, elimination of electrical failures, and reduction of fire hazard.

The converter has been subjected to all types of laboratory tests such as a simulated altitude of 100,000 feet at minus-63 degrees Fahrenheit, sudden application of "G" (gravity) forces, intermittent application of variable vibration forces, and operation at all possible angles. The unit has been thoroughly flight-tested at altitudes ranging from 15,000 through 40,000 feet with a crew of eight men using the oxygen supply from three to six hours. In all the experiments, the equipment performed satisfactorily.

AAF To Help Tally Bird Bills

The Army Air Forces will aid the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior this month in taking inventory of the nation's resources of migratory water fowl by carrying agents of the service on training flights to facilitate taking the census.

Directives have been given to 11 AAF bases to cooperate with members of the Fish and Wildlife Service to the extent that their facilities and personnel permit. Authorization was given each of the bases for service agents to ride in military aircraft.

The observers will ride in AAF planes on training flights in areas where large numbers of water fowl habitually feed and rest during annual migrations. This will enable the agents, expert at estimating the number of fowl in a flight of birds, to reach almost inaccessible waterways to complete the census in the allotted time. For the last 12 years, Federal and state agencies have aided the service in taking the inventory. The operation is conducted annually at the close of the hunting season in January.

Bases furnishing flights for the operation include: Selfridge Field, Michigan; Lowry Field, Colorado; Chanute Field, Illinois; Peterson Field, Colorado; Tinker Field, Oklahoma; Hill Field, Utah; Andrews Field, Maryland; Roosevelt Field, Mexico; Army Air Base; Fort Worth (Texas) Army Air Base; Smoky Hill (Kansas) Army Air Base; and Casper (Wyoming) Air Base.

Establishment of a seven-man Fort Benning Children's School board was announced today with the following named as members: Col. Brookner W. Brady, Lt. Col. DeWitt Ballard, John L. Hitchings, and William C. Shure, Maj. Leo D. Harmon, Capt. Hannah, Ashby, and M/Sgt. Henry D. Settles.

US Nets Millions In Surplus Combat Equipment Sales

WASHINGTON — (CNS) — Sales of surplus combat equipment to foreign governments have netted the U. S. government $10,000,000, Secretary of State George C. Marshall has reported.

"The determining factors (in the sales)," he said in a statement to Congress, "have been that the transactions were in the interest of the government and the people of the United States and of world peace."

He cited as an example the sale of "sorely needed small arms and ammunition" to the Philippine government — "to maintain public order." This, he said, promoted Philippine stability.

The largest single items reported were sales of surplus ammunition to France and the United Kingdom. France bought all the ammunition left in that country. The store had an original cost of $7,500,000. In what Secretary Marshall described as "a cleanup of all the surplus ammunition remaining in England," the United Kingdom purchased 118,000 tons. Both countries agreed not to resell the ammunition to any other government.

Other countries buying surplus material, Secretary Marshall said, were Australia, Sweden, Canada and Panama.

OCEAN-SPANNER GOAL

Army Seeks Way To Control V-2 By Radio In New Tests

WASHINGTON — (CNS) — In quest of an ocean-spanning guided missile, rocket experts in the United States will devote the remainder of this year to perfecting flight control of the giant V-2 rocket developed by the Nazis.

By May, Army officials said the initial stock of V-2s brought here from Germany will be exhausted. But experimental firing of another 25 missiles this year is guaranteed by parts manufactured by American firm coupled with other equipment captured in Germany.

This program will emphasize research in control methods, according to Brig. Gen. H. B. Saylor, head of the Research and Development Division of the Army Ordnance Department, and Lt. Col. Harvey Rivkins, observer of V-2 firings at the White Sands, N. M., test site.

If they were not concerned about where the 14-ton V-2 landed, the rocket experts say they could fire it considerably higher than the 114-mile height reached last Dec. 17.

Eventually, the army officers said, rocket experimenters must have a bigger firing range than White Sands, especially in working out the guided missile features of the weapon.

Actual directional control of the V-2, Gen. Saylor said, is a much greater problem than that of tracking and keeping the weapon in sight. Throughout most of its ascent, the 114-mile high V-2 last December was under constant observation with telescope-photo records made of its climb. The project of sending radio signals to controls within the rocket, thus changing the axis of gyroscopes, and altering the angle of exterior guiding vanes is one that is just being started. Gen. Saylor explained that when that is accomplished the first "pilot" model of a true long-range guided missile will be within sight.

The far-reaching V-2, of use in retaliatory attack on enemy cities, is only one of the needs, ordnance officers said. Accurate, controlled rocket flights for various other uses are needed. Some are: anti-aircraft, coast defense against enemy ships, air-to-air fire of guided missiles from one plane at another, air-to-ground delivery of guided missiles from an airplane at a city or fortification.

Orchestra Has Fine Record

During the past four months Blue orchestra has been entertaining Fort Benning officers at the Officers' club and enlisted men at the service clubs with many varying styles and tempos of music ranging from waltzes to "jumps."

The orchestra's library includes waltzes, rumbas, tangos, "jumps" and even "Open the Door Richard!" A recent addition to the band forms by the Officers' club which has added to the appearance and comfort of the orchestra, according to Sgt. Cortese.

Ten of the orchestra's 11 members are from Benning's 72nd Army Ground Force band which is under the direct control of CWO Richard E. Valasco. These musicians include T-5 Sgt. Cortese and T-4 Harold E. Bauman, trumpets; T-4 Donald E. DeMann, trombone; Pfc. Robert E. Griffiths, T-5 H. Nazaro, and Pfc. Hubert E. White, saxophones; S-Sgt. Tom Gann, guitar; and T-5 Harry L. Donaldson, drums.

T-5 Harold Sims, pianist, has recently joined the orchestra filling three of the rhythm section. Only three of the 11 members remain. They are Sgts. Cortese, Bauman and Nazaro. Sgt. Nazaro is now awaiting reassignment and will be replaced by Pvt. Fred H. Hagreen.

There are certain "homey" touches. For instance, the messhalls are brightly colored with window drapes, each original and has electric plug-in facilities for reading lamps and radios.

For the first four weeks, church attendance—or a lecture on ethics, philosophy—is compulsory. Table manners are included in the curriculum.

Aside from military training general and specialized, the men spend out-of-duty time into such courses as music, English, typing, languages, auto mechanics and others.

The PX and other "on the campus" recreational facilities are well designed and stocked, except—no beer. Coke is the strongest.

PARENTS' WORRIES RELIEVED BY ARMY

The War Department seems to appreciate the concern of mothers and fathers of America about letting junior spend just one of his teen-age years under the tutelage of the army. 200,000 Cut In Troops Seen Under Training Plan

War Department plans for reducing the size of the Regular Army by almost 200,000 and establishing an "M-Day" force of 1,750,000 trained troops, all contingent upon a universal military training program, have been disclosed by members of the House Armed Services Committee.

A universal training program to build up organized reserves and the National Guard is the key to the program, members of the House committee said. Within one year from "M-Day," the plans call for expansion of the force to 5,500,000 men.

Awaits Budget

International developments, committee men said, will determine just how quickly the reduction in the Regular Army will be effected. President Truman's budget message to Congress, they pointed out, contemplated maintaining a standing Army of 1,070,000 for the year beginning July 1.

Committee members said that the entire Mobilization-Day set-up was based on a three-point legislative program — universal military training, merger of the armed forces and coordinated scientific research and development.

Included in the 1,750,000 "M-Day" force would be 785,000 Regulars, 600,000 National Guardsmen and 195,000 organized reserves, all ready to take the field on short notice. Draftees and former servicemen recalled to duty would provide the rest of the five and a half million men expected to be on duty 12 months later.

Universal Training

The Army does not believe it can raise such a force, committee men said, without universal military training.

Six months of basic training for peacetime draftees with further training in the National Guard and reserve components is provided for in the Army's universal military training plan.

Details of the "M-Day" strength were divulged after a meeting at the Pentagon building, attended by most members of the House committee. Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and other high Army officials.

Intense training drama, involving the training of U. S. Army Airborne Troopers is now being recorded on film. Heavy phases of the work of intensive Airborne training now at Fort Benning will be conducted in one of the most interesting War Department projects ever prepared by the Army Signal Corps Photographic Center, Camp Davis, Long Island City, New York.

IT'S A JOKE (comedy) with Kenny Delmar, Uta Merkle, and June Lockhart. This is the best of them, that is, the best. LAST FRONTIER UPFRISING (western) with Monte Hale and "Frontier". This western in color isn't the "last" there is no in-the-wood western fan as long as guns blaze, fists fly and horses stampede.

'Bullets' Whip Doughs, 59 To 46

The Baltimore Bulletts, advertised as the best pro team in basketball, gave the business to the Doughboys in an exhibition game played in Atlanta's Sports Arena last Sunday afternoon, 59 to 46.

The Doughboys appeared to be all lucked out after a strenuous week of tournament play, and never headed the stratospheric Bullets. Cleggie Hermsen, 6-foot 8-inch Minnesotaan, and Mike Bloom, only two inches shorter, gave the Bullets a definite height advantage. A made rebound snagging laughably easy if they happened to be standing in the key.

The real and lasting damage, however, was inflicted by Player-Bud Jeannette of the Bullets, who was college star at Washington and Jefferson University when most of the Doughboys were learning to play marbles. Jeannette didn't miss very many tricks of the trade on his way up, and he unveiled several of them against the Doughboys as he faded and feinted his way into 18 points, and set the monstrous Hermsen up for most of the game.

The Doughboys, on the other hand, looked a trifle listless throughout, and were quite unable to penetrate the Bullet defense. Time after time, Anderson would drive around his guard and right in on the basket, only to discover he no longer had the ball, and, time after time, Miller would turn around in the key and get the ball slapped right back in his face, by his alert guard.

The play seemed to be contrived against Scooter Baker when he discovered his guard assignment was more than the doughy Scooter. Elton made himself immune from attack by merely holding the ball above his head. Scooter had the last laugh, though. He rebounded many a Doughboy shot back in right under Hermsen's nose, causing that player to swear audibly, and drawing a ripple of laughter from the half-filled auditorium.

Bill Wirt, was the Doughboy standout for the afternoon. He played better than half the game, but dropped in 11 points, scoring twice on driving layups, and three times on one-handed lunks. He also provided most of the Dough boy rebound strength, snatching the ball away from the Baltimore tall boys several times.

Despite the easy character of the Baltimore win, the general feeling on the Evening team was that on a different day, they might have beaten them, and that the game they played was just a natural slump after the peak they reached in the SEAAU meet.

Fort Benning's pistol championship matches were run off Sunday afternoon at Mitchell range, and a six-man team was selected to make the trip to Tampa, Fla., March 4, to compete in the National Mid-Winter Matches there March 6-8.

M/Sgt. Curtis C. Fritchman was grand aggregate top man and Fort Benning champion with a total of 2,077 points.

Because of a small wind storm, scores were not what they might have been with the exception of Sergeant Fritchman's 411 points calibre.

Trophies Awarded
 Trophies were awarded the different aggregate winners in their respective calibres and also to the calibre aggregate winner. Lt. Col. Ralph A. Tolve will captain the team for the Tampa matches. With him will be Sergeant Fritchman, who also won the 22 calibre and took third in the 38 calibre firing; Capt. Jesse B. Halprin, who was third in the 22 and fourth in the 28; M/Sgt. Joseph Gallo, who won the 38 calibre; 1-Sgt. Russell A. Storey, third place in the grand aggregate and Sgt. James W. Foster, winner of the heavy .45 caliber pistol division.

Mailing Rules For U. S. Zone In Reich Eased

To assist in the revival of the free interchange of cultural, scientific and educational information, a critical world need today, and German nationals and institutions in the U. S. Zone of Germany, excluding Berlin, will be authorized to receive direct shipment of small packages of printed material mailed from post offices in the United States, the Civil Affairs Division of the War Department announced today. This program will become operative February 4, 1947.

This is the first time such shipment has been possible since the declaration of hostilities in 1941. Certain regulations govern the type of printed matter which may be shipped. For instance, publications containing derogatory or malicious matter on any of the four Occupied Powers are banned, as are criticisms of actions and decisions of the Allied Control Council. A last of publications enclosed must be attached to the outside wrapper of each package.

Also on the blacklist are publications which extol or glorify militarism, ultra-nationalism, racism, or pacifism. Any material which incites to riot or disorder, or which constitutes an interference with the processes of Military Government is included in this category. Publications which attempt to foster disrespect for, or create dissension between the United Nations also are banned. No mimeographed material may be sent.

The cost of mailing packages is one and a half cents for each two ounces sent, and total weight allowed is limited to four postal ounces. Comparable postal regulations have been in effect for Austria since September 15, 1946.

The four-man Benning team, (Lt. Col. William Cole, Maj. Albert Tait, Lt. Col. M. C. Bristol, S/Sgt. F. H. Workland) carded a total score of 630 in the 36-hole play. This was five strokes better than the score turned in by the Pratt General Hospital team.

Low medal score in the tourney was achieved by Maj. Albert Tait, of Fort Benning, who carded 151 for the 72-par course. Second place was a three-way tie between Lt. Col. Cole, of Benning, Lt.

(U. S. Army Signal Corps Photo) ANOTHER FIRST FOR BENNING—Maj. Albert Tait accepting a trophy and congratulations from Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, post commandant, on shooting the low medal score of 151 in the Seventh Army golf tourney held on the Benning links last week. Benning was five strokes better than Pratt General Hospital's score. Robert's total score of 630 (four men per team) for the 36-hole play

Robert G. Hunter Jr., and Capt. Robert Deis, both from Fort Bragg, all of whom scored 153. These four men will represent the Seventh Army in the inter-service championship to be held at Oliver General Hospital at Augusta on March 28, 29 and 30. Low-score golfers in this tourney will go on to compete in the Master's competition in April.

Gen. John W. O'Daniel presented the Seventh Army trophies to the winners of the play last Wednesday afternoon at the Benning links. There were two team trophies (for Benning and Pratt General) and individual awards for members of the winning and runner-up teams. Trophies were also given to individual low-score men in the tournament.

25th Bullets Set For Cage Tourney

Riding the crest of a recent six-game winning streak, the 25th Infantry Bullets will enter their first basketball tourney of the year when they stack up against some of the outstanding court clubs in the vicinity Monday during a one-day affair slated to be held in Augusta, Ga.

Coach Lloyd "Drag" Jones' quiet has set back Fort Jackson, Marine Legioners, Xavier U. Camp LeJune, N. C., Marine Panthers, and the Crimson Bearwoods and Crusaders of Columbus. With 30 games played up to Tuesday, the Bullets have 18 victories against 12 losses.

Prospects Bright For 25th's Nine

Bolstered by an impressive array of 10 vets from last year's team, Capt. Austin D. McQuinn, who will assume the coaching assignment for this season's baseball club, has set Monday, March 3, as the starting date for the current trout and training sessions for the 25th Infantry nine.

Last year's club surged through the season in sensational fashion, and at the close of the year had compiled 40-wins, against 10 losses, with two knotted tilts called on account of darkness.

Since the 25th is an associate member of the Southeastern Inter-Collegiate Athletic conference, composed of ranking colleges in this section, the Benningites will face top competition against the institutions. Outstanding service teams will also be engaged.

Assisting Captain McQuinn in the coaching chores will be First Sergeants Charley Tolliver, and David R. Reed, both of whom served in similar roles with last year's club. Reed may also take over relief coaching duties.

Members of the 25th years team returning to the fold are: Pitchers, D. Reed, L. Hall, Jr. Insson; infielders, J. Brown, E. K. Baldwin; catcher, J. Sanders, G. Wardell; outfielders, G. Thralkill, G. Smith, and L. Morris.

Long Leads 1290th Engineers To Lopsided League Victory

Little doubt was left as to who would emerge the victor in the School Troops Basketball League swiftly drawing to a close here at Fort Benning when the 1290th Engineers trampled the tankers of the 756 Battalion, 80-20.

Paul Long was the main spring in the Engineers' attack as he accounted for 15 of their points and held forth as high point man. Ulin and Fogle both collected seven points for the losers. The last stepping Engineers have only one game left to play and are expected to capture that easily.

The Infantry School Detachment five clinched second place with a decisive 75-51 win over the 301st Paratroopers. Herlicher was top man for the ISD club netting 25 points and Bolling led the Troopers with ten points.

Service Company and 1st Battalion both of the 37th Infantry tangled and 1st Battalion emerged 51-30 victor. Patterson and Nichols chalked-up 16 points each for the winners' while Casale of Service Company accounted for 15 points.

It was a tragic and solemn occasion. Carefully, they carried the long wooden box out of the station dispensary and loaded it into the waiting ambulance. "Poor Jim," said a private standing by. "Poor Jim, nuts!" said the first sergeant. "It's still convinced the guy is goofing off!"—Belvoir Castle.

Basketball Meet Begins Monday

A three-day tournament to decide the post basketball champions will begin Monday night in the main post gymnasium.

Eight units, at battalion level, will be represented in the tournament, with trophies to be awarded to the winning and runner-up teams.

The first four seeded fives are the 4th Battalion of the Airborne Regiment, the 1290th Engineers, the Infantry School Detachment and the 328th Ordnance Company.

Logical favorite to cop first place in the competition is the Airborne Regiment's 4th Battalion. The paratroopers have Lytle McCaulley, Jack Kincheol, and Dave Ward in their starting five, and they are three of the starters on the Airborne Regiment team which took third place in the Southeastern AAA tourney held in Atlanta.

However, the Airborne cagers face stiff competition in the form of a rugged 1290th Engineer team. The Engineers from Haralong, knocking teams off all over the post.

The 1290th holds first place in the School Troops League with a record of six wins in six games.

The 328th Ordnance Company crushed three opponents: Lewis Flight (65-48), an Air Indocination five (43-17), and the 750 Tank Bn. (60-20). Monday night they polished off the 328th Ordnance team, 44-41.

Leading scorers for the Engineer five are Paul Long, Joe Harnois, and Ray Hewitt.

Bombers Trounce Beallwood, Nose Out Warren Williams

With the addition of new men from Lockbourne AFB, Columbus, Ohio, Lawson Field's Squadron F basketball team won two games in the last week. Thursday night they defeated the Beallwood Crimpton team by the score of 25-12, and Friday night they beat the Warren Williams team in a YMCA league game by the score of 37-35.

The "Bombers" had a little trouble with the Beallwood Crimpton team. They held a good lead throughout the game and were never threatened.

In the Warren Williams game, however, it was a different story. The lead changed hands many times and at the end of the official playing time the score stood 35-35. In the two minutes overtime period played, the Bombers tightened their defense and held the opposition scoreless while they scored the necessary points to win the game. Key men for the Bombers were Sgt. James Hamilton, Cpl. Thomas T. McQuitty, and Eddie McCray.

Benning Fighters Floor Mc Clellan

Fort Benning's boxers claimed victory in their team match with Fort McClellan at the Main Post Gym Friday night as they took one match by decision and the other on a TKO. The third match between a Benning and McClellan boy was a no-decision bout. Four fast preliminaries between different Benning organizations rounded out the card.

The only TKO came in the bout between Jack Revolta, rugged leather slogger from Fort Benning, weighing 145, and Dexter Patterson, youngster from McClellan, at 140. These two boys went at it full blast from the start. The bout ended with the bell of the second round with Patterson on one knee and after getting to his corner the McClellan boy passed out.

State Champs Battle

In landing a hard blow on Revolta in the last part of the second round, he injured his hand,

Officers' Golf Tournay Dates Are Fixed

The 1947 Annual Fort Benning Officers' Club Golf Championship will be held between March 5 and April 6, it was announced today.

Players will be arranged in flights of 16. If an odd number of players remains after the flights are made up, a few of the high qualifiers may be dropped in order to eliminate an excessive number of byes.

The first round is scheduled to be played on or before March 16; the second round on or before March 23; semi-finals on or before March 30, and the finals on or before April 6.

All matches will be 18 holes except finals of the championship flight, which will be 36 holes.

Other rules as announced by the Officers' Club are that exact times for playing championship finals will be set by the tournament committee. Matches must be played or defaulted on or before scheduled. Time to play will be by mutual agreement between players. USGA and local course rules will govern—no stymies and no handicaps.

Officers desiring to participate are requested to sign up at the golf house giving name, rank and phone number not later than 9 o'clock Sunday afternoon, March 2. Only officers who are members of the Fort Benning Officers' Club will be permitted to participate in the match.

Two qualifying rounds of 18 holes each will be played on Wednesday, March 5 and the other on Saturday, March 8. Sunday, March 9, will be reserved for those who are unable to qualify March 5 or 8.

possibly a broken bone. Both fighters were aggressive and this was by far the best bout of the evening.

In the no decision go, Jessie Underwood, featherweight champion amateur of the state of Georgia, tangled with Tony Nieves, bantamweight champion of Alabama. Underwood had a decided 15-pound weight advantage but the swift fancy style of the Bama champ made it hard for Underwood to lay a glove on him all night.

Delgado Gets No

Bob Brandt, Benning belter, took a decision over Gene Marks from McClellan in the third team match. This bout was slow and didn't come up to the caliber of the Revolta-Patterson go.

Fred Delgado of the 37th Infantry won the first preliminary bout over Bill Taylor of the 20th Trunkers in a fast close fight. Larkie Colebrooke, another 37th man, took a decision from Bob Edgings of Columbus.

These two fellows threw a lot of leather and put on a good show for the spectators. Two more 37th Infantry sluggers won their bouts on decisions, Takash Takata over Mel Henderson, 20th Trunkers, and Cisco Corrientes over Gonzalo Martina, 75th Tankers, making it a clean sweep for the 37th in the preliminaries.

Airborne Calls Baseballers

The Airborne Section that came up with a cracker jack basketball team and fought its way through to a third place in the Southeastern AAU Tournament plans to get the jump on the rest of the post as a call goes out for baseball prospects to try out for the Airborne team.

Captain Walker issued the call to assemble at Watson Field near the separation point on March 5 at 1 p. m.

1st Sgt. Griffin of Service company and 1st Sgt. Ostenski of E company will interview the prospects. Try outs will be given those who are selected.

Tallis, Doughboy mentor; Walt Fiches, Dave Gardner, Bill Wirt, Mark Foss, and James "Toytob" Royal, Mgr. Bottom row: Claude Anderson, Bert and Bill Miller. The team is scheduled to take off late next week for the National AAU tournament in Denver, starting March 16.

Doughboys Annex Southeastern Flag

Fort Benning's Doughboys tournament held annually in Denver for their own satisfaction that they were the best team in independent Southeastern basketball last week, when they won the SEAAU championship after five days of grueling tournament play against 32 of the southland's best ball teams.

The victory makes the Doughs eligible for the national AAU

Anderson had given the Doughs a 43-38 lead. The stall was working nicely until a two-minute mark, Cal Luther got mixed up with two Rebels, and McLin entered from the scuffle with the ball. He broke before the Doughs had a chance to get back on defense, and sank a lay-in, cutting the Benning lead to three points.

Seruggs Gets Tip
Forty seconds later Charley Seruggs got the tip from a jump ball, and shot almost before he had caught the ball. The shot swished and the score was reduced to 43-12, Benning.

The Doughs kept possession of the ball from their tilt, with five seconds remaining. Honeyard Johnson got a tip, and standing near the middle of the floor he shot, the hopes of both teams riding with the ball. The ball struck the right rim of the basket, rolled against the backboard and fell to one side, just as the buzzer sounded, ending the game, and making the Doughboy champions.

The Doughboys' other four opponents were a Lively, Ga., independent team, the Atlanta Aces, the Bessemer Royals, and the same Fort Bragg team that beat them out for the Seventh Army championship.

Aces Trouble
The Aces were the only team which gave them much trouble. They caught the Doughs with their shooting eyes off, and gave them trouble during the first half, trailing only 31-30. Baker, Miller, and Anderson led a Dough resurgence that led to an eventual 55-47 victory.

The Bessemer Royals and the Fort Bragg five, both ranked among the top five teams in the tourney, were easy victims by 47-38 and 57-43 scores.

The Lively team, Doughboys first-rung opponents, weren't in the same class, and were an easy 74-48 victims, every man in a Doughboy uniform taking part in the rout.

Bill Miller and Scooter Baker, Dough standouts, were both honored by the experts with berths on the all-tournament team. It was the third such selection for Miller this year, and the second for the talented Scooter.

The Doughs are experiencing a pleasant five day rest at the moment with no practices and no games during that period. Coach Tallis is busy rounding up a couple of warmup games for early in March, before the team leaves for Denver, and has entered the boys in an all service tourney in southern Georgia to be run off soon. After that, they play the finals of the AAU, where they will participate against some of the finest teams in America before returning here late in March.

Top Baseball Teachers To Be Here Saturday

An opportunity to perform before expert instructors is offered this Saturday afternoon to Benning soldiers interested in baseball as a career.

The local farm club of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, the Columbus Cardinals, opened a two-week baseball clinic in town on Monday, and Saturday the locale will be switched from the Red Birds' Golden Park to Gowdy Field on the main post.

fielder, Elmer Riddle, Columbus right-hander who formerly hurled for the Cincinnati Reds, and five Cardinals scouts, will be on hand to correct flaws in the play of the diamond aspirants.

The Cardinal talent scouts to be present will be Joe Cusick, W. H. Buddy Lewis, Harrison Wickel, Walter Shannon, Ollie Vanek, and Tubby Walton (discovered of Marty Marion).

All the soldiers on the post are invited to come down to the clinic Saturday and to the succeeding sessions the week after in town. This is not to be considered a try-out camp. The only purpose of the clinic is to provide valuable baseball instruction for boys interested in the game.

The clinic will run from 1:30 to 4 p. m. Saturday, and from 4 to 6 p. m. at Golden Park in Columbus every day next week.

Ex-Doughboy Star Meets Old Jinx In State Cage Tourney

"Slip" Kersulis, ex-Doughboy star, must become a trifling discouraged when he thinks of his basketball experience in the state of Georgia. It's enough to get anyone down.

Last year "Slip" was a prospector here at Benning, playing on the post basketball team, the Snipers. Also on that team was Jim Homer, currently with Alabama and leader of the Southeastern conference scorers.

Well, the Snipers entered the Georgia state tournament in Atlanta, and proceeded to win it. This was quite a feat, but an even greater triumph would have been to take the Southeastern AAT championship, as the best team from the area take part in that tourney.

Last year it seemed as if the Snipers might take that one too. They went right up to the finals, losing out in the last game to Memphis Navy—by one point, 48-47!

This year, after being discharged from the Army after the football season, "Slip" decided to play ball for the Atlanta Sports Arena Rebels. And he played great ball for them. Twice at the Atlanta court he helped his teammates beat the Fort Benning Doughboys, 48-45, and 48-41. The Doughs did beat the Rebels here at Benning, though, 48-39.

The Rebels and the Doughboys both entered the Georgia State tournament in Atlanta. The Benning hoopers came a cropper in their third game, while the Arena shipped through without losing again. Once more, for the second year in a row, "Slip" was on the Georgia State Champions.

When the Rebels and the Doughboys came through their preliminary rounds unscathed and were matched in the finals of the AAT tourney it looked as if "Slip" would share in the greater prize this time. The Doughboys had never played good ball on the arena court.

However, fate laughed at "Slip" again, as the wags chanted the "history repeats itself" theme. The Doughboys came off with a 43-42 victory, and "Slip" for the second time in a row, was on the team that lacked a single point.

Benning Has Outstanding Sports Record

Fort Benning can hold its head high in the sports world. In every field it has been a force to be reckoned with, and the trophies in the Athletic office keep growing all the time.

Here's a brief summary of Benning's achievements in athletic competition in recent months:

Bowling—winner of the Seventh Army tournament.
 Boxing—runner-up in Seventh Army tournament, winning team in state Golden Gloves tournament with four individual championships, two runner-up spots, and sportsmanship trophy.
 Golf—Victor in Seventh Army tournament.
 Basketball—runner-up in Seventh Army tournament, winner of Southeastern AAT championship with two players picked on All-Southeastern AAT five; Airborne team from Benning also took third place in tourney.

Second Battalion Sets Boxing Poll

Second Battalion's "Fightin' Deuces" continued their winning ways and remained at the top of 25th Infantry's five-team boxing tourney matches which were featured last Thursday night in the Regimental Field House.

A threat on the rosin is the 571st Field Artillery fighters who bumped First Battalion out of second position two weeks ago and are within a mere 50 points of the league leaders.

Red Cross Fund Shows Pleasing Fort Progress

Following more than a month of preparation, the 1947 Red Cross Fund Campaign got underway Friday, February 28, in a most pleasing manner, according to an announcement made today by Lt.-Col. Walden J. Alexander, chairman of the campaign.

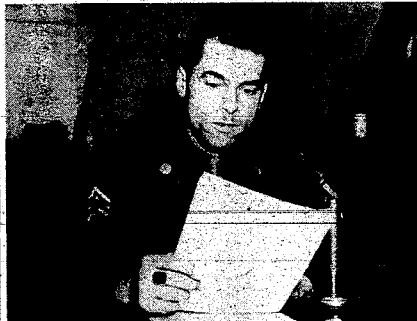

"While we are not yet ready to give actual figures," said Colonel Alexander, "I am most pleased with the results to date, as it indicates excellent planning on the part of the sub-chairmen." Colonel Alexander further pointed out, though, that the excellent first results could not be taken as an indication that the collectors on the post should cease their activities until the very last of the campaign. Otherwise, the results might not be in keeping with previous campaigns.

Murray E. Hill, field director of the American Red Cross at Fort Benning, stated that there have been no greater results for Fort Benning, as there is never a figure fixed for any military or naval installation. Mr. Hill stated that he knows the amount collected at Fort Benning will be something to be proud of, for in the past years the Red Cross contributions from the military and civilians at Fort Benning have certainly compared favorably with those total amounts from other military and naval installations.

Ladies Report Success
The ladies at Fort Benning, under Mrs. Irvin E. Scudder, have been unusually successful in their free-will contributions received at tables placed throughout the post, Mr. Hill reported.

Col. Joseph H. Harper, assistant chief of staff at the Infantry Center, was the principal speaker at the breakfast of the combined Muscogee County, Russell County and Fort Benning Fund Campaign at the Balston Hotel Monday morning, March 3. Colonel Harper laid stress on the fact that

De Alessi Named Post Air Officer

Announcement was made today of the appointment of T-4 Gene A. De Alessi to the position of production manager of the Fort Benning broadcasting station. In addition to producing the majority of shows which emanate from the post's studios, T-4 De Alessi announces Fort Benning on the Air, the Sports Parade and the regular Wednesday evening dance which originated at the Non-Coms Club.

Prior to his entrance into the Army, De Alessi was employed at radio station KLLX in Oakland, Calif., as assistant music director, and later was on the announcing staff of KALW, a frequency modulation station in San Francisco. De Alessi came to Fort Benning from Camp Polk, La., where he served as managing editor of the army newspaper there for six months. Between his civilian radio work and his Army career, he worked as sport's editor on The Neptune, official bi-monthly magazine for the United States Marine Service Officers' School, at Alameda, Calif.

The new production manager intends to start several shows which will feature Fort Benning talent in the immediate future. Shows will be heard over WRBL and WDAB, Columbus.

Paratroop Cap Emblem Ruled Out By Army

Infantry Center officials this week banned the wearing of the paratroop emblem on caps following receipt of a War Department directive stating that the emblem was not authorized. "Nor does the War Department contemplate approval of special paratroop emblems other than parachute and glider badges as prescribed in Army Regulations . . ." the War Department TWX advised.

Vocational School Set For March 17

The second course of the Infantry Center's Vocational School, which will offer instruction in a dozen different subjects ranging from music to photography, is scheduled to get underway March 17, it was revealed today by Capt. Willard E. Chambers, post information and education officer.

Considered a model set-up, the Fort Benning Vocational School expects an enrollment exceeding 800 students for the second session. More than 650 students were in attendance at the first course.

Registration will begin Monday, March 10, and continue until Saturday, March 15, by which time all those who desire to participate must be registered.

Course of instruction will be open to all personnel at Fort Benning, Captain Chambers said. Instruction in the various subjects will be given by Columbus civilians who are either high school teachers or have had high school teaching experience.

Vocational School class rooms are located in the Airborne Regimental area between the Main Post and Lawson Field.

All Vocational School classes will be held from 8 to 10 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. Each class will be of two-hour duration, the first from 8 to 8 p. m. and the second from 8 to 10 p. m.

Captain Chambers, former Airborne School I&E officer, was recently appointed TIC I&E officer following his return to the fort after graduation from the Army Information School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

The Vocational School will provide educational and vocational training and study for Army personnel, and also obtain recognized high school diplomas and certificate of experience for participants.

The school boasts such facilities as free text books, a fully-equipped photographic laboratory and a plastic shop.

Picture Ban Looms At Fort

Stricter rules governing the use of photographic equipment were made known today with the issuance of a general order forbidding any person on the Fort Benning reservation to operate or have in possession a camera without written permission of the commanding general.

Requests for permits either for official or personal purposes must be made in writing through military channels to Infantry Center headquarters stating the name of the operator make the serial number or other designating feature of the camera together with the purpose for which use is indicated. It was announced. Two types of permits will be issued: One for photographing non-military subjects for personal use but not for publication and one for photographing military subjects for official use.

Permits must be retained by the person to whom issued when photographic equipment is being used, the announcement warned, and must be displayed upon request of the provost marshal or his authorized representatives.

All photographs of military subjects taken by commercial photographers will be approved by the Infantry Center public relations officer prior to publication. Civilians will not be issued permits except as provided for in the garrison regulations.

Doughboys, Skytroops 'Fight It Out' Saturday

BY MURRAY HARDING
The Fort Benning Doughboys will play the Airborne Regiment on Saturday night in a basketball game which will decide the post basketball championship once and for all and will put an end to the long-standing haggling between the Troopers and their ground-bound brothers in the infantry.

Starting time is 8 p. m. in the Main Post Gym. Lt. Charles J. Carnay, Airborne coach, and Capt. Cedric Tallis, Doughboy leader, are both confident of victory. On the face of things, Captain Tallis' boys have the inside track, but reports from the Airborne camp indicate that the Doughboys will have their work cut out for them.

Jake Kincheloe, Dave Ward, Elie McCoubert, Al Haberman, and Al Richards comprise the starting five. Kincheloe is the club tall boy at 6' 4" and a tower of strength under the boards in the SEAAU meet. Haberman, who stands only about 5' 11", provided the rest of the team with rebound strength, and proved extremely effective, making up his height deficit with fight.

Have 'Fight'
That indefinable quality which sports writers generally refer to as fight, is the reason for the Troopers' 24-won, 7-lost record this year. When the going gets tough, Ward will come in with a long, or Kincheloe will sink one of his long one-handers. You can always count on them to make any game a battle. Even the Atlanta Sports Arena, which eliminated them from the SEAAU, will attest that they had a struggle until the last couple of minutes, when they got their quick points, breaking behind the tired Trooper defense.

The chief weakness of the team is a woeful lack of reserve strength. Once you get past the aforementioned first five there just isn't anyone to take up the cudgel, and, though the boys are all in top flight condition, they

Maj. Gen. O'Daniel To Return Thursday

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, who left Fort Benning last Saturday morning to attend a meeting of all commandants of Army schools, is expected to return Thursday by plane. The Leavenworth session was called by Gen. Jacob L. Devers for the purpose of discussing standardization of courses in the various Army schools to prevent duplication of instruction.

EVERYBODY READS THE BAYONET—Lovely Frances Langford, fan of radio and screen, was taught in a moment of relaxation reading up on the news at Fort Benning. Miss Langford is currently featured on the Armed Forces Radio Service program, "Purple Heart Albums," which is heard on WRBL, the local Army radio station, between the Regimental hospital.

Oral Surgeon Given Award

Col. Frederick H. Bockoven, noted oral surgeon, was awarded the Legion of Merit for "outstanding meritorious service from June 1944 through November 1946," at ceremonies at Gordon Field last Friday.

Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard presided at the presentation, personally congratulating Colonel Bockoven on receiving his outstanding award. The citation read in part:

"Col. Frederick H. Bockoven performed exceptionally meritorious service in the dental personnel of the professional dental service of the Bruns General Hospital from March 1944 to November 1946. He devised ways and means and supervised the meticulous dental care of the dental personnel of the institution, and particularly arranged special dental care for the seriously sick and injured patients of this hospital. Through tireless and painstaking effort, Colonel Bockoven corrected the dental pathology of more than 85% of the patients in the institution."

At the same ceremony General Shepard presented the Army Commendation Ribbon to Lt. Col. Isaac V. Compo, of the Philippine Army, and to Capt. E. Howard TIC/Airborne Section, 1/Sgt. Bennie C. Moore, ISD, and presented certificates of appreciation to more than 50 of the Fort Benning NCO's.

Criminal Nature Of Nazis Now Revealed To Public

With publication today of the eighth volume in a series of eight volumes of documents and other material which helped convict the Nazi war criminals at Nuremberg, the authentic story of the Nazi master plan for world domination, told in narrative form, is made available for the first time to the general public.

The eight volume set, which contains English translations of documentary evidence collected by the American and British prosecuting staffs, and which has been approved for release by Justice Robert H. Jackson, the American chief prosecutor, is published under the title of "Nazi Conspiracy and Aggression." Most of the documents published were captured from the secret files of the German government, the Nazi party, the Wehrmacht and the personal files of the Nazi leaders.

Wants Public To Know
This series is being published because of the American prosecution's belief that only a part of its job consisted of convincing the court at Nuremberg, and that the task would be completed only when the true and criminal nature of Adolf Hitler's regime had been demonstrated by unanswerable proof to the American public. Accordingly the series is addressed not primarily to lawyers but to the general reader. The latest volume describes in simple and non-technical language the Nazis' deliberate plotting of conquest and enslavement, and is indispensable to an understanding of the Third Reich and of the conspiracy of origins of the second World War. Five volumes of these documents (Volumes III, IV, V, and VII) have already been completed. Because publication of certain volumes has delayed in order to permit the inclusion of last-minute material, the volumes are being issued out of their proper order in the series, and delivery of such volumes is being made as it comes off the press.

Many Subjects Discussed
Among the subjects authoritatively discussed in these essays are: the organization of the Nazi party and state; the means by which the Nazis gained control of the German state, including terrorization of political opponents, destruction of the trade unions, suppression of the churches, persecution of the Jews, and indoctrination of youth; the economic system of the Nazis; the plotting and launching of twelve years of aggression, including control of Italy and entry into the slave labor program; the concentration camps; the Germanization and spoliation of Western Europe, and the plunder of art treasures.

Outstanding among these studies is the discussion of the documents showing that Hitler plotted the minutes of the Fuehrer's conferences with his top generals and politicians are reviewed at length and disclosed Hitler's cynical decision "to attack Poland at the first opportunity" since "in starting and making a war not the right is what matters but victory—the stronger has the right."

A considerable portion of Red Cross funds were still earmarked for the serviceman and his family and the veteran and his dependents, and that it should not be forgotten that the Red Cross was always first when disaster struck. The fund campaign will last throughout the month of March. All sub-committees are asked to turn in their money as rapidly as possible to the Red Cross building. Additional supplies can also be obtained from Mr. George.

A soldier from the deep south was stationed in the north, and when the first snow came he wrote home:

"Mother nature has blessed us with a mantle of beautiful fluffy snow!"

A month later his tone was slightly different.

"Remember that snow I told you about? Well, now we've got two feet of the damned stuff!"

Doughboys

show signs of strain after 40 minutes of fast basketball against a good team.

Real Handicap
That fact proved a real handicap in the AAU meet where only four personal fouls are allowed per man. Kincheole, Haberman and Richards were all removed from games via the foul route, sometimes as early as the third quarter, but the team always had enough staying power until they ran up against the too tall Sports Arena. In that contest Kincheole left in the third period after scoring ten points. McCauley and Richards followed in a similar order, having scored ten and nine, respectively, leaving Haberman and Ward on the bench. They tried hard, but couldn't stave off that final Rebel charge.

In the consolation match against Fort Bragg, 7th Army champs, the "smart" bettors were giving away ten points and picking Bragg to win. Even with the points being offered you couldn't find many Airborne backers.

Upset Bucket
It's an old story by now, and every one knows what the Troopers did to the vaunted Bragg five. The first contest was 56-42 with Lyle McCauley notching 21 points to overshadow Jerry Lowther, all fourney selection.

Another game that the Troopers like to talk about is a 2-point decision which the Doughboys "Hungry Five" last January. The closeness of the game would seem to indicate that the Doughboys did not have too much trouble in the oncoming encounter, but the situation is one which will bear a little study before coming out with any premature predictions.

The Airborne five has come a long way since that tussle. It appears most unlikely to most observers that the "Hungry Five" could have advanced to third place in the Southeastern, which feat the Airborne undeniably accomplished.

The Doughboys, of course, will need no buildup for the game. Their record of 30 wins in 37 starts speaks for itself, and they are the team that is representing this section of the country in the AAU finals in Denver from March 16 to 25.

Couch Tallis will start his usual first five; Anderson, Miller, Baker, Logan and Luther.
Beat Any Team
It has been said of the Doughboys that on a good night, a night in which all of the boys have their eyes, they could trim practically any team. That statement was made before the Baltimore Bullets contest by no less a personage than "Dutch" Dehnert, who plays on the famed New York Celtics in his younger days, and who is in this section of the country scouting for a Cleveland Pro team. The Doughboys didn't land much credence to his comment that afternoon as they lost to the tricky Bullets, but don't sell Mr. Dehnert short. He knows whereof he speaks.

The Doughboys will have two days to collect their belongings after the game before they leave for Denver on Monday for their acclimation process. The team will have almost a week before the tournament to work out in the "mile high" atmosphere, and they

Mates Cheer Candidate For Daring Upatoi Rescue

BY O.C. RONALD MORK
A shout went up and 115 officers and men of AOC No. 4 were standing around during a break in a river crossing problem pushed to the river. The swirling Upatoi, known for its treacherous whirlpools and now swollen to flood level from recent rains, lashed the banks below the crowd and rushed across the jagged dam mercilessly sweeping everything along with it.

There were cries of "Where, where!" and pointing fingers indicated a battered mass of skin bobbing up and down in the brown water.

The crowd was frantic. Some of the men tore at saplings and roots, far enough out into the stream. Suddenly there was a splash for a moment or two nothing was visible but Martin's helmet liner floating on the water.

A cheer went up as Martin reappeared and swam for shore. Said Candidate Martin, hero of the day and rescuer of the company football: "It's wet."

will need every minute of it. A good many teams from east of the Mississippi have been reduced to gassing impotency during tough games, due to inadequate conditioning in Denver's "air" and the Doughboys have no desire to be added to the list.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

THE BRASHER DOUBLOON (entertainment melodrama) with George Montgomery and Nancy Guild. Detective Philip Marlowe lands in an exciting, tough and hard-boiled action drama, with three corpses, a beautiful girl who is continually having hysterics and a snide young gentleman blackmailing his mother. "Oh yes, the 'Brasher Doubloon' is a rare coin every body seems to want."

MY FAVORITE BRUNETTE (comedy-drama) with Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and Peter Lorre. Hope, a baby photographer who yearns to be a private detective, gets more than he bargained for in his first case—which he is glad to make his last. This is about the wackiest mystery ever produced.

THE FABULOUS FRENCH (biographical comedy-drama) with Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Dorsey, Janet Blair and Paul Whiteman. Based on the lives of Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, this should be a treat for the Dorsey fans. It reveals their musical training, the forming of their first band, their work with "Pops" Whiteman and the scrapping that finally led to the formation of separate bands.

THAT WAY WITH WOMEN (comedy-drama) with Dane Clark, Martha Vickers and Sydney Greenstreet. Being a rich, retired auto magnate was a pain to Sidney Greenstreet. Under an assumed name he buys a half interest in a gas station—Dane Clark having the other half. Then trouble starts when everybody else takes a hand in the business.

IT HAPPENED IN BROOKLYN (comedy with music) with Frank Sinatra, Kathryn Grayson and Jimmy Durante. Everybody tries to get in the act, but Durante wins by a nose! What with the aid of a school teacher and a British aristocrat, plus the talents of that musical genius—Sinatra's efforts to get a musical education can't miss—or should it read, "can't be missed?"

President Asks End Of Draft Law

Selective service, the law which raised an Army of ten million men to crush Germany and Japan, may be on its dying legs. Early this week President Truman asked congress to let the current draft law expire on March 31.

The president expressed that the enlistment situation looked favorable enough now to maintain a military strength of 1,070,000 men throughout the fiscal year beginning July 1.

However, he said that in case voluntary enlistments cannot fill the bill in the future, he will request re-enactment of the draft law.

It is expected that the War Department will also press for universal military training. April The committee appointed by the President to draw up a plan has not yet reported.

Such training will not necessarily be under the Army, as President Truman has previously emphasized that the committee was studying the subject of "universal training," conspicuous "deactivation" of the adjective "military."

Whatever the plan, it is sure to meet with opposition in Congress, with the nation's representatives reluctant to pass any type of national service legislation.

Tactical Officers; With Combat Experience, Train Candidates

BY O/C MEYER KETOFSKY

"Reach for the sky! Get 'em up high! Way up!" Dialogue from a detective story? Not! Nothing more than instructions given by a tactical officer to a platoon of officer candidates at AOCC 6, Tenth Company, STR, under command of Capt. Theodore B. Colmer.

This is the course of the candidates' department of the military bearing symbolized by the tall Georgia pine.

Few know about "tac" officers except the candidates themselves. Tac officers are the men who determine whether or not the candidate possesses the qualities required of an officer.

A tac officer is chosen because of his combat experience, his leadership qualities, and his efficiency rating. The responsibilities he shoulders can be entrusted to none but the highest type of officer.

Four Officers

There are four tac officers, one assigned to each platoon. Lt. George Sallick is senior tac officer in charge of the first platoon. Lts. Robert E. Dickinson, Donald F. McCaffrey and James B. Toohy are the second, third and fourth platoon tac officers, respectively.

These officers have had combat experience, perhaps, their most valuable asset in training men. Lt. Sallick has 13 years service, serving with the 27th Infantry Div. at Saipan. He also saw action at Midway and Eniwetok and earned the Purple Heart.

Lt. Dickinson, during his ten years in the Army, has seen service with the cavalry on the Mexican border. In 1942 he joined the 102nd Infantry Division and served in France as forward observer for a cannon company where he earned the Silver Star Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart.

Accepts Surrender 2600 Japs

Lt. McCaffrey, as one of two representatives of the 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment, accepted the surrender of 2600 Japanese. After 15 months of service in the South Pacific he returned to the states with the Purple Heart.

While a member of the famed 82nd Airborne Division, Lt. Toohy fought in France, Belgium, and Germany, taking part in the meeting of the Russian and American armies on the Elbe River. He also witnessed the surrender of the 21st German army at Ludwigsch. After 18 months in the ETO, Lt. Toohy returned to the States.

In addition to the routine duties of a company officer, the tac officer must take the potential officer, and through the weeks, mold him into a well trained officer.

Only by hard and constant work can the Tac Officer insure the satisfactory progress of those who will be the leaders in America's new Army.

Gal: "Look soldier, just how long is your ear going to keep stalling like this?"

"I-7." "Just as long as you do, honey."

It was almost midnight as a mother entered the parlor to find her daughter delightfully reposing on the lap of a sergeant.

"Yeah? I'll bet the base came out in the long run."

"Wah. The cabbage came out with the tomato was trying to ketchup, and the hose was still running."

Her mind was like a bachelor's He never made up.

Then there was the grammar teacher who fainted dead away when Johnnie said:

'BLACK JACK' SAVED Famed Engine Of Two Wars Resurrected For Koreans

Proudly bearing four silver stars, and resplendent in a new coat of glistening black paint, the battle-scarred General Pershing locomotive veteran of World War I and II, left Fort Benning's railroad shops Friday morning for San Francisco, Calif., and the first leg of a trip destined to take the famous old engine to Korea.

The grand old lady of the Army's Railway Transportation Corps came to Ft. Benning in September 1945, expecting to be relegated to the junk pile, since Army locomotives operate on diesel power. Recalling the Pershing's major role in World War I and her faithful record since, however, military officials decided that she could still be put to good use in overseas theater with the Occupation Army.

The General Pershing made history during World War I in France when "Black Jack" himself chose the engine to pull his private train to the battle lines. The old locomotive served in this capacity until the American Expeditionary Forces broke the Hindenburg line and drove the Boche back through the Argonne forest on Nov. 11, 1918.

Upon her return to the states immediately following the armistice, the General Pershing was used to haul Army passenger coaches from Stark, Fla., to Camp Blanding, Fla., to Camp Blanding, Fla. Records show that for every passenger carload of soldiers it hauled to commercial carriers outside the Florida post, the government saved $12.50, and for every freight car hauled the taxpayer was saved $5.00. During World War II the locomotive was used to transport troops from Blanding to the Seaboard-railway connection at Stark and to the Southern junction at Thebes.

Manufactured by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in 1918, the General Pershing is a 130-ton "work-horse" with a brilliant record behind her, and the railroad men at Fort Benning know there is plenty of reserve power still remaining in her engine.

Motion Picture Team Due At Benning Soon

An advance party of a motion picture team is scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning March 11 to select "probable newscell scenes and to make arrangements for the camera crew" which will follow at a later date, officials revealed today. The advance team consists of Maj. E. C. Danerson and A. Phillips.

Enlisted Men Get New Rifle Range

A new rifle range was opened for the use of Airborne Troops in the building next to Airborne Regimental Headquarters. Twenty-two calibre rifles will be used in the range and it will be open afternoon and evenings for all enlisted men of the Airborne Regiment.

GENERAL PERSHING LEAVES FOR OVERSEAS DUTY—Proudly bearing four silver stars, the General Pershing, locomotive veteran of two world wars, left the Fort Benning roundhouse last Friday morning for its second tour of duty overseas. Clerk-Typist Course To Start

A eight-week clerk-typist course was inaugurated at The Infantry Center for Fort Benning troops with the first class scheduled to get under way March 10, military officials announced today.

There will be two classes daily, Monday through Friday, with 25th Infantry units attending the afternoon sessions. Classes will be held in Building No. 6 in area A-3 on the Main post, and will consist of two hours' instruction in practice typing and one hour's instruction in Army administration.

No student will be sent to the course who has fewer than six months to serve after completion of the school before being discharged, it was pointed out. It was also announced that no students initially enrolled in the class will be relieved except for an emergency or disqualification by the instructor.

Quotas for units include 40 from the 24th Infantry, 24 School Troops, 10 Student Training Regiment, nine Airborne Regiment, four Infantry Battalion, 10-344th ASU, and three AGF Board No. 2.

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED IN WAC fashions this spring and Dorothy Jasperson of Fort Myers, Va., came to Fort Benning this week with five other WACs to show what the well dressed Army woman will be wearing in 1948. Non-Com Picks Army For His Permanent Job

Among the latest re-enlistees in School Troops is Cpl. Julius J. Felber, Jr. of Headquarters Company, 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, who extended his enlistment in the regular Army.

Corporal Felber hails from Lyon Falls, N. Y., where he formerly resided with his parents. Before entering service he was a student at Glenfield High school in Glenfield, New York.

Upon graduation from high school he enlisted in January 1943 and entered service from Camp Upton, N. Y. After serving a year with the 4th Engineer Brigade at Fort Devens, Mass., Corporal Felber applied for airborne training and was transferred to the airborne school at Fort Benning. In September 1944 he received his wings and was also graduated as a qualified glider trooper. Soon after graduation he was assigned to the 542nd Battalion at Camp Mackall, N. C., which served as a testing unit for the duration of the war.

Corporal Felber returned to Fort Benning in March 1945, with the 501st Parachute Battalion, where he is now assigned.

With over four years of service behind him Corporal Felber has extended his enlistment for two more years. The reasons he gives are very practical, as he considers the Army as the best business deal offered at this time. When looking over the situation Corporal Felber decided to stay in the Army for the security which it offers. He is not planning on the twenty-year retirement plan, but considers that his term—the Army is giving him a good background for his work in civilian life.

OCS Physical Hurdles Prove Big Obstacle

BY O. C. STEPHEN D. SMOKE
The Army officer candidate battle-conditioning course was left in devastation last week when Capt. Theodore B. Celmer's 10th company struck in blasts of eight at one-minute intervals until the "wyclonic" fury of 167 candidates had been unleashed upon the one and one-quarter course.

Officers who witnessed the event included Col. Fay Ross, Maj. William F. Beschler, and 1st Col. John T. English. Col. English posted himself near the end of the course and shouted words of encouragement as the candidates drove down the stretch.

The course, consisting of 18 obstacles such as hurdles, fences, walls, ditches, tunnels, and barbed wire entanglements, must be mastered in 14.5 minutes in order for the officer candidate to qualify.

Purpose of the course is to develop physical capacities and fundamental skills and abilities, which are important to the soldier in combat.

That the physical capacities of the officer candidates are developed cannot be denied. The course record of nine minutes and 10 seconds can well attest this fact when one considers that throughout the nation college mile track events are being won in about five minutes. At Fort Benning the O. C. is negotiating a longer distance, strewn with difficult ob-

RELUCTANT TO RETIRE—Sgt. Harris M. Bryant, charter member of Fort Benning, is preparing to bid adieu to the post after 20 years of continuous service. The veteran Benningite reported for duty at the end of the spring of 1927 and has remained here since. Loss of one eye and injury to other in an accident several years ago is forcing Sergeant Bryant to accept a disability retirement. Originally from Saxton, Ky., the "sarge" has decided to visit there briefly before establishing a home in his wife's hometown in Florida.

"Yup," said the guide to the honeymooners, "they's been many a young couple go up that mountain and never come back again."
"Gee, what happened to them?"
"Oh, dunno—went down the other side I guess."

stacles, in less than twice the time.

There exists among AOC class No. 6 a class feeling best typified by Candidate Dodge, who ran the course in 11:04. "Boy," says Dodge, "that pat on the back, and you're doing fine, son" by Col. English sure made that last 100 yards a lot easier."

Another factor adding lustre to AOC's achievement on the battle course is the fact that the company had just completed an eight-mile night march and had had their influenza shots.

Having taken this hurdle in stride and preparing for physical achievement test No. 1, which takes place this week, AOC class No. 6 sees a little more clearly the goal which was barely discernible eight weeks ago.

Benning's Radio 'Hams' Serve Useful Purpose

BY MILT MOSKOWITZ

Radio in our time has come to be common-place, serving as a source of employment for many people and as an entertainment vehicle for almost everyone. However there is no one who gets more out of this modern phenomenon than the people who have radio as a hobby.

The Communications Section of The Infantry School deals with the subject of radio in all its ramifications and it's fitting that it has a department the personnel of which has radio as their avocation.

Located in an antenna-surrounded building behind the main theatre, these men run the post's "ham" radio station, the easiest way to identify one of these radio addicts.

Broadcasting Resumed

A regularly-licensed, amateur station, W4PIX is just getting started after a long lapse. WXPBMS used to be Benning's ham station, first licensed in 1926, but it was discontinued during the war when the Army didn't have the time to cater to extra-curricular interests like amateur radio.

These ham stations are a hobby for people all over the world, as the decorated walls of W4PIX attest. Calling cards from stations in practically every state in the union, as well as from points throughout the world, including one from Managua, Nicaragua, adorn the walls.

Whenever a station is contacted, its card is obtained, and the Benning ham sends its card to the stations contacting W4PIX. The amateur stations sometimes run contests on the basis of contacts. A specified period is picked, and the station making the most contacts during that time wins the contest.

The Benning station is equipped with both a phone and telegraphic hook-up, meaning that it can hold conversations with stations in this country by voice, and with other stations outside the country, by code.

You may wonder what the operators of these ham stations talk about. Well, most of the time the subject of the conversations are the types of equipment used by the respective stations, news of acquaintances in the business, and general comment on what's going on at the various locations of the hams.

There's a great deal more, however, that a ham station can do, as its history reveals. It is often valuable as an instrument of public service, carrying important messages.

Helped During Flood

In some of the Ohio river floods small ham stations helped materially in sending messages for aid, and they have also been helpful in expeditions where ordinary communication means were not available. There are a group of these hams which operate as regular business, taking messages just like telegraph companies.

W4PIX hopes to take message also from GIs on the post when it gets going on a regular schedule. Recently the Fort Benning Amateur Radio Club was formed to promote amateur radio activity as a hobby among post personnel and to assist them to become amateur radio operators if interested.

President of the club is Capt. Roger S. Andrews, WIIBM, who is the officer in charge of W4PIX. Secretary of the club is M/Sgt. Sherman Swink, W1DSV, and the chief operator is Pvt. Vincent Basher, W1DIN. Other members include Lt. William H. Bamber, W1MLO, T-Sgt. Ernest Gaylord, W4KYP, Pfc. Charles Hisson, W2ZEF, Lt. James A. Muse, W1KCD, T-Sgt. William Radik, W4FVQ, T-1 OJF, Kasrieh Ziesler, USNR, Lt. Charles Simpson, W3J1J, Gordon French, and John Denbraber.

Work Is Voluntary

These are the ones who run W4PIX. There aren't any men definitely assigned to the station for regular duty. Those who are interested come around, make the contacts, keep the log and make the station what it is.

Those neophytes wishing to know what the funny-looking numbers following each name mean are hereby informed that they are the call numbers of the men, being licensed by the FCC as amateur radio operators.

It may be questioned why the Army is willing to give materials and the opportunity for men to keep up a hobby. But W4PIX pays off in the end, the Army feels. It provides valuable training in radio for the men taking part in it, making for better radio operators and communication officers and chiefs. By supporting projects like W4PIX, the Army also gives itself a better name. Certainly W4PIX enhances Fort Benning's claim to being "America's most complete Army post."

A recent enlistee failed to salute the colonel:

"Soldier, didn't you notice my uniform?"

"Yeah, but what are you beefing about? Look what they gave me!"

PAR-AWAY LOOK is M/Sgt. Sherman Swink's eyes is perhaps an indication of some distant point being contacted on W4PIX, the ham station maintained by the Communications Section at Fort Benning.

Delicate Apparatus Ejected From V-2 Rocket In Test

The captured German V-2 rocket which attained an altitude of 69.5 miles at White Sands, N. M., last week, containing instruments and cameras installed by the Army Air Force, successfully proved that delicate apparatus can be ejected from the missile at extreme heights and lowered by parachute.

Color films of the sky and of the earth were recovered from approximately 350,000 feet using the AAF-developed series of ribbon parachutes which enabled a container to be lowered to the ground without damage. Long-range search radar units tracked the position of the container and cables during the entire descent. When the touch-down point had been determined, an AAF helicopter was dispatched to recover the container and its instruments.

and cameras. The film was flown to Wright Field, Ohio, for processing and study by AAF technicians. The tests last Thursday continued the AAF's study of the ionosphere and the importance of its effect on radio communications as well as furthering the research into the ballistics and firing problems of large guided missiles. The V-2 was the 20th of a series which will include 30 more missions. A number of AAF observers were at the White Sands Guided Missile Proving Ground to witness the firing. They included Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Breerton, Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Power and Brig. Gen. William L. Richardson, as well as members of their staffs. Personnel of the Army Ordnance Department are responsible for the actual firing of all V-2 rockets at White Sands.

Courts-Martial Due For Change

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson has approved principal recommendations for overhauling the Army courts-martial system made recently by his civilian advisory committee on military justice.

Some of the proposed recommendations include making provision for enlisted men to sit on general courts-martial; removing the mandatory death penalty for rape; and giving the Judge Advocate General broader courts-martial review powers.

Major changes involving amendments to the Articles of War must be enacted by Congress, while others must be effected by administrative action.

Mr. Patterson reported that his approved recommendations will go to Congress in the near future.

The Navy Department is studying its own justice reform report. It is expected that both service departments will communicate justice recommendations to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees simultaneously, enabling service committees within the two legislative bodies to coordinate any action they might take with respect to the two services.

Special Furim services will be held at the Main Post Chapel Tuesday, March 7, at 7:45 p. m. with Pfc. J. Weisberg, conducting.

Air Indoctrination Course Stresses Unit Cooperation

Cooperation between the air branch and infantry was the keynote of the Air Indoctrination Course presented here last week for the 400 students from the Armed Forces Staff college at Norfolk, Va. An impressive display of power was packed into the five-day demonstration of how the ground forces utilizes air support in its operations.

The entire presentation was a brilliant example of ground-air unity, as the Ninth Air Force and The Infantry School here at Fort Benning joined hands to put on the show.

The course got under way Monday, February 24, with a welcoming address by Maj. Paul L. Williams, commander of the Ninth Air Force and host to the visiting students. Talks were also delivered by Col. William M. Gross and Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada on AAF organization and the importance of tactical air power.

Brief Skills

For the rest of the day the students witnessed brief skits depicting various phases in the joint planning of an airborne operation. Planning at the different levels and working of the air-ground communication and reconnaissance intelligence were presented.

On the second day the students were given further briefing on the joint operation, with visits to the tactical air control center and air direction center of the Ninth Air Force Advance headquarters. Radio displays and films of the activity were also shown.

These two days of preliminary exercises were a preparation for the actual demonstration of the operation on Wednesday. In the morning the infantry held sway with a "mad-minute" show in which every weapon used in ground combat was fired simultaneously. The students also viewed modern infantry weapons at Hook range, including tanks, recoilless weapons, rocket launchers, and flame throwers.

Climax of Show

The climax of Wednesday's and the whole course's activities was the airborne-troop carrier demonstration in the afternoon. A miniature replica of the Rhine river crossing was staged. Company A of the 501st Parachute Infantry, supported by artillery elements and a pathfinder team, spilled into the skies from troop carrier aircraft to attack an imaginary target at Dekkar air strip in Fort Benning's Alabama area.

Fighters, bombers, and jets backed up the paratroopers in bombing and strafing missions, while reconnaissance planes probed the area.

BILLOWING SILK 'CHUTES filled the skies over Dekkar strip during the Air Force-Infantry Feb. 24 demonstration of air-ground power. Upon landing the paratroopers staged a mock battle for the benefit of more than 200 students of the Armed Forces Staff College, who came to Fort Benning for the Ninth Air Force's air indoctrination course.

Air Indoctrination

ographed the battle area before and after the attack. Thursday the students from the Armed Forces Staff College toured The Infantry School's Airborne Section, and in the afternoon they witnessed a demonstration of air transportability, as non-airborne personnel and equipment were loaded into aircraft to emphasize techniques.

Cooperation Again: The only night problem of the course was on Thursday at Hook range, and again cooperation between the air and ground was stressed. Night vision and battle-field illumination through the use of searchlights and flares dropped by Ninth Air Force aircraft were demonstrated. Another highlight of the night show was the use of the sniper scope, an infra-red light attachment to the carbine, which allows the infantryman to see his target 50 yards away.

Friday, the last day of the course, was devoted to a display of infantry weapons, communications equipment, and an infantry-artillery-tank demonstration. The students from Norfolk were unable to stay for the afternoon's show, as approaching inclement weather necessitated their leaving at noon. However, the demonstration was put on anyway, with the advanced officers' class of the Infantry School as the spectators.

They saw a joint operation of the three branches—in infantry, tank, artillery—as they work together in a simulated attack on an enemy hill. First, the long-range guns of the artillery softened up the holl; then the tanks rolled in under the protective cover of machine-gun and mortar fire, and then the doughboys, using the firepower of the tanks as a shield, advanced to take the enemy positions.

Units in Action Participating in the demonstration were the 25th Infantry Regiment, the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, A and B batteries of the 571st Field Artillery Battalion, and the 756th Tank Battalion. Other units which appeared in the week-long air show included roop carrier, fighter, and bomber groups from Biggs Field, Texas, Lockbourne Army Air Base, Ohio, Pope Field, N. C., Greenville Army Base, S. C., Shaw Field, S. C., Myrtle Beach Army Air Field, S. C., Langley Field, Va., and Lawson Field. Ground units included elements of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N. C., and the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion from The Infantry School.

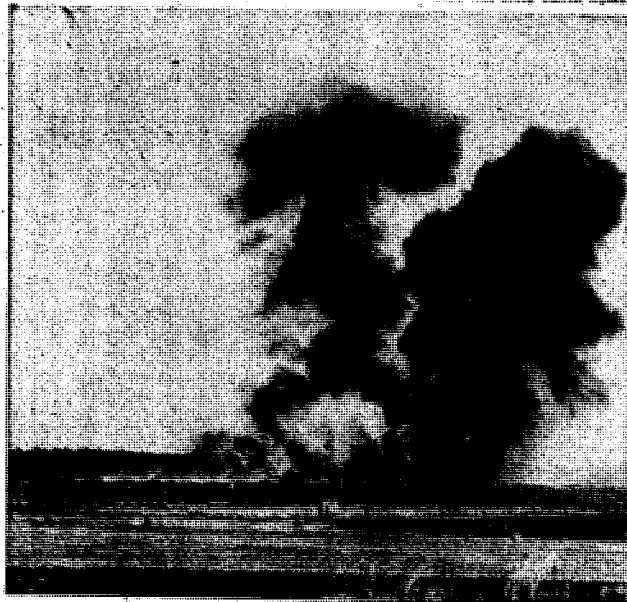

A CHILL WIND was blowing Feb. 25 when this crowd of students from the Armed Forces Staff College along with a few visitors gathered at Dekkar strip in Fort Benning's Alabama area to witness a mighty demonstration of air-ground power during the Ninth Air Force's air indoctrination course.

RE-ENACTING A MERRY MISSION for the benefit of 200 Armed Forces Staff College students during indoctrination Feb. 25 was a West Coast bomber of Lawson Field's 13th Troop Carrier Group.

THE "KIDNAP" as a check package, this method of making a glider delivery was used extensively by paratroopers in the ETO during World War II.

AN AIRBORNE MEMBER was skillfully maneuvered Feb. 25 when parachute landing was demonstrated to the students in a simulated air-transportation exercise in an airborne landing. Above paratroopers.

For the night while an imaginary enemy target was being located from Ninth Air Force aircraft.

TWO B-24s of Lawson Field's 13th Troop Carrier Group are making their check runs of glider parachute delivery over the tactical area.

MAJOR GUY POWERS in the indoctrination and Friday of the Infantry, artillery and tank groups at the attack, signed as part of the Air Indoctrination Course, is provided by one member of the command, 13th Troop Carrier Group, before was about during the "heat of the battle" and the release of the two paratroopers could not be obtained.

Exclusive Is Word For Non-Com Social Group

By M-SGT. DOUG BEICHERT
When Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel recently authorized the formation of the Block 427 Married Non-commissioned Officers Club and provided the club rooms, he caused to be created one of the country's most exclusive clubs.

As membership in the newly organized club is limited to non-commissioned officers of the first three grades who are married and living with their families, it places a restriction on membership that makes the club really exclusive. The Block "12" Club now provides the means of social get-togethers for Fort Benning's top non-coms which in the past was possible to only a few childless couples who could afford the expense of enjoying social life provided by the more expensive clubs of adjacent civilian communities.

'One Big Family'

Saturday night dances to the music of good orchestras, finds membership, their families and guests enjoying life as one big happy family. It has been said that the Army should be "one big happy family" and here at the Block "12" Club it actually so.

General O'Daniel provided the services of Col. E. P. Passaluniga as advisory officer for the club. Under Colonel Passaluniga's sponsorship the club is steadily progressing. The latest improvement to near completion is a nursery for the convenience of couples with children. It will be possible to bring the children to dances, leaving them, at nominal cost, in the expert care of a practical nurse. Between dances, parents will be able to have a look at the children to ascertain that they are all right. Other improvements are either on the way or being planned for the future.

It is requested by the members of the club that all first three graders living near Fort Benning who are married and who have not already joined in one of the Saturday night parties for a look and dance.

2 Purim Affairs Announced Here

Purim, possibly the gayest of Jewish festivals, will be celebrated locally by two special social affairs for Fort Benning servicemen.

Saturday, March 8, the Jewish Welfare Board will entertain with a Purim party in the upstairs ballroom at the Ninth Street USO at 8 p. m. There will be dancing, games and special Purim refreshments.

From 7 p. m. to midnight Wednesday, March 12, Jewish servicemen from the post will be guests of Columbus Jewry at a Purim Carnival to be held at the Harmony Club at 416—Twelfth street, Columbus.

General Smith New Commander of CAP

Brigadier General Frederic H. Smith Jr., Chief of Staff of the Strategic Air Command at Andrews Field, Maryland, today was appointed national commander of the Civil Air Patrol, succeeding Colonel Earle E. Johnson, who was killed in a airplane crash at Cleveland, Ohio, February 16.

The appointment was made by General Carl Spaatz, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces.

General Smith is 38 years old, one of the youngest generals in the Army Air Forces, but he is a veteran of more than 17 years' Army service since his graduation from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1929. At that time he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery, but transferred to the Air Corps a year and a half later.

Cohen Wins USO Checker Tourney

The USO checker tournament was won by Corporal Nathan Cohen of the 756th Tank Battalion, who defeated Sgt. Phillip Boyer, 2-g, with two draws in the finals. Sergeant Boyer ranked sixth in the nation while Corporal Cohen ranked eighth. This victory in an official match will raise the official rating of Corporal Cohen.

Corporal Cohen breezed through a field of 12 opponents until he met Sergeant Boyer in a grueling final heat. These two men will soon meet again at the Columbus Checker club, with the U. S. Army Checker championship at stake.

So much ceremony was once attached to royal beds that they were saluted by courtiers as if the beds were altars.

One of the biggest upsets thus far was when the Airborne Section outpointed TABR's 2nd Battalion, taking 3 points from them, also when the 756th Tankers defeated the 204th Truckers who were then holding the lead.

The tourney is scheduled to carry on through March 24. The Post trophy is at stake and there will be awards made to high scoring individuals also.

The post basketball tourney swings into the final night of play Thursday with the winners of Tuesday night's games playing each other in the championship finals at 8:15 in the Main Post Gym. The consolation contest deciding third and fourth place will start at 7 p. m. with Tuesday night's losers opposing each other.

On the basis of Monday's first round elimination, logical contenders for the championship appear to be the 4th Bn., TABR, and the 1st Bn., 37th Infantry. Both with Doughboys' help. In that event, the consolation match will be between the 129th Engineers and the AGF Board No. 3 team, who upset the highly regarded ISD team Monday night.

The 1st Bn. encountered little difficulty in the tournament highlighter Monday, as it swamped the 928th Ordnance, one of the better teams on the post, 43 to 28. Miller, Anderson, and Foss, all members of the Doughboys, paced the 1st Bn. to the win, Anderson netting 17 points to lead the scorers.

Engineers Win
The 129th Engineers, second half School Troops league titlist were on the long end of a 43-33 chute on Monday. In the evening's most spirited contest, The 129th's supporters lent a collegiate air to the name of the team. The 129th's hardy impartial rooting—so impartial, in fact, that Referee would have to look forward to some of the more libelous comments emanating from the sidelines, and in the end of his celebrated "technical foul" on the fans, a practice not too heartily condoned in most basketball circles.

It didn't affect the eventual outcome of the game, the 129th rallying strongly in the final period to run its third period 25 edge up to the final ten-point margin. Hewitt Long, and Harnois spearheaded for the winners.

The third contest on Wednesday's bill was practically no contest as the Airborne entry maddened the 756th Tankers 70 to 15. The Tankers, a first half power in the School Troops League, lost their whole team via the discharge route, at the start of the year, and since then have been the league's leechy. The Airborne made no effort to run up the score. They just played average ball for 40 minutes, but were enough to win by 54 points. Lyle McCauley dropped in 18 and Dave Ward 15 to provide the winners.

Evening's Upset
By the time the last game had rolled around, most of the spectators had departed to stoke up the home fires, and by so doing, they missed the upset of the evening. The AGF Board No. 3 team, definitely the tourney dark horse, chalked up an easy 11 point win over the Infantry School Detachment, winners of the 37th Infantry School Troops Title, and second placers in the second half, 43-34.

(That pronounced tack), Juszek, Jensen, and Hunt spear, as they ran up a 22-11 halftime edge. The all-around accuracy and drive overshadowed the Detachment five completely. The ISD was totally impotent as far as shooting went, missing several easy layups on open shots and displaying a general inability to put 'em in.

Horlacher, ISD dependable who arrived late, was in the game at the start of the second half. His presence seemed to stabilize the Detachment attack, and the ISD's gradually cut the lead down until, in the opening minutes of the fourth period, they were trailing only 26-26.

The AGF Boardmen struck back like a hurricane. Everybody got their eyes back at the same time as they counted 15 points to the ISD's 8 in the remainder of the contest, to win going away.

Benning Ring Team To Bragg

A crack boxing team comprised of outstanding exponents of pugilistic art from the 25th Infantry Regiment and attached units, left Fort Benning Wednesday for Port Bragg, N. C. where a series of bouts with the 555th Paratrooper Battalion takes place on Saturday evening, March 8.

Undeafened to date with previous wins over the 555th which they have defeated on three separate occasions, the 25th has also drubbed Fort McClellan and Fort Jackson.

Thirteen boxers representing all classes from bantam to heavyweight will see action, and the squad will include Edward Williams, 220 pounds, who kayoed the 555th's 47 Seventh Army champion recently, and Billy Gray, 135 1/2 ETO lightweight titleholder, who instituted a neat shellacking over the Paratroopers' Jimmy Jones, 135, recently crowned Seventh Army lightweight champ.

The squad is under the supervision of Lt. Anthony S. Priola, 25th's boxing coach and Cpl. Leo Sweeney, assistant.

Officer candidates in Harmony Church spend much of their free time in small football games. Among some of their stars are Candidates R. B. Maslar, M. A. Martin, L. E. Hagood, T. J. Cairney and H. L. Hibbs.

Maslar played fullback for Connecticut Meriden High, made all-state and received a scholarship to Duke. Maslar rejected the offer and entered the Army. He was seen in action when Fort Benning's Doughboys turned back the Fort McClellan Riflemen, of which he was a member in the past football season.

Candidate M. A. Martin, who played football with Louisiana's Lafayette High school eleven, also turned down a college scholarship to enter the Army. Martin is a veteran of five years and plans to make a career of the Army.

Acting as officials and often playing with the candidates are tactical officers, Lt. Col. R. R. Mulvaney, William H. Dierolf and Emory A. Snider.

Doughboy Five Leaves For AAU Tourney Monday

Following the Doughboy-Airborne Regiment game, which will be the last chance for Doughboy followers to see the team in action on the post, the Doughboys will begin to pack up for the Denver trip, and their crack at the National AAU championship.

D-Day (Departure day) is set for next Monday. The team will leave from Lawson Field in an Army transport, and will probably arrive in Denver late the same day.

Although the tournament is not scheduled to begin until March 16, Coach Talles wants to have at least a week in Denver's rarified atmosphere before the tourney in order to get the players accustomed to the thinner air. Otherwise, the Doughs will probably find themselves gasping for breath about halfway through a game, making them easy prey for any team more accustomed to playing "mile high" basketball.

There is a possibility that Coach Talles will take along a couple of stars from other strong teams of this area, as well as his usual entourage, in order to provide a little top-flight reserve strength for the much stiffer competition the Doughs will encounter.

The Dough record, at this writing, is 30 wins in 37 starts, but two more games will be added to the total by the time they leave. One contest will be the Dough-Airborne game on Saturday, and was brought about by popular demand to see the Post's outstanding fives in action against each other.

All members of the team are in excellent condition after their week's rest, and after the week of practice sessions in Denver should be in the best possible shape to compete for the National honors.

Engineers Capture Top Cage Honors

With eight victories to its credit in eight league starts, the 1290th Engineer Combat Battalion basketball team finished out the second half of the School Troops play in first place, with the Infantry School Detachment five coming in second with a seven and one record.

The Infantry School Detachment copped first place in the first half, and the two teams will meet Wednesday next Monday, March 10, in a two-out-of-three playoff to decide the School Troops champion.

The 1290th won its eighth and final league game last Friday night in what was probably the most interesting and best-played contest of the league play this year.

Needed Single Win

Expecting no trouble, the Engineers came down to play the 1st Battalion of the 37th Infantry, which had a season record of three won and four lost. The 1290th needed a win to secure first place; a loss would deadlock them with the Infantry School Detachment.

When the 1st Battalion walked out on the floor, there were some new additions to its up-to-then impotent five, namely, Bill Miller and Claude Anderson, starters on the Fort Benning Doughboys. Also in the lineup were Mark Foss and Edmund Davis, Doughboy reserves. All of them during the off season are listed men in the 1st Battalion of the 37th Infantry.

Well, the 1290th immediately lodged a protest, claiming these men to be ineligible, and it was sustained by the referees. However, it was decided to play the game anyway.

Battle-Royal

Right from the start, the game assumed a battle-royal aspect, as the Engineers were out to show up the 37th and the Doughboys. The score see-sawed back and forth, and the 1290th held a 13-12 lead at the quarter and a 27-26 lead at the half.

For most of the third quarter the engineers continued to lead the 1st Battalion, but finally the strain began to tell, and Anderson and Miller began to hit from all over. At the end of the third quarter, the Doughboy-sparked five led 45-41. And in the final period, the 1290th was left far behind, as the final score registered 86-54 in favor of the 1st Battalion.

30 For Anderson

Anderson's total score showed thirty points and Miller's seven-teen, as between them they accounted for almost all of the 37th's total.

Captain Rennault, coach for the 1290th, was well satisfied though with the showing of his team. He said that the engineer players had nothing to be ashamed about the way they played.

The game, of course, was forfeited by the 1st Battalion, and this is the way the final standings looked:

Doughboy-Airborne Game

'Take Airborne, Give Three Points'—Harding
'Doughs Will Show They're Champs'—Muscowitz

By PFC. MURRAY HARDING
You, dear reader, are probably one of those people who, without being heard about it, are following the Doughboy-Airborne Regiment game, leaped back on his bed and said, "Ho-hum, another slaughter for the Doughboys. I wonder what's on the show," or words to that effect.

Take a word of advice from one who has seen a lot of both teams. Don't bet anything on the outcome, unless you get points, galore, because the Airborne Regiment doesn't feel quite that way about the game.

There was a lot of sentiment of a similar nature coursing around the post when the Troopers went up to Atlanta to compete in the AAU sectional. It was hard to find anybody who thought they would be up there more than one day, and there was more than one one who would have given a plugged kopeck for their chances of finishing in the first four.

"They lack height," said a numerous wisecracker, "and they haven't got the experience—or the reserves."

Well, they did lack height. Jack Kinchelo was their only real tall boy, standing 6'2" in his stockings. They didn't have any complete reserves once you got past Kinchelo, Ward, MacCaulley, Haberman, and Richards, and although they had played 27 games, you couldn't really say their opponents looked like National Invitational material.

But what happened in Atlanta? The Troopers rolled over all opposition, right up to the semifinals when they met the Georgia State champions, the Atlanta Sports Arena Rebels. The Sports Arena won, finding they were a tired bunch of ball players who they left the floor. That little lack of the height, the experience, and the reserves had extended them to the limit, and if it hadn't been for the AAU's four-out-and-out rule there might have been an all-Benning finale. Kinchelo, McCaulley, and Richards all had to leave on fouts, Kinchelo departing in the third period. The three boys who tested in 29 points between them before their departure, and all had been terrific on offense. Kinchelo had been a pain in the neck to the Rebels all evening with his rebound work, and both McCaulley and Ward had held their opponents' defensive activity to a minimum.

Even with them gone, the Rebels didn't have what one could term a powerhouse. Ward was pouring in buckets from over, and Haberman, though he only stands about 6'11", did some marvelous work under the board. Two good men can't hold off five in the semifinals. The score was 53-31, going into the last two minutes, when the Arena finally broke loose for eight quick points to ice up the game.

The Troopers opponent in the consolation was Fort Bragg, 7th Army champs. The barracks didn't have a chance. Ask anyone, they all gave you the same answer.

What happened probably still has Fort Bragg reeling. The Airborne five won 52-46, and Lyle McCaulley dropped the 21 points to overshadow the Fort Bragg star, Jerry Lowther, who was named to the all-tournament team.

In the light of the fact that, although the Doughs have won two games from Bragg, they have lost one, which in itself, doesn't prove a thing except that every team has off nights, your correspondent feels that he is justified in picking the Airborne five to pull an upset Saturday night, and drop the Doughboys for the count.

All that has to happen to fulfill that prediction is:

(a) The Doughboys have to experience an off night.

(b) The Airborne five has to play its usual game.

This department figures, justifiably we think, that the Doughs may very well not be winning hand in glove, because of their long layoff, and because they have all been playing with their unit teams in the interim, all of whom have different styles of play.

So, we'll take the Airborne and give three points.

By PFC. MILT MOSKOWITZ
Saturday night's Doughboy-Airborne game has become controversial only because the paratroopers put on such a spectacular display of fight and aggressiveness in the AAU tournament concluded in Atlanta last month. That is all to the credit of the Doughboys, and Benning is proud to have such a team representing it. However, we don't see how the paratroopers can take the measure of the Doughboys, who have proved themselves the best independent basketball team in the South.

The paratroopers would have a trouble with the Doughs anywhere, but on the Main Post court their task is infinitely greater. The Tailsmen are virtually unbeatable there. No team has been able to come near the Doughboys at home, the Atlanta Sports Arena being the closest, losing 33-31.

While the Airborne team did come in-third in the AAU tourney, it wouldn't be expected that the teams it beat in the earlier rounds weren't too good. The first really tough team it came across was the Sports Arena. Fort Bragg couldn't beat the paratroopers because it was unable to solve a simple jump defense. That won't stop the Doughs, who are expert zone-defenders.

In a preliminary to one of the Doughboys' home games this season, the Airborne regiment outfit played the Dough 'B' team, and was allowed to come off with a 20-point victory as the result of a last-minute basket. With Logan, Luther, Miller, Baker, and Anderson in there, it wouldn't have been a contest.

During the regular season the paratroopers also lost to Fort McClellan, a team that was child's play for the Doughs. They also dropped a 34-47 game to MacDill Field, a team the Doughboys defeated by ten points.

Admittedly, the paratroop five has improved, but not so much that it can knock off the Doughboy first stringers. McCaulley, Kinchelo, Ward, Haberman, and Richards are good, fighting players, but they don't have the class of the Benning five. Logan, and Luther will outbreak them on the post court; Anderson outshouts them under the boards.

Also, the Airborne reserves aren't the equal of those of the Doughboys. They have no one to match Bill Wirt, Bob Seibert, and Mack Foss.

Whatever the outcome of the game, the type of basketball played in the gym Saturday night will be the epitome. This is the last game the Doughboys will play before leaving for Denver and the National AAU tournament to be held there. This is a chance for post personnel to see the Southeastern champions in action. We think they'll show the Airborne team why they are champions.

'Flight Into Past' Series Will Resume Saturday Afternoon

The tenth in a series of broadcasts, "Flight Into the Past," tracing the development of American air power, will be broadcast by the official Army Air Forces Band over the Mutual Broadcasting System from 12:30 to 1 p. m. Saturday, March 8.

"Flight Into the Past" is a weekly series by theAAF Band, describing aeronautical advancement since the birth of military aviation in 1907, and each program salutes a specific year and its concurrent events.

The March 8 program will feature 1918, when the first World War ending and a catastrophic flu epidemic took 500,000 lives, far more than the 126,000 Americans who died in the war.

That was the year when daylight saving time was established. Armistice day was inaugurated between New York and Washington, making possible a four-hour delivery between those two cities.

James P. Murray, vice-president of Boeing Aircraft Company, was one of the pilots who flew on that first airmail route, and he will appear on the March 8 program to compare the interim growth of aviation with developments of the present day.

Remarks you never hear: "This barracks is in perfect order. Carry on, men."

And a bore is one who opens his mouth and puts his feet in it.

Graduation Time Nears For Class At Benning OCS

With graduation only five weeks away, AOCC No. 2 is assured of a busy time or the remainder of the course. A trip to the dispensary Monday for influenza inoculations and after four weeks of play-offs, the table tennis singles championship depends on the coming counter between Candidates Glover and Wertz.

Even as the course is nearing the finish, so are 12th Company's competitive tournaments approaching a climax. The volley-ball tournament has reached the semi-finals, and after four weeks of play-offs, the table tennis singles championship depends on the coming counter between Candidates Glover and Wertz.

To add to this increased activity, individual pictures for the class publication were taken this past week and the committee is in the midst of final preparations for the book. This spirit of activity extends even into the individuals of 12th Company who can be seen making their preparations at the local officers haberdasheries.

DOING ANOTHER GOOD DEED—Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop No. 27 and cub-pack joined forces Thursday afternoon to help the American Red Cross chapter on the post distribute a pamphlet depicting the work of national organization.

Indoctrination Group Organized For OCS

At the beginning of Army Officers' Candidate Class Number 2, Captain James H. Short, company commander, organized an entirely new group called the Indoctrination Committee with the mission of supplying the class with talks, movies, books and magazines of interest to the men.

The committee was elected on the basis of one man from each branch represented in the class. Candidate Edward M. Carp was elected chairman and the rest of the committee, which included candidates James W. Corbett, John J. Connolly, Oliver C. Caldwell, John J. Walsh, James Tuten Jr., James E. Miller, Ralph J. Swann, and Wieslaw V. Sowinski.

Universal Training Vital To Security, McLain Says

Unless universal military training soon becomes a reality in the United States, the nation's security will be seriously endangered, Lieut. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, of the legislative and liaison division, War Department Special Staff, warned a conference of National Guard public relations officers today at the Pentagon Building.

"Universal Military Training," General McLain said, "is intended to meet an urgent national necessity. World conditions and modern methods of warfare make delay in adopting such a program dangerous to the national security.

Sound Principles
"UMT is based on sound economic and democratic principles. It saves money as well as lives." General McLain said that the National Guard can provide a most effective soldier-civilian force, but warned that its ultimate success depends on the enactment of universal military training.

"Universal military training," he said, "should provide the National Guard with a great pool of potential recruits. Under this program, young men will receive basic military training which will help to make them better citizens, develop leadership in them, and at the same time provide essential military training.

Needs Civilians
General McLain said that the Regular Army can never be maintained at sufficient strength to win a war without the help of civilian-soldiers.

"The Regular Army," he said, "is the nucleus around which can be integrated all elements of a peacetime force and the foundation on which we build our national armies in wartime."

General McLain, who is from Oklahoma, is the only National Guard officer to have attained the rank of lieutenant general.

Leavenworth Class To See 9th AF Show

The second demonstration of Ninth Air Force Air Indroctrination course beginning at Lawson Field on March 24 will be presented for the benefit of 348 students of the Command and General Staff School, Leavenworth, Kansas, officials of advanced Ninth Air Force headquarters announced today.

The officer students will be flown to Lawson Field by C-82s on March 23 and begin the three-day air indoctrination course at 8 a.m. the following day.

Minor Revisions
With the exception of a few minor revisions in the training schedules they will participate in the same AIC training program which Ninth Air Force has prepared for 200 members of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., last month.

The first two days of the course will be devoted to attending reconnaissance, intelligence lectures, joint operations planning conferences, and viewing skills and static displays. The spectacular Ninth Air Force-Benning air-ground demonstration at Dekkar Strip will be viewed by the students on the third day of their tour. The following day they will attend infantry weapon demonstrations and static displays executed by the Infantry Center. Students will prepare to depart on March 28.

Generals to Be Here
Major Generals Edward R. Quebede, commanding general, Tactical Air Command, who originated the idea for the air indoctrination course, and Paul Williams, commanding general, Ninth Air Force, will be on hand to greet the students upon their arrival and probably remain at Lawson Field until the AIC course is completed on March 26.

Ninth Air Force will present the third and largest of its tactical air indoctrination courses to some 400 officers at Fort Benning Infantry Center beginning on March 21.

158 In AOCC No. 6 After 8 Weeks

After eight weeks of intensive training and difficult exams AOCC No. 6 last week completed its initial phase of the 24-week course with 158 of the original 200 men still active members.

Altogether 120 candidates qualified as expert with small arms weapons, including the M-1, Browning automatic and rocket launcher. Small arms fired target familiarization included the .43 caliber pistol, M-2 machine, M-3 sub-machine gun and the flame thrower.

An extensive course in map reading has also been given candidates of AOCC No. 6. They spent several days and nights in the field of map reading problems.

Army Will Release Last Draftees Soon

The remaining 100,000 draftees will be released from the service by the end of June, the Army has announced. Statewide draftees will be out by May 15.

By this move the War Department plans to put the Army on an all-volunteer basis by the start of the new fiscal year in July. The military's goal for this new year is a strength of 1,070,000 men.

Right now the Army has 1,051,000 enlisted men and 149,000 officers for a total of 1,200,000. Of the 825,000 men who are regular army, 507,000 have signed up for three years.

Sees Goal Reached
To reach its proposed strength, the Army will have to attract 30,000 volunteers per month, said Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Army man-power director.

"I really believe we can do it," General Paul declared. "Recruiting is just another job. It involves a lot of salesmanship and competition with the Navy and industry. But we have good salaries now and a lot of advantages to offer."

Benning Doughs Fly To Denver For AAU Meet

With General O'Daniel on hand to see them off, the Fort Benning Doughboys piled into a C-82 early Monday morning and took off for their seven-day trip to Denver, Colo., where the National AAU basketball tournament opens Sunday.

The pick of the country's top independent basketball teams are entered in the annual competition, with the Doughs representing the Southeastern section.

Making Trip
Among those making the Denver journey were: Cal Luther, Taylor Baker, Claude Anderson, Bill Miller, Bob Logan (that's the first five); and Bill Wert, Bob Seibert, Dave Gardner, Mark Foss, Walt Piebes, Larry McGlin (reserve); Ed Davis and Carl Robinson (managers); James Royal (trainer, manager, and general all-around man); Capt. Cedric Tollis (team coach); and Murray Harding (reporter).

The Doughboys will spend a week getting acclimated to the thin Rocky Mountain air and the court on which they will play in the tournament.

Enlisted men of Squadron F, 319th AAF Base Unit, have been awarded the Lawson Field "Outstanding Unit Plaque" for their accomplishments in military training during the months of January and February, base officials have announced.

Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander, made the award at a presentation ceremony which took place at Base headquarters last Saturday morning. Maj. Harry E. Rehner, squadron commander, received the plaque for his men. The plaque is a monthly base award and will be retained by Squadron F until April 1.

Many Factors Involved
In competing for the "Outstanding Unit Plaque" units are judged on military training accomplishments, military bearing, discipline, executions in marching, parade drills, inspection of personnel, formations and quarters, condition of clothing and equipment, attendance at lectures and participation in competitive sports.

No Problem for Navy
The remaining inductees still in the Army are spread out with 60,000 overseas and 200,000 with units in the United States. The Navy no longer has a "draft" problem, as it now only has 118 inductees on active service. These men will be discharged as soon as possible.

The Navy is seeking a peacetime force of 425,000 enlisted men and 46,000 officers, while the Marine Corps' goal is 37,500 enlisted men and officers.

It has been announced by the Department that Regular Army men who are slated for discharge before June 30 can be inducted if they are in the draft surplus category.

HOSPITAL EXEC—Maj. L. H. Estes, formerly hospital inspector, who has been named executive officer for Fort Benning's AA Regional hospital. Major Estes, who has 19 years' Army service, has been stationed at Fort Benning since September, 1946.

PROMOTIONS BANNED AFTER 23 GET BOOST

Twenty-three Fort Benning officers have received a boost in rank since February 20, it was revealed in a survey made today.

Further promotions were cancelled, however, with the Army's announcement last week that it had ordered the suspension of all temporary promotions except from the rank of second to first lieutenant. This surprise announcement was made by Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, War Department personnel director, at a meeting in which he said that the Army is thinking of

'Strong America For Peace' to Be Theme At Rites

Tentative plans are being made by Fort Benning officials for the observance of Army Week, April 6-12.

"A strong America is a peaceful America" has been selected as the theme for the year's observance of Army Week, the War Department announced yesterday. Traditionally observed on April 6 since it was first inaugurated under the sponsorship of the Military Order of The World's War, Army Day will be observed this year on April 7 since April 6 is Easter Sunday.

Sunrise Service
The customary Easter Sunrise Service will be held Sunday morning, April 6, at Fort Benning's Campbell King Horseshow Bowl. It is tentatively planned that at least two battalions of infantry, 30 medium tanks, two artillery batteries, a military police platoon and the 72nd AGF Band, all from Fort Benning, will participate in a mammoth Army Day parade in Columbus Monday, April 7, in cooperation with local ROTC and veterans organizations.

In no case, the War Department pointed out, will Army Day or Army Week be "celebrated." The purpose of the observance is "to honor America's soldiers living and dead, who did so much to make peace possible; to inform the nation of the new peacetime pattern of national security which is being developed; and of the Army's assignments both at home and abroad; and to explain what a well-trained, efficient Army of volunteers both in size and quality can do to discharge its designated duty."

Both the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Association last week assured Fort Benning officials of their full cooperation in the observance of Army Week.

Nine Nurses Promoted To Ranks Of Captain

Promotion of 9 Ft. Benning Army nurses from first lieutenant to captain has been announced today by Lt. Col. Alta Boringer, chief nurse at the Regional hospital.

The new captains are Sara C. Butts, Alta S. Kennedy, Mary Jane Macdon, Annie M. Miller, Gladys Moore, Geraldine Collins, Albert C. Schmid, Agnes A. Sheridan and Alice O. Swinson.

Promotions Missed
The Army's sudden ban on officer promotions caused the return to Fort Benning of 23 recommendations of first lieutenants to captain and captains to major.

These recommendations, it is missed getting in under the wire. Recent promotions, with the exception of Fort Benning of 23 recommendations, include the following: Captain to major—Wayne P. Bearliss, instructor at Herndon. (Continued on Page 8)

DILIGENCE REWARDED — Major Harvey E. Rehrer, commanding officer of Squadron F, 319th AAF Base Unit, and three of his top-ranking non-coms agree it pays to be a good soldier as they admire the Lawson Field "Outstanding Unit

ARMY TO DETERMINE WHERE KIN WISHES WAR VICTIMS INTERRED

Letters will be sent this week to more than 20,000 next of kin of American dead who now rest in 15 of the 200 temporary military cemeteries overseas as the first step in determining the final resting places of those who died outside the continental limits of the United States during World War II, the War Department announced today.

Forms on which next of kin will be asked to indicate where they wish final burial to be made will be enclosed in the letters, according to Maj.-Gen. T. B. Larkin, quartermaster general of the Army, chief of the American Graves Registration Service. Similar letters and forms will be sent over a period of 18 months to all next of kin of World War II dead whose remains have been recovered and positively identified.

Next of kin may choose to have the remains of World War II armed forces personnel who died overseas returned to the United States for burial in a private cemetery; returned to the United States for burial in a national cemetery; buried in a permanent United States military cemetery overseas; or buried in a private cemetery in a foreign country which is the homeland of the deceased or of the next of kin.

Second lieutenants to first lieutenants — John T. Dunphy, 37th Infantry; Melvin H. Neighbor, Airborne Section; Eugene Kelly, Airborne Regiment; and Lamar Holcomb, Airborne Regiment.

While the demotion lasted (two months), its main result was to reduce the number of generals. Only about 700 colonels and 400 lieutenant colonels were demoted.

The promotion of majors and lieutenant colonels has been suspended for some time because of the comparative surplus in top field grade ranks. Last February there was a ratio of one colonel per 155 enlisted men, while during the war the ratio was one to 755.

Former Officers May Retain Rank At End Of College Work

Benning Outfit Is Working Stork Overtime In '47

The "stork" is chalking up quite a bit of overtime work out at the third platoon of AOC No. 4, with five of the 11 regular men of the outfit having reported new additions to their family within the past two months.

Candidate Graham Logan is the "oldest" father, his being a "New Year's baby," Candidate Richard McCliffert 15 days later and Candidate Clifford Gunn stepped into the limelight March 8.

Friday, February 28, the unit received a telegram from Malcolm Martin with information that he was the father of an eight-pound, one-ounce boy.

From all appearances a cigar manufacturers' convention was in progress last week when Candidate Roberts announced the birth of a seven-and-one-half-pound boy.

To date all the new arrivals have been boys.

Former World War II officers who will receive college degrees before July 15 will be given an opportunity to apply for Regular Army commission, the War Department announced today.

The program to integrate officers who left the service in order to complete their educations is separate from the Second Regular Army integration program, which brought nearly 1,000 officers into the regular army in late January and which will integrate an undetermined number late this spring.

Applications for appointment in the Army Air Forces will be open to all commissioned Air Corps veterans who will graduate before July 15. Veterans who were previously commissioned in Judge Advocate General, Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Veterinary Corps or Chaplains Corps and who are now taking graduate work at university and will complete such work prior to July 15 may apply in the ground army and technical and administrative services, other than mentioned above, applications will be received from those former officers who will be less than 28 years old on July 15 and who were originally commissioned after July 15, 1944.

Appointment of persons applying under this program will be made only after all possible vacancies have been filled by suitable applicants under the current integration program.

Kirk Advocates New Service Corps

The advantages of establishing a Medical Corps in the Medical Department of the Army were stressed today in a statement by Major-General Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General of the Army.

The skills of highly trained individuals serving in the Medical Department can be more effectively and economically utilized by grouping them in one Corps, according to General Kirk. Centralized procurement and assignment and better supervision and training will be possible on a more efficient basis under the proposed plan for a Medical Service Corps.

The proposed Corps will be composed of pharmacists, sanitary engineers, optometrists, psychologists, bacteriologists, business administrators and similar skilled personnel, all of whom have served with the Medical Department.

Impressive 6-Month Record Made By All-Weather Fliers

The Army Air Forces All-Weather Airline, familiarly known to pilots as the "Green Ticket Run" has completed its first six months of operations with a better than 98 per cent record of flights completed during some of the year's worst flying weather.

Douglas C-54 Skymasters of the All-Weather Flying Center, a division of A Materiel command, have been flying a five-day-a-week schedule from their home base at Dekker Strip, Army Air Base at Wilmington, Ohio, to Andrews Field, Maryland, and return. To date, the All-Weather Airline has completed 125 round-trip flights and more than 20 per cent of them were flown during severe instrument conditions. The tests are continuing.

Captain Joseph W. Lewandoski, military personnel officer at Lawson Field and a recent graduate of the personnel management instructors course at Keesler Field, Miss., has been placed in charge of the five-week basic personnel management school which was opened at Lawson Field last week.

The course is being conducted in a series of 10 two-hour conferences and is in accordance with the Army Air Forces program to indoctrinate all officers thoroughly in the basic principles of personnel management.

Three separate groups are attending the school at present. Groups one and two consist of officers from the 319th AAF Base Unit and the 75th Troop Carrier Squadron respectively. Group three includes top three graders from all sections of the field. Eventually all non-commissioned officers and civilians in direct supervisory capacity will attend the school according to the AAF personnel management program.

28 Work Days Lost Through Accidents In Two-Month Span

Seven civilian employes on the post received injuries serious enough to keep them away from work for one day or more during January and February. The total number of days lost was 28.

The Post Engineer's office accounted for five of the seven injured and 26 of the 28 days lost. The Transportation and the Quartermaster's office each had one employe injured and one day's work missed.

"Investigation of these accidents indicates that each could have been prevented," reported Colonel John C. Blizard, chief of staff. "Each occurred as the result of the failure of some person to accept and carry out his share of the responsibility for accident prevention. Mechanical safeguards prevent some accidents, but most are preventable by personal care."

I sneezed a sneeze into the air it fell to earth I knew not where. But hard and froze were the looks of those in whose vicinity I sneeze.

Benning Gives Red Cross $4,388

In response to the current Red Cross drive, Fort Benning personnel have given $4,388.31, it was announced today in connection with the campaign which will close March 31.

The first civilian sub-section on the post to report 100 per cent participation was the armament shop of the post ordnance section. March 4 Ray Miller, foreman and Red Cross fund drive representative, was able to report that his section had gone over the top with contributions amounting to more than $1.00 per person. Giving impetus to the drive, a 15-minute movie titled "Facing the Future" is being shown to various units all over the post. At the same time, and under the direction of Mrs. Irvin E. Scudder, ladies of Fort Benning are carrying on their part in this work by receiving contributions at various key points on the Post.

Pointing to the Chinese characters on his laundry ticket, a customer asked the laundryman: "Is this my name?" Chinaman: "No name. Description. Means I'll ol' man, closed-eyed, no teeth."

Small-Bore Rifle Team Spots Vacant As Competition Opens

With a final objective of garnering a top-notch TIC small-bore rifle team, the inter-company competitive firing matches will commence April 3 when the Infantry School Detachment meets AGF Board No. 3 on one of the Benning ranges. School troops and attached units have been notified that the matches will be completed by April 15. Inter-company matches of other units will be completed by March 31.

Large unit gallery rifle matches will find the following teams vying for honors: the Airborne Regiment, STR, 3440 ASU, School Troops and the 25th Infantry. Each team will be comprised of ten men from the same unit.

Ten rounds will be fired by each man from the standing and prone positions. All matches will be fired under NRA rules, but using the Army standing position instead of the NRA standing position.

Time: That's the stuff between pay days. It was announced that unit commanders will be responsible for scoring, safety and discipline. Units will fire 500 rounds of caliber .22 ammunition for each match in which two of its teams compete and 250 rounds for each match in which only one of the teams compete.

AAF Band Set For Special Broadcast

The eleventh in a series of broadcasts, "Flight Into The Past," a musical program of the official Army Air Forces Band, tracing the development of American Air Power in 1919 and the contemporary events of the year, will be heard over the Mutual Broadcasting System network from 12:30 to 1:00 EST, on Saturday March 15. The show will describe the first peacetime year following World War I, when the 18th (Prohibition) Amendment was ratified. The American Legion was organized in Paris and held its first meeting in St. Louis. Women's skirts lengthened to within six inches of the ground. Two great Americans died: Andrew Carnegie and Theodore Roosevelt.

In military aviation, the Army and Navy were brought closer together on air problems by the creation of an Aeronautical Board to study and take action on matters of common interest to both branches of service. The Army won a balloon race between the two services at St. Louis.

Three Men Placed On TD At Lowry Field

Three enlisted men from Squadron F, 319th AAF Base Unit at Lawson Field have been placed on temporary duty at Lowry Field, Colorado, where they will attend a two-weeks clerk-typist course, base officials announced today.

Enrolled in the AAF school were: Sgt. Charles B. Mason, Nashville, Pfc. Johnnie S. Harris, Soperton, and Pfc. Fred D. Williams, Atlanta. Upon completion of the course the men will return to Lawson Field.

"Here is the schedule for Washington's birthday celebration, Mr. Mayor. First the Ladies Aid will have a display, then a children's choir, dinner, and a fire drill, says the firing squad."

By O/C DONALD MORE
Some of the men now in training as future officers are hard hats to keep down. Such a man is Candidate Ellis Schmidt, AOCC No. 4, who has been in the Army nine years and intends to make it his career.

Schmidt saw two months of combat with the 131st Field Artillery in Java before he was captured. He was with the famous Texas "Lost Battalion" and was reported missing in action for 38 months. All during this time he was building railroads in Burma for the Japs.

He was liberated in 1945 in Siam. Upon his return to the states he was assigned to the First Field Artillery Observation Battalion at Fort Sill, Okla. Last fall M-Sgt. Schmidt removed his stripes and assumed the role of an officer candidate. He is now looking forward to May 20 when the class gets its bars.

I have a nice two-bedroom home about five years old in Briarwood, good condition, central heating system, asbestos roof. Electric stove and refrigerator included. The loan costs is approximately $250.00, which is less than the costs of the stove and refrigerator. The monthly payments will be approximately $50.00 per month which is less than rent. 'Cosmic Ray Flying Laboratory' To Aid Research In Brazil

An Army Air Forces Boeing B-29 Superfortress "cosmic ray flying laboratory" will reinforce the National Geographic Society-AAP eclipse expedition in Brazil, continuing the study which began last summer at the mysterious radiations. At that time, the AAP cooperated with National Geographic and the Bartol Research Foundation of Philadelphia in a series of flights from the Canadian border as far south as Peru.

The same bomber used in the previous flights probably will be sent to Brazil for the new tests. The B-29 will fly out of Galeo airport, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, as the airstrip at the expedition's campsite at Bocayruva, 400 miles from the interior, cannot be used by heavy aircraft.

The Superfortress will arrive at Rio about May 1 and resume cosmic ray studies will be resumed throughout May. The eclipse of the sun will be on the morning of May 20. During the actual eclipse the B-29 will fly over the Bocayruva area obtaining cosmic measurements. This is the first time scientists have had an opportunity of making cosmic ray studies during an eclipse at the altitude that can be attained by a B-29.

3rd AOCC Platoon Boasts Of Twins

The Third Platoon, AOCC No. 7, boasts twins, Candidates Bill and Bob Coppock, who have been together continually since they joined the Army in 1943.

The two brothers took combat engineering basic training at Camp Abbott, Oregon. Later they attended together electrical school and ambitious engineer training. New Guinea was their first stop overseas. Then came the Philippine Campaign and Luzon, Japan, was the last overseas stop for the twins still in Japan, they both realized. Several years later they applied for OCS, and their jobs of high tension linemen were abandoned for a tour of duty at Fort Benning. Altogether the twins spent 32 months overseas.

School Troops Have Varied A&R Program

Everything From Boxing To Photography Included

The old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" is the watchword of School Troops Athletic and Recreation Office, under the leadership of Lt. Balford H. Gray, Jr. The spring program includes everything from boxing to photography.

Lt. Gray, who hails from Stan- ton, Virginia, says that being A&R officer is just the job for him. He was active in football which he played at Welch High School, Welch, West Virginia.

School Troops' A&R non-com is Corporal Harold B. Grinols, of Detroit, Michigan. Grinols set a high precedent while attending Highland Park High School, by winning letters in football, baseball and basketball. He also won the Stanberry Cup, awarded annually to the most outstanding scholar and athlete in the graduating class. Grinols was picked for the All-City baseball team three years straight and the All-City basketball team for two years. He also made All-State in baseball.

Just prior to entering the Service Grinols completed 28 games with the Washington Senators. Last year at Fort Benning he played for the School Troops Vets and the Fort Benning All-Stars. Grinols is also rated as one of the best golfers on the post.

The A&R supply and maintenance clerk is Pfc. Robert Buss, who is also active in sports. Buss has played a lot of basketball and tennis. He ran the mile for his high school in Wisconsin. Early last year he was a member of the post boxing team.

The Army's first systematic study to determine what physiological factors produced the maximum of esprit de corps in a unit was undertaken at Camp Greenleaf in 1918. As a result of the findings of the committee appointed to make this study, a Special Services Branch was set up. The A&R is one of the subdivisions of Special Services. From 1918 on the A&R has endeavored to make plans and studies to further the services they offer.

The post boxing team, composed for the most part of School Troopers, has had an unusually successful season. Plans are now being made to present one card each week, with a classification tournament to show progress.

When it comes to golf, ten sections of clubs are available and may be obtained by any member of School Troops who cares to sign them out for a 24-hour period.

Plans have just been completed for a softball league on an inter-battalion level, followed by an inter-mural, round-robin league on a battalion level.

The School Troops A&R office also has on hand equipment for fishing. Be it fly rod or reel and reel, they have it.

A six-weeks course in the art of horsemanship riding is being offered to the first 48 applicants. Twenty-four will attend riding classes on Wednesday afternoons, while the other 24 will attend on Saturday afternoons.

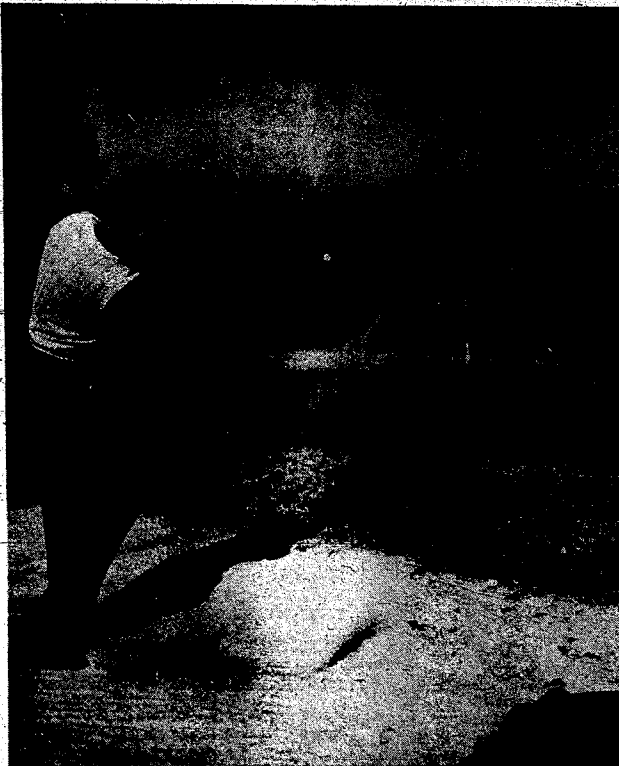

Future A&R plans for School Troopers call for an art class. With more and more ideas being put into active practice, the School Troops A&R office challenges any other A&R office on the post to offer a program with more variety than theirs.

Officers Using Wrong Address

Many officers on duty with The Infantry Center Headquarters and the Academic Department of The Infantry School have been using an incorrect return address on their mail, it has been announced by the Chief of Staff's office.

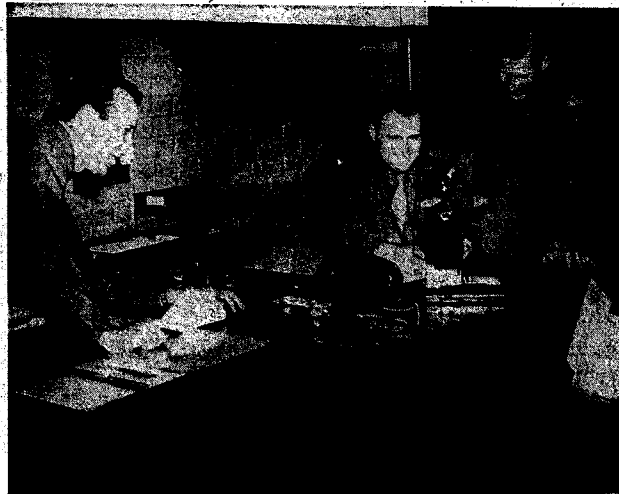

A considerable amount of these officers' mail is being received at Headquarters. The Infantry School, the Infantry School Detachment, and Company "H", Airborne Regiment.

In the interest of better mail service, all officers on duty at Headquarters and the Academic Department are advised to have their mail sent to the section in which they are working, except in the case of these officers maintaining a post office box.

Course at the post. Grinols shoots in the 70's. Notice the golf ball caught in flight by the photographer. The ball looks as though it might be heading for the pin.

EYEWITNESS ACCOUNT

Lessons Of Arctic War Taught In Operation Frigid

(Editor's Note: The following life at Task Force "Frigid" was written for The Bayonet by a Fort Benning officer who prefers to remain anonymous.)

In early February General Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, visited Task Force "Frigid" which is now carrying out tests of equipment at Ladd Field, Fairbanks, Alaska. He was accompanied by Major General Homer, president of AGF Board No. 4; Brigadier General Hickey, chief of Development section; Brigadier General Smyth, deputy assistant chief of staff; G-3, Headquarters Army Ground Forces; and by Colonel Kurtz, Colonel Read and Brigadier General Jenkins, presidents of AGF Board Nos. 1 and 3, respectively.

Upon arrival at Task Force "Frigid," General Devers found the camp experienced the coldest weather ever recorded in that part of Alaska. Daily temperatures stood at 55 and 56 degrees below zero, having risen to that figure from a low of 62 degrees below zero recorded only a day or two before. The temperature had been under 50 degrees below zero for 28 straight days until the night before departure of General Devers' party. Obviously, such extreme temperatures were admirably suited to the mission of the task force and gave General Devers and his party an opportunity to observe first hand the effect of extreme cold upon the efficiency of our troops who were equipped with Arctic clothing of the latest design. It also gave them an opportunity to observe the operational efficiency of many items of equipment, especially those employed in the combat zone under conditions found in the Arctic in winter.

Watches Firing
The entire party witnessed firing with many of our weapons, operation of several of our standard tanks and our motor equipment in deep snow, and demonstrations designed to show the effect of such low temperatures upon many items of equipment both standard and experimental. And, of course, the party learned by actual experience the efficiency of our various items of Arctic clothing. The party was in the field throughout their visit. The party and troops of the task force spent as much of their time as a time in the extreme cold, clad in the standard items of Arctic clothing. The party and troops of the Army and suffered no ill effects; in fact, without getting as cold as many a duck hunter has in this neighborhood braving the damp air around King's pond on a chill November morning.

Highlight of the party's visit was a field exercise put on by a company of parachute infantry attached to the task force over snow that ranged from 40 to 48 inches deep and in weather that stood at 55 below zero. The exercise consisted of a daylight attack by the company, two platoons abreast, supported by the usual heavy weapons of the battalion. Artillery and air support was not provided for the reason that such a display, would have distracted the attention of the spectators and denied the demonstration the purpose for which it was designed.

Opens Attack
The company was deployed initially in a wooded area about 700 yards from its objective, a wooded island in a river which was now frozen to a depth of about four feet and capped by 40 to 48 inches of snow. The company had standard infantry equipment and was clothed in standard Arctic clothing, including snow-shoes. The company opened its attack with a smoke screen to protect it from a dangerous flank, accompanied by a terrific blast of mortar, rifle grenade and machine gun fire that was reminiscent of the unpleasant days of World War Two.

At the appointed hour the riflemen moved to the attack in the accepted manner and opened their fire fight at the appropriate range. The attack was pressed with vigor — but it might be said here that a man on snow-shoes in four feet of snow neither gets up, runs, nor "hits the dirt" like the man who is fighting his way across a German cabbage patch. And when he does "hit the dirt" after a "run" he certainly does not automatically fall into a suitable firing position and start immediately to "deal" em. As a matter of fact when he "hits the dirt" in four feet of snow he is just as apt to disappear completely as not, burrow himself to a healthier spot and suddenly come up shooting from a flurry of snow in a wholly unexpected place.

Dig Tunnels
Fighting in deep snow certainly has its advantages, for if it gets too "hot" for you, you can dig yourself completely out of sight in slightly less than nothing flat, and then tunnel to a cooler spot.

Both assault platoons employed fire and movement methods, using orthodox concentration and small group movements under cover of local bases of fire as well as the better-than-usual support provided by the mortar and machine gun. It was a good exercise to watch, professionally and otherwise. The temperature had been under assault fire and the bayonet as they closed on the objective — elapsed time from the opening smoke screen: About one and one-half hours.

In analyzing this exercise and other operations five things of particular interest appear to stand out:

1. Infantry ammunition functions as well in the Arctic as at Fort Benning.
 2. Infantry weapons, properly cleaned and oiled, work as well in the Arctic as at Fort Benning.
 3. Standard Arctic clothing now issued affords protection against the extreme cold encountered this year.
 4. The American soldier, properly clothed, trained and led can withstand the extreme cold of the Arctic and will give an excellent account of himself under Arctic conditions.
 5. Basic infantry doctrines on tactics, technique and care, cleaning and maintenance of infantry weapons, taught at The Infantry School and found sound in the Pacific, North Africa, Italy and Alps, the jungles and the plains of Western Europe are also applicable in the Arctic.
- These and many other lessons of value are being learned at "Frigid" as well as at "Williwaw" (Adak Island) and at "Frost" (Camp McCoy, Wisconsin), the other two task forces.

Sergeant Retires After 74 Years

Having completed ten enlistments and over 24 years service in various branches of the Armed Forces, Master Sergeant Benjamin F. Brawner, chief clerk in supply, retired from his duty at Lawson Field last week.

Originally from Birmingham, Ala., he was not assigned to Army posts and air bases throughout the United States, Philippines and Panama Canal Zone since he entered service at Columbus Barracks, Ohio (now Ft. Hayes) in 1874.

Retiring on his last pay-line at Lawson last Friday, the soft-spoken veteran of two World Wars remarked that he did not regret one day of his long service career.

"If it wasn't for my age I'd probably stay in service longer," he said, "but I think its time for me to buy that little farm in Florida and settle down."

Brawner spent his first Army hitch overseas in the Philippines with the 13th Infantry Regiment. He was stationed at Fort Benning during 1926-27 and the 1st Chemical Regiment, and served with the Coast Artillery in Panama from 1927 until 1932. He transferred to the Army Air Force in 1934 and served his third tour of duty at Lawson Field, Panama, from 1937 to 1940.

Sgt. Brawner came to Lawson Field in February 1946 from Dale Mabry Field, Fla., and served as NCO in charge of base quartermaster and engineer supplies until his discharge.

Airborne Battalion Wears Hoop Crown

Post basketball supremacy was settled last Thursday night, when the 4th Battalion of the Airborne Regiment came from behind to nip the 37th Infantry's 1st Battalion, 34-32, in a game that had the spectators in the main post yim sitting on the edge of their seats until the final whistle had blown.

The trooper five had to overcome a ten-point halftime deficit to win, and it was mainly through the efforts of Scooter Baker, diminutive Doughboy star that they did. Scooter and Cal Luther, another Doughboy, were listed among the Airborne reserves through most of the tournament, and Coach Carney planned to use them only at crucial moments.

Anderson Runs Wild
It was crucial enough after only one quarter of the game had been played, since the Airborne five couldn't click and didn't have anyone who could hold the 37th's Claude Anderson in check, as the Doughboys ace busied himself out-dribbling Lyle McCauley and pouring in fifteen points in the first half alone. At the half the 37th's 27-16 lead looked imposing. And evidently Anderson thought it would prove enough also, as he refused to shoot as much as he had in the first twenty minutes, preferring to hang on the ball.

He also had to contend with the defensive ability of Luther, who was signed to guard Andy after McCauley had accumulated four personal fouls in the first half trying to stymie the 1st Battalion's big gun. Cal also put a little too much and/or into his playing, and was forced to retire at the end of the third quarter with four personals.

Dave Ward then took over the thankless job of guarding Andy and turned in a fine performance the rest of the way.

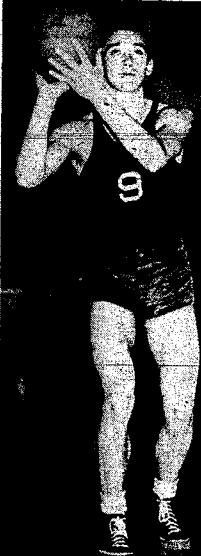

Different Team
With Baker and Luther in there, however, the paratroopers were a different team. From the time he entered the game, although he scored but two points, Baker was the offensive spark-off. All over the floor, on offense and defense, he was in the 37th's hair.

Following Scooter's pattern, the Airborne team gradually overhauled the 1st Battalion, and with about two minutes left in the game, and with the 37th still on top, 32-30, Baker charged around his guard, drove in under the basket and passed off to Jack Kinchloe, who was standing ten feet from the bucket. "Kins" dropped in a one-hander and the score was knotted.

The 37th took the ball out, but the paratroopers quickly intercepted a pass and started their last sortie. Dave Ward found himself free with about thirty seconds to go, and sunk the tourney-winning basket.

Lyle McCauley, Airborne captain, was high scorer for the troopers with eleven points, followed by Jack Kinchloe with seven. Cal Luther contributed six important markers, and Ward tallied four, including the all-important last two.

As usual, the 37th was led by Claude Anderson, who accounted for sixteen points, half of the 1st Battalion's total. Jack Kinchloe did a better defensive job on HIS FAVORITE SHOT—Bob Logan, starting Doughboy forward, never does miss on this one-hander from the side. "Log," (that's a long O and hard G) as he is called by his fellow-Doughs, is an Illinois boy, listed as a second-stringer at Lehigh as a second-stringer at Lehigh, who fought his way to a starting position with his fine play.

Doughboy center Bill Miller than anyone has been able to do all year, holding him to five points, not one of which was scored from the field.

A & R ANNOUNCES PROGRAM

Baseball, Track, Boxing Highlight Spring Sports

One week from tomorrow spring begins, and the athletic office is already busy lining up outfits on the post to play baseball. The post season is expected to begin April 2.

There will be no Doughboy nine this year until July 15, when the post league finishes up its schedule. Then the best players from each team will be picked to form the Doughboys. Any unit on the post of battalion level, is invited by Captain William Fannin of the athletic office to submit an entry in the baseball league by March 2. Rosters of the eligible players are due March 31.

As many games as is possible will be scheduled at Gowdy Field on the main post, with the rest to be played at the Airborne and Harmony Church diamonds. It has not been decided yet when the baseball season will begin, but will be determined largely by weather conditions. Last year the lights went out at Gowdy Field April 15.

Track Meet in May

Another spring sport soon to be in the limelight is track, with the Seventh Army track meet to be held here at Benning in May.

Doughboy Stadium is being worked on every day now to get it in best condition. The circular track is being expanded, pits are being prepared for broad jumping, and the ground being cleared for the pole vault and high jump event.

However, of much more importance probably is the rounding up of track men and getting them into condition to represent the post in the meet. The athletic office is planning to hold a post track meet in late April to see what participants are available. There will be no inter-unit competition; it will just be a pre-tournament test to uncover future Benning G Kid Dodds.

Anyone interested in competing is urged to contact his unit.

Dick Heidtman Wins Heavyweight Crown

Dick Heidtman, second-string fullback for the Doughboys, went to Montgomery last Saturday and won the heavyweight wrestling championship in the Southeastern AAU tournament held there.

The 235-pound paratrooper, competing unattached, won two fights, finishing off his final opponent in one minute and 20 seconds of the first round, and won two 40 points.

Auburn won the meet with 40 points.

athletic officer, who will contact the post athletic office to draw shoes and arrange a time to work out.

More Are Wanted
Classification boxing, held for the first time in the main post gym last Friday night, was very successful. Captain Fannin reports, although more boxers are wanted for next Friday, March 21.

In classification fighting a boxer is placed in a certain class, running from one to five, according to his previous experience. The lowest grouping is class five. The fighter boxes in his own class, and every time he wins a bout he advances to the next class. If he loses, he remains in the same niche and continues to fight in that class.

For every fighter there are prizes, for both winners and losers. Last Friday the winner received a travel kit, the loser toilet kits. And after the bouts are all over there are hamburgers and milk for everyone.

Doughboys Defeat Airborne, 62 to 43

The Doughboys resumed their winning ways last Saturday, and preserved their perfect home record with a resounding 62-to-43 victory over a game but outmanned Airborne Regiment team. The Doughboys, indeed, no doubt, by reflecting east on their ability by various post personnel, never left the issue in doubt.

Playing almost perfect mechanical ball in the first quarter, the Doughboys moved slowly into an initial period 15-11 lead. Play was a little rough beneath the backboards, but no really hard feelings were displayed. That was to come later.

Sparked by Bill Wirt's seven points in the next ten minutes, the Doughboys continued to increase their margin until they had a 31-21 advantage over the Troopers at the half, in spite of the efforts of Lyle McCauley, Airborne marksman, who had personally accounted for 11 points.

Seizing Sprees

The Doughboys apparently decided in their half-time chat, that ten points wasn't sufficient, because, when play resumed, their manner was noticeably changed. Led by Cal Luther, who played one of the best games of his Doughboy career, the post team zipped in 8 points, 4 of them on lightning-like breaks, before the Troopers could break into their scoring column. McCauley and his mates slowed the advance up slightly, scoring 8 points themselves while Anderson was counting for the Doughs, but that was the last time they did. With Luther pacing the attack down the homestretch with 8 points, the Doughboys steadily widened the gap until time ran out.

Feeling ran a little high in the second half. The 17 personal fouls that were called didn't entirely cover the field. There was a real battle for every loose ball, and a lot of skilled elbow work in under-the-basket jams. Scooter Baker had to leave the game for some repair work late in the third period. He had a gouge close to his right eye, but was okay, once he was patched up. Al Richards of Airborne also appeared on the injured list with a black eye, but everybody calmed down shortly after the game ended.

Cal Luther and Lyle McCauley tied for scoring honors, each net-

Intense Sports Program Begun For OCS Stars

BY O/C STEPHEN D. SMOKE
With the first phase of officer training completed, Capt. Theodore B. Celmer's 16th Co. AOC 6 inaugurated an extensive sports program over the weekend with a pair of basketball games played at the 9th Street USO in Columbus. The scope of the athletic activity is to cover every man in the company through the organization of a softball and a volley ball league composed of teams from each of the four platoons. Already several softball games have been played as the teams and leagues organize to function as effective units. League play in both sports is scheduled to begin in the first week in April and continue through June.

First Cage Game
On Saturday evening AOC 6 took the floor in its first basketball game against a fast A. G. F. Board of 3-4 team, and after many minutes of brilliant play finally succumbed by a score of 42-28.

The AGF hoopers rang up a 16-2 lead in the first five minutes of the game by scoring with unusual accuracy on shots from past the foul line.

Switching to a man-to-man defense, the 16th Co. "Cyclones" literally blew up the dust during the next thirty minutes of play as it literally played the "Boogers" off the floor. The excellent floor play of Candidate Howe and the scoring of Collet and Tatum brought the halftime score to 22-14 in favor of AGF.

AOC 6 Rallies
Playing their best ball of the game during the third period, AOC 6 narrowed the gap to 27-14 points as the 4th quarter started.

Exhausted from the pace set in trying to overcome the early lead built up by the Board team, the "Cyclones" calmed down and AGF drove in with 5 goals in the last period for the margin of victory. Pleased with the "Cyclones" style of play, the USO athletic director asked AOC 6 to return Sunday afternoon to play the Wynnton Bulldogs.

Before a large crowd of GIs the "Cyclones" jumped off to an 8-1 lead in the first few minutes of play as Tatum, Howe, Fleming and Collet hit with successive goals. From that time until the middle of the fourth period the lead seesawed back and forth several times in a nip and tuck battle which had the fans on edge continuously. Again lacking the staying power of teams which have campaigned through an entire season, the "Cyclones" fell behind in the waning moments of the game to lose a tough ball game 38-30.

Tatum's shots from the pivot and Howe's dunk were superb for AOC 6, while Fleming and Haines, Bulldog stars, had a field day by scoring 24 points between them.

Sixth place in the National Match Course with a 22 caliber.
Seventh place in the Firestone Trophy match with the .38 caliber.
Eighth place in the National Match course with a .45 caliber.
Tenth place in the city of Tampa Trophy Match with the .38 caliber.

Squadron F Takes Opelika, 24-17

The Squadron F Bombers defeated the Opelika East Street High School last Friday night at the losing team's gym by the score of 24-17. The Bombers led by Eric Hovles, a recent arrival at Lawson Field, had a 2-point lead at the half time.

Very few points were scored in the last half as each team put up a tight defense but the Bombers managed to outscore the High School boys in the half by 3 points to put the game on ice. Eric Hovles was high man for the night with 10 points.

Lawson '5' Falls in Tourney Play

The Lawson Field Flyers were defeated by the Lockbourne AAF team in a Technical Air Command Basketball tournament game last week at Langley Field. The final score was 55-33.

The Flyers fought hard throughout the game but the score their opponents piled up was too large to overcome. High scoring man for the Flyers was Pvt. Paul Riley who racked up 18 points which was more than half the Flyers' total points. He was also high man in scoring for the game.

The winning team in the tournament will compete for the AAF championship in an AAF tournament.

Polo Semi-Finals Slated For Sunday

The semi-finals of the winter season polo tournament are scheduled to get under way next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with the Academic Freebooters tangling mallets with the 25th Infantry Regiment Blue Devils. The match will be played on French Field.

Winners of Sunday's match will play the School Troops Red Ramblers the following Sunday, weather permitting, in the championship match.

A pre-tournament round-robin match was held last Sunday in which the Red Ramblers whipped the Free Booters, who turned around and won over the Blue Devils, who in turn beat the Red Ramblers.

Silver goblets will be presented to members of the winning polo team in the championship match a week from Sunday.

Close Bouts Mark First Ring Series Of Post Classification

Eight individual battles royal took the spotlight Thursday night when the first series of the post classification boxing matches held forth at the main post gym. The fans were treated to some of the best non-professional bouts seen in a long while.

The post boxers were divided into five classifications ranging from the novice, or bare beginner, to the astute, or experienced leather pusher. The matchmakers took great care in matching the men and every round ended in a close, border-line decision.

The initial bout found two Class V writers, Oscar Lewis, 204th TC Trk Bn., pitted against Joseph Burns, Med. Det. Sec. 2, with Lewis edging out a close decision while in the next slug-fest, G. G. Wilson, 204th TC Trk Bn., deftly outpointed Frank Yanzutti, 328th Ord. Bn., with a machine-gun right.

Second Guessing

By PFC MILTON R. BISHOP

This writer and Murray Hardin predicted an official all-tournament team of seven players from the eight teams participating in the post-competition last week. The team was: Andrew Jack Kitchell, Dave Ward and Taylor Baker, of the Airborne's 4th Battalion; Paul Long and Ray Hewitt, of the 129th Engineers; Claude Andrews and Bill Miller of the 1st Battalion, 37th Infantry.

It was a tough baby to pick, and after a week's reflection we think there's only one man who was possibly slighted. That's Kyle McCauley, the Airborne captain, who was one of the tourney's high scorers. It was a long-up whether to include Long or McCauley, and we decided on Long because we didn't want to muddy these one unit and out of context statistics with the 129th's fighting team.

There may be some question as to whether Baker's statistics were picked ahead of McCauley, but we thought Sooter's play in the final decided the choice. He didn't score many points, but the 4th Battalion absolutely couldn't have without him. The little Ohioan is a slinky player, and he never pays to underrate him.

Personally, this writer doesn't ever expect to see a finer exhibition of basketball from the outfit on by Claude Andrews in the last game of the tournament.

There are no words to describe the spectacular play of Andy in his one-man attempt to stop the 4th Battalion from taking the post title. With Kitchell backing up Miller effectively, Anderson was left alone to bring in the 37th, and he almost did it. McCauley, a fine player in his own right, just couldn't keep up with Andy. Even Col. Luther, the Doughboys' an defensive man, was out several a few times by Claude's tricky dribbling.

We have nothing but pity for the seven winners. The great Anderson in a basketball game. And we don't even have that for the man who tries to subvert his position.

The post tournament did serve to bring out in greater relief Anderson's basketball ability. When he's playing with the Doughboys, Andy is generally a team star, and you don't notice how good he really is. But in the tournament where it was up to him to score all the points, he had the crowd thinking with his landless performance of basketball mastery.

Andy is AUS, and will be discharged as soon as the season is over. Next season, when he's playing ball at college (Illinois probably) you can say that you once saw that all-American Airborne play basketball. I know I will.

It's not polite to be spiritual, but we can't resist an "I told you so" after seeing the Doughboys take the Airborne team on camp last Saturday night, just as we predicted.

In their farewell appearance at Fort Benning, the Doughs were brilliant. Everyone on the team was feeling good about going to Denver, and that was reflected in their playing.

Cal Luther never looked better. Andy and Miller played their usual creditable game, and Bill Wirt, sixth man on the team, showed up Airborne's lack of good reserves.

Slimmed up with the hopeful anticipation that an upset was in the cards, a large pre-Airborne crowd looked into the gym to see the contest. They didn't see what they came for, but there could be no argument as to which was the better team, nor could there be any disparagement of the type of basketball played — it was top-notch.

One of the toughest and most thoughtful tasks in the sports world is to play with a losing team, and there were many discouraged basketball players on the good tournament. We'd like to take our hat off to one of these players, with whom we were very much impressed. He is Lloyd Horlacher of the Infantry School Detachment team, which lost out in the opening round and which lost its opening playoff game to the 129th Engineers Monday night.

Horlacher, we thought, played fine basketball in both games, particularly in Monday's. He was still over the court, interesting plays, and setting up scoring plays, most of which were muffed. He's a good, fighting player, Horlacher. Would that there'd be more of him!

Little Jimmy's father found him in the barn sinking his pet rabbit and saying: "Five and five? How much is five and five?"

"Fifteen, what are you doing," his father screamed.

"Why, Jimmy, well, I ain't a teacher, but you should be able to multiply, and five and five, you can't even add."

British Caste System Called Worse Than US

Here's a United Press story from Karachi, Scotland, that ought to quiet some critics who think the so-called "caste" system in the American Army is the worst imaginable.

Lieutenant John Thomas Wardle was a court-martialed March 7 for eating Christmas dinner with five enlisted men. The British officer was sentenced to forfeit three months' seniority in rank, be dismissed from his ship, and be severely reprimanded.

Lieutenant Wardle claimed that he and five enlisted men were the only ones aboard a motor minesweeper on Christmas Day, and it was therefore impractical to hold separate messes.

Lieutenant Wardle was selected with a reasonable over-look prior to his departure.

General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, said no replacement had been selected as deputy commander.

General Eaker is a veteran of nearly 30 years' military service, having been appointed a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve on August 15, 1917. Three months later he accepted appointment as a second lieutenant in the Regular Army Infantry.

Engineers Take Third In Meet

Third place in the post basketball tournament was taken by the 1290th Engineers, the only team in the top three not having the services of any Doughboys.

The engineers took third place when the AGF Board No. 3 five forfeited the Thursday night game for a previously-scheduled tilt in Columbus. A contest was arranged between the 1290th and the 501st Parachute Battalion, two teams that had met in the opening round again the engineers were victorious, this time, 49-21.

Ray Hewitt and Paul Long, both of whom made the all-tournament team, paced the 1290th with twelve and ten points, respectively.

The Combat Engineer Battalion failed to reach the finals when it met up with the 1st Battalion of

Because the Infantry School Detachment finished first in the opening half of the School Troops League and the 1290th Engineers copped first in the second half, a two-out-of-three playoff will begin Monday night to decide the champion.

In a sloppily-played game the Engineers defeated the 1290th, 37-33, in the opening game Monday night. It didn't look as if the 1290th would be too much trouble subduing the Detachment five in the playoffs for the School Troops flag.

The 37th Infantry a week from last Tuesday for the second time in five.

Doughs Too Much
Once more Anderson, Miller, and Foss—all Doughboys—were just too much for the less experienced engineers, who fought the inevitable outcome down to the wire.

With no one able to stop him, Anderson ran wild, pouring in twenty points in the first half. Foss scored twelve during this time, also giving the 37th a 43-33 lead at the half.

The 1290th outscored the First Battalion in the second half, but it was a fruitless effort, as the Doughboy-sparked quintet came off with 28-23 triumph.

Anderson finished up with twenty-six points, four less than he had scored in the previous 1290th game, Miller with eleven, six less than his total in the other contest with the Engineers, while Foss took second honors with sixteen.

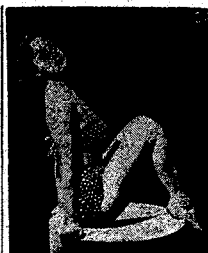

Long, with ten, and Joe Harmons, with thirteen, led the 1290th scorers.

Back by popular demand, the 1290th was upset Saturday night in the preliminary to the Doughboy-Airborne game. The 328th Ordinance Battalion pulled the trick, 43-40, in the final minutes of the game, overcoming a previous Engineer lead to ten points.

The main reason for the defeat was the Engineers' inability to settle down when the lead was threatened in the dying minutes. Led by Sam Sidebottom, the 328th avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the 1290th. The score in that contest was almost the same, being 44-41 in favor of the 1290th. When Colonel Ballard awarded the trophies to the three top teams in the post-tourney, Capt. Cedric Kelly, Doughboy coach and director of the post competition, had a special word of praise for the playing of the engineers in the tournament. He said that the bridge-building basketball players had come through in grand style playing against more experienced, Doughboy-laden teams.

Thousands To See Sunrise Service Here

Fort Benning will again this year commemorate the Resurrection of Christ at the customary Easter sunrise service April 8 in the post's Campbell Chain Horse show bowl.

Highlighting the event, which is expected to attract thousands of civilian guests from nearby communities, will be the formation of a human cross by approximately 4,000 troops in the center of the picturesque horseshow bowl. At the end of the bowl will be the traditional white-decked altar banked with Easter lilies, evergreens and an illuminated cross.

Plans call for the appearance of the 72nd Army Ground Force band to provide the musical background for the post chapel's junior and senior choirs. The two choirs will combine their talents in presenting "Oh, Morn of Beauty," by Sibelius, while the senior choir will present "Sunrise on Easter Morning by Olds." The band will accompany the senior choir with a trumpet trio from the post band and will conclude the musical portion of the program with their rendition of the Hallelujah Chorus by Handel.

It is hoped that Army dignitaries from Washington will be on hand to attend the services, Chaplain William C. Shure, post chaplain, said today. He stated that the services are scheduled to get underway at 8:30 a. m., exactly eight minutes after sunrise, and continue until 7:30 a. m.

The announcement made earlier in the week revealed that a local radio station would carry a broadcast of the annual service with the possibility of a national hook-up. The program is under the direction of Chaplain Shure.

Major General Arnold Visits Fort Benning

450 Enroll In Vocation School

Over 450 have enrolled in the second course of the Infantry Center's Vocational School, which started Monday, according to Captain Willard E. Chambers, post I&E officer.

At the same time Capt. Chambers said that 73 students this week received certificates of completion for courses taken during the last session of the Vocational School starting last January 5. Many additional certificates were mailed to individuals who completed courses but who have since left the post.

The school is operating this session under a new program calling for classes four nights each week for one month. The first school session operated for two nights a week over a two-month period.

The school is operating this session under a new program calling for classes four nights each week for one month. The first school session operated for two nights a week over a two-month period.

Capt. Chambers said that tentative plans call for the school to be moved to a more central location on the post in the near future.

Faculty Board Members Named

Infantry Center officials this week announced the organization of the faculty board for the Army Officer Candidate School as follows:

Major General John W. O'Daniel, Brigadier General Whitfield P. Shepard, Colonel Julian H. Gist, Lt. Col. William H. Schoefer, Lt. Col. John T. English, Lt. Col. Warren C. Chapman, Major William C. Beachler, Lt. George E. Pickell (recorder), CWO Thomas J. Moore (recorder) and CWO Buford J. Campbell (recorder).

Also announced was the membership of the faculty board of The Infantry School consisting of, in addition to Generals O'Daniel and Shepard, Colonel Roy E. Lindquist, Lt. Col. George M. Davison, Colonel Brookner W. Brady, Colonel Fay Ross, Colonel Douglas Stigg, Colonel Burton L. Luick, Colonel Bernard A. Byrne and Colonel Charles E. Johnson.

All Fort Benning military personnel who do not have a high school diploma will take the War Department's General Education Development (GED) Test within the next several weeks, Captain Willard E. Chambers, post I&E officer, announced today.

Examination blanks will be distributed by next Monday to unit I&E officers who will be responsible for giving the tests within their organization.

According to Capt. Chambers an individual who successfully passes the GED test is almost assured of receiving a high school diploma from his home town high school. Practically every high school in the United States will recognize this test, Capt. Chambers said.

Fort Benning to date tops all other military installations in the number of GED tests given. The post is one of only eight installations throughout the country authorized to stock the examinations.

Over 75 per cent of those who have taken the test at Fort Benning have succeeded in making a high grade or better. The complete test takes the average individual anywhere from eight to 10 hours to complete.

The post's "testing center" located in the old Airborne Area will continue to give the GED tests to anybody at any time, Capt. Chambers said. Operated by the Vocational School, the testing center is open from 8 a. m. until 9:30 p. m. four days a week and from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Wednesday. It is not open on Saturday.

Troops Honor Col. Endicott

Col. Francis C. Endicott, retired, one of the original instructors at the Infantry School when it was organized shortly after the first World War, was honored at a special review last Saturday morning by elements of School Troops.

On hand to pay tribute to the veteran soldier at School Troops headquarters were Army Ground Force band, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of The Infantry Center, and Col. Ben Harrell, commanding officer of the 37th Infantry. Colonel Endicott at one time commanded units of which both General O'Daniel and Colonel Harrell were members.

'No War With Russia', Maj. Eliot Asserts

"There will be no war with Russia," according to George Fielding Eliot, news analyst and former Army major, who completed a four whirlwind tour through military training projects in Fort Benning Monday afternoon.

The famous Army authority, whose syndicated column appears in more than 500 American dailies, said that he favors the universal military training project now underway at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He believes that through universal training America will remain the strong nation she was during the last war, and "thus maintain a balance of power." "The United States has a position to uphold, and this position must be upheld, and to retain our status as a world power." Asked to elaborate on his remark that there would be no war with Russia, Mr. Eliot declared emphatically that Russia is too

Sgt. Henry Attends AAF Radar School

T-Sgt. Patrick W. Henry, Lawson Field, has been placed on temporary duty at Boca Raton, Fla., to attend the AAF Radar School for 20 weeks, squadron officials have announced.

Henry is a former AAF captain and German prisoner of war. He has served as NCO steward at Lawson since he arrived at the base last October. Upon completion of his course he will rejoin his unit at Lawson Field.

Several changes and innovations in the program of the Air Indocorrection course to be presented to 338 members of the Command Staff college, beginning March 24, were announced today by Ninth Air Force officials at Advance Headquarters, Lawson field.

One of the highlights of the changes will be the participation of the 1st Battalion of the 504th Parachute Infantry Combat team reinforced with a battery of field artillery, all for the famed 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C. This will substantially increase the number of airborne troops jumping during the main aerial demonstration Wednesday, March 26.

Altogether a total of 579 paratroopers will make the mass jump.

Members of the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, of School I, will not participate in this show, it was revealed today.

Another change of the course will be the increase in the number of skits, a presentation enacted on theater stages designed to show the scope of large-scale joint air-ground planning for combat missions.

Operations officials of the Ninth said that the climax to the course, the main aerial demonstration.

AOC No. 1 Sets Graduation Day

Wednesday April 2 will be graduation day for 121 students of Army Officers Candidate Class No. 1, the first to graduate since the course were revised last fall to include a six-months training schedule.

The course got underway last September 9 with 192 members. The graduation at which the Army's new second lieutenants will receive their gold bars will be held in the open-air bowl at Harmony Church, weather permitting. In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held in Theater No. 1.

Last Friday marked the actual end of class work for the AOC No. 1 members who participated in the parade which Maj. General John W. O'Daniel was the reviewing officer.

Saturday evening members of the class gathered at the Cherokee Lodge in Columbus to celebrate the end of the class work.

Two AAF Veterans Reenlist At Lawson

Two AAF veterans, Russel C. Sanders and William D. Lawrence, have reenlisted with the AAF at Lawson Field, base recruiting officials announced Tuesday.

Both men were assigned to the 319th AAF Base Unit and will serve in the base aircraft maintenance section. Sanders received the grade of sergeant and Lawrence, a former flight officer, was enlisted as a technical sergeant.

During the war Sgt. Sanders, who has two former tours of duty at Lawson, served with the 14th Air Force in the CBI and Sgt. Lawrence served with the Fifth Air Force in the Pacific.

Microwave Radio Is Tested For Pentagon Communication

Microwave radio relay circuits are being tested by the Signal Corps for communications between the War Department offices in the Pentagon and Headquarters, Army Ground Forces, at Fort Monroe, Virginia, it was announced today by Brig. Gen. William O. Reeder, Acting Chief Signal Officer of the Army.

An above-the-ground structure topped by two large circular "dishes" recently erected on the Pentagon is the antenna system for the terminal apparatus installed in the message center at the Pentagon. The "dishes" are reflectors for the radio waves which emanate from small antennas at a frequency of nearly 5,000,000,000 cycles per second.

The station at the Pentagon sends its signals in a narrow beam to similar equipment located west of Alexandria. There the signals are relayed through another equipment and directed across the Potomac River to a station near Pomeroy, Maryland. Six relay stations in all are placed at selected locations along the route, with the other terminal on the grounds of historic Fort Monroe.

The equipment being used is an ultra-modern type developed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories during the war for the Signal Corps. It has facilities for eight telephone conversations simultaneously, or a maximum of ninety-six switching telephone circuits, or a combination of telephone and teletype circuits. Developed to military specifications, it can be dismantled, moved to another site miles away and placed in operation again in a matter of hours, in order to keep pace with the moves of major headquarters in highly mobile warfare. Early models of the equipment were used in Europe during the war.

Urgent business recalled him to New York Monday night after he had spoken before an all-officer audience at the Main Post theater, but he plans to visit other posts, including Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, at a later date. During his one-day tour of Fort Benning, Mr. Eliot witnessed bazooka firing, rocket launcher and flame thrower demonstrations. He viewed a simulated battle during which time troops were evacuated by medical units, and visited an Army Officer Candidate Class. He also saw other training activities.

At 4:30 p. m. Mr. Eliot discussed the Middle-Eastern question. He departed Fort Benning early Monday evening.

stration to be presented on Wednesday, March 26, would be increased to 83 minutes, representing an increase of 19 minutes over the air exercise presented on February 26.

A practical aerial demonstration was held on Saturday, March 15, to further perfect the second timing that involves the hundreds of aircraft in the exercise. An aerial simulation rehearsal will be held prior to the 221 for the Command and Staff College, which will be for aekis and lectures are also scheduled.

The announcement that the hard-hitting 84th Battalion would participate recalls a long and memorable history of that organization that started here at Fort Benning in May 1942 with the activation of that unit.

In October 1944 the 504th moved to Ft. Bragg, where it joined the 82nd Airborne Division and departed for the European theater in April 1945. Following a series of D-Days the Unit was selected for occupational duty in Germany and returned to this country in January 1946.

The Infantry School's part of the five-day demonstration will remain essentially the same.

Following the air show Wednesday afternoon Command and Staff students will witness numerous demonstrations by ground force troops. On the morning of March 27 they will observe an infantry firepower demonstration at Hook Range, which will be followed that afternoon by a battalion in defense exercise.

Both Thursday and Friday nights will be given over to a demonstration of night vision in which various means of night illumination will be displayed.

Friday morning, March 29, the students will inspect a display of ground force material. In the afternoon they will watch an attack of a fortified position.

The second air-ground demonstration course will end Saturday morning when the Infantry School puts on their infantry artillery and tank team in the attack.

Superbomber Lifts 139 Tons

The Army Air Forces six-engine superbomber, the Consolidated-Vultee XB-36 set an unofficial world's record for airplane weight lifting in a recent test flight, at Fort Worth, Texas, when it took off at a gross weight of 278,000 pounds. This is the heaviest load ever lifted from the earth by a plane.

Payload on the flight was distributed as follows: empty weight of the XB-36, 130,581 pounds; water ballast, 34,135 pounds; fuel, 79,380 pounds; oil, 6,645 pounds; testing equipment, 25,259 pounds; crew members and personal equipment, 2,000 pounds. Gross weight at landing five hours later was only 221,755 pounds because of fuel and oil consumption and dumping of 20,000 pounds of water ballast.

The record was the fifth that the XB-36 had made, having previously broken its own records four times. The early XB-36 flight testing program called for a gradual increase in take-off weights, and, starting with its first flight on August 8, 1946, when it went aloft weighing 200,000 pounds, the plane carried a heavier load on each flight.

The gradual increase in take-off weights is a safety measure adopted by the AAF for testing all large aircraft. Weight is increased by carrying more fuel, more ballast, or both.

Popular Company Commander To Leave Army Next Month

After five years in the Army, during which time he rose from a private to a captain, Vernon A. Frey, Commanding Officer of Company A, The Infantry School Detachment, is leaving the service.

On or about April 1, Captain Frey will give up his company to go on leave. Taking advantage of the terminal leave due him, he will be discharged in late April or early May.

Co in October

Captain Frey took over command of his present company last October 15, when it was part of the old Academic Regiment. On November 1 the Infantry School Detachment was formed, with Captain Frey's outfit making up A Company. It is located in the second quarter.

Since the establishment of the Detachment, in many miraculous changes have been wrought, with the 15D unit commander adding improvement after improvement. For instance, the men in Captain Frey's command now eat in a mess hall with individual tables in the same manner as a restaurant and have the facilities of a model day room available to them.

"We've tried to keep the men happy," says Captain Frey, who is leaving the Army to go into the real estate business in Washington, D. C., upon his discharge.

It was just two weeks ago Tuesday that Captain Frey observed his fifth anniversary in the Army. After enlisting in March, 1942, and taking basic training at Camp

CIVILIAN-BOUND—Captain Vernon A. Frey, commanding officer of A Company, Infantry School Detachment, who is leaving his company in April, and who will be discharged about May 1.

Wheeler, Ga., Captain (then Pvt.) Frey decided to go to Officer Candidate School.

From October to January, 1943, he tricked through the wids of Fort Benning's Harmony Church, finally graduating as a second lieutenant in the infantry branch.

One month later he was sent to the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington, where he was stationed for the rest of the year. A year after his graduation from OCS, Captain (then 1-L) Frey went overseas with the 18th Regiment of the 41st Infantry Division.

The division fought in the Pacific theatre till the end of the war, and deactivated on the last day of 1945. Captain Frey stayed with it to the end, serving as a platoon leader, company executive officer, company commander, and assistant chief of staff of G-4 in the 41st's division headquarters. Fighting in New Guinea, the Netherlands East Indies, and the Philippines, Captain Frey won a promotion to his present rank on the battlefield. After going to Japan with the occupation forces, he returned to the states in February, 1946.

After a period of service at Camp Robinson's IRTC, he reported to Fort Benning last July. Captain Frey wears the Bronze Star Medal, Victory Medal, and the American Theater, Philippine Liberation, Occupation, and Pacific Theater ribbons, the latter including three battle stars and Arrowhead. He also has the combat infantryman's badge.

AAF Contracts For New Version Of 'Shooting Star'

The Army Air Forces has awarded a contract to Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of Burbank, California, for the delivery of a new and improved version of the famous jet propelled fighter, the P-30 Shooting star.

Known as the P-30B, the new plane will feature greater drop-over and greater resistance to battle damage. Structural improvements include thicker skin and strengthened bulkheads to provide a sturdier base for the "Shooting Star" armament and use of stainless steel around the engine for greater fireproofing.

The new plane will also employ water injection in its P-33 turbo-jet engine, which will increase take-off and climb performance. The engine, designed by General Electric, is manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors.

Because earlier models of the P-30 which flew into rain storms emerged with paint chipped off, the P-30B will have a natural aluminum finish. Radio masts and antenna wires have been enclosed in the new P-30, since it was found that, at high speeds, protruding radio masts caused drag, decreasing the plane's top speed.

Due to the friction generated by the high speed of the P-30, a refrigeration system has been installed to insure comfortable cockpit temperatures at all times.

"I need something to cure hiccups," said a worried man to his druggist.

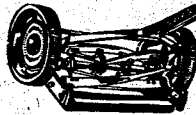

The druggist looked him in the eye, "said a worried man to his druggist."

The druggist looked him in the eye, hauled off and socked him.

"Do you still have the hiccups?"

"I never did have," said the man, woefully, "It's my wife that needs assistance."

Former Canadian Soldier Is Member AOCC No. 6

Among the members of AOCC No. 6 is a former Seaforth Highlander, Officer Candidate Russell Enoch, who is now seeking a commission in the U. S. Army.

In September, 1939, the Canadian Army recruiting sergeant at Vancouver, B. C., glanced up to see Enoch of Ventura, California, standing before him.

"Well, what do you want?" the Canadian sergeant asked. Enoch replied, "I would like to join the Canadian Army and go overseas." And that is the beginning of Enoch's military career.

Land At Brest
Enoch was selected by the Seaforth Highlanders and after four months training embarked for England in preparation for the invasion of the continent.

In May, 1940, the Seaforth Highlanders landed at Brest, where for three days they fought a rear-guard action and then departed rather much in a hurry for England by any available means of water transportation.

Upon his return to England Enoch was promoted to sergeant major and assigned to the Canadian Army School as an instructor in armored vehicles. He remained with the school until June 1944, 1944.

Tanker Ignited
While on duty in London later on Enoch was pulling his scheduled fire watch when German bombers dropped a stick of bombs, hitting the waterfront and igniting an oil tanker. While fighting the fire, Enoch's face was burned beyond recognition. Through the skill of British Army surgeons Enoch acquired a new face which he claims is better than the original.

One day while on perimeter duty a company runner came up and told Enoch he was being ordered back to Canada. For the first time since the beginning of the war Enoch hopped out of his foxhole and post haste made for the company headquarters and then to Canada.

After arriving in Canada Enoch was separated from the Canadian Army, and after a year of civilian life he enlisted in the U. S. Army as a private and was shipped to Fort Benning as a potential officer.

Ribbon Parachute Used To Drop 75mm. Howitzer

New and unusual methods of utilizing the ribbon parachute, introduced by the Germans during the war, were disclosed with the announcement that a 75-millimeter howitzer, weighing 2,940 pounds, was successfully lowered from a Fairchild C-82 Packet using a series of two ribbon parachutes developed by Army Air Forces engineers.

The new method of dropping heavy equipment from aircraft is a result of the research by engineers of Air Materiel Command at Wright Field, Ohio, as part of a program of cooperation between the Army Air Forces and the Army Ground Forces to make heavy equipment as mobile as possible for the resupply of troops in the field through air transportation.

No Damage Done
German experiments with the ribbon parachute during the war attempted to prove that the maximum altitude which the chute could be used was 150,000 feet. This was quickly disproved by Army Air Forces engineers.

The climax of their tests occurred on February 20th when a captured German V-2 rocket attained an altitude of over 360,000 feet and ejected instruments and cameras which were lowered to the ground safely by the new parachute system.

Today's test was the first time equipment of this weight was successfully lowered without damage.

In order to safely get the howitzer out of the Fairchild C-82 aircraft, Army Air Forces engineers devised a method of using a series of two parachutes.

The first chute, a small 14-foot ribbon parachute, pulls the heavy cargo through the rear doors of the giant airplane. Once clear of the fuselage, the second parachute, a 90-foot ribbon chute, opens to lower the howitzer safely to the ground.

The "extraction," or small chute, is released by hand from the rear of the airplane as it nears the dropping area. The small chute is attached to a reefing or control line, as well as the main drag lines to aid in the support of the cargo.

Pilot Chute Used
This parachute is permitted to drift after the airplane is deflated position by keeping the reefing line taut. When over the dropping zone, the reefing line, controlled by a mechanism within a fuselage, is released, allowing the extraction parachute to inflate and pull the cargo from the airplane.

Immediately after the howitzer leaves the airplane, a small pilot chute attached to the main parachute is released by a static line connected to the fuselage, opening the 90-foot chute from its protective sleeve. The small extracting parachute remains attached to the cargo, giving the additional support.

The new method limits the size of the cargo to be dropped only to the burst size of the rear doors of the C-82 aircraft.

According to the Wright Field engineers, the next test will be the lowering of both a jeep and a 105 millimeter cannon at the same time. In this test, to be held in the near future, the engineers plan to have both the jeep and

Super-Fortress Used By MIT In Ray Flights

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, recently completed a series of cosmic ray flights in a specially-equipped B-29 flying laboratory provided by the Army Air Forces.

In flights out of Bedford Army Air Base, Boston, Dr. Bruno Rossi and his staff were able to carry their equipment to heights up to 35,000 feet in order to study the "slow meson," a by-product of the original cosmic ray. The cosmic ray is described as having energy many thousands times that of the atomic bomb, but has never been harnessed.

Currently, the AAF has provided three modified B-29 flying laboratories and crews to the Office of Naval Research for its "Project Apollo." Sponsored by the Navy, the project combines the cooperative efforts of four organizations—the Army Air Forces, Naval Research Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University, and the U. S. Weather Bureau—in a study of upper atmosphere, including research on the cosmic ray.

These Superfortresses were modified to enable them to ascend to over 40,000 feet altitude.

the cannon leave the airplane within a three-second interval, enabling both to land on the ground within 100 yards of each other.

52 Guardsmen Will Train Here This Summer

A total of 52 National Guardsmen are slated to attend special courses at the Fort Benning Infantry School during the summer. It was announced today by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces.

Training of officers and enlisted men is one phase of the Army Ground Forces six-year training program for units and individuals of the National Guard.

Gen. Devers announced at the same time that 23 NG personnel will attend the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., 22 will attend the Command and Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, ten will attend the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky., and one each will attend the Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft branch of the Artillery School at Fort Biker, Tex., the Signal Corps School at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the Ground General School at Fort Riley, Kansas, the Physical Training School at Camp Lee, Va., and the Transportation School at Fort Eustis, Va.

Organisms Survive Ionosphere Trip

Living organisms have survived the penetration of the ionosphere in the war-head of a captured German V-2 rocket fired from White Sands, New Mexico, it was disclosed today, with the announcement that fruit flies, included in the containers which held instruments and cameras installed by the Army Air Forces, had been recovered alive and seemingly none the worse for their experiment. The containers were lowered successfully for the first time by ribbon parachutes.

The effect on the insects of the flight at supersonic speeds along with the exposure to the terrific heat and cosmic radiations of upper air regions, were part of experiments conducted by AAF technicians and civilian scientists cooperating with the AAF and the Army Ordnance Department. The latter agency has the responsibility for the firing of all the V-2 rockets at the White Sands Guided Missile Proving Ground, New Mexico.

Should Your Red Cross Carry On

This is the question you must ask yourself. Do you think the Red Cross is to carry on you must support it with both your money and your time. You are not the only one who can do this. You may happen to dislike something in your Red Cross; you may be annoyed at some old management policy or Red Cross staff member, you may not have received all of the service at some time to which you thought you were entitled; you may object to some of the Red Cross policy or procedure. Of course, you may, but if you do, you would be less than human, for one of the characteristics of a human being is that he doesn't find things to object to. Since it takes all sorts to make a world, and since there is always mediation to us through personalities, there will inevitably be differences of opinion, but don't be put off by trifles. Don't be small minded about big things. Don't cheat yourself and the world out of the one great organization that may be extra ordinarily valuable to bring peace to the war-torn world. Just because some little thing about the Red Cross might have irritated you.

Be broadminded, big minded enough to see through these things to the truth which animates and governs the Red Cross.

Every time you wonder about a paid worker for the Red Cross remember there are one hundred and ninety-nine volunteers also working for the same world. Every time you complain "The Red Cross was not there," remember the world is not there even with its thirty million men, women and children giving freedom of their time and their strength to cover every spot on the globe.

Every time you criticize a Red Cross worker, think of the heroes who lost their lives in service with the Red Cross during the most decade in war, flood, fire and other disasters. Think of the thought in mind than to serve humanity.

Bluntly, and from the shoulder, every time you criticize the Red Cross, think of the thirteen million people who are today, the two billion, three hundred and sixty-two million, nine hundred and fourteen thousand surplus dressings made, the forty-two million letters, telegrams sent and received, the thousands helped in disaster in the last year.

The Red Cross is now in the last ten days of its regular March yearly Fund Campaign. It needs less money than last year, yet it does need money to start on its work. Those working on the campaign have tried to see everyone. If they have funded you, you may make your donation direct to the Red Cross on the spot. If you would like to increase your donation, you may send it direct to the Red Cross at the Main Post.

Captains Corner

Spiritual Suffocation

By Chaplain John J. Jedlovsky

During the global conflict we expended tremendous amounts of money to subdue the forces that threatened our national unity and the security of the world. At the end of four years of struggle through self-sacrifice and death of our gallant soldiers the dawn of victory and peace appeared over the horizon of the world and brought joy and happiness to weary and troubled hearts. By sweat and blood of our combined national strength side by side with our allies we subdued and overpowered the aggressors.

What about our efforts towards a spiritual victory? Are we to stand idly by and allow the attractions of the world to close in on our spiritual destiny? In St. Luke the eleventh chapter we read that we are to stand firm against Him. We have a personal conflict in this world between the forces of evil and the forces of good. The forces of evil are honest and just, and we are expending towards a spiritual victory. And when we have made a thorough inventory of our past spiritual efforts and find that we are lacking in spiritual strength, let us proclaim a personal spiritual emergency as a vital necessity to the welfare of our spiritual life.

The attractions of the Atomic Age are upon us. The tempo of our modern mode of life is accelerated to a high pitch. It is easy to become lost in the whirlwind of our modern life. The momentary novelties of worldly comforts which come off the assembly line only to be replaced by the latest innovations. To what purpose... this continuous striving to keep pace with the modern tempo at the expense of our spiritual values? Are we to permit worldly attractions totally to cloud our vision of the need of spiritual armament and spiritual preparedness?

We cannot remain neutral and expect to win the spiritual battle of the half-hearted attempts and preparations to no preparations at all. The toil, sweat, pain, anguish and death of the past world-wide war will be our surest friend. The need of physical strength to achieve our purposes.

Let not worldly attractions absorb all our efforts! Let us fortify our souls with the word of the spirit so that as hardened veterans of the Lord's Army we can resist the forces of evil and receive at the end of our earthly struggle the crowns of glory which will be our Commander in Chief above: "well, done, soldier."

(This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans and their dependents. If you have a problem not discussed here, let your Army Counselor, Box 76, Annex, know.)

- CHANGES IN MILITARY JUSTICE — The March 1 issue of Army Times gives 24 items approved by Secretary of War Patterson and changes in military justice recommended by the American Bar Association Committee and the House Military Affairs Committee. Immediate drafting of legislation and regulations incorporating these changes have been ordered by the Secretary of War.
- TERMINAL LEAVE PAY — It was announced last week in Washington that a total of two dozen bills so far introduced will authorize cashing of terminal leave pay bonds by the Army and the Pay Sub-Committee of the House Armed Services Committee until reports have been received from the War, Navy and Treasury Departments and the Veterans Administration.
- COMPUTATION OF RETIRED PAY — Army Times of March 1 gives an excellent explanation of the actual meaning of Public Law 129, 19th Congress. The article states: "There are two good methods of computing retirement pay: (1) 2 1/2 per cent times active service. The six months does not count on longevity credit. Hence base and longevity pay last received. Take a specific case of a master sergeant who has completed 20 years and six months active service. The six months does not count on longevity credit. Put in an additional year's credit on the computation of percentage. The computation would be 22 1/2 times $25, or $5,625 per cent. And $2 1/2 per cent of the last base and longevity pay the sergeant received would be $25 times $231, which equals $121.22."
(2) 2 1/2 per cent of base and longevity pay multiplied by 25 years of active service. $22 1/2 times $231.00 equals 5,177.50. This figure times 21 equals $108,727.50.
- TRAVEL PAY FOR ENLISTED MEN — Last week the House Armed Services Committee reported H. S. 276, authorizing the Army to use official mileage tables instead of actual shortest distance to compute travel money due enlisted men.
- OLYMPIC TRAINING — Secretary of War Patterson has requested authority from Congress to spend $7,000 (and no more) in training and maintaining teams and individual entrants in the 1948 Olympic games to be held in London.
- UNLAWFUL POSSESSION OF FIREARMS GUNS — All fully-automated firearms returned to the States under the provisions of the National Firearms Act, and all automatic firearms returned to the States, must be registered with the nearest Alcohol Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Department. Offices are located in Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, Louisville, New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Salt Lake City, St. Louis, St. Paul, Detroit, Chicago, New Orleans, Kansas City, St. Paul, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle. The Internal Revenue Department offers no objection to their possession by veterans, but fears that some may find their way into criminal hands.
- Registration can be enforced under the National Firearms Act which carries penalties up to $2000.00 fine and five years imprisonment.

Five types of arms must be registered: Machine guns and machine pistols; shotguns or rifles with barrels less than 18 inches long; 22— in which case barrel must be less than 18 inches to require registration; any other concealable shooting arms that are not a pistol or revolver; any pistol with an accompanying shoulder stock; and any muffler or silencer for any type firearm.

Alcohol Tax Unit also offers free, to render weapons non-serviceable, without altering outward appearance (and thus exempting them from $200 transfer tax, which is otherwise required if arms are transferred to someone else.)

othering him. The wife of his business man also is hard bit by Author Steinbeck. The woman's "headaches" at convenient times, her firm belief in the success of her marriage, or at least that appearance, drives her to consider appearances far above human feelings.

Blonde Is Interesting

Almost as a sounding board for the personalities of his characters, Steinbeck introduces Camille Gaks. She is a blonde young girl. She found it simplest to earn her living by sitting in a huge wine glass at parties. Each of her characters definitely reacts to this sexually-appealing woman and through these reactions a closer understanding of each is possible.

The owner of the bus, Juan, is also the driver and more or less directs the action. He is a man, and it is observed by his wife that he is very few men in the world. During the travel of his bus through a rainier section of California he deeply considers deserting his passengers, wife and entire present life to return to his carefree days in Mexico. Steinbeck wisely doesn't draw a picture of a man making such a dramatic thinking, but rather illustrates a man living through such events in a very human acting according to his own personality.

Some guys like to hold the glass because it makes them see double and feel single. ...

Two drunks polishing off their fifteenth round of drinks, climbed into their car and sped away. After a time, one remarked, "We're getting closer to Camp Lee." "What how do you know?" "We're hitting more soldiers."

He escorted her to the table. "May I sit on your right hand," he asked? "No," she replied, "I have to eat with it."

'The Wayward Bus'

Using a bus as his vehicle for movement of plot, John Steinbeck, in his newest book, "The Wayward Bus," comes very close to achieving the Greek idea of unity of time and place in drama. This whole book moves through one day and the time and place elements are brought together through the travel of the bus "Sweetheart."

The breakdown of the "wayward bus" actually is the starting point for bringing his passengers, the driver, his wife, a waitress and an apprentice mechanic together at the meeting Mr. Steinbeck takes opportunity to plot each member of the human race in looking at his life and considering just what the object is. The human beings take a poke at the business man who the type who believes he is his only sort of satisfaction. Actually, this man has lost his ability to think; is controlled by this wife and driver. He is disturbed about his way of life he doesn't even realize what is

EDITOR, THE BAYONET:

In these hectic times when the world seems filled with confusion and conflicting ideas and ideals many of us are wondering just where we as a nation and as individuals stand in relation to the rest of the world. Newspapers, the radio, magazines, and motion pictures all beseege us with this theory and that, with one formula and another—all designed to aid us in deciding whether we should prepare for a third world war, or reduce the size of the Army or Navy, or outlaw the A-bomb, or just what we should do.

Granted, these are difficult decisions to make—and what can we as individuals do? Well, we can do plenty. Let's stop a minute and think some of these things over. About this business of reducing the size of the Army and the Navy. The last few years have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt the high cost of being unprepared. Let's not commit the same mistake twice. A good standing Army is not an indicator of aggressiveness—it's merely a form of protection—a police force—only on a larger scale. We pray that we never again become involved in a world conflict, but in any event, let's be prepared.

As for the A-bomb, well that's something else again. Atomic power is something that's new to most of us. The atomic bomb is still top secret. The best military and diplomatic minds in the world

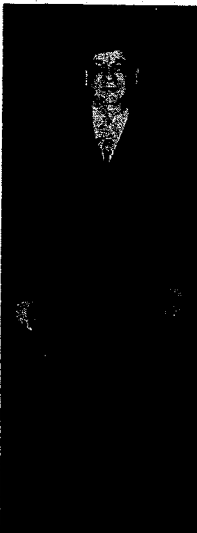

Benning Permanent Ground Force Post

Fort Benning has been named one of six permanent Ground Force posts in Georgia, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

The dispatch said the chairman of the House committee on expenditures in the executive department asked Brig. Gen. Aaron Bradshaw Jr., whether he could name what the Army wants to retain permanently for the ground forces in Georgia. General Bradshaw listed Fort Benning, Camp Gordon, Fort McPherson, Oliver General Hospital, the Atlanta depot and Camp Stewart.

are still trying to decide what's to be done with atomic power. For our part, we should learn all we can about it—all the pros and cons so as to have at least a working knowledge of the subject. So there you have it—atomic energy and a standing Army—just to mention two of the many important decisions that are facing us today. Only through an intelligent study and careful analysis of these problems can we hope to reach a decision that will be beneficial to all. You may say that only the government can do anything about these problems, but actually we can do it because we can do it because we are the government. So, what do you say? Think it over.

The ex-officer maintained that the United States must replace Great Britain in preserving the balance of power in the Middle East. He supports to the hilt President Truman's foreign policy in this area.

AOC School May Be Open To NG, OR Enlisted Men

Plans now are being formulated by the War Department whereby in the near future, enlisted men of the National Guard and the Organized Reserve may apply for attendance at the Army Officer Candidate School and qualify for commissions as second lieutenants. It was announced by General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces.

Eligibility for attendance at OCS will be based upon the same requirements now in effect for enlisted personnel of the Army. Enlisted men of the National Guard or Organized Reserve may apply on their own initiative, to attend Army Officer Candidate School. Upon successful completion of the school graduates will return to a civilian status and will be required to serve on inactive duty in a commissioned capacity with the National Guard or Organized Reserve. Those who desire to do so may apply for active duty in a commissioned status in the Army of the United States.

Graduates of the course, may be commissioned in any of the Ground Arms or administrative and technical services. The school now at Fort Benning, Georgia, will be moved to Fort Riley, Kansas, in Sept. 1, 1947.

It was announced that when application forms are ready for distribution they will be placed with National Guard and Reserve units in the field and made available to those who seek to apply.

Officer Candidates Lead Rugged Life

Under an entirely new system of providing the Army with officer personnel, the Army Officer Candidate Classes are composed of men from almost every branch of the service. Here at Fort Benning these future officers undergo a six-month course that consists of a rigorous physical training program, a detailed weapons instruction and a complete infantry tactical curriculum. After the candidates receive their bars they are returned to the branch of service from which they were sent and there they receive three months instruction in a specialized line of work.

Shortage of Officers

In the last war there were, at times, desperate shortages of qualified infantry officers. In event of a future war, it is felt that no shortage will exist because of the fact that these new officers receive this intensive infantry course here at The Infantry School. The primary job of these officers who graduate will be as platoon leaders. At the battle of Bastogne service troops and officers were thrown into action with little or no combat training with resulting high casualty figures. There will be no repetition of this under the new system.

Special emphasis is placed on teaching the students to be instructors. The future officers are given the opportunity to instruct their fellow candidates in the assembly, disassembly and functions of the various infantry weapons. In this way they receive practice and pose which simplifies matters when they are required to instruct their platoons after becoming officers.

Leadership Stressed

The new system, because of its extra length, brings out many latent qualities of leadership which was not possible in the previous shorter OCS. The students are subject to longer and closer observation by the officers who are placed over them. Only those candidates who show that they have the necessary ability and correct attitude graduate. Close supervision by the tactical officer weeds out those men who might prove to be unfit as officers. As a result, the best men become leaders, which means that most of the candidates will prove an asset to the Army.

While the candidates are here they fire all of the infantry weapons, and even some that are not primarily infantry-served. They train on engineer equipment such as pontoons, water purification units and heavy engineer earth-moving equipment. Chemical warfare is studied in a brief but intensive course. Clerical work is added to these subjects, and the result is a well-rounded education in Army matters.

Common Sense Needed

Practical work is done by the candidates so that they have to utilize their common sense as well as their book learning. As they go through their six months stay at Fort Benning they acquire an infinite amount of knowledge which will be of great help to them when they become second lieutenants.

On the physical side, the average officer candidate is capable of doing 25 push-ups, six pull-ups and 40 sit-ups, all in the short time of two minutes. He is also able to do 30 squat jumps and then doubletime two miles with no shortness of breath. The student receives approximately half an hour of physical training each day, either front calisthenics or speed marching.

On this page are photos showing some of the training candidates receive at Fort Benning today.

INSPECTION ARMS—Lt. James Selbert inspects Candidate Henry Tucker's rifle. Too many demerits result in the loss of pass privileges.

FIRE!—Officer Candidates Douglas Schoonmaker, Thomas Joyce, and James Echias prepare to drop a mortar shell on the target. This is just one of the many infantry weapons fired by the students.

New Directive Allows Civilians To Enlist In AAF

The Lawson Field recruiting office announced Thursday that under a new directive in War Department recruiting policy civilians without previous military or naval service may now enlist in the AAF and receive special ratings, if they are skilled job specialists and enlist for a period of three years.
 Interested personnel may contact the Lawson Field recruiting office at extension 2315 for an interview.
 The applicant's job specialty skill must be equivalent to the various military occupational specialties needed in the AAF at present. Applicants will be interviewed by the recruiting officer and base commander. Their findings will be forwarded to the commanding general, AAF, who will review each case and notify all applicants by letter of the grade in which they are authorized to enlist.
 When reporting for interview applicants are advised to bring with them letters of recommendation or any other documents verifying their claims as to educational and technical qualifications and experience in their particular field, the announcement states.
 The new policy also applies to veterans of all services.

THE PERFECT MALE—Pvt. Paul J. Meyers, 18, Airborne student extraordinary, inhales deeply to show his enormous chest. Meyers came up with a score of 485 out of 500 to equal all existing records for physical fitness tests of Airborne students.

BENNING MUSCLE MAN

Airborne Student Shatters Physical Fitness Records

Pvt. Paul J. Meyers, 18-year-old Airborne student from Campbell, California, shattered all existing records in the Army's rugged Physical Fitness Tests, Monday, March 10, with a near perfect score of 485 out of a possible 500. Airborne instructors at Fort Benning state that the handsome young Californian would have made a perfect score with ease but was slightly incapacitated by a lame ankle. After a close examination by Airborne Section medics, Meyers was declared to be the most nearly perfect physical specimen ever to pass through the Physical Examination board.

Meyers, who has been actively interested in physical culture since he was old enough to become interested in sports has attained a physique remarkable for not only its muscularity, but for its beautiful symmetry. His body tapers from unusually small feet to tremendously broad shoulders, and his every action has the carefree vibrant grace of a panther. Although Meyers has been in the Army less than one year, he admits that it has furthered his ambition to become "physically perfect." He has gained over 20 pounds, and has added over an inch to his height. Standing five feet, ten inches in stocking feet, the young Atlas tips the beam at an even 180 pounds. His chest expands from a normal 40 inches to 47 inches. Further measurements are: 16 inch neck, 16 inch biceps, 29 inch waist, 23 inch thighs, 17 inch calves.

Records have fallen in Meyers' attempts to become a second "Iron Culc" as he has completed 3,500 "sit-ups" in a 1-2 hours, and has run the "Gauntlet" which consists of a one arm chin-up with either arm; 20 pull-ups to back of neck; 40 floor-ups with one hand, and holding a half-inch from the floor for one minute and forty-five seconds.

Meyers' ambition when he leaves the Army is to found a "Body Beautiful" school of instruction. "That is," he said, "if I leave the Army."

Doughs Lose 47-43; Out Of AAU

Trounce Ozarks College 76-52 In First Game

DENVER, Colo., March 20.—Fort Benning's entry in the National AAU tourney here dropped out of the running on Tuesday night as the eighth-seeded Idaho Simplotts tagged the Doughboys with a 47-43 defeat.

The veteran Idaho five proved too experienced for the Doughs, who gave the American Basketball League team a run for their money with their fight.

DENVER, Colo., March 20.—The Fort Benning Doughboys got their title climb under way Monday with a smashing 76-52 victory over the College of the Ozarks in the first round play of the National AAU basketball tourney played in Denver's City Auditorium. The win advanced the Benning quintet into the second round action and pitched them against the eighth-seeded Idaho Simplotts Tuesday night.

The fast Ozark team bounced into a quick 5-point lead in the opening minutes of the battle, but Claude Anderson, with 5 points of his own, knotted the score and the Doughs went on from there to a 22-9 quarter total. Wirt and Anderson each getting 6 counters to lead the way.

Strike Back
The Mountaineers struck back hard for the first few minutes of the second quarter, and cut the Dough lead to 26-20 at one point, chiefly through the efforts of Carson who got eight points. The Doughs immediately after his entry into the game at the end of the first quarter.

But with Bill Miller getting 6 points in the waning minutes of the half, the Doughboys pushed their margin back up to 10 points, leading 34-24 at the intermission.

The Ozarks fast break got into Benning's hair again at the start of the third quarter. Jacobs and Raffine each tallied 4 and McCollister got another score for the collegians, while Lufher was the only Doughboy able to score, cutting the score to 36-34. The Doughs still out in front at the end of the stanza.

Doughs Run Wild
Benning ran away from the Ozark boys in the last ten minutes, dropping in 25 points to their opponents' 10. Logan got red-hot in the last minutes, scoring 10 points himself to equal the entire Mountaineers' output. Anderson led the scorers with 28 points, Bill Miller with 14 was his closest pursuer.

ROY-BOY!—Greatly under-publicized Doughboy team manager, T/Sgt. James Royal, of B Company, 27th Infantry, the man supervising the oranges, chewing gum, basketballs, and uniforms for the point-making, Benning players.

'Roy-Boy' Helps Doughboys Keep Up Their Morale

By PFC MILT MOSKOWITZ
No small factor in a ball club's ability to win games is the team's morale. Judging by the Doughboy's record of 30 victories in 37 games then, one is led to believe that the morale of the Benning quintet is high.
That assumption is well-founded, as the Doughboys are a happy-go-lucky bunch who love to win. One of their every-day "parades" is nick-naming anyone with whom they meet. Thus one of their managers is affectionately known as "Bird-dog," their new center, Larry McGlin, is called, "Jim Homer," the writer covering their games is known as "Ernie Pyle," Bob Selbert goes by the name of "Hoese," Mark Fess answers to "G. I.," and so on down the line. Everyone has a Doughboy name.

Contributing to the high spirits of the club is T-Sgt. James Royal, of the 27th Infantry's B Company, who is the Doughboy head manager and general handy man. He is known as "Roy" or "Roy-Boy." To describe Roy's activity would be difficult to do in just a few words, as it takes in quite a bit of ground. He's the man who passes out chewing gum before the game and oranges at the half; he sees that the Doughboys always have clean uniforms and enough basketballs; he makes sure that they have transportation to and from practice, and sees that opposing teams' needs are taken care of.
Of course Coach Cedric Tallis has the overall responsibility on these matters, but it usually Roy who is entrusted with the carrying out of the tasks themselves.

Interested in Sports
On trips to nearby cities, it's Roy who's ordinarily at the wheel of the Doughboy vehicles, and it's he who sees that the players get their vicuals. There is a great deal of basketball in addition to the playing of the games, and it's Roy, assisted by Ed Davis and Carl Robinson, who attends to this side of the picture.

Roy is a North Carolinian, and sports has always been a major interest with him. Last year he was the assistant manager of the Infantry School baseball team, the Profs. And as soon as the Doughboy season is completed, he will begin to help out the 37th with this year's nine.

Good natured and unassuming, Roy would be the last one to claim that he had anything to do with the Doughboys' success. First-hand observers say different. They will tell you that Roy-Boy is one of the prime reasons for the Doughboys being one, big, happy family.

Baseball League Entry Deadline Set For Today

Today—March 20—is the final date for entries in the post-baseball league, and the A&ER office expects to have from 10 to 12 units' applications.

The league, which will be limited to organizations of battalion level, gets under way Wednesday, April 2, and the teams entered are required to submit a roster of eligible players by March 31.

Some of the teams have taken to the diamond already, with the Infantry School Detachment and the Airborne Battalion holding regular practice sessions. The 1280th Engineers have started an intra-battalion league, and the best players from the company teams will be picked to form the battalion inter-company league.

Teams representing the 37th Infantry, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, 501st Parachute Battalion, 756th Tank Battalion, 756th Field, AGF Board No. 3, 328th Ordnance Battalion, and the medical outfit at the hospital are expected to be entered also.

25th Baseball Squad On Busy Schedule

With candidates from three to four deep in all positions, tryouts for the current 25th Infantry baseball squad continues on a vigorous daily scale as Capt. Austin D. McQuinn plans to slice the group numbering 30 into a roster of twenty playing strength in preparation for the season's opener with Alabama State College Friday March 28 in Montgomery.

Despite the return of 11 of last year's vets to the fold, a host of new faces predominate the picture, Capt. McQuinn's assisting coaching staff has been ironing out the one major weakness of last year's nine—their stick work.
The 25th's initial home contest has been slated for Sunday, April 6, at Gowdy Field. Meanwhile, the Athletic and Recreation Office is pressing the territory for an outstanding opponent for the locals.

ISD Whips 1290th In League Playoff

A spirited Infantry School Detachment team captured the School Troops basketball championship last Thursday night at the main post gymnasium, downing the 1290th Engineers, 38-27, before a crowd of 300 spectators.

The ISD five was the winner in the first half of School Troops league play, while the 1290th took second half honors in a clean sweep of eight contests.

Matched in a three-game playoff, the two post quintets split the first two games. In the opener the Engineers were victorious, 37-32, although the ISDs were on the comeback trail in the latter stages of the game. At the half the 1290th led, 18-15, but with Ken Nowles scoring thirteen of his fifteen point total in the second half the Infantrymen gradually cut down this lead.

Time Runs Out

Time finally ran out on the ISD five though, leaving them four points behind and one game away from being eliminated. Fred Jay did pace the 1290th with fourteen markers.

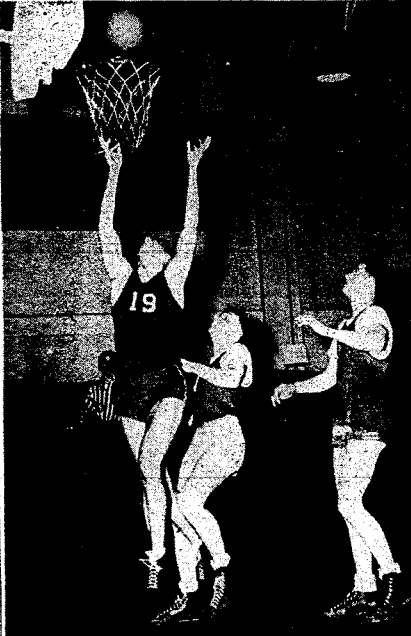

By far the best game of the series was the second as it was a fiercely-contested affair, with neither team ahead by more than three points at any point of the game. The ISD five was leading at the half, 16-13, and the second half of the game went at a quicker pace, with first one team scoring and then the other bouncing back with a two-point addition to its total.

Going into the final minute of play, the ISDs were still ahead by one slim point, 37-36. Paul Long of the 1290th was awarded a foul shot, however, with six seconds left, and he made it, tying up the ball game.

The ISD took the ball out quickly, and just as the whistle was about to blow, the referee called a foul on Long for hacking. The Engineers claimed that the game was all over, but the officials said that there were still two seconds remaining. Don Hook went to the free-throw line then and tied up the series at one apiece by making his shot and giving the ISD a 38-37 victory.

Thursday night's finals was the last basketball game to be played in the gym this year, and the 72d AFG band, Referee Sam Harris and one of the largest crowds of the year were on hand to see the School Troops championing settled.

KEYSHOT FOR ISD—Dave Lew and Paul Long of the 1290th stand helplessly as big Ed Eales of the Infantry School Detachment puts in a beautiful over-the-head layup which helped the ISDs 6-2 to beat the Engineers and win the School Troops championship.

The Engineer quintet with a de-luge of baskets. A 17-9 ISD half-time lead was extended to a 39-27 final score, as Ed Eales played one of his finest games for the winning Infantrymen, now 5900th Troops champions.

Referee Hal Grinols of the School Troops A & R office said, "The series was one of the hardest-fought and bitterly-contested playoffs here on the post. Both teams deserve credit for their splendid performance."

In the opinion of the officials the outstanding players were Frye of the ISD, who controlled the backboards, little Don Hook, whose ball-handling and passing sparked the ISD offensive, and Ken Nowles, also of the ISD, who led both teams in scoring. Jordan and Long were the outstanding players for the 1290th, with 25 and 21 points, respectively.

And then there's the Pfc. who will date only girls with glasses. He breathes on 'em so she can't see what he's doing.

Fights Friday Night

Classification boxing gets its second trial this Friday night in the main post gymnasium, with the A & R office hoping to have enough fighters for twelve bouts.

Appeals have been made to all the units on the post to enter as many boxers as possible, but it's impossible to say definitely how many bouts there will be until Friday afternoon when the fighters will weigh in.

First in this series of classification boxing was held two weeks ago Friday, with eight successful bouts. The fighters are all placed into suitable classes, ranging from one to five, with the fifth slot reserved for novices with little past experience.

A man fights in his own class, and every time he wins a bout he advances to the next class. If he loses, he is not eliminated, but remains in the same class.

Both winner and loser receive gifts from the A & R office at the end of the fights, and there are also hamburgers and milk for the leatherpunchers when they come out of the ring.

First bout is at 8 p. m. and everyone is invited to attend.

Colonel Scores 130, Loses Golf Match

In a somewhat above par score of 120 for 18 holes Captain W. H. Stewart nosed out Lt. Col. Warren C. Chapman in the double elimination Student Training Regiment golf tournament. Col. Chapman's score for the 18 holes was cool 130.

Col. Chapman suffered his second defeat and consequent elimination from the tournament when he was defeated three days later by Lt. Richard Gay, the outcome being determined on the last hole.

Cinder Track Will Be Regulation Size

With the track and field season just around the corner, Fort Benning's cinder path is undergoing a facelifting process. The track has not been a full 440 yards, but at the completion of the work now in progress, the track will be regulation size and ready for a record-breaking season.

Situated around Doughboy Stadium, the track extension could be made only at the east end which does not have a permanent wall.

Runways and pits for high jumping, pole vaulting and broad jumping events will also be made.

Sand Hill Bullets-Win Community Tourney

Seeded during the initial drawings, 25th Infantry's Bullets overwhelmingly defeated their following three opponents to handily win the Community "A" and "B" Basketball Tourney at Augusta, Ga.

Trouncing Thompson High 47-13 in the Quarter Finals; the Junior Bombers 56 to 34 in the Semis, and Haines Institute 58-31 in the Championship, Lt. Lloyd D. Jones' quintet hardly suffered a work out during the three contests.

An American visiting a friend in England received an invitation to a fox hunt which he accepted. He was having a very good time on the hunt when he noticed that his friends were avoiding him. He asked his host about it and was told: "Over here when a fox is sighted it is customary to say 'Tally Ho' not 'hot damn, there goes the S-O-B!'"

Second Guessing

By PFC. MILTON E. MOSKOWITZ

The title of this column is appropriate, and anyone in the Infantry School Detachment, particularly in A Company, will back that up. It seems that the author of "Second Guessing" put his foot into it last week.

In a rash moment of self-appreciation, Pfc. Moskowitz set himself up as a basketball expert in the "Bayonet" by calmly stating that the 129th Engineers basketball team probably wouldn't have much trouble subduing the Infantry School Detachment for the School Troops championship.

On the face of it, this certainly looked like a safe assumption. After all, hadn't he with his own eyes watched the 129th whip the ISD five by ten points earlier in the season in the game that decided the second-half lead?

And hadn't he, with his own eyes again, watched the ISD eliminated in the post tournament in the very first round? And in that same journey, didn't he see the Engineers go all the way to the semifinals to take third place, stopped only by the Doughboy-picked 1st Battalion of the 37th Infantry?

Hadn't he (with his own eyes in case you're wondering) picked Long and Hewitt of the Engineer quintet on the all-tourney team for their great playing? And finally, didn't he go to the gym a week ago Monday and see the 129th beat the ISD hoopers, 37-

33, after having run up a lead of ten points at one time?

Yes. To Pfc. Moskowitz it looked like an open-and-shut case. The 129th couldn't miss.

Only it did, as the ISD came off the floor to capture a one-point game the next night, and the championship last Thursday night, when it pummeled the Engineers, 42-27.

Embarrassing Situation

Now this wouldn't have been too bad for Sportswriter Moskowitz. He had a red face, of course, but he could just toss it off, attributing it all to the perils of prognostication. However, it wasn't that easy.

You see, when Moskowitz isn't crystal-gazing, he is a member of A Company of the Infantry School Detachment, and the predicament in which he found himself now was, to say the least, embarrassing. Everywhere he went he was a marked man, with his former buddies whispering "traitor" as he went by.

A growling supply sergeant refused to exchange his dirty sheets and a vindictive mail clerk gave him a "hard time" when he tried to get his letters from a few remaining friends who hadn't heard about his trachea.

Well, the ISD is the School Troops champion now and a chastened "sportswriter" is wondering if he'll ever be able to live this down. Certainly he owes an apology to Hook, Kates, Frye, Tignor, Nowles, Hortscher, and King for seriously underestimating their ability to play basketball.

College Spirit

One aspect of this affair with which we were very pleasantly surprised is the unit spirit, which was evoked. Thursday night's game reminded one of a Yale-Harvard or Army-Navy battle. Everything was there, including a band. But units turned up in force to form one of the season's greatest crowds in the post's basketball finale. No other crowd this year at any Doughboy contest equaling this one in its spirited cheering.

We're glad to see these efforts backing up their teams, despite their rather disastrous consequences on a certain writer, and we hope it continues because it reveals a healthy atmosphere.

And Pfc. Moskowitz announces himself ready to take part in this movement also by predicting that the Infantry School Detachment will win the post basketball championship. There! Now perhaps he can hold his head a little higher in the mess hall, and maybe he can get clean sheets too. All he has to do is avoid the now spirited paratrooper or 129th player, reminding him in the back some night as he is sitting in the library!

An interesting situation has arisen in the NCA basketball tournament which opens in New York Thursday night with the first round of the Eastern elimination. Continued on Page 16

High Speed Photo Plane Now Ready For Test Flights

The Army Air Forces' high speed photo reconnaissance plane, the XP-11, built by Hughes Aircraft Company of Culver City, California, is now ready for its test flight. The exact date of the test flight is indefinite, but plant officials state it will fly within two weeks.

The XP-11 was designed for high speed photographic work. It is a twin-boomed, two place monoplane, spanning 101 feet 5 inches across the wing and 65 feet 5 inches long. It is 23 feet 3 inches from ground to tail-top. Powered by two Pratt-Whitney 3,000 horsepower engines, driving two eight-bladed, counter-rotating Hamilton standard propellers, the plane is capable of speeds in excess of 400 miles per hour. Built for long range work, the XP-11 has a ceiling of over 40,000 feet. A pressurized cabin makes oxygen masks for crew members unnecessary.

The plane has provisions for six cameras in the nose and boom, with operating controls duplicated in the nose and pilot's cockpit. Special equipment provides for heading cameras and defocusing camera windows in high altitude operations.

Sand Hill All-Stars Whip Macon Legionners 49-45

Performing brilliantly during their first get-together, a carefully selected group of all-star basketball players, inducted from the ranks of 25th Infantry's intra-team teams, invaded Macon recently, and after a close and bitter battle, defeated the highly touted Macon Legionners 49-45 in the spacious Municipal Auditorium.

Setting up a nip and tuck pace from the opening whistle, both teams fought on an "even clop-clop" breath during the first half, and at the end of this session, the 25th held the nod by a slight 23-21 count.

25th maintained a slight margin throughout the second half, the Legionners, with four minutes playing time remaining, went into a bit of the scoring spread which brought them to within 2 points of the 25th—43 to 45—but the superlative defense efforts of Ossoun, Hubbard, Holland, and Joiner, 25th guards, and with Hamer sparkling at Center, the visitors went on to win the contest in an admirable manner.

25th's McLendon, with 21 points tallied, was high scorer for the evening, edging the Legionners' star Forward Miller by two counters.

AOC 6 Beats Third Platoon In Hoop Tilt

BY G-C STEPHEN D. SMOKE
 Capt. Theodor F. Colmer's AOC 6 basketball team returned to inter-company competition Saturday night at the Ninth Street USO in Columbus with a decisive 45-18 victory over the 10th Company's third platoon.

The AOC 6 squad, composed entirely of men from the first platoon, quickly built up a 6-0 lead over their fellow candidates as Collet and Tatum tallied from under the hoop and Smoke followed up with a long set shot.

Game, fast and exceptionally deceptive, the very third platooners suddenly found themselves and the fight was on. Zajacki, Craft, and Magliacelo went into a weave and successfully cut over pivotman Perrin to ring up two goals before Brubaker hit from under the basket and Frill converted a foul to make the first period score 8-4 in favor of AOC 6.

During the second quarter Collet went wild as he dumped in four tricky hook shots from his post in the double pivot for the first platoon. Zajacki, Craft, and Magliacelo kept bearing in with greater success in the second period and really brought the fight to close quarters as the half ended with the first platoon still ahead by a score of 20-18.

AOC 6 began to hit on all four cylinders as the second half started and gradually pulled away to a 22-16 lead at the end of the third period. Their offense was operating at the peak of perfection in the last quarter as they outscored their opponents 11-2 to wind up on the long end of a 45-18 score.

During the last period Prill, Brubaker, and Smoke were hitting beautifully from outside the foul line and as the defense moved out to stop them Tatum, former Wake Forest lumbar, and Collet looped hook shots through the meshes from in close. Scheduled to meet the 10th company's second and third platoons on the next two Saturday nights, AOC 6 will close its season March 29 when they stack up against the formidable 15th company's AOC quintet at the Harmony Church Sports Arena.

Huge YC-97 Cargo Plane Completes First Test Flight

The Army Air Forces YC-97 "Stratofreighter," built by the Boeing Aircraft Company, successfully completed its first test flight recently at Boeing Field, Seattle, Washington. A long-range power plant and cargo transport, the YC-97 stayed aloft for 37 minutes on its maiden flight.

The Stratofreighter, cargo version of Boeing's famed B-29, spans 141 feet 2 inches across the wing and 110 feet 3 inches long. It is capable of attaining a maximum speed in excess of 300 miles per hour and can carry its cargo load approximately 4,000 miles. It carries a crew of five and operates at a service ceiling of 50,000 feet.

The C-97 model is not a new one to the Army Air Forces. Three of them, known as XC-97s, were in experimental use during the war years.

Boeing will deliver ten of the new YC models to the AAF in three different versions, seven of which will be turned over to the Air Transport Command. The first six planes will be designated XC-97s and will be powered by four Wright Cyclone 2,200 horsepower engines driving Curtiss four-bladed propellers 16 feet 8 inches in diameter. The next three, classed as YC-97As, will employ Pratt & Whitney 3,500 horsepower Wasp Major engines driving the same Curtiss four-bladed propellers. The tenth plane, designated XC-97B, will be a personnel transport, capable of carrying 134 troops or 83 little patients and four attendants. Its power plant and propeller will be the same as those in the A model.

This last model will be, in most respects, including power plant, an AAF version of Boeing's 80-passenger commercial airliner, the Stratocruiser.

The Stratofreighter has 25 fuel cells, capable of holding 7,055 gallons of gasoline. By substitution of a new lightweight nylon bladder-type fuel cell for the heavier conventional type used in the earlier model, Boeing has been able to reduce the overall weight of the plane by 719 pounds. The entire fuel-cell system weighs only 372 pounds.

The largest gold nugget on record was found in 1898 in a rut made by a cart, only a few inches below the surface of the ground, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The nugget, known as the "Welcome Stranger," weighed 157½ pounds.

P-80A Jet Passes Rigid Firing Test

The record-breaking Lockheed P-80A "Shooting Star" jet fighter has successfully passed rigid Army Air Force requirements, successfully firing over 64,000 rounds of standard .50 caliber ammunition in tests conducted by the Air Proving Ground command.

The stringent military requirement for gun installation and performance calls for each machine gun carried by a fighter type aircraft to fire successfully at least 10,000 rounds of ammunition without a malfunction or structural breakdown. This specification of firing 10,000 rounds per gun—installation is much greater than the actual combat requirement, as fighter aircraft carry less than 500 rounds of ammunition for each gun in combat.

Previous tests indicated that the P-80A was capable of successfully firing all of the ammunition it carried, but that certain structural changes were required after 3,800 rounds had been fired. The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation made the necessary minor changes, enabling the P-80A to meet military requirements. Tactical units, flying the jet P-80s, have been firing successfully for some time, and the fighters have been used in field maneuvers during the past year, firing at ground targets in front of advancing ground forces.

Captain's Wife Tells Of Visit In France; Saw Bombed Cities

Charming Mrs. James W. Stevens, a newcomer to Fort Benning, is a vivacious little woman and merely to meet her would explain that she would never miss an opportunity to visit an interesting place.

When she had the opportunity to see France last fall, she explained in an interview, no stories about food or housing were enough to stop her as, on four days' notice she packed her belongings and with her 13-year-old daughter, Shirley, started to Europe to join her husband, Capt. James W. Stevens.

Now at Fort Benning, Mrs. Stevens graciously told the story of her visit to France and her trip through parts of Germany, Belgium and Holland. The Stevens family, now living at 5044 Lumpkin road, made their home in Pierrefonds, France, during the past winter and Mrs. Stevens, who had studied French and found it quite easy to talk with the French people, reports that despite the talk she heard before she left the United States, she found life there less than while in France. However she did admit that food is scarce in Europe and the famous French pastries are now a rare item since sugar and butter are short in the French diet.

Chef's Wife Hides
Perhaps the clue as to the fine menu enjoyed by the Stevens family lies in the fact that they lived in an old inn now owned by a famous chef named Charrier. Of this perfect cook and his wife, Mrs. Stevens tells an interesting story. The well-known chef, who has cooked in many countries, has a charming English wife. During the German occupation of France it was necessary to keep her hidden from the Germans since her English accent would have given her away.

While hiding his wife, the Frenchman also was active in underground work and was aided by his two daughters in helping American and British soldiers caught in occupied France to return to England. At this same time, Monsieur Charrier had a son serving in the British navy.

200-Year-Old Inn
Mrs. Stevens explained that a chef such as this man could make the simplest meal perfect, but through his skill in preparing each dish.

The inn where the Stevens lived is more than 200 years old and directly in front of it stands a perfectly preserved tower, almost complete with a moat. The gigantic structure was erected in the 12th century, was once gutted and later restored by Napoleon III.

One of Mrs. Stevens' souvenirs from France is an American flag presented to her husband when he was in charge of the closing of the last prisoner of war camp in Europe. Mrs. Stevens told of how the French, who enjoy ceremonies very much, arranged an impressive affair for the time at which the U. S. flag over the last camp was hauled down and the French flag run up in its vesce.

Heathless Homes
One feature of her visit in France during the winter which naturally much impressed Mrs. Stevens was the lack of heat. This problem was somewhat simpler for American families since the army camp furnished wood for them, but for most people of Europe, there is little or no heat even during the winter.

She also explained that in France there is very little soap to be clear. Even though they don't have enough water, Mrs. Stevens soap is rare and very poor, still they are clear and their dishes are very clean.

Clothing is rationed and each person is allowed very little, she reported. "The clothes in the stores are almost empty and Paris is the only place with luxuries."

But despite the problems, Mrs. Stevens, who is from Winter Park, Florida, says she missed France. She was particularly impressed with the forests such as Forêt de Compiegne which runs into Pierrefonds. She described it as beautifully green with an undergrowth of ferns and moss. However, even the forests were damaged by the war when the forests cut many of the trees for fuel, to build roads and use in constructing temporary bridges.

The Stevens, who have a son who served in the army during the war and now attending Dartmouth college, made several trips in France and saw some of the outstanding sights in that country. On their trips, Mrs. Stevens said, they saw many towns, particularly in Germany, that had been hard hit during the war. In a town the size of Columbus, she reported, 10 or 20 buildings might be left intact while the remainder would be nothing but shells with the broken bricks stacked inside to get them out of the streets.

Mrs. Stevens commented on the electricity. Due to the great shortage of electric power, even in cities like Paris, all electricity is off two days each week.

The Stevens family returned to the United States in February feeling they had learned a great deal about France after living in a small town and having an opportunity to become really acquainted with the people. However, although she enjoyed it a great deal, and said she certainly would have wanted to miss it, Mrs. Stevens was glad when she landed in the United States and rode down the street where she could look up an apartment house and know electricity was on all the time and there was always plenty of heat.

JUNIOR QUINTET—Here are the Fort Benning Army Juniors who defend the post's food name against the twelve-year-old teams from Columbus. All of them are sixth graders whose fathers are soldiers. Back row: Bobby Lindquist, Ken Feckham, Bobby Muscatelli; back row: Freddy Weber, John Kodanovich, Richard Garcia and Neil Stillinger. The Junior hostess have had a rough season so far, losing three out of their first four games.

AIR FORCE WILL AID IN COSMIC RAY RESEARCH

The recent announcement of the cooperation being offered by the Army Air Forces to the New England Museum of Natural History, Boston, Massachusetts, in its forthcoming expedition to conquer the pinnacle of Alaska's Mount McKinley, again focused attention to the many scientific organizations being aided by the AAF in the resumption of basic research which had been interrupted by the war.

In this latest project, scientists from the New England Museum will scale the 20,300 feet Mount McKinley in an effort to obtain valuable cosmic ray data as well as other scientific observations and a complete photographic record of the climb.

Inasmuch as the cosmic ray equipment is so heavy and bulky, the AAF, through the Alaskan Air Command, will drop two tons of supplies and equipment to the expedition's camp at a point on the saddle between Mount McKinley's two summits. Transport aircraft stationed in Alaska will use special parachutes provided by Air Materiel Command, Wright Field, Ohio. Wright Field also will provide some equipment which will be cold weather tested by the expedition. A special observer from Air Materiel Command, Mr. Norman Bright, of Sunnyvale, California, will accompany the expedition and will test the AAF equipment in complete photographic record of the climb.

The Western elimination starts in Kansas City Friday night.

The team selected to represent District 2 in the tourney is City College of New York, which will meet one of three teams Thursday—Navy, Holy Cross, or Wisconsin.

Now, representing District 7 in the tournament is Wyoming University, which will meet Texas Friday. The winner of that game will meet the winner of the Oregon State-Oregon contest, also to be played on Friday.

Eventually the Western survivor and the Eastern finalist will come together in New York for the NCAA championship.

Earlier in the season when Wyoming came to Madison Square Garden and was beaten by City College, the New York school put itself on record never to schedule another game with a team coached by Erv Shelton, the Wyoming mentor who caused such a stir by allegedly insulting the Jewish players on the City team.

Of course the possibility of Wyoming and City meeting in the finals is very slim. The Cowboys would have to beat first Texas, which has a season record of 24 won and 10 lost while City College has a tough list of possible opponents facing it.

However, it's interesting to speculate about what would happen if the two teams were paired again.

14 Nationalities In Candidate Class

Among the 140 members of AOCC No. 8 there are 14 different foreign languages spoken. These are French, Russian, Hebrew, Italian, Greek, Japanese, German, Danish, Spanish, Finnish, Tagalog, Chinese, Polish and Korean.

Further statistics from AOCC No. 88 reveal that the present strength of 140 represents the number remaining after four weeks of training. Altogether 208 candidates started the course. Among the present members are 33 men who have seen actual combat service. In addition they have several former prisoners of war and a former Filipino guerrilla fighter.

CHATTAHOOCHEE RIVER CLOSED

From one o'clock to five o'clock the Thursday (March 20) afternoon, and next Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons (March 25 and 26), the Chattahoocnee River will be closed to all navigation and traffic between Upper Bradley's Landing and Wright's Bar.

400 Students See Demonstrations By Infantry School

Fort Benning's mighty Infantry School swung into action yesterday when the school's Tactical Section presented another colorful display of the infantryman in combat with their "battalion in defense" problem before approximately 400 students of the Command and Staff College who arrived last Sunday to attend the Nine Air Force's Indoctrination Course.

The rifle company, which was a rifle company with supporting tanks, mortars and other weapons. The rifle company, dug in on a hillside, attempted to defend its position from an attack by the tanks.

Originally scheduled for this morning, the "battalion in defense" problem was given yesterday when the Force's show was postponed because of high winds. The air show will be given this afternoon at 1:45 p. m.

This morning the student-visitators will get an opportunity to view the latest developments in infantry fire-power. Infantry School instructors will point out the modern trends in weapons, weapons, use of infantry arms, including the tank, and describe improvements in infantry services in commemoration of "minute," a demonstration of infantry fire-power during which time every type of infantry weapon is fired simultaneously.

The command and staff college students will be divided into two classes for the night demonstration of battlefield illumination and night vision. The first group will witness the spectacular display Thursday night, while the second group will see the same show Friday night. Scheduled to get underway at 7 p. m., the night demonstration will demonstrate the possibilities of illuminating an entire battlefield when the intensity of the moon is so small as to be negligible and when spotlight preparations can not be used advantageously. Preparations for the demonstrations will include a breakdown of the proper use of eyes at night and a briefing the students for a night engagement. The actual exercise will be held at 10 p. m.

Major General John W. O'Daniel, Fort Benning commander, will be the host for the latter part of the week during The Infantry School's part in the indoctrination course.

Newsmen will be quartered in block 21 on the Main Post. Arrangements are being made to transform a nearby building into a press room complete with a battery of typewriters and telephones. They will eat at the Sigerville Mess Hall.

Many of the top ranking newspapers and news magazines such as Time and News Week as well as Associated Press and United Press newsmen will be represented at the Army's latest show of might. Newswriter cameramen will also be on hand for the occasion.

Capt. Thomas reported. Funds for deferred maintenance money, which he explained as being funds from which he explained as being funds accumulated but not yet used, are the Harzaway Co. bid on the project at a low of $2.27 per yard.

afternoon will be a static display in the Broadway market between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets of modern infantry fire-power. exercise will give the spectators an opportunity to view first-hand the use of the sniperscope and sniperscope, two recent developments in the night vision field. The sniperscope is an intrared attachment to the carbine which enables the soldier to see his target at a distance of more than 500 yards, while the sniperscope is a similar piece of equipment used for observation and signaling. Battlemat and illuminator will also be demonstrated by the use of flares, including aircraft flares dropped from an 83rd Field Artillery scout platoon.

To explain Ground Arms Friday morning will be reserved for an exhibition and explanation of modern ground forces equipment by Army Ground Forces Boards 1 and 3. Board 3 is a Fort Benning unit, and Board 1 is from Fort Bragg, N. C. Among the items on display will be radio equipment, multiple rockets, and a helicopter. Some of the ground force equipment to be seen is still in the process of development.

Beginning at 2 p. m. Friday the 400 Command and Staff college will journey to Hook range for a joint demonstration by the Second Battalion of the 25th Infantry, entire 83rd Field Artillery, elements of the 150th Tank Battalion and 99th Field Artillery. The problem, officially designated as an attack of a fortified position, will provide many thrills for the audience as an assault detachment comes in for the attack on the pillboxes. The attack will be supported by fire from tanks, self-propelled 155mm howitzers, and other supporting weapons. The pillbox lay-out will be similar to that encountered by American troops in the German Siegfried line, and the battle will simulate an attack by an infantry battalion.

Co-ordinated Attack Concluding the Infantry School's three-day continuous activity will be a fast-moving demonstration of an infantry-artillery-tank team in attack scheduled for 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Purpose of this exercise is to emphasize the tactical employment of a separate tank battalion, including a medium tank company and light tank platoon attached to an infantry battalion operating with a battalion of artillery. The tanks moving in on their objective will encounter a minefield and gas throwers. Units participating in the action will be the Second Battalion of the 25th Infantry, Company A and one platoon of Company C of the 75th Tank Battalion, 83rd Field Artillery, and one platoon of the 37th Infantry Anti-Tank company.

The first three days of the week were used by the Ninth Air Force to demonstrate the cooperation and coordination necessary for joint air-ground operations. Sixty films, lectures, and displays of equipment were merely stepping-stones to a much more dramatic mammoth demonstration of air-ground might last Wednesday when elements of the 82nd Airborne division, joined with Tactical Air Command units to present

PARTICIPATE IN PARADE

The 72nd AGF Band under CWO Richard E. Velasco participated in the St. Patrick's Day parade in Savannah, Georgia, March 17, it was learned today.

An airborne invasion. Prior to the softening-up process by light A-26 bombers, jet-propelled P-80s streaked over the battle area to photograph the terrain and troop concentration. Troop carriers and gliders dropped and landed the battle-dressed sky soldiers, dropped supplies, and lated evacuated the "wounded" by the glider "snatch-pick-up method." This exercise ended the Ninth Air Force's participation.

The Command and Staff college students are scheduled to depart Fort Benning during the weekend.

Holy Week

Two services will be held Holy Thursday and Good Friday. Similar Catholic services will also be observed at the Station hospital, Airborne chapel, Chapels No. 2, 5, and the Lawson Field chapel.

Trumpeters to Blow The highlight of Holy Week will be the annual observance of the Resurrection of Christ by Fort Benning Protestants at the Campbell Club Horseshoe Bowl. Church call will be sounded by trumpeters at 6:30 a. m., exactly eight minutes after sunrise, and will be the signal for the processional to enter the Horseshoe Bowl. In procession will be the colors, the junior and senior choirs from the Main Post chapel, and all Protestant chaplains on the post.

The program, under the direction of Chaplain Emmett G. Jones, will commence with invocation by Chaplain John E. Bryden, of Lawson Field. The Scriptures will be read by Chaplain Frederick D. Gant, of the 25th Infantry, and the Pastoral Prayer by Chaplain David P. Jenkins. Easter will feature the sermon by Chaplain William C. Shure, and the benediction will be said by Chaplain Clyde F. Straub of the Airborne Regiment.

Music for the services will be furnished by the 72nd Army Ground Forces band under the direction of CWO Richard E. Velasco. The band will play a special arrangement of Handel's Hallelujah Chorus, and will provide accompaniment for the junior and senior choirs. Mrs. L. H. Averil will be at the Hammond organ.

Junior Choir To Sing The chapel's junior choir will present Oh, Morn of Beauty by Sibellus, and the senior choir will render Sunrise on Easter Morning by Ode. Special feature of the senior choir's selection will be a trumpet trio by the band.

A white-draped altar will be set up at one end of the Campbell Club Horseshoe Bowl and will be flanked by myriads of Easter lilies, candles, and evergreens.

An illuminated cross will be suspended behind the altar, and approximately 1,000 troops will form a human cross in the center of the bowl.

A Catholic Solemn High Mass will follow the Protestant sunrise services. Similar decorations will be used for the mass to be said by Chaplain John Jedlowski.

The 25th Infantry will also celebrate Easter Sunday with a sunrise service at 7:30 a. m. to be held in the 25th Infantry amphitheater. The infantry Regiment will also sponsor an Easter egg hunt following a Children's Easter day program at 10:30 a. m.

DERAILED JAP TRAIN

Former Philippine Undercover Agent Is Now STR Member

BY HERMAN KIMSLEY

If you should see a tall, wiry fellow wearing a fierce expression and stalking through the Fort Benning pins like an Indian, it will probably be Pvt. Jesus M. Baltazar, 16th Company, STR, who came to this country recently as a college student.

Baltazar is a native of the Philippine Islands, where he spent his entire life until now. Before the war he attended the University of Manila hoping to follow in his father's footsteps as chief chemist for General Serrano in Manila.

Signs With Filipinos

When the Japs struck in '41, Baltazar signed with the Philippine Army and fought through that campaign getting the toughest "basic" a man ever had. With the surrender of Bataan he infiltrated the city of Manila and began work as an undercover agent for the Philippine Guerrillas. In this capacity he covered many assignments as spotted shipping schedules, plotting of installations in the harbor and working against Jap military police units.

Once Baltazar journeyed to Aparri, a distance of 800 miles, where he posed as a vacationist to spot incoming ships from Japan.

Captured by Japs

Later he adopted a more dangerous role as an active saboteur. Under the guise of the Philippine Constabulary, which was under Jap control, Baltazar took part in several raids that resulted in the loss to the Japs of a truck convoy, a supply train and a tanker.

Baltazar was finally captured by the Japs. He stuck to the statement that he could not speak Japanese and was at length released much the worse for the wear. In way of retaliation he led American troops into the streets of Manila and directed them during the rescue of the PW's.

Upon his arrival in this country Baltazar discarded the idea of more schooling and joined the Army. He reads, writes and speaks Japanese, Spanish, Filipino and the English languages.

Tuesday evening the club was the scene of a colorful cabaret party with music furnished by the 72nd AGF band directed by Sgt. Manuel Sousa. Refreshments were served and young ladies from Columbus attended.

Another weekly feature at the club is the dancing class each Thursday evening under the direction of Miss M. F. Brown. Tango, rumba and fox trot steps are being taught and the class is open to all men interested.

"BEHOLD THE DREAMERS"
By Chaplain John A. DeVaux
Joseph, the son of the Patriarch, Jacob, was known in his day as a lucky fellow, because his many narrow escapes from danger and hidden snares. The truth was that Joseph was not a lucky fellow; but he was as his brothers in ridicule called him a dreamer. He was no different than any other young man. All are dreamers. It has been truly said by those of rare wisdom, "Old men shall see visions and young men shall have dreams." It matters little whether you are superstitious or not—the fact remains that dreams come from beyond the natural. The dreams themselves are not half as important as the Dreamer of the dreams. There are only three types of Dreamers. First, the dreamer who dreams and dreams and does nothing about his dreams. He lives in vain, his castles in Spain contented to enjoy alone the ecstasy of his beautiful dreams. He is vainly dreaming that he has no time to actually live. The second dreamer who dreams and dreams and makes his Master's life one of discontentment, he finds no satisfaction in any state, circumstance or condition of life. The dreams, drive him on and on deeper and deeper into frustration. See you how true he is and heard his expressions, he could serve better anywhere but here. The cross is the sacrament of his pastures where he is not. This dreamer is certain that the people of this country are the worst that are any other place on earth. Dreams, when in the role of Master, play havoc with the soul and in the end will destroy the mind. Thanks be to providence there is a third type, the Dreamer who knows that God made him and he in turn loves the Son whom God hath sent. So go your way my lad and dream as you see fit, please, but dream as a Master and not as a Slave!

Optimist?

If everyone were just and kind, Life wouldn't be so nice. There must be some mean folks to give our lives some spice. Just think how dull it might turn out. If all were brothers true. There would be naught to talk about. All feuding would be through. But as it is, through the world, Where e're man lives with man, One always finds some meanness there. Prevent it! Think you can?

Action in closure of the river is being taken as a precautionary measure in connection with Air Industrialization course now underway at the Etowah Landing. Military and civilian personnel who find any suspicious looking objects are requested to contact the office of Gen. O'Daniel immediately. The First Sgt. carefully placed a chisel against a rusty bolt. He looked at the Etowah and held the sledge hammer and said, "When I'm my head, you hit it." They're buying him tomorrow.

Army Counselor

(This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans and their dependents. If you have a problem not discussed here, take it to your Army Counselor, Room 26, Hq. Annex.)
1. STATE BONUSES—Two more states took preliminary legislative action to pay a bonus to veterans-residents. The Connecticut Senate unanimously approved a $50,000,000 bond issue to pay up to $300 to veterans of that state, while the Georgia Legislature approved a similar measure. The Connecticut House must be passed by the Supreme Court of Errors on constitutionality, and the Georgia bonus must be ratified by Georgia voters in the 1948 election. States which have already voted or paid a bonus are Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Alaska, Illinois, Michigan and Rhode Island.
2. EDUCATION STIPENDS—More than 900,000 veterans have quit school or training programs started under provisions of the GI Bill and Public Law 16, as a result of high living costs, crowded conditions, inadequate subsistence, ceilings on combined earnings and subsistence. The figure quoted constitutes a fourth of all the veterans who have taken advantage of GI education and training since the enactment of the law.
3. VETERANS IN EUROPE—The Veterans Administration plans to send 24 employes to England to staff an office there handling claims of 400 veterans in British schools, plus education claims of an estimated 35,000 dependents of World War II, many of whom are abandoned wives and illegitimate children. Some 56,000 GI's moved while in the United Kingdom, and dependents include 20,000 children. VA plans to send other staffs to Paris, Rome, Mexico City and elsewhere, because they believe it to be "administratively impossible" to handle the claims through the Washington office.
4. AMPUTEES—Veterans or servicemen who have arm amputations may receive, free of charge, "Rubberlike Plastic Poncholders" to enable them to handle a telephone receiver through use of a shoulder rest. Eligible amputees may obtain a "Fonholder," without cost, by writing to the Rayam Plastic Products Co., 1523 East 53rd St., Chicago 15, Ill.
5. FEDERAL BONUS—A number of bills proposing to pay $2 per day for domestic service and $3 per day for foreign service have been introduced in Congress. The committee on ways and means has full jurisdiction over bills of this nature. Report has it that the membership of the committee is not seriously considering legislation at this time.
6. JOB RIGHTS—The rights of veterans to reinstatement to their old jobs or jobs of like seniority and status and pay, under Section 8 of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, will not be affected if the draft law dies on March 31, 1947. The law was amended June 29 to provide that the section regarding job rights would continue operative after expiration of the draft law, with functions and responsibilities transferred to another agency. It will be necessary for the President or Congress to make the transfer one day prior to the termination of the draft law.
7. TERMINAL LEAVE CASH—Watch for discussion in the House and Senate on this proposal: That $2,000,000,000 of that amount to be trimmed from President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget be used to cash terminal leave bonds now held by veterans. Rep. Dwight L. Rogers of Florida, proposed earlier that this amount be used to retire outstanding public debt bonds. The use of the proposed amount to cash terminal leave bonds would in effect be paying off a part of the nation's indebtedness. Although the terminal leave bonds are not now formally a part of the national debt, by the time the bonds become due (in a little less than 5 years) the Treasury would have to pay the debt bonds to pay off at that time, thus boosting the public debt by whatever amount was necessary.

GI Humor

The landlady brought in a plateful of extremely thinly sliced bread, which rather dismayed her hungry men boarders.
"Did you cut these, Mrs. Brown?" asked one.
"Yes, I cut them," came the stern reply.
"O. K.," the boarder went on, "I'll deal."
.....
Drunk in telephone booth: "Number, hell, I want my peanuts."
.....
Waltress: "We have some nicely prepared breads to go with our GI: "No, I never eat anything that comes from an animal's mouth."
Waltress: "How about some eggs?"
Seebit: "I'm never riding on a motorcycle one cold day. Because it was so cold one put his jacket on, he tried to zip it, but he got a bitter wind, little later they had a terrible wreck."
"The driver is dead," an eyewitness told the interns. "He was killed immediately. But the guy who was riding on the back tried straitening out his neck. Then he died too." Eigenauer.

herself to accept him as her lover. Lopez takes Ellen as his mate. Later they are married and Joseph receives the signal honor of handling the commune's funds. During the war, Joseph and Dina are separated. Joseph, a Jew, is a member of the Palestine, he renews his acquaintance with Bauman, who has left the commune to organize a terrorist gang dedicated to substitute action for words and promises. When Joseph learns that Dina has been violated and murdered by an Arab band, he decides to break away from the quiet life in the commune and join Bauman's illegal group. In the end Joseph finally finds his place and realizes that he can not hope to settle a question in a matter of months which has been unsettled for more than 2,000 years. This peaceful resistance is a gracious tribute to the Jewish people and their longing for a homeland.

Running through the turbulent pages of Thieves in the Night is another picture, equally as violent as the wild thoughts of Bauman's gang of Jewish youth. The fraction-minded Arab living in the small villages amid the dirt and squalor of his medieval settlement refuses to cooperate in settling the problem of Jewish immigration to the land of their choice. Violence and bloodshed are the natural result of the meeting of these two opposed and un-integrated factions, each believing himself to be right and his cause the only true one.

"Thieves in the Night" is a profound novel of fictitious characters but real situations concerning one of the world's most difficult problems.

Customs For Army Wives Discussed By Mrs. Patton

Army wives should study the Officer's Manual to learn Army customs, Mrs. George S. Patton Jr. emphasized when she spoke to approximately 400 members of the Women's club at a tea held in her honor Monday afternoon at the Officers' Club.

The gracious wife of the late General Patton, speaking on customs of the service, told of some of her own experiences and explained that customs of the army are based on good manners and common sense. She also pointed out that "if our men get discouraged, it's our job to cheer them up."

Wearing an attractive grey and white silk print dress, Mrs. Patton commented on the large number of activities open to the personnel of Fort Benning and said that she and her husband had always been interested in hobbies and crafts. Her husband started the first army extra-curricular sport when he organized a football team and played on it himself. At that time Mrs. Patton served as cheer leader for her husband's ball team.

Mrs. E. F. Wallender, president of the Women's club, introduced Mrs. Patton as well as Mrs. John W. O'Daniel who also sat on the speaker's platform in the main lounge of the club which was decorated with red buds and flowering quince. Mrs. David E. Milotta contributed to the pleasant program with hard coles before and after the talk. Her first number was Londonderry Aire and the closing selection was Ava Maria.

Following the talk, tea was served from an attractive table set with a unique arrangement of silver candelabra, ivory tapers, and silver service interspersed with red camellias. Mrs. O'Daniel and Mrs. Reubin Jenkins poured. Tea, coffee, sandwiches, cakes and mints were served from the beautiful table which was covered with a lace cloth.

The charming Mrs. Patton personally greeted many of the guests while the tea was served.

The hospitality committee of the Women's club arranged for the tea and those working on the committee were Mrs. E. C. Peters, Mrs. L. D. Brown, Mrs. Irvine Scudder, Mrs. E. L. Kenke, Mrs. Roy Hagerty, and Mrs. J. A. Ladd.

Tea In Honor Of Mrs. Patton

Mrs. George S. Patton Jr. was the guest of honor Friday afternoon at a tea given by the ladies of the Patton House club in the Sand Hill area. In the receiving line with Mrs. Patton were Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Mrs. E. F. Wallender, Mrs. Robert Dulaney, Mrs. Everett Davel, Mrs. Helen Brill, Mrs. Joseph Sandlin, Mrs. James E. Tarrant, Mrs. Joseph Flish and Mrs. Fred Hancock.

Silver candelabra and spring flowers were used in the decorations for this charming afternoon affair and silver tea and coffee service was used on the attractive serving table which was laid with a lace cloth.

Pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. Harriet Weeks, Mrs. Reubin Jenkins, Mrs. Jessa A. Ladd, Mrs. Robert Hill, Mrs. John Elizard, Mrs. Joseph Harper, Mrs. Daniel Bauman and Mrs. Dennis Moore and Mrs. Dorothy Brann.

In charge of the tea table were Mrs. Russell Jenna, Mrs. William Brogan and Mrs. Harry Mayfield.

Mrs. Gorman Is Hostess At Birthday Party Sunday

The dining room table was overlaid with a shimmering white Chinese cloth exquisitely trimmed in pale blue embroidery and cut work. Its beautiful centerpiece of giant yellow and white jonquils in a crystal bowl was flanked with burning yellow tapers in crystal candelabra.

Guests present were: Major General and Mrs. Paul L. Williams, Col. and Mrs. Gilbert T. Collier, Miss Marion Collier, Mrs. R. K. Scudder, Col. Leonard J. Barrow, Col. and Mrs. H. L. COL. AND MRS. RALPH M. FLENN

McDonough, Flynn Vows Saturday

Miss Jane McDonough, daughter of Col. and Mrs. James H. McDonough, became the bride of Lt. Col. Ralph Martin Flynn Saturday in a beautiful ceremony performed by Rev. R. Dickey of Indians in the Post chapel.

White tapers in seven branched candelabra flanked by two pedestal baskets holding white stock and gladioli decorated the church and the same flowers were arranged on the altar. The pews were marked with white satin ribbons. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely wedding gown of white taffeta featuring a net yoke, long pointed sleeves and a fingertip illusion veil caught to her head with a band of white heading. The bride's only ornament was a single strand of pearls and she carried an old fashioned nosegay of white stock centered with a white orchid.

Miss Nancy McDonough, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a model of pink taffeta fashioned with cap sleeves and a full skirt. Matching gauntlets and a bouquet of snapdragons in shades of pink completed the maid of honor's costume and in her hair was a matching band of flowers. Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception at their quarters on Eames avenue. The couple left during the evening for a wedding trip to New Orleans and Mexico.

Captain, Family Move To Post

Recently moved into quarters on the post are Capt. and Mrs. William G. Thomas who are now living at 108 Balzert. Before being quartered here they had lived in Columbus for about nine months.

Mrs. Thomas, formerly Miss Jean Horton Lyon, is from Fayetteville, N. C. and is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Terry A. Lester of Capt. "Thomas" from East Orange, N. J. received his education at Rutgers University, and served for 36 months in the ETO. Mrs. Thomas attended St. Marys in North Carolina and the University of North Carolina. The newcomers have a baby son who will soon be five months old.

Cups Presented At Group Party

Three baby cups were presented to members of the Technique of Rifle Fire Group when they held a dinner dance Saturday evening at the Officers' Club. The cups, presented to couples who have recently become parents, were given by Col. Joseph Remus to Col. and Mrs. C. D. McErren, Maj. and Mrs. C. M. Freudentorf, and Capt. and Mrs. F. R. Gehring.

Guests for this event included Col. and Mrs. E. D. McLugh, Colonel and Mrs. Remus, Colonel and Mrs. McErren, Col. and Mrs. Harold Ayres, Major and Mrs. Freudentorf, Maj. and Mrs. William T. McDaniel, Maj. and Mrs. Ed Edris, Capt. and Mrs. B. Hughes, Captain and Mrs. Gehring, Capt. and Mrs. George Linebaugh, Capt. H. V. Seck, Maj. J. M. Browning, Capt. Earl Buchanan, Miss Ellen Hubbard, Lt. Helen Bromley and Capt. N. L. Lindstrand.

Daughters Give Hospital Aid; Plan '49 Party

Plans for the '49 party to be given May 16 by the Army Daughters are progressing, and at the same time, these young ladies are continuing their work of aiding the maternity ward of the station hospital through funds gained from various parties and dances.

A recent report by the treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Paddock, has revealed that since 1945, donations have included $403.75 for an incubator, $287.23 for baby mattresses and $854.85 for medicines, baby beds, forceps, bottles and other materials needed in the ward.

During the past month, the Daughters have given 300 baby shirts, 200 receiving blankets, and 200 abdominal binders to the maternity ward at a cost of $335. This was done with the proceeds of game parties and it means that no mother will have to take these articles with her when she goes to the hospital and the father will not have to take baby clothes home to be washed. It also saves the nurses considerable work.

In addition to their donation to the maternity ward, the Daughters have also voted to aid the children's ward of the hospital with funds from the '49er party.

School Troops I&E Is Ambitious Unit

One of the important lessons learned from the last war was the necessity for men in one branch of the service to know what is being accomplished by the men of another. The lack of such knowledge was food for enemy propaganda, and the job of exposing enemy propaganda was assigned to the Information and Education Division. More recently the I and E function has been included in the training program of all units and has become a guiding factor in the everyday life of a soldier.

With the fighting over the I&E has launched an intensive campaign to instruct all men in the problems and capability of every branch of the Army. This program has been named Troop Information Program (TIP). One of the most active of such units on the post is that of School Troops.

Considered Important
Liberally sprinkled among School Troops personnel are soldiers who have recently graduated from the Army's Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. These men have been trained as public speakers and have acquired a wide range of knowledge concerning the ambitions and activities of the I&E.

TIP is considered the most important function of the School Troops I&E organization. The program consists of a one-hour discussion period each week during which an I&E leader is in charge.

Another activity of School Troops I&E is the handling of enrollment of military personnel in the program of study and education offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute which covers almost any course of study through correspondence. USAFI also offers the General Educational Development test which is accepted by most states for scholastic credits. GED tests are given at both high school and college levels.

'Incentive Basis' Proposed For Officer Promotions

The War Department today announced proposed legislation at its present session of Congress which would revise the Army promotion system to place it on an "incentive basis" and insure the advancement of officers of the highest caliber to positions of leadership in the postwar Army.

Principal feature of the bill announced by Brig. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, chairman of the Promotion Planning Committee in the War Department Personnel and Administration Division, would be the creation of selection boards which would pass on the qualifications of all officers before promotion to grades higher than first lieutenant.

To insure a simple conversion when President Truman's unification plan is enacted into law, the present Army promotion list would be divided into two parts, one for officers of the Air Corps and the other for officers of other components of the present promotion list. Additional lists would be set up, one for each of the following services: Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Veterinary Corps, Medical Service Corps, Chaplains and Women's Army Corps (if the latter becomes a part of the Regular Army).

Would Abandon Old System.
The present system of commissioning an officer in a specific arm or service and promoting him solely on the basis of years service completed would be eliminated. Instead, officers presently commissioned in services other than Air Corps, medical services, Chaplains and WAC would be commissioned as "officers in arms or services of the United States," and would be assigned within the Army as requirements and the officers' capabilities dictate.

Required time in grade before eligibility for promotion has been established would be reduced under the plan. Instead of automatic promotion to captain after 10 years, major after 17 and lieutenant colonel after 23, as under the present promotion law, consideration for promotion of officers who complete respectively 7, 14 and 21 years service would be mandatory. Filling the vacancies created by expansion of the Regular Army will make possible earlier promotion for some time to come.

Although second lieutenants would advance to first lieutenant automatically after three years service, no first lieutenant would be promoted to captain after seven years until he had been recommended by a selection board. Officers not considered for promotion must be the senior officers in the grade being considered.

'Pass Over' System
To eliminate officers whose records do not qualify them for promotion, the bill provides for a "pass-over" system by which officers in grades of first lieutenant, captain and major would be retired or released from service after his juniors had been promoted over him on two occasions.

Because the vacancies in the higher grades of full colonel and general officer are limited, a system of "forced attrition" would be applied to guarantee a turnover of approximately 20 per cent annually in those grades. Colonels and brigadier generals with five years service in grade and 30 or more years total service would be retired, and major generals with a similar time in grade and 30 years service would likewise go into retirement.

This forced attrition would create vacancies for lieutenant colonels and colonels to advance.

If the grade distribution in the Regular Army become seriously unbalanced, making forced attrition desirable, the Secretary of War, according to the bill, may direct that selection boards consider the qualifications of up to 120 senior officers in a grade in order to fill each 100 vacancies in the next higher grade. The maximum forced attrition possible under this system would be 11 per cent of any group considered for promotion. It is not anticipated that much forced attrition will be required for many years to come.

To compensate officers for their services if they are released before becoming eligible for retirement benefits under the law, a system of severance pay would be established. This would be a cash settlement proportionate to the officer's length of service; two months' active duty pay per year of service, with a limitation of two years' pay as maximum severance benefit.

With the elimination of commissions in arms and services, the bill would wipe out the present distinction between general officers of the line and generals of the staff, drawing chiefs of technical and administrative services from the best qualified general officers of colonels. The plan would not eliminate arms and services, but would give these subdivisions of the Army an opportunity to draw their personnel from the entire Army promotion list.

STR Has New Indoor Range

The Student Training Regiment announced last week the completion and formal opening of their new .22 caliber indoor rifle range which was built entirely from scrap material under the supervision of 7-Sgt. Paul Insing, Headquarters Company, STR.

For his "ingenuity, resourcefulness and ability in connection with construction of the range Sgt. Insing received a letter of appreciation from Colonel Irving Scudder, commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment.

Modern Conveniences
All modern conveniences and safety factors have been built into the new rifle range. For comfort of the "peepshiners" the firing point was constructed of sawdust covered over with canvas. The target backing is of hardened sheet steel which deflects the bullets into a sand-filled box on the floor behind the targets.

Sgt. Insing perfected a hanging-type, adjustable bracket into which the targets slide thereby greatly facilitating target changing.

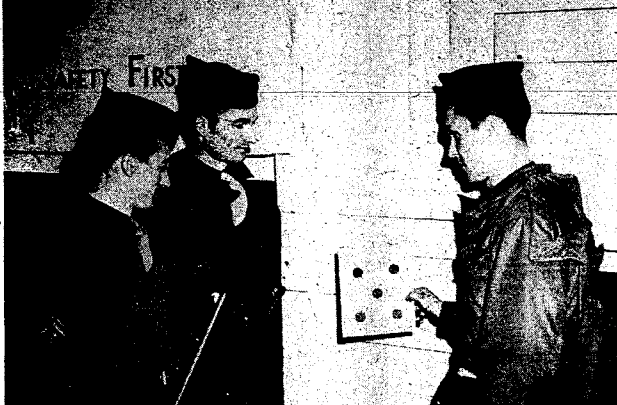

Practice firing sessions began March 20 for members of Headquarters Company, STR. Among the first to try out the new range was 1-Sgt. R. War A. Cooper, who has distinguished himself in many matches as a marksman. Sgt. Cooper won a trophy in the NRA matches held at Fort Benning last November and already holds two legs on the Camp Perry Trophy.

(CNS)—World War II added another $1,500 to the per capita share of the national debt which now totals nearly $2,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Doughboys End Successful Hoop Season With 31 Wins

Finishing the season with an over-all record of thirty-one victories in thirty-nine games, the 1946-47 Fort Benning basketball team maintained the post's fine athletic reputation.

Next year's five will inherit big shoes, as it will be known as the defending Southeastern AAU champion.

The Doughboy courtmen are able to make the same boast that the Doughboy gridders did this fall at the end of the season, namely that there wasn't another service team that held an edge on them in the season play and there aren't many better civilian teams either.

Coached by Capt. Cedric Tallis, the Doughboys proved themselves the class of all the independent and service quintets in this part of the country. Fort Bragg, winner of the Seventh Army tournament and the Interservice tournament held at Oliver General Hospital last to the Bennigites two out of three games.

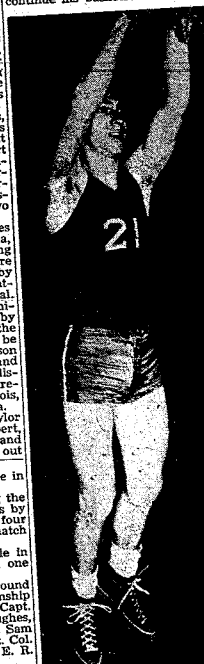

The Doughs split their four games with the Atlanta Sports Arena, Georgia State champions, beating the Rebels by nine points here on the main post floor and by one point in the game that counted, the Southeastern AAU final.

Next season's Doughboy uniforms will have to be filled by new men, as not a man from the present squad is expected to be around then. Claude Anderson and Mark Foss are AUS, and change. Andy will probably return to the University of Illinois. Foss hopes to enter Minnesota. Cal Luther, Bo Logan, Taylor Baker, Bill Wirt, Bob Seibert, Dave Gardner, Bill Miller, and Walt Piebes are all serving out ment and was a heavy favorite in this event. The best golf played during the entire round of match play was by Lt. Kenneth Hughes. He was four under par figure when his match ended on the 11th hole.

Colonel Chabot had a battle in winning over Col. Fay Ross, one up, in 13 holes. Winners in the first-round matches in the championship flight were Lt. Col. Chabot, Capt. A. S. Augustauskas, Lt. Hughes, Major William Wirt, Lt. Sam J. Adams, Lt. Col. Meyer, Lt. Col. A. L. Tait, who had only recently won the Seventh Army Tourna-enishments, and they plan to return to college also. Seibert and Piebes are going to enter Mary-land to play football; Logan will go to Southern Illinois; Baker to U. of Cincinnati; Luther to a Wisconsin school; Wirt and Gardner to a California college; and Miller to continue his basketball career.

SMALLEST DOUGHBOY—Taylor "Scooter" Baker, in his 5'10" frame, was the midget of the Benning five, but he came within five points of outscoring Bill Miller, the team's glass team-mate, as he is known to his "Bake," as he is known to his teammates. He is shown here taking one of his long sets that opposing quintets learned to fear. Scooter is a paratrooper and plans to go to the University of Cincinnati upon being discharged.

Sand Hill Nine Opens Diamond Slate March 31

With the season's opening engagement re-scheduled for Monday, March 31 against Alabama State College in Montgomery, Capt. Austin D. McQuinn, and his assisting coaching staff are set to lead the 25th Infantry's baseball charges through their final training paces during long daily sessions this week.

As the 25th enters into its second and diamond season, prospects of another highly successful club appears in order at this writing. Predominating the practice sessions is the advanced test in the hitless department which was the one outstanding weakness of last year's nine.

On Sunday, April 6, the 25th will open their home season against the best opposition obtainable during an afternoon contest at Gawdy Field.

Red Ramblers Winter Season Polo Champs

The school troops Red Ramblers won the championship polo match of the winter season last Sunday on French Field when they defeated the Academic Freebooters with a 4 to 3 score.

For the first time in two years the chukker was played to break an even score at the end of the six chukker.

The chukker opened with a bang when Col. Nichols of the yellow-shirted Freebooters made a goal with Maj. Betty, another Freebooter, making the second goal a minute later. Capt. Lilly then tallied a count from a point 50 yards from the goal line.

The score remained at 2 to 1 through the next two chukkers. In the fourth chukker, Col. Nichols shot another goal, giving the Freebooters a 2 to 1 margin.

In the fifth chukker the Red Ramblers got down to serious polo

Ernest Green Cops Marble Tourny Prize

Ernest Green, seventh grader, son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Lynnwood Green, copied the Fort Benning marble championship Monday afternoon by defeating Robert Maurer, fifth grader, son of Sgt. and Mrs. William Maurer, at Post Children's School playground.

Lt. Castle making two goals tied up the score. From then on through the sixth chukker both teams fought hard for the winning goal but without success.

With the score tied up at the end of the sixth chukker, the referee, Col. Dulaney, called for a seventh chukker. The Freebooters opened with a knock in from the back line. The ball was stopped by the Ramblers after which Col. Morgan hit the ball from about 60 yards out for a true spot through the goal ending the game after 25 seconds into the second chukker.

Immediately following the game the seven members of the Red Ramblers were each awarded sterling silver goblets by Major General O'Daniel.

The spring season is scheduled to start Sunday, March 30, when the 25th Infantry Blue Devils play the Winter Season champs at 3:30 P. M. on French Field.

KENTUCKY BILL—At the center-line for the Doughboys this season was 6'4" Bill Miller, raw-boned basketballer from Eastern Kentucky. He was run-up to Anderson in total points scored. Not a set-shot points from the pivot and under the boards. Now that the season is over, he returns to his outfit, the 37th Infantry.

Chabot Wins Golf Honors

Lt. Col. Joseph L. Chabot won medalist honors from a large field of contestants in the 1947 Officers' Club golf championship, an annual event played over the Fort Benning golf course.

Playing a steady game during the qualifying rounds, Colonel Chabot put together two neat scores to lead the field. His 73 and his 75, for a total of 148, secured him number one and tagged him as one of the strong contenders for the golf championship.

First-round matches in all flights were played off by Sunday evening, March 23, in the championship flight. Lt. Col. "Monty" Meyer provided the major upset when he defeated Maj. A. L. Tait, who had only recently won the Seventh Army Tourna-

Baseball Season Opens April 3

ISD LEADER—Chick Shiver, manager of the Infantry School Detachment team, has been getting his nine ready for the season opener next Wednesday. Chick is an old-timer at the post, and was picked for the catching position on last year's all-state team.

ISD Baseball Squad Out For Post Championship

Under the watchful eyes of the Detachment baseball team has been preparing for the past few weeks to wrest the post baseball crown from the Airborne nine.

Returning from last year are the Silcox, pitcher, Lefty Lehner, 1st baseman, and Chick himself, who's not decided yet about whether he'll play behind the plate or at shortstop.

Originally Shiver was a shortstop, playing for Sanford of the Florida State league before entering the Army. However an accident that resulted in a broken leg caused him to shift to the backstop position.

Last season Shiver caught for The Infantry School Profs, which had Bill Johnson, Yankee third baseman, in the lineup, and which he calls the best team he ever played for. Later on he caught for the Army Ground Forces Ram-

O'Daniel Tosses First Ball Next Thursday Night

General O'Daniel will throw out the first ball next Thursday night, April 3, to open up the 1947 baseball season at Fort Benning.

The opening game will bring together 1947 year's post champions, the Airborne team, and the strong Infantry School Detachment nine, coached by Chick Shiver under the Gowdy Field lights. The season-opening pitch is set for 8 p. m.

Ten teams, representing units of battalion strength, make up the post league this year. The other nine are: Lawson Field, Student Training Regiment, 20th Truck Battalion, 129th Engineers, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, 37th Infantry Regiment, 756th Tank Battalion, and the 328th Ordnance Battalion.

According to the schedule prepared by the Athletic Office there will be 14 league games played at Gowdy Field every week. There will be a double header every night, first game 8:15, second at 8:00. On Wednesdays there will be two afternoon contests, and on Saturdays and Sundays there will be one afternoon game and one airflight affair.

Announcement of the schedule was made by Col. Roy Lindquist, who is the officer in charge of baseball and who coached the post team here when he was a first lieutenant.

The league schedule is divided into two halves, the first stanza to be concluded in May. The second half will run to July 15, when the best players from the unit squads will be picked to form the Doughboy nine.

Here is the schedule of games for the first few days: Friday, April 4—328th vs. 83rd Field Artillery Bn (5:45) and 756th Tank Bn. (7:00); Saturday, April 5—204th Truck Bn. vs. Lawson Field (2:00) and 37th vs. STT (8:00); Sunday, April 6—83rd Field Artillery Bn. (2:00) and ISD vs. 129th (8:00).

Chick was picked on the post league.

Chick was picked on the Fort Benning all-stars, and caught for this team in the Georgia state tournament. Thomaston beat Benning, 5-4, in the finale to win the trophy.

Shiver captained and fielded brilliantly though and was picked on the all-state team.

The ISDs are a little short on reserves this year, but Chick hopes to make them a threat. He has uncovered two likely prospects in Louis Satz, a flychaser, and Bob Bowman, who's from Maryland and will probably hold down third base.

Manager Shiver reports that he has a profusion of left-handed batters this year. He says he could field a first team with nine port-swinging batters.

The ISD lineup is still tentative. Shiver would like to play George Hill and Bill Taylor in the outfield, but he's not sure yet about getting the flychasers out duty in the Printing Plant.

A heavy-hitting second baseman named Johnson is counted on, and if Shiver plays short, Seymour will be behind the plate. The Silcox will probably start on the mound in the opening game against the Airborne team.

AOCC NO. 1 GRADUATES

Of the 121 candidates to graduate from AOCC No. 1, which commenced in Sept. 1946, 32 are being sent to the Infantry, 25 to the Corps of Engineers, 18 to the Signal Corps, 15 to the Ordnance, 10 to the Field Artillery, six to the Transportation Corps, four to the Armored Corps, three to the Cavalry, three to Anti-Aircraft Artillery, three to Quartermaster one to the Corps of Military Police, and one to the Medical Administration Corps.

Airborne Ball Club Begins 1947 Drive For Title

BY PFC. BILL SCOTT
The Airborne Section baseball team has begun its 1947 drive to capture the top spot in Fort Benning baseball for the second consecutive year.

Under the guidance of Capt. James L. Walker, Lieut. George Dickson and Sgt. Griffin the Airborne club is beginning to shape up into the championship form that it flashed in winning the post title last season. A remarkable turnout has given Coach Walker ample material to form a championship calibre club. Already two cuts in the squad have been made and there is a possibility of a third to keep the squad down to the needed strength.

Holdover Hurlers
Two holdover pitchers from last year's team are sure to see lots of action when the season gets under way. Floyd Dooley, a husky righthander and Russell Chapman, a righthander. Both of these boys figured in the Troopers coming out on top of the pile last season. Dooley, who also plays the outfield, is a hard hitter and will probably come up with a number of pinch-hitting roles throughout the season.

With the opening date not far

Truck Battalion Ball Team Has Banner Turnout

Although they have been handicapped in being able to practice only after 5 p. m. every day, the 204th Truck Battalion baseball team has had banner turnout, and there is stiff competition for every position.

Two of the outstanding 204th baseballers are Doyle Feeler and Leonard Maciejewski. Feeler is a pitcher from Diens, Mo., and had a season at Camp Gordon, where he won ten and lost one, and one season with the City League of Little Rock, Arkansas, where he had an 18 and 3 won and lost record.

Maciejewski is an outfielder and has had two years experience in the Piedmont and Eastern leagues. He also played ball with Fort Bragg.

Coach of the team is Lt. Robert Springer. The 204th opens up against Lawson Field next Saturday, April 5.

'25th' Bullets Win Two-State Tourney

Climaxing the current basketball season in a spectacular manner, 25th Infantry's Bullets upset the proverbial dope bucket by annexing the Annual Twin State Tournament last Saturday at Augusta, Ga.

Drawing a bye for their initial scheduled contest, the Bullets bested the Columbia (S.C.) Pros 54 to 19, and in the finals, overcame the Charleston (S.C.) Mercos 65-31 for the title and attractive winner's trophy.

Faine College, recent winners of the S.A.C.I. crown were top heavy favorites to cop this year's bout, but they were upset in their semi-final round by the Charleston Mercos, the club whose winning aspirations were so soundly blasted by the Bullets.

NEW EXECUTIVE OFFICER
Capt. Floyd E. Davis, Pacific veteran, has assumed duties as executive officer of the Student Training Regiment's Ninth company, it was announced today. Capt. Davis spent most of 30 months overseas as a member of the 24th Corps in Korea. He is a graduate of OCS No. 271, having been commissioned in July 1943.

off, the infield has fallen into the hands of five able, eager Troopers. The only question mark is at second base, where the job isn't quite settled yet. As things look now, though, behind the plate will be Ray Cothren, a veteran from last year's squad, and Dave Ward of the mainstays on the recent Airborne case team.

First base is in the able hands of Frank "Lefty" McGowen, Boston boy who starred as a member of the Cherry Point Marines line during the war years. As a pitcher, McGowen holds a contract with the Boston Braves. Second base, although still unsettled, looks like it may fall to Bob Maurer, Paul Bonair, flashy shortstop from Indianapolis, wasted no time in establishing himself on the clay between second and third. Back again for another season with the Troopers on third is Ralph Terry, who handles the hot corner with the idea that he wants to finish the season there, too.

Hustling to Count
Although these boys seem to have the positions under control according to Coach Walker, they will have to watch their step and hustle all the while. There are a great number of boys who want to play ball this year and the Airborne team plans to use the best who play the best ball at all times and never stops hustling.

The outfield is a tough problem: there are plenty of candidates who all have the same idea of patrolling a strip of that pasture. Some of the leading contenders for the starting roles are: Sam Cunningham, back from last year's team; Lyle McCauley, basketballer of no mean calibre and heavy-hitting-outfielder—and also Sgt. Griffin, who is player and assistant coach, Griffin played last year also. Then there are Dickson, Theis, and Burt who can't be underrated.

With the first game less than a week off, the Airborne looks ready to go. Wednesday afternoon at Gowdy Field the season will begin with the Airborne nine facing an undetermined foe as yet.

Cost Accountants Tour Lawson After Meeting

Members of the Chattahoochee Valley chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants toured Lawson Field March 19 following their monthly meeting at the Ralston hotel.

Col. Gilbert T. Collier, commanding officer of the base, was the official escort. The N.A.C.A. representatives visited the weather station, operations control tower, and the flight line where they saw jet-propelled P-80s, C-52 and C-46 transports, A-26 light bombers, cargo gliders, and P-51 fighters.

Boxing Matches Draw Big Crowd

The main post gym was packed last Friday night for the second in the series of classification boxing bouts being promoted by the Athletic Office.

Nine bouts were presented, and three ended in a knockout or technical knockout. Four bouts were class 5 contests (for fighters having little or no experience), four were class 4, and there was one class 3 bout.

To the 37th Infantry, the 328th Ordnance Battalion, and the Airborne Regiment goes most of the units with the greatest representation. The 37th had five fighters, the 328th five, and the Airborne Regiment four.

Highlight of the program was the welterweight bout between Fred Delgado, Co. C, 37th Inf., and Frank Vannuzze, 328th Ordnance Battalion. In the first round the aggressive Delgado gained a slight edge over his opponent, as the fight turned into a slugfest from the start.

Delgado continued his advantage in the second round, and then Vannuzze caught the stocky 37th fighter with a right cross to the chin. The punch came like a bolt out of the blue, and Delgado was what hit him. It was the first knockout of the classification series, and Vannuzze will be watched closely when he fights his class 3 bout.

In the night's opener Richard Williams, of the 328th Ordnance Battalion—outpointed Richard Marshall, Co. B, 37th Inf., in a welterweight clash. It was a class 5 contest.

A middleweight class 5 bout was second on the program, with Henry Swan, Hq. & Hq. Co., 37th Infantry, decisioning James Oefler, Medical Detachment, Sec. 1, in three snappy rounds.

Rocky Coussens, Co. C, 37th Inf., had much the better of Eugene Pacy, 328th Ordnance Battalion, in the middleweight fight, which was the third of the evening.

Sand Hill Track Team Attracts 27 Candidates

In a light heavyweight battle, still class 5, Sid Chavez, of the 1290th Engineers, earned a technical knockout over Henry Dooley, of Co. E, TABR. Dooley was handicapped by a sore thigh, and after Chavez had floored him a few times, the referee stopped the fight in the second round.

Pair in Close Fight
The first class 4 bout saw Earl Lake, Co. E, TABR, win over Conoto Martinez, 75th Tank Battalion, by virtue of a TKO. Lake cut Martinez's lip, making it impossible for him to come out for the third round.

A close fight between Johnny Auld, 328th Ordnance Battalion, and Aubrey Head, Service Co. TABR, had the spectators divided. The refs award the fight to Auld. The last fight of the evening was a class 3 affair, bringing together two class featherweights, George Norman, Co. E, TABR, and Louis Sanchez, Medical Detachment, Sec. 2. This was the fastest bout on the program and was one by Norman, who now advances to class 2.

For the winners of the fight, in addition to being upped to the next class, there was a leather wallet prize. The losers remain in the same class, and they each received an Eversharp repeater pencil.

5,000 Doughboys Get Trieste Assignment

ROME—(GNSS)—Five thousand members of the famed Blue Devil Brigade of the 8th Division will garison the free territory of Trieste it and when the peace treaty with Italy is ratified by the Big Four.

Termed "Trust"—a contraction of "Trustee United States Troops"—the American contingent will be commanded by Maj. Gen. Bryant S. Moore, division chief. British and Yugoslav troops also will be garisoned in the free state, according to present plans.

Undergoing vigorous training sessions daily are 27 candidates for 25th Infantry's current track and field team which are under the supervision of Lt. Kenneth L. Thomas, former dash star of Troy High school, Kansas, and Morris Brown college.

Headlining the group are Leon J. Webb, 999th F. A., who has been soaring around the six foot mark in the high jump; Victor, 999th F. A., and Jones, 571st, both of whom look promising for the dashes, and Start of the First Battalion who has been hurling both the javelin and Discus in a remarkable manner.

Technical Sergeant Charles Warren, former schoolboy Century Dash star from Memphis, and undefeated during three 60 Yard Dash events last year at Camp Lee, Va., plans on taking part during the training sessions this week.

Lt. Thomas stated Monday that the team should be in good enough shape during the second week of April to give a good account of itself during the Southeastern Inter-collegiate Athletic Conference meets. So far, the 25th's Athletic and Recreation Office has received invitations from both the annual Fiskelege Institute, and Xavier University events.

Miniature Subway Is Standard Item On XB-36 Bomber

A miniature "subway" tunnel, complete with a track and a four-wheel scooter, is standard equipment on the Army Air Forces' huge, six-engine, high-altitude, Consolidated ed-Vultee XB-36. A magnesium communications tunnel, used during the length of the four-section bomb-bay and provides crew members with their only means of getting from the forward to the aft cabin and back while the plane is in flight.

To travel from one crew compartment to another, a crew member simply lies on his back on the scooter, takes hold of an overhead cable running through the tunnel, and pulls himself to the other end.

The tunnel, 85 feet long and two feet in diameter, is located on the left side of the fuselage below the wing. Like the cabins, it is fully pressurized; otherwise it would be impossible for crew members to make the long between-cabins trip at high altitudes without the use of cumbersome oxygen bottles and masks.

The pressurization system on the XB-36 begins functioning at 8,000 feet and maintains a constant 8,000-foot pressure in the cabins and tunnel until the plane reaches an altitude of 35,000 feet. The pressure then gradually decreases until at service ceiling of 40,000 feet it is equivalent to that of 10,000 feet.

The cabins, together with the circular passageway, constitute the largest volume of pressurized space on any bomber in the world.

Need Cindermen For Post Team

With the post track meet less than a month away, spring already here and the cinder track around Doughboy Stadium getting into shape, the only missing element in the picture right now are the runners and field men.

The Athletic Office urges anyone interested in running either spring or long-distance men—in broad jumping, pole vaulting, throwing the shot, put and discus, or highjumping to come out for track immediately.

Those having had experience are especially wanted, but it is by no means a prerequisite. Men showing promise will be put on special duty with the Post track team and will participate in the Seventh Army track tournament to be held at Benning in late May.

Unit athletic officers or the post athletic office will take the names of anyone wanting to come out.

PROGRESSIVE IMPROVEMENT—Joan Gordon, Miami Beach, exhibits latest style beach wear while Mrs. Carol K. Lechner, Michigan, models old-fashioned street costume. A startling example of how styles change with the years. Which all goes to prove that progress is for the best.

ON THE FIRST DAY OF SPRING Mrs. Raymond Bachelor was ready to shed her fur coat and take a cool swim. But despite the weather man's announcement of spring, the pool managers just didn't see it that way, so the best she could do was hang her coat on the hickory limb and look at the water. The would-be swimmer is the wife of Sgt. Raymond Bachelor, who is stationed at Lawson Field.

Lapel Button Now OK For GI Civilian Wear

GIs in civilian gear can now wear lapel buttons reproduction of any Ground Forces badge that they hold.

The War Department has authorized the wearing of an oxidized silver miniature of the badges—such as Expert and Master Infantryman's Medical, Glider, Parachutist, or one of the four Diver's Badges.

At the same time, the Army set up three new standards to be met by future recipients of the Expert Infantryman Badge. They will be tested for their ability to handle the capture of prisoners of war and the capture, documents and to transmit information relating to enemy and terrain dispositions.

The expert infantryman will also have to prove himself capable as an emergency forward observer in adjusting simple problems of artillery and mortar fire.

League champion with 29 stolen bases, but the overall title went to Pistol Pete Reiser of Brooklyn (D) International, Montreal, 100-54; Syracuse, 81-72; American Association, Louisville, 92-61; Indianapolis, 98-65; Pacific Coast, San Francisco, 115-68; Oakland, 111-77; Southern Association, Atlanta, 96-58; Memphis, 90-63; Texas League, Ft. Worth, 101-53; Dallas, 91-63.

2. Yes. On May 2, 1917, Fred Toney of Cincinnati outlasted Jim Vaughn of the Chicago Cubs, 1-0, with neither allowing a hit until the tenth inning. Toney carried his record through the last half of the inning.

3. Jack Chesbro won 41 games for the New York Americans in 1904.

4. No. Man 'O' War never was entered in the Derby, for owner Glen Riddle considered the first colt May too early for a three-year-old to run a mile and a quarter.

5. In the order listed, Lloyd Mangrum, Ted Bishop, Smiley Quick, Bob Hogan, Sam Snead topped the British Open.

2 Post Golfers To Compete In Interservice Golf Tournament

Fort Benning's two leading golfers—Alber Albert Tait and Lt. Col. William Cole—have left the post for Oliver General hospital in Augusta, Ga., where the interservice Invitational Golf Tournament is to be run March 28, 29, and 30.

They will join Lt. Robert G. Hunter, Jr., and Capt. Robert Deis, both from Fort Bragg, to represent the Seventh Army in the tourney that will decide the nation's service golf championship. Low-score men will also be in line for a bid to the Augusta Masters tourney from April 3 to 6. These four golfers won the right to represent the Seventh Army in the tournament held here at Benning in February. Major Tait scored the low medal score of 181 in the 36-hole match, and Col. Cole, Lt. Hunter, and Capt. Deis finished in a three-way tie for second with 193 scores.

Cole Winner
Col. Cole was winner of the 1945 Infantry School tournament and was formerly captain of the University of Arkansas golf team. Major Tait was medalist in the Fort Benning Golf Club championship in 1942.

FAST FLYING Lawson Field Bombers will play their last game Thursday night when they take on the Auburn Bears at Auburn, Alabama.

By PFC. MILT MOSKOWITZ
That unit pride we were talking about last week turned up again, this time at the boxing bouts in the main post gymnasium last Friday night.

A crowd larger than any that had come to see a Doughboy basketball game this season turned out for the bouts. Most of the spectators were there to back up fighters from their respective outfits.

The 328th Ordnance Battalion had five men in the ring, and they were well-supported, especially Frank Vanzuzie, who looked like another Rocky Graziano in knocking out the 37th's Deigato. The Airborne Regiment fighters and the 37th pugilists also had adequate backing.

Probably the man who had the greatest support though was Sid Chavez, a rugged-looking lightweight from Co. B, 126th Engineers. He was the only man from the 126th fighting, but the Engineers took up a whole section in the gym and were gratified to see Chavez win over Fred Doolley by a TKO.

The Athletic Office's classification boxing program seems to be a great success, but more fighters are wanted yet. Each week there are new and different prizes for both winner and loser of every fight. Contact your unit athletic officer, and come out for boxing!

Another sports field in need of men right now is track. Here's a sport that doesn't require too much past experience. If you've got the interest and determination, a little workout on the cinders can bring you around into a first-class runner.

Bill Hulse, who holds the American record for the fastest mile, 4:00, never ran for a track team in his life until he was a freshman at New York University. People were always telling him he wasumble-footed, but like everyone else, he never took track seriously.

Well, he gave it a ding under the tutelage of Coach Emil von Elbing and developed into a great miler and middle-distance runner. Track also takes in more than just running. It includes broad-jumping, pole-vaulting, throwing the shot and discus, and high-jumping. The Athletic Office knows there are some good track men on the post. How about coming out of hibernation, fellows? The winter is over.

Now that we've done our stint for the A & R, let's get back to the second-guessing department, which is where we're at our best. Baseball will be here next week to stay, at least until September.

Since we are already committed (for self-survival reasons) to string along with Chick Shiver's 328th team to win the post baseball championship, it was with a great deal of consternation that we wandered up to Watson Field last week and watched with open mouth as Floyd Doolley, Airborne stalwart, pounded ball after ball over the left and centerfielder's heads.

The Airborne crew looks strong, and something tells us that they don't want to relinquish the post championship. Chick Shiver's 328ers will make it tough though, with Ike Silcox and Wiley Welford on the mound. Lefty Lehner at first and a couple of potential stars in 1st Lt. Paul G. ... and Lou Salz and Bob Bowman and Chick himself playing short or catcher.

Incidentally, one of the outfits here on the post that rates a bow for the push it gives to sports is the 328th Ordnance Battalion. This unit has only been at Benning for some two months, but it has a fine sports record in basketball and boxing.

Now the 328th isn't made up of a special type of soldier, who excels in athletics. It's all up to individual outfit. Putting stress on sports, giving the men an opportunity to participate in athletics is the way to produce good teams and good athletes. At the same time you build up unit spirit among the personnel.

Tankmen, ISD Leading In Post Kegler Tourney

A five-game run-off for the post bowling championship, with the 756th Tank Battalion and the Infantry School Detachment matched against one another, was held last night, March 26, at the main post bowling alleys.

These two teams were the winners in their respective flights, as the eight-week tournament concluded its schedule. The ISD team led in its flight all the way with the Airborne Regiment's 2nd Battalion never quite able to catch the Detachment Keglers. Flight 2, which was won by the Tankers, had a much closer struggle.

Final Week Upset
In fact, the 756th bowlers won only because of a stunning upset in the final week of the tournament when the last-place team, the 37th Infantry's 1st Battalion, defeated the second-place 501st Parachute Battalion. A victory for the paratroopers would have enabled them to pass the 756th team.

This match was a "blood-battle," and was the most hotly-contested of the tourney. In the first frame the 501st tallied 305 to the 37th's 802; the second frame was 836 to 801, again in favor of the Parachute Battalion. However, in the clutch 37th Keglers nosed the third round the 37th by a four-pin margin, took two match points, and thereby relegated their opponents to second place.

With this unit tournament over, it has been announced that a single and double-elimination tournament will begin within ten days and will be open to all comers.

AGF Will Participate In McKinley Ascent

The Army Ground Forces will participate in the New England Museum of Natural History's scientific expedition which began an ascent of Mount McKinley in Alaska, on March 25.

Army Ground Forces expects to acquire, as a result of the expedition's experience, information which may be of value in mountain and winter warfare training, particularly important data related to the type of equipment and material that would be needed for operations in terrain similar to that where the expedition's activities will center. Test equipment for the expedition will be furnished by the Army.

Information pertaining to the suitability of equipment used for sub-zero temperatures, to augment data already compiled by AGF's Task Force Frigid at Fairbanks, Alaska, also will be acquired.

Fist Artist Clark Reenlists In Army

Deciding to further his Army career, Pfc. Norman S. Clark, Second Battalion, 25th Infantry's Welterweight Kayo Artist extended his period of service to three years last Monday.

A native of Junction City, Kansas, Clark first drew on the leather mittens 11 months ago when the "fightin' deuces" organized a boxing team. In truly sensational he went on to amaze an amazing record of 17 straight wins to date, 14 of them via the kayo route.

AOC No. 4 Wins 3 Baseball Victories

Continuing its winning streak, the Student Training Regiment's AOC/4 ran its string of softball victories to three straight by defeating AOC 8 last Saturday afternoon at Stroup field to the tune of 11 to 2.

It was a slug-fest all the way with AOC 4 coming from behind in the first half of the seventh inning to score six runs. Candidate Greenbaum's homerun, with all bases loaded, sewed up the game.

AOC 2, overpowered by AOC 4 twice before, will attempt to snap this winning streak Sunday afternoon at Stroup field.

Army Insignia Collector Has Over 500 Different Varieties

Collecting United States army regimental insignia during a 12-year Army career has been an interesting hobby for Captain William A. Connor, of the Supply and Maintenance Division, European Air Transport Service Headquarters, Wiesbaden, Germany. The collection now includes more than 500 insignia of that many separate units, gathered in all parts of the United States, in Panama and in both the European and Pacific theaters.

Captain Connor started the collection in 1935 when a private first class at Albrook Field, Panama. The insignia were rarely glamorous to his youthful eye at first but he soon discovered that the design of each insignia had a meaning and that historical events usually were represented. This study has held his interest through the years.

Phrases Have Meaning
When a dragon appears on a design, for instance, the unit represented took part in the China Campaign at the time of the Boxer Insurrection. Similarly, a lion may reveal that a unit took part in the Revolutionary War or saw service on Belgian soil during World War I. Other symbols which the United States Army participated also have particular symbols of identification. Insignia may bear symbols taken from provinces or cities of France, representing the service performed by individual organizations during World War I.

A terse phrase or inscription on insignia, while meaningless to most people, often conveys an important message to the wearer. The words "Semper Paratus," meaning "Always Ready," or "Alum Servitium," meaning "Winged Service," are examples of Latin phrases. Some are in English, such as "We Excel," but these phrases usually are expressions of pride or challenges. They may be a war chant, such as "Geronimo."

May Identify Place
Other insignia may reveal the identity of a particular place or locality where the unit was organized. During World War I an infantry regiment composed of soldiers from southern Illinois had an insignia with the design of a sphinx. It probably is not widely known that southern Illinois long ago was nicknamed "Little Egypt," supposedly because the land in that area is considered to resemble the valley of the River Nile in productivity. The residents of that region are proud of the nickname. This is only one of many such examples Captain Connor has discovered.

Captain Connor started his collection by obtaining spare insignia from men who were being transferred to other units. He soon found that Pier 18 in Balboa was a fruitful source of insignia from units serving in the Philippines and the Far East, for that was a stopping point for ships en route to the States. Later, during a tour of duty in the States, the collector added insignia of many Reserve, National Guard, and Regular Army units.

Band Notes

The 72nd ACF Band, although primarily a military organization, now boasts of two dance orchestras. One orchestra is under 1-Sgt. Samuel B. Sousa and the other under 1-Sgt. Benjamin C. Gortese.

Sgt. Gortese recently lost two bandmen, P-4 Harold B. Bauman and Pfc. Wilson C. Hitchcock. At the same time Sgt. Sousa reported the loss of three men, T-5 Richard C. Rice, T-5 Earl C. Barth and T-5 Lester E. Chambers.

New members to Sousa's dance orchestra include Pfc. William T. Evans, Pfc. Rinal H. Didier and T-4 Joe Passarelli. All band leaders announced this week that men for both the concert-marching band and the orchestras are in demand. Musicians may arrange an audition by calling the band at 3163.

Five Million Fail To File Vet Claim

Major General William H. Kasten, chief of finance, U. S. Army today announced the receipt of more than 5,600,000 claims for terminal leave pay from veterans of World War II, and urged an estimated five-million or more Army veterans who have not yet filed claims to do so as soon as possible.

Of the 5,646,088 claims received to date by army finance officers throughout the United States 3,685,384 have been honored and paid to date. Payment of all claims now on hand is expected to be made within the next 60 days. Payments to date total $738,571,402, of which $725,668,873 was paid in bonds and the balance, $5,902,529, by check. Included in the total amount paid for unused terminal leave is the sum of $1,293,705 disbursed by check to eligible survivors of veterans who died after discharge from the Army and before applying for terminal leave pay.

Helicopter Training On Tap for AGF Men

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Plans for training AGF personnel to pilot and maintain the Ground Forces' new Bell YH-13 Helicopters have been revealed by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, AGF commander.

Pilot students are scheduled to attend 90-day classes at Bell Aircraft Corporation, N. Y., with a new class commencing every two weeks through May 12. Retired AGF liaison pilots, Regular Army, Reserve and National Guard officers on extended active duty are eligible for the helicopter training.

Big Jet Bomber Passes Test Run

One of the first of the Army Air Forces' four-jet engine-propelled bombers the North American XB-45, successfully completed its first test flight at Muroc Army Air Base, Cal. The XB-45 was aloft for one hour and four minutes.

A significant development in military aviation, the one of America's first operational bombers to employ jet propulsion. The plane has a wing span of 89 1-2 feet, is 74 feet 3-4 inches long and 25 feet high from the ground to tail top.

The XB-45 by World War II standards compares in size to a heavy bomber, however it is substantially more.

Highly Streamlined
The XB-45 is patterned along conventional lines, although it is highly streamlined. Its four-jet engines, General Electric designed and manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors are arranged in pairs in single nacelles on each wing. The engines are located entirely ahead of the leading edge of the wing for ease of accessibility and maintenance. Designed for high speeds, the XB-45 has the sleek lines of a modern fighter and is entirely free of protruding gun turrets or other equipment. The only protuberance is the plastic bubble atop the fuselage, far forward of the wing leading edge, where the pilot and co-pilot sit in tandem.

Flaps and the tricycle landing gear of the XB-45 are operated hydraulically, while the trim tabs are actuated electrically. Hydraulic boost action is also used to operate elevator, aileron and rudder controls, so that 85 percent of the energy required to move these surfaces is done hydraulically and only 5 percent by the pilot.

Pressurized cabins for its four-man crew are features of this new bomber, which is designed to operate at high altitudes.

All But 2 African Air Bases To Close

Of the approximately 30 major African air terminals used by the Army Air Forces during the war, all except two have been closed or returned to their former owners.

U. S. policy of returning installations whose wartime purposes had been fulfilled resulted in the closing of AAF fields which played a strategic part in our war and defense plans.

Over the years the AAF operated 190 airfields in North Africa some of which were described as newer and larger facilities were made available.

Still operated by the Air Transport Command are Wheelus Field at Tripoli, Libya, and Roberts Field near Monrovia, Liberia. Roberts Field, 400 miles north of the equator, is already scheduled for deactivation, and Air Transport Command operations at this field are being reduced beginning this month, according to Brigadier General James F. Powell, commanding general of ACT's European Division.

TIS Classes Attend Third Air Course

Approximately 400 students from the basic and advanced classes of Fort Benning Infantry School attended the Ninth Air Force's Air Indoctrination course this week. A series of lectures, films, and films on air-ground power climaxed yesterday afternoon by an 83-minute aerial demonstration at Dekkar strip in the Alabama area.

This is the third air course to be offered to students in important Army service schools. Others who have taken the course are the Armed Forces staff college and Command and Staff college. Scheduled to attend classes before May 3 are the Armored School, Coast Artillery School, Field Artillery School, General School, and Air University.

The Infantry School will not present its three-day show this week since all students get the same instruction during their courses at the school.

Last week the Infantry School unveiled war-time secrets and the latest developments in infantry fire-power for the benefit of the visiting students from the Command and Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Tag Deadline Date April 30

All persons, both military and civilian, operating privately owned vehicles on the Fort Benning reservation were warned today by the Provost Marshal that the deadline date for 1947 registration is April 30.

Military police also pointed out that the fact that a person has received his Georgia state license plates is no excuse for not being registered providing the necessary application has been made according to law. Requirements for post registration are the same as last year, authorities said, pointing out that those not familiar with current regulations may inquire at the Registration office in the Provost Marshal building.

At the same time MP officials said that all drivers of privately owned and operated vehicles should renew their driver's licenses and insurance policies. Failure to accomplish these renewals automatically cancels post registration.

Those persons who are already registered are reminded that both tags should be displayed on the vehicle, one on front and one on back. The windshield sticker has been eliminated this year.

Devexers At Post To See Air Show

General Jacob L. Devers, commander of the Army's ground forces, arrived at Fort Benning at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday morning to witness the Ninth Air Force's aerial demonstration in the afternoon.

This morning General Devers held a conference with Infantry Center officials. It is expected that he will leave the post this afternoon.

On his short stop-over at Fort Benning General Devers was accompanied by Brig. Gen. R. M. Bathurst, deputy chief of staff, Army Ground Forces, and Brig. Gen. C. Clark, member of the AGF G-3 staff.

THE CHILD AND THE LILY — Little Sharon Hopkins offers the purity of the lily and the unstinted love from her immaculate heart to the church as her Easter offering.

Plans Completed For Sunrise Service

Final plans for the impressive Easter sunrise services slated for Fort Benning's picturesque Campbell King Horseshow Bowl next Sunday were completed today as the Main chapel choir and 72nd Army Ground Forces band were put through their last rehearsals.

Programs have been printed and will be distributed to the thousands of guests expected to make the annual pilgrimage to Fort Benning for celebration of the Resurrection.

Sunrise is scheduled for 6:22 a. m. April 6, and the Fort Benning services will get underway promptly at 6:30 when trumpeters from the 72nd AGF band sound the call to worship. Just prior to the processional the band will render several religious numbers with appropriate Easter themes.

The colorful processional will be highlighted by the white-robed junior and senior choirs from the Main Post chapel followed by a post Protestant chaplains. Preceding them will be the color bearers carrying the United States and Christian flags. The parade will enter the east end of the scenic horseshow bowl and proceed to the white-draped altar at the west end.

The altar, set against a natural backdrop of tall, whispering pine trees, will face east and the ribbon. The choirs and chaplains will take their positions on the altar amid tall white candles which candelabra entwined with evergreens. Myriads of slender Easter lilies and an illuminated cross will complete the altar decorations.

Seated in the center of the verdant Campbell King Horseshow Bowl will be more than 900 Fort Benning troops in the form of a cross. The living cross has always been one of the main features of the sunrise services.

After the processional the entire congregation will join the choirs in singing the hymn.

Local Merchants Have No Kick With Post Exchange, Paper Says

While a battle against what some U. S. merchants term unfair practices by Army Post Exchanges is being waged by the Columbus Merchants Association today, stoutly behind the Fort Benning Post Exchange, according to the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers.

Washington officials have reported, according to the Columbus papers, that numerous protests have been registered charging abuse in the operation and activity of PXs over the nation.

No Complaints. Despite rumors that Congressional fights are expected over the issue, the more than 300 members of the Columbus Merchants Association declared that they have no complaint against the activities of the Fort Benning exchanges.

Fort Benning officials echoed this sentiment. Fort Benning Post Exchange officials said today that they had heard rumors that there have been protests in other parts of the country that certain citizens would prohibit PXs from selling anything but the basic items. These Riding at the helm of Fort Benning's mammoth Army Day cavalcade of military might, which is scheduled to move slowly through downtown Columbus April 7 at 10 a. m., will be W. C. Bradley, leading Columbus citizen and industrialist, who has been chosen again this year as marshal of the parade.

The motorized extravaganza of rumbling tanks and truck-borne troops will be an eye-opening preview of the gigantic celebration of the nation-wide Army Week, scheduled this year for April 6-12. Using the slogan, "A Strong America is a Peaceful America," Fort Benning will raise the curtain to show the motorization, mechanization, and modernization of the peace-time Army.

Thousands of Columbuses and Chattahoochee Valley residents are expected to line the sidewalks as the gigantic parade moves majestically down Broadway to the tune of two Army bands. Zooming overhead in flight formation will be an even dozen big Fairchild C-32 Packets and six speedy P-50 jet-propelled reconnaissance planes. Flying at an established ceiling of 10,000 feet, the Ninth Air Force aircraft will make two passes over the long column of Fort Benning vehicles and troops.

Mounted Platoon. A mounted platoon of white-helmeted military police will lead the parade, and will be followed by 20 medium tanks and two motorized batteries of 105 mm. howitzers of the 75th Tank Battalion, highlights of the spangling motorcade.

Spectators will thrill to the sight of paratroopers decked out in full battle regalia, who will ride in festively decorated jeeps immediately behind the tanks. Steel helmets shellacked in a forest green color will gleam brightly as they catch the eye-catching scene as a proud company of airborne soldiers from the 501st Parachute Battalion surveys the crowds.

Equally spotlighted in the parade will be the hard-working 1290th Engineer Battalion, one of Fort Benning's most sought-after demonstration units. Bringing up the rear will be Company C of the 25th Infantry Regiment, an all-Negro unit well-known for precision.

Ninth Air Force May Pick Lawson As Headquarters

Lawson Field is under consideration by Army Air Force officials as a possible headquarters for the Ninth Air Force, according to the Associated Press.

Greenville Army Air Base, S. C., present headquarters of the Ninth, has been declared a surplus installation, and facilities must be transferred elsewhere prior to July 1, it was reported. Another possible headquarters site under consideration, AP said, is Pope Field at Fort Bragg, N. C.

General Available. Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, commanding general of the Ninth Air Force, had returned to GAAB Monday when the announcement was made and could not be reached for comment.

Brig. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb, deputy commanding general of the Ninth, who is at Fort Benning in conjunction with the Air Indoctrination course, confirmed the AP report but declined to name the next location.

"The new location is still under consideration," he said. "There are several sites being considered."

Questioned specifically whether Lawson Field were among them, he declined comment.

"Persons 'Good' The Associated Press dispatch quoted "chances in a position to know" as saying "they believe the new headquarters would be either Pope Field, near Fort Bragg, N. C., or Lawson Field." The report said that Pope Field's chances of being selected are good.

Ninth Air Force public relations officials said that it was natural that the headquarters wanted to be near airborne units since the Ninth is essentially a troop carrier organization. Fort Bragg and Fort Benning maintain airborne soldiers.

ATC Cancels Alamo Flights During April

The Air Transport Command is cancelling all but one of its scheduled continental flights for the month of April, it was announced Monday, ATC representative at Lawson Field, was informed Monday.

The temporary cancellation will affect Alamo flights through Lawson Field according to Lieutenant Bonzon. The base office will remain open for air evacuation flights, however, he said. The flight continuing operations is the Kitty Hawk, an ATC flight between Dayton, O., and the West Coast.

Last War Cost To Exceed $700,000,000,000

An informal study of the cost of war to the nation in the past hundred years reveals that until the peoples of the world learn the secret of living together in peace an adequate military establishment is the most effective and least costly insurance against future aggression.

A summary of four major conflicts involving the United States during the period, compared with the national wealth and population paints a graphic picture of the progressively and sharply accelerated rise of the cost of war in lives and resources.

Cost Comparison
An appropriate accompaniment to the theme of Army Week this year—"A Strong America is a Peaceful America"—the study showed that World War II cost times as much as the Mexican War (1846-48) in wealth, 24 times as much in human lives.

Involving approximately 10,200,000 U. S. troops, the late war ran up a bill of 315,000 dead and $340,000,000. By 1972 accounts costs directly connected with the war will raise the latter figure to $700,000,000, according to estimates.

The Mexican War, with 104,224 U. S. troops and costing $124,946 million and $139,500,208.

Statistics Related
Increasing effort on the part of the nation and the national economy is indicated by comparison of pertinent statistics. The United States actively involved six-tenths of one per cent of the nation's population in 1846-48, twenty-six hundredths of one per cent of the national wealth at that time. World War II, on the other hand, cost approximately 87.4 per cent of the entire national wealth, with approximately 15 per cent of the 1930 population of the United States during the course of conflict.

The Second World War was almost twice as expensive in lives (315,000 against 153,663), twenty times as expensive in wealth as World War I. The bill for the latter came to $21,850,000,000 or to 20 times the pre-war national debt and enough to pay the entire expenses of the U. S. Government in 1919 to 1917, the study revealed.

Many Vehicles

...tion shell, and the 33rd Field Artillery Battalion, grazing their hard-hitting heavy weapons behind them.

Touch of Color
Adding color to the vehicular display of a mighty segment of America's post-war Army will be the 72nd Army Ground Force and the 72nd Airborne Division. The 72nd will be stationed in front of the reviewing stand at Twelfth street and Broadway, while the 25th will take its state at the intersection of Tenth street and Broadway.

Meanwhile, high-ranking representatives of Fort Benning and prominent Columbus civic leaders will receive the salute from the specially selected reviewing stand at Twelfth street. The Army parade will begin at Fourth Avenue and Thirteenth street and proceed down Broadway to the west side of Broadway, then down to Eighth street to Fourth Avenue. Fort Benning vehicles will return to the post via the Victory highway.

From 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. April 7 a static display of infantry weapons will be set up in the Broadway parkway between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. On hand to answer questions and describe the use and power of the weapons will be a half-dozen combat infantrymen and Infantry School instructors.

Lawson Open House
Lawson Field has designated April 10 as the day for their annual "open-house" to which more than 600 civic club representatives from Muscogee and Russell counties have been invited. Outlining the edges of the large flying field will be some of the Army Air Force's latest aircraft, including P-80 jets, P-81 night-fighters, rocket-carrying P-47s, and bomb-laden A-26s. What will be built above the P-80 and P-51 so that visitors can get a first-hand view of the tiny cockpits used by Army pilots.

Fort Benning has invited representatives from civic clubs to be their guests April 9 for the Ninth Air Force's 93-minute aerial demonstration which comes as a thrill-packed climax to the three-day Air Induction course. All during Army Week Columbus merchants will salute the Army, and Fort Benning in particular, with special shop window displays and burning and flag-draped lamp posts.

HERE'S SWELLEN AT U— Considering what she is displaying (supposedly only the latest in swim suits) is wonder just how far her is going. The Mrs. Gokhwa-Meyer will probably make you feel as if you want to smile, too—right back at her!

Robert P. Canis. All persons of the Lutheran faith at Fort Benning are urged to attend the communion service.

Good Friday will be commemorated at all post chapels tomorrow. Services will be held at the Main chapel at noon, Lawson Field at 11 a.m., the Airborne chapel at 7:30 p.m., School Troop chapel at 7:30 p.m., 33rd Field Artillery chapel at 6:30 p.m., Chapel No. 3 at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., Student Training Regiment chapel at 5:30 p.m., and Sand Hill chapel at 5:30 p.m.

Catholic Observance
Persons of the Catholic faith will celebrate the Passion according to St. John, the solemn prayers for all mankind, unveiling and veneration of the cross, and the stations of the cross in the Catholic chapel at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Again at 6 p.m. Catholics will celebrate the stations and veneration of the cross. Similar Catholic services will be held at the Station hospital, Airborne chapel, Harmony Church, Sand Hill, and Lawson Field chapels.

Eastern Sunday at 7:30 and 9 a.m. and again at noon masses will be sung at the Main Post Catholic chapel. At 10:30 a.m. sunrise services will be held in the Campbell King Horseshow Bowl for all Fort Benning Catholics. The mass will be sung at that time by the choir from St. Joseph's Sem-

Post Sanitary Fill Will Be Featured On Training Film

Fort Benning's sanitary fill will be featured in a forthcoming training film now under preparation by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Three USPHS representatives are now at Fort Benning recording on film the garbage disposal methods developed here recently which have created much interest among Health Departments both in this country and abroad. They expect to complete the Benning project this week. W. H. Kimberly is the project supervisor.

The film, which will be released during July, has been tentatively entitled "Sanitary Land-Fill" and will show other methods of refuse disposal, including those employed at Fredricksburg, Va., and Muscogee county, Ga. It will be available for Army release under the designation TF-4-052. Enquiries should be addressed to the U. S. Public Health Service, Communicable Disease Center, Atlanta, Ga.

Regular Protestant services will be held Easter morning in the various chapels.

"Christ the Lord is Risen Today," Chaplain (Capt.) John E. Brydren of Lawson Field, will recite the invocation, which will receive a choral response by the combined choirs. The anthem, "O, Morning of Beauty" by Sibelius will then be rendered by the senior choir. The Scripture will be read by Chaplain (Capt.) F. D. Gant, of School Troop, followed by the Pastoral Prayer by Chaplain (Capt.) D. P. Jenkins, of the Student Training Regiment.

The Lord's Prayer with the response by the choir will precede the second anthem by a choir. For their second selection they will sing "Sunrise on Easter Morning" by Olds accompanied by the band ensemble.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) William C. Shure will deliver an Easter sermon, followed by a closing prayer and another hymn in which the congregation will join, "The Day of Resurrection." Benediction will be said by Chaplain (Capt.) Clyde F. Straub, of the Airborne Regiment, and the program will end with an arrangement of the "Pilgrim's Chorus" by the 72nd AGF band.

Fort Benning Protestants and Catholics have been celebrating Holy Week since last Sunday. Special services will continue through Easter. At noon today there will be devotions in the Main post chapel, followed at 6 p.m. by Lutheran Holy Communion offered by Chaplain

THE ADVENTRESS (comedy-drama) with Deborah Kerr and Trevor Howard. (F) Daughter of a former ardent member of the Irish Republic, Miss Kerr is not reconciled to friendship for the English and determines to carry on with her personal grudge. Before she fully realizes it, she is embroiled with German spies and possesses information that could make a catastrophe of the D-Day invasion. How she got out of the predicament is a lively and amusing tale.

BLAZES OF NOON (aviation drama) with Sonny Tufts, Anne Baxter, William Holden and William Bendix. (F) Dramatizing the hazardous lives of pilots who flew in the pioneer days of air-mail operations, this picture is packed with suspense and spectacular flying scenes. It has its share of tragedy, too—the result of trying to do a man-size job with inadequate equipment.

Officer Candidate Showed Japs How Things Should Be Done

BY ROBERT B. BENTLEY
 "The Japs argued with us only once," said O/C Colby T. Fields, a member of Officer Candidates, Class No. 6, "and that was before the American Army showed them how things should be done."
 "I was working as a master mechanic in a copier mine at Hanauway," Colby continued, "when one day the Japs in charge assigned all of us the job of moving a large electric motor a mile and half down the railroad tracks to the repair shop. We had nothing but poles and ropes with which to load it.
 "I saw a crane standing idle on a siding, so the bunch of us took it over, plopped the motor on a flat car and had it toting to the shops in next to nothing. That was the turning point. After that the Japs told us what to do, but never how to do it."
 Sergeant Fields was a prisoner for over a year at Hanauway. Being assigned as a mechanic kept him topside and out of the dangerous mine shafts where at least two men lost their lives from cave-ins.
 From the time Colby was taken prisoner on Corridor in 1942 until his release at Hanauway in late 1945, he lost 43 of his 168 pounds. He was returned to the States in October, 1945, and in January, 1947, assigned to 10th Company, AOC No. 6, where he stays almost busy enough to forget his rough experience at the hands of the Japs.
 He called her checkers because every time I made a wrong move, she jumped.

Clabe Sherman On Retired List

Master Sergeant Clabe Sherman, a member of AGF Board No. 3 and Distinguished Service Cross winner, retired from the Army March 31.
 Sergeant Sherman began his Army career at Fort Benning in January, 1925, when he was assigned to G. Company, 29th Infantry. Later he served as an assistant instructor in small arms and infantry tactics. He went overseas with the 894th Tank Battalion and was assigned to Fort Benning for duty with AGF Board No. 3 after returning to the States.
 For extraordinary heroism at Djebel Cham and Kasserine Pass in organizing a provisional infantry detachment of inexperienced personnel and creating such a division as to cause a superior enemy force to withdraw, Sergeant Sherman was awarded the DSC. At a later date he was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action at El Guettar. Both actions took place in North Africa.
 Sergeant Sherman was in charge of the Board shop with supervision over the care and allocations of material used by AGF Board No. 3.
 With his wife, three sons and one daughter, Sergeant Sherman plans to make his home on a farm in Tennessee.

Lawson Sergeant Retires After 30 Years Service

M-Sgt. Thomas W. Blackmon, Hamilton, Ga., who left his Pine Mountain Valley farm in 1916 to join the Army, recently returned home a retired veteran with more than 30 years service. He returned to Hamilton, where he plans to spend his future, on March 31 after being retired at Lawson Field, where he was a member of the 319th AAF Base Unit.
 Blackmon, a communications and radio man, spent 28 years in the Infantry and over two years in the Air Forces. For 24 years he was stationed at various Army camps throughout Georgia including five years at Fort Benning with the 29th Infantry. When he transferred to the Air Forces in 1945 he was assigned to Kessler Field, Miss., and later served with the 235th AAF Base Unit, Biggs Field, El Paso, Texas, where he trained B-29 radio operators and operated a ground radio station. Since arriving at Lawson Field in January, 1946, he had been assigned to the Base Communications Section.

Sand Hill Units To Hold Easter Sunrise Service

The 25th Infantry Regiment and the 571st and 898th Field Artillery Battalions will commemorate the Resurrection of Christ at an Easter Sunrise Service, April 6, at the Sand Hill amphitheater.

Bishop John A. Gregg, of Kansas City, Kansas, presiding prelate of the Fourth Episcopal District, the African Methodist Episcopal Church, will be the guest speaker. Bishop Gregg is a former president of Wilberforce University and missionary to South Africa.

Approximately 500 infantry and field artillery soldiers will form a human cross in the center of the huge amphitheater. At the slope of the hill an impressive altar, decked in white and royal blue, banked with lilies, native Georgia dogwood and evergreens will be seen.

The 25th Infantry Band and an electric organ will provide the musical background for the 25th Infantry Chapel Choir, the Hammond Gospel Singers and the Spencer High School Glee Club. These singing groups will present "The Holy City," "Amen," "If You There" and other appropriate Easter music.

The service will get under way at 7:30 a. m. when 12 buglers from the 25th Infantry Bugle Corps will play church and the program is under the direction of Chaplains John A. DeVeaux, Lewis M. Durand and the Rev. Owens, Simeon T. Johnson and Leonard A. Ellis.

Post Station Hospital Initiates Ambitious Education Program

Fort Benning's Station hospital last week inaugurated one of the post's most ambitious Information and Education programs and named Capt. Arthur E. Britt to head the section, it has been announced.

The regular General Education Development tests and USARV courses will now be offered to patients in the hospital as well as assigned as permanent medical personnel. In addition, emphasis is being placed on the Army Extension courses, which were popular among enlisted men prior to the last war, but which were replaced by Officer Candidate Schools in 1941. Purpose of the extension course is to offer an enlisted man who contemplates making a career of the Army an opportunity to obtain a reserve commission.

During the regular weekly Troop Information programs at the hospital the relation between a career soldier and his government society is stressed, according to Capt. Britt, who is Regular Army medical administration officer.

Facilities provided for the prospective student at the Information and Education office in Ward B-12 in the cantonment area of the Station hospital include a large auditorium where lectures are held and moving pictures are shown. At present this room is also used as reading and study room, but plans are underway to equip the porch as a study and reading room. The small library is growing rapidly. Capt. Britt reports, and he expects to have a fine selection of both text books and fiction soon. University and college catalogs are also available for those who use the library.

Capt. Britt gained recognition during the war in Europe when he traveled for 35 consecutive nights during off-duty hours to lecture troops on the progress of the Allied armies. He is assisted at the hospital by Cpl. John S. Hamah, a former school teacher.

325 Graduate In Class B-21

Saturday, March 22, Company A of the Airborne Regiment graduated one of the most outstanding classes ever to pass through Benning's Troop training course. Every one of the 325 men who entered the class early in February survived the six weeks of back-breaking physical training and iron discipline that goes into the forming of a Paratrooper.

Everyone too received his diploma. The Company, Class B-21, annexed the Airborne Regiment's "outstanding company" banner four times during their training. An achievement reflecting credit not only on the trainees but on Company A's outstanding cadre headed by Captain Timothy A. Moran, company commander, and First Sergeant R. M. Sier.

Motion pictures were taken of the graduation ceremonies to be used as an example for the classes that will follow B-21.

"DEAD END KID" WITH A FINE-HOLE CAMERA—Don Latorre, one of the original "Dead End Kids" received a great ovation when he visited Fort Benning last week. Of particular interest to post camera fans is the fact that the above picture was taken with a fine-hole camera by Sgt. Ben Zar, instructor in the Vocational School's class in photography. A clear box made light-tight, was used for a camera with a pine hole as a lens.

Post Visitors Include One Of Original 'Dead End Kids'

Last week's visitors to Fort Benning were not all important Army men, and one person in particular got a greater ovation from a few Benningites than all other guests combined. He was Don Latorre, one of the original "Dead End Kids."

Mr. Latorre dropped in unexpectedly on the Vocational night school March 24 and almost threw the classes into a panic. But then, Mr. Latorre was accustomed to throwing Fort Benning into panic, having been stationed here during the war years.

young actors who portrayed American youth so well that it tugged the heart strings of more than one father and mother. Some of the pictures in which Latorre was featured are "Dead End," "Angels with Dirty Faces," "What a Life," and "Tobacco Road". As he matured in his chosen profession, Don went on to the stage and to the radio as a member of the Lux Radio Theater's star-studded cast of professionals under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille.

On Radio Here

He was special service announcer for the Fort Benning on the Air program in the early days of the war, and later he produced the glamorous Fort Benning Aquacade at Russ pool. In addition to these major entertainment projects, the mustachioed Hollywood star presented special shows for the hospitalized at the Station hospital.

His wise-cracks and jokes kept many pain-ridden bodies happy by making them forget their injuries.

Don Latorre's background consisted of many years hard study for a dramatic profession, climaxed when he teamed up with the "Dead End Kids," a group of

When war-clouds began to hover over the United States, Mr. Latorre was drafted for Army service, and early 1941 found him at Fort Benning working, training, organizing and producing shows, and entertaining thousands of troops. So that he would not feel as though he had done too little, Don began stumping the South urging people to invest their earnings in War Bonds.

All this comparatively easy life, however, made Mr. Latorre decide that he should do even more. So he requested overseas duty. After that it became one radio-show after another. He traveled from the barren deserts and scorching sands of Africa to the frozen wastelands of Siberia, pro-

Pint-Size Supermen Form Third Platoon

BY I. M. FRY

The Third Platoon, 14th Company, Student Training Regiment was unofficially dubbed "the world's tallest middle" by its "fac" officers on the first day of school. The name stuck and with good effects. The morale is high and there is a heartening esprit de corps as the pint-sized supermen approach the end of their second week of training.

In drill, speed marches and firing these proud little men have been right in line with their big brothers of the first and second platoons.

The organization within the platoon is progressing rapidly with committee members already elected and launched headlong into their duties.

Lacks One Point Of Setting Record

Officer Candidate Bernard Nutting, a member of AOC No. 7, came within one point of setting a new record for AOC classes when he made a superior grade in both the battle conditioning course and the physical fitness test last week.

O-C Nutting ran the battle conditioning course in nine minutes and 30 seconds. In this particular phase of training, however, Nutting was second best to O-C Philip Hoekstra, who made the course in nine minutes and 16 seconds, just seven seconds higher than the record.

The battle conditioning course is over a mile and a quarter in length. It includes 16 different obstacles which must be negotiated by the officer candidate who carries a rifle with fixed bayonet during the run.

viding many hours of entertainment for the boys on the front lines.

Don continued his European tour until the mosquito claimed him a victim of malaria and he was returned to the States for treatment at Lawson General Hospital. While a patient at Lawson hospital, he was responsible for the appearance of such stars as Sonny Tufts, Brian Donley, and Dennis Morgan, and scores of others who did much to break the monotony of being bed-ridden.

Since his discharge Don has been in Hollywood and in recent weeks has appeared in the "Hop Along Cassidy" pictures. A business trip to Benning accompanied his visit to Fort Benning where he was a guest of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. Pat E. Fettingill.

Discuss Jump Pay At Trooper Meet

All airborne soldiers working at desk jobs in The Infantry Center have been informed that they will be removed from jump status effective last Tuesday unless they request transfer to the 82nd or 11th Airborne divisions, the only active airborne units at present.

The announcement was made at a special meeting of all "white-collar" sky soldiers Monday afternoon at which Col. Roy Landquist presided. Colonel Lindquist expressed gratitude of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of The Infantry Center, for the high caliber of work done by airborne soldiers at Fort Benning. He said that General O'Daniel regretted that such action had been taken and that the general had fought a losing battle to keep them here and on jump pay at the same time.

Speaking for General O'Daniel, Colonel Lindquist told the assemblage that those men who do not desire to remain here as non-jumpers should request transfer as soon as possible. Transfers will be handled through the section chiefs as replacements are made available.

Colonel Lindquist explained that the reason for suspension of jump pay for office workers came about with recent directives ordering the reduction of a battalion from 800 to 150 troops. Only those men whose primary duty is connected with training jumpers will be retained on jump status, he said.

Mack's Band At NCO Club

Members of the Post Non-Commissioned Officers' Club and their guests were entertained Wednesday evening at one of the outstanding dances of the spring season when Johnny Mack's Band furnished the music from 8 to 12.

The program was heard on station WPAK from 11:05 to 11:30, and featured vocalist for the evening was Chris Hasley. Also heard with the musical outfit was Jimmy Norvell on the drums. He was recently mentioned in Esquire and Downbeat as one of the leading drummers in the country.

STR is First Unit To Get GED Tests

The Student Training Regiment was the first organization to take advantage of the general educational development mobile testing service, which commenced its tour of the post on Monday, March 24.

This marks the first step in the Infantry Center's program to have each non-high school graduate on the post take general educational development tests to ascertain his eligibility for a high school diploma. The boards of education of forty-five of the forty-eight states recognize the tests for high school credit.

The test takes from 8 to 10 hours to complete and is given in a series of several sittings. The material is of a comprehensive nature and no time limit is set. Persons taking the test do not automatically receive a diploma, but must demonstrate that they have gained enough general knowledge since leaving school to be on a par with high school graduates.

Spring Horseshow Plans Are Nearing Completion

Prizes to be awarded in each class and ribbons will be presented in the first four places except in the children's classes where ribbons will be awarded in first six places.

Army Counselor

(This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans and their dependents. If you have a problem not discussed here, take it to your Army Counselor, Room 26, Hq. Annex.)

1. JOB-REINSTATEMENT. An industrial arbitrator recently ruled that a veteran is entitled to re-instatement in his old job even though he has been given a "bad conduct" discharge provided a union contract calls for re-employment if he "has not been dishonorably discharged." This type of contract, under this decision, gives greater protection than the Selective Service law itself, which bars veterans with bad conduct discharges from the re-instatement provisions of the law.

2. INCOME TAX.—The end of the war and emergency period will affect the tax status of Army personnel in all grades. Indicates a study of tax laws in ARMY TIMES, 15 March. The tax laws exclude from tax "until the termination of the war" enlisted pay and the first $150.00 of officers pay. Chairman Knutson of the House Ways and Means Committee states that the committee's study will take into consideration the amount of other forms of compensation now excluded from gross income. The provision (of exclusion) was desirable during the war years for the reason that civilian pay was greatly in excess of service pay in most cases. Servicemen were required to give up the civilian status and serve at reduced rates of pay. Whether such an exclusion is justifiable in peacetime can be determined only after more study is given to the matter. Effect of the termination of the war on soldiers of various ranks, if Congress does not retain the wartime enlisted tax exemption and the $150.00 exclusion for officers, is shown in the following tables. The taxes shown are for base pay only, but flying, overseas and longevity pay are also taxable. The figures are based on the normal deductions authorized when short-term returns are used.

Rank	Annual Base Pay		Unmarried		Married
	Without	With	Dep'ts.	Dep'ts.	With	Dep't.
Private	$ 900	$ 81	$ 61	$ 70

3. COST OF THE G. I. TO THE COUNTRY.—According to the figures supplied to the Senate by Sen. Millard E. Tydings, there has been a 250% increase in the amount spent per man in the military establishment since 1939. Some of the reasons for this can be laid entirely to higher prices; others are due partly to this factor, but many increases represent new obligations taken on by the Army in the latter group is the item for welfare, which was $35,000 in the year ending June 30, 1939, or less than 20 cents for each of the 185,000 men. During the year beginning July 1, 1947, welfare will cost 22 cents for each of the 1,070,000 persons in the Army—a total that does not include non-appropriated funds. The Army will spend $3 per man for field exercises in fiscal 1948 against $2.50 per capita in fiscal 1939, reflecting an intensified program of maneuvers and task expeditions and not increases in prices. Increase in subsistence costs from $182 per man in 1939 to $229 per man is the principal item, as is the increase from average pay from $897 to $2,239, due to the pay increases granted.

4. DEADLINES, VETERANS' RIGHT AND BENEFITS, WORLD WAR II—

- Until July 1, 1947—Application for $1600 automobile may be made by leg imp.
- Until July 1, 1947—Veterans discharged on or after May 12, 1945, may enlist in Enlisted Reserve Corps in same grades held at time of discharge providing such enlistment is accomplished within 6 months of discharge, or before July 1, 1947 (whichever is later).
- Until August 1, 1947—Reinstatement of term National Service Life Insurance without physical examination. After July 31, 1947, insurance may be reinstated without physical examination, provided application is made within three months of date of lapse.
- Until August 1, 1947—Veteran may apply for waiver of insurance premiums which he had been entitled since August 1, 1946. After August 1, 1947, no premium will be waived which become due more than one year prior to receipt in the VA of application for waiver.
- Until September 1, 1947—Applications for terminal leave pay may be made.

Good Friday Rites Slated At Chapel

Good Friday will be marked in the Post Chapel with a service of meditation and devotion from 12:30 to 2 p.m. on Friday, April 4. It was announced today by Chaplain Emmett Jones who is arranging the program.

At Benning Looking Backward

One Year Ago
More than 3,000 Fort Benning soldiers were polishing their equipment to get ready for the huge Army Day parade to be held in Columbus.

The USO show "Girl Crazy" opened for a three-day run. Col. R. W. Jenna, ETO veteran of more than two and one-half years, assumed command of the recently activated 25th Infantry Regiment. He succeeded Lt. Col. Donald Patterson. Col. Roy E. Lunquist, former commanding officer of the 509th Parachute Infantry Regiment, assumed duties as assistant commander of the Airborne School.

Two Years Ago
More than 1,500 pounds of discarded usable clothing was donated during the first four days of the two-week campaign of the United National Clothing Collection campaign to aid hundreds of destitute civilians in liberated areas of Europe and the Far East. Capt. James B. David was designated as post chemical warfare service officer following the return of Maj. Charles S. Black to inactive status.

Four Years Ago
Col. Henry P. Perrine, executive officer of The Infantry School, nominated for promotion to brigadier general by President Roosevelt, was a member of the original Infantry School faculty.

Two regimental papers published at Fort Benning were among 74 papers to win certificates of achievement in the Camp Newspaper Services contest in which hundreds of camp and unit papers were entered. These were "The Alligator," official organ of the 124th Infantry and "The Pine-Bur," the publication of the Second Student Training Regiment. The sharp shooting 2nd STR leaders swept to the Post championship when they smashed their way to a second straight win the court over the mighty 59th Engineers 10th Armored Division champions.

My contest ends today, so if you still haven't sent your favorite gag in, better hurry. Although lots of guys have sent me gags in good faith, I found most a little too earthy to use. At any rate I'll go ahead and give the best author $5 next week sometime—along with the prizes of $3 and $2 to the second and third placers. Look for the award story next week on page one.

Guests Visit Officers Here

Several out-of-town guests are at Fort Benning this week as house guests. Among the visitors is Mrs. M. Allen of Los Angeles, California, aunt of Col. Robert N. Skaggs. Mrs. Skaggs is planning a tea in her honor. She will be here about a month.

Col. (ret.) and Mrs. George W. Cook who have just returned from a visit in El Paso, Texas, are house guests at the home of Col. and Mrs. W. Y. Mullen. The guests are the parents of Mrs. Mullen.

On leave from Kelly Field, Texas, Lt. and Mrs. David D. Homer have been guests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Carl McFarren. Mrs. Homer was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. McFarren at luncheon held Thursday at the Officers' Club for wives of the officers of the Weapon Section.

Being entertained at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. A. Motte are Mrs. McGee's parents, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. R. C. Hill who are from Denver, Colo. A tramp knocked on the door of an English inn called "George and the Dragon." The landlady opened the door, and the tramp asked for something to eat. "No," she growled, slamming the door in his face. The tramp knocked once more and again the landlady opened the door. "Now," he said, "let me speak to George."

Disappointment

A little boy sat on a bench and cried with all his might. But no one stopped to ask the boy. The nature of his plight. The crowds moved on, and people laughed; Unmindful of his trouble. But the little boy was awful sad; His gum refused to bubble. O/C Meyer Ketopoy.

Miss Stilwell Charms Group With Lecture on Chinese Art

Miss Allison Stilwell, daughter of Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell and the late General Stilwell, displayed her interest in and knowledge of Chinese art Thursday evening when she spoke on that subject at a P-TA-sponsored program held at the children's school auditorium.

The charming young speaker held the interest of her large audience as she explained that she received her artistic training in Peking, China, under the tutelage of Prince Fu Ju who is the only Court. She is known as the Manchou foreigner to have achieved the distinction of painting in this style as though she herself were Chinese.

panels from the waist and ornately decorated with embroidery work.

Adding further to the oriental theme of the event, the stage was decorated with bamboo and pear blossoms.

Speaking with authority and poise, the young lecturer completely charmed her audience as she stressed the fact that Americans are prone to look at Chinese art with little or no understanding. She set forth several rules to follow when judging Chinese art and explained that the Chinese think of their paintings as mirrors of their philosophy of life.

Tells of Lessons

Miss Stilwell also told of her lessons under Prince Fu Ju which were carried out with a great deal of ceremony and Manchou etiquette. Since her teacher spoke no English, she was taught in Chinese, a language she speaks fluently.

Following the lecture, Miss Stilwell demonstrated the Chinese style in painting with water colors by seating herself at a table and using Chinese materials to do an artistic picture of a lotus.

Proceeds from the event will be used by the P-TA for various projects carried on during the year by that group.

Miss Stilwell and her mother are here from their home in Carmel, California, and are visiting at the home of Col. and Mrs. E. F. Easterbrook. Mrs. Easterbrook is Mrs. Stilwell's daughter.

Removing his shoes, he climbed the stairs, opened the door of the room entered and closed it after him without being detected. Just as he was about to get into bed, his wife aroused from slumber, turned on the light and said, "Is that you Fido?"

The husband, relating the rest of the story said: "For once in my life I had real presence of mind."

Air Force Day To Be Observed Next August 1

Air Force Day on August 1, commemorating the 40th birthday of the Army Air Forces, will be observed under the sponsorship of the Air Force Association, a civilian organization of 70,000 former AAF men and women.

Gen. Carl Spatz, commanding general of the AAF, in an invitation to the A. F. A. to sponsor this year's observance of the growth of American air power from a three-man force of 40 years ago said:

"Your organization, whose membership comprises the alumni of the AAF, appears to me to be the best possible choice to assume the sponsorship of Air Force Day. This can be an important part in educating this country in the role of air power in our national defense scheme."

James H. Doolittle, former lieutenant general who commanded the Eighth Air Force and is now president of the A. F. A., said the organization "is honored to be the agency selected by the AAF to sponsor Air Force Day and is proud to undertake the responsibility."

The A. F. A. "wing" organizations in all 48 states and "squadron" units in towns and cities throughout the country.

Shoulder Sleeve Insignia Standardized By Army

In a move toward standardization of shoulder sleeve insignia of units other than those of the Divisions, Corps, or Armies, the varied shoulder sleeve insignia which were worn by the small, non-divisional units during war time soon will disappear. In their place will be a predominance of the familiar circular insignia, horizontally divided into equal segments of blue, white, and red, worn by the Army Ground Forces.

General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, ground forces, has announced several changes in the shoulder sleeve insignia pertaining to units under his command and the War Department has made similar changes in insignia worn by units of the National Guard, and Organized Reserve.

Some Discontinued
The changes are the result of an effort to decrease individualism or service consciousness and to instill an increased "ground force" esprit de corps. To this end, distinctive insignia worn by non-divisional units such as armored amphibian, airborne and anti-aircraft artillery, and the distinctive arc tabs above the shoulder sleeve insignia heretofore worn by members of airborne and mountain units, have been discontinued. Instead these non-divisional units will wear the insignia of the Corps or Army to which assigned. If not assigned to a Corps or Army, these units will wear the insignia of the Army Ground Forces.

Personnel except trainees of each Replacement Training Center are to wear the shoulder sleeve insignia of the Army under whose control the Center is operating.

Insignia for Guard Service schools including students under the assignment jurisdiction of the Army Ground Forces, with the exception of those on temporary duty, will wear the present Army Ground Forces insignia.

National Guard and Organized Reserve Corps divisions will continue to wear their respective shoulder sleeve insignia, but the non-divisional ground units of these components will wear the shoulder sleeve insignia of the Army Ground Forces. National Guard personnel will wear a strip with the name of the state or territory below the normal shoulder sleeve insignia when these units are not in the active Federal military service. This will be removed when in active Federal service. National Guard State headquarters and headquarters detachments will wear only the State strip.

Thompson was accompanied by his wife and officers from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, including Col. T. J. Trappnell, Col. H. A. Luberman, and Col. W. H. Henning.

'34 Academy Class Meets

Members of the West Point class of '34 held a get-together at the Officers' Club Wednesday evening when officers from both Fort Benning and Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, had an opportunity to meet together.

A buffet dinner dance featured the evening and among the guests from Fort Leavenworth were Lt. Col. Alex Stewart, Lt. Col. William Barnwell, Lt. Col. I. H. Wolf and Col. K. A. Cunningham.

Members of the class at Fort Benning present with their wives were Col. William Mullens Jr., Lt. Col. Russell Jenna and Col. D. Murray Chestnut.

Three slightly inebriated GIs were on the bus back to camp when it suddenly stopped. "What is this?" "Wendy," answered the driver. "I thought was Thursday." "I second," so an "I," answered the third, "Let's have another drink."

Lady: "Did you notice the pile of wood in the yard?"
Tramp: "Yes, lady, I seen it."
Lady: "You should mind your grammar; you say you saw it."
Tramp: "Lady, you say me see it, but you ain't seen me saw it."

Weather Flights Over North Pole Made By AAF

A series of routine weather reconnaissance flights over the North Pole has been started by the Air Weather Service of the Army Air Forces in a Boeing B-29 Superfortress of the 58th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, 308th Reconnaissance Group. The flights will obtain weather information which will be made available to all weather-forecasting agencies of this and other countries. Flights are now being made every few days, but later this spring daily flights will begin to obtain synoptic meteorological reports over an extended period.

Half-hourly weather observations will be made at the U.S. Weather Service station at Ladd Field, near Fairbanks, Alaska, and those relayed to the United States.

The project is a public service, since the Arctic and North Pole regions have been called the "cradle of American weather," and the changes which develop in the Arctic area usually reach the United States 48 to 72 hours later. Accurate weather forecasts are extremely important to orchard owners, farmers, and other citizens.

The result of the half-hourly reports is to create a number of mobile weather "stations" between Alaska and the North Pole. The uncodified report broadcast from the Pole on the first flight was sent. United States by teletype 29 minutes later from the Air Weather Service station at Ladd Field.

Breakfast On Club Program

Following the Easter Sunrise Service at Campbell King Horse-show Bowl, Block 12 NCO Club will serve an Easter breakfast. Members and their guests are assured of an ample supply of coffee, doughnuts and colored eggs available any time after 7:30 a. m. An Easter Egg Hunt will be held at 3 p. m. in the afternoon for children under 12 years of age. Prizes will be awarded to finders of the lucky eggs. A "juke" dance is scheduled for "teen agers" after the egg hunt.

Three GIs entered a roadside bar and looking around cautiously, made their way to the bartender. "I'll have a coke," said the first. The bartender looked at the man on the next stool. "I'll take an orangeade," was the quite dignified reply. Disgust written on his face, the bartender turned to the third. "Just a glass of water for me," was the request. "I'm driving."

HOW OLD-TIMERS GOT SHOES

ALBURG CENTER, Vt.—(UP)—Getting a pair of shoes was quite a proceeding here in early times. Local historians tell how farmers brought their cattle hides to the village lanerney, where they were processed and taken home. Then the village cobbler made his rounds to each of the scattered homes, turning the cured hides into shoes for the family.

12 Fights At Post Gym Friday Night

Boxing moves into the sports limelight on the post Friday night, as the bi-monthly classification fights are put on in the main post gym by the Athletic Office.

This is the third in the current series, and the previous total of nine bouts is expected to be topped tomorrow. Capt. William Fanning, post Athletic Officer, has set his sights at twelve bouts.

It was difficult to get the program going at first, but now the Boxers are still wanted, and the Athletic Office are still asking for more fighters.

Those with little or no previous experience will be able to fight in class 5. There are prizes for both winner and loser. See your unit athletic officer.

Various units have a backlog of fighters in different classes and there are new men coming in every day.

Closer Matches

It is also easier to match the fighters now that they have been seen in action, and closer bouts are expected.

Up to now most of the fights have been between class 5 men, the beginners. However, two weeks ago there were four class 4 fights, and that means that there are now four class 3 men to match.

There was one class 3 bout last time too, and the winner, George Norman, is now in class 2. Some of the men on the post boxing team are in class 2 and one may be matched with Norman.

The crowd-pleaser of the last bouts was Frank Vannuzi, a welterweight from the 324th Ordinance Battalion. He scored the only knockout of the series so far with a second-round KO of Frank Delgado.

Banner Crowd

That the classification program is a success seemed to be clearly evidenced by the banner crowd two weeks ago. The gym was packed almost to capacity, with most of the spectators there to back up men from their respective outfits.

The 37th Infantry, 324th Ordinance Battalion, and Airborne Regiment have led all other units with the number of fighters participating.

The opening bell tomorrow night will be at 8 p.m., admission is free, and everyone is invited.

A woman riding in a trolley car was anxious not to pass her destination. She poked the conductor with her umbrella.

"Is this the First National Bank?"

"No, ma'am" replied the conductor, "that's my stomach."

SPORTS— Airborne, ISD Clash In Tonight's Opener

Major Gen. John W. O'Daniel has been getting the old soupbone into shape this past week in preparation for the big Airborne-ISD baseball game tonight. General O'Daniel has been nominated to toss in the first ball, just prior to tonight's lid-lifting tussle between the Airborne Regiment's nine and the Infantry School Detachment.

The Generals' teams will climax the brief opening day ceremonies. The program will start at 7:35 Eastern Standard Time over in Gowdy Field. Both teams will line up along the first and third base out lines facing the infield as the national anthem is played. Then the flag raising ceremony will take place with the 1946 championship pennant, won by last year's version of the Airborne team, following Old Glory up the pole. The ISD will then trot out to their defensive positions, the umpires will take their posts, and the first Airborne batter will step into the box, while General O'Daniel is warming up.

To Pitch

The General will deliver the ball to the waiting hands of left hander "Ike" Silcox out on the mound, and the teams will square off for hostilities.

General O'Daniel has invited the commanding officers of all the units represented in this season's pennant hustle to be his guests at tonight's game.

Good seats are being reserved as well for members of the Airborne Regiment and the ISD by the A & R office, and it is hoped that there will be a healthy turnout to witness the spectacle.

Out on the field of battle, "Ike" Silcox, ISD southpaw, will don Floyd Dooley, Airborne moundsman. Both Dooley and Silcox were members of the post all star team last season, and both are confident of a repeat this year.

Opposite Eyes

The pitchers and the teams they represent are completely opposite types. Dooley's fast ball is his forte, while Silcox's wizardry is due to his slow stuff. Silcox has a beautiful drop, a sharp curve, and a knuckleball that even has his catcher fidgety.

His assortment was good enough last year to best the Atlanta Crackers in an exhibition game 6-5, in which he baffled such astute hitters as young Bill Goodman, who is making good with the Boston Red Sox this year.

Other comparisons of the teams show that the Airborne team will SLUGGING FITCHER—The Airborne's Floyd Dooley is a Clint Hartunglike player, in that he is equally at home on the mound or at the plate. Here he is powdering a few over the outfielders' heads. He will probably be the starting pitcher Thursday night and will play the outfield on the days when he's not twirling.

average 7 to 10 years younger than the ISD club. The Detachment's starting lineup will have a lot of men who have passed the thirty year mark. The Airborne team's youngsters ages are chiefly in the early 20s.

There's a sharp contrast in the batters' box too. Five of the pros do their swinging from the port side of the plate and represent most of the team's power.

Right-Handers Predominate

On the Airborne squad only the first two men up hit left-handed, and their big guns are right handed as the way down the line.

The respective managers of the teams, Chuck Shiver of the ISD, and Captain James L. Walker for the Airborne, have announced tentative starting lineups for tonight and here they are: ISD—Wilson, rf; Burnett, ss;

Johnson, 2b; Burt, cf; Taylor, lf; Lehner, 1b; Bowman, 3b; Shiver, c; Silcox, p.

Airborne—Dickson, cf; McGowan, 1b; Gallagher, c; Bonair, ss; Terry, 3b; McCauley, lf; Shuster, rf; Pritchard, 2b; Dooley, p.

Auburn First On Doughboy Track Slate

Working on their own time whenever they get a chance, the twenty or thirty-odd men seeking a place on the Doughboy track team are set to go to Auburn week-end on this Saturday, April 13, for a meet with the Tiger chidemmen.

Capt. Francis Naughton, former long-distance man, may hold time trials this Saturday afternoon to pick a squad to take to Auburn.

Among those who have shown promise so far are Lamar, who ran the hurdles on the West Post track team last year; E. E. Sprague, another former West Pointer, who will possibly go to thirteen feet in the pole-vault; Tucker, a two-miler who has not gained the distance in 9:30; Jack Hoefling, Doughboy center, who throws the shot; and Ralph Tolve, another shot-putter.

Ken Nowles, from the Infantry School Detachment, is another boy who has looked good. He is a California trackster, who has done 15 seconds for the 120 high hurdles and 6'1" for the high jump in high school.

Others who have been working out are Bill Scott, a broad jumper, and Raleigh Green, a half-miler, both from St. Leo High School in Florida; Milton Beckwith, Whitley, Willis Rohmedel, Tom Cator Collins, Wolf, Soggins, and Wahl.

After the team returns from Auburn they will begin to prepare for the post meet in late April. The athletes will be put on special duty with the team. The Seventh Army track meet is scheduled for Fort Benning on May 12 and 13.

Airborne Nine All Set For Tonight's Opener

General John W. O'Daniel will throw out the first ball tonight and nine Airborne soldiers will march toward the Fort Benning baseball field for the second consecutive year.

Captain Walker, busy little mentor of the paratroopers, has already cut his squad three different times and is faced with picking the nine best out of 25 good prospects to meet the tough Infantry School Detachment team.

Saturday night's workout under the lights at Gowdy Field prompted Coach Walker to come up with this probable lineup for tonight: Wommy Gallagher, hustling youngster, literally stole the starting berth at backstop from veteran Ray Cothren, who was on the championship club last year, and is due to see lots of action this season.

Crewan as First

Lefty Frank Crewan wandered out to first base the first day of practice and has been there ever since. The big question mark that was darkening the otherwise bright countenance of Coach Walker when Ken Fritchman showed up to handle the keystone sack. The Troopers boast one of the better shortstops in the league in hard-hitting Paul Bonair, who played with Idanapolis before coming into the Army. Ralph Terry will handle third base for the second year.

A big loss to the team will be outfielder Chester Fodja, who will be separated some time this week. Fodja, a hard hitting and rugged base runner, would have held down one of the regular garden spots.

Choice of Threesomes

Tonight may find either of these threesomes or a combination of them both in the outfield. The first is made up of Jim Stutler, Lyle McCauley and Floyd Dooley. Dooley, a pitcher who will be counted on heavily, may get the starting nod, but an ailing arm leaves a question mark here. The other combination will be made up of Godfrey Cassillas, a converted catcher, Bill Theis and Sam Cunningham.

With Dooley a slim possibility to start, mound duties may fall to southpaw Dick Gerhart. Backing him up on the staff will be Russ Chapman and Dave Larson, both capable performers, the former a returnee from last year's club.

Unless Captain Walker decides to make another cut in his squad the following boys will wear the Airborne uniform throughout the remainder of the season: Pitchers, David Dooley, Russell Chapman, Floyd Larson and Richard Gerhardt. Catchers, Bob Ward, (also outfielder) Tom Gallagher, Ray Cothren and Charlie Bushmeyer. First basemen, Frank McGowan; second basemen, Ken Pritchard, Adrain Maurer and Herschack Shortstoss; Paul Bonair; third baseman, Ralph Terry; Outfielders, Henry Griffin, Bill Theis, Lyle McCauley, Sam Cunningham, Chester Fodja and Jim Stutler.

ISD To Field Veteran Nine

A long workout under the Gowdy Field lights Monday night, at which time the whole team was present for the first time, brought smiles to the face of Manager Chick Shiver, Infantry School Detachment manager.

The ISD batters were breaking down the fence and Mountenden like Silcox looked in fine shape. After the workout Shiver selected his starting lineup for tonight's game, and it's a veteran nine that will take the field for the Pros.

Shiver to Catch

Burnett at short, Lehner at first, Shiver behind the plate, Taylor and Burt in the outfield, and Silcox on the mound are all returnees from last year. Burnett's position enables Shiver to catch where the SD nine wasn't too

All of these men are tried players who are familiar figures on the Fort Benning baseball scene. Burnett, Taylor, Burt, and Shiver played with the post all-star team being played first base here for over ten years.

Johnson, playing second base, is an old-timer too, having played here at Benning before the war. Shiver is counting on him to do some heavy hitting.

Youth predominates at the other two positions on the ISD nine, third base and right field. Bob Bowman, nineteen-year-old from Maryland, holds down the third base position, and "Junior" Wilson is the leadoff man and plays right field.

ISD DEPENDABLE—The state of Maryland gives the Infantry School Detachment Bob Bowman, candidate for the hot corner position on Chick Shiver's nine.

The ISD baseballers are handicapped in that they have not been able to be placed on special duty, as the Airborne players have, any they've therefore missed most of the practice sessions. However, that didn't seem to be hurting them Monday night, particularly Burt, who reached the cafeteria with one of his drives, and Johnson, who lifted two out of the park.

Five of the ISD starters are left-handed batters, and they will be setting their sights on that right field barrier, which is a scant 325 feet away.

In the 90-game schedule rigged up for the first half of the season, the ISD and Airborne teams will meet only twice, and since they also considered the league's strongest outfit, the winner of tonight's contest will have the jump on the other in the fight for the league leadership.

A & R Office Seeks Football Coaches

Perhaps it doesn't look much like football weather to you just now but football and the forthcoming season is a topic of much interest over in the post A & R office beneath Doughboys Stadium.

The athletic office has already scheduled several games for next fall including a pair with Fort Knox, and one each with the Quantico Marines, the Paris Island Marines, and the Jacksonville M.A.S.

Right now the athletic heads are casting about for a little coaching assistance to help guide the Doughboys through the season. They would appreciate hearing from any of the personnel on the post who have had football coaching experience and would like to be associated with the 1st Doughboys.

If you are qualified, Lieutenant Colonel Ballard, head of the A & R office, would be happy to see and interview you at the office. The phone number is 3411.

Puckett Promoted To Master Sergeant

T/Sgt. Albert K. Puckett, a veteran of over 28 years service, was promoted to the rank of master sergeant last week. Lawson Field headquarters has announced.

Puckett, holder of several rifle championship awards, served over twenty years with the infantry at Ft. Benning and transferred to the Air Force in 1944. He arrived at Lawson Field from Dover AAF, Delaware in January 1946. At present he is assigned to the base motor pool and plans to retire from active duty next September.

10th Company Is Winner In 2 Basketball Tilts

By STEPHEN SMOKE

Capt. Theodore B. Celmer's 10th Company AOC 6 hoopersets victory with a 42-28 verdict over the 14th Company. 2nd Platoon Saturday night at the 9th Street USO in Columbus, and followed up the next day with a 62-35 decision over the 10th Company 3rd Platoon team on the same floor.

On Saturday night, the AOC 6 team, composed of 11 candidates from the 1st Platoon, ran up 17-2 lead in the first period. Howe, 1st Platoon forward, looped and in the first three goals and Tatum and Collett promptly followed with several long range shots from the pivot to comprise the bulk of the winners scored in that stanza.

Score Narrowed

In the second quarter, Martineau and O'Leary, 2nd Platoon forwards, got hot, rung up five goals between them, and in maintaining possession of the ball for the greater part of the quarter narrowed the score to 21-14 in favor of the 1st Platoon at half-time.

The third period was a nip and tuck battle as Ferguson, Martineau and O'Leary of the second Platoon matched Prill and Collett's shots to end the quarter 28-26 with the 1st Platoon still ahead.

In the last period the 1st Platooners put on the pressure to outscore their opponents 10-0 and carry off a hard earned victory by a 42-28 score.

The following day on the same floor AOC won a decisive 62-39 victory over the 14th Company 3rd Platoon team in a "Rhode Island State" type of game. Shots were thrown in from all corners of the court and the turf unleashed at the opening whistle did not subside until the final tally had been made.

The smaller 3rd Platoon team led by Croft, Fisher and Monfere raced up and down the floor in a tireless fashion to tally 31 points among them. On the other hand, the first Platoon team stuck to its usual steady manner in setting up plays and by distributing the scoring well among the entire squad, met with greater scoring success. Prill and Smoke, 1st Platoon guards, were accurate on their long shots. Tatum with 16 points and Collett and Howe with 11 and 9 respectively on break in layup shots produced the necessary punch when the 3rd Platoon moved out to stop the guards.

Board Tactical Chief Awarded Croix de Guerre

Col. Earle A. Johnson, chief of the Tactical Section, AGF Board No. 3, has been awarded the Croix de Guerre de 1940 by His Royal Highness the Prince Regent of the Kingdom of Belgium, it was learned today.

Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of Board 3, made the presentation on behalf of the Belgian Minister of National Defense.

The citation accompanying the medal reads in part: "For exceptional war services rendered to Belgium during the liberation of her territory and her defense (1944-1945)."

Colonel Johnson has been with AGF Board No. 3 for approximately one year, and holds numerous decorations for his war service from other countries as well as the U. S.

25 Drivers Enter Second Idle Hour Racing Season

Former Benning Paratrooper Bernard Foxe will be among three local entries in the opening racing program at Idle hour park Friday evening, Promoter Alex Brewer has announced. The Philadelphia driver, who began professional racing last summer, progressed from a wobbly run in his first two races to a slick, fast performance in the finals of 1946.

Brewer said more than 25 drivers have put their names in the pot for the inaugural of the second racing season at the Phoenix City track. He praised the track as "one of the fastest and best in the South." The quarter-mile oval has been widened and the banks raised to permit faster turn speeds. Four feet of surfacing has been added.

Wayne Wynn, southeastern champion, and Leonard Curry, winner of the Martin-Geld-Prophy final race last year, will be among starting contenders. Other repeaters will be Bud Swanson, Shorty Johns, and Bob Baker.

"We will have a lot of fast eastern circuits," Brewer said. Among them will be "Hotshot" Hip Pierson of Ft. Wayne, Ind., a well known figure at Indianapolis, Hank Ross of Torrington, Conn., and Harry Hart of Philadelphia, Pa.

The racing schedule this year will include seven events, beginning with time trials at 7:30 p. m., followed by the first of three heats, at eight o'clock, the Australian pursuit race, a consolation, and the final five-mile, 20-lap feature. The Australian pursuit, introduced in mid-season of 1946, is an elimination event in which cars are started in reverse order of speed as determined by the time trials. Once completely passed, a driver must pull to the side and drop out of the race.

ISD Bowlers Whip 756th For Post Championship

The Infantry School Detachment added another to its string of post bowling crowns by besting the 756th Tank Bn. bowlers in the finale of the eight-week long tournament.

The Prof, sparked by M-Sgt. R. L. Short, won all five games of the playoff and knocked down a total of 4,406 pins to the Tankers' 3,725 to win handily.

Sergeant Short, acting as team captain, performed his duties superlatively, averaging 193.7 pins per line for the evening's highest average. Short's high game was 221 which would have been sufficient to get him high game honors usually, but Capt. Arnie L. Millican, also of the ISDRs, flattened 227 pins in his third game to edge Short. Millican had the second best average—192.5.

The ISD also had the best team total one game in the fourth game of the series. They totaled 396 pins for an average of almost 160 per man.

In the wake of this meet, yet another bowling tournament is on the books. It's to be a single and double elimination meet with all comers welcomed and is scheduled to begin soon.

501st, AGF Board Open Softball Competition

Softball competition began on the post last Saturday, when the Airborne Reds, representing the 501st Parachute Battalion, defeated the AGF Board No. 3 team, 10-2.

Onesoren and Dick formed the winning battery, setting down the AGF team with two hits. Onesoren was the batting star, also, with two triples and a double.

The 501st plans to enter the City League soft ball tournament, and is looking for games on the post. Any team interested in arranging a game should get Dick at A Company, 501st Parachute Battalion.

Lawson Ball Coaches Make No Prediction

Captain Bob Heister and Sgt. Harry Russel who will be piloting the Lawson Field baseball team elected to remain silent on any predictions of the coming season. However, they were certain in the Captain's voice that hinted things would be different this year.

Cold weather and a late start make it tough for the Lawson team to know the real strength of their club. Thirty-seven men turned out for the first day of practice and that number has grown out to 21 at present. Another cutting will bring the roster to about 15.

One of the highlights on the club is the flashy Jack Forbes who belongs to the Brooklyn Dodgers and with one of their farm teams in a class "A" circuit before he came into the Lawson Field. Another bright spot will be the spark-plug of their infield. Another bright spot will be the pitcher which rests in the hands of Frank Wilson. Wilson is from Wichita, Kansas, and played some semi-pro ball out that way.

A five man mound staff is shaping up and one more pitcher, a left hander, is expected out this week.

Saturday, April 5 Lawson Field will meet the 204th Truckers in their first game at two o'clock in the afternoon.

328th Considered Baseball Darkhorse

A dark horse in the coming scramble for honors as baseball champion is the post is the 328th Ordinance nine, coached by Lt. Keith Welch. Outside of two players who have played semi-pro ball, the club will be formed mostly of high school players.

Friday night in the 845 section of the 328th will cross bats with the 834 Field Artillery and Coach Welch will probably start the following combination: Bob Armstrong at first base; Vital Lacosse left field; Clutess Baker, right-fielder; Jim Penick center fielder; Paul Barnico, second base; Henry Schmecht, third base; Anthony Pessor, shortstop; Bob Foley catcher, and Andy Boland pitcher.

Armstrong and Pinelli both played some semi-pro ball, the latter with Williamsburg, a class D league team. Boland, a high school star has been showing promise as a young pitcher and will be counted on heavily throughout the remainder of the season.

Bishop Will Confirm Candidate Class

The Rt. Rev. Charles C. J. Carpenter, Episcopal Bishop of Alabama, will confirm a class of candidates presented by Chaplain Emmet G. Jones, assistant post chaplain, Friday afternoon, April 11, at the Post Chapel.

The service of confirmation is one in which the candidates renew their baptismal vows and are presented to the Bishop for the ancient Apostolic rite for the ancient laying on of hands.

Any persons who so desire may attend this religious service, Chaplain Jones said. The service will start at 6 p.m.

Sand Hill Quintet Ends Season With 24 Victories, 15 Losses

BY S-SGT. ALVYSEN E. WISE
Pitting their skill against the cream of the collegiate and service team basketball crop, the 25th Infantry Bullets appearing in seven states and in home games at Sand Hill, Fort Benning, completed two tourney titles, won 24 games, dropped 15 and compiled 84 points against the opposition's 883 for the season.

Three teams showed a numerical superiority over the Bullets, namely, Tuskegee with three wins out of four; the Atlanta Clippers with two straight, and Gramling College, two in three. For the remainder of their games, the Bullets either "even-strengthened" their series or annexed the respective contests.

Accepting two open tourney invitations, both March 3-4 and March 22, jousts with ease. Both tournaments were conducted on a Twin-State basis, and several of the outstanding collegiate and amateur quintets took part. Norman Skinner, former All-Ivy League guard for Columbia prior to his induction, captained the Bullets. Skinner, a high scoring guard, along with two other regulars, William Parker, forward, and Jerry Jones, center, were separated from service.

The '47 edition of the regimental team was coached by 2nd Lt. Lloyd D. Jones, a former luminary of Tuskegee Institute quintet.

This Particular Outfit Expects Good Grub

The members of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 37th Infantry Regiment, are expecting something more than beans since two of the company's mess personnel graduated with highest honors from the Food Service School's two-weeks refresher course recently.

T-1 Leonard Brown and T-5 Elthue C. Henry, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, were awarded superior ratings at the Food Service School course, which covered a general review of meat cutting, pastry cooking, mess management and menu planning.

Season at Hand, Ball Interest Lags

By MURRAY HARBING
Despite the Athletic and Recreation Office's extensive plan for a post baseball league on the battalion level, chain organizations they are counting on to provide the competition seem to be unaware of the responsibility and have made little or no preparation for the season.

The 32nd FA Bn. and the 37th Inf. Regt. and the STR can hardly be pronounced ready to take part in any severe competition as yet. The 33rd, under the leadership of Sgt. Bill Brooks, held their premiere practice last Tuesday and are scheduled to play their first game tomorrow night against the 32nd Ordinance. The 33rd may have a prospective opponent at home but Sgt. Brooks will hardly be in a position to know it in that short span of time.

Leaving Post
There is reason for the 33rd holding off as long as they did, however. As yet the officers do not know at the present they are scheduled to move off the post early next Monday. It is felt that a necessity would withdraw their team from competition right in the middle of the first half of the season.

It's hard to place the blame for what looks like a rather lax attitude towards the sport but it would appear to lie somewhere in the battalion. The A & R office states emphatically that teams were entered by request only.

Either the 37th is scheduling their practices at the wrong time or there is no interest in the unit team. The 37th has not yet appointed a manager for the prospective nine, though they must be aware that they are represented by a team.

Pvt. "Doc" Robinson has assumed the duty of coaching temporarily, and is not too well pleased by the apathetic response 18 men have showed up for practice, some of whom candidly admit they have little experience except for what can be gleaned from watching the sport played.

Most of the men that have played before are members of the Doughboy basketball team, and are still on active duty. Of these, Walt Piebes, a pitcher, looks like a standout. Ed Davis, another pitcher, looks very good also, and Bill Miller, Doughboy center in the winter, has the build and the ability to make an acceptable first baseman. Robinson himself plans to handle second base, but the rest of the squad is wide open.

We aren't requesting the 37th to give the summer off to anyone who would like to play baseball, but it certainly wouldn't hurt to place just a little more emphasis on athletics. A unit's athletic teams are one of the chief sources of pride for an outfit, or vice versa.

STR Nine Hampered
The STR nine, if they can field that many, is hampered by rather different circumstances. They will not be allowed to draw material from the ranks of the officer candidates they are training, nor from the West Pointers taking the basic officers course. The wholesale elimination leaves only the Headquarters and Service Companies to draw on.

What's more, they are not allowed to practice on the Regimental time, which leaves them Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and all day Sunday on which to practice. Since it takes an act of Congress or a direct order to get most military men to exert themselves on Sunday, we can safely discard that as a practice day.

4 Practice Drills
Due to this unique arrangement the STR team will have had exactly four practice sessions prior to their first game next Sunday. Fortunately they are matched against the 37th, making it a fair, if even, if dull contest. Surely enough, the schedule makers have arranged matters so that each team will be forced to play every other team in the circuit, and that may prove embarassing to both the players and their unit. Frankly it strikes this reporter as a little odd that the STR, whose job is to train officers for the army, should deprive them of a chance to compete sabbatically for their unit, particularly when they have arranged the practices at a time when the candidates would be able to compete.

Lawson Nine Set For Banner Year

The 1290th Engineers had eighteen men out for its initial baseball practice session last week, but they are far from being in shape to play their opening game.

Like the 37th, STR, and 33rd, the Engineers lack practice and organization at this stage. The battalion has been holding an inter-company league, with H & S and B Companies tied for the lead at the last accounting.

Sgt. John Peters, who will be the team's manager, says that the 1290th will win its first games once it gets some games under its belt.

Among those counted on for service are Joe Harnois, Paul Long, and Fred Jordan of the Engineers' basketball team, Felix Tartaglia, who played for the AFG Ramblers last year, and Wassick, Faust, Allman, and Corvell.

Keen Interest In League Games Shown By Truckmen, Tankers

Two unit baseball teams that have been practicing regularly, and show an interest that is characteristic of most of the league teams are the 204th Truck Battalion and the 756th Tank Battalion.

Both of these outfits have had large turnouts, and will be well prepared for their opening tilt against the 756th with the 1290th Engineers Friday night, and the 204th with the Student Training Regiment Saturday.

Probable Starters
Probable starting lineup for the 204th nine will be: Nick Kramarchyk or Doster McAfee at shortstop; Cy Morris at 2b; Lloyd Tallent at 3b; Chet Horton at 1b; Palmer Hopkins in cf; Leonard Maciejewski at Ray Norvell in lf; Johnny Lopez catching; with either Ed Tolozowicz or Doyle Feeler to start on the mound.

Cpl. Johnson and Lt. Springer, the latter being the 204th's manager, have been working with

The truckers have two former minor leaguers on their squad in Doyle Feeler and Len Maciejewski.

Drills For Opener
Out in Harmony Church the 756th Tank Battalion has been preparing for its opener, with a large group of candidates out for starting positions.

The following is a list of some of the tankers' diamond aspirants: George Beverly, pitcher; Demir, 2b; Paul Ducklin, 1b; James Vick, 2b; John Fogel, ss; James Jones, Martinez, Robert Monteth, Joe Munson, Herschel Miller, Howard Feltnan, Bernard Bartoszek, Herbert Martin, and Frank McDermott.

Kenneth Watts is the manager of the 756th's nine and is one of the team's pitchers.

Sand Hill Boxing Tournament Ends In Finals Tonight

BY S/Sgt. ALYSEN E. WISE
 Tonight starting at 8 o'clock, top finalists of six respective classes will vie for titles. STR Rebels Win 4, Drop 1

BY CARROLL COOK
 The softball team of the 11th Company STR, headed by C/Co. Manuel Silva, has been going great guns since opening of the Beach League at Stroop Field. They have won four of the five official games played to date.

Leading the Rebels in the hitting department is John McChiffey with a swat average of .566. Stepping up to the plate nine times, the mighty mite has rattled the pitcher for six hits.

Baraway "Steve" Greenbaum is the hardest-hitting man on the team, blasting the opposing hands with one home run, a triple, three doubles and a single "diner" while keeping home plate busy with a total of nine runs batted in.

Silva, the colorful Venezuelan and playing manager of the rebels, is also batting a healthy .500 and leads with an impressive total of four scored runs. Little H. W. McGrath, playing a sterling game at first, and as a relief hurler, has lanced the pellet out of the infield four times in nine trips to the mound.

With a mound staff consisting of Louis Morrell, Rayburn Sherer and Henry Hines, the Rebels from 11th Company looks like the team to beat all competition.

Khaki Duds Herald Spring's Approach

Another harbinger of spring is in evidence at Fort Benning this week as the members of the 37th Infantry have shed their winter woollens for crisp sun-tan uniforms.

The change about with the announcement last Monday that summer uniforms will be optional from April 1 to 15 for both officers and enlisted men. Beginning April 15 the sun-tan or summer uniform will be the only authorized dress on or off the reservation.

At the same time it was announced that those persons wearing the summer uniform will be allowed to wear field jackets as an outer garment both on or off the post. Neckties will be worn at all times when off the reservation and after 6 o'clock in the evening. The only trousers authorized without neckties after 6 p.m. are those engaged in field exercises.

Students and troops in formation, it was pointed out, however, may not wear the summer uniform until revellie April 15.

AOC Classes Begin At Riley June 5

The initial Army Officer Candidate class at Fort Riley's Military General School will begin June 5, school authorities announced today.

Class No. 13 will be the last to train at Fort Benning. Class No. 14 will begin June 5 and end Nov. 28, it was reported.

Students will be housed at Camp Forsyth in the old Cavalry Replacement Training Center area, known as "The Flats."

The yearly quota for officer candidates at Fort Riley will be 3,000. Class capacity will be 200 students for each six-months course with an 1,800 capacity at one time.

Officials announced that classes 15, 16, and 17 will open at Fort Riley June 28, July 31, and Aug. 21, respectively.

Reserve Corps Group Planned By Nurses

Plans for an Army Nurse Corps section in the Officers' Reserve Corps, which will be set up under the bill just passed by the House, were discussed during the four-day conference of the Army's chief nurses from all parts of the country, Colonel P. A. Blanchfield, Chief of the Nursing Assistant's Division, announced today.

The conference was devoted to a consideration of present policies and practices and long-range plans concerned with nursing problems. With the passage of the pending legislation there will be for the first time in the Officers' Reserve Corps nurses and also dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists.

By PFC. MILF MOSKOWITZ

The great American sport of baseball, known as the national pastime, is upon us again. The Pacific Coast League was the first to get its schedule under way last Tuesday and the Fort Benning season opens up tonight.

While all of the major and minor league clubs have been holding practice for over a month now, we're sorry to say that the same is far from true here on the post. With the opening game to be played tonight, it seems that almost half of the teams haven't begun to practice seriously yet.

Exceptions to this general state of affairs are the participants in tonight's curtain-raiser, the Infantry School Detachment and the Albroene Battalion teams. They have been working out for about three weeks now, have played exhibition games, and are probably the only nines ready to start the season.

The 129th Engineers have been holding an intra-battalion league, and the 204th Truck Battalion had a large turnout for its team; but again, they are exceptions. The way things stand now, it looks as if the league will have to spend the first half of the season getting into shape.

The situation in the 37th Infantry Regiment is much the same as in most colleges, where the baseball activity can not begin until the baseball season is over and the players are released.

Carl Robinson, Bill Miller, Walt Piebes, and Ed Davis—all from the Doughboy quintet—form the nucleus of the 37th nine.

Speaking of college baseball, we were glad to see something done for it last week by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The NCAA has decided to hold a post-season college baseball tournament the same way it does in basketball.

The country will be divided into eight districts, and as committee from each area will be chosen to pick the best college team in their section to take part in the national tournament.

One of the men behind the scenes who has probably had most to do with this step, is Bill McCarthy, coach of the New York University baseball team. McCarthy has been angling for something like this to make college ball more popular for a long time. He was appointed head of the Eastern NCAA committee.

"The Sporting News," the official baseball bible, reports that a boy named Paul Lehner is making a determined bid for a starting job with the St. Louis Browns. He has particularly impressed with his fielding ability.

This Lehner is no one other than a younger brother of the Lefty Lehner who works here in the Army Field Printing Plant and who first bases for Chick Shiver's Infantry School Detachment team.

Then there's the story of a little boy who returned from his first Sunday school class. When his mother asked him what he learned he replied: "Oh, all about the ten commandments!"

Hypnotist Makes Subject Pick Violets From Service Club Floor

"What is your name?" "Mary had a little lamb." The dialogue may seem peculiar, but that was the answer Pvt. Judson Blakely insisted on giving one Thursday night recently at Service Club No. 1. However, all his actions become a little more understandable when it is realized that he was hypnotized at the time.

Hypnotism is a weekly event at the club when Cosie Frawick takes over the program. Frawick, an employee at the Post Exchange, says he has been practicing hypnotism as a hobby for many years and learned the art from reading about the subject.

Called "to Sleep 'It's the power of suggestion," he explained after putting three members of his audience into a hypnotic trance. To do it he simply talks to them about sleep and assures them they will awaken feeling well. Besides doing one man at a time, he also tries mass hypnotism and reports that he has put as many as six people to sleep at one time.

Private Blakely became a subject for Mr. Frawick and once asleep, the young paratrooper became a willing "servant" to the suggestions of the hypnotist. Blakely apparently felt, saw and smelled each thing suggested, to him, and his audience watched him as he picked violets, was stung by a bee, tried to sell flowers, was soaked in the rain and went inside to warm himself by a stove. To Private Blakely, who later reported he had never been hypnotized before, this was all very real and he enjoyed smelling the flowers he picked from the bare floor.

Another subject for the evening was Pfc. Thomas C. Powers. He followed the directions of Mr. Frawick and later said he didn't know what was going on while he was deep, but he waked up feeling fine.

Major's Son "Victim" Ted Markland, 14-year-old son of Maj. Curtis Markland, offered himself as a subject for the demonstration and was soon asleep. He saw, felt, stuck the floor and petted imaginary dogs while under the influence of the smooth voice of Mr. Frawick.

The hypnotist, a regular feature at the club, lives in Baker Village and has been at Fort Benning for several years. He has never done hypnotism as a professional act, but his show is popular here and anyone interested is invited to drop in on a Thursday evening and take dropping off to sleep under his soothing voice.

1st Con: "What are you in for?" 2nd Con: "Rookie, me wife to sleep."

1st Con: "But they can't put you in here for that."

2nd Con: "You ain't seen the seize of the rock."

HO-HUM!—Obviously, one is supposed to say something about the fish net, the boardwalk and the clouds in the background. Obviously. But Pat Vaniver, Walter Thornton model, is just a little more obvious than the fish net, the boardwalk, and the clouds in the background. Pin-ups—Ho-hum!

Top Newsmen See Air Show

The Army's air-ground power was reported to the nation by a bevy of newsmen who arrived at Fort Benning last Sunday to witness the Ninth Air Force Air Indocination Course. It is expected that they will leave sometime today.

The newsmen, representing the leading newsreel companies, newspaper and service journals, were guests of Maj. Gen. Elwood Quesada, commander of the Tactical Air Command. Wednesday evening they were feted at a party given by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel at the Officers' Club.

Among those who had arrived at press time were Gil Rob Wilson and Ansel Talbert, New York Herald-Tribune; Ty Sanders, Universal Newsreel; John Norris, Washington Post; Oscar Goodman, Paramount Newsreel; Bill Miller, Newsweek; Weber Hall, Fox News; John Muller, News of the Day; Fred Graham, New York Times; John Hughes and John Klein, New York Daily News; Paul Alley and Harry Tugander, National Broadcasting company television department; Les Horowitz and William Friedman, Air Force magazine; Douglas Larsen, Scripps-Howard newspapers; Mrs. Anne Hecker, National Aeronautics magazine; and Warren Smith, Fairchild aircraft.

Representatives expected to cover the Wednesday afternoon aerial demonstration were reporters from the Atlanta, Ga., Journal and Constitution and the Columbus Ledger and Enquirer.

Expect Eisenhower To Arrive April 5

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, left Washington Sunday by automobile on a 12-day inspection tour of Southern military posts and, according to the Associated Press, is expected to arrive at Fort Benning April 5.

Infantry Center officials said today that they have no additional information on his proposed visit and that his speaking engagements are expected to be announced from time to time from his Washington headquarters.

It is thought that he will make Fort Benning his headquarters during his Southern tour and will possibly be present for the Ninth Air Force's Air Indocination course.

General Eisenhower's itinerary is still in the formative stage, military officials said. The AP reported, however, that he will visit Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Jackson, S. C.; and Maxwell Field, Ala. It also was reported that he will deliver an Army Day address in Atlanta.

Eisenhower Reviews Post Troops

Marching Display Opens Army Week Observance

Despite ominous black clouds which threatened rain at any minute, approximately 1,000 Fort Benning soldiers rumbled past an Eisenhower dominated reviewing stand on Lumpkin road promptly at 9 a.m. Monday on their way into Columbus to participate in the observance of Army Day.

As three red spotlights on military police motorcycles signalled the start of the hour-long cavalcade the 72nd Army Ground Forces band struck up a martial note and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower prepared to return the salute of the oncoming parade. Flanking America's No. 1 soldier were Maj. Gen. W. O'Daniel, Fort Benning commander; Lt. Gen. Oscar Griswold, Third Army commander; Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of AOC Board No. 3; Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School; Col. Robert L. Dulaney, commanding officer of the 25th Infantry regiment; Col. Joseph H. Harper; Lt. Col. O. O. Wilson; and Maj. George S. Beatty Jr.

A bit of femininity was added by the presence on the reviewing stand of Mrs. Eisenhower, Mrs. O'Daniel, Mrs. George S. Patton Jr., Mrs. Dulaney, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Jesse Ladd, Mrs. Beatty, and Mrs. E. A. Redolus, houseguest of Mrs. O'Daniel.

MP's Lead Parade Following the epic and span-motorcycle column was a double-breasted column of white-bellied jeep-borne military police who led the motorized display of Fort Benning's might. The appearance of the first Gen. Sherman tank, bearing the words "Ike", brought out one of Gen. Eisenhower's famous grins. In rapid succession 19 more medium tanks with their crews rumbled past the reviewing stand each proudly wearing the name of an Army general. This section of the parade was the contribution of the 75th Tank Battalion. The truck-borne 37th Infantry was the next unit to show itself. Officers for the Chief of Staff, dipping their flags, crossing their arms in a salute, and holding rifles, members of the Infantry regiment passed the reviewing stand immediately behind the tankmen.

Sky soldiers from the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion saluted Gen. Eisenhower from their trucks preceding which turned out full strength.

Freshly Painted Trucks Close on the heels of the engineers was Company C of the 25th Infantry regiment. Freshly painted trucks, glistening bayonets, and highly polished brass made this all-Negro unit the most colorful in the motorcade.

Concluding the parade of military might was the 83rd Field Artillery. Pulling their rubber-tired 160mm howitzers behind their prime movers the artillerymen displayed the hard-hitting fire-power of America's post-war Army.

The mighty segment of the United States Army moved out of Fort Benning onto the Super Highway where they were met by civilian police who led them along the route to downtown Columbus.

Joining the parade at Tenth street and Fourth avenue were W. C. Bradley, Columbus leading citizen and industrialist who served as marshal; Ralph L. King, Chamber of Commerce president; Mayor Walter Richards; and Commissioner T. G. Reeves.

Moving slowly down Broadway, the gigantic cavalcade saluted high ranking Fort Benning officers, civic officials, and prominent citizens of Columbus and Phenix City.

During the entire parade the 72nd Army Ground Forces and the 25th Infantry bands provided marching music.

From 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. a half-dozen combat infantrymen were on hand in a Broadway parkway to explain the use of modern infantry weapons which were on display.

The Army Day parade Monday was Columbus' introduction to the observance of Army Week. Throughout the nation civilian communities will join with Army installations to pay tribute to the minute man and his part in the defense of America.

Fort Benning troops also straggled in Knoxville and Chattanooga, Ga., Tenn., and Andalusia, Ala., during the week. The Infantry Center's Provisional Parade company, composed of two platoons from the 378th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance Company and one platoon from the 129th Engineer Battalion left Fort Benning Saturday for a parade Monday at 3 p.m. in Knoxville. From Knoxville the Benning contingent went on to Chattanooga for a parade at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. Before returning to Fort Benning the troops will go to Andalusia, Ala., for a parade Saturday at 11 a.m.

Chattahoochee Valley residents were guests of Fort Benning Wednesday for the Ninth Army's 83 minute aerial exhibition at Dekker strip in the Alabama area.

'Ike' Will Return, May View Show At Stilwell Field

America's No. 1 soldier, General of the Army Dwight David Eisenhower, is scheduled to return to Fort Benning late this afternoon from Maxwell Field, Ala.

The Chief of Staffs tentative itinerary while on the post calls for an appearance at the dedication exercises of Stilwell field Saturday morning at which time the former School Troops parade ground will be renamed in honor of the late Lt. Gen. Joseph W. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell. At the same time special awards will be presented to Fort Benning troops.

Units Participating In Fort Benning units participating in the ceremonies and review are the 37th Infantry Regiment, 75th Tank Battalion, 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, and 83rd Field Artillery Battalion. The 82nd Airborne Division's 504th Parachute Infantry Battalion will also be present at Fort Benning for the exercises. The 72nd Army Ground Forces band will provide music for the occasion.

Mrs. Stilwell, who is the houseguest of Col. and Mrs. E. F. Eastergreen, is expected to be present at the ceremonies.

Gen. "Ike" Eisenhower is scheduled to tour Fort Benning Friday for informal inspections of the 25th Infantry area, Army Officer Candidate and Student Training Regiment areas, and the 76th Tank Battalion. Biglerville cafeteria, basic officers quarters, School Troops mess, and Infantry School Detachment mess.

Gen. Eisenhower arrived by automobile at Fort Benning last Sunday at 5:55 p. m. accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower.

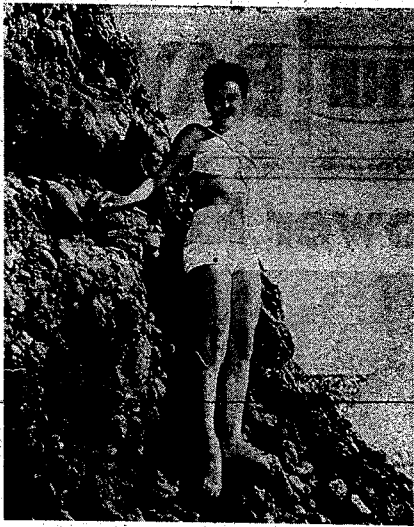

The Fort Benning Military Police Detachment has been charged with the security of Gen. Eisenhower, and Lt. Col. Ralph A. Tolve, provost marshal, drove to the Georgia border to meet the general's party. Four motorcycle MPs have been assigned this special escort duty under the direction of T-Sgt. Ike Bentley.

During their Fort Benning visit Gen. and Mrs. Eisenhower are the houseguests of Col. and Mrs. Jesse Ladd.

Sunday morning Gen. and Mrs. Eisenhower joined other Fort Benning personnel at the Campbell King Horseshow Bowl to celebrate the Resurrection of Christ at the annual Easter sunrise service. That evening they were guests of honor at a reception and dinner given by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel at their quarters.

Monday morning the nation's top soldier saw approximately 1,000 Fort Benning Troops pass his reviewing stand on Lumpkin road on their way to Columbus where they participated in an Army Day parade. Immediately following the parade, he was whisked away in the official car of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of The Infantry Center, for an hour's conference with Fort Benning officials.

Preceding his departure at 3 p. m. for Atlanta, he toured Fort Benning for a brief glimpse of a few major activities. He inspected the ration breakdown building, meat cutting plant, Food Service School, Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, Separation Point,

Sergeant Hooks 10-Pound Bass At King's Pond

The water level of King's Pond was reported to have gone down several inches last Saturday when T-Sgt. Mack W. Roberts hauled in a big-mouth bass weighing in the neighborhood of 10 pounds.

Previous to last Saturday's record catch Sgt. Roberts, a member of Headquarters Detachment 2440 ASU, was bragging about his Wednesday bag which tipped the scale at seven and one-half pounds. This one was also a big-mouth bass, caught in King's Pond with a head and "river runt" and rod and reel.

While Sgt. Roberts was going around boasting of a full fryer pan, T-Sgt. Robert Forsyth had a different story to tell. Also a fishing enthusiast, Sgt. Forsyth has only "intention" to rely on. His big one got away last week end but not until it had pulled the "insides" clean out of the reel. When the action was over Sgt. Forsyth had only the handle left in his hand.

AAF Radio Series Resumed Saturday

The 15th in a series of radio broadcasts, "Flight into the Past" a musical program by the official Army Air Forces Band, featuring the major events in the development of American air power in 1926, will be heard over the Mutual Broadcasting System from 12:30 to 1:00 p.m., EST, Saturday, April 12.

The program will point up the significance of the Five Year Army Program Act passed in 1926, which reorganized the U.S. Air Service into the U.S. Army Air Corps complement to 1,639 officers and 15,000 enlisted men. Lieutenant Commander Richard S. Byrd flew around the North Pole in 1926 and James H. Doolittle, who commanded the famous Eighth Air Force as a lieutenant general during World War II, won the Schneider Cup speed trophy, flying a seaplane.

Other highlights of 1926 were such items as Gene Tunney's defeat of Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, the death of Rudolph Valentino, and Gertrude Ederle's swim across the English Channel.

Music on the program will feature the AAF Band under the direction of Major George S. Howard. It will play "Dark Eyes", "Horse", "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies", and the "Ritual Dance of Fire." Master Sergeant Abraham T. Robofsky, of Baltimore, Maryland, will sing "Evening Star" and "One Alone." The AAF Band Chorus, under the direction of Warrant Officer Samuel Kuriz, of Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, will sing "Rangers Song."

More Than 15,000 Autos Registered Here In 1946

More than 15,000 private automobiles were registered with the Fort Benning Provost Marshal during the 1946 registration period, according to a report released today.

Of the total number registered, the report reveals, approximately 5,000-5,500 were on the reservation at all times. The remainder were in transient.

The report further stated that there were approximately 2,000 known exchanges of automobiles between Fort Benning personnel with some cars changing hands as much as six times during the year.

Records are kept on private vehicles at Fort Benning through an elaborate cross-index file system. This four-card filing arrangement includes a Fort Benning registration tag file, state registration file, alphabetical file, and insurance deadline file. Military police officials say that this system is necessary in order to cooperate with civil law authorities and that it has proved to be 98 per cent accurate.

Other duties of the Fort Benning registration office include the issuance of all hunting and fishing permits on the post, maintenance of records and files in connection with all permits, registration of all privately-owned boats, and records of all privately-owned firearms.

BIG FISH—That one on the right, a big-mouth bass weighing 7 1/2 pounds, was caught last week at Kings Pond by T-Sgt. Mack W. Roberts, Headquarters Detachment, 2440 ASU. For post angler's benefit, the above fish was hooked at 10 a.m. in the morning about four feet from the concrete dam with a rod and reel and a river-so date weighing nine pounds and one ounce. Above Sgt. Roberts: 21 years ago he ate four pounds of bananas to bring his weight up to 120 pounds so he could enlist in the Army. Today he weighs 191. Probably he augments his Army diet with fish (Signal Corps Photo).

5 New Garbage Collecting Vans Put In Operation

Fort Benning engineers have put in operation five new and modern garbage collectors noted for their hydraulic compressors which automatically pack the refuse from the front toward the rear.

Operating over all areas on the reservation, the collectors are modelled after those now in use by large cities throughout the United States, including New York and Detroit. Officials revealed that these five new trucks are able to do the work of seven of the former type. Highlights of the new garbage vehicles are their 12 cubic yards respectively and hydraulically operated compressors. Only two loaders are necessary for collecting the garbage.

Loaders dump the refuse into the rear compartment, press a button to signal the driver that their job is completed, and wait their next garbage pile. Meanwhile the driver operates a lever which closes the door to the rear compartment and compresses the garbage toward the rear, making room for the next collection.

When the truck is filled, it is driven to the sanitary fill where it is dumped and covered. Another hydraulic lever opens the rear door and tips the body to a 45 degree angle thereby dumping the garbage with speed and efficiency.

Engineers asserted that this method is cleaner and healthier in that there are now no open trucks, and once the garbage is loaded it cannot become scattered over the reservation.

In the night Mrs. Smith became very ill. They quickly hauled her to O.P.D. where Seaman Smith paced the corridor.

After what seemed like hours a white-robed doctor emerged from the examination room and addressed Seaman Smith.

"Smith, your wife has quinsy." "My gods," said Smith, before he fainted. "That makes fifteen."

Army Week 1947

In 1937 the Congress passed a resolution to establish Army Day. This day would commemorate the contributions of our Army toward building and developing our Nation and in safeguarding our democratic ideals and philosophy.

This year, for the first time the Army observes Army Week. It is being observed in the Zone of Interior from April 6th to April 12th. But, Army Day is also being observed all over the world wherever American soldiers are stationed.

Days that are set aside to honor the great men and institutions of the United States, have as one of their purposes, a review of the accomplishments of the past. But men, institutions, or nations who live in the past, and rest upon achievements, have gone beyond the peak of their greatness. For them the future holds nothing but memories. That is why it is important to look upon a day of observance as an occasion not only for reviewing the list of accomplishments but for considering future plans that will insure a continuation of personal, institutional, national and international achievement.

This is especially true in regard to Army Day—the day which commemorates the accomplishments of our Army in peace and war. Army Day is a day of national salute to every component of the Army—the Regular Army, the National Guard, The Organized Reserve Corps—all parts of a military establishment responsible for our national security in a troubled world.

Many have debated whether the accomplishments of the Army of the United States have been greater in war than in peace. Although such a debate will excite discussion, of much greater importance is the fact that if we weigh civic, scientific, and philanthropic accomplishments against military achievement, we realize that the Army of the United States—in peace and in war—has an historical record second to none of our governmental institutions. We have seen that the Army has been vital to peace as well as to war. Army Day is then an occasion for reminding citizens—both in and out of uniform—of that fact.

History is the best possible argument for adequate armed strength in a world in which the vast majority of people hope for lasting peace.

Good men of every nation seek ways to establish lasting peace. But as they strive for it in conference in assembly, we must not pull down the bulwark of preparedness until all the world is ready for peace.

Let's Fill Those Seats

Nothing succeeds like success—and nothing makes for success like loyal supporters—in sports as well as in our regular lives.

Here at Fort Benning we have a history of successful sports. Just to mention one—the 1946 DOUGHBOYS—the unofficial service champions.

Each team in the baseball league now under way is made up and supported by its own outfit—and a team can only grow and be made into a champion by the support it receives from its own outfit—and each and every team today has its potential champion.

Remember that the early games won make the base—and a broad base at that—upon which to develop an even better team as the season progresses.

Each outfit on the Post—and even those that are not represented by a team—wants to see good baseball, and a winner, too.

It means a lot to the fellows out on that field—famous Gowdy Field—to have their buddies BACK THEM UP by their presence in the stands.

Nothing succeeds like success and nothing goes farther to create that successful atmosphere than that loyal gang of rooters—so why not BACK UP YOUR TEAM and show them—and all of us, too—that you like a winner and are willing to do your part in showing your appreciation by turning out—FILLING GOWDY FIELD—and helping THE team.

It will pay off later in the season—with A WINNER.

God's Answer to an Age-Long Question

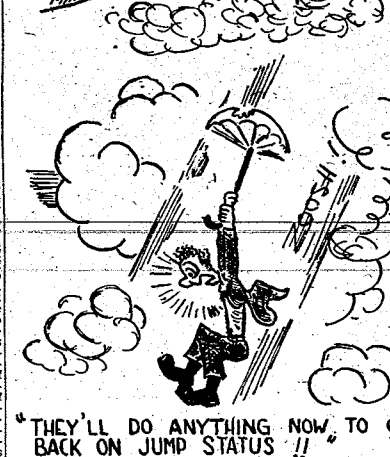

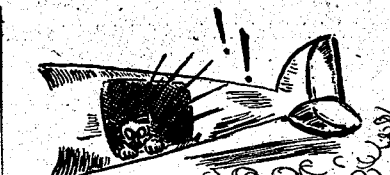

By Chap. D. F. Jenkins

When God's soil was for the first time stained with human blood, Cain called to account for his crime, turned to God and asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Cain was a moral isolationist; he believed every man for himself. The responsibility placed upon man in this fourth chapter of Genesis; plainly places on man the responsibility of keeping all men free.

The war has been won, we want that bloodshed may not occur again. Cannot genius be organized for peace as well as totalitization war? The bloodshed on the battlefields of the world will have been shed in vain; unless we win the peace. Military victory is only temporary—if we do not win a spiritual victory. Every mother who's son lies on foreign soil should keep the eternal fires of prayer burning on the Altar of God for those who now seek to shape the destinies of the world. Every God-fearing man should, from every realm of life dedicate themselves without reserve to God; who errs not in His leadership of men. Significant then is Cain's question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" God is a great questioner. Whatever our course of conduct, it will not go unquestioned. As The Great Searcher of hearts says, "Where is thy brother Abel?" Cain replies indifferently, "Am I my brother's keeper?" This question is pertinent today. For many the question has not been answered.

The United Nations Assembly at this writing are in session, debating this age long question, unless the wisdom of God who made heavens and earth, is sought; and found: No lasting peace can come from their deliberations. We see the outstretched hands of war torn lands pleadingly turned to America. If we would follow the steps of our God who has so wonderfully blessed us—human compassion would open our hearts door to fulfill the command of Christ who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Then there are other reasons why we ought to take the lead in establishing a strong front for the safety of the world—"WE that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak." If America would lead others to a God led peace, we must lead them to peace within. I challenge men everywhere under authority: to lead others to peace, and to be apart from following Jesus, who, "Hath all authority in heaven and earth."

COMING ATTRACTIONS

KING OF THE WILD HORSES (horror story) with Preston Foster, Gail Patrick, and Billy Sheffield. Developed around the love of a boy for a horse, this western story is of the quieter type. That is, it's quiet if you overlook the stampeding of all the cattle by a herd of wild horses. Recommended for family.

CARNIVAL IN COSTA RICA (technicolor musical) with Dick Haymes, Vera-Ellen, Cesar Romero, and Celeste Holm. With authentic footage filmed in Costa Rica and songs by Dick Haymes plus Vera-Ellen's dancing, this lively musical displays the scenic beauty and pageantry of Costa time in coffee land. Recommended for family.

BARZAN AND THE HUNTERS (jungle drama) with Johnny Weissmuller, Brenda Joyce, and Johnny Sheffield. Tarzan is again up to his old tricks of thwarting hunters desiring to kill and capture jungle animals. Cheta, the chimpanzee, lends a helping hand when she is not stirring up trouble for everybody. Recommended for family.

BORN TO KILL (melodrama) with Lawrence Tierney, Claire Trevor, and Walter Slezak. As is often the case one murder required another to cover up the first. This problem is a bit complicated as the murder has to select one of three candidates as his second victim—and his choice has got to be right. Recommended for mature.

BUCK PRIVATES COME HOME (comedy) with Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. The boys finally get out of the Army—and the Army is sure glad to be rid of them. What with smuggling home a French orphan, snagging loans to get a friend's racing car out of lock, and almost getting their old sergeant fired off the police force, the boys provide a lively time for all in this latest version of their zany antics. Recommended for family.

Lawson Soldier Creates Model Chapel From Scrap Materials

What are miniature chapels high, fifteen inches long and ten inches wide. For its lighting system he used flashlight batteries, reflectors and bulbs and colored Christmas tree lights. Its arched windows and doors of colored cellophane are easily opened and closed and the tiny bell in the lower rings out call to worship.

The high gabled roof is covered with black sandpaper and the authentic model of a Catholic chapel is nearly 24 inches long and 15 inches wide. The interior is furnished with ten hand carved pews, an altar, communion rail, religious pictures and carpeted floor. Friesen made all the furnishings including the dainty white altar cloth and the priest's vestments. A small metal cross and candelabra holding tiny white candles decorate the altar. Pedestal holy water fons flank the entrance and a Sanctuary light burns near the altar.

The interior of the little church is furnished with ten hand carved pews, an altar, communion rail, religious pictures and carpeted floor. Friesen made all the furnishings including the dainty white altar cloth and the priest's vestments. A small metal cross and candelabra holding tiny white candles decorate the altar. Pedestal holy water fons flank the entrance and a Sanctuary light burns near the altar.

At present the model is the center of attraction at the Ninth Street USO where it was placed on display during holy week. The USO directors are sponsoring a naming contest for the chapel with a cash award going to the GI providing the winning name. Contest judges will be Mr. Ken Corcoran and Mr. Jim Woulfe.

Later Pvt. Friesen plans to exhibit his model at various post and Columbus recreation and religious centers.

Outside, its spacious green lawns are surrounded with shrubbery, sidewalks and street lights. Green painted sponge forms a neat hedge around the building, and a small outdoor grotto between slender cedars completes the setting for the chapel.

The church model is Friesen's first attempt at miniature architecture. He is assigned to Base Special Service and completed the model in four weeks. Pvt. Friesen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Friesen of San Antonio, Texas.

FM Radio 'Phone Used At Lawson For Distant Calls

A new development in the field of telephonic communications, Frequency modulated radio telephone (very high frequency), employed by the Ninth Air Force headquarters (Advanced) at Lawson Field in the presentation of the Air Indocination Course, came into sharp focus this week following the drastic curb on long distance telephone calls imposed during the current nationwide telephone tie-up.

The radio-telephone set-up is part of a vast three-state communications organizations established by the Ninth's 502nd Tactical Control Group to keep tabs on the hundreds of aircraft participating in the aerial portion of the AIC. Radar and radio is also a part of the communications set-up.

Relay stations are located atop Betts Hill (40 miles north of Columbus), Stone Mountain and Mount Toxess connecting Lawson Field with the air base at Greenville, S. C.

Howard Buses Running Again Following Strike

A 32-hour strike by mechanics and drivers of the Howard Bus Line ended temporarily at noon Saturday when the management filed a petition for injunction in Superior court that the walkout had been effected without "statutory notice to call a strike required by Georgia law."

The decision to return to work came after an hour-long meeting by the union which began at 10 a. m. Saturday. Union officials said that the resumption of normal schedules was only a temporary respite, however, pointing out that no agreement had as yet been reached between the union and management and that the strike would continue April 30. This announcement followed a two-hour session between bus line officials, union leaders, and a representative of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The strike, which went into effect at 1:45 a. m. Friday, threatened to paralyze transportation between Fort Benning, Baker Village, and Columbus.

The Fort Benning Transportation Corps was called into service early Friday morning to prevent any interruption of activity and 12 Army Buses were immediately dispatched. The only persons authorized to use these Army buses were military personnel, their dependents and domestics, and civilians employed on the post.

Buses ran on a 20-minute schedule from Fort Benning beginning Friday morning at 6 a. m. From 6:40 a. m. until 4 p. m. they operated on a 40 minute schedule, and from 4:20 p. m. until 8 p. m. on a 20 minute schedule. Beginning at 8:40 p. m. they reverted to a 40 minute schedule and operated until midnight.

The first bus left Columbus coming to Fort Benning at 6 a. m. and ran every 20 minutes until 9 a. m. Jumping ahead to a 40 minute schedule at 9 a. m., they ran until 4 p. m. From that hour until 8 p. m. the buses operated every 20 minutes, and from then until 12:40 a. m. they ran on a 40 minute schedule.

Service No. 1 and 3 will entertain April 18 with a formal spring dance, it was announced Wednesday.

Two days following their return from pre-graduation drills April 21, officer candidates will receive the gold bars of a second lieutenant in a formal graduation ceremony.

AOCC No. 28 is the second officer candidate class to graduate at Fort Benning since the inauguration last September of the new system of providing the Army with a steady flow of AUS officers.

After the newly commissioned officers receive their bars April 23 they will be assigned as student officers to the various Army branch schools depending upon their branch of service. The majority will be commissioned in the infantry and will receive further specialized training at The Infantry School.

When the rugged six-months class room and field training for AOCC No. 2 got underway last September 26, the class included 212 members. The number was gradually whittled down to 124.

Post Pupil Grand-Nephew Of Benning Namesake

BY OC HUGH A. MOY

Among the many interesting personalities in AOCC No. 9 Candidate Walter Benning holds perhaps the most unique position. He is the grand-nephew of Brig. Gen. Gerry L. Benning for whom Fort Benning is named; consequently he takes a family interest in The Infantry School and its 220,000 acres of training ground—the Alma Mater of the doughboy.

Since the Civil War in which his distinguished grand-uncle was a Confederate general, Candidate Benning's family has had an outstanding record in the service of their country. During World War I alone five members of the family won their commissions at the now famous Officer Candidate School. Walter Benning intends to be the sixth.

He enlisted in the Army Air Force in March 1944 at the age of 17, and upon completion of his enlistment, he re-entered the Army in December 1945 and appplied for Infantry officer training. Candidate Benning has lived most of his life in Atlanta, Ga., but he attended Huntington high school in Long Island, New York, and won the light-heavyweight title in the San Antonio district of the Texas State Golden Gloves championship. During his term of service prior to being accepted as an officer candidate, he worked as a physical training instructor and participated in sports activities.

Despite his family traditions, Candidate Benning is naturally reticent about publicizing his connection with the namesake of Fort Benning. He is now 20 years old and is determined to win his gold bars on his own merits, thereby adding another Benning to the list of graduates who have carved their careers in the best traditions of the Confederate general.

British Bride Likes America, Enjoys Finding Plenty of Food

After 13 months in the United States, Mrs. John Cunningham is pleased to find that the people are so nice and she reports that she is terribly happy here.

The charming young lady who came to Columbus last month with her husband, Lt. John Cunningham of the Student Training Regiment, has lived most of her life in London, England, and met her husband while he was stationed with the First Division in England during the war.

London "just like a big American city," the enthusiastic lady explained when asked about what England is like. Philadelphia, her husband's home, seemed very much the same, she said.

However, England is short of food and finding plenty of butter and eggs still surprises the newcomer. She has gained 30 pounds since she came, but laughingly explains that her husband has also gained—100 pounds since they were married in April of 1943.

With plenty of food available here, she finds it hard to even remember what short rations were like, she said.

Mrs. Cunningham, who graciously did her shopping during the interview in her apartment at 1041 1/2 Ada street in Columbus, worked for the Ministry of England for eight years before she came here. Pausing from her sewing on a new handbag, she explained that for six years the bank was evacuated to the country during the war and she did her job which consisted of income tax work while living in the country and going to London each weekend.

The bank furnished its employees with room and board, and transportation to London each weekend while they were working outside the city. And it was at a bank dance that she met her husband.

Her parent's home was visited several times during the war. Mrs. Cunningham explained, and until the last bit, they had it repaired immediately. However, after the last damage, they decided to wait until it was all over and it still isn't repaired. At present, a tarpaulin is being used for the roof and eventually three new walls will have to be added since they are now bulging. Some houses on the same road were entirely destroyed.

However, cheerful Mrs. Cunningham says most of the blitz didn't terrify her as the V-bombs, she explained, were easy to take because the hum of the motor and its siren made it possible to know when they were going to land. However, V-2s were another story as they gave no warning and were rather hard on the nerves.

Clothing is still short in England, the blonde-eyed British girl said. Each adult receives 20 coupons per year and a coat takes 18. Clothing is also much higher in

Nursery School Children Hold Easter Program

Bright spring sunshine and traditionally bright Easter eggs keyed the observation of Easter at the women's club Nursery School, Friday afternoon.

The 31 youngsters of the school each brought three eggs to the school. The girls wore old clothes in preparation for coloring their eggs. With the assistance of the Easter Bunny, the teachers, Miss Bobbie Wallender, Miss Betty Bradford and Mrs. William Durham had the eggs for the Friday hunt. Prizes were awarded to Tex Johnson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. M. Johnson; Edgy Maness, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. E. Maness; and Andy Burke, son of Capt. and Mrs. A. A. Burke. An Easter Bunny, Mother Goose book and toy horse were awarded to the winners and cookies and fruit juice were served to the children.

The nursery school, sponsored by the Women's club for the use of members of the club, is open six days each week from 9 to 11:30 a. m. The school is located on First Division Road at Madden Road.

Farewell Event Honors Colonel; Jenkins Hosts

As a farewell to Col. and Mrs. Roy N. Hagerly, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins entertained the Officers' Club Saturday evening.

Delicacies were served before the dinner held in the Palm Room and a beautiful arrangement of Japanese flowers and rose snapdragons added color to the occasion.

Guests for the colorful event included Col. and Mrs. Earl Johnson, Col. and Mrs. John Middleton, Col. and Mrs. John Frederick, Col. and Mrs. E. Lichtenwalter, Col. and Mrs. Dwight Rosebaum, Col. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Col. and Mrs. Edward Sarsky, Col. and Mrs. I. E. Scudder, Col. and Mrs. E. F. Wallender, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward Saks, Lt. Col. and Mrs. D. F. Thompson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. George S. Gifford, Mrs. C. L. Woodfill, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Schaefer, Maj. and Mrs. T. N. Carter, and Mrs. James Quimby, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph King, Judge and Mrs. Arthur Lynch, the honorees and the hosts.

But she likes it here. She has had very little trouble but laugh when she says she has to stop and think about words sometimes. People in bakeries don't understand that she wants cookies when she asks for biscuits and using "trap" for "trapezoid" also brings some misunderstandings.

But in most ways there is no difference between the British and Americans, according to Mrs. Cunningham. Americans are easier to meet and get acquainted with, the home life is much the same in the two countries, she believes.

Outside of being a little fearful of the summer heat, Mrs. Cunningham is very happy about her husband being at Fort Benning and is quite content to stay in America. Instead of planning a trip to visit England, she is hoping her parents will be able to come to America to visit her this summer.

Supper Held in Palm Room

The couple have been living in Columbus for the past year with their son who is now 2 years old. A newcomer to the family is a daughter who was just 5 days old when her parents moved to the post last Saturday. Mrs. Moore is from Troy, Alabama, and her husband is from Cullman, Alabama. He served in the ETO during the war and Mrs. Moore stayed with her father in Troy.

Mrs. Murray D. Cheston III left Wednesday for Baltimore, Maryland, with her mother, Mrs. M. A. Long, of Baltimore. Mrs. Long has been a guest at the Cheston quarters on the post for several days and Mrs. Cheston is going to her mother's home for a 10-day visit.

Col. (ret.) James F. Brady, of Berkeley, Calif., is a house guest at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. Brookner Brady at present. Colonel Brady is touring the East and stopped here to see his son.

Now in quarters on the post are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Horace C. Gibson living at 125 Rainbow. This couple recently moved here from Washington, D. C. where Colonel Gibson was stationed at Walter Reed hospital. Previous to duty at Walter Reed, the colonel was stationed in Kassel, Germany, and returned to the United States last summer. Both Colonel and Mrs. Gibson are from Charlotte, N. C., and during the war Mrs. Gibson stayed with her family there. Colonel Gibson received his medical training at the University of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Gibson was educated at Queens College in Charlotte, N. C.

Gen. (ret) and Mrs. Walter Krueger are arriving this week to be houseguests of Col. and Mrs. Daniel Gibson for a short time on the post. The visitors are coming here from their home in San Antonio, Texas. Buckland is a niece of General and Mrs. Buckland.

Newcomers at Fort Benning are Maj. and Mrs. Robert D. Marsh and their 1-2 year old son who are just back from Germany. Mrs. Marsh reports that she and her son went to Germany last August to join Major Marsh who went to Europe in 1942 and had only been home twice since. They returned to the United States on ship leaving Germany on the 25th of February and now have taken quarters at 504-1 Perkins. Mrs. Marsh, the former Miss Janet Marks of New Jersey, attended Averett Junior College in Danville, Va. Major Marsh was at

Colorful Career Of OC Crocker

By O-C DONALD MORK
Among the colorful careers of the various personal files in Fort Benning's Army Officer Candidate School that of Candidate Rinaldo Van Crocker is outstanding. Prior to his assignment to the 11th Company, Student Training Regiment, Candidate Crocker served six years with the 2d Infantry Regiment. This unit is distinguished in that it was the first to receive both the 2d and ski training. Its battle record is a long string of campaigns from Normandy through France and the Sudetenland to Czechoslovakia.
Candidate Crocker received night raider training in Ireland before the invasion of France. He was during the battles around Brest was awarded the Croix de Guerre, and his unit was the 2d Division and Second Battalion, was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation. During the Battle of the Bulge he spent four days behind the enemy lines and was twice wounded before his unit met the Russians at Leipzig.

Basic Classes Hold Graduation

After more than eight months of grinding work, 253 members of the Basic No. 1 and 2 classes of the First Battalion Student Training Regiment were graduated Wednesday morning in a ceremony held in the Main Post Theater.

In the presence of many friends and relatives of the graduates Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel presented a diploma to each member of the class as the officers individually came to the stage. General O'Daniel was the speaker for the event and martial music was furnished by the 72nd AGF Band.

Members of this group are mostly from the West Point class of 1946 and started training here on August 1, 1946. However, in addition to men from the United States Army, the armies of China, Mexico, Uruguay, Peru, Guatemala, and El Salvador are represented.
Members of the classes and their guests were entertained at a formal reception and dance given Tuesday evening at the Officers' Club by Gen. and Mrs. O'Daniel at Fort Benning for a short time more to take airborne training before leaving for their new assignments.

Tankmen Third Group To View Ninth AF Show

Ninth Air Force Advance Headquarters rounded up the fourth presentation of its extensive Air Indoctration Course today and dismissed the 128 students from the Armored School, Fort Knox, Ky., who arrived at Lawson Field last Sunday in five C-82s to participate in the four-day air-ground training course.

The Armored School class, the smallest group to witness the AIC presentation so far, received the same complete course Ninth Air Force presented to 400 students of Fort Benning's Infantry School last week.

After three full days of attending lectures, model and equipment displays, joint air-ground planning conferences and four of Advance Ninth Air Force headquarters, students witnessed the spectacular aerial demonstration at Dekker Strip in which more than 200 Tactical Air Command aircraft and 1000 air and airborne personnel participated.

This week's Ninth Air Force show of air might accomplished a double purpose in that it was presented also to hundreds of Chatoohochee Valley civilians in commemoration of Army Week 1947.

On Monday April 14, Ninth Air Force will welcome to its classrooms its fifth group of students when more than 200 students from the Coast Artillery School Fort Sil, Okla., arrive to begin their tour of the Air Indoctration Course.

52 Students Begin Training In AA Class No. 1

Fifty-two student officers of the Associate Advanced Class No. 1, comprising the 5th Company, Student Training Regiment, began an intensive 13 weeks of refresher training March 21, it was revealed this week.

The 5th Company is one of the newest units activated in the Student Training Regiment and consists for the most part of Reserve and National Guard officers ordered to Fort Benning for the purpose of attending the specialized course of instruction. The helix course of instruction of this class also includes a number of Regular Army and AUS officers.

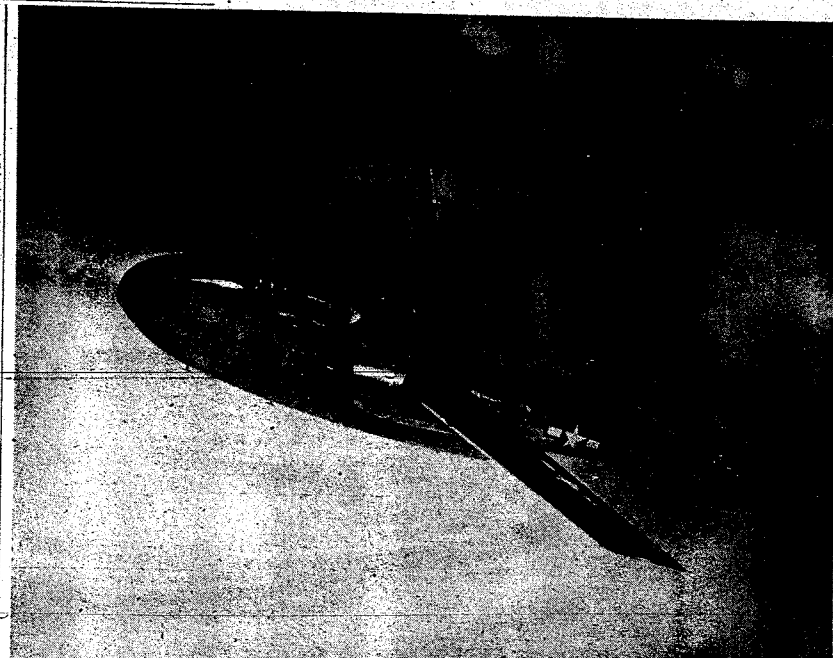

Commanding officer of the 5th Company STR is Capt. Francis E. Griffin. Executive officer is Capt. Leo B. Sullivan. Enlisted cadre on duty with the unit includes 1-Sgt. Melville E. Croucher, Pfc. Roy L. Landreth, supply sergeant, Pfc. William G. Lucas, company clerk, and Pfc. Jasper E. Crawford, mail clerk. Membership of the AAC No. 1 includes two winners of the DSC, nine Silver Star Medals with three clusters, 16 bronze Star Medals with five clusters, 13 Purple Hearts with three clusters, four Army Commendation Ribbons, 28 Combat Infantry Badges and one Croix de Guerre.

Records indicate that members of AAC No. 1 served in the following organizations during the war: 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 24th, 27th, 29th, 32d, 34th, 35th, 39th, 42nd, 44th, 45th, 70th, 81st, 82nd, 84th, 86th, 95th, 98th, 97th and 100th Infantry divisions, 1st Tank Battalion, 8th Air Force, 753d Tank Battalion, 1928th Engineer Command, 8th Service, 20th Comber Aviation Company, 20th Comber Command, 8th Air Force, Chinese Combat Division, and North Atlantic Wing.

She looked so pure and innocent that the host smiled indulgently when she refused a whiskey and soda. "I've never touched it in my life," she explained.

"Why not try it once?" urged the host. "See if you like the taste."

She blushed and displayed good sportsmanship by consenting. The host mixed her drink and she delicately raised it to her lips. She made a sour face as she cried. "Cripes, it's Scotch!"

2nd Infantry Division Gets Fourragere

The Belgian Military and Air Attache, Count Ivan Georges du Monceau de Bergendal, left Washington, April 5, to present the Belgian Fourragere to the Second Infantry Division.

The presentation ceremony took place on April 7. The London-born Count, who served in the war both as a major in the Belgian Army and a wing commander (Lieutenant Colonel) in Britain's Royal Air Force, read a decree signed by Prince Charles, regent of Belgium. The decree conferred the fourragere on the Second Division and five units which were attached to it during the Battle of the Ardennes Forest. The division and the attached units are cited twice in the decree.

The first citation states the division stood "like a wall of stone" against the enemy attack on December 16, 1944. The second citation says the division and attached units held the crest of Elsenborn with "a tactical skill so remarkable, with courage so constant on the part of all ranks and with such power of resolution and of judgment on the part of the command-er that they stimulated the confidence of higher echelons during the German break-through, which the unit is cited by the Belgian Government. The division went into battle in Normandy and into and fought its way through Germany and into Czechoslovakia before the fighting ended in Europe. Major General Paul W. Kendall is the present division commander. The attached units which received the fourragere are: 402nd Anti-Aircraft Air-Warning Battalion; 741st Tank Battalion; 1st Mortar Battalion; 1st Chemical Mortar Battalion; 612th and 644th Tank Destroyer Battalions.

Eastern Motif Seen By Group At STR Lunch

At a colorful luncheon held April 1 at the Officers' Club, ladies of the Student Training Regiment were entertained at a luncheon of which Mrs. Roy Gray was chairman.

An Easter motif was used for the decorations at each table with Easter eggs, bunny shaped candles and place cards made of colored eggs featured at the colorful affair.

Mrs. Gordon Johnson conducted a short business meeting following the delightful luncheon and also told of some of the Easter customs of Russia.

Each of the 41 ladies attending was identified by a pinned name tag made either in the shape of a rabbit, chick or duck.

Assisting Mrs. Gray in arranging the colorful event were Messdames Robert Bierschmitt, Leo Sullivan and E. E. Weber.

Garrison In Iceland Is En Route Home

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, April 9.—(AP)—The last American soldiers stationed in Iceland were en route home today, thus ending nearly six years of American military protection of this island.

The 20,000-ton transport Edmund B. Alexander departed yesterday with 361 soldiers and 20 more left by plane. Several Icelandic brides accompanied their G. I. husbands aboard the troopship.

3,000 Attend Sunrise Services

Eisenhower Special Guest At Post Event

1,000-MAN HUMAN CROSS is formed at Campbell King Horse-show Bowl Easter morning as part of the impressive service in which the post honored the Resurrection of Christ.

Six minutes after sunrise Sunday morning, 3,000 worshippers were gathered in picturesque Campbell King Horseshow Bowl where along with General of the Army and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, civilian and military personnel of Fort Benning observed the traditionally colorful service marking the Resurrection of Christ.

General and Mrs. Eisenhower were seated on the porch of the Polar Hunt Club, looking directly down onto the left side of the altar. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel and other members of their party and high ranking post officials were also on the porch.

Trumpets sounded and the Sunrise service opened with the sounding of trumpets and as the 72nd AGF Band played, the junior and senior choirs of the Post Chapel and the six protestant chaplains approached the altar which was decorated with a laced background covered with evergreens and a white cross outlined with evergreens. The altar table featured an illuminated cross with white papers on either side and white Easter lilies in front of the table.

Facing the altar and seated on the floor of the show bowl, nearly 1,000 Fort Benning soldiers took places to form a living cross which is a traditional feature of the service.

Further color was added as the choir appeared in white robes and caps with red stoles and the chaplains wore black vestments.

Chaplain Emmett G. Jones presided at the early service and following a hymn which the worshippers stood to sing, Chaplain J. E. Bryden gave the invocation. The Easter scripture reading was presented by Chaplain F. D. Gant and the Pastoral prayer was given by Captain D. F. Jenkins.

As the sun broke through the low clouds, Chaplain W. C. Shure gave the sermon which he titled "The Eternal Victory." Chaplain C. F. Straub closed the program with a benediction and the crowd was barely safely into their cars when a light shower started.

Two more outdoor programs were on the schedule for the day, the 7:30 service at the Post and Negro Troops and a 10:30 High Mass slated for the Campbell King Horseshow Bowl.

Showers did hit the Sand Hill service which opened in the 25th Infantry Regiment Amphitheater, and within a few minutes the program had been moved into a theater across the street.

The Rt. Rev. John A. Gregg of Kansas City, presiding bishop of the 4th Episcopal District, A.M.E. church, gave the sermon to a packed theater holding nearly 2,000 and the Rev. J. S. Bryan gave the pastoral prayer. Announcements were given by Chaplain T. R. Owens and Chaplain Simeon T. Johnson gave the benediction.

Music for the Sand Hill service was furnished by the 25th Infantry Buglers; Sgt. A. Patterson, organist; the 25th Infantry Choir; the Spencer High School Glee Club and the 25th Infantry Band under the direction of CWO Harry Howell. Despite the quick change in location necessitated by the rain, the service was carried out perfectly and even the Easter lilies which were scattered from the amphitheater to the stage of the theater which was finally used.

By 10:30 the sun was again showing brightly as the Easter pageant, consisting of Catholic services were held in the Campbell King Horseshow Bowl.

Solemn High Mass Several hundred worshippers attended the Solemn High Mass which was marked by the beautiful white eucharistic vestments with green opheys worn by the celebrant, deacon and sub-deacon for the ceremony.

2,000 Gather For Sand Hill Easter Service

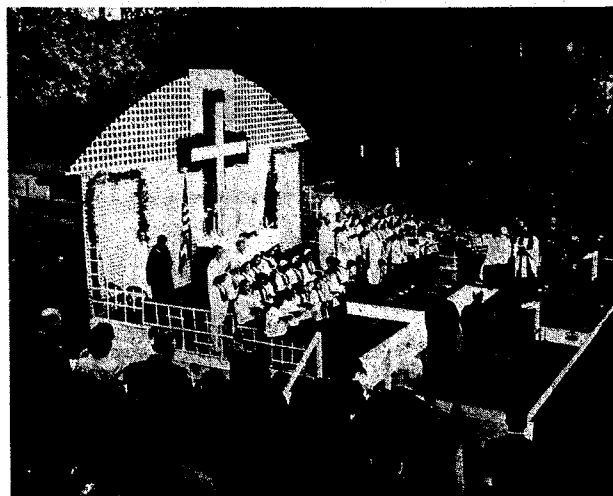

By S-SGT. ALYSEN E. WISE
A sudden downpour of rain sent a gathering of some 2,000 pilgrims from the huge colorfully decorated outdoor Amphitheater to the interior of Theater No. 7, where a distinguished group of civilian and military clergy conducted the first Easter Pilgrimage for military personnel of the 25th Infantry Regiment and the 571st and 989th Field Artillery Battalions.

The services began at 9 a. m. with a procession consisting of the American and Chaplain's Colors, the Regimental Band under the direction of Chief Warrant Officer Harry H. Hollowell, and 500 soldiers singing "Onward Christian Soldiers."

"Church Call" Played Stationed at strategic points along the route of march were twelve buglers who blew "Church Call" in orderly succession. This group were under the direction of Master Sergeant Jamerson Wilkerson.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock, all groups had converged at the Amphitheater. Seated prominently were 400 soldiers who had formed a human cross. Chaplain Lewis M. Durden gave the Call to Worship and Rev. J. S. Bryan, the Pastoral Prayer. The 25th Infantry Choir rendered the "Holy City." The unexpected rain fall interrupted the services, and the gathering immediately transferred to the Theater, where the program was continued.

The Spencer High School Glee Club of Columbus under the direction of Mrs. Lillian S. Terry, featured "Were You There," and "Thank God for a Garden," and were immediately followed by the Scripture Reading by Chaplain

Leonard A. Ellis. The 25th Infantry Choir sang "Alone" then Maj. John A. DeVeaux, Regimental Chaplain, introduced the guest speaker, the Rt. Rev. J. A. Gregg, A. M. E. Diocese, Kansas City, Mo. Bishop Gregg spoke of the five appearances of Christ during the first Easter morning and evening, and made present day applications of the appearances. The highlights of the applications of Columbus followed on the program with the selections, "Jesus Often Comes to Me," "Those Who Seek Him and Who Need Him Most," "Often Our Greatest Blessings Come to Us When We are Alone," "Jesus Always Keeps His Promises," "Who Would Find or See Jesus Must Humble Himself." Bishop Gregg's sermon was illuminating, inspirational, and reverent. The Hammond Gospel Singers' Hymn, "God Of Our Fathers," the announcements and Chaplain Simeon T. Johnson gave the benediction as the huge audience filed out while the Regimental Band solemnly played the Recessional Hymn, "God Of Our Fathers."

Army Counselor

This column presents each week items of interest to soldiers, veterans and their dependents. If you have a problem not discussed here, take it to your Army Counselor, Room 26, Headquarters Annex.)

1. VETERANS ADMINISTRATION—The House Committee on Veterans' Affairs will soon launch its official probe of conditions in VA hospitals by sending three members to the Crile (Ohio) General Hospital to check on disquieting reports that have been received. The group includes W. J. Crow (Penn.), Herbert A. Myer (Kansas) and Walter E. Huber (Ohio). The entire VA medical program and hospital construction program have been under attack, and are now awaiting the investigation voted by the House of Representatives. Move to investigate VA installations and activities came at the instigation of Edith Nourse Rogers (Mass.), chairman of the House Committee.

Another set-back in VA came in the Budget Bureau's cut of proposed medical research program, and Congress' reluctance to appropriate all VA fees it needs in the way of funds. Observers close to the situation believe it is only a question of time until General Bradley views from the administration of VA and say that Omar Clark will probably be his successor.

2. TERMINAL LEAVE BONDS—The first estimate of the cost of giving terminal leave pay to enlisted personnel was $8 billion; it was between $2 1/2 and $3 billion at the time the law was passed. The Army's and Navy's figures set the figure at $1.8 billion, which may be low, but will be close to the actual cost.

As of Feb. 28, Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard had received 10,000 claims. Of these, 5,955,367 had been processed for a total cost of $1,279,921,610.19, of this amount, $1,194,862,973 was in bonds, $85,058,667.19 was in cash. This is an average per claim of $214, quite a bit under the official estimate of $250 per man. The final number of claims is expected to be many millions less than the original estimate of 14 millions.

3. DRAFT RECORDS—Senate Armed Services Committee has okayed the bill to keep Selective Service Records of America's 44,000,000 registrants in existing local offices until June 30, after which they would be transferred to proposed federal offices of Selective Service Records, to be set up in each State. The records will certainly be preserved until the future of peacetime training has been decided by Congress, will also be retained for supporting veterans' claims and inquiries, including data needed for State bonuses.

4. SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCE FOR STUDENTS UNDER G. I. BILL OF RIGHTS—American veterans attending Mexico City College augment the allowances by making blood donations every month, receive $10 per pint. (The Red Cross in this country accepts blood from donors only once every eight weeks.) Since the Mexican government prohibits part time work by American students, blood donations represent one of the few means available by which the veterans may augment their income. The 150 veterans at Mexico City College have presented a petition for increased subsistence to the Sub-Committee of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee.

5. WOMEN IN THE REGULAR ARMY—The first of the Army's major post-war reorganization bills, which measure giving permanent commissioned status to women officers of the Medical Department, passed the House last week and went to the Senate. The bill makes the Army Nurses Corps and a Women's Medical Specialist Corps part of the Regular Army. Each corps would be headed by a colonel, and the three sections of the Medical Specialist Corps—dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists—would be headed by a lieutenant colonel. Dietitians and physical therapists were in a civil service status before the war, but were given temporary officer status at the same time as the nurses. The occupational therapists are still civilian employees.

6. ALLOWMENTS FOR GERMAN BRIDES—Enlisted personnel of the first three grades who are permitted to marry Germans may authorize Class E allowances for their support, effective with the month in which the dependent is acquired. The War Department has ordered in Circular 44. Application must be filed by officer, and payments will be made through the St. Louis Finance Center in the same manner as to dependents brought from the United States to Germany or Japan.

Recruiting Group At School Troops Is Reorganized

School Troops recruiting office has been reorganized and is operating on a larger scale with 71 Sgt. Leo Kelly and Sgt. John Prince handling interviews under the supervision of Lt. Thomas Murphy, recruiting officer.

Under the newly inaugurated plan, the School Troops recruiting office handles only enlistment extensions, and all re-enlistees are referred to the Fort Benning Armed Forces Induction station.

Since the new set-up was put in effect, School Troops extension of enlistments has shown a marked increase. In Feb. alone 21 men extended their enlistments and incomplete tabulations for the month of March indicate that a new record has been set.

The recruiting organization is formed so that each unit maintains a recruiting officer, NCO. Their duties are to interview enlisted men one month prior to their discharge date and to answer questions that might arise on the subject of enlistments or re-enlistments in the Regular Army.

Both Sgts. Kelly and Prince are regulars.

Death Benefit Plan Set Up By Miners

WASHINGTON, April 9—Trustees of the United Mine Workers welfare fund today established a $1,000 death benefit payment for the family of each bituminous coal miner belonging to the union.

The death benefit payments were made retroactive to last June 1, and thus the families of the 111 victims of the recent Centralia, Ill., disaster will be among those aided at once.

The welfare fund now contains $18,000,000, but John L. Lewis, UMW president and one of the trustees, told reporters the present fund is "insufficient."

Cat Causes Commotion At Post Fire Department

Everything was serene and peaceful at the Main Post fire station last Monday until a mid-morning alarm was sounded.

Here's the story on why Truck No. 1 never even left the fire station.

Sometime prior to the alarm a stray cat crawled up through the dust pan into the underside of the hood of Truck No. 1.

The driver, not knowing that a cat was under the hood, started the motor. The cat became entangled in the fan, which threw him into the coil thereby shorting out the ignition system.

Truck No. 3 was dispatched to the fire.

The cat has been interred with due ceremony.

There was an Indian on the reservation whom the tourist asked, "what do you do all day?"

"Hunt and drink," said the red-skin.

"And what do you hunt?" asked the tourist.

"Drink," replied the Indian.

COLUMBUS CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION

Former Guerilla Fighter Is STR Tactical Officer

BY O/C JAMES D. WALKER

A story of a great band of guerillas, who could not be stopped by overwhelming odds and whose services were of immense value to the Pacific commanders in their fight to begin the Philippines, can be told by Capt. Anton Haratik, 10th Co., S.T.R. His is the story of the courage, ingenuity, and hardship which produced one of the untold stories of the war.

Capt. Haratik, now a tactical officer in AOC No. 6, was a member of this unconquerable group from the war's inception until its end. As a private in the Army Air Corps he went to Luzon in October, 1941, when the Japs were polishing up their plans for the attack at Pearl Harbor. They landed on the island in December, making the position of the American Air Force untenable. Moving to Mindanao the air men continued operations as long as possible, Capt. Haratik was at the air field when General MacArthur and President Cebuano and their staffs took off for Australia early in 1942.

"From then on we knew it had to be 'Operation Bottleneck,' so we decided to delay the Japs as long as we could," the Captain declared. When Corregidor fell the men who escaped capture were organized into small groups and began harassing the enemy at every corner. For a time there was no organization or central control, but the guerilla warfare soon became more popular. It was then that they started recruiting other groups and making "contacts" with both natives and Americans.

Under command of Col. Fertig, a mining engineer, they built an improvised radio and contacted South Pacific Headquarters. Supplies were running low, especially ammunition. Food was furnished by the friendly natives, but no medical aid was available. The men were forced to roll their cigars out of uncut tobacco which smelt like a poor variety of rubber. Their diet consisted of rice, fish, corn, wild hogs, and monkeys. The last was pronounced a poor variety of rubber, also.

After a few months of rugged existence they were contacted by a submarine and medical supplies, radios, ammunition, and food were delivered. A doctor was put ashore to care for the sick and evacuate the wounded to the sub. One trip yielded some 100 tons of badly needed supplies to the hard-put-by disease and casualties.

The tactics of the guerillas infuriated the Japanese commanders, who made ruthless war on the native tribes suspected of aiding them. With the loyal help of these uncung heroes, however, the Americans attacked the outposts, patrols, supply trains, and isolated garrisons of the enemy. It was on one of these attacks that Captain Haratik and two other Americans aided the natives in trapping a Jap patrol in a small village. The Nips took refuge in a church and were able to hold the raiders at bay. Word arrived that a Jap rescue party was approaching and the Americans had to set fire to the church. The people of the village roared their approval.

With the growth of the band they were able to carry open warfare to the Japs. Doubling their efforts to remove this backyard threat to their security, the ten-man bomber American headquarters for several days and nights. But the essential guerilla job of supplying Pacific commanders with Jap troops and

Tactical Officer's Prayer

How I wonder what you are
You, who wish upon a star
Rather think it's all mistaken
But Oath of Office I have taken
From Kelly Hill, move on the double
Make it man, or get in trouble
An "S" for men who see it through
For those who don't, a nice big "F"
I will guide you to your goal
Those of you who come through whole
You who fail may try again
But, Please God, do not deal me in.

10th Company 'Cyclones' Cop STR Hoop Crown

By O/C STEPHEN D. SMOKE
 Capt. Theodore E. Collier's 10th Company AOC 6 'Cyclones' rang down the curtain on a very successful cage season last Saturday night at the Ninth Street USO in Columbus with a thrilling 43-47 victory over the 15th Company AOC 5 quintet. The victory brought with it the mythical Student Training Regiment championship.

The two big, clever teams wasted little time after the opening tap off in starting a furious battle. Carpenter and Vross hit on layup shots in the first 15 seconds of the game, to send AOC 6 ahead 4-0. Smoke, AOC 6 guard, quickly converted a foul and hit on two long shots from way out to send AOC 6 ahead 5-4. That started the 'Cyclones' off and Prill, Tatum, and Collett found the range to favor the first period score to 11-6 in favor of AOC 6.

The tempo of the game increased even faster in the second quarter as the entire AOC 5 team contributed to the scoring while Prill, Tatum, and Collett still held AOC 6 up sufficiently to give them a 12-9 second period advantage and a 23-15 half-time lead.

The large crowd of pre-dancers and their ladies stood between bewildered and amazed as AOC 5 opened up the second half with a blazing spurt and scored five consecutive goals to tie the score before Cliff Howe, Creston College star and AOC 6 forward, showed in a sensational one-handed push shot, from far beyond the foul line to bring the 'Cyclones' out their lethargy. Tygel, Carpenter, and Vross were hot for AOC 5 and for the remainder of the period they never changed hands six times until Howe again came through to give AOC 6 a 23-30 third period lead.

Still anybody's game, the fourth quarter presented a blazing climax to a great game. As quickly as Carpenter and Vross showed layupshots through the meshes, AOC 5 retained until the last few seconds of play when Howe, Prill, and Collett came through with goals to give AOC 6 with the deciding points.

Particularly outstanding for AOC 6 was the untouchable play of Frank Tatum, 6' 5" center from Wake Forest, and Bud Collett, 6' 3" forward from the University of Utah.

The Candidate Prayer

Oh Tac Officer, who art in command, hallowed be thy rank;

Thy wish our command, thy will be done, in barracks as they will, in the field.

Give us thy duty our speed march, and forgive those who fall by the wayside; Give us forgive you those Class No. 2 delinquencies; Lead us not from Kelly Hill on the double, for this is the sign of hell; But dismiss us early to get our mail, just this once.

Prayers, must be answered, Candidate. Try this for size:

The first lie detector was made from the rib of a man. No improvements have been made on the original machine.

Gal: "If you think you can kiss me like that again, I'll have something to say about it."
 Pfc: "Well, I'm going to, so start talking."
 Gal: "The electric light switch is right next to the piano."

SHE PROPOSED — It wasn't Leap Year but it was Leap Night — sort of. Wac S-St. Valerie, a Seaman of Clinton, Ind., did the proposing recently to Johnny Semanski, believed to be the youngest survivor of the Bataan Death March. As a "Ladies' Night" dance at Frait General Hospital, Miami, Fla., where Johnny is a patient, Sgt. Pavento said: "Will you marry me?" Johnny said, "Yes."

'We'll Get 'Em Next Time,' Says ISD Coach Shiver

"We'll get them next time" was Chick Shiver's comment after his ISDers lost the opener to the Airborne nine last Thursday. The Profs' manager is far from disappointed with his team, and is already preparing for the next Airborne tilt on April 26.

Sunday night the ISD won its first game, knocking off the 129th Engineers, 12-1, as Wiley Weldon pitched himself a two-hit game.

Shiver was experimenting in this game, and his starting lineup revealed a few new faces. Eugene Tinsley, an old Army player who has been out of action for quite some time, started in right field. Heistand was in left field, and Sauls was behind the plate.

The last two only stayed in for half the game, but Tinsley was in for the whole seven, banging out two singles and getting on base every time.

Big gun in the ISD attack was, as usual, cleanup hitter Clyde Burt, who crossed up the 129th outfielders by pounding a triple and homer to left center in four trips to the plate. He now leads position.

STR Gets Off On Wrong Foot, Drops 2 Games

The STR, behind Captain Paul Walker, got off on the wrong foot in their first two league encounters, dropping a 12-3 decision to the 37th in the opener, and losing a hard-fought struggle to the 756th 6 to 4.

The pitching of Olivera, former University of Puerto Rico star, has been outstanding, even though for a losing cause. Olivera is fast and has a good hook. The game he pitched against the 756th was good enough to elicit favorable comment from Chick Shiver, manager of the strong ISD nine.

Olivera's fadeaway hit Martinez, first man up for the 756th on the shin, and from that moment on the "sticker" hitters were noticeably reticent about standing too close to the plate. Olivera struck out six while passing four in the five innings he worked.

Tires in the Fifth
He began to tire in the fifth, and was greeted by a double and a pair of singles by the first three men he faced. Heistand relieved him, and, after committing a balk on his second pitch, and walking the first man he faced, settled down to fan the side.

Heistand had a little trouble in the 7th. Eversly, after a greeting him with a single and a double. Due to some bizarre base running by the 756th, he came through the inning unscathed.

The Boyonet, Columbus, Ga., April 10, 1947 — Twenty-One fanning the last batter to run his total to 4 strikeouts in 2 innings. Mink, at shortstop, has been the team's main offensive punch so far. Mink is hitting an even 500, with 3 hits in six trips, and has scored 3 times. Colone of the 37th had a no hitter in his grasp going into the last inning against the STR, but Mink broke the spell with a sharp hit to left, and started a rally that netted three runs.

A little more work and some skull practice ought to iron out a lot of the fielding "faux pas" after which time the STR can be counted on to give several of the teams a rough time.

Airborne Nips ISD, In Gowdy Opener

Squeezing across George Dickson with the winning run in the last half-inning of the game, the Airborne Battalion took a 6-5 decision from the Infantry School Detachment nine in the season's opener at Gowdy Field last Thursday night.

With a banner crowd that practically filled the stadium watching the proceedings, the two teams put on an exhibition of good baseball. The pitching was fine on both sides, and every player was hustling to bring in the initial victory for his team. The final statistics were nearly identical: each team made eight hits and three errors, while the Airborne had four earned runs to the ISD's three.

ISD drew first blood in the top of the second when Clyde Burt lifted one of Floyd Dooley's pitches over the right field wall for the first home run of the 1947 season.

The Shivermen scored two more times before the side was retired, both of them unearned. In the bottom of the second the Airborne got one back when Jim Stutler powdered one over the center fielder's head and made it all the way around for an inside-the-park homer.

It was still 3-1 ISD going into the last half of the fourth, which a Paul Bonair opened up with a line-drive single. He went to second on Terry's ground-out, and came home on a single to right by Chet Joida.

Joida went to second on the throw to the plate, and came home with the tying run on Pritchard's one-baser, coming after Stutler had fanned for the second out of the inning.

Then came the break of the game. Dooley lifted a high fly ball to short center that Burt couldn't hold; Pritchard scored on the two-base error and Dooley came home a moment later on Dickson's single.

However, the ISD wasn't through. Fitcher Ike Silcox tried hard to win his own ball game by driving in two runs in the top of the sixth to tie up the contest. He then went out to the mound and blasted three past three Airborne batters.

The ISD couldn't break the 5-5 deadlock in the beginning of the seventh, and the incorrigible Dickson led off the Airborne inning with a single. He stayed there as McGowan popped to Lehner, and then scooted to third on Gallagher's single. Bonair walked, loading the bases, and the stage was set.

Coach Walker called for the squeeze play, and Ralph Terry dumped a bunt down to the left of the mound. Silcox fielded the ball cleanly, but the flying Dickson was across the platter well ahead of the throw.

First victory of the 1947 season goes to the Airborne, 6-5.

MAKES BENNING HALL OF FAME—Dick Gearhart, Airborne pitcher, who twirled a no-hit game against the 83rd Field Artillery Sunday afternoon. He did give up three runs though on combinations of bases on balls and errors.

Play Second Game With Florida A & M

25th Combat Team's Bullets will play their second basketball game of a series with Florida A&M College this afternoon in a contest slated for 3:30 o'clock on the Sand Hill diamond.

The 25th's schedule of games follows Saturday afternoon at Atlanta, Morris Brown College. Sunday afternoon, Sand Hill, 2:30 p.m., Georgia-Florida All Stars. Wednesday night, Gowdy Field, 8 p.m., Morris Brown College.

a single brought across the winning Tanker run.

Sunday night the ISD whaled Paul Long's offerings all over the lot, while Weldon gave up only two hits to the Engineers.

Pitching seems to be the main concern with Sgt. John Peters' club, as opposing teams have had little trouble solving the stuff thrown at them by Leitch, Ramos, and Long.

On the credit side the Engineers' second baseman, Joe Harlow has played some fine ball, batting at a .570 average and sparring in the field. In the opener he scored three runs and drove in two others, while Sunday he scored the lone Engineer tally and made one of the 1290th's two hits.

Engineers Look For First Win

Off to a rather inauspicious start, losing their first three ball games, the 1290th Engineers will be looking for their first victory this Friday night against the Student Training Regiment.

The Engineer nine was unfortunate enough to draw the ISD and Airborne teams for two of its first three games, and they are the toughest on the post.

In their opener against the 756th Tankers last Friday night the Engineer baseballers lost a tough extra-inning affair, 9-7. The 1290th led, 5-3, going into the sixth, but the Tankers began to hit Leitch then, scoring two runs to tie up the game.

Dipolitto's single sent two Engineers home in the top of the seventh, but the 756th tied it up again in the bottom half of the inning. In the eighth a triple and

Tankmen Field Strong Team; Whip 1290th In Opening Game

Right up there with the leaders in the post baseball league is the 756th Tank Battalion, which won its second straight ball game Monday night and plays the 204th Truck Battalion Thursday.

Coached by first baseman-pitcher Ken Watts, the Tankers opened up last Friday with an 8-1 victory over the 1290th. They had to come from behind twice to do the trick, tring up the game with two-run rallies in the sixth and seventh stanzas, and finally winning in the eighth on Bartoszek's triple and Dacklin's single.

Hubert Martin, big lefthander, came through handsomely for the Tankers, pitching all the way, allowing five earned runs, eight hits, and striking out thirteen batters.

Shares Spotlight
Sharing the spotlight with Martin was his battery mate, Benny Bartoszek, who connected for three hits in five appearances, scored twice (including the all-important last tally), and drove in the first score with a ringing double in the first inning.

In Monday night's game with the Student Training Regiment, the Tankers started Ed Varella. With one away in the third in-ning, and the STR leading, 1-0, Watts began a 756th rally with a triple. Only one more hit, a single by Bartoszek, followed, but three STR misplays and a base on balls allowed the Tankers to score four runs.

Tied Up in Fourth
The STR tied it up in the fourth, and Watts decided to re-mound duties himself and doing a creditable job.

The 756th manager shut out the STR the rest of the way, striking out nine batters in the four in-nings he hurled, allowing one hit and no earned runs.

He also helped win the game in the sixth, by singing home the fifth run and scoring the sixth.

himself, after he had stolen a base. Adjudged the winning pitcher, Watts also smashed out three hits in four times at bat.

Bartoszek continued to hit the ball, getting two-for-three, driving in two of the Tankers' runs. His batting average is now .626.

The Tankers' fielding in the STR game left something to be desired, however, as they committed eight errors, allowing three unearned runs to cross the plate. Otherwise, the 756th has looked all right on the Gowd Field diamond.

Flyers Share League Lead

Sharing the league lead the Lawson Field Flyers posted two wins, a 9-0 shutout over the 204th Truckers and a close 3-2 win over the strong 323rd Ordnance nine.

In the first game the Flyers blasted seven hits off Doyle Feeler of the 204th. Blake on the mound for the Lawson club held the 204th to three scattered hits, one a triple. He struck out eight and walked three.

Leading the Flyers at bat was ace catcher Smith who blasted the 204th in four trips to the plate starting off the season with 1000 percentage. First sacker Wilson proved his worth on the base paths, not getting a single hit but getting on base in three out of four trips to the plate, he scored three runs.

In their second game against the 323rd Ordnance an unearned run gave them the victory. Forbes, hard hitting second sacker and bright spot on the Lawson Field infield blasted two hits, one a four-bagger to put the game on ice.

Frey pitching this game only gave up two hits to his opponents and walked four men. His teammates collected five at the plate.

Lawson played the 323rd Field Artillery Battalion last night and their next game will be against the pace setting Airborne nine on Friday April 11 in the opening contest of a double bill.

Airborne Wins 2 Games In Championship Scramble

The Fort Benning scramble for Post Baseball Champion got started one week ago tonight when the Airborne team, last year's champions, met the Infantry School Detachment and managed to take the contest by a slim one run margin.

General O'Daniel tossed the ball into the hands of Dooley for the Airborne team and the game got under way. From the beginning it was quite evident to the Airborne team who have their eye set on that pennant for the second year that the ISD club has the same thing in mind. A tight game all the way found the Airborne team and the ISD club both on the short end of the score at different times during the seven inning contest.

Floyd Dooley, hard hitting hurler for the Troopers, went the route and chalked up his number-one win of the season. Striking out five men and getting two run, eight-hits-but-kept them fairly well scattered.

Big Guns
Tom Gallagher and George Dickson were the big guns in the Troopers attack both getting two hits in four times to the plate. Big Jim Stutler came up with a homer inside the park with the bases empty in the second frame. The play at home was a close one but umpire Harris ruled the runner safe.

Four runs in the fourth which put the Airborne ahead to stay ahead were engineered by singles by Paul Bonair, Chester Pojda, Ken Fritchard, an error on Dooley's long fly and another single by George Dickson.

Sunday-afternoon all the pent-up fury of the Troopers was let loose as they aimed a 22 hit barrage in the direction of Gowdy Field fences. They blasted hits in, around, over and through the luckless 83rd Field Artillery Battalion and put them together with a few errors thrown in and amassed 28 runs.

Gerhart Ace Southpaw
Dick Gerhart, ace southpaw in his first appearance came up with the first no-hitter of the season as he pushed them across steadily keeping them all guessing. Out of the first nine men that faced him he whiffed five of them, three grounded out to the shortstop and the fourth hit to the pitcher with the ball not leaving the infield yet.

In the last of the fourth tier, schak came to bat and Gerhart walked him for the first of his four bases on balls. The two batters went down in order and then the Troopers ate short stop, Paul Bonair came up with an error allowing the first run to cross the plate. In the fifth Gerhart fanned the first two batters to face him bringing his total up to seven and the next man grounded out to Lefty McGowan on first.

The 83rd collected their other two runs as momentary wildness overcame Gerhart and he walked Tkac. Hartschak grounded out and Jensen walked, regaining himself the famed Kossick. Then with two down, Ralph Terry committed the Airborne's second and last error allowing the two men on base to score.

Grounded Out
In the last of the seventh Barber and Platt fanned bringing his total to 10. He walked Collier and then Tkac grounded out to second base ending the game without a single ball leaving the infield.

Although different Troopers went all the way around the bases a single due to errors Floyd Dooley, playing the outfield, and long clean four bagger, the ball staying inside the park.

An interesting fact to be noted is that last year at Gowdy Field on Sunday, April 28, the Airborne team, then the TARS team turned in the same score in a win over Lawson Field. Seems those 28-3 games are going to be a tradition with the slugging Troopers. Sandor was accredited with that win and he gave up eight hits compared to the shutout this year and at bat the Troopers only got 17 hits last year and 22 this.

Before the first half is over, each of the ten teams will have played each other twice. Playing the brand of ball they have been displaying thus far the Airborne is a good bet to take the flag again. Sharing the league lead at present it is my guess that Airborne will remain on top of the pile. If and when they are toppled it will be at the hands of the Infantry School Detachment. With baseball though, as in other sports, one just doesn't decide the champ before the teams have played all around, at any rate, there is plenty of good baseball to be played every day for the next month or so before any team can begin to claim a crown.

Flying through the Pentagon Building a little pigeon perched on a window sill to rest. Close behind came another pigeon who stopped and said, "Where are you going?"

"Over to section M to deliver an order," answered the first bird. "I'm just resting for a moment."

"What order do you have?"

"No. 2345-X."

"Well, get a move on," chirped the second pigeon. "I have the order that rescinds it."

DOUGHBOY SPEEDSTERS — Wahl and Jenkins, two-mile men on the meet track team, which engages Auburn in a dual meet this Saturday. Seventh Army meet will be held here at Fort Benning early in May. (Signal Corps Photo.)

Need Cindermen For Auburn Meet Slated Saturday

Saturday, April 12, Fort Benning's track and field season will get under way with a dual meet against Auburn, at Auburn, Alabama. Captain Francis Naughton, coach of the Doughboys, would not release information on times and distances of his different men. A squad of about 20 are scheduled to make the trip.

At present the men have been working out on their own time after hours or whenever they find time available. After the meet with Auburn, a group of those out for the team will be chosen to represent the Post in the seventh Army meet that will be held here May 12 and 13. After the Auburn meet these men will be placed on special duty and have that time to practice regularly.

Pointers Form Nucleus
A contingent of West Pointers will form the nucleus of the squad. Those who will travel to Auburn are Lamar, high and low hurdler; Sprague, pole vaulter; Hoefling, a shot putter, and Gunther, half miler. Another West Pointer, Chenworth, a record-in-holding javelin thrower, will be counted on heavily. Colonel Tolve, post Provost Marshal, will make the trip and toss the weights for the Doughboys. Zielinski is another weight man.

"Red" Knowles, high school star from California, will run the high barriers and also high jump.

Baker Is Mainstay
"Scooter" Baker, Doughboy basketball mainstay, will run the dashes. Lutz, another Trooper, as is Baker, will pole vault.

Capt. Naughton sends out a call for all sprint men and broad jumpers are needed and men to make up relay teams. If you have any desire to try out, contact your local Athletic and Recreation Officer at Post A and B Officer, and report for practice.

Other meets between now and the time for the Seventh Army meet are trying to be scheduled.

Board Players Help Artillery To Form Team

The 83rd FA Bn. has combined forces with A. G. F. Board No. 3 on the baseball field, in an effort to strengthen the club, which will play under the banner of the 83rd. The team started practice late, and, as yet, haven't shown much strength. They dropped both of their first two games—one to the 28th Ord. 3-2, and one to the loaded-for-bear Airborne Battalion 28-3, in which contest they got no hits off Airborne twister Gerhart, scoring all their runs on trooper misplays.

Under the guidance of Sgt. Bill Brooks, one time great here on the post, the team is hopeful of a re-urgence. The team is short on experienced pitchers. Only Trac and Bouigny can be counted on to pitch steady ball. Bouigny contributed a nice effort against the 32th, holding them scoreless until the fifth inning, and finally dropping a heartbreaker 3-2. He allowed only 8 hits.

Tkac was the starting pitcher against Airborne and was tagged pretty solidly in the 3 and 4th innings he pitched. He had to be removed after stopping a liner with his bare hand.

Hershack is the team's leading hitter with 2 hits, a single and a double, in four official trips to the plate. The only other members of the team that have base knocks to their credit are Brooks with a double and Bouigny, who singled.

The 83rd's next game will be against the 37th next Saturday at 2:00 p. m., and they play again on Tuesday, April 15, at 5:45 p. m., this time against the 75th.

The battleship was in port and visitors were being shown around. The guide was exhibiting a bronze tablet set on the deck.

Guide: "And this is where our gallant Captain fell."
Nervous old lady: "Well, no wonder, I almost tripped over it myself."

Cole Captures Post Golf Crown In Sunday Match

Lt. Col. William R. Cole captured the Fort Benning Officers' club golf championship Sunday in a 36-hole final match, defeating Lt. Kenneth W. Hughes, one up, when he scored a birdie four on the 525-yard 18th hole of the afternoon round.

Concluding a tightly contested championship match, the two men came to the final hole all square. Colonel Cole put together a tremendous drive and an equally long brassie to stop just short of the green on the long par-five uphill hole. Lieutenant Hughes, about 50 yards from the green in two, pitched to within about six feet of the cup, and Colonel Cole chipped within two feet. Lieutenant Hughes just missed his downhill curling putt, and lost the match and title when Colonel Cole dropped his short putt for a birdie.

Sat-Fax Golf
The two players opened the morning 18-hole round with a share of sub-par golf. Lieutenant Hughes tallying a two-under-par 34, and Colonel Cole right on his advantage to two up at the end of the morning 18, scoring a 71, one under par figures. Although only two down at that point, Colonel Cole finished the initial 18 with a three-over par 75. Colonel Cole began his move on the eighth hole of the afternoon round. He still trailed two-down on the eighth tee, but a birdie three on the 422-yard par four, and an eagle three on the par-five ninth brought him all even with his opponent at the 27th, and he closed out the match with another birdie on the 36th. The two finalists reversed their morning scores in the afternoon. Colonel Cole carding a 71, and Lieutenant Hughes a 75.

In his march to the title, Colonel Cole successively defeated Lieutenant F. W. Knight, 4 and 3; Lt. Col. J. L. Laurie, one up, and Lt. Col. C. R. Meyer, 6 and 5.

Wallerder Wins
In an 18-hole second flight final which also featured some fine golf, Col. Elmer Wallender defeated Col. Walden S. Lewis, 3 and 2. Colonel Wallender rounded the nine-hole mark with a three-up advantage after carding a two-under-par 38. Colonel Lewis' 41. Colonel Lewis made a brave comeback on the second nine, but could not catch Colonel Wallender who also matched par figures, finishing the match on the 16th green with a 15-foot putt for his par. Playing out the final two holes, Colonel Lewis finished birdie, birdie for a 34 on the back nine. The two players cards for the 18-hole route were Colonel Wallender 74, and Colonel Lewis 75.

Lt. R. M. Kinney went four extra holes to garner the Third Flight crown one up on the 22nd from Maj. M. H. McGrone. Lieutenant Kinney was one down at the turn, squared the match at the end of 18, and took the fourth hole in a sudden-death play-off.

Idle Hour Races Continue Friday

Two of the top ranking drivers in the first program of the 1947 midget auto racing season will renew their rivalry Friday night. Promoter Alex P. Brewer has announced. Red Redmond, who won all three races in which he started, and Freddie Moore, runner-up on points, have both given notice of entry.

A new contender is seen in Frankie Lupton, who will bring his "69-Jr." up from Florida for the program.

Wayne Wynn, 1946 southeastern champion who failed to distinguish himself last week, reported this week that "No. 39" has been to the doctor and is much improved.

"No. 20," a slick grey racer driven by Don Mayer, will bring a victory in the second heat last week, was purchased by R. P. Thornton Jr., Columbus track distributor. Thornton said his car will run Friday under a new number—and a new paint job.

Effects of track improvements were evident in the first series. The concrete inwall was removed and replaced by a barrier. The horse-breakfast served a dual role as marker and buffer. Several cars spun into the grass, and three bales were turned into strawberry patches. Drivers and spectators, however, agreed that the hay was much easier on the undercarriages of low-slung, speeding racers than the old concrete guard rail had been.

Time trials begin at 7:30 p. m. Friday, with racing set to start as soon as all cars have been qualified.

A GI cleaned up in a crap game and when he entered the barracks in a gay mood, he called out, "I'll give a dollar to the latest man here."

Every one scrambled to his feet and rushed forward to tell how lousy they were—every one except a tall Texan.

He drawled: "Just roll me over Buddy, and slip it in my pocket."

"I took my wife horseback riding yesterday and she won't speak to me today. I guess she must be more to the point."

In the good old days when a fellow told a gal a naughty story she blushed. Nowadays she memorizes them.

TWO-TEAM RACE

ISD-Airborne Rivalry Highlights Post League

With the post league rolling along at a torrid fourteen-games-per week schedule, the pennant race has quickly settled into a two-team affair, ISD vs Airborne.

The first week of play seemed to indicate that neither of these two teams would have much trouble against the other eight, as the Airborne nine polished off the 3rd Field Artillery 26-3, and Chick Shiver's Infantry School Detachment squad crushed the 129th Engineers, 12-1.

There are two possible exceptions among the rest of the league teams—the 37th Infantry Regiment and Lawson Field.

Opening up with a 12-3 triumph against the Student Training Regiment last Saturday night, the 37th looked like a potential threat, once it rounds into better shape.

Lawson Potential

Lawson Field started off with two straight victories, the Flyers' pitchers, Blake and Fry, hurling three- and two-hit games respectively. However, the Lawson nine has yet to play the league's better teams.

None of the units have teams as well-balanced as the Airborne or ISD. They each have one or two good players, but lack all-around strength.

Both the Airborne and ISD were able to come up with fine pitching performances in their two opening games, and both teams, particularly the Airborne, displayed power at the plate to back up their hurlers.

Gets One More Whack

The ISD will get only one more whack at the Airborne nine in the first half of the season, that coming on April 25. Assuming that both teams win the remainder of their games up to that date, and that seems probable, the ISD will need a victory then to tie the Airborne.

According to the schedule of ninety games for a half, each team will play every other team twice. The first half is over about the middle of May, and the second runs to July 15. If the winners of the respective halves are different teams, they will meet in a two-out-of-three playoff to decide the post champion.

3 Red Cross Offices Closed On Week-Ends

Red Cross offices in the Harmony Church, Airborne, and San Hill areas will be closed Saturdays and Sundays and personnel at the Main office will be available for emergency service only between 5 a. m. and 8 a. m. Murray E. Hill, field director, announced today.

A reduction in personnel was given as the reason for curtailment in service, but Mr. Hill emphasized that Red Cross aid is available at all times for real emergencies.

All men presenting problems to their commanding officers, other than emergencies, should be referred to the Red Cross office during the regular office hours, which are 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, he said.

15th Company Issues Softball Challenge

With 29 men turning out for the company softball team, the 15th Company, Student Training Regiment, last week felt good enough about the situation as a whole to issue a challenge to any other team on the post. The 15th Company boasts of a wealth of experienced talent for its ball club with reserves three deep at every position.

Any other softball team on the post which considers itself qualified to meet the 15th Company may arrange a game by calling 1/5th Cooper, 15th Company orderly room.

2nd Battalion Finals Winner In Boxing Meet

BY S-SGT. ALYSEN E. WISE

Last place 999th Field Artillery's leather pushers upset the proverbial apple cart by copying Second Battalion with the necessary impetus to cop the Winning Battalion award over the 571st Field Artillery during the finals of 23rd Combat Team's December to April Boxing Tourney which was staged before some 2,500 enthusiastic ring fans last Thursday night in the Regimental Field House in Sand Hill.

As the bell sounded on the last bout, Col. Robert L. Dulaney, 23rd Infantry Regimental Commander, awarded trophies to eight individual class champions, and the Winning Team and "Best Sportsmanship" awards to the Second Battalion.

Nine Fights

Nine fights were originally slated on last week's card. The scheduled bouts between Oddez Brewster, 145, 571st, and Wesley Mason, 145, Fourth Battalion, was awarded to Brewster; Harold Williamson, 160, Second Battalion, won by forfeit over Clifford Wilburn, 159, First Battalion, who was hospitalized with an infected throat during the first of the week; Billy Williams, 160, Fourth Battalion, received the Middleweight Diadem upon Murphy Pea's, 157, 999th, failure to show up.

Williams Outpointed

In the title matches, Hank Williams, 134, 999th, outpointed Billy Gray, 130, 571st, for the Lightweight crown. Aaron Tart, 123, 999th, punched out a clean cut decision over William "Fancy Dan" Jacobs, 123, Second Battalion. Lawrence Jones, 169, 571st, won over L. Marshall, 167, 571st, for the Light-heavy Crown, and Robert Finley, 190, Second Battalion, scored a two round TKO over R. Session for the Heavyweight title. George Lee, 118, 999th's Bantamweight Champion's crown was uncontested, and Howard Williams, 230, First Battalion, received the Unlimited Weight Award. Norman Clark, 144, Second Battalion, was extended all the way to win the Waterweight title during a torrid battle with Harold Chandler, 145, First Battalion.

A local GI entered a Washington jiggle joint optimistically and left it misty optically.

Second Guessing

By MILT MOSKOWITZ
By now most of the units on the post are taking baseball a little more seriously and devising a great deal more time to getting out a good team and winning some ball games.

We think it's more than just a coincidence that the winners in the early games were the teams which had begun practicing first. Even in the opening contest, where the two most active teams on the post met, the decision went to the Airborne, which had more players available for practice sessions than the ISD.

Manager Chick Shiver said that over half of his starting lineup had never attended an afternoon practice before that opening contest. This isn't intended to detract from the Airborne's team at all. The paratroopers are a young, aggressive bunch that can play head-up baseball all the day long. You don't have to go to Major League games to see a spectacular fielding, which you have fellows like Frank McGowan playing first base and Paul Boenir at shortstop.

Nor do you have to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers' Ed Stanky when you have a chance to watch George Dickson cavorting in centerfield for the Airborne nine, driving opposing pitchers off the nut. (Incidentally, we'd like to correct an injustice done to George Dickson in the Bayonet up to now. We've practically ignored him, because we're new at Benning. In fact, through our ignorance, we called him a rookie player with the Airborne team. Well, George's friends have corrected our errors. He's been playing Army ball for about ten years now, and has made quite a name for himself as a great performer on the ciner paths as a sprinter. We apologize, George, and please, don't make us eat all those base hits you've been making.)

Last Thursday's curtain-raiser brought forth some good baseball, especially for such an early date, and it's too bad that the Airborne and ISD can't play more than four times this season.

The other teams in the league will improve as the season goes along, too. No one likes to see his team slaughtered by some other outfit's ball club and the only way to help your team is to give the players a chance to practice and organize themselves.

When you do that, you bring better baseball and more fans into Gowdy Field.

We've let the "second guessing" part of this column slide for about a week or two now, hoping to live down the ISD-1290th debate. However, with baseball and spring in the air we've got that old urge again to don the mantle of the "infallible prognosticator," and hides his face behind the typewriter when the results come in.

It seems that none of the sportswriters covering the Major League teams think that the New York Giants are going to rise even above the second division.

Now of course this writer isn't predicted (he once spent a whole summer vacation outside of New York), but he thinks that the National League pennant will be back in the Polo Grounds in 1947 after a ten-year lapse.

P. S. to the few people who read this trash: Please do not call the Public Relations Office during the day to place wagers.

Oh yes, one more prediction: if given the chance, Jackie Robinson just that during the basketball season.

Doughboy Bill Miller is with A & R now, managing the track team being one of his odd jobs. The roney Kentuckian has more offers from teams and schools to play ball than you can shake a stick at.

A half-a-dozen professional clubs are after him, including the Chicago Stags, 20th Century Fox, and the Oakland Bitterns. He has offers from the leading schools on the west coast, as well as from midwest Kentucky, and east coast colleges. One of the more attractive propositions is in North Carolina U.

Poor Bill! He's in a tough spot, just doesn't know which to accept.

ing Student Edward Munn put the finishing touches on what looks to be a pin-up. Also looking on is 1-Sgt. Fat Peitingill, of the Vocational school.

120 STENCILS DAILY

TIC Publication Section Grinds Out Paper Work

With more than 120 stencils cut daily and 6,700 reams of paper consumed monthly the Infantry Center's Publications section is a beehive of bustling activity.

An order is received for the reproduction of some particular order or directive and M/Sgt. Robert L. Short determines the priority it should receive. He then assigns the stencil cutting to one of four civilian girls who are employed in the office.

Upon completion of this phase of work, the carefully prepared stencil is turned over to T/S Edgar C. Featheringill II for proof-reading and additional editing.

From the front office the completed stencil is sent to one of two mimeograph rooms in The Infantry School building where six mimeograph machines are kept in almost constant operation by four enlisted men and one civilian under the supervision of T/4 Herbert M. Windsor.

The basement mimeograph room has three electric mimeograph machines which turn out mimeographed forms at the rate of 175 each minute. Such forms as special orders, general orders, classification orders, numbered and unnumbered memoranda, transfer memoranda, letters, War Department special and general orders, and other War Department publications are reproduced by three enlisted specialists. These three men, T/S Albert H. Graves, T/S Walter M. McKinney, and T/S Lloyd E. Kinsey, also file the used stencil for further use should the occasion arise.

In the dome of the Infantry School building the publications section maintains another mimeograph room with three additional mimeograph machines operated by S/Sgt. Billy Washington and William Falson, a retired T/Sgt. These two men are responsible for the reproduction of the daily bulletin and various other forms which can not be handled by the busy basement mimeograph room. Mr. Falson claims a total of 15,000 sheets daily run through their three machines.

In conjunction with the publications section a well-equipped supply room is maintained under the supervision of S/Sgt. Horace Maxon. Mimeograph supplies, kept on hand as well as practically all War Department publications, including Field Manuals, Technical Bulletins, AGO forms, Civil Service Commission forms, Treasury Department forms, Army personnel classification tests, Army Regulations, General Orders, and standard forms.

Sgt. Short, in addition to acting in a supervisory capacity over the other enlisted personnel, also edits all incoming work for correct administrative features.

Maj. Troy V. Moore, an enlisted man with 23 years service, is chief of the publications section.

Three blood transfusions were necessary to save a patient's life. A brawny young Scotsman offered his blood. The patient gave him $50 for the first pint, $25 for the second pint; but the third time she had so much Scotch blood in her she only thanked him.

Quartermaster Board Scheduled To Arrive

A quartermaster board composed of one officer and two enlisted men was scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning last Tuesday for the purpose of conducting an opinion poll relative to the combat utility value and dress characteristics of the wool field jacket.

Opinions included in this survey will be representative of both enlisted men and officers of the various command echelons, it was pointed out.

Advantages of UMT Program Set Forth By Lt. Gen. Collins

NEW YORK, April 10—(APFS) "If we're going to have to fight another war, give our boys a chance to be trained ahead of time—give them a chance to survive," Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, director of information for the War Department, said here in a plea for universal military training.

"That push-button war to be fought by a handful of scientists with a couple of airplanes isn't here yet," declared General Collins, speaking at Town Hall before an audience of 500. "In the event of a major war we'll need 1,750,000 men immediately."

Maintenance of a standard army of that size, without selective service, is an impossible task, General Collins declared in advocating universal military training. Many persons oppose such training without understanding what the program calls for, he said, and pointed out the following aspects:

1. Men would not be in the Army, but in a special training corps which would not include overseas training.

2. There would be less severe discipline than under the Articles of War.

3. Men, 18 to 21, would be taken only after graduation from high school.

4. At the end of six months' training a number of options would be open—among them "the chance to attend college."

This last point, General Collins said, means that a boy could take his training and enter college with no more than a three-month delay in his education. "That certainly won't wreck our educational set-up," he declared.

The 'Mess' Is Now Obsolete In Army

BOSTON — (APFS) — When George Martikian, noted restaurant keeper, recommended that the Army revise its present messing system, he also suggested that the military substitute "mess" and substitute "breakfast, dinner and supper."

Army Quartermaster Corps officials countered that the Army was having "breakfast, dinner and supper" calls since before Pearl Harbor.

In Nov. 1941, QM issued first master menu, tossing the word "mess" into the limbo of forgotten words.

QM also informed Mr. Martikian that K. Ration packages were marked clearly with the words "breakfast, dinner and supper"—not "mess."

Korea Armament Job Application Deadline Is Today

Deadline for making civil service applications for armament foreman and repairman positions in Korea is today. Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, chief of placement of Fort Benning's Civilian Personnel branch, has announced.

Appointment to the position of armament foreman carries a pay scale of $1.75 per hour, and an appointment as armament repairman carries an hourly rate of $1.60.

Applicants must agree to remain on duty in Korea for two years. Billet-type living quarters will be furnished by the War Department at $12 monthly and mess facilities for $22.50. Post exchange and commissary privileges will also be available, Mrs. Mitchell said.

Families or dependents will not be allowed to accompany individuals to Korea nor will they be permitted to join the applicant at any time during the two years. This ruling was made because of the critical housing shortage, she pointed out.

Two-War Vet Named Assistant To Patterson

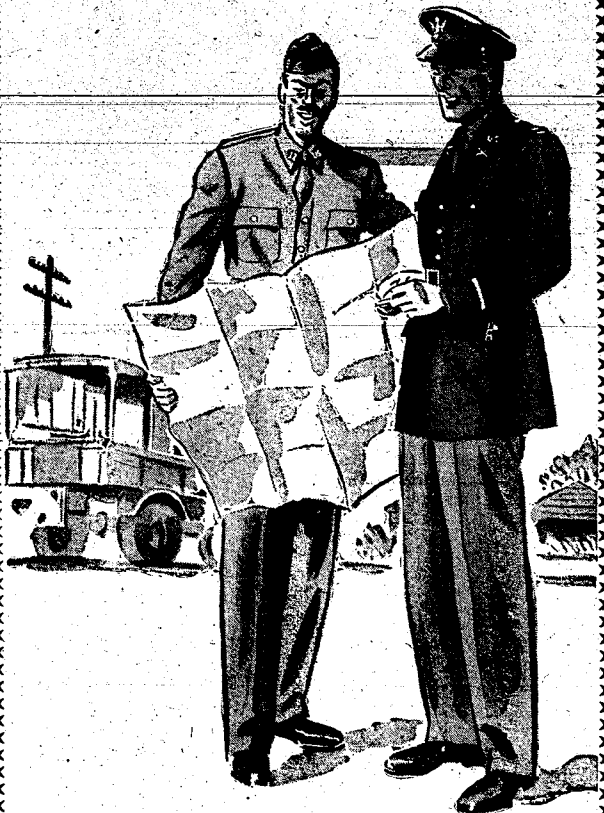

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson announced the appointment of Kenneth D. Johnson, Orleans, Massachusetts, as one of his Special Assistants. A former District Court Judge of Quincy, Massachusetts, Colonel Johnson is a veteran of both World Wars. In 1917-1918, he was a private in Battery C, 108th Field Artillery, 29th Division. In this last war, he served first with the Signal Corps, in its Legal Division, and then went to Europe. He holds the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit and the Commendation Ribbon with two Oak Leaf Clusters. Colonel Johnson, who has been Acting Special Assistant for several weeks, was released from active duty with the Army in July, 1946, and subsequently became a civilian foreign affairs analyst in the War Department Civil Affairs Division.

Now, more than ever before, we here at Chancellor's know just how well our uniforms have stood the ravages of war and time. Clean, slick and tough, that's what our officers back from every theatre of war tell us about our uniforms. This was our belief from the very beginning and their voluntary statements have convinced us. Chancellor Company's uniforms are a tradition with American officers. The uniform business is not a new venture with us. We have served the officer candidates at Fort Benning since our great fort was first laid out twenty-nine years ago. We are proud, yes, proud indeed, of the long roll call of the Army's great whom we call our customers and we are justly proud of the newest graduate of officer candidate school. 'Ike' Inspects Post Before Departing

"An excellent area and a wonderful place for an AOC set-up," remarked Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"Yes, and we have two other equally excellent areas," countered Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commandant of the Infantry Center.

This conversation took place last Friday morning during an informal inspection tour of Fort Benning's Student Training Regiment area by Gen. Eisenhower, accompanied by Gen. O'Daniel and Col. Irvine Scudder, commanding officer of the STR. Gen. Eisenhower witnessed a chemical demonstration at Kunzie field and a physical training exercise at Stroup field. Apparently interested in the progress of the officer candidates, he expressed satisfaction at the type training the candidates were receiving.

Inspects Sand Hill

Previously, the nation's top soldier had inspected activities at the Sand Hill area of the 25th Infantry Regiment accompanied by Gen. O'Daniel, Infantry Center, commanding officer of the regiment. He said that he was highly pleased with the appearance of the troops and their equipment and the neat and clean condition of all the activities he saw. Among the activities inspected were the mess of the 998th Field Artillery's Battalion, regimental headquarters, and stockade areas. He also visited the Field House, parade ground, motor pool, and the Second Battalion's Company F.

Before lunch last Friday he rode in an open car to the airborne training area and watched sky soldiers loading into troop carrier aircraft.

Following an inspection of the Station hospital Saturday morning, the stateley general inspected Bigville canteen and the student barracks. Commenting on the improvements which have taken place in the Army since the 1920s, Gen. Eisenhower said, "I never had anything this good when I was here." He also inspected the Air Induction station area and said he was accommodating in his staff arrangements.

The Army's chief of staff arrived at Fort Benning April 5 on a tour of military installations in the South. He and Mrs. Eisenhower attended the annual Easter

IC School Moves Into New Home

The Infantry Center Vocational School will begin moving, piece by piece, to their new location in the old Reception Center area beginning this week, according to Capt. Willard E. Chambers, post I&E officer.

Only one building at a time will be occupied in the new area, Capt. Chambers said, adding that he expected the entire project to be completed by the end of June. Ten buildings altogether will eventually be occupied by the school. The Reception Center, Induction Station and Officer's Screening Board will move their offices to make room for the more centrally located school.

Work is scheduled to get underway shortly on the partitioning of buildings into class rooms and also on decorating and wiring. Part of the work will be done by the Post Engineers.

Show Place of Army

"It is our intention to make this new area the show place of the Army as far as I&E work is concerned," Capt. Chambers said today.

In the meantime the second class to go through the school completed work last Monday. Students will now receive graduation certificates as soon as scores can be tabulated.

Information on the schedule for the third class will be announced at an early date.

In the meantime, Capt. Chambers announced new facilities acquired by the school for future classes. Additional courses will be given in printing, auto mechanics, voice music and the silk screen process for making color posters. The school has obtained a press and a quantity of type to be used in the printing class.

Weather Outlook

Week-end: Partly cloudy with scattered showers and warmly.

Simple Ceremony Marks Dedication Of Stilwell Field

At a simple ceremony Tuesday morning the School Troops Parade Ground was renamed Stilwell field in honor of the late General Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of the China-Burma-India theater from 1942-1944.

Present for the dedication were Mrs. Stilwell and her two daughters, Miss Alston Stilwell and Mrs. E. F. Easterbrook, wife of Colonel Easterbrook, and Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry Center.

GEN. JOSEPH "VINEGAR JOE" STILLWELL—Old School Troops Parade Field renamed Stilwell Field in his honor.

Eleven Chinese officers, representing the country which General Stilwell loved so dearly, and senior officers from the various sections of the Infantry Center were also on hand to honor the famed Army commander.

General Order Read

Maj. Foter B. Watson, of the Adjutant General's Department, read the general order establishing a permanent memorial to General Stilwell.

The order read in part: "The area bounded by Vibbert Ave., Hall St., Wolf Ave., and Gillespie St. Fort Benning is named Stilwell field in honor of the late Joseph W. Stilwell, Infantry, Distinguished Service Medal with oak leaf cluster; and Combat Infantryman's Badge of the United States Army, commanding general China-Burma-India theater 1942-1944."

Following the reading of the order, Mrs. Stilwell spoke briefly to the assemblage which had gathered to pay homage to her husband.

"I think it's wonderful that an infantryman such as he (General Stilwell) will not be forgotten," she said.

Formal Ceremony Cancelled

Formal ceremonies were originally scheduled for 11:30 Monday morning, but inclement weather caused their postponement until Tuesday. Formal ceremonies were again planned for the same hour Tuesday but a heavy rain resulted in elimination of the review and parade in which elements of the 31st Infantry's First Battalion and 88th Field Artillery Battalion were to have participated. The 72nd Army Ground Forces was originally scheduled to take part, but their appearance was cancelled because of rain.

Mrs. Stilwell and Miss Stilwell have been houseguests of Mrs. Easterbrook for several weeks, having returned from Benning from their home in Carmel, Calif.

2 Benning Officers Selected For Course At Industrial College

Two Fort Benning officers have been selected by the War Department to attend a ten-month course at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces which opens Sept. 2. It was learned today.

The officers scheduled to attend the training school are Col. John F. R. Seitz and Lt. Dick A. King, both of the Infantry School.

The IAC is a high-level service school which grew out of the pre-war Army Industrial College. This course is the second one to be offered to officers from the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and will give students through an industrial mobilization covering the eight main subdivisions of production knowledge related to the broad field of economic mobilization. Army, Navy, and civilian experts make up the faculty of the college which is headed by Brig. Gen. E. B. McKinley.

A total of 79 officers will attend the second course.

Post Ham Radio Station Contacts Tornado Area, Relieves Officer's Mind

W4PIX, Fort Benning's ham-radio station, again proved its value last Thursday night when it relieved a distressed officer's mind.

Capt. Alden E. Clifford, 129th Engineer Battalion and native of Woodward, Okla., was sitting at the dinner table with his wife on the evening of April 10 when the announcement was made that another tornado had struck a place only a few miles from that section of the mid-West.

Having spent most of his life in Woodward and surrounding communities, the Oklahomaan realized the destructiveness of the storm from the terrifying wind storms so prevalent in that particular section of his state. He immediately attempted to place a long-distance call to his mother's home, only to be informed that the telephone lines were down and that he could not get through. To his amount of explanation that his break through the operator's barrier.

Contact Tulsa

Wondering frantically just how he could reach his family in Woodward, Capt. Clifford finally hit upon the idea of asking the communications section's radio station W4PIX to contact a ham in Tulsa, approximately 100 miles east of Woodward.

With the aid of Capt. Roger S. Andrews, a ham operator, whose call letters are W1BGM, and an instructor in the radio section, a CQ general call to all operators, was sent out to Tulsa. Minutes later the call was answered by W5WT in Tulsa. Capt. Andrews then requested that W5WT relay the message to H. E. Hamlin, brother-in-law to Capt. Clifford, whose home is in Tulsa.

Because of the heavy traffic on the air the night, Lt. Sgt. Shien-

Reviews Troops
April 7 Gen. Eisenhower returned the salute to more than 1,000 Fort Benning troops as they passed in review on their way into Columbus to participate in an Army Day parade. Immediately following the parade he was briefed on the organizational set-up of Fort Benning by Gen. O'Daniel and addressed approximately 150 Infantry Center officials.

Prior to leaving Fort Benning, at 3 p. m. that afternoon for Atlanta where he delivered an Army Day address, Gen. Eisenhower toured the post inspecting informally a few of the major activities. At Army Ground Forces Board No. 3 he appeared greatly pleased with the gigantic displays of clothing equipment and ordnance supplies. He also inspected briefly the board's enlisted mess, remarking to the mess steward that he was afraid he kept his mess hall as a show place all the time.

Upon his return to Fort Benning April 10 he was present at a Rotary meeting at the Polo Hunt club late in the afternoon. Friday night he was guest of honor at a dinner at the Officers' club given by approximately 100 Columbus civic and business leaders.

Saturday morning at 11:30 Gen. Eisenhower along with Gen. Walter C. Krueger, ret. and Gen. O'Daniel reviewed School Troops units consisting of the 37th Infantry Regiment and 83rd Field Artillery and the 82nd Airborne Parachute Infantry Battalion from Gen. N. C. Prior to the review Gen. Eisenhower awarded decorations to three E-4s, two E-5s and one E-6. The Bronze Star Medal went to T-4 Hayward E. Cook, 264th Truck Battalion, Army Ordnance Center, and the Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of ACP Ward No. 3, and Gen. Eisenhower and his party departed Fort Benning Sunday at 8 a. m. for a leisurely, circuitous return to Washington.

man G. Swink, whose call letters are W4DSV, also an instructor in the radio section, took over the controls from Capt. Cliff during intervals during the waiting period.

Shortly afterwards W5WT called W4IPX at Fort Benning to report that Mr. Hamlin was in Woodford siding in rescue work, but that his wife would have him on telephone as soon as she heard from him.

The first call was sent to Tulsa at 8 p. m., and the reply from Mr. Hamlin was relayed to Capt. Clifford exactly 40 minutes later. All was well so far as Mr. Hamlin could determine at that time, according to W5WT in Tulsa.

Since that time Capt. Clifford reports that his mother, sister and the rest of the family had gone to a movie that evening when the storm struck. Their homes were completely demolished by the fury of the winds, but there were no injuries sustained by any member of his family. When contacted Monday, Capt. Clifford had nothing but praise for the Fort Benning amateur radio station. "They're the real heroes," he said.

Candidate Recalls Experiences As Jap Prisoner For 4 Years

BY FRED H. DRUCKER

"I had to put a big knot in my throat and hit me feeling quiet and subdued."

In a simple manner O-C Ralph Eastham, one-time member of Battery D, 2nd Battalion, 131st Field Artillery, Texas' famous 1st battalion, and now student in AOC No. 6, described his first glimpse of Old Glory after nearly four years as a Jap prisoner of war.

Candidate Eastham, known affectionately by his friends as "Blackie," played a role in one of the most harrowing interludes of the post war. After participating in the heroic last ditch defense of Java, he was captured by toving Nip patrols and sent, together with 536 members of his battalion, to aid in the construction of the Burma-Siam "Death Road." On this 240-mile stretch of track, called by Ripley "Death's Railroad," he worked which eventually took the lives of laborers and permanently injured as many more.

Worked 10 to 20 Hours
Subsisting on meals the best of which consisted of a half cup of steamed rice and boiled roots and herbs, he worked 10 to 20 hours a day under the watchful Japanese eyes while friends and comrades literally died at his side. At one time he would certainly have fallen prey to malaria had not a friendly Japanese medic secretly shared his own ration of quinine with him.

Finally, after 15 crushing months he was transferred to a rest camp deep in Thailand where for 80 days he recuperated before being returned to the jungle. Thereafter Eastham spent his time alternately in Burma and Thailand.

On August 11, 1945, Eastham and nine other survivors, spurred by rumors of Japanese defeat, escaped from their camp and by devious means made their way to Kancharu. After a short rest, he was returned almost immediately to America where he was united with his wife who during nearly five years of waiting had never lost hope of her husband's eventual return.

After being separated, Eastham reenlisted and entered OCS. In his quiet unassuming manner he has worked hard and shrewdly, taking the rigorous candidate's life-in-stride and sent an example to the other experienced men in his company.

New Jet Bomber Passes Test Run

The Army Air Forces' latest jet-propelled bomber, the Consolidated, Vultee, XB-46, successfully completed its first test flight, remaining aloft 97 minutes.

The XB-46 took off from Lindbergh (San Diego) California, at 4:27 p. m., Eastward Time, and landed at Murco, P. M., Eastern, Army Air Field at 6:04 p. m., Eastward Time. A high-speed altitude bomber, the XB-46 is powered by four General Electric J-35 jet engines manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors, developed for the Army in a thrust of 16,000 pounds. The engines are arranged in pairs, two on either side with a single, streamlined nacelle covering each.

The XB-46 features an exceptionally long fuselage, 106 feet from nose to tail, only seven feet less than its wing span of 113 feet. The plane is 24 feet high and has a gross weight of 91,000 pounds. The landing gear of the XB-46 is of the tricycle type, with the main wheels retracting into a position between the two jet engines in each nacelle, and the steerable nose wheel retracting into a compartment. A complete pneumatic system has been installed for the actuation of the landing gear and bomb bay doors. This high-pressure system, faster in operation and lighter than the conventional hydraulic type, opens or shuts the bomb bay doors in a single second and fully retracts nose wheel in five seconds.

The pressurized cabin is heated by "boiling" hot air from the jet engines. The wing is electrically operated flaps extending almost full span, and the tail utilizes aileron anti-icing. Although the XB-46 compares in both size and performance with wartime heavy bombers, it is classified as a medium by the AAF. The development of super-bombers like the B-35 and the B-36 made it necessary to revise aircraft designation.

Thumbnail Sketch Of 'Vinegar Joe'

From now on when you walk down that path bisecting the field outside the first canteen—directly in front of the United States Field.

Here is a description of the life led by the man for whom the field was named, something which will give you a better idea of why he has had his name named after them.

Joseph W. Stilwell was born in Palatka, Florida, on March 19, 1883. He went to West Point, graduating in 1904.

His first assignment was with the 12th Infantry in the Philippine Islands, where he served for two years.

Coming back to the States, he was an instructor at West Point until 1910, took on a second Far East assignment then, and coming back to the Military Academy as an instructor from 1913 to 1917.

Stilwell went overseas in the first World War. He fought at the engagements of the Marston, the Battle of the Marston, and the Battle of St. Mihiel.

He received the Distinguished Service Medal twice. Upon his return in 1918 Stilwell entered the University of California for a year's study of the Chinese language, history, and customs. After obtaining a permanent promotion to the rank of major, Stilwell returned to the Orient, going to Peking for three years of study.

It was back to the States again in 1923, and for the next three years he took courses at Fort Benning's Infantry School and the Command and Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Stilwell went back to China, assigned to the 15th Infantry at Tsingtau, staying there until 1926, during which time he became a lieutenant colonel and head of the American forces in China.

Stilwell, promoted to a full colonel in 1925, was military attaché at Peiping, China, for seven years, from 1927-1933.

He was then made a brigadier general and assumed command of the 3rd Infantry in 1940. The next year he was a major general and commander of the 3rd Army headquarters at the Presidio in Monterey, California.

Shortly after Pearl Harbor Stilwell disappeared, turning up again in March, 1942, in—as you might guess—China, where he was conferring with Chiang Kai-shek on the future battles in Asia.

Now a lieutenant general, Stilwell was appointed by Chiang Kai-shek commander of the 5th and 6th Chinese Armies, becoming the first American ever to command a Chinese unit. Later he also became commander of all the American forces in China, India, and Burma.

About the Chinese soldier, Stilwell said, "He is a damned good soldier when properly led. If he has the equipment and supplies, no one can lick him."

In May 23, 1942, Stilwell arrived in New Delhi, India, after a 140-mile tramp through the Burma jungles with his men. "A hell of a bet," he said, "to see a Chinese to describe the Burma campaign."

"Vinegar Joe," as he was known by the men—by whose side he tought, stayed in the Far East to see the Japanese beat back on all fronts, and while there he gained the everlasting appreciation of the men he commanded and the Chinese people.

General Joseph Stilwell died last October. At the time he was commander of the Sixth Army out on the west coast. His last actions, on his death-bed, were characteristic of the man and his whole life.

Asked what award he prized most, he replied that, although he had never received it, he thought that the Combat Infantryman's badge was the award which he considered of highest value. (It is rarely awarded to Generals.)

Secretary of War Patterson was informed of this and the next day he ordered the badge to be awarded to Stilwell for his service in the Burma campaign.

Only some 24 hours after he received the award, Stilwell passed away. He left five children, three of them daughters. One of the daughters is a musician who plays the Chinese music, another is an artist who draws in Chinese style. One of his sons is now a captain in the U. S. Army.

Air Course Newsreel Being Shown At Post

Spectacular shots of the aerial demonstration presented each week at Fort Benning in conjunction with the current Ninth Air Force Air Indocination Course were included in the Fox Movie-tone newsreel which played at the Georgia Theater last Tuesday. The newsreel shows the massing of paratroop jump, aircraft bombing the assimilated enemy village and the students and high ranking Army officials on the grandstand.

The series were filmed by Movie-tone news cameraman Webber Hall during the demonstration presented recently to the four hundred students of the Infantry School, and is presently showing at Fort Benning theaters.

Battle Jacket Opinion Poll Is Held Here

A three-man quartermaster board team, who arrived at Fort Benning April 9, left last Saturday after conducting an opinion poll among both officers and enlisted personnel on the value and characteristics of the battle jacket.

Purpose of the survey was to find out "exactly what Fort Benning thought of the present uniform," according to Capt. John C. Voss, who was in charge of the survey board included M. Sgt. Edward F. Martell and M. Sgt. John Rice.

Findings of the team will be sent to the Quartermaster Board at Camp Lee, Va. This report will be compiled along with reports from six other Army installations in the Eastern United States, and recommendations will be made to the Quartermaster General, Capt. Voss said.

During their stay at Fort Benning the team contacted various organizations for the purpose of spot-checking the fit of the battle jacket and distributing questionnaires. There were four different types of questionnaires, including one for new inductees, one for troops with at least three years service, one for unit commanders, and one for the post commander.

Company C Maintains Position As Best Unit

Company C of the 25th Infantry Regiment, maintaining its lead in the First Battalion, again last week coupled first place in battalion competition for best company.

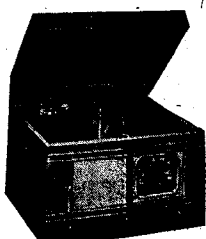

Company F took first place in the Second Battalion while the Medical Detachment took first place in the Fourth Battalion.

Last Saturday's holiday precluded the holding of regimental competition, but it is expected that these winners will vie for honors Saturday morning.

Universal Military Training

Sometime within the next six months legislation will be passed either banning or inaugurating universal military training. Whatever the Congress decides to do, we, the people, will have to accept, for we, the people, duly elected the senators and representatives to serve us as individuals and as a nation. However, the people of the nation should have access to the facts. They should know what to expect if there is no universal military training; they should know what to expect if there is no unification of the armed forces; and lastly, contingent upon the first two facts, they should know what to expect if War Department appropriations are further trimmed.

The Hon. Robert P. Patterson, secretary of war, poignantly pointed out in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System April 7 a few facts concerning our losses during World War II. Taken as a whole they are a startling revelation of how a great world power allowed itself to become a third-rate power within the short span of 24 years.

The German High Command in 1917 believed that because the United States was unprepared our Army could not prevent a German victory, and in an official report General Ludendorff asserted that it would be impossible to employ American units of any size under the command of our officers because those officers were not trained for the exigencies of major warfare. It cost the U. S. 126,000 lives and $32,000,000,000 to prove to the Germans that they were wrong.

The Japanese, also because of the size of our armed forces at the time of Pearl Harbor attack, believed us too weak to have more than a nuisance effect on their own highly trained Army. Even as late as Dec. 23, 1941, a leading Japanese newspaper stated editorially that the Japanese people had nothing to worry about since the U. S. Army was composed of a bunch of unwieldy, raw recruits armed with paper weapons and officered by college boys fresh from short summer training courses. It took us almost four years and cost us 400,000 lives and $300,000,000,000 to prove them wrong.

These lives could have been spared and this money saved if we had not allowed ourselves to climb back into our isolationist shell, disarm our soldiers and our sailors, and refuse to build up our air force. We listened to the pacifists, and called all our military leaders "warmongers!" We were still name-calling as late as the summer of 1941.

When the U. S. first began to increase its Army in 1940 there were only 200,000 troops in the Regular Army, including 30,000 in the Air Corps. These troops were scattered with one-third in overseas garrisons. There was no field army anywhere, and we had only five divisions, all of them at half strength. The National Guard had less than 200,000, the Reserve 100,000, and their training was unsuited to the type of war they would soon be fighting.

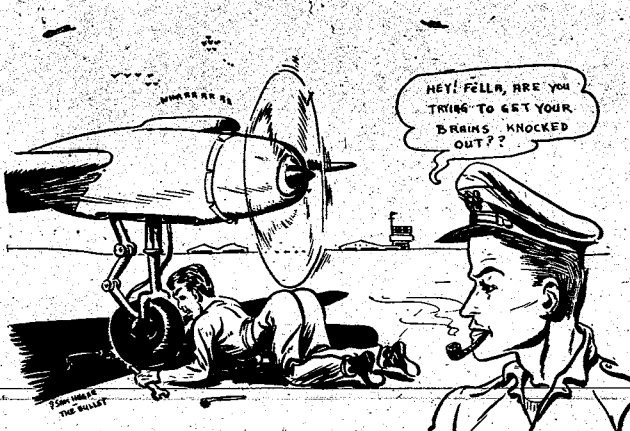

In another address before the Military Order of World Wars at New Orleans, La., April 8 Secretary Patterson urged all Americans to wake up and not be fooled by the pacifists again in 1947. "If we yield once more to their arguments, we ought to have our heads examined," he said.

How could it be put plainer? Mr. Patterson is asking us, the people, not to let our country ever again be classed as third-rate power on land, on sea, or in the air, thereby inviting attack from an aggressor nation.

We need and must have a system of universal military training. This, the War Department has proposed, may call for a six-month training period, followed by enlistment in the National Guard or Organized Reserves or by training in the ROTC. This initial training period should not be shorter than six months because there is no need to do a job unless it is done thoroughly.

The importance of the length of service is borne out by our two most powerful wartime allies: Britain and Russia. The British Parliament has just passed legislation calling for one year's compulsory military service, and in Russia every man is required to serve at least two years in the Army.

We need and must have an Army of at least 1,070,000, including 400,000 in the Air Forces. The standing force

"THE SECRET OF POWER" By CHAPLAIN FREDERICK D. GANT

Matt. 28:18-19: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore. After the resurrection of Jesus the eleven disciples went away into Galilee to a mountain where Jesus had appointed them. Here they met with Him, some had faith, but some yet doubted. Jesus reassured them by saying, "All power is given unto me both in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore or because of this power that I have you can go about the world that I have commissioned you, without the fear of failure. Remember, the gates of hell cannot prevail against you."

This power of Jesus imparted in the hearts of His disciples, inspired them to such an extent that they were no longer meek and afraid, but became bold and courageous soldiers of the cross, preaching the doctrines of Christ everywhere and letting no opportunity pass by unutilized.

What was and is the prerequisite of this power? First—A disciple everywhere and letting no opportunity pass by unutilized. One who has accepted the teachings and the person of Christ by faith, as the son of God. Second—Obedience (a great virtue that so few of us have). They met Him at the appointed place, a mountain in Galilee. His chapel, church and prayer services are the place where He expects to meet with us and impute His power in our lives today. Third—Prayer. He said that men ought always to pray. This is another medium through which God controls the heart and imparts His power. Here He meets with His disciple behind closed doors or in the congregation of the church and will reward him on her openly. The late Dr. George W. Truett, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Tex., a man of prayer and one of the most beloved and powerful preachers of his day, after delivering a message which challenged the heart of the entire congregation, was asked why he had such power in his messages. Dr. Truett answered by stepping back, opening the door to his study and pointed to his deacons on their knees in prayer. Yes, this is the secret of power.

of more than one million is vital if we are to live up to our occupation commitments and prevent resumption of war by those countries. Their importance does not end there. We have promised to show those countries a democratic way of life; we have promised to prevent starvation; and we have promised to bring their war criminals to trial.

We need and must have a unified organization of the armed services. World War II proved beyond the shadow of doubt that it is teamwork that brings final victory. It takes the Army, the Air Force, and the Navy working together in close harmony to wage successful war, and by the same token it takes cooperation in times of peace to insure the nation that there will be no more wars.

Don't be misled by those who say that the military want to take over the government. That's an old political whip about basis. The military have always been subject to civilian control. The military have proved since the time immemorial that the defense of their nation overshadows everything else, but the hue and cry is raised against them every time they make a bid for the strengthening of national defense.

As Americans we must wake up and strive toward establishment of a peaceful world with America taking her rightful place a first class power. This can be done only by universal military training, unified command, and sufficient funds to carry out the program to successful completion. These are the facts!

NATIONAL SERVICE LIFE INSURANCE — Public Law 5, 80th Congress, states that converted GI insurance may be reinstated under August 1, 1947, by payment of all premiums due, plus interest. Term insurance may be reinstated by the payment of two premiums, and a statement that health is as good as when insurance lapsed. GI insurance may not be converted to commercial policies, but to different types of National Service life insurance policies. Neither may the total of premiums paid on a $10,000 policy for example, be applied to a part at conversion. If only $2000 is converted from term level policies, only the premiums paid on the $2000 may be counted.

IMMIGRATION OF ALIEN SPOUSES OR ALIEN CHILDREN — The benefits of Public Law 271, 79th Congress (WD Bulletin 2, 1946) which provides for non-quota entrance into the United States of Alien spouses or children, are not available to persons not otherwise qualified who entered the armed services after 12:00 o'clock noon, December 1946.

VETERANS HOSPITALS — Watch for news of reported War Department sponsored plan to combine Army and Veterans hospital facilities. Veteran organizations oppose the plan.

GI BILL BENEFITS — Senator Taft (R, Ohio) last week introduced a bill to limit the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights to men who served in the Armed Forces prior to March 31, 1947. The existing law makes any serviceman eligible for these benefits after 1940 and the not-year and the WAR, and had discharge provided he served at any time between 16 September 40 days under conditions other than dishonorable, or was discharged for service-connected disability if less than 90 days.

AGCT — WD, 1947, no enlistment will be accepted from men serving in enlisted status whose AGCT score is 69 or lower, with the following exceptions:

- (a) An AGCT score of 69 or lower, recorded than 65 may be enlisted, provided his commanding officer specifically recommends in writing that his application for enlistment be accepted.
- (b) An individual whose AGCT standard score is lower than 70 may be enlisted, provided that his record shows he was awarded a decoration or award. These awards are: Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldiers' Medal and Bronze Medal with V device.

Men who apply for enlistment from civilian status, whether or less than 70 will not be enlisted unless they have been awarded a decoration or award.

Personnel who do not meet these requirements for enlistment or reenlistment in the Regular Army may apply for a waiver through the Adjutant General.

Military personnel now on active duty with an AGCT score of less than 70 will be either discharged or kept in the service, depending upon the judgment of their commanding officers.

Luck Of Officer Candidates No Match For 'Dame Fortune'

By J. D. WALKER

"Ya" can't win if luck is against ya, no matter how hard ya try! So many distinguished victims of Dame Fortune thought as the brown bus sped smoothly down the highway a few days ago. These unfortunates had just lost a tough battle of the individual vs. the Army, and, as usual, the Army triumphed. As the students of Unit Co., 3rd Tank, No. 6, loaded quickly into the waiting vehicles they groaned inwardly at the mental anticipation of what was ahead. Victim rumors surrounded their next class—hand-to-hand combat, commonly known as Judo. All of them had heard tales of broken arms, sprained ankles, and missing teeth from previous classes. Still, their hearts wanted to do but gri hand bear it. Until it happened.

Candidates Pray — From the motor of the third bus there came a grinding, straining groan. The wintry wind had camped under the hood and was there to stay. The driver choked on the floorboards, and started the "sick'n dying" sound emitted from the temperamental machine. All to no avail. The candidates prayed silently, fervently, that the miracle would happen—if the engine wouldn't start, their class would be either missed or postponed. Hallelujah! The chorus grew.

The bus behind the stalled one jockeyed to position to push, and the creaking and grinding of the engine as the heavy load began to move down the dirt road. Things began to brighten as the motor's cheering section. It coughed and sputtered, turned over, and died a natural death. Things brightened. Only for a minute, however, as a spark eventually took hold, the motor roared, and the bus took off under its own steam. The temporary morale of the hapless candidates hit absolute zero as they envisioned the sprains and strains of the next hour.

Suddenly there came a jolt as the motion slowed and stopped. A two buses were locked together, muttering something about jinx on the entire operation, the officers charged, and the bus was inspected the situation, and decided to pry the bumpers apart. Moving the occupants now approaching frenzy, to the rear of the bus, the made several unsuccessful attempts to unhitch the obstinate vehicles. Not to be thwarted by such puerile efforts, however, Lady Luck stood by the candidates. Vain attempts accompanied by none-to-sound advice from the occupants, continued for a time as the precious moments filtered on. Finally the operation was declared impossible and the elated company settled down to a nice, long rest while the officers waited for the return of the mot fatumate buses to give up to the remaining men.

Even when Lady Luck can't defeat the Army, over the next hill came a G.I. truck carrying a hoist. In less than nothing flat the hoist was hitched on, the vehicle was firmly grounded, and started on his way. A group of wild, frenzied candidates—ready for combat in an excellent frame of mind for it.

VARIED EXPERIENCE — O/C Leonard E. Fiebler, AOC No. 6, has set duty in almost every branch of the service. He received basic and advanced training as a tank commander, was transferred to the Air Force. He was overseas with the 70th, 78th, and 3rd Infantry Divisions as a doughfoot. After returning to the States he was sent to Puerto Rico with the Ordnance Department.

3 Task Forces To Close Shop

Task Forces "Williwaw" and "Frigid" now are preparing to return to the United States from their bases on Adak in the Aleutians and at Fairbanks, Alaska, was announced by Headquarters, Army Ground Forces.

"Williwaw" is commanded by Col. Joseph D. Raper, and is scheduled to leave Adak for Seattle, Wash., on April 10. "Frigid" is commanded by Col. Paul V. Kane, and will return to the states in two groups, with the first echelon departing from Fairbanks, April 10, and debarking at San Francisco, Calif. The second echelon is scheduled to leave Fairbanks, May 10, with Seattle as destination.

The third task force, "Frost," commanded by Curtis Rudolph W. Broadlow, has conducted its testing mission at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Reports Not Available — Although complete reports on the tests will not be available until the results are carefully reviewed by Army Ground Forces Development Boards, other observers have already concluded that many standard items of equipment must be altered or modified if the ground soldier is to have sufficient protection for prolonged combat duty in a severe winter climate. As a result of the tests, recommendations for the development of new items specifically suited for winter operations will be made.

Areas where the most severe general types of cold climate and difficult terrain are prevalent were selected for the task forces' operations.

Weather Cold, Wet — Weather conditions on Adak, where "Williwaw" held its tests, are cold and wet, with rain and powdery snow falling constantly. Strong winds, known as "williwaws," because they seem to blow in all directions at the same time, frequently sweep the island. Wind velocities here reached 125 miles an hour. Terrain on Adak is a soggy tundra, almost impassable for heavy vehicles, including tracked motorized equipment.

At Fairbanks, Alaska, site of "Frigid" operations, the temperatures were recorded from zero to below during the tests. The ground is deeply frozen with a precipitation of dry snow from four to five feet deep.

"Frost" encountered weather and terrain conditions typical of northern states of our central west and the Andean in France. At Camp McCoy, during the winter months, the temperature ranges from 5 to 25 degrees above zero with short periods of sub-zero temperatures. The ground is covered with snow during most of the winter season.

We frequently wonder how Solomon ever managed to fall asleep with the thousand or so things he had on his mind.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

HONEYMOON (romantic comedy) with Shirley Temple, Franchot Tone, and Guy Madison. Love is a wonderful thing! The only difficulty is that it sometimes causes so much trouble for innocent bystanders. All Tone wanted to do was see Shirley and Guy happily married. But the outcome almost wrecked our Good-Neighbor policy in Mexico. Recommended for family.

SEVEN WERE SAVED (melodrama) with Richard Denning, Catherine Craig, and Russell Hayden. This portrays the work of the post-war air-sea rescue. Floating in the Pacific in a rubber boat are seven people whose only hope of rescue depends on whether the rescue service can "find a needle in a haystack." Recommended for family.

A LIKELY STORY (romantic drama) with Barbara Hale and Bill Williams. If you have only six months to live why waste time sitting around waiting for the six months to pass? End it all now, married. But the Williams viewpoint; but Barbara Hale has other ideas, and—like a woman—is determined to have her even if it kills Williams. Recommended for family.

LOVE AND LEARN (comedy and romance) with Jack Carson, Robert Hutton, Martha Vickers and Janis Paige. Carson and Hutton are a song-writing team looking for a publisher. Vickers and Paige are a romantic team looking for husbands. Result: plenty of song notes until they learn four-part harmony. Recommended for family.

BIG TOWN (newspaper story) with Philip Reed, Hillary Brooke, and Robert Lowell. Based on the radi program of the same name, this is the first of a series dealing with the adventures of a big city newspaper staff and their crusade against crime and corrupt politics. Recommended for family.

Miss Somerville, Lt. Frank Wed In Beautiful Ceremony

In a setting of soft candlelight, white and green ferns, Miss Shirley Irene Somerville and Lt. Phillip J. Frank exchanged wedding vows April 9 in an impressive ceremony held in the Post Chapel.

Chaplain William C. Shure officiated at the ceremony for Miss Somerville of Washington, D. C., daughter of Mr. J. J. Somerville of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, and Lieutenant Frank of Fort Benning and Mrs. Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frank.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by Lt. Col. Deibert E. Munson. She wore a beautiful gown of traditional white with the net yoke and brocaded satin bodice. The hoop skirt of brocaded satin was covered with net and tulle in a gracefully fashioned skirt. A single strand of pearls, a family heirloom, was the only ornament and she wore a finger-length, tulle veil. She carried a white prayer book with a white orchid and white streamers.

The bride's attendants, Miss Patricia O'Daniel and Miss Mary Grace Washington, D. C., were beautifully dressed in gowns of white with a floor length style of water taffeta. Cap sleeves and sweetheart necklines were featured in the dresses with full skirts draped from the center.

Many Local Citizens View Lawson Planes

Citizens of Columbus and surrounding communities defied persistent April showers last Thursday afternoon to honor Lawson Field's invitation to attend its annual Army Week open house from 1 until 4 p.m.

The visitors graciously ignored the dripping wet Welcome banners and the rain-soaked bunting decorating the display area and got down to the serious business of inspecting first hand some of Ninth Air Force's largest and best aircraft.

The spectators were especially interested in the P-80 jet-propelled plane, P-51 "Mustang" fighter, P-61 "Blackwidow", P-47 "Thunderbolt" and the A-38 "Invader."

Great Interest Shown

Great interest and excitement also centered around the display of large cargo ships including the C-54 "Boxcar" which spectators were anxious to inspect closely since they have seen it only in the Columbus area daily now for over a year. Walking through the transport ships which paratroopers use for jump training provided visitors with another thrill, especially when they were invited to occupy the pilot's seat and the plane's bucket seats which are used by the troopers.

The various types of aircraft ammunition on exhibit were rockets, paragraf bombs, incendiary bombs and the fiery napalm. Commentators and guides were on hand at all sections of the exhibit to answer questions and give out information on all equipment.

At the display of giant bombs listeners heard commentators stress the great destructive power of the ammunition and warn that if similar objects were ever encountered now to molest them not to report the find immediately to Post authorities.

A large tent draped with red, white and blue parachutes, housing a recruiting booth, was flanked by displays showing blow-up photographs of all aircraft on display. Miniature prints of Lawson's aircraft, numbered 82, were distributed to the guests as souvenir gifts of Army Week.

Among the many visitors who braved the scattered showers to see the special aircraft display were groups of local Boy Scouts, including the Negro Air Scouts, and Mr. James H. Lilly, Field Scout executive.

GERMANY BOUND—T/A HOWARD HOLLIS—Signal Corps Photo rapher, left Wednesday for his new assignment at Frankfurt, Germany. Before joining the Army in 1938, Hollis was a free lance newspaper photographer. In the Army he served as a combat photographer in the CBI from August, 1944, to September, 1945. Hollis joined the Signal Photo Lab at Ft. Benning last month. Many of his pictures have appeared in The Bayonet, (Signal Corps Photo.)

SIXTY-ONE YEARS SERVICE—Pointing out the size of Fort Benning now and comparing it with 1918 are these two former 29th Infantry troopers who have a total of more than 61 years in the Army. Finger on the map is M/Sgt. William Kirshfield, assistant leader of the 72nd AGF band, and looking on is M/Sgt. Albert K. Puckett, technical advisor in transportation at Lawson Field. Both sergeants are scheduled to retire at the end of the summer.

2 Oldest Post Members Of 29th To Retire Soon

Fort Benning's two oldest members of the famed 29th Infantry Regiment, M-Sgts. William Kirshfield and Albert K. Puckett, will 1924, serving with the regiment until 1940 at which time he was transferred to the 72nd Army Ground Force band and doubles on the clarinet and saxophone. He also slyly admits being a "fiddler."

The stocky sergeant with so many hash-marks that he will soon have to elongate his battle jacket sleeve joined the Army in the Panama Canal Zone in July, 1916. As a member of the 29th Infantry he became a regular in the regimental band. After about two years below the border, the 29th returned to the States by way of Camp Beauregard, La., and Camp Shelby, Miss., reaching its final destination at old Camp Benning in October, 1919.

Slayed With 29th Sergeant Kirshfield remained with the 29th until 1941 when he was sent to the 8th Infantry where he aided in forming that unit's regimental band. In 1943 the 52-year-old sergeant went up to Fort McPherson in Atlanta where he was appointed assistant leader of the 863rd Army Ground Force band. He returned to Fort Benning in 1946 and joined the 267th Army Ground Force band, now the 2nd.

Sergeant Kirshfield plans to retire in July or August. He will remain close to Fort Benning, having recently purchased a home at 325 Sheridan Ave, just off the Super Highway.

Friend to Sergeant Kirshfield and Army careerist is Sergeant Puckett, veteran of nearly less than 30 years active duty. Presently stationed at Lawson Field as a technical advisor in transportation, he, too, is a former member of the 29th Infantry. Entering the Army in October 1913, Sergeant Puckett traveled down to the Canal Zone to join the 10th Infantry Regiment's transportation section. Three years later in 1916 he was transferred to the 29th and followed the same route along with Sergeant Kirshfield to Camp Benning.

Sergeant Puckett left the Army in 1920 for four years, but re-enlisted with the 29th again in 1924, serving with the regiment until 1940 at which time he was transferred to the 72nd Army Ground Force band and doubles on the clarinet and saxophone. He also slyly admits being a "fiddler."

The greying sergeant has not decided yet where he will live when he retires in September, but thinks perhaps he will also remain near Fort Benning.

AAF Band To Feature Growth Of Air Power

12th Photo Tech Unit Processes All Pictures For Air-Ground Course

The skilled group, which is from Greenville, S. C., last month completed over 5,000 prints, including general pictures, maps, photostats, charts and general photography.

The unit's outstanding feat is accomplished during the Wednesday afternoon demonstrations when photographs taken at the opening of the 25-minute aerial show are delivered to the students before the exhibition is over.

2 General Hospitals Will Close June 30

Closing by June 30 of two Army hospitals—Old Farms Convalescent Hospital at Avon, Connecticut, and Pratt General Hospital at Coral Gables, Florida—was announced by the office of the Surgeon General.

In accordance with Medical Department policy, Army hospitals have been closed as rapidly as the decreasing patient load has permitted. At the peak of the war the Army operated sixty-five general hospitals and thirteen convalescent hospitals with a maximum patient load of over 245,000 patients. With the closing of Old Farms and Pratt, the Army will have thirteen general hospitals in operation, with approximately 28,000 patients, and no convalescent hospitals.

'37th,' ISD Collide Tuesday in Feature Encounter of Week

The 37th Infantry-ISD ball game next Tuesday at 5:45 p. m. shapes up as the game of the week.

With the Airborne Battalion, these two teams are the best in the league. Up until yesterday morning, the 37th and Airborne were tied for first, each being undefeated, and the Infantry School Detachment was right behind with three wins and one loss.

The other teams in the league are all out of these three's class. At first the league seemed to be settling down to a two-team affair, Airborne-ISD, but the 37th ripped through its first four games undefeated to command attention.

Rain Puts Kink In League Tilt

Rain this past week forced the postponement of seven league games and the delaying until May 6 the completion of the 756th 328th ball game started on Sunday.

The 756th Tank Battalion and the 328th Ordnance played a regulation seven-inning contest on Sunday, and were all tied up, 6-6, at the end.

They went into the eighth inning, but after three balls were pitched, a torrential downpour started, stopping the game right there and raining out the evening's Airborne-37th contest.

The 328th and 756th will pick up their ball game just where they left off on May 5, when the two clubs are scheduled to meet again.

Last Friday night rain eliminated the Airborne-Lawson Field and 1290th-STR games, and Monday two more went by the boards with the postponement of the 37th-Lawson Field and 1290th-328th tilts.

Water was still coming out of the heavens Tuesday and it seemed that the 83rd-756th and ISD-328th games would be washed out, too.

All postponed games are out on the bottom of the league schedule to be played off at the end of the month.

Polo Classic

The polo classic of the year is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, May 4, when the "four old men" with a 12-goal handicap pit their skill against "four upstarts" with a six-goal handicap.

The match is to be played at French Field, beginning at 2:30 p. m., weather permitting, and actual public is invited.

The "four old men" include Col. Joseph Nichols, 3 goals; Col. W. O'Connor, 3 goals; Col. Robert L. Dulaney, 3 goals; and Lt. Col. Wesley U. Moran, 3 goals.

The "four upstarts" include Lt. Bill Castle, 2 goals; Lt. Barney Hopkins, 1 goal; Maj. Keith Quail, 2 goals; and Maj. Gerald Shea, 2 goals.

With plenty of thrills for the spectators, Col. Joseph Nichols came through with every score for the Freebooters in their yellow colors.

An exciting moment in the last chucker came when Col. W. W. O'Connor's mount rearedly lost a shoe and a blacksmith had to be called to the field to remove the iron before the horse could be taken from the scene of the game.

For the first time this season, a goal was scored by a player taking the ball the length of the field. Colonel Dulaney was the rider to take the ball all the way and make a goal while Major George J. Beatty Jr., was in close pursuit.

Airborne Batters Pound All Hurlers

By BILL SCOTT
Going into the third week of play in the post baseball league, the Airborne nine remains undefeated and comes up with a list of league-leading batters.

With three games behind them and their last two rained out, the Trooper batters boast the best team average in the ten-team league. In the opening contest of the season against the Infantry School, DeLaChamaine, Captain Paul Walker, wore came hot as 11 times, collected 8 hits and produced the game team average of .258.

In their second contest which was more on the style of a good track meet they blasted out 24 hits in 48 trips to the plate for an even 500 game average. Against the 1290th Engineers in their last game, the Troopers felt a little off the pace they set in the previous game, only getting a mere 14 hits for 32 tries registering a .437 average.

Getting down to individual work, Tom Gallagher, bustling backstop leads his mates at the plate with a cool .615 average from his 8 hits in 13 times up. Not stopping there, Gallagher also can do a little bragging about his 8 runs scored and 10 runs batted in.

George Dickson, long time star Army drummer, and Floyd Doolley, big hander and also outfielder deluxe, share second place in team standings, batting at .462 clip. They both have 6 hits in 13 chances. Dickson, a hard man to stop on the base paths has scored 11 runs and batted in 4. Doolley has himself scored seven times and driven in 11 men.

Paul "Blondie" Bondar who has the most times at bat, 14 to his credit, also had 6 hits and a juicy .423 average.

In a lower bracket now (a lower bracket on this "jumping combi" consists of about the 350 count) Frank "Lefty" McGowan, flashy initial sacker, came up with 5 blows out of a possible 13 for .385. No slacker, McGowan's paths either McGowan has scored 6 times and pushed in 3 more close behind McGowan comes Ken Pritchard, keystone man, advertising a 4 for 11 .364, scoring 3 times and knocking in 1 run.

Ferry rates right along with Pritchard just three points below with a .360 average. He has a 3 and 3 in the runs scored and run batted in departments, too.

Rained Out Twice
The victims of two rained out contests the Paratrooper's contest game will be against the other only undefeated nine, the 37th Infantry, which is making a strong bid for the flag. At present writing, the 37th ranks ahead of the Airborne with 4 wins and no losses.

The Airborne's games with Lawson Field scheduled for last Friday and their game with the Student Training Regiment Sunday were rained out, leaving them with only three games won against a clean slate in the loss column.

Post Midgets Open Season With Win

The Fort Benning Midgets, the post entry in American Legion baseball, opened up their season with a 18-4 defeat of the Columbus Merchants in a ball game played last Sunday in town.

Composed of Benaglies, 16 years and under, the Midgets are being sponsored by the Chancellor's Bohemian store in Columbus, which is supplying the team with uniforms.

In Monday's five-inning ball game, M. Godfrey pitched a one-hitter for the Midgets, who were led at the bat by Frank Saunders and Bob Summers, each of them collecting two hits in three appearances at the plate.

Next game for the Midgets is Sunday, with the Boys' School of Columbus in addition to the opposition. L. Joseph Hall, the team's coach, asks any boy on the post interested in playing to come out for the team, which practices every day at 6 p. m. in the first court.

JUNIORS NEED COACH

Another Benning Juniors' team is being formed. In addition to the American Legion club, and a coach is needed for the nine. Anyone who would like to manage such a team is asked to contact the Athletic Office. Telephone number is 2258.

TABLE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Sgt. Edwin Varella, 756th Tank Battalion, won the Annual Army-Navy Y. M. C. A. Tennis Tournament, for 1947 defeating Col. Nate Cohen. The scores were 21-16, 21-19 and 21-17. Both went to the finals with comparative ease. Sgt. Varella was winner of the 1938 New Jersey championship, and Col. Cohen was the 1941 Maine Champion. Sgt. Eddie Jones placed third in the tournament while Sgt. Philip Boyre, former Boston champ, took fourth place. The winner and runner-up were both awarded gold trophies by the Army-Navy YMCA.

STR Still Looking For First Victory As Club Improves

The Student Training Regiment is still out looking for his first win of the season, but things are looking better all the time—in a way.

The boys have dropped decisions to the 37th Infantry, who are deadlocked with the Airborne in first place at this writing, to the 75th Tankers, who reside in third place at the moment, and to the 15D Profs, possible their apparent tie, the 1290th Engineers, in second place. The team's only chance at one of the weaker clubs in the circuit, the 1290th Engineers, was drowned out last Friday night, but the gods aren't always against them. They were rained out of a game with the Airborne Battalion too, last Sunday.

The team's offensive punch has improved gradually. In their first game the Rifles could only get to Colonel of the 37th for 3 runs, all unearned. The next time out, against the Tankers, they crossed the plate 5 times, and this time one run was earned. Finally, in their last game before the moon-suit season, they got to Pitchers Buckner, and Mitchell of the 15D for 2 runs, six (6) of which were honest tallies. It may be slow, but it's improvement.

Shortfielder Mink has been carrying most of the offensive load thus far, and is now one of the league's top five hitters, with an even-600 average. He has drilled out six hits in ten trips to the plate, one of them a double, and has scored 6 of his team's total of 16 runs this year. The only other dependable man with the willow is Pitcher Olivera. Olivera has connected for 3 singles in five official outings during his abbreviated periods of service, and has leaved him hitting .600 also. Olivera has scored once, and knocked in 3 others.

No other hitter on the team has connected for more than one blow in any single contest, and no other hitter has hit in all three games. Defensively, the club is not too solid either. The boys have messed up 13 times afield, six times in one game. Regrettably, the hitting is rapidly going downhill instead of improving. The team miscued only 3 times in its first outing, committed 4 more the second time, and really let it go in the last game, against the 15D when they kicked 6 around the field.

Another incident that reflected more gloom around the STR camp, occurred in the 7th inning of the game against the Profs. With two out, one run already across the plate, and men on first and third for the 15D. Folk stepped to the plate and hit a long, high fly ball to the right field. Mass misjudged the ball, and when he saw it was going to go over his head, made a leaping try for it but was way short. He fell awkwardly with his leg doubled up under him, and made no effort to get up and chase the ball. By the time the center fielder had recovered it and thrown to the infield, Folk had circled the bases for a home run. Time was called and it was discovered that Boss had broken his leg just above the ankle. So, he'll have to be contented for the rest of the first half of the season.

The STR's next engagement is next Saturday at 8:00 p.m., against the 328th Ordnance, a pretty fair club. Following that effort, they get a rest until next Tuesday, when they are scheduled to meet the 83rd FA, also at 8:00 p.m.

83rd Developing Winning Team

The 83rd FA has developed the nucleus of a steady, winning ball team, and when they begin to get a few breaks, they ought to move up towards the first division. If merit was the only deciding factor in a baseball game, the 83rd would have a 500 average now, instead of their present 250 status.

In spite of Raoul Bouilgny's best effort against the league-leading 37th, the 83rd took a loss, when shortstop Gleaton threw one away in the seventh inning, allowing the winning run to cross the plate. Bouilgny walked three and had three errors committed behind him, two of the errors being directly responsible for the 37th's wins.

The 83rd has a rough game coming up on Saturday, when they play the second place 15D team, but should be able to hold their average somewhat on Sunday and Tuesday afternoons. They run up against a pair of the league parasites, meetings on respective dates, the 1290th Engineers and the STR, both of whom are still looking for that elusive first win.

BROOKLYN DODGER PROPERTY—Jack Forbes, Lawson Field second baseman who belongs to the Brooklyn baseball club, is currently batting at a .400 clip and is one of the main props for the third-place Fliers.

Lawson Wins Pair, Loses 1

Two postponements due to rain during the last week forced the Lawson Field nine into their third week of play with a two win and one loss record.

In their initial contest the Lawson club came out strong to set back the 204th Truckers 9-0. In their second contest they eked out a 3-2 win over the 328th Ordnance team, beating ace pitcher Andy Solland. Their only defeat came at the hands of the rapidly improving 83rd Field Artillery Battalion in their last game. The 83rd outscored them 10-3.

Leading the Fliers at bat is catcher Smith, who is flying an even 500 percentage, getting five hits out of ten trips to the plate. Four of these five hits came in the first game against the 1290th. Next in line is Forbes with an even 400 average. Forbes is one of the fielding gems on the Fliers' line, covering the keystone sack like he was made for the job. Forbes has been up ten times, and has hit safely in every contest, getting two safe throws.

Frank Wilson follows Forbes in the team batting honor roll with .333 and behind him comes Russell with an even .300.

In their next game the Fliers will meet the 750th Tankers on Thursday night in the opening contest of the twin bill.

37th Softball League Off To Flying Start

With the addition of two new teams the 37th Infantry Regiment's softball league got off to a flying start this week with Company A and Headquarters and Headquarters Company taking the lead. Company A romped through the 1290th Engineer Nine Claimed 'Soft Touch'

BY PFC MILT MOSKOWITZ
SNAFU is as appropriate a term as any to apply to some of the baseball shenanigans of the 1290th Engineers.

During their first three league games, the Engineer nine hardly appeared to be a potent force in the Beating Loop. In fact, along with the Student Training Regiment, they have come to be considered the soft touch of the league.

This is unfortunate for two reasons: one because the 1290th has a spirited outfit that backs up its teams, and two, because on the face of it, the 1290th has a good team at the outset, although it was weak in pitching.

The lack of Organization However it seems that the club has been victimized by lack of organization from the start. This was obvious just from the scores: a 1-0 attempt to obtain a starting lineup at the beginning of a game.

In the Airborne contest the coach didn't arrive until about ten minutes before game time, and the lineup wasn't settled until a few minutes previous to the "Play Ball" of the umpire.

The starting pitcher didn't know that he was going to hurl into some five or ten minutes before the game and had no time at all to warm up. Players were switched around, and the leftfielder in the first two games had to go behind the plate to catch because the regular receiver quit the team over some misunderstanding.

This confusion was noted in a few teams before the season had started. But that could perhaps be explained off as being due to early-season inertia. The 1290th week with five wins and one defeat.

Headquarters Company introduced a new team to the league last Saturday afternoon which played a veteran Company B nine a 4-1 defeat. The outstanding player of the game was Fitch Daugherty, who collected 11 strikeouts and drove a home-run with a man on base to take the lead for Headquarters Company.

The 37th Infantry league will play a series in which each team will meet three times. The top three will then meet in a play-off for 37th entry in the Post league tournament.

seems to be going from bad, to worse. In its first game the Engineers lost a tough 8-7 extra-inning affair to the 756th Tank Battalion, which is now in third place. After that they were beaten by the 15D, 12-1, and 19-2 by the Airborne. It is true that these last two contests were with teams out of the Engineers' class, but it's also true that the 1290th nine helped beat itself.

Standing head and heels over everyone on the team is little Joe Harris, the second baseman. He is clubbing away at a .555 batting average, has scored four runs, driven in two, and performed well in the field.

ROYAL, 37TH PILOT, LEAVES BENNING

One of best-liked of Benning sports personalities—T-Sgt. James Royal, known to friend and foe as "Roy"—left the post Tuesday for a month's leave after which he will report to Camp Stoneman, Cal., and eventual overseas assignment.

Having finished managing the 1946-47 Doughboy basketball team, he had just taken over the managerial reins of the 37th Infantry Regiment's baseball club. His team was in first place when he was notified last Friday that he was going overseas.

"Okay With Him"
Taking the news in his stride, Roy said that it was okay with him. "They probably have some good ball teams in Korea" he opined hopefully.

Roy is a native North Carolinian who has been in the Army for about six years. He has been in southern camps throughout his Army career, making his rating in the field.

Played Semi-Pro Ball
Before entering the Army Roy attended the University of North Carolina and played some semi-pro baseball. He continued his baseball playing in the Army, at Fort McChellan and Fort Benning notably.

Last year he was with the Samuel Troops in Viet, the second place team in the league.
Roy leaves Benning, not only with his team out in front, but with himself at the top of the league in batting. He started at first base in the 37th's first game and batted out two hits in two tries.

He then replaced himself with Jim Dulaney and never came to print his name in the top of the batting list. This week as a token farewell gesture.

Marksman Badge Leg Is Won By 3 Post Riflemen

PACIFIC BOUND—James Royal, T/Sgt. in the 37th Infantry, and one of the more permanent figures in the Fort Benning sports world, left Tuesday on a 30-day delay-en-route prior to going to Camp Stoneman, California, and duty in the Pacific area.

ATLANTA, April 17.—Twelve competitors in the Third Army Area Rifle and Pistol Matches, held at Ft. McPherson, Ga., and Ft. Benning, Ga., last fall, have been awarded a leg each on the Distinguished Marksman Badge and the Distinguished Pistol Shot Badge, the War Department National Board for the promotion of rifle practice has advised Headquarters, Third Army here.

Under national regulations it is necessary for a competitor to win three legs on either badge in national competition within the United States to become eligible to receive it. The Board announced that the official bulletins of the rifle and pistol matches have been approved.

In the rifle matches, those winning a leg on the Distinguished Marksman Badge are 1st Lt. James K. Felt, 50th Parachute Infantry Battalion, Ft. Benning, Ga.; Harlan E. Carter, Atlanta; 1st Sgt. Walter C. Cooper, Student Training Center, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Sand Hill Takes Politowicz And Feeler Only 14 Points In Track Meet

By S-SGT. ROBERT D. PHILLIPS

Though the speed demons of Tuskegee ran a muck to take first place in 14 of 16 scheduled track and field events to win the Quadrangle track meet Saturday with a total of 89 points, the Bulldogs from the 25th Infantry blazed the cinder trails with startling speed and garnered enough second, third and fourth places to tie the Alabama State Hornets with 14 points each. The swift stepping Maroon cindersmen from Morehouse College placed second with 51 points.

An American resident in China once inquired with her housekeeper for taking her linen into her bedroom without knocking.
"That all right, Missy," said the native. "Everything come packed through keyhole. Nothing on, no again last Saturday night in a losing cause against the ISD nine. Again he struck out fourteen men, the fifth, when he was rapped for four strikeouts with 24.

Politowicz And Feeler Whiffing 'Em For 204th

Ed Politowicz and Doyle Feeler provide the 204th Truck Battalion with a one-two punch on the mound as effective in the past league as the Hal Newhouse-Duzy Trout combination was in the 1946 American league season.

However, sad to relate, the Truckers have no one comparable to Hank Greenberg or Rudy York, who have rid themselves of the nasty habit of committing six errors a game.

As a result, the 204th now has a record of one game won in four outings, although they did put an awful scare into the league-leading 37th Infantry nine a week ago Tuesday.

25th Infantry Boxers Take Break Until June

The Truckers lost that contest, 4-3, as Ed Politowicz, shaky at the start, gave up a double, home run, and single to the first three batters facing him, putting him three runs down.

In the remaining six innings, Politowicz allowed only four hits, the last two in the seventh inning from accounting for the game-winning tally. His sharp-breaking curve-ball got fourteen outs via the six-pack route.

Medics Excel In Ball League

BY GENE DE ALESSI
Contrary to the opinion that most medics excel in the lah and not on the softball diamond, the men of the 121st Evacuation Hospital are fittingly called "The Medics" because of their prowess in the newly formed league tourney at Harmony Church.

Wirt Is Standout
Though every man is not a college or professional threat, mention should be made of a few standouts. Well remembered for his high-calibre play as one of the Fort Benning Basketball Doughboys is Bill Wirt, a catcher. Wirt, who was considered by many, this reporter included, as the fleet footed gazelle who sparked the Doughs to many victories is as much at home at third base as he was when snagging boulders off the back board. He's consistent as a hitter and accurate on his peas to first.

A recent Pacific Coast League prospect, "Nooch" Mejia, is at short for the Evac Hospital team and though his stature doesn't resemble that of the "Bambino," he wields the Hickory Club mean fashion. Former Kansas State stand-out, Julius Wilhelm covers center field for the team and a little of right and left when the occasion demands. Self-admittedly a "sucker or a high inside one" when his bat succeeds in meeting the ball a bagger comes as no surprise.

Outstanding Spirit
At a recent practice session Manager Wirt went back on by saying: "Second only to the performance of the team is the outstanding spirit and cooperation of every man on the diamond." The team, although comparatively new and inexperienced with the exception of the aforementioned players, shows capable fielding ability but lacks punch behind the plate. However, the team looks better after each practice period and it wouldn't bring wonder if their mouths if after the end of the season the 121st Evacuation Hospital team capped the Harmony Church softball tournament.

Bullets Win 4 Out Of 6

By S-Sgt. ALYSEN E. WISE
Splitting even with Florida A and M College, 25th Combat Team's Bullets baseball team capped their remaining two games of the week for three out of four wins, to bring their season's record to date to a pair of losses out of six contests. Friday's game with the Lakewood Tigers of Albany, Georgia, was controlled by the out of town club Tuesday, and meanwhile, the Bullets board of strategy are to play here at Sand Hill on Sunday afternoon.

Wednesday night, last, the Bullets drubbed the Floridians 7 to 1 in the Gowdy Field Stadium before a good sized gathering of some 250 spectators, thus successfully opening their home, night season.

Big Johnny Isom, serving as 25th's hurling choice, and Clarence Morris, center fielder, collectively gauged upon the visitors to bait another win in the book. Isom, set down 14 batters while Morris, assuming the new role as number four batter collected a brace of doubles and one single out of four trips to the plate.

Mitchell, right fielder for the Collegians, who was handcuffed with a walk and free throws out during the Wednesday night game blasted the Bullets right out of the game. Thursday afternoon at Sand Hill when he batted four for four two four baggers, and a brace of singles, the final count being Florida 7, 25th 4.

Raying on a three hit attack, and four opponent miscues in the seventh, the 25th came from behind with five runs to defeat Morris-Eaton College 6 to 3 Saturday afternoon in Atlanta. Lawrence Hall started on the mound for the 25th, gave way in the fifth to Pat Young who was relieved by Johnny Isom in the ninth.

A sudden seventh inning rain interrupted a hard fought battle between the 25th and the Georgia-Alabama All-Stars Sunday afternoon before a packed capacity crowd at Sand Hill, with the score in the Bullets favor on 7 to 4 count. It is likely that a return game will be played between the two clubs in the near future.

On Wednesday night, April 23, the 25th will engage the Alabama State College in a night game at Gowdy Field. Starting time, 8 o'clock.

HARD TO GET OUT—That's the Airborne's George Dickson, a perfect lead-off man, who somehow manages to get on base a good deal more often than anyone else. George has been playing ball at Benning for a good 10 years now and made the post all-star team last year.

Racers Return In Double Feature Despite Ill Luck

Discouraged by rough blows from weather and accidents, more than a score of drivers are expected to return for the third midget auto race of the season at Idle Hour park Friday, promoter Alex Brewer has announced. A "double-feature" is promised to make up for the sudden showers which cut the Sunday afternoon rain-date program short by one event.

Despite the rain which knocked out the final feature Saturday, none of the customers complained of a poor show. The five-car crash which almost broke up the party was the most spectacular pile-up in the history of the local track. The trouble came in a hectic third heat, when No. 19, racing with a half-mile gear on a quarter-mile track, broadsided on the south turn.

Then most of the racing cars in North America joined the mix-up. No. 20, racing for the first time under local ownership and apparently eager for distinction, clambered to the top of the pile, breaking an axle and suffering general lacerations and abrasions. No. 18 went over on its back beneath No. 20. No. 19, which had started the ball rolling, was the first to leave under its own power. The meat wagon nosed up to the scene but its services were not needed.

Brewer announced that the Friday night rain-out that Sunday afternoon would be a regular rain-date thereafter, that is, races postponed because of rain on Friday would be run off on the succeeding Sunday.

Time trials Friday will begin at 7:30 p. m. with heat-racing to start when all cars have been qualified. The final race will be a double-feature to satisfy any customer who didn't get enough thrills, chills, and spills last Sunday.

CANDIDATE SESSIONS

Among the 32 combat-wise veterans in AOC class No. 8 John P. Sessions has an interesting record.

Candidate Sessions' military career dates back to June 1938 when he entered the Army for the first time at Idabel, Okla. During the war he served for 16 months with the 45th Infantry Division in Sicily and Italy.

The husky Oklahoman was discharged from the Army following the end of the war, but re-enlisted in order to attend the Officer Candidate School. He intends to make the Army a career.

Boland, 328th Bell Weather, Twirls 16 Out Of 21 Innings

Playing good ball, but coming out on the short end of the breaks, the 328th Ordinance baseball team behind the able tutelage of Lieut. Welch is stumbling along with a 2 win and pair of losses to their credit.

In the first contest, against the 80rd Field Artillery Battalion, Boland turned in a 4-hit performance, striking out 13 opposing batters and giving up two walks earning his 3-2 victory. Barncio and McGross gave support to Boland with a safe bow.

Boland played two years with Scranton, Pennsylvania, and from there he joined a Detroit semi-pro club and played with them one year. Into the Army, he landed on the Fort Leonard Wood nine and played a season with the 3rd year. There he went to Fort Jackson playing with their Red Raiders. Last year he chalked up a 7 win and 2 loss record with the Raiders.

Score Reversed
On the mound again for the 328th in their second tilt the score was reversed from the first contest and Lawson Field emerged the 3-2 winner. Boland struck out 8 and brought his season's total up to 21. He was touched for 5 hits and again walked 2 men. His team support behind him just wasn't enough as Baker and Armstrong each got a single for the only hits.

The 37th Infantry current league with 4 and 0 came up with a decisive victory over them in their last contest. Scoring more than their usual quota the 328th couldn't hold the 37th who was off on a scoring spree also.

Baker who started on the hill just couldn't stop the 37th and Boland making his third appearance came in with one out in the sixth. Culppeper grounded out, Roberts fanned and retired the side. In the top of the 7th Boland fanned Davis and Lands, first two men up and ended the frame as Egan grounded out.

Elements Come Into Action
Sunday afternoon in the first contest against the 75th Tankers at the end of the eight with the score tied at 6-6 the elements came into action and put off the playing off of this tie game. However, at the next meeting of these two teams before they start their game again they will take up where they left off and finish the tie game. At this writing with rain streaming down outside it looks as if tonight's 328th, Infantry School Detachment game will suffer too.

Tom Rinelli leads his mates at bat at present with a .428 average.

A girl working in a blood donor center rushed out of the room where she had just taken a pint of blood and saw a colonel she knew waiting first in line.

As she hurried to her job she called across the crowded room: "Just hop into bed, Colonel, I'll be with you in a minute."

A CO wired his 1st-Sgt. who was on furlough: "Raise hell and high water to get back. Can't grant you an extension."

And the sergeant replied: "Am raising hell. Be back in a week."

ISD Team Hanging On To 2nd Place

Losing only to the Airborne in the season's opener, the Infantry School Detachment nine has stuck tight behind the leaders with three consecutive victories and have been girding themselves for three rugged games in this coming week.

First the ISDers meet the 33rd Field Artillery Friday night, a team which has looked razor sharp in its last two appearances on the Gowdy Field diamond, then they play the third-place Lawson Field Flyers Sunday afternoon; and topping off the week's activities will be next Tuesday's game with the 37th Infantry.

The Shivermen will have to win all of these games to keep pace with the Airborne club, which still hadn't dropped a contest up to yesterday's 3rd tilt.

Test No. 1 Hurler
Shiver tested his number one hurler, Ike Silcox, last Saturday night against the 26th Truckers, the first time he's pitched since the Airborne opener.

The Prof's ace looked in fine shape as he won his first game, giving up but four hits and no earned runs.

Because Shiver has substituted rather freely in most of his games, where there just wasn't a contest, most of the ISD batters haven't come to bat officially so many times. However they still are maintaining respectable batting averages.

Lefty Leads Club
Lefty Lehner has five for nine, and his .555 leads the club. Herb Lauve has seven safe knocks in thirteen attempts for .539, while Burnett and Polk are slugging away at .466 and .462 respectively. Clyde Burt, the long-distance hitter, is batting a "puny" .333, but has scored six runs and driven in six. His two home runs top the league.

Bill Taylor played his first game for the ISD a week ago Wednesday in the 16-8 rout of the Student Training Regiment, and he came through with two clean singles in two appearances.

In addition to demonstrating the ISD's superiority over their opponent, the STR game also revealed the versatility of manager Chick Shiver.

Having caught in the first two games, Shiver thought he would take a whack at the shortstop position, his first love in baseball. Then, in the seventh inning, when relief pitcher Mitchell had already let in four runs and was having great difficulty in obtaining the final out, Chick himself came on the mound.

He threw two balls straight over the platter, both of which were swung wildly at and missed time. Shiver then called his catcher over to the mound and told him he was going to throw a curve ball next time.

Proceeding to do just that, Shiver racked up strikeout number one of the season for himself as the batter watched it cut the outside corner of the plate.

756th Upset For 1st Loss Of Season

After taking their first two ball games, the 756th Tankers were upset last Thursday night by the 204th Truck Battalion, 7-5.

The culprit was right-handed Doyle Feeler, who whiffed Tanker batsmen fifteen times, holding them to seven hits and two earned runs. The 756th started Ed Varella for the second time in a row, and he was raked for eleven hits in the five innings he was on the mound.

However the little Tanker moundman was the victim of shoddy support by his mates in the field, who committed six errors, allowing four unearned runs to come across.

In their previous game with the Student Training Regiment, the errors, all of which won't exactly make for a gaudy fielding average.

Manager Ken Watts came on to relieve once again and he blazed his fast ball past five 204th hitters in the two innings he pitched, running his strikeout total to fourteen for the season. The Tanker manager is one of the fastest pitchers in the league.

Little Jose Martinez, the pen-pen shortstop, blasted out two ringing triples in this game to lift his batting average to .462. Although he leads off, Martinez still tops the club in runs batted in with five.

Paul Dacklin, who helped manage the School Troops Vets last year, is the team's leading hitter, with a .625 mark and a flock of bases on balls. He is followed by Ben Bartozek, who is hitting away at a .555 clip. Hubert Martin has only been up five times officially, and he has three hits, has scored three times, and driven home three more.

The 756th's next game is with Lawson Field Thursday night, a battle which will break the third place deadlock between these two clubs.

Chunks Of Gloom Settle Over 37th

Great chunks of gloom are floating around the 37th's baseball camp this week. Last week, as you may recall, it was announced that Sgt. James Royal had been named the manager of the team. This week Sgt. Royal is no longer the boss man. The finger has been put on Sgt. Royal for overseas duty. He left on his delay en route last Tuesday.

As though that weren't enough trouble for the 7 day span, Colonel, most reliable pitcher on the staff, threw his arm out when he went in to relieve Walt Piebes against the 28th last Thursday, and has been told by the doctor not to touch a baseball for two weeks. By the time Colonel is able to start again he will be about ripe for discharge. He's slated to return to civilian life early in May.

Depend on Colonel
When we wrote this the remaining pitchers were looking unhappily towards the Airborne game, which was played or flooded out yesterday, depending on the vagaries of the weather man. The Airborne game was tied with the 37th for first place last Tuesday, sport a composite batting average of about .400, and had averaged just about the same over 15 runs a game in their first three starts. The 37th was depending heavily on Colonel in that encounter.

The managerial question was still unsettled Tuesday, but it looks as though Hal Grinols, pitcher, infielder, and outfielder is in line for the job.

There's a silver lining in almost any cloud you look at though, and in the 37th's case pitcher Ed Davis is it. Davis became the first twirler to win two games in the post league when he disappointed Raoul Boulligny and the 63rd FA 2 to 1 last Saturday afternoon. Boulligny gave up only one hit, and that was to leadoff man Lands in the last half of the first inning.

Gave Up Five Hits
Davis himself only gave up five hits. All three runs were earned in the contest. The 37th got the winning counter in the 7th, when shortstop Gleaton of the 63rd threw Dulaney's grounder over the first baseman's head, permitting Bryant to thot in from second.

Earlier in the week the 37th got their third win of the season when they battered the 28th pitchers for 13 hits and an 11 to 6 win. Hal Grinols got credit for the win, after relieving the injured Colonel in the fourth. The 28th demassed in the fourth. The 37th demassed in the first three innings, getting 5 runs on seven hits. They got their other one off Grinols before he had really gotten warmed up, in the fourth.

The team's hitting has been good right along, with the exception of course of Saturday's game. Even with that one figured in the 37th has a team batting average of .298.

Dulaney Hitting .417
Jim Dulaney is still the club's biggest individual punch. He's hitting at a .417 clip and has driven in 7 runs. Roberts, the catcher, is close behind with an even .400 average, and has scored four times to tie for the club leadership in that department with three others—Bryant, Fagan, and Lands.

Fagan still has the total bases department sewed up. His five hits have been good for thirteen bases and include a double, 2 triples, and a homer.

The big game for this week rolls around next Tuesday when the 37th meets the 15D at 5:45 p. m. The Profs have a heavy hitting, well balanced club and are considered one of the top two in the League.

Infantry Stable Horse Show Plans Near Completion

Fort Benning riders and horses are working on a heavy schedule now in preparation for the annual spring horshow for April 26 and 27 at the Campbell King Horshow Bowl.

Approximately 125 horses are scheduled for the three programs to be given for the show. On Saturday programs will start promptly at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. and Sunday the show will open at 2 p. m. in the beautiful setting of the Campbell King Bowl.

The 23rd annual show of The Infantry Stables will present 21 classes including hunters, jumpers, hacks, polo ponies and horseman-ship. Two more classes will be open to civilian horses these to be five-gaited saddle horses of any age and a walking horse class. Civilian owners are invited to enter. However, it is by invitation.

The show promises to be a colorful affair with all exhibitors in uniform and officers will ride in uniform. Sterling trophies will be awarded in all first places with ribbons from high school. In June, going to the first four places except in the children's classes where ribbons will be given in the first sign up with the Army, which he plans to make his career.

Candidate Kimmick Watched Jap Attack On Pearl Harbor

By J. M. FRY
If you will notice the last man in the third platoon of ACCC No. 9 you will see Candidate Leonard Kimmick—all five foot three of him, that is.

Kimmick is 20 years old and was born in Honolulu, Hawaii. When only 18 years of age Kimmick, from a window of the Tripler General Hospital, watched the Japs attack Pearl Harbor. The hospital is located on high ground about six miles from the harbor. Kimmick had a perfect view of the attack.

But it was not until the news came over the radio did anybody in the hospital conceive of what villains may enter the show only had taken place. However, it became a hard fact as soon as casualties began to pour into the hospital and the dead were brought to the morgue in everything from wagons to personal automobiles. Kimmick worked at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard after graduating from high school. In June, 1945, he joined the Navy. Later he was discharged in order to sign up with the Army, which he plans to make his career.

200 Scouts Attend Camporee At Post

Approximately 200 Boy Scouts attended the Camporee sponsored by the Georgia-Alabama council and held at Fort Benning's Scout camp April 11-12.

Sgt. Harry Duffield, Fort Benning scoutmaster, was in charge of the two-day outing which began at 10 a. m. April 11 and continued until noon the following day. Technique of scouting was stressed during the Saturday session. At that time the scouts were divided into eight-man patrols representing the different scout troops. Highlight of the week end was the camp fire held Saturday night.

Fort Benning was represented by a patrol of boys from Troop 27.

Picnic Ground Planned By STR Service Club

Service Club No. 3 in the Student Training Regiment area in Harmony Church plans to open picnic grounds with an outdoor fireplace and grill this summer, it was learned today.

At the same time it was announced that tentative plans also call for the opening of a canteen at a later date.

Club hostesses urge all Fort Benning troops in the Harmony Church area to make use of the club as often as possible. Musical instruments are available for those who enjoy "jam sessions", and there is a phonograph with a large supply of records. Dancing classes for both beginners and advance classes are held in the club, and there is a bridge parties at frequent intervals.

The club also boasts a large and adequate library and a game room complete with ping-pong tables.

Massachusetts reports a baby boy who whistled the day he was born. Evidently nature's effort to evolve a first sergeant.

Second Guessing

By MURRAY HARDING

The biggest, and wisest, sports week as far as this corner is concerned, is that T-Sgt. James A. (Royboy) Royal, who managed the 37th Infantry baseball team up to last Tuesday, has left the post for a tour of overseas duty.

Sergeant Royal has been one of the better known sports figures on the post since his arrival last summer. His unofficial connection with the A&R office has been a lot of help to them. Roy just recently wound up his duties as manager of the post baseball team, the Doughboys—a thankless chore, at best—and had happily settled down to a job in the A&R office itself, when he was named manager of the 37th.

He's done a great job with that team and had them in a first-place tie with the Airborne Battalion when duty called.

Best wishes to you, Roy, wherever the Army's call may take you.

We hope that by the time this issue hits the street the monsoon season will have passed. It has already disturbed the baseball schedule a-plenty in the past four or five days, what with raining out seven games completely, and causing another to be called at the end of 7-1-2 innings with the score all tied up.

For your information, those games which have been called-off will be played at the end of the first half of the season. If that's a big word, they will affect the final standings.

The game that was called at the end of 7-1-2 innings with the score tied at six apiece, which was between the 756th Tankers and the 328th Ordnance, will be finished May 5, when those two teams meet for the second time. The game will go right on from the point at which it was called, with pinch-hitter Rogers of the 28th at bat facing a two balls, one strike count.

This part of the column is respectfully dedicated to my distinguished colleagues, Milton R. Moscovitz, who, last week, in his gossip corner, so titled "Second Guessing," brazenly picked the New York Giants to finish first in the coming National League pennant race. Milton stated in that column that he is unbiased, having once again entered the current outside of New York. I have spent three (3) summers away from that jewel-like metropolis located on the southern tip of Lake Michigan called Chicago, and am obviously less biased than Mit.

I, after much pondering, have decided that the Chicago Cubs are the logical choice to cop top honors this year, and I am backed by no less an authority than Burns, senior baseball writer on the eminent Chicago Daily Tribune. Edwin cast the only first place vote for the Cubs in the recent poll of sports writers, which was a good indication, or may not. Edwin also cast the only first place ballot for the club to win them, under the inspired guidance of Jimmy Wilson, the Cubs finished a rapidly weakening sixth.

But this year, with sophomore Eddie Waitkus on first pointing towards a great year, and slugging Andy Pate back in 1947 form, when he hit over 300 and drove in 112 runs, it looks like this might actually be the Cubs year.

Not that I care either way, I'm impartial.

Keep your eyes fastened on the progress of shortfielder Mink of the 19th Infantry, and first baseman outfielder Herb Lauve of ISD as the season moves along. They're two of the best looking hitters in the circuit.

Mink is in third place among the sitters right now with a cool 600 average. Lauve is a little better—only hitting .339 as we go to press—but he's getting better all the time. He got three hits in three official trips, including a triple, in his last game. Mink swings right-handed by the way, and Lauve is a persister.

While we're on the subject of good looking ball players, we can't overlook Politowicz, a pitcher for the 204th TC Bn. He's had four hits so far—dripping both of his first two starts, but has certainly left a lasting impression on the ballers that have of the Profs went so far as to say Politowicz is more stuff than any hurler he's witnessed on the post in the last two years. He must have something's struck out 28 men in the 14 innings he's worked.

It's a trifle late in the year to be gabbing about baseball, but it's still a topic of much interest around Chicago, where the two pro teams of that city are engaged in their respective league playoffs for the championship.

The Chicago Bears and big George Mikan look like a shoo-in favorite over Rochester in the National Basketball League. The Bears were only a game away from the title on Sunday, and were scheduled to play the final game in Chicago, in which town Rochester hasn't won a game in the last two years.

But if the Bears do come through, they ought to give their lawyers a sizable share of the winnings. It was lawyers who persuaded Mikan to return to the team last January after his prolonged effort to break his hand-pologued effort. George has since averaged 19.6 points a game.

The Chicago Slugs of the American Baseball League, however, knocked off the heavily favored Washington Capitols in the first two games of the A&A finals, chiefly through the efforts of one-time Minnesota star Tony Jaros, who scored 43 points in the two games.

Total Of 11,367,989 Troops Served In Army.

The War Department released a final report on military personnel by State of residence showing that a total of 11,367,989 men and women served in the Army in the period November 1, 1940 to July 31, 1946. Of these, 9,566,887 were separated from the service before

Saturday Great Day For PX Employee

Saturday was a great day for Mr. Charles R. Bumford, supervisor of food activities at the post exchange, who renewed his acquaintance with General Eisenhower after a 30-year break.

Mr. Bumford carried in his hand a carefully preserved letter dated April 20, 1917, and signed by D. D. Eisenhower, 1st Lt. Infantry. Both men at that time were members of Company F, 19th Infantry, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The General was then a company officer and Mr. Bumford was the combination mess and supply sergeant. "Ike" recommended Bumford for a commission as a first lieutenant in the Reserve.

General "Ike" recognized Mr. Bumford at first glance. Turning to General O'Daniel, he said: "Come here, Mike. Here's the mess sergeant at Sam Houston."

The 30-year-old letter of recommendation was signed for the second time by Dwight D. Eisenhower, General of the Army, 12 April 1947.

200 Students From Bliss See Air Show Today

Two-hundred students of the Advance Artillery School, Fort Bliss, Texas, arrived at Lawson Field Tuesday at 1 p.m. to witness the fifth presentation of the Inductriation Course. Their arrival which was originally scheduled for last Sunday, was delayed two days due to inclement weather. The Artillery students began attending AIC classes at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Due to the two-day delay Air Inductriation classes were given their class schedules to give the students a two-day course instead of a three-day course presented to past AIC students.

Brig. Gen. Jared V. Crabbs, chief of Ninth Army's Advance Headquarters at Lawson announced that the big aerial demonstration of Inductriation classes the AIC presentation on Wednesday afternoon would be held today at 2 p.m.

In order to receive the full benefit in the two-day demonstration of AIC classes were given capsule version of several of the radar and static display lectures in the javelin, both West Pointers, and Watson in the broad jump, each man taking a third place.

The next class to participate in the AIC will consist of 200 officers from the Field Artillery School at Ft. Sill. According to present plans they will arrive at Lawson Field Sunday April 20. The two remaining AIC demonstrations will be given for the benefit of the Ground General School (April 28 to May 5) and the Air University students who will attend the last presentation on May 2-3.

At the end of last July and 1946, 102 were on duty on that date.

In general, the strength by state followed the national population pattern.

For example, more than one-tenth of the total were New Yorkers, the report showed. The State contributed 1,157,000 men and 24,741 women to the Army—the largest total from any State. Nevada, the smallest State from the standpoint of population, gave the smallest number of persons to the service: 11,000 men and 317 women.

PostCinderSquad Loses To Auburn In Saturday Meet

Showing up strong in the field events and falling off in the running events, Fort Benning's Doughboy cinder squad fell victim to Auburn's track and field team, last year's Southeastern Conference champions, 98 to 28, at Auburn last Saturday.

The meet was part of the annual "A Day" celebration at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute which included a baseball game with Fort Jackson, tennis matches with Fort Jackson, the track meet with Fort Benning, and an intra-squad football game climaxing spring training.

Highlight of the meet was West Pointer, Bill Chynoweth's 196-foot heave of the javelin which easily took the honor from him. Chynoweth took second in the shot put only one inch short of Auburn's winning toss of 42 feet 1 1/2 inches. Benning's other first place came in the high jump which was won by another West Pointer, Dave Brillhart, with a jump of 5 feet 11 inches.

Ken Knowles, high school star from California produced a tie for second place in the high jump with Auburn's Joe Pennington. Knowles ran second in the high hurdles with a 15.5 time.
