Parties

Tommy Mills, son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Lloyd J. Mills of Lawson Airforce base entertained a group of his friends and playmates in celebration of his sixth birthday anniversary, Saturday, May 14.

The party was held outdoors at his home in Baker Village, where outdoor games were played. A serving table, set up in the yard, was centered with a birthday cake, topped with strawberries and rabbits, and six birthday candles.

Those attending were Linda Williams, Nova Jo, Bobby and Annette Sasser, Lillian, Johnny Reggie and Ann Conie, Butch Bolt, Jr., Jimmy and Lynn Tate, Louise Abbott, Glenda, Robert, Jerry, Betty, and Sue Benton.

Jimmy Simpson celebrated his third birthday Tuesday, May 17 at the home of his parents, P-Sgt. and Mrs. H. E. Simpson of Lawson Airforce base.

A pink and blue color scheme was used in the floral decorations, and the table was centered with a circus cake topped with three birthday candles. Pink and blue balloons and horns were given for favors.

Those attending were Gini Champin, William Bass, Marshall Allen and Johnny and Michael Gendron.

FEC Ladies Hold Social

Ladies of the Far East Command group held their May luncheon in the palm room of the Officers' club May 18. Hostesses were Mrs. H. M. Hardin, Miss Katrina Stollberg and Lt. Helen E. Moore.

Table decorations and refreshments were planned for a cooling atmosphere on a hit day. Purple iris standing tall in a low cream-colored pottery bowl centered the table, supported by crystal baskets of iris at either end, with green fernery down the length of the table. Artificial Tzuru birds fashioned from purple glazed paper interspersed with the smaller replicas of the oriental plate. Place cards represented the Samuray warrior hats. The all-fruit salad plate, nutbread cheese sandwiches and tiny hot rolls climaxed with a cool lime sherbet for dessert made an appetizing luncheon.

Those attending were Miss Mary Fortune, ARC, Mrs. J. H. Watson, Mrs. W. C. Winston, Miss Julia Nolen, ARC, Mrs. H. H. Pell, Capt. Edna Ross, ARC, Bell, Mrs. O. O. Shaw, Mrs. W. Duncan, Mrs. L. D. Lawson Women Meet at Club

The Lawson Airforce base Women's club entertained approximately twenty-five members and their guests at a "White eleventh" party at the Lawson Officers' club May 17. Miss Marie Harry E. Grover and Mrs. Richard S. Snyder were hostesses.

The lounge was decorated with a pastel floral arrangement, and the table, overlaid with white linen, was centered with a low bowl of pink roses and blue hydrangeas.

Cited for its vigorous accident prevention program for the period covering the first three months of this year, the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion recently received letters of commendation from Major General Withers A. Burgess, commanding general, The Infantry Center, and Major General F. W. Clarkson, commanding general, Third Infantry division.

The letters stated in part that during the above period, the 999th suffered no accident in which injury was sustained by personnel and that only two motor accidents occurred in operations of the battalion during that time.

History Repeats Itself After Forty-Eight Years

In 1901, 2nd Lt. George C. Marshall (now General of the Army) joined the 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, and was assigned to Company I as a platoon leader.

Forty-eight years later, in 1949, 2nd Lt. Robert M. Marshall joined the 30th Infantry regiment, and was assigned to Company L as a platoon leader.

Don Ferris has served as secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union since 1927.

Start Courtesy Patrol Of City

A "courtesy patrol" has been organized by Fort Benning officials for the purpose of "correcting" breaches of military courtesy, dress and deportment in Columbus and Phenix City.

The patrol, it was pointed out, will not act as military police, but as a corrective service. Officers will be cautioned on and the military police will not be notified unless the case warrants arrest.

Members of the patrol will work in cooperation with civilian law-enforcement authorities, and in so far as possible will work through the Fort Benning provost marshal's office.

Patrols will operate from 5-11 p.m. on weekdays and from 1-11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Members of the patrol will be assigned new and distinctive serial numbers, officials at Lawson airforce base announced recently.

According to a recent Department of the Airforce directive, personnel of the regular airforce will be the first to be affected by members of personnel in other categories will also be involved in a manner and at a time to be announced later.

Personnel of the airforce other than male regular officers will continue to use their present serial number until further notice.

General Lauds Third Battalion

Major General F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, has commended the Third battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, for their exceptional work in handling incoming filler personnel.

The Third battalion handled over 8500 men in February, March and April, assigning them with units.

General Clarkson stated: "The methods devised were sound and effective and I wish to commend the battalion for its loyal and efficient performance of duty."

Also slated to be heard on the program are operatic arias featuring Edna Sayao, soprano, with Fausto Cleva conducting the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera association.

Home Away From Home Facilities Offered By City Recreation Spots

By ADRIENNE YOUNG
It's done every day. Overhearing scraps of conversation, bits of small talk, idle gossip and not so idle rumors. Waiting on a corner for a bus, for instance one might hear, "And she said she wouldn't think of it, but if she were me she'd . . ."

Or walking down the street, "Oh, do you know who I saw at the . . ."

Let's take the hypothetical conversation overheard in a grocery store between Mrs. John Doe and Mrs. G. I. Joe. "Mary, how on earth . . . When did you get here? I didn't know you were within a thousand miles this post!"

"Of all things, Julia Doe! I'm glad to see you. We haven't been here long, and I don't know a soul. This is luck! How's John?"

Grand. He's having a birthday tomorrow. Wish I could surprise him. Have a few folks in place, we haven't found a suitable place to live yet. Everything's so high . . . Doesn't leave much for fun, especially on a Pfc's salary!"

"I know what you mean . . . Same old routine."

"John is getting restless too. I knew what it is . . . Same old four walls. Maybe a walk, a game of double solitaire, but that gets old."

Yes, Julia and Mary and other army wives like you. Chances are you don't know about the USO clubs. Armed Services YMCAs and other similar organizations; or, if you do, you haven't investigated the scope of their programs.

For instance, let's take the case of Julia and John Doe and the approaching birthday. Let's suppose a happy ending, a surprise birthday celebration in one of the USO rooms with a small group of friends and lots of fun in store for them as little or no cost.

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

The Georgia sun beats down unmercifully on Gowdy field, and the soldier attending the game in uniform, curses the sun, the heat, and the buttoned up uniform. We are in perfect sympathy with you diamond fans; we in the press box sweater in the heat and the required proper uniform, and so do the authorities whose unfortunate, though necessary duty it is to pass, and enforce such regulations.

Young soldiers begin to stay away from the ball games, and the grumbling begins. Questions like, "Do officers have to wear uniforms too?" "Why can't we wear civilian clothes, since civilians are allowed to attend the games too?" and many others begin to circulate.

The answers are, yes, officers are also required to be in full class "A" uniform, and the post has no control over clothing worn by civilians.

The key to the whole situation lies in the answer to the 64 dollar question, "Why do military personnel, be they officers, or enlisted men, have to wear a uniform to a ball game at all?"

Because Fort Benning is the Infantry Center, the home of the Infantry School. As such, it is the scene of frequent visits by very important persons in the uniform of high ranking officers of all the armed services, and top civilian officials of the United States and many foreign nations.

We are soldiers in the United States army; the finest in the world, the impression the army makes on these visitors is made by the appearance of its soldiers. Since it is our lot to be stationed at the post where the American soldier can be seen by these visitors, the responsibility of creating the proper impression through discipline, and pride in the uniform falls on our shoulders. It's rough, fellows, but necessary.

Bernier Top Man On Contender List Takes Decision From Wilburn

Middleweight Bill Bernier of the 15th Infantry regiment became the No. 1 contender for the Post title when he defeated Cliff Wilburn for the second time in three bouts.

Wilburn by virtue of his defeat lost his ranking as No. 2 middleweight of Fort Benning to Bernier.

In the first fiasco, Wilburn accepted Bernier's challenge, and acknowledged the meeting, by knocking Bernier out for the second count. Cliff granted Bill a return go which was fought Friday night, May 13, in the Airborne Battalion's outdoor ring and resulted in a win for Bernier by split decision. Last Friday night's fracas, the decider, was a second return requested by Wilburn from which Bernier emerged again the victor, this time by unanimous decision.

Bernier apparently stored away a supply of knowledge gained in their previous clashes which was applicable to Wilburn's style of fighting since he led all the way, avoiding all the time the murderous Wilburn roundhouse which, when on the target, usually lices his opponent. Putting to use a smart left jab, Bernier caused Wilburn to swing wildly in the first round to gain an early edge over his formidable adversary. But the Infantry lad didn't pour on the steam until the second when he succeeded in beating the KO artist to the punch a number of times, and carried the battle in the in-fighting by beating a steady tattoo on Wilburn's body.

Bernier, never in trouble in the mill, pursued the strong Rocket leather puncher for the finish in the third, but Wilburn, though cornered, and apparently dazed, proved no push over for a knockdown lever Bernier to be content with the unanimous nod.

A knockout, and a technical knockout in the preliminary scraps set the mood for the tests, lightweight Willie Parker of the Rockets capped a unanimous decision over Ivan Guidry of the 15th Infantry, while team-mate Walter Blackmon bowed to middleweight Ken Shieff of the 15th by split decision.

Middleweight Brorer Hollyfield raised the colors for the Rockets again by finding the in through the use of a left jab, and follow-through to floor 15th Infantry's Dominick Pein for the nine count in the first round, and again in 23 seconds of the official time.

Lightweight Irving Blue, representing the 708rd Ordnance Maintenance company, proved too fast for his opponent Raymond Vallego of the 30th Infantry regiment in the first frame of their mill, and sent Vallego to the mat for the nine count. But Vallego, though behind in the point-getting of the first round, and the first half of the second, came back to win by unanimous decision over the confident Ordnance man.

Bantamweight Johnny Valcazar fighting out of Third Infantry division Headquarters company, afforded James Morris of the Rockets a win by unanimous decision to end class V activity for the evening.

Pvt. Ouan Burnett and Pvt. Clayton Garrett of Company M were also boosted to privates.

Two Upsets In One Day Highlight Week's Games

Upsets were the order of the day last Tuesday as two underdogs derailed the dope and downed favored opponents in the post-intra-mural circuit.

At Buller field, the Lee was on Flyers won their second straight game by defeating the 30th Infantry regiment, 4-3, while at Gowdy field, the Area Service unit nine upset the Third Infantry division artillery, 15-13.

The Flyers, long dormant in league competition, blasted the offerings of four victory hurlers for nine hits to gain a two-way victory.

Pacing the lawsonites to victory was Carl Rummey, who pointed out three hits in five official trips.

Glenn Baether of the Flyers chalked up his first win of the season, while, for the Buller of the 30th, it was the first loss.

Because of this defeat, the 30th skidded into fifth place, after leading the league for the first two weeks.

Meanwhile, the wild and woolly contest at Gowdy field, the afternoon, entered in the meet from out-of-town clubs besides 50 home members to make the largest entry list in the history of the ASU team connected when base meet.

Beavers Takes Medal Honors

William Beavers, Lt. Grange, fired a 88 Tuesday afternoon to take medal honors in Ninth Annual Riverside golf tournament. Par for the course is 72. This is the second straight time Beavers has captured the medal.

Match play got under way Wednesday morning, with the finals slated for Thursday afternoon. More than 70 golfers are entered in the meet from out-of-town clubs besides 50 home members to make the largest entry list in the history of the ASU team connected when base meet.

Local Angler Considers Sportsman's Problems

Capt. Charles Kilpatrick, 15th Infantry regimental information and education officer and an intrepid fisherman, believes his office should perform the functions of the sportsman, namely, to supply information that is of interest to the individual angler.

Recently, the captain struck an idea. Taking into consideration the questions an angler might ask himself before selecting a place to fish, he decided to do something about imparting all the pertinent facts connected with fishing on the Fort Benning reservation to his regiment's anglers.

Together with his assistants, Sgt. 1st Lt. Paul Konec and Col. Oren Webb, Capt. Kilpatrick started working up a sportsman's guide in the regimental I-E room. The guide consists of a topographical map of the reservation showing all the hunting areas, fishing rivers, streams, lakes and ponds. In addition to the map, there are colored illustrations of the type of freshwater fish ordinarily inhabiting local waters; the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association regulations, with corrections and changes, and illustrations and information on the two prevalent species of poisonous snakes in the vicinity of the post.

When Capt. Kilpatrick started working up the guide, he spread the word among the troops of the post that his office would appreciate any information that might have concerning the existence of unknown beaver ponds where fishing is practiced, what type of fish they contain, what type of bait might be used best, the condition of the ponds and surrounding areas and their accessibility. He also issued a call for similar information concerning hunting areas.

As a result, the guide has become a cooperative project with data obtained by anglers throughout the post.

Post Net Team Visits Maxwell, Bows to Hosts

The Fort Benning tennis team visited Maxwell airforce base Ala. last Saturday afternoon, and bowed to the prowess of the hosts by dropping seven out of nine matches.

Sanford Webster, after winning the first set of the No. 1 singles event, bowed to Potts of the airforce squad, 6-2 and 6-3. Airman Gates then defeated Bob Scruton 8-3 and 7-5 in the No. 2 singles match as the Maxwell men went on to trounce the visitors in three more singles contests, and yield the Bennett title only one singles victory.

Things continued to look dark for the locals when Scruton and Webster won one of the No. 1 doubles sets, but dropped the next two to lose the match to Potts and Moore. Donn Yoder, a former teaming partner of the Bennett squad, then lost the No. 2 doubles to Gates and Wade.

Eric Ramee and Alex Stewart defeated Salsbury and Williams for the locals in the only other Bennett win of the match. A return match between the Maxwell and Bennett squads will be played here on June 4.

Browns Adopt Morgan

The proudest man in Hollywood is Dennis Morgan. He has been made an honorary member — official uniform and all — of the St. Louis Browns.

Morgan, once a semi-pro basketball player, worked out with the Browns nearly every day at their winter training camp in Burbank, Calif.

YANKEE HOPEFUL—Big Jim Cacciola, center fielder with the Infantry School detachment Profs, came to Fort Benning fresh from class B ball with the Newark, Ohio, mine, a farm team of the New York Yankees. He is still under contract to the New York American leaguers, and plans to return to the Ohio-Indiana league team when his army hitch is up.

Cacciola, ISD Center Fielder, Under Contract to N. Y. Club

Center fielder Jim Cacciola, a six-foot, 200 pound newcomer to the Infantry School detachment Profs line up is a product of the New York Yankees with whom he is still under contract, and comes to Fort Benning after one season with the class B Newark, Ohio club in the Ohio-Indiana league.

Jim hails from York, Pa., where, during his high school years he played ball with the York American legion diamond nine from 1944-47.

When his school days ended, he secured a berth with the Newark Bears, International League's New Jersey farm team for the New York Yankees. That was in May, 1948.

In June of that year he was optioned to the Newark, Ohio baseball club, another Yankees farm.

Cacciola played 45 games with the Ohioans in the Ohio-Indiana league before enlisting in the army in September, 1948 carrying with him the same batting average he sports now, .304.

STR 10-2 Victory Pushes Back 15th

In a game played last Wednesday at Gowdy field, the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion nine defeated the 15th Infantry regiment Dragons, 10-2.

Big Ike Sliock toed the rubber for the STR and set the Dragons down with only four hits over the route. He was in trouble only in the top of the third when two hits brought the Dragons to within one run of the Troopers. The Airborne opened the scoring in the last half of the first inning when they combined two walks with a single and a long fly to tally two runs.

After the 15th had scored a run in the top of the third, the Troopers came back in their half of the same inning to score two more. The big blow of the inning was Bill Brooks' circuit clout to deep right center.

In the last of the fourth, singles by Tom Gallagher, Len Cannon and Bob Kinau produced two more runs. The Troopers then scored single runs in the fifth and sixth innings, and added two more in the seventh to close out their run making for the evening.

Lin Kenyon started for the losers but lasted only three and one-third innings. He gave up six hits and an equal number of runs. Willie Weaver relieved Kenyon in the fourth and pitched until the seventh when Walt Scott came on to finish the game.

The victory enabled the Troopers to take over second place in the league while dropping the 15th to third.

Rating Boosts Awarded Two Field Artillerymen

The promotion of two enlisted men in the 99th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, Third Infantry division, was revealed recently by unit officials. Walter L. Mason and James Garner were advanced from private first class to corporal.

New Version Of Gallant Unit Hopes To Uphold Traditions

BY CHARLES ROBINSON
January 28, 1944—produced a misty early morning near Cisterna di Littoria in Italy. Nearly 200 members of Company I, 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, were gathered under cover at the base of a long flat slope. The terrain ahead of them was covered by enemy heavy artillery, by mortars, and by deadly machine gun positions. The slope had to be crossed.

It was not the first time Company I had faced fire. And it would not be the last. From Africa to the Colmar pocket, the unit had fought as part of the Third Infantry division, and the men claimed, with good reason, to be members of the most highly decorated company in the United States Army.

Four Congressional Medals of Honor, four Distinguished Service Crosses, three Legions of Merit, 71 Silver Stars and 130 Bronze Stars were among the decorations held by men of the unit.

The men of Company I were quiet, huddled in groups against the cold dew, their cigarette smoke rising like a veil over the group. Waiting, incessantly waiting, for the order they dreaded, and so anxiously listened for.

And finally Capt. Robert M. Boddy, then commanding officer of Company I, gave the signal that caused the men to ready themselves for the onslaught.

Minutes later a thundering, flashing, staccato hail of fire announced that the company had begun its advance. After 48 hours of intense and constant battle, the company had advanced 1,000 yards, enough to call its mission accomplished.

As the outfit reassembled, 28 men slowly dragged themselves forward from shell-hole ditches and out of the ground; they were all that was left of Company I after two days, 1,000 yards and 133 Germans.

The battle was over, the position had been won, but 170 men were lost.

Stories of unbelievable heroism could be heard as men after men told of his combat exploits. One of these stories was T-S Eric Gibson's. Corporal Gibson was actually a company cook. At the time after time, he would request permission to join in combat assignments and this time he had been leading the second squad of the second platoon through a ditch to overcome German small arms fire. A member of the squad said:

"I was only a few steps when a blast of machine-pistol fire opened up from a trench on the left. I took cover, Gibson didn't even take cover, but ran 20 yards up the bank, firing his combat pistol as he went. He rammed his gun muzzle into the underbrush, a final shot of the German hidden there.

A heavy artillery barrage forced us down the enemy side of the position. Gibson had no concussion arisen then he was fired through by a machine pistol and a rifle. Again he charged down the bank, to fire his submachine gun into another pile of brush. When we came up to him this time he had killed one German just coming out with his hands up."

Another member of his squad took up the narrative. "We advanced farther down the ditch. We were stopped again by artillery and machine gun fire, and Gibson had us cover him while he began to crawl toward the machine guns. We lost sight of him but in a little while we heard two grenades go off and he came running back."

"Down the ditch again, until a need was reached. Gibson told his men to stay behind until he found if there were any Germans around the turn. The intense squad heard a machine pistol, then another, followed by Gibson's tommy gun. When they ran around the bend they found three bodies: Gibson's, and those of the two enemy soldiers who had opened fire. Gibson had fallen in a firing position.

"Gibson brought us through safely, though he died doing it. There isn't much you can say about him except that there are very, very few like him."

T-S Eric Gibson was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Their heritage as members of Company I is part typed by a message from the War Department dated Oct. 4, 1944.

"Company I, 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, is cited for outstanding performance in U.S. Army action. Launching a daylight attack on strongly fortified positions occupied by reinforced German rifle company, advancing across battle terrain, through heavy artillery fire, the company became subjected to intense machine gun cross fire from enemy positions 100 yards distant. Dense mortar fire coupled with a heavy artillery barrage caused heavy casualties among the attacking elements, but the two assault platoons were rallied and advanced through a hail of small-arms fire. In an overwhelming attack, the company employed six German machine gun emplacements, killed 23 and wounded at least 38 German soldiers. After attacking continuously for nine and a half hours, Company I assaulted another strongpoint, killing six, capturing 27 enemy

Regimental Level Pistol-Rifle Competition Now in Progress

The firing ranges here have been hot this month but no strictly phase have begun and the use of the smaller weapons has been added to the boom of the rifle.

The competitors for regimental teams are all volunteers who have survived the company trials and battalion eliminations.

Names of the firers who win places on the regimental team will be announced the early part of next month, officials have said.

For the division competition there will be two teams chosen from each infantry regiment, two from division artillery and two from special and attached units. The teams will represent the Third Infantry division in the Infantry Center open championships.

The teams will consist of five men with two alternates in the 30-caliber rifle, 45-caliber pistol and 22-caliber rifle.

The results of the open championships will determine the men who conventionally will represent Fort Benning in intra-army rifle-pistol competition.

Now Commands Medical Outfit

Lt. Col. Fred Vechnak has relieved Maj. William F. Anderson as commanding officer of the 121st Evacuation hospital, Infantry in 1938, joined the Medical department in 1931, and was commissioned in August, 1941. Prior to his assignment to the 121st, Colonel Vechnak served in first corps headquarters in Japan.

soldiers, and enabling the cover platoons to move up.

"The determination of this company sustained a 1,000 yard advance over enemy emplacements, under severe concentrations of artillery and mortar fire, through the German main line of resistance. Forty-six Germans were killed, and mortars wounded, 52 captured, and 35 resistance neutralized completely. The performance of the intrepid infantrymen of Company I reflects and embodies the finest traditions of the army of the United States.

Two other CMH winners lived to receive their awards. They are their present whereabouts are unknown. There was S-Sgt. Leland J. Davis, who paralytically killed nine Germans, eliminated three machine guns, routed a German force of arms, and recaptured three machine guns, and T-Sgt. Russell Duggan, who, though severely wounded, spearheaded a successful attack which resulted in the demolition of nine German machine gun nests.

These men, and scores more like them, thrust Company I to the front wherever there was a fight. They heaped on their unit the highest praises which could be awarded an Infantry unit. Their memory will never fade, nor will their valor be forgotten.

Company I was inactivated after World War II when the strength of the army was reduced. The men who had composed the unit during the battles of Europe were discharged or transferred to other units. But in January, 1948, it was reorganized at Fort Benning as a new unit, and in February new men arrived to fill the ranks.

It received a new company commander, Capt. Sidney F. Anderson, who had been attached to the Third Infantry division from Oran to Tunisia, in North Africa, who had landed at Salerno and had seen the fall of Rome. With him came five other officers, and a crew of experienced cadremen, all wearers of the blue and silver combat infantry badge. Still in the advanced training, the new Company I men hope to keep alive the name of an invincible unit as they become qualified infantrymen.

Their heritage as members of Company I is part typed by a message from the War Department dated Oct. 4, 1944.

WHERE TESTS ARE MADE—Army Field Forces board No. 3's Sandy patch test area, located in the board's shop area, is the scene of many tests of infantry equipment.

Equipment Tests Are Continuous Process With Field Forces Board

How much thought has the average soldier given to the clothing he is wearing, to the rifle he carries, or to the helmet that protects his head? Has he ever stopped to think how much research and experimentation is involved before army equipment is issued?

These and many other items of importance to the soldier have been put through the experimental slange here at Fort Benning by Army Field Forces board No. 3's 26 officers and 142 enlisted men. The board first began operation on Dec. 15, 1919. At that time, it was known as the Infantry board, and was set up to consider subjects which were pertinent to the infantry. Subject matter was to be referred to the board by the chief of infantry, and it was directed to submit recommendations for improvements.

The board then was composed of from three to seven officers, and the enlisted men needed for conducting tests were secured from the Infantry School.

Since its activation, 30 years of continued progress has been shown by the board, which was reorganized as Army Ground Forces board No. 3, and finally as Army Field Forces board No. 3.

In the Sandy Patch test area, the home of the board's shop and maintenance groups, some of the army's most qualified testers are constantly at work on new developments. Any item for which the infantry might have a need, from vehicles to mess trays and from tents to telescopes, it likes to pass through its experimental process before it is released for general use.

A staff of expert mechanics keeps the large group of vehicles in tip-top shape. A well equipped weapons shop carries out the repair work needed for the board's operation.

The directorate and test sections of the board are made up of highly qualified officers who represent nearly all branches of service. Close liaison is maintained with civilian research units throughout the country and with civilian research units. Capable and well-trained specialists carry on the enlisted part of the testing program. The men simulate actual conditions under which the equipment will be used in an effort to detect any flaws before it is released for general use.

Battalion Draws Praise For Part In TIS Problem

Troops of the Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment received commendation from Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander, last week for their participation in an attack problem held here on April 14.

Commanded by Capt. Murray D. Whiting, the battalion provided the foot soldiers in the Infantry-Tank-Artillery team in attack demonstration before distinguished military and civilian visitors.

In forwarding the commendation to the press, Col. James P. Torrance, Jr., regimental commander, congratulated each member of the outfit, and stated:

"It is indeed gratifying to be able to forward this well-earned commendation. It reflects highly upon the spirit of the officers and men of the battalion, and is a definite credit to this command."

General Clarkson's letter to the unit stressed the fact that "the Third battalion added greatly to both the quality and realism of the exercise. It was a creditable performance, and it earned favorable comment by all those witnessing the demonstration."

3rd Division Blood Project Launched

Third Infantry division Red Cross blood donations got off to a fast start Tuesday morning with approximately 200 enlisted men from the First battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment giving a pint of their blood for the "cause of mercy."

Led by Sgt. Robert G. Shirmacher of Company C, the donors filed through the ranks of volunteer workers and Red Cross nurses to give a pint of their blood at the "bloodmobile" headquarters at the Stator hospital.

Sergeant Shirmacher, a three-time donor, typified the spirit of the volunteers as he commented: "I'll give blood anytime it's asked for. I figure I might need some myself, someday."

First Lt. Salvatore J. Cuoco and Victor R. Devereux sheep headed the First battalion men through the line, and both said that more than the prescribed 200 men had volunteered for the donations.

"Their spirit will certainly take the Third division over the top in this fine drive," the lieutenants agreed. The next unit scheduled to contribute blood will be the Provisional battalion of the 39th Infantry regiment, which has set June 14 as its "blood day."

The remainder of the division will contribute a battalion at a time, throughout the rest of the year, with the last donor date scheduled for Dec. 20.

Entire Outfit Participating In Bond Plan

The first Fort Benning unit to achieve 100 per cent participation in the recently announced bond drive is the 665th Transportation truck company.

With a strength of 187 members, the 665th has subscribed $28,000 monthly for bond purchases with the majority of the men signing up to buy $25 bonds.

Half of the men signed up for part of the company's $30 bond and the remainder of the men are buying the $10, or "soldier's," bond.

In charge of the company's bond project is 1st Sgt. Theo Johnson, who personally enrolls each of the company's officers and enlisted men.

Education Drive Started by Unit

An educational drive is being launched by Company A of the 15th Infantry division, unit authorized to announce the program is to persuade each member of the company to attend the educational development G E D tests at the U. S. Armed Forces Institute.

Lt. Joseph E. Bryan is the officer in charge of the drive.

Conversion To Housing Starts in Hospital Area

Col. H. A. Stewart, post engineer, announced this week that renovation of unused buildings in the hospital area of the main post has begun. The buildings will be converted into family quarters.

The announcement came on the heels of Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson's request to congress last week for huge expenditures, including $5,500,000 for family quarters here.

The main post project is part of the plan for renovation of unused buildings for family quarters. The work in the Harmony Church area is proceeding on schedule with some of the apartments nearing completion.

Work on the noncommissioned officers' project here is still expected to get underway the early part of this month but there has been a temporary halt in contact negotiations. It has not yet been announced whether hot air or hot water heat will be installed.

Both the Baker Pines homes and Victory apartment projects are proceeding on schedule with the first of the Baker Pines homes due to become available June 1.

Meanwhile, in Columbus, the expected rush of landlords is file applications for higher rent scales under the new rent increase provisions did not materialize. Tenants breathed easier as only about a dozen applications were received.

Changes Told In West Point Requirements

Changes pertaining to appointments to the United States Military academy of army enlisted men have been announced by army officials.

No preliminary physical examinations will be required under the new setup, and starting July 1, 1950, applicants must have passed their 17th but not have reached their 24th birthday.

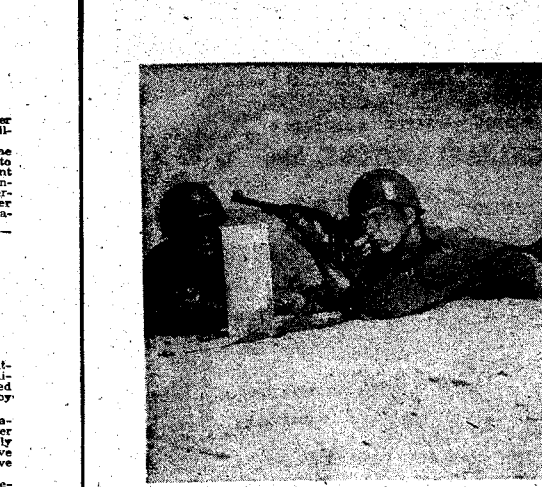

Final eligibility of those between their 17th and 19th birthday will be subject to enactment of amendatory legislation before their selection. The examination date will be July 1, 1949.

Work on the noncommissioned officers' project here is still expected to get underway the early part of this month but there has been a temporary halt in contact negotiations. It has not yet been announced whether hot air or hot water heat will be installed.

TIC Discloses School Board

Appointments to the school board of the Fort Benning Children's school were revealed last week by Infantry Center officials.

President of the board will be Col. James F. Torrance, Jr., and other members will be Col. Charles E. Woodruff, Lt. Col. William A. Luther, Lt. Col. Wallace M. Hale, Lt. Col. James N. Luton, Maj. Edgar R. Perry, Capt. Richard E. Burgess and 1st Sgt. Joe R. Pylant. Colonel Luton will serve as school officer for the 1948-1950 academic year.

PERFECT SIGHT PICTURE... Cpl. J. T. George seems to be zeroed in as he sights his target. The carbine firing at Caramouche range last week was part of the Third Infantry division artillery carbine, rifle and pistol competition. To the left of Corporal George is Sgt. H. N. Nungesser, his coach. Both men are from Battery C, 39th Field Artillery battalion.

To be conducted in chapel No. 3 in the Sand Hill area, the services will start at 8 p.m. and will feature the appearance of a guest rabbi who will conduct the services in conjunction with Chaplain Darna.

The holiday of Shavouth commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments and the Torah on Mount Sinai in Biblical times, and also gives gratitude for nature's bounties.

It is often called the festival of the weeks, for it falls just seven weeks following the first day of the Passover.

Chaplain Darna stressed that "In these difficult days, the Shavouth brings a message of liberty under the law, and urge the individual to strive to bring about a better world for all mankind."

Hospital Men Leave For Medical School. Three men have left the 121st Evacuation hospital to attend the Medical School at Fort Sams in Houston, Tex. Unit authorities revealed recently.

BE A MODERN '49er... One of the original covered wagons, used in the 1849 California gold rush, arrived at Fort Benning's outpost No. 1, last Saturday morning for the purpose of advertising the current Opportunity Bond drive.

Be Modern '49er, Review Is Slated Bond Wagon Asks For Divarty Head

One of the original covered wagons which carried many a party of Americans to the far west in the historic gold rush of 1849 was at Fort Benning last Saturday morning to advertise the current Opportunity Bond drive.

Arriving at 10 a.m., the covered wagon, mounted on a trailer truck, toured the post for approximately an hour. It came here from Atlanta, Ga., after having been down there from Independence, Mo., where President Truman officially opened the drive.

Adopted as the symbol of the 1949 savings bond drive, which opened May 16 and ends June 30, the covered wagon, which carried pioneers to the "land of opportunity," is once again playing an important role, James H. Jordan, deputy director of the U. S. Savings Bond division, Treasury department, Atlanta, who accompanied the wagon here, said.

The ancient vehicle is part of a train of 30 wagons which are touring the country during the drive.

All of the wagons are owned by Grenway R. Parry, mayor of Cedar City, Utah, who is a grandson of one of the original '49ers. They are among the wagons which have been used in recording an important role, James H. Jordan, deputy director of the Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, who arrived this week to take command of Third Infantry division support units, will be formally received by the division at a review on Tiger field today.

Formerly military attaché to the United States embassy in Paris, General Tate served overseas with several artillery units during the war. At the end of the war he helped organize the university for U. S. troops in Florence, Italy.

Third division artillery units, which will take part in the review scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m., include the Ninth Field Artillery, 39th Field Artillery and 41st Field Artillery battalions and Headquarters battery of division artillery.

Family Pay Might Stay

Solons Express Optimism Over Pay Bill's Prospects

Family allowances for enlisted men will be continued if the duration of current enlistments under the revised plan now being mapped by congressional authorities.

Amid the confusion and arguments heard both pro and con on the new pay bill for the army, one thing seems clear: family allowances for enlisted men will be continued.

In the original pay bill, which was defeated by a group of veterans, junior congressmen, the allowances would have been discontinued six months after the enactment of the measure. This one amendment was pushed into the bill primarily through the efforts of Rep. C. C. Roll (D-Colo.) after the House Armed Services committee fought off numerous other attempts to amend the bill.

It was estimated that an amendment would add from $1,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year the cost of the bill. The original bill called for an extra outlay of $408,000,000. No estimate has been made as yet regarding the total cost of the revised bill.

As the bill stands now, the cost of the enlisted grades would probably run as high as 38 per cent.

The highest three enlisted ranks will probably be held to maximum increases of 20 per cent or under with other grade and officers receiving increases of $140 a month or less.

Some officers expected to receive a little higher percentage under the revised bill than they would have gotten under a defeated measure.

The original bill was sent to the House after a vote of 227 to 163 against it measure.

The young representative who spearheaded the drive to defeat the motion, are from the ranks of the military establishment.

The Department of the Army said that the revised pay bill was in keeping with the desires of the military establishment and congressional sources have expressed the hope that the amended bill will pass both houses of Congress.

Armed Forces Strength Total For April Told

The combined strength of the armed forces on April 30, 1949, (estimated on preliminary reports) was 1,638,000, which was 20,700 less than on March 31, 1949.

The air force was the only service to show an increase, rising from 417,000 on March 31 to 418,000 on April 30. Army strength on April 30 was 871,700, a drop of 19,800 from March 31, having dropped from 493,300 on March 31 to 448,700 on April 30, a decrease of 1,600, and the marine corps decreased 300, dropping from 87,900 on March 31 to 87,600 on April 30.

These strength figures represent total full-time military personnel, comprising both regulars and reserves on full-time active duty.

Graduation Held For AG Students

Graduation ceremonies for 144 reserve officers of the Third Army Adjutant General School at Fort Benning were held on Friday, May 27, when the class was addressed by Col. C. B. Warden, Third Army Adjutant General, and other dignitaries.

This school, believed to be the first of its kind ever held in the army, was conducted by Lt. Col. H. L. Whitten, and officers of the Third Army Adjutant General AG section at Fort MacPherson, Georgia. These instructors were assisted by Col. Arthur C. Purvis, Adjutant General of the Infantry Center and Lt. Col. William H. Adams, Adjutant General of the Third Infantry division, both of Fort Benning.

The course instruction for this group of officers was geared to present the many and varied activities of the Adjutant General's Department as well as the newest developments in army personnel work and administration. Especially emphasized were the new Army career guidance program and the developments in classification and assignment procedures, and the recent progress in machine records. Not only did the students cover a course in Army administration, but instruction in the organization and duties of the divisional AG section was also presented. The group was welcomed to Fort Benning by Maj. Gen. Wilbur A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center. In the audience exercises held May 17. From then on the following schedule included a series of presentations by the instructors which were supplemented by many field trips to units stationed at Fort Benning. The students toured Third Infantry division headquarters, TIC headquarters, and the company room at Airborne school troops, attended a general court martial and visited the canteen room at the line units of the famous 15th Infantry regiment. The mobile mobile recovery unit, equipped with a display for the visitors' benefit and W. J. Fielder of the records. Not only did the students cover a course in Army admin-

FOR PRISONER DEAD

Simple Celebration Marks Memorial Day Observance

Memorial day was observed here this week with a quiet, simple ceremony at the monument dedicated to prisoners of World War II dead at the junction of Cusseta and Benning roads.

The ceremony, attended by civilians and soldiers alike, was striking in its solemn simplicity. Vincent McCauley, chairman of the Columbus Veteran's council, conducted the program.

Mr. McCauley introduced Chaplain (Capt.) Aloysius C. Zielenki, who pronounced the invocation. The audience stood reverberated as Chaplain Zielenki prayed that the "hurt and evils of the world might be healed and relieved."

Following the invocation, Mr. McCauley introduced Col. Dennis M. Moore, Infantry Center G-2, who during the war was a prisoner of the Japanese, and who laid the wreath on the memorial.

"It is only fitting," said Mr. McCauley, "that a man who survived the horrors of an enemy prison camp should now be chosen to honor those who were not so fortunate."

After the laying of the wreath, Robert A. Brown, editor of the Columbus Ledger, addressed the gathering. Mr. Brown told the gathering that the memorial was made of coral, a marble.

"But it is more than stone," said Mr. Brown. "It is made of the lives of those men, who in the course of war, paid the supreme tribute to their beliefs."

In his address, Mr. Brown called upon every American to assume his political, social and moral responsibilities.

"In order that America may be prepared," he said, "every citizen must shoulder his share of the burden."

Clothing Program Conferences Held

Two conferences concerning the new clothing monetary allowance system were held recently in classroom No. 5 of the Infantry School to orient Fort Benning personnel in the operating procedure of the system. The conferences were held under the direction of an instruction team from quartermaster corps headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Every unit currently stationed on the post was represented by a supply sergeant and a personnel officer, to reduce uncertainty when the system goes into effect on July 1.

In addition to the Fort Benning personnel attending the conferences, there were a number of visitors from Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., including Maj. A. J. MacDaniel, third army quartermaster section, Lt. William N. Schneider, corps of engineers, and Lt. H. B. Sarver, an infantry officer.

Celebration

The "new" clothing monetary allowance system actually is not new, since it was introduced up until the outbreak of World War II, and during that time proved its worth and effectiveness in saving both the government and the enlisted man money.

The principal of the system is just what its title indicates—it is an annual clothing allowance which is credited to the soldier's name, and against which he may draw any additional clothing he may need during the year.

These enlisted men of the Third Army, including the 13th Infantry division, were promoted to corporal this week.

Polio Warnings Issued By Army

The danger months for infantile paralysis, or poliomyelitis, (June, July, August and September) are approaching, Army officials and the National Foundation for the Care and Cure of Infantile Paralysis, have mapped precautionary measures that if adhered to, will diminish the possibility of contracting the dreaded disease.

1. Avoid crowds and places where close contact with other persons is likely.
2. Avoid over-fatigue caused by too much active play or exercise or irregular hours.

3. Avoid swimming in polluted waters, and only beaches or public pools declared safe by local health authorities. (Foot bathing pools are declared safe.)
4. Avoid sudden chilling. Remove wet shoes and clothing at once and keep extra blankets and heavier clothing handy for sudden weather changes.

5. Nose and throat operations on children are not recommended during the summer months.
6. If fever develops, go to bed and stay until a diagnosis can be made or the temperature returns to normal. While in bed, be particularly careful as to the disposition of articles soiled with discharges from the nose and throat.

7. Use every available means to eliminate flies.
8. Observe the golden rule of personal cleanliness.
9. Keep food tightly covered and safe from flies or other insects. Garbage should be tightly covered and, if other disposal facilities are lacking, it should be buried or burned.

Dealing with infantile paralysis in a calm and confident attitude is conducive to the health and recovery of its victim.

Liaison Flyer Now In School

First Lt. Minos L. Fletcher, liaison pilot for the 41st Field Artillery battalion left Fort Benning this week to attend the Helicopter Training school in Waco, Tex.

He will return to the 41st to resume his duties June 21st. Lieutenant Fletcher was assigned to the 41st in March of this year. He returned to the United States in the fall of 1948 after serving 24 months in the European command.

While in Europe Lieutenant Fletcher was attached to the Liaison detachment headquarters near Frankfurt, Germany.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Long Hours Produce Map For Indian General's Talk

Preparation of a map of India for Maj. Gen. Kalwant Singh, chief of the general staff, Indian army, won for Cpl. Warren DeKoff, Company C, Infantry School detachment, this week's honor of being chosen "The Bayonet's Soldier of the Week".

General Singh, invited to lecture to the faculty of the Infantry School on present day India, in collecting material for his lecture found that a large wall chart of India, showing division lines of India and Pakistan and locating in proper place the provinces, principal cities, rivers and mountains of the country, now known as the Dominion of India, was very much needed.

Searches were made for available maps and charts which could be converted for the general's use, finding that none were available at the Infantry School and with the lecture scheduled for the next morning, officials of the army field printing plant gave the assignment of preparing one to Corporal DeKoff.

Using a recent world atlas map, Cpl. DeKoff, by working all night with another enlisted man, carried out the assignment given him and produced a 6' x 4' map which proved very useful in the general's lecture.

CPL. WARREN DEKOFF... Soldier of the Week.

His work drew favorable comments from both the visiting dignitary and the assistant commandant of the Infantry School, Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley.

His achievement, according to Infantry Center officials, impressed the foreign dignitary highly and gave an excellent example of the ingenuity and ability of the American soldier of today.

Chaplain Returns to Post From Logistics Exercise

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, participated in Exercise Log Lee at Camp Lee, Va., late last month, as chaplain of the "13th army," a force that "invaded" the Southern States.

The exercise was held to determine the implementation of a map based on actual troops by a logistical division of approximately 167,000 men. The invasion of Southern France by the Seventh U. S. Army in August, 1944, was used as the model for the paper problem.

As chaplain of the paper 13th army, Chaplain Hale was particularly interested in the maneuver insofar as it pertained to the religious coverage of his army's troops and the analysis of the supply situation and other needs of the chaplain's in his units.

It had been found, Chaplain Hale said, that in an army of 160,000 men approximately 50,000 of the troops belong to units that do not have attached chaplains. Consequently, he continued, a problem of the "13th army" was to organize chaplain teams to cover those units.

The Infantry Center chaplain said that as a result of lessons learned on Log Lee recommendations will be made to the Operations and Training Division, Department of the Army, concerning the religious coverage of units that do not have their own chaplains.

Prior to participating in Log Lee Chaplain Hale attended the Chaplain's Convention in Chicago, then spent a week at the Chaplain School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., where he participated in the paper maneuver followed by the three-day problem and a one-day critique. Chaplain Hale returned to Fort Benning May 29.

Invest In America's Future

One of the original covered wagons which carried the treasured possessions of many a pioneer as he went West in search of gold and opportunity 100 years ago came to Fort Benning Saturday.

This covered wagon, in its modern '49er role as the symbol of the Opportunity Savings Bond Drive, brought to our attention the most treasured possession of many Americans today—U. S. Saving Bonds.

Our country is depending on the individual citizen to purchase savings bonds, during the current drive in order that the helping hand we have extended to Europe will remain extended. Each Fort Benning soldier has as much at stake in this economic recovery program as does the civilian, and it is his duty to take his full share of the responsibility of helping to finance the aid program. The wagon which was here last Saturday was to remind us all of that responsibility and at the same time to make us aware of the great tradition of the hardiness and rugged individualism which is ours.

It was when gold was discovered in 1848 that the covered wagon first began to carry treasured possessions. Built by the thrifty Pennsylvania Dutch farmers to carry their produce and their flour to market over rough countryside, it was designed purely for utilitarian usage.

Therefore, when the gold rush began, it was the one and only vehicle of the time suitable to make the long haul across the plains and the mountains.

It served that purpose well, to journey's end, in many an instance, but it also did more than that.

For into the covered wagon the pioneer '49er packed not only his household goods and the necessities for the long, perilous journey, but his wife and children; his household goods which were to be "set-up" in the new land, and even things of sentiment—the walnut bedstead, a luster pitcher, a bit of fine glass, a piece of rare pewter or the silver spoons and the lace "from across the sea".

Small wonder the wagon trains were received with rejoicing when they made the journey safely!

Out of them a new home was begun, and a new life.

That such a symbol of democracy should come to Fort Benning is indeed an honor. That symbol should inspire us to participate even more in the Opportunity Savings Bond Drive, for through that participation we will be able, perhaps, to avert another tragic and devastating war. The money we invest in savings bonds will be used to help us back up our commitments abroad, commitments which our government believes will bring about economic and political stability, thus reducing drastically the danger of another bloody conflict involving possibly the entire world in a war of complete annihilation.

The men at Fort Benning who saw combat during the last war know the revulsion of battle. They know what it's like to see their buddies shot down before their eyes. And we know that and the rest of the troops at Fort Benning will do their part toward insuring that it doesn't happen again.

So this covered wagon, in modern dress, which visited us last Saturday, is more than ever a carrier of treasure. It represents the opportunity to provide security for the future.

Age For RA Appointment Is Reduced

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Maximum age for appointment as second lieutenant, regular army, will be reduced from 30 to 27 years next November. Age above 27 may be increased by the amount of active commissioned army service between December 31, 1947, and date of appointment.

Only minor changes will result from the army-air force revision, now in progress, of directives governing time lag before a serviceman's dependants may join him at an overseas station.

The Army's new basic military subjects test which will regulate promotion from grade seven to six on completion of basic training, will be ready for the group scheduled to complete the new 14-week training cycle early in June.

The Munitions Board has asked the armed forces to simplify as much as possible the designs of new equipment to be manufactured. Industry has pointed out that production can be greatly increased by simplification of design.

Army-airforce personnel inducted under the Selective Service law may be given up to 24 hours leave of absence for voting, if their states require a personal vote, under revised directives "whenever reasonably possible."

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has approved a special certificate of honor to be presented to the next-of-kin of personnel who lost their lives in the Berlin Air-lift.

Chaplain's Corner

Sow Good Seed And Reap Good Harvest

By CHAPLAIN DVOROVY

Springtime is sowing time. The ground must be prepared, if that has not already been done, and the seed must be sown if a harvest is to be expected in the summer. He plows his fields, breaks the ground, and the planter chooses his seeds carefully. He doesn't stop there. He labors from early morning until late at night to keep the soil free from weeds that would choke the seeds. He waters anxiously over his fields that no blight of any kind spoils his harvest.

Our life span, from the cradle to the grave, is as a field wherein we sow seeds good or evil, in thoughts and words and actions. The harvest will be according. If we prepare the ground of our hearts to receive the good seed from God's store of plenty, the harvest that will follow will also be good and will be a joy to us and others. The seeds are free for the asking, and they are the best to be had. There are seeds of faith and love, patience and kindness; of helpfulness and tolerance; there are seeds for every phase and every occasion of life. If we sow them carefully and nurture them daily, if we keep the thorns and thistles out, God's own reward in joy and pleasure will follow. Our Christian lives will then be full and the harvest great. God's love will abide in us, His benediction will follow us.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Gal. 6:7.

Your Red Cross

Have You Helped Improve Safety Record?

By MURRAY E. HILL

Are you interested in accident prevention and safety? Maybe a better question would be: what have you ever done to improve the accident prevention and safety record of your nation?

Perhaps more than you realize; for if you have ever contributed to your Red Cross, the American National Red Cross, or been a member of the Red Cross you have played a major part in the safety of the nation. Through the Red Cross more than 17,000,000 certificates have been issued to people who have been trained in first aid and water safety since the program was inaugurated.

Each year thousands live who might have died if they, or someone near them, had not had that training. First aid is recognized as a leading factor in accident prevention, and, of course, in the army it has been a major factor in reducing the severity of injuries that might occur with such intensive training. Such a program pays dividends off the job, for one who has had first aid and water safety training in relation to his profession often saves the lives of members of his own family and those of his neighbors.

For 40 years the Red Cross has been active in the field of safety. Today in the school rooms throughout the country over 2,000,000 school children are studying Red Cross safety educational material designed to teach young people how to live in a mechanized world. In the last year alone over 1,000,000 certificates were issued to men, women and children who were trained in first aid, water safety and accident prevention.

You can truthfully say your interest in your Red Cross saves many a life each year.

To Amuse You Today

"Anything new in the paper today, George?"
"No, my dear—just the same old thing, only happening to different people."
A lady was entertaining her friend's small son. "Are you sure you can cut your meat?" she asked after watching his struggles at the dinner table.
"Oh, yes," he replied without looking up from his plate. "we often have it as tough as this at home."
The one-ring circus was visiting town in the States. The folks there recognized all the instruments of the band except the "silly trombone."
One of the settlers watched the player for quite some times then said: "there's a trick to it: he ain't really sawing it."
"Customer: "That chicken I bought yesterday had no wash-bone."
Butcher (smoothly): "It was a happy and contented chicken, madam, and had nothing to wash for."
A mistress engaging a new maid said: "Mary, we have breakfast promptly at eight."
New Maid: "That's my main. If I sit down, don't you wait."
"Have you any alarm clocks?" inquired the customer. "What I want is one that will rouse father without waking the whole family."
"I don't know of any such clock as that, madam," said the shopkeeper. "We just keep the ordinary kind that will wake the whole family without disturbing father."
"It all comes back to me now," sang the skunk when the wind changed.
Service club waitress: "Ser-vice, your order been taken?"
Sergeant: "Yes—but I don't know where to go."
Tremblechio: "Sir, my wife er... told me I must ask you for an increase."
The Head Man: "So? Well, I'll ask my wife if I can give you one."
First Mosquito: "Why are you making such fun?"
Second Mosquito: "Whoopee! I just passed a screen test."
Magistrate: "Come now, you really don't think he meant to put your eye out?"
Plaintiff: "No, your honor, I don't; but I do say he tried to put it further in."
Overheard on the beach: "Mummy, may I go in for a swim?"
"Certainly not, my dear; it's a lot too deep."
"But daddy I'm swimming."
"Yes, dear, but he's insured."
A mountaineer took his son to a school to enroll him.

Benning Children's School Graduates Class of 1949 With Impressive Ceremony

Graduation exercises for the seventh grade, Fort Benning Children's school were held Friday morning in the school auditorium. The program opened at 10 a. m. with the Professor of the 72nd Army band, under the direction of CWO S. E. Valasek, followed by "Stars and Stripes Forever." Joyce Garner, honor student, and winner of first place in the Sojourner sponsored essay contest, gave the welcome address. Russell Miner, was salutatorian for the class, while William Kent Clarkson was valedictorian.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, in the closing remarks of his graduation address said "I don't have to tell you to be good — you are good. Play hard, work hard. Organize a bit that will be very interesting. Make it much more interesting in the time to come." Following his address the general made the presentation of awards to winners in the Sojourner essay contest on "Why I Like being An American", which opened April 19. Children of the sixth and seventh grades of Baker Village school and Fort Benning Children's school who are dependents of military personnel stationed at Benning were eligible to enter the contest.

Judges were chosen from personnel at Fort Benning and their decision was based primarily on content and ideas instead of literary ability.

Lt. Col. H. E. Nelson, president of the Sojourners, stated that more than 20 essays were submitted and that all work was of superior quality. Barbara Beasley, a sixth grader of Fort Benning Children's school won first place honors, and received a certificate of award and $25 in cash. Joyce Garner, won second place and $15, while Bill Clarkson won a third place and $10. Carolyn Davis and Beth Ballard won honorable mention for their essays. All five winners received certificates of award.

Eleven students won library awards in the reading and writing program. To win a library award the student must have read 20 books between January and June. He was graded on the presentation of his oral book report, pure diction and his ability to take student criticism. Stress also was placed on the books selected.

Lt. Col. James N. Luton, school officer, awarded the diplomas, and the graduating class concluded the program by singing in unison "Farewell to Thee."

Graduates of the class of 1949 are Karl Phillip Baetcke, Verna Beth Ballard, Billy Blythe, Edward F. Burke, Jr., Eugene Campbell, Murray Cheston, William Kent Clarkson, Barbara Dobrosky, Richard G. Doucet, Richard Enger, Joyce Garner, Judith M. Green, Cecil Hembree, Robert Maurer, John E. McCraime, Russell Miner, Jr., Charles S. Moore, Glen E. Newman, Allen Orniston, Philip George Shaughnessy, Sharon Krueger Smith, Donald D. Thornhill, Roma Ann Tooley, John Westerman, Harold G. Wilson, Jr., Philip H. Woodruff and Pat Young.

Pfc. James A. Gaines and Pfc. Glen E. Stafford have left the Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, to attend a Leadership school at Fort Jackson, S. C. The course will last four weeks.

Newly-Formed Division Band Makes Debut Here

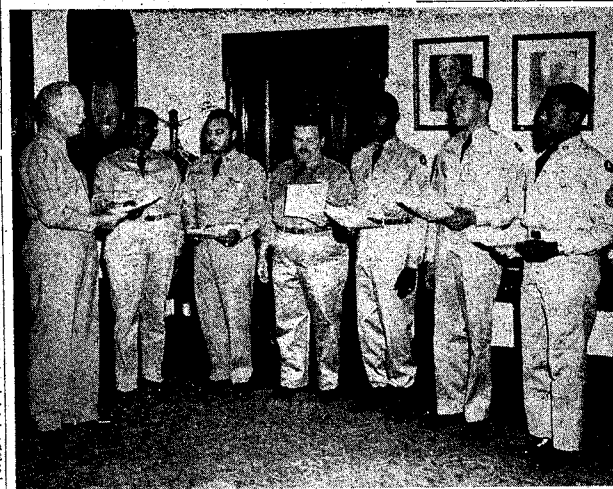

Often while working, marching, or even eating, a soldier will hear the strains of a military march in the far distance, or perhaps close by.
The soldier will continue his job but with a little better feeling, a little lifting of his spirits.
The part a band plays in the organization of an infantry division has at times been laughed at, cursed, derided, but there is many a field pack which became lighter, and many a march shorter when the throbbing beat of the big drum counted out the cadence.
So it is with the newly formed Third Infantry division band which played its first parade here March 18 with the 15th Infantry regiment.
It was first activated in March, and at the time of their first parade there were 20 musicians in the band.
Later in March Sgt. Albert Garcia, first sergeant of the band, began to receive more personnel and they took up quarters in the first quartet.
At that time the band was under the command of 1st Lt. William C. Jenkins who actually started the band on its tour of duty units. The bulk of the band at present is made up of those he lined under Lieutenant Jenkins.
On March 28 1st Lt. Frederic Prociak, present commander of the unit, came to the band. The majority of the members of the band are young, but a few of them have had professional experience. One of them, Pvt. Richard D. Miller, is a graduate of West Chester State Teacher's College, (Pa.) and before entering the army taught music at a high school in New Jersey.
Since their organization some part of the band has been playing engagements seven days a week. Its members taken great strides toward becoming the best band in the South, which is their ultimate goal.

Lawson Honors Airforce Outfit

Approximately 500 civilian and military personnel at Lawson Airforce base celebrated the third anniversary of the reactivation of the 14th Airforce with a field day last week. Col. Gilbert T. Collier, base commander, declared a half holiday last Wednesday for the purpose of observing the anniversary.

To open the events of the day, Col. Charlie M. Ross, base executive officer, made the opening address. Colonel Ross stated in his speech that Lawson had been under the guidance of the 14th AF since February of this year. The 14th AF took over all duties and responsibilities that were formerly under the Ninth Airforce.

After the main address the visiting Third division band presented several numbers while everyone was preparing for the pie eating contest, the first competitive contest of the day. The requirements were to keep hands behind back and eat a large cherry pie, including the crust. Six contestants entered the contest and at the end of the required time Pfc. Lee Williams of the fire station was crowned "Champion Pie Eater of Lawson."

Other events included: shot put and Discus throwing won by Lt. Gordon Cranford, who threw the round ball 34 feet 4 inches and hurled the discus 79 feet 6 inches; Cpl. Edgar Gravely won the broad jump feat jumping 15 feet 9 1/2 inches. Sgt. Dillard Green of the fire station won the tug of war.

In the team events the first three graders won the playoffs with the airmen in the tug of war and the Medics took the volleyball game by beating the Officers 2-1. The final event of the afternoon featured a competitive softball game with the first three graders winning in the playoffs.

Service Club 2 Formally Opens

Infantry Center and Third Infantry division special services banded together last Thursday night to formally open service club No. 2 in the Sand hill area with a full evening of entertainment.

Doors opened at 6 p.m., and Sand hill troops streamed in and spent the next hour looking over the club's facilities and getting acquainted with Mrs. Mary Boling Brown, club hostess.

Dedication ceremonies began at seven when Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, Infantry Center special service officer, welcomed the men to their new club after a short talk he introduced Col. Oliver P. Newman, Third division commander, who was acting in the absence of Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general.

Immediate favorites at the club were the modern recreational facilities. In addition to the main hall, reading rooms, a pool room, writing tables, a soda fountain and grill, music rooms and lounges are available. Mrs. Brown disclosed that the club would be open seven days a week. The hours are from 5-10 p.m. on weekdays, and 1-10 p.m. on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Two 15th Infantry Men Are Boosted

EYES RIGHT... The honor guard from the 30th Infantry regiment which met Maj. Gen. Carlos Iribar, inspector general of the Uruguayan army on his arrival at Lawson field last week, executes "eyes right" as the reviewing party passes. The reviewing party, to the extreme left, was composed of Lt. Col. Frank J. Sackton, the 30th Infantry regiment's Third Battalion commander, and to his right, General Iribar. Behind Col. Sackton is Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and behind General Iribar is Capt. Carlos Lozano, also of the Infantry Center.

Field Artillerymen Celebrate Annual Reorganization Day

Highlighted by a brief information talk to the troops by Jackson, battalion sergeant major, was adjutant, and Sgt. John H. Wilson and Sgt. 1st cl. Eddie L. Barnett, another member of the 72nd Army band, the 72nd Army band celebrated its third annual reorganization day Friday with a day-long program of planned events. The program started with a parade and review of troops under the supervision of the battalion's top noncommissioned officers.

Music was furnished by elements of the 72nd Army band. Following the parade, General Clarkson commended the troops for a "job well done" during the unit's peacetime mission. The guests were then shown the 89th still with the unit displays on weapons, full field equipment, liaison planes and communications, which were supervised by the various sections to the parade ground. The morning's program wound up with a competitive squad drill performed by representative groups from all batteries. It was won by battery A's team under the supervision of Cpl. James Barner. The winning team was the recipient of an attractive trophy.

Gen. Iribar Leaves After 3-Day Tour

The inspector general of the Uruguayan army, Maj. Gen. Carlos Iribar, left Fort Benning last week after a three-day tour of the post.

General Iribar was accompanied here by Lt. Col. Eugenio Francisco Voigt, his aide, and Lt. Col. Pedro Onetti, director of the Uruguayan Military Academy.

The Uruguayans arrived here last Wednesday on the heels of a group of high Chilean officials. The two groups of South Americans expressed great enthusiasm over the organization of Fort Benning.

Demonstration of new stream-line infantry weapons were particularly impressive to the visitors. While visiting the Air Corps department of the Infantry School, the art of packing a parachute was explained to the visitors by Captain Carlos Lozano of the Infantry School, interesting.

An official dinner and reception were given the Uruguayan officers last Thursday at the Officers club.

The group left Lawson field for further tours of army installations last Thursday. They are being conducted on the tours by Maj. E. C. Russel, U. S. Army.

Unique Battalion Dayroom Is Opened

The only dayroom at Fort Benning level unit opened recently at the third battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, with many messages and personal commendations from high military sources. Many of the top ranking officers on the post were guests at the ceremony, which featured an address by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third division. General Clarkson spoke on the outstanding example set by the Third battalion in working during their off-duty hours to convert an unused barracks into a much-needed and extremely well-appointed day room.

Speaking from the front steps of the dayroom, General Clarkson said:

"This is as fine a dayroom as I have ever seen. It is one of which you should all be extremely proud. Take care of it and look upon it as your own."

Other guests at the ceremony, which was conducted by Lt. Col. John E. Arthur, Third battalion commander, were Col. James F. Trance, Jr., Commander of the 18th Infantry regiment; Col. J. W. Boone, commander of the 30th Infantry regiment; Col. Dennis Moore, Headquarters, Infantry Center; Lt. Col. T. R. Yancy, Headquarters, 18th Infantry regiment; Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, commanding officer of the 89th Armored Field Artillery battalion; Lt. Col. W. D. Mouchet, First battalion, 30th Infantry regiment; Maj. E. F. Brockman, 30th Infantry regiment; Maj. E. M. A. Gottleb, Provisional Battalion commander, 30th Infantry regiment; Essey Smith, Washington editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Lt. R. L. West, aide de camp to General Clarkson.

Also present were the officers of the battalion, Capt. Murray D. Whiting, Capt. Cunningham C. Bryant, Capt. Robert L. Clark, 1st Lt. Durward Gritley, 1st Lt. George M. Wallace, 1st Lt. Herbert Sexton and 1st Lt. Howard D. Peveler.

Formerly a standard army two-story barracks, the dayroom has been undergoing reconditioning at the hands of Third battalion men for the past three months. Working on the project themselves, and in their own free time, Third battalion personnel succeeded in creating a bright, clean recreation center.

On the ground floor of the new center is the recreation room, where the larger games are located. It is floored with a new type of asphalt tile, which makes it easier to keep clean. The color scheme of the whole room is matched; the walls are of an azure blue, which blends well with the cream-colored ceiling and the windows are hung with hand-sewn crimson curtains.

Three large pool tables and several ping pong tables have been installed on the lower floor and arranged to allow the most possible room for spectators.

The main recreation office and a public telephone booth are also situated on the ground floor, as well as several comfortable lounging chairs.

Upstairs in the building are the reading room, the troop information and education office, the battalion recruiting section, and several small card tables. Maj. George Young and M-Sgt. Wilbur Cato preside over this section of the recreation center.

A large collection of current books constitutes the library, which is located on the second floor, as well as an abundance of up-to-date periodicals. Various table-games are available, such as dominoes, Chinese checkers and playing cards.

The attractiveness of the upper floor is emphasized by the natural pine walls, well-polished floors, and a pleasing arrangement of the furniture, which is composed for the most part of easy chairs and settees. A piano and a cabinet radio are also fixtures of the upper floor.

The designing and the planning for the building were accomplished by Colonel Arthur, together with his staff assistants. This staff included Maj. Chilton Couch, Jr., 1st Lt. Charles Piedra and Harry D. Feyerell and M-Sgt. Columbus Bryant and Charlie Toller.

DAYROOM SCENES . . . In the upper left corner, the expressions on the faces of Charles Holtzclow, right, and Jim Smith, left, reveal some serious thinking as to how the next move will be made in a game of checkers. In the top center picture, from left to right, Sammy Mayo, Bob Mason, Marvin Jackson and Willie Foster indulge in the extremely popular activity, pool. This is probably the most used of the facilities offered at the new recreation center. At the upper right, M-Sgt. Columbus C. Bryant, foreground, checks over the latest troop information and education data while Capt. Murray Whiting and Sgt. Bob Phillips, background, discuss other literature. The battalion office of troop information and education is on the top floor of the new recreation center. Captain Whiting, the I-E officer, is usually on hand to offer advice to all personnel. Across the center of the picture at the extreme left shows Sammy Mayo beating a little boogie woogie which is evidently appreciated by his audience, consisting of from left to right, Charles Holtzclow, Alexander Glenn, Paul Shields, John Leeper, Grilly

Henion Scores Victory Over Rosa In Club Play

John Henion, Fort Benning 6 and 5. Meanwhile, Rosa was beating A. A. Gottleb in the other semi-final match by the score of 3 and 3.

For Henion, this was the second title within a month as he had previously beaten Rosa for club medalist honors. The new champion has plans to continue seeking new titles and will probably enter the Chicago Public Links tournament, to be played in the Windy City in June.

The finals in the other flights will be played next Sunday afternoon with the exception of the semi-finals to earn the right to play for the title. He accomplished this by defeating Moore

Commendation Awarded Third Signal Sergeant

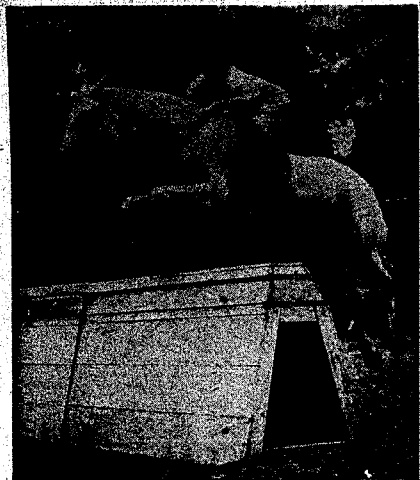

The sergeant's citation read in part as follows: "The traditions of the service were upheld by the forceful, cool and efficient manner in which Sergeant Guy saved the lives of others in the face of great personal danger."

Sergeant Guy entered the army in July, 1940, and served overseas during the war with the 147th Armored Signal company, which fought through Europe. Sergeant Guy joined the Third Signal company in February, 1949.

Infantrymen Graduate From Weapons Course

Eleven members of the Third Infantry division, Third Infantry division, were graduated from class No. 1 of the noncommissioned officers' light weapons recently.

Receiving graduation certificates were Sgt. Calvin C. Houston, Pfc. Willie Wise, Pfc. Harry Phillips, Pfc. Jim Reed, Sgt. Calvin Lewis, Sgt. David Vann Pfc. Walter Peterson, Pfc. George Walker.

Two EM Promoted

Two promotions have been announced by the 15th Infantry division, Third Infantry division. Pfc. Walter A. Jensen, Sergeant, and Willie H. Matthews, Third battalion headquarters, were promoted to private first class.

15th Infantry Cops Track Team Title

Athletes of the Third Infantry division dominated the annual Fort Benning track and field championships at Doughboy stadium last Wednesday.

The 15th Infantry regiment won the team title with a total of 77 1/2 points while the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion placed second with 70 points. The Infantry School detachment finished third with 31 markers.

The 15th was paced to victory by Charles Hall, double winner in the 100 and 200-yard dash, and Gene Thomas who scored 11 points in three field events. Earl Baldwin, 99th sprint star, provided the team with some stiff competition as he finished a very close second in both the 100 and 200-yard runs. Phil Tindrell, of the 89th, pulled an upset as he, by a narrow margin, won the 150-yard low hurdles. John Luce of the 15D to the tape by three yards. John Jenkins of the 15D team was the only other double winner. He capped the one and two-mile events.

One of the features of the day came in the 120-yard high hurdle.

Staff Squad Has Perfect Loop Record

The Academic department softball league, paced by the undefeated Staff squad, has moved into its second half of play with only two teams being given a chance to stop the rampaging staffmen.

The staff team, which won the first half championship with a 6-0 record, has already won three and lost none in the second half and appears to be well on the way to an undefeated season.

The only competition being offered the Staff team at the moment is by the Infantry department "A" and Weapons department teams. Each of these teams has won two games while losing one.

The fourth spot in the league standings is shared by the Publicity department team, which finished second in the first half of play, and the training publication team, both with a record of one win and one loss.

Bringing up the rear, in the sixth and seventh spots, are the Communications department and Airborne "B" teams. The Airborne "B" team is in the loop cellar and is still looking for its first win of the year.

FINAL STANDINGS (FIRST HALF)

Staff	W	L	Aver.
Publicity	1	1	1.000
Training	1	1	.833
Weapons	2	0	.667

Sports Schedule For July 4 Told

The Fourth of July should be a gala day for sports fans, according to the Infantry Center. The center will sponsor an all day program of sporting events planned for military personnel and their guests.

In the afternoon, at Buller field, Sand hill, the Third division baseball team which ranks highest in the intra-mural league, will play host to the Fort McPherson, Ga., baseball squad, while on Gowdy field, main post, the top independent team in the loop will tangle with the Grand Cove Springs Florida, Naval Air station.

Over the evening, the program will continue with outdoor boxing in Doughboy stadium. Efforts are being made to secure an outside team to complete a football team of Benning boxers, but a program of 10 bouts will be held regardless.

Ageless Blue Point Again Steals Show

Although the cavalry is now mechanized, veteran troopers still point with pride to an old cavalry mount that is still going strong.

Blue Point, 26-year-old army mount, seems ageless as he dominates the Southeastern horse show circuit year after year.

Blue Point was brought to Fort Benning in 1924 by Capt. Monty Blue, one of the all time great polo stars, and has remained here ever since.

Captain Blue spent many hours training his mount in the art of jumping until at last she was ready for competition in the numerous horse shows throughout the South.

From the moment she was entered in her first show, Blue Point has never failed to win a prize for her owners. In 12 years of competition she has won 3,000 ribbons and has yet to be defeated in the jumper class.

Capt. Marshall Bullock, Blue Point's present owner, has won 10 trophies and numerous ribbons in the 18 months he has owned here ever since.

In the Griffin, Ga., show last week Blue Point entered four events and won four ribbons plus the championship of the show. She was the only horse in the show to place in every event in which she was entered.

Miss Sue Bradley, who has been riding since she was three years old, says that Blue Point is the best horse she has ever ridden. "She can sense the audience and does her best to please them," Miss Bradley said.

30th Diamond Star to Leave Benning Today

The 30th Infantry regiment baseball team will lose their star center fielder today when Porter Hood leaves for duty in the Far East command.

Hood, who has been playing ball since 1934, started slowly this season by going hitless in his first three games. Since then, however, he has been hitting well enough to raise his average to .267 for seven games. Among his hits are two doubles and a triple. He also ranks high in the run-batted-in department with six.

Hood, playing for Fort Sill, Okla. last year, won a berth on the Fourth Army all-star team as a center fielder. While playing for Fort Sill, Hood divided his time between the outfield and the pitcher's mound. As a batsman he hit .318 for the season, and, on the mound, he won 10 games for the Sillmen.

Porter Hood, 30th manager, has not decided on a replacement for his outfielder.

The Third Reconnaissance company, Third Infantry division, last week promoted 14 men to private first class.

Receiving the promotions were Pfc. Joseph A. Berton, Dial L. Brown, Bobby R. Champion, Robert G. Cox, Donald A. Frizzo, Dale T. Gagnon, Thomas F. Griffin, Patrick J. Hayes, Jesus M. Hidalgo, Raymond G. Howalter, Alvin W. Murphy, Maurice F. Murphy, Walter H. Parrish and Patrick Tumulty.

The Divarty club was forced to play most of the game without the services of star slugger Joe Fultanski, who was injured in the third inning of the game.

Uncle Sam Says

Flag Day, June 14, holds significance for every American. It is the waving Stars and Stripes each citizen knows that he still possesses the most cherished of all ambitions—freedom and opportunity. He also knows he can retain these just so long as our country is economically sound, and he knows, too, that one of the most effective methods over devised to keep it strong is an investment in U. S. Savings Bonds. Your purchase of Savings Bonds strengthens not only your own economy but your country's as well. If you are not now enrolled for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or, sell, or buy U. S. Bonds a Month Plan at your bank, now is your BIG CHANCE to start.

MODERN FIRE FIGHTING — When the 462nd Engineer platoon, composed of men of the Jacksonville, Fla., fire department, came to Fort Benning May 15 for a two-week training period, they learned how to fight fires the modern army way. The photo on the left shows a fire they set to the already burned-out hulk of a C-47 at Lawson field. The center photo shows the beginning of the "put out" procedure using the new foam solution, and the right photo, taken three minutes after the start of the blaze, shows the end of the exercise.

Fire Instruction Completed Here

The Jacksonville, Fla., fire department, made up of the 402nd Engineer Fire platoon, Organized Reserve corps, left Fort Benning last Saturday after completing two weeks of intensive training here.

Consisting of 11 enlisted men and one officer, the reserve group spent three days at the 30th Engineer Battalion, Sand Hill area, where it revealed its proficiency in the firing of carbines.

Benning Artillery Battalion Men Star In 'Counterfire'

The 26th Field Artillery Battalion, Third Infantry division, joined forces with Camera Crew No. 7 recently to shoot a training film on field artillery maneuvers called "Counterfire."

Camera Crew No. 7, from the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island, N. Y., consists of two separate moving picture camera sections under a film supervisor. All training film which are shown to members of the Armed Services are filmed, processed and edited by crews such as these, operating out of their headquarters on Long Island.

The purpose of the film "Counterfire" is to orient and instruct front line troops in counterfire methods and the organization of these methods at the infantry regimental level. The need for turning in shell reports and the method of turning in these reports are emphasized in the film.

Since the filming of the scenario called for a field artillery unit, the 26th Field Artillery, armed with 105 mm field pieces, was present to enact varied roles throughout the body of the picture.

The theme of the movie involves a platoon of infantry, which is shown reacting to a heavy artillery barrage. One soldier in the platoon, Adams, is trusting to his lucky rabbit's foot to stop the shells. Another, Warren, with the help of his platoon sergeant, is going off to shell report to the supporting artillery, so that counterfire can be set up.

Warren's report proves vital to the platoon, for with it the counterfire officer is enabled to direct the position of the enemy guns, and consequently destroy them with his own artillery. As the platoon advances once more, Adams has the impression that his good luck has kept him unharmed, still falling to look seriously at the problem of shell reports.

Third Army Announces Writing Prize Changes

A change in the prizes to be awarded by special services, Third Army, for the best three stories in the current army-wide short story contest has been announced by Third Army officials.

It was previously announced that there would be prizes of $100, $75, and $50 war bonds. The list of awards has been amended and the new prizes will be $35 each for the three best entries.

The contest, which closes here Aug. 15, is sponsored by the Special Services division, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

Rules for the contest, formulated to inspire a greater interest in creative writing and appreciation of the art among soldiers, may be obtained at the Main post library. Entry blanks proceeds from the sale of the book.

General Clark Attending Italy Liberation Rite

The Department of the Army announced today that Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding general of the Seventh Army, has been designated its official representative at ceremonies to be held at Rome, Italy, this week in observance of the anniversary of the founding of the Italian Republic in 1946 and the liberation of Rome in 1944.

The invitation to attend the ceremonies was extended by Minister of Defense Alcide De Gasperi, on behalf of the Italian government.

Gen. Clark is accompanied by Mrs. Clark and Captain Michael A. Musmanno, U. S. naval aviator, who was the general's aide-in-chief during the war, left for Washington, D. C., for Rome by air last Friday. He attended services for American war dead on Memorial Day, at the United States cemetery at Anzio.

Company Awards Six Advancements

Six enlisted men of Company A, 15th Infantry regiment, have received rating advancements.

Don Allen, O. C. Hollman, George D. Matis, Robert W. Smith, Curtis Gness and Ray L. White have been promoted from private to private first class.

Infantry Men Taking Paratrooper Training

Three members of the Third Battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, left their unit recently and are now taking basic airborne training here.

Those who left were Cpl. Joseph Buck, Pfc. Fred St. Martin and Pvt. Henry L. Grisson. Upon completion of their training they will return to the airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Why I Like Being an American Show Planned To Spur Bond Sales In Outfit

By BARBARA BEASLEY, 6th Grade, Children's School

You're not just lucky to be an American and it's not by chance but being an American is an honor and a blessing something you should cherish all your life, something to thank God for. There are too many wonderful reasons to be glad of being an American to ever begin to write down on paper. But some of them should be written down on paper again and again and remembered forever. A person who is an American should consider himself one of the most fortunate persons on earth for being an American.

For instance, in America (and maybe America only) you can see that there is a God where in some other country they might prevent you.

If a man was in the hospital and was very ill, the doctors and nurses had done everything they could for the man and even things that hadn't been tried before and still he wasn't getting through. So the doctor said, "I've done all I can and can do no more." So you took him to great doctors all over the country, all over the world, but still the man didn't get well. And you just waited for him to die, but he didn't die; he got better, but how could he get better when all the doctors said they could do no more for him? Yet the man walked through. How did he get well? It was a miracle, God's miracle. He let that man get well for only He could do it. But in some other countries they teach the people not to believe in God and say they just gave him made him get well. But we know, the Americans know, that God and only God can make a miracle.

Another thing that I think should be recalled is about a month ago a little girl named "Elsie" who lived out in California fell into an old well shaft. That made front page headlines all over the world. People who lived in the neighborhood volunteered to help dig and drill for the shaft for a little while. They didn't have to help, nobody made them do it, but they did it just the same. Those people were Americans, Americans with a big heart.

America is a land of many opportunities and many privileges. For instance, in any other country besides the United States you couldn't sit down and write something like this essay, you couldn't say what you pleased about the country for fear you would be thrown in jail. Nor could you say what you please about this country to other people for in those countries everyone suspects the other person and you can't trust anyone.

Then too, in another country you couldn't get on a train and go some place where you want to go unless you have the government's permission, but in America you can.

Although America is a great country, freedom is no joke; freedom is everybody's job. One among numerous ones. Why we can be glad we're Americans is because everybody can take part in the government. Every man in Washington who helps pass laws is elected by and for the people, and he has a limit to his time in office so that and for the people's chance. Take, for instance, President Truman. He was a man of limited education. He and a partner ran a clothing store. They weren't outstanding or unusual but he became the president of the United States, that's a modern situation. Alright, take Abe Lincoln; he was backward, poor, and uneducated. He too became the president of the United States. That was a long time ago but it still holds true.

Though America has opportunities and advantages, it has had its bad, its knocks, troubles and problems, but other countries have not and American government is still unsettled. America will fight to live up to its standard, "Freedom—A Democracy."

MD Reservists May Get Duties

Reserve officers of the army medical, dental, and veterinary corps have been asked by Maj. Gen. R. W. Bliss, the surgeon general of the army, to signify their availability for short periods of service ranging from one to 30 days a month, in order to help relieve the critical shortages of professional personnel.

If response to the questionnaires is sufficiently encouraging, reserve officers may volunteer for such short terms of service and perform professional duties at army or air force hospitals and medical installations located in their geographic areas. If 5,000 reserve officers volunteer for only three days a month for a year's time, the man-hours thus contributed would be equal to the full-time service of 600 physicians, dentists, and veterinarians.

"The army medical department is faced with an unparalleled peacetime emergency in carrying out our medical requirements satisfactorily," General Bliss stated. "The time of military emergency, it is the reserve officer upon whom the great burden of effort and sacrifice has fallen. Today, we are again turning to reserve officers of the medical department for help."

Award Presented To Captain Webb

For meritorious achievements while serving with the Infantry Training Unit, Joint Brazilian-United States Military Commission, during the period of July 1, 1946, through December 1, 1948. Capt. Charles J. Webb, then first lieutenant, was presented the army's commendation ribbon in a ceremony at Ft. Benning School Detachment 25, by Maj. Shelby A. Satterfield, detachment commander.

Compromise Military Pay Bill Up For Congressional Approval

Post Surgeon Is Advanced To Brig. Gen.

Col. Robert B. Hill, commanding officer of Fort Benning's Station hospital, received an appointment, effective May 31, to the permanent rank of brigadier general in the regular army. Colonel Hill, who had been a colonel in the regular army medical corps since Jan. 31, 1943, entered the army on Oct. 15, 1916, and has served continuously since his entry on active duty. He is a graduate of the basic course, Army Medical School; the Orthopedic Surgery course, Howard university, and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He is the holder of bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Davidson college and received his degree as doctor of medicine from the University of Maryland.

Expect Favorable House Treatment

A compromise pay bill was introduced to Congress Monday by the house Armed Services committee, and the measure is expected to go before the full house during the week of June 13. The new bill would give smaller percentage increases in pay to all ranks with even recruits, who were omitted from the raise provided by the recently defeated measure, getting a hike under the revised plan. The forces favoring the compromise measure are being headed by Rep. Wilson (Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services committee, and Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.), who introduced both the defeated pay bill and its successor to Congress. Spokesmen for the bill said that it has the support of the house Democratic leaders, and that it probably will meet with favorable prospects in the house. The revised edition of the force bill would give only a 26 per cent boost. For example, a brigadier general, who was to get a 40 per cent boost under the previous bill, will get only 37 per cent under the revision. Major generals would get a 23 per cent hike instead of the 34 per cent called for in the original measure, and the percentage of increase for colonels would be dropped from about 25 to 20. The biggest boost under the revised plan would go to corporals with more than seven years service whose pay will be increased by 89 per cent. Men in the same grade, however, with less service would get only a 26 per cent boost. Recruits would continue to receive their base pay of $75 per month for their first four months in the army, then would begin drawing $80. Representative Kilday said that the new bill would continue family allowances for enlisted men throughout their current enlistments. They would be cut out entirely, however, after July 1, 1952. The new measure would continue the additional pay for men who have served more than 36 months provide $100 extra a month for commissioned paratroopers and an additional $50 for enlisted men with similar assignments. Harmony Church Units Completed

The vanguard of enlisted men and their families moved into the Harmony church housing project last Saturday, and completion of the Baker Pines project and Victory apartments is expected within a few weeks, according to reports issued this week. Among the first occupants of the Harmony church area was Sgt. Coston Crocker, Company C, Infantry School detachment, whose three-bedroom apartment is the answer to his family's needs. In addition to the bedrooms, the apartment has a living room, dinette, kitchen and a bath. A large screened porch runs the length of the apartment, a nod to her washing, as well as providing the three children a playing area. Four other units were occupied the same time as Sergeant Crocker's, one more was occupied last Monday, two more on Thursday, and four are expected (See HOUSING Page 3)

Review Scheduled Here on June 10

The Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, will hold a retreat parade on Stilwell field, June 10, at 4:30 p.m. Lt. Col. John E. Arthur, battalion commander, will review the troops, and will be furnished by the third Infantry division band.

Sixty V Ps Slated To Attend Parley

Approximately 60 prominent civilians are expected to arrive at the Infantry Center June 15 in connection with Fort Benning's part in the third joint civilian orientation conference and other military representatives. These conferences the first of which was held in November, 1943, are attended by both civilian and military representatives, those present with problems concerned with the national welfare. In addition to Fort Benning, they also will visit Eglin Air Force base, Fla., where they will see flight operations, and Norfolk, Va., where they will see a carrier task force demonstration during a daylight cruise. Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson will address the group in the Pentagon where the conference will begin on June 15. The secretaries of the three military departments and other officials of the national military establishment also will address the civilians. Speakers from other government departments will participate in the conference under the authority of the Defense Secretary Johnson. Commander John C. Wright is in charge of arrangements. Those invited to the conference include William Randolph Hearst Jr., publisher of The New York Journal-American; Hugh (See VIP PARLEY Page 2)

Registration Slated Friday For Vacation Bible School

A vacation bible school, sponsored by the protestant chaplains on the Main post, will be conducted at the Fort Benning children's school from June 13-June 24. It has been announced by Chaplain (J. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, The Infantry Center chaplain. Registration will be held at 3 p. m. Friday, at the Children's school and a program with refreshments will be held in conjunction with the signing up. The school commencing at 8:30 a. m. and ending at 11:30 a. m. each day, Monday through Friday, will consist of worship services, religious films, handwork, memory work, missionary activities, character stories and refreshments. "I believe that this school will compare favorably with any others, and we expect to teach children from four years through 15 years of age more about the Bible in this two-weeks than would be the ordinary Sunday school schedule within three weeks." The purpose of the service was explained as to give Fort Benning personnel who seek advice the opportunity of securing it without expense and in an informal fashion.

Medics Offered Graduate Study

National guard medical officers will participate in a program of army's graduate professional elements completed with the surgeon general, it was announced by Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Cramer, chief of the national guard bureau.

The course will begin on July 1, will involve a full year of study at the Army Medical Center, and will include instruction in medical and surgical specialties.

The national guard currently has 10,000 medical officers in grades from first lieutenant to colonel.

The 1949 medical and dental graduates have been invited to take advantage of the opportunities for service and training available in the national guard.

Pay Plan

Continued from Page 1. Officers would be limited but enlisted personnel serving overseas would get from eight dollars to $22 per month extra, depending upon their grade.

Housing

Continued from Page 1. Work on the Victory apartment project is advanced to the point where it is expected to be ready for occupancy every week until the entire project is finished.

Mrs. Edwin Gravel will be the principal of the primary department and will be assisted by Mrs. Wallace Hale, Mrs. Willie Harter, Miss Polly Hamilton, Miss Anne Hamilton and Miss Margaret Conis.

The junior department will be divided into two sections with Mrs. David Wright teaching the girls and Chaplain (Maj.) Ralph H. Pugh teaching the boys. Mrs. Harvey M. Hardin will direct the intermediate department.

Phils Claim Dodger Rookie On Waivers

Elmer Sexauer, 22-year-old bonus righthander of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has been claimed by the Philadelphia Phillies when an attempt was made by the Dodgers to waive him out of the league.

Under new league rules, waivers asked on bonus players cannot be withdrawn. Sexauer, who won 11 in 1947 and lost 7 in 1948, was the Three-2 league last year, his first in organized baseball, suffered a lame arm in spring training and had not appeared in a Dodger box score this year.

Sergeant stripes were awarded to Jones Henry of the Sevier, while Pvt. Victor Zima of the Communications platoon became a private first class this year.

GUEST SPEAKER . . . Rabbi Max Eihchorn, national field director, division of religious activities, National Jewish Welfare board, spoke to men of the Jewish faith at Shavuoth services last Thursday night at chapel No. 3.

Rabbi's Address Climaxes Post Shavuoth Celebration

Shavuoth, one of the three most important Jewish holidays, was celebrated Thursday night at the Jewish faith at chapel No. 3 in the Sand hill area.

The ceremony was conducted by Chaplain (Capt.) Max E. Daina, post Jewish chaplain, and featured Rabbi Max Eihchorn, the field director of the National Jewish Welfare board, as guest speaker.

Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the division, spoke briefly to the men at the ceremony. He praised, in recollection, the Jewish men of the 33rd Infantry division, which served during the war.

Rabbi Eihchorn told the assembly that "there is not one religion for the synagogue, another for the factory or store, yet another for your entire life as a good Jew, or you are not a Jew at all."

A former army chaplain (major) in the European theater, Rabbi Eihchorn declared that he was quite familiar with the Third division patch, having conducted a service for the company, immediately after that city's conquest.

2,800 on Waiting List 'Phone Service Tripled Since '40

A total of 31,324 telephones are in service in Columbus, including 3,024 government-owned phones at Fort Benning, as of June 1, it was disclosed today by F. B. Patterson, district manager, Southern Bell Telephone company.

This is more than three times the number in service here in 1940. Mr. Patterson added and represents a gain of 4,087 in 1947 and a gain of 4,103 in 1948.

This record gain, Mr. Patterson went on, has necessitated large additions to the telephone system, both in central office and outside plant facilities at a cost of more than $1,500,000 in the two years.

In spite of this record achievement, he said, there are still about 2,800 applications on hand, and the demand for new service continues. One small addition which will fill all available space in the dial equipment in the present building will be completed in August, and will serve some of those who have been waiting longest, he added.

The addition of a fourth floor to the telephone building is in progress and it will house a large equipment addition, scheduled for completion in August 1950. Total cost of building and plant additions now in progress or scheduled in the near future will exceed three-quarter million dollars, Mr. Patterson said.

Assumes Post Duties

Sgt. 1st cl. Charles R. Wigham today assumed duties with Headquarters, Infantry School, Camp Pickett, Va.

Medics Leading In Reenlistments

Leading all other major units at Fort Benning in reenlistment percentage for May was the Provisional Medical group, A r e s Service unit, which boasted 70 per cent.

The standings are figured on per capita basis with the number of reenlistees compared with the number of men discharged from each unit.

A total of 136 men reenlisted at the local recruiting office during the month, with the highest number, 58, coming from the Third division.

Col. Arthur C. Purvis, adjutant general of the Infantry Center, advised the Provisional Medical group commander, for their high enlistment rate.

Miss Sharp Sgt. Hartoon Are Married

At a simple, impressive candlelight ceremony in the home of her parents in Mountain Pine, Ark., Miss Vernice Sharp became the bride of Sgt. Charles E. Hartoon. Lawson Airforce base, on Wednesday, June 1. The Rev. C. A. Mose performed the ceremony before an improvised altar banked with mounds of red roses and ivy, and flanked by candelabra holding tall white tapers.

The bride was lovely in a pale blue chiffon gown fashioned with "V" neckline, and straight skirt with flaring neckline. She wore a shoulder corsage of baby white carnations. Her headress was a carnation tiara.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with a cream lace cloth, was centered with a crystal bowl of red roses.

Sergeant and Mrs. Hartoon will make their home on 23rd avenue in Columbus.

2nd Lieutenants' College and Age Limits are Set

Requirements for men seeking appointments as second lieutenants in the regular army will be changed in November, 1949. After November, a man wishing to apply for a commission in the regular army as a second lieutenant must be between the ages of 21 and 27, and must have obtained a bachelor's degree from some accredited college or university.

An applicant may be over the age of 27 if he possesses a record of service which, when subtracted from his present age, will result in 27 or less.

At present, the age limit is 32 years, and only two years of college are required.

The competitive tour system will remain basically the same but there is a possibility that changes may be made soon.

Exceptions to the new regulations may be made through the discretion of a unit commander, in cases which seem to warrant special consideration. Memos suggesting the waiving of the four-year college requirement may be presented to the commanding general for possible exception.

In the case of Wac applicants, the previous requirements will still apply in all cases.

Ordnance Man Honored Here

S-Sgt. Johnny C. Hughes of the 378th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance company, 328th Ordnance battalion, was awarded a Bronze Star on the battalion parade ground last week by Col. Edward C. Ormiston, 328th commander.

The medal was awarded to Sergeant Hughes for his gallantry and devotion in the Normandy campaign in the European theater of operations. At that time the sergeant was a member of the Eighth Infantry Regiment, Fourth Infantry Division.

Sergeant Hughes entered the army in 1939 from his home town, Tampa, Fla. He took basic training at Fort Screven, Savannah, Ga.

Boy Scouts

Members of Boy Scout troop No. 27, Fort Benning, participated in an impressive ceremony when Boy Scouts and their parents met at Blue polo field, Saturday afternoon, May 28. Lt. Col. William L. Luther opened the program with an introductory address, followed by invocation by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Peter Rush.

The group led by Colonel Luther sang "On What a Beautiful Day" and presentation of the charter was made by a representative from the Alabama-Georgia Boy Scout council. Col. A. C. Purvis accepted the charter on behalf of the Fort Benning Scouts.

Presentation of colors to Troop No. 27 was made by Lt. Col. H. E. Nelson, president of Fort Benning chapter No. 8, Sojourners of America.

Following the ceremonies, several demonstrations were put on by the various patrols. The Cobra patrol, with John Rodemeyer, leader, gave a five minute demonstration. The Eagle patrol with Bernard Baetcke, leader, staged a biscuit baking demonstration, featuring the aluminum reflector-type oven. The Apache patrol with Bill Clarkston, leader, gave a first aid demonstration, and the Panther patrol, under the leadership of J. O. Loyette, put on a tent pitching exhibition. Announcement of parent activities followed the demonstrations, and the ceremony ended with closing remarks by Colonel Luther.

The boy Scouts are planning a father-son picnic at the Boy Scout cabin near Eusee pool on Saturday, June 11. Time for the event will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The plan is to prepare and eat lunches by patrol groups. Fathers may demonstrate their scouting abilities to sons and vice versa. No program of entertainment is scheduled. Fathers will take charge of their respective groups.

The purpose of the father-son get-together is to better acquaint Scout fathers with Scouts. A survey will be made of the cabin and area with an eye to future repairs and beautification. Each group is being asked to contribute to the fund.

Scouts who are camping this week are Kay Lou Moore, Sharon Smith, Margaret Clisson, Katherine Clisson, Elizabeth Colton, Norma Ann Foley, Vern Best, Ballin Bernice Byrne, Ann Louise Reeves, Marilyn Stewart, Frances Jean Shaw, Betty Ann London.

Mary Catherine Rawlins, Mary Jane Grant, Josephine Samart, Cynthia Sue Jennings, Anne Key and Julia Stewart. Older girls who will act as assistant scout counselors are Nancy Welch, Shirley Burke, and Barbara Young.

Nursery School
Thirty-eight little Benning students participated in one of the year's activities at a simulated graduation ceremony at the Nursery school on May 27. The graduates were dressed in their graduation cap and tassel, the four and five-year-olds played outdoor games, ate ice cream and cake, and then gathered indoors for a musical program and the awarding of certificates.

With Mrs. Harvey M. Hardin at the piano the group sang "Big Tall In'van," "Ready" and "Thank You" prayer. Attendance certificates, beautifully hand-lettered by Mrs. John Baskin, were presented by Mrs. Robert F. Canis, Nursery school superintendent. Mrs. William Bickley and Mrs. Robert J. Bull furnished the refreshments, and Marcus Bell, president of the Woman's club, sponsor of the Nursery school was guest of honor at the exercises.

Little students assembled for their last get-together of the year were Mary Beth Taylor, Dan Tournage, Marty Ewing, Marty Morhead, Robert Bull, Tommy Cole, David Lewis, Ellen Watson, Frances Welch, J. C. Drain, Marilyn Miller, Mary Jackie Daniels, Bucky Warren, Bobby Missal, Bonnie Simonsen, Ginny Peall, Jeff Sawyer, Anne Thomas, Nancy Williams, Spencer Daniels, Mike Warren, Sheila Creed, Tommy Johnson, Patty Carroll, Kathleen Burke, Jackie Baskin, David Brooks, Billy Missal, Billy McDowell, Lynn Hebeke, Linda Perry, Tommy Ewing, David Gustin, Robert Sydnor, Sydney Jones, Jimmy Keith and Bonnie Male.

Mrs. Ann Mullin, Mrs. Alfred McGinnis and Mrs. Helen Jolner, teachers at the Nursery school, assisted with party arrangements. The year's closing exercises were held in the afternoon by Sgt. Louis W. Reuter and Sgt. Ernest J. Richieson of the Food Service School. The camp will be inspected during the week by Col. Maurice L. Miller and Lt. N. G. King of the 3440th Area Service Unit Provisional, troop, which sponsors the Girl Scouts.

Helen Moore Gives Shower

Miss Helen Moore entertained in the Officers' club on June 3 with a luncheon and lingerie shower for Miss Barbara Miller, whose wedding to Lt. Edward Ansel White will be solemnized at the Infantry Center chapel on June 15.

Cub Scouts

It was dad's night Friday, May 27, when the Cubs and their dads gathered around a large campfire to discuss plans for their week-end camp trip. Approximately 30 Cubs are planning to go to camp during the week of June 26 to July 1.

Presentation of individual awards for the year was followed by announcement of the winning dens for the year. The points were earned by the achievements accomplished. Den No. 1 won with 158 points; den No. 2 came second with 155, and den No. 7 came with 145.

Individual awards were presented by Lt. Col. C. S. Standley as follows:
Den No. 1: Michael Ferris: lion badge; gold arrow and silver arrow; Alvin Cheston: silver arrow.
Den No. 2: Rickey Wright: three silver arrows; Larry Brown: one gold arrow; Charles Enger: one gold and one silver arrow; Linto Brook: one silver arrow; Dale Landon: bear badge and one gold arrow.
Den No. 7: Richard Wright: bear badge and one gold and one silver arrow; Bill Avey: one gold and two silver arrows; Mac Hardin: one silver arrow; Mickey Polk: one silver arrow.
Den No. 8: Louis Hall: one silver arrow; Robert Hall: one silver arrow; Sonny Pattem: one silver arrow.
Den No. 9: Dick Steele: lion badge, one gold and one silver arrow; Jimmy Scott: three silver arrows; Vincent Scott: three silver arrows; Bruce Jeffers: Three silver arrows; Baby Shipp: Two silver arrows; Mike Randall: the bobcat pin and one silver arrow; Hugh Redding: bobcat pin, wolf badge, and one gold and one silver arrow.

John Standley and Louis Aten received webelos badge, their final award as cub scouts, and, at an impressive ceremony, were graduated from the Cub pack to the Boy Scouts of America, troop No. 27, Fort Benning.

The graduation ceremony was conducted by Maj. L. D. Shaw, submaster and Lt. Col. C. D. Kipple, scoutmaster.

Wing Scouts

The Wing Scouts spent an interesting Saturday morning last week in the quarters of Mrs. Carl F. Fry, where they were privileged to hear the sixth in a series of lectures on Japanese art by the hostess.

After refreshments, while listening to pre-war Japanese records, Mrs. Fry displayed her collection of art objects.

Five Fort Benning Soldiers Win Nation's Highest Military Award

"In the name of the Congress of the United States..." Those words are read solemnly and when they are spoken, it means that once again an American serviceman has displayed the highest type of valor.

The Medal of Honor came into being during the administration of Abraham Lincoln. The design of the medal has changed four times but there has been no change in what the medal signifies.

There are, at Fort Benning, five soldiers who know the meaning well. They are holders of the medal.

Sgt. Paul L. Bolden of the Third Infantry division won the medal on Dec. 23, 1918.

It wasn't a very happy Christmas week for Sergeant Bolden. His outfit, Company B of the 120th Infantry regiment, was pinned down by enemy fire in Fuis-Coo, Belgium.

German headquarters were in a blockaded house and was protected by a heavy screen of bullets. Advancing under the protective fire of his own men, Sergeant Bolden crawled to within grenade distance of the house.

Hurling his grenades and making short rushes, Bolden reached the door of the house. He stood up, opened the door, and went in firing.

Before he was wounded, he had killed 20 of the enemy. The Germans, however, did not surrender and Sergeant Bolden was forced to kill the remaining 25 troops in the house. He made his way to the trapped Carano, Italy. The 4th Infantry Division was having continuous trouble with the enemy. In an assault that morning, he succeeded in knocking out two enemy machine gun nests and capturing 17 prisoners. Later he placed himself in the path of three Mark VI tanks, disabling one and making the others veer off. He killed the crew of an abandoned field piece and then carried two of his wounded men to safety.

The Medal of Honor was his reward. There are many more at other army installations. The next stop on the Mexican general's itinerary is Fort Belvoir, Va.

General Sanchez left from Lawson airforce base where he had been greeted previously by Maj. Gen. Withers A. E. H. A native of Roanoke, Va., Major Giles was accompanied on his return to the states by Mrs. Kidd and their six-year-old son.

his own safety. Colonel Davis made a quick survey of the situation. It seemed hopeless.

Colonel Davis, employing the tactics he had learned by that new style of warfare, engaged the fighting, issued instructions to his men.

In the battle that followed Colonel Davis drew his pistol and led his men to the attack and to the capture of their objective.

The colonel served 22 months in the Pacific theatre and is also authorized to wear the American Defense medal with Star, Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with three battle stars, American theatre ribbon, European theatre ribbon, and the Combat Infantry badge.

More than a year later in Europe another infantry center officer, Lt. Col. G. L. Mabry, won the nation's highest honor with the Fourth Infantry division.

Once again it was a holiday week—Nov. 20, 1918. Thanksgiving week. In the Hurtgen forest near Scheuennutte, Germany, the Fourth was stalled; the Germans had mined almost the entire area.

Colonel Mabry cleared the mine field and disconnected a booby-trapped barbed wire double concerning the enemy.

In the mine field that followed, when the Germans heard of Colonel Mabry's activities, he captured three of the enemy in foxholes at bayonet point. A squad of Germans rushed up for the kill. Colonel Mabry's bayonet once again dipped into German blood.

He led one and wounded another before members of his regiment came to his aid.

Two other students in advanced class No. 2 here also are holders of the medal. They are Capt. Van T. Barfoot and Cpt. Robert S. Scott.

Captain Barfoot was a second lieutenant on May 23, 1914. Near Carano, Italy, the 4th Infantry Division was having continuous trouble with the enemy. In an assault that morning, he succeeded in knocking out two enemy machine gun nests and capturing 17 prisoners. Later he placed himself in the path of three Mark VI tanks, disabling one and making the others veer off. HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

In the absence of Vincent Giarratano, Bayonet sports editor, who is on leave, his column is being written by Red Cloonan, assistant sports editor.

As the teams in the intra-mural league pass the one-third mark, we thought we would pause and take a quick look at the various teams and their chances for the rest of the race. Leading the loop with an impressive record of eight wins in nine starts are the Troopers of the Student Training regiment-Airborne battalion. Among the wins were two very tasty decisions over their arch rivals, the Profs of the Infantry School detachment. The Troopers boast the best pitching staff in the league and a terrific one-two batting punch in Bill Brooks and Tom Gallagher.

The Dragons of the 15th Infantry regiment, currently in second place, have a well balanced club with the exception of the mound crew. Lack of good pitching may yet cost the Dragons the top spot in the loop. The 15th has the most dangerous hitting lineup in the loop, led by Big Ed Baldwin and Jim Shirley.

Sometimes hot, sometimes cold is the best description for the Provisional group, Area Service unit. One day the club will play well as they did in their defeat of ISD but another time they might play loosely as they did in the STR game. The club, if it settles down, can cause the two leaders a lot of trouble and even take the crown. Willie Banks, ASU second sacker, is the most feared base-runner in the league.

The ISD started off the season like a house afire but cooled off enough to drop three out of their last four games. In the STR games, the Profs blew a two-run lead in the ninth inning by committing four errors and permitting the Troopers to score three runs and take the game. The Profs have a better team than the records show and will still cause plenty of trouble.

Rated one of the favorites in the pre-season dope, the 30th regiment must now be considered as having only a fair chance to finish in the first division. The club can not be regarded as a pennant contender since the loss of Paul Hood and Stan Letovsky. Losing two best players in the middle of a flag race would hurt any ball club and Manager Floyd Grana's crew is no exception.

Lack of a good pitching staff, has hurt the Third Division artillery nine more than anything else. Dave Reed, a good hurler, cannot carry the burden of the entire season on his shoulders so we doubt if the Divarty club can finish much higher than the sixth spot they now occupy.

A team that drops their first five games usually can't be considered a threat. But that is not the case with the Third back to take four of their last five games, losing only to the Division Special troops. The special troops have roared STR in 10-inning contest. Martin Kossovser, has shouldered the brunt of the pitching, and is finally getting some support in the field. If the club keeps up its present clip, it may be able to climb right into the first division.

The Lawson Flvers have been hampered all season long by the lack of a really good hurler and the loose play of their infield. The club does not have the ability to cope with the younger teams in the league and will probably finish in the eighth or ninth spot in the loop.

The Medics are also troubled by lack of pitching strength. The failure of John Graves to take over the hurling burden has hurt the Medics cause to a great extent. The club also lacks a hitting punch and probably will be mired in last place for the remainder of the season.

Blackwell Hurls One-Hit Ball To Defeat Medics

The fine pitching of Lloyd Griffin added two in the second Blackwell combined with a 14- and fourth innings and one hit attack in his masterly game in the fifth. Bill Brooks of the Student Training regiment led the Trooper attack with two hits in three times at bat in the Provisional Medical group's home run far over last Wednesday evening at Gowdy field.

Willie Griffin, veteran Medic catcher, spotted Blackwell's perfect game as he allowed two one hits, walked none and struck out seven. He faced only 22 men over the seven-inning route, one over the minimum. In addition to his pitching Blackwell hit a single and scored two runs. The Troopers sent twelve men to the plate in the first inning and eight of them scored, the

Troopers Nip ISD For Second Time

Errors Costly For Prof Nine

The Student Training regiment — Airborne battalion, continued to dominate the intra-mural league by downing the Infantry School detachment, 7-6, for their sixth straight victory at Gowdy field last Sunday.

The Profs of ISD opened the game by dropping their long fly. Ralph Terzagli, Kinard stopping at Herb Laue hit one of the Profs' offerings to the base of the right center field fence and

The Troopers went ahead in the second as Len Carney and Silvio drove in runs. The Profs countered with three in the fifth, however, on singles by Laue, Woody Burt, and Blondie Burns and a triple by Warren Paulk.

The STR scored single runs in the fifth and eighth innings and won the game in the bottom of the ninth when they tallied three unearned runs, all but one of which fell apart.

Bob Kinard opened the inning by teaching first when Paulk hitting backstop's average to 484 for the campaign. Bob Cronin, who relieved Silvio in the sixth, received credit for the win, while Hal Grinos went the route for the Profs and was charged with the loss.

Massey, Martinez Agree To Benning Return Match

Al Massey, the Miami heavyweight wrestler, will get his chance for revenge on Chuck Byram and demanded a rematch. Byram was unable to promise anything at the time, but a few days later announced that the two grapplers had come to terms and would battle before a Benning audience. Thus Massey, not only gets a chance for revenge but gets it in the same ring where he lost to his opponent previously.

Hospital Adds Heat Services

An ambulance, especially equipped to handle cases resulting from heat, is available to Benning personnel and their dependants at the Station hospital. It has been announced by hospital officials.

The ambulance, restricted to cases actually resulting from hot weather, such as heat strokes and exhaustion, is available 24 hours a day and may be obtained by calling FB 2558 and giving the dispatcher on duty the patient's name, status and exact location of the case involved.

Men to Train National Guard

Eleven enlisted men of the 121st Evacuation hospital were sent recently to Camp Stewart, Ga., for an 84-day tour of duty to assist in training at the national guard summer camp.

Making the trip are Cpl. Curtis H. Hunt, Pte. Lawrence E. Bennett, Pte. Wade W. Brewer, Pte. John E. Markle, Pte. Alberto Rangle, Dallas J. Sellars, Pte. M. J. West, Pte. Glen H. Westfall and Pvt. Louis E. Snyder.

Nats Purchase Pitcher

The Washington Senators have purchased hurler Lloyd Reed from Oakland of the Pacific Coast league for a sum reported to be over $40,000. The deal also included the immediate transfer of pitcher Milo Candini to Oakland. Hittler will report to the Nats in the fall or sooner.

Two Favorites Win In Net Meet

Sanford Webster and Bob Scruton, two of the favorites, chalked up victories in their first matches of the annual Officers' club tennis tourney last week. Both stars had drawn first-round byes.

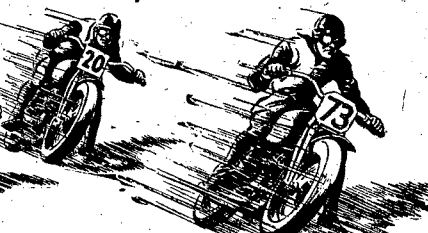

Webster had little difficulty in defeating John Hennessey, winning in straight sets of 6-1 and 6-1.

Scruton, the Columbus city champ, has trouble, however, in defeating Lewis in straight sets of 6-4 and 6-4.

Other first round matches saw Ray Collins take the measure of Alex Stuart in an exciting match, 6-4, 3-6 and 3-6. Baugartner and Art Byrman played the longest match of the day, playing forty games before Baugartner won out, 8-6, 7-9 and 6-4.

Howard Balliett defeated Kinard 6-2 and 6-3. Brooge tacked a 6-1, 6-1 defeat on Dunham, while Henderly won 6-0 and 8-6 over Poole.

Bernier, Jones Ring Return To Climax July 4th Program

The long-awaited return bout between Lawrence Jones, post-midweight champion, and challenger Bill Bernier will highlight the Fourth of July athletic program.

Jones, who is also the Third Army and all-army champion, has been inactive for almost two months, and is now getting back into condition. Bernier, on the other hand, has been fighting almost every week and is reported to be in top condition.

In their last meeting, Jones won on a decision and had the challenger Bernier hanging on at the finish. Bernier since then has chafed up two very important wins over Cliff Wilburn, former No. 2 middleweight of the post. Bernier by virtue of his last win over Wilburn, became Benning's No. 2 middleweight.

This bout will climax a program of 10 bouts, which is only a part of the activities scheduled for the day. The bouts will take place at Doughboy stadium in the evening.

During the afternoon, the program will consist of two baseball games, one at Gowdy field and the other in Sand Hill on

Post Sketmen Seek To Even Score Sunday

The Fort Benning Sket club will be host next Sunday to the Fort McPherson, Ga., team on the club sket range near Hood range.

The Benningites will be out to avenge their defeat at the hands of visitors last year. At that time, in a 500-yard match, the Benning shooters were defeated by a scant two birds.

The match, which is a challenge match, will get under way at 9 a. m., and will continue well into the afternoon.

Opening exercises for airborne class No. 28 — special associate basic class No. 5 light weapons noncommissioned officer's class No. 2, and graduation exercises for airborne classes No. 23 and 34, are scheduled for this week.

Airborne class No. 33, officially began Monday morning. Special associate basic class No. 5 also held its opening exercises on Monday morning.

Starting at 7:45 a. m., Monday was the light weapons class at the communications center. Graduation exercises were held at 4 p. m. Tuesday at parade ground "B," for airborne

Benning Captain To Testify In Probe Of PX Activities

Capt. Joseph S. Harrelson, commander of Company H, 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry Division, will go to Washington, soon to testify before a Congressional committee on the subject of unit funds derived from post exchange sales.

The post exchange system is currently under investigation by Congress, to determine whether or not the methods now employed are the most effective attainable, and to maintain the best level of relations between the PX and the military unit.

One phase of the trial involves unit fund systems, which operate on the principle that the profits made on goods sold at post exchanges will be returned to the enlisted men in the form of post and unit funds.

The committee is striving to establish whether or not the unit funds, after being returned to the company, are (a) employed in a beneficial manner, and (b) that there is a large enough amount contained in these funds, to accomplish an appreciable task.

Captain Harrelson has commanded a company both in combat on garrison duty, and has a knowledge of congressional practices. He has prepared a complete report of facts to support the unit funds system.

Captain Harrelson will assist the Army in supporting the PX system. He has documented records of purchases made from company funds, made possible by PX dividends to promote recreational facilities.

Captain Harrelson entered the army in 1942 with the Virginia National Guard, and attended Officer Candidate School in May of that year. Subsequently, he was graduated from the school and served with Company G, 358th Infantry Regiment, 76th Infantry Division, until April, 1944. At that time he went overseas with the 29th Infantry Division

Chaplain Daina Leaves Benning

Chaplain Daina arrived here early in February, and was the first chaplain of his faith on the post in over a year. During his stay, he served Jewish men of the Third Infantry division as well as of Infantry Center units.

A graduate of Yeshiva university in New York city, he was attached to U. S. units on Saipan, Tinian and Guam. In October of the following year he returned to the U. S. and was stationed at Luke field, Ariz.

In early 1946, the chaplain was assigned to the Far East command, where he became known as the "flying chaplain" because of his frequent air trips between installations in Japan, Korea and China. During his time in Japan, he visited the site of the first atom bomb strike at Hiroshima.

In his prior assignment, he was one of the chaplains who blessed the atom bomb plane on its takeoff for the Japanese bombing.

Chaplain Daina makes his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he was rabbi of the Congregation Ahavath Achim before entering the service.

Upon Chaplain Daina's departure, Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commanding general, presented him with a personal letter of commendation for his part in post and division religious activities.

It read, in part, "I wish you every success in your new assignment. You carry away with you my appreciation of your work, and the gratitude of the men in your faith."

Examination Dates Set In Food Service Field

Enlisted men in the food service career field may take proficiency examinations for the tests for personnel in grade five are: MOS 089, Aug. 11; MOS 017, Aug. 11; MOS 1017, Aug. 12, and MOS 037, Aug. 12.

Corporals with an MOS of 000 may take the examination for promotion to sergeant at 1000, Aug. 11.

Applications must be submitted to commanding officers prior to July 11, 1949.

Tables Are Turned

Big Ralph Branca of the Dodgers recently won his seventh game of the 1949 baseball season. In the early season predictions, Rex Barney, the fireballer, was rated as the top pitcher of the flock with Ralph second. It was pointed out that men may take up to three examinations

Last Of Medical Groups Cases Colors At Parade

The colors of the 30th Medical group, the last unit of its type in the army, were officially retired at a formal parade of the newly activated 52nd Medical battalion last Monday.

The unit was organized as the 30th Medical regiment in June, 1934, in Texas, and was called into active service on July 25, 1942.

In September, 1942, the first men arrived to fill vacancies from Camp Grant, Ill., and from that time on men were rapidly assigned to the unit until it reached its operating strength.

Basic training for the regiment started in November, 1942, and ended the following August when the unit went, on maneuvers in Louisiana.

In September, 1943, it was redesignated the 30th Medical group, and later it moved to Camp Bowie, Texas, where it furnished cadres for five evacuation hospitals, three medical supply depots, one clearing company and one collecting company.

The group arrived at Camp Miles Standish, Mass., for final processing in August, 1944, and left for England aboard the U. S. S. Westcott.

On October 15, 1944, the unit landed near Omaha beach, France, for the purpose of giving medical support to the fighting forces of the 19th U. S. Army corps.

During the "battle of the bulge" the 30th Medical group supplied various companies and personnel to the 134th Medical group, which, at that time, handled most of the casualties of the famous battle.

Following this, the group moved into position to offer support for the actual preparation and crossing of the unit was attached to the British 21st Army group, but, on completion of the operation, returned to the Ninth U. S. Army.

Before the Rhine river crossing, the group was attached to the 13th Army corps, which at that time was under the command of Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., now the Third Army's commanding general.

On 1 April, 1945, the Rhine was crossed and the ninth started for the Elbe. The 30th Medical group also supported this operation.

At that point, the group moved back to Wolfburg, Germany, to assist in the hospitalization and evacuation of repatriated allied military personnel, prisoners of war and displaced persons.

The unit left Germany in June, 1945, for a final processing in France before returning to the United States, and ultimately arrived at Camp Kilmer, N. J. Since the group has been at Fort Benning, it has continued various phases of operation including supplying personnel for technical assignments at the Station hospital and supporting Infantry Center problems. It also furnished personnel to activate the 514th Medical Clearing company and 52nd Medical battalion.

CHARTER PRESENTATION — Col. A. C. Purdie, chairman of the Regt. committee, receives the charter for Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop No. 27 from Ted Walker, field secretary of the Russell County district, who made the presentation on behalf of the Alabama-Georgia Boy Scout Council. The ceremony was part of the Parents' day celebration at Blue polo field, on May 28.

Four Men Ordered To Far East Duty

Four men of Headquarters and Headquarters company, 15th Infantry regiment, received orders last week assigning them to the Far East command. Leaving soon for shipment from Camp Stoneman, Calif., are Capt. Julius W. Meadows, Pfc. Alvin N. Ragsdale, Cpl. William P. Washburn and Sgt. 1st cl. Grady F. Bates.

Family Shipment Tables Revised

A table of revised time lapses before wives and families can join servicemen at their overseas stations was issued by the Department of the Army last week. The new scale lengthens the periods slightly for any army and airforce enlisted dependents.

Operational theaters which remain unchanged are Europe, Trieste, Okinawa and Alaska. A long list is in store for the Antilles command where families of first three graders must wait for four months longer than under the old table.

The time lag in every theater is a result of housing conditions, which change frequently. The waiting period for civilian personnel usually depends on the individual's ability to obtain private housing.

Spaced with which families may join personnel depends largely on the time the men have spent overseas since Dec. 7, 1941.

All are classified into seven categories: A; less than six months overseas; B; seven to 12 months; C; 13 to 18 months; D; 19 to 24 months; E; 25 to 30 months; F; 31 to 36 months; and G; 36 months or more.

If a theater is not listed below, the requirements were changed from previous stipulations.

Gen. Bradley Urges Pay Hike As Army Attraction

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the address by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, to the Political Study Club of Washington at the Hotel Mayflower in Washington, D. C., on Tuesday, May 31.

When I was asked three months ago to meet with you today, I was told to pick my own subject. Because I believe the service pay issue now before Congress to be of vital importance to the future security of the United States, I have elected to discuss with you the significance of this program.

Like any other submissive American male, I abide truly in the wisdom of that advertiser who counsels as never to underestimate the power of a woman. Thus concerned as I am over our failure to convince Congress of the need for immediate pay incentives in the armed forces, I freely admit to the motive that prompts me to speak of our plight to their wives today.

If this be a violation of the etiquette of petitioning Congress, then I ask that you ascribe to it fully flanking tactics. For soldiers are taught to press their advantage long before they are taught their Washington manners.

Were this issue not of far greater significance than army household budgets, I should hesitate to try your patience with this recitation of our need. Record federal expenditures for armed security and foreign aid have already plagued the Congress into a dilemma where it must either increase taxes, curtail spending, or suffer a deeper debt.

At this moment the nation can no longer afford many desirable programs that may benefit its well-being. Rather, it must shift its expenditures to cut out those which cannot conscientiously be called essential to our security, health, welfare and growth.

Magie as is the term security in today's disarming world, it must not be exploited to cloak projects other than those of first importance to the safety of the nation. Therefore, when I plead the essential justification of our military pay revision at this time, I do so with complete awareness of the urgency I invoke.

are not starving for the want of butter and eggs, the failure to provide persuasive career incentives is in danger of reducing us to an army of second-raters. As long as qualified men respond in free economy to the opportunity for initiative and the prospect of reward, we cannot complete for promising leaders on pay scales that date to the horse-trail era.

More than any other institution, the army is in the business of people. If we are forever to be outbid by the private sector, then I submit that we shall entrust our security to the hands of those who understand men, then I submit that we shall entrust our security to the hands of those who understand men, then I submit that we shall entrust our security to the hands of those who understand men.

An army so handicapped in peacetime cannot hope to produce the Marshalls and Eisenhowers it needs in war. Bargain personnel seldom produce a bargain security system. Yet our government clings to the theory that it can deal forever in basement prices on the talents of men.

We are in danger of making patriotism a luxury that the talents of men can no longer afford. For today a talented young man must choose between a military career and the prospect of greater abundance for his family. By our failure to modernize pay scales, we have told him he can't have both.

As a result of this shortsightedness, we have discouraged from the military service both officers and noncommissioned officers with the talents to improve us.

Today we are faced with an emergency that will adjudge the competence of our armed forces thirty years from now. Either we shall leave to our children a heritage of capable military leaders, or we shall hazard their lives on the limitations of second-rate men.

Inferior inducements attract second-rate men. In war time invite second-best security. In war time second prize is a turner-up.

becker disaster. Until our armed forces are staffed with men of such superior quality and competence that they multiply in value with the passing of each year, we shall waste much of our nation's resources in fruitless peacetime training. For unless each officer and noncommissioned officer has capabilities greatly in excess of the responsibility he holds, he is basically an unprofitable part of a military machine.

As leadership standards decline for the lack of sufficient incentives, we are likely to find ourselves dabbling in day-to-day defenses rather than in the maintenance of our military reservoirs of military leadership are more important than the maintenance of our military planes.

A decline in the cost of living for the first time since the war has created what some observers call a "military pay lag." Logical stage for the discussion of service pay. However, our first round of military pay scales in 41 years.

Because their wage-earners are paid no more for the service of their nation, the families of servicemen have had neither shop allowances nor allowances to represent their plight. As a result, we find men who after a lifetime of service are compensated at the scales of their fathers in the gas-light era.

Our problem is not a problem of psychological timing. Rather, it is the need for correction of a long frozen injustice. Only by showing prospective leaders that service pays are worth the fair incentives in this age can we hope to excite in them the desire to serve in the future.

The American people have created their military establishment in the image of their own nation. It is an institution founded on equal rights and upon freedom of opportunity. It is an institution that was created as the son of a country schoolmaster — to quit my 17-cent-an-hour job on the spot for a commission and eventually to succeed General Eisenhower as chief of staff. Yet this is the institution habitually whipped by every man who is a member of the United States Army.

The United States Army has permitted me and thousand like me to pay my way honorably in a career of service to the nation. It has permitted me to serve in dignity and self-respect in my adult life a nation for whose institutions the military has taught me greater love and devotion. When I plead for fair reward, it is not for the generation that has taught me to love and devotion. When I plead for a higher wage for myself, I intend to speak as a spokesman of the service I represent to preserve an equal opportunity for the service among the young men of this generation. If we are to entreat them to leave us a time to the service, then we must also give them the opportunity to serve with dignity and honor, and with prospects of an abundant livelihood for themselves and their families.

Artillery Units Pick Riflemen

Third Infantry division artillery units have announced the members of the 22 calibre rifle team which will represent Divarty in future small-bore competition. Number one man on the team is Pvt. Garner Gayhart of Battery C, Ninth Field Artillery battalion.

Following are M-Sgt. Russel White, Headquarters - Artillery battalion; Sgt. Marvin Corey, Battery A, 41st Field Artillery battalion; Pfc. Harry Kolonick, Battery A, 41st Field Artillery battalion; Pfc. John A. Koumoures, Battery C, 41st Field Artillery battalion; Pfc. Melby Pfygare, Headquarters, 41st Field Artillery battalion, and Pfc. Charles W. Kirsham, Battery B, 41st Field Artillery battalion.

was derogated by some as a "brass hat" bill designed to cushion officers and exclude enlisted men. Critics of the military too often attribute to officers the multi-faceted of a few. Three out of every five dollars in the proposed first year's cost for pay revision were tabbed for enlisted men — most of them leaders in the noncommissioned grades. Approximately one half of one per cent would have gone to reward the brass who wear stars.

I had once hoped that we might lay away forever the cruel fiction that officer privilege has splintered the services. In to castes of level. Yet we are still subjected to the perennial slanders of those who see success for themselves in civil life and vilify success in the service. We are still belabored by the suspicion that rank in the Army is a reward for villainy. While success in business is reversed the achievement, success in the army is noisily condemned as un-American and undemocratic.

At this time we rejected the cheap emotionalism that panders to the appetites of those in hunt of the riches of the armed forces. Again, I submit, these are the men whom we deny with bargain basement incentives.

virtue that benefits the soldier as well as the nation he serves. For if we are honestly concerned for the welfare of the American soldier, our first consideration should be for the quality of the men who command him. It is the competence of this leadership and the quality of this command that may readily spell the difference between his life and death in battle. In their constant efforts to drive a wedge between officers and men, the self-proclaimed champions of the American citizenry, his greatest deservicer. Our only hope for a military establishment that will safeguard the dignity, protect the rights, and give expression to the human needs of men lies in the recruitment of officers and leaders with the intelligence and compassion to fulfill those wants. Again, I submit, these are the men whom we deny with bargain basement incentives.

Bond Campaign In Fourth Week

The opportunity bond drive, entering the fourth week of its six-week schedule, has reached an estimated 10 per cent of its goal, according to an announcement received from Capt. Hazel Ver Hey, Infantry Center insurance and savings officer.

The goal, set at 50 per cent participation by military and civilian personnel is, unless increased greatly in the next two weeks, going to fall below the mark, Captain Ver Hey pointed out.

Captain Ver Hey stated that "presonal, both military and civilian, should be reminded that the bonds purchased will not only help to insure a future for the investor and the government, but one in which will pay back in 10 years four dollars for every three dollars invested.

will be presented at the enlisted man's finance section of the man's organization, and the money will be paid him across the table. Checks drawn against officers, pay accounts, will be mailed them on the first day of every month.

The military pay orders will contain all information pertinent to the man's wages, in order to estimate the amount which the personnel department must now perform before every payroll is processed.

An entire financial record of the man will be kept on his military pay order card, and will be accompanied by his service record.

Formal Reopening For Chapel No. 4

Church bells at chapel No. 4 in Sand hill rang for the first time in months Sunday morning as the Third Infantry division and Infantry Center chaplains banded together to reopen the chapel with special inaugural services.

At 9 a.m. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, cut the white silk tape across the doors, and formally reopened the chapel. In his brief talk, General Burress said "this is your chapel... may you use, enjoy and benefit from it."

A professional was formed, and men from the 99th Armored Field artillery battalion, as well as other Sand hill units streamed into the chapel, a number overflowed into seats provided on the outside lawn.

Special guests at the ceremonies included, in addition to General and Mrs. Burress, Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Division commander; Brig. Gen. Foster Tate, division artillery commander, and Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, commanding officer of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion; Chaplain (Capt.) Henry Varner; Brig. Gen. Foster Tate, Third Division commander; Chaplain (Capt.) St. Clair Williams; Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding Third Division; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace Hale; Infantry Center Chaplain; General Burress, and the color bearers. Sgt. James Jackson and Sgt. Mark Cornelius.

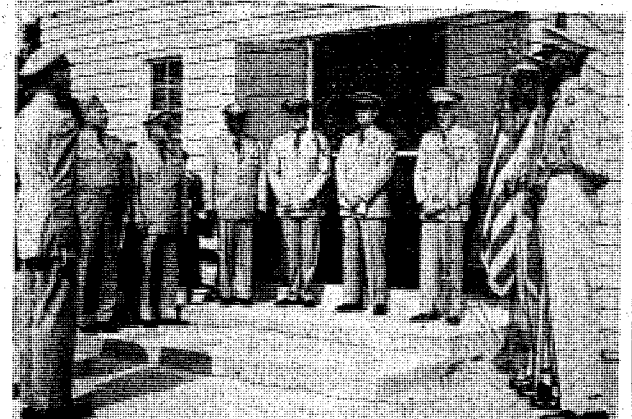

Williams, assistant to the Infantry Center chaplain, then gave a short prayer of thanks. The welcoming address was given by Lt. Col. Slade, and was followed with a short talk by General Clarkson, who lauded the chapel as a place associated with the reopening of the chapel.

Chaplain Johnson gave the dedication address, thanking the congregation for its attendance and stating that he would do everything in his power to make the chapel a true spiritual help for all men in the area.

A hymn followed, and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, of the Infantry Center chaplain, conducted the services by pronouncing benediction.

Chapel No. 4 was renovated and modernized within the past few months by post engineers and volunteer help from the area. Battalion noncommissioned officers who worked on the chapel committee are M-Sgt. Albert H. Jackson, M-Sgt. John H. Wilson, M-Sgt. John H. Ingram, M-Sgt. Alton H. Johnson, M-Sgt. James H. Alston and Cpl. Peter M. Crawford.

Personal congratulations for the success of the inaugural services were voiced to Colonel Slade by Mrs. Wheters A. Burress, who attended with the TIC commander, and Third division chaplain (Lt. Col.) Peter Rush. Regular services at the chapel will be conducted each Sunday and Sunday school classes will meet late in the morning. Mid-week services are to be announced soon by Chaplain Johnson.

6 States Map Procedures For Balloting by Soldiers

The privilege to vote, one of the most important freedoms guaranteed Americans by the Constitution is being protected for military personnel through absentee voting procedures outlined by the Department of the Army. With many service men away from their home voting districts, a situation which developed largely during World War II, arrangements have been made to facilitate absentee balloting. Six states this year will accept absentee ballots as legitimate votes. The states are Kansas, Virginia and North Carolina. Post card applications for ballots will be available through first sergeants of various army units, except Kansas. Application by mail must be made to county clerks concerned for the form necessary to receive a ballot. The Kansas primary runoff will be held Aug. 9 and the general election on Nov. 8. Ballots must be returned at least one day prior to the elections. In Kentucky the primary race will be held Aug. 6, and the general election on Nov. 8. Applications should be forwarded on a county clerk, who will send out the ballots on receipt of request. Absentee ballots in Kentucky must be received not less than one hour before the closing of the polls. The New Jersey general election will be held Nov. 8. Applications received any time prior to the election will be honored, and the state will mail the absentee ballots 30 days before the election. Ohio has been accepting applications since Jan. 1, but ballots will not be mailed to voters until Sept. 9 or after. All votes must be in by Nov. 8. For Virginia's primary, Aug. 2, ballots will be mailed by June 18. Applications are being accepted now, and votes must be in by election day. For the general election in Virginia, Nov. 8, applications will be accepted Sept. 9, and ballots must be mailed Oct. 18 with all ballots turned in by the election date. There will be no absentee ballots accepted for New York's primary election Sept. 8, but applications for the general election sent in before Nov. 8 can be submitted immediately. Ballots will be mailed to soldiers beginning Sept. 30 and must be returned by noon Nov. 7.

Clothing System Is Outlined Here

The vast scope of the new monetary clothing allowance system was explained here at a conference of officers and supply sergeants held May 31 and June 1. Conducted by Capt. Ralph A. Gruber, representative of the office of the quartermaster general, the group convened to acquaint supply personnel with the numerous provisions of the new system. Capt. Gruber explained that every man in the army today will have $21.60 credited to his account, and each man entering the service after that date will have the same amount credited to him on the date of his enlistment. If a man in the army today is discharged in August and reenlists in September for three years, he will get $45.00 credited to his account, plus $27.60 standard monetary credit to maintain his clothing for a year. The reason given for the difference between the $21.60 allowance for the first year and the $57.60 for each succeeding year is that during the first year it will cost considerably less to maintain and replace new clothing received in the initial issue. In the case of a property loss at the quartermaster laundry, a statement of loss is necessary.

Gen. Eddy

(Continued from page 1) The trust which has been placed in the new graduates has not been misplaced. He admonished the class to have humility and to "never forget that you are perhaps the most important servants this country has." The graduation of the class marked the conclusion of the 1949 course of the Infantry School. The Infantry School set up the course primarily to produce officers thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals and techniques of infantry methods. The students covered detailed ground in infantry weapons and tactics. The officers also received extensive general instruction in staff organization. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burris, Infantry Center commander, addressed the class and introduced General Eddy. The officers who received diplomas were announced by Capt. John F. Nicholas, Jr., commanding officer of the Fourth company, Student Training Regiment, to which the students were assigned. General Eddy presented the diplomas.

Father's Day Services Announced By Division

The Third Infantry division's Father's Day service for Protestant personnel will be held Sunday morning at 9 a.m. on the grounds bordering the Battalion House Officers' club in Sand Hill. Featuring Chaplain (Col.) James T. Wilson, Third Army chaplain, as guest speaker, the services will be accompanied by choral music furnished by the 28-voice Infantry Center chapel choir. The chaplain's office further revealed that the Third division band will present to furnish appropriate music, and that Infantry Center Protestants are also invited to attend the services.

New Officer Screening System Now in Operation

Steps toward remedying incompetency among some officers holding responsible positions, long the bane of the Department of the Army's attempt to create an intelligent, efficient leadership for intelligent followers, have been announced by army officials at Washington, D. C. A new procedure consolidating all policies for the elimination or demotion of inefficient army officers of all components and periods of service has been put into effect. The new regulations will inaugurate procedures for eliminating those officers who hold probationary regular army commissions of less than three years along with procedures for the demotion and relief from duty of non-regulars. Prior to the publication of the new directive, when a probationary officer cited to show cause why his commission should not be revoked convinced a hearing board that he should retain his commission, the conclusion of the court meant that the case was a habitual interperence a recurrent instances of other personal misconduct. A commission or attempted commission of a homosexual act or existence of homosexual tendencies. Under the new regulations the fact that an officer has been

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK

Private Becomes Expert Instructor In Short Time

PVT AMOS R. GRAHAM "Soldier-of-the-Week"

The outstanding record compiled while an assistant instructor with the Tank Weapons committee of the Infantry School won for Pvt. Amos R. Graham, Company C, Infantry School, the honor of being named "Soldier of the Week." Private Graham, while assigned to the Weapons committee, conducted instructions in tank gunnery from last Jan. 25, until April 18. During this period the tempo of instruction to be given was at all time high, and, because of this, Private Graham had little chance of receiving instructions and information as to how he should conduct his classes from the older assigned personnel. With this handicap and realizing that he could receive little help in acquiring information about his job, Private Graham went out on his own to get it. By asking countless questions exhibiting an interest in his work, volunteering for various jobs and cheerfully and willingly doing any work which was assigned him, Private Graham improved his grasp of the subjects covered by the committee. Also, by working frequently after normal duty hours, Private Graham grasped the principles of the instruction and became an expert in the technical phases of tank gunnery and application of technique of fire. One of his outstanding achievements came, however, when he was selected to command a tank for the record firing of the basic officers class No. 1 during the period of March 18-21. In the performance of this job, one which normally is assigned only to an officer or an experienced noncommissioned officer, Private Graham demonstrated initiative, intelligence, cooperation and reflected great credit on the Tank Weapons committee and upon himself. Private Graham, formerly of 76 East Strickland street, Douglasville, Ga., enlisted in the army April 20, 1948 at Atlanta, Ga.

Infantry Still Leads the Way

On June 15 the "Queen of Battle," the U. S. Infantry, observed her 174th birthday; but unlike some it was quiet celebration, for she knows that no one needs to be reminded of her greatness. Through her 174 years she has built a reputation for true valor that would be hard to surpass. The exploits of men of the infantry have made the word "infantry" synonymous with the word "bravery." Always when the going was toughest, the infantry was there. When an objective was needed, the infantry would take it. She might return from battle with a few more scars and with some of her retinue dead, wounded or missing, but she always did the job. Naturally, she lost some battles, but she never gave up hope of eventual victory, knowing full well her ability was great enough to cope with any situation.

The infantry's passing years have made her more invulnerable. Although some say, as they did before World War II, that she has lost her punch and power, that her day as ruler of the battlefield is over, the queen can smile to herself because she knows that some day those same people will call on her for help. And as always, she will hold no grudge. She will give that needed help, and give it gladly, for her primary motive is to serve and serve well. The infantry strives constantly to keep her record one of improvement. And all those who are a part of her help her to prove that she can keep abreast of the changing times. When the queen discovered that airborne troops were needed to strike swiftly during battle, she immediately trained men to be paratroopers. When the queen discovered that airplanes could be used to great advantage on reconnaissance missions, she immediately trained men to pilot observation planes. When the queen discovered that her fire power needed more punch, she immediately added new weapons, including such things as recoilless rifles, rockets, armored vehicles and heavier mortars. So today, after 174 years of glorious history, the infantry still stands at the top of the list as a trainer of men. She still stands at the top of the list in the number of famous outfits, whose courage and stamina and fighting spirit have made her feared and respected. We are of course, do not believe that the infantry is the only branch of the armed forces needed to protect our country, but we do believe that her importance has not yet been overshadowed. She is still the leader of the team, and her progressive ways will enable her to carry her colors higher. She is still needed as much as she was when George Washington recruited the Continental army in 1776.

On The Bookshelf Billie Burke's Autobiography

With a Feather on My Nose, by Billie Burke with Cameron Shipp. Appleton-Century-Crofts, Inc., New York, publisher.
Billie Burke, stage, screen and television star, tells her autobiography to the current rash of personal histories that has struck America in the past few years. The book, as light entertainment, will undoubtedly appeal to those who have a soft spot for the stars or who admire the flashy personalities of the 'twenties. Those people, of whom we are one, will read almost anything written by the fascinating people of the arts, and we enjoyed reading about Billie Burke. Miss Burke and Mr. Shipp have not made the mistake of trying to build the book entirely around Miss Burke. It is full of great names in show business of the days. It is a warm history of the brilliant people Miss Burke knew or worked with. Miss Burke was married to Flo Ziegfeld for 18 years. Although her personal life with that originator of the Follies girls at times tends to overshadow his own personality in the book, we get a new view of the personality which led the way for the glamorous musicals and stage productions for which Broadway is so famous. Samuel Clemens knew Miss Burke at a time when his fortunes were at an ebb. The humor which had made Mark Twain so beloved by America was fading, but the twinkle in his eye glittered once more for Miss Burke. It is a photograph to her reading, "Truth is the most valuable thing we possess. Let us economize it." The photograph is reproduced in the book. Ernie Cannan, who needs no introduction, made passionate and eternal love to Miss Burke during their courtship. Miss Burke says, "I treated him as if he were a great, mischievous baby and said 'Pootie' to him rather overpowring brand of lovmaking." The book, the names, the life, make good reading. We heartily recommend it.

Report from Washington May Raise Age Limit for USMA Cadets

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Applications for the army-airforce allocation of West Point cadetships for the term beginning July 1, 1950, will be received from individuals 17 years of age and younger, with the expectation that Congress will lower the present minimum age of 19 years. If the law remains unchanged, applicants between 17 and 19 will be eliminated automatically.

Further regulation of the enlistment of former army commissioned and warrant officers provides: A soldier discharged from first grade status to accept a commission, may reenlist in grade one upon application within six months of relief from commissioned duty, regardless of physical status. But a soldier discharged from a grade lower than one, or no regular enlisted status, must apply for enlistment immediately upon relief from active commissioned duty, in order to get grade one. If he accepts cash settlement for accrued leave, instead of carrying it over to enlistment status, he cannot ordinarily enlist in grade one.

A bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate authorizes commissioning of women doctors, dentists, veterinarians and other medical specialists in the army Medical corps with the same pay and allowances as men. Family allowances would not be paid for husband and children, however, unless they actually were dependent.

Chaplain's Corner God Commands That We 'Be Not Anxious

BY CHAPLAIN HENRY B. VARNER
"In nothing be anxious; but in everything . . . let your requests be made known unto God." Phil. 4:6 (American Revised Version of N. T.)
Worry is fear of imaginary future ills. The Holy Scripture often-times uses the word "anxiety" for, and in place of, the word "worry." Worry is forbidden, Jesus himself having commanded, "Be not anxious; for the Father knows what ye need before ye ask him." (Matthew 6:25-34)
"In nothing be anxious; but in everything . . . let your requests be made known unto God."
There are two reasons why Jesus condemned worry. He knew that worry was a bad practice of the pagans who did not know and trust a kind Heavenly Father. Secondly, Jesus looked upon worry as being unnecessary and harmful, since God knows our needs better than we ourselves.

Your Red Cross What Happens To Blood Donated Here?

BY MURRAY HILL
The question has often been asked, "How badly is the blood needed which is given monthly at Fort Benning to the mobile blood unit?" We have always been able to answer that the blood is in many instances needed in an emergency and never reaches the age of 21 days when it can be made into plasma.
The last visit of the blood unit was on May 24, and by giving facts on the 163 pints collected that day we can show how badly each pint was needed. Under ordinary circumstances blood collected here is stored in refrigerated blood containers and carried back to Atlanta that night; but because of certain emergencies in Atlanta and Rome, Ga., the first 50 pints drawn on May 24 were flown back to Atlanta where 12 pints were used at St. Joseph Infirmary, 13 pints at Battery State hospital in Rome, and 26 pints at Lawson hospital. The remainder was carried to Atlanta that night by truck.
Not all of it was used in Atlanta, however. Six pints were rushed to St. Mary's

"Queen of Battles" Reigns After 174 Eventful Years

BY HARRY KING

America's "Queen of Battles," the infantry, celebrated her 174th anniversary yesterday.

The proud heritage of this country's foot soldier goes back to June 16, 1775, when General George Washington took command of a motley group of men, who, though ill-fed, ill-equipped and ill-trained, fought a victorious battle against the professional troops of the British. Their only two weapons were courage and a mission.

From the faint, rag-shodden, homespun soldier carrying his musket, to the well-fed, completely clothed and equipped infantryman of today is a far cry. Their common bond is their courage and their mission.

The foot soldier of World War II, bleeding and dying for each foot of ground gained, could look up to see the might of our air power thunder past overhead, or glance to his flank and watch the tanks roll by.

It is for the nation's people to look at the infantryman and thank him for the final act of victory in battle. For he, and only he, took and held that foot of enemy soil.

The history of the infantry goes back to the days of early Greece.

Soldiers, protected by mail and armed with spear and dagger, were first employed effectively at that time. Their "phalanx" formation for many years was the basic formation. The charge of the Athenian army at Marathon showed the excellence of a rapid system of attack. It was at this battle that "double time" was first employed.

No history of the infantry would be complete without a mention of the Roman legion. To this day, their discipline and spirit, under Julius Caesar, are studied as an example of what a smaller, trained force can do against a numerically superior enemy.

Under such great military leaders as Charlemagne, Hannibal, William the Conqueror, Napoleon and Bismarck, methods of warfare became more exacting and technical. Artillery, supply and communications played an ever important role in the effectiveness of an army.

Up to, and including, the present day, however, the importance of the infantry has ranked first.

From the first shot at Concord bridge to the final volley at Yorktown, our forefathers fought a daring and courageous battle, ever improving in discipline and ability. But it wasn't until after the Declaration of Independence was signed that General Washington had time to get about reorganizing this country's first army on a permanent basis.

When, in 1812, the U. S. went to war against the British, although still an infant nation, it showed the enemy a better trained force. The infantryman once again won the respect of the world by using one of the country's best weapons—initiative.

Lying in wait for the trained French troops about to storm New Orleans, a handful of soldiers, hastily reinforced by a band of pirates and volunteers, might well have wondered what possible chance they had against Napoleon's best legions. "That day," in a filthy swamp, that handful of men made history by employing unheard of tactics and forcing the French to withdraw. It wasn't superiority of arms—they didn't have it. It wasn't better training—they weren't better trained. It wasn't by numbers—they were outnumbered. It was the initiative, courage and mission of the infantryman.

From 1812 to 1898, the infantry fought a series of great battles. Always victorious, it added training, discipline and leadership to an already firm foundation.

Early in 1898, an American warship, the famous Maine, blew up in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, and the 174th great war of the American nation was declared.

By August, 1898, the United States infantry was in Cuba, the Western front.

The British, French and Belgians on the Marne—two ragged divisions of American infantry, the Second and the Third, against the full power of a German army under the brilliant leadership of Ludendorff; they smashed their way through the German strong-hold at Cantigny. On Sept. 12, 1918, the battle to crush the St. Mihiel salient started.

The armistice was hardly declared before a new cry was raised for American troops, as the Boxers arose in China against the infiltration of Western powers, and again United States infantrymen filed aboard transports to defend their countrymen in parts of the world they had never seen.

Without question and without complaint they slugged through rice paddy and winding oriental streets, and, in a short while, business was resumed in the trading centers of the east.

In 1917, there arose a crisis on the United States-Mexican border, and, for the second time in a century, the infantry moved into Texas, retracing the paths of Sam Houston and Winfield Scott. They experienced again the gila monsters and the heat of the southern desert. The muddy waters of the Red river on the trail of the Mexican terrorists, Pancho Villa.

States infantry was in Cuba, the Western front.

Throwing themselves into a form of war never before seen by man, the doughboys proved themselves fighters of rare courage and tenacity. They acquired themselves reputations that spread with incredible swiftness over all the fields of Europe.

They held the Allied positions on the Marne—two ragged divisions of American infantry, the Second and the Third, against the full power of a German army under the brilliant leadership of Ludendorff; they smashed their way through the German strong-hold at Cantigny. On Sept. 12, 1918, the battle to crush the St. Mihiel salient started.

In the woods and marshes of the St. Mihiel region many American infantrymen fired their last round of ammunition at the seemingly endless lines of grey, bucket-headed boches, and then they rushed at, and overcame, the Germans with cold steel.

Through Verdun, across the Woerthe forest, the American infantry advanced, until it struck the line that marked the beginning of the Meuse-Argonne offensive. American troops opened the most decisive battle of World War I, on Sept. 28, 1918.

There are many who must remember the shell-scorched trees of the Argonne forest, the gloomy nights spent waiting for the shells to fall, and the shock of machine gun fire from an unexpected quarter. There are many who must remember comrades who fell in the forest, men who advanced until they could advance no farther. And there are many who never left that changing belt of peace past a short month after the Germans withdrew.

Army Recreation Center Is Set Up in St. Augustine

An Army recreation center has been established in St. Augustine, Fla., which will begin receiving personnel from Fort Benning on July 1.

Located on the beach at St. Augustine, the center will offer almost every form of popular recreation since, in the immediate area of the camp, are located swimming pools, both surf and deep-sea fishing, golf, junc-

AEF to New York was one that brought tears of sorrow, of joy and of pride to the eyes of every American who saw it. The confident, swinging stride of the man who had marched through Europe was a compelling sight along Fifth avenue, and no honor was too great to bestow on the infantryman who had fought for his country on foreign soil.

Within three decades, however, the macadam of Fifth avenue was resounding again to the beat of martial music, a second and greater war even than that of 1918 was in progress, and the solemn-faced, heavily-laden doughboys marching through New York were this time on their way to board transports.

They were on their way to the most terrifying and most important battlefields man has ever seen. They were on their way to Italy, to the snows of France and Germany.

It was the infantry that cleared North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Holland, Guadalcanal, New Guinea, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and the Philippines. It was the infantry that took the German and held it.

The shot at Concord bridge; the victory yells at Yorktown; the anguish moan of a wounded soldier at New Orleans in 1812; the battle cry at Saratoga in 1898; the death moan of a doughboy in 1918, and the cheering crowds along Fifth avenue in 1945; all these sounds mingle and become the soul of the infantry.

A quota of about 120 men from the Third Infantry division will be set for each weekly trip to St. Augustine. Eight trips will be made altogether during the period July 1 to Aug. 26.

Arrangements for the trip will be made by unit personnel officers, and the only thing to be supplied by the men making the trip will be the bus fare and money for meals and lodging at the camp.

Arrangements have been made through civilian authorities in St. Augustine to enable men visiting the recreation camp to eat at civilian restaurants at special low rates, and exceptionally low rates also have been set by hotels in the city.

The actual cost to an individual for a week's vacation, including transportation, will be about $34. This would allow $9.30 for travel to and from St. Augustine, $15.75 for meals, and $8.75 for lodging. All recreation will be free of charge.

Men selected to make the trip will be on seven days' accrued duty from their unit, which will not count against their accrued leave time.

Company Reveals Promotions of EM

Enlisted promotions in Company G, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, were recently revealed by unit officials. William Hites, William Merrill Charles D. Ritzler, Edward Landau, Kermit L. Oakes, and Russell Stewart received promotions from recruit to private.

Al Massey Seeking Post Ring Revenge

Fights Martinez Tuesday Night

Al Massey, the Miami wrestler, will get a chance to avenge his defeat at the hands of Lozano Martinez, the Mexican, when the two meet in a return match next Tuesday night at the main post gym.

Massey, billed as the Florida Flash, demanded a return match immediately after his loss to Martinez in the main post ring on May 31. When the promoter failed to promise it to him, he barged into the dressing room of Martinez and started the battle all over again.

Martinez refused to meet Massey claiming that he had defeated the Floridian once and that Massey would have to get a better reputation before he would be granted a return go.

Massey put the pressure on and got the promoter to agree to force Martinez into the match with the threat that he would be barred in the South if he refused to sign. Martinez reluctantly agreed to the match under the conditions.

Massey has demanded the rematch to prove to his fans and to himself that he is still the top contender for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world.

An impressive record in the Southwest and invades the South with the boast that he is "the best wrestler in the country and will take on anyone that doesn't believe me."

Galento has had top billing in every big city in the country and has been defeated only once.

The first match of the evening will be a one-fall event pitting Don McIntyre against Black Jack Dillon, the Tennessee Tornado. Dillon, a 240-pounder, considers his draw with the world's champion, Lou Tetz, as his greatest single achievement since embarking on a mat career.

McIntyre, the Missouri cat, and turkey farmer who is ranked as one of the top attractions in the South.

Red McIntyre, Don's brother, will be the referee.

Benning Drops Skeet Contest To McPherson

The Fort Benning skeet team dropped a decision Fort McPherson, Ga., last Sunday. The score of the match was 443X300.

It was the second straight time that Fort McPherson had defeated the Benningites by a scant two birds in their last match of last season the difference was exactly the same as Sunday.

It has been the policy of the two teams to play a home-and-away series each year, and the Benning men are slated to go to the McPherson range later in the season.

Highlights of the day were the exhibitions put on by Dr. and Mrs. Leroy Childs of Lake Keer, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Camp of Ocala, Fla. Both the Childs and the Camps are noted skeet shooters, and Mrs. Childs and Mrs. Camp were on the 1948 all-America skeet team.

The members of the Fort Benning skeet team are now making plans for a post-wide championship shoot to be held soon.

In a letter to the battalion commander of the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion, Maj. Gen. C. E. Byers, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne division, Fort Bragg, N. C., praised the unit highly for its part in Exercise Tarnish, which took place in North Carolina recently.

In his commendation, General Byers wrote:

"The conduct of your officers and men is indicative of the high standard of leadership and advanced state of training which exists within your battalion. It has been most gratifying to have had such an outstanding unit as the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion supporting the 82nd Airborne division and it is hoped that we shall be privileged to work with you again in the future."

Col. Roland H. del Mar, commanding general of the 82nd, passed on the letter of commendation to the unit, and with it expressed his satisfaction that the men had done a praiseworthy task.

General Lauds Post Tank Unit

In his commendation, General Byers wrote:

"The conduct of your officers and men is indicative of the high standard of leadership and advanced state of training which exists within your battalion. It has been most gratifying to have had such an outstanding unit as the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion supporting the 82nd Airborne division and it is hoped that we shall be privileged to work with you again in the future."

Col. Roland H. del Mar, commanding general of the 82nd, passed on the letter of commendation to the unit, and with it expressed his satisfaction that the men had done a praiseworthy task.

Highlights of the day were the exhibitions put on by Dr. and Mrs. Leroy Childs of Lake Keer, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Camp of Ocala, Fla. Both the Childs and the Camps are noted skeet shooters, and Mrs. Childs and Mrs. Camp were on the 1948 all-America skeet team.

The members of the Fort Benning skeet team are now making plans for a post-wide championship shoot to be held soon.

Track-Field Crown Captured By Bragg

Assassins Shatter 6 Marks In Chalking Up Easy Victory

The Assassins of Fort Bragg, N. C., turned the annual Third Army track meet into a rout last week as they breezed past Fort Benning and Fort Jackson in the Doughboy stadium affair.

The Braggmen won 12 out of 15 events to pile up the amazing total of 101 1-2 points, more than four times that of their nearest opponent. Fort Benning finished second with 22 points and Fort Jackson, S. C., came in last with 10 2-3 points.

Six new Third Army records went into the books, all of them set by the Bragg team. New marks were set in six one- and two-mile runs, the 440-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, the 880-yard run and the high jump.

Chuck Bates, Bragg distance man, was the only double winner of the day taking both the one- and two-mile runs. Bates finished in 50 yards in front of teammate Haigus Kazarian to chalk up a new record for the mile in four minutes, 36 seconds.

The Bragg star also set a new area mark in the two-mile event when he won in 10 minutes, 20 1/2 seconds.

Other records were set by Newt Whittington, who won the 440 in 57 1/2 seconds, Bob Reynolds, who chalked up a time of 16 1/2 seconds in the high hurdles, and Jim Overby, who won the 880-yard run in 1 minute, 59 1/2 seconds.

Thirrel Burton of Bragg won the high jump with a height of five feet, 10 inches, to equal the old record. Given a chance to try for the record, Burton went five feet, 11 inches to set the final new mark.

Charles Hall, Benning sprint star, won the 100-yard dash by beating Thirrel Burton of Bragg to the tape in 9 1/2 seconds.

Hall was also leading in the 220-yard dash when he pulled a muscle in his left leg and had to be taken to the Station hospital. The 220 was won by Ed Dupree of Bragg in 23 1/2 seconds.

was the only first of the day for the Fort Jackson team in the javelin throw, pitching the spear 155 feet, 11 1/2 inches.

The Bragg one-mile relay team covered the distance in three minutes, 29 1/2 seconds to beat out the second place Benning team. The five anchor leg run by Bill Whittington against Benning's Earl Baldwin was the difference in this event.

Fort Bragg also dominated the field events taking firsts in four of the six events. Bob Wolf of Bragg won the shot with a heave of 42 feet, two inches; Bill Sweeney soared 11 feet to annex the pole vault title, and Norman Johnson took the discus throw by hurling the platter 127 feet, 10 1/4 inches.

Jessie Moss gave Benning five points when he leaped 18 feet, 11 1/4 inches, to win the broad jump, while Bill Spurlock won

Airborne Clubs Special Troops

The Student Training regiment of the Third Infantry division—Airborne battalion nine scored in all but two innings at Gowdy Field last Sunday afternoon to rout the Trooper nine and set the Brooks, hit safely at least once with Ralph Terry and Len Carney leading the parade, with Jesse hits each.

Bob Cronin led the rubber for the Trooper nine and set the special troops down with only five hits. He struck out seven and walked four over the nine-inning route. The fast-balling right-hander was never in trouble, and let up in the ninth to permit three runs to cross the plate. The only long blow off Cronin's offerings came in the fourth when Conrad blasted a four-bagger to deep center field.

In contrast, the Troopers combed the offerings of pitcher Marty Kossow for 20 hits, including five doubles and two triples.

The Troopers' most effective inning was the seventh when men went to bat with nine men reaching base and nine scoring.

Exams In Food Service Field Slated For August

Proficiency examinations for promotions in the food service career field for PFCs and corporals have been announced for Fort Benning on Aug. 11 and 12 by the Department of the Army. Eligible for the examinations are corporals and corporals with either a primary or potential primary food service MOS.

Versatile Club Hostess Boasts Varied History

From black markets to Okinawa to Fort Benning is, so far, the history of a new addition to the service club. A satisfactory composite score with twelve months in grade four is necessary for promotion to grade three. It was stressed that no school training is necessary to complete the examinations. Applications must be submitted to commanding officers prior to July 11, it was pointed out. Scheduled dates for the tests are: MOS 069, Aug. 11; MOS 017, Aug. 12; and MOS 037, Aug. 12.

From 2,000 to 2,500 soldiers monthly attended the sessions she conducted in leathercraft, metalcraft, woodworking, photography and almost every other hobby that might be mentioned. Miss Parks holds a bachelor of science degree from Tuskegee Institute, Ala. Before she went to Okinawa Miss Parks was an investigator with the Office of Price Administration in the Philadelphia, Pa. area where she was eminently successful. Her duties involved attempts to buy "under-the-counter" goods from merchants suspected of black market activities.

Army Reveals WO Estimates
 The total number of warrant officer appointments to be made in July of the first half of August will range from a low estimate of 150 to a maximum of about 1,800, army officials in Washington, D. C., have announced. There were 5,288 applications for warrant officer positions which satisfied the basic requirements but only 2,500 of these are under definite consideration for appointments. The percentage of temporary officer applicants has been about 60 per cent of the total which is keeping with figures from earlier warrant competitions. The ratio has varied through the preliminary disqualifications of men whose composite scores are too low to warrant consideration in the final selections.

Chance for Public Recognition

The Bayonet's feature, "Soldier of the Week", was inaugurated primarily as a morale builder. It's instinctive to want to be singled out from others for individual praise, and we believed that the soldier of the week contest would provide an opportunity to recognize publicly an individual for his outstanding accomplishments.

We feel that the mission is being accomplished. Each week the contest's judges receive nominations, and each week one of those nominees is selected as soldier of the week. Despite this, however, we don't think the average Benningite actually knows what it means to be selected soldier of the week. It means that of more than 25,000 troops on the post, the man chosen is the outstanding soldier of the week. It means that, provided his duties will allow it, he will get a three-day pass. It means that he will get a letter of commendation, signed by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, which will be placed in his 201 file. It means public recognition through The Bayonet, and in the event the accomplishment is outstanding enough, even national recognition.

Among those feats which have warranted more than local attention are Sgt. 1st cl. Arthur E. Lardon, Company C, Infantry School detachment, whose work in completing a drainage system for Patton range earned for him the praise of the Academic department; Cpl. John E. Turner, Company H, 30th Infantry regiment, whose quick thinking prevented a runaway truck from crashing into a government building in which personnel were on duty; Cpl. Bruce E. Rhudy, 3440th Area Service unit, whose understanding manner helped the family of a deceased Fort Benning soldier through the trying ordeal of funeral services; and Cpl. James R. Brodie, also of the 3440th Area Service unit, whose attention to duty while walking a guard post aided in preventing a fire in his unit's shop area from causing a great amount of damage.

These are only a few examples of deeds by Fort Benning soldiers which have won for them the soldier of the week title, but they exemplify the type of achievement which happens every day. The judges, of course, have no way of finding out about these feats unless they are reported. And that's how every officer and every enlisted man at Fort Benning can be of service, not only to insure the success of the contest, but also to build pride in the man's unit and in the man himself.

Americans have always been noted for their initiative; certainly this is no less true among army personnel. We know that oftentimes initiative and ingenuity among the military is more necessary than among civilians, and we feel that such initiative and ingenuity should be recognized. Indeed the army's reputation as well as the reputation of men in the army depend to a great extent on favorable publicity. The soldier of the week contest is one of The Bayonet's contributions to a favorable publicity program.

Since the contest brings to light individual initiative, individual capabilities and other desirable traits, we feel that the army will win more friends through the publicity which results therefrom. This is true, we feel, because all Americans love a champion, and a man who can overcome obstacles is always a champion. Usually the man selected as soldier of the week has overcome some type of obstacle.

To be chosen soldier of the week is a worthy aim. A soldier is proud of his unit, and by the same token, a unit should be proud of its soldiers. It should be the moral responsibility of each soldier to bring to the attention of the unit commander any feats accomplished that warrant consideration for the title, "Soldier of the Week".

The contest, in order to be a success, needs and must have the cooperation of all.

Chaplain's Corner

Don't Gamble at the Expense of Others

BY CHAPLAIN WALLACE M. HALE

Man has always had a tendency to dream of getting something for nothing. The story of a poor Cinderella who married a prince or an ordinary young man who suddenly became wealthy is as continuous today as it was in the past. Nobody stops to consider the fact that Cinderella might have been a terribly unhappy girl, because a prince who married a girl only for her beauty would probably have tired of her particular type of beauty after a time. A young man who became wealthy overnight might not have found happiness, but might now have more trouble than if he had remained poor.

Actually, we have put the cart before the horse. The only reason for money or power is that these things might be used profitably by us, and a man who becomes a slave to his money or a dictator who is not satisfied with his power is among the unhappiest of men. We are day-dreamers. Most of us think in terms of winning a hundred dollars by the turn of a card, or by a lucky telephone call, or by winning twenty thousand dollars on a give-away program, or by putting in a nickel or a dime and "hitting the jack pot". The only reason for these things is that we can suddenly get something without working for it.

I have heard men say that life is a gamble, and that when a farmer plants peas, he is taking a chance. But these chances are not at somebody else's expense. These are legitimate risks that are involved in living. But when we win money any other way, it comes out of somebody else's pocket, and it means that somebody else's children do not have as much to eat or to wear as they would if I had not "struck it rich." The way to earn money is to work for it—to take legitimate risks that are at my own expense and to keep up steady saving day by day in order that at the end of life, when my mind is no longer keen, I will have security. I believe it is wrong to ask anybody else to furnish our security, because it is a human attribute to lay away for rainy days and to be able to eat as well during the last part of the month as we did at the first.

If a man saved two dollars a day and invested it in some common security at three per cent, at the end of the normal life he would have accumulated some thirty thousand dollars. The reason most of us cannot save is that we live above our incomes. We know how much money we make each month, and we spend all of it or more. The only alternative is to "strike it rich," to "hit the jack pot," or day-dream ourselves into old age with a hope that, when our earning capacity is depleted, we will be able to manage somehow.

Your Red Cross Medical Social Workers Solve Problems

By MURRAY E. HILL

As the old adage goes, "The best laid plans of mice and men often go awry." What do we do when this happens to us? It isn't always easy to solve through problems, and if there is someone with whom we can discuss them our worries might be lessened. We do not want too much advice, for most of us want to, and do, solve our own problems. However, oftentimes we need an interested, understanding person who can help us think through all the angles of a problem and assist us in finding a solution.

Red Cross, realizing this to be true, places medical social workers in a military hospital so that they can help patients with their problems. Very few of us can play the game of life alone—it requires teamwork. The same applies to recovering from an illness. A team is needed to help the patient get well. Red Cross medical social workers are part of the team; they work in close union with the doctor and nurse to achieve one goal—the patient's recovery.

Somehow illness seems to magnify the simplest problem. When we are ill, we have more time to think about problems, which, if we were well, would be taken in our stride. Here again the trained social worker steps in. She is willing to share the problem with the patient and sharing a problem as well as facing it squarely, can do much to alleviate worry. Together, the patient and social worker attempt to find a solution—whether it is a financial problem, concern over a sick relative or obstacle to be met in civilian life because of a disability.

Many of you will never be patients in a hospital, but for those who are, the medical social workers will be available and ready to offer Red Cross services.

The Story of Agness Underwood

Newspaperwoman by Agness Underwood. Harper & Brothers, New York, publishers.

BY D. W. SCHAEFER

In early November, 1918, a pudgy, bewildered, 15-year-old girl from a small Indiana town traded the streets of San Francisco. She had less than a dollar in her purse, and all she wanted was a place to go. There were no thoughts in the mind of Agness Underwood then which were even remotely concerned with a newspaper unless the utilitarian one of warmth occurred to her.

Today, more than thirty years later, the same Agness Underwood is city editor of the Los Angeles "Herald-Express."

Her early period in San Francisco was limited to a struggle for existence. She somehow found joy in that existence. She married and a family was soon part of her responsibilities.

It was to aid her husband in shouldering those responsibilities that she took a job with the now defunct Los Angeles "Record" as a part time switchboard operator. Professional feeling about a woman working for a newspaper in the 'twenties was roughly equivalent to the first female welder before the United States became involved in the recent war. But "Aggie," as she is known by police, judiciary and certain of the press in Los Angeles, knew what she wanted. And the formula she used to get it was work and more work and always being herself.

The quality of having a strong stomach also helped her. When stomachs of the more seasoned, ostensibly stronger, male reporters quailed and retched, Miss Underwood could stay and see a story through.

The recent "Black Dahlia" murder, full details of which have never been printed in the newspapers, had need for the strongest stomach and that Miss Underwood covered it and covered it well, to make national headlines, speaks well for her capacity to keep her digestive balance.

The murders and intrigues which happen in the 4,000-odd square miles which comprise Los Angeles county has been the source of many national news stories. "Newspaperwoman" is a lively book. It is not for children or even possibly the weak-stomached. But it is good writing and is certainly recommended reading.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

TAKE ONE FALSE STEP with William Powell, Shelley Winters and Marsha Hunt. His false step was meeting a blonde in a bar. When she disappears, Professor William Powell becomes involved in a briskly paced mixture of melodrama and comedy before he can clear himself of murder. Recommended for adult.

JOHNNY ALLEGRO, with George Raft and Nina Foch. A reformed criminal, is persuaded by a Treasury department agent to help track down a giant counterfeit ring. Recommended for adult.

BLACK MAGIC with Orson Welles and Nancy Guild. The power of hypnotism was almost unknown in the 18th century, and the scheming Cagliostro takes full advantage of the ignorance and superstition of the people to build his own power and influence by means of this "black magic". Recommended for family.

LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINING with June Haver and Ray Bolger. This is the story of the late Marilyn Miller, tracing her career from her first impromptu stage appearance in vaudeville on up through Broadway musicals and the Ziegfeld Follies. Recommended for family.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT with Joel McCrea and Laraine Day. A New York police reporter is sent abroad by his editor, irate at the lack of a real understanding of news, to find out what is happening behind the scenes.

To Amuse You Today

A champion athlete was in bed with a fever. "How's my temperature, Doc?" he wanted to know. "A hundred and one," replied the doctor. "Swell," said the athlete. "What's the world record?"
Singer: "Don't you like my voice?"
Accompanist (sadly): "Madam, I have played on the white keys, and I have played on the black keys—but you won't sit on the keys!"
All the gals tote cases, Designed for making up their faces. I wish they had some other kind, Designed for making up their minds.
"Did you give your wife a lecture on economy?" asked the friend of the brand-new bridegroom. "I did," was the grim reply. "I gave up week-end golf and started a vegetable garden."
Teacher: "Who was the greatest of all inventors?"
Johnny: "Edison."
Teacher: "And why?"
Johnny: "He invented the phonograph so people would sit up all night and use his electric lights."
"Pardon me, does this train stop at Tenth street?"
"Yes, watch me and get off one station before I do."
"Thank you."
CO: "I'd like to talk with someone with a little authority here."
Ret.: "In your man air—I've got as little authority around here as anyone."
Overheard in the PX: "I stood in line for over an hour yesterday."
"Don't know. It was all gone by the time I got to the counter."
Father: "Don't you think our son got his intelligence from me?"
Mother: "He must have. I still have mine."
Cpl.: "Do you think it's possible for any woman to keep a secret?"
Sgt.: "Sure—my wife and I decide to have a picnic on several weeks before she told me about it."
Visitor: "Are you the executive officer? I have a grandson serving at this base."
Executive Officer: "Yes madam, but he's away on leave just now—attend your funeral."
Boston Street Manager: "Did you take any money out of the cash drawer last night?"
Clerk: "Yes, I had to borrow my car fare home."
Manager: "And since when have you lived in Los Angeles?"
Passer-by: "Digging out holes."
Laborer: "No, ma'am. I'm digging out dirt and leaving the holes."

MRS. FRANK B. LEE... ARC Auxiliary chairman.

Post Red Cross Auxiliary Reviews Year's Activities

The final meeting under the present administration of the Fort Benning Red Cross Auxiliary was held in the quarters of Mrs. Frank B. Lee, chairman, on June 7. The slate was presented by the nominating committee consisting of Mrs. M. Crawford, Mrs. Gilbert Collier, and Mrs. Frank Lee. The following officers were elected and will take office July 1.

Mrs. O. P. Newman, chairman, Mrs. E. O. Gibson, vice chairman, and Mrs. J. W. Keith, secretary.

Nothing officers are Mrs. Frank Lee, chairman, Mrs. H. Van Vliet, Jr., vice chairman and Mrs. W. A. Duncan, secretary.

Mrs. Lee reviewed the year's work of the various committees and commended the members each for the splendid cooperation of all who so generously gave of their time and energy in making this an outstanding year for the activities of the Fort Benning chapter of the American Red Cross.

Members of the First Aid and Safety committee met with Mr. Murray Hill at the Red Cross office to outline the program for training in first aid and water safety. An appeal was made for instructors and for giving instructors training course to those holding a first aid certificate. The Motor corps completed its first aid course under the direction of Mrs. Shaw, George, representative from the local Red Cross office.

The First Aid and Water Safety committee is comprised of a chairman, co-chairman and three members. Mrs. E. O. Gibson resigned as chairman because of illness in the family and was succeeded by the co-chairman, Lt. Ted Hines. Other members of the committee are Mrs. A. W. Palmer, John A. Summerlin and Mrs. Valeria Deslandes.

The Grey Ladies were organized under the direction of Mrs. Horace C. Gibson, and have served on the blood bank mobile unit; in decorating the hospital for holidays; and in helping to entertain at Red Cross parties for patients. Mrs. Gibson resigned as chairman because of transfer from the post, and was succeeded by Mrs. Carl E. Frisby to fill out her unexpired term. Volunteers who have helped in the various services of the Grey Ladies are: Mrs. Wallace Hale, Mrs. E. A. Callahan, Mrs. Martin V. Kidd, Mrs. J. H. Darragh, Mrs. J. W. Keith, Mrs. S. A. Wynn, Mrs. E. J. Ricker, Mrs. Roland Murphy, Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. K. L. Davis, Mrs. Mead J. Dugas, Mrs. John R. Darragh, Mrs. Perry Swindler, Mrs. H. W. Doty, Mrs. J. L. Campbell, Mrs. Choice Rucker and Mrs. L. T. Elliott.

The Arts and Skills committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. John L. Campbell, has taken active part in the Christmas program at the Station hospital, where a gift wrapping service was made available to patients. Decorating the Red Cross recreation room and hospital mess-halls for the holidays was also a service of this committee. Volunteers active in this work were Mrs. Roland E. Murphy, Mrs. J. S. Bradley, Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, Mrs. R. C. Micochion, Mrs. Frank E. Hankinson, Mrs. E. J. Ricker, Mrs. John Pray, Miss Marie Scott, and Mrs. Marilyn V. Kidd. Girl Scouts also gave assistance to the committee in the Christmas program, singing carols and filling out Christmas cards and addressing Christmas packages for the hospital patients.

All news items published about the Red Cross Auxiliary were clipped and entered in the historian's record, which was displayed to all members present at the May meeting. Mrs. Carl E. Frisby is the Auxiliary historian.

Members of the Red Cross Motor corps were honored at an impressive ceremony in the Red Cross building on Vibbert avenue March 1, when young women were presented pins by Mrs. J. S. Bradley, chairman, recognition committee, at the completion of their motor service course. The course consisted of 18 hours first aid, 4 hours safety and traffic instructions and 12

Lovely Afternoon Wedding Marks Lucas-Long Nuptials

Of interest to Fort Benning co-workers, friends and business associates is announcement of the marriage of Miss Willie Lee Lucas and Morris Cole Long, both employees of the Ordnance department.

The wedding was solemnized June 12 in the Wynton Methodist church, with the Rev. James R. Webb officiating. The service was read before an altar arrangement of smilax and fern, white gladioli and fever few, flanked by tall white tapers in cathedral candelabra.

A half-hour program of organ music was presented by William Wardlaw, while the guests assembled, and Mr. R. C. Johnson, choir director of St. Luke's Methodist church, Columbia, sang "Perfect Day," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Became."

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lucas of Columbia, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a lovely afternoon dress of white tulle with Irish lace trim; tiny white tulle shoes; a face hat, and other accessories were also of bridal white. The bride carried a white prayer book, centered with a purple-throated white orchid.

Mrs. W. L. Murrain, of Atlanta, sister of the bride, the former Margaret Lucas, at one time employed by the Ordnance, attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a smart frock of powder blue tulle, with pink accessories and a shoulder spray of carnations.

The groom, son of Mrs. Dessie Long of Smith Station, Ala., attended by his brother, Godwin O. Long, and the usher - groom-

Modern Favorites Program Feature

A group of modern favorites as recorded by Gladys Swarthout with the Victor Concert orchestra will be included on the record concert at the Main library Tuesday, June 28, at 8 p.m.

Far East Group Meets For Last Time Until Fall

Ladies of the Far East command group held their monthly luncheon in the Palm room of the Officers' club last Thursday.

The hostesses, Mrs. William A. Duncan, Mrs. Carl E. Frisby and Mrs. Robert H. Fell, achieved the ultimate in rare and unusual table settings for the last meeting of the season. Decorations featured an exotic Oriental theme. Large hand-painted table mats carried out attractive floral colors, with cheery-pink sprays of Nadeshiko flowers in a Yoko-Shugata-Ikebana design down the length of the table, and bowls of old Kutani in pastel colors, holding clusters of coral flowers, placed at each end. The centerpiece was a large Ron-Kel plant arrangement with pink candles in silver holders set on each side. Silver Japanese scenic leaf ash-trays at each plate completed a lovely table setting.

Those attending were Capt. C. Lewis, Mrs. A. C. Newkirk, Mrs. Roland E. Murphy, Mrs. Ernest Engelhardt, Mrs. E. K. Crowley and Mrs. W. D. Cothan.

Not until Oct. 20 will the group meet again, but it is anticipated that an even larger number of officers' wives will have been in the Far East command will join the group at its first meeting in the fall. Hostesses for the October meeting will be Mrs. A. C. Newkirk, Mrs. Roland E. Murphy and Mrs. Ernest Engelhardt.

Charlotte Swindler Weds Lt. Webber in TIC Chapel

One of the important weddings of the summer season took place Friday afternoon in the Infantry Center chapel, when Miss Charlotte Swindler, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Perry D. Swindler, was married to Lt. Kenneth E. Webber, Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Webber, of Washington, D. C., by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale.

The service was read before an altar banked with large white daisies interspersed with fernery, and flanked by tall white tapers in cathedral candleabra.

Mrs. Dee W. Pettigrew, of Los Angeles, Calif., sister of the bride, served as her matron of honor, and a vow made in childhood, to sing at her sister's wedding wherever she might be, was consummated when she sang "Because" and "At Dawning" during the program of nuptial music. Young Benningites Corner Girl Scouts

The Fort Benning Girl Scouts, Brownies, Junior Scouts and Senior Scout leaders together with Scout leaders and mothers who spent the week of June 8-11 at the Girl Scout camp on Upton creek are back home again with fond memories of camp week.

Parents can well be proud of their little Benningites for they were a shining example to all they did all that was expected of them and a little more, and they won top honors for neatest dressing rooms.

Popular Post Debutante Married On Anniversary Of Parents' Wedding

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene of one of the loveliest June weddings last week when Miss Barbara Ann Miller, popular post debutante and daughter of Col. and Mrs. Maurice L. Miller, became the bride of Lt. Edward Ansel White, son of Maj. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Charles H. White of Carmel, California.

Chaplain (Maj.) Ralph H. Pugh performed the marriage ceremony before a large assemblage of white, gold and smilax, flanked by tall white tapers in cathedral candleabra.

A half-hour program of organ music was presented by John C. Miller while the guests assembled and included "My Hero" from the "Chocolate Soldier," "Beulah" and other selections. Soft strains of music formed the background for the marriage service.

On Friday night the Scouts had a social affair around a ceremonial fire, when the bride was burning white satin wedding gown, with full skirt lengthened to form a train and fashioned with a sheer yoke to the throat from an off-the-shoulder neckline of lace. The gown featured long, tight sleeves tapering to a Calla point over the wrists. Her headpiece was a halo crown with ruffled lace from which fell a finger-tip veil of illusion. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Attendants for the bride were Miss Maurice G. Miller, the bride's sister-in-law, attended her as matron of honor. Bridesmaids attended were Miss Helen Moore, Miss Charlotte Swindler and Mrs. Hugh F. T. Hoffman, Jr.

Col. Charles H. White, Jr., brother of the groom, acted as best man. Classmates of the groom who served him as usher-groomsmen, and formed the arch of sabers, were Lt. Hugh F. T. Hoffman, Jr., Lt. William Travis, Lt. John E. Watkins, Lt. James F. Walk, Lt. Robert M. Ward and Lt. John E. Watkins.

Mrs. Miller chose for her daughter's wedding a grey dress figured in pink accented by pink accessories. She wore a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. White, mother of the groom, wore a grey crepe and lace gown, accented by a green hat with pink rose trim. Her flowers were gardenias.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception at the Fort Benning Country Club. The bride's table was beautifully decorated. Tall white tapers burned in silver candleabra, the main attraction centered in the two large heart-shaped wedding cakes baked in the small ovens nearby. The bride's cake-cutting ceremony, when the bride cut her cake with her father's sword—the same sword her mother used at her wedding thirty-three years ago. The bride then passed the sword to her mother, who cut the second cake, once again using her husband's sword to cut a wedding cake this time on the 33rd anniversary of the wedding day, June 15, 1916.

Lt. White and his bride left for a honeymoon trip to Roddick Springs, Ga. They will then go to Carmel Calif. to await embarkment to Japan, the latter part of July.

For traveling the bride wore a white Palm Beach suit, with an off-white hat trimmed in cocoa brown. Other accessories were white. On her shoulder she wore a spray of bronze baby orchids.

Among the out-of-town guests were Maj. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Charles H. White of Carmel, Calif.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles H. White, Jr., and their daughter, Miss Lucy White of Washington, D. C.; Joseph J. Long, Jr., of Raleigh, N. C.

Non-Coms Hold Fish Fry At Third Battalion Club

In the rustic setting of the Third battalion's 15th Infantry regiment, Noncommissioned officers' club grounds last Saturday, members and guests gathered for a fish fry.

An improvised pit, lined with stones, was prepared, and on two supporting iron rods Sgt. 1st cl. Walter Brown, Sgt. 1st cl. Milton Denny and Sgt. James Jackson fried fish for a hungry crowd.

Jovial merry-making and dancing in the club house rounded out the evening's entertainment.

Members and guests in attendance were Sgt. and Mrs. March Worsham, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Robert Wintfield, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Antonio Flores, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Albert Jackson, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Nichols, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Rueben Randall, 1st

Bible School Closes Friday

The vacation Bible school, under the direction of the Infantry Center chaplain, will close tomorrow, with graduation exercises in the Children's school auditorium at 10 a. m.

According to Chaplain (Capt.) Harvey M. Hardin, assistant superintendent in charge of the Bible classes which started June 13, over 175 children have been enrolled in the various study groups. Mrs. Wallace M. Hale's primary class has the largest enrollment with 78 six, seven, and eight-year-olds.

From the vast files of the Infantry Center chapel's film library movies have been selected for daily showing. These included "Share the Ball," "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" and other nursery stories dear to the hearts of primary children; Bible stories and lesson stories in good behavior and unselfishness; a two-part serial based on the life of Esther; and the life and missionary journeys of Paul the Apostle.

All students have been bringing small offerings daily, and the fund accumulated will be turned over to the interdenominational orphanage in Columbus.

An invitation is extended to all parents, and others interested, to attend the graduation exercises Friday morning, at 10 a. m. in the Children's school auditorium. Following the assembly, students will exhibit completed work in handicraft to visitors.

Miss Price-Lt. Philip Day Vows Told In Impressive Ceremony At Post Chapel

In dignified and solemn splendor, Miss Virginia Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Warren Price, of Potosi, Kansas, became the bride of Lt. Philip Stevens Day, Jr., son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Philip Stevens Day of Washington, D. C., at a beautiful afternoon wedding in the Infantry center chapel last Saturday. Chaplain (Capt.) Robert F. Conis read the simple wedding service before an altar arrangement of tall white tapers in cathedral candleabra and exquisite floral decorations.

A half hour of organ music was presented by John C. Miller while the guests assembled and included the Sweetheart song, of the bride's sorority, and "Army Blue," one of the groom's favorites. Mrs. C. S. Valpey sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the program of nuptial music. Very soft strains of music furnished the background for the service, emphasizing the solemnity and enhancing the beauty of the wedding ceremony.

The bride, beautiful in the traditional slipper white satin wedding gown, designed with square neckline edged with seed pearls, and wearing a satin tiara with seed pearl trim, which supported the finger tip veil of illusion, entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a necklace and brooch belonging to her maternal grandmother, and carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid.

Miss Ruth Price, sister of the bride, attended her as maid of honor, while Miss Yolande Baker served as bridesmaid. Their gowns were pale blue and orchid organza, fashioned with full skirt and square neckline, and they carried bouquets of orchids and blue spill carnations.

The groom was attended by Lt. Jack F. Pierce, best man, Lt. Joe Seymour, groomsmen, while Lt. Mercer Doby and Lt. Eugene Forrester served as ushers.

The bride's mother chose navy blue sheer with pink accessories for her daughter's wedding, and she wore an orchid corsage.

The groom's mother wore a pink linen suit in pink accessories, and she too wore an orchid corsage.

On the wedding day, sister of the groom, kept the bride's book. Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in the Palm Room of the Officers' Club. In the receiving line were members of the wedding party, Col. and Mrs. A. C. Purvis

Troopers Edge Dragons In Airtight Hurling Duel

The Student Training regiment Airborne battalion ran into some rough going last Thursday night at Gowdy field before they were able to defeat the scrappy 15th Infantry regiment, 3-2 before a crowd of 2,000 spectators.

The 15th regiment Dragons missed their big opportunity in the last of the seventh tie or possibly win, the game. Eddie Baldwin led off in the inning with a long triple to center field and rode home as Len Strawthers slapped a single to left.

Sam Hall then sacrificed Strawthers to second, and Ted Memford hit a Texas-league double down the right field line with Strawthers being held up at third by the coach. The next two men went out on infield plays to C. Bass, Raymond J. Bernier, John S. Bailigi, Joseph P. Bohar, Terry L. Bessette, Edgar H. Barbee, James G. Caradonna, Bobby E. Champau, Glenn A. Dean, James E. Darden, James V. Jordan, Carroll D. Kidwell, Nicholas S. Mancini, Elmer A. McCarty, Robert J. McCord, Edward A. Mengenhausen, John G. Miller, Wright P. Morgan, Octavio R. Robyless, Jr., Richard A. Humphrey, Kenneth D. Schiele, Robert L. Sears, Carroll B. Short, Philip P. Sardoello, Donald C. Stevens, Thomas W. Hillman.

The STR opened the scoring in the third inning when Len Carey led off by working hurler Jim Shirley for a pass. Pitcher Ike Silcox followed with a line single to center and Bob Kinard scored both runners with a single to left center.

The Dragons countered in their half of the inning when Shirley walked and came in as Chuck Nichols blasted a triple into the center-field corner.

The Troopers talked to a 1-1 last run in the top of the seventh as Hen Griffin singled, stole second and came in on Norm Robinson's single to right center.

Ike Silcox went the route for the Troopers blowing six hits including a double and two triples. He struck out 15 batters and walked only two to better credit for the win.

Jim Shirley, 15th hurler, also gave up six hits including one double and struck out seven. Shirley also issued five free tickets and hit one batter.

Bob Kinard was the big ticket for the Troopers.

For the Troopers, driving in two runs, while Baldwin with a single and triple paced the Dragons.

Advanced from recruit to private, the following enlisted men of the 15th Infantry division, (ORC) is composed of civilians who, at least once a week, assemble as a unit to maintain a certain degree of efficiency in military functions.

Every summer, a two-week span of field duty is customary, during which time ORC men are attached to regular army units, similar in mission to their own.

The 322nd Tank battalion, which has headquarters at Knoxville, Tenn., is a reserve unit which is now a part of the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, Third Infantry division.

With the division outfit, the 322nd will receive the small-arms fire, as well as in field work with the 73rd's tanks. It will work with the division tankers. In charge of the 322nd is Lt. Col. D. Wood of Knoxville, and his command numbers 13 officers and 13 enlisted men.

Components of the 317th Military Police Battalion from Florida are currently undergoing MP's, taking up such points as criminal investigation work, pre-trial marshal procedure and military police operations.

The group numbers 12 enlisted under, the command of Lt. Col. Lewis Samuel Lyons, Preston Beach, Fourth reserve Field Artillery battalion, which is headquartered in Atlanta, Ga. has sent a delegation of 13 officers and five enlisted men to work with the 15th Field Artillery battalion, also a unit of the Third division.

The members of the 34th will be working with the 15th in the ninth, plus small-arms firing and map work. Maj. James E. DeVaughan of Atlanta, is in charge of the outfit.

Headquarters and Headquarters battery of the 318th Infantry training division artillery has sent a total of 32 men to Third Army headquarters to receive orientation on the up-to-date methods of division artillery.

Col. Harry T. Faulkner, of East Point, Ga., is in command of this group of Atlanta, and will supervise the men in their studies of forward observation, air liaison and special reconnaissance.

ORC Outfits Are Attached To RA Units

TIC Designates Specific Areas For Fireworks

In a move to prevent serious fires and injury during personnel on the July 4 (Independence day) this year, certain areas have been designated where fireworks may be displayed.

Blue polo field, the football field at Daughby stadium and Bradley drill field only may be used for fireworks if it has been announced by Infantry Center officials. The designation of fireworks in other areas of Fort Benning reservation will be prohibited except with specific permission of certain authorities.

Commanders of regiments and separate battalions or similar units, may designate a specific area where military personnel may use fireworks under the supervision of an officer. The post fire chief must be advised of the area approved by unit commanders.

Airborne Battalion Head Finishes Glider Course

Lt. Col. Shields Warren, Jr., veteran parachute jumper who has commanded the Airborne Battalion of the Student Training regiment for the past year, recently graduated from glider school here.

A member of West Point's class of 1939, Colonel Warren spent his first three years of active duty with the 19th Infantry regiment at Scofield Barracks, N. H., was assigned in 1942 to Camp Robinson, Ark., and entered parachute school in March, 1943. Following a jump training he was assigned to the 508th, and returned to the United States the following year to attend a school on Latin American affairs.

He was assigned as assistant military attache to Bogota, Columbia, in September, 1946, and remained there until the death of his father called him home in May, 1947. He arrived at Fort Benning in June, 1947, and was assigned to the General Subjects section of the Infantry School. The next year joined the staff of the Student Training regiment as executive officer, and received his present assignment last August.

Enlisted promotions in Company F, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, were revealed by unit officials.

A record low of three venereal disease cases and six courtmartial in the past seven years has been compiled by the 52nd Medical battalion.

Records show that the unit, formerly Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, 504th Medical group, had only three cases of venereal disease, from July 29, 1942, to June 6, this year. This period included service in Europe during World War II.

Three privates, being trained in public information under the army's new career guidance plan, are living and working in Columbus as civilians during their 90-day period of practical experience.

They are Pvt. Paul Hoskins, working as a reporter on The Columbus Enquirer; Pat Murphy, doing similar work on The Ledger, and Jack O'Lone, who is learning general radio work with Station WRBL.

Previous to being assigned to Columbus, the men were given a six-week course at the Public Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. Upon completion of the practical training period in the city, they will be assigned to army public information offices.

The public information career guidance program is one of several programs being introduced under the army's Career Guidance Plan.

The program is being adopted to establish in the army an orderly and systematic plan of assignment, training and promotion for enlisted men and warrant officers.

First introduced last year in the food service field, the career field plan has branched out to include the infantry, artillery and armored cavalry, and eventually will be adopted for all army personnel.

Under the system, all men will be trained in particular occupational specialties, there will be uniformity of grade assignments in all branches, and promotion will be governed by competitive examinations given for the various grades in each specialty.

total a musical strength of 110, followed the last parading element from the field.

As the military march faded away, aircraft buzzed the field. Six planes swooped down over the field and were followed by two helicopters.

On the reviewing line with General Clark was a group of national press representatives who attended last week's joint orientation conference.

Units participating in the parade were the first, second, third and provisional battalions of the 30th Infantry regiment; the first, second, third and provisional battalions of the 10th Infantry regiment; the 6th Field Artillery battalion; the 41st Field Artillery battalion; the 899th Armored Field Artillery battalion; the 3rd Heavy Tank battalion; the 10th Engineer Battalion; Headquarters company 1st Infantry division; the 3rd Quartermaster company; the 703rd Ordnance company; the 7th Chemical company; the 3rd Division band and the 72nd Army band.

villian and full military status. Accordingly, all recruits who have been fully trained and indoctrinated will be automatically advanced to private.

Men incapable of carrying the duties and responsibilities of a higher grade at present will either receive additional training or will be discharged.

One exception to the directive will be the case of an enlisted man reduced to the grade of recruit. In such instances subsequent promotion will come in the direction of the unit commander.

Pay Bill

bill and the percentage boost for colonels would drop from 25 to 30.

Recruits would continue to receive their base pay of $75 a month for their first four months in the army, when they would automatically receive $80.

Family allowances will be continued under the new bill for enlisted men throughout their current enlistment. They would be cut out entirely, however, after July, 1952.

Men engaged in hazardous duties would continue receiving additional pay, providing for $100 a month for commissioned paratroopers and $75 a month for enlisted men with similar assignments.

Foreign service bonuses for officers would be eliminated but enlisted personnel serving overseas would get from eight dollars to $22 a month extra, depending upon their grade.

Longevity pay for engineers would no longer be figured at five percent for each three years of service, but would be figured on a pay period basis similar to the one now in effect for officers.

Officers of all ranks would receive $45 a month subsistence allowance and from $75 to $100 per month quarters allowance depending on their number of dependents. Without dependents officers' quarters allowance will range from $60 to $120 a month.

Subsistence rates for enlisted men would continue to be computed at $1.50 a day for men in all grades, and their quarters allowance would range from $45 a month to $67.50 for those who elect not to draw dependency benefits.

Five ASU Enlisted Men Are Promoted

Five enlisted men of the Area Service unit Provisional group were promoted recently.

Promoted from the first class to corporal were Gus Flanagan, Jackson Kidd and Samuel Busby all of the 66th Transportation Truck company and Everett Murphy and George W. Henry, both of the 46th Quartermasters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1.

The public information officer also explained the duties of the Army with its civilian chiefs that guard against military despotism in America.

Four officers then participated in a round table discussion, with Lt. Amos, Jr., assistant director of the civilian member of Commerce, as moderator.

Lt. R. C. Durham of the information and education office sponsored by the Army and operated by the members of the organization.

Cpl. Rudolph Mox, one of three enlisted men participating in the discussion, told of his personal experience, as did Pvt. John A. Konyar, a member of one of the 7th Heavy Tank battalions, and Pvt. Pat Murphy, who is being given special career training by the Army.

Lt. Col. Wallace M. Hale, chief chaplain, told the group that untrained young men go into the Army with no idea of what the Army cannot give them to him in one year.

Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, special services officer, recommended that the recreational facilities made available at Fort Benning for its personnel, including the athletic clubs and the athletic programs.

The Army's career advancement program was explained by Lt. Col. A. C. Tilson, who is in charge of tests given Army personnel to determine where they can best serve.

He also explained promotions and said that a recruit can become a master sergeant in four years and nine months, or he can become an officer if he can qualify.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry School, who attended the full course, welcomed the group to Fort Benning.

Following that the soldier population of the post amounts to 28,000, with some 10,000 of these being the general population of Fort Benning, he considered a "little town."

Some of the suggestions made during the discussion included a plea from J. W. Woodruff, Jr., Chamber of Commerce, Columbus, Ga., that the Army should be more interested in the civilian community.

Speaking particularly about merchants, Mr. Woodruff declared that the Army should have a potential friend who pays a merchant not to be so business-like.

He urged civilians to boost Columbus to be hospitable to the points of interest here, and to let their gripes about personal experiences with the Army.

Mr. Woodruff also emphasized the importance of making Army wives feel at home when they shop in Columbus.

Turning then to the civilian and military council, he said that it was the first such organization and has served as a pattern for councils in other military communities.

The Rev. Edwin J. Grimes, president of the Columbus "Phenix" college, urged that the Army should be more interested in the civilian community.

Service men need the home at peace-time as they did during the war, the minister declared. He also said that the Army should be more interested in the civilian community as they should.

In the absence of Mayor Homer D. Cobb of Phenix City and Mayor Walter A. Richards of Columbus, Col. George A. Willman of Columbus spoke in behalf of a round table discussion in the interest of the government of the two cities.

Mr. Willman discussed facilities in Columbus as they affect the health and welfare of military personnel and read a statement from Mayor Richards on certain facilities Columbus offers.

Academic Men Capture Honors In Pistol, Rifle

The Infantry Center open rifle and pistol competition was a close last week with the Academic department of the Infantry Center winning away top honors in every class.

In the .22-caliber individual rifle event, the top four places were taken by the members of the Academic department, Maj. Robert H. Larson winning the championship with a score of 444 out of a possible 500.

Following closely behind him were Sgt. 1st-cl. Daniel Huntley, with 443 out of 500; Sgt. James W. Well at 442; and Pvt. Tom Perry Swindler, with 419.

Maj. Larson received a trophy in recognition of his marksmanship, and the other top-scoring rifers were awarded medals.

In the .22-caliber (M-1) individual rifle event, the top four places were taken by members of the 15th Infantry regiment of the fourth and fifth places in this competition.

Sergeant Huntley carried away the trophy for top honors in the M-1 competition with a score of 227 out of a possible 250.

Sgt. Ferdinand Eysel drew second place honors, and was followed by Sgt. 1st-cl. Max Eysel, with 216 and Pvt. Edward Murr of the 15th Infantry.

In addition to the trophy which Sergeant Huntley received, medals were awarded the other high scorers.

In the .45-caliber individual pistol tourney, the high man was Colonel Swindler, who traveled to Fort Bragg, N.C., later to represent Fort Benning in the Army pistol meet. Colonel Swindler's score was 284 out of 300.

Following the victor were Maj. Charles E. King, 1st-cl. Col. J. C. Drain, 2nd, and Sgt. 1st-cl. Charles Brown, 2nd. All of these men are members of the Academic department team.

"Skits And Bits" To Play 17 Benning Engagements

The cast of the Third Army soldier shows "Skits and Bits" arrived here today for a 10-day tour of recreational installations at Fort Benning. Infantry Center special service officials have announced, Bremerhaven, Germany.

The show has been in rehearsal at Third Army headquarters, Fort Monmouth, Ga., under the direction of Miss Skippy Lynn, Third Army soldier show technician.

The troupe will give performances at hospital recreation halls and wards, service clubs, officer and noncommissioned officer clubs, regimental or unit organizations and theaters here, as well as at the MCA and USO clubs in Columbus.

"Skits and Bits" is the third soldier show to be produced by the Army since the end of World War II and is under the management of Sgt. Robert Berger.

The show will leave here July 4 for a tour of Camp Gordon, Ga., after 17 performances.

Tomorrow night there will be two shows, one at the ROTC service club No. 2 at 8 p.m. and one at the Pine Lodge noncommissioned officer's club at 9:30 p.m.

Saturday the show will be given at 8:45 p.m. at the Negro MCA in Columbus and at 9:30 p.m. at the Lawson field noncommissioned officer's club.

On Sunday there will be a show at the Main Post Noncommissioned Officer's club at 8:30 p.m.

Two members of the cast are William R. Feitz, pianist and actor, and Anthony Plotino, who performs as an Italian street singer.

Other members of the cast are Sgt. 1st-cl. Ernest Jones, pianist and actor, from Fort Bragg, N.C., and William R. Feitz, pianist and actor, from Fort Jackson, S. C.

Speed Warning Issued by Post Safety Council

Speed kills—take it easy. With this warning a post-wide traffic safety program, with emphasis on unsafe speeds, was announced this week by Col. Joseph A. Nichols, president of the Infantry Center safety council.

According to Colonel Nichols, too much speed is a contributing factor in nearly all major traffic accidents involving Benning personnel. From a nationwide standpoint, one out of every three fatal traffic accidents is caused by speeding.

"In every driver there should be a sense of responsibility toward his driving," Colonel Nichols said, "and a consciousness of speed limit if you wish, but there should be a realization that posted speed limits should be a guide. Conditions frequently make them too high for safety," Colonel Nichols pointed out.

"Take it easy when you drive," Colonel Nichols cautioned, "the minute you might save a fraction of the life you risk by speeding is never worth a moment's delay. The safety present philosophy is to drive to three men."

Other traffic, the road surface, the driver's physical condition and countless other factors must be taken into account. Posted speed limits should be a guide. Conditions frequently make them too high for safety," Colonel Nichols pointed out.

The Third Signal company has been allotted a quota of four men, and the Third Military Police company, the 703rd Ordnance company, the Third Quartermaster company and the Third Reconnaissance company have received authority to send up to three men.

St. Augustine Rest Camp Quotas Set For Division

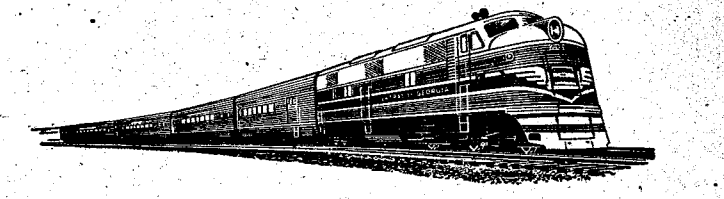

The combined total of Third Infantry division men who will visit the army rest camp in St. Augustine, Fla., beginning July 1, will be 120 men per week, authorities have announced.

Each unit of the Third division will be allotted a quota of men each week, ranging according to the size of the unit, from one to 35 men.

America's Greatest Holiday

Next Monday Americans will celebrate the greatest national holiday in our history, Independence Day, or the Fourth of July as it is commonly known. It was on that day 173 years ago that 56 men affixed their signatures to a piece of parchment which declared that this nation would be forever free of the tyrant's yoke...

We have come a long way since July 4, 1776. We have proven to those nations who scoffed at our "infantile" desire to be free that we could be free. We have proven to those who thought our form of government doomed to failure that ours is the best the world has ever known.

Our experiment in democracy was the signal for a mass exodus of oppressed peoples from Europe to the welcoming shores of America. Here thousands have found refuge from the misery of their former existence.

They migrated to America looking for a chance for freedom from want, freedom from fear, freedom from oppression, freedom from religious persecution. They came here for a chance to prove that, regardless of social position, every man has a right to the four freedoms.

They found all these freedoms in America—freedoms which we today take for granted—but more than that they found a new way of life, the democratic way, the American way.

It has taken the courage, the initiative, the intelligence and the capabilities of all these races and all these nationalities to keep America great. But we must always be on the alert for subversive groups, whose purpose is to destroy the democracy Americans have fought and died for.

Despite the minorities, who would substitute a police state for our democracy, we feel confident of the future of America because here people have found the four basic freedoms to which all mankind has a right.

Because of every true American's conviction that our type of democracy is the best possible form of government, there will, to paraphrase the British, always be an American. Although peaceloving by instinct and desire, when our freedom is endangered, we have always defended, and will always defend, those things we hold dear with the same spirit our forefathers displayed in '76.

Test Reaction Time of Vehicle Drivers

The Army Medical Center at Washington has been using a newly-developed instrument known as a detonator in testing the reaction time of army vehicle drivers. The device works from the car's braking system, commencing action when a shot is fired. It then records the actual time and distance necessary for the driver to bring the car to a complete stop.

New army-air force directives pertaining to voting by personnel of these services contain the information that the following states have no elections scheduled for the remainder of 1949: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Hawaii. No information was received from Colorado, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Wyoming, and Alaska.

Bible as a Source of Military Information

How many of us ever think of the Bible as a source of military information? The Old Testament contains some outstanding illustrations of basic military principles. Reconnaissance is aptly illustrated by the story of the spies as found in Numbers, chapter 13 and 14. The spies were given a definite mission and even their names are recorded. They were to see whether the land was good or bad, find out the strength of the people and their cities, and whether the people lived in tents or strongholds.

Swimming Facts Worthy of Consideration

Since this is vacation time and swimming time, it is logical that swimming and bathing take on an important aspect in our daily lives. The following facts are worthy of your thoughtful consideration: An average of 30 persons a day are drowned during the months of May, June, July, and August. Drowning is the fourth leading cause of accidental death for all ages. It is outranked only by motor vehicle accidents, falls, and burns. Drownings are the second leading cause of accidental death among persons from five to 24 years of age. The drowning rate in the United States was lowered seven percent in 1948 over 1947. There were 6,900 persons drowned in this country in 1948. Of the 6,900 drownings in this country last year, 90 percent occurred during May, June, July, and August. Of the 80,000,000 Americans who go "swimming" each year, only seven percent

Major Gen. Edmond H. Leavay, army Comptroller, will retire on June 30, after 21 years of active service. No additional Air Force planes or units will be ordered to England to increase the 8,000 personnel of the Third Air division on duty there. A few administrative units will be shipped, however, to increase the strength of various undermanned organizations.

The House Armed Services Committee has reported favorably a bill to relieve approximately 4,000 non-regular armed services officers from repayment of pay received after recall to active duty for medical treatment or observation. The privilege extended to military personnel of mailing duty-free gift packages up to $50 value from foreign stations, will expire June 30. After that date duty will be collected and may not be prepaid by the sender.

THE DOOLINS OF OKLAHOMA with Randolph Scott and George Macready. After a life of holding up banks and stagecoaches Bill Doolin learns that the past can't be hidden and that the law, as represented by a sheriff's posse, eventually catches up with a gunman. Recommended for family.

KAZAN with Stephen Dunne and Lois Maxwell. A valuable sled dog goes wild in the Canadian woods, falls into the hands of brutal masters, and is finally rescued and regenerated by kindness and understanding. Recommended for family.

HOLD THAT BABY with Lee Gorcery and Huntz Hall. The Boyer Boys go into the laundry business and all goes well until they find a baby hidden in the clothes, while its mother, aunts, gangsters and the law are all trying to get custody of the child. Recommended for family.

THE HOUSE OF STRANGERS with Edward G. Robinson, Susan Hayward and Richard Conte. The unyielding nature and slave-driving tactics of a dime-store father build up a hatred in his four sons that nearly destroys the family. Recommended for adult.

THE RED MENACE with Robert Rockwell and Betty Lou Gerson. No punches are pulled in this frank presentation of communism and the activities of party zealots as they attempt to undermine American democracy. Recommended for family.

To Amuse You Today

A burn, picked up for vagrancy, was told to prepare for a bath. "I can't say that," he replied wearily, "I've never heard of a bath before."

Police officer: "Of course, water." "How long has it been since you've taken a bath?" "Burns, sir, I've never been arrested before!"

Marriage Consultant: "You must remember that marriage is a matter of give and take." Disgruntled Husband: "Yeah, but what she's got to give, I can't take."

Wife: "So you think some of my expenses are silly? Well, so happens I need elbow cream to make me beautiful. There never was a beautiful woman that didn't use elbow cream." Sergeant: "Yeah? What about Venus De Milo?"

Housewife: (over back fence) "Your story reminds me of a cat I had once. I wanted to be king of the house."
Gossip-mate: "What did you do?"
Housewife: "I crowed him."

An old-fashioned kitchen in one with a cook in it. It was after the race and the owner was giving the jockey a dressing down. "A fine jockey you are," he said. "Didn't tell you distinctly to come away with a rush at the corner? Why didn't you do so?" "Well," retorted the rider tartly, "you see it didn't seem quite fit to leave 'emose behind."

Two judges were arrested for speeding. When they arrived in court, no other judge was present, so they first judge went up on the bench and said: "You are charged with exceeding the speed limit, how do you plead?" "Guiltily," was the answer.

"You are hereby fined five dollars." Then they changed places and again the judge was exceeding the speed limit. "Hrm," said the other judge. "These cases are becoming far too numerous. This is the second case of this sort we've had this morning. I hereby fine you ten dollars or ten days in jail."

Our lips almost met— I had been so close to you. For my heart held doubts, What about your past? You were so close to me, And I gave you up; You had lipstick stains, And I was so close to you. She shut off the record player and turned excitedly to her father.

"Daddy!" she exclaimed. "That is the latest singing record. Did you ever hear anything so wonderful?"

On the Bookshelf

Story of Wartime London

The Heat of the Day by Elizabeth Bowen. Alfred A. Knopf, New York, Publisher.

By D. W. SCHAEFER

This book might in a sense be termed morbid, in the contemporary lists of best-seller fiction, however, the trend seems to be to unwrap the lives of people layer by layer and expose them to the public, so "The Heat of the Day" must be examined from that point of view in order to be estimated fairly.

Somehow, it has always struck this reviewer that the modern novel, while it does stress the emotional play of human beings, somehow misses the deeper, tender understanding of the frailty of emotions which the serious novelists of the past seemed to have grasped so well, and leaves a taste of falseness or badness as though one had been perusing fascinatedly at the sordid side of humanity through a slit in the venetian blinds.

This is what we found in "The Heat of the Day". The book opens with the introduction of a rather insipid, vague character named Louie Lewis, a concert pianist at a concert in London during the early part of World War II. The man, identified in the book until the last chapters only as Harrison, is sitting, thinking to the accompaniment of the music.

We do not learn that they are vile thoughts or preternaturally evil thoughts, but in the following chapters we find that he has been thinking of ways and means whereby he can force a woman he desires, Stella Rodney, to give up her association with Robert Kowley, her paramour, and employed by the British government in a position of trust, and in turn become his mistress.

He hopes to perform this somewhat coldblooded feat by telling Stella that unless she gives in to his desires he will inform on Robert who has been found guilty of espionage by British counter-intelligence. Harrison, one of the British counterparts, has the information which will condemn Robert and uses it as a bribe.

The vicissitudes Stella and Robert endure while trying to solve their dilemma are interesting enough, and it is quite good reading. The characters are skillfully drawn, if not always believable, and the denouement is quite effective.

Robert loses his life ostensibly by accident. Harrison has played a sinister part in the "accident", but is never brought to account for it.

After the death of Robert, Harrison at last goes to Stella just as she is broken enough in spirit to surrender to him. The book closes with Louie Lewis, who has reentered the stage as an observer of what really happened at Robert's death, living out her life with the baby she has finally managed to have and gaining some sense of existence.

The word painting of the background of London and Ireland is sometimes good, particularly in the description of unimportant, anonymous people who were engaged in frantically a bit of personal peace in the blitz-torn country of England.

The book is worth reading, as is almost every book. But there are too many better books available. Miss Bowen is good, but should be better.

Summer-McPhail Nuptials Held In Ceremony At Home

Miss Dorothy Sumner became the bride of 2-Sgt. Robert S. McPhail of Lawson at Fort base and Ocilla, Georgia, recently at her home in Columbus. The Rev. Mack Anthon, performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of close friends and relatives.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, daisies and Queen Anne's lace. The ceremony was read before an improvised altar banked with fern, centered with white gladioli, tube roses and daisies, and flanked by seven branch candelabras with tall white tapers.

Mrs. Clifford Hammock presented a program of nuptial music. Her selections included "Dawning" and "One Alone." "Always" was played softly during the ceremony.

Miss Betty Fort was maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a pale pink marquisette gown with triple bands outlining the "V" neck and forming a deep V at the waist in the back. She wore a large picture hat and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and pink satin leaves.

Edwin McPhail, brother of the groom, attended him as best man.

The bride was radiantly lovely in gown of ivory satin, made with an off-the-shoulder yoke of Chantilly lace, fitted bodice and long skirt that came to points at the hands, and a full skirt that lengthened to form a train. Her finger ring set of bridal illusion was held in place by a coronet of Chantilly lace.

Her only ornament was a lavender of pink sapphire and pearls, belonging to her aunt, Miss Ethel Wood. She carried a white prayer book centered with garland and the shower streamers with lilies of the valley and tube roses fell to the hem of her dress.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Young Benningites Corner Boy Scouts

Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson was among the fathers who attended the Boy Scout camp on June 11. They brought their own lunch, generally something to cook in the open, and prepared and ate their lunches by patrol groups.

Fathers and sons became better acquainted with each other and with other fathers and sons, and plans were talked about for the improvements of the cabin and grounds. Some fathers demonstrated their scouting abilities and Scouts proudly displayed their scouting knowledge for the benefit of their fathers. A large crowd attended the picnic.

Cub Scouts

The Cubs, together with den chiefs and den fathers, left for the Boy Scout camp on Upatoi creek last Sunday for a week's camping.

Grey Ladies Receive Pins

Grey ladies of the Fort Benning Red Cross auxiliary were presented with pins by Mrs. E. J. Ricker, Mrs. John Darrah and Mrs. H. W. Doty, at an impressive ceremony in the Red Cross building at 10 a.m., June 20.

Many hours of labor were donated by these ladies who volunteered their time and efforts during the year. Their activities included work on the blood bank drive, decorating the hospital for holidays, and helping to entertain at Red Cross parties for patients.

Mr. Ralph George, assistant field director of the American Red Cross at Fort Benning, thanked the women for their cooperation with the Red Cross.

Those receiving pins were Mrs. Roland E. Murphy, Mrs. E. J. Ricker, Mrs. John H. Darrah, Mrs. H. W. Doty, Miss Julia Nolan, ARC, Mrs. Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Van Vliet, vice chairman of the auxiliary, and Miss Mary Evelyn Fortune, ARC. Mrs. Bradley, in her presentation address, thanked the ladies on behalf of the auxiliary for their "splendid work."

Other Grey ladies who will receive pins, but who were not present at the June 20th meeting, are Mrs. Perry D. Swinger, Mrs. William A. Duncan, secretary; Miss Marjorie Scott, Mrs. E. A. Cullahan, Mrs. J. W. Keith, Mrs. S. A. Wynn, Mrs. Wallace M. Haie, Mrs. K. L. Davis, and Mrs. M. J. Dugas, and Mrs. Marlin V. Kidd.

Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, chairman of the Grey ladies, thanked them for their willing cooperation.

Mrs. Van Vliet, vice chairman of the Auxiliary, spoke in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Frank M. Lee, expressing appreciation for their cooperation with her.

Miss Fortune expressed appreciation for their assistance in the entertainment program of the Red Cross recreation hall at Station hospital.

Vast Scope of Combat Career Fields Outlined

The Army is going to streamline its promotion and reassignment policies in its three combat arms, according to recently published regulations.

Career field plans will affect soldiers of the infantry, artillery and mechanized cavalry. The infantry career field plan, along with artillery and mechanized cavalry plans, are explained in detail in infantry career field regulations, being studied by training personnel and unit commanders here.

These three fields, according to the regulations, have been unaltered since April 29, 1949, and it is expected that the plan will be completely installed by Sept. 1.

The first step in the switch from the old to the new will be period of adjustment promotions, designation of new MOSs, and reassigning, expected to last to Sept. 1. Following this process, regular job tests will be given qualified men.

The adjustment period was originally slated to end July 1, but was held up because of a delay in the completion of regulations.

The conversion and assignment of MOS numbers to be a job in itself. A series of MOSs in each field have been abolished and new MOSs substituted within the career fields. These new MOSs are designed to apply to not one particular weapon, but to make the soldier a more versatile fighting man, familiar with a group of weapons.

Although most MOSs tend to broaden a soldier's field of qualifications, some changes abolish catch-all MOSs, such as administrative NCO.

It is particularly stressed, that men will be assigned to MOSs in the three fields unless they meet the increased physical qualifications.

New MOS numbers follow a definite pattern, with the first digit of the four digits showing the highest grade attainable under that number. The other three digits are identical for a particular job ladder. They are not, however, a coding system for all job ladders and will be replaced later by a new MOS system, which will show grade, field, ladder and other information.

A first sergeant will be affected by some changes. To be a first sergeant under the new regulations, a soldier must first be a master sergeant, possess a specific MOS. His assignment as first sergeant will then come directly through a company or battalion commander or unit commander may terminate the assignment as first sergeant at any time, but the soldier will remain a master sergeant until transferred to another unit or until the assignment is automatically terminated.

Master sergeants who may be designated first sergeants are in the artillery field 150 1576, 1586, 1596, 1602, 1603, 1644 and 1665; eight of the 15 first grade jobs in the field, in the infantry 1748 or 1812, two of the four first MOSs in the field, and in the armored cavalry 1783, 1785 and 1796, three of the five first grade jobs.

Affecting most men will be the order that major commanders will insure that, after changes in MOS as prescribed by the regulations, all enlisted personnel in the career fields, with a few exceptions, who have an infantry career field MOS in record with their primary MOSs.

The exceptions are:

- 1-Individuals on recruiting service.
- 2-Individuals on civilian component assignment.
- 3-Individuals assigned to training divisions who are engaged in administering basic, field or specialist training.
- 4-Individuals assigned to other training installation missions or another combat arm, tactical or technical training or school.
- 5-Individuals, assigned to positions which do not accord with their primary MOS, who have been successfully reclassified.

With the regulations the enlisted efficiency report goes into effect, although the reporting time is temporarily reduced from 90 to 60 days to allow for speedier adjustments, promotions and assignments with the new job assignment promotions which will be in effect until Sept. 1 is probably one of most discussed and misunderstood sections of the new regulations. Consequently pertinent paragraphs are printed below. Except for the name of the field, these paragraphs are the same in the three fields.

14. Grade adjustment promotions—a Paragraph 14 inclusive, Section XI, DA Circular 202, 1948, as amended, pertaining to promotions of enlisted personnel in the upper five grades classified into career fields who has suspended from the date of this special regulation until Sept. 1, 1949.

(a) During this period, one-time grade adjustment promotions in the upper three grades may be made for individuals classified into the (Name) Field who are incumbents of T-O&E positions in this career field, to fill all T-O&E vacancies in the MOSs of this career field, including those new T-O&E position vacancies caused by amendments to the T-O&Es contained in Annex 1. These one-time grade adjustment promotions may be made, if otherwise appropriate, without regard for any major command promotion ceilings.

The promoting authority for these one-time grade adjustment promotions in the upper three grades will be the authority for grade 4, as specified in paragraph 88 DA Circular 202, 1948, as amended.

(b) Promotions in the upper three grades may be made, provided the following time in grade provisions as established in paragraph 88 DA Circular 202, 1948, as amended: (a) For grade 2, 12 months in grade 2, 12 months in grade 3, 12 months in grade 4. (Service in higher grades not counted in this one-time adjustment deal.

(c) The individual concerned has a converted score of 87 or higher on the Enlisted Efficiency Report, having a minimum of 60 days, except as indicated in paragraph 15c. (This score is above the midpoint on the 150-point scale used.—Ed.)

(d) The individual concerned is in a promotable status as defined in par. 2, DA Circular 202.

(e) The individual concerned is assigned a T-O&E position whose MOS is in the same career ladder as the particular position in which there is a vacancy to which he is to be promoted. (Under the job test system a man may compete for any higher job in his field; because fitness for other ladder jobs cannot be determined fairly for all competitors without such tests, adjustment promotions are restricted to the same ladder.—Ed.)

(f) The individual concerned is not advanced more than one grade in the upper three grades in this one-time grade adjustment program.

(g) During this period, one-time grade adjustment promotions to grades 5 and 4 may be made for personnel classified into this career field, under the following provisions:

(1) Promotions may be made against any position vacancy, including those new T-O&E position vacancies caused by amendments to the T-O&Es contained in Annex 1, provided that: (a) The individual concerned is in a promotable status as defined in par. 2, DA Circular 202. (b) The individual concerned is recommended for promotion by his immediate unit commander. (c) Where promotion to grade 4 is concerned, the individual has a converted score of 87 or higher on the Enlisted Efficiency Report, covering a minimum of 60 days, except as indicated in par. 15c. (d) The individual concerned has a minimum of six months in grade. (4) provides this for those who held grade 4 sought or a higher grade in any of the Armed Forces.—Ed.)

(2) Promotions may be made without regard to position vacancy provided that the individual concerned meet the requirements specified in paragraphs (1) (a), (b) and (c) above, and the time in service requirements listed below. (Time in service

Draftees Take Discharge To Reenlist As Regulars

At an impressive ceremony in Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, and short term enlistees of the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion, received short duty discharges and reenlisted for three years.

Before a full strength formation of their battalion, the new regular army men were sworn in by Maj. Llewellyn D. Shaw, Infantry Center recruiting officer, while Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, acting Third division commander and division artillery commander; Col. Arthur C. Purvis, Infantry Center adjutant general, and Col. Todd H. Slade, battalion commander, looked on.

Following the oath, General Tate addressed the group, praising the men for their foresight in reenlisting in the regular army and citing them as future leaders in the army.

He said, " . . . we never have a large army in peacetime, but what we have is a seasoned, well trained nucleus, which can assume command in time of war."

The ceremony took place on McKenna hill airstrip near where the 999th had been on bivouac for the week. The box formation was employed during the ceremony, with the 64 men in mass formation in the center.

Benning Loses Dick Donaldson

Benning boxing circles lost a current champion this week when Richard Donaldson, 1949 Third Army light heavyweight titleholder, was separated from service Sunday.

Last year at Fort Bragg, N.C., he was runner-up in the cruiser weight class of the Third Army meet, but garnered the title and area squad when the champion was unable to accompany the team to the Amateur Athletic Union bouts at Chicago.

When the annual Third Army area tourney was held at Benning this year, Donaldson defeated three rivals for the title honors with little difficulty.

Donaldson was a member of Battery C, 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion. He later followed the boxing genre after returning to Cleveland, O., his hometown.

Benning Netmen Sweep Honors In Area Tourney

The Fort Benning tennis team, led by its great captain Sanford Webster, turned the annual Third Army tennis tournament into a rout as they took top honors in every event to retain the trophy another year.

The Benning team scored 22 points, exactly twice as many as their nearest foe, Fort Bragg, N.C.

The rest of the field finished as follows: Fort Jackson, six points; Fort McPherson, two; and Camp Gordon, one. Independent entries scored a total of four points.

Webster paced his club to victory as he defeated William Stack of Fort Bragg in straight sets 6-2, and 6-3, to capture the singles crown for the third straight year.

Although most of the games were close, Webster always appeared to be in command and never seemed to register any doubt that he would defeat the former Austrian Davis Cup player for the title. Using his powerful backhand to advantage and playing a superb net game, Webster was able to break through Stack's service three times and capture his own service three out of four times to take the first set easily.

In the second set, Stack dropped the first two games and could never quite catch up, despite the fact that he played Webster on fairly even terms for the remainder of the match.

In all Benning affairs, John Baumgartner and Harold Henderley upset Webster and Bob Scruton in the doubles finals by tallies of 6-4, and 6-4.

In the Women's Single's Hazel Ver Hey copped the title from Tol Pagano 7-5 and 9-7.

Stack of Fort Bragg in straight sets 6-2, and 6-3, to capture the singles crown for the third straight year.

Although most of the games were close, Webster always appeared to be in command and never seemed to register any doubt that he would defeat the former Austrian Davis Cup player for the title. Using his powerful backhand to advantage and playing a superb net

Fish, Game License To Expire June 30

July 1 will bring to a close the 1948-49 hunting and fishing year on the reservation, and mark the beginning of the 1949-50 season.

The new hunting and fishing licenses and Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association memberships will be available beginning July 1 in the registration department of the office of the Provost Marshal, officials have announced.

A new set of fishing and hunting regulations for the coming season have been published and, together with a map of the reservation showing all local hunting lands and fishing waters, will also be available upon purchase of a hunting and fishing license or association membership.

Regulations governing eligibility of individuals to fish and hunt on the reservation remain the same as last year, making all members of the armed forces assigned to Fort Benning, members of their families 14 years or over, and their bona fide house guests permanently residing outside a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning eligible for licenses. Licenses for bona fide house guests may be applied for by their sponsors.

For fish and game conservation and management purposes, the president of the association or a committee designated by him, is authorized to open and close fishing in ponds and streams, take such game or fish from any part of the reservation as is necessary to complete food, disease, or population surveys, and to conduct trapping or netting on any part of the reservation for the purpose of game balance control, destruction of vermin, or redistribution of game and fish population.

The fee for the annual federal fish and game license covering the period July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1950, is 75 cents. This license permits the holder to hunt and fish in the designated areas and waters of the reservation. But by paying an additional $1.25, minors and anglers may avail themselves of certain further privileges provided by the association such as, the use of boat motors, and participation in fishing tournaments and turkey shoots.

The Fish and Game Maintenance association is a voluntary organization of sportsmen organized and operated in accordance with the directives of the commanding general. The association is responsible for the coordination of activities of all agencies and instrumentalities engaged in fish and game conservation and wildlife development. Membership is restricted to active military and retired personnel. The funds accruing from this membership will be used to purchase prizes for the meet and shoots and for the maintenance of association boats, miscellaneous expenses such as planting and other equipment.

Massey Downs Foe in Return

Al Massey, the "Florida flash," got his revenge last Tuesday night when he scored a quick decision over Lozano Martinez in the feature event of the professional wrestling card at the main room gym.

Massey, changing his tactics, used the alligator throw to twice pin the Mexican champ after he had lost the first fall by a full count. In the first fall Massey slipped the 240 pound Mexican pounced on him and pinned him to the mat.

It took Massey just 17 minutes after the first fall to pin Martinez twice and take the match. Martinez had won the first time the two met here but Massey claimed a foul and demanded a rematch last Tuesday.

In the semi-final affair, the popular Rex Mobley lost to Al Galento two falls to one. The decision, however, was unpopular with the fans. Mobley had the upper hand in the deciding fall when he was tripped by Black Jack Dillon, a wrestler sitting at the ringside. As Mobley fell, Galento leaped on him and pinned him to the mat for the deciding fall in the match.

In the first main event, Don McIntyre, the Missouri rancher, in a 30-minute match.

Softball League Slated to Begin

Starting tomorrow softball will take its place along side baseball as one of the major summer sports at Fort Benning. Two leagues will be in operation, both the Student Training Regiment and Army Field Forces board No. 3.

In the league, the schedule will consist of 16 games. Only 15 men, including the coach and manager, will be allowed on the roster.

The team winning the Infantry Center softball championship, and any additional players that may be selected by the coach of the winning team, will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tournament to be held Aug. 22-25 at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The Third division league will consist of several teams, the 15th and 30th Infantry regiments, the division artillery, and the special units.

The remainder of the league teams will be fielded by the Infantry School detachment; Provisional Medical group; Provisional group, Area Service unit; Lawson airforce base and a squad composed of players from attending NCO course.

Pfc. George R. East of company D, 30th Infantry regiment, is attending the heavy weapons noncommissioned officers course here this summer.

Mutual Plans 15th Infantry Nine To Spotlight Still In Second Place

The 15th Infantry regiment, Dragons maintained their hold on second place in the Infantry center intramural league last Thursday, as they eked out a close 6-5 win over Lawson Airforce base.

The loss for the Flyers eliminated their chance for the pennant as the Flyers constantly threatened to blow the game wide open in the top of the seventh, an error by Raether opened the doors to permit two 15th Infantry rallies and close out their scoring for the day.

Defensive star of the game second sacker. Despite the fact that he committed two errors, Baldwin played heads up ball and several times ended Lawson rallies with fine stops.

Lawson opened the scoring in the second inning, when Carl Stumey reached second on Sam Hall's two base error and came in as Bill Tremaine singled to center.

The Dragons roared back to cross the plate four times in their half of the third inning, ignited by Bill Weltschek, John Marrinaccio, Len Strawthers, Sam Hall and Jim Shirley accounted for the four-run total. Three straight singles produced two Lawson runs in the bottom of the sixth, as Mack Cox, Glenn Raether and Carl Rumney singled in succession. This was a tough inning for the Dragons as the Flyers constantly threatened to blow the game wide open in the top of the seventh, an error by Raether opened the doors to permit two 15th Infantry rallies and close out their scoring for the day.

Ed Gravelly started the fireworks by leading off the frame with a line single to center. Cox drove a double to left center scoring Gravelly. Raether singled to left with Cox stopping at third. Rumsey drove the last run by socking a long fly to center field with Cox regaining after the catch.

Included in the nationwide broadcast will be names of former commanders of the Infantry school such as Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Gen. George C. Marshall.

The program will be the first in a summer series to be presented each Saturday from 1-1:30 p.m.

Additional material for the show was supplied by the Infantry Center public information office. Much of the material covers the Infantry school, where all methods and manuals pertaining to the Infantry are developed, and infantry officers receive basic and advanced training.

Build Outdoor Patio at Club

To beat the heat and humidity of indoor dancing and recreation, a patio is being constructed in the rear of Service club No. 1 on the main post, Infantry Center special services has announced.

The new patio, expected to be completed in time for a Fourth of July celebration planned at the club, will accommodate approximately 100 couples.

Chairs and tables will be installed in the new addition to bring club activities outdoors during the summer months.

The Independence Day program of the club will begin at 5:30 p.m. with dinner, followed by a dance at 8:30 p.m.

In announcing the celebration, which is for enlisted personnel and their guests, club sources stated that festivities will be indoors if the patio is not completed.

Six enlisted men of Fort Benning have been awarded the Third Army certificate of achievement. Third Army headquarters at Fort Monmouth, N.J., has announced. Honored with the award were M-Sgt. John C. Holloman, 3440th Area Services unit; M-Sgt. Wilson O. Richardson, 10th Infantry division; and Sgt. 1st Cl. Tony Ferro, Sgt. 1st Cl. George A. Barlett, Sgt. Travis Truesdell and Col. Charles M. Crooks, all of the 1448th Army Service unit.

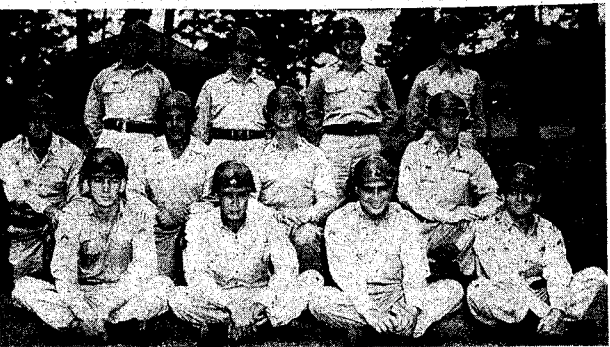

Publication Date For Guadalcanal Story Revealed

The United States forces' first assault operation in World War II, the battle of Guadalcanal, is the subject of the fourth volume of the army's official history of the war, the Department of the Army announced today. Due for publication late in July, the book, entitled "Guadalcanal: The First Offensive" will make public for the first time much material hitherto classified secret.

Published by the government printing office at four dollars a copy, the book will harmonize in format and binding with others of the published army histories. The first volume, "All in" volume and the third in the series was published last January under the title of "Okinawa: The Last Battle." The first two volumes were issued last year and deal with organization of army units.

The Guadalcanal history was written by Dr. John Miller, a marine veteran of the Solomon Islands campaigns. Dr. Miller, a former assistant of Omaha, Nebraska, is assistant chief of the Pacific section in the army's historical division.

The handicaps facing troops fighting for the first time in the disease-ridden tropics are detailed in the Guadalcanal history. In the number of American casualties caused, malaria was five times as active an enemy as the Japanese. But, the history shows, the Japanese had even more trouble with tropical disease than did the Americans. While relatively few American deaths were caused by disease, about 40 per cent of the 23,000 Japanese who died in the campaign were killed by disease.

Current TIS Classes Have 393 Students

Three-hundred and ninety-three regular army, officer reserve corps, national guard and foreign officers are attending classes of the current associate, basic and associate advanced infantry officers' courses which opened here for a 15-week period this month.

There are 197 officers, including one major, 10 captains, 29 first lieutenants and 164 second lieutenants in the basic course. Two of the officers are regular army, 157 are from reserve components, 30 are national guardsmen and eight are foreign officers.

In the advanced class there are 196 officers, including three colonels, 25 lieutenant colonels, 44 majors, 78 captains, 9 first lieutenants and nine second lieutenants. There are 24 regular army officers in the class, the remainder of which is made up of 137 reserve officers and six officers from foreign nations.

The foreign officers are from Norway, Haiti, Turkey, Uruguay, Denmark and the Philippines. The courses give the officers training in company level duties and battalion and division staff assignments.

Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Ward, assistant director of instruction for the Infantry School looks upon the courses as an aid to creating better unit commanders. "The officers," he said, "who attend the basic and advanced courses gain invaluable, up-to-date training not available elsewhere. The course runs only 13 weeks and is an ideal stopover for sharpening minds in the latest tactics and techniques of infantry between assignments."

"The summer course," said Colonel Ward, "is especially attractive to reserve and national guard officers attending college because it enables them to fill in the time between college training in a way which will benefit their future army careers. It is also used by officers of field rank level as a refresher course if their work has been away from troops."

Three men of Heavy Tank company, 30th Infantry regiment, were recently promoted to sergeant.

They were Cpls. Francis G. Beshears, Samuel R. Weathers and Gene Howe.

Other 30th promotions include Pfc. Harold L. Johnson who was promoted to corporal, and new privates in the first class, include former Pvt. Harry E. Andrews, Elvin H. Bean, Adrian A. Brodeur, Oscar J. Butenou, Casper W. Clark, Lawrence A. Conklin, Joel J. Cormier, Joseph M. Coulombe, Charles B. Dusten, Joe Gonzales, Martin J. Julian, Floyd C. Knight, Raphael A. Leibold.

Benning Boxers Aid in Columbus YMCA Project

A group of Fort Benning boxers and trainers aided the Ninth street branch of YMCA of Columbus in presenting a star-studded boxing card of nine three-round bouts last Wednesday night. Proceeds from the show are to be used in purchasing athletic equipment for use by YMCA members.

Supervisory details were carried out by Tommy Caines and Merritt L. Wynn of Fort Benning, and W. R. Douglas, W. S. Bennett and H. H. Weldon of the YMCA staff.

The participants featured in the exhibition bouts included Lawrence Jones, current army-wide and Third Army middle-weight champ; Clifford Willburn; Walter Mason; Trust Brown; Alex Bowie; James Knox; John Allen; Robert Patterson; Glover Holtz; Don Carter; Walter Blackmon; Lloyd Tillmon; Robert Patterson; Willie Webb, and James Morris.

The event also featured two impressive Columbus novices, Jimmy Middlebrook, 142 pounds, and James Lewis, 134 pounds.

Twelve Groups Are Eliminated By Cabinet Man

Elimination of 12 committees and boards in the National Military establishment, announced by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson recently, brings to a number of these groups abolished as "unnecessary" up to 89 since he took office on March 23, 1949.

Secretary Johnson also announced that, with the approval of the President, the Departments of the Army, Navy and Air Force had been authorized to remove the advisory committees to study the proposed establishment of a national military museum from their records of active committees. He also said he has suggested to the Treasury department that a step be taken to disestablish an other inactive group, the "inter-departmental board on international services of ice observation and ice patrol."

Two of the NME committees most recently dissolved were engaged in secret work and, therefore, their titles are withheld. One of these committees has completed its work; the other was found to be unnecessary for proper performance of the functions involved.

The 10 other NME committees eliminated are: Joint Battery Advisory Committee (Functions assigned to the Research and Development Board);

Lehigh university bomb damage project. (This committee was established in 1948 to advise Lehigh university in its performance of a contract with the army to consolidate data in the U. S. strategic bombing survey with similar information in other surveys. It has become inactive).

Armed Services Audit Coordination committee. (Determined to be performing functions which can be handled by the regular staffs of the departments).

Joint army-navy committee on shaped charges. (Work to be continued by regular staffs of the departments).

Joint army-navy committee to review recommendations for safe ammunition handling, shipping and receiving facilities, OAHU. (Work of this study group to be continued as Purchase Assignment task committee).

The action taken by Secretary Johnson on the foregoing committees was based on recommendations by a staff group headed by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, his adviser on organization and administrative matters. Other members of this group, which has been making a study of all NME boards and committees, are Maj. Gen. Henry B. Lewis, chief, personnel Bureau; Rear Adm. Glenn B. Davis, commandant, Potomac river naval command, navy; and Maj. Gen. Lyman P. White, director, maintenance, supply and service, air force.

Hikes in Grade Told by Outfit

Senate May Delay Pay Bill Approval

Being Studied By Committee

Controversy over service retirement and death benefits may be facing the compromise military pay boost bill, now before the Senate armed services committee.

If the committee decides to re-store to the bill's retirement and death benefit features, consideration of the bill may require several weeks and then face the possibility of opposition in the House of Representatives and by the President.

There is a likelihood, however, that the committee may defer action on the bill and present it to the Senate in the same form it was passed by the House July 15. In this case the bill stands a good chance of being passed before Congress adjourns.

Riding well for the measure is the disposition of Congress to stay in session until Aug. 20 in order to handle a large backlog of important business.

The Senate group began hearings in the new session the day after it passed the house, and heard explanations of the measure for three days before closing its doors to discuss the measure.

Dividends

company applications and might hinder, rather than help, speedy payment of dividends.

An estimated 20 million policies were written in National Life Insurance for approximately 16.5 million military personnel. Of these 16 million are eligible for dividends, whether or not the policy is currently in force.

At present there are only about seven million policies in force, the VA said.

The dividends will be based on a formula which takes into account the total amount of cash paid in through premiums and other factors.

In cases where policy holders have died, the beneficiary of the policies, or those shown to be a part of the same school, and returned this month with a letter from the executive officer of the school stating he had once again taken top honors. He was praised for his "classroom participation, interest and initiative."

Gets New Assignment
First Lt. Thurman Morgan, formerly of the Adjutant General's department, Third Infantry division, will replace 1st Lt. Frank D. Thous as personnel officer for the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion. Lieutenant Thous is being assigned to duty in Europe.

Headquarters Unit EM Are Promoted

Enlisted promotions in Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 15th Infantry Regiment, have been announced by company officials.

Promoted to private from recruit were: Johnnie Anderson, George H. Kalas, Alvin N. Ragsdale, Clarence E. Stephens, Ellis A. Williams, Robert Callaghan, Francis Platts, Joseph W. Rykuta and Thomas J. Sullivan.

Fan Takes to The Air

In Cleveland, the city of baseball's world champions, Charles M. Lupica, 25, is up a tree figuratively. Lupica, Cleveland druggist, climbed to the top of the flagpole above his store recently and voted to remain there until the Indians regained the top rung in the American league. With the Tribe way down in standings, Lupica may spend a very long summer high in the clouds, on a three and one-half foot platform.

General Gillem Lauds Unit

In a letter to Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson of the Third Infantry division Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., commanding general of the Third Army, expressed his thanks to the officers and men of the Third Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry division, for the part they played in Gen. Lucius D. Clay's return to his home in Marietta, Ga.

In passing along to his command the letter expressing General Gillem's pleasure, General Clarkson added his congratulations to the Third Battalion, asserting that the commendation received was indicative of "an important assignment well done."

The troops that met the former allied military governor of Western Germany were under the command of Maj. Ernest F. Brockman, commander of the Third Battalion.

In outlining the method to obtain the desired cooperation from other peoples General Wedemeyer stressed the point that military force alone will not create or maintain the unanimity of purpose among peoples and that war would not solve the problem of ideological differences.

Brigadier General Smith In Airborne Class Here

It's not often that a general officer turns up at a school as just another pupil, but that seems to be the case at Fort Benning where Brig. Gen. Wayne C. Smith, assistant commander of the Eleventh Airborne division, is undergoing training.

Gen. Smith, probably in the habit of giving orders to his division at Camp Campbell, Ky., is now taking them, and from officers and NCOs of lower rank.

He started a special course last week in the Infantry School's Airborne department and still has two more weeks to go before he can return to his normal status.

So far Gen. Smith has been hoisted to the top of Benning's parachute towers and dropped 20 times. In addition, he is refreshing his memory in such subjects as loading and lashing of weapons and materials, packing and rigging of parachutes, proper jumping and descent procedure, chute control, and use of gliders.

Instructors, after viewing the general in action, have proclaimed him one of the best students. In fact one civilian, probably an ex-sergeant, jokingly remarked that General Smith might "get some where yet."

Still a young man, he's only 48, the general has been interested in the airborne infantry since 1939 and has devoted much time to its study. In that year he volunteered for paratroop duty while serving with the 19th

250 Men Reenlist In Mass Ceremony

Signal Corps Plans to Add Phone Lines

The addition of 1,000 new lines to the equipment of the post telephone exchange before the end of this month will increase the exchange's operating capacity by one-third, and will greatly improve service, according to Capt. J. T. Etheridge, assistant signal officer.

"This does not mean that we are installing 1,000 new telephones," Capt. Etheridge explained, "but that we are adding automatic electric switching equipment in the central office which will enable the system to handle more calls at one time than ever before."

"The new equipment will eliminate busy signals being flashed after the first two digits have been dialed and should go away with the delayed dial tone."

Captain Etheridge pointed out the post system, including the Harmony church and Sand hill areas, contains 3,208 telephones. All are connected through the automatic electric dial system, and human operators are used only for calls coming into the post and for outside calls beyond Columbus.

Similar in operation to a metropolitan exchange, the post system employs 14 operators with at least three of these on duty at all times. They handle about 10,000 calls every 24 hours.

Infantry Regiment Passes In Review

The 30th Infantry regiment held a retreat parade last week on Tiger field.

All units of the regiment except Companies E and F participated in the ceremony. Lt. Col. Frank S. Holcombe commanded the troops during the ceremony.

TIS Lawn Site Of July 4 Rite

Honored with a 48-gun salute, a group of 250 enlisted men of the Third Infantry division reenlisted Monday morning in a mass ceremony held on the lawn of the Infantry School building.

Accident Rate Lower in '49

Fort Benning's safety record for the July 4 week end was better this year than last year, but there were more accidents, according to the post safety director.

During the week ending July 4, post personnel suffered 14 disabling injuries, and one soldier, Cpl. Ed Bates of Service company, Student Training regiment, was killed.

Last year there were five disabling injuries and one fatality, but the injury rate was higher since the post had only about half of its present personnel strength.

So far this year Benning has had 14 fatalities, 307 disabling injuries and 119 auto accidents involving post personnel.

Third Division Society Meet

The annual convention of the society of the Third Infantry division will be held July 14-16 in Cleveland, Ohio, society officials announced this week.

Headquarters for the veterans and society members who are still in the line will be the Hollenden hotel, where a banquet has been planned for Saturday June 16 to cap the various activities planned for the group.

The men, mostly selectees and short term enlistees, took discharges last week so they could reenlist for three years in the July 4 ceremony.

The program started at 11:45 a.m. with music by the 72nd Army band. Marching to the music, the troops, under the command of Maj. Otto Grass, assistant G-1 of the Third division, moved into position on the lawn to take the oath of enlistment.

The oath was administered by Capt. John F. Nebinger of the Infantry Center. The group raised hands, and repeated the traditional words:

"We... will obey the orders of the President of the United States and the officers appointed over us... under the rules and regulations of the Articles of War."

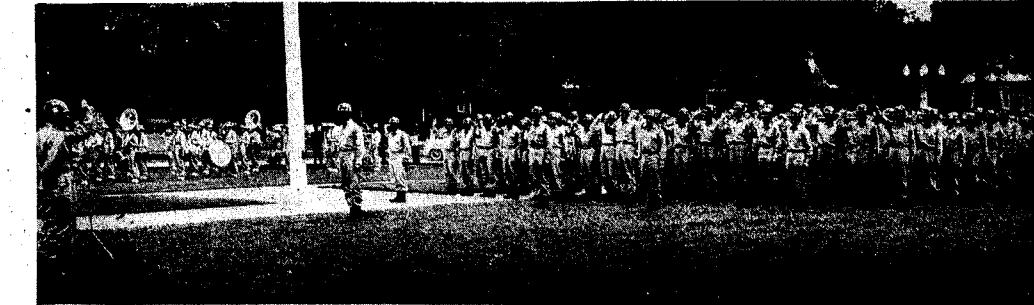

Following the oath the men were welcomed "back" into the army by Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, commander of Third division artillery. He spoke of his pleasure in being able to address the "men who have shown the foresight to reenlist for three years."

"In these days of stress," General Tate stated "we must maintain a military establishment, and you form the core of strong, efficient army in case of any conflict."

"You men," he concluded "are important—you form an integral part of our national insurance."

Maj. L. D. Shaw, post recruiting officer, spoke briefly to the men and gave the signal for a 48-gun salute given by members of Battery C, 39th Field Artillery battalion.

The band played the national anthem and the men left the lawn to start 30-day reenlistment furloughs.

PLEDGING TO SERVE... Taking the oath of enlistment is a group of 250 Third Infantry division men who reenlisted in the army Monday morning. The men, selectees and short term enlistees took discharges last week to participate in the July 4 ceremony on the lawn of the Infantry School building.

Standing at the extreme left is Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, Third division artillery commander, who spoke to the men after they had taken the oath. Commanding the troops for the special ceremony was Maj. Otto Grass, assistant G-1 of the division.

Junior Policemen Tour Fort Benning's CID Lab

Twenty-eight boys from Baker Village school toured the Criminal Investigation Division of the Provost Marshal's office at Fort Benning recently, as a part of training to become the Baker Village Junior Police force. At the CID offices they were met by Capt. Joseph W. Mitchell, chief of CID, who lectured them on the processes used in the tracing and solving of crimes, and who showed them through the Criminal Laboratory the criminal photo laboratory. Lt. Col. Albert B. Welsh, Benning provost marshal, spoke to the group on the need for and maintenance of a military police force.

At the conclusion of their trip to Fort Benning, the boys were presented with official identification cards, which contained print of their right thumb. They will carry the cards as evidence of their membership of the Baker Village Junior Police force. In addition to their tour of CID, the youths were addressed by various city and county officials, who emphasized the need for young people to act as gentlemen and uphold the conduct and morale of American youth.

Accounting Plan Set Up By VA

Machinery to expediate payment of the recently announced dividend payments of more than two billion dollars to National Service Life insurance policy holders being set up in Washington, D.C. Veterans Administration officials said this week.

According to Carl R. Gay, Jr. Veterans Administrator, the organization will be one of the world's biggest accounting systems. He said more than 125 machines key punches, sorters, collators, interpreters and posting units will be installed in 200,000 square feet of floor space in two buildings.

More than 4,000 persons are being hired to handle the operation. Gay said. First checks will go out next January, and as the system adjusts itself, the payments are expected to reach a flow of 200,000 per day.

infantry regiment at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Gen. Smith is no stranger to Columbus since he regards many residents as friends and acquaintances. He was stationed at Fort Benning for six years from 1925-1931. During that time he served with E. H. Howitzer companies of the 29th Infantry regiment and spent one year at the Infantry School as a student.

His eldest son, Wayne Jr., has already followed in the footsteps of his general-father. This June he was graduated from the military academy at West Point.

Another son, Robert M. Smith, is now in the University of Hawaii at Honolulu, and the youngest, Carl Richards, is attending high school at Clarksville, Tenn.

Upon completion of the refresher course at Fort Benning Gen Smith will return to Camp Campbell to resume his duties as assistant commander of the Eleventh Airborne.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Corporal's Initiative Aids TIS Automotive Training

1ST LT. E. C. FORD

Lawson Officer Receives Senior Airman's Wings

A veteran of 1,111 combat flying hours, logged on 224 front line missions, Lt. Ernest C. Ford of Lawson Air Force Base, was awarded his senior pilot's wings last week according to official air force orders.

The young lieutenant entered pilot's training in October 1941. After receiving his wings he attended transition training in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, flying Douglas aircraft.

In October 1942, as a part of the Sixth Transport Squadron, Lt. Ford flew to the Pacific theater from Hamilton Field, California, in the first group flight across the Pacific.

Overseas, Lieutenant Ford's outfit became a part of the 54th T. C. Wing with Fort Moresby as its home installation. They were charged with the responsibility of delivering troops and equipment to front lines and evacuating wounded from combat areas.

Returning home in 1944, the lieutenant completed a 2 years tour of duty at Selma, Missouri, as flight leader and wing safety officer. From this assignment he left for South America on his second tour of overseas duty.

He completed his required 2000 flying hours in 1944 and recently completed the final requirements of 7 years of continuous active duty.

In addition to his outstanding flying record, Lt. Ford holds more distinguished Flying Cross awards than any other pilot on the base, a total of six. He also wears the Presidential Unit Citation with two clusters, Air Medal with one cluster, Asiatic-Pacific ribbon, battle stars and American Defense ribbon.

Cpl. William E. Brown, Company B, Infantry School detachment, has been chosen The Bayonet's "Soldier of the Week" for initiative and thoroughness in his duties with the Automotive department of the Infantry School.

Corporal Brown is tool room NCO. In that capacity, according to his department chief, he has efficiently maintained the records and equipment of his committee. In his spare time Corporal Brown has designed and built training aids used extensively during instruction of automotive students. He built an ignition system mark-up board, a circuit board and is now working on a technical mock-up board, which will show the complete functioning of the voltage generator regulator system.

Until recently the "Soldier of the Week" performed the duties of assistant instructor and was in charge of instructional devices. In this capacity he was responsible for problem setups, requiring many as six complete platform training aid changes a day.

Night Classes Begin July 14

The summer session of the Army Education Center night school will start on July 14, and classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

There will be a 50 cent registration fee for all classes except basic subjects. Information and education officers of all major units will accept registrations until July 11 from military personnel, while authorized civilians may register for unclassified classes on July 14.

The subjects included in the curriculum of the school are auto mechanics, basic photography, German, Spanish, English and Russian. Mathematics and basic subjects will also be taught.

By his diligence and ability, coupled with alertness and thoroughness, Corporal Brown has proven himself an outstanding soldier and well deserving of the honor of being chosen "Soldier of the Week."

Religion Has Big Role In Army

Very few people realize the tremendous role religion plays in the life of the soldier. Too often, civilians look upon the military man as a drinking, carousing agnostic, who never enters a church or a synagogue. But the facts do not uphold this belief, for on the whole church attendance in the army is better than church attendance in civilian life, according to a recent announcement by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Fort Benning's chief chaplain.

The most consistent authorities say that eight percent of the American public go to church every Sunday morning and two percent on Sunday evening. Church attendance figures at Fort Benning, however, equal or better those figures any month in the year.

An example of what we mean is a three-month compilation of church attendance figures revealed by the chaplain's office. During that period almost 30,000 people, or 13 percent, attended religious services at Fort Benning chapels. This figure does not take into consideration the large number of army families living off the reservation who ordinarily attend services in civilian churches.

Why so much religious interest? The army believes that a soldier's life in a bad intellectual and moral environment stagnates good character and that intellectual alertness is basic to the development of a good soldier. As a result, much time is spent in making the individual aware of his responsibility as a good citizen. To be God-fearing is part of being a good citizen.

The army has long been cognizant of the fact that high moral character and intelligence, coupled with a spiritual urge, develop better defenders of the freedom upon which our democracy is based. Consequently, religion has become a part of the army's training. Through the chaplain's period in the training program the army attempts to create for the soldier a better understanding of religion. The results of this effort are borne out by the high church attendance record at Fort Benning.

In the not too distant past, soldiers ridiculed men who visited the chaplain. This was done because at that time the army did not use religion as an aid in building character. With the establishment of the army's Character Guidance council, however, the chaplain has assumed a more important place in the life of the individual soldier. Where, as he used to be ashamed to call on the chaplain for guidance, the soldier now looks upon the chaplain as a friend who can and will help him when help is needed.

During the three-month period previously referred to, more than 1,200 men sought the chaplain's aid in solving personal problems. Naturally, the chaplain's aid is not always as he used to be, but the fact that he is there to listen and counsel can mean a great deal to a man.

Religion, then, is not an unknown quantity in the army. It is a living monument to the army's concern for the spiritual guidance of all those who serve their country as keepers of the peace and guardians of democracy.

Report from Washington

Oppose Personal Property Tax for GIs

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The armed forces have advised the Senate Armed Services Committee they are opposed to legislation recently proposed permitting state and local governments to tax personal property of service personnel stationed within their jurisdictions. Spokesmen pointed out that since a serviceman has no choice but to comply with transfer orders, he might be required to pay property taxes in more than one location at the same time if the legislation passed.

A new army directive provides for booster shots for tetanus immunization every four years, instead of annually, as required under previous regulations.

T/O's of company-size army combat units are being changed to provide for a warrant officer company administrator.

Amendments to Army Career Plan Circular 202, will require that a soldier be promoted to grade six shortly after completion of recruit training, or face probable expulsion from the service. Company commanders who have reason for withholding promotion will be required to submit non-promotable cases to a reclassification board. These amendments also will continue indefinitely the authority granted in circular 202 for promotion of sixth graders to grade five after 16 months' service, regardless of vacancies. This provision otherwise would expire Aug. 1.

Regular army enlisted men of the first four grades now are eligible for duty with U. S. military missions abroad. These details previously were restricted to first-three graders. Applicants must have three years of active service, U. S. citizenship, be at least 20 years of age, have all discharges honorable, have no special or general courts-martial, have not more than 60 days' lost time under AW 107, and know the language of the country to which assigned, or be able to learn it quickly.

Altar Lights Symbolize Life Of Christ

By CHAPLAIN JOHN V. PETERS

Whom they stand come and dwell within our hearts. This Guiding Power or Spirit of Christ for Whom our altar lights are symbolic can be endeared within our hearts by two means.

The attention we give to a formal expression of our religious faith and philosophy of life is important. Have you ever tried to find your way in a strange country without a map? By giving formal expression to our religious faith in prayer, regular worship and participation in church life we come to know which road leads to true peace and harmonious living. Thus we have our map and directory before us.

As the follow-up to our formal expression of faith, there must be cultivated the determination and willingness to sacrifice for and the courage to follow the Light which we have come to know as our directive for honest thinking and righteous living. This represents the second or more informal expression of religious faith.

This what we have come to know we have then put into kind words and charitable deeds.

By our formal expression of religious faith we have come to understand the symbolic presence of our altar lights. Better than that, by our willingness to apply the powers and principles, the altar lights have come to burn in a deeper and fuller significance for us on the altars which we have built within our hearts and lives.

It is only to those whose hearts are receptive to this Light to whom are born powers to be instruments of true peace and love.

Those altar lights can provide the motivation and impetus for clear thinking and righteous living if we let the One for

Your Red Cross

AR-850-75 Is Important To All Officers

By MURRAY E. HILL

Your Red Cross to accompany troops in the field and in the camps. It specifically lays out those things the Red Cross can do, is permitted to do, and will do.

Perhaps many have thought that certain Red Cross policies were formulated entirely by Red Cross-governed bodies. This is not altogether true, for this regulation outlines those things the Red Cross can do for the men under your command. It places certain responsibility on the commanding officer. This lack of knowledge of the responsibility sometimes results in confusion and embarrassment to the soldier.

It is indeed regrettable that this regulation is not immediately available to all officers, first sergeants and company clerks.

In those battalions where this regulation has been studied, the soldiers are faring better and the officers themselves have a keener appreciation of Red Cross activities on this post.

On The Bookshelf

Chronicle of the 'Cold War'

The Man Who Could Grow Hair 'or Inside Andorra by William Atwood, Alfred A. Knopf, New York, publisher.

By D. W. SCHAEFER

William Atwood was, for a number of years, reporter and writer on the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune. He might be classed as a foreign correspondent. The book he has written, however, is far from the usual (so called) sage, omniscient and expert tale of contemporary European political and cultural life. In fact, it is quite the opposite.

The book chronicles the strange, untoward things which happened to the newspaper reporter in Europe and Africa between 1946 and 1948 at the very height of the "cold war."

As Mr. Atwood says in his foreword, "There is nothing (or very little) here about the tragedy and tension that most Americans associate with the conflict of Europe. There is no prediction about what the Russians will do next and no inside dope on whether Jan Masaryk jumped, fell, or was pushed. There is not even a map showing where the iron curtain falls."

The light, informal style in which the book is written sends the mind skipping over the pages. From an abortive, but wholly enjoyable, tour of the French provinces in a vain effort to keep up with and report on a speech of the then premier of France, Robert Schuman, to a junket around France's West African possessions following French president Vincent Auriol on which Atwood takes the nerve wracking "elan" of the French airforce, the story carries on with humor, taste and most of all a supreme lack of the pessimism which so many of us have grasped the world by the throat.

There are many adventures to tickle the palate of the humor seeking Mr. Atwood relates his assignments with the aeronauts, those rapid balloon flyers of France. He recounts the experiments of the man who could grow hair and actually succeeded in raising a one-half-inch high fuzz on bald heads of most of all. Rather than condense it here it would prefer that you have the pleasure of reading it yourself. It is worth it.

Sheridan of Drury Lane a biography by Alice Glasgow. Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York, publisher.
 This is not a new addition to the library, but the biography of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Esq., writer, politician, poet, is so fine in its accuracy and style that it would be unfair to let it pass unnoticed. The writing transports us from the present day to the times of intrigue, corruption, great men and the high life of the 18th century.
 The tales of the madness of George III of England is truly touching, and the life of service Sheridan dedicated to the Prince of Wales and his subsequent disillusionment impresses one with the bitterness of the fate of one of the great "talents" of England of the period.
 Sheridan's death was best remembered for his play, "A School for Scandal." It was a popular play at the time of its production in the Drury Lane theater and has since been revived many times.

ZOOLOGY AWARD WINNER—This personable young lady is Miss Arden Billings, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles H. Chase, Fort Benning, who is the recipient of a Bernice Maclean zoology award, announced at the 112th commencement exercises at Mount Holyoke college. She has completed one year at Mount Holyoke in South Hadley, Massachusetts, and is spending the vacation months with her parents on 211 Miller loop. She was graduated from Columbus high school in 1948. Her paper on "The Garter Snake," written for her basic zoology course, won her the award.

Logan-Spearle Vows Told In Impressive Ceremony At Infantry Center Chapel

In dignified and solemn splendor, Miss Ellen Logan, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. C. O. Logan, of Charlotte, N. C., and Fort Benning, became the bride of 2nd Lt. Donald W. Spearle, 4408th Air Base Squadron, Lawson Air Force Base, on Monday, June 27, at the Infantry Center chapel, Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with fern and bouquets of white gladioli in two large baskets. Fall white tapers burned in cathedral candelabra.

Mr. John C. Miller presented an all-organ program of spiritual music. His selections included "I Love You Truly," "O Promising Me," "Always," "The Clair de Lune," "Evening Star" played very softly. Instrumental background music for the marriage service, emphasizing the solemnity and enhancing the beauty of the wedding ceremony.

Attending the bride were Miss Barbara Spearle, of Louise and Mass., sister of the groom, Mrs. D. B. Payne, of Fort Benning, bridesmaid; Miss Joyce DeLoach, of Columbus, cousin of the bride, junior bridesmaid; and Miss Ann Kroll, of Atlanta, Ga., maid of honor.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of white organza over pale yellow, similar in design to the bride's wedding dress, fashioned with fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves and long full skirt. Their accessories, white lace mitts and yellow flower-halo head-dresses, were from the bride's dress, which carried a cascade bouquet of yellow Shasta daisies.

The maid of honor's costume complemented that of the junior bridesmaid, using the white organza over pale green. She wore a halo of green flowers, white lace mitts, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow Shasta daisies.

Lt. Richard D. Snyder of Lawson Airforce Base attended the groom as best man. The witnesses were Maj. William C. Behnke, Lt. Ernest C. Ford, Lt. Edward B. Reynolds and Lt. Donald F. Donnell.

The bride, breath-takingly beautiful in a wedding gown of white imported Swiss over white taffeta and lace, entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Designed with fitted bodice, featuring a low neckline edged with tiny white pearl buttons, and short sleeves resembling a folded cap sleeve, the wedding dress was fashioned with a long full skirt which fell in back to the floor. Her finger-tip bridal veil of illusion, attached to a starched cap of Chanilly lace edged with valley lilies, enhanced the bride's brunette loveliness. She wore white lace mitts and carried a cascade bouquet of white tuberoses, centered with a yellow throated orchid. For sentimental reasons, she bearing out the tradition "something old" she wore on the ring finger of her right hand her paternal grandmother's wide gold wedding band. Her only piece of jewelry was an heirloom, a lavender of gold filigree, tear-drop shape, centered with a diamond, belonging to her great, great maternal grandmother.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a navy and white print of Georgette, designed for formal afternoon wear. Her corsage was of white carnations and tuberoses, and she wore white accessories. Her corsage was of white split carnations and tuberoses immediately following the ceremony.

Boy Scouts

Boy Scouts of Fort Benning troop No. 27 are not idle even though it is vacation time. Following a discussion which took place at the "father and son" picnic on the 21st, the Scouts have started work on the project of improving their cabin site. At their meeting June 18, work was started on a drain to stop water from running into the cabin when it rains; building a walk and making flower beds around the cabin. Plans are under way for interior painting and decorating.

Boys who have left the troop this summer are Teddy Burke, Hal Lyons, Murray Cheston, Hal Wilson, John Westerman and Bob Blandford.

In the O'Grady drill last week, Bobby Purvis won twice a day and Bill Luther once. At a Board of Review last Thursday, Bill Luther passed his second class tests, and George Doty passed his first class tests.

At the meeting June 25, plans for the coming year were discussed. The troop will choose a name for the camp at Destin, which will be announced at a meeting in July. Demonstrations were given in the use of a compass, and Bill Luther's performance is worthy of note.

Teen-Agers

Teen-age members of the Officers' club will hold another in their regular summer dance series on Monday, July 11, on the club patio. All teen-age Benningites are urged to come and bring guests.

Master of ceremonies for the July 11 dance will be Lt. L. A. McDermott. On the reception committee will be Col. James T. Torrance, Jr., Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Hamilton and Maj. and Mrs. Elvin A. Kreilich.

These Monday night dances are becoming quite popular with the young set. It is reported.

Promotions Given Company B Men

Enlisted promotions in Company B, 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry Division, have been announced by unit officials. Promoted to private were: Eight Avenue, Columbus, planned a theater party and issued 40 passes for a special showing of "The Right Never Ends," starring Joe Louis, the Mills brothers, and Ruby Dee, on June 29. Recipients of the passes were determined in a shuffleboard and games contest held at Service Club No. 4, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Manlove, and the lucky winners were provided transportation, to the theater and return, by the Special Services office of the Infantry Center. Miss Madeline Parks, assistant club director, accompanied the group.

Military personnel who attended were from the following units: Section II, ASU Provisional group; Third Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment; Third Infantry division, 99th Armored Field Artillery Battalion; Company A, Infantry School detachment; the Airborne section, 1st General company; 130th Bakery company and men from the 36th, 96th and 98th truck companies of the 24th Transportation Truck Battalion.

Officers' Club Has Gala Picnic

The Officers' Club entertained over 1,500 members and guests at a picnic on the Dixie range recently. A mess tent was set up and lines formed to pass the table which held a well stocked supply of picnic delights, and all kinds of soft drinks to quench the thirst. Everyone ate and drank their fill. If they were lucky enough to be on hand before the food gave out, it was a very successful picnic, apparently, for it is still a general topic of conversation.

NCO Club Has Picnic-Fish Fry

Members and guests of the John W. Brown Noncommissioned Officers club celebrated the 4th of July with a fish fry in the club picnic grounds. Festivities started at noon and outdoor games of horseshoe, volleyball and soft ball preceded the fish fry at 5 p.m. The group gathered in the club for an evening of dancing. Music was furnished by a unit of the 72nd Army band. The committee in charge of arrangements were Sgt. 1st Cl. Edlie M. Ankarstran, catering officer for the club, was in charge of refreshments.

Company A Privates Receive Promotions

Enlisted men's promotions in Company A, 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry Division, have been announced by unit officials. Advanced to private first class were Pvt. Paul J. Creamer, Joseph W. Deller, Arlie O. Gamm, George Livezey and Otto Young.

Military Personnel Given Theater Party in Town

Another fine example of post-community relationship was evidenced recently when Mr. D. A. Nesbitt, executive manager of the Liberty theater, 821 Eight Avenue, Columbus, planned a theater party and issued 40 passes for a special showing of "The Right Never Ends," starring Joe Louis, the Mills brothers, and Ruby Dee, on June 29. Recipients of the passes were determined in a shuffleboard and games contest held at Service Club No. 4, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Manlove, and the lucky winners were provided transportation, to the theater and return, by the Special Services office of the Infantry Center. Miss Madeline Parks, assistant club director, accompanied the group.

Vacationists Return

Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. B. Ramsey, and their three children, Lloyd Ann, Larry and Judy, returned recently from an enjoyable week at Panama City beach, Florida. With them were their guests Mr. and Mrs. Starling Gregory and Sally Mason Gregory from Somerset, Kentucky. This was a time for swimming, relaxing in the sun, and, the Colonel says, an occasion for giving his undivided attention to his family. The Gregorys enjoyed their visit to Fort Benning, before and after the Florida trip, and were much impressed by the vastness of this Army city.

Lawson Woman's Club Entertains Members

Approximately 100 members and guests were entertained at the Lawson Airforce Base Officers' club recently when the Lawson Woman's club gave a tea dance.

Mrs. William C. Behnke and Mrs. Richard O. Johnson were hostesses for the occasion. The serving table was very attractive with an oblong mound of pink and blue flowers.

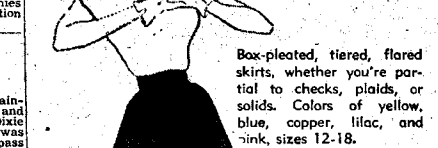

An appetizing array of crystal trays and compotes filled with party sandwiches, cakes and cookies, as well as nuts and mints were placed at one end of the table, while the other end held the silver service. Mrs. James L. Harrison presided at the tea urn.

Skits and Bits' Show

The Lawson NCO club entertained recently with a checkered dinner and informal dance. The main ballroom was decorated with blue and gold parachutes and gold streamers arranged in an intricate design.

The feature attraction for the evening was the all-soldier Third Army comedy revue "Skits and Bits". The show was enthusiastically received by an audience numbering over 350, and the entertainers were called back for several encores.

Florida Air Tars Edge Parachutists

The navy beat the army last Monday as the Green Cove Springs naval air station nine from Florida upset the highly-regarded Student Training Regiment-Airborne battalion, 8-6, in an Independence day game on Gowdy field.

The game was one of the highlights of an all day program of sports.

The navy boys started things off with a bang in the third inning when they tallied three markers.

Frank Spinale opened the game with a single and was sacrificed to second by Tom Kisliak, the navy hurler. Ed Kisliak and Vic Succi wanted to lead the bases, and Pete Bonomo drilled a single to deep left scoring Spinale and Sidlowski. When Ralph Terry, of the Airborne, erred on the throw from the outfield Succi scored with the third marker of the frame.

The Airborne countered with one run in their half of the inning when Len Carney doubled, went to third on a single by Bob Kinard and rode home as Ralph Terry was being thrown out, second to first.

The sailors added two more in the top of the fifth at the expense of Bob Cronin. Kisliak started the scoring by driving a single to left field. Succi singled to center with Kisliak stopping at second. Bonomo errored on a pitched ball to load the bases. George Petro then singled to

Chulists Edge Infantry Nine Behind Silcox

John Henion, one of Fort Benning's top golfers, added the Infantry Center golf championship to his already impressive playoff last Saturday, 7-8-0.

The playoff was brought about when Moore and Henion both scored 288 in the 72-hole tournament.

In the playoff, it was the Infantry Center team.

The STR, by winning, dropped the ISD into fourth place behind the Area Service unit. The victors were the club in a row for the Troopers and almost assured them of the intra-mural title.

The Troopers scored first, when Jim Cacciola misjudged the final 36 holes and decided to go for a hole-in-one. He added another in the fifth when Herb Myatt reached first on an attempt at a hole-in-one.

Another run was scored in the sixth on successive singles by Charles W. Davis and Arnold Hoebeke, who caded 304 each in the 72 holes. Teardoff with Charles W. Davis and Arnold Hoebeke played an additional 18 holes only to be deadlocked.

Air Command Golf Meet Slated Here

Golfers from six numbered airforces will compete in the Continental Air command golf tournament, for which Lawson Airforce base will be host from July 11-14. The tournament will be played on the Fort Benning Golf and Country club course.

Each numbered air force will be allowed to enter 15 participants who have consistent 18-hole medal scores of 85 or better. Most of the air forces are holding individual tournaments to determine their representatives.

The United States Airforce golf association rules will govern all play. The individual tallying of the lowest 72-hole medal score will be the Continental Air command golf champion, while the next five, as well as the champion, will be the team to represent the command at the national air force tournament.

Trophies for all winners will be presented at a banquet at the Lawson Officers' club at 7 p. m. July 14.

Maj. Richard O. Johnson, projects officer for the tournament, has stated that, out of the 800 contestants expected, about 50 will be enlisted airmen. A few listed waits also are expected to enter, and will vie on a woman's level of competition.

The rules committee for the tournament will be Lt. Col. Lionel L. Layden, Capt. Robert J. Harland, and Lt. Ira W. Armes, Jr.

Captain Remillard also will act as supervisor of conduct of play throughout the tournament.

Winners of the meet will enter

Jones Hammers Bernier To Win Holiday Ring Bout

Lawrence Jones, all-around middleweight boxing champ, proved beyond a doubt last Monday night that he is still the class of the Fort Benning boxers when he defeated Bill Bernier by decision in the main post event. Fighting in the feature event of the holiday card, Jones displayed the ring knowledge that has brought him the top ring laurels in the army.

At times in the bout was Jones in trouble, and he had the fight won as early as the second round when a hard left jab put Bernier on queer street for the remainder of the first round. The fight was constantly had Bernier in trouble as time and again the hard left found its mark.

In the second round Jones caught Bernier with a powerful left jab and stunned Bernier clear out of the ring with driving hard rights and lefts to the head. Only the bell permitted him to return to the ring. As the going ended the round, Bernier started towards the corner but was stopped by the referee.

In the third round, Jones immediately went after Bernier with both hands and trapped him in a corner. He then used his sledge hammer rights by the champ dropped Bernier to the canvas for a count of eight.

Completely out on his feet, refused to quit, however, and remained his own corner. He was brought back to his own corner by his handlers, Bernier remained in the ring for several minutes before his head cleared enough to enable him to leave the arena.

In the semi-final bout on the card, Jim Knox of the 15th Infantry regiment won a unanimous decision over Dick Cherry of the Airborne battalion in a heavyweight contest.

Cherry suffered a bad cut over his left eye in the early moments of the fight that hampered him for the remainder of the bout.

Dance Nights Told by Club

The Sand Hill service club lounge will be set aside each Thursday night for dancing by enlisted men and their dates, it has been announced.

From 8-10 p. m., recorded music will be played for the couples, and there will be no "cutting in" allowed. This is a move to give enlisted men a chance for quiet, pleasant, on the post evenings with their dates.

Dragons Yield To McPherson

Victims of a 10-run uprising in the top half of the ninth, 5th Infantry's Dragons dropped their holiday afternoon special to a visiting Fort McPherson nine, 18-12, on Bullet field.

As the first half of the ninth started, the locals were on top by a 12-8 count, but six runs, two free bases and a single error chased starting pitcher Kenney to the showers.

Cabrera, who entered the contest in the eighth for the visitors was the winning pitcher. He relieved Tedeschi who allowed the Dragons 11 runs on 11 hits. Tedeschi served up homerun balls to three batters in the ninth, and Eddie Baldwin in the fourth, who cleared the sacks of two runners.

Lawson Ousted From Airforce Softball Classic

The Lawson Flyer softball team returned home last week after losing to Shaw Airforce base, 14-3, and to Greenville Airforce base 6-5, to be eliminated from the 14th Airforce softball tournament at Turner Airforce base.

In the first game with the Shaw Thunderjets last Monday Benny Anglin was the winning pitcher for Lawson but was relieved by Claude Hutcherson in the top of the fourth after giving up six hits.

Hutcherson then gave up three hits in the ninth and was relieved by Jimmy Mitchell. Mitchell started as short stop but reverted to the mound in the fifth.

Shaw put the game on ice in the third inning by tallying nine runs on five hits.

Carl Rumsey and Richard Lee were top hitters for Lawson, each with two for three. Ben Westcott had three for three, while Murphy and C. Stevens of the Thunderjets tallied two for four.

The Flyers remained scoreless until the fifth when Lee got on with a base hit and Mitchell, green walked. Mitchell batted the runs in with a triple, and Rumsey scored Mitchell with a single.

In the second game of the tournament Greenville edged Lawson, 10-5, by taking advantage of 10 Lawson errors.

July 8 Deadline Set For TIC Swim Meet

To Be Held July 12-13 At Benning's Russ Pool

July 8 has been set as the deadline for post swimmers to submit applications for participation in the 1949 Infantry Center swimming meet to be held in Russ pool on July 12-13. The meet, in which all male military personnel stationed at Fort Benning are eligible to participate, will be governed by the 1949 Amateur Athletic Union swimming rules and additional rules published by the Infantry Center athletic officials have announced.

Contestants may enter no more than two of the events which will consist of the 50, 100, 200, and 400-yard free style, and the 100-yard individual medley, which will include the free style, breast stroke and backstroke. Other events will be the 100-yard backstroke, 100-yard breast stroke and diving.

The diving competition will consist of the running front dive, and the running high gain, in which all contestants will be required to participate. Any four optional dives will complete the diving contest.

It will be necessary to submit entries on an official entry card furnished by the Infantry Center special services section. The entries also will include a unit athletic and recreation officer's signature. Applications will not be accepted after 3 p. m., July 8. Trophies will be awarded to individuals who place first, second and third in each event. The winners in the three categories will then be given berths on the

Post Lifeguard Attending Class

Pvt. Bruce Johnson, lifeguard at Young's pool and member of the Third Battalion Headquarters company, 15th Infantry regiment, is in Nashville, Tenn., for the Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial college's 10-day course in life saving and first aid methods. Johnson was runner-up in the 1948 New York Amateur Athletic Union diving meet, and was considered for the 1949 United States Olympic swim team. Upon completion of the course, he will return to his duties here.

Foreign Officers Are Enrolled Here

Officers representing the armies of seven foreign nations have been assigned to the Infantry School for various training courses. Included in the group are Lt. Olav Arsvold, Norway; Capt. Octavio Alves Vello, Brazil; Lt. Luis Escobar, El Salvador; Maj. D. Ezarum, Mexico; Capt. H. S. Peltier, Second Lt. Carlos J. Spillari, Guatemala; Lt. Neumann G. Eleador, Chile; and Alberto Leal Torres, Venezuela.

ASU Victory Eliminates Special Troops' Chances

The Provisional group, Area Service unit, nine chalked up a 4-0 win over the Special Troops of the Third Infantry division last Thursday night in a six-inning contest cut short by rain. The game marked the end of the Special Troops' chances for the pennant as they now trail by nine games and have only eight games left to play. Harry Harrison limited the losers to a scant four singles before a downpour halted the game with two out in the top of the seventh.

The ASU opened the scoring in the bottom of the first when Bob Armstrong poled a long triple to the right-center field fence scoring Lefty Kovrick, who had walked. In the second, Nevis Tipton singled, went to third on Jim Hardy's single and rode home as Harrison was being put out by Melvin Mathis.

The ASU closed out the scoring in the bottom of the fifth with two more tallies. Armstrong dribbled a single to left field and advanced to third as Willie Banks reached first on an error. Joe McFarlin reached first when Gordon Banks erred on his grounder, permitting Armstrong to score and allowing Banks to go to third. Hardy scored a moment later as Utus Hale was being thrown out, pitcher to first.

Andy Kidd paced the Special Troops attack getting two of the four hits which Bob Armstrong and Nevis Tipton each had two hits for the ASU.

Tankers Promoted

Kenneth D. Osborne and Joseph Obroac, both of the Heavy Tank company, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, have been promoted to corporal.

Sports Quiz

QUESTIONS

1. Do you know the name officials now use to refer to the golf tournament formerly known as the British Amateur?
2. How long did Marcel Cerdan hold the world's middleweight championship, and from whom did he win it?
3. What is the record speed for the 500 mile Indianapolis Speedway race, and who holds the mark?
4. What two gaits are employed in harness horse racing.

ANSWERS

1. It is now simply referred to as the "Amateur Championship," because of the large number of foreign entries.
2. Cerdan won the title from Tony Zale in September of 1948. Zale couldn't answer the bell for the twelfth round. He lost the crown in June, 1949—nine months later—to Jake LaMotta.
3. Bill Holland set a new record of 121.327 miles per hour in winning the 1949 event in 4 hours, seven minutes, and 15.97 seconds.
4. Pace and trot.

First 2 Volumes Of War History To Be Published

Publication of a 17-volume documentary history of the American expeditionary forces in World War I will be initiated with simultaneous release of the first two volumes on July 4, the Department of the Army has announced.

Subsequent volumes will be released individually at intervals of approximately six weeks. Volumes I and II deal with General Pershing's organization of the AEF, and with policy formulation.

Unlike the army history of World War II—three volumes of which have already appeared—the preparation of the history of the earlier war was undertaken after hostilities had ended. The series did not get under way until 1939, when the War Department directed the "complete and accurate accounts of the participation of the military forces of the United States in the World War" be prepared for publication from official records.

Many hitherto unrecorded letters between high Allied officials are included among the selected documents which constitute the history of the army in the World War, 1917-1919, as the 17-volume history is titled. These documents are presented in such continuity as to afford a broad understanding of day to day developments of World War I.

Under the title of "Organization of the AEF", volume No. 1 contains a 60-page narrative summary of events that led up to such battles as those fought at Cambrai, along the Meuse, the Lys, the Aisne, the Marne at St-Mihiel, and in the Meuse-Argonne operation, and retraces briefly the action of each battle. Later combat volumes will present all operations in greater detail.

Of particular value to military students and to historians, volume No. 1 is filled primarily with the organizational problems facing American commanders, and contains many detailed organizational charts, and tables of organization and equipment.

TRAIN, WATCH, ACT

Low Fire Rate Reflects Dept's Attention To Duty

Fires, at once master and slave of men and responsible for terrible destruction yearly in the United States, took during fiscal year 1949, one of the lowest tolls in damage ever recorded at Fort Benning.

Both forest fires and those involving buildings and fixtures were held to a minimum throughout the year, and officials believe a great deal of credit for this record is due to the close observation and strict attention of the Fort Benning fire department.

When the fire department is mentioned, pictures of great red engines with screaming sirens billows of smoke, streams of water, and rain-coated men fighting roaring flames are brought to mind. Fire-fighting is, in fact, one of the department's prime responsibilities, but the most important work the department does, by far, is fire prevention.

The Bureau of Fire Inspection maintains a fire safety patrol which is constantly on the job, checking buildings, testing fire extinguishers and investigating this patrol work, the bureau delivers periodically a series of instructive lectures to Fort Benning's military and civilian personnel, on such all-important items as avoiding common fires, what to do with cigarette butts, and where an open flame is not permissible.

The fire department itself is under the marshaling of Col. Harold A. Stewart, infantry center engineer, and his assistant is 1st Lt. William P. Hennessy. These officers coordinate the activities in the department and assist Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward in operating the seven fire stations on the reservation.

There are two fire stations on the main post, one at Lawson field, one in the airborne area, two on Sand hill, and one in Harmony church, all are staffed by specially-trained men.

The personnel of the department number 98 enlisted men and 24 civilians, evenly distributed among the various branches.

With a majority at Chief Ward's headquarters, located behind the fire station No. 1, here, in the chief's office, is a large two-way radio, which maintains constant communication with all vehicles and branch stations of the department as well as with the forest-fire wardens scattered throughout the post's wooded areas.

The department maintains eight large trucks, all of which are triple-combination American equipment. These trucks, capable of pumping, running ladders and carrying hoses, they are also equipped with fire extinguishers and other standard equipment. They are customarily served by a crew of five. Staff and the specialists are striving to maintain their record low of the last fiscal year.

a pay period basis similar to the one now in effect for officers. Officers of all ranks would receive $45 per month subsistence allowance and from $75 to $150 per month quarters allowance if they have dependents. Without dependents, officers' quarters allowances will range from $60 to $120 per month.

The quarters allowances for warrant officers will be essentially the same as that for officers, ranging from $75 to $105 for those with dependents and from $60 to $120 for those without dependents.

Subsistence rates for enlisted men would continue to be computed at $1.50 per day for men in all grades, and the quarters allowance would range from $45 per month to $97.50 per month for those who elect now to draw dependency benefits. The $45 per month rate would be for those men in grade four with less than seven years service and under, while the $97.50 per month would be paid to corporals with seven or more years service and men of the first, second and third grades.

Payroll Deduction For Dry Cleaning

A payroll-deduction payment plan has recently been instituted at the post dry cleaning plant, and facilities have been expanded to take care of the cleaning needs of all military personnel, Quartermaster department officials have announced.

Under the payroll-deduction payment system, identical in operation to the post laundry payment system, military personnel will turn garments for cleaning in to their organization's laundry representative. He will take individual garment bundles to the post plant and supervise their return. Cleaning costs will be deducted from salary on a regular monthly dry cleaning roster.

Promoted to Sergeant

Two enlisted men of the 990th Armored Field Artillery battalion were promoted to sergeant last week. They were Cpls. Willie Brown, Jr., and Thomas W. Watford.

Dependents and other military personnel may bring cleaning bundles directly to the plant, located opposite the Quartermaster sales store, and obtain service on a cash-and-carry basis. The plant does not offer delivery service.

Under normal circumstances 24-hour service will be available and garments turned in before noon may usually be picked up the following afternoon.

With the recent installation of special new equipment, the post plant has facilities equaling those of commercial plants in metropolitan areas and is capable of cleaning and pressing all types of clothing and other garments, including uniforms, civilian suits, neckties, dresses, evening gowns, coats, etc.

COLUMBUS, GA., JULY 14, 1949

Its Primary Desire Is Service

It's an unfortunate truth, but many citizens fear that the National Military Establishment would give an opportunity, set up a military dictatorship. Nothing could be more ridiculous.

There was every opportunity during the war for the armed forces to take over complete control of the nation should dictatorship have been the desire of the high command. It would have been a fairly simple matter for the services to move into industry, into the utilities, into the railroads, even into the White House. They had the necessary power, as well as the weapons, to accomplish one of the most spectacular coups the world has ever known. However, there was no inclination on the part of the military to govern the country. Nor is there any now.

We are not defending the NME because it needs no defense. The records of the three services speak for themselves. There has never in the history of the United States been a time when any one of the services has been a threat to the American way of life. On the contrary, without them our way of life would have vanished long ago.

We are reminded of a convention we attended in 1946. The resolutions committee presented a proposal that the convention go on record as favoring either universal military training or selective service and at the same time pledge support to the armed forces. One man, out of the hundreds present, declared in bitter words his opposition to the resolution. He denounced the committee, he denounced the organization. He yelled that the convention had turned into a farce, that it had pledged itself to support military dictatorship. The resolution was passed, however, with only one dissenting vote.

This is typical of the anti-military clique, whose rantings about the NME do a great deal of damage to national defense. For the most part they speak in generalities; certainly they never have any constructive criticism to offer. There is no reason for their outspoken animosity toward an organization whose only desire is to be of service to its country.

The NME is a service organization, and has in the past, and will always in the future, put service to country above all else. Indeed the services have pledged themselves before God to uphold the Constitution of the United States.

Making Army Life Attractive

An example of what the Third Infantry division is doing to make military life more attractive to the soldier is presented on the center pages of today's Bayonet. It is a picture story of what division special service has arranged for men of the Third: a week's vacation in St. Augustine, Fla., for only $34! Transportation to and from the Florida city is provided as well as hotel accommodations and sightseeing trips. Meals are served at the soldier's convenience in the hotel dining room.

This vacation does not count as leave time since the soldier is placed on temporary duty for eight days. There are no formations and no "checking up" on what he is doing. He's pretty much on his own.

Those who have been there report that the water is fine, the food excellent, the girls terrific. What more can you ask?

Report from Washington

'Drawing Account' System Saves Money

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The "drawing account" pay system which became effective July 1 will save the services money because the new pay cards can be fed through bookkeeping machines, eliminating clerical work and typing heretofore necessary. At the same time it will enable all military personnel to be paid more promptly and accurately no matter where they are stationed throughout the world.

Policyholders who converted their war-time insurance will get the biggest cut of the insurance rebate pie when it is distributed next year because they have paid in more premium dollars than those who kept their policies on the term insurance plan as originally issued. Refunds will range from about 50 cents to $500.

How Much Do You Know About the Bible?

By CHAPLAIN CLIFTON S. WILLIAMS

"Thy Word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against Thee." (Psalm 119:11)

Young man, if you would succeed, you must have a personal, intimate acquaintance with God and His Holy Word. As soldiers you must undergo a certain period of training and study before you are ready to use the guns and other weapons of warfare. And as Christian soldiers going forth to battle for Christ you must be prepared. You must know your weapon and how to use it. God's word is the only safe weapon for you.

How well acquainted are you with the Sword of the Spirit? As you go through these days of confusion when men are offering so many solutions to our problems, you need to hear God, to find His guidance. The Bible gives us God's own Word. It is His Voice, with His Own Divine solution to our problem and the confusion of the world. The Bible shows us God and His plan for the human race. The Bible shows us ourselves and offers the only standard by which we can live effectively. It shows us Jesus Christ, God's Son,

Your Red Cross

Interesting to Help Soldier Solve Problems

By MURRAY E. HILL

While the duties of the Field Director are multifarious, there is none more interesting than helping a soldier solve his own problem. I believe the following is typical.

Recently a private came into our office requesting that he be given a loan to bring his wife and child to Columbus. Now all of us know what living conditions are in town. A private's pay would be insufficient to maintain a family of three. We explained, of course, to the soldier that financial aid for a family was Red Cross Home Service responsibility, but we would be glad to discuss his plans. We realized the soldier was anxious to have his family here, but we wondered if he had considered the situation. We asked if he had been able to find a place for his wife to stay, or if he knew what rents were in the adjoining town. After I began discussing some of the specific steps he would have to take to find a place and what the actual rental costs were, the serviceman realized that expenses would be larger than he anticipated.

The soldier's wife was living in an extremely large Eastern city, so we asked if she had ever lived in a small town and if he thought she would be happy away from President Truman okayed shiny new sets of permanent railroad tracks for 2,071 AF officers who on July 1 completed seven years of promotion list service. A selection board is currently reviewing an eligibility list of another 8,000 AF officers for promotion to the temporary grade of major. In addition, the AF will convene several boards this fall to make selections for permanent promotions to the grade of major and above.

All ranks, instead of first three graders and officers only, would be authorized up to three months pay advances in an amendment to a bill now before Congress. Under the proposed legislation all grades could be paid in advance on a permanent change of station or in cases where personnel might be stationed in remote posts where regular paydays might be impossible.

The army has reopened its two-year enlistment option to personnel with previous AUS service in a new move to get more men already trained. Former regulars must continue to sign for a minimum of three years.

Who died that the lost world might be saved.

How sad it is that the Bible is ignored by so many! They are not acquainted with it because of indifference and because of their mad desire for pleasure. Let us try to realize that the Bible could be taken away from us as it has been taken away from people even in our own time. We need to be reminded often that all things we hold dear—our liberty, freedom of press and of speech, freedom of worship—our entire national life—rest upon Bible ideas. The early fathers came with their Bibles in their hands, searching for a land where they could live according to their understanding of the Bible's teachings. They wanted freedom and a chance to express their social and religious ideas. We ought to thank God for the heritage they left us. When President James A. Garfield was just a lad he was preparing to leave his home, and his Christian mother gave him a Bible. Written on the back of it were these words: "This Bible will keep my boy from sin, or sin will keep my boy from this Book."

her relatives and friends. How much time would he be able to spend with her? Could she take care of a six-month-old baby in a single room? These and many other questions helped the soldier to think through his plans for bringing his family to town. He acknowledged there would be many hardships involved for his wife and himself, but he felt having his wife near him right now was the most important thing to both of them. Also he felt, despite high prices, he could maintain his family after arriving in the community. He knew there would be difficulties for both, but not as bad as being apart. One can see from this case how much more was involved than merely a request for a loan; for as the soldier said, "I know now just what bringing my wife and baby here would mean. We will both discuss it more fully by letter. At least after talking to you we are in a better position to plan."

It is interesting to note that this private postponed his wife coming here for a month or so until he had received a corporal's rating, had secured an apartment within his means, and both had saved sufficient money to maintain themselves adequately after arriving here.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

HOME OF THE BRAVE with Douglas Dick, Steve Brodie and James Edwards. Excellent performances by a small cast effectively present the sensitive theme of racial tolerance against a background of an heroic incident in the Pacific during World War II. Recommended for adult.

CALAMITY JANE AND SAM BASS with Yvonne DeCarlo and Howard Duff. When a hard-driving, quick-on-the-trigger sagebrush gal like Calamity Jane teamed up with Sam Bass, the sheriff could count on plenty of fireworks. Recommended for family.

ONE LAST FLING with Alexis Smith and Zachary Scott. Constant bickering leads a married couple to believe that lack of outside interests is the cause of their trouble. Result? More bickering when wife gets jealous of her husband's "outside interests." Recommended for adult.

To Amuse You Today On The Bookshelf Ernest V. Heyn on Sports

Twelve Sport Immortals, edited by Ernest V. Heyn. Bar-Holomew House, Inc. New York, publishers.

As the title implies, the book relates stories of twelve baseball and boxing greats from the beginnings of Connie Mack and Honus Wagner to the fiery Ted Williams.

The stories were written by Jack Sher, Ed Fitzgerald and Tom Meany, all recognized sports writers. Tom Meany is recognized as the greatest living authority on the New York Yankees.

The twelve stories, all of which have appeared in Sport magazine under the editorship of Mr. Heyn, can probably be accepted as authoritative since newspaper stories, personal interviews and proven sources of research and quoted frequently.

Of the twelve "immortals" written about in the book ten of them are past or present heroes of the "great American sport", baseball. Lou Gehrig the "Iron Man", Honus Wagner the "Flying Dutchman", Ty Cobb the "Georgia Peach", Joe DiMaggio, the "Yankee Clipper", Connie Mack, Bob Feller, John McGraw, Dizzy Dean, and, of course, "the babe", George Herman Ruth, come in for their share of the historian's pen.

In the boxing field two stories are included, those of Jack Dempsey and the "Brown Bomber", Joe Louis.

The editor, for some inexplicable reason, saw fit not to include any of the famous platoon greats and favored a preponderance of the rawhide. No editor, however, can include everything; and since what is in the book makes interesting reading, the book is profusely illustrated both with action shots and posed portraits of the stars. For a ball fan, the next best thing to seeing the game is to read about it, and "Twelve Sport Immortals" will just about hit the spot.

Walter Van Tilburg Clark is an excellent short story writer. One of the most effective short stories, from the standpoint of interpreting modern civilization, that has ever come to this reader's attention was written by Mr. Clark and received the O. Henry award for 1942. The Track of the Cat, unfortunately, is not a "short" story.

The black panther that dominates the novel is a symbol of both the doom and salvation of a western family, snowbound fairly exciting reading.

There's something wrong with you.

Initial 'Talent Night' Show Wins Hearty Applause

Under the auspices of the entertainment committee of the Officers' club, a new feature was introduced at the regular Saturday night dancing party last week, when the Talent Night show committee presented a program of four acts, featuring a piano solo, accordion solo, vocalist, and quartette.

It is believed that this project will prove to be very popular and that the Talent Night shows will become a permanent monthly feature of Officers' club entertainment. If the first in the series is any criterion, a lot of local talent will be uncovered much to the enjoyment of all concerned.

The show was ably introduced by Capt. Ray Quinn, a typical master of ceremonies. Nancy Partridge, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. S. H. Partridge, took the stage for the first act. She presented a program of two accordion solos. She chose for her first number "Two Guitars" and followed with a march, "Sharpshooters". She was called back for an encore by applause request, and her selection was everybody's favorite "La Paloma".

Mrs. Ann Etzler, lyric soprano, wife of Lt. Col. Charles E. Etzler, gave a charming performance, singing three eternal favorites "Alice Blue Gown", "Why Do I Love You", and "Make-It-For-her-entire-chose "Ta - Ra - Ra - Boom in Dreamland", and "I Had a Dreams Dear". Enthusiastic applause called them back for an encore, and they sang "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" (and there was a big full moon in the sky Saturday night too); another encore was requested by applause, and they concluded with "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl Who Married Dear Old Dad". The quartette was comprised of Officers' club members Lt. Col. William H. Blackfield, Lt. Col. George L. Mabry, Maj. W. H. Burr, and Capt. John J. Hennessey. Colonel Ballietto accompanied at the piano.

A cash award of $30 was won in first prize by the male quartet, and all other participants received $10 each. Comments were made overboard here and there after the show point favorably to the show point. Wholesome interest in the Talent Night series planned for the future.

The third participant in the Talent Night show was Miss Betty McNulty, who proved to be a very accomplished and talented young lady at the piano. Her first number was "Waltz in C-sharp Minor" by Chopin, and she followed this with Brahms' "Waltz in A-Flat".

The Gruesome Foursome continued the evening's entertainment on the Talent Night show. This barber shop male quartette, in character, complete with apron and towel, over the arm, took first prize in the contest. They chose for their first number a medley of three old favorites, "I'd Love to Live in Believere", "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland", and "I Had a

Impressive Ceremony Marks Chapel Wedding

An important social event of the midsummer season took place yesterday afternoon when Miss Marie Rose Colston, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Colston, of Fort Benning, became the bride of Gene Austin Kemp, of Columbus, at 2 o'clock in the Infantry Center Catholic chapel. Chaplain (Capt.) A. C. Zielinski performed the double ring ceremony.

Over 200 guests attended the wedding and reception. Miss Dolores Nahr, chapel organist, presented a program of nuptial music, and accompanied Miss Aileen Scanlon, vocalist, who sang Bach's "Ave Maria", "Panis Angelicus" and "On this Day O Beautiful Mother".

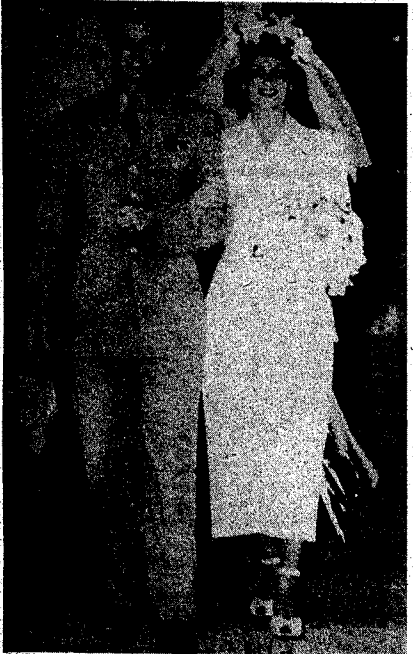

Miss Mary Scanlon, of Columbus, was the bride's maid of honor. She was pictured in a gown of white organza over pink tulle, designed in an off-the-neckline neckling, with fitted bodice and long full skirt. Her white crownless picture hat was faced with pink, enhancing her brunette loveliness, and she carried a bouquet of shaded pink roses and carnations.

Miss Cecelia Antoon, of Greenwood, Mississippi, served as bridesmaid. Her gown was of bodice, off the shoulder neckline and full skirt. Her crownless picture hat was of matching white satin, and she wore short tails of the same material. Her bouquet was also pink roses and carnations.

James A. Bush, of Columbus, attended the groom as best man. Usher - groomsmen were Paul E. Bures, of Atlanta; Lt. Robert Parr, and Capt. Jack Hennessey, both of Fort Benning, and Charles J. Champion, of Brunswick, Ga.

Bayonet Scribe Investigates Reports On Florida Rest Mecca's Facilities

By BOB FRENCO

In the last few weeks the ranks of the Third Infantry division have buzzed with tales of tall palms, shining white beaches and lovely girls. . . in other words, the Third Infantry division's rest camp in St. Augustine, Fla.

Men who have spent a week down there return with sustenance and an overwhelming desire to return. . . so our curiosity got the best of us.

So off we went, St. Augustine bound, and what we found down there is too good to keep. We'll let you all in on it.

Our convoy of chartered busses left Fort Benning early in the morning, and we rode across Georgia into Florida—all the way to the coast. We got to St. Augustine in the early afternoon as the blue sky backdropped the city, one of the nation's oldest landmarks.

St. Augustine is a historic town, spiderwebbed with ancient, narrow Spanish streets, weathered homes, villas and traditions dating back 300 years.

We rolled right through the city, catching views of the modern up-to-date business sections which front the placid St. Johns river and the Atlantic ocean. Then we went out on a streamlined causeway, speeding four miles up the beach to the city's playground, St. Augustine Beach.

Through lanes of tall palmettos we wound our way to the courtyard of the Beach hotel, a swank hostelry, the home of the "rest camp." We piled out, checked our luggage and found ourselves gazing at miles of wide, gleaming white sand right at our doorstep.

Our accommodations large, airy, dormitory-type rooms and all the facilities of the modern spot.

For dinner it was steaks, sea food prepared in Florida fashion, or individual fried chickens, replete with tiny biscuits, honey, french fries and pie a la mode. That was the food situation: not just good but delicious.

Now let's see, we've eaten—so what next?

We could go to any number of theaters, or better yet, walk right out on Ocean pier, stretching its way out into the Atlantic next to the hotel. They show two outdoor movies—full-length features each night. And they're free, of course.

Swimming—there's also night swimming on the beach under floodlights.

Fishing—that's on the pier too. We could try to catch anything from catfish to sea bass and sharks.

Dancing—we could do it right in the ballrooms, or in town at the American Legion hall.

Sightseeing is one of the regional sports, and there are plenty of places to go. For excitement we visited the famous Marine-lead studios and made friends with sharks.

Then we felt like something really bizarre, so we tried AM-gator jungle whose we saw the slimy denizens being tamed, playing and sailing.

Then we just wandered over the tiny streets with their cobwebbed shops and little oases. It took us out of modern times into an age long past.

For you married fellows, we found out you can take your wife to St. Augustine. . . quite a place for a second honeymoon.

Single fellows might enjoy a side trip to the nearby marshy jungles, spending a day threading their way through swamps and overhanging cypress trees. All these activities are available, and they're close to the city.

Transportation is no problem in St. Augustine. Bus passes have been arranged, and they're good for an entire stay.

If a man is away from the hotel at mealtime arrangements have been made with restaurants all over the city to feed anyone with proper identification. A person can eat at no extra cost, and the bill goes to the hotel.

We'd better tell you about Elmer Davis. He's the owner of the Beach hotel, and the man who worked with Third division special services to make the rest camp possible. He's a round, genial man who's placed himself at the complete disposal of the men.

He also makes sure that soldiers won't be high-pressed and rooked by merchants or concessionaires. The stores and concessions in the hotel's territory have been there, for years, and treat G.I.s with smiles, interest and respect.

All incidental needs from razor blades to cigarettes may be bought in the hotel area, and, while a man is in St. Augustine proper he'll find a special canteen set up in the American Legion hall.

Our time was all ours—strictly ours. An officer accompanied us to St. Augustine, but as he said, "I'm here only if you want me. I don't even know if you're all here right now. This is your week, and I'd be the last one to tell you how to enjoy yourselves."

Most men spend the first few days touring the town and the nearby attractions, but sooner or later, they succumb to the spell of the beach; browsing, playing or swimming under the sun. The beach boasts the practically unbeatable combination of cool ocean breezes and warm shining sun.

We cornered one fellow lying on the beach—Cpl. Bill Cunningham of Company K, 30th Infantry regiment.

We asked him how he was doing.

He looked up and grinned: "You know, this place has the three best attractions you ever heard of."

"Suppose you tell us what they are," we asked.

Water, girls and sun," he replied.

Get AF Staff College Duty

Six Fort Benning officers have received new assignments with the Student detachment of the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va., the Department of the Army has announced.

The six officers are Lt. Col. Richard K. Boyd of Army Field Forces board No. 3; Lt. Col. Laurence C. Brown, chief of the intelligence group in a Infantry School Staff department; Lt. Col. Mendel J. Dugas, chairman of the Logistics committee, the Infantry School; Lt. Col. Kenneth E. Eckland, Third Replacement company, Third Infantry division; Lt. Col. Eric F. Rammer, chief of the Training Literature and Visual Aids department, the Infantry School, and Lt. Col. Walter Wickbolt, Tactical department, the Infantry School.

The group expects to leave here early in July, and the officers will attend class No. 6, beginning Aug. 26 as students.

Colonel Brown has been at Fort Benning since July, 1947. He served 22 months in the European theatre with the 45th Infantry division.

Colonel Dugas also came to the Infantry School in July, 1947. He spent 31 months with the 76th Infantry division in the European theatre.

The TI-VA chief, Colonel Rammer, came to the Infantry School in August, 1947, after having seen wartime action in the southwest Pacific. He served there four years.

Colonel Wickbolt also arrived here in August, 1947. He too served in the Pacific theater with the 19th Infantry division.

The College at Norfolk, Va., teaches advanced work in staff, operations and departmental administration.

Class Conducted For I-E Leaders

Emphasizing the theory that "a man's judgement is only as sound as his own information", the 59th Armored Field Artillery battalion started information and education instructor's classes last Monday which included 20 hours of study.

Conducted under the supervision of Pfc. Earl R. Baldwin of the battalion I-E section, the far-reaching unit program was aimed at training additional personnel with suitable backgrounds to become qualified discussion leaders.

The training program stressed sense of responsibility, sound judgement, personality, soldierly appearance and belief in the dignity of the individual as basic prerequisites. A full understanding of the missions of the armed forces information and education program also was a goal of the course.

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

(During the temporary absence of Sports Editor Vincent Giarratano, this column is being written by assistant sports editor "Red Cloonon.")

As the baseball season rapidly draws to a close, the interest of the fans turns to the selection of the post team that will represent Fort Benning in various post season tournaments. Because almost every team in the loop has at least one star, we have listed the outstanding players in the league—in our opinion.

The Student Training Regiment-Airborne battalion has several top notch players on their roster who are veterans of last year's Doughboy team. Infielders Ralph Terry and Bob Kinard, outfielder Bill Brooks and pitcher Ike Silcox all have done good jobs this season for the Trooper nine. Catcher Tom Gallagher continues to be the class of the league behind the plate, as well as pacing the Airborne at bat.

The 15th Infantry regiment has at least three men to offer led by their ace hurler Big Jim Shirley. Shirley has carried the burden of the Doughboy mound staff almost alone and has become one of the most feared pitchers in the loop. Homerun hitter Ed Baldwin and backstop Len Strawthers also have put out some fine work for the Doughboys.

Outstanding for the Infantry School detachment has been Herb Lauve, hard-hitting first-sacker. The big left-hand batter is the most dangerous man in the ISD lineup, having parked several balls over the rightfield barrier. Other key men on the Prof roster are outfielder-infielder Woody Kurt and infielder Blondy Burnett.

The Area Service unit has been able to stay right near the top in the league because of the great performance of Bill Kovalak, star defensive outfielder. In addition to his defensive abilities, Kovalak is also a great batter being way up in the standings. Duane Delling, shortstop, and Bob Armstrong, in the outfield, are two more key ASU men.

The 30th Infantry regiment's top player is probably shortstop Dave Barnes.

The Third division artillery team boasts the top batter in the league in Edgar Powe. The squat infielder is hitting the ball at a near .500 clip and leads the league in runs batted in. He is also the top homerun hitter on the post with four.

The Third division Special troops has three top notch ball players led by mound ace Marty Kossovser. Playing with one of the weaker clubs in the loop, Kossovser has sparked the team to several upsets during the season. Don Conrad and Gordon Burke have also turned in top notch ball for the Special troopers.

The Medics have two outstanding men on their ball club in Floyd Kendall and Vance Heard. Heard is a speedy outfielder who covers more ground than any other fly chaser we have seen this season, while Kendall is the youthful hurler who upset the Divarty team.

The hapless Lawson Flyers brightest star is southpaw hurler, Glenn Raether. Despite the fact that he is playing with a last place team, Raether has attracted the attention of several pro league scouts both as a pitcher and a power hitter.

Such an array of stars as these should return from the Third army tourney with the pennant needed to enable them to be a playing host to the all-army tournament here in mid-September.

Benning Linksmen Vie In Area Meet Bragg Plays Host In Annual Tourney

A 16-man Fort Benning golf team, headed by John Henion, the post champion and Devert Moore, runner-up for the post crown, left last Monday for Fort Bragg, N.C., where it will participate in the Third Army championship golf tournament this week.

The tournament, beginning Friday, after two days of qualification rounds, will end Sunday with the selection of the Third Army team which will vie for honors in the all-army tourney at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., from Aug. 7-13.

The qualification rounds, consisting of 18 holes a day for two days, got under way yesterday and will be finished today. The results of these rounds will determine the formation of the 32-man championship, and the 16-man first and second flights.

Tomorrow the tournament play will swing into action with 18-hole stroke-in-play for the championship, second, and third flights match play for the senior championship will get under way tomorrow and will be followed by an 18-hole annual round Saturday and the finals on Sunday. Winners in the semi-final round of match play in the senior championship flight also will represent the Third Army in the senior division of the army-wide tourney.

To be eligible to play in the senior tournament, a competitor must have attained the age of 50 years on or before the first day of the tournament. Retired personnel are eligible to compete for the third army senior championship.

The tournament also will include a women's division which began with the first 18 holes of stroke competition yesterday. Based on these 36 holes of stroke competition, the feminine linksmen will be formed into 8 player championship first flights.

To be eligible to play in the women's bracket a hopeful must be a female officer or enlisted woman and must be in the army area installation or military district.

Installations and military districts will be represented by one five-man team. The team having the low aggregate score for the two qualifying rounds will be based on a combination of qualification scores and the first three rounds of match play.

Play for the senior championship also got under way yesterday with the first 18 holes of 36-hole stroke competition for 38-hole match play for the championship, second, and third flights

United States Golf Association rules and local rules of the course, when not in conflict with U.S.G.A. rules will govern all play.

Competition is open to all officer and enlisted army personnel stationed in the third army area, except members of the reserve corps on active duty for periods of less than 90 days. Air force personnel assigned to Third Army units are eligible to compete in the tournament.

Individual awards will be presented to the championship runner-up, senior's champion and runner-up, the winner and runner-up in each flight, members of the championship team, and medalists of each division of the tournament.

Redskin-Card Swap

The Washington Redskins of the National Football league announced that they have traded Bob Nassbaumer, former University of Michigan halfback, to the Chicago Cardinals for two linemen. The linemen are end Sam Goldman and tackle George and guard John Badaczewski, formerly of Western Reserve university.

Infantry Nine Surprises ASU In First of Week's 3 Upsets

Upsets seemed to be the order of the week on Gowdy field as the 30th Infantry regiment baseball nine defeated the Provisional group, Area Service unit last Wednesday by a score of 10-3. This surprise was followed on the two ensuing days by a loss of the Third Infantry division artillery at the hands of the Provisional Medical group on Thursday, and a third upset on Friday, saw the Student Training Regiment-Airborne battalion aggregation fall victim to the Provisional group, ASU.

In the first of the series of surprises, the ASU men embarrassed the 30th Infantrymen in the first frame, when third sacker Nelvis Tipton walked off of the mound. Jim McCarville, advanced on a wild pitch and a passed ball before coming home on a single by center-fielder Lefty Kovalak. Kovalak, in turn was driven in on a single by first sacker Joe McFarlin as the first half of the first frame came to a close.

Unusual Record Boasted by City USO-NCCS Club

The United Service Organization - National Catholic Community Service club in Columbus has just completed its first six months of operation, during which time 49,325 persons were served by the club's staff and facilities, club officials have revealed.

Over 800 volunteers have helped servicemen in 16,602 individual cases to make themselves at home at the club by making available to them cooking equipment, sports equipment, sewing machines, books, a darkroom and showers.

It has been estimated that 11,530 letters were written during the past six months on stationery supplied by the USO-NCCS, 8,805 articles were registered and 78 packages were wrapped and mailed for Benning soldiers.

The club held many group activities during this period, including dances, movies, parties and social events, and adjustments are being made so that the staff of the organization can offer an even more complete line of entertainment to the servicemen visiting Columbus.

Division PM Asks Drivers Not to Speed

"Speeders lose...there's no doubt about it!"

So spoke Maj. Charles S. Finch, Third Infantry division provost marshal, as he urged participation in the post's current safety drive this week.

"If you have a collision at 60 miles per hour," he said "you have as much chance of walking away as if you had driven off the roof of a ten-story building."

"At 80, your chances of being killed rather than injured in an accident are eight times greater than at 20 miles an hour," he declared. "Safety studies of rural accidents show that the higher the speed, the higher the death rate."

"Speeders lose" is really more than a slogan," he concluded. "It's a cold, heartless summing up of what drivers and pedestrians learn each year in 10,000 or more accidents—the hard way."

New Division Group Takes Florida Tour

The second group of 30th Infantry regiment men to attend the Third Infantry division's rest camp at St. Augustine, Fla., left Sand Hill recently, after hearing the reports of the men who had preceded them.

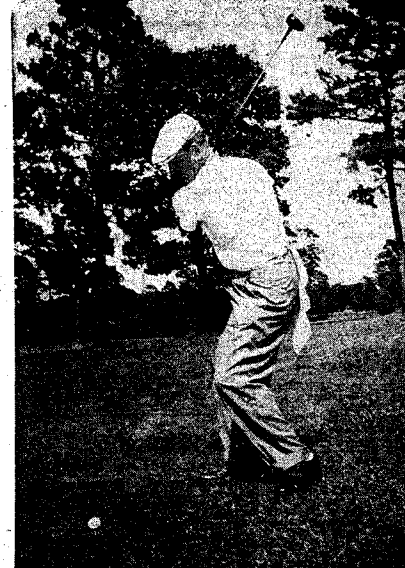

According to members of the 30th Infantry who were returning from a week's leave at the Florida resort, their visit was highly enjoyable, and they were high in their praise of facilities there.

The men enjoyed particularly the Marine aquarium, where they could observe and photograph many varieties of aquatic life.

The alligator farm near St. Augustine also attracted many Benningites.

The following men from the 30th are now in St. Augustine:

Pvt. George F. O'Neil, Pfc. Robert G. Stied, Pvt. Thomas H. Johnson, Cpl. John S. Cruise, Pvt. Stam J. Skiba, Pvt. Charles Loyd Jr., Pvt. Joseph E. Morrow, Sgt. James R. Banks, Pvt. William Carpenter, Pvt. Norman E. Hall, Sgt. Samuel I. Kaspel, Pvt. Joseph R. Byers, Pvt. George D. Williams, Pvt. Gerald Fitzpatrick, Pvt. Ferdinand W. Halm, Pfc. Gene F. Riggle, Pvt. Clarence Pardo, Pfc. John L. McLaughlin, Cpl. John W. Freizer, Cpl. John L. Krinen, Pfc. Richard Davis, Pvt. Don E. Stewart, Pvt. Robert H. Pounds, Pvt. Thomas D. Stosak, Pvt. John R. Gable, Pvt. Arnold S. Albert, Pvt. Don Z. Bean, Pvt. Clyde C. Bryan, Pvt. Victor A. Altmore, Pvt. James D. Kinney and Cpl. Acis A. Banks.

THE HARD WAY — Charles W. Davis needed two post-tournament playoffs to edge Arnold Hoebecke for fourth place on the Fort Benning golf team. The golfers were deadlocked with 304 each at the end of the 72-hole medal tournament to decide the post's links delegation at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club last week. Both Davis and Hoebecke now are participating with other post golfers in the Third army tourney at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Hemphill Downs Infantry Squad With Two-Hitter

Able supported in the pinches big right hander Don Hemphill paced his Student Training Regiment-Airborne battalion cohorts to a stellar two hit, 4-3 win over the 30th Infantry nine Thursday night in a post league encounter on Bullet field.

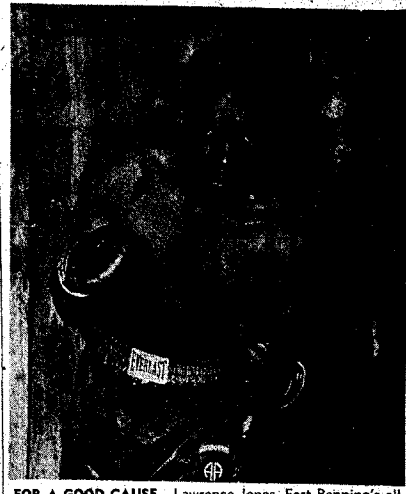

In going the route, Hemphill fanned 11 opponents, and allowed seven free passes. Ironically, the pair of bingles slashed off Hemphill were garnered by the opposing twirler, Frankie Omara.

Omara, touched for nine hits during his stint, walked four and sent back three players on strike-outs.

Leftfielder Herb O'Brien of the winners collected the only extra-base hit of the game, a double to left in the sixth.

Medics Defeat Artillery; Put Flyers In Last Place

A never-say-die cellar digging and two, in the eighth completed Provisional Medical group nine eliminated the Third Infantry Artillery squad from the post league race last Thursday night by handing the artillery men their ninth defeat of the season in a minor upset which ended in 10 runs for the Medics to the Divarty's 1.

The upset also occasioned a shift of teams in the standings line-up, as the eighth place Lawton air force base Flyers stepped down to ninth place vacating their berth to the winning Medics.

Floyd Kendall on the mound went the route for the Medics, fanning eight Divarty batters, walking two and giving up six hits to be credited with the win, while Bill Wilson started for the artillerymen, chalking up three strikeouts and allowing 12 hits for the loss, before being relieved in the seventh frame by Johnie McClinic.

The Medics stirred the scoring action for three runs in the third inning when second sacker Len Weiczorek took first on an error and advanced to second as right baseman Steve Cruce went to first on another error. Weiczorek then crossed the plate on a third error which put center fielder Vance Heard on first. The Medic infield played Weiczorek on his trip home, but he beat the throw which was then relayed to third to catch Cruce for the first out between second and third.

The Medics again tapped the artillerymen for three markers in the sixth as shortstop Joe Hughes started the action with a triple to cross the plate on a single by Griffin, who went out on second on a fielder's choice to Swifton on first. Swifton then made home on a catcher's error as Emnie Harrison singled. Harrison later came home on a single by Weiczorek.

Two more runs in the seventh

Artillery Battalion Now on Bivouac

The 41st Field Artillery battalion, Third Infantry division, is now in the field, operating on bivouac training schedule.

Purpose of the bivouac is to allow the enlisted men of the organization to undergo a general military subjects (artillery) test. This test will cover map reading, first aid, assembly and dis-assembly of the 80 culture machine gun, direction and computation of data, defense against chemical attack, servicing of the 105-mm howitzer, surveying and directional traverse with triangulation and radio-wireless work.

In addition to the working schedule, there will be a complete line of recreational activities available for the men during off-duty hours.

The evenings combat films will be shown, and swimming will be authorized as well as volleyball and softball games.

Service Company Men Promoted to Grade 5

Three enlisted men of Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, have been promoted to private first class. They are Frauci Garraughy, Floyd Happler and Charles R. Jones.

Colonel Honnen Named Head Of TIS Department

Col. George Honnen was named director of instruction of the Infantry School this week, replacing Col. Bernard A. Byrne who will leave shortly for a new assignment in Hawaii.

Before joining the Infantry School staff last month, Colonel Honnen was deputy commander of the commanding general of the Pacific area.

Colonel Honnen's army career began in 1917 when he enlisted as a private and was first assigned to the 52nd Field Artillery. Appointed to the United States Military Academy while serving in France, he was graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in 1920.

Since then he has served at the Infantry School, as aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. Walter H. Gordon and Brig. Gen. Robert H. Wells with the 15th Infantry Regiment in China, with the American Battle Monuments Commission under Gen. John J. Pershing, with the 38th Infantry Regiment at Fort Douglas, Utah, as the Commandant and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., with the United States Military Academy at West Point, and with the 21st Infantry Regiment in Hawaii.

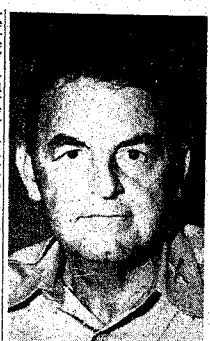

In 1942 he was appointed chief of staff of the Third Army, and two years later was named assistant division commander of the 89th Infantry Division, a post he held until 1946 when he was made commander of infantry at West Point.

In March, 1946, Colonel Honnen accepted a post as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Hawaii, and the following year was appointed to the position he held until reporting to Benning last month.

Col. Bernard A. Byrne, who is being succeeded by Colonel Honnen, was a member of West Point Class of 1918. After initial duty with occupation forces in Japan, Colonel Byrne attended the Infantry School and later served with the 29th Infantry Regiment and with the 35th Infantry Regiment in Hawaii.

In 1927 Colonel Byrne was a student at the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N.J., and upon graduation was made an instructor at the Infantry School, remaining here until 1934.

as commanding officer of the 320th Infantry Regiment, Colonel Byrne served as chief of the Communications Section of the Infantry School. Returning to Hawaii in 1944 after commanding the 320th in battle in France and Germany, Colonel Honnen was assistant commanding general of the Pacific area.

Division NCO Club Opens With Dance

BAYONET - DIVISION NCO CLUB - 2-36 BOLD: 1 OF 2 - The Third Infantry division's noncommissioned officers' club in the Sand Hill area opened its doors Saturday night with a program which included dedication ceremonies and an informal dance.

Inside the newly renovated club building approximately 800 guests danced and got acquainted. Among honored guests at the occasion were Maj. Gen. P. Joseph Boone, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment, Oliver P. Newman, chief of staff, Third Division, and Col. Joseph Boone, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment.

The festivities got under way at 8 p.m. with a dance for which was furnished by the Third division dance orchestra. General Clarkson gave a brief congratulatory speech, lauding all men concerned with the club's opening for their work and expressing the hope that NCOs in the area would take advantage of its opportunities.

The club is open seven days weekly, and plans to present dances on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday nights. The new members are Maj. Gen. P. Joseph Boone, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment, Oliver P. Newman, chief of staff, Third Division, and Col. Joseph Boone, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment.

The strength and courage of two sergeants who withstood the hardships of German prisoner-of-war camps were recorded on a new album which was presented to the club. It has been repaid as much as any suffering can be when they returned to Hawaii. The sergeants first class.

The two men are Sergeants Edward F. Dombrowski and Henry L. Fields. Sergeant Dombrowski, a member of the 30th Parachute Infantry Regiment during the War, was captured by the Germans in Normandy. He and a small group of his fellow "chutes" fought for eight days to regain contact with their unit, but were finally overwhelmed. He was imprisoned by the Germans in the Stalag prisoner-of-war camp until April 6, 1945, when he was released. He served with the First Special Service Force in Italy when he was captured by the Germans in combat action. He escaped, but was almost immediately recaptured by the Germans. His escape proved successful, and after great hardship, he managed to reach the Russian front. Dombrowski returned to the United States in June, 1945. He was assigned to the Airborne Battalion and at present serves as supply sergeant.

The promotions were made in recognition of the sergeants' combat experiences and continued superior service.

Pvt. Robert Jenkins, Leon A. Layne and Frank Tucker of Company K, Third Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment, have been promoted to private first class.

Today at Fort Jackson S. C., Saturday consisted of men from the 30th Infantry Regiment, and from Fort Benning to attend the leaders course will begin their eight weeks of training. The first time, in the two years this school has been in existence, Fort Benning soldiers were received for the cycle which began last March 28.

This group was selected from the Second Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment, and all graduated from this school where often as much as 50 per cent of a class fails. The class graduating last

Recently extended from six to eight weeks, this course consists of two main phases, the first of which the students spend at the school. Of the subjects taught, the one allotted most of the time is training methods and management, where the students, through practical and theoretical work, become accustomed to preparing and presenting lesson classes. More practical experience is afforded during the second phase which consists of actual work as cadre with a basic training company.

One of the main aims of the school is to instill confidence in the students, and much attention is given their bearing, appearance, and voice of command. Apart from class room work, the students also receive training in platoon drill, leading small units in simulated battle and all-terrain marches.

During these four weeks the students are continuously graded on performance. When the grades of an individual are low one week, he is placed on probation, and if no improvement is shown, dismissal follows. The academic work is done with a view toward the practical application of the theory. The end of the first phase is marked by the leaders' reaction test, designed to show the individual reaction of the students under physical strain.

With the completion of this part of the course, the students are assigned to regular basic training units as cadre. They are given the opportunity to apply their knowledge in leading trainees through the daily routine in the field and in the barracks. This work constitutes the final test of the students' suitability as NCO's, and a successful completion on the part of a student secures both the academic and the practical work proves that he has the mental capabilities as well as a personality suitable for handling men.

So far about 4,500 men have attended the leaders course and more than half of these have graduated. Henceforth, it is expected that more Fort Benning

'Aggressor' Being Fought By 15th Infantry Regiment

Fighting an "aggressor enemy" force in a large training area near Sand Hill, 2,600 men of the 15th Infantry Regiment are currently engaged in a 10-day "bottle condition" bivouac simulating actual combat problems.

Upon completion of training on Friday, the regiment will return to the first quartel in the Main post area. With special emphasis on night operations the three battalions of the regiment are being trained in tactics of forward movement, concealment, avoiding disclosure in the light of flares, and scouting and patrolling.

All weapons customarily used by an infantry regiment in battle, including M-26 tanks, are engaged in training operations, working in support of foot marches, as spearheads and as defensive fire units. The first operation of its kind for many of the troops.

Like actual combat, the bivouac has its lighter side. Service company has constructed a shower on the banks of Upatol creek, movies are shown in bat-

GETTING ON THE LIST . . . M-Sgt. William F. Bertram of Army Field Forces board No. 3 signs the reservation list for future reading at the Main library. The reservation system, which allows readers to put in requests for popular books, was instituted at the library last month. The plan eliminates the hit-or-miss chance of picking up a desired book from the shelves and fruitless trips to the library. Seeing that the form is properly filled in is Miss Naoma Hollis, assistant librarian who came to Fort Benning last month.

Reading Is Rapidly Becoming Popular Pastime At Benning

Readin' and writin' is often the pet peeve of youngsters, and for some of us continues to be a task. But among soldiers, readin', at least, seems to be an increasingly popular pastime. In the Third Army area, Fort Benning is second in personnel only to Fort Bragg. Figures as shown by figures from Third Army headquarters, has the highest rate of book withdrawals per month from the post libraries in the area. The figures, as interpreted by Miss Francis Dozier, chief librarian, show that an increasing number of a soldier's leisure hours are being spent reading. An expected drop in the use of library facilities with the creation of a peacetime army did not materialize, and the reduction in personnel at the end of World War II was not reflected proportionately in the reading habits of the regular army, Miss Dozier stated. She credited the increased use of the libraries here to the efforts of the army system which keeps recent books, magazines and newspapers in stock at the post libraries. The four libraries at Fort Benning subscribe to 141 magazines and 48 newspapers, and they also maintain a stock of novels written in German, French, Spanish and Italian. Expansion of the foreign section of the Main library is being contemplated as a result of requests from the wives of servicemen who are foreign-born. The foreign collection was begun at the conclusion of World War II when the German prisoner-of-war camp at Fort McChesland, Ala., was disbanded. The POWs had a small supply of German novels in the camp which were turned over to Third Army authorities and eventually found their way to the shelves of Fort Benning libraries. The acquisition of foreign language novels has proven, so far, a difficult task, but Miss Dozier expressed confidence that further efforts will bring satisfactory results. As part of its service to the troops at Benning, two rotating libraries have been established and plans are underway to establish a third. The recent dedication of the reading room of the Second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, was also a dedication of the first rotating library set up here. More than 200 books, duplicate copies and new novels, were sent to the dayroom and established what, for all practical purposes, was another branch library. The arrival of the Reserve Officer's Training corps encampment gave rise to need for another such establishment, and books were sent to Hampton church for the summer. In the Harmony church hospital area, site of an enlisted men's housing project, the recreation building of the community will contain 500 volumes from the library. Miss Dozier expressed optimism over the reading practices of the serviceman. "I definitely believe that more and more soldiers are realizing the value of the printed words both for entertainment and knowledge," she said. "While a great number of light western and mystery novels still appeal to most readers, there are indications that the more serious, important works of fiction and non-fiction are increasing in popularity," she concluded.

Cited For Part In Film Project

In a letter from Lt. Col. Eric P. Ramee, director of the Training Publications department of the Infantry Schools to Company B, 15th Infantry regiment, the unit was cited for its outstanding assistance in the filming of the training film "Rifle Squad in the Attack". Maj. C.M. Freudentorf, the technical adviser for the filming of the picture, joined Colonel Ramee in praising Company B for its cooperation. "The manner in which the men from Company B performed their duties during the two-month period required to produce this training film deserves the highest commendation. Their willingness of each individual to accept the role of a cameraman, the film director, and by the high morale of the unit while in the letter of commendation read. Several members of the company were cited in particular for their aid in the making of the film. Lt. William Hanger, Sgt. 1st Cl. J. T. Dunn, Sgt. H. O. Bonnel, Cpl. A. E. Crease, Pfc. Lindell Collins, Pfc. E. Sperry and Pvt. J. S. Baker received the special mention.

Dennison Ends Course With Highest Honors

Sgt. Robert N. Dennison, Company F, 30th Infantry regiment, recently distinguished himself by placing first in an intelligence school held by the G-2 section, Third Infantry division. Of 200 men attending the school, Sergeant Dennison obtained the highest score, 98 out of a possible 100. In recognition of his achievement, Sergeant Dennison was awarded a three-day pass by Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division.

ORC Guard Units Set To Train Here

Nearly 5,000 Georgians, Alabamians and Mississippians will leave jobs and fields during the coming summer months to take part in the training program for civilian army components at Fort Benning. The troops are all members of organized reserve or national guard units.

Sunday, members of the 81st Infantry division, an organized reserve component of the Georgia Military district, arrived at Fort Benning for processing prior to joining the Third Infantry division for a two-week training period ending July 24.

The 321st Infantry regiment, part of the 81st, joined the 15th Infantry regiment Monday for bivouac training. The 81st division sent 372 officers and 181 enlisted men here for training. Units of the division have been assigned to similar units in the Third division to facilitate coordination of training, officials said. The commanding general of the 81st division, Brig. Gen. Carl T. Southerland will operate in conjunction with Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third division to ensure correct training and proper orientation for the reservists. Approximately 50 members of smaller units arrived here last week for training with the 73rd and 74th Infantry battalions, a part of the Third division. On July 24 nearly 200 members of reserve engineer and tank battalions will begin their two-week period which ends Aug. 6.

Approximately 8,500 Alabamians and Mississippians, members of the 31st Infantry division and the 10th and 11th Mississippi national guard, are expected to arrive at Fort Benning July 31 to begin their two-week stay. They will leave Aug. 14. The last major unit to arrive at Fort Benning this summer will be the 87th Infantry division, which is scheduled to arrive at the post Aug. 21 for a two-week period ending Sept. 4. The 87th is an Alabama Organized Reserve corps unit and expects to send more than 600 members of the unit here for training.

The 81st and 87th divisions will conduct their training in keeping with the schedule already set up by the Third division. Personnel of ORC units will be used as instructors where conditions allow, it was pointed out. The reserve troops will be under the direct command of Third division officers with ORC officers coordinating their command with that of the regular commanders. The summer training programs are part of the army's plan to keep inactive reserves informed of the latest developments in military science and tactics.

Takes Command Of Infantry Unit

First Lt. Cornell C. Saunders assumed command of Company K, 15th Infantry regiment, recently replacing Capt. Robert L. Crook, who has left the post to join the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C. Prior to taking command of Company K, Lieutenant Saunders served as battalion motor officer. The lieutenant entered the army in 1941, and was commissioned in 1942, after which he served overseas with the 33rd Infantry division in the Pacific theater. Following graduation from the Infantry School's motor course at Fort Benning, Lieutenant Saunders was assigned to the 25th Infantry regiment, which later became the 15th. A native of Philadelphia, Pa., Lieutenant Saunders attended Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., before entering the service.

Troops March For Convention

More than 600 Third division Infantry troops paraded in Mobile, Ala., at the Alabama American Legion convention which was held there on July 4. Lt. Col. Sidney Mouchet, commander of the 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, commanded the troops, which included the First Battalion of the 30th Infantry B of the 41st Field Artillery battalion, the Third Infantry division band and elements of the Third Medical company. The detachment left Sand Hill on July 3 for Mobile making the 300 mile trip in 90 trucks, escorted by Third division military police under the direction of Capt. Richard R. Anderson. The parade, which was led by 54 instruments of the band, was reviewed by a group of dignitaries which included Alabama Governor James Polson, Lt. Gen. James C. Gilliam, commanding general of the Third Army, and Legion Commander William Perry.

GI Blood Rallies Ex-Wac New Hope for Leukemia Victim, Unborn Child

New hope for a leukemia ridden ex-Wac and her unborn child was seen today as the result of a total transfusion of blood donated in Augusta by 41 Fort Benning soldiers. In a move to prolong the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, 27, of Columbus, and to permit the birth of her child, her husband, Columbus Post Office Employee Charles Harris, called on Fort Benning for volunteers to offer the vital blood. Yesterday at 6:30 a. m., 41 members of the 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, were flown from Lawson field at Fort Benning to the University of Georgia's Medical school hospital in Augusta, where the transfusion was performed. Mrs. Harris was stricken with the usually fatal disease several months ago. It was first discovered when she went to an obstetrician upon learning of her pregnancy, and on June 18 she received a transfusion which strengthened her. Mrs. Harris was a member of the Womens Army Corps from January, 1943, to February, 1946, and upon her discharge came to Columbus where she worked as a commercial printer, photographer, and lithographer. Her husband has been with the post of 15 months since 1946 when he was honorably discharged after three and one-half years in the Navy. Mrs. Harris' sister was in the operating room yesterday, assisting in the transfusion. She is Lt. Florence Hedrick, an Army nurse stationed at Turner Air Force base, Albany, Ga., who is on special leave to help her stricken sister. The donors from the First battalion, Headquarters and Headquarters company, of the 30th Infantry, were: First Lt. Zeb V. DeLaney, Cpl. John C. Barzon, Pvt. Paul B. Beal, Pfc. George Bishop, Rct. A Leaky Roof Is Dangerous

The expected budget cut for fiscal 1950 is perhaps necessary to prevent an economic crisis, but we don't think it wise to reduce the National Military Establishment's appropriation until all other avenues of escape have been fully explored. In the past, the NME has been the first to suffer under the "paring down" process, resulting, unfortunately, in great danger to national defense.

To endanger national defense is to ask for trouble, as we have on occasions found out, sometimes almost too late. That is one reason why we never fail to be amazed at the insistence on a reduction in the NME's monetary appropriation, especially when we recall the pathetic sight of soldiers using wooden guns and placards as substitutes for real weapons and tanks and our almost heartbreaking unpreparedness for war during the early days of the last conflict. For such "defense" conditions to exist in the world's richest nation is almost unbelievable; yet, exist they did. And it's in the realm of possibility that such a situation could return.

One of our bulwarks against attack by an aggressor is the strength we now possess, but we are in danger of losing that strength if the NME's budget has to withstand any sizeable reduction.

It's reasonable to assume that should there be a cut in military appropriations, it would be necessary to reduce the size of the NME proportionately, with the further possibility that no new men could be trained, either in the regular establishment or in the reserve or national guard components. To be unable to train new men is to court disaster, and to disband the civilian components is unthinkable since we must have reserve and national guard forces to supplement the regular force if the effectiveness of the military is to be maintained.

The research and development of the NME would likely suffer immeasurably if the military budget is reduced as substantially as some seem to think. Actually, it's possible that the entire research and development program would become a thing of the past.

The importance of developing new methods of warfare can never be overemphasized. We imagine there are many professional soldiers who still remember the sad state of U. S. military development at the outbreak of World War II. As an example, we might point to radar. Our own research and development in the electronic field had been "piddling," but, fortunately, our British allies had made great strides and their scientists were willing to work with ours in an effort to overcome our deficit. We might never again have that opportunity.

Of course, we do not advocate overspending, and we agree that it is unwise to live above our means; but if the roof is leaking, isn't it better to borrow enough money to have the roof replaced than it is to endanger the health of your family?

The Mark Of A Good Soldier

Each afternoon at five-thirty, when the flag is lowered and retreat is sounded, good soldiers stand at attention to salute the flag. There are, however, at Fort Benning a few who fail to take advantage of the daily opportunity presented them to pay homage to the symbol of their freedom.

We have seen soldiers run into buildings to keep from saluting their flag. We have seen them fail to get out of their automobiles, pretending not to hear the retreat call. We have heard them mutter under their breath when they find themselves forced to salute the flag.

Everyone should be proud of the American flag. And this is especially true in the case of soldiers who fight to insure that this same flag will continue to fly proudly.

Report from Washington

New Chevrons Will Not Be Issued Now

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The new, small, army blue-on-gold combat chevrons will not be issued in the United States until the stock of the old-style stripes is exhausted, according to the quartermaster general's office. In overseas stations requisitions for the new chevrons are being filled by area depots.

Army and airforce regulations have been incorporated into two new joint directives governing the physical evaluation, hospitalization and disposition, including retiring boards, for all army and AF male and female warrant and commissioned officers.

Tentative approval has been given by the Senate Armed Services committee to a bill to permit 10,000 aliens to enlist in the army.

Defense stockpile purchases will be made by a new agency following approval of legislation creating the General Services Administration which was recommended by the Hoover Commission. President Truman has named Jess Larson, war assets administrator, as director of the new agency.

The army and airforce have issued new regulations governing transportation of household goods on change of station and the travel of dependents to the between overseas stations. The dependents' travel reg is SR 55-765-5-APR 75-26. Transportation of goods is governed by AR 56-160-AFR 75-30.

Carl R. Gray, veterans administrator, has disclosed that national service life insurance policyholders would start getting rebate checks at the rate of about 200,000 a day, probably in January. Mr. Gray said that the complicated machinery of the big refund pay-off made it possible to start the payments this year.

Directive SR 615-220-52 is the recently issued provision under which enlisted men can volunteer for duty as instructors in the army language school at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. Eligible for such duty are men who have 15 months to serve in the ZI, 18 months to serve if overseas or indicate a desire to extend enlistment or reenlist; have completed basic training; have not been assigned to other duty which requires their lingual ability; are native speakers of any of the 16 languages taught at the school; are high school graduates or the equivalent in the countries in which the languages are spoken, or have USAFI credits or have passed GED tests on the high school level.

Man Can Live Only By Favor Of God

By CHAPLAIN RUSSELL O. KIRSCH

The book of nature needs only to be turned over by a reverent hand and read by an attentive eye to be found full of important and valuable teachings. For example, consider the burrush of the Nile valley. It was also known as the "papyrus" from which our word "paper" comes. The Hebrew word for burrush signifies a plant that is always drinking, for the rush lives perpetually by drinking water. It is entirely dependent for its life on the mire in which it is planted. If there should come a season of draught, the rush would more speedily die than any other plant just because it is made to grow in water. In the Book of Job we find the question: "Can the rush grow up without mire? Can the burrush live without water?"

From this interesting fact of natural history we can draw this lesson: Just as the rush requires water for its life, so man can only live by the favor of God. God is as necessary to our souls as the food to our bodies. Our souls ever thirst for a living God. We are made for God as the burrush is made for water. Nothing but God can suffice us. What we require for our spiritual well-being is that we shall grow beside the well of water that springeth up into everlasting life.

The soil of grace is the only circumstance in which we can flourish and accomplish God's purpose for us. We must grow in something, and if not in grace it will be in sin and degradation. Grow in grace, for the roots of your well-being will draw living sap continually from the Fountain of Living Water welling up perpetually. Without God we can do nothing. We are like the burrush without water which "withereh before any other herb." With God we are like the rush with its roots in the river, living and growing as long as it remains in its natural habitat.

Your Red Cross

Just One Of Many Services Available

By MURRAY E. HILL

If you were an officer or an enlisted man and suddenly found your wife or other relative, long expected from a foreign country, was arriving unexpectedly at a port of debarkation and you were unable to meet this person what would you do?

The chances are if you did not think about it yourself any number of people would suggest your contacting the Red Cross.

Just recently it has been our pleasure to help three servicemen at Fort Benning in such a situation. Only this last Saturday a corporal came to us with this problem. He had no accrued leave and realized that even if he did have, he could hardly get to New York by early Monday morning. In addition to this, this corporal, realizing the expense of a trip to New York would be an amount equal to what he and his wife could live on for at least a half-month.

The soldier gave us all the information when his wife was arriving, what boat she was on, her name, etc. This was transferred to the New York chapter by telegram, and arrangements were made to meet her at the boat, to buy her a ticket to Columbus, and to give her a letter of instruction to hand to railroad officials, Travellers Aid representatives and Red Cross workers to insure her a comfortable and safe passage to Columbus.

Officers, too, sometimes find themselves in a similar situation of being unable to leave the post. A similar arrangement was made a short time ago for an officer whose wife was arriving from Italy.

This is just one of the many types of services which would be impossible if it were not for the wide-spread network of the Red Cross through their 3,700 chapters — all trained to know what to do at the right time and all with one thought in mind — to carry on when an individual finds, through circumstances beyond his control, his inability to carry on himself.

TURNABOUT . . . Pat Hall, Tarzan's jungle queen in the movies, puts suntan lotion on one of the strong man's pets who obviously doesn't need it. It might be nice to be that monkey for a while, however, if we had the privilege of applying the lotion to Pat's tender skin.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

ONE WOMAN'S STORY with Ann Todd and Claude Rains. This is the dramatic story of a woman who gambled the marriage and security offered by her husband against the love of another man and brought all three to the brink of ruin. Recommended for adult.

STAMPEDE with Rod Cameron, Gale Storm and Johnny Meek. Brown. Strong wills clash, and fists and bullets fly as the historic struggle between cattlemen and neaders for control of the plains provides the plot for this western. Recommended for family.

FORGOTTEN WOMEN with Elyse Knox and Theodora Lynch. The clash between careers and family life provides the basis for this story of conflicting ambitions. Recommended for family.

MIGHTY JOE YOUNG with Terry Moore and Robert Armstrong. By the clever use of trick photography and undisguised hookum, this story of the robus escapades of a giant gorilla really presents something "different". There has been nothing like it since the famous King Kong appeared on the screen several years ago. Recommended for family.

ANNA LUCASTA with Paulette Goddard and William Bishop. Driven from home by a quick-tempered father-and brought back by her brothers who figure on arranging a profitable marriage, Anna is torn between the loves and hates of a violent and scheming family. Recommended for adult.

To Amuse You Today On The Bookshelf

Sweet and Sour by Joseph Wechsberg. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston, Publisher.

By D. W. SCHAEFER

"What's all those names?"

"That's a list of the guys I can whip."

"But you can't lick me, you know."

"OK, OK, then I'll take your name off the list."

Men dream of smooth white fingers

Running softly through their hair,

And a subtle scent that lingers—

From a first class barber chair!

The doctor had examined his patient and had then asked to see the man's wife alone. He offered her a chair and bluntly stated: "I don't like the looks of your husband, Madam."

She apologized: "Neither do I, doctor, but he's good to our children."

A youngster attending church for the first time was surprised to see the people around her kneel suddenly, and asked her mother the reason.

"Hush!" her mother whispered. "They're saying their prayers."

"What!" exclaimed the little girl. "With all their clothes on?"

Oh, summer is the time of year That simply can't be beat And I'd be wild about it, if It weren't for the heat.

Anyone who has read "Looking for a Bluebird" would almost automatically look forward to reading anything else by an author who could weave such delightful tales of the "bonhomie" of life aboard that decrepit French liner "La Bourdonnais".

The reader would not be disappointed by "Sweet and Sour", but in trying to peruse the book in its entirety at one sitting as one did in reading "Bluebird", a vague feeling of annual would creep up and envelope him.

The naive and complete spontaneity of "Looking for a Bluebird", that charming feeling of insouciance which made flying with that fabulous bird so easy, are lacking in "Sweet and Sour".

The book is aptly titled. Although the author probably intended to convey another meaning, the tales are actually sweet to read in some cases, but rather sour in most.

The writing is not bad, nor is the humor. One feels privileged to join in with Mr. Wechsberg's sometimes incredible adventures. But afterward one wonders if the laughter wasn't just a little forced.

Mr. Wechsberg deals with the claque at the Vienna Staatsoper in one tale, but it seems to this reader that the fiery Joseph Schostak, the claque chief has lost his touch.

To be fair to the author, however, one should take into consideration the current disenchantment with things as they are which seems to have gripped the world and against which the world is valiantly struggling. If The Singing Pharmacist and No Weeping Tonight, Bacchettai were the two tales in the book which really impressed us, it might have been because they expose a certain poignant sadness beneath their facile humor.

Of course, all great humor is also great tragedy, but the tragedy behind those two stories is becoming increasingly difficult to laugh at.

We recommend "Sweet and Sour". It is not Joseph Wechsberg at his best, but the humor is there although some of the spots is gone.

ROTC DANCE... Getting acquainted at the first in a series of Reserve Officers' Training Corps dances held recently in the Harmony Church Service club, is Miss Sue Bloodworth, vice president of the Cotillion club, Columbus, Cadet Joe Gamon, Clemson college, Miss Annette Watkins of Columbus, and Cadet John Jenkins, Clemson college.

ROTC Dance Series Draws Social Crowd

Approximately 500 cadets and their dates, young lady guests from the Cotillion club of Columbus, and Auburn sorority girls, attended a buffet dinner dance in the Harmony church service club, recently, the first in a series of Reserve Officers' Training Corps dances, which achieved tremendous success.

Maj. Allen M. Burdett and Capt. J. S. Changaris, special services officers, were in charge of entertainment planning and supervision, and Lt. Marvin L. Major Burdett and Captain Changaris, in collaboration with Mrs. Mary Manlove, director of service club No. 4, also have planned and supervised a series of dances for the negro cadets, represented by the ROTC group. The Harmony church service club will be the scene of another ROTC dance tonight, when cadets and lady guests from Columbus will dance to music furnished by a 10-piece orchestra.

The final dance for the cadets will be formal, preceded by a buffet supper, and will be held in the Officers' club on July 28. A 10-piece orchestra has been engaged for this important social event, and invitations have been sent to Auburn sorority girls and members of the Cotillion club in Columbus.

Lt. Hickman, Col. Slade Will Marry Sunday

Of interest to friends on the post and throughout army circles, is the announcement of the marriage of Lt. Mary Catherine Hickman, popularly known as Kay, and Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, which will be solemnized in the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John E. Arthur at 102 Miller Loop, Sunday afternoon at four. The bride's daughter, Prof. and Mrs. C. Wright Hickman, of Moscow, Idaho, has been a dietitian at Station hospital, Fort Benning, since March 1948. She is a graduate of the University of Idaho, where her father is head of the Animal Husbandry department. She took her dietetic internship at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and was commissioned as army dietitian in 1944 serving since then at several army posts and stations on the West coast prior to her Fort Benning assignment. She is a member of Kappa Gamma Gamma sorority and has taken part in Pan Hellenic activities on the post.

Colonel Slade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Slade, of Mt. Taber, N. J., is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. class of 1932. From 1932 to 1941 he served with field artillery units, when he entered the University of Mexico as a language student. From 1942 to 1945 he served as instructor and assistant professor of Spanish at USMA, until he was sent to Okinawa where he served with XXIV Corps artillery units and was G-2 in the occupation forces there. 1946-1947 marked his assignment as assistant G-2 on General MacArthur's General Headquarters Staff in Tokyo. In the spring of 1948, after a refresher course at the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla., Colonel Slade came to Fort Benning, and assumed command of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion.

Following the wedding reception at the Fort Benning Country Club Sunday afternoon, Colonel Slade will leave for Washington, D. C. with his bride, where he will serve for a brief period with the Department of the Army's intelligence division, prior to assuming his new duties as a military attaché at the American embassy in Mexico City, September 1. It is interesting to note that the colonel's year as a language student at the University of Mexico, his record there, and his subsequent experience as instructor and assistant professor of Spanish at West Point, provided the necessary background which brought about the request for his services as an assistant military attaché at the American embassy, and led to his new assignment there. The couple plan to visit their respective parents in New Jersey and Idaho, traveling by motor, while enroute to Mexico City.

Announcement

Vacancies exist on the teaching staff of the Fort Benning Nursery school for the coming year. Those interested in teaching positions for the 1949-1950 term are urged to submit written applications to Box 1000, Benning, Ga. Application will be accepted after July 31, 1949.

Harmony Church Housing Opened

The Harmony church apartments were opened officially last Saturday morning when Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center, presented a symbolic key to the community to three master sergeants who are high on the list for on-the-post housing, in the community building of the project.

Sergeant Reeves looks perfectly comfortable and the ball game on the radio adds to the contentment. Below the living room is another section of the Reeves apartment, the kitchen. Mrs. M. T. Reeves seems pleased with the efficiency of her new kitchen. The range and the refrigerator are part of the permanent utilities installed in the apartments. The picture to the lower right illustrates that the apartments will be a community in the real sense of the word. Where children are, there is a home. Palmer Reese, wife of Sergeant Reese. (in the background) disclaims all credit for the children being hers, but she is, after a fashion, responsible for them. Mrs. Reese organized and will continue to handle the day nursery in the community building of the apartments.

which combined to create the Harmony church apartments, Colonel Bell paid special tribute to the enlisted men from the third division who contributed their time and effort to the construction of the units.

Following the presentation ceremony, Major Keith introduced the wives of servicemen who played a part in the community facilities of the project. Mrs. Powell was introduced as the feature librarian of the community building and Mrs. Flossie Palmer was praised for her part in organizing the day nursery.

Walker Named Manager To Form '49 Doughboys

The Doughboys, the local all-star team which will represent Fort Benning in the Army, Navy and Air Force championship baseball tournaments, will appear on the local diamond horizon in the very near future under the able piloting of James L. Walker, who has been named manager of the Infantry School detachment team in the intra-mural pennant race.

Walker's ability is spoken for in a record studded with successes that date back to 1945, when he guided the Airborne regiment team to victory as champs of the post that year.

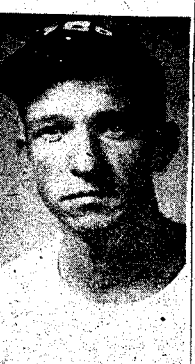

The following year Walker became mentor for the Airborne battalion squad which he also brought to the local diamond post crown winners with 24 wins and only one loss.

Recent performances began to be a habit with the fiery little (he only stands five feet, six and one half inches) diamond boss, when in 1948 he managed the 133 aggregation which copped the intra-mural league crown undefeated after a heated season's race with the Airborne battalion nine.

Post athletic officials raised their eyebrows, but sat up and took notice then, and appointed the able mentor coach of the 1948 Doughboys as assistant to Manager Herb Bench. That year the Doughboys annexed the Third Army crown and the Georgia-Alabama regional semi-pro title, and participated in the National Semi-Pro Baseball championship tournament in which they were eliminated in the second round of play.

Walker's experience as a diamond mentor, and the return of a goodly number of Doughboy veterans, should spell a sunny horizon ahead for the 1949 version of the Fort Benning baseball Doughboys.

Ruth Did More Than Hit
Although he is best remembered for his tremendous home runs, Babe Ruth was quite a pitcher, too. In the 1918 World Series, he pitched 13 scoreless innings against the Brooklyn Dodgers. In the 1918 Series, he pitched 13 scoreless innings against the Brooklyn Dodgers. In the 1918 Series, he pitched 13 scoreless innings against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

ARMY GAME NOW . . . Colonel Robert M. Jones, center, commanding officer of the 323rd Infantry regiment (reserve) of South Carolina; checks over a training schedule, with two of his officers, Maj. Henry Hill, left, and Maj. Kenneth Vickery. Colonel Jones' regiment is currently undergoing a two-week training course at Fort Benning along with other units of the 81st Infantry division. The three officers are employees of Clemson College.

Clemson Tigers Grid Mentor On Tour With 81st Division

The requirements for an army officer, and that of a football coach are not too different. Both require leadership, intelligence, personality, and knowledge of the subject. This is proven by the success of Col. Robert M. Jones, end coach of the Clemson Tigers football team, and commanding officer of the 323rd Infantry regiment. The 323rd is a unit of the 81st Infantry division, a reserve organization from South Carolina, now on a two-week tour of active duty at Fort Benning.

Colonel Jones emerged from World War II wearing the eagle insignia and was assigned as top reserve officer in the Palmetto State. With this "sideline" job secured, the former Eighth Infantry division field officer returned to Clemson, his alma mater, to take the reins as a head coach of the Clemson college Tigers.

Jones' knowledge of football, and the army for that matter, date back to the late twenties when he was a student in the ROTC at Clemson and a member of the Tiger football squad under Josh Cody, then head coach for Country Gentlemen. He's still carried on the books as one of the greatest ends ever to graduate from the Southern Conference school.

After receiving his diploma in 1930, Jones took over as head freshman coach, and a boxing coach in 1940, when Frank Howard was promoted to chief mentor for the Tigers. Jones moved up to his present job as a brains behind the flankmen.

His knowledge of the military was put to use in 1941 when he was called to active duty as a

Jones Sinks Sailor, Wins Navy Esteem

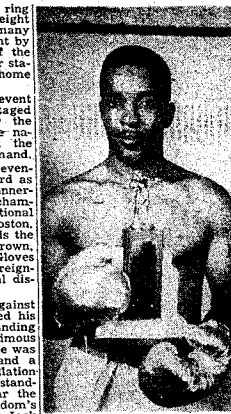

Lawrence Jones, local ring hero, and all-army middleweight boxing champ added to his many laurels last Wednesday night by defeating Pat Patterson of the Jacksonville, Fla., naval club, by decision in Pat's home ring.

The bout was the main event of a 12-rap benefit card staged at the air station under the sponsorship of Jacksonville naval officials and the local athletic district command, Sixth naval district command.

Jones' opponent for the evening also boasts a fine record as a pugilist, having been runner-up to the midweight championship in the 1948 National Golden Gloves finals at Boston, Mass. In addition, Pat holds the air station middleweight crown, the Jacksonville Golden Gloves championship, and is the reigning king of the Sixth naval district in his weight class.

Jones' performance against the heavy champ occasioned his being named the outstanding boxer of the card by unanimous vote of the ring officials. He was awarded a gold trophy and a pair of gold-painted regulation six-ounce gloves as the outstanding boxer. The mits bear the autograph of one of ringdom's outstanding immortals, Jack Dempsey. The great man of pugilism was scheduled to make the presentation of awards, but was unable to appear. He was represented by his old manager, and long time friend, Max Waxman, who presented Jones with the gloves.

Larry participated in the benefit upon invitation of Jacksonville athletic officials. The proceeds of the card were donated to the Coast Guard Memorial LAWRENCE JONES . . . Fort Benning's All-army middleweight boxing champ proudly displays the trophy he won for defeating Pat Patterson at Jacksonville Naval air station.

The win enabled the Dragons to tighten their hold on second place in the post intra-mural baseball league.

The game proved to be a pitcher's battle for the first four innings, with neither side being able to score. The sixth inning was the top of the seventh score produced by the Dragons, who added another in the next frame on a single by Bill Weizorek and a triple by Ted Mumford.

The 30th tallied an unearned run in the sixth, on two Dragon errors, but the 15th came back to the top of the seventh to score two. Eddie Baldwin's long triple with two men on base, was the big blow of the frame.

The 30th exploded for four hits and four big runs in the last of the seventh to go ahead, for the first time, 5-4. George McDonald led off with a single and went to third, as Tony Karim drilled a single to right. Hank Feeley walked to lead the bases and all three runners scored as Paul Letonski drove in the run with a double. Bob Mathews followed with a line double to score. Theonsky led off with the small run of the frame.

The 15th won the game with a two-run outburst in the ninth. The 15th led off with a single and advanced to second, as Ed Baldwin drew a walk. Weizorek then rifled a single to right to score Shirley with Baldwin stopping at third. Baldwin scored a moment later as Mumford bounced out, third to first.

Lynn Kenyon started on the hill for the 15th but gave way to a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Jack Reeves took over in the ninth and received credit for the win. Elmer McLeod was the starting hurler for the 30th but was relieved in the ninth by Jim McCarville. McCarville was charged with the defeat.

Divarty-ISD Split Twin Header Here

The Third Infantry division Artillery diamond nine wreaked havoc on the Infantry School detachment squad in a split double bill Monday night defeating the Profs 13-3 in the second clash, after dropping the opener to the Profs by the same score.

In the initial meeting of the twin bill, the Profs and Artillery men played out a clash which had been protested by Divarty and recreation non-commissioned officer of the 3440th Area Service unit, and coach of the Artillery boxing team which will participate in the coming intra-mural boxing program to determine the 1949 Fort Benning Doughboy boxing team.

30th Downed By Dragons

The Dragons of the 15th Infantry regiment scored a 5-4 victory over the Profs last Tuesday, as they downed their arch-rivals, the 30th Infantry regiment.

The game proved to be a pitcher's battle for the first four innings, with neither side being able to score. The sixth inning was the top of the seventh score produced by the Dragons, who added another in the next frame on a single by Bill Weizorek and a triple by Ted Mumford.

The plate-walk with the final run of the tilt on a fielder's choice. The play sent pitcher Wiley West on the second-to-last end the Prof's scoring for the day.

In the second meeting, the Profs went scoreless in the opening half of the initial frame allowing the Artillerymen two runs in their portion. Left fielder Dave Reed, the No. 11 man on the Divarty batting order, tripped to come home on an error by Prof right fielder John Konyar, the same error allowed Divarty first baseman Andy Hardy to make third, then home on another error by Prof shortstop John Holnacki who missed the throw from the outfield.

The Profs soon overcame their opponents' early lead, however, by chalking up one run in the third inning, and four more in the second inning, and four more in the third when pitcher Walt Warwick walked. Burgamy got on an error, and first baseman Herb Leave walked to load the sacks. Burt then came to bat and singled, driving in Warwick and Burgamy. Burnett made second on a flier, a choice which turned out to be a catcher error, allowing Leave to cross the plate to be followed shortly after by Burt with the fourth and last run of the frame on another error by Divarty Catcher Paul Red Burgamy who missed the GOOD WORK, KEEP IT UP . . . Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, presents a check to Lt. H. Suggs, (center), civilian employee of the engineer department, for initiative displayed in constructing an adaptor to an automotive testing unit which brought about a reduction in the operating costs of the department. To the left of Mr. Suggs is Lt. Col. A. C. Newkirk, acting post engineer. The ceremony took place in the civilian personnel office last Friday.

Local Civilian Awarded For Labor-Saving Device

Initiative and imagination, the two qualities most prized in workman wherever they may be, reaped their own reward again at Fort Benning last week when a civilian employe of the post engineers received a check from Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, at ceremonies held in the civilian personnel office.

Leslie H. Suggs, a mechanic in the heavy equipment repair shop of the engineers, received the award for his invention of a labor and money saving device which permitted one piece of testing equipment, the Weidenhoff magnetoscope, to do the work of three larger and more costly machines.

Suggs, in the course of his daily tasks, tests and checks engine magnetos and distributors of the heavy road equipment which use the Weidenhoff magnetoscope. Often, he was required to test the serviceability of other electrical items: voltage regulators, generators, condensers or coils. The equipment to perform such tests was not available to the small section of the post engineers. Thus, time and money were wasted in sending the more intricate mechanisms to Fort Benning's Ordnance department or to a civilian agency.

Ordnance, being equipped with the three necessary machines to test properly the items, took time away from its regular duties to test the engineer's equipment.

Mr. Suggs, realizing the waste of time and money, worked out the method of testing the additional equipment without recourse to outside shops. He captured the fortress of Mentz, France; turned to the North and engaged in the Battle of the Bulge; then steam-rolled across the Rhine.

Besides Col. Maddox, the following wartime members of the famous Third Army will be special guests at various Third Army installations on Third Army Day:

Maj. Gen. Robert R. Gay, commanding general, military district of Washington; Third Army headquarters, Atlanta; Maj. Gen. O. P. Wayland, deputy commanding general, National College, at Headquarters Third Army; Brig. Gen. Walter M. Moore, commanding general, Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Va.; Fort Benning, N. C. Col. Frederick S. Matthews, Second Army, Fort Meade, Maryland; and Fort Jackson, S. C. Lt. Col. Colonel William A. Horne Jr., Georgia National Guard to Fort Jackson, S. C.

The award was made in keeping with the policy of the civilian personnel office here to recognize ability, officials said.

General Burress Speaks at Luncheon

Columbus pulled out all the stops today in greeting Alabama Hi-Neighbor guests on "Russell County Day," the only day of the 1949 program given to a single county.

In the spotlight were the five members of the Hi-Neighbor group from Pittsview, Greenville, Seale and Hatcherbooke.

Columbus Hi-Neighbor leaders invited high ranking Army officers from Fort Benning to join Russell countymen as guests at the Hi-Neighbor luncheon at the Elks club.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Fort Benning commanding officer, and 20 officers attended.

General Burress was guest speaker at the luncheon. He spoke informally on the "international" and "neighbor" problems posed by the 25 nationalities now stationed at Fort Benning.

General Burress said even though nationalities will be cited in the Fort next year, in addition to foreign visitors such as the six Thailand Army leaders now on the post.

Guests began registering early at the Hi-Neighbor booth on Broadway between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. They received booklets of coupons worth souvenir gifts and services from Columbus merchants and were given at the booth.

The 1949 Hi-Neighbor program was reached next Wednesday mark. There have been six visiting days here and three others will come before the end of the month.

A luncheon for the Columbus-Phenix group is planned by club members and the Lions club at Preston.

More than 800 guests are expected at the next Wednesday from Group and Meriwether counties. In 1949 Hi-Neighbor program, ends with a visit to Columbus of guests from Lee and Chambers counties, Alabama.

Pay 30th Infantrymen Win Promotions

has dimmed somewhat, and the previously estimated date of action, July 21, now seems improbable.

If the Senate passes the bill in the form approved by the Senate committee, the measure will be returned to the House for passage before President Truman could sign the bill and make it law.

Under provision of the bill the greatest increase would go to the corporal with more than seven years of service, whose pay would be increased by 80 per cent. Men in the same rank but with less than seven years service would receive only a 20 per cent raise.

Recruits would continue to receive their base pay of $75 a month, with an increase to $80 after four months service.

Enlisted men's family allowances would continue under the new bill throughout current enlistments, but will expire after July, 1952.

The measure would also continue the additional hazard pay for paratroopers, with airborne officers receiving an additional $100 a month and the enlisted grades receiving $50 a month.

Foreign service bonuses would be eliminated, but those on duty overseas would get from eight dollars to $22 a month extra, depending on grade.

Longevity pay for enlisted men will no longer be figured at five per cent for each three years of service, but will be computed on a pay period basis similar to the one now in effect for officers.

Officers of all ranks would receive $45 per month subsistence allowance and from $75 to $150 per month quarters allowance if they have dependents. Without dependents, officers' quarters allowances will range from $80 to $120 per month.

Warrant officers will receive slightly less in quarters allowances, those with dependents receiving from $75 to $105 per month and those without dependents from $60 to $82.50 per month.

Subsistence rates for enlisted men will continue to be computed at the figure of $1.50 per day for men in all grades, with quarters allowances ranging from $45 to $67.50 for those men who are drawing dependency benefits.

Those enlisted men with dependents who will draw the $45 per month rate would be corporals with less than seven years service. Corporals with more than seven years service and the first three grades would receive $67.50.

Forty-five men of the 30th Infantry regiment were promoted in the form approved by the Senate committee, the measure will be returned to the House for passage before President Truman could sign the bill and make it law.

Gen. Sutherland Praises 81st Division Reservists

Brig. Gen. Carl Sutherland, here, General Clark, his co-commander of the 81st Infantry division, and men have provided the division, a s enthusiastic Thursday in his praise for the members of his unit as they neared completion of two weeks of training here.

He explained that much of the division's activity is in classrooms during the year and that work at an army post gives an opportunity for a practical test of the knowledge acquired.

While at Fort Benning, the 81st division has been super-imposed on the Third Infantry division's activities. General Sutherland said: "The Third division has made it possible for our reserve division to step into a very real situation."

General Sutherland added that one of the most gratifying things about the training period was the fact that the reservists clearly indicated that the passing of the postwar years has not lessened their military know-how.

Headquarters and division artillery of the 81st are in Atlanta. Other units of the division are located in Columbus, Raleigh, throughout Georgia, North and South Carolina.

Battalion Cited In Two Letters

The Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, demonstrated recently for their work in presenting infantry problems.

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, commended the troops on the "mission in which they carried out their mission in the defense of the 'battalion in defense'."

Gen. George C. Kennedy, commanding general of the Air University, Maxwell air force base, Maxwell, Ala., also commended the battalion for its demonstration of Infantry weapons and fire power held at Maxwell field for officers of the university.

15th Infantry Chief Given Duty At TIC

Col. James J. Torrence, commander of the 15th Infantry regiment, is scheduled to leave his unit on September 1, 1949, for duties with The Infantry Center. It has been revealed.

Colonel Torrence began his military career in 1923, when he graduated from the United States Military Academy. Shortly after receiving his commission as a second lieutenant, he was assigned to the 11th Infantry regiment, then at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He remained with the 11th until 1925, when he was transferred to Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, to join the 27th Infantry regiment.

In 1928 the colonel returned to West Point, this time as an instructor in mathematics, and worked with the 11th until 1935, when he returned to Fort Benning to take the advanced course of the Infantry School.

After graduating from this course in 1935, he remained at Fort Benning with the 28th Infantry regiment, and a year later took the tank courses which was then being offered at the Infantry School.

Shortly after receiving his commission as a second lieutenant, he was assigned to the 11th Infantry regiment, then at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He remained with the 11th until 1925, when he was transferred to Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, to join the 27th Infantry regiment.

In 1928 the colonel returned to West Point, this time as an instructor in mathematics, and worked with the 11th until 1935, when he returned to Fort Benning to take the advanced course of the Infantry School.

After graduating from this course in 1935, he remained at Fort Benning with the 28th Infantry regiment, and a year later took the tank courses which was then being offered at the Infantry School.

EVERYTHING OKAY, SOLDIER? . . . Red Cross nurse Hazel Abraham, right, smiles down at Pfc. John Belcher, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 999th Armored Field Artillery, as he gives a pint of his blood Tuesday in the Third Infantry division's current Red Cross blood drive. Over half the men in the 999th volunteered on the battalion's blood day, with a total of 150 pints of blood filling the coffers of the Red Cross bloodmobile.

Volunteers Flood Bank; 150 Pints Donated Here

A flood of volunteers from the 999th Armored Field Artillery had a 100 per cent showing with each of its 142 officers and men volunteering.

Facilities of the bloodmobile, which comes to Fort Benning for each blood day from Red Cross Headquarters in Atlanta, are limited to a capacity of 150 pints. Bloodmobile officials, however, praised the spirit of the 999th, which collected approximately 150 pints of blood in one hour.

The blood donation officer for the 999th, 1st Lt. Robert N. Duffy, revealed that a total of 400 men, more than half the battalion's strength, volunteered to donate their blood on the "mercy" day. Third Army Chief Sees ROTC Cadets In Training

Reserve Officer Training corps cadets patrolled in their last week of training Thursday meet the Third Army commander, Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr.

On a rapid one-day tour of ROTC facilities, General Gillem arrived in the morning and was greeted by the Infantry Center commander, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burruss.

The inspecting party moved to the Harmony church area at 10 a.m., where they were met by the commander of this year's ROTC encampment, Col. Francis E. Gillette, professor of military science and tactics at North Georgia college.

Colonel Gillette escorted the party to Coolidge mortar range, where cadets were participating in practical combat training. Mortar fire, simulating and combat technique were demonstrated by the cadets who spent their six-week tour of active duty practicing the lessons learned in classrooms at colleges throughout the south.

A luncheon was presented for the inspecting officers at the officers' mess in Harmony church, after which student messes and barracks were viewed by the party.

In the afternoon, General Gillem sat among the cadets as they saw an Infantry School infantry tactics demonstration on Brown ridge.

Before leaving for his headquarters in Atlanta that evening, General Gillem spoke briefly to the cadets, praising them for their hard work during the six-week period.

Recreation Camp Here For Third Division Men

A recreation camp is located at Fort Benning for the convenience of officers and men of the Third Infantry division. Maj. Murray A. Clyburn, special service officer, revealed this week. Situated on Upatoi creek, the camp is approximately 13 miles from the main post and may be reached by First division road.

The camp has been in operation since August of this year, and affords many opportunities for relaxation and recreation.

Major Clyburn listed the facilities available, and disclosed the method whereby the camp may be used.

"Reservations are needed to use the camp," he stated, "and these may be made by calling the division special service office by phone at 2835 or going there personally."

"At the camping sites, picnic area sand swimming beaches are available to anyone in the division," he continued, "and hope that everyone takes advantage of what is there for them. If you want to have a beach party, or a camping trip, picnic anything at all, you may use the camp."

A caretaker has been provided for the camp. His duties consist of taking care of the electrical facilities, bunkhouse, fireplaces and outdoor dance patio and orchestra stand on the main site.

Major Clyburn quoted a motto which hangs on the wall of the special service office: "It's yours...it's free...Well...What Are You Waiting For?"

Ability In Reorganization Gets Sergeant Mims Honor

The recent fire in the Harmony church area which destroyed one of the sheds belonging to the Tank Weapons committee of the Infantry School gave rise to the need of reorganization of the committee.

For the efficient manner in which M-Sgt. Kay T. Mims handled the task, the committee lost in time to the training of the Tank Weapons committee, named "The Rayonet's Soldier of the Week."

His tireless efforts and the cooperation of post service personnel permitted the committee to present a vital demonstration to the student officers on July 12. He obtained and readied all the equipment to be used in the problem.

M-SGT. KAY T. MIMS
... Soldier of the Week

There was the job of disarming, painting and polishing of 90 mm. and 105 mm. ammunition for display purposes. Construction of ammunition racks, removal and reuniting of fire control equipment and construction and erection of signs were only a few of the details necessary to the proper display of the problem.

In addition Sergeant Mims supervised movement of tanks and equipment to post ordnance for copy. He set up a new Tank Weapons committee office and classroom in building 2-B in preparation for instruction to be given to the school's associate basic class No. 3.

His work permitted the classes to be conducted without interruption.

Sergeant Mims has been in the army for more than 20 years. A married man he has been with the Heavy Weapons committee of the Infantry School since 1945 and at Fort Benning since 1948.

When he finishes the job of setting up the new permanent classrooms for the committee, Sergeant Mims plans to retire. "I am negotiating for a farm in Alabama now," he said.

A Step Toward Security

The date, July 21, 1949, we believe, will take its place in history along with July 4. That's the date the Senate threw off the shackles of isolationism and ratified the North Atlantic Pact.

For the first time in history, the United States is joining European nations in a military alliance. By its overwhelming six to one majority, the Senate proved to the world that this young nation has at last come of age and is assuming its rightful position as leader of free nations.

The Atlantic Pact definitely commits us to a policy of mutual military aid. The 12 signers agree that they will regard any attack on one as an attack on all. All members will work out a grand strategy of defense for the west.

"The North Atlantic Pact expresses what two wars have proved; that our own security and happiness are bound up with that of the free people of Western Europe."

Those words, by Senator John Foster Dulles, best sum up the meaning of the pact.

The treaty's aim is to make our common defensive purpose so clear that it will stop any aggressor bent on dominating Western Europe.

But let's look at the pact from the servicemen's "What's in it for me?" attitude. This country's contribution will be great. But what may we expect to gain in return?

In the first place, 11 friendly nations assure us that they'll stand with us. Secondly, they signify that no aggressor can count them among his satellites.

Thirdly from a purely military standpoint, the combined population of the 12 nations is more than 300 million people. This is an important political-military factor to those nations and especially our nation in the event we are ever called upon to defend ourselves in another total war.

Fourth, we get the industrial potential of our friends. Their combined steel production in 1948 is estimated at 37 million tons, while we produced 39 million tons. Other important contributions to the security of the western world are their natural resources, their ability to manufacture war weapons, and their ability to manufacture life-giving commodities of peace.

Should either the population or industrial potential of any one of these nations be transferred from our combination to any aggressor, it would be a double liability.

Geographically, many of these member nations are already in position where any aggression into Western Europe would be a conquest of their homelands. Given the assurance of aid and the means to resist, they will fight any threat of aggression.

Security is not just one single idea or thing. Security for the United States depends upon a combination of specific factors and principles.

Security is expensive and difficult to achieve. It has never come cheaply and never will. The North Atlantic Pact is a step in achieving that security.

For truly, the treaty is the Air-wick in the cesspool of Communism.

Third Army Day, August 1

Monday, August 1, is Third Army Day. Five years ago on that day the Third Army became operational and started one of the greatest military operations in history. Led by General George S. Patton, Jr., the "Lucky Forward" had over 281 days of combat during World War II.

The Bayonet is proud to join thousands of others in congratulating the men and officers who served with the Fighting Third during the war. We are proud to be a member of this famous Army in peace.

Report From Washington

House Approves FHA Lending

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE
The program for housing of service personnel was given added impetus recently when the House approved a bill authorizing an extension of insured-lending operations by the Federal Housing Administration for the private construction of rental housing at military installations. The bill limits aggregate mortgages to 500 million dollars but it can be increased to one billion with the approval of the President. Under the bill, private contractors would receive long-term leases on military sites. The military would supply utility services.

The combined strength of the Services dropped off to 1,813,400 men on June 30, largely because of expiring enlistments in the army. The army, which lost nearly 8,000 men, said that the decline was mostly seasonal and it would not be necessary to resort to the draft right now. Totals of the three services: army, 658,800; navy, 448,500; air force, 420,200; Marine corps, 85,900.

A new enlistment promotion system for the Marine corps, planned to unify current procedure pending further changes, has been established. The new procedure, which also adjusts service-in-grade requirements for promotion, will remain in effect until revision of the manual of occupational specialties and the MC manual is completed.

Effective Sept. 1, the only AF officers exempt from overseas duty will be those having less than two years service remaining before statutory retirement. Heretofore, officers with 27 years or more service toward retirement were exempt from overseas assignments.

A new DA pamphlet (21-5) is a treasure trove of information on personal affairs of soldiers. It replaces a WD pamphlet of the same number issued in 1944, and while it is not intended for individual distribution, copies will be made available for reference in all unit files. The 40-page pamphlet discusses the use of soldiers' deposits and bonds as a means of systematic savings; outlines the role of the Red Cross and Army Emergency Relief in meeting emergencies; and summarizes the pay and allowance laws as well as myriad other details of interest to the individual soldier.

Military personnel who actively participated in the Berlin Airlift operation are to be awarded the Medal for Humane Action. The award was recently approved unanimously by the House.

Enlistment of 10,000 aliens in the Army is called for in a bill tentatively approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee. Under the bill, which was introduced by Senator Lodge, Mass., and endorsed by the Department of the Army, aliens between the ages of 18 and 36 would be enlisted if they agreed to serve for five years.

Military personnel who actively participated in the Berlin Airlift operation are to be awarded the Medal for Humane Action. The award was recently approved unanimously by the House.

Condolences to Bereaved Can Comfort

By CHAPLAIN HARVEY M. HARDIN
To those who have Christian faith, we can say sincerely, we know that God, our Heavenly Father, will preserve the soul of our loved one. Our faith assures us the real self continues to live when death opens the door into the next life. You can close by saying that we share your grief. We pray that God will bless you in your time of need, and that He will bind up the broken parts of your heart and give you new faith, hope, and strength as you go on in life. We pray that you will be faithful to God and the things of His Kingdom until you are called to your eternal reward. Such thoughts in a letter will save you and your friend from defeat and despair. Such faith can make contrary winds of grief drive the sails of your ship of life forward. It won't make writing such letters easy, but it will bring positive good out of what could be defeat and evil.

Red Cross Lauds 999th Blood Donations

By MURRAY E. HILL
Hats off to the 999th Field Artillery Battalion again. This organization never fails the Red Cross. This was beautifully demonstrated on Tuesday, July 19th when the 999th furnished 150 volunteers to give blood during the July visit of the Mobile unit. 150 volunteers were all that could be used that day. That was not all who volunteered in the battalion, for there was almost a 100 per cent response when volunteers were called for. Volunteers are not the only thing that go to make the visit of the Mobile Blood Unit a success. The spirit in which the officers and men entered into the plans prior to the visit had a great deal to do with it and the 999th did a beautiful job of split minute timing and planning so that everything would go off smoothly. This planning resulted in one of the most pleasant and successful visits of the Mobile Blood Unit. The men and officers were all interested, and efficiently and it was the unanimous agreement of all connected with the Mobile Blood unit that the flow of men through Ward A-22 was handled in such a quiet and efficient manner that one hardly realized such a vast number of men were moving through in such a limited number of hours. Lack of space prevents my mentioning individuals who made this day such a success but again "hats off" to the 999th. They always come through for the Red Cross.

A SMILE THAT CAN CONQUER THE WORLD... Helen of Troy, we are told, had a world beating smile but Julie O'Brien seems to have all the requirements for conquering Helen's title. Julie sings for a living but her smile could always earn her breakfast.

THE BEST YEARS OF OUR LIVES with Myrna Loy, Fredric March and Dana Andrews. This story of the post-war readjustment problems of three service men is again presented for your entertainment. It rates as one of the top productions in motion pictures, having won eight Academy Awards when first released in 1946. Recommended for family.

IT'S A GREAT FEELING with Dennis Morgan, Jack Carson and Doris Day. Morgan and Carson are supposed to make a movie for a studio, but the directors refuse to have anything to do with it if Carson is the star. For revenge, Carson rigs up a deal so that a waitress can crash the leading role. Recommended for family.

COME TO THE STABLE with Loretta Young and Celeste Holm. This is a story about two nuns whose faith surmounts all obstacles in the way of a children's hospital they have vowed to build. While the basic theme is serious, the picture is also human, humorous and entertaining in a manner reminiscent of Going My Way and The Bells of St. Mary's. Recommended for family.

YES, SIR... THAT'S MY BABY with Donald O'Connor, Gloria DeHaven and Charles Coburn. Can one GI's attending school wives attend evening classes? The momentous question is settled by the musical farce in technicolor. Recommended for family.

To Amuse You On The Bookshelf

Death of a Salesman—Certain private conversations in two acts and a requiem.—By Arthur Miller. The Viking Press, New York, publisher.

By D. W. SCHAEFER
It is not perhaps in the field of a book reviewer to attempt to evaluate a play in book form; but since this play, "Death of a Salesman," is continuing to enjoy an ever increasing advance sale of tickets at the Morosco theater in New York, where it takes signs of becoming a fixture; and since it sometimes takes years for such a play to "go on the road," mention of it here would not be amiss.

Arthur Miller will be remembered as the author of the current movie hit "All My Sons" which was produced originally on Broadway. The skill he showed in that play is certainly not lacking in "Death of a Salesman."

The reader had the privilege of seeing the play in Philadelphia and those who remember the father of Joe in "Golden Boy" and the city editor in "Crossfire" can easily appreciate that Lee J. Cobb, who played those rolls, did a superlative job as Willy Loman, the protagonist of "Salesman."

Reading a play, however, cannot equal seeing it but there is, for those who choose to find it, in the published version of "Death of a Salesman" a definite thought.

Willy Loman, the salesman, had spent his life thinking in the grandiose terms of the "never say die" brand of salesmanship. But he was a failure. His persistence in denying himself, refusing to face the truth, brought him eventually to suicide.

His complete devotion to the "big deal" talk of salesmen twisted the lives of his sons and his wife until the household was divided against itself.

The complete pathos of the all too commonplace event which occurs in Willy Loman's life gives rise to things to think about.

After years of struggling he finally pays off the mortgage on his home but loses his job and his only way out.

One of his sons has become affected with the same poison that caused his father's breakup but the other has seen reality thus forming the basis for a sick family. A family of people who believed all the famous national bromides and suffered the great headache of complete disillusionment when the morning after comes.

As he peered anxiously at a uniform coming down the street, he said: "I'm afraid you wouldn't recognize me anyway, old boy, I'm new here."

"What's his name?" asked one.
"That, my friend," said the instructor, "is known as jumping to a conclusion."

"Well, with all these Wacs in the Army," continued the first soldier, "a guy has to wait until a uniform is within fifteen feet before he knows whether to salute or whistie."

"Mess Sargeant, what blantly-blank-blank put these flowers on the table?"
Private: "The Captains did my secret talk to be friendly."

"That's the trouble with this Army," complained the forlorn Sgt. Jones' wife had just purchased a grand-father's clock in an antique shop and he was forced to carry it for several blocks to the bus station. As he labored along under his burden one of his corporals stopped him and asked, "Sarge, wouldn't a watch be more convenient?"
Bessie: "I thought I heard him say 'I had a thick leg of hair.'"
Sue: "He didn't mention your hair."

Miss Bursess Weds Lt. Col. Dolvin In Brilliant Post Ceremony

Miss Cynthia Kent Bursess, only daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Withers A. Bursess, became the bride of Lt. Col. Welborn Griffen Dolvin, in an impressive military ceremony Saturday, at 8 p. m., in the Infantry Center chapel. The Rev. Mr. Churchill Gibson, of St. James Episcopal church, Richmond, Va., performed the marriage rites, assisted by Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch, of Fort Benning.

The chapel was beautifully decorated to form an appropriate setting for the wedding ceremony. A hedge of Oregon huckleberry along the chancel rail formed the base of a triangle pattern, white fourteen tall white tapers, burning in two sets of seven-branched cathedral candelabra, and banks of Woodward palms from California formed the sides of the pattern, approaching the altar to form the apex of the triangle. An enormous floral display of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and white stock centered the altar under an illuminated cross. White candles burned in three-branched candelabra at the far ends of the altar.

A half hour of organ music was presented by John C. Miller as members of the General's staff and their families, other Fort Benning military officials and their ladies, socially prominent Columbus families, and out-of-town guests assembled for the ceremony.

Selections included "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman," "Dearest Clair de Lune," "My Heart at 'They Sweet Voice'" from "Samson and Delilah," Schubert's "Serenade," "Liebestraum," "O Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" from Tannhauser, "To a Wild Rose" by MacDougal, and "I was played softly during the marriage service.

Opening strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" heralded the approach of the wedding party, led by usher-groomsman James H. Dolvin, of Atlanta, brother of the groom; Maj. Robert Jacques DeMers, Maj. James Louis Packman, Lt. Col. Edward E. Roper, Bentley Chappell, Jr., Lt. Col. Robert F. O'Donnell, Maj. William Ahern, and Lt. Col. Harry E. Clellan.

Miss Anne Cooke of Lexington, Va., was the bride's maid of honor, and Mrs. John E. Olson was designated as matron of honor. Their gowns of white dotted marquisette were designed with tight bodice and long full skirts. A large bouquet of white gladioli and white tapers in a silver twin crystal candelabra. White

The bride-elect graduated from Decatur Girls' high school, and is now a student at the University of Georgia, majoring in music. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega, Sigma Alpha Iota national honorary music fraternity, Alpha Lambda Delta, honorary scholastic fraternity, and the A Cappella choir.

Mr. Crawford attended the Allen military academy at Bryan, Texas, and was graduated from Columbus high school in 1946. He is now a student at the University of Georgia, and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Miss Meyer, Sgt. Raether Married in Lawson Chapel

The Lawson airforce base chapel was the scene of a lovely afternoon wedding reception Saturday when Miss Marlon Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Meyer of Cato, Wisconsin, became the bride of Sgt. Glenn Raether, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wolfe, of West Allis, Wisconsin, before a small assemblage of friends.

Captain (Lt. Col.) John S. Garrenton performed the double ring ceremony before an altar arrangement of giant zinnias in tall gold vases and white tapers burning in a cathedral candelabra.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Frances Glendon. Selections included "I Promise Me," "Because," "I Love You Truly," "Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "A Wedding" by Schubert. "Ave Maria" played very softly, furnished the background for the marriage service.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Raymond Thomas, as matron of honor. Mrs. Thomas wore a dress of pale pink batiste, fashioned with a deep V-neck, gathered bodice and skirt of unpressed pleats. She chose white accessories and wore a corsage of deep pink roses.

M-Sgt. Raymond Thomas served the groom as best man.

The bride was given in marriage by M-Sgt. Claude W. Hutcherson. Her wedding dress of pale blue moire taffeta featured a portrait neckline, outlined by a pleated fold of the material, and was fashioned with a fitted bodice and full skirt-length. For her bridesmaid she wore a Juliette cap of starched white lace, and a veil of pale blue tulle. Her accessories were a white and she wore a corsage of tube roses centered with yellow roses.

Following the ceremony, a wedding reception was held at the "24 1/2" club. The bride's table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, beautifully embossed, and topped with mini-ture bride and groom figurines. Low arrangements of Shasta daisies and Queen Anne's lace graced either end of the table. Sergeant Raether is a well known and popular pitcher for the Lawson Flyers.

The couple will reside on the post.

which were on display upstairs. A complete set of monogrammed silverware, service for 12, from Germany, a gift of the bride's parents, and two-piece monogrammed silver coffee service, a gift from the Dolvin family.

A dramatic event of the evening was when members of the wedding party assembled at the foot of the staircase to drink champagne toast to the bride before she prepared for traveling. As she ascended the staircase she tossed her bouquet over her shoulder, into the group of waiting bridesmaids. It was caught by Miss Anne Cooke of Lexington, Va., maid of honor.

Large trays of bouche shells filled with chicken salad and omelette and decorated with pimento, and sandwiches cut in fours were passed among the guests. Punch bowls centered tables overlaid in white and were banked in grape leaves with grapes and lemons. A strutting band played finished music throughout the evening.

Miss Helen Moore kept the bride's book.

New Band Leader For Third Division

The Third Infantry division band received a new leader last week when WOJG Ralph Dials, replaced 1st Lt. Frederick Proccisi.

Mr. Dials was on duty with the 10th Army band in Manila, Philippine islands, before his assignment here. While in the Philippines, he won first prize in the Army songwriters contest which was held last winter for the Pacific theater.

A veteran of 12 years service, Mr. Dials saw duty as an infantryman for many years before he transferred to the Eighth Field Artillery band in 1928. Shortly afterwards, he left the service to teach music at Warren and McGee high schools in Arkansas, and later at the Arkansas A & M School of Music, where he was dean of men until reentering the army in 1943.

After going through the war as a member of a heavy mortar section, Mr. Dials received a permanent warrant, and in 1945 took charge of the 10th Army band in Manila. He held this position until leaving for the states prior to his present assignment.

TEN SHORT STORIES ENTERED IN CONTEST

With two weeks remaining in the army's current short story contest, only ten manuscripts have been submitted to the board of judges, main post library officials have announced.

The names of the judges were also announced this week. Those appointed by Infantry Center special service officials are Capt. William B. Dennis, acting assistant adjutant general of the Infantry Center, formerly a radio announcer in Los Angeles, Calif., and radio script writer; John E. Minter of Columbus, a retired veteran of the original 1st Airborne Infantry regiment and author of "The Charges" one of the winners of America series, and Miss Lettner Watson, society editor of The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer.

The contest, which is designed to stimulate the interest of military personnel in creative writing, closes here August 1, when the three winning entries being forwarded to Third army headquarters, Fort Monmouth, Ga., to compete in the area-wide eliminations.

The prizes to be awarded locally will be first place, $10, second place, $7.50, and third place $5. There will be three cash awards of $5 for the three best selections in the Third Army area.

The winning three stories in the army area will then be forwarded to the Department of the Army for participation in the army-wide contest, which closes Nov. 1.

The three stories, judged best

Canadian Lance Sergeant Now 15th Infantry Corporal

During World War II, many United States citizens joined and fought with the armies of our allies, before our entrance into the conflict. One of these men is now a member of Headquarters company, 15th Infantry regiment.

In April, 1941, at 17, Elwood Hart left his home town, Rochester, N.Y., to cross the Canadian border and enlist in the Canadian army at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada.

Hart took basic training at Camp Borden, Ontario. For 21 weeks he did much the same thing that an American recruit does — he learned preliminary rifle instruction, close order drill, extended order drill, and even kitchen police. According to Hart, the only appreciable differences were in the standards of drilling and in the weapons used.

Upon completion of basic training, he remained at Camp Borden to take the 28-week infantry advanced basic, again almost identical to that received by troops here at Fort Benning. During this period, field work was emphasized to a great degree—his unit remained in maneuver areas for long periods of time, studying terrain, map-reading, and other problems similar to those employed in training the United States army.

When Hart had finished his training, he became a member of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada, an assumed duties as a border guard at Niagara-on-the-lake.

In early 1944, Hart shipped to England, where his regiment was quartered in Darlington, later in Harle, and finally in Aldershot. There they were formed into the infantry support for the British Third Armored division. The Third landed on the continent in December, 1944, at Ostend, Belgium, to begin the long march toward Berlin.

Hart was then a member of an anti-tank team, with which he advanced through Ghent, Nevevald, Alameo, Helverson, and entirely around the Zuyder Zee in Holland. Later he became a rifleman, and entered the two stiffest battles of his career: Hochwald and Richwald forests.

On May 6, 1945, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders finished their war in Oldenburg, Germany. Hart, then a lance sergeant, began his long journey back to Rochester in November, 1945. In late November he reached England; in March, 1946, he reached Canada, and was honorably discharged from the Argyll and Sutherland.

For his service with the regiment he had been awarded the French Star, the German Star, the Canadian Volunteer Service ribbon, the Victory ribbon, and the British "39-45" award.

After his return to Rochester, Hart worked for the Eastman Kodak company a year and a half, and then returned to the armed services—this time via Fort Dix, N.J.

He took basic with his younger brother at Dix, after which they split up. His brother was sent to Japan with the First Cavalry division, and Hart was assigned to Fort Bragg, N.C., with the 82nd Airborne division. In September, 1948, Hart came to Fort Benning, where he was first a member of the 325th Regimental combat team, and later assumed his present duties with the 15th Infantry regiment.

Now a corporal, he says that the American army is superior in his estimation for two reasons: (1) There are more opportunities for schooling in our service, and (2), promotions are faster and more easily come by.

Due to discharge some time next year, Corporal Hart says he intends to reenlist.

FIRE, GLASS, RAZORS DIET OF PVT. BOOKER

The sobriquet "fire-eaters" has often been applied to United States infantrymen because of their amazing ability to advance in the face of unbelievably heavy fire.

Private Booker's unusual talents were cultivated during his early childhood, when he was fascinated every spring by the fire-eaters in the circus. Later, at the age of 15, after watching a performer in his home town of Norris town, Pa., he tried the stunt himself.

When asked what prompted him to attempt the trick, he replied, "I was just curious to know how it was done and believed if that guy in the circus could do it, I could too. This practical view kept Booker working at mastery of the stunt, despite severe burns which he suffered during his earlier attempts."

After 10-g practice, Private Booker succeeded in mastering the art, and joined Barzun and Bailey's Circus. He remained

THE BIG APPLE The Best for Less

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

We were very much in favor, last Sunday night, of umpire John Lockamy's actions when he cleaned out the dug-out of the visiting team at Gowdy field and ordered all the players in it out of the ball park.

Lockamy had done an excellent bit of base umpiring in the opener of the double header played that night, and had acted as plate arbitrator for eight frames of the second game when the incident occurred.

The victims of his wrath, it seems, had discovered early in the first session that John is the Sergeant Major of the outfit represented by the home team. Throughout the two games the visiting players had made a point of boisterously and petulantly commenting on that fact. They even went as far as to stand outside the fence and continue harassing Lockamy after he had ordered them out of the park. In our opinion the whole affair was one of the worst spectacles of poor sportsmanship seen all season, considering Lockamy's reputation as a baseball arbitrator.

Lockamy enjoys a reputation throughout the post among coaches, managers, players, and fans alike as a fair, honest, and conscientious arbitrator. In fact, his colleagues have unanimously named him the umpire most likely to succeed were he to aspire to professional ball. It also happens that Lockamy is one of the three umpires from Fort Benning who have been named to handle chores in the Third army championship baseball tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Speaking of the 15th, that Third Infantry division unit is setting a fast pace for other units on the post to keep abreast of. The Dragons, the regimental baseball team, ended their post diamond season activity in a heated race with the Provisional group, Area Service unit for second place honors. — The 15th won the Infantry Center track and field meet, and both the Third division, and the Infantry Center swimming meets — at John Hargrave, the Third Army golf champ, and John Henion, king of the Fort Benning golf and country club course, are both members of the 15th Infantry regiment.

If all the units on the post took the active interest in sports and athletics that the 15th has shown, Fort Benning could easily become the home of army area, and even all-army champions in any of the sports engaged in on those levels.

Under the direction of new coach Mike Chester, prospects for the 1949 Doughboy football season have started submitting their names to the Infantry Center athletic office for tryouts for berths on the post grid squad. Mike is taking the applications by unit, and expects to have finished screening the 30th Infantry regiment of the Third Infantry division, this week.

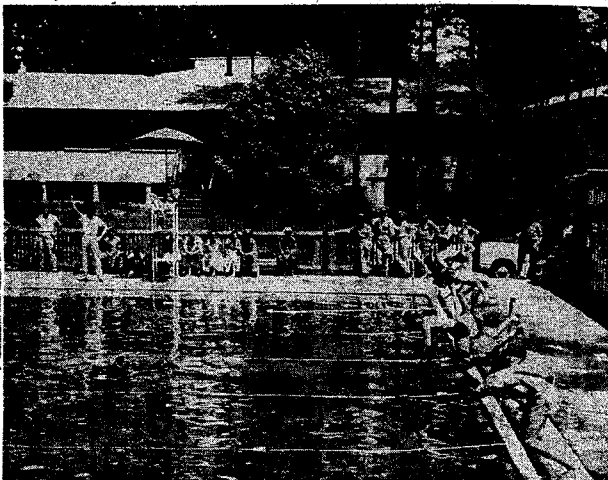

Chester had a very successful season in 1948 as coach of the Fort Bragg Assassins, last year's No. 1 team in the Third Army area.

Mike says he expects to play the Doughboys this year out of a T formation as taught by Red Blake at the United States Military academy, and will feature an open attack running out of that formation.

According to Chester, if the latent talent that is on the post turns out for football this year, the Doughboys should once again become one of the most feared service eleven in the southeast.

30th Infantry Tops ISD In Week's Second Upset

The 30th Infantry regiment baseball nine chalked up their second upset win in four days last Sunday when they dumped the Infantry School Deacons 4-3 in an afternoon contest. Last Thursday night the 30th boys had upset the league-leading Student Training regiment-Airborne battalion 3-2 in an eleven-inning contest.

AT THE GUN—Entries in the 50 yard free style event of the Infantry Center swimming meet held at the Sand Hill pool last Tuesday and Wednesday get off for the fast heat as starter Alan Legge fires the "Go" shot.

15th Infantry Star Paces Swim Meet Johnson Leads Unit Team As Mates Help Cop Honors

The 15th Infantry regiment swimming team, paced by Bruce Johnson, turned the annual post aquatic meet into a rout last Wednesday as they rolled to an impressive victory over six other units teams.

In addition to capturing the post crown, the 15th also placed eight men on the post team that will represent Fort Benning in the annual Third Army meet to be held at Fort McPherson, Ga., Aug. 2-4.

Bruce Johnson, former New York City Metropolitan AAU diving champion, secured 10 of his team's 49 points to lead the Dragons to victory. Second place in the meet went to another Third Infantry Division outfit, Division Artillery, which scored a total of 26 points. Third place was captured by the 30th Infantry regiment to give division teams a clean sweep of the money spots. The 30th garnered 24 points. The complete superiority of the Third division is shown by the fact that the division placed 18 men on the 22 man post team.

The 15th jumped off to a quick lead in the first event of the day as Harry Bellamy of the Dragons won the 50-yard free-style in 26 seconds flat. Clair Schwabe of the Infantry School detachment, finished second, while Chuck Heskett, of the 15th, captured the third spot.

Bruce Johnson, chopping 10 seconds off last year's time for the 100-yard breast-stroke, was clocked in the winning time of 1:20. Oboey Parker of Divarty, and Hans Hayer of the 15th, finished behind Johnson in that order.

Richard Wood, of the Student Training regiment-Airborne battalion, scored his outfit's points, when he won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:19.4. Alfred C. Parker, of the Area Service unit, finished inches behind Wood, while Oliver Altord, representing Third division special units, finished third. In the 200-yard race, all three bettered last year's mark of 3:55.2.

Don Lerner, who captured the 100-yard free style in the division meet last week, repeated his win in the event in the time of 1:05.6. Bob Ristau, of the 15th

Ted Short, of the 30th, won the toughest race of the day when he finished first in the 150-yard individual medley. This event requires the swimmer to swim equal distances of breast-stroke, backstroke and free style and is considered by many experts to be the toughest event in aquatic competition. Short's time for the race was 2:21.7.

The diving competition developed into a duel between Charles James, of the 30th, and Bruce Johnson of the 15th, with the former finally winning the title.

Probably the most popular spot on the post for off-duty hours recreation is the tennis court area behind the Fort Benning colored non-commissioned officers' club, which exists because of 1st Sgt. Richard Collins who brought the idea into being and whose hands helped build the courts.

The 43-year-old sergeant was born in nearby Dothan, Ala., and enlisted in the army at Benning in 1923. By 1934 he had built up an interest in tennis that made the game his chief form of recreation.

Since the early days of his activity on the courts, Collins, who is presently assigned to company A of the Infantry School detachment, has amassed a total of 58 trophies among which is included the award for being runner-up in the Georgia state championship in 1939 and another for coping the No. 1 spot in the Columbus city tournament that same year. And in that eventful year, he added to his trophy case, the award for taking top honors in the 24th Infantry open tournament.

Other trophies for championship and runner-up wins in 24th Infantry touring and numerous other awards won in tournaments held at Tuskegee, Ala. Institute, constitute the remainder of the laurels that make up the grand total of 58.

In the recently held Infantry Center tennis meet on the Fort Officers Club Courts, Collins was eliminated in the round of competition which preceded the quarter-finals by Howard Ballett. Collins remained at Benning after his entry into the service in 1933 until 1940 when he embarked on a little sea voyage which occasioned a change of address from Fort Benning, Ga. to the South Pacific command. When not engaged in helping her for coping the No. 1 spot in the Columbus city tournament that same year. And in that eventful year, he added to his trophy case, the award for taking top honors in the 24th Infantry open tournament.

NCO Club's Tennis Courts Result Of Sergeant's Idea

The old, though very agile, sergeant returned to the United States in 1945, and once again received assignment at Benning. Since then Collins has been very active promoting tennis as a recreational activity among his fellow soldiers in outfit, he has been a member of.

In 1931, the idea of building the tennis courts formed in Collins' mind. At that time the 24th Infantry was quartered in that area of the post. Collins immediately started the wheels rolling, and obtained permission to go ahead with the project from the regimental commander.

Soon after, the work began, and Sgt. Collins pitched right in and helped do the work. Now he proudly points out the fact that the courts stay crowded most of the time with net enthusiasts engaging in their favorite pastime on their off-duty hours. And Collins makes himself available to all comers who desire instruction in the intricacies of the game.

Collins has taught any number of local court aspirants, and last year decided to team up with one of his students, Mrs. Marguerite Johnson for participation in mixed doubles matches.

CONGRATULATIONS OLD TIMER—Says Dr. Robert M. Haskins, left, director of the 9th Street Armed Services YMCA, as he presents Sgt. Richard Collins and Mrs. Marguerite Johnson with trophies they won in the recently held YMCA tennis tournament.

In the tourney, held at the Fort Benning non-commissioned officer's club, (colored) Sgt. Collins won the men's singles runner-up honors, and Mrs. Johnson, the wife of Sgt. I. H. Henry L. Johnson of the 3440th Area Service unit, won the women's singles runner-up laurels. As a team they won the mixed doubles runner-up trophy.

15th Retakes No. 2 Spot By Sweeping Double Bill

In a Sunday twilight affair, the 15th Infantry regiment baseballers swept both ends of a double header with the Third Division Artillery nine taking the seven inning first game 4-1 and the regulation inning nightcap 7-1.

By taking both ends of the twin bill, the 15th Infantry Dragons moved back into second place by 18 percentage points ahead of the idle Area Service Unit. The two plays for the Artillerymen dropped them into seventh place, one full game behind the Special Troops of the Third Infantry Division.

The Dragons won the first game with two run outburst in the first frame. With one away, Sam Hall walked and Len Strawthers singled, sending Hill to third. Jim Shirley drove a long fly to deep right field with the first out. Collins immediately started the wheels rolling, and obtained permission to go ahead with the project from the regimental commander.

The Dragons closed out their scoring in the bottom of the fifth when Nichols reached second on an error by Divarty hurler John McClinic and came home on Ed Baldwin's single to left center.

The Divarty club scored only one run in the top of the first frame as Bill Weiczerek errored on Joe Zaitanos's grounder permitting Dave Reed to score. The Divarty started off the second game in the same way, scoring one marker in the top of the first frame. Andy Hardy walked and came around to score when Jim Shirley erred on center Campbell's single. The Dragons scored back in Jim Davis.

The Dragons added two more in the fifth when Baldwin's long single scored Len Strawthers and Gene Thomas, both on bases due to walks. In the sixth inning, singles by Jordan and Hall produced another marker for the 15th. Jordan scored his third run of the game. The Artillerymen ended their scoring in the last of the eighth by scoring twice. Pitcher Walt Scott started the rally off by reaching first on interference by the catcher. Jordan followed with a walk and Sam Hall scored both with a single to right field. Lin Kenyon hurled the first game for the Dragons and limit of the Artillery nine to only four hits and an unearned run. Walt Scott put on another exhibition in the second game, allowing only three hits and an unearned run and only walked one batter. In addition to the same way, scoring six in the first game while Scott racked up twelve strikeouts in the second game. The losing hurlers for the Artillery, men were John McClinic and Jim Davis.

Six Story Drop Starts Aquatic Star's Career

Spring board enthusiasts may give dozens of reasons for their interest in the art of diving, but probably the most unusual is that given by Bruce Johnson, outstanding 19 year old 15th Infantry regiment swimming and diving star.

Johnson's introduction to the fundamentals of the art came about in a most irregular way. One day in 1946 Bruce fell from the roof of a six story building in New York, the city of his birth. A bit of exceptionally fast thinking enabled him to land on his feet, and was probably the reason he is still alive today. On the way down he did a front flip which put him in position for landing on his feet, and a run through the ordeal with a broken finger.

That incident started him thinking about diving, and he took to learning it at the Harlem YMCA.

By 1947 he had entered his first meet at the city's Colonial pool, under the sponsorship of the New York city park department. He didn't win any of the honors in that meet, but the young diver went on to the Crotona pool meet and copped the first place honors in the diving competition, and won the 100 yard breast stroke event. Then came the Jefferson park pool meet, and the New York City metropolitan AAU diving championship.

That was the year he entered Seward Park high school and won all the high school meets he participated in except the one with Textile High in which he came in as runner-up to George DeGloria in the one-meter board competition.

In 1948 he was offered a scholarship to Ohio State university by a university scout, but it seems some one with a better training and experience in the army, and that through it he could probably get a crack at the olympics. So in November he left school and joined the army.

The recently held Infantry center swimming meet, in which Johnson starred on the winning regimental team, was first taste of army competition.

The Special Troops star is currently clipping the ball for a .403 average and playing excellent defensive ball. He is one of the intra-mural league stars selected to try out for the Doughboy nine.

The Student Training regiment, Airborne battalion baseball nine moved within one game of clinching the pennant last Wednesday night when they downed the Third Division Artillery nine, 8-1.

The contest was cut short by a deluge of rain which fell in the last half of the seventh inning.

Lloyd Blackwell, Trooper hurler, pitched all the way, allowing only four hits and one unearned run, to receive credit for the win, while Jim Davis was charged with the defeat for the Artillery nine.

The Divarty club started the scoring in the top half of the first inning when Dave Reed doubled and came in on an error by Trooper Catcher Tom Gallagher.

The Troopers could not dent the plate until the fourth when they scored twice. They added three more in the fifth on a walk and two hits. The big blow of the frame was Tom Gallagher's double that drove in two runs. Hits by Bob Kinard, Ralph Terry, Herb Myatt and Tom Gallagher produced three more in the sixth before the rains prevented the Troopers from further scoring.

Leading the attack for the Airborne were Bill Brooks, with three for four and Tom Gallagher with two for three. Joe Lantry paced the Divarty team with a double.

30th Changes
In Command Announced

Several changes in command in the 30th Infantry regiment have taken place during the past week.

Captain Frank G. Ashley has been named commanding officer of company F, replacing Capt. Sidney E. Anderson, who is now Assistant S-3 to the 3rd battalion. Prior to his present assignment, Capt. Ashley commanded company A.

The former commanding officer of company D, Captain Eugene G. Sabota, assumed command of company M, relieving Capt. Wolfram K. White. Capt. White has been assigned as commanding officer to company D.

This change in command was made necessary by the fact that both officers are on competitive bids for regular commissions.

Also on competitive bid, Captain George R. Cody has been relieved of his command of Hq. and Hq. company, 3rd battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, to assume command of company E. Captain Edwin T. Rios, formerly commander of Hq. and Hq. company of 1st Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, has been appointed in his place.

Company G lost its commanding officer last week. Captain Walter T. Lewis is being transferred to regimental headquarters to work in the legal section. In his absence the company has been taken over by 1st Lieutenant Lonnie E. McCullough, until a new commander is appointed.

Battle Fatigue

The girl's face lighted up as she received her weekly letters from her boy friend overseas. After a few desultory and run-of-the-mine remarks, the letter read, "For the past three hours she has been bursting all around me." She gasped and exclaimed to her mother, "Mama, Joe's in action."

"That's strange," remarked her mother, "I thought he was a cook."

"Did I," said the girl. Then she read on, "Oh, that damn fool," she pouted, "bearing me like that. He was referring to egg shells. They had omelettes for supper."

Fifth Place 30th Stops STR Climb

The 30th Infantry regiment prevented the Student Training Regiment Airborne battalion nine from clinching the post baseball pennant last Thursday when they defeated the Troopers 3-2 in an extra inning contest.

The win for the 30th Infantry was caught them within striking distance of the first division as they now trail the fourth place Infantry School detachment by only 1-2 games.

The 30th wasted no time in opening the scoring, getting one run in the bottom of the first frame. Mary Himm drove a single to right with one away to second as Tony Karen was being fanned. Himm then scored as Dave Barnes reached first on Bob Kinard's error.

The Airborne club tied the game up in the next frame when Ralph Terry singled and came around to score on Red Collier's double to right center. They added another in the seventh on Ralph Terry's long double and hit by O'Brien.

The 30th tied the contest up in the bottom of the eighth inning when Himm singled, was sacrificed to second and came in on Paul Lethonsky's bingle to right center.

A break in the bottom of the eleventh finally decided the contest in favor of Ralph Terry. Proper third sacker, made his fourth error of the game with two away, permitting George McDonald to reach second base. Himm followed with a line single to left, sending McDonald to third. On the first pitch to batter Tony Karen, Himm broke for second. Red Collier riddled the ball to Len Carney who missed the tag and while Carney stood and argued with umpire McDonald scored standing up from third base with the winning run.

Both hitters pitched the entire distance with Jim McCarville receiving credit for the win while Bob Cronin was charged with the loss.

29 Transferred In Engineer Unit

Twenty-nine transfers affecting enlisted members of the 78th Engineer Combat battalion were announced last week.

Sgt. Sebert A. Whittis, Sgt. 1st cl. Clayton B. Johnson and M. Sgt. Charles O. Craven were relieved from duty with units of the 78th and have been assigned to Headquarters, Third Infantry division.

Eight men have reported to the 18th for duty from the Third detachment, 5200th Technical Service unit, Camp Kilmer, N. J.: Sgt. Robert L. Green, Cpl. Sanders Moody, Sgt. Willard R. Smith, Pfc. Harry E. White, Pfc. James R. Cheaney, Pvt. Luis F. Olivencia, Ret. Roger L. Murdock and Ret. James O. Merrick.

Pvt. Santos G. Parodes has reported to the 78th for duty from the 127th Area Service unit, Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Pvt. John A. Posey, Sgt. Allen J. Barb and Pvt. Ralph L. Romano have reported for assignment with units of the 78th from Battery C, 54th Armored Field Artillery battalion, Fort Knox, Ky.

Thirteen Men Volunteer For Emergency Donation

In typical army fashion, 13 enlisted men of the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion quickly responded to the call for emergency blood donors at the City hospital, Columbus, Ga., Sunday morning.

Receiving a hurry-up call from the Columbus chapter of the American Cancer Society Sunday morning, 1st Lt. Roscoe C. Cartwright, battalion officer of the day immediately founded the call for volunteers to all batteries. The response was immediate.

Under the supervision of a volunteer unit non-commissioned officer and truck driver, the group was driven to the City hospital morning, where the supervisor of nurses Miss Mary McClellan, assisted by nurses Mary Brown, Vernell Wright and Mary Higgins conducted the course through the usual blood donor procedures.

When the last man had passed through the line, Nurse McClellan expressed sincere appreciation on behalf of the hospital communications platoon for the staff and herself to the donors.

The volunteer donors included Pvt. Ilo Harris, Pfc. George Taylor, Pvt. Orlando Johnson, Pvt. Henry Darden, Pfc. Alden Hall, Pvt. John D. Lawson, Pvt. Joseph Lewis, Pfc. Robert Easton, Pfc. William Craig, Pvt. Theadore Miller, Pvt. James Ballard, Pvt. Simon Carvalho, Pvt. Virgil Hickman, and Cpl. Ardel Collier, truck driver.

Greatness Of Third Recalled

By DONALD SCHAEFER
The history of the Third United States might be written synonymously with that of the late Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., its wartime commander.

A record of army's accomplishments could also, in a sense, represent the record of the accomplishments of the officers and men who have trained here at Fort Benning.

The present commander of the Third Army, Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., has designated August 1, 1949 as the first anniversary of the "Third Army Day," commemorating the day when the army became "operational," August 1, 1944.

An innocuous word "operational," but one which presages great events.

It had been not quite a month earlier, July 8, 1944, when the American First Army and British and Canadian forces had landed on the beaches of Normandy, engaged the enemy, and against the full fury of the enemy's counter-attacks and defenses, had penetrated far enough inland to guarantee that the beachhead they had established had become a place for the seaplanes to begin their march, a march that continued until the enemy was defeated and the last soldier had uttered his scream of anguish when steel ripped into his body.

Patton Named Commander
That the Third Army would land in Europe had been known since Dec. 31, 1943, the day when it was transferred from a training to a combat army. Anybody

But Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was to be their commander; that they were to earn a brilliant niche in military history, was known only to time.

There were some signs pointing to the future brilliance of the path of the Third Army, however. German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, had already marked him as a man who was needed by America.

Intensive Training
Before the outbreak of the war, America's participation, the Third Army had trained other soldiers who went overseas to join the armies already there.

The muddy bogs of Louisiana had become more hateful day by day to the men of the Third. It seemed that they would work out the war on maneuvers.

Fort Benning and the South were the infantry training centers of officers and men who had studied under the Infantry Center's skilled artisans of infantry warfare had learned and gone.

In 1940 General Patton, future commander of the Third, came to Fort Benning with the rank of colonel as a brigade commander in the Second Armored corps. In October of the same year he was appointed to the rank of major and tremendous "esprit de corps".

The roar of the Third as it

The units were coming to Fort Benning and Louisiana, training and then embarking on the Third Army stayed on.

Third Goes Overseas
Then came the end of 1943 and with it came the end of the Third's stay in the United States. The order was UK (United Kingdom) and early in 1944 they sailed for England.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, the commander of the Third Army, did not leave with the troops.

When the ships bearing the vanguard of the Third docked in Scotland and the headquarters staff departed, they learned that General Patton was their new commander.

The men of the Third Army who went to war with him did not think of him as a heroic figure as the general public did. To them he was a soldier, who, when he went into battle discarded the stage trappings of his broad leather belt with pearl-handled six-shooters, and buckled on, instead, the regulation pistol belt from which swung a weighty, sombre .45 caliber automatic.

That he was a good soldier and a superior general, his exploits have proved. Not only American generals but British and French and even German leaders who worked with him or fought against him, admitted that if Patton and the Third Army hadn't been there, things might have been different.

Organized to Fight
When he took command of the Third, Patton was quick to reorganize it along the lines which had made his work so successful in Africa.

His aim was a superior staff to lead superior soldiers and that he knew how to pick his men was evidenced by the drive of the Third Army. With the support of the XII Tactical Air Command, the path which took them blazing through France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Austria was a masterpiece of magnificent planning, unerring staff work pushed through Europe echoed back to the United States and instructors in infantry at Fort Benning breathed a sigh of satisfaction. They knew they had done their work well.

Battle of the Bulge
The Third Army fought many battles, but perhaps the most is the now historic battle of the bulge or the Ardennes campaign. The campaign is estimated by military authorities as the most concentrated and bloodiest operation of the Third Army during the entire war.

The VIII corps, then part of the First Army, with headquarters at Bastogne, held a front approximately 900 miles long. A front manned only by three infantry divisions—Fourth, 28th and 106th Infantry division.

The Third Army was busy to the South in what was considered the most active of the front. They were capitalizing on their breakthrough at Avranches and General Patton was making plans to cross the Rhine river.

The Ardennes sector was thought comparatively quiet.
The German attack started in December, 1944.

Third Army

Ninth Armored divisions which had been brought up as reserves, bore the brunt of the German attack and suffered heavy damage in the battle of the Hurtgen forest.

With the exception of the 106th division, the remainder of the corps was withdrawn for rest.

German intelligence, realizing that the 106th had only 10 days of combat experience and that the front was considered quiet by the allies, quickly informed the commander of the German troops, Field Marshal Gerd Von Rundstedt.

Von Rundstedt had planned his campaign at an opportune time. The weather for the previous month had not been good and aerial reconnaissance was reduced to a minimum. The Germans, as a result, had the necessary cover to bring troops and supplies to the front without the knowledge of the allies.

His plan was to strike swiftly at the weakest point in the line, a tactic successfully employed by Patton in the Avranches campaign.

If they could accomplish this, the Germans reasoned, all of the reserves could be driven through, they could capture Liege and Antwerp, Third Army's largest base and port, and thus completely separate the allied armies in the North and South and possibly destroy one or both of them by coming in from the rear and cutting supplies.

The German forces consisted of 22 divisions, eight panzer and fifteen infantry, but the VIII corps, terribly outnumbered and thinly scattered, held off the terrible onslaught for three days.

Third to the Rescue
The Third Army was ordered to the scene.
It was early in December when the first of the Third Army elements moved up toward Bastogne.

When the first of the reinforcing troops arrived in Luxembourg which had been displayed were removed, the people knew only too well that the Germans were making a serious attack and what it would mean if they were successful.

The name of General Patton and the sight of the red, white, and blue patch of the Third Army revived hope. That hope was not unjustified.

The people of the United States heard on Christmas morning that the tide had turned.

AN UNBEATABLE COMBINATION.... The team that swept from the Normandy beaches to Austria in 10 months will be commemorated Monday when Third Army day is observed. Gen. (then Maj. Gen.) George S. Patton, Jr. is shown above in a favorite pose in the turtleneck of his favorite weapon, the tank. In the background rises the patch of the Third Army. The red, white and blue insignia is derived from World War I. The white "A" on a blue background, circled by a red "O" stands for army of occupation. The Third Army held the United States occupation zone on the Rhine in Germany after the armistice was signed, Nov. 11, 1918.

and that the Third Army had done it again.

Bulge is Broken
The Third, after weeks of incredible fighting, coupled with daring planning, was breaking the back of the bulge. One thing remained, however. Members of the 101st Airborne division under the command of Brig. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, were trapped in Bastogne.

General McAuliffe's historic reply to the German ultimatum to surrender, the famous "nuts," describes more aptly than could many pages the spirit of the defenders of Bastogne and the repeated attacks they withstood.

What was left of the troops at Bastogne were contacted December 27, 1944. The battle of the bulge was well on its way to becoming another victory for the Third Army and the survivors settled down to a belated New Year's dinner to celebrate the birth of Christ.

After Bastogne, the Third Army moved on. The German attention to the cracking of the nut, which was to prove only an empty hull, was a waste of energy.

The headquarters of the Third moved with the army. A list of the dates and towns where Patton and his staff settled is a list of powerful drives deep into enemy territory.

Enter Last Campaign
On March 27, 1945 headquarters moved from Luxembourg to Karlsruhe in Germany. A list of April 3 saw it in Frankfurt. From Frankfurt to Hersfeld on April 11, and on April 22 the last campaign of the war began and Third Army headquarters settled down to direct operations from Erlangen.

The end of the war was near and on May 2, 1945, Patton moved his staff into Regensburg, Austria, once again on top of the Third Army.

On May 9, 1945, at one minute after midnight, the once mighty, seemingly invincible German military forces bowed before the massed strength of men who believed that to fight, and even to die, was better than succumbing to slavery.

During the last campaign General Patton's Third Army conquered more than 32,000 miles of enemy held territory but losses were the lightest of any battle in which it had participated.

The Battle of the Bulge had cost the Third almost 5,000 killed, more than 22,000 wounded with approximately 5,000 missing to total from 30,000 to 35,000 casualties. Enemy casualties in that battle are estimated at almost 145,000.

In the last campaign, in which such a mighty chunk of Europe was swallowed by the Third, a total of 11,647 casualties resulted as against an enemy loss of 720,940 casualties.

Since the day when it became operational in Normandy, August 1, 1944 until May 8, 1945, VE day, the Third Army had been in continuous combat for 281 days.

Third and Patton Led
Perhaps the most valuable estimate of the services of General Patton and the Third was made by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, when he visited Third Army headquarters in March, 1945. He said, "I warmly congratulate you, General Patton, and all your officers. Since last summer, when you became operational in Normandy, the Third Army has not made one mistake."

In thinking of General Patton, people will conjure up an image of a man, taller than average with short cropped, graying hair and impeccably clad in a tailored battle jacket and trousers with high, shiny boots. The figure of the man as he went to battle was one to remember and the testimony of the men who served with him shows that he is remembered.

Nothing that he gave so much of his life to war that his very name struck terror into the hearts of enemy command and who was often the target of abuse by the "folks back home," the Third Army great.

America does not breed fighters for the sake of war, but when it has needed them they have been there.

FINAL PARADE . . . Brig. Gen. Foter J. Tate, left, and Sgt. 1st Class Loyd F. Powell, review troops from Third Division artillery last Thursday afternoon. More than 2000 men paraded in honor of the two men who retired after 31 and 20 years service respectively, July 31.

Gen. Tate Retires With Sgt. Powell

A retirement parade by men from the Third Division Artillery was held Thursday afternoon, July 28, in honor of Brig. Gen. Foter J. Tate and Sgt. 1st Class Loyd F. Powell who retired Sunday.

Approximately 2,000 soldiers, members of the 30th, 41st, 9th and 89th Battalions and Headquarters' battery, commanded by Lt. Col. Clyde T. Jones, saluted the two men, who are ending their military careers after 31 and 20 years of service respectively.

Following a short farewell address by General Tate, the troops passed in review at Tiger Field, Sand Hill area, led by the Third Division band.

The general assumed his duties with the Third Infantry division several months ago, on his return from France, where he was military attache.

Sgt. Powell has been with the Service Battery, 9th FA, since January, 1949.

General Tate has spent much of his time in the Field Artillery, served overseas with the American Expeditionary forces during the first World War and commanded the 24th Infantry division artillery in Italy during the second World War. The general received the surrender of the German 7th Army Corps at Florence.

Later General Tate supervised the organization of the 31st

Infantry for American troops at Florence, before becoming military attache in Paris.

Sgt. Powell, a native of Highpoint, N. C., was assigned to Hdqrs. and Hdqrs. detachments, Sect. 1, 82d ASLT, Fort Bragg, N. C., before coming to Fort Benning.

Two bills, vitally affecting the present and future well-being of soldiers at Fort Benning, as well as the entire army, are still smoldering in the Armed Services committees of the House and the Senate.

The military pay bill remains shelved in the Senate armed services committee this week and the House armed services committee announced last month that the military housing appropriation requested by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, which would have brought McKinley, Abraham McCarver, Robert Green, Andrew Sankey, Billie Rankins, Henry Harris, Hamerick Pierce, Benjamin Shinn, Alphonse Hamn, Lawrence Seymour, Willie Cerrin, James Jaffar, and Harvey King and recruit Stanley Steele, are taking the auto-mechanics instruction.

Sgt. 1st Class Paul Ellison, Pfc. James Darden, and Pfc. Sifton Martin are taking the photography course, as are Pfc. James Williams, Jesse Gaiter, Henry Smith, Mathew A.ustin, August Hyde, Sam Mills, James Landry, Leonard Suggs, Robert Adams, Curtis Embry, Alton Powell, Roosevelt Watson, Everett Myrick, and Thurman Hyde.

Sgt. L. Sturgeon and Cpl. S. Zebilee Phipps, Merdin Muten, and Pfc. Bristol Grant and John Mahome are enrolled in the mathematics department.

Pfc. Samuel Morgan, William Burton, George Smith, and Pvt. Alonso Sigala are taking the psychology course, while Pvt. Herbert West, Isaiah Boss, and Crawford Sims are taking English. Pvt. Lucius Wagner is enrolled in the Algebra department.

Spectators See Award Of Medal

Heavy rain last Monday afternoon dampened somewhat the special retirement review held at Stilwell field to honor the fifth anniversary of the date in 1944 when the Third United States army became operational.

Nearly 500 spectators, inhabitants of Fort Benning and residents of Columbus, appeared to watch the parade in spite of the downpour.

Stands were erected on the field to accommodate the visitors and the presentation of the Silver Star to a wartime member of the Third Army, highlight of the review, was completed without interruption.

The medal was awarded to Sgt. 1st Class Ross A. Wright of Field Forces band No. 3. Col. Halley G. Maddox presented the award to Sergeant Wright, Colonel Maddox was assistant chief of staff G-3 with the rank of brigadier general under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr. in World War II.

The Star was awarded Sergeant Wright in recognition of his gallantry in action while a member of the 8th Infantry division during the battle of the bulge in Luxembourg.

Sergeant Wright, then in command of a squad, found his unit and another caught in the enemy's merciless crossfire. Realizing that it was fight or die, Wright charged alone, the squad advanced and the enemy.

During the advance, he fired a rifle grenade into an enemy machine-gun nest, putting it out of action. The loss of fire-power of the enemy sustained as a result of Sergeant Wright's action allowed his men to fight their way out of the pocket and made way for a further advance of the American forces.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrese, commanding general of the Infantry Center, reviewed the troops which were under the command of Lt. Col. Allan G. Peck, commanding officer of the 344th Area Service unit.

The units which passed in review were elements of the 344th, 989th Armored Field Artillery battalion, 52nd Medical battalion and 78th Engineer battalions. March music was supplied by the 72nd Army band.

The Third Infantry division greeted the first observance of Third Army day with a special ceremony Monday morning at the order of the day was read proclaiming the day.

Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, addressed the Third battalion of the 30th Infantry regiment at the ceremony Monday morning in the vicinity of the Patton house. In his address to the troops General Clarkson recalled the greatness of the Third Army and its war time commander, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

"It is fitting, he said, "that this ceremony should take place here, the place General Patton called home, and that we should honor him and the Third Army today."

He said the Third Army completed a great mission in defeating the enemy. "The Germans," he went on, "always wanted to know where General Patton and the Third Army was, it was he feared most."

General Clarkson mentioned that General Patton had trained and built his beloved Second Armored division here at Fort Benning. He recalled General Patton's desire to meet with German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel with a tank and let the best man win. As General Patton said, "He wouldn't."

(After General Clarkson spoke, see PARADES page 11)

9000 Reservists Are Training Here

Approximately 9000 men of the 31st Infantry "Dixie" division, Alabama and Mississippi National Guard, are holding their annual summer camp in the Harmony Church area of Fort Benning.

The group, which arrived here Sunday, is participating in the company training phase of a progressive training schedule. During their two-week stay here the reservists will receive instruction in the use of new infantry weapons, infantry tactics, company procedure and recent developments in the art of infantry warfare.

The training guardsmen will be under the command of Maj. Gen. Alexander G. Paxton, Greenville, Miss., and his assistants, Walter J. Hanna of Birmingham, Ala.

The guardsmen, representing 100 units from Alabama and Mississippi have been organized into separate regiments and battalions.

Independently of other troops on the post.

The schedule for the first weeks training includes instruction on the small arms range, military ceremonies and reviews and bivouac.

All training and classes will be under the supervision of regular army instructors, aided by officers from the 31st Infantry division.

The summer encampment is scheduled to end Aug. 14, when the men will return to their homes by train and in truck and jeep convoys.

This is the second group of National Guard troops to take summer training at Fort Benning this year.

New Executive Officer For Airborne Department

Lt. Col. Talton W. Long, who recently graduated from the Command and General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, is replacing Lt. Col. Otto E. Holmes, executive officer, Airborne Department, who has been ordered to the school.

Colonel Long, a former member of the 82nd Airborne division, served with the 505th Airborne regiment in the European and Mediterranean theaters during World War II. He was commanding officer of E company in the Sicily and Italy campaigns.

Later he was appointed executive and then commanding officer of the First Battalion during the Battle of the Bulge. At the end of the war Colonel Long was Regimental Executive Officer.

His decorations include the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart, and the Bronze Lion, a Netherlands medal, for action in Holland.

Major Elroy B. Roberts, Inf., leaves this week as operation officer, Airborne Department, to attend the C. and G. school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and will be replaced by Maj. D. W. Yoder, who just completed the advanced course.

Guests Welcome In Sand Hill

The guest house adjoining Service Club No. 2 in Sand Hill has been reopened for guests of enlisted men, unit officials have revealed.

Located among tall pine trees, the house has 26 rooms, a reading room, and a spacious lounge. These rooms may be occupied by any enlisted man's family or friends, at the nominal price of $1.00 per night.

Reservations may be made at the house, by applying in person and depositing payment for one night's stay in advance. Accommodations for three nights may be obtained at a time, and this period may be prolonged if the house is not crowded.

Guests may take their meals with their sponsor in his company or battery mess hall, and the pool at Sand Hill will be open to them from 9:00 to 11:30 every morning.

Cadets Inspect Chute School

A tour of the Airborne section of the Infantry School was made this morning by 636 Reserve Officer training corps cadets now stationed at Fort Benning for summer camp.

Following a general orientation lecture by Col. R. L. Brooks, Maj. J. T. Murphy and Col. F. Cassidy of the school, the group visited the various departments.

Among the phases of training they witnessed were air landings, ground training, cover training and parachute pull-off.

A bill now in Congress would permit up to a billion dollars in housing mortgages, or about $100,000 in actual construction, to be insured by Federal Housing Administration.

The bill would also allow land on military installations to be leased for rental housing projects. Such leases would run for 99 years.

The Battle Park homes project, announced recently here, is being constructed on part of the Fort Benning reservation which has been leased to the Jordan company for a period of 75 years. The House Armed Services committee also gave tentative approval, this week, to a military construction bill which would allow more than $222,000,000 for military housing and improvement of installations.

ROTC Students Visit Infantry

Seventy three ROTC students, members of the group which trained for six weeks at Harmony Church, toured the Third Battalion of the 15th Infantry recently, for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the operation of a line outfit.

Students at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, and the South Carolina State college at Orangeburg, the cadets were under the command of Capt. J. Conway Jones and Frederick E. Davidson.

Among other things, the group visited the day room, where they received information on the education program.

Projects from Sgt. Robert Phillips, Battalion Public Information non-com. They also toured each company of the battalion, where they received first hand information from the unit officers concerning operations and training.

DISCOURTESY BLAMED FOR ALL ACCIDENTS

Most of the blame for three-quarters of our annual traffic accidents was laid at the door of discourteous drivers by Colonel Joseph A. Nichols, Chief of Staff, who spoke today in behalf of the TIC Safety Council's August traffic safety campaign.

"Such acts as excessive speed, ignoring the right of way, driving under the influence of alcohol, driving on the wrong side of the road, passing improperly, and disregarding an officer's traffic control device are, at the very least, discourteous behavior, and at the worst, wanton murder," he said.

"Almost all of the fatalities involving personnel of this post," Colonel Nichols said, "can be traced directly to excessive speed. From a national standpoint, this discourtesy has contributed to the loss of about 5,000 lives last year. Driving on the wrong side of the road and driving under the influence of alcohol were the next two biggest contributing factors in traffic accidents, and the frustrating part of it all — especially to those interested with the job of safety education and enforcement — is that every one of these deaths was unnecessary; they would not have happened if one of the drivers involved in each case hadn't judged himself either too smart, too skillful, or too lucky to be involved in an accident."

Civilian Lawyers Attend Judge Advocate School

On August 8 approximately 150 reserve officer lawyers will arrive at Fort Benning to attend the Third Army Judge Advocate General corps school.

This school has been newly established at Benning under the supervision of Col. Eugene M. Coffey, the Third Army Judge Advocate. The courses will be under the immediate direction of Lt. Col. H. M. Peyton, Judge Advocate for the Infantry Center, who will be assisted by Lt. Col. Nathaniel B. Kleger, Judge Advocate of the Third Infantry division.

The primary mission of the school which will receive students from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, and Mississippi, will be to acquaint these men with the principles of military justice as set forth in the Manual for Courts — Martial, and also to train reserve officers in the duties of a staff Judge Advocate in the field.

You May Need Locator Card

No mail lately? Perhaps what you need is a locator card. All mail received at Fort Benning insufficiently addressed is sent to the Central Postal Directory for locator service. If no locator card is on the mail is held for 15 days and then returned to the sender, or if no return address is given, the mail is sent to the dead letter office.

Personnel not receiving mail promptly are requested to contact the Central Postal Directory and check their locator card.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Rescues Child From Auto By Quick Decisive Action

While attending a picnic supper of the First Baptist church in Columbus, Sgt. 1-cl. Joseph T. Marzek, Company B, 30th Infantry regiment, prevented a near-tragedy when he swept to safety a small boy who had wandered into the path of a speeding car. His quick, decisive action, which undoubtedly saved the child from death or at least serious injury, earned for him the title of "Soldier of the Week."

SGT. 1-CL. JOSEPH T. MARZK ... Soldier of the Week

A veteran of nine years service, Marzek was assigned to the 64th Coast Artillery battalion when the Japanese attacked. He personally was credited with shooting down three enemy planes, receiving his first commendation for that action.

After Pearl Harbor, he participated in the Mariana's campaign and Okinawa. He was wounded in the Pacific campaign and after recovering from his wounds left the army for two months.

Deciding that he should stay in the army, Sergeant Marzek reenlisted and went to Germany with the 18th Infantry regiment of the First Infantry division on occupation duty.

While in Germany he was part of the honor guard for Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, then military governor of Germany.

Marzek returned to the United States early this year, when his enlistment expired and promptly reenlisted for six years. At Fort Benning three months, Sergeant Marzek lives with his wife in Columbus.

Believing that saving a life is better than losing one, he has donated a pint of blood monthly to the Red Cross since his arrival here.

Besides the Purple Heart, Marzek also wears the Combat Infantryman's badge, Pacific Theater ribbon with four battle stars and the American Victory medal.

BENNING TROOPS MARCH FOR LEGION

The American Legion convention in Chattanooga last Monday saw nearly five hundred members of the Provisional Guard armory, where they ate and slept throughout their stay in town.

Chattanooga was a noisy city as the Legionaires celebrated, and the soldiers from the 30th were welcomed heartily by brothers in arms who had served with their unit in one of the wars.

The parade took place on Monday afternoon, beginning at two o'clock; it was nearly five by the time the first serial had passed the reviewing stand.

Leading the march down Market Street was Grand Marshal of the Parade, Sgt. Alvin C. York, Congressional Medal of Honor holder, who distinguished himself in the first World War with a series of colorful, well-known exploits.

Governor Gordon Browning, W. Stuart Symington, Secretary for Air, and Mayor Hugh F. Wauson of Chattanooga were also prominent among those in the parade.

In the fore of the troops from Fort Benning came the Third Infantry division band, under the baton of Sgt. James Black, 55 pieces strong.

Food Service Tests Set for Fall

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Second round of army food service career examinations is scheduled for November. The first infantry and armored cavalry examinations will be held in December, and the initial artillery tests in January.

The army has established a flat annual rental of $42 for approved trailer sites on army reservations.

The army expects about 60 vacancies in the military attaché system between August 1949 and November 1950. Applications will be considered from qualified officers desiring such assignments.

Fair or ruddy complexioned personnel who serve for long periods in areas that have much sunshine may be more vulnerable to skin cancer than other types. This was revealed by a study of skin cancer incidence in World War

Two, made by Lt. Col. Joseph L. Beriner, Chief, Dental and Oral Pathology section, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

The commutation value of the army rating for enlisted personnel authorized to mess separately was fixed on July 1 at $1.05 per ration in the U. S. The ration value outside the U. S. is $1.10.

The army has restated its policy concerning participation of troops and equipment in civilian ceremonies to encourage such participation within limits set by regulations. Salient provisions are that the ceremony must be of such nature that the appearance of troops and/or equipment would reflect credit on the national military establishment, and the necessary troops or equipment must be readily available.

Chaplain's Corner

Serving God Brings Happiness

By CHAPLAIN THOMAS C. KOCH

The doctrine of human rights is one of the most precious possessions of mankind. We all know that there is a distinct difference between right and wrong, and this knowledge makes us differ from the rest of the animal creation. Intelligence is what makes us see a purpose in life, a duty to fulfill.

True, we are all born with the same senses—sight, touch, smell, hearing, taste; but here our similarity ends. Right here our intellect, knowing we have a purpose, takes over and leads us along our way of life. We seek happiness, but where? Some of us think that our birthright to happiness is achieved through the senses, rather than through the use of our intellect. We know the animals do not experience happiness as we know it, but they do get pleasure from a meaty bone or pat on the head, or any use of their animal senses. We, the rational animal, imitate the dumb animal everytime we seek happiness in the senses that can give only a passing pleasure.

This worldly pleasure is one that is so easy to obtain, and so fleeting. We must only reach to enjoy sensual pleasure, but happiness is achieved by the constant striving to fulfill our purpose in life. Life without a purpose is an existence comparable to the animals. When the pleasure seekers have exhausted themselves in worldly pursuits, burned out their hearts and bodies, only then do they realize that they have been swimming against the tide.

As human beings God has given us so much. If we would remember that no one forces us to be good, that we can choose our own road to heaven, that our mothers are not here to chastise us for our mistakes, we would soon change our ways of life.

The dollar bill seems to be the King for so many. Others, in their bars or stripes, but when the day comes to meet the Creator, He will not say, "Sir or Sergeant, Private or Mister"; it will be, "Son, how have you served me on earth?"

We are here to live a life of happiness, by serving God in the best way possible and by sharing our happiness with Him. As Byron says: "All who joy would win must share it; happiness was born a twin."

Let us strive, therefore, to lead a life in keeping with the wonderful gifts given to us by God. As soldiers, this is not impossible. Some may think the uniform is a license to do anything their impulses dictate. Others, however, live as they were brought up to live. Just because we are away from home, there is no without drawing of all the principles our parents tried so hard to instill in us. Rather we should make a special effort to go back home better sons and brothers than when we left. The decision is our own—to lower ourselves in the eyes of God and men, or seek that happiness of the mind and heart offered in living a good, clean, soldierly life.

Your Red Cross

Red Cross Recounts Activities

By MURRAY E. HILL

It is hardly necessary to write of the success of the American Red Cross blood program at Fort Benning, but did you know...

Distributed from coast to coast and representing the participation of nearly 800 Red Cross chapters, there are now 28 regional blood programs in operation. Present plans call for prompt activation of new centers at Savannah, Ga., Norfolk, Va., and Wilkes Barre, Pa., and a state-wide program in Connecticut, with the center at Hartford. And did you know...

The American Red Cross now is obtaining blood from voluntary donors at the rate of more than 32,000 pints a month. For the fiscal year 1948-49, approximately 238,000 pints are estimated to have been collected. And did you know...

through the American Red Cross has been made available to the medical profession principally for use at 1,100 hospitals. Some blood has also been distributed directly to 50 independent clinics and 145 physicians. And did you know...

Along with the collection of whole blood during the fiscal year 1948-49, the American Red Cross issued for medical use approximately 650,000 vials (2cc) of dried serum albumin; 12,000 vials (100cc) of serum albumin; 3,500 vials (20cc) of dried plasma; and 1,666 vials (5cc) of anti-hemophilic globulin. And did you know...

The aggregate commercial value of the blood derivatives distributed by the Red Cross from April 1944, through June 1949, is estimated at recent prices to have been approximately $30,000,000.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE... We realize that Ann Sheridan has appeared frequently on the pages of the Bayonet but for some reason or other we keep coming back to her. We don't know why, unless it's because of certain indefinable attractions which defies description. (Possibly we've fallen for her).

On The Bookshelf

World Full of Strangers by David Alman. Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, publisher. BY D. W. SCHAEFER

"World Full of Strangers" is the first serious attempt this reader has seen to put into literature the lives of people are not wealthy, or middle-class. There have been novels in which the poor have figured in the lives of the wealthy and middle-class but very few which have dealt so directly and entirely with our contemporary poor. The characters portrayed by Mr. Alman are powerfully built and one gets a feeling of objectiveness on the part of the author.

The background of the novel is one Mr. Alman knows well if the publishers blurb are to be believed. Born in New York and one-time social worker and parole officer in that city, he has created a fascinating, irritating, torturing but somehow enlightening work.

It might be termed "socially minded" but it holds no brief and merely states a case. The death scene of Anthony's girl Christine is one of the most sickening pieces of description we have read since William Faulkner's "Sanctuary".

Faulkner's novel dealt with the South, Alman's the North. Both men are concerned with the same thing. Alman is not, however, Faulkner's literary equal. "World Full of Strangers" is a well thought out book. It is so well thought out as to be almost unpalatable as one realizes fully the kind of lives they are reading about.

The action of the novel takes place in a water-front square of downtown New York. The main characters are Anthony Viola, an Italian-American shipyard worker; John Guss, a former social worker who became policeman; and Anthony's girl, Christine.

The story builds around the core of John Guss' seduction of Christine while Anthony is away at war. Christine becomes with child and Anthony, on his return, finds himself unable to marry the girl, blocked by his family and public (neighborhood) sentiment.

Guss as a policeman, developed a taste for power and a sense of guilt about Christine. He fears she will tell his wife the story. Using his power as a policeman, he tries to drive the girl into prostitution. She is completely helpless, feeling that at all costs she must protect her child.

Anthony, because of his limited financial resources is helpless too. Christine finally dies in the hold of a ship in the strike-bound yard where Anthony works and where Guss had tricked her into going ostensibly to escape a police raid but really to complete his horrible purpose for the destruction of her life. "World Full of Strangers" is exciting and moving. The characters are drawn with such intensity that we shudder to think how real they seem. David Alman has written a novel that is certainly worth reading.

Reservists G-2 Class Opens Here

Citizen soldiers of our army reserve lay down their jobs each summer and practice again their proficiency in the profession of arms.

One of the reserve groups here at Fort Benning has an idea of a reserve setup — it's the Third Army military intelligence reserve school, now starting out its second class of students.

The school, established here last year, is run by reserve instructors who teach their own fellow reservists the arts of military intelligence.

This week the school opened its second class of the summer with an address by Lt. Col. Morgan B. Heasley, G-2 staff of the Third Army.

Colonel Heasley exemplified the army's reserve viewpoint when he said:

"You men typify the spirit of all our citizen soldiers. . . the men who give part of their time to their government in order to insure a strong national force."

The current school, under the command of Lt. Col. Lucius L. Deck, boasts a staff of twelve instructors who take their fellow reservists through the various intelligence courses.

Among the subjects covered are photograph interpretations, order of battle, prisoner of war interrogation and strategic counter-intelligence tactics.

Indicative of the planning which is apparent in the reserve setup is the fact that most of the instructors are teachers in civilian life.

Colonel Deck, for example, is in multi, principal of the school.

Park high school in the Atlanta area. His right hand man, Colonel Ellison, is himself an associate professor of romance languages at the University of Miami.

While at Benning these men and their counterparts put away the civilian textbooks and delve into the mysteries of U. S. Army manuals.

As Colonel Ellison put it "We go from French to fire tactics and Spanish to military security, from Latin to aerial photos."

And the men seem to love it, too. In the pictures above two groups of students forget their civilian careers while trying to figure a way to get the Third Army division, surrounded by the English army, out of the city of Boston to the sea.

Situations like the above tend to make the hours of instruction pleasant and profitable instead of stodgy and boring.

One of the instructors, Capt. Andrew Nolte of Fitzgerald, Ga., stated his opinions on the way the courses are instructed.

"Why," he said, "worry about it? We're going to be bigger and better." Colonel Deck started with a laugh. "And it'll be twice as interesting. We instructors don't mind teaching a bit when we know that the men are really getting something out of it."

With spirit like that, the instructors of the school are already laying plans for next year's sessions.

"It's going to be bigger and better," Colonel Deck stated with a laugh. "And it'll be twice as

Trailer Town Population Develop Little Community

Nearly 300 people have hitched their super delux "wagons" to stars in the Harmony of the portable town is the complex for the former population.

The most popular meeting place for the former population is a community laundry room, which is equipped with five public washing machines and a soft vending machine.

Living in close quarters hasn't prevented the trailer dwellers from investing in privately owned equipment such as washing machines and bicycles. As many as a half a dozen slipcovers washers may be seen sitting around the laundry room at the present time.

The government will ship the things we can't carry in the trailer space," the rent—only $7.50 a month.

"The best thing about the camp," one girl explained, "is that things we can't carry in the trailer utility rooms and ample storage space are included. And, daily barracks-like inspections. Contrary to rumor, there are no Housekeeping teams in the most army trailer camps have in any other home.

Buses provide daily transportation to the main post and Columbus, making shopping no problem at all.

Parades

The Third division band played four flourishes and the "Goin' to the Sun" for the formation of the 41st Field Artillery battalion then fired a seventeen-gun salute in memory of the Third Army and General Patton.

Prior to the general's address an invocation was pronounced by Chaplain (Maj.) Ernest F. Kendall. Maj. James W. Friend of the Third division read the order of the day.

The troops from the 30th regiment were under the command of Lt. Col. Frank J. Sackton. At other military installations in the Third Army area, Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Jackson, S. C.; Camp Gordon, Ga.; and Fort McPherson, Ga., former members of the famous Third which saw so much combat, both those who are now civilians, and those who have remained in the army were honored.

Folsom, Wright Plan Visit To Benning This Week

Two governors are slated to visit Fort Benning and Columbus this week end to inspect National Guard units from their states.
Gov. Fielding H. Wright of Mississippi, and Gov. James A. Folsom of Alabama, will arrive here by plane for the two-day tour of training units.
Governor Wright is due Friday accompanied by his aide, Adj. Gen. Pat Wilson, and several newspapermen. They will inspect troops of the 31st Infantry division, following lunch with the 10th Engineers.
A banquet and dance will be held in Governor Wright's honor Friday night at the Ralston hotel. Host will be the 155th Infantry.
Governor Folsom is expected Saturday. He is also slated to participate in the governor's day celebration by the National Guard training division.
Both governors, plus military officials, will review the division Saturday.
The 31st Division, one of 10 reserve divisions completely organized and one of six on the Army's priority list, is in summer training at Fort Benning until August.
Gen. A. G. Paxton, commander of the outfit, is from Greenville, Miss., division headquarters.

"Hattie" Source Of Service Aids In Gift Selection

WE REMEMBER THE THIRD ARMY . . . Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, is pictured above as he addressed members of the third battalion of the 30th Infantry regiment at the observance of Third Army day held at the Patton house in the Sand Hill area last Monday. To the right of General Clarkson is Col. O. P. Newman of the Third division and Col. Joseph Boone, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry regiment.

A quiet spot where men can go and buy the little things of all kinds, that mean so much, is the aim of a determined lady named Harriet Weeks.
"Hattie," as she is fondly called by thousands of men and women, is in charge of the little known gift shop on the post. Here, among knick-knacks, crystalware, leather goods and baby clothes, Hattie sits regally upon a throne of kindness and service toward all soldiers. Hattie's motto is "Service all the way."
"We've a complete children's department, lingerie, toy and maternity department, right here for Fort Benning families."
"We have a special feature, too," she added. "We wrap packages and parcels as gifts, or for mailing, whether they contain gifts or not."
The gift shop's hours - Hattie's hours - are from 9 a. m. until 2 p. m. every day. During those hours soldiers are welcome to browse around, or maybe buy something - a gift for Mother, perhaps, or a leather bilfold for Dad.
Hattie looked back over her 15 years on the job and decided that "I've been here so long that every young soldier seems fine and happy - sometimes, though, there are a few cases that pose problems."
"One of the most stubborn men I ever met," she reminisced, "was a young sergeant who was sure that I had a suitable sweater for his dog, a pointer-anian!"
"I told him at least a thousand times I didn't have a dog sweater and couldn't get one. He's in Germany now and he can probably guess. My work here keeps me busy, and there's nothing I like better than helping out the soldiers here when they need something for them."
"There's one person, however, that I feel I couldn't help a bit. He was a young man who came in one day to have a 'package wrapped, and well. I'm afraid it's right next to the Food Service school, directly across from the North-East corner of the first quartel."
"After all," she admonishes, "who ever heard of sending a gift shop's record as an a bass viol fourth class mail!"

THE ROCK-A-BYE ROOM . . . Baby things galore are displayed at the Fort Benning gift shop. The toys and linens are a small part of the large selection of gifts to be found at the shop. A branch of the post exchange, the shop is located across from the North-East corner of the first quartel.

By Vincent Giarratano

As the post diamond season approaches the last stages of play which will consist of exhibition and army tournament activity by the Fort Benning Doughboys, attention begins to focus on football and basketball for the 1949 agenda.

Mike Chester and Len Canavan are making great strides in the direction of developing a formidable post grid squad to greet the opening of the football season.

It is still a little early for basketball but if victory minded court mentors are susceptible to a little friendly advice, we should like to suggest that the units begin organizing their hocket squads now and round up some practice by challenging each other.

The Infantry Center intra-mural circuit is expected to start around October 1, and to end about November 30. The post team, if hardwood activity does come off between these dates, will be formed December 1.

With a few inter-unit games under their belts in the next two months, teams that do get an early start will undoubtedly account for themselves more skillfully in the post loop.

We don't know what level of organized ball diamond activity on an army post can be compared with, but we do know that even the major leagues couldn't have produced a more exciting baseball spectacle than the second place race between the Provisional group, Area Service unit and the 15th Infantry regiment which brought the post intra-mural league to a close last week.

Both teams fought hard all the way, and fans were treated to hair raising close wins and upsets that would probably have been the finish of such pilots as Lippy Durocher.

If we like Winchell, had innumerable quantities of orchids at our disposal, we would say orchids to the 15th Infantry Dragons for a thrilling climax to an action-packed season.

Looking them over in the majors, the standings seem to indicate a three-way battle in the American league involving the Boston Red Sox, the Cleveland Indians, and the New York Yankees. In the National, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers apparently prefer to keep the struggle sewed up between themselves. With well over half the season already accounted for, the league leaders in both sets may well consider it almost in the bag, and yet in the portion remaining, anything can still happen.

Benning Boxers Spark 'Y' Card

Several post boxers stepped out of military competition last Friday evening to represent the Ninth street Y.M.C.A. in a team match against the Butler street Y of Atlanta, Ga. at the Ninth street gym.

Although the Columbus team lost the match, the top bout of the evening saw Cliff Willburn, middleweight contender on the post, win a split decision over Hoyt Nunnally in a brawl that had the fans standing on their seats.

Willburn, well known around Al Boyer 1 Man Team

Al Boyer, pitcher for the Berea Merchants in the Lorain County, Ohio, Class A League, doesn't believe in overworking his fielders.

The six-foot righthander hurled all 18 innings of a double-header last Sunday at Berea. He struck out 27 men in the opener and followed by pitching a no-hitter in the nightcap.

Boyer gave up one hit in the first game as his mates toppled the Leona in Amvets 11-0. He struck out 15 and walked only one in the second contest which he won, 1-0, by hitting a home run.

Chutists, 15th Win Post Loop Honors

The Student Training regiment-Airborne men backed into the Infantry Center intra-mural baseball league championship Friday night, July 29, four days prior to the official league closing date through a loss by the 15th Infantry regiment to the Provisional group, Area Service unit.

However, with the championship secured, post athletic officials found a three-way second place fight on their hands involving the 15th, the ASU, and the Infantry School detachment. Frogs which occasioned the playing by these teams of last minute games, and two double headers after the closing date.

The race was played off in a series of make-up games that had been raised out earlier in the season.

Local Team In 3rd Army Swim Meet

A 24-man Fort Benning Doughboy swimming team left the post last Monday for Fort McPherson, Ga. to participate in the three-day Third Army swimming meet which got under way Tuesday, Aug. 2, and is slated to end Friday.

The men making up the squad are winners in the Third Infantry swimmer meets, and both of which were held recently at the Sand Hill pool.

Harry Bellamy, teammate of Johnson's in the post meet, who copped the 50-yard free style event last week, also holds a New York City Metropolitan AAU championship for diving.

Richard Wood, winner of the 100-yard backstroke in 1:10, and Art Villalobos, who won the 200-yard free style event in 2:02 seconds better than last week's time also raise the post's hopes of success in the area meet.

Don Lennox, 100-yard free style winner, and the 400-yard free style event handled the same chores in the post meet.

Ted Short, who copped the 150-yard individual medley, the toughest race in any meet, and Charles Jones, post diving champion round out the roster of first place winners in Benning competition.

Second and third place winners who make up the remainder of the team include: Cluet, Schwein and Chuck Hasket, 50-yard freestyle; Alton, who though Willburn slipped and fell to the canvas in the early second round of the third round.

In the first bout of the evening, Jim Lewis, from Columbus, won the TKO over Floyd Elder, of Atlanta, in one minute and fifty six seconds of the second round. In the second lightweight tussle of the evening, Alex Bowie of Fort Benning, lost a split decision to John Mitchell, of Atlanta. Bowie in this tussle suffered a bad cut over the left eye which hampered him throughout the bout.

Norman Clark, Benning welter weight titleholder, made short work of Eddie Banston in their bout, when he scored a two round technical knockout. The end came one minute and fourteen seconds after Banston had hit the canvas for the fourth time.

John Allen, post heavyweight, put on a good show in the last bout of the evening but lost the duke to Fianell Hill of the Atlanta team in the deciding bout of the evening.

Boys Secretary W. R. Bennett, of the Ninth Street Y, stated after the cards that the Columbus team would journey to Atlanta later this month for a return match.

The Prof's, in the running by the skin of their teeth, started the stretch in an afternoon at 3:30 Sunday, July 24, with the 30th Infantry regiment. A 4-3 loss blasted their hopes for a second place bid and dropped the Prof's to the No. 4 spot in the league standings where they finished the season.

That left the 15th Infantry, the ASU and the Provisional group in second place by wins and losses, but with the Dragons slightly ahead by percentage.

On the night of July 24, the Dragons opened fire on the Third Infantry division Artillery nine in the twilight of a double-header at Gowdy field. Lin Kenyon ground the Divarty big guns to dust by pitching a four-hitter, allowing the Artillerymen an unearner run. The Infantrymen tugged Artillery hurler John McClinic for six hits to win 4-1.

The Dragons, having set the pace, roared through the second round by a score of 7-1. And for the second time a Dragon roundman strayed an attempted Artillery barrage. Walt Scott, going the route, allowed only three Divarty safeties.

On Monday night, July 25, the ASU squad, now trailing in the race, pitched a four-hitter, and they were still in the running by shutting out the 30th Infantry regiment by a score of 1-0.

The Dragons returned to the scene of action the next night last Thursday, July 28.

The youthful twirler's brilliant performance was highlighted by his seventh, eighth, and ninth inning chores when, out of the last nine troopers to stand at the plate, eight batters bit the dust via the strike out route to bring the total fanned to 14 in his portion of the nine inning fray.

The Dragon victory closed hostilities in the league and paved the way for activity by the Doughboys, the all-star Fort Benning nine which will represent the post in the Third Army baseball championship tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C. Aug. 17-19.

Manager Jimmy Walker lost no time in arranging a Doughboy debut, and the post nine trounced the visiting Bentley's Sport Shop baseballers 13-4 under the lights Gowdy field.

The Dragons returned to the scene of action the next night last Thursday, July 28.

'48 Bragg Mentor, Ex-Pro To Pilot Benning Gridsters

When Mike Chester was named football coach of the Doughboys several weeks ago few people on post realized that this was the same Chester that just one year ago was plotting devious ways to beat the Doughs. Strange as it seems, that is the case.

Canavan, who stands six feet, two inches tall and weighs 230 pounds, started his football career in the Hawaiian Islands where he played high school ball. Transferring to Franklin High in Seattle, Wash., at the start of his junior year, Canavan immediately made the varsity and was named to the Seattle All-City team two years in succession.

Upon graduation from high school, Canavan attended the University of Washington, on a football scholarship where he played two years of ball under coach Elmer "Fleban" Felt.

At the outbreak of the war, Canavan enlisted in the Army and was assigned to the 26th Infantry Division. He was later transferred to the 15th Infantry Division, where he played football for the 15th Infantry Division. He was also assigned to the 15th Infantry Division, where he played football for the 15th Infantry Division.

Following his discharge, in 1946, Canavan enrolled in San Francisco State College, majoring in Physical Education. He played professional football with the San Francisco Forty-Niners in 1947. He also played professional football with the New York Giants in 1948.

Canavan was named to the varsity football team in February of this year and better immediately assigned to Fort Benning.

ASU Continues Diamond Play Start Softball; Baseball Ends

The Provisional group, Area Service unit intra-mural league will get under way Tuesday, Aug. 9. Five teams, representing units in the group consisting of Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section I, and Headquarters detachment, Section II, 15th Quartermaster battalion, the 52 Transportation Truck battalion, and the 32nd Ordnance Battalion will be competing for the group softball championship. Many new faces will appear on each squad this year, but the rosters will include a goodly number of players who participated in this season's hardball diamond wars.

The Provisional group nine has been in the Third Infantry Center Intra-mural league, and has thus far garnered three wins and three losses. It is hoped that the team will improve its playing record when outstanding players from the parent organization line up.

The softball league comes in being followed closely on the heels of ASU intra-mural baseball activity which recently consisted of two halves, the first of which was played just prior to the opening of the post league and was won by Headquarters detachment Section II.

The second half got under way late in the post league season and ended on Aug. 15 with the Quartermaster battalion coping first place honors with nine wins and three losses.

Bill Kovalak, ASU's outstanding center fielder in the post league, started his first season of playing baseball with the ASU league champs, advancing from the 15th Quartermaster battalion to the ASU squad, and is now a candidate for the 1949 Doughboy game already under his belt.

The star of the ASU league was Butler Staves of the 15th Quartermaster Bakery company. Staves, a 22-year-old Richmond, Va. lad, led the league in pitching ending the season with five wins and three losses and 73 strike outs in 44 innings pitched.

2 Benning Netmen In Leech Net Meet

Among the outstanding tennis stars who represented the United States Army in the fifteenth annual tennis matches, a Leech Cup tennis meet, the Army-Navy County Club, Arlington, Va., Friday and Saturday, July 29-30, is Col. Stanley Webster, Palo Alto, Calif., commander of the Navy, and the Third Army stationed at Fort Benning.

The Army, Air Force and Navy played for the right to possess the Leech Cup Trophy, symbolic of inter-service tennis rivalry, for the next year. The Navy, whose command was defending champion, the tournament is sponsored by the Inter-Service Sports Council.

Colonel Webster was defeated in the semi-finals of the All-Army Tournament at San Francisco, California, July 18-22, by Lt. Colonel Frank E. Mehner, the 1948-49 Singles Champion. He was one of 12 players selected on the basis of their play in the All-Army tournament to represent the army in the annual tennis matches.

The Third Army champion in 1947-48-49, Colonel Webster was runner-up champion in the 1948 All-Army tournament and shared the 1948 army doubles tennis championship with Capt. Robert A. Scruton, born in Kingston, Rhode Island, now calls Palo Alto home. His address there is 842 Boyce Avenue. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Webster. He is stationed at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, Webster played a year and a half at the Academy, and has engaged in hundreds of official matches since leaving the Academy. The 31-year-old combat veteran has won the following tennis titles: New England Junior Championship 1934-35; Member Tennis Team, U. S. Military Academy, 1937-1940; Captain Tennis Team, U. S. Military Academy, 1940; Semi-finalist All England Plate Wimbledon Championship, 1946.

Third Army champion, singles and doubles, 1947-48. All-Army Singles runner-up all army doubles champion, 1948. Number Two player on the Army Leech Cup Tennis Team, 1948.

Captain Robert A. Scruton, Denver, Colorado, who is also stationed at Fort Benning, is another of the 12 outstanding tennis stars who represented the United States Army in the Leech Cup Matches.

A veteran of 24 years of tennis, Scruton has played in over 100 official matches. Teamed in doubles with captain John Baumgartner as a member of the 1949 Third Army team, he reached the quarter-finals of the quarter-finals of the All-Army tournament in San Francisco.

A steady player on the courts, the 26 year old Army netman is six feet tall and averages 185 pounds in his best playing form. Born in London, England, Scruton now claims Denver, Colorado, as home. He attended Columbus High School in this city prior to entering the service.

Among the tennis honors he has won are the Hawaiian Open Central American and m n a city prior to entering the service.

Doughs Butcher Visitors In 1949 Curtain Raiser

The Fort Benning Doughboys baseball squad played their 1949 season last Thursday night in a game at Gowdy Field, with an impressive 13-4 victory over the Bentley Sport shop of Columbus.

The Bentley team entered the game with a thirteen win, one loss record in the Columbus senior league, but were out-matched for the Benningites. Among the stars in the down town club, five in the first inning, left no doubt as to which team was going to win.

Coach James Walker, of the Doughboys, used a total of seven pitchers in the game including three pitchers who scored three runs in the first inning. Left hander Glenn Raether, who started the game, was credited with the win while starter Heywood Turnage was charged with the loss for Bentley's.

Batting stars in the game were Bill Kovalak, who hit a home run, and Dave Barnes, who collected two hits while John Wright and Joe Harrell each collected two safeties for the visitors.

Japs, Germans Back in Sports
—Major Ritter, a member of the United States Olympic committee and chairman of foreign relations for the amateur athletic department of the Army, said today he had received "a green light" from the International Olympic committee at Lausanne to re-affiliate Japan and Germany into all international sport federations.

Ritter, who called Europe on the S. S. American today, is in charge of water sports for the Olympic committee.

He said his group had re-affiliated Japan as of June 15, this year and that "Japan is a full-fledged member of the swimming federation. While in Europe, he will investigate the status of Germany with a view to admitting them to the federation."

Saying the Russians were admitted to the swimming federation in 1947, Ritter added "we hope they will take part at Helsinki (in 1952) but so far they have not participated in any international competition."

Jim Barnes won two golf matches by the PGA Championship record score of 12 and in the 1923 title chase.

Arena Doctor No Soft Job! Even Jabs Tattooed Lady

Most doctors treat sick people. But Dr. Vincent Nardiello's patients generally are strong, healthy brutes built like human bulldozers.

They just happen to be in an unhealthy business. As house physician at Madison Square Garden, Dr. Nardiello never runs short of variety. His cases range from a cowboy's brain concussion induced by a horse to a small boy's stomach ache induced by too much circus candy.

The speculators, you see, are a health problem, too, in an arena which seats 18,000.

The doctor has repaired the fractured wrist of a Democratic judge who fell off the platform during a Republican rally (a foul play was proved). He has treated the black eyes of eight fans who got to fighting themselves. He has ministered to speculators for heart attacks brought on by fighting themselves. He has treated for slight bruises caused by a rodeo calf when suddenly appeared in the box seats, and for game of the world's classiest bites at championship dog shows.

During the circus, Dr. Nardiello averages about 10 kids a day who are brought to his office with complaints of headaches, dizziness or stomach pain all brought on by over-eating.

But generally the short, chunky house doctor is kept busy.

THIRD ARMY HONORS RETIRING DIVARTY COMMANDER — Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, congratulates Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, former commander of Third division artillery, on the citation awarded General Tate by Lieut. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., commanding general of the Third Army. General Tate left Fort Benning on Sunday after receiving the #1 pitcher award a number of farewells from brother officers.

Until they fell to last place in 1948, the Chicago Cubs had only once finished in the National League cellar.

The Pittsburgh Pirates finished in the cellar in 1917 and tied for last in 1947 for their only two trips to the bottom.

The New York Yankees have not been out of the first division since 1925, and only once in that period did they finish fourth.

Only seven pitchers in modern major league history have won more than 300 big league games.

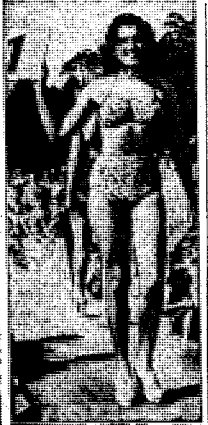

Walter Johnson and Denton (Cy) Young are the only major league pitchers in history ever to win more than 400 games.

Robert (Left) Grove is the latest addition to the ranks of major league pitchers who have won over 300 games.

Only two players in the majors have made over 2,000 hits — Dixie Walker — of the Pirates and Luke Appling of the White Sox.

Benning Not Affected Post Commissary To Remain Open

Fort Benning commissaries will not be affected by a new agreement reached by the house armed services committee. Lt. Col. Clayton Ela, post exchange officer at Benning said today.

The committee yesterday approved the agreement calling for the closing by Jan. 1 of commissaries in large city areas where civilian shopping facilities are available for servicemen.

The action came after complaints by merchants that they could not compete with the lower, tax-free prices of the military stores.

Colonel Ela pointed out that the agreement applied only to commissaries.

"Benning is considered a community in itself," he said, "and is 18 miles from any city of size."

"The agreement will primarily concern bases which are in the heart of large metropolitan areas."

Post exchanges would not be affected, he said, as they sell products for a profit.

However, in affected areas, post exchanges will have to increase prices to pay their own overhead, which is at present

Beauty Pageant For '49 Recalls Contests' Debut 7,000 Infantrymen Pass Swim Tests

Lovely Georgia belles who come to Columbus this week to compete in the annual Miss Georgia contest will be continuing a tradition begun here in 1928.

At that time, the centennial celebration of the founding of Columbus was being observed, and the first beauty contest was held to select a Miss Columbus who would act as a hostess for visiting queens from nearby counties.

Newspapers throughout the 20 best counties in Alabama and Georgia sent their choices to participate April 25-27 in the festivities.

The Miss Columbus winner, selected from more than a dozen candidates, was announced April 22.

There were no judges, as today, and selection of the first Miss Columbus took place through popular vote of citizens who bought tickets to the centennial pageant.

One vote was given for the purchase of each ticket.

The winning candidate, by a 33-vote margin, was Miss Dorothy Gloer, of Columbus high and Clara Belle Smith Business college.

Miss Gloer and her runners-up, Misses Francis Cozart and Dorothy Westbrook, were feted as guests of the city and acted as hostesses to the many visitors and other beauty queens.

Their counterparts of today will begin arriving tomorrow for the 1949 pageant.

Marriage License Gotten by Jimmy

Greying bachelor Jimmy Stewart, still wearing makeup from his morning's work before the ceremony, made his wedding plans official by appearing at the marriage license bureau with his divorcee-fiancee, Gloria Hatfield McLean.

Mrs. McLean, ex-model and former wife of Edward M. McLean Jr. of Washington, gave her age yesterday as 31. Stewart said he was 41, and that this was his first venture into matrimony.

They'll be married August 8 at the 2 o'clock service at the Presbyterian church.

7,000 Infantrymen Pass Swim Tests

Nearly 7,000 members of the Third Infantry division received certificates of proficiency, beginners grade, in swimming last month, it was announced by division G-3 officials this week.

The certificates were awarded in the annual Red Cross swimmer of the year contest which was held through preliminary tests.

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the division, announced a campaign to qualify every Third division man in swimming earlier this summer.

The 7,000 who received certificates were those members of the division who were found, upon examination, to already be qualified swimmers or to possess the necessary rudimentary knowledge to pass the beginners test.

The system which permitted the record-breaking number to pass the test was originated by Carroll L. Bryant, Red Cross national director of water safety.

The tests were given with one qualified instructor testing from 12 to 30 men. The five classes which made up the test covered an average of from 12 to 15 hours per man.

Those men of the division who did not possess the necessary knowledge to take the test last month, are expected to begin classes in swimming sometime in the early part of August.

Almost 3,500 non-swimmers will receive instruction in the basic techniques of swimming with emphasis on overcoming a fear of water.

By mid-September, it was predicted, almost every man in the division will possess enough

Plan to Honor Babe Ruth Has Support of Baseball

Major and minor league baseball executives from all parts of the nation rallied today to a proposal that would call for a minute of silence at all games on the first anniversary of Babe Ruth's death.

The suggestion for the tribute to Ruth on Aug. 16—the date of his death last year—was made by International News Service in a telephone conversation with Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler at his Versailles, Ky., home.

Chandler termed the proposal "an excellent idea in honor of the babe." The baseball czar also promised to bring the matter before a meeting of major and minor league executives in Chicago Aug. 17.

In Birmingham, Ala., where they tell on an old fellow who used to make his wife keep a cash account. Each Saturday he would examine it, mumbling and grumbling to himself. On one such occasion, he summoned his wife.

"Look here, Pauline," he stormed. "This extravagance has got to stop!" He ran his finger down the column: "Headache powders, 15 cents; two teeth pulled, $3.00; new card for the electric iron, 75 cents. There's $3.90 in one week spent for your own private pleasure. Do you think I'm made of money?"

Overhead on the rifle range. "Remember men, this bullet will penetrate two feet of wood, so keep your heads down."

"Ruth: 'How is it that Dan never takes you to the movies anymore?'"

June: "Well, one evening it rained, and we stayed home."

Judge: "Come now, you don't really think this man tried to put your eye out?"

Man: "Well, I wouldn't exactly say he tried to put it out—but he sure tried to push it further in!"

Sailor: "I'm a better man every time I kiss you."

Chick: "Boy, you must have been a low brow before we met last week!"

"What made you give your alarm clock away?"

"Oh, that thing! It kept going off when I was trying to sleep."

Wonder Work Done In Therapy Section

By DON SCHAEFER

Ward C-9 at the station hospital is to most people and indeed even to some doctors, just another part of the Benning hospital section.

What takes place in that ward has been described at various times in history as "wonder work," "faith healing," and even in the darker times of unenlightened medicine, "witchcraft."

Actually, what happens there is a result of long study, thorough research and sure medical practice.

The ward houses a clinic which carries on the little known but ancient branch of medicine known as physical therapy. Physical therapy might be basically defined as a method whereby muscles and joints are exercised and trained artificially until they can once again perform their natural functions without mechanical aid.

A soldier recently went out to handle the public address system at an Easter service here. There was a sharp cold wind blowing and the soldier sustained what is medically termed "Bell's palsy," a facial paralysis of the facial expression of the muscles.

He could not close his eyelids, wrinkle his nose, smile or frown.

The case was diagnosed and treatment was prescribed. To day the soldier is receiving treatments on the electrical machine at the ward. Each of the muscles of expression is given 20 electrical applications. With each treatment the muscles expand and contract, performing under outside impulses the necessary work of treatment.

Ultra-violet and infra-red lamps are used in the heat and radiation treatments. Physical massage is used both to relax and stimulate muscles and to soothe the nerves. The water and enable the weakened muscles to perform more normal joint motion under the buoyant heat of the water.

The results of therapy treatments are not miracles. The hours of patient treatment and the skill which goes with the knowledge a physical therapist must possess to give proper treatment.

The patients at the Station hospital must have the virtue of patience. Some cases require lying under the heat and radiation lamps. Immersing the injured member in water and exercising the muscles for long wearisome hours are all part of the program to help nature speed the recovery of a patient.

Besides its electrical and heat treatments, the clinic has a remedial gym. Certain arrangements of exercising machines have been formulated to exercise certain groups of muscles or certain limbs. There are bags of shot, resembling bean bags, for the exercise of the fingers and special leg strengthening machines.

Often a patient who discards a walking cast will continue to limp. There may be no longer any physical need for favoring the limped limb but the habit persists. To help the patient return which the motor nerves would ordinarily control. The artificial movement prevents the muscle tissue from dying while the motor nerves which rehabilitate at a rate of about one inch per month, regain their power. The same patient can now move his eyelids, wrinkle his nose and almost grin.

The muscles are still weak, but with continued treatments, the nerves are being put into condition to stimulate the muscles again and they will soon be strong and ready to work again as a result of physical therapy.

The clinic handles cases of post-polio muscular maladjustment, minor sprains, fractures and injuries which have caused loss of normal joint motion and muscle strength and almost any pathological stiffness which involves joints and muscles but does not require a long period of immobilization.

At present the clinic averages 2,000 treatments a month and is staffed by two army physiotherapists and two army technicians. Capt. Dorothy Lawrence and Rose Amanda, the two physiotherapists at the hospital, give the treatments.

A physical therapy today must have a background of at least three years of anatomy and specialized training in physical therapy. The profession is recognized as a branch of surgery and treatment is given only on the prescription of a qualified physician.

The basic elements of physical therapy are heat, massage, water, electricity and exercise.

The clinic at the hospital here is fully equipped with the necessary tools of treatment.

Ultra-violet and infra-red lamps are used in the heat and radiation treatments. Physical massage is used both to relax and stimulate muscles and to soothe the nerves. The water and enable the weakened muscles to perform more normal joint motion under the buoyant heat of the water.

Master Not Best Friend

Society Seeking New Home For Faithful Mongrel Pup

A faithless master's faithful dog, was seeking a new permanent home today after waiting more than a week at the spot where he was abandoned, hoping his owner would return.

Mrs. Charles Cummings, president of the Columbus Humane society, has found the dog, a temporary home with Mrs. Porter, 725 First avenue, Mrs. Porter described the pooch as a "thoroughbred mongrel."

Mrs. Cummings said "Buster" had been put out of an automobile and left on the curb in front of the home Mrs. Mae Porter, 725 First avenue, Mrs. Porter witnessed the incident, and went to the aid of the animal. She told Mrs. Cummings the dog walked patiently for the return of his master.

Sgt. 1-cl. Lonnie W. Bradshaw retires.

Mrs. Cummings said "Buster" had been put out of an automobile and left on the curb in front of the home Mrs. Mae Porter, 725 First avenue, Mrs. Porter witnessed the incident, and went to the aid of the animal.

Mrs. Cummings, who has found homes for scores of dogs, spoke out vigorously a gainst abandonment of animals.

There are plenty of doctors, plus the humane society, who will put a dog to sleep if the owner does not wish to keep him," she said, "this is a much better way to dispose of them than leaving them to starve on the streets."

"We finally succeeded in catching him and feeding him, but it was too late," she said. "People seem to abandon their dogs chiefly for two reasons. One, it is the pet of either their wife or children, but a pest to them, or second, living quarters become too crowded."

"But in cases of necessity, having the animal put to sleep is much more humane."

Anyone interested in acquiring "Buster" may get in touch with the Humane society or Mrs. Cummings.

Shipping Rate Decision Due From Truckers. Columbus shippers will learn within a few days if truck lines will reduce freight rates to levels set by rail lines. Two representatives of the newly formed Columbus shippers cooperative met in Atlanta today after returning from the Southern Motor Carriers Rate conference in Atlanta. A standing rate committee took under advisement "whether or not the motor carriers should meet the rates of the rail lines," said T. C. Roberts, traffic manager of the Columbus Freight Bureau. Mr. Roberts and Bass Lewis Jr. attended the Atlanta conference in Atlanta, representatives of the Columbus shippers. They endorsed a proposal for truck lines to match rates offered by rail carriers for merchandise to be shipped between Eastern points and Columbus. Rail rates are based on a minimum carload of 30,000 pounds, Mr. Roberts said. The motor carrier rates are on a minimum of a 20,000 pound minimum truckload and the motor carriers claim they give faster service than rail lines. The Columbus Merchants association and the Freight Bureau are now working on a consolidated carload or truckload freight service for Columbus shippers from points in the North and East. Mr. Roberts said memberships are being accepted in the shippers group, which will work for lower freight rates for its members. When the visitor was shown into the lieutenant's office, he remarked: "That man of yours seems to be a hard worker." "Yes," replied the Lt. "That's his specialty." "What, working hard?" "No, seeming to."

2nd Battalion Won Award 6 Years Ago

Next Monday six years will have passed since the 2nd battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, earned the first presidential unit citation awarded the regiment during World War II.

At this time the enemy was ready for their first attack. Eight tanks were discovered moving east from Sant' Agata along the highway. Flashes lit the night field as artillery opened fire. Three tanks were knocked out, and the group withdrew into the town, where they were put out of action by gunfire from two destroyers and a cruiser supporting the assault.

At 10 o'clock, Aug. 9, Colonel Bernard received orders to assemble the landing team, a nd move back to a new embarkation point on the beach. The 2nd battalion's Sant' Agata operation had been spectacularly successful. The enemy had withdrawn from all his forward positions and could offer no further delaying actions.

Without rest the intrepid 2nd battalion was now preparing to embark on its second amphibious operation in two days. This time the mission was to land 15 miles behind enemy lines and cut the highway at Brolo, half way between Cape Orlando and Cape Galevo.

That evening, however, enemy dive bombers attacked the craft waiting to land and the operation had to be postponed. In the afternoon the next day, while the other units of the 30th Infantry regiment remained in bivouac near San Fratello, the 2nd battalion boarded the craft. Included was a train of 16 mules — much to the dismay of the mulemen.

The convoy weighed anchor at dusk and started up the coast. The run into the beach between the Brolo and Naso rivers began shortly after 2 a. m., Aug. 11. Rapid, quiet work landed the entire assault force without loss by 4 a. m.

Immediately upon landing road blocks were established, some 2,500 yards apart on the highway along the coast. By 10 o'clock the landing elements reached the road, a vehicle was heard moving along from the west, and was allowed to pass as a secret of the operation had not yet been lost. Five minutes later a motorcycle came down the road. Seeing the faint blackout light approach through the night, an over-exhausted sentry fired a near miss shot and killed the driver. The same fate met a small car a few minutes later. As a result the enemy opened up with flares and tracer fire in the dark.

The men of the assault wave began the advance toward the town of Brolo. Pulling up and sowing forward by grabbing bushes and tufts of grass they swayed up the steep slope of the eastern tip of the mountain, while rifle and machine-gun fire lit the night.

In the early dawn the top of Mt. Crolo was reached, and at 6:30 a. m. the assault force had captured the town. The men were in position and reorganized. A platoon attempted to scale the tip of the mountain, but heavy fire from across the Brolo river.

Battalion headquarters had landed with the last wave at daybreak. Moving across the road, 37 enemy were encountered and fired upon. Having lost several men, the enemy surrendered to the five Americans. Later, during the selecting of command post, an Italian field hospital including 60 enemy was captured by the battalion sergeant major and three runners.

At noon a column of troops was discovered moving east from Sant' Agata along the highway. When contact was established, they proved to be the 3rd battalion of the 7th Infantry regiment.

During the afternoon and the following night, several enemy counter attacks through the lemon grove north of the highway were repulsed with heavy losses. By the following morning elements of the Third Division were caught up with the 2nd battalion's left flank and commenced the assault. Artillery then took up positions in the lemon grove north of the road.

Five hours after the first assault boat had touched sand, Colonel Bernard had the battalion reorganized and firmly entrenched in the hills. All German traffic on the road was cut off. A group of men, numbering less than a platoon, continued the assault on the beach. The increasing heat of the morning they worked their way up the steep, jagged slope. Seizing the precipitous cliffs against continuous machine-gun fire and sniping, they engaged the enemy and numbered vehicles where they reached the small village of Brolo.

The small group entrenched there until the next morning, in spite of both friendly and enemy artillery fire and counter attacks. During this action each man had only one canteen of water and two-thirds of a K- Sant' Agata and Terranova ration.

That evening, however, enemy dive bombers attacked the craft waiting to land and the operation had to be postponed. In the afternoon the next day, while the other units of the 30th Infantry regiment remained in bivouac near San Fratello, the 2nd battalion boarded the craft. Included was a train of 16 mules — much to the dismay of the mulemen.

The convoy weighed anchor at dusk and started up the coast. The run into the beach between the Brolo and Naso rivers began shortly after 2 a. m., Aug. 11. Rapid, quiet work landed the entire assault force without loss by 4 a. m.

Immediately upon landing road blocks were established, some 2,500 yards apart on the highway along the coast. By 10 o'clock the landing elements reached the road, a vehicle was heard moving along from the west, and was allowed to pass as a secret of the operation had not yet been lost. Five minutes later a motorcycle came down the road. Seeing the faint blackout light approach through the night, an over-exhausted sentry fired a near miss shot and killed the driver. The same fate met a small car a few minutes later. As a result the enemy opened up with flares and tracer fire in the dark.

The men of the assault wave began the advance toward the town of Brolo. Pulling up and sowing forward by grabbing bushes and tufts of grass they swayed up the steep slope of the eastern tip of the mountain, while rifle and machine-gun fire lit the night. In the early dawn the top of Mt. Crolo was reached, and at 6:30 a. m. the assault force had captured the town. The men were in position and reorganized. A platoon attempted to scale the tip of the mountain, but heavy fire from across the Brolo river.

About 15 men were killed in this serve held out in an order by Colonel Bernard, was now also exhausted.

An hour later the enemy obviously had recovered from his surprise. His rapid, successful three patrols approached the mountain. They were all pinned down by heavy machine gun fire, while mortars planted fire on them. This ended most enemy activity below the road, except until after dark.

About 9 o'clock enemy vehicles were seen moving westward along the road towards Brolo. These movements were stopped by naval gunfire. At the same time two tanks and some infantry came down the same road and were driven back by artillery fire.

By this time lack of mortar ammunition made only harassing fire possible. The mule train made an attempt to bring supplies up the hill, but meeting heavy machine gun fire, all but two mules were killed. The trip was long and losses probably heavily high for hand-carry of ammunition to be successful. In the meanwhile preparations were made by the enemy on the left flank and reinforcements were seen arriving at Brolo. An assembly of heavy artillery was delayed as the battalion's artillery fired on Brolo, and a steady air mission bombarded roads and assembly areas east of the town.

The volume of enemy fire on the left flank of the battalion was increasing rapidly. As the wirelines had been damaged by heavy tracer, the communication with the naval support was disrupted and the cruiser and two destroyers did not respond. The difficulties continued mounting for the battalion. It was now impossible to direct artillery fire on the beach. The landing team was completed. The landing team was moved to a bivouac area in a lemon grove west of Naso, where the 2nd battalion remained. (See AWARD page 24)

At 3 p. m. the requested air support was materialized, only all too late. Seven A-30s swooped in low over the southern hills, planting two heavy bombs in the battalion command post and the remainder in the lemon grove on the flats below the road, knocking out all remaining guns. The infantry now stood alone.

The positions in the flats were rapidly becoming untenable. Orders to withdraw, one of the two companies managed successfully. During the evening small groups of the other company, now badly disorganized and with many casualties, dribbled back up the hill. The remaining mortar ammunition was expended in covering the disengagement.

When dusk closed in over the hill, a message over the 511 radio was received by Colonel Bernard. It gave the electrifying news that the 7th Infantry regiment was on a hill just beyond Naso. With the knowledge held on the way, the battered 2nd battalion was driven off the position to the last.

At midnight an enemy patrol started up the slopes on the southern flank, but was driven off by heavy machine-gun fire. Early the next morning survivors on the mountain coast, near two approaching a 9 a. m. hour later, they were found to be the 1st battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, arriving after a forced march of 14 miles. They continued along the highway through the 2nd battalion. The tired and hungry men on the mountain were relieved of their position. The second "land run" was completed. The landing team was moved to a bivouac area in a lemon grove west of Naso, where the 2nd battalion remained. (See AWARD page 24)

Gets Purple Heart Here

The commanding officer of the 155th Infantry regiment, part of the 31st Infantry National Guard division in training for a two week period here, was awarded the Purple Heart last Friday at ceremonies held in 31st division headquarters.

The award was presented to Col. Leslie L. Evans by Brig. Gen. Walter J. Hanna. Colonel Evans received the medal for injuries received when a plane in which he was searching for a lost patrol, crashed on the island of Mindana in the Pacific. Colonel Evans, at the time was a lieutenant colonel in command of the Third Battalion of the 66th and General Hanna held the rank of colonel in command of the 155th.

G. I. NEW PAY SYSTEM COMPLETE SUCCESS

(Continued from Page 1) provide for the payment of the necessary information to veterans. On it should be the veteran's address, for the next six months as well as a present address. Also asked for are his serial number, his claim number, his name, and his name both in print and in longhand. The beneficiaries of deceased veterans entitled to a share in the funds need not use this form. It can be filled out by a different form, will be mailed them by the Veteran's Administration.

Reproduced forms, such as those photographed and used in newspapers and magazines, can not be filled in and submitted because they must be processed by special machines. The first step in the gigantic process of distributing this vast amount of money has been almost completed. It involved microfilming the master premium record cards in every branch office of the Veterans Administration to the V-Mail system extension during the late war.

The size of the checks will vary anywhere from 50 cents to $300.00, according to the age of the policy holder and to his length of possession of the policy. The type of policy will have no effect on his payment, since the premium will have differed simultaneously with the dividend.

Two Officers Assigned Here

Department of the Army orders revealed this week that two new officers have been assigned to the Infantry Center here. One of the officers, Lt. Col. John F. P. Hill, will assume duties as a member of the staff and faculty of the Infantry School. The second officer is Maj. Rudolph J. Bohmer who is assigned to the 3440th Area Service unit.

New Commander For Company L

Company L of the 15th Infantry regiment received a new commander last week when 1st Lt. Benjamin F. With replaced Capt. D. Whiting.

CONGRATULATIONS SERGEANT.... Col. J. W. Boone, (right), commanding officer of the 30th Infantry regiment, extends to Sgt. Salvatore Lanzieri, of Company G, the banner entitling his mess the best in the regiment. 1st Lt. Joseph A. Fields, executive officer of Company G, views the presentation.

COMPANY G, 30th TAKES NEW AWARD

Company G of the 30th Infantry regiment was the first recipient of a banner recognizing the efficiency and hard work which earned them the award for the best mess hall of the week.

The blue and white banner was presented to Sgt. Salvatore A. Lanzieri, mess sergeant, by Col. Joseph W. Boone, commanding officer of the 30th.

The program to recognize superior cleanliness and efficiency in mess halls was initiated by Colonel Boone last month.

A regimental inspection team has been touring the mess halls of the regiment for the past four weeks and Company G was the first to receive the award.

The plan of the program calls for the award of a special plaque to the company which wins the banner twice in succession.

During the time the mess halls have been regularly inspected, the following, besides Company G, have been judged superior: Company D, Sgt. Willie S. Yarnadore, mess sergeant, and Heavy Mortar company, Sgt. Thomas J. Botney, mess sergeant, and Company L, Sgt. Merrill A. Bright.

Adolph Weinacker, Michigan State College sophomore from Detroit, is the National AAU 50, 000-meter walking champion.

Corporal, Acting Platoon Leader, Is Honored Here

Efficient shouldering of responsibility beyond his rank brings to Cpl. Alton H. Hughes this week's title of "Soldier of the Week."

Within the past two weeks, Corporal Hughes has risen from his position as squad leader in Company K of the 30th Infantry regiment to that of acting platoon leader in command of the heavy weapons platoon.

He took over this responsibility on July 27 when the platoon was transferred to the Student Training Regiment.

He proved the trust his superiors had placed in him was not misplaced according to company officials, when he stepped in and conducted a class in Company K with advance preparation when the officer scheduled to give the talk was prevented from giving it by pressing duties elsewhere.

Corporal Hughes is married and lives with his wife in Columbus. He came to Fort Benning last Huge Maneuver Planned by U.S.

FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The U. S. high command in Germany plans to throw some 90,000 combat troops into maneuvers in Western Germany this autumn, it was disclosed today.

The war games, to be staged between the Rhine and the Elbe, two of Europe's natural defense lines, are expected to answer an important question posed by the Atlantic pact.

Military experts said the answer depends to a large extent on where the Western democratic defense line against possible aggression from the East is drawn. By using the large troop force in the maneuvers, the Americans hope to determine if their highly mobile German garrison can defend the "military vacuum" Germany presents today.

February and has been married for two and one-half months. Overseas in Germany for the past three years with the First Infantry Division, Corporal Hughes plans to make a career of the army.

Butler-Neesam Marriage Saturday at Sand Hill

Mrs. Frances Butler of Columbus, Ga. and Atkinson, Neb., became the bride of Sgt. Earl L. Neesam, of Columbus, Wis., and Fort Benning, in a quiet ceremony in the Sand Hill chapel, Saturday morning at 10:00 a. m. Chaplain (1st Lt.) John V. Peters performed the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. Rose De Yoe, of Columbus, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her dress was of silk taffeta, in a changeable pink-to-orchid shade. She wore black accessories and her corsage was of white gardenias. Cpl. Rollie Shriner attended the groom as best man. The bride chose for her wedding a smartly tailored summer suit of pale blue, with which she wore white accessories. Her corsage was a spray of tube roses centered with gardenias.

The couple entertained at a reception in the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion NCO club Saturday evening at 8 p. m. Members of the battalion and friends from Columbus gathered to honor the bride and groom. Mrs. Neesam is the daughter of Mr. George L. Spindel, of Atkinson, Nebraska. She is a graduate of the Atkinson high school, and was a member in two Holt County schools for terms, before coming to Columbus, Georgia, where she has been employed as secretary in the office of the American Life Insurance company. Sergeant's son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Neesam, of Columbus, Wisconsin, has been assigned to Headquarters, 4th Service company, 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, for the past two years.

Boy Scouts

Troop 27 held a water carnival at the Officers' club pool, last Saturday at 9 a. m. Lt. Col. George B. Pickett, Jr., scoutmaster, and Capt. James Polk, assistant scoutmaster, directed the events and were the judges. Scouts competed individually and not by teams in the Sand scout back stroke event. Bob Rosebaum won first place, C. R. Baetcke, second, and George Rette, third. In the side stroke event, George Rette came first, Bob Purvis, second and John Rodenmayer, third. The breast stroke event for Senior Scouts was won by George Rette, with John Rodenmayer, second, and Bob Purvis, third. The 100 yard freestyle event was won by Bob Rosebaum, with Carl Baetcke, second and Lawrence Smith, third.

Junior Boy scouts competed in the same events with the following results: Back stroke: Fritz Eggers, first place; Glen Newman, second; and Bernd Baetcke, third.

Coleman Fay, Jan and Jo Miller, Sandra Sneed, Sarah Wells, Sylvia Chamberlain, Nancy Minor, Eddie Guinan, Larry Jean Bankston, John Owens, Linda Faye Brown, Jo Ann Gilmore, Frances Dobrosky, Leveda and Peggy Rosen, Barbara Gal King, Geraldine Ralley, Vickie and Maribel Stewart, and Elsie and Ronnie Bonifay.

Games suitable to children of varying ages were played, including "Farmer-in-the-dell" and "Spin-the-bottle," and prizes were awarded the winners. The birthday table was a study in red and yellow, from the birthday cake, topped with a large "9" candle, in the center of the individual plastic table favors, filled with party candies. The centerpieces to each individual place made a design of artistry and beauty. Red and yellow balloons were also given as favors.

For her party Nancy wore a strapless mint green dress, featuring "Waikiki" in blue, on a white background. She wore matching blue socks. "Ice cream, cake and soda pop were provided for refreshments, and Mrs. Raymond Froward and Mrs. Kendall E. King assisted in serving. Guests who assisted to help Nancy celebrate her birthday were Gail and David Durocher, Jeanette and Raymond Lowery, Sandra and Jackie Wright, Rickie and

Many Attend Divarty Fete

Divarty officers, their wives and guests held an old-fashioned barbecue at the Third Infantry division rest camp last Saturday, when Lt. Col. Orlando C. Troxel, new Divarty commander, was introduced for the first time to the assembled command by Lt. Col. Herbert C. Sparrow, commander of the 41st Field Artillery battalion.

A whole pig, slowly roasted on a grate over an open fire (from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.), was the feature attraction of the outing. A lot of trimmings to make a complete picnic dinner were provided, including beverages of every description.

The committee in charge of outing arrangements included Lt. William F. Millard and Lt. K. A. Campbell of Divarty headquarters, and Capt. Dan A. McCartney and Lt. T. D. Eason of the Ninth Field Artillery battalion. Not only were they responsible for the refreshments, but they also planned a successful program of entertainment for afternoon and evening.

Sports headlined the afternoon event, with those actively inclined, and Maj. John W. Jennings took undisputed horseshoe pitching honors. The 38th battalion team won the volley ball event, and other games rating high in popularity were badminton and ping pong.

An army public address system was installed to provide music recordings for afternoon entertainment and dancing in the evening.

Additional WACs On Clerical Duty

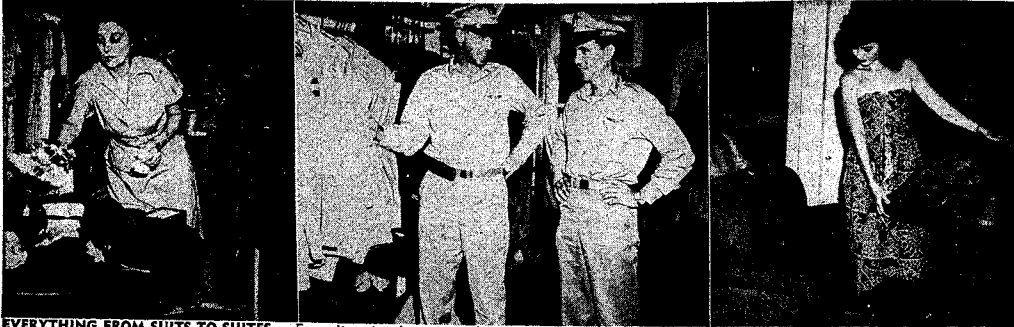

Eleven additional WAC recruits have arrived at Fort Benning during the past few weeks. WAC Detachment commander, Capt. H. Verhuy, said today "This brings the total WAC strength at the post up to 25, mostly clerical workers. Four more woman soldiers are expected to arrive this week. Capt. Verhuy said, following completion of Basic Training at Camp Lee, Va., and additional personnel are expected to join the detachment throughout the summer."

Trading Post Sells Wide Assortment

Would you like to buy some secondhand toothpaste or a half-dozen used gold fish? The Trading Post, located on the south side of Doughboy stadium has these as well as dozens more useful items for sale.

Under the direction of Mrs. L. Sheppard, the Trading Post has been in operation since April, 1947, selling merchandise on consignment from military personnel and their families.

"Not all the things we get are really second hand," according to Mrs. Sheppard. "For instance, we recently received several sets of china that were brought back from the far east that hadn't even been unpacked."

Furniture, such as sofas and chairs, are popular items. Mrs. Sheppard reports, "Many families buy inexpensive sets of furniture during the month or two following school and have us sell it again when they leave. There is one sofa I have sold three times and it's almost time for it to come in again."

"Yes, we have a fur coat or two and no—we don't carry diamond rings, as we have no facilities for guarding and displaying jewelry."

The two most popular items are uniforms and baby furniture.

SCHEDULED AIRLINES CREATE DISCOUNTS

Army personnel are now authorized by the Department of National Defense to use the scheduled airlines.

Under the new policy, Capital, traveling on permanent change airlines, operating west of the Rocky mountains, is now allowing a 10 per cent discount on all one way round trip air fares pursuant to the issuance of a government transportation receipt.

Forty pounds of baggage will be transported free for each passenger traveling on other than permanent change of station orders and 60 pounds will be transported free for each passenger.

Island Show Will be Seen Here Aug. 18

Theaters No. 1 and 7 at Fort Benning will resound on Thursday, Aug. 18, to the strains of Hawaiian guitars and melodies, as the "Paradise Revue," an all-Hawaiian show, opens.

One of the few authentic South Seas shows to hit the mainland, this group was organized during the war under USO auspices to entertain soldiers and sailors stationed in the Hawaiian islands. When it arrived in the United States, two boys joined the company, Jerry Martin, a dancer, and Danny Asbury, a ventriloquist.

"Paradise Revue" has a line of five Hawaiian dancing girls, who open with a number entitled "Tip Around the Island in the Moonlight."

In addition to the girls, Maile Keli, a specialty dancer, exhibits her gracefulness on the dance floor, as does Hattie Au. Jerry Martin, a soft shoe specialist, joins them in their dance routines. The music is supplied by an island combination, complete with native instruments.

Vocalist and comic Johnny Aquino highlights the show with his comedy vocals, and has been receiving much applause for his "Ragtime Cowboy Joe" rendition, which is especially amusing.

Chinese and American Awards to 73rd Men

Two enlisted men of the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion received recognition for outstanding wartime achievements last week, as they were awarded a Bronze Star and a high Chinese decoration.

Sgt. 1st-Cl. David S. Parkhurst, a native of Marathon, Fla., received a Bronze Star for his actions with the 34th Infantry regiment in Belgium and Germany during the famed Ninth Army's move across the continent.

Sergeant Parkhurst entered the army in 1943, and after taking basic training at Camp Croft, S. C., joined Company A of the 34th, with which he went overseas.

On the 29th of May 1945, he returned to the states, and three years later he joined the 75th Tank battalion, which soon became the 73rd. He has been with the S-2 section, since that time, M-Sgt. Woodrow W. Hill received one of the highest awards given by the Chinese government when Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson pinned on his Medal of The Army, Navy and Air Force, C-2 CB.

From 1947 until February 1949, Sergeant Hill acted as assistant advisor in automotive instruction to the Chinese government. For the 18 months he covered all phases of the automotive department for the Chinese.

In recognition of the invaluable services rendered the Chinese government, Sergeant Hill was named one of China's most coveted citations.

Following the presentation of the decorations, the two men joined General Clarkson in reviewing troops of the 73rd as they passed before the stand.

Lieutenant Rogers Assigned to Town

First Lt. Richard M. Rogers of the adjutant general department, has been assigned to the main recruiting station in Columbus, Ga., as recruiting officer for Columbus announced this week.

Lieutenant Rogers comes to the Columbus office from a similar position held at Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

In the armed services for nine years, Lieutenant Rogers spent 20 months in Africa and Italy, with the airforce when he reached the grade of master sergeant. A platoon organized by the State highway district there.

HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

Although the Doughboy swim team didn't bring home the team honors, local swimmers did garner 20 trophies, three of which were won by one man, Bob Roach.

Throughout the meet, the locals made a strong bid for first place, and it wasn't until the very last that it became anything other than anybody's race.

Coming into the stretch, it looked for a while as though there was little hope for any money finishes, but the Benning boys carried on and came home with their share of the bacon.

The frame of the 1949 Fort Benning Doughboy baseball nine is beginning to spread with their four wins in as many outings against the Bentley Sport Shop nine, the Tyndall field Tornados, the Maxwell field Bombers, and the Columbus City league All-stars. If the winning streak continues, word of Doughboy power will become a myth in the Third Army area, and rate the locals as one of the top nines in the Third Army area championship baseball tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C. next week.

Nevertheless, the squad, though winning now, shows room for improvements in the field. A little bucking down, especially in the infield where the material covering the positions have the makings of a near perfect, tight double play and a round-the-horn combo will make for stronger defense. Thus far, mound chores don't seem to worry Coach Walker, and from where we sit, we don't think they should with men like Jim Shirley, and the Sisco ready to handle the hurling.

The batting power is there, but we would like to see some of the stick wielders become a little more sure of themselves when they step up to the plate.

In picking up bits of gossip around the post people have been heard by us to say that the baseball season didn't last long enough. We should like to remind those fans that army baseball history will be made right here at Cowdy field during the week of September 11-18 when teams from army commands in the United States and overseas will participate in the first all-army baseball tournament in the history of army ball.

If the Doughboys win the Third Army area team which will be vying for all-army honors in that tourney.

August 15 will mark the opening of practice paces by the Doughboy grid squad which, considering the material on the post, and the leadership appointed to pilot the crew, should make a name for itself this year as Benning elevens have in the past.

Post Mermen Nod In 3rd Army Meet

3 Event Winner Ex-Academy Coach Joins Local Staff

Fort Benning's Doughboy swimming team took third place in the Third Army championship swims held last week at Fort McPherson. The never-say-die Doughboys, conceded a 1 1/2 chance of finishing anywhere near the money, battled Fort Bragg, last year's winners, and Fort Jackson point for point. Not until the last event on the program was the meet decided.

The Doughboys picked up 48 points, while the Braggmen captured 86, one more than Jackson's Red Devils. Paced by ASU's Bob Roach, Dayton Warren's charges returned with 20 trophies. Roach accounted for three himself.

Benning's high class divers made a clean sweep in both the high and low board events. Davy's Art Villalobos captured the low board crown, followed closely by Wes Wycoff of the 10th Engineer battalion. Bruce Johnson, New York metropolitan diving champ, walked off with the high board title without any trouble.

The 260-yard freestyle relay team captured the Doughboys' other first place. John James, Charlie Hosket, Roach and a nephew, Tony Kelly teamed up to clinch the event in 2:28.3.

Closest race of the day was a nip and tuck affair. Jackson's John Truby, defending champion, and Al Parker, of Benning, battled it out stroke for stroke in the 100-yard backstroke. Truby, by out-touched Parker at the finish mark, Dick Wood wrapped up third place for the locals.

Wood and Johnson teamed up with Clair Schwen to take second place in the 200-yard relay. Bob Ristau of the 15th Infantry, took third in the 50-yard freestyle while Obrey Parker, also of the 15th, and Johnson captured third and fourth in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Walter Alden and Roach placed second and third in the grueling 440-yard freestyle. Roach picked up this third trophy when he teamed up with Warren, Alden and Kelly to take third place in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Following the meet, team members were guests of Third Army special services officials at a dinner. Members of the Doughboys team were Dayton Warren, coach; Alfred C. Parker, William Blackburn, Robert Roach, Edward Stiles, Westley Wycoff, Robert Williams, Richard Wood, Walter Alden, Hans Mayer, Robert Ristau, Clair Schwen, Wallace Thompson, O. V. Alford, Oswald Camp, Charles Hosket, John James, Bruce Johnson, Anthony Kelly, Raymond McLoughlin, Obrey Parker, Teddy Short and Arthur Villalobos.

FOOTBALL FORECASTS

As the autumn season rolls around with its football activity, let's start focusing our crystal ball on the various sections of the country and see about the gridiron possibilities of some of the teams. Since most sports writers start with the East we'll follow suit.

The top teams in the East, with lettermen, rates as the team to beat in the East.

Cornell prospects for this fall will be excellent. Potential stars include Halfback Hillary Collier and Annapolis. The top small college in the East should once again be the Cardinals of West Point, N. Y. where he played two years of varsity ball under Andy Kerr.

In the summer of 1948, Bresnahan entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. where he played two years of varsity ball under "Red" Blake. In his senior year, Bresnahan, having used up his eligibility, helped to coach the piebe team. He graduated from the Academy on June 3, 1948, being the last class of Cadets to take the wartime three year course.

Cornell . . . The strains of "Big Red Team" will probably resound through Ithaca town many times this fall, as the James gang from Cornell rolls to rough schedule can stop the high victory. The Big Red, studded with fine players who will field the best offensive team in the East. The club will be led by big Ed Seegin, an Academy history maker, who passed for 1,172 yards last season.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY . . . If Schooley Wonder Harry Augustin comes through, there will be no stopping the Terriers. An easy schedule will help But Donnell's boys.

ARMY . . . The Cadets still have Arnold Galfrin operating that T and he may be the difference. The Cadets step out of their class when they meet the mighty Wolverines at Ann Arbor on October 8, but the rest of the schedule could go either way.

NAVY . . . Head coach George Sauer is slinging the blues, but the news out of Annapolis is that the Navy is loaded. The Middies made shambles of three Eastern colleges during spring practice and intend to take up where they left off. Several veterans of the club that led Army are back along with the stars of last year's piebe team, called the "Greenies" in Academy history.

BOSTON COLLEGE . . . Only a rough schedule can stop the high victory. The Big Red, studded with fine players who will field the best offensive team in the East.

BROWN . . . The Bruins appear to have a better team this season than the club that won seven and lost two last year. Biggest problem is replacing Quarterback Ed Finn, who graduated. Joe Paterno and Walt Pastuszak are the outstanding candidates for the post vacated by Finn.

BIKKNELL . . . The Bisons, with an all-veteran club, should improve on last year's record of only one victory in nine contests.

COLGATE . . . The Red Raiders still have a long way to go, but should do better than 1948, when the club won only three games.

COLUMBIA . . . Lou Little is back and the truth about the club is that Lou lost his 11 starters, and every position is wide open. With a rough slate ahead, Little is scheduled to have many headaches.

DARTMOUTH . . . The Green Indians are on the prowl once more and are out to equal last year's mark when they graduated from the Injuns war club. The 1948 edition will be led by Herb Carey, 205-pound fullback, who is rated one of the top line-backers in the East.

FORDHAM . . . The Rams are bound to improve on last year's record when an all sophomore team won three games. With the added experience garnered last year, the Rose Hill lads will prove troublesome to all their foes. The top stars on the club should be two Jersey boys, Longdon Varocita and Dick Doherty.

HARVARD . . . The Crimson makes its first 113 letterman. Coast since 1920 when the team played in the Rose Bowl. Unless some talented players are discovered, however, Coach Art Valpe's crew will lose that con-

Dough Nine Loses Flyer Mound Star

The Fort Benning Doughboys greatest single day in Raether's career came last June, 9 when the big portsideer practically beat the Infantry School single handed. That evening Glenn made three hits in four trips to the plate, scored two runs and batted in three more. He also hit two homers, the only 11 in this season that two homers were hit in a single game. In addition to all this, Raether struck out nine and walked four to lead his club to a 5-4 triumph, despite the fact that his swason teammates committed six errors before him.

Raether, who is scheduled to be discharged in October, has already been approached by several major league scouts and plans to try for a position in organized baseball upon his release from service.

Glenn became a family man on July 1 of this year when he married his childhood sweetheart, Miss Marion Meyer.

Raether started playing organized baseball while still in grammar school. His grammar school team at West Allis, Wisconsin, won the Greater Milwaukee city title.

After graduation, Raether attended Nathan Hale high school in West Allis where he made baseball his first love. Because the school did not have a baseball club, Glenn had to play Amateur ball. Glenn spent the 1944 season playing with the "out" in his home town, holding the first base spot. The legion club that year were runners-up of the Greater Milwaukee city title.

On October 3, 1946, Raether was drafted and assigned to the Air Transport command at Goose Bay, Labrador. He was assigned to the Raether's started his pitching career, hurling for the ATC team. His first summer was one who against 5 losses and he also hit the horsehide for a 310 average. The season, Raether had a chance to play baseball at all as he was stationed in northern Labrador where the snow remained all year round.

Raether's greatest year in baseball was his senior year as a member of the Lawson Flyers. He annexed the post batting title. Raether appeared in 18 ball games for the Lawsonsites this season and made 27 hits in 60 trips to the plate. Probably test to Stanford, and probably quite a few more.

HOLY CROSS . . . The Crusaders, with 25 returning lettermen, should improve on the record they made last season when they split even on games.

LAFAYETTE . . . Second to Rutgers in the "Middle Three" last season, Lafayette is hopeful of duplicating its record of seven victories and two losses. Ivan Williamson, coach for the past two years, has given way to Clipper Smith, former mentor of the pro Boston Yanks. Williamson resigned to take over the coaching duties at the University of Wisconsin.

LEHIGH . . . The Engineers look to a banner year with a club that is loaded with veterans. The team will be led by Robert W. Numbers, touted as the finest center in Pennsylvania since Chuck Bednarik, which means the best in the country.

FITZBURGH . . . Fit, after a successful season last year, may have bitten off more than even a Panther can chew by scheduling such powerhouses as Penn. State, Northwestern, Indiana, Ohio State, Minnesota and Penn. State.

PRINCETON . . . The Tigers will be looking for their third straight Big Three title and will be the favorites to cop the crown. Twenty lettermen return to Nassau Hall, led by Captain-Elect George Scellia, 38-year-old halfback last fall.

TEMPLE . . . The once feared Owls seem destined to have another poor season.

SYRACUSE . . . Just an ordinary team is predicted for the up-staters. The one brilliant glow for the one-time power of the East is Bernie Gustis who is expected to be the top passer in the nation. Syracuse lost eight of nine last season.

VILLANOVA . . . The Wildcats are the question mark of the East. Several key vets return, but may not be able to overbalance the loss of 13 lettermen.

YALE . . . The Bulldogs still have Levi Jackson and Fred some talented players, but the lack of capable linemen will hurt their chances.

Air Force Captures Leech Cup Trophy For First Time

A strong Air Force team won the fifteenth annual Inter-service Leech cup tennis tournament July 30, by defeating the defending champion, Navy, 2-0, on the Army-Navy Country club courts, Washington D. C.

The airforce gained the final round of the inter-service tennis competition by shutting out the Army July 29, 2-0, in one of the more impressive of the long series of Leech matches which began in 1934.

The matches are sponsored by the Inter-Service sports council. It will be the first time the airforce team has its name inscribed on the famous trophy donated by Abner V. Leech, Washington attorney, 25 years ago. The Airforce was in their second year of competition as a separate service having competed in previous years as a part of the Army.

To date Navy has won 10 events, Army and the Air Force one. There were no matches held in 1933 and '34, and during the war years of 1941-47.

Although Navy was defending champion, it was not favored and with Charles Oliver and Robin Hippenstell spearheading the attack, the airforce definitely were outclassed, although hardly outfought.

Some unexpected Navy's strength in the lower-ranked contests might swing the tide of victory, but when the contest was over, Navy had won only the number four and number six singles, and the supposed doubles power was lacking.

Oliver, Air Force champ, and Hippenstell, Mid-Atlantic district pacer the winners with quick 6-2, 6-3 and 6-1, 7-5 wins over Edston Watts, Navy champ, and K. K. Jones, respectively.

Airforce's Art Dreyer came from far behind to register a minor upset over Gordon Hodgson, 1-6, 6-1. Tom Bonner netted the Fourth Air Force singles triumph with a close 6-4, 7-5 win over Jim Parrin.

The Air Force made a clean sweep of the doubles events. Hippenstell and Bonner teamed up to whip Jones and Jim Parrin, 6-0, 6-4; Oliver and Powell edged out Watts and Jones, 6-3, 6-3; and Ramsey Potts joined ed forces with Pete Killer and sponsored by the Inter-Service Sports Council, was under the general supervision of the Navy, chief command. The hostship rotated from year to year among the three services.

The 6-0 victory of the Air Force over the Army registers an injustice to the fine play of the army and the closeness of many matches.

Army's Frank E. Mehner, the All-army singles and doubles champion, won only five games from Charles Oliver, 6-3, 6-2, in the number one contest, but his forcing tactics made the airforce star keep his game going at top speed. Both men followed their service to the net and the sharp duels between them frequently ended in brilliant volley point winners.

Robin Hippenstell won the second place match from Army's Ray Antignat 6-3, 6-2, but the Army stylist matched the airforce player stroke for stroke in the rallies. Antignat, however, made too many errors to hold Hippenstell on even terms. Airforce's Thomas W. Bonner edged out Sanford Webster, All-army team member from Fort Benning 6-3, 7-5, in a battle of all-court play.

The most unusual score of the day was in the airforce-army battle between Arthur Dreyer and David Wood with Dreyer winning 6-6, 6-0, 6-1. In the first set Dreyer overtook his opponent forehand under control and lost six games in a row. Striving for the second championship, the airforce player steadied down, played his shots more cautiously and a short ball was hit, and then lashed out for the point.

In the last set each game went to deuce at least once, and many several times. A few breaks the other way, and Wood may well have won.

The 1949 Leech Cup Matches, sponsored by the Inter-Service Sports Council, was under the general supervision of the Navy, chief command. The hostship rotated from year to year among the three services.

The Doughts have now won two and lost none and scored 27 runs to their opponents 5. The Benningites were paced at the plate by starting hurler Jim Shirley, who slammed out two

The Doughts opened the scoring early by making two runs in the eighth when they scored on a single to the top of the first inning. Letty Kovalak led off the inning by getting a free fanned Bob Kinard reached first on an error, and both scored as Herb Laube drilled a single to right.

The Tornadoes countered by scoring their only run in the bottom of the second frame. Errors by Tom Gallagher and Dave Barnes opened the door for Paul Lanz to score with the tally.

In the fourth inning, the Benningites put the game on ice as they belted Tyndall starter Ace Adams from the hill, with a three run outburst. Laube reached first on an error and came in on Jim Cuccola's long single.

The Benningites had been thrown out attempting a steal. Gallagher singled to left, Jim Shirley then scored. Gallagher with a line triple to deep right field. Shirley also tallied as the "Yankees" second baseman popped the relay from the outfield.

The Benning team added two unearned runs in the sixth and seventh frames when they were followed with four more in the top of the seventh frame. Len Strawthers drove in the first two runs in the eighth with a single to center and Shirley powdered his second triple to score Strawthers. Shirley made the fourth run of the cante by crossing the plate on a passed ball.

The Doughts closed the scoring in the eighth when they tied three more markers. The Benningites made the trio on a wild pitch, a passed ball and a two base hit by Hank Fecker.

The Doughts used a total of twenty-one pitchers, the most including three pitchers, two catchers, seven outfielders, and nine infielders. The Benning pilot, James Walker, now faced with the problem of cutting his squad down to the 18 player limit for the Third Army tournament, which will begin at Fort Jackson, S. C. on the 17th of this month.

General Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commandant, will give an address at graduation ceremonies for the Third Army Area Military Intelligence group at Patric Hall at 1 p.m. Friday.

Post Diamondmen Victors In 3rd Tilt

The Fort Benning Doughboys made it three in a row last Friday night when they defeated the Maxwell Field Bombers 9-3 at Gowdy Field.

The Doughboys flew a total of 15 men, four of them hurlers. The winning pitcher in the game was Larry Hall. Lin Kenyon, formerly with the 15th Infantry Regiment started the game for the Benning boys but gave way to Floyd Kendall, Larry Hall, and Jim McCarville in that order.

Dave Barnes opened the last of the eighth inning by reaching first as catcher Ivy Coburn dropped a third strike. Jim Cuccola and Tom Gallagher followed with singles to lead the bases, and sent starter George Adara to the showers.

With one out, Jim Shirley was sent in to pinch-hit for hurler Larry Hall and promptly walked on four pitches to force in a run. Bill Kovalak followed with a long double to the right field corner, scoring Cuccola. Cuccola banged another double to score Shirley and Kovalak and came in to score himself when the right fielder dropped Bob Kinard's long fly for a two-base error.

The Maxwell men had gone ahead in the first inning by lagging starter Lin Kenyon for two runs on two hits and an error. Bill Harris hit off the frame by working Kenyon for a free pass. Earl Kennedy followed with a line single to left and both came in to score as Bob Kinard erred on Lew Priestner's ground ball. The Bombers scored another in the third canto on two Benning errors and a single by shortstop Bob Neighbors.

Meanwhile the Benningites had been able to get only one run in the third inning. Taylor Smith on hit by Ralph Terry and Dave Barnes. The Doughboys tied it

Doughs Stop Citizens In 4th Straight Win

The Fort Benning Doughboys led for an error permitting an error by Benning shortfielder met unexpected opposition in the Kovalak to score. After Kinard bounced out second to first, Jim Shirley laced a single to right to score Burt. Shirley then took second on a error, went to third on a missed ball and scored on a wild pitch.

The All-Stars countered with two runs in the bottom of the third canto to come within one unearned. Bill Kovalak opened the frame by getting a single and advancing to third as the catcher threw into centerfield attempting to catch him stealing second. The All-Stars tied it on a single by Bill Byrd and Joe Harrell and

Doughs Spill Tornadoes For Second Straight Win

The Fort Benning Doughboys rolled to their second straight win last Wednesday evening when they dumped the Tyndal Field Tornadoes 14-1 at the losers' den in Panama City Fla.

The Doughboys have now won two and lost none and scored 27 runs to their opponents 5. The Benningites were paced at the plate by starting hurler Jim Shirley, who slammed out two

The Doughboys opened the scoring early by making two runs in the eighth when they scored on a single to the top of the first inning. Letty Kovalak led off the inning by getting a free fanned Bob Kinard reached first on an error, and both scored as Herb Laube drilled a single to right.

The Tornadoes countered by scoring their only run in the bottom of the second frame. Errors by Tom Gallagher and Dave Barnes opened the door for Paul Lanz to score with the tally.

In the fourth inning, the Benningites put the game on ice as they belted Tyndall starter Ace Adams from the hill, with a three run outburst. Laube reached first on an error and came in on Jim Cuccola's long single.

The Benningites had been thrown out attempting a steal. Gallagher singled to left, Jim Shirley then scored. Gallagher with a line triple to deep right field. Shirley also tallied as the "Yankees" second baseman popped the relay from the outfield.

The Benning team added two unearned runs in the sixth and seventh frames when they were followed with four more in the top of the seventh frame. Len Strawthers drove in the first two runs in the eighth with a single to center and Shirley powdered his second triple to score Strawthers. Shirley made the fourth run of the cante by crossing the plate on a passed ball.

The Doughts closed the scoring in the eighth when they tied three more markers. The Benningites made the trio on a wild pitch, a passed ball and a two base hit by Hank Fecker.

The Doughboys used a total of twenty-one pitchers, the most including three pitchers, two catchers, seven outfielders, and nine infielders. The Benning pilot, James Walker, now faced with the problem of cutting his squad down to the 18 player limit for the Third Army tournament, which will begin at Fort Jackson, S. C. on the 17th of this month.

16 THUNDERJET PLANES PARTICIPATE IN PROBLEM

Sixteen Republic F-84 Thunderjets added their speed and fire power to an Infantry School problem last week, when they strafed and dive-bombed a hill in support of an infantry battalion.

Elements of the 31st Fighter wing, stationed at Turner air force base, Ga., were under operational control of the Tactical Air command throughout the demonstration, one of the first of its kind in the country.

Using live ammunition, including 250-pound high explosive bombs, the jets were directed to their target by a tactical control party of the 502nd Tactical Air Control group from Pope air force base, N. C.

The problem in which the Thunderjets were involved was No. 421, showing a battalion in defense, which takes place on Rowen hill beyond Harmony church. In addition to the aerial support, artillery, mortars, machine guns and tanks were used to aid the infantry in its problem.

On hand to see the demonstration, the first at Benning in which jet fighters have taken part, were units of the 31st (national guard) Infantry division, now training at Fort Benning, and Brig. Gen. L. J. Zimmerman, director of operations of the Tactical Air command.

3rd Division Commences New Course

General F. W. Clarkson addressed 50 students at the first meeting of a Third division non-commissioned officers instructor course on Monday morning.

Gen. Clarkson spoke on the purposes of the course.

The week-long schedule of instruction, similar to a program recently completed by Third division officers, will include talks on methods and techniques of instruction and training aids.

On completion of the instructor course the students will organize schools for their own units.

The school is being held in the Sand Hill area and classes will end Friday.

Teaching the instructor course are: Capt. Joseph W. Stevenson, 30th Infantry; Capt. Augustus G. McDonald, 30th Infantry; First Lt. Fred G. Anderson, 15th Infantry; First Lt. Francis A. McEwen, 3rd Replacement company and First Lt. Robert F. Transue, 703rd Ord. company.

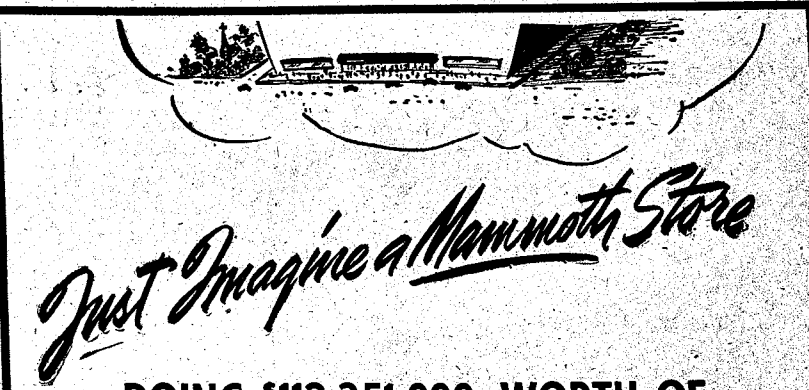

STR Greet New Chief

Col. Savier R. Tupper is the new commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment, succeeding Col. C. E. Woodruff who commanded the Infantry School detachment.

Colonel Tupper has recently returned from Germany where he commanded the Munich military post. During the war he was commanding officer of the 347th Infantry, 8th division in campaigns in France, Belgium and Germany.

He was stationed at Fort Benning from 1946 to 1948 in command of the Student Training Regiment and from July 1945 to July 1946 he commanded School troops.

Colonel Woodruff has been with the Student Training Regiment since September, 1948.

T.I.C. Talks

Question for the Week: What constructive suggestions do you have for improving the Bayonet?

Sgt. Ralph F. Smith, 10th Engineer Combat Battalion, says: "Now that's a good question, I really don't know what to suggest. I think it's a good idea to have a good paper where it is now. I read the whole thing every week anyhow. I particularly like the sports coverage—the society news is a little out of my line. If you are really looking for something new to put in the paper, why don't you get someone to draw a comic strip, something on the order of Mauldin's 'Up Front', something really G. I.?"

SMITH ESTOK

Pfc. Arthur J. Estok, Headquarters company, T 11 Infantry division: "Oh, I don't know what to me you have a fair coverage. I think you're already. You might try putting a weekly picture page of host activities. Everyone likes to see his picture in the paper. It's something to cut out and send home. Sure, I think a regular comic strip might be good too."

Pfc. Stanley Stoyanoff, Headquarters company, T 11 Infantry division: "What about some more special features, stories that would appeal to a wider audience. For the most part the news stories are interesting only to members of the unit. They are written about General stories on, for instance, home towns, clothing, entertainments, or people with unusual backgrounds would be more interesting to everyone. I think a comic strip sounds like a good idea, too. Most everybody reads the jokes first anyway."

Pfc. Joseph M. Sellars, Infantry School detachment: "Why don't you run a column summary of local and worldwide news. No comments, no editorializing—just facts. What Congress and the UN are doing—and the Catholic attitude toward Communism. Lots of the guys don't see any other paper but The Bayonet during the week. I think that's the only way they'll get their news. More and better jokes would not hurt either, and a good comic strip would draw a lot of readers—if you could find someone to draw a good comic strip."

STOYANOFF SELLARS

Chemical Warfare Taught Reservists

The Third Army Area Chemical Corps Reserve school opened here at Fort Benning last week under the direction of Col. Frederick E. Powell, a reserve officer from Jackson, Miss.

Colonel Powell, serving as a commandant of the school, revealed that the 23 reservists attending the course would receive instruction in all types of military chemical work, ranging from field smoke operations to elimination of poison gases.

In addition to their technical work in the chemical field, the reservists will have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the .45 calibre pistol and the .30 calibre M2 carbine, firing both these weapons on the range.

3 Sergeants Get Warrants

M-Sgt. Lee A. Graves and Sgt. 1st Cl. Charles H. Motte, Third Infantry, 15th Infantry regiment, received warrant officers' appointments in the regular army last week.

Prior to their appointments, Sergeant Graves was first sergeant for Company L, and Sergeant Motte was battalion sergeant major.

A veteran of 20 years service, Sergeant Graves enlisted in the army at Fort Benning on Aug. 13, 1929. Later, he attended the cavalry non-commissioned officer's school at Fort Riley, Kan., and served with the 10th Cavalry regiment until shortly before the outbreak of World War II.

After war had been declared, he joined the 2nd Infantry regiment and saw service in the Mediterranean area from March 1944, until Nov. 15, 1945. Among the operations in which he engaged during this period were the Rome-Arno, the Apennine, and the Po valley campaigns.

Sergeant Motte recently received in addition to his permanent warrant, an appointment as second lieutenant in the Viceroy's service corps. A veteran of eight years in the army, he was in Italy with the 37th Infantry regiment during the war. He returned to the U. S. in 1945 as operations sergeant of the 25th Infantry regiment.

Fate of Bayonets Hangs On Balance

The bayonet, deadliest of weapons in hand-to-hand combat during World War I and symbol of the infantry, may soon be an anachronism in the soldier's arsenal if the Army Equipment board, now in session at Fort Monroe, Va., decides to scrap the 13 1/2 ounce weapon.

The board is meeting for light to be the announcement that the army had millions of bayonets in storage, representing tons of scarce materials and numerous man-hours in manufacture.

The bayonet, according to those in favor of its demise, is foolish because it reduces a soldier's mobility by loading him down with an awkward piece of equipment he will probably never use.

Those who would like to see a rejuvenation of the scabbard bayonet claim that men in World War I found it more of a hindrance than a help, though it was used to some extent. In World War II, the anti-bayonet faction claims, there were less than a half-dozen cases in which it was used, and those, they say, were reported by an officer now retired, who had a mania for bayonets.

Col. Sugg Sees Alaska In Whirlwind Air Tour

Col. Douglas Sugg, director of tactics at the Infantry School, returned last Wednesday from an inspection tour of Alaska where he was Fort Benning's representative in a group which included high ranking officers of the U. S. army, navy and marines, and the Canadian army.

He joined the inspection group in Washington, and in over 12,000 miles of air travel visited Anchorage, Kodiak, Adak, Nome, Point Barrow, Fairbanks and Big Delta.

While on the tour, the group saw the annual resupply activities of Point Barrow, flying over the outpost at the one time of the year when the ice cap recedes enough to allow ships to venture near the settlement.

Perhaps not the most outstanding accomplishment of his visit, but certainly the most romantic, was the award of Boreas Rex, Air Chief Marshal of the North Wind, Admiral of the Arctic Seas and Emperor of the Polar Regions, given to Colonel Sugg when he crossed the Arctic circle.

33 EM Re-Enlist Here This Week

A total of 33 men reenlisted last week at the local recruiting office on the main post, it was announced last week.

The following were reenlisted on August 12: Sgt. Douglas W. Eplin, Sgt. 1st Cl. Roy A. Nelson, Sgt. 1st Cl. James W. Clements, Cpl. Lyle Denney, Sgt. 1st Cl. Underhill, Cpl. Bruce H. Brisson and Sgt. 1st Cl. Gale F. Follard.

On August 9 the following 15 men reenlisted: Pvt. Benjamin E. Taylor, Sgt. 1st Cl. Robert J. White, Jr., Pvt. Claude L. Ross, Pvt. Eugene I. Johnson, Pvt. Eugene Robertson, Pfc. Robert Degrate, Jr., Pvt. Howard C. Brooks, Pfc. Alvan Peppers, Pvt. James Henderson, Pvt. Edward L. Kirkland, Cpl. Walter T. Keeney, Cpl. Clarence D. Fare, Sgt. Ellis J. Conyer, Pfc. Jayros A. Monroe, and Sgt. Robert D. LaForest.

Two men reenlisted on August 10: Cpl. Fred Affleck and Sgt. Salvatore A. Lanzieri.

On August 11 three men reenlisted: Cpl. Robert D. Barnes, Sgt. James H. Eddines, and Cpl. William R. Lamb, Jr.

Cpl. Jessie B. Jones reenlisted on August 14.

Sergeant Conducts Review; Says 'Best This Year'

Another member of the 30th Infantry recently presented himself capable of assuming responsibility beyond his rank when M-Sgt. Raymond L. Rose, first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters company, Third Battalion, won this week's title of Soldier of the Week for the efficient manner in which he conducted and commanded a review parade of his battalion early this month.

In the words of Col. Joseph W. Boone, commanding officer of the 30th, "it was the best parade I have seen this year". No officers were involved in the planning or execution of the parade. The spacing, timing and coordination of the units was the sole responsibility of Sergeant Rose, assisted by other noncommissioned officers of the regiment.

He instructed the troops participating and regulated color guard and troop positions. The sergeant placed credit for the success of the parade on the shoulders of the troops, "I had the easiest job," he said.

Besides praising his skill as maneuvering troops, regimental officials lauded Sergeant Rose for "the high degree of efficiency and initiative he has demonstrated as first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters company."

He came to Benning from Fort Knox, Ky., in early May of this year. The sergeant had been in the army for more than eight years, and during World War II spent three years in the Panama Canal zone. After the war he spent two years in Germany with the First Constabulary brigade.

Sergeant Rose is married and lives in the recently opened Harmony Church community. He plans to continue his career in the army.

YMCA Conducts Dance and Picnic

Recent activities at the Armed Services YMCA in Columbus have included an all-day picnic on a plantation in Alabama and a square dance at the YMCA center in Columbus.

The picnic was held at Louis Kuzne's summer home on Seal Cove in Columbus, where the servicemen and their guests swam and sun-bathed.

Softball, horseshoes and water ball were played during the afternoon and the dogs, potato salad, sandwiches, doughnuts, potato chips and cokes were served at 5:30 p.m.

Thursday night a square dance, attended by over 100 people, was held in the YMCA.

Report from Washington

Leader's Course Open to All Qualified EM

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Leadership courses for army enlisted men conducted in each training division here have been opened to all qualified personnel within the army area concerned. Previously, only basic trainees were eligible. Other personnel may now apply through unit commanders. Qualifications include an AGCT, GCT, or aptitude area I score of 90 or higher.

Payment will be required when the army furnishes messing facilities to enlisted personnel of other services who draw ration computation, under a directive effective July 1. Lodging facilities so furnished will not require reimbursement.

Rates for pay of patients in army medical facilities for fiscal year 1950 have been fixed by directive. The per diem charge for inpatient care is $10.75, including subsistence and immunization. Rates for out-patient treatment are $1.75 per diem. Immunization alone will cost $1 per dose or injection. The charge for physical examination is $7.

Each army enlisted grade, except recruit, increased in strength in the fiscal year 1949, indicating the increased chances for promotion created by the career plan.

The airforce has begun discharging the 18-year-olds who enlisted for one year under the Selective Service law. A total of 1,004 such enlistments will expire in September.

Advanced training in civilian institutions may be arranged for airforce officers who desire to study penology and correction and police administration. Applicants must be regulars between the ages of 23 and 37 and indicate desire for assignment to the air provost marshal's office.

Surplus airforce personnel in Europe, formerly flying the airlift, will be redistributed through normal channels. Consideration will be given to such individual preferences as requirements of the service permit.

Orders of Secretary of Defense Johnson, transferring to the navy the responsibility for all sea transportation of the armed forces, established a military sea transportation service, to be commanded by a flag officer appointed by the chief of naval operations and approved by the secretary of the navy.

The navy soon will distribute to all personnel a brochure called "Feel Alive," containing facts and suggestions for safeguarding physical health.

President Truman has approved the bill establishing the Medal for Humane Action for award to personnel who served with the Berlin airlift.

Defense Secretary Johnson has established an office of foreign military affairs within the NME. It will operate in foreign military-political matters under advisement of the joint chiefs of staff and the Munitions board.

The National Military Establishment, in cooperation with the Columbia Broadcasting System, will present a series of five special half-hour programs on "The Nation's Defense" during the week of August 22-27, from 10:30 to 11 p.m.

Checks on Loyalty Mandatory

There is no provision under the U. S. Constitution for those who can not decide whether their loyalty lies something we either have or do not have. There is no in-between. Still there are those who would have us believe that loyalty is relative, that one's loyalty is molded to suit the mood of the individual, that it isn't necessary to be loyal to one's country provided another country offers to pay for that loyalty with either power or money.

Since most humans are susceptible to temptation, and since not a few are too ignorant to understand the basic goodness of the American way of life, it is mandatory that "loyalty checks" be made to determine which citizens of the U. S. bear allegiance to a foreign power.

Naturally, we expected, and got, repercussions from these loyalty checks, and not only from those who were disloyal. Disapproval came from all quarters, even from school teachers who denounced the checks as detrimental to progressive education. But mostly the objections came from those persons who actively support the communist party and whose avowed purpose is the overthrow of the U. S. government.

Their rantings against the loyalty checks were even swallowed by some loyal citizens who believed the charges that such methods were totalitarian. But we believe we can prove that loyalty checks are very far removed from the methods employed by a police state.

Let it be understood, first of all, that loyalty checks are made in order to insure that this country will never be so internally weak, through the infiltration by disloyal citizens into responsible posts to allow a coup d'etat of any sort.

Then, we must always be cognizant of the fact that such checks are made only on people who hold positions important to the well-being of the U. S., such as school teachers, government employees, atomic energy officials. What havoc these people, if they were not loyal, could wreak on America!

School teachers are able to mold the minds of the youth of the nation. It has often been said that a school teacher, given a child at an early age, can make of that child anything the teacher desires, from minister to a criminal. The same would hold true should the teacher decide to make the child anti-democratic.

Government employees, at least some of them, are in a position to know something of the planned defense of our country. In addition, there are a number who have access to classified information which would be of great value to an enemy.

Atomic energy officials—well, we hardly need to go into that. Surely, there is no one so blind as to fail to see the danger in having a disloyal person as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Furthermore, a majority of these loyalty checks are simply a mimeographed form on which there are such questions as "Do you, or have you ever, belonged to an organization which advocates overthrow of the U. S. government?" and "Have you ever been in the employ of a foreign nation?" A citizen's statement that he is loyal to his government is sufficient in this country to satisfy government officials. Not so in the police state, as we all know.

In this country there is no punishment meted out even though the person questioned admits disloyalty, provided he has not passed along defense secrets to a foreign power. Of course, he isn't allowed to continue holding his position of trust, but is there any government which would allow a known disloyal citizen to remain in such a position?

It should be obvious, then, even to the most uninformed, that loyalty checks are not the tactics of a police state. Our government is not fighting dictatorship with dictatorship. On the contrary, it is working hard to insure that the people of this nation will never be forced to live under the yoke of totalitarianism.

Are You Guilty of 'Reputation Murder'?

By CHAPLAIN ALOYSIUS C. ZIELINSKI

Many think of murder only with a shudder, but do not hesitate to murder a reputation by that kind of talk for which the slang expression "caty" is a perfect description: the sort of talk which purrs along urbanely and suddenly showing its claws to rip someone's fair name. Even in so holy a place as a chapel, we can find our souls soured by uncharitable thoughts of those around us; we feel superior to them, condemn them in our minds, and express the equivalent of the condescending "prayer" of the Pharisee: "O God, I give thee thanks that I am not as the rest of men."

We have been educated by gossip columnists to forget the seriousness of uncharitable speech. When we look at others, we are all satirists, quick to notice defects and to discuss them, regarding all men as fair targets, ready to impale them on an epigram.

But when we turn our eyes within, that sharp genius for detecting faults is suddenly blunted, and we can see nothing wrong.

If only we could reverse the process, veil other people's faults in the indulgence we grant ourselves, and (view) our own shortcomings with the severity we reserve for others, then we would be in a fair way of achieving that mentality which Christ insists is a necessary requisite for membership in His Kingdom. "Unless your justice, i. e. general holiness, exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees you shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

If we looked at all men as sons of the same Father, redeemed by His Divine Son, we would certainly regard them with greater respect and reverence.

It is amazing how he seemed to become calmer and more relieved. He said, "You know I have never told anyone all these details."

His problem is strictly a matter of confidence between the lieutenant and myself; but when he finished, he exclaimed in surprise, "You know, I don't need any money, and I believe you have helped me with my problems and given me some good advice." The truth of the matter is I had not given the young man advice. He had given himself advice while he sat and talked to me.

Now that has always been the keynote in this office, "Come in and talk it over. We have solved problems for many a man at Fort Benning by quietly listening, so we invite you to come and talk it over."

I said, "Lieutenant, you are 23 and I am 38, if you would like to talk to me about this whole situation I will be glad to listen." So for one hour and fifteen minutes we talked. It was

To Amuse You Today On The Bookshelf

The Rock Cried Out by Edward Stanley, Duell, Sloan and Pearce, New York, publisher.

Driven to distraction by the recruits' apparent inability to form a straight line, the drill sergeant finally commanded: "All fall out and look at the crooked line you've made."

The sergeant strained to the screaming point by a batch of thick rookies; halted their drill and placed his hands upon his hips. With the perspiration streaming down his face he spoke in a tense and tremulous voice.

"When I was a little boy" he began. "My mother gave me some wooden soldiers to play with. A few days later I lost them. She said, 'Never mind, son, you'll get them back some day.' Boy! I never realized until now how right my mother always was."

A clean-shaven face is a "must" for every soldier when he is on duty. That was the reason a certain private was getting a good dressing down from his sergeant.

"But I tell you sarge, I did shave this morning," the private insisted. After several minutes of battling irrefutable evidence, the sergeant finally concluded that since twelve men had tried to shave in front of one small mirror, he must have shaved another man by mistake.

Eighteen months without a furlough! Boy! That's a long time to go without seeing your wife, thought the army sergeant as he hopped off the train and looked around eagerly for her. There she was running for his outstretched and hungry arms. As she held her close to his breast and thirstily drank in her every feature, the flash of a captain's bar caught his eye. He snapped smartly to attention and saluted the officer. The latter smiled. "Remember son," he said, "The army wants you to ignore everything when going after an objective. Resume operations."

Harmon, an Irish nobleman, back from Paris, is ten years older and ready to settle down. Wanting only the good life, he has the means to obtain it.

Their flight (for it was flight) from Ireland and arrival in America make pleasant reading. One begins to have a little sympathy and understanding for the couple.

Their trek across Pennsylvania is charming in its description. However, when Mr. Stanley really gets going, we lose all sight of the people we had begun to like, and instead find two scheming, ambitious people, one of whom (Margaret) has nearly become unfaithful to her husband.

Their conspiracy with Aaron Burr bursts suddenly on the scene. Why these nice people become near traitors is never quite clear.

That is the glaring fault of the novel. Otherwise Mr. Stanley, in more than one place, shows that his true power of writing lies with the simple people and simple situations. Aunt Jane Price, the midwife, and Sias Weatherwalker are interestingly drawn. There are undercurrents in the book which should have been explored. For example, the reaction of Hurmon at a revivalist's tent meeting. Mr. Stanley seems to override the human in favor of the situation.

Ritch-Purcell Vows Told In Past Chapel Ceremony

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony Saturday at 8 p. m., when Mrs. Lili La Hiff Ritch, of Chicago and Columbus, became the bride of Lt. John E. Purcell, of Sherwood, Oregon and Fort Benning.

Chaplain (Maj.) John Dvorovy, of the 121st Evacuation Hospital unit, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar arrangement of tall white tapers, in cathedral candelabra and large white baskets of gladioli and tuberoses.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. James Darling, organist, and Mrs. Margaret Draughen, soloist. A glee quartet, "Polonaise," of "Because," and "Polonaise," of "Lume," "Lustre," and "Yours," Opening strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin signaled the entrance of the wedding party, led by usher-groomsmen Lt. Officer Given Civilian Medal

Lt. Benjamin F. Bateman, Company A, Airborne Battalion, was awarded the Gold Medal of the Society of American Military Engineers Friday by Col. Severin E. Ruppert, commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment.

The medal was presented to Lieutenant Bateman for being the outstanding 1949 senior engineering student of the advanced reserve officers training unit at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Lieutenant Bateman is a native of Memphis, Tenn., and a student at the university. He is on temporary duty at Fort Benning taking Airborne training. During the war he served with the Navy in the South Pacific from November, 1942, to February, 1946.

Finance Group Gives Dinner

The Finance department held its regular monthly dinner party at the Officers' club August 6. Mrs. L. H. Schwab were hosts.

A large number of finance officers, their wives and a national guard and reserve officers attended.

The table centered with a large bouquet of coral gladioli, was laid outdoors near the patio, and dancing provided the evening's entertainment.

Those attending included Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Logan, Capt. and Mrs. Sam Wilson, WOJG and Mrs. D. B. Payne, Capt. and Mrs. Jimmie Ray, Capt. and Mrs. Cecil R. Cooley, Lt. and Mrs. Arthur B. Farley, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Vining, Col. F. C. Horn, Lt. Clayton Bullock, Capt. Hawley, Lt. W. D. Nation and Olds and Miss Betty Rae of the Hinckley from Atlanta.

Hail and Farewell Party Staged by Medical Group

Members of the Medical departments of the post held a "hail and farewell" dinner party August 10 at the Officers' club honoring post medical personnel who are leaving soon and welcoming new arrivals. Aperitifs preceded dinner, and dancing followed later on the patio.

Two long tables decorated in moon and white, the medical department colors, provided seating arrangement for the large party. Maroon and white candles decorated the candlesticks, which were used down the length of the tables, giving a unique decorating effect. Bowls of maroon zinnias and white dahlias on one table, and salmon and white gladioli on the other, carried out the color scheme making a beautiful table setting.

Those attending were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert B. Hill, Col. and Mrs. John F. Blatt, Col. and Mrs. Frederic H. Bockoven, Col. and Mrs. Charles R. Lanahan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joseph B. Gordon, Lt. Visiting General Inspects School

Brigadier General Franklin P. Shaw, assistant to the Judge Advocate General of the Army, left for Washington today following a short visit to Fort Benning.

General Shaw arrived here yesterday afternoon to inspect the Third Army Area Judge Advocate General Corps Reserve Officer school. During his tour he gave a brief address to the students and instructors of the school.

During the evening General Shaw was guest of honor at a reception given by the school personnel and later at a small dinner given by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commander of the Infantry School, Fort Monroe, Va., and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank R. Forster, Maxwell Field, Ala., who came to Benning to visit with General Burress. Mrs. Frank is the daughter of a general officer in the South African army, who is a close friend and associate of the general. Maj. and Mrs. Berger, Union of South Africa; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Burress, major is a student undergoing airborne training here.

3rd Signal Chief Goes to Japan

Lt. Col. Nathaniel L. Mower, signal officer of the Third Infantry division, is scheduled to leave this weekend to assume duties with the Far Eastern Command in Japan.

Colonel Mower has been at Fort Benning since March of this year. During World War II he spent three years overseas in North Africa and Italy.

He received a reserve commission in 1924 and was called to active duty prior to World War II as a lieutenant. Maj. Robert R. Malone will replace Colonel Mower.

New Rest Camp In Atlanta Seen

In a move to set up a rest camp for colored troops, similar to that now in operation in St. Augustine, Fla., special service troops have been making contacts in Atlanta. It was announced this week.

Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, Infantry Center special services officer, said that arrangements are being made to hold the camp at the Washington Park Recreation area in Atlanta. It is expected to charter transportation for the weekly trips, and quarters will be free. Under the present plans troops will be placed on seven day TDY, and no time will be deducted from accrued leave.

South African Officers Feted at Official Dinner

Major Gen. Withers A. Burress, commander of the Infantry Center, and Mrs. Burress, entertained Lt. Gen. Len Beyers, chief of staff of the South African army, and his party, at an official dinner last Thursday in the Palm room of the Officers' club. The table was centered with a large bowl of colorful dahlias and zinnias, flanked on either side by tall suit tapers in three-branched candelabra.

Guests of honor, beside the South African general, were Brig. H. S. Killiers, commanding officer of the South African Military corps, and Lt. Col. A. Devos, military attache of the South African embassy in Washington, D. C. Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. S. Graham, Canadian liaison officer; Maj. and Mrs. John E. Olson, and Capt. Carlos Lozano.

The Doughs opened the scoring in the first inning as Bob Kinard walked, stole second and then rode home as Woody Hurt laced a single to right. Nick Nichols drove in two more in the second frame as he singled to center to score Dave Barnes and Jim Cacciola.

The Doughboys raised the count to 10-0 in the last of the fourth as they batted seven runs across the plate. Woody Hurt started the uprising by hitting a "Texas League" single to left and then stealing second. On the steal of second, the catcher's throw went into center field permitting Burt to get up and take third.

Herb Laue followed with a walk, and then he and Burt executed a double steal, with Burt scoring. Jim Cacciola drove in Laue with a long double to center field and held second as Dave Barnes reached first on an infield error.

Nick Nichols fled out to deep center, Cacciola tagging up and taking third after the catch. For the second time in the inning the Doughs pulled a double steal with Cacciola pilfering home and Barnes taking second. On the steal to third a moment later as Floyd Kendall reached first on an error.

Bill Kovaluk crossed up the defense by laying down a perfect bunt along the third base line to enable Barnes to get standing up. Bob Kinard followed with a long double to score Kendall and then scored himself a moment later as Hugh Terry drilled a bingle into center field.

The Benningites went scoreless in the fourth but came back to score one run in both the fifth and sixth cantos to bring their total up to an even dozen.

Tarheels And Tulane Top Contenders In Dixie

By JIM CLOONAN

For this week's gander at the National football picture, lets take a trip through the Cotton Belt and look at the gridiron picture in Dixieland.

Cho-choo Charlie Justice is back for another fling, so North Carolina will again rank as the favorite in the Southern Conference, while the Green Wave of Tulane stands out in the Southeastern Conference race. The Cavaliers of Virginia rate as the top independent team in the section. Let's take a good look at the Southeastern Conference.

TULANE. The Green Wave should engulf the South this season despite the fact that the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame are on the schedule. The Green Wave lost only two lettermen from the club that won nine out of ten last season. This year's edition will be sparked by All-Conference Fullback Eddie Price, and T-Magician Joe Ernest. Paul Lea, All-League tackle, tops the list of men up front where the play promises to be of the highest big end fast.

VANDERBILT. The Commodores switch to a T this season and may come up with one of their best teams in history. The Vandys have depth in the backfield and a good first string line. If Coach Bill Edwards can find line replacements, the Commodores could go through undefeated.

GEORGIA. Gofly will be tough for the Bulldogs this fall, due to the loss of Johnny Rauch, T quarterback. Gone too is Joe Gert, All-SEC halfback, and to add to Coach Wally Butts' worries is the fact that ends are at a premium in Athens this season. On the schedule side there are enough barriers to thoroughly test the Raunchless Bulldogs.

ALABAMA. The Crimson Tide will garnish the Notre Dame box with a taste of the split-T. A good backfield and a fair line will spell trouble for SEC foes. Ed Salem, a gifted triple-threat artist.

TENNESSEE. The Vols are back in the big time once again. A club reminiscent of the previous Vols will take the field for General Bob Neyland this fall. If Hal Littleton, fullback, and Hank Lauricella, live up to expectations, the Volunteers may go as strong as next Jan. 1.

KENTUCKY. Coach Paul Art Weiner. The line will be weaker and the schedule tougher, but the Tarheels still rank as the team to beat in the conference.

WAKE FOREST. The Deacons may prove tough this fall. The club should be stronger than last season, when the Spiders dropped only three of ten games. The club will be paced by Chuck Sutenfield and may be well on the road back toward gridiron prominence.

WILLIAM AND MARY. The Indians face their toughest schedule in history this season when they meet Pitt, Michigan State, Arkansas, North Carolina and rely on All-American Fullback Jack Cloud and Ace Tackle Lou Creekmur to carry them through the season. William and Mary will skid a bit, but don't count them out of the running.

MARYLAND. The Old Liners will be a strong contender for the conference title due to a light schedule. Playing only Virginia Tech, North Carolina State, South Carolina and George Washington, the Marylanders could coast to the title, twenty-five lettermen return to make the task easier.

CLEMSON. Unbeaten last season, the Clemson Tigers have lost five first string linemen by graduation and Coach Frank Bowser will have trouble replacing them. The Tigers have a great backfield, led by Fullback Fred Cone and Tailback Ray Matthews, but if the line doesn't open the holes, the club will be no conference championship club.

DUKE. The Blue Devils will field a capable ball club that will hold its own in conference play. The Devils could pull several upsets if passer Glenn Wild lives up to expectations.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE. Starvation may hit the Wolfpack again this fall. Despite the return of 23 lettermen, the Slaters appear to be one of the weaker clubs in the circuit.

SOUTH CAROLINA. John Boyle, a six-foot-five Brooklyn boy, will quarterback the Gamecocks this fall, but the soph star will have trouble making the club potent. A group of inexperienced linemen and a tough schedule will probably be the Gamecocks' downfall.

GEORGE WASHINGTON. Lettermen galore are back, but the success of the season hinges on the knee of Back Andy Davis. If an operation performed on Davis to remove calcium deposits from his knee is a success, the Colonials will be plenty troublesome.

RICHMOND. The Spiders may prove tough this fall. The club should be stronger than last season, when the Spiders dropped only three of ten games. The club will be paced by Chuck Sutenfield and may be well on the road back toward gridiron prominence.

V.M.I. The Keydets had a great season last year, but lost seven of the eleven starters. With a crop of sophomores, they may have to wait another year to cop the league crown.

FURMAN. Trouble may be brewing for the Purple Hurricane this season. Coach Bob Smith will have an excellent line, but no backs to make the club go.

WASHINGTON AND LEE. New Coach George Barclay has installed a split-T but his task appears too stern for a winning campaign. The Generals will be an all-soph club.

DAVIDSON. The Wildcats lay Army in the opener, but should Army be able to hold their own. Sixteen lettermen return, led by Passer Auburn Lambeth.

VIRGINIA TECH. The Gobblers may go through another year without winning a contest. Chances are the competition will be tough for the material.

THE CITADEL. The Bulldogs led by Passer Curt Bone man, should have a good season.

INDEPENDENTS
VIRGINIA. The Cavaliers, with 16 lettermen on tap, should be the top independent team in the section. John Papp, who averaged almost seven yards per try last year, will carry the brunt of the Virginia ground attack.

WEST VIRGINIA. A tough 11-game schedule and a case of sophomore blues may spell disaster for Coach Bud DeGroot's cleve.

GEORGETOWN. The Hoyas will have to rely on ailing Billy Com to pace the attack. A weak line, with the exception of center, will further hamper Bob Margarita's first year at the helm.

MIAMI. The Hurricane will field a strong line with plenty of depth, but the backfield will be weak. The club won't be up to the caliber of opponents like Purdue, Georgia, Detroit, Kentucky and Maryland.

Next week the third in this series of articles will cover the collegiate football picture in the Mid-West.

George Kistemaker, Jr., also of the Airborne department (extreme right) received the Bronze Star at the ceremony for his gallantry in action on the island of Luzon. First Lt. Thomas J. McCarlew, Student Training regiment, (extreme left) read the citations to the troops participating in the parade.

Two Officers Presented Medals During Ceremony

Two members of the Infantry School's Airborne department received medals in recognition of wartime service last Friday morning at ceremonies held on Stillwell field.

Capt. William J. Sweet, Jr., received the Soldier's medal for his action in Leicester, England, in 1945 when he saved the life of a five-year-old boy, and 2nd Lt. George Kistemaker, Jr., received the Bronze Star medal for "intrepidity in action on the island of Luzon in the Pacific ocean, also in 1945."

The awards were presented at a special parade where elements of the Student Training regiment and Headquarters and Service company of the Airborne battalion, passed in review for Col. Sevier R. Tupper, commanding officer of the Student Training regiment, who presented the awards.

First Lt. Thomas J. McCarlew read the citations to the troops. Captain Sweet, according to the citation, was on leave in England from the 504th Airborne Infantry regiment during June of 1945. He was riding on the top deck of an omnibus in Leicester, and while passing one of the many canals in the city, saw a child struggling in the water.

Without hesitation leapt from the bus and, not stopping to remove his boots or clothing, plunged into the water and swam toward the child.

He brought the boy to the bank of the canal, and administered artificial respiration.

The child recovered and was able to return to his home. Captain Sweet has been in the army nine years. He spent 36 months in Europe. Besides the Soldier's medal, Captain Sweet also holds the Purple Heart, Silver Star, Bronze Star with one oak leaf cluster and airborne wings. Lieutenant Kistemaker was a private first class when he performed the action which won him the Bronze Star. In the same month of the same year, Lieutenant Kistemaker was on the other side of the world from Captain Sweet, on the island of Luzon with the 511th Airborne Infantry regiment.

Golden Acorn Division Trains Here; Once Commanded By Gen. Clarkson

The famed 87th "Golden Acorn" division, or Organized Reserve corps unit from Alabama, under the command of Brig. Gen. John D. Higgins, arrived Monday for two weeks of training with the Third Infantry division.

At one time commanded by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, now Third Infantry division commander, the 87th will be superimposed on the Third division for small unit field and garrison training.

The division's 345th Infantry regiment, under the command of Col. Herbert B. Dunlap, will be attached to the Third's 15th Infantry regiment, while the 347th, under the command of Col. McCarty Greshaw, will work with the 30th Infantry regiment.

The 87th, activated in 1917 at Camp Pike, Ark., was composed mostly of men drafted from Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, but has since narrowed its personnel to men from Alabama only.

Reactivated on Dec. 15, 1942, under the command of General Clarkson, at Camp McCain, Miss., the Acorns went to England in April, 1944, to prepare for the invasion of Europe.

The Golden Acorns arrived on the continent in mid-November, 1944, and were assigned to the Third Army front near Metz. The original plans for the 87th had been to relieve another unit in that area and receive its baptism under fire on the finishing front, but the Nazi offensive which occurred at the time prevented the plan from being carried out.

In December Gen. George S. Patton, Jr. chose the 87th as the outfit to meet and smash Von Rundstedt as he started his vicious counterattack. The scattering which the Acorns received from this crack German unit was rugged but effective.

In early February, 1945, the 87th helped to spearhead another crushing Third Army drive, this time toward Luxembourg, crossing the Our river under continuous damaging enemy artillery barrages. By the end of the month the division was well into Belgium and had accumulated impressive victories in advancing the Allied forces' front.

In April the Moselle river was crossed with lightning rapidity by the Golden Acorns, and Coblenz was seized before the enemy fully realized the capture was happening. This capture of a key city was the start of another great Third Army drive — this time into the Rhineland, in enemy territory.

The crossing of the Rhine by the 87th was accomplished through sheer courage and tenacity. The first wave to hit the river was illuminated by German flares and harassed by continual and accurate mortar fire. Despite the many casualties, however, the Acorns pushed forward, and by the war's end had established themselves deep in enemy territory.

Demobilized into an ORC organization after returning to the states, the 87th will assume briefly its position as a line unit as it joins the old and battle-proven Third division for a two-week training period.

Two Lieutenants From Same Town Get Bronze Star

Two boys who lived in the same town, attended the same school and college, and who were sent to opposite sides of the world by the needs of war, were brought together again last Saturday when they were presented Bronze Stars in recognition of their wartime activities.

Second Lts. Walter J. Klein and Kenneth J. Mortenson, both 23 and from a small town in Iowa called Estherville, were presented the Bronze Star. Lieutenant Klein also wears the Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman's badge, and the Unit citation and Good Conduct medal.

Both Lieutenants Mortenson and Klein expect to graduate at the end of this month from the special basic course and continue their careers in the army.

The citations accompanying the medals were read by 1st Lt. Claude M. McQuarrie, and music was provided by the 72nd Army band.

Prior to the presentation, General Burress inspected the student battalion.

Lieutenant Mortenson, then private first class and a member of the 170th Infantry regiment in Europe was awarded the medal for "exemplary conduct against the ground crossing of the enemy" during the Rhineland campaign in March, 1945. He also wears the Combat Infantryman's badge, Meritorious Unit award and the Good Conduct medal.

Two months later in the same year, Lieutenant Klein took part in the action which won him the Bronze Star. Also a private first class, he was with the 32nd Infantry regiment in the Pacific, where he was awarded the medal for clusive, at the Baker Village and Tallingsworth schools. Classes at all schools will begin the morning of Sept. 12. Students attending Columbus high school for the first time will be required to have a birth certificate, a record of promotion from the last school attended, a certificate of immunization, an alpha and small pox and an education approval slip. The approval slips are necessary in order to register in Columbus schools and may be obtained from the school officer, his representative after Aug. 28.

FOR EXEMPLARY CONDUCT . . . It was a star day for Estherville, Iowa, last Saturday morning when two of her native sons received Bronze Stars for wartime achievements. Second Lt. Kenneth J. Mortenson, right, and Walter J. Klein, right rear, received the awards from Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center center. Col. George Honnen, director of instruction at the Infantry School, left, looks on as his students receive their medals. Capt. James A. Lee, instructor in the Student Training regiment, is to the left rear. Lieutenants Mortenson and Klein are members of the Infantry School's special associate basic class No. 5 which is scheduled to graduate this month.

Bus service to and from Columbus high school will be provided daily by the Howard Bus company. There will be a two-dollar monthly transportation fee for children of officers and civilians, and children of enlisted men may ride free. The busses will pick up passengers in front of Green hall, bachelor officers' quarters, each morning.

There will be a four-dollar supply fee for eighth grade students and six dollars for children attending grades nine through 12.

Principal of the Fort Benning Children's School for the year 1949-50 will be Peter B. Wilkins, Colonel Luton said.

Mr. Wilkins has been employed by the Georgia State Department of Education as assistant director of Trade, Industry and Distributive education for the past year and a half. From February, 1946, to March, 1946, he served as a training officer for the Veteran's Administration.

100th Division Plans Reunion

Attention Century division men!

The 100th Infantry division will hold a reunion Sept. 9, 10 and 11 in New York city at the Commodore hotel. All former members are requested to contact Capt. John A. Hine, even though not planning to attend the convention.

Capt. Hine may be reached during duty hours at telephone No. 3687 or at 2260 after duty hours.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK

Marksmanship Exhibition Wins Title For Sergeant

For sustained and increasing efficiency in his capacity as assistant instructor in the Weapons try School detachment, has been named this week's "Soldier of the Week."

T. I. C. TALKS

Question for the week: What suggestions do you have for improving your organization's dining halls? What do you like about the way they are now?

PFC. RALPH E. CRAWFORD, 344th Area Service unit: "The food is good in our mess, well selected and we serve it well. I don't like eating with someone looking over my shoulder all the time. Every day the company has been sent back to the table to polish off the plate at one time or another. Our group we are not wasteful, and don't think anyone should be required to eat anything he really doesn't want."

This month, Sgt. 1st cl. William M. Tillman, Company C, Infantry School detachment, has been named this week's "Soldier of the Week."

According to officials of the Weapons department, Sergeant Tillman has excelled during his eight years duty with the department, in the art of military instruction, marksmanship with a vigilance.

His detailed knowledge, a nod which he has in the past, were concerned, it was stated, has made him one of the outstanding figures in the Infantry School.

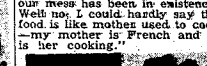

It was estimated that thousands of students attending the school have witnessed the demonstrations of hand to hand combat, bayonet fighting and disarming, which Sergeant Tillman has played a prominent role.

His expert handling of hand and rifle grenades, rockets and flamethrowers, officials said, have been in a great part responsible for the success of many of the Infantry School's demonstrations.

All the demonstration held for South African visitors, his hard work has been in existence. Well, I could hardly say the food is like mother used to cook — my mother is French and so is her cooking."

One Man Recruiting Office Converts 12 One-Year Men

Sgt. James L. Jackson, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 89th Armored Field Artillery battalion, might possibly be termed a one-man recruiting office.

Sergeant Jackson, who is intelligence and survey noncommissioned officer for his battery, recently received 14 new recruits into his section, 13 one-year enlistees and one 21-month selectee.

"My theme throughout the training period was 'team work,'" Sergeant Jackson said. "I saw to it that each of the men had a chance at a job which most nearly paralleled his civilian training and education, stressing the similarity of army life and civilian life. The results speak for themselves."

Sgt. Jackson has spent six years in the army, with 29 months overseas duty to his credit.

The Jackson family is all army to the core. Sergeant Jackson's wife, Cara, served 32 months in the Women's Army corps, two of which were spent overseas.

High School Level Diplomas Awarded

High school diplomas were awarded three enlisted men of Headquarters company, Third Infantry battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, that week after they had successfully completed CHD tests.

They were Pvt. Charles E. Bailey, Jackie McCorkle and Alton McMann.

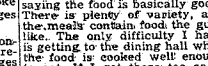

All present three men from the company are taking the college test and four are taking the high school test.

It's Time To Heed Advice

The number of fatal and disabling accidents involving Fort Benning troops has grown more alarming during recent weeks, and we feel that it's time the individual soldier began to heed advice. A majority of these accidents are the result of foolish or careless acts, and a little simple caution would, at the least, curtail the staggering rate.

An example of carelessness is typified in an accident which occurred last week. Four Fort Benning soldiers were traveling in a lightweight automobile at the excessive speed of 80 to 90 miles per hour. The driver, lost control. When the occupants were "fished" out of the wreckage, it was found that two were seriously injured, one so seriously that he has been sent to a general hospital for treatment. Furthermore, reports indicate that his condition is so critical he may not live. Even if he does, there is a grave possibility he may be permanently disabled. The price is too high for the "fun" the four soldiers had riding in a speeding automobile.

Every driver should watch the other fellow. Often an innocent type is made to suffer because someone else is careless. No driver can ever depend on the other man's judgement.

Drivers should also remember that the correct speed is not always the maximum speed. Many accidents occur even though the person involved was not exceeding the speed limit. The maximum speed, regardless of the speed limit, depends upon the condition of the road, the amount of traffic, the condition of the vehicle and, above all, the condition of the driver.

Although automobile accidents are by far the most prevalent type, there are also others which have equally disastrous results. We might cite the example of the sergeant who last week had his leg sliced off below the knee when one of the blades of a power lawn mower he was using flew off. That accident marked the end of an army career.

Football injuries will soon take their place in the limelight. These injuries will not, for the most part, happen during supervised football practice, but during impromptu games when the players fail to observe regulations. Crippling injuries often result from a friendly game of football unless proper precautions are followed. It is the responsibility of those who intend to participate in impromptu football games to familiarize themselves with all the regulations governing play. Otherwise, they must be ready to accept the consequences.

We have mentioned only a few of the ways in which a negligent person can do injury to himself, but these few should make every soldier realize that he can't afford to take chances when his life is at stake. A life or a limb can never be replaced.

Rest Camp for Negro Troops

The opening of a rest camp in Atlanta's Washington park for Fort Benning's Negro personnel is added proof that today's U. S. army is without parallel. Fort Benning, as the world's most complete army post, now boasts two off-post recreation centers, one at St. Augustine, Fla., and the recently-opened Atlanta spot.

We hope that the Atlanta center will be utilized and enjoyed as much as is the one at St. Augustine.

Report from Washington

Army May Provide Meals for Dependents

Civilian dependents of army-airforce servicemen may now be permitted to eat in field ration messes when the commander concerned determines such a step is necessary.

Due to unification of the various service "days" into a single "Armed Forces Day," navy personnel have been instructed that participation in any "Navy Day" ceremonies sponsored by civilian organizations must be in a private capacity.

Among the newest specialties open to War personnel on a career basis are: Translator; photographer; photo-lithographer; radio operator; purchasing agent; commissary steward and supply clerk.

An army program of barbershop quartet singing will soon be launched by special services with the co-operation of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Singing in America, Inc.

Overall revision of social security laws now in legislative process aims at providing veterans of World War II social security credit for time spent in military service.

Gun salutes for officers of lower than four-star rank and civilians of equivalent rank have been sharply curtailed in regulation changes. Regulations now state: "Gun salutes will be rendered only to officers and officials of four-star equivalent, or higher rank. Gun salutes for officers and officials of lower than four-star or equivalent rank may be rendered on special occasions when so ordered by the major commander or by the Department of the Army acting in accordance with the request of the Department of State."

Airforce personnel are eligible for flight pay at the end of the month, or not later than the 10th of the month following the one in which flight requirements were met.

A wide choice of assignments is available throughout the U. S. for airforce officers from first lieutenant through lieutenant colonel, who desire recruiting duty.

The airforce will accept physicians who have had no prior military medical service, for temporary commissions as captains or higher.

Applications now are being submitted for the second round of army food service career examinations which will be held the second week in December. Closing date for application is Oct. 21.

Chaplain's Corner

Believes Man's Outside Actions Begin Inside

Chapel must affect a man on the inside before it can make an effect on the outside. Good religion takes for granted that all outside actions begin inside the man where he does his thinking and deciding. Only people who are mentally incapacitated do things they don't want to do. There may be extenuating circumstances that cause a man to do wrong things, but in the final analysis men do what they will to do.

So much responsibility lies within the thinking and deciding mechanism of any human being that a life is seriously neglected that does not spend a great deal of time learning how to decide right. The big task of the chaplain is to set up guide markers, boundaries, and danger signals that would keep a man aware of both the good areas of life and the "off-limit" signs.

During the war, only a fool would carelessly walk into an area that had been declared a mine area. Only an irresponsible soul would strike a match in a blackout area, and only an inexperienced infantryman would silhouette himself against the sky-line. Yet, every day we find men who have hurt themselves, who have tended to destroy their families, and who are ruining themselves as soldiers because they have paid no attention to the "off-limit" signs in their inner decisions for their outer course of action.

It is folly for men to think they can live above God's law when we at least pay a nominal homage to man-made laws. A speed sign of twenty-five miles an hour means that a speed in excess of the limit endangers the lives of the driver, the occupants of the vehicle and numbers of people who might be living in or using that area. The man who disregards the speed limit and plows along at his own determined speed sets himself up against the community and the organized law. Such a trivium may never lead to harm, but that attitude will. We must recognize our responsibility to what is good for others, in spite of the fact that we have to make the train or are just plain used to driving faster than the law allows.

We have preached individualism so much that we have made our own wishes the same thing as achievement, and the man who can do as he pleases in the most instances is acclaimed a short-sighted society as the greatest success. But, in a basic estimation, we would have to admit that such a man is the most selfish individual in the world and would be of little value to society as a whole.

Your Red Cross

Paid Workers Helpless Without Volunteers

By MURRAY E. HILL

One often hears the phrases, "Why don't you go to the Red Cross?" or "Let's see what the Red Cross can do about it." One would believe to hear these remarks that the Red Cross was perhaps more than an organization, that the Red Cross within itself can and will do something.

Now I would be the first to belittle this great organization; yet without the people who make up Red Cross none of the services could be rendered. Who are the people that make up Red Cross? Well, there are paid workers and there are volunteers. Records indicate there are about 89 volunteers for every paid worker. The paid workers are necessary, of course, and they are people like myself and Ralph George and others around the office here, but we would have a hard time taking care of emergencies if it were not for that great multitude of individuals, who, without realizing it, are doing Red Cross work on a volunteer basis.

For instance let's take a typical example. A soldier has received a message that there has been a tragedy in his family. Right away the telephone operator who gets the call through becomes a volunteer worker for the Red Cross. Western Union employees all along the line, who speed the message back because it is an emergency, are Red Cross volunteer workers. The duty officer who, in the middle of the night, brings the man to our office with a furrough is doing that in the Red Cross spirit. The soldier must go to Atlanta by bus and get a plane there. The reservation clerk at the Atlanta air port who gives the soldier priority on Red Cross verification and goes out of his way to handle the details is enlisting under the banner of the Red Cross. The traffic manager at the bus station who holds the bus to Atlanta for 10 minutes to help the young man get there is truly a Red Cross volunteer worker. The MPs who, in cooperation with the Red Cross, rush the man to the bus station beyond the ordinary speed limits are working in the Red Cross spirit.

And this is the way the Red Cross works throughout the world. The Red Cross paid worker, as in this instance, is interested in helping a soldier when tragedy strikes at home, but how helpless this worker would be without the individuals who go into action when the Red Cross calls.

To Amuse You Today On The Bookshelf

The extensive maneuvers that the Reds and the Blues had been undergoing was bound to be sprinkled with mistakes here and there. Theoretical blasting of bridges and failure to notify the parties interested had led to disgruntled beefings by the soldiers.
A private in a jeep, seeing his chance to become a hero, tore down a road to "dynamite" the enemy. Just as he reached an intersection an umpire dashed out waving a flag. The jeep screeched to a halt. "You can't drive on this road," the umpire said, "it has been blasted to smithereens."
"Don't mind me," the private said, with a wave of his hand, "I'm dead."
The fallen infantryman was rushed to the base hospital with a bullet in the calf of his leg. The doctors probed for the bullet but were unable to locate it. Each day they would come to the pain-wracked soldier and probe, probe, probe for the elusive bid of lead. On the fourth day, terror showing in his face, the soldier screamed, "Why do you keep digging into me with those things all the time? I can't stand any longer." "Patience," said the doctor in charge. "We're trying to locate the bullet that went into your leg."
"Smoly Hoses," groaned the infantryman, "why didn't you say so before? I sent it home a week ago as a souvenir."

THE GREAT MACINNES by Shepherd Mead, Farrar, Straus and Company, New York, publishers.
By D. W. SCHAEFER
"The Great MacInnes" is fantasy. Better fantasy in the opinion of this reader than "Mr. Adam." It was evidently written by a man who knows his way around in the survey and a lot of other businesses which pretend to represent public taste.
It is more than a mere lampooning of the Gallups and Hoopers of the country. More than a mere exploitation of the great fiasco of the polls which was exposed last November.
The theme of the book is based on the premise that Victor Virgil MacInnes, the happiest man in the world, felt what other people, millions of other people, were feeling and so

Rest Camp For Colored Troops In Atlanta Park

One-hundred and sixteen colored members of Infantry Center units will have an opportunity during September to take advantage of rest camp facilities on a similar basis as that worked out for the rest camp in St. Augustine, Fla., it was revealed this week by Lt. Col. Roland S. Murphy, Infantry Center special services officer.

Arrangements have been made for quotas from the Infantry School detachment, Provisional Medical group and the Area Service unit Provisional group to attend a camp set up for the purpose in the Washington park recreation area in Atlanta, officials said.

The camp will be open beginning Friday, Sept. 2, and will close Friday, Sept. 30.

Weekly quotas as announced by special services officials are: four from the ISD, nine from the Provisional Medical group and 16 from the ASU Provisional group.

Those chosen to attend the camp will be placed on detached service for seven days, which will not be chargeable as leave.

Regulations governing the recreational hours require that the names, serial numbers and unit of personnel selected be submitted in writing to the Infantry Center special services office not later than 4 p.m. Aug. 30 for the first trip and for subsequent trips not later than one week prior to the date of departure.

The buses used for the trip will be supplied by commercial lines and will leave the special services office, Doughboy stadium at 8 a.m. on Sept. 2, Sept. 9, Sept. 16, Sept. 23 and Sept. 30.

Travel to the camp by air will be made to Atlanta with the camp closing Oct. 6.

Total cost of the trip per enlisted man will be $13.75. Travel to and from Atlanta, provided a minimum of 25 miles by a family group may be accomplished by private automobile.

It was also recommended by the special services office that each man take a class "A" uniform, necessary underclothes and sports wear.

The funds required from each man should be deposited with the special services office of the Infantry Center not later than the scheduled date of departure the following Friday.

Married enlisted personnel who desire to take advantage of the facilities for family vacations should make special arrangements with the commanding officer of the Washington park recreation area. Meals for families will be the same as for enlisted men. Travel to the camp by a family group may be accomplished by private automobile.

Division Artillery Gets New Chief

Lt. Col. Orlando C. Troxel who served with the 32d Field Artillery battalion here from 1938-41, has been appointed temporary commanding officer of the Third Infantry division artillery units.

A World War II vet with 22 months service in France and Germany, Colonel Troxel's combat experience included G-3 posts with the Fourth Infantry division and the VII corps, First army.

He was with the VII corps when the First army won the allied rear through the defenses of the Westwall and being the first contingents to establish contact with Russian forces at the Meuse river.

A graduate of the United States Military academy, class of 1931, Colonel Troxel has also graduated from the Field Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla., and the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

... Acting Divarty Commander

Col. Blanchard Heads Battalion

Lt. Col. Robert M. Blanchard has assumed command of the First battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, following the transfer of Lt. Col. F. L. Hankinson Jr. to Trieste.

A native of Fort Sheridan, Ill., Colonel Blanchard graduated from the United States Military academy in 1933, and was assigned to the 17th Infantry regiment at Fort Crook, Neb., where he served until 1938 when he reported for duty with the 45th Philippine Scouts.

In 1940 he attended the tank and regular officer's course, at the Infantry School. He later commanded both a company and a battalion in the Second and Third Armored divisions; and served as G-2 of the 10th Armored division until 1943.

Colonel Blanchard saw action with the First army in Normandy, France and Belgium until the cessation of hostilities when he served as G-2 for duty to the Philippines.

Among the decorations held by the colonel are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Belgian Croix de Guerre and the Greek War Cross.

SOME PEPPER IN THE POT WILL MAKE THE SOUP DOUBLY HOT... Lieutenants Skinner and Alonzo season a vat of delicious home made soup

Officers Learn Hard Way

Captain, Five Lieutenants Pull KP and Like It

By LESLIE TIBBETTS

There are five junior officers at Fort Benning counting calories—but not for vanity.

Four lieutenants and a captain are learning about being mess officers the "hard way" by practicing what they will eventually preach.

As students in "mess officers' course A" at the Third Army Food Service school at Fort Benning, the men, all from the Third Army area, study the theory of cooking, nutrition, menu planning and army regulations.

But that is only the beginning. During the four week course they don white chef's caps and gowns and actually do almost every job that has to be done in the well-regulated mess.

The practical experience offered in the course varies from that of butcher to baker and even soup maker. While most men poke at the thought of carving a turkey, graduates from the mess officers' course can face a whole side of beef without flinching.

Light biscuits and oversized cakes are second nature to the officers who never figure on dining for less than several dozen.

One officer explained to his wife that he would be wasting his talents to cook less than a banquet for "fifty or more" and escaped from "homework".

At the Food Service school there are never "too many cooks" for the soup. Each man is an expert and besides, efficiency and organization are important parts of each course.

Realizing that a dining hall isn't run entirely from the kitchen, the student officers get experience in the "front lines" too—dishing it out at the airborne dining hall, the Officer's dining hall, the ISD dining hall and the Food School dining hall. It seems presentation is almost as important as preparation when it comes to food.

The proof of the cooking is in the eating, and all these cooks eat their own cooking. What's more they like it, and they have lots of company, according to reports.

The course is offered six times a year, and over 300 men have graduated from it in the past five years.

Officers in the present class who will graduate Aug. 27 are 1st Lt. Cruz E. Alonzo, Services company, 30th Infantry regiment; Capt. John M. Burdette, 52nd Transportation Truck Battalion; 1st Lt. Harold Neal, Company L, 15th Infantry regiment; 1st Lt. Okey H. Scott, Headquarters Detachment, II, 3420th Area Service unit, Fort Bragg, N. C.; and 1st Lt. East Skinner, 288th Food Service Squadron, Keesler airforce base, Miss.

The Third Army Food Service school is under the command of Maj. Don C. Romine, who recently came to Fort Benning from the Quartermaster Food Service School at Camp Lee, Va. Capt. Harry D. Bastin is assistant commandant and Lt. H. E. Peterson is mess officer and director of instruction.

The next course will start Sept. 26.

13 Division Men Get Promotions

Thirteen enlisted men of Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, received promotions to the rank of corporal last week.

They were: David J. Lynch, James E. Geaghan, Arnet D. Russell, Merlin P. Slack, Charles H. Gratton Jr., Raymond J. Brown, Richard J. Zobia, Lloyd M. Smyth, Anthony J. Alcorn, Robert J. Marak, Wavie Duncan, Douglas R. Marcou and Gerald Workman.

Eight Company D men advanced to private first class. They were Dewey T. Abbott, Darrell E. Hill, Thurman L. King, Glenn Athey, Buford Besse, Archie LaFosse, Chester L. Britt and Sanford A. Roebuck.

At the same time James P. Kelly of Company B was promoted to corporal.

Field Bakery Produces 30,000 Lbs. A Week

When they call them the "poughboys", they aren't kidding. The men in the national Guard summer camp at Harmony church had produced approximately 30,000 pounds of bread in two weeks when their tour ended recently.

All of this bread, roughly a pound to a loaf, was baked in the temporary field bakery of the 130th Quartermaster Bakery company at the end of Wold avenue.

Baking "out of doors" presents many problems not encountered in permanent bakeries, according to Lt. C. W. Kirkland, company supply officer.

"Everything has to be scrupulously clean to keep the flies from gathering," he explained. "We have no screens and it is difficult to use spray when you are working with food."

"For the most part we keep everything covered — from the flour to the finished loaf of bread," he said.

From three to four thousand pounds of bread were turned out daily in the 20 large field ovens. Each loaf of bread took about four hours to make, including mixing, setting and baking. The loaves are molded by hand and baked in baking sheets about three feet square.

There are 11 enlisted men and four officers in the company. The working day begins at 5:35 a.m. and consists of 12 shifts averaging eight hours daily. The bakery operates six days a week. The actual baking is done under the supervision of Sgt. J. L. Wooden, chief baker, who has had 12 years of bakery experience both in civilian life and in the army. During the war he supervised field bakeries in both Japan and the Philippine is-

250 Men Quality On Rifle, Carbine

More than 250 officers and enlisted men of the Airborne division have qualified with the M-1 rifle during the five weeks from July 11 through Aug. 12, 13th Airborne officials announced today.

During this period there were 86 experts, 101 sharpshooters and 71 marksmen.

Cpl. Jack E. Luse was high with a score of 197, while runner-up was Pfc. Mure W. Caddell with 191.

During the following records were made. Of 143 men firing the M-2 carbine, 39 qualified as experts and four sharpshooters and 21 as marksmen. Nine officers qualified with the M-1 carbine. Five experts and four sharpshooters. High carbine scorer was Capt. Barry E. Albright with 192 out of a possible 200, and runner-up was Sgt. Robert J. White with 191.

High man in pistol marksmanship was Maj. H. U. Mansfield with 208 out of a possible 350 points.

HEARD HERE AND THERE BY VINCENT GIARRATANO

(In the absence of Sports Editor Vincent Giarratano, who is at Fort Jackson, S.C., with the Doughboys, his column is being written by Assistant Sports Editor Jim Coonan.)

As the annual Third Army baseball tournament draws to a close, the realization dawns on us that the first annual army-wide baseball tourney is but a few short weeks away.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, the main post will become the baseball mecca for players, fans, major league scouts and sportscasters alike. Teams representing nine different army commands will battle it out for the honor of being called "Champions of the Army."

Present plans call for many top army personnel to attend along with various civilian dignitaries of both national and local importance. Additional bleachers have been erected along both the first and third base foul lines to handle the expected overflow throngs, and added facilities will also be available for press and radio coverage.

The honor accorded this installation has been a great one and the personnel at Benning should show their appreciation by turning out for all the tournament contests. The fact that Fort Benning's own team, the Doughboys, may be participating should serve as added incentive.

Your correspondent journeyed to Atlanta last weekend to attend the all-Star high school football game, and came away impressed by the running of two North Georgia backs and a rock biter of 28,000 fans.

A crowd of 28,000 filled Georgia Tech's Grant field to watch Chappell Rhino and Pete Brown rip a heavier Southern line to shreds to gain 140 yards via the overland route. The Northern stars showed their disdain for their Southern neighbors by falling to throw a single forward pass, relying solely on their great grunting backs to pick up yardage.

Long runs, always the bright spot of a football game, were turned in by Chappell Rhino and Jackie Roberts. Rhino, easily the outstanding back on the field, broke loose in the third period and twisted 47 yards down the sideline past a helpless Southern bench. Roberts made the night's best run in the fourth quarter when he gathered in a South kick on his own 33-yard line and behind good blocking, raced down the middle of the field for 87 yards and a touchdown.

The final count of North 19, South 0 does not even indicate the superiority of the Northern stars.

Lauren Harrover, the South's most publicized star, was never given an opportunity to show his stuff to the huge crowd. Every move the blond star made was closely followed by several red Northern jerseys. Late in the second period the South gave up on Harrover and used him only as a decoy for the remainder of the game.

The All-Star contest couldn't be reviewed without mentioning the great halftime show put on by the Cartersville and Jordan of Columbus, high school bands. Both bands were selected after careful consideration, and the committee should be congratulated on its choice. The shows put on by these two bands kept the crowd in high spirits throughout the half-time ceremonies and even prompted some of the more ardent music lovers to remain after the game while the Cartersville band serenaded the departing crowd.

Doughs Take Title Silcox Wins Final

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 23 (Special to the Bayonet)—The Fort Benning Doughboys clinched the Third Army baseball championship here this afternoon as hurler Ike Silcox pitched a four-hit shutout to defeat the Fort Jackson Red Devils 5-0 before a crowd of about 3,000 fans.

Jim Cacciola proved to be the batting star for the Doughs as he blasted his third homerun of the tournament in the second inning of today's game. The circuit blast came in the first inning with teammates Dave Barnes and Bob Kinard on base. Singles by Silcox, Barnes and Kinard proved to be the only other safeties of the day for the Benningites.

Silcox was never in trouble, despite three errors by his teammates, and allowed only one man to reach second base. The Red Devils manager, Phil Schiro, was the only man to give Silcox trouble getting three hits, including a double. The only other hit of Silcox was made by Tony Smeraglia who singled in the eighth inning.

In last night's game the Benningites made eight hits but were snuffed under by a 12-1 count. The combined efforts of Rudy Payne and Sharkey Everett proved too much of a handicap for the Doughboys to overcome. The loss was the first suffered by the Benningites this season after ten consecutive victories. Highlight of the game was a grand-slam homerun by Sharkey Everett in the eighth inning to raise the Jackson score into the double figures.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 22—(Special to The Bayonet)—The Fort Benning Doughboys, after three straight tournament wins, loomed as the outstanding favorites to cop the annual Third Army baseball tournament now in progress here at Fort Jackson.

The Doughboys moved into the final round of the tourney as a result of their 5-3 decision over the Red Devils, of Fort Jackson, last Friday evening. Previously the Doughs had defeated both Fort McPherson, Ga., and Camp Gordon, Ga., without having a run scored against them.

Fort Benning opened the annual tournament last Wednesday as they rolled to a 10-0, 15-0 victory over an outclassed Doughs McPherson nine. He pitched in every inning but the first and eighth as they pounded the McPherson hurlers for a total of 15 hits. Among the 15 safeties were three doubles, a triple and three homeruns. Jim Cacciola opened the homer parade with a circuit circuit over the left field fence in the first frame. The third frame, Herb Lauve's blast over the right field fence also won the third frame. Jim Shirley, pinch hitting for Woody Durt in the seventh, tagged the first offering over the fence in right field for the third Benning homer of the game. While all the Benning blasting was going on, Doughboys hurler Hal Grinolis was hitting a neat five-hit shutout. The Doughboys' shutouts were in doubt as only one man was able to advance as far as third base. On Thursday the activities opened with the host team pulverizing the Atlanta Supply depot 20-2 in a morning contest. The Benningites romped to their second shutout victory of the tourney as they downed a highly regarded Camp Gordon two-hit hurling of Lefty Lehner which opened the door to a Benning victory. Lefty struck out 14 batters over the nine-inning route, allowing no walks and no errors. The only runner to reach second base, The Red Devils manager, Phil Schiro, with which the Doughboys won the contest was a definite surprise since Camp Gordon had entered the game with a record of 43 wins in 53 contests and was ranked as one of the favorites in tourney play.

Herb Lauve was the batting star of the day for the Doughs getting two for four, including a triple and a home run. The circuit clout was Lauve's second of the tournament. Jim Cacciola also smashed a round tripper his second of the tourney. The Doughboys, as a unit, blasted three Camp Gordon mountaineers for a total of 13 hits to run their two-day total to 25 runs on 28 hits while holding their opponents to no runs and only seven hits.

In the contest played Thursday night Camp Gordon pounded back into the running by eliminating the Fort McPherson nine 14-3. The Fort Jackson Red Devils started strong on Saturday by Americans 11-2 in a morning game. The All-Americans then came to defeat the afternoon General Supply depot 12-4. The defeat for the mountaineers eliminated them from further contest in the tourney.

The Benning Doughboys moved back into action on Friday night as they dumped the Fort Jackson Red Devils 5-3 in a tight pitching duel. The Doughs had to take advantage of two Jackson errors in the ninth inning in order to score the winning marauder.

Woody Durt and Bob Kinard, of the Benning team, paced their club at bat with two for four and two for five respectively. Ike Silcox was the winning hurler for the Doughs, allowing only six hits but being the victor of four of his teammates' miscues.

On Saturday the Fort Bragg All-Americans met and defeated the Camp Gordon Ramblers to advance into the semi-final round. The All-Americans were scheduled to play Fort Jackson on Saturday night, with the winner meeting Benning on Sunday afternoon for the area title. Twice postponed by rain, the contest was finally scheduled for this afternoon.

Fall Sports On Post Present Full Slate

To sports-minded Benningites the fall represents a wider field of activity than any other season of the year. In full swing during the autumn are table tennis, badminton, volleyball, bowling, boxing, basketball and, of course, football.

This year, in table tennis and badminton, a trophy will be awarded for the first time to the winning teams in competition. Here to fore only individual awards have been made.

Play will begin in the badminton and table tennis tourneys early in October and will continue throughout the month, with the finals being held shortly before the end of the month. The six high men in each tournament will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army badminton and tennis tournaments, to be held in late October and early November.

The badminton tourney will be held at Fort Bragg, N. C., and the table tennis clash at Fort McPherson, Ga. Nine units at Fort Benning will be represented in team play in table tennis and badminton: the 15th Infantry regiment, 80th Infantry regiment, Third division artillery, Third division special troops, Infantry School detachment, Student training regiment—Airborne battalion, Provisional Medical group, Lawson air force base, and the 340th Area Service unit.

A volleyball tournament will be held in mid-September, too, will be open to the nine organizations listed above, and the winning team will represent the basketball Doughboys at a tourney in January.

Another sport highly favored by sports-lovers and popular throughout the year is boxing. At Benning this fall many cards featuring under service commanders will be fought at the post gym, in preparation for the army tournament which will be held sometime during the winter.

Fort Benning's current claim to fame in the pugilistic world is the 15th Infantry regiment, middleweight champion, who is expected to defend his crown in the 15th Infantry School detachment, Student training regiment—Airborne battalion, Provisional Medical group, Lawson air force base, and the 340th Area Service unit.

With a packed schedule of games, beginning in September, the Benning intra-mural hoopsters would be well advised to get the basketball Doughboys at a tourney in January.

Another sport highly favored by sports-lovers and popular throughout the year is boxing. At Benning this fall many cards featuring under service commanders will be fought at the post gym, in preparation for the army tournament which will be held sometime during the winter.

Fort Benning in the Third Army Vol. association rules will apply throughout the tourney. The official game consisting of 15 points. A match will consist of three games, the team winning two out of three being the winner of the match.

and the days grow shorter, athletics will assume an even greater proportion on the post, as almost a quarter of the service personnel engage in one form of sport or another, whether it be table tennis or boxing, badminton or football.

Despite the pre-season laments of Coach Mike Chester, the Doughboy football team gathering the impetus it will need to carry it through the nine-game schedule racked for at this fall.

In pads for the first time last Monday, after a week of drill in shorts, candidates for the first eleven slots went through their paces for Chester and his associates.

Throughout the week fundamentals were stressed highly, and cuts were gradually made so that the squad should be down to a more easily managed 50 men by the beginning of next week.

Coach Chester and several of his colleagues were in attendance at the Friday in Atlanta, as Frank Leahy, of Notre Dame, Carl Snavely, of North Carolina, Wally Butts, of Georgia, and other big wheels of college gridirons throughout the country discussed the merits and demerits of different phases of the sport.

Sponsored by the Georgia High School Coaches association, the clinic was designed to allow coaches from different localities to compare notes on their styles of coaching. According to Chester the meeting was highly profitable.

The football Doughboys of 1949 will be dependent on the field in new game jerseys, one blue with a white Northwestern stripe, and the other white with a blue Northwestern stripe. Game pants will be a silver hue, with twin blue stripes along the side.

Although Coach Chester, like many grid mentors, bewails the advent of a long fall and a rough season, the ball team is already showing the spirit that may carry them through a successful tour.

The Infantry School detachment honored its championship softball team with a banquet last Wednesday in the detachment's dining hall.

Coach Charles Woodruff, detachment commander, and Maj. Shelby Satterfield, a former commander of the unit, spoke briefly on the merits of the team. Toward the end of the evening the trophy was presented by Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, special services officer for the Infantry Center, to 1st Lt. John J. Klish, manager of the team.

Wolverines And Notre Dame Tops In Mid-West

Michigan and Notre Dame, the pickings of the mid-west would again fight it out for supremacy of the section which usually means the championship to boot. The Purple Wildcats of Northwestern should also be in the national standings as should Minnesota, Ohio State and Purdue, lurking in the Big Ten shadows, is a club whose name is whispered in fear at South Bend among the Spartans. That name is Michigan State, impregnable on defense, waist deep in veterans and armed for lightning attack, the Spartans may be the Team of the Year.

THE BIG NINE
MICHIGAN. Coach Benny Osterban lost most of his offensive line through graduation, but fortunately there are enough experienced men around to fill the vacancies.
Captain Al Wistert, trying for his third All American rating will anchor a line that should be a terror to opposing back-carriers. Although some linemen may have to do both offensive and defensive duties, the front wall should be almost as strong as last year.

The big problem facing the coaching staff is the lack of quarterbacks. Bob Van Sursum and Bill Williams, former Naval Academy stars, appear to have the inside track, although Walt Tominga may be switched over from right half.
Chuck Ortman and Leo Kosciol will probably start the starting half backs, while Tom Peterson will handle the spinner assignments from the full-back slot.

Capable and plentiful reserves round out the squad that may bring the Wolverines their third straight Big Nine title.
NORTHWESTERN. Thirty-four lettermen from the 1948 team that won in the Rose Bowl return to the Evanston campus. An all-veteran line that averages 208 pounds per man, deep reserve strength, should open the holes for the horde of full-backs that Coach Bob Veights has.

Returning to quarterback club this season will be Ernie Hanson, who claims to have added passing to his accomplishments during the off-season. Aiding Hanson will be Ed Tuncillit at right half and the great All American Art Murakowski at fullback.
At Northwestern meets, Minnesota and Michigan on successive Saturdays, and the Big Ten Cats get by these two may take their first conference crown since 1936.

OHIO STATE. State fans are whistling "Carmelita Herma" and pointing happily to Sophomore Vic Janowicz as the man to lead the Buckeyes to Pasadena. Janowicz teamed with veteran Jerry Krall should lead the Bucks to the fastest one-two punch in the top.
The boys up front will be big experienced, and two deep at every position but may cost a few Buckeyes a few games due to their slowness at foot.

MINNESOTA
A lack of backfield talent may hurt Coach Bernie Beirman's rebuilding plans, although Billy Eyer and Frank Kuzma returned. Beirman is still looking for a back that can both run and pass. If he is unable to find one, the going could be tough for Minnesota.
The front wall of the Golden Gophers will probably be the best in America, bar none. Leo Nomellini, 255-pound tackle, returns to try for his third straight All American title, while 235-pounder Clayton Tennemaker is a sure bet for the pivot spot on the all-star club.

PURDUE
Holcomb, Boilemaker coach, St. Louis, a night mare last season when a potentially good team became an incoherent mess in the Big Ten six games. The outlook for this season is much brighter despite the loss of several stars.
The line will be good, but may lack the reserve strength to pull their weight in the campaign. The backfield, paced by Harry Szulbierski, who has led the Big Ten in rushing for two seasons, will be the bright spot in the Boilemaker pattern.

IOWA
The Hawkeyes were only six regulars back after rebuilding for future years. Most of the burden will be on the shoulders of last year's freshmen, who may be tough to beat. Coach Ray Elliott will probably mix equal parts of veterans and soph and hope for the best. Big Russ Glegler, at fullback and Bernie Krueger, at quarterback, will spark a club that, with a few breaks, could put up to be the dark horse contender for loop honors.

WISCONSIN. Thirty-four lettermen return to the campus this fall but will have to learn a new system before becoming the contenders. Iva Williams, newly appointed head coach, will install the basic system featuring a man in motion.
The Wisconsin alumni have not failed to expect too much in the first season, so don't look for a championship at Madison.

INDIANA. The Hoosiers are also building for the future and will feature a large sophomore contingent. Coach Ed Snodgrass of All-Indiana high school star, Fred Vaiana.
The Irish enter a schedule that includes Indiana, Washington, Purdue, Tulane Navy, Michigan State, North Carolina, Iowa, Southern California and Southern Methodist, with a record of 28 consecutive games without a defeat. Despite their murderous schedule, that string will probably still be unbroken when the season ends.

MICHIGAN STATE. The Spartans are on the upswing and should be able to hold their own with any team on the schedule, including Notre Dame and Michigan. The Spartans will be weakly by graduation losses, but Jim Martin, co-captain, has been moved from end to tackle where he will team up with Bob Teniff, a 235-pound sophomore. All-American Leon Hart, the other co-captain, will guard the right flank, while Bill Wightkin, veteran letterman, will take care of the left end.
The backfield will be a typical Notre Dame unit, able to explode from any spot on the field.

WOLVERINES AND NOTRE DAME TOPS IN MIDWEST
Next week the fourth in this series of articles will preview the gridiron scene in the South-east.

Big time professional football will make its annual appearance in the south on the night of Sept. 10 in American Legion stadium at Birmingham, Ala., when the Chicago Cardinals will play for the National Football League title last year, tangled with the Redskins in an exhibition contest beginning at 10 p.m.
The Cardinals, under a new coaching setup, plan to pick up where they left off last year in their quest for the crown and plan to use the Skins as a proving ground for their big guns. Back with the Cardinals for another season will be a dream backfield of Paul Christian, at quarterback, Charlie Trippi and Elmer Angsman, at the halves, and the league's leading scorer, Pat Harder, at fullback.

In addition to this array of talent, the Cards have such veterans as Mal Kutner and Billy Dewell back to hold down the line. Among the line backs are line giants like Vince Banonis, Chet Barger, Gene Ramey, and newcomer Bill Fischer, former Notre Dame captain.
While the Cardinals are a versatile ball club, they do most of their gaining on the ground. In direct contrast to this is the great passing attack of the once-termed Redskins. The Washington line have a quartet of backs that are famous throughout the country for their ability to throw the ball. Heading the list is the legendary Sammy Baugh, starting his thirteenth season with the Capital City crew. On hand to aid the aerial wizard, should the falter, are other aerial artists, including the great Al Demeo at the pivot.

The proceeds of the contest will be given to the Christian's Relief Fund of greater Birmingham and the game will be sponsored by the Birmingham American Legion. Personnel of Fort Benning who wish to purchase tickets for the game may do so at Theaters No. 1, 6 and 7, the three best exchanges on the main post. Third division and Infantry clubs special services offices and bookstores.

NEW GYM TO OPEN BY END OF YEAR
A three-quarter million dollar building that can be cleaned with a sponge is being constructed next to the Fort Benning post office.
The new field house, soon to be the center of non-sports activities, is made of a tile construction comparatively new to this section of the country, according to A. R. Lambert, resident engineer.
Scheduled to be completed and in use before the end of the year, the large building is lined with swimming pool to ceiling with both ceramic and enameled tile which is more durable and easier to keep clean than other building materials, Mr. Lambert pointed out.
There will be swimming all day long as well as all year round. Fort Benning when the field house is completed, Mr. Lambert said. Underwater lighting in the large 42-by-75-foot indoor pool will add a glamorous touch to the new recreation center.
The bottom of the pool will slope from four feet at the shallow end to 11 feet at the deep end, and there will be two diving boards, a one-meter and a three-meter. The water will be constantly purified in large filters that can handle 132,500 gallons of water every four hours.

Five fully-equipped dressing rooms are being built for the convenience of those participating in the recreational activities. The center of the modern building is the gym. One hundred and eleven by 116 feet long, it has a specially constructed floor more than two inches thick for basketball. The top layer contains three and five-eighths inches of hard maple. A balcony at the north end of the gym will contain seats for sports spectators.
To the rear of the gym is a room containing two handball courts, ventilated by large exhaust fans, and two exercise rooms containing all manner of exercising equipment, such as parallel bars, weights and like.
Heating will be by forced hot air, hatters, and the building is so constructed that air conditioning may be installed later.
Plans for the field house were allotted by the Third Army welfare fund.

Flier F. Moseley Wins 1949 Inter-Service Golf

Fred G. Moseley, U. S. air force, stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., finished in third place with a low 285 to gain high honors on the army team. Jack Mann, Fort Worth, Tex., stationed at Rosford Ordnance Depot, and Hal Crumbs, San Antonio, Tex., stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., finished second and third in the Army team standings with a 291.
Low score for Saturday's 18-hole medal play, edged out his teammate, James Wilson, Washington, D. C., by two strokes.

The air force team won the team championship with the low score of 2,326, the army team in second place with a 2,338, and navy third with a 2,402. The eight low scores of the individual members added determined the team score, with the low score gaining the championship.
The James V. Forrestal trophy, symbol of inter-service golf supremacy, will be retained in air force possession for another year. The inter-service sports council, composed of representatives from all the services, sponsors the annual golf tournament. Jack Laxton, Brownstown, Md., was the champion in 1948.

THE BAYONET

Vol. 4 No. 3 Columbia, S. C., Monday, September 1, 1947

CONGRATULATIONS FROM FOUR GENERALS . . . Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burriss, commanding general of the Infantry Center, presented a letter of commendation to Capt. Thomas E. Wilkinson, student in the instructor training course, for his gallant leadership of a search party which in May, 1947, penetrated uncharted Borneo jungles to rescue survivors of a crashed B-17 aircraft. The letter was signed by Generals Burgess and the commanding general of these Civil Corps installations.

Lt. Col. Browning New 999th Chief

Lt. Col. Harold W. Browning, here on his second tour of duty, assumed command of the 999th Armored Field Artillery Battalion last week, succeeding Lt. Col. Todd H. Slaven, who was recently assigned to the U. S. military attaché's office in Mexico City. A graduate of the United States Military academy class of 1934, Colonel Browning served in Hawaii from 1935-1937 before coming to Benning for duty with the 83rd Field Artillery battalion. He was later stationed at Camp Livingston, La., with the 46th and 42nd Field Artillery brigades. A World War II veteran with 20 months overseas service, Colonel Browning served in France and Germany as G-4 of the 68th Infantry division and later on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff. Upon his return to the U. S. in May, 1947, he took over the post of G-4, Headquarters, Fourth army.

Colonel Browning's family bear an impressive list of West Point alumni. His father, the late Brig. Gen. William S. Browning graduated in 1901, and three brothers, Col. S. R. Browning, Lt. Col. W. W. Browning, and Lt. Col. J. W. Browning are also graduates of the academy.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Sergeant Keeps 'Em Clean Despite Many Difficulties

One untrained platoon of the 537th Quartermaster Laundry company and one experienced company, Sgt. 1st cl. George H. Roberts, combined to solve one of the most pressing problems of the 31st Infantry division during their recent two-week training period here. The 31st, like all army outfits, had to solve the problem of keeping clean. Post facilities were already overtaxed, but there were 12,000 men who needed laundry service.

The problem was made known and a platoon of the newly organized 537th, under the command of Sergeant Roberts, went to work. It is as much a recognition of the work done by members of the company as it is a particular honor for Sergeant Roberts that this week's title of "Soldier of the Week" should fall to him. On extremely short notice, Sergeant Roberts directed his untrained men in the removing from storage, processing, servicing and placing in operation one complete mobile laundry which provided service for the 31st division.

The commanding officer of the company was on leave when the emergency call came through and from Air Training command headquarters at Barksdale, Louisiana, he was called to the mobile laundry was to be set up.

Difficulty was also encountered in maintaining an adequate water supply. The area where the mobile laundry was to be set up was poorly adapted for such use. Using the ability and resourcefulness which had come to him from years of experience, Sergeant Roberts directed his men to the successful completion of the job.

The most difficult difficulty encountered in operating the laundry was a shortage of trained personnel. By working overtime, weekends and with the best kind of cooperation, the company in a very short period was operating near top efficiency, supplying the necessary service to the 31st division.

Due to the efforts of Sergeant Roberts the load thrown upon post facilities was considerably reduced. In addition to operating the laundry, Sergeant Roberts conducted a field laundry demonstration for members of the command, student officers and trainees.

At Fort Benning since April of this year, Sergeant Roberts has spent nearly seven years in the army. Overseas in the European theater with the 18th Airborne division, he wears two battle stars on his ETO ribbon. Formerly an instructor for the basic associate officers' course at Camp Lee, Va., he is married and lives with his wife and two children near Columbus. He is devoted to his career in the army. Sergeant Roberts plans to "keep 'em clean" for some time to come.

One of the main projects of the Fort Benning food service office during the summer months is the elimination of flies in army messes, and fly control measures are being practiced in all places that serve food in order to eliminate the pests.

WAC's to Initiate 13-Week Course

The basic training course for enlisted personnel of the Women's Army Corps will be extended from eight to 13 weeks when the Aug. 29 class enters the Wac Training Center at Camp Lee, Va., the Department of the Army has announced.

The new program will bring the Wac training schedule more in line with the 14-week course given to male personnel. A course will include several new subjects, notably courses in weapons instruction and outdoor field living and problems. Training in the actual use of weapons is not included in the basic course.

The hours devoted to weapons and tactical training in the male program are utilized in the women's program for administrative studies more in line with the type of duties Wacs will perform.

The new course in weapons demonstration will be included because of its value to women who will at some time work in offices where nomenclature of weapons is in common use. The inclusion of training for and experience in bivouac living is in practical recognition of the wartime fact that several hundred Wacs lived and worked for months under field conditions. The time formerly devoted to the reception, processing and classification of incoming and outgoing trainees is also now included in the training course.

Lt. Lee Tinker, Miss Estes Married at Post Chapel

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene of an impressive military wedding Friday at 5 p. m. when Miss Lucille Estes, of Lt. Lee Tinker, of Headquarters, 344th Area Service Unit, Fort Benning, Ga., and Miss Hilda read the marriage lines before an altar arrangement of white roses and asters and tall white tapers in cathedral candleholders.

John C. Miller, organist, presented a program of nuptial music, including strains of the "Wedding March" from Lohengrin heralded the entrance of the wedding party, led by the usher-groomsman, Capt. Robert S. Fustate, Lt. Clifton J. Tigges, 1st Lt. Francis J. Lynch, and CWO Eugene M. Moore.

Mrs. Virginia Johns Jr., of La Grange, Ga., attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a beautiful sea green satin gown, of exquisite styling, with a wide white ruffled collar which stood up across the shoulders in back to below the sweetheart neckline in a soft drape effect in front. The skirt was attached to the light-fitting bodice with a myriad of tiny flowers, and fell to ankle-length in unpressed petals, with buttons trimmed with a dusty blue. Her hair was styled in a tiara of yellow-shading-to-gold daisy mums and carried a large spray of yellow-shading-to-bronze chrysanthemums tied with wide bronze satin ribbon.

The bridesmaids, Miss Violet Tucker, Columbus, Miss Mary Adams, Columbus, and Mrs. Ernest Cox, sister of the bride from Atlanta, wore gowns of the same color and styling as the matron of honor, and their hair ornaments and bouquets were also identical.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Joseph G. Estes, of LaGrange, Ga., who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Capt. Merle Dean.

The bride was radiant in a beautiful white satin wedding gown, ornamented with the wide white collar simulating a ruffled collar. Her hair was styled in a tiara of yellow-shading-to-gold daisy mums and carried a large spray of yellow-shading-to-bronze chrysanthemums tied with wide bronze satin ribbon.

Guests who gathered to honor Cowboy John on his eighth birthday were John and Sid Frazier, Dave and Doug Broyles, Robert and Carl Hartman, and Mrs. Wanda Curtis Whall and Robin Well.

Gigantic Girl Scout Drive for Leaders Opens Benning 1949-50 Scout Program

The Girl Scout drive is one of the most important for personal growth, community service and fun, made possible through the Girl Scout program. This year it is planned to have three Brownie packs. Only two leaders are available at present. Are you interested in the 7- through 9-year-olds? The Brownies need you.

Two patrols are needed in the 10-12 year age group; one leader, at present, is available. Help is also needed in the 11- to 12 year group. Many of the former leaders have left the post or are working with other groups.

September 1949 marks the beginning of another year of Girl Scouting at Fort Benning. We hope that this year will be much more to the girls' benefit, and that they will take advantage of the many fields of activity offered and be inspired by the high ideals for which the Girl Scouts of America stand.

Our appreciation of the talent and effort of those who have volunteered their services to support these activities is boundless. With every good wish for a banner year for our girls. (Signed) Maj. Gen. W. A. Burress

Mrs. Russell M. Miner, president of the Fort Benning Woman's club writes: "The Girl Scout Organization is one of the finest means of developing responsible citizens. Scout principles of clean living and thinking and unselfish service to others give our girls ideal training for taking their place in the community." (Signed) Irma D. Bell.

Mrs. Russell M. Miner, president of the PTA endorses the Girl Scout drive as follows: "A Girl Scout is inspired to become a better citizen through her contacts and training in the field of Scout work." (Signed) Mrs. Russell M. Miner

More girls of every race, creed and nationality need the opportunity for personal growth, community service and fun made possible through the Girl Scout program. With the eyes of every citizen focused on world peace, as we enter this membership and service with this world-wide organization provides a chance to help our children become responsible, mature, intelligent adult citizens.

The girl this year is a leader and assistant for every ten Girl Scouts. Will you help reach that goal? Last year Fort Benning had 100 Girl Scouts for 15 leaders and assistants, which was most inadequate. Every girl wants to be a Girl Scout! But the number of members is limited by the number of leaders available.

Do you know hair styling, interior decorating, clothes, designing, ceramics, painting? The 13- to 17 year group are interested in these activities. Will you volunteer your services as Scout leaders in this group? Meet the Girl Scout Council at their formal coffee, September 8, at 10 a.m. at the Girl Scout building, set up for your work in Scouting this year. For particulars call 2630, 2762, or 2502.

The Girl Scout Promise
"On my honor I will try: To do my duty to God and my country. To help other people at all times. To obey the Girl Scout laws."

The Girl Scout Laws
I. A Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted.
II. A Girl Scout is loyal.
III. A Girl Scout's duty is to be useful and to help others.
IV. A Girl Scout is a friend to all and a sister to every other Girl Scout.
V. A Girl Scout is courteous.
VI. A Girl Scout is a friend to animals.
VII. A Girl Scout obeys orders.
VIII. A Girl Scout is cheerful with other children.
IX. A Girl Scout is thrifty.
X. A Girl Scout is clean in thought, word and deed.

116 Finish Basic Officers Class, 5

One-hundred and sixteen graduating members of the Infantry School's associate basic class No. 5 heard Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center, outline their future careers in the United States army at graduation exercises held Tuesday morning in the Main theater.

General Burress presented the diplomas. General Burress told the new lieutenants that they "had the hardest job in the army." "In my judgment," he said, "the job of being an officer is a fine company, while not as technical as some army jobs, is one of the utmost importance because it deals with men."

Sgt. G. W. Fussell Boosted to WOJG

Sgt. 1st cl. George W. Fussell, Company G, 15th Infantry regiment, received his permanent junior grade warrant last week, after more than six years of service.

Sergeant Fussell entered the army on May 12, 1943, took basic training at Camp Robinson, Ark, and went overseas with the 290th Infantry regiment, 75th Infantry division.

A squad leader in a rifle platoon during the fighting in Belgium's Ardennes forest, Sergeant Fussell was wounded, and after seven months in a hospital, returned to the U. S. for discharge. The sergeant later re-enlisted and was sent to Korea with the 17th Infantry regiment, Seventh Infantry division. He served there until August, 1947, when he came to Fort Benning to join the 15th Infantry regiment.

He has been a platoon sergeant with the 15th Infantry since its

Benning Pistol Team To Fire In Nationals

The Fort Benning pistol team will make its first tournament appearance of the season next Monday when it competes in the National Pistol Championships at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

After the series of tryouts are completed, Colonel Taylor will pick four men to make the trip to Fort Sheridan. There they will meet Lt. Col. Perry Swindler who is already at Fort Sheridan as team captain and coach of the all-army pistol team. These five men will make up the four-man stand with one alternate that will represent Fort Benning in the championships.

Among the standouts for the recent post pistol matches to go through a series of five tryouts. Although all members of the team, only three have ever fired on a team competing in the national matches.

Standouts among the enlisted men on the team are Sgt. James Foster and Sgt. 1st cl. Daniel S. Huntley. Sergeant Foster is the demonstrator who fires the pistol in the infantry firepower demonstrations for the VIPs. During this exhibit Sergeant Foster fires 50 rounds from a .45 caliber automatic using service ammunition. This requires the loading and firing of seven clips during the 60-second time limit.

35 Receive Cash Prizes For Top Marksmanship

Thirty-five members of the 15th Infantry regiment were awarded cash prizes last week by Col. James F. Torrance, Jr., regimental commander, for outstanding scoring on the small arms ranges.

Competition was stiff on all the prizes and to be split as a result of the scores.

First prize for the high score on each weapon was ten dollars, second prize five dollars, third prize three dollars.

In the M-1 rifle competition, Pfc. E. Headrick, of Company D, received the top award for a score of 204 out of a possible 210. Runner-up in this event was Sgt. C. I. Mock, of Company B, with a 203, and third was Sgt. A. E. Greer, also of Company B, with a 202.

The carbine firing was won by Pvt. Charles Thomas, of Company M, who scored a 198 out of a possible 210. Tied for second place were Sgt. Robert Murphy, of Third battalion headquarters, and Sgt. M. T. Minear, of the Service company, with 194's.

In competition on the .45 caliber pistol, Sgt. 1st cl. J. K. Rose, of Company I, scored 339 out of a possible 350 to achieve first honors. Following him were Sgt. 1st cl. J. Lally, Sgt. S. L. Murphy and Cpl. H. R. Jennings, of Company D, all of whom fired 319.

Firing with the .30 calibre light machine gun resulted in Pvt. J. D. Hunt of Company K, scoring 77 out of a possible 100, while Sgt. Edgar Scott, of Company M, fired 76 and Pvt. Andrew Quearies of Company M, 75.

The .30 calibre heavy machine gun competition was won by Pfc. Sigmond Love, of Company M, who achieved a score of 86 out of a possible 100, followed by Sgt. 1st cl. J. J. Lally, Sgt. S. L. Murphy and Cpl. H. R. Jennings, of Company D, all of whom fired 82.

Firing the Browning automatic rifle resulted in Pvt. J. A. Thomas, of Company B, taking top honors with 419.

Expected that over 400 of the nation's top pistol shots will compete.

The standard pistol will be the .45 calibre automatic pistol using service ammunition. This will be the first year since 1940 that the championships have been held. The last match was won by the U. S. infantry team, which numbered among its members, Lt. Col. Taylor, Swindler and Drain.

Certificates Given For Achievement

The awarding of Third Army Certificate of Achievements to 35 enlisted men at Fort Benning who are expected to retire during the month was announced today.

Pvt. Henry McGill, Section II, 3440th Area Service unit, was retired Aug. 31 after 22 years of service. He received his certificate at special retirement ceremonies by his section.

Other men scheduled to receive achievement certificates are Cpl. Joseph E. Bridgehouse, Company A, 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, who has 22 and a half years service; Sgt. 1st cl. Lonnie Woods, Company M, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, 20 years; and Sgt. 1st cl. Sidney Jackson, Section II, Military Police detachment, 3440th Area Service unit, 20 years.

99 Awarded Wings

Basic Airborne class No. 42 graduated a total of 25 officers and 74 enlisted men last week. After graduation members of the class were shipped to their assigned units, Lt. Col. Taylor, N. C., and Camp Campbell, Ky.

Sgt. James O. Henley Has Recruiting Reins

Sgt. James O. Henley, Jr. has been named recruiting sergeant at Lawson Air force base.

Sergeant Henley has been affiliated with the public information office at Lawson for the past two years. His new assignment will be his primary duty with the PIO as an additional duty.

Blind Date Fun Feature At Service Club Party

Something new and novel in entertainment was added to the schedule of social events at Service club No. 4 last Thursday night, when the first in a series of blind date parties was presented, under the auspices of special services.

A stage curtain was used to hide from each other the identity of the participating couples.

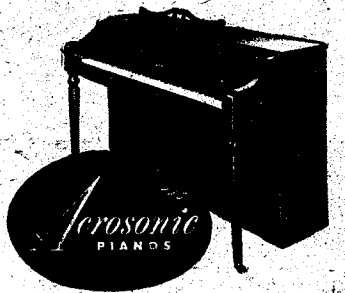

A young lady was introduced to two men by Master of Ceremonies Pfc. Bennie Whiting. After a three-minute conversation with each of the two participants, the young lady chose her escort for the evening. They then "came out hiding" and met, and the young lady was presented with a corsage of asters and snapdragons. The winner was given cigarettes and the loser toilet articles.

Contestants were selected by the company commander and a first sergeant of their respective organizations, based on their efficiency reports. Young lady participants were chosen by the director of Service club No. 4 in collaboration with City hospital and USO club directors.

After the program the couples were taken to Columbus for an evening of fun and pleasure, which began with a full course dinner. Then they were entertained at a special feature movie through the courtesy of D. B. Smith, manager of the Liberty Theater. Climaxing their gala

NEW STRIPES AND A CIGAR . . . The 15th Infantry regiment promoted the largest group of men so far this year last week. Here Captain Claude R. Keough, commander of Headquarters company, pins on the new chevrons of M-Sgt. George M. Roese. Looking on are M-Sgt. Paul M. Pierce, (with cigars) and M-Sgt. Otto J. Meyers. These are only three of 27 men who were advanced to top non-commissioned rank.

Drama League Sets 3 Shows

Theatersgoers of Fort Benning and Columbus will have their first opportunity this year to see legitimate stage productions when the Civic Drama League of Columbus opens its fall season with a repertoire of two comedies and a drama sometime this month.

The group is sponsored by the Commerce and are all Broadway successes of last season. The schedule includes "Fair and Warmer", "Peg O' My Heart" and "The Heiress".

Tickets for the production will go on sale to the general public next Monday.

Reservations may be made by calling Columbus 3-7224 or writing the Junior Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 383, Columbus.

No deposit is required in making a reservation, league officials said.

30th Honors Ten Officers At Review on Tiger Field

Ten officers of the 30th Infantry regiment who are scheduled to attend the advanced course at the Infantry School beginning Sept. 1, were honored at a parade on Tiger field last Saturday.

When the parade, consisting of all units of the 30th Infantry, had been formed, the following order of the day was read:

"The parade today is in honor of those officers who have rendered faithful and honorable service with the 30th Infantry regiment and who are now departing for other duties."

Col. Joseph W. Boone then stepped forward to express his appreciation of their service.

The departing officers were Lt. Col. Frank S. Holcombe, regimental executive officer; Lt. Col. William D. Mouchet, first battalion commander; Maj. Arthur

General Mark Clark Named Chief of Army Field Forces

Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding general of Sixth Army with headquarters at the Presidio at San Francisco, will succeed Gen. Jacob L. Devers as chief of Army field forces, at Fort Monroe, on Sept. 30, the Department of Army announced recently.

General Devers will retire from the army on that date after 40 years of service.

The vacancy created by General Clark's transfer will be filled by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, deputy chief of staff for plans and combat operations. No replacement for General Wedemeyer has been announced.

General Clark, a native of Madison Barracks, N. Y., won prominence during World War I for the part he played in planning the invasion of North Africa. A month before the actual invasion, he made a dramatic and hazardous trip by plane and submarine from London to French North Africa for a secret rendezvous with a group of French officers to arrange details for the proposed landing.

As deputy commander-in-chief of the Anglo-American invasion force he flew from Gibraltar to Algiers on the day following the landings, Nov. 9, 1942 where he took into protection custody Adm. Jean Francois Darlan, commander-in-chief of all French forces in northwest and west Africa.

In January, 1943, General Clark was named commanding general of the Fifth Army and in September of the same year directed that unit in the landings at Salerno, Italy. Under General Clark, the Fifth Army entered Rome on June 4, 1944, the first Axis capital to be liberated from the enemy. In December, 1944, General Clark was elevated to the command of the Fifteenth Army group, comprising all fighting forces in Italy. He held that command until the close of hostilities in Europe. He assumed command of the Sixth Army on June 19, 1947.

General Wedemeyer, a native of Omaha, Neb., served as deputy chief of staff of the Southeast Asia command from October, 1943 to October, 1944, when he became commanding general of U. S. Forces in China.

Returning to this country in July in September of that year, 1946, General Wedemeyer assumed command of the Second Army in September of that year. A year later he became director of the plans and operations division, general staff. In November, 1948, he assumed his present position.

General Devers, who was born at York, Pa., has served in both World Wars. He was named commanding general of the United States forces in Europe in May, 1943. A few months later he assumed command of the North African theater of operations.

General Devers became commanding general of the Sixth Army group in France in September, 1944 and later commanded the Twelfth Army group, during the temporary absence of Gen. Omar N. Bradley. He became commanding general of Army ground forces in June, 1945 succeeding Gen. Joseph Stilwell. He moved with the headquarters for Fort Monroe, Va., in October, 1946.

Radio Repairmen Complete Course

Twenty-eight members of the Infantry School's radio repair class No. 3 graduated here last Saturday morning from a 20 and one-half week course in fundamental radio repair technique.

The 28 graduates all enlisted members of national guard units were presented their diplomas by Lt. Col. Paul Hamilton, chief of the Infantry School's Communications department.

Prior to the presentation of the diplomas, Colonel Hamilton spoke to the graduates on the importance of upholding the reputation of the Infantry School when they return to civilian life. He also stressed the necessity of a "soldierly aspect" at all times.

Chaplain (Capt.) Aloysius Ziminski pronounced the invocation and benediction at the ceremonies.

More than among the 28 students was Cpl. James Rogers, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 226th Field Artillery battalion, New York national guard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

New Airborne Class Expected on Aug. 29

Company B, Airborne battalion, is expecting a class of approximately 125 enlisted men and 12 officers to begin airborne training Aug. 29.

Three officers and four enlisted men have already reported for training, but the remainder of the class will not arrive until Aug. 24. This will be the first class the company has had since Aug. 5.

FOR THE TITLE . . . Early action in the 30th Infantry regiment volleyball tourney is shown above as the shirtless Company H-men drive in for a score. The H men won two straight games from Headquarters company to annex the regimental title. The game took place in the Headquarters company area in Sand Hill.

Takes 30th Volley Title

In a hard fought final game but Headquarters company moved away to score a 15-11 verdict. In the semi-finals, the regimental volleyball championship, Company H defeated regimental Headquarters company 1-0 in two games to none to annex the title and also gain a spot in the post tournament.

Both teams entered the final round with excellent records. Company H having lost only one game while Headquarters company had gone through the season undefeated. Both teams had chalked up impressive wins in the semi-finals of the tourney.

Company H started the first game like a house afire and ran the count to 13-3 before letting up and coasting to a 15-7 victory.

The second game developed into a close contest in the early phases with the Headquarters men moving out in front at one point 7-6. The men of Company H roared back to tally a string of six straight points to move into a 12-7 lead, but the Headquarters men fought back, in a rally of their own, to move to within two points of the leaders but Headquarters company moved away to score a 15-11 verdict. In the semi-finals, the regimental volleyball championship, Company L, Third Battalion titlists, in two straight games 15-0 and 15-8, in the other half of semi-finals Headquarters company downed Company A 15-13 and 15-5 to eliminate the First Battalion champions.

Company H will now bid its time until the post championships begin at the Main gym in late in September.

Members of the championship team were Lee Duggar, Archibald Walters, J. H. Betts, Alvin Howard, A. E. Van Derhoof, Jack Waine, Fred Aladray, Bobbie Keener and Robert Grace.

All-Army Tourney To Mark End Of Star's Military Stint

In sports, all athletes will agree you either have it or you don't. Whatever "it" is, athletes are either born with it or they develop it through an earnest desire to succeed in their athletic field and emulate the achievements of the Babe Ruths, Jack Demps and Johnny Weissmullers.

To this end, Jim Cacciola, 19-year-old Doughboy left fielder has made great strides as proven by his performance in the recent Third Army championship baseball tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C., and by the impressive background he built up in civilian life prior to his entry in the army.

Jim says his interest in diamond endeavor goes back to his childhood days when stars like Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth influenced his dreams. He knew then that his chief ambition in life would be to get into, and succeed in, the major leagues.

Less than a week after the all-army baseball tourney comes to an end here Sept. 18, Cacciola will be given the opportunity to aspire to his dream. The six-foot youngster's enlistment will expire Sept. 21 when he will return home bearing hopes of going into spring training with the Newark, N. J., Bears of the International League, a New York Yankees farm team. Prior to donning the uniform of the United States army, Jim was under contract to the club, optioned out to the Newark, Ohio, Yankees, another branch of the American league big guns' farm system.

The handsome fly-catcher was born in York, Pa., on May 3, 1929, lived there all his life, and graduated from York high school in 1947. Since he schooled no baseball team, Jim's participation in diamond activities started with the American Legion team in his home town in 1944 at the age of 14. He stayed with the Legionnaires three years ending his stint in 1947.

In 1947, while engaged in a Pennsylvania state all-star game, Jim was spotted by Bill McCorry, a New York Yankees scout. McCorry contacted "Cash" as he is affectionately called in local circles at his home, and agreed to wait until Jim graduated from high school and became of legal age.

McCorry kept his word and in May, 1948, Cash signed a contract with the Newark Bears and

Prize Collection To Be Displayed

A trophy room is now being arranged to display an imposing collection gathered by the 30th Infantry regiment during its long years of service. Maj. Horace E. Donaho, regimental S-2, announced last week.

Scheduled to open during the latter part of this month, the trophy room will be located in the regimental information and education building.

Since the reactivation of the 30th early this year it had been decided to arrange a proper place for the trophies, and the conversion work, headed by Sgt. Emmett E. Wooton, is now nearing completion.

The trophies were recently received after having been in storage during the inactive period of the regiment.

Included in the large collection are such items as original commendations, over 100 loving cups, a staff with silver bands containing minor battles in which the regiment has participated and a pictorial history.

Refresher Exam Set

A refresher examination on general food service information is being planned for all Infantry Center mess personnel, who are scheduled to take the army-wide food service examinations in December for promotional purposes. It was announced this week by Maj. John R. Hiltz, Infantry Center food service supervisor.

TOURNEY FAVORITE . . . Driving one down the fairway is John Henion, post golf titlist. Henion is presently rated as the outstanding favorite to take top honors in the First Battalion, 15th Infantry regiment tournament which will take place at the Officers' club course on Saturday and Sunday.

to Newark, Ohio, on option for actively with the Newark Yankees in the Ohio-Indiana League.

Jim put aside his baseball career temporarily shortly after that he enlisted in the army in September, 1947, for a one-year hitch and has been playing army ball ever since.

That Cash has what it takes to succeed in baseball is in the records. In the Third Army tourney he hit the first home run of the tournament and chalked up two more in the remainder of the series. Throughout the tournament his batting average hovered around the .500 mark and his fielding average stuck close to 1,000 per cent.

Loving baseball the way he does, playing in the first all-army championship baseball tournament in the history of the army will be a fitting close to his military career.

Skee Riegel Wins Over Frank Stranahan, 3-2

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., defeated Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., 3 and 2, in the featured third round match of the U. S. Amateur golf championship today to move into this afternoon's fourth round along with Defending Champion Willie Turnesa.

The favored Riegel won the match of the muscle man at rolling Oak Hill Country Club by tossing a two under par 33 for a three up lead at the turn. Spraying his shots all over the course, Stranahan could not overcome the deficit before running out of holes in the 18-hole battle.

Riegel's win followed victories by Turnesa, 5 and 4 over Sam Pencace, Elkins Park, Pa., and

Labor Day And Death Walk Hand In Hand -- Don't Be A Killer

PAY DAY PLUS HOLIDAY MAY EQUAL ACCIDENTS

ONCE AGAIN EMPTY BOTTLES TELL THE STORY . . . A beer bottle can be plainly discerned near the running board of this vehicle. It is not always the driver who is injured. In this case it was his passenger in the front seat who was flung from the car and suffered a fractured skull. Again darkness, speed, too much beer and too little understanding of what havoc he could wreak caused his driver to "try to get there in a shorter time by going a little faster".

DEATH! . . . A cold, final word. It came to the soldier above when the car he was driving too fast skidded and, turning over once, landed on top of him. His skull was crushed beneath the rear wheel. Identification was made by means of his "dog tags".

By DONALD W. SCHAEFER
A study of private vehicle accidents, occurring between Jan. 1, 1947, to last Aug. 23 and resulting in fatal injuries to Fort Benning soldiers, shows that the following story will appear in the next issue of The Bayonet.

The long Labor day weekend, coming a few days after pay day, brought death to a 22-year-old private of the United States army at approximately 1:30 a.m. Tuesday morning. The soldier, taking advantage of his three-day holiday and his pay for the month of August, left the post early Saturday afternoon to spend the holiday in a large city within driving distance of Fort Benning.

He was driving a comparatively new model car in good mechanical condition and was returning to the post.

In the early hours of the morning the road he was traveling was wet with a light rain and a mist had arisen as is usual following a very warm day.

He was anxious to get back to the post and had put off his departure until the last minute. The soldier was within 50 miles of the post when he was almost overcome by a wave of fatigue, resulting from his too strenuous efforts to enjoy the weekend. He was, however, determined to reach the post and his feet as soon as possible and put more pressure on the accelerator.

The road was too slippery for the speed the vehicle was traveling, although he was not breaking a traffic law.

The fatigue, darkness and mist apparently obscured his vision and, with a suddenness completely disrupted his reactions, his vehicle skidded on the wet concrete. The car made a complete circle, and the soldier was thrown from the skidding vehicle directly into the path of an oncoming car.

He was killed instantly.

THE STORY WILL APPEAR . . . Unless soldiers remember the terrific power of the vehicle they are controlling. An automobile weighs on the average of 3,000 pounds with an average engine capacity of 100 horsepower. It takes a man with great mechanical skill to construct such a machine. It takes a man of even greater skill, caution and judgment to operate safely such a machine. Unless they remember it is better to arrive late and alive than arrive early in a coffin.

Unless they allow enough time for safe driving under safe conditions when they return to the post.

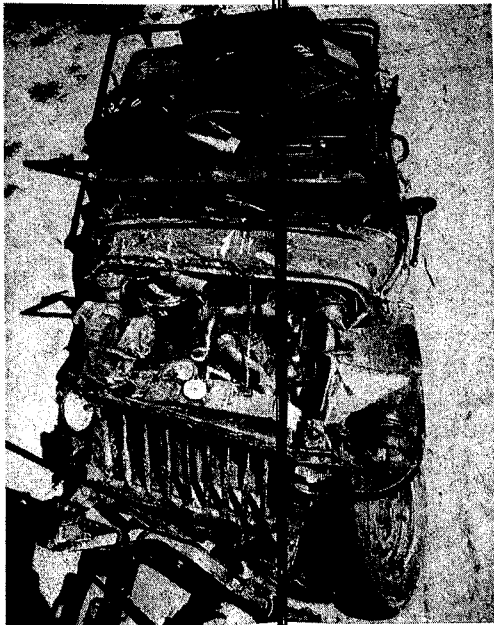

Unless they remember that a bottle can drive 3,000 pounds of steel.

There have been many safety campaigns at Fort Benning and the accident rate has been lowered, but until drivers learn that it doesn't matter who is first in line, or who has the fastest car, driving in the United States will not be the pleasure it could be.

There is bound to be someone. There always is. Just don't let it be you. Don't carry the thought in your mind for the rest of your life that you have killed needlessly. Don't be a "killer".

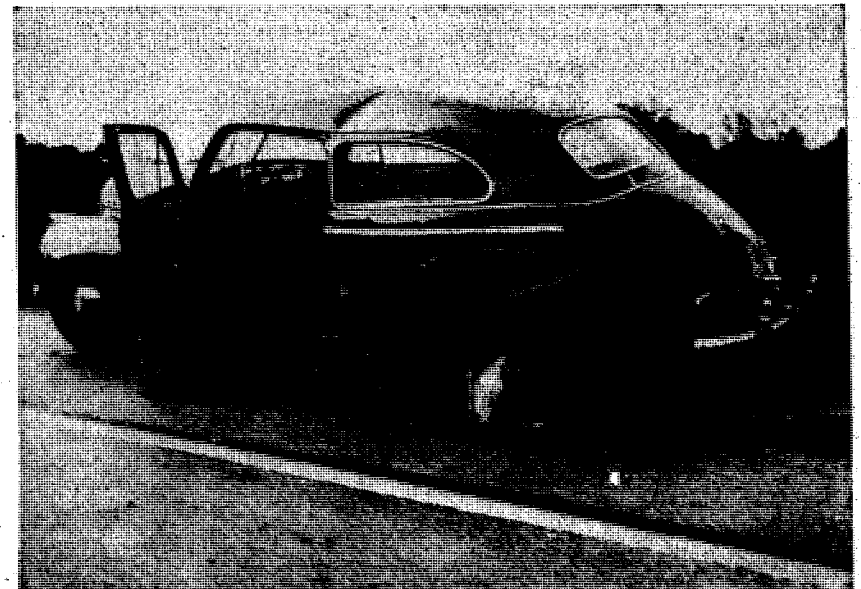

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL CAR AND THE DRIVER WAS ALIVE . . . But speeding on a wet highway plus fatigue combined to create the scene for the picture. The driver of this vehicle, besides being flung from his own car when it skidded and reversed its direction, was run over by a vehicle coming in the same direction. Still alive, he endeavored to crawl to the side of the road only to be struck and killed instantly by a truck coming from the opposite direction. The macabre humor of the situation vanished when relatives were called upon to identify the body.

WANT TO TAKE A RIDE SOLDIER? . . . This was the pleasant invitation offered two 17-year-old recruits just out of basic training here by another soldier who had just been relieved from guard duty. The guard had some beer too. Result? The jeep turned out as shown above, and the two recruits were disabled for life as a result of compound fractures of both legs. The driver escaped with superficial injuries. Driving can be fun. It can also mean a lifetime of sorrow.

It can also mean a lifetime of sorrow.

HE WAS ALIVE FOR A WHILE . . . While volunteers were attempting to lift his smashed vehicle, the driver, a 17-year-old private, who was pinned beneath the car, died. The soldier had just completed basic training and had rented a car to celebrate. He also bought a bottle of whiskey. The bottle, half empty, was found in the car.

Four Teams To Fight It Out In Southwest Loop

BY JIM CLOONAN

For this week's football preview we journey into the pass-crowded country to take a look at the Southwest and Border conferences. In the Southwest loop, Southern Methodist and Rice are the two-time champions and ready to fight for their crown. The Mustangs aren't the only hungry team in the loop, however. Texas, Rice and the long-down-trodden Baylor Bears are all waiting the chance to ascend to the throne room.

In the Border conference, the Red Raiders of Texas Tech and the Cowboys of Hardin-Simmons should once again battle it out for the league championship. The Cowboys may try to better last year's record of three bowl games during the winter. Three-fourths of the dream backfield return to the Dallas campus, including two -time All-American Donk Walker, Kyle Rote and Dick McKissack will go around to help Donk in the going gets rough, but the team will miss Gil Johnson, the siltmax-passer. Johnson dropped out of college to join the process this season depends on how grid New York Yankees and his loss may cost the Mustangs their third straight crown. In the line the Mustangs will be weak at tackle and guard with very strong ends and center. Several times last season the S. M. U. forwards were outplayed by their opponents only to have their great backfield pull them through to victory. Whether the Mustangs will be able to repeat this year, without Johnson, remains to be seen.

Rice..... Jess Neeley will field an all-veteran club that has been waiting for two seasons to bring the conference crown to Houston. This may be the year.

The Owls will present the strongest line in the conference, backed by a great array of backfield talent, headed by Tobin Rote. In addition to this, the Owls are deep in reserves.

If the Owls develop their passing attack to the point where it is a definite threat, the team of Jess Neeley could win the crown without too much trouble.

Texas..... The Longhorns' success this season depends on how well Quarterback Paul Campbell selects plays. The blond signal caller left much to be desired last season, and as a result the Aggies lost three ball games.

The rest of the backfield will be good as veterans Ray Borneman, Randy Clay, Billy Fyfe and Perry Samuels return to the Austin campus.

The line will be huge, although a mite on the inexperienced side. If Campbell or Bobby Coyle can work that the Longhorns will be feared throughout the length and breadth of the cow country.

Baylor..... Adrian Burk and Dr. Parker should spark the Waco Bears to a high spot in the loop standings. In fact, the present Bear edition is a speed and power to make it a four-way race in the Southwest conference.

Burk, who is the most feared passer in the cow lands, could lead the Bears into a championship timber, especially since the Baylor lads are due to have a new line.

Texas Christian..... The Horned Frogs have plenty of ends, a good line and good power runs the line will be 225-pound Guard Ernest Kelly, while the backfield will boast a pair of Big Ponderails in Bill Chesak and Cordell McCraw.

The rest of the loop appears to be in the mediocre, although ARIZONA could surprise. Wildcat still have Charlie Hall to return, and while he is there Arizona is capable of pulling upsets. The NEW MEXICO Lobos have 20 letter-men returning and will be helped by line transfers but are still looking for a breakaway back.

WEST TEXAS has a good back in Bill Cross but may also find it tough to win without a good line.

The fifth in this series of articles will appear next week and will preview the football picture in the Midlands.

BENNING RETAINS TROPHY . . . Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burruss, left, commanding general of the Infantry Center, accepts the Third Army baseball championship trophy from Capt. James Walker, Doughboy manager. The Benningites won the trophy for the third consecutive year to retire the award. The ceremony took place in the general's office at the Infantry School.

Dough Gridders Get All Day Duty

The 50-man 1949 Doughboy football squad has been placed on 24-hour special duty until the date of their first game, against Eglin field, Fla., on Oct. 2.

Increasing their vocabulary of T-formation plays, the men will require more time to make these newly-adopted tactics successful than they had available under the 12-hour special duty routine. Another reason for the increase in practice time, according to Coach Mike Chester, was to beat the heat by working early in the morning and late in the afternoon.

The men will sleep and eat in the second canteen, temporarily attached to the Infantry School detachment.

In the meantime, practice has continued regularly, with the 1948 aspirants getting their first scrimmage last Saturday morning. Results were encouraging, according to Chester.

In the key position on the T-formation, quarterback will probably be Don Hemphill, a member of the 1948 team, then an end, who packs a hefty triple-threat punch with his passing, kicking and running.

Another outstanding possibility is Francis Williams, also an end on the 1948 Doughboys, who has proved his worth in both offensive and defensive play.

Unit Golfers Stage 2-Day Links Meet

The first battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, a Third Infantry division unit, has decided to do something about the lull in local golf activity since the Third Army tournament by staging an eleven battalion tournament at the Golf and Country club Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 3 and 4.

John Henion, past golfing champion and assistant S-3 of the battalion, has been acting as unofficial tournament manager, attending to the details of the meet. In addition to him, eleven other links hopefuls have a submitted entries. Henion has announced the Robert Blanchard, John Harris, Sam Overbell, James Ridenham, Edsel Underwood, Leonard McGinn, John Dancel, Joseph Matzlin and Jack Dancel.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up. The trophies consist of the figure of a golfer in gold mounted on a gold base.

T.I.C. Talks

Question For The Week: What suggestions do you have for decreasing the number of traffic accidents on the road? M-Sgt. G. N. GARRETT, Company C, Infantry School Detachment, seems to think that better placement of traffic signs might do some good. Maybe fewer signs more strategically placed would draw more attention. One sure thing—elimination of blind corners and blind drunks would more than cut the accident rate in half.

CPL. D. BERTRAM, Headquarters company, Third Infantry division, thinks that if more drivers would give the other drivers on the road the attention and respect they would give a poisonous snake, there would be fewer accidents. Many people put themselves in the position to have accidents without ever thinking about it—speeding, not looking where they are going and, of course, drinking. And drivers aren't the only hazard—pedestrians would you find such wild pedestrians?

CPT. J. URBANSKI, Headquarters company, Third Infantry division, after looking around and watching the cars go by, is a little surprised at the small number of accidents we do have. There are 100 cars in the total score. I have seen cars, taxis and buses packed-jammed with people on the post. It is that confusion behind him a driver would have to be a wizard to keep his eyes on the road. If they seem to manage fairly well—the people I am sure will have accidents never seem to.

BERTRAM URBANSKI

CAPT. L. W. HALEY, Staff Judge Advocate's office: "I haven't been on the post very long and consequently haven't had much opportunity to observe the traffic situation here. One thing I have noticed though is that the MP's at Fort Benning are very much on the job. Everywhere there is a great deal of traffic or a busy corner they are right there keeping traffic from becoming congested. It looks like a person would have to go out of his way to get into an accident, but I think some people do."

Sgt. J. F. MIXON, 27th Company: "Reckless driving by civilians or military personnel engaging in civilian activities seems to account for a large percentage of accidents—at least the ones off the post. People who drive carelessly are just asking for trouble and they shouldn't be surprised when they get it. For the most part I think the traffic situation on the post is handled very well. Greater emphasis on the use of hand signals by the drivers of privately owned vehicles is in order, I think."

HALEY MIXON

Gallons of Blood Given Red Cross

Twenty-seven gallons of rich red blood! ... were donated to the Red Cross mobile blood unit at Fort Benning last Wednesday and Thursday by volunteers from the 10th Engineer Battalion, 89th Field Artillery and the 78th Engineer Battalion.

During their time, their blood and, in many cases, their transportation, 217 men reported to the temporary blood bank in the hospital annex during the bloodmobile's monthly visit. Each man was given an examination by Dr. ... to determine suitability and general health before he was permitted to give his blood.

The blood is put in scientifically designed containers and kept in cold boxes until it is sent to Atlanta. Whole blood keeps only a short time, so the donations must be processed before they can be put in the permanent bank. Red Cross officials said: "The mobile unit will return to Fort Benning Sept. 20 and 21. The following men donated their help:

- Headquarters and Service company: ...
- Company B: ...
- Company C: ...

Lt. Richard Prouty Lawson Surgeon

First Lt. Richard Prouty had been named flight surgeon at Lawson air force base replacing Capt. Henry I. Langston who has left for a new assignment.

Lieutenant Prouty took a pre-medical training at the University of South Dakota and received his degree from Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md. He spent his internship at Mary Imogene Bassette hospital, Cooperstown, N. Y., majoring in internal medicine.

Before coming to Lawson the lieutenant attended an abbreviated course in flying medicine at the San Antonio Flight School of Medicine.

Benning Unit Gets Citation

The 665th Transportation Truck company, a unit of the 344th Area Service unit, has received a commendation from Col. F. E. Gillette, deputy commander of the recent ROTC camp at Fort Benning, for its outstanding assistance to the ROTC units during their training period.

According to Colonel Gillette, "all contacts between ROTC men and your headquarters were courteously and promptly handled. All transportation was furnished exactly on schedule and all convays were efficiently operated. In eight weeks of operation there was not a single instance of difficulty of any kind."

The colonel's communication was noted by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, commanding general of the Infantry Center, Col. Maurice L. Miller, commanding officer of the 344th, and Capt. Jack R. Singleton, commanding officer of the 52nd Transportation Truck battalion, all of whom added their personal congratulations.

STR Captain Appointed Regular Army Officer

Capt. John B. Demarcus, Headquarters company, Student Training regiment, has been appointed second lieutenant of infantry in the regular army, the Department of the Army has announced.

Captain Demarcus served with the 30th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, during the Italian campaign and wears the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. He also served with the First Infantry regiment in Korea from July, 1948, to July, 1948.

DIAMOND DRAGONS REWARD BATBOY... As members of the 15th Infantry regiment baseball Dragons look on, Capt. R. Keogh, team manager, presents Batboy Bobby Canis with a Dragon baseball jacket. Members of the team were presented jackets by Col. James F. Torrence, Jr., regimental commander, who congratulated the team on the fine record during the past diamond season.

IN PERFECT SHAPE... For having the best vehicle in the Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, Cpl. Sam Preston, Company M, is awarded a plaque by Maj. Clifford Couch, Jr., battalion commander. The plaque will be carried on Corporal Preston's jeep for the next month.

'GOLDEN ACORN' HONORED . . . At a reception given by the 30th Infantry regiment, in honor of officers of the 87th "Golden Acorn" Infantry division at Patton house in Sand hill, the gathering was addressed by a former 87th division commander, Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, standing left, commanding general of the Third division. The officers are members of the 346th and 347th Infantry regiments of the 87th, currently superimposed on the 30th Infantry for two weeks of active duty.

Colonel Stilwell To Be Decorated

Lt. Col. Joseph W. Stilwell, newly appointed commander of the First battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, will be presented the Air medal by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, tomorrow morning at a ceremony in General Clarkson's office.

The medal is being presented to Colonel Stilwell for his action while a member of the Northern Combat Area command in North Burma in 1944.

Colonel Stilwell was engaged in aerial reconnaissance over the North Burma frontier at the time of the action which earned him the medal.

Son of the late Gen. "Vinegar" Joe Stilwell, he has been in the army since 1929.

His first assignment was with the 20th Infantry regiment, then stationed at Fort Benning.

During his career, Colonel Stilwell has been service mostly in the Far East. He has also been stationed in Alaska and Canada and served with both the air force and the army.

In 1936 he was assistant intelligence officer with the 15th Infantry regiment in Tsientsin, China.

In World War II, he saw action in the China-Burma-India and the Asiatic Pacific theaters of operations.

In 1945 he attended the Army and Navy Staff college.

Foreign Officers From 16 Armies To Attend School

Twenty-six foreign army officers from 16 different countries will arrive at Fort Benning this week to be students in advanced course No. 2, which starts Sept. 8.

The officers who will attend course No. 2 and the countries they represent are:

'Golden Acorns' Finish Summer Training Here

Two weeks of summer training will end this week for the 87th "Golden Acorn" Infantry division, composed of reservists from Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The division, commanded by Brig. Gen. John D. Higgins, of Birmingham, Ala., has been superimposed on the Third Infantry division since its arrival here Aug. 21.

Reservists of the 87th have worked with their counterparts in the Third, participating in regular unit training and have witnessed demonstrations of simulated combat and artillery fire, including a special demonstration of "Aggressor Force" to point up new methods of intelligence training.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week the 87th worked out a map problem, planned by staff officers of the Third, for training in staff action and unit control. The first day was devoted to planning at the divisional level, with other units beginning actual participation on Tuesday.

Plans for the remainder of the 87th's training include a demonstration of infantry weapons in action.

In addition to training and pay reservists get points toward eligibility for retirement benefits for participation in reserve activities in home towns and at summer camp.

150 Pct. Increase In GED Testing

A report this week from Capt. Edward F. Grady, Infantry Center information and education officer, shows an increase of over 150 per cent in high school level general educational development tests in staff action and unit control. The first day was devoted to planning at the divisional level, with other units beginning actual participation on Tuesday.

Plans for the remainder of the 87th's training include a demonstration of infantry weapons in action.

In addition to training and pay reservists get points toward eligibility for retirement benefits for participation in reserve activities in home towns and at summer camp.

Dentist Is Appointed To Infantry Center

Col. Frederic H. Becker has been appointed dental surgeon for the Infantry Center, under provisions of a new army regulation making the senior dental surgeon directly responsible to the commanding general.

Colonel Becker has been stationed with the Station hospital since December, 1946.

30 Years of Service

M-Sgt. March Warshaw, Company M, 18th Infantry regiment, now has over 30 years service in the army and in the food service field as an army chef.

Advanced to corporal were Fulon F. Rivers, Walter E. Statham, James F. Edwards and Wayne O. Young.

Earl E. Baldwin, Nels A. Melke, Norbert H. Brueggem, Alton B. Burney, Frederick C. Campbell, Yoshiki Hazama, Robert G. Lahere, James R. Renshaw, Jay Zama and Mace Roberts were promoted to private first class, while Francis P. Freudenburg was advanced to private.

Army Foresees Overseas Delays For Dependents

The Department of the Army has published in table form a forecast of expected delay in overseas movement of dependents.

This table has been arranged to avoid as much as possible unnecessary hardship for families of military and civilian personnel who have received overseas orders or who have been alerted for overseas duty.

The forecasts have been made from estimates by overseas commanders based on past experience and the amount of new housing, if any, available.

The tables should be reliable, Department of the Army officials said, excepting such unforeseeable events such as unexpected change of assignment from one command to another, revisions in personnel policies or acts of God which may result in acceleration or delay of movement of families.

The forecasts will be revised and republished quarterly, according to army officials.

The tables of waiting time are based on time served overseas since 1941. Those with over 36 months previous overseas service will have the shortest wait, progressing to longer periods until those with less than six months service are reached.

The tables apply to officers, noncommissioned officers of the first three grades and civilians.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON... Lt. Col. Joseph W. Stilwell, Jr., commanding officer of the Second Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, right, is congratulated by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, upon receiving the Air Medal. Colonel Stilwell's father, the late Gen. "Vinegar" Joe Stilwell, was awarded the Air medal on the same order issued by the Department of the Army last week.

War Hero And Son Receive Air Medal

Father and son, the father a group of officers from the 30th war time American military Infantry and Third division leader famous for his exploits in India, Burma and China, the son carving out his own military career after serving under his father in World War II, were awarded the Air medal on the same order issued by the Department of the Army last Friday.

The late Gen. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, wartime commander of the China-Burma-India theater and builder of the strategically important Burma road, was awarded the medal posthumously. His son, Lt. Col. Joseph W. Stilwell, Jr., commanding officer of the Second Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, accepted his award from Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, at a ceremony held in the general's office last Friday.

The posthumous award to General Stilwell was accepted by Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell, 3433 Jax at the Presidio army base at San Francisco, Calif.

As a member of the Northern Combat area command in North Burma in 1945-44, then full Colonel Stilwell, Jr., distinguished himself by meritorious achievement while participating in sustained operational flights in Burma during the period of Nov. 1, 1945, to Aug. 2, 1944. These hazardous missions, performed under constant threat of enemy aerial interception and anti-aircraft fire, contributed materially to the successful accomplishment of the mission of the command and the defeat of the Japanese in North Burma. The exceptional courage, fortitude and unselfish devotion to duty displayed by Colonel Stilwell brings credit to himself and the armed forces of the United States.

Editorial Page Adds Feature

Bayonet readers will find a new feature on today's editorial page: News Briefs, a column designed to keep Bayonetites abreast of important national and world events.

This column will appear weekly in the spot formerly used by Murray E. Hill, American Red Cross director, to describe activities of the Red Cross.

The Bayonet is indebted to Mr. Hill for his timely and interesting articles, but because of the demand by readers for more news of the world we have been forced to discontinue his column. Mr. Hill will appear in the Bayonet once a month.

Baseballs will replace cannon balls at the Infantry Center next week when the first world-wide army baseball tournament gets under way at Gowdy field.

Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., Third Army commander, will throw out the first ball Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m., while Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander, looks on. General Clarkson will represent Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, who will be in New York city on that day.

A capacity crowd is expected to overflow Gowdy field for the opening game of the GI world series. Ten teams out of 13 army commands scattered around the world will be vying for the world championship.

All teams entered are champions of the commands they represent. Included will be Benning's own Doughboys, King Phillips outfit of Third Army for three straight years.

Other entries received at press time include Fort Monmouth, N. J. Signaleers; representing First Army; Camp Campbell, Ky., representing Second Army; Fort Belvoir, Va., representing Military District of Washington; Fort Lewis, Wash., representing Sixth Army; Eighth Army Chicks from Japan, representing Far East; Schofield Barracks from Hawaii, representing Pacific command, and United States Forces in Austria, representing European command.

Still to be heard from are Fourth and Fifth Army areas in the United States.

Plans call for an afternoon and night contest on Sunday, afternoon double headers and evening games for the remainder of the tournament.

The tournament will be a double elimination affair, which means that a team will have to

First Apartments Ready By October

The first 40 of 200 apartments in the Battle Park Homes project are expected to be ready for occupancy by Oct. 10, if construction continues as planned, it was announced this week by Lt. Col. William A. Luther, assistant G-1 of the Infantry Center.

Coupled with the announcement that the first apartments will be ready by October was a statement by the Infantry Center billeting office that applications for priorities for the new units would be accepted beginning tomorrow.

The office will receive applications from officers who are not living in public quarters, Infantry Center officials said.

Proposed priorities for the new homes as set up by Infantry Center officials are:

1. Medical and dental officers (does not include Medical Service troops or Medical Administrative corps)
2. Student officers, regular advanced class
3. Company grade, permanently assigned officers
4. Field grade, permanently assigned officers

Applicants for priorities should apply to the Infantry Center billeting office in the Infantry Center annex or at the billeting office in Columbus.

The office at Fort Benning will be open this Saturday morning to increase facilities for applicants, but the Columbus office will be closed, officials said.

On applying at the billeting office, officers will fill in a priority slip hearing pertinent information. The billeting officer will classify the applicant and sign the slip.

The applicant should then take his priority slip to the B. H. Harris Realty company, 18 Tenth Street, Columbus, Ga.

General Welcomes Advanced Classes

Better international relations as well as infantry techniques will be learned in advanced course No. 2 which began at the Infantry School this morning, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, said Tuesday morning.

In a welcoming address to 20 foreign students representing the armies of 16 different countries, General Burress stressed the value of learning to know and understand people from different parts of the world.

General Burress also welcomed the entire class this morning at 8 a.m., inviting them to take full advantage of the instructional and recreational facilities offered by the post.

A total of 200 officers are registered for the second part of the course which will last 39 weeks. The first section of the 1949-50 class started instruction on Sept. 1.

The schedule of instruction for the advanced courses includes classes in infantry weapons, communications, motor maintenance, airborne integration and general infantry procedure.

The two classes of approximately 400 officers and instructors will fly to Eglin air force base, Fla., Oct. 16-18 to attend infantry indoctrination course No. 11, in conjunction with the air indoctrination course, the Infantry School will present a combined annual demonstration for its students and observers on Oct. 13, 14, 27, 28 and 31 and Nov. 1.

Fort Benning personnel can claim a clean slate over the weekend which took the highest nationwide traffic toll ever recorded for a Labor day holiday.

During the weekend, which showed a complete blank for traffic injuries or deaths for Fort Benning, the total of 546 traffic fatalities was the latest national report.

The total fatality exceeded the 230 deaths predicted by the National Safety Council and marked the highest toll taken over the weekend in the nation's history. One-hundred and four additional lives were wonning and miscellaneous accidents.

In the state of Georgia, seven lives were lost as a result of traffic accidents and two deaths by drowning were reported for the state.

The safety council estimated that more than 30,000,000 drivers choked the roads over the weekend and it is expected that the final report will indicate a higher figure in fatalities.

Benning Adds Another First

Another famous first in the history of Fort Benning will be recorded next Sunday when Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr. throws out the first ball to open the first army-wide baseball tournament. The Third Army has been honored by being selected host for the first army-wide baseball championships in history, and it is therefore, proper that the most complete army post in the world be selected as the site of the tournament.

It is also fitting that this great championship tournament be played on Gowdy field, named in honor of Hank Gowdy, the first pro baseball player to enlist during World War I.

To the competing teams we wish to express the welcome of the entire post and wish it the good wishes of all Fort Benning personnel. We feel assured that the various committees selected to operate the tournament will make the visiting teams long remember the Infantry Center.

That a winning baseball club should be allowed to travel to a post such as Benning and to meet the cream of the diamond crop is a just reward for a successful season. The winner of the tournament will deserve and should proudly claim the title, "Champions of the Army."

During this great tournament, the main post will take on a gala holiday air as throngs enjoy games both day and night. A one-hundred-piece band will play for the fans' entertainment before and after each contest, and the spacious stands will likely be filled to overflowing. In addition to military personnel stationed here, thousands of civilians from nearby communities will probably view the games.

While on the subject of the tournament, let's look at it from the sportsmanship angle. Here is a tournament where not only the players but the fans alike will be judged for their sportsmanship. Not only is it unsportsmanlike for a team to use illegal tactics to win a game, it is also equally unfair for a group of spectators to deliberately "ride" a team or individual. This is especially true when a team may be playing thousands of miles from its home base and without benefit of its own fans.

It is possible for a team to win and yet lose, for it is more important to win the respect and admiration of your opponents than to win the coveted trophy. The scores in the tournament may soon be forgotten, but the character displayed by the individual player and spectators will long be remembered.

Result of Readers' Request

The Bayonet is happy to present on these pages today a new editorial feature which we are calling News Briefs. It is simply a compilation of the latest news events which we consider of interest to all, whether soldiers or civilians, and is another effort on the part of The Bayonet to give our readers what they want.

Introduction of the new feature follows a survey of Fort Benning troops at which time several were asked what they thought of The Bayonet. Everyone questioned apparently enjoyed the paper; but it was almost unanimous that some sort of news column be included in each issue since "there are many men here who never see any newspaper other than The Bayonet." News Briefs is The Bayonet's answer.

Other features which were added following surveys include To Amuse You Today, a humor column; the weekly pinup; TIC Talks, the enquiring reporter column; Report from Washington, the editorial page feature which reports on the latest legislation affecting servicemen; the official orders list, and On the Bookshelf, the weekly book review. Many other new features are in the planning stage, some the result of readers' requests.

The Bayonet is your newspaper and exists to serve you, the individual soldier. We welcome your suggestions.

The tomato was ruled a vegetable by the Supreme Court. Botanically speaking, it's a fruit (berry) along with beans and peas.

Concerning Appropriations and Investigations

HUMANITY AT WORK A New York city couple did what most of us dream of. They won a $15,000 prefabricated house on a 50-cent raffle ticket! The husband was a veteran studying optometry under the GI bill. Everything sounded wonderful until they discovered that it would cost nearly $1,000 to dismantle it and $500 to cart it away from the Manhattan street corner where it had been displayed. The couple, of course, didn't have that kind of money. An added headache was a $50 per day rent for the ground where the house was displayed. After having run up $800 in back rent, the couple got disgusted and sold it to a New York lawyer for $1,000. (The American Women's Voluntary Services which raffled off the home lost money on the deal too).

CONGRESS—The senate, this week, kept the house from adjourning by a vote of 58-25. It seems that congress will stay in session until long delayed bills are cleared up. Many representatives have already gone home, however. Appropriation bills totaling $14,900,000,000 are still facing congress including the military pay bill.

The British dollar crisis which has brought out vituperation from both sides of the Atlantic is at last being taken seriously. Realizing that a total collapse of British economy would critically weaken U. S. economy, a conference has been called for next week in Washington to try and find a way out for Britain. There are no indications this week what that way out will be or if any of the top men in the British and American governments have any idea how the Laborite Britons and capitalistic Americans will get along.

INVESTIGATIONS—The B-36 investigations gave its death rattle this week in the form of an abject admission by Cedric R. Worth, one-time navy commander, that it was all a hoax. The congressional hue and cry over the joint committee on atomic energy and its alleged "mismanagement" died to a whisper as no evidence of such mismanagement came to light. In fact, too few congressmen were on hand to create a quorum to end the hearings.

SPORTS—Mel Parnel of the Boston Red Sox became the first big league pitcher to win 20 games this year when they took an 11-4 victory from the Chicago White Sox. The Davis cup, coveted tennis trophy, remained in the possession of the United States for the third consecutive year when the U. S. team beat the competition from Australia in the singles, 4-1.

PRESS—The New York Post Home News started a crusade against gambling on professional baseball. The paper claimed there was a $33,000,000 a day gambling racket going on. Next day readers invited the editor to take a look at his own sports section. The Post was running "Today's Pitching Form"—"Official" daily gambling odds on the big-league games.

Report from Washington

Expect About 70 Percent Return from NLSI

By Armed Forces Press Service. While the formula by which the VA will compute individual payments in the $2.8 billion NLSI dividend due early next year has been ruled "too complicated" to be made public, a rough method of computation is that the war-service man of average age will receive approximately 70 per cent of the amount he paid in a premium.

Final action on the military pay measure looked promising in late August, but now appears subject to further delay because of house recess plans. Prospects now are for final action around October 1, the effective date of the proposed pay increase.

Official precedence of armed forces components in formations in which all participate has been established as follows: (1)—Cadets, USMA; (2)—Naval Midshipmen; (3)—Coast Guard Cadets; (4) Army; (5)—Marines; (6)—Navy; (7)—Air Force; (8)—Coast Guard; (9)—National Guard; (10)—Army ORC; (11)—Marine Corps Reserve; (12)—Naval Reserve; (13)—Air National Guard; (14)—Air Force Reserve; (15)—Coast Guard Reserve; (16)—Other training groups of Army, Marine Corps; Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard, in that order.

The air force will draw approximately 25,000 housing units of the 45,000 military units authorized for construction beginning in October. Construction will be started on all authorized family units by June 30, 1950.

Personnel enlisted in the army and air force under the combat-wounded recruiting program must reenlist within 30 days after discharge to fill their own vacancies, the services have ruled. Effective September 1, airmen other than combat-wounded must reenlist within 30 days to fill their own vacancies and retain their old grades. Army men will still be allowed 90 days to fill their own vacancies and retain their old grades.

Strength of the armed forces on July 31 was estimated at 1,616,600, an increase of 2,300 over June. The army was the only service to show a decrease, dropping to 658,500, a loss of 2,000. Airforce strength went to 421,500, an increase of 2,020 over June. Navy's strength July 31 was 421,500. Marine corps strength increased from 86,000 to 86,400. Outbacks in reserve officer strength, recently directed by Defense Secretary Johnson, will reduce future strength totals by 12,073.

Changes to regulations provide that inductees and 21-month men enlisted under the Selective Service law, who are eligible for hardship or dependency discharge, will not be discharged. Instead, they will be transferred to the Enlisted Reserve corps to complete the service term required.

Christianity Is Free Because Someone Paid

BY CHAPLAIN RALPH H. PUGH

Did you ever try to give something away? People are immediately suspicious. They dislike charity and they scorn anything that is second-hand. But if you have something to sell well, that's different. Make an offer. Here, this is $1.98 or this is only $99.98. Easy payments. Plenty of time. Pay as you go, etc., etc.

If you can make people think they are getting something fancy for a price, they will snap it up. Of course, you have to create a demand.

Christianity has been offered free for thousands of years, yet many people won't take it. Now if we charged initiation fees and dues, and had big blowouts every so often, maybe people would consider it an honor to belong. But it's free, so why bother with it?

How many people today ever consider that Christianity is free because someone paid a high price? It was bought and paid for by death and suffering. Is that high enough to sell you? Or did you ever consider the fact that Christianity is worth having? After all, it only concerns your immortal soul which is important regardless of what men can say. Isn't it time you stopped trying to buy happiness and accepted the free gift of God?

Remember, a fool and his money are soon parted, but God is always there.

To Amuse You Today
The Big Wheel by John Brooks, Harper and Brothers, New York, publishers.
BY D. W. SCHAEFER

"The big wheel run by faith and the little wheel run by the grace of God, a wheel in a wheel way up in the middle of the air."

Wheel's within wheels; signifying a mysterious situation in P. G. Wodehouse's Bertie and Jeeves stories. In the "Big Wheel" we find the significance fully explained.

Explained insofar as the purposes of this novel are concerned. In the opening chapters we meet Ed Masterson, editor of "Present Day" magazine, and are given a brief, clouded sketch of his character seen through the eyes of his cousin, Dick Peters, a young newspaperman.

Then we leave Masterson and don't see him again until the end of the book. Masterson, the big wheel on the magazine, had in his youth been on the defense panel of Sacco and Vanzetti during those infamous trials. He had sponsored a radical magazine and under pressure of his wealthy parents, gave it up only to become an alcoholic for two or three years.

Finally we are led to believe Masterson gets a new faith and integrity. We see all this, not through the man himself, but through the reactions and opinions of the people who work for him on the magazine and his cousin Dick Peters who has taken a job with "Present Day."

Masterson's integrity takes a peculiar shape. He evidently believed that if a man writing for his magazine did not believe in what he was writing about, that man was not wanted on the staff.

Since Masterson and his lesser editors passed on what would be written, it follows that his employees should think as he thought.

Masterson couldn't stand anyone not believing. When he found an employee didn't, he fired him. We cannot have the least sympathy for Masterson.

The theme of the novel seems to be "should a man be allowed to keep his occupation and his thoughts separate." Masterson thought not. Obviously, in the light of present day conditions, he is wrong.

The book seems to be a rather ineffectual combination of "The Hucksters" and "The Fountainhead". It lacks both the gossipy approach of "The Hucksters" and the thought and maturity of "The Fountainhead".

The big wheel run by faith and the little wheel run by... way up in the middle of the air is just where this novel leaves a reader.
It is not a good book, but it will probably become a mild best seller.

3440th ASU Group Meets For Season's First Party

Officers' and ladies of the 3440th Area Service Unit, Provisional group, including personnel of the 328th Ordnance battalion, 15th Quartermaster battalion, Transportation Truck battalion, Headquarters and Headquarters Police Sections I and II and the Food Service School, held an informal reception at the Officers' club last week during the regular Wednesday night buffet. The party committee made original plans for an outdoor affair, with tables set on the patio in a horseshoe pattern and assorted flowers used in effective floral arrangements. It rained, however, and the party moved indoors. Dinner was served from 8 to 9 p.m., and the group enjoyed

Girl Scout Council Meets Troop Leaders Tomorrow

The Girl Scout Council will meet with all troop leaders at the cabin tomorrow morning for coffee and to discuss plans for the various troops and their organization and Rally Day, scheduled for Sept. 16. The big Scout drive is on for leaders, as well as members. It is hoped that a large membership will be possible. Looking back over past accomplishments, the cookie sale program is of interest insofar as the part taken by the Benning Girl Scouts is concerned. One Brownie troop sold a total of 431 boxes during the nation-wide cookie sale last year. Miss Annie Louise Reeves contributed the sale of 33 boxes toward making this all-time high for her troop. Annie Louise is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Marion T. Reeves. She was awarded a complimentary Scout camp registration, and other Brownies of her troop were able to attend the summer camp at half price. Credit for this achievement is also due the troop leader who made this arrangement possible, Scout officials said.

Quartermaster Group Dinner

Officers and ladies of the Quartermaster department held a dinner party at the Officers' club, Saturday, August 27, with Lt. and Mrs. H. E. Peterson, hosts for the evening, in charge of party arrangements. The long table, set on the back porch, was attractive in its arrangement of two ornate five-branched candelabra holding tall pink tapers, with a center floral theme of seasonal flowers. Large crystal baskets, flanked by smaller bouquets. Appetites preceded dinner, and dancing followed later. Those attending included Col. and Mrs. Helmut E. Beine, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard J. Mays, Maj. and Mrs. Wade W. Hampton, Maj. and Mrs. G. M. Pollock, Maj. and Mrs. Don C. Romine, Capt. and Mrs. H. J. McDonald, Capt. Richard W. Parks, Jr. and Mrs. M. E. Meadows, Capt. Richard S. Rowan, Capt. Glen N. Scarberry, Lt. and Mrs. Edric Ankarstam, and the hosts.

Miss Jean Bullis, Lt. Repsher Married at Post Chapel

Miss Jean E. Bullis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Bullis of Rochester, N. Y., became the bride of Lt. Jerome J. Repsher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Repsher, of Shortsville, N. Y., Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock in the Infantry Center chapel. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale performed the wedding ceremony. The lovely bride, in a white tulle dress with black accessories, and her corsage was pink roses. The bride and groom were hosts at a wedding supper in the blue room of the Officers' club, following the ceremony. The couple left during the evening for a short wedding trip to Atlanta, and upon their return will reside at 1120 Benning drive. Colonel Lieutenant Repsher is assigned to Seventh company, Student Training regiment.

Miss Cutting Weds Lt. Tulin

Miss Lila Anne Cutting, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, became the bride of 2nd Lt. Irving Elliott Tulin, of Fort Benning, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, in the Infantry Center chapel. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale read the marriage vows before a small assemblage of friends of the couple. Two large white baskets of gold and bronze chrysantheums and yellow daisy mums, mixed with palm leaves and fern, stood at each end of the chancel rail. The altar was beautiful in its floral arrangements and candlelighting. Miss Jane Maria Cornstock, of Cheshire, Conn., attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore an ankle-length gown of gold and silver lace with matching corsage. The bride was lovely in a blue lace net afternoon dress. She wore a close-fitting black velvet hat and black accessories. She carried a nosegay bride's bouquet. 2nd Lt. Paul L. Savage attended the groom as best man. Lt. Tulin is with Seventh company, Student Training regiment.

Shirley Star As Doughs Trounce Bentley's 4-2

Sparked by the pitching and batting of "Big Jim" Shirley, the Fort Benning Doughboys won their 12th of 13 outings by defeating the Bentley's Sport Shop nine, 4-2, in an exhibition tilt last Monday at Gowdy field.

The Doughboys couldn't stop the Doughnuts from scoring twice in each of the second and third innings, but buckled down to hold the Bentley men unless for the remainder of the fray. Dough scoring started in the second when Woody Burt and Blondie Burnett, on base on singles, came home on a single by Shirley. Scoring continued in the third as Ralph Terry on base on an error, crossed the plate on a two-base knock into left field by Dave Barnes. Barnes then made it home as Woody Burt singled to die on base.

The citizens chalked up their two markers in the final frame as Bobby Bridges doubled and then crossed the plate on a single by Charlie Barnes. Joe Harrell hit a two-bagger to drive in Barnes before pinch hitter Heywood Furnage struck out to retire the side.

Joe Giglio started on the mound for the visitors. He struck out five Doughboys, walked three, and allowed seven safeties before being replaced by Earl McCellan in the eighth frame. Shirley fanned 15, gave up five hits and allowed six bases on balls to be credited with the win. Giglio was charged with the loss.

Burt and Shirley, each hitting two or three stars in the Doughboy batting bid, while Bobby Bridges led the visitors' hitting with two safeties for four hits at bat.

Two base hits, Harrell and Bridges, Dave Barnes.

Infantry School Linguist Leaves for Japan Soon

One of the most familiar figures of the Infantry School, Capt. Carlos Lozano, aide to Brig. Gen. J. S. Bradley, assistant commandant of the school, and official interpreter for visiting foreign dignitaries, has been transferred to the Far East command in Yokohama, Japan, it was revealed this week.

Captain Lozano expected to leave sometime this week for Mexico. At the age of seven he moved, with his mother, to Texas and later moved to Los Angeles. He quit school at 14 after finishing the seventh grade and worked at odd jobs which included being a food checker in a beach hotel at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Captain Lozano says school didn't do him much good, so at that time, because he was a "regular juvenile delinquent and played hooky every day." Deciding that he wanted to complete his education, he made up his mind to attend high school work at Santa Barbara State college.

He began studying pre-medicine but was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from the University of California in Berkeley, Calif. in 1941.

He was awarded a teaching fellowship in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at the university. He eventually went into the army, he eventually found his way to Fort Benning where his talents were most needed. Captain Lozano says that meeting foreign officers greatly improved his mastery of languages.

Tickets Go Fast For Guild Plays

Three Civio Drama Guild plays this winter are being sold out this fast. As expected, the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce reported today.

"Good seats are being rapidly exhausted and will be available for only a limited time," Jaycee President Euell P. Kirkland said. The way was opened this week for Columbus citizens to join the Civio Drama Guild. Membership in the season ticket to three plays and members will be offered the same seats for plays next season, said Bob McClure, general chairman, Guild committee.

At work handling ticket sales are Jaycees Porter Pease, Charles Gates, Frank Murphy, Jack Gibson, and Bob David, members of the Civio Drama Guild committee. Orders are being taken on a first-come, first-served basis. Telephone number 3-7224 in the Jaycee office at the Chamber of Commerce.

The plays this year are "Fair and Warner," Jan. 4, 1950, "Peggy and My Heart," Feb. 18, and "The Girl Who Came to Supper," March 12. The officers of the reserve regiments, who left Fort Benning the following day, have for the last two weeks been superimposed on the 30th Infantry regiment.

Uncle Sam Says

BE A MODERN 49'ER. OPPORTUNITY DRIVE. Major Marsh is leaving the 30th to attend the advanced infantry officers' class at the Infantry School.

Over 60 officers and ladies attended, as well as Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark, Third Infantry Division commander, and Mrs. Clark, and Col. J. W. Boone, regimental commander, and Mrs. Boone.

The reception rooms open to the guests were attractive in their floral decorations, and Mrs. Sackton's serving table, overlaid with an embroidered lace cloth, was centered with a beautiful bouquet of roses and gladioli in a silver bowl. Tall white tapered candelabra were placed at both ends of the table.

Footballers Hold Initial Scrimmage

Cocher Mike Chester's grid men held their first full scrimmage last Saturday on French polo field, and illustrated to a limited extent the power and deceptiveness which should help them to a successful season this year.

In spite of the fact the T-formation was newly installed this year, it has been taken to readily by the squad, and much progress appears to have been made.

Assisted by Coaches Canavan and Greenham, Chester has succeeded in changing the majority of the 19 aspirants from single-wing men to T-formation men no mean feat in itself, in addition to getting the men in good physical shape. This latter fact was evidenced by the complete lack of injuries sustained during the rugged scrimmage on Saturday morning.

A new crowdwork of deceptive T plays has been absorbed by the Doughboy eleven, which will be built upon from day to day until, by the date of the first game, Oct. 2, the team should be well versed in the grid tactics that have led Notre Dame and Army to top football positions in the nation.

General Inspects 3rd Division Unit

The Second battalion of the 30th Infantry regiment, commanded by Lt. Col. William J. Blythe, was inspected last Thursday in its bivouac area by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark, Third Infantry division commanding general.

He was just as Company F, commanded by Capt. Cecil M. Curlee, sent its last squad through the woods.

As the squad met with the combat situations provided by problems covered the course of the men's previous training.

At the end of the exercises, General Clark gave a critique of the squad's actions.

The battalion returned to Sand Hill Friday following five days in the field. The third battalion will begin its five-day bivouac early next week.

TO DO AGAIN. Above is a sample of application for national service life insurance dividends. Note that every applicable box is filled in. Probably the most important item on the application is your serial number which should be filled in Item No. 4. Be sure you also include your address, street, town and state.

Student Group Due Tomorrow, To Tour City and Fort Benning

College exchange students from 14 foreign nations will visit Columbus Friday, accompanied by four representatives from the University of Georgia.

The state commerce department is providing a tour of Georgia for eight foreign girls and 21 boys. A committee of leading Columbus citizens will roll out the welcome mat for the group and various civic organizations will provide entertainment.

Accompanying the foreign students will be two chaperones, Miss Dolores Artau of the University of Georgia faculty and Dr. Emmett McNair, Atlanta, state commerce department.

University of Georgia student representatives Raleigh Bryans and Pete Murray are also making the trip and helping drive the bus in which the group will travel.

Plans call for the students to tour Columbus and Fort Benning the group at a picnic at Evergreen at 7 p.m. and will arrange for students to spend Friday night and have breakfast Saturday in homes of members.

Countries which the students represent include France, Switzerland, Germany, Peru, Korea, China, Greece, Albania, Denmark and Puerto Rico.

JOHN E. BOGARDUS— The star hurler for the Pacific command nine who has won 12 and lost only three in tournament play with the Pacific team this season. Bogardus is a New Jersey boy whose home is in Jersey City. He has been playing army ball for years, and this season has struck out an even 100 so far.

Applications for Dividends Delayed By Many Errors

Applications for dividends due holders of national service life insurance, now available for veterans and servicemen, have been in an unestimated number of cases improperly filled in, it was revealed this week by the Veterans Administration office in Columbus.

The failure to execute properly the form will delay payments and in some cases may call for a resubmission. VA officials pointed out.

According to Joe R. Walters, head of the VA office, the most common error is a failure to read the instructions before filling in the service serial number in the line of boxes marked "enlisted," "officer" and "other."

Mr. Walters says that many merely write "yes" in the appropriate space. Others write in the date of enlistment without the serial number, he emphasized.

Another common error is to fill in the applicant's house and street address and then fail to list the town.

The block marked "Claim Number" has puzzled some applicants, Mr. Walters said. Only veterans who are receiving benefits, pensions, disability compensations or waivers of premiums for total disability have claim numbers. All others would simply write "None" in that space, he said.

The cards are also to be mailed without fastening, yet many applications have been received stapled shut, he added.

Many applications have also been mailed, Mr. Walters said, without the required one-cent stamp.

Post's Third Army Champs Await Army-Wide Tourney

As tourney time rapidly approaches, the Fort Benning Doughboys anxiously await their first call to action, and as they do we take a look at the 16 men who will carry Benning's hopes in the diamond classic.

JAMES L. WALKER, Firey manager of the Infantry School detachment, picked to lead the 1949 edition of the Doughboys because of his baseball knowledge and ability. Walker has piloted his men to their third consecutive Third Army title. The Walkermens throughout their short season have chalked up 11 wins as compared to 10 for the 1948 team. Walker is a native of Selma, Ala.

WALKER SILCOX Silcox IKE SILCOX. This tall hurler last season hurled the Infantry School detachment to the post diamond title and followed by leading the Benningites to the Georgia semi pro title, the Georgia-Alabama regional title and the Third Army crown. Transferred to the Airborne battalion this season, he heads the club annex the post loop title and then hurled two victories over the Fort Jackson, S. C. Red Devils to insure the Doughboys of the Third Army crown. Ike is a native of Knoxville, Tenn., and is attached to Company B, Airborne battalion.

MARTY KOSSOVER. Despite the fact that he pitched for a second division team in the post this season, Marty distinguished himself as a capable hurler and an excellent batter. With the post team, Marty has appeared in three games, winning one and losing one. He is a native of New York City and is attached to the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, of the Third Infantry division.

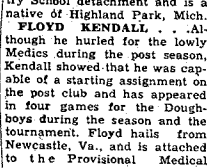

LETTY LEHNER. A mainstay on the Infantry School detachment team this season, Letty carried his hurling ability into the Third Army tournament where he pitched the post shut-out over the highly regarded Camp Gordon, Ga., nine. Letty is assigned to the Infantry School detachment and is a native of Phoenix, Ariz.

JIM SHIRLEY. Big Jim's bat and pitching ability was a major factor in the 15th Infantry regiment's second place finish in the post loop. Shirley was immediately selected for the post club and has appeared in eight games both as a pitcher and an outfielder. For the post team Jim has won two and lost none as a pitcher and is batting .412 as a hitter. Among his hits are a double, two triples and a homerun. Jim hails from Traveler's Rest, Ga., and is assigned to the Second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, one of the two Third Infantry division regiments on the post.

HAL GRINOLS. Hal is another of the 15th Infantry picked for duty with the post outfit. Hal has appeared in two games for the Benningites this year and in his first start pitched a five-hit shutout over Fort McPherson, Ga., to open has hit four doubles and a homerun to be a mainstay for the Benningites. Dave hails from Stony Creek, Va., and is attached to the 30th Infantry regiment, another of the Third Infantry divisions.

RALPH TERRY. "Bugs", as his teammates call him, had a great year during this past post diamond season. Terry led the loop for the second year in a row in the hits department, banging out 39. Ralph also paced the league in doubles, getting eight and sported a batting average of .375. For the post team Ralph has been batting

FLOYD KENDALL. Although he hurled for the lowly Medics during the post season, Kendall showed that he was capable of a starting assignment on the post club and has appeared in four games for the Doughboys during the season and the tournament. Floyd hails from Newcastle, Va., and is attached to the Provisional Medical group.

TOM GALLAGHER. Tom has been one of the mainstays of both the post and Airborne battalion diamond nines for several seasons now and is expected to be one of the spark plugs in the army-wide tournament. During the post season Tom batted .308 and has added to that an average of .345 while playing as a Doughboy. Tom is a native of Jersey City, N. J., and is with the Airborne battalion.

HERB LAUVE. Herb is one of the power hitters on the post team having blasted two round trippers during the recent Worlding with the 15th Prof. During the post season Herb is batting .308 and tied for the league leadership in homers with four. Since joining the post club Herb has been hitting only .244, but three of his 10 singles have been for extra bases. Herb is with Company H, 15th, and hails from Fort Arthur, Tex.

BOB KINARD. Bob played short for the Airborne nine during the post season but switched over to second base when the post team was formed. During the post loop campaign Bob led the league in runs scored with 32, batted in 15 runs and had an average of .337. Bob has appeared in 11 games, has been getting three doubles, four triples and a homerun in six hits. Kinard is with the 15th Infantry, one of the two Third Infantry division regiments on the post.

DAVE BARNES. Dave only has one game in the post loop schedule but his fielding ability caught the eye of Manager Jim Walker. Barnes scored once in his first start pitched a five-hit shutout over Fort McPherson, Ga., to open the Third Army tournament. As compared to 10 for the 1948 team, Walker is a native of Selma, Ala. Tourney Ruling Boards Name Gen. Gillem Head Committees and boards to ensure smooth operation of the army-wide baseball tournament being held at Fort Benning were selected recently, with Lt. Gen. Walter C. Gillem, Jr., commanding general of Third Army, named honorary chairman of the executive committee. These men are chairman, Maj. Ernest M. Layman, Jr., executive officer, Lt. Col. Robert M. Booth, publicity officer, Lt. Col. George G. Conner, director of instruction at the Infantry School, Maj. Andrew W. Peterson, officer in charge of the National League umpire of Tulsa, Okla., will act as honorary chairman of the board, assisted by Harry "Hank" Gowdy, former Benningite for whom the park is named, now with the Cleveland (Ohio) Indians.

15th Sets Dates Of Unif's Table Tennis Tourney

The 15th Infantry regiment will be represented in the coming Third Infantry division table tennis tournament which will be composed of winners in a regional tournament which will get under way Monday, Sept. 12. The tourney, ending Sept. 15, will be open to all officers and enlisted personnel of the 15th Infantry. All entries may compete in both the singles and doubles tables during tournament play.

For the division championship, the regimental team will include first, second, third and fourth place winners in the singles and doubles tables. The winners of the first and second place honors in the doubles matches.

Entry application blanks will be furnished by the S-3 section of regimental headquarters and must be submitted no later than 12 a.m. Sept. 7. The tournament will be held in Headquarters and room. First and second place winners in the singles and doubles matches will be given individual awards in addition to earning points on the regimental team. The tourney will be governed by the official rules for 1948 of the National Table Tennis Association.

Site Of Tournament Steeped In Tradition

It is only fitting that the first army-wide championship tournament be played on a diamond built by soldiers, dedicated to the promotion of army sports, and named for an step-father of a baseball great. Perhaps this is what Third Army athletic officials had in mind when a group of Doughboy hosts to the first tourney of its type in the history of the army, they decided on Gowdy field as the site of the momentous occasion.

Gowdy field, generally conceded one of the best diamonds in the country, was built in 1925 as the result of a two-fold project. The scheme started out to be the construction of a football stadium to be built and dedicated as a monument to the American Doughboy, the infantryman of the United States Army. But as an afterthought it was decided that a baseball park would also be constructed.

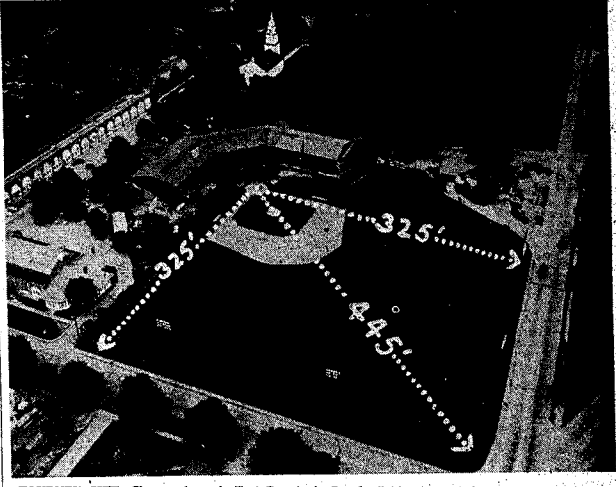

Since no official history or records exist, information concerning the project was obtained from a few old timers who are still at Fort Benning or in Columbus. In tracing the history of the field lead came from E. Edwin Farley, presently engaged in the real estate business in Columbus. Mr. Farley at that time directed the army YMCA for colored troops in Columbus which was the only one of its kind in the world at that time. Through him it was learned that 1st Sgt. Richard Collins, now with Company A, Infantry School detachment, was a member of the 24th Infantry regiment, the unit which provided the labor for the construction work. And in turn, through Sergeant Collins it was learned that many officers now stationed here were also here at that time.

This information started a chain of references that led to interviews with Col. Joseph A. Nichols, Infantry Center chief of staff, Col. George Conner, director of instruction at the Infantry School, Maj. Andrew W. Peterson, officer in charge of the National League umpire of Tulsa, Okla., will act as honorary chairman of the board, assisted by Harry "Hank" Gowdy, former Benningite for whom the park is named, now with the Cleveland (Ohio) Indians.

Bilko, Derry Are All-Stars

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS)—Third baseman Gene Mariani is the only member of the pennant-headed Buffalo Bisons to make the mythical International League all-star nine for '49, selected by the loop's baseball writers. Joe Becker, who piloted Jersey City to the first division with a record that has been labeled "cellar," was chosen manager. Other top choices: day the park received the official name, Gowdy field. The park became the namesake of the man who has been known as Hankus Pankus, Old Goldenrods and Old Sarge because he was the first professional baseball player to enlist in World War I. Gowdy broke into pro ball as a catcher in 1908 in the Ohio State league. Columbus, O., is his home town. He rose rapidly to major league fame as a member of the New York Giants and the Boston Braves. He was the greatest catcher in the history of the "Miracle Braves" of 1914, the team which came up from the cellar on July 4 of that year to win the pennant, and then go on to win the Athletics in a four straight World Series games. Hank caught all four of the games in that series and turned out to be the series hero by hitting the incredible average of .545 for the series. This record has been broken by only one man, the immortal Babe Ruth. In the ceremony dedicating Gowdy field, General Wells delivered the dedicatory order following the raising of the flag. Dr. S. V. Sanford head of athletics for the state university of Washington responded for the Georgians saying in part, "It is particularly fitting that two of the greatest catchers in the annals should meet here today to dedicate a field which has been named in the cause of good, clean sport."

TOURNEY SITE—Shown above is Fort Benning's Gowdy field, scene of the army-wide baseball tournament beginning Sept. 11. The seating capacity at the ball park is 4,800, due to recent additions.

March 31 became Gowdy day and in another colorful ceremony Hank Gowdy ran up the flag bearing the words "Gowdy Field" following which the infantrymen of Fort Benning presented him with a handsome silver service trophy. The ceremony was highlighted by a game between the World Champion Washington Senators and the New York Giants. Gowdy was chosen pitcher for the Washington team and was a beautiful Sunday around the park completely encircling the outfield, and 10,000 spectators enjoyed the rites and the baseball.

Since then thousands of flycatchers and swatters have come and gone. Many got their start at Gowdy field, a start that came with a bang and a professional baseball team established

Midland Conferences Ruled By Oklahoma Clubs

Oklahoma will be the name feared throughout the Midlands this season as both the Big Seven and the Missouri Valley conferences await the thunder of Oklahoma powerhouses. The Oklahoma Sooners show no signs of altering despite the loss of several key veterans while the Aggies of Oklahoma A&M should field one of their strongest teams in recent years.

THE BIG SEVEN—A big fast line and a tricky backfield will probably make the Sooners the favorites in the Big Seven. Last year's Sugar Bowl champions lost Quarterback Jack Mitchell, but have switched Half Back Darrell Royal to the under center spot with no apparent loss. The half-back slot will be capably filled by Lindell Pearson and George Thomas. This talented pair accounted for 1,403 yards and 17 touchdowns last season. Leon Heath, a junior, is rated as one of the all-time Sooner fullbacks.

The line will be anchored by two All-America candidates in the persons of Wade Walker, tackle, and Jimmy Owens, end. Capable reserves round out the squad that will probably be in a bowl on Jan. 1.

MISSOURI VALLEY—Coach Don Faurot is still looking for a quarterback to run his T and will probably have to settle for Marston Sauer. If Sauer develops, the Tigers may be tough on the attack.

Defense will be the problem of the moment, however. The Tigers weren't too strong that department last year and were weakened further by graduation. A tough early season schedule will probably hurt the Mizouls but they will be rough come November.

KANSAS... Kansas will probably have the best attack in the Big Seven, especially through the air, but may leave much to be desired on the defense.

Passer Dick Gilman and Line-Smashers Bud French and Forrest Griffith will pace the attack.

guard, will be the standout on the defensive forward line.

NEBRASKA... The T formation has been installed by Yearling Mentor Bill Glasford but may not become a winning system for several seasons.

Sixteen of Nebraska's 21 returning lettermen are linemen. Led by Charles Toogood, tackle, and Center Tom Novak, the front wall will be tough, but a lack of experienced backs will probably leave the Cornhuskers way down in the conference standings.

COLORADO... Dallas Ward's Buffaloes may be the surprise team of the loop in their second conference year. A real triple-threat back named Harry Narcisian may be the man to lead the Silver and Gold to the top of the heap.

A good line, led by Captain Ed Pudlik, will be able to hold its own with any team on the Burff slate.

IOWA STATE... Twenty-five lettermen return to the Ames campus and will form the nucleus of Coach Abe Miller's team. The Cyclones will be two deep and pack enough weapons to dent the armor of their conference foes.

KANSAS STATE... The Wildcats have gone four years without a win in conference play and may have to taste the bitter taste of defeat for still another season. The Cats will rely on an almost all-sophomore club with the exception of Fullback Gerald Hackney.

THE MISSOURI VALLEY... Oklahoma A&M Aggie fans are chanting the victory song again at Stillwater. Jim Lookabaugh's squad won six out of four last season and are almost certain to improve this year.

The brightest star in the Cowpokes' backfield will probably be Bill Grimes, 190-pound genius half-back, who is rated as one of the best all-around performers in the section.

Charles Shaw and Darrell Meisner, the Aggies have a tough go through unbeatens.

DETOIT... Coming into the conference for the first time, the Cardinal and White Titans will lead his string of contenders to out on the rule of Tulsa and Oklahoma A&M.

Coach Chuck Baer calls Tackle Tom Fannin "unconditionally the finest player I have ever coached" and if Fannin can keep up with his studies he may lead the Titans to the title on their first try.

WICHITA... The Shockers lack the all-around ability of the Aggies and Titans but will probably be able to hold their own on the offense. Fullback Milan Morovich, 200-pound speedster, paces the backfield under Ray Morrison, Jimmy Nutter and Hap Houlik.

TULSA... Twenty lettermen return from the squad that last year dropped 10 straight games. The Hurricane lost Jim Pinks, star quarterback, but hope to place him with Leonard Makowski. The Tulsa team will be strongest at the flanks and center but lack depth at the tackles and guards.

DRAKE... Rated as the dark horse in the conference, the Bulldogs have a good chance to go unbeaten.

Hardly a single sophomore is rated a chance to crack the veteran studded first three teams. LOUISIANA, 6-2, 215-pound end, is a top All-America candidate.

TEXAS... Brave warriors aren't expected to go on many raiding parties this fall. BRADLEY, 6-2, 215-pound end, is a top All-America candidate.

Next week the last in this series of articles will preview the gridiron picture on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Goss Wins Medalist Honors

Mrs. Frank Goss, medalist, won her first round match in the Columbus Country club-Fort Benning Inter-Club golf tournament yesterday on the Fort Benning links by defeating Mrs. D. P. Buckland by a 3 and 2 score.

Second round matches are booked for today over the Columbus Country club course, starting at 9 a.m., with contestants having all-day to complete play. Third round matches will also be played at the local club, with the final booked for Friday over the Fort Benning course.

The shortest match of the day was that in which Mrs. Irene Curuss trimmed Miss Sandra Shears by a 3 and 1 margin.

Other first round matches in the championship flight follow: Miss Peggy Pease won over Mrs. Louise Snyder, 4 up; Mrs. Eugene Brown turned back Miss Bee Bee Smith, 7 and 6; Mrs. R. B. Hill defeated Mrs. Charlene Roney, 7 and 6; Miss Patty Haskins beat Miss Mary Lou Ilges, 6 and 5; Miss Betty Gaine won over Mrs. Toni Pagano, 2 and 1; and Mrs. Katy Landon defeated Miss Mildred Fortie, 6 and 5.

In the second round matches, Miss Dea Jones won over Miss Benning Burdard, 6 and 5; Mrs. Betty King defeated Mrs. Tudy Caldwell, 5 and 4; and Jane Pound and Juliet Struss drew byes.

Second round matches today are: Championship flight, Mrs. Goss vs Miss Pease, Mrs. Brown vs Mrs. Hill, Miss Haskins vs Mrs. Curuss, Miss Gaine vs Mrs. Landon.

First flight, Mrs. Buckland vs Mrs. Snyder, Miss Smith vs Mrs. Roney, Miss Pagano vs Miss Fortie.

Second flight, Miss Jones vs Miss Pound, Miss Burrus vs Mrs. King.

Slaughter Gains On Robinson

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 — (AP) — Erno Country Slaughter, of the St. Louis Cardinals, is stirring up quite a fuss in the National League's individual batting race.

Slaughter's throwback to Cardinal Gas House Gang days of 1934, is seriously challenging Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson for the title.

Robinson is only six points in front of Slaughter, Jackie is moving at a 349 gain, including games of Labor Day. Slaughter is hard on his heels at 342.

Dons Ask Waivers On John Donaldson

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7 — (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers today asked waivers on John Donaldson, former University of Georgia halfback.

Donaldson, who played with the Bulldogs last season, had been with the professional Dons since the opening of fall practice.

Post Linksters Renew Ladder

Qualification rounds for position on the new golf ladder began last week with 36 holes of medal play at the Golf and Country club.

John Henion, last year's post champ, maintained his hold on the top rung by bringing in a 141 for the best score. He was followed by George Hardgrave, in second place with a 145, and Arnold Hoebecke, in the No. 3 spot with a 145.

The top ten, in order, are Arthur Gottlieb, L. W. McGruder, Robert King, R. S. Graham, Bernard Scherer, Daniel Buckland, Donald Landon, Claude English and William Coughlin.

The ladder will work as it has in the past. A man not on the ladder may challenge any player on it and take that player's place if he defeats him. If he doesn't win, he will start at the bottom of the ladder and work his way up from there.

Any man on the ladder may challenge the man one or two brackets above him, moving into his position if he defeats the

Colonel Moore Takes Over 15th at Review Tomorrow

COLONEL DENNIS M. MOORE . . . Commands 15th Infantry Regiment.

5 Digit Phone Numbers Here

That alternating, and somewhat snide sounding buzz which signifies a busy telephone line is on its way out for approximately 450 phones in the main post and Lawson air force base area, according to a recent announcement by Maj. Thomas P. Ross, Infantry Center signal officer.

The estimated 650 telephones will have five digits in their numbers instead of the four now used.

This, according to Major Ross, will add switching facilities to the system and eliminate the busy signal received after dialing the first number.

New equipment for the five-digit numbers will go into operation at midnight Sept. 11. Directors incorporating the new numbers are being distributed, and Major Ross advises that no attempt should be made to dial the new numbers until the midnight opening.

Col. Dennis M. Moore, recently appointed commander of the 15th Infantry, will be honored at a regimental retreat review at 5 p.m. tomorrow on French field.

The First Second, Third and Provisional battalions will participate in the parade, and Lt. Col. R. M. Blanchard will be commander of troops.

All officers of the regiment have been invited to a reception at the Polo Hunt club immediately following the parade to meet Colonel and Mrs. Moore and their daughter.

Colonel Moore came to the 15th Infantry from the office of the assistant chief of staff, the Infantry Center, where he occupied the G-2 position. He has been on duty with Headquarters, the Infantry Center, since the past three years.

He was a member of the 1924 class at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., and attended the Infantry School and the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Colonel Moore served with the 15th, 20th, 24th and 57th Infantry regiments and was an officer of the 15th for three years, (1930 to 1933) in Tientsin, China. Upon his return from China he served with the Second division from 1933 to 1940.

In 1940 and 1941 he served with the Philippine division at Fort McKinley, Philippine islands. Later he served on the staff of the 15th Infantry at the Philippine corps.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star.

Colonel Moore's successor at G-2 of the Infantry Center has not been announced, but Lt. Col. Robert J. G-3 is acting G-2 in addition to his other duties.

Question for the Week: Where were you on V-J day, Sept. 2, 1945?

SGT. DON A. EVERHART, 15th Infantry regiment, was in Heston, France, working in a redeployment depot on the Green project. He and soldiers home by air. I had come down to be sent home myself and they "ricked" me and put me to work. We didn't get a chance to do much celebrating though since we were in a little town miles away from everywhere.

EVERHART DRINKARD CPL. C. DRINKARD, 15th Infantry regiment, was with the 58th Infantry division, Second Infantry division, in Pelain, Czechoslovakia, when the news came through. Naturally we were glad but there was not much celebrating in our section. There weren't many places to go and besides the fall of Japan didn't mean much to the average G.I.

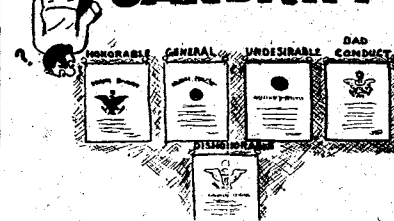

PFC. GEORGE E. LINDSEY, 15th Infantry regiment. We were on a boat—just three days out of Tokyo and, if you think we were a happy bunch, well, everyone on the ship went hog wild. Some of the guys even threw their rifles and duffel bags over the side, in their excitement. The whole place was in an uproar.

LINDSEY RIGGINS SGT. W. A. RIGGINS, Company C, 15th Infantry regiment, was at the states at Camp Livingston, Infantry Training Center in Louisiana. Most of the men there had been overseas and hoped that V-J day would keep them from having to go back. Everyone had a holiday, and the celebrations were something no one could forget in a hurry.

SGT. 1ST CL. JOSEPH E. STANCEL, Company C, 15th Infantry regiment: "We had just landed in Maine from Glasgow, Scotland. I had been serving with the Second Infantry regiment, Fifth Infantry division, in and around Europe. I and a couple of my buddies, who were about to get out of the army, just took off and went out and celebrated along with some of the local civilians. Most of all we talked about going back to civilian jobs now that it was all over—and look at me now."

STANCEL KILPATRICK CAPT. CHARLES W. KILPATRICK, 15th Infantry regiment, was in a fox hole in an outpost of the 122nd Infantry on Luzon. The battalion CO called a general order and it was ordered. At the time I thought it was a poor joke and told him so. As you can imagine, they went over big. He finally convinced me, but no one convinced the G.I.s. They went on fighting for another 10 days."

Jobless Thousands Caused By Dishonorable Discharge

EDITOR'S NOTE: In keeping with this week's Armed Forces Talk, which deals with the different types of discharge, 2nd Lt. Leo Parent, of the Infantry Center public information office, has prepared a special article on the subject.

No words can describe the mental anguish of the men and their families saddled by this burden. An indication of their feelings is evident in some of the pitiful letters written by dependent discharges.

The Discharge Review boards of the army, navy, and air force receive daily letters from ex-servicemen expressing the hopeless attitudes of men who were dishonorably dismissed.

"Because of a little indulgence in liquor I was discharged with a blue certificate. This of course, makes every unpleasant for me due to the fact that I have two sons who were very proud of me, but I am ashamed to show them these papers. You will understand how hard it is for me to get any respectable employment which is another issue with me. Also would appreciate it if I could obtain a soldier's pin and mustering out pay."

What can be done for this man, you ask? He obviously has been let and realizes how wrong he was. The tragic truth of the matter is that nothing can be done if the review board decides that the man was fairly convicted. This man, like thousands of others, must live out the rest of his life haunted by the mistakes committed during his military career.

Regulations state that the purpose of a discharge certificate is to record the character of separation of an individual from the military service and to specify the character of military service rendered by the individual during the period of service covered by the discharge.

There are five types of discharges issued by the armed services: honorable, general, undesirable, bad conduct and dishonorable.

The honorable discharge is given only to those whose character ratings are at least "very good," and whose efficiency ratings are at least excellent. Moreover, the discharges must not have had more than one conviction by a special court martial (army or air force) or a summary court martial (navy).

Servicemen who are separated under honorable conditions but who cannot meet the foregoing requirements are given a general discharge.

The undesirable discharge is given (1) in cases of fraudulent enlistment, (2) sometimes to physically unfit deserters, (3) to deserters from the Spanish American war or World War I, or to peacetime deserters who have not been tried because too long a time has passed, (4) to individuals convicted by a civil court of a criminal offense and (5) to those declared unfit for military service.

Tourney Benningites Win In Net Tourney

Three teams are scheduled to arrive today. Fort Belvoir's Engineers are due in on the Man O' War at 2:05 p.m. Columbus Eucom is scheduled to arrive by plane at Lawson air force base, as are Mountaineer's Signaleers, the latter at 4 p.m.

Music for all games will be supplied by the 72nd Army and Third division bands, a combined total of more than 100 top-flight musicians.

A welcome banquet for all players is scheduled for Saturday night. The menu, shrimp cocktail, celery, pickles, olives, steak, french fries, string beans, hot rolls and butter, apple pie a la mode, coffee, tea, milk, soft drinks, punch, topped off with cigars and cigarettes.

Among important guests to attend the opening day pageant is Hank Gowdy, the southern, Boston named after Gowdy in 1925 when he was signed by the Boston Red Sox. He is the only professional baseball player to enlist in World War I. Gowdy returned to the military service during World War II, was commissioned a major and served as chief of the Infantry Center, the only living person to have a Fort Benning landmark named for him.

Other distinguished guests expected for the tourney are Maj. Gen. William H. Hertz, chief of special services, Department of the Army, and George E. Barr, who will act as honorary umpire-in-chief. Maj. Oscar W. Eustice, acting chief, sports branch, Army Recreational Service, will officially represent General Hertz.

The following have been appointed as members of a base committee to be headed by General Gillem and will render decisions in case of protests: George Barr, chairman and honorary member, respectively being Lt. Col. R. Wright, Jr., Lt. Col. John H. Hinkle, Lt. Col. Henry M. Clifton, and Capt. W. C. Burdette. Francis P. Sweeney, Capt. Clifton A. Wright, and 1st Lt. Howard B. Smith, Jr., are also members of the executive committee in charge of arrangements.

Members of the executive committee include Maj. Ernest C. Gillem, Jr., honorary chairman; Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burdette, chairman; Maj. Gen. W. C. Clark, Brig. Gen. Robert C. Hill, Col. Maurice L. Miller, Col. Alvin E. Weisz, traffic; Lt. Col. G. C. Cronk, Lt. Col. Roland Burford.

Col. Allan M. Cory heads the operations committee. Other members include Maj. Ernest C. Gillem, Jr., Lt. Col. Robert M. Booth, programs and publicity; Lt. Col. Alvin E. Weisz, traffic; Lt. Col. Henry M. Clifton, entertainment and awards; Maj. John E. Olson, distinguished guests; Maj. Elmer J. Ricker, mess and housing; Capt. Robert L. Kline, transportation; Capt. Richard E. Rinkotter, maintenance, and 1st Lt. Irving Levine, entries and special awards.

All games will be open to the general public. One thousand advance tickets have been distributed to boost the seating capacity of Gowdy field to 3,000. Civilian and business leaders of the Third Army area have been extended special invitations. No admission fee will be charged. An innovation for the tournament will be the flushing of far-flung corners.

Benningites who played in two Net Tourney open tennis tournament held here Sept. 2-5, emerged the winners as are Mountaineer's Signaleers. Richard Collins defeated Richard Haskins of Columbus in the first round, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0 and 6-4 for the first trophy captured by a Benning neeman.

This was followed by Benningite Charles Hubert's winning the other half of the men's doubles matches. In the men's doubles final, Hubert and partner, Rudolph Hines of Columbus, defeated Collins and E. Edwin Farley also of Columbus. Hines and Farley and E. Edwin Farley also of Columbus, 6-2, 4-4 and 6-2. In the mixed doubles, Hubert and E. Leslie Abbott of Tuskegee, Ala., instead defeated their opponents, Mildred Hubert and Rudolph Hines both of Columbus, 6-2 and 6-1.

It is a Abbott had previously won over Miss Allen in the women's singles, 6-2, 8-6 and 6-1. Twenty-four entries in all, from Tuskegee Institute, Atlanta, Ga., Columbus and Fort Benning vied for local honors in the four-day tournament.

The tourney goes under Friday afternoon with the men's singles and doubles.

After the tournament, the winners and runners-up were congratulated by Maj. Henry G. Daugherty, commander of Section II, the 3400th Area Training Unit, who represents them with their trophies in the NCO club lounge.

Benning's Men From Mars Are Hollywood-Style Stars

The "men from Mars" are movie stars in Fort Benning's Hollywood-style film productions.

For Fort Benning has gone in to the moving picture business to make training films on the effective use of the infantry in warfare to be used at schools throughout the army.

In the Fort Benning productions, lieutenants play privates, sergeants are captains and generals are practically nonexistent. You can't tell the players without a script.

These movies are strictly bargain productions, for they are made without fancy costumes, for the most part, and no make-up or scenery either. (In addition they are made without women.)

Actors are usually typical soldiers taken from units on the post such as the 15th and 10th Infantry regiments, the 39th Field Artillery Battalion, the 3rd Heavy Tank Battalion and the 10th Engineers Battalion.

The production units are composed of civilian employes of the Signal Corps Photographic Center at Long Island City, N. Y., and include all the technical members of a Hollywood crew—directors, cameramen, property men and electricians. Professional actors for special parts, Infantry School instructors, experts in their subjects and technical advisors for the films.

Movie making in the wilds of Fort Benning has been a hard job for all members of the training film company will agree as they usually extend the hours and are billeted with no room and no food, and again, as the stops for five minutes while the camera is being hauled down a creek that is running havoc with the sound track.

Fort Benning's actor crew is fast becoming familiar with all the tricks of the Hollywood trade. The moving camera for alternate close-ups and all-inclusive shots and the use of that old stand-by "camera lunge" used to hide movie equipment and camera tracks. With the "Clack!" of the sticks on top of the production information slate and the cameraman's "Let 'er roll!" the men are on a battlefield, winning a war in the infantry way.

Dramatic scripts are originated and outlined by personnel of the Infantry School and are written and polished up by professional script writers.

Scenery consists of Georgia pines and underbrush and the hills and dells and hidden gulches that have made Fort Benning such a popular place for field problems.

Like the Hollywood production the local films have "rushes" or early showings of the pictures to participants in the shows. The pictures are returned to the post for checking before they are re-produced and distributed.

Dummies and catsup blood are used in the mock wars to give realistic look to casualties, and one of the main jobs of the property men is to keep the props of army of plastic and sawdust soldiers in "fighting condition."

None of the silent actors can afford to have a chipped nose or a fractured face.

The sound man's problem is no small one. He must have no un-warlike noises on the sound track. A low-hanging airplane flying over the training area and 10 or 20 feet of film will have to be shot over a "shooting area" to keep motor vehicles from intruding on the "set" and drowning all other sound out.

The constant booming of the guns on post ranges serves as a final background sound effects for the battle scenes.

The in-again, out-again Georgia cameraman keeps the cameraman constantly on the alert because a flickering light and dark pictures in the scene in a movie would look hiccupy and unreal. Reflectors covered with tin-foil aid the cameraman in making the most of the available light.

The director, of course, coordinates the whole business, seeing that all components know their jobs.

The picture now under production is "The Attack of a Fortified Position." It is the seventh picture made at Benning so far this year.

Eleven Recon Men Earn Promotions

Eleven enlisted men of the Third Reconnaissance company, Third Infantry division, were promoted Aug. 29, it was announced this week.

Promoted to master sergeant was Sgt. Frank O. Mitchell, and the following sergeants were advanced to sergeant first class:

Richard N. Howard, William H. Keucke, Paul T. Nedorovich, Gordon L. Saine and Robert Smith.

Three corporals were promoted to sergeant. They were James A. Coyle, William E. King and Joel C. Newberry.

At the same time Pfc. Donald C. Wederholt was promoted to corporal and Cpl. Robert G. Norton was advanced to the grade of sergeant.

Uncle Sam Says

During the years America was growing up, Grandma hid her savings in the old crockery in the tin canister, or even that old horse-hair mattress. This was the hard way to save and lose. Today we have many things to build these savings sometimes came to naught. Thieves, fire or other hazards wiped out her savings in a jiffy. Today we have the finest and surest way ever invented to build security for the future—the U. S. Savings Bonds and this means you can put aside every pay check and still earn by signing up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or sell your bonds through the Monthly Plan where you bank. Either way you get back $4 for every $3 invested in just ten years.

Two Receive Bronze Stars During Retreat Ceremony

Two members of Headquarters and Headquarters company, Student Training Regiment, received Bronze Star medals at a special retreat ceremony held in the regiment's headquarters area last week.

Receiving the awards from Col. Sever R. Tupper, regimental commander, were Cpls. Robert W. Vanderpool and Winston A. McQuail.

The medals were awarded for "intrepidly in action against the ground forces of the armed enemy" during World War II.

Corporal Vanderpool was with the 11th Infantry regiment, part of the Fifth Infantry division, in Europe during the Normandy and North France campaigns in 1944 when he performed the action which won him the medal.

Corporal Vanderpool is also authorized to wear the Purple Heart medal, Good Conduct medal, Combat Infantryman's badge, European theater ribbon with two battle stars, American theater ribbon, American Defense ribbon and World War II Victory medal. He has been in the army six years.

Company G, 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment, arrived here Thursday from Fort Bragg, N. C. to replace Company B, 1st Airborne Infantry Regiment, as demonstration troops for the Infantry School.

Company G, under the command of Capt. Frank J. Martine, consists of 178 men and five officers. The group is quartered in the Lawson air force base area and will be at Fort Benning for three months.

Capt. Nicholas Saki, is commanding officer of Company G, which returned to Fort Bragg last week. The outfit had been stationed at Fort Benning since last November.

Awards Received For High Scores Recorded Concert Set for Tuesday

Six members of the 18th Engineer Battalion received checks from Maj. Walter D. Andrews, commanding officer, for a week for highest scores on the M-1 rifle in the battalion and company competition held recently.

Sgt. Dewey H. Lane, Company C, won the battalion first prize of $10 with a score of 193. He also collected the five-dollar prize for having the highest score in his company.

Pfc. George D. Lazauskas won the $7.50 second prize in the battalion with a score of 192, and Pfc. Edward P. Modelmog won the five-dollar third prize on the battalion level.

Company prizes of five dollars each went to Pfc. William H. Gier, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 177; Cpl. John H. Rhodes, Jr., Company A, 188; Sgt. Joe Donaldson, Company B, 186 and Sergeant Lane, Company C, 192.

Sergeant Lane, top man in both battalion and company competition, has been at Fort Benning since 1924. He was one of the original group of 20 which were still the M-1 rifle when it was still .27 caliber.

The music of Saint-Saens and Dvorak will be featured on the regular Tuesday night record concert at the Main library scheduled for Sept. 13 at 8 p.m.

The program will open with Dvorak's Concerto in B Minor for cello and orchestra, featuring Gregor Zlatigorsky, cellist, and the Philadelphia orchestra conducted by Eugene Ormandy.

The second part of the program will be Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C Minor, op. 78 (with organ), featuring E. Niemann on the organ with Charles Muench conducting the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra of New York.

Boosted to Corporal

Pfc. John H. Long, Headquarters company, Third Infantry division, was promoted to corporal last week, unit officials announced.

Reed, and daughter Helen.

Colonel Moore came to the 15th Infantry from the office of the assistant chief of staff, the Infantry Center, where he occupied the G-2 position. He had been on duty with the Infantry Center for three years.

A member of the 1924 class at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., Colonel Moore attended the Infantry School and the Tank School in 1929-30. In 1938 he was graduated from the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Colonel Moore served with the 20th, 24th and 57th Infantry regiments and was with the 15th from 1930-33 in Tientsin, China. Upon his return to the United States he served with the Second Infantry division until 1940.

In 1940 and 1941 he served with the Philippine division at Fort McKinley, Philippine Islands, and later on the general staff, Headquarters 11, Philippine corps.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star medal, Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star medal.

Colonel Moore's successor has not been announced but Lt. Col. R. B. Wright, Jr., Infantry Center G-3, is acting G-2 in addition to his other duties.

Pastry Bakery to Open Latter Part of Month

The new Infantry Center bakery is expected to be open for business the latter part of this month, it was announced today.

The bakery, one of the largest and best equipped installations of its kind, will be used to produce items for consumption, by troops stationed at Fort Benning.

Company G, 30th Infantry regiment, burst threatened to disrupt the preparations Pfc. Griffin had made for the inspection.

Griffin directed the personnel under him so efficiently, however, that when the results were in, his dining hall had a total score of 148.6 points out of a possible 150.

It was inspected for cleanliness, sanitary facilities, organization and administration.

Pfc. Griffin has been in the army seven months. He took basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., where he also attended the Cooks and Bakers school.

A meat cutter in civilian life, Pfc. Griffin has been at Fort Benning since last May.

30th Infantrymen In St. Augustine

Last week's group of enlisted men to leave for seven days at the Third Infantry division rest camp in St. Augustine, Fla., was composed almost entirely of men from the 30th Infantry regiment. Chute Doesn't Open But Sergeant Lives

By PAT MURPHY "Oh Lord, the chutes!" Those were the pleading words M-Sgt. James R. Hendrix, 24, screamed as he plunged helplessly through the air with two unopened parachutes streaming above him last week over Lee field, airborne jump zone.

The red-haired, freckle-faced native of Lepanto, Ark., was holder of the coveted Congressional Medal of Honor, was able to sit up in his hospital bed shortly after and relate what happened during the terrifying seconds that almost splattered life from his body.

Between infectious grins and puffs on a much-desired cigarette, Sergeant Hendrix, awarded his graduation wings and certificate the next day at a special bedside ceremony, "life is finished" as he sped earthward in the near-fatal plunge.

While his nurse made adjustments to his pillow, Sergeant Hendrix, married three years and father a two-year-old daughter, gave a vivid word-picture of his fall to earth. "This morning (Sept. 8)," he said, "I made my seventh jump. The week before I made six. I was supposed to make a fourth before the day was done."

Honestly, I'm one of those people who doesn't have premonitions about fate, I felt confident. In fact, I think I was having a bit as I entered the ship to make this final jump.

I guess you can call the rest of the trip before jump just routine. There were 32 of us aboard. Nobody said much, just stared at each other and kept checking their packs. Lots of youngsters, I suppose they were pretty scared.

"Then the jumpmaster told us to hook up. One of those planes where 16 men go out one side and 16 go out the other. The hook-up was made in a flash. The husky sergeant said as he glanced around the cabin, 'I knew it. I was waiting for this. In a split second I was on my way into space.'"

"Then it happened." Sergeant Hendrix's nurse interrupted long enough to insert a small tube in his nostril for internal treatment. The sergeant continued, saying, "When I got just out the door, the blast from the plane's engine threw me into a horizontal position. 'My feet were toward the front of the plane and my head was toward the tail. 'I didn't realize it until the opening shock, but my suspension lines were caught in my boot buckle. 'At first, I suppose I took it with a grain of salt. After shaking my legs to get them loose, I really knew I was in a jam. 'From the ground, I could hear an observer yelling 'Keep shaking your legs, keep shaking your legs, keep shaking your legs, but nothing happened. 'About halfway down (500 feet) I yanked my reserve chute ripcord. 'For a second, it looked as though I'd only live long enough to stream out, but then it got tangled up with the main chute. 'I was scared stiff. I know I screamed for God's help. I knew that I'd only live long enough to reach the hospital. 'I wanted to have my face intact for the funeral, so at the last second I reached up and grabbed the suspension lines to try myself up. I climbed like a monkey. I didn't want to hit head first. 'I hit the ground, I was able to get into a V-shaped position; feet and head upright. 'Then I hit."

"They picked me up and took me to the hospital." Sergeant Hendrix didn't look the part of a man who had plummeted 1,000 feet in 10 seconds as he sat up in bed last week and received congratulations and a pair of wings from his commanding officer, Lt. Col. Patrick F. Cassidy.

Passing off his mishap as just "one of those things," the wartime member of the Fourth Armored division expressed his belief that the progressive training in the Infantry School's Airborne department was greatly responsible for saving his life. He added that God's hand was there, too, to protect him from death.

During single-handed derring-do against the Germans at the Battle of the Bulge, the twinkling-eyed six-year army veteran earned two 88 mm gun emplacements, two machinegun nests, killed seven Germans, and saved the lives of four American soldiers trapped in a burning tank.

After Colonel Cassidy presented the silver wings of the paratroopers and bestowed his warmest congratulations on the plucky soldier, Sergeant Hendrix, in answer to a question, said he was going to camp. Colonel Cassidy termed as the jumping infantryman as a proud and honorable outfit.

3rd Army Chief Lauds Advanced Course Student

A member of the Infantry School's associate advanced class No. 2 received a certificate of achievement from Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., Third Army commander, last week for his "performance of outstanding service as professor of military science and tactics in Knoxville high schools, Knoxville, Tenn."

Maj. James H. Cook Jr., was presented the certificate by Col. Sevier R. Tupper, commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment at ceremonies in Colonel Tupper's office.

Major Cook served with reserve officers' training corps units in Knoxville for two years. Receiving a reserve commission as second lieutenant in 1939, Major Cook served with the 45th Infantry division in Europe during World War I. His decorations include the Silver Star medal, Bronze Star medal, European Theater ribbon with seven battle stars, American Defense ribbon, American Theater ribbon, Army of Occupation ribbon, World War II Victory medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

This Is The American Way

Soldiers, civilians and participants in the first world-wide army baseball tournament are to be commended for the excellent display of sportsmanship exhibited in the opening games. It was a pleasure for us to sit in the stands and hear the applause which greeted each player, regardless of his race, color or creed, as he stepped into the batters' box. And when a man's athletic history was given, it was particularly outstanding, as many were, he received a louder and longer ovation.

Although Benning had its own Doughboys fighting for the world title, the fans were entirely non-partisan. That is the way it should be.

They cheered loud and long for their own team, yes, but like all Americans, they cheered the underdog. When the Far East commensal ran into a streak of bad luck against Fort Bliss, Tex., Sunday night, the fans were really palling for them.

That's the American way. That's the way it should be. The fans don't care if a team wins or loses. They only care how it plays the game. Americans respect good opponents—win, lose or draw. Like democracy, sports teaches us to respect the other man. Many of the principles which underlie this country's way of life are exemplified in sports. While we're in a praising mood, we wish to commend special services for fostering an army-wide sports tournament, and the committee in charge of the tournament for its meticulous planning of this great classic. It should be noted that all expenses incurred by teams and individuals participating in this tournament, as well as the cost of the tournament, are borne by the welfare funds of the participating armies. These funds are derived entirely from the profits of army post exchanges and army motion picture theaters. So congratulations to the spectators for giving the visiting players their due in the traditions of fair play. And to the players—remember: it's not if you win or lose that we'll remember you; it's how you played the game. Good luck to all of you. May your team be crowned "Champion of the Army."

We're 7 Years Old Saturday

The Bayonet, a newspaper for the world's most complete army post, will celebrate its seventh anniversary on Saturday. To the editor and staff that seventh birthday will mark another milestone in achievement and service. Just how successful we have been during the past year, we have no way of determining. But we can assure you that the past twelve-month period will be one of constantly striving to improve not only the caliber of the publication but also its content.

In conjunction with our seventh birthday, we have compiled a questionnaire which the Infantry Center information and education office has kindly consented to use as a part of its troop information program. This questionnaire will likely come closer than ever before to providing us with the answer to this question.

What do you think of The Bayonet?
For the convenience of those who do not attend TIP lectures, we have reproduced the questionnaire in this issue. We sincerely hope that everyone will exercise his right to offer constructive criticism, and if that criticism is just, we assure you we will do our utmost to follow your advice.

We have attempted in the past, and will in the future, to make The Bayonet the best camp newspaper in the world. Our efforts along that line caused a well-known New York public relations expert and newspaperman to comment:

"As a rule, army newspapers stink! There is one notable exception, however: The Bayonet."
We hope we will remain worthy of that tribute.

News Briefs British More Optimistic Over Dollar Crisis

FOREIGN RELATIONS—Talks between top British and American economists concerning the British dollar crisis ended early this week with the British feeling more optimistic than they have in months. U. S. Secretary of the Treasury was more cautious and would only say that the crisis was "approaching solution". Principal result of the conference was agreement for immediate spreading of Marshall plan funds. Tariff concessions in favor of the British are still in the future as are plans for American purchase of British tin and rubber as "stockpiling". Canada too has been suffering from the British dollar blight. Rich in the production of wheat, nickel, aluminum, zinc, and other raw materials, the falling off of British and American markets through a shortage of dollars had Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's prime ministry worried. France in the midst of it all, continued its time honored custom of collecting American tourist dollars. The $78 million left behind by tourists proved the biggest chunk of France's dollars next to the Marshall plan.

INVESTIGATIONS—Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, principal military aide, was suspended before the senate's Mundt committee again last week but he came out of the oven not quite well done. Upshot of the committee's investigations seems to have been that the five percenter would not create another Teapot Dome scandal. Their activities summed up to the usual petty graft and wirepulling

Johnson Reveals Armed Forces Changes

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Contemplated armed forces changes as revealed by Secretary of Defense Johnson in recent speeches: The army will take over land transport; the air force, air transport; the navy, sea transport. Service lines among chaplains will be practically eliminated. No segregation of races will be equalized among the services. All services will have specifically prescribed missions. Job classification will be standardized to permit interchangeability of civilian and military personnel. Common orientation toward unification will be given cadets in service academies.

Boundaries of naval districts are being adjusted to coincide with army and air force areas. New regulations revising promotion policies for that portion of the army not yet under career planning, and setting minimum time-graded requirements for original promotion, became effective September 1. Net result is that nearly half the army can be promoted to grade five and higher merely by applying for and passing proper examinations. A rewrite of circular 202, which implements the army career guidance plan, will be ready by the end of October. Barring unexpected obstacles, the next field to be brought under career guidance, field engineering, will be official-

His Word Will Always Remain Indestructible

"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." (Matthew 24:35)
This is the categorical statement of a Man who, if judged by worldly standards of success, would be considered impotent. He was not a learned Man in the accepted sense; He was not wealthy nor powerful in the worldly sense. Yet, never has there been a person before Him or after Him who possessed such a spirit of mastery as did the so-called "Lowly Galilean." Never has there been a person who was more sure than Jesus that He was a Man of destiny, but whimsical and cynical thinkers of our day are saying, "The only thing one can be certain of is uncertainty."
Surely, the furnaces of life are being heated 10,000 times hotter than ever before, and into those furnaces our institutions and modes of life are being placed. While they are yet in a molten state, it will be the task of our generation to draw them off and determine that no politicians mind. With that the committee adjourned for at least a month.

FOREIGN RELATIONS—Talks being held in London between representatives of Russia and the West to draft a peace treaty for Austria were suspended last week when the U. S. state department said that the Russians "are seeking to reserve for themselves war booty which they had previously agreed to relinquish, as well as the greater share of Austrian oil."

HUMANITY AT WORK—Shirley May Franco, whose toes dipped in the English Channel only to jump daintily back to the beach, have swum the channel while she delayed. The latest is a 34-year-old Belgian who left a champagne party at 1 o'clock one night, to swim the channel in 22 hours. En route carrier pigeons were released bearing messages to his wife as to his progress.

NEWS—The 99-year-old "North China Daily News" announced last week that it was petitioning for permission to cease publication. The long for permission to cease publication. The long for permission to cease publication. The long for permission to cease publication.

SPORTS—"Pepper" Martin, long-time member of the St. Louis Cardinals, and this year manager of the Miami Sun Sox, was fined $100 last week and suspended for the rest of the season. Why? "Forcibly choking" an umpire.

To Amuse You Today On The Bookshelf

By D. W. SCHAEFER
The lists of new books are out in the hope that early Christmas shoppers will be attracted to the titles. The authors are that biographies will predominate. For the first time in a number of years biographers are finding it profitable to spend the necessary time and research for their works.

Few works by major authors are on the publishers' lists. Hemingway is working on the final chapters of his first novel since "For Whom the Bell Tolls," but it won't be ready in time for the fall and early winter buying.

Books about economics, politics, problems of world peace and organization, religion and the war we hope to avoid will be generously represented, reflecting the tenor of the times. Most publishers think the business outlook is good, but few are so bold as to say out loud just what the "trend" in literature will be.

The conclusion most have reached is that a good book itself will start a trend as did those of John O'Hara, Hemingway and Irwin Shaw.

There will, however, be a wide variety of reading matter. Nelson Alger's "The Man with the Golden Arm" should be worth reading if only to see whether Alger is living up to the promise he showed with his O. Henry award winning short story about Letty Bicek. A biographical novel of Jane Austen, entitled "Parson Austen's Daughter" by Helen Ashton, is scheduled for the shelves. Ludwig Bemelmans gives us "The Eye of God" and there is every reason to believe it will reach more than one fireside.

The selections are numerous, and there is not space here to list them all. The coming season will not bring anything startling, but it should continue the upward growth of interest in literature.

he addressed the pall bearers.
"Boys," he whispered "That's my wife's teeth. You see there's too much eating between meals in our hours."

Teacher: "Jimmy, what is a cannibal?"
Jimmy: "I don't know."
Teacher: "Well, if your father ate your mother, what would he be?"
Jimmy: "A widower."

Chic Chorine: "Sure, you can't fool all the people, but who wants to. One man at a time is enough for me!"
"I've always found one trouble with child psychology."
"What's that?"
"Children don't understand."

Two Scotchmen were walking down along the road together. One was jingling something in his pocket. His pal asked, "Jock, you must be."

Barbara Ann Schwettmann, George Crawford Are Wed

An impressive twilight ceremony marked the marriage of Miss Barbara Schwettmann, of Decatur, Ga., and George Mills Crawford, Fort Benning, in the Glenn Memorial chapel, Monday at 8 p.m. Dr. Charles F. Schwettmann performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Bayne Smith. Vocal selections by Miss Angie Clardy, of Griffin, Ga., included "Entr'acte," "You Don't Leave This," "How Do I Love Thee," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The opening strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin heralded the approach of the wedding party led by Usher, Groomsman Lee A. Worby and Jean Wise of Americus, Ga., Jim Hardaway of Miami, Harvey Allen, of Fort Benning, and Jack Salyer, of Brownwood, Tex.

Miss Sus Eversett, Augusta, Ga., served the bride as maid of honor. Her gown was of turquoise satin, designed with off-the-shoulder neckline, featuring the smart new bouffant-style draped skirt. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of yellow daisies.

Mrs. Mary Caroly Schwab and Miss Dianne Henderson, bridesmaids, wore matching gown of the same material and styling as the maid of honor, and carried similar bridesmaid bouquets.

Usher, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Lee, was a guest.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Frank M. Lee, Mrs. F. H. Bookover, Mrs. C. A. Lanahan, Mrs. S. Blair, Mrs. H. A. Kidd, Mrs. C. A. Foruhub, Mrs. A. L. Ray, Mrs. J. H. Volterzen, Mrs. N. R. Spencer, Mrs. L. Hawaiian Motif Featured At Tactical Ladies Party

Ladies of the Tactical department held their luncheon last Thursday at the Officers' club with Mrs. Paul Lyles and Mrs. George Clayton as hostesses. An Hawaiian motif predominated in the table decorations. A beautiful bouquet of ginger blossoms and leaves from the garden of Mrs. Douglas Sugg, attractively arranged in an Hawaiian hand-carved wooden leaf-shaped bowl, centered the table. Ukeles at each end of the table completed the unique decorations. Place cards were sketches depicting maps of the islands, showing sea lane routes and a palm tree scene showing Diana Head in the background, made by Mrs. Clayton.

Call Him Anything Local Shine Boy Has Many Titles

There's a colored fellow at the Infantry Center who takes apt time to shine boy, West Georgia historian, ex-roadman, and chief tale-spinner for boys around the second quartet.

"Jaybird" Ed, and don't ask the hill" Ed continued, "I'm not the last name because he's mechanical says he just 'likes to be called 'shine boy' anything the boys want," he said. "On heck I can't." Ed takes very little encouragement for Ed to lapse into a spell of kidding and joke telling.

Ed hobnobbing with the cooks for one of their tasty products. On the other hand, at your driving a truck and need to load cargo from the Infantry School building, Ed's right there to give an able assist. But more than likely, the affable and personable Ed can be found putting micro-like shines on the low quarters of officers and enlisted men from miles around.

The distinct quality that makes this handsome dandy of 54 years so colorful, and this difficult to single out, is his eagerness and untiring efforts to please, no matter what. To go way back and seek out the life of this colorful personality, you have only to go as far as Columbus, Ga. Back when horse and buggies were the most fortunate, young Ed, a school-boy was spending evenings at the race track (where stadium stands there now) guarding the fringed surrises of historical gables and the stained ladies.

Overnight, according to Ed, the automobile revolution brought in the nemesis of livery owners, the automobile. It was not long until Ed was driving one of the exhaust-popping "monsters." But, still in school, Ed was around the racetrack guarding vehicles, this time mechanical variety.

He makes much ado about the "good ole days, because, he says those were the days when a man could experience real life for future reminiscence. In his typical drawl of the Old South, but with a more distinct air of refinement, Ed tells about how the old Ford used to sound chugging up a steep hill. "Drivin' a T-model up Wynnnton hill at 25 miles per hour," he said, "it seemed to say real fast, 'I think I can, I think I can, I think I can.' Then when it was about half way up the steep hill, it sounded like 'I thought I could, I could, I could.'"

CONTRIBUTE $3,000 Army Daughters Stress Programs For Children

Children rate interest from almost everybody. And Fort Benning children their welfare and recreation have been the focus of many projects carried on by the Fort Benning Army Daughters association during the past few years. The association, composed of daughters of regular army officers, and numbering about 50 members at the present time, has first hand knowledge of the problems and necessities of service children. Mrs. John E. Arthur, president, says.

Just after the main streets of Columbus became paved and the city and county limits were extended from Penit Avenue, which is practically downtown, to the new city limits, Unpretentiously Ed says he loved the 28-year job, although it was only to go as far as Columbus, Ga. Back when horse and buggies were the most fortunate, young Ed, a school-boy was spending evenings at the race track (where stadium stands there now) guarding the fringed surrises of historical gables and the stained ladies.

and smaller children, a large slide and a set of circular climbing bars. The maternity ward at the Station hospital also has received needed "extras" from the funds of Army Daughters. Some of the things bought for it: ward last year include a baby resuscitator and nearly $100 worth of medicine supplies. More than $350 worth in the shade of a large pine grove in front of the trailer stalled to make the way cooler, heater and more attractive for the wives of military personnel, including the sets of swings for both larger.

The playground at the Fort Benning Woman's club nursery school is another Army Daughters project, and the toy-sized equipment includes all sorts of swings and things for children between the ages of two and five.

Dozens of requests for money have come into the organization in recent months, Mrs. Arthur said. Many of these have had to be refused because of regulations restricting the use of funds to projects on the post.

Among the contributions are $300 to the Infantry Center chartered fund, $25 to the Red Cross and $95 to the Fort Benning Children's school. The children's school donation is to be used to buy manual training equipment for grade school pupils.

Funds for the various projects are derived from game nights and parties held regularly by members of the Army Daughters organization. During the winter the game nights are held twice each month at the Officers' club and playing fee is charged. The proceeds after operating and prize expenses are deducted, go into the project fund.

Doughs Rout Foes In First 2 Games

Lauve's Homerun Sparks Initial Play

The Fort Benning Doughboys stamped themselves as one of the favorites in the first army-wide baseball tournament as they rolled decisively over their first two opponents.

The Benningites, representing the Third Army command, opened the tournament at Gowdy field by blasting the Military District of Washington nine to one on Sunday. They followed this win with a 14-1 lacing of the United States forces in Austria on Monday night.

The Doughs wasted no time in the Sunday clash as they tallied five runs in the first frame to sew up the contest. The big blow of the inning was Herb Lauve's terrific drive over the right center field wall, with Dave Barnes on first base. The blast cleared the fence by about ten feet at the 4th-foot mark. It was the first homerun of the tournament.

The Military District of Washington came back in its half of the first to score its only run of the day. Bob Kinard opened the way for the score when, with two away, he struck on Rudy Reckner's ground ball to second base. Perry Fields followed with a line drive to the right center field fence scoring Reckner from first.

The Doughboys came back on over allowed over the nine-inning route. While larning in this excellent performance, Kossover walked four and fanned ten batters. Benning shortstop Dave Barnes turned in a fielding gem in the top of the fifth frame when he pulled an unassisted double play.

The Doughboys opened the scoring in the first inning when Bill Kovatak tallied on the front half of a double steal as Bob Kinard stole second. The Doughs exploded for five more in the second to put the contest on legs. The big blow of the frame was Bill Kovatak's double, off the right field fence, scoring two runs.

Four singles produced three more runs in the last of the fourth inning to raise the count to 9-1. The Doughs scored one in the fifth, without benefit of a hit, and closed out their scoring in the bottom of the seventh by tallying four more markers.

Dave Barnes with a grounds rule double and Bob Kinard with a triple were the big guns in the seventh inning uprising. The Doughboys in their first two games scored a total of 33 runs on 29 hits while allowing their opponents two runs on only four hits.

Commercial Equipment Allocated to Meat Plant

New commercial type equipment has been allocated to the Fort Benning consolidated meat plant, the Infantry Center food service office has announced. Several hundred meat storage pans will soon be delivered to the plant, the same sanitary type used in major meat industries throughout the U. S.

Signaleers Oust Pacific Team, 5-3

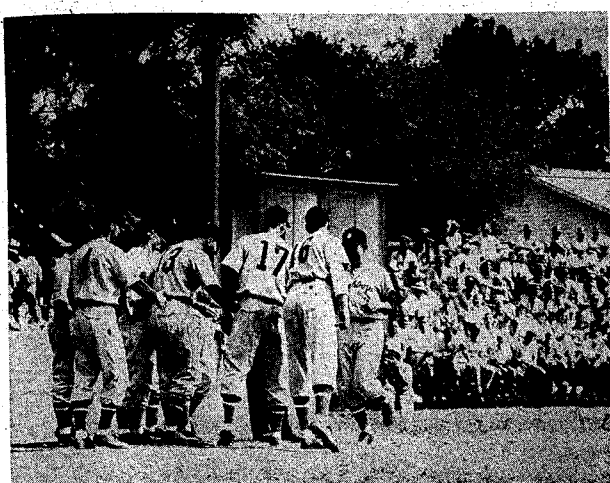

Camp Campbell, Ky., representing the Second Army command, the Eighth Army representative, and Fort Monmouth, N. J. First Army champs, scored victories Tuesday as play continued in the worldwide army baseball tournament at Gowdy field, Fort Benning.

The Second Army team won the sixth game of the meet by defeating the Fourth Army champs, Fort Bliss, Tex., 4-2. Far East Command knocked the Military District of Washington nine completely out of the tournament by defeating the District team from Fort Belvoir, Va., 3-2. It was the second loss for the District nine.

The Fort Monmouth Signaleers came from behind in the sixth inning to defeat the Pacific Command representative from Schofield Barracks, 3-2, last night. The loss was the second for the Pacific nine and eliminated them from the tournament.

CAUGHT AT THE PLATE . . . George Barr, famed National League umpire, shakes hands with "Hank" Gowdy, former New York Giant catcher. Mr. Barr is acting as honorary umpire-in-chief for the army-wide tournament, while Mr. Gowdy, for whom Gowdy field is named, is the honored guest of the tournament.

DOUGHS' BIG GUN . . . Herb Lauve, extreme right, Benning first baseman, is congratulated by his teammates after blasting the first homerun of the army-wide baseball tournament. Herb's clout came in the top of the first inning with a teammate on base. Fort Benning beat the military district of Washington 19-1.

Ft. Bliss Rips Far East; Patterson Stars In Win

In Sunday night's tournament play, Fort Bliss' (Tex.) Falcons, representing the Fourth Army, came out on the long end of a 15-4 score against the Far East's command's Eighth Army Chicks.

Alex Patterson, purveyor of the St. Louis Cardinals, hurled for the Bliss team and turned in an excellent performance on the mound. York and Hen Alberts were the big guns for the Falcons, the former collecting three for five and the latter getting three for four trips to the plate. Art Edinger was the Chicks' big gun, collecting a single and a double for four trips to the dish.

Playing under the lights, in ideal weather and before a full house, the Falcons scored in the first inning and were never headed. It was, however, a nip and tuck battle until the fifth frame.

Opening the top of the fifth, the Bliss men tallied five runs, four of them through the courtesy of Tom Barrett, Chicks' pitcher. One hit was all that was

See Operation Of Food Setup

Tours of the Infantry Center's food service and ration distribution sections and the central meat cutting plant and central pastry bakery shop are now being conducted for reserve officers and food service personnel.

Purpose of the tours is to acquaint military personnel with the methods of processing and delivering food items to army messes. Constructive criticism will be weighed and added to the operative efficiency of the installation, food service officials said.

M-Sgt. Stanley A. Sharp and Sgt. Sgt. Ira H. Farr, food service technicians, will be on duty from the food service office to answer questions regarding methods of processing and de-frosting service.

Warriors, Centaurs Win Over Monmouth, Pacific

The Second Infantry division's Warriors, representing the Sixth Army, defeated Fort Monmouth's N. J. Signaleers, First Army representatives, 5-1, in the third round of the worldwide army baseball championships being played at Gowdy field.

In the second game of Monday's doubleheader, the Warriors, Fifth Army's Fort Riley, Kans., Centaurs knocked off Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, representing the Pacific command, to the tune of 7-2. It was the first tourney stunt for each team.

The Warriors banged out 11 hits off Asbury, while Marston was nicked for seven. The Centaurs yielded five hits, and John Bogardus gave out nine.

Ezell Marston, Warrior pitcher, also led his team at the plate, collecting a triple, double and single for four trips; Elzio Beck got two for three for the Warriors, and Jim Handy, with three out of four, was big gun for Monmouth.

In regard to Pacific pitcher, collected one hit in two tries, pace his team, while Ray Klink, with two doubles and a single in four trips, led the Fifth Army.

The Sixth Army started its scoring spree in the third inning when Beck walked, Benton singled and Michaeliski walked to load the bases. Sandhart drove a hard shot at third, but Vancante made a leaping one-handed catch, and threw to second to nip Benton. Hollowell followed with a single to score Beck and Michaeliski followed by stealing home.

The Warriors continued their scoring in the next two innings when Beck drove in Plekowsky and Michaeliski scored twice. The last Sixth Army run came in the fifth when pitcher Marston drove in Frozene.

The Fort Monmouth team scored its lone run in the bottom of the fourth when Crump doubled to deep right-center to score Handy, who had reached base on a single.

Red Cross Still Army's Servant

By MURRAY E. HILL

This column has contained so much about such services of Red Cross as the blood program, volunteer services, water safety, and first aid that one might forget the primary responsibility of Red Cross is "Service to the Armed Forces". Quoting from an act of Congress of 1905, the American National Red Cross was first "to furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded in times of war—and to act in matters of volunteer relief in accordance with the people of the United States and their army and navy".

To fulfill this primary duty, about 75 per cent of the budget still goes for services to the armed forces and their dependents and their dependents. Fully 75 per cent of all Red Cross personnel, both the limited paid staff and the millions of volunteers, devote their time to the service of the armed forces. Many people thought that with the cessation of hostilities the Red Cross would return to normal. Now what do they mean by normal? We have a 1,500,000 man scattered to the four corners of the earth and 20,000,000 veterans.

Future Officers On Benning Visit

Twenty-six student officers of the Lanier (Macon, Ga.) high school reserve officers' training corps paid a one-day visit to Fort Benning last Thursday.

The students, all members of the senior class at Lanier, began with a tour of the commanding general's quarters.

During the remainder of the morning they observed problem 1,001 at Hook range.

Following lunch at Biglerville dining hall, they visited the infantry school building, the new book store, Gowdy field, the Main theater, Main library and other post facilities.

Sergeant Parker To Be Rewarded

Sgt. 1st cl. James A. Parker, platoon sergeant of Company C, 15th Infantry regiment, has received notification that he has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Purple Heart medal.

The decorations will be presented in a ceremony scheduled within the next few weeks.

The citation accompanying the DFC reads in part:

"For extraordinary action in an aerial flight near Hon Noi Island off the Eastern coast of China on March 21, 1948. Sgt. Parker was a member of the crew of the lead plane of one of two squadrons of medium bombers that attacked a Japanese convoy near Hon Noi Island. As the other squadron began a run on the convoy, the crew of this bomber sighted a destroyer, a minesweeper, and a patrol craft, which they proceeded to attack. When, to eliminate this threat to the formation, they started to attack the destroyer, an enemy fighter attacked their plane, but the tail gunner drove it away.

"Although the destroyer concentrated intense fire on their plane, they completed the run, strafed the destroyer's deck and scored two direct bomb hits which caused it to explode and sink. Then they made a bombing run on the minesweeper and scored a direct hit on it.

"At this point, another hostile plane intercepted, and it, too, was driven off by being fired from the top turret and tail guns. As the formation was departing from the target area, a third fighter attacked their plane, but they set fire to it and drove it away.

The outstanding courage and devotion to duty displayed by these men during this flight are in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Army aviators."

The Purple Heart awarded Sergeant Parker is to be worn received in action at Dulag harbor, Leyte, Philippine Islands, on Nov. 12, 1944.

California, Trojans Pacific Coast Favorites

By JIM CLOONAN

This week we take our last look at the California football line-up, finishing up with the Pacific Coast.

The big bad Bears from Berkeley appear to be the favorites to move into the Rose Bowl next season, although the Trojans of Southern California may cause them trouble. Stanford and Washington also appear to be on the upgrade with the rest of the clubs following in close order. Coast football, on the whole, should be better than in recent years.

CALIFORNIA The Bears of Berkeley are on the prowl again out on the coast. The Bears are loaded with veterans despite the loss of A. I. American Jackie Jensen.

Top man in the backfield will probably be Halback Jack Swamer, all Pacific coast back last season. He will be ably assisted by Bob Celer, at quarter, Bill Main, at left half, and Pete Schabarum, heir to Jensen's throne at fullback.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Twenty-eight lettermen return to the Trojan campus and should spell trouble for the rest of the conference.

Bill Martin, who scored two touchdowns against Notre Dame last year will lead the list of power runners. Assisting him will be Art Battle, Jay Roundy, Johnny French and a whole host of other top flight backs.

In the line, the Trojans will be four or five deep in each position and Coach Jeff Cravath contemplates using two of sensitive teams and one defensive unit.

STANFORD The Indians are well on their way back to the top in coast football as 25 lettermen return to the Palo Alto campus.

The Red Shirts have to put together a winning team early in the season, however, as they meet Harvard and Michigan on successive Saturdays at the start of the campaign. If the club does well in these two games, it is entirely possible that the Indians could win the conference crown.

WASHINGTON Howie Odell has added the single wing to his T system and hopes that his sophomore backs can make it click.

The Huskies will be built around Hugh McElhenry, full-back transfer from Compton Junior college. McElhenry, a spectacular ground-gainer for Compton, can convincingly develop into one of the all-time great backs in Pacific coast history.

U. C. L. A. "Red" Sanders will install the single wing and a completely new staff of the Los Angeles school, this year.

The Uclans will have a pretty strong line, but the backfield will still have to learn the new system before they can be considered a threat.

Lack of reserve strength may also hurt the Uclans before the end of the slate.

OREGON Duck Coach Jim Aikin is moaning and for good reasons, six of them, to be exact. Six members of last year's Colton football team were left for good and their loss will hurt the Ducks' title hopes.

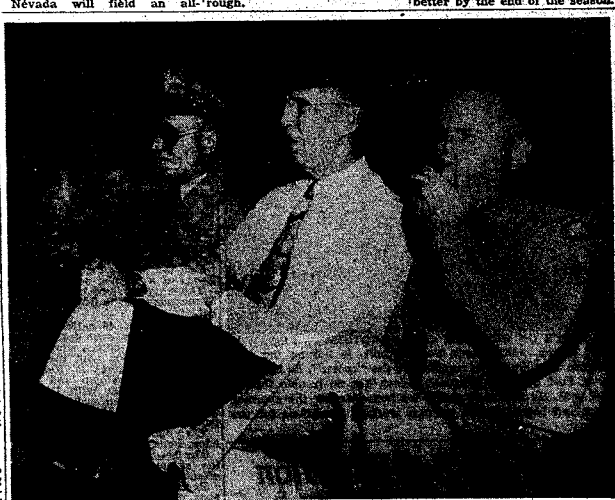

The job of replacing the great Norm Van Brocklin, as the T-passer, will fall to Earl Steele.

break even during the tough ten game schedule.

NEVADA The Wolf Pack will depend more on its running attack now that Stan Heath has graduated.

Nevada will field an all-veteran team and will probably be paced by the T o u c h d o w n twins Ted Kondel and Johnny Swain.

COLLEGE OF THE PACIFIC Eddie Le Baron returns to the Pacific campus and that automatically makes the Tigers rough.

Demonstration Teams Unite To Present 'Mad Minute'

Students in the Infantry School's advanced class No. 2 began their nine-month course last Thursday when they witnessed a demonstration of the "mad minute" or problem 1,001, at Hook Range.

Demonstration teams from the 15th Infantry regiment, members of the Weapons department of the Infantry School and instructors at the school combined to make the demonstration impressive for the student officers.

Beginning with the basic weapon of the foot soldier, the M-1 rifle, the instructors explained the characteristics, ammunition and capabilities of each infantry weapon up to the M-45 tank.

Sgt. 1st cl. David S. Huntley of the Weapons department fired the M-1 rifle in the display. First firing at a 1,000-inch target, Sergeant Huntley's shot group later inspected by the class, showed the accuracy of the M-1 is capable in the hands of a trained soldier.

The sergeant fired 38 rounds in 53 seconds into the 1,000-inch target.

howitzer, sent their explosives rocketing over high arcs to plummet squarely on the selected targets.

The 57 mm, recoilless rifle, capable of being fired from the shoulder, demonstrated more forcibly than possibly any other weapon the improvements which have been added to infantry armors.

Formerly an anti-tank weapon, the 57 mm weighed 2,900 pounds before the development of the recoilless principle. Research and experience have brought the weight of the weapon down to only 45 pounds.

On the machine-gun mount of a jeep, the 87 mm recoilless is capable of high transportability.

The 75 mm recoilless rifle, of the same type as the 57 mm, was demonstrated in its armor piercing ammunition explained.

A steel plate, showing the various armor piercing capabilities of ammunition of infantry weapons was brought before the students.

The flame-thrower, used to such devastating effect in smothering out Japanese hidden in their caves on the Pacific islands in World War II, was demonstrated in both the broad, billowing flame firing, and the light stream of fire which can penetrate a door or window at distances of from 20 to 40 feet depending on the fuel used.

Then came the tanks; huge, lumbering monsters whose turret can penetrate a 30-degree revolution in 17 seconds. Equipped with 30 caliber machine guns and a 90 mm gun, the M-45 and the M-28 tanks rumbled out before the stands where various sighting instruments, speed and maneuverability were detailed.

Anti-tank ammunition fired from a 90 mm howitzer is capable of penetrating homogeneous armor 11 inches thick.

After the detailed explanation and demonstration of the infantry weapons, the teams were taken to the "mad minute."

"First an infantry squad with eight M-1 rifles and one BAR rifle. The riflemen fired one each and the BAR men 20 rounds into action with the increased armament.

Finally for the supreme display of the problem, an entire infantry company augmented by a heavy weapons platoon, rocket launchers, recoilless rifles and tanks fired at its rated capacity for one minute, shattering the air with the high pitched rattling of the machine-guns, popping of the M-1, the soft "plop" of mortar shells and the deep boom of the 90 mm tank armament.

During an intermission in the demonstration, representatives from foreign armies and United States Army officers attending the Advanced course were asked what impressed them most in their first demonstration at the Infantry School.

Maj. Juan Marquez, Chilean army, said he was particularly impressed by the technical equipment displayed during the demonstration and the evident progress the infantry has made even in the past few years.

He commented that he thought the experiences of the last war had a great deal to do with the increased efficiency of infantry weapons.

Maj. T. T. Grady, United States Marine corps, had heard about the "mad minute" and before and after the demonstration.

Maj. S. H. Matheson, 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C., had seen 1,001 and was impressed as ever at the efficiency with which the three-hour problem was handled."

For being spectacular, Maj. Francisco Gutierrez, well known army, picked the flame thrower, which he said, "make a good show." "All the weapons were impressive," he said, "and the problem was arranged and presented to carry sustained interest."

THE HEAT'S ON BUT KEEP COOL, BROTHER . . . Sgt. Walter F. Wilson, 3440th Area Service unit, is not on the lam from the cops, but he is certainly in the "cooler." As head ice man of Fort Benning, Sergeant Wilson has no trouble finding a cool spot. He has been at the ice house during the summer months, but hopes to find warmer working conditions for the winter.

19 EM from 3rd Battalion Now at Atlanta Rest Camp

Nineteen men from the Third Infantry, 15th Infantry regiment, left last Friday for Atlanta to spend a seven-day vacation at the rest camp in the capitol city's Washington park.

The rest camp, which recently opened for Fort Benning's Negro personnel will provide social, educational and recreational entertainment for the troops during their week's stay.

Swimming, baseball, softball, tennis, volleyball, croquet, horse shoe-pitching and badminton will be among the many sports activities planned, and dances will be held at the camp on Friday night.

Athletic and recreation officials also announced that the men will be able to attend movies in the city as well as in camp. They will be encouraged to attend churches of their choice on Sunday.

Tours of the city will be conducted, to include such landmarks as Grant park, Atlanta, DeLoach and Edgewood.

The carbine, .45 caliber pistol and grease gun came in for their share of the problem when Sgt. Robert L. Justice with the carbine, M-Sgt. James M. Hensley with the grease gun and Sgt. James Foster with the .45 caliber pistol demonstrated the effectiveness of the lightest weapons used by the infantryman.

Then came the display of grenades, both explosive and signal. The bright color smoke from the signal grenades were still effective in the bright sunlight.

Rocket launchers, "the weapons of the future," sent their projects whizzing through the air at supersonic speeds to crash with devastating force on the spotted dummy targets.

The 30 caliber machine guns, light and heavy, water and air cooled, were demonstrated in all Browning automatic rifle.

With Sergeant Hensley leading the machine gun crews, Capt. Howard J. Lewis, 1st Lt. Wallace E. Nelson, Pfc. Emory Walker, Sgt. E. C. Davis, Sgt. Louis Smith and Sgt. C. D. Thompson, all of the Weapons department, put on the demonstration of the machine gun.

Sweeping along a specified area, the hall of steel from the two guns, the ground was covered completely with accurately aimed crossfire.

The 40 mm and their big cousin, the experimental 105 mm

Second Battalion Gets New Chief

Maj. Charles V. McLaughlin has been appointed commanding officer of the second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment.

Major McLaughlin entered the army in 1941 under the selective service act, and received his commission in 1942 at Fort Benning. Overseas for 44 months, he was a platoon leader in the Mundana and Northern Solomons campaign, and later served as a staff sergeant at Ft. Gen. John R. Hodge in Hawaii, Leyte, Okinawa and Korea. Returning to the states after the war, he became an instructor in the Infantry School from 1947 to 1948.

From September, 1948 until he took over his present duties he was adjutant of the 15th.

Major McLaughlin succeeds Lt. Col. E. Gibson, who has been assigned to the inspector general's section at Third Infantry division headquarters.

In Final Training Phase

Basic airborne class No. 5 went into the final week of training this week.

Fifty-one enlisted men and 15 officers are expected to graduate at the end of the course.

T.I.C. TALKS

Question, For The Week: What are your ideas about the army-wide baseball tournament? (This week all men interviewed are from teams participating in the tournament.)

CAPT. FLOBIAN MIHELON, catcher for Fort Belvoir, Va., team, "off hand, I would say that this is one of the best things special services has done to promote interest in GI athletics. The army-wide tournament undoubtedly draws civilian attention, for one thing, and, in addition, is a great reward for good ball clubs at the end of successful seasons. Such programs help develop good athletes and, in this case, give the ball player something to work for."

SGT. RUDY YORK, third baseman for Fort Bliss, Tex., team: "I think it's a wonderful idea to get all these ball clubs from all over the world together to play in the tournament. It's good experience for the players and good baseball for the spectators. It gives them a chance to get an idea of the scope of the army athletic programs. I, for one, will never long remember this trip to Fort Benning."

CPL. CARL J. DENT, second baseman for Fort Eastern command team, "It's a great idea to come over here for the tournament. Our team almost came over here last winter, but we were beaten out in the all-Japan finals. Naturally, we're going all out to make a good showing here. In any case we are all glad to get back to the states, even for a little while. Fort Benning is somewhat like a big city. The show here is excellent, and there are a lot of facilities here that we don't have in Japan."

SGT. WILLIAM THORPE, center fielder for the European command team: "I think it's a pretty good deal to fly over from Austria to play in this great tournament. I know much about the other clubs, but we think we have a well-balanced team and all the members are a bunch of workers. Outside of sports, it's great to be back in the states, even for a little while, and we are all looking forward to going home after the tournament."

SGT. SANDY BUNDAS, shortstop for the Hawaiian team: "I don't know whether we are more excited about the tournament or the trip to the states — it's the first trip here for me. One of the 16 we brought with us. Golly, back in the islands, 20 miles is considered a long trip. The army tournament should be a great morale builder — people have got to have something besides their work. I like everything about Fort Benning — except sometimes the weather."

FTT. MILE SCIVOLETTI, second baseman for the Fort Monmouth, N. J., team: "I think that the tournament is a good recreation for both the players and the spectators. To us it's like playing in the World Series. I consider myself very fortunate. In the first place, I made the Fort Monmouth post team and that gave me an opportunity to travel with the club. Needless to say, it is quite an experience to play against the army teams from all over the world. The most accommodations are excellent. Coming down here was my first trip in a plane."

Enter Fourth Week

Ninety enlisted men and 14 officers, members of basic airborne class No. 1 are in their fourth week of training.

National Guard To Start Large-Scale Recruiting

The national guard will seek 45,000 new men during a nationwide recruiting campaign beginning Sept. 18. Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the national guard bureau has announced.

At its greatest peacetime strength in history, the national guard had 360,101 officers and enlisted men on Aug. 15, 1949, in some 5,100 federally recognized units in all 48 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Success in the recruiting campaign, to extend through Nov. 19, will enable the national guard to attain its objective of 199,500 officers and enlisted men during the current fiscal year. The slogan "Get in the Guard" will feature the recruiting campaign, which will emphasize that a young man who joins the national guard serves himself as well as his country.

Men who join the guard have the opportunity to take military training at home without interference with their education or their work. They will be paid for this spare-time training at regular army and air force rates of pay. They will build up credits toward retirement pay and can earn promotions as they learn new skills in their civilian activities as well as in their military careers.

Any man 17 to 34 years old who can meet the high physical, mental and moral standards of the national guard is eligible to enlist. Age limits are higher for veterans who have served in any of the armed forces.

All army and air units will conduct the recruiting campaign in the more than 2,200 communities where the national guard is located. They will be supported by a national program conducted by the national guard bureau through the press, radio and other media. Nearly 700 of the nation's leading business and industrial firms already have indicated they will cooperate with the national guard in their regular advertising programs.

The "Get in the Guard" campaign is the second major recruiting effort undertaken by the national guard since reorganization began in 1946. The first nationwide wide enrollment drive brought 81,000 recruits into the national guard during the fall of 1947.

During the three years of national guard reorganization, it not only has more than doubled its average pre-World War II strength, but also has included the organization of the entire air national guard as well as having completed organization of 85 per cent of its army units.

A tactical force with its 12 wing headquarters cities strategically located throughout the nation, the air guard is built around 72 fighters and 12 light bombardment squadrons. Major army organizations include 25 infantry divisions, two armored divisions, 21 regimental combat teams, and 97 non-divisional anti-aircraft artillery battalions.

Attention Bayonet Readers! Have Some Fun With This

The Bayonet is your paper. Therefore, we feel you should be the one to decide what goes in it and what, if anything, should come out.

With that in mind we have prepared a questionnaire which many of you will receive through your regular troop information programs.

But for those whom the T.I.C. doesn't touch—officers and dependents of officers and enlisted men, in particular—this questionnaire is printed today.

You would be doing us a big favor—and yourself—if you would answer the questions frankly. Clip out this questionnaire, and send it to us either through message center or mail. You need not sign your name. And we will certainly will read all your remarks. Just address it to Editor, The Bayonet. We'll do the rest. Thanks.

1. What's the first thing you read in The Bayonet?

Booth, 11th company, Student Training regiment, center, took third place for his entry "The Trouble with Dream Girls."

EM Slated for Discharge May Continue Treatments

Soldiers who, at the expiration of their enlistments, still need medical care or hospitalization added, will not affect any forfeiture of time, nor does it prevent any enlisted person from being held in the army without and receive medical care at government expense, it was revealed this week by the Department of the Army.

This medical care, it was explained, will be continued until an enlisted man recovers sufficiently to meet the physical requirements for reenlistment, or until competent authorities decide he cannot recover to the extent necessary for reenlistment.

Pay and allowances, including lanta. The men going are Pvt. expense money allowed by law James Jacob, Roosevelt Robinson, and credit for longevity will be continued throughout the period Calvin Lewis.

Jews To Observe Highest Holy Days

Next week members of the Jewish faith throughout Fort Benning will observe the beginning of the Jewish new year when Rosh Hashana celebrations begin.

Two synagogues in Columbus have extended invitations to Fort Benning Jewish personnel to spend the weekend of the Jewish festival of the Tabernacles, which begins at sunset Sept. 23 and ends at sunset Sept. 25, in the homes of members of their congregations.

A second observance, deemed the holiest among Jews, Yom Kippur, will be held in Columbus on Sunday, Oct. 2, and continuing until sunset Oct. 3. The same invitations have been extended for the Yom Kippur fast.

Rosh Hashana will mark the beginning of the year 5710 on the Jewish calendar. Jewish tradition says the universe was created 5,710 years ago.

According to the infantry center chaplain's office, the period between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur is devoted to special prayer and meditation and is known by the name "Ten days of penitence."

The holy days bring forth the ancient prayers of Israel which are chanted by the rabbi to aid in the expiation of the latter's sins.

The theme of the holy days' chants, as interpreted by members of the House of Faith at Fort Benning, is the ancient biblical story of Abraham and Isaac. The story of the famed-in-song "walls of Jericho" is retold in the old chants. The blowing of the ram's horn was known as the "shofar" and signified a momentous occasion. Joshua blew the horn seven times, and "the walls came tumbling down."

Yom Kippur, in English translation, means "day of atonement." It is a period of 24 hours, every Jew is supposed to fast, to be in the synagogue and to ask God for redemption.

During the Yom Kippur services, the history of Israel is read in prayer form. The afternoon prayer is known as the "avodah." The concluding service, "Kaddish," is chanted and the "shofar" is sounded on the ram's horn to conclude the "ten days of penitence."

Nearly 200 Jewish soldiers at Fort Benning are expected to take advantage of the offers to visit the homes of Columbus Jews.

Military personnel who paid duty on gifts received from overseas points after July 1, 1949, are in line for complete returns, according to a recent Department of the Army announcement.

The law which permitted duty free shipments to servicemen expired July 1, officials said, but congress has extended it until July 1, 1951.

Refunds will be paid without filing direct applications to the Bureau of Customs. Claims should not be filed, according to the bureau, until at least 90 days after duty has been paid. It is the collector at the port of entry where the shipment was admitted should be contacted.

The entry number and amount paid on the shipment should be filed with the port of entry collector.

Get a Better Used Car with a PEDIGREE CERTIFICATE

Here Are A Few Reasons Why You get FINER, CLEANER and more DEPENDABLE USED CARS — WHEN YOU BUY THEM FROM US!

1. We sell PEDIGREED CARS, issuing a pedigree Certificate with each sale, giving you the former owner's written statement of CONDITION. These Cars are Trade-ins, or NEW LINCOLN-MERCURY's whose former owners are well known and can be contacted anytime. We price these cars way below the real value which gives you more than their equal value per dollar invested than is offered in any new car.
2. We have a greater choice in the selection of our stock because we get them only through trade-ins on 1949 Lincoln-Mercury. They are not speculators' dealers' cars that are bought and sold on the used car market.
3. You take no chances when you buy from Strickland Motors, a name that for fourteen years in Columbus, Ga. has testified guaranteed values, backed up by a written guarantee.
4. We make it easy to buy, offering liberal trade-ins on your old time cars and financing on easy terms as long as 24 months.

BRITISH WAR CORRESPONDENT GETS JOY-RIDE

William Courtenay, aviation editor of the Daily Graphic, London, making a 40,000 mile world tour to write articles, adjusts his motion picture camera in preparation for a drop from a Fort Benning parachute tower. Maj. H. V. Mansfield, tower training group chief (left) accompanied the journalist on the 10-second, 250 foot descent. With a grin, Mr. Courtenay commented on his newest experience: "Right! This is tricky!" Later he rode in a helicopter.

Famous English Journalist Visits

A highly-impressed British journalist who calls himself the "personification of unification" because of his many and varied honorary memberships in leading army, airforce, and navy fighting units, completed the Fort Benning phase of his 40,000-mile world tour yesterday.

William Courtenay, former British war correspondent and present aviation editor of the Daily Graphic, London tabloid, started his tour of Benning yesterday with his presentation of a 60-minute technicolor film at the Main theater. The documentary film, taken while he was covering operations of the Berlin airlift, was one of his aids in explaining to the 600-soldier audience why the airlift was "a diplomatic victory through a r power."

"The World Wars I and II RAF veteran, official guest of Lt. Gen. Ivan C. Gillem, Jr., Third Army commander, told his audience that "mutual cooperation and determination" of the Western powers was the decisive factor in figuring the success of the late supply line.

He noted two particular phases of world leadership the democracies accomplished with the successful completion of the airlift.

"First of all," he said, "it was a strategic training exercise for any eventuality. It proved beyond a doubt how amazingly well the combined forces of the United States, Britain, France, etc., can effectively complete an operation."

Continuing, he said, "But most of all, we have proven our worth to the millions of spectators watching the Berlin stage. And it was a stage, as well as a proving ground. The Russian satellites observed quietly; the

Orientation Group To Arrive Tonight

3rd Division 71 Top Civilians Sels Parade Slated To Attend For Visitors

Seventy-one of the nation's top leaders of business and industry are scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning tonight. The group will remain on the post for four days to attend the fourth of a series of joint orientation conferences sponsored by the Department of Defense to acquaint civilian leaders with the armed forces.

Included on the tour will be such dignitaries as Paul H. Griffith, assistant secretary of defense, Philip W. Pillsbury, president of Pillsbury Mills, Inc.; Andrew McNally III, president of Rand McNally and company, and Joseph Pulitzer, president of the Pulitzer publishing company.

Among the newspaper men attending the conference are Eiton Fay, military affairs correspondent of the Associated Press in Washington and Hanson Balwin of the New York Times.

The group is expected to fly from Eglin airforce base, Fla., early this afternoon and will arrive at Lawson airforce base about 6 p.m. The guests will be greeted by Maj. Gen. Walter A. Bursess, Infantry Center commander, on arrival, and will be honored with an official dinner at the Officers club this evening.

Tomorrow morning the visitors will see Infantry School problem 1001 on infantry weapons at Hook range, and during the afternoon, will witness an airborne demonstration including an air drop.

Troop carrier support in the airborne demonstration will be provided by the tactical air command of Langley airforce base, Va. Seven C-42 aircraft and four C-15 gliders will be used to drop paratroopers and heavy equipment. A static display of a Fairchild C-82 airplane and a C-15 glider will also be featured.

Third Infantry division troops will present a review for the (See ORIENTATION Page 9)

Former Airlift Supervisor Commended by Gen. Clay

It took two months to complete this work, without which the Berlin airlift would undoubtedly have been doomed to failure. Major McMillan served with the German occupation forces for three years. From June 6, 1948, until April, 1949, he was assistant to the S-4 at Berlin military post, where his airlift work won for him the commendation.

Shortly after the airlift started, it was found that existing facilities would not be adequate if the airlift continued any length of time. There were three routes open, but the airlift, increase existing facilities or build new airfields.

The first was obviously impossible, for without the airlift, Berlin would have to be evacuated. At first glance, the other two routes seemed impossible, too, for all material and equipment would have to be moved by air.

But Major McMillan set out to do the impossible. Under his supervision, not only were three airstrips added to existing fields, but a complete new airfield was built.

Every single bit of equipment, all the asphalt, cement, bulldozers, concrete mixers, graders—in fact, everything that went in to the building of those airfields and airstrips was flown in.

Some of the machinery moved in such as bulldozers, graders and the giant earth-moving machines had to be cut in two, flown in, then welded back together before it could be used.

Major McMillan said that after a plane had landed with cut down machinery on it, his crew would get it together and have it in operation within six to eight hours!

MAJ. W. C. McMILLAN... Gets Commendation

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK

Humaneness, Experience Win Leader Recognition

ILL. JUMP AGAIN . . . M-Sgt. James R. Hendrix, 24-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor holder who escaped death in a 1,000-foot plunge to earth here last week, confidently repeats the "chute" that tangled in his boot buckle. Sergeant Hendrix, who said there was nothing wrong with his chute, miraculously escaped an injury in the graduation jump that almost cost him his life. He says the rigid and progressive training laid out by the Infantry School helped save his life. The husky, soft-voiced six-year army veteran, who sustained only shock, has been transferred to Camp Campbell, Ky.

The elusive quality of leadership and the ability to instill confidence when the going gets tough have won for Sgt. Andrew J. Simko, instructor in the Infantry School's basic a. i. b. o. r. n. course, this week's title of The Bayonet's "Soldier of the Week".

As a physical training instructor, as a member of an airborne demonstration team and as a supervisor of basic airborne students, Sergeant Simko has, according to Airborne officials, "performed his duties in a constantly superior manner." He holds those who feel discouraged about their training progress "and encourages those who show a special aptitude for parachute duty."

Sergeant Simko's most outstanding characteristic is his method of approach in teaching. "I'll try," Sergeant Simko said, "to put my classes in a recep-

SGT. ANDREW J. SIMKO
... Soldier-of-the-Week

Because of his ability to present superior instruction, regardless of the age of the class, Sergeant Simko is the physical training instructor for field grade officers over 35.

Recommendations from officers of that age group illustrate the confidence students have in him. Two student officers, Lt. Col. LeMoine McPherson and Lt. Col. Kenneth W. Collins, wrote that "while the general standard of instruction was high (Sergeant Simko) was the most outstanding."

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, commanding general of the Infantry Center, added his congratulations to Sergeant Simko in the form of a letter signed by Lt. Col. J. R. Grollemund, acting adjutant general of the Infantry Center.

The director of the Airborne department, Lt. Col. Patrick F. Cassidy, extended "heartiest congratulations" and expressed his sincere appreciation of the manner in which you perform.

Sergeant Simko qualified for his parachutist's wings in June, 1942, and served in Europe with the 50th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 8th Airborne Division, for 28 months.

He has made 98 daylight jumps and 12 night jumps, including four combat jumps with the 82nd Airborne Division. His decorations include the Purple Heart medal, Bronze Star medal, Good Conduct medal, European theater ribbon with four battle stars and the Combat Infantryman's badge.

Sergeant Simko is married and lives with Mrs. Simko and their four children in Columbus.

Col. Holloran Gets TIC Duty

Col. Michael E. Holloran has been appointed Infantry Center special services officer, it was revealed this week.

Colonel Holloran came to Fort Benning from Japan where he served as commander of the 24th Infantry regiment. He was in the Pacific theater during World War II with the 98th Infantry division.

The colonel graduated from the Infantry School in 1927 and served here from 1927 until 1936 with the 26th and 124th Infantry divisions.

He was in a good mood by combining a quality of humor with instruction to create as much relaxed interest as possible.

His human approach, Airborne officials added, plus his broad background of experience have made him an invaluable asset to the Airborne department.

STOPPED FOR SLEEP
Young Vagabonds Found
After Nocturnal Outing

The children of Cpl. Mercer G. Reed, Company C, 15th Infantry, can certainly say "experience is the best teacher."

Early this week, the three youngsters, Charlie, Butch, and Billy, all in the post-adolescence were left with friends one night when Corporal and Mrs. Reed went to the movies. The couple returned, the trio of children had disappeared from their Harmony church living quarters.

A hasty search by the Reeds proved to be futile. Frantically, the couple called the field office of the day.

Maj. Harold W. Rodenmayer, P.O.D. at the time of the distress call, summoned help from the Harmony church training units in the form of 60 enlisted men and one officer. He had to arouse the men from their sleep.

The post-adolescent members of the First battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, were called for help was issued at 10 p.m. Less than 30 minutes later, Maj. Rodenmayer had dispatched the men in trucks, and they combed the wooded areas with flashlights.

At 10:35 p.m., the trio of wanderers was found at the foot of a large tree, soundly sleeping under a G. I. comforter, less than 50 feet from their home.

Maj. Rodenmayer, speaking wisely, warned that youngsters wandering at night might not be as fortunate. He said he had

Between 7:10 and 8 a. m. traffic arriving at the intersection of Benning boulevard via Old Lumpkin road enters the right lane of Benning boulevard and continues in the right lane to the intersection of Clark and Sigentons roads, where it is shunted into Clark road.

Traffic arriving at the intersection of Old Lumpkin road via Benning boulevard enters the left lane of traffic, upon signal of military police stationed at the intersection, and continues in the left lane on Sigentons to Vibbert avenue.

This double lane of traffic, military police officials stated, flows from 7:10 to 7:30 a. m. and from 7:35 until 8 a. m. Outgoing traffic is detained at outpost No. 1 during these periods.

Regulations for traffic leaving the post between 4:30 and 5:30 p. m. were also re-stated.

Drivers desiring to leave the reservation via Old Lumpkin road should approach the intersection of Vibbert avenue and Lumpkin road from Vibbert avenue. At the intersection Vibbert road traffic turns into the left lane, and continues through outpost No. 1 to the intersection of Old Lumpkin road and Benning boulevard where a left turn into Old Lumpkin road is made.

Those who wish to leave the post via Benning boulevard approach the intersection of Lumpkin road and Vibbert avenue from Lumpkin road, where they enter the right lane of traffic. They must continue in the right lane until they have left the reservation.

The double lane regulations governing outpost traffic are in effect between 4:30 and 4:50 p. m. and from 5 until 5:30 p. m. Incoming traffic is detained at the intersection of Old Lumpkin road and Benning boulevard during the 20-minute periods. The regulations apply to weekdays only. The Bayonet Welcomes You Today, 71 of the nation's top industrialists, bankers, educators, civic leaders and journalists arrive at the Infantry Center for a two-day inspection tour.

These distinguished visitors, the opinion molders of the nation, are here to attend a joint civilian orientation conference at the personal invitation of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

While here as guests of the Infantry Center, they will be oriented as to the latest trends in infantry weapons, technique and thought.

Tomorrow they will witness two of the Infantry School's most spectacular demonstrations. They will see the famous weapons demonstration, climaxed by the awe-inspiring "mad minute." They will also see our airborne battalion in training and will witness an actual mass jump.

Saturday, they will see the war-famed Third Infantry division pass in review and watch another Infantry School demonstration, the infantry-artillery-tank team in the attack.

This is indeed a great honor for Fort Benning, for this is the only post these men will visit. It shows to the world that the infantry is not outmoded, that it's here to stay.

But our distinguished visitors aren't the only ones visiting the alma mater of the army. Newsreel cameramen are here to capture the spirit of the infantry on film, and prints are to be made available to commercial newsmen and television throughout the world.

That Benning should be chosen as host to these important people and to the top military schools is readily understandable. Throughout the world, the reputation of the Infantry School is known and respected. Just as infantry is queen of battle, so is the Infantry School queen of the service schools. The efficiency of its courses, the proficiency of its instructors and the calibre of personnel who graduate from the school are known and admired the world over.

In spite of radios and newspapers going overboard on the atom bomb, guided missiles, germ warfare, super-carriers and super-bombers, no substitute has yet been found for the infantry. It's still GI Joe with his rifle and supporting weapons who decides who remains on what strip of ground.

So long, then, as there's an infantry, there will be an Infantry School. And so long as the Infantry School remains the nation's leading service school, there will be distinguished visitors from this nation and from all the friendly powers in the world.

When these leading citizens leave Lawson airforce base Sunday, they will take with them the story of the infantry: what we do, how we live, how we fight and how our weapons are likely to stack up against an aggressor hell-bent on world destruction.

We are confident they will leave here boosting the Doughboy. They will know the infantry's mission and its capabilities. But, more important, they will know that no one has yet come up with a substitute for the guy with the guts, with the gun — GI Joe, the infantryman.

The Infantry Is Here to Stay

On behalf of Fort Benning's 30,000 soldiers and civilians, The Bayonet welcomes you members of the joint civilian orientation conference to the most renowned institution of its kind in the world—the Infantry School.

During your two-day visit here, you will see one of the most beautiful military school buildings in the world. You will have the world's latest and finest weapons shown to you and fired for you in spectacular demonstrations.

You will receive instruction based on the most recent infantry doctrine, current information concerning the weapons and arms, and interpretative lectures and discussions designed to promote understanding of the role of infantry in battle.

So welcome to the Infantry Center and its famed units, the Third Infantry division and the Infantry School. May your stay here be both pleasant and profitable.

Presidential Fact-Finders Avert Steel Strike

NATIONAL AFFAIRS—A presidential fact-finding board averted a threatened steel strike this week and union and management returned to man-to-man bargaining. Truman went to the "grass roots" for a while and talked to farmers about congress and farmers' problems. Senator John Foster Dulles, New York, announced that he intended to run for the senate seat he holds by appointment. The special election will be held in November. When it was announced he decided to run, Dulles looked at the way he thinks things are going in Washington and said, "My own conscience wouldn't have it otherwise." "Mr. Republican," Ohio Senator Robert Taft, did his share of seed-sowing when he toured a non-union rubber factory and spoke to a gathering of 400 Ohio clubwomen. Well received in most places, Taft was hoisted at the Cleveland air races by two unidentified men sitting in the spectator section marked "public officials."

The late Franklin Roosevelt's last appointee to the supreme court, Wiley Rutledge, died this week. President Truman is faced with the problem of making another appointment to the court, his second within a few months, and avoid charges of dispensing political patronage.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS—Tito's independence of Russia paid off in the form of a $20,000,000 loan from the U. S. Export-Import bank. More than half will be used to rebuild Yugoslavia's war-torn mining industry, the rest for motor trucks and other equipment. To maintain his stand of independence from Russian influence, Tito sent two of his top men to the United Nations meeting at Lake Success. Hungarian workers were attacked in communist-controlled newspapers, in Budapest last week, for being lazy. One paper said that one section alone, the state cattle administration, reported 500 employees absent on sick leave.

When investigated, only one of the 500 could be found, and he was celebrating his wedding.

FOREIGN NEWS—Germany, struggling to ward some sort of self-government, held its first meeting of its new parliament. Disputes arose, including whether or not "Deutschland uber Alles" should be played at the opening. Communists did their best to embarrass attempts to speak sanely and realistically, but were squelched by Paul Lobe, temporary president of the Bundestag and long a fighter against Hitler. At the conclusion of the meetings, Berlin communists were shouting that it had been "the blackest day in German history." In Britain Laborites found themselves in an embarrassing position. Former union leaders found themselves in the position of management and were forced in some cases to make decisions against policies they espoused as union leaders.

HUMANITY AT WORK?—Police in Rochester, Minn., laid bare a major operation when they caught up with a man who, dressed in a surgeon's gown, visited the hospital floors of the Kahler hotel. He told a patient to roll over, took $74 from his wallet, and said, "Your back looks O.K. to me."

FRESS—Last week a United Nations committee called the Haitian press one of the worst trained in the hemisphere. There are more than 50 newspapers in Haiti, but no journalism. To combat the state of bad reporting and sometimes libelous editorials, the Haitian government persuaded Edith Ebron, wife of an American businessman in Haiti, to start a school. All but one of the professional newsmen flunked the course.

SPORTS—Assault and Symie, top money-winning horses, raced again, after treatment for injuries, in the Edgemere handicap at Aqueduct. Assault came in third, and Symie finished last but was still cheered.

Nations Fall When God Is Forgotten

By CHAPLAIN ROBERT P. OANIS
During the war it was not at all uncommon to see churches crowded with worshippers. Newspapers, radios, and periodicals made such mention of this great spiritual revival.

Many lofty promises were made to God during these years of uncertainty—promises of more faithful observance of religious obligations—promises to support our churches more generously—promises to conduct our lives according to religious teachings.

Then came the day of victory. Some of these promises were kept and are now expressing themselves in postwar reconstruction programs going on in the name of the church.

The vast majority of these promises, however, will never be kept. They are already forgotten. The great revival of interest in spiritual things is no more. The pews of our churches are empty again. Those who have come back are now removed from any immediate dangers, and the God Who preserved them is forgotten.

Scripture parallels this condition in the story of the ten men who came to Jesus to be cured of leprosy. All were cured, but only one returned to give thanks. And the question Jesus asked him, and the question we must ask of ourselves is: "Where are the nine?" Can it be possible that nine out of every ten Americans were so selfish in their motives for seeking God that once God had satisfied their need they no longer sought Him, nor felt any obligation toward Him? Can it be true, that you are one of those nine? If this be true, then America take heed! History's pages are crammed with the stories of nations that have fallen because God was forgotten. It can also happen to us.

It is the individual's responsibility to accept the challenge of these words and set himself right with God. And the right way to begin is by going to church next Sunday.

RIDE 'ER THUNDERJET!—Jet jargon is forgotten. Hamilton airforce base, Calif., pilots simply cite Joan Ann Pederson as the "girl we'd like to have delivered with each new Thunderjet". Incidentally, she's also Miss California.

To Amuse You Today

Salior's Wife: "Honey, have you ever wondered what we'd do if you had Aga Khan's income?"
Bluecoat: "No, but I've wondered what he'd do if he had mine."

The couple was late. They stood stewing on the platform.
He: "If you hadn't taken so long to dress we would have caught that last train."
She: "Yes, and if you hadn't rushed me, so, we wouldn't have to wait for the next one."

The soldier and girl friend were leaving the park concert.
Chick: "George, you should not have kissed me there in the park. Lots of people were around."
Sgt: "I didn't kiss you. But if I ever find out who did, I'll teach him a thing or two!"
She: "George, you couldn't teach him anything."

Happiness is when you feel like scratching, and you don't itch.

Pic: "Why are you wearing those glasses to bed?"
Cos: "Well, I want to get a better look at that girl I dreamed about last night."

Marriage Consultant: "You must remember that marriage is a matter of give and take."
Disgruntled Husband: "Yeah, but what she's got to give, I can't take."

Housewife: (over back fence) "Your story reminds me of Clarence. He once decided he wanted to be king of the house."
Gossip-mate: "What did you do?"
Housewife: "I crowned him."

THE SURE THING by MERLE MILLER. WILLIAM SLOAN ASSOCIATES, NEW YORK, PUBLISHERS.
BY D. W. SCHAEFER

Although newspapers hummed for many months with the story of Brad and Mrs. Alger Hiss, the trial finally slipped from the headlines. Merle Miller however, kept it in her head. "The Sure Thing" follows, fictionalized, of course, the track of the case, and Brad and Laurie are easily identified with the communist spy sensations.

The background of the book is laid in Washington with many headline names only slightly veiled as characters in the book. There are a well known party giver, a chairman of a house committee and federal bureau of investigation agents, all as familiar as yesterday's headlines.

Brad is a trusted member of the state department, but in his youth displayed what turned out to be an unfortunate passion for justice. Passions for justice, often misleading, led Brad to join the communist party. He was in the party for a year, but gave up his membership and went on to earn for himself a responsible position in shaping his country's policy.

The FBI and investigating committees find out about his youthful associations and the resulting turmoil makes the book. The sections describing the cold-fermiency with which the evidence is gathered are perhaps the most frightening in the book. Going far back into Brad's life and the life of his wife, Laurie, the agents find spite, hatred, loyalty, revenge, all possible motives.

Miller draws the people as though they had been waiting for just such an opportunity to get back at Brad because he was "so serious and different".

The overall effect is good in that it is a faithful account of a man's mistakes catching up with him. The major characters are, however, not really believable. Several minor characters, Brad's Secretary Miss Eisenstein for example, are excellently drawn and entirely true to life. One can believe in the pettiness of the Miss Eisenstein in the book, but the vague reactions of Brad and Laurie do not add to the quality.

The feeling which results from reading the book is one of dissatisfaction. It is not complete, and life in the characters is lacking. The idea is there, the plan is there, but Miller doesn't quite get it across.

The novel is, however, good reading because it describes something which doesn't often come to the eye: a close-to-home description of what bigotry, fear and witch-hunt entail.

It also illustrates that somehow we cannot avoid things being that way, that we must do something to ferret out treason, but that the methods we must use are distasteful to us. Not a major work of fiction, no, but a work which should interest most Americans.

Susan Trent Radio Program Features Interview With Benning Scout Heads

Mrs. George Gerhart, Girl Scout commissioner, Mrs. M. C. Taylor, new Scout leader, and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, council secretary, were interviewed by Susan Trent over WGBA on her 11:30 broadcast Wednesday morning. Mrs. Trent on the subject of Girl Scouting in Germany and the Far East...

She said that the first contingent of Americans arrived in the zone in May and June, 1948 and by fall of that year girls and boys were asking for scout troops. The interview was held in an organization, she explained, has not recognized scouts in Germany since the time of the occupation by Hitler...

"We really cannot tell of all the work done in organizing Girl Scouts in Germany," Mrs. Gerhart remarked, "but when we left to return to the States, there were two troops, one at Salzburg, and other cities and villages in the occupation zone."

Boy Scouts

Fort Benning Troop 27 finished the second of its two requirements hikes at 3 p. m. Saturday. The first hike was held Sept. 10.

The purpose of both hikes was to qualify scouts as Boy Explorers in tracking, stalking and camp cooking. Scouts Rietje and Aken passed their second class cooking test on Sept. 10, and Scouts Asten, Rietje, and Brooks also passed their second class cooking test. The Boy Explorers, headed by Bill Ricker, met on Sept. 10, while Scoutmaster Col. G. B. Fickett marked trail Sept. 17, assisted by Boy Explorer Bernd Baetzke and Troop Librarian Elton White.

Scouts Clarkson, Ricker, Ruckert and Doty received awards for the monthly court of honor Sept. 20 at the Muscogee county court house. The national roll call form was held at 9:30 a. m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, at the Polo Hunt club. There are several vacancies in the troop occasioned by transfers of fathers to other duty posts.

They were the first American girls to come into that district after the occupation. The interview closed with a few remarks by Mrs. Gerhart on the value of scouting. "Army children move around a lot," she said, "and it teaches a girl to be self-reliant, companionable and to make new friends easily at every post." It teaches them the ideals of good citizenship and the promotion of good will at home and abroad. She concluded by making another plea for leaders and volunteers in active units as well as other phases of the Scouting program.

Nuptial Mass Unites Couple

The Infantry center Catholic chapel was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony Saturday. The bride and groom were the bride of Lt. Alfred G. Melby and the groom, Capt. A. C. Zielenki. The ceremony was held at 7 a. m. before a small assemblage of close friends.

Capt. Masolo Sugi Hari, gave the bride in marriage. Attendants were Mrs. James Connelly, Jr., and Lt. Manuel De Moya. The bride was radiant in a white marquisette over-sleeve wedding gown, designed with lace and white orchids at the shoulder ending in a choker necklace. Her hair was styled in a cascade and she wore a Juliette lace cap featuring seed pearls in the lacy pattern, to which was attached a short veil of bridal tulle. Her only jewelry was a two-strand pearl necklace, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white lilies and gladioli arranged in a unique design on a stretched lace fan. Long streamers of baby white tulle were knotted with sprays of stefanotis.

A wedding breakfast and reception was held following the ceremony in the Rose room of the Officers' club. Tables were arranged in a U-shape with cadena runners down the center, forming an attractive pattern with bowls of mixed autumn flowers, interspersed with papers. Flags of 20 nations, together with the general's flag and the stars and stripes made an appropriate setting for the official party.

In the receiving line were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. W. A. Burress, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. F. W. Clark, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. J. S. Bradley and Big Gen. and Mrs. Robert B. Hill. In a brief after-dinner talk General Burress welcomed the students to Fort Benning, and expressed the hope that they would enjoy their schooling and participate in school matters and sports.

Col. Dabir Siaghi, of the Iranian army, speaking on behalf of the students with his wife as interpreter, replied that it made them very happy to be here and opportunity would have an opportunity to meet friends and acquaintances around the Post. The couple left later in the trip to Atlanta, Ga. For travel the bride wore a x m a r t i l l y tailor-made suit of sheer wool, in a shade of moss green, with black accessories, and her corsage was of sweetest roses.

The couple will leave Fort Benning today on an extended motor tour of the United States before returning to their home in Manchester.

Mrs. Mary Harlowe, director of Service Club No. 4, announces a special feature attraction for her informal dancing party tomorrow night.

During intermission, an overhanging net of balloons will be released, some of which are tagged with numbers. The lucky men who capture such a balloon will be presented with prizes ranging from cigarettes and toilet articles to handkerchiefs and ties. The second in a series of blind date parties is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 28, Mrs. Manlove said.

Girl Scouts Benning Ceremony Reunites 'Century' Division Veterans

Over 100 Girl Scouts met at the Fort Benning Little House with parents, Scout leaders and members of the Scout council for their big rally last Friday at 4 p.m.

Mrs. J. N. Miner, Columbus, and Mrs. Tom Crawford, New York, currently directing the class of scout leaders at the Columbus Little House led the group in games and songs.

Mrs. Henry Mastro, vice president of Fort Benning Chapter No. 3, National Spoumners of America, presented the colors to the Girl Scouts as a gift of the organization. The following Scouts, representing the three age levels in scouting, brownies, intermediates and seniors, accepted the colors.

Katherine Hayes, brownie, Jacqueline Yeager, intermediate, Barbara Young, senior.

The Rally day ceremony closed with a salute to the flag, the Girl Scout promise repeated in unison, and taps.

The council said this week that more leaders are urgently needed as well as volunteers to assist in arts and crafts and other phases of the scout program planned for this year. Those interested are requested to call Mrs. George Gerhart, 2630, Mrs. B. G. Baetcke, 2303, or Mrs. C. Frisby Coles, 3-607.

Girl Scout troops will start their fall meeting the first week in October.

They are Lawrence N. Wiseman, Robert W. Weisbret, William D. White, Matthew J. Smith, Glendel C. Mercer, James M. Ward, Orville Campbell, Jr., Maynard S. Matheny, Sherman H. Richards, Clarence E. Rouch, Donald C. Fuller, Verlin E. Cooper, Dallas W. Carlton, Robert E. Davis and Earl Johnson.

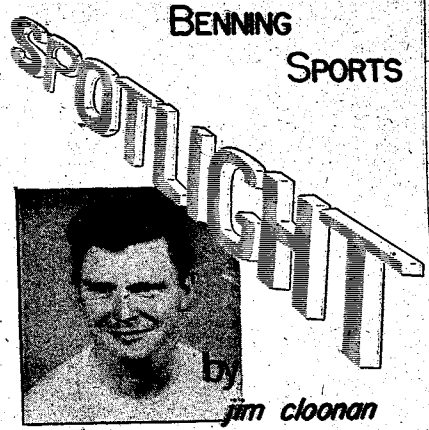

Canis Baptism At TIC Chapel

Otto Romeyn Canis, infant son of Chaplain (Capt.) and Mrs. Robert P. Canis, was baptized during the Lutheran service at the Infantry Center chapel Sunday. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Peters performed the baptismal ceremony.

Mrs. and Mrs. Winston G. Whall stood in proxy for Miss Canis, the 24-year-old daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Long Island, N. Y., and Herbert B. Canis of Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y., godparents.

The baptism was performed on the 15th wedding anniversary of the child's parents. For his baptism Otto wore the dress worn by his sister Margaret at her baptism 24 years ago. The little white tufted coat which his brother Robley wore at his baptism ten years ago. The little white tufted dress was made especially for the ceremony by his aunt, Miss Lucy Canis.

The child was born at Station hospital, July 1. His father, Chaplain Canis, is assigned to the 14th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division.

Congratulations are in order for the splendid Camp Campbell baseball team, the newly crowned diamond champions of the army. The squad's play throughout the tournament was excellent despite a brief let-down in the game with the Fourth Army entry from Fort Bliss, Tex., in the first game last Sunday afternoon.

When thinking of Camp Campbell, we seem to remember two outstanding players from that squad. Dick Kinney, 23-year-old hurler, and John Platt, outfielder, were the two players who distinguished themselves during the grueling eight-day tournament. Kinney, former West Point and Doughboy star, hurled his team to three of its four victories, while Platt paced his team at the plate banging out three homers. Platt during and after the tournament was besieged by major league scouts but turned down all offers in favor of a college grid career at Auburn. Platt's batting style so much resembles that of the late Lou Gehrig that a person gets the feeling he is watching the old Iron-Horse during his hey-day with the Bronx Bombers.

It would be unfair to discuss the tournament without passing out words of praise to all the teams which took part in the G. I. World Series. All the team members conducted themselves as gentlemen both on and off the field and were a credit to the commands they represented and the units to which they were attached. It would be next to impossible to pick out the stars of the various teams since it was truly a tournament of all stars.

The most vivid example of the spirit prevailing at the tournament in our opinion was displayed not on the playing field but in the dining hall where the teams ate. We had entered the dining hall for the express purpose of congratulating Maj. Joseph Bennett of the Fort Monmouth team on the excellent showing his team had made in the tournament. His team had just lost an 11-inning thriller to the Far East which eliminated the squad from the tournament. As we approached we noticed that the major's eyes were filled with tears. We realized then that the major, now with the pressure off, not only regretted the tournament loss but was filled with pride at the outstanding record his team had accomplished during their three tournament games.

For with the youngest team in the tournament, Monmouth had never argued with the umpires or questioned the decisions. A poll of the umpires later proved that the team had been the most sporting squad in the tournament. When the lads return to New Jersey they should hold their heads high, for although they won no trophy, they will have the everlasting respect of other ballplayers, the umpires and the fans who saw them perform.

While on the subject of baseball, we would like to give a few words of praise to one of our own Fort Benning Doughboys whose steady play has been a guiding factor in the Doughs' success during the past three years. The young man of whom we are speaking is Herb Laue, stellar first baseman of the Benningites. Herb performs around the initial bag like an old time pro although he is only 24. He is the most graceful first baseman we have ever seen, outside the major leagues, and he packs a terrific wallop with his big bat. This season Herb tied for the homerun championship of the intra-army league and was adjudged the best fielding first baseman in the loop.

Following the post season, Herb joined the Benning team for the third straight year and belted three homers during the eight-team games the Doughs played. His homer against Fort Belvoir, Va., in the army-wide tourney was the first in the series. He had the top fielding average of the regular Dough infielders and saved his teammates countless errors with his expert defensive play. Although pursued by several major league scouts, Herb has decided to make the army a career and may be around to help the Doughboys again next year.

Army-Wide Tiara Won By Campbell

Falcons Drop Dough Team In Title Play

74,000 View Service Classic

Paced by the brilliant hurling of Righthander Dick Kinney, the Camp Campbell, Ky., Angels whitewashed the Fort Bliss, Tex., Falcons, 9-0, last Sunday to become the first army-wide baseball champions in history.

The contest was the second game of a double-header played at 4,000 fans. In all, 74,000 witnessed the 19 tournament games played over an eight-day period on the Gowdy turf.

Kinney, formerly a Doughboy, won three of four in the tournament victories, including the only shut-out of the series.

Campbell opened the scoring in the second game when John Platt drilled a long single to the right field corner with the sacrifice, scoring two runs. The Angels added two more in the next inning as the bases started. Whitley Skinner to the showers. The scoring occurred when Tom Barrett pitched over the foul pole in deep left field for a homerun. The Campbell team was forced to play a twin-bill when it dropped the first game Sunday afternoon to the Bliss nine, 6-5. The defeat for the Kentuckians marked their first loss in the tournament.

The Doughboys opened the scoring in the top of the third when Tom Gallagher strolled and rode home on Bill Kovalak's long single to right. The Doughs threatened again in the seventh when Herb Laue singled and attempted to go to third when fielder Bill Williams erred. Williams, however, made a quick recovery and threw Laue out at third base. The play was the last time the Doughs were in scoring position.

Third Baseman Rudy York opened the top of the sixth for the Falcons by drilling a long single to right. Bob Ganning moved him up with a sacrifice, but Vince Johnson filed out to left fielder Jim Childers. The second out. Jim Childers then tied the score with a line single to right, scoring York. Childers advanced to second on the throw in. Second Baseman Bob Kinard drilled a long single to the right fielder, allowing Childers to score from second with the deciding run of the game.

Both managers started their ace hurlers and pitched them to an entire distance. Dick Kinney tossed the rubber for the Falcons and limited the Benningites to six hits and one run.

Herb Laue walked only one. He received credit for the win, his second of the tournament. Kinney's route for the Doughboys, leaving up six hits also. He whiffed six in the second game. Kinney's was his first defeat of the tourney and of the season.

73 Artillerymen Visiting Atlanta

The 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion sent 25 men to Atlanta to visit the center in Atlanta this week.

While there, the men will have an opportunity to visit the federal penitentiary, the famed Cyclorama at Grant park, and an entire distance. Dick Kinney tossed the rubber for the Falcons and limited the Benningites to six hits and one run.

Chicks Dump Monmouth In 11-Inning Thriller, 4-1

The Eighth Army Chicks, reportedly by being thrown out at the mound, scored three runs in the top of the eleventh inning last Sunday night to win a 4-1 victory over the First Army with a run in their half of the entry. Fort Monmouth, N. J. squad had won one at last one consecutive one for the Chicks.

Herbes on the mound, the Chicks were Chubby Stubbs, who doubled home Evan Gammitt with the winning run in the eighth and Big Tim Hightower, who relieved starter Tom Barrett.

The victory was the second straight for the Chicks to receive credit or the win.

Following the post season, Herb joined the Benning team for the third straight year and belted three homers during the eight-team games the Doughs played. Turkish Officers Study Here

Five first lieutenants in the Turkish army are attending the Infantry School associate basic course No. 2 which began Sept. 12. Attending the course with 155 United States officers from all branches of the service, the men will receive 13 weeks training in infantry tactics, designed for company grade officers. Although the Turkish officer representatives are billeted in the Sixth company bachelor officer's quarters, they have managed to inject a touch of Near Eastern influence into the decor of their rooms with such things as wall rugs and Turkish art objects. Like their fellow students the foreign officers were required to go through processing after their arrival before they could attend classes. Rooms and books must be assigned, class and automobile registrations must be made, post exchange and club cards must be secured and numerous other small details attended to. The agency responsible for the entire processing procedure is the Student Training regiment, which houses, feeds and administers to all students, both United States and foreign, attending classes at the Infantry School. All foreign students in associate basic course No. 2 are assigned to Sixth company, Student Training regiment. Turkish officers attending the course are 1st Lts. Muhsin Soy Turk, Muzaffer Toksavul, Ragib Ulugbay, Ahmet F. Yilmakhatel, and Emin Kaya.

MPs to Celebrate Birthday of Corps

Food, food and more food, will be the main focus of attention at the Fort Benning military police eighth anniversary party next Monday and Tuesday evenings. The menu for the annual pig barbecue calls for more than 600 pounds of meat, with plenty of barbecue sauce, and a gigantic anniversary cake tipping the scales at an even 100 pounds. Supplementing the two main courses will be quantities of typical picnic food, such as salad and ice cream and cold drinks. Nearly 800 invitations have been issued for the large celebration and all members of the organization, their families and 400 guests are expected to attend. Personnel from Section I of the Military Police detachment are scheduled to have their party at the Polo Hunt club, Sept. 26 and 27. The Section II party will be held at the 15th Infantry regiment's Noncommissioned Officers club Monday evening only and music for this part of the celebration will be by the Six Clouds of Joy.

All parties will start at 7 p.m. The history of today's Corps of Military Police is a short but active one. The corps was created shortly before the beginning of hostilities in World War II when Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, the army's Judge advocate general, was directed to establish the office of the provost marshal general and the Corps of Military Police in July, 1941. Working individually, and in cooperation with federal and local officials and agencies, the Corps of Military Police has eliminated or reduced many problems. Among the jobs handled by military police at Fort Benning are motor traffic direction, enforcement of regulations, school traffic direction, escort details, registrations investigations and various types of emergency work. Lt. Col. Alvin B. Welsh, provost marshal of Fort Benning, assumed these duties March 27, 1949, relieving Lt. Col. Edwin H. Ferris.

Col. Welch is a native of San Antonio, Tex., and came into the army in July, 1933. He saw service during the war with II Corps in Sicily and with the First Army through Belgium, France and Germany. He was integrated into the regular army in July, 1947. Colonel Welch has been awarded the Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster, Purple Heart, two Belgian Croix de Guerre and numerous other service medals.

Iranian Red Lion Lady Studies U.S. Methods

BY LES TIBBETTS When they talk about the beautiful and mysterious-looking women of the near-east, they might well be speaking of Badri Dabir Slaghi.

The attractive brunette wife of Iranian Col. Ghadratolah Dabir Slaghi, an Infantry School student, apparently has brains as well as beauty—a winning combination.

In her "home town" of Teheran, Iran she holds an important position on the national committee of the Red Lion and Sun Society, the Modern version of the Red Cross, and she is continuing her work here by making a survey of United States Red Cross methods and programs.

Writing a striking white uniform with the insignia of the Red Lion society, Badri is starting a tour of Fort Benning and the United States Red Cross chapter activities this week.

She is particularly interested in hospital and family service work and in the "blood" banks. (Badri's English has just enough accent in it to fascinate her listeners.)

Although only 29 years old, Badri has been married 13 years. Several days each week she visits wards with the recreation workers, and on Wednesdays and Fridays she is planning to work with the social service workers at the Fort Benning Red Cross chapter house.

"I am not really 'working,'" she explains. "I am just observing and hunting for new ideas to take back home with me."

The Red Lion society is a very strong organization in Iran, Badri concluded, and even to government officials participate actively in the society's programs.

Before continuing on his 40,000-mile world tour, Mr. Courtney will visit other Third Army installations, Fort Bragg, Ft. C. and Camp Gordon and Fort McPherson, Ga., have been placed on his week-long itinerary.

His tour of army posts throughout the nation has been arranged through the Information and Education department of the Army. It is in stride with the first step-up program of education for the soldier.

Next weekend, the itinerant will be in the Northwest where he will board a specially authorized air force plane for a flight over northern polar regions.

Mr. Courtney says the purpose of his globe-circling trip is to gather material for a series of articles he plans to do shortly. He is submitting material daily to his London office.

The Falcons played head-up in the clutch, enabling them to be returned the victors. The win marked the second time during the tournament that the Falcons had defeated the Eighth Army Chicks.

The Falcons tallied all their runs in the bottom of the second as the Chicks defense fell apart. Bob Knoke led off the frame by reaching first on an error by Chick Shortstop Joel Allen. Hank Alberts followed with a single, sending Knoke to third. Mac McCollough singled, scoring Knoke, and Alberts scored as Second Sacker Carl Dent errad on Rudy York's grounder. The final run was scored by McCollough, who stole home.

In his hand, was his famous movie camera. Mr. Courtney, who has left his trade mark of "camera in hand" wherever he's gone, began to take pictures of the students descending in parachutes. Major Mansfield turned to the guest and asked if he would like to drop in a buddy-seat chute just for the thrills.

Requiring no coaching or urging from his aide and other officials gathered around, the short and bricky-stepping columnist hopped into the seat harness with Major Mansfield. The two were hauled and dropped from 250 feet.

Mr. Courtney's only comment after the rapid descent: "Whew. Righto. That is tricky!" The party continued to the Light Aviation section where the visitor was given his first ride in a helicopter. Even as they stepped into the cockpit, lifted from the ground with Lt. Hartwig Stephenson at the controls, Mr. Courtney was aiming his amazing camera at the rapidly disappearing objects below.

Red Cross Lists '49 Expenditures

BY MURRAY HILL A report on Red Cross expenditures last year showed $17,000,000 was spent for services to the armed forces.

There are still more than 2,000 Red Cross workers serving U. S. troops, at hundreds of army and navy posts throughout the world. It was only during the peak years of World War I that a larger number of Red Cross workers served in the field.

The duties of a Red Cross hospital director at a camp or hospital are broadly defined as helping solve personal or family problems that affect the morale and efficiency of the serviceman or that cause the family of the serviceman anxiety.

In carrying out these duties Red Cross field personnel sent 1,000,000 letters and emergency messages; so wherever a serviceman is located today the chances are the Red Cross has

Fort Bliss Falcons Oust Sports Quiz Eighth Army Chicks, 3-2

A gallant Far East command baseball nine fell by the way-side last Friday night as the Fort Bliss Falcons eked out a 3-2 decision, eliminating the PEC team from title consideration.

Although ousted by the team from Japan, the Falcons played head-up in the clutch, enabling them to be returned the victors. The win marked the second time during the tournament that the Falcons had defeated the Eighth Army Chicks.

Col. Buckland Gets Golf Post

Col. D. P. Buckland, Infantry center G-1 has been named chairman of the new golf committee by the Officers' club board of governors. It was announced today by Col. R. E. Tibbets, club secretary.

The new committee becomes effective Oct. 1. Other committee members include Maj. A. J. Hoebecke, tournament; Maj. L. W. McCarty, student representative; Maj. D. Dunlap, course maintenance; Capt. A. C. Parker, publicity; and Sgt. C. H. English, enlisted representative.

Recent Reenlistees Get Duties With 3rd Division Three men of the Third division, who re-enlisted recently, have been assigned duties with the division.

Sgt. A. D. Berry has been assigned to Headquarters, 15th Infantry regiment, while Sgts. Carlton C. Bohon and A. J. Jones have been assigned duty with Headquarters and Infantry division artillery.

Don Gesin, of Service company 15th regiment, turned on the pressure to win the first annual regimental table tennis championship. At regimental headquarters last Thursday, Gesin, in winning, defeated Joe Lavigne 23-21 and 21-10, to take the crown. He defeated Rifleman in the semi-finals by scores of 21-17 and 21-13.

Before entering the Army, Gesin and his partner won the doubles championship of Fort Bragg, Mich.

After winning the regimental title, Gesin began making plans to compete in the Third Infantry division and the Infantry Center tournaments. The Third Division championships will be held at Service club No. 1 from Sept. 27-29 while the Infantry Center championships will be staged at the main gym from Oct. 8 until a champion is crowned. Both division trophies will be team and individual trophies. The top six men in the best tournament of the year will be competing in the Third Army tournament.

2 Sergeants Assigned Sgts. William A. Valente and Earl J. Secum of the Third Infantry division, who reenlisted last week, have been assigned to the 13th Heavy Tank battalion.

SAFETY FIRST—Sliding safely back to first on an attempted pick-off is John Felt of Camp Campbell, Ky. First baseman Mac McCollough covers the bag for Fort Bliss, Tex., while at the extreme left is Pitcher Whitey Skinner, who attempted the pick-off. Action occurred in third inning of first game of finals last Sunday.

A PAIR OF ACES . . . A pair of aces in poker is considered pretty good but when you find a pair of aces in golf, that's excellent. Here are two aces: Frank Goss, left, and Col. Daniel P. Buckland, right. Colonel Buckland recently shot a hole-in-one on the 128-yard fourth hole at the Officers' club course, and club pro, on the 146-yard sixteenth hole. Colonel Buckland used a No. 8 iron to accomplish his shot, while Mr. Goss used a No. 6 iron.

OPERATION BLOOD—Sgt. Andy L. Johnson, 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, smiles as he watches his blood flowing into a container. Red Cross nurse Clara Motts supervises the operation while Nurses Aide Ann Walker lends a helping hand. Sgt. Johnson's blood, along with that of other men of the 73rd, will be packed into refrigerated containers, shipped to Atlanta, and then be converted into plasma, which can be stored until it is needed.

Tank Unit Men Give 300 Pints To Bloodmobile

Members of the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion chipped in with enough blood donations to enable the unit to meet its quota of 300 pints last week when the bloodmobile from the Atlanta Red Cross blood center paid a visit to Fort Benning.

Blood donated to the center is stored in refrigerated containers and shipped to Atlanta where it is used principally in Lawson General Hospital.

According to officials of the blood center, whole blood will keep for only 21 days so large amounts are converted into blood plasma which entails putting the donated blood through 87 tests.

Ex-Airborne Man Named To Head Unit

Lt. Col. Nathaniel R. Hoskot, former paratrooper and military attaché to India, has assumed command of the Third Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, succeeding Lt. Col. Frank J. Sackton, who has been appointed regimental executive officer.

A varied war time career began in 1942 for Colonel Hoskot, then a 3 for the 33rd Infantry Regiment, when he was sent to England to attend a British commando school.

On his return to the U. S., he spent seven months as an instructor at the Amphibious Training Center, Camp Gordon, Ga. In May, 1943, Colonel Hoskot attended the Parachute School at Fort Benning. Upon graduation he was assigned as S-3 to the Second Airborne Brigade and left for Ireland in December of the same year.

Attached to headquarters, 83rd Airborne Division, he "hit the silk" over Normandy during the invasion. He was wounded and captured and spent the next year and a half as a prisoner. He was repatriated through the International Red Cross early in 1945, and after a short period of hospitalization joined the 18th Airborne Corps in Germany as assistant chief of staff, G-3.

When the corps was disbanded, Colonel Hoskot was assigned as assistant military attaché to India.

He left for his new assignment in January, 1948, and, residing in New Delhi, was engaged in military liaison work with general headquarters of the Indian Army until the partitioning of that country.

In December, 1947, he was transferred to Pakistan to establish a military attaché office in Karachi.

Colonel Hoskot returned to the U. S. in August, 1948, to attend the Command and General Staff College. Upon completion of the course, he received his new assignment as commanding officer of the Third Battalion.

He has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and the French Croix de Guerre.

Maximum NSLI Dividend Set at $528, VA Says

Top dividend checks to be younger at the time the policy was issued.

For older veterans the dividend declines gradually until it is 20 cents a month for each $1,000 for veterans 55 or over when the policy was issued.

The scale for dividends: age 21 at issue, 52 cents; 42, 49 cents; 45, 45 cents; 45, 40 cents; 46, 37 cents; 47, 34 cents; 48, 31 cents; 49, 28 cents; 50, 25 cents; 51, 24 cents; 52, 23 cents; 53, 22 cents; 54, 21 cents.

The premium for a national service life insurance at age 21 is 85 cents. A veteran who took out a policy at that age will get a dividend.

The maximum payment of $528 is based on a $10,000 policy in force for 36 months on a valuation 40 or less when the policy was taken out.

The dividend will be paid at the same rate on both term and converted policies but no payments will be made for periods of lapse, VA officials said.

"The scale does not apply," was added, "to insurance of permanent plan which has been surrendered for a reduced paid up amount."

Unit to Start NCO Classes

A series of 40-hour courses designed to improve the training technique of noncommissioned officers of the 15th Infantry Regiment are scheduled to begin Oct. 3.

Regimental officials announced this week.

The courses will run consecutively for eight weeks and are expected to attend each class.

Patterned after a series of classes held recently for Third Infantry division officers, the courses will consist of practical work with emphasis on public speaking and the technique of instruction.

First Lt. Fred G. Anderson will be in charge of the school. Instructors include 2nd Lt. William J. Ober, 1st Lt. Randolph W. Corlew, 2nd Lt. Gerald G. Stokes, 1st Lt. Herbert M. Sexton, M-Sgt. Joseph McNally, Sgt. 1st cl. Harold A. Mitchell, Sgt. Raymond Coleman and M-Sgt. Charles H. Parr.

Post's Washington Editor Outlines TIC Observations

Editor's Note: Beverly Smith, Washington editor of The Saturday Evening Post, recently passed the question: "What's Become of the Infantry?" To find the answer, Mr. Smith visited Fort Benning, one of three observation posts to witness latest tactics and improvements of the stalwart foot soldier. His survey carried him into the field on battle problems with G. I. Joe, to the classrooms of student officers and the conference rooms of staff meetings. He has objectively analyzed the situation as it exists and is offering his criticism and praise in an article in the current issue of the Post. The following summary paraphrases Mr. Smith's detailed account of his observations.

What's Become of the Infantry? When Beverly Smith presented this question, it was, to some measure, subtle opposition to house committees who advocated more money for superionic weapons. In what Mr. Smith calls the timeliness and necessity of such an article, he set out to analyze first-hand what had been done to improve and re-standardize the wartime infantry. The task involved in learning the progress required not long conferences with generals and leading through pages of data—what he called intensive field work—a first-hand experience with the soldier himself. His tour carried him through the dusty mud of maneuvers held in the Carolinas; through the hiving areas of imaginary battlefields at Fort Benning into the barracks and service clubs of the old-time enlisted man. In short, Mr. Smith said he saw the infantry—the real infantry. First of all, he pointed out, Americans have been weaned on the fables of Buck Rogers; that is to say, the dreams of gadgets, superion weapons, scientific inventions to replace the flint, dirt, and bloody horror of ground warfare.

"This, someday, may be true. But he foresees no immediate replacement for the foot soldier. To go back and rebuttal all arguments to his theory Mr. Smith singled out the A-bomb. "We could use atomic bombs on Europe, killing a hundred million of every foe. We might eventually, sometime, somehow, at a terrible cost 'liberate' Europe. But who would be left to welcome us?"

"No," he points out. The A-bomb is not the answer. Certainly, it would destroy the inland industry of our aggressor; it would cripple military training centers. But with hundreds of thousands Europe, leveling everything in their wake, the A-bomb would be fatally defective. These unhampered troops could bridge and effectively employ the industrial of our allies, leaving our hands tied not wanting to slay thousands of enslaved laborers.

The only answer, working under the supposition we must someday face an enemy, is the infantry. Someone must meet the foe face-to-face. Turning to the post-war infantry, Mr. Smith wanted to see if called for intensive field work—a first-hand experience with the soldier himself. His tour carried him through the dusty mud of maneuvers held in the Carolinas; through the hiving areas of imaginary battlefields at Fort Benning into the barracks and service clubs of the old-time enlisted man. In short, Mr. Smith said he saw the infantry—the real infantry. First of all, he pointed out, has directly effected this almost inane reformation. He was quick to add, however, that this alone cannot produce divisions of fighting men capable of withstanding scientific warfare at the hands of a clever enemy. There was something else required.

In visiting field problems, Mr. Smith said he marveled at the sight of so many youthful and enthusiastic men craving outdoor tactical training. Leading these men, not driving, he quickly pointed out, are officers more thoroughly oriented in the handling and direction of personalities, rather than bodies. Without exception, the writer noted, these men cried for more and more training in the field as preparedness against potential enemies.

Now, the way is ready to move. Enthusiasm, youth, training, have prepared them. But it is about the equipment. Mr. Smith a stickler on technical data which pin-points the weakness of our front-line defense, pointed accurately at the weapons of the infantry. He pointed out a series of involved and lengthy paragraphs. Mr. Smith broke down the effectiveness of present weapons and the possible duration against an enemy.

The infantry, he analyzed, the unit that has to fight on foot with the power and courage of a human, must have weapons adapted to its needs and use. It would be nice if G. I. Joe had a M-1 and a M-16. And there would be even nicer if our foot soldiers could single-track the face of an enemy tank without fear, armed only with an M-1, and destroy the tank. "The columnist defines that one factor is a critical point in our national defense: the lack of adequate development in infantry weapons. He considers the development of a highly mobile weapon capable of accompanying airborne troops, to pivot between Russia and the West.

"My own impression, or hunch," he declared, "is that few more million dollars applied at this critical point (developed in the way that is worth the investment)." The ultimate goal of the army, consisting of the infantry, the problem is overcome, is to transport every infantryman by air. He pointed out the apparent necessity of such an advance, saying the next war will require getting there first.

In line with the same theory, he points out the dire need of strong supporting air groups, such as light bomber-fighters for strafing and pre-invasion low-level bombing. The airforce, he said, is currently debating on how its appropriations should be spent: an improved jet plane for strafing tactics, or research and development on its conventional propeller-driven aircraft?

Whatever the decisive move will be, Mr. Smith says, "more emphasis on immediate readiness would help. More intensive training in the use of the new weapons and techniques. More maneuvers. More pressure on a new tank and tank development. More insistence that tactical and transport air be at least enough for any such emergency."

Continuing, he said, "All such things are troublesome and expensive, nor can the army do them alone. It needs the continuing understanding and support of the public and of the congress. Instant military preparedness goes against the grain with Americans in peacetime. We have the habit, from the last two wars, of thinking in terms of many months to mobilize our armies. But instant readiness was once, long ago, a well-known American concept. The minutemen understood its value. Its resolute application today might make all the difference. Our mobile striking forces need not be very large, if its quality is high, and if its readiness to go is figured in hours rather than in weeks or months."

Attention Bayonet Readers! Have Some Fun With This

EDITORS NOTE: We're running this questionnaire again because we want your help in making The Bayonet YOUR paper. The response was somewhat discouraging last week, with only one form answered and returned to the public information office.

The Bayonet is your paper. Therefore, we feel you should be the one to decide what goes in it and what, if anything, should come out.

With that in mind we have prepared a questionnaire which many of you will receive through your regular troop information programs.

But for those whom the ZIP doesn't touch—officers and dependents of officers and enlisted men, in particular—this questionnaire is printed today.

You would be doing us a big favor—and yourself—if you would answer the questions frankly. Clip out this questionnaire and send it to us either through message center or mail. You need not sign your name. And we will certainly read all your remarks. Just address it to Editor, The Bayonet. We'll do the rest. Thanks.

1. What's the first thing you read in The Bayonet?
2. What features do you like?
3. Which do you dislike and why?
4. Do you read the editorial page?
5. If so, what items do you like?
6. What would you like to see omitted?

Medal of Honor Winner Student

Officers enrolled in advanced course No. 1 at the Infantry School can well be proud to count Capt. Ernest Childers among their number. For he holds the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a man in the U. S. armed forces—the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Captain Childers was awarded the medal for action near Oliveto, Italy, on Sept. 22, 1942. At the time, he was a second lieutenant, having received his field commission about 30 days before.

He was in an aid station near the front lines, being treated for a fractured ankle, when word came that the Germans were dangerously near. The aid station was evacuated, but Captain Childers reformed his unit, which was held down by fire from enemy machine guns, strategically located on a commanding hilltop. While his platoon set up protective fire, Captain Childers charged the hilltop, armed only with a carbine, and wiped out all four machine gun nests. Later, Captain Childers was admitted to the hospital for treatment.

T.I.C. TALKS

Question for the Week: What post recreational facilities do you use most and why?

P. F. C. L. E. S. BOBOWSKI, Company H, 15th Infantry regiment: "I guess I go to the movies most. I like most all pictures, except the westerns. Musical are all right, and adventure films, I think, are the most popular all round. Course the baseball games got all of my attention last week. Only missed one on Sunday. I was on duty then."

P. F. C. E. S. SUDA, Company H, 15th Infantry regiment: "I like almost any of the sports I can sit outdoors and watch. The baseball last week was swell, and it looks like we'll have some good football games this winter. I think they should have plenty of outdoor spectator sports. Of course, they may have some"

BOBOWSKI SUDA trouble doing that. Georgia weather is so changeable. I hope the football game gives us good weather as the baseball did."

SGT. WILLIAM E. GAINES, Company B, Infantry School detachment: "Ham radios are my hobby, and I spend most of my time over at W. A. TIC working on them. I go over during the noon hour every day, and after work quite often. I had"

LASKARIS ham station of my own at home. Got Australia place. Here we have contacts all over the world."

P. V. T. DANNY LASKARIS, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Section 1, 344th Area Service unit: "Oh, there's plenty to do on the post. I've been doing a lot of reading recently, history movies often, mainly to adventure films. I like dancing, too, tangoes especially. Been playing volleyball on our outfit's team. There was a lot of interest, and we even took first place in our last tournament."

CPL. S. O. LEDFORD, Company B, Infantry School detachment: "I find plenty to do around here. First of all I like to read, and so I give the library plenty of business. And then I like sun-bathing and fishing, and I can sure get my fill of it at Benning. I've spent the better part of my spare time this summer fishing, and the hunting season will be open about the end of the year. Oh, yes, I went to the baseball tournament, too—and enjoyed it."

Appointees to Two Post Fund Councils Revealed
New officers have been appointed to the Infantry Center's Hobby Shop Fund council and Special Services Fund council. They are Col. Michael E. Dining Steward Adds Title To Long List Of Laurels

SGT. 1ST CL. H. B. GIVENS

Sgt. 1st cl. Harding B. Givens, dining steward of the 378th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance company, whose work in army dining halls in the United States and Europe has brought him many commendations and awards, this week adds the title of "Soldier of the Week" to his laurels.

Long a director of model dining halls, Sergeant Givens has won the 340th Area Service unit's "best dining hall" plaque for the past five months. The award was established six months ago.

Another award, a gold star, went only to the best unit dining hall at Fort Benning, has been in the possession of the 378th Ordnance since November, 1949. The star was presented to the unit last November by Lt. Col. L. J. Fitzpatrick, then Infantry-Center food service supervisor.

These awards, company officials said, illustrate the constantly superior functioning of Sergeant Givens as mess steward.

dom selected Sergeant Givens' as the model dining hall of the area.

He left England in November, 1945, for Norway, where he again set up and operated a model dining hall.

Upon his return to the United States he was assigned to the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds, where he consistently received the post flag for having a superior kitchen.

Coming to Fort Benning in 1949, Sergeant Givens operated a consolidated mess when thousands of men were being separated from the army.

Capt. James M. Pratt has been assigned to the 15th Infantry regiment for duty as S-2. It has been announced that he succeeds Maj. Truman D. Echols, who is now regimental adjutant.

Drum and Bugle Corps Makes Initial Appearance

The newly-formed 23-piece 30th Infantry regiment drum and bugle corps stepped off on Tiger field recently to display the results of two months, instruction and screening.

The retreat parade, held in honor of the winning Company if volleyball team, was the first performance of the snappy unit. The band was formed after expressed a desire to carry on the tradition of the 30th established when it had a band at the Presidio of San Francisco.

M-Sgt. James A. Henderson, S-3 operations sergeant, made the first move in forming the new band. Regimental social services director, Sgt. Alberto Garcia later took charge to continue with training and screening of personnel.

Under the baton of Cpl. Clyde W. Hanks, the new unit participated in several company and battalion parades in preparation for the regimental duties.

Now on detached service, the band consists of Pfc. Robert L. Blikenstaff and Theodore Botetz and Pvt. Joseph L. Doucette, Donald T. Bierman, Julius Avezzano Jr., David A. Luiz, Lewis F. Lewis, Joseph E. Torres, William Katz, Jack D. Snyder, Edward J. Ballard, R. MacFarland, Walter R. McBride, Donald R. Ritter, Howard L. Hiler, Sol Rosenzweig, Willard G. Miller and Howard Slotnick as buglers.

Drummers are Pfc. James J. Bell, Frank G. Vagutz, Albert Tallman and John D. McGrath. Review officers for the parade were Col. Joseph W. Boone, commander of the 30th, and Lt. Col. William J. Blythe, Second battalion commander.

It Was a Hard-Won Victory

The army is going to get its pay raise. Perhaps this hard-won victory will be all the sweeter since bringing the congress over to the defense department's side was not an easy task. Some congressmen, during debate on the bill, complained that the new pay scale favored the officer at the expense of the enlisted man. Some claimed that pay raises for the armed forces would mean getting deeper and deeper into debt. Some claimed increased pay would mean increased taxes.

None of this, of course, is true. First, although general officers' salaries have been increased, they are still far short of those received by their counterparts in civil life. Who can deny that should the general officer suddenly decide to resign his commission, he could take a civilian job at twice the salary he is making in uniform? Furthermore, salaries for enlisted men have been adjusted considerably since late 1940 when the private made only $21 per month and only the highest paid enlisted man could afford marriage.

Secondly, those who fear a greater national debt or increased taxes need be afraid no longer. Secretary of Defense Johnson has already dropped the ax on a large number of officers and has ordered the closing of several wartime installations which are still in operation as well as one permanent post.

As further evidence of his intention to curtail military spending, Johnson recently issued a statement that he would close or drastically curtail any activity which could not justify its continued existence. And the unification measure has saved and will continue to save countless millions of dollars in military expenditures. Indeed we doubt any additional appropriations will be necessary to meet the increased pay.

This first general revision of salaries in forty years is almost as important as any other single appropriation for military spending. Without pay increases it's almost certain that a good number of enlisted men, to say nothing of the many officers who are experts in their fields, would have found civilian life more lucrative. To have lost those officers and men who have contributed so greatly to the national defense would have been disastrous. It took years to create the effective armed force we have today and to endanger that force is to invite trouble.

The Bayonet, not only because it is an organ of the army but because it believes in fair play, has long advocated pay increases for all members of all the branches of the armed forces. Although we have never condoned the slashing of military appropriations, we have understood the reasoning behind it. Such things as European recovery and reduction in the national debt were obviously extremely important in view of the ideological battle which was raging between democracy and communism.

Now, however, the cost of living index shows no sign of falling, military personnel must pay income tax, and the defense department has curtailed its expenditures drastically. As a result, we feel that it is only just that some sort of revision in the pay scale be made.

Most soldiers will never know the part a senator from Kentucky played in the heated controversy, but the sentiments Senator Virgil Chapman expressed in his appeal to the congress certainly bear repeating. We are confident that all soldiers appreciate his interest.

Last Friday, Sept. 23, he spoke the following words: "The officers and men in uniform have seen all groups in civil life receive repeated increases in pay over the past ten years. They are as acutely affected by the rise in the cost of living as any one of us is. Yet, in the face of this set of circumstances, they have suffered an actual decrease in pay, brought about by a chain of events over which they have no control, and in which they could express no voice. These loyal, stalwart men and women have no right of collective bargaining. They cannot demand relief. They could not strike if they would, they would not strike if they could. They could not, if they would, engage in a slowdown in their vitally important task of insuring their country's national security; and they would not if they could. In the meantime, we demand of them the highest standards in the execution of their functions and their performance of duty. They, in turn, are completely dependent upon us..."

Taft Beating Bushes In Re-Election Effort

NATIONAL AFFAIRS—Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), up for reelection in next year's senatorial race, is out beating the bushes in criticism of the administration's foreign policies. He claims that he is not an isolationist, even though he voted against the North Atlantic security pact and the administration's foreign aid program. The Democrats have not decided when they will run against Senator Taft next year.

Senator Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) is touring Europe. Largely responsible for the holdup of the bill to admit displaced persons to the U. S., he is taking three weeks to tour Europe, with a stopover visit to Franco in Spain, to "see how our billions are being expended." Philip Murray, head of the steel workers union, sent a wire to U. S. Steel President Benjamin F. Jones which reacted badly on the steel situation. An expected early agreement was delayed when Fairless refused to (as he saw it) be lead by the nose... John L. Lewis' miners were out again this week. The payments to the UMW's welfare fund has ceased and so far no solution is in sight... Judge Sherman Minton, U. S. circuit court of appeals, was appointed to the Supreme court last week to fill the vacancy of the late Justice Wiley B. Rutledge... The navy is still claiming it is being nibbled to death. Capt. John Crommelin, serving on the staff of the joint chiefs of staff, said last week he had encouraged the B-36 pseudo-scandal and said that he planned to resign to "fight this potential dictatorship from without the service". He was yanked from his job, but the navy transferred him to a better one. Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews heard of it and promptly put him in a less important position.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS—All the reactions to Britain's devaluation of the pound are not in yet. So far most countries affected have gone along and devalued their currency in keeping with the drop of the pound. Most observers feel that there will be no startling results, but there is now a chance to do something about the world dollar shortage... The United Nations fourth general assembly opened last week with an agenda only slightly different from last year. Indonesia, Korea and Israel, the old headaches, are still with the builders' of world peace... Nothing has been seen or heard of Vyacheslav Molotov since he was relieved from his job as Soviet foreign minister six-months ago. Some opinions are that he has been put in charge of Russia's campaign against Tito; others, that he is dead.

SPORTS—"Rocky" Graziano won his first big fight since he was banned in 1946. His opponent, Charlie Fusari, gave him 12 pounds and a whole of a fight. Graziano was licked on points until the last round when he started his old style of slugging attack. The referee stopped the fight with 56 seconds to go, and Graziano made more than $42,000.

HUMANITY AT WORK—A Los Angeles housewife won a divorce when she proved her testimony that when her husband came home at night he kissed the dog before he kissed her.

Report from Washington

Johnson to Suspend Unnecessary Activities

By Armed Forces Press Service
Commenting on the Defense department economy program, Secretary Louis A. Johnson recently stated he would "close or curtail any activity which cannot justify its existence as a necessary part of our current national defense."

Total armed forces strength on August 31, was 1,607,400. A decrease of 9,900 was recorded for the month.

Application deadline for the army's practical nurse training course for Wac personnel has been extended to September 30. Waivers of certain qualifications may be submitted with application. Those completing the course successfully will receive a one-grade promotion, through warrant officer grade. The 48-week course, to be conducted at Walter Reed general hospital, also will qualify trainees for state licenses as practical nurses.

A 32-pounder cannon cast in 1779 will be fired several times daily at the naval gun factory during the week-long celebration of its 150th anniversary, beginning October 2. On exhibition will be all types of naval ordnance from the "long toms" of Revolutionary days to the 16-inchers of World War II. The gun factory is the oldest continuous navy command. Gears for the Panama canal locks were made there.

Approximately 1,800 army reserve officers on active duty, who hold permanent warrant officer appointments, may be asked to choose between commissioned status and warrant grade as the result of a personnel study now under way. The necessity of reserving warrant slots for commissioned officers is held an obstacle to efficient personnel planning, and is preventing promotion of qualified enlisted personnel to warrant grades.

Rated non-regular air officers are being frozen in current assignments in preparation for the release of 3,128 officers under the defense economy program. Purpose of the freeze is to prevent unnecessary movement of officers and their dependents.

Here's What Real Religion Will Do For You

By Chaplain Lonnie W. Knight

What does your religion mean to you? This is a personal question that each of us should face. If we were asked whether we were pagans, we would be greatly insulted. We would not think of throwing away our Bibles. We say we have faith in God, that we are citizens of Christian America. In reality, though, how much difference would it make in your life if you put out of it all the religion you have?

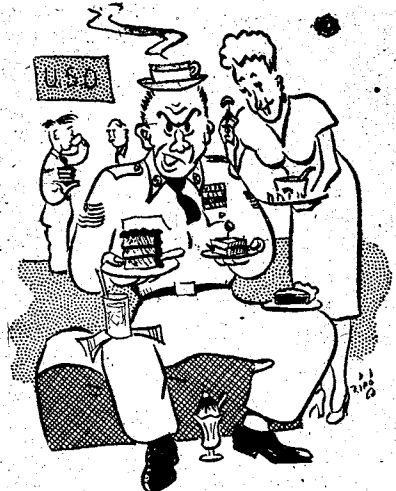

I sometimes fear we have so little religion that what we do have would not be missed. Let's discuss some of the things real religion ought to do for us.

If our religion is real, it should give us faith, hope, security, refuge from trouble, self-confidence, a lovable personality and the desire to help others. It has been said that a Christian is like an airplane. When a plane stops going forward, it falls; the higher it goes, the safer it is. As long as it keeps going forward and upward, it is safe. How true this is of our spiritual life! When one stops going forward in his religious life, he will go down. There is no standing still on the road of religious experience.

day's work is done; but they do not have these things because for them and they are going in the wrong direction. As we travel the road of life from day to day, it is well to stop and see if we are going in the right direction. If not, our religion should give us the change of direction we need.

If our religion is sufficient, it should take away all fear and all sense of defeat. We need to realize that in true religion we are following a Leader who cannot fail. He knows the way and He knows what awaits us at the end of the journey. One of the strange things of true religion is that you become victorious by surrendering.

If our religion is real, it should give us faith, hope, security, refuge from trouble, self-confidence, a lovable personality and the desire to help others. It has been said that a Christian is like an airplane. When a plane stops going forward, it falls; the higher it goes, the safer it is. As long as it keeps going forward and upward, it is safe. How true this is of our spiritual life! When one stops going forward in his religious life, he will go down. There is no standing still on the road of religious experience.

Cpl. "Oh, yeah. Then most of it is poorly invested."
Betty—"Oh, Archibald, you're too slow."
Archie — "I'm afraid I don't grasp you."
Betty — "Yes, that's just it."
The roadster skidded around the corner, jumped in the air, knocked down a lamp-post, smashed three cats, ran against a stone fence, and stopped. A girl climbed out of the wreck.
"Darling," she exclaimed, "That's what I call a kiss!"
Laswell — "Say, Mable, may I come over tonight?"
She — "Sure, John, come on over."
Laswell — "Why, this is not John."
She — "This is not Mabel either."

The middle-aged wife of a middle-aged man in a small town in Ohio is told she is going to die within a year. This, a strong reality, gives rise to many pressing questions in the lives of the couple and creates the impetus for the book. Minerva, childless wife of Henry, wonders what she will leave an orphan when she dies, what her husband will remember about her. Her married life has been comfortable and prosaic, but now she asks herself if she has been happy and if her husband has been happy.
The question startles Henry. For years he has nourished a secret desire to visit St. Louis and even New Orleans. When Minerva approaches him with the question he recalls as though touched on an exposed nerve. St. Louisville lay on the Missouri river, on the banks of the Missouri at Steubenville lay an unused, dilapidated, but still river-worthy house boat. And Minerva had $10,000 in gift-edged stocks.
Everyone thought she was crazy. The bankers, her friends, and even her husband. But she took the money and bought and refitted the houseboat.
While the boat was being put in shape, Minerva is visited by a Mr. Mortimer, who later shows up when the houseboat touches at Nebraska city and travels with her. Mr. Mortimer is death. And Minerva falls in love with him.
Death, in the shape of Mr. Mortimer, brings to the boat a girl, blond, young and suffering from an enlarged heart. Henry is tempted by the girl and Minerva finds solace in Mr. Mortimer.
When they reach Kansas City they embark and go to the circus which is playing the town. There the tent collapses and Minerva and the girl, Nora, are killed. Death has taken the two he has chosen.
A simple tale, no harsh reality, no sordidness, only a metaphysical wandering among thoughts and fancies, but Mr. Nathan has not produced one of his best works.
A fanciful tale, death is always a theme for imagination and effective writing, but Mr. Nathan seems unable to use his imagination.
But this is not Mr. Nathan's first work. He has many novels to his credit, among them "One More Spring," "Portrait of Jenny," many poems and one work of non-fiction.
Thus, "The River Journey" does not add credit to Mr. Nathan's literary fame. It might be an experiment on his part. It may be that the elusive quality in the book is what Mr. Nathan is after. Perhaps he is trying to make us think out the essence of the novel. If one did try to think it out, though, he would be assailed with a feeling of loss. If we were to delve into the implications of the book, we would feel superior to the author because we would use greater imagination than he did in writing the book.

Forty Young Benningites Enroll at Nursery School

The Fort Benning Nursery school, sponsored by the Fort Benning Woman's club, officially opened its 1949-50 school term September 12, with an approximate enrollment of 40. Classes are divided into age groups, with Mrs. Dorothy Thompson in charge of the two-and-one-half to three-year-olds, Mrs. Margaret Few, three- to four-year-olds, and Mrs. Eleanor Campbell, four- to five-year-olds.

The school has been completely renovated and redecorated by members of the Nursery committee and Woman's club and their husbands.

The main assembly room is done in pastel yellow, accented by bright green and red colors in the low work tables and stools, as well as the sandboxes. Large murals, free-hand paintings of Mrs. James Rifehan, adorn three of the walls.

The kitchen and infirmary are done in white, principal offices in pastel green, three-four-year-old class room, green, and the two-and-one-half to three-four-year-old classrooms, pink. Morale room decorations of Mother Goose characters, a large bouquet of zinnias in various shades, and a large bouquet of zinnias in various shades, are provided. In addition, a playhouse, jungle gym, parallettes, monkey bars, slides, teeter-totters and sandbox under a sheltered roof supported by four white columns, and a large white blackboards, rocking horse, and toys for all ages are also provided.

A mid-morning snack of fruit juice and cookies is served daily. Enrollment by age group is as follows: Two and one-half to three-year-olds, Paul Liles, Judy Cassidy, Anne Zimmer, Jane Dunlap, Bobbie Adelman, Andy Smith and Mary Blanchard. Three to four: Barbara

Gibsons Give Farewell Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. O. Gibson entertained with a dinner party in the Rose room at the Officers' club last Friday evening, honoring Lt. Col. and Mrs. Roland Delmar, who are leaving on the next soon.

Miss Dobrosky Feted at Party

Mrs. J. F. Dobrosky entertained last Thursday afternoon at Block 12 NCO club with a birthday party for her daughter, Frances.

Multi-colored balloons were strung in a festive line. Baskets of party candies were set at each place. The long table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, was centered with the birthday cake, embossed in pastel shades, and topped with eight pink candles. Coke and ice cream were served with the cake.

The afternoon's entertainment featured games.

Guests included Ann Mackey, Julie McCullough, Theresa Keenan, Linda Brown, Nancy and Lottie Pittman, Patricia Lockamy, Judy Morrissey, and y LeMay, Frances Baskin, Rose Salmeri, Geraldine Rutledge, Rowena Dawson, Agnes and Maureen Hudson and Frances' two brothers, Tommy and Edward Dobrosky.

Fire Plan Organized

Infantry School detachment dining hall personnel have organized a unit fire plan which includes a special section designed to prevent fire hazards in the unit kitchen.

Young Benningites Corner Boy Scouts

It looks like a tough job ahead for the scouts and boy explorers of Fort Benning Troop 27 when they compete with all troops in the Muscogee district for the Schomburg Trophy, October 22, at Columbus high school.

The trophy will go to the troop getting the largest score during the outdoor field meet. Competition in signalling, water boiling races, first aid tent performance, log pulling, lashing, and wheelbarrow racing is included in the event. Attendance counts one point for each person of the troop in proper uniform.

Twelve cubs are scheduled to graduate into the Boy Scout troop, Thursday, September 29, at the Fort Benning Children's school. An impressive ceremony will mark the transition from cub to Boy Scout for these graduates. S. L. Adams of the Muscogee council, Columbus, will be present to award certificates.

The twelve den chiefs of Troop 27, patrol leaders and senior patrol leaders will welcome new members into the troop. Parents and friends of the scouts and cubs are cordially invited.

The following scouts were appointed den chiefs for the 1949-50 scout year at their regular weekly meeting Sept. 24: Elton Winston, George Doty, John Rodenover, Bobbie Pie, Bill Luther, Karl Baetcke, Phillip Shaughnessy, L. Clark Chislock, Luis Aten, Mark Hardin, Linton Brooks and Bill Crayson.

Other appointments included the promotion of Elton Winston to patrol leader.

The troop will operate the "House of Horrors" booth at the P-T-A Halloween party, in the Main gym October 28.

All members of the Troop are requested to have their duty watch the Infantry Center Daily Bulletin, issue of Sept. 30, for an important announcement regarding this week's meeting.

Social Briefs

Word has come to friends at Fort Benning that Mrs. H. A. Stewart is still in San Francisco, awaiting her port call to join Colonel Stewart in Japan. While she is staying at the Canterbury hotel and sitting in on the trial of Tokyo Rose. Maj. and Mrs. Linden H. Schab drove to Atlanta Sunday to attend a stage performance of "Springtime for Henry", starring Edward Everett Horton, at the Penthouse theater. On the return trip they stopped at Warm Springs hotel for dinner. The Penthouse is something new in theaters—it features a round stage in the center of the auditorium completely encircled by theater seats. After 15 years service at Benning (with the exception of eight months wartime coverage overseas), M. Sgt. and Mrs. C. W. Wilson and Son, Wallace, are from the POE Sunday.

Mrs. Buckland Retained As Head of Golf Group

Mrs. Daniel P. Buckland, who had submitted her resignation as chairman of the Fort Benning Women's Golf Association, is still chairman. At the monthly meeting of the association last Friday, her resignation was not accepted. The tournament schedule for October has been announced. Tournaments will be played every Friday, and anyone who wishes to play but is unable to arrange a foursome, is requested to submit their name to the tournament committee. The committee consists of Mrs. Donald Landon, chairman, Mrs. J. M. Joseph D. Roney, Mrs. Leo Shaughnessy, Mrs. E. Clinton E. Fered, and Mrs. A. E. McCormick. For 25 cents ladies may play all day or at any time during the month. Prizes will be awarded at monthly meetings. The tournament will open tomorrow, Sept. 30, are Mrs. Roney and Mrs. Jones. The schedule features a putting contest.

Officers' Wives Hold Meeting

Officers' wives of the First battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, held their regular luncheon meeting followed by bridge, at the Officers' club, with Mrs. Campbell as hostess. Table decorations featured a fish motif, using a large fish-shaped crystal container of bubbling water, seashells in artistic arrangements and green fish-plate card cutouts with silver trim, which were later used as bridge talismans. Tall green tapers in Chinese brass candleholders completed the table setting. Those attending were Mrs. R. Harris, Mrs. C. E. Wild, Jr., Mrs. J. P. Berres, Mrs. F. F. Converse, Mrs. A. H. Hauger, Mrs. J. M. Johnson, Mrs. Jack McClud, Mrs. Lucian D. Trusker, Mrs. L. D. Simpson, Mrs. J. L. P. Haddock, Mrs. F. J. Keiffer, Mrs. E. E. Sykes and Mrs. Richard Kerr (guest).

Miss Woronec, Lt. Melloni Married at Catholic Mass

The Infantry Center Catholic chapel was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony Sept. 28, when Miss Anne Woronec of Manchester, N. H., became the bride of Lt. Alfred G. Melloni of the Infantry Center Training regiment, also of Manchester. Chaplain (Capt.) A. C. Zielinski officiated at the ceremony, which concluded a number of weeks of "Through the Years" by Vincent Youmans. Mrs. Walter B. Yeager, chairman of the hospitality committee, assisted by Mrs. Charles V. Mearns, Mrs. J. M. Johnson, Mrs. Welch, co-chairmen, and other committee members, will be assisting the bride and groom, which will conclude the day's program.

Brown-Dolan Nuptial Rites Solemnized in Post Chapel

At an impressive late afternoon ceremony Sunday, Sept. 18, Miss Barbara a Joan Brown, daughter of Mrs. Helen Brown and William Brown of Plainfield, N. J., became the bride of Pfc. Thomas H. Dolan, Company H, 15th Infantry regiment, Third Infantry division, and Jersey City, N. J., in the Infantry Center chapel.

Chaplain (Maj.) J. John Dvozyk read the marriage lines before an assemblage of friends and relatives. A program of nuptial music was presented by John C. Miller, organist. The bride was attended by Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, matron of honor, and Misses Virginia Cox and Catherine Ray, bridesmaids.

The matron of honor wore a gown of aqua tulle, accented by black accessories. Her Juliette cap was covered with sequins, and she wore a corsage of American beauty roses.

Miss Cox wore a pink lace dinner gown, accented by a deep purple sash, a close-fitting hat with a purple veil trim, and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Ray was gowned in charreuse net with accessories, and her corsage was bronze daisy mums.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Pvt. Theodore W. Rescigno, who gave her in marriage. She was radiant in her gown of white marquisette over satin. Her finger-tip veil of bridal tulle was attached to a tiara of seed pearls. The wedding gown featured an off-the-shoulder neckline and long full sleeves caught tight at the wrists in a tulle rolled band. White as a virgin bows were sprinkled on the long full skirt, which formed a train.

She wore a single strand of pearls belonging to a close friend. Sgt. Robert Hagan attended the groom as best man. Usher-groomsman were Pfc. Richard Troxler and Pvt. William C. Genno.

Following the ceremony, the couple were entertained with a wedding supper at Pine Lodge Noncommissioned Officers' club given in their honor by the matron of honor. The tables were set in a U-pattern, and the bride's table, which formed the base of the U, was centered with the three-tiered wedding cake, embossed with garlands of white roses and topped with bride and groom figurines. Two sets of five-branched candelabra holding tall ivory tapers, arranged at each end of the bride's table, were of Japanese origin and were over 200 years old. The buffet and punch tables were centered between the table wings and were attractively decorated with a large centerpiece of gladioli and roses in pastel shades. The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a dinner gown of cerise crepe. She wore a Juliette cap of silver sequins, and her corsage was tea roses tied with silver ribbons. For traveling the bride wore an afternoon dress of black tulle, accented by dark olive green accessories. The frock was designed with an accordion pleated skirt and long tight sleeves. She wore a close-fitting hat.

'Chip Off the Old Block' Soldier Upholds Family Tradition

If you were to suggest that Cpl. George L. Weaver is a "chip off the old block," you'd more than likely find something truer than you suspected. Corporal Weaver, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 15th Infantry regiment, says he's not only a "chip off the old block," but he's a member of the most army-minded family in the world. George can, as an amateur genealogist, trace through his family tree and find brothers, uncles, cousins, fathers and even great-grandfathers.

Signal Corps Moviemen Have Field Day On Post

"You ought to be in pictures," during the display. (Incidentally, the song goes, and you probably were if you did any ambling around the post during the past month.)

With the first world-wide army baseball tournament going on, followed by the visit of 200 men for the fourth joint orientation conference, top Washington officials knew Fort Benning was a natural for catching some important news in action.

As a result, Signal Corps' motion picture section dispatched a crew of photographers to cover both events. A picture crew already here producing a training film, also went into action.

Under the direction of Charles J. Maguire and Philip Kandel, cameramen virtually "shot" everything within lens-sight.

Like an ant, Lt. Gae Fallace, roving photographer, crawled precariously over the roof of Gowdy field grandstand while filming the baseball epic. His cohort, Lt. James E. Henry, stood atop a weapons carrier with a large Mitchell camera and filmed breathless action of the game.

Then came the VIP conference. The fly-footed, fleet-winged cameramen caught everything within sight. During the "minutes" demonstration the first day of the joint orientation conference, Lt. Maguire was seen climbing in and out of tanks with his camera, aiming through the barrel of a 1.75 inch howitzer, and standing dangerously close to the line of fire.

Benning Revises Inspection Setups For Dining Halls

New conference type inspections have been inaugurated for dining hall inspection. It was announced this week by Maj. John A. Rivovich, food service supervisor.

Under the new system, the dining hall steward inspects his own dining hall. The food service officer of the Infantry Center food service officer. Following inspection the dining hall by the food service officer, a critique is held and ways of remedying deficiencies are discussed by the officer and dining hall steward.

Night School Advantages Are Outlined

Editor's Note: The following article, which will appear weekly, is prepared entirely by the information and education division of the Infantry Center for publication in The Bayonet.

How much more high school English, math or history do you need to complete your education or advance in your career—or should you take beginner's reading, arithmetic and writing? Take advantage of your opportunity and get these subjects at the Army Education Center night school. Remember, courses taken in the Army Education Center night school are recognized by civilian schools.

A new term begins on Oct. 10 at the Army Education Center on Indian Head road just beyond the quartermaster's laundry. A wide variety of courses will be offered, courses that will go educationally, and help you gain promotions in your military career.

And here's how you can take advantage of this opportunity. See your unit I-C officer. He can register you in any of the courses between Friday, Sept. 30, and Friday, Oct. 7. Registrations will also be accepted at the Army Education Center on Indian Head road, from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Civilian dependents also may attend the night school without charge, but only if the class is not filled. They may register for the night school at the Army Education Center on Oct. 10 from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Here are the courses offered and a brief description of each.

High School Arithmetic: a study of business arithmetic, review of decimals, percentage, square root, ratio and proportion and graphs.

High School Algebra: includes all the basic fundamentals of formulas, powers, exponents, and equations necessary for a good foundation in Algebra.

Basic Mathematics: review of arithmetic from the four basic math operations of adding, subtracting, dividing and multiplying through fractions and an introduction to high school geometry.

English: three high school English grammar courses in which a student will learn about and work with parts of speech, punctuation, spelling, correspondence, and sentence structure.

Languages: German, Spanish and Russian are courses designed to give a speaking knowledge of these languages. They are not involved grammar courses, nor technical reading courses.

Psychology and Life: a study of human behavior, emotions, reactions, personality, intelligence, heredity, and social problems.

Physics: involves the principles of physics as applied to mechanics. This subject fulfills high school requirements for science.

Business Law: a practical study of contracts, negotiables, fraud, transfer of title, insurance guaranty, partnerships, and property.

Photography: offers instruction in lens setting, camera operation and development, film exposure, and processing processes and natural color photography. The Army Education Center's dark room is well equipped to offer you good instruction in this field.

Auto Mechanics: offers practical work and schooling in diagnosis and repair. Engineers offers work with cylinders, crankshafts, bearings, pistons, connecting rods, valves and all the basic essentials of engine design.

Cupello Elected To Head Society

First Lt. Albert R. Cupello, was elected president of the Society of the First Infantry division, Fort Benning branch, at the organization's annual business meeting recently in the Polo Hunt club.

Other newly elected officers are: Mgt. Sgt. William E. McMaster, first vice president; 1st Lt. Douglas A. Huff, second vice president; Capt. Allen E. Perry, secretary and treasurer; and Sgt. 1st Cl. Tom J. Stafford, alternate secretary and treasurer.

It was disclosed at the meeting that all former members of the First division, whether or not they served in combat with that unit, are eligible for membership.

A resolution was passed that all future meetings will be social, with the exception of an annual business meeting for the election of officers and other business. Meetings will be held once a month.

President Cupello expressed a desire that all men at Fort Benning who have ever served with the division contact Capt. Allen B. Ferry at the Training and Publications department, the Infantry School, for information and membership blanks.

Preparedness Stressed By Graduation Speaker

Graduates of infantry officers' associate advanced course No. 2 heard Third Army's commander issue a warning against unpreparedness last week at formal commencement exercises. Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., speaking to the 190 graduates, told his officer-audience that "preparedness is the best investment and cheaper in the long run. War is much more costly than far-sighted preparation."

Opening his address with a note of informality, General Gillem said, "I've been in the same position as you gentlemen are in right now. You've probably got your cars packed with furniture, and your wives are anxiously awaiting your graduation so they can sign clearance. So I shall keep brevity in mind."

"The courses here," General Gillem continued, "are enormously broadening, regardless of the actual combat experience you've had. The success of this school's mission depends entirely on your ability to handle combat troops."

After brief references to the Infantry School's record and purpose, the general analyzed the American's way of thinking and acting during a crisis.

"Americans," he said, "quickly rally and soldier their might in time of danger. Together they face the crisis. But the essence of expediency in preventing that danger lies in the degree of preparedness of our country. I urge each and every one of you to support preparedness; it could very easily be the pivoting point between world serenity and international conflict."

"In the same line, it takes two peoples to make war. By the same token, it takes two for the establishment of peace. However, if one of them is peace-conscious and the other causes friction by not striving for harmony and peace, then you'll have a psychological conflict. The most stride could very easily be an outright shooting war," he added, "do not mean to say," he added, "that we have a feeling of inevitability. We must be concerned, not alarmed, at the present international business and political situation. Above all else, we must all see to it that it

N. Y. Archbishop To Lead Mass

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York is scheduled to arrive here Oct. 22 at the invitation of Maj. Gen. F. W. Clark, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, it was revealed this week.

Plans are being made, General Clark said, for the cardinal to say mass Sunday, Oct. 23. The cardinal is coming to Fort Benning, he added, to "see the men."

Pay Raise

ing an automatic hike to $80 a month.

Family allowances will be continued throughout a man's current enlistment and will be cut out entirely after July, 1952.

Men engaged in hazardous duty will continue receiving additional pay, providing for $100 a month for commissioned paratroopers and $80 a month for enlisted men with similar assignments.

Longevity pay for enlistees will no longer be figured at five per cent for each three years of service, but will be computed on a pay period basis similar to the one now in effect for officers.

Officers of all ranks will receive $45 a month subsistence allowance and from $75 to $150 quarters allowance depending on the number in their family. Allowances for officers' quarters without dependents will range from $90 to $120 a month.

Subsistence rates for enlisted men will continue at $1.05 a day for men in all grades and the quarters allowance will range from $4 a month to $67.50 for those who elect not to draw dependency benefits.

NCOS HOLD REVIEW. These noncommissioned officers were the acting battalion staff last Thursday when the Provisional Battalion of the 30th Infantry Regiment held an all-enlisted review. From left to right are: Mgt. Sgt. Bobbie J. Hunt, acting battalion commander; Sgt. 1st Cl. Frank H. Orr, acting adjutant; and Staff Members Pfc. Arthur C. Bankowski and Sgt. Frank C. Britts.

ACTING OFFICERS NCOs Take Over Battalion Parade

Noncommissioned officers of the First and Provisional battalions, 30th Infantry Regiment, took over parade activities at Sand Hill last Thursday, to show what they knew in the way of military precision.

Without the aid of officers, the first battalion, commanded by Mgt. Sgt. Robert J. McDonald, passed in review during the 20th long ceremony. Sergeant McDonald stood in the reviewing stands to accept the honors and senior non-commissioned officer took charge.

Sergeant McDonald, prior to joining the 30th Infantry Sept. 1, was ROTC instructor at the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., for three years.

Sgt. 1st Cl. Frank J. Orr, acting commander of the Provisional Battalion, stepped to the reviewing stand as his unit passed in review. As Sergeant Orr reviewed, his former commanding officer, Lt. Col. Robert M. Booth, public information officer of the division.

Special departments of the Infantry School include the Army extension course for use in the extension course of other branches in infantry training which includes the Army field printing plant.

The Army extension department supervises and coordinates the training of infantry. The field printing plant prepares training aids used by the academic departments and publishes maps, manuals and other requirements of the school.

The school has 227,000 acres, or about 354 square miles. Its facilities could serve a city of 150,000. The frame house of Arthur Bussey, original owner of the plantation which makes up a portion of Fort Benning, is now the home of the present commandant, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress.

The roads, streets and terrain features are named for units which served in World War and in airborne operations in France identified by action of American units and for individuals killed in action.

From a student body of a few hundred, the Infantry School has grown to 50,000. The commission as second lieutenant was granted at the school. As of 2:30 p.m. Sept. 2, 20,185 men completed the student officers' course.

During World War II 100,936 officers and enlisted men were graduated from the various courses of the school, and 90,237

Good Business For Recruiters During August

A recent report from the Infantry Center recruiting office shows that during August 208 men reenlisted out of 254 who were discharged and eligible for reenlistment.

The reenlistments include those who enlisted for normal periods after expiration of current enlistment; those who took short discharges to reenlist for overseas duty and those who extended their enlistments for indefinite periods up to six years.

The Area Service unit, Provisional group, showed a reenlistment of 85 out of 118 eligible.

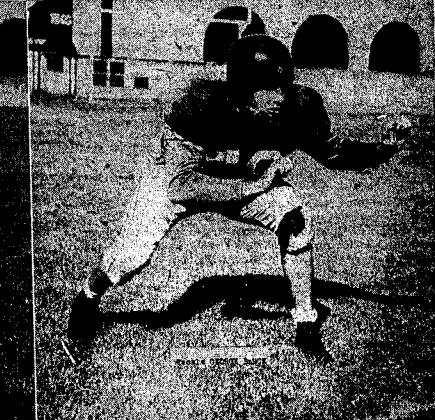

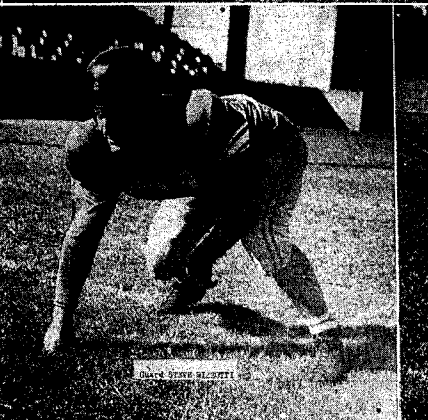

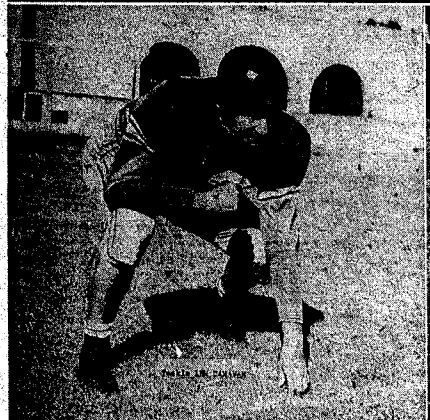

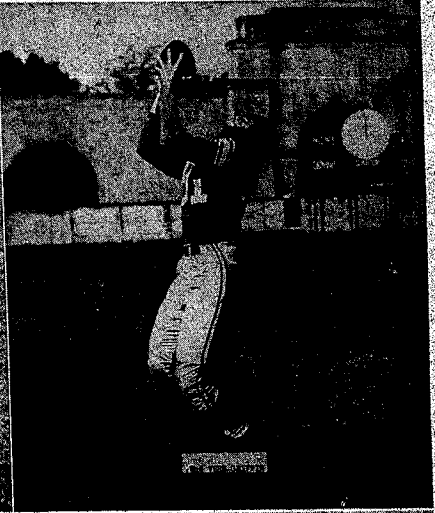

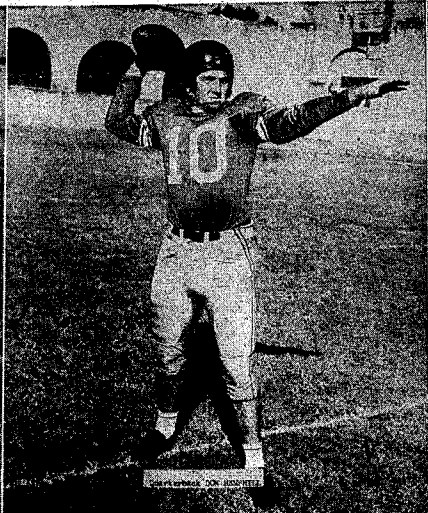

Fourteen out of 15 eligible signed up again from the Infantry School detachment.

Ten reenlistments, including reenlistments from other units, out of eight discharged were reenlisted in the Student Training Regiment.

One hundred and twenty-five reenlisted to serve as an Infantry division signled for new terms.

Two out of six reenlisted from Army Field Forces board No. 3. The Provisional Medical group, 38th Area Service unit, retrained two out of five members to reenlist.

Three reenlistments were recorded and 12 discharges were issued personnel not eligible for reenlistment.

Newcomers Spark Dough Grid Squad

When the Fort Benning football team takes the field on Sunday at Eglin Field, a whole host of newcomers will be making their first start for the Doughs. Among the talented first stringers will be two members of last year's Doughboy eleven, five men with college experience, a star professional and numerous high school stars.

Holding down the end posts on the varsity will be Frank Williams and Vern Griffin.

At one tackle post will be Len Canavan, 220 pound former professional. The other starter is George Benck.

The twin bulldozers that the Doughs have at guard, Steve Rizzatti and Bob Fiacco, resemble each other so much when in uniform that even the coaches sometimes get them confused.

The young man in the pivot spot is Bill DuFries who is 6' 1" tall and weighs 185 pounds.

Starring at quarterback this season will be big Don Hemphill who played a wing position for the Doughs last year.

The halfbacks, Lou Barnard and Bill Landry, were both high school stars in their own right before entering the service.

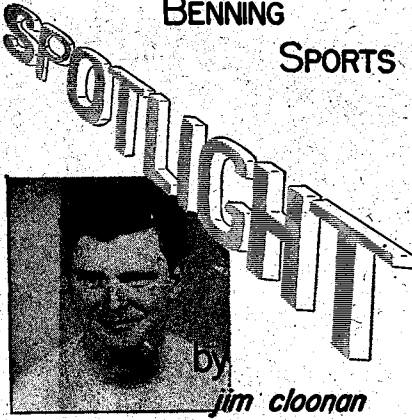

Doing the heavy duty in the backfield will be Big Jim Farish another former high school star.

BENNING SPORTS

by jim cloonan

Although the post baseballers have hardly packed away their suits, we find the post football team on the mark ready to open its season on Sunday. The Doughs have picked for their opening game the tough Elgin flyers, of Fort Walton, Fla. The Flyers opened their slate last week by pouncing out a win over the Cherry Point Marines, 28-6, and are looking forward to the invasion by the Benningites. The Elgin men are anxious to avenge the 20-8 beating the Doughs administered last season and also keep their own slate clean.

The Flyers may have a rough time, however, if the practice game played by the Doughs last Sunday is any indication. The Doughs, playing only three periods, ran rough-shod over an outmanned squad from Turner field near Albany, Ga. The count, when play was finally called, was 54-0 in the Benning men's favor. Featuring the Doughs play throughout the contest was the stellar work of three of Mike Chester's linemen: Len Canavan, a tackle, and Guards Bob Fiocco and Steve Rizzotti. Canavan, also an assistant coach, is the gentleman who last year held down a tackle spot for the famous professional team from San Francisco, the 49ers, while Rizzotti is a former University of Miami player.

Bob Fiocco, the other lineman named, comes from a long line of football players, the most notable one being his brother Jim Fiocco who is the captain of this year's edition of the Syracuse University varsity. All three of these men were in on every play during their time in the game, with Fiocco and Rizzotti having the extra distinction of intercepting an enemy pass. Canavan aided Fiocco on his pass interception by bating the ball out of Passer Bob Bishop's hands right into the waiting arms of Fiocco.

Coach Mike Chester stated after the game that the team had pleased him in all departments but downfield blocking where it appeared woefully weak. The Benning team excelled in the aerial end of the game as Quarterbacks Don Hemphill and Al Constance threw a total of 21 passes, including three touchdowns.

The running game also looked strong, despite the fact that the Doughboys stayed pretty much in the air. Lou Barassi, former New England high school star, carried the ball on only four occasions for a total of 58 yards or an average of 14 yards per carry. Beating Barassi out by a yard was Lou's running mate at halfback, Bill Landry. Landry averaged 15 1/2 yards per carry, hurling the pigskin four times for 83 yards. Jim Farish rounded out the first backfield and carried three times for 15 yards.

In all, this year's edition of the Doughboys seems to pack more weight and experience than the post team has for several seasons. This is evident in the fact that only two of last year's Doughs were able to make the starting line-up. Both of those boys, Francis Williams and Hemphill, are bigger than last year and have the added experience of an entire year of service football behind them. The line will run close to 260 pounds per man while the backfield will weigh-in around 188 pounds per man.

Venturing an opinion on Sunday's game we would say that the Doughs pack too many guns for the Flyers and should come home Monday afternoon with a 21-7 victory to start off what promises to be a successful season.

Doughs To Florida; Pay Eglin in Sunday

Benning Roms in Practice Against Turner Field, 54-0

Fort Benning's grid Doughboys will rank as slight favorites this Sunday when they open their 1949 season against the Elgin flyers on the Florida team's home grounds. The game last Sunday developed into a rout, as early as the first period when the Doughs rolled over their outmanned opponents for four touchdowns. Lou Barassi opened the scoring by taking a handoff from Hemphill and sweeping left end for 19 yards and the score. The run capped a 61-yard march featured by Hemphill's 22-yard pass to Griffin and a 19-yard run by Hemphill after being trapped on a pass play. Al Constance added the conversion via placement.

After an exchange of punts, the Doughs got rolling again, this time from the Turner 33-yard line. Another Hemphill-to-Griffin pass placed the pigskin on the Turner 61-yard line, and Jim Farish bucked over on the second try. Constance's placement kicked the conversion into the end zone for the tally. The Doughs got rolling again, this time from the Turner 33-yard line. Another Hemphill-to-Griffin pass placed the pigskin on the Turner 61-yard line, and Jim Farish bucked over on the second try. Constance's placement kicked the conversion into the end zone for the tally.

Coach Mike Chester seemed pleased with the showing of his ball club, with the possible exception of the downfield blocking. Doughboy backs, once in the secondary, had to depend on their own running ability to gain, as linemen time and again missed open field blocks. This lack of interest was the phase stressed at the long drills held Tuesday in preparation for the opening tilt.

The Doughs will probably start the same line-up that took the 20-8 beating last week. The line-up with one exception. George Penick, first string right tackle who has an injured foot, will probably be back in the starting lineup. Bill Griffith at the end, Len Canavan at tackle, Steve Rizzotti and Bob Fiocco at the guards and Bill Dupriest at the pivot. The backs will be Don Hemphill at quarterback, Francis Williams at halfback and Bill Jim Farish at fullback.

Blake Captures Ping Pong Title At Unit Tourney

Bill Blake, of the 130th Quartermaster Bakery company, captured the ping pong title at the annual 344th Area Service unit table tennis championship. Bill, representing the 15th Quartermaster battalion, won a total of 17 games while writing victory to the unit title. By virtue of his win Blake also became the No. 1 man on the ASU team which invaded the Main gym next week to compete in the Infantry Center championships. The provisional group recently conducted the double elimination affair for the tourney. The purpose of having a group championship and selecting the six-man team to represent the unit at the post affair. All matches were conducted on a two-out-of-three basis with the exception of the finals where the winner had to cop three wins in five tries. Units in the group furnished teams for the tourney. Among these were the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 15th Quartermaster battalion 2nd Transportation Truck battalion and the 328th Ordnance battalion.

Following the tournament, the unit team was named to compete in the 2nd tournament. Seeded No. 2, behind Blake, is Bob Fox, of the 328th Ordnance battalion. The other four members of the provisional group team are Myron McNeil, 328th Ordnance battalion; Jerry Morgan, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section II; H. H. Rhoads, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section I; and James Thomas, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section II.

Diamond Squad, Dining Hall Men Honored by Unit

Food and baseball took the spotlight during last Friday's retreat parade of the 30th Infantry regiment Tiger field.

Company M's baseball team, regimental champions, and Company L's dining hall personnel, were officially commended for their achievements by Col. Joseph W. Boone, regimental commander.

Colonel Boone presented the baseball trophy to Cpl. Carl D. Heidrick, team captain. Team Members: L. Fields, Shelton, Lt. John McNeil, M-Sgt. Charles Stead, Cpl. Charles F. Merritt, M-Sgt. Sherman Harris, Sgt. Ed Anderson, Pfc. Donald H. Randolph, Stanley H. Himm, Jesse R. Kidd, Marvyn S. Reynolds, Richard A. Rich, Richard J. Valentine and James L. Faircloth and Pvt. Michael F. Schinsky were congratulated by Colonel Boone.

Sgt. Anthony Azolina, dining steward of Company L, accepted the plaque for having the best dining hall in the regiment for the past week.

Mustangs Picked To Nip Bengals

Dartmouth to Defeat Penn; Tulane Favored Over Tech

BY BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR JIM CLOONAN AND BAYONET STAFF WRITER ROBBY ROBINSON
With an average of .854 on last week's calls, we approach the second big week in 1949 football with less fear of being laughed out of our job. A few games marred an otherwise good record last Saturday, and the surprising Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets railroaded the Vandy Commodores. Big and tough games of the week this Saturday should be the clash between Southern Methodist and Missouri, in which we give the Mustangs a very slight edge. Anybody who thinks the Owls won't have a chance against the Scarlet, since Harvey Harman has one of the best teams of his career, and a possible champion in this year's Rutgers eleven.

THE EAST
Altoona over Hamilton... The Gators from Meadville should take 'em this one without much strain despite game efforts by the continentalists. Amherst over Coast Guard... The Guardians will run up against more than they can handle when they meet the Lord Jeffs this Saturday. Amherst by two anyway.

THE SOUTH
Alabama... In one of the nation's best exhibitions the Commodores should take the Crimson Tide, but not by much. Mississippi State over Baylor... The Maroons should do the puching around at the Bear's expense. Clemson over N. C. State... An extremely close contest with a very slight edge held by the Tigers.

THE WEST
Utah over Arizona... The Otis over Oregon who should take this one from the Bulldogs, but it will be a close fight all the way. Tulane over Georgia Tech... One of the best games of the day anywhere in the country should result in a very slight edge in victory for the Green Wave, but the Yellowjackets could emerge as the victors in this one. Mississippi over Kentucky... Another one we hate to call, but a narrow edge for the Rebels. Rice over LSU... The Owls should rock the Tigers for a TD, or maybe two, in this one. Virginia over Miami (O)... The Cavaliers should rip open Redskins from Ohio wide open in an easy one for the Virginians. Williams & Mary over VPI... In what could be a fairly close game the Indians should gobble up the Gobblers.

Purdoo over Iowa... Not much of a contest here, as the Boiler-makers should blacken the Hawkeyes.

Iowa State over Kansas... A fairly close one. Michigan State over Marquette... The Hill toppers will suffer at the hands of the Spartans this Saturday, especially in view of the drubbing they received from Wisconsin last week.

Minnesota over Nebraska... The Cornhuskers will rue the day they ever scheduled the Gophers because this game will have a score in the skies. Montana State over Utah State... A close tussle all the way. Northwestern over Pitt... Might be one of the closest games of the day.

Oklahoma over Texas A & M... No trouble for the Sooners on this one. They are sporting one of the best eleven in their history. TCU over Arkansas... The Horned Frogs should take this one from the Razorbacks, but a close one anyway.

Hardin-Simmons over Arizona State... The Boys from Temple won't even see the sun during this one. Texas over Idaho... The Longhorns might take this one by 100 points. At least, the best the Vandals can hope for is to escape with their lives.

California over Oregon State... The Golden Bears should walk the little Beavers in this one-sided affair. Cal in a walkaway. Michigan over Stanford... No trouble in this one for the Wolverines, in spite of the Indian's reputation for being tough. Benny's boys are really loaded this season.

Utah over St. Mary's... The Wolfpack should chew up the Gaels in this one. The boys of St. Mary's ain't what they used to be. Notre Dame over Washington... This one is a very interesting one. Huskies will try in vain against one of the greatest teams of all time as they try to lick the Irish. Keeping the score down will be a problem in itself.

Washington over Washington State... No contest here either. The Trojans should march right down the field and lick the Irish out teeth or claws can't do much. Spalden by the stellar playing of Alen Hackett who was runner-up in the Big Army championship last year, the 15th Infantry regiment's badminton tournament will get underway Oct. 10 at the Lawson airforce base gym.

The 15th Regiment will decide the make up of the five-man regimental team which will vie for honors in the International badminton tournament to be held later in the fall. At a contest between the First battalion, will have as his teammates, James Smith, a 2nd player in the regiment. Top notch badminton man of the Provisional battalion, John Lockamy will also be in competition with the big guns.

Competition is open to all officers and enlisted men of the regiment in both singles and doubles play. Entry forms, available at all orderly rooms and at the regimental athletic and recreation office must be filled out and submitted no later than 4 P. M. Tuesday, Oct. 7. Official American Badminton association rules and government regulations are available at athletic and recreation office.

They are Maj. Alexander Pajajis, Capt. Anastasios Bletas and Capt. Eftimios.

Promoted to Corporal

Three enlisted men of the First battalion's Headquarters and Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, were promoted to corporal recently.

They were James J. Rowan, Donald V. Schinker and Simon P. Wentz.

Profs Win Crown, Rout Divarty Sextet

The Infantry School Detachment volleyball team routed a highly regarded Third Division Artillery sextet last Tuesday evening to continue their ball title.

The Infantrymen were paced by the terrific spike shots of Bill Taylor and Leroy Lehner as they easily downed the Divarty team 15-3 and 15-5 in the best two-out-of-three series for the crown.

The win marked the third straight year that the Profs have won the post crown. The team has also annexed the Third Army title for the past two years and can win permanent possession of the area trophy this season.

The Profs will now journey to O'Hare General Hospital, where they will defend their Third Army title early next month.

The undefeated Infantry School detachment Profs swung into the finals of the annual Infantry Center volleyball tournament last Friday night when they defeated the Student Training regiment, 15-2 and 15-3.

The Third Infantry division artillery squad overcame the setback it suffered at the hands of the Profs by losing, 15-6 and 15-7, in the opening night of the tournament. Meeting the Provisional Medical group, victims of the 15th Infantry regiment on opening night, the artillerymen started their climb out of the loser's bracket by downing the Medics, 15-3 and 15-5.

Foxes Causing Rabbit Shortage

There is a shortage of rabbits at Fort Benning, so the Fort Benning game commission is going to hunt foxes.

Capt. R. F. Cary, game warden and member of the Fish and game commission said that foxes, sworn enemies of rabbits, are causing the shortage of the smaller game. Foxes may also contract rabies and become doubly dangerous, Captain Cary added.

The trap lines the Fort Benning game commission have laid are averaging five catches daily in the 25 to 50 traps on the post and four of the four-footed scavengers were snared last week within a mile of a residential area near outpost No. 2.

Captain Cary cautioned dog owners not to let their pets roam loose during the trapping period, which will last until the hunting season opens in October.

The trap lines were laid under the supervision of the Georgia State Conservation Service.

On Tuesday night, as the Profs dropped the 15th down to the loser's bracket on Wednesday night, by winning 15-2 and 15-7, the divarty sextet rested until Thursday when it advanced another step in the quarter-finals by eliminating the 15th, after dropping the first set 15-3, 15-8 and 15-9.

In the semi-finals Friday night, the Profs assured themselves of a crack at the trophy by trouncing the Student Training regiment, while the division announced the 30th Infantry as STR victized special units, after topping the first round 15-1, 15-2 and 15-3.

Last Monday night, the divarty unit handed the STR aggregation its elimination notice, 15-7 and 15-7, to enter the finals against the Profs.

That win completed their climb back to the winner's division, where they faced them in line for the finals.

In other games Tuesday, Sept. 26, the second night of the tournament, the Provisional Battalion Area Service unit bowed to STR, 15-3 and 15-2, while special units of the Third division, dropping the first match by winning 15-3 and 15-8.

That same night, the Medics became the first team to be eliminated losing to the divarty netmen.

On Wednesday night the 30th eliminated ASU, 15-12 and 15-9, as STR victimized special units, after topping the first round 11-15, by retaliating with a 15-2 and 15-7.

The divarty sextet, 15th out of the running Thursday night, the 30th eliminated special units, 15-8 and 15-7, then were themselves eliminated the following night by the fighting divarty-men.

Inspections Slated For Private Autos

A program for inspecting privately owned vehicles, licensed by the Infantry Center provost marshal's office, was announced this week by Norman Evans, Fort Benning's safety director.

The program, formulated by the Infantry Center's safety council, will be similar to that of the yearly automobile inspections required in some states.

Essential safety features of automobiles including high steering gear, windshield wipers, brakes, windows, mufflers and bumpers will be inspected for efficiency.

An inspection station will be set up in the post exchange garage, Mr. Evans said, and a small fee will be charged for the inspection.

The program is still in the planning stage, he added, but it is expected to go into effect sometime during the middle of October.

A special headlight testing machine will be installed to check the aim, focus and lateness of headlights. The steering systems will be checked for tolerance and the brakes for necessary adjustment.

The program is intended to give drivers conscious of the small things that his car which can save him from expensive repairs at a later date and possibly prevent an accident, Mr. Evans said.

The standards of the inspection will be those set up by the American Standards Association, he added.

Every vehicle licensed by Fort Benning must undergo the inspection and be passed, Mr. Evans said.

Men in Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, receiving assignments include Cpl. Walter B. Fry and Pvt. Robert C. Garlick to special services, Cpl. Clifford D. Littlejohn to overhead section and Pvt. Charles F. Freeman to Infantry Center engineer section.

Pvt. Paul W. Brouchet, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, was assigned to the Quartermaster section, and Pvt. Irene Chasen, Headquarters detachment, Section 1, to the provost marshal's office.

New arrivals this week are: Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, Per. Claude E. Dickerson, Pfc. Wade Carroll, Cpl. Franklin R. Mills, Jr., and Cpl. Chester S. Lipnick.

Sgt. William F. Black was assigned to Headquarters detachment, Section 1.

Sgt. Roy E. Follendore, Military Police detachment, Section 1 was promoted to sergeant first class this week.

Operations Assignment Given Sgt. Blackwell

Capt. James W. Hannum, operations and training officer of the 98th Airborne Field Artillery battalion, announced that Sgt. Willis P. Blackwell has assumed the duties as assistant operations sergeant.

Field Artillery battalion, Sgt. Blackwell was formerly an administrative non-commissioned officer with battalion headquarters.

Regimental Boxing To Begin Oct. 15

Athletic officials of the 15th Infantry regiment are pushing plans for a regimental boxing tournament slated to begin Oct. 15 and end Nov. 15.

Official Amateur Athletic union rules will govern all competition, which will include the eight weight classes ranging from the 112-pound flyweights to the 176-pound and over heavyweights.

The first welterweight class will be regimed over by ex-Middleweight Bill Bernier and Tony Perfidio, both well known in Fort Benning punch mill circles.

Bernier, upon his arrival here last year, engaged both the No. 2 middleweight and No. 2 middleweight in an attempt to establish himself as a leading contender for local honors in that class.

His bid for the berth held by Lawrence Jones, middleweight champion of Fort Benning and Third Army and holder of the army crown, was unsuccessful in three tries. But his challenge of Cliff Wilburn, then runner-up to Jones, bore fruit when, after suffering a knockout in their first meeting, he came back to defeat Wilburn in the second clash and again in the rubber match to clinch the No. 2, middleweight spot.

Due to a year-round training schedule, the rugged infantryman has worked his poundage down to the welterweight requirement and will carry the banner for the Provisional Battalion in that weight class.

Perfidio, a welter last year is still carrying his weight and will represent the First battalion in the regimental meet.

However, the possibility of a clash between the two is very slim since the tourney will be conducted on an individual experience basis.

In the tourney, the battalions will vie for battalion team honors plus individual awards to winners in each weight class.

Entries in each class will face four opponents during the tournament to determine the champions in the weight divisions. Time and place of matches will be announced later.

Boats will consist of three two-minute rounds. The classification system of competition will feature a knockout in their first

Airborne Title Won by Scott

Terry Scott, winner of the Airborne battalion table tennis tourney, will lead a six-man battalion team into competition in the Infantry Center tournament which gets under way Monday, Oct. 3, at Service club No. 1.

In the battalion meet, held at the airborne gym last Monday, Sept. 26, Scott won the championship by defeating Runner-up Herb Myvatt in the best two out of three matches.

Other members of the battalion team are Ed Strickland, Andy Anderson, Tom Gallagher and Bob Kinard.

ed to a team for each win, three points for a draw and two points for a bye.

Cards will consist of matches in each weight class not to exceed 12 bouts in any one card.

Competition is open to all regimental officer and enlisted personnel.

Ring hopefuls of the unit will be required to submit entry forms which will be made available to them to the regimental athletic and recreation office at least one week prior to participating in any matches.

Forty-Two Men Report For 999th Grid Team

The 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion has organized and is coaching a 42-man football squad, the Bullets, which will open its season against the Columbus Buffaloes Oct. 8 at Memorial stadium in Columbus.

The Buffaloes, a semi-professional team in Columbus, will open its season at the same time.

Running from a single-wing formation, the Bullets, coached by Capt. George Mitchell, have scheduled ten games for this fall, the home encounters to be played in Doughboy stadium while the Doughs are playing away.

Captain Mitchell played football for both Indiana university and Morr Brown college.

Third Commander Inspects Engineers

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander, reviewed and inspected the 78th Engineer Combat battalion on Saturday, Sept. 17, and reported that he was "favorably impressed" with the unit. This was the first formal review the battalion had held since its reactivation in May. Maj. Victor J. Gray is the battalion commander.

Post Boxers To Journey To Atlanta

Performing under the banner of the Ninth street YMCA of Columbus, top fighters from Fort Benning will journey to Atlanta Friday night where they will engage a team representing the Butler street YMCA in a series of bouts at the "Gate" city in Atlanta's gym.

Benning's array of middleweight will include All-Army Middleweight Champ Lawrence Jones, N or in a Clark post welterweight titleholder, Middletown Cliff Wilbur n. Heavyweight Johnny Allen, Cruiserweight Walter Blackmon, Lightweight Alex Bowie and Featherweight Pat Patterson.

Tomorrow night's affair will be the second in the series of matches between the rivals, the initial session having taken place when the Atlanta slingers invaded Columbus during the latter part of July.

The local fighters are managed by Merritt Wynn who, when the post boxing tourney terminated last spring, organized the team from fighters who had boxed under the banner of the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion, Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment and Section II, 3440th Area Service Unit.

Assigned to AG Section

Pvt. Edward R. Ross, Company A, Infantry School detachment, has been assigned to duty with the adjutant general's section.

Woody Burt Captures Doughs' Batting Crown

Although the football season is upon us, baseball still pops into the news with the release of the 1949 Doughboy batting and fielding averages.

Facing the Doughs at the plate throughout the 16-game schedule was "Woody" Burt, former Infantry School detachment star. Woody appeared in all 16 games and collected 28 hits in 61 trips to the plate for an average of .459. Woody also banged out a double and triple and drove in 10 runs.

The only other Dough to hit the 400 mark was Pitcher-Outfielder Jim Shirley. The former 15th Infantry regiment ace appeared in 12 games and batted out 10 hits in 25 trips to keep an even .400 average. Big Jim was also the only man on the Doughboy team to hit for the cycle, getting a double, two triples and a home-run. Shirley also batted in 10 runs.

Bill Kovalak, speedy outfielder from the 3440th Area Service Unit, led the team in scoring, runs with a total of 20 and finished second in the base stealing department with eight stolen chances without an error.

Autumn Golf To Highlight Link Activity

Seven outstanding golf events, with the emphasis on handicap play, are in store for Fort Benning's divot diggers next month at the ladies' championship tournament today by Maj. Arnold J. Hoebecke, chairman of the tournament committee.

The parade of hits will open Saturday with a blind bogey open to all. This will be followed by the ladies' championship tournament from Oct. 14-28 to crown Benning's woman golfer of the year.

In the blind bogey, each player is allowed to select a handicap which will place his score between 70 and 85. Scores are then placed in a hat and the lucky number drawn. In cases more than one golfer has the lucky number, additional prizes will be awarded.

Handicap play is being stressed to give beginners and experts the same opportunities to compete for prizes. Players must establish their handicaps at the club and may maintain their own handicaps, Major Hoebecke said.

Other features lined up by the tournament committee include a ladies' golf tournament on Oct. 15, a four-man handicap for ladies and men with prizes for low gross and low net on Oct. 23 qualifications on Oct. 29 and 30 for a handicap turkey tournament to be played in November; Ladies' handicap turkey tournament Nov. 3-17, and on Nov. 18 a free exhibition of a touring Louise Suggs, winner of the national open women's title.

The Georgia golfer won the United States championship last week with a brilliant performance in which she established a new tournament record. She finished an amazing 291 score in the 72-hole contest to sweep to a 14-stroke victory over 1948 Champion Mildred (Babe) Zaharias.

Attention Bayonet Readers! Have Some Fun With This

EDITORS NOTE: We're running this questionnaire again, because we want your help in making The Bayonet YOUR paper. The response was somewhat discouraging last week, with only eight forms answered and returned to the public information office. The Bayonet is your paper. Therefore, we feel you should be the one to decide what goes in it and what, if anything, should come out.

With that in mind we have prepared a questionnaire which many of you will receive through your regular troop information programs. But for those whom the TIP doesn't touch—officers and dependents of officers and enlisted men, in particular—this questionnaire is printed today.

You would be doing us a big favor—and yourself—if you would answer the questions frankly. Clip out this questionnaire and send it to us either through message center or mail. You need not sign your name. And we will certainly read all your remarks. Just address it to Editor, The Bayonet. We'll do the rest. Thanks.

1. What's the first thing you read in The Bayonet?
2. What features do you like?
3. Which do you dislike and why?
4. Do you read the editorial page?
5. If so, what items do you like?
6. What would you like to see omitted?
7. Do you read the following: (please check either yes or no)
 - Editorials yes no
 - News Briefs yes no
 - Report from Washington yes no
 - Chaplain's Corner yes no
8. What is the ONE thing on the editorial page you like?
9. Do you want a pin-up? If so what kind?
10. Please check whether you like or dislike the following:
 - Humor Column like dislike
 - Service Club Directory like dislike
 - Bookshelf like dislike
11. Do you like the society page? yes no
12. Do you think there's enough news of enlisted men?
13. What do you think of the sports section?
14. Are there any sports activities not covered which you would like to see covered?
15. What do you think of the sports editor's column?
16. Is there anything you'd like to have him discuss which isn't covered?
17. What do you think of TIC talks? like dislike
18. List any questions you'd like to have our reporter ask.....
19. Does Quiz Quandary interest you? yes no
20. Do you ever read Sports Quiz? yes no
21. What types of news or features would you like to see added?
22. Compared with other army newspapers you've seen, what is your opinion of The Bayonet? Superior Excellent Good Satisfactory Unsatisfactory Lousy
23. Do you pay any attention to the advertising?

T.I.C. TALKS

Question for the Week: What type movies do you prefer to have shown at your post theater?

MR. SGT. E. J. DOUCET, Company B, Infantry School detachment, "I'll take a historical movie any time. To begin with they are more interesting than the average show, and besides, you can learn something while you're big entertained. I feel like I'm wasting my time watching most of the current pictures—particularly some of the real 'blood and thunder' ones."

LAMB DOUCET

CP. ROBERT LAMB, Military Police detachment, Section I, "Most movies are all alike nowadays. For instance, if you've seen one western picture you've seen them all. Musical comedies are all right if you are looking for pure entertainment. I like the historical pictures best though, they are both entertaining and educational."

MILLER ERSKINE

MAJ. L. E. MILLER, 343rd Infantry regiment, 87th Infantry division, "Musical comedies are my favorites. I like the music and I like the light plots. I don't get to see many of them though because I have a young son who is an arctic Roy Rogers fan. I have to sit through dozens of cowboy films teeming with horses, dust and gunbattles. Good drama and comedy are right down my alley."

CP. R. I. ERSKINE, Service company, 15th Infantry regiment, "I average about three movies a week and most of them are a romantic theme. Historical and 'mayhem' movies just bore me. I like a movie I can relax in—none of this stuff that keeps you on the edge of the seat chewing your fingernails. I don't consider that entertainment—it's more like torture."

MILLER HICKS

PFC. JEWELL MILLER, Service company, Student Training regiment, "Romantic and cowboy shows are about my speed. I saw a cowboy show last week called 'Wild Bill', and for my money, it was the best one yet. I go to the show about five times a month and see westerns most."

SGT. MAYOKA HICKS, Company C, Infantry School detachment, "I like war pictures. Don't have any reason I just like 'em. Last moving show was 'Command Decision'. 'Fighter Squadron', and 'Gung ho' have plenty of action in them and hold my interest. No, I can't think of any other kind of show I'd walk around the block to see."

Benning Tops Blood Roster

Fort Benning is first in the race for blood! A wire received this week by Murray E. Hill, local Red Cross field director, stating that Fort Benning was the first installation in the Atlanta blood region to exceed its 1949 quota of blood donations.

The notice from Gen. C. H. Ridenour, chairman of the coordinating committee, and Charles E. Cooper, director of the Atlanta regional blood center, congratulated the Fort Benning chapter on its record and conveyed "the gratitude of all chapters to General Burrens and members of his command the Fort Benning auxiliary and the Red Cross staff."

Late Fall Completion is Expected For 4 Construction Programs

See Housing Predicament Improvement

With completion of the Camellia apartments expected next month and the opening of the first units of Battle Park homes scheduled by the end of October, hope for the complete alleviation of the housing shortage at Fort Benning is in sight, according to Infantry Center officials.

When both Battle Park homes and Camellia apartments are completed, the housing shortage at Fort Benning will be completely alleviated.

Applications by eligible officers for quarters in the Battle Park apartment project now are being accepted by the Harris Realty company of Columbus. To date, only 72 applications have been submitted for quarters in the 500-unit project. 46 additional units of which will be ready for occupancy on Oct. 25.

ready for occupancy, a total of 800 units will have been added to a growing list of housing facilities.

The Harmony church, a new apartment project has already taken care of 64 families, and each week new units are completed and assigned by the Infantry Center Billeting Office.

Another factor in the improved situation are the converted hospital wards in the hospital area that now house 43 officers' families, and should house a total of 67 when completed.

On the horizon are the permanent noncommuting officers' quarters, being erected at a cost of $600,000, to house 88 NCO's and their families.

New Office Set Up Here

The Infantry Center's newly organized management office will begin functioning this week under the direction of Col. James C. Forence, Jr., commander.

The new activity will be directly responsible for the formulation of policies, supervision of audits and direction of all activities pertaining to budget and fiscal statistics.

In addition, their overall operational duties will consist of general coordination of requests for funds, periodic audits of non-designated funds and estimating requirements for bulk allotment to civilian and military personnel.

It is expected that the new office will eliminate wasteful motion and red tape in general accounting procedures on the post.

Khakis to Stay Until November

Winter uniforms may be worn this month during off-duty hours, however, khakis will be the duty uniform for the remainder of October, it has been announced. Effective Nov. 1, OD's will be the duty uniform for all personnel.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU. The multi-tiered cake Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, is cutting represents a happy birthday to 38,000 Benningites. The Columbus Chamber of Commerce feted the startled General Burress. Tuesday with a surprise party at the Officer's club on the occasion of Fort Benning's 31st birthday.

SURPRISE PARTY

City Participates In Birthday Rites

Putting the shoe on the other foot, a host of Columbus Chamber of Commerce officials paid formal tribute to Fort Benning on its 31st birthday today at the Officer's club.

Informally gathered in the spacious dining room of the Officer's club, 20 representatives of the chamber's Military and Naval Affairs committee welcomed startled Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander, as he walked into the surprise birthday party.

General Burress, who had not been previously told of the celebration, was applauded by his civilian neighbors as he displayed an expression of amazement at the gathering.

Walking around the room shaking hands with his hosts, General Burress stopped to talk with Marshall Morton, long-time

To Benefit Negro GIs

Racial Policy Okayed

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson has approved a program proposed by the Department of the Army to give greater assurance of equality of treatment and opportunity for all army personnel without regard to race or color.

In submitting the new program to the secretary of defense, Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray pointed out that he had discussed with Charles Fahy, chairman of the President's committee on equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed forces, the committee's suggestion and the army's proposed program.

Mr. Gray said that in order to insure progressively more efficient utilization of manpower, including utilization of Negroes in each of the army's career fields, the army is taking these specific steps:

1. Military occupational specialties (MOS) will be open to qualified personnel without regard to race or color.
2. The present Negro quotas for selection to attend army schools will be abolished and selection will be made from the best qualified personnel without regard to race or color.
3. The promotion system of the enlisted career guid-

Agenda Includes Apartment Units

November will be a banner month in the construction field for Fort Benning with four major projects, totaling over $2,500,000, scheduled for completion in the first two weeks, and work progressing rapidly on two others.

Opening their doors to Fort Benning troops will be the 400-unit Camellia apartments project, a new $200,000 field house and an auditorium and classroom, estimated at $65,000. A $50,000 dam across Upton creek will be completed around the first of the month.

Announcement of the opening of the Camellia apartments was made by C. Edwin Gates, president, Williams construction company, who said that the first 100 units will be ready as soon as roads are paved, sometime around the end of the month, and the balance of the apartments will be completed during November.

The units range in size from three and one-half to five rooms and rent from less than $50 for the smallest unit to $82.50 for the largest.

The new apartments will give considerable relief to the pressure of the housing shortage, which is well on its way to becoming non-existent with other housing projects progressing rapidly.

The Camellia structures will occupy the area between the Columbus-Fort Benning super highway and the old Lumpkin road, just south of the traffic circle.

There will be 32 five-room units consisting of two bedrooms, kitchenette, living room, dining room and bath. One hundred and twelve of the units will have four and one-half rooms, with the living room and dining rooms combined. Two hundred and twenty-four units will have three and one-half room size with a slight alteration in interior arrangement.

The five-room apartments are expected to rent for $82.50 with the four and one-half room units renting for $70 or less.

The remaining 82 units will have three and one-half rooms including one bedroom, kitchen, combined living room and dining room and bath. These last will rent for $60 or less.

Each building will have a parking area, and eight children's playgrounds will be set up with recreational facilities. The buildings themselves will be of seven different types. They will vary in type of finish and size, thus getting away from the monotonous regularity evident in many projects assigned to Mr. Gates.

Each apartment will have a space allowed for clothes hanging and garbage disposal. In many projects, such as underground refuse cans will be supplied.

The apartment will be liberally supplied with closet space, Mr. Gates said.

The completely equipped field house, introducing the latest in athletic equipment, including a swimming pool and basketball court, will be ready for activity by Nov. 15, according to A. R. Lane, engineer.

Occupying nearly a quarter of a block opposite Service club building is the new ground building will be the most modern of its kind in the Third Army. A board of senior army officers will be convened in from Reserve officers training corps students attending summer training camps as members of school 12, now to which they are regularly assigned will be treated with those units without regard to race or color.

IG Appointed For Division

Lt. Col. Erwin O. Gibson, formerly commanding officer of the Second Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, has been appointed inspector general of the Third Infantry Division.

Colonel Gibson came to Fort Benning in September, 1948, and assumed command of the Second Battalion, 325th Infantry Regiment. He was named Second Battalion commander when the 15th was reactivated here in December, 1948.

When Colonel Gibson was with the 325th, he was commander of an honor guard in Miami for President Truman.

During the war, Colonel Gibson served in the European theater as regimental executive officer of the 264th Infantry Regiment. He is authorized the Bronze Star with two clusters and the Combat Infantryman's badge.

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Instructional Suggestions Earn Title For Sergeant

A 12-year army veteran whose initiative and planning have won him the praise of unit officers, Sgt. James C. Stanford, has several of his problem solutions incorporated into instructional material in the Infantry School's communication's department.

Sgt. James C. Stanford combined the qualities of resourcefulness and accurate management to win this week's title of Soldier of the Week.

Under the direction of the tenacious Major G. A. Nave, the crew successfully proved the effectiveness of the new axle during the experimental operation, adding to his qualifications for

Non-Combat Vets Eligible For Society Membership

A 31-year old army division week announced plans to accept non-combat members in its highest prestige membership plan. The society is limited to combat veterans of the 15th Infantry Division.

Until this time, the Society of the First Infantry Division accepted membership only from veterans who served in combat with the outfit during World War II.

Interested veterans should contact Colonel Cupello at his Fort Benning office in the Training Publications department of the Infantry School.

Captain Named Unit Commander

Capt. Clement Smyth has been named commanding officer of Company K, 15th Infantry Regiment, replacing 1st Lt. Cornell Saunders.

Captain Smyth, a recent graduate of associate advanced course No. 2 at the Infantry School, has been assigned duty with the regiment. He previously served as both commanding officer and executive officer of Company K.

Little Reaction to Reds' A-Bomb Know-How

INTERNATIONAL—The shrouds of enigma cloaking the A-bomb suddenly were cleared up last week. It was clear now, from President Truman's official disclosure, that Russia possessed the secret the United States had seemingly guarded so closely. Around the world, reaction to the announcement was somewhat of a question in itself. In Britain, where newsstands were sold out minutes after announcement of the pound devaluation, the average citizen accepted the news without customary "litter"—plenty of copies of history-making headlines were left to be sold. In Japan the extra — screaming newboys trodded the streets expecting to find ready sales. On the Friday of the world-shaking news, an economic nemesis to the paper vendors because of a holiday, occupation troops and citizens went about their duties, seemingly too busy holidaying for the news. In this country the public felt the Sunday-supplement creeps chase up and down its back. Minds began to re-picture the horror and devastation of Nagasaki and Hiroshima. The bomb had always been presented as something that unlocked the secrets of the universe, with the first blinding flash like a glimpse into eternity. In the United Nations organization alone about the restrictive power to quell the destructive use of this energy. Russia had nothing to say.

SPORTS—After a nerve-stabbing, double-barel round of play, shocked sports fans watched the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers emerge victorious in the playoff game to find themselves World Series contenders. The Yankees from Empire City walked off with 5-0 honors against the Red Sox from the Tea Party town.

while Brooklyn's Bums edged through a 9-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. At press time, rumors spread that supporters of the two great losers were yelling for a Junior World Series, possibly to be played in Boston and St. Louis, involving the two victims of the winners.

HUMANITY AT WORK—After addressing a group of career women at a luncheon in Bluefield, W. Va., United Mine Worker Chief John L. Lewis asked if his audience had any questions. There was only one. A woman asked, "What kind of hair tonic do you use?"

THE PRESS—America takes time this week to honor the Fourth Estate, long-labelled everything from educator, entertainer and propagandist. The free press, an example of preserved heritage, is annually saluted during the first week in October. Through eras when European papers were being gagged by state regimists, America's institution emerged free of bonds. A great voice in our democracy, the press should be saluted by all during the last two days in its honor.

DEATH TAKES CONTENTMENT—He was born Sam, but everyone who loved music knew him as Buddy Clark. Known as the "Contented Singer" and heralded by Al Jolson as "the greatest of them all," 38-year-old Buddy Clark had thrilled hearts of young and old with his lilting love lyrics and gay arpeggios. Last Saturday, Buddy lay dying in the streets of Los Angeles—the victim of a derisive plane crash. The singer who never failed to make a show had to cancel his new Sunday night show. He wouldn't appear this time. His throat was now cold with death.

Pay Only For Extra Service

To tip or not to tip, that's the question which bothers most servicemen.

Unfortunately, tipping has become an extremely dangerous practice. Now, instead of working for a tip, waiters, barbers, shoe shine boys, taxi drivers, have come to expect it. Indeed, many are quite put out if they aren't on the receiving end of a sizeable percent of the total bill. And this is primarily due to the soldier's flair for "being a good guy" or—as is the case so many times—being a showoff.

Tipping is desirable in restaurants and night clubs because most waiters rely almost entirely on tips to make their living. In many eating and entertainment establishments, no salary is paid to waiters, while in others a token salary of one dollar daily is the only income assured them. As a result, the customer is expected to provide a part of that meager income.

In such places, tipping is almost a "must", but such places—and they aren't the dives where so many soldiers are prone to congregate—provide a little extra service to the customer, such as a refilled cup or glass, extra bread and butter, clean ashtrays, free matches, food prepared as requested, and a waiter ready at all times to serve the potential tipper.

Tipping a barber, on the other hand, because he cuts a soldier's hair, or tipping a shoe shine boy because he shines a soldier's shoes, or tipping a taxi driver because he delivers a soldier to his destination is not at all necessary.

A barber is performing his job, just the same as a post exchange clerk is when he sells a carton of cigarettes or a bottle of hair tonic. A shoe shine boy is performing his job when he shines shoes, just as a tailor is when he shortens a soldier's trousers or sews a new patch or stripes on the sleeves of a shirt. A taxi driver is performing his job when he delivers his passenger to his destination, just as an engineer on a train or a bus driver is when he delivers his passengers to their destination.

Barbers, taxi drivers and shoe shine boys "love" the soldier because they have learned that large tips can be expected from him. In most cases, the barbers and taxi drivers and shoe shine boys make more money in one week than the soldier in one month. They get paid for their service and in addition they are paid with tips for service not rendered.

There are barbers on the reservation today who return change to their customers in quarters and dimes, dropping each coin into the customer's hand one at a time. They do this in such a suggestive manner that the soldier feels like a tramp unless he tips. We, however, believe it is better to feel like a heel than to allow a tip-happy barber rook us into giving him extra money for no extra service.

Be wary of the smiling barber, the grinning shoe shine boy and the glib talking taxi driver. They aren't giving you anything you don't pay for. Don't pay them for anything you don't get.

Army Freezes All Non-Career Promotions

By Armed Forces Press Service

Faced with the prospect of a strength reduction in the next fiscal year, the army has frozen all non-career promotions to first, second and third grades. In career fields, adjustment promotions will be materially restricted. Higher qualifications for new enlistees are being considered. Promotions to grade three for cooks, MOS 0060, resulting from the August examinations have been made. Promotions to grades one through four expected to result from December and January examinations are expected to be made. More than 100,000 army men were promoted to grade five during the first year of the career plan, ending last July 31.

The Veterans Administration plans to mail a million checks a week when it begins payment of the $2.8 billion NSLI dividends next January.

Appointment of second lieutenants in the regular air force, scheduled for announcement in July, will not be made this year pending revision of regulations governing integration of reserve officers on extended active duty.

One of the problems facing the Defense department, with respect to the new post exchange and ship's stores regulations effective October 1, is whether welfare funds will be reduced or eliminated.

Only Workable Demonstrations Prove Value

By Chaplain Wallace M. Hale

The proof that a personal demonstration of Christian character is the world's best Bible has been further attested by a modern-day psychologist who says that man remembers 87 percent of what he sees and only seven percent of what he hears. The kind of life we live speaks so loudly that it's difficult to hear what we say.

It is almost impossible to teach others to love God, to acquire honesty, integrity, love of truth, devotion to duty, courage and loyalty unless we can give them workable demonstrations of the value and personal profit of these things. Many an inventor has found it impossible to sell his product because he was not able to demonstrate its practicality.

The world is looking for a way to live. People want true happiness, personal significance and security. Many will sell their souls and their accepted standards of conduct and forget the basic tenets they have been taught if they feel that a successful way of life has been offered.

A child or a student does not pay as much attention to words as he does to attitudes and infections. I may say one thing, but if my emphasis is not right and my demonstration is not consistent, my words will be discounted. A mother may stand at a window and say to her child, "Look at the pretty lightning." But if in her heart she is afraid, the child will not think the lightning beautiful but will have fear in his own heart. Today we should live what we profess or change our profession.

whether exchange profits will be marked up sufficiently to keep welfare activities at the present level.

Army and air force serial numbers will be called service numbers under new regulations being issued. The navy has used "service numbers" for many years.

The third volume of the army's documentary history, "The U. S. Army in the World War 1917 - 1919" will be published October 20. It deals largely with the training of American soldiers for duty in co-operation with British and French troops.

The Forrestal memorial committee, headed by Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson, will meet November 9 to choose a sculptor for the bust of the late Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal, to be placed in the Pentagon. The bust will be paid for from a fund raised by service contributions.

Army reserve officers on active duty, who also hold appointments as permanent warrant officers, will be permitted temporarily to continue in their present status.

An orientation course for commanders and staff officers of 21 army commands in the military aspects of atomic energy has been started at Sandia Base, Albuquerque, N. M.

Chips off the Old Benchley by Robert Benchley, Harper and Harper, New York, Publishers.

By D. W. SCHAEFER

Fallen chips from the brow of one of the great American humorists whose unfortunate death left a gap in American laughter fill again the vacuum created by his death. Here is a collection of Benchley tales that have never before been published in book form. The material in the book represents the work of Benchley at his best, from the early twenties to the thirties.

Most of the tales can be read in less than 15 minutes. They can be read hanging from a bus strap or waiting in line for a movie. They can be read as Benchley meant them to be read.

"The mad titles of the stories zoom out of the pages like a Buck Rogers rocket ship." "The Menace of Buttered Toast," "Your Boy and His Dog," "Imagination in the Bathroom" and the final gem, "Why Does Nobody Collect Me?", are indications of the menace to stolidity and stoicism contained in the book.

Benchley was many things: drama and book critic, actor on stage, screen and radio, humorist and satirist. He drew upon extensive experience, steved it through his own peculiar psyche, and gave us what we have read in magazines for the past twenty years, and what we can read again in this collection.

There are not many subjects that are not covered by Benchley in his works. He pays his respects to the health hen, Gilbert and Sullivan, bird fanciers, Sir Walter Scott's whose novel "Ivaphoe" he read eight times, people who applaud too long in theaters, customers who are overbearing to waiters and to musicians who mangle melody.

"Almost every pet hate or tiny quirk a human being can have is revealed through the succulent wit of Mr. Benchley. (He preferred to be called Mr. For many years he had a sign, prominently displayed in his New York apartment, reading Mr. Benchley, please.)

There is many a good laugh, and more than a flash of illuminating humanity in this collection.

It is a happy book in the sense of the ridiculous and sometimes psychic, and it makes happy reading.

"It's nothing to get upset about. After all, these so-called child-care experts don't know everything. If your husband wants to talk baby-talk to your child occasionally, why don't you let him?"

"The trouble is he doesn't talk that way to the baby. Only to the nurse."

Hiram: "This job that you are applying for entails a lot of public speaking. Do you think you've had enough experience along those lines to qualify for the position?"

Applicant: "Absolutely. I proposed to my wife over a party line."

American (sneevily): "Well, I should say. See the Smithsonian Institution over there? Think of a building like that just to educate the Smiths."

"I'm going to marry a pat-rolman."

"How thrilling! What's his name?"

"I don't know his name, but I've got his number."

Abborino — "What shall I say about the peroxide blondes who made such a fuss at the ball game?"

Ernie — "Say, the bleachers wait wild."

Community Concert Drive Will End Saturday, Oct. 8

This is Community Concert Week at Benning. There are still three days (today, Friday and Saturday) left to subscribe for your season membership. Concert campaign headquarters are located in the Officers' lounge of the Main Theater (FB 3470) and are open from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. daily. Seats will be assigned according to the date of subscription. No preferential seating, nor renewal of seats held previously, will be considered first in seating arrangement.

The campaign will close Saturday, after which no new memberships can be accepted until next season. Attendance at all concerts will be by membership only. It is suggested that further delay in securing your membership is inadvisable. No box office tickets will be sold for individual concerts, according to Mrs. Allen L. Peck general chairman.

It is the ambition of Mrs. Peck, and the committee, to present a fifth concert this year. Whether the additional concert is booked depends upon the number of memberships sold this week.

The tentative concert schedule includes 16-year old Ervin Laszlo, Hungarian pianist, Nov. 7, and Rosario and Antonio, Spanish dancers, reputed to be tops in their profession, scheduled for Dec. 9. Plans are underway to book a small symphony orchestra and wild animal contralto for the third and fourth concerts.

Coffee Club Has Meeting

Two new members joined the Block 12 Coffee club at its regular weekly get-together last Thursday morning in Mrs. James A. Keenan's quarters.

They were Mrs. Arthur Larden and Mrs. G. D. Burdick. Three years ago last month a group of neighbors and friends gathered in the quarters of Mrs. Grady Tolle to look at Christmas cards. Coffee and rolls were served, and the ladies had such a good time they decided to meet again the following week, and from then on the Block 12 Coffee club has continued its social get-togethers.

Although there have been many changes in personnel during that time, there are still four of the charter members left: Mrs. Ewald Knuth, Mrs. John Scoville, Mrs. Robert Lamb and Mrs. John F. Dobrosky.

Pitt, Irish Schedule Set

Beginning in 1950, the University of Pittsburgh will clash with the Fighting Irish in Notre Dame on the gridiron in a new four-year series. The teams were not scheduled this season because of conflicting dates.

Young Benningites Corner Nursery School

Children of the Fort Benning Nursery school were guests of a special party Wednesday morning, Sept. 28, honoring Elaine Spencer on her fourth birthday, and Maureen McCormick on her third birthday.

Tables, covered with yellow and blue crepe paper, held bouquets of multi-colored balloons in pastel shades were at each place. Following refreshments of ice cream and homemade cookies, the party moved outdoors for a morning of fun on the slides, teeter totters, parallel bars and swings.

Mrs. and Mrs. Nathaniel R. Spencer and Mrs. A. W. McCormick were present to celebrate their daughters' birthdays. Elaine wore a dainty handkerchief linen, in turquoise blue, designed with a square neckline and white organza collar.

Maureen wore a fall number in royal blue plaid with red, featuring a white waffle pique collar edged with a dainty white organza.

Boy Scouts Hold Rally

Forty-five Boy Scouts rallied for their yearly round up last Friday at the Polo Hunt club, when new members were accepted and a re-organization program was carried out.

Following an address by Joe Nelson, district commissioner from Columbus, refreshments were served. The troop will meet weekly on Friday at the Polo Hunt club at 9:30 a. m.

Military Couple Wed at Chapel

Pvt. Wynelle Goodwin, Wac detachment, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Goodwin, of Jasper, Ala., became the bride of Sgt. Paul W. Shockley, Headquarters and Service company, Airborne battalion, son of Mrs. Inez Shockley, of Albertville, Ala., in an impressive military ceremony in the Infantry Center chapel last Saturday at 9:30 a. m.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale performed the marriage ceremony before an assemblage of friends of the couple. Miss Mary Hill of Columbus served the bride as maid of honor. Her attire was tailored and she wore a corsage of gardenias. First Lt. George W. Kristanoff served the groom as best man.

Our Motto 'Deeds Not Words' Mrs. Bell Tells Women at Club's Opening Monday

Approximately 900 women gathered for the opening of the Officers' club Monday afternoon, when Mrs. Marcus B. Bell gave the invocation. The first meeting of the club's 26th anniversary year was set before the fireplace, against a background of magnolia leaves and candles on the table.

Following the reading of the minutes of the May breakfast meeting and the treasurer's report, Mrs. Bell welcomed members, prospective members and guests. "The purpose of the club," she said, "is to sponsor educational, social and cultural activities on the post, and to assist in any welfare and social service work which is desired by the majority of the members and approved by the commanding general."

Field Forces Chief Retires After Making Final Report Cites Postwar Improvements

Gen. Jacob L. Devers' postwar report of the army field forces, submitted to the chief of staff, U. S. army, in conjunction with General Devers' retirement, has been released by the Office of the Secretary of Defense. The report reveals significant training, equipment and research programs affecting the postwar army.

The 20,000-word document describes activities of the army ground-force with planning, reorganization of combat units, maneuvers and exercises, training schools, personnel and logistics problems, economy measures and the development of a new equipment.

The report places great emphasis on the human approach in training the soldier. Policies employed in the University Military Training Experimental unit at Fort Knox, Ky., which took a year to recruit and train him to be a soldier without excessive restraint or coercive discipline, have been adopted in all training. Explanations show the results in better trained, more willing soldiers.

New weapons and equipment are revealed for the first time. Included are the M-1, a completely armored personnel carrier, trucks designed for the M-1, amphibious, self-launching assault-type bridges, and a light-weight rifle being developed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. The M-1 is a Cold weather clothing designed on the layer principle to increase utility and decrease weight is discussed.

Many recently adopted training features are mentioned in the report. They include the complete "Aggressor" force with fictitious ideology, economic structure, and political history. These "enemies" force a distinctive uniform and full-size, inflatable rubber replicas of enemy tanks, armored planes and other similar items. It has been found that they are measurably more realistic and effectiveness of training exercises.

Three major training exercises employing "Aggressor" forces are scheduled for early 1950. A combined United States-Canadian exercise in the Arctic region is planned for January. A joint army-navy-airforce amphibious and air-borne assault on Vieques Island, Puerto Rico, is planned for February-March. A joint army-airforce exercise similar to "Warhead" (a training exercise held in North Carolina several months ago) will also be staged in early spring.

In late 1950 and in 1951, nine major exercises will develop and test the ability of this new army to maneuver and fight in any climate including the Arctic, jungle and desert.

The economy section of the report shows how duplication of effort has been eliminated and how earnest efforts are being made to economize whenever possible. For example, where ten separate organizations were formerly termed as the development of equipment, four army field forces boards now do the same work. Certain training centers and schools, such as the infantry and airborne schools at Fort Benning, have also been combined.

Concluding the report with his recommendations, General Devers pointed out the need of working more closely with the navy and the air force to insure the best co-operation possible. He emphasizes the demand for better training, better weapons, and better teamwork.

Captain Transferred
Capt. Ivan W. Horne has been transferred from Fort Hamilton, N. Y., to the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion. He will be assigned to Headquarters and Service Company upon his arrival here about Oct. 20.

GEN. JACOB L. DEVERS Retires to Farm

General Devers Plans to Farm

Gen. Jacob L. Devers stepped down from his post as chief of army field forces last week to retire to his farm in Virginia.

His retirement last Friday, after 44 years service, was marked by a parade at Washington's Fort Lesley J. McNair in which units of the 62nd Airborne division, 3rd Infantry Regiment, and the District of Columbia National Guard participated.

The review ended a brilliant military career, which started in 1905, when General Devers entered the United States Military Academy.

When World War II started General Devers, then a brigadier general, took over as chief of the armored force at Fort Knox, Ky., where he trained thousands of American troops for combat.

In 1943 he moved to France as commander of U. S. forces and later became deputy supreme commander in the Mediterranean area.

When the allies invaded Europe General Devers led the drive across southern France into Germany.

He returned to this country in June, 1945, to head the Army Ground Force, now Army field forces, one of the army's top jobs.

His aim as head of ground forces was to give his troops personal liberty and a greater sense of dignity.

Four Promotions

Four promotions to sergeant have been announced in the Student Training Regiment.

They were William E. Dixon, Charles H. Hart, James A. Nelson and Archie V. Pemberton. Promoted to private were Bookner T. Berry, Tracy H. Chisoll, Charles M. Wyatt and Richard W. Wood.

Jewish Soldiers Visit City Homes

Nearly 150 members of the Jewish faith, stationed at Fort Benning, visited homes of Jewish families in Columbus and Atlanta over the Yom Kippur holidays last Sunday and Monday.

The Jewish soldiers observed the fast from sunset Sunday, Oct. 2, until sunset Monday, Oct. 3. Visits to civilian homes were arranged by Mrs. B. Prager of Temple Israel and Mrs. D. Gerson, Congregation Shearith Israel, both in Columbus, and Abe Greenberg of B'nai B'rith, Atlanta.

Carcass-Cutters Perform To Satisfy Meat-Eaters

BY HARRY KING

"Through these doors pass the most beautiful carcasses in the world", could be the slogan of the Infantry Center Quartermaster corps' meat cutting plant.

It could also be said that out of those doors go the world's most luscious-looking steaks, chops, hams, and roasts.

The way this transformation takes place is the story of 22 men who scientifically slice as much as 185 tons of meat a month.

From the moment a carcass arrives at the unloading platform at the corner of Gillespie street and Upton avenue, until it leaves as choice cuts, it doesn't stand a chance. It's frozen, thawed, inspected, graded, cut or ground, sorted, weighed and packaged.

OWNERS & OPERATORS:

First Lt. Kenneth E. Kinter, Infantry Center butchery officer, watches each pound of meat as though it were the only one he had to supervise and not just one of 300,000 pounds, which was the June total.

Lieutenant Kinter is proud of Benning's record of not one case of food poisoning in two years.

One reason for this, he claims, is the close supervision of the meat cutting plant at all times, with strictest attention to cleanliness and choice of personnel.

The average meat cutter has had three years of experience, while many have more than 15 years.

Although the average layman might think lightly of the skill necessary in dissecting a carcass of beef, one minute in the cutting plant amid flying knives, buzzing saws and guillotine-like cleavers would be enough to convince him that a butcher who can cut up 15,000 pounds of meat a month is not only skilled but brave.

Despite the flashing blades, however, not one injury has been recorded in the plant since it arrives.

The first step in processing the meat takes place when a carcass arrives. The Infantry Center veterinarian breaks the seal of the refrigerated car, checks the temperature and inspects each carcass before accepting the shipment.

From the car the meat is taken to the freezing room, where it is stored until needed. The freezing room holds four carloads of meat and is practically never empty.

Thawing is done gradually in a separate room at a 40 degree temperature, only 10 degrees higher than the freezing room. Lieutenant Kinter explained that there is no quicker way of spoiling meat than by hasty thawing at too high a temperature.

The meat goes from the thawing room to the cutting room. Here excess fat is removed and boiled down to make lard. In all, 15,000 pounds of lard were salvaged and used on the post.

This constitutes one of the plant's greatest economies.

After cutting, the meat is weighed, packaged and made ready for distribution to post dining halls.

ALL THIS MEAT AND NO POTATOES—NOT AT WORK ANYWAY. Pvt. Myron Strauss, Left, and Sgt. W. K. Tate at work.

BENNING SPORTS

by jim cloonan

Now that the New York Yankees have beaten the Boston Red Sox and the Brooklyn Dodgers have disposed of their arch-enemies, the St. Louis Cards, we can all sit back and enjoy what is commonly called a Subway Series. From all accounts of the comparative strength of the two teams it would appear that this series may be forced to go the entire seven games before a champion is crowned.

On the Brooklyn side of the ledger is one great asset, speed, which they intend to use to the utmost against the American League powerhouse. The Yankees will probably rely on their deadly batting power to carry them through to victory. Strangely enough, the Dodgers have a point advantage in the team batting, 270 to 269, but lack the extra-base punch of the Yankees.

Venturing a guess on the outcome, we'll string along with the speed of "Dem Bums" and hope their pitching staff holds up under the strain.

While the thoughts of millions will be concentrated on the series, football will still share the spotlight over the weekend. Among the top games on tap for Saturday are the Texas-Oklahoma struggle at Dallas and the Army-Michigan donnybrook at Ann Arbor.

On Sunday afternoon football will return to Benning after a ten-month vacation as the Doughboys play host to the Rome, Ga., marine reserves. This contest should prove little more than a warm-up for the Doughs, who are pointing for the Memphis navy battle next week in the Tennessee city. Although the Doughs were held to a tie last week by the undefeated Eglin Eagles, they outplayed their opponents in every department but the scoring. They may have even outscored their rivals if the clock had been a little kinder. They were driving for a score and had reached the Eglin five-yard line when time ran out.

Getting back to next Sunday's game we'll say the final score will read Fort Benning, 27, Rome, 0.

Since football is the sport of the season let's take a look at the local high school picture. Apparently the Bi-City title will be fought out on the turf of Memorial stadium on the night of Oct. 28 as the Jordan Red Jackets play host to the Red Devils of Phenix City Central high. From games played to date both the Red Devils and the Jackets appear to be toe strong for their neighbor rivals, Columbus and Baker. Both Jordan and Central have excellent running attacks, rock-ribbed defenses and reserve strength to carry them through the long campaign without serious mishap. Columbus and Baker, on the other hand, have shown little in the way of an offense and at times have had defenses that resemble a sieve. Neither appears able to seriously contend for the title.

If any of our readers have the opportunity, we wholeheartedly recommend that they visit Memorial stadium and take in the local clashes. If the contest you pick happens to feature Jordan high you will also be treated to the best high school halftime show we have ever witnessed, featuring the Jordan high school band. This group of close to 100 boys and girls put on an intermission show that would rival many college shows throughout the country. Their precision marching and excellent musical ability are well worth the price of admission alone.

Columbus Plays Savannah In Only City School Game

Columbus high school's Blueeers will be the only local team to play in Columbus this week end, meeting Commercial high of Savannah Friday night in Memorial stadium.

On the same night, however, Jordan's Red Jackets play Richmond academy in Augusta, while Baker high of Columbus tangles with O'Keefe high in Atlanta. Other action in the Class AA way will see six teams take on foreigners in the fourth week of the gridiron campaign. Three of the foes come from Class A, one from Class C and two from out-of-state schools.

McIntire, the top team in Region One, will meet its Class A counterpart when it tangles with Bathbridge high, North Fulton, Class AA leader in Region Four, is slated to face Decatur, lead-

Doughs Tie Eagles In Opening Contest

Clock Stops Locals' March; Play Home Opener Sunday

Fort Benning's Doughboys failed to beat the clock last Sunday at Eglin field, Fla., and had to be satisfied with a 13-13 tie with the Florida eleven.

The Doughboys overcame a halftime deficit to score two touchdowns in the third period and appeared well on their way to an easy victory when the Eagles bounced back with the tying marker with only 1:40 remaining in the last period. The tying score came as Bill Brown pitched out to Fred Russett and scored standing up. John Almond added the point, sending the 10,000 partisan fans into a roaring mob.

The Doughs opened the game by fumbling four times in the first quarter and several scoring opportunities. One of these fumbles put Benning in a hole deep in its own territory late in the first quarter and eventually led to the first Eglin score.

The Eagles started their scoring drive by recovering a fumble by Don Hemphill on their own 43. After falling to gain, Eglin booted out on the Benning 24-yard line. Two line plays lost two yards and then, Eglin and Don Hemphill partially blocked Hemphill's punt, knocking it out on the Benning 24-yard line. The Benning line held, and the drive was over. The drive was over with a bullet.

The Doughs roared back after the halftime intermission and tied the score in two plays. Don Hemphill, Dough quarterback, gathered in the kickoff on his own five and went straight up the field to the Benning 38-yard line. On the first play, half-back Lou Barassi took a hand-off from Hemphill and broke over his own left guard to outrun the Eglin secondary in a 27-yard touchdown. Lou Barassi's try for the point was wide.

Curran put the boys through a rugged week of extensive practice with the emphasis on downfield blocking. Several times during the Eglin field contest, Doughboy backs were left on their own as linemen failed to carry out their assignments downfield. — The coaching staff expects to remedy the situation before game time Sunday.

The Doughboys may be forced to play their second straight game without the services of several of their starters, including End Jim Davis who was injured on the opening kickoff against Eglin. First string Tackles George Benck and Left Tackle along with Guard Barney Newbert also missed Sunday's game due to injuries.

Kickoff time on Sunday is slated for 2 p.m. with one of the three post games entertaining before the game and during the halftime intermission. Almost 12,000 seats will be available for the game, and a large crowd is expected.

Third Division Cops Top Spots In Golf Tourney

Three Third division officers tied for first place in the blind hoggy tournament played Saturday at the Country Club. Each turned in a 74 card.

It was the first in a series of handicap tournaments aimed at generating more interest in one of the few year-round sports on the post.

Awarded triple-tie prizes were Lt. Col. Ned B. Boyles, division G-2; Capt. George Harrover, 15th Infantry regiment, and Capt. Joseph DeMarco, division headquarters.

Lt. Col. J. W. Haley and Lt. Col. P. C. Rawlins tied for second place with cards of 85. The 83 contestants picked handicaps that placed their scores between 69 and 85. The winning numbers were drawn out of a hat by Frank Goss, club pro, under the supervision of the golf committee.

Joie Chitwood Act At Idle Hour Friday

Twenty-two world champion automobile and motorcycle stuntmen will race, smash and crash their way through a hair-raising, two-hour-long program of calculated calamity when the Joie Chitwood "Hell on Wheels" comes to Martin Stadium at Idle Hour Park Friday night at 8:30 o'clock.

A world's record will be on the mark and the group will also attempt eight death-defying stunts never before tried even in the thrill-crazy circus of death business.

Danny Johnston, smiling automaniac, will try to set a new world mark for the auto broad-jump. The present mark of 66 feet, 11 inches is held by Joie Chitwood himself. He made it in 1946 at Soldiers and Sailors field in Chicago. The jump is made in a standard sedan.

Using new Fords as part of their $100,000 worth of rolling stock, the hard-driving stuntmen will try 23 stunts in all during their spectacular stay. Climax of the show will be Johnston's try for a record and a stunt that involves leaping a Ford through the air from one ramp to another while the other Ford speeds by underneath.

Among the stuntmen to be featured are some of the most famous names of American and European thrill show fame. They include Flash Rogers, the Human Battering Ram; Pierre Armand, hero of the French underground; Hal Kent, movie stuntman and double for Errol Flynn; Lucky Larry Teeters, famous stock car driver; Buddy Toomey, former all-star attraction with the late Lucky Teeter, and 16 other top-notchers.

Armand will drive an auto off an improvised precipice end over end through space to crash into a flaming plane waist. Two of the stuntmen will drop off the back of a speeding car into holes of burning gasoline.

Flash Rogers plans to crash head first through another blazing plane waist. Two of the stuntmen will drop off the hood of a speeding auto—with his head protruding two feet in front of the bumper.

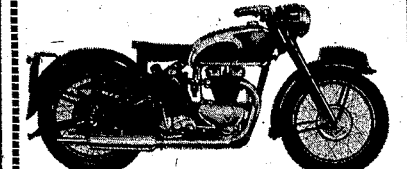

In the motorcycle end of the show, Don Fessenden, Langhorne, Pa., and Dale O'Brien, Chicago, will race down a straight-away and smash through flaming planks while two more motorcycle men will play leapfrog, broad-jumping the gas-burner steeds through the air from ramp to ramp over one another.

In the long line, Danny Daniels and the two Roberts Brothers, three famous clowns, will burlesque most of the events. At the same time they'll be risking their necks while cars are driven up over ramps within inches of them.

All cars used by the drivers in the show are equipped with regulation models, football helmets—and their long years of know-how and the best equipment they use for protection.

In New Assignment First Lt. Thomas J. Hallman was recently appointed assistant S-1 of the 15th Infantry regiment.

During the war, he saw action in the southwest Pacific, Australia, and New Guinea and a number of the Philippine islands.

15th Infantry Cage Loop Under Way This Week

Three hardwood fills heralded the opening of the 15th Infantry regiment's basketball tournament Monday night, Oct. 3 at the main post gym.

The tourney, a round-robin affair, being played in two phases, is designed to weed out courtesans for the final choice of a regimental quintet to participate in the Infantry Center loop expected to get under way in December.

The first round now under way pits all companies of the regiment against each other one time around. This portion of the tourney ending Sat. Oct. 10, will be followed by activity on a battalion level.

Final team activity starting Oct. 11 will end Oct. 15th when unit athletic officials will begin considering prospective members of the regimental squad.

In the opening games, Headquarters and Headquarters company blasted the Heavy Mortar company with a 68-7 victory over the weapon men. Medical company cagers downed the Service company aggregation, 38-14, and First Battalion Headquarters company trounced Company C, 27-13.
