Asks Pay Increase For Armed Forces Hook Commission Suggestions Told

Sweeping revisions in the pay scale of the armed forces have been recommended by the Hook commission, according to a report made public Christmas eve by Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal.

The commission, appointed by Forrestal nearly a year ago to study the pay situation of the seven services, has recommended an average 15 per cent increase for all members of all services except recruits.

Promotion and responsibility are made the paramount factors for pay increases, while longevity is given less importance. Higher relative increases are recommended for executive and leadership positions in both of officer and enlisted categories.

The top three enlisted grades under the proposed scales should average about one-third increase over present pay. These grades would receive allowances comparable to those provided for commissioned officers.

"Fogies" (M- grade increases based on length of service) would be more rapid—every two years up to 18 years and then every four years—and on a flat scale instead of percentages.

The 80 types of special pay in the armed services should be drastically reduced, the commission's report continued. Only three were considered for continuation. They are: (1) hazardous duty, (2) sea and receipt pay for enlisted personnel only, and (3) inducement pay for doctors, surgeons and dentists except interns on active duty.

The commission also recommended that legislation be passed extending the 50 per cent exemption that ended Dec. 31, 1948. This exemption is for the entire pay of enlisted personnel and $1,500 for commissioned officers.

In addition to the army, navy, airforce and marine corps, the recommendations covered uniformed personnel of the coast guard, the public health service and the coast and geodetic survey.

1 Officer, 8 EM Get Certificates Of Achievement

Third army certificates of achievement were awarded to one Fort Benning officer and eight enlisted men who retired Dec. 31.

Col. Lloyd D. Brown, formerly coordinator of training at the Infantry School, was presented the certificate by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess during an informal ceremony last week.

The enlisted men honored included: M-Sgt. Barnett, 42nd Military Police detachment, 40th Area Service unit; M-Sgt. Efford, Branch, 3440th Area Service unit; M-Sgt. Lawrence W. Clark, 3440th Area Service unit; M-Sgt. John L. Marshall, the Infantry School.

M-Sgt. Fletcher Reeves, 3440th Area Service unit; Sgt. J. Frank Barnes, 3440th Area Service unit; Sgt. Eugene W. Banks, 375th Medical Collecting company (separate); and Sgt. John A. Cox, 3440th Area Service unit.

Vivian, recently assigned to the staff, 61st on the seniority list.

Post Still Leads 3rd Army Area In Reenlistments

In the Third army reenlistment "race" Fort Benning continued to lead the major posts in the area during November, both in percentages of eligibles re-enlisting and in actual reenlistments.

Out of 829 eligibles discharged during November, 569, or 61 per cent, reenlisted.

In second place among the "big three" in the army was Fort Jackson, S. C., with a percentage of 57.9 for 228 men of 390 who reenlisted. Fort Bragg, N. C. was third with a percentage of 55.6 or 505 out of a potential 907 reenlistments.

In the smaller posts of the Third army Camp Gordon, Ga., had the highest percentage, 72, with 13 of 17 men discharged signing up again. Fort McPherson, Ga., was second with a percentage of 72.4, or 82 of 110 re-enlisting. In third place was the base at New Orleans, La., Fort of reenlistments, out of 165 eligible discharges, a percentage of 54.5 trailing the smaller posts was Oliver General hospital, with 37 reenlistments out of 69 discharged for a percentage of 47.8.

Do You Know The Five W's?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of five articles dealing with the army's education system. In this week's article, the author tells about the five W's of learning at Fort Benning.

WHERE is it?
WHAT is it?
WHEN is it?
WHY is it?
WHO is it?

It is just beyond the quartermaster laundry, on the road to Lumsden field. It has large well-lighted stings—"Army Education Center." It is the Army Education Center night school. It's yours and it's one of the largest and best equipped of its kind in the world.

It is a troop information and education function. It is the result of the realization that the American soldier has to be a man whose mental muscles are as strong and agile as his physical muscles. It is the quartermaster for the mind.

It is in full swing on Monday and Thursday evenings from 8-10 p. m. It has scheduled thirty different group study courses—from auto mechanics to physics. It has the best qualified instructors available—specialists in their fields.

It's set up to fit you to do a better job and to prepare you to advance to more responsible jobs. It is for every officer and every enlisted man on the post. It is for dependents of officers and enlisted men.

Civilian Residency, Intern Programs Told By Army

Applications for participation in the civilian residency and the civilian intern training programs by physicians will be accepted by the army medical department beginning immediately according to an announcement from the surgeon general, Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss.

The two programs permit the further training of 600 physicians under the sponsorship of the army medical department.

The civilian residency training program permits the commissioning in the regular army of 300 selected graduates of medical schools approved by the American Medical Association, who have satisfactorily completed an acceptable internship and have been accepted for a residency at an approved institution.

Applicants accepted by a board of officers of the medical department will be given an opportunity to serve a residency of their own choice in any civilian hospital approved by the American Medical Association.

Physicians selected to participate in the civilian residency program will be commissioned as first lieutenants or captains. In addition to the regular pay and allowances of their grades, the physicians will receive $100 per month which has been authorized for volunteer army medical officers.

Selection of applicants for residencies will be completed by April 1, 1949. The civilian residency program for the fiscal year 1950 will get underway in July, 1949.

This program has been established for the purpose of providing specialty training to physicians who are interested in a career in army medicine. All physicians accepted for residencies will be required to serve one year on active duty for each year of formal training received.

Applicants accepted to participate in the civilian residency training program will be advised of their acceptance shortly after April 1, 1949. The value of the program has been recognized by the council on medical education and hospitals of the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges.

The civilian intern training program also permits the selection of 300 candidates for participation. Training will be open to selected potential medical school graduates who plan to begin an internship between Jan. 1, 1949, and July 1, 1949.

The applicants must fulfill the requirements necessary for appointment as first lieutenants in the Medical Corps Reserve and must have been accepted for internship training in a civilian hospital approved by the American Medical Association.

Everyone Should Help

Last week a young man, seventeen to be exact, expressed an attitude which is far too common among the youth of the nation. Boiled down, it all adds up to the fact that he feels he would be justified in doing almost anything to prevent his induction in the army under Selective Service. He would, however, be outrageously insulted should anyone have the audacity to brand him unpatriotic. He even implied as much. Here's what we think. You can form your opinion.

It's ridiculous to assume that we can sit back and collect our pay each month without working, and it's equally as ridiculous to assume that we can have an army, a navy and an air force, prepared to protect our own shores and our interests abroad, unless the youth of the nation is willing to help. The regular army soldier realizes that he alone can't win a war. He knows that it requires the concerted effort of everyone, and he knows that, in order to be prepared for any emergency, the youth of the nation must be trained in the tactics of warfare. And it's about time the youth of the nation knew it too.

We often wonder, when we hear complaints about Selective Service, whether Americans are aware of the tremendous debt they owe to the nation. Do they really believe, as some indicate by their silly attempts to explain their aversion to army duty, that there is no need for an army? Do they really believe that the U. S. just came into being, that no one did anything to make her great, that no armies ever fought to protect the American way of life? There is little difference between preparing oneself in time of peace to be a polished soldier in time of war and preparing after the shooting has already started. Certainly it is safer to train first.

We can't expect our country to grow and prosper without adequate protection, and it is impossible to have that protection without men who are trained to do battle. That's the reason we have armies.

And we believe that men who cringe at the thought of serving their country are unpatriotic.

Proposed Pay Changes

There have been so many incomplete accounts published by the Hook Commission recommendations concerning the pay of members of the armed forces that almost everyone is slightly bewildered. Some service publications have printed only enough of the report to cause many walls and much apprehension among the military. The Bayonet feels that a full report is due to all, and as a result we have opened the two center pages (pages 8 and 9) in order to carry a complete summary of the highlights of the recommendations.

So far we have formed no opinion of the proposed pay changes since we have not had time to study the recommendations carefully. We, however, are inclined to believe, at least from our first reading, that it will be of great benefit to the enlisted men as well as the officer. We hope that, if you are interested in knowing exactly what the commission recommended, you will read the report in its entirety.

It has not become law. It won't until approved.

Strictly Editorializing

Another bouquet was tossed to Fort Benning recently by the civilians who attended the first joint orientation conference Nov. 15-16. Praise from such a distinguished group of civilians should cause Fort Benning troops to throw their chests out even further since it means that they, because of their military know-how, were able to make a lasting impression on men who made the atom bomb, the Norden bombsight and other secret war weapons.

According to Chief of Staff General Omar N. Bradley, complimentary reports were so numerous that the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Army wanted to convey to Fort Benning and to the participating units their "personal satisfaction in the excellence of the performance." All these appreciations from the civilian guests, people who have much influence, were entirely voluntary. We feel as does Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., Third Army commander, that the impressions made on these men will be invaluable.

Too often people judge the army by a few unthinking individuals, and too often that judgment is wrong. An example of this arose last Monday, Jan. 3, when a Fort Benning sergeant first class made a rather foolish statement over a Columbus radio station. In reply to the question (during the sidewalk interview program), "Are you planning to remain in the army?" the sergeant sneeringly answered, "What army?" Apparently, he thought it extremely funny, but we doubt seriously anyone else did. At any rate, it's a good idea to keep our dirty linen in the closet.

We feel sure that any justifiable complaint could better be made through the radio. The reason we bring this up is to warn Fort Benning troops to guard against saying anything in public which may give the wrong impression of the army.

A man who has risen from recruit to the second grade should have more sense than to ridicule the army simply because he has an opportunity to reach hundreds of listeners. It's not possible that he really believes the army is so bad that he has to answer a question about the army by asking "what army?" In all probability, that sergeant will reëntist and continue to reap the benefits of an army career. But we don't think he has the qualifications for a sergeant first class.

Chaplain's Corner

MY DEAR DIARY

CHAPLAIN J. F. RAFFERTY

Some years ago a young lady, gaily dressed, and painted, called a taxi along Eighteenth street, Columbus. She was in a hurry to make an appointment at a beauty shop. In her haste she forgot to take her little crimson-colored diary. The taxi driver did not notice it until some hours later. Curious, he opened the perfume volume to find a name and address. He read some of the entries for the previous week: Monday, 2 p. m., manicure; 3 p. m. dressmaker; 6 p. m. tea at McGillicuddy's; Tuesday, 2 p. m. hairdresser; 3 p. m. milliner (my hat is tight); hair does not hold in place; 12 noon, hotel; 3 p. m. golf; 10 a. m., dressmaker; 11 a. m., milliner; 10 a. m., coming to lunch; 3 p. m., take taxi to the beauty shop; poor thing has been acting so strange lately; 8:30 p. m., movie; Thursday, 10 a. m., breakfast at the restaurant; 2 p. m., paid a few bills, did some shopping; 3 p. m., country club; 8:30 p. m., movie; Friday, 10 a. m., breakfast at the restaurant; 2 p. m., tennis; 6 p. m., periment evening, double feature Saturday; Phoned about that because it is still faint, also took Toodles for a walk; 11 a. m., dentist; 12 noon, lunch at the beauty shop; 5 p. m., dinner with Kitty; 8 p. m., movie.

What a record for one week! Seven days without a single mention of God! Seven days without a date with a girl! Almight! Seven days with twenty-four hours in each day—and not one hour spent with God! The soul appointments with the shops, the milliner, the hairdresser, the beauty shop, that a wasted week.

It may be more—a log book with entries and dates with failures. How many hours have we given to our Creator and our God? Let's count them up; I wonder if God is satisfied. Please God in all your diaries and in all your appointments with the shops, the milliner, the hairdresser, the beauty shop, that a wasted week.

There have been many stories written about the persecution of the Gypsies of Hitler; there have been many stories written about the German concentration camps. But this reviewer has never read anything about the 20-page story "Jewish Eyes."

In "Jewish Eyes" Sholem Asch writes the horrible story of the women's section of a concentration camp and her admiration of the eyes of a Jewish child of five. She admits that she had them torn out of the child's head, preserved and given to her.

There are three other stories of German infamy, equally ten for the sensual, equally of the sadistically inclined who exaggerate the evil of the German race. Asch is merely telling stories about life under the Nazis.

To Amuse You Today

A little ten-year old boy was the star witness for his father in a case in court. After he had answered a few questions, the judge said to him: "Sonny, did anyone tell you what to say after you had gotten up here on the stand?"

"Yes, sir," answered the boy. "My father."

"And what did he tell you?"

"He said the lawyers would get me all tangled up, but if I stuck to the truth I would be alright."

The hill-billy took the pen handed him by the clerk and signed the hotel register with an X. With thoughtful look on his face, he hesitated, then drew a circle around the X.

"A lot of people sign with an X," said the clerk, "but that's the first time I've ever seen it circled."

"Tain't nothin' so 'dad-burned odd about it," retorted the ridge runner, "I'm on the stand for a wild time I don't use my right name."

Chief: "That's post office, with a little more horsing around."

Passenger: "You'll bring me back safe, won't you?"

Pilot: "I've never left anyone up there yet."

A guardhouse lawyer didn't recall a spoon with his coffee at the company mess. "This coffee is too hot to stir with my finger," the lawyer said. "And the messman picked up his cup and exchanged it for another."

"Here's some that's not so hot, Jack," he stated.

Two recruits finished bath and were allowed into town. Seated in a cafe one soldier saw a finger bowl and asked the waiter why it was there.

Tourney To Bring Top Boxers Here

Annual Classics To Begin Feb. 1

Fort Benning will be a mecca for top-flight pugilists of the Third Army early next month when the army area boxing tournament gets underway here.

At least four area installations will be represented in the annual competition for the Third Army crown which is scheduled to begin Feb. 1.

All bouts of the four-night tourney will be staged under the lights of the Main gym. Each card will consist of at least eight bouts, and the teams will be made up of two leather pushers in each weight class.

Benning's participation in the annual classic will be highlighted by the return of two 194-48 Doughboy notables.

Wulbert Wilson of the Sand Hill Rockets, a quarter finalist in the welterweight bracket last year, will again enter the squared circle under the Doughboy banner. Lawrence Jones, who is carrying the 144lb Area Service unit's colors in the intra-mural circuit will defend his Third Army middleweight crown as a Doughboy contender.

Although the entries will be vying for team honors which were captured by the Fort Bragg Assassins last year, individual winners will be selected through the process of elimination and given berths on the Third Army team.

Selections will be made under the Hawaiian point system, whereby a fighter is classed according to experience and ability. Under the system, one loss is sufficient for elimination.

through the ropes for their first post-holiday warm-ups on Jan. 14. Activity in the circuit, which was suspended for the Christmas holiday season, originally was slated to be resumed this Friday night.

Openings in all Doughboy teams still exist, and only one vacancy can be regarded as filled.

Coach John Wilson, who piloted the Benning scrappers through their 1947-48 season, and his assistant, Danny Allen, are scheduled to meet this week with athletic officials and the post boxing board to consider candidates for the heavyweight, flyweight and featherweight divisions.

A possible selection for the bantamweight berth is Malcolm Davis of the Airborne battalion.

Locals Prep For Bowling Tournament

The bowling prowess of the Fort Benning Doughboys will be put to the acid test when the post plays host to other Third Army alleys delegations from Jan. 18-20.

In the tourney, the Doughboys will be defending the toga which they won on the main post lanes last winter.

While awaiting the arrival of the Third Army title aspirants, however, activity in the 194-48 intra-mural loop will continue. Play in the circuit was resumed this week after the keggers had been given a two-week respite for the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Although the post championship for the season won't be decided by the opening date of the Third Army meet, play in the intra-mural circuit will be suspended until after Jan. 20. At the conclusion of the tournament, intra-mural titles will be assumed, and the campaign is expected to continue until early February.

All members of the Doughboy team this year have served service with intra-mural aggregations, and five of the top candidates were on the championship crew of last year.

The quartet of veterans included Bob Short, Ewald Knuth, Harold Burns, Joe Patti and Walt Carlock.

About 10 bowlers currently are being carried on Manager G. M. Pollock's Doughboy team roster, but tourney regulations require that the squad be cut to a maximum of eight players before the meet.

The Dough keggers have rolled only a few matches this year, but have yet to be beaten, and the Benningites are being given a better than 50-50 chance to recapture their Third Army crown.

No team entries have been filed with the local athletic office yet, but it was estimated that at least five other plus delegations will be in the scramble.

In addition to the Dough entry, teams to be in the fray are expected to include Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Jackson, S. C.; Fort McPherson, Ga.; the Tennessee Military district, and the Florida Military district.

Although the team trophy will be the big prize at stake in the meet, Third Army officials pointed out that competition in the classic will not be limited to team entries.

Individual events, both in stipulated to continue until early February.

gled and doubles, will be staged, and scores posted by bowlers in the phases will be considered for the award of the high single game trophy.

The award to be presented to the championship squad will be a rotating trophy, but the top team also will receive a miniature plaque for permanent possession. Individual awards will be given to members of the winner and runner-up teams, the high singles and doubles victors, an all-events winner and the individual high game scorer of the tournament.

As the result of a probe conducted by a special committee of the NCAA, many teams which would have been favorably considered for bowl titles in past years may find their activity brought to an abrupt stalemata at the close of the regular 1949 season.

Although the text of the committee report hasn't been revealed, it is expected that it will impose some sort of curb on participation in the post-season affairs.

An argument being advanced by some of the collegiate conference chieftains in opposition to the committee investigations is that individual colleges and conferences are perfectly capable of handling their own business in the matter of post-season games, and should be permitted to do so.

Certain conferences already have imposed restrictions on their member teams in regard to bowl games.

Minor bowl appearances by Southwestern conference elevens are discouraged by requiring the honored team to kick in with $25,000, or a percentage of the gate receipts, whichever is greater.

A figure-happy statistician got out his pencil following the bowl games on New Year's day, and figured out where Michigan, although not a participant in any of the post-season tussles this year, still is out ahead of the winners.

But, after the pencil manipulator turned out a little more work on his collection of digits, he came up with statistics to show that Oklahoma A & M, which failed to score a single point in a 20-0 contest with William and Mary in the De-De Bowl, is seven points better than the Wolverines for the year.

The method in his madness works something like this: Michigan, Clemson and California more or less shared the national football title in 1948 since they were the only major unbeaten teams remaining after the smoke of battle had cleared away.

California was beaten in the Rose Bowl by Northwestern which had been conquered by the Wolverines during the regular season, and Clemson barely squeezed past Missouri (24-23) which was defeated by Ohio State during the fall campaign. The Ohio State Buckeyes also were victims of the Michigan squad earlier in the year.

Missouri tacked a six-point loss on Southern Methodist, the Winner of the Cotton Bowl, so, that makes the Wolverines 30 points better than the Mustangs.

When it comes to the Sugar Bowl winner, Oklahoma's Sooners, the comparison is a corker. Probably none of the bowl victors gained more profound respect for their New Year's performances than Oklahoma. Yet, if you work it right, the Wolverines have a nifty 59-point edge over the Sooners.

The fact that the Sooners trimmed the Texas Longhorns during the regular season season pushes the Orange Bowl winners even further into obscurity.

SLANTS SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Clefe
Bayonet Sports Editor

At one time, not too far in the shadows of the past, a football team which was extended a bowl bid could well consider itself the recipient of an unparalleled honor.

Today, however, things have changed. With the bowl fever mushrooming to almost phenomenal proportions each year, it's getting to where the situation borders on downright disgrace when a team with a better-than-average record of the season isn't invited to one of the post-season classics.

At the close of the past season, about 40 bowl games were sandwiched between the close of the regular campaign and the first of the year with 20 of the lot being played on New Year's day.

Practically every time somebody constructs a stadium that will seat 10,000 spectators or more, he gets in a huddle with some other lovers of the pigskin sport (or the cabbage it brings in), and, just like that, a new bowl classic is born.

It's amazing that some of the bowl investigators of recent years haven't been charged with infringing on a name copyright already applied to other post-season enterprises.

The fact that some teams are getting to the point where they consider a New Year's day bid in much the same fashion they would look at a dessert after a dinner is borne out by the squaws some elevens with good—but, not outstanding—records put up when they were omitted from the list of bowl invitations.

In still other cases, it appeared that committees of some of the smaller bowl classics had to scrape the bottom of the barrel to find a team which was eligible and desirous of playing in the tilt they were sponsoring.

But, the National Collegiate Athletic association (NCAA) has decided it's about time to do something about the rapidly-spreading bowl ventures, and has poked an official nose into the matter.

As the result of a probe conducted by a special committee of the NCAA, many teams which would have been favorably considered for bowl titles in past years may find their activity brought to an abrupt stalemata at the close of the regular 1949 season.

Although the text of the committee report hasn't been revealed, it is expected that it will impose some sort of curb on participation in the post-season affairs.

Dough Pinsmen Blank Officers

Doughboy keggers began making preparations for a defense of their Third Army title here on Jan. 18 by taking five straight games from a student officer aggregation of the Student Training regiment in a match on the Main alleys Sunday night.

Faced by Bob Short and Harold Burns, the Dough pinsmen rolled up a 4,507 - 4,034 score over the STR crew.

Short was the only Doughboy bowler to roll all five games against the officers, and headed the individual scoring roster with a total of 842. He was topped in the average department, however, by teammate Burns, who averaged 139 for four games.

Clarence DeReus led the scoring parade for the officer keggers with a five-game total of 854. Like Short, however, DeReus was the only member of his team to bowl in all five games of the match.

Game scores of 854, 843, 894, 874 and 872 were chalked up by the same restrictions as those the Doughboys, while the STR which prevailed formerly with a crew posted counts of 762, 634, no limitations being placed on 815, 786 and 827.

Representing the Doughboys in the match were Joe Patti, items. Women's and children's Anthony Piven, Ewald Knuth, clothing, curtains and a fancy Walt Carlock, Short and Burns, linen will not be accepted.

The STR delegates were Frank

GROOMED FOR ACTION . . . William (Red) Vandivier, left guard of the Fitzgerald, Ga., Purple Hurricane is shown grooming himself for action against the Westfield, Mass., Bombers in the New Year's day Peanut Bowl grid classic. Vandivier and his cohorts, however, couldn't seem to get moving against a smooth-operating Bomber grid machine, and yielded a 25-7 verdict to the Massachusetts eleven in the third annual high school bowl tussle. During their Peanut Bowl sojourn, the Fitzgerald gridders were billeted in the north tower of Doughboy stadium, and ate with the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company.

Peanut Bowl Teams Leave Post Sunday

Massachusetts Squad Takes Laurels Back To Bay State

Two of the top high school grid elevens of the nation left Fort Benning Sunday after sojourn here during the third annual New Year's day Peanut Bowl game and its related festivities.

But the twigskin aggregations made their departure with different tastes in their mouths. A Memorial stadium crowd of approximately 10,000 saw the Westfield crew pull out the sweets of a 25-7 victory.

ahead of Lauren Hargrove and company early in the game and punctuate a fine repertoire of backfield plays by throwing up an impregnable front-line defense.

Hargrove, the Hurricane backfield star, managed to get away for several brilliant runs, scored the only Fitzgerald touchdown, and kicked the extra point. But offensive honors for classic went to Roger Warner, 180-pound Bomber halfback, who scored two of the Bay State jack four six-pointers.

Saturday's setback was the first suffered by the Fitzgerald state Class A champs since the 1947 season. The Westfield eleven was beaten only once during the 1948 campaign.

After the Bomber defenses had succeeded in keeping Hargrove and Lamar Wynn well bottled up during the early stages of the game, the Massachusetts ball-handlers went to work with a series of wide-open plays, and pulled out ahead 10-7 at the half.

First blood was drawn by the Westfield Bombers seven minutes after the opening kick off. Moving the oval from the 41-yard line to the 17-yard marker on a series of running plays, the Bay State lads deflected the ball—toting chores to Warner, who needed only three plays to grab over the Fitzgerald goal line. Dan Baldyga then took to the air to find Chum Gorham waiting in the Hurricane end zone and add the extra point.

Shortly after the Bombers annexed their first seven failures, the South Georgia eleven stepped into the scoring picture, taking the kickoff on their own 10-yard stripe, the Hurricane used a sustained drive to move the ball into the Massachusetts end zone.

Hargrove, who climaxed the drive by going over the score, also was responsible for booting the ball between the uprights to work the count into a 7-7 deadlock.

Cage Aspirants Start Workouts

Candidates for the 1949 Doughboy court quintet started working out some holiday kinks this week in preparation for a schedule expected to take in approximately 15 games and at least two major tournaments.

Coach Bob Phillips, who recently took over the Doughboy helm after completing a stint as player-manager of the 15th Infantry regiment fivezone in the intra-mural circuit, got his gang together for the first time on Tuesday.

The Benning standard-bearers will have approximately two weeks of drills before embarking on their 1949 schedule.

Many of the games on the Dough slate still are in the tentative stage. Letters and other forms of communications have been received on only about half of these.

A total of 11 games, four in January and seven in February, have already been arranged for the Doughboys, and several others are expected to be definitely set up within the next week.

Two home games will open the Doughboy season. On Jan. 19, the Doughs will entertain the Flyers of Maxwell field, Ala., and the Thomaston, Ga., Millers will come to the Main gym for a tussle on Jan. 29.

On tap for Jan. 28 and 29 are games with the Jacksonville, Fla., naval air station in Jacksonville.

February's hardwood menu for the Doughs will include return games with the Jacksonville air stars and the Thomaston Millers, as well as single contests with Company I of the Alabama national guard's 200th Infantry regiment, Oliver General hospital of Augusta, Ga., and a pair of clashes with the Calloway Military school.

The state for next month also will include participation in the Record Win Streak

The Spokane Flyers of the Western International hockey league have chalked up 19 consecutive home victories, one more than the official national amateur hockey record.

Having been promoted to the grade of corporal during his first year in the army, Major Ruff re-enlisted in 1920, and that same year was transferred to Fort McClellan, Pa., where he served for two years.

In 1923 he was sent to Fort MacPherson, Ga., remaining there for six years. He then went to Fort Meyer, Va., where he served for two years before going back to Fort MacPherson.

In 1932, Major Ruff went to the Hawaiian islands where he served for three years. Returning to the United States in 1935, he was assigned to Scott field, Ill., and in 1936 was transferred to Fort Benning. He served as an enlisted man until Nov. 15, 1942, when he was discharged to accept a commission as lieutenant in the Medical Administration corps.

Post-Season Loop For Cage Squads

Cage quintets which finished off the pace in the 1948 intra-mural basketball campaign will have another chance to harvest some post-wide glory with the opening of a post-season intra-mural circuit Jan. 17.

The post-season league, however, will have no effect on the season's championship which was captured shortly before the Christmas holiday season by the Airborne Battalion Troopers. Play throughout the post-season campaign will be carried on in a manner identical to that contested during the regular intra-mural season. The same eight teams which took part in the regular season race will make up the new circuit roster.

Games throughout the campaign will be played at a two-per-night club each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday until each team figure has played one tilt with each other squad on the roster. The main gym will be the site of most of the post-season contests.

Should a Doughboy team game and two intra-mural tussles be listed for the gym on the same night, one of the intra-mural games either will be postponed until a later date or will be played on another court. One of the two post-league games scheduled, however, will be played as a prelude to the Doughboy fray.

Before activity in the newly formed circuit gets underway, all of the teams will be stripped of Doughboy candidates, and no player will be permitted to play both for the post quintet and an intra-mural squad.

A Coach Bob Phillips and local athletic officials, however, have reserved the right to take a player from any team in the post-season loop, and place him in a position on the Doughboy fivesome. This provision was made so as not to screen out every player from the Doughboy team on the basis that he failed to play for one of the intra-mural squads.

Despite the fact that the issue of the post championships has been settled, a team trophy will be at stake in the post-season race, and members of the first and second place crews will receive individual awards at the conclusion of the season.

Bowl Tilt Players Pleased With Visit

When some 70 Peanut Bowl gridders from Fitzgerald, Ga., footballers heard a brief description and some of the best ground of Fort Benning.

The four members first visited the annex headquarters, the commanding general's quarters, the children's school, the Infantry School building and the bachelor officers' quarters.

From there, the youths saw the Station hospital, the Fort Benning Golf and Country Club, French and Blue polo fields, the Student Training Regiment and Crain Hall (formerly known as Bigville mess).

Proceeding back to the vicinity of the Infantry School building, the tour passed the golf driving range, the proposed housing project for enlisted men, the Communications section of the Infantry School, the new book department and the army

The phase of army life which seemed to appeal to the young gridders was the extensive athletic program. The gridders were surprised to find that a tour of duty with Uncle Sam would necessitate discontinuance of their football and other athletic results.

Another fact which amazed the Westfield and Fitzgerald footballers was the vastness of Fort Benning. Some of the lads actually expected to find the post nothing more than a cluster of crude wooden buildings and scattered tent settlements.

They were astonished with the architectural magnificence of many of the edifices, and there were many queries regarding the newness and cleanliness of the structures.

Most of the major points of interest on the Main Post were shown to members of the two Peanut Bowl squads during guided tours on Friday. The Westfield entourage made the rounds of the area in the morning, and the Fitzgerald gridders circled the hub area in the afternoon. At the start of the tours, the footballers heard a brief description and some of the best ground of Fort Benning.

Local hobbyists are being given a chance to see how their products stack up with those turned out by other soldier craftsmen in a nation-wide crafts contest.

As far as Fort Benning handicrafters are concerned, the contest is broken down into three phases—the post elimination, a third army contest and the Department of the Army exhibit.

The Fort Benning contest is in progress now, and will continue until April 1. Capt. John A. Carlson, the Infantry Center recreation officer, has announced.

Included in the contest will be most of the articles commonly turned out in the Infantry Center hobby shop by Benning craftsmen.

Eligible for entry in the exhibit will be such items as model homes and vehicles, jewelry, ash trays, picture frames, wallets, toys, boxes for shaving accessories or jewelry, desk sets, name plates, figurines, cribbage boards, chess sets, lamps, knives and cases for cameras and accessories.

Such articles as drawings, paintings, photographs and flying model airplanes will be exhibited.

Top entries in the Third Army exhibit will be announced about July 1, and the articles will be forwarded to the Department of the Army for final judging. The army-wide winners in the contest will be decided shortly after Aug. 1.

The winning entries will be retained by the Department of the Army for a short time after the conclusion of the contest, and they will be returned to their owners.

It participated in the crossing of the Roer river and the drive to and crossing the Rhine river. Later the division smashed the enemy at the Ruhr pocket of resistance and was engaged in the task of cleaning up the Hartz mountains when the war ended in Europe.

Gen. Burress Addresses Basic Infantry Officers

The reduction of casualties in power, the best training, mechanical and utilization of man's strength and the challenges facing officers in today's army, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding officer of the Infantry Center, told 150 student officers of basic infantry officer training exercises last Monday morning.

General Burress said that 90 per cent of the 300,000 men killed in action during World War II were infantrymen, although the infantry composed only 10 per cent of the army.

The best of Fort Benning is what the infantry accomplished during the past war, he told the class, adding that the operations and exploits of the American doughboys were among the great episodes in the history of the United States.

General Burress said that the great characteristic of the infantry is that the human element is dominant, that in the infantry everything is subordinated to the human element.

General Burress was introduced by Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, Assistant commanding officer of the Infantry Center, following General Burress' address.

General Bradley addressed the student officers and they had better discipline and preconceived ideas they had before coming here concerning the infantry except those fundamentals that had been tested and found acceptable in combat. Army area.

Santa A Bum Bobby Insists

Santa Claus is a bum. That's the considered opinion of Bobby Meyer, four-and-one-half year old son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles "Monkey" Meyer, of Wickesham avenue, Fort Benning.

Santa brought a boxer pup, name of Duchess, and a pair of Christmas, 1947. Bobby says that the old man with the white whiskers did a mean, interesting thing Christmas of 1948: he brought plenty of presents, but he took Duchess away and left the pup. But Bobby wants Duchess, not just another dog. He doesn't want his new presents, either. And it's an awful thing for a little kid to think with Santa Claus is a bum. So if somebody sees a boxer, name of Duchess, with two-inch, easily-seen scars on the left foreleg, the telephone number is Fort Benning 2972.

Gen. Keiser On Post

Brig. Gen. Laurence B. Kelsor of the Second Infantry division, Fort Lewis, Wash., arrived at the Infantry School last Sunday to take a one-week infantry refresher course.

ARMY EDUCATION

Soldier, Do You Want The Facts?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of five articles dealing with army's education system. In this week's article the author gives full information about the opening of the Army Education Center's winter term. Here it is—full information about the winter term of the Army Education Center night school.

Classes will begin Monday evening, Jan. 17, 1949 at 6 p.m. Registration is open NOW. By popular demand, several new courses have been added to the curriculum this quarter, and I'd like to tell you briefly about them.

A large number of men, particularly officers and non-commissioned officers, have voiced a need for a course that will help them to express themselves better in writing letters, memoranda, reports, etc. We are, therefore, offering a course to meet their needs. It's called modern business English, and will be taught by a man well known in the writing field and who is daily in touch with army life and problems.

And here's the course that so many of you have been asking about—physics. In addition to using it to make everyday living easier, those of you who have completed your education now have the opportunity to get the physical science required by all academic institutions. Another study required by academic institutions is social science. In this field we are offering American Government to be taught by one of Columbus' most prominent lawyers.

Many of you who have taken psychology and life have been disappointed in not being able to continue investigating what makes them tick. We are offering a new course psychology of adjustment which is complete within itself and is open to anyone interested, regardless of previous study.

It is a time-proven fact that for success, in any endeavor, a man must present his ideas effectively and convince others that they are good. This is true if a recruit is trying to get a leave, or a regimental commander is writing a detailed report or recommendation, or a peanut vendor is trying to sell his wares. The technical names for these "arts" are advertising and salesmanship. The Education Center is offering these courses this quarter to help you develop your ability to put across your ideas in a manner that will bring you results. Your instructor in these subjects will be the advertising manager and sales engineer in one of the nation's largest businesses.

Another course which is not new, but is one of the most important we offer, is our basic subjects. It embraces the fundamentals upon which all learning depends. If you can't read and write well, if you can't do arithmetic of everyday life, you are depriving yourself of most of the opportunities to which your other qualifications entitle you. It's hard to go back and pick up those things you missed a long time ago, but it's harder to go on being passed over, when with only four hours of effort a week for ten weeks, you can overcome your handicap.

I would like to tell you about each course offered this quarter, but with time and space limited, I'll give you the schedule and you can call the troop I & E office, 3689 and 2862, if you want specific information about them. You may take the following courses from 6-8 p.m. Monday and Thursday evenings:

- Advertising (High School)
- Algebra (Collage)
- Auto Mechanics
- Basic Subjects
- Business Law
- English Grammar
- French
- Instrumental Music
- Physics
- Photography
- Russian (Elementary)
- Shorthand (Elementary)
- Sketching
- Supply Administration
- Typing (Beginners)
- Typing (Advanced)
- Psychology
- Review Arithmetic
- Russian (Elementary)
- Salesmanship
- Spanish

Registration is open NOW. You may register at your battalion or regimental unit I & E office or you may register at the Army Education Center during the following hours:

- 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. — Monday, Jan. 17.

Incoming Men See Post, City

More than 200 new soldiers of the 15th Infantry regimental combat team toured Fort Benning and Columbus yesterday in the first of a series of tours designed to orient incoming troops on the recreational facilities of the post and nearby community.

The 30-minute tour of the post took in such highlights as Russ pool, recreational points on the main post, the Airborne section and Lawson airforce base. From the post the convoy of buses moved to the municipal golf course on Victory drive where representatives of civil organizations in Columbus met each vehicle in order to point out more closely points of interest in the town.

While in Columbus the troops saw recreational spots and made visits at the 15th club on Ninth street and the Armed Forces Y.M.C.A. on 11th Street where club officials explained the facilities available to them there.

Area Pins Classic To Begin Tuesday

Benning's Toga Goes On Block

Final arrangements were being made here this week for the 1949 Third Army bowling tournament which will open on the main post bowling lanes Tuesday.

As the three-day tournament in 1948 is carried on the Jackegs under way, this year's Doughboy crew will be defending the area crown which was won by the local squad here last season.

The Dough team members, however, will not be able to get in any pre-tourney practice this week since the main post alley is undergoing a facelift.

Four team entries for the tournament already have been filed with the Industry Center athletic office, and at least two more are expected before the meet opens. In addition to the Doughboy squad, teams from Fort McPherson, Ga., Fort Jackson, S. C., and the Tennessee Military district have submitted their entries.

Keplers from Fort Bragg, N. C. and the Florida Military district are expected to participate in the tournament, but their entries have not been received here.

Each team will be permitted to field eight active bowlers and an alternate. A non-playing manager also will be eligible to accompany each squad.

When the Doughboy keplers face the Fort Jackson squad, they will be bowling against one former member of a Benning pin aggregation. Joe Bitale, who roled with the Doughs when they won the Third Army championship at Fort McClellan, Ala.

meet, Third Army officials pointed out that competition in the classic will not be limited to team entries.

Individual events in both singles and doubles will be staged, and the scores posted by the bowlers in these phases will be considered for the award of the high single game trophy.

The award to be presented to the championship squad will be a rotating trophy, but the top team also will receive a miniature plaque for permanent possession. Individual awards will be given to members of the winner and runner-up teams, the highest pinfall averages, and the doubles victors, an all-events winner and the individual high-game scorer of the tourney.

In submitting his entry, Fort Jackson pointed out that his team members are the bowlers who compiled the highest pinfall averages during an intra-mural campaign. Slated to represent the Atlanta Army post in the meet are P. L. Campbell, Elmer F. Hurst, Arthur J. Bellemare, James K. Hochgerlic, Thomas E. Howard, Donald H. Anderson, James A. Cole and Rufus A. Bradley.

Fort Benning's team will include five members of the squad which captured the Third Army title last year. They are Bob Short, Walt Carlock, Ewald Knuth, Joe Patti and Harold Burns. Other keplers on the Dough active list are Anthony Even, Robert Weaver and Norbert Symonak. Leiford Calor has been named as the team's alternate, and the Benningites will have a non-playing manager—G. M. Pollock.

While the tourney is in progress, matches will be bowled both in the afternoon and at night.

The Doughboys will go into the tournament holding a high degree of favoritism to stage a recapture of their title.

Although the team trophy will be the big prize at stake in the

Jimmie Wills Makes Bid For Boxing Team Berth

The search for a capable heavyweight to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army boxing tournament, which opens here on Feb. 1, has brought a new name into the local ring panorama.

Jimmie Wills, who turned in a series of performances on the hardwood court as a member of the 204th Transportation Battalion racket quintet, now frequents the main gym as a gloves trainee.

His active participation in sports, however, isn't confined to basketball and boxing. Baseball, tennis and table tennis are also on his list of active sports.

The versatile athlete is able to relate a colorful 10-year record of achievements in the sport and his ambition at present is to get his name on the 1949 Doughboy basketball lineup.

Wills' interest in sports started with his entry in the 1938 Labor Day meet. He was selected as a contender in the welterweight class, and he re-entered the gloves fray the following year after a not-too-successful first try.

His luck didn't improve much in the second year, so, he tried again in 1940—this time as a middleweight. Persistence started paying off then, and he climbed to the state finals. But his persistence carried him beyond the following year when he journeyed to Chicago for the National Golden Gloves meet, and reached the semi-finals as a heavyweight.

Soon after his trip to Chicago, he was inducted, and entered the army on Oct. 6, 1942. After completing his basic training at Fort Custer, Mich., he attended the Administration and Supply school at Camp Lee, Va., where he was stationed for the following year. In October of 1943, he went overseas with the 512th Truck Regiment, and was assigned to the European theater.

Abbreviated Action Span For Keglers

Coaches of two major Doughboy sports aggregations had their talent scouts scanning the post this week in an effort to provide a better lineup of material for Benning in a pair of forthcoming Third Army tournaments.

John Wilson, veteran ring tutor for the Doughs, and Bob Phillips, who recently took over the Benning cage helm, both cited shortages in team timber, and said that recruiting processes for squad members still are very much in progress.

The Doughboys will be struggling in both sports to better the runner-up spots they garnered last year.

Of the two mentors, Wilson will have less time to get his charges in shape for the area classic. Pugnists of the Third Army area installations will come to Benning for the title push on Feb. 1.

The roster of Doughboy team hopefuls in the heavier weights looks good enough to bring out a certain amount of confidence, but the lighter brackets still are very faint.

Eight team members already have been chosen for the 16-man squad, but Coach Wilson was quick to point out that none of the positions is a closed issue.

The selection of Jimmie Wills to hold down the heavy duty chores for the Doughs gave the post pugilists a well-rounded representation in the more ponderous divisions. Right below Wills on the roster are three veterans of the Doughboy ring wars of 1948: light heavyweight Dick Donaldson, middleweight Lawrence Jones and welterweight Wilbert Wilson. A brilliant newcomer to post pugilistic circles this year, Marshall Clayton, has received the nod for the lightweight spot.

Three alternates in the heavier brackets also have been named. They are Assistant Coach Dan Allen, who will be listed as a welterweight; Joe Provident, whose weight qualifies him as a light heavy; and Mac McGill, who will act as a stand-in for Jones in the middleweight position.

But when it comes down to the featherweight, bantamweight and flyweight categories, Coach Wilson's supply of material is nil. Several scrappers in those weights have appeared on the intra-mural boxing cards this year, but none has shown enough promise to be rated as a sure bet for a position on the squad.

Local ring officials have expressed the opinion that the adequate filling of the lighter-weight spots on the team may have a decided effect on the squad's success in the Third Army classic.

As the Doughboy cagemen were preparing for the opening-gun of the 1949 campaign, Coach Phillips was somewhat disturbed over the situation being created by a rapid turnover in the crop of team candidates.

At the time the court candidates were singled out from the intra-mural performers, the list of aspirants made very encouraging reading. However, several of the lads who were to be counted on to carry a heavy load have indicated that they will not be able to perform with the post quintet this year.

Lawrence Brown, who joined the Airborne battalion five mid-way through the intra-mural season to add strength to an already powerful aggregation of troopers, expects to be transferred soon, and already has been written off by the Dough tutor.

Warren Faulk, who was one of the big guns in the Infantry School detachment's club to the runner-up spot in the post circuit, has decided to give up his cage endeavors for the year in favor of his military duties.

Although his schooling at the Airborne battalion will not permit him to be suited up for the Doughboys' opening game on Jan. 26, Vern Griffin, who was one of the intra-mural loop's top performers, will join the Benning quintet prior to the Third Army tournament.

To offset the loss of Brown, Faulk and several other lesser luminaries, however, a handful of newcomers has turned out for the pre-schedule practice sessions.

Included in the newcomer group are Joe Chicome and Donald Jones of the 3440th Area Service unit, Mike Shulick of the Infantry School detachment, R. M. Himman and W. E. Chapman of Company H of the 15th Infantry Regiment and James Ultes of the 39th Field Artillery battalion.

John DeGruttola, who performed for the 39th Field Artillery five-games during the intra-mural race, has been named as an addition to the roster of candidates, and may be chosen as a squad member.

Boxing Spectacles Reopen On Friday

Post intra-mural boxing hopefuls will swing into action again Friday night at the main post gym after a three-week layoff for the Christmas and New Year holidays.

The card will be the first of three scheduled shows which will bring to a close the pre-tournament intra-mural program.

Bouts staged in the next three weeks will serve as final warm-ups for the main event. The winner of the final bout will be the alternate for Jones.

The Third Army boxing tournament which is scheduled to continue through Feb. 4, will be the second of five Benning meets for major sports crowns.

Fort Benning will play host to the 1949 Third Army boxing classic, the welterweight mat will be rolled out again Friday 24-26 for Third Army participants in the annual Track and Field meet, which will include multiple pentathlon.

Local net enthusiasts will participate in a three-day contest for Third Army honors on post courts during the latter part of June.

Rounding out a tournament-studded year, the army-wide 1949 baseball tournament will get underway for Third Army participants at the week of Sept. 11-18.

Jimmie Wills, sitting the comeback trail after a three-week absence from the square-edged circle, has again donned the boxing gloves.

Newcomer Marshall Chibyton, a flashy lightweight, has been given the nod for the Doughboy berth in that weight bracket.

Light heavyweight Joe Provident has been named alternate for Donaldson, and Assistant Coach Dan Allen has been designated the additional chore of a referee in the welterweight spot. Middleweight Mac

Game Association Calls For Closed Season On Wild Pigs, Turkey Hens

Hunting seasons on turkey hens and wild pigs will be closed starting next Thursday, officials of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance announced this week.

Closing of the season on turkey hens, however, will not outlaw the shooting of toms of the species. It was pointed out that the season on toms will remain open until Feb. 15, the date originally set forth in the association's 1948-49 regulations.

The open season on wild pigs was designated as Nov. 15 to Feb. 15 by association officials after the publication of the 1948-49 rules. At the start of the hunting campaign, the pigs could be taken only after obtaining a special permit.

Seasons already have been closed on four species of game but the period for hunting rabbits, squirrels and quail will remain open until next month. The types of wildlife for which the 1948-49 hunting era has been closed are doves, ducks, geese and deer.

All varieties of vermin still may be hunted on the reservation, but the paying of bounties for crow heads has been discontinued.

Hunting licenses are issued to members of the armed forces assigned to Fort Benning and members of their immediate families and may be acquired at the provost marshal's office. A permit is required for a permit, however, must be 16 years old or over. Licenses also may be obtained by retired members of the armed forces providing they reside within a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning. The 16-year minimum age rule also applies in these instances.

Graduate From Class 11

A total of 224 enlisted men and 14 officers graduated from the basic airborne class No. 11 Dec. 22.

Activity Started In Post-Season Hardwood Loop

The opening date for the post-season intra-mural cage basketball season was pushed one week, and eight organizational quintets embarked on a one-month schedule Tuesday night.

Although the post-season campaign will be waged in a fashion similar to that of the regular intra-mural race this season, the victor of the current league will not share the post-championship with the Airborne battalion Troopers, who won the regular campaign.

At the close of the post-season activity, however, the winning team and its members will be signally honored.

The eight squads entered in the circuit are being fielded by the same units which placed teams in the recent post-loop week, and include the regular intra-mural livesome to play with the Doughs at any time.

In the first of a two-game program tonight, the Airborne Troopers will meet the Lawson Field Flyers at 7 p. m., and the 204th Transportation battalion Truckers will clash with the Infantry School detachment at 8:30 p. m.

Tomorrow night's menu will feature contests between the Sand Hill Rockets and the 39th Field Artillery battalion Redlegs and the 15th Infantry regiment and the Lawson Flyers.

Former Post Cage Pilot in New Duties

Ced Tallis, erstwhile skipper of the Fort Benning Doughboys cage team, left Thomasville, Ga., last week for Jamestown, N. Y., where he will take over the business management of the Jamestown baseball club of the Pony league.

As business manager of the Thomasville nine of the Class D Georgia-Florida league last year, Tallis was cited as being largely responsible for the team setting the high mark in attendance in the circuit in 1948.

Although his Thomasville club led the loop's team standings temporarily at the start of the season last year, a so-so finish put them in fourth place when the campaign's final curtain was drawn.

DIAMOND STAR BALDWIN REJOINS SAND HILL UNIT

The outlook for baseball activity of the 25th Infantry regiment brightened considerably last week when Eddie Baldwin, hand-slugging third baseman, rejoined the organization.

Baldwin was transferred from Fort Bragg, N. C., last February, and patrolled the hot corner for the 558th Medical Collecting company mine and the 595th Airborne Infantry regiment Panthers during the 1948 season.

Continuing to hold the reputation as a slugger he gained while at Benning, Baldwin posted a batting average well above the 300 mark with the Fort Bragg nines.

Known to his diamond mates as "Big Jim", Baldwin stood head and shoulders above his fellow suckers in batting during his 1947 stint with the 25th Infantry regiment Bullet aggregation.

Experiencing one of the best years in his diamond career while with the Bullets in 1947, he established himself as a terror at the plate by blasting out 17 round-trippers, 15 triples and 19 doubles to finish the season with a hefty average of .457.

But Baldwin also has had his spectacular moments in the field.

Despite his huge size, he is considered fast, aggressive and a top-notch judge of fielding chances. Records show that the brilliant fielding of the third sacker was marred only by five bobbles during the 1947 campaign which saw the Bullets take the field for 47 contests.

Scoring Honors In Court Circuit Held By Battles

BY BOB PHILLIPS
The round-robin basketball tournament of the 25th Infantry regiment entered its second round of competition on Monday afternoon with accurate shooting Bill Battles of the Company G quintet atop the heap of point collectors.

The towering six-foot Battles, who specializes in one-handed shots from difficult angles, has posted a total of 46 tallies. In three games he has played, the Company G hoops player has swished the mesh for 20 field goals and dunked six charity tosses.

After being held to 10 points in his first outing, Battles put on a one-man show in his second trip to the hardwood by sinking 12 shots from the court for a total of 24 points. His performance in the contest set a league record for his individual scoring in a single game. Although he was checked at 12 points in his third game, it still was enough to annex honors as the contest's top scorer.

Battles was outscored in only one outing — his first — when Leon Smith and Sam Hardy of Company H each collected 11 digits to edge the Company G sharp-shooter by one point.

The Company G pivoter, who got his start at Rosenwald high school of Panama City, Fla., and Florida Agricultural and Mechanical college in Tallahassee, also is considered a better-than-average competitor in baseball, football, volleyball and table tennis.

But while Battles was taking care of individual scoring laurels, the fast-breaking fiveosome of Company H was setting the pace in the tournament's team

Lawson Field Courtmen Beat Atlanta Cagers

A greatly-improved Lawson field Flyer quintet took to the oaken floor last Saturday night to trim the Atlanta, Ga., Naval air station in Atlanta by a 35-31 count.

The air gobs scored the first five points of the game, but soon lost the lead to the Flyers. As the half ended the Lawson buckmen were out in front 10-13.

Hal Pope of the naval air station was the game's high scorer with 14 points. Bill Tremain and George Calder shared the high honors for Lawson with eight points each.

The Flyers will hit the road again Saturday to play a three-game series in Atlanta. The menu for next week is being mapped by the Third Army special services office of Fort McPherson, Atlanta, and is expected to include tilts with the Atlanta General depot, the Fort McPherson quintet and a return engagement with the air troops.

The Lawson fiveosome also is entered in the post-season intramural league here.

$2,000 Is Donated To 'Dimes' Drive

Soldiers of the Infantry Center "painlessly" contributed $2,000 to the March of Dimes, it has been announced by Infantry Center officials.

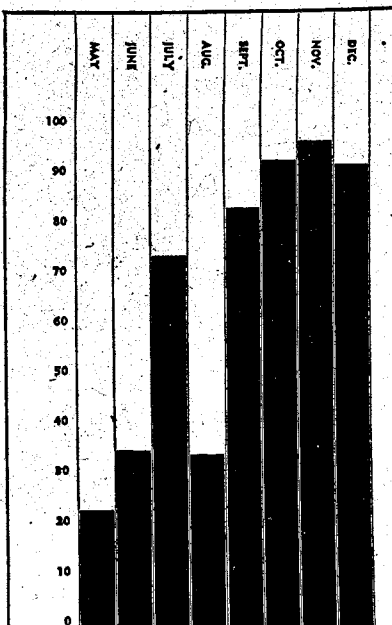

According to Lt. Col. Napoleon Rainbolt, who was in charge of the recent annual Community Chest drive, that amount was presented to the annual polo prevention and cure campaign from funds collected in the Community Chest campaign.

This donation obviates the necessity of having another charity collection campaign on the post since, except for the annual Red Cross campaign, the Community Chest is the only charity program on the post.

Captain Baden General's Aide

Capt. Clyde H. Baden, Jr., has been named aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, it has been announced.

Captain Baden is replacing Maj. George B. Beatty, Jr., who has received an assignment with the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C. since July, 1941. Captain Baden is a veteran of the European campaigns where he served as a company commander in the 810th Infantry regiment of the 78th Infantry division.

It is anticipated that approximately 10,000 motorists will purchase new tags during this period. Cpl. William Maurer, registrar of the provost marshal's office who has been in charge of the registration for the past four years, based this estimate on previous records. He said that of 10,000 tags, probably only 5,000 are for permanent post vehicles, the remaining number being transient military personnel and civilians.

Which must carry liability insurance in amounts of $3,000 to $10,000 bodily injury and $5,000 property damage liability. Anyone who does not have insurance may obtain the necessary information from Cpl. Maurer in the license bureau at the provost marshal's office.

OUTDOOR SCENE IN TRAILER CAMP... Although he ruefully admits he's far from having his mobile house set up just the way he wants it, M-Sgt. Eugene C. Crawford takes a breather from his labors on what will be the glass-enclosed, awning covered patio of his trailer, first to move into the camp. Daughter Marilyn plays with her doll while Mrs. Crawford catches up on a bit of sewing.

Crawfords Say Home Is Where You Park It

Without its problems, the compactness of her home plus the facilities provided at the trailer camp combine to make her tasks much easier.

Being the first family to move into the new trailer camp in the Harmony Church area, the Crawfords are undertaking to make their the "show place" of the lot. Only a few days in their new location, they have already laid a foundation, adjacent to the trailer for a glassed-in sun porch with an open fireplace. The sergeant also plans a lawn with shrubbery, and he enthusiastically commends the post engineers for the help they are giving him in his work.

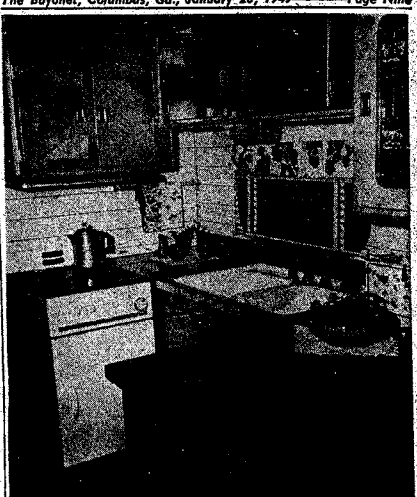

Mrs. Crawford shares her husband's enthusiasm for the new housekeeping in a trailer is not trailer park. She is delighted with the many projects soon to be completed. There will be a playground and roller-skating rink for the children, a post exchange, laundry and bath facilities, a moving picture theatre, a recreation hall, and bus service to and from the main post. With all of this, plus the neighborly spirit which prevails in trailer camps, Mrs. Crawford feels that she and her family will be a part of a new and thriving community.

Pvt. Soltis Promoted

Pvt. William S. Soltis, Company A, Infantry School detachment, was promoted Jan. 10 to private first class, Lt. Col. Argen C. Brill, detachment commander, said this morning.

ALL THE COMFORTS... The small but comfortable living room of the trailer of Sgt. and Mrs. Crawford has all the comforts of any well-furnished home. Here Mrs. Crawford and daughter Marilyn are shown during a few minutes' relaxation.

HOUSEWIFE'S DELIGHT... Life in a trailer can be beautiful as this photo of the kitchen, or galley, of the trailer of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Eugene Crawford so vividly demonstrates.

Area Boxing Meet Delayed Six Days

Feb. 7 New Date For Ring Classic

Aspirants for Third army fight laurels have been given an extra week in which to develop their ring tactics and to pare off excess poundage. Originally scheduled to get under way at Fort Benning on Feb. 1, the Third army boxing tournament has been pushed back until Feb. 7.

All bouts in the four-day tournament will be staged under the lights of Benning's main post gym, and the programs will begin either at 8 p. m. or 9:30 p. m.

At least three installations of the Third army area have made known their intentions of entering teams in the meet. In addition to the Doughboy teams are expected from Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Jackson, S. C.

In the tournament, the 62nd Airborne division Assassins of Fort Bragg will be the defending champs. They took possession of the army area crown last spring by edging the Fort Benning scrappers.

The outlook for the Doughboy team took on a brighter hue this week when Coach John Wilson handed out two additional berth assignments.

However, Jimmie Wills, who was being regarded as the most promising prospect for the heavyweight chores, has been alerted for transfer to an overseas station and has discontinued his workouts.

Both of the new assignments came in the lighter weight brackets, which have been the sore spot of the team since the outset of the season's training grid.

The bantamweight berth has been given to William H. Davis, who has been performing in the post intra-mural ring under the banner of the 3410th Area Service unit.

Davis, who boasts a string of bantamweight championships dating back to 1939, saw his latest ring action in the Pacific theater. He captured the department championship of Panama in 1939, held the Second Infantry division title in 1940 and 1941, and was the Golden Gloves bantamweight king of Texas in 1940.

Wisdom Stewart, who saw service with the Doughboy squared circle aggregation of 1948, has been re-named to the bantamweight position on the team. As an alternate in the 127-pound class, Wilson will have Ocie Powell.

Fish And Game Group Outlines Extensive Plans

Plans for improving facilities for rod and gun activities on the reservation were discussed last Monday at the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association.

According to the report of the fish committee, rod zealots can look forward to a number of changes which are expected to improve angling next spring.

Twenty-two boats are in the process of being built for use on King's pond, and will be rented for a small fee to all members of the association.

A motion was made that the association formulate plans for the redamming of Averett's pond for Tuesday afternoon.

Arrangements also were mapped for the staging of a fishing rodeo to be held early in March.

A cleaning-up project, which removed the weeds from the dam side of King's pond, has just been completed to leave a clean shoreline for bank fishing, and greatly decrease the danger of snakes.

With a view of brightening the future of the association, it will see the inauguration of an extensive program of plowing and burning fields, and the planting of such vegetation as bi-color lespedeza, wild rice, corn, oats and sorghum seeds. It is anticipated that these measures will attract geese, turkeys, doves and various other migratory fowls. Flowed fields, it was pointed out, expose seed for quail to feed upon and provide ideal conditions for nesting of the birds.

Burned off fields attract turkeys, ducks thrive on wild rice, and geese are usually found in areas where there are oaks.

A possibility that the reservation's game facilities might be drastically reduced if the civilians were brought to a close Wednesday night, and the doubles phase of the meet was started immediately.

In addition to the three distinct phases of the classic an all-events winner will be crowned at the conclusion of the meet. The all-events trophy will go to the individual who posts the high total pinfall for the first ten frames of the competition and for all matches in

Colonel Robert B. Hill, president of the board, explained that the outdoor program of the association is primarily for the convenience of military personnel, and if it is found that this year's facilities are inadequate for all of the sports of hunting and fishing, holders of certain restrictions will be placed on the activities of civilians.

Should the limitations on hunting and fishing for civilians be imposed, the results probably will be that licenses will be completely denied to certain categories of civilian personnel or restricted areas will be set aside for non-military hunters.

The predator problem also was discussed and it was tentatively decided that poisons which will attract the vermin without endangering the game will be planted.

Funds with which to accomplish the project outlined by the association are taken from the revenue provided through the annual sale of game and fish. Present, more than 1,200 rod and gun enthusiasts hold licenses to hunt and fish on the reservation.

Kegling Classic Closes Tonight

Competition in the Third army bowling tournament got off an unexpected early start here when representatives of seven area squads agreed to start the team matches Monday night. Originally, the opening round of activity was slated for Tuesday afternoon.

The decision to start the tour-the singles and doubles division early came at a meeting of the team coaches and representatives in the post special services office Monday afternoon.

Barring any unforeseen hitches are scheduled to get under way in the contesting of matches, the tournament will be concluded with the staging of the singles rounds this afternoon and tonight. The afternoon matches are scheduled to get under way at 1 p. m., and the evening program will start at 7 p. m.

The tournament has been broken down into three separate phases — the team matches, a doubles elimination and singles competition. The team classics were brought to a close Wednesday night, and the doubles phase of the meet was started immediately.

In addition to the three distinct phases of the classic an all-events winner will be crowned at the conclusion of the meet. The all-events trophy will go to the individual who posts the high total pinfall for the first ten frames of the competition and for all matches in

SLANTS ON SPORTS

By Louis Mc Clee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Links enthusiasts of Fort Benning are provided with one of the best golf courses boasted by any service installation in the United States. However, such a claim can be perpetuated only if the users of the layout cooperate in the course's upkeep project.

A representative of the Country club greens committee pointed out that he recently has noted several breaches of golf etiquette which tend to make the duties of the club's maintenance crew unnecessarily multitudinous.

In outlining the violations of links courtesy, the greens group spokesman pointed particularly to the failure of players to replace divots in the fairways and smooth out depressions made by balls hitting the green.

During the winter months, the replacement of divots and the leveling of ball marks on the greens is doubly necessary because of the slow growth of winter grasses used on the course. Divots and green depressions are more common during the winter months than at any other time in the year because of the moist condition of the soil.

Next week the sports section of The Bayonet will inaugurate a new column for the purpose of passing along comments on minor sports.

The added feature, which will be written by Vincent Giarratano, Bayonet sports writer, will deal largely with sports which normally interest the participant but hold little attraction for the spectator.

Such sports as hunting and fishing, golf, badminton and similar indoor sports will be particularly emphasized in the new column. Slants on Sports will continue to deal with such athletic functions as baseball, football, basketball and boxing.

An exception to this policy will be made in the case of post or Third army tournaments in one of the sports which normally would be covered in the minor sports feature. In such a case, comments on the activity involved may be found in Slants on Sports.

As a result of the assignment of new units to Fort Benning, the greens committee expects the membership of the club to be increased appreciably during the next few months. And, with an expanding membership, the issue of keeping the course in top-notch playing condition takes on added importance.

The present maintenance crew of the course is adequate only if steps are taken by the individual golfers to lighten its work load. It was pointed out.

The committeeman also brought out the fact that many opinions are formed through golf course associations, and appealed to users of the layout to observe other phases of golfing etiquette.

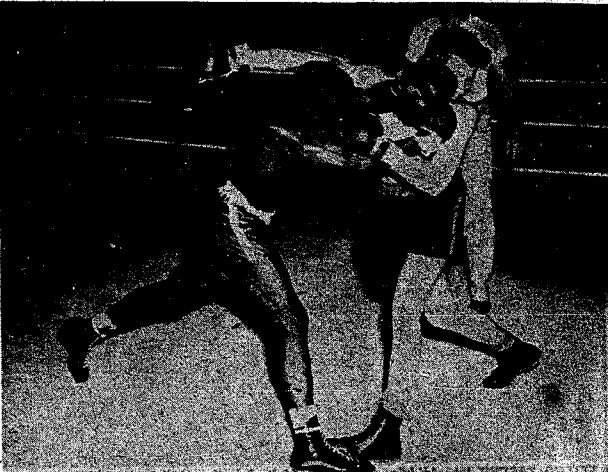

One of the most common breaches of courtesy is failure of a party to let the following group play through in the event of a lost ball. By adhering to this practice, not only will the party losing the ball avert the possibility of ruffling the group behind, but will contribute to speeding up activity on the course.

Another simple courtesy which is frequently not adhered to is that of refraining from making a shot until the group ahead is out of range. Although it is generally suggested that a golfer wait until the match ahead of him has made all of its second shots before driving, the first match always act as a go-ahead signal. Frequently the first match has some short-halt hitters in its ranks, and a long driver should be able to estimate the approximate distance he normally gets on a shot.

Unnecessary noises and talking while another member of the match is making a shot often results in unpleasant relations between golfers. While many golfers are not affected by noises, an overwhelming majority require quiet surroundings to play their best brand of golf.

The golf committeeman suggested that linksmen who are not thoroughly familiar with the etiquette of the golf and the rules of the course obtain and read pertinent pamphlets.

The Country club course is one of the top show places of Fort Benning, and a host of military personnel from foreign countries plays the course annually. Most of the foreign visitors, the greens representative explained, are long and loud in their praises of the course and the manner in which it is maintained.

Scott Notches 20 As Troopers Win

Although their scoring aces, Joe Setley and Vern Griffin, were out of the lineup, the Airborne battalion Troopers unearthed a new siege gun in Jim Scott and rumped to a 73-48 cage victory over the Lawson field Flyers in the main gym Thursday night.

Scott, who was carried as a reserve during the regular intra-mural season, started hitting the bucket early in Thursday night's tilt, and chalked up a total of 20 counters for the Troopers in their first outing of the post-season campaign.

The huge score rolled up by the airborne quintet over the Flyers indicated that a three-week holiday season layoff had not deprived the parachutists of their scoring punch. In winning the post intra-mural title for 1948, the Troopers hoisted the scoring parade with a total of 482 points for seven games — a 66-point-per-game average.

But the Lawsonites, who apparently made great strides in improving their offensive strategy during the holiday period, stayed within reach of the Troopers most of the game.

During the first half of the contest, the lead changed hands several times, but the Troopers surged ahead toward intermission time, and held a 34-28 margin at the break.

Only once during the second period, however, did the Flyers threaten the airborne lead. Five minutes after the final stanza had gotten underway, the Lawson quintet pulled abreast of the Trooper fivegame in a 36-36 reading, but the victors rapidly took possession of a clinching margin.

Scoring laurels for the Flyers were taken by Jerry Clark, whose four field goals and seven free pitches gave him a total of 18 counters.

Revision Being Mapped For Club's Golf Ladder

All positions of the challenge ladder of the Fort Benning Golf and Country club are scheduled to be re-allocated in this month. When the process of revising the positions gets under way, no consideration will be given to the places formerly occupied by the golfers. All aspirants for places on the ladder will be required to shoot a 36-hole medal round in the next two weeks. Definite starting times, dates and pairings for the qualifying rounds will be announced by the club's tournament committee later this month.

Stellar Bullet Flankman Discharged At Sand Hill

BY BOB PHILLIPS
When the 1948 crop of Bullet gridiron talent was cut next fall, they will be minus the services of Roy Whitehurst, one of the Sand Hill eleven's most dependable flankmen during the 1948 campaign.

The six-foot, 210-pound gridiron giant received his discharge last week and left the 26th Infantry regiment for his home in Elizabeth City, N. C. He plans to enter Shaw university of Raleigh, N. C. next fall and study for a bachelor's degree.

Whitehurst indicated that he also intends to mingle his grid talents with those of other Shaw university gridders, who have been among of the top-ranking Negro college eleven's in the nation for the past two years. He was a good 60-minute player who was generally recognized as the best defensive wingman on the Bullet aggregation last fall. Whitehurst picked up his knowledge of the game while attending F. W. Moore high school in Elizabeth City, N. C.

Entering the army Dec. 3, 1945, his first acquaintance with army football came when he joined the 21st Quartermaster eleven in Europe. Patrolling a tackle position, the rugged lineman gained a reputation as being one of the most outstanding tackles in the European theater.

His stellar performances at the same position were among the most potent factors in his high school team's climb to the state championship in 1942.

He returned to the U. S. in October, 1946, and was assigned to Company G of the 25th Infantry in January, 1948.

Lively Card Marks Revival Of Intra-Mural Ring Scraps

Promising Rocket Newcomers Make First Local Appearances

Local pugilists dusted off their gloves after a three-week holiday layoff and inaugurated their pre-tourney elimination activities with a lively 10-bout card last Friday night at the main gym.

The Sand Hill Rockets finally took the edge in a show that developed into a two-team contest between the Sand Hillers and the Airborne battalion by racking up a total of 120 points to shove the 15th Infantry remnants a heavy out of second place in the team standings.

Several newcomers to the Benning ring who show promise were included in the list of participants. Heavyweight Arthur Stepp, in his first appearance on the Rocket squad, demonstrated that he has plenty of wallop although he bowed to the Airborne battalion's Albert E. O'Connell on a judge's decision.

Displaying the stamina and determination that may pull him into the top ranks, Stepp was staggered by an early leather flurry thrown by Constance, resulting in a knock-out in the late seconds of the first round, and held it through the end of the third with theavoring to retain the early edge he had secured. Constance again stepped a cooler lead and more accurate punching.

Bob Ellis, making his middleweight debut with the Sand Hillers in the first Class IV go of the evening, won the favor of many of the fans by utilizing a style of bobbing, weaving, and counter-punching similar to the one used by Lawrence Jones, Benning's third middleweight champ. Ellis took a split decision from Bob Elliott of the Airborne battalion after a rough bout in which the lead changed several times.

A nine - count trip to the canvas by Elliott after 25 seconds of the second round and his retaliation in the third when Ellis took a count of four at the end of the third with the bell highlighted the show with a scrupulous tally sheet by defeating William Willis of the 15th Infantry in the last bout of the evening in that class.

Bringing the total for the Airborne lightweight Tommy Hauth capped a close decision in his Class III three - rounder with Phillip Itulin of the 344th ASU.

Two exhibition bouts between featured Doughboy team scrappers highlighted the show, and introduced to the fans Sixth Army lightweight champ, Marshall Clayton, hard hitting veteran of the squared circle.

Clayton will carry the Benning banner in the Third Army boxing tournament which will be held in the main gym Feb. 14.

MEDICS STEP UP SCORING TO EDGE REDLEG QUINTET

Displaying a scoring punch which was dormant throughout the regular intra-mural campaign, the Medics of the 344th Area Service unit raked up a 43-36 hardwood decision over the 39th Field Artillery battalion Redlegs in the main gym last Tuesday night.

Faced by big John Watson and Floyd Skilham, the Medics went to work on the Redleg defenses early in the post-season tilt, and held the upper hand throughout most of the contest.

Although the Medics were ahead during the whole of the first half, the Redlegs stayed within striking distance of their opponents, and were only one point off the pace at the close of the period.

Going into the second half with scant 18-18 margin in their favor, the Medics hit a scoring snag in the opening seconds of the final period, and the Redlegs deadlocked the count to two equal.

The scoring parade for the Redlegs also resulted in a tie with the Medics in the second half, and a quartet of free heaves, while John DeGrutola got his 14th count on a five successful efforts from the floor.

Rockets Launch Court Campaign With 41-34 Win

The Sand Hill Rockets ushered in the post-season intra - mural campaign in the main gym last Tuesday night by challenging a 41-34 decision over the 15th Infantry regiment.

By trimming the infantrymen in the post-season curtain-raiser, the Rockets avenged a decisive loss to the 15th squad during the regular intra - mural race.

A jet - propelled start was largely responsible for the Rockets snatching the verdict from the 15th. Starting with a few minutes of the tussle had elapsed, the Sand Hillers held a commanding lead, and they were in front 25-18 at the half.

Early in the second period, the 15th quieted came from behind to knot the count at 25-25, but the Rocket bucket-shooters again went to work mid-way through the half, and chalked up a game-clinching margin two minutes before the contest closed.

The scramble for individual scoring laurels among the Sand Hill fivesome resulted in a close race with diminutive Charles Boyd leading with 11 points and 11 counters. Edgar Echols and Gordon Burke shared a second place with 10 tallies each.

The high counter for the game, however, was Bob Phillips of the 15th Infantry, who had a named coach of the Fort Benning Doughboy quintet for 1949. His six field goals and two clutch tosses gave him a total of 14 points.

Dough Courtmen Scheduled To Open Agenda Wednesday

Next Wednesday night the Doughboy case edition of 1949 will pop the lid off its campaign by staging a double with the Thomas, Ga., Millers in the main post gym. The clash with the Thomas quintet will be the only home game of the month for the Doughboys who are scheduled to journey to Florida for a pair of contests following the Wednesday tilt. The games with the Jax air sars will be played on Jan. 28 and 29.

Behind any drawbacks in their schedule, the Doughboys will play about 12 games during February, and the first session will be climaxed with participation in the "Big Army" Amateur Athletic Union tournaments. As Coach Bob Phillips' Benningites prepare to launch their campaign, the outlook for the season doesn't excite much optimism. At the outset of the practice drills, the prospects for a successful campaign were bright, but a rapid turnover in the crop of candidates has left a slightly dull coating on the overall picture for the Doughboys.

will have to be written off as far as the Doughboys are concerned. Joe Selley, one of the main players of the squad in the circuit, is expecting a transfer soon, and Lawrence Brown is unable to report for cage chores until late in February. Vern Griffin, another former top point-getter for the Troopers, is in the closing phase of his airborne training, but probably will miss at least the first Transportation Battalion Truckers game on the Dough side. Whether or not Charles Richards, erstwhile Infantry School Field Artillery detachment leader, will lead the intra-mural team, will be carried on the Doughboy roster this season is still an unsettled issue. Personal obligations have kept Richards from going through any of the training phases with the team candidates, but Coach Phillips has indicated that he will be used on the squad if his services can be obtained. However, the turnover of aspirants still being regarded as potential Doughboy squad members are Bob Kinard of the Airborne Battalion, Bob Williams and Leon McCrary of the Infantry School detachment, Jim Crowley of the Infantry School detachment, Jim Crowley of the 204th Transportation Battalion, Trucks; Phil (Cherokee) Smith and John DeCrutola of the 39th Field Artillery detachment, John DeCrutola and Bob Nixon of the 15th Infantry regiment, and Charles Boykin and Edgar Echols of the Sand Hill Rockets.

POST UMPIRE IS ATTENDING BARR SCHOOL

Howard R. Smith of the post special services section left Fort Benning on the Dough side, Fla. where he will attend an umpire school being conducted by the Barr of National League game.

Upon completion of the 38-day course, Smith probably will return to the post to occupy an important position on the Benning staff.

Smith's association with baseball started during his high school days in his hometown. He was a member of the team which went to the St. Louis Cardinals' diamond school in Winterhaven, Fla. He tried out for, and went to the spring training with, the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938 and stayed with them until he joined the army in June of that year. Active as a player and umpire, he coached the island championship team in the Hawaiian group. The team, known as the Sand Sacks, finished the season in the semifinals of the Central Pacific Command tournament at Schofield, Hawaii, Oahu.

He returned to the U.S. in 1943 for re-assignment to Germany, and arrived there in February, 1946. While in Europe, he continued his baseball activities to umpiring. Returning to the U.S. again in February, 1947, he was sent to Fort Benning.

Assigned to duty with the athletic and recreation office of the Second Battalion, 25th Infantry regiment, the local diamond figure managed the battalion baseball team and acted as field umpire in games played on Gowdy field.

To Miss Master's
Recovering from an operation on a displaced disc in his neck, Bobby Jones will be the greatest center, will probably miss the Master's tournament, slated for Atlanta, Ga., April 10. He will be the 12 running of the annual tournament, and the first one Jones has missed.

Sparked by Charles Boyd and Edgar Echols, the Sand Hill Rockets defeated their second intra-mural hardwood circuit opponent, the Redlegs, 48-22, in a game played at the 39th Field Artillery detachment Redlegs, 48-22.

During the first half of the contest, it appeared as though the Rockets might be headed for trouble. After chalking up an early 12-8 margin over the Redlegs, the artillerymen missed the bucket, and had whittled the lead to 17-14 at the half. A spectacular member of a Des Moines, Ia., high school center path squad, placed four defensive might during the Redlegs' period, however, he led the Rockets to a 20-12 lead at the end of the first 20 minutes of play. And that was not until the final minutes of the game, when the Rockets in the post. "intermission phase" of the tilt.

Phil (Cherokee) Smith latched onto individual scoring opportunities for the artillerymen by dropping three field efforts and four free throws for a total of 17 points.

The loss was the second in as many outings for the Redlegs in circuit activity.

The Colonel's Aide

Open House Fete To Honor Nurses

Army nurses at Fort Benning will celebrate the 48th anniversary of their corps next Wednesday, Feb. 2, and as a part of the ceremonies have invited military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning and nearby communities to attend an open house in the main nurses' lounge at the Station hospital between 3 and 5 p.m.

During that time the guests will be shown through the various departments of the hospital to see how an army medical installation operates and the part that the nurses play in its functions.

Before legislation was passed by Congress in 1901 authorizing the formation of the Army Nurse corps, the army was permitted to hire contract nurses for base and camp hospitals. During the Spanish-American war, they served in Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii, on transports and on the hospital ship, "Relief."

During World War I, 21,480 graduate nurses were accepted and served with the army in cantonment, general and special military hospitals. Of this number, about half served overseas in England, France, Italy, Belgium and with expeditionary forces in Siberia. They received 109 decorations from the French government, 71 decorations from Great Britain and others from Greece, Belgium, Rumania and Russia. A number of American decorations awarded during World War I were 23 Distinguished Service medals and three Distinguished Service crosses.

In recognition of this war service, "relative rank" was conferred on nurses in 1920. Due to the efforts of the chief of the corps during the past war, Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, actual rank was authorized for army nurses, putting them on an equal status with male officers relative to rank and privileges.

During the last war the corps reached its peak strength of 57,000 nurses, approximately 50 percent of whom served overseas in nearly all types of medical units in the Pacific, at Anzio and in the Middle East.

At present, the majority of the army's nurses are on duty in installations in the United States. Hundreds, however, are assigned to medical units in Germany, Austria, Japan, the Philippines, Panama, Puerto Rico, Guam, Okinawa, Iwo Jima, Trinidad, Saipan, Hawaii and Alaska.

In addition to the cost of communications alone last year, Mr. Hill stated. This included 3,871 telegrams, 588 long distance phone calls and 9,740 letters mailed from Benning. At the same time his office received 4,041 wires, 708 long distance calls and 9,500 letters. These messages were all in connection with the welfare of military personnel.

Red Cross to Open Campaign March 1

Seeks 20,000 New Members

The 1949 Red Cross drive will start March 1 and extend through March 31, it has been announced by Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, executive chairman for the annual campaign. Goal of the service unit for the year is at least 20,000 members, the military and civilian population of the Infantry Center.

Honorary chairman for the campaign is Maj. Gen. P. W. Erchenburg, field director of the Fort Benning Red Cross. Executive vice chairman are Lt. Col. Emil J. Erchenburg, publicity; Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, special events; Mrs. Frank M. Lee, Red Cross Ladies' auxiliary; Sgt. Joe N. Pyland and Cpl. Bob Kinard, enlisted men; and Miss Mary Reynolds, civilians.

Last year, according to Mr. Hill, the campaign netted approximately 15,000 men stationed at Fort Benning at that time. From figures released by the field director, the organization spent money far exceeding the contribution for the welfare of Benning troops.

More than $8,800 was spent in communications alone last year, Mr. Hill stated. This included 3,871 telegrams, 588 long distance phone calls and 9,740 letters mailed from Benning. At the same time his office received 4,041 wires, 708 long distance calls and 9,500 letters. These messages were all in connection with the welfare of military personnel.

In about 10,000 of the cases originating at Fort Benning it was necessary to enlist the aid of 2,700 local chapters of the Red Cross. In addition, the Benning Red Cross worked closely with the Station hospital on recreational and social welfare programs for patients. Besides providing more than 6,000 packages of cigarettes, hospital Red Cross personnel maintained a recreational program that included game nights, dances, movies, outings to local lakes and parks, and attendance of patients at sporting events on the post and in Columbus.

The local chapter of the Red Cross also held first aid and water safety programs on the post.

Because of the constant, large number of instructors must be trained to take over whenever a vacancy occurs. The total time necessary for training an instructor is 45 hours, consisting of 12 hours of standard first aid training, 12 hours of advanced first aid training, and 21 hours of instructor's training. Anyone interested in this training in this project is asked to call Lt. J. W. Hines, 2119.

Foresight Was Shown In Naming 15th's Cuartel

BY MERRILL HARRISON
When the Seventh Infantry Regimental combat team came to Fort Benning nearly a year ago, the men of the Seventh moved into the "first cuartel." Appropriately enough, the cuartel was named "Olson Barracks," in honor of Sgt. Truman O. Olson, a member of the Seventh Infantry who had won the Congressional Medal of Honor in Italy. A plaque was, as they say, duly inscribed and placed next to the central salby part of the cuartel. Pretty soon, though, the Seventh and its men packed up and moved to Fort Devens, Mass., and the 325th Infantry Regiment moved in. The name of the cuartel was not changed.

Then, last month the 15th Infantry regiment of the Third Division was reactivated and its men were quartered in the "first cuartel." But if there's any name-changing to be done as far as the barracks are concerned, it won't have to be much. For by one of the old colonnades of war and American heroism, the 15th also had a Medal of Honor winner, also killed in action in Italy, named Olson, Capt. Arlo T. Olson.

Heroes come, literally, a dime a dozen in World War II. Not that heroism is cheap. Men who have been in combat know that Medals of Honor can't be bought except with blood, government issue blood or enemy blood. Sometimes it takes both kinds. If heroes came a dime a dozen, it was because American soldiers did a job when its doing was called for, and that attempt was made to see that whenever possible recognition was properly made, that was the ease with Arlo Olson.

Arlo Olson only spent a couple of weeks with the 15th Infantry. He went overseas as a replacement, and the Third division was using replacements in the mountainous area of Italy south of Rome and a place called Cassino. They needed company commander for Company F of the 15th and Olson was picked. He lasted two weeks.

Olson, from what the survivors of his company said, was the kind of a guy who believed that the job of a leader was leading his men, not showing them forward—from the rear. He had his first chance at the tough and bloody crossing of the Volturno river the night of October 12-13, 1943, several months before the Allies invaded Europe June 6, 1944. He took command of a company that was pretty badly demoralized at the time, and in 13 days had them spearheading the attack of the regiment for a total of 30 miles.

In the time he took over that company, he led the previously disgraced men across the Volturno. In the next 14 days he was everything from company commander to lead scout. According to the citation for his Medal of Honor, he killed 14 Germans plus the crews of two machine guns, and wiped out three machine gun positions besides capturing other strongpoints. He killed Germans with everything from a 45 pistol to a captured enemy machine pistol, but was finally killed after being wounded when, out on a reconnaissance for defensive positions after taking another strongpoint.

Having heard somewhere that a company commander is supposed to look after his men before taking care of himself, he did just that and although badly wounded, insisted that wounded enlisted men of his command be treated first. He died as they were carrying him down the mountain his men had captured. That's what it means on the obverse side of a Medal of Honor: for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty.

Around Fort Benning they don't lightly change the names of permanent buildings and installations. Olson Barracks was named after a guy named Olson who had served with some of the troops who lived in that cuartel. They can still call it Olson Barracks and mean it's called after a guy named Olson who might have served with some of the troops who live there now.

When the old-timers of a regiment gather on an evening, they are prone to talk about the old days. That's a custom, among soldiers, especially those who've served rough times. They talk about battles and campaigns, rest camps and what went with rest camps, they talk about good deeds and bad deeds, and they talk about the men with whom they served and fought, those who lived and died. That's the kind of talk that makes an outfit live, the remembrances of past events. But it's men who make events in wartime. Both men named Olson who won their CMH's with the Third were the kind of men who made events. They couldn't have done a better job in naming that cuartel. It ought to be up in neon lights in the first high: "OLSON'S BARRACKS."

RA Commissions Offered To Veteran College Grads

The army is offering regular commissions as second lieutenants to men who served as commissioned officers in any of the armed forces during World War II and who hold degrees from accredited colleges or universities. Set up to fill regular army vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant under the terms of Department of the Army circular No. 382, the program calls for appointment of some 400 to 600 appointments in two major increments in March and August. Appointments will be in addition to those offered distinguished graduates of senior division ROTC units, successful competitive service candidates and critically needed technical specialists.

Requirements for direct commissions under the new system are clear-cut. To be considered applicants must: Have at least one year of honorable active commissioned service in any component of the armed forces between Dec. 7, 1941, and Sept. 2, 1945. Have graduated from an accredited college or university. Be between 21 and 27 years of age at the time of appointment. The maximum age limit may in some cases be increased according to the period of commissioned service in the army subsequent to Dec. 31, 1947. Be physically qualified for appointment in the regular army. Be of high moral character and have a record free of conviction by military or civil court for other than minor traffic violations.

Not be a conscientious objector. Not be or have been a member of any foreign or domestic organization advocating subversive policy or seeking to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means.

378th Ordnance's Mess Cited As Benning Model

When they talk about morale in the army they often spell it m-e-s-s. Over in the 378th Ordnance company the men have a pretty high morale and company personnel indicate that one big reason for it spells not only m-e-s-s but G-I-v-e-n-s. That's the name of the mess steward, Sgt. 1st cl. Harding B. Givens.

Sergeant Givens learned a long time ago that if his mess was to be unworthy of the common connotation of the word it would take a lot of work on his part. But he's an old hand at that, and because of hard work and longer hours than most of his kitchen personnel puts in, top-ranking officials around the Infantry Center credit him with having the post's model mess.

Two weeks ago a string of commendations that looked like the ticket issued a candidate running for president and about a dozen superiors and an excellent rating by the post medical inspector, Maj. L. H. Card, for, respectively, sanitation, appearance and food preparation and serving.

Then, Col. R. B. Hill, post surgeon, having heard verbally about the mess of the 378th and having been down to see for himself, added his commendation, a third endorsement, signed by Col. Arthur C. Purvis, Infantry Center adjutant general, informed Sergeant Givens that Maj. Gen. Wilhens A. Burgess, Benning commander, had seen his papers and wanted to add his appreciation to all concerned for the superior manner in which the mess was operated.

In going back down to the company, the papers were stopped by Col. Maurice L. Miller, commanding officer of the 3440th Area Service unit, parent organization of the 378th. Colonel Miller expressed his gratitude at receiving and transmitting the communications and in the fourth and final endorsement, Lt. Col. Edward J. Orniston, commanding the 323rd Ordnance battalion of which the 378th company is a part, further complimented Sergeant Givens and told the mess steward that he hopes and believes that further commendations of that nature would be forthcoming. In addition to all

GI Radio Operators

'Hams' Contact 'Hams' For Business, For Fun

When Col. Burton C. Lucas, president of Army Field Forces Board No. 3 wanted to send Christmas greetings to men of the advance detail of the unit in Alaska, he found it a very simple procedure. He sent the message through Station WATIS, the "ham" station of the Infantry School's Communications section. And the five men of the board in Alaska got the messages.

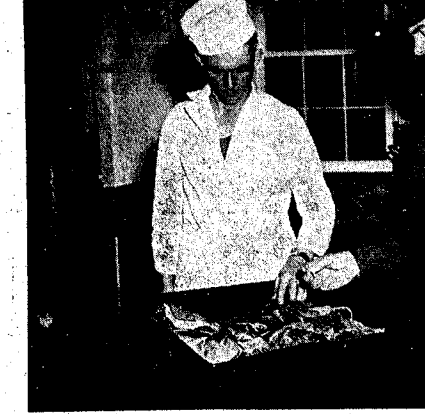

Fifty years ago only Santa Claus or Robert S. Peary could have delivered that message, but M-Sgt. S. C. Swink contacted a "ham" in Montgomery, Ala. He in turn contacted the state police, they caught the convoy, and 90 minutes later the man was on his way with his furlough.

The station is now a member of the newly organized military amateur radio system. Known by the abbreviation MARS, the system is a joint operation of the army and airforce set up to further interest and training in military radio communication and to provide an additional source of trained personnel in the event of a local or national emergency.

In addition to the military personnel at the station who contact other military people all over the world, there is a close liaison between amateurs in the Benning operators are in contact with military personnel in posts all over the world, they are also in the closest contact with these civilian operators close to the post. They operate the station in the emergency net that covers the hurricane states: Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Among the licensed operators at Fort Benning are M-Sgts. S. C. Swink, H. L. Polk, R. L. Fals, and John Harmon, Sgt. 1st cl. William Radick, Capt. D. C. Gaumer and Lt. J. J. Ford.

And to show that they've been around, at least by short wave, is a combat veteran of the Normandy Central Europe, Rhineland and Northern France campaigns, his decorations include the Bronze Star medal with two oak leaf clusters, Purple Heart, Defense Service medal, Occupation Medal, Infantry badge, and the American Theater ribbon.

MODEL MESS MANAGER . . . Sgt. Jim B. Grantham, left, and Sgt. 1st cl. Harding B. Givens, right, are just twiddling their fingers in this picture. Sergeant Givens, mess steward of the 378th Ordnance company, is explaining to Sergeant Grantham a method of routing meat so that all the pieces will be the same size and thus all be cooked properly at the same time. Sergeant Givens has a string of commendations that reaches from kitchens in Norway to the U. S. for model messes he has operated in the past eight years.

With China on the front pages, old-timers remember when "ham" in Nanking used to be in communication with the States through WATIS. That friend of the short-waves was Charles E. Stuart, U. S. ambassador.

But there's more to the operation of the station than casual calls to friends all over the world. The station is operated primarily so that troops at the Infantry Center can be trained and thus qualify as licensed operators. They can learn enough about the radio to prepare themselves to pass the examination to receive the Federal Communications Commission license.

The equipment at the station is government issue, but most of it is G.I. by a roundabout way. Take, for example, the antenna, for example, the antenna is, of course, outside the station but when the operator wants to swing it to another direction he doesn't have to leave the studio. Nope, the boys know that for six dollars they could turn a lot of motor driven bomber wheels.

Though the station's transmitter can operate on all but the highest frequency bands, the men don't just sit and twirl the dials to contact their friends all over the world. They do a lot of necessary communicating, too. No. 2 in a study of tanks, Uptot creek rose and damaged a dam under construction on the reservation. That meant constant communication between the dials and the engineer here. Station WATIS handled the messages. And when, during Operation Assembly last spring, a soldier inaction of luxuries.

TIS Aiding In Study

Registration Office Ready To Handle Annual Rush

If the lights are burning late in the registration office at the Provost Marshal's building it's probably because Col. William Mauer is getting his section prepared to handle the annual registration rush.

On duty with the registration office since 1946, Mauer estimates that he has processed 400,000 privately-owned vehicles in addition to issuing 1,500 hunting and fishing licenses for the reservation, licenses for privately-owned boats and firearms and resisting between 400 and 500 taxicabs annually.

Practically every initial registration requires a brief interview and thorough examination of credentials to determine whether a person may register his vehicle, boat or gun. Mauer feels, however, that despite an increase in automobile ownership this year, the office is set to handle "customers" with a minimum of delay. During the first 10 registration days of 1949, 98 cars were processed. Last year he personally checked the credentials of nearly 12,000 operators.

In order to facilitate his section's task, during the past four years Mauer has obtained up-to-date literature governing the operation of vehicles in every state in the territory and has compiled an official police guide which furnishes information on automobile tags, state records and certain laws governing the operation of vehicles.

With the enactment of the compulsory insurance law he has undertaken the task of compiling all information available on automobile insurance.

TAG, HE'S IT . . . Cpl. William Mauer will be one of the busiest men at Fort Benning for he's the head man of the section of the Provost Marshal's office responsible for the issuing of 1949 licenses for cars, boats, and firearms. In addition he also registers between 400 and 500 taxicabs annually, plus being a mine of information on auto insurance.

Captain Linse Is Promoted

Capt. Francis D. Linse, supply officer for the Second Battalion, 25th Infantry Regiment, was promoted to the rank of major recently.

Before his induction into the army on May 18, 1941, he attended the Erie branch of the University of Pittsburgh for one year.

Major Linse attended Officer Candidate school here and was commissioned a second lieutenant, Sept. 2, 1942. During the war he served in Europe with the 12th Infantry Regiment as commanding officer of Company K and as platoon leader of Company M. During his tour of duty in Europe, he also saw service with the Eighth Infantry Division.

A combat veteran of the Normandy Central Europe, Rhineland and Northern France campaigns, his decorations include the Bronze Star medal with two oak leaf clusters, Purple Heart, Defense Service medal, Occupation Medal, Infantry badge, and the American Theater ribbon.

Lt. Kinard Named State Control Chief

First Lt. Robert L. Kinard arrived at Lawson air force base last week to take over his duties as state control officer, his first assignment since returning to the U. S. in November.

Lieutenant Kinard was with the 316th Bomber wing at Okinawa from June, 1945, until November, 1946. Other posts at which he has served include Kearn's air force base, Wright air force base and Turner air force base.

A native of Stamford, Tex., he attended Texas A. & M. college prior to joining the air force.

Braggmen Capture Army Kegling Title

Snap Two-Year Reign of Locals

Four sensational matches of over 2,600 on the main post alleys of Fort Benning last week paved the way to the Third Army bowling throne for kegglers of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Although they topped the 2,600 mark in all four of their Third Army title contests, the Braggmen posted their crowning achievement when they rolled a series of 2,837 against the runner-up team from Fort Jackson, S. C.

By winning the title, the Bragg kegglers brought to an end the two-year reign of the Fort Benning Doughboys as monarchs of the Third Army lanes.

The Doughboys have monopolized the title since the inception of annual Third Army championship tournaments. They captured top laurels in the meet at Fort McClellan, Ala., in 1946, and successfully defended their crown here last year.

But the victorious Braggmen failed to get a crack at the predecessors in last week's tourney. In addition to outpointing the Jackson Red Devils twice, the North Carolina squad took matches from Fort McPherson, Ga., and Camp Leroy Johnson, La.

The big upset of the meet came when the Jackson Red Devils ousted the Doughboys twice to win the pre-tourney favorite in the competition. It is a striking advantage of an off-night ties their only trophies of the tourney.

In the all-events section on the meet, DePietro again stole the spotlight with a 15-game total of 2,910. In second place was Alexander, who scored 2,733. Taken into consideration in determining the all-events winner were the first five games bowled by individuals during team competition and all contests rolled during doubles and singles activity.

Following the conclusion of the tournament Friday morning, individual and team trophies were presented to the winners and runners-up in a prize presentation by Col. Maurice L. Miller, acting commander of the Infantry Center.

An unusual feature of the trophy presentation was the fact that one of the recipients out-ranked the man making the award. Maj. Gen. George H. Doren, Fort Jackson commander, was an active member of the runner-up Red Devil squad.

Vogelanz was member of the title-winning Bragg team were Charles Williams, Bogunil Pradyz, Howard Alexander, Peter Hundyzer, Dick Kepler and Orville Chossek.

The Jackson ace then teamed with Joe Bitala, a former member of the Doughboy crew, to take high honors in the doubles activity with a total of 4,913 for a quintet of games. Runners-up to DePietro and Bitala in the doubles division were Bob Short and Walt Carlock of the Doughboys with a pinfall of 1,755.

The runner-up laurels taken by the Doughs in the double phase, incidentally, netted the Benning-

Cardinals buy On Last-Half Offensive

The contract of pitcher Robert Vogelanz has been purchased from Allentown, Pa., of the Inter-State league by the Columbus Cardinals of the South Atlantic circuit, President T. G. Reeves has announced.

Vogelanz was a member of the inflated Duluth club during the 1948 season, and received injuries in the team's tragic bus accident which sidelined him for the remainder of the campaign. Reports are, however, that he is completely recovered, and will be in shape to start spring training with the Cards.

In the 13 games in which he appeared for Duluth, Vogelanz compiled an enviable record of 10 wins and three losses for a 76.9 percentage. He pitched 117 innings with 106 strikeouts, allowed 90 hits, issued 60 bases on balls and allowed 48 runs to cross the plate.

WATCH THAT WAISTLINE — Making a periodic check of his weight is Wisdom Stewart, top-ranking flyweight on the Doughboy boxing team. Lawrence Jones, Benning's Third Army middleweight champ, is manipulating the balances for his teammate. Stewart, who has handled the flyweight chores for the Doughs for the past two years, is slated to see action in next month's Third Army ring tourney here.

Chutists Dump Truckers Cardinals Buy On Last-Half Offensive

Continuing to touch off the offensive fireworks that carried them to the post championship late last month, the Airborne battalion Trooper quintet blasted the 204th Transportation battalion Truckers 57-37 in a post-season tilt in the main gym last Tuesday night.

But the Troopers also proved that they are a second-half ball club by running up the bulk of their scores during the final 20 minutes of play.

During the first period the parachutists were having trouble dropping the ball inside the rim, and were on the trailing end of a 24-19 verdict at the break.

Bob Chandler, Harry Moore and John Payne, who had been hitting the hoop for the Truckers with a fair degree of consistency throughout the first half, started to lag in the final period, and Al Constance, Herb Bench, Vern Griffin and Herb Myatt look over for the Troopers.

Griffin edged out Constance by one counter to take high-scoring laurels for the chutists with a total of 11. He compiled his total on four shots from the floor and three gratis tosses.

Point-getting honors for the Truckers were shared by Chandler and Payne, both with 10 tallies. Chandler dunked five field goals, while his teammate poured in four court efforts and made two successful efforts from the free-throw stripe.

The win was the second of the post-season campaign for the high-flying Troopers. In the first week of activity, the Airborne quintet breezed past the Lawson field Flyers.

SLANTS SPORTS

By Lewis McAlfee
Bayonet Sports Editor

To a passerby, it might appear that some ambitious farmer is trying to turn Gowdy field outfield into a cotton plantation. But the soil-tilling project really is aimed at beautifying the home of the Fort Benning Doughboy diamond nine.

By the time the field is ready for use next spring, the outer gardens will sport a complete new crop of bermuda grass, and most of the uneven terrain will be smoothed out.

The post engineers, who are supervising the work on the project, said that the new planting of bermuda will have enough of a foothold by the last week in March to permit play in the ballpark. Doughboy and unit teams however, will use other diamonds on the post for their early-season workouts.

The proposed completion date of the grass-planting project, incidentally, will fall right in line with the time the Doughboys are expected to embark on an accelerated spring exhibition schedule.

Two early-season tilts already have been set up for the Doughs, but February probably will see the finalizing of arrangements for several more.

On March 28, the 1949 crop of Doughboys is expected to take the field against the Troy, Ala., State Teachers' college here, and Gowdy field will be the scene of a night exhibition tilt with the Columbus Cardinals of the South Atlantic league on April 8.

In addition to exhibition frays already on the Dough slate, games probably will be set up with several other professional, semi-pro and school teams which will be undergoing their pre-schedule training in this section of the country. Letters have been sent out by the post athletic office to numerous squads, but the Trojans and Cardinals are the only two with which agreements have been reached.

Should the heavy schedule of spring tilts come into being, it will mean that diamond fans who were deprived of seeing much Doughboy action last season because of the large number of contests played away will be provided with a season-long period of Gowdy field action in 1949.

Tentative plans are to map both an intra-mural and post-team campaign for the coming season with the exhibition slate of the Doughs launching the season. Early in May, the activity probably will shift to an intra-mural level, and the Doughboy nine will be re-formed in time for the late summer and fall tournaments.

If the outcome of the regular season campaign in basketball can be used as a gauge, upsets in the current post-season race have been plentiful. And the tipped over dope buckets have muddled any predictions as to the final standings in the circuit.

Of course, the Airborne battalion Troopers, who captured the post championship late in December, still are riding the crest of the standings chart with no setbacks in three starts for the post-season affair. However, from there on it's a toss-up.

To start the season off the 204th Transportation battalion Truckers pulled a humiliating 59-56 upset over the post runner-up Infantry School detachment, and the Airborne lads proved that they were still the power when they staged a last-half spurge to down the Truckers 57-37.

But any designs the Truckers might have had on the No. 2 spot in the standings were dampened Tuesday night when the Lawson field Flyers, whose only league victory of the 1948-49 season was on a forfeit, came through with a narrow 54-53 decision over the 204th crew.

A strong possibility now exists that some of the teams which shared the bottom half of the regular season roster might climb into the ranks of strong contenders for the remainder of the post-season campaign.

Most of the lower-division teams of the title race weren't seriously affected by the selection of players to see action with the Doughboys. However, the top squads of the previous campaign have lost many of their ace members to the Doughboys, and now are letting ex-reserves and newcomers handle most of the heavy chores.

In the final analysis, it may be the heretofore hapless Lawson field quintet which will supply most of the formidable opposition. The Flyers haven't lost any first-stringers since they decided early in the season to wage their own campaign against outside teams.

Spano's restaurant cage representatives needed a five-minute overtime period last Wednesday night to top the Lawson field Flyers 65-58 in a hardwood contest in the airforce base gym.

As the buzzer sounded to end the regulation game, the score was knotted at 54-54, but the Spano quintet rallied during the extra playing period to chalk up the win.

At the half, the city team held a 30-20 lead over the Flyers, but the airmen staged an uprising during the third period to gain a 10-point lead. The sharp shooting of Bob Ethridge, however, gradually cut the Lawson margin, and the lead changed hands several times during the final 10 minutes of the game.

Bill Tremaine netched the score-ing honors for the Flyers, and also racked up the highest total of the night with 28 points. Ethridge was high-scoring runner for the Spano fivesome with 18 counters.

The Lawson five made eight of 18 attempted free throws, while the city quintet dunked 13 out of 28 efforts from the charity line.

Five More Years — Bud Wilkinson, University of Oklahoma football coach, has signed a new contract which assures his stay at the university for at least five more years. Wilkinson will also be athletic director and professor of physical education.

Exhibition Tour — Jerry Walcott, twice defeated for the heavyweight boxing crown by champion Joe Louis, will invade the Newlands West Indies for a series of exhibitions soon.

Pace in Sand Hill Court League Changes Hands

BY BOB PHILLIPS

Noting down three digits in their win column during last week's activity in the 25th Infantry regiment's intra-mural cage circuit, hoopsters of Company G surged into the loop lead.

By taking over the pace-setting spot, Company G pushed the previous leaders from Company H into second place. Company H had held the No. 1 spot since the opening of the campaign on Dec. 7 when they turned back Company G 30-19.

But the Company G courtmen avenged their earlier loss by tackling a humiliating 46-35 defeat on Company H last Tuesday night. Their other two wins of the week came on Monday night when they accepted a forfeit from Company F, and on Thursday night when they shooed Headquarters company 27-21.

Since their early-season loss to the Company H cagers, the hardwood lads of Company G have chalked up five straight triumphs.

In their "grudge" encounter with Company H, Bill Battles and Oliver Jackson sparked the offensive punch of Company G. The two scoring axes racked up 17 and 15 points, respectively.

Despite a 15-11 deficit at the end of the first quarter, the two top score-getters of Company G teamed with diminutive Chuck Fawkes to put their team out in front 23-17 at the half.

Displaying an air-tight defense during the third stanza, the vets outscored their opponents, 12-2.

A fourth-period rally netted the Company H cagers 16 points, but the huge lead compiled by the winners in the early stages of the game was more than enough to carry them to victory.

Sharing scoring honors with Jackson was Leon Smith of Company H, who also bucketed 17.

The presence of stellar hoopsters Andy Hardy and Sylvester Scott made Thursday night's game against the Headquarters company quintet a little rough.

The game was a give-and-take affair all the way with each team having several flings at the lead.

Two crucial goals from the field were scored by Scott and a two-pointer by Hardy gave the losers a slight point lead before the game was three minutes old. Soon, however, Battles and Jackson went to work, and the count was tied three times before the half ended with the victors leading 18-18.

Play during the last half was as tight as Dick's hot hand, but Company G managed to out-point the headquarters crew 8-3.

With the closing minutes of the game ticking away, Headquarters company held a 22-21 advantage. However, Bill Battles hit the twines with a hook shot and Bill Holmes connected from a set position. L. C. Clayton then came through with a charity throw, and it was all over for the headquarters five.

The Officer's club skeet range committee has planned a tournament next Sunday. Prizes of sterling silver will be awarded for high gun, runner-up gun and classes A, B, C and D. Another prize will be at stake in a two-man team competition. Skeet shooting here, however, is not confined to scheduled meets. The Officer's club range is open to all club bird marksmen every Sunday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Twelve-gauge shotguns can be obtained by enlisted men at their company supply rooms, and ammunition is provided for enlisted shooters by post ordinance. A fee of 50 cents per round (25 shots) is charged for the shells. Shells are sold to officers at the range at a cost of $2 per round.

Since skeet shoots are a recreational function of the post special services office for enlisted men, the ammunition is actually provided free of charge. The 50-cent fee is actually paid to go into a fund for the upkeep of the range.

Heading the advice of Wildlife biologist Phil Goodrum and Ansel D. Holloway, fisheries biologist of the Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service, the Fort Benning Fish and Game Management Association is conducting activities aimed at increasing the population of the fish and wildlife in the area.

February 20 has been set as the date for range guards to seed to attract migratory game fowl.

Fertilization and clean-up projects of ponds and creeks popular among local fishermen have been in progress since last fall when the fish and wildlife experts conducted their survey.

Horseshoe hurlers will have a month in which to work out old man winter's effects out of their pitching arms in preparation for the post-intra-mural competition slated to begin early in March.

Provisionary eliminations will be conducted on a platoon level and company and battalion level contests will follow. Competition between battalion teams will be conducted from April 1 to May 1. Post athletic officials then will select a team from intra-mural entries to represent Benning in a third army tournament May 3-4 at the Atlanta General depot.

The army-level horseshoe pitching tournament marks the beginning of a change in policy concerning minor sports by the army. It has announced plans to raise numerous other small participant sports such as table tennis and handball to army-level competition.

The 1949 Third Army track and field meet, scheduled for Doughboy stadium late in May, will be climaxed by a military pentathlon consisting of rifle and pistol marksmanship, grenade throwing, swimming, a timed obstacle course run, and a cross country run.

It will be the first time the pentathlon has been included in an army tournament.

Three enlisted men of the 999th Field Artillery battalion reenlisted last week to fill their own vacancies. It was announced by CWO Milton E. Hodson, personnel adjutant.

They were Cpl. Charles Walker, Cpl. Willie Brown, both of Headquarters battery, and Pfc. Jesse Johnson, Battery A.

Golf Ladder Revision Set For Feb. 5-6

Medal play rounds of 36 holes have been slated for members of the Fort Benning Golf and Country club for Feb. 5-6 for the purpose of bringing the club's links challenge ladder up to date.

The reshuffling of the ladder has been mapped primarily to eliminate the names of several players who are no longer stationed at Benning, and to obtain a more accurate scale for 36-hole golf and to play in inter-club matches.

The club's tournament committee has pointed out that no names will be carried over from the previous challenge ladder.

Golfers wishing to play in the 36-hole affair and obtain a spot on the ladder will be able to enter their names on sign-out at the clubhouse from Jan. 26-Feb. 2. Prior to Feb. 4, starting times and pairings will be listed in the pro shop of the club.

Special rules governing play for post-intra-mural play will be posted on the club bulletin board.

Once the revised ladder has been set up, it will be possible for a player to advance on the ladder by dropping in and out of the two linkmen directly above him in the standings. It is automatically taken over the place formerly occupied by his opponent, and the loser will drop back one in the standings.

Should a golfer fail to defeat the man he challenges, however, he will retain the same position on the ladder, and will be unable to play a re-challenge for two weeks.

Newcomers to the club will be permitted to enter their names on the challenge ladder by arranging a match with any linkman listed on the ladder. If a new member beats the golfer he challenges, he will take over the spot held by the loser. But a loss A. Fardy and Frank White in the match will place the new 2nd Lt. Howell E. McLain and corner at the foot of the ladder. CWO Pearce Alford.

Engineer Five Drubbed 38-18 By 25th Squad

A fivesome of ball-hawking court artists from Companies G and H of the 25th Infantry Regiment playing under the name of the Junior Bullets, annihilated a 10th Engineer battalion quintet, 38-18, in the first of two recreation ball Tuesday night.

The fast-breaking Sand Hill infantrymen under the name of the Junior Bullets, outmarched from the start of the contest, and held their opponents completely scoreless for the first half. Twenty pointers were posted by the Sand Hill lads during the first 30 minutes of play.

In the second half, however, Coaches Henshall Chairman, Horace Smith and Milton Denny installed a new system of substituting post scorers to employ the bench of reserves, the trio of tutors jerked every total of 10 points, four more than his runner-up teammate Bill Zimmerman.

Since every Junior Bullet on the roster got a taste of action, individual scoring was evenly distributed. Gene Edwards, Oliver Jackson and Orville Lyles notched six each, while Steve Hovance, Bill Battles and Jimmie Crawford each tallied four, and Chuck Fawkes and Ed Lewis connected for two pointers.

MOS Local Established By Board Training Unit

A board to determine enlisted men's primary military occupational specialty numbers and assignment readjustment procedures has been established by the Student Training Regiment, according to a recent announcement.

Board members include Capt. Lola Huntley, Major Steve J. Alexander, Keddle and Hub-challenges, he will take over the spot held by the loser. But a loss A. Fardy and Frank White in the match will place the new 2nd Lt. Howell E. McLain and corner at the foot of the ladder. CWO Pearce Alford.

Throughout the first half of the contest, the revitalized Medical quintet bottled up the high-scoring Sand Hill crew with a constant bucket-shooting punch. At the intermission, a 22-18 margin favored the infantrymen.

Early in the final period, however, Bob Dahn, Charles Richards and Warren Faulk went to work on the Medical defenses, and within 10 minutes, had provided the 25D crew with a constant advantage.

The game's top point-getter was Faulk with six digits and five charity heaves for a total of 17 points. Floyd Skillern's six court shots also netted one free toss for 13 counters paced the medical squad's offensive during the war years.

ISD HOOPSTERS TRIM FIELD ARTILLERYMEN

Cagemen of the Infantry School detachment garnered themselves a top-bracket berth in the post season intra-mural standings last Thursday night by trouncing the 39th Field Artillery battalion Redlegs 61-34 in a main post gym contest at Fort Benning.

The sharp-shooting ISD hoopsters solved the Redlegs' defense early in the game, and hit the bucket with regularity throughout the first.

The first half of the game turned out to be a floundering for the scoring axes of the ISD, and, at the end of the period, the victors were coasting on a 38-18 margin.

Scoring honors for the infantrymen were taken by Bill Sheldon, who opened the scoring with a regular intra-mural campaign on the sidelines. His seven successful efforts from the floor netted the ISD a total of 14 points.

Sheldon's closest competitor for the game's point-getting laurels was Warren Faulk, also a member of the ISD aggregation, who dunked five field goals and three free throws for 18 scores. Redlegs 61-34 in a main post gym contest at Fort Benning.

Heading the Redlegs' scoring parade was a Phil (Charlock) Smith, lanky center, who scored six buckets from the court a counted for 12 artillery through-out.

Medical Cagers Nod to Infantry Fivesome, 57-39

The Infantry School detachment cagers, who got off to a bad start in the post season intra-mural circuit by dropping their opener to the 20th Transportation Battalion Truckers last week, crashed the win column last Tuesday night with a 57-39 triumph over the post Medics.

It was the first loss of the newly-inaugurated campaign for the Medics, who outpointed the 25th Field Artillery battalion Redlegs in their initial outing of 1949.

Throughout the first half of the contest, the revitalized Medical quintet bottled up the high-scoring Sand Hill crew with a constant bucket-shooting punch. At the intermission, a 22-18 margin favored the infantrymen.

Early in the final period, however, Bob Dahn, Charles Richards and Warren Faulk went to work on the Medical defenses, and within 10 minutes, had provided the 25D crew with a constant advantage.

The game's top point-getter was Faulk with six digits and five charity heaves for a total of 17 points. Floyd Skillern's six court shots also netted one free toss for 13 counters paced the medical squad's offensive during the war years.

At the close of the intra-mural season, trophies will be presented to the teams which participated in the monthly and scored the most points, and to individual champions in various weight classes.

Boxers who are not included in the winner category but who took part in more than the average number of bouts, also will be presented with an individual trophy.

2 Local Theaters Get 'Face-Lifting'

Two Fort Benning theaters were recently remodeled and redecorated at a cost of more than $35,000. This was made possible through the collection of a fund made available by the saving of a percentage of gross income during the war years.

The modernization at the Infantry Center began last August with the first project at the Sand Hill theater. New seats were installed at a cost of $27,000.

Post engineers supplied acoustical tile at the main entrance of the main theater, redecorated the lobby, painted the interior and reupholstered and repainted the seats. In addition, the lobby was laid by a civilian contractor. The engineers also redecorated the lounges.

Pins Title Field Cut This Week

Five Fort Benning intra-mural bowling teams withdrew from the post kegling team this week in the wake of a two-week lapse in activity brought about by removal of the main post alleys and the contesting of the Third Army tournament here.

Reasoning that their record to date has eliminated any possibility of their capturing the post title, the 999th Field Artillery battalion, the 20th Transportation Battalion and the 121st Evacuation Hospital have requested that their teams be deleted from the slate of remaining games in the circuit.

Company G of the 15th Infantry Regiment and Company G of the 25th Infantry Regiment have dropped out because of numerous transfers of personnel.

The last lap of the post championship race got under way yesterday, and the scramble will be concluded about Feb. 10.

Third Athletic Post Goes to Shepherd

Joe Shepherd, who piloted the 1948 Doughboys through a turbulent campaign last fall, has been named athletic director of the newly-activated Third Infantry division, it was announced this week.

Shepherd, formerly linked with the University of Alabama grid set-up, was a member of the Doughboy board of strategy under Coach "Butch" Kendrick in 1947, and took over as head coach of the Benning eleven at the outset of the 1948 schedule.

Facing some of the top service crews of the nation last fall, Coach Shepherd's Doughs were able to salvage only three triumphs from a nine-bit slate.

Rockets Secure Lead Berth In Benning Pugilistic League

Activity Curtailment Drops Troopers To Second Spot

Friday night's seven-bout-intra-mural boxing card at the main post gym brought about an important change in team standings. The Airborne battalion, relinquishing possession of first place which it had held since the early stages of the intra-mural program, stepped down to runner-up spot, just 20 points behind the now-leading Sand Hill Rockets.

Wilbert Wilson's Class II win for the Rockets, and the fact that the troopers only had one Class IV bout scheduled, contributed greatly to the line-up change.

In addition to scoring 20 points of the first round highlighted the ASU rally.

The 3440th light heavyweight, W. A. Bailey, displayed strong determination and stayed in the fight despite being staggered several times by his opponent Bob Ellis of the Sand Hill squad.

The 15th infantry's Anthony Perdue pulled a surprise change from defensive tactics, which resulted in a minor upset when he defeated the Rockets' welterweight, Earnest Brown, by decision.

The new standings place the Rockets on top with a total of 460, followed closely by the Airborne battalion with 440. Although the 15th Infantry retained its third place hold with a total of 420 points, a 49-point leap brought the ASU squad dangerously close with a 245 fourth-place score. The 99th Field Artillery battalion's unchanged 125 point accumulation held fifth place, while the Infantry School detachment's zero reading placed it in the cellar spot.

Class IV lightweight Jess E. Robinson, of the Rockets injected an undercurrent of humor into the evening's excitement. The tall, thin scrapper discovered his arms were too long for effective use against William Jones' aggressive in-fighting, and Jones, a 3440th Area Service unit entry, decided his gangling opponent in their three-round go.

New talent in the person of heavyweight John Griffith focused the spotlight on the 3440th ASU, and three consecutive victories pulled the team out of the doldrums. The 3440th leads are now in the running as a threat to the 15th Infantry regiment's third-place perch.

Griffith's string roundhouse retaliation to Arthur Stepp's persistent lead drew blood early in the class, and he dropped Stepp to the mat at the beginning of the second round. The judge's decision for the bout favored Griffith.

Company G Takes Unit Cage Contest

In a hard-fought non-record hardwood tilt in the First battalion recreation hall of the 25th Infantry regiment last Wednesday afternoon, Company G chalked up a triumph over Company F.

The tilt was not a scheduled game in the Sand Hill unit's current round-robin tournament and will not go on record.

For a scrappy effort, Company F, it was a moral victory. The Company G hoopers, who were down to win the contest by a landslide found that going anything but a sim oth npany F lads, who were seen in their first court activity of the season.

Individual scoring for the game was paced by Mel Thomas and Dick Reynolds of Company G, with 13 points each. Sharing the point-getting honors with winners were Bill Holmes and Oliver Jackson, each with 10 counters.

Plan To Organize 9th Division Men

All former members of the Ninth Infantry division are invited to meet at the Polo Hunt club at 8 p. m. hours Jan. 28 for the purpose of organizing a Fort Benning chapter of the division association.

Persons who were members of the division between Sept. 2, 1940 and Aug. 24, 1945, are eligible for membership, according to Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, temporary chairman of the organizational committee.

Colonel Brill emphasized that both officers and enlisted personnel are invited to attend. He said that plans call for organization of a chapter and election of officers. These officers will be drawn from both enlisted and officer personnel, and will be elected by the entire membership of the chapter.

Truckers Edge Infantry In High-Scoring Affair

In one of the highest-scoring affairs of the post - season hardwood campaign, the 204th Transportation battalion Truckers edged the 15th Infantry regiment, scoring total of 20 points to take Monday night.

The Truckers, who have shown marked improvement over their court doings of the regular season, now have a record of two wins and one defeat in the post-season loop. Their three encounters, incidentally, have been with the teams which ranked one-two-three in the post championship race.

In addition to their win over the infantrymen, the Truckers upset the post runner - up ISD quintet in their opener, but lost to the title - holding Airborne

Col. Nichols Named TIC Chief of Staff

Served Overseas With 3rd Division

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center, this week announced the appointment of Col. Joseph A. Nichols as chief of staff.

A veteran of several tours of duty at Fort Benning between two world wars, Colonel Nichols succeeds Col. John C. Biltzard, Jr., whose retirement from the army became effective Jan. 31.

Following graduation in 1917 from The Citadel, famed southern military academy in Charleston, S. C., Colonel Nichols was initially assigned to Fort Leavenworth, Kans. While there, he attended the three-month course for newly commissioned reserve officers.

In January, 1918, he went to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., where he was assigned to the 151st Infantry regiment, 68th infantry division, with which unit he served overseas in World War I. Following occupation duties in Coblenz, Germany, after the war, he returned to the United States, reporting to Camp Grant, Ill., late in 1918.

The first of several assignments at Fort Benning for the newly designated chief of staff came in 1921 when he reported to Fort Benning to attend the basic course at the Infantry School. Upon graduation in 1922, he was assigned to the school's Weapons section. From 1924 until 1927 he was aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. Bryant F. Wells, commanding officer of the Infantry School, and to his successor, Maj. Gen. Edgar T. Collins. In 1927 he attended the school's company officers' course.

Colonel Nichols went to China in 1927, as a member of the 15th Infantry regiment, remaining in the Far East until 1930 when he reported to Fort Riley, Kans., to attend the troop officers' course. Upon completion of his instruction at Riley he again returned to Fort Benning, where he remained from 1931 to 1935 as an instructor in what is now known as the General Subjects section.

He left Fort Benning in 1935 to attend the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, and after graduation reported to the 9th Infantry division at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. He was next assigned as commanding officer of special troops of the 1st Infantry division, which post he held from 1936 to 1940. In 1940 he served as G-3, plans and training officer of the First division and then returned to Fort Leavenworth where he served as instructor at the Command and General Staff College until 1942.

In September, 1942, Colonel Nichols reported to the 78th Infantry division as chief of staff. He held that post until the division was inactivated in Berlin in June, 1946, and then transferred to the Third Infantry division where he served as division chief of staff until he re-

PIO to Inaugurate New Radio Series

The inaugural program in a comprehensive series to acquaint Columbus and Phenix City with army life at Fort Benning will be aired over radio station WRBL at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, Feb. 10.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commanding general, will appear on the opening broadcast along with the mayors of Columbus and Phenix City, president of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Muscogee county commission along with the mayors of Phenix City and Columbus.

The public information office said that the purpose behind the 15-minute productions, which will be called, "Benning On Parade," is to improve further relations between civilian and military personnel. It is felt that through first hand knowledge of what life in the army is and particularly as regards Benning the relations would prosper officials said.

The current plan is that the first three programs following the inaugural will dramatically present the story "Airborne." The three shows will be produced on tape recorder, as will practically the entire series of "Benning On Parade." In the case of Airborne, it is planned to follow the trainees from indoctrination to their graduation jump.

The plan is that the fifth broadcast will be in the nature of a round-table discussion among civic leaders and directors of the public information office at Benning. In subsequent productions, listeners will hear "Benning Builds," a flashback description of Benning expansion Third Infantry division, description of the fantry division, description of the Benning expansion Third Infantry division, under General Clark; "So You Wanna Go to School," another round-table taking the listener behind the scenes in the planning of opportunities for continuing the GI's education while in service; "Let's Eat," a tape-recorded visit to the Food Service School; "Grease Monkey," on-the-spot coverage of the motor course; "School Troubleshooters," at school coverage of the radio recording activities; "What About Housing," a serious attempt to explain the housing situation at Benning and Columbus and an effort to explain what steps are being taken to improve same.

"Sports," a special all-star sports show, directed and produced by George Theisinger; "Uncle Sam Wants You," the reaction of high school students toward the drawing and service with the army; "Mom and Pop Talk It Over," typical parents discuss the draft and express their opinion.

Sounding 'Em Out Hook Pay Plan

WITH MERRILL HARRISON

One of the big topics of conversation throughout the army, and of course, at Fort Benning, the last month or so has been the proposed armed services pay plan submitted by the Hook commission and recently announced by Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal. To find out what Fort Benning soldiers think about the plan, the enquiring reporter sounded out some of them one windy day last week. The first thing evident was that not many people have bothered to take time to read more than a very little of the mass of information that has been distributed concerning the proposed plan. It was necessary to query more than 20 people to get the eight comments printed here.

Asked the following question, "What do you think about the Hook Commission pay plan, and what will it mean to you?" the eight men answered: Omar O. Olive, Pvt. Pickle, Third Replacement company, eight years in service, said he knew very little about it and don't like the retirement angle because I'm counting on retiring in 20 years. Under the new plan I'd get more money, but I'd rather stay in just the 20 years and get more money. I'm not sure about the Hook plan. I'd be glad to see the money men get out of the army. I'll probably stay in anyway. I'm in the favor of boosting the rations and quarters allowance.

Whiteside Nardo

Pfc. Anthony Nardo, Company A, Infantry School detachment, the army's third and last unit to be activated, said it's the best plan they ever put out. "I'm sure it'll help a lot of men, but I'm not sure about the Hook plan. I'd be glad to see the money men get out of the army. I'll probably stay in anyway. I'm in the favor of boosting the rations and quarters allowance."

Pickle Page

Cpl. William E. Page, Military Police detachment, 15th Infantry Service unit, seven years in service, answered: "I think it's a good plan. The increase in pay for a career will be too old when he retires. I like the present 20 year plan. If a man is fed up after 20 years, he can quit; if he likes it, he can go to 30 years. That quarters allowance will be nice."

Joseph A. Hampton

Sgt. Joseph A. Hampton, 15th Infantry Service company, 15th Infantry Regiment, nine years service, replied: "Overall I think it's a good plan. The present family allotment is not a good plan for paying the soldier because it's the dependable for the future. The Hook plan gives you definite money that you will draw. This will be of special interest to married first three graders without children. Considered as a career plan, a man coming in can plan his future for years to come and know where he'll stand financially."

St. Henry C. Gresham

Said St. Henry C. Gresham, Service battery, 89th Field Artillery, 10 years service: "I think it will run a lot of soldiers out of service because of the retirement plan. Some who came in when I did, expecting to stay in 20 years, won't put in 20 years. They figured on retiring at 40 when they still had a few years to look forward to, but at 50 it's a little late. I'm CHINESE PAGODA . . . This silver incense burner, part of the collection of the 15th Infantry regiment, was a high spot in the display in the regiment's trophy room last week. Discussing it with Sgt. Lewis H. Robinson, left, is Capt. Paul W. Snodgrass, who has been acting as custodian of the trophies. The table on which the pagoda is standing is the solid mahogany table of the regiment's non-commissioned officers' mess, used in the "Old China" days. In addition to the inlaid regimental crest, left of the pagoda, around the edges of the table; in inlaid silver, are the names of the members of the mess. It took 15 men to carry the table to the trophy room.

Fifteenth Displays Trophy Collection

The 15th Infantry regiment held an "open house" last week in Oldson barracks, to display its magnificent collection of trophies accumulated during the years. The display was composed largely of objects which were presented to the regiment by the Chinese and other foreign nationals during a 26-year period in the Orient. Arranged on tables were countless silver trophies—cups and plaques engraved with appropriate names and dates, depicting the 15th's superiority in every sport from tug-of-war and well sculling to basketball, swimming and marksmanship. Many of the trophies, since the regiment's departure from China, are not engraved. The regiment's commander, Col. James F. Torrence, Jr., has expressed the hope that competitors will soon begin again. The famous, and very handsome silver punchbowl was one of the outstanding exhibits on display. It was hand-made in China for the regiment, and was presented to them by a citizen of Tientsin. The bowl is beautifully etched with dragons, and is truly an object of art. Beautiful oriental rugs were also featured. The table on which some of the trophies were displayed is itself one of the treasured possessions of the regiment. It is made of heavy teak wood, and inlaid with silver plates on which are engraved the names of the men of the regiment in China.

SCABBARD AND VASE . . . Admiring an intricately ornamented scabbard of a Chinese sword is Sgt. 1st. cl. Paul F. Pierce. The weapons are from the collection of the 15th Infantry regiment brought back from the Orient when it ended 26 years service there in 1923. The vase is one of many exquisite examples displayed in the trophy room last Saturday. Sergeant Pierce is standing on a handwoven Chinese wool rug.

'Shootingest' Battalion Local Field Artillery Unit Has Outstanding Record

When the army in 1940 decided that infantry divisions would be triangularized, an old field artillery regiment, the 10th, was split up into several battalions. These battalions designated the 10th, 39th and 41st, were assigned to the Third Infantry division. The original plan was to use these battalions as the supporting artillery units of the three infantry regimental combat teams that formed the triangular division. For several months last year troops at Fort Benning saw the 10th Field, which has since moved to Fort Devens, Mass., with the Seventh Infantry regiment. Last Saturday morning, however, the 39th Field Artillery battalion, one of the crack howitzer units of World War II came into its own again when the organization commander, Lt. Col. Clyde L. Jones, received the battalion's colors from Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, at ceremonies at French polo field. The history of the battalion actually goes back to the day when it was organized as a regiment at Ramp Lewis, Wash., in 1918. Its first history, however, was brief, the regiment being deactivated the following year. But when cadre from the 10th were organized the battalion on Oct. 1, 1940, a great military future lay ahead for the new battalion, a future that would take it to battle in seven countries on two continents. Part of 15th Infantry Assigned as the artillery part of the 15th combat team, the battalion, after intensive training at Fort Lewis, Wash., Fort Ord, Calif., and along the California coast where it took ambitious training, was alerted, with the rest of the Third Infantry division, late in 1942 for participation in the invasion of French Morocco, first attack at Hitler's door. The battalion moved to Camp Patrick Henry, Va., and in October, 1942, boarded ship for its first D-Day in the western hemisphere. In its first action, the battalion aided in the liberation of French Morocco, a campaign that began near Casablanca, Morocco, about 15 miles east of Casablanca. Swarming ashore at dawn on Nov. 8, the battalion used its guns to good effect in the bitter, four-day fight that ended with the French capitulation on Nov. 11. For the next several months the battalion, along with the rest of the division, was stationed in west North Africa. Then, in the spring of 1943 it moved to Tunisia, but arrived too late to fire a shot although the 15th combat team was the only artillery division to enter the campaign against the Afrika Korps. The next two months were spent in back-breaking training in preparation for another D-Day, this time on July 10, 1943, at Licata, Sicily. On Salerno Beaches From the D-Day the Germans called it quits, the guns of the 39th were seldom cool. Participating in the invasion of Sicily, a 38-day campaign for the Third, the battalion's major effort was on the beaches of Paestum, south of Salerno, in September, 1943. The battalion supported the 15th all the way to Cassino, and when the rest of the division was withdrawing Major Taylor's permission to call the batteries for volunteers, the sergeant major made an immediate response. One man besides Sergeant Jackson possessed the needed type blood needed by the individual. He was Pvt. Cornelius Cobbs, Headquarters battery. Transportation was provided within 15 minutes, and the two soldiers in need got to the hospital in Columbus. Arriving at their destination, they went through the usual formalities of having their blood typed and tested. Everything went according to schedule, and as a result, Mrs. Kathleen Hamilton, wife of Rufus Hamilton of Columbus, and her bouncing daughter are doing fine.

2 Sand Hill Blood Donors Aid In Hospital Emergency

BY AL WISE The usual dinner hour quietude of battalion headquarters, 899th Field Artillery battalion, was broken by the brisk ring of a telephone last Friday. "Headquarters, 899th Field Artillery battalion, Pfc. Peter Crawford speaking, Sir," said the party on the other end of the line. "We have a patient in an emergency condition and who immediately needs Type 'B' blood. Would it be possible for your unit to furnish donors as quickly as possible?" "I'll contact our sergeant major at once," Crawford replied, and immediately the channels started working. Pfc. Crawford relayed the request to M-Sgt. Albert H. Jackson, battalion sergeant major, who passed it on to Maj. Cloyd V. Taylor, battalion executive officer, at exactly 1 p. m. receiving Major Taylor's permission to call the batteries for volunteers, the sergeant major made an immediate response. One man besides Sergeant Jackson possessed the needed type blood needed by the individual. He was Pvt. Cornelius Cobbs, Headquarters battery. Transportation was provided within 15 minutes, and the two soldiers in need got to the hospital in Columbus. ESPECIALLY VALUABLE . . . Two of the especially beautiful vases in the magnificent collection of the 15th Infantry regiment displayed last Saturday are shown in this photo. Of Chinese make, they are silver and covered with an intricate design of colored porcelain enamel. The hardwrought silver goblet between the vases is covered with designs in silver. Guarding the priceless objects is Rct. Melvin W. Leake.

The 39th kept shooting after it got to France. For six months the gunners supported the Infantry of the 15th and, when called on, other units of the division, from Son Tropez on the Riviera up to the Vosges, over to the Rhine at Strasbourg, then south and again to the Rhine east of Colmar. Then came a couple of weeks of rest and another new target was assigned to the battalion: Zweibrücken, Germany, an important bastion in the Siegfried line. Early in March, 1945, the 39th hauled its guns up to the German border, hanged away at kept on banging, right up to and over the Rhine near Worms, Augsburg, Nurnberg, Munich and Berchtesgaden. Then the 39th was reduced to zero strength and the battalion was in military hibernation at Camp Campbell, Ky., until the orders to reorganize went into effect last December. But the new men of the 39th, many of whom were with the 31st Field at Fort Benning before the reorganization, will have a target to shoot at, for that 8,000 round in one day is believed to be the army record.

Tankers Promoted Rets. William J. Hobbs and Thomas F. Hayes, crewmen with the 15th Infantry regiment's Headquarters battery, were promoted recently to the grade of private, it has been announced.

Following a basketball game in the main post gym this week, we overheard a remark that went something like this: "We would have won that game if they hadn't been playing seven men."

Needless to say, the individual making the remark was suggesting that the referees were showing partiality. Just to explain the absurdity of such an argument, we would like to point out first, that there was more than a 10-point gap between the score of the winning team, and the squad which was robbed so mercifully by the allegedly biased official.

Now, the emphasis in this man's argument was placed on the referee's failure to call fouls which, in his opinion, were being committed by members of the winning team. Assuming that all fouls which this individual thought had been committed had been called to his liking by the official, the next question that comes to our mind has to do with whether or not there would have been enough free throws awarded to make up the more-than-10-point deficit.

In view of the fact that the losing squad had averaged making less than one-third of the free throws awarded it during the game, we seriously doubt that sufficient free throws could have been committed to sway the verdict toward the losers. It doesn't take a statistician to figure out that the defeated squad, would have had to be given over 30 shots more at the bucket than it actually received. In the wake of a defeat, it's an easy matter for a ball club to try and invent excuses. However, a slight degree of reasoning will show how absurd it is to blame the referee for such things.

Officials at Benning, as any other place, are subject to making mistakes, and we're not trying to hold the post's officiating at basketball games up as faultless. However, we will go on record as saying that the refereeing we have seen at Benning this season is as fine as we've ever witnessed outside of the highly-paid professional ranks.

For an example of high-caliber officiating that wasn't appreciated, we might take the case of Charles (Pappy) Harris, former post baseball umpire and basketball referee, who recently was signed to the South Atlantic league staff of umpires for 1949.

During his six years of officiating at Benning, Harris probably was lambasted as much as any man who ventured to call a Gowdy field diamond contest.

However, baseball luminaries who are in a position to know good officiating when they see it, recognized Harris' ability, and shortly after the veteran ump's discharge from the army, President Earl Blue of the South Atlantic circuit tendered him a contract.

Benning Prepares For Ring Tourney

Third Army Title Race Starts Here On Monday

An entry from Fort Jackson, S. C., for the Third Army boxing meet was received in the post athletic office this week, and Fort Bragg, N. C., was expected to submit the roster of its pugilists before the five-day tourney opens in Benning's main gym next Monday night.

This year's tournament is expected to include only three teams, Bragg, Jackson and Fort Benning's Doughboys.

The opening bout for the meet will be started at 8 p. m., Monday, and the card for each night of the tourney is expected to include approximately eight contests. All programs will be at night.

In the Hing classics, the Fort Bragg Asasins will be the defending champions, and probably will have two of their weight division titles - holders back in the lineup this year. Although the names of their contenders here, it was expected that welterweight Frank Spinetti, two area champs of 1948, will be the Asasins' top contender against next week.

The roster of Jackson Red Devils is headed by Carol Garretson, a hard-hitting heavyweight who represented the Third Army in the air force championship bouts in Chicago last June. Other fighters listed by the Red Imps are Sidney H. Bryant, Sporo W. Carlos, Frank E. Allitt, James D. Holt, Don J. Hayes, James D. Thompson, George M. Silvey, Buford DeCordova, Frank J. Kavanaugh and James M. Kelly.

Fort Benning's Doughboys received a last-minute shot in the arm when Norman Clark, popular Benning and Third Army lightweight champ for 1948, was enlisted for an assignment here.

In this year's classic, however, Clark, who has put on a little prouge during the summer and fall months, probably will see action in the welterweight bracket.

The acquisition of Clark will give Coach John Wilson's Doughboys better representation in the 147-pound class than in any other division. With the lightweight champ of 1948, Clark will be the No. 1 amateur spot in the bracket.

Unless some last-minute late news is unearthed, the Doughmen will enter the tournament minus representatives in two weight classes.

If Malcolm Davis can get his weight down to 112 pounds, he will go into the tourney as a Dough heavyweight contender.

The step, it was explained, has been taken in view of an expected increase in the number of mailmen incident to the assignment of new units to the post.

Kenner May Close Search For Dough Heavy Duty Boxer

Marvin Kenner, beak-busting gladiator of the 25th Infantry regiment's Second Battalion in the comeback trail last week, and is being regarded as one of the most promising candidates for the Doughboy boxing team's heavyweight assignment.

Kenner, who has been absent from ring competition for almost two years, has high hopes of being listed on the Doughboy roster for the Third Army gloves tourney, which opens in the main gym Monday.

As a member of the 1946-47 Bullet pugilist aggregation, Kenner worked up an enviable reputation as a vicious slugger and knockout artist. In 14 fights, he won 10, six of which were by "knockout."

A native of Bluefield, Tex., Kenner first became interested in the fight game when he was seven years old. Most of his fights were confined to "sandlot" bouts until 1938 when he entered the ring as a light heavyweight and won one of his two scraps.

Entering the army in 1943, he fought at Fort Bragg, N. C., where he captured one of two bouts, and captured one out of two fights while he was stationed at Camp Gordon, Johnston, N. C.

During a tour of duty in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations, Kenner gave up fighting and did not resume his fistie activity until he was assigned to the 15th Infantry here in 1946. The granite-jawed, 185-pounder is renowned for the powerful wallop he packs with both fists.

ERSTWHILE POST UMP SIGNS PRO LOOP PACT

Here's a story about a fellow who developed an army-learned sideline into a lucrative civilian-life position.

Charles (Pappy) Harris came to Fort Benning shortly after his induction into the army in April 1942, backed by 20 years of semi-pro baseball experience. Reasoning that he was a little old to compete with some of the talented youngsters on the post at that time, Harris decided not to try his hand at playing.

That was at the start of the Benning intra-mural campaign in 1943. Today, Harris is under contract to the Class A South Atlantic League at Columbus, Ga., as a member of the staff of umpiring regulars.

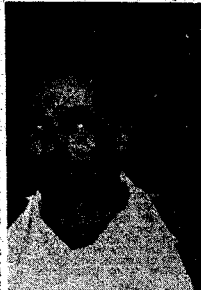

The exact terms of Harris' contract were not disclosed, but the erstwhile Benning ball-and-strikes caller has indicated that he is well pleased with the provisions of the pact tendered by Blue.

Before he started umpiring here in 1943, "Pappy" Harris had never undertaken any of the officiating chores, but he liked it so well that he has been calling play for each intra-mural and Doughboy campaign since.

And his officiating didn't stop at calling army games. For the past three seasons, he has been carried as an alternate by the South Atlantic circuit, and has filled in many times on the post at that time, where he was out of the lineup with injuries or were otherwise indisposed.

Harris was discharged from the army here on Nov. 3, last year, and has been keeping himself fit by refereeing basketball sites in Columbus and surrounding communities.

The ex-soldier diamond official, who entered the army from Pennsylvania, is married to the former Annie Jo McDonald of Columbus, and now calls Columbus, his home.

TOE TO TOE - Plenty of muscular tension is evident in this scene of a toe-to-toe slugfest between Jimmy Brown of the Sand Hill Rockets and Anthony Perfidio of the 15th Infantry regiment during the intra-mural fight card in the main gym last Friday night. Brown gained the nod in the Class IV welterweight scrap.

Lawrence Jones Withstands Wilburn's Second Challenge

Intra-Mural Bouts Suspended Until After Third Army Meet

Last Friday night's thrilling eight-bout card at the main post gymnasium marked the end of Fort Benning's intra-mural boxing activities until Feb. 18, the week following the Third Army tournament here.

The Class I main event between middleweight challenger Clifford Wilburn of the Rockets, and the 3440th Area Service unit's Lawrence Jones capped the exciting, fast-moving show.

Apparently in excellent condition, and displaying fine style, Jones, the Third Army middleweight champ, once again proved his worth as holder of that title. Wilburn's determination to win his second challenge of Jones this season, caused him to fall sprawling to the canvas in the first and second rounds as a result of the body lunge.

Jones' inimitable elusive tactics rendered Wilburn's aim ineffective in his obvious efforts to knock out the champ, and turned the tide of the assault, placing the challenger on the receiving end of Jones' fast flicking jab.

In a third-round rallying flurry, Wilburn cornered the champ and found the mark for a series of jabbing and one-two punches in the body, but the wily Jones bobbed, weaved and spun his way into the clear, and penned the hard-hit

Post Stages Rally To Nip Alabamans

Following a three-week drill period, the Fort Benning Doughboy cagers journeyed to Roanoke, Ala., last Tuesday night, and inaugurated their 1949 slate by chalking up a 51-48 triumph over the 200th Infantry regiment of the Alabama national guard.

But the Doughs ran up against some unexpectedly strong competition in the national guard men, who had dropped only three ills in eight outings this season. The route taken by the Doughs to victory proved rugged and the Benning court delegation had to overcome a game-long deficit to pull the contest out of the fire at the closing minutes.

An unusual method of playing the game was declared by the coaches of the two squads. The first half was broken up into 15-minute quarters, and the final 20 minutes were played as a half.

Early in the game, the guardsmen launched a strong attack on the Dough-defended goal, and surged into a 2-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

In the second period, the Alabamans continued to set the pace and still were out in front, 34-26, at the half.

It was not until late in the game that the Doughs succeeded in solving the guard defenses. Bob Kinard, Joe Setley and Jim Cowley started hitting the hoop during the final 15 minutes of play and paced the Benningites to a 48-40 defeat with 11 of 11 Alabama opponents two minutes before the end of the fray.

Doughboy defenses silenced the scoring guns of the Alabamans during the closing two min-

Several abuses of regulations governing hunting of vermin and predators has necessitated a restriction on days on which the species may be hunted.

Species listed as vermin, predator birds may be hunted only during the authorized hunting season on Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday and holidays. The Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association pointed out, however, that the measure is not aimed at discouraging destruction of vermin and predators.

Local anglers have been given an early mark to shoot at in 1949 according to a story related by Clinton A. Hill, a member of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

Recently a local angler and his two buddies after fishing the greater part of the day on King's Pond without even so much as a nibble decided to row to shore and dig worms to use in place of live bait.

From the shore, the fishermen cast his baited hook out into the pond, secured his line on a buoy, and left his rod on the bank while the trio dug some bait.

When they had a sufficient supply, they retrieved their equipment and set out again for deeper water.

Upon picking up his rod and reel, the angler found that his hook had caught on some object. After a brief struggle, the hook apparently freed itself, and he reeled in. The line broke water, and there on the hook, hung a 10 1/2-pound bass.

The skeet tournament scheduled for last Sunday at the officer's club range was postponed because of inclement weather. It will be held, weather permitting, next Sunday.

Medal play rounds of 36 holes will be played at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club for the purpose of bringing the club's links challenge ladder up to date. The revised ladder has been set up, it will be possible for a player to advance on the roster by challenging one of the two linksmen directly above him in the standings.

The man with the Herculean physique who has been seen around the weight mat at the Main gym is Henry Ferguson of Headquarters, 56th Infantry Regiment.

The 225-pound weightlifter, a veteran of six years in the army, continues his gymnastics to bench presses, and he has pressed a high of 275 pounds.

Championships just aren't in his line. Ferguson says that he has never been in the competition for a title, and adds that he never will be. He lifts weights simply because he wants to keep himself in shape—and, because he enjoys it.

Wisdom Stewart of the Student Training Regiment, who will fill the 160 lb weight berth for the Fort Benning Doughboy in next week's boxing army boxing tournament here, has spent exactly half of his 30 years—off and on—throwing punches.

He started his ring career during his high school days in Omaha, Neb., and appeared in eight bouts there for four years prior to his entry into the army. Stewart continued his activities as a leader under in Army rings both in the U.S. and in the Philippines until war-wrought additional duties removed him to discontinue boxing.

Doughmen Gain Split In Jax Court Series

Face Heavy Schedule For Rest Of February

Fort Benning's Doughboy cagers suffered their first setback of the 1949 campaign last weekend, but returned from Jacksonville, Fla., Sunday with a 500 average for their two-game series with the Jax naval flyers.

The local hoopsters dropped 11, the Doughmen had to carry the opener of the road set to their opponents for two overtime night, but, displaying a reversal of fortune, they overcame their loss on Saturday night by handing the Jax quintet a 49-47 defeat.

At that point, Echols stepped back into the scoring picture, and with four consecutive points in the period, dunked one from the outer court to give the Doughmen the lead.

Tonight the local bucketmen will journey to Thomaston, Ga., for a return game with the Millers, who were beaten here by the Doughs last week, but will come back to the post Friday for a game with the 200th Infantry regiment of the Alabama national guard, which also was defeated by the post five last week.

On Sunday, the Doughs will take on a powerful Atlanta Sports arena quintet in the Georgia capital city, and will return to Benning to play host to the Jay Flyers in the Airborne battalion gym on Monday. They will go to Augusta, Ga., on Tuesday for an encounter with Oliver General hospital, and will tangle with the Calloway Millers of Manchester, Ga., in the Airborne battalion gym on Wednesday night.

Games with the Lumpkin, Ga., athletic club there and the Calloway Millers in Manchester will round out the pre-tournament schedule of Coach Phillips' cagers.

Units May Still Secure World Series Movie

Open times still are plentiful next week for unit showings of a 1948 World series film which has been obtained by the Infantry Center athletic and recreation office, 1st Lt. Irving Levine, post athletic officer said.

Arrangements for showing the movie, which will be in the possession of the A and H office from Monday until Friday of next week, may be made by telephoning 222.

Chutists Whip ISD In Vital Cage Game

Intra-mural cagedom's "battle of the century" on Monday night developed in a marathon-style victory for the best Airborne Battalion Troopers, who rolled over the Infantry School detachment, 72-28, in the main gym.

The post-season fray between Troopers came from Lawrence the two leading contenders for the circuit's No. 1 spot marked the second time this season that the ISD five has bowed to the Troopers. The "chutists" won the post championship late last year by trouncing the infantrymen.

From the outset of Monday night's tilt, the Trooper defenses had the ISD bucket shooters completely baffled and the airborne scoring ends chipped in to make it a field day on the infantry defended basket.

After five minutes of play had elapsed, the Troopers had held the ISD aggregation to a long free throw while they were busy dunking 14 counters. Five minutes later, the parachutists had widened their margin to 22-6.

During the last 10 minutes of the first half, the Troopers increased their advantage to 45-11, but their scoring punch faltered in the early stages of the last period. It took the "chutists" 10 minutes to up the count to 62-15.

The best offensive showing of the ISD came during the final 10 minutes of play with a score of 14-11.

Murray setting the pace. In the waning minutes of the contest, the ISD connected for three many counters as it had been able to compile during the first 30 minutes of activity.

Truckers Start Fast To Shade Rocket Cagers

Sparked by a powerful offensive attack, the 20th Transportation Battalion Truckers edged the Sand Hill Rockets, 56-50 in a post-season hardwood tilt in the main post gym Monday night.

Their victory put the Truckers in a two-way deadlock with the Infantry School detachment for the No. 2 spot in the circuit standings. Both squads have three victories and two setbacks for the campaign.

Shortly after the opening tip-off, the Truckers grabbed the scoring initiative and held it throughout the game. By the time the intermission hour had elapsed, the Truckers had built a 30-19 advantage over the Sand Hillers.

Early in the final period, the Truckers staged another point-getting spurge, and widened the scoring gap. However, the Rockets roared back strong during the final minutes of the game only to fall shy of the tally that put up their opponents.

The loss was the third in five league outings for the Rockets. In the previous scoring department, Harry Moore of the Truck five was the pace-setter with eight points.

Phil Tindrell headed the Rocket scoring roster with a nifty half-dozen buckets from the court for 12 tallies.

A set of resolutions officially thanking Columbus Post-Fort Benning for their hospitality in connection with the New Year's Peanut Bowl festivities was adopted recently by the city council of Westfield, Mass., which furnished the teams for the annual classic.

Almost simultaneously with the adoption of the resolutions by Westfield's city council was the awarding of wren commendations by the Peanut Bowl committee to enlisted men of Fort Benning, who played vital roles in entertaining the Massachusetts and Fitzgerald, Ga., team members.

Recipients of the commendations who are members of the 29th Ordnance battalion, the unit responsible for messing the Fitzgerald graders, include Sgt. Hugh W. Shaw, Sgt. Warner Jackson, Cpl. Henry Bruner, Pfc. William T. Jones, Pvt. James T. Decker and Pvt. George M. Kay. Members of the Infantry School detachment, the unit which provided the band and mess facilities for the Bay state team, who were commended are: 1st Lt. Raymond E. Gringola, M-Sgt. Clyde O. First Sgt. John H. Wilson and Pvt. Kenneth P. Ceell of the Infantry Center special services supply also were recipients of commendations.

Two Records Shattered In Chutist Cage Triumph

Two intra-mural cage records were shattered and one tied when the post champion Airborne Battalion Troopers massacred the 39th Field Artillery Battalion Redlegs 92-27 in the main gym last Thursday night.

The 92 tallies posted by the parachutists equaled the mark for a single game they had set themselves during the regular post title campaign. Their earlier score of 92 was chalked up against the Redlegs.

The first new record came when the Troopers rolled up the fourth straight of the season against an opponent this season. The triumph over the Redlegs was the fourth straight of the post-season race for the Troopers, and gave them undisputed claim to the circuit's No. 1 spot.

Herb Myatt, a reserve on the Trooper quintet during the regular season, set a new high for individual scoring in intra-mural competition by dunking 23 counters. The lanky cager, who plays both forward and center for the chutists, dropped in 16 field goals and a free toss to compile his total.

The Troopers got off to a fast start both offensively and defensively, and scored 25 counters while holding the Redlegs point-less for the first nine minutes of the game. Dale McClain finally broke the ice for the artillerymen by bucketing a free throw.

Throughout the entire first period, the Trooper offensive continued, and the most champs held a 58-8 advantage at the half. During the early stages of the last half, the Redlegs were able to penetrate the strong Trooper defenses, and, within 10 minutes, their scoreboard total had swollen to 27.

However, the "chutist fortifications" tightened again, and the artillery five-ome was held to four tallies during the final 10 minutes of activity.

The triumph over the Redlegs was the fourth straight of the post-season race for the Troopers, and gave them undisputed claim to the circuit's No. 1 spot.

Doughs Swamp Thomaston Five

Fort Benning's newly-organized cage Doughboys made it two straight for their 1949 campaign last Wednesday night by romping to an easy 50-33 triumph over the Thomaston, Ga., Millers.

The game followed a 51-46 vic-tory with Bob Kinard in Tuesday night's fray with the guards-ment of the Alabama national men, headed the roster against the Millers with a 14-point lead in the first half.

Things got off to a slow start in the main gym tilt, and the entire first half was a fiasco of faulty passes and muffs of easy shots by both quintets.

Not a single field goal was made during the first five minutes of the game, but the Doughs jumped to an early 4-1 lead by cashing in on free tosses. At the end of six minutes of play, the Doughs still were unable to add to their lone counter, but the Doughboys boosted their tally to six by making one from the court.

The Doughs went into the final half of the first period leading 16-9, but the score was upped to 16-9 by the intermission. Early in the last half, big Jim Cowley, the Doughboy center, focused his attention on the hoop and figured prominently in the Benning jump to 30-17 advantage in less than 10 minutes.

The tilt's heavy scoring, however, was done in the last 10 minutes of activity when Hugh Frank Radcliffe, Norman Morris and Rex Nipper took over point setting chores for the Millers, and Charles Richards, Vern Griffin and Joe Selley came into the counting picture for the Doughs. Cowley, who shared individual points with 12 tallies. Radcliffe, the Philadelphia Phillies' $40,000 bonus baseball pitcher from Thomaston, who is playing basketball for the Doughs, topped his team's scoring roster with 22 tallies.

The Rocket record for the intra-mural campaign is just the tip of the iceberg for the Doughs by the ISD. They have been better in their last two tilts after starting off their season with a win over the 15th Infantry regiment.

In Tuesday night's fray, the pace changed hands as often as a chameleon alters its colors. The Doughs still were unable to add to their lone counter, but the Doughboys boosted their tally to six by making one from the court.

Post-Season Thriller Won By ISD Lads

Battling to stay within striking distance of the loop-leading Airborne Battalion Troopers, the Infantry School detachment marked out a 37-32 victory over the Sand Hill Rockets in a main gym cage thriller last Tuesday night.

The triumph was the second straight for the infantrymen after they had dropped their post-season league opener to the Truckers of the 20th Transportation battalion.

The tilt's heavy scoring, however, was done in the last 10 minutes of activity when Hugh Frank Radcliffe, Norman Morris and Rex Nipper took over point setting chores for the Millers, and Charles Richards, Vern Griffin and Joe Selley came into the counting picture for the Doughs. Cowley, who shared individual points with 12 tallies. Radcliffe, the Philadelphia Phillies' $40,000 bonus baseball pitcher from Thomaston, who is playing basketball for the Doughs, topped his team's scoring roster with 22 tallies.

The Rocket record for the intra-mural campaign is just the tip of the iceberg for the Doughs by the ISD. They have been better in their last two tilts after starting off their season with a win over the 15th Infantry regiment.

In Tuesday night's fray, the pace changed hands as often as a chameleon alters its colors. The Doughs still were unable to add to their lone counter, but the Doughboys boosted their tally to six by making one from the court.

FLYERS PULL STRING; UPSET TRUCKER CLAN

In an upset - flavored hard-ged during the final period, but wood tilt in the main gym last his teammate, Jerry Clark, Tuesday night, the Lawson field Flyers chucked up a hotly-contested 54-53 post-season triumph over the 20th Transportation Battalion Truckers.

For the Flyers the victory was important in that it marked the first time this season that they had emerged winner in an active encounter. They did not, however, have one digit in their win column—a forfeiture from the Sand Hill Rockets the preceding week.

During the first half, the Flyers were fighting from the doldrums. The Truckers took the scoring initiative early in the game, and still were out in front, 26-22, at the half.

Bill Treman, who had been turning out most of the offensive work for the Flyers during the first 20 minutes of the fray, lagged during the final period, but his teammate, Jerry Clark, came through with the scoring punch that kept the Lawsonites in the running. The game entered the twilight seconds with the Truckers on the top side of a 63-52 verdict, but Bob Jordanhazy clinched the decision for the Flyers by dunking an effort from the court only eight seconds before the final buzzer.

TASSEY SETS SINGLE GAME ALLEYS MARK
A new mark in the individual high game department was set by the Doughboy center, Jim Tassey, who tallied 50 points in a game against the 15th Infantry School last week when Jim Tassey of the one-ups squad knocked down 234 pins.

Sand Hill Athletes Awarded Jackets

At a sports party last Tuesday night, 60 blue, white-trimmed sports jackets were presented to members of the 25th Infantry regiment who were on the Sand Hill Bullet baseball and football teams of 1948.

Two bronze athletic trophies also were awarded at the party which was held in the Harmony church area field house.

The trophies went to the baseball team which finished atop the heap in the 1948 post-season intra-mural Benning diamond loop and captured runner-up honors in the 325th Infantry regiment's intra-unit league.

After a short resume of the year's sports activities by Lt. Robert P. Burns, former division athletic and recreation officer, the trophies were presented to the baseball team by Maj. Gen. C. W. Clarkson, commandant general of the Third Infantry division. The awards were received for the team by shortstop Gordon Burke and third baseman Willie Wise.

Baseball jackets which also were awarded by General Clarkson, went to Charles Nichols, Amos Snowden, Murray D. Whitson, Leon Coleman, Gordon Burke, Walter Scott, Horace Smith, Lawrence Miles, Lewis Davis, Anthony Hardy, Amos

Last-Half Rally By Medics Nips 15th Infantrymen

A fancy bit of last-minute pressure shooting gave the Medics of the 15th Infantry regiment a hard-earned 45-41 victory over the 15th Infantry regiment in a post-season tilt in the main gym last Thursday night. In the first half, the two squads were tied 37-37, but in a late flurry of field goals, the medical quintet outshot the infantrymen 12-2 to annex the victory. The Medics were forced to come from behind. Throughout most of the first half they trailed their op-

Rockets Beat Band Quintet In City Clash

By BOB PHILLIPS

Outlasting the 1948 Band players, 33-29, the Sand Hill Rocket courtmen stormed into a three-way tie for first place in the 1948 Industrial league at the Ninth street YMCA in Columbus last Wednesday night.

The Rockets now share the top spot with the Warren William Gabels and the Columbus Orioles. All three of the front-running teams have posted two wins against an undefeated opponent in the opening of league competition on Dec. 21.

In the earlier victory, the Sand Hill quintet toppled the 25th Transportation Truck battalion 48-32.

Wednesday night's court match was evenly fought from start to finish. For the first five minutes of play neither team was able to initiate a scoring punch.

But when Chuck Boyd and Hank Hammond connected from the free-throw line and Ed Echols flipped in a two-pointer, the Rockets were out in front 4-0, and the fireworks were touched off.

The scant lead was of short duration, however, since Armand Smith and Jerry Morgan scored twice for the handsomen. The closely fought contest was tied two more times before ponents, and took their "break" while on the caboose end of a 23-20 verdict.

Early in the last half, however, the Medics pulled up even with the infantrymen, and the lead changed several times during the remainder of the contest.

The medic offensive was paced by big John Watson, a center, who scored 11 points on four shots from the booth and three from the free toss area.

the half ended in a 13-13 deadlock. In addition to Boyd, the Rockets put Phil Tindrell, 7' 0" mny Watford, Chuck Patrick and Houston Lancaster on the floor to open the second stanza.

Watford, the Rocks' set-shot artist, plugged the bucket for two points, but Floyd Sicilieri, who finished the battle as the game's top scorer, hit safely to knot the tie.

With the second period nearing the half-way mark, Watford opened one from far out, and Echols, Gordon Burke, Hammond and Joe Ellis returned to the game.

Employing a fast-breaking attack, the Sand Hill aggregation stretched their lead to 25-18. Despite a strong uphill climb, in

Plan Dance Patios For Service Clubs

Service clubs No. 1 and 4 will undergo face lifting operations in the form of outdoor dance patios as special services officials get the nod from Washington to accept bids from contractors. It was reported this week.

This latest project is another step toward increasing and improving recreational facilities on the post for enlisted personnel, officials said.

The patios will have their own band shells which, in comparison to the dais, or platform-type bandstands, improve the tone delivery of the music and create a more attractive atmosphere, it was pointed out.

The dance floors will be flanked by "sidewalk cafeteria-type" seating arrangements including tables. Both the floor and seating areas will be bordered by chain fences.

Lighting will come from color-glass bulbs patterned in overhead light strings.

With the opening of this project, Fort Benning's long range program aimed at creating home like surroundings for the soldier will be well under way in fact, as well as on blueprints, special services declared.

Last Season's Titlists Repeat

An overflow crowd estimated at 2,500 saw the 82nd Airborne division Assassins of Fort Bragg, N. C., recapture the Third Army boxing title in the main gym Tuesday night.

Because of the small field of tanweight and lightweight class-competitors, the tournament, originally scheduled to last four days, was completed in two days.

In successfully defending their crown, the Bragg pugilists edged the host Fort Benning Doughboys 30-26, under a point system which awarded a weight-division champion five counters, a runner-up three points and a semi-final loser one tally. The Red Devils of Fort Jackson, S. C., the only other team entry in the meet, garnered only eight points.

Although the team toga went to Bragg's Assassins, individual championships were evenly divided between the North Carolinians and the Doughboys, each team placing four men on the Third Army team. The difference in points was attributed largely to the Assassins' fielding a full-eight-man squad, while the Doughboy aggregation numbered only six.

Runner-up honors in the banquet series go to the band. Newcomers to Fort Benning who wish to see the remaining programs in the Community Concert series may see at reduced prices after Thursday Feb. 17, at the office of the Main theater.

For further information, contact Mrs. Allen L. Peck. The tickets will be on sale at reduced prices.

The Women's club, sponsors of the series, will present Maso Morgan, baritone, at the Main theater Tuesday evening, Feb. 22.

Benning Leading In Reenlistments

Fort Benning wound up 1948 on top of the reenlistment heap in the Third Army area, according to a report received this week by Col. Arthur C. Purvis, adjutant general of the Infantry Center.

The report indicated that during December Benning not only led the rest of the major installations in the area by more than 20 percent, but also reenlisted more soldiers.

Of 577 men discharged during December at Benning, 388 reenlisted for a percentage of 66.9. Far behind in second place with a percentage of 45.8 was Fort Jackson, S. C., where 654 men reenlisted. In third place was the other major installation, Fort Bragg, N. C., with 139 out of 320 reenlisting for a percentage of 43.4.

Bragg led the list in "short discharges" with 72, followed by Benning with 29 and Jackson with 18. Twenty men at Benning extended their enlistments during December, as did six at Jackson and five at Bragg. There were four retirements at Jackson, three at Benning and one at Bragg during the month.

250 Recruits Arrive Today

The arrival today of an additional 250 recruits from Fort Dix, N. J., for basic training in the Sand Hill area will swell the ranks of those already assembled to 750, officials have announced.

The first contingent, which arrived at 5 p. m., Feb. 3, de-trained at the rail center and proceeded by truck to the Sand Hill area. The second contingent arrived on Feb. 6.

All of the recruits are 21-month or more volunteers and will undergo an eight-week training course.

Arriving on the post at 11:30 a.m., they were greeted by Maj. Charles E. Dunn, assistant public information officer of the Infantry Center; Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, commanding officer of the 899th Field Artillery; and 1st Lt. Jon Greenwood, 899th Field Artillery athletic and recreation officer.

LT. COL. B. G. BAETKE
... new secretary

New Secretary Named For TIS

Lt. Col. Bernd G. Baetke has been named secretary of the Infantry School succeeding Lt. Col. Charles E. Johnson, it has been announced by Infantry School officials.

Colonel Johnson, who left Fort Benning late in December, is now in Washington, D. C., preparing for his new assignment as assistant military attaché to Italy.

When the 32nd Infantry division was called to active duty in October, 1940, the new secretary was assigned with the division to Camps Beauregard and Livingston, La., where he remained there only briefly. A captain in the division went into federal service in December, 1940, he was ordered to Fort Benning to attend the Infantry School's battalion and staff officers' course, finishing in March, 1941. He attended the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., from December, 1941 until March, 1942, and upon graduation went overseas with the 32nd division as executive officer of the 120th Infantry.

Colonel Baetke's unit was the first American outfit to see combat in the Southwest Pacific. His regimental commander was Col. Joseph S. Bradley, now a brigadier general and assistant commander of the 1st Air Army School.

He left the 128th to be assigned to Headquarters, 5th Army, in the Supply, Southwest Pacific, as chief of operations of the G-3 section, which post he held from May, 1943, until May, 1944, when he returned to the United States to attend the Army-Navy Staff College in Washington, Fort Leavenworth, Orlando, Fla., and Newport, R. I.

He returned to the Pacific in December, 1944, as commander of an advance base in the Philippines. In June, 1945, Colonel Baetke was ordered back to this country for duty with the Department general staff's Personnel and Administration Division as chief of the Separations Branch.

The party was accompanied here by George Holloway, principal of the school, and Mrs. Doris McCoy of the elementary school.

First stop on the itinerary was at Service club No. 4 where the party was met by Mrs. Mary Manlove, hostess, and a Chaplain (Capt.) Leonard A. Ellis. They were served light lunches and enjoyed the recreational facilities of the service club.

At 1 p.m., the group was taken to chapel No. 3, through the new in Washington, D. C., to the Army Education Center and airborne jump towers. During the tour, Lieutenant Greenwood, riding in the bus with the party, explained points of interest.

The main post inspection also included the automotive shop, canteen, Main exchange, Main library, Main theater, Gowdy Field House, Headquarters of the Infantry Center, field printing plant, Station hospital, golf course and commanding general's quarters.

In the Sand hill area, the party visited the 899th Field Artillery gun park where a demonstration on a 155-mm self-propelled howitzer was performed by a crew from Battery C. The demonstration was explained by 1st Lt. James H. Miller.

Other points of interest visited were the service club, No. 2, where visitors were shown about by Mrs. Kate L. Noe, hostess; WO-1 W. A. Service, Center branch library; and the John W. Brown NCO club. The final step was at Service club No. 1, where the party rested prior to the return trip home.

RC Membership Will Be Decided By Unit Strength

The unit strength as of Feb. 23 will be the basis of determination of membership increases for the various organizations of Fort Benning in the annual Red Cross membership drive scheduled to start March 1, it has been announced by Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, executive director of the campaign.

While no monetary "quota" will be set for membership in the campaign, it is expected to donate a certain amount based on the actual goal in the campaign. Membership in the Red Cross is one dollar a year although larger units in Guam and Japan, and the new arrivals, are also among the new arrivals.

Enlisted Men Promoted To Private First Class
Three privates of the Infantry School detachment's Company A were promoted to private first class Feb. 4, it has been reported to Fort Benning from Fort Jackson, S. C., where the assignment here was in the office of the coordinator of training.

JUMPING THE GUN... Although the Red Cross membership drive is not scheduled to open officially until March 1, the men of the Third Infantry division figured "Why wait?" Shown here is Sgt. Ross H. Lilly, battalion "Red Cross NCO," counting out the first day's take to Rct. Robert M. Fresco of division special services office. According to Lilly, the men of the battalion decided that last pay day was just as good a day to begin as any other so they started joining up. Lilly said that by last Tuesday morning the battalion already had more than 50 percent membership.

SOUNDING 'EM OUT War or Peace? Ladies Auxiliary Gives Red Cross Shot In Arm

During the past several months many of the weekly troop information program discussions have been concerned with the international situation. Much of the emphasis has been on how that situation affects us as individuals, and of prime concern is the question: war or peace?

This week, therefore, it was decided to ask eight Fort Benning soldiers, all of whom have been attending U.S. and reading the newspapers: "What do you think of the prospects for world peace in the next few years?"

Ret. Army Sgt. S. Kelly, Company A, Infantry School detachment, said: "I think they're pretty good. I don't think there'll be any more major wars. There will be some minor entanglements, like in China and Greece, but they'll be less and less in the next 10 or 15 years. Most of the reasons, and I don't think in the future, will be any of the major wars. They may come close to it and huddle, but they won't fight. I don't think two countries will start fighting. I think there will be a lot of hot air at each other."

Thornhill Kidd, Capt. Alvin C. Kidd, 666th Transportation Company, 30th Infantry regiment, said: "I think they're pretty good. I think there'll be no more major wars. Noted Explorer Lectures At Main Theatre Monday

An estimated 400 people heard Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted explorer and scientist, talk on Monday evening, Feb. 7, at the Main theatre.

Sir Hubert, whose subject was "The Arctic and its Influence on World Affairs," is a native of Australia, although he has made his base in the United States for the last 20 years. He is an authority on the polar regions, having led seven different expeditions into those zones.

Decorated by many nations for his scientific achievements and explorations, and knighted by the Kings of England and Italy, Sir Hubert has a long line of honors to his credit.

In his talk on the Arctic, Sir Hubert outlined the geographical, economic and political background of the region, discussing its future and calling it the most important sentry box for the United States today.

He talked about the latest Soviet developments in the Arctic and discussed the questions of whether man can live in reasonable comfort in these areas; whether soldiers and sailors can fight, and whether modern airplanes, submarines and surface vessels can operate in the 80 degrees below zero weather in the Arctic regions.

Sir Hubert illustrated his talk with colored slides and movies taken from the air, and from a submarine under the sea. His sharp wit, and the many anecdotes and personal experiences he timely and interesting lecture.

KEEPING THEM ROLLING... The recruiting posters that promise men a chance to learn a trade if they join the army were never truer than in the case of Sgt. Robert Pate, right, of the 378th Ordnance company. The fact that he was able to complete only the fifth grade of elementary school didn't prevent his becoming a "crack" man in an outfit that prides itself on its ability to perform difficult and complex jobs with motors and vehicles. He is shown here as a repair and rebuilding of generators, cranking motors, carburetors, fuel pumps, gauges of all descriptions and air valves. Added to this is the continual work on maintenance of all vehicles from jeeps to tanks. Pate has completed two courses at the Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

'Barracks-Living' Enlisted Men Find Additional Comfort

BY AL WISE

Something new in the way of comfort for "barracks - living" enlisted men was inaugurated by Headquarters battery, 899th Field Battalion, last week when a four-man NCO room on the second floor of the barracks was converted into a honey recreation center at no expense to the government.

The crux of the project was originated by the battery commander, Capt. Gerald J. Multine, and his "first soldier," M-Sgt. David R. Reed, who met with the NCO's living in the room to determine whether or not it would meet with their approval. The response was unanimous approval.

Immediately, paints and furnishings were procured, and after a few days of busy work, the room was ready for occupancy. Artists and craftsmen of all types responded to the call.

Following two nights of steadily applied work without the usual ten-minute hourly breaks, the project was successfully completed to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The motif is maroon and rose. Wall and reading lamps are arranged about the room, and comfortable chairs, davenport and a writing and card tables complete the setting. A book containing the latest in popular publications enhances the project.

The new recreation center has increased the popularity of an even basis with the dayroom, for it is in the new center that a fellow can don a "T" shirt, slacks and tennis shoes and browse over a letter or a book.

Responsible for the work were Sgt. Leon F. Webb, Sgt. James Green and Pvt. Preston Walker, Cornelius Cobb and Clifford Shivers.

Housing Boost Seen

City to Construct 1,500 New Units

More than 1,500 housing units are in either the construction or "planning and anticipated stages," in Columbus, according to Clayton McLendon, executive director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

As a result the search for housing by Benning soldiers, however, one builder announced that he had already started on 200 units, and applications have already been turned in to the Federal Housing Authority for another 800 units.

Amplifying his announcement of the planning of more units, Mr. McLendon said that the possible figure of 1,500 includes units which are in the preliminary, or talking stage, but the Federal Housing Authority has already approved 1,100 units in this area.

He also added that the government had been given a 150-unit project. The Chamber director said that the entire project is not all expected to be constructed through FHA loans. The 200-unit project, a private affair to be located near Baker Village, will get under way within 60 days, he said.

The Chamber of Commerce, according to Mr. McLendon, was cognizant of the fact late last fall that when the Third division arrived at Fort Benning, additional housing would be needed in the area for these troops, but that it was equally important that there not only be sufficient housing for the troops, but that it be adequate.

Following the announcement in December that the Third division would be stationed at Benning, the Chamber called a meeting of post officials, division commanders and local bankers, contractors, and civic and business leaders. A resolution was then passed that "necessary facilities would be made available when needed."

It was also reported that state FHA officials had been advised of the situation and had been requested to assist local builders in financing the construction of additional housing. Mr. McLendon stated that as early as last summer when the first inkling was given that the Third would be stationed at Benning, his organization became interested in doing what it could at that time nothing could be done because of lack of information.

This information was given the local group as soon as possible when it was definite the Third was to be stationed here, he added.

New Course Opens At TIS On Feb. 10

Officials at the Communication section announced that a class for communication chiefs opened Feb. 10. The course includes a warrant officer and 50 enlisted men.

The purpose of the course is to produce communication chiefs for various infantry units and to give them enough training that they will be well grounded in technique, characteristics, installation operation, and maintenance of their unit system and the application of this training in the most complete of infantry units.

The course lists 20 weeks.

Unit Shows 'Full Field' Equipment

Blue and French polo fields were the scene last Saturday morning of a full field inspection by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, of units of the 15th Infantry Regiment combat team.

Units participating included First Third and Provisional battalions, the 15th Infantry regiment, Company E, 10th Engineer battalion, Medical company, 15th Infantry regiment, Heavy Tank company, 15th Infantry regiment, Heavy Mortar company, 15th Infantry regiment, 30 Field Artillery battalion, 7th Heavy Tank battalion, and 99th Field Artillery battalion.

Cante were pitched, and a full lay-out of all field equipment was on display. The entire strength of all the participating units, except the minimum number required to carry out operations at each headquarters, was present.

1,000 Additional Telephone Lines To Be Installed

Installation of 1,000 more lines of dial switching equipment in the main post telephone exchange is expected to start this week and should be completed within 90 days, according to Maj. Thomas P. Ross, Infantry Center signal officer.

The new equipment will eliminate much of the chargin caused by busy signals, interference, static and wrong numbers, Major Ross said.

Current discrepancies exist due to a 100 per cent load being carried by the present system, he pointed out.

The additional lines will reduce the general overload to a satisfactory 65 per cent, but will not include new or additional telephones. These lines are intended to improve telephone service for present subscribers through the expansion of office facilities, but no additions will be made to the outside cable plant.

The new equipment addition brings five digit dialing to Fort Benning since the present plant cannot be expanded further and retain only four digit numbers.

Board Men Test New Type O'coat

Soldiers may be wearing a 'new look' in overcoats in the near future if the new type combination raincoat and overcoat now being "test-worn" by personnel of Army Field Forces board No. 3 proves practical.

The olive drab field overcoat, legs and fasten snugly around the ankles, the ankle, sports many new features which, officials claim, are a great improvement over the old type wool overcoat. If adopted, the new overcoat will also be used in place of the raincoat.

The army started experimenting with the new type garment in 1948 and found that it met with the approval of men who wore it. They say it is warm and dry and "very dresy."

Last year's tests proved satisfactory except for size designations, and the purpose of present tests is to determine the sizing system to be used. They will probably be classified as large, medium and small, long and short, officials declared.

Authorized for wear by officers and enlisted men, the new model resembles the old officer's trench coat, with slash pockets and belt. It has an all-wool removable liner which when worn makes the garment an overcoat. Without the lining, it becomes a raincoat.

A novel feature in the form of leg rain flaps affords greater protection in rainy weather. The flaps, fastened to the inside when not in use, fold down around the feet.

3rd Division Needs Help

A piano player, guitar player and vocalist are urgently needed by the newly activated Third Division orchestra.

The Third Infantry division will have a "Miss Red Cross," according to division officials. She will be crowned at an entertainment in conjunction with the annual Red Cross campaign, scheduled to start March 1, has been slated by all units at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, head of the special events program for the drive, announced that a large indicator in the form of a white cross will be erected in front of the Main theater to show the progress of the membership campaign. As membership comes in, the indicator will be painted red until 100 per cent membership is achieved.

Z Special Courts Here Include EM Board Members

Two special courts - martial boards met last Thursday and for the first time in Fort Benning history included enlisted men as board members.

The Station hospital, a nine-man board, including Mr. Sgts. Royal Deemer and Joseph D. Hutschman and Enoch Hart, heard charges of absence without leave against Pvt. Lester E. Young of the Medical detachment.

Meanwhile, three enlisted men of the Student Training Regiment, 1st Sgt. Everett J. Proctor, 1st Sgt. William H. Martin and 1st Sgt. Herbert B. Wade sat with five officers in the trial of Pvt. George C. Gegan, of the regiment's Airborne battalion. Gegan was charged with failure to obey a lawful order given by an officer.

Council for the defense in the trial of Pvt. Gegan brought to light a number of extenuating circumstances which constituted legal technicalities in the defendant's favor.

In the case of Recruit Young, evidence and testimony presented revealed that this was the defendant's fourth offense of the same nature.

The Station hospital board concurred in finding Young guilty, and pronounced sentence of five months in the post stockade and forfeiture of 65 of his pay per month for a like period.

By way of contrast, the Student Training Regiment board pronounced Recruit Gegan not guilty, the specification as charged.

Special Events Scheduled To Aid Red Cross Drive

A full program of special events in conjunction with the annual Red Cross campaign, scheduled to start March 1, has been slated by all units at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Roland E. Murphy, head of the special events program for the drive, announced that a large indicator in the form of a white cross will be erected in front of the Main theater to show the progress of the membership campaign. As membership comes in, the indicator will be painted red until 100 per cent membership is achieved.

Airborne Division Chief Ends Visit

Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, commanding general of the 11th Airborne division, stopped at Fort Benning last week-end for an unofficial visit with his son Capt. William M. Miley, Jr., of the Airborne section.

The general was enroute to New-Orleans, La., to meet the first contingent of troops of the 11th which is returning from occupation duty in Japan for assignment to Camp Campbell, Ky.

General Miley made an informal inspection of the training methods used by the Airborne section and was very favorably impressed with what he described as "improvements over the old techniques." He was particularly interested in the methods of instruction at the landing fall area.

In the early years of parachute landing instruction, students were taught to land with feet spread apart and making a forward tumble which resulted in numerous injuries.

Current methods call for a landing fall in which the jumper turns his body and "rolls" to the ground with feet together. This latter method is called a five-point landing since the feet, calves, thighs, backs and shoulders strike the ground in that order, with the motion of the body assuming the curve of a wheel. General Miley was similarly impressed with the other phases of current airborne training which he said had progressed "quite a bit over the years since he was commander of the first parachute battalion, the 501st Parachute Battalion, in 1918.

General Miley has been actively connected with airborne training and development since his designation as commander of the 501st Parachute Battalion in 1918. During the last world war he was commander of the famed 17th Airborne division which saw extensive action in the "Battle of the Bulge."

After deactivation of the 17th in 1945, General Miley successfully commanded the Eighth division and the Infantry Regiment Training Center at Camp

Red Cross Cites Post For Part In Blood Bank

Fort Benning was highly commended recently by James M. Jones, assistant director of the American Red Cross, for its participation in the current mobile blood bank program.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, Infantry Center commanding general, Mr. Jones said that the Red Cross wanted to "express our deep appreciation to you and the members of your command for your outstanding participation in the Red Cross blood program." Mr. Jones was referring principally to recent contributions of blood by members of two units, the 39th Field Artillery Battalion and the 3440th Area Service Unit.

The Red Cross official pointed out that on each visit of the mobile unit to Fort Benning, a new record "has been established in the number of pints of blood obtained."

Col. Robert B. Hill, hospital commander, and his staff received special praise from Mr. Jones, who wrote, "Colonel Hill and members of his staff are to be commended for their complete cooperation."

Blood collecting during the drive is to be used in civilian and military hospitals throughout the country. Red Cross officials said that the need for blood donations has been critical and that Fort Benning contributions "have been of inestimable value."

Chaplain Who Blessed A-Bomb Plane Now Stationed at Benning

Capt. Max Daina, recently assigned to Fort Benning as Jewish chaplain, lists some grim memories among those of his tour of duty in the Far East command.

The captain, who has just returned from the Pacific after two and one-half years in China, Korea and Japan, was completely rebuilt, but the one of the chaplains who blessed the A-bomb plane prior to its take-off for the bombing of Hiroshima.

Then in September, 1946, he visited the city and saw the destructive scope of an atom bomb.

area, comparable in size to Columbus, Ga., had been completely destroyed by the one missile, Chaplain Daina said. Nothing within radius of the explosion was spared except a few small areas which were protected by hills.

"Two years later," says the chaplain, "Hiroshima was completely rebuilt, but the Japanese have a marker at the center of impact and a peace memorial to remind them of the destructive force of atomic power."

In reply to questions concerning conditions in Japan Chaplain Daina said, "The lower classes in Japan, who had suffered under the military oligarchy rule welcomed the Americans and are satisfied with the American administration. The people have sufficient food, and are adverse to Communism. Of course there is a sprinkling of communist agitators, and every so often you hear them from their soap boxes."

5 Hostesses Set For Conference

Five Fort Benning service club hostesses will attend a special service club training conference at Fort Jackson, S. C., this month, it has been revealed.

Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, chief of army special services, announced that this is the first army-service club training conference ever held in the United States. The first in a series of similar conferences in the six army areas will be conducted later at Second Army headquarters, Fort George G. Meade, Md., he said.

The conference will be sponsored by army recreational service which will offer the service club directors instruction in the latest recreation techniques, club operation and preparation of radio shows, and will provide information on the newest aspects of the world-wide army service club program.

Benning officials announced that representatives from the Third Army for the Feb. 14 conference would be Miss Francis J. Mckeithen, Mrs. Hazel Taylor, Miss Mary E. Brown, Mrs. K. L. Trent, and Miss Mary Manlove.

Malcolm Davis, Doughboy flyweight boxer, probably didn't step into the ring here last week threatening to polish off his opponent in the Third Army ring finals, Robert Basurto of Fort Bragg, with one hand. In a sense, however, that's exactly what happened.

Sages of the fight game who saw the finals of the tournament in the main gym may have thought that Davis was overworking his left and not getting in enough blows with his right. But there was a reason for it: during pre-tourney workouts, Davis suffered a broken rib in a sparring match with Dough lightweight Marshall Clayton, and was forced to use his right largely for protection of the fracture in his bout with Basurto.

Despite his handicap, Davis climbed into the ring, waged a hard-fought three-round battle, and emerged with a split decision over his opponent.

Another interesting feature of the Davis-Basurto scrap is the fact that Davis is almost twice as old as the Bragg boxer. The Doughboy flyweight is 34 years old, while Basurto has seen only 18 summers.

Of course, the difference in ages could be construed as either favorable or unfavorable for either boxer. Where the Doughman had 13 years of experience behind him, Basurto had youth and speed on his side, and, in our opinion, there is no substitute for either when it comes to ring activities.

Davis, who, as Third Army flyweight champ, will represent the army area in the forthcoming army-wide matches at Fort Myer, Va., boasts a string of championships dating back to 1936. Prior to the 1949 tourney, Davis had never fought in any bracket except bantamweight.

His list of championships includes the Panama Canal department title for 1936 and 1937, the Second Infantry division crown for 1938 and 1939, and the Texas state Golden Gloves championship in 1940 and 1941. He also was runner-up in the National Amateur Athletic union tourney in Chicago in 1940, and was a semi-finalist in the same meet in 1941.

Davis' assignment at Benning is with Section I of the 3440th Area Service unit.

The problem of inadequate lighting of Gowdy field is scheduled for early solution.

When diamond participants take the field this season, they will be playing under 72 more 1,500-watt flood lights than were present during the 1948 campaign. Last season's illumination consisted of only 120 of the huge bulbs, but the set-up for 1949 will include 192 lights.

By installing the additional equipment, post athletic officials hope to eliminate many of the shadows that made fly catching—particularly in foul territory—one of the fielding bugaboos of the 1948 season.

Benning Courtmen Enter Two Meets Third Army Title Tilts This Week

Fort Benning's Doughboys left the post Saturday for Fort Bragg, N. C., where they will embark on a two-week tournament schedule by participating in the annual competition for the Third Army basketball diadem.

Following the Third Army opener of their three-game series with the air gobs at Jacksonville, which is expected to continue throughout this week, the Doughs will journey to Atlanta where they will enter the scramble for the Southeastern Amateur Athletic union title.

In neither case will the Doughmen be the defending champs, but their prospects for waging a strong campaign this year are being viewed as somewhat better than they were in 1948.

The 1949 Benning cage edition has one ingredient—height—which was sadly lacking last year.

Entering the Third Army class—the Doughs will sport a nifty record of 10 wins and two defeats for their regular season's activity. At least four of the Benning victories have been classed as mild upsets.

Dwin triumphs over the Jacksonville, Fla., naval air station and the Pumpkin Athletic club Firecrackers have capped the Doughboy performances of the season.

BULLETIN

Fort Jackson's Red Devils scored a 73-39 victory over the Fort Benning Doughboys in the post team's first game in the Third Army basketball tournament at Fort Bragg, N. C., Tuesday night.

Double-barreled wins over the Thomaston, Ga., Millers and the 200th Infantry regiment of the Alabama national guard also have been chalked up by the Doughmen during their 1949 activity.

Couch Bob Phillips' charges also have racked up single victories over the Cowhoy Millers of Manchester, Ga., and Oliver General Hospital of Augusta, Ga. The first of the Doughboys' losses for the season came in the was officially opened at Fort Bragg Monday night, but the Doughs pulled one of two bytes out of the hat at a coaches' meeting Monday afternoon, and remained idle during the first day of competition.

The other easy advance into the second round of the meet went to Camp Gordon, Ga.

Four teams, however, played on Monday night with the host 82nd Airborne division quintet and the Fort Jackson, S. C., Red Devils going into the second round unbeaten.

Fort Bragg's 82nd Airborne lads trimmed Fort McPherson, Ga., to the tune of 54-31, and the Jacksonites walloped the Oliver General Hospital quintet, 84-17.

Dough Pugilists Train At Bragg

Fort Benning's quartet of Third Army boxing champs left the post Saturday morning for Fort Bragg, N. C., where they will start undergoing their prep for the first annual all-army ring tourney.

The four pugilists, who won their 1949 titles in the Third Army meet, each closed here last week, are flyweight Malcolm Davis, lightweight Marshall Clayton, middleweight Lawrence Jones and light heavyweight Dick Donaldson.

At the North Carolina army post, the quartet of Doughboy leather-punchers will join a foursome of Bragg's Third Army champs which completes the area team. The Terrel boxers who capped titles here last week are bantamweight Bernard Donnell, featherweight Jose Galax, welterweight Leland Pellen and middleweight Sidney Pelt.

Workouts at Bragg will continue throughout this week, and the eight-man Third Army team will journey to Fort Myer, Va., for the all-army classic which begins Sunday.

Fort Bragg garnered the right to furnish facilities for the pre-tourney workouts by the Doughs when it notched the Third Army team championship in last week's meet at Benning.

The North Carolinians took team honors by chalking up 30 points as compared with 26 posted by the host Doughboys. Under the point system used, five contenders went to a team for fielding a weight bracket champ, a squad garnered three titles for a runner-up, and a losing semi-finalist netted his team one point.

Although teams were permitted to bring alternates in each weight class to the Third Army tourney, only eight boxers and a coach may be sent by the Third Army area to the all-army meet.

Augusta Medics Bow To Doughs In Bucket Clash

Fort Benning's Doughboy hardwood editors boosted the figure in its win column to nine last Tuesday night by journeying to Augusta, Ga., to hand the Oliver General Hospital quintet a 59-39 licking.

The Doughmen jumped to an early lead in the tilt, and had the medics outclassed both offensively and defensively throughout the game.

Led by their high-scoring duo of forwards, Vern Griffin and Joe Setley, the Doughs ran up a half-time margin of 28-9 over the Augustans.

The only departments in which the hospital fiveosome took the edge over the Benningites were in free-throw percentage and individual scoring passes.

The host crew dunked 11 out of 18 free tosses, while the Doughs

Fish Group Plans King's Pond Meet

Plans are being formulated by the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association for a fishing tournament to be held on King's pond early in March.

Although details pertaining to fishing facilities of the reservation haven't been worked out completely, association officials said that several valuable awards will be made for various phases of angling activity.

King's pond was chosen as the site of the tourney in view of the fact that it offers better fishing facilities at present than any of the other ponds on the reservation.

Both shore and boat angling at the pond has been described as good by post fishing enthusiasts.

All projects of the fish committee aimed at bettering angling conditions on the reservation have been focused on King's pond, and association officials believe that the measures now being carried out, as well as those planned for the future, eventually will make the pond one of the best fishing sites in this section of the country.

The tourney will be open only to members of the association, officials explained in urging post rod enthusiasts who are not members of the association to take steps to join.

The present membership of the association has been estimated at approximately 12,000 by its officials.

There is no limit to the membership, and wild life enthusiasts may obtain their permits at the registration bureau in the post provost marshal's building. The licenses permit the owners to take advantage of both hunting and fishing.

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO
Clinton Hill, one of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Association's more than 100 members, claims the distinction of bagging the last turkey on the wavy. Hill is sure that his turkey will be the last one reported since he took it on the wavy last day of the open period.

Hill, a veteran turkey hunter, had bagged his season's catch in time for his Thanksgiving dinner. But a friend of his had been trying all season for his bird without results.

The unfortunate nindred recently left the post for a detached service stint and it looked like his chances for the season were nil. Hill sympathized with the luckless hunter and raised his spirits by promising to try his luck at tracing one down for him.

When the sun rose on the cold morning last Saturday, it peeked through the shadows at the woods and cranies along Buffalo trail and came to light on the turkey. The bird, surrounded by scattered corn kernels and bits of cob.

The intrepid outdoorsman braved the cold from 7:10 to 8:30 when the form of a hungry turkey lurked by the choice tibbits, appeared.

Hill then closed the season with a bang, brought home the drumstick, presented it to his turkey-hungry chum and returned to his army duties and the happy memories of a day on the trail.

The intra-mural boxing circuit is in full action and tomorrow night after a two weeks absence from the local sports line.

Boxing has proven one of the better spectator sports on the local arena. Drawing capacity crowds of as many as 2,500 fans. On the other hand, participation has been a catch that the loss of the Third Army crown probably was because of the loss of interest.

Very often the names of relatively obscure Benning men are mentioned as being material than the present luminaries. If more of these contenders had turned out Fort Benning probably would hold the army area championship, and the weekly intra-mural cards would undoubtedly be livelier.

When America was still a British colonial possession, Virginia was one of the richest colonies. Blessed with many of nature's advantages, Virginians became wealthy and prosperous and enjoyed a rich community life.

Naturally they had a spirit of sport and a ship and sports played an important part in their daily lives. Virginians became known as the best hunters in the New World, as well as breeders of the greatest horses. Plantation hands wrestled each other in colony-wide tournaments.

In that era a great prize-fighter came out of Virginia to win the heavyweight championship of England. And, the Virginia aristocrat of Tom Moynoux is still mentioned with the best.

Lawsonites Overwhelm Field Artillery Cagemen

The basketball edition of the Lawson field Flyers greatly enhanced its chances of finishing in the top bracket of the post-season loop last Thursday night by walloping the 39th Field Artillery battalions Redlegs, 66-43, in a main post gym tilt.

Shortly after the inaugural tip-off the Flyers rolled up 11 tallies while holding the Redlegs quintet to a lone counter. During the first five minutes of activity the Flyers rolled up 11 tallies while holding the Redlegs quintet to a lone counter.

With five minutes remaining in the first half, the Lawson field reserves took the floor, but the Redlegs were unable to get closer than six points shy of the pace being set by the Flyers.

At the half the Flyers were out ahead, 26-16. As the final half got under way, the Lawsonites began to stretch the gap in the scoreboard, and were enjoying a 17-point advantage by the time the period was half over.

The win for the Flyers was the fourth in six outings, while the Redlegs have dropped all of their half-dozen encounters in the post-season circuit.

Doughboys Explode Firecracker Quintet

Conclude Season With Repeat Win Over Strong Lumpkinites

For the second time this season, the Fort Benning Doughboys exploded the power myth of the Lumpkin Athletic club Firecrackers when they motored to Lumpkin last Thursday night to garner a hard-fought 46-41 decision over the Firecracker quintet.

Their triumph over the Lumpkinites brought to a close a regular season campaign of coach Bob Phillips' Doughmen. In 12 outings, the Benning hoopers compiled a record of 10 victories and two losses.

The Firecrackers also have suffered only two more defeats in their dozen trips to the hardwood courts, but both setbacks have been dealt them by the Doughs. Two weeks ago, the Lumpkin courtmen came to the main post gym and were trounced 57-35 by the Benning crew.

But the Thursday night Dough victory did even more damage to the Firecracker record books. It marked the first time in three seasons that the Lumpkinites had been beaten on their own court.

Early in the game it appeared that the Firecrackers might avenge their earlier loss to the Benningites. They started hitting the hoop consistently at the outset of the contest, and held an 11-10 advantage as the first quarter ended.

The Doughboy offensive started clicking during the second period, however, and the visitors had taken possession of a 21-16 lead at the break.

Rocket Fight Clan Gets New Pugilist

The Rocket boxing squad received a talented addition this week when featherweight Cecil McBride, of the 890th Field Artillery battalion's Service battery reported for duty to Coach Merritt L. Wynn.

A native of Washington, D.C., McBride started throwing punches when he was 12 years old, and was local featherweight amateur champ from 1939 until 1941.

After graduating from Armstrong Technical high school, McBride took a brief respite from ring activity while he was attending Hampton Institute, Va.

Aspirants Start Track Training

Eleven cinder path enthusiasts have signed up as potentialists for the 1949 Doughboy track and field practice, and have been undergoing practice sessions for the past three weeks.

Formal practice will begin March 21, but entries may be made any time prior to the date. Qualified trackmen will be interviewed at the time of the meet and will be issued equipment with which to train on their own until March 21.

Tentative plans call for an intra-mural meet April 27, which will include such field events as a broad jump, high jump and shot put for three teams. The field honors will be won by a cumulative high-team score. The post intra-mural track and field meet, however, has been set for May 11. At this meet, individual trophies will be awarded and post team candidates for the Third Army tournament to be held here May 24-25 will be chosen.

In preparation for the coming season, the track in Doughboy stadium will undergo repairs in the form of new curbing and a fresh cinder bed.

With the opening of the season members of the post athletic office will take over coaching duties and conduct a daily training program. Teams which prefer to coach on their own, however, may appoint one, and train individually.

The intra-mural track meet in May will include the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes and the one-mile relay. The runs to be featured will be the 880-yard, the one-mile and the two mile heats.

Sand Hill Battalion Lauds Sportsmen

Top athletes who have represented the 99th Field Artillery battalion in all phases of sports were honored last Friday afternoon in a colorful retreat parade held in the unit's Sand Hill area.

At the close of the ceremony, Lt. John H. Maddox, master of ceremonies presented Phil Tindell, a member of last year's 99th Field Artillery basketball team, with a sports jacket. Other 99th members of the E.U. 111 squads who have been transferred or separated from the service were honored in absentia. The absent group honorees were halfback Bill Beasley, now stationed in Germany; guard Jeff White, who received his jacket at a recent 26th Infantry regiment banquet; and center Bob Willis and end Freddie Hamer, both of whom have been separated from the service. Jackets for Willis, Hamer and Beasley are to be forwarded soon.

In the battalion's fitness department, light heavyweight Dick Donaldson and lightweight Marshall Clayton, the triple-nick boxing team, were lauded for having won titles in their weight divisions at the 1948 Third Army tournament here last week.

The two title-holders brought along their prizes which included gold trophies and handsome traveling luggage. Merril L. Wynn, Sand Hill 111 boxing coach, was introduced in connection with the program devoted to the unit's ring activities. Coach Dave Reed, of the 99th baseball team which copped the 35th Regimental combat team's annual crown last season, appealed for a huge turnout for this year's diamond season which launches its training period early this spring.

With the majority of last year's team returning to the fold Coach Reed said that he expects this season's title to be as good if not better than the 1948 champs. Lieutenant Jon Greenwood, athletic and recreation officer, urged the men to continue showing the fine spirit as players and fans that they have demonstrated in the past, and gave a brief summary of the part of the annual sports program which the battalion will promote throughout the year.

Edgar Echols and Charley Station Medics Attached To Field Artillery Unit. The 344th Area Service unit's Section II medics have been attached to the 99th Field Artillery battalion for rations and a quarters, it was announced last week.

Post Quintet Beats Miller Court Crew

Putting on a second-half exhibition of fancy bucket-shooting, Coach Bob Phillips' Doughboy hardwood quintet romped to a 36-42 win over the Calloway-Millers of Manchester, Ga., in the main post gym last Wednesday night.

During the event, Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, battalion commander, intermittedly greeted the athletes and commended the unit for its exemplary spirit shown as soldiers, athletes and sports supporters. He emphasized the fact that the three factors were pertinent in making a unit outstanding. The ceremony by saying that the battalion's record in those fields speaks for itself.

Horseshoe Circuit To Start March 15

An intra-mural horseshoe pitching league will get under way March 15, and will serve as an elimination basis for selection of the post team which will enter the Doughboy tournament at Fort McPherson, Ga., Mar. 31.

With athletic officials having suggested, however, that competition be initiated within units as traveling leagues on platoon level, and be built up to battalion level teams.

Although the post will be represented by a team, the army tournament will include singles and doubles matches.

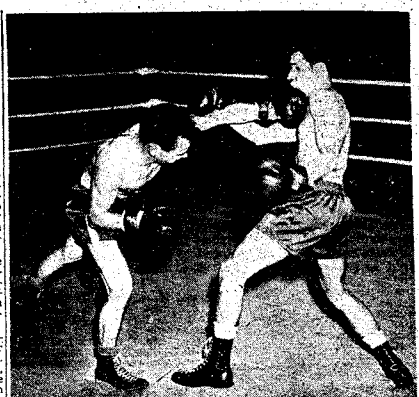

Returning Vets Bolster Unit's Diamond Outlook

By BOB PHILLIPS
A top-ranking array of diamond veterans of 1948 is expected to add a bright tint to the 1949 baseball prospects of the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment.

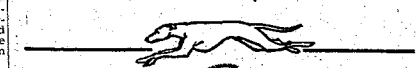

With the exception of utility infielder Bill (Pee Wee) Humphrey, first baseman Andy Hardy and second baseman Major Carmichael, all of last year's members of the Bullet nine, which captured the 32nd Infantry regiment's baseball championship for 1948, probably will be on hand for the 1949 curtain raising.

The prized crop of brilliant returnees includes Hiron Collier, Nick Nichols, Gordon Burke, Willie Wise, Lew Davis, Amos Light, Walter Scott, Horace Smith, Murray D. Whiting, Amos (Cuz) Snowden, Willie Weaver, Gene Thomas, Leon Coleman and Zack Lemelle.

Alternating between first base and catcher, Collier is being viewed as one of the big catchers for 1949 after posting a .400 average at the plate last season. Nichols, who lends his talents both to the catching and outfield departments, will be entering his third season at Benning. He also clouted at a .400 pace in 1948. Burke, who finished last season atop the Bullet batting heap with a hefty average of .415, is expected to be a mainstay.

James Woodruff, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. McClelland discussed the entire matter with FEA officials in Atlanta, requesting that a survey of local conditions be made to determine the amount of new construction required. At that time R. E. Mathewson, state FEA director, assured the Chamber members that necessary financial assistance would be forthcoming.

Mr. McClelland said last week that to date the amount of new construction required for this project. Since then, the branch, now located in the U. S. Army-airforce recruiting office, has accumulated 692 rentals.

The federal organization, Mr. McClelland said, also sets the construction rent for housing units built with its backing. As far as the privately financed construction now in progress and being planned, he assured Benning troops that the local businessmen themselves will make every effort to keep rentals in line.

In checking actual progress on construction and repair in Columbus during November and December, 1948, and January, 1949, it was revealed that a total of 185 permits had been issued in the three-month period. This represented a monetary outlay of $62,093, according to Mr. McClelland's report. It did not take into consideration the large-scale programs already discussed.

Last August the Chamber coordinated with the housing office of the Infantry Center to open a branch office in Columbus, turning over part of its space in the Ralston hotel for this project. Since then, the branch, now located in the U. S. Army-airforce recruiting office, has accumulated 692 rentals.

Last August the Chamber coordinated with the housing office of the Infantry Center to open a branch office in Columbus, turning over part of its space in the Ralston hotel for this project. Since then, the branch, now located in the U. S. Army-airforce recruiting office, has accumulated 692 rentals.

Mr. McClelland said last week that to date the amount of new construction required for this project. Since then, the branch, now located in the U. S. Army-airforce recruiting office, has accumulated 692 rentals.

The federal organization, Mr. McClelland said, also sets the construction rent for housing units built with its backing. As far as the privately financed construction now in progress and being planned, he assured Benning troops that the local businessmen themselves will make every effort to keep rentals in line.

In checking actual progress on construction and repair in Columbus during November and December, 1948, and January, 1949, it was revealed that a total of 185 permits had been issued in the three-month period. This represented a monetary outlay of $62,093, according to Mr. McClelland's report. It did not take into consideration the large-scale programs already discussed.

Florida Sailors Placed on Post Baseball Docket

Four more games, two on Goway field and two away, have been added to the Fort Benning Doughboys' exhibition slate, for this spring.

All four of the tilts, the components of a home-and-home series, will be contested with the sailors of the Green Cove Springs Fla., naval station.

The Florida sailors will invade Benning for the first two games of the series on April 11-12, and the Doughboys will journey to Green Cove Springs for the final pair on April 28-29.

With the addition of the Green Cove Springs series, the number of definitely-set exhibition contests for the Doughmen has jumped to six. Tills with the Columbus Cardinals of the Sally League and the Troy State Teachers of Alabama already had been arranged.

At present, the first game on tap for the Doughs will be on March 29, when they travel to Troy to play the Alabamaans under the lights of their field.

On April 8, the Doughboys will meet their perennial pre-season foe from Columbus on Goway field at 7 p. m.

Efforts still are being advanced to provide Benning diamond fans with a full schedule of dough exhibition frays during the last week of March and the entire month of April. Several letters have been sent out to the post athletic office suggesting arrangements with various pro-semi-pro and school nines of the area, but replies on many of them have not been received.

Intra-mural activity on Goway field this year has been slated to begin early in May, and will continue until early fall. At the conclusion of the intra-month campaign, the Doughboys will be re-formed, and will participate in the in-season tournaments.

Infantry Career Field To Open Next Month

The infantry career field will open next month, it was revealed this week by Col. Arthur C. Purvis, adjutant general of the Infantry Center.

Colonel Purvis said the opening of the career field was announced at a meeting of Third Army area adjutants general at Third Army headquarters last week.

If the same policy as governed the food service career field is followed, Colonel Purvis continues, examinations in the infantry field will probably be taken early this summer. A present food service is the only career field.

With the admission of infantrymen into their career field promotions may be made in many cases regardless of existing vacancies, provided the applicants for promotion meet the necessary minimum requirements. The Central Examining and Computing agency at Fort Benning has been designated to be promoting authority at the Infantry Center for the purpose of cutting special orders on men to be promoted.

According to Sgt. Ist. cl. Edward J. Desrocher of the Examining and Computing agency, from whom details concerning the implementation of the career program were received, although a man's immediate commanding officer may disapprove an application for promotion, the application must still be forwarded to higher headquarters with the reasons for the disapproval listed.

In addition to the application for advancement and the efficiency report a physical profile report is also required. The profile will also be submitted, he continued. The infantry career field is because men in combat especially must meet certain minimum physical requirements.

The career guidance plan was developed for three reasons:

1. To make promotions by merit and competition.
2. To allow the soldier a career (See list on Page 14)

Red Cross Drive To Begin March 1

The annual Red Cross campaign at the Infantry Center will begin officially next Tuesday, March 1, and extend throughout the month, it has been announced by Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, executive chairman for the campaign.

The "kickoff" day for the campaign will be next Monday, however, when the first membership solicitations will be made.

Goal of this year's campaign is at least 20,000 memberships, the military and civilian population of Fort Benning. Cost of a year's membership in the Red Cross is one dollar.

Honorary chairman for the drive, only money raising program on the post except for the annual Community Chest drive, is Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander. Other honorary leaders, who are also taking an active part in the membership program, are Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry Division; Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, assistant commander of the Infantry School; Mrs. Withers A. Burress, representing the Fort Benning Red Cross Ladies auxiliary; and Col. Gilbert C. Collier, commanding officer of Lawson Air Force Base.

Working with Colonel Brill as Red Cross coordinator is Murray Hill, Benning field director. Executive vice chairmen include Lt. Col. Emil P. Eschenberg, publicity; Lt. Col. Roland E. Murray, special events; Mrs. Frank M. Lee, Red Cross Ladies Auxiliary; M-Sgt. Joe Plyland and Cpl. Bob Kinard, enlisted men, and William W. Daugherty, civilian employes.

Need for desired 20,000 memberships was expressed by Mr. Hill at one of the opening and meetings of the planning phase of the campaign. At that time he declared that last year's campaign netted only $9,771, although there were approximately 15,000 men stationed on the post then.

More than $8,000 was spent in communicating alone last year, he continued. This included 3,971 telegrams, 583 long distance phone calls, and 9,740 letters mailed from Fort Benning. In addition to the cost of communications, the director's office also loaned $12,030 to enlisted men, only about half of which was repaid.

The Benning office also handled 2,884 emergency furloughs, 2,203 health and welfare reports (aiding men who were disturbed at not hearing from relatives), and 1,689 delayed allotments, of which 75 per cent were cleared up. The 5 cent miscellaneous cases which made up the rest of the total included everything from dependency discharges and meeting foreign brides at ports to giving personal advice.

The Red Cross also aided patients at the Stetson hospital last year to the extent of providing all regular facilities of social service and recreation. In addition the organization passed out more than 6,000 packages of necessities, distributed reading material, and organized recreation activities including movies, parties, outings, and games.

100 Percent Contribution

At least one Fort Benning "unit" has already claim 100 percent membership in the 1949 Red Cross campaign. According to Maj. Donald M. Cameron directing the drive in the Infantry School, the seven Janitors working in the school's Automotive section have paid their Red Cross membership fees.

Two ISD Enlisted Men Selected for Army OCS

Two enlisted men of Company A, Infantry School detachment, have been selected for Army Officer Candidate School at Fort Riley, Kans., officials announced last week.

Harvey D. Willis and Sgt. David A. Eller, both of whom are assigned to the Infantry Center Military Personnel department, left Feb. 17 for a delay-enroute furlough prior to reporting March 8 for enrollment in class No. 13, Army OCS.

Sport fans may remember Sergeant Willis as the regular right end of the Jordan high school football teams of 1939-40.

A graduate of Jordan and Livestock Tech of Tallahassee, Fla., Sergeant Willis also played football in 1948 with the Fort Benning Doughboys.

Sergeant Willis enlisted in the army in June, 1948, and attended the Adjutant General School during the war to spend 18 months in the Merchant Marine.

Some Good Advice

We were among those persons last week who attended the Georgia Press Institute at the University of Georgia in Athens, an annual symposium at which the best known newspapermen in the state, as well as distinguished out-of-state newspapermen, gather to exchange ideas with a view toward improving the Fourth Estate. It was an enlightening experience, and we feel that we learned a great deal. Our only regret is that everyone at Fort Benning who is connected with public information work could not be present at the Friday afternoon session, sponsored by the Gardner Advertising agency, which was attended by representatives of the army, navy, airforce, marines, national guard and organized reserves.

One of the most informative discussions was led by Mr. Ralph Jones, chief photographer of The Macon, Ga., Telegraph and News, who displayed the type of picture unsuitable for release to newspapers from a composition standpoint. He then showed the audience the same picture taken in such a way as to make it suitable. We were particularly impressed by his address and demonstration because he said the same thing we have so often tried to hammer home at meetings with Fort Benning unit public information officers and noncommissioned officers and others concerned with local publicity. It can all be boiled down to two primary points: don't get too many people in one photograph and be sure that those people in the photograph are doing something. There is nothing any duller than a group of seven, eight or more people sitting or standing and doing nothing.

Another speaker whose remarks had a bearing on the work of unit public information officers was Mr. William Fielder, state news editor of the Savannah, Ga., Morning News. He discussed briefly the tendency of some public information sections to send out several pages of copy about the promotion of Private Joe Doakes to private first class, including a complete biography of Private Doakes. He pointed out that the civilian newspaper is not interested in so much detail. Of course, any hometown newspaper is vitally interested in reporting the promotion of one of its sons, but not to the extent that an account of his life from the time he was born until the present would be allowed to crowd other news off the pages of any given issue of the newspaper.

Mr. John Henry, chief of the International News Service's Atlanta bureau, made several interesting observations about news releases to the wire services from public information sections, one of which definitely bears repeating. According to Mr. Henry, the wire sections are interested in receiving news releases from the armed forces, but not the dry, routine release such as is sent to hometown newspapers. The wire services believe they can be of real help in publishing the news of the army provided the releases sent them are "featurized." As an example, we cite the case of the reenlistment of Joe Doakes, the man who scaled the heights of Surabachi. Just to report that Joe Doakes had reenlisted in the army is not worth the attention of the wire services, but to report that this is the Joe Doakes who helped to raise the flag on Iwo Jima gives the story a new twist. It's possible then that the story could be used nation-wide.

Brotherhood Week

The nation is in the midst of Brotherhood Week, a period set aside each year for conferences and meetings between people of different religious beliefs. These meetings and conferences are designed to provide a better understanding among the Protestants, Catholics and Jew, and we believe that they serve a needed purpose. There are too many people today who, although they would stoutly deny it, are far too prejudiced against those of opposing religions. It behoves us all to take stock of those prejudices, and remember that, regardless of what faith we believe in, there is one belief we all have in common: God.

Strictly Editorializing

The idea of granting pensions to all veterans when they reach age 65, as proposed recently, would appear, outwardly, at any rate, a magnanimous gesture; but when analyzed in a more sober light, it becomes extremely illogical. We doubt seriously any veteran, and that includes men now in service, would approve such a measure, mainly because it can result in only one of two things: national bankruptcy or higher taxes. In either case, no one would benefit.

It seems to us that the introduction of such a measure, although perhaps thought to be in keeping with governmental policy of "taking care of the veteran," which would have been more inappropriate. This is especially true when one stops to consider how much money is needed to maintain our armed forces at present strength, to say nothing of our domestic and foreign commitments, all of which are of equal importance.

Men who expect the government to support them can't be termed good Americans. It took the efforts of all to make this nation great. If everyone who had ever fought to protect what we believe in had imposed the burden of support in his old age upon the government, where would we be today? Certainly, we would not be a great power. It's more likely we would be a nation of ne'er-do-wells, conquered by first one nation then another until our heritage would have become completely lost.

No true American would expect the government to feed him, clothe him, and care for him in his old age simply because he wore the army's uniform for a few years.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

Many church groups in America will celebrate Brotherhood Week February 20-27. That means that they remember those things that help them to understand each other better. The Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews have three groups that take part in this emphasis. Each of these religious faiths has made great contributions to the moral and spiritual health of our country. These separate groups can have brotherhood without uniformity in organization or exact details in beliefs.

I think there is more of fellowship and less of bitterness between the members of these churches today than at any other time in our history. Red Cross chartered planes flew to the front lines in Nebraska to rescue wounded, critically ill, or injured, carried to safety and medicine to isolated thousands.

In South Dakota, your Red Cross chartered planes and evacuated 104 persons and in Wyoming alone, Red Cross chartered planes drew 355 missions, evacuating many people. Red Cross emergency centers were set up in Nebraska for west-bound trains blocked by snow. Fourteen tons of Red Cross food were dropped to the Navajo Indians in snow bound Arizona. Penicillin, liquid blood and blood plasma were also sent to the Indian reservation in Utah by plane.

To you who are members of the Red Cross, you should be proud of your Red Cross "Operation Snowbound" which was the name of this great feat. In the 30-day period covering blizzards, floods, tornadoes, etc., "Operation Snowbound" was allotted $70,000. It is estimated that food, fuel and medical supplies in that 30 day period were given to over 10,000 persons.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY HILL

Western blizzards have been terrible. The papers have been full of the West's suffering and tragedies. None could read these harrowing reports of the distress in the Western States without wishing to be of some help to these poor people. To you who have read this and are a member of the Red Cross, you did help. You helped. I heard recently that you just received a special report from Washington which gives the following:

On February 8 the Red Cross began rushing 3,000 units of red cross, 300 coats, 1,000 blankets which were to go to 2,000 passengers, some very ill, on 77 stalled trains in Wyoming. Six National Red Cross disaster specialists were rushed into the area. In your area 138 Red Cross chartered planes flew to the front lines in Nebraska to rescue wounded, critically ill, or injured, carried to safety and medicine to isolated thousands.

THE BURNISHED BLADE

This novel is a fast moving historical romance of intrigue and high adventure at the dawn of the Renaissance period in France. The author's descriptive passages are vividly alive and interesting, and the reader moves through them with no thought of dragging or boring. Even the gruesome accounts of atrocities and other shuddering scenes are portrayed in such a manner as to compel the reader to continue. Horror scenes are quickly replaced with glowing accounts of love and adventure, delicately treated in attention-holding style. The author takes you into the shop of Hugh of Milan, the finest armor of the era, sought after by noble and commoner, and describes in detail the making of a suit of armor so that even the layman can understand it.

The story is centered around Pierre, a burly orphaned on the road to a town who becomes the armor, and under his tutelage learns the closely guarded secrets of his art. His adventures start young when he is involved in a violent brawl and charged with murder, which necessitates his leaving Rouen and carry him to Trebizond, where he exchanges the glamor of feudal France for the remote, forbidding Trapezuntian empire on the border of the Black sea in Asia Minor. The author paints a magnificent picture of the barbaric splendor of sophisticated life in the Orient.

Lawrence Schooner, the author, spent three years of research and five months in the writing of this novel, which was published in 1948 by The MacMillan Company, New York, and reprinted in paperback, 1948. Schooner was an advertising man before he gave up his job to become a writer. He began his career, and is living in New Canaan, Conn. He has a wife and four daughters, aged 2, 4, 6 and 8.

Lending librarians from book departments recommend "The Burnished Blade," and report that it has received very favorable comments from satisfied readers.

A doctor who let himself be put down on open ice to split a broken leg. That disaster brings an opportunity for heroics, but disaster preparedness regardless of the nature of the disaster is necessary for the saving of lives and property.

Sandy telegraphed a proposal of marriage to the lady of his choice. After waiting all day at the telegraph office, he received an affirmative answer, late at night.
Well, if I were you," said the operator who delivered the message, "I'd think twice before I'd marry a girl who kept me waiting so long for an answer."
"No, no," replied Sandy. "The loss for me is the one who waits for the night rates."

Find EM Guilty In Assault Case

Pfc. George Youngblood of Company A, Infantry School detachment, stood trial before a general court martial board at the Infantry Center on Jan. 6 and was found guilty of assault with intent to do bodily harm.

He was sentenced to dishonorable discharge from the service, to forfeit all pay and allowances and to serve five years at hard labor in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

The sentence was adjudged on Jan. 7 and approved by commanding general, Fort Benning, Infantry Center commanding general.

The plaintiff, a young veterinarian on the post, stated on the night of Nov. 28 a general court martial board was convened at approximately 10:30 p. m. he attacked her by choking her with a rope or cord. There, at approximately 11:30 p. m., he attacked her by choking her with a rope or cord. There, at approximately 11:30 p. m., he attacked her by choking her with a rope or cord.

Criminal investigation division agents, on duty at the main theater on the night of the attack, had observed Youngblood whose actions aroused their suspicion.

When the woman left the theater, they observed her walking behind her in the same direction she was taking. They followed, passed the two people on Lumpkin road and parked their automobile. Then they got out, walked back to investigate, and came upon the young woman lying on the sidewalk unconscious. As they approached her, they heard a man's footsteps running away from the scene. They followed and they found footprints in the mud, and a piece of paper with "W" and an address scribbled on it.

Several factors, including plaster moldings of the footprints combined the evidence against Youngblood was sufficient for a conviction.

Plan to Keep EM Strength At Set Quota

The army has announced two additional steps designed to keep the enlisted strength of the service within the limits anticipated for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The overall army strength of 677,000 contemplated for that date includes approximately 605,000 enlisted men.

These restrictions have been placed on the enlistment of men without prior service: 1. Priorities for acceptance will be based on combined intelligence and physical standards. 2. The number of recruits needed to maintain the army at its authorized strength will be determined periodically, and recruit vacancies will be allocated to each of the six continental armies.

The army already has announced the cessation of enlistments for two-year periods. Men seeking enlistments are being taken for three, four, five and six-year terms. The new rulings do not affect men with prior military service. The army considers a man with less than 90 days' time in civilian life since his last enlistment to be a reenlistment, while those with more than 90 days out of uniform are considered to be prior service enlistees from civilian life. Army personnel officials believe limitation of enlistment on the basis of mental and physical qualifications will result in eventual economies. The new enlistment policies do not affect the voluntary enlistment for one-year non-24-month periods authorized in the Selective Service Act of 1948. Army Battery C.

3 New Men Assigned To Artillery Battalion

Three enlisted men, recently assigned to the 999th Field Artillery battalion, have been assigned specific duties with their organizations. Cpls. Jefferson D. Myles and Denous Clark, mechanics, formerly with the 761st Tank battalion, Fort Knox, Ky., are with Service battery and Battery A. Sgt. Robert L. Robinson has been assigned to the 328th Ordnance battalion.

SLANTS SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Clell
Bayonet Sports Editor

During summers past, tennis among enlisted personnel of Fort Benning has drifted into the ranks of an intermediate, if not a minor, participant sport.

But there has been a definite reason for the lack of interest in racket wielding here. The courts which have been set aside for enlisted personnel are wholly inadequate, and entirely too few in number for the size of the post.

However, with the construction of six en-tout-cas courts here, tennis should soar to its rightful place among the major participant sports this summer.

And the project has advanced beyond the blueprint stage. Already ground has been broken in the second quarter for two of the courts, and a grading process has been started in the area behind the Main Post Noncommissioned officers club for another pair. The two remaining courts still are in the planning stage, and will be built adjacent to Sand Hill's service club.

Athletic officials of the Infantry Center have estimated that work on the courts will be completed in about 60 days.

If the completion of the courts is effected within the time estimate of the A & R officials, it still will give enlisted aspirants for this year's Doughboy tennis squad more than two months in which to get their games down pat.

With the post as host, the Third Army racket tournament will be held during the later part of June on the Officers' club courts.

Although the Officers' club courts have been selected as the site for the tourney here, enlisted aspirants for the Doughboy squad will have a chance to get in their preliminary ticks on the same type of high-caliber courts which will be used during the Third Army meet.

In the past, entitled candidates for the post team have been hampered by having to use clay and concrete courts for their practice matches, which places them at two definite disadvantages.

First, the sudden switch from clay and concrete to en-tout-cas courts usually will subtract something from a player's ability. And slow-drying clay courts in the relatively damp climate of Georgia often force a player to remain idle for several days at a time when he needs practice the most.

Third Army Gets Sand Hill Track Tournament Wins

Fort Benning's four Third Army ring champs opened their bids for army-wide titles in Fort Myer, Va., this week, but only two of the quartet saw action in the first night of activity.

Both lightweight and middleweight Lawrence Jones hammered out victories over their Monday night opponents, while their Doughboy teammates, flyweight Malcolm Davis and light heavyweight Dick Donaldson remained idle.

In his lightweight preliminary bout, Clayton wasted little time dropping Kid Junior Bolden of Baltimore, Md., for a technical knockout in the second round of the first round of their scheduled three-stanza affair. The Third Army representative from New Orleans, La., while Bolden was the Far Eastern command's lightweight delegate, Jones' first-night triumph also came over a representative of the Far Eastern command, the Third Army middleweight, who tipped the scales at 150 pounds before entering the ring. He decided his 160-pound foe, George Harrison of Washington, D. C.

In addition to the Doughboy boxers, two other members of the Third Army ring aggregation went through the first round of activity unscathed. They are welterweight Leland Pilen and heavyweight Sidney Peele, both of the 82nd Airborne division of Fort Bragg, N. C. Pilen, a 147-pounder, went three rounds to gain a decision over David Slove, also 147 pounds, of Los Angeles, Calif., who represented the Sixth Army, and is a native of Flint, Mich. In his heavyweight go with 160-pound Willie Cates of Oakland, Calif. Peele, a 185-pounder from Fayetteville, N. C., took the knockout route to victory, defeating his foe for the most after one minute and six seconds of the second round had elapsed.

Two Fort Bragg members of the Third Army team also were idle during the first round of activity. They are bantamweight Bernard Donnell and featherweight Jose Galaz.

Other results for Monday night are as follows: Nicholas Lopez of Honolulu, T. H., defeated George Davis of Long Branch, N. J., representing the Pacific command, in a flyweight (115-pound) three-rounder. Donald Pakota, of White Earth, Minn., representing the Sixth Army, defeated Lloyd Livingston of Hayward, Minn., representing the First Army in a featherweight (126-pound) three-round bout.

Lino Gatica of Austin, Texas, scored a knockout in his bout with William N. Smith of Huntington, L. I., N. Y., in two minutes and 45 seconds of the second round. In the bantamweight scrap, Gatica represented the Fourth Army.

Sand Hill Track Hopeful Trains

Mercury-heeled Gene Edwards of the 15th Infantry regiment's Third battalion got down to some serious training last week with his hopes set on landing a berth on the 1949 Doughboy track team.

And according to the record books, the 20-year-old New Orleans, La., speed merchant shouldn't meet with too much difficulty in attaining the pinnacle of his aspirations.

The lean youngster, who was a nick-named the "wonder boy of the cinder lanes" while attending Paul L. Dunbar high school and Gilbert academy in New Orleans, has as his specialties the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes.

Competing in the Savier relays against high school foes in 1947, Edwards stepped off the century in 9.8 seconds to finish at the head of the pack.

Another of the city's high school cinder path records was shattered during the same year when Edwards was clocked at 23.2 seconds for the 220-yard distance in the Lolin relays. Edwards also has turned in commendable performances in baseball and basketball.

One-Armed Golfer To Appear Locally

Jimmy Nichols, a one-armed shotmaker representing the A. G. Spalding and Brothers athletic goods corporation, will play an exhibition match at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club on March 6, the greens committee has announced.

Once on the green, however, Nichols changes his style: he actually puts like a left-hander. While his drives and approach shots will have to be either right or left, his putts are lined up opposite his right foot.

Nichols says that he puts like a left-hander, because, in his estimation, greens strokes are forehead shots.

Since 1936, Nichols has represented the Spalding concern both as a playing pro and salesman. He spent the war years making rounds of veterans hospitals and conducting demonstrations for services men who had lost limbs in the conflict.

Probably the most remarkable accomplishment of Nichols' career came at Douglas, Ga., in 1933 when he played a four-par hole without making a single forehand shot. He just cut loose from the tee with a 336-yard hole-in-one.

Nichols' winter tour also will take in clubs in Virginia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Flyers Nip ISD In Circuit Finale

In a tilt which closed the shutters on Fort Benning's intramural court activity for the 1948-49 season, a well-improved quintet of Lawson Field Flyers trounced the Infantry School detachment, 66-55, in a main post gym affair last Tuesday night.

The Flyers' triumph over the highly-regarded ISD five wrote a fitting epilogue to their uphill fight from the bottom rung of the ladder for the regular post-championship season to a deadlock for the No. 2 spot in the late campus basketball.

Only by brushing aside the infantrymen were the Flyers able to gain a tie with the 304th Transportation Battalion Truckers for the runner-up spot in the post-season playoffs.

The victory also was a tasty morsel of revenge for the Flyers who were victimized by the ISD lads in their climb to the runner-up spot during the earlier phase of intramural competition.

For their post-season play the Flyers are contending for a licking handed them by the unbeaten five-man of the Airborne battalion. They were, however, tagged with a forfeit which went to the South Hill Rockets.

In their tilt with the ISD quintet, the Flyers grabbed the offensive shortly after the opening tip-off, and held the lead throughout the game.

After 10 minutes of playing time had elapsed in the first half, the Flyers in the final point advantage over the infantrymen, and continued to stretch the gap until the half. In the two teams took the intermission break, the Lawsonites were on the preferred end of a 30-22 scoreboard reading.

But during the initial stages of the final period, the ISD scoring duo of Charles Richards and Bill Sanders began to click, and the infantrymen had whittled the Flyers' margin to seven points shortly after the five minutes of play. With about eight minutes remaining in the game, however, the Flyers again

Dates Established For Fish Tournament At King's Pond

March 12 and 13 have been set by the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association as the dates for the spring fishing tournament at King's Pond. It was announced this week.

During the two-day tournament, King's pond facilities will be closed to all persons who are not eligible to participate in the activities. Possession of membership buttons for the fish and game association will establish an angler's eligibility to take part in the tournament.

Fishermen wishing to participate in the tournament will be required to register at the docks at daylight or later each day, and will be assigned registration numbers. Red cards, bearing the registration numbers, will be issued, and are to be worn on an outside garment during the two-day period.

Prizes to include various items of fishing equipment will be awarded for the biggest fish of each class caught each day, and for the best string of six fish in each class hooked each day.

Major Gen. Withers A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander, is slated to make the presentation.

During the tourney, fish and game association boats will be issued on a "first-come, first-served" basis without charge. Because of the shortage of the boats, however, no single fisherman will be permitted to occupy an entire boat. Each vessel must have two or more persons on board.

The agenda for the tournament also will include demonstrations in various phases of fishing on both days.

Arrangements have been worked out through the Columbus Sports shop for exhibitions in precision trick casting by Emmitt Cota, an Atlanta representative of a national fishing organization, and a complete line of fishing equipment and other items used in field and stream sports, and will be available for individual instructions. He will be assisted in the program by a feminine angling expert.

One of the South's leading fly fishermen, Leo Dennis of Phenix City, also will occupy a prominent spot on the agenda. He is scheduled to demonstrate the walking line and to show his proficiency in fly-fishing by angling from a boat in several areas of the pond.

King's pond was chosen as the site for this year's angling festivities because fish committee officials believe it offers better facilities than the other ponds of the reservation.

Present projects aimed at improving fishing conditions in the military area are focused on King's pond in an effort to make it a better fishing spot. A fresh water mecca in this section of the country, association officials have explained.

Win Over Redlegs Nets 204th Second Spot Tie

Overcoming an early game deficit, the 204th Transportation Battalion Truckers trimmed the 30th Field Artillery battalion Redlegs to the tune of 50-23 in a post-season intra-mural cage clash in the main gym last Tuesday night.

The game, the finale of the season for both squads, assured the Truckers of at least a tie for the No. 2 spot in the league standings.

Early in the first half, the Truckers' efforts to swish the net were unavailing, and despite the fact that their bucket shooting wasn't spectacularly sharp, Redlegs took a lead during the first five minutes of play.

In the initial phase of the second half, sharp shooting ace Harry Moore of the Truckers teamed with Bob Chandler and Jim Willis to roll up a 35-22 margin for the transportation outfit late at the end of the minutes of play. Ten minutes before the final buzzer the 204th section had widened the gap to

Vet Diamond Crop For Triple-Niners

By AL WISE

Bolstered by an impressive array of last year's vets, the coming edition of the 99th Field Artillery battalion baseball squad will swing into the initial phase of training this afternoon on Sand Hill's Rocker field.

The usually pessimistic Dave Lagin have the services of long-ball hitting first-sacker Erskine Ware, utility infielder John Grifball clubs—1948 and 1948—turned slightly optimistic after planning down the roster of his 1949 team, and predicted a better-than-average finish for his chatters.

On factor which Red is beaming is the loss of his star receiver of 1948, Gus Hale. Hale recently reentered for Section II Hall, Jesse Robinson and Eildred of the 3440th Area Service unit, and will oppose his former mate of the 99th on the diamond this year.

A valuable addition to the 99th forces has been vision in the annexation of the 3440th Area Service unit, which have been made eligible for the squad through their duty assignment as operators of the Sand Hill dispensary.

Diamond enthusiasts of the medical outfit have expressed their desire to join the Sand Hillers this year, and Coach Reed is looking forward to utilizing the valuable coaching experience of the Medics' Bill Johnson, a widely-known figure in post-baseball circles.

Vets of the 1948 squad who are returning for duty with the 99th include pitchers Al (Fireball) Ellis and John (Ants) Smith, righthanders, and southpaw Leroy Lokett.

In the infield, Coach Reed will

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, General Gillem wrote:

"I would like to extend my congratulations to you and your staff for the efficient manner in which the Third Army championship boxing tournament was conducted at your station. It was an outstanding job of organization and planning, and reflects great credit upon your command.

All visiting competitors were extremely complimentary concerning the conduct of the tournament, and your consideration extended them while guests at Fort Benning.

The large turnout of enlisted men and officers for this event was extremely gratifying, and indicates that the special services program at your installation is accomplishing the objective of providing interesting leisure time activities for all personnel."

Cage Meet Defeats Tagged On Benning

Hopes of the Fort Benning Doughboys for a cage title for 1949 faded into oblivion Tuesday night when they were ousted from the field of contenders in the Southeastern Amateur Athletic union basketball meet in Atlanta's Sports Arena.

The Doughs' elimination from the tourney came when they dropped a 45-40 decision to the rummy quintet from Clarkdale, Ga., in the second round of competition.

In their first-round match in the Sports Arena, Coach Bob Phillips' Doughs squeaked past the Georgia Sporting Goods Co. 52-50.

Their activity in the SEAAU meet probably will wind up the 1949 court campaign of the Benningers.

The disappointment in the Atlanta tourney came close on the heels of the annual Third Army championship at Fort Bragg, N. C., which saw the Doughboys slip in a 73-39 loss on the Benning quintet.

The discomfiture in the Atlanta tourney came close on the heels of the annual Third Army championship at Fort Bragg, N. C., which saw the Doughboys slip in a 73-39 loss on the Benning quintet.

Kohner, Moore Post Basketball Scoring Honors

Ed Kohner, bucket-shooting wizard who played only two games with the 15th Infantry regiment in the recent post-season intra-mural cage campaign, finished atop the individual scoring heap with a game average of 18.5 points.

Kohner broke into the infantry lineup shortly before the close of the season when the 15th quintet was truncated by the post-champion Airborne Battalion Troopers, and led his team in scoring with 13 points in the next outing for the infantrymen. He was the offensive spark in his team's upset of the Infantry School detachment, and dropped in a total of 24 counters.

Sixteen field goals and 11.6 buckets from the charity line made up Kohner's total of 37 points for the campaign.

But the highest figure in the total-points column was chalked up by Harry Moore of the 204th Transportation battalion in the Truckers, who played in all seven of his team's titles. He completed a season's total of 11, an average of 18 points per game.

Moore's efforts also netted him the highest number of field goals for the campaign—53.

In the free throw department, the top figure was 17, made by Herb Bench of the Airborne battalion. Bench, who played in all seven of the Trooper clashes during the intra-mural activity, finished No. 12 on the scoring roster with a game average of nine counters.

The highest number of tallies for a single game was chalked up by Herb Myatt, another member of the parachutist fivesome, who dropped in a total of 28 points in the Troopers' late-season tussle with the 15th Infantry regiment.

Benning Opens Signing Period For Trackmen

Registration with the Infantry Center athletic and recreation office of prospective members of the Fort Benning track team was officially started Monday.

Qualified trackmen will be issued equipment with which to train on their own until March 21 when formal practice will begin.

Interested track enthusiasts who consider themselves potentials for the 1949 Doughboy track and field outfit should sign up for the coming weeks and a possible berth on the Doughboy squad by the first of the month at the office for an interview.

Army Adopts New Portable Teletypewriter Equipment

Portable teletypewriter equipment so light that a parachutist can carry it on a jump from an airplane has been developed and adopted by the army, promising a major advancement in military communications. The Signal Corps has announced.

Weighing but 45 pounds, compared with current field equipment that weighs 225 pounds, the new portable teletypewriter is but one-fourth the size of the old, has 300 fewer parts, is considerably stronger, and consequently requires far less maintenance. The new equipment is capable of transmitting and receiving messages 60 per cent faster than existing types, and will operate on both wire and radio circuits. It is waterproof, and should be used in amphibious operations, could be floated onto a beach.

The development is the fruition of a 20-year-old project that both to permit flotation in amphibious activities and to provide complete protection from weather. One man can carry the teletypewriter itself, while two men can carry all three units used much closer to the front lines than has been the case. During World War II, teletypewriter messages could go only as far forward as a division headquarters. How much farther forward the new equipment can be used, will be determined in forthcoming field tests.

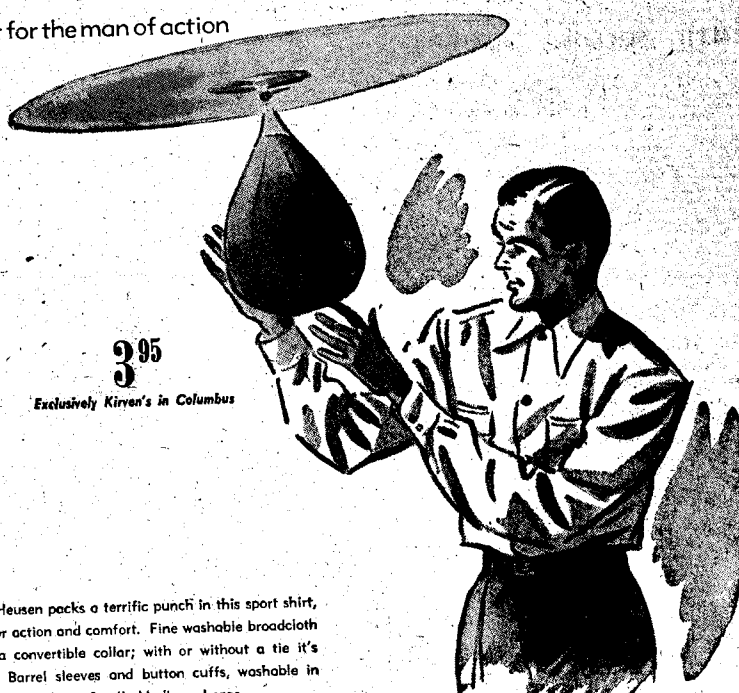

The portable teletypewriter was developed by the Signal Corps' engineering laboratories of Fort Monmouth, N. J., through a research and development contract with Kleinheinz Laboratories, Incorporated, of Highland Park, Ill.

These three components to a complete field unit, the teletypewriter, its electric weighing 45 pounds. All units are waterproof, a power unit, and a case of accessories. The three together weigh 110 pounds.

Infantry Unit Initiates "Streamlining" Plans For Athletics And Recreation

BY BOB PHILLIPS

A "streamlining" project has been initiated for the athletic and recreation program of the 15th Infantry Regiment's Third Battalion which unit A & R officials intend to place under a single unit in all phases of sports.

According to Lt. Charles Pledra, unit athletic officer, the program is designed not only to promote physical interest or participation, but is aimed at helping every member of the organization to sharpen his knowledge of practically every phase of sports activity.

As its ultimate goal, the unit hopes to place unlimited reading material covering such subjects as athletics, work in hobby shops and actual participation in sports at the disposal of all members of the battalion.

But in the project also calls for some actual construction.

The athletic and recreation building in the area already has been partitioned into two sections and a third is being contemplated. One section includes athletic equipment only, while the other section is replete with sports magazines, newspapers and other periodicals.

In the reading section of the building, comfort is the keynote. Furnishings of the room include lounge chairs, tables, desks, ash stands and racks. Pictures of various sports activities of the unit and present and past outstanding athletes adorn the walls of the room.

An excellent system of ventilation in the building is further conducive to relaxation and comfortable reading.

The contemplated third section of the building will house a hobby shop, where men of the unit will be afforded the opportunity to develop and ply their skills.

The main office of the athletic and recreation section also is an integral part of the building. For indoor sports enthusiasts a recreation building is being remodeled, and will offer facilities for playing such games as pool, table tennis and checkers and cards.

Army, Airforce Establish Joint Post Office Service

The army and the air force jointly announced the creation of a joint army-air force postal service which places under a single authority responsibility for military postal and security courier services. It does not affect civilian military postal arrangements.

In announcing the joint policy the army and the air force gave formal recognition to an inter-departmental service which has been functioning since the air force became a separate department under the Armed Forces Organization Act.

Military postal service, during World War II was a function of the former War Department.

To plan the development, integration, and policies of the joint air force postal service, a joint postal policy board will be established. The board will consist of an equal number of officers of each service, at least three being appointed by each department.

Chairmanship of the board will alternate between the two departments at two-year intervals. The first chairman will be provided by the air force.

Policies of the board will be put into effect by an army-air force postal service headquarters to be organized from commissioned and enlisted personnel of both departments.

Civilian personnel required for the operation of the board and comparable to a civilian career.

3. To have a well trained cadre in event of mobilization.

The promotion procedures, as outlined by Sergeant Desroches:

From grade 7 to grade 6 promotion may be made by training division company commanders when the soldier has completed a full 18 weeks of basic training. In some units which now give only eight weeks, he may be promoted upon completion of four weeks service. In this case, and all other cases, the enlisted man concerned must be in a promotable status.

A soldier will be considered in the promotable status when he is carried on the morning report as present for duty, present not for duty when sick in quarters, absent sick, absent with leave, or absent on temporary duty or detached service.

A soldier is not in promotable status when he is carrying a MOS, absent in assignment, missing or present not for duty in arrears at quarters.

From grade 6 to grade 5, promotions may be made by company leaders or similar unit commanders provided:

1. The soldier has an excellent efficiency rating covering a minimum period of three months immediately prior to the proposed promotion date.
2. The soldier has six months time in grade 6.
3. The MOS vacancy in the unit in the soldier's primary or potential primary MOS.

If the soldier has 18 months in service and has an excellent efficiency rating for a minimum period of three months, he may be promoted to grade 5 without regard to local vacancy. However, promotion under this provision must be made prior to Aug. 1, 1949.

In exceptional cases, on application of the designated promotion authority for grade 5, commanders of major commands may waive the time in grade provisions, unless such waivers are prohibited by the Department of the Army. This will be the exception rather than the rule.

To secure promotion to grades 4, 3, 2 and 1, applicants must submit to their immediate unit commanders an application for advancement in duplicate. General requirements for promotions to these grades are:

1. Eighteen months service in grade 5 and total of 30 months active service.
2. Pass appropriate MOS proficiency examination and achieve satisfactory composite score. The promotion can be made without regard to vacancy within the command of the promoting authority, who may be the commander of the lowest echelon in the chain of command which is normally or actually commanded by a colonel or lieutenant colonel having custody of personnel records.

To grade 3:

1. Twelve months service in grade 4.
2. Pass appropriate MOS proficiency examination and achieve a composite score required for promotion. The promotion can be made without regard to vacancy within the command of

Bragg Commander Commends Doughs

The sportsmanship and conduct of the Fort Benning basketball Doughboys during last week's Third Army tournament at Fort Bragg, N. C., was cited this week by Lt. Gen. John R. Hodges, joint commander of the North Carolina army installation.

Writing to Maj. Gen. Wilbur A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander, General Hodges said:

"The conduct and sportsmanship displayed by the members of your team reflect good credit upon your command, and I know you are extremely proud of their performance in this tournament."

"On the playing court as well as at the various facilities of Fort Bragg and Fayetteville (N. C.), they conducted themselves as soldiers and gentlemen, and have left with us a lasting impression of true sportsmanship."

Spiritual Crusade Planned For Lent

A spiritual crusade for all Catholics, Protestants and Jews will be conducted at Fort Benning during the 1949 season of Lent by the chaplains and selected civilian clergymen, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, announced today.

Beginning with Ash Wednesday (March 2) and continuing through Easter Sunday (April 17), the primary object of the crusade will be to deepen the spiritual emphases in the lives of all Fort Benning personnel, both military and civilian, Chaplain Hale said.

It will be the first time that a united project of this type has been attempted at this post.

Noonday devotions will be held daily, Monday through Friday, beginning on Ash Wednesday. The services will be conducted from 12:25-12:45 p.m. at chapel No. 4 for Catholics, and at the Infantry Center chapel for Protestants.

Chaplain Hale will conduct the Protestant devotions for the first week, and Chaplain (Major) John P. Rafferty will conduct the Catholic.

Experienced mission preachers have been invited to Fort Benning to hold services on the post during the week of April 2. Each night that week, Sunday through Friday, services will be held at the Infantry Center chapel and Chapels No. 1 and 4.

Several Columbus churches will arrange and conduct special Sunday evening vesper service programs at the Infantry Center chapel at 6:30 p.m. each Sunday of Lent.

Various denominations will be represented in the vesper services, and the civilian pastors of Columbus will preach with visiting choirs providing the musical background.

A three-hour service on Good Friday (April 15) will be held from noon until 3 p.m. by Chaplain Hale, Chaplain (Maj.) Ralph H. Fugh, and Chaplain (Capt.) Henry B. Varner at the Infantry Center chapel.

Chaplain Rafferty will conduct a similar service at the same chapel No. 4, and Chaplain (Capt.) Clifton S. Williams and Chaplain (Capt.) Leonard A. Ellis will hold the three-hour service at chapel No. 2, and at the Stations of the Cross and Benedicite at chapel No. 4 at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsh will hold Episcopal services each Wednesday at 8 p.m. at chapel No. 9, and at the Infantry Center chapel.

Lutheran services will be conducted each Sunday at 11:30 p.m. at chapel No. 4.

Kenneth Royall Tours Benning

Making his first visit to the Infantry Center, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall arrived at Fort Benning by plane last Wednesday night for an intensive one-day tour of the post.

He was greeted by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander; Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and Col. Joseph A. Nichols, chief of staff, as he stepped from his plane at Lawson airforce base.

Enlisted men, Mr. Royall said have had their pay increases but there has not been proper consideration shown officers, especially those in the lower and middle grades. He added that he is hopeful the bill will be passed for the Army has done a lot for the enlisted men, but cannot neglect the officers.

In a brief noon-time conference he said that he was greatly impressed by what he had seen at Fort Benning, stating that although this was his first trip to the Infantry Center, he found morale here as high as any that he has seen anywhere in the world. Expanding on the subject of morale in the Army today, he mentioned that there have been as many as 18,000 reenlistments a month recently. This shows, he declared that the men in the Army are satisfied, like the Army, are well-treated, and that "their personal dignity is respected."

His visit to Benning was, he said, prompted by a desire to speak to officials here and see if there were any special problems on the post that might require his personal attention. He added that he "didn't want to see anything special, just things as they are" but that he was particularly interested in seeing

Post's New Court Will Be Dedicated

General Green, JAG of Army, Is Honor Guest

The recently completed Infantry Center general court-martial room, located in the Infantry Center headquarters annex, will be dedicated this afternoon by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, the Judge advocate general of the Army, now visiting Fort Benning.

Maj. Gen. Green, who was accompanied to Fort Benning by Col. Eugene M. Carley, Judge advocate of the Third Army, will conduct the dedication ceremonies at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

General Green and Colonel Carley spent the morning on a tour of the Infantry Center in the company of Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander. At 11 a.m., they accompanied Lt. Gen. W. W. Clark on a tour of the Third division area and lunched in an enlisted mess-hall of the division.

Following the ceremonies this afternoon, the two visiting officers will be General Burress' guest at an official reception in the Officers' club.

Tonight General Green will be an honored guest and the principal speaker at a dinner, the Hotel Balfon given by the Columbus Lawyer's club.

At 9 a.m. tomorrow, General Green will be a spectator at the first general court-martial to be held in the new courtroom. He will leave this afternoon on a return trip to Washington.

The new courtroom, finished in pine and mahogany color scheme and knotty pine wallpaper, is probably the only one of its kind in the army, according to Capt. Harold Oppenheim of the Infantry Center Judge advocate's section.

Impressively laid out, one of the outstanding features of the new courtroom is the tiered platform of five steps with two benches on each step. This section will seat approximately 50 spectators.

The spectator section is separated by public address systems, that "our objective on this post is to give every member of this post an opportunity to join the Red Cross."

Honorary chairman for this year's campaign, General Burress explained the mission of the Red Cross, emphasizing the part soldiers and veterans in a multitude of the service organization, but particularly emphasized the current campaign program. Participating in a series of ceremonies for the 1949 Muscogee-Burien county Red Cross drive, Maj. Gen. W. W. Clark, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, pointed out that arrated from the courtroom by a railing, and, a witness box facing the court bench is located in the center of the room.

MAJ. GEN. T. H. GREEN ... schedules visit

Counsel tables line the walls on either side of the court, and the court reporter's desk has been placed on the right side of the witness box.

A checker-patterned mahogany and grey-green linoleum floor covering has been laid in the courtroom.

A set of cream-colored venetian blinds puts the finishing touches to the decorating scheme.

Airborne Graduation Ceremony Tomorrow

Basic airborne class No. 26 will graduate with "pomp and ceremony" at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow, it has been reported by Infantry School officials. The graduation exercises, which will be open to the public, will be held at Stillwell field.

Goal at Fort Benning for the campaign, which extends throughout March, is 20,000 members. It has been announced by Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, executive chairman of the drive. In addition to the campaign for members, Benning units are also holding various special events in an effort to raise as much money as possible this year. Units have scheduled benefit dances and parties with proceeds to go to the Red Cross, and the club on the post are also making contributions.

Early Notice By Enlistees Now A Must

Applicants for reenlistment who intend to "write their own ticket" for their prospective post now will have to start making their arrangements somewhat earlier, Maj. Llewellyn D. Shaw, Fort Benning recruiting officer, has pointed out.

Men wishing to reenlist for a specific branch of service, a designated overseas command or to fill their own vacancies should contact the local recruiting office at least one week in advance of their discharge date if any reasonable assurance that their requests will be filled is to be given.

In explaining the necessity for the advance notification of the recruiting office, Major Shaw pointed out that official permission from the Atlanta recruiting district is required before a man can be reenlisted in any of the categories.

The steps, Major Shaw pointed out, are in keeping with the plan to build an "army of quality and not quantity."

Enlistments to fill vacancies as well as those for specific overseas commands or branches of the army, now are on a quota basis, the local recruiting officer said, indicating that the assignments would be given out on a "first-come, first-served" basis.

The quotas for overseas commands have been set for the European and Far Eastern commands. At present, there are no designated goals for the Caribbean and Alaskan commands.

Here For Study On Procurement

"A study of the results of the Department of the Army's plan for procurement of second lieutenants will be made here next week by Lt. Col. John D. Townsend and the personnel and administration division of the army's manpower control group. Colonel Townsend is expected to arrive here Sunday night, and will spend two days gathering information on the procurement plan.

During his visit, the manpower official will pay particular attention to the quality of officers obtained under the system and the number of students enrolled in the course. He also will gather information on the number of the students failing to meet the scholastic requirements of the course at present.

Red Cross Fund Campaign Gaining Impetus At Benning

The Red Cross campaign at Fort Benning "kicked off" last Monday and troops at Fort Benning "kicked in" $2,549 according to first reports released by drive officials.

According to Murray Hill, Benning Red Cross Field director, memberships are phenomenally higher than last year, and the present sum does not include all post units. Several, he said, have still not reported their returns from the first day although the reports are coming in more rapidly than last year.

The company opened officially with an address by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander. In a brief talk broadcast from the commandant's office and heard by troops over public address systems, General Burress told his listeners that "our objective on this post is to give every member of this post an opportunity to join the Red Cross."

Honorary chairman for this year's campaign, General Burress explained the mission of the Red Cross, emphasizing the part soldiers and veterans in a multitude of the service organization, but particularly emphasized the current campaign program.

Participating in a series of ceremonies for the 1949 Muscogee-Burien county Red Cross drive, Maj. Gen. W. W. Clark, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, pointed out that $9 million dollars of this year's national goal of $2 million dollars is directly earmarked for the benefit of soldiers. Of this amount 20 million goes for aid to the armed forces, and 10 million for service to veterans.

Goal at Fort Benning for the campaign, which extends throughout March, is 20,000 members. It has been announced by Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, executive chairman of the drive. In addition to the campaign for members, Benning units are also holding various special events in an effort to raise as much money as possible this year. Units have scheduled benefit dances and parties with proceeds to go to the Red Cross, and the club on the post are also making contributions.

Argentine Military School Head Here

Col. Juan Carlos Ruda, commandant of the Argentine Military academy, and five members of his staff, concluded a two-day tour of Fort Benning last Friday afternoon, and left here to visit other U. S. Army installations.

The high-ranking Argentine officer and his party arrived in Columbus last Wednesday night and started their tour on Thursday morning with a conference with Col. Bernard A. Byrne, coordinator of training for the Infantry School.

Col. Byrne briefed the visitors on the organization of the Infantry Center, the Infantry School and army educational systems.

Their tour continued with visits to the Communications and Automotive sections of the Infantry School.

They attended a class and field demonstrations in aerial delivery and aerial supply missions, and ended the first day by observing a demonstration by a rifle platoon of infantry in the attack of a fortified position.

The second half of their itinerary started Friday morning with conferences with Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center, TELLS THE STORY . . . One picture, it has been said, by an ancient Chinese sage, is worth 10,000 words when it comes to telling a story. So, when 1st Lt. Jon Greenwood of the 999th Field Artillery battalion was named Red Cross officer of his unit, he decided that a display could help tell the story of the organization as well or better than a lot of talk or mimeographed "poop." So Sgt. 1st cl. Marion T. Zanders and Cpl. Preston Roberts, Jr., literally pitched in to help him build this display, the lights of which are turned on at night. They made it from scrap salvage material "at no expense to the government." Shown here admiring the finished display are, left to right, Cpl. Columbus Black, 1st Sgt. David R. Adams and Rct. Robert Sturgis. The display is set up in front of the 999th's battalion headquarters.

YWCA Center Airforce Officers, EM Closes Monday Soon to Don Slate Blue

Because of its location within a military installation, the Young Women's Christian association service center at Fort Benning terminated its functions Monday.

In announcing the club closing, the national board of the YWCA said that it was being shut down to conform to an agreement between the United Service organizations and the American Red Cross which limits the operation of USO clubs to civilian communities.

A closing ceremony, featuring exhibits of art, leatherwork, furs, knives, rugs and other handicraft items made by Benning servicemen, was held at the club last week.

Eliminated are the wing and propeller lapel and collar insignia. Also done away with are the airforce shoulder patches. Officers will wear a metal "U. S. A." on their lapels, with the rank insignia worn on the shoulder as now.

Enlisted airmen will wear on their lapels a "U. S. A." made of metal with a circle around it. A light - blue shirt and mid-right blue tie will be worn, and the shirt buttons will be white.

Recruit Group Produces Bonanza in Music Talent

An abundance of musical talent turned up in the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment last week when a host of new recruits joined the unit.

Chuck Lisby of Company L was one of Philadelphia's most promising musicians prior to entering the service about four months ago.

An accomplished music-maker with the tenor sax and clarinet Lisby studied for one year at Scotty's studio in New York and three years at Willis' studio in Philadelphia.

One of the youngest musical artists in the annals of Philadelphia, Lisby organized his own band (Charles Lisby and his Counts Joy) about a year ago. The band gained popularity rapidly, and played such engagements as the Tropical garden, the Bombay and the Ellie ballroom.

Before forming his own band, Lisby was a member of Ted Smith's and Irmie Heath's music-making aggregations of New York, and made appearances in such places as the Apollo theater, the Congressional casino and the Savoy ballroom.

Maurice Chaney, a new addition to Company L, has been doing group singing since childhood.

A first tenor, Chaney boasts membership in the famed Vesper glee club of Philadelphia under the directorship of Easton Collins. His appearance with the group at the Congressional renovation Hall in 1948 is one of the highlights of his musical career.

Alfred Boyd, Jr., also a new member of Company L, was the featured drummer with the Westchester, Pa., high school prior to entering the army.

Now in Company K is Joseph Dyson, a professional entertainer from Asbury Park, N. J.

A tap dancer and show director by trade, Dyson has been affiliated with show business since he was eight years old.

A four-year course at the Critt Crane studio of Inter Lake, Ill., four years ago opened his professional career, and he was connected with USO shows during the war. His experience also includes radio shows and stage appearances.

He entertains hopes that his song, skit and show - writing abilities will be utilized by special assignments during his tour of military duty.

Also saxophonist Sherman McCray of Company I boasts a four year's music study at Parker high school of Birmingham, Ala., and New York's Harnett studio where he was majoring in chords. He played with orchestras in Birmingham and Chicago before entering the army.

CHECKING ON RECRUITS . . . New troops of the Third Infantry division got a good looking over by the Secretary of the Army last week. In one of his longer stops in a crowded day he observed with a great deal of interest the training of men of the Second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment. Mr. Royall is shown being given a "briefing" on training methods by Maj. Howard L. Bartholomew, acting battalion commander, while looking on are, left, Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third division commander and far right, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander.

LEARNING HOW . . . Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall wanted to pick up some of the know-how of airborne warfare so he went down to the airborne area to see for himself during his visit to Fort Benning last week. He is shown here talking to two future troopers, Rct. Raymond Ponce, left, and Cpl. Willie Pino, right, as Lt. Col. Patrick F. Cassidy, chief of the Airborne section, looks on.

Dependents' Dental Attention Curtailed

Shortage of dental corps officers has made it necessary to limit dental work for other than active duty military personnel, in general, to emergency treatment, Fort Benning medical authorities have announced.

It was suggested that dependents desiring dental work arrange their appointments for times that will not conflict with periods set aside for military personnel in need of attention.

Additional service may become available in the future, the medical authorities said, adding that immediate notice would be given when more time and efforts can be devoted to dental attention for dependents and other authorized persons.

Your Red Cross

What Were Your Thoughts When Donating?

Perhaps—and I hope so—you are now a member of the Red Cross for 1949, for the fund campaign opened officially four days ago. I wonder what were your thoughts when you secured your membership and made your donation. About 18,000,000 people will also make their donations during the first two weeks in March, and I wonder what their thoughts will be when they contribute through their Red Cross for the relief of some unknown neighbor.

You and the other 18,000,000 people perhaps thought with pride of the many achievements of your Red Cross. I know that in donating you could not help but think that, even though small, your donation would be a real contribution to the relief of suffering and anxiety in this troubled world.

On the other hand, it is very likely that you made your contribution without any thought whatsoever. But whatever transpired at the time you made your contribution, it is exceedingly doubtful if you or the other 18,000,000 people throughout the United States gave one minute's thought to the tremendous amount of work, time and effort contributed by literally millions of volunteers to make this campaign a success.

Minute details had to be worked out as to the receiving of the money, receipting it and banking it. Thousands of words were written for publicity. Parties were planned and re-planned for small and large crowds. Scores of charts were hand printed so that it would be certain that everyone was covered on the post. Special events were planned with pride and enthusiasm. Countless hours were spent in painting signs and erecting them throughout the post. Supplies were received and distributed, no small job on a post of this size. Hundreds of speeches were made to both the military and the civilian population.

These volunteers are always the first to make their contributions, so they give their money. There is no moral to this column, nor any appeal, but just plain facts. Had you thought of this? Did you think of this when you made your donation?

Greatest Tragedies Result In Man's Inhumanity

The greatest tragedies in the world come because of other people. Men who ordinarily would be able to bring happiness and joy into the lives of others fill those lives with poison.

Lent is a picture of what men can do with a personality like that of Jesus. There was not one man in the group who was equal to Him in character, imagination or spiritual life. There were some men who called themselves judges who said, "This man is an enemy of the people and should be taken out and hanged on a cross until he dies from pain and thirst and hunger."

We should be very careful in making judgments of others. We should see that the influence that we have developed and achieved is so used that it is tempered with justice and filled with love and understanding. We must see that the world, if it is cured, is cured by a helping hand, by a tender smile, by an understanding heart; and if it is destroyed, it will be destroyed by injustice, greed, hate, intemperance and lack of faith in our fellowmen.

The world is guided by an eternal purpose, and a man's life must have a motive that is so great that a track is laid out for future direction and travel. During this Lent, we should ask ourselves what we truly believe and what we want to accomplish with the capabilities that the eternal has entrusted to us.

For forty days we will inspect our lives and try to measure our accomplishments in the making of better lives for ourselves and for our neighbors—this is the message of Lent.

Courts 'Strangest Case' Found Interesting

NEW ORLEANS WOMAN

This is a biographical novel of Myra Clark Gaines by Harnett T. Kane. It is the strange tale of a woman whose law case was "the most remarkable in the history of the American courts". The full length of the litigation, in all of its phases, was a little less than sixty-five years. No case in America has had such a course.

The story begins in the early nineteenth century near Binghamton, New York. The reader is introduced early in the tale to Myra and her mysterious background, and it is the unraveling of this mystery and the discovery of a will leaving her considerable property in Louisiana, which takes her from the north to Louisiana in 1833. Aside from being biographical, the story covers an interesting phase of American history, treated from a different angle.

Myra Clark Gaines lived a full life, spoke often, was quoted or misquoted on frequent occasions, men and women admired and hated her. Gradually, Myra the woman became more important than her lawsuits, and she, rather than her litigation, becomes the predominant interest.

The book is written in three parts, the first dealing with the young Mrs. Whitney, her husband and her family, and yet the whole family pattern seemed to revolve around her case. Tragedy struck in the summer of the yellow fever epidemic in

New Orleans, and Myra became a widow. Little did she realize what paths she'd follow through the years, or the happiness and tragedy in store for her. Then into her life came General Edmund Pendleton Gaines, who later became her husband.

Part two is a story of Myra as "Madame General". Still her case continued in the courts, and still unfavorable publicity, regarding her legitimacy, continued to publicly humiliate her.

Part three of this fascinating story deals with "Myra"—a Myra now sixty years old, but a woman who, when asked how it is she seemed so much more youthful than she was, replied, "I have a secret. I am not bitter; I feel kindness toward practically everybody around me."

The last years of Myra's life brought her an inner serenity she had never known. "To an ever changing New Orleans Myra Clark Gaines had grown into a legend." Late on a January evening, as the family gathered around her, she gave them an amused smile and said "Nothing's going to happen to me, I'm tired, that's all. I've been thinking, when the city comes to court again. . . . Thus ended the life of the New Orleans woman.

It is highly recommended as interesting reading, from the historical as well as the biographical viewpoint, and though full of human pathos it is not depressing, but rather inspiring.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

THE LAST BANDIT (western in tricolor) with William Elliott and Adrian Booth. Train robbers thrived in the early days of railroading when the trains were slow and the gunmen fast. Recommended for family.

CRISS CROSS (melodrama) with Burt Lancaster, Yvonne DeCarlo and Dan Duryea. Moving along crisply and roughly most of the time, this is a drama based on conflicts of personalities and another version of how blind love can drag a man into crime. Recommended for adult.

BAD BOY (juvenile regeneration) with Lloyd Nolan, Jane Wyatt and Audie Murphy. Audie Murphy, the most decorated American war veteran, clicks in his first screen role as the "bad boy," who was always "dutch" until he tries living with those who sympathize with his problems. Recommended for family.

A WOMAN'S SECRET (melodrama) with Melvyn Douglas and Maureen O'Hara. What makes a person confess a crime he didn't commit? Finding out is what adds to a police inspector's headaches. Recommended for adult.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS (sea story) with Richard Widmark and Lionel Barrymore. This is a salty story of the old whaling ships and the men who made their living and lost their lives following the traditions of the sea. Recommended for family.

To Amuse You Today

Chemistry Prof: "What's the most outstanding contribution chemistry has made to the world?"
Ex-GI Joe: "Blondes."
Sgt. (To good looking girls at a service club dance putting on a show): "What do you like, beautiful?"
Very bored girl: "You already have, Mac."
A tourist was introduced to an old Indian who enjoyed a world wide reputation for a perfect memory. Skeptical, the tourist asked: "What did you eat for breakfast on Jan. 10, 1811?" The Indian answered, "Eggs." "The tourist laughed and said, "Everyone eats eggs—he doesn't remember what he had that day?"
Eight years later the tourist was again driving through the village where the Indian lived. Seeing the same Indian on the same street corner, he stopped his car, walked over to the Indian and saluting him with arm upraised said: "How!"
The Indian answered, "Scrambled."
Doctor: (To soldiers wife who complained of a bill) "Don't forget that made 11 trips to your home when your son had the measles."
Mrs. G. L.: Maybe so, but don't you forget that he infected the whole school."
Young wife: "Yes, Bill and I both wanted a new car and new baby, but we couldn't afford both."
Neighbor: "You made the mistake of not getting a new car."
Y.W.: Yes, we picked the baby because we could get delivery sooner."
And then there's one about the retired soldier who inherited a fortune and built three swimming pools to suit the whims of his guests: one with cold water, one with hot water and one pool with no water at all.
When asked the reason for the pool without water, he replied: "You have no idea how many friends I have that can't swim!"
Chest X-Ray technician: "Haven't I seen you before, Bub? I thought I gave you an X-ray last week."
Ret: "Oh you did, but it didn't help any. Maybe the second one might make me feel better."
Little calf looking up at "Hav-litt" plane: "Oh mama, is my fudder up there?"
Mo: "I haven't seen you for ten years, what have you been doing?"
Ron: "Ten years."
"Johnny, complete this: Thirty days hath September. . . ."
Aunt: "It's Uncle Horace—forget speeding!"
"Tell me, Colonel—who is the real boss in your home?"
"Well, my wife bosses the servants—the children boss the dog and cat—and—"
"And you?"
"Well, I can say anything I like to the sergeants."
"I always do my hardest work before breakfast."
"What's that?"
"Gettin' out of bed!"
"The hardest work has fallen." "Very much!"

Why So Much Guard Duty?

We understand that one reason given by men for low morale and for not reenlisting in the army recently is that there is too much guard duty. Guard duty, no matter how hard commanders have tried to explain the reasons behind it, has never been popular, and we don't suppose it ever will. Still there isn't really anything so detestable about "standing guard", provided, of course, it doesn't come around too often—which seems to be crux of the complaint at Fort Benning.

Let's analyze the situation, and find out why there is so much guard duty and why it seems as though some men get it more frequently than they feel they should.

First of all, the army is expanding, through enlistment and Selective Service. In order to expand there must be organizations to which the additional men can be assigned. These men, now known as recruits, can't be assigned to the new units, however, until they have completed basic training. But these units must be organized prior to that time so that they will be ready to receive the recruits when the time comes. That necessarily means that most of these units are understrength, and those men now assigned to these units, or to other units whose troops are available for extra duty, must serve as guards. Guard duty, unlike other types of military duty, is continuous. The danger of fire or theft doesn't exist from eight a. m. until five p.m. It is with us constantly.

Secondly, there are many men of non-commissioned officer rank who are not subject to guard duty except in rare instances, which often results in some few men "catching guard duty" once a week, sometimes oftener. This situation will be alleviated, however, when additional men of the lower ranks join these new units.

Unit commanders are aware of the fact that there is too much guard duty and try to do the best under the circumstances we have cited, it is clear there is nothing that can be done overnight.

To sum it all up, then, we point out the obvious conclusion: this is a temporary situation. A few weeks or a few months will see the guard duty roster of each company much lengthier than it is at present. Then this problem will have been licked.

Let's Help Reach The Goal

Unfortunately, Third army's participation in the savings bond program has fallen far short of expectations of the Department of the Army. Since Fort Benning is the largest installation in the area, this failure by Third Army to reach the hoped-for goal reflects more on Fort Benning than on any other single installation.

We realize, of course, that a soldier's personal obligations—and they are costly—must come first, but we know that there are a great number of men who could afford to purchase bonds.

We feel that each soldier at the Infantry Center should be cognizant of the relation between the nation's economy and his service pay. If the economy should suddenly begin to get shaky, it follows that the serviceman's pay might be reduced. One way to prevent a shaky economy, we believe, is to buy bonds. The purchase of savings bonds is actually an investment, and a good one at that. These bonds are backed by the government, with the government's promise to pay the full value of the bonds upon maturity. What else pays such a high rate of interest, with the exception of soldier's deposits?

America's desire to help maintain the economies of needy nations has resulted in the expenditure of billions of dollars, and this money can't be replaced rapidly enough without other help, such as the selling of savings bonds. Every time the individual soldier purchases a savings bond, he is buying a piece of security, not only for himself and his family, but for his nation as well.

Cubs Give Patriotic Skits At February Pack Meet

The February pack meeting of Fort Benning Cub Scouts was held in the children's school auditorium last Friday. Dens No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 presented some interesting patriotic skits. The winning dens were announced by the judges, Lt. Col. C. C. Cope, Pfc. J. J. Bernard, and Lt. Col. P. S. Heinicke.

Dens No. 2 and 3 won first place with a presentation of an incident from the life of George Washington was depicted by two boys, one posing as the ill-fated cherry tree and the other as little George. A recitation of highlights from the life of Abraham Lincoln and quotations from the Gettysburg address told the story of another of February's famous patriots. Another member chose to represent Thomas A. Edison.

Dens No. 8 won second place with the story of the nation's flag. The scene opened with a young boy in a library reading wondering how the flag came to be. As he read and pondered, he noticed the boys passed before him carrying the flag of George Washington, the flag with 13 stars for the 13 colonies of Betsy Ross fame, and the flag of today.

Dens No. 7 won third place with the tableau "Signing of the Declaration of Independence." Six boys were grouped around a small table preparatory to signing the famous document. Quotations from the speeches of Hancock, Jefferson, and Washington were given, the document was signed, and all joined in reciting the preamble to the Constitution.

Dens No. 1 presented a skit depicting the spirit of 1776 and two little boys in the same spirit presented patriotic for their subject. As each boy gave a brief talk on the famous character he had chosen, he placed a wreath on the backdrop of the stage, which was lighted by candlelight. Men Not Reluctant To Tell Of Personal Aid From Red Cross, Writer Finds

Contact individuals from within the battalion and ascertain from them their personal views of the American Red Cross. Find out whether they have received personal aid from it either during the recent war or during peacetime.

That was the assignment tendered me last Friday morning by the public information officer of the 999th Field Artillery battalion. After saluting him to acknowledge his order, I departed on my quest with a feeling of trepidation. One phase of the assignment—that relating to the individual's personal views of the Red Cross—would be rather easy, I felt. However, under the personal aid category, I definitely was stumped.

Would the contacts freely inform me as to their personal affairs? I didn't think so. First on the agenda happened to be Pfc. Peter M. Crawford of Headquarters battery, an administrative technician at battalion headquarters.

During World War II, Crawford served with the navy, and he unhesitatingly related an example of Red Cross aid.

"There's one particular incident," he said, "which will always remain with me. During 1942, I was on duty on a sub-chaser which patrolled the Pacific coastal waters. That was before the first services pay raise which occurred later that year. I was a $21-a-month seaman. Upon being alerted for overseas duty, I was granted a 30-day short leave, but didn't have sufficient funds for a trip home to Detroit (Mich.) and return. The Red Cross helped me, and, at the same time, created a life-long member."

M-Sgt. William H. Scott, first sergeant of Service battery, first leave at his home in Pine Bluff, Ark., prior to overseas shipment to England; the second during an overseas furlough in England, and the third when he received an emergency furlough through the Fort Benning office in July, 1948.

"I consider the Red Cross more than an organization—it's an Institution," commented Scott. Timely Red Cross emergency work during the havoc-creating typhoon on two times in August, 1948, was cited by Capt. Henry E. Mayberry, battalion S-3.

The storm demolished all of the structures on the island, which, of course, included the post exchange. The Red Cross immediately alleviated the situation by flying in comfort kits containing toilet articles, cigarettes, candy, stationery and all types of literature. The morale effect among our service people in regard to the organization's prompt and efficient handling of the situation was highly gratifying. Captain Mayberry remarked.

Lieutenant Patti Named To Maintenance Duties
Announcement was made last week of the appointment of Lt. Joseph Patti to the post of track vehicle maintenance officer of the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion. Lieutenant Patti was formerly commander of the battalion's Headquarters, Headquarters and Service company.

"Operation Haylift" Vetern Soon Caught Project Spirit

BY STANLEY H. RUNDLELL

"This is operations. Can you be down in an hour?" said the voice over the telephone, a nd Operation Haylift was under way.

I gulped a cup of coffee, threw my wife's woolen sweater and my son's ski socks in a bag with my razor, and pushed the old Chevy to Lawson field.

We were the driving force of the flying equipment, a hot breakfast at the mess hall, and a thorough weather briefing brought back memories of pre-dawn mornings overseas.

We were the third aircraft off the ground and none of the five-man crew had much to say, except to bless Sergeant Spell for the gallon jug of coffee he had brought.

The big C-52 "flying boxcar" bucked as we hit the storm area around Memphis, and even the glow of the wingtip lights was lost in the driving snow. Ice began to form on the wings and the "hot wing" began to melt in the morning found us entering Nebraska. There's a funny thing about snow when you're flying: it seems to drive in a straight line, parallel to the ground, and at a terrific speed.

The "bird dog" automatic compass, brought us to Kearney, Neb., "their time," and, in radio contact with the tower, we held a constant altitude over the base for about ten minutes. Cleared to the Ground Controlled Approach (GCA) runway, we began our touchdown.

We broke through the overcast at about 100 feet above the ground and took over visual control of the plane. The snow-covered runway was impossible to find at first, but we advanced the throttles to make a normal, traffic pattern approach.

Immediately upon landing, we were assigned quarters in a dilapidated building. For twelve hours we had known how little sleep we were going to get in the next 10 days. I am afraid we would still be sleeping.

Unbused to cold-weather operations, we were puzzled when our aircraft failed to start on the following day. The reason was simple. We had failed to dilute the oil in our engines sufficiently to allow for congealing. In the days to follow, we learned to dilute each time we stopped, until the oil became as thin as water, so thin that apparently it had no viscosity.

At any rate, there we were, an aircraft loaded with hay and sitting on the ground. Our constant grinding on the starter had so befouled the plugs that they needed changing. In weather 13 degrees below zero, the changed sparkplugs...until 7 o'clock in the morning.

Our first trip was 80 miles northwest of Kearney. Riding with us was a civilian spotter, and who could direct us to our "drop zone."

Our wisecracks and kidding about feeding cows gradually stilled as we passed over ranches with holes cut in the roof to serve as a door, where a faint path led to the outbuildings and the crew members were rescued. We passed over others where, more ominously, the snow had drifted. It was with great relief that we saw someone come to the door of a house to wave as we reached our "DZ."

Each C-52 held about four and one-half tons of hay. It was stacked by each door, three bales to a stack, and, at the proper time, was kicked out the door by a crew of six men who promptly stacked up three more bales ready for the next pass.

Sharp turns and the suffocating closeness of hay chaff made the extremely squeamish, and standing roped by an open door, kicking out hay for thirty passes over the target took a special brand of courage.

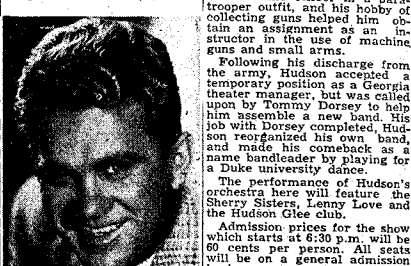

Back to our base for another load of hay, and off again to the target. This time the cattle near the barn at the scene of our previous drop knew that the roar of engines meant food, and they were going to get it. The first bale hit the ground where the remainder of our load that day went to rot in isolated pastures, cut off from the rest of the herd by impassable drifts.

Dean Hudson, Orchestra To Play Here Thursday

When Dean Hudson brings his orchestra to the Main theater for a one-night stand next Thursday, it probably won't be the first time he has entered the Benning movie-goers' sanctuary. But this visit will be under somewhat altered circumstances.

Fort Benning will be familiar to Hudson in that he spent some time here during the war years as an officer in the airborne infantry.

As a matter of fact, it was while his outfit was at Benning that the versatile bandleader made the transformation from army life back into civilian habit.

DEAN HUDSON Here Next Week

When Dean Hudson brings his orchestra to the Main theater for a one-night stand next Thursday, it probably won't be the first time he has entered the Benning movie-goers' sanctuary. But this visit will be under somewhat altered circumstances.

He was hospitalized at the time his unit went on maneuvers, and later discharged from the army on a disabling leg injury.

Hudson entered the army in 1942 as a first lieutenant and was commissioned a second lieutenant following his graduation from a college Reserve Officers' Training corps unit.

His first assignment with the army was as a public relations officer in the special services branch. However, he later became a line officer in a paratrooper outfit, and his hobby of collecting guns helped him obtain an assignment as an instructor in the use of machine guns and small arms.

Following his discharge from the army, Hudson accepted a temporary position as a Georgia theater manager, but was called upon by Tommy Dorsey to help him assemble a new band. His job with Dorsey's company, Hudson reorganized his own band, and made his comeback as a popular bandleader playing for a Duke university dance.

The performance of Hudson's orchestra here will feature the Sherry Sisters, Lenny Love and the Hudson Price Club.

Admission prices for the show which starts at 8:30 p.m. will be 60 cents per person. All seats will be on a general admission basis.

Fort Benning Reenlistments Top Army Department Rate

Figures, as the saying goes, do not lie. Another oft-quoted saying is "that there's something about a soldier." According to figures on reenlistments at Fort Benning, the troops at Fort Benning believe "there's something about a soldier." And the figures show that of all the posts in this area, re-enlisting Fort Benning soldiers prefer Fort Benning.

Figures on reenlistments in the Third Army area from March, 1948, through January, 1949, prove that one of the reasons for the phenomenal rate of reenlistments in the Army area is the exceptionally high rate at Fort Benning. And Third Army has one of the highest rates in the entire Zone of the Interior.

In February, 1948 the Department of the Army inaugurated a reenlistment program and announced a 50 per cent reenlistment as the minimum monthly goal. Once Fort Benning got going, the figures consistently. But of more interest to Benning's leaders was the fact that when the reenlistment really started rolling in, almost all of them were for the Infantry Center. Benning's soldiers had, as the old Army says, a "home," "found a home."

Last May the post recruiting office was opened. Last May the reenlistment rate for Third Army was 22 per cent. Fort Benning's rate was 91 per cent. The following months, however, were dismal months for the recruiters. The Army rate for February was 9.5 per cent and the Benning rate was only 11 per cent.

SLANTS ON SPORTS

By Lewis Mc Afee
Bayonet Sports Editor

Obituaries usually stir up more heartfelt sympathy in the souls of their readers than they do in the souls of the reporters who write them. But this is one case where we'll wager the situation deviates somewhat from the usual.

Our column this week might well be considered the last rites for Slants on Sports. For after today, this corner of the sports section, which came into being just a little more than a year ago, will become buried in the back files of The Bayonet.

The passing of Slants on Sports will be mourned for some time to come by this writer, for it has been the primary medium through which our friends and acquaintances in Benning's sports world have been made.

For the past 12 months this sports scribe has anxiously watched for each seasonal sport at Benning to come into being, hit the peak for a short time and gradually fade out. It was not without a note of regret that we said the participants in the various sports hang up their equipment for another year, but it was to our satisfaction that it was always a case of "job well done."

This isn't a matter of the writer being transferred to another station, being discharged from the army or adopting a belated New Year's resolution to have nothing to do with athletics. It is just a shift in The Bayonet staff has made a change in sports editors necessary.

Henceforth, the space occupied by this column will be filled with the column, "Here and There", written by Vincent Giarratano, who took over the duties of sports editor of The Bayonet this week when this writer was moved into a new position as managing editor of The Bayonet.

This scribe feels sure, in turning the job of commenting on sports activities of the post over to Giarratano, that the responsibility is being placed in capable hands.

For the past four months, Giarratano, an ardent follower of all major sports and a boxer of no mean ability, has been affiliated with The Bayonet as sports editor and general news writer. Early this year he inaugurated the column Here and There which was initiated primarily for the purpose of passing along comments on minor sports here at Benning.

Interest in the new column gained impetus rapidly in that it explored many previously untapped phases of sports in which there was a high degree of participant enthusiasm.

But in taking over the space formerly allotted to Slants on Sports, Giarratano will not confine his comments to sports of a secondary nature. Rather he will endeavor to pass along timely remarks on all sports—major as well as minor—when it is felt that editorializing is in order.

Lastly, this writer would like to make it clear that he is not striking sports from his agenda. In addition to giving the Fort Benning sports program our wholehearted support from a newspaperman's standpoint, we intend to continue backing the post's sports productions 100 per cent, and to lend our presence to as many of the athletic contests as conditions and time permit.

Spring Drills Start On Post Diamonds Extensive Plans Mapped For '49

Spring practice drills were initiated this week by several early-bird diamond nines, including the 1948 post champion Infantry School detachment Profs, and indications are that a well-rounded baseball agenda will be on tap for Benning grandstanders this year.

Tentative plans of post athletic officials include both Doughboy and Intra-mural contests.

Following a stretch of Doughboy exhibition games, the traditional intra-mural circuit will take to the diamond and will feature nightly tilts on Gowdy field.

The Doughboys will then be re-formed to compete in late summer and fall tournaments after the most intra-mural championship issue has been settled.

Reports from local camps show promise of keen competition in the intra-mural race for most and unit honors. Many of the teams boast the return of a sufficient number of last season's veterans to justify high hopes for success.

First on the list of hardies to brave the uncertain climate of the season were last year's Bullies of the 25th Infantry Regiment, and the third battalion of the 15th Infantry Regiment.

An array of veterans of 1948 is expected to add to the Bullies' prospects for the 1949 season.

The 1948 crop of returnees who will probably be on hand for the opening gun includes Hiron Collier, first-sacker and catcher who posted a 400 average at the plate last season, Nick Nichols, catcher and outfielder who carried the same average and is a veteran of two previous campaigns, and Gordon Burke, who compiled a top average of 415 and now is setting his sights on a short-stop berth on the Doughboy nine.

Hot corner coverage will be shared by Willie Wise and Lew Davis, while most of the duty behind the made will be shouldered by Amos Lige.

Walter Scott, whose '48 record shows five wins and two losses; Horace Smith, who made up for an unimpressive early showing last year by hurling a late-season no-hitter; Murray Whiting, whose record for the 1948 campaign read three victories and one setback; Amos (Cuz) Snowden, who chucks up some number of wins and losses last year as Scott, and Willie Weaver, who made his appearance late in the season, will again attend to some mound chores for the Bullies.

Gene Thomas, Leon Coleman and Zack Lemelle solve the outfield problem, while Edzie (Big Jim) Baldwin, who led the Bullies (Jo-Jo) Hughes and Ira (Jo-Jo) Hughes are returning in a year after a year's absence to strengthen the third base situation.

The 99th Field Artillery battery, reassembling their diamond squad, and are following close on the Bullies' heels in going through early practice paces.

With the exception of two or three prospectively newcomers, the Rocket lineups show very little change this year.

Their mound staff will again consist of Al (Fireball) Ellis, the right-handed strikeout artist who hurled his way to 17 wins, four lost total and whiffed 144 batters in one game of the 35th Regimental combat team playoff last year; John (Slants) McClinic, who won 15 and lost four; and Leroy Lockett, who finished last season with five victories.

Shortstop Charlie (Rabbit) Boyd, credited in 1948 with 35 Ed Echols will have their work loads lightened by the addition of newcomer Denious Clark, who alternates between the two spots. Southpaw first-sacker Erskine Wren, a club hit-wig who worried the Infantry School detachment Profs with two homers over the left-field fence in one game last year and cracked up a season's average of 415 at the plate, is returning for another stint at the first turn.

Five-foot, one-inch James (Shorty) Hardman, a good defensive fielder, will return to his position in right field.

Center-fielder Leon Webb, who will see his fourth consecutive season with the Rockets, Jess Hall, who plays both infield and outfield, and Efrey Ivy, outfielder, have added their names to the roster for 1949.

The 344th Area Service Unit Medical have started warmup exercises for participation in the 30th Provisional Medical group baseballers for early season drills. The Airborne battalion of the Student Training regiment, last season's runners-up, and the 328th Ordnance battalion also have begun pre-season scouting of players for their 1949 teams.

Baseball activity on the post is scheduled to begin with inter-unit competition within the 15th Infantry Regimental combat team, the 344th Area service unit, and the 30th Provisional Medical group.

From these unit loops will come the higher level post intra-mural teams, and in the late summer and fall, the Doughboys will again come into being for a series of exhibition tilts prior to their participation in the Third Army tournament.

The Doughboy basketball quintet is endeavoring to re-establish itself in local cage circles by participating in the Bibb Manufacturing company's invitational basketball tournament which got underway at Comer auditorium in Columbus this week.

All games in the six night meet Monday through Saturday, have been scheduled to play in the Bibb City auditorium.

Since the schedule calls for a single elimination system, the winner will not be known until the tourney ends with Saturday night's finals.

Competing teams are expected to be a hard-fighting soldier aggregation in the Doughboys since the Benning cagers will be out to partially make up for the disappointments suffered in the Third Army, and Southeastern USAU tournaments.

Doughboys hopes ran high prior to their tournament road voyage since they wound up a regular season schedule with a record of 10 wins out of twelve trips to the hardwood courts.

Victories over strong opponents like the Jacksonville, Fla., naval basketball team and the Lumpkin Athletic club firecrackers placed them in the formidable opponent class.

Their first big disappointment came when they bowed to Fort Bragg's 15-Americans, the 1948 champs, in a quarter-finals tangle in the Third Army tournament at Fort Bragg.

Top Two Clubs Win STR Loop Keegling Clashes

In last week's activities in the Student Training regiment officers' bowling league, the Woodpeckers maintained their lead by defeating the last-place Pimpickers 2-1.

The second place Strikers eked out a hard fought two-game victory over the None-ups while the third place Hotshots strengthened their bid for the league title by humbling the Thunderers 3-0.

Present standings indicate the possibility of a tie between the Hotshots and the Woodpeckers, who will play a deciding three-game series this week. The season's end is scheduled next Wednesday.

Hotshots keeglers Frank Gabriel and Mark Jensen topped the week's individual averages with Jensen chalking up a 192 high game, and a 533 series total while Gabriel's high game score was 193 and his series total was 538.

At the end of the league each team will have played 18 games. Awards will be presented to members of the winning team and to individuals holding scoring leads in high handicapped game, high handicapped series, and top game averages.

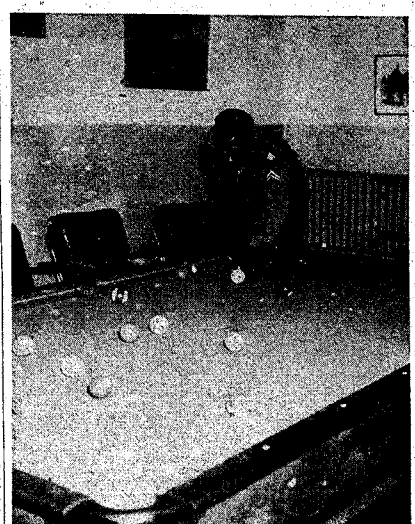

At present, Dayton Caple's 632 leads the high handicapped series standings, while George Tasey holds down No. 1 spot in high handicapped game scoring. Caple bowls for the Strikers and Tasey is a member of the None-ups pin squad.

Troopers Recapture Boxing Circuit Lead

Take Five Victories in Six Fights As Cards Resumed

A never-say-die Airborne battalion team, refusing to compromise on a runner-up position, upset the dope bucket during last Friday night's fight card in the main gym by winning five bouts to again assume the lead in the post-intramural boxing circuit.

The sustained surge by the paratroopers swept aside the league-leading Sand Hill Rockets, and dropped them into second place in the league standings, 30 on a good show with some effective counter-punching and elusive footwork, but he was still shy on votes when the ballots were cast.

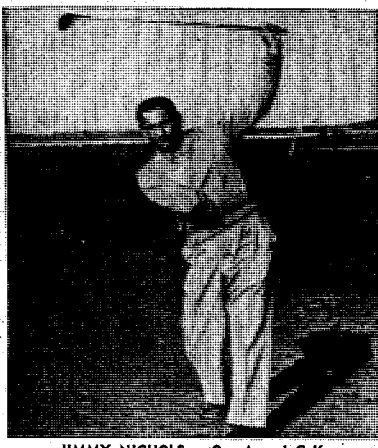

The Airborne team, led by Sgt. Robert Williams, carried a good fight to Wayne Bailey of the 3440th Area Service unit for the first one and one-half rounds of their battle, but Bailey finally found the range on the Sand Hill speedster, and started punctuating his offensive efforts with hard body smashes. The ASU aspirant, after a successful of the season for the troopers since it netted them five victories from six matches on the evening's card.

Friday night's card came after the intra-mural pugilists had been given a three-week respite during the Third Army boxing tourney, and other functions of the Doughboy ring squad.

The initial match for the evening saw welterweight Benjamin Brown of the Rockets and Al Smith of the 3440th Area Service unit set a furious pace in a three-round, which finally went to the Airborne battalions' Tom Greeley in one minute and 35 seconds of the ring tipping the scales at 157.

The team standings for the intra-mural activity now show the Airborne, Rockets with a total of 330 points, the 15th Infantry regiment in fourth place with 315 counters, and the 39th Field Artillery battalion occupying the cellar with 125 fallies.

Walterweight Lemmie Jones trooper squad, side-stepped and 125 fallies.

JIMMY NICHOLS... One-Armed Golfer

GOLFING TRIO CHOSEN FOR NICHOLS' EXHIBIT

When Jimmy Nichols, the one-armed golfer, comes to the Fort Benning Golf and Country club Sunday, his opposition will be furnished by three of the local course's crack linkers.

Robert Ross, Arnold Hoebecke and George Hardgrove, who topped a field of aspirants for the chance to play with the one-armed stroke-master by turning in cards in the seventies last weekend, will complete Nichols' foursome.

Although John Henion, the No. 1 golfer on the post's challenge ladder, carded the low score of the weekend—a 72, club officials decided not to let the long-knocking expert play with Nichols' foursome since he has been tentatively selected for another exhibition match later in the spring.

The foursome of Nichols, Ross, Hoebecke and Hardgrove will tour the course following a demonstration by the one-armed golfer, which will include shots with various clubs.

Nichols is stopping off at the Fort Benning club during a tour of Southern states which will take in other links in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida and Virginia. Arrangements

Main Post Library Chosen As Model

The Infantry Center library has been chosen as a model centralized library system for all armed forces' libraries in the United States, Miss Catherine S. Young, acting chief librarian, Library branch of the Army Recreational Services, Washington, D. C., stated in her visit to Fort Benning, Feb. 7.

Miss Young visited the local library to study the system here and now plans to use it as a model in the conference of army librarians in Washington in March.

Diamond Skipper Bench Soon To Leave Benning

When the diamond Doughboys of Fort Benning embark on their 1948 schedule, they will be playing under a new team manager. Although the new pilot won't be named until later, it is expected that the skipper will be transferred prior to the outset of baseball activities.

Bench has been placed on orders, and has been directed to report to Camp Kilmer, N. J., not later than March 31 for assignment to the U. S. air force in Europe.

With Bench at the helm last season, the Doughboy line experienced one of its most successful campaigns in Fort Benning diamond history, winning three titles in four tournaments. Crowned the Third Army champion, the Georgia semipro tourney, and the Georgia-Alabama regional play-off were garnered by the Doughboys in 1948.

Until the time they went into the late-season round of tournament activity, the Doughboys Manager Bench had not lost a game in 11 outings, and they stretched their unbeaten string of victories to 15 by taking four straight contests in the state semi-pro classic.

After taking the opener of their three-game regional play-off series with the Siluria, Ala. Buck Creek Millers, the Doughs sustained their first loss of the season to the Alabamians in the first game in the series finale, however, sent Bench's chattels to the national semifinals in Wichita, Kans., with an impressive record of 17 triumphs and a lone setback.

In Wichita, the Doughmen dropped two of their first three games, and were eliminated from the tournament.

Going from Wichita to the third army tourney at Fort Bragg, N. C., the Doughboys won three and lost one to take possession of the area crown. Their final record for the season showed 21 victories and four defeats.

But Bench's affiliation with the national sport hasn't been limited to managerial exploits. His experience also embraces actual playing with collegiate, semi-pro and army nines.

After playing four years with the Springfield, Mo., State Teachers college team, Bench was inducted to a pact with the Springfield Cardinals of the Western association in 1938. He then took up coaching high school athletics, serving as a tutor for two years prior to his entry into the army in 1941.

During the war years, Bench delineated his diamond activities, but broke back into the sport as a second baseman with the Buckersfield, Calif., air force base nine in 1945.

Before coming to Benning in 1947, Bench performed at the Prominent Benning Ring Figure Signs For Another Hitch

Hard-punching Cliff Wilburn, prominent middleweight boxer of the 15th Infantry regiment's Third battalion, re-enlisted here last week to fill his own vacant slot.

Winner of numerous pugilistic contests here at Benning, the stocky puncher also was the middleweight champion of the Southwest Pacific area during the war.

Wilburn first thought about entering the ring while he was attending McKee Hill high school in Americus, Ga., and he later appeared in several "battle royals" as a preliminary attraction.

But the hard-hitting fighter really gained fame prominence when he joined the 24th Infantry regiment at Benning on Sept. 27, 1945.

After several impressive wins here, he sailed with his unit in 1942 to the Southwest Pacific where he later captured the middleweight championship.

Wilburn returned to the states in December, 1945. In 1946 he was assigned to the 25th Infantry regiment, and continued his ring activity as a

SOUNDING 'EM OUT What Is Morale? WITH MERRILL HARRISON

Back just before Pearl Harbor when it became necessary to begin drafting several million men, the army took cognizance of the fact that the mental attitude of the soldier would have a great effect on his efficiency as a fighting man. Pretty soon the word "morale" began to be used with great frequency. Then, as the army expanded, a regular program of morale building went into effect.

Last week, Secretary of the army Kenneth C. Royall, in a press conference at Fort Benning, stated that morale at this post was higher than he had seen anywhere on his many trips to army installations all over the world. So the enquiring reporter went out and asked eight Benning soldiers, who have a good hearing a great deal about "morale" just what they think the word means. The question was: "What is morale and how can it best be obtained?"

Showing consideration for their fellowmen. Good food and sufficient off-duty hours in pleasant surroundings are important."

FIRST SGT. JOHN H. LOCKE, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 15th Infantry regiment: "It's the degree of satisfaction a man has in his organization and working conditions. It can best be obtained by meeting every man 10 percent of his way by providing recreational facilities for him and giving him the type of work he wants if it doesn't interfere with military duties. Needed are good non-coms, especially platoon sergeants, good organization and taking care of the men's personal problems."

Lockamy Skipper

M-SGT. HERBERT C. SKIPPER, Company A Infantry of the School detachment: "Good morale is the contentment of troops with their surroundings. It can best be attained by merited promotions and adequate recreational facilities. When a man has something to look forward to in a good place to spend his off-duty hours, all of which is as important to a man as his work, he'll have good morale."

SGT. OTIS PETTIGREW, Company I, 15th Infantry regiment: "The outlook the soldier has toward the service, his commanders and his unit. The first requisite is fairness. Also important are good pay, adequate housing for families, adequate recreational facilities and opportunity to take advantage of those facilities."

CAPT. EDWARD J. KAZARNOWICZ, Heavy Tank company, 15th Infantry regiment: "It's something that can't be bought; it has to be there. It is the pride the soldier takes in his unit. It comes from the treatment he receives in his unit that makes him feel he is wanted, important, a part of that unit and makes him feel they can't get along without him."

PFC. ELMER C. McDOWELL, Company A, 58th Airborne Infantry regiment: "Good morale is a happy state of mind. It comes from the man first from company in the first place, then from the platoon, then from the squad, then from the individual soldier. It is the soldier's own attitude toward his work and his fellow soldiers."

SGT. IST CL. GLEN R. McAFEE, Ninth Field Artillery battalion: "It's pretty hard to put in a few words. Good morale would be a good state of mind. If a man is happy, satisfied with his work and has something to look forward to he'll have good morale. Recreation facilities and the time to enjoy them have a great deal to do toward making the man happy. As far as being satisfied concerning his work, it has to be the men ever get under him who are decent to work with and interested in him as a person. The implementation of the career plan can give him something to look forward to."

SECOND LT. RALPH L. RALMOND, special associate basic infantry officers' course, Student Training Regiment: "It's the spirit of camaraderie among the men of a unit, pride in the unit. It can best be attained by men

Basic airborne class No. 24 opened its instructional schedule Monday morning with approximately 300 officers and enlisted men enrolled. At the same time, 183 new second lieutenants of special associate basic infantry officers' class No. 4 started their instruction.

Pathfinder class No. 3, with 34 officers and enlisted students also got under way Monday. Many of the members of this class are cademen of the 11th Airborne division.

Hobby Shop's Photo Section Now Available

Amateur lensmen of Fort Benning now are being provided with facilities for learning — or improving in — darkroom technique.

The photographic section of the Main post hobby shop, located in the south half of Doughboy stadium, was opened recently under the supervision of the Infantry Center special services office, and is available to all military personnel.

The modernized — equipped activity, it was pointed out, is primarily for the use of inexperienced photographers. A complete course in developing, contact printing and enlarging photographs will be given persons who avail themselves of the section's facilities. It has been estimated that the entire instruction will take less than one hour.

The only charge for the use of the shop's facilities will be a small assessment to cover the cost of paper used for printing purposes.

Shop hours have been set from 6 p.m. until 11 p.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. each Saturday, Sunday and holiday. The first hour of the shop period each day will be devoted to registration, instruction and familiarization with equipment. The section will be closed each Monday and Friday.

Royall Tour

King, special assistant to Mr. Royall; Lt. Col. W. D. Crittberger, Jr., the secretary's aide; Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center; Maj. Gen. F. W. Clark, commanding general of the Third Infantry division and high ranking Benning officers, the secretary opened a full day with the inspection of a guard of honor of Third division troops at 8:30 a. m.

The guard, commanded by Lt. Col. Frank H. Montgomery, included men of the First battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, and 72nd Army band.

After the inspection of the guard Mr. Royall was in conference with Infantry Center officials for nearly an hour, prior to touring the Airborne section of the Infantry School. In the tour of this section, the secretary evidenced a keen interest in the techniques of airborne warfare as taught at Benning. He observed demonstrations of parachute rigging and landing heard talks on pathfinder and stimulated jumps and drops and viewed various types of equipment used in this new warfare.

From the Airborne section he went to the Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment and studied the actual training of recruits, visiting a map-reading class. He also inspected mess halls and barracks, and complimented the dayrooms in each barracks. He then visited band hall, making frequent stops in the areas of the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, and 30th Infantry regiment.

Following lunch at the Officers' club Mr. Royall took a one-hour tour of the Main post, visiting service clubs, libraries, G-4 installations, the Infantry School weapons pool and the Bigerville Mess of the Student Training Regiment.

He then journeyed to Harmony church to inspect the training of the Second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, and watched with interest as a company of new men received preliminary instruction through modern teaching methods.

Recently commissioned second lieutenants of the special associate basic infantry officers' course were observed by the secretary who watched them do sub-caliber tank firing at Warner range. Following a scheduled part of a class in the technique of mortar fire after which he watched another class of new officers fire machine guns.

At 5 p. m. Thursday he left by plane for Jackson, Miss., to speak at a Jackson Day dinner.

Youth Does Tasks To Aid Red Cross

Last year during the annual Red Cross campaign, Allen Ormiston, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward J. Ormiston, was walking through the PX, and, as he said, "saw a lady collecting money for the Red Cross".

Young Ormiston had a nickel, so he dropped it in the jar. That started him off on a one-man drive of his own that eventually turned into big business—big for him, anyway—and was a lot of help for the campaign.

With a partner, since "transferred," he went into "business" shining shoes and doing odd jobs, all of which netted the Red Cross $11.65—a lot of money for a then sixth grader, and a lot of shoes shined and odd jobs done.

What really got him, however, was a gift of a dollar by a Chinese student at the Infantry school.

"It was a nice example. Sometimes people from foreign countries do more for us than our people," said young Ormiston.

So this year when the planning committees started preparations for the post campaign, Allen also started his. A student at the Benning children's school, he's using his after-school hours on the job of collecting money by soliciting jobs.

Prior to beginning the course, the men, all of whom were required to have high army general classification test scores, demonstrated qualities of leadership as professor for inventory appointment to the permanent grade of sergeant or higher.

According to Capt. Harold C. Wragney, safety officer of the unit, this is maintaining a safety record that establishes it as one of the best organizations of its type in the army.

From 1943 until 1944 the division was at Camp Gordon, Ga., where it was reorganized and Colonel Brinkley was named to serve as the division training commander. He went overseas with the division in September, 1944 and served in France, Germany and Austria as a commander of one of the division's combat commands.

Upon returning to the States he was assigned to Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., as professor of military science and tactics from 1920 - 1924. Colonel Bell then reported to the Infantry School to attend the company officers' course, and upon completion of his training, went to Hawaii for three years, serving as a company commander and as S-3 of the 21st Infantry regiment.

He was sent to a German labor camp in Kiel, Germany, and employed as a laborer and roofer. Although the Germans paid him 15 marks every 10 days, he was underfed and labor gangs were given only prisoners' rations, and foreign laborers did not have cards with which to purchase any supplemental food.

SOUNDING 'EM OUT Job Readiness WITH MERRILL HARRISON

They used to say, a long time before World War II, that "garrison soldiers" really "had it" in that they just sat around and didn't do anything. Then came the rise of Hitler and those garrison soldiers made it another way.

For example, the enquiring reporter asked a couple of questions, and all of them came up with the type of answers that show the soldier of this year is strictly "on the ball" when it comes to preparing for the future.

The questions were, "What would you have to learn now to be able to do your job with the utmost efficiency in case of emergency or disaster?" and "What are you doing now?"

When asked if he likes the army, but feels the handicap of not being able to speak English well, he believes he can learn more in the army than in civilian life.

Second Lt. Ben Kessler, assistant executive officer, Battery A, Ninth Field Artillery battalion, said: "I've never had a job before."

He was in the underground group of the French "Savoie" and by a Capt. Gaudier, upon greeted the first allied forces to arrive in Caen and St. Lo.

ASHLEY DUKES

Cpl. Francis L. Ashley, field lineman with the Third Signal Company, "I'd have to learn cable splicing and have more training in telephone repair. I'm planning on attending the Communications School at Fort Monmouth, N. J."

Cpl. John Dukes, Jr., information education NCO, Service Company, Student Training regiment, "I'd have to learn to be a jack-of-all-trades to function as an I and E man in the field."

What would you have to learn now to be able to do your job with the utmost efficiency in case of emergency or disaster? and What are you doing now?

First Lt. Robert A. McDonald, head quarters, Third Infantry division, "I'd have to take training on the 75 mm rifle. My practical experience as a platoon leader during the war is helping me now but I have to be brought up-to-date on new tactics and on new field manuals that I haven't seen since going to take the infantry school's non-commissioned officers' light and heavy weapons courses along with my NCO's."

Ret. Donald S. Capehart, Third Infantry division finance clerk, working with post finance office, "I'd have to learn to work faster and under adverse conditions and with less equipment, especially electrical, than I've just finished a course at the Finance School at St. Louis, Mo., and am now applying what I learned."

Enlisted Men Receive Promotions With Unit During the past week, eight enlisted men of the 99th Field Artillery Battalion received promotions. It was announced by Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, commanding officer. The new promotions include: Cpl. Willie S. Robinson to sergeant, and Pfc. John T. Warren, James W. Cross, John R. Howard, Robert Logan, Cecil McBride and Marion due to the many portable powerhouses.

Enthusiastic outdoorsman, he is an excellent hunter and skeet shot and an ardent hunter. He is married to the late Mrs. Marie Colles of Oakland, Calif.

HURTT LAMBERT

Cpl. Charles E. Hurtt, dining room orderly in the 26th Transportation Truck battalion, "I'd have to learn how to drive a truck. So right now, I'm taking instruction on a six-by-six."

Ret. Orin F. Lambert, line-type operator in the Army Field Printing plant, "I'd have to know how to get and conduct power. So right now, I'm not doing anything about it right now, but I'm going to take a course in power."

Enlisted Men Receive Promotions With Unit During the past week, eight enlisted men of the 99th Field Artillery Battalion received promotions. It was announced by Lt. Col. Todd H. Officer Sentenced To Dismissal Here

A general court-martial found 2nd Lt. Byron R. Kearby guilty of disorderly conduct here last Friday morning, and sentenced him to dismissal from the army and to pay a $500 fine.

The sentence, as passed, however, is subject to review by the Infantry Center, commanding the judge advocate general of the army.

Kearby entered a plea of "not guilty" to violation of the 93rd and 96th Articles of War, but the 12-man court found him guilty on both counts.

He was charged specifically with hitting a soldier of the Airborne battalion on the head with a bottle during a quarrel at the Swan Club, a Private City Tavern, early in the morning of Nov. 17.

Defense Counsel Vincent J. McCauley, a Columbus attorney, made no effort to disprove the allegations. He stated that he had struck the blow at the soldier, but maintained that the incident was accidental.

Col. Maurice L. Miller served as president of the court, while Capt. Harold Oppenheim was the trial judge advocate. Other members of the court were Col. James P. Torrence, Jr., Lt. Col. Charles E. Woodruff, Lt. Col. Edwin O. Gibson, Lt. Col. Leland H. H. Linton, who was chief of staff, and Capt. Roland B. del Mar, Lt. Col. Shields Warren, Jr., Lt. Col. John W. Arthur, Maj. John D. Hornum, Maj. Edward N. Hathaway, Capt. William E. Grant and Capt. Robert E. Dean.

In November, 1941, he was assigned to Camp Wheeler, Ga., as company commander, and later as adjutant of the camp's Infantry Replacement Training Center. While serving at Camp Wheeler in May, 1943, he was promoted to major and sent back to Benning to attend the advanced officers' course.

Upon graduation from the officers' course here, Colonel Dorsey was assigned as an instructor to the tactical section of the Infantry School. Here he taught staff functions, motor patrolling and conduct of field exercises. He remained with the Infantry School until July, 1945, when he was ordered overseas.

Arriving in the Philippines, Colonel Dorsey was with the 1st Marine Division in the western Pacific at Tacloban and on the island of Leyte until his return to the States in 1946.

Leaving the army in April, 1946, Colonel Dorsey resumed his employment with the Southern Bell Telephone company.

Returning to active duty at Fort Benning in August, 1947, Colonel Dorsey attended the rifle and heavy weapons course of the Infantry School as a first lieutenant.

Your Red Cross

Auxiliary Party Is Campaign Highlight

One of the highlights of the Red Cross fund campaign each year is the party held at the Officers' club by the Ladies' auxiliary of the Fort Benning Red Cross.

This year an exceptionally good party has been planned. A great deal of time and thought have gone into the details so that not only will the guests have an enjoyable evening, but it will be a profitable adventure as far as your Red Cross is concerned.

I do not know all the details about the party, but I do know the ladies are planning many agreeable surprises. The tickets will be one-dollar per person and that one dollar entitles you to play games the entire evening. There will also be many grand and glorious prizes for the winners. In addition to these "skill and luck" prizes, there will be ten or more beautiful door prizes given away during the evening. It would appear that this party will be a success, for the amount of admission is small and the opportunities great for going away with the very prize that you have been hoping to win for such a long time.

Mrs. Frank Lee has spent a great deal of time in behalf of Red Cross during this fund campaign and all of her chairmen have been remarkably active. When I took over the tentative plans for this party Friday night, I am sure that Mrs. James Stephens as chairman of the party committee and her two co-chairmen, Mrs. Robert H. Bull and Mrs. John Fray, have been unusually busy. They have cheerfully given of their time for a good cause: the unknown disaster victim, the life-saving course to be held in some unknown community, the hundred and one good things that you do through your Red Cross.

Surely you would like to join these ladies Friday night at 8 p.m., March 11.

Religious Freedom, A Priceless Heritage

BY CHAPLAIN M. M. H. DAINA

General Omar Bradley, chief of staff of the United States Army, in a recent speech, said: "It is ungodly for us to claim freedom of religion, unless we are prepared to be tolerant to all beliefs that differ from ours."

Freedom of worship according to one's conscience is a right—not a privilege—that every American should be proud of. It is a right guaranteed by our Bill of Rights backed up by a unit of will and conviction of 140 million Americans. Anyone who denies or is afraid to admit the identity of his faith consciously or subconsciously admits his doubts in this Bill of Rights.

The priceless heritage of the right to worship according to one's conscience was introduced by our founding fathers and early patriots as a foundation for our American way of life. The founders of our great Republic believed in it and they lived by it and received their inspiration from their daily study of the Bible; and from it they received courage and determination in their successful struggle against tyranny and oppression.

George Washington, in his farewell address, said: "Religion and morality are the pillars of the state, and in vain would they claim the tribute of patriotism who would labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens."

The democratic way of life is the child of religion; man is the child of God. Thus, man's subservience is to God, our Heavenly Father. This is the principle upon which our early American patriots founded our free state and free society, where there is no place for dictators to decide our destiny and future. Application of this principle made our nation the strongest and the most progressive in the world.

The totalitarian dictators, whether they are Fascist or Communist, have no room for freedom of worship according to one's conscience. They can worship only the dictator, and man may only worship by decree. The recent arrest and torture by a Communist regime of a prince of his faith, Cardinal Mindszenty, was not only an attack against an individual, but against the people's free right to worship. More than four hundred priests were recently jailed by another government of a country behind the iron curtain. Another Communist government caused the arrest and persecution of fifteen of the country's leading Protestant churchmen. A chief rabbi of a third iron curtain country had to flee for his life, and the great historical synagogue in the Communist-dominated capital was closed, and worship was limited by the Communist regime.

Do we need any more proof that there is a systematic effort on the part of Communist dictators to suppress freedom of worship which is incompatible with the Communist system?

Our American freedom of worship according to one's conscience is the priceless heritage that we should cherish and guard as the foundation of our democracy.

The Living Story of an English Lad

By ADRIENNE YOUNG

There is No Armour, by Howard Spring, is the story of what happened over the years to the dreams and ambitions of a young Manchester, England, boy who was determined to become an artist. It is also the story of an era and a people, using a whole half-century as a backdrop.

Written by the author of "My Son, My Son" the character descriptions are so vivid that the reader will find himself living at the time the author portrays, weeping with the young boy, sharing his many experiences. The author has the knack of making the characters seem close to you, and your sympathy is aroused in favor of young Pentecost time and again.

The struggles of the Pentecost family after the head of the house was "converted over the line" during their vacation absence by their neighbors, members of a rather fanatical religious belief, and the influence on all their lives living under this shadow is heart-rending, but the ability of young Pentecost and his mother to hold their own, and cope with the situation, is soul-inspiring.

There is a feeling of depth to this novel, and though the reader feels revulsion at times at some of the bigoted ideas of that day, he finds himself comparing these characters with those he has known and loved and hated.

You'll like Pentecost's uncle Kitto, and his dear friend blind Captain Marquid, who provided a studio for the aspiring young artist, and gave freely of his affection and understanding. Anatole Lop, too, is a practical old fellow, and likeable. One of the strongest personalities in the story is Mrs. Pentecost, whose loyalty to her beliefs and ideals was unwavering and whose concern for her children was touching. At the same time she held her place as wife of a radically changed personality.

We all know people like the Brimlow's, and while their presence in the story is rather depressing, we can't ignore them. Though forced to admit their presence, the reader will probably be inclined to hurry through passages where they dominate the scene.

Howard Spring, is considered one of England's most distinguished novelists. His fictional characters have been termed some of the most fascinating since Dickens. The book is a first edition, printed in 1948, and is considered at present among the top three in popularity.

To Amuse You Today

McRoach, just off the boat from the old country, entered a seafood restaurant. "I'm a fisherman," he told the waiter. "I would be knowin' what ye American eat." The waiter brought a steaming bowl of clam chowder. McRoach eyed it with some suspicion, but ate it. The next course was a cucumber and wilted lettuce salad. McRoach stared at it, jumped to his feet, and cried, "I'm a fisherman, an' I eat yer rotten garbage, but I'll not touch yer big red boogey!"

It was an opening appearance of the Great Symphony Orchestra at the great maestro at his most majestic. The music was crashing and thunderous when suddenly there fell at abrupt and complete silence, beginning a brief but absolute rest in the music. Out of the stillness there came a high-pitched feminine voice full of reproach. "But," it said, "I always fry mine in lard."

"What do you work at?" "At intervals."

"I'm going to an optician to have my tooth pulled."

"No—it's my eye tooth."

A Scotchman visited the United States and could not understand the language, but in a few months it began to sound all right to him. As his job turned out to be a permanent one, he sent to Scotland for his wife.

A few days after her arrival in this country she said, "Don't you ever hear the folks talk here?"

"Aaaaah," said Donald, "they're not so bad now, but you should've heard them when I first came over."

"So you desire to become my son-in-law?"

"No, I don't. But if I marry your daughter, I don't see how I can get out of it."

The gentleman stopped to talk to the weaver who was making mud pies on the sidewalk.

"My word," he exclaimed, "you're pretty dirty, aren't you, my little girl?"

"Yes," she replied, "but I'm prettier clean."

Fort Benning Scout News

Boy Scouts

On February 26, at 8:30 a.m. the Boy Scouts of Troop 127 set out on a cross-country hike, which is reported here by Robert Blanford.

BY ROBERT BLANDFORD

In all, twenty-one attended the hike, including troop leaders. Besides the leaders, there were P. N. H. Patrol: Tewy Smith, Donald Thornhill, Laurence Smith, E. D. on Winston, George Dady, Cobra Patrol: John Sodenmeyer, Robert Blanford, Charles Moore, Sammy Morrissey, John Westerman, Arthur Purvis, Eagle Patrol: Karl Baetcke, Bern Baetcke, Bill Luther, Phil Shaughnessy, David Kepple and Mickey Folk were visitors.

At about 8:45 a.m., we set out on the way to the dirt road which would take us to camp. On the way we saw several tracks, some turkey tracks and a crippled turkey. Before long we came upon a stream in the woods. We stopped and started making a bridge over the stream with our ropes and native poles. The Panther and Cobra patrols were in charge of making the duck-boards. The Eagle patrol was in charge of making the trestle.

When the bridge was finished we drew straws to determine which patrol would lead. The Cobra patrol went over the bridge first, then the Panther. Next and last came the Eagle patrol. The stream by the way was called Armory Stream at 1091-1417 by my map.

Banning packed and set off in the direction of camp. After walking about 45 minutes we came upon a crew constructing a dam. At the time that we got there they were driving large steel pilings into the earth with a 1,200 pound hammer. We watched this about ten minutes and then moved on up a hill into camp. There we started making our meals. Each patrol had a fire. I believe every scout there cooked something.

After eating and cleaning up we played "Sleep-ers." This was quite a bit of fun, and I don't think you need to be told about it.

After playing our little game we got down to business.

Girl Scouts

Several scouts were awarded registration cards and tenderfoot badges. We then had courses in map reading, compass reading and pacing. After this each patrol set out by map and compass through the woods to Marine Road. Then we marched and marched and we marched, until we reached outpost No. 1 and the scout cabin. It was only five miles, but we were tired. We got our advancement cards checked and went home.

HEARD

HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO

Baseball fans turning out for the games played on the post this year will be greeted by the sight of a refashioned Gowdy Field. The early spring weather has augmented the growth of the newly planted grass in the outfield and the reworked ground is already blanketed by a crop of young shoots.

The project now in progress of increasing the number of 1500-watt floodlights from last year's 120 to a new total of 192 is rapidly approaching the point of completion.

The latest improvement to be undertaken is the installation of individual type seats in the box sections in place of the wood and concrete benches that have served as seating in previous seasons. The new development is expected to be completed and ready for use about April 15.

The widespread program of improving existing sports centers and the building of new athletic and recreational facilities on the post which was initiated this winter by the Infantry Center special services office now includes the renovation of Russ pool, the haven of Fort Benning swimming enthusiasts.

The concrete on the bottom of the pool is being repaired, and a new coat of paint will be applied to the inside of both bath houses.

Speaking of Russ pool, qualified life guards on the post who wish to perform duties as such this summer may apply for the position at the Infantry Center athletic and recreation office or by calling Lt. Irving Levine at FB 2258 for an interview.

Our heartiest welcome goes out to the returning Fort Benning boxers who represented the Third Army in the recent all-army tournament at Fort Myer, Virginia.

Middleweight Lawrence Jones, and lightweight Marshall Clayton brought home the bacon in their weight classes, but light heavyweight Dick Donaldson, and flyweight Malcolm Davis had to content with their Third Army crowns, the winning of which, however, were no mean accomplishments.

Boxing has often been under fire as a brutal game and one open to money making schemes. But under AAU rules, as conducted in the army, it is a fine, clean, manly sport. Amateur boxers engage in the sport for the pure glory of winning under rules that protect every participant from serious injury.

An amateur boxer is one who keeps himself in the pink of physical condition, and who practices sportsmanship as an essential trait of character.

This writer knows the four champions personally, watched them train, and witnessed their bouts. In tribute to their ability, and their spirited effort in the game we take pleasure in saying: congratulations champs, and welcome home.

Post Greets New All-Army Champs

Clayton, Jones Capture Titles

Fort Benning this week welcomed home its two all-army ring champs, who represented the Third Army in the recent army-wide boxing tournament at Fort Myer, Va. Lawrence Jones, Third Army Jones, and light heavyweight middleweight champ of 1947-48, and lightweight Marshall Clayton returned from the tour as champions of the army in their weight classes.

Nichols Plays Links Exhibit In Rain, Mud

Jimmy Nichols, the one-armed golf pro and three top players of the Fort Benning Golf and Country club played 18 holes in a steady drizzle following a down-pour last Sunday on the clubhouse fairways and finished the course with scores in the seventies.

The match took place during Nichols' stop-over here on a tour of links in six southern states.

Robert Ross finished with a total of 78, George Hardgrove tallied the low score of 74, Arnold Hoebecke came in with a 79, and Nichols finished just above Hardgrove with a 75.

The rest of Nichols' southern tour will include stops in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida and Virginia.

After the round a prize of six golf balls was offered to the person who could make the closest guess to Nichols' score. It was won by Lt. Col. James W. Haley. Nichols ended his visit by staging a demonstration of shots with all types of clubs, and his style of putting with a forehead stroke.

tournament finals go for the 118-pound crown. Fort Bragg's featherweight Jose Calar had to content with runner-up honors when he lost by kayo in the finals to Fifth Army's Harold Stewart. Championship team honors went to the Third Army squad for leading the field with a total of 17 points.

Many New Top Athletes Found Among Recruits

BY BOB PHILLIPS. The Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment last week added a new crop of names to the impressive roster of athletes already acquired from a month of recently assigned recruits.

Bruce A. Johnson, a New York lad who captured second place honors in the 1948 New York Amateur Athletic union diving meet and took his place in a possible candidate for the 1949 U. S. Olympic swim team, and Nat Tricksey from Selma, Ala., who performed brilliantly in 1947 as an ace moundsman on the Alabama Cloverleafs, have joined the unit and expressed a desire to participate in Fort Benning sports.

The two young athletes, boasting colorful records in their favorite sports, are looking forward to a bright future in coming post and army meets.

Johnson, a sturdy 18-year-old, has a neat collection of 28 medals and trophies which include a wristlet from Catonsville, Md., a gold medal from the Colonial High Bridge, Thomas Jefferson, Bath House, the Selma YMCA, and the 1948 Street YMCA pools, which he has won over a period of three years for stellar performances in swimming and diving.

Johnson got his start in 1946 under the guidance of Ernest Washington a New York instructor, and gained early recognition for his mastery of the sport.

His 1947-48 record of feats occasioned his nomination for a berth on the 1949 Olympics squad. Representing Seward Park high school in the 1947 New York City meet, Johnson brested the tape first in the 100 yard breast stroke event and took second place in the city finals at Colonial pool. Third place honors in the High-Bridge pool final is rounded out his record for that year.

Bruce, who was a lieutenant life guard at Reese Beach in New York City in 1948, also does some tumbling and plays a little basketball. Tricksey started out as a sandlot baseballer in 1942. A natural at the game, his spectacular mound chores not only made him a favorite with the fans, but gained wide respect from professional batters throughout Alabama and Georgia.

He joined baseball's semi-pro ranks in 1946 as a member of the Alabama Cloverleafs of the Negro Southeastern league. His two year stint with the club has been regarded as sensational. The Alabama college-ball artist experienced his greatest year in 1947 when he chalked up ten wins against two losses. His winning column was highlighted by three shutouts and one no-hit triumph. Tricksey's trickery and control over the mound, swift and figured greatly in his being approached for contract signing by scout of the crack Birmingham Black Barons club in 1947.

When not engaged in pitching at the platter, Tricksey fills in nicely as a utility outfielder. Off the baseball diamond he performs on the track in the one-mile run and the 60 and 100 yard dashes. Both Johnson and Tricksey are assigned to Headquarters company. Company I's contributions to the battalion's sports aggregation are Rudolph Edens and Ed Edens, both from Pennsylvania. Edens boasts a unique record as a pitcher while Pook's favors baseball along with milt-mixing in the squared circle. Company I adds the name of Marion Levine of Jersey City, N. J., whose background includes two years of baseball, three years of semiprofessional football, and a reputation for being one of the city's most feared amateur back-punchers. Pedro Angleros and Milton Brooker are new with Company K. Angleros, a baseball m d l winner who was noted for his outstanding coverage of the hot corner for Samuel Comers high school in New York City, plugs in well as a guard in basketball and as a third-sacker in football. Brooker, a Pennsylvania lad, goes in for the same sports as Angleros, and is a better than average competitor in both of them. Chuck Jackson, a whirlwind at the foot of the post, includes ball from York, Pa., and Ed Tindell, a Harrisburg, Pa., athlete who plays baseball, football and bowls are now with Company K.

Doughboy Cagers Conclude Activity

Doughboy cagers, attempting to recapture some lost prestige last week, romped over the Harris Jewelers by a 45 to 27 score to gain the quarter finals in the 33th Manufacturing Basketball tournament at Comer College, but dropped their chance on their next outing. Opposing teams had expected well founded after their win over the Jewelers. The Benningites went all out in their last bid of the season in an attempt to make up, in part at least, for the disappointments suffered by them in the Third Army, and the Southeastern Amateur Athletic union tournaments.

Not a Holdout

President Lou Perini of the Section B Army smiled as he opened the returned contract of Eddie Stanky, star second baseman. Then the smile abruptly faded as he glanced at the document—it was unsigned. Stanky declared himself "not a holdout," but willing to listen to a contract adjustment.

Hollis Rumble, former Columbus high school ace, and teammate Jim Patrick led the scoring for Bell with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Vern Griffin paced the soldier tally getting with 16. The Dough's 1949 season started in a blaze of glory as some tough opponents including the Jacksonville, Fla., naval air station; the Lumpkin Firecrackers, and the Callaway Millers of Manchester, Ga. bowed to the early season Doughboy might. Despite a strong start by Bob Phillips' Doughs they failed to realize their pre-tournament hopes for a major title.

Post Court-Martial Room is Dedicated

A place "befitting the dignity of a general court-martial" was the appraisal given Fort Benning's new general court-martial room by Maj. Gen. T. H. Green, judge advocate general of the army, as he delivered the keynote address during a formal dedication ceremony last Thursday.

Speaking to a group which included high-ranking army officers and civilian dignitaries of nearby communities, General Green expressed faith in the army's new system for courts-martial, and said that he thought the policy of permitting enlisted members to sit on panels would work.

The judge advocate general qualified his statement, however, by opining that enlisted representatives should be properly selected and instructed in the responsibility involved.

In his speech, General Green emphasized the importance of leadership in the army, and declared that the new court-martial system is "no substitute for leadership." He added that the leadership he had seen during his visit to Benning was outstanding from "top to bottom."

The judge advocate general's address followed a series of introductions by high-ranking army officers of Benning and civilian dignitaries of Columbus.

Speakers on the program were introduced by Lt. Col. Edward J. Burke, the Infantry Center judge advocate, and included Maj. Gen. Wilbur A. Sanders, the Infantry Center commander, Maj. Gen. R. W. Clark, commanding general, Third Army division; Judge T. Hicks Fort

Operation Tarheel Starts Next Month

Seven Post Units Slated To Function

Seven Fort Benning units will take part in Exercise Tarheel, it has been announced by Infantry Center officials. Units taking part in this sequel to last year's Exercise Assembly will be the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion; Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, 32nd Ordnance battalion; 518th Ordnance company; Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, 204th Transportation Truck battalion; 33rd Transportation Truck company; 60th Transportation Truck company, and 61st Medical Motor Ambulance company.

The 73rd Tank battalion will move to Fort Bragg, N. C., initially, while the other units are slated to proceed to Camp MacCall, N. C.

According to Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief, Army Field Forces, Tarheel will be an advanced training exercise. It is designed to train army units in troop movement and field operations under simulated combat conditions and to provide operational training for Fifth corps headquarters.

Manint Named To New Duties

First Lt. Edwin M. Manint, who until March 14, was assigned to the military personnel division of the Infantry Center, has been appointed post theater officer, it was announced this week.

Lieutenant Manint is no stranger to Fort Benning, having arrived at this post as a newly inducted private in May 1941. After approximately a year, with the First Student Training Regiment and the Parachute School, he entered Infantry Officer Candidate School.

Upon graduation from OCS in September 1942, the new theatre officer was transferred to the Bermuda base command, where he operated the command's post exchanges.

The lieutenant's next assignment was again at Fort Benning, this time with the 131st Infantry regiment. Acting as demonstrator for OCS classes, Lieutenant Manint remained here until the 131st was inactivated in February 1944.

He then was sent to Camp McCoy, Wis., and from there to Camp Croft, S. C. It was at Camp Croft, where he was an administrative staff officer, that Manint was promoted to first lieutenant in January 1945. Married and the father of one daughter, Lieutenant Manint makes his home in Benning Hills.

Fifth corps headquarters; the 82nd Airborne division, tank, artillery and service support units and tactical air units of the Continental Air Command, Md.

Upon completion of the training phase, which will take place from April 21 to May 11, Task Force Victor will enter the main maneuver, during which it will represent the "enemy," especially trained by Aggressor Force. The "enemy" forces will consist of units built around the Force nucleus from the Ground General School, Fort Riley, Kans.

Aggressor Force will assemble at Fort Bragg from April 15 and Task Force Victor will arrive there from April 10-20. Other Victor units, in addition to those already named, include the 4th and 758th Heavy Tank battalions, the 98th Field Artillery battalion, all of Fort Bragg, and the Third Armored Cavalry regiment of Fort Meade, Md.

Several supporting service, intelligence and similar units from home stations in the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth army areas will also take part in the exercise.

General Devers said that national guard and organized reserve corps personnel will participate in the exercise to the "greatest extent practicable."

Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, jr., commanding general of the Third Army, will command the entire exercise, while Lt. Gen. John H. Hodges, exercise director, will represent General Gillem in the field and will command the Aggressor force and the umpire group.

An estimated 325,000 officers and men in over 5,000 federally recognized national guard units and army units from all states, the district of Columbia, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico will take part in the largest field training program in the history of the national guard next summer. Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the bureau has announced.

Most of the men who move to the intensive 15-day field training periods throughout the summer will be veterans. Last summer some 275,000 took to the field, the summer before about 80,000.

Many reserve officers also are expected to train with the guard this summer.

As last year, the movement to camps and training areas—about 60 state and federal camp sites for the army guard and some 15 major air field or facilities for the air units—will be made a full-scale military movement.

The majority of some 285,000 guardsmen in about 4,500 army units will make the movement by train or national guard vehicles—an estimated 50,000 vehicles will be used to move the units.

Enrollment Opens For Night School

Registration for the spring term of the Army Education Center's night school opens here next Monday, and the classes will begin on April 7, school officials have announced.

Interested personnel may sign up for the instruction any time between Monday and the opening date of the term, and the registration may be accomplished through unit information and education officers.

When the new term gets underway, classes will be held from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday, and the instruction will be divided into two phases. The first part will be from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m., and the final phase will start at 8 p.m. and last until 10 p.m.

No tuition is charged for the classes, and the faculty members are selected civilians. In urging applicants for the spring term to register early, officials pointed out that some courses of the winter session were closed early because of demand for certain subjects was much greater than had been anticipated. The enrollment for the winter quarter, which is now in progress, is 1,076.

In mapping the curriculum for the spring term, the education center has taken into consideration the fact that the array today consists both of career and non-career military personnel, and the courses being offered include USAFI subjects prescribed by career guidance programs.

Four of the most commonly used foreign languages, French, Spanish, German and Russian are on the agenda for the spring session. Classes in French are conducted from 8 p.m. until 9 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday night, while the other three are in session from 8 p.m. until 10 p.m. on each of the other nights.

Classes in the 4.5 p.m. period will review arithmetic, basic mathematics, business law, physics, public speaking, beginning typewriting, psychology, commercial art, basic subjects and automobile mechanics.

Bookkeeping, high school algebra, small business management, high-grade English, advanced typing, photography, high-grade English, silk screen, seventh-grade English and auto mechanics will be taught from 8 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

Brazil's War Minister Sets Benning Visit

Maj. Gen. Canrobert Pereira da Costa, minister of war of the United States of Brazil, is scheduled to visit Fort Benning in early April, according to an announcement this week by the Department of the Army.

General Canrobert, who will arrive in Washington by air from Rio on March 30, will make a good tour of the U. S. at the invitation of Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall. He will also visit the Washington, the Brazilian minister of war will tour military installations and industrial centers in the middle west. Included in the itinerary are stops at New York, Detroit and Chicago as well as inspections at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., Fort Knox, Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Benning.

General Canrobert, a professional soldier since 1918 when he graduated from the U. S. Military Academy and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army, was decorated with the U. S. Studying training methods used in American army service schools.

On his forthcoming visit, General Canrobert will be accompanied by the chief of staff of the Brazilian army, Major Alvaro Fiuza de Castro; the director of the Technical and Production Department, Major Gen. Candido Caldes, and other members of his official staff.

Three U. S. army officers, headed by Col. Anthony J. Drexler, will be assigned to his sides during his stay in the U. S. The general will return to Rio on April 16.

Another fling of overseas service for the unit was nipped in the bud when the war in the Pacific was ended, and the 328th Ordnance company was ordered to a new station at Fort Jackson, S. C.

While the organization was charged with the responsibility of maintenance of the post's vehicles at Fort Jackson, it again changed names—this time to its present designation as the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company.

Sergeant Sykes' present duties with the 516th are those of assistant platoon sergeant of the Second Automotive Repair platoon and an assistant shop foreman.

GI 'Guinea Pigs' Return From Frigid Experiment

Thirty-one officers and enlisted men of Army Field Forces board No. 3 landed at Lawson field last week, having returned from three months of winter maneuvers in the Alaskan Tanna valley.

The party, headed by Maj. Robert B. Wells, has been engaged in the testing of cold weather equipment which included shelters, clothing, skis, snowshoes, sleds, gloves and the functionality of infantry weapons in extreme cold.

This year's tests were a continuation of those carried on during Operations Yukon in Alaska and Snowdrop in upper New York last year. Similar tests were also conducted during the winter of 1946-47 in Alaska, the Aleutian islands and in Wisconsin under the names of Operations Frigid, Willow and Frost.

Prof. Robert N. Mercer, William L. Wagner, Jr., Kenneth Burnham, Jr., Robert C. Longline, Joe W. Sanders, Vernon C. Watson and Joe T. Collins.

Army units inspected (less than one per cent were unsatisfactory).

This year most army units will be tested in the next three year training plan begun last September, which, tailored to national needs, will be concentrated on essential subjects, combined simultaneous individual and unit training.

For the first time the national guard will train its 27 infantry and armored divisions as combat organizations this year.

The air guard will move all its units away from home bases for field training. Movement of camp level including units from several states, instead of the year's predominantly squadron level.

The numbered armies and air force headquarters will have inspection teams in the field to evaluate the scope, quality and quantity of their encampments.

Last year national guard summer training was rated as of a high order by the regular service units. In 1948 units inspected received satisfactory ratings, and only six of the 761

TC Inspector Due Zach D. Respass, a civilian representative of Third Army headquarters, arrived at Fort Benning Monday for the purpose of inspecting road and railroad activities of the Infantry Center.

OLDEST SOLDIER The oldest soldier in the 328th Ordnance battalion from the standpoint of service with the organization is Sgt. Windell Sykes, left, who joined the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company in August, 1942, shortly after it came into being as Company D of the 63rd Quartermaster battalion. Here, Sergeant Sykes outlines some second echelon maintenance procedures for Cpl. Ralph F. Boulware.

Sergeant Still In Original Outfit After Eight Years

If the unit historian of the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company starts with a set down on paper the chronological changes that have taken place since the outfit's inception, he probably will discover that Sgt. Windell Sykes is a pretty handy fellow to have around.

Sergeant Sykes joined the outfit back in August of 1940, shortly after it was activated as part of the 69th Quartermaster headquarters.

Shortly after completing basic training at Dodd field, Texas, Sykes went to the then newly formed Company D of the 69th Quartermaster battalion, a unit soon became one of the unit's cadetmen. When the company had amassed its full strength it went on Louisiana maneuvers, and Sykes emerged from the ordeal with a fourth class specialist's rating.

After the unit returned to its Texas station, the War Department came out with some radical changes that affected almost the entire organization of the army. At the time of the general shake-up Company D of the 69th Quartermaster battalion was redesignated the 3412th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company.

It was as the 3412th Ordnance company that the unit went overseas in January of 1943. Arriving at Khorramshahr, Iran, Sykes and the men of his outfit spent 20 months servicing and driving trucks over the 670-mile supply route to Russia.

Ordnance Units In New Location

The 328th Ordnance battalion, formerly housed in the third curatorial on the Main post, is moving to the Harmony church area with battalion headquarters being set up in building No. 3328.

The move involved the unit's headquarters and Headquarters detachment and the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company.

To many men of the 516th the new location is in familiar surroundings. During June and July of 1948, the same area was occupied by the company.

Changing their area entailed calling to a halt the preparations for the unit's spring maneuvers. After necessary buildings in the new work had been done, however, the unit will resume their accelerated training.

The process of improving the surroundings in the Harmony church area was started immediately upon arrival, and work thus far has included the laying of new water lines, additional coal bins and making minor repairs to buildings.

For off-duty activities of personnel of the units, renovations to a baseball field are being made under the supervision of WOJG Robert L. Glover, battalion athletic officer.

SOUNDING 'EM OUT Learn A Trade WITH MERRILL HARRISON

The recruiting posters in front of government buildings invariably as making a living, but getting with Uncle Sam' or some similar slogan, at along with the inducement to join the army and try it at government expense. Most Fort Benning soldiers have seen a lot of the world at government expense, some more than they ordinarily would like to see. But this week the Bayonet's inquiring reporter quizzed a few Infantry Center men on the angle of learning a trade, to find out if they actually had learned anything about a trade during their army careers.

Specifically, the question is asked: "Have you learned anything in the army that could do you some good in civilian life in the line of making a living or getting along with people? What do you learn?"

Capt. Ralph E. Niffenegger, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, 15 years national guard and active service. "Yes, I've learned a lot. Such things as diplomacy in handling people and tact. It took me a long time, too, as a matter of fact, to get just on account of that. In addition, I learned methods of adjustment. I've learned a lot that could be applied in private business to a great degree."

Sgt. John V. Triplett, Company K, 15th Infantry Regiment, two and one-half years service. "Maybe so, yes, I've learned supply procedure and would like to do pretty well as an executive in a stock room or shipping department. I've also learned to handle and get along with people during meeting all types in life."

Cpl. Foche L. East, Company A, Infantry School detachment, learned how to handle money, how to budget my income, learn to work with people, cooperate with them and teach them how to do their work, as well as new men coming into the service. This could also apply to almost any civilian job."

Sgt. Ist. cl. Delbert A. Paul, Heavy Motor company, 15th Infantry Regiment, three and one-half years service. "I'll say one thing; the main thing I've learned, I've learned to make friends, and if you have friends in civilian life, you can succeed in anything. I don't mean the friendships made during duty hours; I mean the real, lasting friendships. The new type of training the army gives a man will also get him off to the right start."

Paul, Delbert A. Paul, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 15th Airborne Battalion, one and one-half years service.

Artillery Unit Gets Recruits From Ft. Dix

Welcomed by staff officers of the 99th Artillery Field Artillery Battalion and with music furnished by the Third Infantry division band, 328 recruits from Fort Dix, N. J., arrived at Fort Benning last Thursday night.

The contingent of recruits, Infantry Center officials said, will be assigned to the newly-re-designated 99th Artillery Battalion, which is being organized under its new tables of organization.

Outlining the mission of the unit and enumerating the many recreational benefits which it promotes, Maj. Floyd V. Taylor, executive officer of the battalion, and Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, in welcoming the troops.

Last weekend's assignment was personally interviewed here as to educational background and military experience by a classification board of the Infantry Center in an effort to place him in a suitable assignment with the organization.

On Monday afternoon the newly-arrived men were further enlightened as to the recreational facilities of the battalion during a series of formal talks by Colonel Slade, executive officer of the 99th Artillery Club No. 5, and M-Sgt. Albert H. Jackson, the organization's sergeant major.

Colonel Slade officially welcomed the recruits to the unit and gave them a brief outline of the battalion's distinguished World War II service. Emphasizing the organization's peacetime mission, he added that the 99th felt a personal interest in the individual welfare of its men, and pointed out that a varied program of off-duty recreational events was being mapped.

Mrs. Trent then thanked the new men for their keen interest in the service club's program during the club's outing at Benning and, as an example, mentioned the eagerness they had shown in the recently-started camera club.

Daily and weekend programs of the club were outlined for the recruits by Mrs. Trent, who stressed particularly the establishment of the 99th Artillery groups, arts and crafts work, tours to points of interest, dances and social events.

Hospital Group To Hear College Glee Club Soon

The University of Georgia's famed glee club, now on a tour of nine Georgia cities, will arrive at Fort Benning next Tuesday to present an informal concert for the patients of the Station hospital. Admission to the concert, which is scheduled to begin at 3:30 p. m. will be free.

Featured as soloists with the organization will be Angie Clardy, soprano, who is a graduate of the university's music department, and who has appeared as guest soloist with many musical organizations in the south, including the Atlanta Symphony; Joseph McKee, tenor, who will render selections from "The Student Prince"; James Griffith, baritone, who not only majors in voice at the university, but also stars on the varsity basketball team, and Warren Little, flutist, who is also a graduate of the music department.

The glee club, under the direction of Byron Warner, associate professor of voice at the University of Georgia, will present a program which will include college medleys, spirit songs, light opera selections and comedy.

Following the Fort Benning performance, the club will travel to Columbus where it will present a formal concert at Jordan high school under the sponsorship of the college's off-campus center. Tickets for the Columbus performance may be purchased at Humus Music company; Watson-Wade, Hottin-Greentree or Chancellor's stores, or from any student at the off-campus center for 80 cents per person.

It's Not So Easy to Enlist

The army is seeking quality, not quantity, and as a result has set up stricter standards for enlistment and re-enlistment. These standards may cause the Fort Benning soldier who hesitates about reenlisting a great deal of anxiety. He may even find that he can't reenlist at all.

Quotas have been established for men reenlisting at Fort Benning for overseas commands, and a number of these quotas have already been filled. For instance, there are only 14 vacancies remaining for assignment to the Far East command under the March quota, and none at all for the Alaskan, European or Caribbean commands.

A man who stays out of the army longer than 90 days and is not eligible for reenlistment in one of the top grades also finds himself under a quota. For the Third Army area that quota is approximately two hundred. There are a great number of people in the Third Army area, and that two hundred won't go far.

(Incidentally, a married man who stays out longer than the allotted period can not reenlist at all, regardless of grade.)

A soldier now has only 20 days following discharge in which to make up his mind about reenlisting to fill his own vacancy. After that time, he is no longer eligible to reenlist for that vacancy, and may find himself, literally, without a home. He can not reenlist for some other post without prior authority and that authority is often difficult to obtain.

"She's a nice little girl. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time. I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive carefully . . . please drive slowly past the schools and intersections . . . and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

If You Drive, Please Read This

Since traffic accidents are with us every day and since there is a needless loss of life because of the carelessness of some drivers, we are reprinting below an item which has come to our attention several times during the past few weeks.

It behooves everyone who drives any type of vehicle to heed these words:

"Dear Driver,
"Today . . . my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and she wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel, Scout, was on the front porch and he whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved 'Goodby' and started off to the halls of learning.

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her . . . the girl with the yellow curls . . . and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher who has 'eyes in the back of her head' . . . the big trees in the school yard . . . and the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things . . . tremendously vital, unimportant things . . . and then we studied spelling, reading, and arithmetic . . . and then to bed. She's back there now . . . back in the nursery, sound asleep with Princess Elizabeth (that's her doll) cuddled in her arms. You wouldn't hurt her, would you? In her daddy, you see, and when her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or when her head is bumped, I can fix that. But when she starts to school, when she walks across the street . . . then she is in your hands.
"Please don't run over my little girl.
Daddy."

Report from Washington

Do You Want to be a Warrant Officer?

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

A new army warrant officer integration program soon will be announced, to fill hundreds of vacancies existing as unit administrators to commanding officers of combat companies. The position of unit administrator will be established in companies of the combat arms, such as infantry, combat engineers, artillery, armored cavalry and chemical mortar units. Officers and enlisted men of the first two grades with experience in combat arms will be eligible to compete for these appointments. Ages will be between 21 and 45 except for veterans of World War II who may be older than 45.

The current basic training course for army recruits has been extended from eight to 14 weeks, the Department of the Army has announced. The extended training will be implemented in all training divisions, except at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., and Camp Pickett, Va., which will be closed.

Legislation soon will be introduced in Congress to confer upon General George C. Marshall the rank of general of the armies of the United States. The late Gen. John J. Pershing was the only American ever to hold that rank. It was conferred upon him on Sept. 3, 1919, and lapsed with his death last year.

Command authority of Wacs over all other army personnel has been clarified.

Wac officers, warrant officers and non-coms will generally exercise command only over personnel of the Woman's corps. However, they may exercise such military authority as is deemed necessary to carry out the duties of assigned jobs.

Announcement of the inclusion of four combat specialties in the army career plan is expected soon. Though only five of nearly 50 fields are involved (including the food services field), the aggregate will bring 50% of army personnel under the career plan.

Army enlisted men transferred to the air force may re-enlist once in their service without losing re-enlistment pay, according to a comptroller's ruling. Any future enlistment, however, must be in the service from which separated, or no allowance will be payable.

Secretary Forrestal has directed the Medical Advisory committee to begin studies toward establishing a consolidated Medical department for all the armed services.

Army personnel due for retirement may be promoted without regard for position vacancy, if otherwise qualified. Authority is contained in circular 202, 1948.

The army has ruled that personnel who failed the Officer Educational Qualification test may take it again after a period of six months. Upon passage of the second test, if otherwise eligible, the individual may re-apply for competitive tour.

Your Red Cross

Aids When There's a Personal Problem

BY MURRAY HILL

It's not a bad idea, this being in the army, for the army provides everything for a man's material comfort: housing, food, clothing, and medical care.

But suppose something goes wrong at home, or you have a personal problem. That's where the Red Cross comes in.

Big as it is, however, the Red Cross can't do everything. It cannot grant a leave, but it can present the facts of home troubles or family illness to your commanding officer so that he can grant a furlough. If an emergency leave is approved after verification from the chapter and you need transportation, we are glad to make you a loan. If your family needs advice or assistance, the home chapter will be glad to help them get what they need.

The Red Cross tries to keep a sharp eye on all its operations, but sometimes things get snafued in spite of all our care. When the Red Cross finds one of its representatives out of line, it cracks down just like the army.

There you have it: a thumbnail sketch of Red Cross service to you and your family. Remember, however, that our activities are guided by army regulations just as yours are; but if you have a problem, we will go all out to help you. So, come in to see us sometime.

Lent Should be a Season of Penance

BY CHAPLAIN JOHN F. RAFFERTY

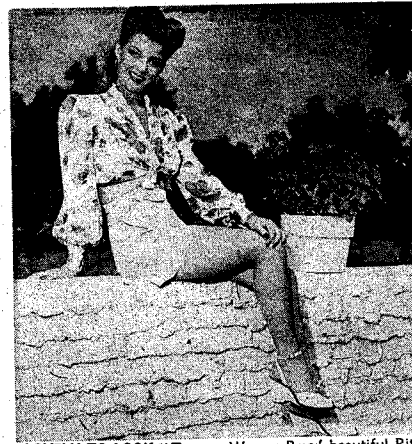

Once again we have entered upon the Holy Season of Lent. It is for Christians a season of penance. Even one who never does any act of mortification, self-denial or prolonged prayer can sense in the atmosphere of Lent something penitential.

Lent is fundamentally a Christian season. What good Christians do during Lent is what Christ taught them to do during His forty-day fast in the desert. However, the Master's penances did not end there. His life was one of penance and prayer. Did the Eternal Son of God need to undergo these purgatorial self-immolations? The answer is that He did not. He did them so that we who needed them might follow His example. His mission was to save and to teach us regarding the welfare of both body and soul. Again and again He warned us that as He suffered so we would suffer. "The servant," He said, "is not greater than the Master. Unless you do penance you shall all likewise perish."

A soldier of the Army of Christ realizes penance works to his advantage in a twofold manner. His soul benefits, because

Victory over the unruly passions is more easily accomplished by the aid of self-denial. Man's will power which can become enfeebled by pampering the passions can be strengthened by mortification. When mortification is accompanied by prayer, it can be a powerful weapon not only in the cause of social righteousness, but also in character building and happiness of the individual.

The spirit is constantly at war with the flesh and unless the spirit triumphs there is little hope that the individual can be a good soldier of Christ. If a man is a good soldier of Christ, then he will be a good soldier in defense of his country. If he can wage a good fight against his three greatest enemies, the world, his own flesh and the devil, then he can be depended upon to fight a good fight against the enemies of his country. The lessons that Christ taught of mortification, self-denial, and prayer are the lessons which we as soldiers ought to rehearse well and often. They will be our greatest help as soldiers of the United States and our surest guide to the Kingdom we love and seek—the everlasting glory of hereafter.

To Amuse You Today

"The kid came in from a football game. Tugging at his mother's apron strings, he said, 'Ma, didn't I hear you tell Aunt Mary you was proud of me because I had your eyes and daddy's nose?'"
"Yes, yes, you did," said his mother, fondly.
"Well, look at me now, ma," replied this kid; "I got no teeth like grandpa."
"My sweetie, he has gone away. And I am filled with gloom! She said that she'd write every day."
"But didn't say to whom."
Up to a certain point a man goes with a woman, but after that he's taken.
"The small son of a Boston merchant, visiting his grandmother in the country, was overjoyed to discover that the farm boasted a pecan tree. Picking up a handful of nuts, he brought out the old lady. 'Can you crack these with your teeth?' he demanded.
"No, indeed," she chuckled. "All my teeth were pulled out years ago."
"Good," exclaimed the urchin. "Then you can hold these for me while I go get some more."
"We walk for many moons— I've waited plenty long for a new car."
"Iron horse come! No more a game. This is the last hand, fellows. I get off at the next station. Life so happy hunting ground. Manitou angry—Gotta rush back to the office. The boss is unhappy again."
You with last night in the side-saddle. Many long knives, many scabbards. Five riders, no waiting. Mighty Deerslayer wantum wampum. The butcher is here with his bill.
"Ugh! He makes me sick!"
"No squaw in tepee. Bucks all gone. My wife left me. I'm broke."
"Mc make big medicine. — I think I'll take an aspirin and lie down."
New cars are styled for the future. Ah, Progress this is the year. The age of tomorrow is on us; And the super-highway is here.
The only flaw in the picture, of the driver's designed for a bug and a hole.

Boy Scouts

Troop 127 Boy Scouts of Fort Benning held its weekly meeting at 7 p.m. Friday, March 11, which is reported here by the troop scribe.

BY ROBERT BLANDFORD The 23 members of Troop 127 attended the weekly meeting at 7 p.m. Friday, March 11. The general theme of the meeting was first aid. Senior Scout Hugo Hathaway ably conducted a first aid course designed to foster the advancement of the troop up the scout ladder to first class scout. New boys continue to join the troop and old scouts continued to re-register. If many more boys join, a new patrol will have to be activated.

Several recent appointments have been made including the appointment of Scout Bill Rick as senior patrol leader, and Scout Robert Blanford as troop scribe. Scout George Doty has assumed leadership of the Cobra Patrol, assisted by Donnie Thornhill. Recent additions to the troop are ex-scouts Bill Duncan and El Wharton.

The scout cabin resounds with stories of the February hike. The objects of the hike were collected. An overnight camp later held, and a troop rifle team already are being planned. Scouting goals have been selected for the future. Among these are plans to elevate all members of the troop to first class scout by summer. It is a big job, but one in which every boy in the troop, particularly the baseball team, is interested.

The meeting was followed by a board of review to examine eight candidates for second class scout and two for merit badges. The board consisted of Col. O. B. Beasley, Col. Arthur C. Purvis, Lt. Col. E. M. Newman and Lt. Col. Gibbs Niles. Scouts approved for promotion to second class included Berndt Beatie, Karl Baehle, George D. O. Y. Robert Blandford, Bobby Purvis, Laurance Smith, Donnie Thornhill and Philip Staunnessy.

Senior Scout Hugo Hathaway successfully passed the board, the award of two merit badges. All nine scouts were to attend the Georgia-Alabama Scout Court of Honor at the Muscogee County court house, Tuesday, March 15, at 8 p.m. to receive their badges. For boys who are eligible and desirous of joining, there are six vacancies in the troop.

Girl Scouts
Senior Girl scouts, Wing scouts, Junior Girl scouts, Brownies, their mothers and dads and other guests gathered at the Girl Scout cabin at 2 p.m., Saturday, for one of the biggest celebrations of the year — the 37th anniversary of the founding of the Girl scout organization. The program opened with the "smile song," followed by the scout promise. Sharon Smith faced the group with a solo, "God Bless America," and, for an encore, she sang "There's a Tree in the Meadow." Mrs. Wallace M. Hale told the story of the founding of the Girl scouts, and gave a short biographical sketch of Juliette Lowe. The founder, Miss Harriette Gerhart read a paper she had written about her trip to the Swiss Chalet as a member of the Juliette Lowe group. Every year, top senior scouts are selected and sent on a visit to the Chalet. Following Miss Gerhart's story "My Trip to Our Chalet," which is reproduced in part here, representatives from each group presented their contributions to the Juliette Lowe fund to Mrs. Wallace M. Hale. The scout song was sung, tea was served, and then, finally taps and dismissal.

"We knew we were lucky girls to be going in two groups of four to our chalet. After many letters it was decided that only eight of the original 116 girls that formed the first Girl Scout troop in the occupied zone of Germany could take the eight reservations that had been given. We drew lots and I was one of the lucky ones.

"At no time was age mentioned and we arrived to find that we were the only 11-year-olds there. The older girls made us feel at home and gave us the nicknames, 'rabbits' that was an honor.

'Buddy' System Enables Unit to Reach ARC Goal

By invoking the "buddy" system, Lieutenant Maddox and ten, Pvt. Benjamin Williams of Battery A, 894th Field Artillery, made it possible for his outfit to reach its 100 per cent membership goal in the current Red Cross drive.

Thus, Battery A was the first unit of its level on the post to reach a "job well done" to the post Red Cross headquarters.

General Macon Gets New Duty

During the ensuing hour and a half, the battery's Red Cross staff, consisting of Lt. John H. Maddox and his non-commissioned assistant, Sgt. Jonathan B. Hess, had registered the full complement of officers and enlisted men with the exception of Williams.

When Williams reported for his pay, the battery had 99 per cent of its personnel possessing Red Cross membership cards. Ironically, Williams found out that he would not be paid until later in the month. Upon learning that his battery was on the brink of a successful venture, however, he left the orderly room and within a few minutes, returned with sufficient funds to place his unit in the 100 per cent category. He had seen a "buddy" who got the money necessary to join the organization. Hastily compiling the battery's

ARC Hospital Recreation Program Augments Usual Medical Treatment

If they can't come for the entertainment, we'll take it to them, seems to be the motto of the recreation workers at the ARC Hospital at the Station.

An example of this is the fact that they put on 396 movies in the wards for bed patients last year, using 15 mm. films, while showing 53 25 mm. movies in the recreation hall.

Medical men have long realized that putting a patient in bed and just giving him medical care wasn't enough, especially if the man was slated to be hospitalized for any length of time. They soon found out that a scheduled 248 parties and other special activities. These activities ranged from dances, to which girls from Columbus and Phoenix City came, to game nights, which consisted of reading 6 a m e s and "just being around to talk to the men."

Other special activities included 17 off-post trips for men. The medical officers said could leave a short time. Patients were taken to such places as the Yuchi reservation for picnics, to football games including the Peanut Bowl game and on trips to nearby points of interest.

The Red Cross also handled attendance of patients at many per athletic events. For the bed-ridden soldiers, the program moves into wards. Each worker is assigned wards to visit daily. They visit the men, play cards and other games with them, and they have cigarettes, and, in general, let them know that they aren't forgotten. The Red Cross also works with the special services office in coordinating entertainment through service organizations for bed patients. Thus "live shows" are brought into the wards whenever possible. The recreation workers are experienced in their work, many of them having served with the Red Cross overseas. Two recent additions to the staff at the hospital include Miss Katrina Stolberg and Miss Shirley Schaub. Miss Stolberg, who recently arrived from the U. S. Naval hospital in Charleston, S. C., has three years experience with the Red Cross and served overseas in Japan. Miss Schaub, who recently arrived from the naval hospital in Pensacola, Fla., also has been with the organization three years.

HERE AND THERE

By VINCENT GIARRATANO

Although the changing weather has more or less given us a taste of the four seasons of the year in the past two weeks, baseball is breaking out on sandlots and home diamonds all over the post.

Coaches and managers who have started spring drills express high hopes for the coming season based on the return of a sufficient number of 1948 veterans in most of the units.

The addition of new talent, built around the veteran nuclei, gives indications that diamond competition will tighten considerably this season, and that the Infantry School detachment Profs, last year's champs, will definitely face a much tougher schedule than they did in 1948.

The transfer of personnel and the acquisition of new talent through recruit groups that have been swelling the rosters of the 15th Infantry regiment's Third battalion, the 99th Field Artillery battalion, the 3440th Area Service unit and the 30th Provisional Medical group have given us ample reason to believe that the tempo of diamond competition will be stepped up considerably.

The Student Training regiment nine, made up largely of veteran Airborne battalion diamondmen, is in the process of reorganizing its lineup for the coming program.

As fate would have it, three ex-members of the parachutists' perennial enemy, the ISD Profs, will be included in the STR aggregation this year.

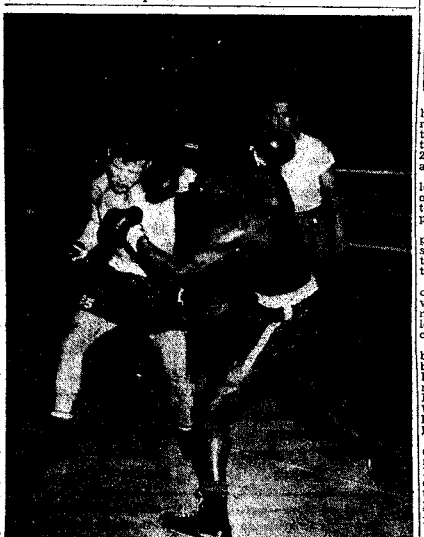

Facing his old teammates as a member of the Airborne STR crew this year will be pitcher Ike Silcox, who exploded the myth of the Trooper's strength early by whiffing eight parachutists and walking two in a 2-0 ISD victory last year in the season's first Prof-Airborne tilt.

Joe Smith, who played with the American league Philadelphia Athletics, and the Macon Peaches of the Sally league, will also face his former buddies as an Airborne STR player.

Outfielder Bill Brooks will romp over the grassy area as the third ex-Prof to change to the STR-Trooper camp for '49.

The race for the top spot last year was a dangerously close one between the Profs and the Troopers with the Profs holding the lead all the way to finish the season undefeated. Airborne batting and pitching fell just short enough to give the infantrymen the edge, but with Silcox on the mound, and Brooks and Smith handling dibbons, we feel the Profs will find the going a mite tougher this year.

Batting and mound superiority of the ISD became evident when the Profs ended the season by sweeping a three-game series with the Troopers.

Post Anglers Win Valuable Awards

Bream Catches Best Of Rodeo

Strings of fish that would gladden the hearts of most fishermen were pulled out of King's pond last Saturday and Sunday during the two-day Fort Benning Fish and Game maintenance association-sponsored fishing rodeo.

Eleven hundred and thirty large bream, weighing a total of 836 pounds, and 23 bass, totaling a total of 31 pounds kept the balance and Capt. Robert T. Carey, director of the tournament, busy both days recording catches and weights for possible prize winners.

In the two days of the tournament, 125 anglers lined the banks and dotted the horizon of the pond from dawn to dusk trying to complete a string or hook the big one that would win one of the valuable prizes offered for the best strings and the biggest single fish.

Lucky bait casters who won prizes for Saturday's fishing were Sgt. I. C. Arthur E. Larson, whose four-pound, 15-ounce single string of bream, and Sgt. H. Huntley, who also got an Acrobass, and Mrs. Ewald Knuth, wife of 1st Sgt. Ewald Knuth, who hooked the largest crappie and won a Bronson casting rod.

Sunday's anglers competed for prizes which included a south-bend split bamboo flyrod and reel for the best string of bream, won by Henry E. Englefer, a retired veteran for six bream he caught weighing four pounds, five ounces.

An Actionrod casting rod went to Lt. John A. Baker for the largest single bream, and Sgt. I. C. Arthur E. Larson won a South-bend split bamboo flyrod for the largest single bass.

Cpl. Thomas Rusert was awarded a tackle box containing an assortment of files, hooks, pliers, and other fishing accessories for catching the largest crappie.

Provisions of the tournament called for strings of six fish in each class. Since none of the contestants completed strings in the bass and crappie classes, the prizes which were to have been awarded for these strings were held over for the consolation drawing for nonprize winners who were in the tournament and at the presentation.

In addition to the left-over first prize, consisting of South-bend, Actionrod and Bronson rods, and Langley and Actionrod reels, another equipped tackle box, as well as extra rods and reels were given away in the drawing.

Emmett Cota of Atlanta, a casting expert who represents a national sporting goods concern, demonstrated the proper techniques of bait, plug and fly casting on both Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and introduced a rod and reel known as the spinning reel which has long been in use in Europe and is now gaining rapid popularity in the U. S.

Cota explained that this type of rod and reel is the most accurate and best anti-backlash type known. Because of the accuracy of spinning reel casting, certain streams in France and Germany were reported against "spinning". Cota said.

Army Lightweight King To Turn Professional

Marshall Clayton, the Benning lightweight boxer who made a sensational climb from the novice bracket in army ring circles to the all-army lightweight championship was discharged from the army here last Monday.

The 29-year-old scrapper, whose opponents usually remember the terrific power of his punches longer after they have faced him in the ring, says he plans to go to New York and try to break into professional fighting after a visit to his home in New Orleans, La.

Clayton's army stint, dating back to 1946, and the beginning of his career as a boxer. He says he always did like the boxing game, but could never make up his mind to enter the ring until he went to Hawaii in November 1948.

Once he decided to try his hand at leather pushing, however, his ability soon took him out of the novice class.

The championship of the Hawaii North section was his first honor. Then came the All-Pacific army, the Pacific army force, and the Pacific navy berserker crowns.

In November, 1948, Clayton was assigned to Fort Benning where he made his stateside debut in the post intra-mural boxing circuit. It soon became evident to local fight fans that Clayton was the most likely prospect for the lightweight berth on the Doughboy ring squad, and it would probably represent the post in the 1949 Third Army tournament here.

At the end of the tournament, Clayton had added the Third Army diadem to his collection of laurels.

Then came the all-army tournament at Fort Myer. Ring champs from the European command, the Pacific command, and all the U. S. army areas went to Fort Myer for a crack at army world championships in their weight classes.

The 29-year-old Benning scrapper climbed through the ropes on four different occasions during the week of Feb. 21-28. Three opponents were carried back to the corners, unconscious.

The fourth, though still on his feet, was only slightly more conscious than the previous one when the referee declared the rugged lightweight the winner by technical knockout.

Upon his return to Fort Benning after the all-army tournament, he was welcomed back by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, quarters the Infantry Center commander, who presented him with a letter of commendation written by Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Third Army commander.

MARSHALL CLAYTON . . . Turning Pro

Last week Clayton, along with the rest of the Third Army team, was summoned to Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., where he and his mates were given certificates of achievement by General Gillem.

His most recent recognition came from Service battery of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, which bade him farewell by presenting him with a letter of commendation from Lt. Col. Tod H. Slade, battalion commander, and an attractive sports jacket as a gift from the organization.

ISD Recruits Receive Rating Advancements

Nine recruits of the Infantry School detachment were promoted to private recently. Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, detachment commander, has announced.

The advancements went to Pvt. Abraham L. Greenburg, Edwin Roff, Thomas A. Lenny, Webster of the Rockets, and Lenny Webster of the Rockets, who were promoted to private first class.

Private first class promotions went to Sgt. Arthur L. Roe and Milan Verlich, all of the detachment here.

Oliver Jackson, 162 1/2-pounder, the Rockets, garnered a fully supported verdict over Nate Williams, 165-pound Trooper. Employing a hooking, bolo-like left hand, Jackson held the advantage throughout the margin, the second-place Sandhill Rockets copped 6 decisions for 125 counters, enough to place them atop the heap in the winter series of the post intra-mural boxing program, as the curtain was drawn on the campaign last Friday night.

Final standings gave the Rockets 755 points, the Airborne battalion 740 markers, the 3440th Area Service unit 350, the 15th Infantry regiment 330 and the 99th Field Artillery battalion 125. The Hawaiian point system was used throughout the campaign to record team victories.

In the Friday night card climax, post welterweight champion Norman Clark laid his title on the line and successfully defended it by scoring a technical knockout over Walker Mason of the Rockets in the first round of their scheduled three-rounder.

Mason carried the fight to the titleholder during the first minute of the bout opened by hitting Clark took up the offensive and initiated a vicious two-handed attack which drove Mason from one side of the ring to the other. File-driving lefts and rights floored Mason as the bell intervened. The challenger was unable to report for second-round action.

Overcoming the league-leading Airborne battalion's 35-point margin, the second-place Sandhill Rockets copped 6 decisions for 125 counters, enough to place them atop the heap in the winter series of the post intra-mural boxing program, as the curtain was drawn on the campaign last Friday night.

The Rockets' Jimmy Brown, Class II welterweight, was forced to head pace for his unanimous win over ever-dan-gerous Tony Perfidio of the 15th Infantry in a setto which featured Perfidio's continuous stalking tactics and Brown's point-gathering counter-punching.

A classy 145-pounder from the Airborne battalion, Lemmie Jones, staged a decisive three-round victory over Roger Embury of the 3440th Area Service unit. Embury's gameness carried him through two knockdowns during Jones' hard-punching attack which reached its apex during the second and third rounds.

A surprise bout featuring the Troopers' Tom Gallagher of a Doughboy baseball fame and Lenny Webster of the Rockets ended with Webster getting a middieweight nod from the split balloting.

Welterweight Memes Vanzant of the Rockets downed the Airborne battalion's Clarence Chertory. A no-count drop of his foe was scored by Vanzant in the first. Cho hit the mat briefly twice in the second, and the third-round bell saved the Trooper fighter from taking a count.

The Airborne's lightweight Lou Vanega won a split decision over Jackie Stroman of the Rockets in a bout colored with comedy. The final match of the evening was an exhibition between middieweight Herman Burke, 156-pound Columbus lad, and William Cole, a 165-pounder from the Airborne battalion. The contest was staged in three three-minute rounds.

OUTFIT'S TRACK EXPERTS VIEWING BRIGHT SEASON

By Bob Phillips
As the Fort Benning track season approaches, a steady flow of additional cinder sprinters from the Third Battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment has definitely brightened the unit's chances in the distance events.

In the past track representatives from the outfit have been dominant in sprint circles and a limited number of field events leaving the bulk of long-winded activities wide open to athletes with more durable ambitions.

The influx of some 200 sports-minded, foot-footed recruits to the battalion now provides this long-sought talent.

For the past two weeks, these older tracksters of the unit have been readying themselves for the ensuing season through daily workouts in Doughboy stadium.

Prominent among the trackmen is smooth-running, 170-miler Jimmie Williams, a holdover from last year's Bulleit squad.

Hampered by a knee injury last season, Williams has shown great improvement during practice sessions, and expects to hold his own in the event once real competition sets in.

Participating in the two-mile run along with Williams is elegant Joe Villa. A newcomer to Fort Benning's cinder lanes from Oakland, Calif., Joe has already established himself as a competitor to be reckoned with. Standing over six feet tall, Villa is the type of runner who moves from the starting blocks in a hurry, sets a terrific pace and finishes in a cloud of dust.

Sharing in the one-mile run races are diminutive Frank Dan-

Lawson Begins Spring Practice For Area Loop

Sports interest at the Lawson airforce base has switched to baseball during the past week with the inception of spring tryouts for the base diamond nine.

The Lawson Flyers will not enter the Fort Benning intramural league this year since they are participating in the Southern airforce area league being formed by area headquarters at Maxwell airforce base, Ala.

Approximately 25 hopefuls have reported for training and workouts, and various positions on the squad soon will be assigned.

Returns from last season included second-baseman Drew Jones, pitcher Raymond Thomas, shortstop Paul Baker, outfielder Ed Gravelly, catcher Fields Cox, outfielder Garrigt McBride and pitcher Russ Sanders.

The first scheduled games for the Flyers will be on April 7-8 at Warner Robins airforce base in Macon, Ga. Nine home games and nine out-of-town encounters are on the Flyers agenda at present.

Included in the Southern airforce area league are teams representing Warner Robins; Brookley airforce base, Ala.; Shaw airforce base, S. C.; Maxwell; MacDill airforce base, Fla.; Eglin airforce base, Fla.; Tyndall airforce base, Fla.; Craig airforce base, Ala., and Lawson.

3rd To Teach Sports Quiz—Men to Swim

An intensive "learn to swim" campaign will be launched this summer by the Third Infantry. What is the name of the division, it was disclosed this week by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark, the division commander.

Under the program, every officer and enlisted man in the division will be taught to swim during duty hours. The objective is to have every "Marneman" "I know it can be done," said General Clark in explaining his project. "We tried it in the Pacific with the 33rd Infantry division."

Tentative plans call for Red Cross instructors to qualify key personnel. They in turn will instruct and qualify division members. Life saving techniques and water safety also will be taught.

The swim classes will be part of a physical training and athletic program which will be carried on by the division from April until September.

Benning Linksmen Outpoint Atlantans

Linksmen of Fort Benning scored a double-barreled victory over Fort McPherson, Ga., in a two-match nassau system series at the local Golf and Country club last weekend.

In the Saturday match, the Benning team, which rolled up a 50-25 win over the Atlantans, and came back with a 51-24 decision on Sunday.

The only grand-slam victory for the post golfers on Saturday came when Robert J. Rosa and Roy Turgeon teamed to take nine points from J. W. Marks and J. A. Talmadge of McPherson. By taking eight out of nine possible points in the Sunday match, Rosa and Turgeon chalked up the most top-sided win of the meet for the host squad.

The top two of the Benning team, John Henion and George Hardgrove, broke even in the Saturday outing against W. E. Browne and Paul Markland, but took eight and one-half points in the Sunday contest. Markland, incidentally, formerly was a prominent Benning golfer, and was medalist for the enlisted men's tournament here last summer.

In other Saturday contests, Arnold Hoshoke and E. Caldwell of Fort Benning took seven and one-half counters from Matt E. Bristol and Paul McPherson; C. W. Davis and Herb Bench of the host quad won eight and one-half points from R. W. Gorman and Ming Rose of the visitors; W. H. Berkeley and H. F. Linneman of Fort McPherson outpointed the Benning team of A. A. Gottlieb and Claude English, five and one-half to three and one-half; and S. F. Frazier and Emil P. Eschenburg of Benning edged E. D. McCrackin and C. Lichirio of Fort McPherson, 6-4.

In the semi-division, D. P. Buckland and M. L. Miller of the host squad split nine counters

Brigadier Firbank To Complete Tour

Brigadier G. L. Firbank, commandant of the British School of Infantry, is scheduled to leave Fort Benning Saturday morning after a 10-day tour of the Infantry Center.

The British school commandant, who arrived on the post last Wednesday, has been accompanied on his tour by Lt. Col. G. F. J. Pitt of the British army and Lt. Col. H. W. Greer, United States Infantry liaison officer to the British school.

Brigadier Firbank and his party have visited the special associate basic infantry officers' class No. 3 for today. They will witness a demonstration of the reinforced rifle company in attack this afternoon.

Demonstrations of coordinated fire, conduct of defense from line battalion and battalion in the attack will conclude the itinerary of the British officer Friday.

The day following their arrival at Fort Benning, Brigadier Firbank and his party were the guests of Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School on a survey of organization and operation of the Infantry School.

During the afternoon, they witnessed the problem of rifle and weapons platoons in attack, and Brigadier Firbank addressed the school's faculty at 4:30 p. m.

A night problem at Fort Benning climaxed the day's activities for the British officers. During the day they had visited advanced infantry officers' class No. 1 and special associate infantry officers' class No. 1.

A student presentation of a historical monograph delivered by Maj. L. S. Faulkner of advanced infantry officers' class No. 1 was heard by Brigadier Firbank early Monday morning, and he attended a sniper training and river crossing technique demonstration later in the morning. He observed a class in individual day training in the afternoon.

Tuesday the group visited Army Field Forces board No. 3 and attended demonstrations of the machinegun and the 75 mm rifle platoon in attack.

Advisory Council Meets With Army PIO Officials

The Third army regional conference of the advisory council to the Women's Interest section of the army's public information division was held yesterday at Fort Benning.

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark, commanding general of the Third Division, welcomed the delegates to the all day meeting which was presided over by Miss Margaret Bannister, chief of the Women's Interest section in Washington.

Representatives of 40-odd women's organizations were present for the conference, which included throughout the army. Representatives included the Army Relief society, B'nai B'rith, Women's Supreme council, American Legion auxiliary, Salvation Army, National Catholic Community Conference, National Conference of Christians and Jews, the National Education association.

Col. Emil P. Eschenburg reviewed the world situation when he declared, "... the democratic countries are going through a bitter economic, political and psychological struggle with the dictatorial government." He said that many of the democratic countries had fallen into this "dictatorial orbit."

Col. Eschenburg quoted our objectives as stated in President Truman's inaugural address, "first, we will continue to support the United Nations; second, we will continue our program for world economic recovery; third, we will work to strengthen freedom-loving nations; fourth, we must initiate a program to share our scientific industrial know-how with underdeveloped areas."

Following the address by Col. Eschenburg, the advisory council met with Army PIO officials to discuss the program for world economic recovery.

Soldier's Action Averts Serious Conflagration

Pvt. William F. Willis was commended this week by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clark for his action in averting a serious fire in one of Fort Benning's larger post exchange buildings.

General Clark, commanding general of the Third Infantry division, acting as commanding general of the Infantry Center in the absence of Gen. P. W. Clark, said, in part, in his letter of commendation, "as a result of the alertness and prompt action of Private Willis, a fire of major proportions was averted."

"This demonstrated in this case the first and most important element of leadership, which is attention to duty and has established a standard therein which all personnel of this command might emulate."

The general's commendation, as well as a personal commendation, was given to Willis by his company commander, who was awarded to Private Willis Company B, 1st Infantry Regiment, for his actions while walking his guard post on the night of March 12.

Checking the darkened main post exchange building about 10:20 p. m., Private Willis noticed a fire coming from under the long frame building which housed the post laundry, dressmaker, barber, beautician, shoe-maker and dry-cleaning.

Hastening to investigate, the sentinel found flames shooting from the floor of what proved later to be the dressmaker's shop. Summoning an M.P. who was stationed in the nearby bus station and instructing him to stand guard, Willis dashed to a telephone, which was approximately 300 yards away.

After calling the fire department and reporting to the guard, thus assuring himself that his station was safe, Willis returned to his post.

Army Times on Hook Pay Plan

We are reprinting here another editorial on the Hook Pay Plan, which appeared in last week's issue of Army Times.

"Discussions of the Hook Pay Commission recommendations in this column so far have not gone into the disability retirement proposals.

"We would like to say a few words about them now.

"The Hook ban on retirement pay, unless a disability is at least 30 per cent by Veterans Administration rating standards, is sound, we believe. The commission is opposed to paying 75 per cent of active duty pay, tax free, to a person with very minor disabilities. Not that it favors dropping such persons with only severance pay; on the contrary it believes that withdrawal of retirement rights from this group will make the services think twice before forcing out personnel for whom suitable assignments easily can be found.

"The proposal for reexamination of the physically retired also is sound in principle. Had this recommendation been in effect at the end of the war, non-regulars would not have been subjected to repeated examinations and long hospitalization for "observation" while doctors debated whether their obvious disabilities were permanent or not.

"The proposal that physical retirement pay be a minimum of 50 per cent of active pay, unless length of service entitles a serviceman to more, will hit the very person this country is on record as being the most anxious to aid—the grievously wounded man of relatively short service.

"Congress might explore any of three approaches to physical retirement pay which will do justice both to the serviceman and to the idea behind the Hook proposal.

"If the VA rating table is to determine whether there is to be a physical retirement at all, it might also be consulted to determine the amount of retired pay. Combining of length of service and percentages of disability factors, originally proposed by the armed services, might be the solution. Or the Hook 50 per cent recommendation might be allowed to stand as the proper minimum for disabilities from 30 per cent to, say 60, 70 or 80 per cent, keeping the present 75 per cent of pay for those more seriously disabled. Or a system of dependent's allowances such as Congress voted for the Veterans Administration last year might be adopted.

"Finally, the Hook proposal that the disability must be incurred while acting "under competent orders" if a person with less than 15 years is to get retired pay will not only keep servicemen on the uneasy seat but will produce such a welter of inquiry boards, appeals and the like that any saving from the provision is doubtful.

"An increasing number of civilian employers do assume responsibility for their employees' after-hours mishaps, either by personal assistance in the individual case or by purchase of group insurance. This is particularly true of salaried employees as contrasted with hourly workers; servicemen being related from the nature of their employment to such salaried workers.

"And it should be remembered that a serviceman often cannot choose his dwelling. Hardly a week passes without a fire in some barracks. Yearly, damaging winds hit Okinawa, Key West and similar military stations. And how is a board to determine whether a serviceman in the tropics was bitten by an infected mosquito at his duty station or while sleeping that night?

"If this provision of doubtful economy and workability is to be retained consideration should be given to keeping the present "line of duty" concept for all periods, except furloughs and passes."

Cross Is Central Fact Of Christian Faith

The cross is the central fact of our Christian faith. On Calvary Jesus put a seal upon a whole ministry of life and service. He said once to a question put to Him, that on the commandments of love to God and love to our neighbor hangs all the law. He would have men know that the great need of either devotional or ethical religion is that men should keep perfectly this law of equal love to God and man.

Christianity is not a religion in the sense of stated dogma or creed, but God's wise and gracious way of restoring man to Him through concrete act of suffering and sacrifice made supreme in the life of Jesus, with the finality of the cross. No statement on the cross can fully reveal its meaning. Love, mercy, truth find stark realism in the stupendous fact of Calvary. It is our chief task and glory, therefore, to be witness to a great ideal of service and sacrifice lived out in the ways of men.

The Christian preacher stands on unimpeachable testimony when he brings to bear the implications of this supreme act of Jesus, and to interpret its meaning to the sinful selfish conduct of our times. The Christian world faces as it has faced since Calvary the unyielding-high challenge of suffering Jesus would have us all know beneath the cross—whose love transcends our patterns, customs and systems. We must not be so busy with the burdens of maintenance that, like Martha, we become too careful about many things.

Your Red Cross

Says Red Cross Girls Should Form Club

By MURRAY HILL

Were you a "Red Cross Girl" if so, I am writing a letter direct to you in this column this week, not only to you, but to the other fifteen or twenty more living at Fort Benning and in Columbus.

I am sure you did not know that my former "Red Cross Girls" were in this area, just as the others did not know you were living here. Perhaps some of you worked together, and have not heard from each other since you left the Pacific, England, or any number of places the Red Cross Girls served.

Anyway, for some time now I have been talking over with different ones as to "how about forming a little club." Let's say the Overseas Red Cross club, or what have you.

What do you think about it? Don't you think it would be nice for all of you to get together and talk over old times? What is more natural if you get together once, to get together again and again. Then we would have a little club.

A club would not last long without interest of some kind. What could you do? First, let's not overlook the social angle. A great many of you are very near the offenses committed in a previous enlistment, with certain limited exceptions. The decision will have an important effect on the administration of military justice.

"Report to the Army," a twice-monthly news-letter the army has developed to announce and explain policies to its personnel, particularly non-regulars, will go on a nation-wide distribution basis about April 1.

The second edition of "Officers' Call," published as part of the army's officers' information program, deals with "Problems of the Army." The subject to follow will be "Mission of the Army."

Plans for doubling the Alaskan garrison are being considered in connection with troop disposition problems covering the next 18 months.

Initial construction phases for the proposed armed forces guided missile proving ground would require three years, according to experts.

Woman's Club to Present Famed Dancer With Her "Slavenska Ballet Variante" As Final Concert of Community Series

Mia Slavenska, the internationally popular Croatian ballerina who was the triumphant guest star of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, now heads her own dance company, "The Slavenska Ballet Variante" which will be presented here on April 1 at the Main theater under the auspices of the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

This is the final of the Community Concert series for the season. Residents of Columbus as well as Fort Benning are invited. Main floor seats will be three dollars, balcony $1.50.

Mme. Slavenska's program for her present tour include works such as the music of Tchaikovsky, Debussy, Cesar Franck, Delibes, folk dances of her native Slavonia and the suite of American folk dances.

Born in Slavonia-Brod in Yugoslavia, this talented ballerina received her training at Royal Academy of Music in Zagreb and in France. At the age of 16 she gave her first gala performance at the Opera House in Zagreb with her own dance ensemble, in a program entirely arranged and choreographed by herself. Mia Slavenska is one of the few women ballet stars who has combined the art of dancing and choreographer at the same time. She has had stellar roles as the ballets Giselle, Swan Lake, Galette Parisienne, Scheherazade, Sylphides, Coppelia, Nutcracker and Spectre de la Rose. She will also be remembered as the principal female role in the motion picture "Ballerina".

Two of the featured numbers on the Slavenska program here will be the most popular of all Technicolor ballets, "Swan Lake" and "The Sleeping Beauty" which Mme. Slavenska has danced with acclaim all over the world.

Special novelties include a group of Balkan folk dances and the presentation of several new American works under the title "Settlers' Sunday," with Joey Harrington as the principal male dancer.

Other members of the troupe are Lois Ellyn, one of the most promising of the upcoming young American ballerinas; Peter Nelson, formerly an exceptionally agile football half-back, now one of the many outstanding American ball players who have adopted ballet dancing as a career; Eileen Locklin, featured dancer with the Ballet Variante; Ann Barney, who made her debut with Ballet Variante last season; Jon Andrew, whose first stage appearance was with the Adolph Bolm Ballet in Santa Barbara, also of Hollywood fame as dancer in several motion pictures; Dolores Delson, who gained stage experience dancing with Lazar Galperin's semi-professional ballet group; Jerry Curry, master of tap and ballet art, who danced with the San Francisco Opera company.

SCOUTS REPORT, 19 MARCH 1949
The meeting was opened by repeating the Scout Law. The Patrols and Eagle patrols played "Capture the Flag," while the Cobra patrol prepared for their exhibition of pitching and ditching tents in preparation for an overnight hike scheduled for April 20. The original plan for March was postponed because of the weather. Several Scouts were awarded their Second Class pins. Two Scouts, Sammy Morley and Fred Renfro went before the Board of Review and Court of Honor and received their Tenderfoot badges and cards.

Lt. Col. Charles D. Kepple, Scoutmaster, reported on the baseball and rifle teams. First baseball practice was held Monday, March 21. Rifle activities were limited to Scouts over 14 years of age.

As I told you last week, we have a new pack of Scouts. Among them are Bill Clarkson and Hal Lyon. Because of the many new members it has been necessary to start a new patrol. This has not been named to date.

Following the Scout Law, repeated in unison, and the Scoutmaster's benediction, the meeting adjourned.

Cub Scouts
The Cub Pack committee held a meeting Friday, March 18, to further develop the plans for the Air Adventure show scheduled to be held at Blue field, March 26. The Girl Scout cookie sale is now being held at Fort Benning. Boxes are 40 cents each.

Wing Scouts received their Senior Scout pins at the March 14 meeting. Mr. Lockwood of Eastern Air Lines showed a documentary film "Air Power is Peace Power" featuring the inseparable relation between civilian and military aviation. The film shown to an appreciative audience of girls and their parents, outlined briefly the history of aviation and its technical development, preceding a n during World War II. March 25 is the date set for a Wing Scout visit to the Muscogee county airport.

Greens Exhibition Planned For April Post To Welcome Two Top Golfers

Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret, two of the nation's top golfers, will play an exhibition match at Fort Benning, April 3, Country club officials here announced today.

Col. Maurice L. Miller, chairman of the Fort Benning Officers' club golf committee, said Mangrum and Demaret will be paired with John Jenon, Fort Benning's top linksman, and Jack Key, Jr., of the Columbus, Ga., Golf and Country club, considered one of the best golfers in the state.

While two-man pairings were not announced, it was expected that the visiting professionals will be paired against the local men for the 18-hole match.

Key, runner-up in last year's Georgia state tourney, has captained the Auburn college team for the last three years, and guided the team through an undefeated season last year.

Henon formerly starred on the University of Washington team. Currently the No. 1 man on the Benning club golf challenge ladder, he holds several trophies won in army tournaments, including the post's Gordon trophy for handicap play.

Both Demaret and Mangrum, currently participating in tour-the same year grabbed top honors at the St. Andrews course in Scotland.

He took the Pennsylvania Open title in 1938, and won several other tournaments, including the Thomasville Open and New Orleans Open, before entering the service in 1942.

Mangrum came back to win the National Open and the Argentine Open in 1948, the Ryder Cup team in 1947, and captured a berth on the Ryder Cup team in 1947, a spot he had held six years previously. Mangrum is also a holder of the Liverpool four-ball tourney title.

Young Key, top man on the Auburn team, is one of the most up-and-coming golfers in the entire South. Among other accomplishments, he boasts an impressive record of shooting 13 consecutive rounds under 70 on the Columbus Country club links. He was the club champ in 1948.

Key won the consolation of championship flight of the Southern Amateur meet last year when he went on to qualify for the National Amateur at Memphis, where he won his first two matches.

Henon, who hails from the Broadmore Country club and the Sand Point Golf club at Seattle, stroked his way into the semifinals of the Third army tournament in 1948, and finished the Third army team to play in the all-army tournament at Fort Lewis, Wash., where he went into the quarter finals.

The tee-off for the match is set for 1:30 p.m. Colonel Miller said. Admission will be $1.20 per person.

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

Monday, March 21, marked the official opening of the most popular season of the year, spring. Elsewhere young man's fancy may lightly turn to thoughts of love, but local sport fans welcome the season for the changes it brings about.

It is always a pleasure to athletes and fans to move outdoors and into the sunshine and fresh air of the diamonds, stadiums and pools.

The wheels of progress in the athletic offices, and golf and tennis committees turn night and day producing plans and schedules for activity in all the outdoor spectator and participant sports.

A turn out of track and field enthusiasts has hit the cinder paths and has been leaping over the hurdles in Doughboy stadium since early February indicating that track runs and field games should come into their own this year along with the more popular major sports.

Due to conflict with training exercise "Tarheel," the Infantry Center intramural track and field program, originally scheduled to start here in April, has been postponed until May 11. The intra-mural program will continue through June 8, ending with the Third army tournament at Doughboy stadium June 7-8.

In the past, cinder burners were dominant in the dashes and runs leaving the bulk of long-jumped stunts and field events short handed. But the turn-out of tracksters thus far leads us to believe that the coming intra-mural program and army area tourney will find an abundance of hopefuls making bids in everything from the sprint to the high bar.

Having hailed the coming of spring last week with their fisherman's paradise fishing rodeo on Konk's pond, the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association has settled down to some serious preparations for both the near and slight distant future.

Fertilization of King's, Averett's and Hadley's ponds got under way last Monday, and will continue until September during which time approximately 100 tons of fertilizer will go into the ponds.

The fertilizer that is placed in the ponds colors the water, shutting off the sunlight, thereby preventing the growth of undesirable weeds. At the same time, it enhances the growth of smaller plants on which the bream and other small fish feed.

Bass, which is usually the quarry of lake fishermen, feeds on the smaller species which explains the need for fertilization to fatten the smaller type fish.

The fertilization program also includes the necessary repairing, draining, cleaning and restocking of Pope's, Snelling's Pinner King's, Stevens and Woodruff's ponds. These ponds will then be closed for approximately two years during which time fertilization will continue.

Popular Sand Hill Course Home of Local Golf Team

Entering its third season of successful operation, the Sand Hill area's popular nine-hole golf course was invaded by a total of 132 followers of the ancient Scottish sport over the past week end, it was announced by Eddy Ivy the club pro.

At the same time, Ivy went on to say, the outstanding golfer of the 99th armored field artillery battalion were laying the ground work for the organization of a Walker Cup style for the purpose of inter-unit set-ups with other post organizations this season.

With Dave Reed assuming supervision, the 99th's golfing team will include such outstanding and fairway enthusiasts as Floyd T. Canaday and Edgar Powe. In Canaday, the team will have one of the Third army's top flight golfers, and the supporting cast of Reed, Powe and Ivy, produces an excellent plant in the line of capabilities.

Located in the Sand Hill area, the nine-hole course was constructed and completed in 1946 by the post engineers. The planning of the course was far-sighted in nature since it affords an excellent area for an additional nine holes.

The Fort Benning Officers' club will play host to the noted tennis stars who will stage exhibition matches on a tennis clinic on the Officers' club courts Sunday, March 27.

Wesley Van Horn, national amateur singles runner-up and a member of the Davis Cup squad of 1938, and the 1942-3-4 North-South professionals singles champion will play an exhibition singles match with Don Floyd of Atlanta, the Atlanta city champion, and one of the best tennis players in this section of the country.

Van Horn's honors include the 1945 national professional singles championship, the 1947-8-9 national doubles championship, and the runner-up position in the 1948-9 national singles professional tournament.

HENRY RADCLIFF

De Paul Scrapper Band Leader's Son

Henry Radcliffe, Jr., the 19-year-old son of Sgt. Henry Radcliffe, bandleader of the 196th Army band of Fort Benning, is known at Chicago's DePaul University, where he is a sophomore, as "Mr. Boxer."

Henry, Sr., says his son is more anxious at present to establish himself in service as an officer, than to continue his education at DePaul in January, 1930, and attended the Fort Benning, Ga., military academy in West Point, N. Y., and he is now majoring in subjects which may help him gain admission.

His ring record is considered the finest among members of the DePaul boxing team. Coach Paul Mail describes him as "one of DePaul's best bets for collegiate honors" and says he plans to enter the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y., and he is now majoring in subjects which may help him gain admission.

Radcliffe's boxing career started in December, 1947, when the DePaul Demons moved into collegiate competition after boxing was instituted as an intra-mural sport at the Chicago school.

In the Demons' first meet, a card in which they faced collegiate Sand City's John Carroll university's ring squad, Radcliffe captured a three-round decision over 135 pounder, Chet Zychowski.

Since then he has defeated opponents from Purdue, Loyola, Illinois, the University of Miami (Fla.), and Nebraska State universities.

Radcliffe and the Demons faced Hurricane Monday night, March 14, in what Coach Mail termed "the toughest match this season."

Bob Keen, former Golden Gloves competitor from Beaumont, Tex., and 135-pound intra-mural champ at Miami for the past two years was Henry's opponent in the fray. A second round knockout of the Texas Golden Gloves now brings Radcliffe's total victories up to eleven. Three of his wins have been by technical knockouts and two have come by the way of the kayo route.

The young lightweight has yet to be defeated.

Air Show Sponsored By Al Oula Shriners

Low-level stunts in flashy airplanes, daring parachute jumps, unbelievable airplane-aerial acrobatic acts, and comedy features will be the order of the day Sunday afternoon, March 27, at the Muscogee county airport, about a mile from town when a two-hour air circus will be sponsored by the Columbus Al Oula Shrine club.

Sponsors have succeeded in signing some of the nation's outstanding aerial artists and stunt men to put on a performance which is expected to exceed anything ever presented in this area.

Arrangements are being made with the airport manager to park all cars adjacent to the long runways in order that spectators may align themselves for the most advantageous view of the proceedings.

Twelve thrilling and unusual acts have been arranged, according to Shrine club officials, and the outstanding feature of the afternoon will be the amazing performances by the famed Thrasher brothers of Elberton, Ga.

The Thrasher brothers will present a series of airplane-aerial stunts which will enable spectators to hear conversations between the pilots and the ground stations. The Shrine club sponsored show is being staged as a charity event. The proceeds will go to various crippled children's organizations.

Reformed Airborne Nine Ready For Bid

Silcox, Ex-Prof Twirler, Adds New Pitching Power

The Airborne battalion, the Student Training regiment and Army Field Forces board No. 3 are combining their diamond talents to form a squad to be entered in the Infantry Center intra-mural baseball league this year.

The team, which will play under the banner of STR-Airborne, will be made up chiefly of members of last season's runners-up to the post championship, the Airborne battalion nine.

Mound duties will be handled by Ray Stem, one of last season's veterans, and Bob Cronin, who started with the trooper nine last year in his first, with the chutist squad. Added power by hurlers like Silcox, who tossed a fine record with last year's Pros, Don Herpphili, who wound up last season's chores on the hill for the Fort Jackson aggregation with a 14 win, six loss record, and Slim Blackwell, a cousin of Ewell Blackwell's of the Cincinnati Reds, will give opposing batters something to think about when they face these bulwarks of the mound.

Chaplain Hardin Gets State Post

Word has been received from the National committee of the Military Chaplain's association of the United States that Chaplain (Capt.) Harvey M. Hardin, Station hospital chaplain, has been selected as the state councilman for Georgia.

The Military Chaplain's association is a national organization representing more than 12,000 army, navy, airforce and Veterans' administration chaplains of the United States.

Three Reenlist Here

Sgt. 1st Cl. Johnny Jones and Cpls. Sidney Murray and Joe Nathan took on another three-year hitch by reenlisting with the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment 1st S. I. in the cavity. Gene still loves on the unit's 1949 baseball squad.

Athletic Versatility Seen In 15th's 3rd Battalion

The old axiom that a real or natural athlete is endowed with the ability to perform equally as well in a variety of sports holds true in the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment.

Local Cinder Path Bids Make Prospects Bright

The battalion's athletes who limit their athletic participation to one sport are few in number. The majority of them may well be classified as "versatile," taking part in a variety of sports activities and doing them all well. Others who have previously held their activity down to one or two others if they wanted to do so.

Tops among the all-around stars is Gordon Burke who is presently attending Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., but is expected to be seen at his regular short stop position with the battalion's diamond nine here on or before mid-season.

Burke's outstanding showings in baseball, football and basketball needs no questioning. He is good at bowling too.

A coming sensation as a lightweight boxer some three years ago, he sidelined activity in the squared circle in order to devote more time to other sports. His swiftness on the base paths and gridiron proves that he could develop into a dangerous competitor on the cinders too.

Then there is Gene Thomas, slugging sensation for the 1948 Bullet baseball aggregation. Gene carried his athletic prowess onto the gridiron last fall proving to be a terror at both offensively and defensively. He has decided to try his hand at track this spring and from all indications will doubtlessly do all right for himself.

Standing well over six feet tall he has entered his candidacy for the broad jump, javelin throw, relays and the 100-yard dash. A veteran of two years service in the cavity. Gene still loves on the unit's 1949 baseball squad.

Regiment's Billeting Head Tackles Job With Gusto

Mark Twain's observation that "everybody talks about the weather but nobody does a thing about it" might well have been used in reference to a housing situation for 30th Infantry regiment personnel that is, before 1st Lt. Robert E. Walters took over the duties of billeting officer.

Please Fellas, Cut It Out, Huh

They! Honest fellas! We know the sign says "Public Information Office" but we just aren't an information bureau.

Look what happens each day to poor 'll of 'em. Rodgers when he picks up the telephone. "What did I do with my baggage tickets, or do you know where I left them?" an anxious voice asks.

So fellas, please take it easy when you plow through that phone book. Public information office is the agency that sends news stories to newspapers! We're the guys that knock out stories for the Bayonet. We write radio shows and take pictures of you guys when you get promoted. But please, gals, no more questions, huh?

SOUNDING 'EM OUT Civilian Opinions WITH MERRILL HARRISON

For many weeks the enquiring reporter has been asking Fort Benning soldiers what they think of this, that or the other subject. During the course of these "interviews" many an older soldier has mentioned the "new army."

This week the enquiring reporter decided to forego interrogating soldiers in favor of civilians on the subject of the "new army." In the Main exchange, where the clerks serve anywhere from 10,000 to 15,000 soldiers a week, eight civilians were asked the question.

"What are the outstanding impressions you get of the soldiers presently serving at the Infantry Center?"

BUSH

George W. Bush, six and one-half years with the PX, six years with the PX, at the drug counter. "They are nice and some are smart-alecks—want to be cute. As a usual thing the younger ones try to be smart-alecks but the older ones, the majority of them, act their age. Sometimes one gets tired of the wisecracks. I don't see much difference between the soldiers of today and the ones of three years ago."

Miss Thelma Nelson, at the PX since July, 1942, working at the jewelry and clothing counters: "I think they're more on the ball than during the war. Now they seem to be more settled and paying attention to what they're doing. I don't find one fault. Sometimes you find one a bit smart but it seems to be more kidding."

HARMAN LAWRENCE

Mrs. Fieta Harman, three years with the PX, at the drug counter. "They are nice and some are smart-alecks—want to be cute. As a usual thing the younger ones try to be smart-alecks but the older ones, the majority of them, act their age. Sometimes one gets tired of the wisecracks. I don't see much difference between the soldiers of today and the ones of three years ago."

PHELPS ELLIS

Mrs. Mary Phelps, who just started at the PX and now works at the soda fountain: "Most of them are all right. They don't try to flirt and make dates. Those that do flirt are all ages. I don't know or care if they really want a date. The majority are just as polite as civilians. Even when they're very busy they don't give me a hard time."

Famed Dancer And Ballet Appear in Season's Final

The Fort Benning Woman's club will present Mia Slavenska and her Ballet Variante tomorrow night at 8:30 p. m. at the main theater, as the final feature of the Community Center season. Tickets for main floor seats are three dollars, and balcony seats are two dollars. They may be purchased at the box office of the main theater.

Many will remember Mia Slavenska's splendid performance last year when she appeared in Columbus at the close of the Three Arts League season.

At the age of four, Mia Slavenska's mother took her into Slavonia, at the crossroads of occidental and oriental culture, where she saw the great ballerina long before they ever saw her dance on the stage.

Slavenska came to America in 1940 with the Ballet Russe, and was acclaimed for her dancing in Giselle, Swan Lake, Gatee Parisienne, Les Sylphides, Coppelia and Nutcracker.

In 1945 she returned to her own dance company and made her first tour under the direction of F. C. Coppicus. She made three subsequent tours, then left the stage for a year to marry and become a mother.

Back on the concert stage again, Mia Slavenska, with her own company, the Slavenska Ballet Variante, began a cross-country tour last November.

Her husband, Dr. Kurt Neumann, her daughter, and her mother, who played a part in her famous daughter's first steps in "at away mountains a long time ago, and now in Hollywood."

It wasn't long before Mia Corak, (her family name) had outgrown the primary opportunities of the Josephine Weisler was advanced to the ranks commanded by Madame Margarete.

With a long season little Mia was considered the finest ballerina in the opera troupe. When composed especially for her.

T-Men Warn Counterfeit Money Being Circulated

Although the cash money issued by army finance offices is guaranteed Class A Uncle Sam currency, a flood of cleverly counterfeited five-, ten- and 20-dollar bills has been detected by the Treasury Department's Secret Service.

The T-Men have uncovered errors and giveaway defects in these bills which may be of use in avoiding being stung by the bogus money. Here are some facts which ought to come in handy:

If handed a bill which seems the least bit odd, scrutinize the treasury seal which should be a bright even blue on silver certificates, and a bright, light green on federal reserve notes.

The seal should be a clearly printed and easily read, a point where most counterfeit bills are poor. The print under the signatures of the treasurer of the United States and the secretary of the treasury should be well defined, and the letters should not be so closely spaced as to make reading difficult.

One of the most circulated bad bills is a five-dollar silver certificate, which is almost perfect, but which can be detected by the lack of the capital letters "S" and "W" in "Series of 1934 C" and "Washington, D. C." The portrait of Lincoln on this bill is darker than on the genuine, and his eyes are practically blocked.

Here's one more tip: Always check the two serial numbers on the face plate. The numbers should coincide, and there should be no more than eight digits. If they don't match, or you can count nine numbers, consider yourself stung.

Officer is Found Guilty of Passing Worthless Check

A Fort Benning officer was found guilty of passing a worthless check and sentenced to dismissal from the service at a General Court-Martial here last week.

The prosecution contended that Capt. Wisdom H. Stewart had written a check for $1,500 in payment for a debt and that when presented to the bank was returned marked "insufficient funds".

The recipient, according to his testimony, contacted Captain Stewart, who was instructed to re-promised to do.

When another attempt to cash the check failed, he again contacted the accused, but received no satisfaction. It was then that the recipient turned the check over to the provost marshal at Fort Benning.

Captain Stewart was given another opportunity, according to witnesses, to pay the debt, and when he refused to do so, charges were filed against him.

The trial judge advocate argued successfully that the accused was guilty not only of issuing a worthless check but also of conducting an officer and gentleman.

At another general court-martial last week, Robert J. Lange was found guilty of desertion and sentenced to a dishonorable discharge and 20 years imprisonment.

The government charged that Lange desisted from Camp Beale, Calif., on June 5, 1945, and was subject to trial under the 88th Article of War (wartime desertion). The accused pleaded guilty to the 81st Article of War (absent without leave), but contended that he was not guilty of desertion.

Both sentences are subject to the approval of Maj. Gen. Withers B. Burress, Infantry Center commanding general, and Maj. Gen. T. H. Green, judge advocate general of the army.

"TOONERVILLE TROLLEY" BECOMES A PERMANENT MONUMENT Track section, car, locomotive set up in STR area.

Railroad Remnants Recall Colorful Transportation Era

Those who were at Fort Benning back in 1946 doubtless will recall the Fort Benning railway with its narrow-gauge road and tiny cars and locomotives. These relics of bygone years now have been set up near the Student Training regiment, the scene of the little but mighty road's last activity, as a permanent memorial to a retired combat veteran with eight "fogies" to its credit.

Never did a veteran boast a more colorful career, over a greater number of years, than does the puffing little Hercules of transportation which carried troops and supplies for nearly 28 years over the world's longest narrow-gauge railroad.

Affectionately dubbed "the Toonerville Trolley", the road and its hard-working locomotives were designed by the Davenport Locomotive works of Davenport, Iowa.

Recognizing its possibilities, the War Department "drafted" the invention for use during World War I after the constant rain and mud in France plus the almost complete absence of good highways had rendered virtually useless the gasoline powered vehicle as a means of transportation.

Working with ingenuity born of hardship, the army laid track for the 30-centimeter-wide road before the dwarf-like cars had begun to roll off the assembly lines. By the time the freight cars, flats, gondolas and troop carrying cars began to arrive in France, the building road was ready to begin its mammoth task of transporting men and supplies to the front lines.

The armistice in 1918 brought to a close the short-lived but invaluable role played by the trolleys, but their worth had been proven.

There was no reason, army officials decided, why the sturdy little engines and cars could not be used as advantageously in peacetime as in war.

Fort Benning, at that time, was a temporary camp which army officials had decided to build into a permanent fort. Thus, the track, cars and locomotives of the railroad, which had earned the title of "combat vet" were transported to the present Fort Benning site where the chugging little engines again went into service, hauling the brick cement and glass which went into the construction of a permanent Fort Benning.

Unlike most combat veterans of World War I who were mustered out of service almost immediately after the termination of hostilities, "Toonerville Trolley" continued in the role of packhorse for the post, which was soon established as the nation's leading infantry training center. For nearly two decades, the little locomotives huffed and puffed under the loads of supplies and men, carrying them to the most inaccessible points on the reservation, over more than 20 miles of rails and ties.

When it became apparent that a war with Japan and Germany could not be averted, the problem of transporting troops to and from the many training areas on the post loomed big and forboding. However, just as the transportation problem had been solved some 20 years before, so was the situation met in 1941.

The "Toonerville Trolley" again went to war.

Officer candidates were carried to classes on the field, trainees to the firing range, and obstacle course... no point on the reservation was too remote for the most maneuverable little locomotives and their 30-man cars to penetrate and deliver their cargo.

It was estimated that, during World War II, the road hauled a total of 84,000 tons of cargo during a nine-month period.

A record of which any combat veteran might well be proud is that hoisted by the railroad, a front line duty in 19, contained one peace-time service from 1918 until 1941, and a vital behind-the-lines assignment from 1941 to 1946.

Predator Hunting Days Lengthened

Sponsoring a drive on predators to decrease the vermin population of the reservation, the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association has revised the regulations governing the hunting of vermin.

Association member licensed to hunt over fish control area may now hunt vermin and predators from noon until midnight on Wednesday from the service at a General Court-Martial here last week.

command "commence assembly". The second picture was taken 57 seconds later when the 75-mm howitzer was ready to fire. The record established here whittles 11 seconds off of the previous mark for a similar operation.

Seeks Return Of Lost Dog

M-Sgt. Ernest R. Gilmore, Company C, Infantry School detachment, reports the loss of a pet dog somewhere in the neighborhood of Block 12 N. CO club.

"The dog," the sergeant said, "was given to my children by their aunt, who requested, before she passed away, that they care for the animal."

Because of the sentimental attachment to the animal Sergeant Gilmore has asked The Bayonet to aid him in locating its return.

Lost sometime Sunday, Mar. 20, the dog is a female, cross-breed of Spitz and Chow, and answers to the name of "Sandy." She is three years old, solid blond in color, and when last seen, was wearing a Fort Benning license tag No. 495.

Airborne Section Team Sets Assembly Record

Tag 2-38 land airborne assembly a new record was established this month for the assembly of the 75-mm pack howitzer in a training demonstration at the Airborne Section of the Infantry School.

M-Sgt. Miner D. Therrell, assistant instructor in charge of the demonstration team, shaved 11 seconds off of the previous record of one minute, eight seconds, by setting up the piece in 57 seconds.

For the purposes of the demonstration, the howitzer and 18 rounds of ammunition were packed in nine artillery containers, each one weighing between 100 and 225 pounds. The containers were arranged in a 30-foot circle, although, in an actual drop, they would be spread out over an area nearly 100 yards in diameter.

At the command to commence the assembly, the team went to work and 57 seconds later, the howitzer was ready to fire.

The demonstration was arranged to illustrate the rapidity with which artillery support for an airborne operation can be expected.

In the past, when actual drops from an aircraft were employed for the demonstration, the assembly team has consisted of 10 men, and the normal time of assembly has been from five to 10 minutes.

(The record tie for a live drop is three minutes, 27 seconds.) However, because of a revision of the instruction program, the live parachute drop was discontinued, and an indoor demonstration substituted.

Since 1947, when the indoor assembly was clocked at two minutes, 30 seconds, the time has been reduced progressively until February of this year when the previous record of one minute, eight seconds was established.

Maj. John T. Murphy, chairman of the Pathfinder committee of the Airborne section, and Capt. Barry Albright, instructor in aerial delivery of parachute equipment, have expressed the opinion that the present record will stand unchallenged.

The assembly team of assistant instructors was composed of Sgt. Rutile Rames, Sgt. Kenneth A. Robinson, Cpl. Frederick J. Carden, Sgt. 1st cl. Thomas G. Spivey and Sergeant Miner.

Third Division To Get Scarfs

A new clothing issue — ceremonial scarfs — is currently being distributed to men in all units of the Third Infantry division.

Designed for use in parades, reviews and other formal occasions, the scarfs will be worn in place of neckties by parading troops in the future. Dyed blue, red and yellow, to coincide with the colors of the Infantry, artillery and cavalry, they are made from surplus parachute material, and are regulation scarf size.

Already in use by units of the U. S. occupation forces, the scarfs will first be displayed by division troops in the Army Day parades in Columbus and surrounding cities from April 4-6.

Officer Handicap Alleys Loop Ends

The 1948-49 Fort Benning Officer's bowling league ended recently with first place honors going to the General Subjects section No. 1 squad with a 773 average and 81 games won out of 104 trips to the alleys.

The 39th Field Artillery battalion, with 80 won, 24 lost and a 787 average topped the runner-up spot over the third-place Airborne section keepers, who ended the season in a tie with the artillerymen, then bowed to the guns in a playoff for the No. 2 place in the standings.

Twenty-seven entries vied for recognition in what Bill Hawkins, the tournament secretary, termed the "best league yet." He explained that the handicap system used this year kept more teams in the loop until the finish than in previous seasons when the system was not in use.

Hawkins further stated that next year's league would probably be conducted on the same basis with the number of wins and standings in averages determining the amount of handicap the various teams receive.

Individual winners for the season high singles game were Wayne Douglas of the Weapons section with a 253, Charles Chase of the General Subjects section with a 253 and Floyd Davis of the Student Training regiment with a 246.

Milton Pullman of the Tactical section led the season high three game set field with a 639 followed by the Student Training with 618 and John Cole of the Airborne battalion, who rolled a 617.

Charles Chase with a 170.776 average, Robert Phelps with 170.488 and Harold Ayers, who averaged 160.831 topped the honors for the season-high means. A trophy presentation was its third week of jump training.

No Contest Ruled After 110 Rounds

Before the present rules of boxing came into existence, bouts often lasted many hours. The eventual ending would come about when one or the other fighter no longer continued. The longest on record lasted 110 rounds between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke in 1838 and was ruled a "no contest" when both fighters refused to continue.

Class in Third Week

With a complement of 314 officers an enlisted men, basic airborne class No. 24 of Company A, the Airborne battalion, is in its third week of jump training.

KEGLING PRIZES . . . Shown here are the championship team trophy, the individual single game, three-game series, and season high average trophies which were awarded to the winners in the Infantry Center officer's handicap bowling league last Saturday.

ASU Enlisted Men Assigned to Duties

Several enlisted men of the 244th Area Service unit were assigned new duties this week according to Col. Maurice L. Miller, unit commander. Sgt. Frank E. Bounds was assigned duty with the Infantry Center engineers; Pfc. William H. Williams, Infantry Center motor pool; Ret. Luigi Barassi, Infantry Center quartermaster; Pfc. Herbert H. Fielding, Transportation section; Pvt. A. Redo Laureano, Transportation section; Sgt. Bernard Rubel, Signal section, and Pfc. Herman A. Windler, Transportation section.

Division Initiates Athletic Calendar

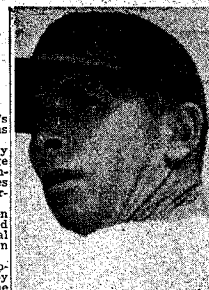

The Third Infantry division, on its feet after an attack of growing pains, is surging ahead with plans for extensive sports participation.

Baseball, softball and boxing have already taken their places on the sports agenda for 1949. Seventy-nine men in units of the divisions special troops have already taken their places on the sports agenda for 1949.

The scrappy team has been hustling behind some fine mound performances by Red Kirkinald and Pop Bearden, both veteran softballers.

A light playing infield supports the moundmen sparked by Shorty McKay's coverage of the hot corner. Shortstop Frank Cononica and second baseman Joe Station combine their talents to form a sharp double-play section, bolstered by activity at first by Mac McDonald.

The receiving chores fall into the hands of Luke Landolt, while Jack Haren, Fred Coppin and Bill Rhodes roam the outfield regions. Batting averages to date show that the infantrymen are a threat to the hurlers they will be facing in post competition this season.

Sand Hill Pitcher To Be Discharged

Al Ellis, whose sensational mound feats with the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion diamond aggregation last season kept him in the focal spot of the Benning baseball limelight throughout the campaign, is slated for discharge from the army, and expects to leave here early in May.

Ellis enlisted in 1946, did a year then came back to retire four stints in the Pacific, then came to Benning in May, 1947.

His interest in the national pastime dates back to his high school days in 1941 when he learned the rudiments of hurling on sandlots, and school diamonds in Cleveland, Ohio.

Continuing his activity in the game in the army, he joined the Rocket mound staff upon his arrival here, and one year later tracked up one of the finest season's records on the post. In the first game of a three game play-off with the Second battalion of the 25th Infantry regiment, in which the Rockets avied with the infantrymen for the 325th Regimental combat team's intra-mural championship, Ellis whiffed 19 batters in a row. Just to show them he meant business, pitching arm.

CHANGES CAMPS

Last year the ace right-hander for the Infantry School detachment Profs. Ike Silcox has changed camps this year, and is expected to add strength to the hurling staff of the Airborne battalion Student Training regiment aggregation.

Sixteen OCS Grads Added To Post Unit

The addition of 16 newly commissioned officers, to the 15th Infantry Regimental combat team has been announced by Col. James F. Torrence Jr., commanding officer.

The new officers, all graduates of the Officer Candidate School at Fort Riley, Kans., have been assigned to the various companies of the First Battalion and will assist the regularly assigned officers and cadre men with training problems and tactical field maneuvers until mid-June. They will then enter the Student Training regiment's associate basic class No. 2 for a period of instruction.

In spite of their relative youth—average age 23 years—the young officers, with one exception, are all ex-combat soldiers, having served with various units in both the European and Pacific theatres during World War II.

Colonel Welsch Named Post PM

Lt. Col. Alvin B. Welsch, formerly of Camp Breckenridge, Ky., was named Tuesday to replace Lt. Col. Edwin H. Ferris as provost marshal of the Infantry Center.

Col. Welsch served as provost marshal of the 101st Airborne division at Camp Breckenridge until recently, and was handed his new assignment with the closing of that installation as a training center.

A native of Texas, the colonel is no stranger to Fort Benning, having visited the post many times. However, this is his first assignment at the Infantry Center.

Social Security Program Told

Spearheading a recent series of group information program talks on social security which were given throughout the post was the appearance of Robert E. O'Neal, manager of the Columbus social security office, who conducted discussions on the aspects of the program pertaining to servicemen.

O'Neal pointed out new amendments which now permit members of the armed forces to participate in social security.

Supplementing the retirement systems in existence at present, servicemen will also be covered by old-age and survivors' insurance, payable after active discharge from the service, the social security man stated.

With these new provisions, men who are in the service for a short time, and not gaining retirement benefits, would still be covered by the continuous insurance of the old-age and survivors' plan. The servicemen's contribution to the retirement fund will probably be paid by the federal government, he explained.

Closing his addresses at Fort Benning, O'Neal reminded his audiences that there are more than 470 social security offices throughout the United States and that they are always ready to assist servicemen, as well as civilians, in any problem concerning social security.

Moses Fociss steward, accepted the honors for the winning battery. Sgt. Lt. c. Flint J. Lyles, president of the unit's John W. Brown NCO club, presented the plaque to General Clarkson, who, in turn, gave it to the winning battery representatives.

The "best mess" plaque, one of four awards regularly for outstanding achievements by a component of the battalion, were donated to the unit by the NCO club.

Following the inspection, General Clarkson, accompanied by Lt. Col. Todd H. Slade, battalion commander, and officers of both the 998th and Third division and surrounding areas, battalion dayrooms, barracks and their mess rooms throughout the area.

Sergeant Tute Is Drill Winner

A "manual of arms" contest staged recently by approximately 400 men of the First battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, was won by Sgt. 1st Lt. Melbourne A. Tute of Company A.

The contest, which actually was a series of elimination contests, and in which all five companies of the battalion participated, resulted in the choosing of two men from each company to compete in "O'Grady" drill.

In this type of competition, the manual of arms commands are given in the usual manner except that if the commands are not preceded by the words, "O'Grady says," they are not to be executed.

With Capt. James H. Smith, assistant S-3 of the 15th, giving the commands and non-commissioned officers from each company acting as judges, the contestants were given various commands in order until all had been eliminated except Sergeant Tute.

Hospital Medical Personnel Faced With Mammoth Task

For those who, at one time some ache or pain, but little or another, have been wont to criticize and brand as lackadaisical the service and treatment dispensed by the military medical department, difficulties encountered by Benning's station hospital personnel may tend to change some opinions. Many experiences of soldiers with the medical department have been limited to an occasional sick-call visit to the dispensary a minor cold or providing adequate facilities for the treatment of military personnel and dependents, the station hospital is constantly engaged in research work designed to develop and improve upon the knowledge that medical science has provided. In spite of the fact that the Fort Benning hospital's various departments, such as surgical, X-ray and the laboratory, are equipped with modern materials, the critical shortage of professional medical personnel has rendered it difficult for the present staff to carry out the health program designed by the Department of the Army.

In addition to the some 260 bed patients who are now being treated at the hospital, soldiers whose conditions are not serious, but are such as warrant excuse from duty, must be hospitalized for a complete physical check to lessen the danger of spreading an infectious disease.

Dependents of military personnel, recognizing the concentration of receiving medical attention on the post, have placed an unprecedented demand upon hospital attendants, who have been working many hours over the normal work week. Until recently, dependents had been placing an additional burden upon the hospital surgeons by requesting house calls, many for relatively insignificant complaints. However, medical authorities have asked that unnecessary calls, which must be answered at the expense of patients more urgently in need of medical attention, be cut to a minimum.

In addition to the operation of the hospital proper, the staff is charged with the efficient maintenance of some 54 dispensaries, including one in Columbus, where sick call is held daily. These dispensaries treat minor cases on the spot, while more serious cases are sent to the station hospital, which is equipped to handle as many as 800 emergency cases. At present the local hospital has only 15 professional medical officers, while the strength required for normal operation is 27. To augment the decidedly inadequate and much overworked staff, there are 54 professional nurses and 18 medical officers who are attached to the station hospital from the 15th Evacuation hospital of Fort Bragg, N. C.

CROONER NOW STATIONED WITH FORT BENNING UNIT.

Persons strolling by Service club No. 4 lately have been astounded by a soft sweet melody that can only be described as melancholy crooning, and not willing to believe their ears, have peeped inside, halfheartedly feeling ginger Billy Eckstine or Herb Jeffries exercising their voices.

But the owner of the swaying croon in that area is 18-year-old Melvin W. Willis, a recruit of the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, who sports a deep, rich baritone which sends listeners if not out of this world, then at least back to the service club to hear some more.

Starting at the age of nine, Willis' unusual vocal ability began to make itself felt around his home town, Philadelphia, Pa., where he sang with his church choir, along with his musically-inclined mother. As he grew older, his popularity increased, and he soon found himself a soloist in his junior high school choir, traveling throughout Pennsylvania on singing engagements.

It wasn't long before his mellow baritone was noticed by local orchestra leaders and critics, and he filled numerous singing engagements in leading theaters, and night clubs in New York and New Jersey. After completing a one-year hitch in the army, Willis plans to return to his career of song.

MARS Station Requests Business For Army Day

Sending a message or greeting to a buddy at any army post anywhere in the world can be done this Army Day through the facilities of Fort Benning's military amateur radio station, A4TIS.

The MARS station will be on 24-hour operation April 6, sending and receiving messages from installations all over the world, in conjunction with a contest of all MARS stations.

The contest is being spearheaded by a message from the secretary of the army, emanating from the pentagon's own amateur station in Washington, and is a feature of the Army Day program designed to bring closer together military personnel throughout the nation and overseas.

The MARS station handling the most messages on that day will be awarded a special certificate. So the Benning station has put out a call to post personnel to "Help put Benning over the top — Do your bit, and help yourself by sending a message to an army friend."

The form below is published for the convenience of those who wish to send messages. The message blank is to be filled in and forwarded to amateur radio station before midnight next Tuesday. All entries are to be printed.

French Military Leader On Visit

Lt. Gen. George Marie Joseph Revers, chief of staff of the French army, left Fort Benning by plane from Lawson airforce base yesterday morning following an intensified one-day tour of the Infantry Center.

The French chief of staff arrived here late Monday afternoon, and was greeted by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander; Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and Col. Joseph A. T. Nichols, TIC chief of staff.

After landing the French chief of staff inspected a guard of honor composed of elements of the First battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, commanded by Maj. John E. Harris. The "Sambre et Meuse, one of the most famous French military marches, was played by the 72nd and 198th Army bands.

Immediately following, the French military leader accompanied the high-ranking Infantry Center officers to the commandant's office where an informal discussion was held.

General Revers was honored with an official reception and dinner at the Fort Benning Officers' club at 7 p. m.

The French general's itinerary for Tuesday included breakfast in the official guest quarters at 8 a. m., followed by a briefing by General Bradley from 8:30 until 8:45 a. m. At 8:55, General Revers saw an airborne show

Benning Again Site of VIP Orientation Students to See Infantry Activity

The Infantry Center has again been selected by the Department of the Army as the site for the army's part in the second Joint Orientation conference, it has been revealed here. This portion of the conference will be held on April 10 and 11.

In addition to the civilian, guests, the Infantry Center next month will play host to students and faculty members of the Armed Forces Staff college and the National War college.

Approximately 60 of the nation's top men in fields of business, labor, industry, finance, education, the press and radio, municipal government and religion will arrive at Fort Benning by plane Sunday afternoon, April 10.

After being met by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commanding general of the Infantry Center, at Lawson airforce base, they will be taken on a one and one-half-hour orientation and tour of the post. That evening they will be guests at an official reception in the Officers' club.

Following breakfast on Monday, April 11, the civilians will observe a demonstration of airborne training and techniques to include air transportability and delivery of personnel and equipment by powered plane, glider and parachute drop.

In the afternoon they will see an Infantry firepower demonstration presenting the characteristics, capabilities and trends of developments of infantry weapons.

They will leave Fort Benning on Tuesday, April 12, by plane. Approximately 85 students and faculty members of the National War college, Washington, D. C., will be here at the same time as the participants in the Joint Orientation conference, and will observe the same demonstrations.

On Tuesday, April 12, about 178 faculty members and students of the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va., will arrive at the post for a two-day visit.

Wednesday morning, April 13, they are to see the Infantry School's Problem 1, a demonstration of infantry weapons and firepower. In the afternoon they will observe Problem 241, a demonstration of a reinforced infantry battalion in defense.

Thursday morning, April 14, the visitors will watch a demonstration of an infantry-reserve tank team in attack and, in the afternoon, they will be given a presentation of developments by Army Field Forces board No. 3. They will leave the following morning for Greenville, S. C., to see the Joint Operations Center at that station.

Plans For Sunrise Service Completed

Arrangements have been completed for the annual Fort Benning Easter sunrise services to be conducted inside the first quartel, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, said this week.

The traditional services will commence just after dawn on the quiet, solemn dignity and beauty have been cited by Chaplain Hale as themes for the Easter religious period at Fort Benning.

As in the past, some 1,400 chairs will be formed into a living cross, and will be available to the first arrivals. On the bandstand in the center of the quartel, the Infantry Center chapel choir and officiating chaplains will be seated before an elaborate white altar decorated with garlands of greenery and Easter lilies.

Appropriate sacred music which will accompany the hymns, will be provided by the 2nd Army band.

Each unit of the Infantry Center will furnish colors and Color Guard members, and all participating units will have their guidons massed on the ramparts inclosed in the quartel. The choir and band will be followed by post Protestant chaplains. Preceding the choir were color bearers carrying the United States and Christian flags.

In 1948 the services were highlighted by a colorful procession led by the white-robed junior and senior choirs from the Main Chapel and followed by post Protestant chaplains. Preceding the choir were color bearers carrying the United States and Christian flags.

Radio Station WRBL has announced plans to sign on the air one hour earlier than usual to broadcast the services.

Final Jamboree For Recruit Unit At Service Club

A gala party will be held tonight at Harmony church service club No. 3, Miss Harlette Allen, club director announced.

Scheduled to begin at 8 p. m., the event has been planned in honor of the men of the Second battalion, 15th Infantry, regiments, who finish their basic training cycle tomorrow and will mark the recruits' final jamboree at the club before leaving the Harmony church area.

To start the festivities, Sgt. Alberto Garcia's musicians will play for about an hour of dancing, after which the troops and their guests will be entertained by the Third army all-soldier review "On the Double". A buffet supper will follow the show.

The high spot of the evening however, Miss Allen said, will be the judging of the photo beauty contest.

Photographs of wives, sweethearts and sisters have been submitted by the men of the unit for the past two weeks and tonight, the pictures will be scrutinized to determine the prettiest girl who will be named "Sweetheart of the battalion".

The contest winner will receive an award donated by special services, and her photograph will be seen in the home-town newspaper. The soldier submitting the winning snapshot also will receive a prize.

9th Artillery Unit To Parade Friday

The newly activated Ninth Field Artillery battalion will hold its first parade Friday at 5 p. m. on the battalion parade grounds.

The parade will mark the beginning of a forty-two-week training cycle for the 400 new men of the unit.

It will be furnished by the Third Infantry division band.

Cavalcade, Displays Climax Annual Army Day Functions

The Infantry Center and the Third Infantry division teamed together for a display of infantry power yesterday as Fort Benning, Columbus and the nation observed the 21st annual Army day.

Broadway, in downtown Columbus, took on a carnival air with banners and streamers flying from every utility pole, while a score of stores and theaters dressed for the occasion with varied displays of army clothing, weapons and equipment.

Even the wide parkway from 10th through 13th streets, was showing such equipment as light, medium and heavy tanks; or dance mobile repair units and machine shops; eight-inch and 155-mm howitzers, a radar set; a 10-mm Bofors anti-aircraft gun; an M-10 tank destroyer; an 18-foot assault craft; an anti-aircraft searchlight; a 60-mm anti-aircraft gun; two liaison planes; a helicopter, and an infantry assault carrier.

Climaxing the city's Army day celebration, troops of the Third Infantry division staged a month-long parade in which was featured nearly every type of infantry equipment known to modern warfare.

Assembling on Second avenue between 14th and 15th streets, at 10 a. m., the colorful cavalcade consisted of the entire 15th Infantry regiment, units of the 98th Field Artillery battalion, Third Reconnaissance company, Third Heavy Tank battalion, 10th Engineer battalion, Third Military Police company, Third Signal company, 708rd Ordnance company, Third Quartermaster company, Third Medical station and

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Corporal Erects Unusual Bridge Equipment Display

Completion of the latest addition to the Infantry School's training aids displays earned Cpl. James A. Scott of Company C, the Infantry School detachment, the selection as The Bayonet's "Soldier of the Week" for last week. Corporal Scott, who was picked for the honor from a field of candidates from most of the larger units of Fort Benning by a selection board composed of three officers and three enlisted men, was credited with acting as a one-man task force in setting up more than a dozen items of bridging equipment for instructional use.

CPL. JAMES A. SCOTT . . . "Soldier of the Week"

Lawson Base Hobby Section Is Again Open

Buzzing of electric saws, the steady whirr of electric drills and the resounding staccato of hammer marks the reopening of the hobby shop at Lawson airforce base last week. A project of the personal services office, the hobby shop is housed in an abandoned post hall in the old 75th Troop Carrier squadron area and is under the supervision of Cpl. Herbert M. Dean. Dean recently completed a carpenter's course at Lowry Airforce base, Colo. The shop will be open to base personnel from 3 p.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday of each week.

One new feature of the hobby shop is the darkroom and photograph facilities. From dryer to washing tanks, the new sections offer all services that an amateur photographer needs to develop his technique. In addition to the hobby shop, the personal services section supervises a well-stocked library, a comfortable and spacious study room in connection with the information and education program, a fully-equipped gym and a recreational hall.

Artillerymen Promoted

display were full-size, 50-ton capacity units, while others were scale models suitable for a table exhibit. All of the equipment was assembled at building No. B-45 in the Harmony church area, and Corporal Scott took over.

The layout was planned to facilitate demonstration and explanation. An existing ditch was used to simulate the obstacle to be crossed, and the equipment was erected in a variety of ways to illustrate its flexibility. Hand signs were erected and suitable signs were posted with the name, source and capacity of each item.

The bulk of the equipment for Corporal Scott's project was assembled inside of the building where the display was set up. All items necessary for infantry use in a river crossing were displayed or erected on an actual-size scale.

In addition, Corporal Scott had actual working miniature models of all bridge sets assembled on tables. All of the equipment was serviced and lubricated.

The completed display was cited as an outstanding example of the effective use of training aids for efficient instruction, as well as economical maintenance, proper security and labor-saving operation.

Vaughn Monroe's Entry Tops Army Song Contest

Vaughn Monroe, orchestra leader, won first prize and was presented with a $1,000 savings bond for his entry in the current army song contest, Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, chief of army services, has announced. Monroe's entry, "Men of the Army," was one of five which were picked from a total of 1,050 songs submitted for the army's world-wide contest conducted on a competitive basis for the purpose of selecting a new song for the army.

Just as "Anchors Aweigh" has always been associated with the navy, "The Wild Blue Yonder" with the airforce, and "From the Halls of Montezuma" with the marine corps, so will the winning melody become the theme of the "dog-face".

Second prize, a $500 bond, was won by Thomas J. Fies, Chicago musician-composer, for his "It's The Army" and Third prize, a $100 bond, went to a new entrant, "It's A Battlefield Along".

Mrs. Iola Nancy Warren, a Chicago housewife, captured fourth prize, a $50 bond, by submitting "Three Cheers for the Army" and a $25 bond went to a former music supervisor and singer, Mrs. Lillian S. Fawcett, for her song, "We're in the Army".

The winning songs will be introduced to the public and to the army, and the song which proves to be the most popular

'Disclosure Policy' Is Set Up

In the past the role of the army during peacetime was too often forgotten by the general public, especially in communities where there were no adjacent military installations. As a result of this seeming indifference on the part of the "outsider", the army more or less closed a shell around its activities.

At the end of the last war, however, it was decided to adopt a policy of "disclosure", meaning that the army would begin making an honest effort to show the public what the army has in the way of defense and to keep the public informed of what is being planned for the future. In addition, the army, through its public information program, decided to let the public know what is being done to make America a better place in which to live. And the army does make America a better place in which to live.

Certainly, no one can deny that the army, together with the airforce, undertook one of the year's most humane projects during the winter "freeze-up" when supplies and foodstuffs were trucked or flown in to the snow-bound areas whose residents stood to lose millions of dollars worth of livestock unless they got immediate relief.

In 1947, the army's work at the resort town of Bar Harbor, Maine, during the devastating forest fire which caused the loss of an inestimable amount of cancer research, resulted in the saving of many lives and a great deal of property. Had it not been for the army volunteers who fought the fires, set up communications and evacuated families, the damage would have been far greater than it was. That same year, the Texas City, Texas, explosion at the Monsanto Chemical works again brought out the army. Its work in evacuation, in setting up communications and in cooperation with the American Red Cross earned for the army a devotion which the city probably never thought possible.

And closer to Fort Benning there is an example of the army's humanitarian work. During the tornado in Anniston, Ala., in 1946 the army stepped in and set up or helped to repair communications, cleared the streets and provided ambulances to evacuate the wounded. Indeed, we feel safe in stating without qualification that the army has an almost unsurpassed record for humanitarian work, all of which make America a better place in which to live.

A great deal more than humanitarian work is necessary, however, if the army is to remain in the public eye. The public must know about the work. First, that the public must know how prepared the army is for defense.

Probably no one realizes this more than Fort Benning officials who have worked ardently in cooperation with the Columbus Chamber of Commerce to set up a three-block long display of military equipment for Army Week and who have arranged for the participation of more than 1,600 troops in the city's Army Day parade. The magnificent displays in the windows of Columbus' leading shops further attest to the fact that the army is carrying out its program of showing to the public everything it can safely uncover.

The Fort Benning reservation is open to the public at all times, and a warm welcome has been extended to come in and look the post over. Naturally, there are still things which can't be shown, but that doesn't mean that the average citizen can't see those things which aren't classified. The individual soldier can help tremendously in this "program of disclosure". He can be polite and courteous to all visitors, and he can direct them to the places on the post they want to see.

Next week's guest list of civilian VIP's will give the individual Benningite an opportunity to show his hospitality. For example, if there happens to be among the group someone he knows personally, it would be a fine gesture to attempt to arrange a meeting.

No Reason To Believe It's Easy To Reenlist

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

No soldier who acquires dependents and draws family allowance after May 1 will be re-enlisted in the regular army unless discharged from his current enlistment in grade four or above. No soldier discharged after a year or more of service may re-enlist unless he has attained grade five or higher.

The army's new system of job guidance for men entering the service without special vocational skills will become effective in the ZI on April 15, and overseas a month later.

The airforce has authorized issue of the new blue-and-silver chevrons in both ZI and overseas commands on a replacement basis.

Infantry must be assigned to infantry units or branch organizations to be eligible for combat infantry pay, the army adjutant general has stated. The House Armed Services subcommittee studying service pay revision will recommend that the full committee consider

Which One Are You --- A Judas Or A Peter?

By CHAPLAIN ROBERT P. CANIS

He hanged himself. That is the end of the story of Judas' betrayal of Christ. Lured by the tinkling of a bag of coins, Judas betrayed Jesus into the hand of his enemies and death. Later he repented, tried to buy off those with whom he had conspired against Jesus, and failed. Then he went out and hanged himself.

That was not local incident of 2,000 years ago. Humanity is always guilty of Judas' crime. Every time a Christian yields to the temptations of the flesh, every time he compromises his faith in Christ for the glitter of world allurements, he is betraying his Christ and selling out his own-soul.

There is another grave warning in this story of Judas. He did repent, but he made his repentance with the wrong people. He went to his co-conspirators and tried to return his ill-gotten bag of silver in exchange for his guilt. That is not possible. It is easy to sell your soul to Satan. But you can't buy it back. Judas should have gone to the one he betrayed—to Jesus himself. He should have confessed his sin to Jesus, and he would have received complete forgiveness. Instead, he was left clutching his bag of guilt, and Judas went out and hanged himself.

That same fate threatens every Christian

Tells Why He's A Red Cross Volunteer

By MURRAY HILL

I have often wondered what makes a Red Cross volunteer tick—in fact, what makes 2,000,000 of them tick. What is this strange power that causes millions to work, work, and work some more long hours—totally without pay—without thought of glory or recognition—in the name of the Red Cross. I have noticed this more each year. Each year, and thus far, I see new workers become eager Red Cross enthusiasts as they learn more and more about Red Cross. A typical example of this fine kind of volunteer is William W. Daughtrey, of the post safety office. Mr. Daughtrey showed so much enthusiasm that I asked why and how he got into it.

"On Feb. 27 the American National Red Cross was to me: 1. An agency, a somewhat mysterious agency, that did various things for some people—and I didn't even know for whom exactly. 2. Another outfit that came along in March of every year and said 'Gimme—usually they had a lot of good reasons (propaganda, I called it).

"On March 1, I was suddenly talked out of my complacent and possibly even somewhat cynical attitude, 'cause on this day I received in my quarters a most disturbing telephone call. My good friend Ralph George, says to my wife—I was in bed with this matter separately from retirement, death benefits and other matters included in the Hook Report. This, in order to facilitate prompt action on the projected pay legislation.

The airforce has revived its wartime personal affairs program, establishing a personal affairs branch under personal services. Consultants will be available to airmen in the matters of life insurance, absentee voting, allotments of pay and other personal problems. Navy public information is planning a monthly letter listing opportunities for sales of pertinent articles to trade publications by navy personnel. Trade editors are being queried concerning types of material they desire.

Approximately 100 career-type assignments soon will be open to army enlisted women, leading to promotion to top enlisted grades, warrant grades and commissioned status.

Mats will supplement its trans-Pacific service by use of civilian aircraft on a contract basis.

Which One Are You --- A Judas Or A Peter?

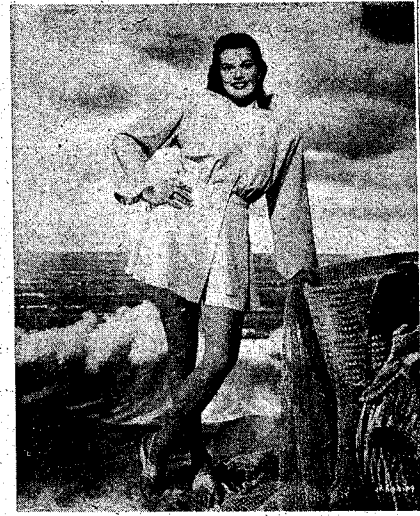

who tries to buy his righteousness from the world. Each time he does he is tightening the noose around his own soul. Sins against God can be forgiven only by repentance before God.

There was another disciple who turned against His Master and thrice denied that he ever knew him. That was Peter. He also repented. For three days after Christ's crucifixion Peter wrestled with the torment of his guilt; and on the third day he went to the tomb of the Master, and it was empty. He did not know of the resurrection until he met Jesus on the waters of Galilee.

There Jesus said to him "Simon, Peter, lovest thou me more than these?" Peter answered, "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." And Jesus said unto him, "Feed my sheep." That was the moment of forgiveness for Peter.

And that forgiveness is available for all who will come to Jesus in true repentance. Sometimes we meet an empty void like Peter met the empty tomb, but as we go away truly sorrowing for our sins, the voice of the risen Jesus speaks forgiveness to our hearts. He sends us forth to feed his sheep. He lifts us up to lives of service for Him.

Judas went out and hanged himself. Peter went out to serve Christ. Which one of these is you?

WHO IS SHE?—The Bayonet staff has eliminated from a list of possibilities Marjorie Main, Sophie Tucker and Ann Sheridan, but we still don't know for sure who this lovely morsel is. Could it be Janis Paige?

RENEW MARRIAGE VOWS... With their two sons, Rusty, 7, and Bradley, 5, as guests of honor, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Russell E. Whetstone renewed their marriage vows on the occasion of their 10th wedding anniversary Sunday in an impressive wedding ceremony at The Infantry Center chapel.

Marriage Vows Renewed On Tenth Anniversary

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony Sunday, when Lt. Col. and Mrs. Russell E. Whetstone, of 305 Austin-10 rd., renewed their marriage vows on the occasion of their tenth anniversary. Their two sons, Rusty, 7, and Bradley, 5, attended as the honored guests.

The solemnity of the occasion was emphasized and enriched by the impressive message contained in Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale's ceremony. The Whetstones, were wed ten years ago at the Poinciana chapel in Palm Beach, Florida.

Following the ceremony, the Whetstones entertained at a reception in their quarters. The table was lovely with crystal service, some of the pieces wedding presents of ten years ago. A profusion of white roses and white gladioli turned the quarters into a veritable bridal bower. Mrs. Whetstone cut the first piece of wedding cake with her husband's sword, then Mrs. Emil P. Eschenburg took over the cutting and Mrs. Hal Nelson presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Whetstone, as radiant as the day she first became a bride, wore a beautiful aqua informal afternoon dress with jacket, and a corsage of white carnations. Her accessories were brown.

The couple left the chapel under an arch of swords.

Officer I-E Talks Are Initiated Here

Following the pattern set by the Department of the Army in the armed forces talks for enlisted men, an army-wide officer's information program is being inaugurated here this month, using as a text the recently-introduced "Officer's Call" pamphlet.

Designed to provide officer personnel with a comprehensive understanding of future and present military developments, the program will also enable officers to discuss pertinent events in military, national and international affairs through a scheduled series of talks.

Initial informational talks are being held this month for all Benning officers, with subjects taken from the first issue of "Officer's Call" which was distributed in March. Officers of the Third Infantry division will hold their meeting within the next two weeks, while the programs for the faculty and students of the Academic department and all officers of the Student Training Regiment are scheduled to start immediately on a monthly basis.

The main theater will be the site for next Friday's initial meeting for officers of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, Army Field Forces band No. 3, Provisional Medical Group and the Infantry School detachment. To be presented with a view toward ample discussion of subjects covered, the talks will feature army training films shown to officers on pertinent subjects.

Medic Company Inactivated Here

Inactivation of the 375th Medical Collecting company and the transfer of its personnel to the 688th Motor Ambulance company was announced last week by Infantry Center officials.

The 375th Medical Collecting company was activated at Fort Benning on March 2, 1948, completing its basic training in May of that year. It began operating the 25th Regimental combat team dispensary.

On Feb. 21, 1947 the unit was attached to the 30th Medical group and furnished ambulance service for Infantry School problems until its inactivation.

The newly-activated 588th Motor Ambulance company has been attached to the 30th Medical group, and will take over the commitments of the 375th Medical Collecting company.

Jewish Passover Period To Begin On Wednesday

The Jewish Passover celebration this year will begin at sunset next Wednesday, and will last until sunset of the following day, Chaplain (Capt.) Max H. Daina, post Jewish chaplain, has announced.

The Passover period's first service will be held at the Infantry Center chapel at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, and will be followed at 7 p.m. by the first Seder (Passover feast), which will be held in a mess hall near the chapel.

All Jewish military personnel of Fort Benning and their families have been extended invitations to attend the traditional kosher dinner which will be served in a fishy atmosphere.

"Passover is the oldest festival of liberty in the annals of civilization," the chaplain explained. "Thirty five hundred years ago the Jews revolted against the tyranny of the Egyptian taskmasters, escaped from a blazed trail across the wilderness, crossed the Jordan and conquered Palestine, the promised land."

"Since yesterday," Chaplain Daina went on, "the Jews have observed this season with prayer and thanksgiving to God for the ideals of liberty and truth."

The passover meal, or Seder, ushers in the holidays on the first night, and the whole history of the passover is recited in Jewish homes to all who participate in the feast.

"During this season, unleavened bread, or matzo, is eaten in commemoration of the fact that there was no time to leaven the bread when the Jews fled Egypt," according to Chaplain Daina.

Army Medical Signal Corps Develops Set-Up Change Sensory Aid For Blind Is Considered

Continuing its efforts in behalf of wounded veterans, the Department of the Army announced that it will test 25 models of an improved warning device in which "electric eye" will aid their locomotion.

The army signal corps said the sensory aid consists of a four-pound box which produces a warning sound or vibration when the carrier approaches an object in his path. It was developed by the signal corps engineering laboratories, Fort Monmouth, N. J., at the request of the surgeon general.

Under the new plan, the professional complement, as it will be called, will not join the unit until the last practical moment. In this way, the personnel in scarce categories will be available for use at other installations, or may even remain longer in a civilian community until the time when they are actually needed with their parent unit.

Army Tradition Draws Praises Of AF Notables

The United States is "justly proud of its record of achievement in the Army," Secretary of the Air Force, Stuart Symington said here today in a special greeting from the Air Force to the Army for Army day.

Secretary Symington's statement follows: "The Air Force extends to the Department of the Army its cordial greetings for Army day, 1949. The nation is justly proud of the long record of achievement of its Army. The Air Force is ever mindful that it had its beginnings in an organization with such an illustrious history. We are confident the Army's future record will be written in the same traditions of firmness, devotion to duty and self-sacrifice that have been outstanding in both peace and war."

General Vandenburg said: "It is a pleasure to extend to the men and women of the U. S. Air Force the greetings of the U. S. Air Force on Army Day, 1949. The history of our Army is a proud record of achievement. From 1776 through World War II the U. S. Army has fought with firmness and courage. It has established a tradition of devotion to duty and sacrifice for the country that inspires soldier, sailor and airman alike. The nation remains confident that the Army will continue on its mission with the high distinction that has marked its illustrious past."

Third Army, NG Officers See Problem

A demonstration of the "aggressor" system now being used by the Army during field exercises was staged here last Saturday for officers of Third Army headquarters, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the Tennessee National Guard.

The visiting officers returned to their home stations Sunday after observing the half day of demonstrations. The program for the afternoon began with an explanation of the aggressor as a training vehicle that provides realism in maneuvers, small unit problems and many maneuvers. It also was pointed out during the explanation that the aggressor method offers maximum training to the individual soldier.

A brief discussion of aggressor equipment also was held during the first period of the program.

handling, processing and interrogating prisoners of war, deserters and enemy civilians. The group then moved to a demonstration area on the reservation where a discussion and demonstration was held.

The final phase of the project offered the visiting officers an opportunity to observe the aggressor in use. The demonstration showed a U. S. platoon acting as an advanced guard. The umpire control phase of the system was shown when the platoon was halted by a well-emplaced aggressor force. Informed that the aggressor force was too strong for him to move his platoon against frontally, the platoon leader solved the situation by maneuvering a portion of his platoon around to flank the aggressor position.

Guadalcanal Operations Story to Be Published

The story of the army's operations on Guadalcanal in the first big Pacific land offensive will be in print soon as the second combat volume of the army's history of World War II.

Entitled "Guadalcanal: The First Offensive," the volume follows closely on the publication of "Okinawa: The Last Battle."

Because of wide demand for the Okinawa story, it has now gone into its second printing at Government printing office. The historical division, army special staff, reviewing its operations in connection with Army history, pointed out that three of the expected 80-odd volumes covering all phases of World War II are now in print.

Besides Okinawa, two others dealing with the organization, training and procurement of the Army Ground forces have already been published. Following from first hand observation.

STRANGE COINCIDENCE—First Lt. Harold N. Sowers, left, and Robert C. Furrer, right, discuss the coincidence which caused them meet each other face to face after having said goodbye in Europe just a few days before. Lieutenant Furrer, who was assigned to the First Infantry division in Germany, received orders transferring him to the 703rd Ordnance company at Fort Benning. He said goodbye to Lieutenant Sowers and departed for the U. S. The next day, Lieutenant Sowers received unexpected orders which also sent him to Fort Benning. Just one day after his arrival at Benning, Lieutenant Furrer met his ET buddy on a company street.

NCAA Will Crackdown on Code Violators
CHICAGO, April 6—The National Collegiate Athletic Association will crack down on violators of its so-called "sanity code" for the first time next January. The occasion will be the 1950 annual meeting of the N.C.A.A., when the code tightening athletic recruiting and financial aid, will have been effective for two years. This was disclosed today by Karl E. Leib of Iowa, NCAA president, at a forum during the fourth annual national conference on higher education. Leib and Michigan's Ralph Alger, chairman of the NCAA's code enforcement committee, appeared as consultants in a panel discussion on intercollegiate athletic programs and policies. Punishment for violations of the code is expulsion from NCAA membership and schedule boycotts by other NCAA members in all sports. Leib said he was satisfied that the NCAA was making progress in spreading code policies among the various conferences.

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

William Bernier, a 23 year-old middleweight boxer of Company D, 15th Infantry regiment, is not from Missouri, in fact his home is in Oshkosh, Wis. Nevertheless, the scrapper, who has been boxing for 11 years, says Lawrence Jones has to show him.

Bernier has expressed a desire to challenge the all-army middleweight champ in an intra-mural bout, and post officials have obliged by setting the date for tonight in the main gym.

The young veteran of the squared circle donned the gloves for the first time at the tender age of 12.

Since that time he has annexed the Wisconsin amateur middleweight crown of 1941, the all-inter-allied meet diadem of 1946, the championship of the European command in 1948, and the Second Army crown of 1948-49, fighting out of Fort Knox, Ky.

In his 11 years as a leather-pusher, he has had 40 bouts, losing only one and winning 20 by knockout.

Having never seen the Oshkosh lad in action, we are reluctant to venture any opinion concerning the possible outcome of the bout, but knowing Jones, and his cunning in the ring, we feel safe in saying that the challenger will undoubtedly consider the champ one of the best opponents he has ever faced after tonight's encounter.

The four exhibition tilts being played this week should give local diamond fans a fair inkling of what baseball activity will be like on the post in 1948.

Monday night's fray between the Airborne-STR nine and Bentley's Sport shop was rained out in the seventh with a score of 5-2 in the troopers' favor.

Although the 'chutist pose was evident, it was also obvious that the local diamondmen had not yet shaken off all the effects of a year-long lay off.

In any event, the week's activities will give the coaches a working idea of where their squads can improve, and just how much hustle they do, or don't have.

Residents of Austin and Miller loops may have noticed a number of box-like wire traps situated in various places throughout the residential areas. The traps, about 10 inches wide by 18 inches long and eight inches deep, were put there by the Game committee of the Fish and Game Maintenance association to trap squirrels.

The rapidly increasing squirrel population on the main post proper constitutes a gardening problem in the quarters areas since the little creatures resort to scratching in, and digging up gardens, eating bulbs, tearing up flower beds and breaking sprigs in their quest for food.

The Game committee hopes to trap as many as possible for removal to other areas on the reservation.

Children playing in the areas have come across squirrels caught in the cage-like traps, and, as children will do, have played with the trapped animals causing them to escape.

We suggest that parents inform the children of the purposes of the traps and help alleviate the gardener's nemesis.

Former Benning Welter Is Contender For Dow

Under the guidance of a former Benning manager, Wilbur Wilson, has been making a steady climb toward the New England amateur welterweight title since his discharge from the army here last January.

Wilson, just 18 years old, comprised Joe Dow's stable of one amateur fighter and two signs on the New England championship. He also has designs on saying "hello" to himself, but will probably find "vying for the crown a lot easier."

On March 21, Wilbur fought two bouts at the Boston arena in the New England championship semi-finals for a total of two minutes and 15 seconds. Frank Burns of Quonset Point base was led at the 30-second mark, while George Bolanos of South End (Boston) took a bye at 1:45 minutes of the first round.

Wilson is a champion, a 10-0 record, a champion, a 10-0 record, a champion, a 10-0 record.

Card-Dough Game Set Friday Night

Many 1948 Vets On Local Roster

Highlighting the post's first glimpse of diamond activity on Gowdy field this week will be the exhibition meeting tomorrow night of the Columbus Cardinals and a Fort Benning squad made up of Infantry School detachment and Airborne battalion players, many of whom were on the Doughboy team of 1948.

Left fielder George Hill, a good defensive fielder who has consistently appeared in Doughboy lineups for the past 2 1/2 years, probably will top the Benning batting order, according to manager James L. Walker.

Ralph (Bugs) Terry, well known in local diamond circles, will cover the hot corner with either Bob Kinard or Red Burgamy on second and Herb Walker on first.

Burgamy, a classy fielder, comes to the post backed up by a fine record in Class A professional ball. Laue has played with the post team for the past two years and holds a hitting record of 1,000 for his ISD activity last year.

Tom Gallagher will be on hand to receive the fast deliveries of three of the post's best hurlers. Ike Silcox, who will start, Lefty Lehner, the Dough hurler who pitched an intramural no-hitter last season, a national Grinols, who, in toasting for the Pros last year, racked up a string of one-hit games and defeated the Airborne nine in a series of five tilts. Grinols also pitched against the Cards last year in the first of two exhibition tilts.

Woody Burt, reputed to be one of the most dangerous live-fire hitters on the post and a member of the Doughboys for the past two years, will cover right field. Joe Smith will be in center, and rookie Joe Cicciola, 19-year-old, 200-pound explosive, will lead off as Newark player covering shortstop.

Wicker was undecided as to a starting lineup but indicated that the assignments would probably include Ernest Scherman, a fine defensive shortstop who was one of the mainstays of the champion Pocatello, Idaho Cardinals of the Pioneer league in 1948.

Gene Fasholz, outfielder and junior of the Fasholz brothers comes to Columbus with a .345 batting average for two years of professional ball, and probably will be in center field while Ray Jablonski is expected to be on the right field grass. Jablonski established a new record in the Eastern Shore league last season by hitting .354 with 28 home runs and 131 tallies batted in to his credit.

Charles Shields, who roomed the outfield regions for the St. Joseph Cards of the Western association last year, has been named to cover left field, and the hot corner nominee is Welter Lammers, a member of the Marshall nine of the Lone Star league last year.

First and second base will probably be covered by Henry Zich and John Bulkeley, respectively. Bulkeley is one of three Cards returning from the 1948 club for another stint with the city nine this season.

Although Bulkeley played third base and short with the Redbirds last year, he is generally considered to be at his best at second.

Ronald Curman, who comes from the Lynchburg club of the Piedmont league, has been named to handle the receiving chores. Curman did heavy duty for the Piedmont champions last season, catching practically every game and handling a pitching staff that was recognized as one of the best in Class B baseball.

A star big pitcher for the Cards has not yet been named by Manager Wicker.

The 1949 harness racing season in the State of New York will open at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, L. I., May 6 and will end at the same spot Oct. 22.

Eight of the nine members of the North Carolina State tennis team are natives of the state.

Pros Trim Henion, Key, 3-2 In Exhibition At Benning

Two of the nation's top-ranking golfers, Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret, got in a few practice licks preparatory to their participation in the Masters tournament in Augusta this week when they trimmed John Henion and Jack Key, Jr., at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club last Sunday afternoon.

Rain soaked the fairways and green of the course throughout the morning, however the weather man relented early in the afternoon and gave the golfing quarter a few hours of relatively dry atmosphere for the 18-hole exhibition match.

With three of the foursome finishing the sporty 18-hole layout in sub-par figures, Demaret led the field with a four-under-par 68. Mangrum curbed a 70, Key one of Columbus' most promising young golfers, finished with a 71, and Henion had a three-over-par 75.

The highlight of the match was the par-three fourth hole to which the foursome finished in sub-par figures, Demaret led the field with a four-under-par 68.

At the turn, Mangrum was out in front in the scoring department with a two-under-par 34, but his mate was close behind with a 35. Young Key carded an even par 38 for the first nine, while Henion, hampered by taking a six on the 30-yard sixth hole, finished with a 39.

All four of the crack linksmen chalked up pars on the 42nd-yard hole, but Mangrum and Demaret were the pros' lead by dropping a 30-footer for a birdie on the 35th-yard 11th hole.

Demaret widened the pros' lead to three holes again when he slugged in a birdie three on the 360-yard 12th hole.

The exhibition match came after the accomplishments of the Mangrum-Demaret team, with one of the most fancy exhibitions of sub-par golf of the round coming on the 46-yard, par-five 15th hole, on which all four of the strokers carded birdies.

The exhibition match came after Demaret and Mangrum had conducted a 30-minute golf clinic with the two aspirants for the Masters title alternating in demonstrating the usage of various clubs.

In a practice session earlier this week the long-hitting Lee tied a field in about 259 golfers without bearding down.

Chutist Nine Wins Abbreviated Game

The Student Training regiment-Airborne battalion diamond delegation touched off the season's baseball fireworks on Gowdy field Monday night when they shaded a crew representing Bentley's Sporting Goods shop in Columbus, 5-2, in a six-inning affair.

A rain that had threatened to drench the recently-reconditioned ballpark all afternoon, finally started coming down, and the officials decided to call a halt in the top of the sixth after the teams had played almost a full stanza in a light shower.

Although their lineup boasted some of the top talent of the 1948 diamond campaign here, the Troopers found it a little hard to get started against the city lads and trailed throughout the first three innings.

Right-hander Ike Silcox started for the Benningites, and yielded the Columbus nine a run in the second frame. Second baseman Gandy Roberts doubled with two out, and came in to score when Ralph Terry, Trooper third baseman, dropped a high pop fly inside the left-field foul line.

Veteran Arch Corley turned in some fancy right-handed twirling for the citizens during the first three frames, allowing the Benning squad only one hit, a three-bagger by second baseman Len Carney in the first inning.

In the fourth stanza, however, the Troopers turned the tables on the visitors to push four runs across the platter on a trio of base knockers. Terry started the rally for the Benning nine by slipping a double down the right field foul stripe. Right fielder Griffin then drew a free pass as first, and Joe Smith's single to center man Herb Myatt came through with the first Benning run.

After Bill Brooks had been issued a base on balls, first baseman Gandy Roberts came through with the blow of the inning for the Troopers, a double to light-center which unloaded the bags.

When is a bream not a bream, but a carp-like fish, or a sunfish?

When the American angler lands what is known in various sections of the country as a bream, it frequently turns out to be another species of fish.

Webster's dictionary defines a bream as a freshwater sunfish-like fish with a deep, compressed body and a long anal fin.

The Encyclopedia Britannica says that a bream is a carp-like fish with a deep, compressed body and a long anal fin.

The dictionary flatly declares that the bream, which in this section of the country especially is commonly believed to be a perch, is actually a sunfish.

The encyclopedia, on the other hand, places the bream in a family, or species of its own with the name being more broadly applied to other species of the carp family.

Taking into consideration the dictionary definition of sunfish which describes it as: "1. A remarkable marine plectognath fish (Mola mola) having a deep body truncated behind, high dorsal and anal fins, and a short fringed caudal fin. The mouth is small, the skin tough and equally so. The flesh almost always, swimming lazily at the surface. With an allied genus (Ranzania), consisting of one elongated body, it constitutes the family Molidae."

2. Any of numerous American perchlike freshwater fishes of the family Centrarchidae having a deep, compressed body, and a brilliant metallic coloration. The common sunfish, or pumpkin seed (Lepomis gibbosus) depends in much of the northern and eastern United States but does not exceed six or eight inches in length. The bluegill and the long-eared sunfish are the other species.

Therefore, the bream is a sunfish, but a perch or one of its derivatives. The European nomenclature places the bream in its own class as a fish that either resembles or is derived from the carp.

The bream and its variations, known locally as the bluegill, the warmouth, the stump-knocker, and the shell cracker, are of the sunfish family, and the sunfish is a perchlike fish. So, if an angler catches a bream and calls it a carp, he may be right.

But in a strictly eastern United States sense, when a fisherman catches a bream and says he has a sunfish, he's right. And if he calls it a perch, he may still be right.

Unit Ball Players To Get New Duds

Having been given the go-ahead sign by unit athletic officials, Lt. J. C. Greenwood, the 999th athletic and recreation officer, ordered shirts, trousers, socks, shoes and caps for a regular sized baseball squad from a local concern.

The suits are conservative gray with blue piping and the unit is designated in red figures across the shirt front. Red numbers are on the back of the shirt. The socks are gray with encircling red piping and the cap is gray with a red bill.

Grim, Redmond Cop Honors In 15-Lap Speedway Affair

Threatened rain and a wet track couldn't sway the determination of Bobby Grim, young Indianapolis speed demon, who won the featured 15-lap event on the big car race program at the Columbus speedway last Sunday.

Grim set the pace for the 10-car field soon after receiving the green flag from Starter Al Swenson to finish the seven and one-half miles five car lengths ahead of Red Redmond, former Georgia Tech football player from Tampa, Fla.

Billy McGee, young Zanesville, Ohio, racer took third in one of three lengths behind Redmond while Phillippe Moccoa of St. Louis, Mo., ran fourth another two lengths behind.

A broken drive shaft development during the warming up for the country who recently burned up the races at Tampa and was favored to supply the closest competition to Grim, out of the running in the feature event.

Luptow, a Detroit lad, has essentially the races driving a new Offenhauser. He conducted a short clinic here last Friday in connection with the opening of the annual soap box derby.

Grim, who also won the feature event of the big car race here last September, drove Sunday's distance in five minutes, 58.56 seconds, an average of more than 75 miles per hour.

Redmond jockeyed his Frankland Ford through the last lap of the race with a broken oil line but suffered no injury finishing with an oil-splattered face and left arm.

Red held second place throughout the entire race.

McGee, also throttling an Offenhauser owned by Dr. M. E. Bowles, of Cincinnati, Ohio, led the 150 laps in one of the recent Indianapolis speedway 500-mile classics before being forced out of competition by engine trouble. McGee's car was qualified for the race by Everett Saylor at a speed of 121 miles per hour.

Bert Hellmuller, of Louisville, Ky., driving a Curtis Evitts engine special, topped the time trials, with a 25.7-second a/clocking.

Two Who Lived 4-Way Amputees Farm, Study Law

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 6.—The only two surviving Americans who lost both hands and both legs during the war are getting along all right with their postwar plans.

Both are living in the Deep South, one because it was his home in the first place, the other because he wanted a warm climate. With the aid of artificial limbs, one is running a farm, the other studying to be a lawyer.

From Birmingham's 4th and 5th streets, a rich green valley winds its way north between two small mountains. A few miles up the valley is a neat white cottage surrounded by red-roofed barns and cross-fenced fields six inches deep in clover and alfalfa.

This prosperous-looking farm is owned and operated by Fred Hensel, 28, an ex-GI who has lost both hands and both legs blown off by the daps on Okinawa.

Hensel, who was reared as an orphan at Corbin, Ky., came South in 1946 after his hospitalization at Battle Creek, Mich., seeking a warm climate. He bought the 143-acre farm with part of the $40,000 to $80,000 he had by thousands of friends and well-wishers.

Fred had had very little experience on a farm. But now after two years, he and his young and venturesome wife, Jewel, are farmers as a heart. Fred feels he has proved to himself and his wife that hands and legs aren't really necessary to a farmer.

Bronzed and heavier than he was before the war, Hensel drives a jeep or a small tractor in tilling his rich acres.

"I work the combine, disc, hay baler and fertilizer spreader with the jeeps and tractor equipment," he said. "I can do all the work except plowing, which requires the large tractor."

Hensel thinks his 143-acre farm is too small. He tried to sell it last year and buy a bigger one. Failing that, he rented another 50 acres in the county this year.

He hired his wife's brother-in-law, Leiland Hight, to rent the large tractor, together they buy 15 to 20 acres in the county to cultivate 30 acres in corn, 15 in lespedeza hay, and 100 acres in grain sorghum. This is in addition to the 77 acres sown to pasture around the Hensel home.

Recently Hensel sold his beef cattle and bought 23 Holstein calves in Wisconsin. Now he has a herd of 51 dairy cattle and plans to build a dairy barn by the time the calves are old enough to produce milk. He said the farm has "in the black" yet. Profits from the beef herd and 6,000 chickens he raised the first year went into new machinery and remodeling the white frame house.

Hensel is adept at using hooks for hands. But he still finds it difficult to use his artificial legs, except when he is driving the jeep, he leaves them off.

Outside the farm, his main interests are fishing and hunting. He drives the jeep into the woods on the nearby mountains and shoots squirrels and rabbits with a 16 gauge shotgun. It is rugged with a weathered horizon he can fire by moving his lower jaw.

Not long ago he bought a boat. When there is time he drives the TVA lakes near Guntersville for bass and crappie fishing. He has a rod and reel but prefers the old-time canes and live bait.

A couple of hundred miles southeast of Hensel's home, Jimmy Wilson, 22, is busy working at a political science degree at the University of Florida at Gainesville.

"After I get it, I'm going into law school," said Jimmy, whose home is in Jacksonville, Fla.

Jimmy, then a private, was the only surviving member of a 10-man crew on an Air Force training flight over the Green Mountains in Vermont in October 1945. A B-24 bomber crashed into a peak.

Whiting Named Coach for 1949

Murray D. Whiting of the Third Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, was published himself as an outstanding hurler on the Bulletin diamond aggregation last season, has been named to coach the 1949 edition of the battalion.

Waiting, a reputedly capable baseball strategist as well as an affable pitcher, boasts an affiliation with the game extending over a period of some 15 years in which time he has had the opportunity to gain a well-rounded knowledge of diamond play.

Notable mound performances in his high school days with the Leavenworth Royals, school nine drew the attention of the Leavenworth Royals, who selected him with a four-year contract and farmed him out to a Class B team.

His stint with the farm aggregation, however, was short since sparking mounds doings soon resulted in a starting berth on the mound staff of the Royals.

Whiting's record for last season, his first with the club, showed three wins out of which netted him a 6-0 shutout triumph.

Georgians Urged To Vaccinate Dogs

ATLANTA, April 6.—State health Director Thomas F. Hise today gave Georgians 21 good reasons why they should have their dogs vaccinated for rabies immediately.

He said 21 persons had been treated for the disease in Fulton county alone during January and February.

operation apparently was successful and that Hogan probably would play golf again.

"He is one man definitely," he said, "but I think there's very little doubt but what Ben will play golf," adding that he would tell more about it when he examines Hogan.

Ochsner said he had not checked Hogan since the operation, but understood the "Bantam" was progressing very "satisfactorily." He said Hogan would be given a thorough physical check-up at the clinic. It usually requires about a week for a complete physical at the clinic.

Cinder Squads Plan May Meet

Nine unit teams are scheduled to participate in the coming Infantry Center intra-mural track and field program this year.

Although the teams are not required to have entries in all events, it will be to the advantage of each team to be represented in as many events as possible since scoring will be on a team basis, post athletic officials have entered one of the teams may enter one of the man squad in each event of the intra-mural relay meet, but not more than two men in each event of the track and field phases.

Individual participation will be limited to three events, only two of which may be running events. The track and field participants will swing into action at 2 p. m. on May 25, opening with the one-mile run, the pole vault, the high jump, discus, 100 yd. dash, and shotput.

Rickey's Statement Caused Owen's Jump to Mexico

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 6.—Mickey Owen told a federal jury Tuesday that the reason he jumped to the Mexican league was the quoted statement of Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, that he had no place on the Brooklyn club for Owen.

Owen's declaration came under cross-examination by Attorney Victor Harris of St. Louis, representing Jorge Pasquel of Mexico in the cross-examination of Owen, which was filed by Pasquel and Owen, each against the other.

Pasquel has sued Owen for $127,500 allegedly because the United States after joining the Mexican league three years ago, failed to live up to his contractual obligations.

Bataan General Asks Readiness

The American people have been urged to "remember that if we are prepared for war, we will probably not have one" by Gen. (ret.) Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan and president of the Disabled Veterans of America, in a special Army day message.

Addressed "to the American people," the text of General Wainwright's Army day statement follows:

"April 8, 1949 having been proclaimed Army day, I am happy to address a brief message to all free American citizens.

"Army Day marks the anniversary of the entry of the United States into World War I. On that day, as well as on December 7, 1941, this country was forced into war while in a state of unpreparedness.

"It is not beyond the realm of possibility that we may again be forced into a terrific war, and my message to you is to help rebuild our national defense and strengthen our armament and our armed forces. Remember that if we are prepared for war, we will probably not have one. A strong nation is never attacked."

Each team in the Pacific Coast Baseball League plays a schedule of 186 games.

Mutual play at Haleah passed the million dollar mark on 26 of 30 days during the recent meeting. Twenty-nine million - plus days were scored in 1948.

Catholics Plan Solemn Mass

Third Infantry division chaplains of the Catholic faith today were making plans for a Solemn Mass to be held on Mother's day, Sunday, May 8, at 10:30 a.m.

The most Rev. William R. Arnold, Bishop of Military Ordinariate in New York and formerly chief of chaplains of the U. S. Army, is expected to be on hand to officiate. The eminent prelate has been contacted by personal letter from Gen. P. W. Clark, Third division commanding general, in an effort to secure the services of the man who now serves directly under Francis Cardinal Spellman.

The exact location for the division-wide services has not been selected, however, it was believed that the mass would be held in the Sand hill area.

Services for Easter Sunday, April 17, will include an Easter Sunrise Service for the Protestant faith and a Solemn High Mass at 10 a.m. at the main post Catholic chapel.

UNITED STATES ARMY THE CHIEF OF STAFF

Statement by General Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff, United States Army, Army Day, 1949

To Our Fellow Americans:

The Army job in 1949 is no small task. As part of the defense team, we must give the citizens of the United States a full dollar's worth of security for a dollar spent.

We have pledged ourselves to a speedy, effective unity among the Armed Forces. Within our service, we are striving to build a team of mobile divisions trained and ready for instant use in case of emergency.

In all these plans, we are pledged to a constant observance, in the true democratic tradition, of the right and dignity of the individual.

On Army Day, 1949, we of the Army restate these pledges, and invite your interest in the progress we are making in the accomplishment of the missions the people have assigned to us.

Omar N. Bradley

CG of Third Div-arty Due Here in May

Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, now military attaché to the U. S. embassy in Paris, has been named as the Third Infantry division artillery commander and is expected to assume his new post in May, it was announced recently.

In the meantime, Lt. Col. Herbert G. Sparrow, who arrived at Fort Benning recently, will serve as acting commander, according to the announcement.

General Tate, a native of Eunice, La., is a graduate of the U. S. Military academy, West Point, N. Y. He served as an artilleryman with the American Expeditionary Forces during World War I, and as artillery commander of the 34th Infantry division in Italy during World War II.

He participated in the breakout from the Anzio beachhead during the liberation of Rome, Civitavecchia, L'Abruzzo and Frosinone, the breakthrough of the Gothic line in the Apennines, the liberation of Bologna and the Po valley.

The general was with the 34th Infantry division as part of the surrender of the German 75th corps, of which the German 14th division was a part.

General Tate organized the American university for U. S. Forces in Washington, following the end of the war. He was appointed military attaché to the U. S. embassy in Paris, France, in Washington. He was with the division before World War II as a battery commander of the 3rd Field Artillery battalion, now the 39th and a part of the Third division.

Regiment Billeting Chief Tackles Job With Gusto

"Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," might well have been used in reference to the housing situation for 30th Infantry regiment personnel...that is, before 1st Lt. Robert E. Walters took over the duties of billeting officer.

Since Lieutenant Walters tackled the job of locating quarters for the men of the 30th (all grades), which was approximately three weeks ago, he has succeeded in obtaining living quarters for nearly 50 percent of all those who have applied through his office.

Moreover, he has not confined his efforts to an attempt to secure housing on the post, but has been able to place a number of men in suitable houses and apartments in and around Columbus.

Working hand in hand with the Traversers' aid and the Post branch billeting office in Columbus, Lieutenant Walters makes a personal inspection of every prospective rental, checking sanitation facilities and general adequacy before recommending the place for rental to one of his assistants.

Army Increases Basic Training Period 6 Weeks

A revised, 14-week program of basic military training for enlisted men was put into effect by the army recently replacing the present eight-week course, the Department of the Army announced.

The new program was adopted by the Third Armored division, Fort Knox, Ky.; the Fourth Infantry division, Fort Campbell, Ky.; the Fifth Armored division, Camp Chaffee, Ark.; the Fifth Infantry division, Fort Jackson, S. C.; the Ninth Infantry division, Fort Dix, N. J.; and the Tenth Infantry division, Fort Riley, Kans.

The army explained that the eight-week basic course was increased, as previously planned, to 14 weeks now that the army has reached its authorized strength.

The eight-week course was inaugurated in the spring of 1948 in order to train as rapidly as practicable volunteers and men selected for service by the Selective Service Act of 1948, who were urgently required for the expansion program of the army.

New courses include those concerned with military justice and national defense establishment. In the latter the army seeks to provide a general knowledge of the "establishment" and its major components as well as to create a realization of the necessity for cooperation among the U. S. army, navy and air force.

3rd Infantry Division G-2 Has Peruvian Decoration

It is not an unusual sight to observe a soldier of the Third Infantry division, the most decorated U. S. Army division, wearing a chest full of "fruits a la d", representing everything from the Good Conduct Medal to the Congressional Medal of Honor and the French Croix de Guerre.

However, it is a reasonable safe bet that one man in the division holds a decoration of which none of his contemporaries can boast. He is Capt. Lewis W. Raber, of the division G-2 section, who is the proud holder of the Peruvian government's "Order Militar de Ayacucho."

Defense Chief Recalls Army Contributions

The United States Army "has contributed to the wellbeing of America in times of peace without ever once failing in its mission during time of war—the mission of defeating our enemies," Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson said in an Army day statement.

The complete text of Secretary Johnson's statement follows:

"The Army of the United States since the earliest days of our national existence, has contributed to the wellbeing of America in times of peace without ever once failing in its mission during time of war—the mission of defeating our enemies."

Pacific Coast League Opens

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—The Pacific Coast league, with its most prominent new faces in Managers' benches, opens the organized baseball season today. It is the first circuit to open last to close.

The pennant chase looms as an open affair among six contenders. Seattle, San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Hollywood, Sacramento and Portland will to shape up with the others.

Five new managers will end fresh stints in the campaign. Bucky Harris, down from the Yankees, will pilot the San Diego Padres. Charley Dressen, an old hand in the majors, steps into Casey Stengel's shoes at Oakland. Stengel gave the cubs their first pennant in twenty years last season.

Del Fisher, the old Detroit leader, will boss the Sacramento Solons. Bill Sweeney has the top spot at Portland. Silver Fox Haney is the new Hollywood skipper. Holdovers are Frank "Lefty" O'Dell, the league's managerial dean whose San Francisco Seals look less formidable this year; Bill Kelly of Los Angeles and Jojo White of Seattle.

Of the eight clubs, only Seattle and Oakland appear ready for a flying start. Seattle could stand or catch but otherwise is well rounded. Oakland needs pitching help. San Diego, with terrific potential hitting power, is the league's longshot bet, but its pitching staff is questionable.

San Diego will get help from Cleveland. Los Angeles depends on the parent Chicago Cubs for additional talent. The Seals have the best hitting corps but need a second baseman and a right handed hitting outfielder.

Hollywood's tie-up with Brooklyn may bear fruit later but the stars aren't ready now.

For the openers Seattle will be at Los Angeles, Hollywood at San Diego, Oakland at Sacramento and Portland at San Francisco.

Heavyweight Title Declared Vacant

WASHINGTON, April 6.—For the first time in 14 years, the National Boxing Association failed to list a heavyweight champion in its quarterly ratings today.

It declared the NBA version of the title vacant because Joe Louis retired to go into the promotion end of the business and said it would recognize the winner of next June's Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott bout as the champion. Louis and his associates are promoting that bout in Chicago.

Along with Charles and Walcott, the NBA listed Lee Savold as a logical contender for the title.

Only other changes made in the ratings of the eight weight divisions were re-installing Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., as featherweight champion and once again listing Sandy Saddler of New York as the only logical contender. Pep regained his title from Saddler this winter after having lost it to him last October.

GETS PERUVIAN DECORATION . . . Capt. Lewis W. Raber, Third Infantry division G-2 officer, is shown as he received the "Order Militar de Ayacucho," a Peruvian Government decoration recently. Pictured presenting the medal is Brig. Gen. Zenon Noriega, minister of war for the Republic of Peru.

Artillery Athlete To Go Overseas

One of the unit's most outstanding athletes, John Griffey, has been selected for overseas duty in the Pacific. It was announced by officials of the 86th Armored Field Artillery Battalion.

During World War II, Griffey served an 18-month stint with the 86th Infantry regiment of the 93rd Infantry division in the Southwest Pacific. Upon his return to the U. S. he was separated from the army, and upon re-enlistment was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 25th Infantry Regiment.

Participating as a regular, he held down the star position as the 25th Regimental combat team's basketball quintet of the 1946-47 season, and later in the year, sparked the diamond piece's successful record with his timely hitting and deft play.

The CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union begins its eight biennial convention in San Francisco today. The convention is scheduled for six days.

At Hook range, the visiting dignitaries saw virtually every type of weapon used by the infantry in action, and were given descriptions of each of them, including their advantages and disadvantages. Following the demonstration of infantry firepower, the conference guests returned to the main post where they saw a unique

Benning 'Home' to Captain Who Was Born Here In '22

An assignment to Fort Benning last February for Capt. Earl E. Tweed was an assignment to come home, since he was born, educated, enlisted in the army and commissioned here.

Captain Tweed, commanding officer of Company B, 36th Infantry regiment, and the son of M-Sgt. (retired) Thomas Tweed, was born on Jan. 1922. Upon graduation from the Fort Benning Children's school and Columbus high school, enlisted in his father's outfit entered Officers' Candidate School here and was commissioned on June 30, 1942, a second lieutenant in infantry.

Captain Tweed's commissioned service has carried him to Camp Wolters, Tex. Camp Shelby, Miss., through the European campaigns back to Ft. Sill, Okla. and to his old camping grounds, Fort Benning.

Enlistments

mediate unit commander and promoting authority if a vacancy had existed.

An important exception is the case of an individual who was drawing family allowances prior to May 1, and who reenlists the day immediately following his discharge.

Airforce enlistment restrictions just announced are not as far reaching as those imposed on the regular army. Essentially, applicants from civilian life with dependents who have been out more than 90 days may not be accepted unless enrolled in grade three or above. Waivers may be granted to men with long periods of honorable service—usually six or more years—in especially meritorious cases.

Colt Born After Run

Anything can happen in the blue grass country of Kentucky. Haackcamp, a six-year-old mare, surprised everyone recently by running a half-mile in 57 seconds. She then returned to her stable to give birth to a colt. Latest reports are that the mare and foal were "doing fine."

New Unit Added To 3rd Division

The 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, since 1946 a demonstration unit attached to the Infantry Center, recently became a part of the Third Infantry division. It has been announced.

Effective April 10, the 99th became a part of the Third "division."

Activated in February, 1943, from elements of the 578th Field Artillery regiment, the 99th served as an eight-inch Howitzer battalion at Fort Bragg, N. C. During World War II, the unit participated in five campaigns from Normandy through the Ardennes. Supporting the sixth and 15th corps, of which the Third Infantry division was a part, the 99th aided materially in the action at Colmar pocket.

A short period of occupation duty followed the end of hostilities, and the latter part of 1945 found the artillery unit back in the states, ready for inactivation. In May, 1946, the 99th was reactivated here as part of the 25th

Fire Department Sergeant Completes Heroic Rescue

The rescuing of Ernest R. Gilmore, Jr., 12-year-old son of M-Sgt. Ernest E. Gilmore, Company C, Infantry School detachment, and Mrs. Gilmore earned M-Sgt. Harley B. Harmon, 34th Area Service unit, the selection as "The Bayonet's" Soldier of the Week.

A call received on Tuesday, March 29, at 4:25 p.m. through the fire alarm switchboard, reported that a child had been trapped in a gulley about five feet deep behind building No. 503, and was covered under approximately three or four feet of dirt.

Responding quickly to the call, Sergeant Harmon, fire Chief G. W. Ward and Civilian Fire Fighter Delmar F. Fincher rushed to the scene of the accident. Upon their arrival they found several women so emotionally upset by the occurrence that they were unable to do anything. Finally one of the women pointed out the spot where the boy was trapped.

Sergeant Harmon, with this knowledge, began digging with both hands in the middle of the cave-in, and within a few minutes the boy's head was uncovered. Immediately, Sergeant Harmon dug the dirt from young Ernest's mouth, pulled his tongue back in place, cleaned his nostrils and began rubbing his face. After Sergeant Harmon's action had effected a slight recovery, artificial respiration was applied, and the boy was wrapped in blankets and taken to the Station hospital.

Two days later the lad had recovered sufficiently to return to school. Sergeant Harmon was picked for the honor from a field of candidates by a selection board composed of three officers and three enlisted men.

Sergeant's Quick Thinking Prevents Possible Injury

Quick thinking and attention to duty on the part of Sgt. Henry C. Skipper, an airborne instructor on the Jump Training committee, prevented a recent serious or possibly fatal injury to a fellow soldier, Pvt. Bill V. Cornell, a student parachute jumper in the Airborne Battalion.

On March 25, a sudden shift in wind direction caused 15 airborne-soldiers, who were making a training jump, to land in the woods at Lee field.

Recruit Corryell, one of the jumpers, landed in a tall pine tree and attempted to climb down without aid. Upon reaching a height of about 25 feet above the ground, he snagged his pants' leg on a broken branch and was unable to free himself.

Several unsuccessful attempts were made to aid the man while three climbers were being secured. Meanwhile, Recruit Corryell, string of hanging on to the tree trunk, warned those a tempting rescue that he was going to fall.

Immediately, Sergeant Skipper, picked up a reserve chute that was lying on the ground and with the help of a few men used it as a life net at the base of the tree. Just as the reserve was, Recruit Corryell fell, landing on his back in the spread chute, uninjured.

The demonstration performed by Sergeant Skipper, according to officials of the Academic Department, brought out one of the many highly desirable qualities of soldiers of the United States army.

A total of 98 enlisted men and one officer will arrive at Fort Benning this week for assignment to the Third Infantry division it has been announced. The new arrivals will come from Camp Stoneman, Calif., Fort Riley, Kans., and Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Conduct on Public Transport

It's difficult to understand why the conduct of military personnel aboard civilian transportation, such as trains and buses, is sometimes so bad that officials of civilian transportation companies find it necessary to make reports to commanders, or, in some cases, to turn the offenders over to military police. This is doubly incomprehensible in view of the fact that the average modern-day soldier is such a superior type of individual.

Nevertheless, recent reports indicate that some soldiers in the Third Army area are not upholding the tradition of the army. Let it be said here, however, that this lack of gentlemanly characteristics is not peculiar to Fort Benning. On the contrary, all reports received here from civilian transportation officials reveal that the Fort Benning soldier has made the job of those persons connected with travel much easier. Nothing but praise for the Fort Benning soldier's conduct aboard trains and buses has been forthcoming. Consequently, most men here have no cause to feel guilty of violating the ethics of good conduct.

Fort Benning soldiers have built up a reputation which make it mandatory that their conduct be above reproach. A few slips by a few unthinking individuals, however, will cause the pleasant relationship now existing between the Fort Benning soldier and the civilian transportation official to deteriorate; thus it is necessary that every soldier who has cause to use public conveyance be sure that he does nothing to prejudice that relationship.

On the darker side of the ledger, it is an unfortunate truth that some Fort Benning soldiers are guilty of misbehavior in public places as we learned one night last week. We were watching a city bus in Columbus take on passengers in an orderly fashion when suddenly four soldiers pushed their way to the head of the line, the leader calling over his shoulder to the other three "to get the lead out."

We wonder if he thought such conduct becoming. Certainly, the other military personnel standing by didn't as was evidenced by the expressions on their faces, which ranged all the way from disgust to outright hostility.

Luckily, such incidents are few and are quickly forgotten, but their temporary unpleasantness can, over a period of time, create a resentment which will be hard to overcome.

Each Fort Benning soldier should help to maintain the good character rating he already has by conducting himself, when aboard public transport, the way he would anywhere else.

The Bayonet Gets Around

At the expense of being judged unfairly, we are going to take advantage of our opportunity to reprint here an item which appeared recently in The Ess-Kay Post, the publication of Steadman-Keenan Post No. 96, American Legion, Bunswick, Md. It proves that The Bayonet does get around.

Under the heading "Read The Bayonet", we found the following item:

"Our thanks to one of our members, of Fort Benning, Ga., for mailing us a weekly copy of their post paper, 'The Bayonet'. You will find it in our reading room. Many of our members have been heard to comment on this splendid publication."

Ready Infantry Career Field Regulations

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Special regulations inaugurating the infantry career field will be published this month, launching the recently announced plan to bring four combat specialties under career guidance. The patterns of the other three new fields, armored cavalry, artillery and field engineers, are expected to follow the infantry plan closely.

Impending regulations will require dividend payments to army and air force unit welfare funds on a basis of total strength rather than enlisted strength. Limits on the size of the welfare funds will be revised.

Regular army 21-month enlistees will not be permitted to count time in such an enlistment as "prior service" for the purpose of re-enlisting for special assignment, unless they have completed at least 18 of the 21 months.

Former air force personnel, re-enlisting 90 days or more after discharge, and former members of other services enlisting or re-enlisting in the air force, will go to Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas, for processing and assignment.

Special Army Regulations 35-2000-1, governing the new pay system effective July 1, will be distributed this month.

A 40-week course in guided missiles, to be held at Fort Bliss, Texas, is open to Regular navy line officers. Classes will convene in August and November.

Marine corps selection boards are now meeting to select permanent warrant officers and qualified enlisted men for appointment to limited duty commissions, and women marines for promotion to the grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

Effective April 1, successful passing of USAFI's educational qualification test 2CX will be mandatory in order to meet educational requirements by officers who had not completed two years of college and who are applying for regular air force commissions.

The first issue of the air force Information and Education Letter, containing information concerning the I&E program, is being prepared for dissemination to air force I&E officers in the field.

With the exception of general officers, air force personnel who have completed 27 years of service henceforth will be exempt from overseas assignment.

The air force's Airplane and Engine Mechanic School is being moved from Keesler AFB, Biloxi, Miss., to Sheppard AFB, Wichita Falls, Texas. The Fixed Wire section of the Communications School is being moved from Scott AFB, Belleville, Ill., to Fort Francis E. Warren, Cheyenne, Wyo.

Man's Chief Drive Is Self-Improvement

BY CHAPLAIN WALLACE M. HALE

The struggle to improve conditions for himself and his loved ones has been the chief drive of man. Many times he has asked, why all this struggle? Why can he not be content himself with caves for houses and raw meat or berries for food? Why argue about what is right and wrong when life could exist on basic needs of food and shelter?

But man can not be content because there is something inside that keeps him looking up and out beyond. There is a spirit inside man that makes him seek contact and further understanding of the Creator. He feels a responsibility to do better, to be good and to build a world based on the idea of community.

Easter is the climax of man's worldly struggle to orient himself with his Creator. This spirit within him feels that there is hope and life beyond death.

Life has been characterized by transition. The child grew from a sperm into reality and grew to maturity. The seed planted in the ground was inert for a time, but sprouted and grew forth in greater abundance and usefulness. The worm lay in a cocoon and developed into a butterfly. Then, man thinks, why should I, the Supreme Creation of God, live for a few years—and die—without the transition to tomorrow so characteristic of other created things?

This Easter belongs to the spirit of man—to his soul. If we fail to delve into our own hearts, we will miss the opportunity that God, the Creator, instilled in our hearts when He made us.

Extends Welcome to All New Troops

BY MURRAY HILL

Your Red Cross would like to extend a most hearty welcome to all troops who have arrived here since January 1.

You know that Red Cross, ever since the Spanish American war, has had the slogan "Come In and Talk It Over". It makes no difference to the Red Cross what type of problem you have. There are none too large for us to tackle or none too trivial for us to consider seriously. To a great many of you, this is your first time away from home. Things have come up that you would like to talk about, and what could be more proper when any type of problem comes up than to talk to the Red Cross?

So much for the invitation. Now here's how you go about coming to the office. You must always remember this—that no soldier has to have permission, or an appointment, to come and talk to a Red Cross field director. True, you might have to have permission to take your problem to the Red Cross. Of course, the proper and courteous thing to do is to tell your first sergeant or your commanding officer that you would like to go to the Red Cross office. A total of 1,400 men last month found it to their advantage to talk to us. So don't sit around and fret about the health and welfare of your folks back home, about illness and business worries, or a thousand and one things that can get a fellow down. Just come to the main Red Cross office right in the center of the post across from Doughboy stadium and we will sit down and talk it over.

Unit Improving Area Buildings
Completion of barracks and mess hall rehabilitation projects on a battalion-wide scale were announced by officials of the 88th Armored Field Artillery battalion last week.

During the past two months, all barracks have been equipped with second floor reading rooms which formerly housed non-commissioned officers. The rooms are painted in two-toned colors and are enhanced by window curtains, reading lamps, comfortable lounging furniture, magazine racks and writing tables.

Proximity of the squad reading rooms to the mess sleeping quarters has resulted in the projects whole-hearted acceptance by the enlisted personnel.

As an integral part of the program, the interior of each battery mess hall has been repainted. The main dining rooms are arranged in a cafeteria style, featuring individual tables seating four persons. The dining rooms are also decorated in two-toned color schemes.

The installation of hot water tables insures cooked foods being kept at proper temperatures prior to and during serving. Boilers of increased water capacity with boosters insuring a continuous flow of hot water have also been added.

In the areas surrounding the mess halls, cement slabs were constructed for garbage and trash disposal cans with the adjacent area surfaces being reinforced with either cement or brick.

Division Special Troops Launch League Squad

The latest diamond squad to crop in the Infantry Center intramural baseball league is the Third Division Special Troops nine which has been snipping up for a bid for next season under the management of Jimmy Vowell.

The Special Troops aggregation is one of four which will be entered by the division in the coming season's play expected to get underway around May 1. The three other division teams are Division Artillery and the 15th and 20th Infantry regiments.

Boasting the services of such men as Pitcher Marty Kosover, who is now under contract to the New York Yankees of the American league, a product of the New York club's farm system, and outfielder Gordon Burke, who distinguished himself as a formidable batter on the Blues in the 1947-48 season, Manager Vowell places great confidence in the team's performance in local diamond activities.

If there are any two things that can take the thrill we experienced two weeks ago on St. Andrew's bay at Panama City, Fla. out of the terrific strike which unravelled the greater portion of the line from our reel, and the eventual landing of a two-pound speckled trout, they are the dictionary, and the Encyclopedia Britannica.

The dictionary defines the speckled trout as the common American brook trout.

According to the encyclopedia trout is a fish closely related to the salmon, but with a larger mouth, the maxillary (lower jaw) extending to below the rear extreme of the eye, and a fish six inches long, well beyond the eye in larger ones, and with the caudal fin having fewer notches on its edges than other types.

In the sea, the trout ranges from Iceland and northern Europe to the Bay of Biscay, (Spain). Note: A corresponding area in the United States covers the east coast from the Arctic circle to New York.

But as a freshwater fish, it occurs in the countries north of the Mediterranean eastward to Greece.

The sea trout is silvery, with X-shaped blackish spots, it ascends rivers to breed, and forms freshwater colonies in every river and lake that it enters. The presence of trout in the Mediterranean countries indicates that in glacial times sea trout frequented the Mediterranean.

The river and lake trout show great difference in size and coloration and many specific names have been given; but it seems clear that all are but varieties of the one main species.

In large lakes a weight of 50 pounds may be attained, whereas in small mountain streams a fish of four ounces is exceptional.

The coloration varies from silvery white to blackish with spots that may be few or many, stellate or rounded, black, brown or red.

In the eastern United States, the name trout is also given to a char brook (trout) and in the west the name is given to the steelhead (a shorter headed, smaller scaled fish) of the Pacific coast. Its numerous freshwater derivatives which exhibit just as much diversity in coloration as the trout of Europe and have received even a more specific name. The best known is the rainbow trout.

These trout of the Pacific slope have the caudal fin spotted and often a red band along the side of the body. Their relationship to the trout of Europe is not very close, their nearest allies being the various other Pacific species of Salmo, which are generally termed Salmo.

Knowing as much now as we did before, suppose we look over what we have and determine whether that speckled trout is a salmon char, a steelhead, or the description of the European sea trout, apparently, the final species, clearly resembles the eastern American speckled trout.

These types known to anglers of this section of the country as freshwater, brown and rainbow trout closely fit the encyclopedia's description of the varieties found in the larger European lakes.

The brook and rainbow trout of the west coast then are apparently unrelated to their eastern brethren.

So it seems that the head of the family, the sea trout, is known to eastern anglers as the speckled trout, and that the freshwater, brown and rainbow, and the small saltwater silvers, out are its derivatives.

It is gratifying to note now after wading through approximately 1,000 words, that the feller that fought for three minutes before we could put him on the beach is after all, just what we suspected all along, the fisherman's prize, a speckled trout.

Benning Ponds Yield Big Bass

Averett's pond has an abundance of large bass, according to Lt. Col. Albert C. Haley, chairman of the fish committee of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association.

How does he know? He caught a couple, and has pictures to prove it.

Haley and his young nephew, Harry Lee, Jr., of Lebanon, Tenn., went fishing on the pond last Sunday morning using five minnows for bait. After the usual period of fisherman's luck the anglers decided to make the rounds of the lake while the colonel switched to a deep-runner, broken-back plug.

As they paddled around the pond, they saw a fish break water, and pulled over to a spot close to where they had spotted the motion.

On his second cast, Haley pulled out five and one-quarter pound, large-mouthed bass. After fighting the spot a while longer they decided around to the other side of the pond where the committee chairman hooked another bass, this time a six and three-quarter pounder.

FISH STORY AND PROOF

Lt. Col. Albert C. Haley, chairman of the Fish committee of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association has a lot of fish to talk about in the two bass he proudly displays in the picture above.

The fish on the left, weighing five and one half pounds, and the other weighing six and three-quarter pounds, were hooked at Averett's pond last Saturday morning.

Young Cheering Section Favors Lawson Flyers

William Cox, two-year-old son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Mack Cox of Lawson Air Force Base, was named mascot of the Lawson Flyer baseball team recently.

The young baseballer hasn't made up his mind whether he is a pitcher or catcher. Using his left hand to hurl, he steps into the role of a pitcher, and the next minute he has his catcher's mask on.

As he struts around the dug-out all decked out in full baseball uniform with his pint size hat and catcher's mitt, Bill cuts quite an impressive figure.

He is a chip off the old block when it comes to baseball and plays every position on the Flyers' team from the bench. His father, a veteran in baseball, is catcher for the Flyers and has been behind the plate at Lawson, for the past two seasons.

Bill is probably the strongest supporter of the team, and his cheers for the players make him No. 1 man in the Lawson rooting section.

Jones Successful In Challenge Fray

Army middleweight champ Lawrence Jones of the Provisional group, Area Service unit faced challenger William Bernier of the 15th Infantry regiment last Thursday night in a three-round main go highlighting the Army day week boxing card at the main gym, and stepped out of the ring still undefeated in the Third Army area competition.

Jones, known locally for his knockout, as the gong ended the defensive, dancing, circling and counter-puncher style, pulled a couple of rabbits out of his hat in his mill with the challenger, who holds the Second Army middleweight crown for 1948.

Conforming to Bernier's obvious attempt to engage the champ in a toe-to-toe conference, Jones pulled the unusual by trading blows in a slugging session early in the first round and it looked for a while like Jones had won his match.

By the middle of the round, however, the champ found a target, his second surprise of the evening, an un-Jones-like straight, hard right to the head. Apparently in good shape in spite of the layoff following the all-army tournament last February, Jones pulled another out of his bag of tricks in the second round by carrying the fight to the Oshkosh Wis. last apparently feeling out his tough opponent for a possible knockdown.

Bernier proved his ability to take punishment by standing up under Jones' newly-developed straight right, and dishing out a good share of his own brand of punishment in close quarters. The Infantryman's physical condition obviously didn't measure up to that of the all-army champ since he slowed down visibly in the final frame, and looked like he was set up for a

When asked his opinion of the fray, Jones had this to say: "He's a tough man, he just forgot that I'm a counter-puncher, and could have been in a little better shape."

Bernier simply commented that he had very little time in which to train, and that he intends to try again after he has had a chance to improve his condition.

Parade Brings Belated Award To Ring Champ

Dicker Donaldson, Third Army light heavyweight champ received a belated, but nonetheless, welcome certificate of achievement last Saturday from Lt. Gen. Ayan C. Gilmer, Jr., commanding general of the Third Army. The presentation, by Maj. Gen. Wilfred A. Burgess, Infantry Center commander, highlighted a parade by the 89th Armored Field Artillery battalion at the Sand Hill area parade ground.

IN THERE SWINGING . . . Tom Gallagher, Benning receiver, tries hard for a pingle in the Benning-Cardinals fray last Friday night. The Redbird catcher is Mike Curran, and the umpire is "Pappy" Harris, formerly an intra-mural arbiter at Benning who is now a member of President Earl Blue's staff of Sally League lumps.

Lawson Bows To E-P Millers

The Lawson airforce base diamond nine yielded 6-5 to the Eagle-Phoenix mills team last Sunday afternoon in their second off-base game of the season.

Scoring five runs in the top of the third, the Flyers held the Eagles scoreless until the bottom of the sixth.

Glen (Lefty) Raether, Flyer pitcher, did some fancy hurling during the first five innings, whiffing three consecutive batters in the second, and holding the millers hitless through the third, fourth, and fifth frames.

The Eagles started connecting in the sixth, however, and brought in five runs in that frame. They scored their winning tally in the seventh.

Raether gave up two hits before being replaced by Borden Wilbanks, who was also nicked for two in the seventh. John McElion, on the mound for the Eagles, yielded seven singles to Lawson history winners.

Post Courtmen Defeat Auburn

The Fort Benning tennis team played host to a visiting squad of Auburn college racketmen on the Officer's club tennis courts here last Sunday and trounced the visitors in nine single matches and two doubles.

Although the teams plays out of the Officer's club, squad berths are open to enlisted courtmen as well. In fact, the club is in hopes of promoting a turnout of enlisted tennis players for the 1949 season. Coach Webster said, Webster may be reached at Fort Benning phone extension 2979.

Miss Peggy Shevlin of Manhattan, N. Y., was winner of a photo beauty contest staged by the recruits of the Second battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, last week.

The pretty 17-year-old winner lives at 181 Vermilyea street in Manhattan, and will graduate from high school in June. Following graduation, she plans to begin training for a career in nursing.

The contest was the highlight of a party given in honor of the completion of basic training for the men of the battalion, and Miss Shevlin's photo was chosen from a score of pictures of wives, sweethearts and sisters of the trainees.

Lt. Col. James N. Luton, Third Infantry division G-2; Sgt. Jack Collins, Headquarters company, Third division, and Pfc. Wayne Smith, Headquarters battery 89th Field Artillery battalion, were the judges.

The winning photograph was submitted by Miss Shevlin. It is the only one of her, Thomas Powers, of Forrest Hills, Col. Y., and has been in the army since last year.

For submitting the winning photograph, Recruit Powers received a "hand" from Ronson of cigarette lighter. His fiancée will receive a corsage of gardenias. Both gifts were donated by special services.

The photo judging climaxed a gala affair at the Harmonym church service club no. 3, attended by more than 500 basic trainees and their guests. The party, marked the final event at the service club for the men of the second battalion who will move from the Harmonym church area to the main post.

Guests of honor included Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the Third Infantry division and Mrs. Clarkson, high ranking officials of the Third and 15th Infantry regiments.

As the guests arrived, the ladies were presented with corsages of amaranths, and were ushered into the ballroom which was bedecked with Easter decorations. Over the bandstand, facing the entrance, an enormous "Happy Easter" greeted the arriving guests.

The festivities began with a program of dancing which ran the gamut from jitterbugging to fashioned waltzes. Sgt. Garcia and the Third division dance team S. Tye, Capt. George M. Ro-

Restrictions On Airborne Duty Relaxed

Infantry Center officials announced this week that the Department of the Army is re-evaluating the acceptance of airborne volunteers from enlisted personnel, which has been in effect since last Dec. 9, 1948, has been rescinded.

Enlisted men desirous of becoming airborne soldiers now may be assigned for paratroop training, provided they meet physical requirements and certain other standards.

In the circular which sets forth the requirements, it is stated that any male officer or enlisted man may volunteer for airborne training. In making application, the individual should address a letter to his commanding officer requesting assignment.

The letter, it was pointed out, must contain the following paragraph: "I volunteer to perform frequent aircraft flight, glider flights, and parachute jumps and to participate in realistic combat training while performing airborne duty."

Lt. Col. Shields Warren, Jr., commanding officer of the Airborne battalion, expects a great number of applications for training.

Colonel Warren said that last year, when acceptance of volunteers from enlisted personnel was discontinued, it was due to a backlog of some 1,500 applicants.

Inspector General Gets Antilles Duty

Col. Logan W. Boyd, inspector general of the Infantry Center since Nov. 6, 1946, has been ordered to report to the Antilles department for duty as a post commander. His orders directed him to report to the port of embarkation by June 3.

Colonel Boyd was born in Kentucky and attended the University of Tennessee where he was a member of the Kappa Sigma social fraternity and the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity. He received a degree in law from the University of Tennessee and has been licensed to practice before the supreme court in that state.

During World War I, Colonel Boyd and his wife were in active action with the 117th Infantry regiment, 30th division. He and one brother were wounded and his other brother killed in action. While serving as lieutenant in the 17th, both of the surviving brothers were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

As a member of the Kentucky and Tennessee national guard, Colonel Boyd was assigned to the 21st, 28th, 31st, and 38th Infantry regiments. He has had active service with the First, Third, Seventh, 30th, and 104th Infantry divisions, and has been

30th's New CO Arrives On Post

Col. Joseph W. Boone, who returned to Fort Benning recently to command the 30th Infantry regiment after an 18-year absence from the post, expressed his enthusiasm over his new assignment by commenting that "it certainly is good to be back."

Arriving on post from Washington, D. C., where he served on the Joint Munitions Allocation committee of the joint chiefs of staff, the colonel came to the 30th Infantry as commanding officer exactly 10 years after he left the outfit as Company E's commanding officer.

An army man from the start, Colonel Boone was born at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., on Jan. 18, 1900, and was schooled in the nearby town of Lansing.

After serving as an enlisted man for 81 days in World War I, he attended the University of Kansas until his entrance into the United States Military Academy. A graduate of the class of 1923, his first assignment was the 38th Infantry regiment at Fort Douglas, Utah, where he remained until 1925.

In 1925, he was assigned to the 15th Infantry regiment, then stationed in Tientsin, China, where he served under Gen. George C. Marshall, then a lieutenant colonel, and the late Gen. Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell, then a major.

Returning to the United States in 1928, he reported back to Fort Douglas and the 38th, staying there until 1930, when he was first assigned to Fort Benning for a short tour of duty.

While here, Colonel Boone attended the company officer's course of the Infantry School, graduating in 1931.

His next post was with the Third Infantry regiment at Fort Snelling, Minn., an assignment that lasted until early 1936 when he was ordered to report to the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth. Upon completion of the course he held the rank of major and was assigned to the 30th Infantry, then stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco, Calif., and assumed command of Company E. He

Col. Codner Is Appointed MPD Chief

Lt. Col. S. J. Codner has been named chief of the Infantry Center's diamond division, replacing Lt. Col. Joe C. Lambert, who recently received an assignment to the European command.

Commissioned direct from the ranks in 1922, Colonel Codner enlisted in the army in 1927. He is the holder of the Legion of Merit and has been in the Infantry since 1927.

For the past three years Colonel Codner has served as executive officer of the Adjutant General's division, headquarters, European command. He took over his new job here when Lt. Colonel Lambert left last Monday.

Colonel Lambert, who has a total of 12 years service, the last two years of which were spent at Fort Benning, accepted his commission as a second lieutenant in the reserve corps on May 4, 1936.

On Oct. 5, 1940, Colonel Lambert was placed on active duty as a first lieutenant, and, by 1945 he had risen to the rank of colonel in the Army of the United States. He reverted from temporary colonel to his present rank in June, 1946.

Serving in the European theater during the war, he is the holder of the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster, Purple Heart and the French Croix de Guerre with gold star.

A native Texan, he attended Texas Agriculture and Mechanical college for one year, and is a graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Easter Attendance Record Is Broken

Attendance records for post-war Easter Sunday services were broken last Sunday as some 7,500 Fort Benning worshippers gathered at various chapels, to observe the anniversary of the resurrection of Christ.

Leading all other services in attendance was the Easter sunrise service which began at 6:30 a. m., and was attended by about 3,500 persons. The Infantry center chaplain, Lt. Col. Wallace M. Hae, delivered the first morning Easter sermon.

Held on the parade grounds of the first quartel, the sunrise services opened with a concert of sacred music by the 72nd Army

The End of the Army's 'Day'

Announcement several days ago that there would be no more Army Days probably came as a shock to some who have always looked to April 6 as being the one day on which the nation paid tribute to the military establishment's ground forces. There are bound to be some persons who will find fault with the newly established procedure to set aside one day during the year on which the armed forces will be honored collectively, but those who realize the importance of unity among the members of the armed forces will recognize this move as one more step in the direction of complete unification.

We believe it fitting that this step has been taken. In the first place, there are entirely too many "days" now; and in the second place, to have unification is to eliminate the natural instinct to make any one of the service "days" greater than the "days" of its sister services.

The army put on a good show all over the world on April 6, a show it has every reason to be proud of, but the army, always a staunch advocate of unification, even then did not forget that it was only a part of the nation's armed might. This was borne out by the slogan adopted for the celebrations: The U. S. Army—A Part of the Team for Security. Even on the army's "day", the army recognized the fallacy in believing that it could alone adequately provide for the defense of the nation.

It's Your Duty To Be Informed

This month the army introduced a new program: Officers' Call. Supplemented by a monthly bulletin bearing that title, the program is supposed to do for officers what Armed Forces Talk is designed to do for enlisted men. Keep them informed on timely and specific subjects. In addition Officers' Call is supposed to provide the officer with an "understanding of the applied principles of conduct and leadership which are an integral part of his position and responsibility in the military profession".

Officers' Call is a kind of replacement for the old formation of the same name, when the regimental commander called his officers together and briefed them on things they needed to know. The new program will be run on a similar basis.

We hope, however, that no officer will regard this program as a means of fulfilling his educational obligation to his profession. The line officer's entire career, in time of peace, should be spent either in studying or teaching. His search for knowledge should never end, if he is to be a leader of men. Every profession has a publication designed to provide its readers with the latest developments and methods peculiar to that profession. For most Fort Benning officers, this would be the Infantry Journal. There are, however, many other publications including the Infantry School Quarterly, which are of great value to the infantry officer who is interested in his profession. In addition, there is at the Infantry School one of the greatest military libraries in existence. The library contains textbooks, pamphlets and publications covering practically every subject which pertains in any way to infantry tactics and techniques, and they are the latest available.

It should be the desire of every officer to better himself in his chosen profession. He can help to accomplish this by using the facilities available to him through the Infantry school library, by reading his branch publication and by enthusiastic support of and participation in the Officers' Call program.

Report from Washington Overseas Duty a Must for All Eligibles

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Army enlisted men with little or no foreign service will have priority for overseas assignment under a new directive being prepared. Even men classified as "essential" by commanding officers will not be retained more than six months after initial consideration for foreign duty.

A new-type combat boot, resembling paratrooper boots, and capable of taking a high polish, is being tested at Fort Knox, Ky., for possible use by the army. Two thousands pairs have been issued to selected personnel of the Third Armored division.

Details of the artillery career plan, second of four combat specialties to be brought under career guidance will be published shortly. The artillery plan is expected to parallel closely the recently-published infantry plan.

Present authority for inter-service transfers between the army and airforce will expire July 26. Such transfers are authorized by the Unification Act of July 26, 1947, for a period of two years after enactment.

A new air force regulation requires inspection of mess facilities at least once each quarter by a command food supervisor or his representative. These inspectors will deal with problems requiring wing or higher level action.

USAFI enrollments are 25 percent higher than they were a year ago. New enrollments during 1948 averaged slightly more than 6,000 per month.

Without Faith We Would Be At a Standstill

Faith has various meanings. We speak of having faith in the government, faith in the courts, faith in friends. A soldier has faith in a military commander; a patient has faith in a physician; a merchant has faith in a policy. We virtually live by faith. Every time we board a plane, we have faith in the pilot. When we read of past events, we have faith in the historian. If we read of past events, we have faith in the historian. If we read of past events, we have faith in the historian. If we read of past events, we have faith in the historian.

Your Red Cross

Another year and another fund campaign has gone by. Each year the Red Cross fund campaign, while involving a great deal of work for all concerned, creates new personal friends among those who give their time to the Red Cross.

This column, nor indeed if I had access to all the columns in this paper, would be sufficient to mention the names of all those who devoted so much time and thought to the planning of the Red Cross campaign.

Our own commanding general was most helpful in preliminary planning which was so badly needed to help us get under way. And to Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson goes the deepest appreciation of those unknown who will benefit through the Red Cross because of his intense personal interest and the many speeches he made.

No campaign can function properly without a campaign chairman, and in all experience on military posts, I have not

An army special regulation, soon to be distributed, will direct military and civilian personnel to review policies and procedures connected with their work, or with which they are familiar, "to determine ways, means and areas in which economies can be effected." Personnel will be asked to forward suggestions through channels.

TO's of airforce heavy bomb groups are being increased from 18 to 30 planes. A House Armed Services subcommittee has been appointed to "inquire into the adequacy of the organization and training of the civilian components of the armed services."

Defense Secretary Johnson has asked Congress to adopt legislation authorizing advance of not more than three months pay to officers and first-three-graders of all services, on permanent change of station. Such advances already are authorized for navy and marine officers under certain conditions.

The House Armed Services committee has approved legislation which would rescind a 1926-dated requirement that, in peacetime, a minimum of 20 per cent of pilots in airforce, navy, and marine corps tactical units must be enlisted men.

The army has promoted to temporary grades 922 regular and non-regular officers on EAD. Seventy lieutenant colonels became colonels; 126 majors moved up to lieutenant colonel; 575 captains became majors; and 151 first lieutenants became captains. Temporary airforce promotions of first lieutenants to captains are expected momentarily.

Chaplain's Corner

Without Faith We Would Be At a Standstill

When we have faith in God, we put our trust in One Who Cannot fail us. God can neither deceive nor be deceived. We call faith in God divine faith. It means that, relying on his goodness and promises, we live as He directs. We speak of our religion as our Holy Faith. It is also termed Divine Faith because it is based on God's Word. If we have faith in a man, we rely on his word. In a similar way, we have faith in him, we believe in him. Divine faith means that we so trust in God that we believe in Him absolutely. The mere fact that He has spoken is sufficient warrant for belief. His Word is the best argument for the truth of what He says. Divine Faith therefore means absolute belief in God's declaration, not because He proves it, but because He has spoken. His Word is of itself guarantee of the truth, of what He says because God is Eternal Truth.

Praises Those Who Helped in Fund Drive

had the opportunity of serving with a more aggressive, untiring chairman than Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill.

To total up all the hours given so cheerfully and freely by the auxiliary under the able leadership of Mrs. Frank Lee would be most impressive. Each year the ladies at Fort Benning play a prominent part in the fund campaign, and the auxiliary this year certainly did an outstanding job.

I only wish I had time and space to tell the public of the intense interest, of all the hard work by individuals who wrote so much publicity for the campaign, put on parties, operated picture shows, built displays, and then of course collected the money.

So, publicly, even though I failed to call your name, please let me thank you, not in the name of the Red Cross, but in the name of those unknowns who will in months to come benefit through your generosity, through your Red Cross.

Menu Technicians Visiting This Week

Mrs. Barbara Cramer and Mrs. Helen Cacharis, representatives of the office of the quartermaster general, Washington, D. C., arrived here Monday for an official visit in connection with menu planning. Visiting mess halls during serving hours, the two menu experts have been interviewing individual soldiers regarding their food preferences. Other places being visited by the representatives include the central ration breakdown, the post bakery and the central meat-cutting plant.

Young Benningites' Corner

Boy Scouts

Fort Benning troop No. 127 participated in the activities of the camporee for troops of the Columbus area Friday and Saturday, April 15-16, at Camp McKenzie, Pine Mountain, Ga. Here is a report of the camporee as told by Troop Scribe Robert Blandford.

On April 15-22 of the 29 members of troop No. 127 met at Blue point first and four of them were represented, including the newly-formed Apache patrol.

Everyone was soon assembled, piled in cars and left for Camp McKenzie at 1:30 p.m.

While we were on our way we lost the truck which had all our equipment. We stopped for about half an hour, then went back and looked for it without having any luck.

When we arrived at Camp McKenzie, there was the supply truck.

We stopped about one-eighth of a mile out of camp. Here we unloaded and marched into camp.

Now the goal of the camp was to get at least 250 out of a possible 500 points. Upon arriving we were checked on our equipment for points. Then we selected our patrol campsite, set up our tents made our fire, cooked our meals, put the fire out. During this time an interesting exhibition was given by the camp commandants and judges on camp fire cooking.

After this the judges arrived and checked on balanced meal, garbage disposal with cleanup. Then we went to bed.

After taps, we were judged on quietness and obeying the patrol leader.

We arose at 6:15 the following morning and it was not warm. A fire was soon built, and we cooked breakfast, aired our blankets and cleaned up. We were judged on all of these.

Then we had the competitions. It was possible to make 10 points in these, so they were very important. We had bed making, fire building, rope re-lays, compass courses, height finding and first aid. We then went back to the patrol campsites, prepared our noon meal, and had dessert, served from a large platter, with strawberries and cream with angel food cake. Her quarters were beautifully decorated with pink dogwood and daisies, and spring flowers in silver bowls graced her tables.

Guests included Mrs. W. A. Burrens, Mrs. P. W. Clarkson, Mrs. J. S. Bradley, Mrs. Marcus Bell, Mrs. Maurice Bickley, second in Hamilton, Mrs. A. C. Purvis, Mrs. Logan W. Boyd, Mrs. J. M. Brinkley and Mrs. H. W. Sandusky. Robert B. Hill also was on the guest list, but was unable to attend because of an out-of-town engagement.

came. They checked and checked, looked at our exhibits, and marked down points. We looked at our scorecards. None of the patrols had passed—yet. Then we managed to get enough points on leadership and final cleanup for us to pass. Top of the patrols in our troop passed. They were the Golden and Panther patrols. The Panther patrol made 500 points and the Cobra patrol made 380. The score was made by the Goat patrol of Troop 50.

The counselors thanked us for coming and we went home.

For the past month, Capt. William Hall, 651st company commander, and his patrol leaders have pushed through a strenuous training program in preparation for the exercise.

The 651st was the last convoy to leave Benning for the exercise.

Scanning THE Outdoors

A perch is a fresh water fish generally distributed over Europe, northern Asia, and North America, and a type of percid, a family of spiny-rayed fishes, and more. The perch is found in a stiff unbranched fin ray, pointed at the end.

It inhabits rivers and lakes, but thrives best in waters with a depth of over three feet. It feeds on small insects, larvae, and other small animals. It is a voracious feeder, beginning to spawn each April when the ice recedes.

The perch is carnivorous (feeds on smaller fish) and is voracious in inland countries. The perch is exceedingly prolific, beginning to spawn each April when the ice recedes.

Other members of the 'perch' family are the pope and the pikewitch. In a previous column concerning the bream, it was explained that the bream, as known to most fishermen, was, contrary to common belief, not a perch.

The resemblance of the perch as described in this column is very similar to the bream's shape and coloration. Feeding habits of the perch also are not unlike those of the bream.

Although worms are effective bait for catching perch, they feed extensively on minnows.

First World War History Slated for Release Soon

The long-awaited official history of the army's effort in World War I has been completed in 17 volumes and is in process of printing, the Department of the Army has announced.

The first two volumes of "The U. S. Army in the World War 1917-1919" are expected to be ready for release within the next 30 days.

The historical publication effort on World War I did not begin until after the war was over, greatly complicating the problem of collecting and appraising the basic records. This is in contrast with the historical planning for World War II under which historians were present at the front during all combat operations. This has facilitated the preparation of the history of World War II, three volumes having been released to date, with two additional volumes now at the printers.

"The U. S. Army in the World War 1917-1919" tells the authentic story of the AEF in the form of carefully selected letters, reports and other documents calculated to give a well-rounded picture of the AEF.

It contains, in addition, many charts, maps, photographs and tables never before published. A concise narrative summary in volume I provides an account of the principal operations on the Western front following the entry of the United States into the war in 1917.

The entire series will be of great value in understanding the developments of World War II, since a great number of the problems were closely related to those of 1917-1918, according to Department of the Army officials.

Topics of general interests include personnel, many of whom later became prominent in World War II; problems of build-up, supply and training; relationships of Gen. Pershing with allied governments and military leaders on the one hand, and with the War Department on the other; and the combat records of the AEF.

During the period this history was in preparation many monographs and other special studies were prepared for the use of the army schools and for use in war

SOUNDING 'EM OUT

Army Thoughts WITH BOB FRESCO

Each man at Fort Benning is an individual, has his own, personal ideas and thoughts on life in general, and on army life in particular. To sort these out, the recruiting reporter last week approached a group of soldiers with a query suited to them all. A question which brought out each man's personal thoughts on his own military career.

Here's what they were asked: "What's the first thing that comes to your mind when we say 'You and the army?' What are your hopes, your ambitions?"

Rct. Babe Stone, 11th Airborne division, pathfinder class No. 3, nine months service, replied: "This communications course is swell, and Fort Benning is the best post I've seen yet. G. I. s. I'll do this kind of work for the rest of my three-year hitch, but, to tell you the truth, I'd give anything to be an army photographer. You know, from a radio to a camera."

Ret. Jesse Moss, 89th Armored Field Artillery battalion, four months service, answered: "I don't know that I'm qualified to give an opinion with such a short time in, but I certainly know what I'd like to do. My idea of heaven is being a heavy tank driver—a crew chief—with appropriate stripes, of course. I may get there yet."

Mal. Clinton C. Burke, S-3, Third battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, 19 and one-half years service, smiled: "Well, the most important thing I can say is that my wife, daughter and I are all holding our breaths until next October. I'll have 20 years in then, and we can start waiting for the 30-year mark. I'd venture to say that the army is attracting more and more men for 30 years. I hope that all of us have as fruitful and as pleasant a time as I have had."

Pfc. Joseph Bloomberg, Headquarters company, Third Infantry division, six months service, opined: "As a one-year man I'd like to extend to three, then try for OCS. But something tells me

Grass Planting, Erosion Project Started On Post

A post-wide project, aimed at further beautifying the Fort Benning reservation, is underway recently. Col. Harold A. Stewart, Infantry Center engineer, has announced.

The project, consisting of a planting and soil erosion program, has approximately $90,000 allocated at this time, and the following plan has been set up by the road and grounds section for the project:

1. A total of 800 bushels of St. Augustine sprigs will be planted on dense shaded areas.
2. A total of 1,400 bushels of Bermuda grass will be used on open areas.
3. Several hundred Kudzu crowns will be planted on eroding areas.
4. The grassed areas of the main post will be fertilized at the rate of 500 pounds of guano per acre.
5. The Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas will be grassed and fertilized by June 30, with an additional 500 pounds of guano to be applied in late summer.
6. On regular schedule during the entire year, shrubbery and trees will be pruned.

The road and grounds section expressed its gratitude for the cooperation of the many units of the reservation which are mowing, watering and raking grassed areas.

As well, I'm a personnel clerk, and I think an ambition is to make out my own discharge.

Sgt. 1st cl. M. Parrish, Company A, Infantry School detachment, 14 years service, said: "I suppose that I'm what they call a 'career man.' I like the idea of staying in until I hit 20 years at least. The routine in the publication section of ISD I like. I'm occupied, and I guess that's good. Benning seems fine to me. It sure beats the Ruhr in 1944-1945."

Division I and E Briefing Slated

A system of weekly briefings for the Infantry division is to be inaugurated this week, it is announced by Capt. Monroe, division I and E officer.

Field each Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the briefings will be for all regimental, separate battalion and separate company I and E officers and NCO's, and instruction will be given on subjects to be presented to division personnel during troop instruction hours.

In addition to a general knowledge of the subject, the manner of presentation will be stressed in the briefings, Captain Monroe pointed out.

The first subject to be presented for discussion will be "A History of the Third Division," followed by the topic, "Unit History." These will be followed by discussions of "The Near East" and "Our Insignia."

Attempting to overtake the runaway truck, which had attained a speed of 15 miles per hour by this time, Corporal Turner, on his first attempt to reach the driver's seat, slipped and about fell beneath the cab of the moving vehicle. Hanging to hold on long enough to secure his balance, he entered the cab and applied the air brakes, stopping the vehicle.

Corporal Turner's quick thinking and attention to duty, according to 30th Infantry regiment officials, prevented not only damages amounting to several thousand dollars worth of government property but also possible injuries to the personnel in the trailer of the vehicle.

It was also pointed out by officials of the 30th, that the action of Corporal Turner, has shown the desirable traits and the presence of mind that are characteristics of the soldiers of the United States army."

Be a Part of the Community

Fort Benning has one of the most complete and beautiful Officers' clubs to be found on any army post. In addition, Fort Benning has several fine Non-commissioned Officers' clubs which probably surpass those at any other military installation in the U. S. Yet, despite the fact that these clubs are maintained for the convenience and pleasure of members, there are far too many eligible persons who are not members. Further—and this is particularly true in the case of officers—a number of those who have joined to join these clubs use their facilities anyway.
Those persons who are eligible for membership in these clubs and who fail to join remind us of leeches: enjoying the privileges which offers pay for.
These clubs are community projects. They were built and furnished with funds derived from members' dues. The members, then, are stockholders. Those who are not members—provided they are eligible to join—have no right to enjoy the facilities available because those who do not invest in a business should not expect any returns. The returns from these clubs are not in dollars and cents—no one is paid to join—but in fellowship.
We feel that officers and non-commissioned officers should be proud of their clubs so proud that they want to be a part of them. No one can really feel a part of a community unless he joins in projects sponsored by that community, and certainly Fort Benning is a community. It follows, then, that the clubs for officers and non-commissioned officers are community projects and ought to be supported by all who are in the community.

The Story of Mr. New York

BY ADRIENNE JONG
Beau James: The Life and Times of Jimmy Walker by Gene Fowler has been in constant demand at lending libraries and at book stores since its first appearance early in April. Preview hints on what to expect of this book were certainly conservative.
This long awaited biography by the author of "Good Night, Sweet Prince" is as readable and candid as his Barrymore work. His unusual style of writing description commands the reader to read every word and enjoy it. Such phrasing as "On a warm and humid day the waterfront smells like a convention of all the wet spaniels of the world," and "Cordoned-off facilities fringe both banks of the historic waterways like a pair of huge combs, with here and there a tooth broken off or missing as though from long usage," is just a peek at what the writer has in store for you in this interesting story of "Mr. New York."
The book is particularly interesting because of the human interest sketches of people whose names are familiar to all of us, and about whom most of us have only a smattering of knowledge. We've heard about them, read about them or seen movies of their era; we know them generally as people of fame and fortune. Babe Ruth? Oh yes, the home run king. Al Smith? One-time governor of New York. Harry Carey? Wasn't he an actor? Betty Compton? She was an old-timer in the movies in the days of the silents. The author has a way of making history come alive, and these people of the era he describes, through anecdote and thumbnail intimate glimpses of them as he knew his friends and acquaintances, live again.
You will want to read this book. "Here is New York's one-hundredth mayor as the public knew him, champagne and bright lights and silk hats and little tin boxes and all. But here is a less familiar Jim too, the warm and engaging human being known intimately only by a few close friends, high among them Gene Fowler."

Report From Washington

Officer Strength to Be Reduced Gradually

The army will seek to reduce its officer strength to the level of budget requirements by a gradual elimination process rather than by any forced method.
The military budget for fiscal year 1950, recently passed by the House, contained funds for the increased pay which will result from promotions under the career plan. Budget cuts made by committees were aimed chiefly at reduction of civilian personnel, curtailment of travel pay, and reduced food and clothing costs.
Legislation has been introduced in Congress which would finance the elementary and high school education of service children through arrangements between the U. S. Commission of Education and local school authorities.
The army recently promoted 230 first lieutenants to the temporary grade of captain.
President Truman has urged a revival of wartime community programs to promote "the spiritual and moral well-being of servicemen." The President's committee on armed services welfare recommended all activities.
In investigating service pay, the Hoek Commission considered that a sixth grade armed forces enlisted man receives compensation in cash, free goods and services equivalent to a civilian salary of $298.93 per month.
Surveys of the operation of the new court martial system, permitting enlisted men to serve on military courts, indicate that enlisted men tend to be more severe than officers in adjudging punishments.
The system of numbering army regulations is being altered to group these directives in functional series. The "35 series" regulations, now titled "Finance Department," will become the "Finance and Fiscal" series. The "30 series" now labeled "Quartermaster Corps" will be divided into series 30—"Food Service," and series 32—"Clothing and Equipage."
Army field installations have been requested to keep publication and blank form requisitions to a minimum until June 1, because of transfer of the Adjutant General's depot from the Pentagon to Alexandria, Va.
The U. S. Military academy class of 1949 will hold a class party at West Point on June 7, graduation day.
The President's committee on armed services welfare found in a survey that approximately 40 per cent of military personnel prefer civilian clothes off duty.

'Follow Me' Is The Command Of Jesus

BY CHAPLAIN CARLOS A. GOSNELL
The story of the Cross is perennial, and each year members of the church stand with uncovered heads as they keep the anniversary of His sacrifice for the sins of the world. On Easter morning, we sing the anthems of victory and redemption at His empty tomb. It is only as one is raised with Christ to newness of life that he can know the significance of the Lord's passion, death and resurrection.
There are many who followed Jesus for a time. They soon fall back to the affairs of their selfish worlds to follow Him no more. Their short experience of companionship with the Master affected their lives and characters. No one can escape His marvelous influence, even if the visit was but for a day. During this Lenten season, we at Fort Benning have gone with the Lord as He climbed the steep ascent of Calvary's hill. We have seen His face set as He faced the suffering that was before Him in Jerusalem. We have seen His character strong to do and die in the joy of the Father's will. We have been with Him in the upper room, and He has talked to us there with words of love, hope, assurance and a summons to service.
"Follow Me" is His command.
"Love one another as I have loved you" is His commandment.
The fellowship of Christian soldiers is the closest relationship in life. The risen Lord sends us forth to work at building in ourselves better characters and more effective personalities. It is a day of decision. How much am I willing to do in His service? To be a faithful follower of Christ now will give one a resurrection experience of his own.

Interest Is Being Shown in Water Safety

BY MURRAY HILL
The interest that is now being shown in water safety work is indeed pleasing. It is also pleasing to see so many soldiers and civilians interested in the national aquatic schools that are to be held this year.
Of course, if anyone has ever been to an aquatic school, it is his everlasting desire to attend another.
I am indeed happy to announce that the American Red Cross will conduct 35 aquatic schools this summer throughout the nation—seven in the southeastern states—to train instructors in aquatics, first aid and accident prevention.
Enrollment is open to responsible men and women 18 years of age or older and in good health, who will return to their home communities and apply their knowledge as aquatic and safety leaders in schools, camps, industries, recreational parks, youth organizations, clubs, municipal, state and federal agencies, or other organizations interested in the promotion of safety measures.
Here are the dates and locations of the schools: Northwestern State college, Natchitoches, La., May 8; Roosevelt State park, Chipley, Ga., June 6-16 and August

Woman's Club to Install Officers at May Meet

The Fort Benning Woman's club will hold its annual May breakfast at noon Monday in the Officers' club. The meeting will close the club's events for their silver anniversary year, when the retiring president, Mrs. Charles W. Pence, will give the gavel to Mrs. Marcus Bell. Following the breakfast, reports of the year's work will be heard; the new officers for the coming year will be installed and a program, which is being arranged by Mrs. Allen L. Peck, will be presented as the entertainment feature.

Woman's club projects for the year included the community concert series, comprised of four concerts, the Don Cossack chorus, baritone, Max Morgan, the Philharmonic Piano quartet and Mia Slavenska and her ballet troupe.

The general meeting for December was devoted to sending CARE packages overseas, with what proceeds would have been necessary for a Christmas party. The December meeting featured a talented monologist, Mary Hutchinson.

The "hard times" party, drew a "down-at-the-heel" looking crowd for their party and game night.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted explorer, spoke at the Main theater on the "Arctic and its Influence on World Affairs," under the auspices of the club.

The annual style show-luncheon in March, featured some 85 gowns for all occasions from Kaiser-Liesenthal, Kirven's, Kirven's, Davison's, Nolle Moore's, Sealy's and Patricia's gown shop, all of Columbus.

Mrs. Herbert E. Ellt, commentator for the show, presented the models in a charmingly informal manner as "Muffy" Olson, "Kit" McDowell, "Mim" Stuart, "Kris" Serenewig, "Willie" Lichtenwalter, "Chickie" Smith, "Mac" McCormick and "Bobby" Kersey.

Others in the fashion parade included Ann Walker, Jeanette Krammer, Louise Wiley, Helen Moore, Joan Davis, Cynthia Burgess, Sue Bradley, Sally Sandland, Mary Woodard, Mrs. Carl Pat Thomas and Bernice Byrne.

The table decorations, featuring spring hats, shoes, costume jewelry, nosegays, artificial corsages and cosmetics, were unique. Each of the more than 200 guests found a complimentary box of Revlon face powder and a tiny vial of perfume at her place.

The Literature and Art group of the club presented Judge Lee B. Wyatt, associate justice of the Georgia supreme court, in an address at the Children's school on the Nuremberg trials. The art and writing contests sponsored by this group were also highlights of the year's projects.

The Home and Garden group's main project was the cook book, "The Doughgirl" which is now ready for distribution. The book contains favorite recipes of Woman's club members, presented in their own handwriting. Illustrations for the book were done by Cynthia Burgess, Mrs. John E. Olson and Mrs. C. W. Bulke.

The Woman's club bowling tournament is scheduled to end today, and winners will be presented their trophies at a tea from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club. At that time awards will be presented to members with the highest season's averages, Mrs. E. A. Kvetlick, chairman of the bowling league.

The bridge group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank M. Lee, taught between 20 and 25 bride enthusiasts the rudiments of the game, and now at the close of the season, all former members of the beginners group, have graduated into the intermediate class. Highlighting the year's activities of the group was the Christmas party.

Mrs. Edward J. Curtiss, chairman of the Spanish class, offered the opportunity to all interested members to learn that language.

Chairmen of other committees who aided in making 1948-49 year of successful achievement for the club were Mrs. Charles M. Crawford and her Red Cross committee; Mrs. James F. Tor-

Mrs. C. J. Mabry Is Contest Winner

"The Old Man," a short story by Mrs. C. James Mabry, won its author first place in the recent writing contest, sponsored by the Literature and Art group of the Fort Benning Woman's club.

An article appearing in the Bayonet last week erroneously listed the first-place winner as Mrs. George L. Mabry instead of Mrs. C. James Mabry. The Bayonet regrets the occurrence of this error, and would like to take this opportunity to rectify the mistake.

Mrs. Mabry is the wife of Maj. C. James Mabry of the marine corps, a student in advanced class No. 1 of the Infantry School. Before coming to Benning, Major Mabry was recruiting officer for the marine corps in Huntington, W. Va.

During World War II, Mrs. Mabry served as an officer in the Waves.

Mrs. Robert H. Del Mas, treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph D. Haley, second vice president, Mrs. Roland E. Murphy, recording secretary; Mrs. James W. Stevens, corresponding secretary.

Boy Scouts

BY RICHARD BLANDFORD
On April 23, Troop 127 met for its weekly meeting. The meeting was opened with the Scout Law.

Since Col. Keppie was away on a trip to see a Scout camp in Florida, Capt. Polk took charge of the meeting.

The Troop scribe then called the roll.

We then went to our patrol corners where we collected dues and decided on the location of our next patrol meeting.

We then saw a movie on basic map reading. The one character in the story was Moe who was very very lost until some uses for his map were shown to him.

After the movie we played a game of submarine.

The meeting was then closed with the Scoutmaster benediction.

Several members have received awards at the Court of Honor in Columbus. Bill Ricker received the Marksmanship and Reading merit badges. O'Neill-Parnell Vows Said In Infantry Center Chapel

The Infantry Center chapel furnished the background music for the marriage service. The wedding Wednesday afternoon April 20 at 4:30 when Mrs. Col. O'Neill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Allen of Columbus, became the bride of Capt. M. H. Parnell, Ninth Field Artillery Battalion. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobson Parnell of Sebring, Fla.

Chaplain (Capt.) Henry B. O'Byrne performed the ceremony before an altar arranged with tall white tapers in cathedral candelabra and white gladioli. Potted Easter lilies along the chancel rails completed the floral decorations.

A half-hour program of organ music was played by Mrs. W. E. O'Byrne while the guests assembled. Among the favorites were "One Alone," "All My Love," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Lt. Eugene Forrester, soloist, sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." The "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Wedding March" was played as the bride entered on the arm of her brother, Maj. O. S. Allen, of Fort Ring bearer. Her corsage was of McPherson, Ga., Irving Berlin's sweetheart roses. Mrs. S. A. "Always," played very softly, then kept the bride's book.

P-TA Hears Rev. Campbell, Holds Election of Officers

The Parent-Teachers' association held its election of officers Thursday evening, April 21, and named Mrs. Russell M. Miner, president; Mrs. Donald C. Landon, first vice president; Mrs. John W. MacIndoe, second vice president; Mrs. A. E. McCormick, secretary and Mrs. E. E. Ream, treasurer. Installation of officers will take place May 19, the final meeting of the school year. Students of the seventh grade are corresponding with German children under a German youth program, the purpose of which is to orient them in the democratic way of life. Judy Green, Beth Ballard and Murray Cheston read letters they had received from children in Stuttgart. These letters were full of questions about school, what are you doing, what do you play. Members who attended meeting heard Rev. Colin Campbell speak on the "Responsibility of a Good World Citizenship". In the summer of 1948, Rev. Campbell was in Frankfurt, Germany, investigating conditions there. He visited the Camp for Homeless Boys at Bad Vilbel. The German people, he says, do not want to be approached about democracy outright. It will be necessary, in military parlance, to use a flanking movement. "We as a democratic people must prepare ourselves for a world citizenship. How? It can be attained through spiritual, not material means. The boys are living in contact with the democratic ideal daily. Establishment of a friendly, social relationship between our youth and theirs is an approach that is practical and will orient them into our way, the democratic way of life," he said.

Nicholas, who spoke on kitchen gardening, giving many valuable tips on vegetables for spring menus.

BROADWAY & 9th ST. Plenty of Free Parking Space THE BIG APPLE The Best for Less

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

A shortage of participants in the weekly boxing program caused the postponement of the Friday night boxing card at the main post gym last week.

Considering the interest shown by units on the post prior to the influx of approximately 7,500 recruits who have since arrived on the post to swell the ranks of the units of the Third division, the key to the problem cannot possibly lie in personal shortages. Nor does it seem possible that among that number of young, new soldiers fresh from a sports-conscious civilian world, a lack of interest could exist.

The question is then: what is wrong? Are the units falling down on the job of publicizing the sports activities offered on the post? Has the coming of baseball overshadowed the spectator value of a boxing card? Are the men themselves unwilling to participate? Or is boxing simply less attractive than other sports?

In the past, boxing week after week, has drawn a larger attendance than any other sport. Having had experience in the game as a participant, coach and manager, we happen to know that the interest is always there waiting only to be brought out by a little coaxing from the unit athletic offices or commanders. And the opening of the diamond season, as we see it, shouldn't appreciably decrease the number of fans who witness boxing bouts.

During the week after week, the Infantry Center athletic office staged three ball games and a fight show—An event that drew the largest crowd was the boxing card.

The answer then must lie in that the new men on the post aren't being furnished with details of the scope of Benning's ring program.

This might be due to the fact that the general public took for granted that the end of the intra-mural program ended ring doings on the post. In view of the interest shown by the spectator interest shown, athletic officials are endeavoring to continue bouts every week, on a prize-match basis.

In the prize-match program lies a golden opportunity for local ring hopefuls. Aside from the possibility of winning attractive prizes every week and gaining recognition for their units, the young leather pusher can pick himself up a store of valuable experience and work up to a peak of physical condition that will prove invaluable to him if he enters the intra-mural competition for Third army and all-army honors.

We have personally seen organizations made up of no more than 2,000 men turn out winning teams of anywhere from 10 to 20 boxers. An organization like the Third Infantry division, then, should be capable of entering at least 50 boxers in the local ring circuit.

Since the close of the intra-mural ring wars, participation dropped to a zero level in all units except the 990th Armored Field Artillery battalion and the Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment, the two organizations that make up the local ring team known as the Rockets.

Boxing should be of special interest to young men since it is a basic trait of masculine nature to be known as "a pretty good man." Every man admires the guy who can climb into the ring and prove himself superior to his opponent as a fighter.

Divarty Crushes PC Invaders 21-1

Hitting hurlers Charley Jones and Andy Stevens for 16 safeties, the Third Infantry division's fiery diamond squad trounced the Phoenix City Invaders, 21-1, at Gowdy field last Saturday night.

The artillerymen chalked up four extra-base hits through second baseman Eddie Powe's two doubles, a two-bagger planted by first-sacker Andy Hardy and pitcher Don McCallum's three-bagger.

Highlighting the losing cause was Bob Ingersoll of the Invaders, who smacked one into left field but was ruled out after completing the circuit of the bases when he failed to touch third.

The soldiers managed to push across at least three runs in all but the second, seventh, and eighth frames. The big inning was the third when three hits, two errors and two walks accounted for six runs and boosted the tally to 9-0 at that early stage.

With their early lead secured, the divarty squad used eight substitutions during the remaining frames.

Two Sunday Tilts To initiate Season Third Division Teams' Debut

Single games on both Gowdy and Bullet fields Sunday afternoon will usher in Fort Benning's 1949 intra-mural diamond season. Both tilts will get under way at 2 p. m.

Slated to tongue in the Gowdy which saw action during the 1948 head game on the main post are the Provisional group, Area Service unit, and the 30th Infantry regiment, and the Bullet field will be played in the Sand hill area between the 15th Infantry regiment and the Third Infantry division artillery nines.

Sunday's openers will come after almost a month of training frays, and will inaugurate the traditional post campaign which is scheduled to last more than two months this year.

With nine crews making bids for laurels in the intra-mural loop, each squad will play three contests with each other team in the circuit. In addition to the opening participants, the Student Training regiment, the Infantry School detachment, the Airborne force base, the Provisional Medical group and the Third division special troops will field diamond aggregations.

In the role of defending post champions will be the hard-hitting ISD five with last year's manager, James L. Walker, still at the helm. Walker's Profs breezed to the post top last season with 23 triumphs in the same number of outings.

The 1948 runners-up, the Airborne battalion, have joined forces with the Student Training regiment and Army Field Forces board No. 3 this year to form one of the circuit's consolidated teams.

One of the contenders for the 1948 crown, the 340th Area Service unit, has changed its designation of the Provisional group, Area Service unit, this year and now carries players from two other intra-mural squads of last year, the 326th Ordnance battalion and the 29th Transportation Truck battalion.

The Provisional Medical group nine, the third-place team in the post race last season, is bereft of most of its 1948 players, but will have a new team of units which comprised the post Medic crew last year. The only other team in the 1948 campaign was the 1948 campaign.

30th Infantry Trounces Artillery Diamond Nine

The 30th Infantry regiment diamond squad turned its big guns on the Third Infantry division artillery baseball aggregation at Gowdy field last Monday night, and blasted out a 21-7 triumph.

The infantrymen buckled down early in the first inning when second-baseman George McDonald, on second by virtue of an error and a balk, scored on center-fielder Porter Hood's single to right.

First baseman Stan Letonsky, got on base on a fielder's choice, and scored on a triple by right-fielder Joe Steel, who scored later on a passed ball. Left-fielder Anthony Karem, leading off in the second, was hit by a pitched ball, and went to second as catcher Bob Mathews walked. A passed ball sent Karem to third and Mathews to second. A wild pitch by Al Ellis, artillery right-hander permitted Karem to score, and sent Math-

Tentative Opening For Pools Is Told

Tentative arrangements have been made to open Fort Benning's swimming pools on May 7, Infantry Center athletic officials revealed this week.

Although the pools were originally slated for openings May 1, a shortage of qualified life guards on the post brought about a one week delay in filling the bathing sanctuaries.

In an effort to alleviate the shortage of life guards, a water safety course was inaugurated last Monday at Young's pool, and it was expected that several qualified guards would be graduated from the instruction by May 7.

In preparation for openings, the repairs on Russ pool, Sand hill, and the Officers' club pools have been under way since February, are now complete, which will be finished soon.

Reduced Prices For Benningites At Card Games

Institution of a "military night" for each Wednesday home game of the Columbus Cardinals was announced this week by Forest Cook, business manager of the city's Class A South Atlantic league club. Under the plan, military personnel in uniform will be admitted to Wednesday night Cardinals games at reduced prices. The pared price will be 60 cents for the grandstand and 40 cents for the bleachers. (Regular admission is 90 cents for the grandstand and 80 cents for the bleachers.) The Card business manager said the other projects to stimulate Fort Benning interest in the city ball club's campaign also are being considered, but added that details of the plans have not been decided. Cook pointed out, however, that the "military night," as well as any other programs affecting military personnel, will be available to soldiers and officers in uniform. Identification or AGO cards, he explained, will not suffice.

Divarty Enters Diamond Circuit

The Third Division artillery team, one of four division squads to be entered in the post-intra-mural baseball league, will make its bid for post honors under the management of Kleber Campbell.

The squad, sporting a roster of diamondmen with fine records in semi-pro, army and school leagues, is capped by the services of third basemen Joe Landry, who is under contract to the Philadelphia Phillies and batted .350 last year for a semi-pro team in central Massachusetts.

Sharing duties on second base with Ed Poe will be Roy Thrift, who is backed by seven years of army ball, and who worked out last year in the Puerto Rican winter pro league.

First base coverage will be handled by Erskine Ware, who boasts three years of army ball with the 99th Field Armored Artillery Battalion, and who batted .316 and hit 23 homers last year for the Sand Hill aggregation.

Duties on the mound will be shared by Al (Fireball) Ellis, who built up a reputation as a strikeout artist with the 99th last year; Emilio Uberti, Hank Willey, and Coach David Reed. STR Diamondmen Swamp Mills Nine Outwitting the Dixie millers of LaGrange, Ga. seven to one, a tight playing Student Training regiment squashed the tight-fielding team by a score of 11-1.

Miller hurler Joe Geeter struck out five STR-Arborers and gave up six hits before being relieved in the fifth. Herb Myatt came through with a double to right to drive in Smith and Griffin. Myatt then came home on a single by Carney.

Griffin's triple in the sixth drove in Robinson for the third run of the inning. The STR right fielder.

Scoring for the STR ended in the eighth when Carney, after getting to first on a bunt, went to second on a one-bagger by Robinson. The inning ended when Robinson got an infield hit. Smith then reached base on a fielder's choice when Terry was kicked off at third. Robinson and Smith trotted across the plate as Myatt got to first on an error.

For the Millers, Geeter, the starting pitcher, went to first on a ball in the fifth, advanced to second on a passed ball, and came home with the visitors' only run of the game on a single by Joe Laster, Dixie center fielder.

Battalion Drops Two of Three Diamond Frays

The second battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment blanked the Provisional battalion by a score of 6-0 in the first intramural diamond clash last week.

Jim Shirley, hurling for the Second battalion, whiffed 17 Provisional batters and gave up only two hits.

The flashy moundman, who played Class B ball with the Lynn, Mass., aggregation of the Eastern league last year and finished the season with a .307 batting average and 21 home runs; drove in two of the four runs by singling in the sixth frame.

In other 15 Infantry intra-mural meets last week, the Third battalion Bulets chalked up 10 runs, only five of the game being earned, when they defeated the Provisional battalion by a score of 9-5.

Walter Scott did a fine job of pitching for the Third battalion during the first five innings of the seven-frame affair, allowing only three hits, but broke down in the sixth when he walked eight men. The Provisional battalion diamondmen scored five runs in the sixth when they passed five batters on balls.

Third-bagger Ed Baldwin and left-fielder Zach Lemelle led the Third battalion batting attack with the big hit of the game by leading a triple far own the right-field foul line. He scored a minute later on a fielder's choice.

For the Provisional battalion, George Halo came through with the big hit of the game by leading a triple far own the right-field foul line. He scored a minute later on a fielder's choice.

The victory left the Bulets undefeated in the regimental league. Missing again with the Second battalion in the week's going, the Provisional battalion won by a score of 10-5, sailing one in the first frame, five in the second, five in the fifth and one in the seventh and final inning of the game.

Zale Quits Ring Wars

CHICAGO, April 27.—Tony Zale, former world's mid-dleweight champion, Tuesday announced his retirement from the ring—thus stepping aside as the No. 1 contender for the crown now held by Rocky Graziano.

Cerdan, who had been scheduled to face Zale in a return match at New York's Polo Grounds on June 21, now may meet Steve Bellosie, formidable 180-pound New Yorker. The date will be either June or September, depending upon arrangements by the Tournament of Champions.

Zale, the always popular, but slightly rusted "man of steel" from Gary, Ind., will be 36 years old next month.

In surrendering his claim to a rematch with Rocky Graziano, Zale passed up a $60,000 guarantee as his share of the bout.

"I was so satisfied with my pride that I wanted to meet Cerdan, again," Zale explained. "But now I'm satisfied to rest my legs."

Punching professionally since 1934, except for a brief time in 1947 when he lost to Rocky Graziano in the second of their vicious three engagements.

Hogan to Get Exam In N. O.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 27.—Golfier Ben Hogan will leave his Fort Worth home Wednesday for New Orleans where he will be examined Thursday by Dr. Alton S. Oschner. The noted surgeon performed a delicate blood clot operation on Hogan March 3.

Hogan has been convalescing at his home since leaving an El Paso hospital April 1, two months after being seriously injured in a car-bus collision in West Texas.

His wife, Valerie, will accompany him to New Orleans. They are expected to return to Fort Worth Friday.

Post, 3rd Army Tennis Tournament Dates Set

The Infantry Center intra-mural tennis tournament, in which all military personnel are eligible to participate, will be held June 4-12 on the officers' tennis courts, post athletic officials have announced.

The tournament will be governed by U. S. Lawn association tennis rules as modified locally.

Two divisions, one for men and the other for women, will be played under a single elimination system.

May 25 will be the deadline for submitting of entries to the Infantry Center special services officers, officials said.

Awards will be presented to the winners and runners-up of each division.

Based on the results of the post tournament, separate men's and women's teams will be selected to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tennis tournament to be held here from June 21-24.

Competition between the Army, Navy and Air Force in the highest level tennis competition in the services, sponsored by the navy, will be held July 29-30 in the Washington, D. C. area. The Leech Cup is now held by the navy.

All military personnel on active duty for 90 days or more are eligible to compete in the tournaments. Army days are selected on the basis of their play in preliminary tournaments.

For the inter-service tennis meet, 12-man teams will be entered by each of the three services.

Divary Beaten By College Nine

The Golden Tigers of Tuskegee (Ala.) institute staged their annual invasion of Fort Benning last Sunday afternoon, a 7-0 pound out a 19-4 diamond trivision artillery nine on Gowdy field.

Taking advantage of 13 costly divary miscues, the students held the artillerymen down to two hits, a single in the sixth by Tony Hardy, divary first baseman, and another in the eighth by right-fielder Robert Campbell, before being replaced by Joe Evans in the eighth.

Divary entered the scoring column in the eighth inning when four hits, a walk, and two Tuskegee miscues resulted in four runs.

Tuskegee's third-sacker Jimmy Brown furnished the big blow of the contest with his two-run homer over the left-field fence in the seventh frame. It was the second four bagger to be hit on Gowdy field this season.

Lefty Allen, the winning pitcher.

Energetic 'House-Mother' Develops Civilian Barracks Recreation Room

The civilian recreation hall is the social center of the civilian barracks area on post, a meeting place that provides a "homey" atmosphere for civilian workers at Fort Benning. Thanks to Miss Beryl Johnson.

Prior to her resignation on April 20, Miss Johnson served five months as chief clerk, house-mother and counselor for 30 men and women who work here out of uniform.

Before Miss Johnson's arrival, the recreation hall was a drab, practically-empty building, devoid of any comforts and sports. Then came bustling Miss Johnson. A quick look at the place and her mind was made up. She and the engineers, quartermaster and ordnance departments received visits from the determined woman, and were won over by her ambition. Within a week, the engineers has installed floor plugs. A flow of lamps and furniture and a large, white refrigerator came from the quartermaster. Miss Johnson, armed with paint brushes and accessories, appointed herself a redecorating committee, and a sparkling change came over the dull building. The rooms blossomed out in warm, gray colors; floors were painted, and linoleum and rugs were laid.

Then came an even bigger transformation: a sewing machine, donated through Col. Dennis Moore, Infantry Center G-2, helped turn out curtains, slipcovers and little pillows. The men then took over, and after screaming of hammers and saws there appeared a snack bar, decked out with hot plate, tables, and an ever-present pot of hot coffee.

A stack of magazines, subscriptions to a few papers, and it was time to celebrate. The party held there last Christmas day was a celebration still remembered by the residents of "civilian city."

Now in the evenings, the girls bring dates into the hall, listening to the radio and play parlor games.

Orders issued recently by Headquarters, 99th Infantry Field Artillery battalion indicate the following changes:

1. Recs. Lenor E. Raines, Joe E. Speaks, Jr., and Gilbert Edwards have been relieved from Third Replacement company, Third Infantry division, and assigned to the following batteries of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion: Recruit Bn, Battery C, Recruit Speaks, Headquarters battery, and Recruit Edwards, Battery B.

On orders published April 18, Ret. John E. Branch was relieved from 9200th Technical Service unit, Camp Stoneman, Calif., and assigned to Battery B, 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion.

Pvt. Johnnie L. Marshall, former of Company A, 761st Tank Battalion, Third Armored group, Third Armored division, Fort Knox, Ky., has been assigned to Battery B, 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, to report not later than April 23.

Orders were issued April 18 assigning Pvt. Randolph Carter, Jr., upon completion of a 10-day delay en-route, to Headquarters battery, 99th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, relieving him from Detachment Three, 9200th Technical Service unit, Fort Dix, N. J., and assigned to Battery C, 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion.

AUTOGRAPHS HISTORIES . . . Col. Joseph W. Boone, who recently assumed command of the 30th Infantry regiment is shown autographing copies of the 30th's history booklets which are being distributed to every man in the outfit. It is to be utilized in cases where the seriousness of an injury or illness requires more comfort for the patient than can be afforded by a field-type ambulance.

A Man's Army?

WITH BOB FRESCO

It's a "man's army." Isn't it? Not if you take a good look around and see the members of Fort Benning's War detachment doing their work and living their lives in a manner just as military as most of our "old soldiers."

There's something about a woman in uniform; something that makes one stop and wonder just what she's doing in khaki instead of an apron and a frying pan.

We're inquisitive. That's part of our job, so we went out to ask the very obvious question. Why? The war's over, the army's full, so why are there here? What can women see in a peacetime military setup? The specific question asked was: "Why are you a member of the regular army?"

Capt. Hazel Van Key, six years and eight months service, stated: "I'm a member of the corps because I feel that it has more to offer. There's a sense of honor, a fairness, a satisfaction in being in it. It's a profession in medicine, business or teaching. I'd say that if a woman will want to follow a profession, the profession of arms is it. Salary, working conditions and treatment are there, and they're fine."

VER HEY
Cpl. Dorothy Craven, four and one-half years service, went into it thoroughly. "I left the war after the war," she said here in the states, in Camp Shelby, Miss. I thought it was a kind, pleasant chapter in my life. Well, I stuck it out on the outside for a year and found that the life was much, much better in the army. I have close friends in Thomas, Ga., and I've got my work, my friends, and a new overseas hitch I'm looking forward to."

CRAVEN
Cpl. Dorothy (Fanny) McGowan, four years service, laughed: "I'll tell you why. Before I joined in 1945 I worked, saw some, and not on a very good job. Well, I'm not home now, but if I want to go, it's close to Fitzgerald. And the job? I love working in the hospital, and after hours there are a lot of things to take up your time. I'm happy. And besides, what would I do without those service chit dances?"

McGowan
Cpl. Elaine Burnette, four years two months service, said: "Look in or out of uniform, my job is that of a medical technician. When I'm in uniform, my job is that of a medical technician. It's interesting to have it so good? It's interesting

McGowan
In the army, there's a lot of security, and I think it's just what I need. That's why I'm in, and that's why I'm staying in."

BURNETTE
Sgt. Mary K. Headline, six and one-half years service, shook her head and smiled: "Why? Because there's nothing else as far as I'm concerned. I hate to sound like a recruiting poster, but it's 'RA or nothing' with me. The work, the people, they all add up to eat only place I'd be satisfied—in the army."

CRAVEN
Cpl. Alice O'Connor, four years service, said: "I've got not much to talk about. I've been in four years, and I've enjoyed every one of them. The life in the ETO were okay. With good work, good friends, and a liberal salary, it all adds up to the army for me."

at allotments to dependents. At any time it can be pulled from the file and an accurate statement of account furnished the soldier.

Wherever the soldier goes, the new pay record goes with him as part of his service record, and eliminates the necessity of checking his account through former units.

The soldier, under the new method, need not draw his pay in its entirety. If he desires, he can have carried over on his record any amount in excess of his pay for two months. At the end of the third month, he may on his pay record an amount due which would be the equivalent of two months pay. However, the pay record plan cannot be used as a checking account. That is, any amount carried over on the soldier's pay record, except in the case of emergency, will not be available until the next month's pay.

If a soldier is on furlough during his pay period, his pay will be mailed to him in check form. All payments due before June 30, 1949, will be made under the present system.

Thus, finance offices will have the double responsibility of setting up the new system and eliminating problems and maintaining the present method indefinitely or until the last payment due before June 30 is made. A "dry-run" of the new plan will be conducted in May in the Benning Infantry School detachment, 3d Student Training regiment. Classes are being conducted at the Post. Finance section to familiarize unit pay officers with the new procedures.

A Little Salvage wire and some heavy steel stripping, coupled with "GI ingenuity," won for Pfc. Kenneth E. Tatum, Battery A, 999th Armored Field Artillery Battalion, The Bayonet's "soldier-of-the-week" title.

Pfc. Tatum, using heavy steel stripping, turned a part of his battery supply room into a battery arms room, and at the same time, separated the supply room from the arms room.

His work in renovating the building, according to battalion officials, has enhanced the building's security.

His entire project, it was pointed out, was created by Tatum on his own initiative and carried to completion for the most part during his off-duty hours, representing a considerable sacrifice of his leisure time.

When the first contingent of the 34th Infantry division left for the British Isles in January, 1942, the artillery had been sent to Pearl Harbor, May 8, 1945, was just another date on the calendar.

But there were a lot of things planned for May 8, 1945. By that date, the Germans expected to be masters of the western world, and their buddies over in Japan anticipated that their co-prosperity sphere for Asia would be running full blast.

The 34th division, however, with other infantry units, airborne units, armored units, the airforce, navy and all the other outfits that made up Hitler's nemesis, stopped the Nazi clock.

Now, four years after the dancing in the streets has stopped, after the celebrating has ended, and as the wounds heal, a new weapon in America's arsenal of democracy is being forged.

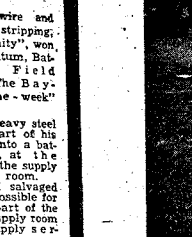

Today the infantry is new, more streamlined, more powerful than ever before, more fit for the fourth anniversary of V-E day to go any place by land, sea or air, and to do anything required of it.

Today the infantry division has the mobility that comes from having more than 400 vehicles ranging from jeeps and trailers to tanks and liaison planes. It has the armor it needs, with nearly 200 of the steel behemoths mounting 75, 90 and 105-mm guns and howitzers.

It is in the firepower of the individual infantry soldier and in the small units — the platoons, companies and battalions — that the infantry has come so far since May 8, 1945.

Ever since the war were already in use on European battlefields such weapons as recoilless rifles, 4.2-inch mortars, 26 tanks and other self-propelled weapons. These were, for the most part, innovations in infantry weapons. Today they are part of the infantry's firepower.

In small arms, the M-1 rifle has been superseded, numerically, by the new carbines which now has a 90-round magazine replacing the wartime 15-round magazine. The new carbines, 6.93 M-1 rifles and 2,718 automatic pistols to the division. There are 32 each of M-16 carbines mounting four 50-caliber machine guns and M-19

Contributions Here Exceed Goal of ARC

The 1949 Red Cross fund drive at Fort Benning netted the organization a total of $17,267.11, Murray E. Hill, field director, disclosed this week.

The campaign for funds ended officially March 31, but 1,426 contributions enabled the post to surpass the approximate goal of $17,000, set by officials of the organization.

"It is difficult," said Mr. Hill, "to point out any one unit or contributor. Persons who shifted constantly during the month of the campaign but the result shows that everyone did a splendid job."

Particularly commended Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, who served as executive chairman of the drive.

Honorary chairman of the campaign was Maj. Gen. Wilbur A. Burress, the Infantry Center commander. Serving on the honor roll were Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, Mrs. Burress and Col. Gilbert T. Cole.

Executive vice-chairman of the drive included Miss Mary Reynolds, Lt. Col. E. P. Eschenberg, Lt. Col. Roland Murphy, Mrs. Frank Lee, M-Sgt. Joseph P. Lind, Maj. Daniel Carter, M. J. Harris, T. M. The old bazooka of North Africa days has given way to the new 2.36 and 3.5 rocket launchers, of which there are 81 of the former and 465 of the latter in the division.

The heavy weapons units of today also have heavier weapons than ever before. In place of just mortars, the weapons units now have, besides 84 60-mm, 40 81-mm and 42-inch mortars, 81 37-mm recoilless rifles and 39 75-mm recoilless rifles.

For fancier shooting in little and big weapons, the doughboy now has, besides 240 4.2-inch per rifles, and, at the other, 51 105-mm howitzers and 18 155-mm howitzers. The howitzers belong to division artillery.

Having the weapons is one thing; using them is another. If Baron von Steuben, drillmaster of the first American infantry, were to come to Benning today he'd see plenty of the latter.

For next year the Infantry School has scheduled classes in heavy and light weapons non-commissioned officers. Even this year, much of the effort of the school goes to training nearly all classes in the employment of all infantry weapons. And a great part of the training of the new Third division is in the employment of this firepower.

Last time it took the 34th Infantry division about eight months of intensive training, even after it was over, to get ready for its part in the North African campaign. The first stop on the road to V-E day.

The 34th fought with what it had then and what the British could give it. It took it and the scores of other divisions that started their training 30 months to realize V-E Day.

Today's training of weapons, techniques and tactics, at Fort Benning, are helping to make V-E day a holiday to be remembered with joy.

Pistol-Rifle Competition Begun By Division Units

The Third Infantry division recently completed the first phase of rifle and pistol competition for 1949. First eliminations were conducted at the company level with the 30-caliber rifle and .45-caliber pistol.

Each company of the division selected a seven-man team with two alternates for each weapon to enter the battalion-level competition which started this week. The teams are composed entirely of volunteers.

The 30-caliber rifle and Carcano rifle range are being used by the division for its competition. The two sites were made available through cooperation of the Infantry Center range office under the supervision of Lt. Col. Martin H. Burkes. Both ranges were placed in excellent condition for the contests in the short period of two months.

In the battalion-level phase, competition in the 22 caliber rifle will be initiated, and Volunteers within the battalion also will compete for places on the team. Competition for the battalion team will be completed by May 15, with the top competitors going on to compete at the regimental level.

ARMY AIMS AT BETTER COACHING IN ATHLETICS

A survey of the major army commands in the United States and overseas is under way to determine the need for an army athletic coaches' training conference to improve the athletic program, Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, chief of special services, Department of the Army, has announced.

The intention to achieve and maintain high coaching standards in the expanding army athletic program sponsored by his office was stressed by General Reynolds.

He said that "improvement in the coaching field will be reflected in the sports program at all levels, and in the caliber of competition," and pointed out that the current emphasis on youth in the army is one which makes a good army-wide athletic program essential.

"If the commands confirm our belief that a coaches' conference is important to advancement of the army athletic program, such a conference in four sports—football, basketball, boxing and wrestling—will be held at West Point, from June 18-23, under joint sponsorship of army, general services and the United States Military academy," General Reynolds said.

Arrangements for the conference will be made through the cooperation of the supervising lieutenant of the military academy and the army athletic association of West Point.

Earl (Red) Blaik, director of athletics and head football coach at West Point, will be assisted by John Maurer, head basketball coach; Herbert Kretlen, boxing coach; and Lloyd Appleton, wrestling coach, all of West Point.

The conference will be open to officers, enlisted men and civilians assigned to coaching duties in the army.

HEARD HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

If the first three games of the post intra-mural diamond league are any indication of which way the wind blows in the post championship race, it looks like at least a four-way bid. The Infantry School detachment Profs, last year's champs, and the Student Training regiment nine will probably occupy the upper bracket again.

The 30th Infantry, making its debut in the league, looks like a darkhorse. It is definitely a well-organized team, and plays air-tight in the field. Pitcher Fran O'Mara of the team has proven himself capable of handling a nine framer with level-headed efficiency, and the batting is good enough to keep the squad in any game.

If the 15th Infantry regiment turns out to be as good as its proposed lineup indicates, the squad should wind up among the top-drawer foursome.

Four of the six en-tout-cas tennis courts being built on the reservation are nearing completion and two are already in use. The two in the second court are actually finished, and the only thing lacking is the backstop. The two courts at Sand hill are in about the same stage of construction, and the two near the main post NCO club (since the backstops were already there) have already felt the scrape of netmen's feet.

Speaking of tennis, Coach Sanford Webster of the Fort Benning tennis team has pointed out that enlisted men on the post apparently are reluctant when it comes to trying out for the squad.

Just because the team plays on the Officer's club courts doesn't mean that it is strictly an officer's team. In fact, Coach Webster has expressed the desire to enroll more enlisted recruits.

Infantry Nine Wins Post Loop Opener

Profs, Troopers Also Triumphant

The 30th Infantry regiment baseball nine opened the Infantry Center intra-mural diamond league with a bang last Sunday by defeating the Provisional Group, Area Service unit, by a score of 5-3 on Gowdy field.

Yancey Holt, ASU third baseman, on third on a two-base error and a steal, tied up the ball game at 2-2 in the ninth frame by coming home when teammate Frank Gant was tossed at first.

With the score tied up at the end of the tenth, ASU hurler Cliff Rhodes walked 30th pitcher Fran O'Mara and third baseman Hank Fecker. Both advanced one base as left fielder Tony Karen was put out at first on a fielder's choice. O'Mara and Fecker then scored the winning runs when first baseman Stan Letonsky singled to center field.

On the mound for the 30th Infantry, O'Mara struck out four batters, gave up eight hits and walked one. Rhodes, hurling for the ASU, whiffed three, gave up 11 hits and walked five. O'Mara and McDonnell each had two for five, led the 30th Infantry hitting, while Willie Banks paced the losers with two for one. As a year's intra-mural champs, the Infantry School detachment Profs and the Special Troops nine of the Third Infantry division, in the first game of a doubleheader Monday night on Gowdy field, and defeated the newcomers to the post circuit by a score of 6-4. Bill Welton, on the mound for when Red Burgamy, on a triple in the first frame, scored on a Herb Lauve's fly to center field. Bloddy Burnett scored from third in the second when Pro catcher, John Sadler rolled one out to the mound, and was pft out at first.

The Profs racked up four more rallies in the sixth. Brown, hitting two for four, led the Profs' batting bid, while Andy Kidd, Tom Fouci, Mel Mathis and Joe Fath each hit one for four for the Special Troops.

The second half of the twin bill saw a 3-0 win of 25 Student Training regiment - Airborne battalion baseballers parade home to defeat a hapless Provisional Medical group nine by a score of 4-0.

Bentley Batting Power Defeats Lawson Flyers

The Lawson airforce base Flyers bowed to the power-hitting of the Bentley's Sport shop baseball squad in a 1-2 contest at Gowdy field last week.

In the seven-inning affair, the Lawsons made four errors, and Flyer hurler Borden Wilbanks struck out two, while 13 Bentley batters connected for safeties.

Tight fielding on the part of the citizens, backed up the seven-strikeout performance of pitcher Archie Corley who gave only one hit during his stint on the hill.

Two Bentley men augmented their fielding strength by opening up their big guns in the first frame. Left-fielder Bobbie Bridges, on a fly, scored an error advanced to second on a single by catcher Charlie Barnes, and same home when center-fielder Willie Byrd reached second on an error.

With Barnes on third, and Byrd on second, first baseman John Wright, who hit three for one for the night, then averaged bases with a long four-base out over the right field fence. Wright's homer was the third to be hit on Gowdy Field this season.

Bridges shared batting laurels with Wright, also connecting for three hits in five trips. Wright's homer gave him the second when second-baseman Paul Wilbanks had a long one into deep right field for a three bagger, which drove in left fielder Ed Gravely and right fielder Dick Gravelly.

Amateur Champ, Two Other Net Men Join Team

The Fort Benning tennis team, which has been playing a series of warm-up matches with college and city teams in Georgia and Alabama, now boasts the services of three promising newcomers.

Both Price who is with the Staff department of the Infantry School, and Sam Ewing and Lloyd Murray, both of Company A, Infantry School detachment, recently reported to Coach Sanford Webster for work outs with the team.

Price is the holder of the New England Junior Amateur championship of 1948. Dwing and Murray both played in the National Junior Amateur tournament in 1948.

Coach Webster has expressed the hope that more enlisted men would turn out for the team. He can be reached at 2979.

WACs To Celebrate Seventh Anniversary

May 14, 1942. It's a great day for the women in the army. And tonight they are celebrating that day.

It will be seven years ago this Saturday the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was formed.

There was a lot of talk then. "Woman's place is in the home." "Women aren't strong enough for such work." "Women are ill more frequently than men." "For American women to have to help to win wars would be a reflection on American manhood."

But ask a soldier. He'll tell you, the WACs do a darn good job.

The army thinks so. In June of last year the WAC was incorporated as a part of the regular army.

1914, were feeling the pinch for manpower even more. In the face of violent protest a Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was organized. The British WACs, however, proved so efficient and of such great assistance, that other groups were set up.

The American expeditionary force serving in France was hampered by a shortage of clerical and communications workers. It borrowed about 5,000 British WACs.

Their efficiency was such, that when the AEF asked for more and the British were unable to supply them, General Pershing cabled to the United States requesting that an American Women's Corps be formed.

General Pershing's request was supported by section 1115 in Washington who began to make plans for the organization.

The War department, however, squashed the idea and General Pershing was sent groups of female clerical workers under his command.

More than twenty years passed and in 1941 the United States was faced with the prospect of another World War.

Learning a lesson from the first Women's Army Corps, Congress in 1942 authorized the establishment of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps. Under the provisions of the law the WACs could go overseas but would have neither military status or veterans rights.

This inequity was remedied on July 1, 1943 when a bill passed Congress converting the WAC to the Women's Army Corps with military status like the rest of the army, but in wartime only.

At the beginning of World War Two the army planned to recruit women in the same manner as men, but to do only four jobs—typing and clerical work, telephone operators, driving and cooking.

All this changed quickly as the war became more acute and it was realized the WACs could do hundreds of jobs. WACs were being sent to stations throughout the United States and overseas.

The first two hundred WACs to go overseas arrived in North Africa in January, 1943, to help in the other invasion. The unit was so efficient that General

Eisenhower asked for highest shipment priorities for more WACs, and as soon as the corps became a part of the army two thousand women were sent.

So many requests for WACs were made the War Department decided to enlist a million women. Recruiting, however, did not start until that figure. But the WAC did reach a peak strength of 100,000.

During the last war the WACs did courageous work in many capacities both with the army and the army airforce. About 15 percent of WAC officers served with WAC troops while the remainder filled administrative jobs to release male officers for other duty.

Now full fledged soldiers in every sense of the word, the regular army WACs are still carrying out their tasks efficiently. The women of the army don't have a phrase to describe the of their organization. But it might be "We can do it too!"

New Pay Plan

WITH BOB FRESCO

On June 1, the Department of the Army's new pay plan will go into effect, providing a fresh procedure for payments to enlisted men.

Last week we went out to find what Fort Benning's personnel thought of the idea; whether they approved or disapproved; and why.

Specifically, the men were asked: "What do you think of the army's new pay plan?"

Cpl. Allison X. Wise, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, eight years service, answered: "It will facilitate a more efficient set-up on the part of a much overworked unit personnel section, and will give them more time to attend to current duties."

Second Lt. Albert Berlok, Student Training regiment, six years service, said it conveys a good opportunity to conserve money for the emergency. With that, I'd say it's worth its weight in gold.

2nd Lt. Harold C. Walters, Jr., Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, six years service, answered: "I don't think I like it. It seems to be an unnecessary change with not much point to it. There was nothing much the matter with the old policy. Sounds to me as if it duplicates the old army saving system."

Pfc. LeRoy Heftman, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, seven months service, questioned: "What big difference does it make to me? As far as the savings angle of it goes, if I want to save money, I can make it. Now, if they'd decide to pay us twice a month, I'd be able to see the point."

PERKOWSKI TOOLE

Capt. E. H. Perkowski, Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, 10 years service, said: "I think it's a fairly good idea. I was an enlisted man for several years, and I can conceive the gripes that now exist. If the plan saves paper work in company-size units, as it seems probable it will then it could serve its objective."

Cpl. Cecil E. Toole, Company B, Infantry School detachment, six years service, stated: "I like the savings angle. If a man wants to save from month to month then it's made very easy for him. In the case of an emergency he has an accumulation of cash to fall back on. That's what attracts me."

Rot. Harold G. Boulter, Factory Co. 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, four months service, said: "I think that I make one feel like he's earning more. As far as I'm concerned, after they take over my allotments for my parents and my wife and son, there's so little left that I don't especially care how I get it."

Rot. Fatsy Lutz, Company F, 30th Infantry regiment, 11 months service, said: "I suppose it's all right, but I would sure be swayed if they could figure out a way to pay us a couple of times a month. Maybe I'm just not a good manager, but I think it would sure help me, and I think a lot of other fellows would appreciate it."

Cpl. Allison X. Wise, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion, eight years service, answered: "It will facilitate a more efficient set-up on the part of a much overworked unit personnel section, and will give them more time to attend to current duties."

Action Will Surely Be Taken

We have often heard the remark, "too much talk and too little action," but certainly it is not applicable to the Citizens and Military Council, which has taken action on every conceivable problem affecting military personnel, from overcharging by taxi drivers to providing girls for service club dances.

The council, which was the brain child of Fort Benning officials almost three years ago, held its first meeting on October 11, 1946, and has been meeting monthly ever since. Its membership is composed of the mayors of Columbus and Phenix City, city commissioners, religious leaders and health and welfare officials as well as the commanding generals of Fort Benning and the Third Infantry division. Purpose of the council is to act in advisory capacity on all matters pertaining to relations between army personnel at Fort Benning and the civilian population in Columbus and Phenix City. In addition, the council attempts, and in most cases is successful, to settle differences which may arise between the soldier and the civilian because of either local military or civilian policies.

Through the efforts of the council, there has been brought about a better understanding between the military and civilian, and there has been created an interest in each other's activities and problems. Moreover—and this is extremely important—the council has aided in keeping the public informed about the army and in return has reported to the army the public's reaction to army policies.

A concrete example of what has been done through the members of the council to cement a sense of responsibility on the part of the civilian public to the army is the series of tours which have been arranged for newly-arrived Fort Benning recruits. These tours are conducted by officials of the local community and include stops at places provided by the city for the off-duty entertainment of Fort Benning soldiers. These tours are serving a most useful purpose in that the public gets an opportunity to observe at close hand the soldier's reaction to the community, and the soldier at the same time sees exactly what the city is doing to make his free time more enjoyable.

Probably one of the most notable accomplishments of the council was the establishment of the civilian-military policeman team. Now, for the most part, MPs patrol alongside the civilian policeman who "pounds a beat" and in many instances accompany the civilian policeman who rides in an automobile. In this way, the military policeman is responsible for arresting the military, and the civilian policeman for arresting the civilian.

These are only two of the countless steps taken by the council to insure that relations between the military community and the two civilian communities remain on the highest possible plane. Other problems they have dealt with vary from the health and welfare to the soldier to the traffic and housing situations.

In view of the accomplishments of the council, we urge Fort Benning personnel having problems affecting the military-civilian relationship to bring those problems to the proper officials. We are sure that action will be taken.

Report from Washington

Army to Seek 12,500 Recruits in May

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The Army has asked Congress for authority to commission women doctors, dentists, veterinarians and other medical specialists in the Regular Army and ORC.

The Army will seek 12,500 recruits this month, 2,500 over the April quota, and 7,500 over the February-March quota.

The end of April saw extension of the Army Career Plan to the four major combat fields, Infantry, Artillery, Armed Cavalry and Field Engineers, 75 per cent completed. Present schedules call for implementation of Field Engineering this month.

Work accomplished by the National Security Resources Board in connection with "M-Day" plans, have saved six months of time toward total mobilization, should it become necessary, according to testimony submitted to Congress.

During the Revolutionary War, the garrisson ration cost 11.11 cents per day, according to recently compiled statistics. In the Civil War it was 16 cents; Spanish-American War, 12.81 cents; World War I, 48.2; World War II, 43.86. In January, 1949, the daily garrison ration cost was $1.0439.

The Army has drafted legislation which will provide statutory authority for its present organization. It now operates under Executive Orders related to the President's wartime powers. The new bill has been submitted to the other Services for concurrence, since it involves laws affecting all AFME components.

After July 1, the Army garrison cap will not be worn normally, but reserved for alternate wear on maneuvers and other occasions when the service cap is not practicable.

An Onyx base desk set with two fountain pens is a "luxury item" and will not be purchased from appropriated funds, the Army has ruled.

Does Value Change With the Individual?

BY CHAPLAIN LEONARD A. ELLIS

Do you think there are individuals better than you, that you are better than some other person, that every one is of equal value, or that the value of an individual changes?

The value of an individual is dependent, I think, upon the person. Think of the qualities that make up the worth of a man. Then compare the qualities of one man with those of another and see if you can truthfully say that every man is as good as every other man.

What determines the value of human beings? Does the color of a man's skin determine how much he is worth? Does his family tree or his ancestry make a difference? Do his beliefs and customs, his economic condition, physical or legislative power determine his true value? I think not. I would rather believe that the value of an individual is determined by his usefulness, his character, his truthfulness, his attitude towards life, his friendly and harmonious relationship with his fellow man and fellow citizen. I would rather determine a man's value by the love and respect that his presence demands of his associates than by any fear that his powerful position might strike in their hearts.

If this "measuring rod" for the evaluation of "individual worth" is logical... according to the accepted doctrines of our society, it is... then can one say that one man is just as good as another, or that one man is better or superior to another, regardless of his qualities? Does custom, in all cases, differentiate between right and wrong? If it does not, of what value is a wrong custom?

We have an opportunity to heighten our individual worth with each passing minute. The responsibility for the maintenance and elevation of those qualities that are more desirable rests directly on each of our shoulders—and the reward for accepting this responsibility is worthy of all effort we

Field Director Commends 'Hello Girls'

BY MURRAY HILL

Once before I wrote on those who volunteered to work so many long hours for the Red Cross. At that time I was thinking of Nurses Aides, disaster relief workers and those who work in the Red Cross volunteer uniform.

But there is another group which renders valuable service in the Red Cross program—particularly by aiding the field director on an army post. That group is composed of telephone operators.

I have never seen any of the telephone operators at Fort Benning. I do not know the name of a single one, but without their help it would be most difficult for us to clear a great many of the emergency cases we are called upon to handle.

When a soldier receives distressing news, which necessitates a phone call rather than a wire, local operators become interested in the case. When we mention that it is a Red Cross emergency, they join in with the long distance operators in Columbus and between the two it is a matter of only seconds, in many instances, to locate a Red Cross person in distant cities or remote rural sections. In fact, it seems that the magic word passed on, from one long distance operator to another long distance operator, that it is a Red Cross call all that is needed to clear the lines from coast to coast. I don't suppose that we at Fort Benning have asked for any type of priority on a Red Cross call in the last four or five years.

So I would like to take the opportunity of commending in this column the intense interest in the Red Cross shown by the telephone operators at Fort Benning and by all the operators throughout the nation who join with them in clearing the lines for an emergency.

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE, LADY? ... Personally, we wish we were the party she seems to be coming over the brow of a hill. But the Rocky mountains get in the way. At any rate, we can use our imagination, and, as a public figure, lovely Joan Crawford would hardly object.

At The Theaters

COMING ATTRACTIONS

EDWARD, MY SON with Spencer Tracy and Deborah Kerr. Obsessed by the thought of providing the best life for his only son, Spencer Tracy rises to a position of wealth and power only to discover, too late, that he has ruined the boy's character and wrecked his own life. Recommended for adult.

MANHANDLED with Dorothy Lamour and Dan Durvey. Using Dorothy Lamour as a foil to cover up his crimes, Dan Durvey portrays as sneaky and treacherous a villain as the screen can offer. Recommended for family.

REIGN OF TERROR with Robert Cummings and Richard Basehart. The French Revolution provides a sinister setting for this swiftly moving story of the plots and counter-plots that defeated Robespierre's scheme to become dictator of France. Recommended for adult.

CHAMPION with Kirk Douglas and Marilyn Maxwell. This is a powerful picture that pulls no punches in telling the story of the sassy fight racket and of the "champion" built up as a symbol of clean-living sportsmanship, who in private life destroyed family and friends to reach the top. Recommended for adult.

SUSANNA PASS with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. Law and order get staunch support once again from Roy Rogers as he rides the range with a six-shooter and a song. Dale Evans is back as the feminine interest and the musical chores in this tricolor picture are handled by the Riders of the Purple Sage. Recommended for family.

A list of topics ranging from "Life of a German Prisoner of War" has been sent to these groups who may request airforce personnel to speak at their meetings.

Company Party Slated A company party will be held in the main post gym on Saturday night for members of Company B, Infantry School detachment, and their guests.

To Amuse You Today

Back in the days of King Arthur a knight was sent on a long journey. As there was no available horse he rode a big dog. He was well on his way when it began to rain, so he stopped at a house and asked the owner if he might spend the night there. The owner looked at the huge St. Bernard.

"Well," he said, "I couldn't turn away a knight on a dog like this."
 Only one man in a thousand is as good as the others are followers of women.

The teacher asked Johnny "to name five things that contained milk." Johnny replied, "ice cream and the teacher."

"But that's only two things," said the teacher.

"Yeah!" said Johnny. "Ain't you ever seen a cow?"
 Director: "have you ever had any stage experience?"
 Applicant: "Well, I had my leg in a cast once."

Taylor-Barrick Vows Told At Post Catholic Chapel

The Catholic chapel at Fort Benning was the scene of an impressive military wedding when Miss Sara Ellen Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor of Columbus, became the bride of Lt. George M. Barrick Jr. of Fort Benning, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Barrick Sr. of Morgantown, W. Va., recently Chaplain (Capt.) A. C. Zielinski performed the double-ring ceremony, before an altar beautifully decorated with tall white tapers in cathedral candelabra and baskets of white gladioli.

A quarter-hour program of organ music was played by John Miller as the guests assembled. His selections were "Rubenstein's 'Romance' and 'Evening Star' from 'Tannhauser,' Schubert's 'Ave Maria' furnished the background for the marriage service. Mrs. Judith Pennell, vocalist, sang 'The Sweetest Story Ever Told' and 'Because'.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully attired in a smart white gabardine suit, pink blouse, and a pink, close-fitting straw hat trimmed with dainty pink lilies of the valley nestling in the folds of a pink new veil. Her jewelry was a choker strand of pearls and she carried a prayer book centered with a white orchid.

Miss Evelyn Pittman of Columbus attended the bride as maid of honor. She was lovely in an aqua crepe afternoon dress and large brimmed white straw picture hat, and she carried a bouquet of pink geraniums.

Lt. Edward H. Strating of Fourth company Student Training regiment, attended the groom as best man.

Mrs. Ralph Taylor, the bride's mother, wore a navy crepe after noon dress with navy and white accessories, and her corsage was a spray of tiny purple orchids.

The couple left the chapel under the traditional arch of sabers, formed by Capt. Paul L. Peterson, Lt. John Archer, Lt. William Yester, Lt. Charles McGee, Lt. James Duffy and Lt. James Watkins. Captain Peterson and Lieutenant McGee were ushers.

THEN AND NOW... Airborne training became a reality with the establishment of the Airborne School at Fort Benning on May 12, 1942. The progress for training and transporting troops has undergone constant changes. In the left picture, a group of airborne cyclists are

Airborne Training Here Started 7 Years Ago

Almost seven years ago, effectiveness of a parachute army was demonstrated on May 12, 1942, the War Department.

Early in 1940, America hastily organized under a unified command was one of the most colorful in military history. Perhaps no military development has been as revolutionary as the employment of paratroopers—paratroopers, not a man here, spectacular, nor so singularly effective.

It is generally agreed that the late Gen. Bill Mitchell, the unappreciated prophet of the shape of wars to come, sowed the seed of an idea that grew into the mighty airborne army. The first display of airborne might at Kelly Field, Texas was arranged by General Mitchell. Six American soldiers dropped by parachute from a Martin bomber, and less than three minutes after they had leaped from the plane, had assembled in a weapons on the field and were ready for action. Unfortunately, the Army leaders who witnessed the feat dismissed it as a stunt, and the feasibility of the operation was discarded.

General Mitchell's preview of things to come was witnessed by two military conditions and accepted for future experimentation. The first was Russia, which developed parachuting into a national sport. Young and old were encouraged to jump. Parachuting was then incorporated into the military machine. By August, 1939, paratroopers appeared in the first war maneuvers at Veronokh, Russia. Next performance of their might was given in Moscow one month later.

The second militant country to grasp the idea of an airborne army was Germany, which undertook feverish activities to develop parachuting in time to fit it into its plans for world conquest. At the outbreak of World War II, in 1939, both Russia and Germany flung their thunderbolts from the blue—parachute troops dropped in such numbers as to startle and terrify countries. Their effectiveness was evidenced the world there was no longer a question of the ef-under the chief of infantry with Lt. Col. William C. Lee commanding. Activation of the 502nd Battalion took place on July 1, 1941, with men of the 501st provided as cadre. The 502nd was far under authorized strength and Colonel Lee personally assumed the task of recruiting 132 men as jumpers from the Ninth Infantry Division at Fort Bragg, N. C. The response to Colonel Lee's effort was startling. More than 1,000 men, including officers, answered his call for volunteers.

During July, 1941, a tract of land in Alabama, previously reconnoitered by Colonel Lee, accompanied by Colonel Chapman, was approved and acquired as an additional training area. A little-known fact pertinent to airborne lore is the origin of the traditional shout of the paratrooper leaping from a plane.

The jump training towers were singularly effective in facilitating the progress of the airborne effort. The similarity between an actual landing by parachute from a plane in flight and landing by parachute dropped from the towers effected an authentic training with remarkable effect upon the trainees.

The first jump from a plane in flight was made by members of the test platoon from a Douglas B-10, over Lawson field on Aug. 16, 1940. A drawing was held to see which one of the enlisted men would follow Lieutenant Ryder out of the plane first. The drawing was won by Pvt. (later staff sergeant) Joseph King, who thereby became the first enlisted man to make an official jump as a paratrooper in the United States army.

On August 19th, the first mass jump by a platoon in the continental United States was made over Lawson field by the test platoon. The first Parachute battalion organized was the 501st, under command of Col. William C. Mitchell, with members of the test platoon as cadre.

New jump areas were cleared by Civilian Conservation Corps workers and three new training buildings were erected. Several B-10s and C-47s were made available for jumping the army. Further airborne experimentation was carried out by the organization of the first airborne infantry battalion, officially designated the 88th Infantry, under command of Lt. Col. (later Major General) Perry Chapman, on Oct. 10, 1941.

An additional step in the program of the 88th Infantry was indicated by the activation of the Provisional Parachute group,

HERE AND THERE

BY VINCENT GIARRATANO BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

After a two week rainy period, the sun has finally fought its way through to where it spends 12 hours or so a day with us. As a result, the post becomes a bee hive of activity as the post intra-mural baseball league shifts to high gear with local wisemen already predicting the final standings. Swimming pools have opened, and are opening as places of refuge from the Georgia sun. Netmen are pressing the kinks out of their rackets, and linksmen are pounding the curves out of their golf clubs, left there after the last friendly disagreement with the little woman.

The Infantry Center intra-mural horseshoe pitching tournament is just around the corner, we have been wondering whether the units have held their eliminations, and formed their unit teams for participation in the tourney which gets under way May 31.

The Sand Hill golf course is undergoing a face lifting in preparation for the heavy traffic all courses are subjected to in the summer months. Bermuda grass is being planted on the fairways, greens are being trimmed and readied, and top soil is being placed on the course. We venture to say business should pick up on the Sand Hill greens.

Regging the umpires at a ball game is a time honored fan pastime, especially in a certain Utopian community that thrives under the fair name of Brooklyn. But fella, there is a limit to everything. We are official scorers at Gowdy field, and get to see as many mistakes the ump might make as any fan. But very often the gripes are either based on loyalty to one's own unit, or on sandlot rules which do not apply on local diamonds.

The ground rules used on Fort Benning diamonds are comparable to those used in major league ball parks, with local variations necessary due to the construction of the parks. As for strikes, and balls at the plate, or plays on the bases, the players themselves will all agree, that even though they disagree with the ump's at times, the umpiring in general is as fair and accurate here, as anywhere else in the country.

SHE BOWLS 'EM OVER - Pretty little Judy Hathaway, daughter of Mrs. Edward N. Hathaway, mascot of the Women's club bowling tournament, undoubtedly inspired the efforts of her mother in the tourney.

MEXICAN MAULER

Lozano Martinez, Mexican wrestler, will be one of the contestants in the main event of the professional wrestling card which will be staged at the main post gym Tuesday night, May 31. He will enter the ring with Al Massey of Florida.

Wrestling Card Set

The main gym will echo the grunts and groans of six professional wrestlers on Tuesday night, May 31. Lozano Martinez, a 240-pound druid from Mexico City will meet Al Massey, a 215-pound Floridian, in a 90-minute main event struggle for two out of three falls. Don McIntyre, 228 pounds, from Missouri and Rex Mobley, 219-pound Texan, will face each other in the semi-final encounter. The card will be opened with a one-fall match between Tom Mahoney, 245 pounds, and 235-pound Red McIntyre.

ASU, Divarty Win In Two-Game Bill

In a twilight-night twin bill on Gowdy field last Tuesday night, the Provisional group, Area Service unit, downed the Special troops nine of the Third Infantry division, 8-5, and the division artillerymen trampled the Lawson Field Flyers, 19-9.

Winning pitcher Larry Hall of the Provisional group, struck out three ASU men and gave up one base on balls. In the second game, the division artillerymen trampled the Lawson Field Flyers, 19-9. Despite the divarty spree in the last four frames, the Flyers kept the game tied up in the first three innings, and pushed ahead to an 8-4 lead in the fifth.

The artillerymen turned on their big guns in the seventh, zeroing in the target again and found the target again in the eighth to score eight runs. They concluded their scoring with four more in the ninth. The Flyers scored one run each in the first, second and third innings, and racked up a four-run eighth and a two-run ninth. The Flyers scored one run each in the first, second and third innings, and racked up a four-run eighth and a two-run ninth.

The ASU men scored in the first frame when second baseman Willie B. A. K. tapped a grounder to second d living in the eighth and reached on a two-base error. The ASU men scored in the fifth on a fly by first baseman Joe McFarlin, and in the same frame, left-fielder Rufus Coleman drove in Tipton. Tipton drove Wilson in again in the sixth, and Banks scored in the seventh on a wild throw by special troops catcher Joe Fath.

In the eighth frame, Hall drove in Thrall and was then batted in by Tipton to complete the eighth inning range. Special troops scored three in the fifth and two in the ninth on Conrad's homer. But shortstop Gordon Burke rolled out to the mound to squelch the threat of a rally. In the second game, the division artillery had to come from behind to score their victory over the Lawsonites.

Al Ellis started on the mound for the divarty, giving up seven hits and walking five before being replaced by Dave Reed in the fifth. Reed pitched after fanning four and walking four, was replaced in the eighth by Ray Thomas.

First baseman Andy Hardy copped the batting honors for divarty, with three for three. Mack Cox, with three for six, and Lefty Rasther, hitting two for four, led the Lawson batting parade.

15th Downs Medics 12-1

The 15th Infantry regiment diamond nine met the Provisional Medical group squad in their debut on Gowdy field in a twilight match last Wednesday afternoon, May 4, and acknowledged the introduction by hitting two homers to trounce the medics 12-1.

Both teams remained scoreless in the two first frames of what proved to be a well played ball game until 15th Infantry pitcher John Karwowski came in with the first run of the fray in the third on a passed ball. The Infantrymen allowed their onslaught continuing in all the remaining innings, bringing in five tallies in the fourth.

Footslogger center fielder Gene Thomas sent one into center field for the first four-base and the only run scored in the fourth inning.

Shortstop Sam Hall scored in the fifth driven in by a single by third baseman Ed Baldwin, then the Infantrymen broke loose in the sixth, allowing five runs in the frame. Infantry right fielder Charles Nichols, on a two base error, went home on a single by Tom a.

Driven in by Hall, then Karwowski drove in by left fielder Bob Jordan and first baseman Bill Wiczeorok, on a walk, went home on a single by Len Johnson, catcher for the Infantry.

Nichols homered for the Infantrymen in the seventh, giving the top, Jordan came in on a balk, and the Infantry broke loose in the eighth, then Strawners reached the home plate when Nichols made it to first on an error.

Left fielder Vance Heard, hit by a pitched ball, brought in a single by right fielder John Pickney in the fourth frame.

Karwowski, the winning pitcher, struck out 11 medic batters, gave two hits, walked one, but hit two batters with pitched balls. Floyd Keadis, on the mound for the medics, whiffed six Infantrymen along with six strikes, and walked eight batters.

Hall, with three for four, and Karwowski, with two for three, led the Infantry batting offensive.

Bronze Stars Awarded Two 121st Soldiers

At an informal ceremony last Friday at 30th Medical group headquarters, Cpl. Anselmo Rodriguez and Cpl. Frank A. Oaks, both of the 121st Evacuation hospital, were presented the Bronze Star medal by Maj. John H. Burman, commanding officer of the group.

The citations, accompanying the medals which honor them for their wartime activities, read in part as follows: Corporal Rodriguez: "For exemplary conduct in ground combat against the armed enemy on or about March 1, 1945, in the European theater of operations while serving with the 44th Armored Infantry battalion."

Corporal Oaks: "For exemplary conduct in ground combat against the armed enemy during the Rhineland campaign in the European theater of operations while serving with the 365th Medical battalion."

Both corporals, who were privates, first class at the time of the actions cited, are veterans of six years service.

Rating Boosts Told

Recent promotions to corporal have been announced by the 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion. Promoted were Pfc. Gordic G. Slade and John P. Kearney of Headquarters Headquarters Battery and Pfc. George A. Fulton of Battery C.

Officer Tourney Links Flights Set

John Henion and Robert Rosa fired 72 apiece over the layout of the Fort Benning Golf and Country club last weekend to share medalist honors in the 1949 post's individual championship golf tourney for officers.

Close behind Henion and Rosa with an 18-hole score of 73 was Dewart Moore, the defending champion in the meet.

Low scorers have been arranged into a 32-man championship division which will be reformed into the 18-man championship flight and a 16-man first flight offer the initial round of the tourney, which will be completed in two weeks.

Based on their scores, all other hopefuls have been arranged into the 16-man flight which will play an 18-hole round a week through the finals.

Championship and first-flight golfers will also play an 18-hole match a week during the tourney. The first match will be played behind the rest of the field because of the first-round championship program began Monday under supervision of Capt. Arthur B. Sikes, commander of company C.

The results of the test showed that the recruits are well equipped with proper rolling of packs, but they fell down in map reading, a military courtesy and discipline.

The test was set up with 11 stations and first-flight recruits were given a 15-minute test. These included first aid, rifle and carbine, interior guard, defense against chemical attack, combat formations and tactical training.

The battalion took advantage of the test to qualify the recruits on riot gun training at nearby Langdon range.

Maj. John E. Harris, First Battalion commander, commented that his officers and NCOs now have a much better knowledge of the training status of the new men. On the basis of the stakes test, instructors will know what phases of basic training to emphasize.

Of a possible 245 score, the trainees averaged about 168. High scores were made by Private Paul V. Brooks, of company C, 227; Earl Owens, company C, and Paul Branson, company D, each 225; Charles L. March, company B, 217; D. E. James, company C, 217; Willie Oertel, company B, 215; John H. Thomas, company B, 212; Roland T. Godfrey, company B, 211; and Henry D. Hunter, company C, 210.

Battery B of the Ninth Field Artillery celebrated the dayroom Sunday afternoon with a ceremony highlighted by an address by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander.

Accompanied by Mrs. Clarkson and their son Bill, the general lauded the men for their initiative in converting a useless barracks into what he termed "an attractive, well-planned recreation center—in fact, the best example of a small dayroom that I have yet seen."

In charge of the project, which was completed in off-duty hours, was Sgt. Arnold Meier. Assisting him and taking charge of the carpentry were Pvt. Bernardo Arabaldo and Edward Albrandt, who constructed modern-type partitions and woodwork throughout the structure.

Among the facilities available in the dayroom are current issues of 21 national magazines and newspapers, engraved stationery with the battery's letterhead, pingpong and pool tables, radio and phonograph combinations, a soft drink machine and various small indoor athletic items.

Present at the dedication ceremonies were Lt. Col. Clyde L. Jones, acting commander of Third division artillery, and Mrs. Jones, and Maj. Tom A. Arnold, Third Infantry Artillery battalion commander.

Reservists to Hear Talks By TIS Men

While at the base May 28-29, Colonel Davis will address the officers on "The Employment of Airborne Forces" and Major Urban's subject will be "Supply by Air in Combat Operations."

Situation Reversed . . . In 1942, M-Sgt. J. D. Walder, left, Battery A, 99th Armored Field Artillery Replacement Training center at Fort Bragg, N. C. The situation was reversed last week when Capt. George W. Mitchell, right, became commander of Battery A of the 99th. Sergeant Walder's present assignment is first sergeant of Battery-A.

Sand Hill Reunion Finds Circumstances Reversed

When Capt. George W. Mitchell took over command of Battery A, 99th Armored Field Artillery, one of his first moves was to get acquainted with his first sergeant.

"M-Sgt. J. D. Walder reports to the commanding officer, sir," said the topkick upon being summoned to the Battery commander's office.

Seven years ago at the 16th Field Artillery Replacement center, Fort Bragg, N. C., it was "Private Mitchell reports to First Sergeant Walder."

The mysterious ways of the army had brought the two men together again from the 1st reaches of the world.

As a private Captain Mitchell trained with Sergeant Walder at the training center for nine months and then attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Bragg. He completed the course and went on to the Tank Destroyer Officer Candidate School, Camp Hood, Texas, Sergeant Walder stayed.

Two came the war and the then took different paths.

Sergeant Walder went with the 59th Field Artillery battalion of the 93rd Infantry division to the Southwest Pacific.

Graduating from OCS, the then Second Lieutenant Mitchell fought for France and Germany with the famed 614th Tank Destroyer battalion.

In the battle of Germany, Captain Mitchell was seriously wounded and taken prisoner. He remained a prisoner four months and was liberated after V-E day.

Sergeant Walder, part of the team that served so brilliantly in the Pacific, returned to the States. And Captain Mitchell, after recovering from his wounds, also returned to the U. S. Now, after seven years, they are reversed this time, but they are still working toward a common goal.

Wac Captain Receives RA Commission

Capt. Hazel Ver Hey, commandant of Fort Benning's 15th Infantry detachment, last week received a regular army commission as captain after six years and eight months of active service in the women's army corps. She was administered her oath of office from Capt. Randolph N. Summerall, Area Service unit Provisional group personnel officer, Tuesday, May 3, in a simple ceremony in her office in the Infantry Center headquarters annex.

Captain Ver Hey arrived at Fort Benning in July of 1946 after a tour of duty in the Asiatic theater, and has since assumed the responsibilities of post maintenance and army relief officer in addition to her duties as a detachment commander. She enlisted as an "auxiliary" in what was then the Wacons in 1942, and after basic training, attended officer candidate school at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, graduating as a second lieutenant early in 1943.

Extensive Photography Instruction, Practice Offered By Hobby Shop

Shutterbugs now have an opportunity to learn the intricate tricks of the photography trade, home-made cigar-box apparatus in an Infantry Center special services-sponsored photography class in the hobby shop. Under the supervision of Sgt. Ben Zar, the photography class is designed to teach the novice how to get the best results from the cheapest equipment. Students are taught how to develop and enlarge prints in addition to learning how to take pictures with everything from expensive foreign-made cameras to the simplest types for the beginner to use, primarily because there are no complicated parts to adjust. "You simply sight the subject you desire to take, uncover the shutter, and presto you have a picture," he pointed out.

Benning Aviation Enthusiasts Offered Club Memberships

Fort Benning amateur flying enthusiasts are invited to take part in the activities of a newly formed air club, officials of the organization announced last week. The club, at its first meeting at the City airport in Columbus, agreed to name itself the Echelon Flying club and is open to any person possessing a student pilot license. Anyone who wishes to enroll in the course of flying instruction, charter memberships in the club will be available until the end of May. Those who join the club after that time will be designated regular members.

The class is composed of Benningites of all ranks. There is no set schedule for practical work and most of the students come and go at their own convenience. A total of 150 are presently enrolled and there is room for many more, Sergeant Zar said.

The latest type of equipment, including enlarging, contact and drying machines, is available in the shop. Each machine is assigned to a student for a period of one hour, and, if no others desire the use of it at the end of that time, he may keep it for a longer period. Classes meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 6-11 p.m., and on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Orientation on the use and care of equipment is given from 6-7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 10-11 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. The remainder of the hours are devoted to practical use of the equipment. There is no charge for the use of the equipment or for the instruction, but each student is required to pay for the paper used during the development of his pictures. Cost of the paper, according to Sergeant Zar, is three cents for a two-by-three inch contact sheet, and six cents for eight-by-ten enlargement size, tentative plans for the future, Sergeant Zar revealed, include a class in coloring and retouching prints.

As a sidelight to the class, students may make field trips to various localities in the area, bringing their work back to the photographic lab to develop and print. The last field trip was to the Warm Springs foundation for the care and cure of infantile paralysis. The next trip has been set for the end of this month. Officials said that no military dependents can be accepted because of the limited amount of equipment and space.

Primary OK For Pay Bill

Solon Remains Pessimistic Over Full House Prospects

The armed services pay bill cleared its first hurdle last week, but congressional leaders expressed little hope that the bill will actually become law in this session.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the bill by unanimous vote of 28 to 0. It will come to a vote in the full house next week.

While putting its stamp of approval on the bill, the subcommittee pushed the effective date of the pay raise back three months if the bill passes both the house and senate.

The proposed raise is now wouldn't go into effect until October 1.

However, Representative Kilday of Texas, who headed the subcommittee which drafted the bill, and who is responsible for guiding the legislation through the house, expressed doubt that it would pass at all.

"We are likely to have trouble getting it passed," the Texan legislator said. "It is a matter of time when everyone is calling for economy in federal spending."

There are going to be objections because the larger raises go to high-ranking officers, but the facts justify this action," Mr. Kilday added.

The committee pointed out that the pay of the lowest ranked service man has been boosted by 400 per cent since 1903. General officers, however, have had only an 18 per cent increase.

Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, openly predicted, however, that the bill will be signed at all along the line. "Mr. Vinson was a member of the subcommittee which approved the pay bill last week," he said.

The bill, which would hike base pay of service personnel by an average of 17 per cent, is the first overall revision of military pay rates since 1908.

It has the approval of President Truman and Defense Secretary Johnson.

Cost of the increases during fiscal 1950 would be about $380,000,000, since the measure would not become effective until Oct. 1. The bill would cost $400,000,000 for its first full year of operation. The annual cost is expected to decline slowly.

The legislation affects all branches of the services, including the army, the navy, the coast guard, the marine corps, the coast and geodetic survey and the public health service.

The subcommittee said that sharp reduction of disability payments to retired officers will offset about $77,000,000 of the bill's cost. Foreign duty pay for officers would also be discontinued.

MP Praised For Aiding In Prisoner's Recapture

A commendation for superior and reliable service was handed down last week to Pvt. Joseph Meserole, Third Infantry Division, for his part in the recapture of an escaped prisoner.

Presented by Maj. Charles S. Finley, the citation lauded Private Meserole for his part in the recapture of an escaped prisoner.

Recently when he was driving his patrol duties in the Harmond church area, Private Meserole passed a man walking on U. S. highway No. 21, whose description he brushed the broad cast earlier in the day of an escaped prisoner.

Private Meserole blew his horn at a fellow patrolman, Pvt. Niel F. Strickland, and both turned and went to the spot where the man had been seen. He was no longer there, but the two military policemen saw a civilian car traveling in the direction of Sand Hill.

Meserole summoned another group of MPs who were passing within a short distance. He then went to look for the man. Following his instructions, Private Meserole returned to division headquarters and after reporting, returned to the scene.

Accompanied by Sgt. George W. Swartz, he followed the mud and found the prisoner hiding under a bridge.

Major Finch, in presenting the commendation, stressed his alertness and adherence to standard police instructions.

"His actions," Major Finch said, "were of the caliber that is always desired in a military policeman."

TIS Program

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—The House of Representatives today passed a bill to create a new military training program for the army, navy, coast guard, the marine corps, the coast and geodetic survey and the public health service.

The subcommittee said that sharp reduction of disability payments to retired officers will offset about $77,000,000 of the bill's cost. Foreign duty pay for officers would also be discontinued.

The grant has been made available to Fort Benning through the Third Army welfare fund.

SOUNDING 'EM OUT. Diamond Doings WITH BOB FRESCO

The baseball season has made its annual invasion of Fort Benning, replete with pop bottles, peanuts, drastically cut - called times and, generally, a long line of nine scrapping teams.

There's nothing like a bit of controversy on warm Georgia evenings, so we look it upon ourselves to find out what Benning thinks of the current horsethief scramble.

How do you feel about the local baseball league in general — the enthusiasm shown, the supervision of the games, and the teams themselves?

Capt. Charles A. Burgess, Jr., 3440th Area Service unit, said: "I like Benning baseball this year. It's better than it used to be, and there's more support behind it. I bet the sportsmanship is a lot more than it used to be. I don't think it's any of this Durecher business, the umpire's there for a reason."

Pvt. Ted Solomon, First Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, four months service, said: "Every night though."

Pvt. Ed Solomon, First Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, four months service, said: "Everybody I know likes the league. All the guys from my own outfit support it pretty well, and so do I. No one has anything bad to say about the way they're playing — I think it's clean baseball."

Pvt. James Farr, 3440th Area Service unit, two years service, said: "The teams are a lot better than they were last year, and they play clean ball, but the attendance at the games isn't so good. On weekends there's quite a few people there, but during the week it's pretty bad."

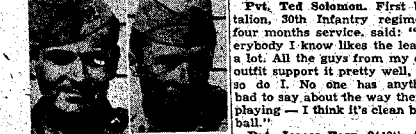

FERGUSON SOLOMON

During the first four months of 1949, a total of 4,352,134 miles were driven, resulting in 70 accidents, none fatal and five disabling. These accidents cost the government $6,836.

According to Mr. Evans, causes of the accidents have been due to excessive speed, improper signaling, failure to check vehicles driving too close to other vehicles, assuming the right-of-way, mechanical failures and improper passing.

Although the accident rate for the first four months of the year is only 1.61 per 100,000 miles driven, safety officials said that the rate for the entire year would be lower.

Records reveal that during 1948, almost 11,000,000 miles were driven by Fort Benning personnel, with 180 accidents, resulting in 12 deaths, 100 injuries, and 27 disabling injuries, which cost the government $80,212.

think more people should go to the games. After all, the teams are playing for them. The game itself is very good for this type of a league, but I think there'd be fewer squabbles with the umpires if the players and the stands understood more of the technical parts of the game."

Sgt. Eugene Waldo, Second Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, five and one-half years service, thought that "it's a very good idea to have these games. I've only seen a couple, but I've enjoyed them quite a bit. As far as the men are concerned, it's better for them to stay right here on post and spend their energy shooting at the game. It keeps them off the streets."

Cpl. Ellice B. Ferguson, caretaker of official athletic facilities, 13 years service, said: "I like it this year. The playing's better because the teams are more equal, and they're really scrambling."

ing the week it's pretty bad."

Sgt. Ist. cl. Frank Salmeri, assistant to the Infantry Center athletic officer, 17 years service, had to say: "The officiating at our games is as good as in any semi-pro league in the country. All the umpires are good men because they have to be. They've got from 200 to 300 chances to take every game, while a player has maybe 10 or 15. They're only human, and they're good men. Here at the start we don't mind all the work we do for the games, but more men should take advantage of them. When the stands are full, that's when we're happy."

Sgt. Bernard Rubel, Section I, 3440th Area Service unit, seven years service, said: "What impresses me the most when I see the games is the excellent condition of the fields. They're on par with big league facilities. As to the games themselves, the officiating is excellent; no major gripes as far as the umpires are concerned."

SOLDIER-OF-THE-WEEK Shop Blaze Extinguished By Attentive ASU Guard

Carrying out the army's eighth general order, plus alertness and attention to duty won for Pvt. James R. Brodie, of the 3440th Area Service unit, Provisional group, the title of the Week's "Soldier of the Week."

While walking his post around the automotive maintenance shops at 8:30 p.m., May 6, Pvt. Brodie noticed a blaze on the side of the building, since there was no available phone on his post he immediately ran to the guardhouse, approximately 100 yards away, and instructed another guard to summon the fire department.

Returning to his post then, Pvt. Brodie was able to extinguish the blaze before the arrival of the fire engine.

The initiative and presence of mind shown by Private Brodie, according to officials of the Area Service unit, provided a good example of the outstanding characteristics of a soldier of the United States Army.

Is Money The Only Reward?

We are glad to learn that the National Military Establishment has decided to inaugurate a course in citizenship principles for all basic trainees. It's a pathetic fact that too many men entering the army today to say nothing of those who are already in, know pitifully little about their obligations as American citizens. This is primarily due to the fact that there is not offered in secondary schools a comprehensive course in citizenship. True, there are courses in civics or government and some of the larger schools hold seminars in democracy, but for the most part, unfortunately, there is a sad lack of instruction in what it means to be American.

The plan of the NME to provide a course in citizenship will, we hope, in some way help to create a greater sense of responsibility on the part of the soldier to his country. It will perhaps cause those men, who entered the army through Selective Service, to serve more willingly and to be of greater benefit to their country.

A belief, shared by some of the military as well as the civilian, is that the public is greatly overtaxed in order to provide income for the soldier and that the soldier does nothing in return for his keep. First of all, those who hold such beliefs should realize that the importance of maintaining a well-trained armed force can never be overestimated, for without a force to protect the country against an aggressor and without a force to provide the nucleus for training the civilian to be a soldier in time of emergency, this country would probably today be living under a dictatorial regime. A classic example of lethargy on the part of the public is what happened when Hitler and his Nazi machine took hold of Germany and overran Europe.

This reason alone should be enough for the intelligent individual to realize that the military establishment is an integral part of the American way of life. Without it, that way of life would probably cease to exist. With it there is proof that we can have the best democracy in the world. Switzerland, which has compulsory military training, is generally conceded to have the world's "purest" democracy.

We have heard draftees complain that they were forced to leave good civilian jobs for twenty-one months just to learn how to fire a rifle and pitch a tent. But we wonder if those who complain loudest realize that the preparedness of the armed forces makes it possible for them to have good jobs in civil life. Some men apparently believe the armed forces are asset to our way of life as is evidenced by the fact that Steve Early left a $25,000 a year job to become undersecretary of defense at a lower salary, and John McCloy is leaving a $30,000 a year job to replace Gen. Lucius Clay in Berlin at a lower salary. We wonder if men can be so naive as to believe that money is their only reward?

Every citizen of the United States does have responsibilities to his country and every citizen must work willingly to fulfill those responsibilities. That includes service to his country.

Report from Washington

Money Clothing Plan Sent to Secretary

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The Kilday House Sub-committee on Service Pay has reported its final recommendations to the full committee, providing for pay increases beginning October 1, 1949. The bill, after clearing the Armed Services Committee, must be passed by the House and then goes to the Senate for further consideration.

Allowance rates for the new army-airforce money clothing plan are before the Secretary of Defense for approval. If and when the plan becomes effective July 1, allowance totals—based on costs—and items of uniform for the ensuing fiscal year will be announced.

Revised army regulations provide exemptions to the recently announced ruling that after May 1, no soldier discharged with a year or more of service will be re-enlisted unless he has attained grade five or higher. The restriction will not apply in the following cases: (a)—personnel in a career field who pass examinations and are awaiting promotion; (b)—personnel not under career plan who are denied promotion because of vacancy lack; (c)—personnel who held grade four or higher and were reduced for any reason, but who had, at time of discharge, started back up the ladder and reached grade five.

A sixteen-weeks' course in advanced dentistry for regular army dental officers will begin at the Army Medical Center on August 29.

Chaplain's Corner

Looking Forward Avoids Costly Mistakes

By CHAPLAIN JOHN S. GARRENTON

Many people find anxious hearts and troubled minds pressing them into serious situations when a little thought and study would reveal the mountain is often but a molehill.

I knew a man who one day found himself pinned down by enemy fire in a shallow ditch near a landing strip. As the bombs fell and machine-gun fire sprayed the die, the man became panicky, thinking the ditch too shallow, and jumping up, ran toward a slit-trench several yards away. We buried him the next day.

If he had stopped for a moment to think, he would never have tried to run that gauntlet of fire. In the trench he was concealed and safe from all but accidental hits, while in the open he was a target for every gun in the planes strafing the field.

Often in facing problems we jump to hasty conclusions, and without forethought engage in futile attempts to solve what would be no serious problem at all, if we approached it with honest consideration and thought. We are all too often like the little fellow who found himself bound by a rope around his ankles. He sat down to take hold of the rope of life, and pulling until he was red in the face and exhausted, yet still held prisoner by the rope until a passerby suggested, "Why don't you just untie the rope?"

One of the greatest figures of religious history learned this lesson at great cost, but great profit to himself. For years Saul of Tarsus fought against the powers struggling within his breast until the day he seriously faced the question: "Why resist so stubbornly? Do you not know it is hard to struggle against the right?"

The problems we so often find men facing—those situations threatening destruction of a home, the loss of individual freedom, the enslaving habit destroying hope and bringing defeat—problems which beloud life and make going on seem not worth-while are the inevitable results of failure to think and face facts.

Long ago the Galilean, Jesus, reminded men of the need to think and face facts in life—"The Truth shall make you free."

Let us begin to think and face facts before we create our problems, and the problems will never come. Our stockades are filled with those who did not think before they acted. Our divorce courts are busy with those who failed to think of the consequences of rash actions. Our courts operate only for those who fail to look ahead.

Remember! "Where there is no looking forward into the future, the people perish," but "The Truth shall make you free"; and "If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed"; for "Thy Word is Truth, O God."

What Happens If an Emergency Arises?

BY MURRAY HILL
The question is often brought to me by soldiers preparing to go on maneuvers, "What will happen if an emergency occurs while I'm on maneuvers?" The answer is the Red Cross will be right there with you.

On May 8, war games started in the Fort Bragg-Camp Mackall, N. C., area. A number of troops from Fort Benning are now in that area. Specialists in handling emergencies have been assigned to the area from Fort Bragg, Fort Jackson, and Camp La

The army has launched a program for the apprehension and return to military control of absentees and deserters.

A House Armed Services Sub-committee soon will open hearings on the operation of post exchanges and ship's stores.

Thousands of servicemen are eligible, or will be, for state bonus payments for World War II service. Sixteen states and two territories have passed bonus laws. Two more states will vote on bonus legislation next November, and one will decide the matter in 1950.

The army Medical department's "Oscar"—winning film, "Toward Independence," is available for loan to military and non-profit civilian organizations. The picture portrays the paraplegic care program developed by the army.

Army airforce finance authorities have ruled that the reenlistment allowance is not payable to personnel who transfer voluntarily from army to airforce, and on expiration of enlistment, re-enlist in the army. If such transfer was involuntary, the allowance is payable.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

WE WERE STRANGERS with Jennifer Jones and John Garfield. The year 1933 saw the overthrow of a police state regime that had crushed the rights and liberties of the Cuban people. This is a fictional tribute to the sacrifices made by the people who aided in the restoration of democratic government. Recommended for adult.

COLORADO TERRITORY with Joel McCrea and Virginia Mayo. The locale of this adventure story is the Pueblo Indian country in the days when the length of a man's life depended on the speed and accuracy with which he handled a six-shooter. Recommended for family.

PORETRAIT OF JENNY with Joseph Cotton, Jennifer Jones and Ethel Barrymore. This picture does not fit easily into the routine grooves as it is a story of an artist who meets, is inspired by and falls in love with a girl who returns to him from nowhere at several different stages of her life—a girl he knows has been dead for several years. Recommended for family.

WILL JAMES' SAND with Mark Stevens and Coleen Gray. The scenic beauty of Colorado, as seen through a technicolor camera, is the background of a search for a valuable show horse that runs free after escaping from a burning railroad car. Recommended for family.

C-MAN with Dean Jagger and John Carradine. U. S. customs agents must be constantly on watch for clever crooks trying to smuggle valuable gems into the country for a quick sale. Recommended for family.

The next morning the Scouts arose at 8 a.m., ate breakfast and started on their tests. Then at noon, they ate lunch and broke camp.

Course in Basic Citizenship Added To Recruit Training

Plans for teaching and explaining fundamentals of democracy as part of the basic training of recruits in the armed forces were announced today by the Personnel Policy board of the National Military establishment.

This course in basic citizenship will have a major objective of offsetting subversive propaganda directed at members of the armed forces. Primarily, it will be designed to give recruits who have lacked educational opportunities a clear understanding of the democratic traditions, customs and principles upon which the American way of life is based. The course will be uniform for all the services and it is planned to put it into operation next fall.

Announcing decision to develop the course, Chairman Thomas R. Reid of the Personnel Policy board, said that it is in line with the board's belief that the mental and moral development of officers and men are basic for everything they seek to do. They must understand, he said, the principles and operation of democratic government, of which the preparation of the basic citizenship course, requested a progress report by May 31 and that every effort be made to complete the project by next Aug. 31.

Benning In The 'Good Old Summertime'

Fort Benning has long enjoyed the distinction of being the most complete army post in America. This holds true in the local sports picture as well as from the military standpoint. In fact, Fort Benning has long enjoyed a reputation for being one of the nation's most active sports centers.

If the records were explored, such names as Harry (Hank) Gowdy, for whom the Fort Benning baseball diamond was named in 1925, and who pulled a World War II stint of duty here; Glenn Davis of Army football fame from 1945-46, and countless other luminaries of the boxing, football, baseball, golf and tennis worlds would be discovered as having been stationed here.

In keeping with the spirit of "sports for all," whether participating or watching, existing facilities are continually being improved, and new ones are being added.

Shown on this page are some of the various summer events the sports-minded soldier can participate in while stationed at Benning.

Tennis, as depicted in the upper left corner, is ever popular among Benningites and has been gaining in popularity to the extent that six new courts were recently constructed on the reservation bringing the total now in use to 16.

In the picture at the top center is a scene from one of the night games played in the Infantry Center intra-mural baseball league. Two of seven post-wide tournaments are being used for intra-mural activity.

Boxing, left center, has always been popular among sport fans on the post, as evidenced by the fact that all of the local sports attractions, boxing cards always draw the largest crowds.

The picture in the lower left corner shows a portion of the crowd that turned out to witness a recent track meet in Doughboy stadium, watching the start of the 100-yard dash.

Although post athletic officials arrange as many sports as possible into organized athletics on a tournament basis, the facilities are open to all personnel on the post for use during their off-duty hours. The picture at bottom left shows a group of trainees in the recent swimming in a water safety course taught by Red Cross Instructor Harry Kenning, dive in for a demonstration under Young's pool, where the course was held, is one of three enlightening swimming mecca on the post.

Shown in the right center are two Benningites enjoying a bit of relaxation on the Fort Benning golf and country club course. An enlisted men's layout is located in the Sand Hill area. In the upper right corner a happy angler displays a fine string of bream caught at King's pond on the reservation.

Oldtimers know, and newcomers soon learn that when Fort Benning calls itself "America's most complete army post," it isn't merely an idle boast.

Set Minimum Age For GED Exams

Authorities of the United States armed forces institute, Madison, Wis., have revealed that effective June 1 the minimum age requirement for applications to take the general educational development (GED) test will be 20 years.

The minimum was established after a lengthy survey by the commission on accreditation of service experiences of the American Council on Education.

It will not apply, however, if a civilian educational institution with which the applicant has studied contacts the USAFI administration.

ROSA BOWS, HENION BECOMES MEDALIST

The first round of play in the officers' individual championship golf tourney got under way last week, spanned by the play off between John Henion and Robert Rosa who tied for medalist honors in the qualification round.

In an 18-hole match on the Fort Benning Golf and Country club layout, Henion copped the win to become the club's medalist by defeating Rosa, 72-75.

Winners in the championship division pairings will play through the remainder of the tournament as the championship flight, while the bowing linksmen form the first flight.

The second, third, fourth and fifth flights, formed after the qualifying rounds, have completed their first round of tournament activity.

Outdoor Church Service is Held Links Tourney Play Date Set

Approximately 500 military personnel and their families were led in prayer and hymns last Sunday morning by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert Canis, 15th Infantry Regiment chaplain, in the first of a series of outdoor church services held in the 15th Infantry's first courted courtyard.

Starting at 10 a.m., the services were held under an open-sided tent erected in the center of the court, and consisted of songs and prayer conducted in an interdenominational manner. Chaplain Canis expressed the hope that subsequent services would have even larger attendances.

"The purpose of the series," he stated, "is to bring the church closer to the men, and we hope that more and more of them will attend the services here every Sunday."

The Infantry Center intra-mural golf tournament, in which all enlisted personnel on the post are eligible to participate, will begin at the Fort Benning Golf and Country club in June, post athletic officials have announced.

Qualification rounds for the tourney, to be played from June 27-30, will be 18 holes.

The 32 low scorers in the qualifying rounds will form the 32-man championship flight, and the remainder of the field will be formed into 16-man flights. In the championship flight, the winner will be determined by 72 holes of medal play, while in the other flights, 18-hole match play will decide the winners and runners-up.

Bernier Defeats Wilburn In Return

In the feature event of a seven-bout ring card at the Airborne battalion outdoor arena last Friday night, Bill Bernier of the 15th Infantry regiment won a split decision over Cliff Wilburn of the Rocketts in a Class II middleweight clash. Bernier, knockout victim of that Bowie had beaten his opponent three weeks ago. This time stayed away from the husky fighter in other bouts, Ken Schiele destroyed, obviously trying to win on points. Bernier was never really in trouble as he forced Wilburn into a missus time and again. Meanwhile, Bernier used his potent left jab for the two-fold purpose of holding off the rushes of Wilburn and piling up his margin of victory.

Medics Bow To Unbeaten Divarty Nine

An undefeated Third Infantry division artillery diamond nine ran their winning streak to three games when they collected nine hits and took advantage of six medic errors to chalk up a 16-4 triumph over the Provisional Medical group in a seven-inning tilt on Bullett field last week. Right-hander, went untroubled by the win after sending 13 opponents back to the dugout on strikeouts and allowing only four hits.

He was relieved in the fifth by JOJO Hughes who gave up two hits and allowed four runs in the remaining innings. Keystone-sacker, Ed Poe led off the winners in the hitting department with two for three, including his second homerun of the season.

Left-fielder Tony Hardy racked up two hits in four appearances batted in a run and scored twice, while right-fielder Kieber Campbell, got three hits in five times at bat, and batted in four runs. Hughes made two of the Medics' four hits in a first-inning single and the other a triple to right in the fourth. His blow sent two seamstresses across the plate, but one score was nullified when the runner was called out for failure to touch third base.

30th Trouces Special Troops

The 30th Infantry regiment diamond nine trounced the Third Infantry division special troops squad in a league meeting on Gowdy field last Friday night. Frank Marone pitched four and a half innings for the infantrymen, giving up five hits and walking three batters before being replaced in the fifth by Elmer McLeod, the winning hurler. McLeod finished six special troops, gave up no runs and issued no walks during his half-game stint. Marone went the route for the losers striking out nine, allowing six safeties and giving up six bases on balls. He also was charged with a balk. George McDonald with two for four led the infantry batting parade, while third-baseman Tom Fauci was special troops' top batters with two for three. Eight and eighth frames for their final score, while the special troops brought in one in the third and one in the fifth.

Being built in the old pine Lodge Officers club, the new recreation center will offer numerous opportunities for relaxation, including weekly dances and social activities. Opening of the club has been delayed immediately following the completion of the renovation of the structure. Noncoms in the area have volunteered in the time and services to advancing the project, and are currently repainting and repairing the building.

M-Sgt. Stewart Freyburger of Headquarters company, Third division, in charge of the project, revealed that the finished club will consist of a main lounge, a reading room, refreshment room and an outdoor area. A nursery will be provided for children of members. Efforts are being made to secure a name band to play at the club on opening night, and local musical organizations already have been set up for subsequent dance dates.

3rd Division CMH Holder Soon To Leave Benning

The Third Infantry division was notified to report to Washington, D. C. where he was presented the coveted award by its ranks when Sgt. Paul L. Bolden, Service company, 30th Infantry regiment, leaves Fort Benning for new assignment. He will assume his new duties with the Alabama Recruiting district, with headquarters near his home in Huntsville, Ala.

Sergeant Bolden has vivid memories of the weeks following D-Day, June 6, 1944. "On D-Day I was happy: I made private first class. On D-Day plus six, we landed on Omaha beach. I didn't have much time to worry about that little stripe," said Sergeant Bolden.

Sergeant Bolden, a squad leader, had already earned for himself a bronze star and a silver star for gallantry. On Dec. 23, 1944, Company E of the 120th was pinned down by concentrated fire from the Belgium. Sergeant Bolden and a fellow soldier voluntarily moved into the blockaded house which was the German headquarters. Covered by his buddy's fire, he threw a series of grenades into the house, and then walked to the door while he was still under fire. He threw it open and fired into the platoon of SS troopers inside. Before he was wounded, 20 of the Germans had died under his fire. He withdrew from the house, waiting for the remainder of the group to surrender. When nothing happened, he went back and killed the remaining 15 troopers. At the time of his discharge in 1945, after a succession of stays at army general hospitals, he did not know that his gallantry had won him the CMH.

Clothing Plans Complete For ROTC Camp At Harmony Church

The actual allowance will be composed of three parts. The first will be the initial allowance for clothing which a soldier receives upon joining. The second will be a monetary maintenance allowance, which will provide for the upkeep of the enlisted man's clothing throughout his term of enlistment. The third part will be an allowance for reenlistees, and will be granted in the same manner as the primary allowance. The monetary maintenance allowance is to be based on the cost of replacing and maintaining the initial issue of clothing and may change from year to year. Therefore, the amount of allowance will be published annually, indicating the annual credits and monthly breakdowns. If an enlisted man desires to draw items in excess of his regular issue, he may do so against his maintenance allowance. The accounts of the individual's monetary clothing allowance will become a part of his service record and will accompany him wherever he goes. The Price Is Far Too High

The loss of a hand is a mighty high price to pay for picking up an unexploded grenade. Yet that's what it cost one Fort Benning officer last week who tried to do away with a grenade to prevent some of his men from becoming its victim. His motive was commendable, but no commendation can bring back his hand. To render a weapon harmless is the job of experienced and specially trained personnel. And the most experienced personnel in handling explosives are men of the Ordnance department. Anyone finding explosives should immediately mark the spot and telephone the Ordnance department which will send out a team to destroy the weapon. One wrong move and disabling injury or even death awaits the person making that wrong move.

The most prevalent type of "explosive" accident occurring at Fort Benning, however, comes as a result of lighting black powder taken from used shells. Here again there is a prescribed procedure which should be followed: dig a ditch, pour the powder into it, ignite, and wait until it has burned itself out. Any other method can have disastrous results.

According to the safety office, improper burning of powder causes approximately one accident each week. Fortunately, they have not in the recent past been serious, but that doesn't mean they can't be. In the spring of 1948, two soldiers were badly burned, one dying as a result, after the presentation of a field problem when they failed to follow the prescribed procedure for burning unused powder rings.

There are at Fort Benning during any twelve-month period approximately five accidents as a result of improper handling of souvenir or personal weapons. These accidents usually occur in quarters and could easily be avoided if the user would remember one of the first things he was taught during his early days in the army: Do not point your weapon at anyone, including yourself. The only time a trigger should be pulled, except when the weapon is being used, is when it is being cleaned. Too many do not heed this warning.

Just last week a lieutenant on occupation duty in Japan picked up his roommate's weapon, pointed it at his body and pulled the trigger. His accidental death was reported upon arrival to his family, who at the time of the accident were aboard ship on their way to join the lieutenant. He would not today be dead if he had exercised his knowledge of weapons.

An example of what can happen when a soldier sees an object on the ground which he thinks will make a good souvenir took place last year at Fort Bragg, N. C. A recruit picked up a rocket, not knowing what it was. When told to get rid of it, he, unfortunately, threw it too close to a group of soldiers. When the smoke from the explosion cleared away, five of his fellow soldiers were dead.

It's up to the individual soldier to insure that such accidents don't recur. He should acquaint himself with the proper procedure for handling weapons. He should never touch any object he finds in the training areas of the reservation. And above all, if he has children, he should warn them of the danger of handling weapons and explosives. It is too costly to be careless with death-dealing military weapons and ammunition.

Report From Washington

Set Citizenship Course, Overseas Policy

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

New Regulations governing length of overseas duty tours is before NMR officials for final approval. Policy will be to assign men overseas who have had little or no foreign service.

The House has passed the new uniform justice code, applicable to all armed services, and providing for a civilian court of military appeals. The measure is now before the Senate.

The Air Force's new Reserve training program will increase the number of individuals in training from 42,000 to 135,000 and triple the number eligible for training pay, now 25,000.

The Air Force acquired its first five-star General when President Truman recently signed the bill conferring the title of General of the Air Force, on Gen. H. H. Arnold, wartime Army Air Force Commander.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, has approved a design for silver-colored cap visor embroidery to be worn by Air Force general officers.

The House Armed Services Committee is considering legislation authorizing construction of two experimental submarines to cost approximately $41 million.

The army and air force have published regulations prohibiting the taking of "polls," straw votes or opinion surveys among their members unless specifically authorized by the army or air force.

World-wide examinations to select candidates for the Navy and Marine Corps Academy and College, Preparatory at Bainbridge, Md., will be held July 20.

Army special regulations in preparation will provide that separated officers or warrant officers are not eligible for enlistment in grade one, solely on the basis of commissioned active duty status on March 22, 1948, unless enlisting on the day following separation. This provision will not affect the eligibility of former officers holding permanent grade one warrants to revert to grade one enlisted status.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has approved a plan for co-ordinating mapping, charting and related activities of all armed services under jurisdiction of a Photographic and Survey section of the Joint Intelligence group.

A Good Name Is Better Than Great Riches

BY CHAPLAIN ERNEST F. KENDLE

In the hurry and hustle of our times, we are prone to allow ourselves to be burdened with too many trivial things. We are apt to forget that the most valuable things are not famous of the moment, but are things that abide for eternity. The most valuable things of life are not the things that we possess, nor "our daily bread." The most important thing is not how much we have but what we are. Much of our life seems to be colored by the passing hour when we ought to be using some of our time to build character, to create a good name.

The Wise Man of old wrote: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." (Prov. 22:1) A good name is not created in a moment, but takes much of our living experience to build. We all look back over our past and bring to mind the individuals whose names are above reproach. Why are their names above reproach? Is it not because they have understood the call of the moment and have built a lasting good character?

You are responsible for your character, whether it is good or bad, and you cannot blame others for your shortcomings. You may fool some people as to your character, but there are two people you never fool, God and yourself. God evaluates you by what you are, by what your character is. You know what you are and you have to live with yourself the rest of your life and through eternity. Thus the necessity of building a good character is of paramount importance. If you work with God in this important matter, you cannot fail.

In the building of good character there are two important factors; a clean mind and a pure heart. A mind that is always cluttered with filth certainly does not become a basis for good character. I remember a man from my high school days whose mind was always spewing filth through his mouth. That is all I can remember about him. I would rather my name be completely forgotten than to be remembered in that manner. We are always saying "cleanliness is next to Godliness." We apply this to our physical bodies and to material things about us. It should be applied more appropriately to our minds.

Back of a clean mind must be a pure heart. Solomon of old said, "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." (Prov. 4:23) Jesus said, "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God." (Matt. 5:8) From your heart, the inner man, comes the intent and purposes of life. In a inner man your attitudes are formed. Give diligence to keep your heart pure.

There is an eternal future for the individual with a Godly character.

Your Red Cross

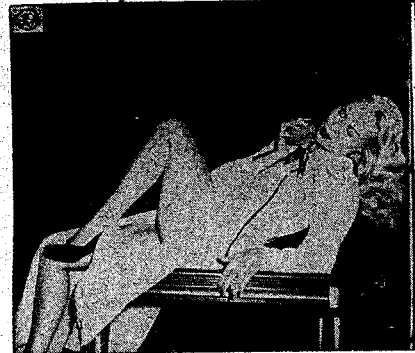

Best Commander Is Also Best Informed

BY MURRAY HILL

An officer who has achieved the distinction and been given command and responsibility is expected to know all the answers concerning the welfare of his men. This, of course, is impossible, but he should know where to get the answers. One of the greatest helps to the commanding officer is the American Red Cross—but this is little help to him unless he is thoroughly familiar with army regulation 630.75, governing the operation of Red Cross in military camps; the various army circulars and local post directives concerning Red Cross activities. Every commanding officer should acquaint himself with the above. In addition, we cordially invite him to visit our office and discuss Red Cross activities, limitations, and possibilities.

One thinks of the Red Cross as rendering aid to the serviceman, but the good commanding officer does not overlook the fact that the Red Cross offers excellent opportunities to officers in helping them to solve the problems of the men in their command.

OH, JOY!—Joy Lansing, cover girl and television starlet, was one of the feature attractions with an all-star Military Air Transport service show given recently for military personnel in Newfoundland. It can be authoritatively stated that the 19-year old bombshell certainly brought 'joy'.

The little child was sitting demurely on the couch, watching her mother smoke a cigarette. Her little nose wrinkled, and in her pale blue eyes was an expression of childish distaste. "Finally, unable to stand it any longer, she burst out in her heek are you going to learn to inhale?" "Sign in the mess hall: 'If the steak is too tough, get out. This is no place for weaklings.' Then there's the yard bird who would fly down his trousers, but he can't get the sergeant to go swimming. "How old are you?" Asked the funeral director of the aged mourner. "Going on 99." "Going on 99?" "Hardly worth going home, is it, sir?" "Get! Please close the window my stool has blown off the table four times." A beach is a place where people lie on the sand...about how rich they are in town: "A lucky GI is one who has a white and cigarette lighter both working. It's funny that a woman who can spot a blonde hair on your coat at ten paces can't see a pair of gassy dogs. War Vet: "Did you serve during the war?" "Ex-GI: "I sure did." War Vet: "What theater?" Ex-GI: "Theater No. 1." There is an old Scotch proverb which says: "Don't marry for money; you can borrow it cheap." "That's the guy I'm laying for, muther, he's her as the farmer crossed the yard. A lady opening her ice box spies a hobo there. Lady: "What are you doing in the ice box?" Hobo: "This is a Westinghouse." Lady: "Yes." Hobo: "Well, I'm just Westing." She: "How was your party last night?" Voice on the phone: "We're having a swell time." Woman's voice on the phone: "Hello, how are you long beard?" Man: "Not especially, lady, but I'm a long ways from bald." "I want a present for an old gentleman for Christmas," she said. "Yes, ma'am," replied the clerk. "Something nice in the?" "No; I've got a long beard," the customer explained. "When the clerk murmured thoughtfully, "Perhaps a fancy vest might be suitable?" came back the answer. The clerk sighed heavily. "Well, how about carpet slippers."

Wing Scouts

Sgt. James Henley, coeductor of the Wing Scouts on a tour of the link trainers last Saturday, and they had a very interesting morning under the tutelage of M. Sgt. Mack Cox and Sgt. Judge Miller.

The girls were taken through the series of operations the pilots have to go through, learning use of controls, flying up and back and landing. The girls piloted their ship from instrument panel and radio instruction.

Link trainers, the girls learned, take you through all the operations of real airplanes, yet you never leave the ground. One of the girls in the group, a visiting Scout from Columbus, was unexpectedly surprised to recognize her uncle among the passengers to alight from one of the planes which had just come in from Washington while the girls were at the field.

Next Saturday, the girls will visit the Airborne department, where they will receive parachute instruction under the direction of Capt. Barry E. Albright, assisted by Maj. J. T. Murphy. Following their Airborne visit, the Scouts will go over the pontoon bridge by truck into Alabama where they will have a picnic lunch.

A number of parties have been given recently for Mrs. Richard Manning, who is leaving soon for London, England. Mrs. A. C. Bailey, Mrs. John Baskin and Mrs. Robert Bull each entertained in her honor at their quarters last week.

Capt. and Mrs. M. E. Bullock left yesterday to attend the ceremony for honor students at the University of Georgia, where their son, Dick, was awarded honors for high scholastic average and was elected to Phi Kappa Phi fraternity. He will graduate from the university June 10.
