1950 TRACK AND FIELD MEET... Shown above are a few of the big moments during the Infantry Center's track and field meet at Doughboy stadium last Saturday afternoon.

Hall, running as anchor man for the Dragons, breaks the tape in the last lap of the one-mile relay.

ODDS ENDS

by STEVE BOLAND

The 1950 track and field meet held the sports spotlight last weekend, and cindermen will continue to draw attention for the next month at least.

Last Saturday afternoon's meet at Doughboy stadium revealed some of the hidden talent on the post and with these standouts, plus a few veterans, the Doughboys should be well represented in the Third Army meet at Fort Bragg, N. C., May 9-10.

Coach Jimmie Edmonds, Chuck Hall and Gene Thomas, all veterans of last year's 15th Infantry regiment's champions, the Dragons, came through in their specialties, as was expected, with the result that they garnered half of their team's points.

Bob Kuehnleisen of the Airborne battalion gave Edmonds plenty of competition in the pole vaulting event and with a bit more practice should stay up there with Edmonds at the Third Army meet.

Two standouts in the long distance running events were discovered in Walt Johnson of the Area Service unit team and Paul Alexander of the 15th Infantry. Johnson took two easy wins in the 880-yard run and one-mile jaunt, and along with Hall and Edmonds, was the only individual to take a first place in two events.

Alexander showed plenty of stamina by coming in for a strong finish in the grueling two-mile run.

Gene Thomas of the Dragon team, Tom Beard of the ASU team and Terry Scott and Jack Bales of the Student Training regiment team all showed plenty of ability in the afternoon's field events.

Thomas, although he didn't break a record in the javelin throw, has done a better job of heaving the spear than anyone in Infantry Center and Third Army meets of the past few years.

Dick Snyder and Jack Shackelford of the ASU squad displayed speed and form in taking first and second places respectively in the 220-yard low hurdles with C. Centry of the Dragons doing fine all the way in the 120-yard high hurdle event.

The meet was run off in a smooth and lively pace, thanks to the coordination of the officials, coaches, participants and even the fans who were well behaved.

Another event which is drawing post-wide attention is the Officers club golf tournament which got under way April 1, and is well ahead of schedule.

The first round of play in the tournament which was scheduled to be completed by last Saturday, was finished long before, with the third round starting last Monday afternoon. This accomplishment can be credited to the tournament committee and the cooperation of the participants.

Of the 32 men who qualified for the championship flight only seven remain. This total will probably dwindle down to the two finalists by this weekend should the tournament play continue at its present pace.

In the way of baseball news, the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion team is hotter than a firecracker, and if the pitching holds up, the Troopers will have little trouble in retaining their baseball crown.

Joe Silcox, the Troopers' star hurler, recorded the first no-hit game of the year at Gowdy field last Wednesday, April 12, when he blanked the 'Bama club, 7-0, in a seven-inning contest.

Bob Cronin, the Troopers' other star right-hander, showed that he isn't taking a back seat to anyone by pitching two wins over a pair of Flint River clubs. Bob blanked the Zuluata team with two hits Sunday, April 9, for a 6-0 victory, and hurled a three-hit, 8-1 win over the Outback club this past Sunday.

Johnny Graves, Bobby Hoffman and Earl Kendall of the Medics, combined their hurling talents to shut out the Lawson field Flyers 7-0 without giving up a hit. Medie Coach Bernie Hammaraker believes he has a well balanced club that will give the other teams in the Fort Benning baseball league a headache this summer.

John Seymour's Infantry School detachment Profs dropped an 8-3 decision to the Airborne battalion in a seven-inning practice game at Gowdy field last Wednesday, but came back last Sunday afternoon to take an easy 10-0 win from the Pine Mountain team.

15th Dragons Cling To TIC Track Title

Hall, Edmonds, Johnson Only Two-Time Winners

The 15th Infantry regiment's cinder squad had little trouble in retaining its Infantry Center track and field title during the meet at Doughboy stadium last Saturday afternoon.

Paced by their coach, Jim Edmondson, and fleet-footed Chuck Hall, the Dragons piled up a total of 58 points to cop the title for the second consecutive year.

The Dragons' closest competitors were Coach Bill Durham's 1500th Area Service Unit Provisional group trackmen with 40 points. Third place went to the Student Training regiment squad with 17 points, followed by the Third Infantry division Special Troops with nine points, the 73rd Heavy Tank battalion with six, and the Infantry School detachment with H. Phillips, the only entry, garnering one point when he placed third in the discus throw.

Chuck Hall and Jim Edmonds of the championship team and W. Johnson of the ASU team were the only entries to take two first places.

Hall's first places were picked in his specialties, the 110- and 220-yard dashes. Edmonds' points were picked up in the pole vault and the high jump, while Johnson's honors were attained in the 880-yard and one-mile runs.

Gene Thomas, another Dragon star, took first place in the javelin throw with a record toss of 168 feet and four inches, placed second in the broad jump, and was also a member of the 15th Infantry's winning relay team.

The Student Training regiment was well represented in the field events by Jack Bales, Bob Kuehnleisen and Bob Scott of the Airborne battalion and Terry Scott of Sixth company. Bales placed first in the broad jump and got two third spots in the high jump and the javelin throw.

Tom Beard, ASU strongman, was another standout. He took top honors in the discus throw.

Medics Cop 7-0 Win Over Flyers

The Provisional Medical group baseball team blanked the Lawson field Flyers 7-0 during a practice game at Gowdy field last Friday night.

John Graves, Bobby Hoffman and Earl Kendall, who shared mound duties for the Medics, registered 13 strikeouts and issued no bases on balls in keeping the Flyers from reaching first base throughout the seven-inning affair.

Medic Manager Bernie Hammaraker used 16 men in the lineup with 15 hitting safely. The Medic hitting was paced by Bobby Kopp, Graves and Kendall, who combined for doubles in picking up the only extra base hits of the game.

The Medic squad off fast in garnering three runs in the first inning. With one out, Kopp doubled, Hoffman doubled to score Kopp, and Kendall doubled to score Hoffman. Kendall advanced to third on Willie Griffin's grounder to second and scored later on a passed ball.

Officer Bowling League To Hold Pin Tournament

The Fort Benning Officers' Bowling league has announced that a bowling tournament will be held, starting April 24, at the Main bowling alleys.

All officers, regardless of whether they have competed in regular season play, are eligible to participate in this tourney. Should the event prove successful it will be conducted as an annual affair, league officials stated.

Championships at stake include singles, doubles and all events, with the winners in each declared the officers' bowling champion in that event.

This will be a flight tournament with the 16 top bowlers comprising the championship flight and the remaining participants, in groups of 18, delegated into approximately 10 flights.

Final phase of the tourney will all events winner. The teams will be comprised of eight teams of five men each to be selected from the top 40 men who have already qualified for the all-events stage.

Entry fee charges for the tournament have been set at $1 for all single entries, $2 for all doubles entries and an additional $1 for the qualifying participants in the all-events phase.

The Officers' Bowling league will hold its annual party at the Officers' Mess May 5 at which time awards will be presented to the individual and team winners in the regular season's league play.

Doughboys Prep For Ring Bouts

Fort Benning's Doughboy boxing team, under the supervision of Coach John Wilson, has been undergoing intensive workouts the past two weeks in preparation for the coming matches with Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Jackson, S. C.

The Doughboys will leave tomorrow for a scheduled match with the Braggmen at the Fort Bragg field house on Sunday. They will go to Fort Jackson the following day for a match against the Red Devils on April 25.

First home matches will be scheduled return matches with the Bragg and Jackson squads set for sometime in May. All home fights will be in the new Briant-Weils field house.

Coach Wilson has announced that the team making the trip to Bragg and Jackson will include Flyweight Billy Fitzpatrick, Bantamweight George Allen, Featherweights Billy Jones and Bob Woods, Lightweight Norman Clark, Nacido MCF, Jr. and Garretson Miller, Heavyweight Felix Rondo, Middleweight Larry Jones, Light-heavyweight Nestor Palermo, and Heavyweight Bill People.

The Dough squad consists of veterans with the exception of Palermo, Garretson and Miller, who are the only newcomers to the squad.

Pvt. Robert L. Lands and A. Maurice Leveille, of the Infantry School's Army Extension Course department, were promoted last week to privates first class.

The two enlisted specialists are assigned to Company C, Infantry School detachment.

Warrick Hurls 10-0 Shutout

Walt Warrick, Infantry School detachment curve ball artist, blanked a visiting team from Pine Mountain, Ga., 10-0, with two scratch hits last Sunday afternoon at Gowdy field.

During the seven-inning game, Warrick registered 13 strikeouts and allowed no bases on balls.

Paced by Herb Lauve, first baseman who connected for two doubles, the only extra base hits of the game, the ISD hitters rapped out seven hits and had the advantage of the Pine Mountain errors in garnering the 10-0 win.

The entire Prof lineup went to bat in the first inning to pick up an early 4-0 lead. Two more runs were added in the fourth inning, with the four final tallies coming across the plate in the sixth.

Maj. Burman Back From Leavenworth

Maj. John H. Burman, commanding officer of the 32nd Medical Detachment, has returned to Fort Benning after completing the officers' associate course at the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

During the temporary absence of Major Burman, the 32nd was commanded by Capt. James O. Burling.

15th Infantry Unit Wins Drill Title
A close order drill platoon from Company D, 15th Infantry regiment, was judged the best-drilled group of the regiment's first battalion during a recent contest, and was presented a trophy by Lt. Col. Robert M. Blanchard, battalion commander.
The contest, which featured hand-picked men from all four companies of the battalion, was conducted on the concrete tennis court in front of Third Infantry division headquarters.
The competitive drills were staged with view toward improving the caliber of honor guards furnished by the battalion for civilian and military dignitaries visiting Fort Benning. The battalion, it was pointed out, is frequently called upon to furnish honor guard details.
During the contest, each platoon leader was given a card listing 25 close-order drill commands to be given to the men. The platoon leaders were charged with the responsibility of giving their troops all the commands without moving them off the tennis court.
Following the prescribed portion of the drill, the platoon leaders were allowed 10 minutes in which to put their units through any maneuver they wished.

Requirements Established For Assignments to CIC

Requirements for assignment to the Counter Intelligence Corps (CIC) have been announced in a Department of the Army regulation.

Mandatory prerequisites require that applicants be citizens of the U. S. and be assigned to units within the Zone of the Interior and not alerted for overseas shipment, have no record of conviction by court martial or by a civil court for other than a minor traffic violation and have a military record free from information which would prevent security clearance.

For officers, additional mandatory prerequisites call for a college degree and 24 months of active duty or will be required to sign a new category statement if qualified. They must be between the ages of 24 and 36, except that officers in the grade of major must be under 42; in grade of lieutenant colonel under 51, and in grade of colonel under 55. Any officer requesting CIC assignment must have had at least one year of active commissioned service, according to the regulation.
Warrant officers must have two years of college or its equivalent and be between the ages of 24 and 42. Requirements for length of active duty service remain the same as those for commissioned officers.
Enlisted men must be high school graduates or the equivalent, must have 24 months to serve in current enlistment, or fulfill this requirement by extension or discharge and reenlistment, and be between 24 and 42 years of age.

Waivers of any of these mandatory prerequisites except the one requiring U. S. citizenship may be requested, according to the announcement, providing the applicant has demonstrated unusual ability or outstanding performance of duty sufficient to compensate for the lack of one or more of the mandatory requirements.
Qualifications which are desirable but not mandatory include fluency in one or more languages and training in legal or investigative activities as well as more advanced education than the minimum mandatory standards required in the case of warrant and noncommissioned officers.
Officers and warrant officers may apply through channels to the adjutant general if desirous of the Counter Intelligence Corps assignment. Enlisted men should first obtain an interview with the agent in charge of the nearest CIC field office. This can be arranged through the commanding officer of the unit to which the individual is assigned.
If the interview is favorable, the enlisted man may then apply through channels to the adjutant general for assignment to CIC. Detailed information concerning the submission of applications may be found in DAR 800-148.

Costly 40 Winks

Sergeant's Drowsiness Pays Off—But Only for Taxi Man

His yearning to grab an extra 40 winks last Wednesday morning cost Sgt. William R. Bright, Company G, 15th Infantry regiment, slightly more than $1 per wink. But a Columbus taxi driver didn't mind too much—he picked up a $43 fare on the deal. The incident involving Sergeant Bright, the cab driver and a motor convoy somewhere enroute to Fort Bragg, N.C., came about when the sergeant overslept at a crucial time. Sergeant Bright's prolonged snooze came while his buddies of the 18th Infantry regiment prepared themselves for a motor trip to Fort Bragg where the unit is acting as the "aggressor" force in the air transportability maneuver, Operation Swarmer. When he awoke, Sergeant Bright's first thought was of keeping his record of no AWOL's intact. So, he snapped out of his drowsiness, flagged a taxi and started off in pursuit of his outfit. The chase, which covered a distance of almost 100 miles, ended two hours later when the cab carrying Sergeant Bright caught up with the 15th Infantry convoy just outside of Macon, Ga. Sergeant Bright then forsook the comfort of the taxi's plush seat for the rougher but less expensive continuation of the journey to North Carolina. "I never was AWOL, and this wasn't going to be the first time," said the sergeant in tones of self disgust.

QUESTION: WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE MPs WHO DIRECT TRAFFIC?

PVT. JAMES PATTERSON, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, 3490th Area Service unit, I think they do pretty good directing traffic, especially around the school during school hours. I guess I have never been stopped by the MPs for a violation.

TOUSIGNANT

...Sgt. CL. RAYMOND P. TOUSIGNANT, Company B, Infantry School detachment; I think the MPs are doing a good job, and I think also that they get rid of traffic off the post a lot quicker than they used to do. I have been driving on the post for over two years, and I think they are doing a much better job.

M-SGT. JAMES E. LEE, Company A, Infantry School detachment: I have been driving on the post over two years and all the MPs I have ever had any dealing with have been very nice. Some of the younger men seem to let their authority go to their head a little, but as a whole I think the MPs are doing a swell job of traffic direction.

VAN L. EDWARD H. SULLIVAN, Company B, Infantry School detachment: I think they are doing a good job for the amount of traffic they have to put up with. As a whole, the MPs are very courteous and polite to the people who drive on the post.

SULLIVAN WELSH

SGT. 1ST CL. J. WELSH, Company A, Infantry School detachment: I think the average MP does a good job, but I think as a whole they are a little too stuck on themselves for the good of the drivers. If they would practice courtesy as much as they preach courtesy the traffic situation would be much easier to handle on the post.

OPL. CHARLES W. BIRD, Company A, Infantry School detachment: I think they are doing a good job for the amount of traffic they have to handle. I think the MPs on the main gate are especially polite. When I first came on the post, I had to stop and ask directions and they were very courteous.

$104 Added To ARC Fund

Infantry Center Red Cross officials reported this week that the 1950 fund-raising drive netted an additional $104 this week, bringing the total to $24,430.67, or more than 101 percent of the goal.

Murray Hill, Red Cross field director, said the additional donations trickled in from units which have not yet attained their quota. He also said that only four units remain on the below-100-percent list.

The annual drive closed officially on March 31, after four weeks of intensive campaigning among Infantry Center units. The original goal of $23,932 was set on the basis of $1 for each person on duty at the Infantry Center.

Student Officers Arrive for Course

Several officers have already arrived at the Infantry Center to attend the nine-months advanced officers class which starts in September.

They have been placed on detached service with various units on the post until the class begins.

Officers Leave For Short Duty

Five Infantry Center officers left Fort Benning last week for temporary duty at various army posts throughout the country. One other officer returned from temporary duty.

Lt. Col. Robert M. Hamilton, Infantry School Tactical department, and Maj. Knut Raudstein, Airborne department, John W. Kirshat, Staff department, and Harris T. Mitchell, Academic department, left over the weekend for Fort Bragg, N. C., to assume umpire and observation duties in Exercise Swarmer.

Colonel Hamilton and Majors Raudstein and Kirshat will act as special observers during the April-May airborne maneuver. It was said that Major Mitchell will participate in a special umpire in the 60,000-man training operation, a major step in improving combat tactics of air-launched invasions.

Lt. Col. Paul Hamilton, Infantry School Communication department director, left for Fort Sill, Okla., for a conference with officials of the army's Signal corps. His visit, officials here said, was to join other communications leaders in establishing the need for more advances in the field of radio.

Lt. Col. John F. Hill, Infantry School's Tactical department, returned last week from a five-day conference at Fort Bragg where he met with officials of the 82nd Airborne division artillery. The colonel's visit was to discuss and observe recent developments in airborne artillery.

Truman Concludes Benning Visit

AND HE GIVES MORE... Cpl. John G. Tovar, left, Headquarters company, 30th Infantry regiment gives a pint of blood during the current campaign... his third this year. The 29-year old combat veteran, who says he enjoys making the corporeal contribution, plans to make "several" more donations during the year. Some 153 men from Tovar's outfit also turned out the same day last week to donate a pint of blood.

Dignitaries View Troop Efficiency

Fort Benning returned this week to the tasks of a workaday world after having the role of host last week to the nation's highest-ranking civilian and military dignitaries.

The April Joint Orientation Conference, which brought 60 civilian leaders of industry, business, education and medicine here for three days, was climaxed last Friday when President Harry S. Truman, accompanied by his defense leaders and law-makers, visited the Infantry Center for eight hours.

The historic visit has never been equaled in Fort Benning history. The list of military and civilian guests here last week represented a cross-section of the country's uppermost bracket of lawmakers and military strategists.

The President, who was making his first visit to Fort Benning, was accompanied by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, the joint chiefs of staff, several members of his cabinet, the armed forces secretaries and a dozen members of congress.

Shortly after his arrival Friday morning, the 65-year old chief executive was whisked away to Blue field where he witnessed the Third Infantry division in parade. Thousands of spectators cheered the commander-in-chief as he was presented a 50-pound replica of a combat tank by new Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., following the review.

See Battalion in Attack Later in the morning, the entourage drove to Helmer trail where the Infantry School staged the spectacular Battalion in Attack demonstration. Hundreds of troops, tanks and air force fighters planes treated the President to one of the armed forces' most graphic displays of armed might.

At a luncheon at the Officers' mess, the President assured scores of guests that there would be no third world war, but that the United States should keep alert and prepared for any eventuality. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, presented the "Chief" with a "Follow Me" plaque, a symbolic gesture which was mounted on mahogany. Quipped the President: "I think probably I'll put it in the pocket on the back end of my train and see if I can't get a few Benning medals."

Rushed to Hook range, the President witnessed an after-noon demonstration of the Infantry freepower. Noticeably impressed by the marksmanship of participating troops and effect of new weapons, the President frequently whispered into the ears of his armed forces secretaries.

Under the new pay scale, the new and higher rental allowances is adequate for family and dependent care, officials claim. Under the former pay system, a small rental and family allowance was combined into one sum, whichever is earlier.

Col. H. J. McChrystal, Third army information officer at Fort McPherson, Ga., said that major unit commanders should survey future replacement needs for writing specialists. He said that quota requests should be forwarded.

The information officer said that qualified personnel, depending on past experience and education, would be sent to the Armed Forces Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., for a course of training. Officers receive a 14-week course in the school, while enlisted men receive a six-week course.

Bell Aircraft Chief Raps 'Short-Sighted Economists'

The president of Bell Aircraft Corporation sharply criticized "short-sighted economists" last week as the cause of the United States' inadequate airpower.

Lawrence D. Bell, founder and owner of one of the country's largest wartime aircraft plants who attended the three-day April Joint Orientation Conference here, lashed out at "those who worry about the cost of victory, when they should be worrying about the cost of defeat."

"At present," the Buffalo, N. Y. executive asserted, "Russia has almost got us outstripped in the production and quality of combat airplanes. From what I can learn, they are building more and more each day, and are rapidly equalling, if not passing the performance of our planes."

Decoy Named Student Top Kick

He said, however, that war with Russia is not necessarily imminent. He explained that the United States has every opportunity to keep expanding and developing research programs.

Congratulations Are in Order

Fort Benning troops are to be commended for the excellent showing they made during the visit of President Truman last Friday. Every demonstration was presented with the usual efficiency for which the Infantry School has become renowned...

The Military Police handled a difficult job with facility. Although every car entering the post Friday had to be cleared, there were no traffic bottlenecks. The President's route of march from Lawson Air Force Base to Blue Field was well policed, and we are confident that even the Secret Service men found nothing objectionable to their eyes.

Third Infantry Division officers and enlisted men put on a show of precision drill at Blue Field which was one of the best ever presented at Fort Benning. It was a show which should make them all prouder than ever to be members of that famed wartime fighting unit. Certainly the President must have been thrilled to see the men he, as Chief Executive, commands, pass in review. There is no more spectacular sight than marching troops, holding high their massed colors and U. S. flags. And the marching was never done more spectacularly or by a better looking group of men. Everyone of them looked like a real soldier.

The Infantry School demonstration was as always, stupendous. Such shows of military might as the "Mad Minute" and the Battalion in Attack no doubt assured the President that the Infantry packs a mightier wallop than ever before.

We would like to add our congratulations to those of Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, Infantry Center Commanding General, who said this week:

"Every element on the post did its job. I have only the highest appreciation for the troops who made the show such a hit. I wish there were some way I could express my appreciation for the excellent job."

Unification Proves Beneficial

Despite a reduction in the military budget for Fiscal Year 1951, defense officials are of the opinion that the Armed Forces will be in better shape next year than they have been since the end of the war. Indeed, the total strength of our combat forces will be the "greatest since the completion of demobilization following World War II."

Most of this reduction is traceable to the unification program which Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson has pursued vigorously since taking office in 1948. Because of his efforts to eliminate unnecessary expenditures, duplication has been eliminated, overhead reduced, and efficiency improved. As a result of these efforts, we now have in the making a completely unified Armed Force.

Our national security rests on a nucleus of highly trained forces backed by trained reserves and a mobilization plan that can be put into effect quickly. Further, it is most important that the strength of the Regular Army and Reserve components bear out that basic concept of our security. According to the President, the Army should maintain ten divisions, 48 anti-aircraft battalions and other combat and service units. Military strength should average 630,000 in the Regular Army and 605,000 in Reserve components. That is the present defense plan.

In order to insure that Reserve training continues at the present rate and in some cases at a greater rate—more money has been allotted the civilian components. At the same time, however, plans are under way now to combine small, separate Reserve units with larger units to reduce operating costs and increase overall efficiency. Further, it is now compulsory for all Regular Army officers to serve at least one tour of duty with civilian components, either Reserve or National Guard.

The far-reaching effects of the unification program and the more compact and efficient Reserve training program will, in the end, result in the situation the Defense Department is attempting to create: a small but strong Regular Army supplemented by a trained Reserve force.

It would be disastrous to wreck our economy by foolish military expenses, but it would be equally disastrous to be penny-pinching. The present plan strikes a happy medium.

The population of the United States multiplied most rapidly after the Civil War; the increase was almost threefold between 1860 and 1910.

By 1960, the American farm population will shrink to 18 per cent of the total population, the Twentieth Century Fund predicts.

U. S. dairy cattle have been increasing at the rate of 2-000,000 every 10 years.

By 1960, women will probably outnumber the American male population by about 700,000, the Twentieth Century Fund predicts.

How Does Your First Choice Rate With God?

We always have a first choice. If you don't believe this, give a child a dime, take him to the five-and-ten, and tell him to buy exactly what he wants. He will either impulsively select the first thing he sees, or very nearly select the first thing he sees, or very nearly select the first thing he sees, or very nearly select the first thing he sees...

How do our choices look when we measure them by such rules as the following? "Inasmuch as ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

"If a man compel you to go with him one mile, go with him two."

"Provide things honest in the sight of all men" — even in the sight of God.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me." "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength — and thy neighbor as thyself."

"He who would be greatest among you let him be the servant of all."

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness — and all these things shall be added unto you."

"He who is not for me is against me." Neighbor, what is your first choice? A mighty warrior once said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." And he did.

lasting are those things which we are putting first? Will they, or their effects, benefit us — even though eternity? Do they build up, or tear down, our character, and even our bodies? What, after all, are the rules which govern our choices — "me and mine" or "thee and thine"?

How do our choices look when we measure them by such rules as the following? "Inasmuch as ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

Well-Known Greek Contralto To Appear At Post Theater

Elena Nikolaidi, famous Greek contralto, will be presented in concert at the Main Theater at 8:30 p.m. April 29 by the Fort Benning Community Concert association.

Nikolaidi, born in a small town near Athens, Greece, sang in a church choir to begin her career. She was 15 when she sang for the directors of the Athens Conservatory, and was awarded a six-year scholarship. During her final year at the conservatory, she made her official debut as soloist with the State Orchestra. For this important debut, she chose to give the first performance of a work for solo voice, chorus and orchestra by the best-known Greek composer, Kalamiris, now director of the conservatory.

In 1936, she was selected for a scholarship to study voice in Vienna. Shortly after her arrival, she entered and won an international vocal competition. Then followed an audition by Bruno Walter, at that time director of the Vienna State Opera. He immediately engaged her to play the role of Princess Eboli in "Don Carlos" which opened the 1938 opera season. Nikolaidi learned and prepared the role in a fortnight, then sang it opposite Alexander Kiprianov who portrayed King Phillippe. This performance marked her first operatic triumph in Europe. She has remained a leading member of the Kammeroper in Vienna. She has often in all the leading opera houses of Europe—Prague, Dresden, Munich, Budapest, Alexandria and Cairo. Returning to Athens in 1949, she was a sensation in the "Carmen" late in the autumn, she gave her first recital in London.

In January 1949, Elena Nikolaidi made her New York debut and was an instant success. She was engaged by ABC to sing on a coast-to-coast program. She was also engaged to sing at Carnegie Hall in December. Her orchestral repertoire includes many songs by Strauss, Mahler and Marx. In recital, the contralto sings music of the classical masters, the great Lieder and art-songs, as well as contemporary works, folk music and selections from her operatic repertoire.

After her debut in New York, Nikolaidi's concert schedule was completely filled for 1949-50. Miss Nikolaidi's appearances during the summer did much to confirm the sensational reputation established by her initial performance.

Brown-Du Rant Ceremony Solemnized at Hartwell, Ga.

Teen Topics

BY PIE HEAD

Last Friday the buses were empty almost, 'cause President Truman came to the post. To school for a day we said goodbye, and enjoyed freedom with a happy sigh. To Nancy's yard to develop a tan, went the twins, "Tootsie," Joan, Jeanie and Ann after the Third Infantry's snappy response. (Polly and Elsie were there, too).

The Skeet club Friday was the scene of a dance, and all had fun, we could tell at a glance. Some danced very fast, more danced very slow, and Clifford and Pat gave a jittershow. Bobby and Sylvia were at the affair, and Wallace and Ernie were also there.

The Air Scout's hayride was Saturday night, much to the boys' supreme delight. We saw Roger and Betty, Helen and Hill, also Pedro and Pat and Don and Jill, George and Ann, Jerry and Nancy F., Elvin and Nancy all sang merrily. D. S. was there, too, without a date, and Backy and Bobby shared the same fate.

Now tennis, I see, is the popular sport, and many spend time over at the court. But the swimming pool opens the first of May, then the courts will be bare, I'll venture to say!

The two soldiers were trying to impress one another with their war records. Said the first:

"Why, man, I fought with General Patton!"

"What about?"

Plans Pondered To Build Homes In Arctic Region

Members of congressional committees this week conceded publicly that long-term plans in Alaska, and other parts of the United States defense hemisphere, were weakening the muscle of our strong arm.

Last week, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, wartime army commander and present head of New York's Columbia university, told a senate investigating committee that "it was a clear mistake not to provide the quarters, that would permit a small and reasonable garrison" at main outposts in the Arctic regions.

Backing General Ike up were scores of other statisticians and military planners. One army official said that 83 per cent of officers and 40 per cent of enlisted men in Alaska were married, yet almost half of this figure have been confronted with housing difficulties.

Estimates have been made that indicate Alaska needs 7,000 quarters for married army and air force personnel. Only 1,619 can be promised during the next year.

A plan now under consideration would make it possible to build 3,531 new homes in Alaska. The idea is to give private building leases on military land and get them to construct homes on it at moderate rates. The cost of these homes, which would be Federal Housing Administration type, would be in the neighborhood of $13,000.

This construction idea is labeled the Wherry Act, and only authorizes building homes up to $9,000 in Alaska, however, to make it virtually impossible for engineers to erect any livable quarters for less than three times that much.

The tremendous cost is involved, an engineer corps official said, in the labor, weather and geographic location. Labor must be brought from the United States and homes must be built for them. The weather is available only during certain times of the year in limited quantities, the ground is most always frozen, and when building operations start, the ground rapidly turns into mud.

Brush Up on Navy Jargon, Mac—Your CO's an Admiral

If for nothing more than to get in good with the "old man," men of the Airborne Battalion's Company P had better learn some salty navy jargon.

At least that seems most advisable this week after news was released that Capt. Donald C. O'Rourke, company commander, has been commissioned an admiral—in the Nebraska navy.

The expansive inland state has applied a switch to the legendary Kentucky colonel idea: it's Nebraska admiral.

It was back in June, 1947 while Captain O'Rourke was stationed in Nebraska, that he came into the state's spotlight as a likely candidate for "official" appointment as an admiral.

LAST YEAR, THE STATE BEGAN issuing warrants to well-known national and international personalities, making them top naval officers in the fictitious navy.

At last unofficial count, some 20,000 dignitaries far and wide had received their appointments, which included many army generals. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the nation's farthest commander, was one of the first to have his name put on the Nebraska rolls, Col. Robert Taylor, famous screen star, countless state governors, innumerable congressmen and legislators and hundreds of other lesser-known personalities have received a large piece of stately parchment proclaiming their rank. Captain O'Rourke said his appointment came about quite unexpectedly, for he can remember nothing outstanding about his service in Nebraska.

"I rather think," the 33-year-old army paratrooper said, "that many men who served in Nebraska at one time or another have received the same thing."

THE STATE'S NAVAL PROJECT is no Johnny-come-lately affair, though it must be conceded that it has picked up considerable momentum lately since Kentucky stopped commissioning its colonels.

The project began about a dozen years ago under the acting governor, Ted Metcalf. Succeeding governors have kept the admiral at top strength, and almost every day some deserving person is thus honored. On one banner day recently, 82 Republican congressmen were made admirals.

And don't think Nebraska can't swing a navy of its own into action if it really wants to. A bona fide Nebraska navy was authorized by an act of congress during the Civil war and was established to help Nebraskans in their fight against Indians and guerrilla bands. Ships of the Nebraska navy were ordered to sail the Missouri river, the Platte and other Nebraska waters, hauling supplies and men where necessary. The act was never rescinded or modified.

3 Wacs Receive ISD Assignments

Three Wacs were transferred to Fort Benning recently from Camp Lee, Va. for assignment to the Infantry School detachment.

They are Pvt. Kay D. Carlson and Caroline A. Emond, former members of Company K, 204th Area Service unit, and Pvt. Marianne Gates, former member of the Student detachment, Adjutant General's School. They were assigned to Company A, for duty with military personnel section.

Cpl. Bohannon Assigned

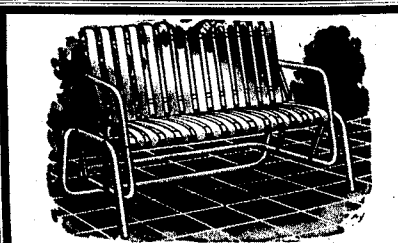

Cpl. Edward P. M. Bohannon, recently transferred here from Headquarters and Headquarters company, Second Infantry regiment, Fifth Infantry division, Fort Jackson, S. C., has been assigned to Detachment headquarters, Infantry School detachment, and placed in detached service with Company A, for duty with overboard.

Rare Proficiencies Attained By Food Service Sergeant

As one of only 10 food service career field enlisted men promoted to master sergeant out of the 812 who took the recent examinations for advancement in MOS 0824 (mess steward), the achievement of Sgt. 1st Cl. Hoke Sewell, an instructor in the Third Army Food Service School, is outstanding, according to Food Service School officials.

Not content with his score of 1,459 out of a possible 1,500 in the examination which he took for promotion to master sergeant, however, Sergeant Sewell also qualified for promotion to grade E-7 as a master in a cutter, MOS 1037, one of only four men in the entire army to qualify. Under existing regulations his promotion to master sergeant was effective in the MOS in which the highest score was made.

Sergeant Sewell, a veteran soldier with 16 years service to his credit, entered the army in 1930, serving four years in Panama during the early depression years. He entered the food service field shortly after shedding his civilian clothes—although in those days "food service" was not even a name—attending a cook and baker school in the Canal Zone in 1931.

After his Panama hitch, Sergeant Sewell came to Fort Benning as a cook, and served there until 1933, at which time he took another crack at civilian life as a civil service employee, a step which he calls "the biggest mistake of my life". Re-enlisting in 1942, Sergeant Sewell came right back to Fort Benning, where he has been ever since, save for temporary duty in 1943 attending one of the first courses ever offered in dehydrated food preparation.

In looking back over almost 20 years of food service experience, Sergeant Sewell says that the present army programs as a tremendous improvement over methods in use years ago. He believes that one of the finest things about the food service field today is that the future of enlisted personnel is infinitely brighter than it once was.

Now, Sergeant Sewell said, a cook can go as high as sergeant first class, and in the mess administration and management field, can rise to master sergeant or even warrant officer status.

The sergeant is currently instructing food service school classes in mess administration, mess management, cooking and meat cutting, confiding his work to the academic phases.

Club Schedules Top Attractions

Service club No. 2 has scheduled enthusiastic about the dance, two top attractions for and promises a large turnout: troops of the Sand hill area. Enlisted men who plan to attend the May Day dance are asked to wear either a suit and necktie or complete Class A uniform as master of ceremonies. Formal attire may be worn if desired. No one will be admitted unless properly dressed for this dance, according to the service hostess.

A novel decoration motif will add a note of luxury to the dance. A huge plastic and crystal ball is being made and will be suspended from the ceiling, which will include two special highlights with spotlights as it revolves slowly. Sandwiches and punch will be served, and music selected from Columbia girls will be furnished by a dance combination from the Third Infantry.

On Thursday, April 27, the "Tip Top Revue", a soldier asked to wear either a suit and necktie or complete Class A uniform as master of ceremonies. Formal attire may be worn if desired. No one will be admitted unless properly dressed for this dance, according to the service hostess.

Two other noncommissioned officers of the Third Army school also received promotions as a result of successfully completed career field examinations. Sgt. Melvin Applebaum was promoted to sergeant first class in MOS 0824, mess steward, and Cpl. William J. Reuss was promoted to sergeant in MOS 060, cook.

Mission of the laundry unit is to train personnel as laundry technicians, mechanics and supply and administrative personnel for the support of approximately three divisions in combat. It also provides qualified cadre in the event it becomes necessary to activate additional laundry companies of this type.

As an example of the type of work the unit performs, take Pfc. John Doe's bundle of laundry. After arriving at the 537th, it is checked in at the receiving tent. Then the marker opens the bundle, checks the pieces against the laundry list, assigns a marking pin to the bundle, individually pins each garment, and sorts the clothes into different categories for washing.

FROM THERE IT IS MOVED ALONG to the laundry units for washing, using a prescribed formula for each category of material. Washing takes from 19 to 24 minutes. Its next stop is at the extractor, which removes 70 to 80 percent of the water by centrifugal force. This procedure takes from seven to 10 minutes. The laundry then goes to the tumbler dryers, which completely dry the clothes within 20 minutes.

Its last stop is at the sorting tent. Here all the clothes are brought back together and the pins removed. Pieces are rechecked against laundry lists and then stored until units or individuals return to pick the bundles up.

The 537th is a semi-mobile outfit, capable of starting operations within 30 minutes after arrival at a destination. The company consists of three platoons with four complete laundry units each. Each platoon has 23 enlisted laundry technicians and operates on an eight-hour shift. The units are capable of operating independently, and a maintenance is handled by unit technicians.

Classes in the operation and maintenance of laundry units are held during the days the laundry company is not actually operating, so that each laundry technician will be trained to handle all jobs of the laundry unit in case of loss or absence of any technician. During the classes the men also learn how to prepare the washing formulae, water contents and complete knowledge on setting-up of the laundry unit.

Ex-Benning Civilian Completes Course

Maj. James G. Herring, a native of Columbus and formerly a civilian administrative assistant in the Infantry Center Ordnance section, has been graduated from the ordnance officers' advance course of the Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving ground Md.

Major Herring worked here as a civilian for four years prior to his entry on extended active duty as a first lieutenant in 1946. Major Herring returned to his civilian duties here until he re-entered the army in 1948.

USAFI Program World's Largest Educational Setup

By Armed Forces Press Service U. S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) today is not only the world's largest educational institution, but probably the only one with a global enrollment.

Its pupils are scattered from New York to Berlin, and from San Francisco to Tokyo. More than 146,000 servicemen are registered in this mammoth armed forces educational program—a total which tops the combined attendance of the nation's four leading universities.

The nerve center of the program is in Madison, Wisconsin, home of the Armed Forces Institute. The institute offers some 200 assorted correspondence courses plus 150 self-teaching courses, complete with textbooks, homework and the inevitable end-term examination. About 200,000 tests are graded every year.

To augment this varied educational program, the armed forces offer off-duty courses taught by civilian instructors with materials furnished by USAFI. In 1949, the army alone had 3,700 such classes at 1,286 education centers throughout the world.

For servicemen who find the atmosphere of a seat of learning more congenial, USAFI has lined up an impressive array of 59 cooperating colleges and universities who offer some 6,000 extension courses to fit every need and taste.

Since 1942—when USAFI was born—more than two million servicemen have taken courses

JERK OF THE WEEK

Odious Acts Win Theater Pest Title

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of features on Fort Benning troops who make themselves disliked because of their failure to observe the basic characteristics of gentlemen. Our cartoonist is Sgt. 1st Cl. Willie Wright, Infantry School Quarterly artist.

The dubious honor of being the most obnoxious individual on the post belongs to Pfc. Artemus F. Wobblehead, the Theater Jerk, who was nominated by unanimous vote of the Selection committee as Jerk of the Week.

Wobblehead is the fidgety loud mouth who swaggers down the aisle about five minutes after the movie has started, usually accompanied by one or two cohorts, and stumbles over everybody getting to a seat in the middle of the 12th row, during which process he comments in loud tones about practically everything unimportant.

AFTER SEATING HIMSELF AND UNWRAPPING his light lunch, composed of several candy bars done up in just the right kind of paper to make the loudest rustling and crackling noises and a bag of popcorn, Wobblehead slouches down with his knees jammed up tight against the seat in front of him and starts wriggling like a dog squirming around on a wet blanket.

When music is being played, friend Wobblehead appoints himself bandmaster, beating time with the toe of his G.I. boot on the bottom of the seat in front. If he thinks at all, which is highly unlikely, he probably imagines that the paying customer in front enjoys the simulated Swedish massage he receives through the medium of Wobblehead's boot tapping.

ANY SCREEN FLASH WHICH SHOWS A good looking girl—and what movies don't—evokes raucous grunts, groans and whistles from our midget-minded friend, not to mention a running critique of the entire picture as it unfolds on the screen. Then when the show is over, Pfc. Wobblehead carefully removes the large and juicy wad of gum which he has been chewing to relieve the pangs of hunger and deposits it on the concrete floor in just the right location for the person on either side to pick up neatly on the sole of his shoe as he leaves the theater.

Our hats are off to you, Wobblehead. It's not just anybody who can achieve such profound depths of misconduct and thoughtlessness. It takes a first class, grade A, dyed in the wool jerk, and brother, YOU'RE IT!

Col. John D. Frederick, a top-ranking member of Army Field Forces board No. 2, will leave the Infantry Center about July 20 to report for duty at Bremerhaven, Germany. It was revealed this week.

Colonel Frederick, who at various times has been executive officer, chief of testing and chief of the analysis and coordinating department in the board, was high-level official in the 1946 Bikini atoll atomic test, Operation Cross Roads. At that historic test he was in command of the Army Ground Forces Joint Task Force No. 1.

Before going to the Bikini test in 1946, Colonel Frederick was with the Infantry School's Logistics department for about six months. It was shortly following that duty that he went to the Pacific test.

After completing the year-long duty at Bikini, Colonel Frederick reported to the field forces board here as chief of the testing section.

Colonel Frederick, who was graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in 1918, served three months with occupation troops in Germany following World War I. During World War II, he spent 39 months overseas in various capacities as post adjutant and supply officer.

The 52-year-old Springfield, Ill., native holds the Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit medal with oak leaf cluster, Silver Star, Purple Heart, Army Commendation ribbon and the Combat Infantryman's badge.

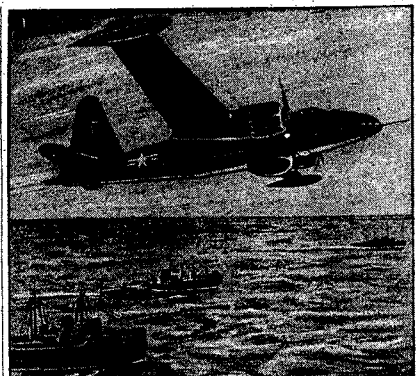

His exact overseas assignment is not yet known.

NAVY'S NEW SUB-KILLER . . . Navy patrol squadrons will soon be flying a deadly new anti-submarine airplane that can spot a snorkel miles away and launch torpedoes that invariably find their target. It's the Lockheed P2V-4, a direct descendant of the famous "Truculent Turtle," world's long-distance record holder. As sketched (1), the new sub-killer can patrol vast ocean areas, flying up to 6500 miles without refueling. Special compound engines take additional energy from exhaust gases and feed it back to the propellers. If there is a snorkel sticking up in the ocean, the P2V-4's radar operator (2) will likely find it. His long-range radar covers three times the area and has four times the power of earlier models. Speeding to the area (3) indicated by radar scopes, the plane disgorges up to 36 sonobuoys (4) which alight on the water in a large circle around the sub. In the water, the sonobuoy automatically drops a hydrophone and erects an antenna. The hydrophone picks up sound from the sub and broadcasts (5) the signals to the plane overhead. The intensity of these signals indicates which sonobuoys are nearest the sub. Over the target, the plane further pinpoints the sub with a magnetic airborne detection (MAD) device (6) which is a big magnet that records (7) disturbances caused by the sub in the earth's magnetic field. MAD functions even though the sub's engines are stilled and it lies quietly just below the surface. Having pinpointed the enemy, the P2V-4 can blast it by simultaneously launching torpedoes, dropping bombs, and firing its heavy battery of 20 mm. cannon. And to make doubly sure that it is not firing at the wrong target, the P2V-4 has a giant spotlight which is automatically focussed by special instruments.

Johnson Orders Study of Budget

WASHINGTON (APPS) — Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson has ordered the joint chiefs of staff to study the present defense budget to determine whether more funds should be requested for additional aircraft procurement.

If the staff budget study should show a shortage of funds for air procurement, Mr. Johnson will recommend increased allocations to the President and the Budget Bureau, he indicated.

The $2 billion for aircraft procurement contained in the budget is the figure agreed on by the joint chiefs when the budget was formulated, Mr. Johnson said. But the rapid development of jet planes and other scientific advances have thrown the figures somewhat out of line with requirements for 48 modern air groups.

Mr. Johnson said he wanted to "get the answers" on the sum needed to equip 48 groups.

Woman Who Comforted GIs Greeted in New York

By LEX KEANE, FOX NEWS
An attractive platoon leader woman sat in the Garden Lounge of the Queen Elizabeth gazing wistfully at the New York City skyline as the giant liner was being warped into her pier on the Hudson River.

For Mrs. Lily House, this was a dream come true. This was her first visit to the United States and, furthermore, she was going to meet her brother, whom she hadn't seen in nearly 30 years.

MRS. LILY HOUSE
... GI's Friend

Mrs. House is well-known to most servicemen. During World War II she met and entertained thousands and thousands of GI's at the Victoria hotel which she and her husband operate in Plymouth, England. They were all nice boys.

One in particular, Chief Ship's Clerk Charles S. Clark, USN, now the "boss" of the Perkins in the Pacific fleet, lives in Mrs. House's memory. Mr. Clark contacted a New York newspaper and told of her planned visit to the U. S. He asked that a little recognition be given Mrs. House when she arrives.

The little, rosy-cheeked Englishwoman became quite flustered when photographers began posing her for pictures. Still, she graciously followed their instructions and maintained a smile as flash bulbs began popping.

In a soft voice, with a pleasant British accent, Mrs. House told of her own two sons. Both saw service with the British merchant service.

Her brother-in-law of the numerous times she assisted American servicemen, financially or with refreshments and entertainment.

Enlisted Group Assigned Duties

Luceau went to Special Services section and Sgt. 1st Cl. Kenneth R. House and Pvt. Harry S. Kreipe were placed on overseas duty. M-Sgt. Chauncey J. Wright was assigned duty with the Quartermaster section, Sgt. R. C. Childs with the Ordnance section, and Wac Pvt. Doris N. Kerr with the Signal section.

New assignments in Section II included M-Sgt. Bennie Livingston, Pfc. Hugh Pettigrew and Walter E. Burton, Jr., and Pvt. Louie Anderson, who were assigned duty with the Ordnance section, and Pfc. Herbert A. Miles, who went to Ordnance section. Pfc. Charles Galewood was assigned to the Quartermaster section.

Sgt. 1st Cl. Willie Jenkins Jr., and Pvt. Phillip E. Ellison were assigned duty with the Special Services section, and Cpl. Horace L. Hayes, John E. Bowen, Buzz Willes and Robert Logan, Jr., Pfc. James H. Williams, Lewis C. Pilon, George M. Thorsdahl and M-Sgt. E. Rowland and Pfc. Willie Tyone, Jr., Richard E. Hansen, Richard Rooster and Pvt. Herman S. Clark were given duties with the Transportation section.

ODDS AND ENDS

By STEVE BOLAND

The Military Pentathlon, scheduled for Saturday, is the first to be conducted by the Infantry Center. It was inaugurated by the army last year and was a great success at the various stations where this new competitive event was held.

Stamina, skill and spirit are the main features required by any candidate who wishes to participate in this type of grueling competition. Spirit is a great factor throughout the meet with stamina and physical conditioning necessary in the four-mile cross country run and the 100-yard swimming race. Skill and accuracy are prerequisites for the other three events which include firing the .45 caliber pistol and the .30 caliber M-1 rifle and the grenade throwing contest.

A participant who is able to complete this one-day meet regardless of whether he wins can be well commended for his efforts.

Art Hyman, Doughboy track and field coach, aided by Assistant Coaches Jim Edmonds and Roger Smith and Trainer Lon Godino have been putting the Doughboy elder candidates through intensive workouts in preparation for the coming Third Army meet scheduled for Fort Bragg, N. C., May 8-10.

Fort Bragg track and field squads have dominated the area meets for the past several years but hopes are running high in the Dough camp this year and it is hoped that the Fort Benning team will bring the area title home.

Competition is getting hot in the fight for the Officers' club championship with Defending Champion John Meaton standing a fair chance of retaining his title.

Three rounds have been completed, putting all nine flights in the quarter-finals stage with the fourth round and the finalists to be determined by the weekend.

The Doughboy boxing team made an excellent showing at Fort Bragg, N. C., last Sunday night considering that Coach John Wilson had only two weeks in which to get his squad into shape. The Braggmen took the match by a 6-4 count, but it is hoped that a reverse decision can be expected when the Braggmen meet the Doughboys in a return match sometime next month.

Fort Benning's baseball league is scheduled to get under way in about three weeks with most of the teams entered in the league pretty well set and improving with each practice game.

Bernie Hammaker's Medic squad gave the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion team a rough time last Thursday afternoon at Watson field with the Troopers barely taking a close 7-6 win.

The 30th Infantry regiment's diamond activity got under way with three practice games last week. The lads won their first game against the 15th Infantry regiment's Dragon's while losing the next two to the Medics and the Infantry School detachment.

With the completion of the playoffs for the Officers' Bowling League crown, which was won by the G-3 Reglers, the league immediately started in on its first annual bowling tournament with the 1950 singles, doubles and all-events championships at stake.

The singles crown was won by Harold Browning of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion. Browning was also a member of the Doughboy team which represented Benning in the Third Army pin tournament at Fort Bragg in March, and along with John McGovern took the runner-up spot in the Third Army doubles rollout.

Vern Ashbacher, who captured the top spot for the highest average in the Infantry Center league, also captured the same distinction in the Officers' Bowling league.

ANCHORS AWEIGH!—Navy will boost and tackle these and catch passes and be a fighting team. Points out the new head coach, Eddie Strickland.

Benning Sets First Military Pentathlon Eligibility Open To All Personnel

All army personnel of Fort Benning will be eligible to compete in the post's first military pentathlon next Saturday. The five events to make up the pentathlon are a four-mile cross-country run, a 100-yard swimming race, .45 caliber pistol and M1 rifle firing and a grenade throwing contest.

Contestants will be required to compete in all five events. One point will be awarded for first place in each event, two points for a second place and three for a third.

In case of disqualification in an event or failure to finish, last place points will be given to the participant.

The individual with the lowest total score for all five events will be declared the winner of the meet. Awards will be presented to individuals placing first, second and third.

Officials will be athletic officers of battalion similar units, levels or qualified representatives.

The 10 individuals with the lowest scores will be selected to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army military pentathlon to be held at Fort Bragg, N. C., May 10.

The cross country race the participants will be given a military map of the course and will be allowed to study it for 15 minutes prior to the start of the race. Three reporting stations and a finishing station will be marked on the map as they are located on the course. Competitors will be started individually on a staggered schedule and will proceed to each station in order, thence to the finishing station. Scoring for this event will be based on the fastest time in which the complete course is run.

In the .45 caliber pistol event, pistols will be furnished by the participants' organization, and clips and ammunition will be furnished at the firing line. Each contestant will be allowed five rounds for zeroing in purposes before firing for records.

During the slow fire phase, the "I" target will be used with five shots allowed on each of the 15- and 25-yard targets. No time limit is involved.

The "I" target will again be used in the rapid fire phase, but only two shots to be squeezed off in 11 seconds for the 15-yard target and 15 seconds allotted for the 25-yard target.

In the M-1 rifle competition, no time limit will be necessary for the slow fire phase. Contestants will be furnished rifles by their organizations, and ammunition and clips will be supplied at the firing line. Five rounds may be used for zeroing in.

An "A" target at 200 yards will be used in the slow fire phase and five rounds will be fired in the prone, sitting, kneeling and standing positions. A loop sling is required in all but the standing position where a hasty sling will be used.

based on the number of direct hits in each target area.

A second course will consist of four vertical targets. Throwing for this course will be 20 yards from the targets. Each participant will be allowed three throws at each target, starting with the left target. Scoring on this event will be based on the number of direct hits in each target.

In scoring for both of these courses, the contestant will be given one point for each direct hit on the targets, with 27 the maximum number of points that can be scored on both courses.

Tiger-Gator Meet Expected to Draw

If campus interest can be used as a yardstick, a large crowd will witness the Florida-Auburn track meet which begins at 2:15 p.m. Saturday in Cliff Hare Stadium.

Chief topic of buzzing student conversation is the mile and half-mile races in which "Nutini hasn't actually tried to run a really fast mile yet." Florida Track Coach Percy Beard said "I'm just as anxious to see him let out as anybody else." Overton ran his best mile last year in a time of 4:17.1 which will be bettered if he expects to break the tape ahead of his smooth-gaited Chilean opponent.

The Auburn star expresses no concern over his race with the black-haired Nutini. "I believe I can beat him," Overton says frankly, "but regardless of what he does I'll try for the best mile I have ever run."

The Florida team also has favorites in Scotty Peek, sprinter; Leroy Foucher, vaulter; and Jim Griffin, two-mile, 800-meter champion and has run a 4.11 minutes mile and a 1:53.6 minutes half-mile.

Officers' Bowling Toga Captured by G-3 Pinmen

The G-3 bowling team, paced by Capt. Gilbert C. Sawyer, Lt. Col. John R. Wright and Capt. Anthony F. Kutauskas, went undefeated in coping the double elimination playoffs for the Officers' League bowling crown April 19 at the Main bowling alley.

Six teams were represented in the playoffs, with the Airborne department emerging as the runner-up team.

In accordance with a league ruling, the two top teams in each of the three sections making up the Officers' league were eligible for the championship playoffs.

Teams qualifying for the double elimination affair included the Student Training regiment and Communication Section No. 2 of the first section, Communications Section No. 2 and the Infantry School detachment were tied for the second spot in the first section, necessitating a playoff with the Communications team winning out.

Staff No. 2 and the Army Extension course squad were tops in the second section, with the Airborne department and the G-squads representing Section three.

The playoffs started April 11. G-3 defeated Staff No. 2, the Airborne department, defeated the Student Training regiment, and the Army Extension course squad won out over the Communications section No. 2 team.

In Wednesday's games, the Provisional Medical group's diamond squad won one and lost one last week to bring its spring record to two wins against one loss.

An 8-2 victory was registered April 18 against the 30th Infantry regiment's team in a game played at Bullet field.

Bobby Hoffman, medic hurler, scattered four hits in going the route, while his mates, paced by Steve Cruce, garnered 14 hits from the infantry moundsmen.

Hoffman aided his own cause with a timely double. Les Wargo and Joe Davis handled the receiving duties for the Medics.

The Medics' first loss of the season came at the hands of the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion last Thursday afternoon at Watson field.

A last inning rally gave the Troopers their win after the Medics had held the upper hand throughout the greater portion of the game.

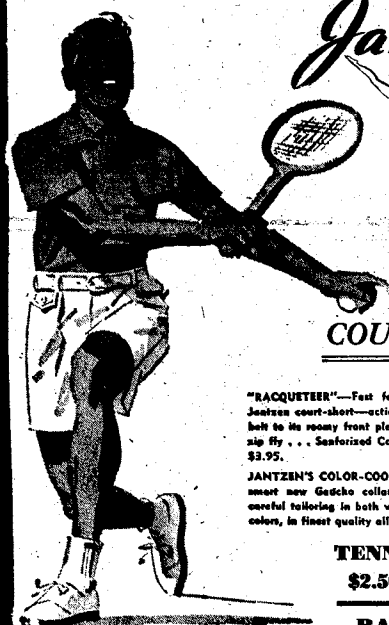

Floyd Kendall scattered 10 Trooper hits in going the route for the Medics, but three errors in the final stanza caused him to lose the game.

Victory Streak Halted
The volleyball team from Company B, Airborne battalion, stopped the Company A victory streak cold by winning three games out of five in a series last week.

CONGRATULATIONS... Lt. Col. J. W. McCafferty, right, commander of the 15th Infantry regiment's Third battalion, is congratulated by W. S. Coach Hyman, a West Point graduate, started a track while attending the University of Indiana and the United States Military academy. His track specialties were in the 440-yard run, the one-mile relay and the distance throw. Smith will be responsible for general conditioning of the team members. During a two year stay at Ohio State College and one semester at the University of Hawaii, he specialized in the shot put and the discus throwing events. Edmonds, who coached the 15th Infantry Dragons, the post championship squad, will also participate in the 100-yard dash, vault and high jumper. Edmonds has held top spot in these two phases of the competition and is expected to repeat in the forthcoming area meet. Godino, who holds down the job of team trainer and manager, is a well known sports figure on the post.

Chitwood Show Thrills Crowd

Displaying split-second precision driving, which had the sparse crowd on its feet most of the time, the dare devil of Jolie Chitwood put on a thrilling two-hour show Tuesday night at Idle Hour Park's Martin Stadium.

Working for most part with 1950 model Fords, and led by Chitwood himself, the dare devil entertained the small crowd with every trick that can be done with an automobile. The feature trick, jumping a new Ford 25 feet through the air, came off without a mishap.

To ease the tension of the crowd between the death-defying acts, two talented clowns had the fans in stitches with their acts of meriment.

Dodd Named Head of Tech Athletics

ATLANTA, April 26.—Bobby Dodd, who succeeded W. A. (Bill) Alexander as head football coach at Georgia Tech yesterday became his successor as athletic director.

Georgia Tech's athletic board of control attended the funeral of Alexander yesterday, and then met and chose Dodd. The meeting was already scheduled as the regular monthly session of the board.

Dodd will continue as head football coach.

The board also authorized construction of a $2,000,000 physical training center to be dedicated to the memory of Coach Alexander. It will have a total seating capacity of 16,000, with 10,000 seats for basketball games.

Tech president Blake R. Van Leer said financing plans have not been worked out.

Alexander, the coach for 25 years, died in his sleep Sunday morning. He was 60 years old and had been in failing health for a year.

HEIDELBERG, Germany (APPS) — The army's recreation center at Chiemsee in the Berchtesgaden area of Western Germany has reopened following extensive renovation.

The rest center is a facility of the European command providing the accommodations for entertainment and recreation at the lowest possible cost. The army maintains such facilities as a means of stimulating the welfare and moral of the military and civilian personnel on duty with the occupation forces.

The Chiemsee center is located on the autobahn at the foothills of the Bavarian Alps. It fronts on Germany's largest inland lake, thus providing excellent aquatic sports for all visitors.

Lt. Davino Gets Unit Command

First Lt. Louis Davino has assumed command of the 27th Transportation Car company, succeeding Capt. Ralph E. Dunn who has been ordered to the Far East command.

Lieutenant Davino, formerly a motor maintenance officer in the company, received his commission Dec. 20, 1944, following graduation from Officers Candidate School here. While overseas, he served with the American division as an enlisted man. He returned to the U. S. in July, 1944.

Later Lieutenant Davino served with the First Infantry division in Germany as transportation officer, returning to the U. S. in November, 1946, for assignment to the Infantry Center.

Three EM Report For Benning Duty

Three enlisted men from Fort Jackson, S. C., have reported for assignment to the Infantry School detachment.

They are Sgt. 1st Cl. Arthur R. Whittleton, Sgt. William O. Carlisle and Cpl. Kenneth L. Biggs, formerly of Headquarters company, 3431st Area Service unit, all of whom were assigned to Company A for duty with the Training aids department.

Cost Increased For Vacations At Rest Camp

The cost per man for a week's vacation at the Third Infantry division's rest center at St. Augustine, Fla., has been upped this year from $34 to $37, special services officials have announced.

The increased cost is due to several different causes, most of which will bring the individual soldier greater facilities. The largest single addition to the cost is an unlimited bus pass charge of $1.50, which guarantees each soldier transportation on any St. Augustine city bus.

The remainder of the extra $3 charge is being used to pay a state tax not in effect last year, and to pay hostesses who will remain on the beach all day long to aid soldiers in organizing games.

The first group will leave this year on May 12, and succeeding groups will leave each week throughout the summer season. In each group will be 140 men, selected on a quota basis that figures out roughly to two men from each company each week.

Special services officials expect the rest center will be even more popular this year than last, due in part to the added facilities.

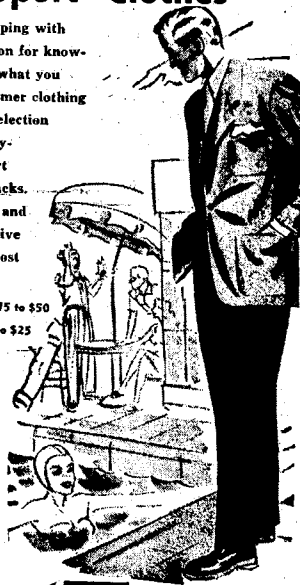

Now With Company A

Sgt. 1st Cl. Edward F. Towles has been transferred from Company C to Company A, Infantry School detachment, for on-the-job training with the Infantry Center G-3 office's Training Aids department.

Post Unit Receives New Enlisted Men

Three enlisted men, recently transferred here from the 3431st Area Service unit, Fort Jackson, S. C., have been assigned to Company A, Infantry School detachment, for duty with the Training Aids section of the Infantry School's G-3 office.

The men are Sgt. 1st Cl. Arthur R. Whittleton, Sgt. William O. Carlisle and Cpl. Kenneth L. Biggs.

Brothers Serve in Same Section

If "lucky is the place where brothers live together in peace," then the Military Police detachment, Section I, 3440th Area Service unit, should be a lucky place to serve in the army.

Two sets of brothers—Donald and Harvey Black and Myrlard and James Johns—are now assigned to the detachment.

The Black brothers enlisted in the army Aug. 17, 1949, following in the footsteps of an older brother who is now with the airforce in England. They are now undergoing training with the Mobile Post Patrol section.

The Johns brothers began their careers in the army at the beginning of World War II. Each has served four years with the Military Police detachment. Myrlard is on duty at the stockade.

Army Testing New Vehicle

NOON BELVOIR, Va. (APPS) — Rigorous military testing of a newly designed shop truck will be undertaken here by the army's engineer research and development laboratories.

The truck, based on the concept of a job-site maintenance, embodies many new features. The highly mobile repair shop consists of a 3-ton, 4x4 truck with a utilities type body, take-off driven welding and power generator, and oxy-acetylene cutting and welding equipment.

Among the ERDL's proposed features incorporated are a low silhouette and locked, pilferage-proof tool compartment for orderly tool arrangement.

Mythical Foe Unable to Halt Airlift Tactics

A force of 32,000 equipment-laden paratroopers from two airborne divisions today went into the final phases of this country's most spectacular maneuver in which an "enemy" was defeated by airlift tactics.

Exercise Swarmer, a combined Army, Navy, Marine corps and airborne training maneuver, brought together in North Carolina 60,000 servicemen to test the effectiveness of invading, supplying troops and fighting from the air. Each phase of the month-long exercise was based on tactics used in the recent Berlin Airlift.

Troop Drop Successful

Under the command of Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, 100 fighter and transport planes and thousands of "defending" airborne troops, raised upon an "enemy" territory by air and maintain invading troops by supplying them entirely from the air.

Before airborne troops dropped into the enemy zones, fighters and bombers from the airforce, navy and marine corps swept across the exercise area and

Benning Sets Forces Day Ceremonies

Some 8,000 Third Infantry division and Infantry Center troops are scheduled to participate in Armed Forces Day activities in eight southern cities, it was announced this week by G-3 officials.

The following is a list of the cities and the elements which will parade there on May 20:

- In Atlanta, Ga., the First battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment and Battery C of the 1st Field Artillery battalion will parade with other out-of-town units.
- In Macon, Ga., the 30th Infantry regiment's Heavy Tank company will participate in a parade.
- In Savannah, Ga., the 30th Infantry regiment's Third battalion will parade.
- In Montgomery, Ala., the 30th Infantry's First battalion will parade.
- In Mobile, Ala., Company E of the 30th Infantry will parade.
- In Birmingham, the 15th Infantry's First battalion will parade.

Post Praised By President

President Truman this week took time from his duties as chief executive to express personal appreciation to Infantry Center personnel for their part in the recent demonstrations he witnessed here.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, the commander-in-chief said, "I certainly appreciated the program which you staged for me at Fort Benning. It was most interesting and instructive and, I think, very helpful in our appreciation of the tremendous effort necessary to create a defense program that will work."

"Please express my appreciation," the letter continued, "to all the officers and men who participated in the demonstration."

General Burress added his own appreciation to the President's comments by saying, "All persons concerned can take justifiable pride in their accomplishments which have reflected most creditably on the army in carrying out its vital task for the nation."

Housing Problem Solution In Sight

Housing conditions for Fort Benning military personnel are better than at any time in the post's history, and prospects for complete elimination of the housing shortage in the near future are extremely bright, Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, announced.

One important milestone in the long fight for adequate housing was the completion last month of the final units in the $390,000, 80-family, non-communited officer apartments located in the Student Training regiment area. All units are now occupied, according to billeting office officials.

Custer Project Started

Another important step toward the goal of adequate family housing for post military personnel was the start, early in April, of the gigantic Custer Road Terrace housing project, a $5,500,000 FHA-approved development which will ultimately house 600 Benning families.

In connection with the Custer Road project, which will result in the movement of officer families from Benning Park

Jets May Resume Landing at Lawson

Jet fighter planes will begin operating in and out of Lawson airforce base next year after having been banned for more than a year. The Bayonet learned this week.

Maj. R. O. Johnson, base commander, revealed this week that a $400,000 resurfacing project, which begins in two weeks, will make possible increased jet aircraft traffic to and from the air installation, heretofore prohibited because of badly-rutted runways. He said that perfectly smooth runways are required for the 600-m.p.h. airplanes.

At the time of Major Johnson's announcement, a 200-man crew from the airforce's engineering depot at MacDill airforce base, Fla., was preparing for the 12-month task of grading and smoothing the huge asphalt strips. To date, some 23 equipment-laden railroad boxcars have arrived here with supplies for the mammoth construction job.

One of the runways involved in the resurfacing—No. 2-20 which stretches from the north-northeast to south-southwest across the airfield—has been closed for the past five or six months to all traffic. Major Johnson explained that it has been too bumpy even for operation flights. The other runway, which stretches from southeast to northwest across the airfield, will receive a normal resurfacing. One runway at a time will be redone. Indications are that No. 2-20, the most badly worn, will receive the first face-lifting.

According to plans outlined by engineering supervisors, the project calls for 15 inches of new runway to be added to the original ground base. Eight-inch concrete caps will be placed on existing terminal blocks, while a six-inch slag overlay and a two-inch bit-luminous wearing surface will be applied to absorb normal wear-and-tear.

Grass Seeding Planned
The resurfacing program will be augmented with beautification and seeding of adjacent grass shoulders. Runway lights will be also adjusted to the new grades.

A spokesman at the base said that present lengths of the three runways, including the two marked "adequate" for the types of planes being operated by the air force on routine missions. The huge troop-carrying aircraft used for airborne training, the C-119 and C-82, have long been used here.

Recently, President Truman's luxurious DC-6 The Independence plus more than a half-dozen four-engine C-54's and a Lockheed Constellation landed at Lawson for the history-making April joint orientation conference held at the Infantry Center.

The spokesman said that jet

Trooper Cited Posthumously

A posthumous award of the Army Commendation ribbon for meritorious service was made recently to Sgt. 1st Cl. Eugene S. Jones, formerly of Company H, Infantry School detachment, one of the 13 men killed last January in the tragic glider crash at Lawson field.

At the same time M-Sgt. Paul C. Blackstone, 3440th Area Service unit, was awarded the Third Army Certificate of Achievement upon retiring from the service.

aircraft, which occasionally stopped here on overnight cross-country hops before being banned last year, will be able to operate at the base after completion of the resurfacing. It was pointed out, however, it was doubtful that jet aircraft would ever be permanent.

School demonstrations require the use of more than a dozen jets, which are sent from Turner Air Force base near Albany, Ga. The new runways would eliminate the need for dispatching the planes from the south Georgia base and have them fly above the post, waiting for the appointed time to participate.

The project will require 209,932 gallons of asphalt, 56,714 tons of slag, 26,464 tons of hot plant mix asphalt and 4,330 cubic yards of concrete.

U.S. Troops

blasted enemy positions with mook strafing and bombing runs.

To add realistic distance to the problem, troop-carrying planes, made round-trip flights from North Carolina airfields to Atlanta, Ga., Greenville, S.C., and Nashville, Tenn., before actually striking their target.

Vandenberg Tells Purpose
Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, United States air force chief of staff and one of a score of distinguished military spectators in hand for the show, said that one of Swarmer's main purposes was to determine just what degree of air superiority would be necessary to permit operation in war of an aircraft such as supplied here.

In the opening phase of the operation, two new troop and cargo-carrying transports, a C-119 and C-74 Globemaster, were brought into the operation for testing. The Globemaster, largest troop-carrying transport in service today, is capable of lifting 125 fully-equipped airborne troops or 800 pounds of equipment.

More than 75 airborne troops were injured during the week-long combat engagement, most of whom sustained leg and body injuries due to airborne drops. Three fatalities were reported by officials, two of which were paratroopers. One paratrooper plunged to his death when his chute failed to open. Another, a member of a plane's crew, fell through an open hatch while pushing out equipment during an aerial delivery. An air force pilot was killed when his fighter plane crashed during a strafing run over the target area near Fort Bragg, N. C. Several air force planes crashed and burned during the first days of the

Benning Inspected By Army Engineer

John T. Parkinson, a Third Army engineer representative, was at Fort Benning last week for an inspection of maintenance and operation procedures of engineering heavy equipment.

Receipt of three new motor cranes of a type never before used on the post necessitated Mr. Parkinson's visit. During the three days he was here, he explained the operation and maintenance principles of the equipment to the designated operators. Mr. Parkinson returned to Third Army headquarters April 27.

exercise, but their pilots escaped serious injury.

No 15th Injuries Reported
Two battalions from Fort Benning's 15th Infantry regiment went through operations without any reported injuries. Acting as part of the "aggressor" force, the 3,000 Infantry Center troops were tactically assigned to putting up resistance to the invading paratroopers.

The maneuver, which was held in the area of Fort Bragg and Camp Mackall, N. C., is a pioneer in the army's plans to experiment with tactics utilizing complete airborne delivery of troops and equipment to an enemy stronghold.

Housing

to be installed in Benning Park quarters, replacing the present oil heating systems. Installation dates are uncertain, but the changeover will be accomplished well in advance of the winter months.

Colonel Bell also said that the concrete flooring which has deteriorated will be resurfaced with asphalt tile. Floors in the poorest condition will be repaired first.

The spotlight, however, is on the Custer Road Terrace development. Work has moved into high gear, and road grading has been completed. Approximately 65 percent of the sites have been graded, foundations have been laid for about 25 percent of the buildings, and framework is up on several units.

The main water line is in, and brick work on some of the units farthest advanced in construction will be started this week. With such a successful start, completion of the huge housing project according to schedule is virtually certain, Colonel Bell stated.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Sgt. Abrera, Former PW, Cited for Supply Efficiency

A 39-year old Filipino, who spent 19 months in a wartime Japanese prison camp before escaping, has been selected Soldier of the Week for outstanding achievements as unit supply sergeant for the 378th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance company.

Sgt. Leon Abrera, veteran of 19 years army service, was nominated by company officials on the basis of his accomplishments since his assignment to the Infantry Center in December, 1949. After arriving here from Camp Stoneman, Calif., Sergeant Abrera was assigned the duty of organizing a larger supply program within the 378th. Prior to Sergeant Abrera's arrival, supply facilities had been moved into a new building with fewer storage and operating facilities and a new fabric of organization and equipment had been established. During several unsatisfactory inspection ratings faced the sergeant as he undertook the task of reorganizing and improving the supply system.

SGT. LEON ABRERA
... Soldier Of The Week

BY EXERTING INITIATIVE, administrative skill and putting in many hours of off-duty time, Sergeant Abrera has produced an efficiently operated supply section which is said to be second to none. During his reorganizational program, he completely remade the property book, adjusted records for two previous years, and supervised the construction of new supply room facilities. Over a period of time he has also been able to bring the supply section up to adequate personnel strength.

Sergeant Abrera's assignment to Fort Benning in late 1949 meant his first trip to the United States, although he had been a member of the army for almost 20 years. A native of Manila, Abrera spent his pre-war army career traveling throughout the island-territories.

Major Caskey will observe aggression forces in their defense against airborne troops attempting to "capture" the imaginary island-objective.

Major Caskey is an instructor in anti-airborne tactics.

Japanese on Mindanao. His wife and two children were able to escape imprisonment by fleeing to an island to the south where they set up housekeeping with relatives.

After plotting with six comrades, Sergeant Abrera escaped from the enemy and fled into the hills for hiding. For several months he searched for his wandering family.

Sergeant Abrera, who is looking forward to a 20-year career in the army, hopes to get assigned to the Philippines to see his third child born shortly after he left for the United States.

Another Project to Improve Columbus-Benning Relations

The Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Public Information Office is instituting a program which it is hoped will help to improve Columbus-Fort Benning relations. Beginning next Wednesday afternoon, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce will be on hand in the Public Information Office weekly to be of help to local troops and to aid them in settling any difficulties between the G.I. and Columbus business firms. On Friday afternoons a representative of the Public Information Office will visit Columbus for the convenience of individuals, business firms and civic clubs.

This plan is an attempt to get down to the lower echelon and away from the brass. In the past, a soldier who had a complaint against Columbus either said nothing officially or reported it to his commanding officer. His commanding officer's main line of attack has been either through the Chamber of Commerce or the Citizens-Military Council, whose membership is composed of the military and civilian brass. Now, with the new plan in operation, it will be easier for the individual soldier to make his complaint in person to a civilian who is in a position to take the necessary steps to prevent its recurrence.

Chamber officials have repeatedly insisted that it is the honest desire of Columbus people to know of any legitimate complaints the Fort Benning soldier has against a civilian business enterprise so that corrective action can be taken. In order to accomplish this mission, however, the soldier himself must cooperate. If he feels he has a justifiable complaint, he should not hesitate to visit the Chamber of Commerce representative and discuss that complaint with him.

Doubtless, some of the accusations will be proven true. But most of the individual "gripping" the soldier does is based on rumor. He simply "heard that such and such a place discriminated against the soldier." For example, take the case of Elican John Doe who went to Columbus last Monday afternoon as he was paid. He got drunk in a bar, made a spectacle of himself, and had to be evicted. Immediately the rumors started. Immediately, the bar became a "gyp joint," a hideout of thieves, and so on ad infinitum. It is from such incidents as these that the rumors grow until they are out of all proportion to the true facts. The rumors are many times the efforts of the individual soldier to cast suspicion on the business proprietor and away from himself.

The Chamber of Commerce and Columbus businessmen have helped Fort Benning in countless ways. Most notable achievement was the building of adequate off-post housing, to accommodate the thousands of married military personnel who were living in high-cost or sub-standard apartments and houses. At present only a few hundred families are inadequately housed, and that situation will be abolished as soon as Custer Road Terrace is completed in the late summer.

We compliment the Columbus Chamber of Commerce on its new program and hope that the relationship between Columbus and Fort Benning will continue to thrive and improve as a result.

Nation Said Experimenting With Unorthodox Weapons

Reprinted from Army and Navy Journal

In a significant article this week before the American Chemical Society, Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Chief of the Army Chemical Corps, makes it clear that the United States is conducting extensive research and experimentation in unconventional fields of warfare. These include bacteriological, radiological and toxic agents. In our investigations primary emphasis is placed on means of defense against the employment of such weapons by an aggressor. General McAuliffe expressed the belief that the United States would not be the first nation to utilize such unconventional and potentially terrifying methods of warfare. Nevertheless, we cannot guarantee the motives and intentions of a possible enemy, so we must be prepared, if necessary, to retaliate with all the means within our power. Our ability to out-produce any other country may serve as a deterrent to the introduction of such weapons by an enemy in any future conflict. Toxic gases were used extensively in World War I, but not in World War II. However, it is a known fact that both Germany and Japan were prepared to use particularly deadly toxic gas in the last war, but were deterred from doing so only because they well knew that our capacity for retaliation was so great that the result would be certain disaster for them. The effectiveness of biological and radiological weapons is unproven in warfare, but we should explore their possibilities, and particularly the means for adequately protecting our soldiers and civilians against them.

Proposal to Oust Russia From UN Rejected

NATIONAL AFFAIRS — The State Department rejected the proposal to oust Russia from the United Nations made by former President Herbert Hoover this week. Foreign policy chiefs said such action offered no definite benefits and could prove harmful. U.N. spokesmen pointed out that Hoover's proposal is contrary to official American policy.

A Commerce Subcommittee in the Senate drew a statement this week from Frank Erickson of New York City that he breaks the law to make his $100,000 yearly income. Erickson made his track record public and denied the existence of any national gambling syndicate. The Senate Committee has ordered Western Union to cease accepting monitoring orders and has accused telephone companies of aiding and abetting gambling by furnishing service to book makers. The week-old strike of 10,000 telephone installation workers has been called off, ending the threat of a nationwide telephone tie-up. Charges of Communism against Owen Lattimore brought denials and affirmations in the Senate investigation committee this week. Demaree Bass an editor of the Saturday Evening Post said Lattimore had no leftist leanings. Leftist Mil-

1950 Career Field Exam Schedule Published

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The Army has published in Circular 22 the complete schedule of 1950 Career Field examinations, with deadline dates for application. This round of examinations will begin early in August and continue through November. The Circular establishes a composite score of 900 for qualification following a lateral transfer, and a promotion test score of 90 for qualification determination under paragraph 73, DA Circular 202, 1940.

The Senate has passed a bill to require the retirement of a stated annual quota of Navy admirals and Marine Corps generals, in order to make room for promotions from lower grades. Under this system of "forced" attrition, officers falling within the quota requirement would automatically go on the retired list unless specifically selected for retention on active duty.

The President has issued an executive order placing responsibility for retired disabled personnel, with certain exceptions, in the hands of the Veterans Administration rather than the War Department. VA would retain responsibility for chronic cases, such as tuberculars, paraplegics, etc.

Says Just Being 'Hep' to Heaven Isn't Enough

BY CHAPLAIN JOHN D. WILCOX

Let us dedicate this Mother's Day to such a program including the dads who stand for the best things of life also.

In most cases it was mother who taught these fine dads that a gentleman is a man clean inside and outside, who neither looks up to the rich, nor down on the poor, who can lose without squealing, win without bragging. One who is considerate of women, children and old people; too brave to lie, too generous to cheat and too sensible to loaf; who is glad to live and glad to let live.

In contrast there are too many children being robbed of a mother's care and inspiration. This is no doubt a large contributing factor to the rise in juvenile delinquency. Yes, Mother was 'hep' to heaven. It didn't hurt Lincoln, Ruskin, McCauley and a lot of other great leaders of the world to have an old-fashioned mother teach them the Bible in all its power and simplicity. It did change their lives and make them far-sighted leaders of men. Mother didn't dance to a name band, but she could get in contact with a "Big Network" in a hurry and had access to "The Big Director of the Universe" just like that!

It is to be hoped that those kids who are getting 'hep' to heaven will go on and "get help from heaven" so that this generation will not have a shortage of good mothers and dads. Let us not forget that steady hand which led us and tried so hard to give us something of that "steady state" of which mother was model.

To Amuse You Today

Synonyms of official phrases: "Take necessary action" (It's your headache now). "You will remember" (I have forgotten and so have you). "We should confer" (Send your corporal over to see mine). "Forwarded" (Pigeon-holed in a fancier desk). "Take immediate action" (Do something in a hurry before we both catch it). "For your information" (Let's both forget it).

"Don't forget, it's the EM who always has the last word in an argument with an officer."

"Yes, sir."

Sick call officer: "How do you feel, soldier?" Recruit: "Can't kick."

"Are you the oldest in your family, little boy?" "No, My sister comes after me." And does anyone come after her? "No. But if they do, they can have her."

"You say your name's Carabelle. How come they all call you Peg?" "I was born on my parents' wooden anniversary."

First Wave: "I have a new boy friend." Second ditto: "What's he like?" First W: "Oh, Whiskey, gin, beer—anything."

DEBBY BY MAX STEELE HARPER & BROS. PUBLISHER BY ALLEN L. MULLIKIN

Little Old Debby wanted to have the front porch to scrub so she could watch the cars go by. She knew she must scrub something just as she had done at Stonebrook, home for delinquent women. This new place was just someplace else to work, except there were children here.

Ever since her two little boys had been taken from her, Debby's biggest wish was to have more children to play with. The children didn't treat her right, though. The little ones stayed in the kitchen with the giggling cook, and the older ones would leave the room when she came in. Debby was confused by her new and strange surroundings.

The adoption of Debby by an average family, the Merrills, is the starting point that Max Steele uses in his poignant story of a woman who must always remain mentally a child. Writing from the point of view of his child-woman character, Steele permeates the story with the magic of childish imagination and the despair of coping with the half-tone conceptions of a stunted mind. This limited narrative device produces a vagueness throughout the novel that lessens its scope, but did not stop Debby from winning the Harper Prize for 1950.

Creating the character of Debby in all the complexity of a physically adult child struggling to ingratiate herself with the people around her is the principle achievement of the book. The troubles of the Merrill family living through the depression hard times and raising their children to be responsible adults are only a sub-plot that surrounds Debby as a vapor. Only Debby's conscientious strivings to stay in everyone's good graces demand the full attention.

In longing for her lost children Debby becomes a rival with the children of the family for the love of her benefactor, Mrs. Merrill. Before they go to school Debby succeeds in being the ideal companion because of her similarity to them, but when the children grow older they turn on their friend Debby the harsh curiosity that developing minds have for the undeveloping.

Touches of sensitive humor are written by Max Steele who appreciates the tragicomic situations created by Debby's attempts to join the complicated lives of her normal fellows. Debby industriously updates careful plans for dinner parties and weddings with her attempts to meet the special situations.

Careful limitation to a child-mind pattern of narrative gives at once the beauty and the lack of completeness to this understanding portrayal of an unusual and anomalous character.

Housing Act Amendments Await Okay

New amendments to the Wherry-Maybank-Tydings rental housing act were on President Truman's desk this week awaiting signature and official action. The amendments are designed to speed processing of Wherry Act projects. Instead of having would-be sponsors a cash draw plans that must be approved by the services and evaluated, to amendments would authorize services to draw the plans, hiring local architects whose fees would be paid later by the builder of the project.

The services can also have the Federal Housing Administration give advance approval of the plans and pay FHA's fee, subject to reimbursement by sponsor-builder of the project.

All future projects, whether on or off a military reservation, will be built with a contract clause allowing the services to take over the project when financiers have been repaid their investments with interest.

Jerk of the Week

Sloppiness Wins Snaredrum Title

After furious debate by members of the Selection committee during the course of which three members slipped out of their straight jackets and had to be hunted down by the MP, the sloppiest jerk on the post, Pvt. Melvin Q. Snaredrum has finally been picked as, worthy of the title Jerk - of - Week.

Pvt. Snaredrum, whose case history has baffled high ranking officers for over two years, has received so many delinquency reports from the MPs that a special file cabinet had to be set up to hold them. His chief difficulty appears to be an incredible incapacity for wearing his uniform in the normal fashion.

SNAREDRUM HAS A CONSTITUTIONAL AVERSION to buttons. His blouse hangs open like his drooping lower jaw, and despite the fact that his shirts fit, the top button remains unused. His neckties invariably knot somewhere in the vicinity of his left ear, flapping loosely in the breeze as he ambles down the street.

Messy Mel, as he is known to his barracks enemies — he has no friends whatsoever — takes a shower only when the itching becomes intolerable. He has never been known to laundry any clothing, and the summer months anyone coming within range (15 yards) immediately wonders where the dead rat is hidden.

Wearing his service cap at the proper angle is admittedly difficult for Melvin, since his sharply pointed noggin is not ideally suited to headgear. Nevertheless, our wart-brained warrior takes a fiendish delight in showing it as far back on his head as possible, tilted in what he fondly believes to be a rakish and alluring angle, but which in reality makes him look like a fugitive from a carnival freak show.

Ordered to Europe were Sgt. 1st Cl. Clark S. Holeman, Cpls. Albert Floyd, Wayne T. Sparks, Ralph Anderson, Oscar Gilbert.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, speaking on the "Time for Defense" program, said that the army "is well on its way" to producing a weapon of radical design calculated to defeat an enemy heavily armed with tanks. Production of these weapons, he asserted, would mean a changeover in many tactics.

General Collins' statements were augmented recently by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, who told a senate committee that America's atomic arsenal is "no longer a small number of bombs of a single type or size."

He also said that American fighting forces are proficient and are better equipped superior to that of any other nation.

The army's chief of staff said this week that the concept of tank warfare might be completely changed if weapons now under development are put into production.

Need Still Exists For Specialized Officers in RA

The procurement program for appointment in the regular army of officers qualified in critically essential technical specialties has not produced the number desired, according to a recent Third Army announcement.

One of the reasons for rejection was the failure to qualify for an age waiver, the announcement stated. It was also suggested that the interpretation of the requirement calling for an "outstanding record" was being too strictly observed. For the purposes of the program, it was stated that an applicant will be considered "outstanding" when he is determined to be qualified as a critically essential technical specialist.

The Third Army announcement stressed the fact that the prior service requirement is limited to active federal service in any of the armed forces prior to Sept. 2, 1945, and that active commissioned service is not required, nor is service in amount by which the applicant's age exceeds 27 years.

Basic requirements for appointment outlined in special Regulation 605-25-1.

Acheson Speaks To ASNE Group

WASHINGTON, (APPS) — Secretary of State Dean Acheson outlined six "lines of action" which he said the U. S. must follow in order to meet the challenge of world communism, in an address before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which met here recently.

1. The people must have a "burning and fighting" faith in freedom for themselves and all the world.
2. They must make the world aware of this faith, and of what freedom is, "what it has done for many, and what it can do for all."
3. The country must remain strong with widely organized defenses to protect the area where freedom abounds.
4. A better material existence must be provided for the hundreds of millions of people who share the world of freedom, through improvement of economic conditions by means of aid programs now in progress and planned for the future.
5. The free world must be politically united and organized for common action.
6. "The idea of aggression" must be eliminated from the relationships between Russia and the free world.

Mr. Acheson said the U. S. is the primary target of the Soviet drive against free people everywhere, because this country, strong, vital, host of freedom and tolerance, stands between the Kremlin and the rest of the world.

More Funds Voted For U.S. Defense

Sparked by recommendations of the defense chiefs, congress moved swiftly this week to add $350 million to United States defense funds and extend the controversial draft act.

Led by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, the joint chiefs of staff told an emergency congressional session that additional money was needed to combat the seriousness of the cold war. They said that recent international developments made it apparent that U. S. defenses should be reinforced.

Congressmen immediately voted approval of the $350,000,000 addition to defense funds. This brings to $1,251,177,000 the total appropriated defense funds awaiting approval in the house.

Gen. Bradley To Testify

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, is scheduled to appear before the house armed services committee this week to testify on the need of a draft extension. Chairman Vinson said it would be unwise to let the act expire with world conditions as they are.

The $350,000,000 grant came shortly after Secretary Johnson told house and senate subcommittees that the Russian atomic bomb explosion had come "somewhat in advance of the date we had anticipated."

This, he said, caused a complete reevaluation of defense plans by both the United States and the North Atlantic pact nations. He added that he had deepened his recommendations until he had a chance to confer with defense ministers of the treaty nations recently at The Hague.

Truman Picks Engineer Unit As Best-Drilled

As far as the President of the United States is concerned, the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion is Fort Benning's snappiest and best-drilled unit.

At the review held recently for President Truman during his eight-hour visit to the post, the 78th, with scores of other units, paraded for its commander-in-chief. Out of all the units, the 68-year old chief executive selected the 78th as the outstanding.

Major Thomas G. Gamble, commanding officer of the unit, admitted his surprise at being chosen the best unit. He said that it is difficult to allot time for drilling due to the nature of their other duties.

"Nevertheless," he said, "I'm proud of the honor."

Mess Steward Class Finished

Mess stewards class No. 3 at the Third Army Food Service School was graduated April 28. Honor graduate was Sgt. George S. Armentrout Jr., of the North Carolina national guard, who received a Parker pen and pencil set in recognition of his outstanding work.

Group Ponders Leave System

Members of the house armed services committee were still deadlocked with the army's comptroller general this week over the issue of amending the leave system.

Under present legislation, any leave over 60 days must be chopped from a man's credit when June 30, the end of the fiscal year, rolls around. The comptroller general, however, contends that legislation passed in 1946 makes it mandatory that leave credit in excess of 60 days must be taken from an individual's record month-by-month, or as fast as it's earned.

Germ Warfare Held Dangerous To U.S. Security

WASHINGTON, (APPS) — Germ warfare is a potentially grave threat to the nation's security, warns Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson in his semi-annual report on the state of America's defenses.

Secretary Johnson said, however, that "defensive measures now in effect or in preparation should prevent disastrous damage" from such an attack.

In his report, covering the second half of 1949, the defense secretary states that methods of waging biological warfare had not yet been developed to the point where they could be considered "a means of mass destruction."

He said, however, that progress was being made in rendering them more potent and that, even now, attacks with such agents could be very effective.

"It is necessary that the American people understand the nature and scope of biological warfare," he said, "so as to appreciate the actual dangers that might arise from its use and to participate effectively in defense measures against it, as well as to dismiss exaggerated notions and fear of the threat of biological warfare."

Commissary Sets Rigid Restrictions

New regulations governing the use of the commissary store were recently announced by Infantry Center officials. Effective May 1, any individual who wishes to use the store must be positively identified as an authorized patron before entering the store. Quartermaster officials stated that a check will be made at the store entrance, and no one will be allowed to enter unless in possession of a valid permit.

The identification required will be in the form of a commissary store permit, serially numbered and bearing the signature of the authorized person to whom issued. Each authorized person may designate one member of his family as his agent, and upon application, a second commissary permit bearing the same serial number as that of the authorized person will be issued to the agent. This additional permit will bear the signature of the agent.

After purchases have been made, the signature on the permit will be checked against the signature of the person signing the permit.

Three New Wacs Assigned to Post

Three Wacs were assigned to the Infantry School detachment this week from the 2004th Area Service unit, Camp Lee, Va., it was announced by unit officials.

Pvt. Janice E. Robinson was assigned to Company C for duty with the Army Extension Course section, Pvt. Martha M. Wilcox to Company B for duty with Headquarters Academic department, and Pvt. Bertha C. Pruitt to Company A for duty with Military Personnel section.

Sergeant Cited For Efficiency

Efficient performance of his duties under adverse conditions has won Pfc. William Beach, chief clerk of the Third Infantry division's Adjutant General section, a letter of commendation from his section chief, Lt. Col. Robert E. Doe.

Sergeant Beach was cited for his work during the preliminary training to Operation Portex, the Caribbean amphibious exercise in which the division participated recently.

When the advance party journeyed from Fort Benning to Little Creek, Va., a large portion of Sergeant Beach's section made the trip, leaving the section short-handed. The sergeant was further handicapped by the fact that the advance element had moved on to Camp Pickett, Va., by the time the remainder of the section reached Little Creek.

Colonel Doe's letter to the sergeant read in part as follows: "Your personal assistance to me in my job as newly assigned division adjutant general at this time was of great value in getting me acquainted with the division method of doing things."

Sergeant Beach, a veteran of 15 years service, has been in the Third division since 1946.

Chamber Delegate to Hear Post-Columbus Problems

A plan will be put into effect next week by officials of Fort Benning and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce aimed at fostering better relations between citizens of the two communities.

It was announced this week by Clayton D. McLendon, executive director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, and Lt. Col. Robert M. Booth, Infantry Center public information officer, that a representative from the chamber would be at the post each Wednesday afternoon to meet with military personnel and discuss problems involving the civilian community. At the same time, a representative from the post would be in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce each Friday afternoon to meet with civilians to discuss problems involving the military community of Fort Benning.

As described by the two planning officials, the civilian representative will meet with military personnel at the post public information office and discuss any problems dealing with Columbus. This they said, could include problems of housing, transportation and business. The military representative at the chamber offices would meet with civilians to arrange for military speakers, settle problems involving the military or aid in arranging for tours of the post.

Appointments are not necessary to see either of the representatives, the announcement said.

Dog Bite Spurs ARC to Action

Here's a case of long-distance medical diagnosis: Last week, a Fort Benning enlisted man reported to Station hospital doctors, a complaining of swollen spot on his arm. He said he was bitten by a dog in Elkland, Pa., more than a week ago while on furlough.

Not knowing if a rabies-infected canine had bitten the patient, doctors were hesitant to administer the Pasteur anti-rabies treatment.

Red Cross official, however, answered a question, placing a long distance telephone call to the man's Pennsylvania home.

A medical official in Elkland said the dog did not have rabies.

ODDS ENDS

BY STEVE BOLAND

The Infantry Center's initial military pentathlon was successfully conducted with nine of the 10 participants finishing in each of the five events.

Lt. Alvin F. Futrell capped the crown with a low score of 12 points, followed by Cpl. Ken Morris with a 15-point total. All participants who completed the five events proved themselves to be in top physical condition and adept in all phases of the meet.

It can be safely said that the Doughboys will be better represented in this area meet than they were last year. Last year's representatives were voluntary and had little time to train for this grueling one-day meet.

One incident that can not be overlooked is the fact that five of the 10 men competing came from the 30th Infantry regiment's Second battalion.

Members of the Special Services section, who supervised the day's events, should be commended for the fine job they did in handling all phases of competition.

Capt. Art Hyman, Dough track coach, has had his squad hard at work getting into shape with morning and afternoon workouts at the stadium. The greater part of the men originally out for the team still remain and have improved considerably as a result of the past two weeks of intensive training.

Cpl. Gene Thomas, Company L, 15th Infantry regiment, has qualified for both the track and the pentathlon teams and will probably take part in both events.

Mrs. Juan Marquez, a native of Chile, and Mrs. Richard Beyer both of the Women's bowling group, proved equally adept at this sport as most of the male personnel on the post.

These two women placed first and second respectively in the singles event of the group's annual pin tournament, with three game totals of 572 and 586. There aren't many men on the post who can claim a set like that especially in tournament competition.

The sports department of The Bayonet wish to express their thanks to Mrs. C. H. Haljden for the fine job she did in reporting the results of the tournament and league play throughout this past bowling season.

A new Officers' club golf champion should be determined by this weekend when Maj. A. Hoebecke and Maj. L. Margruder, finalists in the championship flight of the club's tourney, compete for the title.

Major Hoebecke defeated Lt. A. Rafferty, and Major Margruder won out over Lt. J. Fenion, last year's champion, to emerge as finalists in the affair.

Up to now, baseball fans will have a chance to attend nine games per week when the Fort Benning intra-mural baseball league opens play.

The schedule has not been released, but league officials have announced that games will be played every night in the week but Saturday. Afternoon games will be played on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

All games are scheduled to be played at Gowdy field, with afternoon games starting at 2 p.m. and night games at 8 p.m. In a meeting of the baseball coaches at the Special Services office last Friday morning, drawings were held giving each team a number by which the season's schedule will be determined.

The Third Infantry division Engineers, Special Troops and Division Artillery teams got off to a late start, but the remaining league members should be in good shape and ready for their opponents.

A large number of Fort Benning personnel are leaving for overseas duty next month and among them is a well known figure who has had a great deal to do with the success of the athletic program at Fort Benning for several years.

This man is Sgt. 1st Cl. Frank Salmeri of the Special Services section, who will be missed, by many who know him. Salmeri will be leaving for the Far East command we wish him the best of luck in his new assignment.

Ten Teams Enter Intra-Mural Race

The 1950 Infantry Center Intra-mural Baseball league is scheduled to begin play around May 15 and will continue until the latter part of July, special services officials said this week.

Ten regimental or similar unit level teams will be represented in the league.

Organizations represented this year, in addition to the 1949 champions from the Student Training Regiment's Airborne Battalion, include the Infantry School detachment, 3440th Area Service unit, Provisional Medical group, Lawson Airforce base and the following teams from the Third Infantry division: Engineers, Special Troops, 30th Infantry regiment, and Division Artillery.

Each team will consist of more than 25 members, including the coach and manager. Players must be members of the original organization which presents. Students will be eligible to play for the units to which they are assigned, officials pointed out.

Any individual transferring to another organization during the course of the season will play with the organization to which he transferred, was effected by a protest board, a special services spokesman declared.

The protest board will consist of five disinterested field grade officers selected by the Special Services council, with a minimum of three members required to be present before action is taken on a protest.

A coach or manager must make a formal written protest at the time the decision in question is made and submit it by noon of the first duty day following the day the game was played.

The protest board's decision will be final.

League games will be nine-inning affairs, played according to the official baseball rules of 1950 plus any rules that may be added. The round robin system, in which each team will play its opponents twice, will be used.

All league games will be played at Gowdy field, no games except wet grounds, inclement weather or military duties will be played in a 24 hour period to game time, authorities said.

Postponed games remaining at the close of the season will be played only if they have a direct bearing on the final.

Doughboys Wallop Jackson Ringmen

Fort Benning's Doughboy boxing team scored a 5-1 decision over the Fort Jackson, S. C., Red Devils in a match at Fort Jackson last week.

The match marked the final appearance of the Red Devil team due to the deactivation process now in progress at that installation.

Jackson's only win and the lone knockout on the card came in the semi-final event when Lenny Bridges, Red Devil flyweight, landed a terrific right cross to the jaw of Willie Jones after Jones had taken the first two rounds on points.

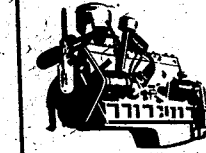

Larry Jones, although outweighed seven pounds, scored a third round technical knockout over Billy Mayo, Jackson middle weight.

The opening bout of the evening featured a three-round exhibition between Featherweights Oran Garretson and Bob Wood of Benning, with Garretson taking the bout on a decision.

In the remaining bouts on the evening card, Billy Fitzpatrick defeated George James of Jackson, Jimmy Miller defeated Johnny Davis, Red Devil welterweight, and George James of Jackson won a decision over Jackson's Ernie Foras in the main event.

John Wilson, Doughboy coach, is planning a eight-bout inter-squad match in the near future.

Mrs. Juan Marquez Wins Singles Crown in Bowling

The Fort Benning Women's and a team champion crowned group bowling season came to a close last Thursday evening with three new individual champions.

Brooklyn Giants Score 10-6 Win Over Columbus

The Brooklyn Cuban Giants, member of the Negro American baseball league, rapped out 14 base hits for an easy 10-6 win over the Columbus Stars at Cowdy field last week.

A first inning scoring spree by the Giants netted four runs. The Brooklynites followed with one in the second, two in the third and another in the fourth. Ben Williams, Brooklyn left fielder and cleanup hitter, displayed plenty of power with the stick in banging out four hits in five trips to the plate.

Third Baseman Bill Hughes of the Columbus team paced the Star batters with two doubles in four appearances.

The only time the Stars showed any semblance of power was in the eighth stanza when they picked up four runs on three hits, a base on balls and one Brooklyn error.

Paul Valentine went the route on the mound for the Brooklyn center for Baton Rouge High was the only troublesome stanza for the effective right-hander.

Harry Paul, who relieved J. Washington on the mound for the Stars in the second inning, scattered seven Brooklyn hits while collecting eight strikeouts in as many innings.

Grid Team Battles Mud in Practice

Indiana university's football team ignored a driving rain to practice for its Cream and Crimson day intra-squad game, Saturday.

Tackle Ed Bosak weighed his uniform before practice. Fourteen pounds, 12 ounces. He weighed it again afterward. Twenty-five pounds, six ounces.

Mrs. Juan Marquez took top honors in the singles event with a three-game set of 572 for a 21 average per game. Second place in this event went to Mrs. Richard Beyer who rolled a three-game total of 566 for a 18 average.

Mrs. Edwin Lee and Mrs. Vern Ashbacher teamed up to take the doubles title with a 1,067. They were closely followed by the combination of Mrs. Richard Beyer and Mrs. A. P. Hackett who rolled a 1,051.

Mrs. Robert J. Parr was the all-events winner with a nine-game total of 1343 for a 149.2 average. She was closely followed by Mrs. H. Rabinowitz with a 1,322 for a 147 average.

The team title was won by a quartet explained by Mrs. H. J. Doid with a total pinfall of 2,238. Other members on the team were Mrs. Nita DeArman, Mrs. H. J. Rabinowitz, Mrs. M. J. Rabinowitz.

Team runner-up spot was garnered by Mrs. Robert J. Parr's quartet with a 2,053 total. Mrs. J. J. Schermerhorn, Mrs. John Evans and Mrs. Charles Logan completed the team roster.

Prep Cage Star Signs With LSU

LSU athletic officials announced today that Bob Petit, six-foot, seven-inch all-state basketball center for Baton Rouge High, was signed a grant-in-aid to attend the university next fall.

The 17-year old center dropped in 501 points in 24 games last season and has been named one of the three southerners to compete in the National All-Star, North-South basketball tournament in Maury, Ky., May 12.

Sunday Baseball Voted at Toronto

Most members of the city council were opposed to the idea of Sunday baseball when citizens voted last Jan. 1 in favor of sabbath sports.

But finally the council passed, by a 14 to 10 margin, a resolution to support the International League to play Sunday games.

LaMotta Ready To Battle Any Of Challengers

Having signed suddenly to defend his title June 14, Middleweight Champion Jake LaMotta went to Syracuse, N. Y., Tuesday for a teupub bout with Joe Taylor. Spurred by a stern warning from the National Boxing Association, Bronx Jake agreed to defend his 160-pound crown at Yankee Stadium.

His opponent will be selected on May 15 from among Laurent Dauthuille of France, Tiberio Mitli of Italy, Dave Sands of Australia, Tony Janiro of Ohio, Paddy Young of Brooklyn, and Welterweight champion Ray Sugar Robinson.

It's a 10-to-1 bet that Dauthuille will be picked. LaMotta, who hadn't defended the title since he won it from Marcel Cerdan last June, was ordered by the N. B. A. to announce his defense plans this week or risk having his title vacated.

Bronx Jake achieved one triumph, at least, before agreeing to the June 14 defense. He had the bout scheduled for Yankee Stadium instead of Madison Square Garden, where officials of the International Boxing Club wanted it.

Jake explained, "I would have been very gullible to put the fight in the Garden, where I'd get only $3,000 from television in the stadium. I'll get a good percentage of the television money and we can draw a lot more money. Which of the named opponents would Jake prefer as challenger?"

Merril Jug Play Now in Progress

The Defense group of the Infantry School's tactical department has started play in its annual Merrill Jug golf tournament. This affair is sponsored by and open to members of the Defense group only.

Eighteen participants are expected to compete, and a straight handicap is being used for the 18-hole match play, which will take place at the Fort Benning Country club course.

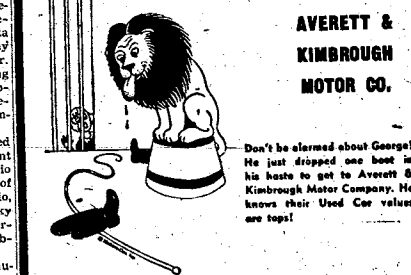

Lt. Col. P. W. Merrill, who donated the jug, has also been the winner of the event for the past two years.

Golfers Set For Gordon Cup Classic

The Officers' club Golf committee has announced that play in the annual Gordon Cup handicap tournament will begin around May 13 at the Country club course.

Tourney officials listed the following requirements for participation in the event:

1. A player must be an officer.
2. A player must have 10 scores turned in so that his handicap may be determined.
3. A player must have his name on the sign-up sheet by Wednesday, May 10.
4. An entrance fee of $1 must be paid.

Pairings will be posted by Saturday, May 13, and players will be arranged in flights of eight, with the winner and runner-up in each flight to be awarded a prize.

Flight winners in the match play will then compete in a 36-hole medal event. The player with the low net score will be declared winner and will have his name inscribed on the Gordon Cup now on display at the Golf club. He will also receive a prize.

The schedule for play calls for the posting of handicaps for participants by May 13. The first round of match play is to be completed by May 21, the second round by May 28 and the finals by June 4.

The tourney then will go into the medal play phase with the first 18-hole round to be played by June 10. The deciding holes are slated for June 11.

In the match play, a three-quarter handicap will apply, but a full handicap will be used for medal play.

In case of a tie in match play, any mutually accepted agreement for deciding the match will govern, but either player has the right to request a hole match if he so desires, officials said.

United States Golf association rules will apply. Summer rules will be in effect (no movement on the lie of the ball) and balls may be cleaned on the green.

U.S. Developing Secret Weapons

The Army said this week that the U. S. will soon have weapons capable of shooting down warplanes up to an altitude of 12 miles.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, in a speech over a nationwide radio network said that newly developed rockets were being made that would knock down an airplane above 60,000 feet. He also said that a guided missile was being perfected that had great promise as a leading defensive and offensive weapon.

The two secret weapons were earlier mentioned in an appropriation request before a senate appropriations subcommittee. More than $500,000 has been asked as an addition to the regular $14 billion military appropriation for the 1951 fiscal year beginning July 1.

Pupils Present Three Operetta Performances

Students of the sixth and seventh grades at the Fort Benning Children's school recently concluded three performances of an operetta titled, "Circus Day." The first performance was held the morning of April 18 before 850 students of the school, and that evening at 7:30, the operetta was repeated before a highly receptive audience of 250 parents. A third performance was given at 3:15 on the afternoon of April 20 for 200 members of the Parent-Teachers Association. All performances were held in the school auditorium.

Under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Graham, school music teacher, the student actors and actresses rehearsed for over two months, and were well rewarded for their effort in the enthusiastic reception given by the audiences.

Leading roles in the operetta were played by Robin Palmer, Willard Knight, Nancy Brooks, Georgianne Lee, Lewis Aten, Pat McNulty, Nick Wallace, Elsie Bonifay and Bob Rette. Piano accompaniment was furnished by Pat Reardon, and the stage art work was supervised by Robert Turner.

Student Nurses To Visit Hospital

Station hospital nurses will be host to about 30 student nurses from Columbus City hospital Sunday afternoon at the nurses quarters in observance of American Student Nurse Sunday, it was announced this week by Maj. Dorothy E. Ainsworth, chief nurse.

The student nurses will be taken on a tour of Station hospital and be guests of the Army Nurse Corps at tea in the nurses quarters. Major Ainsworth said. Student Nurse Sunday is celebrated yearly throughout the country by both civilian and military communities.

Major Ainsworth extended the invitation to Miss Mabel Korsohl, superintendent of nurses at City hospital, an army bus will pick up the student nurses at City hospital and transport them to Station hospital, where the tour will start.

Each year churches of the nation salute America's nurses in an annual religious observance. Student nurses attend church in special services. Fort Benning's open house program is but one phase of a nationwide welcome to these student nurses.

The visiting students will be treated to a look at the army's unique hospital. No other hospital in the United States has the distinctive Spanish-influenced architecture which makes Fort Benning's distinctive. In addition, modern and completely equipped operating rooms in the army general picture of how an army hospital operates. After the tour, the visiting nurses will be served tea in the nurses' quarters.

Facilities Added By Hobby Shop

Several new crafts and new materials for established hobbies have been added to the variety of arts now being pursued by post hobbyists, according to an announcement last week by Hobby Shop officials.

For woodworking enthusiasts, the newly developed EASI-BUILD patterns offer an ideal way for the beginner to construct almost any article, from cabinets to book ends, they said. Developed by a New York concern, the patterns, which are equally applicable to work in plastics, are simple to follow, and no knowledge of carpentry is required, officials added. Prices for the patterns, which are available in 50 different types, range from 15 cents to 50 cents.

On order is shipment of knocked down kits from which can be assembled three types of chests, two types of wall racks, two types of shelves and two types of footlockers. All are ready for assembly and finishing work. The articles made from these kits are constructed of the finest Tennessee cedar, with prices for the kits ranging from $1.75 to $8.85, Hobby Shop officials pointed out.

Unfinished porcelain figurines are also on order for hobbyists who have a flair for painting and who want some highly decorated ornaments for their home, officials said. All that is required prior to painting are two simple finishing operations—finishing sandpaper and steel wool. Prices for these figurines will range from 35 cents to $5.

For leatherworking craftsmen, a new shipment of leather is on order, including moccasin and sandal kits. The first shipment of leather kits for the fabrication of moccasins proved so popular that they were sold out almost immediately, Hobby Shop officials said, and an immediate re-order for the $2.75 kits was placed.

In addition to the new crafts and materials, two new wood lathes, two belt and disc sanding machines and two drill presses have been purchased.

Specialist Visits Benning Laundry

A laundry specialist from the office of the quartermaster general, E. Jennings, visited at Fort Benning this week to make a study of shirt pressing operations in the post quartermaster laundry.

Dewey J. Reddish, post laundry superintendent, said that Mr. Jennings was the outcome of a suggestion submitted to Washington relative to an improved method of operating the shirt pressing equipment in the post laundry. Through experimentation, the post laundry found that a higher rate of production could be attained with the use of three operators instead of the four operators recommended by the equipment manufacturers.

Mr. Jennings' visit was made for the purpose of studying the newly developed procedure, and should the results of his studies bear out the value of the new method, it is expected that it will be adopted on an army-wide basis, laundry officials said.

Ballet Records To Be Played

The ballet music of Offenbach and Debuss will be featured on the record concert at the Main library next Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

The program includes De Falla's Suite Populaire Espagnole, played by Violinist Isaac Stern; ballet music from Debuss's Coppelia played by the Royal Opera House orchestra conducted by Constant Lambert; Offenbach's Casteletto Parisienne, played by the Columbia Symphony orchestra conducted by Elmer Kurtz.

The two-day match began with a "free style" shooting contest. The first day, contestants were allowed to use any 30 caliber rifle. In the standing position phase of the contest, Sgt. F. L. Eysel, Weapons department instructor, took first place with a score of 46 of a possible 50.

Linked Nations May Preserve Peace—Bradley

CONCORD, Mass. (APFS)—"Politically joined," the U. S., Great Britain and Canada can preserve democracy in the Western world, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, joint chiefs of staff chairman, said in a recent address here marking the 15th anniversary of the Revolutionary battles of Lexington and Concord.

"The mutual efforts for security and self-preservation, the British people, the Canadians, and the Americans will strengthen their political unity. Our efforts joined with other friendly nations of the Western world, may foster a real chance for permanent peace in our time," General Bradley declared.

He mentioned the North Atlantic Treaty as "looking more closely to political unity than it leads to collective security."

General Bradley asserted that Britain and Canada have "as much at stake in the clash of ideologies as we have. If we quit, it will fall in any one of these interdependent actions, then we have given the battle over before it has begun," he said.

RETIRING CIVILIAN EMPLOYEE HONORED BY INFANTRY-CENTER COMMANDER Mrs. Mamie K. Ream Acknowledges Presentation of Gift By Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress On Behalf Of Fort Benning Friends

Mrs. Mamie Ream Retires, In Civil Service 30 Years

Mrs. Mamie K. Ream, veteran bowl by General Burress on behalf of her friends at the Infantry Center officers who had known and worked with her for many years.

General Burress, who first became acquainted with Mrs. Ream in 1920 at Fort Benning, praised her long and meritorious service of continuous civil service employment as he addressed a gathering of more than 20 of Mrs. Ream's friends, including several Infantry Center officers who had known and worked with her for many years.

Mrs. Ream came to Fort Benning in August, 1920, when the Infantry School was housed in wooden barracks on what is now Stilwell field. She recalls that there were only 19 employees in the entire school at that time.

"Tents were the standard housing in those days," she said, "and it was a great day when wooden barracks became available." The move into the present Infantry School building was an epic occasion, and Mrs. Ream laughingly recalled how at first they all missed huddling around the old pot-bellied stoves used to heat the former school buildings.

Units Launch Improvements In Dining Halls

Following the contention of food authorities that pleasant eating environment is an aid to digestion, the 30th Infantry regiment recently undertook a dining hall redecorating project.

And the program already has received a healthy pat on the back from Maj. John A. Rillovich, Infantry Center food service supervisor, who has inspected the dining facilities undergoing the face-lifting.

One of the biggest strides has been made in the dining hall of Headquarters company, Second battalion, which has installed a coffee bar where personnel can refresh themselves during breaks in normal duty hours.

The dining room of Company L has been embellished with wall paintings of the Third Infantry division patch and the regimental crest. Also painted on the walls are the names and dates of campaigns in which the company participated during World War I. The unit currently holds the regiment's "best dining hall" plaque.

Medical company's improvement has been in the form of a curved serving counter which, officials claim, takes up less space than the conventional straight serving line. Also as an innovation, a special table with a hole to hold large bowls and pans has been built for the convenience of cooks and bakers.

Company E has added a canopy that covers its entire stove area and prevents smoke from besmudging walls and ceilings.

The project is under the supervision of 1st Lt. Leslie L. Witt, regimental food service supervisor, who said that plans for additional improvements are being drawn up.

Maj. Henry R. Sandridge, Third battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, third prize winner in the landscape category, was awarded a camera equipment pouch for his landscape picture, "Fishing Village, Japan."

Sgt. Benjamin Zar, who won two third prizes and one first prize, was awarded two camera pouches and an exposure meter.

1st Lt. Perry D. Swindler, Infantry School Weapons department, won the army's first prize for his picture, "Fall Retreat," taken at the Infantry Center. He was awarded an exposure meter.

The three winners' pictures will be forwarded to Washington for consideration in the second annual interservice photographic contest.

QUESTION: WHAT WAS YOUR REASON FOR JOINING THE ARMY?
PVT. BARBARA BARNES, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: I joined for educational reasons. I felt there was much I could learn, and I think the army offers a chance for advancement and education. I would like very much to do some work in journalism, but so far I haven't had a chance.

PVT. CAROLINE EMON, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: Well, I guess I wanted to join the Wac for education and travel. Other than those reasons, I have no other except that I have wanted to belong ever since the corps was organized. I have only been in the Wacs for six months, so I haven't had much chance to travel.

PVT. KAY CARLSON, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: I wanted something different to do, and I thought it would be good experience. I don't think a tour of duty with the Wac could hurt anybody, and I think it teaches you to take orders and how to get along with other people.

PVT. DOROTHY RICHARDSON, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: The main reason I joined was for travel and education. By joining a Wac, I can get a better background for a job in civilian life. There's a lot to be learned from being around people.

PVT. BERTHA C. FRUITT, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: I haven't much of a reason, but I guess the educational facilities were the biggest factor. I want to learn a trade and I hope to be able to travel some.

PVT. BOBBIE BANKS, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit: The main thing that influenced me was the idea of travel and education. I've been in the army only six months, so I haven't had much time to travel. I had hoped to go into physical education work later, but I haven't had the chance to do that either.

Pay Problem? See Unit CO

A recent Third Army letter announced that although most of the problems which have complicated pay computation since the passage of the Career Compensation Act of 1949 have been solved, complaints are still being received from enlisted men who believe they have not been properly paid. Enlisted men who may still be having pay difficulties should report that fact to their unit commanders, who will arrange an appointment with the finance officer for local settlement of the problem, the announcement said. Any case that cannot be adjusted locally will be referred to the chief of Finance Through Third Army headquarters. It is advised.

Priorities Set For Tenants Of New Units

Recommended priorities for occupancy of Battle Park Homes and the unfinished 600-unit Custer Road Terrace Housing project were issued this week by Infantry Center G-1 officials.

The amended recommendations, which will be given to the B. H. Harris company, real estate agents in handling the renting of both housing units, will lower the housing priority of students in the officers' advanced courses from second to fourth place. Other categories of priority will remain the same.

Medics Come First
The following is the recommended priority of officer assignments, categories:
1. Medical and Dental corps officers permanently stationed here.
2. Permanently assigned officers, other than students on permanent change of station orders, who are vacating government quarters that have been declared inadequate. (This will include officers of Benning Park home, Block 23, Blessing street and Station hospital apartments.)
3. Permanently assigned officers, other than students on permanent change of station orders, who are not assigned to public quarters.
4. Student officers on permanent change of station orders. (See PRIORITIES P-5)

Units Now Open To Top Graders

Maximum income limits for occupants of Baker Village quarters were raised this week to permit first-three-grade noncommissioned officers to move into the low-cost housing project.

Post Seeing Big Turnover In Personnel

Fort Benning this week was going through a personnel change that involves the shipment of some 1,600 men to other posts within the United States and overseas. The personnel turnover, which is the largest the Infantry Center has experienced since 1946, represents a cutback in over-strength units and normal overseas shipments. A significant phase of the huge personnel exodus is the increase in number of WAC personnel being sent here to replace male personnel. The WAC detachment, which consisted of more than 20 enlisted women two months ago, will reach a peak of about 160 during the next few months. Personnel officials also explained that male personnel could be replaced by women personnel if the latter hold similar military occupational specialties numbers. Male personnel, in such a case, would be classified as surplus and reassigned to another unit or post. Much of the shipment can be attributed to overstrength units on the post. (See TURNOVER P-5)

The new plan is a reversal of restrictions slapped on occupancy qualification in 1946. During World War II and prior to 1946, only first- and three-grade NCO's were permitted to live in the civilian-built development. On July 1946, however, first-three graders were evicted from the units to permit occupancy by lower income enlisted personnel, primarily corporals and privates first class. Limit Raised Considerably
George W. McKenney, manager of Baker Village and an official of the Housing Authority of Columbus, builders of the 612-family units, announced that the new income for any soldier-tenant is now $3,150 a year for a person with fewer than three children, and $3,760 a year for personnel with three or more minor children. The income limit had previously been set at $2,400 for a person with less than three children, and $2,880 for a family of three or more minors. The amount of rent paid by unit occupants is computed according to annual income. Maximum rents, however, have been set at $50 a month for a one-bedroom unit, $52.50 a month for a two-bedroom unit and $55 a month for a three-bedroom unit. Under the old rental schedule, which was in effect until the housing for the below-the-first-three-grades personnel only, a large waiting list had accumulated. As vacancies occur families with seniority will be permitted to move into the Infantry Center officials said that those now on the waiting list, who want to continue to live in Baker Village manager by May 23. Application for occupancy will be called if the prospective tenant (See UNITS P-12)

Tests Scheduled In Career Fields

Competitive promotion examination dates have been announced for job fields now under the career plan, according to Infantry Center Examining and Computing agency officials. Applications for promotion (application to take the competitive examinations) may be submitted by eligible personnel on or after the opening dates, and in no case later than 30 days before the date of the examination, officials said. In the finance career field, applications may be submitted on or after July 21. Examinations will be held Aug. 7 through 11. Tests Set For October
In the military, engineering and construction field, applications may be submitted on or after June 19. Examinations will be held Oct. 4 and 5. In the ammunition career field, applications may be submitted on or after July 21. Examinations will be held Nov. 6-10. In the wire maintenance career field, applications may be submitted on or after July 27. Examinations will be held Nov. 13-17 and Nov. 20-22. In the food service career field, applications may be submitted on or after June 13. Examinations will be held Sept. 25 and 28. In the infantry career field, applications may be submitted on or after June 20. Examinations will be held Oct. 2 and 3. In the armored cavalry career field, applications may be submitted on or after June 27. Examinations will be held Oct. 13 and 16-20. Additional career regulations relative to promotions state that any individual currently in grade E-3 or higher who once held a higher enlisted grade, or who has held a warrant of commission in any of the armed forces, may apply for promotion in any MOS within his present career field to a grade above the next higher grade, providing the application is not submitted for (See TESTS P-2)

Benning Toured By Yugoslavians

Two Yugoslavian assistant military attaches were guests of the Infantry Center this week for a two-day tour and inspection of training facilities. Lt. Col. Ivan Bacun and Lt. Nedeljko Reljic, who arrived here from the Yugoslavian embassy in Washington, met with Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, Infantry Center commander, shortly after their arrival Monday for a brief conference. Later in the afternoon, the two officers, accompanied by the United States aide from Washington, D. C., Col. Reynolds Condon, visited the Infantry School's Operations department. On Tuesday, the Yugoslavian guests visited the Airborne department and witnessed combat training of 30th Infantry regiment units. After an official luncheon at the Officers' Mess, they observed Infantry School training, including the technique of indirect fire and tank gunnery. Colonel Bacun and Lieutenant Reljic left for Washington from Muscogee county airport Tuesday afternoon.

Swarmier Troops Return to Benning

A total of 3,213 troops, who participated in the North Carolina Swarmer maneuvers, returned here this week by truck and train. Exercise Swarmer ended May 4, and participating units began returning to their home stations May 5. Troops from the 87th and 11th Airborne divisions set up their airhead, then broke out into aggressive military offensive, capturing three air fields in their drive for victory over aggressive forces. The toll of casualties for the exercise reached five dead and about 75 injuries. The aircraft which supplied the men had moved in a total of 1,418 tons of equipment. The goal set by the joint chiefs of staff were 22,000 tons and 12,000 troops, both of which would have been easily reached had the maneuverers continued for the full 11 days, officials said. Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, maneuver commander, who led the Swarmer success, commended the men who participated in the exercise and said: "With this as a foundation, the military leaders of this nation may face a more certain future with renewed confidence in our native ability to accomplish difficult and seemingly impossible tasks. The joint chiefs of staff gave the maneuver 11 days running time in order to prove that an

Injury Rate Soars Among Post Men

The military injury rate at Fort Benning has increased about 10 per cent over last year's figure for the first quarter of the year, according to Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety director.

April rates, according to Mr. Evans, have increased to a startling degree, and since most of the injuries are the result of off-post vehicle accidents, the sharp increase has been attributed to the return of Third Infantry division troops from maneuvers and the resulting increase in private vehicle travel.

In three cases, involving five injuries, the owner of the automobile had had his car less than four days. None of the vehicles had been registered on the post. All three drivers were at fault, according to Mr. Evans, with two of the accidents occurring without the involvement of another car.

Increased driving during the warm summer months will pose additional hazards, so more driving care must be used, Mr. Evans pointed out. People involved in accidents which have occurred have learned their lessons in terms of physical pain and financial loss, but the people who need to be impressed with the necessity for driving carefully and safely are those whose accident is just around the next corner, he said.

Accidents involving government vehicles have also increased.

QUESTION: WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE NEW FEATURES IN THE BAYONET? A. ALVA R. SANDY, Company F, 30th Infantry Regiment: The new features add a lot to the Bayonet and I like them all. I think they will get a lot of new readers for the paper, especially the comic section. Many of the fellows like to read the comics.

SGT. W. R. CHASTAIN, Headquarters detachment, Section 1, 3440th Area Service unit: I think the features are pretty good. The crossword puzzles are good, but the printing on the numbers should be a little clearer. The Jerk of the Week is a fine feature and there should be more of it.

SGT. ROBERT VAN HOUTEN, 440th Airbase Squadron: I particularly like comics in a newspaper and was glad to see the comics in The Bayonet. However, I don't care so much for the selection of the comics. I would like to see full pages and some of the better ones that I like.

Reminding post personnel of swimming hazards, Mr. Evans pointed out that in previous years an average of two people per week were killed by drowning in swimming in ponds, lakes and streams within the limits of the post. These areas are closed to swimming for definite reasons, Mr. Evans said, there is no life guard supervision for swimmers, the water in many cases is contaminated and the form of submerged rocks and stumps invite serious injuries or death from drowning.

An example was cited by Infantry Center Examining and Computing agency officials in clarification of this provision. An enlisted man who once held the grade of corporal (E-4), may apply for promotion examination to grade E-6, but not to E-7.

Ex-Officers May Apply A former warrant commissioned officer who now holds an enlisted grade of E-3 or higher may apply for promotion examination to any grade up to and including E-7, under this provision.

In cases where the applicant was reduced under the provisions of AR 635, his commanding officer must specifically indicate approval of the application, officials stated. All reports must have been terminated honorably.

In next week's Bayonet, the promotion examination schedules, including MOS, job title and grade listings and examination lists for each MOS will be published for the benefit of Fort Benning personnel who are preparing to take the career examinations.

STR Man Attains High Course Score

Army Adopts Sniperscope

WASHINGTON (APFS) - The electronic "sniperscope" which the army of the infantry credited with causing 30 percent of all enemy casualties in the Okinawa campaign, is to become a standard item of army equipment.

The army announced that field forces were so impressed with the efficiency of the auxiliary weapon, enabling the rifleman to "see" the enemy through darkness, that all units of 10 divisions will be equipped with the device.

At night the rifleman points the "sniperscope" and his unit sights toward a spot where a sound has come. By switching on an infrared spotlight, he makes the rays scan the area. These are reflected from the target, picked up by the telescope and transferred into an image across the sights of the rifle.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Sergeant Receives Praise For Work in Radio Repair

An Infantry School Communications department sergeant has been chosen soldier of the week for his conscientious and untiring devotion to the repair and maintenance of $75,000 worth of radio equipment used for instruction here.

Sgt. 1st Cl. Joseph J. Pinter, Company B, Infantry School detachment, and chief of the Radio group's code room, has been charged with the responsibility of maintaining scores of radio sets that have been idle for many years. Although courses in radio at the Infantry School have been appreciably smaller than those during the war, maintenance problems have increased due to long periods of non-operation.

WITH THE EXCEPTION of some major repairs of equipment accomplished by the factories building the sets, Sergeant Pinter has used many of his off-duty hours to keep up the high standard of maintenance in the department.

Upon his own request, the 35-year old Stratford, Conn., army veteran has attended all courses offered by the Infantry School.

Allied Officers Enrolled Here

Nineteen officers from allied nations are guest students of the Infantry School's associate basic course No. 5.

Twelve of the guest officers are members of the Greek army, six are delegates from the Italian Army, and one is a representative from Iran.

Look Ahead to the Future With U.S. Savings Bonds

Trying to see your way out ahead of yourself — to visualize what might be in store — is never easy. So the temptation to let tomorrow take care of itself is a soft, short-sighted way out.

But when you stop and consider for a moment you realize this practical world we live in must be dealt with by practical means.

And so the inevitable problems of old age, retirement, large expenses must be prepared for with money. One of the best ways to save money is by buying bonds through the Class B deduction, which was set up to make the purchase of savings bonds easy and painless. The Class B deduction buys your bonds directly from your salary. You never miss the money because you never see it. It is channeled into an insurance against the future which pays dividends at the rate of 4% for every $3 invested.

Starting May 15 and carrying on through July 4, the nation will be in the midst of the 1950 savings bond campaign. Its objective, as it has been in previous campaigns, is to contact every potential saver and urge him to set aside a part of his income regularly for the purchase of United States Savings Bonds.

This year's campaign, whose slogan is "Save For Your Independence," will be one of the most outstanding ever conducted in that it will utilize a symbol of our freedom to dramatize its theme. That symbol is the Liberty Bell. Six copper companies have donated 52 exact, full scale duplicates of the Liberty Bell which hangs in Philadelphia's Independence Hall. These bells, cast in France as was the original Liberty Bell, will tour the country during the seven-week campaign.

It is expected that one of the bells will be in the Columbus Fort Benning area, but Fort Benning troops shouldn't need any reminder to make them participate in the savings bond program. Indeed, we should all want to prepare ourselves for a comfortable retirement. What better way is there than through the regular purchase of United States Savings Bonds for savings bonds help to secure your own future by helping to secure the future of America. And when your money is making money just sitting still—brother, that is really looking ahead to a grand future!

Money, Selective Service Vital for Nation's Defense

The announcement last week by Georgia's Representative Carl Vinson that he would ask extension of the Selective Service Act followed a move by Congress to appropriate an additional $350 million for military spending. Both these moves will doubtless meet with stiff opposition from economy-minded members of the House and Senate, but their passage is almost assured in view of the support given both measures by ranking military planners, especially General of Army Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It's reassuring to know that the President, who requested the additional appropriation, and the Congress, which must act on his and Vinson's recommendations, are taking steps to remedy the dangerous situation that was sure to result from the reduced military budget for 1951. The worsening of the international situation has made it more and more evident during the past few months that something would have to be done, monetarily speaking, if our security were to remain unthreatened.

The new appropriation will provide for more men in the Services, more warships at sea and more planes in the air. The Selective Service Act will provide a quick method of mobilization should the need arise. Both are necessary if we are to remain powerful enough and ready enough to resist any attempt at aggression.

Chamber Man Visits Benning

A recently adopted plan to foster better relations between servicemen at Fort Benning and citizens of Columbus went into effect this week when Todd Amon of the city Chamber of Commerce visited the post to discuss problems emanating from soldiers' visits to the city.

To fulfill the other part of a dual-vision agreement between Benning and Columbus officials, a representative of the Infantry Center public information office will confer with Chamber of Commerce delegates on Friday afternoon.

Secretary Acheson Promises Indo-China Aid

Secretary of State Dean Acheson in Paris this week on a mission to rally the "moral and material strength" of the free world promised U. S. aid to the French-supported government in Indo-China. In a preliminary meeting with French Foreign Minister Robert Schumann, it is claimed Acheson reached an agreement to allow Western Germany to forgo its own foreign policy. The decision on Germany is subject to approval by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin when the Big Three foreign ministers hold their scheduled meeting in London.

Other developments in the cold war this week include a statement in the Baltic plane incident brought about by renewed American charges that the Soviets are solely responsible for the loss of the Navy Privateer and its crew. In Berlin, the Russians have agreed to a city-wide election only if all occupation troops are withdrawn from the city. Anti-Communist feeling has surged across Western Germany since the Russian announcement that no more war prisoners will be returned from the Soviet zone. In the Russian-occupied province of Austria, Communists lost control of all city and town councils by popular election.

The Senate passed a $3 billion foreign aid bill this week by a vote of 60-8. The Marshall Plan which has cost over $4-billion to date will continue in effect for another year.

President Truman started on his cross-country fight against the Republican Party this week after proposing a plan for government insured loans to small businessmen. On the first few steps of his 16-state stamping tour the President has lashed out against isolationism and offered the Brannan Farm Plan as a step toward prosperity. Republican Senator Wherry called Truman's administration "Spendthrift socialism" in the first of a series of speeches planned by the GOP to counter-attack the Presidential tour.

The battle over Federal Fair Employment Practices legislation that is expected to tie up Senate activity for weeks began this week.

Senator McCarthy has claimed the State Department loyalty files turned over the Senate investigating committee are incomplete. Speaking before the annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Young Republicans, McCarthy made vague charges against still another unnamed official.

In the Far East, Nationalist China leaders said this week that Russia and Red China are preparing for world war. Nationalist sources reported that 60,000 of their troops have been evacuated from Communist-conquered Hainan. General MacArthur rebuked a Russian claim that U. S. bases in Japan violate Allied occupation policies. The general also stated that the Allies have enough Pacific bases to smash any amphibious attack from Siberia or China.

Labor unions must continue to file non-Communist oaths to use the machinery of the National Labor Relations Board, the Supreme Court decided this week. Accusations and demands flew fast and furious between the Chrysler Corporation and the United Auto Workers even after the 100-day strike finally ended this week.

Disaster struck Quebec this week in the form of a wind swept blizzard that caused an estimated damage of $20 million. A storm in Chicago killed at least eight persons and injured scores when winds reached as much as 125 miles an hour. Sudden winds which lashed small craft on Long Island sound took a week-end toll of at least 17 dead or missing.

Asks Us to Be Peaceful, Grateful, Charitable

BY CHAPLAIN ALOYSIUS C. ZIELINSKI

There is no doubt whatever about the type of Christian we should be if we read the writings of the Gospel-bearer to the Gentiles. Paul would have us religious men, with minds turned often to God, peaceful in spirit and grateful to God, Our Father. Above all, he urges upon us the spirit of charity. It is in line with this charity that St. Paul exhorts us to show forgiveness to one another: "Bear with one another and forgive one another; even as the Lord has forgiven you, so also do you forgive." Forgiveness is not an easy virtue to practice. It does not even seem attractive. Any clever writer or talker can make it seem silly, weak and ridiculous. Yet of all virtues, it is perhaps the most typically Christian.

"This is Christ's most striking innovation in morality," said a writer a few months ago, "it has produced so much impression on man or at least the fundamental part of the Christian moral system. When a Christian spirit is spoken of, it may be remarked that a forgiving

A FEW FLOWERS FOR SHINER BY RICHARD LEWELLYN. THE MACMILLAN CO. PUBLISHERS. BY ALLEN L. MULLIKIN

Deep sentiment in the hearts of ordinary human beings, warms this latest work of the author of How Green Was My Valley. The insight that enables Richard Lewellyn to write of the intricacies of feeling raises this episodic novel to an appealing revelation of its memorable characters.

Snowy, a Cockney truck-driver, captures the reader as a hero who wears his week-day clothes and his Sunday feelings seven days out of every week. Snowy is not a church-goer, but his intricate sense of right and wrong are those of a man born honest.

Author Lewellyn starts his hero on his way in Italy shortly after the ending of World War II had passed over that country. Snowy is bound on a short leave to place some flowers on the grave of his buddy, Shiner, who was killed when their truck hit a mine. Next to the memory of Shiner the closest thing to the heart of Snowy is their truck, Rosie. The care and affection lavished on Rosie converts her from mere rolling stock to a vital part of the little group that soon joins Snowy on his leave.

The first passenger to join Snowy and Rosie on their mission is Bill, a mechanic from Lancashire. He is a lean and hard little man who gives a helping hand but accompanies it with a bitter word. An American named Max hitches a ride and makes the party a threesome. Max is a second generation Italian from the United States. It begins to look like Author Lewellyn has chosen a clumsy method of gathering his characters in a centralized location when Rosie next picks up an American girl who is an Italian princess by marriage.

A thin plot line emerges as this list of characters, headed by Snowy, begins to pick up adventures like a local bus making regular stops. The subtle interplay of personality flickering among these people though writing that captures the breath of spoken dialects saves the reader from the triteness of plot in the early portions of the book. Explicit detail of a vanquished Italy and its stricken people also polishes and edge that would have been dull indeed except for an accomplished master of carefully chosen words.

Melodrama splashes among the delicate pieces of Italian crockery when Rosie is high-jacked by a band of thieving deserters who loot and kill in the shadow of recent battle. Recreating their career down the Italian peninsula Snowy and his friends gather a following of emotional peasants for a fight with the band of thieves. In a prolonged battle that rages through bandits' lairs in hillside caverns, among excited mobs caught in a volcanic eruption, and eventually into the camp of deserters the little group struggles to recapture Rosie.

A Few Flowers For Shiner is as contrived as a detective story but its structure is draped with the silken cloth of sensitivity.

Post Places Bid For Rifle Match

Fort Benning's commanding general pledged full support this week to a plan to lure the highly-touted Southeastern Rifle association annual firing match here.

Prospects of getting the kind of match to the Infantry Center each year loomed brighter today as Maj. Gen. W. C. Burrell, Infantry Center commander, gave unqualified support to plans for servicing the annual meet. Brig. Gen. J. Sladen Bradley, assistant commander of the Infantry School, also made known his intentions to officially back plans now in the making.

All this was revealed this week after five Infantry Center rifle champs returned from the association's Camp Gordon, Ga., claiming almost half the 36 prizes offered in the two-day meet.

Capt. Werp President Capt. Joseph A. Werp, of the Infantry School's Training Publications department, took the spotlight at the April 28-30 match by winning the top-scoring position and being elected president of the nationally-recognized club.

Sgt. F. L. Eysel, of the Infantry School's Weapons Department, also tallied ranking scores and was elected vice-president of the organization for the coming year.

Early this week, Captain Werp made known that it was a virtual certainty the match would be held here. In a meeting last night, Captain Werp and other officers began mapping plans for the important annual meeting.

During the match which was held here—the Infantry Center would be host to about 500 of the nation's top marksmen. The bulk of the contestants, however, would be from the seven regional rifle associations, which are not limited to southeastern contestants. Captain Werp expects competition to come from the North and West.

Must Furnish Facilities

During the meet, in which scores of the 30 caliber rifle, Fort Benning would be required to supply ammunition, weapons, billeting and ranges for the contestants. The bulk of the match will be from marine corps teams, Reserve Officer Training team from the National guard and civilian clubs.

Several details must also be cleared by the director of civilian marksmanship in Washington, the rule-maker for the National Rifle Association, of which the Southeastern team is a part.

The area rifle association was formed by the south-east's leading rifle clubs. The purpose of the club, as the charter outlines, is to promote marksmanship in 30 caliber rifles throughout this area. The club is specifically interested in promoting shooting among younger marksmen, with the intention of fostering and developing larger clubs and meets.

TIS Department to Publish Bulletin for ORC Officers

The Infantry School's Training Publications department will soon begin producing a four-page training bulletin for quarterly distribution to Organized Reserve Corps officers in the United States.

Capt. John W. Baumgartner, a spokesman for the publication section, said this week the new booklet will be another vehicle of information for officers not on active duty. He said more than 40,000 active Infantry officers—those not in uniform but enrolled in some type of reserve training duty—would benefit from the booklet-type bulletin.

As planned now, the bulletin will contain tactical and technical information pertinent to Infantry training. It will be issued each June, September, December and March.

Authorized and directed by the Army department, the Fort Benning-produced booklet will cover such subjects as infantry reserve duty and summer training, newly published extension courses, new Infantry tactics, and other matters directly concerned with the Infantry reserve officer.

Captain Baumgartner said that after being printed here, the booklets would be forwarded to senior army instructors of military districts for distribution to reserve officers.

This is in addition to another program implemented last September in which thousands of subject schedules and complete courses for the training of an infantry reserve unit in a three-year cycle were written, printed and distributed by the Infantry School to National Guard, ORC and Reserve Officer Training Corps units. The new bulletin is primarily for information purposes rather than instructional programs.

Pathfinders Make Jump

Pathfinder class No. 3, Eighth company, Student Training Regiment, is now in its sixth week of training. Students made their first airborne jump as a pathfinder team last Wednesday at Lae field and Dekkar strip.

Division Forms Records Team

A personnel administration audit-instruction team has been organized by the Third Infantry division to advise and instruct personnel officers in management procedure.

Although the function of the team is based on the inspection of records and files normally maintained in a unit personnel section, its primary mission is to point out errors, instruct personnel in the maintenance of records, make recommendations for increased efficiency, and prevent recurrence of errors.

School to Hold Radio Course

A single sideband radio repair course for qualified enlisted men will be conducted at the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J., according to a recent Third Army announcement.

The course, lasting 12 weeks, is open to enlisted men in the grade of E-4 (corporal) or higher, who hold MOS 0649 or 0752 and who have completed at least one enlistment. The first class will report May 12, and classes will be held every 13 weeks thereafter.

Upon satisfactory completion of this course, students will be given three weeks of subsequent training in Multiplex equipment. The single sideband radio repair course originally scheduled for June 2 has been cancelled, the announcement said.

Jerk of the Week

Loudmouth Wins Unanimous Vote

Smooth sailing was the keynote of the Selection committee meeting, as the doped up members unanimously picked Sgt. Louis Fiddlestuffer as Jerk-of-the-Week.

A dismal soldier if there ever was one, Fiddlestuffer is the character who delights in entering the barracks along about midnight like a herd of drunken elephants. Flipping on all the lights in total disregard of his sleeping buddies, this hideous pest makes sure everyone wakes up by lifting the ends of one or two bunks and letting them crash to the floor with a loud bang, roaring with laughter at his cute little trick.

Shutting old flapjaw up and getting him into bed usually takes at least half an hour. He apparently thinks (?) that anyone who wants to sleep rather than listen to his brand of inconsequential guff is out of his mind. The word "consideration" is simply not in his vocabulary.

Loudmouth Lou is the kind of jerk that can't be insulted. Possessed of a pair of brass lined lungs, he operates on the theory that shouting everybody is the best way to win an argument. Since he lacks intelligence of the most rudimentary sort, other people's opinions mean nothing to him. Lippy Louis can be impressed all right, but only with a baseball bat or a large meaty fist right in the teeth.

When he is sober, he poses as an authority on a wide variety of topics—women and liquor. Fiddlestuffer's views on the world situation are as worthless as a politician's promise, but he offers them—on the rare occasion that can be weaned away from his favorite discourse on babes and booze—supported with some of the weirdest distortions of truth and reason ever uttered by man.

Among his other unusually unappealing traits is his habit of blaming everything and everybody but himself for his troubles. To hear him yak, one would be convinced that his first sergeant is the meanest, rottenest and stupidest individual in the whole army, and his comments on the old man are a perfect imitation of the ravings of an illiterate maniac. One of life's great mysteries is how this incredible old gets by in the army. Fortunately, there aren't many like him. Congratulations, Fiddlestuffer old boy. Come around any time for your honor award, a fine and frosty hydrocyanic acid cocktail.

Oliver Closing Not to Add Patients to Hospital Here

Slightly less than a handful of ousted patients from the closed Oliver General hospital, Augusta, Ga., is expected to turn to Fort Benning's Station hospital for housing and medical care, a spokesman said here today.

The Infantry Center hospital official who made the announcement said that after June 30, when the Veterans Administration takes over the army hospital, the 500 patients there will seek facilities elsewhere. The hospital here, he said, will be required to handle but a few cases, if any. He said, however, that nothing official had been determined yet.

Oliver General hospital was formerly the luxurious Forest Hills hotel, one of the South's most sumptuous resorts. Early in World War II, the army took over the costly building and converted it into a modern hospital for casualties of the war.

During the war, additional temporary structures were added to the hospital site to care for increased patient traffic. At one time, the hospital was caring for some 1,500 patients. Only 500 are on the rolls now.

When the VA takes over Oliver General in June, it will begin ousting army patients and moving in VA patients from Lawson General hospital in Chamblee, Ga., a VA hospital closed for economy purposes.

A VA official in Atlanta said this week that no disposition of Oliver's famous golf course had been made as yet. He said, however, that the course, which has been operated both for military and civilian tournaments, might be deeded surplus and put up for sale. It adjoins the hospital.

Associate basic infantry class No. 4, Sixth company, Student Training Regiment, graduated 159 students last week.

What is it worth TO YOUR FAMILY?

It takes more than arithmetic to add up the full value of the telephone when Grandmother calls up to say, "Happy Birthday" . . . when Mother wants to let the druggist, "Rush the order, please" . . . or when Junior hears the magic words, "I'm giving a party— you're invited."

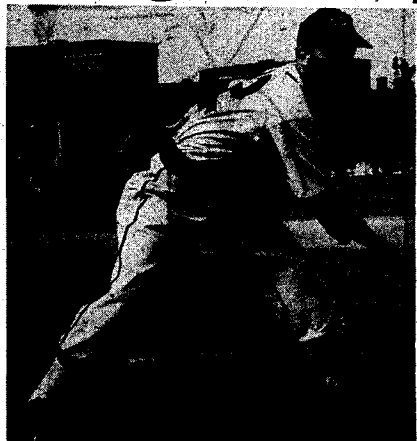

Between the calls you make and the calls you receive, the telephone is such an active partner in your daily life it's almost one of the family! Day and night, rain or shine, it serves the whole family in countless ways—running errands, spreading cheer, bringing friends and loved ones closer.

When you stop to think how much it does for you, at the price you pay, telephone service stands out as one of today's biggest bargains. And it grows bigger as the number of people you can call keeps increasing and the service becomes faster and better.

League Play Begins Monday

PROFS MOUND CHOICE FOR LEAGUE OPENER. Bob Davis To Hurl Against Special Troops

ODDS ENDS

By STEVE BOLAND

At 8 p. m. next Monday night, the Fort Benning intra mural baseball leagues will be ushered in when Capt. John Seymour's Infantry School detachment Profs and Capt. Tom Cookingham's Third Infantry division Special Troops squad meet at Gowdy field.

Capt. James Walker's Trooper squad, defending champions, is again favored to cop the loop title, but may encounter more opposition than last season. An already powerful Trooper squad has been further strengthened by the addition of the hitting and fielding power of Paul Bomair, Jim Shirley and Joe Smith.

I know that all Fort Benning personnel will join me in congratulating the Army Field Printing Plant's volleyball team on its excellent showing in winning the all-army net crown last week.

In last week's all-army affair at Fort Ord, Calif., Harvey Allen's squad displayed its true championship qualities in coming from behind to take the title. Looking at the scores, it can readily be seen that the Doughs faced much stiffer competition than ever before and came through under heavy pressure several times.

Coming back to the baseball world, it is expected that post fans will be looking for many bounces by the moundsmen during the season's play. In order to set their minds at ease and also help them look for the different violations, which are 13 in number, the following rulings are taken from the rule book. The penalty for a balk rules the ball dead and allows each runner or runners to advance one base if—

While in contact with the rubber, the pitcher makes any motion naturally associated with his pitch and fails to make such delivery.

The pitcher, when in pitching position, fails to step directly toward the base before throwing to that base.

When in pitching position, the pitcher feints a throw to first base and fails to complete the throw.

The pitcher, while on the rubber, throws or feints a throw to an unoccupied base except for the purpose of making a play.

A ball is delivered to the batter while the pitcher's pivot foot is not in contact with the rubber.

Any natural motion associated with a pitch is made while the pitcher is not in contact with the rubber.

The pitcher delays the game unnecessarily.

A pitch is feinted, when the pitcher does not have the ball and is on, astride or behind the rubber.

After coming to his set position, the pitcher removes one hand from the ball other than in an action pitch or in throwing to a base.

The pitcher, accidentally or intentionally, drops the ball while in contact with the rubber.

The ball is delivered while the catcher is not in the catcher's box.

A pitch is delivered from the set position without coming to a full second stop.

A pitcher is also charged with a balk when the catcher steps on or in front of home plate without the ball, or touches the batter or his bat, with a runner on third and trying to score on a squeeze play or steal.

ISD Profs Face Special Troops in 'Loop' Opener

Fort Benning's 1950 intra-mural baseball season will get under way Monday night, when the Infantry School detachment Profs play host to the Third Infantry division Special Troops squad at Gowdy field. Game time is 8 p.m.

Ninety-four games are scheduled for the season's play which terminates around July 23. Following are the numbers designated to each of the teams: No. 1, Infantry School detachment; No. 2, Third Infantry division engineers; No. 3, Provisional Medical group; No. 4, Lawton field; No. 5, 15th Infantry regiment; No. 6, 30th Infantry regiment; No. 7, Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion; No. 8, 344th Army Service unit; No. 9, Third Infantry division artillery; and No. 10, Third Infantry division Special Troops.

Each team will face all others twice in the round robin system of play being used, and all games will be played at Gowdy field. Nine games a week will be on tap for post fans with tilts being played every night of the week except Saturdays. Afternoon games will be played on Wednesday, Saturdays and Sundays. Afternoon games will start at 2 p. m., with all night games scheduled to get under way at 8 p. m.

Additional rules announced by the league officials require a 15 minute rest period between games in playing uniform 15 minutes before they are scheduled to play. If a team fails to appear ready to play, or refuses to play, when the chief umpire calls "play ball," the game will be forfeited, league officials said.

Post Nine Wins Aggressor Title

The softball team from Company F, 15th Infantry regiment, won the Swarmer "Aggressor" softball league championship at Fort Bragg, N. C., recently when they defeated Battery B, 41st Field Artillery battalion, by a close 4-3 margin in a game that was forced into an extra inning.

Twenty-nine unit teams were entered in the tournament with Companies F and Battery B winding up in the final playoffs for the championship plaque.

Highlighting the game for the Dragons was the outstanding hurling of Emory Barron, who allowed the Artillerymen only three hits during the eight-inning affair. Jim MacVean paced the Dragon hitters with two doubles and the single that broke up the game.

Jim Welder pitched a fine game for the losers, and was also his team's leading hitter in pounding out three hits for two of the Artillery's three runs.

The Dragons will be awarded the championship plaque shortly after their return to Fort Benning.

Ashbacher Tops All-Events Field In Pins Tourney

Lt. Vern Ashbacher with a 16-game total of 2,659 for an average of 177 per game, topped top honors in the all-events phase of the first annual Officers' club bowling tournament at the Main bowling last week.

Lt. Col. Harold Browning took the singles title, with a five-game total of 933 for a 187 average, while Capt. Tom Roussinville and Maj. Arthur Gottlieb teamed up to take the doubles event with a total pinfall of 1,700.

Team champion for the tournament was the quartet of Capt. Anthony Kutauskas, Lt. Henry Bruno, Maj. Sidney Frazier and Lt. Robert Doran, who rolled a 3,322 to take the title by a margin of 104 pins from their nearest competitors.

The tournament was the first of its kind to be held by the club and brought to a close the officers' 1949-50 bowling season.

In the singles competition the groups were divided into five flights, while the doubles was a three-flight affair. The results of the various flights and their scores are as follows:

Doughs Win Net Tourney

Fort Benning's Doughboy volleyball team, representing the Third Army area, captured the first annual all-army volleyball title last week by taking two straight games from the Sixth Army representatives by scores of 16-14 and 16-14 in the final set.

The double elimination affair took place at Fort Ord, Calif., and had eight different teams representing various army areas entered. Teams included were from the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth areas, the Military District of Washington, and the Far East and Pacific commands. A team from the Alaskan Command was entered, but was snowed out.

In Great Falls, Mont., on its way to Ord.

Win Seven Out of Eight. In taking the championship, the Doughs had to win seven of eight sets with their lone defeat coming at the hands of the Fourth Army sextet in the third round of play, dropping the Benning team into the losers' bracket. Benning took the first game of this set, but lost out in the next two matches by scores of 15-12 and an overtime tilt of 18-16.

Two victories were registered by the Doughs in the first and second rounds of play over the Fifth Army and Far East command teams by scores of 15-7, 15-8 and 15-7, 15-13.

Following their 7-1 loss to the Fourth Army squad, the Doughs came back fast to take easy wins from the Fifth Army group by scores of 15-6 and 15-7. The next set against the Pacific command saw the Doughs come from behind with 15-13 and 16-14 wins after dropping the opening game, 15-12.

Benning then faced the Fourth Army team again in the quarter finals and avenged their earlier loss by taking the set in three straight matches, 15-12 and 15-2.

Meet 6th Army in Finals. With one loss against them, the Doughs went into the semi-final stage of play against the undefeated Sixth Army team. They won the first match, 15-13, lost the second, 15-11, and entered the finals by taking the final game of the set, 15-4.

The final set of the tournament between the Third Army and Sixth Army teams proved to be a thriller, judging by the scores, with Benning coming through to take two straight games and the title by identical counts of 16-14.

The Doughboy team boasts a record of seven straight Infantry Center titles for consecutive Third Army titles and the first annual all-army championship.

Coached by M-Sgt. Harvey Allen with men of the team are members of Company C, Infantry School detachment, and assigned to duty with the Army Field Printing Plant.

Col. Willis Cronk, Third Army special services officer, accompanied the team to Fort Ord to see the members were presented with the all-army sports program certificates of accomplishment and cowhide traveling bags.

Activity Starts In Regimental Softball Loop

The 30th Infantry regimental softball tournament got under way last week with 15 teams battling for the championship.

Company I hopped off to a fast lead in the Third battalion play by chalking up three wins in as many outings. Company M is second in the running with two wins and one setback.

In Provisional battalion it's a hot race between Heavy Mortar company and a regimental Headquarters company. Headquarters is in the lead at present, having won three and lost none, but the Heavy Mortar team has garnered three victories in four trips to the field.

In the Second battalion it's a two way tie for first place between Companies F and G, each of which boasts a perfect record. Company F has two wins and no losses and company G, one win in as many starts.

First battalion play has been delayed temporarily by a range commitment. BUI activity is expected to resume again this week.

The tournament is being played in five phases with each of the four battalions to select a championship squad. The four top teams in battalion competition then will meet for the regimental crown. The winning team will represent the regiment in the all-army softball tourney, scheduled for early next month. The 30th is reported to have a wealth of material, and regimental athletic officials expect a much better and faster brand of ball to be played this season than prevailed last year.

Magruder Tops Hoebeke To Capture Links Crown

Maj. Lawson Magruder came from behind to win the 1950 Officers' club golf championship Sunday afternoon when he defeated Maj. Arnold Hoebeke by a score of 2 and 1 in the final 36-hole match held at the Fort Benning Country club course.

Shooting just over par throughout the tournament Magruder took five successive elimination rounds to cop the title. His victims included Lt. Col. H. Browning, Lt. A. Brown, Maj. M. Felt, defending champion Lt. J. Henion and Major Hoebeke.

Lt. John Henion and Maj. Arthur Cottlieb shared medalist honors in the tourney when both shot a 74 in the opening matches.

Winners, runners-up, co-medalists and consolation winners in each flight will receive awards during a club party at a later date.

In the morning round of the 36 hole final play Major Hoebeke topped Major Magruder one up. Going out Major Hoebeke went into a hole, but when he picked up a stroke on each of the third and fifth holes, Magruder came back to lead when he shot a par on the sixth and seventh cups. Hoebeke regained his one stroke lead when he shot a bogey on the ninth hole as Magruder bogeyed. Both men halved coming in on the final nine holes of the morning with Hoebeke taking the No. 14 hole and Magruder coming back on the 16th.

The afternoon play saw both men under pressure and shooting under par by finishing the first nine with a 35 apiece. Hoebeke advanced to a two-stroke lead when he sank a long putt to birdie on the No. 2 hole, but Magruder came back to shoot par on the seventh hole while Hoebeke went into a hole still holding a one up lead.

Coming in on the final round Magruder blew several chances to tie the score when he missed federal.

two consecutive short putts on the 18th and 19th holes but finally broke into the lead by shooting par on the 13th and 14th holes while Hoebeke was having trouble in the hands to the right on both. Hoebeke came back to tie the score when he birdied the No. 15 hole, but Magruder re-shot landed.

More Plans Made For Post Nimrods

Sportsmen at Fort Benning have enjoyed better hunting and fishing in the past year than ever before, and even better conditions are forecast for next year, thanks to the Fish and Game Maintenance association.

This group was authorized in an effort to better the fishing and hunting facilities on the reservation. Membership in the organization, however, is not a prerequisite to hunt and fish on the reservation, although all contributions made by the membership are used for planning and carrying out.

5-Year Program Planned
Last year the organization made progress toward improvement of the reservation made by experts in fish and game maintenance. As a result of the survey and its recommendations, a five-year program to increase fish and game on the reservation is being carried out.

All progress thus far has been made with the use of the membership fees and the active support of the post privileges however, includes less than one-third of the personnel who hunt and fish on the reservation. In order to make the program successful, the association has asked Fort Benning sportsmen to purchase a Fort Benning hunting and fishing license.

Recommendation to increase game on the reservation has already been acted upon, officials with plots and fields of seed and plant for the various game to feed on.

Wild pig and deer are still under protection, but within the next two or three years the season will be open. This game program was highly successful last year, and areas overpopulated with these venies are again being trapped with good results, association authorities reported.

Improvements in fishing included the removal of trash fish and restocking of the ponds with bream and bass. Each year more than 100,000 pounds of fertilizer have been put into the ponds to increase the size and number of fish. Other fishing improvements have been the building of weirs, raising the water levels in some ponds and repairing and rehabilitating several ponds.

Benning Woman Completes Class

Mrs. Bessie A. Parker, chief of the administrative section in salary and wage section, of the Airborne Department, recently completed a three-week civilian personnel course at the School of Civilian Personnel Administration in Washington, D. C.

The course, also attended by several army and navy officers, stressed theories and practices of civilian personnel administration. Conferences and lectures were given by a group of ex-A. Infantry School detachments, which followed the game and fish laws of Georgia and the federal government. It is restricted to those who purchase a Fort Benning hunting and fishing license.

Benning Park Also Open
Meanwhile, first- and three-grade noncommissioned officers and their families are being assigned to Benning Park Homes in an effort to alleviate housing shortages. Some vacancies occur as NCO's here get those units. Officials here said that officers are no longer being assigned there. The Center Road terrace housing project continued, its construction progress this week. The 5,500 sq ft AIA-approved development will open the way for occupancy by officers' families now living in Benning Park. After the project is completed, all officers' families living in Benning Park will be eligible for transfer, thereby leaving Benning Park units for first- and three-grade NCO's and their families.

The Fort Benning housing situation shined up this week as "very good" according to Col. Marcus Bell, Infantry Center G-4. He said that the present conditions are the best ever experienced by the post.

Survey Planned On Non-Regulars

A Third Army communication has recently announced a survey of all non-regular officers and warrant officers assigned to Third Army units to be conducted this month in order to formulate advance plans for officer replacements in the year 1951.

Unit personnel officers responsible for the verification and authentication of monthly personnel rosters will conduct this survey, which will determine the number of non-regulars who plan to apply for a new category statement. The announcement stated.

The information received as a result of the survey is for planning purposes only, the announcement said, and will not be binding should a change be desired prior to the date any officer submits application under existing regulations. For this reason, a positive or negative statement from all non-regular officers and warrant officers desired, the announcement added.

Liaison Officer To Join Parley

Major Meade, who will return to the Infantry Center on May 25, is responsible for guiding and assisting all top-ranking allied military and civilian personnel who visit here. He also acts as interpreter for guests who do not speak English.

Major Meade said this week he will visit Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, home of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Knox, Ky., home of the Army-Liaison School, and the Foreign Liaison branch of the army's Intelligence division, Washington.

The general purpose of the tour is to discuss and coordinate problems relating to the visits of allied students and observers to United States military installations.

The present inadequate facilities... Monday night, the fight to keep alive Fort Benning's school will be led by Maj. Gen. Walter B. Burress, the post's school board. School Principal Peter Wilkin and the Parent-Teacher Association. General Burress has on many occasions asserted that the school is of great importance to every Fort Benning citizen, regardless of whether he is a parent.

THE MATTER BECOMES increasingly complicated when children living in Wherry housing projects are considered. Congress late last year rejected a proposal to educate these government funds the children living in Wherry projects. A clause in the bill specifically says that school-age children living in such projects are not to be considered for government aid in education. An increase in post population is being met by the school, also to like the educational demands of the school. Although the military personnel are not expected to arrive here, many families will be moving from the housing into quarters on the reservation.

Scouts Show Demonstration
A snake demonstration, sponsored by the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association, was presented at the Polo Hunt club last Saturday morning for the benefit of Cub Scouts. Brownies and their families, including families who now live on post, were expected to move here next year. The school faces its most crucial emergency, officials said at the meeting.

Airborne exhibits in Bainbridge, Ga., where division troops will parade on Saturday. Georgia towns and cities scheduled to receive the Third division troops march on Saturday are Rome, Albany, Douglasville, West Point, Hawkinsville and Bainbridge. In addition to the parades Saturday, the Infantry School will be in charge of setting up a display of airborne equipment in Atlanta. Saturday's Alabama Agenda Saturday cavalcades also include Birmingham, Bessemer, Gadsden and Montgomery, Ala. More Third division troops will pass in review in Jacksonville, Fla., on Saturday, while the 344th Area Service unit will send a parade element to Nashville, Tenn., the same day. The only parade scheduled for Sunday is in Cartersville, Ga., where the same troops to march in Rome Saturday will pass in review.

Five Officers Get New Assignments
Five officers of the 41st Field Artillery battalion were reassigned this week. They include 1st Lt. Harold J. Battery B, to Headquarters, 2d Lt. Hubert W. Potts, Headquarters, Battery B, 1st Lt. Charles D. Daniel, Battery B, to Battery A, and 1st Lt. Robert J. Shearer, Jr., Battery A, to Service Battery.

Mistake Made In Exam Story
In the article on career field examinations in last week's Bayonet, a typographical error changed the meaning of an example used to explain current regulations which allow enlisted men who can hold higher grades to apply for examinations to those grades. The example should have read: An enlisted man who once held the grade of sergeant first class (E-4) and who now holds the grade of corporal (E-4), may apply for promotion examination to Grade E-4, but not to E-7.

Platitudes Boomerang

There's one officer at Fort Benning who's got a reason to be glum. Roy Eaton, a Red Cross field worker, walked into the officer's office while he (the officer) was explaining to a young soldier why writing home is so important. The officer, in so many words, was telling him that it is a responsibility that must be fulfilled. The officer then looked up and asked, "Mr. Eaton did you want to see me?" Said Eaton: "We've received a letter from your hometown. 'It seems your mother has not heard from you in several months,' the Red Cross worker said. The soldier smiled and made an exit while the captain blushed.

Nation Salutes Armed Forces

For the first time in history, the Nation has been called upon to pay tribute to all the Armed Forces on the same day. This new day of observance—May 20—springs from a new concept: unification of the three services into a single defense team.

In Chicago, President Truman made the final speech in his 8,000 mile whistle-stop tour. Truman capped his many speeches with a final plea for voters to stop "obstructionists" in the November elections.

The Elder Brother Was Homeless at Home

BY CHAPLAIN CHARLES S. H. HUNTER
In the story of the Elder Brother we see a man who, because of attitudes, is estranged from his immediate surroundings. He is homeless at home.

World War II gave ample evidence that modern war cannot be waged successfully without unified planning, unified research and unified procurement. No matter what other point may be disputed, there is common agreement that we will never again be permitted the luxury of months, not to mention years, to organize for a war after it has started.

Another compelling reason for unification is economy. According to Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson, "unification provides a means of obtaining greater national security at less expense. Not by arbitrary acts, but through coordination and consolidation of overlapping activities, and the elimination of waste, duplication and competition among the three services we are beginning to lighten the load which the cost of national security imposed on our whole economy.

Aside from agreement on roles and missions of the Armed Forces and the establishment of unified commands, probably the greatest achievement is the single military budget. In the past, it was found that military budgets, presented to Congress by the individual services, contained many duplications and overlaps. Under the single budget system these were weeded out by Department of Defense officials.

One of the most outstanding consolidations was the formation of the Military Air Transport Service and the Air Transport Command of the Air Force. Along the same line, all sea transport has been consolidated into the Military Sea Transportation Service under operational control of the Navy.

Before unification, many laws were enacted that apply to the Army and Navy but which differ in many respects. A unified legislation has changed this.

Some of the other accomplishments under unification:
1. Establishment of a Weapons Evaluation Group to provide comparative analysis of different weapons systems.
2. Establishment of a unified Office of Public Information.
3. Appointment of a Personnel Policy Board to insure uniform, adequate and fair actions affecting both military and civilian personnel.

These are only a few of the many accomplishments of unification. But they have helped to achieve unity of command and unity of purpose. They will help to save precious time in case of emergency, and they have helped and will continue to help the Nation save money without sacrificing our military strength. And they prove what can be accomplished when all three services are teamed for defense.

To Amuse You Today

A weary GI went to the barber shop after a grueling 30-mile hike. He slumped down in the chair.

"Gimme a shave," he said. The barber told him that he was too far down in the chair for a shave.

"O.K.," said the soldier wearily, "gimme a haircut."

The car stopped suddenly in a dense country lane. "What are you doing here?" the girl friend pulled a flask out of her handbag.

"Wow," said he, "What's that? Bourbon?" "No," she retorted, "gasoline."

EASY ON THE ICE... But take away the ice, and you'd still have something plenty nice in Lucille of the ice-adagio team of Charles and Lucille, a feature attraction of the Ice Vogues of 1950.

First Pvt: "Do you believe in clubs for non-coms?" Second Pvt: "Why yes, if we can't persuade them any other way."

Benning Matron Achieved Success In Advertising Art

By MAY FIGOTT Bayonet Woman's Editor "Things do not happen, they are brought about by a solid and wise saying, and a wise person uses grit and determination to bring about what he wants." Brunhilde Eggleton, wife of Capt. Richard E. Eggleton Jr., instructor at the Infantry School, was a little girl with such grit and determination.

learned in her head and worked as hard as she studied. Canadian Club. Her job began when photographers sent back from various countries photographs of products peculiar to that country. She was solely responsible for the finished ad, and was excited to have part in the job and Mr. Toad publicity.

SHE SAYS THAT EVEN though she is married, she is thinking seriously about photography with an idea of selling some of her better shots. "All my vacations were planned with an idea of the pictures I could take there. I had some wonderful ones in Bermuda and Nassau and I hope to get some good shots while I am in the South."

PERHAPS IT WAS NATURAL that she should be talented as an artist since her father was a well-known artist in marquetry. Their home was always a gathering place for artists of all types and Brunhilde was an avid listener when the topic of art was in conversation.

From then on Brunhilde knew she was in just the type of job she liked, and always ahead of the game when she was in the line might be an art director. She had and Brunhilde was an avid listener when the topic of art was in conversation.

And looking around the room at the exquisite hand-to-hand cabinets, chairs and tables, all wedding gifts from her father, this reporter could well envision a perfect home.

When Brunhilde was a student studying art, she was chosen as one of the pupils to attend the experimental classes in painting started by the Museum of Modern art. It was while she was in high school that she decided on commercial art as her forte, and it was while she was still in high school that she won a scholarship at Cooper Union Art school.

SHE PUT BOUNDLESS ENTHUSIASM into everything she did, and her director's right hand man. The excitement and rush was new to school. Winning the scholarship was a decided boost to her days were bound by deadline, or six hundred applications to the art school, only about 100 accepted.

With a grin she added, "and who knows, someday if my husband is ever stationed near New York, I might go back to that city for a while. I hope I could see that Brunhilde Eggleton was not a person to sit and wait for things to happen, she would help to bring them about."

Brunhilde was well on her way to making things happen in her life. She knew that the line she had chosen wouldn't be easy. Working all day and studying at night is not an easy life. She felt that she must work to help herself along. Working at Macy's (which was her first job) wasn't a very glamorous one, but Brunhilde had more to her credit than was made responsible for putting blonde hair and blue eyes, so together and laying out one of every day she stored things she

Army Daughters Base Party On Era of 1849 Gold Rush

"The 'Shoot Em Up' days of the old West prevailed at the Officers' mess on Friday night at the 49er party sponsored by the Army Daughters. All of the proceeds of this annual party will be given to the various charities on the post. For the event, the officer's mess was transformed into a replica of an old club in the gold rush days, with murals and signs carrying out the theme. Tables were decorated with candles in bottles, and background touches of the era were used in the decorations. Another touch of the West was added in the dance hall girls in their colorful period costumes. They were Misses Benning, Buregard, Boots Howard, Nina Fay, Jessie Honnen, Betty Honnen, Betty Lucas, Leslie Tibbets and Mary Ann Buracker. Costumes for the most part matched the decor and the gold rush days. Lt. Charles M. Adams won the costume prize for the men, and Mrs. E. Lynch won the judge's votes for the best lady's costume. Judges for the costumes were Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrell, Mrs. J. Sladen Bradley and Col. Dennis Moore. The unusual and interesting guessing contest which has been running for some time came to a close at the 49er party when the identity of Yukon Yehudi was disclosed. The winners were Lt. Col. Benning and Maj. James Bartholomew. Music for dancing was furnished by Sgt. Ben Cortez and his orchestra. Mrs. James Strain was chairman for the party assisted by Mrs. J. K. Chenualt, cochairman, and Col. D. P. Buckland food.

Teen Topica

BY PIE MEAD Silence, instead of the usual uproar, prevailed at Brat Barracks on a recent Saturday night when the "Touch-Me-Not" society came into being for victims of sunburn. Active members are Peggy McCrain, Bob Shaw, Jimmy Mayberry and Polly Hamilton, who moaned in agony as they applied Noxema to each other. At the country club base Friday night, Dick Hallden, with a piano solo, competed with the juke box, but in spite of this, Bob Shaw, Betty McNulty, Jimmy Mayberry, Pat Mead, Bill Ricker, Helen Wilbur, Elvin Kriekick and Nancy Welsh enjoyed dancing. D. S. Elle, George and I chased golf balls instead. Many of the group enjoyed hamburgers at a drive-in afterwards. Seen at the club Saturday night were Jimmy Mayberry, Joannie Peyton, Dick Sugg and "Sweet" Hurst. Roger Swindler is causing quite a sensation with his diving and his connection with that unusual four-wheeled machine.

Ralph Flanagan and his orchestra recently picked as one of the country's top dance aggregations, will make an appearance at the Pine Lodge No. 2 Mess next Sunday night, May 21. Flanagan and his band will play from 12 p.m. members and their families will be admitted free upon presentation of membership card. Guests of members will be charged $1. Pine Lodge will be closed between 4 and 6 p.m. on Sunday cleaning and decorating.

NEW AF JET FIGHTER To Protect Key Cities

Jet to Protect Big U.S. Cities Awaiting Tests

MURCO DRY LAKE, Calif. (AFPS)—A new jet fighter for defense of such vital centers as New York, Chicago, and Washington, has been delivered to the airforce and awaits flight evaluation tests at the "airforce center here."

The jet fighter, built by Republic Aviation corporation at Farmingdale, L. I., has swept-back wings of the type preferred by designers for supersonic flight and is designated the XF-84.

The plane is powered by an Allison J-35 turbo jet engine. Its design performance figures exceed those of the F-84E. The design of the wing permits additional fuel for additional external armament, such as rockets, bombs, etc.

The airforce will use the YF-84A to evaluate a swept wing version of the F-84 type aircraft.

CID Men Visit Benning

Maj. George J. Tilker, chief of the criminal investigation division, Third Army and Maj. Edward J. Kane, of the provost marshal general's office arrived at Fort Benning May 17 for a visit to the 11th Airborne division guard house operations unit current Department of the

W. D. Reed, chief entomologist in the office of the Chief of Engineers, and head of the army's insect and rodent control program, addressed a gathering of specialists from Third Army installations here last week to attend a three-day course in pest control.

Pest Control Head Addresses Parley

The course, under the supervision of Fred L. Morton, Third Army entomologist, was attended by about 50 representatives from Third Army units, and featured lectures by experts from the Department of Agriculture, Department of the Interior and the Public Health Service as well as demonstrations of the latest types of mechanical spraying equipment, insecticides and rodenticides.

As chief of the army's insect and rodent control section, Mr. Reed is responsible for the initiation of policy, the budgeting of funds and the recommendation of funding at all army installations.

Entered Army in 1942, Mr. Reed entered the army in 1942, after having achieved a reputation as a leading entomologist through his work in the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine and teaching at Clemson college. He is a graduate of Mississippi State college and took graduate work at Cornell university.

In 1945 he was transferred to the Corps of Engineers to assume the responsibility for developing an insect and rodent control program. According to the Third Army entomologist, Mr. Morton, Mr. Reed is the "grandfather" of the program as it is known today.

"Pest control operation has been revolutionized in the past few years," Mr. Reed said in 1943, for example, it cost $1.75 per acre to control the common fly. Present day costs run around four cents per acre. The discovery and use of highly toxic chemicals has placed greater responsibility on pest engineers and their representatives, since careless use can endanger lives.

Franks Course Success

In paying tribute to the course of instruction completed here on May 12 by Third Army units and entomologist specialists, Mr. Reed said:

"I think it was a highly successful training course. We had outstanding people to lecture and demonstrating the latest methods and equipment devised for pest control, and the course laid the basis for us to date operation in all Third Army installations."

Fort Benning is to be congratulated on the way the program was conducted and for the excellent arrangements made for the comfort and convenience of those who attended."

Committee Kills $97 Million Bill On Construction

A pending $97,000,000 housing appropriation for armed forces died aborning last week when the house armed services committee, led by Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) ruled out further government construction on military bases.

The move, which had been predicted in congressional quarters in the face of strong recommendations from defense leaders for additional appropriations for military armaments.

Chairman Vinson told the committee that the United States "can't win this enemy by throwing a house at him." He further stated that money was scarce, especially for armaments, adding:

"I should concentrate on buying more guns—the more something we can defend this country with."

Defeat of the bill eliminates the construction of 6,283 family housing units at bases within the United States. It also cuts 1,000 family units at bases in Alaska and the Pacific will not be eliminated.

Death of the housing bill, which was part of a $89,000,000 overall military construction program, is not intended to defeat further military building. The program will insure increased building by civilian construction firms. Under provisions of the law, private contractors pay for housing units and recover their costs slowly through the collection of quarters allowances by military personnel.

In recent housing projects erected under the Wherry plan, FHA has underwritten financing.

Medics Praised For Field Duty

During the recent Exercise Swarmer, the 421st Medical collecting company and 514th Medical hearing company, both of Fort Benning, were highly praised for the standard of efficiency they established among medical units employed in the operation of casualties, and the remainder went to Camp Mackall, N. C., under medical service to the invading forces.

E-7 Enlistment Rule Extended

The army this week extended the opportunity for each reserve officer who was on extended duty in the army in 1949 to enlist in the grade of master sergeant, according to an article in the Army-Navy Journal this week.

"If this extension is at any time terminated, a reserve officer will be required to complete the expiration of his category in which they are then serving in until separation prior to his expiration under other provisions of regulations," the article said.

by STEVE BOLAND

An organization to be known as the Inter-Service Sports Council has been established under the joint direction of the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force. Membership in the organization consists of two representatives from each of the services.

The objectives of the council are as follows: To encourage the maintenance of physical fitness by members of all the armed services through a policy of "sports for all."

To promote understanding, good will and cooperation among the armed services through inter-service sports championship competitions.

To further enhance the esprit de corps of the individual armed services through the development and encouragement of spectator interest sports.

To establish and maintain throughout the armed services uniform participation eligibility and governing rules for all service sports within its jurisdiction.

To institute, regulate and award the inter-service sports championships of two or more of the United States armed services.

Council representatives have the power to make all arrangements for the annual inter-service competitions sponsored, and have full power to act on and determine all points arising in connection with the competitions, but will not exercise any control whatsoever over the policy for a sports program which may be instituted by a member service within its own command.

The council has already announced the arrangement for inter-service tournaments in tennis and golf. The annual tennis tourney will be held in the area of Washington, D. C. with the winning team receiving both the Leach Trophy representing the armed services and the Kelsey Bowl presented by the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Fort Benning has been chosen as the site for the first annual inter-service golf classic in August of this year. No award has as yet been revealed for the winner of this event. A committee appointed by the council chairman with the advice and consent of the other council members has already visited Fort Benning in preparation for the forthcoming links tourney.

It looks as though the Fort Bragg, N. C., track and field team which has dominated Third Army meets for the past several years will continue to do so unless more effort is made by the other Third Army installations.

The Doughboys managed to grab only three first places and tie for one, while the Bragg team took 11 first places plus a tie to pile up a total of 102 points against the second place Doughs' 28 points. Camp Gordon, Ga., garnered five points, while Fort McPherson, Ga., the fourth entry, went scoreless.

The 1950 meet held at Fort Bragg saw four Third Army track and field records fall. Three of the new marks went to Bragg's Cecil Malone, Floyd Macaffee and a tie in the high jump to Jesse Moss and Threl Burton. The fourth record was set by Benning's Phil Ellison when he heaved the shot 48 feet two and one-half inches.

Chuck Hall, Ellison and Ed Edmonds were the outstanding Doughboys in the meet, with Hall coming through to take first place honors in his specialties, the 100- and 220-yard dashes. Ellison got his on a record breaking shot-put, while Edmonds tied for first in the pole vault and placed in the high jump.

Ken Morris of the 30th Infantry Regiment was the only Doughboy to place in the first five in the second annual pentathlon meet. Morris placed fourth with Bragg men taking the other four spots.

So that post baseball fans may understand certain plays and decisions made by the umpires, the following ground rules for Gowdy field are published:

If a batted ball strikes the foul line post, light pole above white mark, wires in the outfield other than the two wires running inside the park in right field and left field whether it bounces inside or outside the park, a home run is awarded the batter.

A batted ball is in play if it strikes the foul post, light poles below the white mark or wire running across right and left fields.

If a batted ball lands in fair territory and bounces over, through or under the fence or behind the scoreboard, the batter gets two bases.

If a batted ball strikes the light poles, light or guy wires in foul territory, it is declared a dead ball.

Two bases are awarded if a thrown ball goes into the fence, hangs in the wire, enters the dugout, batracks, grandstands, bleachers through openings in right or left foul territory, bounces over or beyond any rope.

A thrown or batted ball is in play if it strikes the fence in fair or foul territory and sticks or rots in any bases.

This bases are allotted if a thrown ball hits the poles in fronted the dugout or drinking stand.

POOL PRINCESS... If the hot Georgia sun isn't enough to make Fort Benning enlisted men flock to Russ pool in droves this summer, the charms of pretty Wac Pvt. Dorothy Richardson should turn the trick. Dot, who, incidentally, is single, works as a clerk in the Adjutant General department's Military Personnel division.

Russ, Young's Pools Open Cards to Play For Benning Enlisted Men Six Tilts Away

Russ and Young's swimming pools, the operating schedule for Fort Benning enlisted will be from 9 until 11:30 a. m. and from 1 until 8 p. m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Russ pool, located near Outpost No. 1, has been reserved for white personnel, while Young's pool, near the Shady Hunt Officers' Mess, has been set aside for use by Negro personnel. The pools at the Officers' Mess will open daily at 10 a. m. and will close at 8 p. m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. They will be closed at 6 p. m. on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and at 10 p. m. on Tuesday nights only.

Ball Club Seeks Benning Talent

A need for talent at shortstop and in the outfield was disclosed this week by G. W. Ivy, manager of the Benning Park baseball team of the Columbus Senior baseball league.

Ivy said that the club's ability to cling to its present first-division berth hinges largely upon finding capable players to handle shortstop and outfield assignments.

The club manager said that he is seeking to fill out his roster with Benning personnel since no restrictions have been placed on the number of military players a team may have this year. Heretofore, clubs in the senior circuit have been limited to four army men each.

The Benning Park squad is being sponsored by several Columbus concerns including Charleston Hill Motors, I and H Motors, Kelly Shaw Motors, Cox and Kennon garage, Stanley Barber shop, Joe Jones Trailers, Columbus Motorcycle company, Cliff M. Averett company, Benning's Shoney's Garage company, Playland and Sam's 27 Drive-In.

The winning team will represent Battery C in the playoffs for the Third Infantry division championship.

A softball nine from Headquarters company, Second battalion, 50th Infantry regiment, yielded an 11-5 decision to the Charles S. Harrison American Legion post in Columbus last Thursday night. It was the first practice game of the season for the Legion team, last year's Civic softball league champions. The American Legion nine, which has been undergoing practice sessions for the past two weeks, expects to defend its league title if the Civic circuit is reorganized this year.

New Golf Course Open

PORT HOOD, Tex.—(APFS)—Brig. Gen. Rupert E. Starr, acting commanding general of the Second Armored division and in the post, officially opened the new $90,000 golf course and club by driving the first ball off No. 1 tee. Approximately 300 golf enthusiasts attended.

Instruction is under the supervision of Chief Life Guard Aaron Henderson, who is being assisted by Paul Wagner and Jim Dalton. Purpose of the school is to train personnel in the proper methods of life saving and water safety, officials said.

Approximately 50 graduates of the first of the two one-week courses already have been detailed to duty as lifeguards at Russ and Young's swimming pools. They will be special duty with the Infantry Center special services office.

2. Swim 440 yards continuously, employing a hand-over-hand stroke; tread water using scissor stroke of the legs; swim on back with inverted scissors or inverted breast stroke; kick arm strokes could be alternated if desired, but candidates were required to continue each stroke used for at least 20 to 25 yards.
3. Dive from surface to minimum depth of six feet and swim two body lengths under water.
4. Tread water for one minute with hands beneath the surface for use as auxiliary supports.

High Navy Men Must Don New Togs Next Year

WASHINGTON—(APFS)—Navy officers of the rank of commander and above, except reserve and temporary officers, will be required to wear the newly-approved dress uniform at all formal occasions, beginning Oct. 1, 1951.

Conforming generally with the civilian formal evening dress, the new dress uniform will include a white tie, three-button waist coat, a slightly different cut, and the wearing of miniature medals on the left breast instead of the left lapel.

Officers lieutenant commander and below—with the exception of commissioned warrant officers—are required to wear the new dress uniform, but may do so if they desire. They may wear the regulation dress blue uniform with black bow tie for formal occasions. Those possessing the ostle formal dress uniform may continue to wear it but must conform with the adoption of the new tie and the new location of the miniature medals.

He scored when John Lane batted out a long double to left. A second special troops runner crossed the plate in the same inning when Lane romped across on Lamar Zitterburg's single. Grinols and Lauve, with two safe blows each, led the 1SD batting parade, while Lane and Oba Hearn collected two hits apiece for the losers.

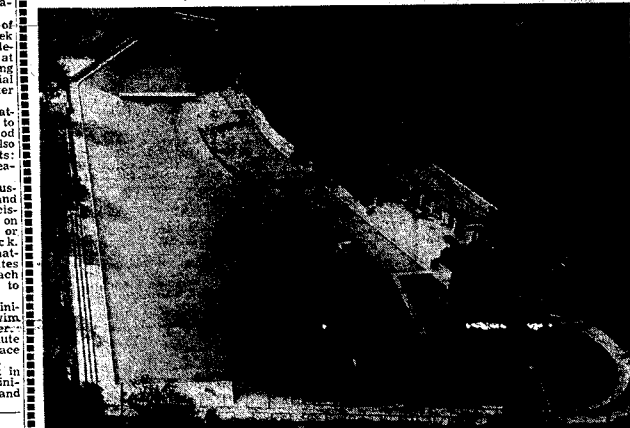

A brief ceremony during which Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, Infantry Center commander, tossed out the first ball of the season, preceded the game.

St. Louis Sends Jim Dickey Here

Definite bat power was added to the Columbus Cardinals today with the announcement that James (Jim) Dickey, sensational hitting star who took spring training this year with the National League Cardinals, has been optioned here from St. Louis.

Dickey, a portside slug-a-portside swinger and he hitter who belted the ball for a .385 with Fresno and almost .357 average in 29 games last season at Omaha in the Class A Western League, is being loaned here and is expected to join the club in time for the Charleston series which opens at Golden Park Friday night, Cardinal Business Manager Tom Gordon announced today.

The addition of Dickey, came on the heels of last night's announcement of Vincent Moreci's optioning here from the Columbus, O., club of the American Association. Moreci is also an outfielder and is regarded as a .300, or better, hitter. He also is expected to report in time for the Charleston series, said Gordon.

Landing of Dickey is considered a master stroke by the Columbus club in its rebuilding program that has just begun to take shape. Indication that additional help is being considered in case the two new additions do not snap the local Sally League charges of Manager Hal Anderson into a winning outfit was evident with the statement by President Fred Smith that Dickey is one of our brightest prospects and I'm sending him to Columbus, Ga. to help Hal Anderson's club.

Dickey is a Georgia product, having been born at Powder Springs, Ga., April 21, 1927. His present winter home is in Atlanta.

DICKEY AND MORECI are regarded as two of the fastest men in the Cardinal chain, and according to Gordon, they will add speed and power to the Columbus attack. Moreci is also

Kansas City MPs Believe In Giving Deserved Praise

"You look mighty sharp soldier."
Those words coming from a military policeman might well be enough to strip the most impressive of GIs of every trace of stoicism.

But Sgt. James D. Martin, Battery, C, 39th Field Artillery Battalion, learned recently that it's not uncommon for neat-appearing soldiers in and around Kansas City, Mo., to receive a healthy pat on the back from MP's of the 5604th Area Service Unit, stationed there.

Sergeant Martin, while traveling through Kansas City on leave, was observed by a member of the MP detachment. The military patrolman was so impressed by the manner in which Sergeant Martin conducted himself that he told his commanding officer about it.

The CO of the detachment then sent a letter to Lt. Col. R. L. Carmichael, commanding officer of the 39th, commending the sergeant for his exemplary behavior and appearance.

The letter received by Colonel Carmichael read in part as follows:

"Sergeant Martin was an outstanding example of a soldier on leave. His uniform was immaculate, and he was polite and courteous to all with whom he came in contact."
It was explained that MP's of the 5604th ASU are interested not only in apprehending and disciplining violators of military law and order, but in awarding recognition to those soldiers whose appearance and conduct typify the best aspects of the army.

STRICTLY FRESH

THERE'S a bookie running around in the U. S. Senate, declares one congressman. And he sounds as though he's willing to bet his bottom dollar on it.

At last we've gotten to the season in which the word "convertible" refers to an automobile instead of a topcoat.

A New York college professor, voted the school's "most popular prof," throws eggs at his students to keep their attention in class. We knew there had to be a catch to it.

An 84-year-old Denver man is cutting his third set of teeth. Even at that age he's still got a big steak if his future...

A research organization is trying to answer the question, "What is a hanger?" This seems foolish because if you haven't had one nobody could explain it to you, and if you have nobody needs to.

QUESTION: IN YOUR OPINION WHO IS THE MOST INFLUENTIAL MAN IN AMERICA TODAY?

PVT. PAUL J. BUCK, Headquarters company, Second Battalion, 39th Infantry Regiment; I guess President Truman is. He is in the position to make what is going on and he has the say about the stand the nation takes. He has lots of influence over the services, too.

PVT. DOMENICK J. MASH, Headquarters battery, Ninth Artillery Battalion; I think Walter Winchell is the most influential man. His many listeners all like him, and whatever he says they agree with.

LT. WILLIAM B. HEAD, Headquarters, 39th Field Artillery Battalion; I think President Truman is because he is in a position to dictate and direct policies more than anyone else. He is in a position to get the opinions of all the top ranking people to help him form his own opinion.

SGT. HARVEY A. ALEXANDER, Company C, 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion; I believe that Ike Eisenhower is the most influential man today. He has done much in the past, and if given half a chance, he could do so much for the people of this country — and they know it.

SGT. DANIEL A. HOPE, Third Reconnaissance company; I think the President is the most influential man. Most people believe as he does and what he does influences their thoughts.

MAJ. JOSEPH BAYNE, Third Medical Battalion; General Eisenhower has a great effect upon the opinions of people. He has a clear and simple way of expressing his opinion and by his clearness inspiring the confidence of a greater majority of people.

GI Solves 'Saucer' Mystery; Produces Real Flying Disc

There's no mystery at all to flying saucer. The tale of "flying saucers" At this is the story behind the least that's what Pfc. Allen Pedrick, non-conventional craft: rick thinks.

PEDRICK LONG AGO BEGAN to scoff at the saucers. The and training aids for the Infan- cines that said a flying saucer- tory School's Training Publi- didn't exist were only talking- tion department, came up last through their hats, Pedrick said, week with a flyable model of A to prove it, he applied a little covering.

common sense, some well-known aerodynamicists and a few hours laborious craftsmanship. In about a week and a half, Pedrick, with the collaboration of another well-known modeler, James W. Brown, Tommie Burgess, Homer Bush, Leo Cannon, John H. Calhoun, John T. Council, Paul L. Dance, Dewitt Esckridge, Vincent Fedeles, Charles E. Fenner, Edward J. Fidall, William L. Flood, Charles A. When it comes to flying, the "saucer" can take on almost any kind. Pedrick can control the craft in flight with two lengthy U-control lines attached to the elevator, located between the two jet nozzles. Reportedly, the small craft zips through the air at about 40 miles per hour. Pedrick says he has any model plane's language.

Landing isn't a problem at all for the small ship. Pedrick has a landing-gear system that would enable the craft to drop down to earth without damaging the curved shape.

The future of the highly-maneuverable craft is doubtful, Pedrick said. Right now, it's en route to the Far East with a friend of Pedrick's, constantly for "further experimentation."

A Hearty Salute TO ARMED FORCES WEEK

Major Assigned TIS Staff Duties

A new Infantry School assistant secretary arrived here this week to replace Maj. Harris T. Mitchell, former assistant secretary who is leaving to attend the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

The new school officer is Maj. Peter L. DalPonte, a student last year at the Command and General Staff College.

Major Mitchell first came to Fort Benning in 1940, when he reported to the 1st Infantry Regiment. The former enlisted man was one of the army's first official paratroopers, joining the 1st Infantry Regiment's 1st Battalion that jumped in 1941. He is a master parachutist with over 30 jumps to his credit.

Major Mitchell has been prominent in sporting circles here as a top basketball player. During his recent five-year assignment here, he participated in several basketball tournaments and numerous other athletic activities.

He was assistant Infantry School secretary from July, 1946 until last month. In April he left Fort Benning to participate in Exercise Swarmer as a special observer.

Paris Awaits Return of GI Who Left Hat There in '44

By Armed Forces Press Service. Here's the background of the story as learned from Denise Richardiere, proprietor of a restaurant in that colorful tourist section of the French capital. She has the hat.

Each before the invasion of Normandy, when the U. S. air corps was conducting B-17 raids on Hitler's bastion, a pilot appeared in the sky above Paris. It was a parachute. Hitting the ground, the young curly-haired American was hustled away by the French citizens.

The German army soon overtook the group and loaded the tank into an open truck. Still this didn't dampen the tears of joy of the Parisians who were overwhelmed at the sight of the American uniform.

As the youth stood in the truck, he called to the Frenchmen, "What's coming? You'll see us soon!" Then he tossed his cap to the ground. It landed at the feet of Denise and she picked it up.

Even though captured by the Nazis, the American's words inspired the hundreds who heard others didn't. But they all conceived the meaning of the cap.

"I've been waiting ever since for him to come and get it. Figle will be glad to see him if he ever comes back."

There was no name in the cap; only the initials H. L. T.

GI's Pal Pens 19-Cent 'Hello'

Here's one time the post-office department made money on a letter.

Cpl. Murray E. Stevens, Company B, Infantry School detachment, received an ordinary one-cent post card last week with 19 cents in stamps affixed. It was a special delivery card from a friend in a small Georgia town.

Said Stevens: "He (the friend) just wanted to say hello!"

Survey Begins On Manpower

A survey has begun in the Infantry School's Academic Department to determine if certain jobs are overstaffed, it was learned this week.

An official of the department said that the three-month survey, which will end sometime in July, is being conducted jointly by Infantry Center management officials and the Academic Department.

The canvassing will include military and civilian personnel. It has been explained that the survey is an "evaluation of how much one man can do on one job" and whether any job is overstaffed.

It is believed that a cutback may be required in a few positions. If such an elimination of manpower is ordered, however, the surplus personnel will be transferred to another job on the post, it was explained. Non-essential military personnel will be shipped overseas, an official said.

Captain Ver Hey, who was AER officer for almost two years, will take over full-time duties as commander of the growing Wac detachment here.

Artillery Course In Second Week

A three-week course for field artillery survey specialists of the Third Infantry division artillery units entered its second week Monday.

The 144-hour course is being conducted by 1st Lt. Fred C. Horton, division artillery survey officer, who is being assisted by 1st Lt. John H. Maddox, Headquarters battery, division artillery, and Capt. John G. Brady and Pfc. David P. Miller, Harold D. Parson, Charles M. Adams and Richard J. Hubbard and Pvt. Dennis L. Robbins, 33rd Field Artillery battalion.

Medic Battalion To Give Plaques

MaJ. Joseph K. Payne, commanding medical officer of the Third battalion, has inaugurated a program of awarding plaques to three outstanding soldiers each week.

The three plaques will be awarded at a retreat parade every Monday afternoon — one for the outstanding non-commissioned officer, one for the outstanding soldier and one for the outstanding medic.

During the week a man holds one of the plaques, he will be excused from retreat and reveille formations, and will be given extra consideration for a three-day pass.

The winners for last week were non-commissioned officer, Cpl. Albert Mintz; soldier, Pvt. Donald Jones, and vehicle Pfc. Clifford H. Anderson.

Parents OK School Fee

Support Pledged Tuition Plan For Securing Needed Funds

Despite a gloomy financial picture painted by officials of Fort Benning's Children's school, more than 500 Infantry Center parents unanimously voted this week to pay tuition to support the economically-crippled school.

A meeting Monday night by an overwhelming majority of the post's parents was the deciding factor of what to do should the school be without congressional funds in September. Although several alternatives were placed before the gathering, the decision was to pay tuition if the overcrowded institution faced closing because of insufficient funds.

Fathers Lead Appeal
Several mothers and fathers, both enlisted men and officers, found various points on which to base grievances concerning tuition. But, after the school officials, all of whom are fathers, presented the staggering financial situation, a ringing approval was made by the group to support the idea of tuition for each child.

On the basis of expenses expected for the school year beginning in September, an Infantry Center child's education will amount to about $134 for the school year. Congress has authorized $140 for each child for one year—but has not yet appropriated the money.

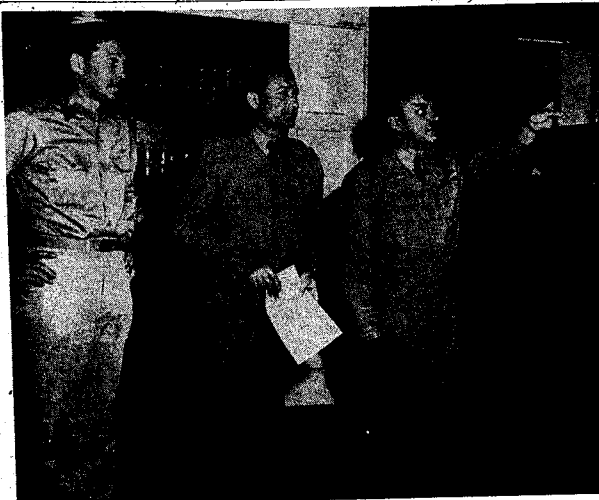

Last year, after getting a late start, Congress granted slightly more than $80 for the education of one child during the 1949-50 year. The tardy appropriation meant little help for the expense-injured parents. To make up deficits incurred prior to the appropriation, parents were compelled to do out a small portion for their children.

Expenses Itemized
What is to happen between now and September is a mystery. Congress may or may not appropriate the money authorized on paper. Assuming that no appropriation is made, however, this is the way Col. Charles E. Woodruff, Infantry Center school officer, figures expenses and income for the school.

1. Salaries for 28 teachers, $103,800.00
2. Operating supplies and equipment, $5,203.00.
3. Expansion costs, $16,078.50.
4. Insurance and retirement, $2,982.33.

Total cost for school's operation, $128,413.83.

Figuring that congress, in the meantime, appropriates $75—a figure arbitrarily established (See PARENTS P-2)

Post Riflemen Eye Admission to NRA

Only the approval of Fort Benning's commanding general stood in the way of plans for organizing an Infantry Center rifle and pistol club to be affiliated with the National Rifle Association.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, was expected to give approval today.

After 19 post marksmen attended a planning conference Monday night, initial plans indicate that a club will be formed and organized in time to participate in national rifle and pistol matches this year.

Elected to serve in governing capacities of the embryonic club were Lt. Col. Milton C. Taylor, president; M. Sgt. Arden J. King, vice-president; Capt. Joseph Werp, executive officer; Lt. Clarks Campbell, secretary, and Capt. Dennis Warren, treasurer.

The club's secretary, Lieutenant Campbell, said if General Burress gives the go-ahead signal, the club will immediately apply for NRA affiliation. Personnel who join the local club, he said, would also be required to apply for official membership as individuals.

The club will be open to all military personnel of Fort Benning. Associate memberships will be granted to civilian personnel of the club and prospective members will vote on regulations, dues and activities for the year.

At present, the club has been promised the use of Mitchell pistol range, which has 10 target positions, and all 30 caliber ranges on the post. Speculation among members indicates that Fort Benning officials will grant construction of an additional 22 caliber range for practice use.

As planned now, practice sessions will be held Saturday and Sunday so as not to interfere with official duties of membership personnel.

The club, which will strive to train shooters and promote marksmanship, will accept members who have little experience in rifle and pistol shooting. Officers of the club said, however, so as not to interfere with official duties of membership personnel.

"New problems arise every year," the chaplain said, "and who are not close to the military but a few days a year, must keep abreast of what is being done to combat these problems."

Base Inaugurates Career Program

The new airforce career plan is well underway at Lawson airforce base, according to William C. Behnke, president of the Career Conversion board.

Other members of the board include Capt. Alson V. Nolan, 1st Lt. Gordon Cranford and 1st Lt. Francis L. Strack.

The conversion board is the first phase of the long range career program. Every airman interested only in the skill-level of the airman, it was pointed out, will be converted to a lower skill-level than his pay grade and will be allowed a period of time in which to qualify for the skill-level equal to his pay grade. At the end of this period, he will meet a classification board for reevaluation. In the event that he has raised his skill-level sufficiently, he will then be reclassified to a level commensurate with his pay grade.

Ability to perform will be the governing factor in the promotion of men who are promoted in the office, an airman will have an equal opportunity to his skill-level sufficiently, he will then be reclassified to a level commensurate with his pay grade.

Conversion will not affect the present freeze on the top three grades. The freeze, according to Major Behnke, but once the program is fully implemented the freeze on all grades will definitely be off.

ORC Chaplains Adourn Friday

More than 20 Organized Reserve Corps chaplains will adourn tomorrow from a week-long conference here after having discussed the standardization and advances made in responsibilities of the military pulp.

The seminar institute, an annual gathering of reserve army chaplains from nine southeastern states, has been conducted this week by Infantry Center officials and Dr. Russell L. Dicks, a professor from Duke University in Durham, N. C.

Topics discussed during the five-day meeting ranged from pastoral care to the dynamics of chaplaincy.

"New problems arise every year," the chaplain said, "and who are not close to the military but a few days a year, must keep abreast of what is being done to combat these problems."

VA Man Sounds Bonus Reminder

Veterans of World War II from Ohio and Pennsylvania are reminded this week by Hoke S. Wilkinson, Jr., manager of the Columbus office of the Department of Veterans Service, of the deadline set by those states for filing applications for bonuses.

Claims by former residents of Ohio for their share of the bonus money voted by that state must be made by June 30, and Pennsylvania veterans must apply for their bonuses by July 1.

Mr. Wilkinson said that the average payment to a living Ohio veteran is $304, but checks to qualified next of kin of deceased World War II servicemen have averaged $379.

Most veterans who establish that they lived in Pennsylvania at the time of their entry into the service, will receive a $500 bonus check.

A bonus measure also has been voted for Indiana veterans. Former residents of that state may collect if they served at least 90 days between December 7, 1941, and January 31, 1945, and were honorably discharged, or are still on active duty.

To qualify for former resident of Indiana for bonus purposes, however, a veteran must have lived there for at least six months prior to his entry on active duty.

Mr. Wilkinson said that Georgia veterans to check their status so that they may apply without delay should a proposal for bonus measure for the state become law.

Mr. Wilkinson said that his office, located in Room 237 Martin building, will assist veterans from bonus-paying states in filing applications.

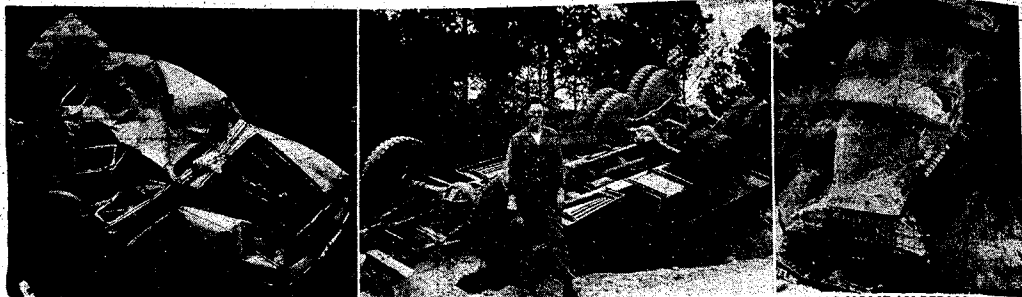

Atomic Course Starts Saturday

Some 250 reserve officers from the Georgia Military district will join hundreds of Infantry Center officers Saturday and Sunday in an eight-hour atomic indoctrination course to be held at the Main theater.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, and Brig. Gen. George Weems, Georgia Military district commander, will make opening speeches to the more than 1,000 officers attending the course.

Scheduled for four hours Saturday morning and Sunday morning, the course will give officers information on the dissemination of atomic energy information. The Fort Benning course, which is conducted regularly each weekend for post officers, is similar to the army-wide course.

Parents

(Continued From P-1) after last year's first allotment for the education of one child, coupled with revenue from various sources such as the Community Chest, the school can raise about $100,024.00 for the school year. The difference between revenue and expenses will have to be met by a democratic scale of tuition for each child. The predicament became more complicated when other pressing school matters and financial situations were poured into the meeting by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander.

Other Matters Presented

Here are several of the other matters for consideration: 1. Ten classrooms will have to be added to accommodate the doubled enrollment school officials anticipate. 2. Additional teachers will have to be added, boosting the expenses again. 3. New equipment must be secured to handle increased facilities and students. 4. Children living in housing built under the Wherry Act (Custer Road Terrace housing project and Battle Park homes) cannot be under provisions of existing laws, educated in government schools with government money. This will necessitate further fund-raising.

Although a minutely detailed scale has been drawn up to show the cost of educating a child under several conditions that may occur, here is an example of what parents must pay for one child, for one month: If Wherry housing children and government housing children are to be educated on the post. If the government makes no appropriation, the cost will be $11.66 for one month's education per child. If the government allows $75 for a year's education per child, parents must pay $6.08 tuition each month. If $200 is granted by the government for one year—a figure likely to be set by the government on the basis of last year's grant—the cost per child will run $2.75 per month.

Parents Debate Freely During the evening, interested parties obviously aware of the consequences of a failing school, freely debated from the floor with Colonel Woodruff and General Burress. At one point in the meeting, General Burress point-blank positioned the parents with this question: "Do we want to maintain a school here if we have to pay for it? A ringing vote from the audience made clear what course the parents would take.

General Burress, who led the fight to keep the school, also asked, "What standards do you want to set in this school?" A spontaneous discussion from the floor indicated "nothing less than the best" as the consensus. The general said that a pay scale should be set for teachers here in the country, the grade school educators' country could offer, however, told the parents of an alternative that could be taken. Under existing laws, Post Benning children would be forced to seek education in the county seat of the county in which they reside. Contrary to belief about where Fort Benning is located, the children would have to go to Cusseta, Ga., county seat of Chattahoochee county, in which Fort Benning is located.

Cusseta Proposal Vetoed Obviously, this course was closed for two reasons: First, transportation to and from the small town would be almost prohibitive to Fort Benning parents, and second, Cusseta schools are too overcrowded now.

Said General Burress: "Every parent should pay a nominal fee for his child's education — 1/10 of a fee, and every contributor should pay a nominal fee. An airforce captain supported General Burress' plea with: "For the convenience of having a child in the post, and the countless other blessings we possess in our children's education on the post, I think it's worth a few dollars a month." A thundering ovation from the crowd substantiated the speaker's plea.

But the meeting was not without bitterness. Said one money conscious parent: "Why can't we reduce the number of teachers, double up the classes and cut out some of the courses so we can make the tuition lower if we have to pay it? There were those who supported his contention.

Principal Outlines Program Peter Wilkin, principal of the school, gave an outline of the school's training program to the audience. He made a point-by-point assurance that Benning's school was as good or better than any in the country. A handful of parents gave the cry that they were too much recreation in the school's program. Wilkin's categorical denial, and a subsequent proof, showed that the school's program of recreation is of the highest necessity under present education standards. He said years of study had proven that the school's financial situation hit a home economic training at the school is not sufficient value to maintain during the year. She said her daughter hadn't even learned to cook yet.

Wilkin answered: Girls attending the school now are at the age when a sense of motherly responsibility is borne and cultivated, according to psychiatrists, it would be emotionally frustrating to curb that tendency or abolish cultivating training. Mother Lauds Domestic Training One mother, disagreeing with the other mother's contention,

Accident Rates Increase

Stars Sound Memorial Day Warning

Accidents involving Infantry Center personnel during April have shown a substantial increase over the same period in 1949, and the trend for 1950 indicates a steadily rising rate, Infantry Center safety officials said this week.

With the Memorial Day weekend coming and the July 4 holiday following soon after, post safety officials are concerned over rising accident and injury toll, stating that preventive action must be taken to reverse the current trend.

Pointing out that there are several major hazards to be considered, safety officials stressed two elements responsible for most of the deaths and serious injuries during the summer season—vehicle accidents and swimming casualties.

In analyzing April automobile accidents, safety officials found that the average age of cars involved was over six years, and that seven of the 17 cars responsible for the injuries were not registered on the post, although driven by post personnel and used on the post.

IN ONE WEEK-END, A second hand auto dealer is reported to have sold 12 "jalopies" to post personnel, none of which would pass the post safety inspection. These cars endanger not only the life of the owner, but that of every other highway user, and to aid in reducing accident tolls, safety officials listed five precautionary steps which every post driver should bear in mind particularly during holiday periods when normal driving hazards are greatly multiplied by expanded traffic.

1. Do not drive when you are sleepy or overtired. (Most accidents involving Benning personnel occur late at night). 2. Do not drive after drinking. 3. Remember that you are driving on 1930 model roads in 1950 model cars. Speeding is dangerous at any time, but far more so on roads not engineered for fast driving. 4. Avoid unnecessary driving. Traffic hazards are increased several fold when roads are jammed with unnecessary traffic. 5. Teen-age drivers in old "jalopies" are one of the most dangerous single menaces on the highway. If you have an old car, drive it carefully and with a speed commensurate with your ability to handle it safely.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE rising trend of car accidents, the post safety council has made recommendations for corrective action which include a request for more state and county traffic enforcement, agency cooperation in enforcing speed limits on Victory highway, some control over the purchase of jalopies by teen-age soldiers; stricter enforcement of post safety inspection and registration regulations to eliminate the driving of unregistered cars on the post; and unit cooperation with military police in checking speeding on Move road and other post roads where speeding has resulted in an inordinate number of government vehicle accidents.

Swimming accidents were also stressed by post safety officials as an unduly frequent cause of injury and death. Elementary safety precautions are too often ignored, with resultant injury or drownings, they said.

Safety officials listed the following precautions: 1. Swim only in pool areas where lifeguards are on duty. 2. Use the buddy system. (One drowning of a post G.I. occurred at an overcrowded municipal pool because the soldier's friends failed to notice him going under. His body was not found until the next day when the pool was drained.) 3. Sunburn can be severe. Use common sense in exposure, particularly during the first few times you get out in the sun. 4. Do not swim in off limits areas. (Almost every drowning involving post personnel has resulted from swimming in unauthorized areas).

President Signs Military Justice Code Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman has signed legislation establishing a uniform code of military justice for all of the armed forces, effective on May 31, 1951.

The code is the result of studies initiated two years ago by the late James Forrestal, the nation's first secretary of defense. It will supplant the Articles of War of the army and airforce, the Articles for the government of the navy and the coast guard. Its operations will be effective both in peace and

One of the principal innovations of the unified code is the provision of a court of military appeals, to be manned by three civilian judges. This court will review all cases involving dismissal from the service, long prison terms or heavy fines. The judges will be appointed by the president.

Armed Forces Strength Dips

The strength of the armed services dropped 10,100 during the first half of 1949, the National Military Establishment revealed this week.

The figures, which were obtained from a full-time military personnel on continuous active duty, are as follows: Army, 2,400,000; Navy, 599,400; Air Force, 381,800; Marine Corps, 175,700; and the airforce, 2,200 to a total of 410,100.

Warning Issued On Poliomyelitis

With the infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) season at hand, the Infantry Center medical authorities have recommended the following precautionary steps which should be followed by post personnel to lessen the chance of exposure to the disease:

1. Avoid unnecessary trips and visiting.
2. Swim or bathe only in pools known to be sanitary. Post swimming pools are in this category.
3. Avoid contact with children's play periods to prevent them from becoming excited.
4. Cough and throat infections should be checked immediately and properly treated.
5. If a child develops fever, put it to bed until a diagnosis can be made or until the fever abates.
6. Be careful of the disposal of all body discharges.
7. Use every available means for the elimination of flies.

Italian Attache Visits Benning

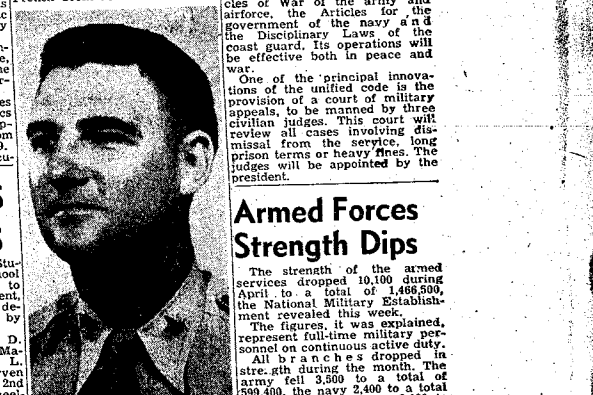

Italy's military attache to the United States made a brief visit to the Infantry Center last week. Col. Umberto De Martino spent two days here, looking over training activities of the Infantry School and Third Infantry division.

Colonel De Martino, who is a graduate of the Italian Staff college and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., has spent most of his military career in the staff corps, a world famous light infantry combat regiment, where he has been studied.

His career has been studied against Nazi army units. He was later sent to British infantry division where he served as a liaison officer.

It's Worth the Extra Expense

Monday night's meeting of Infantry Center parents and Children's School officials was outstanding in several respects. For one thing, 500 post parents, both enlisted and officer, voted to back Major General Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center Commander, in keeping the Children's School running. This was done in spite of a gloomy financial picture painted by School officials.

For another, parents freely debated from the floor with General Burress, Col. Charles E. Woodruff, school officer, and Principal Peter Wilkin. It was a give and take, down-to-earth session with enlisted parents speaking up and getting their gripes off their collective chests.

The meeting of minds on a common project was living proof of the superiority of our democratic way of life. And yet, there are those who say and, for some unknown reason, believe, that there is no democracy in the Army.

General Burress, Colonel Woodruff and Principal Wilkin laid the cards on the table in a frank discussion of the school's fate. Their reading of the palm of education showed a short life-line for the Children's School.

That's when the parents joined forces and said they'd back General Burress wholeheartedly in keeping the School running. The majority were in favor of assessing themselves to help pay tuition.

Here's what the whole thing boils down to: should Congress appropriate money to cover the School's running expenses, parents won't have to pitch in and help defray the costs. However, should Congress fail to appropriate the money, or appropriate a smaller-than-needed amount, parents will dig into their pockets and keep the School running.

The background on the situation is this: Congress has authorized spending $140 a year for each child's education—but never appropriated the money. Estimates are that it will cost $134 a year to educate each Infantry Center child.

Last year, Congress voted a belated $80 for educating one child during the 1949-1950 school year. This was little help to local parents, who were forced to dig into their pockets to make up the deficit. A football game with a door prize was played last fall and helped make up some of the deficit, but not enough.

Here's what parents living on the post will have to pay: If no Government funds are provided, $11.63 a child a month. If the Government appropriates $75 a child, $3.29 a month. Should Congress appropriate $120 a child a year as it did last year, there will be no tuition fee.

Children living in Wherry-Bill houses (Battle Park and Custer Road Terraces) can't be educated in Government schools with Government money, under existing regulations.

If Wherry housing children and Government housing children are to be educated on the post, here's what it will cost: If the Government makes no appropriation, $11.63 for one month's education a child.

If the Government allots $75 for a year's education a child, $6.08 for each child each month.

If Congress grants $120 a year—a figure likely to be set based on last year's grant—the cost per child will be $2.75 a month.

We have said that Wherry Bill housing children are forbidden by law to attend Government-financed schools. The law, however, does provide that parents may send their children to schools in the County seat. In the case of Benning, in Chatahoochee County, it means Cusseta, and the school in Cusseta is in Muscogee county. Obviously, the school in Cusseta is out of the question for two reasons. Their limited size eliminates the possibility of accommodating 1,200 post children. Their distance from the post makes it impractical to send Fort Benning children to Cusseta schools.

Tuition isn't the School's only problem. With the baby boom currently running about 130 a month, officials estimate that ten classrooms will have to be added to accommodate a doubled school enrollment.

Additional classrooms mean additional teachers. This will boost the running expenses again because additional equipment must be installed to handle the increased children and teachers.

All this was explained to the parents and led up to General Burress' question fired at point-blank range: "Do we want to maintain a School here if we have to pay for it?"

A chorus of yesses bounced off the auditorium walls to indicate the judgement of School officials.

Dean Acheson Says U. S. Will Stay In Europe

At the Atlantic Pact conference in London, Secretary of State Dean Acheson said the U. S. will stay in Europe. He renewed the American pledge to support Greece, Turkey, Iran and other countries opposed to Communism.

The 12 foreign ministers who met at the London conference are expected to announce a joint statement known as the Declaration of London. The purpose will be to speed up development of Western power, and the leader is expected to be an American.

The Russian boycott of the United Nations was assailed by President Truman this week in a message of his personal views sent to Congress. Russian walkouts have reached a total of 30 in their current drive to gain U. N. recognition for Red China.

A devastating earthquake in Cuzco, Peru, killed an estimated 60 people this week. Much of the ancient Inca City was destroyed.

In the Department of Defense, Secretary Louis Johnson said this week that American scientists are making progress on secret devices "to neutralize the effectiveness of mass destruction weapons." Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, said the Army has a new anti-aircraft rocket which will fire 12 miles in the air. General Collins also mentioned an anti-tank weapon which might "change the whole concept of tank warfare."

The railroad strike against five of the nation's major roads ended this week with an estimated loss in wages and business of $50 million.

Congressional leaders discussed a two-party agreement to adjourn the present session in August, while President Truman prodded the Senate to act on his FEPC bill. Southern Democrats suite to limit debate on the Civil Rights issue. The Senate has defeated large portions of the President's reorganization plans. In the House, funds were voted for experiments on a set of warplanes and a new anti-submarine warfare project. The House also passed a bill increasing the benefits of Social Security, but defeated a Presidential proposal to put $200 million in taxes on oil, gas, sulphur and non-metallic minerals operators.

Frank Erickson, New York gambler, is facing the heat of NYC authorities and a perjury test of his statements made before the Senate investigating committee.

In Germany, U. S. and British authorities clamped down in a retaliatory move to place sharp restrictions on the movements of Soviet military missions. A self-proclaimed deserter from the Red zone of Berlin this week told authorities that iron measures by the West had scared off many of the youths who were to march in the city demonstration next week-end.

The case of former Czechoslovakian Delegate to the United Nations Vladimir Houdek is being studied carefully by Washington officials. The former-delegate's plea for asylum in this country has been opposed by anti-Communist Czech leaders in this country.

Speaking against the administration of President Truman this week, Bernard M. Baruch called Washington the capitol of indecision. Senator Taft aimed more directly at the President, saying his policies would bankrupt the nation, convert it to a "handout state", and possibly plunge it into another war.

Thirty Russian fishing boats and a mother ship in English waters this week were carefully watched. In a few days the Brussels Pact navies will engage in maneuvers in the Bay of Biscay, near the area the Russian boats chose to loiter in.

The flood-swollen Red River that swept over Winniepeg and St. Boniface this week has begun to subside, and the weatherman has given the hopeful forecast of no rain.

Fraud and overpayment on more than 500 war contracts will be played before the Justice Department for prosecution, Lindsay C. Warren, U. S. Comptroller General, announced this week.

Prays That We Do Not Have God-less Leaders

BY CHAPLAIN WALLACE M. HALE
"The ungodly man is the loneliest man on earth" was a statement I heard made by one of America's best thinkers. His justification for such an assertion was made because he believed "wine, women and song" still left much to be desired in the world. A man who did not believe in God, after all material and physical activity, still felt a need for the fulfillment of desires that nettled him from within.

The thesis of this great speaker was pointed toward the emptiness back of Communism, but I immediately thought in terms of an American who had a good job, a normal sense of security, an average feeling of power, but who was so busy with "things" that he had no time left for God.

It has been very easy for people who have

The Air Force has assigned to the Military Air Transport Service primary responsibility for the training of a "military airlift force that can be rapidly and efficiently expanded to meet Mobilization Day requirements."

The Air Force Directorate of Public Relations has been shifted from jurisdiction of the Air Force Secretary to the office of the Chief of Staff. Brig. Gen. Sory Smith was named Director, succeeding Mr. Stephen F. Lee, who joined the National Security Resources Board as special assistant to Chairman W. Stuart Symington.

A Selection Board to choose permanent and temporary brigadier and major generals of the Air Force will convene at Washington on or about June 12.

During the recent "Exercise Swarmer" in North Carolina, the Air Force dropped or landed 22,000 troops and 16,000 tons of supplies in six days. Original plans called for 32,000 troops and 26,000 tons of supplies in 11 days.

been well-fed; well-housed, and who have had tremendous opportunities to feel that ultimately they are their own God. They think they need nothing else for themselves, but I would ask them, "What will the future be?" or, "Can there be any future for men who all their lives have pursued material things and then suddenly find they have accumulated nothing?"

If we are mere animals with no soul or spiritual responsibility, then we are foolish to imagine we are otherwise—whether we are a Democracy or Communist state.

My fear today is not so much for Communism, but for the quality of the type of people we will have to represent our Democracy. If we are not strong in our hearts, then I am afraid. But with God's strength in our hearts, we literally possess "the power of God."

IT'S REAL... When students at New York's Vogue School of Fashion came up with this weird contraption, they put it on the head of Laura Bartlett to pose for this picture. The contraption, they said, is a hat... a (shhh) flying saucer hat.

Mr. R.P. T. Coffin willingly runs the risk of being thrown out of his home by revealing the state secrets of the Down-East land in Maine Doings. The delicacies of a Maine fisherman's five-pound breakfast and the attitudes of the home folks toward the summer tourists are among the confidential items released here for popular consumption.

Talking about his homeland that lies halfway between the equator and the North Pole is nothing new to the author who calls himself a poet. In truth he has written about Maine in almost every form of the English language, from poem to history. His Pulitzer prize did come in poetry, however, and Mr. Coffin sprinkles his prose in Maine Doings with the flashing imagery and picture-painting detail of poetry.

To cover as many of the doings of Maine as possible in this book of essays, Mr. Coffin jumps about in time to pick up memories of his childhood, people he has known and recollections in general. Whenever he moves on the rocky, windswept land of Maine he finds the human characters that crowd New England in general and the Down-East area in particular. As a boy, he recalls his fishing uncle who lived on his boat even when the only sailing to be done was a movement up and down the beach with the frozen tide. Various other uncles add their bit to the adventure of the author's childhood, but the dominating character was his father. This restless American pioneer worked hard, educated himself, began a large brood and built a house for each of his children. As a pioneer of the East instead of the West, he staked his claims on the Maine islands that are closest to Spain, captured the wild game of the sea, and set up his general store at the crossroad where farmers became fishermen.

In a section of the book devoted to "Maine Individualists On the Loose", the author reveals eccentric people as only New England can give them. Apple John was a cider-making who collected apples at midnight for alcoholic purposes. Lucy and Sam had a husband and wife split that ended with a chalk line dividing the house from the sitting room down through the middle of the double-bed and into the kitchen where Lucy had the stove and Sam had the woodbox.

Johnson Labels Economy Fight As Successful

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said last week that the United States is successfully waging a constant fight for more economy and efficiency in the armed forces.

Johnson outlined his armed services economy-efficiency program to the 35th annual convention of Kiwanis International in Miami, Fla., and said he has asked for more military funds recently "in the light of bolder threats to our peace."

The defense secretary asserted that since he took over the defense department a little more than a year ago "efficiency has become a fact, the combat efficiency of all our forces has been increased and hundreds of millions of dollars already have been saved."

Canine example of efficiency, he pointed to the recent merging of three armed forces print shops into one integrated shop serving the army, navy and air force. He added:

"Already this one operation in Washington has saved $18,000 or the equivalent of the cost of gas and oil for more than 1,300 hours of flying by a B-29."

Johnson said the "most promising field of greater economy and efficiency" is found in military operations of an industrial or commercial nature. He explained:

"It is out of savings such as these that we have been able to allocate to the Department of the Army an additional $25 million."

"Out of such savings as these we have accumulated enough dollars to raise our marine air combat squadrons from 12 to 16, increase the combat strength of our army by 4,400, and add an aircraft carrier and other vessels to our fleet."

Johnson told the Kiwanians that his recent request for added military expenditures of $550 million will be used for the procurement of material.

Jerk of the Week Distillers Thrive On Soak's Antics

The four neurotic members of the Selection committee picked Cpl. Dreavis Cadaver for the top spot as Jerk-of-the-Week, winner by a slim margin over the surprisingly strong opposition of Ret. Calssimine Transom.

Dreavis Cadaver—now there is a man! This enemy of the people spends all of his free time and as much of the army's time as he can get away with in pursuit of as many alcoholic drinks as he can buy, beg, borrow or steal.

He thinks it's really clever to get completely polluted, regarding the achievement of a state of sodden drunkenness as the acme of social success. So low is this repulsive jerk that he has the colossal effrontery to boast about his multitude of besotted evenings.

Cadaver's great mission in life is to find the answer to the question: "How stupid can you get?" Judging by his actions, he's already answered the question, but doesn't realize it. Some latent trace of modesty compels him to admit that he can't drink all the booze the distillers' manufacture, but it is his sly and continual boast that, "I've got 'em workin' nights."

DREAVIS THE DRUNK has a number of unpleasant mental illusions that come to the surface with a rush when he gets about half a load on board. This wretched rummy actually thinks of himself as a great comedian, a terrific lover and a sterling fighter. In reality he is about as funny as a funeral.

No self respecting woman would let this boozed beclouded specimen get within shouting distance, let alone date him. His pugilistic talents are confined to loud threats of physical violence which, on the rare occasions that they backfire into an actual brawl, end up with our hero on the floor.

Not content with drinking himself into insensibility, this fugitive from the underside of a wet rock tries to coax his weak-minded friends into similar habits, giving in his epic hangovers and boring his barracks neighbors with never ending stories of his latest alcoholic adventure.

Salutations, Dreavis old jerk—you're the perfect example of an alleged man who is no good to the army and no good to himself. Drop into the office some day, and we'll see if we can't find an old duodenal ulcer your car for the size. Or better yet, just drop dead.

Dressed like modern Tom Sawyer, a Port Benning officer, his wife and five-year old son this week were literally "cruising down the river" on a 250-mile water junket to Apalachicola, Fla.

Lt. Col. Shields Warren, accompanied by Patricia, his pretty wife, his son Mike, and their three-year old dog, Chico, had all but reached their destination yesterday.

Monday morning, the trio shoved off from the pontoon bridge on the Chattahoochee river with an eye cocked at overcast skies. The whole trip was to be one of "leisure" and complete relaxation, Mrs. Warren said.

Pacific Bases Said Adequate

TOKYO (APFS)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared in a recent interview that the Allies have enough Pacific bases to smash any amphibious attack on Japan.

The Western Allies have no intention of rearming Japan or strengthening the nation militarily, General MacArthur said. Whether the U. S. will retain bases in Japan for the country's protection after a peace treaty is completed, is for the Japanese people to decide.

General MacArthur expressed the belief that the Japanese would be at a loss in a modern war, and even if Allied restrictions were removed for 50 years, the country could become no more than a fourth class military power.

an older boat for a new 10-horsepower outboard motor. With the steady, seaward current of the river, combined with the powerful thrust of the little motor, Warren's boat will be able to make about 20 m.p.h.

The first night of the trip the Warrens planned to stay just south of Eufaula, Ala., about 50 miles south of Port Benning.

After they complete the trip, which will be studded with stops for fishing and camping, Mrs. Warren will stay for a week with relatives in Apalachicola. Colonel Warren will return to the Infantry Center by train, and will go back to pick up the family and boat next week.

VA Man Issues Forgery Caution

Criminals are doing a booming business throughout the nation forging at least 721 United States bonds and checks each week worth $48,076, a Columbus veterans official said last week.

Hoke S. Wilkinson, Jr., manager of the state's Department of Veterans Service in Columbus, released the figures as he warned local veterans to safeguard government checks mailed to them.

"All veterans receiving government checks should provide a locked mail box in which postal carriers can deposit the drafts," he said.

The last endorser of a forged government check is held responsible, he explained, and is therefore the loser.

A wave of forgeries throughout the country involved some $2,500,000 last year, Wilkinson disclosed.

The "pickings" for check thieves will increase over the next few months, although the past has also been "juicy." Checks compensating veterans for their time in enemy prisoner-of-war camps are being sent out to hundreds of thousands of World War II servicemen.

Wilkinson said all veterans who have lost checks should contact the local office for information on what action to take.

SOUTHPAW MARTY KOSSOVER

Kossover Tabbed For Yank Career

If his performance against the 30th Infantry regiment last week is any indication of the way southpaw Marty Kossover, 15th Infantry regiment mound ace, will act in Class AAA baseball, clubs of the American association had better start figuring out ways to stop the Kansas City Blues next year.

Kossover, who wiffed 17 batters and allowed only two hits in pitching the 15th Infantry Dragons to a 6-4 win over the 30th Infantry in their opener, is under contract to the New York Yankees, and is scheduled to perform for their Kansas City farm club next year.

But Kossover, who is slated for separation from the army in November won't be stepping cold into Class AAA ball. He had three seasons of pro baseball under his belt when he entered the army in 1948.

The Dragon southpaw's diamond career started back in 1946 while he was tossing curves and fast balls for Samuel J. Tilden high school in Brooklyn, the same school that produced Sid Gordon, slugging outfielder for the Boston Braves. Kossover was spotted by Scout Jimmie Hamilton of the Yankees, who promptly offered him a contract.

That summer, Kossover found himself performing mound chore for Amsterdams, N. Y., in the Yankees' farm club in the Class C Canadian-American league. After winning 11 and losing four at Amsterdams, Kossover was shipped over to Butler, Pa., of the Class C Middle Atlantic circuit in 1947, and wound up the season with a nine-win seven-loss record.

Kossover started the 1948 season with Norfolk, Va., of the Class B Piedmont league, but after compiling a record of four wins and one loss, he was shifted to Binghamton, N. Y., of the Class A Eastern league where, as a relief hurler, he won two and lost one.

During the 1949 intra-mural season at Benning, Kossover pitched for the Third Infantry Division Special Troops, and was selected as a member of the Doughboys, who won the Third Army title and represented the one-city victory for Benning over the U. S. Forces Austria nine.

Truckers Clinch ASU Loop Title

The 52nd Transportation Truck battalion baseball team defeated the 328th Ordnance battalion squad last Friday by a 9-7 score to clinch first half honors in the 3440th Area Service unit's baseball league.

The Truckers finished half-time play with five wins against two losses.

Tip Pittman, of the 52nd took the league's hitting honors for the first half with a healthy .562 batting average. Roger Cormier of the Section I team placed second with .436, and Jerry Morgan of the Section II team copped third place with a .333.

Bill DeLong, Section I, was the homerun king with two and triples with one. Joe DeCio, Section I, with two doubles, Roger Cormier and Utus Hale, Section II, with a triple each, were the other power hitters for the first half of play.

The choice ball players in the league have been selected to represent the ASU team entered in the Fort Benning baseball league and will be ineligible to participate in second half play scheduled to start on June 2.

The final league standings for the first half are:

Team	Won	Lost
52nd Truckers	5	2
Section I	4	3
15th QM Bn.	3	3
328th Ord. Bn.	2	3
Section II	2	4

Rained out games having no bearing on the final standings were not played off.

The Provisional Medical group's baseball squad was forced into an extra inning Sunday night before squeezing out a 6-5 win over the 30th Infantry regiment.

Johnny Graves, Medical right-hander, replaced Bobby Hoffman on the mound in the second inning after the 30th had taken a 3-0 lead. He held the 30th to three scattered hits and two runs while marking up 15 strikes.

The Medics scored their winning run in the 10th inning when Bob Kopp reached first on an error at third base and advanced to second on the overthrow to first. Kopp scored when Ivan Steele dropped Floyd Kendall's long fly to right center field with two men down to end the game.

Trail Until Sixth

Going into the sixth inning trailing by a 5-1 count, the Medics took advantage of two hits and two errors to score three runs. Unit Schedules Softball Meet

The 15th Infantry will conduct its annual softball tournament this year from May 29 to June 3. Capt. Rufus L. Sautler, regimental athletic officer has announced.

From May 18-27 each battalion will hold an elimination tournament between companies to determine the battalion champions. At the end of the season, an appropriate trophy will be awarded the victorious company.

Powe Sparkles as Divarty Tramples Engineers, 16-4

Paced by Second Baseman Ed Powe, who rapped out two singles and two doubles in five trips to the plate, the Third Infantry division Artillery baseball team swept to an easy 16-4 win over the division Engineers Tuesday night in a game that was called at the end of the sixth inning.

In taking its league opener, the Divarty team collected 11 hits and took advantage of 11 Engineer miscues for its 16-run total.

The winners got off to an early start by scoring four runs in the first inning and two in the second. A five-run spree came in the fifth inning, with three added in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Powe scored on Willie Brown's ground to short, with Brown scoring the final run of the inning on a passed ball.

ISD Tops Divarty Nine In Free-Scoring Contest

Saturday night's game between the Infantry School detachment Profs and the Third Infantry division Artillery turned out to be a free scoring event with the Profs coming out in front by a 17-12 score. The Profs, paced by George Burt and Herb Laue, bounced into an early 3-2 lead only to give way to a six-run splurge by Divarty in the fourth inning. Divarty scored its first two runs in the second inning on three consecutive errors. The Artillerymen's big fourth inning started off with an error in the field, a double by Willie Brown and consecutive singles by Carl Whitener and Joe Whitfield which forced Steve Boland from the mound to be replaced by Bob Davis. John Breen greeted Davis with another single, followed by an error at second base before the side was retired. Neither team did any scoring in the fifth and sixth innings and Harold Dick of ISD came through with safe blows to score the winning run. The Profs' defense was held to a 1-0 score. Scoring at will in every inning but the sixth and seventh, the Troopers coasted to their second consecutive win of the season. Shirley and Joe Metzger were the big guns for the Troopers, with Joe Fauci and Pat Knowles picking up the only Engineer hit.

T.I.C. TALKS

QUESTION: DO YOU BUY SAVINGS BONDS? WHAT ARE YOU PLANNING TO DO WITH THEM WHEN THEY MATURE?
PFC. MARGARET W. BERTIN, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit; I don't buy savings bonds because I can't find a home, and I don't want to have any extra for them.

CPL. CLYDE W. PHILLIPS, Headquarters and Service company Airborne battalion, Student Training Regiment; I don't buy bonds, and I don't put money in soldiers' deposits because a soldier ever needs money for an emergency he can't get it quick enough as there is too much red tape.

PVT. ROY A. WILHOIT, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, 3440th Area Service unit; I don't buy savings bonds because I don't believe that in 10 years the money I invest in them will be worth as much as it is now.

PVT. ESTHER HARRINGTON, Wac detachment, 3440th Area Service unit; I buy bonds because it is the only way I can save money. It is taken right out of my pay and I don't miss it.

PFC. JAMES DEVORE, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 18th Infantry regiment; I don't buy bonds now. However, I did in the past. Financial difficulties caused me to cancel my plan, but I hope to start again soon.

PFC. WILLIAM TOLL, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 1, 3440th Area Service unit; Buying savings bonds is my way of saving for the future. I think it is a good way because it keeps you from spending your money foolishly. If you put it in the bank it's easy to take it out, but it's not so easy to cash a bond.

Similar painting and decorating schemes were used in the squadron day room, with concurrent re-working of pool and pingpong tables and the addition of seven new games. In addition to the day room and mess renovation, two barracks are being converted into

8th Army Said Nearing Peak In Efficiency

TOKYO, Japan (APPS) — The United States Eighth army is rapidly approaching maximum effectiveness, Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, ranking troop commander under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, recently announced. Announcing a summer program of amphibious maneuvers, General Walker said that, since a year ago when General MacArthur reoriented the mission of the Eighth army — from occupation to training — its four divisions have come a long way. "Despite new weapons the basic concept of the Infantryman is the same," General Walker stated. "It is the final analysis, the man who wins or loses a war — depending on the arms given him." We are getting a fine type of individual for service in Japan. Today's men are young, aggressive and their intelligence rating is high, the general said. "Service in Japan is very desirable. This is borne out by our reenlistment rate — which was 78 percent for the first three months of 1950, the highest in WASTE FOOD DISPLAY... Infantry Center Food Service Supervisor Maj. John A. Rilovich, right, gives Sgt. Clifford B. Edward a few reasons why Fort Benning personnel waste too much food in the normal course of a month's eating. On the table is a display of food wasted by one man of each post unit during one meal. Although all waste is not shown, the trays contain a representative percentage of what is wasted each day. Major Rilovich and his food service technicians visited each post dining hall, collected the waste food, and stored it in a deep-freeze unit. More than 500 Infantry Center food service personnel inspected the display.

Future Problems Being Planned

Washington (APPS) - Future maneuvers and exercises being planned by the Defense department will be so diversified as to provide instruction in warfare over terrain ranging from steaming tropic jungles to frozen Arctic wastes.

One exercise, tentatively scheduled for next January and February, will have the problem of establishing a jungle airhead in the Panama Canal Zone.

A repetition, or variation, of Exercise Swarmer, recently completed airlift operation in North Carolina, is scheduled for next year also.

Also planned is a series of "orientation tours" which will take selected commanders on junkets to Alaska, the Aleutians, Canada, Greenland, Labrador, and Newfoundland.

Next year's version of Exercise Swarmer, will involve pitting the 11th and 82nd Airborne divisions, which participated in this year's maneuver, against each other for the possession of an objective desirable to both.

Defense Chief, Bradley to Visit Far East Posts

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chief of the joint chiefs of staff, will make a first-hand check next month on the U. S. military situation in the Far East.

Informed sources said one of the chief purposes of the trip will be to determine what bases in Japan the United States should try to retain after a peace treaty is signed.

The defense leaders will leave Washington by plane on June 11 to visit military installations in Tokyo, Kusanjin, Guam and Okinawa. They are scheduled to return on June 24.

A brief Defense department announcement of the inspection visit said merely that Secretary Johnson would tour major military installations in the Pacific and Far East in carrying out his program to visit military commands outside continental United States.

The 12-day trip also will give Secretary Johnson and General Bradley a chance to get from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme allied commander in the Far East, an on-the-scene review of the U. S. military position there.

PX Market, Commissary to Merge

Benning Bids To Ease Jam In Education

Fort Benning put its bid in this week to help alleviate the near-critical Muscogee county overcrowded school condition. Infantry Center G-4 officials revealed this week that Department of the Army approval was being sought to turn over four Benning Park housing units to be used as school buildings by the Muscogee county school system.

At the same time, William H. Shaw, superintendent of education for Muscogee county, announced that if army approval for the lease was made, immediate steps would be inaugurated to condition the buildings for classroom use.

World Convert Buildings
Under terms of an agreement made between Muscogee county and Fort Benning officials, the army would convert the buildings into classrooms, and install ample heating and lighting. The (See BENNING page 10)

TALKING THINGS OVER.—Floyd L. Petrie, right, confers with H. T. Amon, Jr., assistant director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, about a business problem. Each Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Amon is at the Infantry Center public information office to meet with military personnel who have a grievance involving any Columbus business firm. Petrie's problem was solved after a series of investigations by the chamber's Better Business division.

Single Unit Set to Open Next Month

Fort Benning's huge Post Exchange Grocery and Quartermaster Commissary will merge facilities next month and reopen as a single marketing operation in the present Grocery building behind the main PX.

Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, revealed details of the merger to The Bayonet this week after the welfare board of the Department of the Army issued shutdown orders for similar activities at other military installations.

The Grocery is tentatively scheduled for shutdown during the latter part of June. The Commissary will close after regular hours on July 3. The new Commissary is slated to open on July 5 in the Grocery building with complete facilities of both former post activities.

To Centralize Facilities
As explained by Colonel Bell, abolishment of the 30-year old Grocery will curtail purchasing activities of post personnel. (See SINGLE page 10)

Top Chaplain Sets 3-Day Visit Here

The chief of chaplains, Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker, accompanied by Third Army Chaplain (Col.) James T. Wilson, will visit Fort Benning June 9, 10, and 11, it was learned this week.

Chaplain Parker is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field at 3:15 p. m. on June 9, and will address main post enlisted men at 4 p. m. at Gowdy field. Major purpose of his visit, Chaplain Parker said, is "to talk to as many enlisted men as possible on the army's character guidance program."

After the Gowdy field address, the chaplain will be the guest of Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, at a reception to be held at the Officers' Mess. On Saturday, June 10, he will have a conference with all Fort Benning chaplains, and following the conference will address enlisted men of the Sand hill area at 10 a. m. and following a tour of the post and its various post chapels on Saturday afternoon, Chaplain Parker will attend a reception at the quarters of the Infantry Center chaplain, Lt. Col. Wallace M. Hale. It is expected that key unit commanders, chaplains and staff officers will attend this reception, which will be followed by a dinner with the chaplains of the Infantry Center and the Third Infantry division.

Chaplain Parker will visit the post Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., Sunday, June 11, and will preach at the 30th Infantry regiment chapel at 10 a. m. and at the Main chapel at 11 a. m. After a lunch at the Officers' Mess with post Chaplains and their families, he will leave for Atlanta.

Chaplain Parker's military service began Nov. 7, 1918, when he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Chaplains Corps, receiving his regular appointment in July 1920. During the peacetime years, chaplain assignments, including foreign service in the Philippines and Hawaii. In October, 1940, he came to Fort Benning for service with the Second Armored division, where he remained until moving overseas with the Fifth Army corps in early 1942. In March, 1943, he became chaplain for the North African theater of operations, returning to the United States in March, 1944, for four years of service in the Office of the Chief of Chaplains at Washington, D. C. While serving in the Far East command during 1943 and 1949, Chaplain Parker was confirmed by the senate as chief of chaplains and promoted to the permanent rank of major general on Aug. 2, 1949. Shortly thereafter he returned to the United States from Tokyo to assume his new position.

Post Opens Drive On Savings Bonds

A campaign to stimulate the purchase of United States Savings Bonds in conjunction with the nation-wide campaign sponsored by the Treasury Department May 15 - July 4 was announced last week by Infantry Center officials.

Known as the Independence Drive, and having as its symbol the Liberty Bell, the campaign will stress the purchase of bond-through automatic pay reservation and allotment plans. Forty-nine replicas of the famous Liberty Bell, the original of which is enshrined in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, will tour the nation in special trucks during the drive period.

This replica circled with the slogan, "Save for Your Independence — Buy U. S. Savings Bonds", will be on display in as many cities and towns as can be reached during the campaign period, drive officials said. The Georgia Liberty Bell replica will be shown in Columbus on the morning of June 14, and at Fort Benning on the afternoon of that day.

Unit commanders, assisted by unit Savings and life insurance officers, will play the key role in Fort Benning's campaign for increased bond purchases through allotment. A conference was held May 16, attended by representatives of all post units, at which time it was determined to open the savings drive by stress on cash purchases of bonds at the next pay period.

During the interim period, unit bond officers are expected to contact all personnel on an individual basis in order to make sure that each soldier understands the purpose and importance of the national drive and to encourage a wide participation through the payroll saving plan.

Figures at the start of the Independence Drive show that the Civilian Personnel division is leading the major post units with a total of 23 per cent of the civilian employees already participating. About the same reservation plan, closely followed by the Academic department of the Infantry School, with 20.9 per cent.

Other post units, in order of participation, are: Headquarters Infantry Center, 17.1 per cent; Third Infantry division, 7.1 per cent; Provisional Medical group, 6.5 per cent; Area Service Unit, Provisional group, 6.2 per cent; Student Training regiment, 5.1 per cent; Army Field Force

Chest Donation Approved For Columbus High Band

Contribution of $200 from the Fort Benning Community Chest fund has been approved by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, to enable the Columbus high school band to help meet necessary expenses for a playing engagement at Daytona Beach, Fla., next week.

This announcement was made at a meeting of interested Columbus and post parents at the high school on Monday evening. Six pupils from Fort Benning families are members of the band which played at Daytona Beach last year. The playing ability and attitude of the band while there last year resulted in their receiving an invitation from the Florida city leaders to return this year. Expenses for the tour, which will amount to nearly $3,000, are being borne entirely by donations from Columbus merchants and civic organizations assisted by voluntary contributions from interested individuals. The $200 contribution from the post fund now nearly completes the total amount needed.

Committee of interested Fort Benning parents who have been handling necessary arrangements. Mr. Whitte's family also is well represented by the participation of three of his children in the band, which is rated as one of the finest musical organizations of its type in this part of the country.

Present plans call for the Columbus high bandmen to depart for Daytona Beach on Saturday at 7 a. m. from in front of the high school. Sixteen parents will make the trip as chaperones at their own expense.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Honor Won by Organizer Of Honor Guard Platoon

SGT. 1ST CL. ROBERT H. PRESTON
Soldier Of The Week

A commendation from a navy admiral and the spirit of a well-drilled 30th Infantry regiment platoon were responsible for the selection of Sgt. 1st Cl. Thomas H. Preston as Soldier of the Week.

Sergeant Preston, Company G, 30th Infantry, regiment, is leader and organizer of a special Honor Guard platoon.

Several months ago, Sergeant Preston was detailed to form a crack drill platoon to participate in a special review at Little Creek V. training area for Operation Portrex troops. With less than one week to prepare the platoon for the showing, Sergeant Preston talked with volunteer members of the precision unit to determine if they would practice drill in their off-duty hours.

The 23-year old combat veteran also wanted to dress the platoon in a special uniform. When Sergeant Preston told the men no money was available to buy such uniforms, each in a voluntarily purchased white belt and cap covers. Sergeant Preston was also able to secure more than 30 white rifle slings, white leggings and white gloves.

AFTER HASTY REHEARSALS and long drill periods, the platoon was ready for the big day. At Little Creek, during a special division review, the platoon paraded before more than a dozen top-ranking military dignitaries.

Several weeks following the re-drill display during a Safety Day parade, in Birmingham, Ala., the platoon participated in a military parade during the afternoon, and later in the evening, the unit went to Anniston, Ala., for a special performance at a football game.

Since the platoon was formed, it has been called upon to take part in many notable demonstrations and reviews. In a sense, it is Fort Benning's top showcase unit.

Unification Said To Save Money

PHILADELPHIA (AFPS)—Unification of the armed forces has resulted in a savings of $1,582,000,000, Marx Leva, assistant secretary of defense, has announced.

This was accomplished, Mr. Leva stated, by actual savings, "absorbed costs" and reductions. In a recent address here, the assistant secretary explained "absorbed costs" this way:

"The military pay increase enacted last year will cost $339 million. We could have asked Congress for that amount. It was included in the President's budget, but instead we absorbed that cost by savings elsewhere in the military picture."

River Junket Completed; Warrens Dock in Florida

A five-day adventure on the Chattahoochee and Apalachicola rivers ended late last week when an Infantry Center officer and his family arrived at Apalachicola, Fla., in an 11-foot, home-made boat.

Lt. Col. Shields Warren, Jr., his pretty wife Patricia, son Mike, 3, and small puppy Chico, docked in the Florida gulf coast city after a pleasant trip down the river from Fort Benning, where they started the trip several days previously.

The family, in the gleaming white boat powered by a 10-horsepower outboard motor, spent two nights at camps made beside the river.

"They left from Bradley's Landing at Fort Benning May 22 at 8 a.m., spending their first night on a sandbar near Ft. Gaines, Ga. Tuesday night they slept where it is joined by the Flint river."

By Wednesday the river-going family had arrived at Sumatra, Fla., about 18 miles above Apalachicola.

The colonel said he could have easily made it to Apalachicola late Wednesday afternoon, but he decided to stay over in Sumatra, to visit with an aunt and do some fishing.

Colonel Warren said that he has no trouble at all during the voyage. He said he bought gas at Eufaula, Ala., and later at Columbus, Ga., and later at Blountstown, Fla.

"They will return to Fort Benning today by train."

MP Chief Lauds Troops' Conduct

MILWAUKEE, Wis., (AFPS)—A m e r i c a n soldiers stationed throughout the world are definitely well behaved, Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, provost marshal general, has announced.

The army's chief of military police came here recently to inspect the military government company of the army organized reserve corps.

In speaking of troop conduct, General Parker refers to a visit made by him to Japan and Germany last year, when he found the occupying troops well disciplined and in good spirits.

"There are much fewer offenses than right after the war," the general said. "We have more time to train men and they are settling down into units."

General Parker said soldiers charged with offenses are generally getting more considerate treatment than they did during the war.

Good Will Pays Big Dividends

It is well established commercial and military practice to take regular inventory of physical assets. Less often are we inclined to take stock of our prized possessions which are not solely of the material realm.

Finding itself in a reflective mood this week, The Bayonet made mental inventory of the Fort Benning-Columbus community relations program. We liked what we found. It compels us to pass on our observations to our readers.

Another arrangement which has proved effective is the City and Military Council which has been meeting since 1946. Composed of leading civilians from Columbus and the military heads of Fort Benning, this group meets monthly, with various of its members acting as host in return.

The two programs outlined above have provided the GI and the merchant, the civic leader and the general, with common meeting groups to air any differences. And the record clearly indicates that in all such meetings disagreement lost the battle to increased mutual respect and understanding.

The various civic servicemen's organizations are continuing, despite a shortage of funds, to provide entertainment and recreation facilities, not to mention individual donations of time and effort, to making the soldier feel at home and bappy when he is off-duty in Columbus.

School children similarly will benefit from the recent Benning proposal to turn over four homes in the Benning Park area to conversion into eight classrooms. This has the Columbus Board of Education's acceptance which in return, will continue to educate Benning children in Columbus high schools.

Editorial space limits us to mention but a few of the many projects and activities which have fostered a spirit of sincere mutual co-operation and respect between Fort Benning and Columbus. That good will and understanding has come to be the dominating factor in our joint community relations is a source of justifiable pride to all of us.

Red Invasions Of Berlin Proved To Be Rumor

A giant Whiteside parade recalling Hitler's youth rallies in Berlin was the extent of the rumored Red Putsch against the Western sector of the city. There was no victor in the "Battle of Berlin"—only an impressive show in which disciplined East German youths and 10,000 Communist "Peoples Police" marched for the Reds. Western preparations to handle any situation that might develop proved the West is not to be pushed out of the city by Soviet threats.

The "Peoples Police" of East Germany was labeled a secret army this week in separate notes to Moscow from the United States, Britain and France. The protest was a result of the Big-Three meeting of foreign ministers in London which President Truman called the "most successful since Potsdam."

Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, returned confident from his "save the UN" trip to Paris, London and Moscow. Lie completed his tour of nations in a conference with Truman and Acheson this week. To the employees of the UN Lie proclaimed that all Europe wants peace.

The Russian mission to Japan made a sudden departure for Moscow this week. Lt. Gen. Kuzma Deresvyanko, long-time adversary of General MacArthur, headed the party of 48 top members of the Russian staff. The Russians brought in 35 replacements, described as very junior military men.

Harry Gold, Philadelphia bio-chemist, was arraigned this week on charges of espionage. Using information given by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, British spy, the FBI sifted through a list of 1,200 names before making the arrest.

The senate backed the administration with approval of two bills this week. It passed Truman's $3 billion foreign aid bill, including the "Point Four" program of economic help to backward areas of the world. The Senators also upheld Truman's plan to reorganize the Commerce Department.

Report from Washington

World War II Combat Boots To Get New Look

The Air Force has moved to quash rumors of changes in the summer uniform, which gained wide circulation. The Chief of the Uniform Branch USAF states that no change in summer apparel is contemplated before 1953, and possibly none will be made then.

The 85rd Infantry Division Association will hold its annual convention at Boston Aug. 17, 18 and 19.

The Army plans a new look for remaining stocks of World War II combat boots. They will be treated with a plastic coating which will improve their appearance and increase resistance to wear.

An all-Service subcommittee of the Secretary of Defense Personnel Policy Committee has been appointed to develop a statement of policies and principles for operation of the information and education program for all services.

A recent survey of Regular Air Force officers indicates that the average officer has 7.5 years of active Federal commissioned service; the average pilot has 7.7 years of active Federal commissioned service; the average non-rated officer has 6.2 years, and the average non-rated officer has 7.4 years.

The Marine Corps has 30,000 officers and men ready for combat "immediately," according to a recent statement of Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps Commandant.

For the third consecutive year, the all-Marine track and field meet will be held at Butler Stadium, Quantico, Va., June 16 and 17.

Chaplain's Corner

God Should Be A Part Of Our Every Day Life

The other day, as I was paging through odds and ends of notes, I came upon this poem: "God hath not promised skies of blue flower-strewn pathways always for you. God hath not promised sun without rain, joy without sorrow, peace without pain. But He hath promised strength from above. Unfailing sympathy, undying love." There is very little we can do about gray skies, about thorn-hedge pathways, about rain and sorrow and pain. These things are part of every life; they enter into the making of every life. But God's strength, his unfailing sympathy, his undying love; these things are not necessarily a part of life. They may be ours and again they may not. If they are not, life cannot be a failure, a failure here; a failure here.

To Amuse You Today

A butter-fingered guy who had been in and out of many jobs at last found work with a chinaware firm. The second day he dropped a valuable vase and smashed it. The manager told him he would have to have money deducted from his wages every week till the vase was paid for.

"How much will I have to pay?" asked the employee. "Three hundred dollars," said the manager grimly. The culprit brightened. "Gee that's swell!" he exclaimed. "At last I've got a steady job!"

One girl to another: "Of course I had to tell her she looked like a million—and I meant every year of it!"

Advertisement in a jewelry store window: "You get the girl, we do the rest." Says the youthful GI groom: "That's hardly fair!"

He: "Shall we sit in the parlor?" She: "No, I'm tired, let's play tennis."

"What's that guy fiddling around the chemistry lab for all the time?" "He's trying to cross a rubber plant with an orange tree."

"Is he doing any good?" "Yeah, so far he's developed a seedless golf ball."

LINE ON GINGER BY ROBIN MAUGHAM HARCOURT, BRACE & CO. PUBLISHER.

By ALLEN L. MULLIKIN
The aftermath of war reflects through the characters of Robin Maugham's Line on Ginger, but never cuts a clear image. In a loose, episodic narrative, the author follows some war buddies through the windings of civvy street to a dead end where he falls to deliver a story worthy of the bullpup. A London barrister, James Merton, collects the scattered stories of his old outfit after he is started by a battle companion attempting to burgle his home. Returning one evening, Merton discovers Ginger who was a good soldier stealing his valuables. Shocked that his war-time friend could have turned to thievery, Merton offers the man a drink and tries to find the reason for his degradation. A knock at the door convinces the nervous Ginger that Merton has been stalling until the police arrived. The thief makes his exit by the window and leaves Merton in a quandary. A taunt from Ginger as he makes his unceremonious departure sets our hero to thinking that he should have kept up with his old buddies. He decides to spend his vacation in searching out the group that he and Ginger were a part of. The provoking first scene sends both hero and the reader on a quest for the lost character of the wayward Ginger. The systematic search through the war-born friendships is reduced by the author to a formula for reproducing the soldiers of war in their garb as soldiers of fortune. The episodes are connected only by the thin strand of former acquaintance and are mere sketches of men in various levels of the English social structure. The cockney factory worker lost his leg in battle and lost his girl in the blitz. His suffering and work are only slightly different from what they probably would have been had there been no war. A step up the social ladder produces an entertaining vignette of a second lieutenant returned to his father's neighborhood grocery. Searching Hero Merton swiftly solves the grocer's problem of being in love with a rich girl and gets back to the business of hunting Ginger. In the thin air of the upper social spheres, the author never quite decides on satire, but takes a few good side-swipes at human vacuity in the lives of some of Martin's former officers. The end of the search brings up the good-hearted sergeant who would always be a great but limited man in war or peace. Here the author turns to pure sentimentality and gets the complete wine on Ginger. The psychology of the thief comes out in two further episodes as Hero Merton makes a vague decision that does not speak well for the inventiveness of the author.

12 Pact Nations Decide to Pool Arms Strength

LONDON (APES)—Under the leadership of U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, the 12 foreign ministers representing the Atlantic Treaty, agreed on the principle that the agreement of the western world lies in the establishment of "balanced collective forces" during their recent four-day session here.

The foreign ministers set up two new committees to promote collective plans for defense of the North Atlantic area in case of aggressive attack.

A permanent committee of deputy foreign ministers will coordinate military and economic defense requirements, and promote closer cooperation among the treaty nations.

Out of the meeting also an informal "working agreement" between the U. S. and Canada to find methods of continuing the economic cooperation among the western nations started by the Marshall Plan.

The committee of deputy foreign ministers has outlined five specific points designed to make the program successful.

Jerk of the Week Snoop Captures Dubious Honors

Interrupted frequently by a seedy looking private first class who kept poking his nose into the conference room, the Selection committee was forced into extra innings to choose the Jerk-of-the-Week, finally nominating Pfc. Ebenezer Mouthwash for the infamous award.

After the meeting, a C. I. D. "public eye," who happened to be in the vicinity, disclosed the fact that the seedy looking private first class who kept nosing around the Selection committee meeting was old Mouthwash himself.

Eavesdropping Ebenezer is the jerk who tries to make everybody's business his business. If his nose were as long as his curiosity he'd trip over it.

Some of Mouthwash's insatiable curiosity might be excused if it could be demonstrated that he actually wanted to learn something. But he shuns books like the plague. Show him someone's mail, however, and he's like a kid with a new toy.

MOUTHWASH INVARIABLY GETS THE LOWDOWN on all the local activities, and takes great delight in spreading his meretricious gossip all over the unit. No rumor is too wild for this character, and his greatest talent lies in being able to exaggerate the minor delinquencies of his buddies to an extreme degree when narrating the tales of their escapades.

This supreme jerk is insult-proof. In town, he's a pest—wassel-brain invariably make a nuisance of himself by trying to crash a party, or by bothering the life out of the first G. I. he finds trying to make a good impression on his best girl friend. It's no wonder he horns in everywhere he's not wanted. It's a cinch he can't stand his own company.

If you're curious about the Jerk-of-the-Week award ceremony, Mouthwash, come on in and we'll be overjoyed to present you with your hard-won honors, along with an iron-clad guarantee that you won't be nearly so curious after you finish scrubbing your long nose off.

Instead, he said, grocery shopping facilities will be more centralized and complete. The shutdown order from army officials said that all post exchange activities should be closed that conflicted with merchandising done by Quartermaster Commissaries.

All facilities of the present Commissary will be moved to the Grocery building. The Post Exchange, however, will establish a delicatessen in what is now the main PX soda fountain. Only fancy groceries, baby food, pet food, soft drinks, beer, bakery items and household supplies, such as floor wax, soap and insecticides will be sold in the new establishment.

The Commissary will be unable to make deliveries as did the Grocery, because allotted personnel is insufficient. Soda fountain to be moved into the PX building adjoining the main canteen which is now used as an enlisted men's snack bar. This arrangement will bring together most recreational facilities for enlisted men and Main theater. Service club No. 1, Briant Wells Field House, Gowdy field, Dougherty stadium and Pato Grill will be within arm's reach of each other.

The soda fountain is to be extensively remodeled and enlarged, an official said. Definite size and extent of operation of the new fountain depends on approval by Third Army headquarters. Although complete details on the merger are lacking, officials have said that new conveniences in the Commissary will include completely refrigerated self-service vegetable, meat and dairy products and frozen foods. Bread and bakery rolls will also be handled by the Commissary in its new location.

Relocation Desirable The merger and relocation of activities will mean a more desirable and complete shopping center for Post Exchange purchasers. Located on the same block, within walking distance of each other, will be the Commissary, the main PX, the Howard post station, barber shops, shoe repair and dry cleaning shops. The Commissary will also incorporate in the new set up a small sundry shop to handle tobacco and canned goods. The small store, which will be located in the Commissary and have a separate entrance, may be used by personnel not having a regular commissary card.

Growing Men for USMA Is Prep School's Function

By Armed Forces Press Service

"Little West Point" The enlisted man's answer for a commissioned career in the service, "Little West Point" is a preparatory school designed to benefit most enlisted men who are consistently outstanding in their work. Little-known to those whom it could benefit most, it performs a consistently outstanding job of preparing young men for West Point.

The preparatory school at Stewart field (near Newburgh, N. Y.), often referred to as "Little West Point," was established to prepare properly assigned students to pass the entrance examinations for the Military Academy. The course at West Point Preparatory school is divided into two phases: a basic course and an advanced course. The basic course, designed to prepare trainees for the March entrance examinations, extends from early September of each year until the day preceding the entrance examinations. Normally, candidates taking the March examinations are not transferred to this course after February 1.

Those who find difficulty in securing specific information elsewhere should write to the adjutant general, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C. He can supply not only complete information about the United States Military academy preparatory school, but about West Point and methods of entrance.

county, in turn, would staff the annex school with teachers and be responsible for year-round maintenance. When the lease expires, the four buildings will return to the army.

All four buildings, which are across the street from the Baker Village school, are single-story, double-unit quarters. In preparing the structures for classroom occupancy, the army would be required to rip out certain partitions separating bedrooms and kitchens. There will be eight classrooms after the units are converted.

Although kitchens and toilet facilities will be left during the conversion, the L-shaped rooms will accommodate some 280 students, on the basis of 35 students in each class.

Made Jointly The proposal to convert the buildings into classrooms was made jointly by Muscogee county education authorities and Post Benning officials. If higher army headquarters gives the stamp of approval to the proposal, the buildings will be ready for use when the school year begins in September.

Post officials have said that the use of these buildings by the county would be able to same time, lighten the burden of schooling children. Many of the 280 students slated for education in the buildings will be Post Benning children. Muscogee county, however, will be able to use the buildings for any educational purpose it desires. A spokesman for the county education system speculated that the buildings would likely be used for kindergarten or first grade pupils.

The national drive has received the endorsement of leaders in labor, industry, banking, press, and radio, with President Truman adding his voice to that of other leaders in calling for maximum participation in the Independence Drive. The Department of the Army is backing the drive and hopes to reach 70 per cent participation in the automatic pay reservation and allotment plan.

Benning Soldiers to Assist In Planning YMCA Program

Fort Benning enlisted personnel will have an opportunity to plan and supervise recreational programs offered at the Armed Services YMCA in Columbus, under a new system of representation being fostered by the club. More than a score infantry Center enlisted men, representing each company on the post, met at the club this week with Floyd Francisco, director, and Walter Lobb, program secretary, to help plan the June program of activities.

At the next meeting, which is scheduled for June 21, the representatives will discuss formal organization of a council and election of officers. Meanwhile, committees were named to take on carrying out activities for the ensuing month and also in publicizing the club to fellow servicemen.

The main concern of the new type council or representatives is to make known to all Fort Benning personnel what the Armed Services Y has to offer in the way of services and facilities. One of the representatives at the meeting told about a questionnaire he circulated among the men in his outfit. He discovered, he said, that many of the men do not know where the club is located. Others who said the club did not offer enough activities were surprised when they saw a program. Fort Benning officials were asked to help form the organization of enlisted men because Mr. Francisco and others at the meeting felt the men ought to be able to express their opinions. The first meeting was held last month with representatives from the 30th Infantry regiment. Then this month each company on the post was asked to send a representative. The new representatives on a tour of the YMCA building. While representatives who attended the first meeting discussed past activities, Mr. Francisco took the new representatives on a tour of the YMCA building.

Post Personnel See New Training Film

The latest infantry training film, "The Rifle Platoon in Attack of Fortified Positions," was previewed here this week before several hundred officers and enlisted men of the Infantry Center.

Purpose of the preview, according to Lt. Col. A. E. McCormick, director of the Infantry School's Training Publications department, was to check the film for accuracy and suitability before it is copied into 16-mm form for official release and army-wide distribution.

Similar previews of this film are being conducted now by Army garrisons, Colonel McCormick said.

The film was photographed at Fort Benning last August and September. All the roles in the film, including the speaking parts, were played by soldier-actors, most of whom came from Company F, 30th Infantry regiment, 2nd Airborne Division, 73rd Tank Battalion, and 10th Engineer Combat Battalion also assisted in the production.

Technical adviser for the film was Maj. John W. MacIndoe of the Infantry School's Tactical department. Major MacIndoe took an "on-the-set" restriction in rank to play the part of the platoon leader. His duties as technical adviser took him to the Signal Corps Photographic Center, studio at Long Island City, N. Y., where he supervised the elaborate animation and miniature sequences in the film.

A similar bob-tailing was taken on the set by Lt. Alfred G. Feiffer, who was selected by the film's director to play the part of the hard-bitten squad leader. At the time of filming, Lieutenant Feiffer was a platoon leader in Company F, 30th Infantry. He is now acting commander of that company.

Additional showings of the film will be held, Colonel McCormick said, to allow the men who took part in the production to see what they look like on the screen.

The film borrows from experiences learned in World War II to illustrate the general characteristics of modern fortified positions and to show the detailed planning and orders necessary to prepare every man for his job in the attack. It presents in dramatized, capsule form the two-day conference and demonstration staged at the Infantry School.

The senate went into debate this week on the Selective Service Act, which was extended for two years last week by the house. The senate concurred, it will go on the books as law.

The bill, which had been postponed and debated in Congress for months, was passed by a vote of 218 to 11. Several members of the house argued that passage should be delayed for several months in "the interest of peace." Their pleas were shouted down by military-minded housemates.

If the senate approves the law—and it is conceded that approval will be made this week—it will mean that men between 18 and 25 years of age will have to register for the selective service. No inductions can be made, however, unless congress approves such an emergency action.

The bill also extends the President's power to mobilize industry and take over plants essential to war production—subject, as in the case of inductions, to a declaration of emergency.

Passage of the bill came in the wake of warnings from military officials that now is the time to begin preparedness.

CAPT. JAMES POLK AT BRIDGE CONSTRUCTED UNDER HIS SUPERVISION

Engineer Veteran Slated To Receive Army Commendation Ribbon Soon.

Army Commendation Ribbon Sought For Former Fort Benning Instructor

A former Infantry School instructor, who is now at a Cavalry testing station, has been recommended for the Army Commendation ribbon for outstanding instructional achievement here.

Capt. James K. Polk, who recently completed a four-year tour of duty with the Tactical department's Field Engineering committee, was recommended for the award for his meritorious achievement in demolition instruction and pioneer activities in experimental river crossings.

Between 1946 and May, 1950, when Captain Polk was at the Infantry School, he carried the greater part of the instructional load in pioneer techniques of demolition. During that time, he trained more than 3,000 demolition technicians without a single injury. About 1,600 of his demolition experts went on to participate in special and difficult demonstrations involving explosives.

Aided Demolition Programs

Captain Polk's large library of technical information on military explosives has been expanded in the Tactical department's Engineer section.

When it became necessary in 1949 to move all engineer training activity closer to the main post, Captain Polk took an instrumental part in setting up the training area near the new Upper dam.

Captain Polk made another contribution to engineer demolition tactics when he revised and added new techniques of mine warfare to various courses conducted here. His recommendations were later incorporated into new army field manuals on mine warfare. He also contributed several articles on demolitions to the Infantry School Quarterly.

Develops River Problem

In addition to his outstanding work in the field of mine warfare and demolitions, Captain Polk developed a river crossing problem that is now the accepted training technique at the Infantry School. More than 8,000 students have taken part in the problem without injury.

In recommending Captain Polk for the commendation ribbon, Infantry School officials credited him with setting up and developing a river crossing area in the large water reserve formed at Upper dam.

His technical ability was augmented by his personal pride in training men to a point of perfection. Officers said.

Last month, Captain Polk was transferred to an arctic engineer testing station near the Hudson river in Canada. With fewer than 50 other American engineers, he will test heavy engineer equipment. He is slated for a two-year tour of duty there.

WASHINGTON (APFS) — An increasing number of servicemen and veterans of World War II are converting their National Service Life Insurance policies from five-year term to the permanent types now available.

The Veterans Administration recently announced that of the 5,608,011 NSLI policies in effect at the end of March, nearly 1,263,000 were permanent type policies.

The NSLI term insurance is issued for a five-year term period, but Congress extended to four years those policies taken out before January 1, 1948. The premium rate, based on the insured's age when the policy was taken out, remains unchanged throughout the term.

Congress has authorized the renewal of term insurance issued before January 1, 1948, for an additional five-year term at the expiration of the original term period. Renewed policies, however, carry a higher premium rate based on the insured's age at time of renewal.

G-Whiz Announcement TIC's Newest Hot Potato-Atomic Warfare Badge

The Awards and Decorations branch of the Infantry Center has come up with a hot potato in the form of a distinctive new award for future atomic warfare participants, according to an announcement last week by Lt. Col. Deuteron Molecule, Infantry Center G-whiz.

After a super-secret development program which was so closely guarded that no one knew of its existence, the release of preliminary information caused a terrific sensation, with repercussions heard as far west as Outpost No. 1.

The award, to be known as the Distinguished Atom Combat badge, will go to members of combat forces who participate in atomic warfare. In view of the fact that all awards are expected to be made posthumously, the background of the badge is appropriately designed in the form of a flag-draped coffin.

Superimposed on the coffin is a circle containing a representation of the orbit of the hydrogen atom with the mushroom effect of the atom explosion outlined at the top. At the left of the circle is a numeral which indicates the number of roentgens absorbed by the wearer, and at the right is a replica of a Geiger counter.

COFFIN HANDLES ON THE RIGHT AND LEFT HAND SIDE of the badge complete the design. The award of the badge, without handles, is considered appropriate for non-combat personnel who have completed atomic training, such as viewing motion pictures or checking out on Geiger counter maintenance and repair procedures.

The non-combat version of the badge will be known as the Expert Atomic Badge, and will be awarded after attendance at three atomic lectures, two motion pictures on nuclear physics and the receipt of an East-Bill Atom Bomb set. This set may be procured by sending only one pound of U-238 to the East-Bill corporation, West Neutron, N. M.

Colonel Molecule, in an exclusive interview with a Bayonet reporter, stated that early disapproval of the project is expected. "Don't hold your breath, however," he warned grimly. "These things take time."

Reports Heard At City-Military Council Session Medical Unit Gets New Commander

Members of the Citizens and Military Council of Columbus and Phenix City saw a rosy picture painted last week of the activities, fostered locally between civilians and military personnel.

During the monthly meeting, which was held at the Elks' club, Floyd Francisco, director of the Armed Forces YMCA, made a report on the extensive entertainment and recreation being offered Fort Benning enlisted men. He also outlined the activities of the Associated Services for Armed Forces group, a newly-formed organization to provide more recreation opportunities for servicemen.

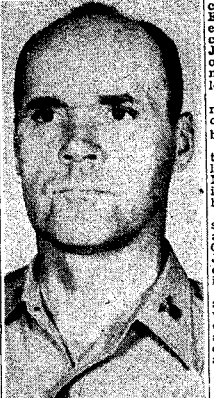

Louise Kuzne, member of the board of directors of the NCCS, explained what was being done to entertain local army troops. His comments, in addition, gave an optimistic outlook for future plans of the service organization.

Clayton D. McLendon, executive director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, reported favorably on the progress of the civilian-military conferences being held weekly at the chamber office and at the Infantry Center's public information office.

Richman made a motion, which was seconded by Phenix City Mayor Homer D. Cobb, that Fort Benning and the Chamber's armed forces committee be commended jointly for the success of the Army Forces Day celebration in Columbus.

Brig. Gen. J. Sladen Bradley, assistant commander of the Infantry School, who represented Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress at the meeting, invited members of the council to be guests of Fort Benning at the next meeting on June 16.

Medical Unit Gets New Commander

LT. COL. FRED VECHAK Commands 52nd Medical

Lt. Col. Fred Vechak, former commanding officer of the 121st Evacuation hospital, has assumed command of the 52nd Medical battalion, succeeding Maj. John H. Burman, who will take over an Infantry School assignment sometime in June, it was learned this week.

Colonel Vechak, who commanded the 121st for a little over a year took command of the battalion officially on May 25. He worked with two units of the 52nd the 421st Medical Collecting company and the 514th Medical Clearing company—during Exercise Swarmer in which his former unit participated.

Prior to his Fort Benning assignment, Colonel Vechak served as executive officer in the I Corps surgeons office, in Kyoto, Japan, and as executive officer of the 118th Station hospital, also in the Far East command.

Colonel Vechak's wartime service included assignments with Headquarters, India-Burma command in New Delhi, India, and with the Chinese Combat command in Kunming, Luchow and Nanking.

The newly reorganized Fourth field hospital, until recently a paper unit, has been added to Colonel Vechak's command, and will occupy buildings and quarters in the 52nd Medical battalion area.

Lt. Mann's Promotion Creates Confusion In Ambulance Unit

If anyone in the 568th Medical Ambulance company is confused these days, it's no wonder.

Capt. Marion Mann, who was a first lieutenant on May 22, is now the executive officer of the 568th. As a first lieutenant, Captain Mann was the commanding officer of that unit.

Or to put it another way, ex-1st Lt. Mann who is now a captain formerly commanded the unit of which he is now the executive officer. Mixed up? Well, try this one.

Capt. Marion Mann, executive officer of the 568th, was recently promoted to that grade from first lieutenant. Prior to his promotion, former 1st Lt. Mann was the commanding officer of the 567th. Baffled? Well, it's this way . . . aw, nuts! Congratulations, Captain.

The Indians got the first game, 5 to 3, behind Art Dittmar's steady seven-hit hurling. The Indians got only six hits, but scored four times in the first two innings to beat Gil Mill. Terms of NSLI Plan Discussed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first of a series of articles relative to the insurance and savings program of the army. The series is being compiled and written by Sgt. Aubrey H. Newton, chief clerk of the Infantry Center Army Emergency Relief, Insurance and Savings office. This article will discuss provisions of the National Service Life Insurance program.)

BY SGT. AUBREY H. NEWTON
In order to clarify certain situations which may arise in connection with eligibility for National Service Life Insurance in connection with the passage of the National Security Act (PL 253, 80th congress), the following information is presented: The National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, approved Oct. 8, 1940, established an additional system of government life insurance and terminated the right of persons in the active service of the armed forces to purchase United States Government Life Insurance, unless they were otherwise eligible as veterans of World War II.

The original law provided that National Service Life Insurance be issued initially on the five-year level premium term plan with the privilege of conversion to permanent plans within the term period after the insurance had been in force for one year, premium rates being based on the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at the rate of three percent. Permanent plans first authorized were ordinary life, 20-payment life and 30-payment life.

Public law 118, 79th congress, approved July 2, 1945, automatically extended all five-year level premium term policies, issued on or before Dec. 31, 1945, for an additional three years with premiums to continue at the same rate. A later amendment dated Feb. 21, 1947, permitted initial application for any of the plans authorized, term permanent, and the conversion of term insurance at any time within the term period.

The National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940 originally provided for the payment of the proceeds of this insurance under one of two options to a restricted class of beneficiaries, including the widow or widower of the insured, child or children, parents or brothers or sisters.

If the first beneficiary was under 30 years of age, proceeds were paid in 240 monthly installments of $5.51 per month for each $1000. If the first beneficiary was 30 or more years of age, insurance was payable as a life income in continuous monthly installments, with 120 equal monthly installments certain. On Sept. 30, 1944, an additional option was made available known as the refund life income, payable as a life income in continuous monthly installments with total monthly installments certain equal to face value of policy less indebtedness.

The Insurance Act of 1948, approved Aug. 1, 1946, greatly liberalized the provisions of this insurance and authorized among other new features the following:

1. Removal of all beneficiary restrictions, permitting the insured a free choice in naming his beneficiary or beneficiaries.
2. Right of insured to select one or more of four settlement options, including payment in one sum.
3. Provided for the inclusion of a total disability income provision, upon application, proof of good health and payment of extra premiums.
4. The addition of three permanent plans, 20-year endowment, endowment at age 60 and endowment at age 65.
5. The right of former members of the armed forces to apply for new insurance after discharge, provided they had active service between Oct. 8, 1940, and Sept. 2, 1945, both dates inclusive.

Since the inception of the National Service Life Insurance Act, over 19,000,000 contracts have been issued on approximately 16,000,000 lives for an amount in excess of $148,000,000,000. NECK WEEK: Eligibility.

Services Honor Local War Dead

Columbus and Fort Benning as "ominous hangings of clouds," paid solemn tribute to the community's war dead yesterday's special Memorial day services at Fort Benning. The ceremony was held at the prisoner of war monument. Rain clouds, which broke into showers, however, did not detract from the service. Judge Fort was introduced by short the annual rites held at the Custota and Old Fort Benning war monument.

Judge T. Hicks Fort of the Chattahoochee circuit of Superior courts, principal speaker, read the eulogy. The small crowd ducked inside waiting automobiles. And the service continued in drenching spring rain. As the first heavy drops fell, Maj. Frances Nash, a nurse captured during World War II on the service. Judge Fort was introduced by short the annual rites held at the Custota and Old Fort Benning war monument.

Judge Fort, describing the sky as "ominous hangings of clouds," paid tribute not only to the prisoners of war who were killed but to all men and women who made the "supreme sacrifice" for their country. Judge Fort, however, did not forget the living. He said that the living are the ones who are the backbone of our country. The ceremony was the only formal observance here in connection with national Memorial Day. Federal offices were closed for the day and post offices were closed.

Sports Sidelights

By LEO J. PARENT
Bayonet Sports Editor

One of the big disappointments of the present intramural baseball league at Fort Benning is the attendance figure per game: approximately 150 persons show up on the average for the daily games. Here is America's national pastime, its favorite sport, being patronized to the extent that you'd expect in a bridge tournament. The brand of baseball displayed right here on our own post is much too good to let the stands go empty or partially empty. Maybe some of the people here on post haven't heard that games are held daily and will be until July 23 which will signify the end of the league play. If there are people who fall within that category, it's up to the rest of us to let the information get around.

While we're on the subject of attendance, let's air one more complaint that seems to have made its way around the post. If we've heard this statement once we've heard it a thousand times: "Fort Benning and Columbus are O. K., I guess, but there just isn't anything to do for excitement." The bad part of that statement is that the soldiers that make it alive. We could understand it if it were delivered by a corpse, but by an American man - never.

From the sports angle, let's take a look at the logic behind the remark. "Nothing to do for excitement." As we've said, baseball games in the pool league alone are played daily at Gowdy field. How many others are played during the week on other parts of the post is unknown. For those who prefer the minor leagues, we offer you Golden Park and the Cardinals and the visiting ball clubs, that display their talents for the people of Columbus and Fort Benning. Softball devotees can indulge their interest in the game in every regimental area on the post. Tennis fans have their chance to watch, or participate in the matches that are played every day at the Officers' Mess courts. The brand of tennis that was displayed last week-end in the Infantry Court tournament should have satisfied even the most rabid fan.

Fight fans were treated to an eight-bout card last Friday. There seems to be no trouble on that score, however. The fight fans are satisfied, judging from the crowd that filled the Main Gymnasium to overflowing.

Swimmers have Russ pool, the Sand Hill and the Officers' Mess pools to choose from. That's a daily affair, also.

The service clubs on post offer a variety of interests that vary from ping-pong to learning to rhumba.

We could go on and list every activity existent on the post or available in Columbus, but we don't believe that's necessary. The above list is just to get you started thinking.

Strictly on the Side

With all the money floating around the big leagues for bonus babies (in spite of the bonus rule), it might be interesting to take a look at some of the figures that have been passed out. Tops in the money bracket, of course, is Pittsburgh's Paul Pettit with a cool (why people say cool, I don't know) $100,000.

The big 205-pounder from Lomita, California, is only 18 years old and the biggest investment in baseball. Right now he's with the New Orleans Pelicans. Last reports from there were grim. Something about a sore arm on "wonderboy".

Dick Wakefield was induced to leave the University of Michigan for $92,000 and a Cadillac. He looked great in 1943-45, went into the Navy in '45 and came back to the Diamond in 1946. His return, loudly heralded by sportswriters and Dick, fell flat after a spell of greatness. His next three seasons kept a few of his admirers on top too, and when the New York Yankees took him into their fold, lead challenges were hurled at Boston's Ted Williams about who would outlast whom. The noise died down to a low murmur in a short time. Now, he's fighting it out with the Yankees to restore his salary to the $21,000 per season that he feels he's worth.

Another top figure ($75,000) was paid by the Boston Braves to Johnny Antonelli, a schoolboy from Rochester, New York in 1947. Up to this season he had won three and lost seven for the Braves. Frank House, a catcher for the Detroit Tigers, picked up $75,000 for his signature and the Tigers have been sorry about that ever since. They sent him to a Class C team in Flint, Michigan, in 1949 where he wound up the season with a .261 batting average. Because of the bonus rule, the Bengals had to bring him up to the majors this year.

The Philadelphia Phillies got into the act in 1947 by signing Curt Simmons, then 18 years old, for $60,000. In 1949, he was baseball's biggest disappointment with a four wins and ten loss record. This year he's won four and lost one and is the National League's most feared southpaw. Another bright light among the bonus babies has been Robin Roberts who won 15 games for the Phillies last year after a $25,000 contract taking.

The Brooklyn Dodgers gave Billy Loes $21,000 to make his mark and no reports of "We wur robbed" have emanated from Brooklyn yet. The Red Sox picked up Chuck Stobbs for $0 grand, handed Yale man Frank Quinn $50,000, and have regretted it ever since. The Dodgers forked over $17,000 for Joe Tepich and a couple of months later wished that they hadn't been quite so free with their cash.

Looks like the bonus babies are here to stay with or without the bonus rule. Pettit's case proved that consciously or unconsciously it can be circumvented anyway.

Post Captures Five Matches In Return Meet

Fort Benning boxers over-whelmed a Fort Bragg, N. C., aggregation five bouts to two in a return match between the two squads last Friday evening at the Main gymnasium.

Bragg took home the honors in their first outing last month. All-Army Middleweight King (Larry) Jones of Fort Benning provided the go-go for the jam-packed gymnasium by butchering a game but terribly out-classed Fort Braggman, William Conorton. Conorton leaped from his stool at the starting bell straight into a body-shattering blow that brought the crowd to its feet. From then on the question in everyone's mind was how much of this punishment could the trooper stand. Jones smashed a blow after blow into the face of his opponent.

Larry Jones' Eye Cut
A glancing blow by Conorton in the first round opened a cut over the left eye of Jones, but that was the only blow that seemed to bother the champion. The first round ended in a flurry of straight-arm punches by Jones that had the crowd roaring. Conorton went down for no count.

The second round saw Jones lead into the fight intent on the kill. He hammered Conorton in the face with solid blows that should have sent him to the canvas but didn't. The Fort Bragg fighter took everything that Jones could offer and kept boxing for more. The round ended that way.

In the last round Jones was visibly tired from the effort put forth to knock out his foe. The bout ended with Conorton still boring in and still catching Jones' Sunday punches with his face. The crowd cheered Conorton for his display of courage when he left the ring. Jones weighed 156 pounds, Conorton 142.

Smooth little George Allen of Fort Benning set the pace for the remainder of the evening by gaining a split decision over Fort Bragg's Gilbert Ruybalid. Ruybalid, bigger and heavier (125 pounds to Allen's 118) bounced into the ring and threw lefts and rights that missed the elusive ringmaster. Allen, the Benningite waited for an opening and then blasted his opponent with devastating effect. Both men scored heavily on hard rights to the face throughout the first round. Third Army Champion Allen kept boring in for hard smashes in the body and face and his counter punches looked good. The third round was fairly even with Allen swapping blows from the bell to the final second.

Mareno Wins Decision
Fort Bragg's Ralph Mareno decided Fort Benning's Robert Wood in the third bout of the evening for one of Bragg's two victories. The slugger started the instant the two men met in the middle of the ring and was still going on when the third round ended. The aggressive Mareno cut back and forth and Wood in the three stanzas. Both men concentrated on head punches that landed with solid effect and kept the issue in doubt as to who was taking the most punishment.

The first round was Wood connecting with vicious rights to the face of Mareno. Mareno counterpunched, and Wood rode most of the troopers' blows until the bell. Mareno rushed out of his corner at the bell for the second round and slashed through Wood's guard with a series of head blows that rocked the Fort Benning fighter. Wood fought back and stopped Mareno for a few moments. Wood staggered from three smashes to the head as the bell sounded for the end of the second round. Neither fighter stopped, and Referee George Mackie had to pull them apart. The third round was a repetition of the two preceding frames with both men smashing and slashing for the entire three minutes.

Oren Garretson gained a split decision over Fort Bragg's Wilson in the fourth bout on the night-bout card. Tonihka long reach did him no good in the first two rounds as Garretson repeatedly landed solid head punches.

Service Battery Wins In Softball

The Service battery softball team of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion downed a 39th Field Artillery battalion contingent 1-0 last week for its third consecutive victory in the Division Artillery league.

Previously unbeaten in battalion play, the Service battery continued its winning ways by notching its first victory in the league, recently, by squeezing out a 6-5 win over a Ninth Field Artillery battalion squad after 6 1/2 innings. Edgar Echols and Allen Wynn formed the battery for the winners. Echols is better known for his activities on the basketball courts as a member of the Fort Benning Doughboys.

In their second outing the 99th diamondmen trampled the representatives of the 41st Field Artillery battalion, 10-4. In another 6 1/2 inning tilt, Jesse Hall handed the deliveries of Echols in that tray.

The Columbus Cardinals will close out their four-game series with the Augusta Tigers with a game at Golden Park tonight, while his mates from Headquarters will open a set of four with the Savannah Indians here tomorrow night.

Another night game Saturday and a twin-bill Sunday afternoon will round out the Tribe's stay in Columbus.

was too fast for his stronger and heavier opponent as he slipped inside Lewis' defenses continually to score with heavy blows to the face. Lewis was never given a chance to set himself up for the fight. He danced in and out punishing the trooper with both hands. All three rounds looked alike to the crowd of fans. Palermo weighed in a 164. Lewis tipped the scales at 172.

Third Army Champion Sidney Peelle of Fort Bragg defeated William Peoples for a TKO in one minute 39 seconds of the third round of their bout. Clark battered the slender Foster all over the ring from the beginning until the final stalling end which saw Referee Arthur S. Hyman raise Clark's hand in victory. The powerful Clark finished off the ineffectual jabs by Foster during the fight and kept his opponent off balance throughout the slaughter.

In the seventh bout on the card, Nell Palermo of Fort Benning defeated Benjamin Lewis of Fort Bragg. The fight looked like a rehashing of the biblical story of David and Goliath. Palermo (David), a left hander,

Headquarters, Company F to Meet For 30th Infantry Softball Crown

Headquarters company and Company F will meet today in the finals of the 30th Infantry Regiment's softball tourney at day.

The game, scheduled for 2:30 p.m. should prove to be a slam bang affair with two speed ball artists, Bob Carter for Headquarters and Jennings Skipper for the Foxmen drawing the mound chores. Both teams have ample power at the plate with Dick Burton, Dick Howard and Bob Jones for Headquarters and Ed Ennosmer, Cal Woodward and Jim Brookwaller for Company F all being long ball hitters.

Headquarters company earned its berth in the finals by downing company I, 13-3. Bob Carter, pitching seven-hit ball, shut out the losers in the last six frames, while his mates from Headquarters were busy banging out 17 safeties off E. Sarzynsky and Ed Crowley, who relieved Sarzynsky in the fifth stanza.

Company F Leads Bases
Company F started off fast by loading the bases in the first inning and then, with one away, Third Baseman Ken Jollif entered the finals by handing Company I its second defeat to the tune of 13-2 in the semi-finals. Jennings Skipper was the winning pitcher, assisted by his hitting of Ed Ennosmer, who collected three safeties for five times.

The Foxmen started the scoring in the top half of the second inning when they went on a rampage. Eight runs crossed the plate before the final out. Company I came back in their half of the third with one tally when Roy Gross stole around the bases and scored on a passed ball.

Company F Scores Again
Company F scored again in the fourth on Woodward's single and Ennosmer's triple. The Foxmen struck again in the sixth and seventh innings, scoring two more tallies in each to bring their total to 13 runs.

Ed Crowley, who pitched for the losers, summed up the round tripper in the bottom of the seventh, but that ended Company I's power.

Company F eliminated Company C 15-1 in a game that saw company C trail once in the first inning only to come back and take the lead in the top of the second.

Company F tallied eight times in its half of the first when Francis Ricketts was wounded off the mound. Arty McLaughlin was called on to stem the tide and did the trick in the fourth inning when Company F began to roll again, scoring one run in that inning. Company F went on to garner three more runs and clinched the game in the sixth inning with three more markers.

Company C
After a slow start, Company C found the range of winning Pitcher Jennings C. Palmer started to make a contest of it. They picked up two runs in the top of the third inning and three more in the fifth. In the sixth inning they went on a scoring spree and matched Company F's first inning, eight runs crossed before the fire went out.

Lewis Painter rapped out a triple with two on in the first inning for the winners Jim Brookwaller and Gene Scapina were the big guys for Company F. Brookwaller gathering three hits for four trips, while Scapina rapped two.

For the losers, it was Ray Ger-ton with two for three who carried the power. He slammed a booming triple in the sixth frame with the sacks full. Lou Stefank and Tom Doherty were the cause, contributing three safeties apiece for four times at bat.

Headquarters
In the first round, regimental Headquarters company defeated Company C 11-8 behind the pitching of Floyd Cline, while Art McLaughlin gave up 11 hits for the losers.

Company C started off fast by picking up two runs in the first inning and another pair in the second.

Third Baseman Bob Jones started Headquarters' scoring in the bottom of the second with the only round-tripper of the game, but the rally was quickly snuffed out.

Headquarters had a field day in its half of the third by clipping the losers a pair for two, while Jonny Gatch paced the losers with a perfect four-for-four at the plate.

In the nightcap, Company I downed Company F, 4-2, in a hard four-out contest that featured the four-hit pitching of E. E. Sarzynsky for the winners. Jennings Skipper, Company F's pitcher, held the winners to five hits. Company I started the scoring in the second inning by picking up one run. The team gathered two more in the third when Ed Crowley rapped out a homer with two mates aboard.

Company F came back in the fourth, getting two runs on Cal Woodward's homer, while one on Company I added one more in the sixth to end the scoring.

Ed Crowley and Iva Taylor each with two hits for three visits to the plate, shared batting the honors of the victors while Cal Woodward's two-run round-tripper was the big noise for the losers.

In the nightcap, Company I downed Company F, 4-2, in a hard four-out contest that featured the four-hit pitching of E. E. Sarzynsky for the winners. Jennings Skipper, Company F's pitcher, held the winners to five hits. Company I started the scoring in the second inning by picking up one run. The team gathered two more in the third when Ed Crowley rapped out a homer with two mates aboard.

Company F came back in the fourth, getting two runs on Cal Woodward's homer, while one on Company I added one more in the sixth to end the scoring.

Ed Crowley and Iva Taylor each with two hits for three visits to the plate, shared batting the honors of the victors while Cal Woodward's two-run round-tripper was the big noise for the losers.

Prof's Trim ASU For Third Victory

The Infantry School detachment Prof's Trim ASU notched their third victory in the post League last Tuesday night by defeating the 3440th Area Service unit diamond squad 9-8 in a 10-inning duel at Gowdy field.

The Prof's struck the first blow in the game when Woody Burt singled behind Bill Welton, who reached first base on a 3440th error and stole second. DeCiccio scored for ASU in the second and tied up the score.

ASU added another run in the third, and the Area Service unit team went down on three out-field flies. Bill Stovoy and Lefty Lechner came home for ISD in the fourth on singles aided by two ASU errors.

Grabel Schultz tripled for ASU in the fourth frame. De-

STOP BUYING GASOLINE to drag around DEAD HORSES

Dead horsepower in your motor can be costly. Means more money spent for repairs—more money spent for gasoline. Macmillan Ring-Free Motor Oil increases horsepower—cuts down on gasoline bills.

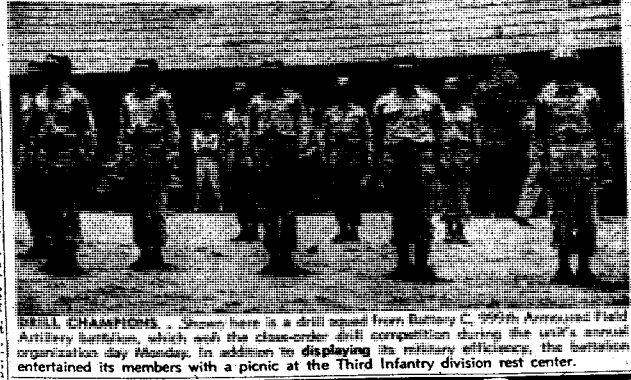

On cars picked at random—cars that had been using 26 other quality oils — by changing to Macmillan Oil the horsepower was increased an average of over 8%. This means an 8% saving—over 24 per gallon on gasoline (figuring gasoline at 25¢ per gallon). This adds up to a saving of $2 on the average 1500 mile oil drain period. Buy Macmillan Oil today at the sign of the big red M.

Our guarantee refunds your money if Macmillan Oil does not increase the horsepower of your motor. Or, ask the dealer about the impartial test proving these facts in your own car.

THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION NCO MESS OFFICIALS TALK THINGS OVER

NCO Mess Sets Saturday Dance

The Third Infantry division Noncommissioned Officers' Mess at Sand hill will present a gala summer season-opener dance this Saturday night at 9 o'clock, M-Sgt. William F. Bertram, club manager, has reported.

The dance will mark the beginning of a series of regularly scheduled events at the mess designed to make the hot summer months more bearable for all members, he said. The dance Saturday night will present Taylor's Rhythmaires, an eight-piece orchestra, and an hour-long floor show featuring some of the top performers in Georgia.

A full round of relaxation and recreation has been planned so that there will be a special event at the club every night of the week during the coming months except Monday and Thursday.

GIs Favor Coats, Survey Reveals

A consensus report indicates that future army uniforms should be made of blue cloth with hip-length coat-tails, brass buttons and cloth belts.

This came to light this week after The Bayonet conducted an informal survey of personnel who tested experimental uniforms. Although more than 500 officers and enlisted men at the Infantry Center wore the new hip-length coats and newly-designed like jackets, only a handful were questioned about the uniforms.

Out of the 20 persons questioned about test uniforms, about 80 percent indicated they preferred the hip-length coat, decked out with brass buttons and a cloth belt. They said the coat model wasn't as comfortable as the new-style knee jacket, but that the "guinea pigs" also said that made up for any loss of comfort.

The remaining 20 percent favored the army adopting the knee jacket. They said comfort meant more to them than appearance. Of the entire number interviewed, more than 25 percent voiced opinions that the color should be changed from khaki to something "more pleasing." In the order of popularity, blue and green were mentioned as possible color-successors to the present olive drab shade.

All of the 20 testers interviewed concurred that both new test items were more comfortable than present models. They all favored immediate acceptance of the new items. The "guinea pigs" also said that no wear and tear was noticed on the uniforms during the test.

U.S. Protests Patrol Seizure

BERLIN, May 31 (AP)—The Western allies announced today that a protest will be filed with the Russians against the seizure of an American-led patrol Tuesday night by Soviet troops.

The ten-man patrol, including four Americans, four Britons and two Frenchmen, was taken into custody at gunpoint by the Russians when the patrol members rejected original Soviet orders to leave their station on the Berlin-Helmstedt autobahn six miles west of Berlin.

The patrol members were held for 20 minutes before they were released in custody of U. S. liaison troops.

The patrol, commanded by 1st Lt. Charles Brecher, of Long Island, N. Y., was at a station on the highway traveled by West Berlin-West German traffic to insure that travelers did not stray into the Soviet occupation zone during the Whitsuntide rally of the Communists.

American officials said a Soviet colonel Tuesday afternoon directed the patrol to leave the highway point. When Lt. Brecher refused, the Russians put the patrol under Soviet Guard and herded the men off to Soviet headquarters at Babelsberg, close to the U. S. sector in Berlin.

Meeting Held By Food Panel

Fort Benning's Menu Board called a special meeting last week to map out subsistence plans for reserve officer training corps students arriving at the Infantry Center in June.

Students entering the summer camp will get a minimum amount of fatty foods. Post food service officials explained that cold cuts would be substituted for meats such as pork, which are normally served hot. They said that strenuous training of the reserve students will require less fatty foods.

Troops Go Home From Enka Scene

MORRISTOWN, Tenn., May 31 (AP)—A battalion of national guardsmen has been removed from the strike-ridden American Enka company's plant here.

Brig. Gen. D. L. McReynolds ordered the guardsmen from Mayville, 58 miles north, and eight officers to return to their homes Tuesday night.

The troops were sent here Monday to put down disorders after Sheriff Robert Medlin told Gov. Gordon Browning that the situation was out of hand.

The company meanwhile announced that it had resumed shipping rayon products from the plant.

One of the guard officers said Tuesday that about 250 workmen showed up for work and another 75 to 100 reported seeking jobs at the plant which normally employs 700. Guardsmen afforded the workers safe passage through strikers who set up lines around the plant and major disorder occurred.

Members of local 1094, CIO Textile Workers Union struck through 28 for pay increases, a seniority schedule and premium pay for night work.

Company spokesmen said the present wage scale averages $1.32 an hour and the union seeks a 10-cent hourly hike.

The fellow who says talk is cheap obviously has plenty of sales resistance.

QUESTION: WOULD YOU GO TO OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL IF GIVEN THE OPPORTUNITY? WHY?

PFC. ROBERT E. DRUCKER, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit, I have been given the chance to go. I think it is a wonderful opportunity for a man who plans to work in the army his career. If I planned to stay in the army I would definitely go, but since I intend to get out after this enlistment, I didn't accept.

DRUCKER OLLIS

CPL. J. W. OLLIS, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit: If given an opportunity to go to Officer Candidate School, I would certainly go. Since I am making the army my career, it would be the best thing for the future. As an officer you have more money and more opportunities.

PFC. JOHN WATSON, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit: I was given a chance to go, but since I am not planning, at present, to make the army my career, I didn't accept. However, if I ever decide to come back into the army, I would like to go to OCS. I think all men who go to Officer Candidate School should have served a hitch as an enlisted man.

WATSON KEITH

CPL. WILMER KEITH, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit: I was given a chance, I would go. I would like to be an officer since I am planning to stay in the army. I would like to go as high as I can, and if I were an officer, I would have more advantages and better living conditions.

SGT. EDESEL E. BLAKE, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit: If given an opportunity, I don't think I would go to Officer Candidate School, as I have no desire to attend.

BLAKE RUSSELL

CPL. BENNIE RUSSELL, Section 1, 3440th Area Service Unit: I most certainly would go to OCS if given a chance. I would have a permanent grade as master sergeant in the regular army in addition to the other advantages. I believe that working both as an officer and an enlisted man you get to understand the army better.

QM Concocts New Pea Soup

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—A new type of dehydrated soup for army use, requiring no cooking and easily prepared in the field, has been developed by the army quartermaster corps. The soup, prepared from peas, can be poured into hot water, stirred for a few moments, and is ready to eat. Laboratory tests have shown the dehydrated soup compares favorably in flavor, consistency, and texture with pea soup prepared by long cooking. The formula was developed by the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute, office of the quartermaster general.

All Tip Hats To Symbolic Bronze Bell

The Liberty Bell is probably the only bell in the world to of joy and sorrow. In strict historical accuracy, the Liberty Bell did not ring on July 4, 1776. The motion for independence was unanimously carried on July 2. It was accepted by final vote on July 4, and the document was rushed to the printers.

On July 8 a crowd gathered around the bell and near the Declaration was read aloud to the people by Colonel John Nixon. "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land and to all the inhabitants thereof." Lev. XXV, 10.

This inscription was chosen by Isaac Norris, speaker of the Assembly of the colony of Pennsylvania, who in 1751 was chairman of a committee to get a bell for the steeple of the state house.

The Bell was cast in London, England, by Chief Justice John Birch. When hung in 1752, it broke at suddenly it cracked, never to play again. The first stroke of the clapper he heard in this world again. For the first time since 1835 Major with Violist Isaac Stern was not satisfactory. It was heard again throughout the world once again and a third time. Fifty-two exact, full-scale Alexander-Hillsberg-Dvorak's duplicates cast by the same process used in making the original played by the Cleveland Orchestra conducted by Eric Leinsdorf.

Cavalry to Go, Solons Decide

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The House Armed Services committee has unanimously approved legislation to abolish officially the cavalry and make numerous changes in the internal structure of the army.

To replace the outmoded cavalry the bill would establish an armored branch of the army. The field and coast artillery branches would be combined into a single branch.

EM Will Pay Cash At QM Sales Stores

Starting July 1, the army's new cash clothing allowance system will go into effect, changing the entire clothing picture for post enlisted personnel, according to post quartermaster officials. The new system will displace the present clothing system which went into operation last July 1. Final settlement of present clothing allowances is expected to be made prior to the initiation of the new system, officials said. This settlement will be accomplished under the direction of unit commanders prior to the end of this month, and is expected to involve inspection of clothing to determine serviceability, replacement of unserviceable items or shortages, and payment of the clothing allowance accrued since last July after deductions for replacement have been made. The new cash system is not calculated to result in any savings to the individual enlisted man at the expense of a smart military appearance, but it is expected to reduce considerably the burden of paper work currently assumed by unit supply personnel and personnel sections. The new system is exactly the same in principle when applied to either enlisted men or enlisted women. Here is how it effects the recruit on his first day of service: The first step in the operation of the cash clothing allowance system is the assignment of an initial credit, entered on the enlistee's pay card, representing the money value of the mandatory and discretionary allowances of clothing against which he will draw his first issue. Instead of going to the supply sergeant, the recruit will get a Personal Clothing Allowance and Receipt Form, made out in duplicate, which indicates the items and amounts of clothing he will need for his training period. He will take this form to the clothing sales store where he will draw his items shown on the form. Noted on Pay Card The money value of this issue will be entered on his pay card (See EM WILL PAY P-2)

Bayonet, Army Times In Cupid Role for Post Wac, Admirers

It's entirely possible that The Bayonet and Army Times will be responsible ultimately for blossoming romance. Pvt. Dorothy Richardson, pretty 19-year-old Fort Benning Wac, received at least three letters this week from strange men in far-flung sections of the United States. Last week, a picture of her sitting on the edge of Russ post appeared in The Bayonet and Army Times. Within three days' time, she received two letters from Fort Bragg, N. C., and one from Fort Lewis, Wash. P. O. Box 113, Ft. Lewis, Wash., D. C. 22613.

Given Duties In Far East

Col. Douglas Sugg, who has directed the post-war activities of the Infantry School's Tactical department, left Fort Benning this week for an assignment in the Far East.

The 34-year army veteran began his career early in World War I when he enlisted in a coast artillery unit in January, 1914. Toward the end of the world war, young Sugg was accepted for Officers' Candidate School and subsequently received a commission as second lieutenant.

Following World War I, he returned to civilian life. In 1920, however, he accepted a regular army commission as a second lieutenant.

In 1921, Colonel — then Lieutenant — Sugg reported to Fort Benning for the Infantry School's basic course. Following his graduation from the course here, the Tennessee native was assigned to Camp Sam Houston, Tex., where he served with the First and Ninth Infantry regiments and the 15th Infantry Brigade. Later, he went to Fort McKinley, Philippine Islands, to serve with the 15th Infantry regiment.

Between 1923 and 1930, Colonel Sugg served with infantry units in the Hawaiian Islands at Fort Warren, Wyo., and graduated from the communications officers' course at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Colonel Sugg returned to Hawaii in 1932 where he served with the 27th Infantry regiment. After a year there as a company commander he was made regimental sergeant major.

In December, 1941, Colonel Sugg had risen to battalion commander in the regiment. He was regimental executive officer when the 27th Infantry entered combat. Several months later, he commanded the 27th Infantry during the Solomon Islands campaign, where it distinguished itself in the Battle of Guadalcanal and the Japanese base at Kokumbona.

After a series of outstanding campaigns in the early stages of World War II, Colonel Sugg was returned to the United States in 1944 with a serious jungle illness. Following hospitalization, he went to Fort Jackson, S. C., where he joined the 87th Infantry division. Later, he assumed command of the 345th Infantry regiment, which was later to distinguish itself in European operations.

As part of the Third Army, the 345th Infantry, under the command of Colonel Sugg, spearheaded a drive through the Siegfried line and captured Koblenz. It also took part in the big crossing and the advance to the Czechoslovakia border.

Shortly after the war ended in Europe, Colonel Sugg returned to Fort Benning with his unit and began to train for reassignment to the South Pacific to enter the Japanese phase of World War II. The war ended in the meantime, and the unit was deactivated here.

In 1945, Colonel Sugg was made director of the Tactical department. It was during these formative postwar years that Colonel Sugg's outstanding craftsmanship as a military strategist helped rehabilitate and build a new infantry training doctrine. His leadership in the department and efforts to improve and modernize the Infantry's tactics were responsible largely for the lengthy strides made by the army in equipping the ground force for expanded uses. Infantry Center officials said.

Colonel Sugg's decorations include the Legion of Merit with cluster, Silver Star medal with cluster, Army Commendation ribbon, French Croix de Guerre with palm, Belgian Croix de Guerre with palm and the Belgian Order of Leopold with palm.

Seven STR Men Given EUCOM Assignments

Seven enlisted men of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Student Training Regiment, this week have received assignments for assignment to the European command, it was announced by unit officials.

Former Staff Section Chief

Col. Armistead D. Mead, former director of the Staff department assumed direction this week of the Tactical department, replacing Col. Douglas Sugg who is leaving for the Far East command.

Colonel Mead graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in June 1924, and in 1928, he attended the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J. Later, he attended Infantry School at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the National War College in Washington, D. C.

Prior to World War II, he served in various command duties in Hawaii and the South Pacific. During 1942 and 1943 he was assistant chief of the war plans division of the South Pacific area.

Later in 1943 he was made deputy chief of staff of the airborne command at Camp Mackall, N. C. Later, he was assigned as deputy chief of staff of the 3rd Army at Camp Mackall, N. C. He was also assigned as chief of staff of the Ninth Army in Europe.

Colonel Mead, a 49-year old native of West Virginia, was made commander of Fort Benning in the Panama Canal Zone.

With some 39 months of overseas duty, he has received the Service medal, the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star medal.

EM Will Pay

as a debit against his initial credit. At the end of the training period, another Request and Receipt form will be prepared and the remainder of the items needed to bring his clothing up to the mandatory allowance value is again entered on his pay card as a debit against his initial credit. The money value procured the items at the sales store.

For the first six months of service, the recruit accrues no money. The recruit accrues maintenance purposes, but beginning with the first day of the seventh month, the status to accrue what is called a basic monetary allowance, is paid to him in cash every month along with his regular pay during the first three years of his service.

Alterations of clothing will be made at government expense during the first six months of service, but thereafter the soldier will have to pay for them. When it becomes necessary for the soldier to replace clothing items, he will do so by going to the clothing sales store and buying them, just as he would do in civilian life. The soldier has a critical need for certain items but has no cash with which to buy them. A "Health and Appearance" issue can be made, using the Request and Receipt form, appropriately made out for such issue.

Cost to Be Deducted
Cost of a Health and Appearance issue is deducted from the individual's pay. Officials said, however, that Health and Appearance issues are to be kept to an absolute minimum. Some sort of disciplinary action will be taken against soldiers who habitually run short of cash when they need clothing, they said.

Unit Assigns New Duties to Four EM

Four enlisted men of the 899th Armored Field Artillery battalion, received new assignments this week, it was announced by unit officials.

Sgt. James R. Parnell, Battery B, went to Battery C, Pfc. Francis M. Downey, Battery A, to Battery C, Pvt. Houston Lancaster, Service battery, to Headquarters, and Pfc. Sherman Mixon, M-Sgt. Claude Hembree, Sgt. 1st Cl. Joe F. Griffin, Sgt. 1st Cl. Olen Morris, Cpl. Miguel Palmores

Both the basic and standard maintenance allowances cover cost of clothing alterations (except during the first six-month period), repair and replacement, which means that all charges for such work are to be paid for by the soldier.

For this reason, men who purchase replacement items should be sure of a good fit before leaving the clothing sales store. Government facilities for such repair may be used, but on a cash basis, with rates fixed by the government operated facility.

Details of the entire cash clothing allowance system are contained in drafts of Special Regulations 32-201, 32-202 and 32-210, which explain the system, the initial, basic standard allowances and price lists, and the organization and operation of the clothing sales store.

These regulations are published in final form for distribution by June 15.

Present plans call for the establishment of two additional clothing sales stores at Fort Benning, one to be located on the main post in building 1088 near the Quartermaster laundry, and the other in the Sand Hill area in building 3865. It is contemplated that these stores will be open for business on July 5.

Discharges May Keep Issue
Enlisted men who accept honorable discharges are allowed to keep their entire issue, since the clothes pass to them at the time the clothing is issued. If they re-enlist within 90 days, however, they must account for the mandatory allowance, either by

Colonel Torrence Praised For Organizing Regiment

Col. James F. Torrence, Jr., Infantry Center management officer, was awarded the Third Army Certificate of Achievement this week for "outstanding work in organizing and training the 15th Infantry regiment."

The citation, which was presented by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Clark, third Infantry division commander, said that Colonel Torrence demonstrated the highest leadership qualities when he assumed command of the 15th Infantry in January, 1949. At that time, the citation continued, the unit, which had previously been deactivated, had to secure "filler" personnel from other Fort Benning units to build up the cadre strength.

Between January and August, 1949, Colonel Torrence returned to every effort to mold the small handful of the service club job troops were put into such excellent condition that the Infantry was acting management officer during Colonel Torrence's absence for participation in the top-level.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Service Club Work Wins Title for Artillery Soldier

A 25-year old corporal from the 899th Armored Field Artillery battalion was selected Soldier of the Week for his six-month supervision and participation in the reconstruction and enlargement of an Infantry Center service club.

In August 1949, Cpl. Melvin Garret, Battery C, volunteered to supervise the enlargement of Service club No. 5, former headquarters building of the 25th Infantry Regimental Company. To complete the salvage materials only. No funds were available for buy paint, nails and additional lumber that would be required normally for such a job.

Blueprints had been drawn up by Infantry Center special services officials, Corporal Garret and his men began the arduous task of enlarging the club. Additions to the building included the construction of a frame room 17 by 10 feet on the east side of the building and an extension on the west side of the building that would serve as a lounge overlooking the patio. The latter extension was made with 11 windows.

AS THE WORK progressed, Garret's crew of 15 divided into one or two during the last three weeks of the job when final touches were being applied to the task of painting and improving the beauty of the finished rooms. Garret disregarded his regular schedule and often worked late into the night.

After completion of the job, he was commended for his efforts by Fort Benning special services officials. The commendation also said that Garret's work had saved the government $27,000.

Garret's prolific construction prowess didn't stop with completion of the service club job. For more than a month during his off-duty time and at nights, Garret labored tirelessly to improve the building that would serve as a lounge overlooking the patio. The latter extension was made with 11 windows.

It's Worthwhile Remembering

"Under the command of General Eisenhower Allied Naval Forces supported by strong Air Forces began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France." June 6, 1944, six years ago today, this message electrified the entire universe. It seemed as though the world stood still while waiting for the first battle reports. A mass prayer began to pour forth from the hearts of freedom-loving people everywhere for their representatives in the assault boats. The hour had at last arrived and was heralding these men who now were embarked upon the greatest crusade in modern history.

At 9:35 a.m. the first combined waves landed on the shores of Normandy while throughout the day every means of communication relayed word of the highly successful assault. People huddled closely together in Times Square to catch glimpses of the latest press dispatches. In other languages and in many lands, anxious groups tightened around radio sets listening to the combat progress reports of their Allied armies.

Preceded by many months of careful planning, scheduling and rescheduling of troop movements, massing of great reserves of manpower and material, the entire operation was one of master concept, preparation and execution. Whatever the future holds and whatever history contains, no event will outrank the Normandy landing of six years ago for its importance, decisiveness and success in military operations.

That day, Allied Naval gunfire, aerial bombardment and the inevitable infantryman all combined to set the Southern shores of France ablaze with unified military might. It will live in the hearts of mankind forever as the day that lit the way to victory by signaling the defeat and doom of German aggression. Above all else, it serves as a symbol and reminder that peace is not gained by desire alone, nor victory won without its terrible toll in human lives.

Our American leaders and planners now are calling for extension of Selective Service legislation. Sometimes it's hard for us to remember the price we have paid for something so dearly won. But let us never forget that in this age of atom bombs and revolutionary military techniques that it is the "Queen of Battles" who ultimately gains, holds and occupies ground. No shell nor "push-button" gadget ever can replace the men who serve in the infantry. These American men must be provided with the ultimate by way of the latest military methods and doctrine available. To accomplish this we must continue to maintain a large nucleus of expertly trained infantrymen from all walks of life who are ready and able to fill the necessary wartime needs of our American Army.

The post-World War II age of the atom bomb and the guided missile has completely proven the fallacy of the adage: "Better Late Than Never." All of us who have missed a train, plane or bus readily can vouch for that. The Twentieth-Century criterion truly is "Time and Tide Wait for no Man." And that definitely means nations of men.

While we are remembering General Eisenhower and his crusaders during the sixth anniversary of their great hour of historic accomplishment, let us not forget this same leader's more recent advice. It was his first Army Day slogan when he became Chief of Staff of the United States Army following his return to this country:

"A Strong America is a Peaceful America."

This message should be indelibly imprinted in all our minds and play an increasingly important part in our everyday thinking.

Among Our Honored Guests

Supreme Court Rules Against Segregation

A blow against the segregation of Negroes and whites was struck by the Supreme Court this week. In three unanimous decisions the high court ruled in favor of Negroes seeking equal rights in Texas and Oklahoma state universities and equal dining car privileges on interstate transportation facilities. The court ruled in favor of the individual cases against segregation, but did not grant a Government request for reversal of a 54-year old decision that segregation is constitutional.

Six European nations have agreed to pool their coal and steel production as one means of unifying Western Europe and strengthening its economy. France, Western Germany, Belgium, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands agreed to the plan proposed by French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman at the London Conference of Foreign Ministers. Great Britain declined to join in the agreement.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur this week ordered the Japanese government to ban from public life the 24-Central Committee of the Japanese Communist Party. The order came two days after Premier Shigeru Yoshida's pro-American Liberal Party made substantial gains in a parliamentary election. It is expected that Yoshida will completely oust the Communist Party which caused major disturbances during the election. Following a Communist rally in which American soldiers were injured all public demonstrations were outlawed in the final days before the election. A threatened general strike by the Reds never materialized.

Navy's Annual Arctic Supply Expedition Ready

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE The Navy's colorful Point Barrow expedition, made annually to resupply Government outposts in Alaska, is scheduled to leave from Seattle, Wash., late in July, carrying 24,000 tons of supplies for remote stations along Alaska's northernmost coast. Vital supplies will be carried for Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4, a 35,000 square mile area lying within the Arctic Circle; also for installations of the Army, Air Force, Civil Aeronautics Administration, Coast and Geodetic Survey and the Weather Bureau. These expeditions must be carefully planned and coordinated in order to take advantage of the short summer period when Arctic waters adjacent to the Alaskan mainland are free of ice.

Attendance at Divine Worship Is Obligatory

By CHAPLAIN DAVID M. REARDON The church constantly fights the problem of attendance. Many of us fight it with excuses or with the use of techniques. Persons who have excuses attend occasionally in good faith, but those who respond only to techniques hardly possess a proper attitude toward the meaning of divine worship. We must seek a solid approach to the reason for attending church and the solution of the problem.

The reason for attending Divine Worship is found in Sacred Literature. Every one is obligated to honor and worship the Lord God. Worship is both an individual and social obligation.

In the background of religion as practiced in the United States are political, social and religious commitments intended to protect, establish and encourage religious practices. The Constitution provides for freedom of religion. American social history reveals a sense of need for religious community life, consequently, every country-side, village and city is home to various religious groups enjoying religious freedom.

THE CARDINAL by HENRY MORTON ROBINSON SIMON & SCHUSTER, PUBLISHER
By ALLEN L. MULLIKIN
"Father, men called him. O most trusting of names." Facing the trials and temptations of all men, Father Fermoye travels the long and arduous climb in the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church as mapped by Author Henry Morton Robinson.

As a Catholic himself, the author states in his foreword that he has attempted to express the wonder and awe he has for the function of the priest. He justly disclaims any motive of propaganda for or against his religion. The Cardinal is a human story against the ancient backdrop of Roman Catholicism.

Chance Offered Officers to Earn College Degree

WASHINGTON (AP)—Regular army officers having six months less time required to earn a baccalaureate degree may now complete their requirements at a civilian college of university.

The army has announced expansion of the educational program for regular army officers which is the culmination of an extended study made in cooperation with the American Council on Education. About 1,000 officers will be eligible to participate in this phase of the program in the next few years.

Officers selected will be placed on temporary duty for a period not to exceed six months. In addition to being stationed in the continental United States, an officer must also meet the following eligibility requirements:

1. Not have reached his 37th birthday at time of entering college.
2. Have acceptable military efficiency ratings.
3. Have a past academic record totaling average grades of better.
4. Have a statement from an accredited college or university that he can meet requirements for a baccalaureate degree within a period of six months or less.

Because most colleges and universities require one year residence study for a degree, a majority of officers will have to complete one semester of residence credit as off-duty education to qualify for the last semester of full-time study.

War Regarded As Inevitable Meat Plant Men Develop Improved Pan Sterilizer

By PAT MURPHY
BAYONET STAFF WRITER

CAPT. PAUL CHMAR
Former U. S. Envoy

To the people of Poland a third world war is inevitable. It will occur, they say, when the bigoted ideologues of communism burst from their fetters and attempt to force the status quo upon the arteries of democratic life.

In three years as an assistant military attache in Warsaw, Poland, Chmar saw this contagious theory grip the once proud and self-governing people of Poland. He saw first-hand the deterioration of private enterprise and individual initiative from a front row seat in the United States embassy in the communist-ruled Europe.

Captain Chmar was assigned to the Infantry School's Foreign Liaison section last month, saw communism clamping a death-lock on the liberties of the Poles.

Early in 1947, the mellow-voiced Baltimorean arrived in Warsaw for the purpose of adding an unforgettable chapter to his life.

FROM THE FIRST DAY OF his arrival, Captain Chmar said, Polish security police is also maintained and directed by communists, began following him on his diplomatic missions about the Polish army, he said that military representatives of a western power, especially were given close surveillance.

But after several months in the intrigue-ridden Polish city, Captain Chmar issued only two uniforms for year-round wearing. "By security police, then lose us by coming up and down winding streets."

Only once during his tour of duty in Poland did the green-eyed combat veteran meet with any resistance. During a lengthy trip into southwest Poland, when he had gone with a friend to fish, Captain Chmar was stopped by security police for questioning. After properly identifying himself, Captain Chmar hoped to be released. He and his fellow army officer, however, were taken to a small district police headquarters for questioning. At one time during the interrogation, Captain Chmar intimated that Captain Chmar was a professional spy and would be charged with espionage. Later, he said, the police politely released them to continue their trip.

THE GOVERNMENT OF Poland, Captain Chmar asserted, is the perfect example of communist infiltration. He said that the government is not at all representative of the people, and any resistance by the democratic movement is coped with by strong-arm tactics of the police.

In 1947 the government, which is now the alleged integration of the United Workers party, the communists and the Socialist party, pacified western powers by holding a democratic ballot-casting election. The results, however, put the communist government again in control by a five percent of the votes cast were for a new form of government.

The United States promptly drafted a letter in which specific facts claimed that illegal and coercive methods were used to force the Poles to vote for the "communist ticket." Poland, in turn, rejected the United States' claims in a typical communist fashion, Captain Chmar said.

Private enterprise in Poland, he said, is something of the past. Industry and newspapers have been nationalized, as have railroads, which rank among the world's most efficient. In fact, everything formerly owned by corporations and individuals has been nationalized by the government, he declared.

Captain Chmar said investments in Poland by western powers is prohibited. The government long ago discouraged foreign investments by taking over all enterprise and not making reimbursements to stockholders of the nationalized firms.

GOVERNMENTAL POLICIES are enforced, the captain said by a bureau known as the Ministry of Public Security. He said that agents and workers of that police force outnumber the strength of the Polish army.

The Polish army, in turn, is generally considered to be poorly trained and inadequately equipped. The average soldier, however, a highly successful political indoctrination program for all soldiers. Discipline is also maintained on a very high level, Captain Chmar said.

The average Polish soldier, who is paid $1 per month and given 20 cigars as a salary, joins the army when he's 20 years old, Captain Chmar reported. Besides necessary fatigue and combat equipment, a Polish soldier is issued only two uniforms for year-round wearing. After serving two years, he is usually discharged, although a small percentage, he said, stays in for additional service.

One factor that causes the high mortality rate among recent enlistments in the Polish army, Captain Chmar said, is "highlight wage scale in Polish civilian life. The average industry worker receives about $50 each month."

The United States, Chmar said, is highly admired by the Poles. He said they have a great deal of respect for the great American industries and high standard of living.

Post-war Poland has made gains toward recovering from its wartime disaster. Cities, Captain Chmar explained, are being rebuilt from the ground up, mostly by hand. The police possess a heavy equipment. Still a common sight among cities, however, are the tall blackened, gutted buildings, wrecked by the pounding of World War II Nazi bombs.

HOUSING IN POLAND IS AT its most critical point, Captain Chmar reported. The government is allotted only so much space for living by the government, and is heavily taxed for the privilege of having quarters. In most cases, six persons are jammed into one story room, with only the highest Polish government officials allowed the luxury of living in full-sized houses. Quarters for foreign diplomatic representatives, he said, are "sufficient."

There are several impressions Captain Chmar received about the Polish army during his trips throughout the country.

The army is constantly in training. The type of training is generally that of a basic training unit. Soldiers live in the field and go over and over basic tactical situations. Equipment, which is of the most obsolete classification, is inadequate for the purpose of staging a full-scale war.

Polish military leaders, including junior officers and noncommissioned officers, lack the necessary large-scale training and leadership qualities. In a full scale war, soldiers would be helpless should their leaders be killed or taken from battle. There is no integration of command responsibility in the lower grades of enlisted ranks.

CAPTAIN CHMAR SAID THE American soldier, on the other hand, is completely competent of assuming a major combat role. He said that the communist's notice and carrying out the responsibilities of an officer.

He said that coal and agriculture take the top spots in national productivity. Meat canning and general manufacturing also make substantial contributions to the wealth and strength of the flatland country.

In direct contrast to democratic nations, the Polish government has completed a hampering process of thwarting the progress and purpose of religion, Captain Chmar said. He said that the churchmen were "instructed" in what to say from pulpits. In several cases, churchmen resisted the communist regime and openly fought against the government from the

Meat Plant Men Develop Improved Pan Sterilizer

A new meat pan sterilizer, developed by Lt. Kenneth E. Kinter and Sgt. Owen G. Patton, of the meat plant, has replaced the steam hose at Fort Benning.

The sterilizer is similar in principle to the familiar one used in mess halls to sterilize mess trays, and is mounted on a sloping steel extension which reaches to the curb, permitting trucks to back up to it for loading of pans. The extension is equipped with steel rollers on which the pans slide, and has sufficient slope so that one man, loading from the truck tail gate, can push the entire line of trays through the sterilizer.

After the trays come out of the steam sterilizer, they are loaded on hand trucks and taken into the refrigeration rooms of the plant.

The sterilizer, according to Lieutenant Kinter, is probably the only one of its kind in operation at a military post, and was manufactured with the help of ordinance units out of salvaged steel scrap. It is expected to reduce greatly the time and effort needed to sterilize pans under the old system, as well as to improve the health of the men.

These priests were promptly "taken" to prisons for religious indoctrination, a number of others have been slandered and attacked by the government-controlled press, he said.

In September, Captain Chmar, who holds the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Purple Heart with two clusters, the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge, will enroll in the nine-month advanced officers' course at the Infantry School.

Speculative Article to Head List of Quarterly Contents

Armored personnel carriers protected by tanks are the answer to the close combat problem of the next war.

That is the stand taken by Lt. Col. George B. Pickett, Jr., in his article, "The Future of Close Combat," which will appear in the July issue of the Infantry School Quarterly.

The table of contents for the July issue was released today by Lt. Col. A. E. McCormick, director of the Infantry School's Training Publications Department, who stated that Colonel Pickett's challenging piece will be the Quarterly's lead and cover article.

Colonel Pickett, an instructor in the tactical department, in his article, examines the "lurid accounts of atomic horrors awaiting us in the ABC (atomic, biological, chemical) warfare of the future."

He contends that lack of lucrative targets and fear of reprisals may prevent the use of those weapons in future close combat. The deadliest weapon in prospect, he states, is the artillery shell with a VT-type fuse.

"With this type of shell available," Colonel Pickett writes, "all foot soldiers face the problem of destruction by VT fixed projectiles as they approach the enemy's combat positions."

Most Conserve Personnel

He also points out that, although we are likely to be outnumbered by our next enemy, we may still be able to out-produce him. For this reason, he says, we need to devise ways of conserving our personnel in the face of VT fire.

His solution to the problem is proper use of our industrial capacity to manufacture enough armored carriers and tanks to transport close combat soldiers to enemy positions with minimum losses.

"We gain other advantages by providing fully covered armored personnel carriers for our troops," Colonel Pickett writes. "Think of how much more ammunition and other supplies can be carried. Think of doing away with those long, weary marches in the mud before the assault. Think of the strength of the individual soldier saved... the increased fire power... the mobility."

In Line With Policy

Colonel Pickett's article is in line with the Quarterly's new policy of publishing one or two speculative and controversial articles in each issue, Colonel McCormick said. Formerly, it published only school doctrine.

"These new articles do not necessarily reflect the thought or opinion of the Infantry School," Colonel McCormick stated, "but they are highly interesting and will provoke a lot of thought."

Other articles slated for the July issue are: "Technique of Instruction," by Capt. M. J. Berenshaw; "BAR Working Models," by Capt. F. H. Black and Sgt. 1st Cl. Coats Brown; "Withdrawal," by Lt. Col. Bruce Palmer; "The Photo Map," by Maj. J. D. Scoull; "The Slide Rule," by Lt. Col. R. E. Daehler; "Heavy Weapons Company in Dawn Attack," by Maj. J. E. Reid; "The 4.2 Subcaliber Device," by Capt. J. W. Kitchen; "Combat Patrol Problem," by Capt. E. G. Kimball; and "Guns Against Armor," by Lt. R. N. Ives.

Units Renovate Chapels in Area

Two of the Third Infantry division's chapels recently underwent a spring "face-lift."

Maj. Gen. E. W. Clark, commanding general has announced that both the 15th Infantry regiment chapel and the division artillery chapel have been completely repainted and cleaned inside and out.

All the work on both chapels was done by men of the two units, working on their free time as volunteers, reported Chaplain John V. Peters and Leonard Siegman of the 15th Infantry, and Chaplains Walter G. McLeod and F. C. Riley, of division artillery.

In both chapels, the interior was repainted, new wall paneling was installed, new linoleum laid on the office floors, and benches varnished.

Hospitals to Aid ROTC Training

Washington (APPS) — Six army general hospitals and two large station hospitals will be used as sites for clinical clerkship training camps for medical ROTC students, it has been announced by Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, army surgeon general.

Under the clinical clerkship program, medical ROTC students who are veterans of more than one year of active service will attend camps at these hospitals for six-week periods during the summer.

The six general hospitals designated are: Walter Reed, Washington, D. C.; Brooke, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Fitzsimons, Denver, Colorado; William Beaumont, El Paso, Texas; Letterman, San Francisco, California; and Madigan, Tacoma, Washington. This training will be in two camps, the first beginning June 19 and the second, August 7.

Six ISD Men Get Overseas Orders

Six enlisted men of the Infantry School detachment received orders this week for overseas assignments, it was announced by unit officials.

M-Sgt. Haskell R. Clay and William E. McMaster, Company A, and M-Sgt. Herbert L. Welch, Company B were assigned to U. S. forces in Australia.

Sgt. 1st Cl. Otis N. Maddox and Sgt. Lorenzo Nathaniel, Company A, were assigned to Far East command, and M-Sgt. Donald R. Barnes, Company B, to European command.

Big 3 In Accord On 2 Vital Issues

By Armed Forces Press Service

The solidarity of the Western democracies recently was evidenced when the Big Three issued a stern note of protest to Russia and reached agreement on regulating the sale of arms to the Middle East.

In Washington, President Truman announced that the U. S., Britain and France were in accord on a plan to regulate the sale of arms to the Middle East as a means of establishing parity between Israel and the Arab nations.

Growing out of the London meetings of the Mid-East arms plan is designed to stabilize the political situation in that area, and reduce strife and warfare which has flared so frequently since Israel was established as an independent nation.

The Big Three emphasized that they remain steadfastly opposed to the use of force or threats by any Middle East nation against another and recorded a mutual pledge to take steps toward prevention of any threatened violation of frontiers or armistice agreements.

Another joint action of the Big Three was the dispatch of notes to Russia protesting the creation in Eastern Germany of a police force and militia of 400,000 men having "the character of an army."

The notes charged that creation of an armed force in the Soviet Zone of Germany was a violation of international agreements to which Russia is a party.

OPEN HOUSE IN THE 15TH INFANTRY REGIMENT TROPHY ROOM. On Armed Forces Day, the 15th Infantry regiment held open house in its trophy room in connection with the Infantry Center's open house. This scene was typical all through the day as interested visitors came in to see the 15th's mementoes. Above, Cpl. George Weaver proudly shows one of the trophies to Mrs. George S. Eyster, Jr., and Mrs. Albert W. Childress, Jr., who is holding her daughter, Leslie Anne.

$100 Bonds Bought by EM

If the rest of Fort Benning follows the example set by two men in Headquarters company Second Battalion, 15th Infantry regiment, the Savings Bond campaign should be a success here.

Pfc. Jorge Lazzada and Sgt. Donny Eberhart purchased a total of eight savings bonds between them. Lazzada bought six at one time, and Sergeant Eberhart bought two $100-dollar bonds.

Capt. Charles W. Kilpatrick, 15th Infantry, bonds and savings trustee, reported that the drive was going over successfully throughout the regiment.

Replacement Company Men are Transferred

Five enlisted men of the Third Replacement company, Third Infantry division, were transferred this week to the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion.

They are Cpl. Willie L. Floyd, Pfc. Willie E. Jamison and Pvt. Andrew R. Anderson, Neils on Lattier, Jr., and Allen Thompson.

Shaw Lad Wins Slogan Contest

Robert Shaw, 15-year old son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leland Shaw, was awarded a $25 United States savings bond and $50 watch last week on a nationally-broadcast radio show in Columbus.

In a contest sponsored by the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce among students of Columbus high schools, Shaw took top honors with his slogan, "Some People Can't Vote, But You Can."

The contest was to select a slogan to spark future elections and urge voting.

Young Shaw was presented the contest prizes on "Ladies Be Seated," an American Broadcasting company program that was broadcast from Columbus two days last week. Johnny Olin, casting company program that on the radio show presented the prizes while the show was on the ABC network.

Marshall Asks Support of UN

General of the Army George C. Marshall led the nation's Memorial Day services last week with a call for support of the United Nations as a forum "where words can be used instead of bullets."

Speaking beside the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National cemetery, across the Potomac river from Washington, Marshall said that another war would shatter the world.

"Whoever wins another war, their generation will lose it... amidst its own ruins," he said.

The former secretary of state, wartime chief of staff and author of the Marshall Plan for European Recovery said that a war is "better than appeasement" and "far better than submission to tyranny and oppression, because without freedom and respectability life would not be worth living."

Sports Sidelights

BY LEO J. PARENT

Television and radio have both proven that the American public above all others loves audience participation shows. Anything that fans can really enter into is enjoyed by most lovers of everything from give-away programs to sporting contests. Since Fort Benning is no exception to this rule, the Main gymnasium should be jammed at 8:30 p.m., June 20, when big-time professional wrestling opens there for the first time this year.

In no other sports do the fans take such an active part in the proceedings. Baseball has its Brown cheer and bottle throwing, football has the occasional fan that rushes onto the field to stop a play, basketball has its pillow-seat throwers, and boxing has its "molder de bum". But wrestling has all these, plus the fanatics who not only cry "molder de bum", but who also insist on crawling into the ring and doing the job themselves. Decidedly an ungraceful sport, wrestling is perhaps the oldest and best known. Every country in the world has its favorite.

An added attraction from our programs here on post will be bouts between some of the most glamorous female wrestlers in the business. What more can followers of the mat sport ask?

Strictly on the Side

The Philadelphia Phillies' two "Golden Boys", Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, are the talk of the baseball world this season. Simmons won his seventh of the year last week against two losses. Roberts with the same number of wins and losses has been one of the reasons the Phillies have astounded the diamond pre-season dogeaters in the pennant race. Tagged for the cellar or near the bottom, the Quakers are now solidly entrenched in first place in the senior league with 24 wins and 16 losses for a .600 average as of June 5.

The experts expect both Simmons and the boy wonder, Robin Roberts, to post 20 or more victories in the current season. Bonus babies, both players had mediocre seasons last year and not much was expected for 1950, but that just shows you that the unexpected is the rule in baseball.

Whenever pitchers make the headlines, talk-of-victories-by-old-timers is started. The name Cy Young is always the first one mentioned and for good cause. The oldest (now 83) won 511 games with 315 losses during his 22 years in the majors with two National League clubs, St. Louis and Boston and Cleveland and Boston in the junior circuit. He won 20 or more games for 14 consecutive seasons. No one doubts that that mark will remain as long as baseballs are batted around America's parks.

Grover Cleveland Alexander is another name that brings nostalgic memories to the hearts of the followers of the national pastime. In 1917, he won the win column 30 times. In 20 years of baseballing, the venerable pitcher great piled up an impressive 373 wins. Christy Mathewson performed for 17 years in the National League and tied Alexander with a win record of 373.

Ahead of both Alexander and Mathewson comes the name of Walter "Big Train" Johnson, also noted for his feat of throwing silver dollars across the Potomac. Firing one of the fastest balls in the history of baseball, the big right-hander won 414 games in his career for the Washington Senators.

Along with talk of these greats, of course, is new talk of the sons of the game as it was then and as it is now. The new talk rule to plague pitchers, the "no-k" ball and the greater all-round excellence of all the opposing players, modern day twirlers seem to us to have a harder row to hoe than the old-time miracle men.

Now for the horse lovers on post. Chattanooga will host the Kiwanis horse show for three days, June 21-23, at Warner Park. Any horse owners who wish to enter the show must submit their entries by Monday, June 12, to Kiwanis headquarters, Hotel Patten in Chattanooga. Any further information on the subject can be obtained from the Public Information Office in the Infantry Center annex.

Troopers Whip Dragons; Go Into Second-Place Tie

Defending Loop Champions Cash In On Foe's Miscues

H-S Unit Wins, 28-27

The Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion diamondmen pushed into a two way tie for second place in the post league last Wednesday night by defeating the 15th Infantry regiment, 7-4.

Taking advantage of eight Dragon miscues, the powerful chutists scored two runs in the third inning, one in the fifth, two in the seventh and two in the eighth. The 15th scored in the fourth, one in the seventh and one in the ninth.

Cronin Whiffs Side In the top half of the first inning Trooper Pitcher Bob Cronin fanned the first three men to face him. In the bottom half of the first frame, Paul Bonair went down swinging for the first of Walt Scott's six strikeouts in four innings of play, and Bob Kinard was out short to first. Joe Metzger got the first Airborne hit, a double down the left field line, and Scott got Joe Smith, third to first.

In the second stanza, Big Jim Baldwin hit to short and was out, short to first. Chas. Nichols added another to Cronin's list of strikeouts that totaled 10 before the speedballer was relieved in the ninth. Bob Jordan drew a base on balls, but was left stranded when ace sponger "Tiny" Kocheil was out second to first. Scott fanned the first Trooper to face him in the frame, watched Terry Scott get to first on the first Dragon Miscue and then fanned the next two chutists to end the inning. The 15th went down one-two-three in the bottom of the third. Cronin came to bat for the paratroopers and singled through first. Bonair tripled, sending Cronin home with the first Airborne run, and touched home on Kinard's single. Kinard stole second and stayed there as Metzger flied to short. Smith went down, short to first, and Len Garney punted up to second.

Dragons Score Twice The 15th got its two runs in the top of the fourth when two were out. Baldwin Texas leagured and went to third on Nichols' single over second. Jordan slashed a single over third to drive home the first two of the 15th's four runs, and Kocheil ended the inning, short to first.

Airborne scored its next run on a comedy of errors in the fifth inning. Marty Kossovser, the 15th's pitcher, came into the battle replacing Scott who injured his hand on an attempt to bunt in the fourth frame. Bonair watched three out the plate for the first time and Kinard received a free pass and was out on the next play on an attempt to steal. Kossovser kept his second base on balls to Metzger, and Nichols overthrew second on a try to tag Metzger on a steal of second. Metzger went to third when the ball bounced into center field and galloped home when the relay to third went wild. Smith fanned to end the inning.

The 15th picked up another run in the seventh when Kocheil brought in Nichols on a beautiful squeeze play. Chutists Add Two Runs In the eighth the chutists made two more runs. Carney was out, second to first, to start the inning, while Scott singled to right. Kossovser threw to first on Myatt's bunt, and Scott went to third on the play. Myatt stole second on the next pitch, while Gallagher smashed one through Kossovser driving in Terry Scott. Myatt went to third on the play and came in on a run-down play at second. Cronin fanned to right and Bonair fanned to end the inning. The 15th got its last run in the ninth when Kocheil hit a sharp single into center field, scoring Nichols who led off the inning with a triple.

Winning pitcher was Cronin, with Kossovser being charged with the loss.

'Scotch' Meet Won By McClellan-Hill Col. H. W. McClellan and Mrs. J. T. Hill piped their way to victory in the mixed Scotch tournament which was held at Sunday at the Country Club links.

Col. and Mrs. O. P. Newman took second honors in the field of 27 couples. Low gross winner was the late Col. and Mrs. Russell Volkmann.

Headquarters and Service company of the Airborne battalion Student Training regiment, topped a battalion headquarters softball nine, 28-27, last week in one of the highest scoring games played at Fort Benning this season.

OUT AT THE PLATE... Dick Burton, Headquarters company centerfielder, slides to no avail as Catcher Eddie Jerles of Company 1 tags him out at the plate in the fourth inning of the semi-finals of the 30th Infantry regiment's softball tourney at Sand Hill. Headquarters won the game by a score of 13-3.

Headquarters Captures Regimental Softball Title

Headquarters company annexed the 30th Infantry regiment's softball crown last Thursday at Sand Hill by downing Company F, 11-3 in the finals.

Floyd Cline, pitching six-hill ball, notched his second win in as many starts, while Jennings Skipper lost his second game of the tourney. He gave up only five hits, but his mates afield contributed six bobbies and a passed ball.

Skipper also was guilty of two wild pitches that hurt. Headquarters was guilty of only one miscue. The Foxmen started the scoring in the first, when Bob Cookrum walked and scored on Dick Burton's double into right field. Ed Ennemoser flied out to end the inning.

Headquarters came back in the half of the inning, when Bill Williams got on an error. Dick Howard walked, Dick Burton got on an error, and Joe Chambers rapped a hot single into right field. Three runs scored before the fire was out.

The second inning was scoreless, but the Foxmen tied up the game in the top of the third, when Cal Woodward singled and scored on Ennemoser's single. Ray Thornton then singled to score Ennemoser, and that was the extent of the scoring for Company F.

Headquarters regained the lead in its half of the fourth when Jack McDougal doubled and scored on a passed ball. The Headquarters half of the fifth stanza saw 11 men at the plate, and seven markers tallied before the third out. There were two wild pitches, two errors, two walks, a passed ball, a stolen base and two hits, one placed by Dick Burton to tie the score.

Webster Captures Tennis Title Again

Sanford Webster defeated Robert Scruton, 6-3, 6-3, last Saturday to take the singles title in the Infantry Center tennis tournament for the fourth consecutive year.

The foremost tennis player on the post, Webster has also won the third army singles crown for the past three years. In all army play, the smooth striking Webster was a finalist in 1946 and a semi-finalist in 1949. He teamed with Charles Daniels in 1948 to take the all army doubles crown. In 1949, with William Stack as his partner, Webster battled his way into the semi-finals before bowing in defeat.

Webster earned his place in the singles finals by defeating Tom Rafferty, 6-2, 6-1, in the quarter-finals and smashing to a 6-0, 6-4, victory over Donn Yoder in the semi-finals. In the women's singles division, P. A. Pagano proved that turnaround is fair play by fighting a 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 win over Hazel Verhey to take the crown. Last year Verhey won the crown by defeating this year's champ.

John Baumgartner and Robert Scruton scored a smashing victory in the doubles division of the tournament by overpowering Webster and Yoder, 6-4, 6-1.

Net Combine Also Teamed During Duty

Teamwork is a full-time affair with two officers who will represent Fort Benning in the third army tennis tournament at Fort Bragg N. C. June 20-24. The pair also team up during duty hours in the quarterly Yoder in the doubles finals of the tennis championship last week, 6-3, 6-3.

Major Baumgartner and Capt. R. A. Scruton qualified on the Infantry Center tennis team by defeating Lt. Col. Sanford Webster and Major Donn Yoder in the quarter-finals of the Infantry School Training Publications department. Major Baumgartner is chief of the group and Captain Scruton is his editorial assistant. Together they collect, edit, and publish the latest infantry thought and doctrine for The Infantry School Quarterly.

Card Slated Post Wins Skeet Contest Laurels

A five-man Fort Benning skeet team went to the Georgia State and Open skeet shoot at Augusta, Ga., Saturday, and came back this week loaded down with honors.

Lt. Gene Stalcup tied Jack Buck, Sgt. 1st Cl. D. S. Huntley (noted chiefly for his feat of shooting out the centers of bulls with the 1,000-inch range and an M1 rifle) and Maj. Chennault.

Stalcup and Boardman were tied up at the end of the regular competition for high individual honors with Red Boardman of Augusta, Hyle of Fort Benning and George Hatcher of Macon. Each of the men had shot 148 birds out of a possible 150.

Stalcup and Boardman went on to shatter 50 straight targets and would have gone into a third shoot-off had it not been for Chennault.

Members of the aggregation that won signal honors for Fort Benning were, in addition to Stalcup and Hyle, Sgt. James Buck, Sgt. 1st Cl. D. S. Huntley (noted chiefly for his feat of shooting out the centers of bulls with the 1,000-inch range and an M1 rifle) and Maj. Chennault.

Headquarters Red Caps Win Softball Meet

The Red Caps of Headquarters Company, 15th Infantry regiment, defeated the Machine Gunners of Company M, 5 to 1, to win the 1950 regimental softball championship.

Bill Daughtry of Headquarters company not only received credit for the win, but also collected two hits. Bill is well known for his softball pitching at Fort Benning, having pitched for the post championship team in 1946 and for the Seventh army team at Fort Bragg, N. C., in 1947.

In the fifth inning of the hotly-contested game, Company M almost staged a rally, when with the bases loaded, Turk Jackson, the team's "big stick" popped out and ended the threat.

Jerk of the Week

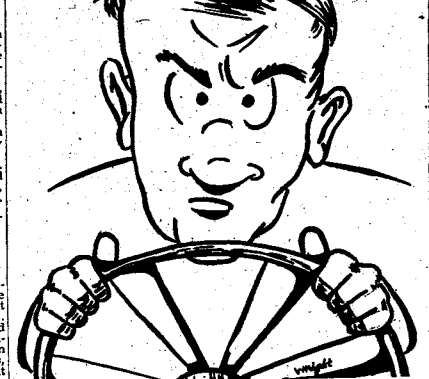

Nut That Holds Wheel Exposed

After a meeting which fractured, all records for abusive by-play, the Selection committee picked Pvt. Sophocles Offbeat as deserving of Jerk-of-the-Week honors, with ruffles, flourishes and a cap pistol salute.

Offbeat's upbringing must have been at the hands of a disenchanted snake charmer and a moody hermit, for he displays all of the graciousness and politeness of a cornered leopard.

The only time this Prince of Jerks uses his horn is when he blasts the air with a series of lengthy toots about 2:17 a.m. in front of the barracks.

In heavy traffic this rancid reform school refugee takes delight in swerving in and out of lanes, with much squealing of brakes and cursing from drivers who have been forced to stop suddenly to avoid being hit.

Off the beam Offbeat demonstrates the same preposterous characteristics when he is out of an automobile. If there is any way for this troglodyte to foul up a chow line, he'll find it.

In his dealings with fellow G.I.s his motto is: "Never say a kind word when a man is cursing or an insult will do just as well."

Come up and snarl at us, Offbeat, you cute little jerk. Your award is waiting for you, complete with a ceremony which features a vicious but neat rap over the skull with a short length of iron pipe.

15th Infantry Adds Six New Trophies

Six more trophies made their way into the trophy room of the 15th Infantry regiment Monday night as Col. Dennis M. Moore, regimental commander, presented another armful to his championship athletic teams.

First trophy was the Infantry battalion two games out of three Center badminton cup, presented to M-Sgt. John Lockamy, post singles champ, and also a volleyball trophy by defeating Company K, two out of three, in the doubles.

Although Heavy Mortar company was the regimental champion, the 15th Infantry division trophy was presented to Capt. Claude Keogh, company commander, for his post championship trophy by defeating Heavy Mortar company during the division tournament.

The Aggressor championship softball title trophy, won by the company, was awarded to Capt. M. A. McRae, company commander, for his post championship trophy by defeating the 41st Field Artillery

WAR ON ANTS

Services to Pool Ingenuity To Combat Picnic Pests

That irritating but industrious little critter, the ant, bad better sharpen up his pincers and prepare for war, because Uncle Sam has launched an all-out offensive against him and his kind.

General J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, in a report recently issued, set down specific measures to be taken against the pestiferous vermin.

The surgeon general, the report states, is responsible for the "study of insects and rodents as vectors of disease."

"This study," the report continues, "will include the aspects of epidemiology, effects on public health, direct control methods, etc. . . . He also is charged with supporting studies in the fields of etiology, toxicology, insect physiology, and such collateral studies as may be required."

THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS, according to the report, will undertake studies "pertaining to the development of methods to protect buildings and other military structures, material and supplies, from infestation and damage by insects and rodents."

"The quartermaster general," the report states, "will institute researches and development of insecticides, rodenticides and other control measures." He also is responsible for development of measures built into clothing and portable shelters for protection against infestation by the wily species.

The airforce is let in for a part in the war against vermin, too. It's the responsibility of that department to look into the matter and "evaluate devices and methods of aerial dispersal of insect and rodent control agents."

That should give fair warning to ants and rats—the literate ones—at any rate—that Uncle isn't fooling. When he says "hands off," he means it!

Post Food Men Finish Course

Infantry Center food service officials reported this week that 1,150 Fort Benning food service personnel had completed a three-day indoctrination course in the care and maintenance of kitchen equipment.

All students in the Third Army Food Service School here and qualified dining hall technicians, were given instruction by Infantry Center engineers.

New food service personnel arriving on the post will also receive the same course of instruction.

They are awarded certificates of proficiency upon completion of the course.

Florida Beach Beckons To 3rd Division Troops

By JOE SIMMONS Bayonet Staff Writer

These hot summer days, what could be more wonderful than basking in the sun on a wide sandy beach surrounded by beautiful girls, while the mighty Atlantic ocean laps gently at the shore and cool breezes play through the palm trees?

No, it's not a dream. All that can come to anyone taking advantage of the Third Infantry division's rest center at St. Augustine, Fla. For $37, a soldier can spend a whole week at St. Augustine, with meals, quarters and recreational facilities provided for him.

AND TO TOP IT ALL OFF, he can get $7.35 back for his rations, making his total cost for the week only $29.65.

Another soldier, Curtis Greenway, who went to the rest camp vacation this year, said "It's the best time I've ever had. Each soldier taking advantage of the camp is placed in a temporary duty there for seven days."

The camp, which was started last summer, has added greatly to the facilities since closing last fall, division officials said.

Right at the doorway of the center is the beach, where the disciples of Isaac Walton can wet a line at any time of the day and be practically certain of catching something. Pfc. Fred Timmerman, who has been to the camp twice already this summer, reported that he caught two fish in one cast and had caught as many as 40 in one day.

Another soldier, Pfc. Curtis Greenway, who went to the center twice last year and once this year, said "It's the best deal a soldier can get. The people there are a real advantage of the camp is placed in a temporary duty there for seven days."

But fishing isn't the only recreation there is at the nation's oldest city. For shutter-bugs, St. Augustine is literally a paradise. Oliver Davis, owner and manager of the Beach Hotel where the center is located, keeps several beautiful models on hand at all times to do nothing but pose for camera-happy soldiers.

And for those who go in for the non-portable type scenery, there are many attractions, including Castillo de San Marco, a fort built by the Spanish who were the first settlers there, and the nation's oldest house, filled with overflowing with antiques and specimens of early American culture.

For a few short miles south of the center is one of the outstanding tourist attractions in the country — Marine Studios. Here one can get an eye-to-eye view of almost every type of fish in the ocean, from playful porpoises to man-eating sharks, all living together as they do in their natural environment.

The huge aquariums are constructed with windows lining the sides and bottom, so that camera fans can get closeups of the many occupants.

FOR MARRIED MEN WHO would like to take advantage of the center but don't want to leave their families behind, special arrangements have been made so Mom and Junior and even Fido can go along. Both apartments and separate cottages are available for men with families.

Every Friday and Saturday night, dances are held in the hotel ballroom, with girls from St. Augustine and surrounding communities attending. However, none of the recreation is on a "compulsory basis. Attendance at the special affairs is encouraged, but as a rule the men are left their own choice as to what they want to do.

The consensus among men who have been there both in special and regular sessions is that it's better than ever. Pvt. Richard Lyons, Company A, 7th Engineer Combat Battalion, summed it up pretty well when he said, "There's no doubt about it, this is the best deal a soldier can get for his money."

Chaplain (Capt.) Harvey M. Hardin will supervise activities at the Bible school to be given at Fort Benning; children will start at the Children's school, and Chaplain Knight will head the school on the main post at Chapel Hill in the Harmony church.

Registration may be accomplished at regular Sunday School (Maj.) Lonnie W. Knight, acting Infantry Center chaplain, or 4212.

Textbooks for teachers and materials and refreshments for the students will be provided from 8:30-11:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, for two-week period ending June 23.

Last year over 200 children participated in the two-week study period on the Bible and handwork. Religious movies and recreation were also included on the schedule. A larger and even better program is planned for this summer, Chaplain Knight said.

THE word "salary" comes from the Latin "salarium," which was that part of an ancient Roman soldier's pay paid in salt.

The U. S. has restricted the movement of Romanian diplomats in this country to an area within a 35-mile radius of Washington. A move that will surely cramp the style of some roaming Romanians.

The roads of the future will be paved with rubber, says a high-way engineer. No doubt about it.

EM Commended For Part In Test

A former 30th Infantry regiment enlisted man was commended this week for his invaluable assistance in testing a new-type life preserver for infantry troops making river crossings.

Several weeks ago, Riggle, who volunteered for the test, was taken to the swiftest and deepest part of the Chattahoochee bordering Fort Benning. Without prior training in swimming with full-field equipment, Riggle leaped from the boat and began swimming.

After being pulled downstream by the rushing current, he was picked up by fellow unit members.

Several days later, a boatload of personnel from Riggle's unit camped in the Chattahoochee river during a practice river crossing. Because of the inclement weather, Riggle gave up his unit about the effective use of the life belt, each victim of the overturned boat was able to swim safely to shore and save his equipment.

Infantry School officials said that the Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.; the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the Naval War College, Norfolk, Va., have not yet appointed representatives to attend the meeting.

Battalion Departs For 2-Week Duty

The Third Anti-aircraft Artillery battalion left Fort Benning last Friday for Camp Stewart, Ga., for two weeks duty. Purpose of the trip, according to Lt. Col. John D. Stevens, commander, is to give the men practice on the firing ranges at Camp Stewart. The battalion will return about June 16.

Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center C-4, revealed to The Bayonet today that construction will start next Monday on an eight-classroom school, located between Battle Park homes and the Custer Road Terrace housing project. Cost of the present-entire school building project which is slated for completion on Aug. 28, was not disclosed.

Colonel Bell's announcement came in the wake of a stormy crisis involving the school and its future. The lack of adequate school facilities on the post and in Columbus to handle post grade school children.

ERC Training Begins Sunday

The first of three reserve training cycles for enlisted men will begin here Sunday, when 175 men from Third Army Enlisted Reserve Corps units arrive for a two-week training period.

Two companies will be formed during the reserve training. Seventeen officers and 94 enlisted men from the 15th Infantry regiment have been selected as instructors for the reservists. Lt. Col. Phillip S. Greene, commander of the 15th Infantry's Second battalion, will direct the training activities.

The training cycle, which is described as a complete basic infantry refresher course, will place emphasis on preliminary rifle instruction, scouting and patrolling, map reading and physical conditioning.

The following officers have been appointed by Colonel Greene to supervisory positions: WOJG Richard Huribut, executive officer; Capt. Hiram S. Tye, S-1; Lt. Harry Hammer, assistant S-3; Capt. Walter Johnson, S-4; Lt. Bobby J. King, athletic and recreation officer; Lt. Edward Lick, first company commander, and Lt. Werner Jones, second company commander.

A large playground has already been constructed and equipped adjacent to the school site. Another smaller playground, for use by the kindergarten-age children and first graders will be constructed.

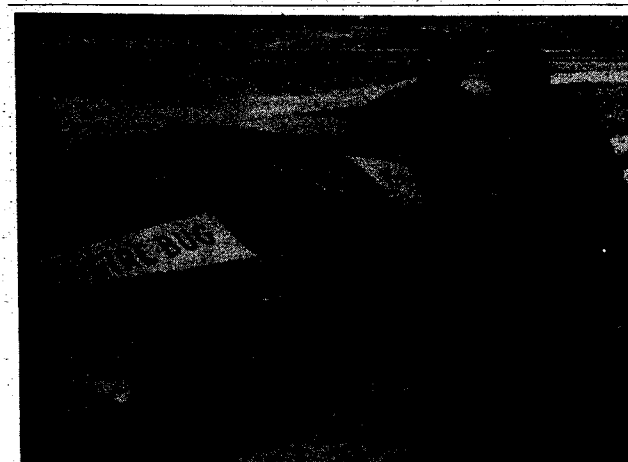

C classrooms capable of seating 35 students each are being constructed with fireproof materials. Specially designed windows provide lighting and ventilation is also said to be of a new type, permitting maximum circulation of air in each classroom.

The main entrance to the school will face Custer Road Terrace. However, the geographic location of the school can be reached by walking from either Battle Park or Custer Road Terrace.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burns, Infantry Center commander, shipped a stamp of approval on the project last month after Colonel Bell reported the availability of the Fort Jackson school equipment.

Generally speaking, construction of the new school was prompted by serious overcrowding in the school here, during the past school year, more than 800 grade-school students are anticipated for the school year beginning Sept. 11. Since Columbus schools were already overcrowded, construction of a new school seemed the only alternative.

Mounted on a Ford truck, the huge bell — which is identical in size and composition to the original — arrived at Fort Benning at 1:45 p.m. (See BELL on Page 1)

NOW OR NEVER . . . Kenneth Hutcherson, right, Fort Benning entry in Columbus' annual Soap Box Derby, puts the finishing touches on the craft he hopes will carry him to victory on July 20. The 15 year-old youth was clocked at an unofficial 35 mph last Saturday on Benning's practice course. The boy's father, M-Sgt. Glen H. Hutcherson, is a member of Company G, 15th Infantry regiment, which is sponsoring the lad in the downtown race.

Bell Replica Visits Post

Legion post delegation, picked groups of soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen and wacs stood as living symbols of our armed might during the hour-long tribute to American independence.

Following the invocation by Dr. Leonard Cochran, Orlie Hawkins, a Phenix City baritone who rose to fame with the Metropolitan Opera company, sang "God Bless America," accompanied by Fort Benning's 72nd Army band.

After a short address by A. Edward Smith, president of the Georgia Bar association, and the solemn ringing of the bell by a local Boy Scout, the massive replica was taken to the parkway at 12th street and Broadway, where it remained on display until 1 p.m.

Arrival of the Liberty Bell in Columbus highlighted the joint celebration of Flag Day and the savings bond drive, with impressive ceremonies held on the lawn of Muscogee county Courthouse.

Starting at 11 a.m., with the presentation of colors by the Charles S. Harrison American Legion post delegation, picked groups of soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen and wacs stood as living symbols of our armed might during the hour-long tribute to American independence.

O'er the Ramparts We Watch

On June 14, 1777, the American Congress at Philadelphia passed the first resolution respecting the Flag of the United States.

Yesterday was the 173rd anniversary of that birth of the American Flag, and annual observances of Flag Day were held throughout the nation. Homes and schools were draped with our country's colors. The Main Streets of the nation proudly displayed her on their standards and wore her in their hearts.

The long, glorious history of our Flag has been memorialized by all of us since our early years. Countless are the men who died in battles fighting to protect and preserve the free nation she symbolizes. Her proud tradition truly is written in our hearts.

Yet, individuals, being only human, tend to neglect in their minds and actions what they feel in their hearts. Especially toward the people and things they love. Most of our Flag is no exception to this regretful rule of neglect.

How many times have we failed to stop and pay proper respects to our Flag when retreat sounded? Given it considered neglect because we thought no one was watching or felt we were too busy in doing something else? This is cowardly, despicable conduct compared to the brave history and men which gave our Flag its inherent birthright.

Individuals in the Army, yes... even soldiers and civilians at Fort Benning, are no exception to this trait of human neglect. Occasionally you will see a few continue to swim in our pools, drive off the post toward home, sit in cars listening to their radios, or even run to the nearest shelter when retreat sounds.

Retreat is only one of the many times when we are given hard work opportunity and privilege of paying proper respect to our country and to our fellow-Americans who have given their very lives to keep it our country. Retreat is a time when we should stop in our Twentieth Century tracks. To stop using it as a signal to quit work, rush off the post or to dash into the nearest building. Instead we should give Old Glory a dose of the spirit that brought her into being. Let us stop wherever we are, freeze in our tracks and give new meaning and life to our honored heritage.

Our civilian countrymen continually look to us of the military service, our families and associates for proper guidance and leadership in the rendition of honors. We cannot afford to let them down, especially by example. We represent the honorable profession of arms which made the American Flag possible. It is no less than our most sacred duty to lead the way in cherishing the same Flag we are sworn to protect with our very lives.

Respect is one of the few things that cannot be bought with money. Yet, it is free. As it concerns our Nation's colors, it is much deserved. It is the one tried and true symbol of freedom to countless millions of people throughout the entire troubled world today. People such as our forebears who came here and conceived her under similar hardship and struggle in similar times and circumstances. We are the living representatives of their great and humble Americans who paid the high cost of allowing Old Glory to be born and wave freely for all time. Again, it is we who must lead the way in the preservation of her high respect and unique regard.

We must remember these things the next time we are in a hurry and tend to be neglectful. If this Flag were not waving over our heads, we would have no freedom, no home to call our own, no cars, radios, swimming pools nor shelters to protect us. And certainly there would be no American Congress nor resolutions made respecting our Flag.

We know that respect for our Flag is not based upon a 173-year-old resolution alone. It stems from the heart and is based upon the actions of our ancestors and ourselves. Would any of us deny that being an American is the greatest of our many privileges? Certainly not. Then we should not deny our Flag, as the symbol of our freedom, the attentive attitude and soldierly salute it so richly deserves as the accepted expressions of our humble gratitude.

May we here and now, highly resolve in our minds not to let a single day pass when we do not welcome the opportunity to express openly what we feel in our hearts concerning the common bond that unites each of us as Americans.

Advance Payments Now Authorized Upon PCS

By ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

The Army and Air Force have recently published and promulgated joint Regulations (AR 35-1105; AFR 173-110) permitting advances of pay to officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel on permanent change of station. These Regulations also authorize advance payment where conditions exist which make it difficult to pay personnel at regular intervals when pay is due. Advance payments normally will be restricted to one month's basic pay less income tax withholdings, but may with the approval of the commanding officer concerned be extended to three months' basic pay.

Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson recently was awarded the 1949 Interfaith in Action Gold Medal for outstanding work in promoting better inter-racial and inter-faith understanding. The medal is awarded annually by Interfaith in Action, an organization devoted to promotion of racial and religious tolerance. Mr. Johnson accepted on behalf of all personnel of the Armed Services.

The Air Force recently announced promotion of 94 Regular and non-Regular officers to the temporary grade of lieutenant colonel.

Because of limited housing facilities at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., Congressional appointments of midshipmen candidates will be reduced from five to four for each Congressional member. Senate Votes to Extend Federal Rent Control Administration backers this week smashed hopes of the Republican minority in Congress of killing Federal rent control. By a vote of 38 to 28 the Senate extended the present law to Dec. 31. The Senate also voted to authorize an additional $2,000,000,000 for government support of farm prices, while the Senate House conference committee agreed upon a $600,000,000 program of defense construction.

Attempts by the United Nations' Trusteeship Council to set up an international regime for Jerusalem were abandoned this week. The problem has been tossed back to the UN Assembly.

The Amerasia stolen documents case was back in the news this week when Philip Jaffe, former editor of now-defunct Amerasia magazine, was subpoenaed by Congress to testify at an investigation into the five-year-old controversy. Jaffe, however, balked at answering questions, and the Senate countered with threats of contempt of Congress.

Chaplain's Corner

Good Enough for Father, Good Enough for Me

BY CHAPLAIN WALLACE M. HALE

There has been much talk these days about re-stating Christian principles so they can be more applicable to modern day problems. Many people feel that old words like resurrection, regeneration, salvation, repentance and faith are so "old-timey" — that some new catch-phrase words should be used to describe these fundamental principles.

The chaplain is always faced with a problem of making religion mean something to the person he serves. If he is worth his salt, he believes that a man with religion — a good sound sensible faith — is a better soldier than one who does not have it. Therefore, the chaplain is attempting by every means possible to sell this important product in order to make military personnel happier and more efficient. The problem of selling religion is not so much that the old terms mean nothing, but that the religion represented by the old terms is not acceptable or wanted. There is no question that men need faith — faith in themselves, their neighbors, and their God — or that men need a change in attitude. The problem faced by the chaplain is that men are so busy trying to get things for themselves in the prescribed manner of this day that they leave the question of God, and sometimes their neighbors, completely out of their thinking.

I am convinced that the old religion of our fathers gave to Americans a flavor and attitude beyond that enjoyed by any other nation. I think we need to change our minds about some old words and take enough time in our life to find out what they mean.

Let us get our dictionaries, our Bibles and the church membership of our choice and find out if we truly accept or reject those old-fashioned words — regeneration, salvation, resurrection, repentance and faith.

To Amuse You Today

Nurse: "I'll have you know I'm marrying an officer and a gentleman." Patient: "You can't do that. It's bigamy."

Overheard in a small town: "What do you natives do for amusement around here?" "Hunt and drink." "What do you hunt?" "Drink."

Private: Would you put me in for promotion? I was married yesterday. Commanding Officer: Sorry, but I'm not responsible for accidents of the base.

Mother: "I'm ashamed of you. I never told lies" when I was a little girl." Girl: "When did you begin, mother?"

Instructor: "Every time I breathe, someone passes into eternity." G.I.: "Try clothes."

EXPOSITION. That's what pretty Perry Sheehan is supposed to be advertising. That composite wheel with which she's posing is the official insignia for the World Transportation Fair to be held at Santa Anita, Calif.

LENIN BY DAVID SHUB DOUBLEDAY & CO. PUBLISHER BY ALLEN L. MULLIKIN "Lenin is our teacher, and we Soviet people are Lenin's disciples," said Joseph Stalin in 1947. The fanaticism of the first leader of the Soviet hars (through this biography by David Shub. The author was a revolutionist himself in 1905-06 and knew the first leader of the Soviet personally. To reveal the blind singleness of purpose of Lenin, the author has included many speeches and writings by Lenin that have never before been published in English.

In an effort to portray the human side of the Communist policy-maker, the author points to Lenin's relations with his family and friends. Even with the help of a well-known biographer Lenin appears as a fanatic who had no feelings unquenched by his world revolutionary theories. Lenin had a fondness only for those people whom he could use to further his ideas of Marxism. Usefulness was his only demand. "A he once said, "Sometimes a scoundrel is useful to our party precisely because he is a scoundrel."

The pre-dictator life of Lenin flows in familiar patterns of conspiracy, imprisonment, Siberian exile and the shutting existence of a political emigre. More important than the details of Lenin's early days is the complete canvas of the Russian revolution given by this book. A profusion of facts dating back to periods prior to the 1905-06 rebellion makes difficult but rewarding. Once Lenin's Bolsheviks overthrew the weak but growing democracy that followed the 1917 revolution, the history of Russia and the will of Lenin were on a single track.

Author Shub mentions once that the dictatorship of Lenin was harsher than the autocratic rule of the Czar, but he does not hint that Lenin wanted personal power for any purpose other than to promote the ideas of world socialism. The Bolshevik idea of using any means to reach the desired end is made clear. The question remaining unasked is whether the dictatorship ever became the end rather than the means. Although the question is not stated, the author gives his partial answer in a chapter called "Dictator Without Vanity."

Lenin stated his individual purpose as the accomplishment of a pure socialist society. His record and his words build up an amazing stack of unabashed dishonesty. To accept his over-all purpose as truth is to believe in the greatest paradox in history.

An appendix entitled "Essentials of Leninism" makes that statement of subject by Stalin in 1947 a frightening thing to contemplate.

Terms of NSLI Plan Discussed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the second of a series of articles relative to the insurance and savings program of the army. The series is being compiled and written by Sgt. Aubrey H. Newton, chief clerk of the Infantry Center Army Emergency Relief, Insurance and Savings office. This article will discuss eligibility of persons to participate in the National Service Life Insurance program.

BY SGT. AUBREY H. NEWTON

All persons in active service—31 days or more—of the armed forces of the United States are eligible for National Service Life Insurance.

Orders to active service need not specify period of time; however, if orders require that the service should be 30 days or less, such persons are not eligible for NSLI.

A person might be ordered to active service on one day and discharged the next, but, in the absence of orders to active service for 30 days or less, he would be eligible for NSLI.

During the first 120 days of service, insurance may be issued without a medical examination. This does not, however, apply to total disability provisions.

A one day break in active service entitles applicant for insurance to a new 120-day period, dating from the new date of entry into service without requiring a medical examination. After discharge, a medical examination is required.

Any individual who has had active service in the military or naval forces of the United States between Oct. 8, 1940, and Sept. 2, 1945, both dates inclusive, whether or not application was made while in service, may apply for writing and be granted NSLI upon furnishing evidence of good health satisfactory to the veteran's administration and upon payment of the first premium with the application.

Service in the armed forces after Sept. 2, 1945, does not qualify applicant for new NSLI after discharge.

Service in the Philippine commonwealth army during the period between Oct. 8, 1940 and Sept. 2, 1945, shall not be considered active duty for the purpose of granting new insurance—except that any person to whom a policy has been granted is entitled to add total disability income provisions, if otherwise qualified.

Service in auxiliary units of the armed forces shall not be considered as meeting the eligibility requirements. These were such organizations as the Waac's, (not Wac), Waaps, Army Specialist Corps and others with similar auxiliary status.

Existence of good health will not be denied because of disability resulting from or aggravated by active military service and less than total in degree, if application for life or disability insurance or for reinstatement of such insurance was made prior to Jan. 1, 1950. (Note—such disability or the aggravation thereof must have occurred in the actual performance of duty between Oct. 8, 1940, and Sept. 2, 1945, both dates inclusive).

Reserves Here On Duty Tours

Under the command of Col. George L. Blossom, 41 officers of the 3031st Station Complement are at Fort Benning for a 15-day active duty tour.

Activated a year ago, the 3031st Station Complement was the first unit of its kind formed in the Third Army area. It is composed of officers from Fort Macon, Ga., district, who were selected by MOS to fill staff duty positions normally found at an army post, thus enabling the unit to train as an integrated group.

During their two-week tour, the officers will undergo on-the-job training in various post staff sections. The training will aid in bringing them up to date on the latest administrative procedures and will familiarize them with modern equipment developed for today's army, officials of the unit said.

The 3031st has had an unusually fine attendance record during the first year of its activation, averaging better than 90 percent, according to the unit officials. All members of the reserve unit are attached to Section I, 3440th Area Service unit, for training and administrative purposes.

GIs Participate In Civilian Rites

Two hundred fifty-seven Infantry Center troops participated in civic activities during the last seven days in four southern cities.

On Monday, six officers and 159 enlisted men went to Mobile, Ala., to take part in a Veterans of Foreign Wars parade.

At the same time, another six enlisted men and one officer were conducting a display of weapons for the Atlanta, Ga., Rotary club.

Last week, Fort Benning's 72nd Army band journeyed to Rifton, Ga., to parade on Flag Day. The 27 enlisted men and one warrant officer made another trip to Live Oak, Fla., where they participated in a safety parade.

Enlisted Men Given Duty Assignments

Four enlisted men of Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section I, 3440th Area Service unit, were assigned new duties this week, it was announced by unit officials.

M-Sgt. Edward P. Hittaker and M-Sgt. Isidor Lazar were assigned to the Overhead section, and Pvt. Eugene C. Quinn to Headquarters, Provisional group.

Pin Map to Record Attendance at Club

Development of a novel pin map by Miss Katherine Turner, Service club No. 2 hostess, was announced this week.

Purpose of the pin map, one of which will be posted at each entrance to the club, is to record attendance by organization and to show graphically what units are represented in club attendance each day.

In addition to the maps, which will be in the form of large representations of the actual Sandhill area, with each unit identified by a separate color, a register will be available for each incoming serviceman to sign, in order to verify his attendance. Each man's attendance will also be shown on the map by placing a pin opposite his organization.

There will be space in the register for each man to list any talent or entertainment abilities he might have, thus providing the service club with a record for future use, Miss Turner said.

Daily attendance totals, represented by pins on the maps, will be checked against the registers, and then added to a cumulative chart posted on the club bulletin board. At the end of each month, a prize will be awarded the organization which has the greatest club attendance.

This award will be suitable for use in a company day room, and will be based on the highest percentage of attendance in order to give the smaller units an equal chance.

On Monday, a prize will be awarded the organization which has the greatest club attendance. Instructions for the use of the new colored maps will be mounted on a placard and placed adjacent to the maps themselves and sunburn lotion.

3 Detachment Men Ordered Overseas

Three enlisted men of the Infantry School detachment were transferred to overseas commands this week, it was announced by unit officials.

Sgt. 1st Cl. Richard K. Williams and Cpl. Waino Bankari, Company A, went to the European command and Sgt. 1st Cl. Jewell T. Elliott, Company B, to the Far East command.

Officers Who Apply to Finish College Should Check Credits

Regular army officers who are less than 31 days or more in active service may apply for completion of their college education under a recently announced army program. The program should make sure that academic credits prior to application, Infantry Center information and education officials said this week.

(Under the new plan an officer who needs only six months or less of study to obtain a degree may attend an accredited college on a temporary duty status.)

This can best be accomplished by securing a transcript of previous college level credits or a statement from an accredited college or university that the individual concerned can meet requirements for a degree with further study of six months or less, officials pointed out.

Regular army officers who wish to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain a degree and who have the necessary prerequisites are requested to contact Infantry Center information and education officials for further details before submitting applications to the adjutant general.

New Council Is Appointed

Appointment of a new Character Guidance council was announced last week by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrell, Infantry Center commander.

Members of the new council are Col. Daniel P. Buckland and William V. Rattan, Lt. Col. Alvin B. Weisich, Robert M. Booth, Hamilton M. Peyton, Peter S. Rush, Howard F. Haberman, Wallace M. Hale, Lewis L. Copley and Henry M. Clifton.

Maj. Robert S. Cain and Paul E. Coherty and Capt. Edward G. Greider, David C. Ralston, Ross D. Killabrew and Arthur L. Rustin, Jr., Francis C. Park was appointed recorder for the council.

Troopers Wallop Medic Nine, 19-1

The Provisional Medical group diamondmen were topped from their lofty perch atop the post baseball league last week by a gusty crew from the Student Training Regiment's Airborne battalion by a 19-1 score.

STR Grabs Circuit Lead

The Student Training Regiment's Airborne battalion grabbed the No. 1 spot in the post baseball league by trampling a hapless Third Infantry division Special Troops aggregation 14-0 in seven innings last Saturday.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Big Jim Shirley, the chustis piled up four runs in the first inning, two in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth and two in the sixth.

Oba Hearn spoiled the no-hit attempt by Shirley by singling in the fourth inning.

Herb Myatt led the attack for the Troopers with a perfect day at bat, four for four, including a first inning home run that sent the first run across the plate.

ASU Tramples Engineers, 10-3

Behind the effective pitching of Larry Hall, the 2440th Area Service unit nine trampled the Third Infantry division Engineers 10-3 last week.

The win was Hall's third straight in the post league.

ASU bounced into the lead in his half of the first inning off a run by Jim Buck, and charged in other in the second when Del Tipton scored, aided by some loose fielding by the shoewearers.

Three more markers were added in the fifth to run the score up to 5-0 before the Engineers were able to do any marking of their own. The last five runs for the ASU squad came in the eighth inning as a result of four walks, a single by Del Buchanan and three Engineer pitchers.

The divisionmen got their first run in the seventh frame when Paul Harshman singled to center, stole second and came home on John Futral's slash to left. Two more runs were added in the eighth when the ASU team committed three straight errors with two men on base.

Sally All-Star Plans Give Fans Chance to Win Ducats

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 15—(AP)—Plans for the 1950 South Atlantic All-Star baseball season, voting contests, and mid-season game were announced here yesterday.

The game will be played Monday, July 17, in the city of the team leading the league after games of June 30. In the event of rain, the game will be postponed until July 18, an open date on the league's regular schedule.

Selection of the All-Star team will be by a vote of the sports editors of daily newspapers in the eight league cities who are members of the South Atlantic League Baseball Writers' Association.

Their votes must be in, one copy to League President Earl Blue at Columbia, the other to Writers' Association President Ed Penland, also at Columbia, by July 5.

Blue and Penland, making the announcement of the game and All-Star team selection, emphasized that voting sports editors should ballot for the league's best players regardless of whether some of their selections may be on the league-leading team.

Silcox hit the second ball pitched for a ringing double down the left field line driving in Terry Galagher on a single that sent Galagher home with the fifth run. Bob Kinard ended the slaughter by fanning.

Silcox hit two doubles driving in four runs to lead the batting, while Gordon Weatherly continued his hitting streak by picking up two for four to make his total for league play an even 5-0.

Herb Myatt was another star in the game, driving in three runs on a triple and two singles in five times at bat. Galagher and Carney boosted their averages with two singles apiece in five times up.

Silcox was the winning pitcher while Graves was charged with the loss.

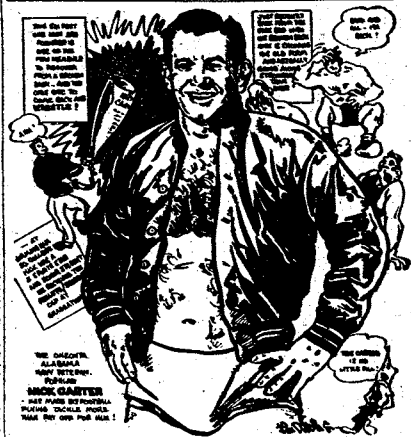

Each writer is being given three home team passes for the rest of this season and all of the 1951 season, to be used as prizes in the local contests.

Entrants coming closest to the final All-Star selections of the writers selected the final squad as determined after all league-leading host team players are dropped.

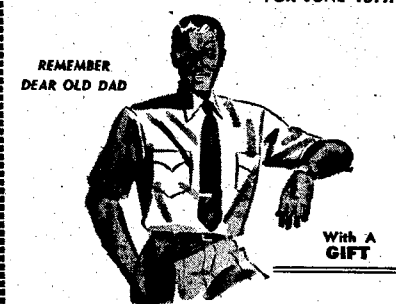

Entries in these local contests must be postmarked not later than midnight July 1, Penland said.

Sportswriters in league cities eligible to conduct local contests and to vote in the official All-Star team balloting:

Unique Class Scheduled To Finish Jump Training

The first of a series of unique airborne training classes is completing final phases of training this week at the Infantry School.

Eighty-three officers and enlisted men will make their first jump this week after spending only two weeks of pre-jump training at Fort Benning. Prior to beginning the course less than 14 days ago, the reservists also completed 50 hours of "armory training" at the hometown units.

The representatives here now are from the Second, Third and Fifth army areas.

Airborne department officials described the short course as being as a new type of reserve training for basic airborne students. A spokesman said that at the "armory training," which emphasizes physical development, theory in air transportability and loading and leashing, is completed before the reserve students arrive for the jump training. He said that actually the course has not been cut, except for time spent at the Infantry School.

Three more similar classes are scheduled to arrive at the Infantry Center during the summer to take the training. One class will begin July 10, another on July 31, and the last will begin on Aug. 21.

New Prosthetic Hand Developed

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The army medical department has developed a new mechanical substitute for an amputated hand—and declared it far superior to any previous prosthesis.

The new device even "goes beyond the scope of the human hand in some phases of utility," it was said. The device is delicate enough to grasp an eggshell, yet strong enough to lift a heavy suitcase in a vise-like two-finger grip.

Red Caps Win Third Straight

Headquarters company Red Caps of the 15th Infantry regiment stomped two opponents last week and took a credit from another this week for their third straight win in the Third Infantry division softball tournament.

In their opening game, last week, the Red Caps came from behind in the fourth inning, 4-2, to down a Division Artillery team, 10-4. The 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion fell before the one-hit pitching of Bill Daugherty, 13-0, and a forfeit by the 78th Engineer Battalion in the 15th Infantry third win of the tourney.

Daugherty pitched three-hit ball and slammed out a single and a double to lead his crew in both departments in the game with the Artillerymen. Big John Lochamy chipped in with some timely hitting to take the visitors into camp.

Etcher Cherokee Smith was outstanding for the losers.

Rain halted the 13-0 slaughter of the 73rd representatives in the sixth inning. Big guns in the 15th attack were Joe Uzzie, Charles Sulls and Spencer Vanadore with two hits each. Harry Shimowitz took the longest smash of the day, a trope, in the fourth inning for the Infantrymen.

J. Kries got the only hit, a single off Daugherty to spoil his no-hit attempt.

ISD Men Receive New Assignments

Two enlisted men of the Infantry School detachment were transferred this week, it was announced by unit officials.

Sgt. Dominick R. Di Stefano, Company A, went to the Ninth Infantry division, Fort Dix, N. J.

Sgt. Raymond K. Hartwell, Company C, was transferred to the 196th Photo Interpreter team, Governors Island, N. Y.

Allies Must Rely On Ground Skill, Pace Maintains

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., said last week the Western allies must rely on "highly scientific ground troops" to meet the numerical superiority of "potential enemies."

In a prepared speech for graduation exercises of the U. S. Military academy, West Point, N. Y., Pace said:

"Our army, as I hardly need remind you, not only is outnumbered tremendously by the ground forces of our most dangerous antagonist but is also at a disadvantage qualitatively in certain categories of equipment, most notably in tanks."

The army secretary added: "We and our Allies can never hope to compete with our potential enemies in numbers and masses of ground troops and weapons of a conventional type."

Because of this, Pace said, "the army must depend to a great extent upon intensive scientific research and development."

The best way to prevent a breakthrough in Europe being a catastrophe is to be prepared to meet these masses of heavily mechanized ground troops with smaller numbers of highly scientific ground troops equipped with revolutionary new weapons."

EM Awarded Bronze Stars

Col. Dennis M. Moore, 15th Infantry regiment commander, awarded Bronze Stars medals to two men last Saturday morning at a regimental parade and decoration ceremony held on Sullivan Field.

Receiving the medals were Cpl. Jimmie Gurr, Company K, and Sgt. Daniel E. Robinson, Medical company.

Corporal Gurr received the award for meritorious service in France, Germany and Czechoslovakia while a member of the Ninth Infantry regiment, 15th Infantry division. He was wounded in the Rhineland battle, and had previously received the Purple Heart medal. His other decorations include Combat Infantryman's badge, European theater ribbon, Victory medal and Occupation ribbon.

Sergeant Robinson was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service with the 8th Infantry division in the Apennines, Italy, and North Africa. His other awards include the Combat Infantryman's badge, European theater ribbon with four battle stars, American Defense ribbon and Victory medal.

Medical Battalion Marks Reactivation Anniversary

The 52nd Medical Battalion celebrated the first anniversary of its reactivation on June 6, with appropriate Organization Day ceremonies, culminating in a picnic lunch, and an afternoon of recreation at the Third Infantry division rest camp for Headquarters detachment personnel and their families.

A review was held on the battalion parade ground in Harmony church at 8:30 a.m., featuring addresses by Brig. Gen. Robert B. Hill, commanding general of the Provisional Medical group, and Lt. Col. Edward Mortsey, battalion sergeant major.

The 52nd Medical battalion was originally organized at Ft. Jackson, S. C., in 1941, and after a period of training was assigned to the Second Army and ordered overseas. The battalion earned seven streamers and two arrowheads for engagements starting with the invasion of Salerno and Anzio, continuing through Italy, the invasion of Southern France and into Germany.

The end of the war found the battalion in Western Germany, where it was inactivated in February, 1946. On June 6, 1949, the battalion was reactivated at Fort Benning as a member of the general reserve.

Adjutant Transferred
Second Lt. Leroy K. Norem, adjutant of the 121st Evacuation hospital, was transferred this week to the 52nd Medical battalion, it was announced by unit officials.

Capt. Otto S. Good has taken over the duties as adjutant for the hospital.

Legislators Differ On Draft Measure

House and senate members differed sharply this week on the proposed passage of the peacetime draft bill, a difference that could mean death to the "registration-no-induction" act.

The present Selective Service Act expires on June 24, and Senator Tydings (D-Md), chairman of the senate armed services committee, has called for final congressional approval before that deadline.

Complicating the situation was a legislative deadlock over rent controls in the senate and the wide variation between a draft bill passed by the house and one awaiting senate action.

It is thought that the act will never be used if things remain as they are. Tydings said in a broadcast last week. "But it is there just like an automobile filled with gas and oil and everything ready to go, and all you have to do is start the engine."

Tydings' committee has approved a three-year extension of the existing act, which requires registration of all men 18 through 25. It tacked on a racial segregation amendment.

The house bill was a two-year extension but it would prevent

Library Slates Disc Program

Schererazade, the famous Rimsky-Korsakov ballet, will highlight the record concert next Tuesday night at the Main library at 8 p. m.

The complete program follows: Albeniz's Iberia Book 1 and 2, played by Pianist Claudio Arrau; Rimsky - Korsakov's Capriccio Espagnol, played by the Philharmonic Symphony of New York conducted by John Barbirolli; Rimsky - Korsakov's Scherazade, played by the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux.

No men have been drafted or inducted in recent months because of a voluntary enlistment drive which has supplied all the manpower needed by the army, navy and airforce.

Military leaders told congress this authority and machinery must be maintained because it might save several months of more than a year in case of war.

Attached to the senate extension is an amendment by Senator Russell (D-Ga) which would prevent mixture of whites and Negroes in units of the various services, if enlisted men or draftees requested service only with persons of their own race.

This runs counter to President Truman's directive to the Army and Navy to gradually eliminate segregation. It appeared certain to cause a senate floor fight and probable delay. Tydings did not refer to this amendment in his broadcast.

Even after the senate passes its bill, a conference probably must be held to iron out differences with the house.

Tydings said that under the house bill, if congress was in recess, actual inductions might be delayed a month or more because it would require congressional sanction to start them.

13 EM to Attend Water Classes

Thirteen Infantry Center enlisted men will attend American Red Cross water safety courses at two schools late this month.

Murray Hill, director of the Red Cross office at Fort Benning, announced this week that representatives from the Infantry Center would go to Roosevelt State Park, Chipley, Ga., and Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial College, Nashville, Tenn., to attend courses in water safety.

The following men are slated to attend courses at Chipley: Cpl. Russell Brownfield, Pfc. Malcolm Vasquez, Pvt. William D. Watson, Pfc. George S. Conrad, Sgt. Ist. Cl. William S. Harvey, Pfc. Joseph A. Andro, Pvt. William Pyontek, Pvt. Donald Kaiser, Pfc. Raymond K. Milton and Pfc. Uighl Meigs.

The two men slated to attend the school at Nashville are Sgt. James Baptiste and Pvt. Raymond Jackson.

Both schools place emphasis on water leadership and proper conduct of swimmers. The Red Cross, which staffs and directs the aquatic schools, is attempting to build a ready pool of trained swimmers and qualified life guards, Mr. Hill said.

Jerk of the Week

Moocher Forced To Accept Honor

Running true to form, the Jerk of the Week Selection committee picked one of its own members for the high honor, with Cpl. Moe Glockenspiel, the winner, casting the only dissenting vote.

Glockenspiel, to put it bluntly is the jerk who makes a career out of bumming, begging and borrowing. He's as stripped of accessories as a California hot rod, and twice as fast when it comes to hitting you up for a cigarette, a light, the loan of a tin for the time of day.

Moe the Mooch is often broke, being a chronic payday playboy, but even when he has a few bucks he'd never think of buying such non-essentials as cigarettes. "Too much trouble to carry 'em around," he says. Not being burdened with smokes to weight him down, Glockenspiel sees no point in carrying a lighter or matches, either.

When it comes to money, Moe is a real "gimmie" artist, and could give lessons to a Broadway cute in the technique of scrounging a fast buck. G. I.s who have had the bite put on them by this genius swear the guy is a practicing hypnotist. Glockenspiel plays no favorites. Utter strangers are just

The Third Infantry division Non-Commissioned Officer's Mess at Sand Hill is holding another big dance this Saturday, with festivities slated to get underway at nine o'clock.

Taylor's Rhythm Band, the orchestra that drew the overall crown on June 3, will return for what is expected to be a repeat performance, announced M-Sgt. William F. Bertram, club manager. Also on hand will be a floorshow combining some of the top talent in Georgia.

Sergeant Bertram also announced that the Mess is now serving a lunch every day for 35 cents, thus enabling men on separate rations to enjoy a home-cooked meal at a low price.

Division Cites Enlisted Men

The Third Infantry division certificate of achievement was awarded to 18 men last week.

They were Sgt. Casimir R. Popiolek, Sgt. Ist. Cl. Angelo G. Rovera, Pfc. Paul S. Bryant, M-Sgt. Harry Reif, Sgt. Ist. Cl. Robert A. Dyer, Sgt. Will L. Banks, Cpl. Jesse E. Jones, Pfc. James Robinson, Sgt. Jimmie H. Austin.

Sgt. Charlie Burns, M-Sgt. Eddie Harrison, Sgt. James H. A. Thompson, Sgt. Lloyd M. Jenkins, Sgt. Zack Randall, Sgt. Horace Revis, Cpl. Richard A. Carter, Cpl. Fred L. Cole and M-Sgt. William I. Goosby.

as fair game as his buddies, who have become so hardened to his tactics that they start backing up and shaking their heads as soon as he gets within sighting range.

"Pay Y Payday!" Glockenspiel doesn't stop at mooching smokes or money. He's apt to ask for anything that comes into his head just to keep his hand in. Once, visiting the home of a married friend, he walked out of the house with an electric baby bottle warmer, which he had borrowed with the confused thought in mind of using it for a bed warmer on cold nights.

On one incredible week end, this wily sponger started by finagling a ten-spot out of a weak-minded friend. Then, in a 15-minute flash of spellbinding oratory, he wangled the loan of a Buick convertible from another Habergasted buddy.

Flushed with success, Moe whirled into the company commander, and in exactly six minutes emerged with a three-day pass. Stopping by the first sergeant's desk on the way out, he passed the baffled victim on the ropes in something less than a minute of the first go around, moving on with a fift of bonded tuff clutched in his hot little hand.

Borrowing a clean shirt and tie from an absent bunkmate, Glockenspiel hopped in the car and whirled down Vibbert avenue, picking up his best friend's girl, whom he spied walking down the street. Bumming a spare cigarette from the M. P. at Outpost No. 1, Moe vanished into the distance as the dazed M. P. slowly put his lighter back in his pocket.

Three days later, he returned to the post with a large St. Bernard puppy, two new girl friends, a camel's hair top coat and three pounds of popcorn. This story is vouched for by six witnesses and four sworn statements.

Moe, my boy, you're the champ. Please don't come around for your award — we'll mail it to you. We've only got enough money to last 'till payday, and we're down to our last cig. . . OKAY, leech, go ahead and take it.

Top Chaplain Ends 3-Day Tour Here

The army's chief of chaplains, Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker, and Third Army Chaplain (Col.) James T. Wilson, ended a three-day visit to Fort Benning on Sunday.

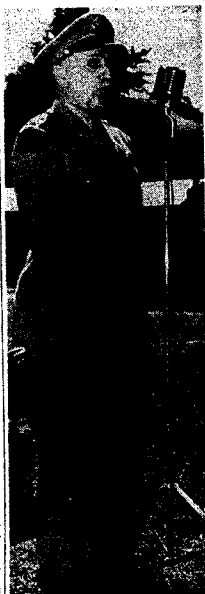

Chaplain Parker addressed troops at Gowdy field Friday afternoon, June 9, and at Sand hill on Saturday morning, June 10. In his talks, he stressed the importance of doing a little more than just the job each soldier is given to do.

"Everyone who hopes to get ahead in the army should be willing to take on more responsibility than the job calls for," he said. "Only the exercise of initiative and the desire to develop abilities through further study and work on the soldier or the citizen realize his true potential."

On Sunday, June 11, Chaplain Parker preached sermons at the 30th Infantry regiment chapel at 10 a. m. and at the Infantry Center chapel at 11 a. m. He expressed pleasure at the appearance of the troops who attended the services, and commented favorably on the work done by the chaplains at the Infantry Center.

During his three-day visit, Chaplain Parker was a guest of Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, at a formal reception held Friday night, June 9, at the officers' mess, and of Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, Saturday, June 10, at his quarters.

After a luncheon at the Officer's Mess on Sunday, June 11, which was attended by post chaplains and their families, Chaplain Parker departed by aircraft from Lawson airforce base.

Iodine Newest Water Purifier Reserves Assigned To TIS Department

Washington (APFS)—The military use of a standard iodine compound for individual disinfection of drinking water in canteen quantities has been recommended as the result of a recent joint army navy research project at Majuro Atoll in the Marshall Islands, Pacific.

Medical research officers found that compounds releasing free iodine in concentrations of eight parts per 1,000,000 were highly effective disinfecting agents, and produced no ill effects among personnel using water thus treated.

Although iodine has been used previously for disinfecting water, no conclusive studies had been recorded as to its toxicity when consumed in diluted amounts by humans over an extended period of time in a tropical climate.

Two reserve officers on short tours of active duty were assigned to the Infantry School Training Publications department it was announced this week.

Maj. George H. Boucher, Anderson, S. C., will be with the department 60 days, and Capt. Hayward W. Sauls, Jr., Hampton, S. C., will stay for 90 days. Both will work with the Civilian Components group.

South American Military Leader Concludes Visit

Gen. Alfonso Jaramillo, Ecuador's No. 1 military man, and his party left Fort Benning late last week after having toured the Infantry Center for two days.

The Ecuadorian chief of staff witnessed airborne training, a firing demonstration of rocket launchers and a joint infantry team in attack on a fortified position.

Met at Lawson airforce base on arrival here by Maj. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander and Brig. Gen. Roland P. Shuge, commander of the Third Infantry division's Artillery, General Jaramillo and his party were taken to Stillwell field where they were accorded a 17-gun salute by a battery of the 39th Field Artillery battalion. He later inspected a snuff-dressed honor guard, composed of troops from the 15th Infantry regiment's First Battalion.

After a short conference in General Burress' office later in the afternoon, the group made a brief tour of Infantry School departments.

General Jaramillo was accompanied by Col. Julio Miguel Jativa, Lt. Col. Hernan Davila, Lt. Col. Bolivar Garrido and Lt. Col. Antonio Serrano, members of Ecuador's military hierarchy.

Before arriving at Fort Benning, General Jaramillo and his party made brief visits to Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Fort Bliss, Tex. From Fort Benning, the group will return to Washington.

VIPs, Cadets View ROTC Men Here For 6-Week Camp

The Defense department members of the seventh joint orientation conference, guests will go to Eglin airforce base, Fla., where they will see airforce developments in action over the weekend.

Early next week, the leading civilian educators, newspapermen, industrialists and medical men will fly to Norfolk, Va. for a whirlwind inspection of the navy's war potential. The West Point cadets will return to the academy tomorrow.

Arriving here yesterday morning, the group was whisked away to Hook range where it saw a spectacular firepower demonstration, a portion of which was the "mad minute."

The military and civilian dignitaries were feted last night at an official reception at the Officers' Mess.

The Third Infantry division will stage a review and display of equipment at French and Blue, fields this morning, during which the visitors will get a glimpse at combat equipment in a full-strength division.

Major Gen. P. W. Clarkson, division commander, is slated to give a brief description of the division's activities and mission.

To View Actual Jump

Shortly before noon, the guests will be taken to the Infantry School's Airborne department training area where they will see paratrooper training.

Expected to be included in the tour is a display and demonstration of high-technical equipment used in pathfinder invasions. They will also see some 100 skilled paratroopers jump at Lawson airforce base.

Helmet trials will be the site of today's Battalion in Attack problem. The JOC's and West Point cadets will see hundreds of infantry troops, tanks, artillery pieces and 600-m.p.h. airforce jet fighters brought to bear against a mythical enemy entrenched on a distant hill. The four-hour demonstration will graphically illustrate the method of attacking and capturing an enemy position by the coordinated use of infantry-tank-airforce teams.

The JOC's will leave tomorrow morning for Eglin airforce base.

Before arriving at Fort Benning, the West Point cadets were spectators at demonstrations at other installations including Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Bliss, Tex., Wright-Patterson airforce base.

Two-hundred fifty reserve officers from seven southeastern states graduated last week from a two-week course for adjutant general officers, and three more third army service schools' adjutants for July.

Col. Turner Heads TIS Attack Group

Col. Robert G. Turner, a former instructional committee chairman of the Tactical department, was named this week as chief of the department's Attack group, succeeding Col. Paul Cooper who has been reassigned to an overseas post.

Colonel Turner began his military career almost the day he was born. The son of an army officer, he was born in the Philippine islands where his family was living.

In 1927, he graduated from the United States Military academy, West Point, N. Y., after which he was sent to Fort McPherson, Ga., where he served with the 22nd Infantry regiment. After a series of overseas assignments, he was sent to World War II, he was sent to Camp Hale, Colo., to assume command of the 99th Infantry battalion, a unit consisting of Norwegian-American mountain troops. Later in 1943, the unit was moved to England to stand ready for a possible invasion of Norway, but after D-Day, it was moved to France where it joined the Second Army division.

He was wounded in the bitter fighting following the crossing of the Seine river. Following a period of hospitalization, he was assigned as G-4 of Task Force "Nightlight," a highly-trained unit that entered Norway and disarmed 400,000 German soldiers.

FBI Makes New Arrests for War-Time Spying

Two more war-time spying charges were made this week by the FBI in connection with the British Fuchs case. Following leads obtained in the arrest of Harry Gold, Philadelphia bio-chemist, the FBI arrested Alfred D. Slack, a Syracuse, N.Y., chemist charged with passing information on a secret explosive to Gold, and David Greenglass, a former soldier accused of leaking atomic secrets. The FBI was silent on the possibility of more arrests, but many Congressmen speculated that the crack-down on the Soviet war-time spy ring is not over yet.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, American atom scientist, urged this week that the United States make available to its Western European allies new weapons developed since the war. He mentioned specifically the revolutionary anti-tank weapon which he says will enable Europe to defend itself from mass attack with small armies. Dr. Bush also suggested that the nations manufacture their own weapons using American plans.

God Is Available To Those Who Seek Him

BY CHAPLAIN MARSHALL G. MINES, USAF

Religion means going to Church. It involves the singing of hymns, reading of Scriptures, saying of prayers and preaching of sermons. Included also may be the ceremonies and rituals such as Baptism and the Lord's Supper, which are dramatic in their essence. All of these activities may be called the "mechanics" of religion, for they are physical acts of the body. They are external and may or may not involve the heart, the mind or the soul.

Religion also means being good. Here we meet the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. Denominations differ, but whether we seek a narrow strait-laced, old-fashionedism, or whether we want a modern morality that changes with the seasons, religion is definitely concerned with what's right and what's wrong. Many people today are willing to accept the mechanics of religion, but rebel against its morality. They think the Bible is a long list of "thou shalt nots," and they feel that religion says, "Go find a man having fun and tell him it's wrong." Certainly such is not the case. The morals of religion are signposts that say "this way to happiness, joy, peace and contentment." Only a few people know it, but it's more fun to be moral than to be immoral.

We said that religion meant being good, and, of course, most of us are good, for in the minds of most of us to be bad means to commit a serious crime such as murder, adultery, thievery or such like. When we say we are good we mean merely that we are better than someone else we know.

All mortal men are sinners and all morality is merely a striving. But what of God? "God is a spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in Spirit and in truth." (John 4:24). God is not an absentee Being. He's an available God, no further away than the tip of your elbow. He's a knowable God, anxious to be the intimate companion of all who will open their hearts to Him. A God that goes with you—a friend to guide and direct and empower your life.

God is a person. We must know Him, love Him, and accept Him, whether we understand Him or not. There's a big difference between being religious and having God in your soul. No religion is adequate without this personal intimacy with God. Seek Him today.

A butter-fingered guy who had been in and out of many jobs at last found work with a chewing-gum firm. The second day he dropped a valuable vase and smashed it. The manager told him he would have to have money deducted from his wages every week until the vase was paid for.

"How much will I have to pay?" asked the employee.

"Three hundred dollars," said the manager grimly.

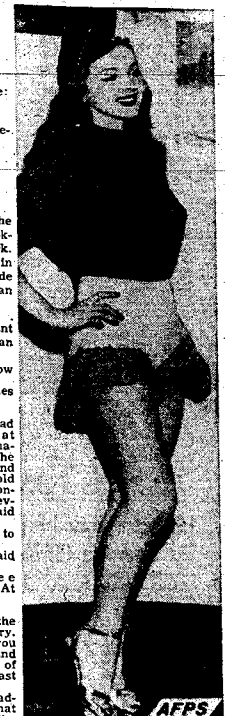

The culprit brightened. "Gee that's swell!" he exclaimed. "At last I've got a steady job!"

Conversation overheard at the meat counter in the Commissary. Irritated patron: "How do you account for the fact that I found a piece of rubber tire in one of the sausages I bought here last week?"

Counterman: "My dear madam, that only goes to show that the automobile is replacing the horse everywhere."

Wit: "Times sure have changed. You used to be crazy about my piano playing. I remember once when you came to dinner at Mama's house and I leaned on the piano all evening, entranced by my playing."

Sgt.: "Entranced, huh? I was doubled up from your mama's cooking."

A God-fearing Cinderella walks again, after two hundred and ten years of moultering in the first successful Cinderella novel in the English language. In modernizing Samuel Richardson's Pamela, Or Virtue Rewarded, Upton Sinclair has stuck to the original theme of the spiritual maiden who captures a rich husband by her spirited fight to preserve that maidenhood. Heaven protecting the working girl stretches the plot line into a long string for Sinclair's comments on the social evils of our day. A naive Pamela learning the vagaries of the millionaire Harries family provides an excellent foil for the author's purpose of expounding. Little Pam starts out as a parlor maid addicted to Seventh Day-Adventism and renews a good scripture-quoter to the end. In the course of things she also finds room to quote some sizable chunks of the original Richardson novel.

Using the same old literary device of the first novel, Sinclair tells his story through letters written by the heroine. Little Pam leaves her washer-woman mother on their four-acre homestead to work for the rich Mrs. Harries at her palatial home. Mrs. Harries finds it convenient to have a maid who prefers working on Sunday and going to church on Saturday. Socially-minded Mrs. Harries squanders her money freely among various types of Socialists, Communists and reformers. Mr. Sinclair makes sure the reader knows this caricature of the rich do-gooder is spending only her dividends and never touching her capital. Her great panacea to cure economic ills consists simply of having the Government print plenty of money and distributing it to the poor.

The lady's husband is a staunch Conservative who periodically throws radical guests out of the house. He, in turn, is then ordered out of the house because it belongs to his wife. She has more money than he has, and Mr. Sinclair wants it understood that money is the root of authority as well as evil. Well aware of the greatness of her masters, Little Pam listens and learns as she dusts the furniture and serves the guests.

Her self-improvement course is often thrown off balance by the home-coming of the drunken young man of the family. He breathes heavily on Pamela's pure neck, and she escapes undefined simply by having hysterics. As the game progresses she develops more lady-like defenses, including a strong bolt on her door. Working for her creator (Sinclair as well as God) she tries to reform the errant young man. She has one weapon that is stronger than money.

Between battles with the young gentleman Little Pam has made frequent trips to the dictionary and otherwise educated herself. When Mrs. Harries' secretary gets married, Pam is ready to take over the job. Raised from her lowly station, she now gets a proposal of marriage as the promised reward for her virtue. Let it be said that she enters marriage on her own terms — no more drinking for her husband, and she will continue to work.

Scribe Enthralled With Mat Modes

BY WARREN RICHARDSON
Not Bayonet Fashion Editor

The Olde Post Gym was the scene of one of the most unique highlights of the Fort Benning summer sports season Tuesday evening. Held in the form of a women's wrestling match, the event was presided over by Miles, Helen Hill and Theresa Thies.

Our glamazon young gladiators were decoratively costumed in the very latest mat wear mode, designed by Jantzen, Miss Thies, who had dyed her hair blonde and twisted it into pigtails, wore an even tan with her jet black bathing suit.

Miss Hill's blonde tresses were set off by a shell green mat ensemble. As she climbed into the arena, she was greeted by a claud in an ankle length green robe with zebra skin cummerbund.

This feature attraction of the evening's sport scheduled ended in a most un-Emily Post-like fashion. In fact, one might add that it ended in a real brawl. Hellion Helen, as I heard the man on my right call her, ended up surrendering her social position to her pigtailed blonde opponent.

Oh, I don't know whether or not I mentioned who won. Perhaps you had better read elsewhere on the sports page for that minor detail. I was so lost in the dazzle of the surroundings, what with the power shortage 'n' all, that I'm not sure I know.

Secretary Says U.S. Hope Peace Through Power

Airforce Secretary Thomas K. Finletter said last week that the world can hope for peace only if America pursues a policy of peace through power.

Finletter spoke at commencement exercises of the University of Pennsylvania.

For prevention of war, he said in his prepared speech, we need a force so strong, so capable of violent counter attack as to deter any nation bent on breaking peace.

For the immediate future, he sees a need for continuing to increase the fighting strength of the United States and her allies, because "the surge of military power is rising everywhere."

JERK OF THE WEEK Group Acclaims Job Shirking GI

After battling all afternoon to the point of utter frustration, the Jerk of the Week Selection committee finally adjourned to a local pub, where agreement was quickly reached in order for the revived members of the committee to concentrate on more attractive details.

Horatio is a real artist. He boasts with a sense of deep and abiding satisfaction that he hasn't put in an honest day's work since the fall of 1946, when—through a mental lapse that he bitterly regrets—an eagle-eyed second lieutenant caught him off guard.

On this notable occasion, Horatio the Horrible was forced to join a routine fatigue detail and spent three unhappy hours actually laboring before his number brand could orient itself enough to think up a hot excuse for leaving.

As a man of infinite cunning, Handbag refuses to divulge his repertoire of tricks, but intimates who have observed him in action state flatly that he has absolutely no equal.

One of his buddies, a man of no mean talent himself when it comes to shirking duty, swears that Handbag spent the entire war period sleeping in an empty warehouse on an abandoned cavalry post. This story is highly unlikely, however.

"CAPTAIN," HE SAID, "I KEEP MYSELF SO BUSY AVOIDING work I ain't never had time to figger out why I don't like it."

Post Experts Shun Comment On Atomic Artillery Possibility

Fort Benning artillery experts declined to comment this week on the prospects of using atomic artillery shells in future wars.

Successful development of the new-type missile would raise the possibility, once scoffed at by scientists, that an atomic bomb could be carried in a suitcase.

QUESTION: WHAT DO YOU THINK COULD BE DONE TO INCREASE ATTENDANCE AT POST ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES?
SGT. WILLIE LONG, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: I think some of the sports are played at the wrong time. Some are played too early in the afternoon when almost everybody is on duty. When most of the fellows get off from work, they don't want to go any place.

SGT. EDWARD SPEARMAN, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: I think if we did not have to wear a uniform that attendance at sports events would increase. Most of the fellows would just go as they are, but they are not going to dress up just to go and see an athletic event.

CAPT. DELBERT COX, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: The best thing I can think of right now to help attendance is to have winning teams. In the past, when the teams were on top, the attendance was good.

CPL. JAMES C. SMITH, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: I think the best thing would be to allow the men to wear civilian clothes. I believe that will be the only way they will get them out for sport events.

SGT. JOHN R. MOORE, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: The first thing the average man thinks about is getting home and getting into comfortable clothes. If he knew he could wear those comfortable clothes to sports activities, there would be an increase in attendance.

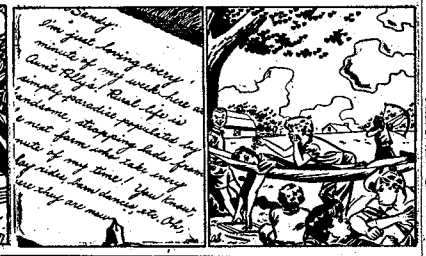

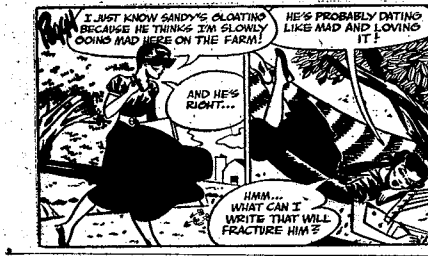

SGT. TOMMIE HANEY, 10th company, Student Training Regiment: I don't know what would help as I never go to any sports events. I live in town and when I get home it's hard to come back out here.

Officers Study Ground Data

Twenty-five infantry officers from 16 armed forces service schools were participants in an infantry instructors' conference here this week to familiarize themselves with the latest ground force training doctrine.

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry School commandant, opened the two-week seminar-type conference earlier this week with a welcoming address and a resume of some things to be discussed during the conference.

The school will be directed and staffed by Infantry School instructors who will help solve problems facing the student officers.

Col. Nichols Will Retire Here Friday

Col. Joseph A. Nichols, 32-year veteran of army service, will officially retire from military service tomorrow at retreat ceremony at Stilwell field.

The 55-year old retiring officer, who was once acting chief of staff of the Infantry Center, will also receive a Third Army Certificate of Achievement, and an honor guard from the 15th Infantry regiment will pass in review for him.

Colonel Nichols began his army career shortly after graduation from the Citadel at Charleston, S. C., when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the cavalry. Several months later, however, he was transferred to the infantry.

During his years of service, Colonel Nichols has served in capacities ranging from commander to instructor at the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. His overseas service has included duty in China and Europe.

Colonel Nichols has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster, Army Commendation ribbon, Belgian Croix de Guerre with palm and French Croix de Guerre.

THIS IS HOME . . . "Home Sweet Home" might well be the caption to this picture of Cadet R. G. Clay, Jr., of Atlanta, kissing the ground at Lawson airforce base shortly after he arrived with 490 other West Point cadets last week. Although his classmates in the background seem a bit mystified, 20-year old Clay said "This is how much I love Georgia." The cadets joined 100 leading military and civilian dignitaries for the seventh joint orientation conference held here.

Col. Honnen Is Nominated For Promotion To General

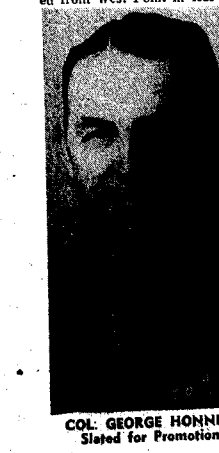

Col. George Honnen, director of instruction of the Infantry School, was nominated by President Truman last week for promotion to brigadier general.

Officials of the Infantry School said it was generally assumed the high-ranking Fort Benning officer would receive a promotion confirmation within the next two weeks.

Before coming to the Infantry Center in 1948, Colonel Honnen served as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Hawaii, where he was stationed for almost three years. His army career began in 1917 when he enlisted as a private and was assigned to the 52nd Field Artillery regiment. While stationed in France during World War I, Colonel Honnen was accepted for entrance in the United States Military Academy. He graduated from West Point in 1920 and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

During the peacetime years between World War I and World War II, Colonel Honnen served as aide-camp to Brig. Gen. Walter H. Gordon and Briant H. Wells at the Infantry Center, a company officer with the 15th Infantry Regiment and as chief of staff of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

In 1942 he was appointed chief of staff of the Third Army, shortly after he was promoted to temporary brigadier general. Later he was made chief of staff of the Sixth Army, commanded by Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger. He was soon named assistant commander of the 89th Infantry division, a post he held until 1943 when he was appointed commandant of cadets at West Point.

The post quartermaster will welcome any suggestions for improvement of the Commissary's facilities and services, they said.

Savings Bond Drive Gains Momentum

Post participation in the national savings bond drive at the half-way mark shows a 3.4 percent gain over the initial figures reported, officials announced last week.

This percentage figure represents a total of $29,326 in the cash purchases and new allotments since the start of the drive last month.

Gen. P. W. Clarkson Given New Assignment in Hawaii

Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commander of Fort Benning's Third Infantry division, will leave the Infantry Center this summer to assume duties at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, army officials in Washington disclosed this week.

Officially and simultaneously announced that General Clarkson would be succeeded by Brig. Gen. Robert H. Soule, a former military attache in China who was nominated last Thursday by President Truman to be next in line.

The official announcement came on the date of General Clarkson's departure or the arrival of General Soule.

General Clarkson took command of the division in 1947 when it was located at Camp Campbell, Ky. In January, 1948, he was transferred to the Infantry Center where it began receiving hundreds of peacetime trainees to bring it up to combat strength.

The San Antonio, Tex., native set into motion one of the most up-to-date training programs ever used by an American Army unit.

Component parts of the division were used several times in large-scale maneuvers, the largest being Operation Portrex which was held early this year in the Caribbean.

During that largest peacetime maneuver, the entire division joined more than 80,000 other armed forces personnel in a mock amphibious invasion of Vieques Island, off the coast of Puerto Rico.

The division's 15th Infantry regiment was selected by Army officials to act as the aggressor in Exercise Swarmer, a completely airborne North Carolina invasion held last week. Brig. Gen. Clarkson personally took command of the Fifth Corps.

Doors will open for business at 8:30 a. m. daily, Monday through Saturday, and will close at 3:30 p. m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays. Closing hour on Wednesdays has been set for 5:30 p. m. and on Thursdays and Saturdays at 12:30 p. m.

Officials requested that patrons be patient with Commissary employees during July since they will be attempting to install new equipment, said to be the most modern available. The post quartermaster will welcome any suggestions for improvement of the Commissary's facilities and services, they said.

ROTC Cadets End First Week's Duty

Approximately 900 Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets, states completed their first week of summer training at the Infantry Center this week.

The cadets, who are students at various prep schools and colleges throughout the southern states, participated in record firing courses with the M-1 rifle.

During the week, Infantry School officials staged several firepower and tactical problems for the students to demonstrate the pattern of training of the infantry.

The cadets' summer session, which is held each year at Fort Benning for senior ROTC students will continue for six weeks.

4th Declared Post Holiday

Independence Day will be observed as a holiday by all military and military personnel of Fort Benning. All except the necessary duties will be suspended, officials announced.

The 72nd Army band will render appropriate music in the vicinity of the post flag staff from 11:45 a. m. to 12 o'clock, after which a field artillery battery of the Third Infantry division will fire a 48-gun Salute to the occasion.

The main feature of the Declaration of Independence.

Following the salute, the band will play the National Anthem.

MAJ. GEN. P. W. CLARKSON
To Leave Post

At the outbreak of World War II, General Clarkson was placed in command of the 39th Infantry division, which was later to distinguish itself in campaigns in the South Pacific. Two of the most notable engagements in General Clarkson's division participated were the deciding battles of Luzon and New Guinea.

After the Japanese surrender, General Clarkson was placed on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's occupation staff.

He returned to this country and served as commander of the Fourth Army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and commander of Camp Campbell, Ky.

General Soule, successor to General Clarkson, began his military career in the Philippines during World War I, where he was executive officer of a regimental machine-gun company.

Midway through World War II, the Laramie, Wyo., native was appointed to head the 188th Glider Infantry, a part of the 11th Airborne Division. The unit went to the South Pacific where it underwent advanced parachute tactics in preparation for a spearhead attack during the attack on the Philippines, and in successive engagements after the Philippine liberation, General Soule gained distinction in series of campaigns that liberated Allied prisoners of war in many Japanese prison camps.

CENTRAL GEORGIA RAILWAY De Luxe Streamliner MAN O' WAR

Growth of the Infantry School Book department from a one-room shop to a $40,000 home of its own was recalled this week by Major Andrew W. Petrosky, officer in charge.

The department completed a major expansion project in the past year. It expanded its activities this month in its new home on Wold Avenue. It began operations as the Book Shop in 1920 in a wooden building on the site of Stillwell field, then known as Block 7.

At that time the shop was a part of the General Subjects section, headed by Col. J. G. Hain, now retired, who now lives in Columbus.

Like the rest of the Infantry School, Major Petrosky grew slowly until the outbreak of World War II. Then the needs of larger and more frequent classes. During the peak of war activity, the shop expanded to 25 people and operated six branch stores on the post in addition to the main store in the Infantry School building.

THE VOLUME OF BUSINESS done during the war made possible the construction of the building on Wold Avenue, Major Petrosky said. In its new location it has been able to increase its sale and additional service to military personnel outside the post.

Officers who are in charge of the Book Shop in its earlier days achieved considerable distinction. Among them are Gen. Walter E. Edsell Smith, chief of staff in General Eisenhower's wartime headquarters; Maj. Gen. W. P. Shugart, who returned after the war to become assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and Brig. Gen. Fremont B. Hodson, who became chief of the Transportation School during World War II.

The Book Department council includes Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell, Omar N. Bradley and Alvan C. Gillem, Jr. Minutes of old meetings of the council bear the initials of Gen. George C. Marshall, then a lieutenant colonel and the school's assistant commandant.

Major Petrosky took charge of the Book Department in 1942 after he was commissioned from master sergeant to captain in the Infantry. Prior to his commission he had served with the department for many years in a detailed capacity.

IN FEBRUARY OF THIS YEAR, the Book Department was made a part of the Training and Public Affairs department. For several years before that time it had operated under the command of the post.

Chief missions of the Book Department are to supply military students and faculty with school supplies and training materials, to distribute information on military subjects to members of the national military establishment, and to handle the distribution of the Infantry School Quarterly.

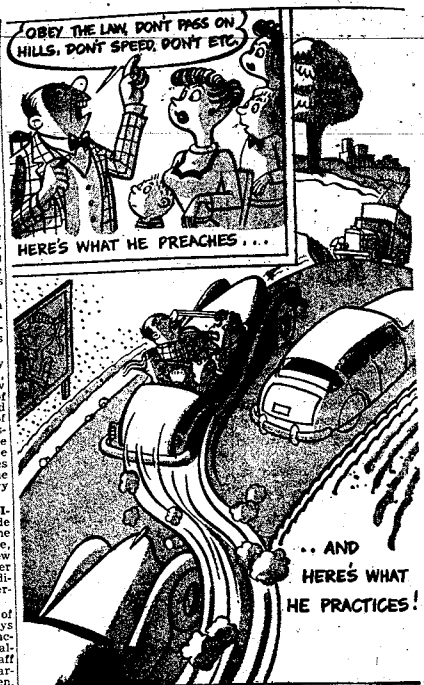

"We are trying to expand our service to non-personnel," Major Petrosky said, "and have stocked some children's books, world globes, sun glasses and other popular items. All officers, enlisted men, authorized civilians and dependents are welcome to use the store to buy items in stock or to place orders for other items."

the Liberty Bell replica launched an independent savings bond drive spearheaded by John W. Perrin, head of the Salvage Yard.

Enthusiastic over the visit of the Bell to their section, seven civilians 3 representing 50 percent of the section, voluntarily subscribed to the payroll deduction plan. In addition, Mr. Perrin made a cash purchase of a $500 bond. Total post participation of 11 percent represents a cash value of $83,041.

LAWSON AIRBORNE BASE reports substantial progress in its savings bond drive, with 10 new allotments taken out by airman and four more civilians participating in the payroll deduction plan.

To date, military participation for Lawson Air Force Base totals 8.1 percent, and civilian participation amounts to 28.9 percent. Total bond purchases since initiation of the drive amount to $1,750 officials said.

Guides Available For Career Men

Career field self-study guides, published as Department of the Army pamphlets, are now available for most of the army job fields already integrated into the career plan. Infantry Center Examining and Computing agency officials announced this week.

The pamphlets are designed to help career men determine their own career path. They contain information on what to learn, what to study and how to test yourself on your knowledge of your military job, officials said.

Although distribution has been limited, all major post units have been furnished copies, and it is expected that unit information and education officials will maintain a complete set for the use of unit personnel. Complete sets of all self-study guides published to date are available at the main library and at the Infantry Center, Indianhead Station, Md.

Each guide covers a specific MOS in a specific career field, and provides the prospective applicant for promotion examination a comprehensive outline of the job requirements and a listing of reference material for study, as well as a definite study plan and self-testing procedure.

Self-study guides available are:

- DA Pamphlet No. 10-2, Cook (MOS 0060); 10-3, Meat Cutter (0037); 10-4, Baker (0073); 10-5, Carpenter (MOS 0171); 10-6, Mess Steward (MOS 0284); 10-7, Master Meat Cutter (MOS 0307); 10-8, Master Baker (MOS 0317); 10-9, Food Service Supervisor (MOS 1114 and 1824); 12-30, Machine Accounting Supervisor (MOS 1400).

Job Outlook Not Lustrous For Graduating Veterans

It's getting rough! That's the gist of a recent Labor department survey which revealed that over one-and-a-half million persons hit a narrowing postwar job market every year.

About one-third of this year's job-seekers own college degrees but the day is past when this meant a pass-key to employment. Half of these college men are veterans.

The standard BA degree is not what it used to be. Business and industrial sources are picky and choose and they want men with master's and doctor's degrees.

But even those armed with graduate degrees and job experience find the outlook not too rosy.

A recent government breakdown of the white-collar field revealed that law, engineering, chemistry and personnel work will have more job seekers than vacancies. Medicine and dentistry are the exceptions, but here the competition for admission to medical and dental schools is "very keen."

The same story is in other fields. The best advice culled from government, educational and industrial sources is—specialize! The few jobs available are going to the best qualified men.

$24 Billion Paid Through GI Bill

Last week was the sixth birthday of the GI bill, and the Veterans Administration reports it has channeled $24,000,000 into the hands of most of the nation's 15,300,000 World War II veterans.

Here are the records of the three major provisions of the GI bill to date, as disclosed today by the VA:

1. Education and training at government expense: 7,000,000 servicemen and women have taken on-the-job or classroom instruction costing $10,000,000. Average 18.1 a 15-month period was 15 months. Only 300,000 exhausted their eligibility for further training.
2. Government-guaranteed and insured loans for homes, farms and businesses: $1,000,000 was obtained by 2,100,000 vets. Ninety-two percent of the loans were for homes. Only seven-tenths of one percent of them were defaulted to the extent that the VA had to make good.
3. Readjustment allowances to help tide veterans over unemployment periods. Servicemen were on the rolls for an average of six weeks apiece. They drew allowances totaling $3,800,000,000.

The VA reminded veterans interested in more schooling that they must enroll by July 25, 1951, if they want to continue beyond that date. The final cutoff comes in 1956. For loans the deadline is 1957. Most readjustment allowance benefits end last year.

Soldier of the Week Distinction Won by Infantry Unit's Operations Sergeant

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Soldier of the Week, Sgt. 1st Cl. Garnet N. Ellison, was participating in field training at the time of his selection. It was for that reason that a photograph could not be made to accompany this story.

Excellence of duty over a period of more than a year has earned for Sgt. 1st Cl. Garnet N. Ellison the title of Soldier of the Week.

Sergeant Ellison, who is operations sergeant for the 30th Infantry regiment's Third Battalion, has performed his multitudinous duties with precision and enthusiasm.

Prior to and during Operation Postex, Sergeant Ellison was responsible and instrumental in providing the 30th Infantry with copious quantities of accurate operations orders, loading diagrams and all other data required for a large-scale training maneuver. Many times, he was called upon to complete his tasks without the assistance of other operations personnel, who were frequently called upon to do other duties.

Sergeant Ellison's same enthusiasm and uncompromising diligence continued long after Third Infantry division troops returned from Operation Postex. Heavy requirements by the Infantry School for demonstration troops from the Third division created a seemingly insurmountable burden for the operations staff of the 30th Infantry. It was during this period of increased schedules that Sergeant Ellison once again demonstrated his tireless efforts in completing tasks of scheduling troop activity in school demonstrations, arranging for movement of equipment and completion of endless administrative details.

Sergeant Ellison's sound judgment and admiration from officers and enlisted men with whom he works. He is often called upon to shoulder responsibilities ordinarily assigned to senior operations officers within the regiment.

Uncle Sam Says

July 4, 1950, will be a day long to remember. It is the day which celebrates independence and a year ago the day when the Treasury Department turns over to your State an exact reproduction of the historic Liberty Bell, the bell which signaled political freedom for our new republic. And your Government offers you the way to individual independence--or freedom from financial worry--through the U. S. Savings Bonds program. The real way to celebrate future security is by investing for the future with U. S. Savings Bonds where you work, or if self-employed, the Save-A-Month Plan at your bank. U. S. Treasury Department

Larger Airforce Would be Budget Strain--Truman

A 70-group airforce would be a load on the national budget at this time, President Truman told the newsmen last week. The chief executive was answering a congressional question to boost the United States' air strength from the present 48 groups to 70. The President's assertion followed the theme the country should build an armed force the nation can afford. He said it does not make any difference how many air groups are authorized—the question is how many the budget will allow. Last year, congressmen and defense planners had advocated a 70-group airforce. It was defeated on the grounds of insufficient funds. Until last week's proposal by the house armed forces group, the issue had been shoved into the background of planning needs.

Airborne Classes Continue to Train

Five basic airborne classes of the Infantry School were completing various phases of training this week. The following is a list of the classes and their progress: Class No. 42, consisting of seven officers and 113 enlisted men, began its fifth week of training. Class No. 43 began its fourth week of training with 13 officers and 145 enlisted men. Class No. 44 began its third week of training with 13 officers and 145 enlisted men. Class No. 46 began its second week of training with 34 officers and 172 enlisted men. Class No. 47 began its first week of training with 33 officers and 180 enlisted men.

The payment of at least one month's premium at date application is made allows the insurance to take effect at once as of that date. An allotment from active service pay may be established to pay first or later premiums as provided for by Public Law 451, 77th Congress. (Duplicate and triplicate deductions have been made by service departments in connection with this law to permit payment of the first premiums by allotment.)

First day of month in which application and tender of premium are made. The payment of at least one month's premium at date of application and making effective date of the insurance the first day of the same month are authorized.

First day of month following that month in which application is made and premium tender or payment allotment established. The United States shall not be liable for death occurring prior to such effective date.

In any case in which prior to Aug. 1, 1946, application was made for insurance to become effective subsequent to the date of application and the applicant died in line of duty prior to the date such insurance was to become effective, the United States shall be liable to the same extent as it should have been if such insurance had been in force on the date of death of the applicant.

Effective date may not be after termination of active service unless the applicant was in active service between Oct. 8, 1940, and Sept. 2, 1945, both dates inclusive. First day of any month, but not more than six months prior to month in which application is made (Usually desirable only to take advantage of an age change.)

By payment of full reserve. Information regarding the reserve of NSLI is obtained from VA Form 310 or VA Manual M9-3. Policy dated six months prior would require reserve for six months.

And payment of full premium for current month. A payment of one month's premium must also be made for the current month.

If in active service must be on or after date of entrance into such service or discharge, compliance with eligibility dates, Oct. 8, 1940 through Sept. 2, 1945, must be met. Must have been on or after Oct. 8, 1940, NO NSLI can be effective before the last of Oct. 8, 1940, was passed.

AMOUNT OF INSURANCE

Maximum of $10,000 includes United States Government Life Insurance and National Service Life Insurance. All insurance issued by the United States government, including NSLI and USGLI. The amount of insurance in force on which premiums are being paid or which is in force as paid-up or extended insurance is considered and cannot total more than $10,000. This limitation on maximum amount of USGLI and NSLI is the only point at which the one affects the other.

NEXT WEEK: PLANS OF INSURANCE and AGE OF APPLICANT.

Senators Voice Approval Of 3-Year Draft Renewal

The senate voiced overwhelming approval last week of a three-year renewal of the peacetime draft act with limited authority for the President to order inductions in case of emergency. Approval of the extension followed a heated debate between opposing factions of the senate that might have lasted until next week.

But later, in a final burst of speed, the senate brushed aside proposals to attach segregation amendments to the measure and then shouted approval of the extension requested by President Truman's administration.

The bill now goes back to the house which previously had voted a two-year renewal. A clause in the measure stipulates that no inductions will be made until congress votes to do so. The only exception would be when congress was not in session and then the President could vote "an emergency" and order immediate inductions. In the same session, senate leaders shoved through a bill to permit the enlistment of 2,500 hand-picked aliens in the army. Charged by opposition of the bill's sponsors pointed out that "spies" would have easy access to technical information while serving in the army.

Signal Corps Cites Latest Innovations

New York (APPS) — Army Signal Corps developments in the interest of military preparedness were described here recently by Maj. Gen. Kire B. Lawton, deputy chief signal officer. He described a new field wire, half the weight of that previously used and told of a "family" of radio sets for the use of ground forces, which will provide a communication system among various units. Also listed a radio receiver-transmitter about the size of a cigaret case, which, when perfected, will permit communication between foxholes.

Gen. Hodge, Former U.S. Korea Chief To Succeed Gen. Gillem as 3rd Army CG

Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the Fifth corps at Fort Bragg, N. C., has been named successor to Third Army's commander, Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., who will retire from military service on Aug. 31. Fifty-seven-year-old General Hodge, who graduated from a regular officers' course at the Infantry School in 1926, was assistant commander of the 25th Infantry division when it defeated Japanese forces at Guadalcanal during World War II. He also led the first American troops into Korea after the Japanese surrender, and commanded U. S. forces there until his return to this country in 1948, when he assumed command of the Fifth corps.

During World War I, he served with the 61st Infantry in the St. Mihiel and Meuse Argonne offensives. He commanded the 1st division at the Army War College, and attended the University of Illinois and was commissioned in 1917.

General Hodge holds the Legion of Merit, Distinguished Service Medal and Purple Heart medal with two oak leaf clusters. The retiring army commander, General Gillem, enlisted as an infantry private at Fort M. Pherson, Ga., in 1910. He will retire from service at the same post, his present headquarters.

Sixty-two-year-old General Gillem, who has been labeled as "The Soldier's Soldier," received his commission as a second lieutenant just a year after his enlistment. He had hoped to attend West Point but no vacancies existed at the time.

Prior to World War I, General Gillem served in the Philippines and later went with Pershing's forces on punitive expeditions into Mexico.

During World War I, he was stationed in Siberia with American Expeditionary Forces, where he was with a machinegun battalion.

During the ensuing years, General Gillem had assignments as an instructor at the Infantry School, a professor of military science and tactics at the University of Maryland and as a student at the Army War College.

With the creation of the armored force in 1940, General Gillem was appointed commander of the 68th Armored regiment. Later, he was promoted to brigadier general and given command of the Second Armored brigade. In April, 1941, he was placed in command of the Third Armored Division, and three months later was advanced to the rank of major general.

In 1944, he went to Europe where he served in various armored campaigns in France, Belgium and Holland. In 1945, he returned to the United States to join the Stillwell board, a committee investigating post-war equipment. But his stateside duty was cut short when he was ordered to China in 1946 as an assistant to the Presidential mission to that country.

He returned to the U. S. again in May, 1947, after being commanding general of the China theater, U. S. Forces in China and the China Service command. General Gillem assumed command of the Third Army in June, 1947.

He decorations and awards include the Distinguished Service Medal with oak leaf cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star medal, French Legion of Honor with palm, French Croix de Guerre with palm, Brazilian Medal of Merit, Russian Order of Red Banner, Dutch Order of Orange Nassau, Belgian Order of Leopold with palm, Belgian Croix de Guerre with palm and Chinese Grand Cordon of Yun Hwei.

General Gillem has made no announcement about his plans following retirement, it is generally known that the retiring officer might seek an educational post in the South.

During the war Major Burr saw combat as a rifle company commander and battalion staff officer with the 103rd Infantry division in Germany, remaining there until June, 1947, for a tour of duty with the occupation forces.

Although Major Burr has had public relations experience in a civilian capacity, his army career has been divided between troop duty and staff work. He was integrated as a regular army officer in 1946, and has had eight years of service.

Blueprints Asked For West Allies

Dr. Vannevar Bush, eminent American atom scientist, in a Paris speech last week urged that the United States supply blueprints of a new anti-tank weapon, embodying the principles of both the bazooka and the recoilless rifle, to Western European allies participating in the military aid program.

Dr. Bush has said the new weapon is "the most encouraging chapter since the war." It will enable Europe to defend itself against a possible mass attack with a relatively small army.

Transfer of the blueprints would not necessarily involve the stationing of American units and technicians in the European countries to supervise use of the weapons, concluded Dr. Bush.

USAF, Dutch Train Jointly

Washington (APFS) — USAF B-29 and B-50 aircraft of the Third Air division, based in England, are cooperating with the Netherlands Air Force in extensive air interception exercises, considered highly beneficial to both nations.

The fact that a large part of the proposed radar network over Dutch territory has been completed facilities these training flights. Pilots of the newly-formed Dutch Meteor squadrons have reached a sufficient standard of proficiency in interceptor tactics to make the joint exercises possible.

The games are carried out as the U. S. planes fly their regular training schedules in Heligoland, over Dutch territory.

As the American planes pass over Dutch territory, the radar defense system becomes operative, and the Dutch pilots try for simulated interceptions and attacks, with cameras recording the results.

It is also normal practice for Belgian and French planes, in small groups or singly, to hop to England for participation with U. S. and British forces in training maneuvers.

9 EM Go on Duty in Personnel Office

QM Marks Anniversary

NEW YORK (APFS)—A special display of photographs of army quartermasters general, from Maj. Gen. Thomas Mifflin (1775) to Maj. Gen. Herman F. Fuldman (1950) marked the Quartermaster Corps anniversary celebration of the New York Procurement agency. The Quartermaster Corps was 175 years old on June 16.

An exhibit included uniforms and other articles of clothing for wear in Arctic, tropical and temperate climates. Also shown were the latest in cooking ranges and mess equipment, some of which have been developed since World War II.

The Quartermaster Corps was begun when the continental congress adopted a resolution on June 16, 1775, providing for the appointment of a quartermaster general and a deputy to assist him.

INVADERS DRIVEN BACK... South Korean Forces drove invading Red troops 13 miles north of Seoul (1) and canceled plans for moving the capital to Suwon (4), after the North Koreans had driven to the city's outskirts. South Korean Army has also recaptured Uijongbu, 17 miles north of Seoul. American fighter planes, giving protective cover to Americans leaving from Gimpo airport, west of Seoul, shot down at least six Communist fighter-planes. Refugees reported that Munson (3) strategic point on the Imjin River had fallen to North Koreans. Heavy shading on the map shows major area of the Red penetration.

Leaders Report On World Status

By Armed Forces Press Service
Recent opinions expressed by top U. S. military and civilian leaders confirm evidence of the grim struggle now being waged by our government to insure a world free from tyranny.

One ray of hope in this bitter battle came from a press conference in Washington where President Truman told reporters that the world is closer to a real, permanent peace than it has been for five years.

But in a special message to congress, the President warned that "the Soviet Union has dedicated itself to the destruction of democracy and everything which it represents and its wage a grim struggle to make the entire free world into slaves."

Also before a congressional group Secretary of State Acheson said war is not imminent, but the U. S. must continue its leading role in the military build-up of Western Europe so long as Russia maintains powerful armed forces.

Jerk of the Week Committee Picks Muddled Marvel

The last Jerk of the Week Selection committee meeting was thrown into a turmoil at the outset by a cryptic long distance message students class No. 3, student cooks class No. 3, and student cooks class No. 3.

When it was explained to him that the award was confined to representatives of Fort Benning, he subsided with vague mutterings about "dirty discrimination," allowing the meeting to resume its incoherent pattern.

As a youth, Snerd was the subject of a scientific controversy which reached frenzied proportions. One group of medical authorities supported the contention that he was the first human male ever to be born without a brain, a theory roundly scorned by lesser medics who maintained with equal fervor that his incredible stupidity was not setting any new records, being surpassed by at least seven other cases on record.

ARRIVING IN BAMBERG, GERMANY, SNERD SPENT THREE happy years in charge of a roving latrine digging detail, being promoted to sergeant on the strength of his record of never having lost a man through premature burial.

Joint Air Tactical, Army Training Exercises Slated

WASHINGTON, (APFS) — Army combat personnel will be participating in airplane bombing rocketing and strafing as the program of emphasis on tactical support of the ground troops progresses, defense officials recently announced.

A joint program of training toward cooperation of air force and army field units evolved as a phase of the recent reorganization of the Continental Air Command, giving greater operational flexibility to the Tactical Air Command.

An operational concept now developing is that ground troops in the future will command increased fire power through direct combat weapons and techniques, and that the greater striking power should be utilized in combination with tactical air support.

The program will be implemented next month with battalion combat team exercises at Fort Meade, Md. Other army-air training exercises are scheduled to follow at Fort Hood, Tex.; Camp Carson, Colo.; Fort Devens, Mass.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Pine Camp, N. Y., and other stations.

Rites Held for Gen. Fulton, Ex-Benning Commander

Military funeral services were held Sunday for Brig. Gen. Walter Scott Fulton, 71, former commanding general of Fort Benning, who died last weekend at his home in Columbus of a heart attack.

The retired officer, who had been chairman of the Muscogee chapter of the American Red Cross, was apparently in good health prior to the attack.

Gen. Fulton had been active in the community's civic affairs after his retirement as commanding officer of Fort Benning on Sept. 30, 1943.

At the time of his death, in addition to chairmanship of the Red Cross chapter, he was secretary of the Chattahoochee Valley Chamber of Commerce and vice chairman of the Chamber of Commerce military and naval affairs committee.

He served during the late war years as head of the Muscogee County War Fund campaign.

Born in Canada, March 23, 1879, he lived in Indiana and Illinois, as a youth, and was appointed to West Point, from Indiana. He was graduated in 1904.

The general was a graduate of the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and also a graduate of the Army War college, at Washington, D. C.

He served in the Philippines, during the 1906 campaign and at Vera Cruz, Mexico, during the American occupation in 1914.

The military leader served in France during World War I with the 88th division and was post inspector, post executive officer, and commanding officer of Fort Benning from March 15, 1940, until his retirement.

His Army work includes that with the National Guard, both in national and state branches. Foremost in promoting many of the civic improvements in the Columbus-Fort Benning area, he participated in a successful drive against vice conditions early in 1942 and did much to foster harmonious relations between the military and civilian leaders of the community.

He retired from active duty June 30, 1943, but on orders of the War Department, he returned as head of Fort Benning the following day, July 1.

He actually retired as commanding officer of Fort Benning on Sept. 30, 1943.

A month later he became head of the Muscogee War Fund campaign.

When he came to Fort Benning he was a colonel. He became post executive officer in 1941. Prior to that time he was professor of military science and tactics at the University of Ohio.

Spoiled Kids Need Switch, Doctor Says

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 27 (AP)—"A switch in the hand is often worth two psychiatrists in the bush."

That prescription for curing spoiled children was given fellow physicians today by Dr. Samuel F. Ravenel, dean of the Southern Pediatric Seminar at Saluda, S. C.

The switch treatment was discussed by the pediatrician at a summer graduate course for doctors of medicine sponsored by the University of Florida.

But he didn't recommend doing anything but a "switch" altogether. He said parents should not change a child's bedtime suddenly from 10 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., but should send the youngster to bed 15 minutes earlier each night until the proper time is reached.

VA Ordered to Pay $10,000 Insurance in Veteran's Death

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 28 (AP)—The Veterans Administration was ordered by U. S. District court yesterday to pay a $10,000 life insurance policy on a Negro war veteran who died of tuberculosis.

Judge C. F. Kennamer, who handed down the decision in favor of Missouri Watson, mother of veteran Myles B. Watson, said these facts were brought out:

Watson was discharged with signs of tuberculosis and later died. When his mother filed a claim for his insurance, the Veterans Administration claimed the policy had lapsed.

The woman produced a receipt showing she mailed a $30 payment to the VA two days before Watson died.

The VA did not deny receiving the money, but said it was not applied to the policy until after Watson died. A year later, the money was refunded to his mother.

Uncle Sam Says

Graduation days are over and the hopes of those leaving school for the last time are high. There is one bit of advice your Uncle Sam wants you graduates to remember, and that is—"the only money you'll ever have is the money you are saving right now, saving part of each pay-check is the ONLY way to save." And one of the best ways to do it is to buy U. S. Savings Bonds through your company's payroll savings plan. These bonds are backed by the full resources of the Government and will return you 4% for every $5 in ten years later.

Campbell May Pass Up Tam

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 28 (AP)—William C. (Bill) Campbell, twice winner of the Amateur division of the Tam O'Shanter golf tournament, may pass up his chance to retire the cup this year.

Too busy with business and politics, he explained.

Billed as the "world championship" tournament by its promoter George S. May, the Chicago sports events will be held in August.

Campbell has won the amateur part of it two years in a row, and by winning again would take the ornate cup out of circulation.

He said today, however, that May insists on his participation in the All-American amateur in the Tam course, as a condition for playing in the "World Amateur" two days later.

This would mean, said the west Virginia golfer, 12 days away from Huntington at a critical time. A member of the West Virginia house of delegates, Campbell is running for nomination for the state senate this year. The primary is Aug. 1. He also has his insurance job to think about.

Palmer Grabs NCAA Medal

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 28 (AP)—Arnold Palmer, husky Wake Forest star, and the North Texas State college team outshot the field for medal honors Tuesday in the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf tournament.

Performances of both hung up new NCAA competitive records.

Palmer, a blond 20-year-old who looks like a halfback, fired his second straight 68 for the individual laurels. His 36-hole card of 69-68-136 was six under par for the 8,183-yard University of New Mexico course and two blows better than the Pennsylvania's nearest challengers.

North Texas State's four low players put together cards totaling 275—three under standard figures—to repeat as NCAA team winners. Their aggregate was four blows ahead of the second place Purdue squad, whose 377 also bettered the old mark of 578 strokes.

Cronin Gives O'Neill Pat

PHILADELPHIA, June 28 (AP)—General Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox is going to be the Red Sox manager for a long time to come.

Cronin, who visited with O'Neill on the Philadelphia Athletics, told reporters that O'Neill is "going to handle the club until further notice."

"We don't want to keep getting a new manager every year," he said.

McDonald Rally Beats Columbus' Bebe Smith, 4-2

ATLANTA, June 28 (AP)—The three or four favorites—Mrs. Madge McDonald, Eileen Stubb and Martha Daniel—won their first round matches in the Women's State Golf tournament yesterday, but it was hard pressed.

Mrs. McDonald, the medalist and Atlanta City champion, was two down to little 14-year-old Bebe Smith of Columbus after seven holes, but pulled even at the turn. She went on from there to close out the Columbus Country Club champ 4 and 2.

Miss Daniel, the defending champion from Rome, had to close out the Columbus Country Club champion, Mrs. Stubb, 2 and 1. Miss Daniel was two down at the turn, but won the 11th and 13th and 15th holes to clinch the match.

Other first round results in the championship: Mrs. Stubb vs. Mrs. McDonald, 4 and 2; Mrs. Daniel vs. Mrs. McDonald, 4 and 2; Mrs. Daniel vs. Mrs. McDonald, 4 and 2.

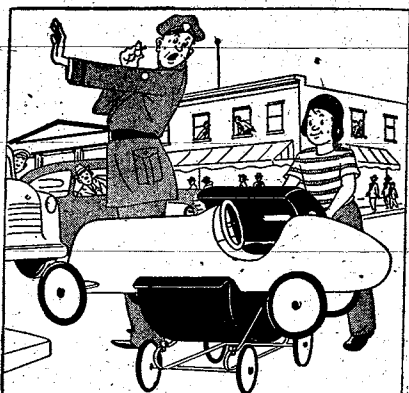

Troopers Blast Engineers, 15-2
The combination of Ike Silcox and some potent Trooper bats proved too much for the Infantry division Engineers as they were defeated 15-2 by the Troopers in a game of the Airborne baseball team Sunday afternoon.

Silcox faced only 24 batters in the seven-inning rout of the Engineers. Ten of the opposing hitters were fanned by the post's leading pitcher.

The Engineers got their two runs in the fifth inning on one hit and walked four while allowing two runs in the third and fourth. The Troopers scored two runs in the first, five in the second, five in the third and five in the fourth.

Jack Willis and Don Accardo hit the only two safe blows off Silcox in the entire game. Bernard Gray was charged with the loss for the Engineers.

Troopers Continue Win Skein With 18-3 Victory

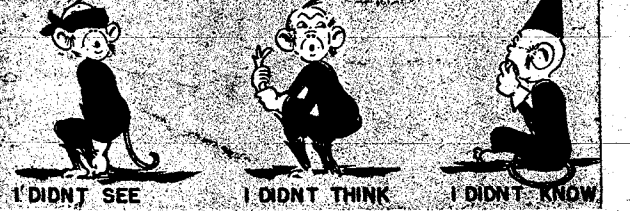

The league-leading Airborne Battalion-Student Training Regiment broke loose with a sample of its highly-touted hitting power at Gowdy field last Wednesday night to wallop the Lawson Field Filers, 18-3, in a seven-inning affair.

Lawson right-handers Russ Sanders, who was charged with the loss and Dick Crowell were the victims of the Troopers' 14-hit attack, which included five extra base blows.

Jim Shirley won the route for the victors and served up only four base-knock balls to the Lawsonites. The Filers enjoyed a brief fling out in front when two airmen crossed the platter in the top of the second. Fields Cox, the first swinger to face Shirley in the inning, was the target for an inside pitch, and moved on down to second when Bob Burrows drew a walk. Bill Robertson was safe on a first base choice, and Cox romped home with the first tally of the game, while Fletcher Sanders was being thrown out at first. Burrows scored the second run when Trooper Third-Stringer Dick Wachtel's grounder.

The Troopers roared back in their half of the second, howling to score six times. The en runners were whacked out of the stanzas was three-run triple to the right by Bill Brody in a single. After shacking the Filers in account for half of the Lawson top of the third, the Troop-

ISD's Late Rally Nips Divarty, 14-9

An eight-run outburst in the seventh inning gave the second-place Infantry School detachment Profs a 14-9 diamond victory over the Third Infantry division Artillerymen at Gowdy field Friday night.

The Divarty nine matched the ISD's run-getting efforts during the early innings of the game, and even held a two-run edge going into the last half of the fifth inning.

The Profs picked up a two-run lead in the first inning on singles by George Hill and Steve Boland and an error and a wild pitch by Divarty hurler John McClintic.

Prof right-hander Walt Warwick shackled the artillerymen for the first two innings, but Kieber Campbell's two-run double in the third knotted the count at 2-2.

Singles by Woody Burt and Hill and a double down the left field line by Collis (Lefty) Lehner gave the ISD men two more tallies in the last of the third.

In their half of the fourth, the Divarty managed to get one run on singles, by Bob Blaser and John Breen, and went two tallies in front in the fifth on Ed Powers' two-run triple and singles by Carl Whitener and Tony Rushan.

The Profs roared back in their half of the inning, however, to score three times and deadlock the contest at 7-7. Hill led off by getting his first base on the night and went to third when Boland reached second on an error by Divarty Shortstop Blaser. Burt then walked, and Hill topped home with a score when Hal Grimes flew out to deep center. Herb Leave then drew a free pass to first to load the sacks again, and Red Burgandy whacked out a single center to score Boland and Burt.

Both the Artillerymen and the Profs went down in order in the sixth, but Powe gave Divarty a short-lived one-run margin in the top of the seventh when he blasted an inside - the park four-bagger to the left center-field fence.

I DID IT AND I'M GLAD . . . Keen-eyed Lt. Gene Stalcup, above, went to the Georgia State and Open Skeet Shoot recently and shot himself into a tie with Jack Boardman of Augusta, Ga., for the state all-gauge championship. Fort Benning sent a five-man team to the match and wound up as the new Georgia state champions and the Georgia military titlists.

Lukas, STR Swim Ace, Eyes Top TIC Honors

One of the most promising entries in the forthcoming Infantry Center swimming meet, slated for the Sand Hill pool, July 8, is Sgt. John S. Lukas, Headquarters and Headquarters company, Student Training Regiment.

Lukas, alumnus of Central high school Philadelphia, Pa., where he was a varsity aquatic ace for two years, is 20 years old, stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 210 pounds. He was a member of the Philadelphia Broad-wood Athletic Club team, considered one of the strongest in that area, and won championship honors in the 220-yard novice class.

The sergeant's swim record includes outstanding performances with unit teams in North and South Carolina. His aquatic career covers ten years, eight in the army. During this period, he has won eight trophies and 10 medals.

While at Fort Jackson, S. C., he copped honors in the 50-meter free style and the 200-meter breast stroke. In 1948 he was a member of the Third Army meet's top three-man medley team for 300 yards.

Lukas continued his pace-setting tourney triumphs last year at the Third Army meet, winning the 100-yard free style event, placing second in the 50-yard free style and finishing third in the 250-yard medley.

He plans to enter the 50-yard free style, 100-yard free style and the 100-yard breast stroke in the Infantry Center tournament.

NL Umpires Calling 'Em Strictly By Book Rules

Philadelphia (AFPS)—The National League umpires are calling them strictly according to the book this season. Dusty Hoggess took a hit away from Duke Snider on a rare decision. Russ Meyer served a wide pitch to Boggs in a Dodger-Phil game, and Snider, finding the pitch too juicy to resist, chased it and singled to center. The umpire voided the hit and called Snider automatically out for crossing the plate.

Every Inch a Gentleman

Providence, R. I. (AFPS)—Johnny Chad, veteran star of the Providence Reds, has been named the most sportsmanlike hockey player by the referees. Chad scored 60 points in 70 games and spent only four minutes in the penalty box.

Cadet Softballers Edge ROTC, 6-3

Cadets of the U. S. Military academy—bunching their hits in two innings—downed the ROTC cadets of Fort Benning, 6-3 in a softball game on the post Wednesday night.

The ROTC team took an early lead in the second inning with a two-base hit and wildness by the West Point pitcher responsible for one run. However, the USMA outfit hit hard in the third and sixth innings to ice the game, while the ROTC men were able to score single tallies in the fifth and seventh frames.

Vern Stephens, Rizzuto Fight For Star Spot

With only five days of balloting left, Rizzuto holds only a 695 vote over Stephens, 651,208 to 444,712.

If Stephens wins, the Red Sox hit home runs for C. F. A. Waller also belted a triple. Hitting starting infield positions in the game were Warren Kuykendall, Ferrell, Cobb, Ellis, and Kelly. Mitchell, Taylor, baseman, apparently has clinched a starting job, and Bobby Doerr, Peppleton, Whitman, and Car-second base division.

C.F.A. Defeats Snobs by 16-3

The C. F. A. softball team defeated Snobs, 16-3, in a Men's Independent League game at Linwood Field behind the excellent pitching of Carrier. Kelly was on the mound for the losers.

Waller, Peppleton and Silvia hit home runs for C. F. A. Waller also belted a triple. Hitting singles for Snobs were Warren Kuykendall, Ferrell, Cobb, Ellis, and Kelly. Mitchell, Taylor, baseman, apparently has clinched a starting job, and Bobby Doerr, Peppleton, Whitman, and Car-second base division.

Old Bobo Newsom Still Going Strong—Loves It

ATLANTA, June 28—(UP)—For Bobo Newsom, life begins at both 4 and 8:30.

At 41, holding more victories than any active pitcher, the stout spouter is still going strong in the Southern Association. Promptly at 8:30 every fourth night, the old bird starts chucking at Chattanooga, a Washington farm.

"Bobo will never quit," they say around Chattanooga. He is both the ace winner and No. 1 drawing card of a perennial second-division outfit. He quit the club in a huff last season, but quickly changed his mind and returned. Again he is the idol of the club's following. It's easy to see why. Ol' Bobo won 17 games and lost 12 for a last-place club last year, turned in a .39 mark for the first one-third of this season. He has won 324 games in 22 years of pitching in the major leagues. He also lost 217 for the worst average of any "200 Victory club" member.

But, as Bobo will be the first to tell you, a lot of his big-time was spent with clubs like Washington and the St. Louis Browns and the only pitchers whose records they fatten are the other teams'. At an age when most men would be thinking about taking a shuffle-board or an avocation, Bobo stays in the whirl. He is a promotion man for a soft-drink firm part of the day. Before home games he conducts a radio program with dugout interest. He also is occupied with "learnin'" his 15-year-old son intricacies of the mound trade, "but I ain't lettin' him sign unless they offer him a big bonus," he says.

Last year Louis Norman volunteered for iron-man duty, pitched and won both games of a doubleheader. He has never had a sore arm.

For this reason, a caustic crack by Chattanooga owner and Vecek-style impresario Joe Engel chafed Bobo almost to attack.

Early this season, Bobo left his staff in his locker and was batted out early. After a shower, he pitched with Bobo-furnished harpmony ("I got a good singing voice, too") he retired to the press box to spread his personality among newspaper friends. He did not quite make the press box. Engel rushed out in one of his screaming yellow suits and in a voice match, accused Bobo of being out of shape.

But Bobo bellowed that he had never been in better shape. "They wuz lucky," he boomed. "Ol' Bobo" is still the best in the game.

Engle is big, but Bobo blown up like a hot air balloon. So the battle was confined to words. The owner retorted, "I'm not a child, but I'm not a child when his problem child won the next three games, each on less than six hits.

Beallwood Cops Church Loop Go

Beallwood Baptist, Eastern Heights, and Oates Ave, won games Tuesday night in the Columbus Church softball league. Oates Ave played at Rose Hill, while the other two games were played at Wildwood park. Beallwood defeated Hoke Chapel, 4-1, with J. R. Allen hurling the victory. John Venable was the loser. Gene Kennedy with a pair of singles was the leading hitter. Joe Redman pitched Eastern Heights to its win over Hamp Stevens by an 8-4 score. Gaston Pollock was the loser. Tom Black with three for four was the leading hitter for the winners, while Rubio Starlin had three for three for Hamp Stevens.

'Realism' Stressed in U.S. Foreign Policy Address

Thirty-four Third Army reserve officers will graduate tomorrow from a military intelligence school, which has been in session here for the past two weeks.

The school for reservists, which is the first of three to be held at the Infantry Center this summer, is a course in basic military intelligence subjects, which includes mounted patrols, aerial photograph reading, map analysis and enemy capabilities.

Lt. Col. Lucius L. Deck, Sr., commandant of the school, said today that 60 more reserve officers would report here on July 3 to begin studies in a two-week course. He said, in addition, students attending the course would operate a command post exercise during the last two days of the school that would be similar to the World War II Anzio beachhead.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, retired former military governor of Germany, told the graduating class at Georgeia Tech that American foreign policy will win out in Asia as it has won in Europe, and predicted that peace eventually will become the order of the day.

At White Sulphur Springs, Va., Gen. Omar N. Bradley, joint chiefs of staff chairman, said "we hope to build up our productive facilities so that no aggressor will dare attack us." Chief of Navy's Operations order of the day.

Adm. Forrest Sherman told graduating officers at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., that four factors contribute to the success of personnel administration in the navy: (1) Interest of seniors in subordinates, (2) Flow of information upwards and downwards, (3) Fairness of command, (4) Stability.

52nd Truck Unit Receives Award

The 33rd Truck company of the 52nd Transportation Truck battalion won the first monthly battalion award for having the best vehicle inspection record.

Lt. Col. Waldon C. Winston, battalion commander, presented a plaque representative of the award to 1st Lt. Russell J. Keuling, company commander, and WOJG William H. Russell, unit maintenance officer, in brief ceremony.

In addition to the company award, which will be a monthly presentation hereafter, each enlisted driver who has a perfect vehicle at the inspection will receive a three-day pass, Col. Winston stated.

The achievement of the 33rd Truck company substantially surpassed Third Army inspection standards, Col. Winston said in congratulating the officers representing the unit, adding that the company had consistently fine record of inspection.

The winning unit of the battalion will take possession of the plaque each month.

To Amuse You Today

Sergeant: (arguing with cab driver): "See here, I have not been riding in cabs 10 years for nothing."

Cab Driver: "No, but I'll bet you sure have been trying."

As the skunk said when the wind changed: "It all comes back to me now."

Two girls on a park bench.

First Girl: "Have a cigarette?"

Second Girl: "What? Smoke in public? Why I'd sooner kiss the first man coming down the street."

First Ditto: "So would I. But let's smoke while we're waiting."

The new maid had been instructed to bring her mistress a glass of water every morning. She delivered the drink the first morning, carrying the glass in her hand. The mistress exploded. "Don't ever do that again. After this put it on a tray." The next morning the maid appeared with a worried look on her face, and asked: "Excuse me, ma'am, but do you give me a spoon with this or do you just lap it up?"

Mrs. D.: "Mrs. L., your son certainly is a cute little rascal."

Mrs. L.: "Yes—he takes after his father."

Mrs. D.: "Oh, is he cute too?"

Mrs. L.: "No, but he's a rascal."

Overheard in a downtown barber shop:

Manicurist: "I don't think I ought to go out with you. I'm married."

Customer: "Ask your husband. I'm sure he won't mind."

Manicurist: "You ask him. He's shaving you."

Little paycheck, by tonight we'll be where the lights are. In some gaily festive spot I'll return, but you will not.

"I just swatted five flies. Two were male and three were female."

"How can you tell?"

"Two were on the card table and three others were on the mirror."

Famous Last Words: "If you'll just button your lip, sir, I'll explain why I didn't salute when I passed you."

Major: "and there, my son, you have the story of your dad and the great World War."

Son: "Yes, daddy, but why did they need all those other men?"

To a dissipated looking friend after a riotous night:

"You're looking good pal, who's your embalmer?"

The gal who stars in Grade B horror films is furthering her scream-career. Nice way to seek out a living, eh what?

Master at Arms: "What's your job, sailor?"

Sailor: "Locksmith, sir."

MA: "What were you doing in the galley when we raided that dice game?"

Sailor: "Making a bolt for the door, sir."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 28 (AP)—The Alabama National Guard could go to war within three months if needed, Adjutant Gen. James S. Saliba said yesterday.

"Some of the units could go into combat now," he said, "if others could be whipped into shape in a short time."

Saliba said the Guard now has 12,000 troops, most seasoned fighters with service in World War II.

"Of course we'd need equipment," he said, "particularly ordnance, trucks and special type vehicles."

Saliba and other members of his staff conferred with the Gov. James E. Folsom during the day to "talk over" the situation.

The governor explained that while he could see no reason for alarm at this time, he wants the Guard on the alert for any possible emergency.

'Guards' Going To Camp; 300 Due To Make Trip

Some 50,000 National Guardsmen of the seven southeastern states including a possible 300 from Columbus and Phenix City are making preparations for annual two-weeks encampments during July and August.

The Columbus contingent, which Lt. Col. Ernest Higgins, commander, hopes will be 100 per cent strength, will go to Fort Jackson, S. C. July 23.

"Most troops and heavy equipment will go by train," he said. "One advance party and some equipment will leave before the 23rd, but no date has been set."

The Phenix City group, the 10th Ordnance Medium Maintenance company, will go to Camp Stewart, near Hinesville Ga. July 15-20.

Ed Mullin, commander, said no recruits will be taken to camp who enlist after June 30. Some 60 men are expected to attend. The maintenance group will support four antiaircraft artillery battalions while at camp. They will be the 104th AAA AW, the 44th AAA AW, the 711th AAA gun, and the 107th Truck and Transportation company.

Probably the biggest encampment of all will be at Fort McClellan, July 9-23, when the 51st Infantry division made up of Guardsmen from Alabama and Mississippi, assemble. Estimated attendance will be 8,861.

The 30th Infantry division, composed of North Carolina and Tennessee troops, is expected to have 8,722 attending camp July 2-16, at Fort Jackson.

Floridians and Georgians in the 48th Infantry division are expected to take 7,292 to Fort Jackson July 23 to Aug. 6.

Col. Higgins, trying to get full representation at the camp, urged again that all employers comply with the National Guard's request through the Chamber of Commerce's military and naval affairs committee to let employees off for camp with as little loss in pay and vacation time as possible.

The 51st Infantry division, composed of Florida and South Carolina troops, will take about 8,897 to Fort Jackson Aug. 13-27.

Alabama and Mississippi non-division units, with the exception of AAA outfits will have about 2,855 at Fort McClellan July 30 to Aug. 15, while Tennessee's non-division units, 5,785 strong, will be at McClellan Aug. 6-20.

All AAA training will be at Camp Stewart, South Carolina, with about 1,485; Florida, 996.

Mail Call

I watched the boys at mail call, When maneuvers came to an end.
Hoping,
Groping,
Moping,
For the letter you failed to send!
A few got stacks of missives,
In pastel pink and blue,
But most of the boys were satisfied
If they got just one or two!

But you should have seen young Murphy,—
He stood on the fringe of the lot;
His name
Was never Mentioned,—
The folks back home forgot!
But he pulled from an inside pocket
A worn old envelope,
A letter that once had brought him
Love, and faith, and hope!
So he stood and fingered its pages,
Though he knew them all by heart,—
It covered his embarrassment
Until he could depart;
But the tears that stained his pillow,
In the darkness after taps,
Never would have happened
Except for a friendship's lapse!

Now listen, folks, if you have a boy,
A sweetheart, or a friend,
Doing a hitch in the service
On which we all depend,—
Write an occasional letter,
For the half has not been told
When I say they are far more precious
To him than their weight in gold!

Jeep Crash Injures 2 Benning Soldiers

Two Fort Benning soldiers were injured early today when their jeep overturned just off Outer road near the Old Prisoner of war camp. Public Information officials reported.

Pfc. James F. McCormick, 17, suffered a serious back injury and Pfc. Robert E. Conner, 18, suffered a dislocated fracture of the left shoulder, in the accident which occurred at 10 a. m. in the old Harmony church area, officials said.

Both men, members of the 3rd Military Police company of the 3rd Division were confined to Station hospital.

Coast Guard Curbs Search for Airliner

ST. JOSEPH, MICH., June 28 —(AP)—The Coast Guard, maneuvered on a limited basis today its search of Lake Michigan for wreckage of the missing Northwest Airlines passenger plane.

An all-out search was called off yesterday after rescue cutters and a patrol boat found nothing new to solve the mystery of the plane's fate. Only two small boats were assigned to scan the choppy waters today.

The big, four-engine plane crashed into the lake during a storm early Saturday. It is believed all 58 persons aboard lost their lives in the worst disaster in the history of U. S. aviation.

Navy Readies Pacific Task Force

PEARL HARBOR, June 28 —(AP)—The Navy moved swiftly today to put together a second hard-hitting Pacific task force to enforce stiffening American policy against Communist aggression in the Far East.

The existing Seventh task fleet immediately prepared to carry out President Truman's orders to defend Formosa, China, and the Communist stronghold, from Red invasion.

The 20-ship Seventh, spearheaded by the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Valley Forge, was transferred to the operational command of General MacArthur, chief of all U. S. Forces in the East. Some of its units quickly sailed from Hong Kong, presumably for Formosa waters. The Valley Forge was in Hong Kong last week.

Pacific fleet headquarters said the 27,000-ton carrier Philippines Sea will be the nucleus for the new task force which will be based on Pearl Harbor. Like the Valley Forge, she will carry the Navy's potent new Grumman Panther jet fighters.

The Philippine Sea task force squadron of destroyers and a full seatrip of supply ships, to permit long-range missions possible if necessary.

A Pacific fleet spokesman said the new force, probably to be commanded by Rear Adm. Walter F. Boone, will closely support the Seventh fleet.

The Seventh's public information officers in Manila declined to say whether any ships of the fleet already had sailed for Formosa waters.

Hong Kong reports said, however, that three of four Seventh units there—the destroyers Moore and Maddock and the submarine Cabazon—sailed Tuesday. The destroyer Wantuck was reported the only Seventh fleet ship remaining.

Asked where they were bound, one high American authority in Hong Kong replied: "Read your morning papers, that should give you an idea." This indicated Formosa.

The fleet's primary base is Guam but Subic Bay and Sangley Point in the Philippines afford forward support facilities.

Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble, commander of the Seventh, sped westward from Honolulu yesterday by plane to rejoin his fleet. He had been in Washington for conferences when the Communist invasion of South Korea precipitated the Far Eastern crisis.

Patterned after the fast carrier task forces of the last war, his fleet includes, in addition to the Valley Forge, heavy cruiser Rochester, the flagship; destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines.

Senate Passes Draft Bill, Truman Wins Broad Power

WASHINGTON, June 28 —(AP)—The senate today passed overwhelmingly and sent to the White House a compromise bill to extend the draft law for a year and authorize the President to call up reserves at any time. The house passed the bill yesterday 315 to 4.

President Truman's order to hasten Congress' action on the 005,882, fixed by the 1948 peace-warrant.

The conference agreement granted definite authority to the President to call up all reserves, including National Guardsmen, for 21 months duty if necessary to fill up the Army, Navy and Air Force to authorized strength.

The senate bill provided a three-year draft extension; the house bill a two-year extension. Congress credited Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services committee, and Senator Byrd (D-W.Va.) with breaking a deadlock by making the one-year proposal.

Senators then suggested adding presidential authority to call out the national guard or other reserve units. If Congress would allow youths to be drafted, the senators were asked to have agreed, then it certainly should allow all reserves and National Guardsmen, who had volunteered also to be called.

The statement from the conferees noted that the president's authority was not to go into effect until the 1951 draft act, and was to be used only "should conditions be such that it is deemed necessary to call up reserves."

Atlanta Population Increases 24,674

ATLANTA, June 28 —(AP)—The population of Atlanta proper, is 226,682, an increase of 24,674 during the past decade, the U. S. Bureau of the Census announced yesterday.

Thomas W. McWhirter, area census supervisor, said the preliminary figure "substantially correct" although subject to revision when the official count is complete.

The count, McWhirter said, does not include the entire metropolitan area, but only those embracing those persons who reside within the corporate limits of the city.

QUESTION: WHAT SINGLE EPISODE HAS HIGHLIGHTED YOUR ARMY NURSE CAREER?

CAPT. EDNA M. PARKER, operating room supervisor, says a hard question to answer, but I would say the highlight of my career was the terrible Christmas during the Battle of Iwo Jima. It was one that I will never forget. I was with the Third Auxiliary Surgical group and we were set up to take care of the casualties from the battle. Christmas was just another day in which none of us got any rest, and I didn't get to eat dinner at all.

CAPT. BEBA WEIR, Women's Ward: I would say the 33 months I spent as chief nurse on an army transport would be the highlight of my career. Our ship brought us brides, children and some soldiers to America. Our most hectic trip was when we had two babies born in one night, and we had only prepared for one. It was really something.

CAPT. BETTY MCCARTHY, Out Patient Clinic: I think the time I spent in Africa in 1943 was the highlight of my career. I shall never forget a sand storm we had in Siococo. The whole tent area was flattened, but the patients were good-natured and laughed all through it. Right after that we had a hail storm and that took care of everything left by the sand storm.

LT. BEDEAL HAYWOOD, Recovery Ward: I think the most interesting time was when I was at the German Marine hospital that we had taken over. We had a lot of German personnel working for us. They were very efficient and very meticulous, but very short on nursing training. It was interesting to see them and how they worked.

LT. DOROTHY SHARPE, OB Ward: I guess my nursing career has been too sheltered—just routine stuff. When I was a civilian nurse, I was in the OB ward so I joined the ANIC to see how the other half of the world worked. What do they do—assign me to the OB ward?

LT. MARGARET J. WHITTON, OB Ward: I would say my time in combat nursing was the highlight of my career. I was with the 33rd Field Hospital, right behind the Arnie beachhead. We were bombed and some of our nurses were killed. During that time I went as long as 72 hours without sleep, and it is something that I don't think I shall ever forget.

Sergeants Transferred
M-Sgt. Edward J. Kimball and Sgt. 1st Cl. Hughie L. Martin, Third Replacement company, Third Infantry division, were transferred recently to Company A, Infantry School detachment, and placed on detached service with headquarters and Headquarters company, Student Training regiment.

Ticklers By George

"The boss must be in a playful mood today—Charlie went in to ask for a raise!"

Johnson Says U.S. Defense 'Strong'

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Johnson said today that national defense is stronger than ever, before in our peacetime history.

He declared the country is spending more on preparedness and at the same time getting more for its money than ever before.

To Be Stronger
"Next year we will get even more by way of preparedness out of every dollar appropriated than we are getting now," he added in a speech prepared for delivery to the Reserve Officers Association.

"With your continued help," Johnson told the association, "we will harvest a rich crop in terms of adequate defense. We shall achieve our goal of peace through strength."

The defense chief advocated parity between the armed services in the procurement and training of junior officers for the reserve and regular establishments.

He expressed hope that "rights and privileges now available in the Navy will be extended to the Army and Air Force as well. This apparently was a reference to the Holloway plan, under which the Navy pays all expenses of between 8,000 and 10,000 college students who agree to accept a tour of active duty on graduation and to participate in the Organized Navy Reserve if they do not remain on active duty after this tour. The Navy gets more officers from this source than from the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Johnson said the reserve program is hampered by a lack of sufficient training facilities. For this reason, he continued, the Defense Department is supporting a national defense reserve facilities bill.

Enlistments Urged
The secretary urged members of the Reserve Officers Association to encourage young men to participate in the national defense program.

"We have ever growing needs for the capable enlisted men who make the planes fly, the ships sail and the guns roll," he said. "Our ranks of our reserves, too, are not full. With the exception of the National Guard of the Army and Air Force, which are up to strength, there are places in the reserves for thousands of young men in the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force."

Reenlist for Six Years

Five enlisted men of the 121st Evacuation hospital took short discharges last week to reenlist for six years. It was announced by unit officials. They were Sgts. Robert Howington and Maro A. Rondeau, Cpl. Arthur G. Wenzel, Pfc. John H. Taylor and Pvt. Edward W. Wolfe.

Program Slated For Jewish Gls

Fort Benning Jewish personnel will participate in one of the best-organized welfare programs when national Jewish Welfare League officials sponsor a weekend program in Atlanta, Ga., on July 8 and 9. Leon Goldberg, area director of the Armed Services division of the National Jewish Welfare League, said this week that officials were making arrangements for a well-rounded cultural, religious and recreational program for the special weekend. He also said that military personnel would be guests of honor. During the festivities, Mr. Goldberg said, Chaplain Kalman LeVitan of Keeler airforce base Miss., the only full-time Jewish chaplain in the Third army area would direct a special chaplain's hour for visiting troops. Also planned for the two-day meeting is a brunch, a get-together with young ladies from religious and recreational pro-

Cpl. Moore Gets Medal
Cpl. Robert R. Moore, 121st Evacuation hospital, was presented the Bronze Star medal last Friday for "action in the European theater of operations in 1944." The presentation was made by Lt. Col. James Rice, hospital commander. The Atlanta area and a swimming party. Officials of the Infantry Center said, however, that personnel wishing to attend the weekend meeting must furnish their own transportation.

Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, and Lt. Col. Allan C. Cory, Infantry Center exchange officer, made the announcement that revealed plans for the proposed building.

The two officials, in addition, warned that the request for funds is the only stage thus far conceived in the proposal, and even that hasn't been completed. They said details concerning architecture had not been decided upon.

To Be Permanent Building
According to Colonel Cory, the building, if it is approved by army officials, will be a permanent L-shaped brick structure housing all concessions in the present vicinity of the PX. He said this would include a jewelry shop, shoe repair, barber shop, dry cleaning plant and tailor shop.

He also said a proposal would be made to incorporate a newer and better cafeteria in the new one-story building.

Floor space in the building would increase present PX operating space by about 35 per cent. Also, the corner of the L-building would be of two-story construction, permitting room for complete PX administrative offices.

Officials, however, have not even considered the fate of the old building in which the present cafeteria and PX offices are housed. Colonel Cory said that was a "mute question."

Proposals Discussed

On the basis that architectural plans haven't been drawn, Colonel Cory hesitated on giving definite plans for the new building. He did, however, discuss the following proposals that have been discussed by officials:

1. The new building, which will be almost twice as large as the present structure, will enable exchange officials to stock more items heretofore not sold in the present store.

2. Purchasers would work on a self-service basis.

3. Lighting, display counters and floors will be of the most modern type and construction.

Colonel Cory explained a new, larger PX would "definitely centralize" buying activities in the post, thereby enabling a consumer to shop in one block instead of walking or driving for several blocks.

A large parking area will be constructed in the open part of the L-shaped building.

Belgians Arrive For 3-Day Visit

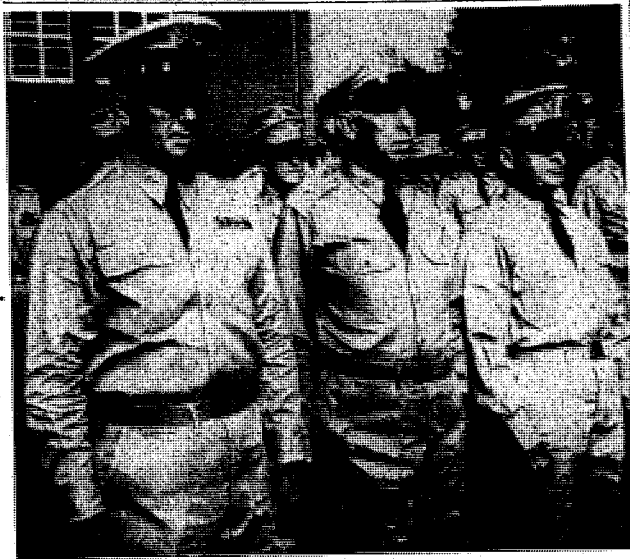

Five top-ranking Belgian officers arrived here yesterday to begin a three-day inspection of Infantry Center training facilities and troop units.

Included in the group will be Maj. Gen. Georges Louis Beer-naerts, deputy chief of staff of the Belgian army; Maj. Gen. O. L. D. Gierst, general staff officer; Col. Baron Jacques de Dixmude; Col. Leon M. P. O. Velghe, adjutant general of the Brussels army, and Lt. Col. Maurice Poncelet, one of the commanders of the Belgian army corps at Weiden, Germany.

Fort Benning officials said the group has toured Fort Monroe, Va. and Fort Eustis, Va. After leaving the Infantry Center, they are expected to go to Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Riley, Kans., Fort Leavenworth, Kans., Fort Knox, Ky., and the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

Although a definite itinerary hasn't been set for the officers' visit, Infantry School officials reported the group would see training of airborne troops and a firepower demonstration today. They also are slated to witness training by the Third Infantry division and Infantry School departments.

They will leave Saturday afternoon.

Colonel Nichols Retires; 1,200 Reservists Honored With Ceremony In Training Here

A short, twinkling-eyed army officer said goodbye last week at Fort Benning to his beloved profession of more than 32 years. Col. Joseph A. Nichols, former acting Infantry Center chief of staff and management officer, was retired from active military service at Stillwell field during a retreat parade last Friday.

The 56-year old colonel was escorted to the receiving stand by a color guard and guidon bearers from the 15th Infantry regiment. Standing at attention in massed formation across the west side of the parade field were more than 1,300 troops of the regiment.

At the reviewing stand, Colonel Nichols heard Lt. Corbin Davis, assistant S-2 of the regiment, proclaim his retirement and read a Third Army Certificate of Achievement. Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander, presented the retiring officer with the certificate and his personal congratulations.

Flanked by an entourage of Fort Benning's highest-ranking officers, Colonel Nichols stood proudly while the expertly-drilled troops passed in review.

Following the ceremonies, scores of friends and well-wishers congratulated the officer on his retirement. Lon Gammage, president of the Columbus Exchange club, Brig. Gen. George M. Badger (ret.), former treasurer of the United States Military academy who is now living in Columbus, and H. F. Amos, Jr., assistant to the executive director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, welcomed Colonel Nichols as a citizen of Columbus. The retiring officer will retire here with his family.

Colonel Nichols entered the army in 1917, when he received a commission in the cavalry. He served in the Cavalry, the Citadel, Charleston, S. C. After transferring to the infantry, he served in various assignments throughout the United States, China and Europe.

Colonel Nichols is a graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., the Infantry School, and the Cavalry School, Fort Bliss, Tex.

Enlisted Reserve Corps Ends Summer Training

The first cycle of the summer training for members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps ended with a graduation ceremony held last Saturday in the Lawson Airforce base area.

Lt. Col. Philip S. Greene, Second battalion commander, 15th Infantry regiment, presented each man with a certificate showing that he has successfully completed the training period. He complimented the group for its "fine attention to duty and hard work" while here.

More than 1,200 officers and enlisted men from 15 Third Army reserve units arrived at the Infantry Center this week to begin a six-week training cycle, and an additional 150 civilian component officers will arrive next week for a similar training period.

The following types of units will be represented here during that time: the 97th Infantry division (reserve), two medical units, one ordnance unit, four quartermaster units, one station complement unit, three transportation units, one judge advocate officers group and one military intelligence group.

Seventy-five infantry officers and 75 military intelligence officers will arrive July 16 to take part in a short training course here.

Glider Takes Troops Awol

An airforce G-15A glider, loaded with 15 Fort Benning paratroopers, went awol last week and ended up in a cornfield.

During a routine training flight, the glider's towline became entangled in the tall surfaces of the towplane, a large C-119 troop carrier.

To avert disaster, the glider pilot, Lt. Theodore MacMillan, freed his plane 10 miles from the designated landing area. Result: an embarrassed glider with constriks sticking through the fabric nose, but no injuries.

British Officers End Post Tour

Britain's airforce and infantry representative in the United States, Col. R. C. Lewthwaite, and four fellow officers left Fort Benning this week after a seven-day visit.

Colonel Lewthwaite was accompanied here by Col. C. C. Wood, Maj. R. B. Storey, Maj. R. E. Ward and Maj. J. C. G. Moon. They visited all Infantry School departments, saw paratroopers in training and witnessed the firing of 57 mm and 75 mm recoil rifles at Patton range and a rifle company in attack at Brown ridge.

During his tour, Colonel Lewthwaite held conferences with Army Field Forces board No. 3 officials regarding the development of new equipment.

EM Urged to Try For Advancements

Fort Benning enlisted men are not taking advantage of the opportunity to apply for promotion examinations in their career field MOS, according to Infantry Center Examining and Computing agency officials.

Should apply for them, officials said.

Company and similar unit commanders have been urged to encourage eligible applicants to submit their applications as soon as possible after the opening dates. Such applications should be processed and forwarded as soon as possible after receipt, authorities stated.

Opening and closing dates for the five career fields are Food Service, opens June 13, closes Aug. 11; Construction Engineering, opens June 19, closes Aug. 20; Infantry, opens June 20, closes Aug. 18; Armored Cavalry, opens June 27, closes Aug. 28; and Artillery, opens June 30, closes Sept. 8.

TIS Quarterly Subscriber Roster Mounts to 6,000

A 100 percent increase in circulation of the Infantry School Quarterly since October 1949 was reported this week by Maj. John W. Baumgartner, editor.

Circulation amounted to 6,000 from about 3,000 last October. In one week ending June 23, 261 new subscriptions were received.

"The increase has been pretty well distributed throughout the army," Major Baumgartner said. "The National Guard, Organized Reserve Corps, and units of the regular army have all responded to our recent advertising program."

The Third battalion of the 15th Infantry regiment has more subscribers than any equivalent unit in the army, while the 26th Infantry regiment of the First Infantry division has the greatest number of officer subscribers.

Bulk orders from National Guard units played a big part in boosting the subscription. Major Baumgartner said: "The 31st division of the Alabama-Mississippi National Guard each ordered 150 subscriptions. The Ohio National Guard ordered 125 and the Maryland National Guard 100."

Subscriptions from allied nations make up a notable part of the list. "In fact," Major Baumgartner said, "our mailing list reads like a world atlas."

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

EDITOR'S NOTE: Cpl. Eugene Rehbolz, Soldier of the Week, was undergoing training in the field at the time this story was written and was not available for a photograph.

Devotion to duty, despite obstacles, plus an uncompromising effort to attain success are the qualities outstanding in Cpl. Eugene Rehbolz, Soldier of the Week.

Corporal Rehbolz, who graduated from the Third Army Food Service School as top man in May of this year, was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters company, Second battalion, 39th Infantry regiment, as dining steward.

Assuming duties as chief of a dining hall was nothing new for Rehbolz. Prior to entering the army in 1942, he accumulated more than 15 years experience as chief and kitchen commander with the Star Hotel chain. But on the other hand, Rehbolz was faced with the problem of putting his new dining hall into operation with inadequately trained personnel.

SOON AFTER HE BEGAN reorganizing the dining operations, Rehbolz was told by his commanding officer that Third Army officials would conduct a complete inspection of dining facilities. As a result of the inspection, Third Army officials awarded the dining hall a superior rating.

Rehbolz recently faced another test when Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, Third Infantry division commander, inspected the battalion and stopped in the dining hall for a noon meal. Unit officials reported that General Clarkson was more than pleased with the excellence of the food.

Corporal Rehbolz reenlisted in the army in 1946, after having returned to civilian life following his discharge at the end of the war. During World War II, he took part in five major European combat campaigns.

Cpl. Pleasner A. McCarver went to the 537th Quartermaster laundry company. Cpl. Joseph A. Carpenter to the 20th Quartermaster Subsistence Supply company.

THE DOCTOR HAS A FAMILY BY EVELYN BARKINS PELLEGRINI & CUDAHY, PUBLISHERS By ALLEN L. MULLIKIN

The Doctor Has A Family and the doctor's wife has a book. Evelyn Barkins gives credit where it is due in her dedication, "To my husband, without whose wholehearted cooperation there would have been neither family nor book."

Well enconced with her brood of three, the author fires her next volley of level-headedness at progressive education. Lizzie, the oldest child, must leave the fold and face the pack. To anything a visit to the teacher reveals that the child is doing extremely well in crackers and milk. Knowing full well that Lizzie had learned to eat at much earlier than school age, the mother fondly dubs the new system as retrogressive education.

By this time George, the third man, has learned not to yowl to be fed in the middle of the night. The Barkinses stick to the idea that babies should be taught to eat at some regular hour other than 2 a.m. In defiance of the psychologists, the author sticks to the idea that babies sometimes cry without reason. She has the revolutionary idea that babies are no smart practice that parents should not be slaves.

The growth of the children sets Mrs. Barkins off on some house hunting that is the least fun of the whole book. It may be that light reading on the subject got heavy after the Blandings's affair.

A discussion of suburbanitis is inevitable when the doctor's family moves from the city apartment. Looking straight ahead as usual Mrs. Barkins prescribes lawn-mowing and snow-shoveling as better blood-warmers than cocktail parties.

In the problem of housewife plus career Evelyn Barkins proved her point by getting published, and her house is probably neat as a pin.

The affair starts at 8:30 a.m.

Golfers and golfing fans will be treated to some of the finest divot digging in the southeast July 16-16, when the Third Army golf tournament takes place at the Benning Country Club links. Complete information about the tourney is contained in a story in this section, but just in case you've missed the tale, let this serve as notice. Fort Benning will be sending 32 of its stalwarts into the fray to pick up the championship honors.

The post baseball league is, of course, still putting out a game a day, and two a day on Wednesday and Sunday, for the entertainment of too few fans. This month should wind up the baseball league and give the league winning team time to recuperate before the Third Army tournament Aug. 8-11.

With all these sporting events going on this month, Fort Benning personnel are in the enviable position of having no available time for off-post activities. Entertainment begins at home, and we've really got it.

Strictly on the Side

The all-star vote are all in and as everyone prophesied, flashy George Kell, Detroit's hard-hitting third baseman was the favorite of the masses. He topped the vote-getting with an impressive 1,132,954 votes, almost 100,000 more than second-place winner Jackie Robinson. The impressive angle to the voting for individuals to represent their leagues in the annual all-star game to be held July 11 is the fact that over 3,000,000 fans took time out to write the sponsors of the classic and let their choices be known.

In the American League, Walt Dropo, the Boston Red Sox giant first-baseman was named to that position. Dropo has a .348 batting average to date. Second base will be filled by another Red Sox stalwart, Bobby Doerr, with a .284 percentage. Kell, of course, is at third with his league-leading .372 average. The Yankees' Phil Kessel fills the shortstop position. He's batting .371 at this point. Ted Williams of Boston, Hoot Evers of Detroit and Cleveland's Larry Doby will fill the outfield slot. Williams is currently batting .326. Evers has a .351 average and Doby is just one-thousandth of a point off league-leading Kell's percentage with .371. Earl Berra, New York's other representative will catch for the American league stars. Berra bats .381 at the present time.

The St. Louis Cardinals' Stan Musial is at first base for the National League, with a .351 batting average. Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger star, is at second with a .378, and the Phillie's Willie Jones will hold down the hot corner with a .302 mark. Shortstop Marty Marion of the Cards will be at that position with a .261 average. Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .332, Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, .278, and Hank Sauer, Chicago, .307, will be in the outfield for the Senior league. Brooklyn's Roy Campanella will catch for the Nationals. He holds a .311 batting average.

Third Army Links Teams Swing Into Action Monday

The finest golfers in the Third Army area will be on hand July 10-16 to compete in the annual Third Army championship tournament to be held at the Fort Benning Country Club links.

Benning will be represented by the 16 lowest score finalists in the Infantry Center tournament held at the post links last week. CWO Devert Moore will lead the local aggregation into the battle for championship honors.

FOUR SEPARATE CLASSES
The divot diggers will be struggling for top honors in four championship classes. An individual champion will be determined by low medal score for 72 holes of play. In the event of a tie, an additional 18 holes will be played. Upon completion of the first 36 holes, the 24 entrants will be divided into three divisions and play 36 holes for the championship of their respective flight.

Chutists Rack Up 12th League Win

The three-hit pitching and the big bats of the Student training regiment's Airborne battalion were too much for the Infantry School detachment Troopers who scored first in their 12th victory in the post league.

The Troopers scored first in the game when Ralph Terry singled, moved to third on the first of Lynn Carney's four hits. The half with the lowest scores will continue to play on the championship. The other half will play 36 additional holes to determine the winner and runner-up of their division.

MEDAL PLAY FOR WOMEN
A woman's champion will be determined by low medal score for 72 holes, and as in the case of the individual and senior champion in case of a tie, an additional 18 holes will be played. The team championship will be decided by adding the five lowest scores for 72 holes for each six-man team. The team with the lowest total medal score will be declared the championship team in the Third Army area. In the event of a tie for first or second place, the five-man teams involved will play an additional nine holes of medal play.

Individuals with the six lowest medal scores in the individual championship competition and those contestants on active duty with the four lowest medal scores in the senior championship race will represent the Third Army in the all-army tournament to be held Aug. 6-12 at Fort Knox, Ky.

The 12-man team to represent the Department of the Army in the inter-service golf tournament Aug. 14-19 at Fort Benning will be selected at the all-army tournament.

United States Golf association rules and local rules of the Fort Benning golf club, when not in conflict with USGA rules, will govern all play in the Third Army championship tournament. The Third Army golf committee will make final decisions on all matters concerning rules and conduct of play.

Moore Wins Golf Crown

Finishes 72-Hole Grind Three Over Par

The Infantry Center golf championship crown went to CWO Devert Moore last Friday when he fired a 72 in the final round of the four-day tournament held at the Fort Benning Country Club links.

Col. Daniel P. Buckland walked off with the tiara in the Senior division stroke off with a total of 291 just three strokes above par for the course. In the final round of play, he shot a 38 on the way out and a two-under-par 34 for the last nine. In the first three rounds of competition, Moore posted scores of 73 to keep himself among the leaders.

This year's win marks the fourth championship in the athletic warrant officer's golfing career. In 1946 and 1947, the slim golfer was the titlist of the Pacific side of the Canal Zone. He also won the championship of the Republic of Panama and the Canal Zone in 1947. In 1948, the Fort Benning Officers' club championship crown was fitted to Moore's brow. In 1949, he tied for first place in the Infantry Center tournament, a duel lost in the playoff to John Henion, fifth place finalist in this year's scramble.

Maj. Lawson Magruder took second place honors in 1949 week's tourney by posting a 72 final round of play to bring his total for the 72 holes to 294, just one stroke ahead of third place winner Maj. Arthur Gottlieb.

In the fight for championship honors in the three flights of the Infantry Center tourney, Lt. Col. Miller took the first flight title with a 180 total for 72 holes. Runner-up CWO E. McDowell trailed the leader with a 185.

Maj. John Tomlin took over first place position in the second flight with a 158 score. Runner-up honors were taken by Maj. Shelby Satterfield with a 166 total.

A 172 total put Capt. Robert Barber in first place in the third flight, while second place honors went to Lt. Col. Stanley Partridge, who posted 183 for the 36-hole grind.

Scores posted in the Infantry Center tournament were as follows:

Fast Start Gives Medic Nine Win Over Lawsonites

A hard-hitting Medic squad tagged Lawson Airforce by a right-hander Russ Sanders for five big runs in the first inning and cruised to a 10-4 victory at Gowdy field last Friday night.

Sanders was shelled hard during the first six stanzas of the game, but settled down to pitch hitless ball for the last three innings.

John Graves, right-handed slants artist, went the route for the Medic, allowing the airman only four safeties and slipping three strikes past nine batters.

The Medic amassed 13 hits off the offerings of Sanders. Singles by Bob Hoffman, Gordon Weathers and Les Wargo, a double by Harris, a walk and two errors by Lawson gave the Medic their five initial-inning tallies.

The Medic scored again in the top half of the third when Wargo slapped a double just inside the third-base line and trotted home on Steve Cruce's sharp single to left-center.

The Lawsonites put a dent in the scoring column in the last half of the third when Carl Runney reached first on an error, moved around to third while Garrett McBride and Sanders were being tossed out at first, and scored on Dick Wachtel's single to center, the first hit of the contest off Graves.

The Medic picked up another counter in the fourth without the benefit of a hit, and added two more in the fifth on singles by Cruce and Graves and a long triple to the left-field fence by Hoffman.

Sanders' single in the fifth with the sacks loaded scored two Lawson runners and whittled the Medic's lead to 9-3.

Both teams chalked up single runs in the sixth to end the scoring for the contest.

Wargo's two hits in three tries topped the hitting efforts of the Medic, while Catcher Mack Cox accounted for exactly 50 percent of Lawson's bingles by getting two one-baggers in four trips to the plate.

BRINGIN' HOME THE BACON... That big smile on the face of Toni Pagano is caused by the trophies she won at the recent Third Army tennis tournament held at Fort Bragg, N. C. The diminutive Bennigite teamed with E. Saunders to take the doubles title and then fought her way to the runner-up position in singles competition.

Boars Win, 10-4, To Extend String

The surprising Bears of the 30th Infantry regiment continued their victory march last Wednesday night by drubbing the Third-Infantry-division Special Troopers, 10-4, at Gowdy field.

The 30th Infantrymen got off to a fast start in the initial stanza when they touched starter Ed Gody for a double for two singles, good for three counters.

After a 1-1 tie in the Special Troopers' scoreless for the first three stanzas, the Boars added another tally in the last of the third when Bob Troutman reached first on an error by Special Troops Third - Baseman O'ba Hearn and swiped second. A bad-pet by Catcher John Lane permitted him to go to third, and he came in on a wild pitch by Al Rowden, who took over mound chores for Gody in the second.

The Special Troopers broke into the scoring column in the top of the fourth, tallying twice on singles by Sam Fessin and John Lane and a walk by Hearn. The Boars increased their lead to 6-2 by adding single scores in the fourth and fifth stanzas, but the Special Troopers whittled their foe's edge to three runs with a sixth-inning run. In their half of the sixth, the Boars pushed across three more runs by taking advantage of five Special Troops' miscues. The only bingle of the inning was a single by Troutman.

The final counter for the Special Troopers came in the seventh when Picher Rowden completed the circuit on errors by Third-Baseman Paul Towery and Second-Sacker Bill Lynch.

The Boars picked up their last run in the bottom of the eighth when John Cassidy led off with a free ticket to first, went to second on an error by Catcher Lane, raced for third on an outfield fly off the bat of Troutman, and scored when George McDonald hit a roller to short.

Towery's two hits in four trips to the plate increased their lead to 10-4. While Lane and George Hudock picked up two hits apiece for the Special Troopers.

Dragons Swamp 3rd Divarty, 14-2

The 15th Infantry regiment swarmed all over the Third Infantry division Artillerymen and took their eighth victory, 14-2, in the post baseball league Sunday night.

Led by Tiny Kochek who slapped out two singles in five trips to the plate to drive in four runs, the 15th ran away with the game. Ten men batted for the Dragons in the big third inning to add six runs to the score on five hits, one base on balls and three Divarty errors.

Divarty got one run in the first when Kiebs Campbell missed a third strike, but went to first when Catcher E. Savage let the ball get away from him. Big little Ed Powe walked, and Campbell fled home with the first run for the artillerymen on a wild throw to Jack McLeod and G. Bevel, 3440th Area Service Company's blow.

A bad-pet by Catcher John Lane permitted him to go to third, and he came in on a wild pitch by Al Rowden, who took over mound chores for Gody in the second.

The Special Troopers broke into the scoring column in the top of the fourth, tallying twice on singles by Sam Fessin and John Lane and a walk by Hearn. The Boars increased their lead to 6-2 by adding single scores in the fourth and fifth stanzas, but the Special Troopers whittled their foe's edge to three runs with a sixth-inning run. In their half of the sixth, the Boars pushed across three more runs by taking advantage of five Special Troops' miscues. The only bingle of the inning was a single by Troutman.

The final counter for the Special Troopers came in the seventh when Picher Rowden completed the circuit on errors by Third-Baseman Paul Towery and Second-Sacker Bill Lynch.

The Boars picked up their last run in the bottom of the eighth when John Cassidy led off with a free ticket to first, went to second on an error by Catcher Lane, raced for third on an outfield fly off the bat of Troutman, and scored when George McDonald hit a roller to short.

Towery's two hits in four trips to the plate increased their lead to 10-4. While Lane and George Hudock picked up two hits apiece for the Special Troopers.

Dragons Swamp 3rd Divarty, 14-2

The 15th Infantry regiment swarmed all over the Third Infantry division Artillerymen and took their eighth victory, 14-2, in the post baseball league Sunday night.

Led by Tiny Kochek who slapped out two singles in five trips to the plate to drive in four runs, the 15th ran away with the game. Ten men batted for the Dragons in the big third inning to add six runs to the score on five hits, one base on balls and three Divarty errors.

Divarty got one run in the first when Kiebs Campbell missed a third strike, but went to first when Catcher E. Savage let the ball get away from him. Big little Ed Powe walked, and Campbell fled home with the first run for the artillerymen on a wild throw to Jack McLeod and G. Bevel, 3440th Area Service Company's blow.

Troopers Held to One Hit, But Triumph Over Divarty

The league-leading Troopers of the Student Training Regiment-Airborne battalion cashed in on loose fielding by a Third Infantry division artillery nine at Gowdy field last Wednesday afternoon, and marched off the diamond with a 3-1 triumph.

Tony Rashan hurled a neat one-hitter for the Troopers, but nine bobbles by his mates enabled the Troopers to send three runners scampering across the platter.

The artillerymen combed the offerings of right-hander Bob Cronin for five safe blows, but they were unable to score after Andy Hardy romped home to give them a one-run margin in the first.

Rashan shackled the Troopers in the last half of the first, but Joe Smith led off the bottom part of the second with a single to left. An error by Divarty First-Sacker Kleber Campbell permitted him to go to second, and a fly to deep center by Joe Metzger advanced him to third. Smith then trotted home

Cadets Complete Carbine Firing

ROTC students at the summer camp here have completed their carbine firing. Cadet William F. Miller took first place, firing a 192 out of a possible 200. Cadet Sidney E. Williams took second place honors with a 191, and Cadet James E. Sams took a close third with a score of 191. Sams, however, lost to Williams in later competition and will be awarded third place position. These students will be awarded gold, silver and bronze medals, respectively, for their ability. Miller is from North Carolina State, Williams from Georgia Tech, and Sams from A & T College of North Carolina.

Lensmen Arrive To Produce Film

A 16-man motion picture production unit from the New York studio of the Signal Corps' Photographic Center arrived at Fort Benning today to begin production of an anti-aircraft training film.

The picture is the largest production being undertaken by the Signal Corps this summer, according to Capt. John T. Quick, production manager with the unit.

"Actors for the production will be selected from the Third Infantry division," Captain Quick said. "At one time or another practically all elements of the division will be used, along with their equipment, vehicles and weapons."

The film, "Anti-aircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons with Infantry and Armored Divisions," will teach the uses of the automatic weapons battalion in support of infantry and armored divisions.

Written by the Guided Missiles and Anti-aircraft branch of the Artillery School at Fort Bliss, Tex., the film is being produced at Fort Benning in the ideal terrain and complete post facilities, Captain Quick said.

The Training Publications Department of the Infantry School, which co-ordinates activities of the Signal Corps camera units in the production of infantry films here, is assisting in the production of the anti-aircraft film.

Technical adviser for the film will be Maj. R. T. Shugart, executive officer of the Third Anti-aircraft Artillery and Automatic Weapons battalion.

Leading roles will be played by men selected from Major Shugart's battalion. "We get more realistic results in training films when we use soldier actors," Mr. Maguire explained. "They know how to handle the weapons and they speak and act more naturally."

Assigned to 41st FA
Sgt. Adolph Nelson, formerly with the Third Replacement company, has been assigned duties with Headquarters battery, 41st Field Artillery battalion.

Ag Department Is Now Studying Atomic Energy

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Department of Agriculture recently unveiled its largest and most advanced greenhouse in which research will be conducted in the application of atomic energy to plant life and the characteristics of soil. In a joint announcement of the huge research project, the agriculture department and the Atomic Energy Commission said the government hoped for "new and valuable information" from the program.

The greenhouse, located at the Agriculture Department's plant industry station at Beltsville, Md., is equipped with automatic devices and safety chambers to protect personnel handling radioactive materials. Once the actual experiments are under way, only researchers trained in precautionary measures will be admitted.

Research will begin as soon as plant and soil materials can be assembled. Radioactive material will be used as "tracers" to study the plant's mechanism. "By making normal soil nutrients radioactive," the statement said, "researchers will be able to trace the movement of nutrients through the plant and soil."

Research will be conducted in the application of atomic energy to plant life and the characteristics of soil. In a joint announcement of the huge research project, the agriculture department and the Atomic Energy Commission said the government hoped for "new and valuable information" from the program.

The greenhouse, located at the Agriculture Department's plant industry station at Beltsville, Md., is equipped with automatic devices and safety chambers to protect personnel handling radioactive materials. Once the actual experiments are under way, only researchers trained in precautionary measures will be admitted.

Research will begin as soon as plant and soil materials can be assembled. Radioactive material will be used as "tracers" to study the plant's mechanism. "By making normal soil nutrients radioactive," the statement said, "researchers will be able to trace the movement of nutrients through the plant and soil."

Post Cracks Down On Improper Attire

A campaign to correct uniform violations, to begin tonight, has been directed by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burgess, Infantry Center commander.

Military police and courtesy patrols have been instructed to issue delinquency reports on all personnel violating post uniform regulations.

The tightening of regulations came on the heels of an inspection by officials last week authorized as part of the uniform and social activities at the post messes. A report by one official said there were "flagrant violations" of basic uniform regulations.

The bulk of violations has been at baseball games and post clubs. A special services spokesman said personnel have been wearing civilian clothes and improper military uniforms to the events. Courtesy patrols, military police and house committees of messes will make periodic checks of personnel and wear regulations. Officials declared.

At the same time, officials emphasized regulations governing the wearing of the uniform at certain duty and off-duty activities.

The following regulations govern officers' uniforms on-and-off duty. During duty hours, the complete uniform of shirt, trousers and service cap will be of matching material, either cotton or tropical worsted. The belt may be either web or a color similar to the uniform worn, or may be of a material matching the uniform worn. The buckle of the belt will be of polished yellow metal. The shirt will be worn with sleeves at full length and fastened at the cuff. Collar button only will be left unbuttoned. No undershirt will be worn that is visible when the shirt is unbuttoned. The shade of the collar button may be worn with the collar button of the shirt fastened but this item is not required during duty hours.

Officers will wear shoes of the general shade of Army russet leather (may be light or low quarter), and will be either the issue type shoes or of a similar conservative commercial pattern or design. Shoes with sport soles or loafer type shoes are not authorized as part of the uniform during off-duty hours, the uniform will consist of either the tropical worsted or poplin shirt with coat and trousers, service cap or garrison cap, shade 61, with necktie, shade 61. Officers are encouraged to wear the coat when this uniform is worn at social functions in public. The white mess or white dress uniform may be worn when off-duty. Officers on temporary duty who are not required to own tropical worsted may wear the khaki uniform with tie.

Fatigues can be worn at the Officers' Mess only by student officers who are engaged in a rest period between classes. The following are regulations governing uniforms worn by enlisted personnel: During duty hours, cotton khaki shirt, cotton trousers, service cap, shoes (high or low quarter), tan or brown socks, web belt and insignia of grade and arm or service will be worn. Sleeves will be worn at full length and fastened at the cuff. The color button only will be unbuttoned. Issue foot gear

Custer Rd. Terrace Opens on Saturday

The doors of 46 new family quarters will open Saturday in Custer Road Terrace housing project for the first of 600 officers' families slated to move into the $5,500,000 development.

Officials of B. H. Harris Company, rental agents for the project, said about 200 Infantry Center officers have made applications for occupancy in the new family units.

A spokesman for the Jordan company, builders of the huge development, said another 50 units would be opened in two weeks. He said building engineers have promised group occupancy every 10 days or two weeks until the 600-unit project is completely occupied.

Meanwhile, post billeting officials issued a slight change in the priority categories previously announced. The change, however, is not expected to affect greatly original priority assignments.

The present assignment priorities are 1) Medical and Dental corps officers permanently stationed here; 2) permanently assigned officers living in Batts, the Park Homes and Block 23 duplexes and 32-similarly-styled apartments in two-story buildings.

Forty one-family, two-bedroom houses with car ports will rent for $85 per month, while 60 single-family, three-bedroom houses with car ports will rent for $95 per month.

Located on specially-engineered streets, the new project will incorporate the newest types of household conveniences for tenements. It is said to be one of the most modern projects of its type.

TIS Quarterly Subscriptions Hit New Peak

Bulk orders from the Pacific Fleet Marine Corps and the Pennsylvania National Guard gave the Infantry School Quarterly a record week for new subscriptions and sent circulation soaring to an all-time high of 7,134, according to statistics this week by Maj. John W. Baumgartner, editor.

Other bulk orders and individual subscriptions brought the magazine's circulation to 11,334 and gave the magazine a 133 percent increase over the 5,000 subscriptions of last October.

The Pacific Leathernecks ordered 485 subscriptions to the official Doughboy magazine, published every three months by the Infantry School. Their order was the biggest ever received, Major Baumgartner said.

In the same week, ending July 1, 1,200 Pennsylvania National Guard took second highest honors for bulk orders with a request for 240 copies. "We're already 600 copies oversold on the July issue and will have to go into a second print run," Major Baumgartner said.

THE FIGHTING THIRD (1)

Famed Can Do Regiment Has Outstanding Record

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on units of the Third Infantry division.

The 15th Infantry regiment, commanded by Col. Dennis M. Moore, is the proud possessor of one of the finest combat records of any regiment in the army today.

One of three infantry regiments within the Third Infantry division, the 15th, also known as the Can Do regiment, was founded on May 4, 1813, as a volunteer organization. Its first action came during the War of 1812, when it participated in the capture of Fort George, Canada.

The regiment next saw action in the Mexican war. In March, 1847, it made the first of a long string of amphibious landings, when, as a part of General Winfield Scott's punitive expedition, it stormed ashore at Vera Cruz and proceeded overland to Mexico City.

DURING THE CIVIL WAR, the regiment was incorporated into the Regular Army and took part in the battles for Murfreesboro, Atlanta and Chattanooga. After the war, it served in Alabama, Missouri, Colorado and the Department of Dakota, where it fought the Indians. The 15th played only a small part in the Spanish-American war, confining its action to quelling riots and other disturbances in Cuba. In the fall of 1899, it was returned to the States, and was divided into small units scattered throughout the Northwest.

When the Boxer rebellion flared up in China, the First Battalion was dispatched to Tientsin, but before the troops arrived, the rebellion was quieted, so no official record of the campaign, where it remained until 1902.

Following a period of relative inactivity, the entire regiment was sent to China in 1912, and remained there until 1918.

RETURNING TO THE U. S. in 1918, the regiment remained a separate unit for a year. Then, in 1940, personnel of the Third Battalion, Fourth Infantry regiment, joined the 15th, which was incorporated into the Third division.

On Oct. 22, 1942, the regiment was finally dispatched to Tientsin, where it remained until 1902.

On June 5, 1944, Rome, first Axis capital to fall to Allied troops, was occupied by the 15th. For a short time, the 15th division garrisoned the city while the Fifth and Eighth divisions continued their pursuit of the Germans to the North.

Returning to its training area near Pozzouli, the 15th continued its amphibious training and in August conditioning, and early in September, it was ordered to France. Landing at San Tropez.

After securing a beachhead, the 15th drove west, cutting head escape from Marseilles and sealing the fate of the German garrison there. Moving north, it pursued the German 19th Army Capentaris and Montclair.

THE BEGINNING OF THE NEW YEAR and the 15th taking amphibious training at Naples. On Jan. 22, the regiment commander of the First French Army awarded the entire division the Croix de Guerre.

15th captured Nürnberg, and continued deep into the heart of the Hitler stronghold. On May 6, the American Sixth Army group accepted the unconditional surrender of the German forces in Southern Austria, and the war was virtually over for the 15th.

Members of the 15th Infantry received the Medal of Honor. Officials say this record might be based on the spirit that has been prevalent in the 15th. That spirit is perhaps best typified by its motto: "Can Do."

NEXT WEEK: THE 30TH INFANTRY REGIMENT.

Army Leaders

Asset to Nation, General Asserts

Being a good leader in the army is a direct contribution to the progress of the nation, Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, deputy commander of Third Army, said here recently.

The 57-year old officer was addressing more than 200 graduates of associate basic infantry officers' class No. 5.

General Mueller emphasized development of the more important qualities of leadership, underlining the fact that in no other armed service is leadership more exacting than in the infantry.

Before the graduation address, Maj. Gen. F. W. Clark, Third Infantry division commander, made opening remarks. He also introduced General Mueller.

ROTC Cadets See Problem

Medical and dental Reserve Officers' Training Corps cadets saw a demonstration put on by members of the Third Medical Battalion showing the various duties of a medical unit in the army.

Under the direction of Maj. Joseph K. Bayne, Third Medical Battalion commander, the cadets saw the treatment and evacuation of casualties from the time they were wounded until their evacuation from the field clearing station.

In taking part in the demonstration with the 30th Infantry regiment's Medical Company, which provided aid men, litter squads, battalion aid stations and a regimental collecting station. After viewing the demonstration, many cadets requested that they be allowed to remain in the field for the remainder of the three-day problem then in progress.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

Is Unique in Army Annals Wac Sue Brown's Family

M-Sgt. Berlin C. Hodges, Soldier of the Week, has for more than a year single-handedly sustained administrative operations in the Eighth company of the Student Training Regiment.

During the past several weeks, Sergeant Hodges has been beset with the problem of processing two student classes, one starting training and the other finishing lengthy courses.

Early last month, a motor repairman's class graduated and which necessitated the following processing by Sergeant Hodges:

- 1. Arranging for orders returning each student to his home station.
2. Determining type of travel for each student.
3. Scheduling pay periods for outgoing students.
4. Adjusting morning reports when students departed.
5. Proper clearing students with each agency on the post.
6. Arranging for transportation to the student's next post.

In matters of days, the entire class, which consisted of more than 20 students, was processed, cleared and transported from the post.

The 38-year old sergeant's administrative problems clouded the following week when a class of 36 motor maintenance students arrived at the Infantry School to begin studies in a new course.

During their processing period, the 19-year army veteran was required to:

- 1. Orient all students in various administrative forms to be filled out.
2. Enter details in the morning report.
3. Dispatch all National Guard students to the hospital for a special medical examination.
4. Arrange for special transportation.
5. Arrange for the pick-up of baggage shipped in by the incoming students.
6. Prepare housing and dining facilities.
7. Arrange for overdue pay or extra monies due students.

The expediency and efficiency in which Sergeant Hodges handled the administrative tasks was said to be invaluable.

A week later, an Infantry school Airborne department pathfinder class was also processed for graduation, and students were prepared for shipment back to their home stations.

One of Sergeant Hodges' unit officers said, "We depend entirely on the sergeant for handling this company. We're the ones that ask questions."

M-SGT. BERLIN C. HODGES Soldier Of The Week

THEY TAKE TO SOLDIERING

Administrative Operations Sustained Single-Handedly

It's highly unlikely that anyone with the possible exception of Napoleon's great-great-grandson will dispute the fact that the Wacs are a family in Statesville, N.C. The Clarence Browns, that is.

This is the story, as it was unraveled this week.

Pert, black-haired Sue Brown reported to the Infantry Center recently as an immunization nurse at Despensary A. She's a Wac private.

To the other girls in Fort Benning's Wac detachment, it seemed unusual that 22-year old Sue who could pass for the glamour girl of a college campus, should take to soldiering as hard as she takes to water. Here it was the first part of July, and Sue had been in the Army only since January.

Asked many of the fellow Wacs: "You seem to get along with Army work very well. And you know these regulations backwards. Why?"

IT WAS IN HER CHARACTERISTIC MOOD of bashful reticence, reminded her very well that she should know a lot about the Army.

It's likely that some of the girls in the detachment thought Sue was attempting to portray the intellectual who catches on fast.

But here's what the girls did not know: 1. Sue's father is M-Sgt. Clarence Brown of Fort Benning. 2. Her 25-year old brother is Pfc. Ben Brown of Fort Dix. 3. Her 20-year old brother is Pfc. Clifford Brown of Fort Hood. 4. Her 18-year old brother is Kenneth Brown of Statesville, N.C., who has told an Army recruiter he's going to join right after high school graduation next year.

IT WAS SURPRISING to everyone within earshot that such a family existed. On the other hand, it wasn't too surprising that Sue should be where she is. Sue made her Army "debut" in 1928 when she was born at Fort Bragg, N.C. Several years later, her 47-year old nurse sergeant-father was transferred, family and all, to Fort Devens, Mass., for new duty.

Through the years, Sue has seen just about everything there is to see in the Army. Like most youngsters, she loved parades and the thrilling cadence of martial music. (She admits today, however, that dancing in the Wacs' ballroom was much fun as watching.)

Often Sue made childish attempts to get a rifle range and watch firing matches, but authorities, because of her age, kept her off the ranges.

Eventually, Sue returned to her birth place Fort Bragg. It was there that she really got to know the Army.

Before coming into the Army, Sue was fortunate enough to have gained two years' nurse training at the H. F. Long hospital, Statesville, and one year of pre-medical training at Mitchell college, which is operated by the hospital.

In August, she hopes to receive the orders to go to Walter Reed hospital in Washington when Sue came along, it looked as though the record would be training for a year.

A Distinguished Privilege

The day we signed up with Uncle Sam as a soldier, we were accorded a distinguished privilege not afforded our civilian countrymen. At that time, we were issued our badge of membership in the honorable profession of arms. This mark of distinction is our uniform.

The American people, joined by others the world over, look with pride upon us as members of the American Army. They gain a sense of security when they see a United States Army soldier who looks like a soldier. There is an old civilian expression to the effect that "Clothes make the man." It simply indicates that a man who is neat and properly dressed displays a well ordered mind, seems to know his business, and apparently is on the right road to success. Fine. Let's apply that to the military.

When anyone sees us in uniform, he can tell whether or not we take pride in ourselves and our profession. He knows from our bearing whether or not we have the benefits of good leadership. He knows from our mental alertness whether or not we have received good training. Above all, he knows from the way we wear our uniform whether or not we have individual pride and self-respect.

Pride and self-respect are two of the most powerful and far-reaching attributes of a good soldier. In the end result, they are a soldier's greatest strength when the battle chips are down. Is it any wonder then that the way an officer or enlisted man wears his uniform is a good indication of what type of soldier he is?

No soldier can feel the pride in his service that we strive to develop unless he knows himself how to look the part of a good soldier. The uniform is supposed to enhance the appearance and standing of the wearer. It will do so only to the extent that it is well designed, clean, neatly pressed and well fitted. There is nothing glamorous about a soiled, rumpled, ill-fitting uniform. But there is a point we have omitted here, which is even more important, of which we should not have to be reminded. But unfortunately, we do. That is, that we wear the proper uniform.

Elsewhere in The Bayonet today, there is an article on the proper wearing of the uniform. It will pay dividends to read it and to abide by it. Uniform regulations are simple. They make good sense. They should leave no doubt in the minds of the reader as to what is required of him to conform to accepted standards of military and civilian dress. We are soldiers twenty-four hours a day. That means we are under contract to Uncle Sam on-duty and off-duty. An officer or enlisted man who has pride will remember that he is a round-the-clock soldier. When he is off-duty, he will remember that he still should set the standard for the proper wearing of his clothing.

There is a prescribed military uniform for fatigue, another for off-duty dress and another for informal wear during normal working hours. There are periods when we are authorized to wear athletic clothes, and, off-duty, we all should know the requirements of good taste and custom for what, when, where and how to appear formally and informally. "There is a time and place for everything" is a well-worn phrase, equally applicable to the wearing of clothes.

Courtesy and custom dictate what we should wear in our officer's clubs, NCO clubs, athletic events, various types of entertainment and social gatherings. Post regulations define beyond appropriate occasions. Yet, we still find a minority of military men who defy or deliberately neglect these courtesies, customs and requirements to the detriment of not only themselves but associates. The dignity of the uniform and the respect due it are best preserved when we so conduct ourselves as never to cast discredit upon it. The easiest way to discredit the uniform and ourselves is to wear it improperly.

A soldier who cannot follow the simple requirements of uniform regulations obviously is a poor combat risk. He would be the first to let his buddies down by failing to follow orders. Since we mirror ourselves in our own reflective actions, let's pick up the cadence and get in step. Let's prove to the alert American public, and all with whom we come in contact, that Fort Benning turns out the best Infantrymen in the world. Then the public readily may realize a justifiable pride in us and our soldiering ability by the mute evidence of every officer and soldier among us that we show respect for our uniform by wearing it properly.

The basic tactical principle involved is simple. It's merely to wear the uniform the way that Uncle Sam prescribes. To less is an insult to ourselves and our countrymen. What's worse, it's a slur on the memories of the many men who have died in the American Army uniform to give us the right to wear it proud.

Army Issues Draft Call For 20,000 Men

The Defense Department has ordered the immediate drafting of 20,000 men for the Army. Meanwhile, recruiting stations throughout the U. S. reported an upsurge in inquiries, from young men of draft age; that is, between 19 and 26. Draft Boards said they were ready to begin the task of inductions immediately.

The North Koreans were beginning to feel the pinch of American military might this week as U. S. tanks and infantrymen began pouring into South Korea. On the West Coast, the Marines were reported preparing to set sail for the Far East to provide fresh reinforcements for General MacArthur's other ground and air troops.

Combat units in the six Army areas of the U. S. were said to have received alert orders for shipment to the troubled Far East, but no unit designations have been revealed by the Defense Department or any Army Headquarters, with the exception of the Second Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash., whose commanding general has cancelled all leaves and recalled all officers and men away from the post.

An eye-witness account from Korea claimed that North Koreans were guilty of atrocities against U. S. soldiers. A lieutenant who broke out of a trap near the battle front reported that seven GIs who surrendered to the aggressor forces were shot down by machinegun fire.

Let's Overcome Those Blots and Blemishes

BY CHAPLAIN WILLIAM E. PAUL, JR.
Ever have trouble with blots and blemishes? Not the kind that skin specialists handle, but the kind that St. Peter talks about in his Second Letter in the New Testament? Every one of us has trouble with such people. This is the way in which Peter speaks of them: "Bold and wilful, . . . like irrational animals, creatures of instinct, born to be caught and killed, reveling in matters of which they are ignorant, . . . suffering wrong for their wrong-doing. They are blots and blemishes, reveling in their dissipation, carousing with you. They entice unstable souls. They have their hearts trained in greed. Forsaking the right way they have gone astray. . . . These are waterless springs and mists driven by a storm. . . ."

Pretty strong language, to be sure, but undeniably true. St. Peter knew such people, and so do you and I. They are the blots and blemishes that fill the pages of our newspapers with tales of divorce, murder, theft, kidnapping, treason and the rest. And they are by no means known to you and me through the newspapers alone; in one way or another such people are everywhere around us, not infrequently living close by. Sometimes it is a matter of degree—a neighbor may not be a truly moral person, but he may be spreading the poison of hatred or discrimination, which is the same thing. Another individual may not actually steal someone's watch or money, but he may be robbing another of specific rights, or of his reputation and good name. So that no matter how you slice it, such blots and blemishes are all of a piece.

To Amuse You Today

Lieutenant: "I've been trying to see you all week, sir. When may I have an appointment?"
Colonel: "Make a date with my secretary."
Lieutenant: "I did, sir, and we had a grand time, but I'd still like to talk to you."
The insurance salesman was talking to a friend: He said: "You know, I served in the Navy during World War II."
"You did? Did you get a commission?"
"Now, I just got a straight salary."

After a steady round of medical "shots" the sailor staggered out of sick bay singing: "The object of these injections is to change my complexion, from white to rosy red."
The difference between a sailor and a seabee is that while the sailor is looking for a park bench the seabee builds one.
The editor is looking for the joker who sent this Valentine: Roses are red, violets are blue, Rain on the roof reminds me of you— Drip—drip—drip!

THE BOYS FROM SHARON BY LOUISE FIELD COOPER HARPER & BRO. PUBLISHERS
BY ALLEN L. MULLIKIN
This simple story of the visit of two small boys to the home of their social-worker aunt is embroidered by Miss Cooper into a peit-pattern book that tends to "immense long-handled greenish feather dusters" instead of trees and "purple-brown dark Greek temples" instead of houses. The descriptions are as pretty and as useless as the needle work they resemble. Lucius, 12, and George, 9, are deposited with their aunt Mrs. Harding, while their mother goes to Bermuda for a week to get over pneumonia. Mrs. Harding is a spare woman always in black whose only connections with children have been in soliciting funds for charitable day nurseries during the whooping-cough season and for unwed mothers at other times of the year. This formidable lady has run her household with swift and unemotional efficiency for many years. She is firmly convinced that the advent of two young boys "will not change anything". She was wrong. The boys from Sharon are presented by Miss Cooper as two modern children without the brat tendencies usually expected from such types. The striking feature of these two is their depth of emotion and wordy imaginings that fit the author's style more than they do her characters. The peculiar fascinations of these youngsters are George's passion over a Chinese glass harp that must be hung in just the right place and Lucius's mania for building cathedrals out of old bricks. In the innocent pursuit of their interests the boys ruin disaster upon the Harding domain. Catherine the cook walks off in a huff just before a dinner party, and Tom the gardener packs his wife and his baggage off without a word to anyone. George and Lucius are also drawn into the shadowy love interest that arises between two most ungainly lovers. The unnaturalness of this gawky pair is particularly well suited to Miss Cooper's fastidious, overdrawn style of writing. Tall and shy Edith Howe, an idle girl, does a full length fall for tall and brusque Jacob Miller, a museum curate. The boys become unknown conspirators in the affair that never gets beyond a nearly-missed Sunday afternoon meeting at the side door of the museum. At the end of the week-long visit considerable damage has been done to Mrs. Harding's composure. Edith seems to be hesitantly approaching the full life, and the boys from Sharon are hoping their mother stays well in the future.

Unit's I-E Program Said Commendable

The 999th Armored Field Artillery battalion has instituted an unusual and highly commendable education-program, according to Capt. Edward F. Grady, Infantry Center information and education officer.

The program, inaugurated by Lt. John H. Maddox, battalion information and education officer, consists of several steps. First, all men in the battalion are screened to determine their educational level. Those falling below the fifth grade are then sent to school, during duty hours, to bring their educational level up to the fifth grade. After completion of the course, the men are again tested at the information and education center. If found to have raised their grade to the fifth grade, are presented with certificates.

The 999th is the first organization at Fort Benning to institute such a program, related to the education of the men, but also in improving their everyday training. This program is not the only one connected with education and education in which the men are participating. At present, 28 men from Battery C, whose aptitude is only 67, whose IQ is below 80, and who are taking the adjutant general's course in the army extension school, are participating in the program.

Captain Grady said that the 999th is pioneering in the field of education at Fort Benning, and that he hopes other units would follow their lead.

Former Nurses Eligible For RA Commissions

Many former nurses, dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists who served during World War II are now eligible for commissions in the regular Army or Air Force, it has been announced by the Army's surgeon general.

This action came as a result of the passing of Public Law 514 which provides for integration into the regular Army or Air Force by a period of one year of other World War II nurses and other medical department women who had not reached their 35th birthday at the time of entrance on extended active duty, regardless of their present age.

Provisions of the amendment apply to reserve nurses now on extended duty with the Army, Navy or Air Force, civilian nurses holding reserve commissions and former Army nurses who are not now actively commissioned. Similar provision is made for dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists to obtain commissions in the Women's Medical Specialist Army or Air Force.

Under this law, all applicants honorably discharged from active military duty after May 12, 1945, will be credited with service from the period of termination of duty to the date of appointment in the regular Army or Air Force.

Former women officers not now on extended duty who believe they qualify for permanent status under the terms of this legislation may apply to the commanding general of the nearest general hospital. Those holding Air Force reserve commissions may apply to the Director of Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Washington, D. C. Applications must be submitted during the first six months of the one-year integration period. Appointment grades will range from second lieutenant to captain. Interested applicants may obtain detailed information from the Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C.

FAR EAST TROUBLE SPOTS . . . This map shows trouble spots mentioned by President Truman in his dictum on U. S. foreign policy. In Korea (1) U. S. ground forces and Air Force are hammering away at the northern invaders, while in Formosa (2) the U. S. Seventh Fleet is prepared to halt any attempt at invasion. In the Philippines (3) military aid has been speeded up and assistance to French Indo China (4) has been assured.

Morris finished first in the 200-yard free style event, out-raced Walter Alden, the 15th Infantry regiment's speedster in the 400-yard free style race to take another first place and anchored his team to victory in the 400-yard medley match.

The Student Training regiment sent three men to the tournament to represent the scholars and wound up in third place with 21 points. The 15th Infantry swimmers garnered 15 points to place second, while the Third Infantry division artillery aquatic men amassed 10 points for their efforts.

The Infantry School detachment finished in fifth place with seven points and the 3440th Area Service unit picked up three for sixth position. In last place with one point was the Third division Special Troops aggregation.

30th Infantry Wins Event

First event of the day was the 300-yard medley relay, won by the 30th Infantry regiment. Bobby Burke put his team into the lead by touching the wall at the end of the first 100 hundred yard stroke. The second stroke of his rival, Joe Hamilton of the 15th, Fernando Mabini took up the 100 yard stroke and added another quarter-length to the 30th's lead. Anchorman Alfreed Cochrane crawled the rest of the way for the victory. Time for the event was 4:47 minutes.

In the 200-yard free style event, Kenneth Morris finished a full nine seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, Artilleryman Alexander Martin. Time was 2:35 minutes.

The Student Training regiment ace swimmer, John Lucas, swept to victory in the 50-yard free style in the winning time of 1:05 minutes. In the second place with 27 points was Clair Schwein of the Infantry School detachment. Joe McCall finished third with 20.

Lloyd Helgeson piled up 65.25 points to take the one meter diving competition. The 30th Infantry pinned its hopes on John Willis who finished in second place with 53.83. A total of 49.33 points and a third place medal went to the 15th Infantry's Malcomb Eubanks.

Agapee 100-Yard Flitist

The 100-yard breaststroke race was won by Thomas Agapee, representing the Third Infantry division Artillery in the winning time of 1:17 minutes. Frank Stitts piled up more points than any other in the runner-up slot with 1.20, and third place was nailed down by William Stryjewski of the Artillery.

Alfreed Cochrane crawled to victory in the 100-yard free style in 1:05 minutes, just one-and-a-half seconds ahead of second place Walter Alden. Schwein wound up in third place with 1.07 in one of the closest races of the day.

Special Troops Down Engineers

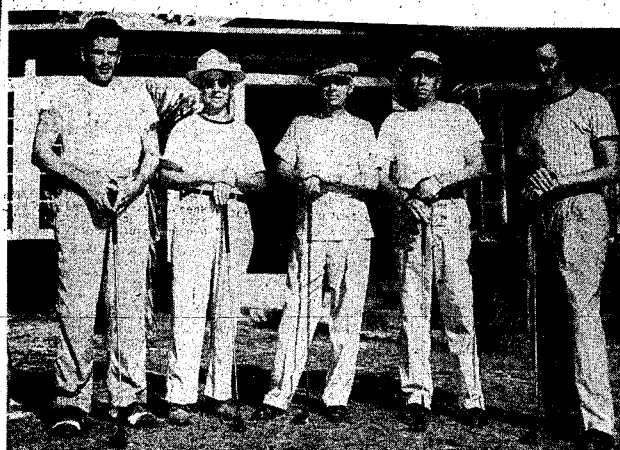

The Third Infantry division Special Troops moved into seventh place in the post baseball league Saturday by trouncing the cello-ridden Third Infantry division Engineers, 14-1.

The Troopers hammered out three runs in the first frame and blasted their way through the game, scoring four in the fifth, one in the sixth, four in the seventh and two in the eighth.

Ed Chiarini scored the first tally when he reached first on an outfield error, went to third following Billie Lynch's blow to the pitcher, and came in on Sam Pessin's single to left field. Lynch scored the second run of the inning when he stole second, advanced to third on Pessin's blow, and crossed home plate on a wild pitch. Pessin scored all the way from first on Jack Nevers' single to left to make the score stand at 3-0.

The Engineers scored their lone run in the eighth inning. Jose Sanchez doubled to left, and touched home plate when Don Accardo singled to right center. Pessin led the winners at the plate with four hits, including one triple. Lynch powered two hits off Pitcher Carmine Schott that drove in three runs for the Special Troops nine.

Jim Harschman got two for four to set the pace for his team.

READY FOR GOLF TOURNEY . . . These men have been selected by the Fort Jackson, S. C., Armed Forces' golf club to represent Fort Jackson in the Third Army golf tournament being held here this week. Fliers' Defeat Puts ASU In 3rd Place

The 3440th Area Service unit diamondmen boosted themselves into third place in the post baseball league last Thursday when they pinned an 8-1 defeat on the seventh-place Lawson field Fliers.

Larry Hall spread five hits among the visiting airmen to take his sixth victory in league play. The powerful ASU twirler displayed his hitting ability by booming out three hits, including a double in five plate appearances which accounted for three of the eight service unit runs.

The second inning spelled defeat for the Fliers when five ASU runs found their way into the scorebook. Six main position men found "Cousin" Ross Sanders for six straight hits in that frame.

Joe DiCiccio led off with a single to left, moved to third when E. Wilson slapped a one-base blow over second, and led Wilson to the plate following the first of Hall's three safeties, a screaming double. Hall dashed to third when Del Tipton connected for a single, and scored with Tipton when Willie Banks marked one into deep right field for a triple. Banks rounded third and was tagged out when he tried to make it in the park-homer of the blow.

Del Buchanan walked and kept walking to second when McCachren wangled a free trip from Sanders. Both men advanced a base when Goebel Shultz dopped a single. Hale was ruled out for interference for the second out. All three men died in their positions when

BY LEO J. PARENT
Bayonet Sports Editor

Fort Benning's new football coach, Joe Steffy, is on the prowl for likely-looking football prospects and requests that any individuals interested in trying out for the post team contact him at his office in Doughboy stadium, telephone 2823.

The former All-American said that about 36 candidates have signed to date to play for Benning, but he needs more than that to put out a first-class ball club.

The post baseball league is rolling along as per schedule (except for the games that the weather man rained out), and a participating for their basing teams.

Top man in the league for those players with 30 or more times at bat is the Student Training regiment-Airborne battalion's Bill Brooks. Brooks leads the pack with a .424 average. He hit safely 14 times in his 33 times at bat. In runner-up position, with .419 is Charles Medlin, who banged out 13 hits in 21 times at bat. The Infantry School detachment Profs' Burt Woody is in third place with 22 hits out of 54 trips to the plate for a .406 average.

Next man in the parade of stars is George Hill, another ISD man with a .388 batting average. He went to the plate 36 times and banged out 14 safeties to take fourth place in the percentage list. Little Ed Powe of the Third Infantry division Artillery team and Herb Myatt of the Airborne battalion tie for fifth place with .375 apiece. Myatt has 21 hits in 56 times at bat and Powe earned his average by hitting safely 12 times in 32 attempts. Kieker Campbell of the Divarty team has a .374 average with 18 hits in 43 times up.

Speaking of standouts, the 30th Infantry regiment sent a man over to the Infantry Center swimming tournament Saturday to represent the unit in the meet, and the human fish walked off with a first place in the 200-yard freestyle race, first place in the 400-yard freestyle and then teamed with three other members of the 30th's outstanding squad to take home the honors in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

The red-headed dynamo has compiled quite a record in various meets both in civilian and military life. In 1947, the muscular Morris swam for the YMCA in Boston, Mass., and earned the distinction of Massachusetts' state champion. In the Army in 1949 the Bay Stater went all out as a member of the GHQ team in Japan. He was chosen as a member of the All-Japan, All-Army, and inter-command teams. He holds the 50-, 100- and 400-meter freestyle records in Japan, marks that he set up during the All-Army meet. In 1949, the second year in a row, the smooth-stroker was chosen as an All-Army great. With a record background like this, it wasn't hard to pick the winner in the events that he dominated in the Infantry Center tourney.

THE FIGHTING THIRD (2)

30th Infantry Regiment Lives By Famous Motto

EDITORS' NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on units of the Third Infantry division.

The motto of the 30th Infantry regiment during its 136-year history, "Our Country or Ourselves," has been amply demonstrated on the field of battle, where the regiment has established a shining record, which speaks for itself.

The 30th Infantry participated in the War of 1812 and with the Union forces in the War between the States in 1861-1865. Formed by act of congress on Feb. 2, 1801, the present regiment was organized at Fort Logan, Colo.

From March to August, 1901, the regiment trained in San Francisco, Calif., and then sailed to the Philippine Islands where it participated in the campaign to stamp out the Philippine Insurrection of Aguinaldo. It was at this time that Gen. (then 2d Lt.) George C. Marshall joined the regiment and was assigned to Company L as a platoon leader, his first military assignment.

FOR ITS ACTIONS in the Philippines the regiment was awarded the Philippine Insurrection battle streamer, and upon conclusion of three years service there, returned to the United States in 1904.

In the period from 1904 to 1917, the regiment was stationed in Nebraska, along the Mexican border, in Alaska, New York, Texas and again at the Presidio of San Francisco.

In 1917 the regiment served under Gen. John J. Pershing in the Mexican border campaign. The 30th Infantry joined the Third Infantry division upon its organization in November, 1917, and was assigned to the Sixth brigade along with the 38th Infantry regiment and the Ninth Machine Gun battalion. The 30th Infantry went to France in March 1918, as part of the Third Infantry division.

THE AISNE DEFENSIVE on June 1-5, the Chateau-Thierry operations on June 8-14, the Aisne-Marne offensive July 18-23, and St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives from September to November saw the regiment in constant action.

During the Champagne-Marne defensive, July 14-18, the 30th Infantry was in the front line.

mediated by movement with the Third division. In May, 1942, the 30th moved by train and truck to Fort Ord, Calif., to begin intensive amphibious training. The regiment trained with the Second Marine division at San Diego, Calif., until August, 1942.

The Third division, adjudged by GHQ tests to be the finest amphibious division in the United States Army, was ordered to a staging area at Camp Pickett, Va., where final training was begun for the first giant amphibious operation to the European theater of operations. The theater of operations was the Mediterranean Sea, where it was the scene of a series of operations of vicarious training. Regimental Landing group 30 was embarked on Naval transports off Oct. 23, 1942. Its destination was Fedala, French Morocco.

On Nov. 8, under the command of Col. A. H. Powers, the 30th landed at Fedala, took Fort Elomem, and sent a battalion west to link up with other troops at Casablanca. In a four-day campaign it overcame all resistance and following the French armistice was moved to Oujda, Fauriot, and Guerciel, French Morocco. In April the regiment moved to Arzeu and after the German armistice in Tunisia, to Tennes, Algeria, and then to Bizerte for further amphibious training.

THIS TRAINING CULMINATED July 7 in embarkation for the invasion of Sicily. It was a rough ride in the LCI ships, but the regiment landed in good shape on July 10, east of Licata, and moved inland, Southwestward, the 30th cut cross-country over rugged mountains toward the Volturno river. It was at Mt. Nicola that Lt. Col. L. C. McGarr took command of the regiment and commanded it until the end of the war.

In Naples once again, the regiment met its first organized resistance at Brignano, and carried a heavy part in the routing of the 9th German Army at Montelimauro.

In less than a month the Third division had raced across Southern and Central France, with the Battle of the Vosges mountains beginning on Sept. 12.

On Dec. 15, the 30th Infantry led out the division on its attack through the Kyserberg Gap toward Colmar. The Colmar Pocket resulted in a full scale coordinated Army attack, with the Third division seizing the Neuf Brisach area.

THE REGIMENT WAS positioned for the dash into Salzburg, Austria, as the war ended.

After two months of occupation duty in the Salzburg area, the Third division moved north, and the 30th was placed on duty near Kassel, Germany, where it remained until the division moved to Camp Campbell, Ky.

In December, 1948, the 30th was transferred to Fort Benning. A cadre was assigned on Jan. 25, 1949, and on Feb. 24 the new members of the regiment began to arrive from training centers at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., Camp Chaffee, Ark., Fort Dix N. J., Fort Ord, Calif., Camp Pickett, Va., and Riley, Kan.

Campaigns of the 30th Infantry regiment in World War II included North Africa, Tunisia, Sicily, Naples, Iggia, Anzio, Rome-Arno, Southern France, Ardennes-Aisace, Rhineland and Central Europe.

The Regiment is entitled to wear the Distinguished Unit Citation as a member of the Third division. The First, Second and Third Battalions were each awarded the unit citation for action in Sicily, Italy and France. In addition, Companies B, I and L won the citation for separate actions during the same period.

The Medal of Honor, highest decoration of the nation was awarded to 12 members of the 30th Infantry, including a member of the medical corps. The Distinguished Service Cross, second highest, was awarded to 88 members. Other decorations were 925 Silver Stars, 31 Soldier's medals and 1226 Bronze Stars.

NEXT WEEK: THE NINTH FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION.

Atlanta Reserves In Training Here

The 425th Transportation Traffic regulation group (Organized Reserve Corps) is currently taking two weeks' active-duty training with the 52nd Transportation Truck Battalion.

During their two-week stay here, the unit will participate in the normal training reserve units undergo, as well as special training in the traffic regulation field.

Gen. Shugg Lauds Field Artillery Unit

Brig. Gen. Roland P. Shugg, commanding general of the Third Infantry division artillery, recently commended the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion for its superior showing during a command inspection. Vehicles, small arms, artillery and fire control instruments, and more than 100 personnel were inspected. The general commended the "general excellence of every type of equipment" was the result of thorough planning and hard work on the part of every officer and enlisted man in the battalion.

General Mueller Inspects Cadets

Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, deputy commander of Third Army, made an inspection last week of several hundred ROTC cadets training at Fort Benning. Arriving here late last week, he continued his tour and visit through Saturday and Sunday. General Mueller will leave the Third Army in mid-September for Washington, where he will assume duties as chief of the Army's career management division. He will be the second highest ranking officer to leave this Army command in late summer. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., Third Army commander, will retire from active duty Aug. 31. He is to be replaced by Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, former commander of troops in Korea. A replacement for General Mueller has not been named.

Fewer Uniform Violations Here

Results were showing this week in a new Fort Benning campaign to clamp down on violators of uniform regulations. Provost marshal officials, however, said many infractions were still being noticed despite the harsh warning issued last week.

The drive to penalize uniform offenders got under way July 13 with the order of Maj. Gen. Withers, provost marshal, and Col. A. Burgess, Infantry Center commander. A provost marshal spokesman said that fewer violations were being reported, but that "chronic offenders still persist in disobeying regulations and warnings of enforcement." A large percentage of the violators, the spokesman said, are the wearing of non-regulation type hats, rolling up sleeves and taking off ties during off-duty hours. These offenders, he claimed, are being committed more in Columbus than on post.

An upsurge of violations in the "mixed unit" was reported during the summer months. The spokesman said that more personnel are tending more and more to wear a T-shirt and khaki pants in mixed fashion. He said regulations strictly forbid the mixing of any uniform with civilian attire.

Courtesy patrols and military policeman have been instructed by Infantry Center officials to

Quick-Thinking Instructor Prevents Students' Injury

A quick-thinking airborne sergeant, who has been selected as Soldier of the Week, recently prevented a possible injury to 14 paratroop students involved in a forced glider landing. Sgt. Boyd L. Booker, a member of the Airborne department's Air Landing group at the Infantry School, was an instructor aboard a G-15A glider on June 30 when it became involved in trouble. THE GLIDER was one of two being towed on a routine indoctrination flight by a C-119 troop training aircraft. Shortly after lifting off the runway at Lawson

Air Force base, the two gliders began crossing in each other's path. As a result, their towlines began to snarl in the tail surface of the towplane.

To prevent a disaster, the glider pilot of Sergeant Booker's craft released his glider from the towplane, which was by this time about 85 glider flights, was too far to glide back to the landing area. Sergeant Booker, who has experienced 85 glider flights, knew a forced landing since it was too far to glide back to the field. Immediately grasping the initiative, combat-tested Sergeant Booker issued the command, "Prepare for crash landing." His students, who had never before faced such an experience, didn't respond rapidly to the order. To assure complete calmness among the students, the sergeant himself took the position of crash landing by putting his head between his knees and shouting "Down, down, down."

AS THEY WAITED for the forced landing, the glider pilot announced that he had found a cornfield in which he could set the craft down. Slowly the pilot eased the craft down into the mud and corn of a hilly farm. The glider sustained negligible damage, but none of the students or personnel on board was injured. Sergeant Booker's calm and professional command of the situation had prevented injury among the students.

Sergeant Booker, who is a veteran of bloody World War II campaigns with the 101st Airborne division, is also one of the experts who frequently takes part in demonstrations illustrating the transportability of equipment in gliders.

To date, he has made more than 100 airborne jumps, two of which were made in combat.

Russia Tells Price for Ending Korean Struggle

Admission of Communist China to the United Nations Security Council was named this week as the price of Russian influence to halt the fighting in Korea. Soviet Prime Minister Joseph Stalin demanded this condition in answer to peace mediation attempts of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. The United States government has already set its rock bottom requirement for settlement of the Korean crisis as the withdrawal of Communist forces from South Korea.

A sizable force of British ground troops has been hinted in diplomatic circles as soon to give direct support to the United Nations police action in Korea. A meeting of the defense ministers of the Brussels Pact nations—Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—is expected to reveal more direct support to the Americans in the battle zone. UN Secretary General Trygve Lie made an urgent appeal earlier this week for all the 52 UN members to give aid, especially ground forces.

To prevent Communist armed aggression in Europe Yugoslavian leaders claimed this week that their country had taken all possible precautionary measures to enable them to defend the country from surrounding Communist nations—Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Another member of the war-time Soviet spy ring in the U.S. was arrested this week by the FBI. American-born Engineer Julius Rosenberg has been charged with conspiring to commit espionage.

Senator McCarthy's accusations of Communists in the government were labeled as "a fraud and a hoax" this week by the Democratic majority of the Senate Inquiry Committee. McCarthy fired back with charges that "the most loyal stooges of the Kremlin could not have done a better job."

Draftees now being inducted were given assurance this week by the Army that they would not go overseas soon. The draftees will be given 14 weeks of basic training and then will first be assigned to Posts within the United States.

Chaplain's Corner

You Can't Rat Your Spiritual Life, Either

BY CHAPLAIN LOREN T. JENKS

I sat beside a soldier in a train one evening. As I listened to what he had to say, while we rode together on into the hours of the night, I was fascinated by the strange facts that came tumbling out of his story. He took part in the invasion of Africa, and later, in a trucking unit, he worked at the hauling of ammunition up to Kasserine Pass. Back and forth, twenty-four hours a day, they traveled that road, a hundred miles from the Army ammunition depot to the front. One soldier drove while the other tried to snatch some rest. Exhausted and tired, they kept on; nothing but the desert around them, no recreation, and almost no sleep, until one day, utterly ill and strengthless, he was sent to the hospital where he remained four months. Then he was returned home to convalesce.

"And," he said, as he showed me his hands with the scars on them, "these are all due to a lack of vitamin B. You see, we had no fresh foods whatever, we were living on emergency rations, and we couldn't hold up under it."

Emergency rations of the spiritual life taken on Christmas, Easter and Mother's Day will not be enough to sustain you under the test of continuous war and pressure. A balanced spiritual diet consists of worship, prayer, meditation, clean thoughts, good words and a persistent seeking to find God and know His will. Seek to live with God while on the sin sheet, maturing your faith lest you find it impossible to break through to God when the rain comes.

It's Later Than You Think!

"All . . . are subject to temporary or permanent change of station on short notice. They will arrange their personal and financial affairs accordingly." This terse but sage statement appeared in the form of Circular No. 15, published by the War Department in 1942. At that time, the United States was engaged in a life and death struggle with our Axis enemies.

We are now slightly past the midway mark in 1950. There have been many changes since 1942. But the wisdom of the printed word of that Army circular remains equally pertinent.

The world situation today demands that every member of the military service get his personal "house" in order and keep it that way. We have always admired the slogan of the Boy Scouts of America: "Be Prepared." As soldiers we cannot afford to train, live and fight otherwise.

The basic Manual of the Soldier admonishes us to be ever ready to fill the man's job next in line above us. Many of our foremost generals have climbed the ladder of military success by the simple expedient of always being prepared to fill the role of their next superior. Many soldiers of all ranks, veterans of World War II, are living today because they were prepared, they kept their house in order, and they were able to move quickly and fill their next senior soldier's position.

It is never too late to become prepared, but it is always more difficult to prepare when we wait too long. As soldiers, it is our first responsibility to this nation to be ready to fulfill our assigned mission, whatever the task may be. But our close second responsibility is to those who may be left behind.

Gigantic tasks lie ahead of all of us in these troubled times. Foresight of a high degree is necessary. We cannot afford to overlook possible changes in station without warning, nor the fact that sudden changes may involve movement overseas. Military requirements do not provide for personal conveniences or preferences. The thoughtful soldier will make the necessary arrangements, while there is still time, to reduce the hardships and privations of his dependents which may result from his absence.

The important list of "musts" is short. If you cannot check off each one as having already been accomplished, then you are neglecting your duty to your family:

1. Purchase a National Service Life Insurance policy in the full amount of $10,000.
2. Secure certified copies of your marriage certificate, birth certificate of yourself, your wife and your children, and place them with other valuable papers and records in the possession of your administrator.
3. Make a will.
4. Consider carefully the terms of ownership of all real and personal property and arrange transfer to joint ownership or by deed, where material advantage seems to be offered.
5. Execute powers of attorney for your wife or other relative after consultations with your personal affairs officer or attorney.
6. Pay your bills or make arrangements for their regular payment prior to departure from this station.
7. Arrange a plan with your family as to where they will reside in the event you are ordered suddenly to a foreign station.

These are a few of the necessary arrangements which should be made now in anticipation of such an occurrence.

We are not trying to be alarmist. But "Death and Taxes are inevitable" is a truth which has been attributed to every sage from Biblical times up to the late Will Rogers. A sudden change of station in the military service comes mightily close to being within the purview of that quotation.

Let's face it — it's later than you think!

Dedicated to all guard house lawyers: "He who thinks by the inch, and talks by the yard, should be dealt with by the foot."

A man was brought before the judge for creating a disturbance at his girl friend's home.
"Liquor again?" asked the Judge.
"No, sir. This time she licked me."

It happened on a street corner.
Irate Lady: "Officer, stop that soldier. He tried to kiss me."
M.P.: "Take it easy, lady. There'll be another one along in a minute."

LUCKY FISH . . . Despite the bare feet and the old-fashioned fishing outfit, Terry Moore of the movies somehow doesn't look much like Tom Sawyer. Terry seems to have just the right bait to hook some hapless fish.

THE GREAT HOUDINI BY BERYL WILLIAMS AND SAMUEL EPSTEIN
JULIAN MESSNER, INC., PUBLISHER—BY ALLEN MULLIKEN

Magician Extraordinary is the apt subtitle chosen by the Authors Williams and Epstein for their contribution to the thrilling annals of the Handcuff King. Drawing on other biographies, periodicals, Houdini's own writings and the memories of people who knew the escape artist, they have written a book of concentrated facts and readability.

From a few moments of uncertain fictional biography dealing with the early days of Ehrich Weiss, the authors switch to a swiftly paced account of the grown-up Weiss, known to the world as Harry Houdini.

Houdini grew up at an early age. He ran away from the home of his Rabbi father at the age of 12 to seek fame and fortune with the magic he had already adopted as his profession. He felt that Appleton, Wisconsin, where his family had settled after immigration was not the place to spend his life. He returned to the family when his father went to New York City to start a home to bring the whole family east.

Regular work could not hold the young man for long. By sheer will, that was to be his only support for many years, he started as a practicing magician. This was when he first adopted the name Houdini, from the famous French conjurer, Robert Houdin. Soon the poor magician met and married Beatrice (Bessie Rabner), the wife that was to be stuck by Houdini as his assistant both off stage and on.

Years of playing in dime museums and false starts to success finally led to the glorious fame he had dreamed of since childhood. On an English tour in 1900 Harry Houdini stepped into the limelight and discarded through a quarter-century in the cap-came the challenger who would escape from any fetter brought forward by any member of his audience.

After defying any jailer or any lock-maker to confine him, Houdini went on with superb showmanship to devise more and more seemingly impossible feats of escape. He was never at a loss to do something ever more startling to hold the interest of the tickle public.

The death of Houdini's mother brought a great change to the escaper's life and led to another chapter in his astounding career. He began a serious search for a legitimate spiritualist and made himself into a crusader by exposing hundreds of fraudulent mediums.

The life of Harry Houdini has become a legend, and the authors of this little biography tell the story with the dash and verve that it deserves.

Icebox Recipe Keeps Kitchen Cool

Dessert Delight Needs No Cooking

BY GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Staff Writer
WHETHER it's a canasta party on the porch or just a friendly gabfest, something to eat is in order. On hot summer days or evenings, you want something that can be made far in advance, so there's no last-minute fussing in the kitchen. Why not serve a refrigerator dessert such as this Icebox Pudding.

Made with layers of crunchy corn soya shreds, and a pineapple-mint mixture, it's good eating for warm weather. There's no cooking involved, therefore the kitchen will be cool. This dessert is attractive when cut in squares and served with a topping of whipped cream and a mint-flavored cherry.

Corn Soya Icebox Pudding

(6-8 servings)
One-half cup butter or fortified margarine, 1 cup sugar, 3 egg yolks, 1 cup crushed pineapple, well drained; 1/2 cup chopped English walnuts, 1 1/2 cups corn soya shreds, crushed; 1/2 cup whipping cream, 5 to 8 mint-flavored cherries.

Cream butter and sugar, add egg yolks and continue creaming until well blended. Add pineapple and nut meats. Arrange alternate layers of corn soya shreds and pineapple mixture in shallow pan, 6x10x2 inches, using cereal for bottom and top layers. Place in refrigerator for at least 4 hours for flavors to blend; serve immediately. Cut in squares and top each serving with whipped cream garnished with mint cherry, if desired.

Have you tried the new frozen lemonade? It tastes wonderful and banishes lemon-squeezing. There's also frozen grape juice for summer coolers. Pungent as freshly-crushed blue grapes, it combines perfectly with other fruit juices.

CORNEAL PINEAPPLE and nut icebox pudding for the porch party.

New Weapons Vs. Manpower

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The senate recently received reports from two of its standing committees that World War II Europe can be defended against invasion with new mass-produced weapons produced more manpower.

Both the Foreign Relations and the Armed Services committees affirmed this belief in recommending passage of a $1,222,500,000 foreign arms aid program.

The development of new weapons have "materially influenced our defensive plans for the North Atlantic area," said the committee reports.

Army Hospital to Move

PHOENIXVILLE, PA. (AFPS)—The Army Hepatic and Metabolic Center, which carries on the fight against infectious diseases (yellow jaundice) soon will be moved from Valley Forge hospital here to Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, according to an announcement made by Maj. General Gives Sergeant Lift

NORTH FORT HOOD, Tex. (UPI)—Sgt. William Watford was hitch-hiking home to New Braunfels when he saw an olive drab sedan approach with three impressive stars on its side.

Watford tucked his thumb in his pocket, hoping the general's car would pass without throwing anything more at him than a gravel.

A short time later Sgt. Watford was drinking ice water at Ft. Benning's Station New Braunfels when he saw an olive drab sedan approach with three impressive stars on its side.

Hard-Tack Is Replaced By Real Loaf of Bread

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Taps has been sound for the old fashioned Army biscuit—rest its hard soul—and in its stead the Quartermaster Corps has come up with a brand new, honest-to-gosh combat loaf of bread.

It's but one of many culinary triumphs achieved by an institute at a central quartermaster depot in Chicago. In short, the institute is taking the guess work out of armed forces rations by devising palatable nutrition for all conditions.

Navy Completes Cold Drug Tests

WASHINGTON, (AFPS)—In tests conducted by Naval Medical Research Unit No. 4 at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., Navy doctors report they discovered antihistamine drugs to be ineffective in preventing or relieving the common cold.

The four drugs, known in the antihistamine group, are thonzylamine, chlorophenpyridazine, doxylamine and pyrilamine.

A study of 1,103 men was divided into three groups. The first group of 352 was given 100 milligrams of an antihistamine drug daily. Of this group, 46 per cent developed colds during the testing period.

A second group of 337 men was administered a harmless preparation which resembles an antihistamine but has no effect, called placebo. Of this group, 49 per cent developed colds.

The remaining 414 men received no medication, and of this group, 47 per cent developed colds.

Maj. Gen. Willard W. Irvine has been assigned as commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command.

Col. Cassidy Gets Duties In Canada

Lt. Col. Patrick F. Cassidy, Infantry School Airborne department director, will leave Fort Benning next month for Canada where he will be a liaison officer at the Canadian joint air-ground school at Rivers, Manitoba.

He will be replaced by 32-year-old Lt. Col. Richard J. Beitz, Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Colonel Cassidy came to Fort Benning in late 1945 when he was assigned to the Infantry school. In August, 1948, he went to the Airborne department and later assumed the directorship.

A 1937 graduate of the University of Oregon, Colonel Cassidy was a student in one of the airborne classes to be graduated from the Infantry School in the early World War II months.

In the bitter European fighting, he became one of the distinguished 101st Airborne Infantry division veterans who weathered the Battle of the Bulge at Bastogne.

Returning to the United States after the war, Colonel Cassidy who holds the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star and Purple Heart, was assigned to the Infantry school. In the post-war period, he directed and directed one of the Army's most outstanding training programs, which now graduates nearly 500 students a month.

In his new assignment in Canada, he will be the only American officer at the large testing and training station. Directed by Canadian personnel, the base is said to be a counterpart of Fort Benning's Airborne department.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Airports and airlines now are receiving faster service and more variety in weather reports from the Civil Aeronautics Administration through a recently-developed system.

Translated, that means "remote control." It consists of collection by remote control of weather data from secondary CAA stations around the country.

Basically, it means a CAA control station can start transmission of a weather message automatically from a teletype-writer machine that may be hundreds of miles away. The machines almost "think" it out.

C. D. Spencer, chief of the flight aeronautics communications section of the fourth region, CAA, terms it a major development. It saves both time and man power, he said.

How It Works

Spencer explained the operations like this:

The CAA regional office here is a control station for 60 secondary offices in Texas and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

All are connected by teletype-writers and each sends hourly weather messages to Fort Worth, which in turn distributes them countrywide.

Terms Of NSLI Plan Discussed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the sixth of a series of articles relative to the insurance and savings plan of the Army. The series is being compiled and written by Sgt. Aubrey H. Newton, chief clerk of the Infantry Center Army Emergency Relief, Insurance and Savings office. This article will discuss rates and conditions of payments on insurance.

BY SGT. AUBREY H. NEWTON

All cash, loan, paid-up, extended values and all other values in connection with National Service Life Insurance are based on the American Experience Mortality Table which lists interest at three per cent per annum. All NSLI premiums are level or fixed premiums that do not change. Also, all premiums are calculated strictly on a monthly basis. Quarterly, semi-annual and annual payments made by some policy holders are arrived at simply by multiplying the fixed monthly premium by the number of months in the period covered by the payments and allowing a three per cent discount.

Mortality tables, other than the American Experience table, are authorized for use only for the calculation of life contingencies in the transfer of money from NSLI appropriations to the NSLI fund.

National Service Life Insurance is government-operated, but it is not government-owned. Personnel who hold policies are the owners of NSLI. The government only bears the cost of administration. This cost includes the expenses of printing and binding, salaries of civilian employees and other necessary outlays that are decided upon by the NSLI administrator.

At least one month's premium must be paid in advance to keep the policy valid, but there is no limit on how far in advance payments may be made if the policy-holder wishes to make the payment.

At no time may less than one month's premium be paid on the policy.

Advance payments receive a discount of three per cent. Tables showing the exact amount of discounted advance payments may be found in VA Manual M9-2 and VA (Insurance) Form 9-310. At maturity of the policy or death of the policy-holder the discounted value of premiums paid in advance will be refunded to the beneficiary in one sum.

The insured may withdraw any advance payment if he wishes to do so. Armed forces leave bonds are accepted in lieu of cash for premium payments. An amount equal to the first premium on an NSLI policy may be advanced from current appropriations for active service pay to any person in active service. Subsequent premiums may be deducted from monthly service pay.

After release of the policy-holder from active service, premiums may be deducted from any monthly death compensation, retired pay, disability pension or death pension due to the insured. Direct payment may be made to the Treasury Department by cash, armed forces leave bonds, money order, postal note, check or bank draft. The premium does not necessarily have to be paid by the insured. Any person may pay the premiums if he has been authorized by the insured to receive premium notices and official receipts of payment.

A grace period of 31 days is allowed the policy-holder who fails to make the payment due on the first of each month. During this period the policy will remain in effect. If the policy matures within the grace period for an unpaid premium, the amount due will be deducted from the amount of insurance payable to the beneficiary. If the last day of the grace period falls on Sunday or a national holiday, the due premium will be accepted if tendered on the following business day.

Extension of time for payment may be arranged after the grace period in certain cases. When the insured is under a 5-LFP plan he should make inquiries for a time extension before the expiration of the grace period. If the insured, in such a case, has a clear intent to continue the insurance, an additional period (not exceeding 90 days) may be granted without meeting reinstatement requirements. However, the insurance will not be in force until the premium is paid. This time extension simply lengthens the time that may elapse before reinstatement requirements must be met. It is not an extension of the grace period that will insure payment in the event of death during the 90-day extension.

Six Good Reasons For Staying in Navy

SAN DIEGO—(UP)—Asked why he was re-enlisting in the Navy for six years, Daniel J. Gallagher, QM1, had a logical reply. "I have six years of naval service behind me," he said. "With only six more years I can retire. I have six boys between the ages of six and 11. To insure their futures, I have enlisted one year for each child."

Mrs. Hobby Sees Draft for Women

The wartime commander of the Woman's Army Corps has predicted that American women would be faced with induction into the armed forces in the event of another war. Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, addressing delegates at the annual American Red Cross convention in Detroit, said another war would mean "total mobilization" which would affect every American of a reasonable age. She said, however, that women would be called to serve in defense production work as well as in the armed forces. "When the War was formed early in World War II, most women were assigned clerical duties, but by the end of the hostilities, the War was doing 400 different jobs—and I think the list could be expanded," she asserted.

Airmen in Britain Return to College

LONDON, July—(INS)—Hundreds of American airmen stationed in Britain are going back to the classroom in their spare time.

The University of Maryland has started a program of evening courses at all the American Air Force bases in Britain.

Once the students have reached a certain standard of education, there are facilities for personnel of specialized categories to undertake full-time study for degrees while still drawing their pay and allowances.

Dressed alike in civilian clothes, the colonel and the private grapple together to advance French or international politics.

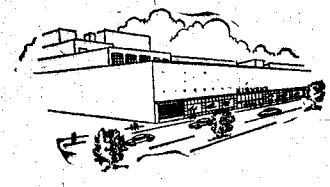

The Air Force authorities have arranged that "credit" marks earned at any of the courses conducted by the university in England will be accepted by all the universities and colleges throughout the United States.

Students Graduate in Communications

Infantry communications chief class No. 1 graduated last week, with 23 enlisted students receiving diplomas.

Of this number, eight were National Guardsmen, one a member of the British Reserve Corps and the rest regular Army. Cadre of the 10th company, Student Training Regiment, started processing an incoming group of 53 shortly after the members of class No. 1 left. These 53 men will be enrolled in automotive maintenance and supervision, a course which lasts for 16 weeks.

WANTED—Young men between the ages of 18 and 20. Desire husky, intelligent men for duty with the post football team. Experience preferred, but will accept without. Full time job for approximately three months at good pay. Apply at Doughboy stadium, or call Joe Steffy at 2923.

If Coach Steffy doesn't get more volunteers for the Doughboy squad than have reported for training so far, he really will have to start advertising. As of this week, he has a grand total of 25 men available for this season's 11-game schedule.

He does have the nucleus of a good team, but he needs reserves in every position, especially the line.

Among the happy, smiling faces that greeted the new coach last Wednesday in the first outdoor session was that of last year's standout at center, Frank McGibboney. A welcome addition to any squad, McGibboney was a Rock of Gibraltar on defense in 1949 and an irresistible force on the offense. The 20-year-old youngster stands six feet two inches and weighs 205 rock-ribbed pounds. He comes from Bessemer, Ala., where he performed at center for Bessemer high school in 1945 and 1946.

Another gristler who performed for last year's Doughboys, and whose vital statistics match those of McGibboney's, is husky Bill Phillips. He hails from Cranston, R. I., and was a wealth of experience in the grid game. He started at end for Cranston high in 1944-47, and following graduation entered Brown university at Providence, in time to play for the 1947 season.

Available for either a tackle or fullback berth is Dale McClain. The Irishman pushes himself six feet two inches into the ozone and packs a hard 212 pounds in a 25-year-old frame.

Other returnees are Ed Pelt, Bob Murphy and Al Constance. Pelt is 19, stands five feet 10 inches, weighs 170 pounds and comes from Bradock, Pa. Murphy is a Steelton, Pa., boy who packs 210 pounds on a five-foot eight-inch torso. Constance is a native of President Truman's home town, Independence, Mo. The 180 pounder is 20 years old and stands six feet in his size 12 stockings.

Among the newcomers that will help Steffy this year is Plegas Young. Speaking of experience, this griddler has seen enough turf battles to qualify as a vet of the grid wars. He played four years at tackle for Hamilton high school in Hamilton, Ohio, was a member of the 1944 Doughboys and performed for the 388th MP's and the 16th Infantry regiment in Bremen and Nuremberg, Germany in 1946-48. He is 29 years old, stands five feet 11 1/2 inches, and weighs 235 pounds.

Others on hand to put Benning on top this season are: Jack Brooks, Lloy Head, Buford DeCordova, James Hicks, Carl Christian, Dave Snyder and Dough Landry.

If a good staff wins football games, then Steffy will have nothing to worry about in the coming race for team honors. Rip Rowan will be training the backfield aspirants, while Carl Hartmann is putting the line through its paces. Russ Suther is set to take care of the business end of the pigskin parade, and Lou Godino is back at his old stand as team manager.

The important thing right now is to get more people to get out on the field and give Coach Steffy a complete set of reserve strength.

Airborne Battalion Wins, 4-2, Over Post Medics

The high-flying Airborne Battalion of the Student Training regiment put in another claim for the post baseball crown by defeating the Provisional Medical group 4-2 last Monday night. The Silcox led the Troopers to victory by stifling the stretcher-bearer bats and fanning nine opponents for his sixth straight win of the season.

Bob Cronin started for the chumps, giving up two runs in the four innings he pitched. He left the game to Silcox with the score standing at 2-0 in favor of the Medics.

The first Medic run came in the first frame. Bob Hoffman singled to start the inning, attempted a steal and was thrown out at second. Al King got the first base on balls issued by Cronin, moved to second when Cronin pitched four balls to Steve Cruce, stole third, and came in on Lee Wargo's single to right. The other Medic tally came in the fourth frame when Gordon Weathers singled, reached second on a fielder's choice of Elton Murrett's ball, advanced to third on John Graves' slap

Red Caps Tied For First Place In Softball Loop

The 15th Infantry regiment's Red Caps pushed themselves into a tie for first place in the division softball league by whipping a Third Infantry division Headquarters aggregation, 6-0, last Monday night.

The 15th and the division Artillery nine will play for the championship of the league at a later date.

Outstanding performance of the evening was turned in by Tiny Kachel, one of the 15th's star athletes. In his first mound appearance of the season, he allowed the visitors only two hits, besides belting the longest bit of the day, a triple in the second inning.

Lefty Medlin hit two safeties for the Red Caps, while E. Hendricks, Harry Shimokawa and the Lizzie connected once apiece. "Bill" Mackey and Ansel Sutherland got the two hits for Divarty.

League Leaders Battle to 4-4 Tie

Rain proved too much for the 15th Infantry regiment Dragoons and the Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion diamonders as the two teams battled to a 4-4 tie last Saturday afternoon.

The top squads in the post circuit hammered at each other for 10 1/2 innings before a cloudburst dampened both sides and ended the game. The Airborne crew had a man on third with two outs and Joe Smith shot a 159 for 36 holes to take the title in the third division of the individual tourney. Second place went to James Smith of Fort Jackson, S. C. with 161. James Parks of the Mississippi upheld the assertions of her gallery fans that she was the finest woman golfer in the third Army area by coming in a 70-stroke winner over her nearest competitor. She set the pace with a 321 for the 72 holes.

In the senior first division, H. C. Kelso took home the bacon with a 172 total. D. A. Rosebaum tied down second place with 183.

Fort Benning's No. 1 team took the top position in the team standings with 1,497 strokes. In second place was Fort Bragg's No. 1 team with 1,520. Bragg's No. 2 team picked up third place in the standings with 1,567 strokes while Benning's No. 2 team came in fourth with 1,593. Camp Gordon piled up 1,597 strokes for fifth place.

Military District took third place with 174.

The long range proving grounds at Cocoa, Fla., sent Robert Short into battle for the crown in the first division of the individual tourney, and he took home the honors with a 122 for the 36 holes. C. H. Waters of the Georgia Military District took second place with 154. Joe Robinson took third place for Camp Gordon with 156.

John Geigley of the Mississippi Military District took the crown in the second division with a 163 total. Fort Benning's Wayne Springer came in second with 164, two strokes ahead of third place Benningite, W. L. Coughlin.

Fort Bragg's Francis Ruddy shot a 159 for 36 holes to take the title in the third division of the individual tourney. Second place went to James Smith of Fort Jackson, S. C. with 161. James Parks of the Mississippi

The 1948 Doughboy backfield will feature Coach Joe Steffy, the other integral, but less known part of the Army backfield, Kewyop (Rip) Rowan on the Army team and one Steffy is depending on the fleet team in its 11-game schedule this year. Former All-American Steffy and Rowan, who will also be the post pigskin fans this season if teamwork means anything. The two football greats were roommates at the United States Military Academy, N. The 24-year-old Rowan made his debut in football at Memphis Central high school in Memphis, Tenn., in 1941. He played halfback for three years and captained the team in 1943. After graduation he went to Louisiana State University where he started at halfback in 1944. He got his appointment to West Point in the Weapons committee at the Infantry School.

Lawson Blasts Engineers, 14-0

The Lawson field Fliers blasted the Third Infantry division Engineers, 14-0, for their sixth win of the post baseball league last Monday night.

The Fliers boomed out 11 hits and took advantage of 15 Engineer errors to pile up their 14 runs. Pitcher Ross Sanders did his part for the airmen by nullifying the Engineer bats allowing only four hits in the nine-inning scramble.

The high-flying crewmen scored two runs in the first frame, two in the second, four in the third, three in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the eighth.

The first Lawson run came when Herman Johnson tripled to start the game, watched Dick Lee bounce out to short, and then flew home when Jim Davis hit a slow roller to the Engineer infield. Davis was safe at first base on a passed ball sent by Davis to second, another sent him to third, and the second Flier run was scored on the third passed ball of the inning.

From then on it was a matter of how many runs the Fliers would make and how many errors the Engineers would commit.

Johnson, Lee, Fields Cox, and Dick Watchel each got two bingles for Lawson, while Jose Sanchez kept up the fine stickwork with two sharp singles for the Engineers.

Sanders was the winning pitcher, while Carmine Schott was charged with the loss.

Fliers 9-7 Victors In 10-Inning Affair

The Lawson Air Force base Fliers ran over the Infantry School detachment Profs, 9-7, in a bitterly-contested game Wednesday that saw the victors leave the field 8-7 winners in the ninth, and then return following an umpire's decision to win in the 10th.

Carl Rumsey was the thorn in the ISD side that provoked Umpire James Quinn's decision to recall the armers to the battle. Rumsey came to bat in the ninth inning with the score tied at 7-7. He slapped a game-winning (the fans thought) single into right field scoring Leftfielder Red Burgamy rushed up to the field and pointed out to the ump that Rumsey was wearing an official card showing his number listed as 2.

Quinn ruled Rumsey out at the plate, nullifying his single on the grounds that the Plier had batted out of order. The game went on from there. The next two men went down in the ninth to send the game into the 10th inning. Burgamy sent a sharp single into left field to start the final frame for the Profs. He stole second, and moved to third on Hal Grinols's sacrifice to the pitcher. Woody Durr fanned, and Herb Lauve fled to right to end the inning.

Pitcher Dick Crowell lined a single to center for the Fliers and flew home with the game-winning (the fans knew) run when Gerald Jones slapped a safety over short.

Divarty Downed By ASU Squad

The 3440th Area Service unit baseballers pined 2-0 defeat on the Third Infantry division Artillery Squadron afternoon when rain washed the two teams off the Gowdy field diamond in the first of the sixth inning.

Fran Cornier was at bat with the count at one and one when Mother Nature stepped in and called it a day.

ASU got its first run in the opening inning when Jesse Martin was issued the first free pass of the game. He went to third when De Buchanan hit a slow roller to second, and came in when E. Milhan let the ball get away from him.

The second ASU run came in the third frame when Willie Banks drew a walk, went to second on Jesse Martin's single to left, stole third and then committed the biggest theft in baseball, stealing home.

Both teams got two hits during the bottom contest. Martin and Joe DeCicco got the bingles for ASU, while Jim Williams and John McClinic hit the safeties for Divarty.

Division Veteran Is Transferred

First Lt. Charles K. Seifarth, after nearly 10 years with the Third Infantry division, was being reassigned this week, according to Maj. Gen. F. W. Clarkson, division commander.

Lieutenant Seifarth joined the division when he was assigned to the Seventh Infantry regiment at Fort Lewis, Wash., in the early days of World War II.

At the end of the war, he served on occupation duty in Herzfeld and Bebra, Germany, until the Third division returned to the U. S. When the division was deactivated at Camp Campbell, Ky., Lieutenant Seifarth was one of the few men who remained assigned to it as cadre.

He came to Fort Benning late in 1949, and has served since then as assistant operations officer in the G-3 section, division headquarters.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster, Purple Heart and the European theater ribbon with 10 battle stars.

Major Daniel J. Carney to Headquarters, Fifth Army, to attend University of Wisconsin.

Maj. Marshall L. Fallwell to Far East command.

Lt. Col. William D. Mouchet to Fort Amador, Canal Zone.

First Lt. Charles E. Taylor to Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

M-Sgt. David S. Farchman to retired list.

Lt. Col. Charles D. McDaniel to 10th Engineer Combat Battalion.

M-Sgt. Balbino to retired list.

Sgt. Julius B. Holt to retired list.

Cadet W. T. Martin, University of Mississippi student, assigned to the Reserve Officers' Training Corps camp here, walked off with high score in the Browning automatic rifle firing last week, getting 95 of a possible 100.

Close on his heels were Cadet John M. Smoak, Clemson college with 94, and Cadet Jack G. Whitted, Wofford college, with 93.

Geographic Picture Of Korea

Twenty million people are crowded into an area comparable in size to the state of Indiana—most of the area is laced with mountains rising in heights equal to the United States' Appalachian range.

This is the picture in Korea, where the country's terrain may well govern the tactics used in warfare.

Because of these natural barriers, railroad and highway distances between two points are nearly double that of air mileage. For instance, the railroad between Haeju and Pusan rambles for 400 miles, while a plane traveling between the same two cities covers only 290 miles. Hairpin curves along the line are fantastic.

Among other oddities nature created for Korea is the slant of the peninsula. On the east coast, the mountains drop into the sea, while the west coast slopes gently into the Yellow sea.

High Yellow sea tides reach 25 feet and leave expansive mud flats in their wake. Amphibious landings on the western shores are, naturally, to be gouged by the erratic tides.

Korea's waterways are equally as baffling. On the west coast, several rivers find their outlets into the sea after tortuous journeys through several mountain ranges. On the east coast, only a few short streams are to be found.

Numerous highway bridges span the many streams, but these are often washed out during the heavy downpours in the monsoon season which normally strikes during the summer months.

WOJG Group Assigned Duty

Three newly appointed warrant officers of the 99th Armored Field Artillery battalion have been assigned duties as announced today.

The men, and their assignments, are WOJG David R. Nixon went to the 41st Field Artillery battalion.

At the same time, it was also announced that WOJG Cecil P. Craig had been transferred to the Ninth Field Artillery battalion, while WOJG Charles L. Nixon went to the 41st Field Artillery battalion.

Korea, Troubled Peninsula

As the centuries passed, and the three nations prospered individually, Koguryu and Paekche grew restless and warlike. Each made plans to conquer and destroy its two neighbors. Silla, through its own volition, ignored the border war provocations and continued indulging in envious culture and luxury. To conquer all of Koguryu would require the aid of a powerful China and Koguryu and Paekche knew it. Counted to China for alliance were the Land to the West saw through the sincerity of both. Finally, realizing the moral superiority of Silla, the weak southern nation eventually all but crushed the two northern nations in a great war.

Through 600, 700 and 800 A. D., the Silla-ruled Koreans began to develop their incentive for invention and perfection of their race. The influx of new ideas by the Chinese was overvalued by Korean scholars who adopted the Chinese language and arts because, history says, they thought Korean customs and art were too vile and common. This led to the Silla dynasty had grown into a corrupt and crumbling empire, two of its once-precious culture.

WANG-GEN, A REBELLIOUS Silla rebel revolted from the dynasty and set up the Koryu kingdom in Kaesong, about 50 miles from Seoul. In time, the Koryu dynasty replaced the Silla and was the first to completely adopt Buddhism and Buddhist thought in government. At first, the religion was a servant of the government, but through the years, it took stronger political positions and eventually forced Koryu kings into accepting the religion in order to rule.

At the monasteries, art, literature and even science were taught by the fanatical Buddhist priests. In time, Koryu kings, taking the custom of taking their sisters as wives in the hope of keeping the royal blood pure, legend and myth say the result was the royal family degenerated. The Koryu dynasty was easily controlled by the scheming Buddhist monks.

Korea's greatest cultural, economic and human slaughter occurred when the Golden Horde of Genghis Khan poured down and wiped out whole towns and tribes for 29 years. In the form of destruction, virtually every existing Korean form of art and life was smashed. The Mongolian massacre laid waste wherever they went.

In 1200 A. D., a half-century following the sweeping drive, the Mongols left the country after having restored political stability in the Korean government and having helped to refashion the land; internal problems in Mongolia had prompted the astounding and unbelievable reversal of conquer etiquette.

THIRTY YEARS LATER, Korea was faced with a two-headed bandit north of Korea was preparing for invasion, and Japanese pirates were savagely raiding south Korean seaports, stealing boats and supplies and killing innocent civilians. In desperation, Korea's impetuous king ordered the army to the north border to repulse the superior Chinese armies. Failure to obey the order meant death to the commanders. When the Korean

Career Jobs Discussed

"Isn't it amazing? A fortune teller once told me that some day I would lead a police force!"

T.I.C. TALKS

QUESTION: HOW DO YOU LIKE THE NEW EX COMM-BABY?

MRS. CARL GINDELE, wife of Capt. Carl Gindele, Communications department, Fort Benning, is a former model. It is just about the nicest thing I have seen in a long time. It is so overblown and so favorably compared with stores in big cities. It is all inclusive. I haven't looked for a thing I haven't found.

MSG. JONEY CHAPMAN, 703rd Ordnance Maintenance company: I think it's a swell place to do business. Everything is everything from the customer's viewpoint, and everything is very reasonable. I would say that they handle some of the best brands of goods money can buy, and I think this is about the best commissary I have found anywhere.

MRS. JOHN H. DIXON, wife of Maj. John Dixon, advanced class: This is my first visit to the new Commissary. I like it very much. There is ample space, and it is clean and light. I don't see what the soldiers do this long ago. I think they have a much better selection than before, and I think the women will enjoy shopping here more than ever.

MRS. JESSE L. TAYLOR, wife of Sgt. Jesse L. Taylor, Harmon Company, 4th Infantry regiment: I think it's swell. I like the way they have set up the section for checking and paying for the goods. Everything seems to be handled with more ease.

MRS. HARRY C. HAMMER, wife of Lt. Harry C. Hammer, Heavy Motor Company, 4th Infantry regiment: I think they have a lot more things, and their arrangement is much better. It saves all the running around, and to a person like me with children, time saved is wonderful. I have been here a year, and this is the nicest thing that has been installed.

MRS. RUSSELL J. SUTHER, wife of Lt. Russell J. Suther, Fourth company, Student Training regiment: I like it very much. It is so much roomier, and the distance are so near, and it is a pleasure to come out here to do my shopping.

Guided Missiles Ranges Unified

WASHINGTON—(APFS)—Each of the various guided missile testing ranges established within the past few years will come under the jurisdiction of a new service, under plans recently developed by the Defense Department.

The planned change in management and operational responsibilities for the ranges will not affect their availability for joint usage by all services.

In accordance with the new plan, the Joint Long Range Proving Ground, Banana River, Fla., originally operated by the joint chiefs of staff, will pass to Air Force jurisdiction and be called the "USAF Long Range Proving Ground Division."

Holloman Air Force base, Alamogordo, N. M., will be transferred to army jurisdiction, placing responsibility for operation of the base and the adjacent Santa Ana Range Proving Ground in the Army's hands. At Banana River, the Air Force has assumed command, management, budgetary and operational responsibility for the proving ground, but the installation will continue to function for the joint benefit of all services and the national guided missile program. The other ranges will be operated in a similar manner.

The Navy will continue to operate and control its test center at Point Mugu, Calif.

Warfare Training

PANAMA, C. Z.—(APFS)—Army troops in the Caribbean area are receiving jungle warfare training, which is replacing much of the activity usually found in unit training schedules. The training starts with individual jungle survival instruction and progresses through various phases into exercises for jungle combat teams. The first phase consists of classroom lectures and field trips conducted by experts.

Mighty Mite

Tiny Chutist Tops In Airborne Class

A diminutive reserve paratrooper last week proved to instructors in the airborne department the truth of the sage saying that "good things come in small packages."
 Rct. Jack Luckenbill, who stands just four feet, eight inches short, amazed his instructors by finishing the two-week reserve course at the top of his class. His score of 371 in the physical training test was well ahead of the majority of his classmates. When Jack reported to the airborne department, officials were certain at first that he had made a mistake and gotten in the wrong place. But Jack kept insisting that, despite his short stature, he was supposed to take trooper training, and after authorities had confirmed his contention through his parent unit, he was admitted to the course.

FOR JACK, THAT WAS A proud day. Before becoming a member of the 100th, he had tried to get in almost every reserve unit in his home town, Lovell, Ky., but each time he tried he was told he was too small.
 Then one day he talked to a buddy of his in the 100th who had just finished the two-week course here, and decided he might as well try one more time. So he talked to division officials and received the surprise of his life when they accepted him with hardly a second glance.
 The smallest man ever to go through trooper training here, Jack gets nothing but respect from his fellow troopers. As one of them said, "He may be small, but he's just like so much dynamite."
 Jack, just as every other trooper-trainee, must undergo a complete inspection of his equipment before going up to jump. When he comes through the line, the instructors have to put him on a bench so they can see what they're inspecting.

THEN, AFTER EVERYONE is all checked and cleared, the men load into the planes and suit off into the sky. As the planes approach the drop zone, the men stand up and hook their rip cords to the static line. Again, Jack must have help. One man pulls the static line down as far as he can, while two others lift Jack up and hook his rip cord to the line.
 After that, though, everything is much the same for Jack as for everyone else—that is, paratroopers. He dives from the plane and goes floating down to the ground.

Benning EM Face Retention in Army

Proposed Freeze Would Hit 2,000

More than 2,000 Infantry Center enlisted men, eligible for discharge between next month and July 1, 1950, are faced this week with the prospect of being kept in the Army an additional year.

A bill now facing the nation's lawmakers in Washington will set into motion, if passed, a regulation extending service of all ranks of Armed Forces personnel for one year if they are to be discharged on or before July 1, 1950. Congressional action is virtually assured this week, with passage being inevitable, according to reports received yesterday.

ROTC Is Visited By College Men

Representatives from five colleges in the southeastern states visited the ROTC summer camp at Fort Benning from 19-21 July. The visiting delegates were Dr. M. E. Hodges, president of North Georgia college; Dr. F. D. Bradford, president of A & T College of North Carolina; Dean F. H. Staley, Sr., dean of agriculture at South Carolina A & M college; Dr. E. H. Cannon, registrar of Western Kentucky state college, and Dr. C. G. Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee institute.
 On Wednesday the visitors witnessed a weapons demonstration at Camp Benning and a championship softball game at Stroup field.
 Thursday they saw an airborne demonstration at Lawson Air Force base, and mortar firing on Coolidge range.
 Friday they received a regimental parade held on French field. After the review, they observed company offensive tactical problems.
 The college men then had lunch with the cadet companies, and in the afternoon they accompanied Col. Forrest E. Cookson, deputy camp commander, on a regimental tour of the base.

200 Persons Added to Post Civilian Rolls

Col. James F. Torrence Jr., Infantry Center Management officer, disclosed yesterday that an additional 200 civilian employees had been put on the payrolls here during the past two weeks. At the same time, he said another 400 are being rapidly recruited by officials here.

"100" of civilian applicants this week for jobs ranging from clerical help to the more specialized fields of communications and artillery repair. Meanwhile, military officials were unable to report on what role the Infantry Center might play in training an expanded Army. It is a foregone conclusion, however, the post will handle many reserves and draftees when the call is sent out by the Army in August.
 Although there was no elaboration, Colonel Torrence asserted the increased civilian employment was to handle the Infantry Center's increased military activities.

Army Cancels Two Tournaments

All-Army championship tournaments in golf and baseball for 1950 have been canceled according to a recent announcement by the Department of the Defense.
 The golf tournament was to have been held Aug. 6-12 in the Second Army area while the baseball teams were scheduled to fight it out for the all-Army crown Sept. 1-7 in the First Army zone.

Adjutant General officials in Washington announced that reserve officers in the medical and dental corps, medical service corps, chaplains corps, corps of engineers, ordnance, signal corps staff (branch immaterial), finance, chemical, infantry, armor, field and coast artillery, army nurse corps and women's medical specialist corps could apply for reinstatement in the commissioned grades.
 Applicants have been instructed to apply through the commanding general of the Infantry Center, or Third Infantry division, whichever is applicable, who will subsequently arrange for processing and physical examination. Completed forms will then be forwarded to the Adjutant General in Washington for approval and final selection.
 Warrant officers and enlisted men of units alerted for shipment overseas who have submitted application for return to commissioned status will remain with the unit until they are notified by Army officials.
 A spot check indicates that more than 200 Fort Benning warrant officers and enlisted men are eligible for return to commissioned service under provisions of the new order. It could

Those who fought through Germany or participated in its occupation may have seen the words "Der Feind Hoert Mit," clinging with mute testimony to the remains of many bombed-out buildings.

Lawson Air Base Plans 'Operation Midnight Oil'

"Operation Midnight Oil", a program designed to guide air-crews in acquiring education qualifications in their career fields, is expected to go into effect at Lawson Air Force base soon, officials have announced.

Capt. Alton V. Nolan, Jr., military personnel officer, said that the airman's career program, which is being put into full swing, is a systematic utilization of the various types of training, including text-book study and on-the-job training, will be made in connection with the more formal phases of the program, a study list will be prepared for each of the 42 airman career fields on each of the different grade levels.

"Operation Midnight Oil" is an Air Force-wide program and will employ USAFI courses extensively to attain top knowledge, skill and efficiency in the various fields, according to Captain Nolan. Courses required in the operation may also be completed at civilian schools or their extension units or through correspondence courses.

Successful completion of a prescribed course will improve an airman's professional qualifications as well as provide a general educational background for attendance at service schools, he said, adding:

"The regulation covering this program, however, states that successful completion of the designated courses does not guarantee promotion."

Duplicate copies of all study plans will be made available to classification and promotion boards.

Inspection Team Touring Benning

Three officers from Fort Monro, Va., arrived yesterday to begin a three-day inspection of Reserve training activities at the Infantry School at Fort Benning.

Officers of the inspection team are Col. Nelson M. Lynde, Jr., Lt. Col. Howard C. Dellert and Maj. Wells A. Fowler.

Before arriving here the team made a stop-over at Dallas, Tex., where it also made a brief inspection of reserve activities. Although details are not known as to the nature of the inspection, officials here said the officers would receive copies of the training schedule being used by reservists here during regular summer encampments.

The inspection team will also analyze statistics relating to progress and size of training units coming to the Infantry Center for whirlwind training periods.

Pre-Career Exams Being Given Cooks

Ninety Infantry Center cooks, who are preparing for September career field examinations, have been processed in a pre-test review course.

Maj. John A. Rilovich, Infantry Center food service supervisor, reported this week that an additional 400 food service personnel would be processed during August. He said each man is given 25 minutes of instruction in preparation for the September test.

Drive to Uncover Vandalism Starts

A sweeping investigation is expected to be launched by Fort Benning officials soon to uncover guilty parties in a series of vandalistic crimes committed at the Infantry Center.

Col. William V. Rattan, Infantry Center inspector general, reported this week that flagrant violations of trespassing had been perpetrated in post areas declared "off limits." The high-ranking officer, who was acting under orders from Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander, disclosed that recent inspections of unoccupied buildings showed a marked increase in thievery and wanton destruction of government property.

Criminal offenses discovered recently were apparently committed over a period of several months. On that basis, officials said it would be virtually impossible to begin investigations of these cases because of inadequate clues.

Of future violations, General Burress was quoted as saying maximum charges would be pressed against guilty persons in closed barracks and family quarters had been removed. They also said evidence was found of persons smashing windows and tearing down locked doors "for the pure pleasure of it."

Meanwhile, a check with the Infantry Center judge advocate's office indicates that a convicted vandal can be sentenced to a maximum of two years hard labor and a dishonorable discharge for committing theft or destruction of government property.

Officials also pointed out that patrols of unoccupied areas by military police and unit guards would be increased in an effort to quell the offenses and nab the offenders. As yet, no arrests have been made in connection with the incidents.

During a staff meeting last week, General Burress instructed all major unit commanders to orient personnel in regulations prohibiting trespassing of "off limits" areas or breaking and entering into locked buildings.

Scouts Return From Florida

Fort Benning's Troop 27, Boy Scouts of America, returned home last Sunday after spending their annual summer encampment at Eglin Air Force base, Fla.

The scouts lived in pup tents at the regular scout grounds located approximately two miles from the main base on a large bayou, and were provided with facilities for fishing, swimming, crabbing and boating.

During their stay there, the boys were taken on tours of the base where they saw almost every type of plane the Air Force has, including the giant B-36 bomber. One of the highlights of their trip was a walk through the "frigid climatic hangar," where the temperature was 80 degrees below.

Another feature of the trip that was a unanimous acclaim "tops" was a trip on one of the base's crash boats.

Accompanying the scouts on their trip were 1st Lt. Thomas J. Hallman, scoutmaster, and 2nd Lt. Cecil A. Barnett, assistant scoutmaster.

Troopers Win Diamond Title

Sports Sidelights

BY LEO J. PARENT
BAYONET SPORTS EDITOR

With the close of the post baseball league, it seems to be about time to take a look at some of the season's records. The favored Airborne crew of the Student Training regiment did just what its fans said it would — namely, win the championship going away. They Troopers finished the season with 16 wins against one loss. The loss was to a stubborn Divarty nine that refused to believe all the Airborne claims to the crown. A surprised crowd watched the chutists get upset, 5-4.

Since the Troopers were the flag and the right to represent Fort Benning in the coming Third Army tournament to be held here Aug. 8-11, let's take a look at the Doughboys of 1950. One of their crew, Bill Brooks, walked off with the individual batting crown by slugging a terrific .455 for the season. He got that figure by virtue of his 20 hits out of 44 times at bat. He was 23 percentage points ahead of the 15th Infantry regiment's Chuck Medlin who finished the race with 19 hits out of 44 times at bat for .432.

Jim Shirley was a big factor in the championship race. He pitched the team to four victories and no defeats while slugging the pellet at a .357 clip.

One of the biggest advantages that the Airborne crew enjoyed was a tall, lanky, slow-talking, taciturn, control-artist with speed to burn who paced the pitchers in the league with seven wins. Every time that he stepped to the mound for the opposing side, the 15th Infantry might resent that remark since its game with the Airborne a couple of weeks ago saw Silcox in trouble for the only time this season. But that game was called because of rain, and nothing can be drawn from unfinished business.

Team averages usually tell a big story and the winning team showed up properly with the highest total, a respectable .293. Its nearest competitor was the runner-up 15th Infantry, which rolled up a .289 average. The third place team, however, would disappoint most statisticians since the Area Service Unit's team average was .269, while the fourth place Infantry School detachment showed up with .278.

The chutists' Herb Myatt with 375 and Ralph Terry with 315 were the best pitchers. Myatt kept opposing pitchers worrying about how far their next pitch would travel and in what direction.

All in all it looks like the best team won and deserve the congratulations of the fans here on post.

Remember the Third Army tournament Aug. 8-11.

STEFFY'S STALWARTS . . . Walter Fry, left, and Dale McClain are two of the men that Coach Joe Steffy is depending upon to spark his Doughboys of 1950 in this season's nine-game schedule. Fry will devote his efforts to the backfield while McClain is ready for duty in a tackle slot. A holdover from last year's squad, McClain stands 6 feet 2 inches and packs a muscular 212 pounds into the game. Fry starred for the First Cavalry division in Japan in 1947-48. He carries 170 pounds on a 5 foot 7 inch frame.

To Represent Post in Third Army Classic

The Student Training regiment's Airborne battalion walked off with the post baseball championship last Friday when it trampled the 30th Infantry regiment, 11-3, to become the Fort Benning Doughboys of 1950.

The Airborne team will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tournament here Aug. 8-11.

Paced by big Jim Shirley who banded out three for three and struck out 12 opposing batters, the chutists scored almost at will in the game. Five runs trotted across the plate in the first inning, three in the second, two in the fourth and one in the fifth.

The 30th got all three of its runs in the second frame when E. Troutman tripled with two men aboard and scored himself on a long fly by George McDonald.

Eleven men went to bat for the Airborne crew in the big first inning. Pitcher Henry Whitfield had trouble finding the plate and when he did the big bats of the Troopers connected.

Whitfield walked the first two men he faced, Bob Kinard and Paul Bonair, got Joe Smith and pop-up to the catcher, and then watched Bill Brooks, Jim Shirley and Ralph Terry scatter three singles in the outfield. Len Carney blooped to second for the second out. Tom Gallagher and Ike Silcox watched four balls whistle by them and that was all for Whitfield. E. Stone stepped to the mound for the 30th and Kinard greeted him with a bang when Smith banded a single to left, stole second and flew in on Brooks' second straight hit, a single to center. Shirley stepped to the plate and boomed a triple that rolled to the center-field fence. He walked home on a miscue of Terry's slam to third a minute later.

Shirley started the fourth inning with his second triple and third hit of the game, and came home on Gallagher's single to left. Gallagher went to second when Catcher Frank Silcox tried a pick-off at first and threw wild. Silcox then sent a long one to right field and Gallagher came and came in on Terry's sharp single to right.

ALL SET TO TAG ONE . . . That big bat that Ruth (Burr) Dally is waving is one of the reasons that the Fort Benning Wac detachment softball team is beginning to roll. After a slow start, the girls caught fire, and last weekend, rolled over the Fort McPherson, Ga., Wac detachment, 6-5.

The final run of the seven-inning ball game was scored by Brooks. He walked to begin the frame, went to second when Shirley was the winning pitcher. Stone gave Shirley a free pass for his team.

Dragons Wallop Medics; Secure Loop's 2nd Spot

The 15th Infantry regiment's Dragons strengthened their grip on second place in the post intramural league by blasting out an 11-2 victory over the post Medics last Thursday night. First-baseman Charles Medlin was the big gun in the Dragons' attack, getting three safe blows in five trips to the batter's box and knocking in two runs. Lefty Westcott, who scattered eight Medics hits in going the route for the Dragons, picked up his fifth win of the season, while Bob Hoffman, the first of three Medic moundsmen was tagged with the loss.

Funds Sought for Road Widening

Airborne to Slash Length of Course

The Infantry School's Academic Department disclosed today that five-week basic airborne classes would be shortened to three weeks.

A spokesman for the department also said that enrollment in classes beginning each week would be boosted "considerably." He added that expansion in the "near future" would bring "a considerable increase" to the paratrooper school.

The disclosure came only a week after Lt. Col. Patrick F. Cassidy, Airborne department director, had returned from Army Field Forces headquarters, Fort Monroe, Va., where he conferred with high Army officials.

Formerly Four Weeks
During World War II, the course for paratroopers stretched over a period of four weeks. A class slated to begin this week was canceled by Army officials. The last five-week class began Monday, and officials said it would continue as such. They added that trainees for the first three-week class would report here by next Tuesday.

One exception would be made in the length of instruction for students, an official said. Officers and first-four-grade enlisted men attending the basic airborne course would be given a week of special instruction after the usual graduation exercises. This would give this group four weeks' training.

In explaining the slash in training time, Lt. Col. Talton W. Long, Airborne department executive officer, said no "important" training would be lost in the process. He said that students could receive most of their physical fitness training before arriving here, and, there-

Aimed at Easing Cramp in Traffic

Infantry Center officials this week are seeking funds to provide improved roadways to handle congested traffic entering and leaving the post.

If funds were made available, it would enable construction officials to:

1. Widen into three lanes Fort Benning road from the junction across the bridge and to the main outpost.
2. Build a two-lane bridge across the Uptato to handle out-bound traffic.
3. Widen the present bridge to provide a traffic lane on the railroad tracks.
4. Install a traffic light at the junction of Lumpkin road and the junction of Lumpkin road to govern the flow of traffic.

Confers With Engineers

The start of the projects loomed closer as Col. Marcus Bell, Infantry Center G-4, announced that he had conferred with post engineers on the possibility of constructing new facilities and relocating present roadways.

Colonel Bell asserted, however, that the start of the projects depended on the availability of funds, which would be requested through Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson Ga.

A companion road-widening proposal has been tendered by Muscogee county and Georgia highway officials that would result in eventual broadening of Fort Benning boulevard all the way to the traffic circle. A Colonel Bell spokesman said the idea was gaining support each day. He added, however, the civilian project meant Muscogee county would post half of the expansion costs and the state government would, in turn, supply a similar amount to complete the development.

Colonel Bell, who was heading a battery of Fort Benning officials pushing the program, said present plans would call for the present bridge to be widened to three lanes. Also, the portion of Fort Benning road leading from the junction of Lumpkin road to the main outpost would be made into three lanes.

School Readiness Pledged by Sept. 1

A Sept. 1 completion date has been promised by construction officials now putting the half-way mark touches on the new Children's school being built adjacent to Custer Road Terrace.

Col. Marcus B. Bell, Infantry Center G-4, said the seven-classroom building, which can handle nearly 250 students from kindergarten to fifth-grade age, "will be the most modern type school structure to be found anywhere."

Construction of the school began several months ago in the wake of a heated crisis which seriously threatened to deter adequate schooling for Fort Benning grammar school children.

The present post Children's school anticipates an enrollment of nearly 1,000 in the 1950-51 school year. The new school will, to some extent, eliminate the critical shortage of educational space.

Combined Labor
The school, which is being constructed jointly by the Jordan company, builders of Custer Road Terrace, and Army engineers, is outfitting classrooms with equipment from Fort Jackson, S. C., which was closed while the school was in its first week of construction.

The T-shaped one-story edifice, which is of the red brick veneer type, will have classrooms extending perpendicularly in two directions from the main assembly hall capable of seating 200 students will be centrally lo-

Gen. Soule Here To Take Over 3rd

A 50-year-old former military attaché to China was at Fort Benning today to replace Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson as commander of the Third Division.

Brig. Gen. Robert H. Soule who was stationed at Fort Benning between 1927 and 1929 arrived on the post Tuesday for conferences with General Clarkson before he takes over command of the division Aug. 19. General Clarkson leaves for a new assignment at Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

A native of Laramie, Wyo., General Soule was formerly at Fort Benning as a student in the company officers' course and later as a company commander with the 29th Infantry regiment.

He began his career in the years prior to World War I as a member of the Wyoming National Guard. Later he received a commission through ROTC schooling at the University of Wyoming.

Stationed in Siberia
General Soule, who has been nominated by President Truman for promotion to major general, was stationed in Siberia between 1918 and 1920. In 1930, he was assigned as Chinese language officer at Peking, China, where he remained for three years. In the few years preceding World War II, he served in several assignments in the western part of the United States.

Post Boosts Work Week To 44 Hours

Fort Benning military units went on a 44-hour schedule last week to keep step with the post's increased activities.

Formerly, Third Infantry division troops were exempted from training activities each Wednesday afternoon, and worked each Saturday morning for four hours to accumulate the regular 40-hour week. Infantry Center units, however, required their personnel to work eight hours a day from Monday through Friday with Saturday and Sunday off.

Infantry Center officials explained the new working arrangement for units will not affect civilian employees of the post working in normal capacities. Civilians will remain on a 40-hour week, unless a later provision is made for increased work hours.

Meanwhile, troop unit commanders were implementing a program to instruct all personnel two hours each month in basic medical subjects. This added course will include personal hygiene, field sanitation, water purification and mosquito and malaria control.

Other films received by the library that are available for public non-profit exhibition are: Rifle Marksmanship with the M1 Rifle, 27 minutes; The Atom Strikes, 31 minutes; and Assignment Germany, 14 minutes.

1. Excellent lighting—a geometric arrangement of overhead lights combined with the glass wall of each classroom, will provide a new technique in classroom lighting. There is a modern method of diffusion and reflection involved, one official said.

2. Ventilation—completely windowed walls of classrooms may be opened to permit maximum cross-ventilation.

3. An overhanging roof—the design will permit windows to remain open even during most intense, slanted rain, and will shade the walls.

The school will also feature a lounge for teachers. Meanwhile, soldier-civilian laborers were rapidly completing the sides of the building, which is destined to set a precedent in government-operated children's schools.

A special team of military contractors, headed by Capt. George White and Lt. Robert C. Hughes, G-4 section, Lt. H. O. Shaw, 30th Infantry regiment, and Vernon E. Lister, Sr., chief carpenter for the Jordan company, are speeding delivery of material and supplies being used in the construction.

Airborne

Deleted from the regular course will be the first week of instruction—air landing in gliders and transport planes—and 40 hours of parachute packing instruction. Colonel Long said airborne troops "only pack their chutes in training, and that omitting this subject from the course is 'not harmful.' He said it was merely a psychological factor in developing individual confidence in a 'chute.' Regular riggers do the packing for an airborne unit.

The students, however, would receive a short orientation in the general functions, nomenclature and use of the parachute, Colonel Long said.

The new course will actually cover only subjects of immediate value to airborne troops engaged in full-time paratrooper duty. It was pointed out that emphasis is to be placed on actual jumping, and the preparatory training for qualifying jumps.

Meanwhile, Infantry School officials were preparing to make changes in the instructional staff of the Airborne department and to begin a program of reopening vacated airborne training facilities.

Reopening of heretofore closed training facilities would be a project of minor proportions, it was explained. Fort Benning terrain is dotted thoroughly with training equipment used by wartime airborne classes, which could be put back into operation on short notice.

The Fighting Third (4)

39th Gave Able Support During Vital War Actions

Editor's Note: The following is the fourth of a series of articles on the activities of the Third Infantry division.

The 39th Field Artillery battalion was originally organized as a field artillery regiment at Fort Lewis, Wash., in 1918 and demobilized one year later.

World War II's version of the unit was activated at Fort Lewis on Oct. 1, 1940. It received its cadre from the old 10th Field Artillery regiment, which was broken up into three separate battalions and designated the 10th, 39th and 41st Field Artillery battalions. They were to be the three 105-mm battalions of the Third Infantry division.

After its activation, the battalion conducted normal training at Fort Lewis until a Third was moved to Fort Ord, Calif., on May 28, 1942. At Fort Ord, the 39th engaged in extensive amphibious training until the division went to Camp Pickett, Va., for further training preparatory to embarkation for overseas movement.

THE REAL HISTORY of the 39th began during the invasion of French Morocco. At that time it gave close and continuous artillery support to the 15th Infantry regiment. After the capture of Casablanca the Third division was honored by a visit from President Roosevelt, who congratulated the division for its successes in the Moroccan landings. The president and his party had lunch with Service Company of the 39th Field Artillery.

The 39th continued to support the 15th Infantry in the landings on Sicily and played a close part in the capture of the city of St. Agata on the north coast of the island.

Following the Sicilian campaign, the 39th participated in the landing at Anzio. The 39th provided close and heavy artillery support to the 15th in its breakout from the Salerno beachhead. The battalion, in direct support of the 15th Infantry, made the landing at Anzio. The 39th suffered many casualties as the result of accurate German counter fire.

Following the breakthrough at Anzio, the 39th continued to support the 15th Infantry until the battle for Cisterna was waged. It again suffered heavy losses from German counter-fire.

AFTER THE BLOODY CISTERNA battle the 39th moved on with the 15th Infantry toward Rome. Once Rome was captured, the 39th began its preparation for the invasion of Southern France and during this time, the 39th practiced take-offs and landings from naval carriers.

Aug. 15, 1944, was the day of the invasion of Southern France and the 39th Field Artillery, still supporting the 15th Infantry regiment, made landings and assisted in the capture of St. Tropez. The 39th supported the 15th

Infantry all the way up the Rhine river valley through Avignon, Moulthair and Chambray to Besancon, where a bitter battle was fought before its capture.

AFTER ITS INITIAL SUCCESSES the 39th continued on through the Vosges mountains and the Murthe river. From this area the battalion continued in close support of the 15th to Strasbourg. That winter the battle for the Colmar pocket began, with the 39th playing an important part in the final victory.

From that time on, the story of the battalion was built around a series of dashes across the Rhine river through the Siegfried Line into the heart of Germany. That winter the assault with the 15th from Colmar to Nurnberg where one of the last and bitterest fights of the campaign was fought, the 39th had only a short rest before returning to the front.

QM Reserves Commence 2-Week Summer Training

More than 50 reserve quartermaster officers moved into their first week of training yesterday, following a welcome address by Maj. Gen. Joseph Sullivan, Quartermaster general of the Ground Forces.

At an opening exercise earlier this week, the officers, who represent the southeastern states, heard a welcoming address by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, Infantry Center commander and Col. David H. Finley, Infantry Center Quartermaster.

In his speech, General Sullivan pointed out to the part-time military personnel the important factors associated with being a quartermaster officer. He asserted that the main portion of every defense dollar in America is spent by the Quartermaster corps for the feeding and upkeep of personnel and their families. This, he said, constitutes a great responsibility on the part of the quartermaster officer.

General Sullivan also said recent developments, which were soon to be implemented in the Army, would assure our defense forces of greater morale and fighting ability.

The officers, which range in rank from lieutenant to colonel, will undergo two weeks of intensive review and training in quartermaster subjects. During the encampment, they will see first-hand the tremendous factors associated with being a quartermaster officer. They will have an opportunity to take part in its administration.

'Every Citizen A Soldier'..

Thomas Jefferson, during the war of 1812, wrote a letter to a friend in which he said, "Every citizen should be a soldier. This was the case with the Romans, and must be that of every free state."

Last Week It Took a California housewife to remind the entire country of this inevitable truth. Our troops were making a "do or die" stand in embattled Korea. Every morning people snatched newspapers off their front porches before eating breakfast. Eyes immediately focused on large bold-type headlines for the latest reports from the fighting front.

The Majority Of Our Citizens had just lived through a very vivid and memorable World War II. There were many shortages during that prolonged conflict. People went without some of the necessities of life and a few of the necessities. It wasn't pleasant. But, in going without, they gained victory. They benefited from the sagacity that allows us to sum up all philosophy in two words... sustain and abstain.

Americans Are An Ingenious Race Civilian and military, they have proven that since the birth of their country, especially in wartime. We have usually managed to get ahead of the other fellow and to come out on top. That spirit is what enables us to win wars and provides us with the necessary incentive and perseverance to see them through.

This Spirit Of Ingenuity And Desire to get ahead may be what made some people succumb to a flash panic of commodity buying last week. They certainly had trying enough experience with rationing during the last war. It is easy to see how they might tend to go overboard. On the other hand, they may have been unduly alarmed about the present world situation and stocked up out of fear. It is hard to say what prompted it. But prices soared all over the nation. And the people that caused that increase probably wondered most how it all happened.

Then Mrs. Randall C. Roberts wrote a brief chiding letter of admonishment to her fellow countrymen through her local Sacramento newspaper. Immediately, the words of wisdom from this one woman were carried by wire and radio across the nation into every home. "The heart of America was quickened and touched. Some heads will might have hung for a few minutes. But Mrs. Roberts, wife of a veteran artilleryman fighting in Korea, had given us a verbal lesson that we, all might well remember in the days of emergency ahead."

"From 'Time To Time since this war broke out, the boarders have made the headlines."

"I Wonder if stuffed stomachs and nylon clad legs will win this war. Have the people of the nation forgotten World War II so soon? Can you trade a pound of sugar or coffee or a pair of nylons for a life?"

"Do You Know What It is to have a loved one lost? Do you know what it is not to be able to sleep for a gnawing anxiety as to whether he is even alive? If he has food?"

"I Know What It Is. You see, I am the wife of the boy who was listed as the first Sacramentan missing in action in Korea."

We Do Not Like To sermonize. We need not further editorialize. The simple words of a soldier's housewife have hit the crux of an all-important matter to our nation's defense.

Our Late President Franklin D. Roosevelt gave us similar good advice in his 1933 inaugural address when he said, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself!"

Presidents Jefferson and Roosevelt were saying in their fine prose only what Mrs. Roberts last week told us more directly. That every citizen should be a good soldier, and that we need fear only fear itself.

There Are Some Things that we definitely should heed to see ourselves through the trying times ahead. They are not of material nature. We need to heed our strength, our fortitude and our courage. These are the human reserves necessary to assure victory.

Because farmworker shifted to the oilfields, Venezuela had to import nearly all its food in World War II.

Malik Gives Precedence to Red China Issue

The Soviet Union revealed its intention of returning to the United Nations Security Council this week. In announcing his agenda Jacob A. Malik, Russian delegate, put the question of seating Communist China above the Korean situation.

The Second Infantry Division and the First Marine division arrived in Korea this week to reinforce United Nations forces. Earlier this week Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, said in a speech at the front that American forces must hold back the North Korean invaders or face annihilation.

Four National Guard divisions are being called to active duty about Sept. 1. The Department of Defense announced this week. The Navy summoned several air reserve units totaling 39,000 men. The Marine Corps has announced it is calling all organized reserve ground units to active duty.

On a flying trip to Formosa this week, General Douglas MacArthur turned down Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's offer to send 35,000 troops to Korea. MacArthur said a study of the defense potential of Formosa against attack from Chinese Reds was the primary reason for his visit to the island.

Britain added its name to the list of nations offering ground aid to UN forces in Korea this week with an offer of infantry, armored, artillery, engineers and administrative forces to be sent as quickly as possible. Other nations offering aid are Turkey—4,500 combat troops; Thailand—4,000 soldiers; Australia, New Zealand and Cuba announced they would send units of undischarged size. Bolivia volunteered 30 officers.

President Truman signed a billion dollar military aid bill with a warning to "those bent on aggression" that freedom-loving nations will stand together to preserve their freedom. America's pocketbook is being hit by the effort for almost 35 billion dollars, counting money he has already requested and more he is expected to ask for later.

The Air Force ordered plane builders this week to start work on four billion dollars worth of planes. Some 400 companies were included in the order. Three more big aircraft carriers and 45 other ships were ordered into service this week by the Navy.

Report From Washington

Korean Campaign Ribbon Award Studied

The Defense department is studying the possibilities of awarding a campaign ribbon for participation in the Korean operations. Award of the Purple Heart for wounds received in action by military personnel already is authorized. Also under study are various matters affecting personnel administration, such as temporary promotions.

Among the names of 335 Naval Reserve officers selected for promotion to captain and commander, appears that of Arthur M. Godfrey of radio and television fame, appointed a general line commander.

The commanding general, Far East Air Forces, has been given authority to award the following medals for participation in the Korean action: Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldier's Medal, Air Medal, Bronze Star, Commendation Ribbon, and Purple Heart.

Personnel selected for Army Officer Candidate courses who are serving in a grade below E-4, will be promoted to this grade 15 days before reporting for study. Promotion to E-5 was previously authorized. The OCS program is being doubled.

Among Hollywood personalities eligible for Air Force Reserve duty under the current strength expansion are Jimmy Stewart, Tim Holt, William Holden, Robert Preston, Tony Martin and Tom Brown. Clark Gable, who distinguished himself in World War II, is on the retired list.

If their services are needed, the Navy can call from among Hollywood notables: Wayne Morris, Robert Taylor, Douglas Fairbanks, Richard Ney and John Howard. The Marines could get Tyrone Power, Glenn Ford, MacDonald Carey, Louis Hayward and William Lundigan. Ronald Reagan is a reserve Cavalryman. Vic Mature, Gig Young and Caesar Romero belong to the Coast Guard.

Flures recently published by the Army show that participation in the Army Education Program (TAE) reached the highest peacetime average in its history in the quarter ending last March. As of that date, 26.7 percent of Army personnel was engaged in some form of off-duty education.

An Army training film, "Guarding Against Sabotage," is being made available to industry to illustrate how attempts to destroy industrial facilities can be combated.

Reserve retirement of Army personnel will not be halted because of the Korean emergency, indications are that General MacArthur may be authorized to delay retirements to meet urgent combat needs in the Far East.

Happiness Often Comes When Unanticipated

BY CHAPLAIN FRANK C. RILEY

Our greatest disappointments spring from the "happines" we plan and strive for with all our might—and fail to achieve. Our greatest joys and sublime moments of happiness are sudden unlooked-for surprises—the good things that happen to us when we least expect them.

When these sudden surprises take place within us, filling our lives with the sunlight of happiness, we are likely to say that good fortune has smiled at us, or that we are having good luck. There is always a better and more simple explanation: we have always pursued happiness, and sometimes when we least expect it, we find that which we have pursued and recognize it. Recognizing happiness is like a stranger in a large city suddenly coming face to face with and recognizing a dear and trusted friend.

If happiness is fleeting as some may say, it is true only in that man is fickle, and that which makes us happy today may provoke us later.

It was Augustine who said: "Thou hast made us for Thyself, and the heart of man is restless until it finds its rest in Thee."

Every opportunity to be kind and considerate is happiness in disguise, knocking at your door; therefore, if it were possible to personify "happiness," it could truly be said that happiness is pursuing man as much as man is pursuing happiness.

Interest in others, a kind word to those in despair, friendship for those from whom happiness has "fled," personal integrity, a heartfelt "thank you," and an honest search for the source of happiness will award every man, according to his faith and works, that happiness which he needs in order to become a complete and wholesome person.

According to the scriptures, "Happy is the man who walketh not in the council of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night."

"Seek the Lord if happily you might feel after him and find him though he be not far from everyone of us, for in him we live and move and have our being."

He who finds God and recognizes him has true happiness within his heart. This happiness must be shared in order to be fully appreciated as it is written of old:

"With righteousness in the heart, there will be beauty (happiness) in the character. With beauty in the character, there will be harmony in the home. With harmony in the home, there will be order in the nation."

Happiness, like the "Holy Grail," can be near to us yet unseen and unrecognized by us. The ingredients of happiness can be within us and around us throughout our lifetime like the ingredients of the H-Bomb, and many will fail to find the ingredients or properly put them together.

So thoroughly mix a little interest in others, a bit of unselfishness, an honest day's work, a simple faith in God, and a few sincere "thank yous," shake well, and the result will surprise you. You will have a song in your heart, and a happiness in your being, the like of which is priceless and wonderful to behold!

Spring-boarding from the wartime treatment of a group of women by the Japanese in Sumatra, Nevil Shute rattles off in swift narrative style his contrived story of a heroic young woman who inherits a fortune and reconstructs a sizeable chunk of Australia to suit her own particular tastes.

A benign old London counselor relates the past and present experiences of his client, Jean Paget, a stenographer who inherits more than fifty thousand pounds from an uncle she had not heard of for years. Mr. Shute cleverly keeps the old gentleman, who supposedly wrote this narrative, in the story by a clause in the will. Jean Paget's money is to remain in a trust until she reaches the age of thirty-five.

The quiet young secretary joins her quiet old estate-trustee for dinner and there, with the preliminaries over, the real story of The Legacy begins to unfold its many wrinkles in the peculiarly bare, headlong style of the author.

Flashbacking to war times, the scene is switched to Malaya with Jean Paget as the head-woman of a group of English ladies and their children who are forced to march hundreds of miles from town to town in search of a prisoner-of-war camp that never existed. (To keep the record straight, the factual basis of this fiction involved a group of Dutch women who marched all over Sumatra. The struggles of these civilization-southern women as they march through the primitive villages and fetid jungles of a tropical land are by far the best parts of The Legacy. As they march death takes its toll of the weaker members of the party, and the harder women adopt the habits of the natives of the land.)

In their marching the little party is helped by an Australian prisoner of the Japs, who is crucified and believed dead by the women who are forced to watch the torture. Later, with Jean as the leader, the English ladies settle down in a friendly native village. They stay there cultivating rice with the women of the village to earn their keep until the end of the war.

After the war Jean Paget returned to England to an office job, but upon inheriting a fortune she decides to go back to Malaya to help the natives who treated her and her friends so kindly. While in the East she discovers that the Australian survived the Japanese torture, and becomes determined to go to his country and find him. At the same time the Australian has won a national lottery and is in England searching for Jean.

Eventually the two get together in Australia and get married after much talk about the hardships on women in the outback cattle country of down under. From here on in Jean puts her heart string of her kindly old trustee for money from her estate. With the money she rapidly reconstructs the Australian water hole into a paradise with such additions as ice cream parlors and beauty salons.
