Why Honesty Is So Important diplomatic envoys were handed a reply to the joint note of their governments of Dec. 22,

There have been several reports lately of items missing from the personal effects of men living in barracks. One conclusion that might be drawn from such reports is that these items have been taken by men living in the same, or nearby, barracks who found the temptation to steal too lucrative to pass up. Needless to say, this is a deplorable situation; one which fosters suspicion and mistrust.

It's unfortunate that there are men dishonest enough to take things which do not belong to them. It's even more unfortunate when one soldier steals from another, for in no other profession is it so important that honesty be practiced as it is in the Army.

Soldiers have far less privacy in their living quarters than do civilians, and thus it is imperative that their "bunk area" be as inviolate as would a bedroom in a private home. It should never be necessary for a soldier to be afraid to leave his footlocker or wall locker open while he takes a shower, or when he retires for the night. However, there have been cases when soldier's failure to lock up his personal effects resulted in

Why do people steal? Usually, it's the result of a momentary workness. Certainly, very few people are so criminally-in-clined that stealing is habitual. But a momentary weakness does not excuse the crime. A man steals because the man he does not excuse the crime. A man steam because the man ne is stealing from has something the thief wants, be it a tube of toothpaste or a wallet containing money. The victim of the thievery is usually the man who can budget his money so that it lasts from one rayday to the next.

Dishonesty can do more to lower morale in a unit than any other characteristic. Not only does it make men dissatisfied, but it makes them poor risks in combat, for they never know whom to trust. Unless he can be trusted by his fellow man, is not worthy of the uniform he wears

Chaplain's Corner

Must Look With Courage to Future

BY CHAPLAIN TORRENCE H. MAXEY

One of the great things about each new year is the fact that in some measure, we are allowed to start over. However, this starting over will be of little value unless we lear to use the past profitably and we are able to with optimism on the future. It would be rather easy for us to throw up our hands in desperation in the present day of conflict and trouble and say, "What's the use?." And that is just what many are in danger of doing. A short time ago in a grocery store, a clerk, speaking of the world situ-ation said, "I have looked to the North, to the South, to the East and to the West and I can see no gleam of light." To him that seemed the end. What he had not learned was that men are not made to always look down and around. Once a man walking along found a small piece of money. Facinated by this small find, he spent the rest of his life looking down at the ground. During his life time he found several small coins, a few pieces of and an assortment of various articles. But look what he missed. He never saw a beautiful sunset, or a snow capped mountain, or any of God's many glorious creations. He was earth bound and simply saw those things that were

In this new year it will be well for us to remember that there is something noble in man A farrier is a blacksmith who shoes horses and mules. which to live. And as long as man looks upward, no condition or situation can completely discourage him.

It has always been those who have looked upward and forward that have preserved our moral and religious values and have sought even greater heights. Many thousands of years age, in a time not unlike our own, a servant of God stood on a mountain side and blew a of tood stood on a mountain sure and been trumpet. In it was the sound of optimism and victory. For his nation the past had been dark and to some the future seemed even darker, but because he was able to look upward, the future was filled with victory.

If we are to be able to look to the future with optimism, we must not be able to look up, but we must also dedicate ourselves to helping create that future. This will mean using what we have. It has been said that we use only a small fraction of our abilities in the creation of good things. Perhaps all of us have abilities that are so far unused for the good of mankind,

St. Paul, looking back at the past and looking to the future said, "I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are be fore, I press toward the mark for the prize." Who could have a nobler purpose?

Therefore let us remember that all that is past is prologue and that there is a glorious future for the asking.

JOHN DAY COMPANY, PURLISHER

BY ROBERT L. GROOVER

The island of Guam lies approximately 5,053 miles west of San Francisco. It is in a group of islands known as the Marianas, which lie some 1,506 miles south - east the Philippines. Guam was ceded to the United States by Spain as a result of the Treaty of Paris in 1898. Hour of Glory" is placed in 1898, so the book concerns itself with the Borne, first Governor of the island and the hero of this

Peter Borne was a foot - loose, American vagaboud on Guam when the Americans arrived there in 1898 to take con trol of the island. The American vessels shelled the capitol city, Agana, and were surprised to find no armed resistance. They were more surprised when a ragged, unshaven American drew up alongside their vessels in an outrigger cance to bid them welcome. So charming were his manners and so cooperative in spirit was he, that the American naval officers immediately named him governor of the island. Then too, there was no one else qualified to take the job at the

As this is a romantic novel, it is proper to make mention here of Peter's heart - throb, one. Rosita, a native Guamanian Like her fellow islanders, Rosita was of Chomorroan lineage, and apparently quite a handsome gal. There are other characters who figure prominently in "Hour of Glory", and with the exception of Peter Borne, they are all native islanders. Like most other Pacific Islanders they are all fun - loving, devilmay - care, and not at all inclined to industriousness. With a warm breeze blowing, a yellow moon moving through a cloudless sky, and a calm, blue - green sea lapping at your toes, who can be industrious? Certainly not our native Guaman

Peter Borne assumed command of his island paradise with great eagerness. He introduced reforms and formats ernment administration which did not all please the residing priests. As a matter of fact his system of government was so bad that the Navy finally ousted him bodily from the scene. But before they finally did get rid of him, he had contributed enough adventure, color, and drama to the oc-casion to provide lively material for many many sessions of Choko drinking. The latter compares favorably to the present day evil known as cocktail parties.

Those unfortunate soldiers who have, in the past, been assigned to Guam will disagree violently with many passages in "Hour of Glory", but they must remember that the story is placed in 1898 — not in 1960. All in all, this is a good piece of fiction. It moves fast, is filled with action, and best of all, manages to tell a story without teaching a history

The old year has slipped into the past to be replaced by strong, lusty little New Year's babe and 1950 and the holiday fun can be labeled "Memories" tenderly wrapped in layender and laid away to be recalled at some future date. Benning has always had its share of holiday fun and activities, so I sat here thinking back into the years when Benning was a young post and wondered—what it was like and how things like Christmas and New Year's was elebrated. Twas only natural that I should talk to Mrs.

ndrew Petrosky who lives on Sigerfoos Road he and her husband have been stationed here since Benning was just a camp with muddy roads. I was glad I found her in a reminiscent mood and over a cup of steaming coffee, she dipped into the past and told me of the Benning by-gone years.

AUSTRIAN-BORN ROZALIA PETROSKY came with her husband to Benning just after it was started. At first they lived in one tent in what was known as Squaw camp near the area in which Greene Hall-is situated at present, and they felt rather ritzy when they were given the second tent for cooking and eating purposes. Five moves in quarters has brought her to her present comfortable address

Watching Benning grow from a sprawling group of tents to the present day beautifully planned and constructed Army post has been like watching a mean little girl grow into a beautiful woman and has proved just as interesting. She recalls vividly that the hospital area was a thick woods until not so long ago.

The Christmas spirit began to manifest itself early with everybody decorating their quarters on the inside and outside and vying with the others to-make their creations prettier than their neighbor. The week before Christmas was filled with baking and she recalls with nostalgia the spicy, good edors that came forth from the kitchen as the lady of th house baked fancy cookies, luscious cakes and candies of various kinds and of course the pre-cooking and planning of the all important Christmas dinner. Dinners in those early days were never planned for just a few people because on Christmas day the more faces around the table the merries was the dinner.

Christmas Eve was the highlight beginning the actual holiday festivities. Early at night the choirs of the churches met and the lure of khaki. then the pinno was loaded onto a truck, the choir climbed aboard and off they went. The commanding general was the first stop on the song road, with the chaplain's quarters the next stop and so on until they traveled up one street and down another with their carols. The bands on the post followed the same itinerary. All homes on the post were opened to the carollers and the singers were presented with hot coffee, cake or sandwiches which were most welcome after being out so long in the cold. After they had made their rounds, if they were Catholics, they attended mid-night mass, and then gathered at the Chaplain's home for a party. Christmas day was celebrated with the opening of presents, big dinners and visiting around among friends.

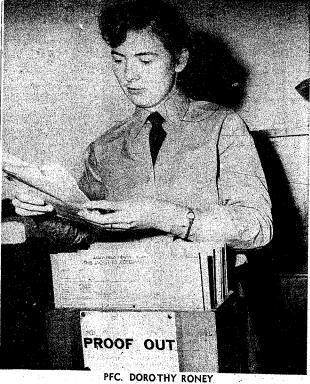

NEW YEAR'S EVE was anticipated with as great an air of excitement as Christmas. Practically all families held family dinners and then the home watch parties were in vogue with friends and family present. Lots of times the evening was just spent in pleasant talk of "do you remember" and sometimes the party listened to records and later the radio. A generous buffet was set and plenty of egg-nog and boiled custard provided and always something to toast the New Year when it lustily arrived. And always the touching, melancholy 'Auld Lang Syne' rang out as the bells chimmed. New Year's day was another day of family dinners and visiting around.

It was in the early thirties that there was a decided change in the watch party procedure with more and more families going to the club for the evening's festivities and the club generously provided a bottle of champagne for each table to properly greet the coming year.

Mrs. Petrosky says she is modern in everything except the celebration of Christmas and New Years and she still clings to the old way, decorating her home with tapers, holly, and to the old way, decorating her home with tapers, holly, and gay ornaments and she still bakes her own cookies, cakes and candies. And though the children are not here now she still has a tall tree sparkling with ornaments and piled with gifts and she hopes that in the future the choirs will go back old carol-singing over the post.

After I had talked to Rozalia Petrosky I felt as though I had turned the years back to the dear, days, beyond recall and I thank her for a view of what Benning was like when it

Sports Sidelights

Disclosure this week that the Fort Benning Doughboys may be tearing up the sod on Third Army gridirons this year was welcome news to local fans who are looking hopefully for a sports-active 1951.

The announcement, by Capt. William C. Fannin post athletic officer, however, had a big "if" attached to it. He said that Fort Benning will have a football tenn this year "if" the present world situation doesn't increase it's manpower demand, and drain the team of all the available players.

Of course with the increased draft, the post will receive its share of recruits. Recalled reserves and National Guardsmen will also bolstor the manpower situation here.

Details for the 1951 edition of the Doughboys haven't as yet been outlined. Possibly, within the next few weeks more informa-tion will be released. There has been some mention of spring practice, but at the moment, all that can be said is that there will be a team. . .providing?

Operation of the Panama Canal, also a responsibility of the Army, is as necessary to the U. S. as the Sucz Canal is to-British Empire. Prior to the completion of the "Big Ditch," ships moving from the Eastern Seabord to Pacific ports and thonce westward to Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan and other Far East ports had to travel all the way around Cape Horn. Now, with the Panama Canal open to seagoing traffic, thousands of miles are saved, to say nothing of vast sums of money.

Furthermore, the Panama Canal is vital to the defense of the nation, making it possible to move our Navy from the to the Pacific in a much shorter time. The money the Army uses for the operation of the Canal is also a part of the total appropriation, and can not be used for building its mannower and equipment.

Probably the least known activity of the Army Department is its work in the development and improvement of harbors navigable waterways. Take for example, the many inland waterways, once useless for anything save excursion boats, through which giant transports pass with ease, thanks o Army engineers. These functions, too, although certainly not divorced from U. S. defense, still do not build up our military strength; yet a part of the Army appropriation just he used to fulfill these missions.

must be used to fulfill these missions.

Assistance to victims of floods and disaster is also a responsibility of the Army, and this, too, requires an expenditure of a portion of the Army's appropriation. Most people are aware of the part played by the Army in such recent humane missions as Operation Haylift, but few are aware that the money used to accomplish them was a part of the total mintary appropriation.

Now that all-out mobilization is a distinct possibility, mill-tary appropriations will increase considerably, but the missions of the Army will remain the same. For the Army will always be the servant of the people.

Power Lines and Tow Lines in Daily Life

BY CHAPLAIN CLARENCE M. WALTON

One morning I stood on the bluff overlooking Lawson Air Force Base and watched a powered aircraft and a glider take off together. The glider cleared the ground first and was ten or twelve feet above the runway bfore the powered nircraft began to rise. The two eraft appeared somewhat similar in nature, and from my point of observation I could see no line of connection between them. Any-one unfamiliar with the differences between gliders and planes might have concluded that two aircraft were on an equal hasis, or that the glider had more power than the plane, since it rose frm the ground first.

Any experienced observer, however, even without being able to see the counction, would know that the glider was attached to the plane by means of a tow - line, and that it did not possess within itself the power to rise from the ground. Neither can the glider maintain of itself the altitude which the two-plane gives it. A few minutes after the take-off, when the two aircraft circled back over the field the tow-line was disconnected, and immediately the glider began to descend. Not only could it not rise any higher, but it could not so much as maintain itself in level flight.

It is true that gliders have been known to utilize the power of wind currents and remain several hours. In 1931 Lt. William Coeke Jr. set a new American record by keeping a glider aloft without support for 24 hours and 14 minutes. A few years later Kurt Schmidt, a German experimenter, set a new world record for non-nowered sircraft by galrents for a non-stop flight of 36 hours and 26

But these cases are phenomenal. And even so, the power for such flights comes from sources outside the glider, and over which the glider has no control. In general it may be said of gliders that they depend on others to start them off, to keep them going, and to determine their direction. We may notice in life the human counter parts of the powered aircraft and the glider. It thrills and delights us to see a man who knows where he is going and has what it takes to get there. Such a man does not depend on someone else to tow him off, and he does not rely on the uncertain support of others to maintain him. Neither does he live fear of the time when the tow-line may he severed and he must start on the downward

Of course even the powered aircraft is not self sufficient. From time to time it must receive fuel from outside itself. In the same way, the power driven lift must be renewed by contact with God. Men who contact and utilize the Divine power-line can receive unto themselves the power and resources to attain whatver worthy goals they may have set for themselves. Of such men it truly may be said, "The Kingdom of God is within you."

The difference between the man who depends on the tow-line and the man who has made contact with God's power-line is not always readily apparent to the casual observer. The tow-line is not always visible. Often a man may rise on the power of another more quickly than does the power-driven man himself. And if it is inevitable that some men find not the power within themselves to carry on, i to the good that Life has its tow-lines. But the answers to Life's questions come not from the towdines, but from the power-lines. Carte Co. 11.

GRENADINE ETCHING By Robert C. Rourk DOUBLEDAY AND COMPANY, Publisher

By Robert L. Groover

There has never been, and probably never will be a woman quite like Grenade Eching. Therefore, any similiarity between Miss Etching and any other woman either dead or alive, is not anly coincidental, but ridiculous. Miss Etching, in the course of her life, has more amour, activities, and adventures than any heroine of any dozen novels now up for sale to Hollywood, As the author so aptly puts it in his own words: "She has more odd friends than a night-club columnist."

Grenadine Etching started from scratch. Her mother, her father her infant brother, all were dead on the day of her birth. Her home had burned down; the doctor who delivered her had been found in a ditch with a bullet in his brain. Grenadine'a sole protector from the day of her birth was a giant Negro witch named Maman Toddy. Maman was feared by the blacks, and the whites accorded her a great respect. To make her charge completely happy, Maman purchased Grenadine a baby gorilla named Brandy. Brandy was not sure to which sex "it" belonged and no one else seemed to care. Thus our trio commenced their way through life in their own insignificant way. With New Orleans as a starting point, they began their adventures.

After brief skirmishes in and around New Orleans, our trio turned up in Cuba. Grenadine charmed the natives with her natural wit and vivaciousness. She was by this time in the full bloom of young womanhood, and more than a match for any witty male. Cuba proved to he too tame for our trio so they sailed off for a tropical island the location of which was not defined clearly in this pièce.

Grenadine found the natives of this tropical island in a ter-Grenadine found the natives of this tropical island in a ter-rible mess. For years they had been cavorting in a careless manner of abandonment and seemed quite happy in their own way. But Grenadine had become hardened to emotion and love, d set about reforming them. This she did in a highly efficient way. But the tropic heat got the best of her. And anyway her cook took to watering her brandy, things got out of hand, and there was a certain amount of idle gos It was at this moment that our trio sailed off to Boston. And it was somewhere about this time that Grenadine amassed

In a moment of inspiration Grenadine invented the cigarette, In a moment of inspiration orenadine invented the disarrette, and thereby amassed another fortune. At he same time she modernized advertising, and "helped that Italian fellow work the wrinkles out of the radio". Grenadine was by this time getting on in age, about seventy-five, and finally got around to visiting her children whom she had lost in a noctural stroll in the park, when the children were about five years of age.

If it is possible to type this book, it probably can be best compared to the writing of S. J. Perelman. But it is more probable that no one on earth writes quite like Robert C. Ruark. The readers of Ruark's daily column will rejoice in this his first book. Non-readers of his column will find something new and

SHE TOLD ME HER FATHER was an Army man, since retired and most of her childhood was spent traveling from one Army post to another. She was born in the Phillipine one Army post to another. She was born in the Phillipine Islands and lived there for a number of years. When she was twelve years old her father was transferred to Tientsin, China, and so the family went along with him. As she explained, a child of twelve is not very interested in the political trend of a country, only the funny sights, but there were executed includes the transfer that the significant that the significant country and the significant country and the significant country and the significant that the significant country and the significant country are significant country and the significant country and the significant country and the significant country are significant country and the significant country ar several incidents that stand out vividly in her memory. From her home in the compound, she took a sightseeing trip to the more uneducated party of China. She saw several instances of the inhuman streak in the Chinese people and one of the most gruesome sights was a large pen of skulls. There was a huge chopping block with a blade of great size that severed the head from the body in a second. The practice was to cremate the body and throw the head into the pen. In her travels, she went with a guard to a genuine opium den, which would put any movie scene to shame with its silk pillows, curtains and the men lying around with their bines. She was not permitted beyond the door. The whole two years she spent in China were marked by strife within the county and on numerous occasions, the troops of the 15th Infantry and the 31st Infantry were

She has made four trips to Hawaii and one to Europe, but the next time she saw the Orient was when she went with her husband, M-Sgt. Dalton, to Japan in 1946. Her home there was Fukuoka in the Isle of Keyoshu.

Some of her most pleasant memories of Japan include her interpreter who learned to speak English in a restaurant where she worked after the war, and her maid. Both of them were in dire circumstances as a result of the war and Juanita appealed to the headquarters in her section for permission to send back to the states for clothing for them. As a result of this plea she furnished them with clothes and shoes and in some in-stances food, and earned their undying gratitude for her kindness. When she started back to the States, the family of her interpreter presented her with a pigeon blood red hand-carved lacquer table which graces the center of her living room and the family of her maid gifted her with a saki set. over three hundred years old, consisting of the four pieces all hand painted with the rising sun, the tortoise and the happy old couple. She is also the proud possessor of three letters from the Fukuoka Perfectural government expressing their appreciation to her for her kindness and generosity to the people who worked for her.

DURING HER STAY IN JAPAN through the Perfectural government, she was able to attend a ceremonial tea and a dinner. The tea is a part of their religion and every movement significent. She provided her own food for the dinner as the people stationed there were not permitted to eat Japanese food

Her home here at Benning is a collector's heaven with price-"less objects brought back from the Orient. She has made some of the paintings and desks in the room and has done numerous

Summing up her opinion of the orientals, which she explains is her own personal opinion, the orientals are still a primitive people and she believes the reason they have had such great success in the Korean situation is because they know how to live on the land eating weeds and dry tish, they are used to extreme cold and most of the orientals use opium which makes them insensible to cold and suffering.

As I turned for one last look at the room and passed through the door, I felt that I had left the Orient and was back in the modern day world once again. And I say my thanks to Juanita Dollar for a most pleasant afternoon.

Meet Miss Benning ...

Spotlighted this week in the Miss Benning parade is Pfc. Kathleen J. A. Kline, who is originally from Loudonville. Ohio but who now claims Columbus, Ga. as her home. She was manager of her father's ice cream dairy store before donning the uniform to become one of Uncle Sam's nieces.

Kathleen is currently assigned to the chief clerk's office, Military Personnel division and is responsible for handling correspondence. She received her basic training at Fort Lee. Va., and also attended the Leader's course at the same post. She was also a student at the Typing and Administration school here at Benning during the past summer.

Pfc. Kline, practically a new bride having been married since last summer, claims an evening of dancing with the husband as her ost pleasant hobby. Boating rates high on for her to go under than to remain on top of the water. When she has the chance she loves to read and chances are you'll find the book s a mystery story. On those nights when they don't go dancing her husband will take her to the movies which according to Kat's likes will be musical, dramatic, or F. B. I pictures. Pfc. Kline loves music and is especially fond of semi-classical and popular. For her off duty hours, she chooses tailored type clothes and it is hard for her to make a definite choice of likes red, yellow and green.

BASKETBALL PICTURE

The fast moving race for the Fort Benning basketball champlonship this week narrowed down to two teams, the 1950 cham-pion Student Training regiment and the newly-arrived Eight Infantry regiment of the Fourth division.

There are still six more weeks of play left in the 1951 season but judging from all indications it appears that the 1951 crown will rest on the heads of one of these two teams. To date, both squads have chalked up a total of eight league triumphs without a loss and have won most of them by fair margins.

Local fans may get a preview of how the two teams stack up when they meet at the Briant Wells field house next Tues-tay night to decide the league lead. Both teams are well coached and boast several outstanding players. This will be their only meeting of the regular season. From all indications this migh decide the post champions for 1951.

Amateurs Are at It Again

One of America's most respected military analysts last week spoke out against what he called "amateur strategists" those who are wholly ignorant of military strategy but who hold themselves up as experts. In bis syndicated column, Major George Fielding Eliot pointed out, an obvious truththat sea and air power alone can not win wars; it takes the combined effort of the Navy, the Air Force and, most important of all, the Army. This is in direct opposition to sentiments voiced recently by a few high - placed individuals who advocated building a strong sea and air arm without more than token additions to the gound forces. It's about time an expert took issue with the amateurs.

It should be plain even to the most uninitiated, that the combat soldier, the man who lugs an M-1 around, is the deciding ration into submission with round-the-clock bombing of its Artillery branch will wear the old "crossed field and 2,532 were recommended for the grade of industrial cities, but we failed. We tried during the Korean conflict to annihilate the North Korean and Chinese Communists with similar tactics. But they keep coming. The only time we ship Missouri while engaged in the bombardment new Surgeon General. He succeeds Rear Adm. have been able to stop any army is through the employment of enemy-held territory on the east coast of Ko. Clifford A. Swanson.

Certainly, we do not claim that bombing is fruitless. It's of inestimable value, Bombing can reduce a nation's production capacity to the danger point; it's entirely conceivable that bombing can eliminate, for all practical purposes, a nation's ability to produce war goods. Furthermore, bombing can slow

It must, of course, be large, but not at Fort McClellan, Ala., next summer. The World listments since the recent holidays necessarily larger than that of a potential enemy. It must have high morale and the best leaders this nation can provide.

To concentrate our efforts at defense on the Air Force and Navy, all the while neglecting the Army, is to invite disaster. It's inconceivable that any nation could survive in this troubled world without its Army.

Keep Quiet and Live Longer

This piece shouldn't have to be written; but until the American soldier learns to keep quiet about military movements, a great deal more comment will be necessary.

It should be obvious to a man scheduled for duty in the Far East, for example, that his movements are worth more than just a passing interest to the enemies of UN forces in Korea. It should be obvious that the enemy is just as anxious to eliminate any potential force as he is in killing those which already face him.

For the most part, the men themselves realize the danger of talking too much, but they forget that their wives, their sweethearts, their relatives or their friends aren't always fully aware of this danger. So, they tell them where and when going, with the result that their movements are wellthey is going, with the result that their movements are weit-known by far too many people. An Army wife talking to friend on a street corner or over the telephone can undo in a few minutes all the careful planning that went into keep-ing an overseas shipment classified. She won't believe she's harming enyone. Chances are, she won't, but there is always the possibility that she will

Fortunately, very little damage has been done by loose talk of military movements since the Korean war began, but that was due to the enemy's lack of naval forces than to a lack

Life's Journey Must Be Carefully Planned CHAPLAIN GRANDISON M. PHELPS, JR.

In a famous painting of an Indian riding a horse, the animal is pictured atop a high mountain. The rider, with his left hand shading is eyes, searches the distant terrain. Th creator of this work of art states that this painting depicts a common custom among the western Indians. When called upon to make a journey, the Indian did not immediately moun his horse and commence to fulfill the command given him. Instead, he ascended the highest Il and from the top thereof planned the course of his journey, selecting the landmarks to serve as his guides as he rode through the woods and valleys. With these fixed features as his guide, be minimized the possibilities of losing his way. Even though the road he chose might seem at times to take him far from his desired goal, he was not perturbed because his course had been charted well.

Man's success in life, and success does not mean material gain only but man's value as a contributing agent to the moral and spiritual betterment of mankind, depends upon the standards he has accepted and the goal he strives to attain. If these standards are low nd his goal is easily attainable, his life is comparatively fruitless and consequently of little worth. If, on the other hand, his standards are high and his goal is among the stars, his e is pregnant with the possibilities of fruit-

The beginning of a new year is a time when mankind begins another journey on the rough sea of life. Many of us feel that we have failed miserably in our previous travels. We, therefore, make different kinds of resolutions (many of which have already been broken) and rush of which have aiready been broken) and ruan madly onto our journey without the least bit of prayerful meditation. Consequently, our sense of direction is confused and we often become lost and frustrated in the woods and valleys of life because we lack something concrete to serve as our guide. The individual striving for Christian perfection, must first go to the mountain top with prayer on his lips and choose his landmarks before commencing life's journey. Then when he travels through getting lost nor is there any doubt about the direction to follow. All that he has to do is practice the salient landmarks placed by Christ which will guide him toward the attainment of bis goal.

What shall we use as our guide for obtaining what shall we use as our guide for obtaining the desired goal of life? Who shall be our example in our striving for perfection? Moses, a chosen instrument of God, gave humanity the Ten Commandments as a guide by which to obtain life's desired goal. These should serve as spiritual landmarks. And in the beauty of the 10th Psalm the desired example for the 10th Psalm the desired example for our striving toward perfection is set before us. We must be able to say with this psalmist: "I have set the Lord always before me." If we adopt these two essential conditions as our guide, the dark spots of our life will he brightened our fears of losing our way will vanish, and our goal, the fulfillment of the will of God, will be attained.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN . . . We're proud to present for your admiration and edification the beautiful, the gorgeous, the glamorous Gwen Caldwell, winner of the title, "Most Beautiful, Legs." There are many snoos in the American way of the what most part they help to make the American way of life what it is today. Most of them are disliked by other neople, but are harmless and in a lot of easer regarded with a certain amount of humor by their fellow-citizens. For instance, there is the Physical Prowess Snob. We can find this type enough in the Army. He will usually look down upon his fellow-soldier who cannot do fifty pushups at one time. He can be found in the gym or more often running around the block for "kicks". He looks down on those who to use a phrase, "don't take proper care of themselves." They are adored by their superiors (who could not execute a half-minute cake-walk without suffering heart failure), and shunned and hated by the weaker comrades. Both types make good soldiers, so it stands to reason that they can hate each other without ill-effect.

And so on down the line. There are Intellecting Spoke The

The Moral Shob can be found occasionally in the barracks, and spends much time reading the Bible aloud to his equally moral species much time reading me note aroun to ms equany moral but disinterested bunk-mates. He is a snob in the worst form because he is using the Holy Bible in an attempt to elevate himself in his buddies' opinion. Needless to say, he never succeeds in his efforts. don't think I have ever met a more dynamic personality than Arthur Compton. Perhaps it was his low voice and faultiess diction, or maybe it was his firm belief and faith in the tenets of UNESCO, but whatever it was made a lasting impression on me.

Mr. Compton has been a permanent U. S. delegate to UNESCO since 1946, and has served nually since 46.

Arthur, son of Arthur Compton, Physics
Nobel prize winner in 1927, was a recent guest of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard Darnell. He and his, wife were in the United States on two months home leave and came to visit their old friends before returning to Europe where he has already received orders transferring him to Vienne on a job of a political nature. He explained to me that although he will not be with UNESCO in Vienna he would never forget the organization nor the principles for which it stands, for fundamentally they are the principles on which our government is built or the principles on which our government is built or the principles on which our government is built or the principles of t

IF EVER A MAN WAS QUALIFIED for a job with UNESCO. Arthur Compton is. This handsome embassy representative graduated from the University of Wooster in Ohio and received Braudated from the University of Wooster in Unio and received, his.-Masters degree at Harvard. He has attended schools in India, Switzerland, France, Germany and England and dur-lag World War II served in Military Intelligence. He was reeased to return to a job with the Department of State, leased to return to a job with the Department of State.

By his own admission he considers himself the "black sheep" of his family since his father, Nobel prize winner and one time in atomic research, is president of Washington University, his uncle, Wilson Compton is head of Washington State university, and the third of the "three famous Comptons" Karl, is resident of Massachiusetts Institute of Tachholapy, And Lawy sity, and the third of the "three famous Comptons" Karl, is president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. And I say here, if he is a black sheep, we need more like him.

When he spoke of UNESCO's plans for peace in this world community (UNESCO is the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural organization) you could almost feel his zeal and belief in his quiet voice. He said that nations can live in a barronatory world community that as we live in zeal and belief in his quiet voice. He said that nations can live in a harmonious world community just as we live in a peaceful town, but this can only be done if we know and understand the problems that confront our neighbors, and that can only be accomplished by an exchange of ideas in science, education and culture. For this purpose, UNESCO has set up a program of exchange of persons and hundreds of students and teachers have been relocated through fellowships and scholarships. This organization believes that you cannot teach an illiterate person so the first aim is to combat world illiteracy.

As he continued, plans for programs that would probably require years to see the results come to light and you realized tequire years to see the results come to light and you realized there was more to this organization than general realized. He stated that in their plans for world peace economic; racial and religious tension has no place, and it believes that what, happens to other people is of utmost importance to us as a nation and an individual.

THERE IS MUCH THAT AN individual or community do in helping the principles of UNESCO along especially in the racial and religious tolerance lines, Mr. Compton believes. Again comes the problem of education and an explanation of the meaning of human rights. He said that there were headquarters of the organization that would provide material on various long range programs of the group and could be had for the asking.

I asked him point blank just why we in America should all be behind UNESCO and its principles when there was a very grave and dangerous situation existing in Korea. There was no hestitation when he answered that we all should be interested and support the UN and its agencies, because the Korean situation and similar ones in the Far East are the symptoms, rather than the cause of world tension and conflict, which must be solved. These present symptoms are those that are being attacked by the UN now and if we are ever to have a stable and lasting peace in the world we must solve these present symptoms as well as build up our knowledge so that we may meet the causes that result from them.

Then he said "I have a favorite autoation I would like to soive these present symptoms as well as build up our knowledge so that we may meet the causes that result from them. Then fie said "I have a favorite quotation I would like to quote for you." In a forceful voice he added "War begins in the minds of men it is in the minds of men that the defenses of peace must be laid."

CPL. VERNIE JOHNSON

Cpl. Vernie Johnson claims the distinct honor of being our first Texas Miss Benning, listing her home town as Clifton, Texas. She was employed at Montgomery Ward in Fort Worth prior to entering the armed forces.

Vernie is currently assigned as Nursery attendant in maternity ward at the Station hospital. Although her first assignment was in-formation-clerk at the hospital, she is much interested in her new assignment as newborn budges are assumating to ner, one necessary, sed herself to all the nurses on her particular ward and is a great help to them and they all hope that she will be assigned to them

Cpl. Johnson claims that she has no particular hobbies, but somewhere along the line you get the impression that such things as cooking and cleaning would come mighty near to being a hobby with her. It is natural, since she came from the big, beautiful state of Texas, that her preference in movies would be stories of the West and her favorite music mournful western tunes. Vernie is a great read-er and most of the time you will find her surrounded by mysteries of all types—nothing in the reading line can come up to a good blood chilling mystery in her opinion. She is a typical out-door type of girl and her favorite clothes are casual sports and if she had her

Enrollment Increases Noted In Army Extension Courses

Self-education in a big way seems to be the goal of at least two units at Fort Benning.

Record enrollments in Army Extension Courses by ofticers and men of both the Second battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry regiment and the 25th Infantry regiment were announced this week.

Leading the list is the 325th AIR's Second battalion, with a total of more than 160 volunteer students, including all of the officers and most of the top three grades of enlisted men. Additional applications are in the mail. Mogethan 200 enrollments from this group are expected by the end of the week. Students from this unit are taking instruction in map and aerial photograph reading.

Twenty-nine officers from the 25th Infantry regiment have applied for subcourse 20-4, dealing with crew served weapons.

Economy Is Everybody's Job

The American public, in backing the President's request for a rapid build-up of our defenses, has proved that it realizes the importance of military strength. There has been little or no opposition to the plan for increasing taxes. But there has been a good deal of concern expressed for the strain which this added expenditure, plus this expected increase in taxes, will place on our national economy. The public demands full dollar's worth of security for every dollar spent, and it has a perfect right to make that demand,

Perhaps the best way to insure that Americans get their money's worth is through the practice of conservation, or, as the Army calls it, supply discipline. Conservation should be the concern of every man and woman in the Armed Forces, uniformed and civilian. It reaches all the way from top level Washington to the newest recruit at Fort Benning. Indeed, it's everybody's job.

Why should I worry about conservation, you're probably thinking. Just remember this: whenever materials are wasted thinking, Just remember this: whenever materials are well-vo-or improperly used, you help to pay the unnecessary bill. You are a part of the American public. Money for the operation of the Defense Establishment comes from taxes, and every soldier, as an American citizen, pays some sort of tax: income, amusement, luxury or gasoline. No one is exempt. So every time you fail to practice conservation you are spending some of your own money.

There are several principles of supply discipline which should be followed by all soldiers. First of all, it's essential that supplies and equipment be used for their intend poses only. For example, don't use your bayonet as a can opener. It wasn't manufactured for that purpose, and the damage you inflict upon it by such use can result in making it unserviceable as an effective weapon. Jeeps weren't built to be racing cars, rifle butts to be sledge hammers nor service uniforms to be used as fatigues. Such mis-use of equipm is not only foolish, but expensive as well. You, the individua dier, will help in the end to pay for the foolish expenditure

A second principle of supply economy is the use of only the amount necessary for the desired result. Posters, and nemoranda constantly admonish military personnel to guard against waste. Yet, practically everyone is guilty of violating this principle. Keeping room temperatures above the prescrib this principle, keeping room temperatures above the prescribed 70 degrees and burning too many lights are only two examples of this type of foolish economy. Using unnecessary lights costs money, and that money, in the final analysis comes out of your own pocket.

Every soldier is urged to exercise proper care and preser Avery soldier is urged to exercise proper care and preservation of his equipment and to make timely repairs. Too often, however, he fails to follow this third principle of supply with the result that he is unable to perform his own discipline with the result that he is unable to perform his own duties due to mechanical break-down. When even one man fails to fulfill his duty to his unit, that unit is no longer operating at top efficiency. Much time and money are lost through inefficient operation. It's cheaper to repair a plece of equipment before it breaks down completely than to wait until it becomes unserviceable. The old adage, an ounce of pre vention is worth a pound of cure, is still good advice. Remember, you will help to pay the unnecessary bills.

Many items have been lost through negligence; many more because the borrower simply forgot to return those ite borrowed. A high standard of moral conduct can eliminate some losses of Government property, and supply personnel can eliminate most other losses. Individuals and units can prevent loss of their own equipment by careful storing, proper records and distinctive markings. Loss of supplies and equipment is expensive. A part of that expense is borne by you, the individual soldier and tax payer. The Government's loss is Finally, a fifth principle of supply is the elimination of pply and the prevention of hoarding. Some units and individuals try to collect as much equipment and as many supplies as they can carry off, with the result that a false scarcity is created. According to a recent Armed Forces Tulk, "real economy may be made possible every day if the supply room will adopt the simple device of asking wheth use of the equipment is necessary to the mission of the in-

It's the responsibility of the individual soldier to make sure he has his share of equipment, but no more. Hoarding and oversupply are unfair. It often means that other personnel have to go without needed equipment at critical times. Furthermore, it costs the Army me oney, and you, the individual soldier, pay for it in more taxes.

God Ever Ready to Hear Our Prayers

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, tells of an incident during the second Dempsey-Tunney fight which is well remembered by sports fans. For six rounds Tunney had been outpointing his oppo-nent all the way. In the seventh round, while he and Dempsey were sparring, Dempsey unexpectedly came in with a left hook that sent Tunney to the floor, and the famous count" began. For better than 20 years now, fight-fans have been arguing as to how long the count lasted, and how long Tunney was actually on the floor. It is one of the best known idents of the sports world.

Not so well-known as the long-count is something which happened during the same fight. It was the year 1927, and Charles A. Lindbergh was winging his way through the skies over the Atlantic about to mark another record in the annals of American aviation. As his plane was in flight, the announcer at the Dempsey-Tunney fight changed his tone of voice, and in a few moments of speaking caused a hush to settle over the spectators which was quite the opposite of their previou mood. The announcer told the throng that Lindbergh was out over the Atlantio, and asked them to pray that he might safely reach his destination, Paris. And that tremendous gathering of people from all walks of life became that the protection and blessing of Al mighty God would be given the daring pilot.

Isn't it wonderful that we have a God who n be called upon at any time? You can call on Him when you are at a prize-fight. You can call on Him when you are in chapel. You can call on Him when you are in your quarters. There is no time that you can't call on Him.

Most of us know that—we know that our God is ever ready to hear our petitions. That's why so many of us do as we like in our every day lives. We do what we want to do, knowing that we can always repent and turn back to God if our fortunes are reversed. He will help us if we want Him to.

This is what a certain family thought in T. F. Powys' story, "Christ in the Cupboard" From lowly tenants to proud landowners was the saga of Mr. and Mrs. Pie and their two children. As ordinary farm-people they had enderen. As ordinary larm-people they had never turned any needy person away from their door. There was always room for another place at the table, until their existence became ecure. Of course, when Christ came door, they recognized Him, welcomed Him, fed Him, and then put Him in the cupboard so that they would have Him handy in case they should ever need His help. Then came the day that they needed Him-Mr. Pie was seriously injured. The cupboard was opened, and with a blinding flash out stepped not Christ, but the Devil. The Devil said that Christ had been in the cupboard ready to help them, and added: "Your mean deeds have changed Him," They had ignored their Christian duty so much, and lived as they liked for so long that the Christ in the cupboard had become the Devil, changed by their deeds.

Legend though Powys' story is, let us not upon God. "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near."

On The Bookshelf THE DISAPPEARANCE By Philip Wylie RINEHART AND COMPANY, INC., Publisher

the reader imagine what would happen if at 4:05 P. M. Can the reader imagine what would happen it at 100 ft. Au-this afternoon all women disappeared from the face of the earth? Or, at the same time all men disappeared? What would be the result of one sex left on earth without the other? It is the answer to these questions that make up the story of "The Disappearance".

The main character in this piece is Dr. William Percival Gaunt, his wife and relatives. The locale is in Minim received Gaunt, his wife and relatives. The locale is in Minim, Florida, The story opens when it is found that all women have vanished from the face of the earth. The men find it hard to believe, but with reports coming in fro they finally realize that it is true. ing in from all over the earth

The disappearance occurs at 4.05 P. M. E. S. T., on the second Tuesday in February. Wrecks occur when automobiles being driven by women at the time, suddenly became driverless, and crashed. What does the male of the species do without the female? That is the cataclysmic question this story.

Thus, with the stage set for the story of a world of men without women, the author goes into the second section of this piece by clarifying what happened to the female sex. It seems that male and female sex become invisible to each other and the male and remaic sex become invisible to each other and continue their lives in different spheres. They conduct their separate ways of life without interference from the other.

Business, politics, and commerce, is carried on solely by either of the sexes. There are shortages of certain commodieither of the sexes. There are shortages of certain commoni-ties, some power failures, closure of some businessess, and in general the world operates in a different way. With the male sex in full control of the earth war becomes a reality.
With the female sex in complete control of the ships of state the political pictures change rapidly around the earth.

Interwoven in this amazing sequence of circumstances is the love story of Dr. Gaunt and his wife, who continue life without love spary of the valuation and mis wife, who continue me without each other, but whose love never diminishes. Dr. Gaunt's wife becomes a top diplomat in a female populated world, and Dr. Gaunt becomes an unofficial advisor to the best male brains of the male world. It is through these two character's eyes that most of the action in the book is described. Like the eyes that most of the action in the book is described. Like the rest of the world's population they suffer emotional experiences, but unlike a great part of the male or female population they come out of the incident unscathed.

If the reader has a good imagination, they will like this accounting of adventure, allegory, and romence

WFBS is a generous station and in addition to the channel of it's own, the patients have the choice of listening to three of the local radio stations such as the big network shows and newscasts. In this way the station feels that the programs will not grow monotonous and therefore will acquire

The record files maintained by this small station are second to none and practically anything the listeners request can be played in a matter of minutes, and this includes even childplayed in a matter of minutea, and this includes even child-ren's stories and songs. There are several straight record shows during the day and two hill-billy shows, which, ac-cording to Sgt. Longfield, are tops with the Bedside net-work. The minute a show of this type starts the phones begin ringing for requests and that makes the staff at WFBS nighty happy.

Since Korean war casualties have been received at the hospital the patient strength has increased and naturally the listening audience. In order to bring a more and varied type of day's program to these veterans, the station is at present engaged in planning some new shows to be added to present engaged in planning some new shows to be added to the agenda. First and foremost is the revival of the live talent shows including singing, instrumental and specialty numbers. In the very near future WFBS hopes to bring its own hill-billy shows to the hedside brigade

IN AN EFFORT TO REEP WFBS in top-operating form, he Armed Forces Radio service in Los Angeles, has increased the number of transcriptions sent to each station until fice here at Benning. WFSB says that if there is anybody who is interested and WFSB says that if there is anybody who is interested and has had the training that would like to help the station in their spare time all they have to do is call at building where WFBS is quartered and talk to Lt. McWilliams or Sgt. Longfleid. This appeal includes talent as well as the technical aspect of the job. In view of some plans, more and varied talent will be needed to carry out the program. I hope that WFBS keeps up its splendid record and remains on the job for many years to come. And as Walter Winchell says "an orchid to you."

Meet Miss Benning ---

this week is Ohio born Cpl. Patricia Humes, who claims Cleveland as her-home and did clerical work at the American Steel and Wire company before entering the service.

Pat has had numerous assignments since coming to Benning. She has been accounts clerk at post Signal, and at present is records classifier for the Adjutant General's section and is TI&E representative for the WAC de-

Col. Humes has two all-absorbing bobbies and they both sort of tie in with each other, First and highest on her list is theatrical work and she has a definite talent in comedy lines as well as straight dramatic roles. Pat was a member of the little theater group in her home town for a number of years and learned the acting business from backstage forward. A close second on her list of likes is dancing with the trend to the Latin American shuthw showing at the theater. She loves to read all types of books but she has a decided liking for Omar Kyam. Since dramatics and music are so closely allied, she is a great music lover and prefers the classics over other types of music. When Pat sheds the khaki she had much rather wear evening clothes than any other type and all her clothes would be blue if she had her way.

Cal Humes is a vivacious lass with smiling eyes and brown curly hair, and can go into an act at the drop of a hat.

Regarding her future, Pat says she might stay in the Army and then again she might not; which is pretty indefinite, but the reason for all this indecision is an unannounce somewhere in Korea. She will know for certain on that day when he returns. And though she

Football fans can look forward to a pretty dull season this Football iams can look forward to a pretty dull season fins-fall if the current crop of head coaches continues on the down-grade. Ten of the nation's top schools are without the service of a guiding light, and judging from all indications they will still be without come the autumn winds.

Apparently the majority of the coaches are seeking less trying occupations. Many are being recalled to the Armed Forces in view of the present political situation. Four top mentors—Berne Bierman of Minnesota, Blair Cherry of Texas, Wes Fesler of Ohio State and Marchie Schwartz of Stanford have dround out of the feat. have dropped out of the football picture altogether after mak ing it their life long work.

In the past, a sort of rotation system was in effect. A coach in the past, a sort of rotation system was in effect. A coach quits at one school and takes to greener pastures. But many of the coaches have given no indication that they want greener pastures on the gridiron. And those coaches, as well as many players, in the service have done all the rotation they can for awhile, anyway.

However, we in the service have one consolation, the colleges loss will be the military's gain, as was the case during World سيستغر فروف

LOCAL SCENE BRIGHTENS

- The local gridiron picture is somewhat brighter. Up until now, there has been some doubt as to whether Fort Benning would definitely have a football team or not Capt, William Fannin answered that big question when he said that there should no longer be any doubt in anyone's mind, "we are going to have a team this year."

Bolstered by Write former college stars, the Fourth Indian answered that big question when he said that there should not an aspecial matching of the Fort Benning spacial service council scheduled the state of the coming year will be mapped out at a special meeting of the Fort Benning Special Service council scheduled the state of the coming year will be mapped out at a special meeting of the Fort Benning Special Service council scheduled the state of the coming year will be mapped and team material. Thirty-two Pages

VOL. 9-NO. 20 THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1951

"I voluntecred. ."
That was more or less the kickoff for the other 34 fellows who make up the security platoon.

Under the direction of 1st Lt. Vicente V. Nazareno, the men were transferred, during the early part of their basic training, from various companies in the regiment. The unit was shaped up in one week, and now they assemble regularly to give music for retreat and Saturday morning parades.

About 30 per cent of the men are holders of cards from the American Federation of Musicians. They started things rolling by sending home for their instruments. A piano was moved into the barracks (even G-2 would like to know where it came from), and the building converted to a pint-sized Carnegie Hall.

MANY PROBLEMS

MANY PROBLEMS MANY PROBLEMS

There were more initial problems in the platoon than details in the whole company. And there was a meshing of artistic temperament as these tunesmiths from all corners of the United States (rest assured they have a certified representative from Brooklyn), began working, sleeping, eating, soldiering, and rehearsing together.

"If the Army hadn't instilled a sense of leamwork in us from the very beginning of our training, we'd never have hurdled the rough spots in the early days of our organi-zation," saye Pvi. Ted (Uncle Neuvie) Neuvelt, a New York

saxophonist who doubles on trumpet.

At present the outfit is functioning so smoothly that within no time the lads can be alerted to form an orchestra, dance band, jazz combo, cowboy rhythm group, hill-billy string band, or polka band. Their outfit contains everything from an oboe, glockenspiel and tuba, to a ukulele, cello and lyre.

The "main event" is still the brass band. They may be seen in the regimental area decked out in white helmet liners, white leggings, and blue regimental banners. Their glissenset understand the distinction between officers non-comcannot understand the distinction between officers, non-com-missioned officers and enlisted men. Some feel that such a system is a deliberate effort to make them feel inferior to their officers who are charged with the responsibility of lead-ership. This is not true, of course. We believe that a lack of understanding behind the reasons for the separation of officers and men is the basic cause for the enlisted man's failure to accept this relationship without bitterness.

There's an old saying, "Familiarity breeds, contempt," which rowarded as "Familiarity breeds nartialimakes more sense if reworded as "Familiarity breeds ty." It's only natural that we feel closer to those personal transfer of the personal transfer one with whom we spend our off-duty hours, if for no other reasons resulting comradeship. 11's logical, therefore, that School teaches Army administration, personnel continue to be indicated by the designation of should officers and men "fraternize" socially, the result, so far would be rejuctant to assign the difficult jobs to those men provide his enlisted friends with the easier and less dangerous asks, at the expense of those not fortunate enough to be or

It's mandatory that an officer be absolutely impartial toward his men. Unless he is, he fails in his duty as an officer, just as much as a doctor would fail in his duty if he did not live up

o the Oath of Hoppocrates. Also discipline would suffer.
The thought may occur assto why so much emphasis is put on discipline We believe that question can be answered by Gen LeRoy Lutes, Fourth Army commander, who recently

"An Army of any nationality is designed to do an abnormal thing, i. e., fight wars. Warfare is an abnormal way of life It is most unfortunate that the human race has not evoluted to the point where it no longer resorts to warfare. Such is not the case. As long as families of the people grouped together as nations feel the necessity to have Armed to protect them then armies will have to exist. Since they have to exist, the human beings in these armies must be organized and trained differently from normal ways of life."

would be well for everyone who feels any concern ove this relationship to remember that it does not indicate any inequality or difference between them as men. But, from professional viewpoint, the officer is responsible for the men he he leads and the results obtained. He is responsible for all of them, not just a few. He cannot play favorites without weaken ing his unit and the Army structure.

These Accidents Avoidable

Within a one-week period recently two vehicles on the Fort Benning reservation were hit by trains, resulting in serior injuries to four and minor injuries to several others. In bo onses, the cause may be said to be carelessness on the part of the drivers.

In one case, the driver, who had stopped near a stop sign, but on the tracks, saw the train coming, but thought he had time to get his stalled vehicle off the tracks before the train bit him. In the other case, the driver says simply that he did not hear the approaching train.

he did not hear the approaching train.

We find it difficult to understand why a man, hearing a train approach and knowing that his vehicle is stalled on the tracks would remain in his car in the face of such danger. True, it's a blow to stand aside and watch your car demolished when there is a chance of saving it. But it's far more important to save your life. Then, too, why would a car pick a railroad track as the place to stall? The driver was at fault there since he stopped his car on the track instead of on the other side as he should have.

find it equally hard to believe that a man, provided he obeyed signals, did not hear or see the approaching train Every railroad crossing has a sign, warning motorists to stop, look and listen. If he had stopped his car before crossing the tracks, rolled down his window, looked both ways and listened, that accident could have been avoided. Even though the engineer failed to sound his whistle, which is highly unlikely, the driver could have heard or seen the train.

Precautionary measures and common sense would avoided both these accidents. They should serve as an example of what can happen when people don't think.

Freedom of Religion Is Positive

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) ALOYSIOUS MCALWEE

One of the freedoms, of which we Americans are justly proud, is popularly known as, "Freedom of Religion." Everyone knows exactwhat "Freedom of Religion" means, until he is asked just exactly what it does mean.
Obviously, the phrase is positive, not negative.
Therefore, Freedom of Religion does not wight to be inveligious. It does not imply the right to be irrelations. It does not imply the right to ignore God as one sees fit. It infers that there is a God. Otherwise, there would be no religion about which men could be free. Freedom of Religion means the right and the duty to worship God according to the distator of one's conscience

American children, in their classes of history or civics, are directed not only to read to memorize the inspiring document known as our Declaration of Independence. In that document we, as a nation, go on record placing "a firm reliance on the protection Divine Providence." We also subscribe to the belief that men's rights come from thei Creator, and this seems so obvious that we call it a "self - evident truth."

The very coins we use in our daily commerce contain the phrase, "In God We Trust," evidence ing not only a national belief in God but a firm confidence in His help.

The "Great Seal" of the United States, adopted by the Continental Congress on June 20, 1782, displays an artist's concept of the all-seeing eye of God, surmounted by the words, "Annuit Coeptis," which means, "He looked with favor on our undertakings."

How can any American, in view of these, facts, look upon Freedom of Religion as the right to deny it?

Freedom of Religion is one of our most progings possessions. It is a right and a privilege. It is a right because God made all His rational creatures to know, love and serve Him. It is a privilege because we are called to serve God's Infinite Majesty. Only by exercising this rightful privilege can man be really happy. "Thou has made us for Thyself, O God, and our hearts are restless until they rest in Thee!'

Religion not only it instes the road to Paradise, it gives us a foretaste of Heaven here below. It gives mortal man a preview of the heavenly home for which he is destined. encourages him in his trials and sorrows because it gives him a reason for them. It makes man's journey through this valley of lears less unpleasant. It gives added strength to timid and weak souls. It enlightens men's mind to know, and it strengthens their wills to do God's will in all things. It shows men that this world is not an end in itself; and that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that will be revealed in us.

Because religion does all this, it touches upon the most basic ideas of life. It gives life a glorious purpose, comparable to the glory that is God Himself. It teaches us whence we going. It is our greatest solace and comfort. in life and in death

Thank God, this land of the free is blessed with Freedom of Religion, assuring us of the right, and imposing upon us the duty of folwing in the footsteps of the Lamb of God whose life was the light of men, the light that shines in the darkness of a troubled, groo ing world,

He stated that the Japanese on Guam were a stupid and inhuman bunch of soldiers and the enlisted men thought they were on the Catalina islands off the California coast During their confinement the prisoners were allowed to listen to Tokyo Rose, which amused the fellows very much.

ONE BRIGHT DAY, the Americans came to Guam. When the first PT boats came into the harbor, the prisoners were on the beach digging fortifications and the guards and prisoners alike ran for the shelter of the compound when the guns onened fire. However during the battle, the guards left the prisoners unguarded, and that was all they needed. When they had escaped, somewhere along the road, a luckless Jap met Cpl. Kindle and Pvt. Harold F. Sports Sidelights

Not too long ago, many of the nations top newspapers were headlining what has been called the biggest scandal in American sports history - the Happy Chandler affair, For American sports instory — the happy Chandler affair. For several weeks, accusations, denials and comments from both sides were a dime a dozen. But, all of a sudden there were no more. The squabble had taken a backseat to the more newsy stuff. But, ever since, little stories, found usually around the bottom of the page, have popped up from time to time

The latest is the one about what Judge Samuel A. Weiss, former deputy commissioner of the National Football League had to say concerning the screwy officer. Demanding to know the reason why the club owners weren't happy with Happy, Weiss said the attitude of baseball club owners towards comnissioner Happy Chandler is a "black-eye to baseball."

"WEISS CONTINUED, "Chandler helped preserve the integ-rity of baseball, and we who pay the freight for keeping up the great game of baseball are entitled to know the reason for refusal of the club owners to rehire him."

Standing by Chandler, the Pittsburgh jurists pointed Chandler's record as justification for his retention. He stated

- 1. The integrity of the game has been greatly strengthene during Chandler's administration.
- 2. The game is more popular than ever.
- 3. He (Chandler) has protected the interest of the ball players including pension and security. 4. Chandler's accomplishments far outweigh his insignifi-

SPORTS AND THE MANPOWER ITEMS

In view of the increased manpower demand and accelerated call-up someone has finally come out with the idea of allowin freshman to participate in varsity athletics.

This move which already is being considered by three col-lege conferences is expected to fill in the rapidly depleting varsity ranks and keep alive collegiate sports. Two college conferences the Southern and Midwestern have

be in agreement with its league members.

Resistance to the proposal is expected to be almost nil, but there does seem to be some controversy as to when this program would go into effect, March 1 or Sept. 1. Carl Doehling, of the Midwest Conference, says that faculty men may be asked to act even sooner than they expect if the manpower becomes any worse.

However, most of the other conferences take a more opto mistic outlook and plan to deal with this problem in the spring. They claim that sports will carry on regardless of the government's drain on collegiate athletes this year.

Education Key to Success

Education is a continuing process; its importance can never be overemphasized. The Army, aware of this, attaches a great deal of importance to its own education program, which is no where better exemplified than at Fort Benning where one of the finest Army Education Centers is in operation.

An integral part of the Army Education Center here is the Night School, where students may take courses in subjects ranging from typing and shorthand to American history and Russian language. And all this for the sacrifice of only two twohour periods weekly! Certainly, no off-duty activity is more mportant than learning.

A large number of Fort Renning troops- 733 to be exactare enrolled in Night School classes, but this is far too few for the size of the Post. We realize that everyone needs a certain amount of relaxation; expecially is this true in the case of those troops who spend a major portion of every day in strenious training. But, small indeed is the number of men are so fatigued at the end of day that they can't spend two more hours in such a useful activity as study.

There are probably many men who aren't interested in any of the courses offered at the Night School. In that case, there are USAFI (United States Armed Forces Institute) available in practically any subject desired, from first grade through college. Some of these courses are on hand at the Education Center here, while others have to be ordered. At any rate, they are easily obtained.

USAFI courses are divided into two types: the self-teaching course and the correspondence course, A student taking the self-teaching course studies his textbook until he feels he has mastered the subject well enough to take an examination. He reports to the Army Education Center's Testing Section where the examination is administered.

A student enrolled in a correspondence course deals directly with USAFI headquarters at Madison, Wisconsin. As soon as he completes one lesson, another is sent. When he has completed all the lessons, he, too, reports to the Testing Section peter at the research, he took of each course is nominal, and full grammar school, high school or college credit is given each student who successfully completes a course of study. The same applies to students who complete Night School

Both Night School and USAFI courses are painless ways of improving one's mind and with it one's ability, thus increas-ing his importance to his unit and to the Army.

A Mark of Good Breeding

Courtesy is one trait we should all have in common. To be courteous to our fellow man merely shows our respect for that person as a human being. It has nothing to do with that person as a numan perior. It has nothing to do with rank; it is simply a mark of good breeding.

The Army emphasizes courtesy, not only because it is a mark of respect for those who outrank us, but because if men Chaplain's Corner hard to respect to the most wind but all us but because in her are to work together, they must respect each other. No task, however simple, can be accomplished with efficiency and dispatch unlass we respect our fellow man.

The salute is just one way of being courteous. It is the way Army men greet each other. It is the way Army men show respect for their profession, the way they show respect for the men who lead them and the men they mutual respect, the Army would surely disintegrate. But courtesy shouldn't stop when you leave the reservation It is just as important that soldiers be courteous in their dealings with civiliaus as they are in their dealings with other military personnel. The fact that you wear a uniform of relieve you of your responsibility as a citizen. Any in a civilian community is expected to be polite to those with whom he comes in contact. He can't expect courteous treatment from civilians unless he himself is courteous

Courtesy costs nothing, and the rewards are great. A courteous soldier usually heads the list when there are promotion vacancies. The value of his courtesy is reflected in and character ratings. His courtesy is remembered when he requests a three-day pass or a furlough,

Rail Switchmen Strike for Shorter Hours

Washington big-wigs were shaking their heads and murmuring "Brother, what a week!"

More than 12,000 railroad switchmen all across the nation reported "sick" in a bid for shorter hours for the same pay. The striking railroaders were given credit for a raft of ills, including industrial lay-offs due to lack of manufacturing supplies and delay in shipment of supplies to Korea.

In a nation-wide radio address to the railen Monday evening Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson appealed to workers' patriotand branded the walk-out one of the tion's greatest dangers. Tuesday morning the idle trainmen were slowly recuperating from their "illness" and straggling back to their jobs in the railroad yards.

Increased taxes were high on the agenda of Congress this week Secretary of the Treasury Snyder outlined a proposed $10,155,000,000 defense tax increase to the nation's lawmakers. calling for 20 per cent more income tax from the little fellow. Congressional sentiment seemed to favor a cautious approach to the new tax bill, some contending the legislator should wait and size up the budget before and then levy a one-package bill. Leaders in both houses indicated they did not expect great speed in getting a bill out despite the administration's request for speed.

In Korea, United Nation forces "found" the enemy after a fairly quiet week or so. In cele-bration of the Chinese New Year allied troops threw a double-tipped armored blitz against Communist positions in the Seoul section in the heaviest artillery barrage of a 12-day-old offensive on the Korean western front, Artillary and mortar batteries continued to hammer Chinese and Korean Red defenders after the greatest Allied tonk force of the Korean was pounded up to the gates of the Communist

Call of Religion Is Not Burdensome

An ancient legend relates that when the earth was young and the trees had but been adorned with their beautiful foliage: when the flowers to admire the friendly sun, and the birds had only recently acquired the art of singing their melodious songs, the Lord decided to place wings upon their backs. Upon discovery that they now had wings, a storm of protest arose and after much deliberation the birds decided to send a delegation to plead their cause. The delegates approached the Throned Majesty and elequently implored the Lord to remove these obnoxious appendages. "Is it not enough," they declared, "that puny and feeble as we are, we can scarcely carry the weight of our oodies around, and now there has been added upon our backs this extra burden-wings? The Lord smiled indulgently and replied to this feathered delegation, "Very good, I see the iustice of your complaint. However, let us wait one week and if at the end of that period you still desire to have your wngs removed. I shall comply with your request.'

Greatly pleased the delegation returned and rendered its report. Then a very strange thing happened. One day later they feit a certain force lifting them upward from the ground, and second and a third day passed. To their own amazement the birds found themselves flying and enjoying undreamed of heavenly sensations. At the appointed hour when the week had elapsed, again the delegation appeared hefore the Lord, but this time they were humble and contrite as they exclaimed, "O, Merciful Father, how could we have doubted Thine infinite wisdom? These very wings which we ridiculed as unnecessary hurdens, we have learned to cherish and prize highly for they enable us to soar aloft into the very heavens," How often we find people who in like simplicity have felt that the call of religion and religious obligations are burdensome For some, religious duties have become a leisure time activity; and there are those who feel that regular attendance at divine services in church or synagogue, in the chapel, is simply too bothersome. These are the very folks who need religious experiences in their daily lives, to uplift, to inspire, to ennoble them. Communion with our Maker, not unlike the wings of the birds, is calculated to enable us "to soar aloft into the very heavens". With the aid of these "wings" we are able to leave the earth and all its troubles behind us to ascend into the clean, spiritual air of the firmament above.

the Hebrews carried the Ark of the Law in their forty-year sojourn though the wilderness, contrary to common belief, it was not they that carried the Ark but rather the Ark which carried them. For much more than they accomplished by physically bearing the Ark, did the latter, in which were contained the Ten Commandments, actually carry the ancient Hebrews alort. Bellef in the sanctity and eternal verity of the Law strengthened them enabling them to overlook the hardships of almost half a century spent in the wilds of arid Sinai.

Ever since Biblical days most people have realized that more than we can ever do for our faith, religious experience has done for us, is religion burdensome? May the answer be worthy of our highest manhood and nobles

By Desmond Young

HARPER and BROTHERS, Publishers

By Robert L. Groover Erwin Johannes Eugen Rommel was born at noon on Sunday. November 15, 1891, at Heidenheim, a small town in Wurttemberg, near Ulm, in Germany. His father, also Erwin Rommel, was a schoolmaster and the son of a school - master. Both father and grandfather were mathematicians of some distinction. Since those were the days when learning was still more highly regarded in Germany than loyalty to a political party, Herr Professor Rommel was much respected in Heidenheim. In 1886 he married Helena, eldest daughter of Karl von Lutz, president of the Government of Wurttemberg and thus a prominent person in those parts. There were five children of the marriage, a son, Manfred, who died young, a daughter, Helena, unmarried and now teaching at the well - known Waldorschule at Stutt-gart, Erwin Rommel himself and his younger brothers, Karl and Gerhardt. Karl is almost completely crippled from malaria caught while serving as a pilot in Turkey and Mesopotamital during the 1914-18 war. Gerhardt supplied the only touch exotic color to the otherwise conventional Rommel family by abandoning agriculture to become an opera singer. This was the "Desert Fox's" family background.

Rommel's beginning in life was inauspicious. He was only a mediocre student, and showed little inclinations toward the military in his early life. Through his schooling Rommel became a regular officer of the German Army, and fought with distinction during World War I. When the Weimar Republic suffered it's greatest blow by reason of the Treaty of Versailles, Rommel was one of the few German officers to be retained in Germany's 100,000 man army authorized by the treaty. His life between the two world wars was as conventional as any professional soldier. When the Nazi regime took over in Germany, Rommel continued his military career, but never became a party member. Perhaps his loyalty was so unquestioned that it was unnecessary.

Author Young, a British army officer, concerns himself chiefly in this piece with an accounting of Rommel's activi-No. 4, and Baby Sitters' Jitters.

There's no business like show business", a trite old phrase but more than proved true this week when that roguish little guy, Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen with their troop of radio entertainers came visiting to Fort Benning

I was like everyhody else with my desire to see the group. With note book clutched in hand and a good supply of pencils. I rushed over to the Main post theater on Friday to be on hand when the group arrived.

When the Coco-Cola program goes on the air each Sunday night it is the smooth blending of the flowing music of Ray Noble, the nonsenof Charlie and the pure corn of laughable Mortimer Snerd, and the all - around entertainment presented by the guests on the pro-gram that makes one of the greatest half hours on radio, but during rehearsal it was entirely different.

I settled myself in one of the seats to watch the proceedings and felt that I was transplanted into another world. On the stage, with the backdrops raised, the orchestra had set up its stands and in front stood that well known composer, Ray Noble. Ray was in his shirt sleeves, and gave his directions to the ochestra in the same well modulated voice that he uses on the air. The musicians followed him perfectly while the electricians hammered and pounded right in front of them and cries of "kill the red" or "kill the white" sounded above the

GISELE GUEST SINGER

Bergen entered and if you have ever seen a picture of him you would know at a glance who he was. Not long after Don Ameche, of the flashing smile came in and it was a sight to see the two greeting each other. Slumped down in a back seat, taking a nnp, was Gisele, guest singer, completely exhausted after her long trip. Gisele is a name that everybody will be hearing more about in the near future. She is a lovely girl with an extremely pleasant manner and one of the most beautiful singing voices it has been my pleasure to hear in some time. This Canadian - born girl is well on the way to making a name for herself in the entertainment world. She along with Don Ameche were the featured guests on the program. Of course, Don Ameche needs no introduction as he used to be one of the regulars on the old Chase and Sanborn

As the cast gathered, the musicians struggled on and the script writers ran a race to make some changes in the script, then a line rehearsal was next in order. While this was going on the sound both was being set up on the stage for the tape recording of the show for Sundays's broadcast.

Ray Noble sat down at the piano and played his most famous Ray Noble sat down at the piano and played his most famous composition "The Very Thought of You", Bergen stopped to examine a cumera belonging to Maj. William A. Warlick of the Kamine a cumera belonging to Maj. William A. Warlick of the Signal Corps Photo section and a boy came running with some cluthes that had been pressed. Bediam – sure, but it was the kind that fascinated you and made you wish you were part of it.

Then the dress rehearsal came up and Charlie came from his box. He is the same impish, little rogue that has charmed millions of listeners from his first broadcast. He, through his middle man Bergen, went through his lines without a flub, and as always got in some pointed remarks about Bergen.

SNERD SCORES

Mortimer Snerd took his place before the mike and with an incredible dumbness had all the audience in stitches. Then Don Ameche made his entrance and pitted his wits against the Dut ameene made his entrance and pitted his wits against the little wooden man. Don, in a short interview, said he was going right back to New York because he has his own TV show there. Gisele came on next and had all the men ohing and shing as she did that night during the show as witnessed by their applause. Her song was a lovely number well suited to her voice. And comedian E. Twinge gave another of his inimitable characterizations. Three shows were given that night and one the next day at the hospital.

It was an experience I shall never forget, watching a big network show being prepared for the air.

The whole troop was near the point of utter exhaustion for they had traveled a long way with weather hampering them most of the way. They went through the long hours of rehears. Without a murmer and then gave three shows to finish the day. Glamour of show business maybe, but there is also lots of hard work and only by the stars, but by the prop men, the script writer and the musicians.

As I listened to the Coro-Cola show from the comfort of an easy chair in my living room on Sunday night, I could see in my mind's eye all of the time and effort that went into the smooth flowing lines of the show and I think I shall probably appreciate the show much more than I did.

There are more combat troops and fewer service units in U. S. Army Field Forces than there were in World War II, according to testimony recently given the House Armed Services Committee.

Brig. Gen. D. A. D. Ogden,
Chief of Organization and Training, told the Committee:

1. The strength of an infantry division has increased 33 per cent since World War II, and its firepower has increased 50 per

TELEPHONE LINES ARE HUMMING

THIS COUNTRY'S telephone service is one of its greatest assets in time of emergency. It unites millions of people-helps thousands of businesses to get things done quicker-and is a vital part of our national defense.

In the past five years Southern Bell has nearly doubled the number of telephones in service . . . nearly doubled long distance circuits, tripled rural telephones and made the service faster and better.

All this growth is proving of particular value right now as the South becomes a more and more vital part of the arsenal of democracy. One reason this country can out-produce any other is because it has the most and best telephone service in the world.

Benning will soon organize a post football team to compete with other military teams in the Third Army Area. Plans for a football season have been worked out and a tentative schedule has been approved by the council of the Special Services section and have been forwarded to the commanding general for his signature.

The new gridiron squad will be called the "Fort Benning

Doughboys. There will be a total of ten games to be played as the tentative schedule shows, it the military situation permits. Six of the games will be played here on the post and mits, six of the games will be played here on the post and four will be played away from the home gridlron.

It is hoped that very soon this schedule and the beginning of the Doughboy team will be approved. The Bayonet and his column will keep you posted on the latest developments as they are reported

Positions on the team will be offered to all those soldiers Positions on the team with oe othered to air thoose solutions on the post who would care to try out for the team. Men, of course, will be chosen according to their abilities and past experiences on the pigskin arena. Try outs for the team will begin in the latter part of July or the first of August. Prior to that time, it will be announced as to when prospective coaches will be interviewed to lead the Doughboys. Both enlisted men and officers are eligible to try out for coach posi-

Probably 50 men will be selected to train with the team pefore its initial game on Sept. 30. These men will train for one half day periods until the schedule starts to operate.

Sundays have been decided to be the game days for several reasons, Primarily, men will be off duty on Sundays and there will be less competition from other games on that day.

NATIONAL LEAGUE HONORED

Great personalities of the baseball world gathered at the Broadway Central Hotel in New York City to pay tribute to the National League on its 75th birthday last week.

"Ceremonites were scheduled in front of the hotel where the league was first began on Feb. 7, 1876. The league's president, Ford Frick acted as the master of ceremonies. He read a message of greeting and congratulations from President Truman.

Such baseball greats as Ty Cobb, Rogers Hornsby, George
Sisler were there to add their bit to the spacious proceedings.

Almost all of the living members of baseball's Hall of Fame were present to honor the famous National League on its anniversary of producing some of baseball's finest players and remembered games for 75 diamond studded years. Some of the first of these to arrive were Charlie Gehringer, star second baseman for the Detroit Tigers; George Sisier, man-ager of the St. Louis Browns and Ex-First baseman; Fred Clarke, former outfielder and manager of the Pittsburgh Pi-rates; and of course there was Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby.

Taking the big city by storm, the birthday party lasted over the week-end and contained a blaze of events what will long be remembered in the annals of base ball as well as making history in little old New York.

WEATHER HITS BASKETBALL

Basketball has had its worst season in years due to

A perpetual blow to the game this season has been tense cold weather. It is difficult to guess how may games tense coid weather. It is difficult to guess how may gaines have been postponed, cancelled or played before almost em-ryt houses this season just because the spectators were not able to conquer the heavy snows and blinding cold. The high school cagers have probably suffered more with this nigh sensol cagers have probably suttered more with this problem than most other teams, but it hasn't been too long ago that lowa, planning an air trip to Illinois, found all aircraft grounded. So-called "liked" games in New York and a number of other similar accusations that have really never been proved.

But there is even another problem that is even more threat-the game, that is "Controlled" basketball. A couple of the pro teams started the season with this system of failing to pass when the defense jums up under the hoop to completely cover the rebound territory. This leaves the offense only one shot, and naturally they are going to freeze the ball until they have guaranteed themselves that the shot

Uniform Mark of Distinction

A soldier's uniform identifies him with one of the nation's oldest and most honored professions. But, whether that uniform becomes a mark of distinction of a mark of disgrace becomes a mark of distinction or a mark of unspace depends upon the wearer. No one can force a soldier to wear his uniform properly at all times. He can be threatened with punishment, he can be cajoled, he can be lectured—but only if he is caught violating uniform regulations can he be punishd. And too often violators aren't caught, because other tary personnel fail to report the violation.

Most soldiers are ashamed to be seen in public in improper uniforms. Most soldiers take as much pride in their appearance as they do in their personal accomplishments. Most soldiers wear only the authorized items of apparel. But there are a few who insist on violating every tenet of good grooming.

Hardly a day passes that some uniformed soldier isn't seen brightly colored socks. Hardly a day passes that m brightly colored socks. Many a windsor knot in his tie. Hardly a day passes that some uniformed soldier isn't seen wearing civilian shoes with wing tips.

Every soldier knows that he is violating regulations when he combines his uniform with brightly colored socks, ties with Windsor knots and civilian shoes with wing tips. He knows, too, that he is violating regulations when he wears his service cap at a jaunty angle over his eye, or on the back of his head, when he unbuttons his shirt at the neck and loosens his tie, and when he wears a dirty or unpressed uniform

He ought also to know that he is disgracing himself and the Army he represents when his brass isn't polished, when his shoes aren't shined, and when he needs a shave or haircut.

An improperly attired soldier causes people to stop and stare, not because they like what they see, but because they are surprised that any self-respecting man could dress in such a manner. Soldiers can not be rugged individualists where uniforms are concerned. They must adhere strictly to that uniform which is prescribed by regulations.

It's partly the responsibility of the majority who don't violate uniform regulations to insure that those who do are kept at a minimum. This can be accomplished by informing every soldier "out of uniform" that he is violating regulations. If the soldier refuses to correct his appearance, he should be reported so that disciplinary action can be taken. It should never be necessary to warn a man more than once that he is

It's the duty of every soldier to make his uniform a mark of distinction, and to insure that his appearance is above

It's An Old American Custom

The following is reprinted from the Army-Navy-Air Force

The American people should know that if there are outcroppings of defeatism in the daily and periodical press they do not reflect the attitude of the Armed Forces nor find sympathy in the fighting men. Instead they reflect the traditional "blow hot and blow cold" attitude toward the American forces of defense. Too frequently today there is a disposition to criticize General MacArthur and the conduct of the war in Korea. Reading some of these critiques by civilian observers one finds it hard to believe they are discussing the same leader whose exploits from New Guinea to Tokyo won world wide acclaim and gave him a permanent place in history. A few short months ago the planning and execution of the Inlandings were being hailed as the work of a military his critics truly believe he is now blundering and resigned to a war of attrition with the Chinese Reds? Other writers and politicians find our over-all military leadership inadequate, the design and capabilities of our weapons below enemy standards, and the American fighting man soft and less willing to endure hardships than those of other nations. These views have a familiar ring. They have been raised whenever we have met reverses in any war from the Revolution or In World War II they were aroused by local set backs from the deserts of Africa to the Battle of the Bulge-but they did not affect the American fighting man who still plowed through to victories. The current talk of the ruggedness of the Chinesc Reds as compared to the Americans is a familiar echo of the earlier attitude of awe toward the so - called invincible German military machine.

Secretary of Defense Marshall, speaking last November in a frank vein concerning the fluctuating attitude toward our defenses, said, "I fear we have given a demonstration somerenses, satu, a rear we have given a demonstration somewhat of emotional instability. Perhaps that is what is happening in some quarters today. Free and open criticism is not only a precious right, it is also a traditionally American characteristics. neteristic and the fighting man recognizes it as such. So the American soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen are confident that the great majority of the people have faith in them and will support them. They know too, that if the people back home work with the same willingness and zeal as do the service men, that the spirit of defeatism will be shifted to the Politorio where it belongs.

Chinese Communists Begin Counter-Offensive

Chinese Communists this week began a pow-erful counter-offensive in Central Korea, which pushed United Nations troops back 20 miles at some points. Allied forces abandoned Hoengsong in the face of 15 Red divisions, but on the western front, near Seoul, UN fighting units were holding fast to their battle lines. No contact with the enemy, except patrol clashes, were reported early this week.

Meanwhile in Washington the Army an nounced a special transer of troops to Korea and a rotation scheme for combat veterans. addition, all United States units in Korea and Japan may be en able to reach and main-tain wartime strength, filled with Americans as

Also in Washington, the Great Debate got hotter. Senator O'Conor, Maryland Democrat, told the Senate American troops should be used bulwark Western Europe's defenses, under limitations denying President Truman a "blank check." Republican Senator Langer of North however, told his colleagues that he thought the average American was opposed to sending troops to Europe and to spending bil-lions of dollars abroad. In an address before the Women's National Democratic Club, Averell Harriman, special assistant to the President, said that despite differences of opinion, the chief participants in the debate understand that the defense of Europe is essential to the defense of the U.S.

At a Lincoln Day dinner in Brooklyn, House Minority Leader Martin demanded that Chiang Kai-Shek and his Nationalist troops be permitted to open a "second front" against the Chlnese Reds on the mainland of Asia. He told his audience that the United States should supply the Generalissimo with equipment, ammunition and food to insure the success of the venture. He accused the State Department of preventing the use of the 800,000 Nationalist troops on Formosa and called for a house cleaning in the Department "from top to bettom, starting with Dean Acheson."

He had been one of the original spies which had been sent out from Kedesh-Barnes to spy out the Promised Land. His report, along with that of Joshua, had been encouraging. They but they were confident of who held the future Forty and five years before, God had promised Caleb this land as his inheritance. Now he is eighty-five years old. His had not been an life Forty years of his life had been spent wandering around in the winderness. Only he and one other man had survived this deat march. And now at eighty-five, he asks God to give him a hard job. His request was that God let him conquer the hill country. Of all the conquests of the Promised Land, this most difficult task; for it was here that the descendants of Anak lived, and they were giants. He seems to say,

"I have served my apprentice-ship, and I'm

He may have asked for a hard job because confident of seeing it completed. This standing example of moral courage is the story concerning King Christian of Denmark during the time of the Nazi occupation. In the treaty with Denmark, the Germans had agreed that the Nazi flag would not be flown from the public buildings of Denmark. One day, King Christian saw the Nazi flag flying from a municipal building in Copenhagen. He immediately called up the German commanding officers, who explained that the flag was beflown on direct orders from Berlin, King Christian replied,
"The flag must be removed before 12:00

On The Bookshelf TROUBLED SLEEP By Jean-Paul Sarter

ALFRED A. KNOPF, Publisher BY ROBERT GROOVER Since the end of World War II there has sprung up a movement in and around Paris, France, known as Existentionalism.

The chief exponent of this movement is the author of "Troubled Sleep," Jean-Paul Sartre, a Frenchman. The movement appears to be without Communist backing, and is little more than a fatalistic attitude of a people who have suffered wars, occupation of their country by an enemy, and numerous political upheavals.

In "Troubled Sleep," author Sartre opens in June 1940 with the fall of France. The action of the first two thirds of the story is confined within three dramatic days; the final secvolumes reappear, but are seen in a new, tragic light. The main characters voice a philosophy which probably could be better placed in 1950 than in 1940. But the philosophy is wellknit with the action that occurred in France in 1940 so therefore appears to be logical and sound

What happened in France in 1940 is old news to most readers now. The events that led up to those occurrences have likewise been told before, but never in the Sartre manner. Such events as would occur in the daily, everyday existence of the average Frenchman, His political beliefs in 1940 were him' by master traitors who paved the way for the German Nazis. Confusion, disbelief, and distrust were predominent among all Frenchmen in their troubled days of 1940. Some of their highest government officials were traitors of France. The French people have never been, considered from an American viewpoint, a particularly moral race. Then the moral problems were closely integrated with their complete change of viewpoints. Part of the philosophy of Existentionalism is a complete disregard for adherence to all accepted

The author of this piece has previously written three plays and two other novels. The plays were: "Dirty Hands;" "The Respectful Prostitute," and "The Victors." The novels were: "No Exit," and "The Flies." The former were translated into Eng-lish from French by Stuart Gilbert, and the latter by Lionel Abel, "The Respectful Prostitute" enjoyed a successful run on Broadway, and all of Satre's works have been widely sold in Names like Gene Kelly, Vera Ellen and Piper Laurie hold a fascination for most of us who look at the tinseled and make-believe world of the movies from afar, but to Mickey Miller they are friends and co-workers.

What does he do, where does he come from, and just who is this Mickey Miller, you ask? Well let me tell you

Pvt. Maxwell Miller is assigned to the Eighth Medical company, Eighth Infantry regiment, Fourth di-vision, and is one of the featured artists in he popular all-soldier show which just finished successful week at the Benning theaters. Mickey Miller, as he is known professionally, a very personable young fellow of twenty-two who has been in the Army only a short time, and prior to his entrance into the Armed forces had his dancing feet planted firmly on the upward rungs of, the ladder of success.

THE STORY OF YOUNG Miller's start and rise in the world of entertainment reads like one of the scripts for a movie. He has been following his dancing feet since he was seven years old, and back of the thousands of miles have danced is long years of study and work to perfect his technique. Martha Grahame, Katherine Dunham Thomas Sternfield, Lester Horton and Jack Cole studios have all added to his knowledge.

Not content with being a dancer, Mickey has studied drama and did several years of summer stock. During his summer stock days he had the good fortune to play with such artists as Gloria Swanson, John Caradine, Zasu Pitts and scores of

The turning point in his life came when he was picked up while dancing at a benefit show and given a screen test by Twentieth Century Fox in August of 1947. Since then he has the senter amounted so that the sister state of Alabama as her took an active part in "Vagabond Varieties" here at Ben home, though she did attend college in Tennes-

As Mickey hastened to assure me, he is far from being a star, but I say even the great in show business had to start and he is well along his way in his chosen line of modern dance. He has done various dance routines in "On the Town" "Summer Stock" and the new musical "American in Paris." He estimates that at least three weeks of rehearse and about 100 hours of practice went into just one of the numbers for "On the Town", before it was given a run before the camera. As far as he is concerned Gene Kelly and Vera Ellen are tops to work with,

AS I TALKED TO HIM I was impressed by the down-to-earth and sane views he expressed about show business. He said "There's plenty of hard work in Hollywood, Frequently you get up at 5:30 in the morning and don't get home until 8:30 at night. When you're working you go to school to be When you're working you go to school, take diction and voice, study camera technique, dancing, etc" "You get discouraged, but you have to keep plugging and working, and there's a lot that is pleasant too, for instance, working with people like Gene Kelly, Vera Ellen and John Garfield." He thinks the current revision of all-soldier shows is wonderful and feels that they are a definite morale booster for the troops. He has written a musical revue on Army life which he hopes to do at Benning.

And from what I gather from talking to him I think that

Sports Sidelights

By PVT, GEORGE ROBEY

otlights are glowing in the sporting world to point out many problems that confront the coming season. Perhaps this season will be one of the most interesting in many years ue to the tardiness of experts to decide on import issues.

Primary among the long list of issues being considered is concluding just who will be the baseball commissioner. Two members of a screening committee stated recently that A. B. "Happy" Chandler stands high as a major candidate for

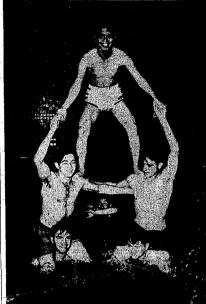

Chandler was notified in December that his contract would not be renewed when it expires on May 1, 1952. This notifica-tion was given by the major league club owners in hopes of receiving Chandler's resignation. But the commissioner stated flatly that he would hold his office "until the last sec-ond". Due to this statement, a vote of confidence was in order and other candidates were named along with Chandler. Recently in Milwaukee, Chandler said that he didn't know what he'd do about holding the club owners to the contract if he were not reelected, Several problems are scheduled to be decided upon when the big guns of the major leagues meet on March 12. One of the biggest issues to be decided at that meeting will be this question.

y the screening committee. It is rumored, however, that outatanding competition for the happy man of baseball are Fred Vinson, Chief of the U. S. Supreme Court, and George Trautman, a big name in baseball for the Ohio area.

LONG, DIFFICULT CASE

We believe that it will be a hard question on which to decide. It. Chandler is voted out and he should decide to remain in office, it would pose a long and difficult case in court. It may even take longer to decide in court than it would to just let his term of office expire and replace

The Fight Against Prejudice

Prejudice is one of mankind's most common faults. It's probably the most easily acquired and certainly the hardest

Children never dislike others simply because they practice different religion, or the color of their skin is different, or they were born in a different country. None of these things matters to children.

Most parents try to guard against their children acquiring prejudice. Despite their efforts, however, this isn't always ssible. Through association with others, already prejudiced, ese children often fall into the same pattern, and prejudice takes its toll. As they grow older, their dislike of other races, other religions, other nationalities becomes stronger. Thus, prejudice thrives, and tolerance, an attributer, is lost.

AF Ups 575 Majors, 1,077 Captains

The Air Force has given temporary promotion to 575 majors and 1,077 captains—all Regu-lars—who last year had been selected for permenent advancements and who, consequently were declared ineligible to be considered for forthcoming temporary promotions. For some time there had been speculation of such forthcoming action to prevent these officers, sucrigorous permanent selection proceedings from being penalized unfairly. The temporary advancements were made effective, exceptions, as of Oct. 19, 1950, for the 575 Regular majors promoted to lieuten-and colonel and as of Dec. 14, 1950, for the 1,077 Regular captains promoted to major.

True Leisure a Must for Good Morale

BY CHAPLAIN THOMAS L. LANGLEY Not long ago I came across a sign which struck my fancy. Its heavily worded message read at length: "Pedal habiliments artistically lubricated and illuminated with ambidex trous facility for the infinitestimal renumeration of twenty cents." It might have read sim ply and briefly: "Shoeshine 20 cents." I hope, radoxically, that my message won't be too heavy and yet that it will carry great weight!

True repose is not a mere intermission be-tween the acts of the working-life. It is an intense activity, but of a different kind. Just sleeping is not a cessation of life, but living of a different sort from wakefulness, repose is an activity no less creative than that of our working hours.

Repose-true leisure cannot be enjoyed with-out some recognition of the spiritual world. For the first purpose of repose is the contemplation of the good . . . its goal is a true perspective one, the small incidents of everyday life in their relation to the larger goodness that surrounds us. Genesis tells us that after the creation of the world, "God saw all that He had made and found it very good". Such contemplation of His work is natural to man, when ever he, too, is engaged in a creative task, We cannot get real satisfaction out of our work unless we pause frequenty to ask ourselves why we are doing it. If it is simple because we were so ordered by the CO or an NCO, contemplation of St. Paul's words: "All power that is, is ordained of God" should satisfy that we are obeying God's authority coming down through the chain of command

A job of any kind can be lifted up and given Divine purpose, if it is seen in the perspective of eternity. Gi-ing the barracks, driv-ing a six-by-six, wading through a pile of form 20's-all these can be "made good" through a simple act of the will which directs them to the service of God. The simplest and even the most distasteful task can be given spiritual significance and made divine. If we direct our work towards God, we shall work better and more happily than we can imagine. The admission of this fact is another of the tasks for which we need repose. Once a week man, reposing from work, does well to come before his God to admit how much of what he did-during the week was the work of his Creator; he can remind himself, then, that the material on which he labored came from Other hands, that the ideas he employed entered his mind which he employed was a gift of God.

In such a mood of true repose, the commanding general will have a keeper and calmer under his command, the platoon leader will comprehend more fully and correlate more practically the fact that he is dealing with men. made to God's image and likeness and created for an eternal destiny, and the KF peels the spuds will handle them as humble gifts

Repose allows us to contemplate the little things we do in their relationship to the vast things which alone can give them worth and meaning. It reminds us that all actions get their worth from God; "Worship" means admitting "worth". To worship is to restore to our workaday life its true worth by settling it in its relationship to God who is its end and ours.

Such worship is a form of recose of an intensely active and creative contemplation of divine things, from which we arise refreshed. the promise of the gospel of St. Matthew (XI, 28) is still waiting for those who are willing to hear it: "Come to Me. all you that labor and are burdened; and I will give you

On The Bookshel CASE HISTORY OF A MOVIE By Dore Schary RANDOM HOUSE, Publisher

The author of "Case History of a Movie" is one of tiyoungest and most successful producers in Hollywood. He has become identified as the maker of motion pictures with different" angle, and telling a "new" story. Inasmuch as th no longer a "different" angle or "new" story to be he is no longer a "different" angle or "new" story to one in Mollywood, "different" angle or "new" story to one in Mollywood, then it stands to reason that Dore Schary must be using real showmanship in the production of his pictures. Not too many months ago, Dore Schary produced a movientitled "The Next Voice You Hear". The movie was a re success whereever it played. People throughout the count commented on its human quality and depth of feeling. The remarks came as no surprise to Dore Schary, however. He had planned the film that way. He had done tremendous r search on the story prior to shooting one foot of film.

"Case History of a Movie" then, is just what the ti implies. It is a story about the making of one motion picture But in telling this case history, Dore Schary has gone behin the seenes at the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer studios and broug to light some facts about motion picture production not pr viously made public before. He tells of the methods used film production; lighting, cinematography, scripting, choreogr phy, and the myriad of other skills that go into the maki of a motion picture.

Three hundred and thirty - seven exhibitions, twenty - seven trophies, nine TV shows, eighteen radio shows and two million spectators is a most formidable record for anybody, but when you apply them to a seven - year old boy they are more than smazing. Buddy Pendleton, seven - year old son of Sic and Mrs. Murray Pendleton, currently stationed at Benning, is oung man who has chalked up such a record.

Buddy, the world's youngest dirt track driver, is a veteran of three years of racing. I met him office at the Fort Benning Army hospital where his father works in the radio section, and he was seemingly unimpressed by the fact that wanted to do an article on him. He is a boy's boy with his red gold hair, blue eyes, freckles and a friendly grin. With pride he called my attention to the scarlet and white uniform he wore and the racing helmet that matched it and told me that he was the official mascut of the National Association of Stock Car racing.

VOII MIGHT THINK this is a pretty dangerous occupation for one so young, but Buddy is a mighty lucky and an ex-tremely careful driver and has a clear mind for making nute decisions. The way it all started was the little four wheel vehicle his father made for him.

The only catch was that Sgt. Pendleton could not push him for he had a leg injured in the past war. After watching Buddy for some time, his father decided that he handled his littleautomobile with such great skill that he would put a motor in it and gear it down quite a bit to make it run around the yard in safety. This was an easy job for Set. Pendleton for at that time he was engaged in an auto parts business in his home town of Cairo, Ga.

Of course, Buddy was the envy of the kids in the town and before long requests began to pour in from various organizations for shows. When he went out on the shows the nublic began to about him and further requests for scheduled shows come in. When his father reenlisted in the Army, he was assigned to the Recruiting service and Buddy began to give shows as a Recruiting activity for the Army and Air Force.

DURING THE WEEK he is just like any other seven year old with his school work to keep him busy, but on the week-ends the story is different. All of his shows and exhibitions have been arranged so as not to interfere with his school work. and this year his contract was taken by the United States Marine Corps and the schedule calls for some fifty shows to start this month in Macon, Ga.

The highlight of his career was last year when Buddy was flown to Syracuse and Buffalo, New York on all expense paid trip by NASCAR to give a show at the Civic Stadium in Buf-falo. On this trip his running mate and competitor, young Teddy Edwards, Jr., also seven, the world's smallest motor cyclist, went along. The two youngsters were accorded royal treatment with a police escort through town and both their vehicles were put on display prior to the show

Its front and center for Pfc. Jayne A. Hay, our Miss Benning for the week, a Michigan girl, who was a secretary in a sporting goods store before becoming one of Uncle Sam's Jane, currently assigned to the Provost Marshal's office as a clerk-typist, came direct to this assignement from basic training.

Pfc Hay is a sports fan from way back and there are not many sports that she does not know something about. It is only natural that coming from one of our Northern states that she would know and like the winter sports, among which she lists as her favorite ice skating, skiing, tabogganing, etc. In other types of sports she has as her favorites fishing, hoating and horseback riding. Next to sports in her preferences is amateur photography. She loves this hobby and was in a camera club to the soft southing strains of the semi-classical numbers. She is an avid reader and likes all types of books. When it comes to her offduty clothes she has trouble making up her nind between the semi-formal and the sports type, and her favorite color is green.

Her plans for the future are not clear, for in leaving Fort Benning for an assignement in the European Command. Beyond that, her plans for the time when she will no longer be in the Army are a little indefinite too, and she says that if she is not happily married by that time she plans to return to secretarial work, but just between us. I think she knows that she Football has been approved by the office of the commanding general, it was announced recently. Plans have already been worked out for the new team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Area, The "Fort Benning ling the Third Army Area, The "Fort Benning Doughboys" will play their first game on Sept. 30 with Camp Rucker being the first of the pigskin parade to do battle with the doughboys. This opening game will be the first of ten games to be played during the season.

Tryouts will begin in the latter part of July or the first of August. Any men who are interested are welcome to come out. Coaches will be chosen prior to that time. It will be announced when men will be interviewed for these positions. Both enlisted men and officers are eligible. Men will, be chosen for both positions according to their past experiences and ability on the football field.

Tardiness in deciding on important issues in the sporting world was the subject of our column last week. This week many of those issues have boiled over into great storms in the realm of sports. The sporting spottight points out difficult problems that are being fought out over the round tables of the big powers that decide such matters.

of the big powers that decide such matters.

SUGAR RAY ISSUE

Heated discussion is taking place right now over the titles i "Sugar Ray" Robinson who just last week defeated Jake amotta to annex the middleweight title. George Gainford, dobinson's manager, stated that Robinson had not given up his welterweight title when the International Boxing Club said his welterweight title when the International Boxing Cuto said that they were going to hold a tournament to determine a new welterweight champion. It has been ruled by the New York Boxing Commission that one fighter can not hold two crowns at the same time. Robinson still believes that he is crowns at the same time. Robinson still believes that he is also the welterweight champ even though he won the mid-dleweight tille. The International Boxing Club believes that Sugar Ray is laboring under a misconception regarding the rules and they are going ahead with their tournament plans which will probably include Kid Gavilan Billy Graham, Charley Fluary and Johnny Bretton. From these great ficializes a new Fusari and Johnny Bratton. From these great fighters, a new welterweight champion will emerge. weiterweight title, because he has plans of challenging Joey Maxim's light heavyweight crown if the commission will approve the fight. A rule in the light heavyweight division states that no light heavy is permitted to weight more than 14 pounds more than his opponent. Robinson may tip the scales at 19 pounds less than the light heavy ruler.

OHIO STATE

The storm that we predicted last week has blackened the skies over the Ohio State University. The Athletic Board, the screening committee, and the Board of Trustees were not able screening committee, and the Board of Trustees were not able to get together on a successor to the famous Wes Fesler. State's griditorn is known as the "graveyard of .coaches."

Politics are muddling things up in the prolonged battle of Just who will be the next coach. The fight has even gone so far as the demanding of a government investigation to see if the funds are being appropriately spent. Students have organized and have passed out petitions demanding that Dick Larkins, Athletic Director, resign. It seems that no one can get together on the cammus. But the battle goes even farther get together on the campus. But the battle goes even farther than that. Outside interference is also a big stumbling block. Old Grads of the school are protesting and have joined the brawl. The residents of Columbus, Ohio are also up in arms. Football is a craze with the people there, in whose town the university is located. They don't like to see their favorite game shoved around as it is being done at the present time. This battle for the coaches' job is probably the most bitte that has ever descended upon the school, its student body and

Something will have to be decided fast. The issue soon may come to violence if something isn't done to settle the Several members of the tournament committee were not present to act upon the problem of the "outlaw golfers." But as soon as they can get together, Demaret and his boys may have some explaining to do.

Television hit the head lines again recently. State Legislatures have entered the problem in several states by either passing or considering bills to the effect that football games must be teleconsidering bins to the effect where the country and especially in the Western Conference territory.

Some say that if the schools are forced to televise, the crowds Some say that it the schools are invested to everyas, the closer will dwindle down numbers as low as 26,000. The class, which graduated at Stillwell ipid last Sat. Feb. 24, in the presence of Brig. Gen. George Honnen, acting Commander of the Infantry Center, made their donations even though the drive does not officially open until March. 1.

A busy day was spent by the troopers. After making their final training jump on Lee field, the group returned to the graduation ceremony, then to the company area where they completed their donations. All of this was accomplished without taking time out for lunch. It. L. Col. Elmer C. Howard. commanding officer of the Airborne battalion, said that, "the contributions made by the troopers is in line with the fine spirit of Arborne soldiers."

of Arborne soldiers."

This contribution became possible through the excellent work of Post Finance, under Maj, Ming Rose and the First Student regiment's personnel, section, who were responsible for giving they lett for the return trip to their parent organizations.

Heading the list in contributions for the unit were Pvts. Philips L. Bingham, Morris M. Boomer, Robert P. Chrerry, Newman Farrar and George Codollars each.

of the free world, lacked sufficient power at that time to deter aggression; and we have for that reason begun to rebuild our strength

The strengthening of an army requires a careful synchronization of the training of mannower and the development and procurement of the very complex equipment that modern war demands. And because the production of equipment requires more time than the training of manpower, we have ha regist demands that we call for mobilization of the entire military manpower of the Nation immediately. We feel that if we should call men from industry when industry needs experional mannoyer most - when it is converting from peace war production - we would actually hamper the over-all build-up that we are attempting to attain.

We have, therefore, instituted a partial mobilization that will provide the military manpower essential to our immediate needs. By so doing, we feel that industry will be permitted to make the most efficient conversion to the production of military equipment; we feel that we will cause the least dis-location of civilian lives until it is absolutely necessary; and we will still have time to call men in t ime to train them as their equipment arrives. Only thus can we most efficiently We know from experience that one of the factors most detr

"By means of our partial mobilization, we will have equivalent of 24 equipped divisions on active duty by the first of July. That is 18 divisions and 18 regiments and regimental combat teams with supporting elements, which is equivalent to six additional divisions. In addition, there will be antiaircraft units, engineer battalions, signal battalions and others, which are included among our combat units.

"We hear from time to time comment that our American Army is becoming over-mechanized, that we are placing too much emphasis upon new weapons. I do not believe that these statements are justified based upon either our experience in Korea or in World War II.

Unless we in America utilize to the utmost the great advantage that our superior scientific and industrial genius can provide, we will assuredly place our soldiers at a disadvantage upon the fields of battle if this present war should expand, or if war should come elsewhere in the world. We should no try to match potential enemies man-for-man; because an attempt to do so would place such great demands upon our manpower resources that we would undoubtedly court destruction of the very way of life that we are trying to preserve. . .

"It is a matter of record that with the machines and ma-terials that our factories poured forth in World War II, our won its great victories with battle deaths less than 13 per cent of those of our enemies. This is a tribute to the great scientific and industrial genius of America, which constitutes one of our greatest strengths. . .

"Our new medium tanks have proved to be extremely effective against enemy armor. Most outstanding, or course, has been the performance of the 3.5-inch bazooka which has more than lived up to our expectations.

"I, for one, therefore, am convinced that anything we ca

do to increase the mobility and firepower of American soldiers is well worth the effort. Such a policy is not only more efficient in the utilization of our limited manpower resources, but it is also in keeping with the traditional policy upon which Nation was founded: that the individual citizen—his life, his comfort, and his happiness-are of paramount importance

There have been many comparisons made between our meand tactics and those of the police states, and I should like to tell you our views toward these comparisons.

"I need give only one example to vitiate the criticism I have heard that we are less efficient in our use of manpower because police states place more men in the line for man behind the line. It is our method of handling our wound-. Where the police states sacrifice vast numbers of men in attacks, and leave their wounded to die or battlefield, we do our utmost to use tactics that will preclude needless loss of life, and employ a well-integrated system of collecting and caring for wounded. This takes men-litter bearers, aid-men, doctors, helicopter pilots and maintenance menof whom could be utilized as fighters if we made this choice. However, because of our meticulous care of our wounded, the death rate among casualties reaching our hospitals has been reduced to less than three per cont.

"In direct contrast to this, approximately 10 per cent of the enemy wounded in Korea die within the division area and at least 20 per cent of those evacuated . . . expire. In one enemy division the medical unit supporting the entire division had only two trucks, two ambulances and one jeep—less than those of an American medical unit supporting a battalion of U. S.

the manpower of our Nation is the question of how to improve the readiness of our citizenry for possible war without unnecessarily disrupting their civilian lives. To illustrate just what large percentage of our Army must come from the citizenry Nation. I need only cite a few statistics from our War II experience. In World War II, only two per cent of the entire officer corps was professional

Classes Beaun to Train Liaison Pilots

Classes for training Army and Air Force helicopter and liaison aircraft pilots and me-chanics have begun at San Marcos AFB, Tex. The base was reactivated on January 15 after remaining on standby basis since December.

Salected Navy enlisted personel will be given a seven-weeks course in map reading, instruction methods, leadership, military police weapons, military law, investigation methods, train, station, and town patrolling, handling givil disturbances traffic control, and communications, at the Army's Camp Gordon, Ga., Military Police School, Candidates must have a background of shore patrol work.

The Marine Corps Air Facility at Camp Lejeune, N. C., will be reactivated in August to meet the current need for additional aviation bases. This facility will be used largely to support Atlantic Fleet Marine Force helicopter operations.

The Army Signal Corps is producing 14 training films dealing with radioisotopes, which will be made available for educational purposes to qualified civilian scientific and educational groups and individuals. The new series, intended to help relieve the shortage of per-sonel qualified to handle isotopes, will deal mainly with biology and medicine.

Regular and Reserve medical officers of the various military services, who desire to trans-fer from one Service to another, should make immediately. Authority for such transfers expires July 9, 1951.

The Air Force will appoint and order to active duty a limited number of volunteer applicants from Priority I physicinas and dentists. portunity for Priority I physicians and dentists to volunteer for active duty. Volunteer appli-cations for Priority I medical personal temporarily were discontinued last November.

A comprehensive training program for Tactical Air Control Parties is in progress at Pope AFB, N. C. A TAC Party is composed of an experienced fighter pilot and enlisted radio echnicians. They serve with front line Army troops to entrol tactical aircraft in attacking targets close to front lines

U.S. Marines Rejoin UN Offensive in Korea

Korea this week for the first time since their withdrawal from the Chosin reservoir area and evacuation from Hungham, Meanwhile, the killer offensive by UN forces continued along a 100-mile front against 130,000 Communists cops. Although front dispatches indicated that the Reds were putting up stiffer resist ance, in some sectors the enemy was retreating faster than the Allies could move their trucks and tanks forward. Official communiques point out that a showdown battle is almost at hand.

In Washington, the Senate-unanimously approved more than $2 billion for an atom-age Navy modernization program. Already passed by the House, the bill now goes to President Fruman for his signature. It would authorize the Navy to build a new 57,000-ton super carrier canable of handling atom bombers. The Navy also could buy about 40 new warships with a total weight of 500,000 tons and convert 292 others with a total weight of some 1,000,000 tons. The conversion program will lay heavy stress on anti-submarine warfare.

Sen. Robert A. Taft this week demanded that Congress deny ground troops to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Western European army until other Atlantic Pact nations promise accused Administration leaders, who annous ed a 24-division Army with six in Europe, of "hiding" the facts behind a cloak of mi enough forces to stop a Russian attack. Taft secrecy. He warned what he called stillsecret military plans may lead to "ruinous inflation" by adding $20 billion a year to the nation's tax load.

God, Too, Has Directives and Orders

BY CHAPLAIN GERALD F. CLUNE "Now hear this". What a familiar expression

this was to the men serving on, or being transported by American transports during the past war. Soon after this, there would come over the PA system, direct and clearcut commands for the welfare and safety-of all personnel aboard. There was no mistaking the meaning and importance of these directions intended for the safety of all.

Many centuries ago, Almight God gave us His directives and orders for our welfare, spiritual and temporal. He bids us near Him. We have no choice but to listen to Divine Truth. If we presume the right to do other wise, we presume something that does not rightly belong to us by reason of our created nature In His Ten Commandments, Divine Wis dom and the Supreme Lawgiver gives us the positive law obliging every single individu person, regardless of religion, creed or color Our inherent duties, first to God directly and then to our neighbor, oblige each of us with-

This ordinance of Almighty God is obviously clear and Direct. "Thou shalt" or "Thou shalt not" couldn't be more clear or more direct There is nothing of the vague or the guess work at play here. Rather, on the other hand, "Our Divine Lord" "Lays it on the us When He tells us that we "shall keep holy the Sabbath", "shall honor our father and mother", "shall not commit adultery", "shall not covet another man's wife", "shall not steal", etc., He means it. He means it in just the way that He says it. There is no double-talk here, no "its", "maybe's", "perlike or accept what suits our whims and fancies at the moment. It does not lie with our nower to accept some of these directives from heaven and reject the rest. No creature is greater than the Creator. Have you eve thought what would happen to us were our Creator to withdraw his sustaining hand? God's precepts oblige everyone of us without excep-

The directness of God's law is to our own benefit, individually and collectively as bers of the human race, in this life and the life hereafter. Our God is a God of right order and harmony. He is Intelligence and Truth. His laws are intended for order among human beings just as there is perfect order and harmony in all of the rest of creation. Made as we are to His own image and likeness. He ould not possibly allow us to wander blindly without the necessary directions pointing to our duties to Him directly and to our fello On the contrary, His laws are given to us out of His Infinite love for us, because we are so important to Him. Remember these words, 'See the lilies of the field. Neither do they sow or do they reap. Yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed as one of these. How much more are ye". If He takes such care of a beautiful flower, lovely in the order of creation, how much more does He think of you and me. His highest creatures.

An honest effort to fulfill God's desires in regard and live according to His law, will bring any person true peace, happiness, and contentment. To do otherwise is to bring unhappiness and discontent. These ferverntly desired blessings will always be found in God's way, never outside it. The miserable plight of so many millions in the world today is evidence enough of the unavoidable result of the disregard of that law.

It is indeed an easy matter to sit back and speak in high sounding phrases and platitudes about Our Creator and about His law, and then let it go at that. What about ou own lives? Actually, do our everyday lives and actions conform to that clear-cut standard that our Heavenly Fathers gives to us. "Are we on the ball" as far as our God is concern-ed. Those duties and obligations to Him and to our neighbor are to be fulfilled by us, not someone else. We are quick to proclaim that we have the greatest love and reverence for n and His Holy Name. His answer to this is, "If you love Me, keep my commandments".

Lying some sen miles form the Union Station in downtown Los Angeles, Calif., is a suburb of that city known as Hollywood. There are few markers to identify Hollywood as being a separate community, yet is is more widely known as a separate city than many of America's largest muncipalities. Hollywood has a post - office, but is is merely a branch station of the Los Angeles main office. Most of the motion pictures made are marked "made in Hollywood", yet most of then are actually made in Burbank, Culver City, Universal City, surburbs of Los Angeles, California. There are actually only two motion picture studies in the Hollywood proper

Many people have written essays, books, novels about Hollywood and its glamorous inhabitants, but it took an an-thropologist to really do justice in the attempt. And the anthropologist in this case is Hortense Powdermaker, the of this piece. Dr. Powdermaker stayed in Hollywood for a year, during which time she taught at the University of Souther California, and mingled with the film people on intimate terms. She applied her scientific knowledge in the writing of this book, and in so doing has provided readers with perhaps the first real look at Hollywood not slanted in some direction. She has taken its people apart and put them under a microscope, And what the reader sees will, in many instances, surpris

Dr. Powdermaker begins this piece by describing the habitat and people, mythical and real. This is the format which Dr. Powdermaker used in her writings of the South Seas natives. and she has applied the technique in startling fashion. The atmosphere, activity, home - life, and other features are discussed in great detail. The scene is laid in this openling sequence for the fast - moving commentary which follows.

In fast succession, Dr. Powdermaker takes the reader on a tour of the studios as they mass-produce dreams for the mil-lions of movie - goers. She discusses the effect these dreams have in the lives of the viewers, and closely ties in the censorship that dictates what you finally see on the screen. From taboos in shooting the film on through the star system, actors and people, directors, acting in Hollywood as compared to acting elsewhere, and Hollywood's place in the U. S. A.

This is recommended reading for movie fans. To the person who takes little stock in Hollywood and its glamour, and who seldom sees a film, the hook would probably be dult.

From Fort Benning Georgia to the fighting men on the

That is a broad statement for any person to make, but when the Blood Mobile bank comes to Berlning each month for those two days, the blood taken form the soldiers here is sent to help the soldiers in Korea.

Back during the days of the last war, records were made and broken by the Blood bank and in 1944 it was discontinued, only to be started up again in December of 1948 with its first donbr Lt. Weldon H. Adams, Lt. Adams, a veteran of World War II, owed his life to the twelve blood transfusions that he had during the war when he was wounded while serving with the both Infantry division in Southern France and he hoped that be was repaying in part his debt of gratitude.

WHEN THE BLOOD BANK came back to Benning the schedule was for one day a month which was followed until September of 1949 when the present two day a month plan was inaugurated. Though the Mobile unit was a complete unit much more help was required than the doctors and nurses that accompanied it.

Forseeing the need for help, the American Red Cross auxiliary geared itself for action and set up an active group. The first meeting of this organization was held at the home of the Commanding General of Fort Benning, Mrs. Withers A. Burress, and from there went urgent pleas to all parts of the post for staff aids, typists, nurses aids, and canteen workers,

The response to this plea was very gratifying and the system of rotating the days on these jobs was set up and has been carried on until the present. All of these jobs are performed willingly by volunteer workers and the donors for the blood bank have always been more than could be used.

With the present situation in the world the call for blood and plasma has more than doubled and all blood banks are planning to increase their output. Here at Benning, officials of the Red Cross and officers of the Red Cross and officers of the auxiliary are working on the plans to have the Mobile unit here for four days a month instead of the customary two days, and the ladies are also calling for more workers to help them in the acceleration of this all important job.

A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF has been set by Benning with the donation of 6,332 pints of blood since the last beginning of the Blood Mobile bank and at times out of 3,000 men in a unit 2,500 have given generously of their blood.

Tracing a shipment of blood is almost like reading a dramatic story. One particular shipment was taken to the regional office in Atlanta, and on account of bad weather the plane couldn't take off, so it was taken by truck to Birmingham and then flown to the West Coast, processing was hurried up and on Tuesday it was winging its way to the battlefields of

There is no charge for the plasma and whole blood that is sent overseas although the cost to the Red Cross for one pint of whole blood complete with the needles, tubes and other equipment to administer the blood is well over fifty dollars. There are people stationed here at Benning, who like Lt. Adms, owe their life to the gift of blood and plasma and they are responding more than generously when the announcements go out that the Mobile Blood bank comes around, and there are those who know that consequent. are those who know that someday they might have to depend upon it and they too are responding

Then for the quiet mood, she likes nothing better than to select a good book, find a nice quiet corner and settle down to an evening of good reading. And speaking of reading, the tops in this field is held first by fiction followed in a close second by poetry. She loves music very much but when she turns on the radio she will do

Red Cross Needs Your Help

The annual drive for operating funds by American Red Cross got under way here last Thursday, and every man and woman on the Post, both military and civilian, are being asked to contribute, each according to his means. What will you do to help insure that this great humane organization will reach national goal of $85,000,000, the minimum amount necessary nission? We sincerely hope that no one at Fort Benning will fail to do his share.

Too often in the past, the role of Red Cross has been misrepresented, either by an organization official or by a man or woman seeking help. It should be remembered that in an organization of the size and scope of Red Cross it's mistakes occur. National headquarters, chapter secretaries and field directors labor hard to eliminate these mistakes. but no one is infallible. We firmly believe however, that the report made available last week by the local field director proves the magnitude of services provided personnel at this huge Infantry Center. If this report is indicative of the work do by Red Cross—and we are sure it is—we doubt any organiza-tion has more reason to be proud of its accomplishments.

During the last calendar year, according to Field Director. Cramer, the Fort Benning Red Cross office handled a total of 13,978 cases involving servicemen and their families, and made loans totalling $25,024

That same office recommended that 4,749 emergency leaves or extensions be granted, and made health and welfare reports on 3.164 persons, including families of military personnel Personal problems were discussed with Red Cross officials at Fort Benning by 4,970 servicemen, and information concerning Government benefits was provided 1.095 Benningites. Furthermore, the Red Cross office here received 6,807 letters requesting help or information, and recorded a staggering total of 6.860 replies. For 5.529 telegrams received, 5.114 werdispatched, and for 842 long distance telephone calls rece

This is quite a record and certainly belies any accusation that-Red Cross-officials are not conscientious workers.

American Red Cross, contrary to popular belief, is not relief organization in any sense of the word. No field director or chapter official is authorized to make gifts of money to anyone. All money earmarked for financial aid to servicemen is strictly on a loan basis, and must be repaid as soon as the recipient is able to do so. American Red Cross, in rue American fushion, shows that servicemen how to help himself. It's a service organization, pure and simple, and is not Yet, there are men who feel they have been treated unfairly by Red Cross when their request for money is refused. But did they ever stop to think that their request is probably to fulfill under current Red Cross regulations? For example, loans can not be made to men who find they don't have enough money to go home on ordinary leave. But Red Cross can, and often does, make loans for emergency leave, provided the money is unavailable from any other source

Red Cross, however, doesn't limit its aid to servicen enjoying the comforts of garrison life. The helping hand of American Red Cross is being felt in Korea today through its field directors who are on hand to provide combat tro with cigarets, razor blades or a bar of soap.

But most important of all, the hand of Red Cross is being felt by the wounded in hospitals, many of whom without the life - giving blood made available by Red Cross blood banks.

No one is forced to donate to Red Cross' fund - raising compaign, and you can be sure that any pressure brought to bear does not have the sanction of anyone in that organization.

We think every unit might well follow the example of Company D, Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment, which last week reported $500 donation to Red Cross. This figure, reached prior to the official opening of the campaign, represents more than 100 per cent contribution. How much will you give?

Think This Over, Soldier!

The process of physical and mental adjustment to the Army is for many men a rough one. Changing regulations keep us hopping, but it must be remembered that every team, ever club, has its particular set of rules, without which all organization is lost. One of the regulations is that departing military personnnel sign out at the proper designated time

As training cycles are completed, leaves are granted, and we know that there is no happier man than a soldier on leave. An opportunity to visit loved ones, see old friends- life is

Consider the soldier who receives his leave orders early, and makes a deal with a well-meaning buddy to sign him out so that he has a head-start on the official departure

The soldier shoves off, but does he have an opportunity to enjoy the leave? Many things may happen, including an accident that might result in death, or serious injury. It has happened before-and it could be you!

Unless you are in line of duty, your rights to six months gratuitous pay and pension rights could be forfeited.

The few fleeling moments of "extra time" are not worth the risk. Think it over!

In Paris this week, the Russian and Western deputy foreign ministers met in an attempt to agree on a work sheet for a proposed Big Four parley. Russia's list was headed by a proposal to halt the proposed rearmament Western Germany, withdraw occupation forces and reduce the armed forces of the four powers. The list did not include an Austrian peace treaty. The Western Powers proposed to

Dreams Play Important Role in Our Lives

BY CHAPLAIN CLIFFORD E HARGRAVE

If there were dreams to sell, what would you buy? Would you purchase the little dream that brings pleasure for the moment? Or would you buy the great dream that demands hard work and perhaps sacrifice?

Dreams have played an important part in the lives of men since the beginning of time. Men have dreamed and have been so aroused their dreams that they achieved the heights of this world's enjoyment in working to fulfill their dreams. One dreamer was said to be so rudely awakened by an apple hitting his head that he meditated on the situation while rubbing his head. In so doing, he is credited with having discovered the law of gravity.

General Goethals dreamed he could build a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific where the French had failed. It took blood, sweat, and tears before that dream became a reality Now we accept the Panama Canal as common-

The Wright brothers dreamed they could fly as all men have dreamed since the beginning of time. But their dreaming, they planned and worked as few men before them. Their dream became a reality at Kitty Hawk.

Out in Kansas a lad was firing the stove at country school. One morning the stove exploded and the boy was burned so badly that his toes were melted. He was told he would never walk again. From his bed he watched other boys run and play and dreamed of the n he would walk. Soon he was out on crutches. Later his dreams paid dividends for he was able to walk without crutches. It hurt less if he ran so Glenn Cunningham ran so much that he became one of the greatest mile runners this country ever produced.

Man's dreams have meant the building of empires-the bridging of streams -conquering of the skies. Then Man's dreams have been his own destruction. Why? Because the dream had no vision. We have laughed at the day dreamer, but he has brought the changes which have revolutionized the world.

Alexander the Great sat down and cried because there were no more worlds to conquer of the time when the world would be free from disease or famine. Or better still, he might have dreamed of the day of brotherhood when men would live in peace and harmony with

There are still more worlds to conquer! Men have not as yet achieved that for which the Creator has made him. Man has yet to build the Kingdom of God on earth!

There are dreams to sell and these are the days when men must buy great dreams. ping stones of their dead selves to greater

It is a great day in which to live. Today is a great day for dreaming. Today's dream of a better world can be fulfilled if we rise to work for the glory of God and the better-

On The Bookshelf FOXFIRE By Anya Seton By Robert L. Groover

Amanda Lawrence and Jonathan Dartland, the principals this book, met each other aboard a ship enroute from Europe to the United States, Amanda was the charming sheltered product of New York and the best schools, and Dartland was one fourth Apache Indian. Despite their different backgrounds, they fell in love, and not long after arriving in the United States, were married.

As the book formally opens, Amanda and Dart (short for Dartland) are on their honeymoon trip to the small, Arizona, mining town which will be their home. The town is small, and solely dependent on the operation of one gold mine. The town is totally lacking in any of the modern conveniences so familian determined that nothing will affect their marriage.

Dart is an engineer working in the mine, and Amanda soon finds that the boss' wife, as well as the rest of the town's leading ladies, dislike her because she is educated dresses in the latest Paris fashions, and because she married an Apache Indian. Amanda endures the hardships of the frontier town and the snide remarks east in her direction, because she has way of life strange and rough.

The town has two characters in the mine doctor and a oman recluse. "Doc" is an alcoholic whose divorced wife is a famous actress. The woman recluse lives alone in a thirtyroom mansion built for her years before by her husband. The husband struck it rich in gold mining, and, upon finding his young pretty wife with a lover, shot the lover and suffered like Amaada, largely because they so admired her husband.

On Valentine's day three years ago, John Modenos stood on the deck of a steamer gliding into New York harbor and anxiously scanned the skyline for the renowned Statue of Liberty. With mingled emotions he watched the skyline, Healmost wished he was back home on Cyprus Island with his family. There was fear for the unknown and above all a great gladness for at last he was in America, and perhaps beyond the horizon lay a career in opera.

Pvt. John Modenos, currently assigned to the Eighth Medical company, Fourth Infantry division, well remembers that

OPERA HIS GOAL

Before John came to this country, his one and only goal in life was a career as opera singer and since he was three years old had been singing. When he was eleven he settled down to the serious business of studying in earnest. To him it was not work for John sings as naturally as he breathes and always in mind was that probable "someday".

company, and with simple faith claims he was spared because he wore a religious medal given him by his mother.

And finally a dream was realized and he was in America. John went to Youngstown, Ohio, where he stayed with relatives and there started his studying for opera this time with Mrs. Mariorie Brenner, who he considers to be one of the best teachers. To gain further knowledge, he had his own radio promai over a local station. About this time he met a young Irish girl named Rosemary Callahan, and hince then she and opera have occupied his mind. According to John she has a lovely singing voice and they have sting the leads

Just recently, Pvt. Modenos was one of the featured acts In the highly - successful Vagahond Varieties, an all-soldier show at Fort Benning. Prior to that won a contest at one of the clubs in town, and has given unspairingly of his time to sing for his buddies at the various service clubs. He has also been guest on the Benning in Review show.

Recently we saw an example of good sportsmanship here on the post when the First Student Training regiment, with their coach's permission, allowed a member of the opposing team to play after he had committed enough fouls to put him out of the basketball game. This man was their biggest threat, he sparked the other to score against them and, yet the game went on into an overtime period in order to decide the victor

Now the First Student Training Regiment has won the post title. They won the top honors last Monday night in a terrifically hard fought battle with the Eighth Infantry Regiment squad. We could see those qualities that make a team great in the winning basketballers who have emerged for the secand straight year as the victors of the hard-wood courts. Fort Benning will have a fine team to represent them in future contests in the Third Army area.

HELPING PYSICALLY DISABLED

Physical Education professor, Arthur S. Daniels has been making a study of disabled youths in the public schools over the country who are told that they cannot participate in physical education. He found that about 89 per cent of these youths find it necessary to do without the very activities that they would like to do best. They are not allowed to grow as the others who are not blind, crippled, or have heart disabilities. The disabled often become maladiusted as a result.

The professor decided to try an experiment. He started swimming classes for several blind students who had never dreamed of being able to learn the sport. The youngsters were out for anything and they were willing to try. To their surprise and to the good professor's surprise, the youngsters conquered their fear of the water in less than 12 hours of instruction. Now the teen-agers are swimming so well that It takes a keen observer to notice that they are blind. The kids even play games in the pool with a water polo ball. It appears as if the ydungsters can actually see each other as well as the ball. They have a sensitivity toward objects. It ian't a sixth sense, but it's just that they are hyper-sensitive with their other senses, because they have no sight.

with their other senses, because they have no sight.

The experiment is located in the large pools of the Ohio
State university. Professor—Daniels—has several assistant instructors who help him with the experiment and they say that they enloy helping the kids so much that they "can't wait until the next class session." Surly, now that this experiment has met with so much success, the idea will expand into other sports for the physically disabled.

MAJOR LEAGUE SWITCHES

There has been some switching of positions in the major league clubs. The odd part about some of these new positions that the boys are getting is the manner in which they get them. It seems that if a manager throws a first baseman's glove to an outfielder and he catches the glove, he is from then on a first sacker. Leo Durocher did it that way recent ly when he threw the glove to Whitey Lockman. Now the Giants have a new first sacker, Ralph Kiner of the Pirates also is playing the first baseman's spot this year. It was beginning to appear as if the position was an easy one to play. But Hank Greenberg came to the first sacker's defense. Hank mantains that first base is as hard to play as any other position if it is played right. The only thing is that the first baseman works mostly on throws and he doesn't get the chance to show a bad fielding average.

in a recent game at the field house.

The Profs got off to a slow start in the ball game as the period ended with the AFF crew on top with a score of 12-11.

Scoring in the second quarter told a different story as the Profs A man on that first sack should be little larger in stature and he won't have to get around quite as fast as the others, but his job is important and it is specialized.

PAY FOR BALL STARS

Warren Giles recently condoued the large pay that is being publicised regarding the major league greats. He doubts that they are earning as much as is said they are collecting. Gileg states that even if the boys are earning as much as the

I can assuryou that as a military man I would want to initiate such a defense as far as practicable from the shore of the United States Therefore inconsidering the dispatch of America troops to Europe, we should not think of this simply in terms of forces being sent for the defense of Europe, but in the true light that they would be sent for the defense of the United States. From a strictly military standpoint . . . we should do everything in our power to prevent the overrunning of Western Europe if we are to prevent later attacks against the United

"Certainly this is one of the clear lessons that can be learned from the Korean conflict. It takes Army troops on the ground to repel an invasion on the ground. I say this in no sense of dispuragment of the Air Force or the Navy....
We could not have gotten along without their support in Korea, and neither could we get along without their support in West-But the fact remains neither ships nor planes stopped the Korean Communists when they moved across the 38th Parallel . . . ". . . We often hear the statement made that even with our

It would require an integrated pla which would include such military considerations as the use of demolitions along the main routes of advance; extensive employment of elatively inexpensive anti-tank weapons such new bazookas, recoilless rifles, and anti-tank mines; maximum possible use of natural barriers such as rivers and mountain defiles; and the employment of highly mobile Mank and infantry forces adequately supported by artillery

Example: We had to send $1 American divisions to Europe to assist in driving back an invader, and we got our forces there only after a difficult amphibious operation which would have been even more costly if we had not had almost complete minution of the air If by stationing a much smaller num ther of American divisions in Europe, we could help to obviate a repetition of such an operation . . . it would be, by comparison, a very cheap investment in our national security.

conclusion . . 1 would like to add that . . . I am concerned not merely with the winning of a possible war, with doing everything possible toward the prevention of war

. . . One of the major factors in the possible prevention of another dreadful world war is the early establishment in Western Europe of adequately armed, equipped and trained Army forces in sufficient strength to deter Communist aggression. The implementation of our plans to furnish additional American Army troops to these forces would be an essential

Allied Forces Chalk Up More Gains in Korea

United Nations forces this week chalked up more gains in their new, all-out offensive against Communist forces in Korea as they moved to within 25 miles of the 38th Parallel Front dispatches reported that the Reds were retreating all along a 75-mile front. North Korean and Chinese casualties for the first six days of the new drive were said to have passed the 35,000. The Eighth Army estimated that 3,885 enemy twoops were killed or wounded Monday. The Chinese were pulling back slowly, in the center of the line, around the key central front defense bastion of Hongchon. There was evidence, according to front line dis patches, that they have decided to make their stand on ridges north of the highway hub, less however, were falling back at break-neck sweed end showed no sign of making a stand any

Our Strength Is Renewed During Lent

CHAPLAIN (CAPT) MALCOM SADLER

The lenten season is a time of renewal of strength for the Christian believer. It is the time of a new approach to God, a new expectation from God, a new patience as we wait for His divine promises Our affections are strengthened by thinking upon holy things, and our wills are strengthened by the pursuit of things of God. Our whole selves, body, mind and soul, get a new feeling of power.

The experience of "waiting upon the Lord" gives us this renewal of strength, and it is in this waiting upon God in faith, humility and confidence that the secret of the Christian's life is found. We receive the grace tha is sufficient for our needs, and the strength that great power is never depleted, but is available for everyone who will avail himself of it, "Waiting upon the Lord" requires much meditation in prayer. It requires an attitude of prayor, a spirit of prayer as we go about during the days of the lenten season.

"Waiting upon the Lord" requires an empty-ing of ourselves by confessing our sins. Our couls must be brought before His altar for cleansing. Our hearts must be purged of unrighteousness, and we must forgive even as we

As we wait upon the Lord a sense of humi lity must permeate our very being, and we st recognize the greatness of the God wh determines our very existence.

All doubt must be banished from our mines and confidence and faith must reign in our minds and hearts, as we wait upon the Lord

And what is the ultimate result of "waiting upon the Lord." Is it really worthwhile. is it fruitful, or is it a waste of our "valuable

I say to you that the heights of Christian , the peaks of soul satisfaction reached de ing the lenten season cannot be surpassed by any man made joy or happiness. The soul of the strengthened Christian can soar to new pinnacles never before attained and our lives be come as new trees bearing fruit where before we have been bare. Our hearts are made to be alive again, our spirits are revived, and we enter into new realms of conquest for the Kingdom of God. We truly know that we can do all things through Christ Jesus our Lord.

The lenten season is surely a time for the renewal of our strength, and surely brings to each of us a challenge to call upon God earnestly for that renewal by us only when we have truly "waited upon the Lord." And His Word promises us that "Blessed are all they that

H. G. WELLS, PROPHET OF OUR DAY By Antonina Val THE JOHN DAY COMPANY, Publisher By ROBERT L. GROOVER WRBL-CBS in Columbus pre-

H. G. Wells was an Englishman who gained prominence in the late 1800's and early 1900's in Great Britain as a writer of fiction. That a large part of his fiction was prophetic of scientific events that have already come about, makes this book more than an autobiography. Wells was indeed the propnet of and for our day.

On The Bookshelf

H. G. Wells was born the son of middle - class parents. The family was poor, and Wells secured his education through the greatest of hardships. He went to London early in his man hood and taught school to eke out a meager existence. He had come to love a home-town girl early in did not marry her because she thought his livlihood too in-secure for marriage. He did, however, marry a London girl who was a great comfort to him in his early days,

Having been born of poor, middle-class parents, Wells was somewhat bitter toward the upper-class English when he did gain international prominence through his books. The rise to international prominence was not sudden. When his books bewn, his rise was meteoric. He became friends with such well-known figures of his time as Leon Trotsky and was perhaps the only true Republican ever to enjoy real popularity in England. His hard fight for success probably contributed more than anything toward the toward the monarchy of Queen Victoria, then Queen of England and popular throughout the country.

It was tough at first, but by word - of - mouth and news spread, and a production staff was assembled in a few days.

Those of you who say Special Services' first effort Vagabond Varieties, at the post theaters probably wondered what made it a hit. This is the way it happened:

The first job was to find what talent was available at Benning. The response to auditions was more gratifying. Then with a definite idea of available talent, a rough working script was written. Reharsals were scheduled and to speed production, additional personnel were added to the Special Services office.

The Shock was a bee-hive of activity when rehearsn's began. Scenery had to be built and painted, music had to be selected and scored, props had to be secured or made, and costumes had to be chosen. Some were borrowed from Third Army, and the remainder furwere borrowed from Third Army, and the remainder jurnished by the cast. During this time continuous casting and auditions were being carried on.

The sections of the show rehearsed separately, night after night Finally, the whole show was put together, and the completed product closely watched during its first full rehearsal. But the show still wasn't ready, Acts were revamped, routines changed, different music selected, and lighting etfects charted to bring a better production to the public. Then more dress rehearsals began with every available minute spent in polishing the rough spots.

Dry - run was presented for timing purposes. the whole production was rehashed and rearranged, and at last it was considered good enough for the public.

Only 21 days from the time it started the cast was ready for the polished production;

Even then however, the players worked. Production Manager Douglas H. Bent found that some parts of the show are weak, or the laughs didn't come as fast as they should, so he called rehearsals between scheduled runs.

Following a full week's run at Benning, the whole troupe entrained for Camp Rucker, Ala., for three more success-

The soldier show section of Special Services is now casting another rariety show. Auditions started Tuesday and will continue until a full cast is selected. Plans are for three production numbers to carry out a definite theme and idea with individual performers between the section!

If you dance, sing, play a musical instrument, or have any unusual talent, get, in touch with soldier show section of Special Services today. They need you. All you have to do is diel 3225 for full particulars.

CERTIFICATE AWARD . . . Pvt. John R. Hayes (right), of Crawfordsville, Ind., now a member of the Fourth company Military Police, Fourth Infantry division, Fort Benning, re-ceived a certificate of graduation from the Provost Marshal General's School, Camp Gordon, Gar recently. Dont Abuse Your Freedom

There are countries where a man who even thinks aloud about military matters or Government policy is "jerked" out of circulation immediately. He seldom returns.

But in the United States a man has the right to speak his own mind on any subject without fear of anyone—much less secret police force. Yet we often abuse that freedom of speech to a point of extreme foolishness

treme foolishness. As soldiers in the United States Army, we have the right discuss Government policies and military matters. But it isn't always wise to exercise that freedom excessively.

A soldier might pick up a bit of information on his job and pass it along to o friend. But his friend has other friends. might tell his wife, who might repeat it to other members of the family or to her friends Or he might keep that bit information to himself. That way he takes no chances of lowering morale by a "snow-balling" rumor. And he takes no chances of being the cause of a tragedy to his comrades in arms, or to himself.

It's true that security enforced by mass fear and secret plice is generally a strict security and comparatively effect tive one. The question is, is it worth fighting for?

Certainly, it's not the kind of security Americans want.

Therefore, in this country, and in the Army as well, security is to an extent dependent upon the use of good judgment by the individual. He has the basic right, the civilian or the soldier, to say what he pleases. But for his own sake, and for the sake of others like him, he must exercise that privilege with discretion.

A loose word here, another there, and soon the information trying to keep secure is common knowledge. He didn't stop to think how many lives his loose talk might cost including perhaps his own

Can't Win Without Training

A new Department of the Army pamphlet, entitled More Sweat Less Blood, tells why it's necessary that all soldiers, what their special jobs are to be, learn first of all how to protect themselves in combat.

It would be wise indeed for every soldier to read the entire pamphlet, but for the benefit of those who consider themselves "above" combat training, we're reprinting here that portion headed Training Makes Soldiers:

"We know that not all fighting is in the front lines. Our men in Korea know that "rear area" soldiers must be as ready to fight as those in the front lines. Everybody must be ready for close combat in a war of rapid move-ment and guerrilla tactics. That's why the Army gives combat training to every soldier no matter what his special job

"Like any other team, the Army can't win battles without training. If we are to win - and we must win - we must huv success with hard work

"The cost of war in dollars and cents is enormous, but the thing that really wins can't be given a money value. When the chips are down it is blood and sweat that puts weapons and equipment to work against the enemy. There is no way of winning a war without mer on the ground carrying combat to the the ground carrying combat to the enemy.

"We know from long experience that proper training means wer casualties when the fighting starts. Thats why we speak of blood and sweat — your training is long and hard for one reason: the more you sweat in training the less chance there is of your blood spilling in battle. In all your training, keep this idea in mind - more sweat less blood."

Freedom of Religion Should Be Cherished

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT) ALOYSHIS MCELWER

One of the freedoms of which we Americans are justly proud is popularly known as "Freedom of Religion." Everyone knows exactly what "Freedom of Religion" means until he is asked just exactly what it does mean.

Obviously, the phrase is positive not negative. Therefore, Freedom of Religion does not imply the right to be irreligious. It does not imply the right to ignore God as one sees fit. It infers that there is a God. Otherwise there would be no religion about which men could and the duty to worship God according to the dictates of one's conscience.

American children, in their classes of history or civics, are directed not only to nead, but to memorize the inspiring document known as our Declaration of Independence, In that document we, as a nation, go on record pincing "a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence." We also subscribe to the belief that men's rights come from their Creator, and this seems to obvious that we call it a "self-evident truth."

The very coins we use in our daily com-merce contain the phrase, "In God We Trust," evidencing not only a national belief in God but a firm confidence in His help.

The "Great Seal" of the United States, adopted by the Continental Congress on June 20, 1782, displays an artist's concept of the all-"Annuit Coeptis," which means, "He Looked With Favor On Our Undertakings."

How can any American, in view of these facts, look upon Freedom of Religion as the Freedom of Religion is one of our most precious possessions, It is a right and a privilege. It is a right because God made all His rational creatures to know, love and serve Him. It is a privilege because we are called to serve God's Infinite Majesty. Only by exercising this rightful privilege can man be

"Thou hast made us for Thyself, O God.

Religion not only illuminates the road to Paradise, it gives us a foretaste of Heaven here below. It gives mortal man a preview of the heavenly home for which he is destined. It encourages him in his trials and sorrows because it gives him a reason for them. It makes man's journey through this valley of teers less unpleasant. It gives added strength to timid and weak souls. It enlightens men's minds to know, and it strengthens their wills to do God's will in all things. It shows men that they do not have here a lasting city; that this world is not an end in it-self; and that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that will be revealed in us.

Because religion does all this, it touches upon the most basic ideas of life. It gives life a glorioua purpose, comparable to the glory that is God Himself. It teaches us whence we going. It is our greatest solace and comfort,

Thank God, this land of the free is blessed with Freedom of Religion, assuring us of the right, and imposing upon us the duty of following in the footsteps of the Lamb of God, whose life was the light of men, the light that shines in the darkness of a troubled, groping world. credited with pulling the Yanks through to the flag in 1950, has been assigned to Governors Island, First Army headquarters. . Realist Bucky Harris, skipper of the Washington Nats believes that one more big fellow with the big bat might enable the Senators to finish in the A. L. first division. . He's banking a lot on Irv Noren, Gil Coan and Eddie Yost. . The 1950 sports attendance figures, just compiled by Triangle Publications, show that with the exception of racing and hockey, they re all on the minus side as compared to 1949. . . . Basketball in Madison Square Garden, scene of the court scandal, showed a dip of better than 20 per cent—611,680 against 791 000 for '49. The 16 major league ball clubs lost about 2,750,000—17,462,977 against 20,215,365, while professional football dropped from 3,054,607 to 2,114,205. ... Boxing in the Garden just about held its own but college football (548 games of 111 teams) slipped from 13,818,065 to 13,091,401. Generally pro-moters blame TV but that isn't the whole answer. Horse racing, televised on almost every major track, topped 24,000,000 In 1950. One conclusion can be drawn: If attendance figures continue to dip at the '50 rate, some drastic action will be necessary. Of course, another important factor is the high cost of living. Fans simply don't have the money to spend.

Bolstered by the fact that we haven't seen a ball thrown since the Yanks drubbed the Phillies four straight in the 1950 World's Series, we herewith submit our 1951 baseball

The United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., is in the news again. The academy will celebrate its 149th anniversary on March 16. The Pointer View., West Point anniversary on March 16. The Pointer View, West Point newspaper, states that the keys of character are: duty, honor and country. Emblazoned on the Coat of Arms, these three words help build the character of military leaders who mold the traditions of the American fighting man . . Also, the Point has recently acquired an original portrait of Brig. Gen. Joseph G. Swift, the first graduate of the class of 1802.

Infantry Team Is Still Queen

What does it mean to be an Infantryman? That question was admirably answered this week by Mr. Maynard R. Ashworth, publisher of The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, in his regular Sunday editorial. A Look Ahead, excerpts from which

"Men you're in the Army now: you're in the Infantry: "Men, you're in the Army now; you're in the infantry. Yeah, it's tough. I know. I know some of the growls. I've heard some [ellows in your shoes before—how tough it is; what a burn break you had because you were inducted into the Infantry; why you didn't have sense enough to enlist or volunteer in some other branch of the Service before the

"Some of your friends have said to you no doubt with raised eyebrow: "the Infantry, that's your Service? Well, tough break, but good luck, you need it". Sympathy for you, yes,

Then there are men here in front of me who are feeling sorry for themselves because their lot is in this branch of Service where glamour and an easy way of life isn't found.
"Glamour is far removed from a heavy pack on your back, a gun at the ready, a bandoleer around your neck, grenades in your pouch or hung on your ammo belt, a knife in your boot top. There's no glamour, either, if you are wearing heavy underwear, two pairs of pants, a sweater, wool shirt wind break jacket, heavy top coat, wool-lined, helmet and ear cap. There's the rain, snow, ice, sub-zero weather, mud; the slogging along in file, crawling on your belly, with a week's beard; the field rations; the bathless stench and awent; the sleening on the ground, with an enemy in the front, on both flanks and behind you. You see a buddy on a crutch, or carried by the boys with a Red Cross on their arm-in the Korean war referred to as the bravest men of all-or you see worse. No this isn't glamour, but it is an experience that causes a man to feel good about himself He has pride in his ability to take without shirking or looking for softer work. There is no soft job in the Infantry-the field forces—that's what you are in. You are the force that closes with the enemy and forces a decision in battle. .

The Infantry has been referred to as the "queen of bat-This is no idle term. You will, if you measure up to the mission of the Infantry, rule the field of battle—in this respect you are queen. Through the history of wars you have been queen and there is nothing in the science of dediscovered that makes the man on foot with a gun obsolete in war.

"In Korea, of all the casualties, all but one fiftieth of them have been foot soldiers. Only the man with a gun, a grenade, a mortar, a tank, a bazooka, or .75 and 105 receiless, a flame thrower, a bayonet, the butt of a gun, a club, a fist, or in a good heel can find the enemy in their holes, pull them out and kill them. If you can't see an enemy you have to hunt him like you shoot quail—get on his scent and stay with him. This takes close contact. You, as soldiers in the Infantry, do this,

"it's dirty work, but all war is dirty. It takes skill and Chaplain's Corner cunning to be an Infantryman. The long training to physically condition you, then the training in all the arms you will use, all will take about a year if we have time. Then you would be queen—battle experience would round you off.

"In battle you are alone-often-no one is in sight It's you, the enemy and God. You are an Infantryman an Infantryman you fight with Infantrymen. It is "the proudest hour" of your life. Being an infantryman means you chose the rugged way. You probably won't make an end run and he singled out for glory. Some have many have but the teamwork that makes this branch achieve You have a position to play on this team. Failing to keep your hole in the line plugged can cause your team to lose. That kind of responsibility is yours. ..."

South Koreans Drive Across 38th Parallel

ed in South Korea this week as ROK troops crossed the 38th Parallel and a link-up was forged between United Nations forces above Seoul. It was the first time any Allied unit big UN withdrawal last December, although patrols have ranged across the horder for si to cross the boundary last fall in the drive that carried almost to the Valu River There were increasing signs, however, that Communist armies of China and North Korea would fight desperately to hold a "buffer" below the border. The Eighth Army scoffed at idea that the South Koreans had "gotten out of hand" and branded ridioulous ndication that "runaway" ROK troops were defying the UN command with a headleng plunge into North Korea.

General MacArthur this week informed the United Nations, in his February report that the "myth of invincibility of Communist miltory power" has been exploded in Kores where the Chinese losses "have been among the bloodiest of modern times." He made no estimate of Chinese Communist casualties, but ended his report; "I am entirely satisfied with has suffered a tactical reverse of measurable proportion."

At the opening session of the Inter-American Foreign Ministers' Conference this week, President Truman called on the 20 Latin-American republics to back up the United States in resisting the "unbridled power" of Communist ion everywhere in the world. Officials in arms aid to Latin America to help build up its military strength, Mr. Truman keynoted the emergency conference—first of its kind since 1942-with a warning that Russia could "strike across the ocean" at this hemisphere if it cap-tures Western Europe's great industrial plant and enslaves Asia's vast manpower.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee said this week the Army should be able to halt the draft within 18 months and set up its Universal Military Train ing Program. Barring a new international emergency, he said this eventuality should make it possible to reduce the aize standing military force at a saving of $60 a. month for every man taken off active duty.

Name of Pilate Lives Because of Jesus

By CHAPLAIN (CAPT) WM. P. BARRETT

Manuel Komroff, in his little story, "Told in the Stars", relates an incident in the life of Pilate, after the Crucifixion, which is worthy of note. It was some 40 days after the Crucifixion, to be exact, when the astrologer and seer Xado, on his way back to Egypt where his fathers had been born and lived their lives, was called before the military governor of Palestine, Pontius Pilate.

During his life - time he had wandered all through the East, studying the stars and their portents, making his prophetic fame known throughout the Mediterranean world. Xado and Pilate were talking of the few facts known about the life of Jesus, of the appearance of the Star of Bethlehem, the visit of the Magi, the reputed deeds of Jesus, and of His trial

"Because of him, your name will be immorqueried. "Yes", answered Xado, "only that and nothing else." "And when you say immortal", Pilate asked, "you mean my name will really be known everywhere?" "Everywhere." Xado ntinued, "and in every land. It will be known as well as Caesar's." Pilate, mystified, said 'And all because. . ." "Because of Him", con-

Because of the trial and Crucifixion Pilates the Easter Gospel read in churches throughout the world. It is in the pages of all history books dealing with the civilization of that day. It is on the lips of many Christians each Sunday morning - Jesus "suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died, and was buried" or He "was crucified also for us under Pontius Pilate;

"He suffered and was buried." Xado had told him his name would be as well known as Cassar's But his name is better known. Many people who will never know of the feats of Caesar will nevertheless know of the one act of Pilate's in having Our Lord crucified,

And by the same token. Jesus is known primarily because of one act, His Resurrection from the dead. Had He remained in the Tomb. His Name probably would be known only a little better than that of some of the Roman officials who preceded Pilate in Palestine. Who has heard of them? Only a small company of

Other men were crucified, Other men were officials in Palestine. But, of the crucified, and of the Roman governors, only our Lord Jesus Christ and Pilate are worthy to be remembered. And, they are forever in our memories because of one event — the Resur-

In Eastertide this year, behind all our rejoicing, and above all the ceremony which so great an event deserves, let the thought be uppermost in our minds that the Resurrection is the reason for our gladness. Had it not occured, then we would be observing just another spring festival about this time of the year, instead of an occasion for the deepest loy and the most sublime contentment.

"Chaplain at San Quentin Penitentiary" - a wonderful title for a book, but a soul-stirring experience for the man who was that chaplain.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Albert V. Muray, recently assigned as assistant Infantry Center chaplain, served in that capacity for five grim years. The Hungarian-born chaplain was serving as rector of the Episcopal Church of Our Savior, Mill Valley, Calif., when he was appointed by his bishop for duty in the state penitentiary.

Daily, from 1935 to 1940, he walked through the rows of guards at the entrance to the Big House. His job was not-done when he left the cold stone building behind him, for frequently he met the trains to pick up the families or friends of the prisoners, coming to San Quentin for visits. He arranged for the visits to prisoners, secured a place for the families to stay, and in general did all he could to help.

During the years he saw his congregation grow in number and knew a satisfying peace of mind when he baptized and confirmed a man. Going to Sunday services in a prison is not an easy matter. Sunday only day the prisoners can stay in their "bunks," and great effort must be exerted to get permission to attend serv-lees. A prisoner must request permission to attend the service of his choice, and he must be in his place at a given time.

"Each Sunday when I looked at the sea of faces confronting" me, I felt I was making some headway," Chaplain Muray

"What goes on in the mind of a prisoner will always be a mystery. The strange rigid code of ethics that exists among the inmates is beyond understanding by most people. Chaplains assigned to San Quentin prayed and studied to understand better the warped minds and souls of the men, they

OUT INTO SUNLIGHT

"I lived, thought and breathed in terms of the men behind the bars and their problems. When I left San Quentin for the Army, it was like coming from a cold, dark, dismal world into the sunlight once more", said Chaplain Muray.

Even in such sober surroundings there were amusing things along with stories of himan drama. There was the story of the man who was convicted for providing snakes used by a cold - blooded murderer to kill his wife. This man approached Chaplain Muray to help him get out of San Quentin and in return, he would give for the help his half of the famed Hope diamond, which at that time was owned by Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean.

To balance the picture is the story of the life - termer who never saw the son born to his wife after he entered San Quentin. Year after year he worked diligently on gifts to send his son on Christmas. One of his most unique gifts was a hand - made silver ring with engraving especially designed by the father. During the recreational period one day, the lifetermer asked a younger man for a light for his pipe. When the younger man held up the flame, on his little finger was the silver ring the father had worked so hard to make.

Chaplain Muray was not content with just helping the men while they were in confinement. He made friends with a well educated man, and when he was released from San Quentin, the chaplain helped him get a job and start his Quentin, the chaplain helped him get a job and sturt his rehabilitation again. Pfc. Matson entered the WAC in April. 1950. and after completion of basic training attended the Food Service School at Fort Monmouth. N. C. She is assigned as cook at the WAC detachment mess, and according to reports has chosen the right job.

She has two favorite hobbies one an athlete's, the other a lazy man's. For her more strenuous entertainment she chooses bowling. and for relaxation she goes to the movies.

Most of the time it's a hard decision, but when the movies win out it will be anything but the cowboy type of feature. She spends much of her spare time reading. She loves music and keeps her radio on most of the time, tuned either to popular or hillbilly music. She prefers semi-formal dress for her off - duty hours.

Vital statistics on Margaret are: five feet, eight and one half inches tall, light brown hair and green eyes. She has a charming smile and is very friendly.

She comes from a large family - four brothers and three sisters - ranging in age from from 11 to 24 years. Not being able to see her family is the thing she misses most,

Prc. Matson felt she had many things to learn, and the place to work and learn at the same time, she claims, is the Army, That's why she entered the WAC. She likes her job and is proud of her title, "good cook".

On The Bookshelf

FROM HERE TO ETERNITY CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS.

BY ROBERT L. GROOVER

Every newcomer to the United States Army has, at one time or another, heard tales about the "old army" from some of its older members. Because the Army changes from year to year, the "old army" could be placed in many different locales in as many periods of time. But until James Jones wrote "From Here To Eternity," no one had ever put down paper a believable story about the "old army." we had a rash of books about the Army during World War II and immediately following, but for some reason, stories about the United States Army of the thirties did not make good reading at the time. No one seemed to care much about the

To begin with, this book is one of the most believable and readable published since Margaret Mitchell wrote "Gone With The Wind." It is doubtful the reader of "From Here To Eternity" will disagree once fie has had a chance to read it. Author Jones took one company of Infantry, stationed at Schoffeld Barracks in Hawaii, and tells what happened to that company in 1940 and 1941, up to and immediately following the Pearl Harbor disaster of December 7, 1941. Most of the action is centered around the company's first sergeant and one of its incorrigible privates. The book becomes compelling, forceful, and interesting beyond compare. Seldom has an author created such interest in a first book.

Fider members of the Army will undoubtedly find parallels between the characters in this book and characters they actually knew at some time in the past. Although the action in the book took place in 1940 and 1941, some similar events in the book took place in 1994 and 1994, some similar evenus could still be happening around us today. This is not a humorous book about the Army in the Marion Hargrove style. It is a serious, often tragic, masterful treatment of the "old army."

LARGE ORGANIZATION

Water skiing has a large organization behind it in the name The American Water Ski association. This club has some the finest skiers in the world today. The organization prea an annual tournament which is called the American National Open, From this tourney the national champion is selected. If he desires, he enters the International matches, sponsored by the International Water Ski Association whose headquarters is located in Geneva, Switzerland.

Swiss snow skiers started the sport some 15 years ago when a couple of them hooked a rope onto the back end of a power boat just for kicks. They found that they could actually ski on the surface of the water on their snow skils. They were sold on the game right there and it is rumored they never again used their skiis on the snow. Thus, one of the finest sports to ever grace the sporting world was born.
Since then, many improvements have been made with skils

And tow ropes. Many new tricks, some of which are quite daring, have been discovered. Now, men are able to actually ski on their bare feet. There are only four men known who can actually do this trick, but nevertheless it can be

"You can't park there, mister!" the MP informed him. "A long convoy of trucks has to come by here. Park over there on the field."
"I don't want to park. I'm going to Florida."
"Florida! Well, what are you doing here? You should have stayed on that four-lane highway."
"Well, I'll be — , I saw all the cars turning off and the MP kept pointing. I figured it was just another detour."
Just about that time the man's wife and two children sized in the situation up the situation

This Fourth Infantry Division

How does a unit build esprit de corps among its men? That would be a most difficult question to answer because no single method is likely to prove applicable to every or-

In reality, esprit de corps is nothing more than a state of mind, resulting from a fierce pride in a soldier's desire to be identified as part and parcel of his own group. That pride, or esprit de corps, also keeps him alert to his responsibilities this esprit de corps better displayed than in the Fourth Infantry Division, a comparatively new unit when one con-siders the length of service of a large majority of its men. Only a few short months ago most of them were civilians The only uniforms they had worn were the sweaters and saddle-exfords of high school and college campuses. But today they wear the clive drab of the Army with the distinction that surrounds those who are aware of their accomplishments and who face the future with confidence.

Two weeks ago this Fourth Division paraded its might before some 3,000 people who had gathered in Sand Hill to see for themselves how good a job a handful of professional s had done in molding the civilian soldier into an integral part f a famous division. They weren't disappointed.

Of course, their training isn't finished. They still, have a great dear to learn, but the showing they made moved Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge Third Army Commander to comment to their John R. Hodge Third Army Commander to comment to their commanded, Maj. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness:

"Your men look fine. They've come a long way in a few And indeed they have. But without that pride which shows up in many ways, we doubt such praise would have been described.

Comments on the appearance, the discipline and genuine cooperativeness of the men of the Fourth Division haven't been limited however, to military men. In a letter last week from the Fort Benning Red Cross office to General Hartness. Field Director John A. Cramer had this to say:

"In my eight years of Red Cross work I have never see any division with morale so high."

Mr. Cramer's statement followed the division's overwhelming response to Red Cross' appeal for blood donations. Men from the Eighth, 12th and 22nd Infantry Regiments, from Division Artillery and from other units refused to recognize the quotas which Red Cross had hopefully set. Some units oversubscribed by more than 100 per cent.

But the nien of Fourth Division get behind all worthy causes whole-heartedly. When the Community Chest drive was on last fall, they donated generously, and they are backing the current Red Cross drive for operating funds., Why do they so enthusiastically work together to make good showing? Certainly, no power on earth could cause these and similar deeds to be accomplished. It must be, then that feeling of pride in the hearts of the men at being part of a great team-the pride with which they have accepted the trust placed in them, and others like them: the security of America and free nations of the world.

The Senate rebelled against the Administration this week in going on record against sending more than four more divisions to Europe without approval of Congress The action came at the climax of the troops-for-Europe phase of the Great Debate on foreign policy. The Administration this week slashed its tax regulrements for the next fiscal year by $6,500,-000,000. But Secretary of the Treasury Snyder made it plain that this is only a postponement that another multi-billion dollar installment on President Truman's tax orogram will be asked next January. Snyder explained the switch this way: revenue collections are higher, government spending is lower, and it looks as though there will be a $3,000,000,000 surplus rather than the expected $2,700 000,000 deficit at the end of the 1951 fiscal year.

Chaplain's Corner

The Word 'If' Provés Key to Man's Destiny

By CHAPLAIN WERNER R. SAAR

Man is the only creature in the universe who says if. It is here that we mortals differ radically and essentially from the brute creatheir present comfort with a less desirable set some set of idvllic conditions that may yet

The mouse never conjures up the glorious things that he would have done if he had been a lion; the sparrow never contemplates the mag-nificent flights in which he would have indulged IF he had been an eagle. Cats and dogs never say IF. No man in his senses would envy them this quality. For man is infinitely superior.

It is, indeed, by means of his lfs that he forges to the grandeur of his destiny. His unique power of uttering that magic monosyllable enables him while fully appreciating the privileges that are his today to aspire towards an idea that he cherishes for tomorrow.

It may be said that life's truest wisdom lies making the most of things as they are. And that contention is indisputably sound. But often happens that we can only appraise things as they are at their proper value by comparing or contrasting them with a set of things that might have been and with another set that may vet be.

It is a good thing to make the most of health; but no man can justly estimate the value of it except by reflecting on the conditions that would have encompassed him if by an accident which he narrowly escaped had deprived him of his powers, It is by the use of IFS that men appraise their fortunes and try to fathom their futures. He may make it an instrument for the promotion of his own hap piness and that of his fellows.

If, he says to himself, if I work hard, I may win for myself a good position; if I seek the Savior, I may become a genuine Christhe Savior, I may become a genuine Chris-tian; if I live life well, I may earn at last the Master's "Well done"! That's the point of Kipling's famous 'IF''.

I'm sure that you too have been impressed by the inability of our eminent historians to complete their imposing tasks without resorting to the use of an if. If the Saracen host had bian fleet would have sailed unchallenged, into the mouth of the Thames, and England would today have been Moslem. If a fair wind had blown down the English Channel during the last week of July 1588, the Spanish Armada would have been successful. If Napoleon had been successful at Trafalgar, the fate of the world would have been changed.

The story from history is a story of Philip of Macedon. On a notable occasion the chroniclers tell us. Philip received an insulting letter from one of his numerous enemies. "If," it said, "if I enter your city, I will kill everybody and destroy everything in it." Philip read the etter, smiled, and contemptuously tore it to pieces. He was careful, however, not to destroy the fragment that bore the opening word—the word if. The scrap of paper containing that word he returned to his hoastful foe

I like to think that Jesus came into the world to free it from the tyranny of some of its ifs.

APPOINTMENT WITH DANGER - With Alan Ladd and Phyllis Calvert. The files of the oldest federal detective agency nish the plot for this murder story and set the scene for the postal inspection service. A combination of a postal inspector and a nun work out the solution of the crime. Melodrama, TARZAN'S PERIL - Features Lex Barker and Virginia Huston. Plenty of the familiar sction and excitement to be found in this latest account of the exploits of Tarzan. The picture is authentic in its production background having been filmed in East Africa, Adventure,

WHEN THE REDSKINS RODE - Depicts Jon Hall and Mary Castle in the war between the French and English, Each side is struggling to gain control of America. They furnish the setting for this story of plotting and spying in attempts to gain support of the Indians, Adventure

THE SCARF - With James Barton, Mercedes McCambridge nd John Ireland John Ireland escapes from a mental hospital and is befriended by a rancher who helps him learn the rea-son for his confinement. The plot is not new but a capable cast socks home a gripping story with pungent and honest dialogue and action. Melodrama.

DEAR BRAT - Portrays Mona Freeman, Edward Arnold and Billy DeWolf in this sequel to "Dear Ruth" and "Dear Wife". Soft hearted Mona Freeman upsets the household by bringing questionable characters to live with them. It is sup-nosed to be part of her work in the Society for the Rehabili-

April 9 marks the ninth anniversary of the fall of Bataan and the beginning of the infamous Death March.

Time heals but will never completely erase from the mind and memory of Sgt. John B. Dick the utter misery and in-human cruelty that he witnessed and suffered during the fall of Batean and the subsequent years he spent as a prisoner of the Japanese.

Life was just a lark for young Dick until that day in December when the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor, From then the group as they watched the surrender by their colonel. Quoting directly from the diary Sgt. Dick "I happened to look up on our big bamboo ble. Old Glory had been replaced with a white flag: That was the first time during the war I cried. Even the sudden Silence seemed to mourn the moment".

And that was the beginning of years of torture, starvetion and hell on earth for John Dick. With dim hope in his heart, he wondered what his new home would hold for him. He found out in due time. Camp O'Donnel was a horrible place. A horrible stench prevailed at the hospital, and pa-tients were sprawled over filthy floors. Sgt. Dick helped to carry out the dead.

Americans were forced to do guard duty for the Japs. John was assigned duty at the nospital and from there he watched a part of the Death March move. As he watched the straggling men, one approached him and begged for admittance to the hospital. Knowing the chance he was taking, he told the man how to go around to the back of the hospital, pretending he was one of the detail. Since the Japs had not taken hopsital count, he knew that if the man could get in to American doctors, he would be helped. Sgt. Dick began a one man campaign to help as many of his buddles as he could. Roughly 50 men were smuggled into the hospital in and above all there was a shortage of food Strong, healthy men became mere shadows. At the last camp, he was as-signed detail on the dreaded "Farm". The slightest movement infraction of a rule was punishable by tortures.

Even in a grim place such as these prison camps, the good old American humor cropped up once in awhile. With a phony English accent, one of the prisoners would order from an imaginary putter a wonderful breakfast and so on down line retorts ran riot. Then their mess kits were filled with boiled rice.

When a detail was ordered to Japan, Set. Dick volunteered, thinking it culdn't be worse than his present location. After a torturous journey, they arrived in Japan, and were assigned in a copper mine. Again he was assigned to the hospital. and found the same intolerable conditions.

Days of misery followed, and rumors came fast and furious. But he still held that glimmer of hope that he and his buddles would be rescued soon. During the summer of 1945 American planes made many raids over the camp. The day he had lived for came at last when an American captain broke the news o the men - the war was over SILENCE GREETED the announcement, and a solemn happiness came into each heart. On Sept. 25, 1945, Sgt. John and a representative of each of the other armed services spoke on a radio hook - up from San Francisco as a symbolic group representing American prisoners of war.

ATTENTION H2O LOVERS

George Robey, Bayonet sports writer and water-skier de-uxe, this week was heard to say that he is planning to give lessons in water-skiing this coming summer at Idle Hour park. George who by the way has crossed tow lines with some of the best skiers in the country, says there is nothing more thrilling than riding the wake behind a powerful inboard and skidding over the ocean blue at speeds up to 70 miles per hour.
Classes, George said, will be conducted each Saturday and Sunday afternoon provided skils can be obtained from the park. A motorboat is already available and the lake is large enough for skiing. The water is still somewhat cool for skiing, however, and it will be few weeks yet before the classes begin.

For the many of you who have never seen this thrilling sport and are interested in learning, you may get an idea of what it's like about April 17 or 18. At this time, a couple of the best skiers in the country are expected to put in an appearance at the park. Would You Like to Relax?

The following is taken from the Air University Dispatch: In this busy world when speed seems to be paramount in our every day life, it is often necessary to have someone point to us methods of losing our tension.

The idea of relaxation probably occurs to each of us several times a day, but without self-determination to relax the idea is frequently lost and we go on building up tension.

One of America's most popular writers and preachers, Dr. Morman Vincent Peale, author of the long time best seller, "A Guide to Confident Living," has outlined ten rules for relaxing. They, are:

1. Get fitteen minutes of quietness every day.

Preferably take this period at the busiest time of your day

tto prove to yourself that you are master of your own business. 3. The first principle is to relax the body—sit, imagining you weigh four hundred pounds and are completely yielded to the

4. Inhale and exhale three long breaths. Raise your arms allow your hands to fall on your knees like wet leaves on a log. What is more relayed than a wet leaf on a log?

Conceive of God's relaxing peace as touching in turn every muscle in your body and face, finally resting quietly upon

6. The next procedure is to relax the mind. This is accomplished by practicing the art of imagination. In your mind you can take a trip, go away, without buying a railroad ticket or noving from your chair.

7. See yourself by a cool, clear lake, on some quiet walk, with great hills enshrouded in their mystic haze of blue shouldering out the sky. In your thoughts live for just a mo-ment in the most peaceful of God's scenes which you an vis-

8. The final procedure is to relax the soul, which is accomplished by practing the art of affirmation. The repeated assertion that you are possessing God's peace will tend to in-

9. Repeat the following statements: "Thou will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee"-"Come unto me . . . and 1 will give you rest."—"Peace I give unto you."
Then make these statements personal, inserting your name.

10. Affirm that all evil (hate, impure thinking, dishonest desires) is being drained out of your acul. These evils are the infection center of tension. As they go, relaxation becomes

Freedom's Fight Not New

Eight hundred troops marched against the 70 ill-equipped men who were determined to defend their closely hoarded military supplies to the end. Only a few hours before had they been warned of the threat being made against their supplies, which were, to them, an investment in freedom and

Independence,

The eerie call still echoed in their ears: "To arms, to arms, the British are coming!" Gallant men, Paul Revere and William Dawes. Now, the outnumbered Colonials stood at the bridge in Lexington; hoping to stop the Red Coats from destroying the stores.

The two forces met. The British received 900 infantry reinforcements. The Colonials were bolstered by a few hundred farmers attracted by the din of battle.

When the dust settled, the harrassed British were heating

a retreat toward Boston; the Colonists whooped in victory, dimmed only by the fact the British had accomplished their mission - the stores were destroyed. But the first major engagement of the Revolutionary War was won by the Colonsts-moral if not material.

If and when space ships are built and used it is believed they will reem to stand still out in space because there will be no atmosphere rushing by and no nearby bodies to show

If all the coal mined in the United States in one year loaded on a single railroad train the train would be long mough to stretch around the world three times Whales which reach a length of 100 feet and a weight of 200 tons are mammals. The sharks are believed to be the largest fish some species

In 1950 the electric utility industry in the United States used nore than 90 million tons of coal.

Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, also perfected cylinders and discs of wax for the phonograph.

Since ancient times the tiger has been the symbol of might

So-called suction is actually a push. When you suck on a soda straw air pressure on the surface of the liquid pushes part of it up the straw and into your mouth.

Air Force Readies Fastest Plane, X-2

The Air Force expects before the end of 1951 to launch the fastest man-piloted plane in existence. The X-2, a tiny rocket plane capable of greater speed and altitude than any so far built, has been under construction for three years. It is an experiemntal craft, too small to carry anything except pilot and instruments:

The second unified military police detachment to be established in the U.S. has been activated in the San Francisco-East Bay area. The only other such unit is in Washington, officers and 125 enlisted men and women of all Services, including three Wacs, three Waves

Veterans whose original periods of service the Armed Forces began after September 2. 1945, will lose their rights to further Natheir present term policies to expire. These veterans either must renew their policies for another five-year term or convert to perma-nent NSLI before the expiration of their present term policies to retain eligibility for NSLL under the current law.

Prayers in Name of Jesus Are Answered

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT.) CHARLES BENNET Many years ago, there was a captain who alled his ship between the eastern ports of this country and the dark coast of Africa. ried was a cargo of human flesh. These men and women were taken from their native Africa, during the journey to America some would die and others would be thrown overboard. be sold as slaves.

The lives of these men and women were of little value in the eyes of many people, including this sea captain, whose name was John lewton. Captain John Newton was a man who appeared to have no conscience. He was a hard man, one who seemed to have no fear of either God or man, one who was not affected by the awful, terrible slave trade in which he

One night, however, Captain John Newton was steering his ship into the jaws of a howling storm in the Atlantic Ocean. As he stood at the wheel of his ship in that dark storms night, he began to wonder if he would ever get out of this storm alive. At his side was another sailor, one who had a long experience sailing the seven seas. As the storm grew worse, this hardened sailor uttered a sacred name, and then fled in fright from the decl of that ship. That sacred name, however, had its effect upon this captain; and he who had despised prayer, faith, and religion cried out:

"Dear God, get us safe ashore, and I will h your slave forever."

Nobody heard this almost unhelievable promise, and yet this promise was kept. In a few years John Newton was an ordained minister and during the years that followed he not only faithfully preached the message of God's salvation, but he also wrote the words to some hymns that are well known today. One of the best known of these hymns is, "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds."

Yes, a strange, great and wonderful change took place in the life of this hard and arrogant man, and yet it is merely one story out of an untold number of stories which have shown and demonstrated the truth of Acts 4:12, which

"Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.

This precious name of Jesus is not only the name which brings to us eternal salvation when we accept the Lord Jesus as our own personal Saviour, but it is also the name which makes possible the answers to our prayers. Jesus Himself snoke these words, "And whatsnever veshall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it."

Down through the years, many are the prayers that have been answered because the the man who went to a mission to obtain a pair of shoes. Those at the mission prayed for a pair of shoes for this man, and the next day a pair of shoes was received. When they be rect size, the man in charge stopped them and they have to he the right size." They were.

The name of Jesus is truly an all important name, for in that name there is all that is necessary to take us through this life and to the glory beyond.

Report From Washington

Congressional Democrats Warn of Red Peril

Speaker Sam Rayburn, Texas Democrat. warned again this week of a Russian buildup for war. He made the statement following President Truman's weekly conference with Congressional leaders, adding that the U.S. is in terrible danger. At the same time Senator McMahon, Connecticut Democrat who is chairman of the Congressional Atomic Committee, said the peril of an A-bomb attack in-creases daily. Also sounding an ominous note was Defense Secretary Marshall who assertserted that the world crisis is more serious than it was six months ago. Other Congressional leaders voiced practically the same ion, with such statements as: "I feel all hell is going to break loose soon:" and "We are terrible danger."

Meanwhile this week President Truman was keeping secret his decision on the future status of General MacArthur, who Administration leaders felt had spoken out just once too often for a military man. The President discussed the politically-touchy problem with his Cabinet and Democratic Congressional leaders amid a rising clamor from abroad that he fire or at least gag the Far East commander for his outspoken criticism of the U. S. and UN dip-lomatic polices in the Korean war. The latest furor was touched off by a letter MacArthu wrote to Republican Joe Martin in which he advocated the opening of a second front in China, using Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist Army.

In Korea, Chinese Communists' efforts to halt the UN drive into North Korea by opening the floodgates of the huge Hwachon reservoir failed this week. The Allies continued to much forward, fighting their way into the Pukhan River loop west of the sprawling reservoir. Enemy forces abandoned their atronghold on town of Hwachon itself, farther to the west, after their attempts to flood the area failed, and retreated to the north. Eighth Army officers said the futlle try to stop the Allied push also cost the Communists any chance they might have had to stage an immediate counter-offensive on the central front.

The House Armed Services Committee this week dropped efforts to write a Universal Mill-tary Training Program into law now and backed away from plans to defer all "bright" col-lege students. Faced with strong bi-partisan opposition to enactment of a standby UMT bill for use after the present crisis, the Committee voted unanimously to support an amendment to the pending draft bill, virtually divorcing it from the UMT issue.

The Indispensable Element

There has been a noticeable increase lately in the amount of emphasis placed by newspapermen on the value of the Infantryman. This has been reflected, not only in the news columns, but in editorials appearing in both dailies and weeklies throughout the country. Comments have ranged all the way from tacit approval of the role of the Doughboy to downright demands that the rifle-toting Infantryman he recognized as the one indispensable element in the comhat team.

Recently, General Mark Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces, added his voice to those already clamoring for more glorification for the Infantry soldier. In a visit to Fort Benning re-cently, General Clark expressed a desire for a distinctive marking on the uniform of the Infantryman so that people will say as a foot soldier passes, "There goes a Doughboy." We most certainly agree that some sort of recognition is way

Infantryman has proved his value in every war, but his more than magnificent fight in Korea has definitely dispelled the oft-repeated rumor that the Infantry soldier is "on his way out." The Korea conflict has been, almost from the very beginning, strictly an Infantry mission. There has been, of course, invaluable aid from both the Air Force and Navy, but it was the Infantry which sustained the first shock of battle. It was the Infantry which held so tenaciously to a small perimeter of real estate around the port of Pus the Infantry which pushed its way over the famous 38th parallel and it was the Infantry, too, which has borne the brunt of every attack by the Communists and which has suffered almost 90 per cent of the casualties.

Every Infantry soldier ought to be proud that he belongs to the world's greatest fighting force. His lot in combat is rough, and there isn't any glamour in mud and cold and dirt. But the satisfaction that comes with doing a job expertly and without fantare should be enough compensation for especially the infantryman.

When others pity you for being in the Infantry, just remember that the blue piping on your cap is a badge of th highest honor. It must not be worn lightly.

Army and Foreign Policy

As the Korean fighting swings more in favor of the United Nations and anxiety over world conditions grows, Servicemen everywhere are taking time to consider the factors which place United States in her present international position.

The quesions of "by whom" and "how" our all-important for-

The Talk explains that our foreign policy "is not a series of disconnected and unrelated decisions." . . . but that it is carefully considered and realistic."

"It didn't 'just grow'," says the Talk, "it is planned; and into the planning go all the wisdom, experience, and statesmanship which our policy-makers possess."

In a few words here's how General George C. Marshall Secretary of Defense sums up our foreign policy; "... the foreign policy of the United States in its simplest form is concerned with with those conditions abroad which affect of could later affect the future security and the well-being of our nation . . .

But where do the Armed Forces fit into foreign policy? According to the Talk our mission has been defined as including:

"I. Supporting and defending the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

"2. Maintaining, by timely and effective military action, the se curity of the United States, its possessions, and areas vital to its

Sham Versus Reality In Our Religion

"Ninety-five per cent of the American people believe in God!" Such was the statement made under the heading, "God and the American People," published originally in the Ladies' Home Journal some two years ago! This was immediately seized upon by the heads in the clouds idealist as supporting his contention that all is well, spiritually, with our fair land!

Stark realism soon dissipates such superficial optimism. If hope were to be derived from the solitary fact of helief in theirm they even the demons qualify. "Thou believest that God is one: thou doest well. The demons also sential as belief in God is, it is far from all

It is the flagrant omissions which cause the harm. We cannot get anywhere with God until we believe that He is; but if we are to receive His approval we must believe in more than His being.

However disquieting are certain disclosures

as to doctrinal differences, the overwhelming disaster to us is that people are kidding themselves as to their belief. Whatever the inconsistencies (e.g., 54 per cent saying that religious beliefs have no effect upon a man's that they practice the "golden rule" when their fellow man is a husiness competitor), they are dwarfed alongside of the revelation that eople can be so naive as to content them selves with a superficial form without reality— "a form of godliness devoid of the power

Noted Airborne Unit to Be Reactivated

The Army will reactivate the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment of World War II fame at Fort Bragg, N. C. late this month. The 508th will function as a separate regiment assigned to 3rd Army Headquarters. The Regiment distinguished itself as the 508th Parachute-Infantry Regiment, a unit of the 82nd Airborne Division, in the Normandy Invasion. The 82nd Airborne Division then was commanded by Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

The Air Force will call to active duty ten National Guard flights assigned to the duty of towing air targets between May 15 and July 1. The call will involve fewer than 650 officers and men, but will bring in units from ten different states, equipped with B-26 bomber modified for target towing.

Assurance that veterans still in military service will receive their National Service Life Insurance dividend checks as promptly as those in civilian status was given recently by Chairman Hardy of the House Eexecutive Expendi-tures Subcommittee. The Subcommittee has worked out arrangements with the Defense Department and the Veterans Administration for handling these checks.

Reserve officers on active duty and serving in an AFUS grade lower than their Reserve grade will be authorized to request relief from active duty upon expiration of current service statement, USAF Headquarters has announced. Such officers, however, will be granted the opportunity of remaining on active duty on a volunteer basis in their current AFUS grade. Those relieved will be eligible for recall to active duty in their Reserve grade, on the same basis as other Reserve officers an inactive status.

The Navy has established three "Class A" schools for boilermen, pipefitters, and molders. The pipefitters and molders schools are located at the San Diego, Calif., Naval Training Center and Naval Station, respectively.

A Senate Post Office Subcommittee is considering extension of free mailing privileges to all members of the Armed Forces. Present postal regulations extend the privilege only to troops in the Korean combat zone.

MacArthur Returns After 14-Year Absence

General Douglass MacArthur returned to the United States this week, after a 14-year absence, for a hero's welcome. First stop on the mainland was in San Francisco, and he was scheduled to arrive in Washington early this morning to address a joint meeting of Congress this afternoon.

In central Korea, the Chinese Reds were using a smoke screen to mask their movements from Allied troops. Eighth Army officers said the smake fires could be efforts to hide either withdrawal or an impending attack. A southerly wind at times opened clear spots in the smoke blanket, and Allied planes bombed and strated these openings in support of advancing United Nations troops. In western Korea, the town of Yonchon on the road to Chorwon was abandoned by the Reds. Allied troops had no yet occupied it, but held high ground on all

Young Gonzalez, a native Texan, currently assigned to Company C. Infantry School detachment, had been in the Army a little over a year and a half when he landed at the port of Pusan on July 31 and was assigned to the 24th Infantry division. After weary months of fighting, he was wounded in the fierce battle that raged at Hill 268 and was sent back to Japan to

As his wounds began to heal, he grew impatient to return to his unit. He rejoined the outfit just as it was moving up to the front lines near Inchon. On Nov. 27, these Chinese Communists began a new push against the United Nations forces. Back and forth they fought first one and the other retreating until finally they were pushed back to Yonchon. On Dec. 14, Cpl. Gonzalez and nine other men were at their command post when it was overrun by the enemy and they were cut

All night they waited on the hill, watching the village below. They saw no sign of life with the exception of two enemy soldiers without weapons, Cautiously they entered, and no sooner had they gotten well into the village than enemy soldiers began pouring from every doorway.

Completely surrounded and with no chance of escape, they surrendered. They were extremely lucky in their treatmen for they found as long as they seemingly agreed with their captors things went fairly well. Seeking to educate the Americans in the ways of Communism, classes were set up for every other day and all prisoners forced to attend.

It took strong will power for an American soldier to sit and listen to the high ranking officers expound the merits of Com-munism and not voice an opinion, but this group felt if it could play along with its captors, there might be a chance of

With a hopeless feeling, they started out. It was one chance in a thousand they would get across, but it was a chance worth taking. They came to a deserted but, and with common accord decided to spend the night there. During the night they planned, and when morning came they made an S. O. S. from rice hags they found in the hut.

Later in the morning they heard a plane and as they crouched in the door, they saw the markings of the United States Air Force on the wings, There was no way of knowing whether the crew had seen their message, so the waiting was almost unbearable. You Will survive After Death By Sherwood Eddy Rinehart And Company, Publisher By M-Sgt. Bob Groover

Since the beginning of mankind, men have pondered over the question of individual survival after death, of personal immortality, Different religions dictate substantially the same type of faith for its members, with varying degrees of circumstance. Most Christians believe that there is a heaven and hell, a be-lief supported in theory by the individual interpretation of the

Hence, the existence of a heaven and a bell depends upon the Second Lt. Juanita R. Bond. individual's faith in the Holy Bible. There is no physical description on record of Heaven and Hell, save that outlined in the M-Sgt. Delbert C. Cox, 7 Alli-Holy Bible, and as depicted in paintings by artists of the times. For the past thirteen years, author Sherwood Eddy has gathared evidence on psychic phenomena and life after death. He has visited the far ends of the earth, and consorted with purported phychical experts from every walk of life. In this book he has set down his findings and conclusions. His conclusions are supported by actual evidence seen and heard with his own eyes and ears. In addition, Mr. Eddy makes reference to physchical circumstances surrounding his investigation and which oc-cured before his time and in localities not familiar to him. Based on his investigation if psychic phenomena, he has concluded that there is no Hell, only a Heaven. He maintains that the individual's spirit and or soul survives after death in graduating degrees, that the earthly sinful would rise to the lowest degree after death and after his acceptance of God would graduate from one degree to the other until he had reached the ultimate in nearness to God.

The earthly Holy would rise to varying heights after death depending upon the person's religious sincerety. The author states that the only hell to which a person would be subjected after death would be a hell which the person makes for himself, by his non-acceptance of God.

Author Eddy concluded that there are many types of human lives on other planets, and that the spirits of these people rise to the same Heaven as that to which the earthly departed transcend. The author further concludes that there is no possible description of God, as there is no possible description of the air, nature and the universe.

This book is absorbing reading, regardless of the personal beliefs of the reader. It is doubtful that the author has proven anything by his writing of this book, but he undoubtedly has provided food for thought for the sincere, thinking people, whose minds are not closed to any channel of information about the nature of reality and the world to come.

Dedicated to Fighting Infantry

Out of the slime, mud and misery of the Korean battlefront there have risen the strains of a new song dedicated to the "Queen of Battle."

The words and music were born in the mind of Lt. Col. Romie Meiton as the fighting infantry demonstrated great value and "Dipon his return to the United States and circumstance."

Upon his return to the United States and circumstance. Evid Meiton, collaborated with him in putting the words and medion to print. They called if "You Can't Win a War Without the Infantry."

Chaplain Bloxham Veteran Of Combat As Line Officer

There's a chaplain at Fort Benning who knows as much about battle as Bibles.
Chaplain (Capt.) Earl S. Bloxham reasoned in the last war that he could be of more service to the men as a soldier as the front with them than as a chaplain. The 33-year-old officer explains that he has "never been sorry that he made that decision."

$6,000,000 Worth of New Diesels and Freight Cars Ordered by the Central Keeping step with the expansion of industry in this territory and the requirements of the Nation's defense, the Central orders the equipment to deliver the goods. Central of Georgia is performing a higger job of vital transportation than ever before. And now on order - fordelivery this year - are 525 new freight cars and 22 powerful diesel locomotives.

MORE POWER

The twenty-two new diesel locomotive units will be of 1500 and 1600 horse-power. Thirteen of them will be equipped for use in passenger service as well as freight. These speed giants will furnish added power to pull more freight or passenger trains faster and more efficiently.

GREATER CAPACITY

The new freight cars will include 300 fifty-ton, steel-sheathed box cars, 200 fifty-ton, all-steel gondolas, and 25 seventy-ton covered hopper cars. This means service . . . for if all these cars were coupled together, they would form a train nearly six miles long!

Sports Sidelights

Manager John Wilson reports this week that TIC headquar-ters has approved a request to allow Fort Benning fighters o participate in downtown professional matches. The approval receive some monetary compensation for their ring labors.

Names of boxers listed on the request included: Larry ones, Norman Clark, Buck De Cardova, George Allen and two former pro fighters, Frankle Majors and Larry Mujica. Both Majors and Mujica had already fought downtown but were forced to wait for an official decision before continuing

Wilson says he hones to have his boys in shape for some matches in the very pear future. Since this is an after-duty affair, the boys must train in their spare time after 5 p.m. which doesn't give them too much time. But, if a suitable which doesn't give them too inter hine. But, it a satisfies training schedule can be arranged, with luck, the boys should be ready sometime in May. Several of the fighters are trainon their own at the Briant Wells Field House.

If possible. Wilson says, he wants to furnish half a card. It all depends on whether downtown promoter Tommy Ward will be agreeable to such an arrangement. With all the telent on the post. Wilson could furnish a full card if necessary, bu it is very doubtful if Ward would agree to this.

Of course, post boxers are not limited to the Columbus area. There are many other towns and cities nearby where Fort Benning nugilists would be welcomed to provide new talent and competition for local fighters. And matches could also be staged here on the post. This might prove to be a profitable venture for all concerned

Trial matches to determine if such a move would be profitable could be staged at the Briant Wells Field House. They would be sponsored by post Special Services as were the wrestling matches here last year and would be promoted by Tommy Ward of Columbus. Special Services would receive a small share of the profits which in turn would aid in building un nest entertainment activities

There is the possibility however that pro boxing on the post would follow the same unsuccessful road as did pro wrestling.

It could and might. But, with post boxers, say a half card, participating, its possibilities of proving successful are pretty contrary, it would be better for one or two or even more weeks to elapse before bringing back the locals to their home grounds. Conducted weekly, the matches would soon lose interest if the same boxers were carried on the card each week.

There is no doubt that with Third and All Army ments canned for the duration, pro boxing, featuring post boxers, would furnish the necessary antidote for homesick ring fans. It wouldn't hurt to try,

Southern Courtesy, too

The man who comes to install or repair your telephone brings something more to your home than equipment, tools and efficiency.

He brings courtesy and consideration and a genuine desire to please. He treats your home and the things in it as carefully as though they were his own-cleans up and puts everything back in place when he's finished.

He prings along the realization that he is the representative of thousands of telephone men and women you may never see-all working together to give you friendly, constantly improving telephone service at reasonable cost.

Safety Office In Warning Against Speed On Highway

A sharp rise in fatalities due to auto accidents involving military personnel at Fort Benning was listed this week by the Safety Office at Fort Benning.

Since June, 1951 soldier drivers of private vehicles have been involved in accidents resulting in the death of 11 sol-diers, and two passengers in soldier-operated autos.

In addition, 75 soldiers have been injured requiring hospitalization. It was pointed out that most that it is not the drunk driver of the mishaps occurred between who is the main menace but 11:30 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. and the drinking driver.

This Is Your Responsibility

Army public relations is not something for only the generals in Washington to worry about. It's the responsibility of every soldier who wears the uniform. Regardless of what the Department of the Army does to impress the civilian public magnificent job being accomplished in combat, in training, in recreation, in education, the actions of the indiwidual soldier can, and sometimes do, result in bad public

Any soldier who adopts a "so what" attitude toward public relations shows a total lack of understanding of our Amerirelations shows a total tack of understanding of the can way of life. It is not the Army which shapes its own destiny, but the civilian population. Only with the full support of the civilian public can the Army accomplish its mission, of the civilian public can the Army accomplish its mission, for the Congress, which represents the people, is responsible for providing the legislation necessary for the efficient operation of military forces.

How, then, can the individual soldier guard against bad public relations? The ways are many, but most fall under the same heading: self-control.

All our natural appetites are good in themselves. God planted them in us. They are important and necessary in maintaining life and health. But let those inborn desires run wild.

and they ruin not only the soul but even the body itself.

Man has a natural desire for drink, even intoxicating drink, have a useful purpose in promoting health and cial life. But when the desire gets out of control, nothing but disaster can result.

Drink is not evil in itself. It's man's abuse that makes it evil. It makes him a wild animal rather than a human being. It undermines his character and robs him of human definity. When this bappens to a soldier, he becomes a poor example of good public relations. He is shunned by the elvilian public and ridiculed by his comrades for his failure

o uphold the traditions of the United States Army.

Over-indulgence, however, isn't the only way in which to bring discredit, with its resulting bad public relations, upon the Army. There are other ways, such as, for example, wearing of the uniform.

Although summer uniform regulations have been in effect less than a week, a few soldiers at Fort Benning are already wearing dirty, wrinkled khaki. Some are wearing caps which they should have discarded years ago, some are wearing caps ing unshined shoes, and some are forgetting that brass has to e polished, at least occasionally.

We have seen soldiers of the first three grades proudly wearing unauthroized belt buckles, officers' caps and fancy

It's bad enough when any soldier violates uniform regulait's next she he's not worthy of the trust which has been placed in him. Furthermore, these things result in bad public

And finally a soldier can create a bad name for himself and his profession through discourtesy to the civilian public. It's not difficul, to be a gentleman and we can guarantee that gentlemen win far more friends than those who deliberately scorn the public Loud, vulgar talk is not a synonym for toughness. On the contrary, it denotes a lack of breeding, and has no place in civilized society It's even worse than discrediting the uni-

America's Resurging Revival of Religion

The religious awakening in America that has become increasingly apparent in recent days has been confirmed by statistics. The Natio Council of Churches, in a survey reported by TIME in its April 2 issue, shows an overall gain of 51.6 per tent in membership in

In the same period U. S. population increased about 30 per cent. Regardless of what may be said of church membership, such an increase betokens a marked re-emphasis on religion. Especially is this true when we take into consideration the "falling away" in religion prior largest religious bodies during the period from

It is bardly necessary to point out that this religious emphasis is no new thing to America. Every school boy well knows that religion was one of the prime factors in the establishing of the thirteen original colonies. One of the first acts of our pilgrim fathers after setting foot on this continent was the setting up of religious worship; and the Bible from which the preacher preached on Sunday was a text book in the school during the week.

With religion so fundamentally linked to the founding of our nation, it is almost incredible that there should be such a degeneration in religious thinking and practice as that which followed World War 1. Characteristic of this degeneration was the breaking up of multitudes of homes and rampaging juvenile delinquency It is significant that during the period when religion was most discredited in America, Communism was most favorably viewed. Onof the most often repeated Marxist quotations "Religion is the opiate of the masses". Yet it was during the period when our fore-

were most energetically expanded.

In a recent Colliers editorial it was disclosed that Communism, by its misuse of such term as "true freedom and true democracy and true science", has been able to lead many into believing that its program is progressive when in reality it "actually carries its victims back to a world that existed at the dawn of history. It represents something which free men have been struggling against through the ages. It represents the denial of every ambition for individual freedom."

What then was the cause of this return to religion? Pierce Harris in a recent editorial on the front page of the Atlanta Journal said that on June 6, 1944 - invasion day, "America put God back at the core of things". He pictures a nation moved toward God; people crowding the streets on their way to some church to pray.

Perhaps this scene as told by Mr. Harris best illustrates the point. After dinner one evening a woman rose to greet a blond, broaduldered young man who had just some through the door. Placing her arm affectionateabout his shoulders she said without embarrassment

"It was while Jimmie was on Okinawa, we all learned how to pray".

There are many things that would suggest that this revival of religion is particularly fitting in our land; Congress opening its sesions with prayer; a national Thankgiving Day; the inscription "In God We Trust" on our coins; a general bowing his head amid ruins of Seoul to repeat the Lord's Prayer. All these and many more speak loudly of the fact that America has a rich religious beritage.

Chinese Launch Counter-Offensive in Korea

The Chinese Red's long-awaited spring counter-offensive got under way this week in Korea, and United Nations forces were forced to give ground in all sectors. One Chinese diviwas reported in the forefront of the drive, while another Communist force crossed into South Korean on the west, heading toward Ujiongbu on the way to Seoul. The big smash, front dispatches said, was aimed along the mountainous middle. Withdrawals ranging up to 15 miles were reported early this week all the front, and Allied artillery and aircraft had failed to stem the tide.

It was reported this week that the investigation of General MacArthur's ouster will get under way May 2. Senator Bridges, New Hampshire Republican and a member of the joint Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee, said he understood the inquiry would start when the hero of Bataan was available. MacArthur had wired the committee from New York he would be available a week from Wednesday. Committee Chairman Russell earlier had said the probe would begin Monday but that the general could name his own appearance date during the week starting Monday. Russell's state-ment came as President Truman held toplevel conferences on Administration strategy the battle over the dismissal of the Far East commander and new controversy raged on a wide military and political front.

Labor Minister Aneurin Bevan and Board of Trade President Harold Wilson both resigned this week from the British cabinet, causing talk of a possible downfall of the Labor government. Both Bevan and Wilson charged that Britain was shackled to American diplomacy in what they termed "a reckless armaments drive."

Meanwhile Conservatives were openly inhibant and predicted a general election would be necessary. However, there was little indication that Bevan would vote against any Labor pro-posals, for in the first balloting following his esignation, he cast his vote with the I should Party against the Conservatives.

A Maryland Democrat this week called on Congress to create a Senate-House committee on crime and a Federal Crime Commission wage war on the American underworld Resolutions calling for the two new bodies were introduced in the Senate by Senator O'Conor for himself and Senators Hunt and Kefauver O'Conor said the joint committee was needed investigate interstate granbling, distribution an dsale of narcotics, prestitution and other fields of criminal acivity. The Federal Crime Commission would be a permanent body study crime on a national basis. It would be charged with co-ordinating activities of Federal law enforcement agencies in denying interstate facilities, such as the telegraph and telephone, to organized crime.

SEAUTY TO VISIT POST... Toni Young, glamorous vocal-Ist with Bruce Becker's orchestra will be here to entertain with the troupe in three appearances April 29. Naturally there will be quite a turnout with such eye-filling talent on the billing. The Becker orchestra is on a coast to coast tour.

Fort Benning has long been noted for beautiful trees. And eautiful though they are, there is a lot of work and planning that goes into keeping them in that condition.

If you want to know what to do when your tree gets sick and starts to die, or just how to go about getting rid of those pesky little white flies that settle on your gardenia bush, all you have to do is call on W. S. Reed, agricultural aide in the Roads and Grounds section of Post Engineer.

Mr. Reed, who has been at Benning since the fall of 1945, graduated from Penn State college with a degree in land-scape architecture, but it was not until he got into the park service in South Carolina that he became interested in doctor-

"Just as human beings have different natures and temperaments, so trees have an individuality all their own," says Mr. Reed. "You have to know and understand trees to keep them alive, for just like humans they must have the proper conditions to survive

His job is varied and interesting. When he gets a call, he never know; just what he will find. For instance, there are several sweet gum trees on the post that are gradually dying in spite of all modern methods to save them. He has spent a great deal of time examining them and has sent parts of the trees to various places to get a diagnosis as to what is causing this gradual death. But so far, to no avail.

Just as a doctor has to make an evamination before scribing, so has he to examine the tree and from the symptoms decide the treatment best suited. According to Mr. Reed, the most widely used method is to use selective pruning to remove the diseased part. However, if not pruned correctly, the tree will sometimes split as a result of the weight of the branches

Another method of treatment is spraying, which, he says, is one of the most expensive cures. A simple method that works wonders sometimes is to simply fertilize the root of the

Mr. Reed says that tree surgery is a highly specialized and important job and though he is not a tree surgeon, he does know how to remove diseased parts and treat the cut. This is a complicated procedure and is used only when abso lutely necessary. If the cut is not properly sealed, the tree will

In explaining the care of trees, Mr. Reed said "it is important when planting trees and shrubs to look to the future as well as to the beauty now. If careful planning is not used, when they attain their full growth they will not have the room for the necessary ventilation and sunlight. Also a knowledge of the different types of trees and shrubs that grow in a section is useful. Did you know that some species of tree require a male and female be planted near each other for them to grow, such as our own American holly?"

Even the smallest of shrubs, according to Reed, can be Even the smallest of shrubs, according to Need, can be killed by attempts to cut them back at the wrong time of the year or to prune them without the know-how. One of the most common feults in this line is cutting the top of bushes against their normal shape, resulting in only the dead

Mr. Reed contends that with a little time and effort and willingness to learn, you can have healthy trees and shrubs, When something happens to your plants or trees, don't wait until they are almost gone before calling for help, for sometimes there is nothing that can be done then. The first time you notice insects, or that the branches of your trees are dying, all you have to do is call on his crew.

As you look at the tree-lined streets, the shady quarters and the flewers and shrubs that abound in profusion at Benning, you can also see the time, care and effort that go into keeping them al. in good shape. And in your heart you sing Joyce Kilmer's song: "Poems are made by fools like me, but only God can make a tree."

Alfred A. Knopf, Publisher

By M-Sgt. ROBERT GROOVER

According to most American moralists, whiskey and the dev-il are synonomous. In his new best - seller, "The Innocent Eve," Author Robert Nathan backs up this theory-and goes the moralists one better - by painting a horrible, verbal picture of what can happer when one consumes too much fire water. The story in this piece opens n Halloween, anyyear. 🌢 group of people have gathered in fashionable New York apartment for a Halloween costume party. Included in the group are a United States Senator, a couple of foreign diplomats: the usual representatives of the New York literary and smart set and a Hollywood motion picture producer and his protegee. a young rlumb innocent llywood starlet named Eve. The party has barely begun when in walks Lucifer, the devil himself, and his secretary, a sexy young woman who special leading unsuspecting young men to their doom. If the reader will substitute alcohol for Lucifer at this point, the book will be more realism than fantasy.

Under the influence of Lucifer, the guests lose their inhibi-tions and do things they have subconsciously always wanted o do. Because the guests had so much evil in their lives, they were affected by Lucifer, all, ing but good in her life and was not influenced by Lucifer. She alone remained unscathed in the fracas.

Author Nathan has taken a well - known physchological fact and used it to good advantage in "The Innocent Eve": Alcohol is harmful to the individual chiefly becauses it releases the person's inhibitions, causing him to remember things he should forget, and do things he is forbidden to do by the dictates of a normal, accepted code of human behavior. Of equal importance, of course, is the secondary affect that alchohol has on the individual: clouding of vision, loss of respectability, carelessness.

Thia is a short book, and can be read by the average reader in about three hours. It is not an essay on the evils of drinking. It is a brilliant piece embodying political, social, biological and literary commentaries which, if not studied carefully, might pass missed altogether.

Author Nathan has many books and poems to his credit. He first began writing in the his own in the early thirties. His early books were innocuou enough, but since 1940 he has written mainly in a satirical vein. The best example of his atyle can probably be found in "The Married Look", pub-

BY PVT. GEORGE ROBEY IN

New records are being set in the sporting world these days. That's one of the nice things about athletics. The sky's the limit: Fine records set by excellent athletes can be bested by others who have worked hard to place their names among the famous in their games. It teaches us another fine lesson.

In Dallas, Texas last week, the famous Babe Didrickson Zaharias established a new women's golf record in the $3,000 Weatherane golf tournament. She fired a blazing 66 to register an all - time record for women's golf.

On the 6 109 yard Lakewood country club course, the Babe showed a 159 for 36 holes to cop the top cash of $750 in the first leg of the 144 hole cross - country tourney.

The Babe's score of 66 topped the men's par by five stroke and was just one stroke over the men's course record.

A men's competitive course record was almost set. If the famous girl foller hadn't missed a 12 foot putt for an eagle on the 17th hole and a six footer on No. 18 for a birdie, the new

Genial and buxom Patty Berg was the runner up in the match-

For Genial and buxon Party Berg was the runner up in the matches at a Dallas. She too played excellent golf but she just couldn't quite compete with Babe's fine play. Miss Berg fired a 153 for the tourney.

WOMEN SET PACE

With three ball games already under their belts, last year's Fort Benning and Third Army because when the first diversed to the Action of the power services of the same services services should an antional records. She took three seconds of the record 200 yeard breaststroke that she had made the day before. Her final record time was 245.0.

GAMBLING CURBS

A mighty blow has been struck against organized gambling the year. Many sports have suffered because of the famous three seconds of the same services of the same should give the other teams should give the ball across the plate and should give the other teams that the public is reminded with such inspect of the sporting same wit and the non - sporting world. in a losing game with professional gamblers who don't care how much the public loses.

Geombling like prohibition cannot be stopped. It had to controlled And that is a tough job that mostly rests upon the public's shoulders.

We are amused at some of the attempts at control of gambling that has crept up on the heels of the big investigations. One of these involves horse racing.

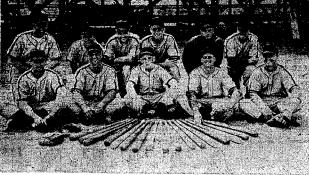

In order to put the "bookies" out of business, it has been ordered that there will be no disclosure of the racing odds before a race. The odds cannot be announced over the racins and the television cumeras will have to steer clear of the track's tote board.

We doubt very much if this will affect the book maker's business. Other outlets are always available and the profession on the part of the spectators and local bets that are placed at the track. Bets that are made at the track seldom run into big cash as far as ladividuals are concerned and a small change friendly be I is part of the racing sport.

The Florita Racing Commission set up a ruling last year that race results could not be published until 20 minutes after the event; This had a double effect. The bookmakers were not affected and the voting public was convinced that stepth had been taken to stop the "bookies."

One of the biggest threafs to such a system is the censorship that would, be dealt to the press and radio. That isn't good in any event, and it sking a lot of the freedom of the press.

One of the biggest threats to such a system is the censor, ship that would be dealt to the press and radio. That isn't good in any event, and it asking a loi of the freedom of the press. A beginning of strict press censorable wouldn't necessarily have the seen promoted to the American people that could grow if accepted on even a small plane.

Young CO Brings Vigor, In Modern Battle Experience to Battalion To leave textile manufacturing and become a lieutenant Is Speech Theme

To leave textile manufacturing and become a lieutenant colonel at the age of twenty-eight is quite an accomplishment, but for Lt. Col. David L. Ramsey of the Eighth Infantry, it is only one of many unique accomplishments.

Success seems to be easily attained for him, no matter what the field.

As a student of North Carolof Merit and had won such an lina State, Ramsey became the conviable reputation that he was vice-president of his senior class assigned to Aberdeen Proving Col. Now You Get Free Insurance

The President's signature on a bill to provide a $10,000 sost-free death gratuity for members of the Armed Forces has assured Servicemen of "free insurance" for the time spent in uniform, as well as for 120 days following separation gressmen even before the Korean conflict began, but it was not until last week that the free death henefits become reality. Wisely, the new bill is retroactive to June 27, 1950, thereby providing insurance protection for men, without Na tional Service Life Insurance, who lost their lives since

Detailed information on all aspects of the new legislation not been made available as yet, but Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Foster, Army Chief of Finance, has said that a complete analysis will be made as soon as possible

In the meantime, Servicemen have been warned not to stop navments on their term insurance until notification has bee received that the new insurance has actually gone into effect

Although we can not answer all questions concerning the new insurance, we have learned the over-all effect the legislation will have on Service personnel.

Broadly speaking, the bill provides a free $10,000 indemnity to beneficiaries of Service members who die while on activ duty or within 120 days after separation, but then only to obers of their immediate families. Payments will total $92 90 a month for 10 years.

It covers all men now in uniform and all men who have died since June 27, 1950, who did not at the time of death carry the so-called GI insurance.

National Service Life Insurance will not be issued any more Present NSLI policies are "participating," which means they pay dividends. Those Servicemen with NSLI may keep it if they desire However, those who do not now have GI may purchase it only under the term plan-that is, they can not convert it to a permanent plan.

Despite the fact that payments will no longer be necessary for protection it behooves any Serviceman who now has NSLI to keep it in effect, either by conversion to one of the permanent plans or by getting a waiver on premiums, to remain in effect as long as he is in the Army. If the policy is 'dropped" a' any time, it can not be re-instated, under permanent plan, after leaving the Service. Once out of the Service, provided the policy has remained in effect, monthly payments may be resumed, or the policy may be converted of the permanent plans.

The biggest difference between NSLI and the new policy is "buying" insurance for the first time, can no longer get permanent protection unless he's disabled. If he disabled in Service, making him ineligible for norma commercial insurance, he can, when he gets out, buy NSLI on a term or permanent basis, but, of course, he'll have to start paying for it. It totally disabled in Service, he will get Government insurance up to $10,000, free, so long as he is News Briefs totally disabled.

Any roldier who does not have the full $10,000 NSLI will still be insured for that amount while on active duty, but he can not increase his policy to the maximum limit after leav-Service. Should he die in Service or within 120 days following separation, however, his beneficiaries will collecthe full $10,000 in monthly payments.

One word of caution: Don't make a hasty decision to drop you

A LETTER TO MOM

Twas a cold day in the Korean winter.

The snow was a dirty grey.

A boy sat with pad and pen, Trying to phrase what his heart had to say.

His features spoke of misers

"It's just that if anything hap-pens to me, No that I'm expectin' to die, But if I do want you to know how I feel, And leave you something to remember me by."

"I've done a lot of thinkin', Since I was sent over here. And I know something I never knew before, And that something, Mom, is fear." PRESTO-CHANGO . . . Aloysius Jerome "Wish" Egan is dead. The famous talent scout of the Detroit Tigers was responsible for a multitude of baseball greats Egan devoted almost half a century to professional baseball. Egan was 68 years old.

A reputation of seldom being wrong in his judgement passed away with the grand old man. It wasn't very often that he misjudged. But if he did misjudge talent, it would affect him deeply. Egan's biggest disappointment was Dick Wakefield. Wish was loyal to Wakefield. He gave the boy his ful attention and believed that the young player would come through for him. It was a bitter blow to Eagan when the club lost faith in Dick.

In the many years that Wish gave to baseball, he did almost every job connected with the game. He started off many years ago as a pitcher. After years of successful play, wish developed a sore arm and he had to retire. Egan coached basehall at Baker University, Kansas. He left to join the umbire trade and worked in that capacity with the Central League

Wish did so well that Byron Bancroft Johnson offered him an umpire spot in the American League. But at that time Mrs Fagan was seriously ill and as a consequence, Eager missed his big chance. He stayed at home and umpired sandlot ball and college games. That was how he met Frank J. Navin, then owner of the Detroit Tigers. The rest of Wish life was spent with the Detroit Tigers where he discovered such immortal players as Harold Newhouser, Dizzy Trout, Ted Gray, Hoot Evers, Johnny Groth, Arthur Houtteman

⁶ Big Train's' Saga

Details in the Intimate life of Grover Cleveland Alexande Legaus in the intimate life of Grover Cleveland Alexander are being published in two installment of the SPORTING. News. The first appeared in the April 25 issue. The story-is taken from letters that Allexander worte to his divorced wife:

Of Pete, as he was called in the days when he was at the

Or Pete, as ne was cause in the days when he was at top of baseball's ladder of success, died a bitter and lonely man. His incredible pitching created many shouts and screama from the throngs of fans who saw him at his best. Even in the throes of rollicking drink, Ol' Pete stayed in the game with a fantastic record.

He had premonition that his death was near and felt as if paseball had forgotten him. His body was found lying in a pool of blood in his little rented room in St. Paul, Neb.

He wasn't really ready to die then. He didn't want to in the town that he felt had urned against him and he wanted to see his wife Almee, again. She was the woman who had shared his fortunes and misfortunes alike since their narriuge in 1918. Even though they had been married and divorced twice, Ol' Pete couldn't really believe that they were separated. He still sought her advice and comfort. His cancer-ridden body finally came to the point where he could no longer take it, and Ol' Pete bowed out.

His story is what an imaginative Hollywood writer would dream up. It is that incredible. Grover Cleveland Alexander was a fabilious personality. Baseball could never forget him.

Drown Bomber's Dilemma

When the adulation of the boxing world was at its peak for You Louis, fistic bomber supreme—when challengers crump-led to the canvas in bloody heaps after two or three rounds exploding jabs, no one thought much about the champ's financial status.

Who over does when a champ is at this peak? The golden horn of plenty rattles lucre into the coffers at a steady clip. The chink of money drowns out the furtive scrapings of the nangers-on the percentage boys and the 'advisors!

Bob Burnes of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat recently said it has been revealed that by an early agreement the Bomber was required to give Julian Black 50 per cent of 'gross receipts, of earnings

Roxb rough received 25 per cent.

The 25 per cent left for Joe was to pay taxes, training camp expenses and other incidentals.

Who gets taken for a buggy ride?

Gossiy has turned into fact that the Brown Bomber ha to go on fighting. Joe must now ease his bulging midriff the ropes and force aging reflexes to simulate the once-terrible destruction which made him so great.

Londed on his shoulders now must be the memory of what could have been; retirment to a well-earned rest. It does to fight game to good for the most glorious battler of all time degenerate into a spectacle of what too much fighting can witnessed the Louis legend may eventually be treated to the sordid picture of a stumbling, inept 'second rater' who once was the epitome of the human fighting machine.

The fronic fact is that the elderly Louis still remains as the logical choice for a shot at Charles and was actually by-passed by the National Boxing Association in favor of Joey

A victory for Louis now would not alter the fect that the great champion still brings into the ring a fraction of the deadly power which has etched his name forever in the box-Ag had of fame

Little Reason to Complain

Do you sometimes have trouble stretching your money from one payday to the next? Consider, then, the plight of the French private who receives exactly five cents per day, as compared to the United States Army private's base pay of $2.63 per day. This does not include the "extras" which the $2.05 per day. This does not include the extras which the American soldier gets, such as allotments for dependents, longevity, separate rations, free medical care and uniforms.

As the highest paid soldier in the world, the American enlisted man receives more money each month then many of the top ranking officers of Allied armies. For example, a U. S. Army first sergeant draws about $25 more per month colonel. By the same token, an American Army captain's base pay of $314 equals the total pay of a 200-man company of Italians, and a Danish general gets only slightly more than a United States sergeant.

It's surprising to note the vast differences between the American private's base pay and his counterpart in eight of the countries supplying troops to the Atlantic Pact army. These daily rates of pay do not include any "extras":

United State	s				$2.63
Belgium					2.50
Britain					2.00
Holland				• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	.78
Denmark .			••••••		.76
Norway	•••••				.15
Italy					.15
France		; ,	••••••
riance					.05

Of course, we realize that it's unfair to compare the rate of pay of the American Army with that of any other country, since the United States Army bases its pay scale on the prevailing cost of living index, as well as on the living standard, of the American public. In all cases, the living standard and cost of living index are higher here than in any of the countries we have mentioned. Still, the differences aren't so great that the American soldier's pay, under any standcould be termed low.

So the next time you feel like complaining about your rate of pay, just remember how much more money you get than soldiers in other countries. You'll find you actually have little reason to complain after all.

Welcome to a Famous Unit

As Fort Benning was this week preparing a farewell for the Fourth Infantry Division, officials were already dusting off the welcome mat for a famous Airborne regiment, schediled to return to the post later this month for training.

A definite date for the arrival of the famed 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment, which was reactivated at colorful cere-monies at Fort Bragg, N. C., last Saturday, has not been announced, but a few of the cadremen were on the post Mon day making preparations for housing and training.

It will be like homecoming for many men of the 508th for the regiment began its training at Fort Benning on Feb. 3, 1943, when the First Battalion moved onto the post. After the was qualified as Airborne, it moved to Camp Mackall, N. C., for further training before maneuvering against

Arriving in Northern Ireland in early 1944, the 508th began secret training routines which were to be used later in flerce fighting against the enemy. On June 5, 1944, attached to the 82nd Airborne Division, the rough and ready paratroopers jumped in Normandy in a gallant and successful effort to prevent the enemy from re-inforcing troops defending the beaches. As a result of this mission, the 508th received a Presidential

Once again, on Dec. 17, the now battle-hardened Airborne regiment was committed to action, this time against Field Mar-shal von Runstedt. Despite cold, fatigue and heavy casualties, the 508th pushed on, gaining mile by mile with the blood and sweat that only seasoned veterans are capable of expending.

It was not until November, 1846, that the 508th could record In its historical files the words, "Mission Accomplished." But it could do so in the full knowledge that it had acquitted itself well, for the 508th had acquired a fighting spirit and tradition which the new troopers expected to join the regiment soon

To the officers and men of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment, The Bayonet extends a sincere welcome. We hope your stay here will be both pleasant and profitable.

Mac's Policies Would Widen War---Truman

President Truman this week Meanwhile in Korea, United told the American people that MacArthur's Far East proposals, if followed by this country, would result in widening the conflict now raging in Korea and might bring down a rain of atom bombs on American cities. Following up testiiense Secretary Marshall to the Senate, the President said that a single atom bomb exploding over an American city would cause more casualties than the U.S. has suffered in all the Korean war. "I do not want to be responsible for that," Mr. Truman said, Marshall had previously charged that MacArthur destroyed any hopes for a settlement of the Korean war by his peace appeal to the Red Commander. said the United Nations was preparing an announcef readiness to discuss a war settlement when MacArthur made his peace-talk offer without approval from Wash-

Nations forces forced the Reds on two wide fronts. Northwest of Seoul, South Koreans' smashed hard into a North Korean army corps and rolled it back three points 13 miles from the capital. In the east, other Allied troops forced back hard-fight ing Communists a mile and a half. These Red setbacks on the flanks and a withdrawal north of Chunchon in the center coincided with reports of dissatisfaction in Communist ranks. It was understood that the North Korean and Chinese Reds were angry because they felt Russia had let them down on tanks and planes for their now stalled spring offensive.

On The Bookshelf PROUD NEW FLAGS

By F. van Wyck Mason B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY BY ROBERT GROOVER

There are many writers of nistorical fiction in America today. So many, that it is prac-tically impossible to visit any book-store or library and not see at least a dozen or so historical novels on the shelves. But when the lover of historical nut when the lower of historical fiction sees one of F. van Wyck Mason's books, ha will do well to read it. For it will undoubtedly be one of the best works of historical fiction he has ever read. To begin with, Author Mason's books are always carefully written with no technical flaws. His accounting of historical fact might well rank with legitimate history books, yet the facts are so cleverly inter - mixed with his fiction that the reader is never bored by a mass of historical data. Then, too, Mason is a master writer of just plain fiction. His characters are always believable and sincere. He never exploits the sex ingle to sensationalize his books; he does not have to, he is an excellent writer of rec-ognized reputation. Most of Author Mason's books were set during the Revolutionary days, but "Proud New Flags' covers the decisive year beginning March, 1861, and the all - important but seldom - told story of the navfederacy. The tale opens in Baltimore

-a gay city in the no man's land of the growing conflict where the lovely Savannah belle, Sylvia Seymour, wel-comes her handsome brother-in-law, Lt. Samuel Seymour, U. S. N., home from the sea. The scene shifts to Norfolk where, with war actually begun, a large part of the U. S. Navy a large part of the U. S. Navy is scuttled and burned, and where the Confederate Navy is struggling to build "fron-clads" such as the strange, cigar - shaped ram Manassas, to oreak the Northern blockade. Then we are taken to Cuba aboard a Confederate raider, with an interlude in Richmond and to New Orleans for the climactic action of this gallant story. The desperate and bloody struggles of the Confederate Navy set against the colorful and frenzied whirl of Southern society create a novel of high adventure and romance blending Author Mason's thorough research with his un-erring gift for telling a rousing good story.

This is recommended reading for anyone who likes an interesting excellently written novel, regardless of his pref-erence of type. The historian will find a wealth of data to his taste, while the fiction lov-er will unconsciously learn something of our country as ರ್ಷ ಪರ್ವದ ಕ್ಷೇಟ್ಗಳು ಕ್ಷಾಣಕ್ಕೆ ವಿಶ್ವವಾಗಿ ಸಂಪೂರಕವಾಗಿ ಸಂಪೂರ್ಣದ ಪ್ರತಿಪಾರಕ ಪ್ರಾಥಮಿಸುತ್ತಿದ್ದಾರೆ ಪ್ರಾಥವಿಸುವ ಕಾರ್ಯಕ್ಷಮ ಪ್ರಶ್ನಿಸಿ ಕೃಷ್ಣಿಸಿ ಕ್ಷಣ್ಣಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆಗಳು ಪ್ರಶ off and running!" That's the word that conds "They're off and running!" That's the word that sends sporting blood racing through the veins of thousands of turf fans. That was the word which brought over 100,000 spectators on their feet at Churchill Downs when the 77th annual Kentucky Derby was run last Saturday.

was run last Saturday. Count Turn broke the tape to win the race in the richest Derby in history. The young colt broke into the lead at the and-a-quarter in 2:02 3-5, nearly two seconds faster than Count and a quarter in 2:02 3-5, hearly two seconds laster than Count Fleet's time. Count Turf copped $98,050, the biggest pot of racing gold in the history of the derby.

There is quite a story behind this year's Kentucky Derby.

Count Turi was sired by Count Fleet, the Derby winner in 1943. Count Fleet was sired Reigh Count, winner of the Derby

It was the first time in Derby running that the top cash was won by the third generation, like father, like son and like grand-daddy as well. ?

Only one feature stood in favor of Count Turf, his breeding.

Other than that, he had very little to recommend him for a Derby victory. This year, the brown colt had won only one race in 10 starts. That was a three quarter of a mile allowance race at Hisleah on Jan. 17 in his first race as a three year old. The best he could do in nine races after that, was two

SUDDEN DEATH ... Some of the junk shown above SUDDEN DEATH . Some of the junk shown above once glistened and throbbed with power. When the machines crashed the junk was pulled off the highway and photographed and then consigned to the nearest scrap yard. The drivers, twisted and moaning or else plain dead were rushed to either the operating room or a slab in a mortuary. Ever feel the spurt of speed when the accelerator goes down to the floor? Ever feel that high pitched whine when the treats leave a faint rubber trail on sharp corners of the highway? Ever listen to the sudden 'whoosh, whoosh, sound as your car hurtles by others in a stream of traffic? Frankly, everyone is guilty of that! Almost every driver has speeded at one time or another. The tragic fact is that some drivers speed most of the time they are driving. The safety office wants you to remember one thing. When you 'fool' your car down the highway and zip by other cars, the drivers of the other machines aren't saying—"Boy—can that guy drive! They are actually saying 'Sucker!' When they are home with their feet propped up listening to the radio the speeder may be listening to the clink of surgeon tools as they probe and dig into torn nerves and muscles—trying to repair the damage to his body. Take a good look at your accelerator—it's, a ticket to death!

Medics Finish Combat Training In 4th Division

Men and officers of the Fourth Medical battallon, one of the supporting units of the Fourth Infantry division, have recently completed a training period designed to teach them to defend their lives and those of their patients as well as to conserve the lighting strength of the division. Although the medics are not deadly than a hypodermic needle they will, if necessity arises, be able to do their share in the defense of the division.

Every individual in the battalion has had training in infantry tactife as well as his job of medical control of the division.
