HAL SIEBER
Pfc. Is Compiling Book

Modern Poet Plans Talk In Columbus

Pfc. Hal Sieber of the 14th OC Company, First OC Regiment, will give a Public reading and lecture on poetry next Sunday at 4 p.m. in Bradley Memorial Library in Columbus. Sieber will take an original poem, go through the process of its creation, and then read from his own works.

Sieber has had some 40 poems published in 20 newspapers and periodicals, including New York's Park East magazine and the University of North Carolina's Quarterly. Currently, he is working on a volume containing a series of sonnets entitled, "An American's Essay on God."

Sieber began writing poetry at the age of eight and his first poem was published two years later in the Transylvania Times of North Carolina. It was a "Thanksgiving prayer."

Some of Sieber's favorite poets are T. S. Eliot, Dylan Thomas, and Yeats. He has visited Carl Sandburg, the famous American poet, who lived within a few miles of the Sieber home.

The young modern poet considers his wife his "best patron" even if they sometimes disagree on imagery or phrasing.

2 Die, 12 Are Injured In Holiday Wrecks

The holiday death and injury toll of Fort Benning personnel stood this week at two killed and 12 injured, reported Post Safety Director Norman Evans, who had predicted two deaths and 20 injuries. The safety director pointed out that if the two men who were killed had heeded the pleas of the command their deaths would have been prevented. One death was due to a soldier's falling asleep at the wheel while the other was attributed to fast driving.

A report on accidents, injuries, and deaths in 1953 is now being prepared by Evans, who said, "Army vehicles have been driven 65 million miles.

Benning Likes Local Businessmen

Fort Benning spends from seven to 10 million dollars yearly with local business firms for goods and services used in the operation of the world's most complete Army post.

Following an Army policy to aid small business firms—those with fewer than 500 employees — and broaden the nation's industrial base, the post encourages local area businessmen to participate in providing needed goods and services, says Capt. George B. Patten of Montgomery, Ala., purchasing and contracting officer.

Take Stock of Your Spiritual Life

Reflect, Self-Examine Past Year

ERNEST F. WENTZEL

The police chased a car one day going about 70 miles an hour. When they caught up with it they found a young man behind the wheel; he was an average kind of fellow, we would say.

"Why were you driving at such a speed?" asked the officer.

"I don't know," answered the lad.

"Where were you going?" queried the other policeman.

"No place in particular," came the retort.

Well, naturally, the young man was arrested; he thought only of himself; he had no regard for other people.

Similarly, there were many men arrested; like this boy, in the past 12 months who simply chased along through life. They really didn't know why and they didn't know just where they were going. They entertained no aims, no goals. They thought chiefly of themselves; other people meant very little to them.

The passage of 52 weeks calls for reflection and self-examination. As businessmen take inventories of goods and cash on hand, so should we take inventory of what we have done in the past year. Have we grown any? Perhaps we have grown physically. But has there been any growth in our spiritual life? Are we spiritually stronger or weaker, richer or poorer than a year ago? Have we, or have we not, grown in the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ? Are we more like Him now or less so than a year ago? Is our knowledge purer, our devotion to Him greater? Are we closer to God than 365 days ago?

How likely is it that we are closer to the grave, more eternally, time waits for no man. We see it in the faces of friends whom we have not met for some time. We see it in every falling leaf and every drooping flower. We are reminded of it by a merchant hands us a new calendar.

Whenever the Bible refers to the passing of time, it speaks in solemn words. God wants us to think serious thoughts whenever the truth forces itself upon our attention that "We spend our years for naught, that is, to die."

God wants us to remember, count, our days; that is, we are constantly to be mindful of the fact that our days are limited and that they soon will be past. Time speeds away, and death comes on.

How likely is it that we are closer to death than a year ago? How suddenly and how often we are reminded of it.

Not one of us knows how many days are left to him. Hence we are to make the most of each day and live in constant preparation.

A man slipped on the steps of a subway and started to slide down to the bottom, colliding with a lady, knocking her down. After they had both reached the bottom the lady, still dazed, continued to sit on the man's chest. Looking up, he said politely: "I'm sorry, madam, but this is as far as I go."

"I said to her, 'whisper the three little words that will make me walk on air.'"

Paratrooper, now in basic training at the Ordnance Replacement Center, Aberdeen Proving Ground, is the featured singer with the U. S. Army Band in the nation's capital. He is the replacement for Pfc. Eddie Fishburn who is back in civvies. Pvt. Dini tunes himself in on the Army Show every Sunday night while he is in basic. How does he do it? Well after he enlisted he was assigned to the Army Band and made enough recordings to burn records, but until he completed basic he had no time to do it. "Even a singer in an Army band has to be a soldier," Dini says. For the second successive year the weather has been a handicap to Frank Edwards' Santa Claus missions. The MBS commentator was scheduled to make his first St. Nick-attired helicopter visit to an orphanage in the Ninth annual Air Force Operation Christmas. However, bad squalls delayed the trip. Last year Edwards was slightly injured when his glider-borne copier was caught in a downdraft and hit the side of a hill.

MEDAL OF HONOR

There is a certain point in time when an Infantry company attacks a position, when the protecting fire lets up, when the enemy is in a position to cover in his foxholes. The Infantryman has to stand up and move forward. The Infantryman has to do it. If every man knows you've got a good company commander, you're going to win.

The Seventh Inf. Div. had to take strategically important "Russell Hill" near Kumhwa, Korea. The orders came down to Co. A to start the drive by taking near "Sandy Ridge" and an enemy stronghold just below "Jane-Russell Hill."

First Lt. Edward R. Schowalter, Jr., USA, briefed his platoon leader. The third platoon he would send against "Sandy Ridge." He first. He kept going, firing his pistol with his left hand and throwing grenades with the other. "He led us right into the trenches and he started moving through them. All of a sudden a burp gun opened up from a hidden cave. A slug caught the old man's arm. It broke the old man's arm."

"You could tell he was weak from loss of blood but he kept us going until we had secured the commanding ground. They finally got him to leave the hill—after it was all over. He didn't want to leave us. They practically had to drag him off."

"Every man in that company," said Willauer, "respects and admires him."

He's back in the States now at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., wearing the medal of honor. (AFPS)

POW Dream Comes True: Plenty of Decent Food

M-Sgt. Joe N. Black of Columbus says that the best part about being an ex-POW is that he can get decent food whenever he wants it. Being a mess steward, Black now looks upon food as being a potent weapon against communism in the Far East and the world over. Realizing the importance of food he hopes to put to practical use many of his own ideas on eliminating waste in mess halls.

Black, newly assigned mess steward for the First Special Troops Bn., SFC, first saw action in Korea on Aug. 11, 1950. In his second tour he was captured and held for four months later near Kumri and released on Aug. 31, 1953.

During his 33 months of imprisonment, Black said he endured both starvation and disease and learned many of his friends die from lack of proper or even simple medical attention.

The day after he was captured, the sergeant tried to escape and went about 20 miles before being recaptured. It was during that first week that about 2000 American prisoners, including the sergeant, were taken on a forced march north to a permanent camp. That march covered 150 miles, most of it made in temperatures 50 degrees below zero or colder. The men who made it finished the march shortly after the first of January 1951.

The day after arriving at the permanent camp, Black attempted several times to escape, and headed south. Several days later he was recaptured again. This time a North Korean civilian patrol voided his plans.

On Jan. 22nd, the Reds started 3600 men on another march. On the first forced march, most of the men were recent captives, and though they suffered from wounds and lack of medical care, they still had much of their strength and most of them survived.

The new camp was located on the banks of the Yalu River. And the sergeant stayed there until he was repatriated. While there, he said he watched the Russian built MIG's fly in from Manchuria to counter-attack the American Sabrejets.

As the men worked on their details around the camp, the sergeant said that they noticed how hungry the people who lived around the camp looked. So the men began giving food from their own food parcels from the U.S. to them. It proved, the sergeant recalled, to be an excellent way of showing the natives that the Americans were not the heast the Communists pictured them to be. After that General Hospital. However, while he was on his way to Japan, the Communists invaded South Korea and his orders were changed. He landed in Korea in August 1950, serving as a platoon leader with the Ninth Regiment, Second Infantry Division until he was captured the operation of the reception center mess hall until 1946.

Sent to Korea for occupation duty, he was stationed near Seoul until 1946 when he returned to the U.S. for discharge. Reenlisting immediately, the sergeant was sent to Alaska. In 1950 he volunteered for a tour of duty at the Tokyo General Hospital. However, while he was on his way to Japan, the Communists invaded South Korea and his orders were changed. He landed in Korea in August 1950, serving as a platoon leader with the Ninth Regiment, Second Infantry Division until he was captured the operation of the reception center mess hall until 1946.

U.S. Invests 2 Billion to Make 20 Combat Divisions Battle Ready

WASHINGTON — The Army has more than two billion dollars invested in equipment for its 20 combat divisions.

Sixteen combat infantry divisions account for one and one-half billion dollars, two armored divisions for 422 million dollars and two airborne divisions for 178 million dollars.

To equip one infantry division costs the Army and taxpayer more than 90 million dollars. To staff a 17,500-man infantry division, put it in the field, and maintain it for one year under peace-time conditions costs an additional 99 million.

Tanks represent 35 and one-half million dollars while vehicles account for another 25 and one-half million dollars. Other costs include $10,000,000 for individual organization and other operating equipment and supplies, $4,600,000 for electronics and communications, three $2,600,000 for weapons, $2,890,000 for artillery and more than one million for tanks, $88,600,000 for vehicles, 12 million for ammunition, $7,600,000 for electronic and communications, five million for individual, organization and other operating equipment and supplies, two million for weapons and $942,000 for aircraft.

The equipment price tag on an airborne division is about 87 and one-half million dollars. To staff a 17,120-man airborne division, for a year costs an additional 80 million. This includes 436 million in tanks, 417 million in vehicles, 110,450,000 in individual, organizational and other operation equipment and supplies, 10 million in ammunition, $4,580,000 in electronics and communications $3,714,000 in artillery, $2,691,000 in weapons and one million in aircraft.

Buying weapons, ammunition and other major items to initially equip or replace existing equipment for the Army's divisions is an expensive proposition.

For individual items with one year's concurrent spare parts it costs the Army $70 for a rocket launcher, $95 for a rifle, $700 for automatic weapons, 72 artillery pieces, 144 light and medium tanks and 3,000 trucks, trailers and tractors.

To equip an armored division takes approximately 211 million dollars. To staff a 14,756-man armored division, put in the field for one year under peace-time conditions costs an additional 91 million dollars. This includes 91 mil-

Man-Sized Job Women Supervise Hospital Feeding

Seven highly trained women are doing a man-sized job at the post hospital, daily supervising the feeding of more than 500 patients and every week restoring mobility to hundreds of injured muscles.

As officers of the Women's Medical Specialist Corps, they had to meet high requirements, including a college degree and additional training in their special field. Before they were commissioned, four are dietitians under Major Emma C. Lord of Equinunk, Pa.

Direct Feeding

The dietitians direct the feeding of more than 900 persons at the hospital's noon meal. Major Lord, who has a bachelor's degree in home economics from Syracuse University and served a dietetic internship at Massachusetts General Hospital, is in charge of the Food Service Division.

She sees that the right food in the right quantities gets from the commissary storeroom to the patient's tray. She also keeps a watchful eye over on-the-job trainees learning food service techniques.

Patients Advised

Capt. Doris C. Hammond of Yorktown, Va., is in charge of the patients mess hall in the main hospital building which feeds more than 500, and Capt. Mildred McCreath of Cartersville, Ga., directs operations at a smaller mess hall in the hospital's cantonment area, where an additional 200 dine.

Both dietitians, working under the direction of Major Lord, prepare work sheets for cooks, check preparation and serving of food, chart menus for ward diners and advise special diet patients on how to eat well and stay well.

Second Lt. Carolyn S. Henderson of Hot Springs, N. C., who arrived here in October, is the newest member of the staff. She helps plan more than a score of special diets served to patients for whom food is as important a medicine as any drug.

Across the street from the main hospital building, in building C-9, is the physical therapy ward where paraplegics, the bruised and fractured get new energy for muscles weakened through disease, injury, or disuse.

The PT staff, working under Major Brasil, includes Capt. Ada E. Gray of San Angelo, Texas, and Capt. Betty J. Snyder of New Springfield, Ohio. The three therapists, assisted by three enlisted men, care for nearly 200 patients weekly, mostly orthopedic cases.

BENNING WORKERS NET $245 FOR WORK SAVING IDEAS
Gen. Meloy With: (Left To Right) Lackey, Rossano, And Fuller

Cash Awards Given To Three Civilians

Three Columbus civilian employees at Fort Benning received checks totaling $245 for work improvement suggestions estimated to save the Army nearly $6,000 annually.

Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, presented checks to Edward Lackey $115, Anthony J. Rossano $50, and Bernan P. Fuller, $50.

Fuller of the Ordnance Section Quartermaster Bakery suggested that process batches of dough every 20 minutes instead of 25 minutes. This makes better bread and saves an estimated nine manhours a day or $2,600 a year.

Employed in the Signal Section, Rossano designed and built a stand to hold radio sets during repairs. The time required to repair the set has been reduced and saves an estimated $2,200 annually.

Lackey, an employee in the Quartermaster Bakery, suggested that the process batches of dough every 20 minutes instead of 25 minutes. This makes better bread and saves an estimated nine manhours a day or $2,600 a year.

WOJGs Praised For 'Copter Work

WOJGs Ralph M. Fitch and Herbert H. Kraus, formerly of the 506th Army Helicopter Company, have received letters of commendation from Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., Infantry Center commander, for suggestions for speeding up the replacement of damaged helicopter blades.

The warrant officers suggested that spare main-rotor blades be attached to the sides of H-19 helicopters, making possible the replacement of a damaged blade in a matter of minutes.

This new method has proved successful in operation and could be a definite advantage under combat conditions, officials said.

Both officers are enroute to the Far East Command.

C. W. Cocke to Talk To Defense Group

Charles W. Cocke, regional transportation coordinator for the Civil Defense Administration in Atlanta, Ga., will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Columbus-Fort Benning chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association at Fort Benning's Main Officers' mess Monday at 7 p.m.

Before joining the Civil Defense Administration, Cocke served nine years with the Army Transportation Corps.

508th Sadly Ends Aggressor Training

BY LT. J. R. MAILLER

For the past year and a half, students in the Army's toughest training, the Ranger Course at The Infantry School, have been learning their lessons the hard way against the Army's toughest aggressors—airborne troopers of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Ending 18 months as aggressor "villain," the Red Devils, playing the offensive and defensive roles, have matched brawn and brains against Ranger trainees, emphasizing the realism of combat training.

Small-unit maneuvers in the mountain training phase at North Georgia and the amphibious and jungle warfare training in Florida find the platoon-size aggressor team matching the huff, puff and cautious creep tactics of the students. Red Devil platoons have hiked cross-country with full field packs, remained awake day and night on 72-hour patrols, waited in the rain and mud for their prey, employing tactical maneuvers against the enemy.

New Problem Novelty
The novelty of a new problem is the monotony of the same exercise repeated for each new class, but a rotation policy among the troopers has given hundreds the opportunity to profit from the rugged duty, including artillery and engineer recruits of the combat team who get a real snack of infantry training.

As Sfc. Arthur J. Huber, named Fort Benning's honorary enlisted aide to Third Army commander Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, described the aggressor role: "We learned as much as the students by running through their problems and under-

Hollis Turns Salute Gun 'Swabbie'

The Navy may think it has all the "swabbies." But it doesn't by a long shot. In fact, we have one at Fort Benning and he's Pvt. Ronald L. Hollis, Headquarters Company, First Special Troops Battalion, Special Troops Command. He has the job of firing and maintaining the two salute guns that stand in front of the Infantry School building.

Twice a day, at reveille and retreat, one of the two 75-mm field pieces is fired as a salute to the flag and twice a day, seven days a week, Hollis takes charge of the cleaning.

Hollis isn't sure, but he believes that he swabs as much cannon here in a month as the crew of one of the Army's new atomic artillery pieces. However, he says, he isn't going to hold his breath until the day when the Army starts using those atomic cannons-for salute guns.

New American .30 Cal. Bullet Adopted by NATO Armies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new American T-65 .30 cal. cartridge has been accepted by five of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations as standard ammunition.

The decision was reached by Belgium, Canada, France, the United Kingdom and the U. S. after extensive tests. These tests showed conclusively that there was no significant difference in the performance of the T-65 and other cartridges.

Because the adoption of the T-65 would cause only Britain and Canada to retol, while the acceptance of the others would cause all five to retol, it was decided to pick the American cartridge.

NATO has approved the recommendation that this new ammunition be adopted as standard for NATO use. The production of lightweight automatic rifles for troop trials to use the new ammunition will commence in the near future.

Pay Raises Given 22 in 773rd Tank

Company A of the 773rd Tank Battalion, CTC, has reported the promotions of one officer and 21 enlisted men.

Promoted to corporal were John L. Huff, Clyde B. Smith, Cecil D. Westerfield, Jr., Wates Kelly, Johnnie B. Hawkins, L. C. Alexander, Howard Dunbar, and Amos L. Collins.

New Pfc. are Paul S. Fells,

The T-65 is approximately 16 percent lighter and a half-inch shorter than the present U. S. .30 cal. cartridge. It can be used in either the T-44 or the Belgian FN rifles now being tested at Ft. Ben-

78TH ENGR. PROMOTIONS

Three promotions have been announced by the 78th Engineer Battalion, Combat Training Command. Lawrence E. Carter of Hq. and Svc. Company has been raised to sergeant first class. Two men from Company A have been boosted to the rank of private first class. They are Asa L. Hancock and Nathaniel Clark.

Important features of the T-65 cartridge are its non-corrosive primer, non-erosive powder, better wounding power and streamlined design. It will be manufactured in five types: armor-piercing combat, tracer combat, grenade-launching combat, ball training and tracer training. The main reason for the cut in cartridge length is its new powder propellant, "Western Ball." The propellant is more compact and reduces the "air gap" compared with the old cartridge. There also will be a reduction in the size of ammo boxes and an increase in available bulk shipping space of at least 15 percent.

A new lightweight machinegun has been developed which will use the T-65 cartridge. However, complete details of the weapon have not been disclosed. Particulars of the new cartridge are: name, T-65; caliber, .30; length, 2.78 inches; bullet weight, 140-150 grains; muzzle velocity, 2,800 foot seconds; muzzle energy, 2,450 foot pounds.

Clowning House of David Meets ISD Sunday at 8

One of the outstanding attractions in the world of basketball will be on hand Sunday night when the touring House of David cagers take the court against the ISD Profs. Tipoff is at 8 p.m. in Briant Wells Field House.

An admission charge will be made of 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

The fabulous bewhiskered Davids really need no introduction here, as they have made annual appearances for the past several seasons. Their yearly tours cover the United States, Canada and Mexico, and encompass over 200 games per season. Since 1941, the House of David team has played 2279 games, winning 2158.

A fun-loving Davids are known all over the world as hardwood magicians who adroitly combine comedy, class and clowning. They have a reputation for keeping the fans in an uproar with buffoonery and a swift line of chatter which is blended in with some amazing court wizardry. The score isn't the thing when the Davids perform but they seldom lose. In their appearance here last year, the bearded boys tripped 50th ARCT, 50-40.

Clown Prince
Heading the hirsute hoopers again this year is little Bobby Roth, a star with Michigan University and a professional for years with Detroit. Bobby is billed as the Clown Prince of the Davids, but also a top-notch forward when he wants to be.

Able Co. Wins ISD Tourney

The Infantry School Detachment basketball tournament came to a close recently with cagers from Co. A winning the title after an upset battle. The boys' Able Company dropped an early meeting with Co. F which forced them into the losers bracket of the double elimination setup.

Co. A won out in the losers' division, and met unbeaten Co. G in the semifinal game. G Company could have wrapped up the championship then and there, but Able carved out a 49-43 victory in an overtime period.

In the championship game, Co. B broke to an early lead and was ahead at halftime 20-15. Able Company closed the gap late in the third period, and went ahead to stay at the beginning of the final stanza. The final score was 42-35.

Lawson AFB and the 508th Airborne, a pair of high-scoring, fast-breaking quintets, got into the 1954 Post Basketball League off to a roaring start by marking up impressive wins in the first night's action. The Flyers from Lawson pulled away from CTC's Commanders in the first game, while 508th ran roughshod over Provisional Medics in the nightcap, 40-31.

Doubleheaders will be played Monday through Friday night during the season with all games scheduled for Briant Wells Field House. The first game will get under way at 7 p.m., and the second will start 15 minutes after conclusion of the first.

Lawson AFB trotted out a well-polished, smoothly functioning attack which they combined with superior height to beat Coach Andy Myers' CTC squad a decisive 42-21.

The Flyers, with several games under their belts already, simply had too much scoring ability for the Commanders, though it was a tight game for three quarters.

Guard Joe Testa of CTC had the honor of sinking the first basket of the season when he bucketted a two-hand set shot from 20 feet out in the first 10 seconds of play. This set the tempo for CTC, and they promptly went on a scoring rampage that lasted most of the first quarter.

Hitting on practically everything they threw toward the backboard, the Commanders jumped to a 10-4 lead. As Lawson's offense failed to jell readily, Testa, Dick Isenhart and Bill Thompson led the way for CTC.

Trailing by three baskets, Luther Fraley unlimbered his accurate right hand and pulled Lawson into a 12-12 tie with four minutes left in the period. The score then seasawed back and forth until CTC elected to shift into a zone defense. This maneuver was well received by the Flyers, who threw their fast break into overdrive and drew away to a 24-17 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Lawson's Earnest Thompson, a smooth pivot man, was controlling both the offensive and defensive backboards for the Flyers as CTC's lack of height began to tell. The (Please See CAGE, Page 14)

Final notes on football—the rosy glow which recently illuminated our northern skies was neither Yuletide cheer nor aurora borealis. It came from the red faces of sports-writers in the town of Cleveland, Ohio, home of the professional football Browns.

For the fourth straight year the Browns made a shambles of the National Football League's Eastern division. They rode roughshod over nine opponents in sweeping to the championship game. Cleveland writers were lyrical in their praise of the Browns, their coach—Bull Brown—and especially their quarterback, Otto Graham.

Cleveland's opponent in the title game was the defending league champion, Detroit. The Lions' path to the playoff had been anything but easy. They were beaten twice in early season meetings with Los Angeles. Their winning margin was usually less than a touchdown which frequently came by way of a desperate, last-minute surge. The Lions, decreed most experts, didn't figure against the mighty Browns.

Oddly enough, Cleveland was the team Detroit beat for the championship last year. The score was a rather convincing 17-7. "Fluke" sniffed the Clevelanders, "caught us by surprise."

On Dec. 27, before a packed stadium and a nationwide television audience, the Lions put on another garrison finish to win the world's championship again, 17-16. Cleveland's loss in itself was enough to turn the scribes' features a bright crimson, and of course it's easy to second-guess them. We can't resist a brief post mortem, though, on this one.

To begin with, a defenseless group of newspaper readers were buried all season long under a veritable mountain of copy which informed each and all that the very best of the game was being played.

Lions Roar—Walker, Coach Parker, Layne, Doran

T-formation quarterback who ever lived was named Otto Graham. "Automatic Otto," they raved, "the Peerless Leader." Heaven help any who quirked a questioning eyebrow, for Graham was declared omnipotent.

The Brown defense got its share of kudos too. "Best in the league," was the general verdict. "Detroit'll never go against it!" The Lions were dismissed as "lucky," and their quarterback, Bobby Layne, was classified as "not in Graham's class."

So what happened? The second time Automatic Otto handled the ball against Detroit he obligingly fumbled it away on his own 13-yard line to set up the Lons's first score, which they gratefully accepted. The very best, T-formation quarterback who ever lived further distinguished himself by completing exactly two passes during the whole afternoon. The Lions themselves equalled this by also capturing two of the Automatic One's aerial shots, though his press clippings announced that such things just didn't happen.

With Omnipotent Otto unable to add much to the Brown attack, fullback Chick Jagade and kicker par excellence Lou Groza took over to account for 16 points between them. Groza's third field goal of the day put Cleveland ahead 16-10 with time running out in the last period.

When Detroit got the ball again they were on their own 20-yard line, six points behind, and forced to race the scoreboard clock. Calmly ignoring the stifling pressure, quarterback Layne started throwing. He completed five in a row, and the best defense in the league found itself moving rapidly in reverse as blond Bobby methodically shot it to pieces. His final effort was a 35-yard flatter to Jim Doran which was worth six points and $2,424.10 to each Lion.

Even after Detroit's Blue Chip Boy, Doak Walker, (Please See SPOTLIGHT, Page 14).

HAZEL WALKER'S 1954 ARKANSAS TRAVELERS

Hoop Queens Here Jan. 29

Meeting and defeating the best men's basketball teams under men's rules has long been the specialty of Hazel Walker's famous Arkansas Travelers—barntorming girls' team which will appear here on Sunday, Jan. 29, against the OC Regiment Generals.

Hazel herself sets the pattern for her team. Often called "Miss Basketball," she was selected on the Women's All-American team 11 times, a record that has never been topped. During her 14 years in amateur cage circles, Hazlet played on five National Championship teams and three runnerup outfits. She won the National Free Throw title six times, and twice took international honors. Her record of 49 out of 50 from the charity line in the National Tournament has never been equaled.

Comprising the Travelers' squad are seven lasses whose ability and finesse in the demanding game of basketball is a constant source of amazement to all. They are the foremost feminine performers of the day, and play on a team that has been acclaimed among the best in the land.

Top Star
The seven girls hail from four states: Arkansas, New York, West

Virginia, and Mississippi. One of the top stars is Frances "Goose" Garrouite of Van Buren, Ark., which is also the home of wack-cracking Bob Burns of bazooka fame. The Goosie stands 5-11 and weighs in at 165 pounds. Because of her stocky build she plays a highly aggressive brand of ball. She was named All-American for three years, and after joining the professional cage ranks was voted the top figure in women's professional sports for the consecutive seasons. A fine pivot player from either side, she also shines on long set shots from mid-court territory.

Another top-billed performer is Ethel Lanoue, 5-8 speedster from Brooklyn, N. Y. Ethel's specialty is ball-handling trickery which she combines with an accurate shooting eye to count plenty of points. For several years she traveled with touring men's teams as a featured player, and last year was chosen as "Personality Girl" of the Walker team.

The "Arkansas Peach" is the name tagged on a bundle of dynamite from Nashville, Ark. Jo Byers, a doll who stands 5-8, Jo is playing her second season of pro ball. One of the "Travelers' best playmakers, she also has a good eye for the basket, and (Please See HOOP, Page 14)

1954 Little League Plans To Be Discussed at Meeting

The boys will have their "try-outs" early in March. Newly elected managers will have an opportunity to contact last year's "hold-overs" before try outs start and will therefore have a fairly good idea of what type of talent they will need to round out squads.

The Doughty Little League consists of four regular teams as a driver to lead the program for these regular teams will be formed and managers, coaches, scorekeepers will be needed to take over this "satisfying recreational activity. Over 180 boys were active in this league last year.

Birth certificates must be presented to the Farm teams before the boys are eligible. This is a reminder to parents that may have to send for this means of identification.

The territory covered by the Little League includes all areas on the Fort Benning side of Victory Drive all the post proper, and the trailer camp in Harmony Church.

Wildlife Group To Hear Talk

The Ft. Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association has scheduled a conference of special interest to sportsmen for the regular business meeting to be held Jan. 18 at the Polo Hunt Club.

The eight to twelve year olds are not invited to Monday's meeting, which is for the organization of the league.

ENGINEER SECTION SAWS, GRADES, SEASONS GEORGIA PINE Three And One-Half Million Board Feet At Lumber Yard

Post Woods Kept Free of Fire

Fort Benning foresters who supervise timber harvesting and guard against forest fires agree that taking care of the post's 182,000 acres of Georgia pine is not an easy job. The 10 civilians who compose the Forestry Branch of the Engineer Section spend most of their time fighting fires, plugging fire breaks, and burning forest litter.

But their work has paid valuable dividends. Since organization of the Forestry Branch in February, 1951, fire losses have been reduced 75 per cent, according to Forester Norman F. Forre of Columbus.

To help the experts locate fires, two 100-foot steel towers and two 60-foot wooden towers have been erected.

Most fires on the post are caused by flares, artillery shells and tracer ammunition used in Infantry School problems. Of 149 forest fires last year, 98 occurred in impact areas.

Reserve fire troops are called upon when fires get out of hand. The post is divided into three areas to which troops of the Combat Training Command, Special Troops Command and 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team are assigned.

The foresters also give part of the credit for a reduction in fire losses to members of the post's Fish and Game Maintenance Association who help locate and often fight fires.

A new radio net, scheduled to go into operation this month is expected to lend vital assistance to the forestry men. The net will include transmitters in both steel towers, two-way radios in all vehicles and walkie-talkie radios for use in the field.

One of the primary responsibilities of the Forestry Branch is supervising the yearly harvest of 10 million board feet of timber.

On contracts let once a year, the timber is logged, sawed into lumber, seasoned, planed and shipped for government use.

Forestry experts survey the wooded areas at Fort Benning to estimate the volume of timber that can be cut before it is declared available. These selected areas are marked and contracts let by the Savannah District Engineers.

Benning forests are operating on an improvement cutting program. Overmature and poorly formed trees are removed and crowded stands thinned, leaving the forest in better growing condition.

Some timber is sold to civilian concerns. Approximately 6,000 cords of pulp wood (logs from six to 10 inches) are sold each year.

After a destructive tornado last April which made the forest look like a "strike" at a bowling alley, two and one half million feet of timber were salvaged for government use.

Scholarships Offered Girls

The Fort Benning chapter of the Army Daughters has established a $400 scholarship for girls in the Benning area who meet the requirements of the chapter's scholarship committee, it was announced this week.

To be eligible for consideration a girl must be a senior in high school. Her father must be a Regular Army officer or enlisted man on duty or retired, or he must be a member of the Reserve or National Guard on active duty or who died while on active duty.

Applicants also must satisfy the requirements of the Army Daughter's Scholarship Committee. These requirements include scholastic ability, civic and extra-curricular representation and character.

Only one girl will be selected for the 1954-55 school year, a spokesman said, but an alternate will be appointed so that if the winner is unable to attend college another girl will get the chance.

Applications for the annual scholarship, to be known as the Daughters of the U.S. Army Scholarship, will be sent out only upon written request. Interested persons are asked to mail a card or letter to the scholarships committee, Daughters of the U.S. Army, P. O. Box 1671, Fort Benning.

Further information may be had from Mrs. H. P. Ball, Col. 7-5751 or Mrs. D. Freed, Col. 7-5750.

Casting Completed By Little Theater

The Fort Benning Little Theater has completed casting for their next production, "The Gramercy Ghost," scheduled for March 18-19. Mrs. Shirley Roper will direct the comedy.

Army Cuts Tours For Non-Regular Lieuts., Captains

WASHINGTON (AP)—Non-regular lieutenants and captains serving first tours of commission- ed service will be released as much as three months before completion of 24 months service in the Army. The new program will be effective Feb. 1 and will continue for the next several months. The action will contribute to the attainment of the Army's projected end-strength of 1,423,000 by June 30, 1954.

Officers serving their first 24 month tours which would normally expire between Feb. 1-Aug. 31 are affected by this policy. Most are graduates of ROTC. The normal 24-month tour of active duty will be required of officers due for release after Aug. 31.

As far as possible, those who complete 21 months active service by Feb. 1 will be released in February. Others will be separated between Feb. 1-June 1 as they complete the required 21 months. This temporary curtailment of tours will not affect officers in the Army Medical Service, Chaplain Corps or WAC.

Nathaniel — a ghost. Pvt. Edward P. McCracken will be seen as the ghost, a young Revolutionary soldier who cannot get into heaven because he failed to deliver an urgent message to George Washington. Maj. Curtis Alloway is cast as Nancy's fiancé and Frederick Sanda as a reporter trying to win Nancy.

Also in the cast are Mrs. Shirley Cohen, Mrs. John W. Britten, Pvt. Edward L. Wolaniuk, Lt. Paul A. Force, Lt. Thomas J. Hunter, Mrs. Glennie Logan, and Mrs. Barbara Mills.

Mrs. Roper, as director, brings with her valuable experience in amateur theatricals. She majored in dramatics at Texas State College for Women from 1937 to 1941 where she appeared in "Our Town" and "Stage Door" and was a member of the Texas State College Verse Speaking Choir which toured Texas. She will be remembered for her performance as Margaret in the Little Theater's last production, "The Philadelphia Story."

"The Gramercy Ghost" was presented at the Morocco Theatre in New York in 1931 with Sarah Churchill, daughter of Britain's prime minister, in the role of Nancy. The play is a rollicking farce and promises many hilarious moments for the theatre-goer.

Five Paintings Unveiled By Paratrooper Artist

Five oil paintings by a Fort Benning paratrooper were unveiled last Friday by Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, at a dedication ceremony in the Airborne Department's jump Committee stand-by room.

On hand for the dedication were Sgt. Leith W. Wetzel, the artist who painted the pictures, and M-Sgt. William N. King, a member of the original Test Platoon organized at Fort Benning in June, 1940, to pioneer airborne development in this country.

Also present were Infantry School officials and the cadre of the various committees of the Airborne Department.

The paintings, in pastel shades which capture the spirit of the airborne infantryman, show paratroopers making their pre-jump inspection in the plane, standing at the aircraft door to jump, checking their body position, service she taught in schools in speering the canopy as the float down, and preparing to land.

Sgt. Wetzel has been painting since he was four. He attended Western Reserve College in Cleveland, Ohio, where he majored in fine arts, finished lettering, and painting.

The young artist entered the service in January 1951 and was assigned to the Airborne Department in March 1953.

MEDAL OF HONOR

An infantryman feels the urge to "let down" after a successful battle. But he can't. Some of the most important moments of his life are lived in the moments immediately following the taking of the enemy counter-attack. When the medal die in before the enemy counter-attack. The man with the machine-gun is very brave.

On Oct. 15, 1952, Co. 31st Inf. Regt., Seventh Div., captured an enemy position near Kumhwa, Korea. The men of Easy Company began to construct hasty fortifications in preparation for the counter-attack they knew was coming. Pfc. Ralph E. Pomeroy set up his machine-gun. He carefully checked his field of fire and his field of fire. He noticed to his left a ravine that might give the enemy cover. It led directly to his position. He dug in. Chinese mortar shells began exploding around him. Pomeroy kept a sharp eye on the ravine. He saw something move, aimed his weapon, and started firing. Pomeroy was pouring a withering stream of fire down the ravine, crippling the enemy attack. Pomeroy stayed at his gun until he was blasted away by a mortar round. The gun mount was smashed. Pomeroy wrenched the weapon from the broken tripod. It was heavy and hot as fire. Supporting it with his throbbing forearm he moved grimly forward halting away at the advancing enemy. Pomeroy was wounded again, but he kept going. The nearest Chinese was only 10 feet away now. Pomeroy's ammunition gave out. In desperation he started clubbing with the machine-gun. Pomeroy slugged it out with the enemy hand-to-hand, until he was blasted to the ground—mortally wounded. The award of the Medal of Honor was made posthumously. Pfc. Pomeroy's father traveled from Quinwood, W. Va., to the White House to receive the medal from the President. He listened proudly but sadly as the citation was read telling how his son's "supreme sacrifice enabled the platoon to contain the attack."

Chaplain's Corner Don't Ask for Security—Earn, Merit It

No Need to Think: 'Is There a Pension Plan for Me?'

By CHAPLAIN (COL.) LEXINGTON SHEPHERD

Recently a young college graduate was interviewed by J. C. Penny, founder of the chain stores which bear his name. This young man was looking for a job. The very first question he asked Mr. Penny was: "Does the J. C. Penny Co. have a pension program?" He had not worked the first day but was already planning to retire.

Mr. Penny began his business career as a lad, earning only a few dollars a month. He was a hard working, thrifty man who built up a chain of stores which he personally owned. He is an outstanding Christian layman and philanthropist. Near Green Cove Springs, Fla., he built a model village for retired ministers and missionaries and endowed it with a large trust fund.

During the depression he lost a personal fortune of about $40 million. As a result he incorporated else or some well established company and be satisfied with a weekly check. It was a pioneer spirit that carved a path out of the American wilderness, that built railroads west, that built the famous family fortunes of the last century.

Yet today there are more and better opportunities for the young pioneering spirit than at any time in our history. The American frontiers of art, business, industry, and science have barely been scratched. Just recall the progress of the past 25 years. Forward-looking scientists and engineers believe that the next few decades will bring more progress to pass than the last 200 years.

Do you want security? Don't ask for security—earn it, merit it. Just make an investment with your life and the best that you can be, in a brighter, finer and greater America. If you will do that you will not need to ask: "Is there a pension plan for me?"

The Latest AFPS Report From Washington

The Defense Department discloses that after Jan. 22, the Army will have three courses open to it concerning the 22 bally POWs who have renounced the U.S. in favor of communism. Until Jan. 22, the POWs may still apply for repatriation even though explanation sessions have ended. The three courses are: they can be carried on Army rolls as an "open service record," as at present; they can build up a chain of stores which he personally owned. He is an outstanding Christian layman and philanthropist. Near Green Cove Springs, Fla., he built a model village for retired ministers and missionaries and endowed it with a large trust fund.

The Jewish faith is represented by "Hallel" and "Kol Nidrei" and the whole song is sung in the original Hebrew and Yiddish. Musical backing is supplied by Mitchell Ayres and the orchestra and chorus.

This coded radio message crackling over the South Pacific during the early days of WWII when the U. S. submarine Sturgeon made her first kill has become a legend of the U. S. Navy. Fighting 'Backward' Shunned But Explained in Quarterly

Although no soldier relishes the idea, there are times in any conflict when it is necessary to "fight backward" to delay an enemy's advance.

The problems and principles that should be followed in executing one type of delaying action are discussed in an article by Capt. Richard E. Cross of Columbus in the January issue of The Infantry School Quarterly.

Capt. Cross uses a hypothetical case in defense of Western Europe to outline the use of long range fires, mobility, depth, and other principles of retrograde action.

An article on the latest proposed methods of night firing is another appearing in the January issue.

Flyers, Imps, STC Top Cagers; Swyers Takes Scoring Lead

Lawson AFB, 508th Airborne and Special Troops basketball teams jumped into a three-way tie for first place in the 1954 post basketball league by chalking up perfect slates of two wins and no losses apiece during the week's play.

George (Stretch) Swyers, a familiar figure to TIC cage fans, took up just about where he left off last year in the scoring column by netting 64 points in two games to lead the pack. Swyers counted 20 and 34 points in his two appearances, but single game honors went to Ace Barthel of the Second SR Rockets who poured 35 points through the hoop against CTC in his only game so far.

Tuesday Night

A highly-touted 30th Infantry Regiment team swung into action against ISD in Tuesday's opening game, and Coach John Vines' boys turned in an impressive 78-42 effort to win going away. Frank Glenn sank 19 points from his center position to lead the scoring, with guard Jock Sutherland contributing 11. Bob Gilbert paced ISD with 13 points.

In the second clash, clutch playing Gil Shor, former Lafayette guard, led his Special Troops past a covering team from OC Regiment by a 59-56 count. Shor tallied 19 points, mostly on long, two-handed set shots from beyond the free throw circle. J. P. Donohue bucketed 15 points for the Generals, whose cold streak in the second frame cost them the game.

Wednesday Night

The first "crucial" game of the season waited no longer than the third night of action to match 30th Infantry and 508th Airborne which the Devils took, 66-61. Both teams

The score, however, played second fiddle to Roth's clowning. In ways best known to himself he managed to strike up a friendship with a young lady from the audience who turned out to Govert's wife. He worked in baseball and football stunts during intermission, and obligingly offered to start the game all over for the benefit of a couple who arrived a few minutes late. Roth complained at length when ISD's speedy Ivan Slavich whipped a behind-the-back pass to a teammate, protesting that "that's our play and he mustn't use it!" He teared up on the official scorer's table to make sure he got credit for a fourth quarter basket, and managed to console a wailing infant during a timeout.

For ISD, who played well against the talented Davids, Govert and Slavich were outstanding along with forward Bob Gilbert. For the House, Roth took care of the clowning while the others played straight basketball.

Next featured attraction at Briant Wells will be the Arkansas Travelers, outstanding girls' team who are scheduled to meet the OC Generals on Jan. 24.

In a preliminary game, Red West Service Station of Columbus outscored the Ft. Benning Wac Detachment 45-21. Forward Doris Hasty tallied 23 for West, and Hilda Copeland dropped in the remaining 17. The Wac scoring was had easy romps in their first start, but Wednesday's meeting of the two was a tremendous struggle from the midway point that eventually proved the difference.

After trailing for the first quarter, the Red Devils scored 22 points in the second period to tie for the 30th. In the most hotly contested game of the young season, George Swyers gave the scoreboard another workout with his 34-point total, but the astounding long range accuracy of Lawson more than matched the Blackshirts.

Luther Fralphy, who is as deadly from 20 feet out as most players are on a layup, dumped in 23 markers for the Flyers, but he had plenty of help with Ray Steiner's 22 and Pete Still's 11. The last Blackshirt hope flickered out with 2:40 remaining when Swyers was banished following a charge which involved Steiner, Lou Stein and most of both squads.

In Friday's opener, Second SR's Ace Barthel posted a similar game scoring high of 35 points to spark the Rockets past a determined CTC squad, 77-75. The closing minutes revolved into a personal duel between Barthel and CTC's Rich Izenhart, who rang up 29 for CTC with 19 of them in the final stanza.

Monday Night

Accuracy from the free throw line in the final minutes brought the OC Generals a 76-74 squeaker over CTC's "snake-bit" Commanders, who have dropped their last two starts by a total of four points. Francis Barker sank five free throws in the final two minutes to give the Generals their winning margin.

In the first tilt, the PMG Medics sprang a mild surprise by upsetting ISD with a convincing 49-36 count. After a listless first quarter, the Medics came to life and scored almost as many points in the final stanza as they did during the first three. ISD could never get their attack to functioning properly. Dave Ellison headed PMG scorers with 20 points.

once more, but Glenn's loss via the personal foul route in the closing minutes was a crippling blow.

In Wednesday's game, George Swyers and John Economou led their First SR Blackshirts over Second SR, 65-52. Swyers, ISD's most valuable player, turned in a fine floor game and chipped in with an even 30 points. Joe Fortunato, switching from gridiron to court, couldn't hit the floor with a sweat shirt for three periods, then suddenly found the range for 14 fourth quarter points to top all Rocket scorers.

Thursday Night

First game saw the PMG Medics spring to an early lead, then will under the pinpoint barrage launched by CTC's Gil Shor. The latter stages to lose, 53-52. Shor's calibrated shooting eye was worth 21 points to CTC, with 11 of them coming in the fourth quarter. Joe Richardson's right handed hook shots accounted for 17 of PMG's total points.

ISD and the OC Regiment, both improved over their first outings, tangled in the second game with the Generals taking a 70-64 decision from the Fred H. Barker who wheeled under the backboard to notch 20 points for the OCs and J. W. Nibert looped in 18 for good measure. Little Ivan Slavich scored in and out of the General defense to count 19 points for ISD, whose height shortage was disabling against the tall Generals.

Friday Night

The monthly coordinated Lawson Flyers returned to the post a 76-75 win over First SR in the most hotly contested game of the young season. George Swyers gave the scoreboard another workout with his 34-point total, but the astounding long range accuracy of Lawson more than matched the Blackshirts.

Luther Fralphy, who is as deadly from 20 feet out as most players are on a layup, dumped in 23 markers for the Flyers, but he had plenty of help with Ray Steiner's 22 and Pete Still's 11. The last Blackshirt hope flickered out with 2:40 remaining when Swyers was banished following a charge which involved Steiner, Lou Stein and most of both squads.

In Friday's opener, Second SR's Ace Barthel posted a similar game scoring high of 35 points to spark the Rockets past a determined CTC squad, 77-75. The closing minutes revolved into a personal duel between Barthel and CTC's Rich Izenhart, who rang up 29 for CTC with 19 of them in the final stanza.

Monday Night

Accuracy from the free throw line in the final minutes brought the OC Generals a 76-74 squeaker over CTC's "snake-bit" Commanders, who have dropped their last two starts by a total of four points. Francis Barker sank five free throws in the final two minutes to give the Generals their winning margin.

In the first tilt, the PMG Medics sprang a mild surprise by upsetting ISD with a convincing 49-36 count. After a listless first quarter, the Medics came to life and scored almost as many points in the final stanza as they did during the first three. ISD could never get their attack to functioning properly. Dave Ellison headed PMG scorers with 20 points.

led by Marguerite Grascie, a hustling forward who counted 10 points.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

With the post basketball picture beginning to settle into focus, it's time once more to crawl out on the well-worn limb and make a stab at foreseeing who will be crowned as champion come next March. Every effort was made to contact that peerless prophet Iken the Peen for a prediction, but we were informed that the Peen had changed his name and was now in the weatherman business. Less "pressure" maybe?

With Iken unavailable we used an empty fruit jar for a crystal ball and got the following prophesy:

1. Lawson AFB.
2. 508th Airborne.
3. 30th Infantry.
4. First Student Regiment.
5. OC Regiment.
6. Special Troops Command.
7. Lawson AFB.
8. Second Student Regiment.
9. ISD.
10. PMG.

In defense of our makeshift crystal ball, the choice of Lawson over 508th was made on the basis of superior speed and shooting. 508th has better rebounding and uses more playmaking, but the Airmen have a whole fistful of long set shot artists who are amazingly accurate. More often than not, there is no chance for a rebound.

508th's scoring, on the other hand, is done for the main part by their post men, Larry Ivan and John Dull. These two are plenty of points for the Devils, and could be enough to keep pace with the high-scoring Flyboys. The 508th defense appears to be superior to Lawson's, but then again, Lawson doesn't concentrate much on defense, preferring to outscore the opposition.

Barring a not-unlikely upset, somewhere, the meetings between these two could decide the champion. First game is Jan. 20, second on Feb. 25.

At present, John Vines' 30th Infantry team is the equal of any on post in spite of last week's loss to 508th. If their present lineup remained intact throughout the season the 30th boys would be right in the middle of the scramble, but they are due to lose "Jock" Sutherland, their quarter-back and shot artist, before the halfway mark. Center Fran Glenn is all anyone could ask for, but men of Sutherland's cut are not easily replaced.

It's much the same story with the First Student Regiment. The Blackshirts as they stand right now are capable of downing anybody, but their superb George Swyers is due for discharge in early February. Not only will Swyers' 30 point average be missed, but the loss of his rebounding, play making and general all-around game will leave a big hole to fill. The big fellow wasn't last year's MVP for nothing.

In choosing the OC Regiment to finish fifth, we are counting on continued improvement in the Generals' performance. At present the OCs are not the fifth best bunch on post, but they can be come the Ides of March. The Generals are the tallest team in the league and boast a double-barreled scoring punch in Nibert and Barker. Addition of Ken Kenley will lend a long range threat.

Hitting the high spots on the rest, STC's Gil Shor can hit with the best of 'em but needs the help; Second Student Regiment's lack of practice time will hurt; the ISD Frogs are too short; CTC's Dick Izenhart can't do it all, and PMG doesn't have the hoses to figure, in spite of Dave Ellison.

Wonder if Lawson AFB's Ray Steiner is any relation to that fine old character actor from Notre Dame, Frank Varrichione? Just as Varrichione's dramatic talents saved the Irish from football defeat last fall, Steiner's emoting had plenty to do with preserving Lawson's recent win over First SR.

Here was the situation: The Airmen held a two-point lead over the Blackshirts with time running out. Following a bucket by George Swyers—his 34th point of the evening—Steiner brought the ball up court for Lawson. Swyers moved to defend, and as the two brushed together lightly, Steiner staggered back, reeling and off balance but oddly maintaining perfect control over the bouncing ball while showing effects of having received a tremendous jolt.

The officials' whistles remained silent, so Steiner continued on across the 10-second line. Swyers, desperate for possession, made a lunge for the ball as did Lou Stein. Clearly, it was an impending progress foul! but when Steiner fell writhing and grimacing to the floor, the official moved to eject Swyers from the game for "unsportsmanlike conduct." With a remarkable display of recuperative power, Steiner cashed in his two free throws for a lead that the Blackshirts couldn't close—minus the service of the league's top scoring threat and most valuable player. When are those Academy Awards presented?

First 1954 Fights Tonight in BWFH

Post amateur boxers, rested and boxing board have thrown things into a grand snarl. Under the new totals, 508th ARCT is still leading with 17 points, but Brigade, CTC and STC are now in a three-way standoff for second place, with each owning 13 points.

With this in mind, coaches are shooting the works this week in an effort to pull away from the rest of the pack, and the end result was one of the best programs so far this year.

Ed Crook, All-Post football half-back, star basketball guard and what have you will reveal another facet to his sports character when he faces on the gloves with Normal Salvato, well-regarded 508th light-middleweight. Crook, it seems has somewhere found time to enter the ring 21 times and leave it triumphantly 19 of them. Among his ring laurels is a Third Army runnerup trophy.

Charley Bryant, Special Troops unorthodox but effective middleweight, is matched against hard-punching Victor Simon of 508th in a Class III get-together. Simon took a decision from Bryant earlier in the season, but Charley has won his last four bouts in a row and will be gunning for revenge.

Church vs. Miller. CTC's Melvin Church, who is fast with the light-welterweight ranks, will takedown William Miller of 508th. Church's last start found him disposing of Brigade's Max Sanders by the knockout route, while Miller's last was a decision over Denny Dockery, also of Brigade.

Emilio Montecilio, a guerrilla fighter in the Philippines during World War II, will make his first appearance in the Briant Wells ring when he tests STC's Dave Middel. Middel has been improving rapidly and was impressive against Sam Best of CTC in his last outing though he lost the decision. Middel and Montecilio are bantamweights.

Recent addition to Coach Frank Soring's boxers, will make his big debut against Donald Sullivan of Brigade in a Class IV heavyweight match.

Rounding out the festivities are scheduled battles between Pete Stalker and Sam Brown, William Henry and William Ray, Harry Stonner and Naymon Taylor and David Steward and Cordell Formos.

MURAL CHAMPS . . . The Third Army Food Service School basketball team recently won the Special Troops Command intramural playoffs after tussling third in regular season play. Kneeling, left to right, Chapman, Morris, Shurte, Guiley, Center, Coach George Mailleux. Standing Palumbo, McKay, Winkler, Cyplik, Hoyt.

508TH SPURT . . . Red Devil's Thweat takes a spill in the final quarter of the 508th Second SR Game Tuesday night, but Dull scoops up the ball and races toward the basket while two SR cagers give chase. The Red Devils last quarter surge won 53-47 to keep their record unblemished. However STC wasn't so fortunate, as George Swyers, playing his last game, sank 38 points to lead the First SR to a 61-60 victory over the previously undefeated STC.

The Ring Magazine has named Carl "Bobo" Olson, world middleweight champion, as the "fighter of the year" for 1953. The Hawaiian-born pugilist engaged in four bouts last year and won all of them easily. On Oct. 21 he defeated England's Randy Turpin in a 15-rounder in New York for the world middleweight throne, which had been vacated by Sugar Ray Robinson.

Women Keglers To Enter League

The post Ladies' Bowling League for officers' wives is in the process of organizing, but is currently hampered by a shortage of bowlers.

Tumbling Ace In First SR

Among the many and varied athletes on post is one of the best tumblers in the nation, George A. Haas of 24th Co. First Student Regiment, who hails from Mobile, Ala. All through his school career he was active in this sport. While at the U. S. Military Academy he won several tournaments and in 1951, while captain of the team, he went to the National Tournament at Denver, Colo., where he walked away with the honor of being the national runner-up. Even though he is making a career of the Army, he still works out quite a bit.

Haas is also a fine rifle shot, while in school he did quite a bit of shooting. In 1950 at Marine Institute he won the Heister Trophy for small-bore competition in the Third Army Area.

Having already finished the Airborne and basic officers courses, he is taking the rifle marksmanship course and hopes in the very near future to take the Ranger course.

Manual Pays Off With $20 Jackpot

You've heard it said, "Read your manuals; it will pay off in combat."

There's not much doubt about that. For here is a case where it paid off in school.

Second Lt. Kennedy Gates, a student in Eighth Company, First Student Regiment, was sitting next to him saw him thumbing through one of his manuals during a lag in class and saw a $20 bill neatly tucked away in the book. A man sitting next to him saw him pull it out. The news spread quickly around the class and everyone started looking through their books. But, alas, no one else was as lucky.

32-Year Vet. Musician Named Special Troops Band Leader

Chief Warrant Officer Ben McKenney of Silver Springs, Md., an Army musician for 32 years, has been appointed leader of the Special Troops Band.

McKenney, a master of brass instruments, began his military career by enlisting in the Army in 1921 and attending the nine-month course at the Army Music School, Washington, D. C.

He came to Fort Benning following completion of his training as a bandman with the 24th Infantry and remained on the post until 1939.

Post Depicted In New Booklet

A 32-page booklet containing 60 pictures taken at Fort Benning has been released for national distribution by the Department of Army. The pictures were taken last summer by a photo team from the Army's Recruiting Publicity Bureau.

Titled "A Guide to the Organization and Operation of a Modern Army Infantry Division," the pamphlet explains the role of the foot soldier in the defense of the nation and outlines the organization of an infantry division. The pictures illustrate the combat elements, service units, and the technical problems of the infantry division, and the pamphlet is scheduled for distribution to all Army recruiting agencies in the United States.

Gimlet Army Eyes Survey Proposed New Uniforms

Gray-Green, Pink and Green Outfits Displayed by Models

More than 200 Fort Benning officers and enlisted men got a preview this week of the proposed new Army uniforms and cast ballots for their choice of possible future attire.

NEW UNIFORMS . . . Were modeled here by a team from Fort McPherson, Ga. Shown, left to right, are the proposed pink and green uniform for enlisted men, the officers' grey and green uniform, and enlisted men's grey and green. The "show" was part of the world-wide poll to get the serviceman's unofficial opinion on proposed general-wear Winter uniforms.

Six models from Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., displayed in the Main Theater the proposed grey-green uniform for both officers and enlisted men, the familiar pink and green officers' uniform, also designed for enlisted men, and the present olive drab service uniform, consisting of jacket and matching trousers.

Fort Jax Next

Participating in the survey were officers and men from the major units on the post. The cross-section of personnel included Regular Army and Reserve officers, Regular Army personnel of the first three grades, Reserve enlisted men below the first three grades, and non-Regular enlisted men with one year of service or more.

The delegation modeling the uniforms left Tuesday morning, and headed for Fort Jackson, S. C., and Fort Bragg, N. C. On Jan. 25-26, they will model the uniforms at Georgia Military District headquarters in Atlanta for Army Reserve and National Guardsmen.

All Over World

The survey is a part of the overall opinion poll conducted by the Department of Army at Army installations in the U.S., Europe, and the Far East. When completed, the Army will give a cross-section opinion of officers and enlisted men of the Army, Army Reserve, and the National Guard. Officials present uniform will be made.

Airborne Officers To Visit Tomorrow

Among Army officers who will visit Fort Benning this week are Brig. Gen. D. M. Daniel, assistant commander of the 82nd Airborne Division, and Col. W. A. Dodds, commander of the 504th Airborne Infantry Regiment, both of Fort Bragg, N. C., who will be here tomorrow and Saturday, and Col. F. J. Corbin of the Department of Army, who arrives Saturday.

Gen. Dean Wants Men to Know More About Why They Fight

A stronger indoctrination in American ideology for U. S. soldiers was advocated by Maj. Gen. William F. Dean at Fort Benning last week. Gen. Dean, who came back to this country last October after being held captive by the North Koreans for three years, told officers here that for the past three years, he had a lot of time to think. "I had a North Korean guard 24 hours a day and had an opportunity to observe each of them. These soldiers were full of their ideology. The bulk of the North Korean soldiers believe firmly in their cause," he said.

He told the officers that the Communists even accused Gen. MacArthur of calling South Korea's Syngman Rhee to Japan to start the conflict. "They said their invasion on June 25, 1950, was a counter-attack, and I tried to point out to them the absurdity of such a statement," he said. "I didn't give them any information, but I could have given it."

47th Ordered To Ft. Benning

The 47th Infantry Division will be transferred from Camp Rucker, Ala., to Fort Benning starting early next May, the Department of the Army announced last Thursday. The move, scheduled to begin about May 1, will be completed some time in June. Announcement was made by the Army last year that Camp Rucker would be inactivated by June 30, 1954.

Accident Rates Skid at Benning

The 1953 accident rate at Fort Benning shows a marked reduction over 1952. Post Safety Director Norman Evans has announced. In his annual report Evans revealed that the average percentage in all six categories of accident rates improved eight per cent over 1952 and 39 per cent over the average for 1952 and 1953. Accidental deaths in 1953 numbered 29, two less than in the previous year. The safety director said most of the accident frequency rates are below the Third Army average.

Gen. Maglin Slates MOMW Meet Talk

Maj. Gen. William H. Maglin, the Army's provost marshal general, will address the Columbus-Fort Benning chapter of the Military Order of World Wars next Thursday at the Main Officers' Mess. The meeting is scheduled for 12:15 p.m. at the retired Col. Samuel Smithers of Columbus, commander, announced.

Top School Honors

Two men from the 67th Army Postal Unit, Special Troops Command, finished one-two in their class at the Army Postal School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Cpl. Richard Nowak, took high honors in the class, while his buddy, Cpl. Ernest Sanders, took second place, less than half a point behind Nowak. There were 50 officers and enlisted men in the class.

Gen. Dean Wants Men to Know More About Why They Fight

Presidio in San Francisco, pointed out that all North Koreans, including soldiers, government and civilian officials, and even the women cooks, were required to study two hours a day. "The bulk of the study is of communism in the U.S.S.R.," he said. "Each soldier carried a book entitled 'History of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union.'"

Gen. Dean, new deputy commander of the Sixth Army at the their prisoners, the two-star general said that it is not enough to tell your men to give the enemy only their name, rank, and serial number. "Just a few days after I was captured," he said, "the North Koreans had deciphered my dog tag and my identification card, which I unfortunately had not disposed of, and had called in South Koreans who remembered me as military governor of South Korea."

He advocated that U. S. commanders not only tell those they take into battle what to do but they should also show them the pitfalls of their enemy's strategy. Gen. Dean left the post last Friday after a 3-day visit in the Columbus-Fort Benning Area.

DAYROOM DISCUSSION ... At one of only two dayrooms visited by Third Army Commander Lt. Gen. A. P. Bolling on his inspection trip last week to Fort Benning, the general pauses to talk with Cpl. William R. Costa, T1&E NCO of Company L, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. Company L was selected as best unit of the RCT.

Navy to Submerge A-Sub for 2 Months

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy plans to submerge the world's first atomic-powered submarine Nautilus for periods of two months or more in tests covering underwater speed and pressure problems.

The submarine is scheduled to be launched at Groton, Conn., Jan. 21. The Navy said the Nautilus would be able to stay submerged as long as her crew could hold out.

The Nautilus is reported designed to cruise thousands of miles without refueling and to move faster, dive deeper and operate more silently than any other submarine. She is equipped with special safety features and has great numbers of signal devices for quick notice of any malfunctioning.

Since it usually takes about six months to complete a submarine after the launching, the Nautilus may be ready for operations in July—depending on final checks by the Atomic Energy Commission. After the test program is completed the submarine will be assigned to the U. S. Atlantic Fleet as a regular combat vessel.

OC Gets Nowhere Fast Trying To Go Home for Holidays

The high road and the low road almost led to nowhere. At least, according to 17th OC Company's Candidate John Barnett, they don't lead to his home in Portland, Ore. Barnett's tale of woe began at the start of the Christmas holidays. He drove from Ft. Benning to Dallas, Texas. He tried to get military transportation to Oregon, but caught a Navy plane to Hensley Field, Texas. Barnett caught another hop, this time to Hutchinson, Kansas. Getting nowhere fast in Kansas, the OC flew back to Corpus Christi, Texas. Getting no place equally fast in Texas, the OC, this time with a friend, flew back to Hutchinson.

Some States Exempt Soldiers From Tax

(This is the first in a series of articles dealing with state, territorial and possessions income tax obligations for members of the Armed Forces.)

NEW YORK (APFS)—Yes, you have to pay income tax to some states while serving Uncle Sam.

In addition to the Federal income tax, certain states, territories and possessions have their own income tax laws. Some have exempted members of the Armed Forces while others have not.

This series of articles is designed to help you find out what your state tax obligations are while serving as a member of the Armed Forces. Since tax laws vary, APFS will furnish a state-by-state breakdown of these laws as they apply to servicemen.

The following states do not have any state income tax: Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, West Virginia, and Wyoming. If your legal residence is in one of those states, you don't have to worry. But if you are picking up some extra cash in the state in which you are stationed—money besides your regular Service pay—you may be liable to tax. For example: A sailor from Rhode Island stationed in New York has a job during off-duty hours. Rhode Island has no income tax. But New York has.

Ohio and Pennsylvania have no personal income taxes, but residents of certain cities and municipalities may be liable for income taxes. The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act is still in force. It says you don't have to pay income tax on Service pay in a state in which you are living solely by reason of naval or military orders. Generally, if you are a legal resident other than Service pay, you may be liable for income taxes to the state in which you are deriving an income as well as to your home state.

On the return trip to Kansas the plane ran into bad weather and with the ground control apparatus out of order was forced to make an emergency landing at Tinker Air Force Base, Okla. When the travelers finally got back to Hutchinson they were tired and confused enough to buy tickets on a commercial flight.

"Seems we were able to fly anywhere but Portland," said the OC. "It was fun though."

Flying is nothing new to Barnett. He holds a student license and has logged some 35 hours of flying time. He has even managed to run out of gas over the Pacific Ocean without a parachute. "Made the coast in time, though."

EISENHOWER'S PLAN FOR WORLD ATOMIC POOL FOR PEACE

MEDAL OF HONOR

The loneliest man in the world is a wounded man. His world has exploded in his face. The wounded man clutches the hard, rocky ground as the violence of battle swirls around him and leaves him in its wake. His world has suddenly become a world of pain and fear and shock. He calls or screams or shouts or cries for the only friend he has left—the corpsman.

Hospitalman Francis Colton Hammond, USN, was the fifth Navy man awarded the nation's highest decoration for gallantry in action in Korea. Four of those Navy corpsmen were honored posthumously. Hammond was the ground-mortally wounded.

The Medal of Honor was presented to Hammond's son. His son is three years old. (APPS)

Two men from the 198th are in the front-line area. They stayed to help the corpsmen from the new unit.

Men Need to Be Big in Thoughts Working at Top Positions Isn't Enough

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT.) I. A. SHERMAN

Like the King, Ahimlech, was shrew, cunning and tricky. He decided to kill the would-be ruler, ascertaining the fact that the plot was too big for him unless he ascended the throne legitimately.

There are too many people today, carrying the philosophy to rule or ruin, now, with an added one, with any unreasonable price as long as one can rule or ruin.

I have known many people who have worked hard to build up fraternal organizations as well as social clubs etc; but in the course of time when it has become obvious that they had no real thought and function and they can no longer dominate the organization, they proceed to tear down, in fact, they make it small like themselves.

It is said that Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Yes! he was feeding his "legs" with the satisfaction that he was ruling by destruction. The Roman empire was a great power, but little men, like Nero came upon the throne and caused its disruption and discontinuation.

In our world today and in the political era—people desire the jobs but they take it seriously and neither do they prepare themselves for it. I recall vividly a young man who was always forthright in getting a job, but he was equally unorthodox in his thinking. He was like a political speech. He promised wonders in just a few minutes. Then, watch him work and the story would immediately change. The inconsistency was that he desired the job but it refused to make genuine preparations to do it. The job became a big place and remained a little man. Then he could not hold it.

We know there is no little job in the service. All jobs are big and stature. But when any job is to think that way but when every time we see little men in these jobs making them unimportant. That is, the men bring the jobs down to their own size in scope and stature. But when any job is done properly and efficiently the achievement is recognized from the President to the voters and from the general to the people.

I recall talking to a group of men in Korea just before they returned to the States, about the important job they had done. One of

Organ Masterpieces Offered During Post Chapel Vespers

Music and worship are finding new expression in the Sunday vesper series which are being given for 10 weeks at the Main Post.

The short period of meditation and worship, led by Chaplain (Major) Phillip W. Roberts, is preceded by a 30-minute recital of sacred music under the direction of Pfc. James Benjamin Smith.

In January Smith is playing organ recitals, each one representing a different period of music. The first program on Jan. 10 featured compositions by composers who lived before J. S. Bach, that is, before the 18th century. On Jan. 17 works by Bach were played and on the following two Sundays music from the romantic era and the present day will be performed.

During February the music programs will feature vocal and organ music. Pvt. Morgan F. Simmons will play the first two of these programs and again a special series of music periods will be followed. Mrs. Edwin T. Rios will sing a Buxtehude solo cantata on Feb. 7.

In his meditations Chaplain Roberts is answering the questions arising in man's every-day living. He has treated the problems of loneliness and frustration and has stressed the power of Christ as the solution to man's seeking.

"AH, THE INGREDIENTS ARE MIXING WELL" Candidate Gnerre Hard At Work

OC Gnerre Explains the Art Of Pizza Pie 'Production'

Officer Candidate Joseph T. Gnerre, of 10th OC Company is a firm believer in the art of pizza. Gnerre has been baking pizza pies since the age of 14.

Starting as a dishwasher with the Depasquale Brothers of Medford, Mass., the OC soon became the leading pizza-man in Medford. According to Candidate Gnerre, "you work up a round pad of dough by rhythmically beating it with your hands. Then, with a flip of the wrist you send it into the air. This gives it a certain twist and shape. Using a combination of tomato, onion, meatballs, or fish, along with cheese and spices you place the additions on top of the dough. Put the pizza in the oven and bake till it's a golden brown. It really makes a dish."

"Each pie is treated as something special by a true pizza artist. ... A pizza is made from the heart and the soul. ... With every scoop from the tomato bowl it's a golden brown. The cheese is neatly spaced and spread. Upon the dough, like a figure-head. Spices are added to delightfully explain. The wonderful taste a pizza contains. Making a pizza is purely an art. Your only guide comes from the heart. Candidate Gnerre is of Italian descent which probably explains

'IN THEIR HAIR' ... Lt. Col. (Ret.) Fred Koenig, of Columbus, who was assigned to the Q. M. Section on post until last November, says, "I'm still in their hair." He's now pushing merchandise for the B & B Distributors of Columbus.

Those stories about "The Old First Sergeant" have come to a halt around Company K, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, since—the youngest first sergeant in the regiment, and possibly on the post, has taken over that position. "Top Kick" Durward E. Moore won his promotion at the age of 22 after less than three years service.

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

- If you can give the operator, the out-of-town number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster. Ask for a free folder for recording telephone numbers.
- Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Long Distance lines are generally less crowded before 6 P. M. and after 9 P. M.

Dimes Benefit Fights Tonight

Star Studded Card Arranged; Crook vs. Hall in Main Event

VICTOR AND VANQUISHED . . . Ed Crook, left, has his gloves removed after knocking out Norman Salvato of 508th in the second round of their light-middleweight fight last Thursday. Crook, Third Army runnerup last year, meets defending post champion Leon Hall on tonight's March of Dimes benefit card.

The best boxing card of the season is in the offing tonight for post fight fans as a star-studded array of punchers ready themselves for the annual March of Dimes benefit program. Managers of the respective teams have spared no effort in matching the best they have to offer and the resulting program is loaded with class.

An admission charge of 25c per person has been established with all proceeds going to the Dimes Fund. Starting time has been advanced one hour, and the opening song will ring at 7 p.m.

Sharing the spotlight on tonight's slate are no less than eight class I fighters, the most to appear on any one night this year. Top-billed match is the light-middleweight collision between Leon Hall, defending post middleweight king, and kayo artist Ed Crook, Third Army 1953 runner-up who impressed post fans last week with his lightning-like knockout of well-regarded Norman Salvato.

Feature match number two involves a pair of light-heavyweights, Charles Colley of School Brigade and Joe Amos of 508th. Colley has quickly run through the opposition to date, but in Amos, a newcomer to post boxing circles, he has an opponent worthy of his steel.

All Star Card

The rest of the night's schedule reveals several matches that would be main events on any other program. Versatile Elvis Mathews will venture into the lightweight ranks to take on tough William Henry of CTC, the ever-popular Les Flores will try and avenge his last week's loss to switch-hitting Richard Woodley, classy Juan Jaramila will face on the gloves with highly-respected Herman Hinton, and long-armed Sam Brown tangles with batting Pat Tamburro.

Cardell Formas and Dave Steiward are matched in a heavyweight hassle, Dave Midel and Emilio Montecillo are ready for a carbon copy of their last Thursday's slugfest, Richard Charleston is booked against Leo Hall, Clarence Gary will test newcomer Joel Wilson, Dave Dallenebra takes on Melvin Church, hard-punching Victor Simon goes against Walter Keiser and Charley Bryant has Burne Burke to contend with.

Last Week's Results

Headlining last week's fighting was Crook's knockout of Salvato in the second round of their light-middleweight hassle. After matters had raveled along on a fairly even keel for the first round, Crook backed Salvato up in the Red Devil's own corner and exploded a terrific roundhouse right that ended things in 38 seconds of the second stanza.

Richard Charlestown and Rudy Fraracio both made their Briant Wells debuts in a middleweight scrap that found Charlestown on the long end of the point score when things were over.

Clarence Gary outgunned Watts Kelly in another middleweight bout which saw plenty of leather being thrown. Gary had too much and too often for Kelly, who never quit punching.

Unorthodox Charley Bryant gained a decision over Victor Simon in an extremely close second meeting of the two. Simon won the first when, with a flurry in the closing moments to earn the nod.

Woodley Wins

Richard Woodley's constantly switching style proved too complex for game little Jesse Flores to handle, and the former EUCOM champ, won the Duke in this one.

David Midel outlasted Emilio Montecillo in the opening round of the evening, a bantamweight fight. Midel's seemingly constant punched eventually wore Montecillo down, and the final round belonged to Midel by a wide margin. Monty, (Please See DIMES, Page 12).

508th Takes Loop Lead

FIREMAN'S CARRY . . . Is demonstrated by OC Regiment's Jim Bachmann with an unidentified 508th cager as his assistant. This particular bit of action resulted in a jump ball as 508th won, 65-54.

The rollicking Red Devils of 508th APT chalked up a pair of wins in post basketball play last week to keep their 1954 record unblemished and take sole possession of first place, thanks to 30th Infantry's grounding of Lawson AFB.

Standings through Jan. 18 show the Devils with a 4-0 mark for the season, followed by Lawson and 30th, with 2-1 slates. Special Troops Command, who enjoyed a perfect first week, found nothing but reversals the second week and dropped from a first place tie to a four-way fourth place deadlock. George Swyers, who has already ended his season, paced scorers through last Monday with his 102 points in three games. Frank Glenn's 22 point-per-game average landed him in second place, as each team placed a man in the ten leaders except winless ISD.

Jan. 18

Coach John Vines' well-drilled 30th Infantry quintet turned loose Frank Glenn and Duane Leggett to count 23 points apiece and lead their squad past a Swyers-less First Student Regiment, 72-53. Glenn and Leggett made most of their points on close-in layups, and they combined to give the 30th backboard supremacy most of the evening. For the Blackshirts, John "Geronimo" Economou sank 21 points from his post position, while little Ed Crook's long, two-handed set shooting netted 12 points.

Lawson AFB's Flyers, rebounding from an upset loss to 30th last week, loped to a 69-41 win over hapless ISD as three different Airmen, turned in 15 point efforts. Luther Frealey, Earnest Thompson and Ray Steiner were the lads from Lawson who paced the Flyers, while Don Govert's 11 points sparked ISD. Frealey was back in form with his long range cannonading, while Thompson and Steiner earned their markers by dint of clever maneuvering under the goal.

Cagers from the 30th Infantry Regiment turned in the ranking upset of the season by trouncing the well-regarded Lawson Flyers, 72-55, to tumble the Lawson entry from its tie for the lead. Guard Jack Sutherland showed the way with his 22 points, followed closely by Frank Glenn's 20. Ray Steiner tossed in 19 points for Lawson, whose usually accurate long shot artists were off their feed. 30th led most the way, and showed a 23-22 margin at intermission.

A tall, slender whippet named Larry Ivan was all over the court for 508th's Red Devils, scoring 22 points and monopolizing the backboards as the Airborne boys slapped the OC Regiment Generals, 65-54. Ivan's 22 points for the Generals, (Please See 508TH, Page 12).

HEADLONG . . . Down the court goes 508th's John Dull (with ball) as teammate Bob Thweat takes a tumble in the Red Devils' clash with Second SR last week. 508th won, 53-47.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Sometimes people are just plain hard to understand. There was once, for example, a baseball player with the New York Giants named Fred Merkle who pulled one of the prize "rockhead" stunts in sports history by neglecting to touch second base—which omission cost his team the pennant. Another memorable occasion was a "wrong-way" run by California's Roy Riegels against Georgia Tech in the Rose Bowl—which resulted in a Cal defeat.

Riegels' directional mixup was 25 years ago, and Merkle's absent-mindedness was 45 seasons in the past, but neither has been allowed to forget for a moment their colossal boners. Riegels and Merkle, Merkle and Riegels—national laughing stocks, object of countless cartoons and jokes, their names are synonymous with mental lapses.

Times have changed, evidently, since then. We happened to be among those present last New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl when Alabama's Tommy Lewis roared off the bench to stop Rice's touchdown-bound Dick Moegle with a vicious block that stretched Moegle unconscious on the turf for a good two minutes.

Our first reaction, upon realization of what had happened was in the nature of "throw the bum out of there," but when Lewis fled to the bench in tears and later apologized to Moegle, we softened somewhat. Why, the poor guy'll never live that down, we figured, remembering the past deeds of Merkle and Riegels.

So, when messages of condolence poured in, and a newspaper ran a front-page editorial to the effect that "you haven't lost your last friend, Tommy," we allowed that that poor old Lewis probably needed cheering up. Out in California, Riegels in a press interview advised Lewis "just to laugh with them. That's all you can do." Most folks were ready to mark down another all-time boner and let it go at that.

But it wasn't to be. A prominent weekly television show invited Twelfth Man Tommy to be their guest, and lauded him by comparing his "fighting spirit" to that of American troops in the "Battle of the Bulge." In accounts of the game, Lewis' extracurricular activity got three times the publicity than Moegle's three touchdowns and 265 yards rustling received.

Fellows like Paul Cameron, Billy Wells, Pepper Rodgers or Bobby Cavazos, whose contributions to their respective teams were somewhat more material than Lewis' were briefly passed over in the hue and cry. Reporters besieged Tommy for statements, posed him for "gag" shots, publicized his every movement—in short, did their best to make a national hero out of a guy who had committed one of the worst sports faux pas of all times.

Riegels and Merkle pull a skull and get ridiculed; Lewis pulls one and he's a hero. Death, where is thy sting?

The season's largest and most enthusiastic basketball audience whooped it up last Friday night as the fabled Harlem Globetrotters nosed out the "Chicago Majors" for the world's professional basketball championship, with the winning margin coming on a field goal in the final five seconds. The game, let us hasten to explain, came as the climax to the movie "Go Man, Go," in which the "Trotters" were the featured players.

A completely packed house at the Main Theater alternately groaned and cheered as the Trotters battled the "Majors" who bore a striking resemblance to the Minneapolis Lakers, current pro kings. When Marques Haynes, billed as the world's best dribbler, bucketed the winning two points with the clock running out a cheer (equal to any horn at Briant Wells so far) rent the usually staid atmosphere of the Main Theater.

Sounded just like the U. S. Cavalry was a-comin' to rescue the wagon train. . . . Looks like rival American League baseball clubs have about decided it's no use trying to win the Yankees. In recent intra-league trades the Bronx Bombers have added the names of Harry Byrd and Eddie Robinson to their already well-stuffed roster. The deal for Byrd assures the Yankees of some top-flight hurling for the next several seasons, and of course Robinson and his home run bat will ease the strain around first base for the World Champions. Byrd is cast in the mold of Yankee pitchers. Big, fast and strong, he is built along the lines of Red Ruffing, Spud Chandler, Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds.

More information can be had by contacting Davis or Daniel Donahue, team captain, by calling 3-2210.

WAC Cagers Lose To Eglin Girls

Fort Benning's Wac basketball team was defeated by the Eglin AFB (Florida) Wacs Saturday night by a score of 46-41. The game was close all the way and it was not until the Wac team went ahead and froze the ball the last minute and 40 seconds that the out come was definite. The next Wac game is Thursday night when they play at Eglin Field in a return match.

HERE SUNDAY . . . Hazel Walker (above) brings her gifted girls' team, the Arkansas Travelers, to Briant Wells Field House Sunday for an 8 p.m. game with the OC Regiment. Admission will be 75c for adults and 25c for children. A preliminary game is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

NEVER MISS MISSES . . . Leslie Wiley, left, 14-year-old daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Earl T. Wiley, coaches Sonya Jastrzemski, 16, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Bruno Jastrzemski, in the proper firing technique to be used with the .22 caliber rifle. Both girls won medals in the recent Fort Benning Junior Rifle Club shoot. Ellen Miffilin, 16, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Thomas Miffilin of Philadelphia, Pa., took first place in the event.

Each eligible installation will be allowed as many as three rifle and three pistol teams. Also not more than 90 highly-qualified marksmen will compete in the Third Army Area matches for individual honors. Winners in the Third Army Area matches will be chosen to form three four-man rifle teams and four-man pistol teams, to compete in the Annual National Rifle and Pistol matches, to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, in late August. Ten service rifle marksmen and ten service pistol marksmen will be selected also from the Third Army matches for individual honors.

AFPS Comics Lost On Way

Today the Bayonet goes to press without several of its regular weekly comic features. So, please, sirs, check with somebody and get "Stuffy" and his mates to us again.—Editor.

Draftsman Takes Care Of 508th Training Art

A young paratrooper from Tuscaloosa, Ala. is helping prove "one picture is worth a thousand words." Cpl. Jerry Wall, a draftsman for the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, is probably the busiest man in his unit, illustrating other people's ideas. As a draftsman, his primary duty is to work in the 508th's operations section, but his talented fingers and artistic pen have brought many requests from other sections of his unit.

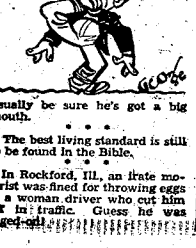

And 508th officials say the Army's program of utilizing civilian experience whenever possible for military duty has paid off in Wall's case. He began his career as a draftsman by attending the University of Alabama's civil engineering school for one year before entering the Army. Wall's latest project is a series of eight drawings illustrating the opening of the Army's newest personnel parachute, the T-10. The illustrations will be used in training lectures and for visitors. The major part of Wall's duties as regimental draftsman, he figures is making training aid charts. And the chore which gives him the most trouble is cartooning. "When it comes to cartooning," means Wall, "I've got a square thumb trying to manipulate a round brush."

STRICTLY FRESH

NOW that the President has suggested that the atom can be made to work for peace, there's only one troublesome question left. Can the Russians be made to do so? The human race usually ends in a tie—a matrimonial one. When a man continually puts his foot in his mouth you can usually be sure he's got a big mouth. The best living standard is still to be found in the Bible. In Rockford, Ill., an irate motorist was fined for throwing eggs at a woman driver who cut him off in traffic. Guess he was egged out.

Immel Is Given Leaf Cluster

Capt. Donald C. Immel of Columbus, chief of the Visual Aids Section of The Infantry School's Publications and Visual Aids Office, has received an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in Korea.

The presentation was made by Lt. Col. Arlo F. Mitchell, chief of the Publications and Visual Aids Office.

Capt. Immel was cited for outstanding service as supply officer of the First Battalion, 31st Infantry Regiment of the Seventh Division, in Korea from Dec. 15, 1952, to May, 1953.

"The extensive knowledge of supply and service functions, careful planning and organizational skill displayed by Capt. Immel in performance of his duties resulted in the continuous and dependable flow of supplies and equipment in the front line units of the battalion on the citation road."

A veteran of 12 years of service, Capt. Immel is a 1953 graduate of The Infantry School's office candidate course. He also was at Fort Benning in 1946 with the 25th Regimental Combat Team and from 1950 to 1952 as assistant S-4 of the 90th Infantry Regiment. He began his current tour of duty in August, 1953.

POW Life, Fighting, Travel Pack Three-Year Army Tour

One tour of duty in the Army was not enough for Cpl. Alfred L. Simpson of Philadelphia, Pa. who at the age of 18 volunteered to spend 36 months in the Army but ended up spending 30 of those in North Korea as a prisoner of war. Receiving his discharge two months after being freed from the prisoner of war camp, 21-year old Cpl. Simpson reenlisted for three years and is about to gratify his long desire of going to jump school and becoming a paratrooper at Fort Benning. He is now assigned to the 320th Field Artillery Battalion of the 508th Airborne Regiment Combat Team.

His length of service has been short but full of unforgettable experiences. Cpl. Simpson entered the service in July 1950, taking his basic at Fort Knox, Ky. He left the States for overseas duty in November 1950. From Japan he was sent to Korea and assigned to Battery A of the 503rd Field Artillery Battalion of the Second Division. Two months later the Communists overran his gun position and he was captured. He then joined approximately 2500 other POWs who were marched nightly by the Communists for three months from South Korea to North Korea. Many dropped by the wayside because of meager rations and harsh treatment.

Red Mistreatment To Be TI&E Subject

The Command Conference topic for next week is "Communist Mistreatment of U. S. Prisoners of War." This special subject tells how the Communists actually treated captured soldiers contrary to what radio broadcasts from Peiping and the biased articles found in various Communist-controlled publications attempted to make Americans believe.

Nurses Plan Lots of Fun On Birthday

Fort Benning's Army nurses have planned a birthday tea Feb. 2 to celebrate the 53rd anniversary of their corps' proud tradition.

Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., Infantry Center commander, his staff, Mayor Ralph A. Sayers, and nurses and staff members of Columbus and Phenix City hospitals, have been invited by Lt. Col. Marie Galloway-Smith, chief of nursing service at Fort Benning.

The 122nd Army Band will provide music for the tea, which is scheduled from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the Main Nurses' Quarters. There are 56 Army nurses now assigned to Fort Benning's U. S. Army Hospital, performing duty in surgery, medical, and children's wards, as anesthetists, in the obstetrics ward, in the orthopedic and in contagious wards. Staff nurses also perform administrative work.

One nurse out of every 40 who served was decorated. Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, then chief of the Army Nurse Corps, accepted the Distinguished Service Medal in the name of all Army nurses who served in World War II.

When hostilities began in Korea in June, 1950, Army nurses were the first American women to be dispatched with the Armed Forces to the combat zone. More than 200 served in Korea during hostilities, caring for troops of all UN Forces.

On Saturday a regimental parade will be held on Tiger Field at 9 a.m., conducted by the noncommissioned officers. No officers will be in the parade. M-Sgt. Robert McDonald, sergeant-major of the 30th, will command the troops. Battalion sergeant-majors and company first sergeants will select their staffs and drill their units.

Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., and Col. Frank Elder, 30th commanding officer, will speak at the parade.

After the parade open house will be held for friends and relatives of members of the unit. Dependents will be invited to the mess halls to eat with the troops. Parties will be held in the afternoon.

From 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., dances will be held at Service Clubs Two and Five for the enlisted men. Orchestras will be on hand. M-Sgt. Christopher Burns, project chairman, said.

508th ARCT To Bid Post Sad Goodbye

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team will be transferred to Fort Campbell, Ky., effective Feb. 15. Lt. Gen. A. I. Bolling, Third Army commander, announced last week.

Col. Glenn J. McGowan commands the colorful airborne unit, which has an authorized strength of 3,454.

Component units of the team are the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment, 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, 598th Airborne Engineer Company, and the 19th Airborne Quartermaster Detachment.

Activated here in August 1951, when the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment and 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion were combined at Fort Benning. The original infantry regiment jumped into Normandy on D-Day with the 82nd Airborne Division and went on to Frankfurt-on-the-Main after V-E Day to become honor guard unit for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters. The regiment came to Fort Benning from Fort Bragg, N. C., in May 1951.

The history of the 320th Field Artillery Battalion dates back to World War I when it was first at St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and Lorraine. Known as the 320th Glider Artillery Battalion during World War II, it saw action in Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Normandy, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe campaigns. It was reactivated at Fort Benning in August 1951 to become a part of the combat team.

Maglin also attended a Columbus Chamber of Commerce dinner at 6:30 p.m. yesterday at the United Old Farm following his arrival.

The 'Big Boom' Hits Tomorrow

Fort Benning will be rocked tomorrow by an unusual amount of weapons firing. Problem 2650, the biggest artillery show in Third Army, and problem 2422N, reinforced rifle company in defense (sometimes called the mad minute), will be run in Area K.

Problem 2650 will feature firing from weapons of the 188th Field Artillery Battalion, 27th AAA Battery, 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, the 41st Field Artillery Battalion, and Sabre Jets from Alexandria, La.

Problem 2422N, which is run at night, will demonstrate the fires available to a rifle company. All weapons will fire tracers, as all methods are used to stop the imaginary enemy.

Army Chief Orders War Against Fires

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Fort McPherson, Ga.—An immediate review of fire plans and action to effect and maintain energetic, forceful, and effective fire prevention programs at all Third Army installations has been ordered by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, commanding general, Third Army.

The action by Gen. Bolling followed receipt of a letter from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, pointing out that during the past seven years fires have cost the Army 82 lives and more than 25 million dollars in property. "A large proportion of these destructive fires are preventable," Ridgway wrote. "I am determined to protect the United States Government against these avoidable losses. I am convinced there is no valid reason for excusing the vast majority of these fires.

Prevention Neglect
"Many start because of neglect of prevention. In addition, losses from fires of whatever cause are magnified by failure to fight fires with all available resources and by neglect of our duty to protect Government property. Such neglect or failure reflects directly on the immediate commander concerned and his superior.

"My objective is the elimination of all these losses which are due in any degree whatever to neglect. I believe that every responsible

Experiences Vivid Living With Indians

Two years of missionary work with the American Indian Tribes of Arizona has provided Officer Candidate Donald E. Fulmer, of Salt Lake City, Utah, with some of the most interesting experiences of his life and paved the way for his ordination into the ministry.

"The religious life of the Southwest Indian," says candidate Fulmer, "is altogether different from what the average American is accustomed to."

"Out in the middle of the reservations you find a group of people living a religion that relates to every aspect of their daily lives. The Navajos cut their meat a certain way and will not stick a knife straight up in it. This, they say, is a sign of the lightning God, and the person doing this will be struck down by a bolt of lightning, because the Gods have been mocked."

"Another custom, strange to us is the way their small homes have one door in them. This door is always facing the East. Each morning at sunrise the Navajo stands in the doorway facing the desert and rising sun and offers his prayer by throwing corn meal into the air to be scattered by the four winds.

"Many tribes worship the sun as their supreme God of Gods. The Zunis, a small tribe south of Gallup, New Mexico, worship the sun because they believe it brought them out of the dark home they had in the center of the earth.

"To us this seems strange, for we depend upon our God to hear our prayers even though they are silent, but this nation must have some tangible object to carry the prayers offered to the intended power."

"The Hopis of Arizona pray to Rain Gods by dancing with live snakes in their mouths. Dandy rattlesnakes are often used. After the dance the snakes are turned loose in every direction to take the prayer to a particular God, such as the Rain God."

"The whiteman's influence can be seen in some places but these hearty, proud people preserve their own way of life rather than accept the ways and standards of those living around them."

Cpl. Commended For Netherlands Flood Work

Cpl. Harold McDonald of Hq. Co., First Special Troops Bn., has received a letter of commendation from the Dutch Government for aid given during the flood of the country in February 1953.

McDonald, then a member of the 30th Engineer Construction Group assigned to an Engineer division of Europe, was sent with his unit to Holland to render aid.

While on patrol he made frequent rescues of families. His jeep was equipped with a snorkel and often he drove it through water up to his chest.

With the flood over, McDonald was one of a group chosen for outstanding performance during the emergency and given a tour of Holland by the Dutch Government. One place he remembers most is Breda, where the Dutch have their OCS and NCO schools. "The Dutch Fort Benning."

Hugh M. Milton II was sworn in as assistant secretary of the Army (Manpower and Personnel) Nov. 19, 1953, by Maj. Gen. William M. Bergin, USA, the adjutant general. A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Milton received his Master of Science degree from that university in 1919. He is also a graduate of the Army's Chemical Warfare School, General Staff and Command School, and Engineering School, Ft. Belvoir.

In 1938 he was appointed president of New Mexico A & M College, where he had been dean of engineering. He held that post until 1947 when he was called to the presidency of the New Mexico Military Institute, a position which he now holds in absentia. He is a member of the American Association of University Professors.

Milton served in WWI as a second lieutenant in the field artillery. In the National Guard, following the war, he advanced to the rank of lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, and served as chemical warfare officer of the 45th Div. until the beginning of WWI.

He went on active duty with the Chemical Warfare Service in September 1941 and was released from active duty 52 months later, holding the rank of brigadier general. Secretary Milton was promoted to major general Sept. 9, 1951, after assuming duties as executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs, Special Staff, U. S. Army. He was a member of the Reserve Forces Policy Board of the Department of Defense and a former Army Reserve representative on the Department of the Army Committee on General Staff Policy.

MEDAL OF HONOR

Sometimes you have to pull out. That's the way the Chinese make you fight. They throw too many men at you and you have to move to new positions. And when you withdraw someone has to stay behind to cover you. It takes real guts to stay behind and cover a withdrawal.

It happened near Naungan on the night of Apr. 24, 1951. Cpl. Miyamura was a squad leader of an Army machinegun platoon of Co. H, Seventh Inf. Regt., Third Inf. Div. The night had been filled with hard, bitter fighting and Pfc. Meyer, who was fighting from a foxhole, was getting plenty worried. The Chinese were beginning to overrun the position and lay down a base of fire to cover the withdrawal. He killed about 50 of the advancing Chinese before he ran out of machinegun ammunition. The enemy wounded him with rifle fire and grenades. But Cpl. Miyamura had more time to secure their new positions—continued to hold off the Chinese. He was using his rifle and his grenades—and running out of ammunition.

"As we got into the new positions," said Pfc. Meyer, "we called him to join us. But the Chinese were finally surrounded his position. One of them came up from the rear. He fired at point blank range with an automatic weapon."

Meyer saw him blasted in the back at point blank range. Miyamura—he was a corporal then—survived. He spent the rest of the attack in a POW camp. His wife learned that he was alive when his name was listed on the Communist POW lists in December of that year. He was released Aug. 20, 1953.

The attack became more intense and the order to withdraw came. Cpl. Miyamura stayed at the position and laid down a base of fire to cover the withdrawal. He killed about 50 of the advancing Chinese before he ran out of machinegun ammunition. The enemy wounded him with rifle fire and grenades. But Cpl. Miyamura had more time to secure their new positions—continued to hold off the Chinese. He was using his rifle and his grenades—and running out of ammunition.

78th Engr. Announce Several Changes

The 78th Engineer Battalion (Combat) of the Combat Training Command, announced numerous changes within the battalion. Headquarters and Service Company added six men to its ranks. They are Sgt. J. G. Drummond, Cpls. Robert P. Jones, George Campbell, Jr., and Kopus G. Harolds. Pvt. Robert L. Chestnut and Harold G. Dowler.

Company B gained four men and lost four. Cpls. Richard Turner and Samuel Griffin and Pvt. Clarence Williams and James E. Brown have joined the unit. Leaving the company were Sgts. Arthur G. Gaudin and Martin N. Ubben and Pfc. Flummer Rodwell, Jr. Sgt. John L. Dickerson left for assignment in Europe.

The 586th Engineer Float Bridge Company had two officers and three EM recently assigned. The officers are Second Lts. Frank H. Buffone and Thomas Miller. The enlisted men are M-Sgts. Ernest A. Kearby and Cecil E. Fincher, and Pvt. James E. Pope. Sgt. Fincher has been appointed first sergeant for the 586th.

Ex-Col's. Orderly Stays Neat To Win Additional 'Honor'

The soldier who served as colonel's orderly more than 30 times in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team—and thereby chalked up an unbeaten record at Fort Benning—picked up another honor the other day while at Separation Center.

Sgt. Edward P. Boudreaux' latest honor came his way when he was halted by two members of the post's newly-organized "Good Soldier Patrol."

"You are the sharpest soldier we have seen in some time," they told Boudreaux. Then they informed him he would be selected as the "neatest soldier of the week."

This was not an unusual occurrence for Sgt. Boudreaux, formerly of Company M. His habit of staying trim is so imbedded that it follows him wherever he goes. It isn't known whether he brought the habit into the service with him, but it's for certain he's taking it out with him. His length of service in the Army was three years.

Spy, Dictator, Woodchucks On the Bookshelf

Man Who Wouldn't Talk, by Quentin Reynolds (Random, 214 pages).

This is a war story about what were thought to be the experiences as a spy for the Allies in World War II in France. After the book's publication it turned out to be one of the greatest literary hoaxes of all time. It was featured in newspaper columns and left a trail of red-faced editors and publishers and an incredulous author.

The story of New Mexico under the cruel dictator-governor, Don Manuel Armijo. After having failed to seduce Soledad, Don Manuel arranged for her to marry Don Esquivias who later became his sworn enemy.

Marmot Drive, by John Hersey (Knopf, 273 pages).

The decision of the people of a Connecticut village to start a long debated drive to rid the area of woodchucks provides the frame of the story in which Eben Ayers's girl friend arrives. The drive serves as a catalytic agent, which releases long-hidden traits of the people involved.

Dolls Prove Top Hobby For Couple

One of the most elaborate international collections of dolls to be assembled at Fort Benning by one family is to be seen in the home of retired editors and publishers, McGowan. Col. McGowan commands the 580th ARCT.

Mrs. McGowan began the collection while stationed in Egypt with the Women's Army Corps in 1945. She sent dolls to the U.S. as presents. On each occasion she kept one for herself, because it was usually associated with pleasant memories. Later, in Japan, the McGowans decided to make the hobby a family project.

Since that time, the McGowans have been around the world adding to their hobby as they went. Twenty-three different countries are represented, including Germany, Holland, India and Italy.

The costume worn by each doll represents the native dress of the country. Mrs. McGowan says, "Besides being an interesting hobby, the collection will be a useful training aid when our children begin to study the different peoples of the world."

Regt. Steeped in Tradition Of Taking All Objectives

The 30th Infantry Regiment, with battle streamers flying from its regimental flag from Mindanao in the Philippines, Aisne-Marne in France, Algeria-French, Morocco, Sicily, Rhineland, and 15 other campaigns, will celebrate its 141st Anniversary tomorrow.

With a tradition for valiant fighting, which includes never failing to take an objective in World War I, the 30th, commanded by Col. Frank L. Elder, is now training others to win by supplying school troops for The Infantry School, Day in and day out, members of the 30th wage "war" to impart their fighting skill to students.

Members of the 30th wear the French Croix de Guerre in form of the Fourragere and up to as many as three Presidential Citations.

Organized in 1813

The original 30th Regiment was organized on Jan. 29, 1813, by act of Congress to aid in defense of the country against the British in the War of 1812. The regiment remained on active duty until 1815 when it was consolidated with a light artillery regiment.

President Lincoln ordered the second activation of the 30th on May 4, 1861, shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War. On March 23, 1869, the 30th was again consolidated with another unit, this time with the Fourth Infantry Regiment.

The present 30th was formed at Fort Logan, Colo., on Feb. 12, 1901, by act of Congress and left soon after for the Philippines to help stamp out the Aguinaldo Insurrection.

Marshall Joins Unit

A young second lieutenant, who was to become chief of staff of the Army and win other fame, joined the regiment in the Philippines. He was George C. Marshall who served as a platoon leader in Company L.

In October, 1903, the 30th sailed back to San Francisco where it was divided and companies sent to Fort Crook, Neb.; Fort Reno, Okla.; and Fort Logan H. Roots, Ark. It reassembled at San Francisco in July, 1907, to return to the Philippines.

Back to the Presidio of San Francisco in 1909, it remained there, except for a short tour on the Mexican Border, until 1912 when the regiment sailed for Alaska.

In San Francisco again in 1914 the 30th was used to train troops to build up the American Army Battalion received the honor of being selected to guard the Casablanca Conference, attended by President Roosevelt.

The 30th participated in its second amphibious operation on July 10, 1943, which started the 30-day Sicilian Campaign. During one part of the fighting, the Third Battalion moved over rugged mountains 54 miles in 33 hours to assist in the capture of San Stefano. Second Battalion made two more landings behind enemy lines in Sicily to capture San Agata and Brolo.

On Sept. 18, 1943, the regiment landed on the Italian mainland at Paestum along with the Third Division and was given the task of capturing the important road junction at Acerno. This started 68 days of fighting that carried the 30th to Mt. Rotundo.

The regiment made another amphibious landing on January 22, 1944, this time at Anzio beach. During the Anzio "breakout," the 30th carried the main effort of the division, reaching the objective, Tiber River, first.

Anzio Casualties

Regimental casualties at Anzio were 2,881 killed, missing, and wounded. For outstanding heroism and achievements during the campaign officers and men of the regiment were awarded 6 Medals of Honor, 12 Distinguished Service Crosses, 20 Silver Stars, and 22 Bronze Stars.

Regimental Motto

Part of the regimental motto came from World War I fighting. "Our Country, Not Ourselves" has been used since the War of 1812. To this was added "Rock of the Marne" for the fighting of July 15 to 18, 1918, in the Champagne-Marne defensive. Both have been incorporated into the Regimental Crest adopted in 1948. On the crest, the divisional insignia of the Third Division is at the upper left of the canton, the 30th having been part of this unit in both World Wars. The broken chevron at the bottom of the canton represents the part taken by the regiment in pushing back the point of the German drive at the Marne. The bear's head, supported by the iron helmet, represents the subsequent passage of the regiment through German lines and occupation German Territory.

In 1941 the regiment rejoined the Third Division at Fort Lewis, Wash., and began training for combat. On Oct. 23, 1942, the 30th sailed for North Africa and landed at Fedala, French Morocco. Taking only four days to secure all objectives, the 30th began a 31-month fight with the German Army while in North Africa the Third

After nearly five months of steady combat the training enjoyed a short "Roman Holiday" before starting another training program, this time for the invasion of Southern France.

Aug. 15, 1944, the 30th made its first daylight landing of the war at Cavalaire in Southern France. In less than a month the Third Division raced across Southern and Central France and reached the Vosges Mountains in eastern France when winter caught it, the third winter in combat for the division.

For their heroic efforts, the officers and men of the 30th received 12 Medals of Honor, 58 Distinguished Service Crosses, 39 Legions of Merit, 925 Silver Stars, and 1,228 Bronze Star Medals.

After the war the 30th performed occupation duty in the Salzburg area and later in the vicinity of Kassel where it remained until the Third Division returned to the States and was stationed at Fort Campbell, Ken.

On Dec. 1, 1948, the 30th was transferred to Fort Benning, in December 1950 when the Combat Training Command was organized to supply The Infantry School with school troops, the 30th became its core. In November 1952 the 4th Field Artillery Battalion and 40th Engineer Company (C) were added to the 30th Infantry Regiment to form the 30th Regimental Combat Team.

COPPERS NOW COOKERS... A Company, Abn. Bn., First Student Regiment, is well secured when it comes to "police work." Serving as cooks are two ex-Spokane, Wash., policemen, Cpl. Thomas J. O'Brien and Pfc. James V. McCabe. O'Brien was recently an honor graduate of the Third Army Food Service School.

Friendship Follows Pair From Blues to Khaki Garb

A Company, Abn. Bn., First Student Regiment, is well secured when it comes to police work. Now serving as cooks are two ex-Spokane, Wash., policemen, Cpl. Thomas J. O'Brien and Pfc. James V. McCabe. O'Brien has just graduated from the Third Army Food Service School, where he was the honor graduate.

The pair met and became close friends in 1948 while playing hockey for the Spokane Flyers. McCabe played defenseman and O'Brien played right wing. In 1948 they belonged to the Spokane International Hockey League and that year their team won the championship of the National Senior Amateur Hockey League.

Both came from Montana, but until they played hockey and were on the police force together they had quite different lives. McCabe left Montana after graduating from high school and went to California, where he boxed professionally as a welterweight under the name of Jimmy Daniels. He entered the Air Force in 1942. O'Brien, the younger of the two, finished high school in Spokane in 1947. After graduation he drove a truck and played hockey until 1950, when he joined the police force.

O'Brien and McCabe worked in a crowd car together for quite a while and spent many exciting moments together. Taking leaves of absence from the police force in January 1953, they decided to join the Army and volunteer for airborne training. They went to Fort Campbell, Ky., for basic training and then came to Fort Benning for the airborne course, after which they became assigned to A Company.

Capt. Williams Named Co. Chief

Capt. Charles I. Williams, recently returned from Korea, is commanding Company "F", Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment. Captain Williams, a native Georgian, is a veteran of 11 years service in the airborne.

He joined the army in 1942, and after completion of jump school, was assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division. He made three major combat jumps in Normandy, Holland and Italy. More recently, he was with the famous 157th Regimental Combat Team with which he made a jump in a strategic battle in Korea.

Torah Convocation Slated Next Week

A Torah Convocation is scheduled for Fort Benning Feb. 24-25, post Jewish Chaplain, First Lt. Bernard A. Mussen has announced. Rabbi Alfred M. Goodman of Temple Israel, Columbus, a rabbi of the Hebrew Congregation Shearith Israel, Columbus, will be guest speakers at the 8 p.m. services in the hospital chapel.

Ford Named Intell. Group Chief

Col. Blair A. Ford has become chief of the Intelligence Group of The Infantry School's Staff Department. He succeeds Lt. Col. Robert O. English, who had been acting chief.

Col. English has been appointed chairman of the Intelligence Committee, replacing Lt. Col. Robert O. English, who had been acting executive officer.

A veteran of 22 years service, Col. Ford arrived at Fort Benning Nov. 18, 1953, to become executive officer of School Brigade headquarters.

Col. Ford, a 1931 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, commanded the 38th Infantry Regiment of the 97th Division in 1945 in the Philippines and Japan and the 100th Infantry Regiment, 45th Division, in Korea from July 1952 to December 1952. From January 1953 to September 1953 he was in charge of the Unit Training Center in the Korean Military Advisory Group.

Col. English, a veteran of 13 years of service, is a 1942 graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School here. During World War II he served with the Seventh Infantry Division in the Pacific and the Second Infantry Division in Europe.

Col. Ford is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. His parents are living in Copenhagen, Denmark, and he will sail next month to be with them.

Photographer Berg Leaves CTC-PIO

The Combat Training Command public information office has lost one of its ace photographers. Cpl. Karl Berg has been separated from service.

Berg, whose pictures have appeared in The Bayonet for the past two years, specialized in action shots of sports activities. His boxing shots were run regularly.

Berg is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. His parents are living in Copenhagen, Denmark, and he will sail next month to be with them.

Shock Scared Fastest Pilot

BY CPL. RICHARD E. SNOW, USA
(AFPS Washington correspondent)
WASHINGTON — Six years ago Maj. Charles E. "Chuck" Yeager, USAF, startled the aviation world by flashing across California skies at 967 mph in the Bell X-1. Recently, the major took a Bell X-1A for a 1600 mph ride. That's an old story by now, but what is new is that he has his heart set on going faster with a hitherto mysterious plane, the X-2.

"If I had more fuel I could've gone faster with the X-1A," the major said, "But the X-2 is being built with a stainless steel skin and we expect to shove the speed even higher with it."

Looking into the future, Maj. Yeager said titanium might eventually replace stainless steel as a plane's skin and maybe an undiscovered metal will replace titanium. The X-2 series was built with an all-aluminum body.

The world's fastest human disclosed that a new plane, the X-1B, is being readied for thermo-research at extremely high speeds. The plane is now at Muroc, Calif., for test runs.

When asked whether the $10 million X-1A would prove worthwhile as a military combat plane, Maj. Yeager said definitely not.

"The X-1A is purely a research vehicle. We have to stay 10 years ahead of production and it would not be worth a hoot as a combat vehicle."

Questioned as to his reaction to the trans-sonic 1,600 mph flight, the pilot replied it wasn't a very soft ride. However, he was not aware of his speed unless he looked at the machometer.

Comparing the runs in the X-1 six years ago and the recent run of the X-1A, the major said the latter ship has better visibility. "In fact, visibility is too good. I got a little scared looking back and seeing the shock waves bounce off the wings."

Sun and atmospheric refraction outline and waves as they brush across the leading edge of the wings.

Stalling speed of the X-1A varies from 245 mph at release time from the parent B-29 to 150-180 mph on landings.

Gilding in with the plane's power cut, off also has its problems. Maj. Yeager said. Only a landing strip like that at Edwards AFB can handle the plane. It is 7.5 miles long and five miles wide.

MARS STATION TRANSMITS, RECEIVES CODE OR VOICE MESSAGES

Hams Perform Unpublicized Task in 508th

A significant but highly unpublicized element of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is the ham radio station in the regimental headquarters area with call signs MARS AA7DI and K4WDL. Capable of transmitting and receiving messages via code or voice, it is a dual-purpose station serving both the military and civilians.

The director is 508th Communication Officer First Lt. Phillip Wessman. His chief assistant is M-Sgt. Rogelio Carbajal, who has been in communication for nine years. The 508th military amateur radio station (MARS) is mainly a clearing station. In event of an emergency or disaster, immediate contact can be made with other stations and aid rushed to the scene. It also can serve servicemen who wish to communicate with their families in cases of emergency.

The station operates on a continuous wave. Often CQ calls are sent out as an invitation for anyone to answer. Once contact is made the call signs of these stations are recorded and station K4WDL is able to transmit and receive information with others.

Among the new men taking training in the communications department and prospective licensed operators are Pvt. Elbert Perkins, who is now in jump school; Cpl. William C. Kirsch, Pfc. James Lauer, and Pfc. Sherman Labounty.

Work to Start On Custer Job During Week

Contract for the construction of seven additional classrooms and a general purpose room at Custer Terrace School has been let to the Jordan Supply Company of Columbus, Ga., which submitted a low bid of $132,000.

Work is scheduled to begin this week and will be completed in July, according to retired Army Gen. Marcus B. Bell of the Jordan firm.

The Jordan company was one of seven firms to bid on the construction, which will include paving the parking lot and roads to the school, actual construction, and complete equipment for the new buildings.

Bids were handled through the Housing and Home Finance Agency of Atlanta, Ga., a government agency which is supervising the project for the Army.

The construction costs do not include the entire amount appropriated by the Health, Welfare and Education Department for the school, and the remaining money will be used to improve the school facilities, officials said.

REGIMENTAL 'TIES' ... An international gesture of good-will at Fort Benning was the complimentary exchange of regimental neckties by the first American regiment to adopt a tie and a famous British regiment. At left Col. Glenn J. McGowan, commander, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, wears dark blue tie with alternate rows of Red Devil heads and white parachutes. At right Lt. Col. Charles R. Murray-Brown, of the Royal Norfolk regiment, British Liaison officer here, models the yellow and red striped tie with a black background. The black was included in 1809 to commemorate the funeral of famed British soldier, Sir John Moore, when the Royal Norfolk dunnies were selected to beat the retreat.

Weekly Waxing 4 Orchestras To Entertain

At the Main Post Library on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. the regular weekly record concert will include selections by Enesco, Dvorak, Bach, and Barber.

The program will consist of Enesco's "Rumanian Rhapsodies," with Fabien Sevitzky conducting the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra; Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances," with Fabien Sevitzky conducting the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, and Barber's Symphony No. 1, with Bruno Walter conducting the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York.

The rhapsodies of Enesco are drawn from the folklore of his native land. Using gypsy songs and peasant melodies he paints a portrait of his sensitive, emotional people.

DIMES CANDIDATE . . .
Sandra Bath, daughter of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Kelly C. Bath, is a candidate in the March of Dimes "King and Queen Contest" sponsored by the Pilot Club of Columbus and the Muscogee Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Seven-year-old Sandra was stricken by polio in 1952 and spent several months at the Warm Springs Foundation. Her father is assigned to Company H, Airborne Battalion, the Infantry School Detachment.

'Bottom Dollar' Given to Drive

An eight-year-old patient at the U. S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning gave his "bottom dollar" to the March of Dimes. John Marc Herlina, son of Major and Mrs. John H. Herlina of Columbus, donated the dollar his parents had given him to spend during his hospitalization because he "wants to help" in the fight against polio.

Reason he gave, according to Capt. Vinita Shore, head nurse on the pediatric ward, was that he remembered the son of a former next-door neighbor who had been stricken by the disease and hoped he'd never "have to go in an iron lung."

As an Army Reservist, Sgt. Bryant was recalled to active duty last November and was assigned to Company I.

Before entering the Army in 1950 he was an aviation inspector at the Bendix Aviation Corps in Brunswick, Ga.

From 1942 to 1946 he served in the Merchant Marines and touched all continents except Australia. He plans to make the Army his career.

ROY ROJO . . . 4-Day Captive

Bandits Made Life Miserable On OC Vacation

"Being captured and held by Mexican bandits may seem exciting when you look back on it, but at the time . . . no thanks!"

So says Officer Candidate, Roy Rojo of the 29th OC Company who was seeing the sights of Mexico with his father, and a friend in 1950 when taken captive by a mob of bandits near San Jacquin, Mexico.

The Americans were on a fishing trip and were mistaken by the bandits for Mexican Government agents, perhaps because they had guns and ammunition with them. At the time, because of a Mexican presidential election, there was considerable tension between the government and people.

Rojo and his companions were held for four days, the first day and a half without water. The OC's father was threatened with death, but finally convinced the outlaws that they were Americans on vacation, not agents.

"They were released but never reported the incident. 'Nobody'd believe us.'"

27th Car Co. Switched To 1st ST Battalion

This week the 27th Transportation Car Company, Special Troops Command, was relieved of its assignment as part of the 112th Transportation Battalion and reassigned to the First Special Troops Battalion.

The 27th has as its primary mission the job of providing taxi and chauffeur service to the TIC staff, guest, and visitors to the Infantry Center and the Infantry School.

OCs Entertaining Polio Patients

Officer candidates at Fort Benning are following the March of Dimes right to its destination—the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at Warm Springs, Ga.

Men of the 29th Officer Candidate Company, who had already donated $15 to the fight against polio, are now visiting patients at Warm Springs on weekends. The candidates are organized into small groups to entertain young polio victims with parties and to provide them with candy and cake.

More money and clothing for the children, some of whom seldom have visitors, is being contributed by the future officers.

WWII Duty
During World War II the 508th Engineer Company served at Fort Mitchell, N. C., and was activated in August 1951 as part of the 508th. One of only two airborne regimental combat teams on active duty, the 508th showed its combat readiness during maneuvers in December 1951 at Camp Rucker, Ala., when it took the role of aggressor forces and opposed the 47th Infantry Division.

It also opposed the 82nd Airborne Division in the spring of 1952 in Texas "Loghorn" maneuvers, largest Army-Air Force maneuver in U. S. history.

Little Woman Who Likes to Sew Knows Infantry Answers

Even the U. S. Infantry no longer exclusively man's special field.

Start talking about mortars, a battalion in retrograde movements, terrain evaluation and counter-terrain techniques, and Mrs. Ida C. Evans, an Infantry School employee, will amaze even veteran Infantrymen with her knowledge of Army terms and its capabilities.

For the past three years Mrs. Evans has analyzed and graded Army extension course lessons at the Infantry School.

At home she burns the midnight oil, studying Army techniques, so she will know the right answers. She is just as familiar with the M-16 plotting board to determine firing data for mortars as she is with her kitchen range.

Because she puts only her initials on the lessons she checks few Army extension course students know that a woman tallies up their scores. Mrs. Evans grades the lessons of 24 sub-courses in the four series offered by the Non-Resident Instruction Department's Army Extension Course Group.

Among her sub-courses are heavy weapons, tank and heavy mortar companies in defense, reinforced Infantry battalion in attack, supervision of tactical wheel vehicle operations and maintenance, combat supply and evacuation of the Infantry battalion, chemical, biological, and radiological warfare, counter-terfite organization and techniques, map and aerial photograph reading, troop movement and bivouac, and field artillery in support of Infantry.

Mrs. Evans, one of four graders (two officers and two civilians), estimates that she grades an average of 400 lessons a week. These lessons are from U. S. soldiers throughout the world, as well as a few lessons from Allied students.

Inspects Sub-Courses
As an analyst Mrs. Evans inspects the sub-courses before the department puts them on the mailing list for students. She checks references and evaluates the answers to see if they are plausible. If there is any doubt the lessons are sent back to the department that compiled them for an explanation or correction.

There are two types of questions—objectives and essay. The objective ones are rather routine. The essay questions are the challenge to Mrs. Evans. One has to know the subject before one can intelligently check a student's answers.

Mrs. Evans, the mother of three children, is a 1928 graduate of Newcomb College in New Orleans, La. She took two years of post-graduate study at Tulane University.

Mrs. Evans said she makes virtually all of her clothes. "I love to sew and am fond of tailored outfits," she said.

Pvt. Hatfield Gives Lowdown On Reason for McCoy Feudin'

MOHRINGEN, Germany (AP)—Pvt. Raymond Hatfield cleared up a few details of his family's famous feud with the McCoy clan the other day.

Pvt. Hatfield, a direct descendant of "Divil Ance" Hatfield, is a member of Hq. Co., Second Armored Cavalry Bde.—an outfit which traces its ancestry back to the Second Dragoons established by President Jackson in 1836.

According to legend, the feud started in 1880 when Jance Hatfield—son of Divil Ance—moonlighted on the McCoy clan, the flower of the McCoy clan, without the customary parental approval.

But that's not the truth, says Pvt. Hatfield. He ought to know. His grandfather was the last fighting survivor of the West Virginia Kentucky feud.

Actually, he relates, the trouble started a couple weeks earlier. The McCoy's were accused of barbecuing a Hatfield hog that had been happily rooting for beech nuts near the McCoy still.

The bullets flew thick and fast, but there was much consternation when, during the height of the battle, the hog turned up red-eyed and staggering.

The hog, it seems, had taken off down the valley to hunt wolves after tipping over a barrel of the McCoy's mash. It was this supposed violation of the mountain code, not the stealing of lovely Rosanna that started the fightin' and feudin'.

Pvt. Hatfield doesn't smoke, chew or drink anything deadlier

Col. Kennedy Joins Evaluation Panel

Lt. Col. Harold R. Kennedy of Aniston, Ala., has been assigned to First Officer Candidate Regiment's evaluation panel, replacing Lt. Col. This is his second tour here, having been a member of The Infantry School's weapons instruction group in 1942 and 1945.

For Hobby Show

The second annual hobby show for school-age children at Fort Benning will be held Feb. 23.

This year's show will be sponsored by the post Parent-Teachers Association, according to Major G. L. Perry Jr., who is in charge of arrangements. Entry blanks have been distributed to all children attending school on the post.

Completed application forms are to be delivered to classroom teachers by children who wish to compete in the show, Major Perry said. The forms should be turned in to teachers by Monday.

Two major groups of hobbies, collections and handicrafts, have been established. The handicrafts group will allow displays of talent in woodworking, model building, metalworking, art, photography, sewing, cooking, and allied crafts.

"Last year's show was a great success," said Major Perry, "and we hope to attract even more entrants this year. The Parent-Teachers Association will award a prize of $2 to the best entry in each category, and will present $3 in cash to the best entry within each of the two major groups. In addition, the hobby that wins 'best in show' spot will win a prize of $5."

30th Infantry Holds Second As Lawson Loses Twice

Coach Jack Angel's unbeaten 508th Red Devils maintained their winning ways during last week's league basketball action to keep their record unmarred and their grip on first place secure.

In one of the key games of the season, the Devils slid past Lawson AFB, 62-78, in the first overtime contest of 1954. 30th Infantry Regiment, now in full stride, also annexed a pair of victories to stay one game off the pace.

Larry Ivan took over the scoring leadership, thanks to his 23 point effort against Lawson. 30th's Frank Glenn and the Flyers' Ray Steiner are tied for second place in the scoring race.

Changes in the schedule for this week's games finds action taking place on Sunday night between First SR and PMG and CTC opposing STC. The revision was made to make the Field House available for boxing on Thursday.

The free-scoring Second Student Regiment Rockets turned in one of the top surprises of the cage derby by handing Lawson AFB its second straight defeat by a 65-55 count. A tremendous fourth quarter surge did the trick for the Rockets, who trailed by eight points at the beginning of the final frame, then outscored the Flyers 26-8 in the closing 10 minutes for the victory. Newcomer Bob Goss, a 6-5 center, led the Rockets with 28 points.

Coach John Vines' 30th Infantry machine got its highly polished attack functioning to perfection in disposing of outmanned PMG, 83-82. Glenn, Sutherland & Co. piled up a 20-point margin, then turned the job over to the reserves, who continued to strain the scoreboard. Glenn meshed 23 points, but Dave Ellison of the Medics was the game's top scorer with 25.

Jan. 22
The ISD Profs sought to jam 508th's scoring machine by means of ball control tactics a la Hank Iba, but the Red Devils met the menace successfully and walked off with a 53-31 verdict in one of the lowest scoring encounters thus far. John Dull's two-hand overhead set shots netted 21 points for the Devils.

Jan. 19
A strong finish by the OC Regiment pulled a 72-66 win out of the fire for them over the Second Student Regiment. Jim Bachmann and Bill Gaines led the fourth period spurge for the Generals. Bachmann notched 24 points for his evening's work, and center Harry Conders led the Rockets with 19.

In the nightcap, the Special Troops Raiders passed out another entry in the loss column to the Infantry School Detachment, 60-41. The Profs' Bob Gilbert found the range for 15 points, but STC turned loose Jackie Carr for 15 and Ed Hefelfinger for 13 to win going away.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Everyone is allowed a plain old-fashioned mistake now and then, but we feel that Spotlighting Sports recently used up its quota for weeks to come.

Several issues ago we ran a little squib concerning an incident in one of the post basketball league games. We stated that we felt Lawson AFB's Ray Steiner had, by way of some highly effective dramatics, caused high-scoring George Swyers to be booted out of a close game between Lawson and First SR.

After talking with various players involved, including Swyers, we believe we were guilty of an error in judgment, and would like to about face smartly and take back our condemning words.

Although Steiner himself has never murmured one word of protest, numerous others who are considerably well-versed in basketball lore have come to his defense. A prominent player on one of the leading teams—neither 508th nor Lawson—stated frankly that in his opinion Swyers, not only deserved to be ejected, but that it should have been done sooner. One of the officials involved in the ruckus said he had warned Swyers previously about deliberate fouling, and that he considered his actions to be correct.

If we needed further convincing, Steiner's conduct in the hectic overtime struggle with 508th's conduct in a pretty good clincher. Steiner was one of the few players on either side who maintained his composure and kept a firm grip on his temper, refusing to become embroiled in any rubeisms. In addition, he came through time after time for the Flyers in spite of smothering pressure.

Therefore, we extend our personal apologies to Steiner for our faulty judgment, and hope that anyone who may have been influenced by what we said will do the same.

Overheard at BWFH: The only word you can use to describe 30th Infantry's Frank Glenn is "smooth". Andy Myers is one of the few basketball coaches who never beats, coaches from the bench or even shows any emotion.

Little Dick Isenhart of CTC is one of the best in the league. Larry Ivan really came through when the chips were down in the Lawson-508th game. One of the most under-rated players in the league is Red Devil Jim Corley. When Lawson's Luther Fraley is hot, he's good for two points almost every-time he shoots.

STC's Everett Hefelfinger is a good, steady performer. John Economou and John Nibert are death from the free throw line. Joe Testa of CTC is a whale of a player, but tires quickly. For Pete's sake, why doesn't OC's John Makell shoot more. Unsung heroes: Bob Thwait, Ernest Thompson, Jim Delaney, Jackie Carr, William Thompson, Phil Webber. And whatever happened to Second SR's Ace Barthel, who bucketed 35 points in one game and hasn't been back since.

Time out for a few belated words of praise about CTC's boxer, Richard Woodley. In his last two times out, Woodley has been a regular two-fisted terror in disposing of capable Jesse Flores. In his first appearance of the season, Woodley lost to Elvis Mathews, but evidently impressed post managers, for Flores is the only man who has challenged him since.

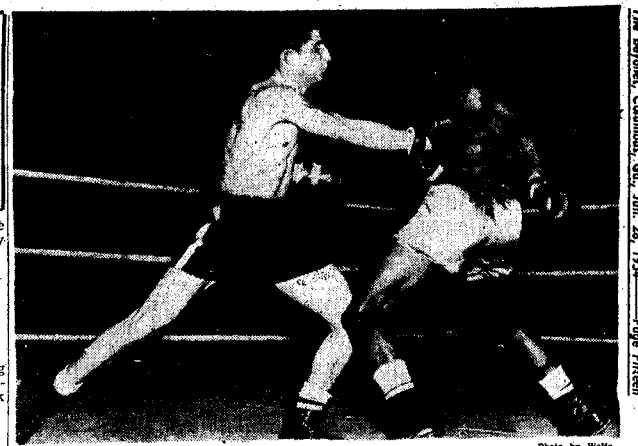

Woodley, former EUCOM champion, is as polished an amateur as you'll find anywhere. Blessed with power in both hands, he is lightning quick, has plenty of ring savvy and is one of the most deadly counterpunchers in the league.

Things keep popping in football circles. National Football Commissioner Bert Bell has declared "open war" on the Canadian League following Giant Arnie Weinmeister's signing with the British Columbia Lions when his New York contract still had a year's optional obligation. Up in the Land of the Mounted Police, the Edmonton Eskimos said they would sue Billy Vessels, '52 Heisman Trophy winner, if he refuses to fulfill his 1954 contract with them.

It just may be that Bounding Billy won't have any say-so in the matter. He is scheduled for Army induction in May, which means that some post team will have a good beginning on the next season.

Should be interesting, this pro grid "war." Boss Bell disposed of the upstart All-America Conference handily a few years ago, but the Canadians are a solidly-entrenched, financially well-heeled bunch and have been operating for quite a few seasons. The game itself is very popular in Canada, and is said to be rivaling ice hockey as the national pastime.

It's no fly-by-night outfit—Commissioner Bell has declared war on, and somebody may be in for a few surprises.

WELTERWEIGHT WALLOP . . . Is landed by Dave Dallanegra, left, of the 508th boxing team on Melvin Church, who represented CTC. Church was the winner by a decision as CTC took five of six matches on last Thursday's March of Dimes card.

Dimes Card Tremendous Success

The largest crowd of the season overflowed Briant Wells Field House last Thursday night to witness the annual March of Dimes benefit boxing card, and the 1,049 spectators were regarded with one of the best fight nights of the year.

Spotlighted by Richard Woodley's second round knockout of Jesse Flores, the surging CTC Commander team swept five of their six matches to entrench themselves firmly in second place, only two points behind leading 508th in league standings. With CTC breathing down their collective necks, the embattled Red Devils pulled out with four wins on their own account to maintain their peacetime.

Feature bouts of the evening saw Leon Hall outpoint Ed Crook and huge Joe Amos decision Charles Colley. Hall, last year's post champ making his first appearance in a season, was impressive in defeating Crook. Faced with a big deficit in height and reach, Crook was forced to resort to a lunging attack to get inside. Hall sparred around cannily, awaiting these charges, and when they came he countered effectively.

The Colley-Amos encounter was one of those affairs which threaten to explode any moment but never quite make it. Despite a number of damaging punches landed by both boys, neither really opened up all the way, each showing a lot of respect for the other's punching power. Amos, fighting for the first time after a layoff, demonstrated speed and agility to go with his size.

Travelers Bedazzle Generals

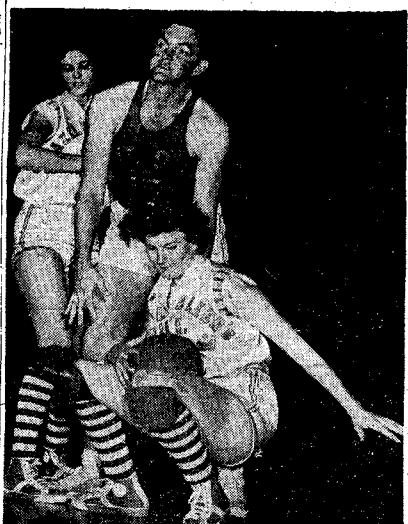

For the benefit of the March of Dimes, Hazel Walker's Arkansas Travelers combined beauty, basketball, and charm to clown their way to a cage victory at Briant Wells Field House Sunday night over the Officer Candidate Regiment Generals, 62-56.

The game, filled with Traveler tricks, left the Generals in a state of confusion. At one point, the locals found themselves trying to score with a lopsided ball that went everywhere except in the basket. They also found the one who had the ball quite often didn't have the one in the game.

Leading at halftime, 29-24, the Travelers boss Hazel Walker put on a foul shooting demonstration with members of the OC Regiment team. She competed with, and best, the Generals from the standing, sitting and kneeling positions, proving to the crowd that she could do with the basketball what the officer candidates could do with an M-1 rifle.

When basketball was included in the evening's festivities, big John Nibert scored 23 points for the Generals while Mary Robbins, six-footer from Oxford, Miss., tallied 21 for the Travelers.

In a preliminary game the Chavala High quintet of Seale, Ala., defeated the Boys' Club of Columbus, 39-32. For Chavala it was Don Ramsey scoring 13 points to pave the way to the triumph, while for the losers Charles Hartley counted 11.

SHE STOOPTS TO CONQUER . . . Mary Robbins of the Arkansas Travelers seeks to elude Frank Barker of the OC Generals during Sunday night's encounter which the girls' team won, 62-56. Observing the action over Barker's shoulder is Joyce Cross.

WACs Defeated By Marines

Saturday night saw Fort Benning's WAC cagers fall six points short of defeating a strong sextet from the Parris Island Marine Base. Final score: Parris Island 32, WAC's 26.

The post girls started slowly, but matched the lady Marines in the second half, and almost won in the closing minutes. High scores for the WAC's was Sara Allam with 10. Schwab of the Marines also came through with 10 counters.

A game scheduled last Thursday night with the WAFs at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida had to be cancelled at the last minute when a storm made it impossible to fly the WAC's down for the game. Plans are under way for the rescheduling of this contest.

DULL'S REALLY SHARP . . . 508th's John Dull (4) drives the baseline for a layup against ISD in last week's league basketball game which 508th won, 53-31. Don Gouvert (?) and Bob Gilbert (6) stand by in case of a rebound—which there wasn't.

'HOUSE' DISPLAY EXHIBITED IN MESS HALL Complete With Plants And Swimming Pool

Sarge Takes Slogan to Heart Constructing Miniature Home

Someone once said, "It's the garden that makes the home." So Sgt. Clifford C. Martin took the idea to heart. Since Sgt. Martin spends most of his time in the mess hall of the 112th Transportation Battalion Special Troops Command, where he is mess steward, he began to wonder if it might not be a good idea to add a bit of nature's wonders to his second home. The sergeant, aided by his green thumb, got some moss, pine sprouts, and a few dime store potted plants, put the whole thing together, confiscated a cigar box and, with little ingenuity and paint, fashioned a model house to go in the center of the new mess hall "garden." The bottom half of a 20-pound coffee can became a "swimming pool" in the rear. Today the garden, house, pool, and all, stand as a decorative part of the 112th Battalion mess hall "just a part of home."

The Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala., has been authorized to construct 10 new permanent new academic buildings and the contracts have been awarded. Since 1950, Maxwell has accommodated the Air War College and all courses of the Air Command and Staff School.

Special research on present basic training methods has been concluded at Fort Dix, N. J. The project involved more than six months and involved more than 1,000 trainees as the Department of the Army sought to discover more efficient instructional procedures for the basic training program. Several units underwent a revamped 16-week cycle for comparison with two units who stuck to the present program. Results and modifications will be incorporated into basic training instruction.

Fl. Enlists, Va.'s famous "Transportation Circus" has entered its sixth year of operation. Transportation Corps officials disclosed. Carswell AFB, Tex., will be the scene of extensive testing of the RB-36, a modification of the giant intercontinental bomber designed as a "mother" ship for the F-84 fighter. The mother plane takes off carrying the smaller F-84, then launches and retrieves it in mid-air following completion of the mission.

Our neighbor, Lawson AFB, celebrated an anniversary recently as 464th Troop Carrier Wing marked its second year as an organization at Lawson. Also recognized was the unit's completion of two years without an air fatality.

The 511th ARCT of Fort Campbell, Ky., will journey 5,000 strong to Camp Carson, Colo., in mid-February to take part in Operation Ski-Jump, winter maneuvers. Return to Fort Campbell is scheduled for early April.

Training Aids Center Grows As Work Hits Fastest Tempo

Training aids have streamlined the education of the soldier and have become much a part of life at Fort Benning as the Saturday morning inspection, and the job used.

Artist-illustrators and draftsmen make maps, charts, or other graphic training aids; model makers have a complete carpenter shop, with power tools, for the production of scale models of weapons and equipment, and silkscreen processes turn out colorful posters. Latest addition to the center is a display and supply room annex.

'Aggressors' Foiled By Message Center

The message center, Combat Training Command, was "attacked" by "aggressor" troops under smoke cover last week but the assault was "stopped" by a lone soldier and his M-1 with sniper-scope.

It was all part of a mock attack set up to take pictures for illustrations in a national magazine. Lucian Cary, gun editor for True magazine, and Sid Lathan, photographer, were working at Fort Benning on a marksman-ship article.

Backstage Crew Proves Little Theater Backbone

When the Fort Benning Little Theater presents its next production, "Gramercy Ghost," on March 18-19, the audience will probably be too interested in the play to think about all that goes into producing a play.

The make-up crew for the group's next show has an interesting problem. Since there are four shows, they must devise a ghostly make-up for the characters but one that is not too garish. Working on this project are Mrs. Earl Hardy, Mrs. Sarah Sankov, Mrs. Arlo Mitchell, Mrs. Charlotte Garish.

Another important job is that of the box office chairman, Mrs. Edward Logan. She is responsible for the printing and distribution of the tickets. Mrs. Arlo Mitchell, the assistant director, takes many little duties off the shoulders of the director and sits in at each rehearsal for prompting.

As director, Mrs. George M. Roper, holds the reins of the entire production. Not only does she direct the play, but she must coordinate the entire production. The production staff of the Post Little Theater is the board of governors who are responsible for policy making decisions. The board is comprised of Col. R. G. Sherrard, chairman; Mrs. Louis J. North, secretary; Lt. Col. C. M. Basley Jr., treasurer; Mrs. George M. Roper, publicity; Mrs. Edward Logan, box office; Mrs. Earl Hardy, Mrs. Warren W. Drake, members-at-large; and Major John W. Hughes, stage manager.

ROK Officers Start Classes

Fifty Republic of Korea Army officers arrived Tuesday afternoon to attend The Infantry School's Allied associate advanced course which opens next Monday. On hand to greet the new students were Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., Infantry School commandant, school officials, and the 122d Army Band. The officers arrived in Columbus by train and came by bus to their quarters on the post, where the Fort Benning delegation officially welcomed them. This is the first Allied associate advanced course offered the Republic of Korea Army. It has been designed on a basis similar to the associate advanced course for U. S. officers and includes 20 weeks of training in infantry organization and tactics.

Letter 'Explodes' Calculator Myth

Writer Claims Valiant 'Old Soldier' Had Four Good Legs

When Calculator died they raised a marker to his memory, put it in an honored place along the rocky skirts of one of the South's most beautiful buildings —The Infantry School — and inscribed this upon it:
Calculator
Born ? ?
Died 1922
He Made Better Dogs
Of Us All

Setting the record straight is Col. E. A. Byrne, chief of staff Headquarters, United States Army Pacific.

The colonel's letter, addressed to The Bayonet, reads:
"While enjoying the Dec. 31 issue of The Bayonet I came across an interesting reference to an old friend of mine in which I detected a marked inaccuracy. Because the passage of time frequently leads to distortion of historical facts, I am dropping a line to correct this misconception lest in future years the history of a very fine soldier become wholly distorted.

"The article to which I refer states:
"Like his immortal predecessor, who considered himself the official mascot of the post, the Stieglitz and carried one. That was all he had. Or so the story went.

But across the years and across the vast Pacific there came the other day a letter. It was from a soldier who had been Calc's guardian, who knew him well. And with the letter came a new respect, a new appraisal, for and of old Calc. The letter said that Calc had four legs.

pooch has only three legs and so he could be observed on a long trip changing from leg to leg to rest one at a time.
"Having arrived at Benning in 1919 and left in 1923 and being a contributor to Calculator's monument, I knew this unusual character extremely well and was in fact one of his guardians. I thus cannot resist dropping this note to insure that Calculator's future memory is accurately recorded."

So if there by any varieties of the ancient dog who may have seen him in their mind's eye limping along the golden streets of Paradise, let them take heart. Old soldiers never change, and it may be that Calculator, imbued with his haak at Benning, may be too set in his ways now to put down four and carry none, even in heaven. — Editor.

1st Soldiers Moving Into New 'Homes'

The first unit of Fort Benning's new $12 million barracks project has been completed and turned over to post officials. It was announced yesterday by W. H. Price, project engineer for the Savannah District, U. S. Engineers.

The second unit will be completed next week, Price said, and thereafter the Engineers will turn over two or more units in the North Area each week.

The barracks, which with roads, sewers, and other related structures and utilities, will have cost around $14 million when completed. This includes those being built in the South Area.

A branch of the Bigleville mess moved into the first building last Sunday morning and began making ready for "housekeeping." Later in the week units of the Second Student Regiment moved in.

The buildings in the North Area — those near the jump towers — are of concrete frame construction curtained with concrete blocks. They are fireproof throughout, as will be those in the South Area. The latest and most efficient mess facilities have been installed, including automatic potato peelers, walk-in refrigerators, walk-in deep freezers, banks of pressure cookers, and huge baking ovens. Each mess hall can handle up to 800 men.

One of the outstanding features of the over-all project is its completely automatic, push-button boiler house, fired by gas with oil standby. It will generate 50,000 horsepower, according to Price, and will furnish heat and steam for cooking to all buildings in both areas. It constituted one of the biggest of its kind in the South.

Shift Switches 3 High Rankers

Col. William J. McConnell, The Infantry Center's G-1 since last August, turned over the duties of his office last Monday to Col. Henry M. Rund, the post's former adjutant general.

Col. Rund was succeeded by Col. Stan J. Cochner, former executive officer of the Adjutant General's Section.

Before leaving the post Col. McConnell will take the airborne and field officers refresher courses in preparation for a Far East assignment. He is scheduled to report at Camp Stoneman, Calif., April 30.

Active in Fort Benning-Columbus affairs, Col. McConnell is a 1939 graduate of the United States Military Academy and came to Fort Benning on April 2, 1952. He served as executive officer of the Officer Candidates Regiment and as deputy for training during the six-week ROTC Summer encampment here before being named Infantry Center G-1.

He was assigned to the 88th Division and 15th Army Group in Italy from August 1944 until V-E Day and the Occupation of Austria from August 1945 until January 1947.

Col. Rund enlisted in the Army in Chicago in 1927 and had risen to the rank of captain in the Illinois National Guard by 1941, the year he was called to active duty. From 1944 to 1948 he served in (Please See SHIFT, Page 10)

POST'S NEWEST TWINS REFUDDLE TOPKICK (No It's Jerry) Next to M-Sgt. William T. Gunnels

Burmeisters Baffle Buddies In Special Troops Command

Some people are just born to give other innocent folk a hard time. Two perfect examples are the Burmeister twins, Jack and Jerry, Company A, First Special Troops Battalion.

These lads just happen to look alike - a lot alike! And that one point seems to be the major cause of all the trouble. No one can tell them apart, least of all their first sergeant, M-Sgt. William T. Gunnels.

It's especially bad when Sergeant Gunnels wants to put the twins in the company duty roster. The big question is who is who? And which one should pull it or which one did?

"I used to worry about paying one twice and forgetting about the other one," said Sergeant Gunnels. "In fact, it almost happened once. But now I make them come up together, just to make sure that we pay the right ones!"

The girls back in the twin town of South Orange, N. J., had the same trouble. Often they did not know just whom they had a date with, or even whether they were out with the right Burmeister. The Burmeisters' habit of switching dates came to a screeching halt one night when the boys had dates with twins. This time it was the girls that did the switching. The fun stopped then and there. Now Jack and Jerry are a little more conventional when they spend an evening with those of the fair sex!

2 Sermons Left in Torah Session

"God in the Modern World" was the subject chosen by Rabbi Alfred L. Goodman of Temple Israel, Columbus, for the opening session of the three-day Torah Convocation last night at Fort Benning.

Rabbi Kessel Abelson of Columbus' Knesset Shneurim Israel will speak on "The Ten Commandments and Modern Living" when he conducts services tonight.

Concluding the Convocation tomorrow will be Jewish Chaplain (First Lt.) Bernard Mussman, whose address will draw the most significant points from the first two sermons.

Need for Stabilizing Force Apparent Frustration, Fear, Anxiety--All Cured by Faith

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) HEUBEN T. BUSSEY

Someone has said that "Faith is the attitude of mind and will which finds and must find expression in true prayer and true prayer in turn is the right religious adjustment. This right religious adjustment, which is the essence of true prayer and true faith, involves the soul's sincere desire that God's will, that is, what is right, may be done not only to us and about us, but in us and through us. It involves turning in heart and mind to God, and more than this, the giving of oneself with abandon to God and his good will, that He may do for us as we need and with us as He will."

The need for this stabilizing force is readily apparent when one considers the frustration, instability, and unhappiness among those about us. Fear and anxiety are on every hand - fear of failure, fear of criticism, fear of failure, fear of disease, fear of old age, fear of death. And of those who are not in the grip of outright fear, the majority live lives of "quiet desperation."

If this be true, then why is it true? Is it because they have no "Rock of Ages" to which they may cling in time of stress and difficulty? Have they no one upon whom they may rely in their "worries"? Have they no faith? Faith is the antithesis of fear. Amid life's mysteries and perplexities and difficulties, one must fear or trust. The Master bids us trust. Faith is not mere blind credulity. It is not "believing things you know ain't so," as a small boy once said to me.

"Matter will not win over spirit!" "Death cannot be victor over life!"

1st Division

(This is a continuation of a series of articles on the history of Army division number patches.)

Red for courage, one for first in the shoulder patch of the First Infantry Division. The division's lineage during WWI. The division's supply trucks were of English make since the outfit had arrived in France before its equipment could get there. To distinguish the American vehicles from the German trucks, the division's drivers painted the figure "1" on their trucks. The division's engineers used a red patch for awhile to distinguish them from the other units. But the prestige insignia was not approved until October 1918.

Working with the 1st Division

Working with the 1st Division is a challenge. The division's drivers painted the figure "1" on their trucks. The division's engineers used a red patch for awhile to distinguish them from the other units. But the prestige insignia was not approved until October 1918.

Army Engineers Develop Lighter Portable Bridge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army Engineers have developed three new lightweight, portable bridges for quickly crossing ravines or streams. Two of the bridges are launched from armored vehicles. A scissor-type bridge is carried on and launched from an M-48 tank chassis, while a portable assault bridge is pushed across the gap and controlled by a standard M-47 tank. The third is an aluminum bridge, the T3, which is expected to replace the Bailey bridge, used extensively in WWII. Capable of carrying divisional combat and supply vehicles, the T-3 is constructed by crane in multiples of 15 feet. The scissor-type bridge is 60 feet long, 30 feet wide and 13 1/2 feet high. It can hold up to 60 tons. The assault bridge has the same width and capacity, but is 40 feet long. Two giant-sized rubber tires support the assault bridge, which is attached by linkage to the M-47. The tank slowly pushes it and directs it into position. When in position, the tank releases the bridge and crosses it. The aluminum bridge can be erected in single, double, and triple truss spans. A 75-foot length of this bridge can be manually erected in 45 minutes or in one-third the time the famed Bailey bridge can be put up. It is only 60 percent of the weight of the Bailey. Sections of the bridge are transported to the site by trucks, but it can also be dropped in sections by planes. The bridge is capable of spanning 100 feet, with a load capacity of 60 tons.

RED DEVIL 'PACKER' MAKES FINAL STOW ON NEW T-10 PARACHUTE. Cpl. Glenn Hutchinson With Inspector Sgt. Robert Friday

508th QM Proud of Packing Record

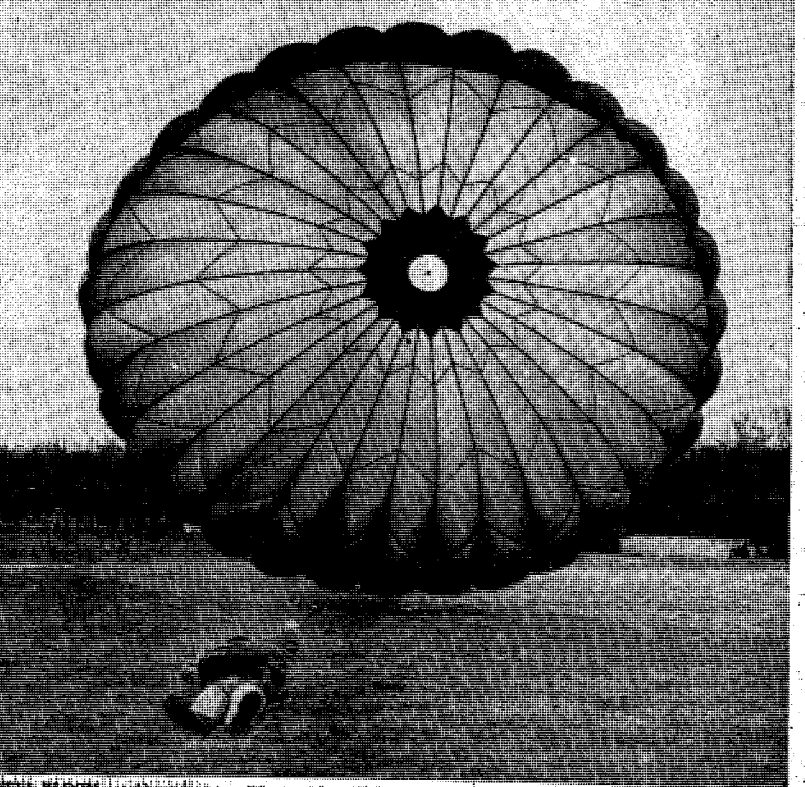

Maximum efficiency exemplified by supervisors and personnel of the 508th Airborne Quartermaster Detachment. The primary duty of the unit is to inspect, maintain and pack both men and cargo parachutes for all 508th operations. They also supervise and assist in the loading of heavy drop equipment. Before any man is taken into the company, he is interviewed by the company commander or maintenance officer. He is then sent to school at Fort Lee, Va., for three months before packing his first chute. In packing the parachutes a complete outline of the way each move is made is followed all the way to the letter 'D'. During the time the parachutes are being packed, officers and non-coms are inspecting the process. They constantly remind the packers that "their job could cost a man his life—they're trusting people for their jobs."

Best Mess Plaque

Eighteenth Officer Candidate Company has won the First OC Regimental Best Mess plaque for the second month in succession. The award was made by Col. Harry M. Grizzard, regimental commander. This is the first time the award has been won consecutively.

508th Using New Model Parachutes

Training for the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is now being conducted with the new T-10 type parachute. This new chute is replacing the T-10 model which was the standard of most troops during World War II. The difference between the two parachutes are size and shape and the method in which they are packed. The canopy of the T-10 exceeds the diameter of the chute by two feet. This gives the modern parachute a radius of 40 feet from the apex to the skirt, or edge, of the canopy. The canopy in shape and appearance is the same as the chute being used at the start of the war. Methods of deployment with the new chute are the same as with the old type. The only change is the point at which the chute opens. The chute opens at the apex, followed by the canopy then the suspension lines. The canopy of the new chute has a diameter of 40 feet and the apex of the canopy is the apex of the chute.

Army Great, So 3 Cooks Reup for 6

Re-enlisting or returning to civilian life is the decision many servicemen who are eligible for discharge are being confronted with in the 508th "Red Devil" Airborne Regimental Combat Team. This decision was least troublesome to Sgt. Charles W. Woodward of Westchester, Penn., Cpl. D. O. Jeffrey of Peach Creek, W. Va., and Cpl. Leon Fields of Glassboro, N. J. for without hesitation they recently re-enlisted for six years. Each volunteered for the service three years ago. When asked the question "What did you re-enlist?" they gave practically the same answer. It was a consensus of opinion that the army offers its men security for self and family. "In civilian life one faces the problem of unemployment or the possibility of being laid off. But in the Army that ceases to be a problem. There is an assurance of having a payday each month." The trio interviewed also expressed their fondness for the Army because of educational and travel opportunities, medical care, and retirement benefits the Army provides. Then just being a part of the 508th Airborne had its influence. All agree that it is the sharpest and best outfit in the Armed Forces. "It gives you a chance to do something different—something everybody doesn't do. We like the esprit de corps that exists in the unit." Woodward, Jeffrey and Fields if not, you'd better start thinking about it—joining the Armed Forces Medical Aid Association, that is. It's your own non-profit, voluntary group, formed by and for servicemen with dependents. Every member has a voting share in its control. Here's how: You pay small, regular deposits for membership. Then, when your wife or kid is hospitalized—whether in a government or civilian hospital—AFMAA comes through with a check. Each year, every member gets the Association's surplus back as a refund. Gen. Maglin Tells Meeting:

Punishment Is But Small Part of MPs' Function

The main function of police in military as in civilian life is "to serve the law abiding," Major Gen. William H. Maglin, the Army's provost marshal general, told members of the Columbus - Fort Benning chapter of the Military Order of World Wars last Thursday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting in the Main Officers' Mess, the Army's top police official said that of all Military Police Corps activities only about 10 per cent is devoted to punishing law violators.

"Most of our time and energy are spent preventing crime and protecting our law-abiding personnel," Gen. Maglin said.

The World War I enlisted man who later graduated from the U.S. Military Academy, said that, just as the Medical Corps hospitalizes patients to return them to good health, the Military Police Corps is concerned with rehabilitating law violators who are imprisoned.

Discussing MP activities in communities near large Army installations the provost marshal said:

FROM KOREA ... Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., right, Infantry Center commander, welcomes Col. Beong Gil Kim, who heads a group of 50 Republic of Korea Army officers at Fort Benning to take the 20-week Allied associate officers' advanced course.

Airborne Soldiers Helping Columbus Home for Girls

When the Airborne Battalion of the First Student Regiment became interested in establishing a fund to help some worthy organization in Columbus, the officers and men selected the Anne Elizabeth Shepherd Home for Girls, a home with a long and commendable history. It is governed by a board of officers selected from five churches in the city, and headed by Mrs. Campbell Johnson Sr., as president.

With typical Airborne enthusiasm and spirit, the men threw their whole-hearted support behind this effort and established The Anne Elizabeth Shepherd Association Fund, which was duly approved by Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., commanding general here.

Supported by voluntary contributions from cadre and student officers and men, the fund is con-

WITHIN 10 DAYS ... Last Summer the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hartley were stricken by polio at their farm home near Hudson, N. C. All but one were placed in iron lungs at Asheville Orthopedic Hospital, where March of Dimes funds paid for the care of all. Five-year-old Beth was stricken first; then Mary Sue, 7; Doris Kay, 10, and Peggy Ann, 12.

IN DIMES CONTEST ... These Fort Benning youngsters who are recovering from infantile paralysis helped the March of Dimes fight against polio by participating in a King and Queen contest. Each vote cast for them brought in a monetary contribution. Shown, from left to right, are Robert Bacle, son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. C. M. Bacle; Susan Watkins, daughter of Major and Mrs. George W. 81 Students Taking Company Salutes Birthdays

Eighty-one students in The Infantry School's Ranger Department began the jungle and amphibious phase of their training this week at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The class, an all-officer group, will return to the post Feb. 14 for the two days before going to the Ranger Department's mountain camp near Dahlonga, Ga.

Graduation is scheduled March 6.

Men of Headquarters Company, Second Student Regiment, are well-known throughout the company, and a big crowd of guests is generally on hand to share in the festivities.

The birthday program has turned into a top-flight morale builder. Pleased with the increased esprit de corps of his men, Capt. Renfro has coined a slogan for his campaign: "When birthdays come up in this company, we let 'em eat cake."

California's Frank Glenn Is Ace Center for 30th

BY FRANK SULLIVAN
"Frank Glenn, the 'Mr. Inside' of the 30th Infantry basketball squad, is making his center position look like a fortress this season. His domination of rebounds from the backboard has been the scourge of the 30th's opponents in game after game. From within the foul circle and foul lane, he has drained the basket with points. He has hit with hook and jump shots, layups and tip-ins to amass 118 tallies in 6 games.
During the month of January, Glenn remained one of the top scorers on post. He ended the month with a 19.9 points average for seven games.
Glenn's abilities were best illustrated in the game against the First Student Regiment on January 18. In this game he hit for 23 points to lead for the evening. At the same time, he was all over the place, jumping high for rebounds, intercepting passes and fighting every inch for the ball.
Glenn utilizes his height, (he tops 6-3) and size to master the floor under the net. Time and again he snags rebounds by the sheer force of his drive.
Combining forces with 'Jock' Sutherland, Mel Leggett and others, Frank makes the close-in work pay off in points for the victory. On the defensive end, the hard-working center displays his power by blocking shots and forcing the ball to be kept outside where the chances of hitting are lessened.

FRANK GLENN

Glenn's experience goes back to the days of Union High in Richmond, California. There he played forward, center and guard at various times. After the high school days, he went on to play with the University of California five. In addition to this valuable experience, he put in three years with the Los Chicanos semi-pro team.

Roving Vagabond Kings Next Attraction in Briant Wells

The widely-known Vagabond Kings of Detroit, touring basketball team, will make an appearance here Sunday in Briant Wells Field House for a game with the Special Troops Command Raiders. The game will get under way at 8 p.m.
In a preliminary contest, Lawson AFB and 30th Infantry Regiment will clash in a league game beginning at 6:30 that could go a long way toward determining the eventual loop champion. With the juggling exhibitions or indulge in intricate trick shooting.
The Vagabonds were formerly members of the old National Basketball League, but owner King Boring sold his franchise and took to the road when league operations became a bit unsteady. The franchise was purchased by Max Winter, who moved it to Minneapolis and developed the world champion Lakers of the National Basketball Association.
Since the start of their exhibition playing in 1947, the Kings can number 614 victories in 694 starts.

Sports Officer Russell Copeland announced Wednesday that Sunday's Vagabond King program. The Fort Benning WACs will meet the LaGrange All-Stars at 5:30 p.m. No admission will be charged for the game.

'08 Cagers Leaving

Nearing the end of their season, 508th Airborne sacked up two more wins last week to preserve their unbeaten perch atop the league standings. The Red Devils basketball team will be among the 508th advance party which leaves for Fort Campbell early this month, but exact date for their departure is not known as yet. Possibly they will complete the first half of TIC schedule. Coach Jack Angel has stated the Devils are entered in the second half of Campbell's mural league.
Lawson AFB, highly rated in pre-season estimates, fell again last Monday night in the men's league. OC Regiment handed them their fourth loss to virtually remove the Flyers from title contention. John Vines' netted 30th Infantry squad will inherit 508th's league lead and favorite's role, with the OCs now providing the biggest threat.
In the scoring race, through Sunday night's games, John Economou had the most points, 152 in eight games while Goss, Second SR's recent addition, led in average per game with 30.5 in two starts.
The rapidly maturing OC Regiment Generals handed slumping Lawson AFB another loss as forward Jim Bachman ripped the Flyers defenses for 35 points. Trailing at halftime by a single point, the Generals pulled away in the final two frames to win 84-79. Reliable Ray Steiner mustered 23 points for the losing Lawson squad.
OC's revamped Commanders handed unbeaten 508th a scare for 20 minutes in the opener, and had the Red Devils at intermission on the short end of a 25-24 count. However, lack of height and reserves prevented the Commanders from keeping the swift pace set by the fast-breaking Devils, who ran at halftime by a single point. The Generals pulled away in the final two frames to win 84-79. Reliable Ray Steiner mustered 23 points for the losing Lawson squad.

With the Frayle-Shawney go back in action in the second half, the Flyers outscored 33-10 in the third frame to take a lead they never relinquished. Luther Fraley's calibrated eye was worth 13 points in the game, and C. Shawney led the STC.

Chico Vejar TKOs Harry Braelow

Chico Vejar brought up his heavy artillery Monday night to blast Harry Braelow of Miami with a TKO in 23 seconds of the sixth round in their March of Dimes benefit match for the Southern welterweight title. "Braelow's southpaw style, always troublesome to Chico, proved fatal for Vejar to handle until the fifth round, when the Stamford, Conn., ace caught Braelow with a stiff right that decked him for an eight count.
Miami Harry had a couple of furies after that, but Chico, a member of the First SR, belted him feely in the sixth until Referee Ed Falser stopped it.

22 Letter Man In OC Regiment

Alphabet soup anyone?
Four more letters and Officer Candidate Edward B. Lane of 10th OC Company can build an alphabet. The young athlete has earned 22 varsity letters for athletics in 3 separate sports.
In high school at Hartford, N. C., Lane won 12 varsity letters in football, basketball, and baseball. Because he wanted to be near home, he accepted an athletic scholarship to Atlantic Christian College, in preference to offers from Wake Forest, the U. of South Carolina, Davidson College, William and Mary and others.
In college Lane played 3 years as varsity fullback and was named to the All-Conference Team. He also played four years of baseball and three of basketball to run his letter total up to 22.

Commanders Lose Flyweight Bennett

The CTC boxing squad lost one of its members in the flyweight division recently.
Bob Bennett, who has been discharged won his last Army fight at Briant Wells on Dec. 10, by defeating Reg's Blain of the Brigade Medics on a unanimous decision.
The flyweight fighter is a native of High Point, North Carolina. Before entering the service, Bennett was well known in the ring, having fought in Golden Gloves and YMCA bouts.

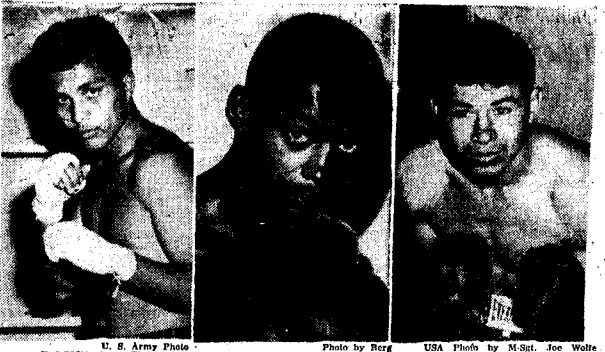

Peers ISD's Tony Bruschi as captured a CTC rebound and looks for a mate to pass to. Moving in to check Bruschi is Bill Thompson, while Dick Isenhardt, visible over Bruschi's shoulder rushes up reinforcements.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

The powers that be in the NCAA have their collective foot on the neck of a prostrate University of Kentucky basketball team, and evidently have no intention of letting the Wildcats arise.
The whole thing started during the panic fraught days of 1951 when a betting scandal was being uncovered at the rate of about one a week amongst the elite of the basketball world. It came to pass that foul play during the 1949-50 season was ferreted out. UK immortals Alex Groza (brother of Cleveland's Lou the Toe) and Ralph Beard were incriminated in gambling evidence, along with a lesser light who bore the intriguing name of Barnstable and was not a member of the starting lineup that swept to the national championship twice.
The threesome, it developed, had not intentionally caused Kaintuck to lose games, but—for a consideration—had shaved the 'Cats winning margin or gone "under the point spread" so that certain of the betting gentry could take advantage of the unexpected close score to win a few bucks.
Occasionally, things got out of hand and Kentucky lost games when the shave was too close.
A barb-tongued Puritan in magistrate's robes conducted the hearing which erupted from this mess, and likewise presided over a subsequent one which involved another UK ace, Bill Sprivey, who was never found guilty but resigned from the team on his own. Said Puritan, whom mere mortals address as His Honor, Judge-Saul Streit, sir, called down the wrath of the gods on the Pride of the Bluegrass State; questioning the motives, ancestry and general character of those associated with the Wildcat basketball scene.
A panicky NCAA, frantically seeking to stem the menace that threatened to wreck collegiate athletics, forbade Kentucky to field a cage team in 1952-53.
So much for the background picture. Up in Lexington, an innocent bunch of boys picked up the tab for what happened had four years earlier. They took the punishment with good grace, most of them, and continued to practice regularly, determined to put UK back on top and wipe out the blot on her name. Naturally they continued to attend classes and work toward their degrees. Deeply hurt by his earlier team's faithlessness Kentucky's great coach, Adolph Rupp, swore he'd never be satisfied until "the man who banned our team hands us the championship trophy."
When the season opened last December, it developed that nobody could beat Kentucky's veteran team, fused and welded together by incessant practicing during that enforced year's layoff. As time passed it became increasingly apparent that the Wildcats stood an excellent chance of arising from the swamps of disgrace to the national throne room. Apparently, the NCAA was appalled by this prospect.
Therefore, somebody dug up a rule which said that no postgraduates could participate in the playoffs for the national championship. This knocked out exactly 3-5 of the Wildcats starting lineup—All-Americans Cliff Hagan and Frank Ramsey along with highly capable Lou Tsiropoulos. All three had a year's eligibility left when the season began—the Southeastern Conference allows a boy a flat four years of participation—but Tsiropoulos received his Bachelor's degree last year, while Hagan and Ramsey are due for their sheepskins before the playoffs.
Without this triumvirate, Coach Rupp's Wildcats stand about as much chance of becoming national kings as the proverbial snowball in the proverbial place of great heat and overall unpleasantness.
It seems that the boys who paid the debt for the sins of another group are not through paying yet.
The entire affair reeks of an ancient and fishlike odor, and noises normally associated with the railroad industry can be heard if you listen closely.
The old parlor game of Musical Chair is sweeping the sports world these days as a list of personnel changes as long as chow lines in a consolidated mess have been noted.
The Milwaukee Braves, seeking to improve their second place finish of 1953, have added a couple of third basemen to their roster in the persons of Danny O'Connell—who'll probably take over second—and Bob-bey "Miracle Man" Thomson—who'll probably go to left field. It seems the Braves have a lad named Ed Matheys who is likely to stick around the hot corner in Milwaukee for a few seasons.
In football circles, King Frank Leahy of Notre Dame has abdicated, and youthful Terry Brennan has been crowned his successor; Murray Warmath of Mississippi State has moved to Minnesota to replace Wes Fesler; split-T wizard Darrell Royal will take Warmath's spot, and J. V. Sikes has migrated from Kansas to East Texas State.

Benning Boxers Cop 10 Titles In 'Bama Dis. Golden Gloves

Fort Benning boxers ran rampant over the field in Montgomery's district Golden Gloves competition last week to bring back 10 championship crowns and place 13 men in the state finals, which are scheduled Feb. 13 in Montgomery. Complete results on the final matches will be carried in next week's Bayonet.
Under the rules of participation in Alabama, there are 16 classes in Gloves competition—eight weights in colored and white divisions.
Championships were annexed by Regis Blair, David Midel, Jesse Florez, Gordon Van Loo and Joe Bowden for the White team, while the colored squad crowned Joe Clark, Dick Woodley, Herman Hinton, Ed Crook and Jim Boyd.
Losing in the final round, but still eligible for the state matches, were Leon Hall, Elvis Mathews and William Williams.
Headlining the final night's fighting was Crook's technical knockout of Leon Hall in an all-Benning championship match for the middleweight crown. Crook gained revenge for an earlier loss to Hall here on post by opening a gash above his left eye that forced the officials to stop the fight in 1:07 of the second round.
Impressive knockout wins were scored by Regis Blair and Jesse Florez as they sacked up the flyweight and lightweight titles. Blain cooled off Barney Biggs of Montgomery in 1:31 of the opening stanza, while Florez, needed only 56 seconds to dispose of Danny Dennis of Prattville.
Hinton and Van Loo monopolized the welterweight class by winning the two divisions over the technical knockout route. The fight between Hinton and T. J. Jones of Montgomery was stopped in 1:25 of the third round after Jones had absorbed two knockdowns. Herbert Steinberg of Craig AFB, Ala., was unable to answer the bell for the second round of his bout with Van Loo, All-Army finalist last year.
Lithe, powerful Jim Boyd won the light heavy title with a decision over Peter Smart of Montgomery who was last year's Southern king.
In addition, Dick Woodley, Joe Clark, Dave Midel and Joe Bowden were acclaimed champions for lack of competition.
On the other side of the ledger, big Joe Amos lost in the opening round of the heavyweight competition, and William Williams and Elvis Mathews lost in the finals. Williams lost a controversial decision to Montgomery police officer Ray Moody, and Mathews was adjudged the loser to Gurney Smith, 1953 All-Air Force champion in an extremely close split decision.
Rudy Fraraco, post middleweight, lost out in the preliminary fighting.

Red Ability For Info Amazes POW

At times the Communist guards at Korean prison camps appeared to be quite uncanny in discovering information about their prisoners. American captives were amazed at the amount of knowledge the Reds could get of their personal lives.

First Lt. George P. Shedd, supply officer of Heavy Mortar Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, can relate such an experience. For 33 months Lt. Shedd endured the mental and physical anguish of North Korean prison camps.

On one occasion, while being interrogated by the guards, Lt. Shedd was shocked to discover how much they knew of his personal history. They confronted him with the accurate report that his father, William E. Shedd, now deceased, was a former major general in the Army and had retired from military service.

Speculating on the manner in which they gained this knowledge, Lt. Shedd commented, "They had their ways of finding out these things."

LT. GEORGE P. SHEDD

In August 1950, in late 1950 he was fighting with the Seventh Regiment, Third Division in the Kum River defenses. On Dec. 3 his position near Huxori was overrun by the enemy. His unit suffered great losses in casualties and he was captured along with others.

He was taken to Red Prison Camp No. 2, the officers' camp. Here he remained until his release in 1953. During 1951 attempts to indoctrinate the prisoners were carried on almost daily. The inmates were forced to attend the Communist lectures, but they refused to listen to the propaganda.

Lt. Shedd was released on Aug. 28, 1953, after Operation Big Switch had begun. He arrived in the States on September 13. On January 8, 1954, he joined the Combat Training Command and assumed his duties at Heavy Mortar Company.

Lt. Shedd entered the Army in 1940 at Fort Benning. He is a native of Bradenton, Fla.

12 Nato Newsmen Get 1 Day Infantry Briefing

Twelve newsmen, representing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, received a one-day briefing on a typical day of operation at The Infantry School Tuesday.

The journalists from Belgium, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal and United Kingdom were welcomed to the school Tuesday morning by Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry School commandant.

During the morning, they received a general briefing on The Infantry School and its Operations Office. They visited the Publications and Visual Aids Office and witnessed paratroopers in training before lunch at the Main Officers' Mess.

The newsmen spent the afternoon studying the officer candidate program and received a briefing on equipment used by the Communications Department.

They left Fort Benning late Tuesday afternoon to continue their tour of industrial and cultural centers and military installations in the U. S.

Now a member of the Fort Benning board, Capt. O'Leary served with the Seventh Division Artillery and Eighth Army Flight Detachment in Korea as an Army aviator before he became Gen. Taylor's pilot.

One-Man Attack Won High Award For SR Officer

Capt. Wiley McGarity of Atlanta, Ga., now attending the associate advanced officers course in Third Co., First Student Regiment, applied for a direct commission in Feb. 1949 as a Second Lieutenant and was sent to Korea and assigned to the Seventh Division.

When his regiment was committed while going through Seoul, Capt. McGarity was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism.

His company was in defensive positions on a strategic hill and was attacked by about 300 of the enemy who penetrated his company's position on the hill. Capt. McGarity, armed with only a pistol and grenades, met a withering hail of small arms fire and launched a one-man attack against the enemy, killing six before his ammunition was gone.

Although wounded, Capt. McGarity grabbed some enemy grenades and an abandoned carbine and continued the assault. His ammo gone, he took an entrenching tool and killed two more of the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. The remainder fled.

OC Seeking Discrepancies Of Old Wars

Two-hundred-thirty-one men participated in the Battle of Little Bighorn, Custer's last stand, but there are 356 recorded "only survivors of the battle." That's just one of the problems Officer Candidate Robert M. Uley of the 10th OC Company finds interesting in his study of "Custer's Last Stand."

A movie, "They Died With Their Boots On," first interested Uley in this particular battle. The OC holds an A.B. Degree from Purdue University and an M.A. in history from Indiana University.

In 1947, while still in high school, Uley took a trip to the Custer Battlefield National Monument in Southeastern Montana. It is located at the base of the Big Horn Mountains, in the middle of the Crow Indian Reservation. He talked with Major Edward S. Luce, a retired Cavalry officer who is director of the park, and landed a job. Since then Uley has spent each Summer working as historian, lecturer, administrator, and police director.

INTRODUCING . . . Miss Alice Claire Humphrey of Brookfield, Conn., but don't get any ideas! The sandy haired, blue eyed girl may be the Sweetheart of 11th Officer Candidate Company but she's also the fiancée of OC John Hoff of West Hartford, Conn. She is 5'3" tall and weighs 108 lbs., but all other measurements are a military secret.

Red Devils Slate Campbell Move On Wednesday

To the appropriate strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is scheduled to move out of Fort Benning next—Wednesday morning for Fort Campbell, Ky., there to become a unit of the 82d Airborne Division.

A rear echelon will remain behind under command of Major Patrick R. Ward to complete details of the movement, and will probably leave some time before the end of the month.

An advance party under command of Second Lt. Coy M. Coltingworth rolled north last week to pave the way for movement of the main body.

The main convoy will head into downtown Columbus from Traffic Circle and then take U. S. Highway 481 through Opelika, Ala. An overnight bivouac will be staged at Red Stone Arsenal near Huntsville, Ala., and the next morning the unit will leave for Nashville, Tenn., completing the journey to Fort Campbell, it is expected, by nightfall.

Commanded by Col. Glenn J. McGowan, a pioneer parachutist and twice-wounded veteran of World War II, the component parts include 508th Infantry Regiment, 320th Airborne FA Battalion, 508th Airborne Engineer Company, and the 519th Airborne QM Detachment.

Born in 1951, the combat team was born Aug. 1, 1951, when the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment and the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion were combined at Fort Benning. With the 508th Airborne Engineer Company joining their forces later, the regiment expanded to the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Post Men to Take Part In Colossal Maneuvers

Troops from twelve Fort Benning units will take part in the Army's colossal Exercise Flash Burn, during April and May at Fort Bragg, N. C. Flash Burn, the largest and most important maneuver of its kind ever conducted by United States Armed Forces, is designed for training in tactics and strategic use of atomic weapons.

Included in the operation will be the 112th Transportation Battalion, 33rd, 149th and 66th Transportation Truck Companies, 90th Helicopter Company, 152nd Field Maintenance Detachment, 54th Medical Battalion, 7th Evacuation Hospital, 932nd Medical Clearing Company, 913th Ambulance Company 3657th Ordnance Company and 497th Postal Unit. Among the deputy directors of the mammoth exercise is Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland.

Maneuver Site Site for the maneuvers will be the rugged Fort Bragg-Camp Mackail section of North Carolina where previous exercises have proved to be excellent for the purpose. On the agenda are defense against enemy air attack, land mine warfare and instruction in CBR devices.

The exercise will be supported by air, and one of a series planned by the Department of Defense in order to attain the level of preparedness demanded for national security.

Battle condition realism will be added by aggressor forces provided by cadre from Fort Riley, Kans., the 27th RCT from Fort Devens, Mass., and the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment from Camp Pickett, Va.

Major participating units will be the XVIII Airborne Corps Headquarters, the 308th Logistics Command, the 82nd Airborne Division and the 37th Division.

Plans for Flash Burn began last August, when a limited staff start-work at Fort McPherson, Ga. (Please See ATOMIC, Page 7)

The assistant secretary and his party, including Mrs. Milton, will arrive in Atlanta by commercial air lines Friday afternoon and on the following morning will be officially welcomed by General Bolting at an Honor Guard Ceremony.

Following a conference at headquarters, Milton, accompanied by General Bolting, will depart for Fort Benning. The party will return in the late afternoon after a quick look at some of the activities at the Infantry Center.

Bars or Stripes—Merlyn Wonders

SFC Miner Merlyn of Chicago, Ill., assigned to the 534th Signal Company, Special Troops Command, last week received two different promotions in as many days.

Recently he received a direct commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve. The very next day he was promoted from sergeant to sergeant first class.

Promotions and changes of rank have come so fast for Merlyn that he isn't sure just what he is, besides being supply sergeant for the 534th.

Belles to Visit Post Saturday

An "all-Hoosier" welcome is being planned for the Belles of Indiana, a 40-voice girl chorus from Indiana University, who will visit Fort Benning Saturday.

The Special Services Section said 40 enlisted men, all from Indiana, will act as a special welcoming committee.

The talented young singing group, under the direction of Eugene Bayless, instructor in the university School of Music, will present a program of popular music at 8:30 p.m. in the Main Theater.

The group also will visit 10 other Army posts and Air Force bases this month.

605 Students Start Infantry Classes

More than 605 students reported Monday to begin classes at The Infantry School, and officials said that 843 students will graduate this week.

Classes opening on Monday were radio maintenance, 55 students, and officers communications, 50 students. Two basic airborne courses with 250 students each opened today and Tuesday.

Graduating were 45 students in the unit automotive supervisors course, 48 in Infantry sound ranging, and 750 in basic airborne.

Gen. Meloy Bids 508th Adieu

Saying goodbye should be easy for us in the military service—we get lots of practice at it. When the time comes, though, it is never easy.

It is particularly difficult to have to bid goodbye to the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Since they came to Fort Benning in 1951, the Red Devils have won a place of esteem in our community. They have worked hard in the training areas, played hard on the athletic fields. They have shown immeasurable energy and enthusiasm. When called upon to do a job they have gone at it full tilt. They have made an impression. They have made themselves known.

The 508th Airborne RCT is a distinctive organization, and its members wear distinction with a pride that is fitting. Their unit spirit inspires envy and merits emulation.

They are simultaneously soldierly and colorful—a rare combination, and a valuable one.

Their departure from the post will leave a gap that won't be easy to fill, because in them we have had more than just a grouping of individuals; they are a TEAM in fact as well as in name, and a team is always something more than just the sum of its components. It is the "something more" that has given the 508th its unique quality, its flavor and its flair.

Rest assured that the 508th Airborne RCT, its officers, its men, its families, troopers all, will carry with them the best wishes of all of us at TIC.

May success stay with you, Red Devils, and may all your landings be happy ones. We will miss you.

M. Dillender, Jr., hit upon the motto "Fury From The Sky," for the new 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment.

The first combat jump of the original 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment was into Normandy on June 6, 1944, with the 62nd Airborne Division.

Having made 252 jumps in his long and colorful career he is believed to have chalked up a new record in this hazardous calling.

In appreciation of his work with the 508th he was presented, upon leaving, with a bronze statuette by Col. Glenn J. McGowan, 508th commander, as a token of the Presidential Unit Citation for heroism and gallantry.

While attached to the Turkish Brigade, the team covered artillery, fire direction centers, communications, and the assault on Khumwa.

Commanders have been requested to encourage the submission of applications by enlisted personnel whose MOS are 1121, 1184, 1185, 4906, 4919, 6145 and 4880.

Warrant Officers are needed as artillery electronics assistants, guided missile integrated fire control assistants, guided missile material assistants, fire control maintenance repair officers, guided missile maintenance and repair officers, radar maintenance and repair, and engineer equipment maintenance and repair.

Applications should be submitted and processed in accordance with SR 140-106-1, as amended, and qualified enlisted personnel now serving on active duty in grades E-5 and E-6 are urged to apply for appointment in any of these specialties excepting MOS 4880, where the applicant must be in Grade E-7.

Fort Benning's 146,000 acres of woodland received added fire protection this month when a radio net was installed for the use of the Forestry Department.

The radio net consists of 60-watt transmitters on tower No. 1 in the post's Harmony Church area and tower No. 3 at the intersection of Buena Vista and Plymouth Roads.

Officer Duties Come to Wac After 6 Years

WAC Sgt. Patricia E. Leedham, Benning since December 1952. Now assigned to The Infantry Center Message Control Section, she will leave this week for Fort Lee, Va., where she will enroll in the WAC officers' course.

After basic training 1948 she was assigned to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, Calif., for two years. Ordered to the Far East in 1950 she served the next two years in the 82nd WAC Company in Tokyo.

A 1946 graduate of Estacada (Ore.) High School, she worked for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company before joining the WAC.

She has held a Reserve commission for the past year.

Carrying out his assignment as combat photographer, Rubenstein got to know the Turks well and developed a healthy respect for them. On one mission, his jeep was spotted by the Chinese and he was forced to run out under a mortar barrage.

The only casualty was his fountain pen, and since they were scarce at the front, he didn't write a letter home for six months.

Another record was set when more than 400 officers and enlisted men were furnished each day, excluding Saturday and Sunday, from the battalion.

Although the total number of problems was not as high as in previous months, the Third Army command inspection and the annual inspector general's inspection made the accomplishment even greater, according to Lt. Col. Gus W. Schlitzkus, commanding officer, who sent a letter of appreciation to all members of his command.

Mrs. Gasser Will Be Faced With Hard Role in 'Ghost'

Mrs. Mary Ann Gasser, wife of Lt. Harold P. Gasser, will play the role of Nancy in the Fort Benning Little Theatre production, Gramercy Ghost.

Mrs. Gasser brings to her role a rich background of theatrical experience. She majored in speech and drama at Emerson College in Boston, Mass., from which she was graduated in 1950.

During 1949 Mary Ann appeared in Summer stock at the Frisella Beach Theatre, Plymouth, Mass., in "Junior Miss," "Charley's Aunt," "Ninety Girls," and "Out of the Erying Fan."

In 1953 she appeared on TV and radio in Detroit, Mich., as a commentator for TV fashion shows and in the presentation of famous short stories and children's plays. In her home town, Dearborn, Mich., Mary Ann was a member of the Players' Guild and her roles there varied from that of Sadie Thompson in "Rain" to the princess in "Princess and the Swineherd."

In the role of Nancy she must portray the complicated character of a girl who is visited by a ghost, nobody else can see and who must convince others that she is not out of her mind, all the while being a little dubious about the whole thing herself.

Major Curtis Alloway will be seen as Nancy's fiancé, M-Sgt. Frederick Sando as a helpful reporter, and Mrs. Howard T. Cohen as the sympathetic housekeeper.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS

The young platoon leader called in the fire mission over the radio. He gave his own position. "Send it along," he said. "We're pulling out."

For Second Lt. Steve H. Wood of the 17th Inf. Regt., Seventh Inf. Div., it was the end of a busy day, a day of "extraordinary heroism" that won him the Distinguished Service Cross. It was July 8, 1953.

The platoon from Fox Co. had been pinned down by fire from an enemy bunker. They had been moving out from positions near Pork Chop Hill to reinforce an advance outpost that had been hit by enemy attack.

Lt. Wood refused to let the bunker stop his platoon's advance. Alone, he crept forward to the bunker, rushed it and killed eight of its occupants with grenades and his pistol. Lt. Wood signaled his men to advance and led a stab-of pain. He had been hit by grenade fragments. As his men moved forward, Lt. Wood heard cries for help from a near-by bunker. Five U.N. soldiers had been trapped there by an explosion. The lieutenant, with his hands, wrenched aside the logs and dirt to free the men. Then he continued to the top of a hill—fighting off the enemy and organizing his defense on its crest.

Another grenade burst bit into his flesh. His clothes were soaked with sweat and blood, but he hauled grenades into a trench in his front forcing the Chinese there to take flight. Then he directed the fire that felled 12 enemy soldiers.

The order to withdraw came and Lt. Wood started moving his men back. At the same time he called for the artillery fire that stopped the enemy from bringing up new troops.

PIPES SHOWN HERE PRODUCE NO SOUND Music Comes From Intricate Hidden Works Main Post Chapel Organ Has 750 Pipes; Some Have 8,000

Lake City, have as many as 8,000 pipes or more.

Contrary to what many people think, the pipes which are seen in most organ cases make no sound at all but are simply for display purposes. What we hear comes from behind these cases.

Hammond Explained

In contrast to the pipe organ, the Hammond contains no pipes; the mechanics of the instrument, save for the loud speakers, are contained in the console. The sound is produced electronically by a rotating cylinder and is amplified by the means of loud speakers.

The two instruments are played in the same manner but the resulting sound is different. Hammonds are particularly good for the Army chapels because of their flexibility and the fact that they are very compact. If necessary, they can be moved without a great deal of trouble. Of course, there is, too, a big difference in the cost of an electronic instrument and a pipe organ, so they are a saving to the government.

Wright Named As First Sarge

M-Sgt. George L. Wright has assumed duties as first sergeant of company D, 20th Infantry regiment.

A veteran of 11 years service, the new first sergeant of Dog Company first saw action in 1942 participating in the landings on Sicily and Salerno. Later that year, he joined the Third Ranger Battalion, which was almost annihilated landing at Anzio.

Following this action, he was assigned to the First Special Service Force and later to the 50th Airborne Regiment. In Korea in 1953 he was assigned to the 8240th AV UNPK. He wears the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and three Unit Citations.

Top studio talent is being recruited by 20th Century-Fox to produce in CinemaScope and Technicolor a highly varied program of short subjects ranging from travel, spectacle, and special events to musical specialties. One of the shorts planned is "A Day Aboard a Jet Carrier," in which the audience will ride a jet plane; and "Movie Stunt Pilot," in which they will crash right along with famed stunt flier Paul Mantz.

Weighty Problem
 Mohammedan standards of feminine beauty, which accept plumpness as an asset, are giving Warner Bros. casting department a few headaches. Tom Hully-patched harem is to grace a Moslem harem needed for "The Tahitian," starring Virginia Mayo, Rex Harrison, George Sanders and Laurence Harvey. It seems that a combination of plumpness and alluring beauty is pretty scarce in Hollywood. So far 100 white-skinned, black-eyed potential-houris

Second SR Man Is Atomic Scientist

There is an atomic energy expert enrolled in the 125th Company, basic infantry officer class 15-A. The scientist is Second Lieut. Harold W. Giesler, 23, from Elmore, Ohio. He was called to active duty soon after graduation from the Oak Ridge School of Reactor Technology, which is operated by the Oak Ridge National Laboratory for the Atomic Energy Commission. The school is concerned with the study of nuclear reactors, and the program includes many vitally important military applications.

Asked about the military applications of atomic energy, Giesler said he was particularly interested in atomic reactors as sources of electrical energy, such as were mentioned in President Eisenhower's "Atomic Point Four Plan" recently presented to the United Nations General Assembly. Giesler said, "Such power plants would be ideal for bases in the polar regions where it is necessary to have a power source to maintain airfields, radar stations, and other military installations. Lieut. Giesler went from the farm to the Laboratory. He took his undergraduate work at the University of Toledo, where he studied chemical engineering and graduated at the top of his class. In addition to other activities he was cadet battalion commander of the ROTC battalion and distinguished military student. It was ROTC that landed him in the Infantry. He made application for a technical assignment in atomic energy but was turned down as unqualified because he was not a first lieutenant with three years experience.

Navy Designs 'Space Helmet' To Ease Kids' Fear of Knife

By CPL. RICHARD E. SNOW USA (AFPS Washington Correspondent)

"Out of this world" is the only description which can be pinned on the Navy's newest gimmick—an anesthesia "space helmet" which sends kiddies to "Cloud Eight" before surgical treatment. The first test-hop proved a soaring success.

A Naval "task force" of the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., originated the new helmet which has been successfully tested on four-year-old Jimmy Bowden, son of a Navy chief stationed at Bethesda.

Jimmy, up for a tonsillectomy, balked at the operation until he heard of the space helmet. The little space cadet was told the helmet was a requirement prior to blasting off on a jaunt into the nether regions.

After rocketing to Mars where a Martian surgeon snipped off his tonsils, Jimmy floated back to earth and commented, "Pretty sharp trick."

Much of the unpleasantness formerly associated with anesthesia and a considerable amount of fear the average child has for hospitals is prevented by the use of the space helmet.

The clear plastic permits the patient a wide-range view of his surroundings and he is assured oxygen is being introduced into the helmet to permit him to breathe freely while on his space trip.

After the cyclopropane gas and oxygen is administered and the space cadet is unconscious, the helmet is removed, ether given, and the necessary operation performed.

The idea for the helmet originated with CRD D. J. Giorgio, chief of anesthesia, and his associate, Lt. J. G. Morrow. It was constructed by CDR J. V. Mirman, chief of prosthodontics service at Bethesda's Medical School.

Noonan Assigned To Auto Faculty

Major James H. Noonan, Jr., of Seattle, Wash., has been assigned to the faculty of The Infantry School's Automotive Department. Adjutant of the 27th Infantry Regiment in Korea before assuming his Infantry School post, Major Noonan was stationed at Fort Benning on two other occasions. He was a student in the Infantry special basic course in 1944 and the field officers' refresher course in 1952.

During World War II he served as executive officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 15th Army Group in Austria.

Before entering the Army, Buckshot specialized in riding bareback horse in rodeos; and when the shows weren't operating the Texán worked at ranches breaking in wild horses.

12 Post Units to Take Part In N. C. Atomic Maneuvers

The recently unveiled 280 millimeter cannon, capable of firing conventional and atomic projectiles up to 15 miles with accuracy, will be brought into play during the operation, along with the "Honest John" heavy artillery rocket and the ground-to-ground missile dubbed the "Corporal."

Ex-Benning OC Wins Patterson Annual Award

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — The second annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award has been won by a 24-year-old Army second lieutenant from Seattle, Wash., who was selected as the outstanding 1953 graduate of The Infantry Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning. It was announced today upon receipt of information from the Department of the Army.

Feb. 12, birthday of the late Patterson, has been selected as the day on which Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens will present the award to Lieutenant Robert J. Genesee. The award consists of an engraved trophy, a scroll, and a sum of money, will be made in Secretary Stevens' office in the Pentagon at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

Established a year ago, the Patterson Memorial Award is administered by the New York Community Trust, which each year selects the Fort Benning graduate who most distinguishes himself by demonstrating qualities of leadership, academic efficiency, aptitude and character.

Lieutenant Genesee was chosen as the Infantryman who best met those qualifications from among 2,100 graduates of The Infantry Officer Candidate School in 1953.

Patterson was himself an outstanding Infantryman. He entered the Army as a private and was graduated from Officers Training Camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., in 1917. While serving with the AEF in France, he won the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, and the Purple Heart. In September 1945 he succeeded Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War and held that cabinet post until he resigned in July 1947.

Lt. Genesee is the son of Arthur J. Genesee, Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Norman J. McCurdy, Seattle. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Williams College and entered the Army in January 1953. On July 4, 1953 he entered The Infantry Officer Candidate School and was graduated as a second lieutenant on Dec. 13. He is now on duty in the Pentagon.

Wood Presented 3 Awards At Same Benning Ceremony

The Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with V device, and the Purple Heart were presented last week at Fort Benning to an experimenter of war for gallantry and service in Korea.

First Lt. Robert S. Wood of Washington, D. C., who was for 34 months a prisoner of the Reds, received the three decorations in a brief ceremony from Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, The Infantry School's assistant commandant.

An instructor on the Weapons Department's technique of rifle fire committee since coming here last November, Lt. Wood won the Silver Star for gallantry in action against the enemy near Yongdon, Korea, July 25, 1950.

Lt. Wood was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism in action Sept. 4, 1950, near Kapsan. His company was ambushed by a numerically superior enemy while he was leading his platoon, as the advance element, to reinforce a besieged engineer company.

"With complete disregard for his own safety," the citation read, "Lt. Wood immediately returned the fire of the enemy, staying in his position to cover the withdrawal of his company. His prompt action and marked courage so distracted the enemy that Lt. Wood's company was able to withdraw from a perilous position with light casualties."

It's Bums or Else For Col. Johnson

Lt. Col. Edward C. Johnson of Fort Benning is one Brooklyn Dodger fan who has little choice in the matter.

His wife, Mrs. Gladys Johnson, is the sister of Roy Campanella, Flatbush catcher, and the National League's Most Valuable Player of 1953.

Col. Johnson, who holds a master's degree in education from North Carolina A & T College, is no stranger to the athletic field himself. A youth worker for the government before entering the service in 1941, he coached an AAU championship basketball team.

At present he is a student in The Infantry School's field officers' refresher course.

T&E Banishing Bad Reading Habit

Fort Benning troops are reading better and faster because they have learned to recognize bad reading habits.

And they are taught how to overcome these habits by the Speed Reading Laboratory operated by the post's Troop Information and Education Section under 2nd Lt. Thomas E. Kingery, Sfc. Frank C. Dubuque is his assistant.

Average gain for students who have completed the reading improvement course has been 82 per cent in speed and five to 10 per cent in comprehension, officials report. Records show that one graduate now reads 1,140 words a minute with 90 per cent comprehension.

Most educated adults stumble along at about 250 words a minute and comprehend only about 70 per cent of what they read, according to officials at the laboratory who claim that many habits causing this "slowness and low comprehension can be improved.

Bad Habits Most common of the bad reading habits is poor eye movement. The Speed Reading Laboratory attempts to eliminate the habit of bringing the eyes to rest on the printed page. Officials say the average reader makes as many as 10 stops, or fixations, in reading a single printed line. Three would be sufficient.

Other bad reading habits are re-reading what has already been read and mentally forming each word on the page.

To make the reader conscious of his faulty reading habits, the laboratory takes a picture of his eye movements, while reading, on a machine called an Ophthalmograph which records the reflections of the reader's eye. From the resulting film it is possible to point out the number and duration of stops, or fixations, number of times he rereads a passage, and his reading rate.

Rate Controller

The student spends about half his time at a reading rate controller whose shutter covers the page as he reads. The shutter can be timed to move any desired number of words per minute. As the student forces himself to read at an ever-increasing speed, he breaks himself of mentally forming each word since, after reaching 400 words a minute, he no longer has time to do this. Eye movement is improved because the reader must shorten the duration of his stops to keep ahead of the shutter.

About one quarter of the student's time is spent on the Tachistoscope, a machine designed to increase the span of recognition and decrease the duration of stops.

Five to nine digit numbers are flashed on a screen 1-100 of a second. As the reader improves before entering the service in 1941, he coached an AAU championship basketball team.

At present he is a student in The Infantry School's field officers' refresher course.

GREYHOUND

And So They Got Hitched

Twice-Wounded French Captain Happy Here as Student

War had worked the captain over pretty well by the time he arrived at the hospital in Japan, a bundle of bandages and broken bones.

But fate then showed its brighter side. The captain married his nurse, an American, and now is at Fort Benning with her and their daughter Catherine, three months old.

months and reams of red tape later, Jean-Pierre and his American nurse had signed their own private Franco-U. S. pact.

Capt. Liron, whose home is in Montpellier, France, has been in the Army for 10 years and is a 1945 graduate of the French Military Academy. Of his 10 years service, he has spent only one and a half years in France. He served in North Africa, Germany, Austria, Indochina, and Korea.

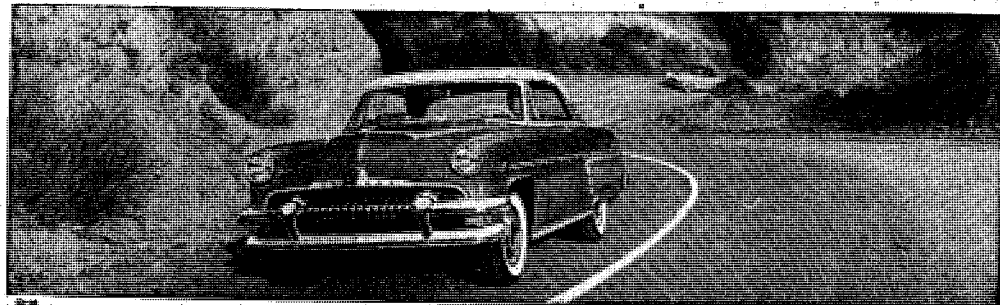

Young to have reached the rank of a captain in the French Army, Jean-Pierre was in Indo-China from 1946 to 1949 and went to Korea in December 1951. He was wounded in both conflicts.

Police Action

"We consider the Indochina situation a police action, but the fighting there and in Korea cannot be compared," the Frenchman said. "The climate in Indochina is much worse and the rate of disease is much higher."

Mrs. Liron, one of a family of eight girls and sister to six other nurses, received her training at Kentucky Baptist Hospital in Louisville, graduating in 1949. She serv-

Why Mercury's New Ball-Joint gives you easier, safer control on curves

Ball-joint front wheel suspension is the newest, most advanced method known to engineers of connecting the front wheels to the chassis.

Instead of stiff "double-hinge" kingpins—used by all other cars in Mercury's price class—Mercury uses ball-and-socket joints, much like those used on rearview mirrors, to permit unrestricted movement in all directions.

They result in virtually friction-free front-wheel motion, up and down over bumps, back and forth around corners. There's no binding or sticking. You have matchless hug-the-road, stability on curves, finer control at all times.

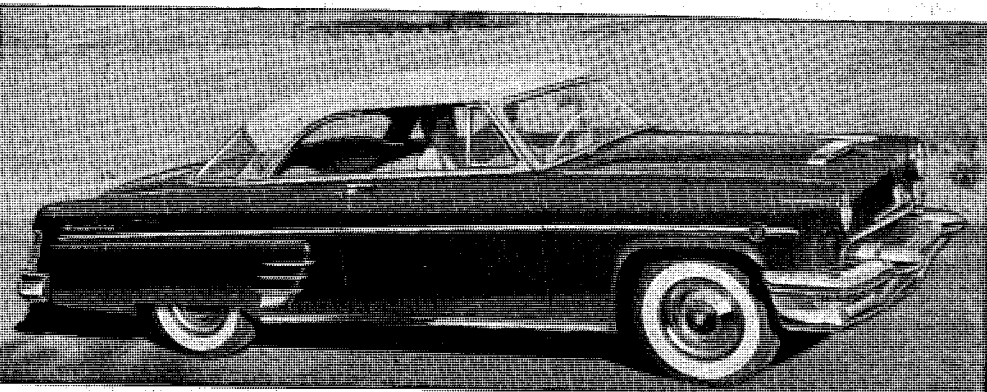

And this is just one of the new Mercury features. There's an entirely new 161-horsepower, overhead valve V-8 engine, a complete line of optional power features, new styling front and back, and stunning new interiors. And there's America's first transparent-top production car—the Mercury Sun Valley.

There's quite a show going on at our showroom. Why not drop around?

Jock Sutherland Furnishes Top Scoring Threat for 30th

BY FRANK SULLIVAN
Charles "Jock" Sutherland, high-scoring guard for the 30th Infantry basketball squad, is one of the outstanding reasons for that team's success this season.
Sutherland is the "Mr. Outside" of the 30th team, pouring in numerous points from the outer fringes. His amazing accuracy at hitting the basket from 'way out has been the deciding factor in many close games this season.
Through Monday's games, Sutherland was the post's leading scorer with 18.2 points per contest. This, however, is only part of the vital role he has played in crucial tilts. For instance, in the upset of the highly touted Lawson Field squad, Jock's passing and play-making led to that victory.
Probably Jock's top performance came last week in a vital game with challenging OC Regiment. He wound up with 25 points, but that was only part of the story. With two seconds remaining and the 30th behind by one point, Jock flipped in a hook shot to turn defeat into victory. "That was probably the only hook shot I'll ever make in my life," he grinned.
This veteran of the hardwood court displays his form equally as well on defense. He guards closely, stealing the ball or intercepting passes when the least opportunity presents itself. At all times he is the expert ball handler, remaining cool under pressure.
His years of experience with college and all-star squads have for John Vines, mentor of the 30th molded him into a player full of

JOCK SUTHERLAND

30th Inf. Holds Cage Lead By Turning Back OCs, Lawson

The high-riding 30th Infantry Blues took a commanding lead in the post basketball race by turning back the challenges of First OC Regiment and Lawson AFB during the past week's play. The 30th, who moved into first place when former tenant 500th AHCCT departed, now holds a two-game lead over the OC Generals, as the last half of the season gets underway.
The individual scoring race tightened up into a three-man affair involving 30th's Frank Glenn and Jock Sutherland and Lawson's Ray Steiner. Through Monday's games, Sutherland led 200 points, Glenn 199 and Steiner 194. Second SR's Bob Goss continued to lead in average per game with 27.0 in three starts.
Feb. 8
The tall, talented OC Generals marked up the highest point total of the season in trouncing Special Troops Command, 96-62. Shooting for the century mark before a houseful of supporters, the Generals fell short by four points as the Raiders put the ball in deep trees for the twenty minutes. Big Frank Barker hit his scoring stride again by pouring through 27 points. Johnny Niberti followed close with 24, and newcomer Don Keats counted 22 for the Raiders. In the second game, the 30th Infantry Blues smoothly-functioning game devoured an improving 15D squad by 74-55. Twin terrors Glenn and Sutherland meshed 17 and 22 points for the Blues, who started slowly but picked up momentum late in the opening frame. Charlie Smith's rebounding and John Blais's floor work were bright spots in the 30th's win.

The easy-going Vagabond Kings of Detroit sauntered past Special Troops Command, 77-59, in a last-seconds play featuring attraction, George Hall, 6-6 pivot man, casually chucked in 35 points for the Kings, who played untrilled basketball most of the way. Marty Saul, brother of the Minneapolis Lakers' Pep Saul, put on a crowd-pleasing dribbling act, and Mike Magula displayed some ball handling that had that professional touch.
The opening game, which had considerably more snap and dash, saw John Vines' 30th squad outgun Lawson AFB in the second half to win 75-51. The Flyers seized the lead midway in the second period and held a five-point advantage for two minutes remaining. However the Blues began to percolate at this point and grabbed a 32-29 margin by intermission. Earnest Thompson carried the Flyer offense on his capable shoulders, scoring 24 points and plucking numerous rebounds off both boards.
Feb. 5
Ace guard Jock Sutherland sank a hook shot with two seconds remaining to give 30th Infantry a dramatic, last-gasp victory over the dangerous OC Generals, 66-65. The lead changed hands three or four times in an action-packed closing 90 seconds during which Sutherland bucketed six points to keep the Blues in the game. A pair of free throws put the Generals ahead with the second hand on its final upward sweep, but Sutherland grabbed a rebound and launched the victory-bearing shot out of a wild melee under the OC goal.

Ex Ho of D Star Learns to Shave

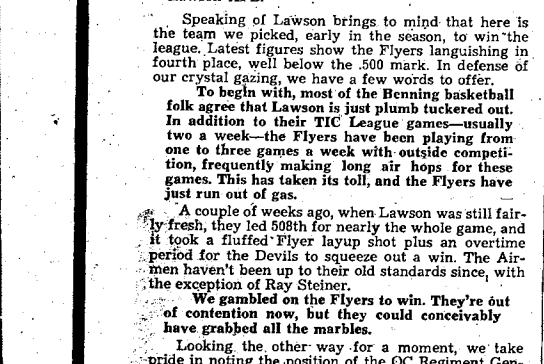

FT. BLISS, Tex. (APPS) — Pvt. James M. Boatman is about 113 years too late. Back in 1942 his beard might have meant a promotion—beards were regulation for officers back then according to general orders issued at Ft. Riley, Kans.
But in 1953 the beard is no longer considered fashionable in the Army. All it means to Pvt. Boatman is an extra-long session with the razor. The Army said it had to come off.
Pvt. Boatman grew the beard to help his baseball career. You guessed it. The 25-year old catcher played with the House of David team from 1948-1953 after leaving the Cleveland Indian farm club at Oklahoma City. Before that he had attended Baylor University on a football scholarship.
Everybody on a House of David team wears a beard. But beards in the Army are few and far between, so Boatman is getting used to shaving every day again, something he hasn't done since 1949.

Jack Kramer to Bring Professional Tennis Troups to Benning March 21

BY BOB SHOGAN
Jack Kramer will bring his 1954 collection of professional tennis greats to Briant Wells Field House March 21 for a one-night sudden death tournament.
Pancho Gonzales, Pancho Segura, Don Budge and Frank Sedgman of Australia will battle it out for cash prizes in three singles matches. Then three members of the troop will join Kramer in a doubles match.
All matches will consist of one long and one short set, what Kramer describes as a "pro tour match." It replaces the usual two out of three and three out of five set contest.
The player first winning eight games—before his foe wins seven—is the victor in the match. He can win the match anywhere from 8-0 to 8-4. After a 7-7 count the deuce rule prevails and a player must gain a two-game lead to win.
Doubles matches will be played on a pattern of rotation set in advance. Prize money of $1,500 will be at stake during the one-night tournament, Kramer said, with $750 going to the winner and the rest to be divided among the also-rans.

The hustling CTC Commanders reached previously undreamed-of pinnacles by plastering another defeat on the skidding Lawson Flyers; 79-67. Bill Thompson, Frank Chan and Bob Burrows combined scoring forces to shove the Commanders into a big lead in the second period which they never came close to relinquishing. After a tight first quarter, Lawson cooled off in the second and only managed two field goals while the Commanders were engineering nine.
500th Airborne made his basketball exit wearing fresh laurel wreaths at the expense of Special Troops Command. The Flyers outscored the Raiders 80-55 to end their participation in the post circuit unbeaten in nine starts. Tip-in specialist Larry Ivan showed the way for the Devils by scoring 23 points. Jim Corley had 11, and the (Please See 20TH, Page 14)

Speaking of Lawson brings to mind that here is the team we picked, early in the season, to win the league. Latest figures show the Flyers languishing in fourth place, well below the .500 mark. In defense of our crystal gazing, we have a few words to offer.
To begin with, most of the Benning basketball folk agree that Lawson is just plumb tuckered out. In addition to their TIC League games—usually two a week—the Flyers have been playing from one to three games a week with outside competition, frequently making long air hops for these games. This has taken its toll, and the Flyers have just run out of gas.
A couple of weeks ago, when Lawson was still fairly fresh, they led 508th for nearly the whole game, and it took a fluffed Flyer layup shot plus an overtime period for the Devils to squeak out a win. The Air-men haven't been up to their old standards since, with the exception of Ray Steiner.
We gambled on the Flyers to win. They're out of contention now, but they could conceivably have grabbed all the marbles.
Looking the other way for a moment, we take pride in noting the position of the OC Regiment Generals. In their first outing, the OCs were far from impressive in losing to STC, but we selected them to finish fifth and defended this by predicting improvement. The Generals did just that—improve. They're now sailing along in second place, following the abdication of 508th. Surprising, to us anyway, has been the collapse of First Student Regiment and the rise of Second Student Regiment. Most coaches are ready for a full evening when they play the Rockets, and that's usually just what they get.
Charles "Jock" Sutherland has all smiles following 30th Infantry's narrow, one-point win over the OC Regiment. "I was worried," he allowed, "plenty worried." Jock went on to say that the loss of Frank Glenn and Brice Holt early in the second half had left 30th without a pivot player, and necessitated some hasty improvising.
"We sent Jack McMahon over to the post, and he really came through for us. He had a big hand in setting up our last three baskets," Sutherland recalled. "He passed to me for one, picked off my man to let me through for another, and got the ball up for that last one."
Sutherland played his college ball at the University of Kentucky, and spent part of last season touring with the famed Detroit Vagabond King, who appeared here last Sunday. He is presently awaiting overseas orders and doesn't know how many more games he will be available for.

Basketball briefs—A sort of cage version of Casey Stengel is Andy Myers, head man of the surging CTC basketball squad. Stengel achieved his success by judiciously juggling his players to get the most from them, and that's just what Andy has done with the Commanders.

CTC certainly doesn't have the depth of personnel some of the leading clubs boast, but Andy experimented around, trying this player here and that player there, constantly switching and testing until he came up with five men who possibly were not the best five individuals on the squad, but were the right combination. Handy Andy then adopted a style of play that would take best advantage of their collective talents, and the result has been three straight wins, including one over once-potent Lawson AFB.

If ever a football coach walked into a stacked deck, Bear Bryant is doing just that when he takes over at Texas A&M.
The Aggies were once a powerhouse. Their 1939 squad rated as the nation's best, but dark days have fallen Aggeland since then and they have mustered only a dozen or so conference wins in the last 15 years.
Reason for this is the fact that Texas A&M is a military school that is rated as one of the toughest anywhere. Freshmen are subjected to a virtually ceaseless harassment campaign by the upperclassmen. At one time less than 50 per cent of the incoming fresh stayed to finish out the school term. This program undoubtedly produces good reserve officers, but football players prefer the more sheltered life at other schools where all the knocks they have to take are dishked out on the gridiron.
The result is that there's just not much material at A&M for the Bear to build with, and barring a big change in school policy, there isn't likely to be any.

FORT BENNING'S 1954 ALABAMA GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPIONS
Front: Woodley, Blair, Clark, Florez, Van Loo. Back: Colley, Charleston, Boyd, Salvato.

Post Boxers Win 9

A rugged Fort Benning boxing team swept to nine Golden Gloves championships last week in Montgomery, winning the colored team title and placing second in the white division. Four more post boxers went to the final bout before loss.
Championships were won by Regis Blair, Jesse Florez and Gordon Van Loo for the white team, while Joe Clark, Dick Woodley, Bill Charleston, Joe Salvato, Jim Boyd and Charles Colley took colored honors.
Runnerup trophies were presented to Dave Midel, Elvis Mathews, Herman Hinton and Joe Davis. Ed Croak, who won a district championship, lost in the preliminary rounds due to a cut over his eye.
Blair took the flyweight crown by decisively felling Ish Norris of Biloxi, Miss. Joe Clark became hometown favorite king with a knockout win over Charles Vinson, a sailor from Pensacola, in 1:49 of the second round with the referee's Classy Dick Woodley won the featherweight title by chilling Biloxi's Charles Henshaw in the rapid time of 1:10 in the opening round.
Jesse Florez, a favorite of Montgomery fans, earned the judges' nod over Jim Mitchell of Mobile in the lightweight championship bout.
Welterweight winners
The welterweight competition was thoroughly cornered by post fighters as Bill Charleston and Gordon Van Loo returned winners. Charleston turned in a surprising win over well-regarded Herman Hinton of CTC's team, while Van Loo breezed to the white title by decisively felling Mel Ward of Mobile.
Joe Salvato, who was a defending champion, carbon-copied his last year's feat by winning over Archie Campbell of Maxwell AFB on a decision.
Charles Colley rounded out the roster of champions by taking the heavyweight trophy from Napoleon Oids of Birmingham on the officials' verdict.
Under the new plan, fighters to participate in service meets will be chosen by the boxing board. Selection will be based on the fighter's records during the year, and any dispute between two or more candidates will be settled in the medically disqualified by a physician's diagnosis of a broken hand. Hardluck Elvis Mathews lost another split decision to Gurney Smith of Maxwell AFB, last year's World Wide Air Force champ. Next on the docket for Gloves champions will be the regional matches, which will be in Evansville, Ind., for the colored winners and in Nashville, Tenn., for white trophy holders. A request has been initiated to accept eligible post fighters to compete in the regionals.
There are no matches scheduled on post this week. Arrangements are under way to bring a boxing team from either Camp Rucker or Maxwell AFB in to fight a team of Benning fighters in the near future.
The Special Services Sports Office has announced that there will be no post boxing tournament this year to decide representatives to Third Army and All Army meets. In past years, managers entered their boxers in the various weight divisions without respect to the fighter's classification—I, II, III or IV. The winner was automatically the post representative.
Runner Up Trophies
Dave Midel was forced to default his championship match with Joe Merrill of Mobile when a damaged ear swelled up and prevented his participation. A similar fate was incurred by Joe Davis, who was medically disqualified by a physician's diagnosis of a broken hand. Next on the docket for Gloves champions will be the regional matches, which will be in Evansville, Ind., for the colored winners and in Nashville, Tenn., for white trophy holders. Post's Lady Linksters Renew Popular 'Golf-Coffee' Series

The first ladies "golf coffee" of the season was held last Wednesday with 75 enthusiastic linksters attending. At the meeting plans were completed for ringer and ladder tournaments and weekly tournaments to be held every Friday. The first contest began Feb. 5 with a blind bogey tournament. In the 18 hole group, Irene Curtiss and Gloria Ellers tied for first place. Mrs. Ellers winning on the flip of a coin. Mag Martin and Betty King were tied for third, Mag taking the upper bracket on the flip. In the nine hole group, Jerry Edris took first, Ann Carroll second and Sheila Mowbray third. Ann Carroll also walked away with fourth place.

The golf coffees are a regular feature of the Fort Benning Ladies Golf Association, being held on the first Wednesday in each month at 10 a. m. All aspiring lady linksters are urged to attend. Mrs. Eva Ulrich, membership chairman, is in charge of the meetings and golf play. Anyone desiring to attend is asked to register at the Country Club at any time.

Raider offense was paced by Gil Shor's 13 markers. CTC's suddenly potent Commanders blasted the First SR Blackbirds with a 37-40 score as a big third period rally opened a wide margin. Bill Thompson maneuvered around the post to total 18 points for CTC while the Blackbirds' economy accounted for 17. The Provisional Medics came within an ace of grounding the Lawson Flyers but faltered in the waning minutes to drop a 52-50 decision. Lawson, operating without its mainspring, Ray Steiner, had taken off a desperate fourth period explosion to pull out the victory. Bennett Bacon got the Medics an early lead with accurate set shooting, but Don Davidson and Earnest Thompson yanked the Flyers ahead with seven final period baskets between them.

Better Service Pay Asked by Ridgway

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (APFS) — Two important personnel problems face the Armed Services, according to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff. He expressed deep concern over them in a speech here recently. The first big problem, said the general, is retaining experienced and qualified career personnel in the Services. Attracting able young men and women who have a desire for a lifetime military career is the second major problem. Gen. Ridgway urged an improved standard of living for members of the Armed Forces and their families in his address to an Association of Commerce meet-

'Sky Drop' Postponed By Third Army Hqrs.

FORT McPHERSON, Ga. — Operation "Sky Drop II," an Army aircraft exercise at Fort Bragg, N. C., has been postponed until June 1, it was revealed by Lt. Gen. A. R. Hooper Finding OCS No Waltz

According to George Rhodes of 10th OC Company, "dancing closely parallel" the "Hooper" candidate, a former professional dancer and teacher, is getting more drilling now than he thought possible when he exchanged his dancing shoes for an M-1 rifle. Rhodes has given instruction in every form of dancing, from tap to tango, and has done choreography as well. The dancing of Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly inspired Rhodes to study dancing seriously at the age of 12. He later formed a dancing trio with two friends and worked night clubs and lodges near Uniontown, Pa. In summer work he played in the musical, "Of Thee I Sing." Rhodes then went on to study with world famous Katherine Dunham School in New York City. The OC says that you can't just "waltz through" OCS. But he believes the training he's had on the dance floor will help to someday make him a better officer.

Mother 'KO's' Pugilistic Son After Brief Boxing Career

Officer Candidate Louis S. Rimbach was quite a boxer... undefeated, in fact, until he ran into his mother.

The 23-year-old OC began fighting as a lightweight three years ago to improve his physical condition. He won his first fight and went on from there to a record of 4 KOs, 2 TKOs, 12 decisions and a draw.

A boxer rather than a slugger, Rimbach refused a professional contract. He explains, "I didn't think I'd look very good in cauliflower ears."

The OC's mother didn't know he was boxing until his last fight. By chance she turned on the TV set in the middle of a hotly contested battle. Suddenly she recognized her son.

When Rimbach came home that night, "Mama" was waiting at the door. Shortly afterwards, Candidate Rimbach went into partnership installing washing machines in the apartment houses of Los Angeles.

GOOD SOLDIER... Pfc. Glenn H. Wade of 18th Officer Candidate Company was "tapped" by the Good-Soldier Patrol last week. He considers himself the champion spit-shiner of jump boots and invites anyone at Ft. Benning to present their boots for comparison.

Officers to Stage 3-Year War In 3.5 Weeks of War Games

A new phase of instruction begins Feb. 23 at The Infantry School when officers advanced class No. 1 participates in a war game.

The new instruction, entitled "Life Cycle of an Infantry Regiment," covers a three and one-half week period during which students actually participate in a simulated three-year war.

Throughout the exercise students function as commanders and staff officers of a regiment. They begin by activating the regiment, followed by training, movement overseas and staging in a foreign country preparatory to combat.

During combat the students are confronted with a series of tactical situations which they are required to plan and execute. Then there is a period of occupation duty in the foreign country, subsequent return of the regiment to the U. S., and inactivation.

Many thousands of hours have been devoted to the preparation of the war game instruction by school's staff and faculty, officials said. The development of the program was initially under the direction of Col. Edward P. Smith. When Col. Smith was transferred last December to become secretary of the school, the directorship was passed to Col. John R. Smoak.

The full program of instruction for the current advanced classes differs from those of past years in that it is divided into two distinct parts. Part I covers 21 weeks of instruction and is designed to teach the principles and techniques which combined with practical work promote clear understanding of the principles and applications of techniques. In past years this was the only type of instruction given to prepare officers for field grade positions in Infantry regiments.

OAK LEAF CLUSTER... Major Arden J. King of Columbus is presented the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal for outstanding service in Korea by Col. Robert E. Holman, director of The Infantry School's Automotive Department. Major King is chief of the department's Electric Training Committee.

2 Officers Picked For Arctic School

Two Fort Benning officers have been selected to take part in Arctic training Feb. 15 to Mar. 12 at the Army Indoctration School in Big Delta, Alaska.

They are Capt. John O. Ensor, an instructor on the Airborne Department's advanced parachute training committee, and First Lt. Thomas A. Breen, an instructor in the Tactical Department's attack group.

The Big Delta program is designed primarily to provide experience in Arctic winter operations for Regular Army officers and civilian employees of comparable grade whose work is connected with Arctic problems.

Selected were Pfc. Billy D. Jarrett of Company A, Airborne Battalion, and Pfc. Harold B. Lockhart, of Company B, Infantry School Detachment, who were cited for superior appearance and outstanding military bearing.

The patrol roams the post twice weekly to check on the basic military discipline of individual soldiers and to assist in raising the standard of military discipline.

Since it went into effect 1 1/2 months, the patrol has cited nine servicemen for commendable qualities.

Before Basic Training

Recruits to Get New School Plan

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — Enlisted personnel entering the Army on or after March 1 who lack a functional fourth grade elementary education or its equivalent will be given training in the necessary academic subjects before starting basic military training, Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, announced today.

In the past, education through the fourth grade has been provided on duty time after completion of the basic training cycle, either at duty stations in the United States or with units overseas. Since the start of the Korean fighting more than 100,000 soldiers have been brought up through the fourth grade level in this program.

Transitional Training
The new program, called Transitional Training, is designed to achieve greater efficiency of operation, significantly lower cost, and improved utilization of available manpower.

military subjects. It will vary in length from two to four weeks, depending on the ability of each man to acquire the minimum degree of skill in reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Following completion of Transitional Training, participating personnel will start the regular 10-week basic training program. No travel will be necessary, as the Transitional Training program will be established at all posts where both reception stations and training units are located. These are Fort Dix, N. J.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Camp Chaffee, Ark.; Fort Bliss, Tex.; Fort Leonard Wood Mo.; Fort Ord, Calif.; and Fort Jackson, S. C.

The present system of providing basic education at other Army installations in the United States will be discontinued on April 1, while similar programs overseas will be phased out gradually with the arrival in these areas of personnel who have completed Transitional Training.

Combined Courses
Individuals requiring this limited academic training will be assigned to Transitional Training units which will combine basic education with instruction in group living, citizenship, adaptation to military life, and selected basic

Opera Singer Keeps in Trim Barking Orders as Candidate

OC Stephen Harbachick really sounds off when he gives a command.

"Keeps my voice in trim," says the former opera singer and winner of the Coruso Memorial Award, given every few years to the most promising male singer in the New York City area.

Harbachick, who was selected for the award by an impressive panel of judges, is currently training with the 10th Officer Candidate Company.

Harbachick began singing with his high school glee club, and continued as a soloist with the Yale Glee Club, with which he toured Europe in 1949. He has sung the lead roles in "Of Thee I Sing," "Utopia Limited," "The Magic Flute" by Mozart, "Gianni Schicchi" by Puccini, "Falstaff" by Verdi, and Mozart's "Don Giovanni."

The OC has sung with the Gilbert and Sullivan Society, the Opera Theater in New York, and in summer stock at Albany, N. Y., where he took lead roles in "Down in the Valley" and "Finian's Rainbow."

Upon completion of his tour of duty, the OC will go back to study voice again.

JOHN CONNELLY
 " . . . Rough Adjustment"

OCS to Graduate First Guardsman Under New Plan

Officer Candidate John Connelly will be the first National Guardsman to graduate from Officer Candidate School since the program permitting National Guardsmen to attend OCS was initiated on Jan. 1, 1953.

Connelly, a former sergeant in Company B, 216th AIB, New Jersey's 50th Armored Division, will graduate with 14th Officers Candidate Company on March 6. He will be commissioned in the Infantry and will return to his unit as executive officer.

Coming to OCS from civilian life was a pretty rough adjustment, he says. "I was in a tailspin for five weeks." He didn't know how to make a bed, and the difference between flank guards and road guard was a "military secret" to him.

He remembers the first week of OCS all too well. Having been appointed platoon leader, Connelly marched his platoon on top of a coal pile in order to allow a car to pass. Later he lost his voice.

Milton Claims Reserves, ROTC To Stay Same

The assistant secretary of the Army said Monday at Fort Benning that he sees no change in ROTC and Reserve training at this time.

Hugh M. Milton II, who is in charge of army manpower and Reserve affairs, gave the Reserves a pat on the back as he pointed out the vital role they play in the U. S. national defense.

"We must keep our Reserves. They are vital to our national defense," Milton said.

Milton said that the active Army personnel forms the nucleus and the Reserves surround that core, ready to be called into active service when needed.

Milton was officially welcomed by a 17-gun salute immediately following his arrival on the post. The salute was fired by the 41st Field Artillery Battalion as part of a two-company honor guard from the 30th Infantry Regiment.

The honor guard was held on Chapel Field after Milton was greeted at Lawson Air Force Base by Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, and other officials.

Personnel, Students Will Join Other Post Units on March 1

Personnel and students in the School Brigade's Second Student Regiment are being reassigned to other units at Fort Benning preparatory to the unit's deactivation, according to Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., Infantry Center commander.

Units of the regiment are being transferred to the First Student Regiment and the First Officer Candidate Regiment to reduce transportation problems and to save man hours.

Those joining the Officer Candidate Regiment will remain in the Harbory Church area.

Personnel and student officers in the Second Student Regiment being assigned to the First Student Regiment are moving into the new troop housing on the main post. This move will bring the students and instructors nearer their classes, the majority of which are held in the Infantry School.

There will be no change in the mission of the reassigned units.

The 101st, 102nd, 103rd, 104th, 105th, 111th, 113th, 115th, 112th, and 114th Companies and Headquarters of the Second Battalion are being transferred to the First Student Regiment.

Units going to the First Officer Candidate Regiment are the 107th, 121st, 123rd, 124th, 125th, and 122nd Companies and Headquarters of the Third Battalion.

Also effective March 1 is the re-designation of School Brigade units.

The First Battalion, First Student Regiment, will be known as the First Student Battalion; the Second Battalion, Second Student Regiment, will be known as the Second Student Battalion; the Third Battalion, First Student Regiment, as the Third Student Battalion (Airborne); Second Officer Candidate Battalion, First Officer Candidate Regiment, as the Fifth Student Battalion (OC); and the Third Battalion, Second Student Regiment, as the Sixth Student Battalion.

Flash Burn Soldiers 'Pocket' Everything From Gum to Cash

Miss Star's survey disclosed that most men jam from 15 to 30 different items into their pockets. Looks like Cpl. Kinard was running true to form. He shelled out: Loose change, cigarettes, match-hand bags. An unofficial survey of soldiers on duty at Maneuver Director Headquarters, Exercise Flash Burn Fort Bragg, N. C., has revealed that soldiers don't carry hobby pins, hair pins, mirror, lip stick, perfume, etc., but Cpl. Lee Kinard, a member of the Flash Burn Radio-TV Division, was caught with his pockets full of everything but his color.

MEDAL OF HONOR

Cpl. Phillips was in charge of a Marine rifle squad sprawled on the ground getting its second wind. The squad leader wasn't resting. He was thinking hard—planning how to take rocky high ground that blocked his company's advance, that one last thrust of enemy resistance that had held out through five weary days. Cpl. Phillips looked at his weary squad, worn out from much fighting and then looked at his watch.

"All right," he called, "let's move out."

The men grumbled but gathered themselves together for the push. Several of them would not live to see the next hour.

The Marine mortars had lifted their covering fire and Cpl. Phillips led his squad up the steep, rocky slope. His goal: a chimney-like precipice. The enemy was dug in on top—dug in well. From the top the enemy was blasting away at the coming squad.

Bullets splattered in the snow as the squad rushed to the foot of the precipice. Cpl. Phillips and two of his men took cover at the chimney bottom. Phillips looked back for the rest of his squad. They were sprawled dead in the snow.

Tomorrow there would be time to weep for them. The three men started the final climb up the rocks. They were in the enemy's blind spot as they groped their way up, hand over hand.

Phillips' fingers were numb with cold. But he managed to hang on with one hand and pitched grenades up and over the top of the strange rock. The enemy nest was wrecked and its survivors took to their heels as the three marines gained the top.

But the North Koreans came back. The three weary marines held their newly won ground, beating off the attack.

Cpl. Lee Hugh Phillips won the Medal of Honor for his bravery that day—Nov. 4, 1950. That was when Co. E, 2nd Bn., 7th Marines, 1st Marine Div., was driving to ward the Chosin Reservoir.

Twenty-three days later he was killed in Yudamni. (APPS)

HONOR AUTOMOTIVE GRAD... Sfc. Beford C. Glascock, honor graduate of The Infantry School's automotive supervisors course No. 2, is congratulated by Col. Robert E. Holman, department director. The course graduated 42 enlisted men and three Thai Army officers last week.

The Second Inf. Div. — The Indianhead design by Sgt. B. Lundy of Co. A won first prize of 40 francs. Second prize went to Sgt. John Kenny of Co. B who suggested a star. Col. Herringshaw toyed with the designs, decided on a combination of both.

On Oct. 21, 1918, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, USMC, then commanding the Second Inf. Div., selected the Indianhead and star as the shoulder patch for the entire division. Since that time there has been only one major change. The crudely drawn Indianhead was refined by using the head sculptured by Augustus St. Gauden, then shown on the American five dollar gold piece. Opera Slated For Library

The regular weekly record concert to be held at the Main Post Library Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. will present Arturo Toscanini conducting Verdi's "La Traviata" (complete opera) with the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

The failure of the first performance of "La Traviata," at the Teatro La Fenice, Venice, March 6, 1853, has generally been attributed to the incapacity of the singers. It aroused the bitter disapproval of contemporary moralists as being the first serious opera in which the characters wore modern costume.

It had its first performance in New York City at the Academy Music, Dec. 3, 1858.

Abn. Sgt. Builds 'Heavy-Drop' Aid

M-SGT. JENKINS ADJUSTS HIS 'BABY'
It Shows How Big Things Get Down

Airborne students at Fort Benning now get a close-up 3-D view of the methods and the mechanics of "heavy dropping" equipment to troops on the ground, thanks to the ingenuity of M-Sgt. John B. Jenkins of Omaha, Neb.

Sgt. Jenkins spent more than 200 hours designing and constructing this special training aid, which demonstrates the system employed to drop big guns and vehicles from C-119 aircraft.

In actual operations the equipment, which is attached during flight to a platform in the airplane by means of a sheer cable of great tensile strength, is ejected through the action of three parachutes, each one larger than the other.

Action is begun by dropping from the plane a relatively small weight, known as the deployment weight, which causes the first chute, attached to the larger extraction chute, to open.

Pilot Chute Used

The force of the air and the pull of the pilot chute open the extraction chute, which is attached to a knife that cuts the cable holding the main long Gravity and the pull of the extraction chute force the load to roll down its platform and out of the plane. Once out, the 100-foot main canopy, attached to the load, opens and the equipment floats safely to the ground.

Sgt. Jenkins' device is an almost exact replica of the actual apparatus except that it is built to a one-quarter scale size, and the extraction chute and main canopy are opened by pulling a cord to substitute for the force of the air that would exist in actual flight.

The model platform and parachutes are attached to a system of weights, lines and pulleys, suspended like a giant spider-web from the ceiling of a classroom used by the Airborne Department.

Sgt. Jenkins releases the deployment weight and, within a few seconds, advanced parachute students seated comfortably in the arena-like conference room get a clear picture of what is involved in dropping 3,000 pounds of equipment.

Section Leader

A section leader on the advanced parachute-training committee, Jenkins confesses to being "a natural born handyman." Often using his own tools and his own time he has constructed other airborne training aids, such as mock-ups of airplane helms and the steps for the 34-foot jump towers.

The 34-year-old combat veteran entered service in 1941 and fought with the 41th Parachute Infantry Regiment in the Philippines during World War II.

After an assignment as an instructor in the Airborne Department's jumpmaster course from 1946 to 1950, he went to Korea where he served with the Third Ranger Company and the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Capt. Plans Thai Rangers

Capt. Tienchai Sirsumpan is a soldier with big plans for the small Thailand Army.

Now a student at The Infantry School, he will return to his native land some time this summer where he hopes to organize a regular ranger-airborne unit.

Although the Thai Army has two ranger-airborne units they "could not begin to fight an enemy if my country were attacked," according to Capt. Tienchai.

"We lack the training aids and proper instruction to develop good rangers and airborne troops," he said.

It takes a thorough working knowledge of ranger tactics to prevent getting lost in the Thailand jungles. But Capt. Tienchai feels he will be able to supply the answers to the most important problems in jungle penetration and survival in high-terrain after completing his course here.

Capt. Tienchai, who learned to speak English in Thailand, participated in the Korean War during the most critical stages in 1951. He was awarded the U. S. Army's Bronze Star.

The newest addition to the attached personnel of Fifth Company, First Student Regiment is an owl.

A student in the company, Lt. Col. A. K. Zakby, felt an object strike his windshield a few nights ago and fall inside. Investigating, he found a stunned baby owl.

Sgt. Jenkins took the owl to his quarters and put him in a shoe box, where he quickly fell asleep. Now Col. Zakby is looking for a home for his feathered friend, who has developed the habit of sharpening his claws on the colonel's hand.

Help Yourself

to FASTER Phone Service at Fort Benning

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

- If you can give the operator the out-of-town telephone number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster.
- Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

To help you get faster service, you'll find out-of-town directories for the larger cities at each telephone center.

Gobbler. Raiser Can't Duck Name

"Gobbie, gobbie, gobbie."
OC William Amans of 19th Company has been trying to get away from turkeys all his life, hasn't had much success.

Joining the Army in 1948 to get away from the 10,000 turkeys on his parents ranch near Cameron, Wis., he thought the Army would be a perfect way to get away from it all. But a cou- of hometown boys showed up in Amans' basic training outfit and would gobble plaintively instead of counting cadence. Soon the OC had a nickname, "Turkey."

Basic didn't last forever, of course, and Amans thought he had got away from turkeys.

Presto! In 1951 he was sent on a military-mission team to Turkey.

30th Infantry Sends 'Aggressor' Force

Both groups are members of the 30th Infantry Regiment's Second Battalion.

Air-Minded Musicians Model-Happy

Four cups of methanol, two cups of castor oil, and a dash of nitro sound like an alchemist's mad dream, but three Fort Benning soldiers claim it's the perfect fuel mixture for highpowered model airplanes.

Flex Herman E. Reitz, Paul M. Ford, and Jack E. Denny, who are Army bandsmen by day, spend many hours in the evening and on weekends building and piloting their prop-pulling speedsters.

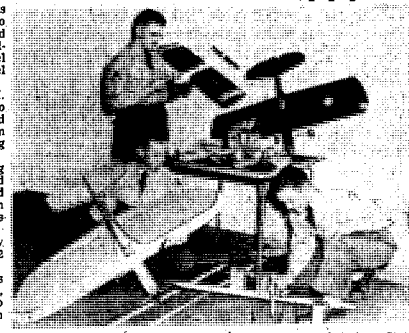

Said to be the fastest low-flying aircraft on post, the balsawood models are powered by palm-sized gasoline engines and have been clocked at speeds over 100 miles per hour.

Members of the 319th Army Band, they have a collection of 12 planes valued at about $15 each. All have U-control, which means they can be guided in a circle, usually 75 feet in radius, by two control wires held by the pilot on the ground.

A slight tug on one line will cause the plane to climb, on the other it will cause it to dive.

The craftsmen make their models perform horizontal and vertical loops, form figure eights, and fly inverted formations.

Occasionally a power or mechanical failure results in a crash, but the musicians find some solace in the fact that they cause no casualties.

Students Receive Top Advice In New Off-Duty Pay Clinic

The 15th Finance Disbursing Section at Fort Benning has inaugurated a pay clinic to insure that students here get an opportunity to straighten out their pay records.

Commanded by Capt. Harold L. Saul, the unit serves officers and enlisted men of the First Student Regiment, who are busy with Army classroom work and rarely have time to visit the Finance Office.

But on the Monday following each payday, the disbursing section operates the after-duty clinic to allow students to present complaints and have questions on money matters answered.

Soldiers may examine their pay records, and a cashier is available to make any necessary payments.

"The clinic not only promotes better finance service, but it builds better morale," Capt. Saul said. "And it gives students who leave the post for assignment all over the world a good opinion of the Army's Finance Corps."

The Post's new $27,000 Signal Corps photo lab is the best at any Army post in the U. S., says Capt. Harry E. Blomquist of Philadelphia, Pa., pictorial officer. No formal opening has been scheduled, but operations have already begun in the remodeled two-story building. Cost of the remodeling totaled $19,000, and new equipment ran the bill up an additional $7,800.

Its fixtures include the most modern laboratory apparatus available, such as stainless steel sinks and developing tanks, control devices to keep the temperature of water at a constant 68 degrees, and the latest electronic lighting equipment for portraits. The physical layout of the old photo lab led to "traffic" jams and confusion, said Capt. Blomquist, but under the current as-

Benefits, Relief Funds

'Answer Man' Solves Soldier's Problems

Fort Benning has its own answerer service for military personnel and their dependents who ask questions about benefits and emergency relief funds.

The answers come from the Personal Affairs Branch, a relatively new Army activity which was established at the end of World War II. The office has a staff of one warrant officer, one enlisted man and three civilians to handle a vast number of problems — for both civilians and military personnel. It is directed by CWO Pearce Alford of Ashland, Ala., who has dealt with personal problems of military people for more than 10 years.

Problems the branch try to solve include government insurance, indemnity coverage, survivor's rights and benefits, and emergency financial authorized under the Army Emergency Relief Act.

Interviews Held
In addition, interviews are held and personnel going overseas are advised on such matters as designation of beneficiaries, movement of household goods, wills and powers of attorney. They furnish notary public service and make financial reports on all bonds and sol-

Davis Cup Champ Frank Sedgman To Lead Kramer Net Show Here

No list of modern-day tennis greats would be complete without the name of Frank Sedgman, Australian exponent of Jack Kramer's "big game." The amateur and professional accomplishments of this member of Kramer's 1954 net tour assure him a place in any tennis, if not sports, Hall of Fame.

Post tennis enthusiasts will get a first-hand look at the backswing of 26-year-old "down under" on Sunday, March 21, when the tour, featuring Kramer, Sedgman, Pancho Segura, Pancho Gonzales and Don Budge, moves into Briant Wells for a one-night stand.

Sedgman began playing tennis at the age of eight under the tutelage of his father, who now operates one of the tennis clubs which Frank owns in Australia.

Amateur Days

At 14, the young Aussie caught the eye of Harry Hoggman, Australian Davis Cup coach and a director of that country's smooth-working junior tennis program. Under his guidance, Sedgman rose through the boys and junior divisions. In 1949, he took the Australian amateur crown, and joined the Davis Cup squad.

The remainder of 1949 proved to be young Frank's only "lean period." Both Ted Schroeder and Gonzales dumped the youth in that year's Davis Cup challenge round between the U. S. and Australia. It also was the last year that the U. S. held the famed silver mug.

Sedgman went unbeaten at singles and doubles during Davis Cup play in 1950, '51 and '52. During the latter two years, he reached the pinnacle of his non-professional career—being named twice as the world's leading amateur.

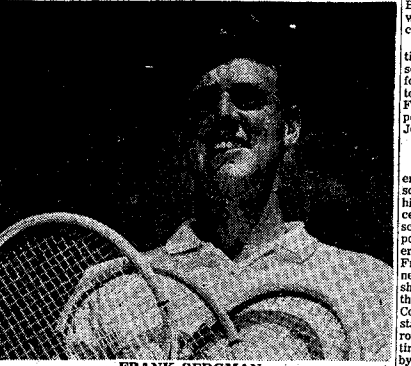

An international trophy-hunting junket netted him the U. S. grass court title at Forest Hills in '51 and '52, a second Australian crown in '51 and the Wimbledon (England) title in '52.

In doubles, Sedgman teamed with fellow countrymen John Bromwich and Ken McGregor to take the U. S. title in '50 and '51, respectively. With McGregor, he also won two French and two British tournaments. Sedgman and the U. S.'s Davis Hart joined forces to win the U. S. mixed doubles championship in '51 and '52.

Pro Offer

In 1953, when Jack Kramer beckoned Sedgman turned professional and joined World Tennis, Inc.

Last season, he gave the peerless Kramer his closest scrape to

FRANK SEDGMAN
All Time Australian Tennis Star

that time, losing in his first nationwide tour, 54 matches to a banking $150,000 out of a four-gross of $860,000 in the process.

Sedgman, who weighs 165 pounds and stands five feet 11 inches, currently is battling Pancho Segura for second place honors with Pancho Gonzales setting the pace on this year's tour, which differs slightly from the '53 junket.

Promoter Kramer has devised a new method to satisfy the American tennis public: A tournament at each stop in which the winning players grab off proportionate slices of gate receipts instead of playing for a flat guarantee.

This innovation gives no basis for the hitlro annual complaint from some skeptics that the performers weren't exerting themselves when matches were, in effect, merely exhibitions.

Pairings for the two singles elimination sets, the winners of which meet for the night's singles championship and the doubles match here will be announced shortly before March 21.

Commanders Trip Generals; Special Troops Scores 106

A suddenly dangerous CTC Commander quintet rode a red-hot winning streak into fourth place and the Special Troops Raiders set a new seasonal scoring mark with 106 to highlight the week's activities in the post basketball league.

The Commanders, who were languishing in the loop basement three weeks ago, hung up their fifth win in six starts by upsetting a good OC Regiment five in one of the top surprises of the season. The Raiders became the first post team to crack the century mark the same night by running over nightcap and celebrated the occasion by yielding 106 points to the Special Troops Raiders. The 106-64 score was the highest aggregate total of the season. Bob Keats' second 40-point night in a row paved the Raiders' way, while Barry Hedger counted 33 for the Rockets.

ISD's improving Profs backed up hapless PMG, 56-46, behind reliable Bob Gilbert's pacesetter. Gilbert totaled 17 points to lead the team to crack the century mark. Prof's attack, but tall slender forward Bob Burks' rebounding and shotmaking were largely responsible for the big second period scoring spree that proved to be the winning margin.

Lawson AFB's Flyers, rested and ready, caught a toughie in reinforced First SR, but made its own two combination of Ray Steiner and Earnest Thompson to an 88-76 win. Steiner was his usual productive self with an even 36, and Thompson, who has recently emerged as a top scoring threat, dunked 28. Both had to give way, however, to smooth-working Bill Rogler, a newcomer for the Blackshirts, who made scoring 34 points look easy.

Second Student Regiment in the Rockets' final outing of the season. Second SR is being disbanded.

The OC's loss, coupled with continued winning ways by the 30th Infantry Blues, left the Generals with only a slender mathematical chance of nosing out 30th for the championship. The Blues are 4 1/2 games in front, as of Monday night, and both teams have only five more games remaining. Five Blue losses plus five General wins would be required to bring about a championship for the OC's.

Bob Keats, STC's recent addition, maintained his scoring habits with 40 points efforts against PMG and Second SR to run his three total to 102. 30th's Frank Glenn wrested the total point leadership from teammate Jack Sutherland, 228 to 211.

Feb. 15

The medical CTC Commanders shocked the post basketball scene with an 82-69 upset of the highly rated OC Generals behind center Bill Thompson's 28 point scoring total. Trailing by five points at halftime to the tall Generals, Commanders Bobby Bush, Frank Chan and Thompson engineered a third period surge that shot CTC into an 11 point lead as the final frame opened. Against Commander reserves, the Generals staged a death-rattle rally that narrowed the gap to one point with time running out, but a free throw by Thompson preserved the win.

An undermanned Second SR team played its final game in the nightcap, 69-55, after an indifferent first period. George Lovelady and Earnest Thompson pulled the Flyers together in the second frame, and Jim Delaney and Ray Steiner took charge in the fourth to insure the Lawson victory. Zealons Bob Burks bucketed 22 points for ISD and fought the battle of the backboards incessantly.

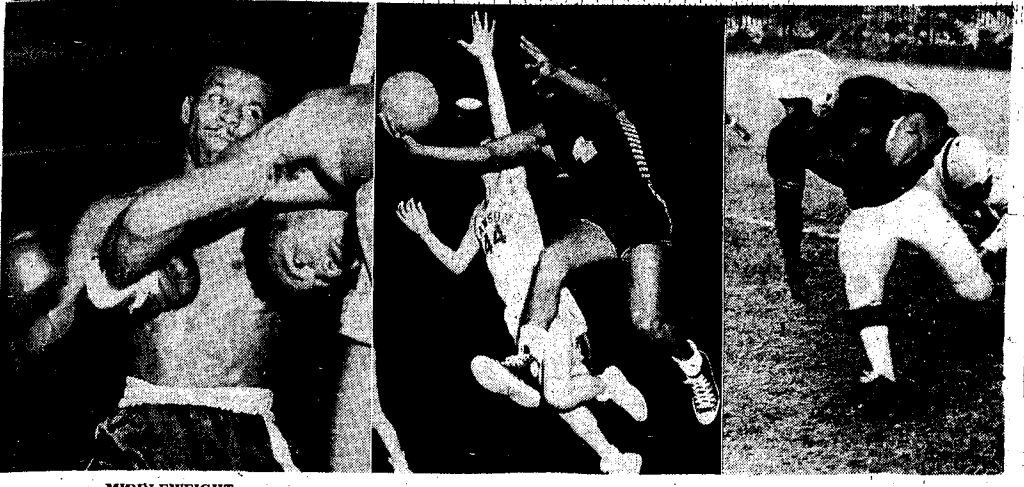

Feb. 9

Little Bob Keats ignited a smoldering STC quintet to its biggest explosion thus far by tallying 40 points as the raiders trounced PMG 85-72. Gil Shor checked in with 18 points and the 30th Raider led for the remainder of the game. Dave Ellison sank 17 points for the Flyers, whose fourth quarter surge narrowed the final margin.

First SR outmuscled Second SR in a bruising opening tilt, 64-45.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Jim Montgomery

To the unbounded joy of all baseball fans, the sun is approaching its vernal equinox, robins can be seen by the truckload, spring is in the air, and the baseball animal is coming out of its brief hibernation.

This year's awakening shows no great change over the one just past. The New York Yankees are beginning to rumble about another world championship. The Brooklyn Dodgers are brewing voodoo magic designed to end the Bombers' mastery of them. Paul Richards is optimistic about White Sox prospects. Alie Reynolds is a holdout.

This time last year, of course, the majors' lineup still listed an American League team in St. Louis and a National league club in Boston. The erstwhile Bostonians migrated to Milwaukee for the '53 season to set a new attendance record, while the Browns from old St. Lou trekked westward to Baltimore to prepare for the '54 grind.

'Twas a hectic, fitful winter sleep for the national pastime this year. Good Time Charlie Dressen skillfully maneuvered himself out of his lucrative job with the Dodgers. The ambitious Milwaukee club city-slacked the Pirates out of Danny O'Connell and the Giants, out of Bobby Thomson. The mighty Yankees swindled the Athletics out of slugger Ed Robinson and Harry Byrd, one of the hottest pitching prospects in the circuit.

Elsewhere on the scene, various writers took turns at screaming the old familiar chant of "Break up the Yankees." After autographing a $100,000 contract, Casey Stengel, deigned to sniff haughtily at those who decrified the Yankee empire. (Who in the world ever said "all the world loves a winner," anyway?)

Bombastic Bill Veck left baseball for good in October, but returned to the fold less than a week later. Mickey Mantle put his troublesome knee under the knife in Springfield, Mo. Walter Alston took the driver's seat at Ebbets Field. Joe DiMaggio brought Marilyn Monroe to terms. Venerable Louis "Bobo" Newson retired—again.

Glancing at the upcoming season, who would dare pick anyone but the Dodgers and Yanks? Someone once said, "betting against the Yankees is like betting against U. S. Steel," and that just about sums it up. The Burns, bolstered by the return of Don Newcombe, figure to take the National's gonfalon regardless of Milwaukee's connivings and Willie Mays' presence at the Polo Grounds. The Phillies, if Bob Roberts gets his rest and Curt Simmons hires a yardman, could cut a figure or two. The St. Louis Cards still have Stanley Frank Musial.

In the junior circuit—sometimes slangily referred to as the American League—Cleveland's peerless pitching and the Red Sox' matchless Ted Williams appear to be the chief obstacles in the New Yorkers' path. The Sox have up considerable talent to get Jackie Jensen from Washington in a deal that had the Hot Stove Leaguers huzzing.

Ed Crook Stars in 3 Sports For Brigade Athletic Teams

Versatility plus is the phrase frequently used to describe the athletic doings of little Ed Crook, one-man sports giant of the School Brigade.

Crook, who hits 57 and weighs in at 155, hails from Detroit, Mich. His activities on the gridiron, basketball court and boxing ring have had considerable effect on the recent showing of Brigade teams.

Last autumn, for instance, Crook loomed large in the backfield of the School Brigade Rams, post-occupations. Running from the left halfback in the Ram split-T attack, Ed's amazingly elusive running style netted an even five-yard average on 72 carries for the Rams. As a passer, he rated well up in the top 10, and switching to the role of a receiver, his five catches for 146 yards were worth second place honors.

On occasion, Crook switched to quarterbacking, where he acquired polish and finesse in a short time as a ball handler. His faking on the Brigade "belly-T" plays continually confounded opponents, and the School AFB team frankly admitted they seldom knew where the ball was.

Not exceptionally fast afoot, Ed has remarkably quick reflexes that enable him to react almost instantly. On one occasion in the Benning Bowl game against Camp Rucker, Crook burst through the line, was tackled by a linebacker, fumbled, twisted in mid-air to grab the ball, shook free from the tackle and proceeded upfield another 10 yards.

Defensive Ace

Not bothered in the least by one-platoon football, Ed held down the safety position on defense for the Rams, and five indeed were the opposing ball toters or pass receivers who got behind the third Army Brigade defender. Crook, tough as a boot in spite of his size, walked away from many tackles that laid out larger men.

Hanging up his grid togs, Ed drew boxing equipment and soon established himself as a leading contender for the middleweight berth on the third Third Army entry. His first time out resulted in a kayo win over Joe Salvatto, two-time state Golden Gloves champion.

A loss to Leon Hall, All-Post in 1953, was later avenged in the Montgomery Golden Gloves matches. Crook took the district Gloves title, but was stopped in the state matches when a cut over his eye forced a TKO ruling. His lifetime ring record currently stands at 22 wins in 26 starts.

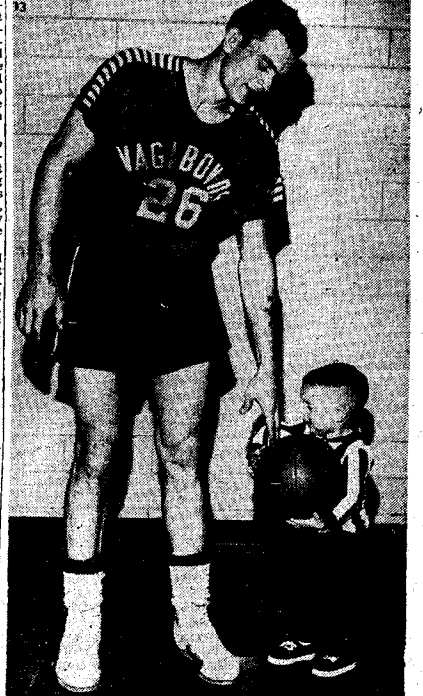

Shines on Court

Sharing time between the squared circle and the cage court, Ed holds down a guard slot on the First Student Regiment Blackshirts. Here again those startlingly quick reflexive reactions stand him in good stead. Spectators at Briant Wells Field house are becoming accustomed to seeing Crook burst out of a melee, dribble swiftly down the hardwoods and whip a slingshot pass to one teammate while looking at another.

Ed's favorite scoring weapon is a long two-handed set shot, and he owns a respectable 10 point-per-game average. He is exceptionally skillful at getting the ball in to post man John Economou to set up Blackshirt plays.

Honorably mentioned for the 1952 All-Army football team while at Fort Jackson, S. C., Crook was a voted most valuable player in Detroit's Inter-City Football League. (Please See ED CROOK, Page 14)

Ted Williams was recognized as most temperamental, least co-operative, most nervous, most feared hitter, most valuable member of the team, biggest drawing card, earliest riser, most lavish spender, best businessman, best student of the game, most helpful to new players and possessing the best physique of all the Red Sox. In various cities scattered throughout the grapefruit-raising areas, the townspeople are happily readying themselves for the annual invasion of the major leagues. . . .
Could any conference be such a picture of confusion as the SEC? Apparently the members themselves are the only ones who really and truly understand its functioning. To begin with, a goodly portion of the teams don't play each other in several sports. Georgia Tech and Tennessee, for example, both compiled impressive football winning streaks over several seasons. The victory skeins of both powerhouses were unmarred by tilts with the other.

Records show that LSU was basketball champ last year when Kentucky was sitting out a suspension. The Louisianians were about the only team in the loop that figured to trouble the Wildcats this season—but at the beginning of the season they elected not to play each other. To top it all off, Georgia and Kentucky recently met in a cage contest that counted as a conference game for one but not for the other.

When not actively engaged in not playing each other, the coaches hurl little barbs at each other. From Locked Doors To Basic Training A Perilous Journey

How would you like to come home from work and find your apartment padlocked and a letter on the door saying you couldn't keep it because you weren't in and didn't have a family? . . . That is what happened to Pvt. Jan Kratochvil, of 4th Company, First Student Regiment, in Czechoslovakia in 1948, after the Russians had taken over.

Breaking open the door, Jan got some clothes, caught a train to the edge of the American Zone and walked the rest of the way. Traveling to several countries, including Italy, Arabia, Africa and Egypt, he learned that he could join the American Army and become an American citizen in Australia. Then, he went to Sweden, contacted the American Consulate, and got up the needed information. He joined up and was sent to Camp Kilmer, N. J., for basic training, then to Fort Benning.

In addition, post fighters who won Alabama Golden Gloves titles in the recent tournament at Montgomery have departed to take part in regional matches. He played varsity sports for West Virginia State.

During student days Ed habitually racked up astronomic scores on Army Physical Fitness Tests, usually in the 400-450 bracket.

He is undecided about his future after separation from the service. He has been on the receiving end of overtures from National Football League clubs, and also is toying with the idea of boxing professionally.

Undoubtedly it will be difficult for Ed to settle down to any one sport.

Automotive Sarge Fashions Aids

Thirteen years of Army service have given 13 years of automotive experience to M-Sgt. Nathan Galanski of The Infantry School's Automotive department.

Since Sgt. Galanski assumed his post in the department after returning from Korea in January 1952 he has designed and built some 40 major training aids which are used daily by students taking automotive courses.

The department now has devices of virtually every major assembly found in today's automobiles and trucks.

These training aids actually function, as they were built with the idea of duplicating conditions on an operating vehicle.

Galanski, a thrifty-minded artisan, says that most of the material used in his work was obtained from the post salvage yard. In fact, he says, this material is ideal for constructing training aids, many of which show cut-away sections that render the parts useless for future use on vehicles.

Galanski, who also has contributed materially to the Automotive Handbook used by students in the department, gives much of the credit for his contributions to Sfc. Irt. S. Shackelford of Albany, Ga., who helped him assemble the training aids.

MP Sarge Wins Commendation

A Fort Benning M. P., M-Sgt. Heulette C. Thomas, was commended last week by Col. M. J. Fitzgerald, post provost marshal, for his performance of duty as a military policeman.

On the night of Jan. 22d an automobile collided with a trailer truck on Victory Drive, near the Sand Hill area, injuring two enlisted men.

An M. P. detail, headed by Sgt. Thomas arrived at the scene and the sergeant took charge. He placed road guards out to slow oncoming traffic and kept the area free from traffic congestion. When the expected ambulance failed to arrive Sgt. Thomas took the injured men to the Main Post hospital in his patrol car.

Col. Fitzgerald said, "Sgt. Thomas' action reflected great credit upon the Military Police organization here."

OAFIE Tops A Freedom Contributor

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Office of Armed Forces Information & Education has been notified that Freedoms Foundation has selected it "for a greater number of awards of the most senior quality than any other institution or agency in the United States."

The top award in the motion picture category went to OAFIE for its discussion film, "International Communism." Former Ambassador to Russia George F. Kennan acts as discussion leader in the movie.

A second place general award also received was an Honor Medal award in the radio program category for "The Pendleton Story" which was produced by Armed Forces Radio Service. The program involved 39 shows depicting the problems in the growth of the United States from the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776 to 1901, as seen through the eyes of a lieutenant of the Continental Army, Robert Pendleton. OAFIE received an additional citation, the Distinguished Service Scroll, for being among the recipients of Freedoms Foundation's Honor Awards for five consecutive years.

The Troop Information and Education Division of the Army received an Honor Medal award in the general class for its "History of the United States Army." It was a full-color poster series developed in the interest of "the preservation of our American freedoms."

Col. Macomber FECOM Bound

Col. Jefferson R. Cronk of Menomonee, Wis., has been named commander of the School Brigade's First Student Regiment, succeeding Col. Kenneth D. Macomber of Modesto, Calif., who has been ordered to the Far East Command.

A graduate of Scott Institute, Col. Cronk entered the Army as a second lieutenant in 1940. During World War II, he served with the 32d Infantry Division in the South Pacific area and at Camp Joseph T. Robinson, Ark. He went to Europe in 1949 for duty at the Bremerhaven, Germany, Port of Embarkation.

Lt. Guy S. Meloy Joins 37th Div.

CAMP POLK, La. — Among officers recently assigned to the 37th Infantry Division was Second Lt. Guy S. Meloy III of College Station, Texas, the son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. G. S. Meloy of Fort Benning, Ga.

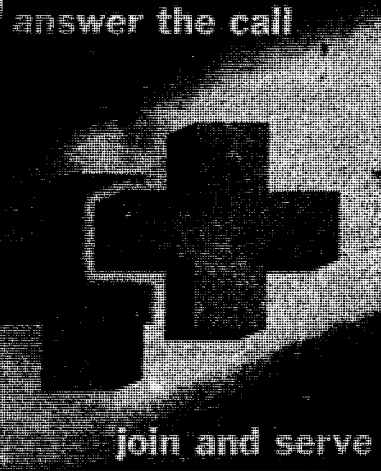

Lt. Meloy attended the United States Military Academy at West Point, where he earned his Bachelor of Science degree in June 1953.

The 37th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. G. S. Meloy, boasts an enviable combat record in two World Wars. The "Buckeye" Division is presently engaged in intensive training for participation in Exercise Flash Burn in North Carolina this Spring.

Assigned to Fifth Army headquarters in Italy during World War II, he later served in the Pacific area and in Far East Command headquarters.

Meloy Sparks Drive

For more than 70 years the American Red Cross has maintained facilities for providing a link between the soldier and his family. The relationship between the Red Cross and the military services is such a close one that those of us in the service may be prone to regard Red Cross facilities as something that comes to us as a matter of course.

This close relationship is firmly rooted in history, but it is not something that we can take for granted. It was achieved only through years of intense effort and cooperation, and there must be a continued expenditure of effort if it is to be sustained.

The willingness of the Red Cross to contribute a full share to this joint effort has been seen at military installations throughout the world.

The services offered by the Red Cross are limited in their variety and extent by just one factor: The amount of money contributed to the support of those services.

Once each year the military personnel and civilian employees at The Infantry Center are asked to contribute to the maintenance of this historic partnership between the armed forces and the Red Cross.

Personnel of Fort Benning have never failed to respond generously in behalf of a deserving cause, and I am confident that this year's Red Cross campaign will meet with the same degree of support and success that has typified similar efforts of years past. Our goal is 100 per cent participation by personnel of The Infantry Center.

Valuable Aid Given by RC

The American Red Cross Office at Fort Benning gave more than $60,000 in financial aid to post military personnel during 1953, according to the annual report by Field Director John A. Cramer to Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander.

Besides the 1,333 soldiers who received $61,087.83 in monetary assistance, the local office serviced 11,415 additional troops who needed counseling, or aid in matters concerning leave, health and welfare, discharges, and government benefits.

Figures show that more than 5,000 Fort Benning service men and women were helped in securing emergency leave by the Red Cross last year.

In handling 1953's cases the Red Cross sent or received nearly 25,000 letters and made more than 2,000 long distance telephone calls.

In addition, the Red Cross staff conducted 896 recreation events for soldiers in the U. S. Army hospital and showed 799 motion pictures.

Volunteers, Gray Ladies, and nurses' aides, gave 7,257 hours of their time to patient activities.

Water safety activities increased during 1953 with 28 completing the swimming instructor's course, 60 passing the senior life saving course, 39 the advanced survival swimming course, and 31 the beginner's swimming course.

The 1953 Red Cross fund-raising campaign on post netted 19,705 members who donated $23,823.73.

Airborne Picture Makes Life Mag.

A full-page picture of two Fort Benning paratroopers, showing what happened when they collided in mid-air, appears in this week's edition of Life magazine (Feb. 23).

Captioned "Hold Me Tight, Mac," the photograph was taken by M-Sgt. Joseph P. Wolfe of the Special Services section.

The troopers, wearing the Army's new T-10 parachute, collided after jumping from their plane and clung to each other until they landed.

POW Organizer Wins Leaf Cluster

First Lt. Robert P. Howell of Mimal, Fla., an ex-prisoner of war who organized his fellow POWs against Communist indoctrination, was presented an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal last Friday at a special parade and review in his honor.

Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, made the presentation, one of six awarded by the Army to ex-POWs in Korea in recognition of their defiance of the Communist line, in spite of brutal tortures.

Taking part in the parade on Thursday were the First Infantry Regiment's First Headquarters Company, which is now in the line of duty under the command of Major John Eisenhower.

Lt. Howell, who was a prisoner of the North Korean and Chinese Communists for nearly three years, took the special attention shown him in modest fashion, saying his actions were only in the line of duty.

"I honestly believe," he said, "that I did only what was expected of any American."

Captured Dec. 1950, the story of Lt. Howell's captivity began when he was wounded and captured Dec. 1, 1950, about 10 miles southeast of Kunari, after he and his men had fought a North Korean security unit for three days.

For a month he was held by the North Koreans in an old Japanese mining camp and then was turned over to the Chinese, who placed him in a camp for exceptionally unruly prisoners.

Lt. Howell, who was a platoon leader in Company I, 38th Infantry Regiment of the Second Division at the time of his capture, was given no medical treatment and says the prisoners had little food, clothing, or shelter, and suffered from the bitter Korean cold.

The 27-year-old officer received between 10 and 12 hours of Communist indoctrination a day, but stood firm in his beliefs.

This was pointed out by the Army's citation accompanying the Oak Leaf Cluster award, which read:

Organized Prisoners
"Lt. Howell organized a group of fellow prisoners to disrupt attempts at Communist indoctrination and to harass Chinese guards and instructors in spite of punishment and threats for his activities. Lt. Howell steadfastly defied all attempts at Communist indoctrination."

He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal Sept. 8, 1953, and in January came to Fort Benning for the Infantry School's company officers' refresher course, graduating Feb. 12. He also was at Fort Benning in June and September, 1950, when he took the associate basic officers course. His next assignment is in the Antilles Command, Puerto Rico, which was arranged at Lt. Howell's request.

Lt. Howell served in the Navy during World War II and enlisted in the Army in March 1949 receiving his commission in April 1950 at Fort Riley, Kans.

Both of the new classes opened on Tuesday. They were the Automotive Department's unit automotive supervisor's course with 50 students and the basic airborne course with 375.

Noncommissioned officers of Special Troops Command conducted an all-enlisted-man parade last Saturday on the third cuartel parade ground.

M-Sgt. Emmett Dickerson of Camp Hill, Ala., a member of headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Special Troops Battalion, and ranking noncommissioned officer, was commander of troops. Each of the Special Troops Command units selected an NCO as its commander.

Only officer on the field was Col. Paul C. Serff, commanding officer of the command, who was reviewing officer.

Music was provided by the 122d Army Band.

Four classes graduate and two opened this week at The Infantry School.

The Weapons Department's heavy mortar course, with 39 students, ended Tuesday and the operations and intelligence course, with 69 students, ended yesterday.

Paratrooper wings will go to 750 students in the Airborne Department's basic course tomorrow, and Saturday marks the end of training for 165 students in the basic Infantry officers' course.

The Combat Training Command will begin rehearsals on March 23 for its second training film in six weeks.

One officer and 33 men from Headquarters and Headquarters Company will begin preparations on March 1. The film is on the intelligence and reconnaissance platoon of the regiment.

The other training film, whose production ended two weeks ago, concerns combat formations for a rifle platoon. Personnel were supplied by Company I of the 30th.

Formerly assistant adjutant and commander of that unit's headquarters detachment, Capt. Luckie holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal, and Purple Heart for action in the Pacific during World War II.

This is his third tour of duty at Fort Benning. He attended the basic officers' course in 1942 and the communications course in 1943. Capt. Luckie replaces Capt. John E. Barth, now a student in the advanced officers' course.

Ordnance Proves Safety Pays Off

The safety consciousness program in Fort Benning's Ordnance Section paid off in a considerable reduction of lost-time accidents during the past 12 months, according to a report made last Saturday by the Ordnance Safety Office.

Capt. I. D. Burnett, ordnance safety officer, said the accident frequency rate during the period was 1.5 as compared to 12 for the previous 12 months. Capt. Burnett attributed the improvement to "conscientious effort" by more than 300 civilian and military employees to reduce accidents.

Soldiers to View 'Honest John' Rocket During Flash Burn Carolina Maneuver

FORT BRAGG, N. C. — "Honest John" has been elected to play a role in one of the Army's largest peacetime maneuvers since the close of World War II — Exercise Flash Burn.

Honest John is not a political figure, but a heavy artillery rocket capable of propelling an atomic warhead. It is one of three newly developed atomic weapons that will be tested under simulated combat conditions for the first time.

Also slated for simulated fire are the 280-mm cannon, capable of firing an atomic shell with accuracy up to fifteen miles, and a ground-to-ground guided missile, the "Corporal."

MEDAL OF HONOR

William Richard Charette, HM2, USN, received the Medal of Honor for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty as a medical technician, serving with a Marine rifle company . . . in Korea during the early morning hours of Mar. 27, 1953, so reads the citation. Charette was the sixth Navy man to win the nation's highest award in Korea — but only the second to wear it. The other four were killed in action. Why Charette was not known only to God?

The corpsman moved quickly to his own clothing for bandages when he was called. Communist troops were fighting desperately from well-entrenched positions. But one Marine had his armored vest and a rifle. Charette took the vest and placed it upon the helpless man. A marine was suffering from a serious leg wound. Charette tried to ease his pain. He realized that he could not reach the wound without getting to his feet. Charette upon the stricken man. The enemy fire exploded. Charette's face was so torn, his helmet blasted off, his first aid kit sheared away and destroyed. Charette, almost overcome by the nausea and chill of shock,

Religious Progress Losing Ground
But, Science, Economics Making Strides

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJ.) MALCOLM SADLER

As we draw closer together by speedier modes of transportation and great strides in science and economics, we have not kept pace in our spheres of religious progress. Indeed, sometimes it seems that we have lost ground, if we examine our moral standards of conduct and our mental attitudes toward basic moral concepts, must bind us to God, not as fetters which retard our growth as individuals and as a nation, but as a means of advancing the cause of God and bringing to the heart and soul of men a feeling of security and calmness in the midst of our modern age of speed and tension and uncertainty.

The man whose existence is based on ideas and ideals of religion will be the man who can face our modern atomic world when his life, his family, his community and his nation are threatened by others who have no relationship with God. Without the security that comes from God, we can only stand helpless or cry out in anguish in the face of destruction.

It is time for us to examine our moral defenses and, if we are found lacking, set out to build back that defense through worship, meditation, and prayer. We must reaffirm our faith in His teachings. Only then will our American way of life continue for those who live our everyday relationships with our fellow man at home and in our neighbor nations.

We must accept the responsibilities not only of our citizenship but also the responsibilities of our inherited concepts of morality. These which retard our growth as individuals and as a nation, but as a means of advancing the cause of God and bringing to the heart and soul of men a feeling of security and calmness in the midst of our modern age of speed and tension and uncertainty.

Indian Awarded Medal

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Fort Monmouth, N. J., announced that a Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to a young Army infantryman, Pfc. Charles George, who died in action from Whittier, N. C., who saved two companions from possible death or serious injury during the bitter fighting in Korea. Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Commanding General, Third Army, announced upon receipt of information from the Department of the Army, a member of Company C of the 179th Infantry Regiment, 45th Infantry Division, the 29-year-old soldier was a rifleman in a raiding party that attacked hostile positions near Songnae-Dong during the evening of Nov. 30, 1952. The group's mission was to capture an enemy soldier.

Private George, the 68th Medal of Honor winner, to be announced by the Army for the fighting in Korea, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob George of Whittier. After training in the United States, he was assigned to the Far East Command in September 1951.

An eyewitness account of Private George's heroic act is provided by Armando M. Ruiz of Hanford, Cal., who was a corporal in the raiding party and a member of the rear guard with Private George.

"I and another soldier were with Pfc. George when we entered the enemy trenches and engaged in close combat with the foe while being under direct heavy hostile fire. When the assault team was preparing to withdraw from the enemy-occupied hill, Pfc. George, and another soldier, stayed behind to act as rear guards. One of the enemy threw a grenade at us. Pfc. George was the first one to see it and he yelled out a warning to me and pushed the other soldier out of the way. In doing this, Pfc. George fell to the ground and smothered the blast of the grenade with his legs."

28d Airborne

While subject to heavy enemy fire the raiding party fought its way up steep slope of a hill and entered the enemy trench. It was approved by GHQ but the soldiers wanted the trouble back. After many pleas, permission was at last granted for the troops to be put in the AA. The officers used good letters. The 28th Airborne Division is preparing to leave the trench after the withdrawal, an enemy grenade landed in their rear and Private George immediately started a warning and pushed the soldier nearest the grenade out of the way. He threw himself upon it and absorbed the full impact of the explosion.

Despite critical wounds the North group remained conscious and suffered unbearable pain in silence rather than cry out and endanger the lives of his two comrades. He died shortly after receiving emergency medical treatment.

The Four Lads have another potential hit record in "Gotta Go to the Fair Do Do" and "Harmony Brown." This disc should easily equal sales of their previous releases. Watch for a new album soon to be released by the 3-Ds, namely Johnny Desmond, Alan Dale and Don Cornell. Album is dubbed "Heart of My Heart."

Toots Thielman's trio (Toots is a harmonica virtuoso, formerly a sideman with the George Shearing crew) blows cool sounds on the great standard "Out of Nowhere." Flip side, "Stu'dio D," really shows the trio's talent. The record has a boogie-woogie hardscrabble that is featured on Henri Rene's peacocking instrumental "Madcap."

Lower deck, "Seashells," may occupy that niche held by "Ebb Tide" and "Off Shore."

Ralph Flanagan and company came forth with a follow-up to their "Hot Toddy" oust. This one, "Aller Heights Stomp," was written by Ralph and uses every technique in the book from multiple recording to "Hot Toddy" oust. Realism Grips 'Hot' Fire Class

The 14th OC Company got hot last week the hard way. While watching a demonstration on pyrotechnics, the instructor, Capt. Flash, commented that in the dry season the risk of fire was great.

Tight on cue, a small fire was observed in the demonstration area. A few men were sent to put it out. The wind and dry terrain soon made the blaze unmanageable and the whole company fought the fire until the fire department arrived.

The OC's gave the committee a superior rating for realism in their training aids.

TI&E Board Gives Troops The 'Light'

LT. HOOD, TEX. (APPS) — An idea borrowed from a penny arcade has added interest to the TI&E current events program of the 10th Signal Co. here.

A special question-and-answer board has been produced which has spaces for 12 questions on the left side. On the right side is a string of 12 buttons marking possible answers.

When the question is indicated on a dial at the bottom of the board, the operator then selects his answer and pushes the corresponding button. If he has chosen the correct answer, a red bulb at the top of the board lights up.

The idea was conceived by 2nd Lt. Daniel M. Clench, CO of the company. The board was made with material salvaged from discarded radio sets. Actual construction time was about two hours. Questions and answers can be changed easily every few days giving an unlimited number of combinations.

They Fight for This Job

But This Supernumerary 'Caught' It

BY HARRY LESLEY
Some men actually fight for this job. And it does sound nice when you first hear about it. But boy, when you work you work. The job is that of being supernumerary of the Main Post, guard. Because the men on the guard come from various units, no color is orderly is picked — just one supernumerary. He gets no award, except that he is not assigned to a regular post. He just remains in the Guard House and goes wherever needed. Several hours later he was out on post again. This kept up all night on and off. In the morning, when other guards were off for the day, Cpl. Wallace had to report to the PX Officer to aid him in making the daily collection of receipts. Why do men work a little harder to win the honor of being supernumerary when they have to work so hard on duty? According to Cpl. Winston D. Royals of Headquarters Company, First Special Troops Battalion, who won the honor on another occasion, it is because it makes one feel that he has accomplished something. Maybe that is the reason they pick a supernumerary. They have to have the best in order to get the work done. There are a lot of men who feel the same way too. Competition has become extremely stiff. On one guard mount the Officer of the Day had three men who were good enough to win the honor. After checking everything he knew to check he eliminated one man for not having the proper markings in his boots. He finally had an oral race to decide between the other two. It was a tie, but on the repeat Cpl. Norman Spoon, Iq. & Hq.

How Mercury's New 161-Horsepower Engine gives you a new measure of safety

If you'll get behind the wheel of a new 1954 Mercury and take it out on the open road, we think you'll find this new engine gives you the most instantly responsive power you've ever known. Even when you're cruising at normal highway speeds, you have instant acceleration that lets you pass another car and get back in the right-hand lane in a few safe seconds.

It's not just a matter of high horsepower. It's power that's instantly available because of a new Mercury development—a 4-barrel carburetor, with the two rear barrels vacuum-operated to cut in automatically when reserve power is needed for an extra margin of safety. Mercury's new engine combines with new ball-joint front wheel suspension to give you a new kind of power. And you'll find this new 1954 Mercury easier than ever on the eyes. Easier on the pocketbook, too. You can get more miles per gallon than even Mercury offered before. Come in and try it! See—Drive—New Mercury Sun Valley America's First Transparent-Top Car

OC CHARLES CONKLIN
... Saw Moving Drama

OC Joined Father In Leyte Invasion As Land-Sea Team

OC Charles Conklin, the younger half of a father-and-son team that contributed to the invasion of the Philippine Islands in World War II, is training with the 13th Officer Candidate Company.

Conklin became a merchant seaman after his graduation from high school and visited ports of call in the Pacific from the Aleutians to New Guinea. While anchored in New Guinea's Hollandia Bay, the OC was called off watch and was greeted by his father, who had come aboard on a surprise visit.

The elder Conklin, a major, was serving as finance officer of Philippine Civil Affairs Unit No. 1.

At 5 a.m. the next day they left for Leyte Island and the long-awaited invasion. Major Conklin was in an LST at the front of an 86-ship convoy, while his son's ship was in the "coffin corner."

His father landed at Taalban. Meanwhile, the OC's ship was under constant kamikaze attack. When they met a week after the landing, both were unhurt. But, as the OC says, "I'll never forget the experiences we had."

In keeping with his sea-going background, Conklin always reverts to nautical lingo. On weekends the rest of the company goes on pass, but the OC goes "ashore." Conklin doesn't "fall out" for formations. He just goes "fore and aft, all engines ahead full."

E. W. Scruggs Gets Sgt.-Major's Job

M-Sgt. Earnest W. Scruggs of Savannah, Ga., is the new sergeant major of First Special Troops Battalion. He comes to Fort Benning after 26 months as first sergeant of AFPE Headquarters in Japan.

This is his third time to be stationed here. He was with the 4th Division in 1946 and 1951 and the First OC Regiment from 1943 to 1948.

Sergeant Scruggs replaces Sgt. Joe R. White, who will become the battalion operations sergeant.

CTC Bn. Performs Problem for TV

The Infantry-Tank Team in Attack, the Infantry School problem run by personnel from the Combat Training Command, was televised on a local television station last Tuesday.

Members of the First Battalion, 40th Infantry, and 72d Tank Battalion participated in the problem, which featured Infantry and tanks assaulting together on Bouton Hill, firing tracer ammunition.

The tanks fired machine guns and cannons and the Infantry fired small arms between the tanks as they moved up the hill.

$18,000 a Month Being Saved for Uncle Reorganization Aids Transportation Sect.

A reorganization of transportation facilities at Fort Benning is saving the Army an estimated $18,000 monthly, according to Col. Sidney P. Kretlow, post transportation officer.

Reorganization of the First Transportation Battalion Motor Pool, by combining it with the Main Post Motor Pool, has made possible the assignment of four officers and 548 enlisted men to the Transportation Section, the elimination of 83 civilian personnel spaces, and the return of 112 vehicles to supply channels. The return of the vehicles was brought about through the consolidation and centralization of administration, supply, maintenance, and cost accounting, along with the elimination of certain service functions, Col. Kretlow said.

The new consolidated transportation organization, a subdivision of the Transportation Section commonly known as the Post Motor Pool, has three subpools, two at Harmony Church and one on the Main Post. They maintain more than 1,600 vehicles and operate more than one million miles monthly.

Present plans provide for further consolidation of administrative motor pool activities into one Main Post Motor Pool and one subpool at Harmony Church. Production-type preventive maintenance facilities are to be located at each pool, Col. Kretlow said.

Approximately 450,000 passengers and 25,000 tons of cargo are transported by post vehicles each month.

Myers Molds CTC Quintet Into Top Flight Contender

BY FRANK SULLIVAN
Sports coaches seem to stay in the limelight this day and time. Sometimes it is a thankless job, with the coach a hero one minute and a goat the next. If he has a poor season, there seems to be no substitution rule as far as the coach is concerned. They even claim there is a special place in the "Lower Regions" reserved for those who follow the mentor's uneven path during their lives.

It is not too difficult for the average coach to take a collection of ready-made stars and mold them into a winning unit. But, the hero of the coaching profession is the man who takes what material he can find, however it may be, analyzes, shifts and re-shifts and finally comes up with a winning combination that displays the fruits of his labor.

Coach Andy Myers of the CTC basketball squad has elevated himself among this latter group this season.

After a very slow start, Myers began working with the material he possessed. He shifted positions, changed plays, and reorganized strategy. His team lacked height and he had to compensate for this. Some sort of overhead job was necessary to put the squad in the win column.

The picture wasn't quite as dark as the record seems, however, for a number of games were lost at the beginning by close scores. The boys were playing hard and giving their opponents some scares, but they just could not seem to hit the winning streak.

night they were slated to go against the top-seeded 30th Infantry team. Nothing would please Andy and his squad more than to pull another upset during this week, especially over their "intra-family" rivals from the Combat Training Command.

With the opening of February, the picture began to change. They dropped one game on the first to the powerful 50th five, but they were looking better all the time. Then Myers' patience work started to pay off. His team defeated the First SR and the very next night took a game from Lawson AFB.

Coach Andy Myers of the CTC basketball squad has elevated himself among this latter group this season.

The zenith of triumph came last week in the upset of the second place OC Regiment squad for their third straight win. In a tense, hard-fought struggle, the CTC boys posed out the top-rated OCs by 82 to 80.

Blues Clinch Post Title, 3d Army Tourney Slot

The highly efficient 30th Infantry Blues wrapped up the 1954 Fort Benning basketball championship Monday night by breezing past the PMG Medics, 99-63. The win left the Blues four games ahead of the second place OC Generals with only three games remaining on their schedule.

As post champions, the 30th squad will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army cage tournament scheduled for Camp Gordon, Ga., March 22-27. For this meet, the Blues may draft players from any of the league teams—except Lawson AFB—to add to their own roster.

Since the TIC intramural season ends early in March, several games have been carried with nearby teams to keep the 30th quintet busy until the Third Army tourney gets under way. Camp Rucker will invade Briant Wells for games on March 7 and 8, and the Blues will return the call by playing at Rucker March 10 and 11. The March 7 game here will be a Red Cross benefit affair with a 25 cents admission tag.

A two-game home-and-home series with the Atlanta General Depot has also been arranged. The starting five ran up a 52-27 half-time bulge, then turned the job over to reserves who maintained much the same habits as the regulars.

A well-balanced 30th Infantry Regiment team became the 1954 post champions by outdistancing the PMG Medics, 99-63. Tom Gaffney and Gilbert Ash alternated at scoring for the Medics, with Gaffney totalling 15 and Ash 15. The 30th

In the second encounter, the OC Generals held on tenaciously to an early lead to nose out the First SR Blackshirts, 80-77. A basket by J. W. Nibert with 30 seconds remaining coupled with Jim Bachmann's free throw in the last five seconds enabled the Generals to maintain their margin. The Blackshirts' Bill Bolger, formerly of Georgetown U, and the Baltimore Bullets, nonchalantly meshed 35 points for First SR.

Coach Andy Myers of the CTC basketball squad has elevated himself among this latter group this season.

CTC's vastly improved Commanders had to call for full steam in order to ease off a determined SFC Raider quintet, winning 80-79 with a fourth quarter surge led by Bill Thompson. The Raiders meant business from the opening whistle, and held a five-point advantage at intermission and a four-point bulge going into the fourth quarter. However, Thompson and Frank Chan accounted for 20 points between them in the final frame to pull out the victory. Little Don Keats continued his assault on the scoreboard with 26 points, Thompson had 28, Gil Shor 22 and Bobby Bush 20.

John Economou soared to his best scoring night of the season in the first game, tallying 33 points as his First SR Blackshirts slipped past the PMG Medics, 99-81. The Medics, who suffered a cold streak in the second period, turned in one of their best efforts of the year and matched the Blackshirts second half. Bob Morris was the big noise for the Medics, scoring 23 points, and Phil Webber followed Economou with 19 for First Sk.

The rampaging CTC Commanders almost turned in the upset of the year against title-bound 30th Infantry, but a last-gasp stand by the Blues netted them a 69-59 win in an old-fashioned hair-puller. CTC staged one of the top defensive demonstrations of the season, holding the high-scoring Blues to only seven points in the third stanza, and drew into a tie at 56-all with two minutes remaining. Guard John Blaski logged in eight points in the final, hectic seconds to pull the 30th through. At one stage in the fourth period, the Blues faced a 12-point deficit but Frank Glenn, Brice Holt and Blaski combined forces to outscore the

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

For downright inconsistency, the world of American amateur sport is hard to beat. Each sport is a separate little kingdom of its own, complete with governing bodies, legislation and penal code. Seldom indeed is there any similarity between the standards of one kingdom and another.

The chief point of difference among the various athletic empires is in defining and interpreting the word "amateur." No less an authority than Webster himself states that the word comes from the Latin "amator" which means to love. He goes on to say that an amateur is one who cultivates a particular study with pursuing it professionally. An amateur in sports, we are further illuminated, is one who is not rated as professional.

Perhaps this rather broad terminology is responsible for the vast differings in our amateur scene. An amateur football player, for example, can accept a free college education in exchange for his non-professional services. Frequently, little trinkets in the form of automobiles, charge accounts and sizeable salaries are thrown in, but these insignificant tokens are not allowed to mar his standing of amateur.

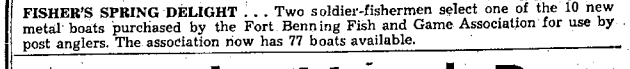

Baseball players who happen to work for sports-loving industrial enterprises can also pick up a nice piece of change by playing for the company team during their off-duty time. Many collegians perform during the summer months for such outfits and receive salaries equivalent to Class A professional players. Should the team enter a tournament such as the national meet at Wichita, Kansas each summer, the boys are in for considerable extra sugar if they win a game or two. When autumn comes, they return to college as unquestioned pure amateurs.

A good basketball player who happens, by merest chance, to land a job with such firms as Phillips 66 Oil Company or Caterpillar Tractor Company likewise rarely goes hungry, but he is certainly not a professional, of course not, don't you see? He may spend 75 per cent of his time on the court and 25 per cent at a desk somewhere, but his business sense and not his cage skill are what he's paid for.

Not nearly so lucrative, however, are such "minor" sports as track and tennis. The world-beating Australian tennis ace Frank and openly work for various sporting goods concerns, draw salaries from them, use their equipment and urge others to use it. They are allowed plenty of time off from their duties for practice. American racket wielders, though, are not allowed such proceedings. They must earn their living in other ways and play tennis when they can. The Aussies, by the way, have ruled the tennis scene for quite some years.

Gonzales Heads Pros As Top Net-Earner

Jack Kramer's 1954 edition of World Tennis, Inc., which puts in an appearance here, March 21, is proving to be the "glass slipper" for a modern-day court Cinderella. The man in question is Richard "Pancho" Gonzales, who currently is the pace setter for a formidable group of racket-swingers who represent the very best in professional tennis.

Coach Andy Myers of the CTC basketball squad has elevated himself among this latter group this season.

Gonzales, thought by the experts to be washed-up tennis-wise a few years back, is in the process of staging the comeback of the year during the cross-country "play for pay" junket. Way out in front of veterans Kramer, Frank Sedgman, Pancho Segura and Don Budge in this year's tournament play, he doesn't seem to be faltering, as opportunity knocks once again for him.

Coach Andy Myers of the CTC basketball squad has elevated himself among this latter group this season.

The flashy Gonzales stroking and blazing 112 mph service will be a feature of the March event here.

Gonzales, one of seven children, has been playing tennis for a long time. Self-taught on Los Angeles municipal courts with a cheap racket, he practiced the game with a passion that only a love of tennis could produce—even at the expense of formal schooling.

Eventually, his distaste for education caused him to be barred from tennis competition, but after a tour of duty in the Navy during the late stages of World War II, Gonzales was reinstated in the net world.

In 1950 Gonzales looked eagerly at the big money offered by the professional circuit and joined Kramer's traveling tennis promotion. The move looked to be a step in the wrong direction.

Kramer hailed the youngster as matches to 27 and for a while it appeared that Gonzales was destined to vanish from the ranks as had some of the other pro hopefuls.

Pancho sat out the next two seasons, but his ear still caught the echo of the cash registers which rang noisily for others. So, last year he worked his 6 ft. 3 1/2 in., 185 lb frame into shape.

To show promoter Kramer that he was ready for the big time the victory a fluke due to the absence of highly-regarded Ted Schroeder from the tournament.

The experts swallowed their words after the '49 play at Forest Hills, as the 20-year-old Gonzales wore down Schroeder in the final round, 16-18, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, to become the youngest person ever to win the title.

Other honors which Gonzales holds are the clay court crown for '48 and '49 and the indoor championship in '48. Strangely enough, he never has held a major doubles title.

Capt. John C. Hughes of Herrin, Ill., presented the Henry Gammage Trophy to the outstanding high school athlete in American Ga. at that city's Quarterback Club meeting on Tuesday. Capt. Hughes, an eight times decorated veteran of Korea now stationed at Fort Benning, was chosen to represent the Army at the presentation by Lon Chasney, Gammage of Columbus, who established the trophy in memory of his brother. The late Henry Gammage lost his life April 20, 1945, while fighting in Germany with the Third Division. An Army sergeant, he was a member of the 15th Infantry Regiment's Company M at the time of his death. Before entering the Army, he played football for American High School. The Henry Gammage Trophy is annually awarded to the high school athlete who exhibits the best sportsmanship, according to Gammage, a natumunus of America.

Spotlighting Sports

kings such as Wes Santee and Mal Whitfield were recently made aware of the standards of the despot AAU, which charged the runners with suspicious extravagance while abroad. A few years back, a young lady from Canada named Barbara Ann Scott won the world's figure skating championship. Busting with pride, her home town friends chipped in and bought her a car to show what they thought of her. Barbara Ann was summarily ordered to return the car by the AAU. While Barbara was stranded afoot for the cause of amateurism, numerous college athletes toolled around in expensive convertibles which they received for conceding to enroll here and there. These lads, of course, were also amateurs. Golfers have one of the most unique setups of them all. An amateur may turn professional, change his mind about it all, and apply for reinstatement as an amateur. Regardless of how much he has earned as a pro, he may return to the amateur ranks by waiting out a set period of years during which he does not play for pay. The AAU governs track and sundry other sports. The United States Lawn Tennis Association is the last word for netters. Golf has its own ruling body. Baseball, football and basketball sanction so-called "semi-pro" outfits over whom there are little or no controls. Amateurs who participate in track, tennis and golf are rigidly kept in line. Amateurs who participate in football, baseball and the like literally have the sky as their limit.

FEB. 17. After three periods of close-anything struggle, the 30th Infantry Blues drew away from determinedly battling First STC to take home a 22-57 triumph. With Bill Bolger—the league's top pivot player—slashing the 30th defense with deceptive playmaking and accurate shooting, the Blackshirts matched everything the Blues could muster until they sagged to a weak six-point fourth period. Slim Beck, Sutherland took charge in the closing minutes to count 10 points and yank the Blues out of danger. Sutherland had 20 points for the evening, teammate Frank Glenn scored 27 and Bolger tallied 24.

CTC's deadly scoring machine devoured the PMG Medics in the opener, 78-52, as Andy Myers' Commanders continued their winning habits. CTC got off to a big lead, which they proceeded to make even bigger as time went by. After constructing a 58-32 lead at the close of three periods, the Commanders' reserves took over and protected their lead capably.

Gonzales

CHEEK ENDS SCHOOL
Capt. Vernon E. Cheek of Headquarters Company, First Battalion 30th Infantry, has returned from the Air Ground School, Southern Pines, N. C.

In the 18-hole group Catherine McNelly of Columbus walked off with first prize by using 30 putts. Ruth Rafferty and Gloria Eilers tied for second with 31, and Ginny Blair ended up on the long end of a flip after tying with Min Cunniff for fourth with 32 putts each.

Andy

Team Puzzling
Among cage fans around the west there has been quite a bit of discussion concerning the reason for CTC's sudden winning ability. Perhaps one of the main reasons for the team balance. There seems to be no one outstanding star, but each of the men has learned to work together to make their combined efforts pay.

There is no question, however, that Andy Myers has been the driving force behind their wins. He has learned their potentialities and their limitations and his utilized this knowledge to reconstruct his unit to the best advantage. Andy is actually a stranger to the sport of basketball as far as participation is concerned. He has never played basketball himself either in high school or college. His only experience with the cage field has been in small independent play. But, his knowledge of the mechanisms and technicalities of the game has nevertheless been evidenced this season. His own athletic talents have lain in other sports, particularly in football. During the pigskin season last fall he displayed his abilities as an outstanding star in the guard position for the CTC Commanders. He won a berth on the 1953 All-Post Team by his rugged action with the CTC line. A native of Knoxville, Tenn. Myers starred in college football with the University of Tennessee squad. While playing with the Vols he played in two Cotton Bowl games and in one Sugar Bowl tussle.

Post to Show First Film In CinemaScope Process

The first Army showing of a CinemaScope film will take place at Theater 11 on March 7. The first production will be "The Command," starring Guy Madison and Joan Weldon.

The wide screen was installed recently and regular films were exhibited. However, "The Command" will be the first film using the new CinemaScope process.

CinemaScope has been termed a new milestone in the history of motion picture entertainment and has been perfected for only a short time.

There will be no advance in prices for the special showing.

In announcing the forthcoming showing, Capt. Dale W. Roby, post theater officer, said: "We consider it an honor having been chosen for the first showing of CinemaScope in an Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service theater. However, we feel that the Infantry Center was well chosen, as it is first in almost every way. The Infantry is first on the battle field, the Infantry Center is first in instructing men to become leaders and teachers, and first in experimentally creating new scientific wonders to insure the world of peace."

'Point' Exams Planned in March

WEST POINT, N. Y. — The man who qualifies for a West Point cadetship has sound teeth in a head full of mathematics and English.

The teeth may not be his own in some instances, but at least 20 of them are and these are in good repair. This is the acceptable minimum expected of the candidates who take qualifying examinations for entrance to the U. S. Military Academy during the first week in March each year. It also is the source of more rejections than any other physical factor.

In addition to a complete physical examination, the young men must take one-hour physical aptitude tests designed to measure such things as muscular co-ordination and endurance.

Mental Tests

On the mental side of these annual qualifying examinations, all candidates, whatever the source of their appointments, must qualify in the West Point Achievement Tests in mathematics test satisfies the Academy's 152-year-old emphasis on the sciences; the English test conforms to the 20th century idea that an Army officer should be able to speak and write clearly and effectively.

Each of these tests is one and one-half hours long and paced to the high school graduate's level. In mathematics, this means that the candidate is expected to know plane geometry and first and second year algebra, to include systems of equations involving quadratics, progressions, the binomial theorem, logarithms and elementary trigonometry.

The English test is based on grammar, composition and literature.

Exam on Post

The young man who weathers both these tests must demonstrate his knowledge of American history and pass the West Point Aptitude Test. This is a two and one-half hour examination requiring no special preparation but which measures likelihood of success in such subjects as foreign languages, sciences and engineering.

Examinations during the first week in March are scheduled for Fort Benning, many other Studebaker installations, and at stations overseas.

All examinations are prepared and graded by the College Entrance Examination Board, Princeton Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J. Further information on any of the requirements are available through The Adjutant General, U. S. Army, Washington 25, D. C.

The Only Way to Go Is Up, 2 Ex-M-Sgts Claim in OCS

Two "old soldiers" who turned in six stripes apiece and took the small, round OCS patch instead, after proving that good non-coms make good officers.

OCS Steve Lippai and Joe Kay are the two ex-master sergeants who are training with 19th OC Company.

Kay, who entered the service in 1944, went through two major campaigns with the 63d Blood and Fire" Division in Europe and six campaigns as a battalion communications chief with the 24th Division in Korea.

Lippai, on the other hand, has spent time as a rifleman, platoon sergeant, tank commander, and in a quartermaster outfit. Six of Lippai's eight years of service were spent in Europe, mainly with the First Division.

Why did the two request OCS after reaching top NCO grades? As they put it, "The only way to go is up."

Staff Named For ROTC Plans

A five-man staff has been appointed to make preparations for the training here of 1,500 Infantry ROTC cadets this Summer, according to post officials.

Lt. Col. William F. Mahone is chief of the planning staff, which includes Capt. William J. Thomson Major Leonard D. Barber, Capt. Marion L. Baggett.

Infantry ROTC cadets from universities in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, and Florida will attend the six-week encampment, scheduled June 15 to July 31.

The Infantry Center is one of five Third Army installations chosen as sites for the training for ROTC students who have completed their third year of military science and tactics instruction.

PMG Sarges Win Commendations

Two members of the Provisional Medical Group Svc. Luther Monroe, of Dadeville, Ala., and Sgt. Marvin J. Brown of St. Petersburg, Fla., have received Commendation Ribbons with Metal Pendants for service in Korea.

Lt. Col. James R. Francis, 54th Medical Battalion commander, made the presentations at a special retreat parade.

Sgt. Brown was cited for his performance of duty while a platoon sergeant with the Seventh Medical Battalion. Sgt. Monroe, with the 18th Field Artillery Battalion as a motor sergeant in Korea, was commended for his conscientious and capable performance of duty.

Acoustic Problem Fixed By Band's Ingenuity

Fort Benning's 122d Army Band has solved an acoustic problem with 2,000-square feet of salvaged canvas.

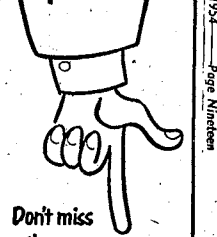

The frugal-minded musicians secured the canvas from the Quartermaster Section's Salvage Yard to cover the walls of their rehearsal room.

Warrent Officer William James of Minneapolis, Minn., director of the Band Center, said the canvas absorbs sound, eliminates rickety noises, and improves acoustics.

Three's a Crowd in 'Gramercy' Scribe, Ghost, Swain All Seek Nancy

Usually three's a crowd, but in the Fort Benning Little Theatre production of Gramercy Ghost there is an added complication. When the play opens, Nancy, the heroine, is engaged to a nice young man, Parker Burnett. When a reporter, Charley Stewart, comes to interview Nancy, he becomes amorous. Being normal, Nancy is not too unhappy about it. But when the Gramercy Ghost begins entertaining romantic notions, it's a lot much for her. How she gets out of the problem and how she discovers which is her true love present many of the heartwarming moments of the play.

Cast in the role of the fiancé, Parker Burnett, is Maj. Curtis Alway. Alway is an instructor for at The Infantry School and has been at Fort Benning since December 1951, following a tour in Korea. While in high school he participated in many plays and operettas. Later, at the University of Kansas, he continued his interest in dramatics by appearing in college plays, notably "Lilium."

M-Sgt. Frederick A. Sando will be seen as the reporter, Charley Stewart. Sgt. Sando's main interest in working with theater groups has been backstage. He worked behind the scenes for his high school plays in Grand Forks, N. D. He also spent three years with the Community Theatre there. Some of the plays Sgt. Sando worked in are "George Washington Slept Here," "Date with Judy," and "Ladies in Retirement." He is with Co. F, Infantry School Detachment. Also to be seen in Gramercy

Ghost are Mrs. Howard T. Cohen, Mrs. John W. Britton, Edward L. Wolanuk, Major R. A. Stamey, Lt. Thomas J. Hunter, Mrs. Edward O. Logan, Mrs. Daniel C. Mills, Mrs. Harold F. Gosser, and Pvt. Edward P. McCracken.

The play is under the direction of Mrs. George M. Roper, with Mrs. Arlo Mitchell assisting. The production will be presented at the Main Post Theater on March 18 and 19.

Wax Session Variety Noted In Records

At the Main Post Library Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. the regular weekly record concert will feature Anderson's "Classical Juke Box" and Offenbach's "Gaité Parisienne" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra, and Khataturian's "Masquerade Suite" with Leopold Stokowski conducting the Philharmonic - Symphony Orchestra of New York, and Kabalevsky's "The Comedians" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The Comedians is a suite formed from the music Habarevsky wrote for Daniel's "Inventor and Comedian," first staged at the Central Children's Theatre in Moscow in 1939. The suite was completed in the following year and had 10 sections: Prologue, Galop, March, Waltz, Pantomime, Intermezzo, Lyricale Scene, Gavotte, Scherzo, and Epilogue.

Offenbach composed the ballet, "Gaité Parisienne," with the aim of recapturing in terms of the dance the devil-may-care spirit of Parisian café society.

Dental Corps Celebrates 43d Birthday

Fort Benning members of the U. S. Army Dental Corps looked back on nearly a half century of progress when their corps celebrated its 43rd birthday this week.

Headed by Col. Herman Kothe of Salisbury, Mo., the Infantry Center-Dental section employs 74 enlisted men, 57 dental officers, including six naval officers, and 11 civilians.

Assisting Col. Kothe are Lt. Col. Leo C. Sexauer of St. Genevieve, Mo., deputy surgeon and chief of dental service; Lt. Col. Arnold Finman of DeKalb, Ill., chief of service at the main dental clinic; Major Ira Ghent of Lancaster, S.C., and Capt. Frank Huebner of Oak Park, Ill., who direct activities in two of the four clinics; and Capt. G. N. Shipman of Memphis, Tenn., chief of the dental laboratory.

An idea of the work load handled by the four clinics and the dental laboratory is revealed in statistics for the last half of 1953:

256,888 Cases
During this period 256,888 cases were handled, including examinations, X-rays, filling, extractions, crowing bridges, and dentures and inlays.

All four clinics are equipped with the most modern dental equipment, and an excellent staff of technicians, many of whom are specialists in their field, provide the type of dentistry recognized as being the best found anywhere, according to Col. Kothe.

Evidence of growth in dental facilities at Fort Benning is found (Please See CLINIC, Page 2)

First Units From Rucker Arrive Here

Maj. Weyer Leads Advance Vikings

The first contingent of troops of the 47th Infantry Division arrived at Fort Benning this week from Camp Rucker, Ala., to set up technical services in preparation for the division's transfer to The Infantry Center in May.

Companies A and B of the 582d Combat Engineer Battalion, commanded by Major George S. Weyer, were welcomed to the post by Col. Gines Perez, Infantry Center G-3, and Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer.

Advance parties from the division's three regiments are scheduled to reach Fort Benning in mid-March to pave the way for the main body, which will complete the move by the close of Spring.

Most units of the 47th will be housed in barracks on the post's Sand Hill area.

Announcement was made by the Army in 1953 that Camp Rucker, present home of the Viking Division, would be inactivated by June 30, 1954, and the Army formally announced Jan. 14 that the division would move here.

The 47th, commanded by Major Gen. R. W. Stephens, is a former National Guard unit which drew its personnel from Minnesota and North Dakota. It was ordered to active duty at Camp Rucker in January 1951.

Traffic 'Bid' Is Last Thing Wanted Here

A traffic summons to a Fort Benning soldier is an unwanted "free pass" to the advanced driver-education course at Minnesota.

The course, mandatory for any soldier receiving a traffic summons from military or civilian police, is conducted by post transportation officials each evening, Monday through Friday.

Highway courtesy, traffic rules and regulations, basic principles of physics governing moving bodies, and proper driving attitudes are taught the volunteers, who also get a psychophysical test consisting of examination of color perception, side vision, visual acuity, depth perception, and physical reaction time.

Many - besides volunteers - take the course voluntarily. Average attendance is 90.

25th Division Plans Reunion for March 10

Former members of the 25th Division will hold a reunion March 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the Polo Hunt Club at Fort Benning.

Principal speaker will be Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, who was assistant commander of the 25th Division in Korea.

Besides refreshments, an entertainment program has been arranged. Civilian dress is prescribed.

T&E SWEETIE . . . Miss Beth Ann Rush of Williamsport, Pa., has won the title of "Sweetheart of the Post T&E" in a poll just completed. Cpl. James Bradford, her sponsor, says she stands "about 16 hands high." Otherwise he sayeth not.

Gadget Clocks Driver Brake-Reaction

How long does it take a driver to stop his car when he's traveling 50 miles an hour? An individual with a reaction speed of one second requires 201 feet to come to a halt at 50 miles an hour. At 60 miles an hour he requires 445 feet, equal to one and one-half football fields.

The device was developed by Porto-Clinic Instruments, Inc., of New York, N.Y. Mounted on the front bumper of the vehicle in which the driver is to be tested, it fires two chalk-loaded .22 caliber shells into the pavement as markers. An occupant of the driver's vehicle fires the first shot by pulling on a string, giving the signal for an immediate stop. The second shot is fired by the vehicle's braking action. The driver's reaction time is determined by these two marks.

A driver-instructor training class was the first to test the device at Fort Benning. Results were parallel to those obtained by Porto-Clinic, but speeds up to 40 miles an hour only were used in the Fort Benning tests because of the safety factor involved.

Some results obtained were: at 20 miles an hour, 50 feet are required to stop; 25 miles an hour,

Dental Clinic Celebrates 43d Birthday

(Continued from Page 1) In the laboratory, which became a separate unit in 1943 under the impetus of World War II. As part of the main clinic, the lab for many years was the workshop of one employe — a jack-of-all-trades, so to speak, said Col. Kothe. Today, 15 specialists handle about 450 cases a month.

Another valuable service by the dental section is the annual survey of military personnel at Fort Benning. More than 10,000 already have been examined this year. This survey is intended as a guide in reevaluating the dental services here and also to administer "priority treatment" in the worst cases. U. S. Army dental tradition had its beginning in 1911 when the Dental Corps was authorized by Congress as part of the Medical Department. However, 10 years earlier Congress had passed a law authorizing the Army to appoint 60 contract dental surgeons who were afforded the privileges of officers and wore the Army uniform. They held no rank, however, until 1911, when the Dental Corps was created.

New Type Museum to Boost Fire Prevention at Benning

A Fire Prevention Museum has been opened at Fort Benning to further the Army's policy of placing added emphasis on fire prevention.

The museum, organized by Chief Gilbert A. Ward, is part of the post's plan to establish an effective fire prevention program, according to Major Gen. G. S. Meley Jr., Infantry Center commander.

Features of the museum include displays of defective electrical equipment, the charred results of smoking in bed, and cut-away models of water, foam, and soda acid fire extinguishers.

Refrigeration Expert Surveys Cold Storage

James A. Cox, meat and refrigeration specialist in the Office of the Army Quartermaster General, arrived at Fort Benning last Monday to survey meat cutting and cold storage facilities.

Mr. Cox, who visited the central meat cutting plant, commissary, and the two post ice plants, leaves today.

MEDAL OF HONOR

Sgt. Daniel P. Matthews hugged the machine gun as he smashed around him. Sgt. Matthews was fired. Company F, 7th Infantry, had tried to knock out that Chinese machine gun six times. And here he was again—planted down. Sgt. Matthews didn't like it.

To his left a marine cried out in pain. "Corpsman!" hollered Matthews.

"He can't get up here!" someone yelled back. "They got us pinned down tight."

Sgt. Matthews studied the ground. No sense in getting a couple men shot up to get a wounded man out. There was only one thing to do. Get the machine gun.

Matthews started crawling. He snaked his way from rock to rock. He held his breath as he saw the base of the Chinese emplacement. How could they miss seeing him? He felt like the whole Chinese army was watching him, waiting.

Then Sgt. Matthews was leaping up on the rocks around the machine gun. He was firing his rifle, or posthumously. (APPS)

The Chaplain's Corner We Need Vision to Succeed

"When there is no vision, our faculties work together in harmony." Now, while we are at the best, as we face the many opportunities of young men and women in the Service, we are faced with a challenge to rise to meet our missions in life by a continual renewal of our visions — our visions of just what God plans for each of us to do with our lives. We realize very well that often in the hum-drum routine of the busy life about us, that we too frequently lose sight of the woods because of the legs of trees surrounding us. And yet, although it is not always the part of wisdom to concentrate too heavily on "the woods" while neglecting "the trees" — for the little things of life are tremendously important — yet, at the same time, I would urge you not to lose sight of your ultimate goal. Take time out with God, to talk things over, to see your own plans as a part of His great overall plan for you. That renowned old Roman sage, Seneca, gives us this word of wisdom: "You must be not only present in body, but watchful in mind, if you would avail yourself of the fleeting opportunity."

2d Armored

(This is the fourth in a series of articles on the history of Army Division shoulder patches.)

Organized in July 1940 at Ft. Benning, Ga., the Second Armored Div. is the only armored division in the Army. It was during the period of training in 1941-42 while under the command of Gen. George S. Patton Jr. that the division earned the nickname "Holt on Wheels."

Nearly 2000 years ago, another young man, in a very dramatic setting on a lonely Damascus road, and at a most crucial point in his career, received a vision from the same God who today appears to you and to me. And years later, the gloriously changed and spiritually rejuvenated Saul of Tarsus could stand fearlessly before King Agrippa with the words of this striking testimony on his lips — "Whereupon, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

During the Battle of the Bulge the division engaged the German Second Panzer Div. and to smash it in a five-day battle.

The patch is made up of three colors—yellow for armor, blue for infantry and red for artillery. The symbols in the center represent the characteristics of armor — the tank track for mobility, the cannon for fire power, and the bolt lightning for speed and shock action.

Following a brief occupation of the U. S. Zone of Berlin, the Second Armored Div. returned to garrison at Ft. Hood, Tex. Four battalions and thousands of replacements were shipped to Korea at the outbreak of hostilities there. Then in May 1951 the division received orders for Europe. It is stationed in Germany now. Show Biz Technicians from United Artists Studio are at March AFB, Calif., making a preliminary ground survey in preparation for a movie about the Air Rescue Service. The film will be based in part on the experiences of the first Air Rescueman to be captured in the Korean War, Sgt. Bobby D. Holloway. Sgt. Holloway spent 14 months in Red POW camps before his release in "Operation Big Switch."

REEL SERVICE
 From as far back as 1940, Harvey Lembeck has been wearing a uniform either on orders or on celluloid.
 After he was graduated from high school in his native Brooklyn, N. Y., Harvey enrolled at the University of Alabama in 1941 and joined the ROTC.
 Lembeck entered the Marine Corps the following year and began officer's training at Muhlenberg College in Pennsylvania. He was transferred to the Navy a year later and was stationed at the submarine base in New London, Conn., where he served until his discharge in November 1945. His service ended here but he never did get to hang up his uniform.
 In 1949 he went into the play "Mr. Roberts" on Broadway and remained with the show for 30 months. This was followed by two movies — "The Frontiers" and "You're in the Navy Now."
 Harvey returned to Broadway Brothers orchestra in their debut 17" where he created the role of "Ply-Lips Shapiro" then repeated the movie sound.

New Records

 Lou Monte makes with the Italian lyrics to the strains of the "Darktown Strutters Ball." This overnight smash should revive the old-time Hugo Winterhalter and company provide the backing.
 Comedian Leo De Lyon debuts on record without any instruments as he makes like an 18-piece orchestra (through the magic of multiple recording) with the Irving Berlin composition "Say It Isn't So." The demo is "The Band Played On." This you've got to hear to appreciate!

"Man, Man, Is for the Woman Made" by the Ames Brothers is the latest addition to the field of Calypso items. Fort Dolores Haskins packs a vocal wallop on "Anything Can Happen—Mambo" in Charlie Applewhite makes his first recorded appearance singing "You're All That I Need." Love Gisele MacKenzie adds a French flavor on her newest, "Le Gros Bill," backed by "A Letter and a Ring." Sarah Vaughn emerges with a label switch on "Easy Come, Easy Go Lover." ... A sheer contrast in vocal styles is pleasantly presented by the Elliott Brothers orchestra in their debut platter of "I Ain't Gonna Grieve" where he created the role of "Ply-Lips Shapiro" then repeated the movie sound.

Chopin's Mazurkas Picked by Library

The Mazurkas of Chopin will be presented on the regular weekly record concert to be held at the Main Post Library Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

A Polish dance, the Mazurka, was a creation of the Province of Mazovia in which Chopin was born. It is from the moods of these dances that Chopin composed his Mazurkas. It is in the poetry of the heart rather than the poetry of movement, which he has striven to recreate.

The present, the future, the city, and the country, were published in the New Yorker, Harper's, etc.

Had to See Fight 'Just Curious About Combat,' Youngest OC Says of Korea

OC Pat Kessler claims he's the youngest officer candidate in the OC Regiment with six years of service and he's probably right. Kessler joined the army in 1947 at the age of 16. He was 11 years old when he decided to be a professional soldier, thanks to a favorite brother who was in the service at the time. Kessler spent two years in Japan and then came to Fort Benning for airborne training. He had his OCS application filled out at the time (1951), but volunteered for overseas duty and combat instead. He was just curious about combat, so I went to see for myself. He was attached to the 15th Regimental Combat Team and rose to the rank of sergeant first class. After graduation, Kessler pines a return to the Airborne. "I'm a 21 year man all the way," he says.

U.S. Leaders Say— RC Drive Worthy Of Full Support

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The nation's top military and defense leaders have endorsed the 1954 American Red Cross campaign for members and funds and urge generous support.

They include Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Admiral Arthur Radford, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Gen. M. B. Ridgway, Admiral Robert B. Carney, Gen. N. F. Twining, and Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr.

They extolled the organization's services to the armed forces and emphasized continued need for such services.

The annual month-long Red Cross campaign seeks $85 million and 30 million adult members. The major portion of this money — about 60 percent — and the majority of Red Cross manpower will be devoted to rendering services to the Armed Forces again this year.

"The Red Cross contributes immeasurably to the welfare and health of our nation," Secretary of Defense Wilson said. "We can all participate in its work through the generosity of our annual contributions."

"I urge all Americans to join the Eighth Army in supporting this great institution," General Taylor, Eighth Army commander, said. "It is only through our support that the American Red Cross can continue its work of service."

Reviewing many Red Cross services he had observed in all parts of the world, General Ridgway, Army chief of staff, assured the Red Cross of "unreserved efforts" of the army in making the 1954 campaign a success. Admiral Carney, Navy chief of staff; General Twining, Air Force chief of staff, and General Shepherd, Marine Corps commandant, gave similar assurances.

"Through its blood collection program and hospital recreation services," Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson, Fifth Air Force commander, explained, "the American Red Cross helps save the lives and ease the pain of our sick and wounded. Red Cross financial and counseling assistance are important to the morale of Airmen with dependent hardship problems."

Gen. J. E. Hull, commanding general, Far East Command, said participation in "this great humanitarian cause is a privilege we are proud to share with all other Americans."

Other military and defense leaders endorsing the 1954 campaign were: Secretary of Army Robert T. Stevens, Secretary of Navy Robert B. Anderson, Secretary of Air Force Harold E. Talbot, Vice Admiral Robert P. Briscoe, commander, Far East Naval Forces; Gen. O. P. Weyand, commanding general, Far East Air Forces; Gen. W. M. Hodge, commander-in-chief, U. S. Army in Europe, and Major Gen. George E. Armstrong, Armed Forces surgeon-general.

Widney said that this year's contribution for less than a dollar would entitle the person to be a Red Cross member but would not entitle him to a membership card.

"We are hoping that personnel will be generous in this year's drive," he said. "We would like to report a 100 per cent cooperation of the 464th Troop Carrier Wing." Organization representatives are:

Red Cross Quiz

Q—Red Cross and military medical unit symbols are the same. How is the Red Cross related to military medical services?
A—Today each has its separate functions, but their symbols also have identical origin and meaning.

The Red Cross was founded by a young Swiss philanthropist, Henri Dunant. His inspiration was the terrible carnage in the wake of a battle he witnessed at Solferino, in Italy, in 1864. Shocked at the lack of care given to battle wounded — common in all wars up to that time — Dunant organized local citizens into groups to dress battle wounds and open shelters. From this beginning grew the organized Red Cross, now to be found in 71 countries.

Q. What connection has Solferino with the red cross symbol?
A. This symbol — a red cross on a field of white — was adopted by the Geneva Convention of 1864. At this convention, attended by representatives from 11 nations, a treaty was adopted providing that sick and wounded in time of war, and also ambulances, hospitals and medical staffs, were thereafter to be regarded as neutral. It provided also that belligerents were to collect the wounded, irrespective of nationality, and care for them to the best of their ability.

Candidate Can Kendo, Can You?

Twentieth OC Company's got a candidate who can kendo. Kendo is a Japanese type of fencing that began a thousand years ago. The OC is Michiro Mizutani of Hilo Hawaii, whose ability belies his 5 ft. 5 in. Mizutani's father is a fifth-ranking holder of the black belt and coach of a champion Kendo team. "Like any other sport," says the OC, "the sooner a guy starts the better it is. The training is really tough. A guy develops terrific reflexes, coordination, and stamina. I started at the age of eight. I won my first Kendo trophy when I was nine."

Asked about the advantages of Kendo, the OC made a pretty good case. "A person well trained in Kendo can take a rolled up newspaper and defeat a person armed with a knife or club."

63 Million Miles Transportation Sets 3-Year Safety Mark

Vehicles of Fort Benning's Transportation Section have rolled up 63 million miles in the past three years without a single fatal accident. Comparable to a city of 50,000 population, the post has 524 miles of roads over which 1,600 military and 15,915 private vehicles travel. The safety record in such traffic is directly attributed to the post-wide accident prevention program carried on by the Transportation Section, headed by Col. Sidney P. Kretlow.

The program includes initial driver training and testing, remedial training and continuous day-by-day supervision, enforcement of safe driving practice, traffic engineering inspection and maintenance of vehicles, development and maintenance of an interest in safe driving, and incentives for safe driving.

Driver training and testing consists of thorough orientation on both Army and civilian rules and regulations governing driving for Army operators. The prospective driver must meet strict standards in both mental and physical tests with emphasis on color and vision, depth perception, visual acuity, and reaction time. Remedial training and daily supervision also are major parts of this program to eliminate accidents. Drivers are cautioned and instructed before each trip, and unit safety meetings are held regularly.

Officer Finds Similarity In Infantry, Architecture

Usually one thinks of the Infantry's being a far cry from architecture, but Second Lt. Robert B. Heintz has linked the two professions and has come up with some unique comparisons. Heintz, a member of the Second Stu. Regt., is a professional architect. Instead of selecting an Army field closer to the Infantry because of a desire to learn about the principles of leadership and human relations.

Car Is Candidate's Favorite Pin-Up

The classic car is completely restored and has been officially timed at 142 miles an hour at Muroc Dry Lakes in California. The speed is recorded in the minute books of the Russetta Timing Association. It took first place honors in the classic car category at the Motorama Car Show in Los Angeles in 1952.

MEET THE CHAMPS... Winners of the post basketball league, the 30th Infantry Blues came through the season with a 15-2 record. Front row, Milton Harmon, Gene Merandi, Coach John Vines, Jack Blaski, Jack Sutherland, Middle row, Duaine Leggett, Charles Smith, Frank Glenn, Bill Bivins, Jack McMahan, Back row, "Doc" Houston, Coy Scott, Bryce Holt, Melvin Thorne, John James.

AROUND THE CORNER... Frank Holmes of CTC slips a bounce pass around the barrier erected by ISD's Mack Dewater and Don Govert in the second period of their game last week. CTC ran wild, winning 83-43.

Blues Host Rucker For 2-Game Set-To

With The Infantry Center basketball crown safely locked in their trophy case, the post champion 30th Infantry Blues will launch preparations this week for the Third Army championship tournament slated for Camp Gordon March 22-27. First item on the agenda will be repelling the invasion of Camp Rucker's post team which is due here Sunday and Monday for games at Briant Wells Field House.

First OC Generals earned a tie for second place Tuesday night with 89-83 upset of the champion 30th Infantry Blues. The Generals will meet Lawson AFB for the second place trophy. In the opening game Paul Bolger shattered the single game scoring record at Briant Wells by pouring 52 points through as his First SR Blackshirts whipped CTC 88-72.

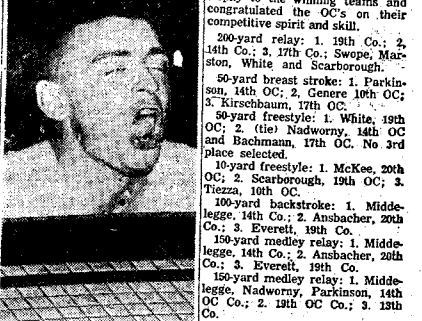

There was plenty of competition and spirit from the opening gun, and the spectators probably got as wet as the contestants. The program consisted of six events, a water polo match and trick diving. In the 50-yard freestyle, 19th Company's Gus White just managed to outstroke Fred Nadworny of 14th Co., and Jim Bachmann of 17th, who tied for second place.

550th Takes 'Mural Crown'

The 550th Tank Company became intramural basketball champions of the Combat Training Command last week, by defeating the 41st Field Artillery Battalion 54 to 49, in the finals of a week-long tournament at Harmony Church Gym.

The 41st earned a place in the championship game by defeating the Third Battalion, 30th Inf., representative, 33 to 24 in the semi-finals Tuesday night while 550th was downing Second Battalion, 30th, 51 to 21.

Trailing 42 to 40 going into the fourth quarter, the Tankers tied the score and broke away in a rush lead by Guard Vernon Ai, who scored eight points in the final stanza. Ai was high for the night with 15 points followed closely by team captain Jennings Gilbert who tallied 14 points. Gilbert scored 34 points in the finals and semi-finals for top honors for those two games. Rayburn White and Don Hoffman shared the high scorer position for the losers with 11 points each.

ED MCKEE... Freestyle Winner

stroke in the time of 1:22 seconds, but anchored the winning 150-yard medley relay with Nadworny and Parkinson. Parkinson also won the 50-yard breast stroke event in the evening's best time, a sparkling 29 seconds.

OC Regiment Swim Meet Ends in Two-Way Draw

The First Officer Candidate Regiment's initial swimming meet of the year ended in a two-way tie between 14th and 19th OC Companies at Briant Wells Field House last week.

From a spectator standpoint, the combination water polo, basketball game during intermission was probably the highlight of the evening. 17th OC dunked more opponents, blocked harder, and shot more to swamp a game but waterlogged crew from 20th OC, 2 to 2.

Col. Harry M. Grizzard, regimental commander, presented a trophy to the winning teams and congratulated them on their competitive spirit and skill. 200-yard relay: 1. 19th Co.; 2. 14th Co.; 3. 17th Co.; Swope, Marston, White and Scarborough. 50-yard breast stroke: 1. Parkinson, 14th Co.; 2. Genero, 10th Co.; 3. Kirschbaum, 17th Co. 50-yard freestyle: 1. White, 19th OC; 2. (tie) Nadworny, 14th OC and Bachmann, 17th OC. No 3rd place selected.

10-yard freestyle: 1. McKee, 20th OC; 2. Scarborough, 19th OC; 3. 10th OC. 100-yard backstroke: 1. Middlelegge, 14th Co.; 2. Ansbacher, 20th Co.; 3. Everett, 19th Co. 150-yard medley relay: 1. SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Unquestionably the most thankless task in the world is that of officiating athletic contests — any athletic contests. It is not only impossible to please both sides, it is impossible to please either side. Fans, players, coaches and writers stand ready to heap gross, lots of verbal and written abuse on the heads of wearers of the striped shirt at the drop of a hat—or the toot of a whistle.

The cry of "Kill the umpire," or "The refs' a bum," has echoed through the halls of sportdom for countless ages, dating back, no doubt, to the days of Ren Hur or the original Olympic games. Antime a convenient scapegoat is needed, who is more logical than the arbiters?

Therefore, it was with mixed emotions that we perused the following missive which flowed across our desk the other day: "I have just returned from the OC Regiment vs. CTC basketball game. The refereeing stunk. The basketball players and type basketball played here on the post are the finest to be seen anywhere. When the basic theme of basketball is so upset by poor officiating it is time to look for a solution.

"It is not possible for two individuals who have no idea of what the game is about and who spend their time playing games with high school teams to handle these games. It is in the interest of good sportsmanship and good player-referee relations if the men are trained to do their job. It also makes for a better spectator sport.

"The Army has schools at Fort Bragg to train men in PT and also runs seminars at various posts for referees. If it is not possible to send them away to school, a class could be started here on post. Not only is there a post league, but there are also several regimental leagues which needed qualified referees. A pool for referees could be obtained from a careful screening of personnel here on the post. This pool could also be trained for baseball, softball and any other sport the post stresses.

"Initially, the attendance at the basketball games was very good, but talking to many people at halftime and discussing the Benning sports picture in detail, it is firmly felt on the post that the refereeing is of such poor quality that it actually detracts from the game itself.

"This letter is not written on one particular game, nor is it addressed to one particular individual. Rather it is an honest opinion based on observations of several sports-minded Benningites with a desire to improve the standards of the officiating and thereby to improve the game—both for the spectators and players."

After our blood had finished boiling over anonymous letter-writers in general, we mulled over the remarks couched by The Raven. His letter breaks down into two basic themes: (1) We have poor officials here, and (2) Let's remedy this. With regard to the quality of the officiating, we conducted a sort of informal symposium of various coaches and players from the six league teams. We asked for opinions on how well the referees had done their jobs. The answers were unanimously favorable. One prominent candidate for All-Post honors commented, "They've missed a few calls, sure. I've seen quite a few luvvups missed by the players too." The coach of a leading team stated that the quality of officiating had been just as good as the quality of play.

CTC Wins Team Boxing Title; Final Fight Card Tonight

Coach Frank Boring's well-balanced CTC Commanders became the 1954 Fort Benning team boxing champions last Friday as post fight managers voted to cease league operations and begin preparation for the Third Army tournament next month at Fort Bragg. Selection of representatives will begin tonight with a star-studded ten-bout card designed to produce clear-cut champions in each weight class who will be the eventual entrants at Fort Bragg. Tonight's card will have no effect on league standings, but will produce some of the best matches of the season as tonight fighters slug it out for the right to represent Benning in the Third Army meet.

Final league figures show CTC with a solid seven-point margin over second place School Brigade, 37 to 30. Special Troops finished third with 17. Four fighters are already assured of championships due to lack of contenders. Regis Blair, 112-weight, Ed Crook, light middleweight, and James Boyd, light heavyweight, all of the School Brigade, and Elvin Mathews, light weight, of Special Troops Command have no opposition.

Rivalry looms Red hot rivalry looms in other divisions, however and with Third Army berths at stake there will be no holding back or jockeying for advantageous matches. Looking at the picture by weight classes, the bantamweight champion will be crowned tonight as Dave Mideh, district Golden Gloves heavyweight, little Hilton Smith of CTC, Smith, a season-long crowd favorite has been beaten only once this year. Mideh has lost three but has had more matches.

Dick Woodley, a sharpshooting southpaw slugger, must shoot by CTC stablemate Leonard Hudgins in order to carry post featherweight hopes to Bragg. Woodley has a EUCOM championship belt and a state Golden Gloves crown among his fistful trophies. Hudgins will be making his first appearance at Briant Wells, but his previous experience ranks him as a Class I fighter.

The age-old conflict between boxer and slugger will be revived when hard-punching Herman Hinton of CTC tangles with stylish Pete Stalker of School Brigade for light welter honors. Several post experts rate Hinton as one of Benning's best glovers, while Stalker has been impressive in his last outing. William Henry of CTC and Fred Benton of Brigade will battle it out for the welter weight spot on the team. It will be the first appearance for either in quite some time, mainly because no one cared to challenge them during the season and class stratification prevented their meeting before.

Joe Davis, one of the most popular middleweights to appear on post in the past several years, will meet Clayborne Gary, the winner of a triangular elimination tournament. Added Attractions Four additional matches have been arranged which promise plenty of leather-tossing. Alvin Kidd of CTC will take on CTC's Rudy Fraraccio, Golden Glover William Williams will test Brigade's knockout artist, Pat Walsh, slugger Melvin Church and Tony D'Amato, both of CTC, are matched, and Joel Wilson of Brigade meets Nat Witt of CTC.

ABN. LINGUIST . . . Pvt. Joseph Rozmaity, H. & S. Co., Fourth Student Bn. (Abn.), speaks four languages fluently and now is busy mastering English while he masters the parachute. He is hard at home in Polish, Russian, French, and German, and is homing towards American citizenship.

Topic No. 461
Moslem World
To Be Studied

The Command Conference topic for next week is "The Moslem World." It outlines the geographical, political, and religious extent of the Moslems and sums up their constant struggle against Communism.

Most "trouble spots" are concentrated in the Arabic-speaking areas of the western half, such as Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria, all striving for national independence. The British-Egyptian dispute over control of the Suez Canal Zone threatens world peace, according to the conference topic, while the recent settlement of the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute is essential to world security.

The religion of Islam is the common bond that unites the Moslem World. It has spread by conquest and conversion until now it reaches from the Atlantic coast of Africa to the island of Mindanao in the Philippines. It has such a strong force on the people that most of its religious laws have been accepted as a way of life.

Heroic Sergeant Honored by Country 69th Medal of Honor Awarded to Infantryman

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Fort McPherson, Ga. — Mgt. Ray E. Duke, son of Mrs. Nancy I. Duke, of Tracy City, Tenn., has been awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for his "consummate courage, superb leadership, and heroic actions" during a bitter battle in Korea. Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has announced.

Sgt. Duke, who was taken prisoner after being severely wounded and refusing to permit his men to further risk their lives by trying to carry him to safety, died in a counterattack, the men were rescued and all wounded soldiers recovered.

Heavily Engaged
Shortly after regaining their original position, the platoon was heavily engaged by the enemy for the second time. Although wounded in the head and back by mortar fragments, Sgt. Duke repeatedly exposed himself to enemy fire as he moved among his men, giving directions and encouraging them in their stand.

When the position again became untenable, the platoon was ordered to withdraw for the second time. In preparing to move out,

The Tennessee Infantryman was wounded severely in both legs and was unable to walk. Rather than endanger the lives of those who were attempting to carry him to safety, Duke insisted on being left behind. He covered the withdrawal of the remnants of the platoon by pouring deadly fire into the ranks of the attackers. Soon afterward his position was overrun and he was captured.

M-Sgt. Doy Deaton of Brooksville, Ind., now assigned to Fort Eustis, Va., witnessed Duke's heroic acts and gave this eye-witness account:

Hill by Enemy
"It was on the morning of April 28, 1951, at about 0300 hours, when we were hit by enemy troops. At the time we were deployed on Hill 502, and the area was patrolled by four squads. The fourth squad was with Sfc. Duke at the platoon command post.

"The enemy hit us and drove us back to higher ground. Duke was hit in the head but was still in complete charge of what men were left.

"Reaching higher ground, his head in bandages, Duke sized up the situation and gave the order to stop on the hill positions that we had lost.

"Following Duke back to that area, even against those odds, many will be announced later."

Army Ordered To Ferret Out Security Risks

Instructions have been sent to Army commanders at all levels directing them to take action against any of their officers who are established as security risks. These instructions are the result of policy decisions by the Secretary of the Army.

Commanders have been told to act under appropriate regulations and to give discharges other than honorable to any who are found by action of a board of officers to be security risks. This directive does not apply to regular Army officers with more than three years of service. The procedures governing the separation from the Service of these officers are contained in SR-600-220-1.

The handling of all such cases is to be expedited. Refusal by an officer to sign the Loyalty Certificate (DD Form 38 and 38a), or a plea of protection under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution or under Article 31 of the UCMJ in response to questions on subversive activities when properly put, will be considered sufficient evidence to establish an individual as a security risk. These new instructions are to govern if there is a conflict with existing regulations. (AFPS)

Capt. Charles J. Hoyt, former company commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, has been assigned as executive officer of the newly designated Fifth Student Battalion.

While in Korea during 1950 and 1951 Capt. Hoyt served with the 35th Infantry Regiment as platoon leader of a pioneer and ammunition platoon, battalion intelligence officer, and regimental assistant operations officer.

Upon his return to the states he was assigned to the OC Regiment as the company commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company. Captain Hoyt last year had the unusual assignment of commanding a company who witnessed the firing of the atomic cannon at Frenchmen's Flat, Nevada.

NEW EXECUTIVE . . . He Saw A-Blast

32 Mishaps Take 8 Lives Since Jan. 1

An Editorial

You might think that every soldier knows how to handle dangerous weapons. That's part of his business, especially if he's an Infantryman. He is taught to recognize dangerous weapons trained to handle them with care. He learns to take a good, hard look in all directions before he pulls the trigger.

It is surprising and disconcerting, therefore, to learn that death has come to eight persons so far this year, and seriously injured to others, as a result of mishandling of dangerous weapons by Fort Benning soldiers.

The instrument that has produced this list of casualties is one which too many Benningites don't know how to use properly. Or maybe they just don't recognize it as a dangerous weapon.

Death Dealer

Here's a brief description of this death-dealing gadget: It has a handle, a trigger, and a gasoline engine. Around and on top of this basic structure it carries a sheet metal body of no great thickness. This is usually a one-time-use device with various chrome-plated devices of questionable utility. There is a garnishing of glass on all sides. Optimists refer to this as "safety glass."

The finished product is often quite pretty.

Yeah, you've got it. We're talking about your jalopy, that flashy gas bugger parked in front of your barracks. That's the most dangerous weapon at Fort Benning.

1954 Record

You doubt it? Okay, then, let's take a look at the record. The record for this still infant year of 1954.

Fort Benning residents have thus far managed to get themselves involved in 32 accidents productive of either death or serious injury. We call an injury serious if it keeps the victim in the hospital for more than 24 hours.

Here's the rest of the score: death for six military personnel and two civilians; serious injury for 44 military personnel and five civilians; a lot of pretty automobiles converted into junk.

Most of those automobiles were of fairly recent vintage. None was older than five years. Many of them were 1953 models. All of them were privately owned—Uncle Sam's cars are given more considerate treatment, apparently.

Mayhem Excursion

This two-month excursion in mayhem has been costly to Uncle Sam, even though the vehicles didn't belong to him. The government (and that means you, brother, and me) is out some $125,000, to give a very conservative estimate.

How costly? Well, several soldiers were killed. That means payment of gratuities and insurance to dependents. And, to put it crudely, it costs to bury the dead. Then too, there's the matter of training people to replace the lamed-and-beasted.

Don't forget the 44 injured soldiers. They reached the hospital in various stages of despair. Some of them will be here for a long time. That means money, you know. Meanwhile, there have had to be replacements for the casualties.

'As You All Was' New Army 'Order'

Well, there's still some freedom of speech in America, even in OCS. The fact was in evidence last week when a loyal son of Texas was in command of an OC Company.

During a trying situation, the OC gave an order and immediately realized it was incorrect. Involving his Bill of Rights, he got out of the situation very neatly, using some Texas lingo. He came up with the now immortal words, not "as you were"—but rather, "as you all was!"

According to informed sources, the Army will NOT adopt this command. Too many field manuals to change.

Gen. Williams Plans Graduation Speech

Maj. Gen. Edward T. Williams, deputy commander of Third Army, will be principal speaker at graduation exercises for The Infantry School's associate officers' advanced class No. 3 next Wednesday.

At the 11 a.m. ceremony in the Main Theater, the two-star general will discuss the Army's role in the defense of the free world and the continued need for a large Infantry force.

Gen. Williams, a 1920 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, was assistant professor of military science and tactics at Ohio State University for five years before his assignment of the 43rd Field Artillery here in June 1935. Under his command, Battery B was awarded the Knox Trophy as the best artillery battery in the U.S. Army.

He was on detached service as military observer with the British in the Middle East during the Libyan and Syrian campaigns in 1941, and in January 1944 was assigned to the European Theater, where he served as Gen. George S. Patton's artillery officer throughout the campaigns in western Europe.

He returned to Europe in February 1948 as chief of staff of the First Infantry Division, and in April 1950 was named deputy operations officer of the European Command.

He is enrolled in the associate officers advanced infantry course, which is scheduled to begin on March 10, 1954.

Admiral M'Corkle Plans Sea Power Talk Saturday

Rear Adm. Francis D. M'Corkle, director of the Navy Department's Fleet Operations Division, will address The Infantry School's advanced classes here Saturday.

He will discuss sea power at the 10 a.m. session in the Main Theater.

A 1928 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, the 51-year old admiral took command of the USS Simpson on July 16, 1941, and was present at the Churchill-Roosevelt meeting at Argentinia, Newfoundland.

He became commander of the USS Tillman in May 1942, supporting U.S. troops during the invasion of North Africa and Sicily.

For the Tillman's amphibious assault on Sicily July 10 and 12, 1943, Adm. M'Corkle received a letter of commendation from the secretary of the Navy and the authority to wear the Commendation Ribbon and Combat V.

Grub Disappears Forever; Sgt., Car Hop Mourn Loss

"That's mine over there." "Yes, sir," said the Commissary car hop, (Loring St. E. C. Duhague's $14 worth of groceries briskly to a waiting car.

And that, ladies and gentlemen, was the last the sergeant ever saw of his groceries.

It happened last week. This week the car hop agreed to reimburse the sergeant to the extent of $10. "I'll have to tote a lot of groceries to make that much in tips," he lamented.

"It happens every week," a Commissary spokesman said. "But this is the first time the rightful owner failed to get his grub back. Till now people on the post have been 100 per cent honest."

Sgt. Duhague teaches in the Army Education Center's Speed-reading Laboratory.

Fashion Show Slated Friday

The Fort Benning Woman's Club will present their annual spring "Dream of Fashion" show at the Main Post Theater tomorrow night at 8:30.

The event, one of the highlights of the woman's organization for the year, is open to the public. Tickets will be on sale at the boxoffice prior to the performance.

One of the outstanding features of this year's presentation is the scheduled appearance of OC Stephen Harbachick, talented young baritone, as vocalist in the finale, Harbachick, who appeared in numerous operas and musical comedies in Summer stock and at the Opera Theater in New York, has won many musical honors, including the Caruso Memorial Award and the Nelson Eddy Scholarship at Juillard School of Music.

Thirty of Fort Benning loveliest ladies will parade almost 100 ensembles for Spring and Summer, selected from 14 of Columbus' leading shops of fashion.

Proceeds will be donated to post charities, according to Mrs. Maurice J. Fitzgerald, fashion show chairman.

Questionable 'Lady' Charms 30th

The boys of Headquarters Company are proud of her nonetheless.

The reason is she recently gave birth to a litter of 12 puppies. And, in a very boastful tone, the boys are quick to inform the stranger that Patsy has become the mother of four such litters since coming to Second Battalion to live. Each litter has contained from 12 to 16 healthy pups.

Some members of the organization are not so free in their praise of Patsy, however. They hint the accusations such as bad disposition and poor character. Perhaps she is getting old. No one seems to know her age, explaining that "her pedigree papers have been lost," when questioned.

Patsy displayed a bit of temperament not long ago when Sgt. A. Z. Anderson, photographer of the CTC Public Information office, went down to take a portrait of the family. She refused to get her children together to pose and even growled menacingly at Sgt. Anderson. The latter retreated.

Some even accuse her of child heating. They claim she mauls her pups around sometimes. Still others criticize the "friends" she has been seen running with.

"But, we think a lot of her, really," one soldier said. "Despite all her faults, she has furnished us with some mighty nice pups."

Soldier Patrol Taps Cpl. W. J. Chittum

Cpl. William J. Chittum of Knoxville, Tenn., was selected last week by the Fort Benning Good-Soldier Patrol for outstanding military qualities.

Cpl. Chittum is assigned to Company F of the Infantry School Detachment. He was cited for his superior appearance and outstanding military bearing.

They Tip ROTC Hats to Him Behind-Scenes Sgt. Digs Answers

More than 74,000 young men can tip their ROTC hats to a Fort Benning sergeant for his behind-the-scenes work in providing the necessary information for their well-rounded college and high school military education.

M-Sgt. Ferrel B. Wiggins of Marion, Ind., tracks down the answers for 74,504 students of Infantry and general military science in 157 schools in the U. S., Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Alaska.

As chief non-commissioned administrative adviser and assistant to the ROTC Committee chairman in The Infantry School's Non-Resident Instruction Department, Sgt. Wiggins digs into tons of military literature to get the correct answer for non-resident students seeking technical information or reference material.

The 47-year-old sergeant also furnishes subject schedules from which professors of military science and tactics arrange their lesson plans.

When the professors request maps, transparencies, or other equipment provided by the school's ROTC Office, Sgt. Wiggins sees that they are sent out.

Although ROTC units have several sources from which they obtain materials, most of their military equipment is purchased through the Fort Benning ROTC Office. Determining what can and what cannot be purchased is another phase of the sergeant's work.

Sgt. Wiggins estimates that he fills 15 requests daily for supplies, references, or aid on problems. The majority of these require research.

Of the amicable sergeant's 27 years in the Infantry, 11 have been spent as an ROTC instructor in colleges and high schools. He has taught at Ohio State University, Western Kentucky State College, and Rose Polytechnic Institute in Indiana, and at two high schools in Indianapolis and one in Honolulu.

Before coming to Fort Benning last August he was an instructor at the Marchameha School for Boys in Honolulu, a position he held for three years.

GETS BRONZE STAR . . . WO Haskell Hurd presented the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in Korea by Maj. John Mollma, executive officer of Second Bn., 30th Inf., at a recent retreat parade.

MEDAL OF HONOR

It becomes necessary at times to go out and capture a prisoner. This is one aspect of war that has not changed since Caesar's time. For a prisoner, properly interrogated, may reveal information that will save the lives of your buddies. Sometimes information obtained from a prisoner may change the whole flow of a skirmish, battle, or perhaps even a war.

A raiding party left the positions of Co. C, 172nd Inf. Regt., 45th Inf. Div., on the night of Nov. 30, 1952. It was near Songmang. The patrol had instructions to engage the enemy and bring back a prisoner.

The key terrain feature was a steep, rugged slope. At the crest was the enemy, one of whom must be moving up in the darkness. Suddenly a machine gun opened fire from the crest. The enemy rounds started falling. There was a small arms fire and here and there a cry for aid. Several of the patrol were on the ground, wounded.

The patrol leader moved through the darkness. "You three men cover us," he said. "We got what we came after. Give us some time; we've got some wounded." "Another soldier and I stayed behind with Pfc. George to act as rear guards when the patrol pulled out," said Ruiz later. "We were there for awhile when a German of the enemy threw a grenade. I didn't see it at first. But George

We Are Too Interested in Groceries

But Only Faith Can Make Us Happy

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) DENNY D. WILLIAMS
 "Give me water to drink" (Exodus 17:2).
 A sufficient supply of water to drink was one of the constant problems of the Israelites on their journey from Egypt to Canaan. Time after time it seemed that everyone, and the cattle, would die of thirst on the trek through the desert.
 It is difficult for most of us to appreciate their problem. When we are thirsty we go to the nearest fountain and have all of the water we want in a moment. The Israelites, in rare individual situations, an adequate supply of drinking water is always available. Since our thirst is so easily quenched, we may forget the importance of water in sustaining life. We are constantly stressing the importance of food and of the liquids are far more important to the human body.
 An astute physician in Indianapolis used this medical knowledge in a unique way to help a five-year-old child. The child had never talked and seemed to enjoy the experience of being a mute. It was placed in a hospital and was told but no food unless he asked for it. The child smiled to himself, for his parents had threatened the same treatment many times. Two days passed. His hunger increased but he was sure they would not let a little boy starve. Finally, on the fourth day, the boy spoke his first words, "Bring on the groceries." We are more interested in groceries, but water is more important for life. We are more interested in the physical than anything else for gaining happiness — the chief desire of man.
 We assume that happiness is brought to us by external things when all experience, correctly interpreted, proves that happiness is internal. The man who had not found peace in the midst of conflict, confidence in the midst of suffering, and joy in the midst of challenge, is already dead. All of these things are the equivalent of happiness. They can be achieved only by a strong faith in God.
 "Where there is no faith the people perish," is just as true as the accepted fact that the physical body cannot exist without water.

British Chaplain Tells Story

GIs Stuck to Faith of Fathers

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — American POW's demonstrated "great power of faith" in a North Korean ship-in-fact of dire Communist threats, a British chaplain, the Rev. Stanley J. Davies, told the Department of the Army in a recent report to the chief of chaplains.
 The Britisher's account of how American soldiers struggled for religious tolerance in a North Korean prison camp was released here by Col. M. W. Phillips, Third Army chaplain.
 As the only surviving minister in Chinese POW Camp 2 (three American chaplains died soon after capture), the Rev. Davies ministered to both Catholic and Protestant soldiers. The only British chaplain to fall into Communist hands, he was serving with the Gloucestershire Regiment when captured.
 Religious Activities
 In reporting religious activities at the camp, Chaplain Davies said, "We made hymn books from odds and scraps of cardboard and pages from squares of Chinese cigarette paper. I had no chance nor patent right in my venture, nor was it possible to obtain such things. The Chinese would not permit Red Cross supplies into the camp."
 A "beautifully carved" little Celtic Cross made from Korean stone and "a fine large crucifix in wood" were among the precious objects handed over to prisoners and brought safely out of the camp.
 According to Chaplain Davies, the Chinese showed a strictly limited amount of religious tolerance, but certainly not religious freedom. He said, "In spite of provocative humiliations, and in face of some obstructions, I was able to conduct regular Sunday services each week."
 During these services, the camp lecture room was crammed to overflowing. On two particular Sundays, Chaplain Davies recalled, was overjoyed to hear the lusty strains of "Faith of Our Fathers Living Still" from a cell where he was further imprisoned for "illegal religious activities and also news and Pete Smith."
 All religious meetings were subjected to censorship. This meant written reports on all services, words of prayers, hymns and scripture readings. Singing of National Anthems, including "The Star Spangled Banner" were forbidden, and classed as "political activities."
 Neither were the sick allowed religious consolation. The chaplain's report revealed that Holy Communion was allowed five times — only at Christmas 1951 and 1952; Easter 1952 and 1953; and Whit Sunday (Pentecost) 1953.
 Among the many American officers who were praised by Chaplain Davies as setting a "fine example at Christian worship" and assisting with religious services were Capt. Ralph A. Nardella, U. S. Infantry; Cpl. Guy Thrash of Atlanta, Ga., and Lt. Col. James Witt.
 Capt. Wright, Capt. Dobb, and Cpl. Abbot (not further identified) of the U.S.A.F. were especially mentioned for withstanding "most bravely and most resolutely, in face of dire threats, against confessing to germs warfare and were able by various means to give religious comfort to one another."

Red Sermons Got Sgt's. Deaf Ear

Twenty-one-year-old Sgt. Franz followed when the Reds swarmed over the Chinese mainland after Cole, born in Peking in 1932 and educated at St. Louis College in Tensing, remembers vividly the constant and repeated efforts of the Communists to recruit him into their organization.
 "They tried quite often to get me to conform, but I wouldn't," he said. "They never tried to force me into joining, but they always reminded me they were still around. They used to inspect our home quite often — furniture, lights, switches, fixtures — for no reason at all. Finally they gave up, and I got out of the country."
 Cole, who speaks the Mandarin dialect fluently, came to America and enlisted in the U. S. Army in 1950. He plans to make the Army a career.
 "I hope there will eventually be a shake-up in the Red government," he said.
 As evidence of surviving Nationalist sentiment he offers the cases of Red soldiers who refused release and followed the Korean truce, officers following the Korean truce.

Lt. Pell Becomes Planner for ROTC

First Lt. Robert A. Pell of Fillmore, Ind., has joined the planning and enlisted in the U. S. Army campment at Fort Benning.

 Lt. Pell served with the 14th Infantry Regiment, 25th Division in Korea from January to March, 1953.

New Records

BY A3C BOB MCGONAGLE USAF
 (AFRS Staff Announcer)
 Perry Como has handpicked a winner with his latest, a haunting ballad called "Wanted." Cellmate "Look Out the Window" takes on a calypso flavoring with a musical assist from Hugo Winterhalter and company... The Voices of Walter Schumann bring back an old standard, "I Only Have Eyes for You." The high-fallin' renegades with "Old Shoes and a Bag of Rice" backed by a happy-go-lucky item, "The Gypsy Was Wrong." That singing rage, Miss Patti Page, packs a vital punch on "Cross Over the Bridge." On the reverse side, Patti sings a nostalgic melody, "My Heartless Love."
 In the new field five members of the Godfrey gang go vocal with two separate releases. First, there is the Mariner's latest, "They Don't Play the Piano Anymore." The second is "The Piano Man," a ship harmony. Lower deck carries a lush ballad, "Sentimental Eyes." "Unpucker" is the vocal classic offered by Frank Parker augmented by Stan Freeman on harp and chord, the guitar artistry of Mudd Low, Frank Carroll's bass and Chaucery on the drums.
 For sure winners we place bets on Sinatra's "Young at Heart," "Baton Rouge" by Ginny Gibson and Rosemary Clooney's vocal classic, "My Baby Rocks Me"

Doctor, Painter, S-Cadet

On The Bookshelf
 NOT AS A STRANGER, by Morton Thompson (Scribner, 598 pages).
 From childhood Lucas Marsh was determined to be a doctor. The story carries him through medical school under many difficulties, his unpromising marriage, and several years of practice in a small town. He did not see his patients as cases, but as human beings.
 RAINBOW ON THE ROAD, by Esther Forbes (Houghton, 343 pages).
 Early tells the story of his aunt's marriage to Judge Reuther, the itinerant portrait painter, his adventurous summer up and down New England of the 1830's with North, who so strongly resembled a highwayman, and Jude's involuntary entanglement with the latter.
 MAN OF MANY MINDS, by Edward E. Smith (Fantasy Press, 222 pages).
 Cadet George Hanlon of the Sector Service of the Inter-Stationary Corps was sent to the planet of "Simonedes" and from there to "Algon," inhabited by half-animal, half-vegetable "greenies" who were enslaved by human captors.

Very Sizzling Answer
How Much Damage Can A Hydrogen Bomb Do?
CHICAGO, Ill. (APPS) — How much damage can a hydrogen bomb do?
The answer — or at least part of it — was revealed by W. Sterling Coe, chairman of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy speaking at a convention of building material men here.
The hydrogen blast at the Eniwetok Atoll during the 1952 tests, Mr. Coe revealed, completely obliterated the test island. The blast tore a hole in the floor of the ocean a full mile in diameter and 175 feet deep at its lowest point.
According to Mr. Coe, the entire downtown section of the city of Chicago could have been placed in that crater.
"If it had occurred in a modern city," said Mr. Coe, "the heat and blast generated would have caused absolute destruction over an area extending three miles in all directions from the point where the hydrogen device exploded.
"This is an area of complete devastation — using the word 'complete' in its most precise meaning — six miles in diameter. The area of severe to moderate damage would stretch in all directions to seven miles from ground zero."

allies who are now spending their time in bandages, casts and traction frames.

"Tsk, tsk," you say. "Accidents will happen."
"Baloney! Some that line for the next tornado.

Traffic accidents don't just happen. They aren't acts of God. They are caused, and the chief causes are stupidity, irresponsibility and in-sobriety.

32 Accidents

The 32 "accidents" which make such an unsightly blot on the 1954 record conform to a pattern. Certain ingredients turn up time and time again in the suicide cocktail. The recipe for this concoction calls for a large portion of speed, a dash or two of physical exhaustion, a quantity of liquor, and a narrow road with plenty of bumps and holes. The effectiveness of this mixture can be guaranteed. It's almost as certain as pulling the pin on a grenade, holding it in your hand, and counting to 375 — slowly, by ones.

Here's the pattern. In almost all cases, speeds of from 60 to 80 miles an hour. The typical site was a paved highway of sub-standard width, with rough shoulders. Most of the "accidents" occurred in the wee hours of the morning — between two and six o'clock. Many of the drivers had been without sleep for long periods. And too often there was evidence of that lethal mixture of gasoline and alcohol — driving while intoxicated accounted for four of the deaths and 13 of the injuries.

Stupidity... Irresponsibility.

Insobriety. And the greatest of these is stupidity, because it sort of includes the other two. The fellow who drives when he's been drinking is just plain stupid, and so is the irresponsible speed demon, the highway cowboy.
That 1954 Zlutz Special with the hard top and the wire wheels is a dangerous weapon, friend, so be careful. You don't have to paint it black to make it a hearse.
Your foot on the gas pedal is like a finger on the trigger. Don't let that thing go off, Mac. Stick around awhile.

CASE HISTORY NO. 10

Driver faces possible manslaughter charges and civil suit by estate of dead.

CASE HISTORY NO. 11

Ord. Safety Head Likes Eight Ball

Oldly enough, Capt. T. D. Burnett, safety officer of the Ordnance section, doesn't mind being behind the eight ball.
In fact, in staying there, he has plenty of help from the more than 300 employees in the section.
Capt. Burnett explains it this way:
"I keep the ball until section activity reports a lost time accident. Then it's presented to that report."
Business has been slow during the past 12 months. Only one lost-time accident was reported, and Capt. Burnett hopes it is even slower during the next 12 months.

Display Lures Some 5,000 Since Opening at Outpost 1

More than 5,000 visitors have seen the Infantry weapons and equipment display in the Fort Benning information center since it opened a few months ago.

Located in the old Outpost No. 1 building just inside the Main Post entrance, the two-story stone structure houses everything that makes the U. S. Infantryman the best equipped fighting man in the world, from Arctic boots to desert uniforms, from pots and pans to heavy mortars.

While visitors await relatives or friends, they are conducted through the building by military police who explain the uses of the equipment on display. MP's report also that many people "just passing through" stop for a look at the display.

Among the items on view are uniforms, cooking equipment, types of Infantry weapons, radios, telephones and other communications equipment, mess equipment and C-rations.

Radio Men Told To Operate Despite 'Jamming'

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—When "jammed," keep cool, keep trying, keep operating.

With these instructions the Third Army may turn to the fleet-footed messenger as the Army's best means of communication, despite countless advances in electronics.

It is possible for a potential enemy force to jam radio communications, posing a serious threat to effective communication between field units. Recognizing this possibility, the Army is working on a program to reduce the effect of potential enemy jamming operations.

Jamming may take the form of artificially produced static or rhythmic sound patterns that cover or destroy radio reception. This type of action can do much to slow down Army field operations by forcing commanders to utilize slower means of communication with their units.

Keep Operating

To meet the problem, Third Army is emphasizing to radio men that they must "keep operating" even when the enemy is jamming the circuits.

The Army plans to teach operators how to minimize the effects of jamming by giving them plenty of practice in operating under these adverse conditions. Special jamming units from the Electronic Warfare Center, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., are available to take part in any Army wide field exercise. Attached to the Aggressor force during the maneuver, they will conduct jamming operations against the opposing radio stations.

To help communications men maintain contact when the enemy is jamming, the Army has disseminated a series of Electronic Countermeasures, or anti-jamming instructions.

Easy Way

The easiest way to get around this interference is to send as few radio messages as possible. Thus soldiers in the field would have to make use of telephone, visual signals and jeep carried messages, and the centuries-old practice of using a "runner."

Commanders and staff officers are advised to pre-plan their operations so that a brief code signal will put the desired plans into effect, doing away with added radio communication. Signal and communication officers have the responsibility of locating radio sending stations in positions where the enemy will find it hard to put up the interference.

The big job, however, remains in the hands of the individual radio operators. They must learn to recognize enemy jamming, readjust their equipment to minimize the effect, and learn to send and receive messages even when the jamming is going on.

Rucker Sweeps Set From Post Cagers

Camp Rucker's rangy, well-drilled Rebels handed the neophyte Fort Benning Doughboys a pair of trouncings last Sunday and Monday, winning 83-77 and 94-84. The Doughboys will replay the visit with a pair of games slated for the Rucker fieldhouse later this week.

Considering the fact that they had only worked together as a unit for four days, Coach John Vines' squad performed surprisingly well. They showed flashes of brilliance, but the offense sputtered in crucial places, and the team was undisciplined by loss of key personnel via the excessive foul call.

The Doughboys simply made too many mistakes to win from a team such as Rucker. Sparked by Little All-American O'Neal Weaver and former Duquesne ace Bill Reigel, the Rebels had too much height and teamwork for the green Doughboys.

Sunday Night

Sunday night's encounter saw Rucker choke off Benning's strong closing rally behind Reigel's shotmaking and Weaver's rebounding to take an 8-77 win. The Doughboys, whose attack functioned only in spurts, twice pulled up from 12 point deficits led by the tremendous all-round playing of Frank Glenn. The heavy California connected for 29 points, the evening's best total, and fought the battle of the backboards valiantly against the much taller Alabamians.

Trailing 45-33 at halftime, the Doughboys came back from intermission and cut the lead to six points in exactly 50 seconds. After a period and a half of playing swap-out, Glenn went on a shooting spree that drew the Doughs to within three points. With just two minutes remaining, Rucker's ex-Oklahoma U. star, Harold Smith, sank a layup and was fouled while shooting. He sank the gratis shot to give the Rebs a six-point margin which they maintained till the buzzer.

Ice Cold

An ice-cold shooting streak during the second period, during which Rucker out-scored Benning 26-14, was probably the difference.

Monday night's game was an entirely different affair. A pair of Bills, Bolger and Thompson, took over the pointmaking chores, and coupled with Glenn's rebounding the Doughboys battled the invaders on better than even terms for the entire first half. Erratic passing hurt the Doughboys cooling them their chance to build a lead, and the teams left the floor at halftime all tied up, 44-44.

Bolger and Glenn, however, had each accumulated four personal fouls during the first 20 minutes, and Vines was forced to bench them for the start of the second half. With the Doughboys' height out of action, the towering Rebels monopolized both backboards and built up an 11-point lead during the third frame. Forced to shove his axes in, Vines inserted Glenn and Bolger, but Frank accumulated his fifth foul and Bolger followed suit shortly.

Meanwhile, Jack Blaski and Duane Leggett were hitting for Benning, and with the beginning of the fourth period, Jock Sutherland's long-range bombardment began coming in. The Doughboys narrowed the margin to five, but the lack OUTA MY WAY . . . Fort Benning's Frank Glenn shoulders pass to Camp Rucker center O'Neal Weaver and bounces a pass to a waiting teammate. No. 23 is Charles Grigsby of Rucker. The Doughboys lost this one 83-77.

Record Setting Bill Bolger Dazzles Benning Cage Fans

Bullet Bill Bolger, a 6-5 sharpshooter from New York City, recently rewrote basketball scoring records here by slamming 59 points through the nets on the final night's play.

The 59 point total erased the old record of 47 set last season by George Swyers of First Student Regiment.

Bolger, currently a student in TIC's basic officer course, comes by way of Georgetown University and the Baltimore Bullets. He played three years at Georgetown, being honorably mentioned for All-America honors all three seasons, and is the only player in history to top the thousand point mark for the Purple Eagles.

After receiving his AB degree from Georgetown, Bill signed a contract with the professional Baltimore Bullets, and played with them for the three months prior to his entering the Army.

Asked about the quality of play in the NBA, of which the Bullets are a member, Bill emphasized, "Boy, they're all tough up there. I was a backcourt man for Baltimore since I'm only 6-5. They let their big boys play the post."

As for the players, Bolger nominated the Boston Celtics' great scorer, Bob Cousy as the best he faced. "The first time we played Boston, I was on the bench," he recalled, "and Cousy came up with the most incredible shot I ever saw. He grabbed the ball off the board, came down with his back to the basket, and flipped the ball in without even looking. I jumped up and yelled 'Atta boy, Cousy,' before I remembered which team I was on. The coach gave me the devil."

Joining the First Student Regiment team late in the season, Bill got off to a long-striding start by chucking in 34 points in his first outing. Although he had trouble getting away from his BIOC duties for either games or practice sessions, he meshed 190 points in five starts for a 38-point-per-game average, the best on post. His record-slashing 59 point effort came against CTC, as the Black-shirts won their season finale, 88-73. The new mark was amassed on an astronomical 22 field goals and 15 free throws.

Permission has been requested to allow Bolger to accompany the post basketball team to the Third Army playoffs, later this month, and no one is hoping more fervently for its approval than Bill himself. The guy just loves to play ball.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Probably one of the strongest athletic teams ever assembled on post didn't even bear the name of Fort Benning.

The team was organized for one purpose—the annual Bibb City Invitational basketball tournament held last week. Under the name "Phantoms" they swept unbeaten to their second title, then disbanded as quietly as they were formed. For their brief, four-game existence—during which they scored 434 points—they had the veteran Bibb City audiences, who are used to topnotch Basketball, gasping with amazement.

Little Ray Steiner, Lawson AFB's perpetual motion machine, was the organizing hand behind the Phantoms. Last year Ray assembled a hand-picked quintet out of the intramural league and parlayed them into their first championship. Steiner played his collegiate basketball for Ed Hickey at St. Louis in the days when the Billikens swept all before them, including mighty Kentucky. He was named to the third All-American team and was widely renowned as a playmaker.

Jack Sutherland occupied the other guard position for the Phantoms, teaming with Steiner to form as good a back court combination as you can think of. A deadly two-hand shooter, Sutherland's college ballplaying was at Kentucky and later with the Marco All-Stars, who toured with the Detroit Vagabond Kings.

The center and post player was bouncing Bill Bolger, a highly effective scorer with one and two hand overhead shots. As clever a ball-handler as a lot of T-Formation quarterbacks, Bill delighted the Bibb crowds with his faking and passing in pre-game drills which he frequently carried over into the games themselves.

Muscular Frank Glenn held down one of the forward slots and was probably the Phantom's top rebounder. Frank is one of those players with that "Midastouch" around the backboards, and several times he amazed players and fans by soaring into the air to change teammates' errant shots and deflect them miraculously through the hoop.

Disgracing for a moment, here's a short story to illustrate Frank's tremendous capacity for work. Recently, the tale goes, the 30th Infantry team had finished a particularly rugged practice session that had the boys literally dragging. While most of them headed for the shower or sprawled around to catch their breaths, Glenn disappeared. He was discovered pounding the daylight out of a punching bag, fresh as a daisy. Following his bag workout, he hit the parallel bars, knocked off a few dozen pushups and closed with several laps around the gym. John Vines is still shaking his head over that one.

Returning to the talented Phantoms, the other forward was in the hands of Bryce Holt, and the husky North Carolinian produced his best basketball of the season during the tourney. In the hectic duel with the tall Manchester Motor squad, Holt took over the post slot after Glenn and Bolger had fouled out early in the game, and his work from the pivot was smooth as satin as he outmaneuvered the taller Manchester forwards, passing beautifully from the post.

Not more than a cut or two below the Phantom's stripe, though, was the entry representing STC-OC Regiment, with a liberal sprinkling of CTC Commanders. Gil Shor and Don Keats, a pair of prolific shotmakers, headed the list of Special Troopers. From the OC squad came Bob Kurek and Frank Barker, who added height and point-producing punch to the lineup. CTC furnished his twin terrors, Bill Thompson and Frank Chan, to add speed and versatility which they did in carload lots.

The STC-OC-CTC boys would have had a breeze but for the Phantoms.

The recent series with Camp Rucker offered a crystal-clear object lesson in the desirabilities of a group playing together as a unit to learn teamwork and cohesiveness. The newly formed Fort Benning team lacked the fine edge of control in passing and play execution which comes only from constant work and practice together. On the other hand, the rangy Alabamians displayed sure, confident passing, lightning-like breaking, sharp playmaking and general overall smooth play. The Doughboys were very much in both contests right up to the final moments when games are won—and lost, but they lacked that infinite quality which fuses five players into a team. The Rucker boys have played together enough; the Benning boys haven't.

With time, if they had it, the Doughboys could be molded into a tough team. But the Third Army tournament is a week from Monday.

Girl Rasslers at BWFH Sunday

Scratch and squeal will supplement the grunt and groan at Briant Wells Field House Sunday night when a rough and tumble match between two rugged but attractive young ladies highlights the first pro wrestling card of the season.

The two girls — Ada Ash, a 142-pound redhead, and Beverly Morris, a 133-pound brunette — have met and conquered some of the nation's top female wrestlers. The winner will be decided on the basis of the best two out of three falls, with a one-half hour time limit on the match.

Two other bouts between males will round out the card. Big Chief Kettle, a 265-pound Yaqui Indian, will tangle with 235-pound Red McIntyre, one of the South's most promising young wrestlers.

The other match of the evening will pit Leo Numa of British Columbia against Black Jack Dillon, Numa, former football star for the University of Washington, began as an amateur wrestler. Dillon is going all out to win.

Entertainment will begin at 8 p.m., and tickets for Sunday night's card, priced at 50 cents for children, $1 for adults and $1.25 for ringside, are on sale at the Special Services Office, all company orderly rooms and at the Columbus Arena.

He Travels the Long Road From Draft Dodger to OC

It's a long way from the status of draft dodger to officer candidate, but Thomas Shepherd, now training with 13th OC Company, fills the bill on both counts.

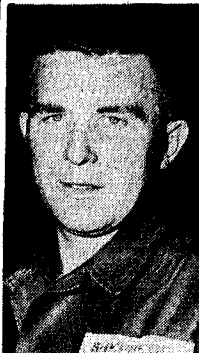

It was in October 1945 that Shepherd received his induction notice. He packed his bags, took a train, and went to see people he thought might help.

Meanwhile, the police began looking for him. Back home his mother professed ignorance of his exact whereabouts.

Then on Nov. 4, 1945, she received the following telegram: "Enlisted in American Army this afternoon. Leaving for Fountainbleau, France, for basic training tomorrow."

The explanation is simple. Shepherd was an American citizen residing in England. When he received his draft notice he had the choice of being inducted into the British Army or enlisting in the American. It took longer to enlist than he expected, and when he failed to show up at the induction center the English authorities started looking. His enlistment in the American Army cleared him of British draft obligations.

"The British lost a good man, it proved, for Candidate Shepherd distinguished himself in the Army of his homeland. He wears the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Silver Star, the Korean Service Ribbon with five campaign stars, and the ROK Presidential Unit Citation.

Proposed changes in the organization of the Infantry Regiment will be tested on Exercise Flash Burn this Spring.

112th Trans. Bn. Sleeking Up For Aggressors at Flash Burn

The 112th Transportation Battalion, comprising the 33d, 148th, and 68th Transportation Truck Companies, has been engaged in extensive field problems covering virtually all the elements encountered in actual combat situations.

Purpose behind these activities is to prepare the battalion for its role in Exercise Flash Burn. Proficiency tests, which a large percentage of the battalion has taken, indicate that the unit is in excellent form and that the time and effort expended on these problems will "pay off" at the atomic maneuvers.

The officers and NCOs of the 112th are convinced that their part of this operation will result in nothing short of a complete success. The primary reason for their optimism is the abounding enthusiasm which all the enlisted men have demonstrated throughout the course of their training. This, plus the added incentive of playing the role of aggressor, explains why the 112th is so enthusiastic about the forthcoming maneuvers.

A MERRY-GO-ROUND manufacturer says his business is booming. It should be, what with all the politicians talking in circles these days.

George Washington brought fame to the hatchet, and Congress has been trying to bury it ever since.

Post, Lawson Mop Up $11 Million Wreckage

Saturday's Tornado Lashes Reservation

Buildings, Planes, Equipment, Trees Damaged by 115 Mile-an-Hour Winds

Near normalcy returned to Fort Benning this week as training resumed without an interruption and workers cleaned up debris left by Saturday night's devastating tornado, which killed two and inflicted an estimated $11 million damage.

The dead were six-month-old Linda Joyner, daughter of Sfc. and Mrs. James T. Joyner, and A-3C Bobby T. Robinson, 22, a Lawson air policeman on duty at the time of the storm.

Lawson was hardest hit in the storm that lashed Ft. Mitchell, Ala., and Macon Ga., killing 8 and injuring 70. Eight C-119s were severely damaged and about 20 other aircraft damaged to some extent by the winds that reached 115 mph. Several buildings, including the gym, were demolished and others severely damaged, officials said.

Eight families had to vacate their quarters because of extensive damage wrought by the third Saturday night storm to hit the Fort Benning Lawson-Columbus area within a year. The first focused on Columbus last April while the second ripped into Lawson and Harmony Church last May 2.

Families Moved Sfc. and Mrs. James Joyner have taken temporary refuge with friends. Mrs. Joyner received lacerations of the scalp, but was not hospitalized.

Others injured in the storm were James Joyner, 3, who sustained lacerations of neck and scalp, and Mrs. Catherine Brown, who sustained lacerations of the neck and scalp.

P-TA to Weigh Rehabilitation Of Faith School

Rehabilitation of tornado-torn Faith School will be discussed at the monthly meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teachers Association next Monday at 8 p.m.

Col. Edward L. Rowny, P-TA president, announced that the meeting will be held in the auditorium of the old children's school on the Main Post. The auditorium-gymnasium of Faith School, where P-TA meetings normally are held, was almost completely destroyed in Saturday's wind-storm.

Col. J. J. Kramers, program chairman for the meeting, said that matters of school financing and budgeting will be discussed by a panel composed of Col. Fraser W. Rodman, president of the post School Board, Mrs. Hazel Scudder, Children's School System principal, Major Frank McCall, school officer, and Col. Rowny.

"This program was planned some time ago," Col. Kramers said, "but questions of financing and (Please See P-TA, Page 8)

Units Ready For Hand In 'A-Warfare'

Four units of Fort Benning's Provisional Medical Group are scheduled to take off Monday morning for Exercise Flash Burn, the massive atomic field maneuver opening next month in the Fort Bragg, N.C., area.

These units will support the larger commands participating in the maneuver and care for simulated casualties as well as any actual injuries that may occur.

Heading for North Carolina will be the 82nd Medical Company, commanded by Major David Reiner Faringer, Jr., the 913th Medical Company, commanded by Capt. Thomas J. Wolfe; the 24th Evacuation Hospital, commanded by Col. John Campbell McKissick, and Headquarters Detachment, 54th Medical Battalion, commanded by Capt. James H. Bergh.

Scheduled to leave on Tuesday are four units of the post's 112th Transportation Battalion and in April the 506th Army Helicopter Company any and 152d Field Maintenance Detachment are slated to depart.

Mission of the 112th's three light truck companies will be to provide transportation for the Aggressor and U.S. Forces. Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. Charles E. Meshad, will administer the other three units.

The 497th Army Postal Unit, commanded by Second Lt. Lewis F. Matta, will be the smallest but one of the most important Fort Benning unit to participate in Flash Burn. Its 14 men will provide full mail service for the Aggressor Force, including daily pick up and delivery, handling insured and registered mail, and selling money orders.

Fine Product to Sell

General Advocates Strong Info. Stand

The U. S. Army has nothing to be ashamed of, its chief of information said Tuesday at Fort Benning in an address which advocated stronger troop and public information programs.

"We have a fine product to sell to the public, and when the Army explains itself satisfactorily to the troops and to the public, we have more satisfied men and women in the Army and a more satisfied public," Major Gen. Gilman C. Mudgett pointed out to The Infantry School's advanced class No. 2.

They are Lt. Col. Cameron F. Woods, director of the Academic Department; Capt. Eugene C. Sneider, chief of the Military Training Division, and M-Sgt. Irvin H. Boeker, assistant instructor in the Military Training Division.

They and the 23 students of the class will witness training demonstrations conducted by the Tactical, Communications, Airborne, Automotive, and Weapons Departments. "We must not look at the press as our natural enemy," he told the officers. "We must look at it as a friend. Find out what the press wants, give out what it wants; and don't put obstacles in its way. It will be a better story this way."

It's Just a Habit To Us Re-Ups Now

Fort Benning led all Third Army installations in reenlistments during February for the second month in a row.

Reenlistments during the month totalled 332, as compared with 211 in January. Second place went to Fort Jackson, S. C., with 160, bringing that post's total to 315 for the year.

Gen. Bolling To Address Graduation

Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, will be principal speaker at The Infantry School's advanced officers' class No. 1 graduation March 24.

The three-star general served with the Fourth Infantry Division during World War I.

As commander of the 84th Infantry Division, he went to Europe in 1914 and the following year was assigned to the U.S. Army Forces at Frankfurt, Germany. He returned to the U.S. in 1917.

After duty in Washington, D.C., as the Army's assistant chief of staff for intelligence, Gen. Bolling assumed command of the Third Army in August 1952 with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Road Killings Must Cease

A "get tough" policy is due for traffic violators in view of the shocking January and February wave of highway carnage and bloodshed, Safety Director Norman Evans announced this week.

In the first two months eight persons died and 44 were maimed and injured, Evans said, and those persons need not have been involved in any type of accident, for all were preventable and involved three factors: alcohol, high speed, and leaving the post on pass are restricted to a 50-mile radius unless they are on a three-day pass. Then they may travel up to 200 miles by private vehicle.

The off-post traffic accident problem has reached such serious proportions that drastic action has become necessary to bring the rate back down, Evans pointed out.

Six soldiers killed and 42 hospitalized in January and February cost the Army in insurance, burial cost, gratuity pay, replacement costs and hospitalization and medical treatment a total of $122,500.

Those men with serious traffic violations or repeated minor violations are recommended for revocation of their post and state operator's permits, and appropriate penalties are imposed.

Every applicant for a post registration who demonstrates by youthfulness, lack of driving experience, or previous record that he is a substandard driver is required to attend the post Advanced Driver's School. Traffic safety education takes up 10 minutes at each weekly Command Conference which every Fort Benning soldier is required to attend.

Special training also is given before paydays or holidays, and men leaving the post on pass are restricted to a 50-mile radius unless they are on a three-day pass. Then they may travel up to 200 miles by private vehicle.

The off-post traffic accident problem has reached such serious proportions that drastic action has become necessary to bring the rate back down, Evans pointed out.

Six soldiers killed and 42 hospitalized in January and February cost the Army in insurance, burial cost, gratuity pay, replacement costs and hospitalization and medical treatment a total of $122,500.

'Happiness Was Born a Twin'

BY CHAPLAIN (FIRST LT.) BERNARD A. MUSSMAN

There is a story that is told of a rich man who came to his pastor and asked, "Why is it that everybody is always criticizing me for being miserly when everybody knows that I have made a provision to leave everything I possess to charity when I die?"

"Well," was the reply, "let me tell you a story about a pig and a cow. The pig was lamenting his lack of popularity. He complained to the cow that people were always talking about the cow's gentleness and kind eyes. He admitted that the cow gave milk and cream, but maintained that pigs give bacon and ham and bristles and that people even pickled their feet. He demanded the reason for such lack of appreciation. The cow thought a while and said, "Maybe it is because I give while I'm still living."

In the land of Israel there are two seas. One sea is good and clean. It abounds with fish and its shores are dotted with fishing villages and resorts where people come to live by its refreshing waters. The other sea is barren and desolate. Its shores are uninhabited and travelers avoid passing it. One is the Sea of Galilee, the other the Dead Sea. The Sea of Galilee has water flowing into it from the Mountains of Lebanon and the River Jordan carries the water from it. It receives and gives. For every drop of water it receives, it gives a drop. The Dead Sea has sea-

Weekly Waxing Classic Music On Library Tap

The record concert to be held at the Main Post Library Tuesday evening at 7:30 will feature Franck's "Symphony in D Minor" with Eugene Ormandy conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra, Tchaikovsky's "Concerto in D Major" with Isaac Stern, violinist, and Alexander Hillsberg conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Wagner's "On the Shore of the Venusberg Music," featuring Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra with Women's Chorus.

Franck completed the composition of his symphony on August 22, 1888, when he was nearly sixty-six years old. He was a professor of organ at the Paris Conservatory and respected in the musical world. After the first performance of his symphony on February 17, 1889, however, it was criticized for lack of fire of genius, lack of inspiration, and lack of freshness. Today it ranks among the most popular symphonies the world over.

If I'd Only Known...

Yep, the Price is High!

A lot of men in Service think about going AWOL. Fortunately most of them don't go any further. This is good sense because those who do take off spend the price of AWOL is high.

There can be dozens of reasons why you might want to go over the hill. Maybe your wife is sick... maybe your family is having financial troubles... maybe your girl has sent you a "Dear John" letter... or maybe you are just fed up with everything. But no matter what the problem, there are better ways of handling it than by running away. Every installation has persons charged with giving you help besides when you take off you are running out on your country and on the buddies who serve with you. Somebody else will have to carry your load. Then when you come back, you'll find out you lost much more.

If you go AWOL, you are bound to lose money. You are certain to lose your pay for the time you are

Red Cross Quiz

Q—I expect to be transferred overseas and, of course, will be further separated from my family. If emergencies occur at home, how can I get in touch with the Red Cross?

A. At major stations overseas you will find Red Cross field directors assigned, as they are here, to act as a link with your hometown Red Cross in emergencies and in other personal or family matters where aid is needed.

At small isolated outposts overseas, your commanding officer will have a contact with a nearby Red Cross field director for this service.

Q. What should I tell my family?

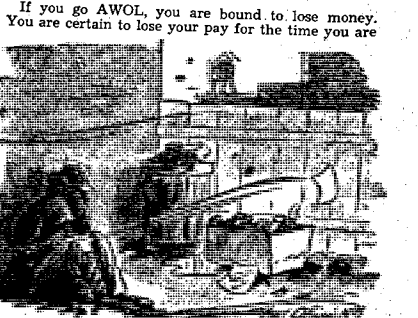

A. Advise your family, in time of emergencies, to contact their local Red Cross immediately. This officer's speed confirmation of reports to you and your commanding officer. Often the emergency or other problem may be of a nature that the chapter can handle for your family.

STC Overshoots Bloodmobile Mark

Special Troops Command donated 81 pints of blood during the Red Cross Bloodmobile's visit to the post last week.

This was 111 pints over the quota for the two-day drive.

Since last December, when the Bloodmobile began regular monthly visits to the post, troops have donated 1,660 pints of blood. Combat Training Command donated 248 pints, Second Student Regiment, 289 pints, and First Officer Candidate Regiment, 512 pints.

absent. If you are court martialled and found guilty, you may forfeit part of your future pay as punishment. You may be demoted or bypassed for promotion and thus earn less money for your promotion. If you are AWOL for more than two months or are convicted of desertion, your family allotment checks stop. If you are caught by civilian authorities, you will have to pay for the expenses involved. And, of course, as an AWOL you will have to pay for your own transportation back to your station.

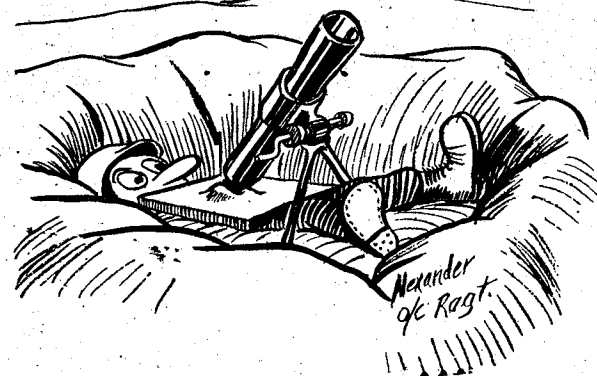

Another penalty which is even more severe is the loss of your personal freedom. You may be restricted to your company area on extra details. If your case is considered serious, you may be confined in the local guardhouse, a disciplinary barracks or even a Federal prison.

The final penalty is worse than your loss of either money or personal freedom. It is your loss of reputation. You will be held back from promotions and better assignments while in Service. When you return to civilian life, you will find your record against you when you apply for a job or try to become a respected member of your community.

Yes, the price of AWOL is high. (AFPS)

Damage to ordnance buildings was reported at about $80,000. One building which contained cleaning and preserving material and target material was completely demolished. Approximately 50 per cent of the equipment in the building was saved, however, and has been re-warehoused or covered with tarpaulins. Loss there is estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000. Another ordnance warehouse which contained tank parts and oxygen and acetylene tanks also was completely demolished, but no material loss of equipment is expected. A third building, housing six 105-mm howitzers and one 90-mm gun, was 50 per cent destroyed, but first inspection indicates no damage to any of the weapons.

41st SR Hit Troops in damaged barracks in the First Student Regiment area have been moved into other barracks temporarily.

The Main Post Weapons Pool reported no damage to weapons, despite $10,000 worth of damage to the building. The roof was partially blown off, four doors and a chimney were blown down and the floor was under one foot of water. Operations are continuing without curtailment.

About $2,000 worth of damage was reported by the Polo Hunt Club, where half the roof and sections of the wall were a complete loss. The Post Company Club's slate roof was damaged slightly along with TV aerials. At the Main Officers' Mess, the tile roof was damaged and the tennis courts hard hit.

Troops in the Ninth Company who were housed in the Hospital area hit by the storm have moved to other buildings in the area. Wings of the hospital between Baltzell Avenue and First Division Road were badly damaged. The roofing was blown away and corners of buildings, porches, and walkways torn down. Wind-blown debris broke many windows in the area, but no damage was reported to the main hospital building. Hook Range, a training area, suffered slight damage. The roof on one building was partially destroyed and small sheds overturned.

I&E Neglected Of the two programs (public and troop information), troop information is one the most neglected, the Army official said. Gen. Mudgett declared that the Army's troop information program has three objectives today. They are to convince every man in a unit that he has an important job to do, that his unit is a keystone to a greater combat organization, and that his unit has a mission in a worthy cause.

"Today we have units throughout the world," Gen. Mudgett said. "Everything that goes on in the world has a bearing on our mission. That is the way the information program is set up." The two-star general expressed the need for Army commanders to take an active part in this program. He added that it is the result of a lack of leadership if we have not given our men a comprehensive reason for their mission and if we have failed to give them a little of the tradition of this great Army.

Columbus Circus to Feature Highflying College Coeds

With a colloquial touch to the familiar trapeze and trampoline settings, the circus is coming to town. March 27. Proceeds are earmarked for a new zoo for the city.

Featuring 20 big acts, the circus is part of the curriculum at Florida State and is staged by an all-student troupe of 75 members. With physical education instructor Jack Haskins acting as director, performers learn their stunts beginning from basic acrobatics to the more complicated routines developed from the student's own special talents.

Girl candidates are usually fitted into the dance numbers or high-flying acts. Boys too small for football and other varsity sports frequently end up as circus stars where timing and muscular co-ordination count more than size and strength.

The performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. the 27th, and tickets priced at $1.25 for adults and $.65 for children will be available through unit A&R officers and at Special Services on post.

CinemaScope Seen By 3,000 at 1st Shows More than 3,000 persons attended the CinemaScope showing of The Command at Theater No. 11 last week, according to Capt. Dale Serff, Infantry Center theater officer.

The 1,400 who attended the premier showing March 7 trebled normal one-day attendance figures. "We will try to answer the questions uppermost in the minds of parents," Col. Kramers said, "even if those questions take us out of the announced subject area. For instance, we feel sure that parents are wondering how Faith School children will make up the week lost as a result of storm damage to the school. That is one thing which will be discussed, as will other problems arising out of the disaster to Faith School."

Col. Rowdy indicated that the forum would be of interest to the parents of Fort Benning school children. "The matters of where the school money comes from and how it is spent concern every parent," he said. "We hope this forum will bring a wider understanding of these points."

Romantic Sheik Fades Away Egypt Goes Modern, Officer Says

The fabulous sheiks of Egypt have faded their colorful tents on the arid desert and moved over for a modern world of irrigation and automobiles, according to Capt. Samir Abadir Sidhom, Egyptian Army student at The Infantry School in Third Company, First Student Regt.

Capt. Sidhom, who is taking the advanced officers' course, believes Egypt is still thought of as a land of the hand-some sheik, harems, and desert wastes. "Actually, however, there is little difference between America and Egypt," the 25-year-old Egyptian said during a free hour from a tight schedule of Infantry classes.

Benning is back this time as an officer candidate with the 19th OC Company, Shingleton, a member of the First Airborne Ranger Company, left the Post for Korea in October 1950. While his company was going through Waju in December 1950, the men spotted a small South Korean boy sitting on a rubble pile, crying.

Like many other outfits, the Ranger Company adopted the boy and named him "George." Within a month, George was calling the men by their first names. Soon he was speaking English well. He wore clothes made from old GI fatigues and OD's. Shingleton says, "We mothered him until he could cavort with the best of us." George would follow the Company around in a military truck, not caring where he went.

But, as in all wars, many places just aren't made for 7-year old boys. For this reason, the men entered a fund for George's education and he was placed in a South Korean orphanage.

YOU'LL "GET HOME" FASTER BY THE NUMBERS

It's always a treat to "get home"—whether by plane, train or telephone. And usually, the faster the better. That's why it's helpful to call by number when you make your visit by Long Distance telephone. When you give the operator the out-of-town number, she doesn't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and you'll "get home" faster. You'll find out-of-town directories for frequently called cities at each telephone center. These centers are located at the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church area. And remember, it's better for you to call the folks back home instead of their calling you, since you may be hard to locate. Charges can be reversed. SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

Red Cross Took 35 Minutes

Presto, and Sgt. Is Off to Plane!

The story of a Fort Benning soldier who had 35 minutes to catch a plane that would take him home on emergency leave is a good example of how the post's Red Cross office operates to extend a helping hand to the Serviceman.

A wire from the Pittsburgh Home Service chapter of the Red Cross contained the news that the soldier's mother and father had been in an automobile accident. His father was killed and his mother hospitalized with critical injuries.

Speedy Army cooperation resulted in the Serviceman's being advised of the tragedy and ready with leave papers in his hand 35 minutes before the time of his plane's departure.

The soldier needed an immediate loan of funds for the trip. He also needed to get from the post to the airport in Columbus in little more than half an hour.

Funds and reservations aboard the plane were handled by the Red Cross while the Serviceman's commanding officer expedited paper work for his emergency leave.

In a Red Cross staff car the soldier and case worker rolled past the post entrance gate just in time to spot a Columbus motorcycle patrolman. The worker explained the situation to the policeman, and he provided them with a traffic-clearing escort to the airport ramp.

With a few minutes to spare the soldier offered his thanks to both.

Fort Benning Red Cross workers, who handled more than 11,000 cases last year, find that emergencies are commonplace. But even they are extra-proud of the case of the soldier who had 35 minutes to make a plane for home and made it, thanks to the Red Cross.

'William Tell' Bahr New 13th OC Archer

Officer Candidate Wayne A. Bahr of 13th OC Company may be learning a lot about modern Infantry weapons, but he's a good man with a bow and arrow, too. An enthusiastic camper, he has gone on many a hunting trip with his bow.

Two Soldiers Get Nod From Patrol For Being Sharp

Enlisted men of the First Student Regiment and the First Special Troops Battalion were cited last week by the Good Soldier Patrol.

They were Pvt. Claude Barber, Jr., of Wilkesboro, N.C., 17th Company, First Student Regiment, and Sgt. Oliver S. Dendy of Nashville, Tenn., Company A, First Special Troops Battalion.

The soldiers were cited for their "superior appearance and outstanding military bearing."

R. G. KOMORNIK ... All-Girl Ork

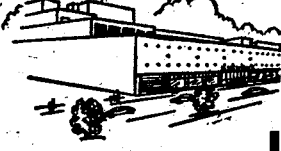

Directing Girls Tough Job, Says Ex-OC Bandleader

All good things eventually come to the First OC Regiment, even leaders of all-girl bands. In this case it's Officer Candidate Roland G. Komornik of 10th Company.

Komornik, a drummer from Reseville, Mich., organized his girl-band during his senior year in high school. The outfit began with small engagements, but soon gained wide notice.

"Leading five girls around, even with a baton, isn't easy," sighs the OC. "My parents found a band practice session with five girls a trying experience. The replacement problem was rough too," Komornik admits. "The girls were kind of susceptible to getting married."

Post Ring Kings Announced

Benning - Rucker Benefit Matches Tonight Bring Down Curtain on TIC Boxing Scene

Combat Training Command, winners of the post boxing league, and runner-up School Brigade, each placed four men as 1954 Fort Benning champions with the remaining spot going to Special Troops Command.

The nine-man team, chosen by the post boxing board and announced by Special Services officials, will meet Camp Rucker's boxing team tonight in a card of champions.

The Rucker team will be composed of title winners from the Alabama camp who will be matched with post ring kings according to the 10 weight classes. The collision of champion against champion insures one of the finest fight slates of the year and will be the final card of the season at Briant Wells.

The opening match is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and 40 cents admission will be charged, with proceeds going to the post Red Cross Drive.

Named as the best men in their class for the league season just concluded were:

HILTON SMITH — Bantamweight . . . One of the season-long crowd favorites, Smith is hand-down winner of the title "Most Improved Boxer." When the season began last September, Hilton was entered as a Class IV, or novice fighter. He had never entered a ring in his life before coming into the Army. When the season was over Smith had won his way to the post bantamweight title plus Class I rating.

Boxing, however, is actually a sideline with Hilton. He is a regular whiz on a baseball field and is the property of the Brandon, Canada, pro club.

DICK WOODLEY — Featherweight . . . One of the classiest fighters to grace the post scene in recent years, Woodley's pounding fists have earned him wholesale lots of ring tribute. Unbeaten in his weight class this season, Dick quickly ran through the featherweight competition in the post league and annexed district and state Golden Gloves championship before losing the regional finals.

Woodley's weaving, hard-to-hit, southpaw style, coupled with a numbing punch in both hands, made him ALL-EUCOM champion two years running in 1951 and 1952. From there he went on to

Doughboys Whip AGD for 1st Win

The Fort Benning Doughboys broke into the win column Tuesday night with a 76-70 trouncing of Atlanta General Depot in a game played at Ft. McPherson, Ga. Frank Glenn led the Doughboys attack with a 20 point barrage.

The Benning casters will go directly to Ft. McPherson from Ft. McPherson for a game there before departing Sunday for Camp Gordon and the Third Army Tournament.

annex the International Allied Service title in England in 1952. Married and an expectant father, Dick (hails from Fostoria, Ohio,) plans to stay in the Army and continue his boxing.

ELVIS MATHEWS — Lightweight . . . Only repeating champion from last year's All-Post team, Mathews went undefeated on post this season in sweeping to the lightweight title. Elvis' boxing career began with the Army in Hawaii. Beginning in 1949 he won the AAU Territory of Hawaii featherweight crown. Picking up a few pounds in the off season, Mathews grew into the lightweight class where he ruled the roost for the next three years by taking Territory honors in 1950-51-52.

Elvis also won the Territory All-South lightweight crown for the same three-year span, and narrowly missed an Olympic trip when he was runner-up in the Western Regional in 1952. Only 21, Mathews is married and a father, plans to fight professionally after his discharge in November.

HERMAN HINTON — Light welter . . . Regarded as one of the best boxers at Benning, Hinton owns an unmarred record this season. His top performance in league competition was defeating well-regarded Juan Jarama, now a successful pro fighter.

Hinton owns three Golden Gloves crowns, plus Diamond Belt and Police Athletic League championships which he won in his hometown of Philadelphia.

Only 20 years old, Hinton is married and thrice a father. He is planning a professional boxing fight following separation from the Army.

WILLIAM (BUCK) HENRY — Welterweight . . . One of two Pennsylvanians on this year's team, Henry hails from Charleroi, where he began boxing at the age of 17. He won the Pittsburgh Golden Gloves in 1950 and went to the state finals in the recent Alabama tournament.

Henry is single and is considering several professional offers following completion of his Army hitch.

ED CROOK — Light middle . . . One of the most amazingly versatile athletes ever to perform at Fort Benning, this is Ed's second All-Post selection in three months. He was named to a halfback position on the football team last December.

Crook began boxing around his home in Detroit, Mich., compiling an unbeaten record there while winning several tournaments. He was runner-up for the Third Army light middle crown in 1952 and won the South Carolina Golden Gloves title that same year. Ed says he has given no thought to a pro ring career.

JOE DAVIS — Middleweight . . . Regarded as one of the most durable fighters around post, Davis boasts a highly effective right hand punch to go with his impervious jaw. Joe's first fights were fought in and around Kansas City, Kans., where he won the state Golden Gloves in 1952. Davis went to the final bout in the Alabama tournament last month but was forced to withdraw because of a hand injury.

Married and a father, Joe states definitely that he will sign a professional contract following his discharge.

JAMES BOYD — Light heavy . . . Fort Benning's only regional Golden Gloves champion this year, Boyd advanced to the semi-finals in the Chicago tournament and was forced to default when a transportation mixup stopped him from returning for the closing bouts.

Jim was post light-heavy king here in 1950 and 1951, won state and district Golden Gloves crowns in 1952 and 1953 to go with his regional championship this year.

Kramer Tennis Greats Perform Here Sunday

Some of the brightest stars ever to twinkle in our national tennis firmament will be on hand Sunday night when entrepreneur Jack Kramer brings his scintillating net extravaganza to Briant Wells Field House.

Proceedings are slated to get under way at 8 p.m. Admission price is $1.50.

This year's edition of the Kramer best-seller stars Australia's former ruler of the amateur world, Frank Sedgman, playing close supporting roles are veteran professionals Pancho Segura, Don Budge and Pancho Gonzales.

Operating under a new set-up the matches Sunday will consist of what Kramer terms a "lengthened set." Instead of the usual two out of three or three out of five set contests, the winner will be the player who first takes eight games from his opponent.

Scores can run anywhere from 8-0 to 8-6. Should the match go to a 7-7 count, the deuce rule is invoked whereby the winner must have a margin of two.

Doubles play will be on a system of rotation drawn up before the tour began. A purse of $1,500 will be distributed among the players with the evening's top winner garnering $750 and the remainder, being divided among the other three.

One of the most successful professional promoters in the net sport's history, Kramer was himself one of the finest amateur players ever to represent the United States. He won the 1946

75 Men Ansver Opening Call For Commander Baseballers

BY FRANK SULLIVAN

Baseball made a grandiose invasion of the Combat Training Command last week with the beginning of tryouts and practice for the Commanders. With the appearance of a spring training camp, Bullet Field was crowded with over 75 prospects working out under the warm spring sun.

The newly assigned coach and manager, Bill Martin, had the overwhelming task of sorting the material and selecting the players. Following the selection, he had to lead the men through rush sessions of practice to ready them for the beginning of the season. He disclosed a scheduled practice game with a team from Camp Rucker this week.

Martin seemed very pleased with the large showing of hopefuls at the beginning even though it resulted in a lot of work for him. He took five of six rounds of in-field practice to get around to all the prospects. Questioned about the outlook with the beginning of the season, Martin stated that pitch appeared to be the strongest point so far. Some shifting around in the infield may have to be accomplished to insure a well-balanced infield.

Although he bears the same name as a famed New York Yankee swiftness, William H. Martin smilingly assures you that he is not "the" Billy Martin. He is a seasoned vet of the diamond himself, however. At his home in Schenectady, N. Y., Martin started his baseball career at Mt. Pleasant High. Later he continued at Fort Henry High in Port Henry, N. Y., where he completed school.

After graduation he received a scholarship to play ball at North Carolina State. Here he held down the third base and shortstop slots for four years. When he had served out his eligibility, he worked with the Physical Ed department at State until he graduated in 1953.

Last summer Martin played Class D ball at Falls Valley, Oklahoma in the Sooner State League. While with them he clouted eight home runs in six weeks. Later in the season he transferred to an independent club in Class B ball. He continued with this club until he entered the Army.

Martin has as his assistant Cpl. Kenneth Wilkerson of Findley, N. Y. Ken played four years' ball for Clymer High at the shortstop position. He then played three years of pro ball in the Penn. York League, a Class D group including teams in Pennsylvania and New York.

The exclamatory mark seems naturally associated with young Mathews, who is invariably referred to by the baseball writing fraternity as an "apple-cheeked slugger." Ed's entrance into the major leagues was virtually unnoticed during the fanfare accorded Mantle, but the fact remains that right now the apple-cheeked one is not only closer to being a real suver-star but is also a much better baseball player today than Mickey—The Oklahoma Kid.

That Mantle is in the majors at all is tribute to his natural skills, for seldom has a raw 19-year old rookie been put so squarely on the spot. When the graceful Joe DiMaggio began to falter the proverbial rivers of ink were unloosed by the baseball scribes who wondered in a few trillion well-chosen words just who was going to try on Joe's shoes. When the Yankees unveiled Mantle and remarked that the kid was a whale of a player and might replace DiMag, the writers' barrage began. And when Mickey responded with a 400-plus batting mark for Grapefruit League tiffs, he was literally submerged by glowing press notices.

"Here," they said, "is the best baseball player ever." With tremendous pressure on his every move, the 19-year old made the grade and displayed the potential to place him in the ballplayers' Valhalla.

Mathews, on the other hand, was unhindered by having to try and live up to such lofty standards. The first average fan heard of him was when some eagle-eyed statistician ferreted out the fact that Ed of the rosy cheeks had smacked 25 homers during the 1952 season. "That so" remarked Gus Pan, "well, I understand this kid Mantle can hit that many without a bat." But when the 1953 pennant chase reached its waning stage and Mathews' home run total soared into the 40's, the eyes of the "baseball public swiveled from Yankee Stadium to Milwaukee.

A year ago right now, Mantle was odds-on to become an immortal of the game. He occupied the 1953 season by clouting one 565 foot home run in the Yankees' sixth game and trying to duplicate it for the other 148. He displayed fair ability at inflating bubble gum in center field, and marked talent at becoming injured. He skidded from a league-leading .347 in June to a run-of-the-mill .295 in September. He struck out four times in one World Series game. There were those who claimed that he had read his own clippings, believed them, and decided, shucks, he didn't need to improve any more.

And while Mickey was slipping from his pedestal, young Ed Mathews was compiling a 300-plus BA and a .300 batting average.

Dews to Coach Fort Mac Nine

Bobby Dews, coach of Fort Benning's baseball team last summer and ex-Brooklyn Dodger chetel, has been named manager at Fort McPherson, Ga., which promises to have one of the finest service teams in the south this year.

Dews played with Atlanta, Mobile, Nashville, Montreal and Dallas before going up to the Dodgers in the early 1940's.

Heading the list of notables at Fort Mac is St. Louis Cardinal, strikeout ace Wilmer "Dewar" Mizell, who racked up a 19-7 year with the Redbirds last year in his first full season. With Dews handling the backstop duties, Fort Mac's first line battery will be hard to top.

Infielders will include Norman Seibern, first base; Robert Hartshorn, second-base; George Barrow, third-base, and Bobby Willis, shortstop.

Seibern belongs to the New York Yankees, and ranks as one of their finest prospects. He played infield for the Birmingham Barons in 1953, and was one of the league's outstanding gardeners. He hit 23 homers, and was named on the Southern Association All-Star Team. Big, fast, and powerful, he is adjusting rapidly to his new position — first base.

Willis and Hartshorn are both property of the Atlanta Crackers.

Lending a hand to the mound staff will be Taylor Phillips, whose left-hand slants aided the Atlanta Crackers to a second place finish last summer, and Rudy Williams, who won 16 and lost three for McPherson in 1953.

James Brown will share the catching with Dews. Brown hit .320 with Ottawa of the International League last year.

The outfielding corps is headed up by Carl Powis, late of the Baltimore Orioles' chain, who will patrol the middle garden for Dews.

Powis compiled a .340 batting mark in the minors last year and has a brilliant future predicted for him.

Cinder Season Nearing Track and Field Candidates Starting Practice Sessions

Candidates for the track and cindermen on Memorial Day, May 30, will begin their training sessions at the post track and field squads of various units are beginning workouts with the prospect of a season full of action ahead of them.

With teams still in their formative stage, intra-regimental tryouts are now being held. Several meets between regiments are planned, along with two or three by the 1st and 2nd Army areas.

Against teams from other military installations before the post track and field meet which is scheduled for May 22-23.

Highlight of the cinder season here will be the Third Army meet in Doughboy Stadium June 11-12. Fort Bragg, N. C., will be the defending champion. Benning thinjyclads placed fourth in last year's meet, held at Fort McPherson, Ala.

Intra-Regiment Meet

Opening the post season will be the intra-regimental meet of the First OC Regiment, set for April 3 in Doughboy Stadium. Competition between regiments will also begin and carry through April. Efforts are being made to schedule a dual meet with 48th Division station.

One of the stronger cinder squads will be fielded by the 30th Infantry Regiment. Lt. Charles Waits has been appointed as coach. A protégé of ace FBI miler Fred Witt, Waits attended the University of Tennessee and later coached track at Eastern High of Knoxville.

Heading the list of 30th sprinters is Earl Jones, formerly of Morris in Doughboy Stadium. Competing between regiments will also begin and carry through April. Efforts are being made to schedule a dual meet with 48th Division station.

loop-leading 47 home run total. He blew no bubble gum. He gave the press to know that he didn't think he had a chance to break the Babe's homer record and that furthermore he didn't give a damn. He listened and heeded the advice of his manager, one Charles Grimm. The Braves parlayed Ed's big bat and excellent attitude into a second-place finish.

And today Mantle, the fastest man in either league, the most powerful slugger on the Yank roster, the switch-hitting wonder who was going to overhaul the record book is just about back where he started in 1951. He is on the spot and must produce again. He unquestionably has the ability, but he must realize that he is a journeyman baseball player who must recognize and correct his shortcomings if he is to fulfill his potential.

He may do this, but until he does, Eddie Mathews is the rightful claimant to the title of Best Young Player.

THRICE HONORED

Joe DiMaggio was named the most valuable player in the American League three times: 1941, 1947 and 1950.

YOUNGEST CHAMP

Joe Louis was the youngest fighter ever to win the heavy weight title. He was only 27 when he dethroned Jim Braddock.

Kramer

Segura, once rated as the world's top amateur, turned pro shortly after he led Australia to her third consecutive Davis Cup triumph in 1952.

Segura, billed as the game's most colorful star, first gained recognition as a collegian at Miami U. A native of Ecuador, he is famous for his driving, two-handed forehand smashes. Segura signed a professional contract in 1947 and owns winning records over all the touring pros except Kramer.

Richard (Pancho) Gonzales, another ex-amateur champ and owner of the game's fastest service, has been playing professionally since 1948, when he won the U. S. Singles title.

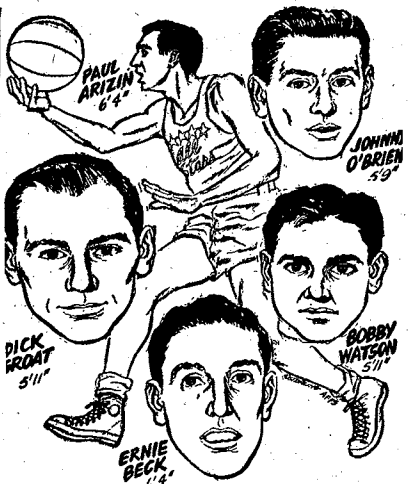

Don Budge, scourge of the net world in the mid-30's, headed his own pro tour for eons and is the only "grand-slam" champion. The matches will be played on a special portable "court" used by the troupe for all their contests.

Post

He returned again to the regionals just last month as Alabama state champion, and said he is "thinking about" becoming a professional boxer.

MISSED THIS ONE Sam Snead, who has won practically every championship in golf, has never won the most highly prized honor — the U. S. Open.

ALL-SERVICE TEAM . . . Selected by AFPS, the five best service cagers for 1954 are Paul Arizin of Villanova and the Quantico Marines, Johnny O'Brien of Seattle and Aberdeen Proving Ground, Ernie Beck of Pennsylvania and Bainbridge Naval Training Center, Dick Groat of Duke and Fort Belvoir and Bobby Watson of Kentucky and Andrews Air Force Base.

Gori, Marilyn F. Hawkes, Jacqueline Weaver, Lucretia Brown, Eva L. Johnson, Marquette Gionna, Rosemarie P. Michael, Donna L. Rogers and Clara A. Torpy.

Babel Routed At TI&E Class

During the past several months Fort Benning has received a large number of men whose primary language is not English. The majority of these men are Puerto Ricans; however, many other nationalities are represented, including Polish, German, Yugoslavian, Czechoslovakian, Albanian, Rumanian, French, Italian, Greek, Chinese, Korean, and Samoan.

To assist in the proper assignment of these men and to determine which require English language instruction, the Troop Information and Education Section, TIC, administered a series of tests. Besides being given two written tests, each man was interviewed personally to determine the degree of his ability to understand and speak English. Upon completion of the testing and interviewing it was found that about one-half of the so-called non-English personnel could understand and speak English well enough to get along in an English speaking unit. The ability of the remainder was found to be so limited that they would be handicapped while serving in an English speaking unit. Most of the men tested had already received at least an eighth grade education in their native land. Many were high school graduates, and a few had attended or were graduates of colleges in their home country. All of the men tested who were found to understand and speak English fluently have been encouraged to enroll in United States Armed Forces Institute courses or in group study classes at the Army Education Center, in order to learn to read English. The men who were unable to complete grammar school or high school in their native country will be given an opportunity to do so while at Fort Benning. Some have already enrolled in USAFI courses or in group study classes at the Army Education Center. For the men who were found to be unable to understand or speak English, classes in English instruction have been started at the Army Education Center, at which all these men are required to attend four hours daily until they have attained the ability to understand and speak English with a fair degree of fluency.

At present 40 men are enrolled in three classes, taught by three civilian teachers. The primary purpose of these classes is to teach the men a vocabulary large enough to make it possible for them to get along well in an English speaking unit. Once a man learns to speak English to a fair degree he may then enroll in classes at the Army Education Center in which he can learn to read and write English.

TI&E to Discuss Iberia At Command Conference

The Command Conference topic for next week is Armed Forces Talk 402, "The Iberian Peninsula." This peninsula is the land in southern Europe called Spain and Portugal.

The talk will explain why the Iberian Peninsula, with its rugged natural defenses, strategic position, manpower, and natural resources, is important to the defense of Western Europe.

It will also explain why the struggle between the Communist and the free world has emphasized the need for Portugal, in defense plans. The United States has recognized the strategic value of Spain by entering into an agreement whereby Spain will receive financial and technical aid and the United States will obtain permission to develop

Hearts Broken Over Lost Toy

Last Saturday morning four-year-old Deborah and two-year-old Steven, children of Capt. and Mrs. L. C. Robertson of Lumpkin Road on Post, were happy playing with their little red wagon, Deborah's favorite toy.

But on Sunday morning they were in tears. The little wagon was nowhere to be found. Their parents searched high and low for it, being certain that, since there was no wind damage in their section, it hadn't been blown away.

This week the search was on, but the wagon, which is distinguished by a wheel encased by a "rubber hose" tire and four black hubcaps, was still missing. The Robertson's phone number is 3-9296 and the tearful tots will be most glad to hear from anyone knowing the whereabouts of the wagon.

GUADALCANAL VETERAN ASSUMES DUTIES AS AIDE TO TIC CHIEF
Gen. Meloy Congratulates M-Sgt. A. F. Trabakoolas

Transfer Point Top Kick Is Gen. Meloy's EM Aide

M-Sgt. Anthony T. Trabakoolas with the duties of the command of Roseville, Calif., began a week's tour of duty Monday as enlisted aide to Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander.

Sgt. Trabakoolas, field first sergeant of the post's Transfer Point, Special Troops Command, will accompany Gen. Meloy to official meetings, military ceremonies, and inspections.

The sergeant, who will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the duties of the command general and his staff, entered the Army March 3, 1941.

He was with the 40th Infantry Division in Hawaii and later saw combat with that unit on Guadalcanal, New Britain, and in the Philippines. He returned to the U.S. in 1945.

A year later, Sgt. Trabakoolas was ordered to Italy where he served with the 88th Infantry Division and the 361st Infantry Regiment in Trieste.

GEN. MELOY PRAISES BENNING FOR SPEEDY STORM REBOUND

Although we expect military men to react quickly in an emergency, the immediate response by Fort Benning men and their families following the recent tornado was most gratifying, and their display of energy and initiative in cleaning up after the storm has been heartening.

On the Monday following Saturday's storm, Fort Benning was doing "business as usual," with no major interruptions to or dislocations in normal activities. That was a remarkable achievement.

I wish to express my appreciation to all those at the Infantry Center and at Lawson Field who responded so magnificently. With your cooperation and able assistance we were able to deal effectively with a critical test of our abilities and resources.

MAJ. GEN. G. S. MELOY, JR.

Library Takes 3d in Contest

FORT McPHERSON, Ga.—Third Army winner of the $100 award in the 1953 Army-wide library publicity contest is Camp Gordon while the $75 and $50 awards go to Fort Bragg and Fort Benning as close second and third place winners.

The judges' decisions were announced here by Special Services Officer Maj. A. R. Conklin, who said the cash awards will be mailed shortly to the Central Post Funds of the individual installations for use in future library publicity programs.

The three winning scrapbooks will be sent to Washington to compete in the Army-wide contest for cash prizes totaling $900, for use in the purchase of reading material for the post libraries.

The winning scrapbooks were judged for excellence of such factors as results, originality, variety, interest, objective and appeal of publicity, rather than on the beauty of the scrapbooks.

Auditorium To Be Ready By September

Storm-torn Faith School auditorium-gymnasium at Fort Benning may be back in operation for the school year beginning in September of this year, according to Col. Frazer W. Rodman, president of the post school council.

Col. Rodman told members of the post Parent-Teachers Association, who met Monday night, that an application for funds for repairs has gone forward to the federal office of education in Washington.

The tornado which swept through Fort Benning on Mar. 13 caused damage to the school estimated at $200,000, Col. Rodman said. Most of the damage was concentrated in the auditorium-gymnasium building which also served as the school cafeteria. Three classrooms had walls blown out, and other classrooms had windows broken; but all have been repaired and are now in use.

These have been tested and all found structurally sound, Col. Rodman said.

His remarks were made during a discussion of school problems led by a panel of school and P-TA officials. Other members of the panel were Mrs. Hazel Scudder, school principal; Maj. Frank McCull, post school officer, and Col. Edward L. Rovny, P-TA president.

Gen. Tells Grads: Good Infantrymen Still Key to Wars

Powerful new weapons may be making their debut almost daily, but the Army still plays the most important role in U.S. defense, the Third Army deputy commander told a group of Infantry School graduates last week.

Major Gen. Edward T. Williams, speaking before associate officers' advanced class No. 3, pointed out that the most powerful weapons the U.S. has today are the men who dominate the terrain—especially the Infantrymen.

"In spite of the new weapons," the two-star general declared, "the deciding factor in combat is a trained man who has his feet on the ground."

He said it is the Army's job to protect the country, to stop forces massed around the border of the free world, if they should attack, by matching ground force with ground force, to protect the bases for our advanced forces and to combine with other services for a major counter-attack.

Top academic student of the associate advanced class was Capt. Roy C. Harms of Sioux Falls, S.D. The Third Army deputy commander

'Don't Ever Come Back'

Detention Barracks Rehabilitates Men

There's one commanding officer at Fort Benning who always tells departing soldiers, "Don't ever come back; I don't want you!" The man voicing these seemingly harsh words of parting is the post confinement officer, Major Frank Palmer of Midland, Ga. The soldier who hears these words has been released from the Post Detention Barracks where he was sent for rehabilitation after conviction by a court-martial conviction. He may have been sent there because he was AWOL, disobeyed a lawful order from an officer or non-com, was disorderly or was guilty of some other serious offense.

A soldier convicted of violating the code of military justice is sent to the Post Detention Barracks for correction, not for harsh punishment. "When a man is sent to me," says Major Palmer, "my job is to make him fit for duty, not to break his spirit and render him unfit for either military or civilian work."

Strict Discipline
The process of rehabilitation involves strict discipline and hard work. To accomplish this task of returning soldiers to duty, Major Palmer assigns them to hard-working groups which begin their day at 6:30 a.m.

These men work as painters, carpenters and trash removers, and assist in maintaining the roads and grounds and in other odd jobs around the post. All except parolees are accompanied by guards to supervise their work. Parolees are those who have performed well and are readjusting themselves to Army life. Men in this category have usually completed one third of their sentence and are to be returned to duty for good behavior.

Parolee status is a goal set for each man as he enters the Detention Barracks. He is told that by co-operation and hard work he can be released after serving one-third of his sentence. He also may earn five days credit each month toward early release for good behavior.

Snappy Team
"One effect of hard work and strict discipline is seen during exercise and drill periods," says Major Palmer. "If their performance is snappy and they act as a group, not as individuals, we know they are beginning to conform and are on the way to becoming good soldiers. Men in the Detention Barracks make up one of the snappiest drill teams on the post."

Although confined soldiers are not allowed the privileges afforded other soldiers at Fort Benning, they do have church services, a library, PX service for toilet articles and cigars and a barber shop, all inside the Detention Barracks grounds. "Close supervision, hard work and strict discipline make confined soldiers realize they are better off outside the Detention Barracks," Major Palmer says. "They

'QUADS OF THE 41ST FIELD ARTY . . . Ready to fire are the four sizes of howitzers used by the 41st Field Artillery Battalion, Combat Training Command, commanded by Lt. Col. Joseph Reeves. They are (1 to r) 75-mm pack howitzer, 105-mm howitzer, 155-mm howitzer and 8-inch howitzer. Normally the 41st would not have a weapon other than a 105, but to perform its special mission of supporting The Infantry School by demonstrating different types of artillery fire it must be flexible enough to fire all four of these pieces.

Foreign occupation has come to an end for 205 Fort Benning officers as they moved their regiments back to the U. S. for inactivation. It was all make-believe, however, since the officers are students in The Infantry School who were taking part in the annual war games. For the past three and one-half weeks, advanced officers' class No. 1 has experienced a simulated life cycle of an Infantry regiment with each student having the opportunity to fill every job on a regimental unit staff.

Under the direction of Col. John R. Smoak, the class has packed into several weeks the activation of a regiment, followed by training, movement overseas, staging overseas combat in a foreign country, occupation and inactivation back in the U. S. The actual time in the life cycle for this regiment covers a period of approximately two years and nine months.

New Type Instruction
Training for the class included a new type of instruction, divided into two parts, the first 21 weeks covered principles and techniques combined with practical work. This was formerly the only type of instruction given here to prepare officers for field grade positions. Part II, the life cycle of a regiment, gave the students an opportunity to apply the principles and techniques learned in Part I, by taking part in a series of performance type exercises.

The 205 students, including nine Allied officers, were grouped into 32 different regimental staffs. They rotated in the positions of regimental commander, executive officer, S-1, S-2, S-3, and S-4. On paper, the class formed a regiment, moved overseas, and made ready for combat. "Very Valuable"
Lt. Col. George S. Blanchard, a veteran of 10 years service, said the simulated war was "very valuable, primarily because it tied together the instruction up to this point. You put everything together and see its cohesion. It also gives you an excellent perspective."
Major Hans Roost of Zurich, Switzerland, found the instruction interesting. An Infantry instructor in the Swiss Army, Major Roost believes the war games was a valuable experience.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS

silenced—its occupants dead. Lt. Barnes was sweating hard. He watched the troops move up, heavy fire from the fortified hill. Then the assault line disintegrated.

"The old man's hit!" someone yelled. Confusion began its inside work; the men were scattered. Lt. Barnes acted fast. Suddenly he was all over the men—reorganizing, pushing them forward, restoring their confidence, then leading them on up the hill. Just above the crest line, the company was stopped cold. Nothing could get through the hall of deadly enemy fire. Lt. Barnes ordered his men down the hill to a trench. He remained on the high ground, covering the withdrawal. The men gained cover. At the same time that Lt. Barnes started working his way to the trench, an enemy soldier was dropping a shell into a mortar.

Lt. Barnes leaped into the trench just as the round hit home. The blast killed several men around him. Lt. Barnes was half blinded, but he tried to get up and help the wounded. He got leg buckled under him. Lt. Barnes reached down and felt the blood oozing out. The aidman wanted to care for him first, but Lt. Barnes ordered him to care for the other casualties. Lt. Barnes opened fire. The shots were accurate. The bunker was hit.

Lent Symbolizes Meditation

Christ Suffered for 40 Days Ending With Easter

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) LEXINGTON O. SHEFFIELD
The other day I happened to make some comment about Lent and was a little surprised that the one to whom I was speaking said: "By the way, just what is Lent?" I should not have been surprised, for many churches do not observe Lent as such. Generally all Christian bodies put a great deal of emphasis on Easter, because it is the focal point of our faith. Easter symbolizes the Resurrection of our Lord and adds strength to our Christian hope. But back of Easter and the Resurrection is a great story. First there was that dark and dismal Friday, the day that Christ was tried and crucified. It is impossible for us to imagine the physical suffering our Lord endured. The observation of Lent by many of our churches is not only a recognition of the passion of our Lord, but is also a season of 40 days ending with Easter, during which individuals make sacrifices and do penance for their own moral and religious discipline. Many churches have weekly or daily religious services in Lent, during which prayer, fasting, and personal meditations are stressed. In personally observing Lent many people go much further in giving up certain items of food, drink, tobacco, and amusements—thus sharing in a small way the passion of our Lord.

1954 ELECTIONS

(This is the first in a series of articles dealing with State elections.) Generally speaking, members of the Armed Forces as attached civilians serving outside their home states will not be able to vote in person. Most States, however, provide for voting by absentee ballot for Service personnel. There will be four elections held during April: Illinois: Primary elections April 13. State will elect U. S. Senator and Representatives, state officers other than Governor, local officers, and vote on constitutional amendments. New Jersey: Primary elections April 20. State will elect U. S. Senator, Representatives, and some local officers. Virginia: Primary municipal elections April 6. General municipal elections May 2. Alaska: Primary elections April 27. Territory will elect territorial officers. (AFPS)

TIG&E Picks AWOL For Command Topic

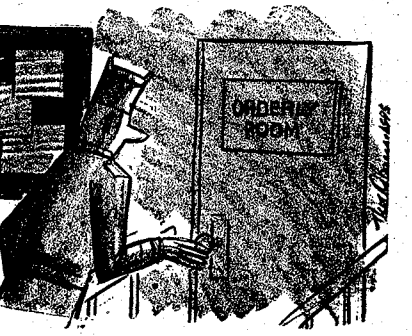

The Command Conference topic for next week will be "The High Price of AWOL." This talk has a dual purpose—first, to show the soldier that AWOL and desertion are problems that affect him personally even though he may never go AWOL himself, or even think about it. Second, to show him that he has a part in solving the AWOL and desertion problems by helping those soldiers who are potential AWOLs or deserters to overcome their temptations and difficulties. AWOLs and desertions are expensive. The cost in money is due to loss of manhours, the guard's subsistence while bringing the AWOL soldier back to the post, paperwork involved, and the cost of a court-martial. Another result is the loss of prestige. Civilians get the wrong idea about Army training and discipline when they hear of a soldier going AWOL. Each individual can help solve the AWOL and deserter problem by talking to the soldier who is thinking about it and convincing him that he can't win by going AWOL. Unit Hits 200 Pct In Red Cross Drive The Non-Resident Instruction Department has scored 200 per cent participation in the current Red Cross fund drive with contributions totaling $25.50. It was the first Infantry School academic department to go over the 100 per cent mark. Lt. Col. B. E. Boyd is Red Cross drive representative for the

Red Cross Quiz

Q—I'm asked to donate blood through the Red Cross for defense as well as for community needs. Since the fighting's stopped, why blood for defense?
A. For many Korean combat wounded still hospitalized, the fight is not over. Initial blood transfusions saved lives of critically wounded. Additional transfusions carried them through repeat surgery or helped to rebuild strength. Blood used per patient has ranged from 2 to an average of 9, and may exceed 25 pints.
Q. Is this the only defense use now being made of my blood?
A. No. Your blood given for defense is also fractionated into serum albumin, which is used in treatment of shock in surgery, accident emergencies, etc. for both military and civilian personnel. It is also processed into gamma globulin, which is used against infectious hepatitis (yellow jaundice), measles, and polio paralysis. Properties of these blood derivatives also are being reserved by the Federal Civil Defense Administration for use against the possibility of national wartime or other major disaster emergencies.
Q. Is the patient charged for blood?
A. No. Neither military nor civilian patients are ever charged for blood received through the Red Cross. Civilian hospitals make a nominal charge for administering blood and for the necessary laboratory procedures to safeguard the recipient.

It Isn't Necessary AWOL Is a Sad Thing

The saddest part of a serviceman's going AWOL is that it isn't necessary. Just because you have something troubling you doesn't mean that you have to run away from it. There are several good sources where you can go for help. The first thing you should do is go to those in charge of your own unit. They probably have handled a lot of problems like yours before. Also they know your personal life. So go talk it over with your first sergeant or division chief. He should be able to straighten you out. If he doesn't know the answer himself, he will know where to send you so you can find out. Remember that there are special organizations which are standing by to help you. The Red Cross can help by such things as verifying a serious illness at home and thus expedite your way with an emergency leave. Emergency relief funds are available from all the Services when you have an adequate need. Legal assistance can be obtained readily for any personal problem requiring it. And if it is a religious matter, the chaplain is available to give you advice with your difficulty. So if you ever consider going AWOL—forget it! First, because you'll pay a high price in sadness for the short time you are gone. Second, because you'd be better off to work with those charged with helping you with your problems. (AFPS)

Once Trained Airmen, Sailors Food Service School Observes 32d Birthday

The Third Army Food Service School at Fort Benning observed its 32d anniversary on Tuesday. Established in 1922 as the Cooks and Bakers School, the institution had come a long way since its early days when it occupied two small wooden buildings.

Today, the school, one of the oldest activities here, occupies a large two-story brick structure built in 1928.

Four courses are taught to an average of 2,000 students yearly. They are basic cooking, baking, mess management, and mess supervision.

The school is staffed by three officers, five warrant officers, and 71 enlisted men. Maj. Richard J. Falumbo of Lake Placid, N. Y. is commandant.

Students study theory and cooking procedures used in Army mess halls and field kitchens and get on-the-job training in post mess halls under experienced supervisors.

In its early days the Food Service School trained all Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel. This practice was discontinued, however, when the Navy and Air Force established schools on the same pattern, and today only Army personnel are trained here.

Demonstration teams and lecturers also are supplied by the institution for a sub-school at Fort Jackson, S. C., which is under the jurisdiction of the Post school.

Rehearsals Start For Soldier Show Stated for April 21

Rehearsals are under way for a musical production to be staged April 21 by the Soldier Show Branch of The Infantry Center's Special Services Section.

Entitled "Guns and Hams in Review," the show will feature a variety of song and dance numbers with a cast of Army men and women.

Cpl. Roy Allred, who wrote the production, is director, and Pvt. Ronald Burton is song and dance stylist. Both are members of Company B, First Special Troops Battalion.

Allred is a graduate of the Goodman Theater of Arts Institute in Chicago and a member of the Screen Actors Guild. Burton was a nightclub entertainer in the Midwest before entering the Army.

Pfc. R. H. McGinnis Tapped by 'Patrol'

Pfc. Robert H. McGinnis of Brackbridge, Pa., has been named last week's outstanding enlisted man by Fort Benning's Good-Soldier Patrol.

McGinnis, assigned to the Fourth Student Battalion's Company H, was selected for superior appearance and outstanding military bearing.

He is the 20th man to be cited by the Good-Soldier Patrol, which turns the post twice weekly to the best military quality soldier.

Silver Star Winner Starts New Career As 2nd Lieutenant

Officer Candidate Johnny L. Bohannon, a winner of the Silver Star for heroism in Korea and a Columbus boy, graduated Tuesday from Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant of Infantry. He has been in the Army seven years.

Lt. Bohannon won the Silver Star during action at the Han Tan-ni River, Korea, in June 1951. The engineers had built a footbridge for two infantry rifle companies and while casualties were being evacuated the 175-foot span was washed away. Then Bohannon tied a rope around his waist and, under heavy mortar and machine gun fire, swam the river. Five men crossed on the rope before it broke. Still under heavy fire, Bohannon again swam the river. As he approached the shore, a variety of snipers came to help him. Both were shot and seriously wounded, but not Bohannon.

"I must have been my lucky day," he says.

Army Plans Call For 357 Reserves For Medic Duty

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—The Army is planning to call 357 Medical Corps Reserve officers to active duty in July, according to information released by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, commanding general.

The Army is filling the 357 from within the seven-state Army area, the announcement said.

It was pointed out that the officers to be called now hold commissions in the Medical Corps, USAR, but have not fulfilled their obligations to serve on active duty.

The Army is filling the 357 from quota from all six of the continental Army areas and from two territorial areas.

It is anticipated that the next Medical Corps recall program will be in effect next October.

Sgt. H. K. Butler Wins Bronze Star

M-Sgt. Harry K. Butler of Aiden, Pa., has received the Bronze Star Medal at Fort Benning for meritorious service in Korea.

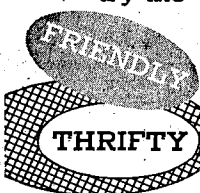

Sgt. Butler, now assigned to Company I, 30th Infantry Regiment, was a member of the 40th Division's 160th Infantry Regiment during the period for which he was cited.

As first sergeant of his company, Butler was in charge of a prisoner-of-war guard system, which, "despite adverse conditions, performed its mission in an effective manner."

The citation stated that Butler's "tireless efforts aided immeasurably in the success of the varied missions of the unit."

 'Monument' Erected at Unit's Location

2d Student Regiment Becomes History as Outfit Disbands

"Born" March 1, 1951, by virtue of General Order 21, Headquarters, The Infantry Center, dated 23 February 1951, the Second Student Regiment while still in its infancy passed into history on March 16.

Long synonymous as the "Mother of the Queen of Battles," the regiment had administered to numerous thousands of Infantrymen attending classes of every type and description.

The early days of the regiment were spent in the present location of the First Officer Candidate Regiment and was composed of OCS battalions until December 1951. The unit moved from the OC area in November 1951.

Staffing the Second Student Regiment initially were personnel from the First Student Brigade (now the School Brigade), the unit's parent organization. The regiment at full strength boasted 24 student companies, eight in each of three battalions.

Thousands of men, fresh from Reserve Officer Training Corps throughout the country, have attended basic Infantry officer classes, as well as associate Infantry officer courses, basic noncommissioned officer courses, heavy mortar and Infantry sound ranging classes were also conducted.

The first regimental commander was Lt. Col. Howard P. Haberman. Next came Lt. Col. Willis J. Adams, then Col. Max Gooler, now the commanding officer of the School Brigade. Lt. Col. Melvin Fletcher, presently assigned to Communications Department, TIC, was succeeded by Col. William I. Russell, its last regimental commander.

Having lived up to the highest traditions of The Infantry Center, the Second Student Regiment passed into history, its accomplishments and traditions to be carried on by its graduate students, both officers and enlisted.

The French general, who arrived Saturday, toured the post as a sight-seer over the weekend and began a three-day orientation Monday.

Following a 13-gun salute fired by Battery C, 41st Field Artillery Battalion, part of an honor guard staged by the 30th Infantry Regiment on Chapel Field, the Allied officer conferred with Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, and Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Sunday School Group Moves Meeting Site

The junior department of the Sunday School, which formerly met in Building No. 1002, will meet in the old Children's School at Battsell and Lumpkin Blvd. until further notice, the Chaplain's Section has announced.

May 15 to Be Armed Forces Day

Initial plans for Fort Benning's participation in the Armed Forces Day observance May 15 are being formed, post officials announced. Heading the project is Maj. John J. Nazzaro, a member of a special post plans board.

"Although planning for the observance is in its first stages, Fort Benning is mapping out a program which will include supplying speakers and other forms of participation," Maj. Nazzaro said.

May 15 has been proclaimed as Armed Forces Day by President Eisenhower, and project officers are being designated at each Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine installation.

Sponsored solely by the Department of Defense, Armed Forces Day, however, is endorsed and supported by leading national organizations.

Col. Charles Askins New Ordnance Chief

Lt. Col. Charles Askins of El Paso, Texas, who recently returned to the U. S. from an assignment in Spain, has assumed duties as ordnance officer of the Infantry School's Combat Developments Office.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Earl T. Willey, Jr. who has been ordered to Germany.

A veteran of 14 years of service, Col. Askins took airborne training here in 1946 and that same year graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Eliminations, Showings Planned for Art Contest

HEADQUARTERS THE ARMY, Fort Benning, Ga., will hold preliminary eliminations and exhibitions will soon begin throughout the Third Army area to select finalists to compete in the Second All-Army Art Contest and Exhibition.

Tentative plans call for each installation to send eight contributions in four categories: oil paintings, water colors, drawings or cartoons, and prints, to the Special Services section here by the middle of October.

Twenty-five entries will then be chosen for competition in the All-Army contest. Final selections will be made by three recognized artists in Washington in February 1955. Government savings bonds will be awarded in the fields of painting, and drawing, and prints. Five prizes will be given in each of the categories, with a popular prize for the outstanding entry.

Entries prepared as training aids or as a graphic assignment in connection with official duty will not be accepted. Judging will be based on professional standards and will include originality, composition, quality, appeal, and meaning. However, technical skill will be secondary, since the contest is intended to attract the beginner as well as the accomplished military artist.

The drawing category includes pencil, brush, pen and ink, crayon, and water color.

Gen. Conley, a 1924 graduate of West Point, took the company officers' course at The Infantry School in 1932.

Following his graduation from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., he returned to Fort Benning where he was assigned to the 29th Infantry Regiment until 1940.

Gen. Conley served in Europe from September, 1945, to January, 1946, and again in 1948.

Lt. Gen. Bolling Talks to Grads

More than 200 officers received diplomas at Fort Benning yesterday at graduation exercises for The Infantry School's advanced class No. 1.

Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, was principal speaker at the 9 a.m. ceremony in Theater No. 11.

The graduation marked the completion of 25 weeks of Infantry training for the class, which opened Sept. 8.

Gen. Bolling, who was introduced by Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry School commandant, served in World Wars I and II in Europe. After World War II, he was assigned to the U. S. Army Forces at Frankfurt, Germany, until 1947.

In August, 1952, he assumed command of the Third Army with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga.

2 Captains Join Post Hospital Staff

Capt. Helen Jacobs of Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Capt. Gertrude J. Murray of Atlanta, Ga., have joined the staff of women medical specialists at the U. S. Army Hospital here.

Capt. Jacobs, who came to The Infantry Center from Camp Chaffee, Ark., is a physio-therapist. She received her training at the Army's Physical Therapy School, O'Reilly General Hospital, Springfield, Mo., while in the Women's Army Corps in 1944-45.

Center of the program is the Hospital Red Cross Building which houses the spacious recreation hall where the patients see movies, special shows and musical programs or participate in ping-pong, pool and various table games.

Daily Programs
The recreation center operates daily, except Friday night, from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. During the day ambulatory and wheel chair patients enjoy the game facilities of the center or just sit around and read or listen to the music.

Movies are shown two nights a week, and are set aside for games, dances (two a month), recitals and other entertainment are also staged.

For patients who cannot come to the center, the Red Cross workers take their programs to the wards exhibiting the same two movies shown at the center during the week.

To vary the recreational program ambulatory patients and patients are taken to outside events, such as football, baseball and boxing matches. Little Theater productions and various post Special Services programs.

Training Supervised
Miss Mary Elizabeth Downing, field director for the Hospital Red Cross unit, supervises the training and assignment of Gray Ladies, volunteers from both Columbus and Fort Benning.

The Gray Ladies often conduct ward recreational programs and assist in some of the outside entertainment trips the patients take.

They write letters, wrap packages, shop and distribute comfort articles to patients. In addition they serve as receptionists in several of the wards.

Gray Lady training takes from 10 to 15 hours depending on the type of work the volunteer will do. At present the hospital has approximately 20 Gray Ladies.

His Painting Art Is Cool...

But This Private Rues the Day

BY CPL. FRED B. FRIEDMAN

I am strictly minding my own business when this lieutenant comes along. As usual, this means I am strictly in for it.

He says, "I have a job for you." He tells me I am now a painter and would I be good enough to grab a brush and come along. I am good enough to.

We get to the parade ground. The lieutenant points to a cannon, some bleachers, a flagpole, and markers. He points to a can of paint and a can of whitewash. He points to me. I get the idea.

I go to work with feeling. I stroke delicately but firmly. Soon the markers are gleaming. I paint the pole white. I even paint the nob on top of the flagpole.

By now I am completely carried away. Art is wonderful.

The cannon I reserve for special treatment. It is beat up, with scratched dents all over. It may have been retired from combat, but when I get done it looks pretty snappy.

The next morning the first rays of the sun rise over the parade ground. The markers, the bleachers, and the flagpole shine. The cannon is a knockout.

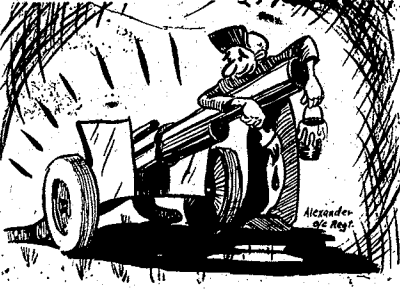

Soon the parade is under way.

Things are going along nicely in-bleachers khaki. The boys are all in step. No-body moves the troop out on order arms. The general smiles. The colonel smiles. The captain smiles.

Then a jeep comes by. It is dragging the cannon—MY cannon. I look at the general. I look at the colonel. I look at the captain. The first is agape, the second agape, the third agape.

I hear the lieutenant calling the MP's and see him put the finger on me.

I used to like parades but I don't anymore. I still do not think it is fair, though. A cannon with white sidewall tires looks very pretty.

"It's the easiest-driving car I've ever tried!"

Ed Sullivan reports on the new 1954 Mercury

"HERE, FOR THE FIRST TIME, IS FINE-CAR PERFORMANCE IN A POPULAR-PRICED CAR—161 HORSEPOWER OF IT!"

"Talk about showmanship—what a performance this new '54 Mercury gives! I tested it and found I was at the wheel of the easiest-driving car I ever tried. And then I found out why.

"Mercury's all-new, overhead valve, V-8 engine delivers a whopping 161 horsepower. You pass cars and enter lanes of moving traffic smoothly, surely, with greater safety.

"And thanks to Mercury's new 4-barrel, vacuum-controlled carburetor—exclusive with Mercury in its class—that power is made available instantly, automatically, whenever you need it.

"Then there's that wonderful feeling of smooth, sure control—especially on curves—the result of Mercury's new ball-joint front wheel suspension.

Mercury is the only car in its field that brings you this aid to finer road stability, easier driving.

"Add to all this Mercury's optional features—power brakes that cut leg work more than half, power steering that makes parking effortless, the 4-way power seat, electric power windows, and smooth, proven no-shift Merc-O-Matic Drive. Then you see why I've ever tried.

"But try it yourself and really see what I mean. Take a test ride at your Mercury dealer's—soon."

30th Places 2; MVP Award To Steiner

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Bayonet Sports Editor

With the champion 30th Infantry Blues grabbing two of the first five positions, the 1954 Fort Benning All-Post basketball team offers speed, height and scoring ability in a well-integrated combination.

Every league entrant placed at least one man on either the first or second team as chosen by votes of fans, league officials, and Special Services representatives.

Doughboys Lose 1st 3a Contest

Fort Benning's Doughboys lost to favored Camp Gordon yesterday afternoon by an 85-78 score to enter the losers bracket in the Third Army basketball tournament in Camp Gordon.

Lawson won his first game in the Air Force regional journey at Craig AFB Base by whipping Charleston, S. C. 116-73 Tuesday. Benning teamed as a Third Army darkhorse by beating Fort McClellan 90-75. The Benning Wacs were also victorious with a 67-41 win over Camp Gordon.

second place finishers.

Representing the 30th squad were Frank Glenn and Jack Sutherland, the dual carburetors of the Blues' high speed scoring machine.

The remaining two positions went to Bill Bolger, who authored a new individual scoring mark of 59 points, and Bill Thompson, CTC's smoothly functioning post man who was shifted forward to make way for the taller Bolger.

Guard Spots

Named to guard spots on the second team were ISD's tough little pointmaker, Bob Gilbert, and Jim Bachmann of OC Regiment, whose specialty in the driving layup netted many markers for the Generals.

Forward berths went to Frank Barker of the OCs and Don Keats of STC. Both prolific scorers, Barker worked best under the basket while Keats preferred to "loop 'em in from a goodly distance.

Dave Ellison, a standout for PMG's residents of the cellar, was picked as second string center. Ellison carried the burden of the "Medics" offense all season and maintained a 16.5 average which was usually about 40 per cent of the PMG total.

JACK SUTHERLAND—Guard: Quarterback and top playmaker for all-conquering Blues, Sutherland's on-the-spot strategy and court generalship were probably the most important factors in the 30th drive to the championship. A former Kentucky Wildcat, Jack was the outside man for the Blues and poured in a seemingly endless stream of points by way of a well-zeroed two-hand set shot which he launched from 20 to 25 feet out and at almost any angle from the basket. A top-notch golfer when he strays from the court, Sutherland plans to enter high-school coaching after his Army days are over.

RAY STEINER—Guard: A stick-out choice for Most Valuable Player accolades, Steiner was the difference between a good team and a mediocre one for Lawson AFB's Flyers. This was best pointed up when Ray was forced out of action for the Fluor-Medic game and Lawson without Steiner barely squeaked out a one-point win over the not-to-potent PMG quint. Ray spent his college days at St. Louis University back in the days when the Billikens were sweeping all before them and plans to stay in the Air Force.

BILL BOLGER—Center . . . One of the most gifted players ever to tread the Briant Wells hardwoods, Bolger amazed post cage spectators with the superb quality of his offensive play which he turned in almost

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

For some unexplainable reason, the American sports public usually refuses to recognize the true greatness of an athlete until he has passed from the picture and enough time has elapsed to give his deeds their real perspective.

For instance, ask the average fan, young or old, who was the greatest baseball player ever to perform. Chances are you'll have the name of Tyros B. Cobb or Babe Ruth tossed back at you in short order. Or ask your average fan who is the best footballer of them all and you'll probably hear the name of Jim Thorpe or Red Grange. Nine times out of ten the fellow you're talking to never saw any of them play.

In the case of the four mentioned above, the passage of time has crusted their names with hoary legends of fabled doings on athletic fields. Ruth called his shot in the World Series. Grange scored the first three times he carried against Penn. Thorpe could throw 'em the length of the field. Cobb could peel a banana with his spikes and not bruise it.

Remembering the lore and myths surrounding the athletes of two or three decades ago, the relatively recent performances of today's heroes fade into dimness. Who would dare mention Stan Musial in the same paragraph with Cobb, the Georgia Peach? Old timers would snort harsh words to the effect that current stars would be bench-warmers on the Olympian teams of the days when baseball was baseball and football was football.

Let 30 years go by, though, and ask Mr. Average Fan of 1985 just whom he rates as the greatest. You'll likely hear the story of how 40-year-old Johnny Mize came off the New York Yankee bench to smash a pinch home run against Brooklyn in the '52 Series and follow it up with two more that won games for the Yankees.

The fan of 1985 will probably tell the tale of how Ted Williams smacked two homers in his final game with the Boston Red Sox before leaving for the Marine Corps. Surely he'll relate how Williams came back from the Marines to register a .400 plus batting average for the final few weeks of the 1953 season, and how he blasted 13 four baggers in the 26 full games he played.

You're a cinch to hear the yarn of how Notre Dame scored with less than two seconds left in the first half and with less than 10 left in the second half to the Iowa and keep their unbeaten record. The names of Leon Fart, Blanchard and Davis, Frank Leahy and Otto Graham will be enshrined in the places now reserved for Pudge Hefefinger, the Four Horsemen and Knute Rockne.

Everyone stand on their heads who think the Yankees' lackluster record this spring is an indication the champions are slipping. The Bombers have lost 11 of 16 as of this writing, but the defeated pitchers have borne unheralded names such as Art Schallcock, Al Cicotte and Steve Kraly. When the front liners, such as Lopat, Ford, Reynolds or Byrd have trod the rubber, the Yanks have come home in front.

Significant too was Don Newcombe's feat of no-hitting the World Champs for six innings. The addition of Big Newk to a mound roster consisting of Carl Erskine, Billy Loes, Preacher Roe, Russ Meyer, Johnny Podres, Bob Milliken, Jim Hughes, Joe Black, Erv Palica and Clem Labine gives the Brooks one of the finest hurling corps in the majors and easily the best in the National League.

Why is it disaster so often strikes when a club ponies up huge cash sums or many players to trade for another team's star? Well Blackwell cost the Yankees a pretty penny and only won one game before an ailing arm forced him to quit. The Cubs paid $100,000 for a washed-up Dizzy Dean. More recently, another $100,000 deal brought the Giants' worker of miracles, Bobby Thomson, to Milwaukee, and the Swift Scot broke an ankle which will keep him out for months.

Thomson's loss will hurt the Braves no end. He was to have supplied needed right-handed power to supplement no-longer-youthful Andy Pafko. His experience and know-how would have steadied the young Braves considerably. His absence from the line up will make them immeasurably

Benning Boxers Blank Rucker In Final '54 Home Appearance

A hard-punching array of Fort Benning boxers swept Camp Rucker's visiting team out of the ring at Briant Wells Field House last Thursday by winning all matches of an eight-bout slate for Red Cross Benefit.

Post fighters registered a pair of knockouts and six decisions in turning back the Viking leather-slingers without a blemish.

Herman Hinton, post light welter champ, scored the first KO of the evening when he unshashed a flurry of left-right combinations capped with three vicious left hooks that chilled Rucker's Leon Nelson in 1:42 of the first round. Hinton threw a skyful of leather from the opening gong and chased Nelson around the ring until he caught him in the Viking's corner and put the lights out.

Joel Wilson marked up Benning's second knockout win two bouts later when he extinguished Lewis Hunter in even quicker time than Hinton, 1:42 of the opening frame. A short, explosive right to the jaw did the trick for Wilson.

One of the closer fights of the night featured lightweight champ Elvis Mathews against Marvin Stenson of Camp Rucker. Though Mathews piles up numerous points in close exchanges, Stenson absorbed them and came back for more, offering in the meanwhile a more than creditable offense of his own. Good margins in the first and third rounds sent Elvis home in front and gave Stenson the impression that mixing in close with Mathews just isn't done.

Ed Crook, Benning's light middle king, caught a real batter in Taft Ellis, who hails from Rucker's home town of Detroit. Ellis, a mauling, rough-house type braver, enjoyed height and reach advantages over Crook, but couldn't contain Ed's "am-bang" punching to the body and head.

Stylish little Hilton Smith uncoiled several furious studded with bolo punches a la Kid Gaglian to outpoint Oliver Reeder in the opening match of the card.

Frank West, trainer for the champion CTC team, made his first appearance as a fighter and hammered George Hicks of Camp Rucker into submission in a bout that was strictly all West.

Joe Davis, post middleweight ruler, parlayed his durability and looping right hand into a decision over Rucker's Charles Craig. The Viking pounded away ambitiously at Davis, landing a number of solid punches that Joe shook off.

Army Pistol Team Dominates National Mid-Winter Matches

The U. S. Army Pistol Team dominated individual and team competition for the second straight year at the National Mid-Winter Matches, held at Tampa, Fla., March 9-13, according to Lt. Col. Ellis Lee Jann captain, who returned to Fort Benning Thursday. Army shooters took 131 prizes, generally placing 1-2-3.

M-Sgt. Joe Benner, retained his mid-winter crown with a score of 2,669. Major William A. Hancock, placed second with 2,599.

CWO Oscar K. Winnester was fifth with 2,531. Col. Leo was eighth with 2,560, and Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe, was 10th with 2,547.

Major Robert L. Davis, won top honors in the Expert Class, and Major Roy E. Hagan was high in the marksman class, thereby earning reclassification into the master class. The 37-man Army teams selected from nearly 80 entrants after a month of competitive firing at Fort Benning's Pistol Club range.

The project is divided into two parts, rifle and pistol. Captain Harold Flunke of Itz & Ha, Co., First Special Troops Battalion, has been assigned as project officer to supervise the pistol team project while Lt. John Haley of Co. B, First Trans. Ban., has been assigned to supervise the rifle team project.

Almost 300 competitors took part in the matches, 82 of whom were Army personnel. fourteen organizations, including a Army areas and Army posts, were represented by teams.

Three team members from Fort Benning won honors in the match besides capturing the individual medals.

Army team to the championship, Capt. Frederick J. Reifer, Columbus, Ga., won two medals, and Capt. Ralph W. Anthony of Monterey, Calif., won one medal.

Captain Roy Orton and M-Sgt. John Artym, both of Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, 30th Infantry, brought home four of the nineteen individual awards won by the Infantry Center entry in the National Mid-Winter Pistol Match at Tampa, Fla.

Their collection looks more impressive when it is noted that this was the first National Association competition with a pistol for either, and that this firing brought them against the best pistol artists the nation over. Their only other competition had been within the Combat Training Command when both helped Second Battalion win the CTC pistol championship for the past two years.

Capt. Orton and Sgt. Artym won between them plaques and medals for a total of four second places, four fourth places and five fifth places. Sgt. Artym won plaques for second place in aggregate score with the .45 caliber pistol, and for fourth place for overall aggregate with .22, .38, and .45 calibers. Capt. Orton won a plaque for fifth place in overall aggregate with the three calibers of pistol.

Tennis Aces Dazzle Crowd

A scintillating array of tennis talent assembled by promoter Jack Kramer left post fans talking to themselves in amazement last Sunday as the kings of the net world fought it out for prize money before a near-capacity crowd at Briant Well.

A relentless racket - swinging machine named Frank Sedgman showed onlookers exactly why Australia rules the tennis world as he dropped Pancho Gonzales and Pancho Segura to take top honors and top purse for the evening.

Following the singles finals, the master himself, Jack Kramer, stepped on the court and teamed with Gonzales to defeat Segura and Sedgman, 6-5.

The matches were played under pro-tour rules - devised by Kramer - whereby the winner is the player who first wins eight games, thereby eliminating the lengthy timer Don Budge 10-8 after being swept off the court in the early stages by Budge's powerful attack show by rallying to defeat old-

Post Triathlon Trials Scheduled

Tryouts for the Army Triathlon are scheduled to get under way this week under the auspices of Special Services, Sports Officer Samuel Goldfarb announced Monday.

The Triathlon, one of the most highly diversified events in military athletics, consists of firing the .45 caliber pistol, a two-and-one-half mile run and a 300-meter swim.

For purposes of the tryouts, candidates will be tested by an 800-yard run, a 100-yard freestyle swim and the pistol firing. Anyone stationed on post who is desirous to a display of tennis at its best, he smashed his way to a 7-4 lead before he tired and yielded the fight to Segura, who fought back behind his storied two-fisted forehead blasts to deuce the count at 7-7 and eventually win 10-8.

Probably the best match of the evening was the other "semi-final" between Sedgman and Gonzales. Here was a duel between two powerful sluggers, both masters of the screaming American Twist service, who fought to a standoff for 18 games before the young Australian broke Gonzales' service to win 11-9.

Sedgman, serving first, took the first game but, Gonzales evened it on his own serve - the fastest in tennis - and each player held his service until Sedgman broke of trying for the Triathlon is urged to contact Captain Goldfarb. Interviews will be held Friday, and actual tryouts will begin Sunday March 23, and continue on Sundays thereafter for four weeks.

Those finally selected for the Triathlon squad will be placed on special duty with the Sports Section with the same SD as the Track and Field squad and will begin training for the Third Army Triathlon which will be held in conjunction with the Army Triathlon.

Benning Officer Looms As Pentathlon Possibility

An automobile crash six years ago almost ruined his chances of ever participating in sports again.

DAVID C. MILLER

but an Army lieutenant from Denver, now stationed here, is preparing for the 1956 Olympic Games in Australia. David C. Miller is currently undergoing a strenuous training and conditioning program that would belie the fact that he was close to death with a brain concussion in the summer of 1948. The accident occurred shortly after Miller graduated from New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N. M., where he had been active in tennis, football and swimming, as well as boxing, in which he recalls winning 14 out of 15 bouts. A remarkably rapid recovery followed and Miller was able to enter the University of Denver in autumn of that year, but could not participate in contact sports for two and one-half years. He regained full strength and by the time he graduated in June 1952 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration, Miller had won letters in tennis and swimming. In his senior year, he had been captain of the university's swimming team.

Miller then entered the Army via the ROTC program and after attending several military schools was assigned to his present unit, Special Services Headquarters at Fort Benning.

The 23-year-old officer set up a rigorous program, which he adheres to daily. A normal day runs something like this:

He arises at 6 a.m. and the morning is taken up by breakfast, two hours of pistol shooting, one hour of fencing, and an hour of running.

After lunch and a rest, he fences for an hour, runs ten miles and then rests again before supper. At night, he fences for two more hours and is off to bed no later than 10:30 p.m.

On alternate days, he substitutes swimming for fencing, and back on post with several medals won at Tampa, Miller has won the U.S. Pentathlon.

The qualifications are to be held in June, and if he is successful in them, the Denver officer plans to go to the world championships in Hungary this October and to the Pan-American games in Mexico City next year—all in preparation for the "grand-daddy" of them all, the Olympics two years hence.

Lt. Col. Fellenz To Head School

Lt. Col. Walter J. Fellenz has been named director of the Small Arms Firing School for the National Rifle Association to be held this Summer at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Col. Fellenz, who is chairman of the Weapons Department's Small Arms Committee, will leave here Sunday for a two-day reconnaissance of the competition site. Instructors and demonstrators for the school scheduled Aug. 19-20 will include 16 officers and 20 enlisted men from the Small Arms Committee and 110 men from other Third Army installations.

Tennis

In the final match, Sedgman's booming overhand serve, 1-1 w down Segura, 8-6, for first prize.

Easily the standout performer of the night was Sedgman, whose catlike movements and lightning swift reflexes kept him well on top of the play, forcing errors or passing his opponent with driving placements.

A master of the volley, Sedgman often smashed opponents' passing shots back at them and was sure death should his adversary try to lob to the baseline.

Kramer stated after the matches that he was attempting to obtain Frank Kovacs, champion of the early '40s, to replace Don Budge, who has announced his retirement from the tour. Budge said he is too old for the gruelling grind of play every night, and will resume his old job of tennis instructor at New York City's Town Tennis Club.

Boxers

Jim Boyd, light heavy champion and Golden Gloves finalist, had a bit of trouble with Benny Jackson of Jacksonville, Fla., but pulled out the judges' verdict by faking inside with dangerous counterpunches.

All-Post

Joining the Blackwhites late in the season, Bolger yanked them out of their doldrums and transformed them into one of the toughest fives in the loop during the last half of the season.

Bill played for the Georgetown Hoyas and was the only player in the school's history to exceed 1,000 points. He then joined the professional Baltimore Bullets for a portion of a season before entering the service.

FRANK GLENN—Forward: Familiar indeed to Benning basketball fans was the sight of Glenn, a beautifully coordinated basketball player, maneuvering around the 30th Infantry goal to tap in shots, grab rebounds and work the post position. Not exceptionally tall at 6-3, Frank consistently outfoated taller opponents under the boards and maintained a 19-point-plus average on a combination of jump shot hook shots, driving layups and tip-ins. A baseball player of great promise, Glenn played at the University of California, plans to return there after his discharge.

BILL THOMPSON — Forward: Only non-collegian on the All-Post quintet, Bill's experience consists of high school ball for Benjamin Franklin of New York City plus several years in the amateur ranks of the Big Town. Thompson was of immeasurable value to CTC the past season with his versatile playing. Tallest man in the Commander lineup at 6-6, Bill worked best on a driving, left-handed hook shot which usually originated from five to 10 feet away and was virtually impossible to defend against. When the opposition had the ball, Thompson was stick-tight defensive man and shouldered the brunt of CTC rebounding.

Five of the top ten are now with the Fort Benning Houseboys in the Third Army tournament at Camp Gordon — Sutherland, Glenn, Thompson, Gilbert and Keals. MVP Steiner, of course, could not participate since he is in the Air Force and Bolger's student work kept him from making the trip.

CTC, STC Trade 6-3 Victories With Rucker

Fort Benning baseball teams played swap out with Camp Rucker nine times this past week, breaking even in a pair of 6-3 games played here.

CTC opened the post season last Friday by losing to the 138th Infantry Regiment of Camp Rucker. John Gebhard, a strong-armed right hander formerly with the Pond-Lac club of the Wisconsin State League, literally stood the Commanders on their ear by allowing only one hit and striking out 20.

Bill Baltz, 138th centerfielder, led the hitting attack with a home run, double and single in four at-bats. CTC first sacker Toy Johnson collected the only Commander safety.

The Special Troops Raiders evened the score with Thacker Montgomery by using some timely hitting to pound out a 6-3 win over the 104th Infantry Regiment. Melvin Grant's triple with the bases full in the eighth provided the needed margin.

Art Amaya, a heavy-set right-hander who toiled for the Oakland Oaks last season, worked the first portion of the game for the Raiders, limiting the visitors to one run on no hits. He was followed by John Lang and John McKinnon who joined forces to shut down the visitors with a total of two hits.

Rafael Carmoega collected a triple for the Raiders with a mate aboard in the third inning to erase a one-run deficit.

Little League Tryouts Start 2 P.M. Saturday

Tryouts for the Fort Benning Little League baseball teams will begin 2 p.m. Saturday at the Polo Fields and will continue the following two weeks at 6 p.m. Monday, and Wednesday and 2 p.m. Saturday.

Player auctions will be held April 12th and the first game of the season will be May 1.

Registration of the players took place last Saturday with approximately 70 signing up. Boys from the Custer Terrace area registered on the last night at the rental office. Registrations are also being accepted this week at the Faith School by Mr. Toole and birth certificates are required to be presented at time of entry.

Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Marcus Bell has announced that construction will begin this week on a diamond at Custer Terrace for the use of the farm teams while the regular League games will continue to be played on the old polo field at the main post. The diamond has been much improved during the winter with the addition of running water and team dugouts.

The Little League baseball season got an early start this year with a meeting at the Infantry School Feb. 15. Officers were elected, managers appointed and coaches assigned to the various teams.

Cap. R. J. Rogers will be president of the league and will be assisted by M-Sgt. R. F. Townsend, vice-president and C. W. O. R. Copeland, secretary-treasurer.

But You Cost $5,500 a Year

Romans Whipped World on Slim $15

BY CPL. E. D. BYRNE, AUS. AFPS Washington Correspondent

If memory and high school Latin serve me correctly, the average soldier in Caesar's Legions received as an initial clothing allowance one spear (model M-1), one sword (short), one helmet (w-liner), one shirt (similar in theory to the armored-vest), one shield (portable) and one mill for grinding corn. All this Caesar got for about $15 per fighting man. The soldier's pay was small. In fact he received most of it from the Roman VA after he got out of the service. An officer cost slightly more. He got a cloak and a plumed helmet. Caesar and his corn-grinding soldiers conquered the world—except for Ireland. They quit there for many armies have since.

But armies have grown in such larger and sunnier lands are more elaborate and expensive. The $15 of Caesar's day probably would get you to the induction station and not much farther. Let's look at some of the individual costs of our Army as based on the budget figures recently delivered to Congress by President Eisenhower.

If you're inducted into the Army for two years, it will cost $11,000 to train, equip and maintain you. The first year costs $5,800, every year after — $5,200. The average yearly cost for the individual soldier can be broken down into the following:

Pay $1,943; Food—$466; Clothing — $58; Travel—$130; Morale and Welfare — $40; Individual equipment — $102; Maintenance and operations attributable of an individual basis—$7,500.

The initial cost of an infantry division runs somewhere around $91,000,000. To maintain this division for one year and replace its equipment within that one year — $17,000,000.

A SURFBOARDER? Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 30th Infantry, was assigned 14 new men last week, including Pvt. Takamori Nonaka of Hilo, Hawaii.

For the past three months two units Heavy Mortar Company, 20th Infantry, and Battery C, 41st Field Artillery Battalion, have dominated the inspections to determine which unit will be presented the plaque for best supply and best mess for the month in combat training exercises.

Heavy Mortar Company, commanded by Capt. Paul F. Hester, since December, was selected for inspection by Gen. A. T. Bell during the Third Army inspection. During January the "Army" Commander's personal artillery finished second in both categories and won the best unit supply award for February.

Battery C, commanded by Capt. Frederick L. Zullinger, won the plaque for best mess for the year 1953 and for the first two months in 1954. Col. Frank L. Elder, CTC commanding officer, said, on entering C. Battery's mess hall to present the February plaque, "This is getting to be a habit."

Plaques are awarded when, after preliminary inspection to determine the top four units, Col. Elder or Lt. Col. Richard T. Jones, CTC executive officer, inspect to determine ranking of the top four. Preliminary inspection for best mess is made by Food Service from the Infantry Center, CTC, and the Medical Department. See that sanitation and health requirements are complied with. The 4th section of CTC makes preliminary inspections for supply.

Craig G. Coverdale, Heavy Mortar supply officer, and Sgt. J. White, supply sergeant, have one of the largest supply rooms in CTC to maintain an superior condition for the award. Col. Elder here also does much of the required work.

Other members of the Heavy Mortar Company have received recognition for outstanding high superior ratings. Letters of Commendation from Col. Elder were presented to Sgt. J. E. Folger and Paul Martin for the condition of the communication and communication equipment. In a recent inspection, Sgt. Raymond Caldwell and Pfc. Leslie Paul, Gerald Martin, and Pfc. Clifford Cross received letters of commendation for their excellent mess hall. The company on a five-day command post exercise problem, and First Lt. Frederick Willis was commended for organization of an exercise detail while working with the post medical group.

Sgt. City Williams, Mess Steward for Battery C of the 41st Field, has used his own initiative to improve the mess hall and condition of the food. He built up a thermally controlled tray warmer for the food line, and a bread box to keep the bread fresh. Beauty of the mess hall is enhanced by paneling of varnished scrap lumber, neatly varnished eight men tables, and plants hung between double windows. Plates of mail patches from Korea on the walls, and a picket-line rack for records behind his desk.

20TH INFANTRY REGT.
Third Battalion, 20th Infantry Regiment, had 20 new additions to its ranks. They are Sgt. and Pfc. William T. Hayden, Robert J. McCrary and George F. Massart. Lt. Massart was congratulated on the addition of an 8th son in his family since he joined the company.

Company M added to its laurels by winning three of the four plaques presented by the Third Battalion for February. "Mighty Mike," commanded by Capt. Francis O. Sorvase, was presented the best company, best mess, and best administrative plaques. The plaques are awarded from the results of the monthly inspections in the battalion.

M. Sgt. James E. Baptiste has taken over the duties of first sergeant in Company L. Although new in his post, Sgt. Baptiste is not a stranger to the company, having been with it since October, 1951.

Sgt. William B. Steadinger of Company K is presently attending the advanced leadership course, CTC.

Automotive Officer Perfects Cure for Back-Up Car Bangs

Most drivers find moving their cars from parking jams usually leads to one of two things, headaches or repair bills.

But First Lt. Paul Reed, Shop Officer of Automotive Shop No. 1, many times a victim of such a situation, decided to do something about it.

Reed has invented a patent-pending "back-up indicator mechanism" which he feels is the answer to the problem. It's composed of two gadgets, a switch mechanism and a dash light-indicator.

Function is simple yet effective. The switch mechanism fastens to the underside of either the rear or front bumper and allows a "feeler" to extend some eight inches beyond the bumper. When the feeler is forced against any object it activates the switch mechanism and lights a dash-mounted indicator light. It allows six inches of parking space before bumping into another car.

Reed is sensitive yet indestructible in normal use. Even should two bumpers collide the "feeler" can be bent more than 90 degrees without damage.

The device is adaptable to all cars and can be installed in approximately one-half hour, he said.

Reed is seeking a manufacturer for his product.

Linguists Turn 198th FA Bn. Into Foreign Language Haven

There are probably more linguists in the 198th Field Artillery Battalion's Battery A than in any other unit at Fort Benning. Nine different languages, including English, are spoken by men of the battery.

Pvt. Leonard Small, who was born in the Russian Ukraine, is the most versatile linguist in the group. He speaks Russian, Ukrainian, German, Polish, and English. The Danish language is represented by Pvt. I. B. Kildegaard.

Pvt. Tommy Laforce is a French-Canadian from Caughnawaga, Canada, and is as much at home with French as with English. Six Puerto Ricans represent Spanish interests. They are Pvt. Rafael Ruiz - Diaz, Jose Bourgeois, Jose Morales - Ferrer, Jules Gonzales - Martinez, Miguel Cienra Gonzales, and Jorge Cruz-Cruz of Santurce.

TIS Enters 47th Year

Case Histories Rise as Wrecks Kill 3, Hurt 14

Fort Benning soldiers were involved in 10 automobile accidents during March which killed three persons and hospitalized 14 others. Two drivers are facing manslaughter charges.

Four of these accidents were caused by drinking drivers. Another was caused by speed. The other five accidents involved fatigue, sleepiness, and carelessness.

During January and February 32 accidents claimed the lives of six soldiers and two civilians and hospitalized 41 soldiers and five civilians. Four soldiers were charged with manslaughter.

All these accidents occurred off-duty.

Strength Upped By 4,000 Men

The net gain in military personnel at Fort Benning since January is five times greater than the net gain in the entire fourth quarter of 1953.

Around 7,000 new troops have reported for assignment since the first of the year while losses amounted to about 3,000, leaving an increase in strength of approximately 4,000. Net gain for the final quarter of last year was only 800.

Lt. Col. George Weir, chief of the Military Personnel Division, said the increase was due to the large number of veterans returning from overseas duty and to a reduction in training at other military installations.

More than 5,000 of the new soldiers are privates with the rest almost evenly distributed among the other enlisted grades.

Lt. Gen. Almond To Visit Post

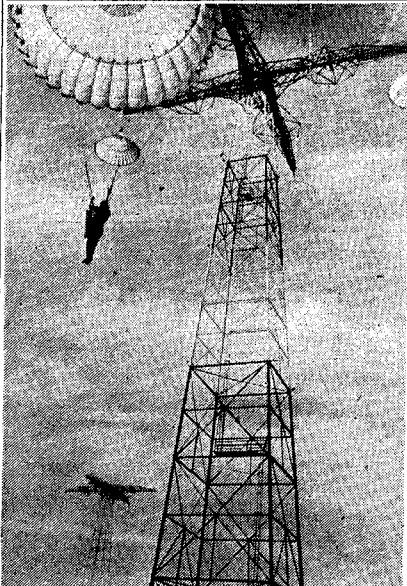

Retired Army Lt. Gen. E. M. Almond, Gen. MacArthur's chief of staff in Japan, is expected to arrive at Fort Benning this afternoon for a social visit to old service friends.

Among those he will visit are Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., Infantry Center commander, Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commander of the Infantry School, and Col. Frank T. Milden of the school's Tactical Department.

Gen. Almond, who now resides at Anniston, Ala., also is known for his record as commander of the X Corps during the Inchon landing in Korea.

Lt. Burt Appointed Tank Co. Commander

Fort Lt. Thomas H. Burt, has been appointed commander of Company B, 73d Tank Battalion, replacing Capt. Frank W. Houston, who has moved to battalion headquarters as training officer.

PRACTICE JUMP . . . A basic airborne student at The Infantry School makes a practice jump from a 250-foot training tower. The jump is in preparation for his five qualifying jumps from an airplane before he wins his airborne wings. The Infantry School will be 47 years old today.

Slackening Due in Post Airborne School Training

Paratroop training at Fort Benning probably will slacken due to opening of airborne schools at two other military installations, reports yesterday indicated.

An airborne school with a 100-man initial class, has been established at Fort Campbell, Ky., and a similar center at Fort Bragg, N. C., has 400 in its first group.

The Army Times reported Saturday that more than 1,000 men of the 11th Airborne Division at Campbell already have volunteered to attend.

The 18th Airborne Corps, comprising the 11th at Campbell and the 82nd Airborne Division at Bragg, has been authorized to conduct its own basic airborne training. Personnel from these units who formerly trained at Fort Benning will no longer come to the post here.

Lt. Col. Robert C. Kinkor, Fort Benning public information officer, said the post probably will train volunteers from other Army units in the future.

He said the Airborne Department at Benning for several years has been geared to a student load of 350 new trainees a week. The average in 1953 was 300-350.

The level of 350 has been authorized through the end of April, he continued, but it is not possible to predict how many men now will report with each new class.

"There is no way to tell what the effect will be until after the new class arrives next week," he said, adding, "There is no indication of closing the Airborne Department here."

The army still is giving considerable impetus to trying to get soldiers to take airborne training throughout all units in the army, he declared.

Maj. Charles Pickle, commandant of the new school at Campbell, said classes will begin the three-week course each Monday morning, with graduation ceremonies set each Saturday.

Achievement Marks Colorful History

U.S. Army Founded Musketry School In Monterey, Cal.

The Infantry School—the nation's largest service institution—begins its 47th year today, still teaching and training the leaders of America's indispensable and indefatigable footsoldier.

Although warfare has changed considerably since the school has its inauspicious beginning in 1907 as the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., no one has yet invented a substitute for the man or foot who takes the ground from the enemy and holds it.

During its 46 years, encompassing two World Wars and the Ko-

Maj. Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., has issued the following message:

"The 47th anniversary of The Infantry School will be observed on April 1, 1954. The intervening years have seen thousands of Infantrymen graduate from its courses into positions of battle leadership. We take pride in the magnificent contribution of these men to the preservation of our country and the achievements of the Army.

"From the day of the founding, in 1907, of the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, to the present, the School has not only trained officers and men, but it has produced tactics, techniques, doctrine, and training ideas that have had a profound impact on the conduct of war. Today, not only the Infantrymen of the United States, but those of our Allied are taught and influenced by this school.

"I wish to thank all who are now, or have been in the past, associated with The Infantry School for their dedication to the spirit and traditions of 'Follow Me.'" rean conflict, the school boasts a history marked by almost fantastic achievement.

For the first few years, its curriculum was limited and its classes were small. The school began to grow slowly in 1912, however.

School Lists Brilliant Array Of Commanders

Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., 18th commandant of the 47-year-old Infantry School, carries on the tradition of combining the qualities of a military educator with those of a combat leader.

A division chief of staff in Europe during World War II, Gen. Meloy serves as commander of the 18th Infantry Regiment in Korea where he was wounded in action in July 1950. Named assistant commandant in October 1951 he became commandant in January 1953.

Gen. Meloy has had no trouble in expanding the school, for today the Army realizes its importance. But the first commandants of The Infantry School, found the going tough.

School Here In 1918
When the school came to Fort Benning in October 1918 Col. Henry E. Earnes became commandant, a post he held until April 1919. Although it was an up-hill battle, he succeeded in 'keeping the school alive.'

Major Gen. Charles S. Farnsworth, first commandant from April 1919 to July 1920, and Major Gen. Walter H. Gordon, commandant from September 1920 to November 1923 also had to fight to keep the school from passing into oblivion.

However, their successors, Brig. Gen. Briant H. Wells (1923-1926), Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Collins (1926-1929), Brig. Gen. Campbell King (1929-1933), Brig. Gen. George H. Estes (1933-1936), and Brig. Gen. Asa L. Singleton (1936-1940) saw it gradually grow and improve during the uneasy peace-time years.

Top Officers
From the beginning of the peacetime draft in 1940 until the critical stage of the war was passed in 1944, The Infantry School was headed by four brilliant officers who first fulfilled their mission of training the Infantry the Army

A Medal of Honor winner has again taken a top place among his fellow Infantrymen.

This time the honors came in keen competition in the academic field at The Infantry School.

Major Charles P. Murray, Jr., of Wilmington, N. C., who won his country's highest decoration during the Battle of the Colmar Pocket in World War II, was the No. 1 honor student in advanced officers' class No. 1, which graduated last week.

His competition was tough in the 25-week course. It came from more than 200 officers, ranging in rank from lieutenant to lieutenant colonel. Like Major Murray, the majority of them were veterans of combat in World War II or Korea. Many had seen action in lieutenant commanding Company C, 30th Infantry Regiment, he single-handedly attacked a German force of 200 men. Using rifle grenades and later an automatic rifle, he forced the enemy to withdraw. Although wounded in eight places by an enemy grenade, he then led his men forward in an assault from foxhole to foxhole, personally killing 20 and capturing 11 enemy soldiers.

In addition to the Medal of Honor, Major Murray holds the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart and Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart and a French Croix de Guerre and a Fourragere.

A 1948 graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate course and a 1946 graduate of the airborne course, he is assigned to the Tactical Department.

DISCUSSION LEADERS . . . Above are the 50 graduates of the Army 40-hour Discussion Leaders' Course which was concluded here last Friday. The students successfully completed practical work and instruction which qualifies them to lead the weekly conference in their units. In the class were representatives of all major unit commands at Fort Benning and personnel from Lawson Air Force Base. The course is conducted twice a year by the Information Division of the Troop Information and Education Section, The Infantry Center.

TIE Graduates 50 In Leaders' Class

Fifty graduates of the 40-hour discussion leaders' course at Fort Benning Friday heard Brig. Gen. Newman, in his address, commanding general, explain the need for a good troop information program.

"You will find that there is no major country today without a troop information program."

He spoke of the Japanese program during World War II which was so effective that men were willing to commit suicide for their country. He also discussed troop information programs of other armies today.

Not "Parly Line" Comparing the U.S. program with others, he said: "You are not up there laying down the party line. We don't work that way. We go by the facts."

Gen. Newman, a former director of instruction of the Armed Forces Information School said "we want our young men to understand the world situation that makes it necessary for them to come into the Army."

He was introduced by Lt. Col Charles W. Hall, post troop information and education officer. Can You Save $65,000 in 20 Years?

This article is for those of you who would like to enjoy the benefits of a $65,000 savings account within the next 20 years. Would you like to? If so, just read on and find out how you can do it.

Suppose as a civilian you work at an unusually well-paying job where you are able to put aside an average of over $200 every month. This sum would have to be what you had left over after paying for such essentials as housing, food, clothing, medical expenses, taxes and so forth. At the end of 20 years you would have banked approximately $65,000.

The monthly dividend which you would receive from a savings account of this size—computed at the standard interest rate of two-and-a-half percent per year—would be about $137.

Now let's see what would happen if you had spent these 20 years in Service ending up as an E-7. During this time you wouldn't have to contribute to a pension fund, you would have received added allotments for your wife and children, and you would have had many of your essential expenses covered by Service benefits.

A check of the latest table for retirement pay shows that you would receive a monthly retirement income of $137 a month—or the same amount that you would get from a savings account of $65,000.

Stop and think about this before you get out of Service. You'll go a long way before you will find a deal that will match up to this one. (AFPPS).

April 30 Is Deadline for Some Servicemen

New Plan for Your Dependents Acted Into Law

Insurance Plan Guarantees Life Income for Survivors

Members of the Armed Forces and Reserve units on active duty or in a retired status may now join a service insurance plan that will provide a steady income to their dependents after retirement and death. The plan became effective on November 1, 1953, and should be studied closely at once by all personnel, whether or not they were retired. Many must apply before April 30 to be eligible.

The plan, popularly known as the Servicemen's Annuity Plan, has been adopted by all the Services. It was made possible by Public Law 239, passed by the 83rd Congress and signed by President Eisenhower.

In describing the idea behind the plan, Representative Dewey Short, Chairman of the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee, said, "When a man retires from the uniformed Services today, he draws his retirement pay until he dies, and then it is ended. This legislation makes it possible for all retired personnel to have their choice, or option, of different plans whereby they will draw reduced retirement pay during their lives and then, after death, the widow and children will be left with absolutely nothing."

Options Listed
What Are The Various Arrangements I Can Make Under The Plan?
There are three different arrangements—called "options"—from which you can choose. And there is one additional arrangement—known as Option Four—that you may or may not want to add to any of the first three. You should be careful to study Option Four before turning in your application. It may save you a lot of money.

How Plan Works
Here are some questions and answers on how the plan works:
What Is The Servicemen's Annuity Plan?
It is a plan that allows a member of the uniformed services to give up voluntarily and under certain conditions a part of his monthly retired pay in order to provide a steady income—called an "annuity"—for certain of his dependents after his death. No one has to take part and no one should join without studying the plan carefully to see how he and his family would benefit.

Who May Join The Plan?
The law states that anybody who is now, or expects to be, drawing retired pay from any of the Services—Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard or in their Reserves, the National Guard, the coast and Geodetic Survey and the Public Health Service, is eligible. Members may be men or women and may be of any rank—commissioned officers, warrant officers or enlisted personnel.

Who Will Benefit?
Who Will Benefit If I Join The Plan?
You can arrange for monthly payments in the event of your death after you retire from the service to:

a. Your wife or husband at the time of your retirement, if that person is your lawful widow or widower when you die.

b. Your children (including step-children and adopted children) if they are living, under 18 years old and not married at the time of your retirement. (You can also provide for children over 18 if they cannot support themselves because of some physical or mental defect that they had since before their 18th birthday.)

c. You can arrange for payments to as many persons as you wish but you CANNOT under this plan provide for payments to parents, relatives besides your wife and children, friends or children that are born or that you adopt after retiring. If you have no dependents now, but think you will have when you retire, you can join under a special arrangement.

d. There A Time Limit On My Decision To Join?
Yes. Everyone who wants to join the plan must do so before a certain time. Here are some of the time limits:

a. On Duty Less Than 18 Years—If you are now on active duty—or in a Reserve component—you must apply before the end of your 18th year in the service. (Your time of service is counted the same way for this plan as it is for your service pay.)

b. On Duty More Than 18 Years—If you are now on active duty—or in a Reserve unit—and have already completed your 18th year.

'SARGE' HAS ADVANTAGES... Sergeants of the Infantry School Detachment now have a separate mess hall. The dining area at Consolidated Mess 1, once the officers' mess, now serves a total of 220 first three graders at each meal. Here ready to enjoy their steaming food are, left to right, M-Sgt. Dorsey Tarrant, and Sgts. Howard Holliday, John J. Cowhig Jr., and James E. Jacobs.

to any of the other possible arrangements you will stop paying money to the plan as soon as all the dependents you named become ineligible to receive the monthly benefit. If your wife or husband remarries or dies or if your children become 18 or otherwise ineligible before you die you will then receive your full retired pay each month. But you will have to give up a part of your retired pay each month for the rest of your life if you have chosen only one of the first three options and not Option Four, even if your dependents die, marry or otherwise become ineligible to benefit from the plan.

9 to Give Flash Burn Briefings

Nine Fort Benning officers are at Fort Bragg, N.C., to brief dignitaries during Exercise Flash Burn, scheduled for April and May.

The group is headed by Lt. Col. Oscar E. Davis, assistant director of The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

Others on the briefing team are Lt. Col. Harold R. Kennedy, Majors Franklin T. Garrett, Richard W. Ulrich, Robert P. White, Jr., and Joel B. Wood, and Capt. Shepherd A. Root, Theodore E. Flew 5300 Miles, No Bear to Hunt, Butchered Wolves

OC Gerard M. Girone of 19th Company was a "head hunter" in an Aronaca two-seater plane, they had originally planned to hunt bear. Because of the lack of game, they decided to take advantage of the handsome reward offered for wolf killing $70 a head was the bounty which the Alaska Wildlife Commission had placed on wolves.

Flying low over the packs, Girone and his friend would drive the pack out into the open. Then, from the moving airplane, they would pick them off one by one with a high powered rifle. Landing the plane in the nearest clearing, Girone cut off the heads and turned them in for the cash bounty.

According to Girone, he was "sort of glad that the bear hunt didn't come off as planned."

The extra money from the bounties made it possible for him to extend his stay in Alaska one month.

THIS IS HOW COLORED CONTOURS ARE OBTAINED Inventor Asserts It Is Simplicity Itself

Thinking Sgt. Speeds Up Map Making

The brainchild of a Fort Benning sergeant — a shorter, easier way to color contour maps — will result in faster operations by the Army's combat infantry units.

"But the only thing startling about the method is its utter simplicity," claims M-Sgt. Henry R. Sheridan, chief clerk of the Infantry School's Intelligence Group in the Staff Department.

Purpose of a color contour map is to show variations in terrain by means of a graduated series of color tints. Yellow or green is used for low ground, darker colors for hills and ridges, and blue for rivers and streams. The result is a picture of the terrain.

The problem, however, is to supply a map for each small unit and patrol which needs such a guide without taking the time to prepare separate colored copies.

With the help of a brush, some hectograph ink, colored pencils and duplicator gelatin film, Sgt. Sheridan has overcome that difficulty and devised a way to turn out 25 to 35 colored maps from one master copy.

First step in the process is to color a master map with indelible, transferable material, such as hectograph ink or ditto pencil. He then transfers the impression from the master map to a damp gelatin pad.

By placing ordinary uncolored maps over the gelatin pad and rubbing with a soft cloth at least 25 colored maps can be "dittoed" in a few minutes. If desired, the master pad can be recolored and, if used again, will supply another 10 copies.

In an article in the Infantry School Quarterly, Sgt. Sheridan points out that the materials for his process are both inexpensive and easily obtainable.

British Honor H-19 'Copter

The H-19 helicopter, used at Fort Benning by the 56th Helicopter Company, has been awarded the Boyd Trophy, highest flying honor of the British Navy.

Manufactured by Sikorsky, the helicopter was cited for service in Malaya in 1953.

The 56th has 14 of the Sikorskys, for use in training pilots.

The trophy is presented annually by the British Fleet Air Arm for the most outstanding feat of aviation in the Royal Navy. It is represented by a small silver model of a Swordfish aircraft.

TALENTED J.A.G. STUDENT . . . First Lt. Lawrence Pusateri entered the J.A.G. class at Fort Benning with a wealth of legal background. Before entering the Army last year he graduated first in his class at DePaul U., where he edited the college law review and won the first scholarship presented by the Justinian Society of Lawyers. He also was a member of the Chicago and Illinois Bar Association.

Former Page Thrilled: By Intricate Workings Of U. S. Government

"It was a wonderful opportunity to see how a huge representative government works," says OC Leo Duval, former page boy from Ohio in the House of Representatives.

"It was more work than you'd think. We performed all sorts of minor administrative functions for the Congress and had to be on hand any time a floor meeting was in progress. It got pretty rough during filibusters, when sessions would run as long as 20 hours."

The OC got his start as a page while in school in Cleveland. He wrote to his congressmen and received an appointment for the 80th Congress in 1947 and 1948.

Senate Approves Air Academy Bill

WASHINGTON (APPS) —The Senate has approved a bill similar to one already passed by the House authorizing construction of an Air Force academy.

The Senate bill earmarked $125 million for construction of the academy and an additional $1 million to be spent on temporary site until the permanent location is decided and ready for operation. The House bill does not stipulate any total amount for the academy.

Differences between the two measures are expected to be ironed out by a Senate-House conference committee without further legislative action.

Every 20 Seconds Patients Receive Blood Transfusion

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special)—Every 20 seconds last year some hospital patient received a transfusion of blood supplied by his fellow Americans through the Red Cross. E. Roland Harriman, ARC chairman, reported here today.

"And if the country's ill and injured are to continue to be provided with the blood they will require this year," he said, "one of every 20 persons between the ages of 18 and 80 will need to make at least one blood donation in 1954."

During 1953, Harriman reported, Red Cross collected blood for civilian use at the rate of 145,000 pints a month. The organization also provided blood for defense purposes at the rate of 167,000 pints a month, including approximately 30,000 pints collected monthly by community blood banks, which cooperated through August 31 in the defense collection program. Red Cross blood is made available without charge.

In addition, the Red Cross provided the Office of Defense Mobilization with more than 9,000,000 cc's of gamma globulin during 1953 to be used in the treatment of measles and infectious jaundice and as a weapon against polio.

The entire Red Cross Blood Program is costing $11,071,800 in the current fiscal year, Harriman said. For the 1954-55 fiscal year—for which funds are now being collected—$14,007,600 is budgeted.

Every minute around the clock 30 patients check into the nation's hospitals. One in five needs a pint of blood. Of an estimated 4,000,000 pints used for this purpose, the Red Cross last year supplied about 40 percent. The remainder was provided by individual hospital and other blood banks.

In emphasizing urgent need for blood, it was pointed out that last year ninety times as many Americans suffered from blood injuries as were wounded in three years of the Korean war. Wounded in Korea—103,492; injured in accidents—2,950,000.

Vehicle Accidents
One person was injured in a motor vehicle accident every 23 seconds; one suffered occupational injury every 16 seconds, and one was injured in a home accident every 7 seconds.

"As the nation's largest blood-collecting agency," Harriman stated, "the Red Cross has major responsibility for meeting the blood need resulting from this accident toll, and from the wide use of whole blood in general medical and surgical practice."

Red Cross Aids Tornado Victims

Ten Fort Benning families, victims of the March 13 tornado, were given emergency aid by the post Red Cross Office, Field Director John A. Cramer has reported.

Financial help was given to one family for burial of a storm fatality, to six others to replenish destroyed food supplies, and to another for laundering bedding and clothing.

Thirty bed sheets were purchased and given to five families, and another family will be provided with requested children's clothing.

In addition to the $250 already spent, Cramer said his office has requested permission from Red Cross Area Headquarters to spend another $300 for bedroom furniture and bedding. Cramer added that he expected this request to be approved shortly.

The survey of 17 post families affected by the storm and the necessary paper work was jointly shared by the Fort Benning office and the Muscogee County Chapter of the Red Cross. Financial relief expenses will be met by Red Cross National Headquarters, Cramer said.

Capt. Ian Walter of Perry, Okla., and Capt. Louise E. Abele of Adamsville, Ohio, have been assigned to the School Brigade.

Benning to Support Freedom Crusade

The annual Crusade for Freedom will be conducted at Fort Benning April 5-17, Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, has announced.

All personnel will be given an opportunity to sign Freedom Scrolls and make voluntary monetary contributions to the crusade, Gen. Meloy said.

The Crusade for Freedom, endorsed by President Eisenhower, the Secretary of Defense, and Secretary of the Army, is a campaign conducted by the American Heritage Foundation to obtain support and financial assistance for Radio Free Europe.

Objectives of Radio Free Europe as an American radio enterprise supported by private citizens is to help the cause of peace by encouraging peoples in subjugated areas to maintain their belief in freedom. Radio Free Europe will be the subject of a portion of the regular troop information conference during the week beginning April 5.

The 1954 crusade will have two goals, Gen. Meloy said. Primary goal is to attain Freedom Scroll signatures of individuals who desire to express their belief in the program, and every individual may sign, regardless of whether he makes a monetary contribution.

The second goal is to offer post military and civilian personnel an opportunity to make contributions to the "Truth Dollar" phase of the campaign.

New Mess Opens Next to BOO

A new Branch Officers' Mess has opened at Fort Benning. Lt. Col. Harold H. Smith, secretary of the Main Officers' Mess, recently conducted visitors through the building and outlined the facilities which will be available.

The branch is adjacent to the new Bachelor Officers' Quarters which house approximately 1,000 officers. It will chiefly serve these student-officers, Col. Smith said.

The new mess is in Building 2520, formerly a double mess hall. The building already includes a barber shop and kitchen, but Col. Smith explained plans for remodeling it to include a floor for dancing, a recreation room, and other facilities.

Doughboys Fifth In 3A Meet

The Fort Benning Doughboys, fatally handicapped by lack of height, had to settle for a fifth-place tie in the Third Army basketball tournament last week as the approached previously undreamed host team, Camp Gordon, Ga., won of heights, the Doughboys were BASKET BY BRYCE . . . Fort Benning's Bryce Holt (12) loops in two points for the Doughboys in the first period of the Benning-Gordon quarterfinals tilt which the post quintet lost by a narrow, seven-point margin to the eventual champions.

REBOUND . . . Frank Glenn, (9) Fort Benning's All-Third Army center, prepares to jump for rebound on Jim O'Brien's (9) layup. Bob Smith (17) of Camp Gordon throws a jostling shoulder into Glenn from the rear in a bit of extra-curricular work that went unnoticed.

center who performed magnificently during the meet in spite of a painful floor burn which hobbled his movements, was rewarded by being named to the All-Third Army tournament team. Glenn scored 82 points in his three games to lead the Doughboy offense and in addition did yeoman work on the backboards, in spite of having to spot height to taller opponents.

The entire Benning team won the favor of tournament fans and opposition alike with their spirited play, hustle, and sportsmanship and had fortune smile occasionally in critical moments, the Doughboys could easily have finished a couple of notches higher.

The post cagers played probably their best game of the season in turning back a favored Fort McClellan fivesome, 90-75, in their first tournament start. Everything the Doughboys touched turned into points. Passing was fast, accurate and deceptive. Shooting was deadly from near and far. The teamwork was at its highest pitch as Benning grabbed the lead and held it through the entire game.

Glenn Leads Attack
Pacing the Doughboy's offensive surge was Frank Glenn, who blazed 22 points through the rims and operated the post position with flawless skill. Set shot artists Jock Sutherland and Jack Blaski had 21 and 15 points apiece from their long, two-handed floaters, and Sutherland turned in sparkling defensive work by holding high-scoring Dick Wright to five points for the game.

The Benning quintet continued their smooth pattern of play the next day against the Camp Gordon Ramblers. With chief scoring threats Glenn and Sutherland hampered by an amazingly rapid accumulation of fouls, Jack McMahan and Jack Blaski took over the point-producers' roles and contributed timely buckets to keep the Doughboys' offense moving.

The Ramblers managed a field goal in the final five seconds of the first half, which enabled them to leave the court for intermission with a 39-37 edge. The Doughboys started the last half slowly, and Gordon built up the bulge to nine points late in the third frame. However, the hustling little McMahan dropped in two jump shots to pace a Benning surge which outdistanced margin to three points in the fourth stanza. The absence of Glenn, Charlie Smith and Sutherland, all of whom were whittled out by referee for five personal fouls, was too much to overcome, though, and last minute scores by Gordon built the margin to seven points, 65-78.

FRANK GLENN . . . All-Third Army

Home Cooking?
Statistics showed Benning with 32 field goals against 25 by the Ramblers, but a ridiculous plurality of 21 charity tosses granted triumph to Gordon. The Doughboys were charged with 35 personal fouls as a team, while the Ramblers accumulated only 14.

Once again Benning's scoring leader was center Glenn, who tallied 22 even though he fouled out. McMahan had 18 for the Doughboys, but Gordon's Jim O'Brien, astoundingly accurate with a one-hand jump shot, led all scorers with 25.

Understandably "down" after their all-out effort against the Ramblers, Benning fell prey to a rebounding Fort Bragg quintet who overcame an early Doughboy lead to eliminate the post entry, 65-78. Gordon reached the final game undefeated by winning from Fort Jackson, 82-77, a larged edge than the Ramblers could muster over Fort Benning. Jackson, also low after the loss, was beaten by Camp Rucker to put the Vikings in the championship game.

Ramblers Take Crown
Bill Reigel, ace Rucker forward formerly of Duke University, hit for 49 points in the final game, but Gordon nipped the tired Vikings after an overtime period, 96-97. Actually the winning points were scored after the game was over. Reigel had cashed in a pair of free throws to give the Vikings too much to overcome, though.

Wacs Cop 3A Title

Climaxing a highly successful season, Fort Benning's high-scoring Wac Black Cats swept unbeaten through the Third Army basketball tournament at Camp Gordon last week to win the women's championship going away.

En route to the title, the Wacs walloped Camp Gordon once and Fort Jackson twice under the double elimination setup. Fort Jackson took second place, with Fort Bragg finishing third.

For the Benning lasser, deadeye Donna Rogers wrote her name indelibly in the tournament records by chucking in 34 points in the opening tilt which saw the Black Cats run rampant over an outclassed Camp Gordon entry, 67-14. Donna's 34 counters marked an individual high for the tourney.

Scoring practically at will, Benning built a whopping 34-6 lead at halftime with the Black Cat defensive minions throwing up a well-nigh impenetrable barrier against the Gordon attack. While Marilyn O'Leary and Eva Johnson were teaming up to monopolize the defensive backboards, forwards Rogers, Marguerite Grassie and Emma Gori were bombing the offensive bucket with an unceasing flow of points. Gori had 12 points and Grassie 18 to go with Rogers' 24. Iris Wilson's seven points led the way for Gordon.

With Fort Jackson's traditional rivals supplying the opposition the next night, Benning pulled away in the last half to take a 57-47 victory and enter the final game unbeaten.

Marguerite Grassie took over the leading scorer's role against the Jackson Arrowettes, who had the flashiest uniforms in the tourney but lacked the point producers. Grassie dropped in 24 points while Rogers and Gori had 22 and 11. Blonde Charlotte Davis paced the Arrowettes' offense with 21 markers.

Grassie and Rogers combined to consistently outjump the taller Arrowette forwards, and frequently stole the ball or tucked in erring Jackson passes to set up Benning scores. O'Leary and little Lucretia Brown anchored a tough Black Cat defense.

Grassie and Jackson then met in (Please See WACS, Page 22)

About the only definite thing proved by the recent Third Army championship basketball tournament was the truth of the old saying that you can't whip a bear in his own cage. The tourney was won by the host team, Camp Gordon, whose playing personnel rated no better than third or fourth best of those present.

Players and coaches, exclusive of the home-standing Ramblers, were unanimous in agreeing that easily the best team in the tournament was Fort Jackson. The tall Vikings of Camp Rucker were accorded the second best honors, not very far behind the Arrows. The experts were fairly evenly split between Fort Benning and Gordon as to which was the better team, but most agreed that the Doughboys whipped the Ramblers, no matter what the scoreboard said.

How, then, did Gordon happen to win the championship? Well, you would have had to see it to believe it. We want to go on record right now as stating that we definitely do not question any of the proceedings that took place. However, we will set forth some of the facts, along with a few opinions more learned than our own by far, and readers can make up their own minds.

Begin with the quarterfinal clash of Benning and Gordon, both of whom were undefeated at the time. Battling against a much taller quintet, the Doughboys outscored the Ramblers from the field by seven baskets or 14 points. This deficit was nullified by the fact that the officials called 34 fouls against Benning as compared with 15 on the home team! The free throw totals were the same as the fouls, 34-15 in favor of the Ramblers, accounting for the final seven-point margin.

With the Doughboys safely out of the way, Gordon face the well-heeled Jackson five, led by Zippy Morocco, former Georgia U. star who held the Southeastern Conference individual scoring record until this year, and Nield Gordon, 6-6 pivot man who formerly shared pointmaking chores with Frank Selvy at Furman.

Against the host Ramblers, wheelhorses Morocco and Gordon were quickly forced from the game for excessive fouls, neither logging as much as 20 minutes' playing time. With their season-long leaders compelled to sit out more than half the contest, the Arrow's attack faltered and Gordon pulled away for the victory. The Jackson team, fighting mad, literally mobbed the whistle-tooters after the game, and little Morocco, veteran of countless big-time cage tilts, had to be forcibly dragged from the person of one official. (Ed. note: In a game

LL Tryouts Still Open

Undaunted by rain and a contrary Georgia spring, tryouts for the post Little League baseball teams are continuing full force at French Polo Field. Sessions are slated for Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. and will conclude Saturday, March 10, with a drill set for 2 p.m.

Registration for the program is still open at French Field. Boys desiring to play for one of the teams are urged to come to a try-out, bringing a birth certificate for registration purposes.

Player auctions will be held April 12 and the season itself will begin May 1.

Under the 1954 program four teams will form the Little League with eight "farm teams" also operating. Four of the farm teams will be from Custer Terrace and four from the Main Post.

Regular League games will be played on the Little League diamond located on the old polo field. The League diamond has been recently modernized, with the addition of running water and dugouts for the players.

Games of the farm teams will take place on a diamond which is now under construction in Custer Terrace.

SISTER ACT . . . By Donna Rogers, 12, Fort Benning's scoring ace, and Marguerite Grassie who steals the ball from Fort Jackson's Jerri Barnes during the first meeting of the two teams. The Benning Wacs won this one 57-47, repeated the victory two days later for the Third Army.

World's Tiniest 'Copter Army Ready To Field Test Baby 'Copter

WASHINGTON (APPS)—While the Air Force and the Marine Corps are displaying the world's largest helicopter, the Army is about ready to field test the world's smallest helicopter, the YH-32.

The YH-32, commercially referred to as the "Hiller Hornet," is the Army's first operational ramjet helicopter. It accepted the YH-32's mission could include training, command liaison, wire laying, reconnaissance and aerial photography.

The two power plants of the helicopter have no moving parts. No tool other than a screwdriver is needed to change engines in a matter of minutes. Four years in the making, the YH-32 is the culmination of several models, including the Army's experimental XH-26, a one-place ramjet 'copter which is being used exclusively as a test-stand.

The Hiller Hornet also is being considered by the Navy and Marines but neither has scheduled any tests until the results of the Army test are tabulated.

2 Generals Visiting From Fort Monroe

They are Major Gen. George W. Read, Jr., chief of staff, and Major Gen. James M. Lentz, chief of the Combat Arms Advisory Group. Gen. Read arrived yesterday and Gen. Lentz today.

School Split
This was the signal for expansion. The school grew so large that it had to be split into three sections, one at Fort Sill, another at Camp Perry, Ohio, and the third at Camp Hancock, near Augusta, Ga.

This was a cumbersome operation, and American combat experience in France convinced the Army of the need for centralized adequate facilities for training Infantrymen. After much deliberation and several false starts, the three sections of the school were combined and shifted to a location three miles east of Columbus.

A few months later, the need for additional range areas forced another shift to the old Bussey Plantation, nine miles south of Columbus and the present location of the Infantry School.

Here the flag was raised on Camp Benning, a tiny military installation which was to develop into the world's most complete Army post. And here the Infantry School was to grow into an unequalled center of military education.

During World War II, the Infantry School graduated 70,000 of our candidates as second lieutenants, and thousands of other officers and enlisted men took its many specialists' courses.

The success of the school is the Infantry School's teaching methods was found on battlefields all over the world. The final victory over Germany and Japan was a tribute to the school's leaders who had the foresight to plan for the crisis and the ability to meet it when it came.

The many courses offered today are a far cry from the early days when The Infantry School consisted of a Department of Military Administration, a Department of Department of General Subjects, and Department of Experiment.

Its academic departments include Airborne, Automotive, Communications, Weapons, Staff, Tactical, Ranger and Non-Resident Instruction.

Its faculty reinforced by Korean combat veterans, the school continues to supply battle-tested knowledge and technical information to Infantry officers and non-coms.

They were Brig. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges (1940-1941), Brig. Gen. Omar N. Bradley (1941-1942), Major Gen. Leven C. Allen (1942-1943) and Major Gen. C. H. Bonesteel (1943-1944).

Since Major Gen. Fred L. Walker assumed command in July, 1944, the Infantry School has been headed by a series of battle-hardened general officers who used their wartime experience, administrative leadership, and technical ability to train the U. S. Infantryman.

Gen. Walker was succeeded by Major Gen. John W. (Iron Mike) O'Daniel (1945-1948), Major Gen. Withers A. Burrell (1948-1951), Major Gen. John H. Church, (1951-1952), Major Gen. Robert N. Young (1952-1953), and Gen. Meloy.

118 Win Badges In Airborne Class

Seventeen officers and 101 enlisted men graduated Friday from The Infantry School's basic airborne course.

Col. James D. Brockenkage of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C., was the highest ranking graduate, and M-Sgt. Ralph L. Rivet of Colorado Springs, Colo., was enlisted honor graduate.

Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was principal speaker.

The most recent addition to the Sgt. Basham has been in the form of a WAC Company here is M-Sgt. V. E. Basham. Sgt. Basham or Cherrie, as her friends know her, has been assigned to the Transportation Section.

GOLD LEAF... G. B. Henry, S-4 of 78th Engineer Battalion, has his newly-won major's leaf pinned on by Lt. Col. Charles L. Badger, 78th commanding officer, in a brief ceremony recently. Maj. Henry served in the Pacific during World War II and later in Germany.

Army Chucks WO Unit. Admin. Jobs

By CPL. RICHARD E. SNOW, USA (APPS Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Under a new Army realignment program, the warrant officer specialty Unit Administrator (MOS 2122) will be eliminated. The move is part of the Army's drive to restore more prestige and responsibility to the NCO.

Warrant officers have been given the administrative function with infantry companies since 1948. However, the Army has never been able to fill its WO openings in this field.

Over 6,000 vacancies were open in fiscal year '53 but because of budgetary and space limitations and the unavailability of qualified personnel, there were never more than 200 spots filled. In view of the shortage, it was decided to eliminate the MOS.

Warrant officers affected by this change will have three choices open to them: first, they will be urged to enter certain MOS fields in which critical shortages exist; second, they may choose a school to prepare for another field; or third, they may resign.

The conversion of the WOs will be gradual. They will be permitted a liberal period of time for conversion and transfer to other fields of interest for which they are qualified. Those on shipping orders for overseas administrative openings will be shipped to those posts. Where necessary, WO instructor positions will be filled by a long-range study of the entire

Commentation Given To M-Sgt. B. D. Ham For Aggressor Duty

M-Sgt. Brealon D. Ham, 550th Tank Company, Combat Training Command, received a letter of commendation from Lt. Col. J. O. Woods, battalion commanding officer, for highly superior work as commander of an "aggressor" tank unit on an Infantry School problem.

Col. Woods said, "Although the command of this unit is normally handled by a commissioned officer, your leadership was demonstrated by the superior rating the unit received."

CONGRATS TO TANKS Company A, 773d Tank Battalion, was rated best company in a recent Combat Training Command inspection and named color company at a recent parade.

He was commissioned an officer in 1951 when he organized and took command of the Fifth Division Band at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa.

1st OC Regt. Celebrates 2d Birthday as Outfit

The First Officer Candidate Regiment celebrates its second birthday today. Although officer candidate training began again at Fort Benning in February, 1951, it was more than a year later before the program was accelerated enough to warrant a full regiment. Before that, there was only a battalion of officer candidates, part of the Second Student Regiment. The regiment, commanded by Col. Harry M. Grizzard of Naples, Texas, was composed of 29 companies of officer candidates at its peak. Since reactivation of the officer candidate course after a four-year lull during which the Army conducted such training on a limited scale at Fort Riley, Kans., Fort Benning has turned out about 7,000 second lieutenants. Today The Infantry School commissions officers in all branches except artillery and engineers. The 22-week officer candidate course gives the student a maximum amount of experience in leading men under conditions approximating combat. While a member of the regiment, the candidate receives instruction and practical work in a variety of subjects. Principles of leadership are stressed and rigid discipline is enforced. In all, about 75,000 candidates have been commissioned at Fort Benning since officer candidate training was introduced here during World War II.

Good - Soldier Patrol Taps 2 ISD Soldiers

The Good-Soldier Patrol topped two Infantry School Detachment men last week for possessing outstanding military qualities. They are Pvt. William Chavis of Raleigh, N. C., assigned to Company A, and Pvt. Harold D. Peterson of Grand Rapids, Minn., assigned to Company F.

Candidate Found Life as MP Busy With Babies, Prisoners

Gilbert and Sullivan once wrote lyrics to the tune of "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One." MPs may disagree, but Officer Candidate Peter Peterson, a former MP now training with 13th OC Company, will tell you a cop's lot can be busy enough. "Take the morning of July 31, 1953, for instance. At 3:45 a.m., he was on a routine patrol when a call was received to escort an expectant mother to the hospital. On the way Peterson's patrol car stalled. Nothing stalled the arrival of a bouncing baby boy, though. Peterson, who assisted in the delivery, calls it, "All in a day's work." Continuing on the patrol, he was called to establish a road block near Fort Bragg to apprehend an escaped prisoner. All passing vehicles were inspected and notified of the escape. One of the occupants of a car reported a man fitting the prisoner's description running down the road. Peterson gave pursuit and captured him. The OC, now a senior candidate, expects to be commissioned in the "Oral Diagnosis and Patient Evaluation."

Dental Surgeon Plans Columbus Talk Tonight

Lt. Col. Herman H. Kothe, Fort Benning dental surgeon, will speak to members of the Western District Dental Society at 7 p.m. tonight at the Columbus Country Club. Col. Kothe's topic will be "Oral Diagnosis and Patient Evaluation."

OC B. T. COOPER
... Eagle Rating

13th OC Candidate Attained Highest Scout Standing

Officer Candidate Benjamin T. Cooper, recipient of the highest standing attainable in the Scouting world, is training with 13th OC Company. Cooper is an Explorer Ranger and Eagle Scout. The award was presented to him by Admiral Byrd in 1950 at the annual Scoutorama in Madison Square Garden, New York, N.Y. The OC began as a "tenderfoot" at the age of 12. He joined to get away from the monotony of city life. "The background and practical experience of Scouting have helped me at OCS," he says.

Lowly Private Takes Charge Of Post's Troop Movements

An Army private first class is the man behind troop movements in and out of Fort Benning. Pfc. Thomas J. Clancy of Redwood City, Calif., as acting non-commissioned officer in charge of troop movements, arranges transportation, food, and housing for an average of 1,500 troops arriving or departing each month. "Filling a job normally held by a sergeant first class, Clancy operates under the direction of Capt. Kenneth C. Fahner, officer in charge of troop movements in the post Transportation Section. "We usually know when a troop shipment is due to arrive or depart," Clancy says, "but many of these movements begin and end in the middle of the night." All of which means that the young soldier is working when most others are off-duty.

SFC NELSON RETURNS
Sfc. Cagor Nelson has returned to Fort Benning and has been assigned to S-4 of the 112th Bn. Sergeant Nelson was stationed at Benning from 1940 to 1943 and in 1947 and 1948. He recently finished a tour of duty in Germany.

A-Battalion Will Bolster Europe Forces

WASHINGTON (A.F.P.S.)—Six more atomic cannons (one battalion) will be on their way to Western Europe in about three months. The Army has confirmed reports that the 264th FA Bn., now stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla., has been alerted for overseas shipment to Europe "sometime within the next three months." The battalion is equipped with 200mm cannons capable of firing atomic shells.

Upon arrival in Europe the 264th will officially be the second such unit added to U. S. ground forces there. The 88th FA Bn. arrived in Europe some months ago.

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens announced the shipment of the first 200mm battalion last Sept. 15 and said at that time "no single weapon will solve the military problems of Western Europe or deter aggression." He added that although the gun strengthens the defense shield of NATO, it cannot be regarded as a substitute for other weapons or forces required for the defense of Western Europe.

Sojourners Give Flag to School

The Fort Benning chapter of the National Sojourners has presented Faith School an American Flag and flag pole.

Col. Frazer W. Rodman, representing The Infantry Center commander, thanked the Sojourners at dedication ceremonies for their gift and reminded the assembled student body of the importance of Americanism and patriotism.

The speaker was introduced by retired Army Brig. Gen. Marcus H. Bell of Columbus, president of the local chapter of Sojourners, a national Masonic body composed of Army officers. Six Boy Scouts from the Fort Benning-troop raised the flag and the 122nd Army Band provided music.

Arrangements for the flag and the 31-foot pole were made by the American Committee of the Sojourners under Capt. John C. Hughes, chairman. Otto Wolf, post ordnance superintendent, aided in the installation of the flag pole.

GRAVE REMINDER... This well-kept little grave with marker stands in front of the orderly room of Battery A, 180th Field Artillery Battalion, as a reminder of the penalties of waste. The marker is the idea of the company commander, Capt. Charles T. Cox.

3 Grads Receive School Posts

Three officers, recent graduates of The Infantry School's advanced class, have received assignments in the Staff and Tactical Departments.

They are Lt. Col. George S. Blanchard Jr., of Arlington, Va., and Major Charles P. Murray Jr., of Wilmington, N. C., Tactical Department, and Major John W. Patrick of Detroit, Mich., Staff Department.

They were among the more than 200 students who graduated last week following 25 weeks of instruction.

Major Murray, holder of the Medal of Honor, received top academic honors in his class.

Fewer Complaints Heard By Columbus Merchants

Cecil H. Garrett and Harold E. Maroney of the Columbus Merchants' Association reported on the activities of the Better Business Division during the first quarter of 1954 at the Spring meeting Friday of Fort Benning's NCO Character Guidance Council.

Admitting that there are some unethical merchants in Columbus, both asserted nevertheless that business generally is on a high level. As evidence they pointed out that the Better Business Division has received few complaints in proportion to the amount of business transacted in the community and emphasized that Columbus businessmen in general are anxious to "keep the unethical tradesman in line."

Garrett, executive secretary of the Merchants' Association, outlined the steps necessary in making a complaint to the division and said that in almost all cases equitable agreements are reached with little difficulty.

The Better Business Division works closely with personnel officials at Fort Benning to settle grievances, Garrett declared.

Maroney, chairman of the division, emphasized that his group has no enforcement power but relies chiefly on persuasion to eliminate unfair practices.

Members of the NCO Council suggested that members of the Merchants' Association make an effort to display membership certificates in their establishments so that military personnel could use this evidence as a guide in distributing their patronage.

7000 Vikings To Be Here By April 17

Within ten days over half of the 47th Division will be stationed in new quarters at Sand Hill, the Viking Division PIO has announced.

This week the division's artillery units arrived and set up shop. Next week the 164th Regt. is scheduled to arrive, bringing the 47th strength at Fort Benning to some 7,000 men.

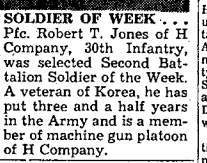

According to the schedule, after April 17th there will be no more troop convoys until the middle of May. From then until the end of May the rest of the division will move, leaving Camp Rucker to Army engineers to close and maintain.

Duties Keep Cpl. Busy During Demonstrations

It's the job of a 20-year-old corporal to make sure that nothing goes wrong when the Infantry School's Tactical Department stages a problem or demonstration.

Cpl. Richard Bowen of Salt Lake City, Utah, has been setting up problems since January. The skill he employs in accomplishing his task is his lone assurance that nothing will backfire when the officer in charge gives the signal for the demonstration to begin. Except for a "radio that went bad once" Bowen has yet to report any crisis in the problem area.

As an assistant in the Tactical Department's individual day and night training unit, he performs most of his duties after sundown. He is assigned to the night patrol problem which runs once a week. Setting up an effective problem area for a patrol means getting to the area several hours before the start of the exercise. Bowen is never empty-handed. He and a handful of other Infantrymen who help him come armed with weapons, maps, radios, telephones, and other equipment necessary to stage the problem.

Once the problem begins, Bowen must keep on his toes constantly. If communications fail, he helps with repairs. If demolitions do not explode, he checks the battery and wires which control the charge. Occasionally he fights fires caused by flares.

He also sets up problem areas for ROTC student who come to Fort Benning for summer training. Bowen says he has benefited by his experience and has acquired a "greater and more practical knowledge of techniques" used to train the world's finest Infantrymen.

Maj. McKenzie is a veteran of 14 years. He served with 24th Infantry Division in Korea and Japan from December 1951 to August 1953 and holds the Commendation Ribbon with metal pendant.

Skin Diving, Fishing Fascinated Candidate From California Coast
When 13th Company Officer Candidate Gary Bingham isn't busy soldering, he spends his time skin diving and fishing under water. Bingham's interest in marine life, his ability to hold his breath under water for long periods, and his nearness to the California coast while a civilian made him a natural underwater playboy.

"All the equipment you need," he says, "is goggles, swim fins, and a spear. Get a few friends and you've got the start of a diving club."
Last year while on a weekend pass from Fort Ord, the OC caught an abalone, a species of snail, that won a prize in the California Mid-Winter Diving Contest.

Fort Bliss Services Planned by Chaplain
Lt. Col. Henry J. Richter of Sheboygan, Wis., left Fort Benning Saturday to attend a special weapons course at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Col. Richter, who is executive officer of the Tactical Department's Regimental Committee at The Infantry School, is scheduled to return April 15.

Materialism - The Sin of Judas

He Wanted Jesus to Set Up Worldly Kingdom
By CHAPLAIN CLARENCE M. WALTON
With the approach of Holy Week our thoughts turn more pointedly to the events leading up to the crucifixion of Jesus. One of the central figures in that drama was Judas, who is remembered chiefly as the disciple who betrayed his Master.

But without any attempt to minimize the guilt of Judas, it must be said that we do him an injustice if we simply condemn him as a traitor and a criminal without any attempt to understand him. It is believed that Judas was a member of the group known as the Zealots, which was a loosely organized revolutionary political group. It was the aim of the Zealots to overthrow the Roman occupation of Palestine and to restore the Kingdom of Israel to the place of power and glory that it had enjoyed at the height of its success under King David. Indeed, this was the hope and dream of almost every Jew in that day. But the Zealots wanted to bring it about immediately and by force.

We can think of Judas as the passionate young nationalist of the little band of Jesus' disciples. He believed Jesus to be the Messiah, and he had been looking for a sign that Jesus was trying to set up his Kingdom and drive the hated Romans into the sea. Jesus himself set a pattern, too. But Jesus had seen a far greater vision than Judas saw. Jesus in his vision did not see a Rome banished and driven into the sea and a worldly kingdom set up for the Jews. Instead, he saw all the kingdoms of this world as his Father's kingdom. He saw a kingdom in which Jews and Gentiles, and Romans and others could live together in love and peace and mutual helpfulness.

Field Religious Services Set for Flash Burn Soldiers

EXERCISE FLASH BURN, Fort Bragg, N. C.—Wherever they will be during Exercise Flash Burn—in isolated fields or remote forests—the troops can be assured that chaplains will be there to minister their religious needs.

Over 60,000 men will participate in the giant atomic defense maneuver being held in the Fort Bragg-Camp Mackall area of North Carolina in April and May.
Many of them will not have the opportunity to attend religious services in the post or in the city. However, a group of chaplains will be in the field, performing their duties.

3 Activities Coordinated

Lt. Col. O. H. Tietjen, who is organizing and coordinating religious activities for Flash Burn, estimates there will be 44 chaplains active in the maneuver. These men will live in the field, jump with the paratroopers, move up with the infantry.

Services will be conducted throughout the sprawling maneuver area so that every soldier will have the opportunity to attend them.

Chaplains have been issued "Field Altar Kits" to enable them to create the atmosphere of worship against their background of trees and sky, and foxholes.
Besides conducting services, the chaplains will be available to counsel men in their personal problems.

Two Holidays

Two holidays—the Jewish Passover and Easter—will fall during the maneuver.

Officer Pens Article Telling How U.S. Licked Brainwashing

Capt. Ross A. Sheldon, company commander of G Company, 18D, tells "How U. S. Salesmanship Licked Red Brainwashing" in the May issue of Pageant magazine. The article is a first-hand account of why 22,000 North Korean and Chinese prisoners of war chose freedom and democracy instead of returning to their homes and families behind the Iron Curtain.

Capt. Sheldon, civil information-education officer for four prisoners of war compounds on Koko Island from July, 1951, to October, 1952, unfolds the story of captured Communist soldiers changing their political views after hearing lectures by U.N. personnel on the history of democracy.

Capt. Sheldon shows in his article that truth is the best persuader and he emphasizes that no coercion was exercised.

A veteran of 14 years of service, Capt. Sheldon was an enlisted radio operator in the Army Air Force in World War II and graduated in 1945 from the Infantry officer candidate school in Fontainebleau, France.

Capt. Sheldon, who has spent much of his time in public information work, was a teacher in 1940 at Ruhl-Hartman High School in Kansas City, Mo. He is a graduate of the Kansas City University.

Three officers in the First Student Regiment have been promoted to First Lieutenant. They are John A. Reed, Harold B. Littlejohn, and Alfred W. Hardy, Jr.

Lt. Reed came to Fort Benning in August 1952, attended the ACOG, and was assigned as assistant legal officer of the First Student Regiment.

Lt. Littlejohn came to Fort Benning from Camp Brocknedge and assumed command of 17th Co., First Student Regiment.

Three elderly sisters, famous for their charities, were left $300 by a local citizen who passed away. One immediately sent her $100 to the Red Cross. The second sister sent $50 to the March of Dimes and $50 to the Cancer Fund. The third sister, however, met a shabbily dressed man on the street. Impulsively she pressed the $100 into his thin, trembling hand, smiled warmly and whispered: "Godspeed."

The next day the shabbily dressed man knocked at the door of the sisters' house. "Do you want to see me?" asked the third sister. "Yeah, lady," said the man. "Here's your $300. Godspeed came in first and paid seven to one."

Sgt. Jones was cited for performance of his duties as a member of the division's dental section and a unit first sergeant from Oct. 20, 1952, to Nov. 6, 1953.

His ability to anticipate and meet administrative problems contributed greatly to the smooth operation of his company despite weather and errand conditions, according to the citation.

Deans Bequeath Eyes to Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Knowing too well the meaning of suffering, Maj. Gen. William Dean, highest ranking American officer captured by the Reds, has willed his eyes to Walter Reed Army Medical Center here so some blind person can see again.

The general was being treated at the hospital for an eye ailment he contracted during his captivity in Korea when he became imprisoned with the work done in restoring sight by transplanting corneas. He immediately decided to will his eyes to the hospital's eye bank.

Mrs. Dean, who lost one eye in an accident, also has arranged for her remaining eye to go to the bank on her death.

Gen. Dean, who was awarded the Medal of Honor, captured during the 24th Div. in Korea before he was captured in the summer of 1950. He was repatriated in September 1953.

PFC. MACHULEC
... Cloak And Dagger

Pole Serving In Ranks Of His 3d Army

Pfc. Jozef Machulec of Headquarters Battery, 168th Field Artillery Battalion, is now serving in his third Army. He was in the Polish Army before his country was overrun by Hitler, served in the Polish Free Army and British Commandos during World War II, and is now a field wireman in the Combat Training Command.

After attending military school for a year he went to England, where he enlisted in the Polish Free Army. He took nine months training with the British Army in the Airborne and Commandos and had a part in the invasion of Holland.

Later he was sent on a cloak-and-dagger mission into Germany. Pfc. Machulec and two other soldiers were deposited on the German coast by a submarine. They went ashore and skillfully performed their mission of returning with a prisoner. For this he received the English War Medal and the Polish Cross.

OC WILLIAM HARRIS
... Toured Europe

Singing Career Led Group Leader To Candidate Class

The singing side of William Harris' Army career has been sidelined, for the time being, for OCS, but the strong-voiced singer vows he'll be back using his vocal chords as soon as possible.

Singing led Harris to OCS and he hopes it will continue to help him.

When he entered the Army, he organized a quartet known as the Harmonizers. The group started off in the states then moved, intact as a unit, to Europe. There, known as the Eucom Harmonizers they won in a Europe-wide talent contest sponsored by Special Services. Further combining his two careers, Harris toured Germany with the Soldiers' Chorus. While on tour he met John J. McRoy, then U. S. High Commissioner of Germany. OCS was highly recommended by McRoy and Harris left the chorus for the musical cadence of OCS.

Moonlight, Trainfire, Hi-Lo Are Under Way

3 Major Researches Seeking Reactions

Three major research projects are under way at Fort Benning to test the reaction of soldiers in combat training.

Dr. Frances E. Jones, acting director of Human Research Unit No. 2, identified the three projects as "Moonlight," "Trainfire" and "Hi-Lo."

"Moonlight" is a survey of squad reaction to night fighting during which the researchers will study defensive and assault fighting and attacks-on-strong-points tactics. A special firing range is being constructed in connection with "Moonlight." It will employ the latest devices for realistic enemy attacks, including TNT for artillery bursts and moving and pop-up type targets to simulate burp gun and machine gun fire.

The new range is expected to measure the results of the different tactics employed in "Moonlight."

"Trainfire" is designed to improve the individual accuracy of a rifleman in combat. Plans are to build record courses to study accuracy and the use of certain weapons on different targets.

Two Veterinarians Assigned to Duties

Two newly commissioned officers have been assigned to The Infantry Center Veterinary section. They are Second Lt. Thaddeus M. Howard, Jr., of San Antonio, Texas, and George W. Loudenslager, Jr., of Hagerstown, Md. They completed a 10-week course at the Meat and Dairy Hygiene School in Chicago, Ill.

Lt. Howard will handle facilities of the Veterinary section on the post, and Lt. Loudenslager will work off post at cold storage installations.

Carthage, one of the greatest cities of the ancient world, reached a peak population of a million inhabitants more than three centuries before the Christian era, says the National Geographical society. The third project, "Hi-Lo," is a study of attrition or failure because of fear. An example of what the research unit is attempting to determine is why a paratrooper fails to jump after he completes his training.

The research unit also will try to find out whether a man can become accustomed to height. To accomplish this a mock tower with different jump levels will be employed.

Purpose of the research unit is to find the best methods of instruction for the most effective results in improving the "interests and abilities of soldiers in training."

Scientists composing the Human Research Unit, in addition to Dr. Jones, are Dr. Howard M. Fann, Dr. Charles D. Windle, Dr. Edgar L. Shriver, and Dr. Beatrice M. Shriver.

Capt. Hermy Touring Engineer Facilities

Capt. Walter E. Hermy, commanding officer of the 688th Engineer Company (Float, Bridge), 78th Engineer Battalion, has departed for a tour of Engineer research and development laboratories at Fort Belvoir, Va., and the Engineer unit at Prince, W. Va., for orientation in storage and erection procedures for floating bridges.

Ex-Post Officer Finds

Soldiers in Puerto Rico Have Top-Notch Morale

CAMP TORTUGUERO, P. R.—"Since my arrival here on March 23, I have become highly impressed with the Puerto Rican soldier's morale, discipline, and, above all, his military courtesy, which is superior to anything I've even seen," said Col. Robert G. Sherrard, Jr., the new commander of the Caribbean's only Replacement Training Center.

Colonel Sherrard was acting deputy assistant commander of The Infantry School at Fort Benning, before coming to Puerto Rico. He has also served as defense group chief of the Tactical Department and operations officer of the school.

Col. Sherrard, who commanded the third battalion, 23d Infantry of the U. S.'s famed Second Division, in the early days of the Korean fighting, added that he also admired the loyalty, patriotism, and efficiency of the Korean veterans of Puerto Rico's 65th Infantry, whom he had met aboard ship while coming down here.

The colonel, whose job will be to train Puerto Rican draftees to become efficient soldiers, assigned wherever American forces are stationed throughout the world, is a veteran of two wars.

In Korea, he participated in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war, including the battle of the Pusan perimeter. In October 1950 Colonel Sherrard was wounded in action, and subsequently was evacuated to the U. S. for hospitalization.

CAR FIXER... OC Lawrence Nabholz has liked to "fix" cars as long as he can remember. A little while back he bought a disassembled foreign car from a disgusted Texas dealer and put the puzzle together. Cars owned or driven by him have won many Texas races.

He's Only Man In Whole Army Titled 'Coronet'

Prior to the Revolution, the coronet was the lowest ranking officer in a cavalry troop. His permanent duty was to carry the flag, a job performed for an infantry company by an ensign. Both grades were abolished in the Army by Congressional action in 1815.

Coronet Hires, who gets the pay and allowances of a second lieutenant, earned his title through another act of Congress. This one, passed in 1916, defined artillery, cavalry or infantry units in existence before May 8, 1792, as "Ancient Corps." As such, they were authorized to retain traditional privileges, subject to approval of the Adjutant General of the Army.

The First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry — now the 23d Reconnaissance Company, Pennsylvania National Guard — claimed as its privilege the right to keep the traditional title of coronet for its junior officer. Coronet Hires is the man in custody of the title now.

This unit, organized in 1775, also claimed the privilege of carrying a replica of its original standard in addition to the regulation Army troop guidon.

Capt. Napier Named To Tank Committee
Capt. Herman S. Napier of Wayne, W. Va., has been assigned to the Tank Weapons Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

A 1948 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, he served with the 27th Infantry Regiment, 25th Division, in Korea from February to December 1952. He also was on occupation duty with the 11th Airborne Division in Japan from 1946 to 1948.

Transportation Course Graduates 52 Officers
Fifty-two officers graduated Monday from The Infantry School's motor transportation course. Honor graduate was Second Lt. Creighton L. Mackinney of Nashua, N. H., and second honors along with a letter of academic achievement went to Second Lt. William A. Sauder of Lamont, Texas. Col. Robert E. Holtman of Florence, S. C., director of the Automotive Department, delivered the graduation address.

Profs Clout CTC In Opener

FIRST PAIR BATTER... Don Huston, CTC right fielder, is congratulated as he crosses home plate with the first home run of the 1934 post season. Savino cleared the right field wall near the 325 foot mark in the eighth inning to score the Commanders' only run of the game.

Del Bandy Chucks 3-Hitter As ISD Runs Up 12-1 Score

Del Bandy, a curveballing right hander, was the whole story for the ISD Profs Monday as he set down the CTC Commanders with only three scattered hits to open the Profs' title defense with a 12-1 victory in the opening game of the post season at Gowdy Field before 3,500 fans.

The only run CTC could muster off Bandy's well-controlled slants came by way of rightfielder Don Savino's homer in the eighth inning.

The Infantry Center season was officially opened as Post Commander Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., tossed the first ball down to batterymate Col. Frank Elder, commanding officer of the 30th Infantry. Col. Elder whistled a cloistering peg to second base and the baseball season was on.

Conrad Deskins, a willowy right hander, started for CTC and held the Profs fairly well in check for five innings. The Profs counted twice in the opening frame on a walk, a "triple" by Dick Carmier and a sacrifice fly by Joe Smith which brought Carmier home. Carmier's hit was a hump-backed line drive which Commander centerfielder Bill Roberts tried to shoestring and had the ball bound through him for three bases.

Following ISD's opening burst, Deskins settled down and the game resolved into a mound duel until the sixth inning. Bandy, in complete control of the situation for ISD, was never in serious trouble in spite of a first inning scratch safety by Jim Thomas of Fort McPherson will bring his powerhouse baseball team here Saturday to play Special Troops Command at 2 p.m. at Gowdy Field. Managed by former Benning coach Bobby Dewis, the team boasts an all-star lineup led by Vinegar Bend Mizell, of St. Louis Cardinal fame.

CTC, whose grounder hopped over second baseman Len Alleyne's head for a single.

Profs Break Loose... Deskins racked up seven strikeouts through five innings, but the roof collapsed in the sixth to allow four ISD runs and put the game beyond reach for CTC. The frame opened with Carmier's single past second base. Woody Burt, sacrificing, reached base on an error by Deskins with Carmier taking second. Both runners moved up on an infield out, and Fran Drobot drew an intentional pass to fill the bases with one down.

Savino Clouts One... With the smell of whitewash threatening, right fielder Don Savino saved the Commanders from a shut out by poling Bandy's second pitch over the right field wall near the foul line, 325 feet distant. Savino's blast was a hard hit liner that stayed fair by a narrow margin.

ISD registered one more score in the ninth as Alleyne beat out a hit to deep short, stole second and came home on successive infield outs.

Bill Roberts collected CTC's third and final hit in the ninth, a sharp single through the middle.

Carmier led the batting parade with two singles and his teammates, Alleyne and Smith each had a pair as ISD gathered a total of nine bingles.

MAJOR GEN. MELOY... Throws First Ball

Jalopy Jockey

30th Infantry Trooper Was Hot-Rodder in Civilian Life

Bill's fastest speed on the quarter-mile track was 89 miles per hour in a '34 Ford with a hopped-up '41 Mercury engine in it, but he recalls seeing a Chevrolet hit 117 mph on the 440-yard oval.

Thompson usually used a pressure pump on his racers which built up air in the gas tank and forced fuel into the carburetor faster than a conventional pump could. This feature added speed, but also cost Bill a race once. He was driving a doctored '32 Ford at the time which he says really could burn up the track. Another driver who was in a sorry-looking bucket of bolts challenged him.

Thompson revved up his engine, set for the take-off and confident of leaving his opponent in a cloud of dust. The starting signal came and Bill stepped down on his accelerator. His car jumped, coughed, sputtered and died as the ancient jalopy of the other driver streaked down the track. Thompson had neglected to pump up pressure in his tank, and the engine was getting no gas.

70 Candidates Hold First Track Carnival

Bright sunny skies last Saturday afternoon saw 70 officer candidates competing for titles in thirteen events during the First Officer Candidate Regiment's first track meet of the season at Doughboy Stadium.

The team totals saw 10th OC Company score 56 points to pile up a 10 point lead over 14th OC Company. 20th Company's clinchmen placed third with a total of 42 points.

The top event of the day turned out to be the mile relay, won by 14th OC's team of Delwin Albrecht, Frank B. Moore, Eugene Blecher, and Bill Lewandowski in 3 minutes 51 seconds. Lewandowski took the baton from Belcher some 30 yards behind the field and turned in a spanking 32 second quarter mile to come to the tape ahead by 10 yards. The fast finish had the crowd on its feet cheering. Lewandowski also turned in a trick for 14th OC in the 440 yard run, coming in ahead of 20th Company's George Rouillard and Don Bellif in the comparatively slow time of 55.2 seconds.

The mile run, normally the feature event in track, was won by Ralph Gonzales of 14th Company in the disappointing time of 5 minutes, 21 seconds. The 100-yard dash was slightly faster, 10th Company's Van E. Romney outlasting 14th Company's Bob Holleman to break the tape in a good 10.4 seconds.

10th OC Company took firsts in three of the four field events. Walter Goglin started the parade of 10th OC winners with a toss of 35 feet 1 inch in the 16 lb. shot put. Carroll Gammill and Ephraim Goss tied in the high jump, both topping the bar at 5 feet 5 inches. Don Deis outleaped the competing broad-jumpers with an effort of 20 feet, 11 inches. Ed McKee of 20th Company was the other field event winner, tossing the discus 97 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

The winning team also took first places in the 1/4 mile walk, and the 880 yard relay to take a total of six first places of the thirteen events.

The runners up captured victories in five events. SUMMARY: 16 lb. shot put: 1. Goglin, 10th OC, 35' 1"; 2. Bush, 20th Co., 3. Albrecht, 14th OC. Discus: 1. McKee, 20th Co., 97' 10 1/2"; 2. Bush, 20th Co., 3. McDaniel, 10th Co. High Jump: 1. Goss, Gammill, 10th Co., 5' 5" (tie); 3. Buck, 20th Co. Broad Jump: 1. Deis, 10th Co. (Please See CANDIDATES, P-14)

BILL LEWANDOWSKI... Wins 440

Fish and Skish Meet Saturday

A Fish and Skish Tournament will be sponsored April 10-11 at King's Pond by the Fish and Game Maintenance Association. Members of the association will display their skill in precision casting when the skish contest opens April 10 at 2:30 p.m. They will cast at five floating metal hoops spaced at varying distances from the angler.

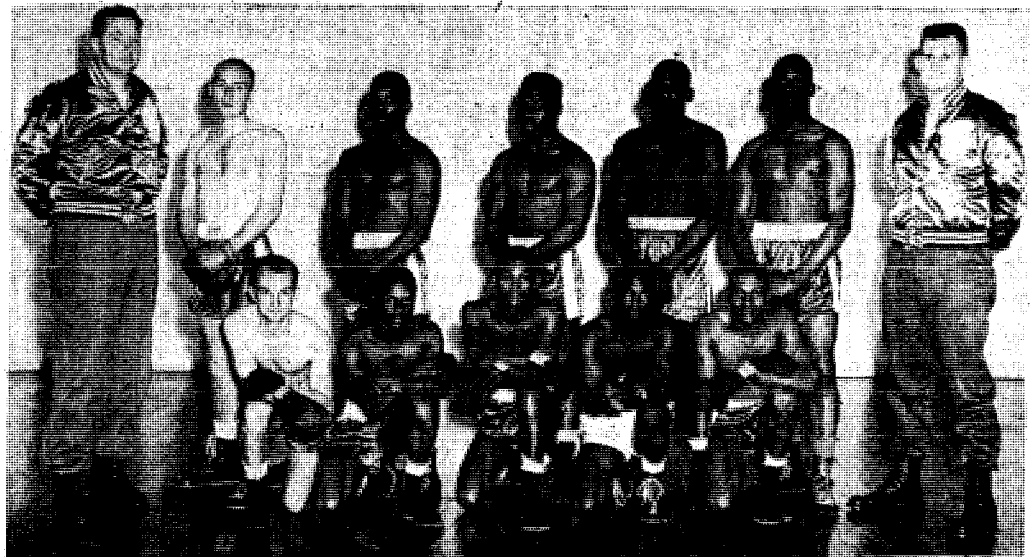

Major William D. Brodbeck, journey chairman, said two attempts at each of the five hoops will count for scoring purposes, with five points tallied for a hit within the hoop or the first try and two points for a hit within the hoop on the second try.

The top three casters will win South Bend casting reels and rods. Registration starts at 4:30 a.m. April 1 for the fishing portion of the tournament. In this contest fishermen's supplies, rods and reels will be awarded to the individual catching the largest fish and to the angler with the best string.

The sporting event also will feature a junior prize for the best fisherman under 12 years of age and several awards for contestants not winning prizes in the Fish and Skish Tournament, Major Brodbeck said.

OPENER ACTION... Curt Wall, CTC outfielder, reaches first base safely in the fifth inning of Monday's opening game as ISD first sacker Roger Moore is pulled off the bag by a low throw from third.

DEFENDING CHAMPIONS... Post Benning's 1934 freestyle boxing team defends its honor title in the Third Army barracks at Fort Bragg next week. Kneeling: Regis Blair, flyweight, Hilton Smith, bantamweight, Dick Woodley, featherweight, Elvis Mathews, heavyweight, Coach Frank Boring.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Jim Montgomery

One of the most favored of many adages in the world of sport is the one which says tersely and dogmatically that "they never come back."

Like any rule, this one has its exceptions. However it is a proven fact that a lauded hero one day can be a bum fallen from grace the next, and in no field of professional endeavor can the journey from top to bottom be so rapid as in sports.

Remember a fellow named Bill Bevens? Those who do will recall that Bill came within one pitch of immortality in October of 1947 when he hurled no-hit baseball for eight and two-thirds innings for the Yankees against the Dodgers in the Series. With two out in the ninth inning, Bevens saw his no-hitter plastered against the concave right field wall of Ebbets Field by an old timer named Cookie Lavaretto. Bevens lost his one-hit masterpiece as the winning run scored on the lone safety.

As a matter of record, neither Bevens, who came closer than any man to a World Series no-hit game, nor Lavaretto, who shattered Bevens' bid for the unattainable, ever played another major league game. According to the last reports, Bevens was a fireman in Oregon and playing softball for fun while the old Cookie is still working as a coach.

The roster of the 1953 Pacific Coast League is studded with such former headliners as Dino Restelli, Merrill Combs, Cliff Fanning, Erv Dusak, Joe Hatten, Mel Queen, Dain Clav, Willie (The Knuck) Ramsdell and Sam Zol-dak. "Well," you might say, "PCL ball isn't bad at all. They're still in the big time." Sure. But they're slowly, inexorably on their way down.

The Pacific Coast is open classification. A peek at the AA Texas League shows that Phil Masi, Frank Mancuso and Mickey Livingston were in action there in 1952. The Class A Eastern League had Danny Little, Pirate, Braves, et al star of yesteryear, and from the Class B Three-Eye League hobs the name of Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vander Meer. Kirby Higbe fell from the Majors to Class D.

Boxers Off to Defend 3A Title

Fort Benning's defending Third Army boxing champions will depart this week for Fort Bragg, N. C. and the 1954 tournament. A ten-man squad will represent the Infantry Center and will be coached by Jerry Perlman who handled the runner-up School Brigade boxers in the recently concluded post fight league.

Only returning Third Army champion from the 1953 rolls for Benning is lightweight ruler Elvis Mathews, who is accorded an excellent chance to repeat. Mathews went unbeaten in post circles this year, and his only loss for the entire season was in the Alabama Golden Gloves finals to the World Wide Air Force champ.

Hard-punching Ed Crook, Brigade's light middle ace, has been chosen as captain of the Benning squad. Crook was Third Army runner-up in 1952 in the same weight class. Comprising the rest of the team are post champions Regis Blair, flyweight, Hilton Smith, bantamweight; Dick Woodley, featherweight; Hermon Hinton, light welter; Buck Henry, welterweight; Joe Davis, middleweight; Jim Boyd, light heavyweight and Charles Colley, heavyweight.

As a tuneup for the Third Army meet, the post boxers journeyed to Camp Rucker, Ala., last week, paying an earlier visit by the Vikings which saw Benning sweep all eight matches here.

Such was not the case at Rucker last week, however, as the 47th Division scrappers took five of seven bouts in their home ring. Lone winners for TIC were Crook and Boyd, who earned decisions.

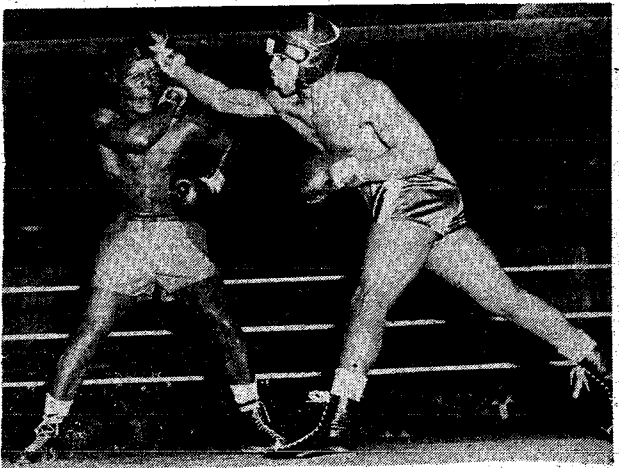

The fights marked the first time this year for the Benning swatters to use headgear in the ring, and the unaccustomed equipment hampered them more than somewhat.

Opening the card, Leonard Hudgins dropped a decision to Rucker's Alie Harp in a lightweight embroglio. Hudgins went on in place of Elvis Mathews, who did not make the trip.

The second fight of the evening saw Buck Henry lose the duke to Al Coleman of the 47th in a welterweight class match. Henry, who was bothered by the headgear more than any of the post leather lossers, was forced to spend a goodly portion of his time showing the contraption clear of his field of vision and while thus distracted absorbed considerable punishment.

Crook scored Benning's first win with a verdict over Taft Ellis in a replay of their match here. Quick, muscular little Crook had Ellis on the floor in the first and forced the Viking to backpedal constantly.

HOOK BY CROOK... Ed Crook, post light middle champion pounds a right hand to the head of Taft Ellis, Camp Rucker campaigner in the second round of their bout last week, in the Rucker arena. Crook won his second straight decision over Ellis.

CAMERA, ACTION . . . A member of the Intelligence and Reconnaissance Platoon, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, is shown being filmed by a crew from the Signal Corps Pictorial Center, Long Island, N. Y. The scene will be part of a film concerning the tactical employment of an I&R platoon.

GOLD LEAVES . . . Capt. Lyman H. Clark, an instructor in The Infantry School's Tactical Department, receives his gold leaves after learning of his promotion to major. Pinning on the leaves in a brief ceremony in his home are Mrs. Clark and Col. Joseph W. Stillwell Jr., Tactical Department director.

Ex-Fencer Finds His Foil Helps In Bayonet Work
 Scaramouche and D'Artagnan have nothing on Officer Candidate Ethan Stroh of 10th OC Company, a pretty handy man with a fencing foil or bayonet.
 Stroh, who hails from Brooklyn, N. Y., captained the fencing team of the City College of New York for two years, participating in over 25 contests and winning the majority.
 "My training in fencing helped me with the bayonet," says Stroh. "The principles are almost the same, but in fencing the action is mostly in the wrists while in bayonet training you've got to coordinate arms with footwork. In fencing it's finesse and in bayonet it's force that makes the movement successful."
 Stroh studied and mastered the sabre, the epee, and the foil. Each required a different technique, but all are ancient methods of dueling developed into an exciting sport.

Post Trains Med Technicians For Spots Throughout World

An on-the-job training program at Fort Benning is providing medical technicians for U.S. Army Hospitals throughout the U.S. and at overseas stations.

Established in 1952 for Army enlisted men and women, the training program is coordinated by the post hospital's Education and Training Branch.

Students get practical experience by actually doing the work of a trained technician, including such tasks as taking temperature and blood pressure, giving baths, and assisting ward officers and Army nurses in performing various services for patients.

Capt. Gwendolyn Welt, supervisor of the training, says the program is designed to route students through wards and clinics and to afford them the best possible training in their military occupational specialty.

Among personnel now in training are more than 100 men and women plus 31 students who came to the post hospital after six weeks of training at the Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

The Fort Benning personnel receive 20 weeks of training, including classroom work and additional study of advanced procedures of the medical technician.

OC Loves Garlic, the Herb That Once Saved His Patrol

Fourteenth Officer Candidate Company's Richard Anderson and his patrol are real good friends, and it's no wonder. As the OC says, "garlic and a good sniffer probably saved my life."

Anderson, formerly a sergeant first class with Item Company, 38th Infantry Regiment, was leading a patrol in Korea in January 1952 when he came to respect this famous herb of the Ivy family. The patrol was deep in enemy territory.

Suddenly Anderson detected the piercing smell of cooking garlic which the Chinese used often in their food. Immediately he signaled the patrol to hit the dirt. Just seconds before a Chinese machine gun poured fire over their position.

All came out well in the end, however, mainly because the patrol had not been caught flat-footed under the first burst of enemy fire. To quote OC Anderson, "You can hate garlic if you want to. I love it."

CWO Leaves Army After Long Career

He will reside on a chicken farm he has purchased near Gadsden, Ala.

Mr. Strange spent 14 of his 21 years in the Army as an enlisted man. A 1943 graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate course, he was separated in 1947 as a captain, reverted to master sergeant rank and appointed a warrant officer in 1950.

AIRBORNE SWEET-HEART... Miss Beth Ballard, a senior at Baker High School, has been selected as the Sweetheart of the Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment. TO LIVE FOREVER

BY CHAPLAIN (FIRST LT.) CLARENCE D. WILLIAMS
You can live forever is the message of Easter, Easter—the word resounds with the breath-taking knowledge that one who was dead rose again to life. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, left an empty cross. He left an empty tomb. His spirit would come to an empty soul to say, "Because I live, you shall live also."
Are these vain words uttered by a madman? Is this wishful thinking? How can these things be? For to be alive forevermore is more than the human mind can comprehend. Yet such is the unyielding conviction of every regenerated being who is known as Christian.
One alive cannot but acknowledge that he possesses life. It was his at birth and continues to be his until death—another fact in the gamut of existence which one is forced to acknowledge.
To the Christian, however, the grimness of death disappears in the steady assurance of Jesus, who forcefully asserts, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."
This is the present hope—and the salvation enjoyed by those who, repenting of sin, acknowledge their faith in Jesus Christ.
Easter—means life. Through faith in Christ, you too can live forever.

164th Lands At Sand Hill

Viking Soldiers Keeping Busy Preparing New Home

Within one minute of the scheduled arrival time, the second convoy conveying part of the 164th Inf. Reg. from 47th Division Headquarters at Camp Rucker arrived at the regiment's new home in the South Sand Hill area Tuesday.
The 126-mile trip was made in interchange of ideas, information and plans concerning the relocation of the 47th.
In an effort to provide a good safety program, Safety Director Norman Evans has been working with the Camp Rucker director to insure that 47th personnel are acquainted with the peculiar safety features here. Evans submitted an outline of safety precautions which is being used at Camp Rucker before arrival of troops to the post.

Monday Arrival
The First Bn. pulled in Monday with 400 men and 118 vehicles. The Third Bn. was slated to arrive Wednesday.
The woody Sand Hill area is in direct contrast to the flat sparse section the 164th left at Rucker. The troops already are counting on this as the prospect for a cooler Summer than they were used to in South Alabama.
Right now, however, there is a lot of heat being generated by 164th personnel engaged in the inevitable task of Gung their new area.

At Fort Benning's hospital the dieticians direct the feeding of more than 900 persons at the noon meal under the supervision of Major Erma C. Lord, who is in charge of the Food Service Section. She is aided by Capt. Doris C. Hammond, Capt. Mildred McElreath, and Second Lt. Carolyn S. Henderson.

Miss Cobb Wins 'Top' Rating

A performance rating of "Outstanding" has been awarded to Miss Marjorie Cobb of Prattville, Ala., and Columbus, for her work as a news and feature writer in the Infantry Center Public Information Office.

In announcing the rating, H. A. Rindland, chairman of the Performance Appraisal Committee, said:

"One of the prerequisites of a performance rating of 'Outstanding' is that the appraisal show a level of performance in all aspects of assigned work which exceeds normal performance requirements to such an extent that each would be considered worthy of special commendation."

From March 1951 until October 1952 she took a vacation from the newspaper work she was then doing and became a hospital receptionist with the Red Cross. After six weeks of training in Jacksonville, Fla., Miss Cobb went to Japan, and in March, 1953, was sent to Korea, serving there for eight months.

Post Cited for Great Public Relations Job

The American Public Relations Association has selected the Fort Benning public relations program as outstanding in the government classification for 1952-53.

Announcement of the selection was made public last week at a special awards luncheon in the Hotel Biltmore in New York. Lt. Col. Robert C. Kinkor, Infantry Center public information officer, was in New York to accept the Certificate.

The Fort Benning program, along with the winners in 14 other categories, will be presented to the Library of Congress, where they will be available for research by public relations students throughout the U. S. The programs will be a portion of the library's new Archives of Public Relations.

Presentation of the awards was the climax of the three-day annual convention of the American Public Relations Association, which got under way April 4. The convention also marked the 10th anniversary of the association. Government officials, public relations, counselors and business executives were on hand to take part in the three days of conferences and discussions. Community and employ problems were discussed as well as the most recent advances in public relations techniques and use of news media. Classifications in which awards were presented, in addition to government, included manufacturing, distribution and marketing, retailing, labor relations, trade associations, chambers of commerce, professional organizations, agriculture, transportation, educational institutions and organizations, banking, finance and insurance utilities, community services, and communications.

Rice Paper Letter Sarge Wins Praise As POW Leader

A thin sheet of oriental rice paper today proves the esteem that fellow prisoners of war hold for a Fort Benning sergeant who was their leader while they were imprisoned in North Korea.

The 65 rice of the First Platoon, Fourth Company, Fifth POW Camp, used the paper to express their praise for M-Sgt. Joseph Black of Columbus, now assigned to the First Special Troops Battalion.

The letter said: "There is a note concerning our leader — U. S. Army M-Sgt. Joe Black. In July 1951 Sgt. Black was appointed leader and has acted in this capacity to date. Before that time and especially since then he has concerned himself with our welfare, both physically and mentally, even to the extent of possible jeopardy of his own health."

"He has consistently displayed a devotion to duty and a love for his fellow men that is far beyond comparison. He has aided us and guided us all along the way with an efficiency that is a credit to any soldier. He has comforted the sick and the troubled."

"Our heartfelt thanks to Sgt. Black for the personal services rendered while in the execution of the post assigned him. He will always remain the object of the highest esteem and most humble veneration by the undersigned."

The letter was signed by his 65 fellow prisoners.

Easter Rites to Mark End of Chaplain's Post Job

Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield of Dover, Fla., leaves Fort Benning Sunday for duty in the Far East.

Although his official duties ended April 13, Chaplain Sheffield has delayed his departure five days in order to preside over Easter services.

Chaplain Sheffield, who assumed supervision of the chaplains' activities at Fort Benning during Holy Week, 1952, has been active in both military and civilian affairs since his arrival. Besides coordinating religious activities on the post, he has worked on various committees to strengthen the religious ties between the post and civilian groups in nearby communities.

He was on the executive committee of the Columbus-Phenix City Ministerial Alliance and the management committee of the Columbus Armed Services YMCA. He also encouraged civilian clergymen and chaplains on his staff to exchange pulpits and served on religious committees of the Citizens-Military Council.

Entering the Army in 1933, he was at Pearl Harbor from January 1941 to March 1943 and of Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, from April 1943 to May 1944. From Hawaii he was moved to the Marianas, remaining there from June 1944 to December 1945 when he returned to the U.S.

He was staff chaplain of Joint Task Force No. 3 at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands from September 1950 to May 1951 before his assignment to the staff and faculty of the Chaplain School, Fort Secun, N. Y., in July, 1951.

New Type Mine To Be Employed

A new anti-personnel mine that cannot be detected by electronic devices will be used for the first time by troops in Exercise Flash Burn.

The mine has a non-metallic body to foil electronic sweepers and will deny use of the ground in which it is planted for the duration of any war, according to Engineer officers.

Only practical method of locating these explosives once they are laid is by probing the earth gently with a bayonet or other sharp instrument — a means which does not allow the speedy clearing of large areas.

The T-34 mine, a training version of the Army's M-34 non-detectable, anti-personnel mine, will add to the list of new weapons to be used in Flash Burn, the Army's first atomic field exercise, being staged in the Fort Bragg, North Carolina area.

'Copter Pilots Prep for Flash Burn

Fort Benning's 506th Army Helicopter Company is making preparations for its role in the gigantic 60,000-man Exercise Flash Burn maneuver, scheduled to open this month in N. C.

Pilots of the Piasecki and Sikorsky helicopters assigned to the 506th and mechanics of the 152d Maintenance Detachment are going through their final tests before leaving the post next Monday for the maneuver area.

Primary mission of the two units will be to haul supplies and troops and provide medical evacuation during the exercise, according to Major William J. Kilmer, commander.

The 23 aircraft of the 506th include a platoon of Piasecki helicopters, two platoons of Sikorsky H-19 cargo-type helicopters, and two Hiller helicopters.

The 506th was transferred to Fort Benning from Fort Sill, Okla., in November 1952 to aid the Infantry School in its training program.

Since that time it has taken part in several special exercises and operations away from Fort Benning.

Last winter the unit took part in Operation Snowstorm at Camp Peary, N. Y., and then headed west to Nevada to haul supplies and equipment into the desert and off mountain tops for the Spring atomic tests. Its helicopters last Summer also aided in the search and recovery of persons lost in two air crashes.

Chaplain's Corner

Christ Is Hope of Christian

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) T. J. JENNINGS

One of the greatest claims of Christ was: "I am the Resurrection and the Life; He that believeth in me, though he were dead, shall live; and whosoever believeth in me, though he were dead, shall live." This is the claim of the Son of God. The Heavenly Father confirmed this again by speaking from the heavens at the baptism of Jesus when he said, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." This claim was also amplified by the miracles, such as the raising of Lazarus, the lepers, the blind, and the lame. Even his critics and his enemies had to say, "We never saw it on this fashion before." The enemies of Christ, having to admit a miracle just accredited it to the power of Satan, not of God.

Now, 1854 years after his birth, or 1854 years after his wonderful works, millions of his believers around the world celebrate Resurrection Day, or Easter, which is a day commemorating the resurrection of Christ. This is a strong indication that this mighty Army of Christian soldiers believe the claim of Christ that "I am the Resurrection."

After all the crooked trials, the Sinless Saviour was crucified as a blasphemer, villain, and one not fit for heaven or earth. When the Jesus cried with a loud voice and the death of Christ himself would be the only hope. If he were dead then this would be evidence that he was not the "resurrection and the life."

Sunday Schools Inspire Our Youth

BY PVT. JOHN CHRIST

We are now in the midst of the tenth annual Sunday School Week. As we look at our Sunday Schools we find that they have always constituted a vital link in our chain of national development. Today religious faith and understanding furnish greater possibilities for accomplishing widespread good than perhaps ever before.

Our youth need full opportunity to secure religious instruction and development of our future citizens is paramount. Too frequently there is a tendency to evaluate a person rather than his training and spiritual background. The boy or girl who is a member of a Sunday School class soon learns to discriminate not only between what is good and what is bad, but they also make wise decisions that frequently prove invaluable throughout the course of their lives.

It is in Sunday School that our child conceived at home is nurtured, developed, and enhanced. Here he or she gains a broader view of belonging. Not alone does Mama or Papa say, "You must love God, but a teacher, not part of the home says it, and all the other boys and girls agree that they must 'Love, honor, and obey God.'"

Young Hopefuls Soon Learn That Day of Army M.P. Is One of Enigmas

BY PVT. ROBERT M. KEATING
What does Fort Benning demand of its M.P.'s? In what manner is a solid foundation of basic principles laid down for him? And just what must he learn before he can consider himself capable?

When the M. P. hopeful arrives on post he finds himself in great need of further preparation for the duties he is to assume and is assigned to work with a veteran who has proved himself able to deal with any situation encountered in everyday M.P. activity. This close observation and supervision in the practical work of Military Police serve the new hopeful well. It is called the "Buddy System."

Duties Numerous
Duties which an M.P. assumes are numerous and often difficult. Among them are traffic control, town and post patrol, when and how to handle his weapons, and of primary importance, public relations.

Traffic control is not merely the simple process of waving vehicles on or calling them to a halt. The traffic M.P. must be well versed in the handling of traffic accidents. He will be called upon to judge the seriousness of accidents and determine the extent of his investigation. Careful and courteous interrogations of witnesses, plus restoration of the normal flow of traffic, are vital in his assignment. Finally the M.P. who is in charge of an accident situation must compile all the information he has gathered and submit a concise and accurate report to his superiors.

In addition to being prepared for accidents, the M.P. always must be on the alert for the speedster, drunken driver, and unauthorized driving personnel. And he has to be able to take immediate action in apprehending the violators.
Being constantly in the public eye while at this traffic post, the M.P. is required to be impeccable in his appearance — his brass must be sparkling, shoes gleaming, white hat and gloves spotless, and his uniform sharply pressed. All in all, his is the task of telling everyone, "Here's how a good soldier should look."

Makes Big Switch
From traffic work to the off post patrol is a big switch, but the trainee has to make it. No longer is he supported by the restraining factor of a military reservation. Now his duty takes him to the towns lying outside of the Post. Here he is forced to deal with a different type of person than his former job introduced him to.
The M.P. soon learns that the average G.I. is like anybody else. When his work is done he likes to "close shop" for the day and shelve his eight-to-five enigmas for a while. So it is then that the typical soldier goes into town and tries to relax. Here's where the Junior M.P. is faced with a problem. After the soldier over relaxes, becomes unruly, and causes a disturbance, such an incident frequently occurs in a public place, hence tact comes first, followed by effective restraint if necessary.

Tact Is Necessary
The trainee has to understand that using diplomacy before force, although it may seem to be a hindrance, is a worthwhile chance. For tactfulness may bring the issue to a close without creating any additional trouble and it maintains, as well as fosters, good public opinion.
In addition to being a peace-maker, the town M.P. must serve as a "guardian angel," so to speak. All of the pitfalls and snares which any "Army Town" possesses must be diligently checked and eliminated if possible. Thus the trainee must be fully accomplished in the art of self-defense, world knowledge, and in the psychology of public relations.

Apparently the easiest tasks of the M.P. trainee is the post patrol. Yet its assignment carries with as much responsibility as any other. Food supplies, weapons, vehicles and the like, are all under the general protection of the Military Police. These items are valued in the millions and therefore their protection demands an alertness and a perfect system of patrol.

Must Be Vigilant
Unusual activities of any sort in areas where these stores are kept must be detected, surveillance made at varying times — so that a schedule cannot be predetermined by would-be thieves — and, finally, for self-protection as well as successful performance of duty, the on-the-job trainee needs to know how to handle any situation which might spell out trouble. Besides this general guard function the Junior M.P. learns to correct any shortcomings found in the uniform of the soldier on post, familiarize himself with the street names, transportation facilities and their schedules, and location of all units and services on the post.
Being armed with dangerous weapons is a grave responsibility. The problem of knowing when to use these weapons is solved, on the surface, by Army directives; yet application of the rules is another thing. Employment of force at the right time and in the right manner requires wisdom which comes only from experience. Thus it is here that the "Buddy System" once again proves its real worth.
The one factor which is almost invariably involved in M.P. duties is public relations. For the M.P. is seen by everyone, civilian and military, and his work brings him in contact with almost every category of our society. So in addition to everything else the Junior M.P. takes on the task of advertising the Army. As a publicity agent he is obliged to develop a technique of good psychology. This demands courtesy, tact, and wholesome appearance.

ISD Pvt. Trained Animals for Seattle Zoo

Elephants in the basement, monkeys in the bedroom, and mynah birds directing animal traffic around the house! Absurd? Not according to Pvt. John R. Nichols of Company C, Infantry School Detachment.

Pvt. Nichols asserts that he has seen all these animal antics in his home town. What's more, most of them were a part in his own home life.

At the age of 10 the love for animals became apparent in the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Nichols of 304 Melrose Ave. N., Seattle, Wash. Proof of this fact was the presence of 40 chickens, a few guinea pigs, some ducks and white mice, and a dog that gathered more and stranger animals were added as time went by. Parakeets and mynah birds appeared.

According to Nichols, mynah birds make very apt pupils—learning to talk fluently after several months of training. "The secret," says he, "is repetition. After the first word is mastered the rest come easy."

Through his interest in birds, Nichols met Morgan Berry, animal importer for the Seattle Zoo, who kept three elephants in his basement. Berry gave Nichols a job at the zoo and pretty soon Nichols began to carry animals home for extra training. A regular member of his family for about five months was a gibbon, one of the smallest members of the ape family.

According to Nichols, the little ape picked up ideas about as fast as a five-year-old child. Teaching the ape table manners was a problem, but personal grooming was picked up very fast.

Nichols, who works in the Company C orderly room, hopes for a transfer soon to the Dog Training Branch of the Army. When he gets out he will return to Seattle and the zoo.

OCs Think of Tai As Chief Exponent Of Surfboarding

When you think of Hawaii, surfboards inevitably come to mind. And to 14th OC Company, Hawaii means Officer Candidate Bill Tai of Honolulu, one of the Island's toughest surfboard exponents.

Tai, who began practicing when he was five years old, copped his first surfboard victory in the annual Kamehameha race, a tandem contest calling for two paddlers. Tai's partner was a young girl who later shared many triumphs with him. The OC was 14 years old then.

Another prominent "first" for Tai was the New Year's Day race of 1949, a five-mile contest that required the surfers to paddle prone from Waikiki to Diamond Head and to stand up during the return trip.

"You've got to catch the wave at the right moment and avoid the breakers," says the OC. Coordination and balance are important, too, for the speed of a surfboard can sometimes reach 55 miles an hour.

Tai is already teaching his two-year-old son the fundamentals of the sport.

A near record was reported Monday by the Small Arms Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department which said only three officer candidates in a class of 137 failed to qualify on the automatic rifle giving a 98 per cent qualification.

This is the lowest number in any class which has fired for record in the past 18 months, according to Capt. Richard D. Wolf instructor. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

He saw action in Korea with the First Cavalry Division from September 1950 to September 1951 and returned to Fort Benning July 7, 1952, for his present assignment. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

Paper Work Seen Engulfing Company Commander's Time

If the flow of paper work continues to engulf company commanders, Army training will suffer, according to an article in the April issue of The Infantry School Quarterly, published at Fort Benning.

Capt. Douglas A. Huff, author of "Paper Blockade," says in his article that the ultimate result will be a reduction in "the individual soldier's combat effectiveness."

Various ways of breaking the paper blockade are outlined in this article, along with a four-point check that every company commander should follow.

This issue of "the Infantryman's magazine" also contains an article on cold weather fighting, giving the vital information needed to insure the success of operations in snow and extreme cold.

Field expedient training aids is the subject of an eight-page picture feature in which examples are

'Traps' to Count No. of Insects

Six mosquito light-traps have been placed in operation at Fort Benning to determine the estimated number of insects on the post and the possibility of their carrying disease.

Lt. H. D. Handcastle, entomologist and assistant preventive-medicine officer, said some of the trapped mosquitoes will be sent to laboratories at Fort McPherson, Ga., and the others will be tested at the post's U. S. Army Hospital.

Similar tests are being conducted by all posts in the Third Army area.

Pair in 114th Co. Are Arctic Specialists

LT. C. F. WYKE

In the ranks of 114th Company, First Student Regiment, are Second Lt. Charles F. Wyke and Second Lt. William A. Shepherd, two men who have gained vast experience through their work with National Guard Units in Alaska. The units are arctic specialists and each winter run extensive training problems.

The major part of these exercises are accomplished in the bitter cold and are of the same type known here at the Infantry School, except that they are practiced under the added hardship of arctic winter.

The units work closely with the Army and Air Force in Alaska. They are members of scouting battalions and are well known for their ability in extreme weather conditions.

The district from which the units of the guard draw their men stretches from Fairbanks to Seaward. Lt. Shepherd is the only white man in his group, composed of 123 Eskimos.

Radio Instructor Teaches From Background Reservoir

It was more than a casual knowledge of electricity that merited Cpl. Ray E. Bruce of Pine Bluff, Ark., his present assignment as a radio instructor at The Infantry School.

Bruce, who has dishing out electrical theory from the podium in his classroom for more than a year, had plenty of scientific training during undergraduate days at Friedrick College, Conway, Ark., and as graduate student at Memphis State College.

Reason for this, he claims, is that class preparation is "all important," and instruction must be constantly revised and supplemented with new material.

His interest in his job extends even to his off-duty hours when he conducts classes for students needing extra help.

GENE SWIECINSKI

Scar Is Memory Of Polish Life Under German Rule

From food marks and ration tickets to the hand of plenty is the story of Pvt. Gene Swiecinski of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Student Regiment. Gene, who was born in Poland, had been under the rule of Adolph Hitler practically all his life before coming to the United States.

One of the memories outstanding in Swiecinski's mind about Europe is the scar on his face. This was received when the Germans had prisoners in a field near Gene's home, and Gene tried to slip some stolen bread to the hungry men. A guard saw him and struck him across the face with the butt of a rifle. However, after interrogation, he was turned loose.

Gene says the United States is completely different from anything ever imagined in Germany. He says everything is better here for a better living. His parents are in Michigan.

51 New Tanks To Greet 47th

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — When the tank companies of the 47th Infantry Division move to their new location at Ft. Benning they will find 51 new medium tanks awaiting them.

Each tank weighs 45 tons and is mounted with a 90-mm gun. They are the latest development in the medium tank field, giving the 47th the best available tank equipment.

This is all part of an economy plan developed by the Third Army Ordnance Section. The unit's movement and the delivery of the new tanks is being coordinated to allow the 47th to leave its old tanks at Camp Rucker.

The new shipment was delayed until the 47th began its move, making it unnecessary to ship them to Camp Rucker and then, a short time later, to Ft. Benning.

The shipment is expected to be completed by mid-April.

Signal Co. Begins Training Program

The 334th Signal Construction Company began a training program at Fort Benning last week which will give its troops classroom instruction and practical work in pole-line construction.

The 13-week program is designed to teach students methods of installing and testing wire in pole-line construction, with emphasis on the practical phase of the training.

In addition, three men will be sent each week to study the pole line man's course at the Southeastern Signal School, Camp Gordon, Ga.

Little Theater to Present Top Play, 'The Moon Is Blue'

"The Moon Is Blue," hit on Broadway and the movies, has been selected by the Fort Benning Little Theater Group as its next production slated for June. Pvt. Robert Hoop will direct the play, written by E. Hugh Herbert, which has been described by drama critics as "a happy sign of Spring as jaunty as fine Easter bonnet."

The director announced that casting for the play will take place at Theater No. 8 at 8 p.m. on Monday. Auditions are open to all workshop members.

Col. John M. Lynch announced the group has been asked to form a dramatic club for teen agers to be active during the Summer months. Edward P. McCracker will head this group.

Capt. Roberts Named Automotive Instructor

Capt. William G. Roberts of West Falls, N. Y., has been assigned as an instructor in The Infantry School's Automotive Department.

Completed the officers' advanced course, came to Fort Benning from Panama where he served for two and a half years as assistant operations officer at both Fort Sherman and Fort Gulick.

Profs, Raiders Tied For Lead

STC, ISD Remain Unbeaten; Lang Bags Pair of Victories

STC-1st SR
 With righthander John Lang spinning the first shutout of the season, Special Troops' Raiders moved past a tough First Student Regiment nine to zero in their second game in two starts and kept pace with the ISD Profs at the top of league standings.

Lang allowed only three hits in blanking the Blackshirts, and two of them were of the infield variety. Catcher Glenn Luker collected the lone clean hit, a whiffing single to center in the seventh. Luker also beat out a leg hit, as did Lloyd Burnette, to account for the Black-shirt hitting total.

Special Troops actually won the game in the second inning, when a single by Bill Thompson and Roland Renter's triple to right center provided the first tally. The Raiders added another marker in the seventh on singles by Mel Grant and Carlin Howell plus Renter's sacrifice fly which ushered Grant across the plate.

Carl Bentz and Ev Hefelinger each had two hits for Special Troops, and the victory was the second for Lang.

CTC-Medics
 Coach "Pepper" Martin's CTC Commanders annexed their first victory by overpowering a Medics squad that suffered from an acute shortage of pitching in a 24-8 marathon. The three-hour long struggle was shortened by mutual consent to seven innings.

The Commanders pushed over three runs in the top half of the first inning, but saw the lead melt under a deluge of Medics base hits. Six hits staked the Medics to four runs as they sent twelve hitters to the plate. CTC surged back in their next turn at bat, however, to count seven runs and put the game out of reach for the Medics.

Conrad Deskins slammed a home run and a single and shortstop Gene Morandi had a single, double and triple to lead the Commanders hitters, who garnered 11 hits to eight for the Medics.

ISD-Lawson
 ISD's hardhitting Profs combed two Lawson Field hurriers for nine hits and 20 runs to hand the Air-men a 29-2 shellacking and maintain their perfect slate.

It was no contest from the opening frame, when the Profs counted eight runs on two hits, four bases on balls, two errors and two wild pitches. The Flyers cut it down to 2-2 in the second inning, but ISD's five runs each in the eighth and ninth opened the gap.

Frank Drobot had an inside-the-park homer for ISD in the first inning, and teammates Joe Smith and Roger Moore each had a pair of single. Paul Williams had two of Lawson's six hits.

1st SR-Lawson
 Led by shortstop Ed Crook's four base hit, the First SR Blackshirts ran rampant over Lawson AFB, 18-3, to win their opening game behind Paul Klaffer's five hit pitching.

Lawson's Troy Fromberger held the Blackshirts reasonably well in check for five innings, and the Flyers in the fifth, only 5-1 going to the sixth. Bedlam broke loose, however, in First SR's final three turns, and 13 runs came across on the last two hits.

In addition to Crook's four hits—all singles—pitcher Klaffer contributed a double and triple and Tommy Martin's two hits.

STC-CTC
 Special Troops rallied for four runs in the tenth inning to nip CTC 10-6 in a league game played at Bullet Field. Ace Righthander John Lang hurled the final four frames for the Raiders and received credit for the win.

STC got off to a three-run lead in the first inning, using two singles, four walks, and four stolen bases in the process. CTC notched solo tallies in the first and third frames while stopping the Raiders' scoring. Special Troops broke through in the fifth, though, and counted three times with Mel Grant's sacks-filled double doing all the damage.

CTC fought back to score twice in the sixth and tied the score with two more in the eighth, only to lose in overtime as two errors and a walk plus pitcher Sam Steele's triple accounted for the winning four runs.

CTC Reveals Strong Nucleus For Top-Notch Track Squad

A scheduled practice track meet at Doughboy Stadium did not materialize last Saturday when the visiting team failed to show, but the Combat Training Command track squad went ahead with practice of the slated events on its own.

In this and in previous practices, the CTC team has revealed some bright prospects. They have been working under the direction of Charlie Waits and Mel Rosen.

Waits littered in track at University of Tennessee and coached in high school before entering the Army. Rosen, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., journeyed west to letter in track at the University of Iowa. Later he coached freshmen track there for two years prior to entering service.

100 Yard Dash
 Starting off the list of candidates for the mile is Dave Clibsey. Dave took the mile run last Saturday with a time of 6 minutes, 2 seconds. One-half a second behind him was Charlie McLendon.

In the 400 yard run, Reuben Porter, who ran for Wayne University, came in second in 53.7 seconds. Bill Dooley won the event in 52.3 seconds. Dooley hails from Gary, Ind., where he was on the winning state mile relay team in high school.

The 100 yard dash was won by Jaochin Moddelsee, a native of Germany who has run on the Continent in 13.9 seconds. Another prospect for the 100 yards is Earl Jones who was a sprinter at Morgan State.

Over the high and low hurdles,

Sgt. 'Jack-of-All-Services', Plans to Settle Down in Army

BY FRANK SULLIVAN

How much can a guy do in a lifetime?

Sgt. Horace Pennington, mess steward of Company D, 30th Infantry, seems to be trying to break all the records. Since leaving high school in 1938, Sgt. Pennington has been a pro boxer, a Coast Guardsman, a chef, a Marine, and a member of three branches of the Army.

A native of Atlanta, Ga., Pennington has been knocked to the canvas, blown into the North Atlantic by German torpedoes, harassed by civilian female bosses, and shot at by Communist bullets.

His boxing career began in the Southeast and moved north to New England after he turned professional. Fighting under the ring name of Jackie Donahoo, Pennington clashed in the featherweight and lightweight groups. Although he never reached the top among contenders, he was featured in quite a few main events at small clubs.

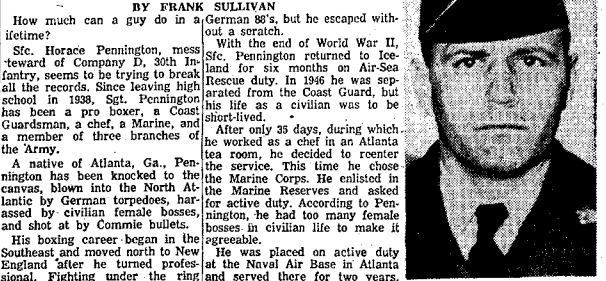

In 1942, Donahoo defeated Johnny Coe in three rounds and later whipped Johnny Cool in six rounds. Both of these men were crown contenders and both later held the lightweight championship of New England.

Following his enlistment in the Coast Guard in 1940, Pennington continued his fighting career on a part-time basis. He gave up the ring in 1942 after his marriage, but as late as 1946, Ring Magazine ran an article on him. The article featured a picture of the Coast Guardsman on board his "ST" in England.

While in the Coast Guard, Sgt. Pennington served two tours of duty in Iceland. On one tour, his ship, the U.S.S. Haddock, was sunk by a German torpedo with the loss of three officers and 25 men of the crew. It was here that Pennington received his only mission of the war. He caught pneumonia from remaining in the frigid northern waters for three hours.

He then returned to the States from Oregon State. According to Coach Waits, Dickey is expected to join the CTC squad in the near future.

Other prospects include Art Johnson, a hurdler from Clark in Atlanta. Garan Smith, sprinter, Garfield Williams, mile relay, and Otis Perry, high jump.

SFC. H. PENNINGTON

Center in Japan for nine months and then back to the United States for his third branch of the Army when he was assigned to the 30th Infantry Regiment at Fort Benning in January, 1954.

What does this "jack-of-all-services" think of the Army? Well, he plans to make it his permanent career.

Co. C Leads ISD Tourney

After two weeks of play in the Infantry School Detachment double elimination volleyball tournament, Company C leads with two wins and no losses. Tied for second place are Companies E and F with one win each against no losses.

According to reports from Detachment A & R, Company H has a good team despite a record showing one loss and no wins. The best looking team so far, Company C, didn't win top position by accident. A&R reports indicate that this team has practice more than others in the competition. However, First Lt. Robert Collier, A&R Officer, reminds players that the trophy isn't won until the last game is played so any team, except Company A which is already eliminated, may win the tournament.

With the coming of post play in April, the CTC baseballers now move into the limelight. Since the beginning of practice on March 10, Coach Bill "Pepper" Martin has been priming his boys to take another crown.

During last season's play, the CTC swains finished in a three-way tie for second place. A season record of nine to six was compiled in post competition. From this team of last year, not a single player is back to date. However, the return of Harry Jones, as left fielder of last year's squad, is expected in the near future. He is presently attending a chemical specialists' school at Fort McClellan. At the end of last season, Jones had a .471 average and batted over .400 in Third Army play.

Post Boxers Win Six 3-Army Bouts

Six Fort Benning boxers emerged victorious in the first round of the Third Army Boxing Tournament at Fort Briggs Tuesday night.

For the defending champs Dick Woodley won by TKO over Bob Savage of Camp Gordon; Hilton Smith decimated bantamweights Oliver Reeder, Camp Rucker; and David Melton of Fort Jackson; Alvis Mathews decimated John Moten, a lightweight from Camp Stewart; light welterweight Herman Heston defeated Leon Nelson; welterweight Joel Wilson decimated Artis Smith of Camp Campbell; and James Boyd decimated George Kantelian, Camp Stewart, light heavyweight.

Camp Gordon Whips O'Brien Led Aberdeen

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — A rebounding Camp Gordon five bottled up All-American Johnny O'Brien and his brother Eddie in the second half of the second game of the All-Army Basketball Tournament as they whipped Aberdeen Proving Grounds 81-64 last week.

The dynamic Johnny O'Brien, although scoring 28 points, was held to only eight in the last half while the other Seattle twin Eddie could only hit for seven points throughout the game.

But it was rebounds that told the story for the Third Army Champs. They swept 41 shots off the boards, compared with 28 for the Provers, as they dominated both backboards.

The score was tied eight times and the lead changed hands eight times in the first half until Camp Gordon broke loose with 22 points in the third quarter to account for most of their victory margin.

Dick Koffenberger, from Maryland, paced the Rambler attack with 20 markers, while Caroly Gemma, ex-Mulhensberg college ace, was second with 18. Ed O'Brien, the Gordon forward, was limited to only two points, but he was one of the highlights under the board for the Gordon squad throughout the game.

Third Army eliminations also will be held here June 21-26, with three nine-man rifle and pistol teams and additional individual marksmen representing each installation in the army area.

Survivors will compete here in the All-Army Matches June 28-July 4. The 50 top marksmen in each of the rifle and pistol matches will comprise the Army team in the National Trophy Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 17-Sept. 6. Selection of the Army teams will be based on cumulative scores on 50-yard slow fire and 25-yard timed and rapid fire in the pistol matches, and 600-and 200-yard slow fire and 300- and 200-yard sustained fire in rifle competition.

Col. Smoot said that personnel competing for berths on the Army team will have to qualify to be eligible to enter the National Matches.

Competition Firing Slated To Start on Post May 1st

Competition firing to select a team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Matches will begin May 1. With a deadline for entering April 29 at Rifle & Pistol Headquarters.

Lt. Col. Richard H. Smoot, executive officer of the matches, expects every command on the post to enter at least two teams in the competition.

Pvt. Donna Lue Rogers of Hancock, Iowa, has been named Wac of the Month at Fort Benning. A graduate of Hancock Senior High School, Pvt. Rogers was active on the girls basketball team and served as president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship of the Methodist Church in Hancock.

She enlisted in the Women's Army Corps in June 1953, completed basic at Fort Lee, Va., and attended the Finance School at Fort Harrison, Ind., graduating Dec. 1, 1953.

Pvt. Rogers came to Fort Benning in January 1954 and is assigned to the Separation Section, Post Finance, The Infantry Center.

Soon after her arrival, she joined the Fort Benning Wac basketball team. Tourney Winners for March Announced by Lady Golfers

The post lady golfers held their monthly coffee last Wednesday with a wide variety of events sparking the get-together.

The winners of the ringer tournaments were revealed as follows: In the 18-hole event, low gross scores, Emmy Kurtz took top honors over Betty King as runner-up. Joyce Horn was the low net winner while Ruth Rafferty took second place honors. For the 9-hole group Pat Durr was the winner and Rita Hranicka runner up, for the low gross, Jean Armstrong and Audrey Clark took first and second respectively for low net scores.

The golf ball winners for the Friday tournaments during the month of March were Ann Carroll, Jean Armstrong, Rita Hranicka, Barbara Eisenhower, Vera Shaeffer, Dottie VanderHeide, Irene Curtiss, Fran Bolling and Min Cundiff. In the tournament of April 2 a piece of silver was at stake when Ruth Rafferty, Ginny Blair, Betty King and Alice Kieffer got all tangled up in a four-way tie for first place.

In the resulting drawing, Betty King chose the right slip of paper saying "winner" on it and toted home the silver, while Alice Kieffer won the runner-up golf ball. Col. Frank Elder had the distinction of being the only male present at the meeting, but only long enough to give a discourse on the disadvantages of appearing on the golf course in too-short shorts and halters of any type. Col. Elder pointed out that proper golf apparel is a skirt, slacks, pedal pushers or even shorts, providing they are from moderate length to the popular Bermuda length shorts. Halters of any type at all, including the kind with collars, are strictly taboo.

3-Star General Eulogizes Departing ROKs

A three-star Army general who saw an untrained South Korean Army grow into a formidable fighting force, addressed 153 ROK students last Thursday before they received their Infantry School diplomas and departed for their native land.

Lt. Gen. R. E. Jenkins (ret.) of Columbus, the first American commander of the South Korean Army on the fighting line, praised the Republic of Korea for its great strides toward a military force which now can be looked upon with pride.

"Speaking for myself," he said to the students, "we have no Allies I have greater respect for than you Koreans. When I joined your Army there was considerable doubt about the ability of your troops. It was my privilege to see your Army rise from a Boy Scout organization to full manhood as a fighting force."

The retired general also emphasized the value of having Allied students at The Infantry School. "We are happy to have our Allied officers attend classes here with us. Not only does it give them an opportunity to learn about our country, but also we can learn something of them, through personal contact, which will profit us if we have a stand side by side again in battle."

After the graduation the 153 students and three Korean interpreters, escorted by U. S. Army Major Carl W. Nelson of Fort Worth, Texas, boarded a train and began their journey to the West Coast and home.

JOHN SLAGLE (R) PRACTICES ON BUDDY Pfc. Don Sutherland Is About To 'Lose' Hand

Private Befuddles 30th Inf. With Bag of Magical Tricks

Many people have chased rabbits, since that time he has had no opportunity to practice his chosen profession. However, he keeps some equipment with him at all times, "just in case."

Quartermaster Ups 2 to 1st Lieutenant

The 20-year-old native of Santa Paula, Calif., began working in magic when he was 16. A professional magician became aware of the youngster's interest, took him under his wing, and taught him all the well-guarded secrets of the field.

Slagle has no one special act, but does a little of everything. He performs tricks with magic rings and handkerchiefs, makes things appear or disappear, and pull all sorts of things out of hats.

He has had the misfortune to have rabbits escape after they were pulled from a hat, and admits that it happened more than once. "I always draw wild ones, it seems."

Pvt. Slagle gave his last public performance at a carnival three days before entering the service.

Bayonet Was First Used in Bayonne, France, in 1647

WASHINGTON — The flashing point of hundreds of bayonets is a familiar sight in the U.S. Army's training camps. Bayonet drill is an integral part of basic training — but it's a far cry from the stylized fencing of old from which it derives. The olive drab helmets and heavy combat boots of today's bayonet wielder are in sharp contrast to the plumed hats and cavalier getup romantic fiction tells us those long-ago duels wore.

The word bayonet itself is a derivation of Bayonne, the name of a French town where, it is said, the forerunners of this weapon first were used in 1647. The Grenadier Guards in 1693 are said to have been the first regiment equipped with bayonets.

Manual came in 1852 . . . These early bayonet models stuck into the muzzle of his weapon to shield him from calvary charges. The Army's first bayonet fencing manual was printed more than a century ago. In 1852, Captain George McClellan translated a French work on bayonet instruction into English. The system this book outlined was used, with minor changes, until World War I.

This early system, which closely followed fencing practice with the foil or saber, was defensive in nature. Soldiers were taught four main parries, with thirty "radical movements" — all in twelve long lessons.

Uses 'Everything' Today's soldier, learns offensive bayonet fighting. The two parries now in use are offensive and defensive movements, intended to knock aside the enemy's bayonet and force an opening.

The bayonet is to be used in instances where the soldier cannot fire a shot — conditions of low visibility or at close quarters, for instance — or when his ammunition is exhausted. The modern bayonet fighter's attack is a continuous succession of movement in which he uses his rifle butt, the bayonet itself, the feet and the knees.

Confidence in ability to fight skillfully with this weapon is a strong, repeatedly emphasized factor in bayonet training. Trainees are exhorted to get the "spirit of the bayonet." Their practice parries, thrusts and other movements are done in unison to shouted commands. The trainee also must accompany each movement with the most ferocious shout or roar he can muster.

Korea Spurred Use The soldier must learn to handle his rifle and bayonet while scaling a wall, crawling through wire obstacles and balancing a log "bridge" over a gully.

Korea saw a sharp upturn in use

'Lot of Hard Work' Needed For Guard Supernumerary Job

Although he has been detailed for guard duty six times during his year in the Army, Pfc. Burgess D. Obergon of La Paz, Philippine Island, has never walked a guard post.

Because of his superior appearance and military bearing, Obergon has been supernumerary five times and was once selected corporal of the guard, a duty normally assigned to noncommissioned officers only. As supernumerary, he is excused from walking a post except in an emergency.

The young soldier attributes his record to "a lot of hard work before guard mount and my consideration of guard as an honor, not a duty."

A good shoe shine, polished brass, a clean uniform, a spotless weapon, and a thorough knowledge of the 11 general orders and the Army chain of command, are all it takes to be a supernumerary, says Obergon. "Anyone can do it," he says.

STRICTLY FRESH

WITH all the irresponsible charges being made in Washington, it's beginning to look like an unbalanced budget isn't as bad for the country as an unbalanced congressman.

There's nothing wrong with having nothing to say, unless you say it.

It may not be long before scientists go to the moon to look at the H-bomb craters on earth!

The Internal Revenue Service recently received a tax return from a woman who claimed her dog's toenail clippings as part of her medical expenses. Two clippings for the price of one, eh?

In Boston, a woman sought annulment of her marriage, charging that the bridegroom departed when she dozed off during her wedding banquet. She was caught napping.

COUNTRY PLAYERS

LES CARROLL

COUNTRY recordings are getting fancy these days, with choral backgrounds, echo chambers and multiple recording effects.

Using multiple recording, Zeke Clements (MGM) gives a beautiful rendition of "Thank You, Lord," in which he sings all the parts and plays all the instruments... and composed it, too.

Echo effects are nicely featured in Jim Reeves' "Echo Bonito," backed by a smooth ballad, "Then I'll Stop Loving You" (Abbott).

Two excellent releases with choral backgrounds are Red Foley's "Robe of Calvary" (Decca), and Tex Ritter's "Brave Man" (Capitol).

Some new artists have exceptionally fine first recordings. These are Jack Turner's "Walkin' a Chalk Line" and Ruby Wells' "Why Fall So Slowly?" on Victor. Also, "I Can Hear the Harbor Bells" by Mollie Anne & Slim (Columbia), and at Terry's "Good Deal, Lucille" (Hickory), Carl Smith's "Back Up Buddy" (MGM).

BRIG. GEN. ANDREW P. O'MERA TAKES TRAINING Here From Army Research and Developments Section.

General, Two Colonels Win Airborne Wings at Exercise

A brigadier general and two colonels were among the 14 officers and 32 enlisted men who received airborne wings at Infantry School graduation exercises at Fort Benning last Thursday.

Brig. Gen. Aubrey S. Newman, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, pinned parachute wings on Brig. Gen. Andrew P. O'Mera of the Army's G-4 Section, Washington, D. C.; Col. William J. McCaffrey, assistant commandant of cadets at West Point, and Col. Edward P. Smith, secretary of The Infantry School.

In his address to the graduates of airborne class No. 33, Gen. Newman said, "It is not the silver wings that have given the airborne the great reputation it has. It is the conduct and actions of its men. 'Jumping is only part of being airborne,' the general continued.

Three That Army officers have arrived at Fort Benning to take 15 weeks of specialized training at The Infantry School. They are Lt. Rudens Remwt, Praphondh Vi-sotara and Somsakdi Ransibramh-manakul. The course opened yesterday.

CTC Moving To Harmony, Post Areas

The Combat Training Command Monday began its two-pronged move out of the Benning area to make room for units of the 47th Division.

Most of the units including the 30th Infantry and The Artillery are scheduled to move into the spacious new concrete barracks on Main Post. However, three units, the 19th Field Artillery Battalion, 774d Tank Battalion, and 87th Chemical Smoke Company will set up headquarters in Harmony Church and the 78th Engineer Battalion with attached units will remain in Harmony Church area.

The 198th completed its move to Harmony Church in 24 hours Monday and other units are scheduled to make their moves to new locations by May 21st.

Maj. William Pinson, CTC S-3, said there would be no interruption in school commitments even if it became necessary for troops to leave on orders for a day or problems and report to a new area that night, the move being accomplished by remaining troops.

The 30th Infantry Regiment will move to new barracks, similar to those occupied by the First Student Regiment, near Dixie Road on the Main Post. The 1st Field Artillery Battalion is moving to the Main Post's Airborne area. The 774d Tank Battalion and 198th Field Artillery Battalion are moving to the Harmony Church area where the Second Student Regiment was formerly located. Motor pools had to be constructed entirely, including removing trees and brush from the area, to handle the vehicles of these two units.

The new buildings to be occupied by the 30th are rapidly approaching completion. Eight are already completed and will house the Second and Third Battalions. Four others, which will house the First Battalion are expected to be completed this week. Four more, to house the Headquarters and Presidential Battalion, will be completed individually.

Lt. Alexander Pens The Best Army Cartoon

First Lt. Charles E. Alexander, public information officer for the First OC Regiment, has been awarded a Pat-on-the-Back citation from the Armed Forces Press Service, New York, N. Y., for a cartoon he submitted for publication in the Bayonet.

It showed a surprised soldier looking back over his shoulder, surveying the missing seat of his pants after having fired a bazooka lying down, and was adjudged by AFPS as the best cartoon appearing in any post Army newspaper for the month of January 1954.

Cartoons by Lt. Alexander appear regularly in The Bayonet under the caption, OCS Capades. Mostly they show how not to use Infantry weapons and the amusing, if not dire, consequences of their misuse.

The cartoonist says his ideas come from actual situations occurring while men are training. "I just watch them and develop a situation that could occur if they didn't handle their weapons properly."

Lt. Alexander is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Alexander of Tallmadge, Ohio. He has a BS degree in fine arts from Kent State University from which he graduated in 1952.

MEET 'SAM' . . . John G. Carroll, or "Sam Spade," is solving the mysteries of OCS in 13th Officer Candidate Company. A student criminologist training for an Ordnance commission, he has studied investigations, police supervision, criminal psychology, and judo.

General Visits Troops of 47th

Major Gen. Richard W. Stephens, 47th Infantry Division commander, was at Fort Benning last Thursday to inspect Viking troops which have moved in from Camp Rucker, Ala.

The 47th commander visited the Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas to see what progress artillery units and the 104th Infantry Regiment are making toward settling in their new home.

The division artillery has already begun an interim training program and the 47th Reconnaissance Company, which arrived Monday, will start training in about two weeks, according to Lt. William R. Ponder, commander.

Post Requires Vaccinations

Rabies vaccinations for animals brought from Camp Rucker, Ala., will be required three days after arrival at Fort Benning, Lt. Col. George M. Kerr, Infantry Center veterinarian, has announced.

Vaccinations will be given to animals two months old and over at the Post Veterinary Clinic Mondays through Fridays from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Col. Kerr said that vaccinations will not be required for animals who received injections during the past 10 months, providing owners can present vaccination certificates from Camp Rucker.

All animals must be registered on post, according to Col. Kerr.

DAFT RAFT

New York (AP)—Josef Bleick, a visitor from Chicago, was picked up in the middle of the East River. He had become confused by the tunnels, bridges and subways in trying to get from Brooklyn to Manhattan. He used the simplest means he could find to make the trip—a raft.

Q—If a tornado should hit them, what help could they expect from the Red Cross?

A—The Red Cross will operate with other agencies of the stricken community to give emergency aid—the specific responsibility being to help your family find temporary shelter, provide them with food and clothing, and assure that anyone injured gets needed medical attention. Your wife or telephone call of inquiry about their welfare will get prompt attention by a corps of volunteers detailed to this specific job.

Q—They say the Red Cross, in time of disaster, helps rebuild homes and furnishes them. How does this work?

A—The Red Cross has a plan of long-term aid available to all families stricken by disaster who need help beyond their own resources. For instance, the Red Cross will help to the extent necessary in replacing storm-ruined home furnishings, help pay hospital and medical expenses of the injured, and, in the case of home owners, help in homes reconstruction. This assistance is given on the basis of storm-caused need, not actual losses. There is no obligation of repayment. Money provided for this purpose is an outright grant, never as a loan.

Unknowns Will Be Reentered

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. The unidentified remains of United States servicemen who lost their lives during the military operations in Korea will be permanently interred in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, at Honolulu, Hawaii, according to a formal report from the Department of Defense.

A directive issued by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson assigns to the Department of the Army the operational responsibility for the preparation, casketing, transportation, and final interment of these remains, and provides for coordination with Department of the Navy and Department of the Air Force in planning, development, and execution of the program. At the present, the unidentified remains of servicemen who lost their lives in Korea are being held at the U. S. Army's Identification Laboratory at Kofu, Japan. These remains were recovered from the Southern regions of the peninsula where teams of the American Graves Registration Service have been able to perform search operations. It is anticipated that about 700 eventually may have

Work Continues

The work of identification now being done by the Kofu Laboratory is necessarily time-consuming since every known scientific identification technique is applied to each case before a final determination is made that the remains cannot be individually identified. Additional search of former combat areas, now inaccessible to United States personnel, is also necessary for completion of the case investigations. Because of these factors it is expected that the removal of the remains of unknowns to Hawaii probably will not begin before 1955.

The American Graves Registration Service expects to recover additional remains from North Korea at such time as the Military Armistice Commission establishes the conditions under which search operations in former combat North Korean areas may be conducted. Any of the remains hereafter recovered which cannot be individually identified will also permanently interred in the Hawaii Cemetery.

Red Cross Quiz

Q—My family lives in a section of the country where there is danger of tornadoes, particularly during April. What steps should they take for protection?

A—Short of a good storm cellar, they will do well to follow these simple rules for self-preservation if a tornado approaches: If in the open, lie flat on the ground, preferably in a ditch. If inside a building, try to get to the lowest level. Seek the corner of the room nearest the approaching twister—usually the room facing the southeast—crouch under a heavy table or furniture. Open doors and windows on north and east sides of the house.

Foreign Policy Discussed In April Officer's Call

U. S. Foreign Policy, one of the most interesting and controversial topics of world discussion, has been assigned as the subject for the April issue of Officers' Call. This special subject for Officers' Call has been prepared in pamphlet form by the Troop Information and Education Section, TIC. It presents a condensed version of the material which has been supplied by departments of the government for distribution to military personnel.

Post TI&E Tackles Problem Of Accidents in Week's Topic

In conjunction with the ever-increasing loss of service personnel due to traffic mishaps, the Troop Information Hour for the week of April 26 will be Armed Forces Talk No. 46, "Live and Let Live." This is directed specifically to the military of servicemen who menace life and property when behind the wheel of a privately-owned vehicle.

To assist the conference leader in his presentation, the Information Division, TI&E Section, of the Infantry Center, has published a fact sheet which contains the motor safety record of Fort Benning during the first three months of 1954. Particulars relating to accidents involving post personnel are listed on the sheet along with a consolidated quiz to be presented with the period.

Varied interpretation of regulations is often by the instances of traffic violations. An informed soldier can greatly aid the Armed Forces' present policy to reduce traffic accidents by going to the source—the individual driver.

Statistics, as dull and dry as they may be, cannot be overlooked. In 1953, 38,000 persons were killed in the United States as a result of traffic accidents and additional 1,350,000 were injured. Today, the World War II, when the remains of 2,001 unknowns from the Pacific Theater were buried there. The unknowns from Korea will also join the 216 identified dead of the Korean conflict who have been returned to Hawaii and interred in their next of kin.

Following World War I, the remains of 1,347 unidentified dead were permanently interred in the eight United States military cemeteries in Europe. One symbolic unknown of that war was returned to the United States and interred in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, in Arlington National Cemetery, on Armistice Day, 1921.

Approximately 9,350 unknowns of World War II have been similarly interred overseas national and military cemeteries in Europe, North Africa, the Republic of the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico. The return for interment in Arlington National Cemetery of a symbolic unknown serviceman of World War II is provided for in Public Law 428, 79th Congress, but plans to carry out this provision will also permanently interred in the Hawaii Cemetery.

The plan to bury the unknown Americans from the Korean conflict in the Hawaii Cemetery follows a precedent set following the wishes of the next of kin.

Changes in Policy, to Meet the Changes in World Conditions

Changes in policy, to meet the changes in world conditions, have been made more and more worthy of study and understanding. To satisfy this need, military authorities have become aware of the need for a wider dissemination of the basic fundamentals upon which our foreign relations have been set up.

The talk points out that the objectives of foreign policy are often denied to all, but the individual is not acquainted with the fact that everybody in the United States has a part in formulating this policy. The various agencies of the government that make up these courses of action are dependent upon the people for support. The main roles of the particular departments of the government are outlined with their own system of planning foreign policy.

Finally, the talk covers the role of the Armed Forces in the security of the United States where the policy is "the cutting edge of foreign policy in war—which is the violent form of policy implementation." The mission of a diplomat and the armed forces in general are naturally closely related. So too, is their mission in regards to the foreign policy that has been established by the United States.

A clear picture of traffic regulations and their interpretations is given in the talk, along with helpful checks on a man's ability and readiness to operate a vehicle. The safety campaign for the armed forces is outlined to discuss what constructive steps the services have taken to prevent the continued recurrence of this wasteful destruction.

It is up to the serviceman to develop the safety habit with his own application of the points covered in the conference and he is further aided by a careful coverage of rules for defensive driving. A personal note is added to the talk with a complete answer to the question of how he can drive and stay alive.

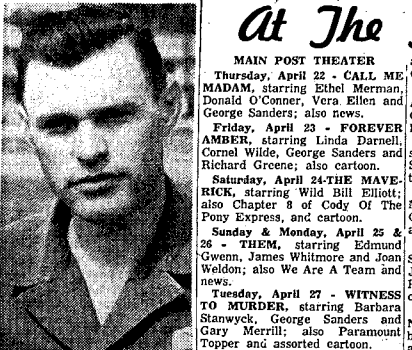

Earl Wilson reports that Sammy Kaye stopped a heckler with his line: "Hear they're going to do your life story on 'It Pays To Be Ignorant.'"

Youth Group Plans Started

Plans have been made to organize a Youth Group composed of teen-age children of infantry center personnel.

Formal organization of the Youth Group was discussed last night when parents and other interested persons met at the Girl Scout House at Fort Benning.

Leaders in formulating the plans are Chaplain (Capt.) Clarence D. Williams and Mrs. Norman H. Wiley. They have arranged a tentative religious program which will include Christian instruction and guidance through religious movies, quizzes and discussions of topics of interest to teenagers. Recreation and refreshments also are included in the over-all program.

Meetings will be held at 8:30 p.m. every Sunday at the Girl Scout House.

Post Poet to Give Reading on Sunday

Pfc. H. A. Sieber, Fort Benning post, will present a public reading of the poems of Cosmo Dokos, Columbia author and businessman, at the W. C. Bradley Memorial Library at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Sieber, who lectured on modern poetry and read his own poems at the library last January, will read selections from Dokos' book "Meditations in Verse," published last year by the Doran Company. Temporary Poets series. He also read his own poem, "A Morning Fawn, Mr. Dokos," an essay on short poems by Dokos entitled "Woodland Tragedy."

During the 1930s, Dokos was a regular contributor in several newspapers in the Columbus area. Hundreds of his poems have appeared in numerous periodicals, and for many years, he was referred to by name as the "poet laureate of Columbus."

The public is invited to attend the reading.

CURVES AHEAD . . . What lovely forehead, rain followed by curvaceous Dianne Foster dressed in a dainty parasol and plastic raincoat. Dianne will soon be seen in Columbia's "Drive a Crooked Road." We hope the visibility is good.

Grey-Green Now Proposed For General Duty Wearing

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—A new Army uniform, grey-green in color, has been proposed for general duty wear, according to information received from Department of the Army.

Extensive field surveys indicated that the new uniform, designed to raise esprit in the Army, is a highly popular choice among officers and enlisted men. The uniform, known as Army Green, shade 44, has been presented to Congress during a series of briefings held recently.

If adopted it will mark the first trend away from the familiar Army khaki and olive drab shades in more than half a century. It will be worn by both officers and enlisted men.

If procurement of the Army Green uniform begins in the near future, troops are expected to start receiving clothing in the new color in about 18 months. Existing stocks of the olive drab uniforms will be used by the Army until the supply now on hand is exhausted, however.

The uniform consists of a dignified and distinctive blouse and matching pants.

With Broadcloth Shirt

The blouse, which corresponds to the civilian suit coat, is designed to hang smartly from the shoulders. It is a single-breasted, semi-form fitting sack coat extending below the hips, with no pronounced flare or waistline seam. The blouse has the traditional military shoulder loops, two breast pockets with vertical box pleats and buttoned flaps. The garment has two side pockets, also with buttoned flaps.

The Army Green pants will be worn without cuffs. They have no pleats.

Present plans call for the uniform to be worn with a broadcloth shirt, black four-in-hand tie, black socks, and black shoes. A conventional visor cap will be prescribed for wear with it.

Army Green will be mandatory dress for most officers who are not actively engaged in training troops in the field or whose duties do not require special uniforms. Enlisted men who work at the Pentagon, Army Headquarters, and as clerks and orderlies at various installations will be required to wear the new uniform during their duty hours. It will also be worn by troops at parades, ceremonies, inspections, and while men are either off duty or in a travel status. The uniform is not designed for field use.

Tradition Not Involved

Objection to the olive drab jacket and trousers was raised because it was a camouflage color and not chosen originally for appearance. Civilian consultants to the Army agreed that the color was not satisfactory. No real tradition was involved in its use. As a practical matter, there were many difficulties in dyeing and matching the cloth.

As World War II receded, it was found that the olive drab uniform was becoming less distinctive with each passing year. Thousands of uniforms in shade 33 had been distributed outside of the military. Foreign troops, displaced persons, and even some prisoners of war, had been issued the clothing. Former servicemen were wearing parts of the uniform as work clothing. In addition to the lack of distinctiveness, officers studying the problem determined that the design of the uniform itself was no longer satisfactory. The OP-33 uniform had been issued as the first place as a dual-purpose garment for both field (combat) and general duty wear. The jacket was not only hard to fit to most men, but was frequently too informal for use at ceremonies requiring clothing of dignity and smart appearance.

Efforts to change the general duty uniform were initiated in 1946.

COL. G. W. CARTER ... Machine-Gunned Foe

1st SR Pupil Won DSC in WW II Philippine Action

Lt. Col. George W. Carter, who is taking the field officer refresher course in Fifth Company, First Student Regiment, holds the Nation's second highest award for valor — the Distinguished Service Cross.

Col. Carter was a captain in the Southwest Pacific at the time that he earned the award. He was serving as executive officer for the First Battalion, 382nd Infantry Regiment. He was leading his men through the Leyte jungle when they were subjected to merciless machine gun fire. Working his way through the undergrowth, he spotted the enemy position. He immediately charged it and hurled two hand grenades, which neutralized the emplacement.

While returning to his company, he was wounded by a sniper's bullet. Disregarding his wound, he directed an artillery barrage on the foe. Still suffering from the wound, Carter returned to the jungle where he rendered first aid to a casualty, sustaining another wound himself.

Along with the DSC, the veteran of 14 years service holds the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart and numerous other ribbons. At present he is preparing for an assignment in Hawaii.

LT. M. E. HAYNES ... Ban on Burglars

Detective Taking Infantry Training While at Benning

First Lt. Myron E. Haynes, a National Guardsman training with the 114th Company of the First Student Regiment, changed from cop to soldier when he came to Fort Benning for the associate infantry company officers course.

He was employed by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office as a detective sergeant on the explosives detail and as investigator on the safe-burglary squad.

During this time he had many interesting experiences but the one that stands out in his memory was a $32,000 safe-robbery job. He investigated about four safe crackings a day.

He says that more safe burglaries take place during the winter, with its long nights and fog. He also said that criminals used several different methods in safe cracking, but the one encountered most was either a "torch" or explosive charge. He said that there were several cases when safe and all were stolen.

Mess Halls Readied For 1,500 Cadets

Post Host Again To Jamboree

The annual Georgia-Alabama Boy Scout Jamboree will be held at Fort Benning again this year from May 14 to 17, Muscogee County Field Executive Harold Dudley said.

Joe Nelson of Columbus has been appointed field director of the jamboree, which is expected to draw more than 450 Boy Scouts, according to returns from troops receiving invitations.

The three-day Jamboree will be held in the wooded area near Blessing Street.

Events planned include camp craft demonstrations, signaling, compass reading, practice of first aid, and fire building with flint, steel, and friction.

Signal Employees Win Suggestion Awards

Civilian employees of the Signal Section's Field Maintenance Shop found that putting their minds and skills to work for the Army can pay off.

Under the section's improvement suggestions program, four workers already have been rewarded for ideas and two other suggestions are pending action by the Efficiency Awards Committee.

Anthony Rassano, who suggested use of a metal stand to hold radio sets while they are being repaired, has received $80.

His suggestion was forwarded to the Army's Signal Office in Washington, D. C. which recommended an additional $25.

Mrs. Margaret Kelly received $40 for devising a day - by - day log which will reduce by half the time needed to compile monthly reports for Third Army.

Albert Martin, who received $125 last year for suggesting the use of four soldering irons to disengage the glass from hermetically sealed meters used to test signal equipment, has submitted another idea which he claims will aid in repairing radio transmitters and receivers.

This idea is pending action by the awards committee along with that of Cecil Schotfield, who has submitted color-coded diagrams said to reduce time needed to check radio circuits.

The Field Maintenance Shop has 20 military personnel and 13 civilian employees. It is headed by CWO Willur J. Whitt of Coupsville, Wash. Joe Bullard is shop foreman.

Principal speaker at the ceremony was Lt. Col. Harlos V. Hatter, assistant G-4.

This is the first of five classes designed to train Army supply personnel. The 30-hour course of instruction is being conducted by a mobile supply demonstration team from the Department of Army.

Officer's Softball Under Way on Post

With all the enthusiasm and excitement of opening day at Ebbetts Field, the newly formed TIC Softball League got under way at Blue Field Tuesday night. The League for officers is composed of 11 teams from the various departments on the post under the direction of Col. Maurice Stratta and Maj. William Brodbeck. The teams will battle for the Post Championship throughout the summer with the schedule divided into two halves. The winner of the first half will meet in a play-off with the winner of the second half to decide the final champion. Teams will play every Monday and Wednesday night on Blue Field at 8:30.

Flickertails Slated For Post Competition

The 164th Infantry Regiment, Fort Benning's newest unit, has lost no time jumping into the Infantry Center sports picture. Under the direction of Lt. William M. Cash, athletic and recreation officer, the 47th Infantry Division's Flickertails are slated to play 19 games in the first half of the post baseball league, including several at their former home, Camp Rucker, Ala. "It's going to be a grind," says Cash, "since we'll be playing more games in half a season up here than we played in a whole season at Rucker. The schedule calls for a game almost every other day, against teams we've never met before. But everyone is enthusiastic, and that's what counts." On the volleyball courts, the 164th's Company B team won the Camp Rucker championship and is slated to represent the Alabama post in the Third Army tournament at Fort McClellan, Ala., May 19-23.

Officers' Mess To Sponsor Tennis Tournament in May

The Fort Benning Officers' Mess will sponsor its first tennis tournament of the year May 8-15. It was announced last week by Lt. Col. E. O. Logan, chairman of the Officers' Mess Committee. In addition to being open to all male members of the mess, Col. Logan said, this year a number of outstanding civilian players from local communities will be invited to compete. It is the first time since 1929 that civilians have played in mess tennis tournaments. Col. Logan said. At that time Bryan M. "Bity" Grant of Atlanta, who was just starting his climb to international tennis fame, won the tournament. "We don't know at this time how many civilians will send in

Divarty Redlegs Take First Three Contests

The Divarty Redlegs hung up their second win in two starts by dumping Combat Training Command, 8-3, at Bullet Field. Looming large in the Divarty win scheme were five errors afield by the Commanders along with eight bases on balls surrendered by Combat Training Command hurlers. CTC committed four errors in the second frame which showed Divarty ahead, 3-0, without benefit of a base hit. Five walks and a double contributed heavily to another three-run outburst by the Redlegs in the fifth and iced the game for Divarty. Hit totals were fairly even, four for the Redlegs and three for the Commanders, but CTC was unable to get more than one hit in any inning and the fielding lapses proved to be the difference.

STC-Medics Special Troops Command's Slugging Raiders

Special Troops Command's slugging Raiders enjoyed a field day at the expense of Medic Fielders, blasting out 21 base hits in a 14-5 walk at Bullet Field. Right Fielder Carlin Howell was the big gun in the Raiders' arsenal, smacking a home run, a triple and three singles in six trips to the plate. Howell received plenty of support at the plate from mates Carl Benz, three for five, and Mel Grant, four for five. The Raiders jumped to a four-run lead in the opening inning, five singles and some nifty base-running doing most of the damage. STC then coasted along with two runs each in the second and third, then exploded with seven consecutive singles in the seventh to ram home five more insurance tallies. Provisional Medical I Group's John Kirwan, a former University of Pennsylvania performer, did most of the Medic hitting, with two hits in two appearances at the plate. Dick McKinnon, first of three Raider twirlers, received credit for the win. Special Troops Command's third in a row without a loss.

ISD-Omaha Professional Touch of the Omaha Cardinals

The professional touch of the Omaha Cardinals was more than the Infantry School Detachment Profs could handle last week at Gowdy Field and when the carnation ended it was Omaha, 12-3. Ace right-hander Del Bandy set the Cards down handily for three innings, giving up only two hits. Bandy went out at the end of the third, under a rotation plan set up by the ISD board of strategy, and his successors met with harsh treatment by Omaha. The Cardinals, dormant for three stanzas, cut loose in the 45-minute fourth inning to notch 10 runs on eight hits off three Prof pitchers. Manager Hal Grinols had to come on with two away to put out the conflagration. Grinols went the rest of the way for the Profs, and Championship team.

TIC Boxers Drop 3A Title To Fort Bragg

Fort Benning's defending 1953-54 TIC boxing champions returned last weekend from the 1954 tournament at Fort Bragg, N. C., minus the crown they had taken from Bragg last year. Benning finished second with a total of 21 points to Bragg's 31. It was the new champions' new fifth victory in six shots at the title. Action opened with Benning's Regis Blair dropping the decision to Felix Quintero of Rucker. Hermin Hilton of Benning put the team back into contention with a decision over Leon Thomas of Bragg. Highly rated Ed Crook, the one returning veteran from the champion 1953 squad, easily erased his opponent, William Benjamin of Fort Jackson. After suffering the slings of little Crook's powerful attack, Benjamin fell before the onslaught and was credited with Benning's first KO. William Henry, welterweight, did not fare as well as Crook and the win went to Al Coleman of Rucker. Benning suffered its first stunning upset when Charles Colley, their big hope for the heavyweight title, hit the canvas in his bout with Jimmy Johnson of Fort Jackson. Johnson's bad luck continued in the opening match of the semi-final with Meador of Fort Bragg to Al Coleman of Rucker. Crook won the duke over post champion Hilton Smith in the bantam class. The Georgia squad was able to bounce back from their defeats, however, and took two bouts in a row. Richard Woodley scored a TKO over Campbell's Sad Sam Smith and Ed Crook continued his winning ways with a decision over Joe Salvetto of Fort Campbell. Rucker returned to plague the Benning squad and Charles Gray of the Flickertail aggregation set back Joel Wilson in the middleweight and Ed Crook continued to have replaced Joe Davis, who did not make the trip. Jim Boyd, who was rated a strong contender for the light-heavy crown, got the nod over William Wren of Fort Jackson. The finals were held on Saturday and the TIC squad sent four contestants in the ring. Dick Woodley opened up for the Benning squad and won an impressive decision over Jack Cole of Fort Jackson for the Third Army flyweight championship. Hermin Hinton of TIC could not match the power of Jackson's Sammy Johnson and dropped the light welterweight contest. Ed Crook, captain of the Benning squad, stepped a notch higher from his runner-up slot in 1953, when he decided Eugene Walden of the Fort Bragg team in the light middleweight class. In the light heavy go between Ed Jenkins of Campbell and Jimmy Boyd of TIC, the Kentucky representative proved the stronger and took the decision. Crook and Woodley will be on the Third Army team that travels to Fort Bliss, Texas, for the Army Championship Tournament, May 3 to 7.

Fisher Finds No Fun In FB Fishing

Most Fishermen have beautiful stories to tell about their catch and the day's outing, but not a Fort Benning officer whose name, by the way, just happens to be Fisher. Capt. Carl A. Fisher, assigned to the Headquarters Commandant Section, TIC, believes he broke a fishing record—a hard luck record, that is. Hoping to make a big showing in the Fishing Tournament held last week-end at King's Pond, he arose a 4:30 a.m., and his day began with happenings in the following order: Forgot boat keys and had to break lock; someone else fishing at favorite spot; no big bites; boat sprang a leak and he had to bail water out every 30 minutes; ashamed of catch and didn't turn fish in to tournament officials; a bat struck him on the head; a water moccasin ate the fish he had tied to the boat, and on his way home after dark he had a flat tire.

Airborne Daredevils Copy Archery Of William Tell

Specialized talents are something not unusual in the variety of past occupations or hobbies of men in the service, but many lack the excitement that was found recently in Headquarters and Service Company of the Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment. Pfc. Donald R. Handy has the ability that Robin Hood boasted, that of being an expert archer. In the past he has hunted with his bow and arrow and has been quite successful in killing deer and small game. Only recently, though, did the young soldier successfully copy the feat of the famous William Tell. A friend, Pvt. Anthony Messier also of H. & S. Company, agreed to let the archer shoot a cereal box off his head. The feat was completed without mishap and Pvt. Messier still has a head. The cereal box, one of the individual serving size suffered considerable damage.

Former Jockey Now Airborne Rider For Company A, 1st SR

A jockey with more than 300 mounts to his credit now works with the duty section of Company A, First Student Regiment, Pvt. John C. Parrillo of Providence, R. I., entered the Army in October of 1952 after four years of hard work at the Sport of Kings in America. Parrillo graduated from Cranston High School in 1948 and the following year he rode his first stake race. In the year after his graduation from school, Parrillo served his apprenticeship by breaking yearling horses for the track. Among the many horses he broke during this time was a future winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. After earning his airborne wings, Parrillo was assigned to Company A as a cook. This is probably the reason why he is now so heavy in return to racing horses when he is discharged and has decided to go back to breaking yearlings.

The game was far from over as the Staff Department rallied to fill the bases in the last of the ninth with only one out. Lt. Col. McWaters drilled a line drive toward left field that the third baseman, Lt. Norman, deflected into the hands of the shortstop, Lt. Stratton, who threw to second for a game-ending double play. The Season's Committee and the First OC Regiment fought a tight pitcher's duel with committeeman, Lt. Bridges, holding the OC Regiment to four hits. The batter of a 6-3 victory. A solid swing from the bat of Lt. Chapman, over the head of the left fielder, food for four bases, ruffled Lt. Bridges in the fifth inning and widened led to two more runs for the losers. The winning hurler recovered, however, and his match-nibble away at losing pitcher, Lt. Barker, for six runs and the win. Next Monday's games pit the Non-Resident Line Batters Department against the Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Regiment against the Staff Department and the 195th FA Battalion against the Tactics Department. Wednesday's games will be between the First OC Regiment and the Administrative and Communications Committee, and the Weapons Department and Special Troops Company.

CAN I HAVE A CIGARETTE... Belgian Army First Lt. Ferdinand H. Dohy, right, a NATO trainee at the Infantry School, learns something about America's favorite sport, which is not played in his country, from members of the Brigade Medics' team. Lt. Dohy, is enrolled in the communications officer's course.

Belgian Intrigued by U.S. Life, Food

A bright-eyed Belgian Army officer was learning how to use a U. S. Army walkie-talkie this week as part of his study of communications at the Infantry School. This is an entirely new role for First Lt. Ferdinand R. Dohy. He is a student now instead of an instructor at the Belgian Infantry School in Arlon.

However, the new role impresses him as does the U. S. with its vast number of cars and tomato catchup. The 26-year-old Allied student, a 1951 graduate of the Ecole Royale Militaire in Brussels, is taking full advantage of the 12 and one-half week Infantry communications officers' course. Taught by the Communications Department, the course is designed to train Army personnel in the technique, characteristics, installation, operation and maintenance of Infantry communications systems.

His subjects include message center operation and cryptography, radio operation, fundamentals of electrical and radio equipment and maintenance, wire communication and tactics, and applied communications. He also is receiving instruction in tactical and staff subjects, including some physical training. Lt. Dohy prefers the tactical communication instruction over the technical and finds the studies at Fort Benning different from those at the Belgian Infantry School, where he has taught for the past year and a half.

"The instruction here isn't as depicting life in the Islands; the Ship Ahoy Act, featuring two soldiers on a home bound ship discussing plans for enjoying night life in New York after two years overseas. The show will also include the Night Club Act, exposing the sinister realities of night life in a "dive"; the Hillbilly Act, offering the latest hits in hillbilly music, and Rags to Riches Act, a story of a theater star who ignores her most ardent admirer. Cpl. Roy Alford, who wrote the production, is director, and Pvt. Ronald Burton is the song and dance stylist. Both are members of Company B, First Special Troops Battalion, Alford is a graduate of the Goodman Theater of Arts Institute in Chicago and a member of the Screen Actors Guild. Burton was a nightclub entertainer in the Midwest before entering the Army. The public is invited to the free showing at the Main Theater.

S. and Allied business, industrial, cultural and military leaders are scheduled to attend the three-day conference which is designed to show the American taxpayer how the Army spends its dollars for national defense. Also among the conferees, the number of which has not been announced, will be students and officials of U. S. service schools. A program of demonstrations, displays of Infantry weapons and briefings on the Infantry School's training methods and facilities have been planned for the group while at The Infantry Center. The new troop housing project is the purposed billet area for the visitors.

In addition to Fort Benning, the dignitaries also will tour Marine, Air Force and Naval bases.

Medal of Honor Winner in First SR

How many awards for heroism can a man earn and still live? Maj. Raymond Harvey, a student in Fourth Company, First Student Regiment, is the holder of the Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, three Silver Stars, two Bronze Stars, three Purple Hearts, the Croix de Guerre with Palm, and the Distinguished Unit Citation.

The Medal of Honor was earned while serving as captain of Company C, 17th Infantry Regiment, near Taerri-Dong, Korea, on March 9, 1951. There he distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty.

When his company was pinned down by a barrage of automatic weapons fire from numerous well entrenched emplacements which imperiled accomplishment of his mission, Maj. Harvey braved a hail of fire and exploding grenades to advance to the enemy machine gun nest and kill its crew.

Rushing to the edge of the new emplacement he killed its crew with carbine fire. He then moved forward until it was halted by a certain of automatic fire from well fortified positions. Disregarding the hail of fire, he charged a platoon forward until the third placement. Spotting an enemy pill box well camouflaged by logs, he moved close enough to sweep the employment with carbine fire throw grenades through the open-ings, and annihilate its occupants.

Wounded, Maj. Harvey ordered the company forward, continued to direct the reduction of the remaining hostile positions, and refused evacuation until assured that the mission would be accomplished. Major Harvey was presented the award by President Truman.

Maj. Harvey, who hails from Pasadena, Cal., entered the Army in 1939 and worked to the rank of first sergeant before entering OCS in 1942. Upon entering the Army he was assigned to Company B, 38th Infantry, and in 1949 he became company commander of this same company.

Ex-POW Wanted to Be Freed, Not 'Liberated'

Many men who were prisoners of war must have had the same feeling as Capt. Roy H. Russell of the First Student Regiment. This feeling was, "I wanted to be liberated instead of repatriated."

Capt. Russell, who was serving with the Ninth Infantry Regiment when captured in 1951, believes that the overall aim of the Communists was to make the prisoners more susceptible to their doctrine by a lack of facilities, terrible living conditions, and humiliation. To support this, he cites many examples of no medical facilities, no sanitation, malnutrition, and no warm clothing.

Capt. Russell was one lucky in regard to being able to once escape, but his luck soon ran out. Nine days later he was captured by the North Korean Secret Police. He was turned over to the Chinese who punished him severely before sending him back to the camp. He was tied up and placed in the middle of the street where civilians beat him with sticks and whips. At the POW camp he was sentenced to 30 days confinement for his escape and 30 days more for having a hostile attitude.

Capt. Russell began his military career in 1940 at Fort Lewis, Wash and served with Patton's Seventh Army in Europe during World War II. Upon completion of his course here, he will return to the 4th Division at Fort Lewis.

Post Man Wins Award for Idea

A civilian employe in the Signal Section's Pictorial Office at Fort Benning was rewarded last week for his contribution to the Improvement Suggestions Program.

Mel Ganus, Phenix City, Ala., was presented $100 for suggesting a way to prevent damage to motion film used to take profile photographs for mounting on U. S. Armed Forces identification cards.

Ganus designed a roller-type drum which can be used to mount, wash and dry film quicker than the standard washer found in photographic laboratories. It will prevent damage to film because of less contact with the water as compared to the standard process where water is poured directly on the film.

The U. S. Army Benning Efficiency Awards Committee has recommended that Ganus' suggestion be submitted to the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, Washington, to be considered for possible use in other Army photo laboratories.

Lawson Helps Launch Tacair

POPE AIR FORCE BASE, N.C. — Exercise TACAIR 54-7 launched upwards of 500 Troop Carrier C-119's of the 18th Air Force, of which Lawson AF Base is a unit, over the Carolinas Monday on massive airborne operations during war games underway in the Southeast.

"A" Day, designation of the airborne assault, was a coordinated action against theoretical invaders holding a beachhead in the Carolinas, after over-running American forces in Florida and Canada.

TACAIR 54-7, a training exercise of the Tactical Air Command being conducted by the Ninth and 18th Air Forces, is being held simultaneously with Army atomic maneuvers, Exercise Flash Burn.

Waves of C-119's, escorted by Ninth Air Force Sabrejets of the 1st Fighter Bomber Wing, began arriving over the five drop zones in the Camp MackCall area at dawn, to pour down on sandy farmland strips some 9,000 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division and tons of equipment and supplies.

While the C-119's were cascading thousands of paratroopers, the practicing F-86's were fighting practice aerial combat with "aggressor" jets of the 366th Fighter Bomber Wing high above the transports. Other jets, called on for close support, made ground attacks against "enemy" installations throughout the maneuver area.

The airborne operation, conservatively conducted by the Air Force as a simple training operation, is demonstrating the enormous capacity of troop carrier to provide mobility and flexibility to military forces.

Troop Carrier units are scheduled to fly resupply missions in the six days following "A" Day.

Capt. George C. Willis, Fourth Division MP officer, will long remember the first day of the Berlin Conference. Capt. Willis was given the job of escorting Russian Foreign Minister Molotov to the site of the West Berlin talks. It was the day that Molotov was to be stopped for a security check. The procedure went off without any incidents, but, as Capt. Willis recalls, "The anteroom was manned by MVD men in big overcoats, slouched hats, and hands in pockets. They certainly aren't too far from the Hollywood version. After seeing them, I can believe all the stories about the tactics they use." — IVY LEAVES.

"I named her Agnes," he explained, "because it is an old favorite name of mine." — FORT LEE TRAVELER.

IS FEAR RELATED TO HEIGHT? Jump Tower Is Scene Of Testing

Research Being Conducted On Fears in Jump Training

Should paratroopers be introduced to height gradually or suddenly?

The answer is being sought at Fort Benning by a group of psychologists who hope to eliminate or greatly reduce fear of height among airborne trainees in the Infantry School.

A mock training tower, with jumping platforms at 18, 26 and 34 feet, is now in operation, and researchers, under the direction of Dr. Charles Windle, are rating the performance of trainees at the three levels. At present, the Airborne Department introduces a trainee to height at the 34-foot level.

Fear Related

"We are working on the assumption that fear is related to height, and that the best way to overcome fear is to get used to height gradually," Dr. Windle said.

"Our guess is that men who start at the 18-foot level and work up to 34 feet through will be less likely to fall than men who start at 34 feet."

Dr. Windle said that although the experiment, nicknamed Project Hilo, is not yet complete, the results seem to indicate that men make more satisfactory jumps from the lower levels.

Jumpers Rated

The Hilo experimenters also will rate jumpers by means of an apparatus which measures the force and time of each jump. A hydraulic mechanism will record how forcefully the jumper springs up and out, while an electric clock will measure the time between the jumper's tap and the jump.

"We believe that these more exact measures of force and lateness may predict a man's chances of passing or failing airborne training," Dr. Windle pointed out.

LADIES' DAY . . . Mrs. A. J. Millard, left, and Mrs. Ralph J. Davis, receive an orientation from Sgt. Dorsey Templeton on the suspended harness as part of the Ladies' Day tour sponsored by the Infantry School's Airborne Department for relatives and friends of personnel. In the harness is Pic. 'Littlest Theatre' Enthralls P-TA

Fort Benning's Littlest Theatre took to the boards Monday evening with a dramatic presentation and a series of striking tableaux vivants presented to an enthusiastic audience of parents, teachers and children.

A cast drawn from Miss Pearl Massey's second grade class gave a new breadth of interpretation to the classic "Three Little Pigs" by employing a Sophoclean chorus to emphasize lines spoken by principal actors.

Dard Ringenbach, Ricky Zinser and Larry Henry were effective in the title roles, and Charles Hamm's tall - lashing characterization of the wicked wolf was satisfactorily chilling. Jimmy Gross appeared as a purveyor of straw, sticks, and bricks, and Skippy Kenney served as narrator.

Choral Effects

Choral effects were provided by Patsie Campbell, Roberta Cohen, Carol Muldrew, Truly Watson, and Dolores Podolsky. Participants in the "Pig in the Parlor" finale were Jay McWay, Jinx Bergh, Bong Woods, Sam Kiser, Carol Ghent, Jo Ann Easley, Karen Falkenstrom and Cynthia Crumley.

Intentional scenery which allowed patches of woods to be magically converted into dwellings for the three little pigs had been constructed by the second grade class.

"Penelope Boothby" by Margaret Mahone, and "Finky" by Ruth Childs.

Susan La Patka was the "Girl with Cat," Billy Phillips posed as "Baby Stuart" and Sherry Didier portrayed the "Age of Innocence." "Song of the Lark" featured Linda Grezaffi, and Frank Hastings depicted "The Torn Hat." Martha McCann, Barbara Evans and Judy White were "The Gleasers."

Descriptions of the paintings were given by Janette Johnson, Linda Roberts, Boyd Wilson, Carolyn Smith, Roy Caulder, Dornie Cook, Robert Rheas, Paul Hutchins, Mary Carille, Donald Taylor, Eddie Brown and Victor Garvey.

Poetic and dramatic recitations through curtains were presented by Laurelee Salisbury, Jay Wilson, Carolyn Smith and a trio made up of Roy Caulder, Donald Taylor and Janette Johnson.

The performances were viewed by 400 members and guests of the Fort Benning Parent - Teachers Association at a meeting held in Main Post School No. 1.

FINISHES COURSE

Sgt. William J. Mayse of Company I, 30th Infantry Regiment, recently completed the advanced clerk course at the finishing school among the members of his class.

Other officers for the school will be M. Sgt. Edwin J. Geron, first vice-president, Mrs. Seren D. deLoach, second vice-president, Major William F. Long, treasurer, and Mrs. Thompson M. Colkitt, secretary.

The new officers will be installed at the May meeting.

Members may pay $1 monthly, $5 for six months or $10 for a year, according to Col. Shoemaker.

In announcing the campaign, Col. Paul A. Among the projects sponsored by the Dad's Club are Little League Baseball, Scouting, Post Barracks, Junior Rifle Club, swimming programs and playgrounds.

Funds from dues are the only means of support at the present time for these projects, Col. Shoemaker pointed out. The membership drive will be a continuous campaign, he said.

Tire Repair Group Claims Savings Equal to Payroll

The result of these blows unbalances the tire and wears down the "shoe." After a long drive, the tube gets hot and the patch often comes off leaving another flat.

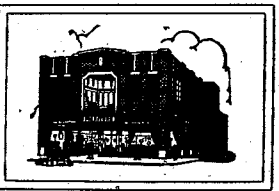

To eliminate this, the 536th repairs flats by buffing the broken area smooth and vulcanizing a small piece of rubber on the buffed out part. This method restores the original strength to the tire or tube, Capt. Gacher explained, and pressure tests show the repair is just as strong, or stronger, than the surrounding area. There is no patch to come off if the tire becomes hot, and the number of flats is reduced.

Capt. August Gacher points out that his unit is able to repair at least 99 per cent of the more than 300 tires and tubes turned in each month. During January, a relatively slack period, the savings amounted to $1,699.97. Just three cents short of the monthly payroll.

Secret of the 536th success in repairing such a high percentage of tires and tubes in wheel balance, achieved through the use of rubber inserts instead of ordinary patches. Capt. Gacher says a one-piece patch on a tube hits the tire with greater force than a blow from a hammer at each turn of the wheel.

comrade as enemy troops advanced to their outpost under a heavy mortar and artillery barrage.

"After administering preliminary first aid treatment, he carried the stricken man to a protected position, completely disregarding the fact that he had also been wounded. This courageous action on the part of Private Marohan saved the life of the injured man, inspiring his comrades in the defense of the outpost and in the evacuation of the wounded."

Lt. Hall, a veteran of 55 months overseas service, was commended in four citations "for heroism and extraordinary achievement in aerial flight as an aircrewman of a patrol plane."

He spent 15 months in the Southwest Pacific during World War II and from December, 1949, to April, 1953, was a military police officer in Vienna, Austria.

'Ivan M. Slobski,' They Say, Will Invade Officers' Club

The Main Officers' Club will usher in May Day with a "crazy mixed up party" Friday night. The floor show promises to be the most unusual ever seen on the post, with equally surprising decor.

The School Brigade is sponsoring the party, which will attempt to show how the masses of the UKRN (U KANT KWIT NOW) Nation celebrate May Day.

Entertainment will encompass a Parade of Progress, Beauty Pageant and the All Star Revue of the year. All this fun will be highlighted by the appearance of Ivan M. Slobski, ruler of the UKRN.

Numerous guards will be posted to check passports and several Secret Service agents will be on the look-out for would-be spies. Two spots will serve refreshments; "The Peasant's Bar" and "The Party Bar."

The party is open to all Fort Benning officers and their families. Dress is informal and admission is free.

Major Karl C. Lutz, Brigade S-3, is in charge of the party. Lt. Robert A. McGee, special services officer of the First OC Regiment, is show coordinator. Lieuts. Ralph E. Rapp and Richard E. Eckhart of The Infantry School Quarterly, are writing and directing the skits.

Props will be furnished by Lt. Sam Lewis Come.

Sis 'Barks' Orders, Private Snaps to 'With Pleasure'

Taking orders from a soldier with more rank than you have isn't bad, but when your sister outranks you—that's tough.

Pvt. Juan de Jesus Cruz of the First OC Regiment not only has to take orders from his sister Mary, but he'd better have a snappy salute ready. She's a flight nurse in the Air Force with the rank of First Lieutenant.

Mary, who is stationed at Ramo Air Force Base in Puerto Rico, and Juan sometimes get together in their home town, Bo Mosquito, Aguirre, Puerto Rico. Then the

Non-Reg. WOs To Face Release Starting in Fall

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—About 900 non-regular Army warrant officers in addition to those whose tours of duty normally will end prior to July 1, 1955, will be involuntarily released from active duty. Releases will start early in the fall, the Department of Army announces.

The program is the result of limitations placed on the WO strength.

Because a number of non-regular WOs have volunteered for early release previously, it is expected that no more than the estimated 900 will be affected.

Selection boards are scheduled to meet this month to determine who will be released from active duty. The boards are expected to conclude their work by the end of May.

While WOs in all grades will be considered, it is anticipated that most of those released will be in pay grades W1 and W2.

First releases will begin in September. All those to be released will have at least three months notice.

There are, at present time on active duty, approximately 10,700 non-regular WOs.

No particular WOs will be singled out in the release program.

The Army emphasizes that the involuntary release will be eliminated to the number necessary to meet limitations imposed by strength ceilings.

Simpson Promoted To First Lieutenant

Lt. Harry R. Simpson, Jr., of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has traded in the gold bars of a second lieutenant for silver ones. The newly promoted lieutenant is assistant operations officer for the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Lt. Simpson has been in the service for three years. He was formerly assistant S-3 for the 53d Airborne Infantry Regiment, Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

LIEUT. PROMOTED
Second Lt. Norman C. Whitfield of Tank Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, has been promoted to first lieutenant.

MIRROB, MIRROR ON THE FLOOR . . . This highly polished floor reflects the images as well as the hard labor of two brothers in HQ, Co., First Bn., 30th Infantry. Cpl. Perez-Rodriguez (left) and Sfc. High-Working Paratrooper Keeps Jump Towers in Shape

Replacing safety lights atop the Infantry School's 250-foot free-jump towers in operation, a task calling for physical strength and calm nerves. Whenever a pulley or safety light needs replacing at the 250-foot level, or any repair has to be made at any height on the towers, Robert Slyter is called on to do the job. The agile paratrooper climbs with the quickness and nimbleness of a cat to any place on the towers and never thinks twice about the heights. Cpl. Slyter has been in his job for one year, and no one has ever heard him mention the word dangerous.

'Punchy Pete' Helps Marksmanship

A new pop-up target, now being tested at Fort Benning, may result in a change in present methods of rifle marksmanship training.

The target, nicknamed Punchy Pete because, like a groggy boxer, it falls down when hit, is one of 153 which will be part of a new marksmanship proficiency range being developed here by psychologists in Human Research Unit No. 3. The range will be part of Research Pack Training, one of several projects the unit is working on under the chief of Army Field Forces.

"Realism will be the keynote of the proficiency course," said Dr. H. H. McFann, leader of the Training project. "A killable target—that is, one that falls when hit—is desirable for two reasons. First, training will be evaluated by comparing the performance of different groups. In order to obtain information about the kinds of targets encountered in battle, the Training staff has analyzed the records of thousands of combat incidents and has interviewed many combat veterans.

Most targets require some type of scorer to let the firer know when he has a hit. The new target, however, falls as the round strikes it, so that the firer knows immediately that he has scored a hit.

Punchy Pete was developed by the Human Research Unit here with the help of the Infantry Center Ordnance and Signal Maintenance Sections and the Weapons Department. Battery-powered and portable, it can be raised or lowered by remote control.

As soon as the proficiency range is developed, Dr. McFann said, that is, one that falls when hit—is desirable for two reasons. First, training will be evaluated by comparing the performance of different groups. In order to obtain information about the kinds of targets encountered in battle, the Training staff has analyzed the records of thousands of combat incidents and has interviewed many combat veterans.

'Ham' Likes to Be Called a 'Ham'

Most instructors at The Infantry School would resent being called a ham, but not Sfc. Charles O. Rigby of Pope, Miss.

An instructor in the Communications Department, Rigby is called a ham because he spends a lot of time at Fort Benning's amateur radio station WATIS, where he is chief operator. WATIS also is a Military Affiliated Radio Station.

Cards, confirming contact with stations throughout the world, cover one wall of the radio room. "There's even a card from a station in Moscow," Rigby said, pointing to one marked UA-O-KFB, Moscow, USSR. He explained, however, that no contact has been made with Russia since the Federal Communications Commission put a ban on it some time ago.

During the big storm in March, the station operated until early in the morning, contacting stations throughout Georgia and amateurs in nearby Columbus. Ham operators are well known for their service in times of disaster, working with the Red Cross and other emergency agencies.

"There hasn't been much need for this type of service since Rigby arrived in August 1953, but the sergeant explained that the station also provides a regular service that few people know about.

"We will send a message anywhere without charge," he said. "But few people know about the service." He explained a system set up by ham operators which relays messages to the amateur station closest to the location the message is to be sent. The station operator then either telephones the message or mails it.

Rigby wasn't always a ham. "I used to be a photographer before I came into the service," he said, "but the Army sent me to school and made me a radio operator."

He now has 30 months service. His students, which include about 75 officers or enlisted men every 18 weeks, attend his four- to five-week course on radio operation and when they graduate know just about all Rigby can cram into 10 hours of lecture and 18 hours of practical work. They study the fundamentals of radio sets used by an Infantry regiment and the procedure for operating them, both by key and radio telephone.

Upon graduation enlisted men are qualified as communications chiefs in an Infantry regiment and officers as communications officers.

14-Year Mechanic Teaching Students in Trucks, Tanks

Fourteen years as an Army mechanic mean that M-Sgt. Carey W. Blocker helps outline the program teaching students how to keep tanks and wheeled vehicles operating.

As chief instructor in the Automotive Department's tank maintenance course at Fort Benning, Sgt. Blocker helps outline the program of instruction and supervises the instruction. Written examinations are an "invaluable yardstick of the student's progress," he says, "as a mechanic are several specialized courses in the maintenance and operation of Army vehicles. These include a three-month course in tank maintenance at Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground, a four-month course in wheeled vehicles maintenance at Fort Knox, Ky., and special vehicle course at the Atlanta, Ga., General Depot.

Sgt. Blocker is a firm believer in the written examination in addition to practical application of theory as part of the course of instruction. Written examinations are an "invaluable yardstick of the student's progress," he says, "as a mechanic are several specialized courses in the maintenance and operation of Army vehicles. These include a three-month course in tank maintenance at Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground, a four-month course in wheeled vehicles maintenance at Fort Knox, Ky., and special vehicle course at the Atlanta, Ga., General Depot.

Maj. Gerald R. Wilson, Left, And Maj. Randall Kelly

Assigned to 47th Inf. Div.

Medal of Honor Winner Here

Medal of Honor Winner Ola L. Mize of Tampa, Fla., has reported to Fort Benning for assignment to the 47th Infantry Division after nearly 13 months of service in Korea.

The 22-year-old master sergeant, who was a corporal when he reported to the Far East in April 1953, is credited with killing 95 Chinese at Outpost Harry near Su-rang-ni, Korea, June 10 and 11, 1953.

Official announcement of the award was made early this month by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens for Sgt. Mize's "supreme courage and skillful leadership in fighting off the numerically superior foe."

Asst. Platoon Sargeant
At the time of the action Mize was an assistant platoon sergeant with Company, K, 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Division. His unit was defending the outpost when the enemy launched a violent attack.

According to an eyewitness account, Mize took up a position at the entrance to an advanced bunker and threw a grenade into the first wave of enemy attackers, slowing the advance.

"The enemy began attacking in waves, pouring into the trench. Mize stood alone at the bunker entrance, killing them with accurate carbine fire as they came," the report says.
