"The enemy artillery barrage was very heavy and within a 10-minute period Mize was twice blown back into the bunker by explosions, but each time he got up and continued to fight off the attackers.

"Once as he was putting a fresh clip into his carbine the enemy rushed his position. He relaxed just in time to stop them.

"One of the enemy fell at his feet, dropping a concussion grenade which exploded, knocking Mize down for the third time. He was temporarily stunned, but immediately got up and continued to fight off the enemy, killing a great number of them.

"About midnight, the ammunition supply in the bunker began to get low and we left for the platoon command post. When we left the bunker there were at least 40 of the enemy lying dead around the position that Mize, single-handedly, had killed with his carbine and grenades. On the way to the platoon command post he killed about five more.

"Upon reaching the command post, he set up a barricade with which he added the Philippine Presidential Unit Streamer.

Gen. Newman Receives Orders For Transfer

Brig. Gen. Aubrey S. Newman, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center since last October, leaves Fort Benning May 14 for an assignment in Europe.

While at Fort Benning, Gen. Newman has served as right hand man to Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr. taking over many of the commanding general's administrative and logistical responsibilities.

The airborne general, who is completing his fourth tour of duty at Fort Benning, attended the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., graduating in 1925. His first assignment was with the 29th Infantry Regiment here.

After training for the Modern Pentathlon and competing on the American Olympic Team in 1928 in Amsterdam, Holland, he returned to the Infantry Center and in 1932-33 attended the company officers course.

Gen. Newman is a veteran of the Pacific campaigns during World War II, beginning his active combat career in Hawaii and moving across the Pacific to Leyte.

As the 24th Infantry Division's chief of staff and as regimental commander of the 34th Infantry, he went with his division to Australia. He fought in the campaigns in New Guinea and the Philippines, including the amphibious invasion of Leyte, where he commanded one of the initial assault regiments.

Since World War II his assignments have included posts as director of instruction at the Armed Forces Information School, chief of staff of the 11th Airborne Division, commander of the 511th Parachute Infantry Regiment, a chief of staff of the Unified Defense Force in Iceland.

Gen. Newman then was named commander of the 50th Airborne Infantry Regiment of the 82nd Division. Before coming to Fort Benning as deputy commanding general, he assumed the duties of assistant commander of the 82nd in July, 1952, following his promotion to brigadier general.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badge. He received his airborne wings in 1949 and became a senior parachutist in 1953.

Advance Party Of 136th Regt. Arrives Today

An advance party of the 47th Division's 136th Infantry Regiment is scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning today to prepare for the next movement of troops from Camp Rucker, Ala.

The 136th is scheduled to move into the Sand Hill area May 17-22. It will occupy the site vacated by units of Combat Training Command which started moving to the Main Post last week.

The transfer of the 47th to Fort Benning is being made by motor convoy in five serials. The first movement of Viking troops began in early March. The relocation is expected to be completed by early June.

The 136th, commanded by Lt. Col. George R. Harrison, was organized July 22, 1961, at Fort Snelling, Minn., as the Second Regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry. It was assigned to the 47th Division June 10, 1948.

Poets Will Meet Next Wednesday At Post Library

The Poet's Workshop, sponsored by the Main Post Library, will hold its regular bi-weekly meeting next Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the Main Post Library conference room. Original work by members will be discussed, with a portion of the program reserved for an analysis of the works of Edgar Allan Poe.

Last week's meeting discussed the nature of poetry and the poet "with view of finding the common denominator of all that has been called poetry throughout the ages." Mr. Cosmos Dokos, Columbus poet, was a guest and discussed his views of the traditionalist school of writing to which he subscribes.

Post GI Appears On TV Tonight

A tenor soloist from Fort Benning has been selected to compete in a nationally-televized talent contest tonight.

Col. Richard A. Humphrey of Denver, Colo., who will appear on ABC-TV's Talent Patrol, left this week for New York City for rehearsal.

The soloist, who represented Fort Benning in the Third Army eliminations of the All-Army Talent Contest, was tenor soloist with the Denver Symphony Orchestra before entering the Army. He is a member of Company A, Infantry School Detachment.

We Disagree On 2 Points; How About It?

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — Which Army post in the United States is the best and which is the most beautiful?

First Lt. John A. Mortimer of the Pentagon, Washington, has officially visited each major Army installation in the United States as the producer and narrator of "The Big Picture," the program which appears on more than 300 television stations each week.

The lieutenant and his crew of camera technicians are here this week photographing Exercise Flash Burn for a future "Big Picture" television program.

Here's how he rates them: Best post — based on the highest morale, best spirit, and efficiency — Fort Jackson, S.C.

Most beautiful post — The Presidio of San Francisco, Calif. Best he would choose for duty if he had a choice — The Presidio of San Francisco.

198th FA Celebrates Reactivation Birthday

The 198th Field Artillery Battalion, oldest artillery unit in the Third Army, celebrated the third anniversary of its sixth reactivation Saturday at Fort Benning.

Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, sent congratulations to the unit, whose history dates back to 1859.

First called to active service during the Mexican War, the 198th also served during the Civil War, Spanish - American War, World Wars I and II and the Korean conflict.

With its 105-mm howitzers, largest of the big guns at Fort Benning, the battalion has as its primary mission support of The Infantry School. Troops take part in demonstrations and provide tactical fire support during school problems.

The 198th, now a part of Combat Training Command, won battle streamers at the Battle of Monterey in the Mexican War, at Sny-Joh, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, and Atlanta during the Civil War, and at the Battle of Puerto Rico in the Spanish-American War.

During World War II the battalion played a principal role as one of the assault units in the Leyte invasion and at Ryukyu, for which it added the Philippine Presidential Unit Streamer.

NAMES FOLLOW TWO SOLDIERS TO END OF FORT BENNING LINE

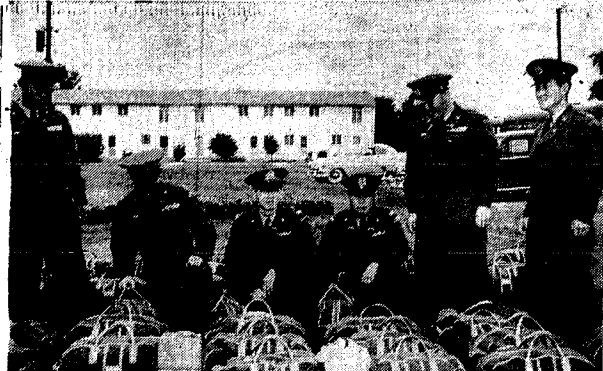

When Pfc. Richard Hamburger of Detroit, Mich., came to The Infantry Center he wondered wistfully — like thousands of young soldiers before him — what the Army would put him to once he was settled at the "world's most complete Army post."

Pfc. Hamburger was not to wait long. He encountered his new job last Monday. It was in the Main Post Commissary's department of hamburgers. Being more adept at clerical work, however, Pfc. Hamburger swapped cleaver for pencil.

But that is not the end of the story. Another young Infantryman, Pvt. Gordon L. Butcher of Cozadale, Ohio, also wondered what sort of Army job he would get on arrival. Word had reached him that the post was not only one of the world's most complete but one of its most beautiful.

And here was Pvt. Butcher wound up.

Naturally and forthwith, in the Main Post Commissary.

$2,000 Donated Woman's Club Aids Post Organizations

The Fort Benning Woman's Club in its final meeting of the year Monday donated $2,000 in surplus funds to organizations on the post and in Columbus.

At the club's annual May Breakfast, Mrs. Paul C. Serff, outgoing president, said the donations represented the entire proceeds from the year's activities over and above a $200 fund which remains in the treasury for next year's governing board.

Largest recipient was the Fort Benning Girl Scouts who were given $200 to be used in the construction of a permanent summer camp. Another $200 was given to the Dad's Club for use in Bramm Barracks, the post's teenage club, the Boy Scouts, and playground equipment.

Fort Benning's Nursery School, sponsored by the Woman's Club, received $200 as did the Central Non-commissioned Officers Open Mess for its nursery. The Post Children's School Fund was given $200 to be used for band instruments for Faith School.

Other donations included $100 to the occupational therapy department of the Post's U. S. Army Hospital; $100 to the "Follow Me" fund which has been established for the future construction of a monument to the Infantrymen, and $100 to the post beautification District received $200 for library books for Columbus high schools and the Ann Elizabeth Shepherd home for girls in Columbus who were given $100.

Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, who addressed the more than 200 women attending the luncheon, expressed pleasure over the success of the club during the past year and praised members for having completed plans they announced at their opening meeting in October 1953.

Officers for the 1954-55 governing board were installed. Mrs. Norman H. Wiley is the new club president, and members of the executive board are Mrs. William R. Fields, first vice president; Mrs. Edward O. Logan, second vice president; Mrs. Thomas H. Muller, treasurer; Mrs. Edward P. Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. Blair Ford, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Joseph M. Flesch, auditor and custodian.

185 Vehicles Kept Rolling By Hard Working Sarge

M-Sgt. Lonnie E. Hollandsworth, when temporarily with an immediate superior, doesn't have time to worry about the 185 Army vehicles he is responsible for at Fort Benning. Hollandsworth trained nearly here in 1944 with the 71st Infantry Division. He went to Europe the same year, with the 71st, and after V-E Day met the present Mrs. Hollandsworth in Germany, married her and returned to the U. S. in 1948.

In January, 1949, he was assigned to Fort Benning as a battalion motor sergeant for the 15th Infantry Regiment.

With the outbreak of Korean hostilities, Sgt. Hollandsworth shipped over with the 3rd Division in August, 1950. He served as a battalion motor sergeant in Korea for 10 months before returning here in 1951.

He has been at the Harmony Church motor pool since September, 1951. Working from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, with the help of 16 civilians and eight enlisted men he keeps the 185 vehicles in his pool in good working order, and makes sure "they get where they have to be, when they have to be there."

Col. Stratta Named To Attend War College

Col. Maurice D. Stratta, deputy director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, has been added to the list of officers scheduled to take the Army War College course at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., which begins Aug. 29.

He came to The Infantry School in 1953 after serving with the Second Infantry Division and the ROK Captil Division in Korea.

Armed Forces Day 1954

There is an old saying that every man has his day. Well, on May 15, 1954, approximately five million men will have their day when the country pays tribute to its men in uniform. That day is Armed Forces Day. To better help the individual soldier understand the significance of Armed Forces Day the Command Conference topic for next week is Armed Forces Talk No. 46, "Armed Forces Day, 1954".

The thing to keep in mind is that Armed Forces Day, 1954, will be a time to emphasize how we—as Americans—are working together at home and with the peace-loving peoples of the world to provide all free peoples with the assurance that comes only from being strong. The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines have all increased their strength and firepower. They are working hard to improve their organizations and to put into effect better management and procurement practices.

The United States is not only planning for its own defense but also for free world defense. We have entered into numerous agreements with other countries for mutual protection and defense. The largest and most widely known is The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

It has fallen to our country, as the world's strongest, to lead the world in defense of our fight, and all men's right, to be free and live in peace. It has fallen to us as servicemen and women to have an important part to play in helping our country in this great task. Let us all, on this Armed Forces Day, feel a special pride in the job we have been called upon to do.

'What Manner of Man Is This?'

BY CHAPLAIN (FIRST LT.) IRVIN A. SIERMAN

It is wonderful to tell and explain about the process of life as one reflects back to childhood days. It can easily be called a miracle to see a baby turn into a president, a great statesman, a leader of men, or a preacher of the gospel. This can easily be called a miracle, "for no one can do these things except God be with him."

The reign of time is in the hands of creation. What persons shall come up to rule is another miracle that is within question.

The individual that discerns the quest of time will have the burning desire to serve his age. This desire will be expressed in what he does in teaming up with the concepts and the will of God.

Your actions, your doings, and your thoughts are culminated into one mode of life that is called living. It is from this culmination that you are known by what you do.

The baby that once held on his mother's apron, wobbled along and walk and banged on the piano, is 20 years hence has become the concert pianist. Or the child that has gone to Sunday school and becomes interested in Christian teachings; years, still becomes a minister of the gospel. The lad that plays half man is a window glass and receive a good scolding, becomes home runner in the big league. Who are you? Life is full of miracles! No wonder the disciples asked the question after Jesus had calmed the sea. "What manner of man is this?" Jesus' thoughts, His actions, and His doings were all wrapped up in the concept and will of God. It was His primary mission to teach the Father; and the Father through Him did all things.

I recall now the words of the Commandant, Joseph L. Knoch, of the Chaplains School, that: "The primary mission of the school is to help the Chaplain bring God to man and man to God." It is in this concept that all workers of humanity and divinity so train themselves that they would be able to do miracles for others under the leadership of God. Who are you? Can you follow to me as very much as I followed to you? Stop—give a recollection of your past that has gone to Sunday school ago? Where are you going? What are you doing today? What is the point of your life? Only you, and you alone, can sincerely answer these questions.

What manner of man are you? I remember one day as I was walking through a city briskly with my sermon on my mind, I brushed beside a young man who identified himself as a former student of mine. As we stopped and talked for a few minutes over school days, his school days and my teaching days, we exchanged friendly greetings. But eventually a sturdy teacher or a preacher will ask a former member of a student this question: "What are you doing?" And his reply was: "Reverend, this little mischievous boy that you taught is now studying to be your doctor, and I will graduate next June; here is an invitation to your former student's graduation." This fellow to me was very mischievous. He startled me with his answer. I never knew nor thought that he would grow to be such a tall character sometime ago.

I followed him to the graduation, and as the solemn academic procession came down that day in the chapel, I saw a miracle. A mischievous lad turned into a nation's doctor. I felt my emotions giving way, and I could not control them, and tears flowed into my eyes. What manner of man is this? Even humanity and the world would take a bow.

CTC Experts Win Badges

Unit Holds First Tests Since Korean Outbreak

After two strenuous days of testing, 11 officers and 100 enlisted men won the Expert Infantryman's Badge on April 23. A field of 205 soldiers from Third Bn., 30th Infantry Regt. started in tests for the EIB, first at Fort Benning since before the Korean War, and 111 completed the requirements. Every one of 14 requirements had to be passed with a score of 70 per cent. Map reading stopped about 40, with adjustment of artillery failing the next largest group.

First day tests, held in Third Ben. area, stopped about 70. These tests included, besides map reading, military courtesy, mine warfare, bayonet uses, physical training, first aid, and communications.

Second day tests, held in Third Ben. area, stopped about 70. These tests included, besides map reading, military courtesy, mine warfare, bayonet uses, physical training, first aid, and communications. "These tests brought Third Battalion's ratio of persons with either the Combat Infantryman's Badge or Expert Infantryman's Badge up to about 50 percent of their strength. Soldiers taking the tests felt that they gave a soldier a chance to test what he had learned, prove to himself and others what he could do, and find out what his buddies, with whom he might have to go into combat, could do.

Pvt. Robert Shoemaker of Co. K said the tests gave him a review of what he had learned and an opportunity to see if he knew what he should know. Encouragement over knowledge and ability of field soldiers was expressed by Ft. Stevens Springs of Co. F. He also said it gave the individual soldier something to work for.

Desire Helps "It is good to know that you can become an expert infantryman; it makes you want to be a better soldier," said Pvt. W. C. Lively of Co. L. He added that a soldier had to be on his toes at all times to pass the test. Before a soldier can take the EIB tests he must be a sharpshooter in his individual arm and must have taken a 12-mile march in three hours. After the test starts he must know everything when from when to salute when reporting to the company commander to how to direct and control fire of an infantry squad and how to cross a mine field. A new requirement, something privates had not known before, was that they had to be able to give and initial fire order to artillery and adjust fire.

Frigid Winters, Steaming Summers No Vacation for Master Sergeant

M-Sgt. Radomir Vignovich of Company B, 773d Tank Bn., "vacationed" inversely for six years, spending his winters in Alaska and Colorado and Summers in the California desert, while assigned to AFE Board No. 2, Fort Knox, Ky. Sgt. Vignovich entered the Army in 1944 and arrived at Fort Knox on August 8. He departed for Alaska on August 12, going to Ladd Field near Fairbanks with Task Force Frigid, a winter equipment test.

One Of The Coldest The winter 1946-47 was one of the coldest in Alaska's history. The lowest temperature officially recorded by the task force in the testing area was 23.3 degrees below zero, but Snag, in the Yukon territory, recorded a minus 83, the coldest officially recorded temperature in North America. Sgt. Varnovich said, "Everyone claims that the dry cold up there doesn't hurt as much as the cold here in the States, but when it gets down to 50 or so below it is COLD."

At that temperature, with a heavy fog hovering and the sun rising for only three and one-half hours, Sgt. Varnovich said the troops felt like moles. Then one day the temperature shot up to only 18 below and the next day to zero with a bright sun shining. It felt so warm that several of the soldiers romped in the snow in tee-shirts.

Winter Test In January 1949 he participated in another winter equipment test, three weeks at Camp Hale, Colo. This trip turned out much less pleasant than the one to Alaska, however. Sgt. Varnovich suffered from indigestion, strep throat, a severe head cold and a severely sprained ankle resulting from skiing. Soon after his return to Fort

*Patent applied for.

The 198th Field Artillery Battalion began the CTC move on April 19 when they changed to Harmony Church area formerly occupied by the Ranger Department.

The 73d Tank Bn., followed shortly after, moving to the same general area on April 22. This completed the move for that portion of CTC which switched from Sand Hill to Harmony Church. That gave CTC three units in Harmony Church, 78th Engineer Bn. was already in that area and did not move.

New Barracks

First Bn., 30th Infantry led the move into new barracks recently completed on the Main Post, moving April 28. Second Bn., 30th followed on April 30 and Third Bn. moved May 1. During this time, 41st Field Artillery Bn. moved into the Airborne Area on April 29.

Other CTC units left in Sand Hill will move as soon as their new buildings are complete.

Despite confusion of moving, business was carried on as usual. Support of The Infantry School was not interrupted and a man failed to be at the proper place at the proper time because of the move.

CTC to Run 3 Problems

Expenditure of ammunition at Fort Benning will probably show a marked increase on next Tuesday and Wednesday, because of three Infantry School problems being run by Combat Training Command.

On Tuesday, troops from First Bn., 30th Inf., and 73d Tank Bn. will participate in Problem 1001, a display of Infantry weapons and firepower. The problem will show weapons available to use by the Infantry soldier and how much lead these weapons will throw out in front of a battle position.

Problem 2000, use of Artillery fires will be run Wednesday with troops and weapons from 180th Field Artillery Bn., 41st Field Artillery Bn. and 73d Tank Bn. participating.

The 78th Engineer Bn. will also have a stationary display of its machinery and tools at the problem area. This problem demonstrates types of artillery fires, what each is used for, its effectiveness and how the soldier in front lines can call in this fire.

Firepower used by a re-enforced rifle company in its drive to prevent an enemy from entering or overrunning its position is demonstrated in Problem 2422N to be run Wednesday night. Third Bn., 30th Infantry and 7th AAA Btry will provide personnel for firing of the problem.

Festus Baugh Named Top Leaders Grad

M-Sgt. Festus Baugh of Co. A, First Spec. Trps., has been named honor graduate of The Infantry School's Advanced Leaders School. The award was made on the basis of Sgt. Baugh's grades, superior leadership ability, and general deportment throughout the course.

Sgt. Baugh entered the Army in 1942 at Fort Thomas, Ky. Shortly thereafter he was assigned to the 39th Sig. Bn., stationed in England. While with the 39th he saw action in the Moroccan, Algerian, Tunisian, Sicilian, and Italian campaigns. He remained overseas until 1947.

In 1951 Sgt. Baugh was sent to Korea and assigned to the Seventh Division as a radio technician. He left Korea after a year and upon his return was assigned to Fort Benning.

EVERYTHING'S JAKE AND THE BOYS LOVE IT
Sgt. Jake Hodgers Display Tempting Delicacies

Battalion Bakery, Pastry Shop Proving Candidate Favorite

There's something in the air in the First OC Regiment's Fifth Battalion, and if noses are sniffing and mouths watering, you can't blame 'em. The cause of all is a battalion bakery and pastry shop that's taken baking out of the individual mess hall and put it on an efficient assembly line basis.

The consolidation is the idea of Col. Franklin Brickley, former battalion commander, now executive officer of the Regiment. Sgt. Jake Hodgers supervises the five bakers who turn out up to 120 pies and 35 cakes a day. The cakes are decorated with at least the company name in icing.

If you've ever wondered how to put jelly into jelly donuts, this is the place to find out. Frustrated "medics" inject the jelly into the donut just as quickly and easily as you get shots.

Although Sgt. Hodgers claims that the cakes sometimes fall flat because of the difficulty in keeping the temperature of the coal stoves even, the officer candidates

Col. Heritage Named to 47th

Lt. Col. Wade F. Heritage, former chief of the Dependents' Dispensary at Fort Benning's Army Hospital, has been named surgeon of the 47th Infantry Division, replacing Major Ulpiano D. Millaire, who has retired.

As division surgeon, Col. Heritage will be on the special staff of Major Gen. R. W. Stephens, 47th Commander, and will command the 204th Medical Battalion and the medical companies and detachments assigned to each regiment. The 47th is now in the process of moving from Camp Rucker, Ala.

Col. CTC Thinlies Whip Tuskegee 94-53

Combat Training Command's track team was victorious in its third successive meet last Saturday afternoon, defeating Tuskegee Institute 94-53 at Doughboy Stadium. SPORTS Roundup

by J.F. Celentano

The Chicago Bears and the New York Giants will meet on the gridiron in the ninth annual Armed Forces benefit football game at Wrigley Field in Chicago, Sept. 12. This charity contest has netted more than $300,000 for the Army, Navy and Air Force relief societies.

The 1954 All-Army Swimming and Diving Championship Meet will take place at Ft. Bragg, N. C., Aug. 26-27.

Carl McNulty, who led the Great Lakes Naval Training Center blue jackets to the All-Navy basketball championship this year, will coach the Rochester, Ind., High School League team at his discharge from the Navy in August. McNulty, a former Purdue University basketball star, has been an APFS All-Star for the past two seasons.

Young Bob Turley, who pitched most of last season for the Brooke Army Medical Center, Tex., recently lost a heart-breaker to the Cleveland Indians. The 23-year-old Baltimore Oriole hurler was with two outs of a no-hitter. It was Al Rosen and Larry Doby were scheduled to hit for the Indians. Turley had already fanned 11 short of Bob Feller's all-time high of 18 strikeouts. The Orioles had a one run lead. Rosen banged out the first hit to become the "apologet." Then Doby followed with a tremendous homer to give the Indians a 2-1 victory.

Detroit's rookie second baseman Frank Bolling takes a pre-induction physical examination May 21. Welterweight boxer Jack Black, an Army reserve second lieutenant, expects to be wearing a uniform in the near future. The Michigan State graduate recently won a 10-round decision over Joey Kida in New York. Navy's varsity crew stroked its way to a vic-

Mrs. Rose also won the trophy for most improved bowler.

Lone Army Horse Outfit Needs Men

BERLIN, Germany (APPS) — A help-wanted advertisement that promises short hours in a comfortable position with a strong accent on galloping around picturesque foreign landscape has been placed in military channels by the U.S. Army here.

In brief, the Army is asking for volunteer "jockeys" to join the only official horse platoon now on active duty, the 287th Military Police Horse Platoon.

The chosen riders are saddled in mounted methods used to break up angry mobs and control crowds. Thirty-one men and 57 horses are assigned to patrol a 16-mile range separating the American and Soviet Sectors in Berlin.

First Lt. Frank W. Richnak, unit commander, frankly admits that "while we are always ready to handle rough spots in an emergency, this is not our most important role."

He explains that Berliners feel safe when they see Americans patrolling through the streets and into the woods.

The platoon's horsemanship is not restricted to duty, either. First Sgt. Thomas Lee has garnered more than 100 riding and jumping prizes against top French, British and German horsemen in the city.

Soldier Patrol Taps Pair of Privates

Fort Benning's Good Soldier Patrol cited men from the Infantry School Detachment and the First Transportation Battalion last week for superior appearance and outstanding military bearing.

They were Pfc. Leroy J. Kruppa of El Campo, Texas, assigned to Company F, of the Infantry School Detachment, and Pfc. Emory Ray of Lumberton, N.C., a member of Company C, First Transportation Battalion.

Scouts to Converge Here for Camporee

Boy Scout units from 12 counties in the Georgia - Alabama Council will assemble at Fort Benning May 14-16 for their annual spring Camporee.

Other Scout districts which will send troop units are Russell, Opelika and Auburn, Ala., and Pataula and Tatama, Ga.

Practical Camping The Georgia - Alabama Council has designed a program which will call for practical camping on a patrol basis and in which troops will strive for honors and recognition.

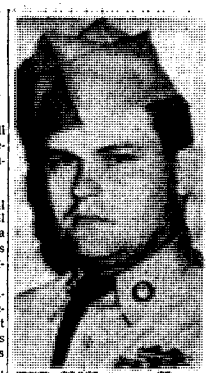

Each troop will be trying to attain the maximum 850 points necessary for rating as a Proficient Troop, the highest award. Troops earning between 651 and 750 points will receive the Standard Award, and the Participation Award will go to units earning between 400 and 650 points.

Scores will be based on personal, campcraft and scoutcraft inspections, troop activities and campcraft demonstrations.

Each patrol is expected to develop its own menu and provisions and equipment lists, and to bring other provisions needed for outdoor camping.

Camp Officials Camporee officials are Joe Nelson, director, Harold Dudley, adviser, and Bob Clarke and Tom Little, program directors, all of Columbus.

Dewey Sanders of Opelika and Company F, of the Infantry School Detachment, and Pfc. Emory Ray of Lumberton, N.C., a member of Company C, First Transportation Battalion.

THE MAN . . . Honor graduate of the track masters course conducted recently at Fort Eustis, Va., was Sgt. James Whaley of the 33rd Trans. Co., 112th Trans. Bn. He was selected on the basis of a 93.2 per cent overall average, the highest mark attained in his class. Sgt. Whaley was in Korea with Co. M, 27th Regiment, 25th Division, for a year and was awarded the Bronze Star for valor.

Wouldn't His Face Be Red If Bldg. Burned?

SMOKY HILL AFB, Kans. (APPS) — Maj. John M. Thornton, USAF, base adjutant here, knows the whereabouts of almost everything.

However, he was puzzled recently when he was appointed custodian and fire marshal of Bldg. 574. He didn't know where it was. So the major called the office that had sent him the notice to find out.

He hung up the phone and announced to his staff, "Bldg. 574 is the flagpole out in front of base headquarters!"

Mother (speaking to school teacher): "My Harold is a very sensitive boy. If you need to punish him, just slap the boy in the next seat. This will frighten Harold."

Junk Materials Are Used Explaining Combat Ideas

Infantry leaders at Fort Benning are learning to use everything from matchsticks to bottle caps to explain combat problems to their troops.

As a result of a course offered by the Training Committee of the Infantry School's Staff Department, soldier-students learn that "junk" can be utilized as aids in training their troops.

Under the direction of Capt. Joseph H. Gallant the theory of training aids course devotes half its allotted three hours to showing students how to make training aids needed in the field out of easily obtainable scrap material.

Feature of this part of the course is an extensive display of field expedient training aids constructed by Sgt. Joseph E. Walsh.

Students and visitors are given an opportunity to tour the building in the Harmony Church area which contains nearly 50 teaching aids built out of cardboard, paper, burlap, twigs and sand. They include mortar sights, machine guns, fox holes, radios, terrain models, compasses, mine fields and an aircraft replica.

Sgt. Walsh emphasizes that all his creations are simple to build and range in cost from nothing to 25 cents.

Nearly 5,000 students and visitors have seen the display since it was opened in January and their comments have been enthusiastic, he said.

Streamlined Inspection Pays Off

As each vehicle is returned after use to the Motor Pool's dispatching office, it must pass through six inspection stations which check it from bumper-to-bumper.

At Station No. 1, the vehicle's interior is swept and cleaned and at station No. 2 the gas tank is filled and oil, radiator, battery, filters, fuel lines, motor seals, wiring and motor performance are checked.

Station No. 3 checkers inspect the horn, lights, windshield wipers and dash instruments, and at No. 4 the vehicle passes through a series of grease pits where personnel inspect the under-pinnings, transmission, differential and transfer

KP May End for AF If New Plan Works

VANCE AFB, Okla. (AFPS)—Cleaning grease traps, separating garbage, peeling potatoes and onions, and getting dish-pan hands may be a thing of the past if an experiment in full swing here proves successful.

The Air Force has announced it is using this base to determine the feasibility of hiring civilian KPs to release airmen for other duties. Preliminary studies show the operation might prove to be an efficient and economic windfall for the AF.

The civilians will be responsible for catering, serving, and policing the dining halls. The AF feels that better meals and improved troop morale will result from this experiment.

Post Motor Pool Handles Weapons Of All Shapes and Kinds Each Day

Repairing a U. S. Army flame-thrower or cleaning a Russian anti-tank gun is part of the day's work at the Main Weapons Pool.

Organized in 1945 as a central storage warehouse for Infantry weapons, more than 100,000 weapons and items of equipment are issued every month to the Infantry School and to support and demonstration units.

Operations at the Weapons Pool are continuous around the clock, and the stock includes more than 13,000 weapons of 60 types, ranging from the bayonet to the 75 mm recoilless rifle.

More than 48 foreign weapons, used only for demonstration purposes, also are stored including pieces from Czechoslovakia, Communist China and Russia.

The foreign weapons are issued to Infantry School classes to teach students the basic differences between them and similar U. S. arms.

"The most unusual weapon we have," says M-Sgt. Simon L. Glaze Jr., supply sergeant, "is the 14.5 mm, a Russian anti-tank gun, 1941 model, which stands over six feet tall and weighs more than 42 pounds. It is unusual because it is fired from the shoulder."

Twenty-two civilians and 28 military personnel handle the issue, cleaning and repair of the various weapons. The military personnel were trained at the Ordnance School, Aberdeen, Md. Proving Grounds, and the civilians are specialists in the care of weapons ranging from the .22 calibre rifle to the 50 calibre machine gun.

The actual cleaning of a weapon takes three days. When a weapon is returned to the pool after use, its bore is cleaned for three straight days before it is disassembled. On the third day the piece is disassembled and each part is washed and cleaned with a dry cleaning solvent. It then is oiled and dried by air pressure. The only time this procedure varies is repaired or replaced, and the rifle is when a weapon is placed on the rack in the rain. In that event, it is to be re-issued.

To The Army Ord. Units to Mark 142nd Anniversary

It is a privilege for me to join in paying tribute to the men and woman of our Armed Forces who are the vital flesh and blood of our power for peace. I have the greatest admiration for their courage, their fidelity, their capability, and their devotion to the welfare and security of our great nation.

The Army bears many grave responsibilities as a member of our defense team, and it is determined to discharge them fully, in close cooperation with its sister Services. In order to do so, our Armed Forces need and merit the wholehearted support of every American so that the nation will be able to maintain the military strength necessary to deter aggression and to help establish a just and lasting peace.

Robert T. Stevens
Secretary of the Army

The 308 Ordnance Section personnel at Fort Benning can look back to nearly a century and a half of progress May 14 when they observe the 142nd anniversary of their corps.

The Infantry Center Ordnance Section continues to accomplish the missions to which the Ordnance Corps has dedicated itself since its birth May, 1812: to obtain, inspect, maintain and approve ordnance equipment.

Composed of 292 civilians, 38 enlisted men and eight officers, the Fort Benning Section is headed by Col. Frazer Rodman.

Ordnance Duties

The units inspect, repair and maintain all types of equipment used here — wheeled and combat vehicles, hand and artillery weapons and fire control instruments. They also store and issue ammunition and ammunition parts.

Ordnance activities fall into four large divisions.

The Supply and Maintenance Divisions are headed by Lt. Col. John E. Lester, assisted by Capt. Crete Shively, who commands the general supply branch, and Capt. W. D. Hendry, head of the ammunition supply branch.

Employees in the three branches of the Maintenance Division were credited with servicing more than 14,000 small arms, 1,500 artillery mechanisms, 6,000 fire control instruments, 4,800 wheeled vehicles and 600 tanks during 1953.

Administrative Unit

The Administrative Division is supervised by Robert McNulty who has charge of office management functions and statistical records of ordnance maintenance activities.

James McCoy heads the inspection Division which performs spot and technical inspections of ordnance material assigned to troop units.

Other ordnance units include the 3657th Ordnance Company, commanded by Capt. Willard C. Holt, and the 586th Ordnance Tire Repair Detachment, headed by Capt. August Gachar.

Supporting activities of Combat Training Command, the 3687th is a mobile unit with workshops set up in vans equipped to repair different types of weapons and wheeled and combat vehicles.

The repair and maintenance of tires and tubes are the chief functions of the 536th.

Specialist Plan to Take Effect Here Next January

A plan designed to emphasize non-commissioned officer leadership and to establish a separate category of enlisted personnel to be known as specialists will go into effect at Fort Benning Jan. 1, 1955, simultaneously with its adoption at other Army installations. The new plan calls for enlisted leaders only to be non-commissioned officers. Other personnel within the top four pay grades will be specialists.

Pay status will not be affected. Nor will there be any change in titles or insignia of rank. Specialists will rank all specialists and will be used only in leadership or supervisory roles. They will continue to be addressed as sergeant, sergeant first class, and master sergeant.

Specialists will be addressed and referred to as "Specialists" and will wear the distinctive insignia shown here. Their grade titles will be as follows:

THE ARMY'S NEW SPECIALIST INSIGNIA THAT BECOME EFFECTIVE NEXT JANUARY. Left To Right: Master Specialist, Specialist First, Second, and Third Class

They will be granted the same privileges as NCOs. Specialists second and third class will be subject to extra duty and guard with commanders.

Any person in a specialist position at time the plan goes into effect and who has previously held a leadership position in the same grade, may request retention of his NCO status. Promoting authorities will appoint a board of officers to review these requests and will allow individuals who have successfully held leadership position in their present grade for at least two months to remain as NCOs.

Advancement Explained
A specialist may advance to an NCO in the next higher pay grade or a specialist in the next higher pay grade or may be made an NCO in the same pay grade. An NCO may advance to the next higher NCO grade to the specialist grade of the next higher pay grade, or he can be made a specialist in the same pay grade on request.

No one will receive a reduction in pay as a result of the plan. Quarters allowances and travel for dependents are authorized by law to pay grades, not rank, and will not be changed by the plan. Specialists will not be deprived of membership in NCO messes or of other special privileges.

The major effect of the plan is that it will provide additional prerequisites for NCOs by insuring that they are used only as leaders, and it does not detract from those who will become specialists, officials declared.

Computations indicate that 98 per cent of E-7 positions will be NCOs and two per cent specialists. In grade E-6, 92 per cent will be NCOs and eight per cent specialists. In grade E-5, 40 per cent will be NCOs and 60 per cent will be specialists and in grade E-4, two per cent will be NCOs and 98 per cent specialists.

Prisoners Are Not Bad—Chaplain

Drill, hard work, and discipline are the steady diet of the stockade prisoner at Fort Benning. And the best method of correction gains results is evidenced by the fact that recently, according to Stockade Chaplain Irwin A. Sherman, the application for the military while serving his time.

In another instance a man went to Chaplain Sherman after he was free and offered his time to the chaplain in order to assist him in the work he was doing among the prisoners.

Chaplain Sherman says virtually none of the men are basically bad. Rather, they are young, inexperienced, and have been misled.

The psychology of the Chaplain is that a firm tie with the religious denomination of the prisoner's choice is a necessary foundation, necessary in that it lays the ground work for a restoration of an attitude of firm respect for law and order.

The majority of stockade men admit that their troubles start when they begin to associate with men of little or no religious beliefs. Hence a return to God would seem to be the initial step that must be taken to solve their problems.

Primarily, the Chaplain's work is aimed at impressing upon the prisoner that he is still a person and that regardless of his errors his dignity as a human being is still intact. At the same time the Chaplain stresses the point that the prisoner is the one who has forgotten the duties which his dignity imposes upon him and that it is up to him to correct his faults and meet his obligations.

He works towards strengthening the already existing relationship. Armed Forces Day Prayer Asks God to Protect Men

Prepared by the Armed Forces Chaplains Board of all grace and glory, accept our humble gratitude for all the boundless blessings expressed in the lives of all who have served our beloved country with loyalty and devotion so that the freedoms we cherish have been preserved for us. Thou alone knowest all their heroic and self-sacrificing deeds which they have performed.

On this day we remember all the personnel of our Armed Forces before Thy throne of grace. Extend over these men and women who have answered the call of duty Thy protecting hand. Preserve and protect them that no harm or hurt befall them. Make them courageous and vigilant, granting them ability to perform their duties faithfully. Give them the assurance of Thy guidance and strength that they may serve according to Thy will. Keep them in honor and decency as they place themselves wholeheartedly in the service of our country for its safety and protection that the blessings Thou wouldst have us enjoy may be preserved for generations yet unborn.

Finally, we beseech Thee, our gracious God, give Thy own leadership to those who occupy positions of responsibility that all our endeavors may be just and honorable. Give success to our undertakings in bringing to naught the forces of darkness and in maintaining a nation which is striving to serve Thee. In Thy Name we pray. Amen.

Armed Forces Day Prayer Asks God to Protect Men

Prepared by the Armed Forces Chaplains Board of all grace and glory, accept our humble gratitude for all the boundless blessings expressed in the lives of all who have served our beloved country with loyalty and devotion so that the freedoms we cherish have been preserved for us. Thou alone knowest all their heroic and self-sacrificing deeds which they have performed.

On this day we remember all the personnel of our Armed Forces before Thy throne of grace. Extend over these men and women who have answered the call of duty Thy protecting hand. Preserve and protect them that no harm or hurt befall them. Make them courageous and vigilant, granting them ability to perform their duties faithfully. Give them the assurance of Thy guidance and strength that they may serve according to Thy will. Keep them in honor and decency as they place themselves wholeheartedly in the service of our country for its safety and protection that the blessings Thou wouldst have us enjoy may be preserved for generations yet unborn.

Finally, we beseech Thee, our gracious God, give Thy own leadership to those who occupy positions of responsibility that all our endeavors may be just and honorable. Give success to our undertakings in bringing to naught the forces of darkness and in maintaining a nation which is striving to serve Thee. In Thy Name we pray. Amen.

Cpl. Gets 10 Years, 69 Ex-PWs Cleared

WASHINGTON (APPS) — After almost 11 hours of deliberation, an eight-man Army court martial found Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson guilty of collaboration with the enemy while a POW in Korea. The corporal was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment at hard labor, forfeiture of service pay and allotments, and will be dishonorably discharged.

Meanwhile, the Air Force announced that it is board of five generals had cleared 69 officers and EM suspected of misconduct while POWs in Korea. After a five-week study of 83 case histories, the AF board recommended that 69 officers and EM should not be tried by courts martial but that 14 other AF men — 12 officers and two EM — should be given honorable discharges, if they cannot "show cause" for retention in service.

The action on the 14 was deemed necessary because the board found their actions "had raised a serious question concerning their continued usefulness in the Air Force."

In the case of all 83, the AF board said duress and other extenuating circumstances existed to such a degree as to eliminate consideration of court-martial action.

The recommendations of the AF board have the approval of the AF Secretary and Chief of Staff. Dickenson was found guilty of six overt acts violating Article 104, Universal Code of Military Justice, which prohibits aid to the enemy. Besides general collaboration, he was judged guilty of informing on a fellow prisoner who was attempting to escape.

Edward M. Gaitner testified that he had been brutally beaten and Future 'Greats' Working as Illustrators

Some of tomorrow's great artists may come from a group of illustrators in The Infantry School's art room.

Although young, most of them have had experience as art directors, cartoonists, exhibitors, or judges. All have had some formal art study.

Take for example, 22-year-old Cpl. Dick Lubeby of New Hartford, N. Y., who was an art director for a New York television station before entering the Army. His most important work since he came to Fort Benning in July 1953 was a composite printing of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, taken from the Army chief of staff's favorite photographs.

The original, which now hangs in Gen. Ridgway's office, was used for the cover of the January issue of The Infantry School quarterly, the only official publication for the Infantryman.

Portraits Interest
 Lubeby's main interest is in portraits. His work has been exhibited in an art store demonstration and at the Fort Benning Women's Club art festival, where he was both a guest exhibitor and a judge. He studied two years at Syracuse University.

Another illustrator who says portraits are his chief interest is German-born Pvt. Edward Rippen of Youngstown, Ohio. After four years of art study in Germany, Rippen came to the U.S. to continue his work. The 25-year-old private was assigned to the art room in March.

His most interesting project is four character portraits which will be used to illustrate an article in the October issue of The Infantry School Quarterly.

Veteran Illustrator
 Veteran illustrator of the group is Charles Gonzalez Robeles of Columbus, who began in the art room as an enlisted man and has continued for the last four years as a civilian. His freelance work includes a series of cartoons for a newspaper, illustrations for a book on military tactics, and many page layouts.

This year he taught an art class for the Women's Club and was a judge and guest exhibitor at the group's recent art festival. He studied fine arts at the University of Mexico.

The extreme, modern trend can be seen most in the work of Cpl. Loring Eutemy of Brooklyn, N. Y. His advanced design is used on the April cover of the Quarterly. Eutemy studied at Cooper Union Art School in New York City.

Other illustrators include Cpl. John B. O'Reilly of Red Bank, Miss. and an adviser, John J. J. chief of the transparency section. He has a bachelor of fine arts degree from Syracuse University.

Four Displays Are Added To JCOC Demonstration

Four new displays were added to the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference No. 18 when the problem was run yesterday.

The new display, which were for inspection by members of JCOC during breaks in the problem, were a field kitchen set up by Third Bn., 30th Infantry Regt.; a display of smoke producing equipment by 87th Chemical Co. (Smoke Generator); a display of communications equipment by Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 30th Infantry; and Medical Co. set-up its problem demonstrating care of wounded from front lines to regimental collecting stations.

Tanks from 73rd Tank Bn. were also in that problem area and in area of Problem 2422N, run Wednesday night. Problem 2422N demonstrated a reinforced rifle company in defense and its fires, run by Third Bn., 30th Infantry and 190th Field Artillery Bn.

Problem 2605 was run by the 190th and 41st Field Artillery Bns. and 73rd Tank Bn. Other probing division, became interested in terms by the Combat Training Command for JCOC were problem 1001, Infantry Rifle Company firepower. Ringing School of Art in Saratoga, Fla. for four years. He says his ultimate goal is fine art.

Supervisor of the art rooms Alan Ramsey of Columbus, who has been at Fort Benning for five years, third problem run on Wednesday. He was employed as a Georgia firm and studied art at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Helene Commended For Being Honor Grad

Pvt. Donald A. Helene of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, has received a letter of commendation for his achievement as honor graduate of the Field Wireman's School at Fort Jackson.

Pvt. Helene was congratulated by Major Roy E. Hogan, commanding officer of the 23rd AAA AW Battalion, Fort Jackson, on his high standing in his class and splendid record while a member of the school.

Captain's Rank Is Reached By Britisher for 4th Time

KEFAUVER MAN . . . Capt. Lawrence C. Goddard, of Knoxville, Tenn., was once an investigator for the Kefauver Crime Committee, working on the Costello and O'Dwyer cases. Capt. Goddard is in 114th Company, First Student Regiment, attending advanced Infantry officers course.

Most first lieutenants get to be captains only once, but John C. Rennie of Columbus has held the rank four times.

Three times he was a captain in the British Army, and this week was promoted to that rank in the U. S. Army. Capt. Rennie, an instructor on The Infantry School's Platoon Tactics Committee in the tactical Department, served in the British Army with the First King George V's Own Gurkha Rifles from 1939 to 1947.

He was promoted to captain in 1942 and later rose to the rank of major and company commander.

When Capt. Rennie came to the U.S. he joined the Army and his first assignment at Fort Benning was in 1949. He left that same year for Korea where he served until 1951. In 1952 he attended the Infantry School's advanced course and in 1953 returned for his present assignment with the Tactical Department.

"This time I hope it is the last time," Capt. Rennie said as he was notified by the Department of the Army of his promotion.

Fort Benning

Our job is to put your Long Distance calls through, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here's how you can help yourself to faster service:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town telephone number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster.
2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home. Instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

To help you get faster service, you'll find out-of-town directories for the larger cities at each telephone center.

Solons Extend Pay Option Act

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Fort McPherson, Ga.—An amendment to the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953, whereby all members of the Armed Forces (other than those in a retired status), who have completed 18 years of service for pay purposes will have until Oct. 31, 1954 to make their election to participate in the contingency plan, has passed Congress.

General T. B. Belling, Commanding General, Third Army, has announced. The original law established April 30, 1954 as the deadline for such members to submit their election, and the amendment extends that deadline in order that interested personnel may have an opportunity to learn more about the plan.

The Contingency Option Act provides that personnel who retire from the service, either as Regulars or Reservists, may elect to take reduced retirement pay and at the same time provide an annuity for their dependents after the death of the retired person.

First OCs Break AR Range Record

Twelfth OC Company, First OC Regiment, made the news again last week as it broke another Fort Benning range record. On April 30 it became the first company to qualify 100 per cent of its personnel with the automatic rifle on the known distance ranges.

The second platoon had the highest average, 164, or one point above the total required for an expert rating. The first and third platoons followed with averages respectively of 145 and 141.

High individual score for the company was fired by OC Richard Wolfe of Columbus, Ohio, who scored 171 of a possible of 175.

SERGEANTS SHUFFLED
Company C, 773rd Tank Battalion lost two master sergeants recently by transfer. M-Sgt. Richard D. Chesnut, former first sergeant, has been transferred to 15D and M-Sgt. John D. Cooper has moved to the G-2 section at TIC.

SOLDIER OF THE WEEK

A Salute to Fort Benning:
In recognition of Armed Forces Day, May 15th, it is fitting to salute Ft. Benning and its entire personnel as one of the largest Military Schools in the world. Its tremendous contribution to America's national security and the high esteem in which this great Military School is held by the nation, make us proud to be able to offer our shopping facilities to such a worthy neighbor.

Armed Forces Strength Reaches Peacetime High

NEW YORK (APFS)—Armed Forces Day 1954 found Americans fighting in Korea. Since the signing of the armistice July 27, 1953, our military forces have continued to develop and produce equipment—maintaining a powerful force for peace.

Armed Forces Day 1954, to be observed on May 15, finds the United States with its greatest peacetime ground, air and naval strength ever.

This is a progress report on our military strength as it stands at present.

THE ARMY

The Army now has about 1,444,000 men on active duty. Nearly one-half of the Army's strength is deployed overseas.

The Army has 20 active combat divisions and 12 regiments and regimental combat teams. There are more than twice as many anti-aircraft battalions as at the outbreak of the Korean War.

The Army now has the anti-aircraft guided missile, the Nike, the first designed to defend U.S. cities against enemy aerial attack. The Nike follows and destroys enemy planes regardless of evasive action.

The 280-mm atomic cannon is now in use by the Seventh Army in Europe. It fires both conventional and atomic shells.

Helicopters and light aircraft, improved communications and ground transportation have increased the Army's mobility.

Approximately 757,000 men are on active duty with the Navy at present. Navy warships in commission include 14 large carriers, 8 escort carriers, 4 battleships, 19 cruisers, nearly 250 destroyers and more than 160 submarines.

The world's first atomic-powered submarine, the USS Nautilus, has been launched, and another, the USS Sea Wolf, is under construction.

Two new attack aircraft carriers, the USS Forrestal and USS Saratoga now are being built, and Saratoga now are being built, and the Navy will gain additional strength from two cruisers now being converted to guided missile ships.

Combat capabilities of naval aviation are being increased by new planes that can go farther faster. Two fighters which will revolutionize naval air war, planes that take off straight up, are now ready for flight testing.

THE AIR FORCE

The Air Force has about 826,000 men on active duty. It is rapidly changing from propeller to jet aircraft, with the B-4 jet bomber replacing the B-29 and B-50. New undergoing tests is the new long-range B-52 stratobomber which is expected to replace the B-36.

By the end of June this year, the AF expects to have 115 fully equipped wings.

THE MARINE CORPS

About 231,000 men are serving on active duty with the Marine Corps. At present the Marine Corps strength stands at three divisions and three air wings.

The mobility of the Marine Corps has been increased by a new transport helicopter, the XHR25, which can carry 25 troops. The new Mighty White jeep has made its appearance this year.

THE COAST GUARD

Approximately 29,947 officers and enlisted personnel are serving in active duty in the Coast Guard.

The fleet of ships in the Coast Guard numbers approximately 354. They vary in size from escort vessels to harbor tugs and light ships.

THREE GET 'TRACKS'... Three officers of The Infantry School's Tactical Department change their lieutenant's bars for captain's insignia. Col. Joseph W. Stillwell Jr., left, department director, pins the bars on David R. Hughes of Denver, Colo., John C. Rennie, of Columbus, and Lt. Reed G. Jensen of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Benning Wacs to Celebrate Corps Birthday With Party

Fort Benning's WAC Company will observe the 12th birthday of its corps tomorrow.

The occasion will be marked by a swimming and dinner party at the Post Rocker Club during the day and by a semi-formal dance at the Pine Lodge NCO Mess that night.

The 80-woman company is commanded by Capt. Alice I. Fowler of Washington, D. C. The executive officer is First Lt. Kathleen Ford of Mount Pleasant, Iowa.

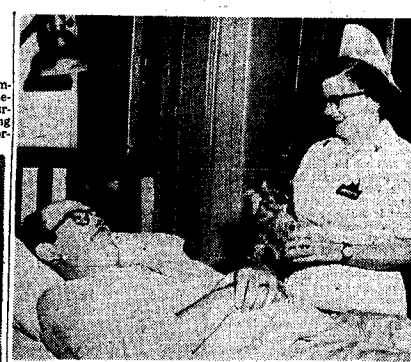

As a part of Special Troops Command, the Wacs play a vital role in the administration and support of The Infantry Center.

Trained and experienced in their jobs, they work at the U. S. Army Hospital as medical, lab and X-ray technicians.

Their services also are employed as specialists in finance, personnel classification and assignment, transportation, accounting and photography. Wacs also perform duties as clerks, receptionists, typists, stenographers and secretaries.

During 1953, the WAC Company won the Special Troops Command Health and Conduct Award and in March 1954 its basketball team won the Third Army tournament.

Organized May 14, 1942, as the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, the organization's name was changed to be Women's Army Corps in recognition of the achievements of America's first women in uniform.

1st SR Publishes Weekly News Sheet

The Black Hawk Bugle, news sheet of the First Student Regiment, recently completed its fourth weekly edition. The sheet is edited by the Troop Information and Education Section and the Public Information section of the Regiment.

The idea sprang from T&E and features regimental news and many by-line feature articles written by the men of the regiment.

The paper is edited by Maj. Earl C. Haynes and Pfc. William A. Smith. Its purpose is to provide the regiment with news that otherwise would not be published or which is not of post-wide interest.

Men Get New Furniture Style

It isn't very likely that the man of the house will be forgotten in his own home, but comes the time when he finds himself with the desire to forget and be forgotten for a while, there is furniture to help him accomplish this need.

There is a new collection of inter-related pieces for living, dining or bedroom use, which can be well fitted into the masculine den. Finely tailored bookcases come in small three-shelf individual units which can be arranged or stacked to ceiling height if the lion in the den is a literary one.

To accommodate the needs in a bachelor's quarters, storage chests of the same scaling as the bookcases can be used separately, or placed one on the other to create the illusion of one large complete chest.

Stacking both chests and bookcases together or reversing the positions can create a delightful decorative room division or arrangement.

The desk in this grouping has a vast area of writing room and comfortable knee room.

NEW TANKERS
First Lt. Alton W. Griffith has joined Headquarters and Service Company, 773d Tank Battalion. Also joining the unit was Sgt. Clarence Williamson from Company A of the same battalion.

Conversation in a club car:
"So you have two grown daughters. Do they live at home with you?"

"The skull is a bone which sometimes keeps the fat from showing."
"Let's talk about the higher things in life."
"Basketball players?"

"No, they're not married yet."

One reason that so few people recognize opportunity is because it is usually disguised as hard work.
A man is never so weak as when a pretty girl is telling him how strong he is.

Fowl Overtones Fouled Up Pvt. Overtons' Inspection

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (APPS)— "Ten-hut!" snapped the first sergeant of Co. L, 123rd Inf. Regt. Pvt. Robert Overton snapped to a rigid brace. The inspecting party trod across the radiant GI's floor. Pvt. Overton smiled inwardly despite the stoically glazed eyes that stared straight ahead. For he — Pvt. Robert Overton, ace 57-mm gunner — was a soldier ready for inspection. Had he been a sailor, he would have felt as he cracked back to the position of attention.

The inspecting officer's eyes raked over the rigid trooper. Overton's confidence in his perfection died like the leaves in autumn. Perhaps, Overton thought, his appendix was not tidy and might draw a gig. You can never tell in inspections. The officer's gaze fell on Overton's wall locker. "What in blue blazes is that?" Overton held his brace. "Turn around, man! At ease! Turn around!" Overton wheeled. There, on his scrubbied steel pot, sat a pigeon.

21 TV SETS TO BE USED AT BENNING HOSPITAL

Fort Benning's Hospital will get 21 TV sets for use of patients, CWO Robert W. McKeich, assistant post signal officer, has announced.

Approximately $6,000 has been appropriated for the sets by Third Army, and the purchase will probably be made locally within the next two months, McKeich said.

Purchase was approved by the Office of the Chief Signal Officer in Washington, D. C. It is expected that the TV sets will be operating in hospital wards by June 30.

30th Pvt. Recounts Hard Time While Living Under 4 Flags

Pfc. Jozef Antoniewicz of Co. G, 30th Infantry, has finally found a home after living under four governments.

Antoniewicz or Joe, as his buddies prefer, was born in Poljany, Poland, and lived under the Polish government until his country was taken over by the Russians. He was later captured by the Germans and finally liberated by the Americans.

Early in World War II when Poland was invaded by both Russia and Germany, Joe lived in the part captured by the Reds. Under their rule for 18 months, he remembers the hard work and long hours forced on the people. His father had a regular job but was forced to labor for the Communist after his other work each day.

Poland soon went from the frying pan into the fire when Germans drove the Russians out, Antoniewicz says. He was sent to Germany to a labor camp near Frankfurt where he was kept busy repairing streets and cleaning up rubble from American bombs.

In 1945, when the Americans were nearing, captives were forced to march three days and three nights to another camp at Scholten Germany.

Post First Again In Reenlistments

Fort Benning reenlisted 172 men during April to win top enrollment honors in the Third Army area for the fourth consecutive month. Reenlistments here since the first of the year total 841.

Fort Jackson, S. C., is The Infantry Center's closest competitor, reenlisting 188 in April to bring its first quarter figure to 638.

Tanks Using Heavy Guns

For the first time at Fort Benning, tanks mounting 90mm guns have begun firing live ammunition. Previously all live firing had been done by tanks mounting 75mm and 76mm guns.

The innovation was brought about by the shifting of responsibility of conducting Problem 2164B4 from the hand of the 550th Tank Company, 773rd Tank Battalion, to the members of Company C of the same battalion. Problem 2164B4 is presently the only problem conducted here in which tanks fire live ammunition.

BACK FROM JAX

Pfc. George L. Morken of Company A, 773rd Tank Battalion, has returned to his unit from Fort Jackson where he recently completed the common specialists school.

Young Personalities in the News at Fort Benning

Pvt. W. F. Dwyer
 Pvt. William F. Dwyer of Manhattan, N. Y., temporarily assigned to Company E, Fourth Student Battalion, First Signal Regiment, worked for the Merchant Marine before coming to Benning for training as a paratrooper.

Being in the Merchant Marine was more like a vacation than a job, he says. He worked on a large Liberian Tanker and made several trips along the Atlantic Coast and along the northern coast of South America.

At Caracas, Venezuela, the ship would stop to load and unload and while there he had the chance to get ashore enough to decide that the girls are prettier here than at home.

As for thrills, he told of their ship being drilled for some 17 days with engine trouble, an experience he said he would never forget.

OC A. E. Ippolite
 After OC Anthony E. Ippolite receives his commission, moves to his new unit, and gives command conferences, he will, very probably, show a training film, "Armed Forces Forum," in which he has a part.

Ippolite was selected for the job at Fort Dix, N. J., and assigned TDY in New York City. During August 1953 he worked at the Long Island City Theatrical Center as a series of three films were produced.

Ippolite's theatrical talents were first noticed by a civilian officer who saw the film during the TIC discussion leaders course.

OC Adrian Doss
 OC Adrian Doss, 20th OC Co. First OC Regiment, is a much decorated man. During his military career he has been awarded the Bronze Star, Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster, European Theater with 3 Battle Stars and one Bronze Arrowhead, Presidential Unit Citation with one Cluster, Dutch Order of Wilhelmijn, French Croix de Guerre, Belgian Fourragere, the Combat Infantryman WINS MEDAL . . . Sgt. James B. Waltman, of First Bn., First SR, recently was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in Korea.

OC Schoppenhorst
 Zoom! Away goes OC Albert W. Schoppenhorst of 10th OC Company. A man well versed in the driving and maintenance of stock cars, Schoppenhorst, at one time, was part owner of a 1938 Ford coupe which saw a lot of hard duty on the speedways of southern Indiana.

The initial investment of $100 and the replacement of fenders, blowouts, and radiators kept operating costs high, but the car's winnings and its resale value enabled him to easily recover his investment.

Schoppenhorst says, "Speed is all right on the track, where the drivers are especially adept at handling it, and the proper safety measures are enforced, but to the driver on the highway, high speed is a short cut to suicide."

Sgt. Wm. J. Skipper
 Ex-POW Sgt. William J. Skipper, ANGO class 2, First OC Regiment, played leading roles with the South Carolina Opera in "The Tailor," "The Tales of Hoffman," and "Carmen." He also played the tympany for the South Carolina Philharmonic Orchestra.

He has set foot on all the continents with the exception of Australia and Africa.

In 1951 he signed on an Essex tanker as assistant purser. During this voyage Connoely visited many of the world's oil regions and major seaports, including Venezuela, the Dutch West Indies, Germany, and Saudi Arabia.

On his return to New York, Connoely was hired by the American Export Lines as a purser. While working for this company, Connoely sailed to London, Lo Havre, Genoa, Rome, and Gibraltar.

He was taken prisoner in 1950 while fighting with the First Cavalry Division. After being captured he was marched for 350 miles to a prison camp. Morale was low initially, but as fairly reliable news became available, the level of morale rose sharply and the prisoners started playing jokes on the guards. They discovered the average Chinese soldier was mentally slow and easily thrown into a state of confusion. On 27 July, 1953, Sgt. Skipper and his comrades were told they were to be repatriated. By train, foot, and ship the men traveled to Freedom Village, where, on August 7, they were turned over to representatives of the Army for return to the United States.

"While I'm here at the school, I want to learn all I can about Infantry tactics and modern Infantry weapons," the sergeant says, "I believe that our greatest weapons against our enemies is, and will continue to be, our thorough knowledge of our weapons and our reasons for fighting."

PT Stimulated by Bars Found In Junk

Considerable interest in Physical Training at Company H, 30th Infantry Regiment, has been stimulated by the addition of two sets of parallel bars and five chinning bars.

The equipment was constructed under the leadership of Second Lt. Charles T. Waits. After discovering the remains of the parallel bar in a junk pile, Lt. Waits, together with some athletic inclined EM of How Company, embarked on the project of putting the bars to use. They were scrapped, sanded, and painted the bars, which were quickly put to use by the company personnel. A short time later the chinning bars were added.

Lt. Waits, who is also coach of the CTC track team, developed his athletic talents at Tech High in Atlanta, where he was captain of the track, cross country, soccer, and wrestling teams. Later, he attended the University of Tennessee, majoring in Education and acting as captain of the cross country track squad.

Before entering the Army in August, 1939, Lt. Waits taught physical education and coached the track and cross country teams at Bearden High in Knoxville, Tenn.

Squad, Platoon Importance Cited by Benning Author

A simplified and easily understood book aimed at the leaders of the Army's smaller units has been written by Major Frank F. Rathbun, chief of The Infantry School's Training Literature Section.

The 96-page book, titled "The Rifle Squad and Platoon in the Attack," has an illustration on every page, helping to simplify tactics covered in the Army's technical manual.

Its seven chapters explain graphically the squad and platoon organization, combat formations, attack phases and preparations for attack. At the end of each chapter.

Curiosity Causes Teacher to Try For Golden Bars

SFC. William E. Moore of 14th OC Company is losing his stripes because of curiosity. Moore, who was formerly a communications instructor at the Infantry School, doesn't think the curiosity was too costly. He's getting set to exchange those stripes for gold bars. The curiosity came into the picture while the Sergeant was instructing officer candidate classes in communications. He wondered why OCS did to earn their commissions, applied for OCS, and was accepted. Moore wasn't the only thing that was ever curious about. In 1944 he wondered about the sea and entered the Merchant Marine Academy. He got enough wartime experience to satisfy even his curiosity. He was on a hospital ship that was stopped by a submarine and on a tanker loaded with high octane gasoline that was chased by a U-boat from Corpus Christi, Texas, to the Virginia coast. In May of 1945 he entered the Army, was discharged in 1946, and reenlisted in 1949. Assigned to Fort Monmouth, N. J. as an instructor, he was sent to Korea and served with the 25th Division's 89th Medium Tank Battalion as a gunner. He participated in the Pusan Perimeter Defense, the first U.N. Offensive, the Chinese intervention and the first UN Counter-offensive. He was rotated to Okinawa and eventually to The Infantry School.

Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, said the 24-foot road will start at the end of First Division Road and continue along Santa Fe Trail to Utopai Creek, where it will connect with a two-lane bridge. Work on the bridge will begin this month. After crossing the bridge, the new road will continue to Custer Road. Fort Benning engineers expect to complete construction of the road by June 5. Spider Webs Used in Instruments

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The deadly black widow spider is weaving a web of economy for the U.S. Army's Corps of Engineers. Nearly 100 black widows — so named because of their shiny black bodies and their tidy habit of eating a male after mating — are at work in the engineering section of the Columbus General Depot. The product of their labors, which cannot be duplicated by science, saves the government an estimated $6,000 a year. They spin the fine, tough, elastic web-strands used by Army engineers to replace cross-hairs for transit, levels and other surveying instruments. Additional military uses include cross-hairs in microscopes and in telescopic gun-sights. Tougher than steel, the strands are about one-hundredth the diameter of the human hair. They are so fine that 2,000 of them laid side by side would be necessary to fill an inch of space. Engineers say they can withstand a 90-pound blast of compressed air and remain in good condition after being boiled in water for long periods. Instruments equipped with such sturdy stuff can survive a considerable amount of rough handling without damage. Thinly spun glass is the nearest equivalent science has to offer for web-strands, but it's no substitute, engineers say. The Army added black widows to its rolls in 1941 when the supply of spider-webs was scarce in the commercial market. Of the 13,000 species of spiders, the black widow was chosen as the best for the Army's purposes. She spins a single, dark, uniform strand which is valued by engineers at $25 per 100 feet. The spiders are trapped in the area of Sharpe General Depot, Lathrop, Calif., where they abound and are more noted for their venom than their web-productivity. They are shipped by plane in special plastic containers to the Ohio Depot's precision instrument shop.

Since no attempt is made to breed the spiders, only females are shipped. At the depot, each spider is housed in an individual jar with a finely perforated top. She is fed two or three flies a week from a supply of larvae which comes from a nearby medical institute. A black widow can produce about 100 feet of web a day. Trained handlers remove the webbing every other day, using a wooden wand to coax the reluctant lady from her haven. The long strands of webbing then are wound on a wooden frame rack. Each frame holds about 60 inches of web. Before the strands are used, each is cleaned by an experienced technician who uses a camel's hair brush dipped in acetone. Workers use magnifying glasses when handling the delicate strands for they are all but invisible. In the 13 years that the Columbus depot has had its own black widow colony, no one has been bit. But they keep special anti-venom handy — just in case. The black widow is as ruthless with humans as with her own mate. Her bite has proven fatal in five per cent of reported cases.

RECEIVED... Sgt. Edwin C. Onstott of Montrose, Minn., is congratulating Lt. Edw. Kimbrough Harvey upon receiving an Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement as mess sergeant in the Fourth Student Battalion (Airborne). Boykin is a member of Headquarters and Service Company.

Medic Invents 'No-Shake' Thermometer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An electronic clinical thermometer which takes your temperature in five seconds flat has been developed by an Army dentist.

This is less time than it takes to shake down the mercury in the glass rod thermometer. Also, the conventional type requires three minutes to reach maximum temperature.

Colonel George T. Perkins, director of the dental division of the Army Medical Service Graduate School here, developed the new thermometer, the "Swiftem," the first innovation in the field since 1867. It is being presented to medical and allied professions by the Medical Research and Development Board, U. S. Army.

How much time and manpower can be saved by such a quick reading thermometer was demonstrated during a four-month test in an Army hospital.

Only one-fourth of the time Doing a Good Job Comes Naturally For Airborne Bn.

Doing a good job seems to be the attitude of the Airborne Battalion of the First Student Regiment.

Just recently it put on a drive to recruit new members for the Dad's Club. Out of this drive they got 103 new members. Now, all of the cadre officers and most of the cadre NCO's are members.

The big turn-out was due to the fact that the men became well versed in the activities of the Dad's Club through a thorough orientation by the battalion.

ELECTRONIC thermometer developed by Army dentist is easy to read, won't break and gives accurate reading in five seconds.

2d Lieutenant Leads Class 15

Second Lt. Robert L. Seidomridge of St. Albans, W. Va., won top academic honors in the 205-man basic officer class No. 15 which graduated here last week.

For his outstanding record of 95.4 per cent for the entire 11-week course, Lt. Seidomridge was presented an Infantry School letter of academic achievement.

Col. Blair A. Ford, chief of the Intelligence Group in the Staff Department and guest speaker for the graduation, told the officers that three essential qualifications are needed to be a good military leader.

Meat School Is Inaugurated

A Meat Cutting School opened last week at Fort Benning with 25 students enrolled.

The Quartermaster Section said the purpose of the five-week school is to train cooks to cut meats in combat areas and mess halls where there is no central meat cutting plant.

Two-hundred hours of instruction and practical training have been set up, with two instructors from the post's Third Army Food Service School to handle theory and personnel of the Central Meat Cutting Plant to supervise practical training.

much easier to read, since degrees are registered in numerals on a meter just as speeds are indicated on a speedometer.

A greater degree of accuracy can be obtained for the new instrument is unaffected by extreme temperature changes, humidity and pressure.

Moreover, glass is subject to so many kinds of structural change that of 75 conventional thermometers checked during tests only 25 proved accurate. These inaccuracies are so commonplace they are recognized and permitted by Federal specifications.

There is no breakage and less loss with the electronic thermometer. Another advantage is the elimination of malingering. When temperature can be taken almost instantaneously, the patient who is faking has no opportunity to raise

Army Unloading Mountain of Scrap

WASHINGTON—The Army is clearing its shelves of supplies and equipment valued at more than $1 billion dollars.

Thousands of items — from obsolete tanks and armored scout cars to surplus jeeps — are being disposed of at sales throughout the world. Some powerful and costly — but now unneeded — weapons are being sold for scrap.

On average, the Army receives between seven and eight million dollars per month in surplus. However, the actual return on the surplus dollar far exceeds the amount to be spent on new equipment when it is sold. Much of it has been sold to good advantage prior to the war.

At one sale of eight million dollars worth of equipment, buyers were required to handle the disposal of items no longer needed by the armed services.

Talent will be accepted for this show through Monday night, and interested persons may contact Mrs. Davis or Miss Parks at Service Club 4.

Interview Turns Into Date With Singer 'Rosie' Clooney

The man to see if you ever want a date with a movie star is OC Thomas H. Bross of 11th OC Company. Bross managed to date screen star Rosemary Clooney and this is his story:

"Miss Clooney was making a personal appearance at a theater in Milwaukee and my fraternity brothers at Marquette U. persuaded me to get a scoop for the campus newspaper. I was agreeable, and our expedition moved out completely with camera, notebook and sharpened pencil. After arrival at the theater and going through the chain of command, we were successful in getting their interview.

"Then a fraternity brother suggested to Miss Clooney that I would be proud and happy to escort her to dinner. She amazed us by accepting.

"After the memorable evening, the pictures were rushed to the engravers at 4 a.m. and the story came out the next afternoon."

Latest AFPS Report From Washington

Draft legislation permitting the induction of some men into the reserve program soon may be requested, according to Dr. John A. Harman, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel.

Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee here in Washington last week, Dr. Harman said that Congress may be called upon to provide legislation which would permit the drafting of some men for the specific purpose of service in the reserve units of the Army, including the National Guard, following a short period of active training.

Under questioning by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, committee chairman, as to the possibility of the elimination of the draft, Dr. Harman replied: "It is a little difficult for me to see how we are going to have an adequate reserve without involuntary service in the regular forces and probably in the reserve program."

The Air Force has announced that it expects to name the site for its new academy sometime around the middle of May. The architectural and construction work will be done by civilian contractors.

Wichita AFB, Kans., has been renamed McConnell AFB, according to a recent Air Force announcement. The change became effective April 12, 1954.

Major Gen. Howard L. Peckham, USAF, QM Training Command, Ft. Lee, Pa., has been named to head the Army Air Force Exchange Service, New York City. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, USAF. The change will take place June 1.

Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson said this week in his semi-annual report that the Navy's new carrier-based A3D jet bomber was designed to carry "the larger atomic weapons." He added one version of the F7U jet fighter would carry guided missiles. Navy officials say these probably would be of the air-to-air type such as the Sparrow, Oriole or Sidewinder. There is no information available on these weapons except their names.

The Comptroller General of the U.S. has reaffirmed his decision that only members of the regular components of the Armed Forces are eligible to select a home address upon retirement for purposes of travel and transportation allowances. Therefore, reservists approaching retirement are eligible for personal travel, dependent travel and shipment of household goods only to place of last entry on be of the air-to-air type such as active duty or to home of record.

AIRBORNE OR RANGER TRAINING

RA Lts. Must Take One

THE BAYONET

VOL. 12 NO. 35 THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1954 Published by The Ledger-Examiner Co. for America's Most Complete Army Post Sixteen Pages

Newcomers Face Choice Upon Entry

A new plan for training recently-commissioned officers, based upon a recommendation submitted by officials of Fort Benning's Infantry School, has been announced by the Department of the Army.

Beginning this summer, all newly-commissioned Regular Army second lieutenants in the Infantry, Armored, and Artillery branches, the Corps of Engineers and Signal Corps will be required to complete either the Army Ranger or airborne course.

The course to be taken will be optional but it is a choice which must be made before the officer falls to complete the airborne course will be required to complete the Ranger course in a move designed to develop a rugged, well-rounded corps of young officers. Those failing both courses will be referred to a physical evaluation board for disposition, the Army said.

Graduates of the United States Military Academy and the Reserve Officers Training Corps graduates who are commissioned in the Regular Army, will take the staminatesting course immediately following completion of their branch basic course. Officer candidate school graduates will be assigned to the course of their selection upon acceptance of Regular Army commission.

In the forthcoming year, approximately 755 newly-commissioned second lieutenants will take airborne or Ranger training. Airborne training will be conducted at Fort Benning. Present plans call for Ranger instruction to be held at the existing Ranger training installations here, at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and Dahlgren, Va.

The airborne course consists of approximately four and a half weeks of intensive conditioning and training in all phases of airborne techniques, including jump training. The Ranger course calls for rigorous and realistic training, under simulated combat conditions for a period of approximately two months.

$50,000 Harmony Swim Pool Started

Construction of a $50,000 outdoor swimming pool in the Harmony Church area heads a long list of improvements and remodeling projects planned by The Infantry Center Special Services Section.

Work on the pool has already begun at the other end of the base at Las Cruces, special services officer. It is being built by the 78th Engineer Battalion as a training project and is expected to be complete in July.

The pool will measure 165 feet in length and 75 feet in width. Starting at 3 ft. 6 in. at the shallow end, the water level will rise to 10 feet at the other end.

Doughboy Stadium, Gowdy Field, and the gymnasium also will be re-modeled during the next few months. Work on the south side of Doughboy Stadium already has started.

New steel beams to support the grandstand and remodeling of the roof, dugouts, refreshment stands and equipment sheds are being planned for Gowdy Field.

A new floor is being laid in the Gymnasium. Work there is scheduled to be completed near the end of June.

2000 Can Cut Tours of Duty

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Defense Department has ruled that 2000 members of the Army and some 450 Marines can be released from active duty before the termination of their 24-month tour.

This applied to men who were in the Service during, or shortly after, the end of WWII, or were discharged with less than a year of active duty, and then inducted under the current Selective Service system.

The amount of previous service will be subtracted from the 24 month tour. Therefore, it is possible that some of these men may be eligible for release as early as 12 months prior to their normal separation.

All future cases of this type will be handled in a similar manner, the Defense Department added, with the lone stipulation that the inductee must have completed at least 12 months on his current tour.

Trained Chinese

Sarge Thinks Infantry Tops

BY JOHN BERGEVIN
Some people claim that truck drivers have the best deal in the Army, while others sit and pray for the chance to be a cook. I had never heard of an Infantryman saying he had the best deal, until I talked to Sfc. Ivan Steele, TAC NCO, 121st Company, First OC Regiment.

"I think the greatest experience I have ever had was the mission I just completed as an adviser with the Chinese Nationalist Army on Formosa. There was a lot of hard work and not a few difficulties to overcome, but on the whole it was a memorable and exciting experience."

Sfc. Steele served 17 months on the island as a member of the Maneuver Area Training Group, which gave advice on squad and platoon tactics as well as weapons.

"I don't speak Chinese, so all interpreters," explained the Sergeant. "They worked without ceasing to help us make the Chinese Nationalist Soldier what he is today—a rugged, well disciplined, combat-ready soldier. He is very willing to learn, asks many questions, and shows a great desire to aid in the suppression of aggression."

All was not work, however. Personnel were provided with a beach for swimming, a beautiful EM club, and numerous other recreational facilities.

"I would like very much to return to Formosa," said Sgt. Steele, "because, although my primary mission would be to give advice, I know I could learn a great deal from those people."

Steele comes from Owingville, Ky., where he lived with his wife and daughter. During his 11 years of service he served with the 39th Infantry Regiment, First Division, during World War II, and the United Nations Reception Committee in Korea.

BATTALION'S BEST SOLDIER . . . Cpl. Phillip A. Weber, of Leroy, Ill., was chosen Soldier of the Month for the Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment, for his outstanding military bearing, appearance and general attitude. Weber is with A Company and is serving as Duty NCO.

Capt. Carl G. Lauterbach of Sac City, Iowa, and Second Lt. John W. Bjork of Eureka, S. Dak., have been assigned to the psychiatric social clinic at Fort Benning's Hospital.

Capt. Lauterbach, clinical psychology officer, came from Fort Huston, Texas, where he took the company officers course at the Medical Field Service School.

Entering the service in 1950 after taking a Ph.D. from the University of Ohio, he served an internship in clinical psychology at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, Colo. Later he was assigned as a clinical psychologist at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Lt. Bjork, social work officer, has a bachelor's degree in pre-social work from the University of Minnesota and a master's in social work from the University of Washington.

The addition of these specialists brings the psychiatric social clinic's staff to 12, devoted to the neurological and mental health of military personnel and their dependents.

The clinic has three psychiatrists, including its chief, Lt. Col. Robert J. Bernucci of Detroit. Much of the psychiatric social work officers, one clinical psychologist and one medical social work officer.

There are also two enlisted social workers and two enlisted psychology technicians.

Returning Officer Tells of U. S. Army Duties in Iceland

Lt. Edward Hessel, Headquarters & Headquarters Co., First OC Regiment, recently returned from a tour of duty in Iceland, gives us a picture of the Army's work and the people of that country.

The Army is represented by a reinforced battalion of troops whose primary duty is the guarding of air base facilities on the island. The normal tour of duty is 12 months for men whose dependents do not accompany them, and 24 months for men whose families do.

The climate, contrary to popular belief, is not characterized by year-round ice and snow but has a great deal of rain and high winds. The wind velocity sometimes exceeds 100 miles an hour. There is very little vegetation on the island. The few trees that do grow there were planted years ago.

Relations with the civilian population are very good. The people are friendly and there is practically no crime. The police in Iceland is especially impressive, practically all being over six feet tall. Their uniforms, solid black with large, wide black belts, add to the impression of size. They carry no weapons.

Recreational facilities on the island are somewhat limited. There is some ocean fishing, and a small amount of skiing.

Final Review Honors Brig. Gen. Newman

A farewell honor guard paid tribute to Brig. Gen. Aubrey S. Newman, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, Friday afternoon as he prepared to leave for an assignment in Europe.

Shortly before the ceremony at Chapel Field, Maj. Gen. G. S. Meley, Jr., presented the departing general a Certificate of Achievement signed by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander.

The certificate was in recognition of Gen. Newman's outstanding work at Fort Benning. As second in command the one-star general served as right hand man to Gen. Meley and took over many administrative and logistical duties.

The certificate, presented for the period of Oct. 25, 1953, to May 13, 1954, read:

"During this period, Gen. Newman displayed great initiative, foresight and organizational ability. Upon his assignment, he was appointed to the newly created post of deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center. With his guidance, a close working liaison and beneficial cooperation with the commander and members of his staff were successfully established, although no precedent of procedure existed."

The third battalion of the 39th Infantry Regimental Combat Team provided troops for the honor guard, which was witnessed by the general staff and other officials.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Two of the OC companies in the First Regiment have started an extensive landscaping and general redecoration of the company area. Eleventh and 12th companies have started work on a program consisting of planting shrubbery and grass around the buildings, the laying of walks, and general improvements of the complete area.

'Never Had It So Good' CTC Men Like New Barracks

BY FRANK G. SULLIVAN
Home has been variously described as a place "to hang your hat" or "a place where, when you have to go there, they have to let you in."

Whatever home may mean to the individual, the soldier still has two homes, his birth place and his quarters in the Army. Some persons may think that it makes little difference about his home in the Army. But the newly constructed permanent-type barracks in the South Fort Benning area, into which the 30th Infantry Regiment recently moved, attest to the truth that a man is happiest when his living conditions are more like a home.

A recent interview with more than 100 members of the 80th tended to show that the men are well satisfied with their new home. Some bemoaned the lack of PX facilities but realized that these deficiencies will be corrected. The following statements seem to be typical of the general opinions:

Sfc. John Massey of Evansville, Ind., S2 sergeant of the 30th commented, "The Infantry never had it so good."

M-Sgt. Christopher Burns, sergeant major of the First Battalion and a veteran of 32 years' service, said, "It's far superior to anything I've seen in the Army."

Pvt. William W. Harman, a cook in Headquarters Company, Second Battalion realized the necessity of maintaining the beauty of the new barracks. He claimed that the quarters are "fine if kept clean. The kitchens are better equipped and more convenient, but require more walking."

Two men of Company L, Cpl. J. P. Williams and Pfc. Marlin Stoner, seemed to be of the opinion that the new buildings were "great," but ventured with a bit of humor that "it takes a company platoon leader in Company E, to live in them but a battalion to clean them."

Pvt. Thomas Lowell of Pittsburgh, a member of Company C, felt that the new buildings "give one a feeling of more like home."

complaints about the barracks. Second Lt. Willie F. Jackson, form his group.

Details of New Specialist Rating to Be Aired In Next Week's Benning Command Conference

A Fort Benning special subject entitled "Over Hopp'n, Serge" will be the topic for next week's Troop Information Conference, according to an announcement by the post Troop Information and Education Officer.

The special subject, prepared by the Information Division of the T&E section, deals with the Army's new Specialist rating plan. Besides being presented at next week's troop information conference, it will be available in unit day rooms.

The subject was prepared specifically to fulfill an information need of Fort Benning soldiers, and includes all available information concerning the NCO-Specialist rating program, which will be implemented in the field on Jan. 1, 1955.

New Plans
The booklet explains that the new plan is designed to emphasize non-commissioned officer leadership and to establish a separate category of enlisted personnel to be known as specialists. Under the plan enlisted leaders only will be NCO's, and other personnel in the top four pay grades will be specialists. Pay status will not be affected.

The plan is the product of considerable high-level staff work, and has been reviewed and endorsed by 1,000 career NCO's and 200 mature officers. It is basically designed for the career soldier with the idea to restore the prestige of the NCO.

All available details on the new plan are presented in the 12-page booklet, which is easily recognizable by a cover depicting a thoughtful NCO speculating on the effects of the NCO-Specialist plan.

Chart Description
Included in the pamphlet is a nine block chart which compares the plan as related to pay grades, per cent of grades to be NCO's, type of TO-E leadership positions, comparable NCO titles, predicted number of NCO's as of June 30, 1954, comparable specialist titles, type of TO-E specialist positions, per cent of grades to be specialists, and sketches of the new specialist insignia.

To illustrate the importance of the subject matter to military personnel, the booklet notes that 98 per cent of an estimated 260,000 corporals will be moved into the specialist field. Sixty per cent of the sergeants will wear the new specialist insignia.

A task of considerable magnitude faces staff members and commanders at every level from Department of Army on down. TO-E's must be revised, regulations amended, provisions made for establishing boards of officers to determine who shall retain NCO status despite Specialist assignment, and new insignia purchased and distributed.

The Information Division booklet is primarily designed to inform enlisted personnel how they may be affected by the new plan, and to create an understanding of the overall program.

58 Are Graduated From Airborne Class

Three officers and 55 enlisted men graduated Friday from The Infantry School's three-week basic airborne course No. 37 at Fort Benning.

Enlisted honor graduate was Pvt. Donald E. Spangler, of Dottieville, Idaho.

TI&E OFFICER . . . Capt. Marion D. Joyce, TI&E Officer, is seen here receiving his captain's bars from Lt. Col. Charles W. Hall, post TI&E officer (right). Capt. Joyce was a civilian public information official in Germany and returned there as an Army officer and served for 15 months as a PIO.

TI&E Plans 2 Classes For Discussion Leaders

Two Army 40-Hour Discussion Leaders' Courses will be conducted for Fort Benning personnel between May 24 and June 5, according to an announcement by Lt. Col. Charles W. Hall, post Troop Information and Education Officer.

The first course will run from May 24 to 28 and the second will be conducted from June 2 to 5. Each course will train approximately 60 discussion leaders.

The course is designed to train unit troops information conference leaders in the conduct of the weekly conferences. They will receive instruction in discussion leading techniques, different methods of presentation, and the use of training aids.

Each graduate will be required to present to the group a five, ten, and 60 minute talk as a part of the school training. Classes in other subjects, such as the Army education program, posting the unit TI&E display centers, and NCO status despite Specialist assignment, will be given.

The Information Division booklet is primarily designed to inform enlisted personnel how they may be affected by the new plan, and to create an understanding of the overall program.

19-Year-Old Wins Top Soldier Rating

A 19-year-old private less than two months out of basic training was named Soldier of the Week for Second Bn., 30th Infantry Regt., Pvt. Glenn M. Moon of Co. C.

Subject of the program will be Mother's Day, or Mother.

Ethan Stroh, an OCS cadet, will take part in a fencing program next Thursday.

The program, presented by The Informative Group, will be held at the Moskey House, 3442 Cathryn Drive under the direction of Antonio Mani. The public is invited and there is no admission.

509th Engineers Lead 78th Softball League

The 509th Engineer (C) Co. softball team is leading the 78th Engineer Bn. league with a 4-0 record. Unless an upset at the hands of fourth and fifth place teams in the final two games they will represent 78th in the CTC intramural league starting June 14.

MEDAL OF HONOR

Army M-Sgt. Ray E. Duke was a platoon sergeant — one of the best. He won the Medal of Honor for his superb leadership and heroism during a bitter seesaw battle on Hill 603 near Mugok, Korea, April 26, 1951. At the time he was a sergeant first class in charge of the first platoon of Co. C, 21st Inf. Regt., 24th Inf. Div.

M-Sgt. Doy Deaton saw it all: "It was at about 0300 hours when we were hit by enemy troops. They hit us and drove us back to higher ground. Duke was hit in the head at the beginning of the attack, but he was still in complete charge of what men there were left."

Sgt. Duke was told that some wounded were still in the positions. Duke reorganized his men and charged using bayonets and rifle butts in an assault that chased the enemy away and saved the wounded soldiers.

"We retook the hill," said Sgt. Deaton, "but before we could really dig in, the enemy hit us again." Sgt. Duke was wounded in the back by mortar fragments, but he repeatedly exposed himself to move among his men and give them the confidence they needed. It became apparent that the outfit was in danger of annihilation. The casualties were mounting.

"We started our withdrawal," said Deaton. "Duke was hit in the legs. He was on his knees — wounded in the head and back and legs — ordering the remaining men to move out. Two men attempted to carry Duke. One was hit. Duke ordered both men to leave him — to try to make it alone."

Sgt. Duke was last seen pouring devastating fire into the on-rushing enemy. He was promoted to master sergeant while on the missing in action list. Later the Army learned that M-Sgt. Duke died in a POW camp on Armistice Day, 1951.

His death was caused by malnutrition and dysentery. (AFPS).

SR Officer Wins Award for Heroism

The place was near Tangson-ni, Korea. The time of action was Sept. 7, 1952. The enemy had pinned down Capt. Harvey O. Sweeney's Platoon.

Capt. Sweeney moved among his troops and by his calmness and courage encouraged them to stand firm. Despite a painful wound, he helped assist the wounded and coordinated the action. Refusing aid, after being wounded a second time he moved across the fire-swept areas to obtain a gun replacement.

Wounded in both legs and no longer able to move, he refused evacuation and ordered that he be carried to a position from which he could direct his men. By his skill and courage he enabled them to fight off the enemy until assistance arrived. For his heroic action he won the Distinguished Service Cross.

Capt. Sweeney was also awarded the Silver Star for heroic action in Korea on Sept. 3, 1952. He also holds the Bronze Star Medal for outstanding action on July 13, 1952.

Several thousand dollars recently have been appropriated for improvements to the theaters at this installation, one improvement being the new theater chairs installed at the Main Post Theater.

During the last few weeks vandals have cut and mutilated beyond repair five of the new seats. Any future improvements may be greatly curtailed due to such willful destruction of theater property.

Therefore, complete cooperation of theater patrons is requested in reporting to the assistant manager any acts of vandalism to theater property that is detected during the viewing of movies.

Army Doing A Fine Job

61 Business, Industrial Execs Praise JCOC No. 18

Sixty-one business and industrial executives left Fort Benning last Thursday morning with greater respect for and a clearer picture of the U. S. Infantry and a feeling that the Army is "doing a fine job."

After a two-day series of briefings and demonstrations, the Army's phase of Joint Civilian Orientation Conference No. 18 ended with an hour-long training problem of a reinforced rifle company in the defense.

The group left for Washington, D. C., where their tour of U.S. military installations officially began May 5.

L. A. Stone, executive vice president of Eversharp, Inc., New York City, had this to say about the training and combat preparedness being accomplished:

"It is so overwhelming that it transcends the imagination. I have seen here with great respect for everything I've seen. You must have the greatest appreciation for the Infantry, for it has a most difficult job. I also have the greatest respect for the men and officers at Fort Benning."

Marvin W. Swaim, first vice president of the Alton Box Board Company of Alton, Ill., stressed his interest in the research and development which is going on here.

"The thing that impressed me," he declared, "is the development and research under way and the integration of the different forces

Window Displays Emphasize How Tax Dollar Is Spent

The Combat Training Command emphasized cost of material, supply economy, and how the taxpayer's dollar was spent in its street and window displays in Columbus during Armed Forces Week.

A display of all types of weapons in an Infantry Regiment was on the island on Broadway with personnel from Third Bn., 30th Infantry Regt., there to answer questions and explain to the public what each is used for and its characteristics. The street display also included two new M-48 Tank Bn., at two personnel carriers from 77th which makes them so effective. "I emphasize research and development because I think it is very necessary in this age when we have to become highly technical. What I have seen here would amaze the average citizen if he had the opportunity to see it as I have," he said.

Serious Business
The president of the Hyster Company in Portland, Ore., Ernest G. Swigert, thought that the Infantry takes its business much more seriously than other services.

Shanley F. Corcoran, president of the Joseph F. Corcoran Shoe Company which manufactures the Infantry's paratrooper boots, heard that from 15 to 25 per cent of the airborne trainees "wash out" at the 34-foot training tower. He made the jump to obtain his own reaction under similar circumstances.

"I felt that with trained instructors telling them what to do and with their equipment, the finest in the world, they shouldn't have too much trouble at that altitude. I thought that if I could get off the ground and then back on it safely again that others could. My only advice is—don't look at the ground. Keep your eyes on the horizon."

Shanley F. Corcoran, president of the Joseph F. Corcoran Shoe Company, Stoughton, Mass., maker of the Infantry's jump boots, rides the buddy seat as a member of Joint Civilian Orientation Conference No. 18, the Army portion of which was held here last week.

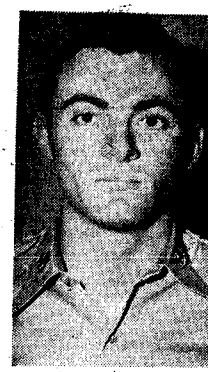

Second Lt. Robert J. Anders is learning how to feed the troops of Company C, 77th Tank Bn., at Mess Officers School, TIC.

STC SOLDIER OF THE MONTH . . . Pfc. Ronald D. Grayson, Hq. & Hq. Company, Special Troops Command, has been selected as Soldier of the Month of STC. He entered the Army May 28, 1951, and is assigned to the S-4 Section of the First Special Troops Bn.

30th Soldier Saga

Fought Reds, Captured by U.S.

Educated under the Hitler Youth Movement, fought against the Russians, captured and held prisoner by the Americans — a strange background for an American Soldier, but that is the story of Pfc. Josef W. Bueker of Richmond, Va. Pfc. Bueker, now serving with Company D, 30th Infantry Regiment, was born 26 years ago in Gros Bressen, Germany. He was one of seven boys in the family, five of which served in the German Army.

Bueker, like other German youths of his generation, grew up under the power of the Nazi regime, and from the time of his entrance into the first grade in school, was subjected to its propaganda.

Lt. to Return To Sgt's Job

A lieutenant who will soon become a sergeant is Second Lt. James K. Lee, who is attending Basic Infantry Officers Course with 102 Company, First Student Regiment.

Lt. Lee was a police sergeant in civilian life and when the class over he will return to Natchitoches, La., and resume his job.

As the Russians pushed forward, Bueker's unit dropped back into Czechoslovakia. During the fighting he was wounded by shrapnel. It was in Czechoslovakia, however, that his fighting was to end.

While on patrol with two other German soldiers, his unit was overrun and captured. Separated from his outfit, Bueker and two comrades wandered behind the Russian lines for several weeks, hiding from the Russian soldiers.

The young captive was then interned in an American POW camp for three and a half months. Three of Josef's brothers were also captured by the Americans.

M-1 EXPERT . . . Sfc Ted R. Thomas, first sergeant, 107th Company, First OC Regiment, qualified as expert with the M-1 rifle every time he fired on the range since 1939, when he first enlisted in the Army. He has been first sergeant of 107th Company since Dec. 17, 1953.

Flash Burn Critique

Soldier Still Most Important

EXERCISE FLASH BURN, Fort Bragg, N.C. — Although the Army has newly developed atomic weapons, it still must depend primarily on the individual soldier.

That was a consensus at a formal critique of Exercise P-1 a Flash Burn attended by the Army's highest officers at the completion of the 60,000-man atomic field maneuver.

General Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, said that atomic weapons are necessitating modifications and substitutions for former military tactics and techniques.

In the North Carolina maneuver the Army used two new atomic weapons for the first time in a large-scale exercise. They were the "Corporal" and "Honest John," both capable of firing atomic warheads. The effective range of the "Corporal" has been revealed as 50 miles.

Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, maneuver director and Third Army Commander, pointed up three problems involved in the tactical use of atomic weapons. Those are dispersion, concealment, and mobility of troops.

"Unit commanders," he said, "must insist on dispersion of troops and the equipment for best protection against atomic attack. Effective concealment is essential to avoid presentation of an effective target."

Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of Army Field Forces, said that "continued emphasis must be placed on airborne operations." The Air Force dropped nearly 9,000 troops of the 82nd Airborne Division into theoretical enemy territory.

Gen. Bolling pointed out that troop and vehicle camouflage improved noticeably during the maneuver. Concerning mobility he said that commanders must have their forces properly disposed at the right place and right time. Helicopters are helpful, he said, but we must continue to study methods of getting troops quickly and efficiently to the point of conflict.

Col. Wheeler Assigned to AFF

Col. Lester L. Wheeler of Chevy Chase, Md., has been assigned here to the Analysis and Control Department of Army Field Forces Board No. 3.

Col. Wheeler came to Fort Benning from Korea where he served with the Fifth Regimental Combat Team and as chief of operations of the Eighth Army staff.

A veteran of 19 years service, he graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1935 and came here for the first time in 1938.

During World War II, Col. Wheeler served in Hawaii, Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines. He later was on occupation duty in Japan.

He holds the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Combat Infantryman Badge with Star.

Korean General Begins Visit

Brig. Gen. Choi Gab Chung of the Republic of Korea Army began a six-day visit to Fort Benning last Friday.

Executive officer of the ROK Army's Operations and Training Division, Gen. Choi visited Major Gen. G. S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry School commandant, and Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant, before he began a series of briefings.

Another panel with Lt. Col. John T. Kramers in charge will discuss school improvements initiated by the P-TA.

Col. Edward L. Rowny, outgoing president, will summarize the year's program before turning over his gavel to Lt. Col. Lehman H. Johnson.

New officers to be installed by Col. Frazer W. Rodman, president of the School Council, include Lt. Col. Johnson, Maj. Sgt. Erwin J. Gomon, first vice-president; Mrs. Serre D. DeLoach, second vice-president; Maj. William F. Long, treasurer; and Mrs. Thompson M. Collett, secretary.

In announcing the program for the final meeting of the year, Col. The credit for this success belongs to the parents who have supported the program so faithfully. A record-breaking turnout on Monday will bring the P-TA season to a fitting close, and I hope all Fort Benning parents will be on hand to provide such an appropriate climax."

10 Marks Shattered at Meet

4 Athletes Win 2 Events As CTC Wins Team Trophy

Records toppled like bowling pins Sunday as the well-balanced Combat Training Command walked off with the talent-studded Infantry Center track and field meet at Doughboy Stadium.

Ten marks were shattered and one tied in a record assault by nearly 150 athletes, who competed for berths on the 18-man team that will represent the post in the Third Army meet to be held June 4-5 at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Top record-breakers were Tom Neuberger and Pete Retzlaff, former teammates at South Dakota State University.

Mile Record Smashed - Neuberger, running for The Infantry School Detachment, ran the mile in 4:22 which eclipsed the post record of 4:34.2 and which could have done the same to the Third Army mark of 4:32.3.

Retzlaff, holder of two National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic records, heaved the shot 50 feet, two and one-quarter inches to break the old mark of 46 feet, three and one-half inches.

Entering the meet unattached, he shattered another record Saturday when he hurled the discus 164 feet six inches, more than enough distance needed to break the old mark of 124 feet, two inches. The Third Army mark is 124 feet, five inches.

Hurdle Mark Broken - Howard, CTC's crack hurdler, took the highs in :15.1, breaking the old record of :15.6, and the lows in :26.0.

The 47th Division Artillery's one winner, Barekoff tied the 100-yard dash meet record at :10.0 and came back to take the 220 in :23.5, three-tenths of a second off the mark.

Record-breaking performances found Walter Harris, 135th Infantry Regiment, doing :49.7 in the 440, bettering the old mark of :49.0.

SOFTBALL ACTION - The Hq. & Hq. Company softball team won its first game of the First OC Regimental softball season by beating 11th OC Company by the lopsided score of 19 to 2.

The pitching of David Dean and a grand slam home run by John Nibert sparked the winners.

It was Molloy's mixture of cross court forehand drives with sterling net play that choked-off a brilliant up-hill climb by Whitmoyer, who placed sixth at the start of the matches May 8.

Benning Boy Scouts Receive Awards at 3-Day Camporee

Two Fort Benning Boy Scout troops received awards at the annual Boy Scout Camporee last week end at The Infantry Center.

Troop 27 won standard and participation honors and Troop 10 earned a participation award during the three-day activity, involving 18 Scout units of the Georgia-Alabama Council.

Divarty Scuttled By Three Upsets

Throw away your dope sheets and form chart, Mr. & Mrs. TIC Baseball Fan, and prepare for anything. Following the rash of upsets in post play recently, the so-called sure thing and cinch game are things of the musty past.

Surprise number one was the sudden collapse of the Division Artillery nine that had been galloping rampant through all opposition. As late as last Thursday the Redlegs owned an unblemished season record, but by sunset Sunday night Divarty had absorbed no less than three lacings in three starts and had been dropped into a first place tie.

The 135th Infantry Red Bulls were the chief factors in the decline and fall of the Divarty empire. The 135th handed the Redlegs a pair of 2-1 littings in games played at Camp Rucker which count in Benning standings. Followed by double setbacks, Divarty trekked back to Gowdy Field only to run afoul of a determined 136th team.

Behind the left-handed slants of Bill Kipp, leading pitcher in the Class B Tri-State League last year, the Bercaerts of the 136th handed Divarty their third beat-

Lyle Dickey, re-wrote the pole vault record with a leap of 13 feet, six inches, breaking the post mark of 12 feet, which is also the Third Army mark.

Jump Goal Falls - The old high jump record at six feet was shattered by Harold New, who went over at 6 feet, one-half inch for the officer candidate team.

Alan Reich hurled the javelin 174 feet, 11 inches and was one of the few winners who failed to assault the old marks.

Joining Reich in that class was Art Leaning who broad-jumped 21 feet, six inches for CTC.

The Commanders' mile relay team stamped off four laps in 3:25 to erase the old mark of 3:32.8. The foursome was comprised of Reuben Porter, Garfield Williams and Garel Smith and Bill Dooley.

CTC supplemented their five first place winners with many runner-up and third-place points to pull away from the seven team field.

CTC finished with 57 and one-quarter points while runner-up honors went to 47th Divarty with 26 and one-half tallies. Trailing were 136th Infantry with 19 and one-half points, ISD 18, OC Regt. 16, 164th Infantry Regt., 10 and one-half, and 136th Infantry Regt., 4 and one-quarter points. One athlete represented CTC.

During the latter stages of the war, Pvt. Bais' town, the port of Salonika, second largest city in Greece, was being bombed by American and British planes in an effort to dislodge the Germans.

Bais was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., but in 1936 his parents, originally from Greece but American citizens, returned to the land of Homer and Socrates to visit relatives. There they purchased an apartment building and store and remained.

With all income taken away, the elder Bais turned from a businessman with a cottage on the Mediterranean to a worker in a shoe shop and George and his brothers turned to selling cigars in the streets.

Bais and his family returned to the United States after the war and settled in New York City.

When asked about conditions while a prisoner, the Lt. expressed his feeling toward the lack of food but other than that he felt that there were no other outstanding injustices.

Each company mess hall had refreshments for approximately 500 visitors, who viewed the immaculate barracks and stainless steel kitchens.

Cavalry Veteran Saw Duty in Alaska And Panama Canal

M. Sgt. Louis D. Cornelius, Tactical NCO with 121st Company, First OC Regiment, in nine short months will be eligible for retirement after a career that included five years with the horse cavalry at Fort Bliss, Texas.

His most vivid remembrance is a 160-mile ride which took only six weeks to complete. He traveled this whole distance on one horse.

From the sand dunes of Texas to the snow drifts of the Arctic is the story of the sergeant's next move. He spent 31 months testing cold weather equipment in Alaska. Temperature often dropped as low as 70 degrees below zero.

Another shift of scene, Alaska to Panama. Sergeant Cornelius was stationed for 2 years with the coast artillery in the Canal Zone. While in the jungle he did a great deal of hunting, bagging several kinkajous.

The sergeant also spent some time with the 25th Division in Korea after which he came to Fort Benning.

135th Regt. Marching In From Rucker

Troops of the 135th Infantry Regiment are expected to arrive at Sand Hill this weekend after a six-day march from Camp Rucker.

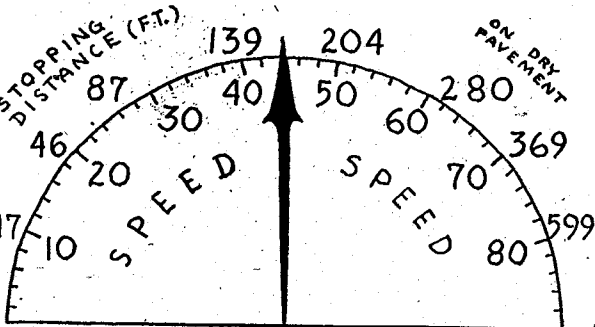

The Viking regiment was transported from Rucker to Skipperville, Ala. bivouac site Sunday and troops began the trek early Monday morning.

The march, designed to emphasize administrative rather than combat and tactical details, is the final phase of the 47th Division's movement from Camp Rucker to Fort Benning.

Dressed in Fatigues
Clad in fatigue uniforms with combat packs and individual weapons, troops left their overnight bivouac area near Skipperville at 6 a.m. Monday for the 16-mile march to their next bivouac area near Lindsay, Ala.

Tuesday the regiment moved 17 (Please See 135TH, Page 22)

ON MEMORIAL DAY WEEK END LET YOUR ABILITY TO STOP GOVERN HOW FAST YOU DRIVE

STOPPING DISTANCE DIAGRAM... shows the feet in which you can stop a vehicle on dry pavement with reaction time of 3/4 second. For example, at 50 mph it takes 204 feet to stop. Most all traffic accidents during past holiday periods involved a speed violation and usually occurred at night. The fact of the matter is, the driver simply could not stop within the distance he could see ahead. Any speed above fifty during the hours of darkness is gambling with death, with odds on the side of death.

Chap. Junkins Leaving Post For Far East

The services at the cemetery will include an honor guard composed of the First Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, a Company M Training Command firing squad, and a four-man color guard.

The 122nd Army Band will present a 15-minute concert before the invocation by Chaplain (1st Lt.) Bernard Weissman, Chaplain Lowin will deliver the Memorial Day address, followed by the benediction by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen Stoiz.

The program will close with the National Anthem and the Scouts placing flowers on individual graves.

National TV Film Using CTC Troops

The filming of a semi-documentary picture for national television distribution, recruiting service, and military release began Tuesday at Fort Benning.

The 28-minute film, "All-Star Team," outlines the elements and job assignments in the U. S. Infantry, according to Capt. Robert Dall'Acqua, producer. Capt. Dall'Acqua works out of the Military Personnel Procurement Division in the Adjutant General's Office, Washington.

Approximately 500 Fort Benning soldiers are taking part in the production, with several having featured roles. So far Troops Third Battalion, 30th Infantry, tankers from the 73d Battalion, and men from the Medical Company of the 30th have taken part.

Company L has furnished a platoon of troops and Company M supplied a machine gun squad and a 75-mm recoilless rifle squad, commanded by Second Lt. Fred Scott, Jr.

Capt. Dall'Acqua estimates it will take three weeks to complete the filming. A seven-man crew including sound men, technicians and cameramen, arrived here Monday from MPO Productions in New York City under contract to the Department of the Army.

The film will cover Infantry elements such as airborne, artillery, armor, engineer, signal, quartermaster, military police, ordnance, medical, special services, and Army aviation. It is expected to be available for distribution by August.

Three major films have been produced at Fort Benning by the Military Personnel Procurement Division during the past year.

Safety Meet to Have Detonator Display

Detonator demonstrations will highlight the monthly safety meeting today of the Fort Benning Transportation Section.

More than 600 drivers are expected to be present at the demonstrations, which test a driver's breaking and reaction time.

47th Boasts Long, Proud History

Vikings Can Trace Lineage To Conquering Norsemen

The 47th (Viking) Infantry Division is one of the youngest outfits in the Armed Forces of the United States, yet it has a proud and victorious heritage stretching back 1,000 years.

For these modern-day Vikings, though not formally organized as the 47th until 1946, are heirs of action-packed centuries of history—dating from the bold explorations of the Norsemen 500 years before Columbus to the United Nations' unprecedented defense of collective security in Korea.

Leif Erickson and his crew of seafaring soldiers who sailed and marched — some historians told — into the heart of the North American continent while Europe was still groping through the Dark Ages, were the forerunners of today's Vikings in more ways than one.

These Vikings were explorers and colonizers and founders of governments — along with being the most feared and respected fighting men in the war-torn world of their day.

Today's men of the Viking Division have a much more varied lineage than the Norsemen. The 47th is now a truly All-American Division, boasting men from every one of the 48 states, all three territories, and a number of foreign countries.

Backgrounds Varied

As the Vikings costumed now weld men of richly varying backgrounds, so our history is also fused of diversified strands. In a broad sense, the battles of free men in all countries and all centuries are a part of the history of the 47th. In more formal military terms, however, it is proper to trace the 47th's historical background from the Indian Wars of 1689-1864.

The "Pioneer Guards" were organized at St. Paul, Minn. in 1856, the year before Minnesota Territory achieved statehood. These guards were the founding fathers of the First Regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, parent organization of the 135th and 136th Infantry Regiments of later fame.

Forerunners of today's 135th Infantry Regiment were the first to respond to President Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers at the start of the Civil War. News of the fall of Fort Sumter reached the nation's capital on the evening of April 13, 1861. On the morning of April 14, Gov. Alexander Ramsey of Minnesota Territory called Secretary of War Cameron and offered 1,000 men.

23 Battles

The tall, lanky men from the Paul Bunyon country became a legend for tough-and-ready fighting in the four-year war. They took part in 23 battles, and lesser skirmishes and engagements.

These were the men who in 1862 were credited with turning the tide at the Battle of Gettysburg in a fearless charge, from which only one man in five emerged unscathed. With Union forces in disorderly retreat, the First Minnesota Volunteers were ordered into the breach. The regiment suffered 82 which served with the 34th Division in World War II.

MAJ. GEN. RICHARD W. STEPHENS
Commanding General of the 47th Infantry Division

Europe, Korean Veteran Leads The 47th Division

Richard W. Stephens was born in Pierre, S. D., on Nov. 15, 1902. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry on June 12, 1924.

From 1924 to 1941 he served in various company grades in the 7th, 19th, 25th, 31st, 23rd, and 53rd Infantry Regiments. During World War II he served as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, 30th Infantry Division; Commanding Officer, 119th Infantry Regiment; Chief of Staff, 39th Infantry Division; and Assistant Division Commander 40th Infantry Division. He participated in the following campaigns in Europe: Normandy, Northern France, Central Europe, Ardennes, and Rhineland.

He took command of the 21st Infantry Regiment, 24th Infantry Division, in October, 1949, and took part in the following campaigns in Korea: U.N. Defensive, U.N. Offensive, CCF Intervention and U.N. Counter Offensive. The unit was the first to be committed at the start of fighting in July 1950 and at one time the regiment was in contact with the enemy near the Yalu River.

In January 1954 he was assigned as Deputy Commanding General, 47th Infantry Division, Camp Rucker, Alabama, and in February 1954 was named Commanding General, 47th Infantry Division.

He was promoted to brigadier general on Oct. 3, 1951 and received his present rank on Nov. 18, 1952, with date of rank Oct. 19, 1947. He has been awarded the following United States decorations: Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters. He has also been awarded the French Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with Palm, Belgian Croix de Guerre with Palm, Netherlands Commander of the Order of Orange-Nassau, and the United Nations Medal.

He was also awarded the United States Medal of Honor for his heroism in combat.

The unit was returned to inactive service in 1899, but was recalled after Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit, had raided Columbus, Mexico. With other units, the regiment patrolled the border and prepared for any trouble that might have arisen. After the incident ended, the regiment became inactive again until it was activated for World War I. During the war, it was renamed the 164th Infantry Regiment.

The 164th — including sons of the same North Dakota outfit which saw so much action in the Philippines in the Spanish-American War — was back in the South Pacific in World War II, assigned to the Americal Division in New Caledonia months before the North African invasion on the other side of the world.

The 164th was, in fact, the first United States ground unit to take the offensive World War II — another in the long line of "firsts" by the men who laid the foundations of today's 47th Guadalcanal!

Vikings Called To Active Duty In January 1951

The 47th Division, composed of the 135th, 136th, and 164th Infantry Regiments, Division Artillery, and numerous other Special Troops units, was alerted by presidential proclamation on Dec. 16, 1950, before that time it had served as a National Guard Division in Minnesota and North Dakota. One month later, the 47th's 9,000 men, who stemmed from 79 different towns and villages, began the long trek to Camp Rucker, Ala., for training.

The 47th passed from a National Guard status to an Army of the United States division after Jan. 16, 1951, and is slated to remain in this status with a mission of general reserve.

The 47th Division is commanded by Maj. Gen. R. W. Stephens.

682d Saw Duty During WW II

The 682d Engineer Combat Battalion of the 47th Division saw action in World II. The battalion fought through the African and Italian campaigns and into Southern France.

At the time, its elements were not known as the 682nd, and the unit as it exists today was not formed until June 1946. In April of the following year it was organized and federally recognized as the 682nd (AES) from members of the 151st, 175th, and 995th Field Artillery Battalions, and the 135th Infantry Regiment.

The 135th Infantry is the 47th Division's oldest fighting unit, with a battle history full of glorious feats. The regiment was born at St. Paul, Minn., in April 1856, as an independent military company called the "Pioneer Guards". Its main purpose was to defend the frontier settlements against increasing Indian raids. With the establishment of the Minnesota Militia, the Guards became the first unit of the First Minnesota Volunteers.

Following the end of the War Between the States, the regiment was mustered out and the men returned to their homes in Minnesota.

The North African action started with a "surround" of some of our troops at Algiers — to the French, who were to be our allies anyway, but who felt obligated to defend their city." The French treated the Americans with true Gallic gallantry, and released them several days later to fight Germans.

After the Germans were put to rout in North Africa, the 135th marched stubbornly along the long and bloody road to victory, along with many other American units. In Italy, after the Italian army shifted from its Nazi alliance to co-belligerency with the Allies, the slugging up the mountainous peninsula was slow. There were the German Winter line, the Hitler Line, the Gustav Line, the Gothic Line, and the Garigliano Line to be broken. The 135th broke through them all, in gruelling succession, to finally flood out over the fertile Po Valley, where the ferocious Germans surrendered in regimental and even divisional numbers.

Five Separate Units Make Up 47th Arty.

The 47th Infantry Division artillery is presently composed of five separate units—four field artillery battalions and one anti-aircraft artillery battalion. All but the latter saw action in Europe during World War II. Three battalions, the 125th, 151st, and 175th were part of the 34th Infantry Division at the time, and took part in nearly all major battles of the war in Europe, especially through the North African and Italian campaigns.

The history of the 125th Field Artillery Battalion dates back to April 15, 1887, when it was organized as the Third Infantry Regiment of the Minnesota Reserve National Guard. Some of its units saw action in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the Mexican Border, and World War I. The unit became the 125th FA Battalion in 1917 and was attached to the 34th Infantry Division. Later, on February 10, 1941, the unit was recalled to active service, and after training at Camp Claiborne, La., set out for Italy and North Africa.

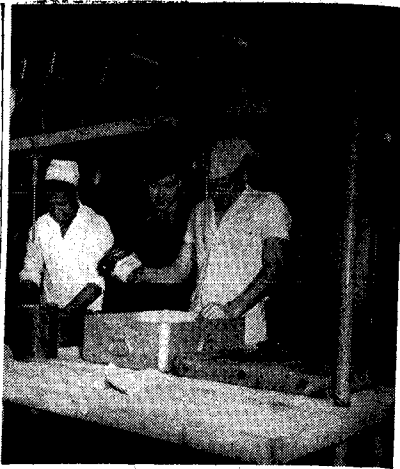

The beginnings of the 151st FA Battalion date back still further. This unit was organized in 1864 as the First Regiment, Minnesota Heavy Artillery. It officially came to the 151st in 1917 when it was assigned to the 42nd Division. The Battalion distinguished itself during the first World War at such places as Lorraine, Champagne, Champagne-Marne, Alsace-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne. During World War II the unit saw action at many now-famous battlegrounds, including Cassino and Anzio in Italy.

The 175th FA Battalion is a direct offshoot of the 151st. In December 1941, when the 175th Division was re-organized from a square to a triangular type division, the Second Battalion of the 151st was renamed the 175th FA Battalion. All of the honors and achievements of the 151st can rightly be included in the history of the 175th. For the 175th Battalion holds the distinction of firing the first shell by American ground troops against German ground troops in World War II. This was in November 1942 near Medjex-el-Bab in North Africa while the 175th was a part of the Eastern Assault Forces attached to the British First Army.

The 188th FA Battalion was activated in the Fall of 1936 and was called into Federal Service on April 1st, 1941. This unit was originally part of the 3rd Battalion of the 185 FA Regiment of the 4th Division. After participating in desert maneuvers in California in 1943 the Battalion was shipped to England and assigned to the VII Corps. It has the honor of being the first battalion of Corps Artillery to land in Europe, moving in on D day plus 12 days. The battalion supported the 101st Airborne Division on the Utah Beachhead and later was attached to the First "Red One" Division. By VE day the 188th was mopping up the last of the Nazi's resistance forces in the vicinity of Leipzig.

The 256th AAA Battalion (AW) (SP) Like the 151st the 256th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion goes back to 1864 as a part of the Minnesota Heavy Artillery. This is the newest artillery unit to join the 47th Division. Its list of predecessors includes the First Field Artillery Regiment, the 151st Field Artillery Regiment, the 206th Infantry, and the 216 Coast Artillery Regiment. The 216th, inducted on January 6, 1941 was later re-organized into anti-aircraft battalions from which stems the 256th. This unit spent its World War II service as a coastal defense organization in the San Francisco-Oakland Bay area and was deactivated in February 1944.

Don't Flash Your Pay Overseas

Just because you've got the dough, there is no need for you to flash it in front of allies overseas. It may look good to your buddies if you pay a waiter by shoving a pile of bills at him and saying "Take out what you need." But this will only cause him to wonder if you're not either pretty dumb about money or overpaid. Although only a few unscrupulous tradespeople will take more than they should the word will soon spread that Americans throw money around.

The same good sense is needed when you are out with local people. To spend your money in a grandstand play usually does only two things for you. It makes you look like a jackass while you're doing it and it leaves you broke before the end of the month.

The sensible thing to do is to take advantage of the opportunity to save part of the money you earn overseas. The Armed Forces have savings plans for your use. You can increase your allotments, buy postal money orders, or convert your money to U. S. Savings Bonds. Those who follow this advice will be doubly happy. In addition to helping build better relations abroad, they will be building for their own future.

Six Research Projects Helping Modern Soldier

Military research has become something more than the development of new dream weapons. The Army is now investigating ways of producing a modern soldier who will succeed even if the dream weapons fail.

Psychologists at Fort Benning's Human Research Unit No. 3 are engaged in six projects which are part of a program supervised by the Human Resources Research Office of George Washington University.

One timely project, Moonlight, is concerned with a problem practiced by night-fighting Chinese Communists: how can soldiers be taught to hit targets they can barely see?

New Methods
"The answer lies in new methods of training," said Dr. Edgar L. Shriver, leader of the Moonlight staff. "Equipment that turns night into day is not always at hand," he pointed out, "and even if lighting is available an enemy could avoid it."

A new method of firing the M-1 rifle at night was developed last year under the direction of Dr. Francis E. Jones of Holy Springs, Mass., director of the unit. The new method was the basis for a recent training circular now in use throughout the Army. A new night-firing range, on which the appearance and sounds of an attacking or defending force may be simulated, is being used by the Moonlight researchers to evaluate training methods.

The range is automatically operated by an electronic device made by the unit from parts of old pin ball machines.

Rifle marksmanship training also is being evaluated in project Train. Here the performance of different groups of firers who have received different types of training is being studied.

Two proficiency ranges being developed by the unit will use a new type pop-up target which falls down when hit and can be raised or lowered by remote control.

"A killable target—that is one that falls when hit—is desirable for two reasons; first it simulates what actually happens in battle, and second, it gives the firer immediate knowledge of his accuracy on each shot," according to Dr. H. H. Merritt, project leader.

The unit also is supervising studies at Fort Jackson, S. C., on the tactical training given to soldiers after completion of 16 weeks of individual training. The purposes of the studies are to determine which training methods are best and to present lesson plans for use in training infantry rifle squads.

In 1952 the unit drew 100 squads from three major Army units for a six-hour tactical test which indicated the need for the study. Lesson plans are now being evaluated at Fort Jackson.

Two more projects are concerned with training of airborne soldiers. In project Hilo the unit is trying to find out whether airborne paratroopers should be introduced to height gradually or suddenly. A new tower with jumping platforms of 10, 20 and 30 feet is now in operation and research workers, under the direction of Dr. Charles Windle, are rating the performance of students jumping from these levels.

In the other project, Jumptrapping, the Hilo experimenters also will rate jumpers by means of an apparatus which measures the force and time of each jump. A hydraulic mechanism will record how forcefully the jumper springs up and out, while an electric clock will measure the interval between the jumper's tap and the jump.

"We are working on the assumption that fear is related to height, and that the best way to overcome fear is to get used to it gradually," Dr. Windle said. "Our guess is that men who start at the 10-foot level and work up to 30 feet through the 20-foot level will be less likely to fall than men who start immediately at 30 feet."

The Hilo experimenters also will rate jumpers by means of an apparatus which measures the force and time of each jump. A hydraulic mechanism will record how forcefully the jumper springs up and out, while an electric clock will measure the interval between the jumper's tap and the jump.

The unit's newest project, Patrol, is a study of methods for increasing the accuracy and extent of information obtained by soldiers on reconnaissance patrols. Squad a trained by different methods will be tested on a special course seeded with information of military significance.

The psychologists at Fort Benning make up one of three Human Research units working on problems of training individual soldiers and small units. Projects are assigned by the Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces.

now completed, researchers collected error scores on approximately 1,100 airborne trainees. In a study of the rating system used by instructors in the Airborne Department of The Infantry School, Results indicated that although raters tend to differ in absolute number of errors observed in a single jump, they show fairly high agreement in distinguishing between good and bad jumps. The Airborne Department's rating system was found to be a good predictor of success in the 34-foot tower phase of airborne training and also useful in identifying trainees in need of additional instruction.

Pvts. Keep on the Lookout For Snakes to Tame, Train

Snakes may not be very inviting pets to most people but to three members of Company A, 30th Infantry Regt.—Pfc. David Bland, Pfc. Oliver Davis, and Pfc. Donald Hill—they are well chosen "friends."

These soldiers catch snakes and make pets of them, hunting the reptiles at night. Using only a flashlight and a long pole with a retractable wire loop on the end, they search in areas where snakes would most likely be.

When a snake is spotted, the wire loop is slipped over its head and is drawn tight. After the snake struggles about 20 minutes it is "safe" to handle, the men say.

A bit of knowledge is most necessary to take up this hobby. One must be able to distinguish between a poisonous and non-poisonous snake. A wrong answer might prove fatal.

Fort Benning's Biglerville Mess has been opened to civilian employees.

Employees wishing to eat there are requested to secure an identification card from First Lt. Wilton O. Huntley, Jr., assistant mess officer in Building No. 1455.

Meals are served from 6 to 7:30 a.m., from noon to 1 p.m. and from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

The Mess has reopened after renovation of last March's storm damage.

FORT SILL VISITOR
Lt. Col. Stanley L. Harding, secretary of the Anti-aircraft and Guided Missile Branch of the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., visited Fort Benning last Friday.

COUNTRY PLAYERS

THE girl singers are becoming more and more popular in the country-music field. They not only look nice on personal appearances with the bands, but sound good on records, too.

Jinnie Rodgers' "Mama, Don't Cry at My Wedding" (MGM) is a beautifully done ballad, in which she even duets with herself. And Capitol's Jean Shepherd has an excellent heart-balled in "Why Did You Wait?"

On Columbia, Anita Carter and her sisters give a very smooth and soothing interpretation of a sad love-ballad, "Faithless Johnny Lee."

And Maxine and Jim Brown's "Looking Back to See" is an unusually "catchy" fast-moving, hokey song that's a real toe-tapper (Fabor).

Another unusual number is Stuart Hamblen's "This Ole House" (Victor). It is a rousing-type song that grows on you, and is somewhat different from his usual style.

In the sacred vein, Alan McGill, with choral backing, does

Young Personalities in the News at Fort Benning

OC Calvin Schade

OC Calvin Schade of 4th OC Company, First OC Regiment, spent two years, two months, and six days as a sailor in the United States Navy.

Then, trading the sea for the sky, he started working high in the air in the construction business. He like height so well he volunteered for airborne training and has spent his last five years in the airborne. In his spare time, though, he can be found demonstrating his seamanship on Victory Ford.

Pvt. Mackley

Pvt. Frank H. Mackley, of A Company, Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment, had the experience of having been in on one of the largest and fiercest of all forest fires in the Western States.

The private was assigned as a firefighter at Calabasas, Calif., and was among the group who fought the Huse Resort fire. The battle continued for some 76 hours, and during that time he aided in the rescue of five persons trapped in the resort.

Pvt. Mackley also delves into the hazardous profession of motorcycle racing and has won several trophies.

He enlisted in the Army in May 1953 and took basic at Fort Campbell, Ky. He took airborne training assigned to A Company as a cadre.

Pvt. Phil Forte

Pvt. Phil Forte of Company I, 36th Infantry, appeared on television in Columbus last week, singing "Till Me You Love Me" on Open House at WRBL-TV.

A veteran of Carnegie Hall, Park Casino in New Jersey, and many other night clubs in the New York City-New Jersey area, Forte studied under Freddie Johnson, coach of Dean Martin and Vic Damone, before entering service.

But singing is not his only talent. He did commercial art, illustrating, and off - set printing when the music business was slow and he had to eat. His body-building and weight-lifting he had to abandon, however, because it interfered with his singing. He could not appear graceful and make delicate movements, having too big a chest (at least on a male singer).

Forte appeared in Carnegie Hall with Freddie Johnson's Orchestra and as a guest every Sunday on the Stars of Tomorrow program in New York before entering the Army eight months ago. He plans to go back to Park Casino when he leaves the service.

Pvt. Loyd

Pvt. Isaac Loyd of Company H, 30th Infantry Regt.—now only one in a team of Combat Training Command demonstration troops that perform every day for The Infantry School—but he looks forward to the day when he can return to the spotlight as a professional blues singer, song writer, and television star.

Before entering service last fall, Loyd sang in night clubs in his hometown, Atlanta, Ga.; appeared on T. V. and radio; recorded on a Mercury label and was awarded a five-year contract to write tunes for Fred Fisher Music Co., of New York City.

Loyd started singing professionally in 1949 at 18. His engagements included stands at Royal Peacock Club, Ansley Hotel, and Brookhaven Standard Club, all of Atlanta and Skylark Club of Hopkenville, Ky.

waxed such songs as "Worrying Blues," "The One I Love," and "Love Fever Blues" Mercury records. His own composition, "My Queen" and "Here I Am" won his contract with the New York music company.

OC B. J. Burnett

OC Billy J. Burnett of 10th OC Company, First OC Regiment, feels confident that any enemy who attempts an air attack on the United States would have to take enormous losses before reaching his objective.

Burnett, native Texan, took anti-aircraft basic training at Fort Bliss. He explains that each Infantry division is equipped with an anti-aircraft battalion, which includes 8 quad 50's and 8 twin 40's. The twin 40 is capable of putting out 240 rounds a minute and the quad 50's are able to fire 2,000 rounds a minute.

In addition to these potent weapons, the anti-aircraft artillery possesses 75, 90, and 120 MM guns. In order to be effective against high speed jets, these guns are mounted with their own radar units, which locate and track targets automatically.

Burnett said "An enemy plane would be greeted with a very warm reception. The 90's are so accurate that their radar units are set 10 miles off in training in order that the radio controlled aerial targets are not shot down with the initial round."

THP. GEORGE P. CUTHRELL
Pvt. George P. Cuthrell was recently chosen as soldier of the Week in the Third Battalion, First Student Regiment. A duty soldier with the 17th Company of the battalion.

204th Medics Are Viking's Youngest

Perhaps the youngest unit now in service with the 47th Division is the 204th Medical Battalion. It was constituted the 20th in 1948 as part of the Minnesota National Guard. The 104th was organized and federally recognized in 1948 and ordered into active service with the rest of the 47th Division in 1951.

Division Patch Symbol of Spirit

The shoulder insignia of the 47th Division symbolizes its Viking heritage. It consists of a white Viking helmet, the dominant feature, superimposed on a field of infantry blue. Encircling the blue is a narrow band of white, which in turn is circled by a red border representing the colors of the artillery. This establishes the Viking spirit, while at the same time including our national colors. The white helmet is reminiscent of the majestic Thor, God of strength in Norse mythology.

TO 4TH DIVISION
M-Sgt. Julius E. Fritz, first sergeant of 11th OC Company, First OC Regiment, has been reassigned to the 47th Division. Cp. Roger F. Lowe of 11th OC Company has assumed his duties as first sergeant.

136th Deeds Date Back to Civil War

Following the feats of the Bearcat Regiment in the Civil War, the unit served in a National Guard capacity until 1916, when it was sent to the Mexican border to help restore order. One year later, the outfit was federally activated as the 136th Infantry Regiment and became a part of the 34th Division. Like the 125th, the 136th was broken up to fight with units already on the front lines.

From 1919 until the beginning of World War II, the 136th Infantry Regiment served as a National Guard unit attached to the 92nd Infantry Brigade. In March, 1942, the regiment was reactivated as a federal unit and was made a part of the 33rd National Guard Division (Illinois). A basic training program was begun at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and the men were further toughened by training at the Desert Training Center in the Mojave Desert. On June 22, 1943, the 136th sailed for the South Pacific.

New Guinea came first—that torrid mass of mountains and jungle. For the first three months the men, toughened their backs as emergency stevedores unloading supply ships. Then came a combat assignment for the 33rd Division and the 136th was selected to do the job. The assignment was to "seek out and destroy the Japanese 211th Infantry." It was a complicated and sweaty job.

On the island of Morotal, the 136th cut the 211th Japanese Regiment to pieces. Eight hundred and seventy Japs were killed while the 136th lost only 48 men in the fighting.

Perhaps the most glorious, and the bloodiest, action in the history of the Bearcat regiment took place in April 1945 on Northern DEPUTY CHIEF . . . staff is Col. Elwood H. Spackman who joined the 47th Division as G-1 in 1932. He served in the South Pacific during World War II and in Europe from 1949 to 1952.

ISD Volleyballers Romp to 3d Army Championship

Fort Benning's Volleyball representatives, Company C of the Infantry School Detachment, swept through opposition unbeaten last week at Fort McClellan, Ala., to annex the Third Army championship, first such crown in 1954 for The Infantry Center.

The post spike - and - set-up artists, who won a recent company level TIC tournament, had the right to represent the post, galloped to the title with the loss of only one game and that came in the final round.

Opening match saw ISD blast the Fort Bragg, N.C. sextet, 15-3 and 15-3. Next opposition came in the form of Fort Jackson, S.C. the eventual finalist, but the Company netters moved easily in to the semi-finals with another level TIC tournament victory, 15-2 and 15-4.

Since they were the long remaining undefeated entry, Coach Bill Taylor's men sat by and watched Bragg and Jackson duel for the right to enter the finals as losers bracket representative.

Jackson eventually overcame Bragg, 15-9, 14-16, and 15-9.

The final match saw Jackson upset Benning in the first game for their only lost game of the journey. The Infantry Center boys roared back to win the match rather handily, however, by taking the next two games 15-3 and 15-3.

For the boys from ISD, it was merely the climax to a virtual year - round volleyball season. All the members of the team that carried the post's colors to the championship are assigned to the post printing plant. Every day at noon-time the boys forsake the luxury of eating lunch and play volleyball instead. The incessant hours of practice, paid off for them, first with the post championship and then with the Third Army crown.

Composing the squad were Anthony Dorr, Roy Gafford, Larry Olson, John Blackmore, Graham Darden, Don Corday, Don Hawkins, and Taylor.

Climaxing weeks of hard work by Officers' Candidates, other military personnel, and girls from the Columbus area, the Water Ski Carnival will be staged on Victory Pond.

19 Men Slated For Army Meet

Selection of a 19-man squad to represent The Infantry Center at the Third Army Track and Field Meet June 4-5 at Fort Campbell, Ky., was announced Monday.

The squad, which includes most of the first, second and third place winners in The Infantry Center meet May 15-16, will be coached by Charles Waits and Mel Rosen.

The show, composed of 14 acts will furnish spectators with many minutes of thrills and comedy. There is no admission.

Sidney Swope, 14th OC Company, and Lara Hanson have organized the event. Both men have done professional work in water skiing. Swope at Cypress Gardens and Hanson, a water ski instructor before coming into the army, participated in inter-collegiate water ski competition in Illinois.

Dad's Club Building Softball Diamond For Children's Use

A softball field in the Benning Park Homes area is expected to be completed by Monday.

The field, part of a post-wide youth program sponsored by the Benning Dad's Club, will be available for children of military personnel residing in the Homes area, according to Col. Paul J. Mitchell, club president.

Triathlon Pair Working at Tough Training Grind

A rugged training schedule is paying off for two triathlon candidates, David C. Miller and Valdimar Christensen of Santa Monica, Calif.

The athletes are preparing for the Third Army Triathlon Tournament scheduled June 4-5 at Fort Campbell, Ky. Pistol firing, a 220-yard free-style swim and a two-mile run will be included in the competition.

Leisure Time Is Wonderful If You Water Ski at 50 mph

George E. Krant, Headquarters, Company, Second Battalion, 30th Infantry, has no problem with his leisure time, having chosen a sports activity which requires both courage and skill.

During off-duty hours Krant may be seen almost any time skimming over the surface of Back Water Lake near Columbus at speeds up to 50 miles per hour on his skis.

Krant is not limited, however, to the water in his skiing. In fact, he began snow skiing before he ever tried it on water. He became a member of the National Ski Patrol and later was an instructor in snow skiing for two years.

Caught Stealing Home . . .

First baseman John Franconia of the 47th Divarty Unit was here being stopped at home plate by Catcher Ed Kaemmer of Combat Training Command in Tuesday's game, the deciding game for third place in the Post Intramural League.

GEORGE KRANT . . . Water 'Bug'

When he was around 16 Krant first attempted water skiing. It was during his summer vacation, and the idea appealed to him. This started him on the road as a water skiing enthusiast. Although he still prefers snow, Krant acknowledges that he will settle for water - due to the absence of snow in Georgia.

Back home in Los Angeles, Krant was active in water skiing. In high school he participated in football, track, golf and swimming.

Prominent Used Car Dealer Disappears!

Gene Horne, local used car dealer, disappeared last night from his used car lot on Victory Drive at Lumpkin Road. Reports indicate that the disappearance is related to the sighting of a mysterious automobile which appeared over the used car lot. Residents in that area saw the same vehicle over the lot at approximately 12:15 P.M. and even lights flashing on road off. One man said he could see a ladder hanging down from the "suspect". Two minutes later the "suspect" shot straight up and disappeared into the low overcast clouds. This morning Gene Horne could not be located. It is presumed that the disappearance of Gene Horne had some connection with the appearance of the "suspect". Many people think that due to "USA Circuit" appearing on television last Saturday night occurred in a space helmet, perhaps men from another planet were taken an interest in the operation, not knowing that they are used strictly in the interest of promoting the used car trade.

Arms Teacher Sets Example For Students With Rifle

M-Sgt. M. L. Buzzard, who received an expert M-1 rifle qualification badge from his company commander, Capt. M. Collier Ross, didn't win his place on the Infantry Center Rifle Team by accident.

He's an instructor with the Small Arms Committee of the Weapon Department and assigned to Company E of the Infantry School Detachment. He teaches student rifle marksmanship and functioning of the M-1 rifle. Sgt. Buzzard began his military career 18 years ago with the Coast Artillery, Armored Cavalry, and the Infantry. In addition to an expert M-1 badge, the sharp-eyed rifleman has an expert gun-

Today troops will move another 16 miles to a site just west of Cottonland, Ala. Friday plans include a march of 14 miles from Cottonland to a bivouac site just outside the Fort Benning reservation on the banks of the Chattahoochee River. The regiment will march the remaining distance to its encampment area Saturday morning. Throughout the six-day march logistical support for the troops is being provided by the regiment itself. Trucks are being used to transport field kitchens and other heavy equipment from one bivouac to another. During the march regular interior guard duty is being performed each night just as if the regiment were in garrison. There is daily mail service, and religious services are conducted each evening.

PVT. MAX MALONE THUMBES THROUGH FILES FOR 'MISSING' ADDRESS
Locator Handles Business 24 Hours a Day at Infantry Center

Overloaded Post Locator Bulges With Influx of Viking Personnel

Fort Benning's Army postal officer will probably buy up the local supply of headache remedies within the next few weeks to help him adjust to a new development—the addition of thousands of locator cards to his already bulging files.

Before the transfer here of the 47th Infantry Division, First Lt. John W. Dennis reported that his office kept address and information cards on more than 85,000 individuals. Now, with the arrival of several thousand Viking troops, the job of Lt. Dennis and his staff of 13 enlisted men and five civilians will be even tougher.

Their job is to provide the correct name and post address of all personnel now stationed on post, those enroute here and the forwarding address of all those recently transferred or separated from the service.

Mail Kept One Year
In some cases, the Post Locator retains cards on departing personnel for as long as a year after they have left. Because of the Infantry School, Fort Benning is largely a transient post and the back file is an extensive one.

Main purpose of the locator system is to ensure that personnel get their mail even if the address is incomplete, inexact, or just plain inaccurate.

As Army postal officer, Lt. Dennis is responsible for outgoing mail from the time it is dropped into the pickup box until it is turned over to civilian authorities at the Post Office.

He also is responsible for incoming mail immediately after it is turned down to the military for delivery on the post.

25,000 Letters
Soldiers here receive approximately 25,000 letters daily and send about the same number, and Dennis estimates that every day nearly 8,000 incoming letters are referred to the Post Locator for various reasons.

Even if the address is accurate and complete, the address sometimes has left the post and his forwarding address has to be found through locator cards. If no record of the addressee is obtainable, the letters are retained for 15 days.

Incoming personnel often receive mail before they actually arrive, Dennis said, and when orders finally do come in the "lost letter" is delivered.

In addition to mail delivery, Post Locator Unit personnel are prepared to help visitors searching

Engineer Privates Enjoy Giving Map Instruction

Two privates, both engineering graduates, are putting specialized civilian training to good use as principal instructors on The Infantry School's Map Reading course.

Pvt. Donald B. Kunins and Pvt. William R. Reissacher are performing duties generally handed by commissioned officers where understanding of maps is considered one of the keystones to developing a combat leader.

Reissacher graduated from City College of New York in 1952 with a degree in civil engineering. Kunins got the same degree in the same year from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

Armed Forces Work
Both worked for the Armed Forces before entering the Army. Kunins was employed in the New York Naval Shipyard, while Reissacher was with the Army Corps of Engineers, New York District.

After eight weeks of basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., they came to Fort Benning last November. Their background in surveying and mathematics led to their assignment to the Map Reading Committee, a subdivision of the Staff Department's Intelligence Group.

The pair spent the next four months in preparation for their new teaching careers, studying all

Cable Installed In Range Areas

Installation and rehabilitation of communications systems for outlying range areas are under way and work is expected to be completed in June.

Signal officials said that eight miles of underground cable have already been laid in range areas to be used by the 47th Division Artillery and Infantry Center troop units.

The 523rd Signal Company of Camp Gordon, Ga., is working with the Signal Section here to lay the 115,000 feet of cable needed to complete the project.

The 121-man Camp Gordon unit has been here since March 14 to help restore communication circuits damaged by the recent tornado.

Included in the projects are the rehabilitation of the aerial cable plant at Sand Hill to be used by the 47th construction of open wire lines to provide circuits to ranges bordering on Moore and Underwood Roads and installation of cables on ranges in Area Q.

Officially titled "Map and Aerial Photographic Reading," the course is given to nearly all Infantry School students, from advance officers to NCOs.

The 23-year-old instructors agree that "teaching is fine." They also agree that the cooperation and interest of their students have been excellent.

10 Exercises Set by Army

Hail Storm, Snow Bird, Surf Board, Fire Ball and Apple Jack Included

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga.—The Army has released a tentative schedule of 10 major field exercises to be conducted during the 1955 fiscal year, according to announcement by the Department of the Army.

The exercises, involving an estimated 136,700 troops, will include training in Arctic, amphibious, mountain, jungle, and diversified weapons operations. Exercise Green Hills, to be conducted in the Camp Carson, Colorado, area, will take place during September-October, 1954. A mountain exercise involving the 31st Infantry Division, Green Hills will provide training in organization of the battlefield in mountainous terrain under conditions in which both friendly and enemy forces have the capability of employing atomic weapons. Tactical air operations include night operations, animal and tramway supply and evacuation, electronic, chemical, bacteriological, and radiological warfare will be included. Green Hills will be conducted in four phases: two weeks of battalion combat team exercises, one week of regimental combat team training, and one week of division exercises.

COLD WEATHER An exercise in mountain and cold weather operations, Hail Storm, will be conducted at Camp Carson and Camp Hale, Colo., January-March, 1955. Approximately 10,000 troops of the 27th Infantry Division, in regimental combat team increments, will participate. The purpose of Hail Storm is to provide training in mountain operations under winter conditions. It is set up for evaluation of tactical doctrines applicable to the employment of and defense against atomic weapons. Set up in three phases, the nine-week exercise will, in addition to testing equipment, include training in electronic, chemical, bacteriological, and radiological warfare, tactical air operations, and aerial supply and evacuation.

Snow Bird, an Arctic exercise, will be conducted in Alaska in January and February, 1955. Employing one regimental combat team of the 14th Airborne Division, the exercise will provide joint training in the employment of Army and Air Force units under Arctic conditions. Organization of forces and terrain and maneuverability required when enemy forces have an atomic capability will be stressed.

Employing approximately 30,000 troops, Fire Ball is scheduled to develop procedures, tactics, techniques and organization of the battlefield under conditions imposed by friendly and enemy employment of atomic weapons. An airborne and special weapons exercise, Fire Ball will include play of three constructive divisions: tactical air operations, tactical helicopter operations, and mobile defense operations. New Survey Shows Sergeants, Officers Are Safest Drivers

Top three graders and officers of the Army are among the safest in a survey issued by Government Services Insurance Underwriters, San Antonio, Texas, which specializes in military and government employ insurance.

The survey reveals its policy holders lead 48 other occupational classifications in driving safety.

The safe-driving of top three graders and officers insured by GSUI helped produce the company's low loss ratio of 39.1 as against a 62.2 among 35 leading companies writing auto insurance on the public.

This low accident rate will pay off in hard cash, according to Government Services, who intend to pass on premium savings of up to one third this year.

Former Sergeants Win High Offices

OC's John Brumit and John Goadner, both former sergeants, were elected president and secretary respectively of the 12th OC Company Student Council, OC Brumit rose to sergeant rapidly having been in the army only 21 months. Most of his previous training was at Camp Rucker, in an infantry company.

Southern Twist Given Role in 'Moon Is Blue'

CHARLES E. FROHN
... Has Leading Part

Rather than the trite man-about-town type, Charles E. Frohn brings to the role of David Slater in "The Moon Is Blue," the charm of a Southern gentleman who pursues and wins the Eastern belle.

David Slater is the man in the apartment, two floors above, who has decided Don would make him an ideal son-in-law. A view shared by Cynthia, his daughter, but not by Don, who behaves in an unforgivable manner to her and so brings down parental ire—though not in the usual sense.

While preparing to behave in a most uncomfortable pose, that of a stern father, David meets and succumbs to the girlish sweetness of Patty. Don's real heart interest. Much to his surprise and to Don's disbelief, David proposes marriage to Patty.

He has all the qualifications Patty wants in a man and how she replies is well worth a trip to the Main Post Theater, June 14 or 15 to find out.

Pvt. Frohn, before coming to Benning, played with several dance bands in his native state, Louisiana.

This is his first appearance on the stage since his undergraduate days, when he was active in the university's dramatic club, appearing in "Antigone," "Our Town," "Ten Little Indians" and others. "The Moon Is Blue" is being produced by the Fort Benning Little Theater, directed by Robert Hepp.

The play opens June 14 for two nights at the Main Post Theater.

Capt. Roy Sullivan Back From Flash Burn

Capt. Roy E. Sullivan resumed command of Company H of the Infantry School Detachment last week after an absence of about a month at Exercise Flash Burn, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Capt. Sullivan was attached to the G-2 Section, Headquarters Maneuver Director. He replaces Captain Charles L. Williams, who is due for release in June.

ARMY DAUGHTERS' CHOICE . . . Two high school seniors who were named winner and runnerup in the first of a series of annual $400 scholarships set up by the Fort Benning chapter of Daughters of the U. S. Army, check a college catalogue. Winner was Ellen Charlotte Mifflin, right, of Columbus High School, and runnerup was Verna Beth Ballard of Baker High School.

Maj. A. C. Canfield Poised for EUCOM

Major Arthur C. Canfield, executive officer of the Transportation Section since January 1952, leaves May 22 for assignment in Europe. He came to Fort Benning from Japan where he was executive officer of the Yokohama Motor Command from 1949 to 1951.

A veteran 14 years of service, Major Canfield served in the Philippines in 1945 and in Korea from 1948 to 1949.

Evac Hospital Served 1,283 at Flash Burn

The 24th Evacuation Hospital of Fort Benning treated more than 1,283 sick and injured soldiers during the 40 days the unit was in operation at Exercise Flash Burn in North Carolina and gave medical support to approximately 12,000 "aggressors," umpires, and other troops. It was the third large-scale maneuver in which the hospital took part during the past four years. The 24th being a general reserve unit was reactivated in September 1950 at Fort Benning. During World War II it served in the European Theater and won Silver Bands for its part in operations in Normandy, France, Central Europe and the Rhine. Commanded by Colonel John C. McKissick, the 24th supported all "Aggressor" units during Exercise Flash Burn. In addition to his duties as Commander of the Hospital he was also the surgeon for the Aggressor Force. The hospital left Benning for Fort Bragg, N. C. on March 22 and returned May 12. During that period the hospital treated only actual casualties. Many of the patients received by the hospital were transported to and were evacuated by helicopter.

'Last Man' From Yalu Now An OC

The "last man" to leave the Yalu River in 1950 is now an Officer Candidate in 12th OC Company, First OC Regiment.

Sullivan, then a sergeant, landed with a tank company of the Seventh Infantry Division at Inchon on Sept. 15, 1950. He was with the company while it acted as a spearhead during the historic drive of the Tenth Corps to the Manchurian frontier. Sullivan was driving the second tank to enter Heysanjin on Nov. 21, 1950. This was the high tide of the UN advance to the north.

"No one was in the streets as we rolled in," Sullivan recalled, "except one old man draping a Chinese Nationalist flag from his window."

Then the Communist Chinese entered the picture and Sullivan's unit withdrew. When they had pulled back approximately 50 miles below the Manchurian border, he was ordered to lead a patrol back to Heysanjin to insure that all abandoned equipment had been destroyed.

About five miles from the border he met the last organized UN unit withdrawing, a south Korean battalion which had been cut down at the site of a company. Sullivan successfully completed his mission and caught up with his unit 60 miles below the border. The unit was later evacuated from (Please See LAST MAN, Page 11)

'Cash In' on Overseas Tour

Most of us are familiar with the old saying, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do." Well, that makes pretty good sense—if you know what the Romans do. Supposing you don't, then what? How about you men stationed overseas, what about the country you're in? Do you know its people, its customs, industries, form of government, its history? If your answer is no, then you are missing out on an opportunity that may never come your way again. An opportunity to broaden your mind, increase your vocabulary, help you to be a better conversationalist, and a credit to the Service. And above all it will help you to conduct yourself properly in observing local customs and traditions.

Okay, let's say that up to this point you haven't taken very much interest in the country to which you are now assigned, but you would like to. How do you go about it? It's simple. Here are a few suggestions that might help you get started; incidentally this applies to you men who may go overseas in the future:

First, check your information and education center. You'll find up-to-date information about the country, its customs, traditions, taboos and further details for bettering your understanding of them. Don't forget your ship or base newspapers and the bulletin boards. They usually carry additional information about such things.

Second, after you've read up on the country go out and see for yourself how the people work, live, dress and get around. Find out what form of government they are ruled by—talk with the natives—through a guide if necessary. If they do things differently than we do, find out why. There's usually a very good reason.

Now you might say, where is all of this going to get me? What good will it do me when I get back home? Well, look at it this way:

You will be able to speak with authority about a foreign country, because you know what you are talking about. You will be more valuable to the Service because you can offer guidance to other men destined for a tour of overseas duty.

Most of all you will have the personal satisfaction that you made friends for the United States. And finally, who is to say whether the information you absorb will not come in very handy in future assignments or later life (AFPS).

Reserve Engineers to Build Roads, Bridges as Training

Fort Benning may get additional roads and small bridges as the result of the Summer training program activities of two Reserve engineer companies.

Troops of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 412th Engineer Brigade, of Vicksburg, Miss., and Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 401st Engineer Brigade, Atlanta, Ga., who will be here in August, have requested that their training problems be a permanent benefit to the area.

Col. Paul J. Mitchell of Warrenton, Va., Infantry Center, G-4, said that as a result of the request a Fort Benning staff is studying the requirements and

In those two verses it is notable that the materials for the building of Solomon's Temple were assembled and prepared, that is, organized and put in proper shape long before construction started. And, lest I stray, let me

3d Army Soldiers Are Offered Varied, Complete Education

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — From Melanesian pidgin English to music — from air conditioning to art.

Soldiers of the Third Army are being offered more complete and varied educational opportunities than they will ever be able to receive in civilian life — anywhere.

The primary mission is the training of troops and the feeling is that better educated troops are better trained ones.

Education, any kind and all kinds, is the stress in all the military services now. Secretary Robert T. Stevens said recently, "Ours is an Army that looks to the resourcefulness and brains of the individual American soldier to counter the threat of potential enemy whose great advantage lies in the abundant manpower and ruthless control over that manpower. Consequently, increasing the efficiency of our men and women who make up the military establishment is essential to us."

From A To Z

Everything from first grade through college is available through the United States Armed Forces Institute, better known as USAFI, and at little or no cost to the individual. All USAFI courses are voluntary and whether the individual will take advantage of them is up to him.

More than 350 courses are available through USAFI media. These courses are administered in a variety of ways, through classes on post with regular instructors, through correspondence courses in which the student regularly submits material to be graded, and through home study or self-teaching where the student only takes an examination upon the completion of his course. For a $2 fee, USAFI will give any serviceman anywhere as many courses, including textbooks, as he can handle.

Three civilian universities have set up operations on four Third Army installations with regular instructors and classes and are actively engaged in providing higher education to hungry minds in off-duty hours. The government pays up to 75 per cent of the tuition for enlisted men and 50 per cent for officers below the rank of captain.

On Campus Centers

The University of Georgia has established off-campus centers at Fort Benning and Camp Gordon, Ga.; North Carolina State College has a branch at Fort Bragg, N. C., and last month Austin Peay College of Tennessee provided facilities at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Besides, the Army Education Program has made available the correspondence courses from nearly 50 of the leading American universities at about half cost. Several posts have set up classes with hired civilian personnel to instruct in a variety of subjects, many of which are the technical — vocational sort, such as typing, shorthand, and rapid-reading. These cost the individual nothing and the Army feels that they are of such direct and immediate benefit to the Army itself that it often allows the soldier to participate in them during on-duty hours.

GED Tests Held

Moreover, the education centers conduct their "general educational development" tests, enabling men who haven't completed secondary schooling to show whether they have sufficient education, formal or informal, to entitle them to a school diploma. Results of the GED tests are accepted in almost all the states and territories for diplomas, though different scores are required in different institutions.

Similar tests are accepted in most colleges and in many cases enable the student to enter work on the second year level of college.

Army troop information officials, who are responsible for the increasing trend in soldier education, have the philosophy that their programs are becoming increasing like public schooling, that the soldier's time, so valuable to the nation's security, can also be valuable to him, allowing him the opportunity to make of himself an educated man.

BRONZE MEMORIAL . . . In Germany Now

Was Moving To McClellan

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Georgia — Operation of the new Women's Army Corps Center at Ft. McClellan, Ala., will start June 10, according to information received here from Department of the Army.

On that date an advance party of 63 will leave Fort Lee, Va., for the newly completed center in Alabama. In succeeding weeks, as training of basics, leaders, and officers is completed at the Virginia Fort, the staff and faculty will move to Fort McClellan to prepare for the next classes. The first basic trainees are scheduled to report on June 28. By early August all training activities will be moved to Fort McClellan and the seven million dollar center, the first permanent installation the WAC has had in the 12 years the Corps has been a part of the Army.

Basic training, clerical training, noncommissioned officer training, officer candidate and officer basic courses, and the new Officer Advanced Course will be conducted at the WAC Center, which can accommodate more than 2,000 women.

'Follow Me Fund' Money Needed to Build Base for Soldier Statue

A "Follow Me Fund" has been started to finance construction of a base for a life-size statue of a U. S. Infantryman to serve as a permanent memorial at The Infantry Center.

Now in the possession of U. S. Army headquarters in Berlin, the bronze replica of the combat foot soldier was made in 1946. Its permanent transfer here was recently suggested by Major Gen. G. S. Meloy Jr., departing post commander.

An estimated $2,500, to be raised by voluntary contributions from individual Infantry officers at Fort Benning, will be needed to erect a terrazzo concrete base. The monument will be located in front of The Infantry School building.

It also is planned to offer active U. S. Infantry and airborne divisions and division associations an opportunity to contribute funds towards attaching bronze plaques at the base. Each plaque will bear a division's insignia and list its major campaigns.

The monument depicts an Infantryman in full battle dress, holding an M-1 rifle and standing at parade rest. Two combat veterans, Staff Sgt. Thomas E. Love of West Virginia and Technical Sgt. Donald W. Remmer of Wisconsin, were

Lawson Starts

Drive to Combat Vehicle Accidents

A seven-week intensified safety campaign designed to prevent motor vehicle accidents was launched this week by the 464th Troop Carrier Group in connection with Operation Impact, a Tactical Air Command safety program being observed at Lawson Air Force Base.

In preparation for the campaign a special planning committee was appointed by Col. James A. Evans, Jr., group commander. Members of the committee who are planning the overall program, which will be implemented by each of the squadrons of the troop carrier group, are Maj. Daniel J. Whalen, 77th Troop Carrier Squadron; Maj. Roland Benson, 77th Troop Carrier Squadron; Maj. Francis J. Ogor, 77th Troop Carrier Squadron, and Lieut. Col. J. D. Morgan, Jr., Third Aerial Port Operations Squadron.

The full support of all personnel of the group for Operation Impact has been called for by Col. Evans. In announcing the group's participation in the program, Col. Evans pointed out that motor vehicle accidents have been a primary cause of injury to personnel.

"The objective of our program will be to educate and train our drivers in safe driving practices, both while on and off duty," he said. "These goals can be accomplished by integrating safety into all phases of planning, training, supervision and operations."

Ground safety officers and commissioned officers who will conduct Operation Impact in each of the troop carrier group squadrons are: 77th Troop Carrier Squadron, Capt. E. R. Bellemare and T-Sgt. E. L. Granstrom; 77th Troop Carrier Squadron, First Lt. H. W. Sutton and T-Sgt. G. A. Throckmorton; 77th Troop Carrier Squadron, First Lt. E. H. Bryant and M-Sgt. D. W. Flurry; and 3rd Squadron, W-O J. Remember what you did during those last fleeting days before you came into the Army?

Most men have a last minute fling, but OC Robert A. Carr, 14th OC Company, had his big event in a different way.

He was working as a surgical technician in Austin, Texas, two days before he was to leave for the Army.

An excited husband burst into the office, saying the wife was about to have a baby. Carr rushed outside and proceeded to deliver the baby right there in the car. Mother, child, and father, plus OC Carr, all pulled through the event with flying colors.

PROMOTED ... Capt. Delmar R. Stanphill, commanding the 33d Transportation Company (Light Truck), was recently promoted to his present rank while on maneuvers at Exercise Flash Burn, Fort Bragg, N. C. He enlisted in 1940 and was commissioned in 1949.

Dining, Dancing, Relaxing

NCO Messes Provide Pleasant Times

Dining, dancing and just plain relaxing are features of the six branches of Fort Benning's Central NCO Open Messes that make for pleasant off-duty hours and high morale among Infantry Center enlisted personnel.

More than 5,000 enlisted men and women take advantage of the recreational facilities offered by the six clubhouses, conveniently located on the Main Post and in the Harmony Church and Sand Hill areas of the reservation.

The combined branches offer 20 nights of dancing every month with music supplied by orchestras.

Each branch has a television set and juke box, and drinks and food—everything from a sandwich to a steak—are served.

Stinks Are Taps
First Lt. Louis A. Magnon, Open Mess adviser, is particularly proud of the steaks, which he claims are "the best at Fort Benning."

The Open Mess also maintains a branch at Sand Hill and one at Harmony Church. In addition, a separate branch, Victory Lodge, operates at Harmony Church for the benefit of officer candidates.

Membership Cost
Membership in the Open Mess costs $3 for the first month and $1 to renew the membership card each month. Monthly membership cards at the Post Rocker Club cost $3.

All enlisted personnel at Fort Benning are eligible for membership. Card holders are entitled to use facilities at all branches, except the Post Rocker Club and Victory Lodge, and to vote for members of the 11-man board of governors which administers the Open Mess.

The board of governors, composed of annually elected representatives from each of the branches, meets monthly to discuss club activities and make recommendations.

Clubs Inspected
Lt. Magnon, who has been mess adviser since July 1953 and Major Edwin C. Onstott, who has been senior mess adviser since April 1954 inspect the clubs regularly and offer suggestions to the board of governors on legal and financial matters.

M-Sgt. Louis A. Rund is secretary. Sgt. Rund, appointed by the board of governors and approved by the commanding general, acts as executive administrator for the Open Mess.

In providing a broad range of activities for its members, including name dance bands as well as regular facilities, the mess works closely with the post Enlisted Ladies Club. As part of the policy

4-Time Death Cheater Settles Here

A man who walked out of an escape proof prison and who cheated death four times is now an assistant signal officer at Fort Benning.

CWO Robert McKeich, a native of New Zealand, says that despite his epic escapes, his greatest thrill came the day he was granted American citizenship.

Recalled in his story of remarkable get-aways from the Nazis in Norway, torpedoed ships in the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, and Devil's Island, is an extraordinary military career which began when he was a 16-year-old drummer in the New Zealand Army. By the time he was 19, he had risen to sergeant and was ready to see the world.

Merchant Marine

He first joined the Norwegian Merchant Marines as an electrician and was in that Scandinavian country when Hitler's armies invaded in 1940. He escaped to Scotland, but rejoined the Norwegian Merchant Marine in 1942 and headed for South America. His ship never reached its destination. It was torpedoed by a German U-boat.

"I thought the world had come to an end," Mr. McKeich recalls. "The crew tried to escape in lifeboats, but ours was the only one to make it." The 17 men in his boat sailed the South Atlantic for more than 1,000 miles with rations supplemented with shark meat.

On the 17th day the seafaring mariners landed on Devil's Island, the impregnable fortress with the no-escape reputation. Four months later, a French captain sympathetic to the Allied cause provided them with a lifeboat supplied with rations.

Sailing to Dutch Guiana they succeeded in getting passage to the U. S. with help from the Norwegian consul. They went by steamer to Trinidad and boarded the Robert E. Lee which was torpedoed and sunk by a German sub in the Gulf of Mexico. McKeich

New A-Gun Can Deliver

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (APPS) — The Army's 280mm cannon can deliver almost the same punch as the A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, USA, revealed that fact at a meeting of the Reserve Officers Assn. here.

Commenting on the defense effort, Gen. Ridgway said that ultimate success, in case of war, would depend on maximizing all our potentials—firepower, mobility and the mobilization of a well-trained reserve force in the event of enemy attack.

"The 280mm cannon," he said, "has the capability of firing either high explosive projectiles or atomic projectiles with a yield in destructive power approximating that of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima."

He added that before long artillery units using guided missiles and rockets would be serving with organizations in the field.

He stressed the Army's continuous striving for mobility on the ground and in the air. "Mobility is necessary," he said, "for dispersion to minimize the effectiveness of enemy mass-destruction weapons as well as for rapid concentration vital to successful offensive action."

"The armored strength of the Army," he said, "will shortly be increased by the activation of a new armored division, which will bring the total number of such units in the Army up to three. . . even though the overall numerical strength of the Army, both in personnel and in units, is in the process of being reduced." The general was referring to the 4th Armored Div. being activated at Ft. Hood, Tex.

With the need for more widely dispersed units, the Army may use smaller tactical units, he said. "It may be that our divisions will be smaller," he said. "We are intensively studying this problem."

The general also stressed the need for a well-trained, alert reserve ready to mobilize swiftly to handle the new highly technical Army weapons.

Rumanian, Hungarian Proudly Accept U.S. Citizenship Papers

Rumanian-born Pfc Mityu M. Kalkor and Pvt. John Kereszturi, a native of Hungary, had at least one thing in common when they met here several months ago. Both had their hearts set on becoming U. S. citizens.

The two enlisted medical technicians boast that their recent step to U. S. citizenship was "like getting all dressed up in a new suit of clothes — it gave us a new sense of confidence and pride."

Kalkor, who came to America five years ago, says he knows no place as "wonderful as the U. S. where everyone enjoys freedom and democracy 24 hours a day."

A dental technician at the post hospital, he worked as a watchmaker in New York before entering the Army.

Kereszturi came to the U. S. three years ago from Germany. He had been living in the Western Zone since 1948 with his brother who was being sought by the Com-

OC Foregoes Soccer Playing For Crack at 2nd Lt. Bars

A former Rhodes scholar who is the only American to have played on the Oxford University soccer team since the war is continuing his studies at Infantry OCS with the goal of winning a commission. He is Officer Candidate James Billington of 12th OC Company, a graduate of Princeton University and holder of a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Oxford. Billington, who speaks Russian, French, Italian, and German, and reads Serbo-Croat, Bulgarian and Rumanian, has received offers from the Oxford University Press considering the publication of his thesis.
Billington says our Army is the only major one in the world that does not use soccer as a conditioning exercise for its troops. Played as it is in Europe, with two 45-minute halves and no substitutions allowed, it demands endurance and stamina combined with agility and speed.
The OC began playing soccer while in high school in Philadelphia, Pa., captained the Philadelphia area All-Scholastic Soccer Team, and played for the Princeton varsity team. Later, still maintaining his amateur status, Billington performed for the Philadelphia Americans.
The OC was also one of the founders of the "Oxford Angle," a magazine produced by the American students at Oxford.

Softball League Organized on Post

A softball league at Fort Benning is being organized. Although still in the formative stage, the league already has four teams lined up, and others are expected to join as the season progresses.
Lined up are the First Officer Candidate Regiment, Special Troops Command, Provisional Medical Group and 136th Infantry Regiment.
Play is to begin today when the 136th nine meets Special Troops Command and the OC club clashes with the Medics. Starting time for the contests will be 5:30 p.m. except for games played on the OC diamond which has lights. Games scheduled there will begin about 8 p.m.

Pennington Enjoys Working With Kids in Little League

Horace Pennington, mess steward in Company D, 30th Infantry, is vice president of the National League serving the Baker Village area and is part of the Columbus Greater Little League.
He assists the president and settles disputes over the rules and regulations. Outside of this official capacity, he is also a rabid fan attending nearly every game and has an 11-year-old son playing outfield for the Cardinals.
On weekends when there are no games or practice, Pennington likes to get up an impromptu practice or game with neighborhood kids.
Pennington said that his wife does not even attempt to cook supper until the game for the night is over. He and his whole family just close up house and go to the game every week night at Baker Village.
He also umpired if necessary but this is not part of his job.
He has played one season of baseball, first with a semi-pro team in Atlanta, Ga.

Deskins Hurls No-Hit Game

Conrad Deskins, smouldering since he was knocked out of the box in the first game of the season, gained sweet revenge Sunday when he pitched the first Infantry Center no-hitter of the year as CTC stomped ISD 8-0.

Golf Qualifying Slated June 21 For Post Teams

Matches will be played June 21 through 25 at the Officers' Country Club for a six-man team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army golf tournament.
Deadline for entering the Post Tournament, which also includes the Senior and Women's Tournaments, is June 16. Entries are to be submitted to the Special Services Section.
Entrants will play a qualifying round of 18 holes June 21. At the conclusion of the qualifying round, the 36 individuals, posting the lowest scores, including ties, will compete in a 72-hole medal play tournament June 22-25.
The six lowest scorers will comprise the post team in the Third Army Tournament.
All male military personnel 50 years of age or older, active or retired, are eligible for the Senior Tournament which will be conducted at the same time and place as the Infantry Center Tourney.
Participants in this division will play a qualifying round of 18 holes June 21. The nine seniors posting the lowest score in that round then will play a 72-hole tourney.
The Women's Tourney will be conducted along the same lines as the senior matches, dates, qualifying round, 72-hole medal play and all.

Dependent Medic Aid Measures Eyed

WASHINGTON (APPS) — Proposed legislation for medical care for dependents of Armed Forces personnel has been forwarded to Congress by the Defense Department.

The proposed act will apply to a wife or husband, children, parents and parents-in-law if they are dependent on a Service member for more than half of their support. Widows and dependent children of servicemen who were members at the time of death will be authorized care at military facilities, but not at government expense at civilian sources. This privilege will end, however, if a widow remarries.

Those considered members of the Armed Forces are EM or officers serving in the Army, Navy, Air Force or Marine Corps or Coast Guard when operating as part of the Navy, whether enlisted, inducted, called or conscripted.

The types of medical care to be provided include diagnosis, care for acute medical and surgical conditions, treatment of contagious diseases, immunization, and maternity and infant care. The particularities of the bill are as follows:

1) — Specifically excluded are domiciliary care and chronic diseases; nervous and mental disorders, except for diagnostic, elective medical and surgical treatment as determined by a physician; unnecessary ambulance service and home calls.

2) — Prosthetic devices, hearing aids; orthopedic footwear and spectacles likewise are excluded except where adequate civilian facilities are not available. These devices, however, may be furnished at government cost if they are available from military stocks.

3) — Military medical facilities will be used subject to the availability of space, facilities and capabilities of the medical staff.

4) — Dependent medical care will be provided from civilian physicians and facilities whenever military facilities are unavailable or incapable of providing authorized treatment, or when an emergency arises.

5) — As a restraint on excessive demands, dependents will pay a portion of the cost. In civilian facilities the cost will be first $10 on each illness plus not more than 10 percent of the total, except in maternity cases for which there will be no charges. In military facilities charges, if any, will be limited to those set by the Secretary of Defense.

6) — Dental treatment, limited to

255 Cadremen To Aid ROTCs During Training

One hundred Army officers and 155 enlisted men on duty at U.S. colleges and high schools will begin arriving next Wednesday to serve as cadre for more than 1,500 ROTC cadets, who train here June 19-July 31.

A support company also has been organized to prepare for the six-week Summer encampment. More than 80 enlisted men already are assigned to the unit with additional Fort Benning personnel to be assigned later.

Pre-camp activities to be handled by the support company include preparing the ROTC camp site in the Harmony Church area and arranging facilities for the cadets' training. When the training gets under way, the support company will be responsible for administrative, tactical and logistical support, and instruction.

Col. Richard J. Werner, professor of military science and tactics at Clemson College, S. C., will be deputy commander of the encampment which will attract Infantry ROTC cadets from 37 universities and colleges in the Third and Fourth Army areas. The cadets will study general military science subjects. The course of instruction will include demonstrations of the duties of technical service units and a number of exercises to be staged by The Infantry School. Most of the training will be in the field.

Brothers Win Silver Leaves Within 1 Day of Each Other

Two brothers from Cleveland, Tenn., received promotions at Fort Benning from major to lieutenant colonel within one day of each other.

Lt. Col. James I. McKenzie, regimental supply officer of the Infantry School Detachment, received his silver leaves first and the following day his brother, Jeremiah, adjutant of the 30th Infantry Regiment, was promoted to the same rank.

Although their military careers have been almost parallel, they didn't start that way. Both entered the service in 1943, but James entered the Marine Corps and Jeremiah entered the Army. During World War II, they met on Okinawa for a few moments and saw little of each other until they left the service in 1946.

They joined the Tennessee National Guard, and were recalled into the active service in 1950 with the 278th Regimental Combat Team at Fort Devens, Mass. James is a graduate of McMurry College in Abilene, Texas, and served with the Marine Corps in the Pacific during World War II. In March, 1952, he became S-4 advisor to the Republic of Korea Army. He was transferred to Fort Benning in September, 1953.

Jeremiah was in Korea from December 1951 to February 1952. He also served with the 24th Infantry Division in Japan.

Here's the Way To Eat Pineapple Like Hawaiians

"No, it can't be!" said McSgt. Edgar W. Alexander, 12th Company, First OC Regiment, when he learned, shocked and amazed, that many people here prefer canned pineapple to the fresh variety.

"There is no comparison between them," he said. "The trouble is that too many people don't know how to prepare fresh pineapple to get the most out of it. To get the real pineapple flavor, try preparing it the genuine Hawaiian way. First, pare the skin off, then slice it the long way. Stand it on end and slice it into six to eight long thin pieces. Now, the important part. Rub these pieces a thorough with crushed rock salt. Place the slices in the refrigerator and when they are completely chilled, rinse off the salt."

The question came up, "What no sugar?"

"No, the rock salt cuts the acid taste and no sugar is needed."

177th Anniversary of Infantry Nears

Foot Soldier Still Preeminent in 'Push-Button' Age

It was a noisy day, that June 14, 1775, when Congress established the U. S. Infantry with 10 companies of riflemen to join the tattered army of volunteers in Boston fighting for American freedom.

The 177th anniversary of that day — the official birthday of the U. S. Army Infantry — will be quietly celebrated next week at Fort Benning, The Infantry Center of the world, where the day-to-day business of a great school is to train Infantrymen to maintain that freedom.

In its 179 years as the largest branch of the Army, the U. S. Infantry has been the decisive factor in all wars in which this nation has been engaged. It was the foot soldier who brought victory to the U. S. all the way from the Revolutionary War through World War I. And it was the U. S. Infantry which stopped aggression in Korea.

Although its tactics and weapons have changed considerably since 1775, the Infantry still has the same mission that was assigned it 179 years ago: to close with and destroy or capture the enemy.

Next Monday — June 14th — the Infantry of the United States Army will observe its 179th anniversary.

Since 1775 there have been many changes in the tactics, techniques, and weapons employed by the Infantry. However, advances in technology have not made any substantial alteration in the essential role of the foot soldier — to close with the enemy and destroy or capture him.

Even in this age of atomic power, rockets, guided missiles and improved mobility, the self-propelled foot soldier is the decisive and ultimate factor in battle. Weapons of great destruction

New England colonists: Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire. But the ineffectiveness of the ill-trained and poorly supplied troops who were called for short terms convinced U. S. leaders that a single, national Army was needed.

Today, Fort Benning, home of the Infantry, is dedicated to the task of producing a modern Infantryman capable of defending the nation in a modern world which has become increasingly complex in methods of warfare. Despite the advent of new and powerful weapons, the Army must depend upon its basic branch to bring about ultimate victory.

The Infantry School, long the center of Infantry doctrine, carries on being early in 1918 when the wartime expansion of the United States Army indicated a definite need for a unified center where the existing schools of instruction could be assembled. During World War II some 60,000 second lieutenants of Infantry were graduated by the Officer Candidate School, and men completed other courses, not including 90,237 men who were trained as airborne soldiers.

From a student body of a few hundred, The Infantry School has grown into the world's largest educational institution. The success of its graduates on far-flung battlefields has vindicated the judgment of those who clung steadfastly to the idea of a modern trained infantry as the nation's best bulwark.

Weapons of great destruction may now be delivered upon the enemy and are in our arsenal. Destructive as these weapons are, they do not finish the job. After they have done their work, the Infantrymen must move forward across the contested field of battle, and close with the enemy.

Each Older Than USA, They Greet Another Year

June 15 is the birthday of four branches of the U. S. Army that are older than the republic itself. The Revolutionary War caused the establishment of a staff organization roughly similar to the Department of Army organization of today, and on June 16, 1775, through a series of acts by the Continental Congress, an Adjutant General, a Quartermaster General, a Paymaster General and a chief Engineer of the Army were established.

Today at Fort Benning, and other posts throughout the U. S., the Quartermaster Corps, Finance Corps, Adjutant General Corps, and the Corps of Engineers are preparing to observe their 179th anniversary.

Open House Set The Finance and Accounting Office at Fort Benning, under Lt. Col. Norris Shealy, will celebrate the anniversary of the Corps of Engineers on June 16.

Throughout the years, the Army's Adjutant General has acted as coordinating authority with practically all communications to and from the Department of Army addressed to or routed through his office.

Although there have been numerous changes in procedures, an adjutant general has been continuously in office since June 16, 1775, when the office was established.

Col. S. J. Codner, is Infantry Center adjutant general.

The three other branches of the Army celebrating their birthday here on June 16 have no specific programs planned.

The Adjutant General's Office employs 208 people on post who handle almost all the administrative problems in The Infantry Center headquarters and assist with administrative problems in post units.

The Present Finance Corps is the successor to the old Pay Department which was created in June, 1775, and from which it obtained its name and tradition. The Pay Department was in existence until 1913 when each branch had its own pay organization. The Armywide finance service was created July 1, 1920. There are approximately 123 military men and 85 civilians in the Fort Benning office.

The Continental Congress also decided in 1775 that there should be "a chief Engineer for the Army in a separate department and two assistants under him." On March 11, 1779, Congress resolved that "The Engineers in the service of the United States shall be formed into a Corps and styled the Corps of Engineers."

The Corps as it is known today came into being March 16, 1802, when the President authorized to organize and establish a Corps of Engineers.

What America Means to Me

Editor's Note: The following is reprinted from "You and Your U.S.A.," published by the office of Armed Forces Information and Education of the Defense Department, and won the highest award offered by Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge for a letter best expressing "What America Means to Me." The Foundation is again offering $1,000 for the best letter of 1954.

BY MAJ. THOMAS A. PALMER, USA

America is something more to me than coastlines, skylines, mountains, standards of living, Hollywood gimmicks, gadgets, freedom of opportunity, and TV.

America was not an accident. America had to be. America was born of a protest against dictatorial domination and religious intolerance. America attracted all the protests of the world.

Out of this welter came the result: people—people from far and wide—bringing their protests and fears and frustrations and, in the crucible of freedom, getting stronger, confident, more interdependent and, in that process, making one grand schoolroom for the rest of the world to see and possibly emulate.

America to me is not the arrival—but the way—to the time when, big and little, all divisions of race or creed will have gone. America cannot be static; neither can Americans. America changes one. To accept a status quo based on expedients of life and effort is not American. America is the impulsion of growth, of unhampered freedom of concept and expression—of the grasping of the NOW until the future's promise becomes graspable. America is not for the timid—the chronic conservative—the myopic. America is for the vigorous man, the energetic man; the far-seeing and the far-seeking man. America is not for the selfish man, for America was born of protest against selfishness. Not America has not as yet arrived; we are striving in our vigor and fearlessness and hope.

America will not permit its triumphs through years of honest strife and sacrificial effort to be deluged in foreign bigotries and foreign fears, and foreign intrigues, and foreign politics—for it was not only against one, but against all of these things that America was forced into birth.

America is the effort of brotherhood—not a poetic, sentimental ecstasy—but a vigorous, practical common effort; an effort that grows in its striving; but which, by the grip, spurs greater effort toward a practically cooperative humanity.

All those over the world who strive for the good of all share the American spirit—all who strive for tolerance, and practical, honest facing of issues, and seek purposeful action for the good of all are essentially American in spirit. Does it matter where they live or what their color or creed?

For America is a symbol—a generous symbol, which we, as a Nation, translate into a way of life, of liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This eventually, I believe, will be attained for all by the collective effort of mankind seeking freedom from the nameless, and unexplainable myriad of human fears—attained by first dissolving, through understanding, the fear of man for man. That is what America means to me.

Another $1000 Award, Men!

WASHINGTON (APRS)—Again this year Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., offers a $1000 prize for the best letter from a service man or woman on "What America Means to Me."

Also offered are 20 awards of $100. All prize winners will be awarded the George Washington Honor Medal. Honor Medals will also go to 20 additional letter writers.

Letters must not be over 500 words long. They will be judged by an awards jury assisted by a panel of Congressional Medal of Honor winners. The judges will take into account soundness of ideas and clear thinking—rather than literary form.

Entries will be accepted immediately. Closing date this year is midnight, Nov. 11, 1954. Letters received after that date will be entered in the 1955 contest.

Gospel Tells Story of 3 Men Who Let Cost Bar Their Way

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) PAUL E. KLETT
The verses concluding the ninth chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke give the account of an unusual experience in the life of our Lord. Three men had come to Jesus sufficiently interested in following Him to inquire of the possibilities of discipleship. One by one they express their willingness to follow Him, only to be discouraged when he reminds them of the cost. The first man changed his mind after following Jesus when he learned that he would have to turn his back on the security and comforts of a permanent home. The second man reconsidered his decision when Jesus told him that it is more important to serve the living than to be overly concerned with paying our respects to the dead. The third man expressed his willingness but found it too difficult to part with friends and family. It was in his heart to say good-bye.

To the last one Jesus speaks: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." All three were kept from a life of discipleship because they made the mistake of looking back and counting the cost.

Each of us has something keeping him from making the complete commitment that God demands. Instead of looking steady forward we are tempted to look back. Let's wife should have rejoiced in her deliverance from the evils of Sodom and Gomorrah but she could not resist, the temptation of looking back. The child of the Promised Land should have been incentive enough for the children of Israel but they looked back to the flesh pot of Egypt.

To use our Lord's phrase — "The farmer who doesn't look forward when he plows his field will not plow a straight furrow. Before his conversion, one of Christianity's outstanding teachers is supposed to have prayed, "Lord, make me a Christian, but not yet."

Our Lord is not satisfied with half a will, half a heart, or half a man. His plea is for full and complete commitment. God's Word summarizes the first table of the Moral Law thus: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind." Somewhere I remember reading this statement, "God doesn't demand much of a man, but He insists upon all three in Him."

The time comes for all of us to make a decision for or against Him as He is the greatest issue of the ages. In the Words of Elton Trueblood: "We cannot remain forever on the springboard poised for the leap. To refuse to decide is itself one decision and essentially a negative decision. 'No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

SILVER STAR

Chaplain (Maj.) Joseph A. Dunne, USA, a veteran of WWII, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action behind enemy lines near Munsan-ni, Korea, Mar. 23, 1951.

The chaplain, who served with several airborne units during WWII, participated in the assault with the 107th Airborne RCT. During a heavy barrage of enemy mortar and artillery fire, he led about the area helping both jump and battle casualties.

The day after the drop Chaplain Dunne walked through an uncharted mine field to administer the last sacraments to a dying man. The paratrooper had stepped on a land mine.

Later that week, Chaplain Dunne was told that another battalion of the RCT was under heavy counter-attack. He made his way to the area where the heaviest fighting was going on to give spiritual aid and comfort to his troops. There he stepped on a land mine.

Retired now for physical disability, Father Dunne is assistant pastor of St. John the Evangelist Church in White Plains, N.Y. (APRS)

Lions Genial Hosts To Spanish Officers

Two Spanish Army officers attending The Infantry School were guests of the Columbus Lions Club at its weekly meeting Tuesday at the Ralston Hotel.

They were Capt. Manuel Garcia de Polavieja Novo and Capt. Jorge Benshaw Heaton, both students in motor transportation class No. 4.

Capt. Francisco J. Ramos of Ponce, Puerto Rico, assistant Allied liaison officer at The Infantry School, accompanied the students.

The Harp of Ireland is believed to be the only musical instrument to be represented on the flag of any sovereign nation.

Chap. Stolz Wins Bronze Star Medal

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen Stolz of Hicksville, Long Island, N.Y., has received the Bronze Star Medal at Fort Benning for service in Korea.

The presentation was made by Infantry Center Chaplain, (Col.) John S. Kelly.

Catholic Chaplain Stolz, a graduate of St. Francis College and St. John's University, was cited for meritorious service as staff chaplain, Korean Base Section, from Nov. 3, 1952, to Jan. 1, 1954.

The citation reads: "Chaplain Stolz dedicated himself to uplifting morale and inspiring the welfare of personnel of the command, instilling belief and courage at a time when anxieties and tensions were heightened by the Korean war. His personal integrity and calm judgment acted as a steady influence on many in the military and engendered a deeper sense of religious spirit and frequently restored faith in the moral concepts of Christianity."

"Chaplain Stolz's devotion to duty and inspirational leadership materially enhanced the morale and well-being of combat troops, reflecting credit upon himself and unit to uplifting morale and inspiring the welfare of personnel of the command, instilling belief and courage at a time when anxieties and tensions were heightened by the Korean war. His personal integrity and calm judgment acted as a steady influence on many in the military and engendered a deeper sense of religious spirit and frequently restored faith in the moral concepts of Christianity."

P-TA Seeks Far Reaching Changes in Army Schools

A resolution calling for far-reaching changes in all children's school operated by the Army on military posts has been forwarded to the Department of the Army by the Fort Benning Parent-Teachers Association.

The four-part resolution was adopted by the P-TA at a recent meeting and asks for a high-level study aimed at attaining uniformity of dependent schooling on an Army-wide basis. It specifically recommends:

- a school curriculum based on national educational standards, to be used as a guide in post school systems.
- Uniform Method Sought
- A uniform method of allowing school operating funds; this method to be based on Army-wide standards rather than on standards prevailing in the particular geographical area in which a military installation is located.
- Uniform systems of record keeping to facilitate evaluation of a child's progress upon transfer from one school to another.
- Allotment of funds based on enrollment rather than on "average daily attendance" figures.

The Fort Benning P-TA instructed its president, Col. Edward L. Rowny, to transmit the resolution through military channels to the Department of the Army. It was endorsed by the president of the post school council and the commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Uniformity is Key

In pointing out that the P-TA views "uniformity" as the key word in its recommendations, Col. Rowny said:

"As Army families move from place to place as a result of frequent changes of station, they find that each change brings a completely different school set up.

This produces an artificial and unnecessary barrier to children's adjustment.

"This is added to the hurdle imposed when families have to pull children out of school at times which bear no relation to normal scholastic terms in order to comply with change of station orders.

"We also feel that uniformity in funding is needed," he said. "Present restrictions on the per-pupil cost of schooling make Army schools dependent upon standards established by surrounding civilian communities. Such a ceiling on costs does not take into account the many special problems encountered by post school systems.

"Mid-term disruptions due to transfers cause one such special problem.

Setup 'Unrealistic'

"Basing fund allocations on 'average daily attendance' is similarly unrealistic. This criterion does not properly recognize the fluid situation resulting from a constant turnover of students."

In another recommendation, which was not part of the formal resolution, the P-TA asked that the Army's chief of legislative liaison be informed that Fort Benning parents desire a change in the public law governing budgetary aspects of Army dependent school operation.

The P-TA's action is not a plea for more "fringe benefits," according to Col. Rowny. "We hope our resolution will not be so construed," he said. "We hope that education of our children will never be viewed as a matter lying on the fringe of parental and governmental responsibility. We feel that education of the young forms the very nexus of social responsibility in this conviction."

39 Are Graduated From Junior High

Thirty-nine junior high school students received certificates of graduation in ceremonies at the Main Post School Monday night.

Grechen Keller, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Fred D. Keller, who received first honors in her class, spoke on "Youth's Responsibility in A Democracy." Anne Magruder, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lawton W. Magruder, who received second honors, spoke on "Success - What It Means to Me."

Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, Infantry Center commander, delivered the graduation address, and certificates of graduation were presented by Col. Frazer W. Rodman, president of the Post School Board.

Class Gift

Robert Francis, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James R. Francis, who took third honors, presented the class gift, a certificate for a magnolia tree to be planted next Spring.

Janel Linecum, who won the spelling bee championship conducted by an Atlanta newspaper this year, was presented a silver cup.

Two sixth grade students were presented certificates as boy and girl winners last month in the annual field meet conducted as part of the school's physical education program. They were Kay May, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William E. May and Jerry Hobbs, son of Capt. and Mrs. Eugene S. Hobbs.

Girl Scouts To Attend Camp

Girl Scouts from 25 troops will attend the annual Day Camp at Fort Benning during June to learn campcraft skills and outdoor cooking.

The Day Camp will be divided into two sessions, June 14-23 and June 28 to July 9. It will be held at a site between Marne Road and Upatol Creek, according to Mrs. Martha Kurtz, district director.

Various types of scouting activities, including dramatics, games and crafts, are scheduled daily from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Transportation will be provided to and from the camp site.

Registration for the first session closed this week with 88 girls scheduled to attend. The second session still is open for registration, however, Mrs. Kurtz said.

Mrs. Edwin Common will direct the second session. Mrs. Norman H. Wiley is chairman of the Day Camp Committee.

3d Army Education Hits All-Time High

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — An all-time high of 17.4 per cent of all Third Army personnel are participating in Army Education programs, it has been announced here, and total enrollment of 100,000 by the end of fiscal year 1954 was forecast by the Troop Information and Education Section. This would be an increase of nearly thirteen per cent over last year.

According to a report just completed on the first three quarters of fiscal 1954, participation by personnel on all levels of education—basic, intermediate, high school and college—has increased. The intermediate, or fourth, grade to high school level, and the college level have shown the greatest gain. Part of the increase on the college level has been attributed to the fact that colleges have recently moved branches out over Third Army installations, increasing interest and convenience to the personnel there.

In addition to the on-post colleges, the TI&E Centers continually urged soldiers to take advantage of the United States Armed Forces Institute, which provides correspondence and home study courses administered on all levels by educational experts at a negligible cost to the individual.

Participation in regular correspondence courses as offered by various other universities is also encouraged.

Another part of new Army policy is that all soldiers must meet certain minimum educational requirements before they may go through basic training. In the Third Army, Fort Jackson is the new center for the so-called Transitional Training, where soldiers who fail to make certain scores on tests of their educational development are sent before they are trained.

Pvt. Charles Frohn, who plays in the Special Troops Band, takes the part of witty middle-aged Davis Slater, a carefree divorcee whose daughter Gresham has just killed. In an effort to reconcile Don and his daughter, Slater succumbs to the naive charms of Betty. Museum Builds Fine Record

Fort Benning's Fire Prevention Museum, an exhibit of anti-combustion devices and fire hazards, is credited with helping the post maintain its record of no reported fires so far in 1954.

Nearly 2,000 officers and NCOs have visited the museum since it opened Feb. 25 as part of regularly scheduled fire prevention classes, according to Col. Richard Ebbs, fire marshal.

The museum includes displays of various types of fire extinguishers, faulty heating and electrical equipment, and defective smoke pipes.

It is visited four times daily by groups of noncommissioned officers from each of the post's major commands. Saturday mornings are devoted to officer groups.

Classes are never larger than 20 men, and each group is guided through by a trained instructor who explains the exhibits and describes the causes of fire and preventive measures that should be taken.

Present plans call for the expansion of the program, reported Col. Ebbs. He expects that within the near future the museum will have been visited by all Infantry Center officers and enlisted men.

New Army Policy

Qualified EM Students Eligible For Promotion

WASHINGTON (APPS)—A change in the existing Army promotion policy, contained in SR 615-25-50, will now permit enlisted personnel attending leadership or specialist schools to be promoted providing they meet all existing requirements.

This action is necessary, G-1 officials feel, due to the fact that deserving individuals may suffer delay in promotions because of necessary attendance in long-term Army schools. They feel that this will increase the desire of top-notch enlisted personnel to attend these schools.

Under previous policy student personnel (enlisted) could not get promotions because they were required to have served in duties of the higher grade for a specified time.

But now, those who successfully complete enlisted courses at Army schools, including the Ranger course at Ft. Benning, Ga., and leadership courses at various training installations, may be promoted by the commandant or commander concerned.

In some instances, where courses are of extended duration, students who demonstrate professional ability may be promoted during the course. Upon graduation they may be promoted again if they are deemed to be further qualified.

No student promotions are authorized above the grade of sergeant. Included in this new policy is a provision whereby those selected to attend officer candidate school will be promoted to the temporary grade of sergeant upon entrance to the school, if not already serving in that or a higher grade.

Grads to Hear Washington

Col. Donald M. Washington, commander of the Infantry School Detachment, will be principal speaker at the graduation exercises June 16 for associate company officer class No. 3.

The 11 a.m. ceremony in the Main Theater will mark the completion of 15 weeks of training conducted by the Weapons, Tactical, Communications, Automotive, Airborne, Staff, and Ranger Departments.

Tournament plans include a double round-robin elimination consisting of two halves. A total 110 games, 55 each half of play, will be played by the 11 teams in the league.

Winners of the first and second halves will play the best two out of three games for the championship title. According to Second Lt. Charles J. The winning team will play in the Fort Benning double elimination tournament. Awards will be presented to the championship and runner-up squads. Individual awards will be given to the champs.

Each battalion and separate company in the Combat Training Command will be represented in the tournament. Games are currently being played within the battalions to decide the representative for that unit.

COUNTRY PLAYS

"I'll Train Them Some To Be in Vogue in Country Music These Days, Whether the Songs are Love Songs or Hard Numbers"

George McCormick's "Sun-down Train" is an excellently performed blues with a haunting melody that shows his voice to good advantage. And "The Golden Train," by Slim Bryant, is of the spiritual type, and featuring good, slow harmony. Both MGM.

"Sunshine Special" is a nice, rhythmic love song by Roy Acuff, with an old-time instrumental backing (Capitol).

An unusually fine blues number is "Old Man Blues," sung by Columbia's Johnny Bond. It is somewhat reminiscent of Jimmy Rodgers' style, and features excellent guitar playing.

Martha Carson uses a choir in her latest record recording, "Hell Part the Water," which blends well with her fine style of singing (Capitol). Another excellent record release is Eddie Arnold's "Chapel on the Hill" (Victor).

Jerry Rowley's "Wee Willie, Dot," on Fabor, is a catchy novelty number with a "Gay Nineties" flavor. Also "Beat it on the Ding Dong," by Jim Reeves, is one of those nonsensical songs that will keep running through your mind (Abbott).

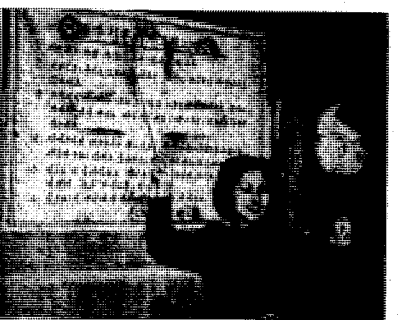

Betty Amos does a sweet singing job on a tearful ballad, "Yesterday's Sweetheart." Another beautiful but sad ballad is Allen Flatt's "Vacant Lot." Both Mercury.

"Rebound," by Hawkshaw Hawkins, on Victor, makes use of trick recording to echo parts of his song with a pleasing novel effect.

OTHER GOOD RELEASES

"Too Late to Cry Over You" (Smiley Maxedon, Columbia); "I Don't Hurt Any More" (Frank Snow, Victor); "These Lonesome Blues" (Jimmie Logsdon, Decca); "Waiting" (Charline Arthur, Victor); "Sinky-Tonk Girl" (Hank Thompson, Capitol); "Under the Moon" (Aultry Inman, Decca); Foggy Mountain Top" (The Flamingo's, Victor); "Jillie Arnold's" (Red Foley, Decca), and "I Wanna Go There" (Wally Fowler, Dot).

WAC SUMMER GARB...
Cpl. Betty Clarno, stands on the steps of the Pentagon and shows off her smart summer uniform. The Army is authorizing Wacs to wear the uniform beginning this year. The chic ensemble is made of tropical type fabric in a light taupe shade.

Nine Hundred Today End Command Post Exercise

A command post exercise involving approximately 900 Infantry School students, instructors and supporting troops which began Monday, will end today.

The 200 officers of the school's advanced class were key participants in the exercise, which climaxed the first phase of their instruction.

Others to take part in the exercise were 75 students in officer candidate class No. 6, and 60 students in enlisted communications class No. 4.

Supporting troops were provided by the 47th Infantry Division, the 30th Infantry Regiment, and the VHP radio unit from Camp Gordon, Ga.

The problem consisted of simulated maneuvers by two opposing Infantry regiments in the area at Buena Vista and Macon Roads. It included tactical principles, staff procedures, communications systems and attack, defense and retrograde movement by the regiments.

The exercise was staged to give the students an opportunity to practice air-ground operations, atomic warfare defensive planning, anti-guerrilla planning, coordinated action of combined arms and troop leading procedure.

124 Post Re-Ups Recorded in May

May reenlistments at Fort Benning totaled 124, the Recruiting Office announced Wednesday.

The School Brigade topped all other units with 55, followed by the Combat Training Command with 33.

The May figure brought the 1954 reenlistment total to 865.

3d Army Leads In Recruiting

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—During the first four months of 1954 the Third Army continued to lead all other Armies in recruiting.

Figures for this period show a gain of more than 3,000 enlistments by the Army and Air Force in other Armies in recruiting.

Experience has proved to recruiting officials that January is a peak month, with a steady decline through April and May. Enlistments then climb monthly, only to feel a drop again in December. Rather than put on a special drive during the poor months Third Army recruiters put special emphasis on the peak months to build production, and yet take nothing from the poorer ones.

Two-Way Radios Too
Major Change Made In Car Dispatching

The Post Public Information Officer said that plans are being made by the Transportation Section to install two-way radio in government vehicles in order to save driver-waiting time.

A major change in the dispatching of government vehicles, designed to save time and money, went into effect at Fort Benning Monday, it was announced by Col. Sidney P. Krelow, post transportation officer.

The general dispatch system, whereby vehicles are requested and returned after being used, will replace the present system which allows organizations to be issued the same vehicles every day.

Col. Thomas C. Frunty, executive transportation officer, expects to be able to turn in 200 vehicles to Third Army headquarters by the end of this month.

According to Col. Frunty, the new system will provide a more efficient motor operation and obtain the maximum utilization of a minimum number of vehicles.

The general dispatch system calls for vehicles to be centralized at three main points, the Main Post Transportation Motor Pool, Infantry School Headquarters and the Harmony Church Sub-Pool, which will reduce the overall costs of repair and operation. The old system used five motor pools.

ROK Honors Top Student

A Republic of Korea Army veteran, who led 149 classmates to become honor graduate last April of The Infantry School's Allied associate company officers course here, has received a special commendation from the Korean chief of staff.

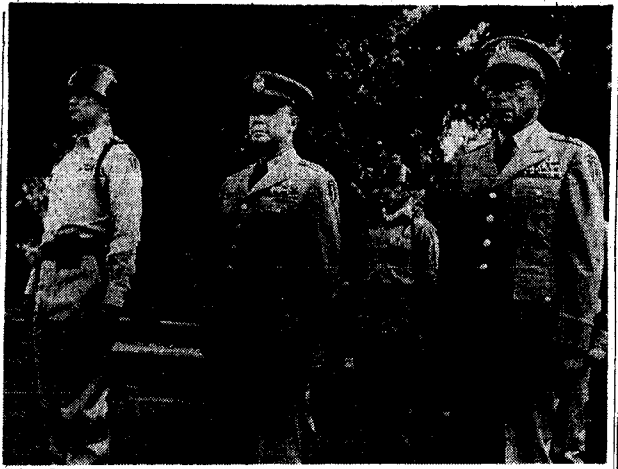

First Lt. Kim Yong Kyu, who graduated from The Infantry School course with a 95.9 per cent academic average, was presented a certificate of achievement in Taegu by Gen. Chung II Kwon, Korea's top soldier.

In making the presentation, Gen. Chung said:

"Your noble service provides an inspirational example to our entire officer corps and reflects great credit upon the military service of the Republic of Korea."

Lt. Kim was chosen to receive Fort Benning training as a result of a series of written and oral examinations, as provided for in the Mutual Defense Assistance Pact, the law which outlines procedure for the training of Allied officers in the U. S.

Lt. Kim commanded a company of the Sixth ROK Division and participated in the fierce defense of the Kumsong salient.

Latest AFPS Report From Washington

The Army has announced its promotion quotas for the month of July for the top four enlisted grades. According to the breakdown, 50,000 will be promoted to E-4, 22,900 to E-5, 500 to E-6, but none to E-7.

The Senate has passed and sent on to the House of Representatives an amendment to the Doctor Draft Act which will allow the Armed Forces to use physicians as enlisted personnel in their professional capacities if they fail to qualify for commissions. Under a recent U. S. Court of Appeals ruling, it has been impossible for the Armed Forces to draft such persons without commissioning them, even though they might be classed as security risks. Speedy affirmative action by the House on this amendment is expected.

The Navy will be under no obligation to return binoculars donated by the public during WWII if they have not been reclaimed by Dec. 31, 1954, according to a bill approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee. All but 85 of the 700 donated by individuals have been returned but the Navy can't find the remaining owners.

The draft call for July will be up 5000 over monthly calls since February. The figure is set at 23,000. The Army said the increase was necessary in view of an expected heavy turnover of personnel.

The Army is considering a more liberal retirement policy for officers who have served more than 20 years on active duty. As it now stands, reservists will benefit most from the plan but regulars will also be affected to a lesser degree.

Business, Professional Men Are 'Impressed, Educated'

The Infantry Center commander has received letters from several leading business and professional men praising Fort Benning for the caliber of training demonstrations they witnessed May 10-13 during the Army phase of Joint Civilian Orientation Conference No. 18.

President H. G. Babby of the Ex-Cell-O Corporation, Detroit, Mich., said "We were literally crammed with the meat of your operation, I was impressed and educated."

A Chicago banker, President George R. Boyles of the Merchants National Bank, called the approach of the Infantry School instructors "most realistic."

C. Harvey Bradley, president of the W. J. Holliday & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., wrote that the group was impressed with the "high standard of efficiency and the fine esprit de corps of your officers, NCOs and enlisted men and the great pride they took in being members of your command."

"Marvelous Demonstration" "The marvelous demonstrations of Army power and efficiency will assist all of us in the many troubled days that must come before peace can be assured," wrote the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, director of the University of Notre Dame Foundation.

Cecil K. Colon, executive vice president, Calcasieu-Marine National Bank, Lake Charles, La., had this to say:

"The demonstrations were far beyond the visions of the average American citizen. It makes one proud of our Armed Services and their leadership."

The president of the Railway Express Agency in New York, A. L. Hammel, commented on the "high order of morale" and the leadership exhibited.

"Terrifically Impressed" "A railroad president was 'terrifically impressed with the morale and appearance of your officers and enlisted men.'" Fred W. Okie, president of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., added that "it takes wonderful leadership to attain such morale under relative peace-time conditions."

An educator reported that he was convinced university instructors could learn a great deal from the techniques used by the Infantry School. A. S. Reutenheimer, educational vice president of the University of Southern California, said he also was "greatly impressed by the thorough preparation required of the individual instructors."

Ex-Air Force Cpl. Named West Point's '54 Top Grad

The class has 110 members who are from service families. Among these are two brothers, Judson and Norman Matthias, sons of Col. and Mrs. N. A. Matthias of Seattle, Wash.

The class of 1944 held its 10th reunion June 5—the anniversary of D-Day. Four months after graduation in 1944, 75 percent of its 474 members were in combat units. Thirty-nine have died; 375 are still in service.

This year's graduating class heard an address by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

The AF received 177 of those going in the Army, 187 chose Infantry, 118 Artillery, 60 Corps of Engineers, 47 Armor and 33 Signal Corps.

Forty-seven states, Alaska, Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Cuba, the Philippines and Venezuela were represented in the graduating class. New York had the highest representation with 72. Utah had none while Vermont and Wyoming each claimed one cadet.

"During the hardest years, my oldest brother was in the service. I was attending college and my youngest brothers were in school. With the strain of all the battles, never once did I hear my father complain; he always smiled and a word of encouragement for the rest of us."

"Despite the cost of illness, he managed to help me with my expenses in school as well as provide adequately for his family. He still found time to attend church functions faithfully, has been active in 4-H leadership and Farm Bureau work, and has recently retired from the presidency of the local school board after serving for 24 years."

A trophy will be sent to a city official in Shelby, Mich., to be presented to Mr. Bender on Father's Day, June 20.

The contest was open to all Fort Benning enlisted personnel, who were asked to submit the names of their own father or any other father they deemed suitable.

OC Rescues 3 Boys From Drowning

John N. Marr, 11th OC Company, First OC Regiment, is covered with tin foil, or round, with a hole in the middle. Nevertheless he is a genuine lifesaver.

While going to the University of Michigan, Marr spent his summers as a resort lifeguard near Flint, Mich.

During two summers at the camp, he rescued three boys from drowning and had a narrow escape in the process. One young swimmer got entangled with a rope in deep water. When Marr went to his rescue the panic-stricken lad came close to getting them both snarled in the coils.

SOLDIER OF WEEK
Pvt. Donald Oya of Company C, 30th Infantry Regiment was recently selected as Soldier of the Week for First Battalion, 30th Infantry. It marked the second week in a row that the honor had been given to Company C. Oya was cited for his superior work in the company and on school problems.

Sans Palm Trees, Tropic Moon
Four Hawaiians Organize Quartet

Palm trees, a tropic moon, and the soft music of guitars. Doesn't sound much like an Officer Candidate Company does it? The 11th OC Company, 1st OC Regiment might lack the palm trees and tropic moon, but it certainly has the music. Four men from Hawaii, took time out from their military duties, and organized a Honolulu quartet. Naming themselves "The Aloha Boys", the group features OC's Bill Cooper and Herman Jordan on guitars, and Jack Akamine and Dick Clark playing ukuleles.

All four of the musicians are native Hawaiians, and really get that "Island feeling" into their music. Hawaii's gift to Georgia made their Benning debut at a tra-

TIE Plans
Talk on Community Relations

A special subject on the Fort Benning Community Relations Program has been assigned as next week's Troop Information Conference subject, according to the post TIE Officer.

The subject is presented in a nine page pamphlet prepared by the post Public Information Office, and replaces another pamphet published in the summer of 1953.

The topic deals with Army-Civilian relationships in general, explaining the need for a program and the benefits it offers to military and civilian personnel.

The Fort Benning - Columbus relationship is traced in the second part of the pamphlet, and particular emphasis is given to the formation of the Citizens Military Council.

A number of instances are cited in which good community relations between Fort Benning and Columbus have contributed to the individual soldier's welfare.

After the topic has been presented, the soldiers in the units will discuss present conditions surrounding community relations, and offer suggestions to improve these relations.

YOU'LL "GET HOME" FASTER
BY THE NUMBERS

It's always a treat to "get home"—whether by plane, train or telephone. And usually, the faster the better.

That's why it's helpful to call by number when you make your visit by Long Distance telephone. When you give the operator the out-of-town number, she doesn't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and you'll "get home" faster.

You'll find out-of-town directories for frequently called cities at each telephone center. These centers are located at the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church area.

And remember, it's better for you to call the folks back home instead of their calling you, since you may be hard to locate. Charges can be reversed.

1,500 Coming Cadets to Start Training June 19

Nearly 1,500 Infantry ROTC cadets from eight states in the Third and Fourth Army areas will leave their campuses behind this week as they begin reporting here for summer training.

Representing 38 colleges and universities, the students will move into the field for the six-week camp, which forms an important part of the Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

The camp, scheduled for June 19 to July 31, follows the same intensive schedule used to train Regular Army units in the field. General military science subjects are taught by demonstrations, small unit drills, and special problems staged by The Infantry School. Lectures are avoided since the goal of the training is to apply instruction, which the cadets receive at their schools, to actual field problems.

A large part of the training schedule will be devoted to individual weapons, including the M-1 rifle, carbine, submachine gun, automatic rifle, bayonet, machine guns, mortars, recoilless rifles, rocket launchers and grenades. Instructions also will include aerial photography, field fortifications, communications, mine warfare, and night vision.

ROTC cadre personnel includes 60 officers and 122 enlisted men from educational institutions in Florida, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Missile Men Re-Discover Lost 'Worlds'

WASHINGTON — Astronomers working for the U. S. Army's Ordnance Corps have located 170 lost asteroids, the small planets that move between Mars and Jupiter. The asteroids were not "lost" to the universe in the usual sense of the word, explained Dr. James B. Edson of the Office of Ordnance Research. They were lost only to the world of scientific knowledge because the nation's leading astronomers, who normally would have kept track of their positions, were busy with defense projects in World War II.

"The positions of these asteroids had to be recalculated," said Edson. "We turned the job over to the University of Indiana and got quite a bargain for our money. To date, they have spent $2,300 on the project which began June 1, 1952. In return, we have gained knowledge that is invaluable."

A Ballistics Study
Why does the Ordnance Corps find new astronomical research? This is very simple, said Edson. "Ballistics—which is the science of throwing an object, be it a baseball, an artillery shell or a guided missile—is nothing more or less than a modification of astronomical mathematics. The more we know about the movement of bodies in the universe, the more we know about ballistics."

"Specifically, as applied to the asteroid research project, the orbit of a guided missile is calculated exactly the same way as the asteroid's orbit is calculated. The techniques and the training of scientists employed in this program can be applied to ballistics research."

Widens Knowledge
This project, Edson said, comes under the heading of "pure research"—discovery of a fact that widens the area of human knowledge but may not have immediate practical application to man's needs.

"We learned the value of this kind of research in World War II when quick utilization of scientific progress—the atom bomb is the most dramatic example—won a war.

"We used this scientific reserve to good advantage then. We now are re-investing in a stock that has proved profitable to build up a balance of knowledge that we can draw upon as needed."

Motor Class Graduates 32
Thirty-two officers graduated Monday from The Infantry School's motor transportation course.

Honor graduate was Second Lt. Charles R. Blank, Jr., of San Antonio, Texas. Second honors and a letter of academic achievement went to Second Lt. Harold S. Gaylor of Detroit, Mich.

Included in the class were six officers of the Iranian Army, three of the Royal Thai Army, two of the Spanish Army, and one of the Colombian Army.

'Color Dynamics' Transposes Mess Hall Into Work Shop

An ingenious Army sergeant at Fort Benning has turned an abandoned mess hall into a woodworking shop which embodies the latest safety features. Sfc. Richard A. Dobias, foreman of the woodworking section in the Central Post Fund Maintenance Shop, used what is called "color dynamics" to make the change. Color dynamics is the psychological application of different colors to provide the maximum in safety conditions and efficiency, according to Sgt. Dobias. The foreman of the seven-man shop applied different colors for different purposes: light green to relieve eye strain, yellow to mark lanes and obstacles, orange to mark moving and unsafe parts of machinery, red for firefighting equipment, blue for parts out of order and white for contrasting areas. Dobias came from Korea in 1951 where he earned the Combat Infantryman Badge while with the 15th Infantry Regiment. During World War II he was a supply sergeant in the Aleutians.

Arms Matches Begin Monday

Ft. Campbell First Squad To Arrive

The Fort Campbell, Ky., rifle and pistol teams have arrived for the Third Army matches to be held here June 21-24.

The Campbell teams, first to arrive, will be among those competing for places on the 71-man squad to represent Third Army in the All-Army matches, which also will be held at Fort Benning June 28-July 3.

All competitors must report to The Infantry Center by June 20 in order to complete in the Third Army Matches. Teams arriving early will spend their time practicing firing. The rifle matches, to be held at McAndrews Range, will determine the three nine-man rifle teams and three alternates to represent Third Army in the All-Army Matches. Pistolmen will fire at the Post Pistol Club for berths on the three six-man pistol teams. Three alternates and 20 individual shooters also will be picked during the four-day firing.

The All-Army matches will be followed by the Southeastern Regional Pistol Matches at Jacksonville, Fla., July 29-Aug. 1, and the Southeastern Regional Rifle Matches at Fort Benning Aug. 5-6.

U.S. Squad for International Matches To Be Chosen on Post Oct. 27-Nov. 7

Fort Benning will be host Oct. 27 to Nov. 7, for the final competition to select a rifle and pistol team to represent the U.S. next fall at the 36th annual International Shooting Union world championship matches in Venezuela, the Department of the Army announced last week.

Conducted under the auspices of the National Rifle Association of America, the final try-outs here will climax an extensive series of regional tournaments and similar competition sponsored by the Armed Forces.

These preliminary contests, which will be completed by Aug. 8, will determine participants in the quarter-final and semi-final try-outs at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 11 to Sept. 6.

The International Shooting Matches will be held Nov. 15-27 at Caracas, Venezuela. Rifle Center. In designating the post as the site for the final competition, in accordance with an NRA request, the Army pointed out that the international marksmanship contests are particularly tuned to achievements of The Infantry Center, where competitive firing accuracy with both rifle and pistol is an important part of the Army marksmanship program. Simultaneously with the quarter-final and semi-final international tests at Camp Perry, personnel from The Infantry Center will hold a Small Arms Firing School designed to teach Army marksmanship instructional methods.

Headed by the school will be Lt. Col. Walter J. Fellenz chairman of the Small Arms Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department. Instructors and demonstrators will come from the Weapons Department and around 100 other infantrymen from the 30th Infantry Regiment will serve as assistant instructors.

National Trophy Matches. The school will coincide with the National Trophy Matches, open to members of the Armed Forces as well as civilian organizations. For the first time in NRA history, women will be eligible to compete for places on the U.S. team, in compliance with new regulations of the International Shooting Union.

The international competition is open to native-born citizens or those naturalized at least two years before Sept. 1. Membership in the NRA, or any other organized body of shooters, is not necessary for competition.

The U. S. Rifle and Pistol Team, which will depart for Caracas shortly after the final try-outs, will consist of a maximum of 25 shooters, in addition to a team captain, executive officer, who will serve as coach and an adjutant. Frank T. Parsons, of Washington, D. C., has been named team captain. Army Col. Charles F. Rau will be executive officer and Marine Corps Major Harold Thomas will serve as adjutant.

OCs Lead Post Golfers, Lost 1st Meet to TAFB

Right at the moment Ben Hogie's not in danger, but give the boys on the First Officer Candidate Regimental golf team a few more years and then watch out. Currently leading Fort Benning's match play, the OC cadre golfers are undefeated locally. Their only loss in eight matches has been at the hands of a strong Turner Air Force Base team, which has maul-ed all opposition to date. Turner defeated the Regiment 17-10, in an 18-hole golf match last week at Albany, Ga. Leading medalist was Bob Eubanks, a member of the Officer Candidate team who shot a 73, one over par. Team captain Eubanks is the most experienced member of the group, and shoots consistently around or below par. He is the former holder of the Kentucky Public Links Title, All City medalist for the city of Louisville, medalist in the National Public Links Qualifying match, and former team captain of a University of Louisville golf team that won 40 consecutive matches.

Right behind Eubanks are Bob Mullikin, Don Duernsey, John Apple, and Dick Forrester. Mullikin, a member of the North California Golf Association and the Lake Chabot Country Club was a semi-finalist in the Oakland City tournament before his induction. Duernsey, a member of the Brookside Country Club of Columbus, Ohio, has participated in local tournaments, as have Apple at the Susquehanna Valley Country Club in Sunbury, Pa., and Dick Forrester at the Moonbrook Country Club in Jamestown, N. Y.

Sgt. Conway won New Mexico's 1953 gallery and big bore rifle championships and again in 1954. He fired a record 246 in the matches and has been awarded a certificate by the National Rifle Association.

The veteran marksman, who competed in the National Trophy Matches in 1952 and in the All-Army matches last year, also is a two-time winner of the Colorado Cup matches held annually in New Mexico. Sgt. Gallman, who returned from the Far East in April, started firing in the National Trophy Matches in 1950 and shot in every tournament up to 1949.

After helping coach the Army's team in the National Trophy Matches, Sgt. Gallman will assume duties as coach of the cadet rifle team at West Point.

FRAN DROBOT, SUPRISE HURLER, GETS MAD; WINS AGAINST 164TH

Fran Drobert, a surprise pitcher for ISD, literally came from left field to win Monday night's game over the 164th Flickertails, 4 to 3. Fran, who has been playing left field for ISD all season, got determined and said "I can't pitch a winning game, you can ship me to Korea." Now ISD is guarding him like Fort Knox. He entered the box the third inning of the game and allowed only one hit in six innings of relief, getting credit for the win, as his teammates came from behind.

After the third inning, the game settled down to a pitchers duel until the seventh inning, when, with a man on first, Paul Bonair laid down a perfect sacrifice to set up the tying run. The run scored as the following man singled.

In a tense eighth frame the first man walked and scored the winning run on two singles.

Totals for the game were four runs, six hits and no errors for ISD, and three runs, five hits, three errors for the 164th.

The big payoff on the Indianapolis "500" classed Winner Bill Vukovich collected $74,934. His average speed for the 500 miles was a record 124.84 mph. The Fresno, Calif., driver also finished first last year. He is the third driver to win the race two years in succession. Second place driver Jimmy Bryan received $35,894 and Jack McGrath got $26,909 for third honors.

Here's some good news for sports fans. Time, Inc., will publish a new national sports magazine starting in August. It's going to be a weekly. . . The Yankees have come up with another Gerry Coleman. However, the new Gerry Coleman isn't an infielder — he's a promising young hurler with the St. Joseph squad in the Class "C" Western Assn. . . The Chicago Cubs have changed managers nine times in mid-season since 1905. . . Veteran backstop Walker Cooper has played with every team in the National League except Brooklyn and Philadelphia, since breaking into the senior circuit with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1940. . . Remember Don DiMaggio, the "Jug" tie professor" who sparkled in centerfield for the Boston Red Sox? He's now president of a rubber concern in Lawrence, Mass. . . The Pittsburgh Pirates gave Joe Page, one-time fireman for the New York Yankees, his unconditional release. Page's record as a Pirate relief pitcher was no wins and no losses. Oddly enough he was wearing No. 00 on his uniform.

Service Highlights
The long arm of the law finally caught up with Willie Mays of the New York Giants. This particular arm happened to belong to Vernon Law, pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates. Law, a compatriot with Mays at Ft. Eustis, Va., recently stopped the centerfielder's four-game honor streak. . . In another Pirate - Giant game Bob Purkey and Johnny Antonelli opposed each other. They were buddies at Ft. Myer, Va. . . The Philadelphia Athletics have come up with a promising third baseman in Jim Finigan. He played for Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., while in the Army. . . Boston Red Sox rookie moundsman Truman Cleveland has been reclassified from 3-A to 1-A by his draft board.

Pinball machines are directing an "enemy force" in a problem at Fort Benning where psychologists are studying night-fighting methods.

Electronic devices made largely from parts of salvaged coin-operated machines simulate the appearance and sound of an attacking or defending enemy force.

The problem opens with an artillery barrage. Mortar shells land nearby, machine guns and automatic weapons open fire and voices and shouts of the enemy are heard.

All this enemy activity is programmed and produced by two electronic machines nicknamed "Brain" and the "Worker," which cost about $35.

Wired into "Brain" every activity of the enemy is wired into the complicated "Brain" which acts as a timing device to control enemy activity and tell the "worker" what to do and when to do it.

The "Worker" controls an amplifier producing sounds of the enemy, flashing targets to give the effect of automatic weapons and other circuits which cause man-shaped targets to pop up unexpectedly.

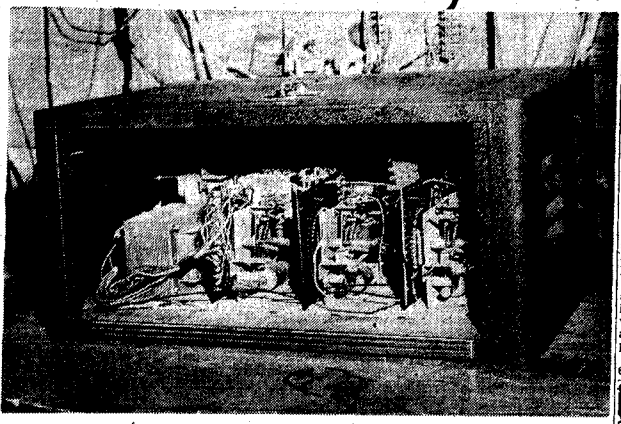

The night problem is part of the MOONLIGHT project being conducted by Human Research Unit No. 3, a joint enterprise of Army Field Forces and the Human Resources Office of George Washington University.

Earlier phases of MOONLIGHT were the basis for a night firing training directive currently being used throughout the Army. Research workers now in the last phase of their research are attempting to apply previous findings on individuals to larger units.

The goal of this last phase is to develop methods of training squads to be smooth operating night fighting teams. During the night problem, men are assigned to defend a prepared position against an attacking enemy force.

The MOONLIGHT project is regarded as particularly timely in view of tactics used by the Chinese Communists.

New night-fighting training

TIMING MECHANISM MADE FROM OLD MACHINE EQUIPMENT Problem Also Utilizes Sound Amplifier, Control Panel

methods are necessary, according to Dr. Edgar L. Shriver, leader of the MOONLIGHT research group, because artificial lighting is not always available, and even when it is, the enemy can avoid lighted areas.

Human Research Unit No. 3 is one of three units set up under Army Field Forces to conduct research on methods of training of the individual soldier. The unit is composed of civilian psychologists, under the direction of Dr. Francis E. Jones of Holly Springs, Miss., and a military complement headed by First Lt. Charles K. Raymond of New Orleans, La.

2 Sergeants Picked As Aides to Bolling

Two Fort Benning sergeants have been chosen to serve this week and next as enlisted aides to Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander.

Sgt. Daniel Donahue, a section sergeant in the Small Arms Department of Army Field Forces Board No. 3, reported to Third Army headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga., on Monday, and M-Sgt. Paul L. Sawyer, sergeant major of the 164th Infantry Regiment, 7th Division, will report June 20. Each will serve for one week.

Enlisted aides for Gen. Bolling are provided on a rotation basis from each installation in the Third Army area. They accompany him on inspection tours and attend other special functions.

Donahue, who was enlisted aide to five general officers during 56 months of service in Europe, is the third aide to be selected from Fort Benning since last June. He has 12 years and six months of service in Europe and Korea. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with V Device, Purple Heart and the Belgian, French and Luxembourg Fourrageres.

Sawyer, who has served three years and six months of his active duty as an officer, enlisted in the Army in April 1944. He has more than eight years of overseas duty. Sawyer's decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with V Device and Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

506th Gets Eight Pilots From Korea

Eight new pilots have been assigned to Fort Benning's 506th Army Helicopter Company following duty in Korea.

Coming from the Sixth Helicopter Company were WOJGs Donald E. Sholberg of Everett, Wash., Phillip B. Moore of Montgomery, Ala., Eugene G. Fish of Pacific Grove, Calif., Norman S. Jacobson of Plummer, Minn., and James V. Jones, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., and from the 13th Helicopter Company were WOJGs Samuel Sabia of Newton, Pa., Wallace D. Carter, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., and Richard L. Boden of St. Clair, Mich.

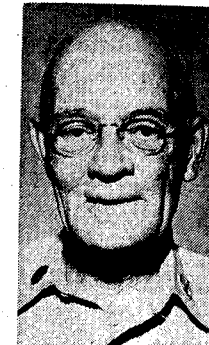

The 506th is on temporary duty at Fort Bragg, N. C., participating in Exercise Sky Drop, a maneuver designed to test and improve aerial delivery of troops and supplies.

The unit will return about July 6.

Siegfried Line Now Storeroom For Supplies

PIRMASENS, Germany — The United States Army has gone underground at this small German town on the French border.

In caves and tunnels under mountains surrounding the city, the Army has stored more than 50,000 ordnance items for use by tactical troops in Europe.

Once a part of the "impenetrable" Siegfried Line of Germany, the underground facilities include former corps command buildings, hospital wards and supply tunnels used by the German army.

In 1951, the U. S. Army moved into the area to survey the condition of the hundreds of tunnels and caves. When it appeared practical to rehabilitate some of them at low cost, Army Ordnance specialists recommended the site as a supply depot.

Initially the caves were used as headquarters and barracks for men of the 75th Ordnance Supply Depot Company. Walls were repaired and painted, doors refitted, and lights and sanitation facilities installed.

Immediately a battle began against moisture. When the soldiers found that lack of sun and dry air made mold and mildew inevitable, they installed air dryers at the entrance of each cave selected for use. When this project was completed, the tunnels became suitable sites for storage of small arms, artillery, fire control apparatus and many other items of combat equipment.

Today, with exception of depot headquarters and a small storage area in the town of Pirmasens, all storage sites in this area are underground.

1,297 Cadets Arrive

THE BAYONET

VOL. 12 NO. 40 THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1954 Published by The Ledger-Enquirer Co. for America's Most Complete Army Post Twenty-four Pages

Gen. Harper Opens ROTC Annual Camp

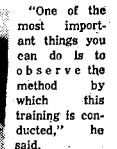

Cadets from 37 colleges and universities were officially welcomed to Fort Benning Monday night by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander, at opening ceremonies for the 1954 ROTC camp.

A mile-long line of 1,297 cadets marched into a training field to hear the general's address and accept the ROTC colors for the six-week encampment being held until July 31.

In welcoming cadets from eight states in the Third and Fourth Army areas, Gen. Harper reminded them that, "It is the citizen who wins the wars for the United States."

"Many of you are not looking for a career in the Army," he said. "That is all very well. But principles of leadership are the same in the Army as they are in civilian life. What you do here certainly will not be lost."

Gen. Harper was introduced by Col. Richard J. Werner, professor of military science and tactics at Clemson College, deputy camp commander. Werner told the cadets that leadership would be stressed in all phases of their work.

CTC to Honor Col. F. L. Elder At Last Review

Combat Training Command will pass in review on French and Blue Fields at Fort Benning Saturday in a farewell parade for its departing commander, Col. Frank L. Elder of Kershaw, S. C.

Col. Elder, who has commanded CTC since August 1953, leaves July 1 for duty as G-4 of the Alaskan Command.

Col. Earl Sutton, new commanding officer, is expected to arrive at Fort Benning in mid-July from the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Units of the Combat Training Command include the 30th Infantry Regiment, the 41st Field Artillery Battalion, 189th Field Artillery Battalion with its three attached units, the 27th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion, 530th Searchlight Platoon and 67th Chemical Company; the 73rd Tank Battalion, including the 550th Tank Company, and the 78th Engineer Battalion.

As its commanding officer, Col. Elder has seen his unit become the working demonstrators for all Infantry School problems, except those requiring airborne-trained personnel.

While at Fort Benning he has been active in athletic activities and is chairman of the Officers' Mess Golf Committee. A 1933 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., he holds the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star Medal.

He attended the Infantry School in 1937, graduated from Command and General Staff College in 1941, Naval War College in 1943, Army and Navy Staff College in 1945, Armed Forces Staff College in 1947, and Industrial College of the Armed Forces in 1948.

We Lead Re-Ups For Fifth Month

The Infantry Center's 125 re-enlistments during May put Fort Benning out in front in the Third Army area for the fifth straight month, the post Recruiting Office reported.

The May figure brought the 1954 total to 996.

Although Fort Jackson, S. C., actually re-enlisted more men, 165, the standings in the Third Army area are based on the total number of discharges among those eligible to re-enlist.

will be fired by Battery A of the 41st Field Artillery Battalion.

On hand for the honor guard will be Major Gen. Joseph E. Harper, Infantry School commander, and Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commander, Brig. Gen. Louis W. Truman, Third Army acting deputy commanding general, Major Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the Army's intelligence officer, and key Fort Benning officials.

During the morning, Emperor Selassie, who is making his first trip to the U. S. at the invitation of the State Department, will be briefed on the Infantry School and its operation. Gen. Bolte Plans Talk

Gen. C. L. Bolte, the Army's vice chief of staff, is scheduled to address The Infantry School's advanced class No. 2 at 9 a. m. Saturday in the Main Theater on "The Infantry and the New Look."

Gen. Bolte served in France during World War II. In September 1920 he became an instructor at The Infantry School. In 1927 took one of the school's courses, again became an instructor, and in June 1930 he graduated from the advanced course.

"One of the most important things you can do is to observe the method by which this training is conducted," he said.

Col. Werner presented the ROTC colors to Cadet Regimental Commander Don C. Ellis of San Antonio, Texas, in a color guard ceremony which followed an explanation of the colors and their meaning in the Army.

The eight states in the Third and Fourth Army areas represented by the cadets are Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The cadets have been divided into eight training companies with cadet officers commanding each unit and directing activities of their organizations.

Camp officials, besides Col. Werner, are Col. Kelley B. Lemmon of the University of Alabama, deputy for training, and Col. Henry H. (Please See CADETS, Page 17)

Army to Resume Off-Post Salutes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officers and men of the United States Army will soon revert to the traditional practice of saluting at all appropriate times, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of Staff announces.

The practice of saluting off military reservations was discontinued in 1948 after it was placed in effect in 1942 following a 20-year suspension of the tradition.

The hand salute in the Army, the military equivalent of a civilian greeting in public, will be rendered, beginning Sept. 1 by all Army personnel in uniform "at all times when they meet and recognize persons entitled to the salute, except in public conveyances such as trains and buses or public places such as theaters, or when a salute would be manifestly inappropriate or impractical," under terms of a revised Army Regulation (AR 600-25).

The importance and traditional aspects of the hand salute will be emphasized to all Army personnel in conjunction with training programs.

The Army said the action is based on the desirability of public demonstration by officers and men of the Army of the act of recognition and mutual respect stemming from the Revolutionary War.

HALFWAY POINT NEAR IN FOLLOW ME CAMPAIGN

The "Follow Me Fund," established to erect a life-sized statue of the U. S. Infantryman at Fort Benning, reached $1,187.25 last week.

Officers of the School Brigade, who donated $485.25, have made the largest contribution to date. Checks for $100 also have been received from the 25th Infantry Division Association, the Fort Benning Woman's Club, and Combat Training Command.

Voluntary contributions from U.S. Infantrymen at Fort Benning are being sought to erect a permanent base for the statue which is now in U. S. Army headquarters in Berlin, Germany. Plans are to place the statue in front of The Infantry School as a memorial to the U.S. foot soldier.

An estimated $2,500 will be needed to erect a terrazzo concrete base for the bronze replica, a monument depicting an Infantryman in full battle dress, holding an M-1 rifle, and standing at parade rest. German Sculptor Ernest Kunst used two combat veterans as models.

It also is planned to offer active Infantry and airborne divisions and division associations an opportunity to contribute funds towards attaching bronze plaques to the base. Each plaque will bear a division's insignia and list its major campaigns.

The fifty officers and eight interpreters will leave Fort Benning June 28 and at present plan a stop in Los Angeles, Calif., where they will be conducted on a tour of the city.

Capt. Cho Sang Ho, who has been at Benning as chief interpreter, will act as escort officer for the trip.

Lendall and Lindley Meyer
Fire Identical Score of 163

Twain brothers who have not been separated in their 21 years are continuing to prove that they are identical in ways other than their appearance.

Pica, Lendall L. and Lindley J. Meyer of Nelson, Neb., both scored 163 in record machine gun firing at Fort Benning to qualify as experts and now serve as chart handlers and demonstrators on the Weapons Department Machine Gun Committee.

The identical scores did not come as a surprise, however, since they have been doing things alike since birth.

When they were seven months old, the twins took top place in a Knuckles County, Neb., baby contest, and they were the first twins to graduate from Nelson High School.

Lendall holds the record for the longest run made in Nebraska high school football history.

They entered the Army after completing their freshman year at Hastings College in Nebraska, where they caused confusion by playing right and left ends on the football team.

The twins came to Fort Benning following 16 weeks' basic training at Fort Rietly, Kans., and after completing the non commissioned officers' weapons class here were assigned to the Machine Gun Committee.

Year Round Job
Schroeder Stays Busy
As 'Boss' of Aggressors

SFC Robert Schroeder of Salem, Ore., switched from a bloody Korean battlefield to The Infantry School's Ranger Department more than two years ago, but he still fights an enemy—though in a somewhat different way.

He's the man behind the Aggressor Forces whose job is to outwit, harass and otherwise style Ranger troops at the Romer mountain camp near Dahlonega, Ga.

Normandy in World War II and Korea taught him the know-how of using effective attack, ambush and patrols in combat.

"It's as close to combat as you'll ever come without having someone get killed," says the 28-year-old sergeant who has been in the year old course of the Rangers for three more years.

Once the problems are finished, he acts as field first sergeant taking charge of reclaiming demolition pits and foxholes and clearing the area of duds preparatory to the arrival of another class.

The amiable sergeant lives in Dahlonega the year around, but occasionally visits Fort Benning. He returned June 7 to re-enlist for three more years.

FLASH BURN ACHIEVEMENTS... This Fort Benning group has received Certificates of Achievement for outstanding service as briefing officers at Exercise Flash Burn, held at Fort Bragg, N. C. Left to right are Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, who made the presentations; Lt. Col. Oscar Davis of Tucson, Ariz., briefing team chief who received a Third Army Certificate of Achievement, and Lt. Col. Harold Kennedy of Beatrice, Neb., Lt. Col. Richard Ulrich of Atlanta, Ga., Major Franklin Garrett of Farmville, Va., Capt. Theodore Hervey of San Antonio, Texas, Capt. Stephen Booth of Lawrenceville, Va., Capt. Roy E. Sullivan of Tifton, Ga., and Capt. Lorezo Luckie of Madisonville, Tenn., all of whom received Infantry Center Certificates of Achievement.

OC Built Giant Terrain Model Of Exercise Flash Burn Area

The man responsible for the building of the terrain model used for Exercise Flash Burn is now an officer candidate in 12th OC Company, First OC Regiment.

Amos Segars of Millidgeville, Ga., after completing basic at Fort Jackson, S. C. was assigned directly to Headquarters, Maneuver Director, at Fort Bragg, N. C. His chief job was to make the terrain model on a scale of 1 to 25,000 of the maneuver area.

The finished work, which weighed over a ton and measured 12 feet by 8, showed all main ground features, vegetation swamps, tactical roads, and phase lines of (the exercise, and permitted staff officers and distinguished visitors to follow the course of the action from a distance.

Segars accomplished the job of constructing the huge plaster of paris model with the aid of only one assistant.

Segars said his experience as a student of architecture and civil engineering at Georgia Institute of Technology and as assistant to his father in his contracting firm was probably instrumental in his being assigned this special job.

One of Segars' sidelines in civilian life was the remodeling of land. In his free time he engaged in experimental work with the irrigation of pasture lands and had finished construction of three artificial lakes when he entered the Army.

A-Sub Prototype 'Crosses Ocean' With Full Power

NEW YORK (APPS)—The prototype of the atomic submarine based in the Idaho desert, simulated a crossing of the Atlantic under full power—without shutting its own land-locked "ocean." The success of the test run last June was revealed by RADM Lewis L. Strauss, USNR (Ret.), chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. The historic test began at 8:15 p.m. June 23, 1953. At the end of a scheduled 24-hour test, the Mark I engine—housed in a hull section completely submerged in water—was performing so well that RADM Hyman G. Rickover, USN, decided to simulate a run across the Atlantic. (Admiral Rickover directed the design and construction of the atomic submarine.)

For the next several days, re-duplicate of the Mark II which she now powers the Nautilus on her shakedown tests. The desert-based sub had its own ocean. It was a sea tank about 50 feet in diameter and about 40 feet high with a capacity of 285,000 gallons. The hull compartment enclosing the atomic power plant was within the tank and completely submerged in water. The speed with which the atomic sub prototype made the Atlantic crossing is classified.

The cast includes Sgt. William Black, comedian, Cpl. Wynlon Kelly, pianist and former accompanist for Dinah Washington, Cpl. John Losha, juggler, Pfc. Tichp Christiansen, vocalist, Pfc. Columbus Pearson, trumpet artist, Pfc. Harmuth Wolf, violinist, Pvt. Vincent Legnetto, accordionist and Pvt. Alvin Shackman, guitarist. Pfc. John McAlpine is master of ceremonies.

THEY BE INTO THE ENEMY WHO DARE CROSS THE SIGHTS OF THE TOP SNARLERS IN THE THIRD ARMY AREA. These Riflemen Are Fictured During The First Day Of Firing At The Rifle And Pistol Matches Being Held Here

500 Marksmen Vie For R&P Positions

Nearly 500 of the Army's finest marksmen began preliminary firing this week at Fort Benning as the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Matches got under way. Brig. Gen. Ernest A. Barlow, chief of staff of Third Army, fired the first shot Monday in the competition to select the official Third Army Rifle and Pistol Team. Twenty-six experts will be named to the rifle team and 27 to the pistol team. These 53 men plus several alternates will represent Third Army in the All-Army Matches to be held here June 28 to July 3.

Gen. Barlow welcomed the shooters on behalf of Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, and stressed the importance of individual marksmanship to the mission of the soldier. "As long as the Infantry must take and hold ground, we must have individuals who are confident of their ability to kill the enemy with individual weapons," he said. Marksmen-Instructors "Excellent marksmen are usually excellent instructors and, as the best marksmen in the Third Army, you should prove extremely valuable in stimulating marksmanship when you return to your units." He said that statisticians at Third Army headquarters had estimated that nearly 30 per cent of the members of the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Team should come from the Third Army. "And we should increase that figure by 50 per cent," he added.

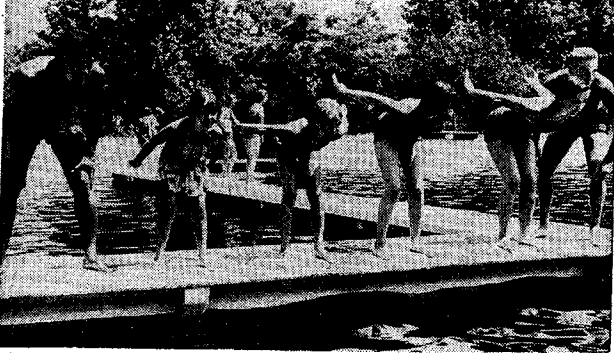

Nearly every installation in the Third Army has sent individuals and teams to fire in the matches. Among the units represented are Fort Benning, the 47th Infantry Division, Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Campbell, Ky., 82nd Airborne Division, Camp Gordon, Ga., Fort Jackson, S. C., Camp Stewart, Ga., Fort McPherson, Ga., Fort McClellan, Ala., and the military districts of North Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. Trophies and 129 gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded half of the Third Army's total points and winning the Triathlon.

Miller Takes Triathlon Title, Dickey Ties in Pole Vault

A strong Sixth Army team took top honors in the annual event in the Triathlon was Val Christensen who fired third in the pistol phase and 12th in the overall trial. "Leaping" Lyle Dickey tied for first place in the pole vault, soaring 13 feet, 9 inches, and Bob Hunt placed fourth vaulting 12 feet, 6 inches. Joe Howard raced to a fourth place in the low and high hurdles. The All-Army Triathlon, consisting of pistol firing, swimming and track, was won by "Dauntless" Dave Miller of Denver, Colo. Miller won the Third Army Triathlon at Fort Campbell, Ky., earlier this month. Benning's other entrant in the Triathlon was Val Christensen who fired third in the pistol phase and 12th in the overall trial.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

A great victory was won last Saturday as Ed Furgol, the handicapped "also ran," came from behind to sweep himself into glory by winning the 1954 National Open Golf tournament. Not since Ben Hogan came back from his auto accident has there been an equal to his story.

At the age of 12, Ed Furgol broke his arm in a St. Louis playground and it became withered and stiff. The other arm out-grew it by eight inches. Ed then took up golf to limber the arm and gain some small fame in sports. It was a long and sometimes heart-breaking struggle. Ed had played in nine National Opens as an "also ran" before he smashed into the winner's circle by beating such greats as Hogan, Snead, and Lloyd Mangrum, perennial favorites in the pre-game chesswork.

From chump to chump in 15 rounds. This is no reflection whatsoever on a great champion, Rocky Marciano, but on the "champion" sports writers in this nation who underestimated a man possessed of a great fighting heart, Ezzard Charles. I, too, crawled out of the pits of embarrassment after the fight, as I had picked Marciano in less than six. The "experts" said eight.

Everyone was caught off base in the now historic brawl at Yankee Stadium. It seems quite probable that Rocky started slowly with hopes of prolonging the bout. Charles had no such ideas and fooled everyone by scaring the champ at his own game, slugging. After seeing four rounds of a cut up champ's eye and bloody nose parading before him, Charles had a taste of the championship. The Rock knew he was going to have to go all out. Many fans had visions of dollar bills floating into the hands of the odds gambling gamblers. However, from the sixth round on there was little doubt, and the rest is history.

The only fight I can recall that matched the ferocity of this dead-game, toe to toe slugfest, took place in 1949 between Ray Robinson and Jake LaMotta, which Sugar Ray won by a TKO.

There should be no doubt in anyone's mind now as to who holds the heavyweight crown after last week's fight. Rocky's courageous, fighting heart brought him from behind to thoroughly batter the contending Charles, who used the wrong style of fighting in the fight of his life. It wasn't lack of punch that kept Charles from being KOed, but the mere fact that Charles is more man than the many wisecracking sports editors gave him credit for being.

Marciano has to this date a 46-0 mark and for the record I hope he keeps it as it is, unprecedented in heavyweight boxing. However, there won't be any 18-5 odds for my money if the public demands another bout between these men. The Rock won, but Charles, fighting Walcott style, could beat him. Marciano will win a slugfest as was proven, but can he beat Charles if he decides to box him? Marciano beat Jersey Joe both times with one punch. It took 12 rounds in the first go and one in the second. Ezzard Charles absorbed more punches in one battle than Walcott did in two fights and didn't leave his feet. This could very well be reason to believe that Rocky can be beaten by Charles if Ezzard decides to box. One punch can hurt but not fell the sturdy oak Charles has become, and I firmly contend the Cincinnati sensation can win if he fights Marciano in a manner other than a Hollywood style barroom brawl. Whip the Rock, no; out box him, yes.

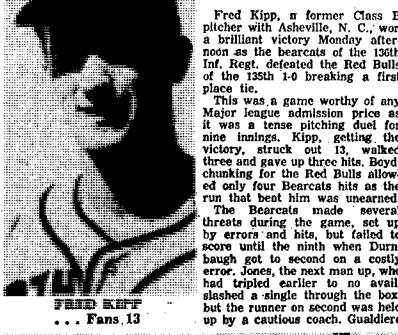

This week seems to be one that will be long remembered for fighting hearts. At Fort Devens, Mass., Durable Dave Miller showed many Army entrants that Benning instills courage and skill when he compiled 2875 points to win the all-Army triathlon. It takes a lot of plain, ordinary guts, along with skill, to swim 220 yards, run two miles and fire the .45 pistol better than any of the other members of the Army present at the meet.

Lyle Dickey came within two feet of Cornelius Warmardam's pole vault record as he cleared the bar at 13 feet 10 1/4 inches. A very impressive jump; good for a tie for first place.

Scouts, attention! George Barrow, recent sensation at Fort McPherson, looks like a sure bet for pro ball when he leaves the folds of Uncle Sam's long arms. The McPherson team with a sizzling 41-9 record is being paced by third baseman Barrow's booming bat. George hit a mere .388 based on 52 hits in 134 trips to the plate. The 22-year-old six-footer has eight doubles, three triples, and seven circuit clouts. Here's talent along with 38 RBIs and 47 runs scored.

OC Kent Dreaming of Racers While Taking Officer Course

Before entering the Army, OC racing was started in California. Kent's favorite sound was the roar of a high compression engine as it pushed an auto in a race against time. Kent was a drag racer at Santa Ana, Calif., and owned one of the fastest Model "A" Fords in the west.

Drag racing differs from other forms of car racing in that there is no direct competition against other cars. The racers speed down the smooth surface of the strip in a duel with the secondhand of the timing clock. This method of racing was started in California to give the fast car men a chance to show their stuff with a minimum of danger.

Golf Activities Planned July 4, 5

A slate of golf activities will be conducted July 4, 5 at the Officers Mess Country Club. Fred Kipp, a former Class B pitcher with Asheville, N. C., won a brilliant victory Monday afternoon as the Bearcats of the 136th Inf. Regt. defeated the Red Bulls of the 135th I-0 breaking a first place tie. This was a game worthy of any Major league admission price as it was a tense pitching duel for nine innings. Kipp, getting the victory, struck out 13, walked three and gave up three hits. Boyd, chomping for the Red Bulls allowed only four Bearcats hits as the run that beat him was unearned. The Bearcats made several threats during the game, set up by errors and hits, but failed to score until the ninth when Durnbaugh got to second on a costly error. Jones, the next man up, who had tripled earlier to no avail, slashed a single through the box, but the runner on second was held up by a cautious coach. Gualdiero then failed in an attempted sacrifice. Firming stepped up to the plate and worked to count to two strikes and one ball. On the next pitch the steal was on and Durnbaugh, on second, had third stolen easily, but on a hurried throw the Red Bull catcher, Butcher, threw the ball into left field and the winning run walked across the plate in the personage of Durnbaugh.

The standing of the league as of Monday night are below.

1st OC Raps STC Team 13-2

A 12-to-2 walloping of the Special Troops command team gave undisputed possession of first place to the First Officer Candidate Regiment's softball team this week in the TIC softball league. Behind the strong pitching of David Dean the winners led from the first inning and were never in danger. Racking up two runs in the first, one in the second and eight in the fifth, the General's racted CTC pitching for 14 assorted hits. The Generals, by virtue of belting everyone and everything in sight, have become the team to beat in the league. In their last five games, the team has scored 64 runs, while giving up only 11.

"HE'S IT O. K., DAD!" . . . Apparently it was, because E. K. Murra of Columbus, who is demanding his three to check the Civitan boy-guests at Fort Benning Rest Camp, motioned this youngster on and called up the next boy in line. (All passed!!)

Keep Control Of Your Car.

The man you are shows in your car. Oh, not in the size of your car—but in how you drive it.

Good drivers are mature, and responsible. They keep things under control. They control both themselves and their cars.

Egotists show up badly in traffic. They ignore the rights of others. They are self-centered and rude. Show-off drivers look ridiculous behind the wheel. They drive any old way that gets attention—even if it endangers life.

Overly-emotional drivers show up like man-sized babies. They blow up in emergencies. They are irritated over trifles. Rationalizers lack the courage to face facts. They never admit their own driving faults. Put a thwarted man behind a wheel and watch him try to make up for all the frustrations of his life. Hungry for a little power, he is dangerous in a car.

How do you stack up behind the wheel? Your driving shows up your personality.

Ah, for the 'Old' Army!

Fatigue Pants Cost 94 Cents! A Discharge Sold for $120

CAMP CARSON, Colo. (APPS)—To you recruits and short-timers who automatically become skeptical every time you hear, "in the old Army it was different," let me say that, by thunder, it was! In '96, a man wasn't considered an old-timer until he had at least 12 years service. Then not only his fellow soldiers, but also a government classified him as a "veteran" and he could apply for discharge on that basis.

Of course, there were other ways of getting out if a man was really bent on it. He could buy his discharge once he started the second year of an enlistment. Within the first month of the second year, a discharge cost $120, and $25 less for each month he served thereafter.

Now $120 doesn't seem like much money to some of you who are making that even before the shine is worn off your first pair of boots, but when a private was making $15 a month, that amount was astronomical.

There were ways of supplementing that monthly salary. A certificate of merit was worth two dollars a month to a man as long as he stayed in the service. There too, extra pay for specialists such as mechanics, school teachers and musicians, when they were performing these duties, could net a man an extra 35 to 50 cents a day.

There were a number of Articles of War that are not to be found in the new Uniform Code of Military Justice. There was one, for example, covering the loss or "spoiling" of a soldier's horse or other equipment. Another prohibited "lying out" of camp without authority, and another dealt with soldiers found a mile outside of the camp or garrison without permission.

They had to buy their own uniforms in those days, too, out of that $15 a month. Prices were a little lower then. A fatigue blouse cost $1.04; the trousers set them back 94 cents. A blanket was $2.25. Six bits bought a dozen pairs of socks. A campaign hat—had a beautiful piece of equipment—could be had for 84 cents.

Unit Heading for Desert To Test Clothing, Gear

An infantry platoon from Fort Benning will test new desert clothing and equipment for the Army this summer at Yuma Station, Arizona.

A Provisional Rifle Platoon, organized from men of the 47th Infantry Division, will spend two months at the desert station where Army Field Forces Board No. 3 is making special hot water tests.

Tests will be conducted on experimental hot-dry combat uniforms and new individual load-carrying equipment, which could replace the standard infantry pack. Clothing to be tested includes a uniform with cap, sand scarf and a bush-type jacket with may be worn without shirt.

The test will be made over all types of desert terrain and under extremes of climatic conditions to determine the suitability of the clothing and equipment, according to officials of Army Field Forces Board No. 3.

The test platoon consists of 44 enlisted volunteers from various units of the 47th Division and is commanded by First Lt. Donald Radbold.

PAINLESS "SHOT"—Second Lieutenant Julia J. Sign, Army nurse from Santa Barbara, Calif., demonstrates on Private Richard Dittus of Detroit, Mich., the use of the jet spray injection gun at Walter Reed Medical Center. Ernest Cutchins, University of Maryland student, observes the operation.

WHO NEEDS A BRIDGE? Army M-5 armored personnel carriers "swim" the Ohio River near West Knox, Ky., to land riflemen on the "enemy" shore. The 28-ton track-laying vehicle is water-tight, fast and highly maneuverable.

Gen. Harper:

Phenix City Will Remain Off Limits

Phenix City, Ala., will remain off-limits to Armed Forces personnel indefinitely, it was announced this week by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

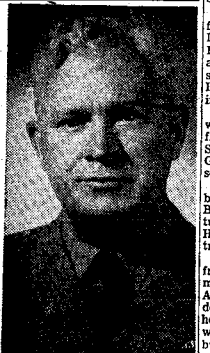

Gen. Harper placed the Alabama City off-limits June 19 in response to a request by Gov. Gordon Persons, following the assassination of Albert L. Patterson, state attorney general nominee.

The only military personnel allowed to enter Phenix City are bona fide residents, who must have special passes from the Provost Marshal's Office. But even those bona fide residents must remain in the immediate vicinity of their residences, except when going to and from Fort Benning.

Military policemen are on duty at the Georgia approaches of both the 14th Street and Dillingham Street bridges leading to Phenix City to enforce the order. They also are stationed at the pontoon bridge across the Chattahoochee River behind Lawson Air Force Base.

Immediate disciplinary action is being taken against military personnel apprehended in the off-limits area, according to an announcement from Infantry Center headquarters.

Gen. Harper said that Phenix City will remain off-limits until there is a "significant change" adding that Fort Benning's position will be "reviewed at that time" as to a possible relaxation or revocation of the order.

LEAVES HAWAII. . . The U. S. Army, Pacific, will today bid aloha to Col. Daniel H. Hundley, USA-RPAC comptroller, in a retreat parade at Fort Shafter. He will retire after 30 years of Army service on July 7. Col. Hundley went to the Islands last September from Fort Benning.

MAY QUEEN . . . For the first time in 40 years, a married senior was elected May Queen at Occidental College in Los Angeles, Cal. She is Rose Marie Mumby, wife of Pfc. Robert W. Mumby, I&E NCO for Hq. and Hq. Co., 112th Trans. Bn. Rose Marie majored in elementary education and plans to teach school upon her arrival in Georgia.

2 GIs Killed, 18 Injured On Highway

Two Fort Benning soldiers were killed and 18 injured, none seriously, before midnight Tuesday when a government truck in which they were riding was struck from behind by a car driven by another soldier on Victory Drive.

The post public information office said today Pvt. Leonard L. Longo, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Longo, Cleveland, Ohio, and Pvt. Colus R. McKinney, 17, son of Colus McKinney, Cobden, Ill., were killed apparently almost instantly.

The truck plunged off the highway and overturned after being hit from behind by a car driven by Sgt. Isaac Pendarvis, 20, Lenox, Ga., about 11:45 p.m., one mile south of Sand Hill.

The soldiers in the truck, members of the 151st Field Artillery Bn. of the 47th Division were returning to their unit area in Sand Hill after taking part in a night training problem.

Ten of the injured were released from the post hospital after treatment for minor cuts and bruises. Another soldier, Pfc. Claude Beargen, 21, was released from the hospital next morning. Beargen's wife lives at 1018 15th St., Columbus. Still hospitalized on Wednesday were: Pendarvis, fractured rib; Pvt. Charles P. Sparks, 20, Erie, Pa., dislocated shoulder; Pvt. Lee Langston, 19, Chicago, back injuries; Pvt. L. N. Flores, 25, New York, N. Y., fractured pelvis; Pvt. William McCarter, 25, Knoxville, Tenn., back injuries; Sgt. Robert P. Turner, 22, Amarillo, Texas, back injuries; and Pvt. Ollie Morey, 21, Albany, Ga., head and face lacerations. Morey, a member of the 30th Infantry Regiment was a passenger in the Pendarvis car.

An Editorial

Will You Live to See July 6th?

A long weekend is in the offing. Most of us will be off duty this noon on Saturday until Tuesday reveille.

For some of us it may be a Lost Week End. Gone. Done. Because three Benningites will probably be killed during that holiday. Probably.

This is not a matter of certainty. It depends upon us. We will determine how many will die, and how the end will come for them.

Death is most apt to come on a public highway, amid a screeching of brakes, a shrieking of tortured tires, and an unmusical symphony of breaking glass.

The post Safety Director has said that it can be predicted, with a reasonable degree of certainty, that during the Fourth of July holiday period three members of this command will be killed and 10 injured in accidents.

These are statistics. They are based on what has happened in the past. And what has happened in the past has been gruesome.

Death could catch up with you at the beach or lake or swimming pool — if you go beyond your depth or past the limits of your endurance.

Injury may come through foolish handling of fireworks.

But most of the casualties will result from highway accidents. And most of the accidents will (Please See DEATH, Page 9)

Post Hawaiians Celebrate Sunday Kamehameha Day

Soldiers of Hawaiian extraction stationed at Fort Benning will observe Independence Day and King Kamehameha Day at a special celebration on Sunday at The Infantry Center Rest Camp.

King Kamehameha Day commemorates the man who put the Hawaiian Islands under one ruler. Native flowers, leis, ti leaves and pineapples shipped from Hawaii will add color to the celebration.

Feature attraction will be an appearance of Chung's Hawaiian Serenaders, a singing and dancing group, who also will star in the gala three-hour Independence Day celebration July 5 on French Field.

Giant Fete To Be Held On Monday

Fort Benning will celebrate Independence Day with a patriotic ceremony Monday morning at the Infantry School flag staff and a gigantic fun-filled program for children that evening.

Since Independence Day falls on Sunday, July 5 has been declared a legal holiday for military and civilian personnel on the post.

The Fourth of July activities will begin with a 30-minute concert at 11:30 a.m. at the flag staff with music by the 80-piece 47th Infantry Division Band and an 80-piece group composed of personnel from the 313th Army and Special Troops Bands.

From Chapel Field, Battery C of the 18th Field Artillery Battalion will fire the 49-gun National Salute, one volley for each state in the Union. With the firing of the last volley, the National Anthem will be played.

The Fourth of July is the only time a 48-gun salute is rendered. Spectators are requested to use the parking lot between the Catholic and Infantry Center Chapels and at The Infantry School.

The three-hour evening program, sponsored by the Fort Benning Dad's Club, will begin at 8 p.m. on French Field. The celebration will be climaxed by a giant fireworks display with other special events also planned, including a band concert, drill team exhibition,

4,000 Troops Give Col. Elder Final Tribute

About 4,000 troops massed on French Field last Saturday in a farewell salute for Col. Frank Elder, commanding officer of Combat Training Command and 30th Infantry Regt., who leaves Fort Benning this week for duty in Alaska. Officers of CTC on Sunday said good-bye and bon voyage to Col. Elder at a reception at the Main Officers Open Mess. There a scroll containing drawings of all crests of CTC units and signatures of the staff and battalion commanders was presented to him.

All eight battalions of CTC formed for the parade on Saturday, the first time since that unit was formed in 1950 that the entire command took part in a parade.

Here Almost 2 Years Col. Elder has been commanding officer of CTC, which supplies demonstration troops for The Infantry School, since Aug. 1, 1952. He will leave late this week to become G-4 of the Alaskan Command.

Troops for the parade included Infantry, Artillery, Tank and Engineering units, and were commanded by Lt. Col. Richard I. Jones, executive officer of CTC and 30th Infantry. Col. Elder was assisted in trooping the line by M-Sgt. Joseph H. Garner, CTC sergeant major. The colonel's staff which received the review was backed-up by four senior master sergeants of the Command.

When the troops were formed facing north on French Field, they covered almost the entire east-west length of that huge parade ground. Color was added by scarves worn by the troops and five regiment and battalion flags formed behind three American flags in the center.

Blue And Maroon As the units were formed, on the left were the four battalions of the 30th Infantry wearing the blue scarves of Infantrymen and maroon of Medics. Parading units were the Provisional Bn., commanded by Maj. Alfred Morrison; First Bn. by Maj. John E. Senhower, Second Bn., by Lt. Col. Charles Gibson, and Third Bn., by Maj. Sidney Hilton.

To the right of the color guard were the two artillery units in red scarves, 41st F. A. Bn., commanded by Lt. Col. Joseph Reeves and 188th F. A. Bn., commanded by Lt. Col. Walter Pittman. Then came the 73rd Tank Bn., commanded by Maj. Richard McCoy, wearing yellow scarves, and 78th Engineer Bn., commanded by Lt. Col. Charles Badger, with scarlet scarves.

For Top 3 Graders

Ft. Mac Opens School For Mess Management

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — The second Open Mess Management Clinic for enlisted personnel is currently under way at Fort McPherson.

Designed to train men of the top three grades to organize and operate more efficiently all functions of the open mess, the program is primarily a manager's training school to insure that trained and qualified enlisted personnel will be available to supervise the operation of the officers and NCO open mess activities in the Third Army Area.

The program recently graduated eight men from various Third Army installations. Six more are scheduled to graduate near the end of this month.

The four-week course consists of classroom work, field trips, on-the-job training, and observing actual operations that are similar to the open mess club. It deals with basic principles of mess-management, including accounting and financing operations, food service and entertainment and program scheduling. Approximately 73 hours are spent in classroom. Here the students learn how to provide better service and better preparation as well as learning about the management of club finances.

During the field trips into Atlanta, the class observes the management of actual operations in local food concerns and restaurants, receiving many pointers in food-buying and meal planning and preparation.

Selassie Hails Magnificent Demonstration Here

Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia left the post Saturday afternoon, greatly impressed with the U. S. Infantryman and carrying with him the deep conviction that his visit to this country has strengthened the bonds of friendship between the two nations.

Before taking off in a chartered TWA airplane, the Star of Bombay for New York City, the 62-year-old ruler expressed "tremendous satisfaction" with his visit to Fort Benning, where he witnessed a series of demonstrations.

At an official luncheon before his departure, Emperor Selassie pointed out that "it is not difficult to understand why the U. S., even from its infancy, has always emerged victorious in every war."

The new arms and techniques which you are developing here and of which you have given today so magnificent a demonstration are, under an agreement concluded last year between Ethiopia and the U. S., now being made available to my country," he said.

"This association is the source of great pride and satisfaction to me and to my people. Moreover, our comradeship with you in arms under conditions of actual combat in Korea has already served for us, in far greater measures than for you, as another Fort Benning Agreement, it will be possible for the Ethiopian soldier to continue and advance yet further upon the training and lessons acquired from your joint sacrifices, and to continue with you a comradeship in arms dedicated to the defense of collective security."

Emperor Selassie honored three Fort Benning officials by bestowing upon them decorations from his country.

An ivory trophy also was given to The Infantry School "as a symbol of the contribution of Fort Benning towards strengthening the forces for the defense of world peace through collective security within the charter of the United Nations.

Emperor Selassie expressed great confidence in the Ethiopian officers sent here for training. There are currently two students from Ethiopia enrolled in the school.

21 Gun Salute During the morning the Ethiopian emperor was welcomed to Fort Benning by a 21-gun salute fired by Battery A of the 41st Field Artillery Battalion.

Honor guard troops were from the Second Battalion of the 30th Infantry, which also was on protective measures to be taken in the event of a gas, germ, or army band, which also was on atomic attack.

hand for the ruler's arrival Friday evening and his departure Saturday at 3 p.m.

Following the honor guard, Emperor Selassie was briefed on school operations, witnessed an airborne demonstration, which he mentioned as being especially impressive, and observed an infantry-tank team in an attack.

Prince Schie Selassie, son of the emperor, and Princesses Sofia Desla and Sebta Desta, granddaughters who are accompanying Emperor Selassie on his U.S. tour rode an M-47 tank equipped with a 90-mm gun.

The princesses visited the Girl Scout Day Camp and the WAC Detachment and took a "huddy scut" parachute jump before having lunch with Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Fritzsche.

Discipline Marks the Pro

Watch a runner round second base and streak for third. It's an example of perfect discipline. The runner doesn't watch the ball or the third baseman. He watches the third base coach.

It's the coach's job to get him to third safely. The coach gives the signals: "Come in standing up" or "slide." The runner doesn't have time to figure the play. In baseball, discipline is the difference between a triple and an out.

Discipline is the mark of the real pro. It's an attitude of mind more than anything else.

As a serviceman, you're a member of an important team. To be a winning team it needs discipline. Every member of the team must do the right thing at the right time.

Your buddies have confidence in you if you have discipline. They know that you do things right the first time—the way you've been taught. They know—and so does your CO—that you won't let them down when the going gets rough.

It's this mutual confidence that makes a good team. An outfit with good discipline is a good outfit. (AFPS)

Canyon Suite To be Played

On Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. a record concert featuring Ferde Grofé's "Grand Canyon Suite" and Ottorino Respighi's "The Pines of Rome" will be presented at the Main Post Library.

Undoubtedly, Grofé's finest achievement as a composer has been his "Grand Canyon Suite." Here Grofé has extended and developed symphonic jazz, both in form and substance, to a point where it attains artistic vitality worthy of the best symphonic writing. The basic style is jazz, unquestionably American, yet the "Grand Canyon Suite" can be as enjoyable to the Viennese, Parisian, or Londoner as to the New Yorker.

The choice of Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra to record Ferde Grofé's "Grand Canyon Suite" was in every respect an ideal one.

The Chaplain's Corner

Christ Calling Now For Gravest Risks

BY CHAPLAIN CLARENCE D. WILLIAMS

During World War II the following inquiry was addressed to "Old Sarge's" column in Liberty magazine:

"My boy is doing all right in the Army, but one thing puzzles me. A few days after each payday he writes home for money to tide him over to his next. He says he is being taught to 'shoot craps,' and lessons are expensive. Since he is already a sharp shooter, I can see why the Army insists on his learning some newfangled exercise, especially at his own expense."

This article is not only concerning with those you who may be adept with dice or cards. It is directed to each man who reads this column. Each of you is engaged in the greatest game of them all—the game of life. The stakes are high. In fact, they can go no higher. Either you attain eternal life through God in Christ, or you reap eternal condemnation away from God. The card of faith is the key that opens the door to the everlasting and abundant life.

Christ is calling men today to live dangerously and to take risks in the highest cause. This takes a man of faith. This is no challenge to the sissy or weakling. The Son of God said, "If a man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Perhaps you are one who has said, "I'll try anything once, even if it kills me." The truth is that we shall taste of spiritual

MEDAL OF HONOR

The Medal of Honor has been awarded to 1st Lt. James L. Stone, an Army infantryman, for supreme courage and complete disregard for his own safety in action against the enemy near Sokkoge, Korea, on the night of Nov. 21, 1951. He was commanding a platoon of Co. F, 8th Cav. Regt., 1st Cav. Div. when the enemy attacked his vital outpost. During the fighting a flame thrower went out of operation, seriously hampering the platoon's defense. Lt. Stone crawled from the comparative safety of a trench and repaired the weapon while fully exposed to enemy automatic fire. Then, when several of the enemy succeeded in breaking through to the platoon's position, he fought them hand-to-hand and led his men in repulsing the first attack. Although seriously wounded he assisted the wounded and prepared his men for another attack. During the second attack Lt. Stone personally carried his only remaining light machine gun from place to place in order to shoot down the enemy coming from two directions. Wounded a second time, he slipped into a trench and cleaned and loaded weapons until he was strong enough to resume fighting. Then standing erect, he directed action until he was wounded a third time and the outpost was finally overrun. All men of the platoon were casualties. Because of Lt. Stone's inspiring leadership, his platoon had inflicted such costly losses on the enemy forces that the communists were unable to hold the outpost. The announcement of the award was withheld pending the release of Lt. Stone who was being held as a prisoner-of-war. (AFPS)

Chap. Mussman Leaves Service

Jewish Chaplain (First Lt.) Bernard A. Mussman of Chicago, Ill., was separated from active duty last Thursday at Fort Benning.

Chaplain Mussman, who was assigned here in August 1952 after attending the Chaplain's School at Fort Slocum, N. Y., is a 1948 graduate of Roosevelt College in Chicago. He was awarded his master's degree by Northwestern University in 1949.

He received his rabbinical ordination at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York in 1952. Chaplain and Mrs. Mussman will reside in Chicago, where he plans to enter a civilian rabbinate.

NAVY CROSS

The Navy Cross was awarded posthumously to 2nd Lt. Martin L. Givot, USMC, for heroism in Korea, Oct. 25-27, 1952. He was commanding a platoon of Co. C, 1st Bn., 4th Marines, 1st Marine Div. when the position to the right of his platoon was overrun by the enemy.

The lieutenant organized the right flank of his unit and directed a flanking maneuver. Learning that two wounded marines were close to the enemy strong point, he led a bold attack against the enemy position and rescued the two men. He was painfully wounded himself trying to save them.

The following morning, joining another platoon, he led a assault up a hill and recaptured the enemy position. Though mortally wounded, he reorganized his unit and established a defense before he died. (AFPS)

SILVER STAR

The Silver Star, the nation's third highest award for outstanding bravery, has been awarded posthumously to Sgt. Martin H. Slutsky, U. S. Army. Sgt. Slutsky was serving as a machinegunner with the 23rd Inf. Regt., 2nd Inf. Div., at Sang Min An in North Korea. His company was under heavy fire from enemy mortars and artillery, but by disregarding the danger through the heavy fire he reached a vantage point for his machinegun. From this position Sgt. Slutsky delivered a devastating stream of fire into enemy positions. The enemy, which had now started to attack, was considerably hampered by this withering fire. The sergeant refused to seek cover as the enemy approached, and continued to fire until a mortar round struck his position. Through Sgt. Slutsky's "unflinching courage and self sacrifice the causalities of the friendly forces were held to a minimum and the positions were secure from further enemy attack."

ROTC Cadets Undergo Rugged Arms Training

Intensive weapons training is preparing more than 1,200 ROTC cadets for their future roles as Infantry officers.

The advanced cadets, whose training schedule includes 48 hours of individual weapons instruction, devoted last week primarily to a course in familiarization with the M-1 rifle. They also learned how to use the sub-machine gun, automatic rifle, carbine and bayonet.

Other first-week subjects included map reading and chemical, biological, and radiological defense.

The men, representing 37 Southern colleges and universities, will be thoroughly instructed in the duties of an Infantry officer, and a rotation plan will give each the opportunity to develop initiative and leadership in positions of responsibility and command.

Training is based on a 48-hour, five and one-half day week. Normal training day begins at 7 a.m. and ends at 5 p.m. with an hour at noon for lunch.

First Hand Observation ROTCs See Inf. Co. Procedures

ROTC cadets attending summer camp at Fort Benning are getting the opportunity this week to see an Infantry company in operation.

The cadets, who studied Army organization in their college classrooms during the academic year, are observing the operation of Heavy Mortar Company of the 164th Infantry Regiment.

The regiment, commanded by Col. Rollins S. Emmerich of Brookings, S. Dak., has set up a complete inspection tour which demonstrates every phase of an Army unit's day-to-day activities.

First stop is the orderly room, hub of the company's activities, where the cadets learn the duties of the commanding officer, executive officer, first sergeant, and clerk.

They also visit a field kitchen to see how troops are fed under field conditions and to learn the importance of health and safety precautions that must be taken in the field and the duties of the mess officer and cooks, plus all the details on rations and feeding.

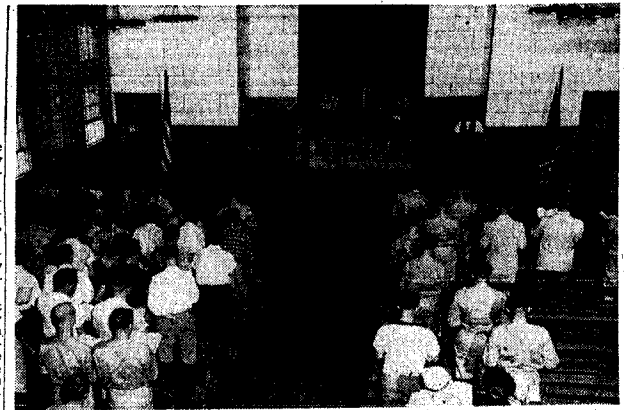

The importance of economy and use of various types of equipment is explained in a visit to the company supply room where they see how records are kept on clothing and equipment.

Other activities they observe include troop information and education, special services, athletics, and public information.

One phase of their unit orientation provides information on how to conduct an inspection of a platoon and barracks.

The 164th, organized as the First Regiment of the Dakota Territory in January, 1855, has served in both World Wars, the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection. It is a unit of the 47th Infantry Division which was recently transferred to Fort Benning from Camp Rucker, Ala.

Attending the six-week summer training camp are 1,297 cadets from 37 colleges and institutions in eight states of the Third and Fourth Army areas.

CADETS AT SERVICES . . . Cadets attending the 1954 ROTC camp take time out to attend Sunday morning services. The 1,297 cadets from 37 colleges and universities in the South will receive the same intensive training used for Regular Army units in the field during the six-week encampment.

'Professional Killer' Bugs Now Feel Safer From OC Exterminator

BY J. L. McCOURT

A "professional killer" recently was discovered in 12th OC Company. Officer Candidate Wilbur Wherrel of Newton, Kans., revealed that he had annihilated not one, not two, not 20 . . . but an untold number of termites.

Wherrel was offered a job with the most murderous termite-killing firm in the world shortly before he joined the Army. For a year, he had been working for a smaller firm in his home town, starting from the ground by digging ditches around houses to be treated. Wherrel progressed up out of the ditches and spent his last four months as a killer-salesman. It was his success as a salesman that led a company with branches in 24 states, to hire him.

The war against the termite is a grim one." Candidate Wherrel remarked. "In 1953 termites caused more than eight billion dollars damage. Not only is the lumber ruined in a house where termites have been working, but they have caused a general settling of the whole structure. All plumbing is generally ruined, and in one house I saw an icexoh that had fallen right through the hardwood floor."

In spite of the extensive damage caused by termites, Wherrel said he frequently had difficulty convincing people of the need for taking measures to preserve their property. He said the chief reason is that there are more illegal than legal operators in the business. Swindlers are so prevalent in the trade that the public is suspicious, he said.

The Army, however, is taking no chances. Aware that termites are especially fond of pine, military authorities have created a special division of termite control under the Quartermaster at Fort Benning. Their job is to insure the preservation of all wooden buildings.

Although Wherrel had shorter hours in his old job, and could sound off more, he prefers the Army. He took basic training at Camp Atterbury, Ind., serving afterwards as a squad leader in a rifle company with the 31st Infantry Division at Camp Carson, Colo.

FIGHTING GLEEMEN DEBUT PLANNED FOR GREAT 4TH FETE

Fort Benning's Fighting Gleemen, a 15-voice group, will make their debut July 5 at The Infantry Center's gala Independence Day celebration.

Directed by Pvt. William R. McCain of LaFayette, Ind., the Gleemen, who sing "everything from Bach to pop," will be one of the stellar attractions on the three-hour Independence Day program to be sponsored by the Dad's Club on French Field.

McCain, who organized the singing group, is a former assistant director of the world-famous Purdue University Glee Club, which placed third in 1950 in the International Elstedfod, the music festival held at Llangollen, Wales. The 56 members of the Purdue club represented the United States in the international event.

Death

happen because one or both of the drivers invited catastrophe by engaging in one or more of these types of idiocy:

Driving while extremely fatigued.
Driving after consuming intoxicants.
Driving too fast.

Three types of poison, equally deadly. Deadly, but easy to avoid. Steer clear of the fatal dose by:

Starting to drive only after you've been refreshed by adequate sleep; continuing to drive only as long as you are alert, responsive, and physically able to cope with highway emergencies.

Lay off the joy juice before and while driving. Don't taken even one beer. Even a little alcohol dulls perception to an alarming degree.

Easy on the Gas

Go easy on the gas pedal. Adjust your speed to the condition of the roadway.

Drive defensively — that is, make allowances for the guy driving the other car. Maybe you're in fine condition, but what sort of shape is he in?

An official letter from Infantry Center headquarters states that "it is the Commanding General's desire that when the rolls are called on Tuesday morning, July 6th, no member of this command be absent from duty as the result of an accident."

We'll second that motion.

We fervently hope that the undertakers and the hospitals suffer a business depression this weekend. We hope. Unfortunately, the casualty predictions are usually borne out.

Maybe it will be different this Fourth of July. That depends upon us. You. Me. All of us.

First sergeant: "What are we going to do about these men who run off to join a nudist colony?"
CO: "Mark them absent without leaves."

Distance Mark Is Set by Jets In Pacific Hop

YOKOTA AFB, Japan (AP)—Three American B-47 Stratofort bombers have completed a history-making 6700-mile nonstop flight across the Pacific Ocean from California to Japan.

It was recorded as the longest nonstop flight yet made by jet-powered aircraft. The distance was roughly that between Los Angeles and Moscow.

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney Jr., commander of the 15th Air Force, led the record-making flight. The bombers landed at this base near Tokyo after 15 hours in flight.

Gen. Sweeney said that "There were no incidents. Nothing unusual at all."

The six-jet bombers, which took off on their historic jaunt from March AFB near San Bernardino, Calif., were refueled in flight by tanker planes. Their average speed was 446 mph.

The three Stratoforts, considered the world's fastest bombers, will visit other bases in the Far East, Gen. Sweeney said.

Hot, Humid, and Harried

Soldier 'Test Tubes' Given the Eye

Tests are being conducted by the Preventive Medicine Office at Fort Benning to determine the breaking point of troops during hot weather.

Temperature and humidity readings are taken five times a day with a globe radiation apparatus and a wet bulb thermometer. A mean or running temperature is arrived at by taking 30 per cent of the globe radiation temperature reading and 70 per cent of the wet-bulb temperature reading. This figure is studied in conjunction with heat exhaustion cases reported by the post hospital and serves as a gauge to measure the breaking point of troops.

The same tests were conducted last summer at Fort Lee, Va., to determine which days troops should not engage in vigorous exercise. The tests showed the heat and humidity so intense on four occasions that troops at Fort Lee were released from afternoon duty, and all activities on the post came to a halt.

Other posts in the Third Army Area conducting the tests are Fort Jackson, S. C., and Camp Gordon, Ga.

Second Lt. Archibald W. Sims, post sanitary engineer, said the tests were requested by the Army's Army Experimental Health Laboratory, Yuma, Ariz., and will be conducted in cooperation with the time through Sept. 15.

Before World War II, Major Bryant was on duty in the United States and Panama as an enlisted man.

Post's CBR School Observes Birthday

The Chemical-Biological-Radiological School here observed its third birthday on Monday, which also was the 26th anniversary of the U. S. Army Chemical Corps.

The Fort Benning school is one of the first organized in the Army. Its mission is to train specialists in their own units in defensive measures to be taken in case of gas, germ, or atomic warfare. The course, which lasts three weeks, is open to officers and enlisted men.

Commandant is Major Grant Brickel, Infantry Center chemical officer. Assisting him are First Lt. James Gross property officer, and Capt. George Deakin, training officer. Since the school started, 1,260 students have graduated from 32 classes. Other chemical activities here include a chemical officer at Army Field Forces Board No. 3, a chemical committee at The Infantry School, the TIV Chemical Section, and the 87th Chemical Generating Company.

The Corps, one of the youngest services in the Army, originated June 23, 1918. Its original mission dealt with smoke, incendiary, and gas aspects of chemical warfare.

Triathlon, Pole Vault Miller, Dickey Win All-Service Honors

Dave Miller and Lyle Dickey, perennial winners for Benning, made a bid for fame again as Miller won and Dickey tied for first in their events in the All-Service Track Meet at Camp LeJeune last week.

Dickey tied with the same man for first in the pole vault that he shared honors with at the All-Army meet. Again they cleared the bar at 13 feet 9 inches.

Miller had no trouble gaining top honors in the Triathlon as he outran, outshot, and outswam his competitors to gain the All-Service title. He will go to Fort Belvoir for training in fencing and horsemanship. From there he will go to Berlin, Germany, to train for the World Pentathlon to be held in Budapest, Hungary.

After the Pentathlon he will return to the states and train for the Pan-American games to be held at Havana, Cuba, next spring.

To top off this rigorous schedule, Miller will strive for perfection as he faces the best men in the world in the 1958 Olympics to be held at Melbourne, Australia.

Dave hopes someday to be a track coach.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Earlier in this baseball season, a red hot 47th Divarty team lost a three-game playoff at Camp Rucker ended the first half of league play again in a tie for first with the 136th. Since the beginning of the second half, they have taken a nose-dive into second division. Just why this happened aroused my curiosity and I probed into various sources to find out.

A source in Divarty said that the team had been "playing over its heads" for the first part of the season. It is extremely doubtful that a team can play "over its heads" for two-thirds of a season. Is it spark and drive or luck that consistently enables a team to copy those one-run victories? Lt. Thomas G. Rice, manager Divarty has the issue point blank as he said, "That certain drive, or spark, that we had before is gone; I think the fans took it with them."

There in the phrase, "... the fans took it with them," perhaps lies the answer. Fan support means a lot to a team. Athletes like to know that there is someone who wants them to win and is in the grandstand telling them so. Why then are the stands nearly empty?

There are two primary reasons. The first, and possibly the most significant, is transportation. Fort Benning is a large post, and any one familiar with it knows that Sand Hill is a long walk from Gowdy Stadium. Due to the high cost of gasoline and vehicle maintenance, among other reasons, the Army can't run special buses to these ballgames. However, many fans can ride in cars and some can occupy empty spaces on the buses used to transport the teams. A buddy system could be used. Possibly this is one answer to the problem.

The second big reason is the scheduling of the games. About half of the games are scheduled during duty hours. This means generally that the players play ball while the troops stay at home. The training schedules in many cases do not permit or warrant mass attendance at the games. In two units the 164th and CTC, the commanding officers have authorized during-duty attendance at games when their teams are playing.

The other half of the games scheduled are at night and played right in the heart of the main post at Gowdy. The soldier often has conflicting off-duty interests—a wife or girl, a movie, or a dance at the service club. However, how many lie around the barracks, stiff, accomplishing nothing? From the standpoint of personal budgets, alone, what can be more entertaining and cost so little than a night at the ball park—admission free?

One week ago Monday, the 136th Bearcats and the 136th Red Bulls unfolded an exhibition worthy of the major leagues. The game ended in the last half of the ninth inning, 1-0, on two base hits, a stolen base and a wild throw. A poor play won the game, but even the machine-like professionals often crack in tense moments like that. First place was at stake in 9-14 innings of scoreless ball had been played. Who wouldn't have been nervous? Kipp, 15-5 with Asheville last year, pitched his heart out against Boyd, 11-4 with Muskegon, in a tremendous duel of pitching skill. A better ball game I have yet to see, and yet there were less than 50 spectators in the stands.

Last Friday another game between the Bearcats and the STC Raiders provided an equal amount of thrills. (Please See SPOTLIGHT, Page 20)

Standing, Ted Foczmanski, manager, Tony Gualtieri, Bang Horne, Randy Dale, Fred Kipp, Hank Heffner, Frank Cliff, Don Smith, and Nubbs Miller.

136th Extends Loop Lead, Stretching Win Streak to 10

The 136th extended their TIC 8.6 stretching their winning streak leader as they won three to 10 straight.

The 136th held second place, but 164th, 7-4, STC, 9-7, and 1st SR, dropped 1 1/2 games behind the loop.

14 Swimmers Represent Post at July 3 Meet

Fort Benning will be represented in the Acqualympic Diving and Swimming Meet Saturday at Tift Park in Albany, Ga.

The meet is sponsored by the Albany Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Emory University Department of Physical Education and the Albany Recreation Department.

Events in which the post team is scheduled to compete are the 200-meter medley relay, 200-meter individual medley, 100-meter free style, 200-meter breaststroke, 200-meter backstroke, 100-meter breaststroke, 200-meter free style relay, three meter diving events and the grueling 800-meter free style.

Coached by Robert Coonten, the team includes Lee Knight, Jack McCord, Eugene Cotter, Robert Hynes, Richard Fisher, Mansell McGuire, Ray Brady, Fred Ferguson, George Watson and Michael Burns.

Lawrence McCarthy, Masayoshi Ohama, Howard Tobias, and Philip Kekuna.

Accompanying the group will be in charge of the team, and Cpl. Richard Jindra, trainer.

The game was a comedy of errors in which the 136th put nine men across the plate to squeeze pass the Raiders, who could score only seven runs. The brand of ball played in the 11-error game was poor but, nevertheless, entertaining. There were three rhubarbs, one of which lasted 10 minutes. There were 11 hits made by the 136th, five by Robby Durbaugh. A thrilling ninth inning was staged by the spirited Raiders as they scored four runs on as many hits in a valiant but losing effort. Wide open baseball, definitely, but worth every minute spent watching it.

June 24, I saw portions of another game at Gowdy between ISD and the First SR, ISD won 5-4 in a very snappy game.

Benning has two very fine parks. Bullet Field is adequate even though not fancy. Improvements are being made all the time. Gowdy Field is as good as many minor league parks and is a very good ball field. These parks are costly and an effort should be made to utilize them fully. The superior brand of entertainment offered is fully worth the effort to see these games. The games are being played, let's go out and see a few.

SPORTS Roundup

Stan Musial, the hard-hitting star of the St. Louis Redbirds, won the Hickok pro athlete award for May. Major league hopefuls in Connecticut will soon get a chance to show their stuff. The Dodgers will conduct trout camps in Meriden, June 28-30, and New London, July 1-3.

Service Highlights
Another Ford may be parked on the mound in Yankee Stadium some day. Bill Ford, a 22-year-old right-hander under contract to the Bombers, is now stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla. He gets discharged in December. Milwaukee first baseman Joe Adcock has been rejected for military service for the third time. He has a cartilage condition in his knee. . . Navy's varsity crew carved another notch in their winning ours by capturing first place in the 52nd Intercollegiate rowing championships. For Navy, it was the 29th straight victory and the last race for the crew.

Pvt. Fred Dwyer of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., LTJG Meredith Gourdine, USN, of the USS Coral Sea, and Capt. William Chynow of West Point recently participated in the Metropolitan AAU track and field meet in New York. Dwyer's 4:12.3 for the mile set a new 'Met' meet record. Gourdine won the broad jump and the 220-yard dash events. In the javelin throw Chynoweth came in second with a toss of 204'4". CWO O. K. Weinmeister of Ft. Knox, Ky., outshot 86 competitors to win the Kentucky pistol-shooting championship for the second straight year. The sharp-shooting Army officer scored 1,727 out of a possible 1800 with .22 and .38-cal. pistols.

M-Sgt. Harold G. Ridgely, US AF, stationed in southern England, fired a 143 for 36 holes to win the Golf Illustrated Gold Vase Tournament in Sunningdale, England. Ridgely was the only American entered. The weather was very poor. Rain made the greens soggy and the fairways were soaked. . . ASC Burton Speed of Harington, AFB, Tex., is plenty speedy when it comes to roller skating. He won top honors in the senior men's speed race, men's relay team and mixed relay team in the Texas State Championships. His wife is another speed demon. She won all the races in the women's division.

Ball Belles Start Season

With smiles and hopes for a successful season, the Fort Benning WAC Softball Team has started in 1954 season. This year's team boasts two players who formally played semi-pro ball—Florence P. Boudreau (no relation to the Lou Boudreau) is the mainstay on the mound with Charlotte Rand behind the plate.

In the first three outings, the team has dropped decisions to the Paris Island Marines and Maxwell Air Force Base. In their third time out they defeated the Fort McPherson WAC Team by a score of 23 to 2.

Latest AFPS Report From Washington

The Navy EM clothing allowance is expected to jump from $5.40 to $8 monthly beginning July 1, 1954. This probably will mean a little more cash for Navy men since overall clothing prices for individual purchases will drop slightly. Examples: dress jumper, dress jumper, from $7.00 to $8.70; dungaree trousers from $1.70 to $1.65; but the peacoat will remain the same at $22.45.

Gen. Stephens Gives AIOC Talk

Major Gen. Richard W. Stephens, 47th Infantry Division commander, was principal speaker at graduation exercises for The Infantry School's associate officers advanced class No. 5 Tuesday in Theater No. 3.

The ceremony marked the completion of 15 weeks of training for approximately 183 students. Gen. Stephens, a 1924 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, participated in the Normandy, Northern France, Central Europe, Ardennes and Rhineland campaigns during World War II and commanded the 21st Infantry Regiment, 24th Division, in Korea.

The civilian aides to the Secretary of the Army and commanders of armies within the continental U. S. are meeting at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., for conferences on personnel problems, security, organization and training, logistics and community relations.

A survey is being made by the Air Force on the idea of paying its personnel twice a month. However, there is no word as to when a final decision will be reached. The system already is in use by the Navy and Marine Corps. The Army has indicated that it is not considering the plan at this time.

There will be no quotas authorized by the Marine Corps for meritorious promotions for staff NCO grades during fiscal year 1955. However, quotas have been set up for corporals and sergeants—10 percent for corporal and seven percent for sergeant. The quotas apply to the total number of NCOs authorized to that rank in the TO.

The Army is already thinking about Christmas time. It has reminded commanders that the use of service helicopters and conventional aircraft to carry Santa Claus into civilian communities is neither appropriate nor authorized. But it is still permissible to use aircraft on Army posts for flyers or other types of air shows.

Eliot's Work to be Discussed Next Wednesday By Poets

The poetry of T. S. Eliot will be discussed at the Poets' Workshop Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Post Library terrace. The review of Eliot's poetry is the third in a series of discussions on "The Case for Modern Poetry" and will be followed by open criticism of original work by members of the workshop.

Some 40 poetry enthusiasts are actively participating in the two branches of the Poets' Workshop, jointly sponsored by the Fort Benning libraries and the W. C. Bradley Memorial Library of Columbus.

According to H. A. Sieber, one of the directors of the workshop, the Fort Benning group will publish its first number of "Muse, a Magazine of Poems and Poets" during late July. This first issue will include articles about regional poetry and poems by a group of Fort Benning poets.

Another project of the post group is "The Poetry Hour," a program of poetry and music presented each week over WERS, the U. S. Army Hospital closed circuit radio station.

The Columbus branch will hold its next meeting at 4 p.m. Sunday July 11. Both workshop groups are open to the public.

PFC. FRANK M'DONALD IN HOBBY SHOP . . . 'Always Learning Something New'

Ex-Canadian Teaches Joys Of Woodwork at Hobby Shop

A Canadian-born Fort Benning soldier has had little difficulty adjusting his civilian career to Army life.

Pfc. Frank F. McDonald, formerly of Montreal, Canada, a wood-working expert before entering the U. S. Army, is a craftsman and supervisor in the Special Services Hobby Shop.

And his talent comes natural. At the age of 20 he was operating his father's woodworking shop in Montreal, building kitchen cabinets and making interior trims for homes.

He came to the U. S. in May 1952, and a short time later, in partnership with his brother, opened a cabinet shop in New York, which he operated until he entered the Army in January 1953.

His work here gives him the opportunity to "help people who know little about woodworking, while every problem presents a chance for me to learn something new," he says.

The 26-year-old Canadian has built shelves for the post library

Army's Nationwide TV Show Gives Folks 'The Big Picture'

WASHINGTON (APPS)—"From Korea to Germany, from Alaska to Puerto Rico, all over the world, the United States Army is on the alert to defend our country, you the American people against Aggression. This is the Big Picture!"

Every week, 60 million television viewers hear these familiar words opening America's most widely distributed television show. The Army's weekly TV show is now carried by 305 of the 375 operating TV stations in this country and by stations in Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

Produced by the Army Public Information Division's Radio and TV Branch, "The Big Picture" is now in its eighth series and No. 9 is being produced for use this fall. The latest series deals with the six Army areas within the continental U. S.

"The Big Picture" was born in December 1951, and by November 1952 it was being shown on 65 stations. Now it is often shown on three or four TV stations within one city at different times. Filmed all over the world, the show is spliced in the Signal Corps Pictorial Center at Long Island City, N. Y. Its narrator is stationed in the Pentagon—he's M-Sgt. Stuart A. Queen, a veteran of 15 years in the Army.

This 30-minute TV film doesn't "wave the flag." It deals factually with training camps, occupied areas, schools, sports, as well as combat.

"The Big Picture" has been to the Yalu, the U. S. West, Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the 1952 Olympic Games, Berlin, Normandy, and other posts and stations all over the world. During the 1954-55 TV season it will travel far and wide to teach the American people about KP, M-Js, A-Guns, enemy atrocities and rehabilitation.

Operation Moonlight Keeps Both Eyes Open

Researchers Upset Former Night Firing Ideas

Editor's Note: A considerable part of the night firing program described below is being carried out at Fort Benning. Humphreys, which conducts the tests here, also has done research at Fort Dix, Fort Knox and Fort Jackson. Many excellent stories on the subject have been prepared by PIO, TIC, and printed in The Bayonet and other newspapers. This story was prepared by Army News Features for distribution to Army newspapers.

WASHINGTON — No rifle expert would subscribe to the theory that the best way to hit a target is to look at it with both eyes wide open, raise the head high above the barrel, ignore the gun-sight and aim low and to the right. Yet this is exactly the way the U. S. Army is training Infantrymen to shoot at night.

Individual marksmen using the new method during the test period of the study increased their night-firing effectiveness by as much as 210 percent. Two hundred men participated in the test, half of them veteran infantrymen with combat experience in Korea, the others recent basic trainees. Despite the wide range of experience with the M-1 rifle reflected in the two groups, there was no appreciable difference in improvement scored.

"Operation Moonlight" as the night-firing study was called, started out with the well-established premises that there is some light on the darkest night and that night-vision is quite different from day vision. The training program adapts those differences to produce a shooting technique for night use only.

The soldier keeps both eyes open while sighting and firing because he needs both to notice the difference in brightness between the target and his surroundings. If he closes one eye, one-half of what is called the "brightness contrast threshold area" is lost to the shooter. He keeps his head up because if it is held in the position normal for daytime firing, the rifle himself would interfere with his vision of the target.

However, with the head held high, the rifleman has a tendency to shoot three to six feet higher than the target. With both eyes open, he tends to hold his rifle to the left. Therefore, he must aim low and to the right.

Just how low the correct firing position is must be determined individually through daytime corrective firing from the 50-yard line — the average distance a target can be detected at night.

The soldier must "feel" his aim by night rather than sight it. In this regard, it is similar to arch-shooting technique.

For effective rapid-shooting, he also uses a flash-hider on his rifle. Without it, he is blinded for some three to 10 seconds after each round.

The Army sees in "Operation Moonlight" the possible solution of a problem which has concerned military experts for more than 20 years.

Changes in training methods were dictated when changes in the rifle to adapt it to night firing proved impractical. Fluorescent or white paint on the sights produced too much glare and out-sized front blades and enormous rear sights could be seen no better than ordinary ones.

The optical or telescopic sight, of course is a very effective addition to the M-1 for night firing. However, it is reserved as special equipment for the sniper. Expensive to produce and too delicately constructed for long life with combat infantry, this sight has a tendency to fog up and distort vision.

Youngest Top Kick Now Seeking Bars

Counterpart to David of Biblical fame can be found in 13th OC Company, First OC Regiment.

Officer Candidate George Neoutsos lays claim to the title of having been the youngest first sergeant in the Far East at one time.

He rose to this position while fighting with the Fifth Regimental Combat Team in Korea. When appointed to the job he had reached the "ripe old age" of 20.

Neoutsos comes from a long line of distinguished Army men. His father was commander of a tank regiment in the Canadian Army during World War II. His brother is now a jet pilot in the R.C.A.F. after graduating from the Royal Military College.

He was awarded the Bronze Star while in Korea.

South's Hospitality Gains International Favor

A program of Southern hospitality at Fort Benning is making international friendships for the United States.

Last year alone nearly 700 officers of 28 different nations were taken into the homes of officers here to learn more about the way Americans live.

These students, who come to The Infantry School under the Allied Student Training Program, learn about baseball and American movies, visit places of historical interest such as the Little White House at Warm Springs, Ga., and eat that typical delicacy — the hot dog.

Getting to know America and Americans is one of the chief results obtained by the Allied Student Section in the School Brigade.

Sponsoring of foreign students by U. S. Army officers may include help in classroom work and other phases of training, but the real purpose is to provide social contact and an insight into U. S. customs and habits.

Col. C. N. Bailey, Left, M-Sgt. L. Dawson

Commendation Ribbon Given To 31-Year Veteran Sarge

M-Sgt. Leo Dawson recently received the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant from Col. C. N. Bailey, Infantry Center Inspector general. Dawson, who is retiring this month after 31 years of service, was presented the award for "meritorious service and outstanding performance of duty" as chief of a fiscal branch in the Inspector General's Office from Sept. 1, 1953, to May 12, 1953.

The commendation said in part: "Because of his outstanding knowledge and special skills in administration and fiscal matters, he was able to carry on the work of the chief of a fiscal branch, thus making it possible for the Inspection Division to perform its function with efficiency and dispatch in spite of an officer shortage."

A kid reporter, trying to get the secret of Babe Ruth's success at the bat, asked him: "Know anything about psychology?" "Don't know much about him," said the Babe. "Ain't played a horse in three months."

10 Per Cent of Draftees Must Learn 3 R's

WASHINGTON—One out of every ten men who arrive at an Army induction station has less than a fourth grade education.

Mr. One-in-Ten may think he has just marching and shooting ahead of him in his first military training—but learning also is on the menu.

Transitional training units, set up at basic training camps by the Army's Troop Information and Education Division, get Mr. One-in-Ten before he even has a rifle in his hand. Before his basic training begins he gets approximately four weeks of another type of basic, the three R's. With the three R's come lectures to help bridge the gap between civilian and military life. The pre-training is brief and military courtesy, adjustment to military life and his obligations as a citizen.

Not Necessarily Illiterate

Inclusion in a transitional training unit does not mean that the inductee is illiterate. He is given the four weeks' training if he states that his formal education did not go as far as the fourth grade or if preliminary aptitude tests reveal that he does not read, write or speak English with the fluency of an adult who has completed the fourth grade.

In many cases, of course, the man with only one or two years in grammar school has absorbed enough through experience to rank him considerably above the fourth grade level in comprehension and capability.

In the first two quarters of 1954, a total of 59,301 basic education certificates were awarded. The certificates have a double meaning—that the holder either has been taught the rudiments or that he has passed tests showing his abilities are of the fourth grade level or higher.

23,184 Hurdle College

The immediate practical value of this instruction is to enable the new soldier to understand the orders and read the charts which are an integral part of his basic training. In addition, it eliminates the need for on-duty education.

Worldwide, the three main objectives of the troop education program continue to grow, and the proof is in statistical reports. Since the Korean war began in 1950, for example, 197,632 basic certificates have been granted. Intermediate certificates (through the equivalent of eighth grade) went to 31,462. High school tests were passed by 137,726 persons, while 29,184 hurdled the one-year college equivalency exams.

High school and college diplomas and degrees are not awarded by the Army. The results of these tests are forwarded to schools all over the country, which make their own awards according to their requirements.

Increase Efficiency

The underlying purpose of these ambitious undertakings is three-fold. Aim No. 1 is to increase the efficiency of the Army. The second goal is to assist the serviceman in his civilian educational pursuits, and third, the program provides a wholesome, profitable activity for off-duty hours.

Five means are offered to all Army personnel to aid in their store of gray matter. They are:

1. Correspondence and self-teaching courses.
 2. Group-study classes, under military or civilian instructors.
 3. Residence classes; enrollment in classes made available either on or off post by accredited high schools and colleges.
 4. Testing and examination services.
 5. Educational advisement.
- Even quarters since fiscal 1951 has seen a jump in the number of tests administered. The first quarter figure for 1954 of 112,109 contrasts strongly with the 31,103 three fiscal years ago.
- Taylor Sets Up 100
- Priorities—to examine that familiar word from World War II days—is given to four immediate goals of I & E. They hope to eliminate the basic categories, see that all non-commissioned officers have the equivalent of the eighth grade, raise all senior non-commissioned officers and lieutenants to high school level and establish the two-year college equivalency as desirable for all officers.

The biggest impetus to the program has been the end of combat in Korea. One hundred educational centers have been set up in the Eighth Army by General Maxwell D. Taylor since June. The centers operate in quonets, tents, trucks, bunkers—anywhere the troops are. They are part of the 489 total such centers operating around the world, staffed by both officers and non-commissioned officers.

In addition, center "faculty members" also include civilian instructors and education advisers—1,540 of them at last count.

If it's really king-size statistics you want, since the third quarter of fiscal 1949, a total of 1,877,898 (M) tests have been administered in Japan, the Philippines, Hawaii, and the strategic islands won from the Japanese in World War II.

We are combating this menace not only with military might but also by alliances. The biggest is the United Nations. We also have special agreements with most of the Far East nations. The Army Pact unites United States, New Zealand and Australia in a mutual defense treaty. We have this type of treaty with the Republic of the Philippines, Japan and Korea. We have a Mutual Defense Assistance Program with Pakistan in which we supply materials for their internal security and self-defense.

We have learned the hard way that the Reds want Asia. We see why the Russians are exerting such strong pressure in the Far East. They believe that they can deliver the final blow to the West by advancing in the East. We don't know how long the threat of communism will last but we have to be constantly on the alert to prevent the Communists from completing their red dream of conquest.

Command Conference Red Thrusts in Far East Analyzed

BY JAMES BRADFIELD

Our foe in the Far East is far from over.

Since February 1954 Peking, China, has been connected to Moscow by way of a rail line. This railway might can strike at almost any spot in the world, either by land or air.

The second threat is the political apparatus in their great quest for world domination. Agents have permeated government after government, seeking to establish footholds everywhere.

The third danger lies in the element of time. Soviet Communism operate not on a schedule of one person's lifetime, but in terms of what Lenin and Stalin called "an entire historical era."

We can see how dangerous this Communist system is by noting

3rd Army TIE Cites Post Facts Pamphlet

"Fort Benning Facts", an information pamphlet prepared by PIO, TIC, and published and distributed by TIE Section, TIC, recently was cited in Third Army "TIE Hints" as an excellent example of that particular type of troop information. The pamphlet was designed primarily to acquaint members of the 47th Division, recently transferred to the post from Camp Rucker, Ala., with recreational, entertainment, and religious facilities on post and in surrounding communities. Unit TIE Officers report the pamphlet also has been enthusiastically received by members of the Main Post.

TIE Section, TIC, has prepared six "Special Subjects" designed to meet specific information needs of post personnel during the first six months of 1954. Post PIO also assisted in preparation of "Community Relations," a troop information conference subject on post two weeks ago. "US Foreign Policy" and "Leadership in the Balance" (an exposition of the NCO-Specialist Rating Plan), were included in the six pamphlets, which also comprised handlets concerning "Communist Mistreatment of Prisoners of War," "The Soldier and His Money," and "Never Hoop a Sarge!" a troop information conference subject also dealing with the NCO-Specialist Rating Plan.

Solons Eye Service Bills

BY CPL. JOE TAYLOR, AUS
AFFB Washington Correspondent

DEPENDENT HOUSING

The Defense Department's proposal for Dependent Housing has been introduced in the House and now is being considered by the Armed Services Committee. The bill (HR 9047) calls for 25,000 housing units costing a total of $50 million. The only change made in the original legislative proposal is that it will be financed by a rotating fund. This will not affect individual servicemen in any way.

MILITARY APPROPRIATIONS

Both the Senate and the House have passed President Eisenhower's "New Look" Military Appropriations bill (HR 9073) but in slightly different versions. The bill now is in conference with a decision expected sometime this week. In both versions a total of about $2 billion was approved with a great reliance being placed on airpower. An amendment by Sen. Kennedy would have increased Army strength from 17 to 19 divisions but this was defeated.

JAG PROMOTION LIST

Officers of the Army Judge Advocate General's Corps are several steps closer to being integrated with the Army promotion list. The House Armed Services Committee has reported out a bill (HR 9060) which will repeal the separate JAG promotion list. Because of the separate list, most JAG officers are more than three years behind their contemporaries in promotions.

Gen. Harper Declares Unity Needed Against Reds

The possibility of a union of the free peoples of Asia into a great, single fighting force brings hope that "the threat of Communism will be met, repelled and crushed forever." Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper declared Monday at Fort Benning.

Speaking to the 50 Republic of Korea Army officers, including 19 colonels and 31 lieutenant colonels, who were ending 30 weeks of training at The Infantry School, the commandant said:

"If we stand together, the day will come when Communism will perish from the face of the earth and the people the world over will live in freedom as they were meant to live."

The two-star general stressed the necessity for an even greater understanding between Asia and the West, resulting in a cooperation which will stand ready to halt further Communist aggression.

"The Russian Communist leadership has openly and boldly proclaimed ever since 1920 that the road to Paris lies through Peking and Delhi," Gen. Harper pointed out. "As recently as in the Berlin Conference of the Big Four foreign ministers it once more became apparent that Russia's strategy is to continue the stalemate in Europe while cleverly attempting to grasp small parts of Asia. This is one of the salient reasons why East-West understanding and cooperation must reach a new peak."

Gen. Harper praised the Allied students for their "magnificent job" here. He pointed out that more than five per cent of all students at The Infantry School have been from Allied countries and of that number 53 per cent have been Korean.

Gen. Harper declared that by attending The Infantry School, The ROK officers were aiding in bringing about understanding and cooperation between the nations of Asia and the West.

"The forces of Communism struck at your homeland at a time when it was weak...weak, that is, in militant power and the industrialization which is necessary to support a well-equipped fighting force," he told the ROK officers.

"But those individuals who would have had your country a slave to Communism soon learned that when given proper training, proper arms and equipment of war, the ROK Army was a great fighting team and an Army the aggressor learned to fear."

Following the graduation ceremony, school officials and an Army band were on hand to bid them money back to Korea. Infantry forward.

MARVEL OF AGE DOESN'T NEED ROADS ... Can Be Steered From Front, Side or Bottom

New 'Mule' is Tested For Combat Transport

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. (AFPS) — The "Mechanical Mule" — the first Army vehicle designed solely for off-the-road operations in forward combat areas—has been undergoing high-priority tests here.

The Mule is designed to transport weapons, ammunition, food and essential supplies from the nearest roads right up to front line positions. It takes the load off the foot soldier's back.

Weighing 750 lbs., the Mule can carry 1,000 lbs., be transported by rail, water, truck, helicopter or cargo plane and can be dropped by parachute.

Its overall length is 100"; its width 46"; the chassis is only 27" high giving it a low silhouette.

In forward areas infested with snipers, the driver can operate the Mule while walking or crawling at the rear or side. The steering wheel and steering column adjusts to swing down close to the ground.

The driver shifts the Mule into reverse, sets the speed as low as one mile per hour, and walks or crawls behind.

Four-wheel steering allows the Mule to be turned in an 18-ft. circle. It can operate in temperatures from 25 degrees below zero to 125 degrees above. The Mule can be tipped over on its side or back for maintenance without loss of fuel or oil.

Safety Rodeo Set For Kids At Blue Field

Youngsters nine years of age and up will compete in a Dad's Club Bicycle Safety Rodeo today at Blue Field.

The youngsters will be divided into three age groups, 9 to 12, 13, and 14 and up.

The contest, designed to make children more safety-conscious, will consist of a series of tests, including sense of balance, changes in balance, obstacles, mounting, signaling, stopping, pedaling and braking. Contestants are required to bring their own bicycles.

Ralph Toole, recreation director of the Dad's Club, is program director. Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety director, will assist.

GIs Can Ship More House Goods Under New Act

HEADQUARTER THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — Good news for military families came this week from the Department of Defense.

Military personnel, when changing stations, will be permitted to ship up to 11,000 pounds of household goods and traveling effects at Government expense.

This is 2,000 pounds over the previous limitation and is authorized by the 1955 Appropriations Act.

Hotrod Warning

Radar has been installed at Fort Benning by the Provost Marshal's Office to check and enforce speed regulations.

Second Lt. Bjarne B. Andersen, Jr., traffic officer, said the location of the equipment will not be disclosed, but that the general area will be marked by this sign: "Speed Check, Military Police Patrolled."

This is the first time radar has been used here to enforce speed regulations, although it has been used in traffic surveys.

3,000 Reserves Slate Training Col. L. E. Roth Named TIC Eng.

More than 3,000 Army Reservists from seven Southern states will attend two-week training programs here starting Sunday.

The Reservists, who will come from 66 units in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, will receive their training during one of five two-week encampment periods between July 18 to Aug. 22.

The first period, July 18-Aug. 1, will include 187 men from U. S. Army Reserve Schools in Jackson, Miss., and Columbia, S. C.

Col. Ralph Edwards, a member of The Infantry Center G-3 (training) section, said the training will include familiarization firing with various weapons, a three-day bivouac and several field problems.

Medical units will receive on-the-job training at the U. S. Army Hospital here and engineers will build additional roads and small bridges as part of their training.

Col. Louis E. Roth of Clarksville, Tenn., has been named Infantry Center engineer. He replaces Col. Richard F. Ebbs who has been appointed U. S. Army engineer in the Caribbean.

Col. Roth, who received his civil engineer degree from the University of Tennessee, came to Fort Benning from Vanderbilt University, where he had been professor of military science and tactics since 1952.

He spent four years, 1948 to 1952, in Korea and Japan as commander of the 24th Engineer Construction Battalion, Fourth Engineer Construction Group and 11th Engineer Combat Battalion. He also was assigned to the War Plans Division, Engineer Section, Japanese Logistics Command.

Col. Roth's decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart, French Croix de Guerre with Palm, French Fourragere and the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation.

Clark Named Aide to Gen.

First Lt. Walter B. Clark of Decatur, Ga., has assumed duties as an aide de camp to Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

Lt. Clark first came to the post in 1950 for ROTC summer training and the following year attended The Infantry School's associate company course.

His current tour of duty began in January 1953 when he was appointed intelligence officer for the Third Battalion, 20th Infantry Regiment. He later was an instructor in the Tactical Department.

A 1951 graduate of The Citadel in Charleston, S. C., Clark served with the 68th Infantry Regiment, Third Division, in Korea from March to July 1952.

ARMY HURLS 7-PRONG ATTACK AT HOT WEATHER; EVEN CONSIDERS MIDDAY SIESTA

A new regulation on prevention of heat casualties promises to make the siesta a important in the Army summertime work-day as reveille.

This may sound more like the life of Riley than the life of a soldier, but it's all in the interest of conserving manpower.

In the summers of 1951 and 1952, alone, 2,720 injuries and 23 deaths from heat exhaustion (prostration) and heat-stroke (sunstroke) were reported by Army medical authorities.

To help prevent such casualties—most of them avoidable—the Army has drawn up a set of rules to be observed when the temperature soars.

In addition to the beneficial hour of rest following the noon meal recommended by the new regulation, these rules — which could be adopted by everyone — are:

1. Serve the heavy meal of the day in the evening rather than in the morning.

2. Water and salt are required in quantities sufficient to replace amounts lost. Under conditions of heavy perspiration one pint or more of water per person per hour will be required. This should be drunk in small quantities every 20 or 30 minutes. Under unusually severe conditions, salt tablets also should be taken regularly.

3. When the weather is very hot or activity particularly strenuous, short periods of work alternated with short periods of rest are safest.

4. Modification of training schedules may be necessary. Schedules can be amended to place the most strenuous activities during the coolest portion of the day. However, these modifications should not be scheduled so as to rob men of normal amounts of sleep.

5. Maintenance of good physical condition and avoidance of fatigue are important.

6. In sunlight, clothing helps in reducing the heat load. Away from sunlight, removal of excess clothing helps reduce the temperature.

Furthermore, if the day is a scorcher and training calls for such activity as running the close combat course, the regulation suggests that this can be put off until a later — and cooler — day.

The regulation further advises that men new to high temperature areas or to humid heat will need at least two weeks to become acclimated.

In other words, the Army suggests, take it easy when the temperature and humidity are high. Otherwise, "This heat is killing me" may well prove your epitaph.

West Point Cadets Plan Review for Gen. Harper

The 509 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy's junior class, who are undergoing four weeks of training here, will stage a review Saturday in honor of Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

West Point Cadets Form Three Groups For Post Training

Cadet John H. Higgins of Newton, Mass., will be in command of the review troops at the 9 a.m. ceremony on French and Blue Fields.

The review will be composed exclusively of cadets who will be in white dress uniforms. The 122nd Army Band will provide the music.

Now in its second week of training, the class is studying small unit tactics, leadership and the employment of supporting arms in small unit operations. This is the first course for a cadet junior class to be conducted at The Infantry School.

In addition to the regular program of instruction and the full-scale review, the cadets are scheduled to visit the 164th Infantry Regiment of the 47th Division July 24 for an orientation on the operation of an infantry regiment in garrison.

They also will visit Army Field Forces Board No. 3.

The cadets began their summer training trip June 10 at Norfolk, Va., where they were oriented on combined Army and Navy operations.

The cadets began their summer training trip June 10 at Norfolk, Va., where they were oriented on combined Army and Navy operations.

The 509 members of the U. S. Military Academy's junior class, now at Fort Benning for four weeks of instruction, have been divided into three groups and began training last week.

The cadets are studying Infantry, artillery, and armor combat in operations and will receive six hours of airborne instruction and a briefing on the Ranger program.

Last Friday the West Pointers were entertained at a commandant's reception in the Main Officers' Mess.

Their schedule also includes a parade on Saturday and a visit to the 164th Infantry Regiment of the 47th Division July 24 for an orientation on the operation of an infantry regiment in garrison.

Fort Benning is the final stop on the cadets' summer training trip, which began June 10 at Norfolk, Va.

25th Inf. Div. Increases Gift to 'Follow Me' Fund

The 25th Infantry Division Association has increased to $500 its donation to the Infantry School's Follow Me Fund, which will be used to erect a pedestal at Fort Benning for a statue of the Ideal Infantryman.

The association contributed $100 last month and at its annual convention July 24 in Chicago, Ill., donated an additional $400. This brings the fund to $1,614.25, more than half the $2,500 needed to construct the pedestal.

The statue itself is now in U.S. Army headquarters, Berlin, Germany. It will be brought here and mounted if sufficient funds to build a base are raised.

World War II and Korea veterans of the 25th Division presented the money "to commemorate the memory of the men of the division who made the supreme sacrifice."

The $400 check, the first to be donated by a division association, was presented to Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry School commandant, by First Lt. A. B. Davis, III, president of the Fort Benning Chapter of the association.

Lt. Davis and Col. Leland G. Cagwin, director of the Airborne Department, represented the local chapter at the convention. Both were elected to the nine-man National Executive Council for the coming year.

The 25th, whose association membership is approximately 15,000, was the first ground unit to fire a shot against the enemy in World War II. Elements of the division's 27th Infantry Regiment fired on Japanese aircraft attacking Schofield Barracks Dec. 7, 1941.

Brig. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was assistant division commander from July 1952 to March 1953.

Outstanding Record The unit, which is said to have produced more stars (generals made and promoted than any other Army division in World War II), was the first division to receive WASHINGTON (APFS) — Reduced furlough fares on the nation's railroads have been extended to Jan. 31, 1955, for military personnel traveling in uniform at their own expense.

The reduction in fares for members of the Armed Forces would have ordinarily expired on June 30, 1954.

The tax-exempt action will continue on round-trip fares for military personnel on furlough at the rate of 2.025 cents a mile or less. The ticket is valid in coaches and includes regular stopover and baggage privileges.

Hooray! 3d Army Claims Top Safety Mark Over Holiday

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — The best safety record ever set in the Third Army Area was accomplished on this Fourth of July weekend. There have been no fatal injuries to Army personnel reported in the Army Area.

Comments have gone to each installation from Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army Commanding General, praising them for their fine safety programs.

During the holiday period, which extended from 4 p.m. July 2 through 6 a.m. July 6, there were 33 disabling injuries to personnel. Of these 20 were the result of 17 accidents involving privately operated vehicles. The other 13 injuries came from a variety of mishaps.

The safety drive emphasized by Gen. Bolling and the resulting programs carried out at each installation shows a profit in lives when this year's July 4th safety record is compared with that of 1953.

The holiday last year was shorter — yet resulted in four fatalities in the Army Area. Two were in automobile accidents and two from drownings.

A Distinguished Unit Citation. It also holds a record for continuous sustained days in combat in World War II in the Pacific. The record was established in the fighting on Luzon.

The 25th, commanded by Lt. Gen. William B. Kean, now Fifth Army commander, was the second U. S. unit to enter combat in Korea. The first was its sister division, the 24th.

Interview Report "There was much variance in what was expected of the course. Most of the men expected high standards academically and physically, but did not expect as much discipline and physical conditioning." One of the Guardsmen, Cpl. James Darden of Kennett, Mo., said, "The first week and a half I was so sore I couldn't move, but from what I've seen so far it looks like a good program."

Getting Necessary Training' Guardsmen Reaping Benefits From Bennings' OC Program

The special Army officer candidate program for National Guardsmen, being held at Fort Benning for the first time, is winning the approval of students.

Officers of the 10th Officer Candidate Company, who interviewed a cross-section of the 170 Guardsmen receiving training in the unit, found that students believe they are getting excellent training.

Guardsmen were requested to list the traits they thought necessary in a good officer and then asked if their training was developing these traits. All but one believe they were getting it.

Assimilation of professional knowledge and development of leadership ability headed the list of requirements they deemed necessary for becoming good officers. Development of self-confidence, development of instructional ability and physical conditioning also were listed.

Most of the Guardsmen taking the course have over three years of service in the National Guard and about two years in college, according to First Lt. Hugh B. Harrison of Valley Stream, N. Y., commanding officer.

The concentrated eight-week program is similar to the regular officer candidate course and will qualify Guardsmen to receive commissions as second lieutenants after final approval by state National Guard boards.

The course, June 21-Aug. 28, will qualify graduates for commissions in all branches except artillery. The artillery course is being offered at The Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.

Training officers, however, indicated that the officer candidates should be given more opportunity to instruct, such as in drill and command exercises, physical training and discussion conferences. They also believe there is a definite need for a more thorough preparation of the prospective can-

Keep the Reds in the Dark

The Reds are a curious bunch of guys. They want to know everything about us.

So they won't get anything out of you, eh? Don't be so sure. You might not know much, but you do know a little bit.

Besides being curious, the Reds are patient. Any little crumb of information you may let drop they'll pick up. They're very interested in little things.

Because these little things, added to a lot of other little things and tabulated on the Red adding machine, add up to a lot of big things.

Start getting security conscious — if you're not already. Keep your lip buttoned about anything even remotely concerned with military and security matters, because the Reds are keeping a close tab on everything.

The less the Reds know, the less they find out, the better it is—for you. (AFPS)

Vote--It's Your Duty

Sound off, brother! It's your duty. We're talking about voting. You've been around a lot in Service. You've seen a lot, and you know a lot more than when you left home.

You've learned why you're in uniform. You're guarding this nation against forces that want to take away our right to sound off and vote.

Sure, Communists can vote—the way they're told to vote. But you can vote the way you think and believe—because you're an American.

It's your duty to vote—and make sure you stay an American.

The Armed Forces make it easy for you to vote. Officers in your units can give you accurate information about your home State's voting regulations. They'll tell you if your State allows you to use the absentee ballot. Most States do. They'll give you a post card to fill out that will get you the absentee ballot.

Get that ballot and use it. Sound off where it will do some good. Your vote—no matter where you are in the world—is important.

Remember—the mail box is your ballot box. (AFPS)

But the Greatest Pillar Is Charity

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) C. W. LOVIN

In I Corinthians, 13th Chapter, and the 13th verse, we have these words: "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." The words, faith, hope, charity, are often referred to as the three great pillars of the Christian religion by theologians and laymen who major in the business of creative living for God in this world.

Where we build character without them and as we give attention to each one of these pillars of religious experience, we see what a tremendous part they play in the lives of great men and women, and also what part they are playing today as our leading religious people of all faiths give attention to them in their lives over the world.

For those of us in the Armed Forces, we are aware of how we our daily lives and go through the ordinary stresses and strains of today. We find that the great need of ourselves is faith; we must have faith in ourselves, in our fellowmen, in our society, in our nation, and in our world, if we are to live as we should in our world. This has always been true, so the great theologian of the early Christian era stated that "FAITH was one of the things which abide throughout time and eternity," and if we are wise we will take hold of this great asset and make it a part of our character. One who has a great faith will also have a successful career in the world because faith is where trust and mutual confidence begin. It is what keeps the world moving.

Hope is Necessary We in the Armed Forces are also aware that hope is necessary if we are going to live life successfully. No one can win the world today unless he has a great amount of hope; the early theologian who wrote the Scripture read:

MEDAL OF HONOR

Cpl. Dan. D. Schoonover, 13th Eng. Combat Bn., Seventh Inf. Div., was awarded the Medal of Honor for two days of sustained bravery that cost him his life in the fierce fighting near Sokkoge, Korea, July 1953.

The corporal was leading a squad attached to the 17th Inf. Regt. His squad, assigned to act as a demolition team in Co. G's attack on Pork Chop Hill, was pinned down by heavy enemy fire. Cpl. Schoonover immediately reorganized his unit into a rifle squad and led it—according to witnesses—like a seasoned infantry NCO.

He single-handedly attacked enemy bunkers and either killed or captured their occupants. After Co. G was relieved by another infantry company, Cpl. Schoonover voluntarily remained with the new outfit and continued fighting as an infantryman. He personally accounted for hundreds of enemy casualties by his accurate fire and by calling in artillery on the enemy.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

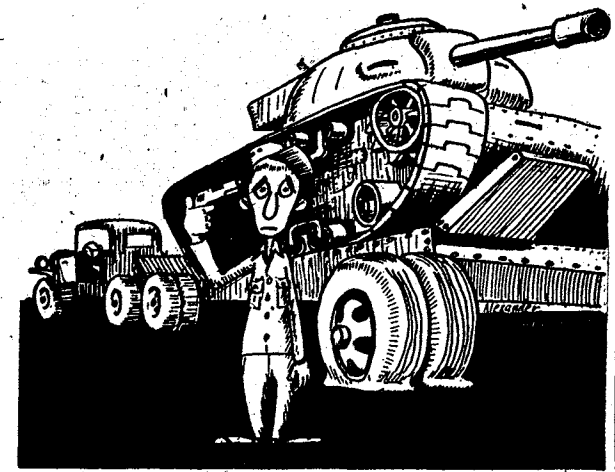

NEW YORK (AFPS)—A George Washington Honor Medal was awarded to T Sgt. E. C. Buchanan, USAF, now serving with the 365th Field Maintenance Sq., for his letter on "What America Means to Me." He wrote in part: "What does a America mean to me, an average American from a typical home town? Freedom means Freedom. Freedom is to America what God is to religion, its very essence. But if anyone in my early years had asked me what Freedom means I'm sure I would have been vague. To paraphrase Kipling: 'What knows he of Freedom who only Freedom knows.'"

"I was captured by the Japanese on Bataan peninsula, made the infamous Bataan Death March, and was a POW for three years. It is strange that I, a free-born American, had to know the bondage before I really knew Freedom. In the bleak darkness of prison nights, lost freedoms parade like fashion models before one's eyes, and each is a facet of America and what it means."

Gen. Dahlquist Stresses Standpoint of Soldier

The chief of Army Field Forces stressed the need for good human relationships to meet what he called "the challenge of 1954" when he spoke last Saturday at graduation exercises for The Infantry School's advanced officers class No. 2.
Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist described the problems of the Army in a modern world and gave the 185 U. S. and eight Allied officers an outline of the great variety of jobs being done by Army officers throughout the world.
"Whatever your task may be," the general said, "look at it from the standpoint of the soldier."
Speaking of his own graduation from The Infantry School 25 years ago, the three-star general told the officers there had been many changes, but that the "goal of the school is still the same."
"Its mission," he said, "is to turn out the best Infantry leaders in the world."

Army Takes Ex-Seaman 'For Life'

From a Montana ranch to the Merchant Marine in World War II, then to the Army in the Far East and to civilian life and back to the Army for keeps, is the colorful record of Ernest Sorenson, 27-year-old corporal now training in the First OC Regiment.
This sea-going soldier spent five years in the Merchant Marine, including three days on a life raft after his ship, the "Azalia City," was torpedoed by an enemy submarine in the Pacific. As a result of that action, Sorenson is one of the few soldiers who wear the Mariner's Medal.
In 1951 Sorenson was inducted and served a tour of duty in the Far East, including Korean service. After a short period in civilian life, he reentered the Army as a career man.
Sorenson, whose home town is Great Falls, Mont., is currently a member of Advanced Non-Commissioned Officers Class No. 4, training with 124th Company.

Solons' Service Agenda

BY CPL. JOE TAYLOR, ASU (AFPS Washington Correspondent)

The final report on the Stevens-McCarthy hearing probably will be ready for consideration by the investigating subcommittee by about July 31. Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins has been instructed by the group to prepare a digest of the two million words spoken during the hearing. To do this task, he has retired to his farm in Tennessee. Sen. Karl Mundt, acting chairman of the subcommittee, says he hopes the basic issues can be narrowed down to about 10. Otherwise, he says, the chances for completing a report before Congress adjourns are small.

The compromise bill on Military Appropriations (H.R. 8879) has been approved by both Houses and sent on to the White House. Although the nearly $29 billion authorized is about $2 billion less than President Eisenhower requested, he is expected to sign it. Final Senate approval of the measure was highlighted by debate on whether defense contracts could be used to ease unemployment in some areas. Senate leaders assured the body that such was prohibited. The appropriation is the smallest since the beginning of the Korean War but is more than double the last pre-Korean defense bill.

The Doctor Draft Act has been amended (S 3096) to allow the induction into the Armed Forces of physicians and dentists as enlisted personnel if they do not complete their loyalty certificates to the thorough satisfaction of the military. Previously it was necessary to commission all doctors called into Service.

The Senate is ready to consider the Defense Department's proposed Re-enlistment Bonus Bill. It already has been cleared by the Senate Armed Services Committee. The bill provides for an increase in the bonus paid for the first re-up and tapers off bonus payments toward retirement. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, committee chairman, says the annual cost of the program will be about $68 million more than the present bonus system but that the change will pay for itself by eliminating training costs for new recruits.

2 Units Back From 9 Weeks Of Maneuvers

Mahoney, took part in Exercise Flash Burn and Exercise Sky Drop at Fort Bragg before going to Fort Eustis to engage in logistical support problems.

The 21 pilots of the 50th chalked up 2,500 hours flying time during the exercises. Maintenance on their 18 helicopters was performed by the 41 enlisted men of the 152nd.

Big Race is Today

12th OCs Pin Soap Box Derby Hopes on Sergeant's Son

Twelfth OC Company, First OC Regiment, seemed like heaven to happy and excited James Rouse, son of the company mess steward, as, under the careful supervision of OC's David L. Lane, Walter H. Sargent, and William "Pat," he worked on a gleaming white, streamlined soap-box racer which he rides in the Columbus Soap Box Derby today.

The idea for the sponsorship of a soap-box racer first came from candidate Lane. He passed it to the rest of the company and with their approval, wrote a story for The Bayonet in which they sought a serviceman's son who would be interested in building a racer to represent the company.

The story, on the front page, caught the eye of Sergeant Rouse. He mentioned it to his son, who was immediately interested and they requested the company's sponsorship. Their application was accepted and the candidates were soon hard at work helping the 11-year-old boy.

The racer is 80 inches long and, with its driver aboard, will weigh about 250 pounds. Painted white, it is decorated with a replica of the "Follow Me" insignia of The Infantry School. The words, "12th OC Company," and the company motto, "Above the Rest," are painted on it in blue.

122nd to Play At Derby Fete

Fort Benning's 122nd Army band and elements of Combat Training Command will take part in Soap Box Derby festivities in Columbus today.

Besides the band, drill team, and color guard, radio operators and supply personnel will help conduct the annual race for youngsters, which is a preliminary to the National Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio.

The drill team will include men from Battery C, 188th Field Artillery Battalion, and Company A, 30th Infantry Regiment. First Lt. Robert Quinett will head the team. Four radio operators for the derby will be Cpl. Hubert D. Smith, Cpl. Jay T. Glasco, Pfc. John O. Doolley, and Pfc. Robert L. Muller.

The color guard will include Sfc. Charles Vance, Sfc. Jerry L. Jarman, Cpl. James R. Bourne, and Cpl. Donald C. Hill.

Supply personnel include Sgt. Cecil O. Brown, Pvt. William C. Munro, Pvt. Orville T. Cook, and Pvt. Richard F. Kennedy.

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster. Ask for a free folder for recording telephone numbers.
2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Bad Reading Habits Halted

Fort Benning soldiers who want to read faster have found the TIE&E Speed Reading Laboratory a good place to start.

Operated by the Troop Information and Education Section, the Lab helps soldiers overcome bad reading habits as the first step toward increasing their ability to read more rapidly.

Records show that the average educated adult rambles along at about 250 words a minute with only 70 per cent comprehension when he enrolls in the speed reading course. Average increase for those who complete the course is between 80 per cent and 90 per cent in speed and between 10 per cent and 15 per cent in comprehension, lab officials say.

One graduate of the course now reads 1,450 words per minute with 90 per cent comprehension.

Bad Reading Habits

Heading the list of bad reading habits which the Speed Reading Lab attempts to correct is regression, which means reading again what has already been read and mentally forming a picture of each word on the page. Lab officials say that the average reader uses as many as eight steps, or fixa-

Ideas of Womble Group Being Adopted for Army

(This is the second of three articles on the Army's implementation of the recommendations of the Womble Committee.)

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The changes currently underway to improve the Army as a career indicate the rapid progress being made in putting the Womble Committee's recommendations into effect.

The final Womble report on making the Army more attractive was made Oct. 30, 1953, and its recommendations have been approved by Secretary of Defense Wilson and forwarded to President Eisenhower.

The previous article discussed those actions that already have been completed, according to an Army summary of progress on carrying out the report. The final article of this series will consider those actions that are awaiting the necessary legislation.

The following actions are now in progress:

Assignment of Master Sergeants—The Army is considering a proposal to establish centralized control of assignment, by name, of master sergeants, similar to the system used for officer assignments.

Concurrent travel—Restoration of concurrent travel of dependents with their sponsor to overseas stations is being pushed to lessen family separation. The target date is the first of next year for all overseas stations except in the Far East Command.

Unit Replacement—Rotation of battalions and regiments between the U. S. and overseas theaters, instead of rotating individuals, is being planned for 1955 to create increased stability of assignment and better team spirit.

Improved Quarters for Female Officers—Minimum standards for government quarters provided for female officers are being established.

Regimental Bands—A study is underway on restoration of unit bands in infantry regiments and division artillery to create increased esprit de corps.

Enlisted MOS—Study is underway on proposal to substantially reduce the number of enlisted MOSs to simplify assignment procedures.

Regular Army Augmentation—Proposal to offer RA appointments to qualified reserve officers on active duty has been submitted to the Defense Department.

Reserve Officer Program—More security and better incentives for reserve officers who serve on active duty for extended periods are being considered. These include provisions for contract tours and rehabilitation pay in event of relief from duty.

A-Energy Use Is TI&E Topic

Armed Forces Talk No. 470, "Atomic Energy in Your Future," has been assigned as the Troop Information conference subject for next week, according to an announcement by Lt. Col. Charles W. Hall, post TI&E officer.

The talk stresses the theme that peacetime uses of atomic energy promise to be far more important than its destructive power.

The structure of the atom, fission and fusion, radioisotopes, industrial isotopes, and atomic power plants, are all explained in the Department of Army pamphlet.

The talk ends on the note that President Eisenhower proposed before the United Nations General Assembly on Dec. 8, 1953, that the UN set up an International Atomic Energy Agency to develop atomic energy for the "peaceful pursuits of mankind."

Navy Starts PIO Courses

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Navy has announced the schedule of a newly formed five-week Public Information Officers Training Course at the Naval School for Journalists, Great Lakes, Ill. The purpose of the course is to train officer personnel for Navy information billets.

The first class starts Aug. 23, the second class begins Oct. 4, and the third Nov. 15. The Navy did not release dates for other classes.

Applicants must have a minimum of 18 months' service in a sea billet. They should be college graduates (but this can be waived), with experience in public relations desirable. Each class will have 15 officers.

Mighty Mo To 'Retire'

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—After participating in the annual midshipmen training cruise this summer, the battleship USS Missouri is scheduled for inactivation.

The Missouri, which has been on continuous active service since commissioning in 1944, will report to the Pacific Reserve Fleet at Bremerton, Wash., in September.

The "Mighty Mo" will then undergo necessary inactivation work before decommissioning. This will leave the Navy with three commissioned battleships, the Iowa, Wisconsin and New Jersey.

40 EM Graduate In Mechanic Class

Forty enlisted men graduated Friday from The Infantry School's motor mechanics course No. 8.

Pvt. Ronald Deeks of Springfield, Mo., was honor graduate, and Pvt. Harry J. Brey of Wheeling, W. Va., was second. Both received letters of academic achievement.

The mechanics course is divided into two phases, with five weeks devoted to technical training and three to operations. It trains enlisted men for duty as mechanics in Infantry regiments.

Army to Pay 75% Tuition

Loosening its purse strings to captains and higher-grade commissioned officers, Department of the Army last week announced that the government in Fiscal Year '55 will defray up to 75 per cent of undergraduate tuition costs for all military personnel enrolled in courses offered by civilian educational institutions.

Previous DA policy authorized the 75 per cent assistance to enlisted men only. Warrant officers and First and Second Lieutenants received a 50 per cent tuition subsidy; all other officers had to pay their own way.

To protect its investment—celling at $7.50 per semester hour, $5.00 per quarter hour and $22.50 per Carnegie Unit (high school)—DA will require all officers to agree to remain on active duty for a minimum of two years after the government-subsidized course is completed.

The two-year agreement clause, as well as the boost in assistance for Warrant and Commissioned officers, will not apply to personnel already enrolled in courses under the FY 54 plan.

The University of Georgia maintains an off-campus education center at Fort Benning where the new subsidies are to become effective.

Rangers Back From Fla. Head for Mountains

Thirty students in The Infantry School's ranger course returned early last week from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., where they took the jungle and amphibious phase of their training.

The class, an all-officer group, left on Friday at the Ranger Department's mountain camp at Dalton, Ga., to complete the final phase of the eight-week course.

They were accompanied by an already enrolled in courses under the FY 54 plan.

The University of Georgia maintains an off-campus education center at Fort Benning where the new subsidies are to become effective.

Crammed, Jammed

WASHINGTON (APPS)— Anybody got a spare circus tent where they can put Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's camp wagon, four of Adolph Hitler's watercolors and about 10,000 other items the Army has collected over the years? For want of a museum to store the collected items, Gen. Grant's wagon is now stored — of all places — at Richmond, Va., in custody of the Quartermaster Depot. About 4,000 other war-treasures are on loan throughout the country. The Historical Properties Office of the Chief of Military History, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Smith, is now crammed full with scarcely any place to put new items. These footnotes of history include Matthew Brady Civil War portraits, Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s jeep and captured Japanese murals.

Payroll Procedures Undergo Testing

Officials from the Office of the Army's Chief of Finance, Washington, and the Third Army Finance and Accounting Office arrived last Thursday to conduct a pilot test of new civilian payroll procedures. The test is in line with recent improvements which are part of an integrated accounting system adopted by the Army. Civilian payroll officials from Fort Jackson, S. C., Camp Gordon, Ga., Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Campbell, Ky. were on the post for the study.

After watching Stan Dietz, one of the pitchers, the "Pointers" should make a very good showing against their brother officers-to-be. On the other hand, when the ROTC was asked for their comments concerning this game, members said, "After what happened to us against Notre Dame last year in football, we have no comment." Incidentally the ROTC

Army, USAF Set Terminal Date For 3 Medals

WASHINGTON (APFS) — A terminal date has been set by the Army and Air Force for the three service medals that have been awarded since the beginning of the Korean war. The date is July 27, 1954, the first anniversary of the beginning of the Korean period. After that date, personnel cannot qualify for the Korean Service Medal, the United Nations Service Medal or the National Defense Service Medal. The Navy has made no official announcement but is expected to follow a similar policy. Two other awards also are being discontinued by the Army and AF. They are overseas service bars and the Accolade, a certificate forwarded to the next of kin of persons killed in line of duty during a period of operations against an armed enemy. No action at present is contemplated by any of the services on terminating the award of the Occupation Medal for service in Germany or the waters nearby. However, the Navy would like to terminate the China Service Medal (extended), and is expected to do so at the same time it terminates the other three. A request has been received from Gen. John E. Hull, Commander-in-Chief Far East, that consideration be given to authorizing a new medal for service in Korea or the waters adjacent thereto between July 27, 1954, and a future date. Its purpose would be to recognize service in what Gen. Hull termed a "highly sensitive area." No decision has yet been reached on his requests.

Clock Runs Wild, Routs Inspectors

An alarm clock ran wild recently in 13th OC Company, First OC Regiment, and routed an inspecting team of senior candidates. The incident took place during the strained hush of an inspection, when suddenly, a terrific ringing and jangling blasted the quiet air. Startled, the inspecting senior candidates put on a hurried search and the offending clock was discovered. The stop button was pushed, but still the Baby Ben rang on. Every means tried to stop this demon fell short of success and the inspectors then executed a hasty retrograde movement. They left, followed by the sound of the Baby Ben. It is understood that after some emergency training in defense against alarm clocks they will resume the engagement with 13th Company.

Officers and enlisted men of the 4th Infantry Division who took part in Exercise Spearhead at Fort Hood, Texas, have been commended for their performance as part of the Aggressor Force. Major Gen. John J. Binns, who headed the exercise control command, commended the 164th Infantry Regiment's Second Battalion for "considerable initiative in learning everything possible about the fictitious enemy they represented." Gen. Binns said he was particularly pleased with a four-day terrain rehearsal in preparation for the actual maneuver, held May 3-19 for the First Armored Division. ROTCs Work In Mess Halls

The Bonnet, Columbus, Ga., July 15, 1954

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—Members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps who are now at summer training camps within the Third Army, are getting practical experience on mess activities by running the mess halls for a day during the encampment, according to Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, commanding general, Third Army.

Each shift of the ROTC must be instructed in mess management, command responsibilities, inspection of messes and food and in mess administration, and every effort is made to familiarize the students with the operations of field kitchens.

While on duty, students are taught how to separate and dispose of kitchen and table waste. Waste fit for animal consumption is placed in designated cans so that it can be sold to hog farmers, while salvageable waste material, such as paper, corrugated boxes, metal scraps, tin cans, bottles, wire and such go into other containers to be sold to junk dealers.

Students are being taught that all kitchen greases have commercial value and are sold to processors who convert the grease into glycerin.

There are approximately 6,500 ROTC students from all parts of the United States now undergoing summer training in Third Army at Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Camp Gordon, Fort McClellan, and Fort Campbell.

Named Top Viking Medical Soldier

SFC Joseph R. Gordon of Providence, R. I., has been selected "Medical Soldier of the Month" in the 47th Infantry Division at Fort Benning.

Gordon was chosen from a group of nine medics representing each regiment. They were interviewed by a four-man board headed by Lt. Col. Wade F. Herriage, division surgeon, and tested on general appearance, military knowledge, and current events.

Sgt. Gordon, who served 30 months in Korea with the Seventh and 24th Divisions, is now assigned to the Ambulance Company, 204th Medical Battalion.

ROTC Colonel Views Training of Cadets

Lt. Col. Aurell C. Hassett of the Army's Reserve and ROTC Affairs Office visited the ROTC summer camp here this week.

Col. Hassett observed training and discussed various phases of the ROTC program with camp officials.

Miss. Cadets Lead 'Shots'

Cadets of the University of Mississippi topped all others in marksmanship at the ROTC summer camp as record firing on the M-1 rifle was completed Saturday.

The cadets, whose professor of military science and tactics, Lt. Col. Frederick V. Harris, is chief of the ROTC general subjects committee, were members of Company G which qualified the largest percentage in the eight companies in the summer camp.

Highest individual scores in the company were fired by Chester D. Jennings, Huntsville, Ark., of Henderson State Teacher's College, and Carter A. Davis, Green Forest, Ark., of the University of Arkansas. The two cadets tied for first place in the company with a score of 163 out of a possible 210.

Company G also includes cadets from Arkansas Polytechnic College, Sletson University, Henderson State Teachers College and the University of Arkansas.

Commanded by Major James W. Dickerson of Arkansas Polytechnic College, the unit has been cited for having the best company area and the best training. Because of these two honors the company also was named "Best Company of the Week."

The cost is $10.00, to be paid in advance, and includes transportation by chartered bus, overnight accommodations in Bainbridge, fishing trip and all meals except Sunday breakfast and supper.

Departure is from the USO-NCCS Club, 109 Ninth Street, Columbus, at 1:30 P.M. on Saturday, July 17. The tour is scheduled to return to Fort Benning by mid-night Sunday.

Reservations may be made by calling the NCCS Club, Columbus 2-0081. The tour is limited to 40 persons.

ROTC A&R Program Shifts Into High Gear This Week

An athletic and recreation program for cadets attending the 1954 ROTC summer camp at Fort Benning shifted into high gear this week with varied activities planned to relieve the intensive, six-week training program.

The first cadet dance was held last week at Victory Lodge under the sponsorship of the First of October Candidate Regiment. An orchestra composed of enlisted men from Infantry Center hands provided music for the dance, which was attended by the cadets and officer candidates.

Other dances, provided for under the ROTC camp welfare fund, will be held at the lodge July 20 and 21, according to Capt. Isaiah McCoy of Prairie View, Texas, and Capt. Billy Rowland of San Antonio, Texas, camp special services officers.

Cadets also are competing in many of their favorite sports. A golf tournament was held July 11 at the Sand Hill golf course and a tennis tournament is set for July 17 at the Sand Hill tennis courts.

A swimming meet was held at Bryant Wells Field House July 10 with competition on an individual basis in 50-yard free style, 100-yard free style, backstroke and breast stroke, 200-yard free style and diving.

A volleyball league has been organized with teams from each student company. The horseshoe and badminton programs will continue until July 21.

Buffet Planned Medics to Celebrate 179th Anniversary

The U. S. Army Hospital and other medical units at Fort Benning will observe the 179th anniversary of the Army Medical Corps on July 27. Doctors, nurses and Medical Service Corps officers at the hospital will mark the occasion with a buffet supper at 6 p.m. at the Medical Officers' Club. Enlisted personnel and dependents will attend a buffet at French Field at 4:30 p.m. The Congress of the United States on July 27, 1776, acting upon the recommendation of Gen. George Washington, created the first military Medical Service Corps known in America. A short time later, Dr. Church, a Boston physician, was appointed as the Army's first chief physician. The Army then consisted of a few colonial militia organizations and the physicians for the troops were appointed locally, usually by the colonel commanding the regiment. The Army Medical Corps has a long list of noted doctors and scientists. Perhaps the best known is Major Walter Reed, who discovered the means of yellow fever transmission in 1900. Gen. William C. Gorgas' efforts in preventive medicine made possible the construction of the Panama Canal. Hospital Organized in 1818 Fort Benning's hospital, which was organized in 1818 when Camp Benning was established, has made great progress in medical research since that time. Col. Norman H. Wiley, hospital commander, pointed out: "In 1833, 11,256 patients were admitted to the hospital at an average of 31 patients each day. This accounted for an average of 448 beds being occupied. 365,534 Out-Patients "Since many patients receive treatment which does not cause them to become bed patients, figures show that 365,534 out-patients were treated," he added. Five hundred eighty major and other operations were performed. Immunizations for the year totaled 77,392, and over 112,000 X-rays were taken. The hospital brace shop made 5,208 braces for patients. "Of cheerful note can be observed in such statistics, though. Records show that 2,175 babies were born in the Fort Benning Hospital during the past year," Col. Wiley said. At present there are 56 doctors assigned to the post. Along with them are 20 Medical Service Corps officers, 69 Army nurses, 312 enlisted men and 240 civilians. "To conserve the fighting strength," that for 179 years has been the primary mission of the U. S. Army Medical Service.

RADAR MONITOR . . . Electromatic speed meter equipment is checked by Second Lt. Bjarne B. Andersen, right, and Pvt. Thomas Lukenic, Lt. Andersen holds the meter which registers the speed of passing motorists. The equipment was installed to check and enforce speed regulations on post.

Bolling, Third Army commander, is scheduled to come to Fort Benning Aug. 9 to present the citation to Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper. While here Gen. Bolling also will present a meritorious safety achievement award to the 47th Infantry Division, whose program showed outstanding improvement. The Award of Honor for Distinguished Service to Safety, the only one to be awarded an installation in the Third Army area, is in recognition of the post's 35 per cent overall improvement in its safety program during 1953, according to Norman M. Evans, Infantry Center safety director. The program was rated excellent in every respect, showing improvement in these categories: land civilians, fatality and accident rate in the operation of motor vehicles, and a better rate of improvement than other Third Army installations. Fort Benning has won the Award of Honor twice since the safety program was inaugurated in 1950. A similar award is presented to industries, governmental agencies and other organizations which reach the National Safety Council's requirements. The Third Army Band is scheduled to appear at Fort Benning's Hospital on Monday for a concert and variety show. The 90-minute show will start at 7 p.m. Composed of 110 enlisted men and one officer, the band will tour other Third Army installations after appearing at The Infantry Center.

Work at 'Flash' Brings Honor

Lt. Col. Harry W. Stephenson, Jr., has been awarded a Third Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding service during Exercise Flash Burn at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The certificate, signed by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander, was presented by Col. Edward P. Smith, Infantry School secretary.

Col. Stephenson, the school's management improvement officer, was cited for his job performance as personnel officer for the exercise from Nov. 2, 1953, to May 17, 1954.

The citation stated: "During this period, Col. Stephenson showed exceptional ability in planning and directing the operation of the G-1 Section. He devised new and highly effective personnel procedures including the use of the packet system which was employed for the first time during the exercise. His efforts resulted in higher troop morale, more economical use of manpower, and direct savings of funds to the government."

Maj. Eisenhower Bid Farewell at Review

First Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, bade farewell to Major John Eisenhower, commanding officer, at a battalion review last Saturday. Major Eisenhower has been temporarily assigned to the White House prior to attending the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The parade was held at Bolling Bowl in the First Battalion area. After the troops had formed on the parade field, Maj. Eisenhower trooped the line with Major Joel B. Wood, executive officer. Addressing his men, Maj. Eisenhower reminded them of the unit's history and its present important mission. He thanked them for their excellent cooperation during his nine months' assignment as their commander.

Maj. Eisenhower has been replaced by Lt. Colonel Henry S. McDonald Jr., who assumed command of First Battalion this week. A 1928 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Col. McDonald reported to Fort Benning from duty with the Military Aid Group in Greece.

Army to Rebuild 2 Combat Units For A-Warfare

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The Army is ready to begin experiments to determine the best battle-fied organization for fighting an atomic war.

Two "guinea pig" divisions—one infantry, the other armored—(Rumor has it that one of these is the 47th Infantry Division, stationed at Fort Benning.)

will be taken apart and rebuilt in the autumn to test tentative conclusions reached by Army staff officers after several years of study.

Army planners are convinced that the conventional division structure must be radically changed and strengthened to win the kind of battles that may lie ahead.

They believe, for example, that an atomic-age division must have more mobility, flexibility and self-sufficiency in combat than ever before.

It must be able to disperse at a moment's notice to hold to a minimum the devastating effect of nuclear weapons. But at the same time, each segment of the scattered division must be under the firm control of the division commander. Each must be able to stand and fight out of its own resources.

The Army has not yet identified the two divisions slated for reorganization. They are to be trained through the winter along wholly new lines and will be put through a series of tests next spring.

The program is experimental and the Army planners have no fixed ideas about what they will learn from it. They believe that the self-sufficiency needed by the new units will require some duplication of support forces—artillery, armor, signals and so forth.

How large such a division would have to be is one of the questions that the tests should answer. The present infantry division calls for 17,509 and the trend in recent years has been downward.

The Unspoken Word

Bankers, actors, statesmen and merchants pass on the street unnoticed. To the sidewalk observer they are merely men. There is no way of telling what banks they are or what speeches they've made. Their lives are recorded in reference books and commercial journals. How different the soldier's life! With each stride he thrusts his military career before the eyes of every onlooker. He carries his history on his chest. Each award, each badge, each ribbon speaks for the soldier.

The musket with the wreath and the star centered over the wreath tells us that the soldier is a combat infantryman who has fought in two wars. The yellow, red, white, and blue ribbon tells us that he fought in the Pacific during World War II and the arrowhead on the ribbon indicates that he participated in one of the amphibious landings. The blue ribbon edged with white and with a white center stripe marks his service in Korea during the recent conflict.

We know he's a good shot because he's wearing the badge of an expert rifleman but he's not only a good shot, he's a hero. He risked his life to save the lives of his buddies.

That first ribbon, the one in the top row, closest to the center of his body, it doesn't look much. It's only 1-3/8 by 3-8 inches but the blue and white stripes with the red stripe in the center identify it as the Silver Star, the third highest award for bravery under combat conditions. Beside it is the Bronze Star Medal with the letter "V" to show that the decoration is for valor in combat and after that the Purple Heart with a bronze clasp.

Thus, the soldier's chest speaks for the man in khaki. Unfortunately, all too few of us can read this unique symbolic language and many a soldier's deeds pass unnoticed. Unseen, however, is the soldier who has his ribbons incorrectly arranged. It's like reading a book in which the last chapter comes first or like eating the dessert before the soup.

Soldier, if you were courageous enough to earn those awards and ribbons, be proud to wear them with right. But remember, it's a crime punishable by court martial to wear ribbons and decorations to which you are not entitled. If you are in doubt as to what ribbons you may wear and how to wear them, consult your personnel officer.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

Sgt. Brady H. Drake, USA, now a civilian, was a POW in Korea. He was captured in 1950 and released in September 1953. He won $100 and a George Washington Honor Medal for his letter on "What America Means to Me." He wrote: "I was released from the Communist POW camp with the other prisoners of war. I've grown up a lot. I've learned to hate the Communists. That is why I want to Korea in 1950, to safeguard the United States of America. We gave the Communists many a headache."

"When I first saw Old Glory at Panmunjon, it struck me. I can never miss freedom until it is taken away from him. I'll write every chance I get. Now I'm free to say and write what I want."

Bible Is One Light That Never Fails

BY CHAPLAIN (FIRST LT.) ERNEST F. WENTZEL

The Word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119:105.

There is only one book in the world that is never off the presses. It is a book that is read and loved by more people than any other. The Bible is the most remarkable Book in the world. You can read and study it for a lifetime, but you cannot outlearn it. It has a message for you, no matter what your temperament and your tastes may be, no matter through what trials or sufferings you may pass. Today you are happy and you read the 103rd Psalm and sing with

A greater joy unto the Lord. To-morrow you will be broken and anxious, and you turn to the 14th chapter of St. John's Gospel, comforting yourself with these words: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me." The next day your sins come to your remembrance and want to drive you to despair. You turn to the first chapter of Isaiah, where God gives you the blessed assurance: "Come now let us reason together, saith the Lord. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be as like crimson, they shall be as wool."

Your Unerring Guide

This wonderful Book is also your unerring guide to heaven. It directs you through life, it helps you to pass through the valley of the shadow of death, and brings you safely to the eternal mansions of the Lord to dwell with Him forever.

The Bible is the best guidebook in the world. The psalmist calls this Word a lamp and a light at night to enable us to read without difficulty. The reading of the Bible gives us a real understanding of life. In the Scriptures are God's revelations, telling us about Himself, about the beginning of all things, and also about the origin of sin and death. Above all, the Scriptures make known to us God's wonderful plan of salvation, making us wise through faith in Christ Jesus. The Bible unravels all our twisted ideas and notions and enables us to think straight, to think our thoughts after God.

The psalmist also calls the Bible a light. A light is used to show the way. There is nothing more distressing than losing the trail in the darkness of night. By nature we are spiritually blind. We do not know the way to God. The Bible is the light through which the Holy Spirit leads us in the narrow way to life and by which He keeps us on the narrow way in order that we do not get into the mire of sin and into the quicksands of doubt, and perish.

A light removes mysteries. In the dark there are often mysterious happenings. Throw on the light, and at once the mysteries disappear. Many things happen in our lives that we cannot explain. We are constantly asking, "Why, O Lord?" As we turn to the Scriptures, we learn that God turns everything to the good of those who love Him.

This Word never leaves us in the lurch. There is no condition of life, there is no problem so perplexing, but the Scriptures give us some previous assurance, some real help, and some consoling message. This Word never fails us in time of sickness. The Scriptures comfort us in the days when we have lost every human friend. Above all, it is our stay in the days of prosperity. The Bible is a sure and certain light, leading us unerringly to eternal life. It tells us that we are sinners but we can come daily to Christ and be cleansed through His holy, precious blood.

To whom is the Bible a lamp and a light? To all who accept its saving truths.

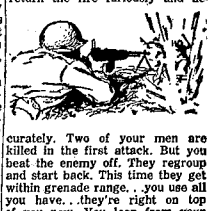

Search, then, the Scriptures; for God speaks to us through this Book. In this Word we will find a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path that leads us to the eternal home in heaven.

MEDAL OF HONOR

It's lonely in an outpost. It is an infantryman's job to be lonely. You look out into the dark. Korean night aware that the Chinese are doing the same. Your M.L.R. (Main Line of Resistance) relies on you for advance warnings. As a sergeant you're in charge of this particular position; you have three men besides yourself. Then suddenly the enemy is no longer watching—they are pouring everything they have on your position. You return the fire furiously and accurately. Two of your men are killed in the first attack. But you beat the enemy off. They regroup and start back. This time they get within grenade range. . . you use all you have. . . they're right on top of you now. You leap from your foxhole and get them with the one way left—your bayonet. You get six and break the attack. The enemy decides it's "safer" to bypass your position and hit the M.L.R. . . but you have warned them in time and they are ready. The enemy artillery comes in hard. . . right on your position.

"For conspicuous gallantry and courage above and beyond the call of duty the Congressional Medal of Honor is awarded to Sgt. Donn F. Porter, Infantry, United States Army, a member of Co. G, 14th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division. . . Posthumously."

SERGEANT WHO SMOTHERED GRENADE AWARDED MEDAL

The widow of a 22-year-old Fort Benning sergeant was presented a posthumous Soldier's Medal Tuesday by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

Mrs. Helen Graham of Phenix City, Ala., accepted the medal awarded to her husband, Sgt. Cecil B. Graham, who was killed March 4 by a hand grenade on Hook Range.

Sgt. Graham, who had been an assistant instructor in the Weapons Department since November, 1951, was demonstrating the technique of firing hand grenades from a rifle when he deliberately threw himself on an exploding grenade to save the lives of his students.

He enlisted in the Army March 29, 1951, and was promoted to sergeant while assigned to The Infantry School.

The Soldier's Medal, instituted in 1926, is awarded to members of the Armed Forces who distinguish themselves by heroism in peace time.

REQUIEM IN A LAMB-MILD MONTH

Remembering Sgt. Cecil Graham

In a lamb-mild month of daffodils and buds, A sergeant rushed upon his life to choke A sudden demon-flame. His second cheek was taught: A soldier's life is bought by other bids Than those which wars promote. A green grenade Paused with design; and in this heave-half pause A sudden angel-whim whim-dared refuse Apposition of the combat oath. No need For higher echelon To spur his wisdom on to meet this foe. Now as I wade through this my lamb-mild life I wonder: was it courage for a laugh Or love for those who watched the schoolfish show Or discipline or martyrdom or haste Which prompted this rewarded sacrifice? Yet he nor we will know this act or place. When all the lamb-mild flower-months are past.

INSCRIPTION READS: 'IT TOLLS FOR THREE' M-Sgt. W. F. McGloin Rings New Device

Shiny Fire Bell Given To Unit by OC Platoon

In 12th OC Company, First Student Regiment, stands a new fire alarm bell — 85 pounds of burnished iron bearing the inscription, "It tolls for three." Around the bottom is inscribed, "Presented to 12th OC Company by Second Section, First Platoon, OC Class No. 10, 23 June 1954."

The idea for the bell started when the tactical officer of the Second Section promised the company commander that the fire alarm the company had could, and would be replaced. The officer was known to his section "As The Iron Duke." Hence the nickname, "The duke's ding dong."

At the presentation ceremony the donating section sang, "We've got the Ding Dong," as the bell was unveiled. After the ceremony Second Lt. J. A. Heiter was asked to be the first to ring the new bell, and did so with great gusto.

OC Reginald M. Goldsmith, chaperoned by OC John A. Ewald, started his search for the bell several weeks ago. Over 20 false leads WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The first unified field ration has been officially adopted by the Army, Corps.

Developed jointly by the four services, the Armed Forces Standard B Ration consists of 111 canned, dehydrated and other types of non-perishable food items. It is designed for field kitchen facilities where refrigeration is not available. It covers three meals a day for 15 days.

The Latest AFPS Report From Washington

(By Armed Forces Press Service) Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has expressed concern over the possibility that present officer career programs may be detracting from the operational readiness of the Armed Forces. In a memorandum to the three service secretaries and the Assistant Defense Secretary (Manpower & Personnel), Mr. Wilson pointed out that the post-WWII policies relative to education, training, rotation of duty, etc. may be adding unnecessary expenses and damaging officer morale because of the frequent duty station changes. As a result, a study is now underway to examine the possibility of lengthening many officer assignments.

Eight Per Cent Raise? 10 Womble Group Proposals Awaiting Legislative Action

(This is the third of four articles on the Army's implementation of the recommendations of the Womble Committee.)

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—A number of the Womble Committee's proposals to make the Army more attractive as a career are awaiting the legislative action necessary before they can be put into effect.

These are in addition to those recommendations, discussed in the previous articles, that have either been completed or are in progress.

The following actions are being proposed:

Home Loans—A bill to provide FHA-guaranteed home loans for personnel in the service, up to 95 percent of the appraised value, at an interest rate comparable to "GI Loans" for veterans, has passed the Senate.

Quarters Allowance—A bill to authorize occupancy of sub-standard government quarters without forfeiture of the entire rental allowance is in the Bureau of the Budget.

Dislocation Allowance—Legislation to reimburse military personnel for unusual expenses incident to permanent change of station has been sent to the Bureau of the Budget.

Dependent Education—Legislation being prepared provides for the education of government expenses of military dependents entitled to a free public school education, replacing the existing system of authorizing a specific number of annual appropriations to partially offset tuition charges.

Survivor Benefits—Defense Department is preparing legislation to equalize survivor benefits for all regular and reservist personnel who die in active service.

Dual Compensation—A bill has been introduced in Congress raising the salary limitations of retired personnel who are employed by the Federal Government to $4,500 a year without loss of retired pay.

Incentive-Hazardous Duty Pay—A bill to increase the $45 a month combat pay authorized during the Korean conflict has been sent to the Bureau of the Budget. Legislation is also being prepared to make certain increases in special pay for flying duty.

Basic Pay—Since enactment of the Career-Compensation Act of 1949, the cost-of-living index has risen from 101.5 to 114.8 percent. A military pay increase of 8.7 percent was authorized in 1952. Two bills providing for a military cost-of-living increase of eight percent have been introduced in Congress.

The Defense Department, however, has no proposal for a pay increase in its current legislative program.

Re-enlistment Bonus—Legislation to increase the bonus paid for reenlistment of regular Army, Navy and Air Force personnel has been introduced in Congress.

NEW WRECKERS ARRIVE . . . Thomas Brack of Balltmore, Md., left, Ordnance Corps technician, explains the use of the hydraulically-operated boom and hoist of a 33,225-pound wrecker to Cpl. Mike White of Cullman, Ala. Twenty medium wreckers have arrived to be used by troop units and ordnance personnel in removing and installing power pack vehicles. An Ordnance Corps technician staff has been assigned to explain the use and maintenance of the new vehicles.

Solons' Service Agenda Re-Up Bonus Bill To Pass?

BY CPL. JOE TAYLOR, AUS (AFPS) Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The House is expected to take prompt action on the Re-Enlistment Bonus bill (S. 3039) passed by the Senate.

The bill, which has the approval of both Pentagon and Congressional leaders, sets up a new formula for computing the amount paid for reenlistment.

Instead of payments being based solely on the serviceman's term

The House has before it a Delayed Medals bill (HR 9001), which may correct many injustices in the awarding of decorations to members of the Armed Forces. The bill provides that awards may be made without regard to time limits in cases where the medal has been held up or denied because of an administrative error. The Defense Department has put its support behind the bill.

of re-enlistment, the new plan takes into consideration both his grade and the number of times he has re-enlisted previously. The largest bonus will go for his first re-enlistment. This bill will probably become law before Congress adjourns late this month.

DELAYED MEDALS

The House has before it a Delayed Medals bill (HR 9001), which may correct many injustices in the awarding of decorations to members of the Armed Forces. SAM REYNOLDS, PATRICIA GRANT, LEO DAWSON AND FORT JACKSON TAKE FIRST IN 3RD ARMY GOLF TOURNEY

Sam Reynolds Batters Bar for 3A Golf Crown

Leo Dawson, Pat Grant, Fort Jackson Win Other Titles at Benning Meet

Par-shattering Sammy Reynolds, playing what he considered the greatest game of his career, finished in a blaze of glory to capture the Third Army Golf Championship here last week.

Sam fired a blistering four under par 68 in the final round to wind up with a nine under par score of 279, believed to be the lowest in Third Army tourney history. His first three day's scores were 74, 69, and 68.

For Slamming Sammy, who will turn pro next year, it was the first time he had broken 280 in a 72-hole meet. All his thanks went to a star-studded field which pressured him from start to finish.

The competitors he referred to were Clifton Harrington of Fort Bragg, whose one under par 287, good for second place, could possibly have won tournaments elsewhere; Bill Williamson of Fort Jackson, former University of North Carolina star, who was third with 288, and Eddie Johnson, also of Fort Jackson, 1953 Third Army champion, who finished fourth with 289.

Johnson's teammate, Purvis Ferris, 1953 Winston-Salem city champ, nailed down fifth place with 292, and rounded out the five man squad which will carry Third Army hopes into the All-Army tourney July 26-31 at Fort Myers, Va.

Team honors went to Fort Jackson, the team averaging under 74 per man in the tourney. In repeating Third Army title, Jackson garnered a score of 1,476. Fort Benning followed with 1,504. Third was Camp Gordon, with 1,529 and fourth Fort Bragg, with 1,548.

Other scores were Fort Campbell, 1,602; Fort McPherson, 1,672; Atlanta General Depot, 1,706; Fort McClellan, 1,781; Camp Stewart, 1,831; Redstone Arsenal, 1,849; Tennessee.

Co E Leads Softball In Intramural Loop

The Infantry School Detachment Intramural Softball League, now going into the second half, is led by Company E, which boasts a record of seven wins against one loss.

In second place is Team I from Company G, with a five-one record. The season will end on August 23 with a tournament to decide the winner.

DIVARTY'S ENIGMA

The powerful Divarty team which has twice beaten the 1954 Bearcats this year, hasn't managed to win a game from the second place Red Bulls in six tries. This accounts for six of Divarty's nine losses for the season.

nessee Military District, 1,850; Georgia Military District, 1,924 and Florida Military District, 1,960.

Leo Dawson of Fort Benning topped the Senior Division title with a 72-hole score of 316. Five strokes back was Frederick Potts of Fort Bragg. The two were tied at the end of 54 holes but Dawson rallied to grab the title.

Patricia Grant of Fort McClellan ran away with the Women's Championship by finishing 77 strokes ahead of her nearest rival, Clara Zunker of Fort Bragg. Pat, who led all the way, carded an 81 to finish with a 316 total.

Trophies were presented to champions and runners-up in each flight by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

5 Sparkplugs Keep Bearcats on Top in TIC Loop

Slamming the door in the faces of contenders long has been the trademark of championship athletic teams. No exceptions are made in the 1954 TIC baseball circuit, who met Divarty's Redlegs, in a three-game playoff for first-half honors starting Tuesday.

Heavily favored by virtue of superior armament corps, the 'Cats, Pitcher Fred Kipp smacked a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give the 1954 4-3 win over Divarty in the first game of the playoff Tuesday night.

Should they wrap up the Benning title, will enjoy the unique distinction of occupying two Post pinnacles during the same season. Divarty succumbed to the Bearcats in a three-game playoff for the Camp Rucker title prior to the 47th's arrival here.

It takes nine players to comprise a baseball team, but every outstanding aggregation in the field of sports is marked by one or more individuals, who, through exceptional skill, plus the indefinable attribute of leadership, contribute more than their proportionate share of the winning effort.

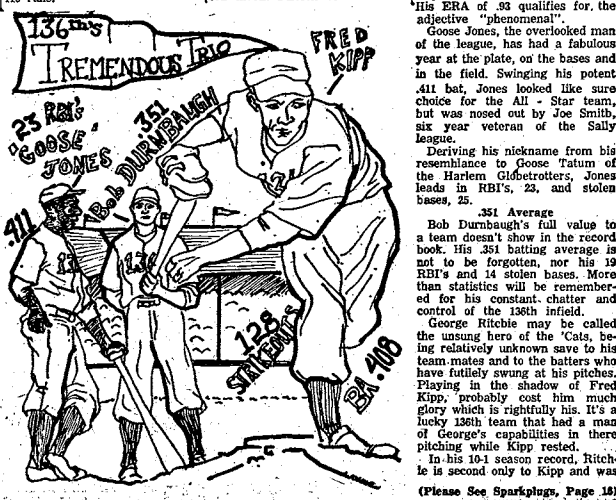

Five Sparkplugs The '54 edition of the Bearcats is particularly fortunate to boast at least five "sparkplugs". Fred Kipp, George Ritchie, Jim "Goose" Jones, Bob Durnbaugh, and Anthony Guaitieri. Although the quintet includes two pitchers, Kipp and Ritchie, the five boast a com-

Spotlighting Sports

In reply to many queries concerning the phrase, "... the automobile, with all its multifarious utilities and facilities therefore..." in last week's Spotlighting, the following amplification is hereby... as they say in the Military... submitted:

1. Utilities (multifarious and otherwise):
 - a. Transportation (as distinguished from joy-riding).
 - b. Joy-riding (Sunday driving).
 - c. Courting (replacing the old-fashioned living room divan).
 - d. Dormitory (for people too tight—in both senses of the word—to patronize Motels).
 - e. Hot-rod-ding.
2. Facilities:
 - a. Motels.
 - b. Drive-ins (Banks, movies, restaurants, ice cream parlors, etc.)

Note that TIME magazine last week also is concerned with the decline and fall of minor-league baseball... happy to find support in a national mag... In support of our contention that the slow pace of the action is not "killing the game," invite your attention to the dissertation which follows...

BY GARY M. CORBETT

Coach Buster Skelton and his 135th Inf. Red Bulls wrote an anti-climactic finish to their second-half duel with the Fred Kipped 136th Bearcats on Bastille Day as they staged one of the most remarkable exhibitions of delaying tactics seen on Georgia soil since Joe Johnston stilled Sherman's advance on Atlanta.

The Bearcats cinched the second half TIC loop title, 9-0, before one of the largest crowds of the season under the Gowdy field lights, but Skelton's rain-making tactics, the reluctance of Bull infielders to retire Bearcat runners, who spent the last two innings attempting suicide, and Umpire Charlie Gaines' unorthodox decisions completely took the play away from the contest, which had been billed as a pitchers' duel between Kipp and John Boyd.

Only a blow-by-blow account of the highlights of the encounter can give full justice to the travesty:

FIRST INNING:

Boyd, the All-Star pitcher of the Red Bulls, dealt a base on balls to Hank Heffner, Bearcat shortstop. Bobby Durnbaugh then slashed a single into left, sending Heffner to second. With a count of two and one on Hank Smeltzley, Heffner and Durnbaugh flashed a double steal. Hal then singled, scoring Heffner, Durnbaugh stopping at third. With a count of one and one on "Goose" Jones, the Cats cleanup hitter, Boyd threw a curve into the dirt which rolled all the way to the backstop, enabling Durnbaugh to score and Smeltzley to take third. Jones then walked and stole second. Randy Dale, the catcher, hit a long fly scoring Smeltzley and advancing Goose to the hot corner. With Tony Guaitieri at the plate Bull catcher Duane Butcher passed a curve and Jones crossed the plate standing up as the ball careened off the backstop. Tony lashed out a single and trotted to second on Don Fleming's walk. On another passed ball, both runners advanced. The passed ball was of little significance, however as Vinnie Marcialis was soon on first base via four balls. Fred Kipp, the pitcher, a dangerous 400 hitter, then singled, scoring Guaitieri. Fleming was out at third on a very close play trying to capitalize on the hit. Marcialis was content at second. Boyd then threw another one away, Marcialis grabbing third, Kipp stoically holding first. Heffner, batting for the second time in the inning, struck out to retire the side. Four hits, five runs, two men left on base. That was the ball game, although the 'Cats later added four tallies.

Sfc. Allen Tells One!

It's hard to catch "the one that got away," as any fisherman will testify. But that's just what Sfc. William T. Allen, mess sergeant of Company G, Infantry School Detachment, thought when he felt a mighty tug on his line while fishing at King's Pond.

Sergeant Allen set back on the line and was ready for the fight. After about five minutes of reeling in the line and letting it out again he noticed that a fellow fisherman also had a "whopper" on the line. As it turned out, both men had hooked the fish and were pulling at it from opposite directions.

After the experience, which provided a hearty laugh, both fishermen were again casting for the legendary "one that got away."

It took but 48 minutes for Whitmoyer and Drake to completely outclass their opponents in the doubles. Second seeded, although playing in his first Post Tourney, Whitmoyer breezed thru the entire tournament with ease. He will be one of a team of six to represent the post in the Third Army tournament to be held at a later date. Awards were presented to the winners and runner-up by Lt. Col. Ralph L. Todd, Special Services officer. Eliminations will start this week for both doubles and singles, according to "Chuck" Evers, director of tennis activities.

Marksmen Turn in Sizzling Scores During Rifle & Pistol Practices

Marksmen vying for berths on the U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol Teams, which will compete in the National Trophy Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 11 to Sept. 4, matched the hot Georgia sun with some sizzling scores during the first week of practice here.

M-Sgt. H. L. Joel Benner of West Point, Va., shared third at 236 during the week as more than 40 experts averaged better than 230. Final selection of the rifle and pistol teams is expected to be made in the next three weeks. About 30 to 40 experts will be retained for each the pistol and rifle teams, according to a report from Rifle and Pistol Headquarters. TIC-47th Event

Swim Marks May Topple In Meet Starting Sat.

Three Briant Wells Fieldhouse swimming records, set last year by the 508th Airborne ICT when it ran up a 90-point total in the TIC tank championships, stand to take a dive under the assaults of TIC and 47th Division swimmers in the '55 swim-offs beginning Saturday.

SWIMMERS, READY! MEANS ACTION IN TANK MEET. Lt. H. Shaw, Pagan, Tenthousand Award Star's Gun

Six other Benning marks will be established in events heretofore not included in local aquatic competition.

The 100 yard breast stroke mark of 1:10 is menaced by Robert Hines, 15D, consistently clocked around 1:05 and less. Michael Burns, 164th, who has broken 1:00 with monotonous regularity this summer, should better the 1:01.5 standard for the 100 yard free style.

Odds-on favorite to eclipse the 400 yard free style relay of 4:30.8 and aid the 164th to victory are Burns, Robert Conzen, Richard Fischer and Howard Tobias, who have been timed around 4:00 flat on several occasions.

Masuyoshi Ohama, 164th, ranks as favorite to establish the standards for two new events, the 400 and 800 yard free style courses. Ohama won the 400 and 800 in a recent dual meet with the 136th and scored a second in the 800 meter event at the Aquatics held July 3.

Other events to be inaugurated include the 300 yard individual medley, the 200 yard free style and the 300 yard medley relay.

164th Splashes to 47th Swim Victory

Before a large crowd, at Briant Wells Fieldhouse the 164th completely dominated the 47th Division swimming meet last week by the score of 72 points. Their nearest competitor, 136th scored 31 points while Divarty and Special Troops scored 10 and 9 respectively. Led by Ohama Masuyoshi, who scored 10 points, the 164th had 11 firsts, 12 seconds and 3 thirds in a tune-up for the TIC swim meet. Divarty's lone representative, George Watson, won in both the 100 meter back stroke and 400 meter individual medley relay to score 10 points for the Redlegs. Michael Burns of Special Troops was first in the 200 meter free style, second in the 100 meter free style and third in the 50 meter free style.

The team of Eugene Cotter and Jack McCord walked away with the 3 meter diving to the combined score of 206.67 points over 164th's Feno Volpe and Green's 124.04.

In the 50 meter free style Richard Fisher won with the time of 26 seconds, Jack McCord, B o B Porque; the 400 meter medley relays, (4 man teams), Ray Brady,

The 135th started their initial go at the plate with a bang as Russ Davis singled look record on a family, and was safely moved to third on Fred Kipp's balk. Things took a sudden dip in the hopes of the Red Bulls as their three big hitters, Bob Brubaker, Dava Sch-wartz, and Al Grandcolas became the first three victims of the famous Fred Kipp strikeout pitch. With the assistance of plate ump Gaines, Kipp whitened 13 Bulls in the seven-inning fasce.

FOURTH INNING:
As the teams changed sides after the third inning with the Cats leading, a brisk wind started to blow and kick the dust around. It was definitely threatening to rain. All the time the Bearcats were at bat it was obviously getting ready to drench the patrons and players at Gowdy. Kipp gave up his first of two walks, as Bob Brubaker left off for the bunt on Dave Schwartz became Fred's first base line. Reid held the ball seven strike-out to dim hopes of a rally. Al Grandcolas re-appeared any hope as he hit a sharp grounder hit to retire Brubaker. At second, Frank Reid added fuel to the dying embers with a single, but Butcher looked at a third walk anyway and sent the ball into right field. He left Hoffner scoring on the play. Smeltzey, realizing his mistake headed for second for what appeared to be a sure out and the Bearcats came to Grandcolas who stood on the bag, but refused to tag Smeltzey, who decided to head for third. He got into the Bears' score on umpire George Doerr got fed up with the farce and called Smeltzey out.

Bill Baliz ambled to the plate to start the Bull half, and Kipp politely obliged by pitching strike one. Buster Skelton started to make like an Indian rambler on third base as he motioned to the ump that it was raining. Plate umpire Charles Gaines would have no part of it and bellowed, "Play ball!" I'm med it a taly Buster yelled, "Time!" He wanted to talk to Baliz. The conference over, Baliz stepped up to the plate and Kipp again leaped to his feet. A necessary delay. Gaines told Kipp to pitch. Baliz was down the line and the Red Bulls out. Fred salted a beauty over the plate at which time Gaines promptly boomed, "Strike three!" That brought the Red Bulls out. Doughboys

The Doughboys have a rough schedule in preparation for the tournament. Among the teams they'll meet will be a red hot team from LaGrange, facing Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, pitcher from the St. Louis Cardinals and Dixie Mills, a semi-pro from LaGrange.

The Doughboys will play Fort McPherson, as the inter-camp series starts at Gowdy Field next Wednesday. Probable pitchers are: Fred Kipp, 161, and "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, ex-54. Louis Cardinals star.

Frank Reid, who managed to stay around through the rain and storm, both natural and man-made, doubted to freshen the dampened hope of the Bulls. It was all to no avail as second base was as far as he got. Gebhard, batting in Butcher's spot, swung futilely at three pitches. Bill Blatz filed to short right and Power, who relieved Ruocco, ended the game in the exact same manner as the "Mighty Casey". Tony has driven 22 runs across the plate, just one behind the team leader Jones.

U.S. Has Spent $13 Billion on Our NATO Friends

Since 1949 the United States has pumped nearly $13 billion into the economy and military establishments of 13 countries bound together with the U. S. in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This represents perhaps the biggest bargain since Manhattan island went on the block for $24.00 worth of trinkets.

The monumental achievements of NATO during its five-year existence will form the basis of discussion for Troop Information Conference on post during the week of Aug. 28. During five years of NATO, the forces containing the expansion of Communism in Europe have grown from a feeble 15 ill-equipped, poorly trained, uncoordinated divisions to a potential of more than 90 well-trained, fully equipped divisions under centralized command. These are but a few of the fruits of the $13 billion the US has contributed to NATO.

Steadily bases of more than 20 usable air bases were in friendly hands on the Continent. Now, with the US and the nations concerned sharing expenses, 120 bases ring the perimeter of Communist-dominated European territory. Allied air forces (exclusive of the USAF) have more than doubled during the period.

Combined, the NATO nations boast annual steel production five times that of the USSR. If the European NATO countries were to swing to the Soviet Orbit, their steel production combined with that of the USSR, would nearly equal that of the U.S.

One of the major assets of the Communist powers is a seemingly inexhaustible supply of manpower. NATO comprises a population total slightly in excess of double that of the Soviet Union.

Through NATO, which commits the United States and all other members to immediate action in case of aggression against any member, a bastion has been erected in Europe which is credited with a major role in the checking of Soviet expansion in that area. NATO embers include Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Turkey, and the United Kingdom.

Based on Armed Forces Talk No. 471, the Troop Information conferences will evaluate the achievements of NATO in view of United States military and economic assistance contrasted with the beneficial results of the alliance. The conclusion that "each member of NATO receives more than its contribution" is inescapable in view of the facts.

Joy Cayler Booked Here For 2 Weeks of Gaiety

When Joy Cayler, acclaimed "Queen of the Trumpet," leads her popular all-girl orchestra into the Main Officers Open Mess on Saturday, Aug. 7, dance and music lovers will be accorded a rare entertainment treat.

Blending superb musical stylings with charm of appearance and manner, this "easy on the eyes" all-girl musical crew has won the distinction of being regarded as one of America's top-light orchestras.

Tasteful, original arrangements, played with outstanding musicianship and the featurings of clever novelty tunes, have been the contributing factors to the rise of the orchestra.

Realizing the value of a group which could provide showmanship and entertainment as well as dance music, Joy began to develop the vocal and comedy personalities within the band. Utilizing this talent, Joy incorporated the girls into a revue-type show which has become a regular feature of each engagement.

New Uniform Gets Army OK

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of the Army has officially announced the adoption of its new general duty uniform to be known as Army Green, shade 44. Procurement of the new uniform will begin soon, but it will not be issued until the winter of 1955.

Stocks of the present shade 33 OD uniforms will be below $5,000,000 in value by that time, the Army announces.

Complete details of the new uniform and its accessories plus the wear-out period for old uniforms for both officers and EM will be announced soon. The Army Green uniform is not authorized for either on-duty or off-duty wear until after dates to be announced later by the Army.

Five months are required for the production of the cloth and about 13 months for the clothing industry to manufacture and distribute the new uniforms. Initially, the Army will purchase some 6,000,000 yards of cloth to go into 1,400,000 uniforms.

The DA explained that changes of uniform in the past have indicated that it would be several years before the entire Army would be garbed in the new uniform.

Payday Warning

Fort Benning personnel are warned by the provost marshal of the likelihood of assault and robbery around payday and the dangers of hitchhiking.

According to Lt. Col. George A. Bieri many cases of robbery have been reported in the first week following last payday.

"A soldier coming out of a club following payday is often an easy victim," he said.

Col. Bieri also said that several cases have been reported by soldiers who were robbed by hitchhikers posing as servicemen.

Rowny Writes On Atomic War For Journal

An article written by Col. Edward Rowny of the Tactical Department appears in the August issue of the Army Combat Forces Journal. Entitled "Ground Tactics in an Atomic War," the article points out the possibility of winning an atomic war by making modifications in present day Infantry tactics. Col Rowny writes: "I believe that it is possible for us to make changes in our tactics which will allow us to win an atomic war and which, with minor changes, will permit us to fight a non-atomic war as well. Our problem is to examine the influence of atomic weapons on our methods and see what can be done without destroying our capability for fighting a non-atomic war."

Bills Drag in Congress

There is virtually no chance for an Armed Forces pay raise before Congress adjourns in early August.

ago twin pay raise bills (S3701 and HR 9795) were introduced authorizing an across-the-board increase of 10 percent. However, they have not been approved by the Defense Department and little action is expected. Neither of these two latest bills has received Armed Services Committee consideration.

Dependent Housing Bill (HR 9647) is due to move onto the floor of the House soon after having been examined carefully by the House Armed Services Committee during the past few weeks. This bill has had difficulty getting underway from the beginning and speedy action by both Houses will be necessary if it is to be passed this session. The Defense Department's original proposal called for construction of 25,000 family units at a total cost of $500 million. This has been pared down some already with a strong chance it will be reduced even further. More Assistant Secretaries Immediate House action on the bill to create two more assistant secretaries each for the Army, Navy and Air Force was held up last week when several representatives rose to point out that this would bring the total of top civilian aids in the Pentagon to 25. Now the bill will have to be brought up to the floor under regular procedures. It has already passed the Senate and is not expected to meet any concerted House opposition. The purpose of the bill is to insure complete civilian control of the defense establishment.

ACHIEVEMENT... Lt. Col. Robert O. English has been cited for outstanding work as chairman of the Staff Department's Intelligence Committee. He received an Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement.

Third Army Officers Inspect Ordnance Sect.

College Graduate EMs Help Special Projects

Seven social science assistants, all enlisted men, are playing an important part in the Army's research program being carried on at Fort Benning. The young soldiers assist civilian psychologists in Human Research Unit No. 3, and officials report their talents coupled with their college degrees, have helped to save valuable time. In one project, for example, researchers wanted a new pop-up type target to study firing techniques. Pfc. Seward Smith of Chevy Chase, Md., used his interest in electricity and mechanics to help researchers develop the target they needed. Smith knew what the researchers wanted and was able to show the post Ordnance and Signal Sections exactly what was required. Pfc. Albert A. Ward of Detroit, Mich., worked with Smith on the project, which is providing useful information about rifle marksmanship training. In another project psychologists studying night fighting tactics built a special range with devices to simulate an attacking enemy force with artillery, machine gun fire and automatic weapons. In order that all enemy activity could be timed exactly the same for each group of men who were tested on the range a special control device was needed. Pfc. Robert B. Kelly of Albany, N. Y., helped researchers develop the device from parts of a discarded coin operated pin ball machine. One unit of the device nicknamed the Brain, times the various types of enemy action and another unit, called the Worker, actually sets off charges. Working with Kelly is Pfc. Eugene Heide of West Pittsburgh, Pa., who has helped in the development of many plans for the special range. Two other men in the research unit work on a project named HILLO, a study of phases of airborne training given at Fort Benning. They are Pfc. Jerome M. Nathan of Los Angeles, Calif., and Col. Kimball Nedved of Gloucester, Ill. Pfc. Charles Mighell of Yorkville, Ill., works in the Human Research Unit's statistical section, collecting, organizing, and helping to analyze data for the projects.

Col. Hatfield Assumes Automotive Dept. Post
Lt. Col. Mills C. Hatfield of Ada, Okla., has been appointed assistant technical training group chief in the Automotive Department. With the Office of Special Weapons Development at Fort Bliss, Texas, before coming to Fort Benning, Col. Hatfield commanded the First Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, in Korea in 1952.

The Chaplain's Corner

Jesus' Way Proves Best One to Choose

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Sherman

Jesus said: "I am the way, the truth, and the light; if any man come unto the Father but by me, he is the same as a thief and a robber."

In many instances today, almost everyone wants to have his way, and in selecting or choosing his goal, he goes into the choice of his own way.

The person who chooses Jesus' way, which is the way of sympathy, understanding, love, service, humility, and righteousness, will be the one to eventually go through this life without having met his wit's end, nor the dead-end toward the pillar of life.

In considering the choice of the righteous way of living, is also giving your service for humanity's sake. The person who lives for him and his fellow men, no thought for the betterment of himself or his fellowmen will also find that his way leads only into a selfish end.

Jesus' way for this person would mean to debase someone in some worthy cause; besides his immediate selfish aim, so that in helping, he would help to make someone love his fellowmen; and therefore love God.

Love can hardly be expressed without service; neither can Jesus' way be expressed without saying: that he gave his life to save the world; and personally, He gave his life for you, choice a way, a decision—which way? Jesus' way—one who serves humanity—or one who lives in selfishness for the world?

One day a soldier came into the Chaplain's office and gave him a rather lengthy story of his life; and finally he admitted that he had tried everything possible that he knew in trying to work out the solution to his family and personal problems.

The Chaplain discovered some very good qualities about this soldier; he was kind but he was self-willed; he was trained, but he was not a good soldier; he was friendly, but he was too suspicious and not trusting. With these qualities without knowing which way to go, he became easily confused. All that was necessary for the Chaplain to do was to help him select the choice of his good points, and show him the cause of his weak points, which help

MEDAL OF HONOR

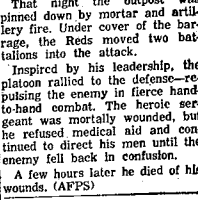

Two days before the cease fire in Korea, S-Sgt. Ambrosio Guillen, USMC, was responsible for turning an overwhelming enemy attack into a disorderly retreat. He lost his life doing it.

The Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously for his heroic leadership of a platoon of Co. F, 2nd Bn, 7th Marines, 1st Marine Div., in the defense of an outpost well forward of the main line of resistance. That was on the night of July 25, 1953, near Songchun.

That night the outpost was pinned down by mortar and artillery fire. Under cover of the barrage, the Reds moved two battalions into the attack.

Inspired by his leadership, the platoon rallied to the defense, repulsing the enemy in fierce hand-to-hand combat. The heroic sergeant was mortally wounded, but he refused medical aid and continued to direct his platoon until the enemy fell back in confusion.

A few hours later he died of his wounds. (AFPS)

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

Mgt. Maynard L. Larson, now assigned to the 600th ASU, Ft. Lewis, Wash., was wounded in Italy during WWII. He won a 400 prize and George Washington Honor Medal for his letter on "What America Means to Me." He wrote:

"America to me means freedom and the right to 'Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness.' Under the Constitution, the Government is the servant of the people.

"America means bigness, greatness, humanness, and tolerance. It means wide fields of opportunity—agriculture, ranching, industry, mining, lumbering, oil wells. It means big business and small business; big people and little people; big hearts in a big land.

"Last, but most important of all, it means the right and duty of all Americans to join in the fight to preserve our democratic way of life."

What does America mean to you? Enter the 1954 Freedom Foundation Contest. Send your letter of no more than 500 words to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, 1016 N. McCadden Place, Los Angeles 38, Calif. Your letter must bear your name, rank, service number, and organization. It must be received before midnight Nov. 11, 1954. Letters received after that date will be considered for the next year's awards. (AFPS)

Brahms Heads Library Treat

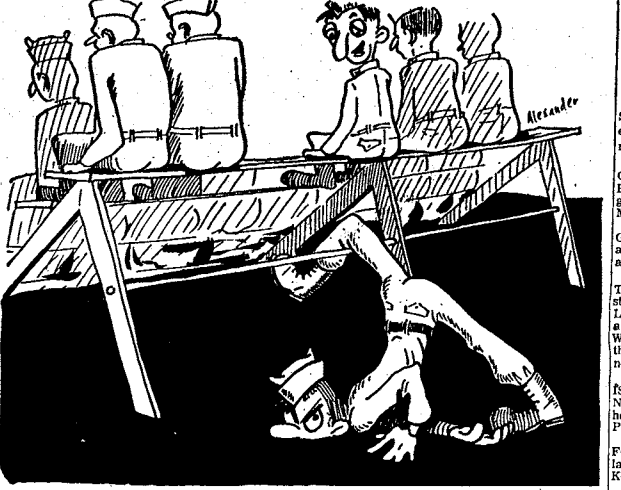

A recorded concert featuring Brahms' "Symphony No. 2" and "Symphony No. 4" will be presented at the Main Post Library Tuesday evening at 7:30.

So popular have the symphonies of Johannes Brahms become today, so familiar a feature of standard orchestral repertoire, the present generation of listeners has come perhaps to take too much for granted and is not always as delighted or moved by them as their composer may have intended. (AFPS)

The second actor to enter the skit was Pvt. Donald W. Richard, dressed as a woman, and Uncle Sam gave "her" a talk on two easy ways to save money, Savings Bonds and Soldiers' Deposits.

Solons' Service Agenda

Pay Raise Fading

by Cpl. Joe Taylor, AUS (AFPS Washington Correspondent)

Two factors are working against the possibility of a pay raise for servicemen as Congress aims for an adjournment date now tentatively set at Aug. 7. The first is that Congress has not yet voted to raise the national debt ceiling (which definitely will be necessary if civilian government workers receive a salary boost), and the second is that none of the service pay bills has received support from either Congressional leaders or the Defense Department. Thus the matter probably will receive renewed study, as Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson indicated at his last press conference, with a good chance for a DOD recommendation to be submitted next January.

MILITARY AID PROGRAM
President Eisenhower's military assistance program got tentative House approval last week as that body voted an appropriation of slightly more than $2.6 billion for foreign military aid. This sum was about $30 million less than the administration had requested but it did cover most of the essential parts of the program. Another cut of about $50 million was proposed but it was easily defeated, following an administration plea relayed by House Majority Leader Charles Halleck. The bill now is awaiting Senate action.

HOME LOAN BENEFITS
Final action of the bill to provide home loan benefits for career servicemen similar to those given to WWII and Korean veterans was held up by the extended Senate debate on the administration's atomic energy bill. Actually both promoted the bill but, because of a few minor differences, it will be referred to the Senate to reaffirm its position. There is little doubt that this bill will be cleared without further delay.

OLD WARSHIPS SAVED
The President has signed a bill to restore three old warships (the frigates Constitution (Old Ironsides) and Constellation, built before 1800 to fight the Barbary pirates, and the Hartford, which fought in the Civil War). The Constitution is now in Boston and is 90 percent restored. It will be kept there. The Constellation, also in Boston, will be patched up and transferred to Baltimore. The Hartford, now in Norfolk, Va., will be sent to Mobile, Ala., when repaired.

Dance Orch Scheduled By Rocker Clubbers

"You grow sweeter as the years go by," is perhaps the best way to describe the music and the trumpet sketching of Charlie Spivak, who brings his top-rated orchestra to the Post Rocker Club on Wednesday, Aug. 11.

Always a sweet band and winner of the coveted Downbeat poll in that category, Charlie is placing more emphasis on soft, danceable melodies than ever before. Spivak plays plenty of licks for the trained ear.

Charlie features his trumpet practically all the time which means that when you pass by the door, you know whose hand is in the room. He also leans towards ballads, another guarantee that your ears will enjoy a vacation.

Charlie has come a long way since the days when he was known as one of the greatest jazz trumpeters. He has established records at New York's Hotel Statler, the top hotel dance spot; and the Paramount Theatre on Broadway, mecca for dancing hands, to prove he's in the right groove.

One of the managers at the Statler summed it all up perfectly when he said, "Spivak blows clear enough for all to hear but people can still carry on a conversation."

When Spivak first tried his musical wings on his own, he became the highest paid free lance trumpeter in radio, playing on the Ford Symphony Hour, Kate Smith and

CHARLIE SPIVAK

Noted for his effortless playing, Spivak was directed to puff his cheeks and feign strenuous activity when trumpeting for a musical sequence in "Pin Up Girl" because the director felt that the look with which he played didn't look authentic.

Trumpeter Charlie has such lip and breath control of his instrument that he never uses a mute, even while playing the bell of his trumpet only two inches from the microphone.

Sfc. Redding Ran Away to Enlist

Sfc. Floyd Redding, grounds and police sergeant of Combat Training Command, has a military career which started when he was 13 years-old, was punctured, and then continued through Normandy, Okinawa, and Korea.

Sfc. Redding still carries scars from the fighting in Europe, Okinawa, and Korea, but his only "injury" during his first tour of duty was having to remain on post at Benning for nine months without leaving—so no one in town would see him.

In 1924, Redding, a native of Columbus, ran away from home and joined the Army here. He was assigned to 24th Infantry Regt. and worked in message center.

Fearing discovery by his mother, Redding never left the reservation except to go out on maneuvers with the unit. He said he did what land for two months with the 1834 Engr. Regt. (C), building roads during the latter stages of the fighting. There he was shot in the leg during the fighting.

Redding then moved to Japan for 18 months occupation duty with 1824th Quartermaster. He returned to Okinawa via Salpan. He remained on that bloody Pacific island for two months with the 15th Infantry Regt., Third Division. When the Third left Fort Benning in 1950 for Korea, Redding went too. He fought there for almost a year and brought back still another scar of a bullet wound in the leg.

RECEIVES GOLD LEAF... Capt. Harlan K. Peck, S-3 officer of Third Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, receives the gold leaf of a major from Lt. Col. Gus W. Schlitzkus, commanding officer of Third Battalion.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THIS COOKIE!

He has a few million buddies all dressed up the same way—and just looking for someplace to go. He's already sowed his wild rice in Korea, he's apt to be making hay in Indo-China. And he's interested in the real estate around Thailand, Burma, Indonesia and points Southeast.

So you'd better keep your eye on this cocky Red rooster. You're likely to run into him one of these days.

But you don't want to concentrate on the Chinese Reds alone. It's just as important to keep up on Tito's quarrels—on Nehru's latest sulking sessions—and the latest attempts to slip the world a monkey fann. There's some political jockeying you don't want to miss back home, and diplomatic sleight of hand that's worth keeping your eye on. And because you need a way to follow and measure the news quickly and completely, we hope you'll take advantage of this special offer.

Army Enters 35 in Southeastern Against Nation's Best Riflemen

The Southeastern Regional Rifle Matches, featuring 150 of the nation's finest military and civilian marksmen, is being held at Fort Benning today through Sunday. Teams representing the Army, Marines, National Guard, and Reserve Units — and clubs affiliated with the National Rifle Association — are entered in the four-day competition. Practice firing sessions and orientations were held before the matches opened, the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club headquarters, sponsor of the matches, announced.

The matches will get under way at 8 a.m. today following welcoming addresses by Infantry Center and contest officials and will be concluded Sunday with the presentation of individual and team awards.

The 35-man Army Rifle Team entered in the matches is coached by Major Frank Palmer, Fort Benning, and Capt. M. O. Elson, Fort Eustis, Va., and captained by Major Carl Byas, Fort Benning.

Heading the list is M-Sgt. Jacob Swela, Fort Lawton, Wash., whose 238.8 was the best average compiled by an Army marksman in 10 record - firing sessions on Fort Benning ranges. Others are M-Sgt. Harold Stafford, Chief Warrant Officer Robert Schroeder, Capt. Ray Orgon, M-Sgt. Francis Conway, Capt. Louis North, and First Lt. J. G. Couris, all of Fort Benning. SFC L. C. Crow, SFC P. A. Doughboys Wallop Redstone Arsenal

The Benning Doughboys will take on Fort McClellan tonight and tomorrow night at Anniston, Ala., and return home for a week's rest before playing a return engagement here with the powerful Fort McPherson nine on August 13 and 14.

The locals beat Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., Tuesday night following a rained-out encounter that had been scheduled for Monday night.

Lang, who gave up but six hits in the field fence. Playing heads-up ball the Doughboys showed a tight defense and all indications are that they will become a real threat in the Third Army Tournament next month.

At Grandcolas scored the only run of the game when he singled, advanced to second on Tite Franco's sacrifice bunt. After "Goose" Jones looked at a called third strike, Chip Thomas slugged a single into right field and that was the ball game.

Mizell, star pitcher for Ft. McPherson, had an easy time with the Doughboys and, except for a lapse in the eighth inning when he gave up 2 runs, kept the game well under control.

The "Macmen" scored but 5 runs and 12 hits off Lang and Gebhard while the Doughboys could do no better than 2 runs and 7 hits off Mizell.

Chinese Compete In Firing Matches

The first Chinese Nationalist Army sharpshooters to compete in the U.S. National Rifle and Pistol Matches are practice-firing at Fort Benning in preparation for the national competition Aug. 11-Sept. 4 at Camp Perry, Ohio. The 14-man team, which arrived in the U.S. from Formosa July 17, represent the best shots in the Chinese Nationalist Army, according to Lt. Col. Wei Weh, officer in charge of the group.

Heading the six-man pistol team is Lt. Col. Feng Yu Chung, who had the highest score during matches in Formosa in May-June. Others are Capt. Wang Chi Chan, First Lt. Ma Chien San, First Lt. Ha Yin, Sfc. Shao Wu Yao and Sfc. Chi Shen To. Team coach is Capt. Wang Chen-Yen.

Crack shot of the eight-man rifle team is Pfc. Ke Fen Tao. Second Lt. Hsiao Kuo Ling, Second Lt. Yung Yu To, M-Sgt. Qiang Chi Pei, M-Sgt. Quan Cha Jing, M-Sgt. Shie Yo-Tong, Pfc. Kuan Yu-San and Pfc. Han Shai Ling round out the squad. They will be coached by Capt. Chang Heng Peo. The Allied marksmen will leave Fort Benning for Camp Perry tomorrow. They are scheduled to return to Formosa immediately after the matches.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

By GARY CORBETT and S. S. COLEGROVE

One of the many values of Army sports and the importance of them to the participants was brought out on the trip by the Doughboys to LaGrange, Ga., last week. The players were to leave here at around five in the afternoon in order to get to LaGrange by 6:30 p.m. The bus was late and Joe Smith, Doughboy manager, did a little worrying before he got into the first game. Finally the bus rumbled up and the men were off on the first baseball trip this year.

Ten miles rolled by rather rapidly, but the next ten were slow and nerve racking. Something was causing the engine to miss; making the bus jump like an unbroken colt. Finally at a spot slightly beyond the midpoint, the bus coughed one last time and stopped just short of a hillcrest. Luckily a passing truck driver stopped, diagnosed the trouble and proceeded to repair it.

At the game, a good natured jockeying was carried on between both teams along with an occasional emphatic word from the stands.

After the game the usual mandatory stop was made at a small restaurant. The boys, still in uniform, piled out of the bus into the dining room and proceeded to buy the place out of hamburgers. What a commotion! Word travels fast when there are soldiers around and before one burger was downed several of the lads had promises of eternal happiness by the teen-age generation of LaGrange.

All these incidents put together are America. These baseball players were doing more than just playing baseball; they were living with each other and gaining mutual friendship and fraternalism that they will remember long after they are released from the service. The boys who play ball get the comrades of the service. They may have games at times, but the gain in fellowship, the camaraderie needed in this world today, comes from these games. LL Doughboys Spring Two Surprises

Aided by a home run by Ozzie Daly and Jones Cook's steal of home, Fort Benning's Doughboys captured the first game in the District tournament of the Little League in Columbus last week by the score of 5 to 3.

As the underdog, the Doughboys pulled one of the biggest upsets of the tourney by defeating the Pony League champions of Columbus in the first game. With two men on base in the third inning, Daly picked out one of his liking and proceeded to send the sphere over the scoreboard in center field. Jones Cook proved a master at stealing bases by pilfering home plate for an insurance run.

In the second game, again the underdog, the Fort Benning team proved their mettle by upsetting Pony League All-Stars by the score of 4 to 2. However, in the final game they were forced to bow to the National League All-Stars 8 to 3. The latter team will represent this district at Rome, Ga., next week.

Records Fall While Adcock Slams Sphere

After pounding out 4 homers and a double last Saturday at Milwaukee Joe Adcock, Braves' first baseman, may have wondered, "What Price Glory?" The following day he was struck on the head by a ball thrown by Clem Labine, pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers. However, Adcock was not seriously injured and got a double Monday night.

Taking a look at his one-man weekend assault, we find that he tied the major league record for most homers in a game. His double gave him a total of 18 bases—a new major league record—and his five home runs (he made one last Friday night) tied the major league standard.

To complete the records, his five extra-base hits set a new National League mark and tied the major's record.

He showed no favors as he collected the six hits off the Brooklyn pitchers whom he faced.

30th Forging In Softball

The 30th Infantry Regiment is causing a lot of teams to sit up and take notice in the Fort Benning Officers' Softball League.

As the loop's newest member, the 30th is improving by the week and has won all three bouts to date.

Since joining the league at the start of the second round July 12, it has slugged across 44 runs for an average of more than 14 per game.

After turning back 773rd Tank Battalion, 8-9, the 30th combination followed up with a 13-5 win over Special Troops Command and a 22-13 conquest of Communications Automotive.

At week-end, two Infantry School teams, Staff and Weapons Departments, with three triumphs, shared the poise position with the

THEY GET TOGETHER FOR A LITTLE PRACTICE

Cpls. Nedved, Glencoe, Ill., Jerry Sullivan, Knoxville, Tenn.

Two chess-playing corporals are looking for a satisfactory way of solving their problem.

Jerry Sullivan of Knoxville, Tenn., and Kimball Nedved of Glencoe, Ill., rated expert chessmen, would like to meet for the Fort Benning championship but conflicting schedules always interfere.

Nedved is a member of Human Research Unit No. 3, and Sullivan belongs to the 125th Field Artillery Battalion. And their duties in separate areas have kept them from competing against each other.

The match—if and when arranged—would help settle some issues, in view of the fact that Nedved holds a master's degree in psychology from Illinois Institute of Technology, and Sullivan holds a bachelor's degree in philosophy from University of Tennessee.

They've clashed before, but no issues were at stake. They barely missed playing each other in the recent Southern Association Chess Championship in Atlanta, in which Sullivan won third place and Nedved seventh.

Nedved is a three-time Illinois State Chess Champion and Trans-Mississippi title holder. He has been playing 10 years.

Sullivan has the edge experience-wise, having played in numerous national open tournaments. He has four Tennessee titles to how for his 11 years at the game.

About his style, Nedved says, "I apply too much psychology at times and make moves which I cannot understand." His rival claims philosophy serves as a "steadying influence."

They have one thing in common—expert ratings by the U. S. Chess Federation.

Sullivan is planning to take in the New York State Tournament in August, and September. Meanwhile, both would welcome any suggestions for a Fort Benning playoff.

shadows defeat.

There is no defeating men who have this heritage. Where else in this world can men of a national Army travel without passports, papers, and high ranking escorts? Where can one travel the roads to a ball game, enjoy the trip, and play without the pressure that comes from mandatory win policies?

We say, "Let's have more baseball along with many other sports."

After gaining the finals, the Doughboy Little Leaguers from Ft. Benning, were defeated by the National League All Stars 2 to 3 for the District title.

The underdog at the start of the tournament, they played like true champions in defeating two teams to gain the final.

The Bayonet takes this opportunity to congratulate the team on their splendid showing and sportsmanship throughout the tourney.

We see where Fred Kipp, star pitcher for the Doughboys All Stars pitched a one hitter against the strong Ft. Mac team.

With two games won and one loss to date, the post team should make Ft. Benning proud of them and give them the backing and moral support they richly deserve.

Playing professional type ball, and for free, it is hard for this writer to understand why the personnel of this post do not come out and spend an enjoyable afternoon or evening watching the national sport. You cannot find better entertainment anywhere.

Flyers Off China Told:

Be Quick on Trigger

WASHINGTON (APPS) — U.S. Navy planes, under orders to "be quick on the trigger" if attacked, continued to patrol the waters off Communist China's Hainan island after shooting down two Chinese fighters.

The Communist planes had fired on three U. S. planes that were searching for survivors of a British airliner shot down by Red aircraft. The U. S. planes were operating from the Seventh Fleet carrier, rushed into the area to aid in the hunt.

After the Chinese fighters had been shot down, ADM Robert B. Carney, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, ordered the two 27,000-ton carriers, the Hornet and the Philippine Sea, to remain in the area and continue searching until "all possibilities of locating survivors have been exhausted."

Three Feared Lost

Three Americans were among the nine passengers feared lost in the attack on the British airliner. Communist China admitted that its patrol planes had shot down the commercial airliner. They said it had been mistaken for a Nationalist Chinese plane.

In the clash between the U. S. and Red aircraft, which took place outside the 12-mile territorial limits of Hainan, all five of the planes were propeller-driven.

Two Communist LA-7s, low-wing, single-seat fighters, reported to be among the Reds' fastest propeller-driven aircraft, opened fire on two Navy Douglas AD Skyraiders and an F4U Corsair. The carrier-based planes returned the fire, shooting down both Chinese attackers.

Gunboat Opens Up

The American pilots also reported that a Chinese gunboat had opened fire on them during the battle, but they did not return the fire. There were no U. S. casualties.

ADM Felix B. Stump, USN, Commander of the Pacific Fleet, said the Navy planes have "standard instructions to be quick on the trigger" if attacked.

He said the Navy pilots acted strictly according to American tradition — "If American units are attacked or approached with hostile intent, you don't have to wait until somebody knocks your head off; you have the right to

Teams Play For CTC Title

The Combat Training Command softball league has begun a double elimination tournament to decide the CTC champions. This tourney follows a first-half round-robin series in which Hq. and Hq. Company, 30th Infantry Regiment emerged on top.

Close behind in the first half play, Third Battalion, 30th Inf., and the 180th Field Artillery Battalion were tied for the second slot, both one game behind the victor.

Originally scheduled for a second half of round-robin play, the league had to alter its plans to meet the deadline for TIC completion. The winner of the first half will not play in the present series, but will meet the victor of the second half elimination in a two out of three game playoff.

Doughboys

The boys arrived late and were given no batting practice, but as events unfolded it was apparent that they were going to get all the practice they needed against the weak Dixie Millie pitching. The game was slow in the first few innings with both teams trying to break the ice. The Mills' nine scored once in the bottom of the first, but Benning retained in the second. The third inning saw another Doughboy tally, but the Mills team tied it in the bottom of the third. In the fourth and fifth the Doughboys got their eyes on the ball. They scored two in the fourth and fifth and one on the sixth. In the meantime manager Joe Smith of the Doughboys was using his bench to find the strength of his team. He used seven substitutes and each of them showed a good caliber of play.

In a ribald seventh inning, the Benning boys scored four runs and had the bases loaded with none out when the Dixie team decided to call it quits, as the players had to get back to work.

Ex-Jumper Jumps To OCS, Years To Jump Again

Julian F. Knight has jumped into OCS and hopes to jump right back into an airborne outfit when he graduates with 11th OC Company in August.

Knight was with the 187th Regimental Combat Team when the team was flown to Korea in 1950 and joined the First Marine Division in the recapture of Seoul. During this time Knight a sergeant served as a medical aidman with Charlie and Baker companies of the First Battalion. On Oct. 21, 1950 he made his first combat jump at Suwon, followed by a second on March 20, 1951. Two days later he was wounded by mortar and small arms fire and was evacuated.

In June 1951 Knight, alone, went to the aid of a wounded man some 150 yards into No Man's Land. After reaching and aiding the soldier, he carried him back to friendly lines under enemy fire. For this he was awarded the Silver Star.

773rd Prepares For Gunnery Practice Session

The 773rd Tank Battalion of Com-pany G, 30th Infantry Regiment, will begin an extended period of gunnery practice at Camp Ste-wart, Ga., beginning around Au-gust 9, according to the operations section of the battalion.

The tanks will be transported by wheeled vehicles in company-sized convoys. The first unit to depart from Fort Benning, the 50th Tank Company, will travel as a unit by itself.

In October, the companies com-prising the regular battalion will make the trip in a series of convoys. Later in November the last unit, Tank Co., 30th Infantry Reg-iment, will depart for its period of practice.

Each unit will remain at Camp Stewart for a five week period.

Babies Blast All Records At Hospital

The stork has been working ov-ertime at Fort Benning.

A new record was set in July when 320 babies were delivered at the U. S. Army Hospital, smashing the old high of 263 births in August 1952.

Five Army doctors delivered the record figure which brought the year's total to 1,399. The highest number of babies ever born in one year at the hospital is 2,412 in 1952. Officials believe the 1954 fig-ure will surpass the 1952 mark.

During the first 20 days of July, Capt. Walter Rohlfing delivered 105 babies.

More POWs Learn That Awards Ready

WASHINGTON (APPS)— Twen-ty-two more former prisoners of war from the Korean conflict have been decorated by the Army for meritorious services during the time they were imprisoned.

The awards included seven Bronze Star Medals and 15 Com-mendation Ribbons with Metal Pen-dant. The award winners are being notified now and will be honored at ceremonies at their respective posts in the near future.

Those no longer in service are being invited to attend cere-monies at installations near their homes. Forty awards are still pend-ing for other POWs.

The only officer on the list was Capt. Clarence L. Anderson, USA, a Medical Corps officer who was cited for his work in tending the sick and wounded despite hard-ships placed on him by his cap-tors. Also named was M-Sgt. Billy C. Knowles, who won two Silver Stars, two Bronze Star Medals and a Purple Heart while serving with the 2nd Div. in WWII.

'What America Means' to be Topic

Last year, Freedoms Founda-tions at Valley Forge, Pa. award-ed 40 George Washington Honor Medals to winners of the Founda-tion's contest, "What America Means to Me". For the first time since its inception in 1949 over 7,000 servicemen and women were permitted to enter. Major Thomas A. Palmer, USA, was awarded the top award of $1,000 dollars while 19 others were awarded $100 dol-lars each.

The Department of the Army has collected nine of these award-winning letters, as well as excerpts and digests from some of the others, and put them into a book-let. This booklet, the third in the series of "You and Your USA," will be the Troop Conference topic for next week under the title of "What America Means to Me".

If each of us were asked, "What does America mean to you," we are sure that we would receive many different answers. For America doesn't mean any one thing. Each of us move in a world a little different from that of even our closest friends. Perhaps your own way of saying what Amer-ica means to you will open a new thought, a new challenge to our way of life. It only needs to be said your way.

Your expression could help de-velop the better understanding of the American way of life, which Freedoms Foundations seeks to promote. The foundation is non-profit, nonpolitical and nonsectar-ian. Awards are made to indi-viduals, committees, and organi-zations for their accomplishments in spreading the understanding of freedom. Its judges are state su-preme court jurists and national executive leaders of patriotic, vet-eran, and service clubs organi-zations.

Any serviceman or woman may enter this contest. The 1954 com-petition is now in progress. If you should want to enter simply sub-mit a letter, no longer than 500 words, to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, Los Ange-les, Calif. He in turn, will forward the letter to Freedoms Founda-tion. The entries will be judged for sincerity and understanding of American ideals rather than lit-erary excellence. The entries must be postmarked no later than Nov. 11, 1954.

New Regulations To Aid Unit COs Stop Heat Menace

WASHINGTON (APPS) — Re-sponsibility for recognizing symp-toms of heat injury has been placed on unit commanders by a new Army regulation, SR 40-260-5, pre-pared by the staff of the Surgeon General.

The regulation lists preventive measures COs may take: serving the heavy meal of the day in the evening; allowing an hour of rest after the noon meal, providing plenty of water and salt to make up for that lost through perspira-tion.

The Surgeon General also recom-mends scheduling the most strenuous activities during the cool-er parts of the day and letting the troops wear clothing and equip-ment loosely permitting free circulation of air between the uni-form and the body surface.

The new regulation charges lead-ers with alertness in spotting dis-ease, headaches, nausea and other signs of heat injury. They must be prepared to render first aid at all times.

It Took Ten Years to Get In, But Daniel Rogoish Makes It

Ten years is a long time for an application for OCS to go through, but OC Daniel D. Rogoish, 11th OC Company, First OC Regi-ment, is a patient man.

In 1944, while training at Prince-ton for the Engineer Corp, he sub-mitted his first application. This was lost and he ended up in the Infantry. Thus started a varied Army career for Rogoish.

After basic training at Camp Rucker in 1944, Rogoish was assign-ed to SHAEF Headquarters in Eu-rope and became cadre sergeant with the 17th Replacement Depot of 20th Corps. When the war end-ed he was attached to an inspec-tion team responsible for the se-curity of Army installations in the American Zone of Occupation.

Then came an Airborne Course at Fort Benning, and he wound up in the Second Combat Bat-talion of the 825th Airborne in Fort Bragg's 20th Division. Rogoish served as chief of the Courts and Boards Section when the Bat-talion had nine months of tempo-rary duty as school troops here in 1950.

As senior parachutists and jump-angles from doors and cargo hatch-mester, he has participated in all six of the big airborne maneuvers.

with the exception of one. Opera-tions Tar Heel, Swarmer, South-ern Pines, Snowstorm, Longhorn, and Falcon are all in Rogoish's log—with about ninety jumps.

Rogoish has seen every develop-ment in Airborne tactics since World War II. He recalls that Operation Swarmer was the first to have a full division completely supplied for an extended period by aerial delivery. A tremendous tonnage of equipment was success-fully dropped. In Operation Snow-storm, Rogoish received complete Arctic indoctrination at Pine Camp, N. Y., which included learn-ing to ski and snowshoe. He par-ticipated in the jump on the ice and frozen ground when the 825th suffered 25 per cent injuries.

Rogoish has personally contrib-uted to Airborne know-how by becoming a volunteer in various and Boards Section when the Bat-talion had nine months of tempo-rary duty as school troops here in 1950.

He has been filmed jumping at odd angles from doors and cargo hatch-mester, he has participated in all six of the big airborne maneuvers at varying speeds.

Misfits Become Good Soldiers With Help From Psychiatrists

(First of Three Articles)

WASHINGTON — This year five out of every 1,000 young men in U.S. Army training centers each month will find adjustment so difficult that their military usefulness will be questionable, according to Brigadier General Rawley E. Chambers of the Office of the Surgeon General.

During their first weeks of training, some will seem to be complete misfits, incapable of becoming soldiers. Others will suffer such emotional strain from their new life that their efficiency will be impaired.

However, almost all these men will turn into good soldiers — thanks in part to the Mental Hygiene Consultation Service that has existed in the Army since World War II.

Operating in 18 training centers, the clinics are staffed by a psychiatrist, a clinical psychologist and a psychiatric social worker. They exist to help the ill-adjusted soldier fit into his new life, to help the company commander find out how and where these young men can be most useful to the Army, and to identify promptly and process out of the Army the man who is emotionally or mentally unfit for service.

The psychiatrists usually are captains or majors. Too much rank might discourage the patients. However, the officers must meet the highest professional standards. They must have had sufficient experience and training to diagnose personality disturbances in a very short time. No long drawn-out therapy is possible or recommended when handling eight-week trainees.

The clinics themselves are located in the training area, not in the hospital set-up at the training center. Medical officers and company commanders work together

Korea Arbiters Agree to Exchange Bodies of Soldiers

KOREA (APFS) — The UN Command and the Communists will exchange the bodies of soldiers buried behind enemy lines starting Sept. 1. The bodies of men who died in POW camps are also to be exchanged.

RADM T. B. Brittain, USN, senior Allied member of the Military Armistice Commission, said the Communists are responsible for the bodies of UN personnel in North Korea and delivering them to the Demilitarized Zone.

The UN will have similar responsibilities in South Korea.

The agreement between the Reds and the UN was reached July 20, in the sixth of a series of meetings which started Mar. 19.

adjustment. He soon gets used to living in a barracks even though he may have had his private room since childhood. He adapts to the restrictions of Army life even though he is used to making his own decisions and moving on his own initiative.

Self-Control Severed

This is not true of the emotionally immature trainee. Barracks living to him is a life that severs his self-control. He may burst into tears when some small thing goes wrong. He will become increasingly timid and withdrawn to the point that he literally walks alone.

The independent but immature soldier faced with restrictions may react in such ways as going absent without official leave or turning up too often for sick call — his strong emotional conflict displaced by physical symptoms.

When this soldier reports to the clinic he is encouraged to express his fears, anxieties and hostilities in an uncritical atmosphere. As the psychiatrist comes to know the soldier's problems, he can help him adopt the new attitudes which make Army life more acceptable.

"Primarily," Chambers said, "the Mental Hygiene Consultation Service helps conserve the fighting strength of the Army. At the same time, the service helps the individual preserve his self-esteem and make a successful adjustment that can be of lifelong importance."

Cpl. L. Turner Cited for Acts

A soldier who is credited with saving the lives of many of his fellow soldiers in Korea was presented the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant here last Thursday. Cpl. Lonnie W. Turner of Jacksonville, Fla., a surgical assistant with the Hospital Duty Detachment, received the decoration from Col. Norman H. Wiley, post surgeon. He was cited for meritorious service from July 28, 1952 to July 27, 1953, when he was with the Medical Company of the 31st Infantry Regiment in Korea. The citation read: "During this period of combat action, Cpl. Turner always could be found in the thick of battle evacuating and applying first aid to the friendly wounded. Regardless of the difficulty of terrain or weather, Cpl. Turner's personal courage served as an inspiration to the fighting men and his hasty application of first aid undoubtedly saved the lives of many men, thus preserving the fighting strength of the unit."

Bugle Lured Joy Caylor From Love of Snakes

Not everybody knows it, but Joy Caylor — who is completing the first of a two-week engagement with her all-girl band at the Main Officers' Open Mess, originally aspired to be an animal trainer. As soon as Joy was able to walk she developed an interest in animals of all types. In fact, snakes especially seemed to strike her fancy. Her interest, much to the chagrin of her friends and relatives, instead of waning seemed to grow. The one thing that prevented her becoming a female Clyde Beatty was the intervention of fate in the form of a bugle. Her grade school band was in need of a bugler and Joy decided that she would like the job . . . so she got it! Joy's interest in the bugle grew rapidly and soon after her parents bought her a trumpet. After a few weeks of experience on the horn she won the featured trumpet role.

Promotion, Korean Honors 'Hit' Capt. in One Month

Capt. Herbert E. Clark of Havre de Grace, Md., adjutant of the Fifth Student Battalion, First Officer Candidate Regiment, believes all things come at once — even good things. Capt. Clark during the past month was promoted to captain. A few weeks later he was presented the Wharung Distinguished Military Service Medal by the Republic of Korea. A citation accompanying the medal, signed by President Syngman Rhee, praised Capt. Clark for directing artillery fire which aided troops encircled by the enemy during the Korean conflict. At the time, he was a member of a special attack battalion in the X Corps. A veteran of more than two years of overseas service, Capt. Clark served with the 17th and 82nd Airborne Divisions in Europe in 1944-45, and with the Second and 24th Infantry Divisions in Japan and Korea in 1950-51.

Combat TV Demonstrated For 1st Time

FT. MEADE, Md. (AFPS)—The first public demonstration of experimental combat television was shown here recently by the Army. It was designed to give the Army's tactical commanders immediate knowledge of battlefield situations. The demonstration, sponsored jointly by the Army Signal Corps and the Radio Corporation of America, was conducted by the Third Cavalry Regiment and included a water-crossing operation and the assault of an enemy-held position. Televised information from the simulated battlefield was received by the regimental commander's command post through experimental combat television equipment. Portable cameras were operated by Signal Corps personnel working in close support with the assaulting troops.

Not Easy to Decide What We Should Do

BY CHAPLAIN R. L. MAASE

It is not an easy decision what is right or wrong in complex situations. "What to do?" makes us ask. "Where can I go?" Where can I go for help so I'll know what to do. All of us need moral guidance as well as spiritual strength. Let us look at some of the sources of strength that can help shed light upon the difficult choices we must make.

In an earnest effort to provide moral guidance for Christian converts in a sinful society, the Apostle Paul frequently appealed to CONSCIENCE. He was convinced that man has received a knowledge of what is good that makes him morally responsible. According to his teaching, conscience is man's capacity for moral consciousness which permits him to distinguish things that differ, to recognize right and wrong, and to approve what is morally excellent.

It must be admitted, however, that conscience can be distorted and perverted. A person may reject the authority of conscience and disobey the voice of conscience, until the consciousness of what is right and wrong is seriously impaired. In such a case, conscience is strained, the inward light goes out, and the distinction between good and evil is blurred.

While we speak of conscience, let us never forget that it is God's instrument in a person's life. It can be gradually enlightened as a regenerated person grows in the knowledge and grace of Jesus Christ or he can become darkened and decline. Although conscience is not a perfect guide, it is a restraining and constraining force in a man's life. The dictates of a Christian conscience call sincere seekers to repentance. Obedience to conscience helps to overcome evil with good.

Secondly, each one of us is under obligation to study and to apply the principles of the good life as set forth in THE BIBLE. These principles of God laid down in the Good Book are limited to human relations and provide guidance for right thinking and right acting. This is a very important source of strength. "What if I do?"

It is helpful to test a proposed course of action by these questions: Is it true? Is it honorable? Is it just? Is it right? Is it admirable? Is it good? All of these moral tests can be applied by every honest young person every day in every type of situation.

MEDAL OF HONOR

The Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to Army Cpl. Lester Hammond Jr., who sacrificed his life saving a patrol surrounded by the enemy near Kimwua Korea. Cpl. William J. Lelli, a member of the patrol, speaks for Cpl. Hammond:

"I was about eight yards to the right-front of Cpl. Hammond in a little ravine where I had an unobstructed view of his actions. I could see him plainly. He was standing with his back against the cliff wall radiating artillery fire onto enemy positions. I saw him get hit by small arms and artillery fire and went out to help him. He refused help saying 'I'm all right. . . leave me here. He stayed in that position for two hours adjusting artillery fire. It is my belief that by calling the fire on himself he saved my life as well as the rest of the patrol. When I crawled out to give him some water I saw that he was dead. In his immediate area were 15 enemy dead and at least 25 in the area covered by the artillery fire."

What Would Jesus Do?

Thirdly, the EXAMPLE OF JESUS shows the direction which Christian action should take and the standard by which it should be judged. Jesus lived what He taught. On the level of human understanding He demonstrated devotion to truth, kindness to persons in need, and perfect obedience to God. A sincere Christian cannot give a Christ-like life without following His example. It is wise therefore in every difficult decision to ask, What would Jesus do? To know what Jesus did we must naturally seek the true record of His words and deeds in the Bible.

If we follow the example of Jesus we shall be guided in our friendships, our recreation, in our daily work, and we will know "What to do." I have been harsh in my criticism of others? Have I been insincere and dishonest in spreading gossip? Have I needlessly deepened my sin by drinking or other dissipation? Have I hurt others in order to achieve some goal? I want for myself? Have I been "snobbish" and cruel to members of another race or religion? Have I been indifferent towards the needs of others, physically, morally, or spiritually? Have I failed to take time to pray with a reverent attitude to God? As we test our conduct by these questions and remember the example of Jesus, we hear a call to repentance and to Christian living in human relations.

Seek Chaplain's Advice

Fourth and last of the sources or guides we may use is the WISDOM AND COUNSEL OF SAUCER PERSONS. The counsel of a good person who has a wide and deep understanding of human relations, often helps a person to weigh all sides of an issue and to make a decision in harmony with sound judgment. "What if I do?"

Your Chaplain or Pastor knows how to help thoughtful young people to discover what is right in concrete situations. Talk over your problem with him and seek his guidance in making major decisions in the moral problems with which you struggle.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

Sgt. Warren A. Trest, AUS, won a George Washington Honor Medal for his letter to a friend on "What America Means to Me." He served with the 3rd Air Div. in the Far East. Sgt. Trest wrote:

"You mentioned that there were a lot of draft age who were doing all they could to stay out of service. What does America mean to these so-called men? We, resting in bunkers and foxholes, do not take our country for granted. We know the greater things of our country, the freedom to worship, to educate our minds, to express our own views. In the ditch of battle, you see love the face of American youth. America means love to us. . . Love of our fellow man, love of God.

What does America mean to you? Enter the 1954 Freedoms Foundation Contest. Send your letter of no more than 600 words to: Freedoms Foundation, 1015 N. McCadden Place, Los Angeles 38, Calif. Your letter must bear your name, rank, service number, and organization. It must be received before midnight Nov. 11, 1954. Letter received after that date will be considered for the next year's awards.

Look, Sarge--Wot Hoppended?

Been around an NCO-EM club lately? If you haven't, we've got news for you. These places are swarming, literally groaning with the weight and push of crowds that are taxing all facilities. Take Harmony Church club. On Sunday night following the Dixie Playboys jammed them in for Western style dancing strictly like nobody's business. It was the biggest night the club ever had, right down to the nursery.

Then came Tuesday night. The crowds returned in force, not to dance, but for a whopping card party. Extra chairs and tables were pulled none remained, and those who couldn't be seated mill around and found other things to occupy their attention. It was the biggest card party ever.

Then there was Pine Lodge. Hal McIntyre was on tap August 2 with his strictly pop band. And did the crowds love it? They came with their mates and their dates and reveled to Hal's trumpet and his orchestra.

As if all this were not enough, the Rocker Club suddenly "came alive" and quickened its membership. The three-day weekend following last payday saw members flocking to the club. On Sunday the Mother Hubbard's cupboard. "There wasn't nothin'--strichly nothin'" left," said M-Sgt. Albert M. Miller, publicity chairman for the Benning NCO Board of Governors.

Well, that's the story. Only there's more high class entertainment planned through August and for all of September--a welcome thought for our NCOs, who are learning that taking their entertainment on their post isn't such a bad idea after all.

The NCO Board of Governors, a little overwhelmed by the spontaneous acclamation received by their Fall program and in the unheard of increase in memberships all over, may well take due credit. Give our soldiers what they want, and our soldiers will show their appreciation. But it's got to be the best of what they want.

Outside the mess hall the "battle of nations" took place. A soldier from 187 Abn. RCT walked with a small piece of meat on his plate and dropped it for a young pup that was standing there.

The pup grabbed the meat and moved off to devour it at its leisure. If hadn't gone far when another dog, larger and more mature, cut itself in for a slice of the meat. And with the pup a very interested spectator, the larger dog settled down to a meal.

There was another spectator, however. The soldier. He watched a moment, then walked over toward the larger dog, which promptly left.

Back came the pup and settled down for his meal while the soldier spent precious minutes of his brief lunch hour protecting the pup.

Such is the role of the United States at present. Without actual trouble, the mere presence of an over-protective force, capable of tremendous actions keeps the peace and protects the weaker nation, giving fair play to the underdog. Such is the American tradition, such is our heritage.

To stand guard for the weak, to see there is fair play. What better role could a people have? (JHS)

On The Bookshelf

DON'T TREAD ON ME, by Walter Karig (Rinehart, 442 pages). Here is the frank, fascinating story of John Paul Jones' lively, unbridled behavior on land and sea. Jones is the man who baffled, enraged and beat the British and lived to be the founder of the U. S. Navy.

FREDERIE BROWN (Dutton 191 pages). A tight, tense, skillfully plotted piece of work with more than its quota of tension and surprise is this mystery of a man who got away with something once and tried it again, only to meet up with the unforeseen.

CARNE MUTINY COURT-MARTIAL, by Herman Work (Doubleday, 128 pages). Work has put nearly the whole story of the Caine and its crew into the play.

THE RIVAL IN THE RIGGING, by Garland Roark (Doubleday, 245 pages). The thrilling adventure of a man who founded the Texas Navy during the Texas Revolution is the basis of a new novel by this popular author.

THE ROYAL BOX, by Frances Parkinson Keyes (Messner, 367 pages). In this excellent novel of suspense, people and sophisticated characters from the theatrical and diplomatic world, the action revolves around a brilliant theater party in London. After the main dramatic climax occurs in a luxurious suite of the Savoy Hotel.

ACHILLE CLAUDE DEBUSSY, one of the greatest modern French composers, founded impressionism in music. He exerted a greater influence on present-day music than any other composer. Just as Debussy's music was a new style of impressionism, Debussy used the strange chords of the whole tone scale, which had previously been considered discordant and unharmonious, to achieve exquisite and unique effects.

Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra with the Robert Shaw and Grace Kelly; also new. Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Peter Tchaikovsky was one of Russia's greatest symphonic composers. He was a master of melodic poesy. He was a master of melodic poesy, and his works have provided tunes for many popular songs. His melancholy nature often shows in his music, and tragedy is uppermost in many of his compositions.

Based on an old German fairy tale familiar to generations of Europeans, the story of "Swan Lake" was revised for its ballet version. In its complete version, which is rarely given today except in Soviet Russia, "Swan Lake" consists of four acts. The best known of these and the one most frequently given in America, is the famous frequent presentations of "Swan Lake" is being presented by the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra with Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

Heard, Seen, Told

COL. GLEN A. NELSON, deputy director of the Non-Resident Instruction Department's Army Extension Course Group will deliver the graduation address Saturday at The Infantry School's basic officer class No. 17.

Approximately 122 students are expected to graduate at the 9 a.m. ceremonies in the Main Theater.

The 15-week course is designed to teach newly commissioned officers, other than officer candidate course graduates, the duties and responsibilities of Infantry platoon leaders.

LT. COL. SLATER M. DOZIER of Lower Peach Tree, Ala., has been assigned as chief of laboratory service at the U. S. Army Hospital.

He replaces Capt. Thomas R. Cox who has been chief of the laboratory since September 1953 and who will remain as assistant chief until his discharge in November.

Col. Dozier came to Fort Benning from Walter Reed Army Institute where he was a resident pathologist. He is a graduate of the University of Alabama and received his medical degree from Tulane University in 1942.

LT. COL. WILLIAM J. BOYLE has assumed duties of assistant director of The Infantry School's Tactical Department.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Harold B. Mangold, who has been assigned to U. S. Army headquarters in Europe.

Col. Boyle's former position as deputy of the department's Basic Course Group has been filled by Lt. Col. H. M. Merritt at Oklahoma City, Okla., who graduated from the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., in June.

A veteran of 19 years of service, Col. Boyle is a 1939 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy. He has been with the Tactical Department since beginning his current tour of duty at The Infantry School in July, 1953.

Col. Merritt, a 1938 graduate of Oklahoma A. and M. College, entered the service in 1939. He attended an Infantry School automotive course in 1940 and ROTC orientation class in 1946. He also is a 1949 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

MAJOR GEN. WILLIAM M. MILEY, Army Forces chief of staff at Fort Monroe, Va., was here Tuesday for a one-day conference with Fort Benning officials, including Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

THIRTEEN U. S. ARMY and three Allied officers graduated Monday from The Infantry School's five week communication course at Fort Benning. Honor graduate was Major Antonio Lepiane of the Brazilian Army.

TWO BELGIAN OFFICERS training here were guests of the Columbus Lions Club at its weekly meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Malston Hotel.

They were Capt. George Joseph C. Daene and Albert Jean B. Frogner, students in the 15-week associate company officers course.

Accompanying them was Capt. Francisco J. Ramos of Ponce, Puerto Rico assistant Allied liaison officer at The Infantry School, a member of the Lions Club.

SFC. STEPHEN LOZOWSKI of Company C, Infantry School Detachment, was selected as a distinguished graduate of The Infantry Center's Advanced Leaders' School, Class 10.

The selection was based on overall adaptability for non-commissioned service, including academic standing and leadership as well as potential value to the service.

In making the announcement, Major James D. Neumann, school commandant, cited Lozowski for his outstanding achievement.

MAJOR GEORGE W. DEVLAMING, formerly assigned to the Weapons Department, has been named supply officer for the 30th Infantry Regiment.

Major Devlaming, a graduate of Oklahoma A. & M. College, entered the Army in June, 1940. He served in the Pacific Theater in 1941-44. His decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal, and Combat Infantryman Badge. THIRD ARMY CHAPLAIN (Col.) John Gaertner was at Fort Benning last week for an administrative visit to the Chaplains Section.

LEONARD A. KING AND CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER ALBERT RUSSELL of The Third Army Quartermaster Section at Fort McPherson, Ga., are here on a 5-day inspection of Quartermaster supply activities.

CITED . . . Major Robert Kendrick has been cited for outstanding work as deputy director and operations officer of the Airborne Department from May 1952 to July 1954. He was presented a TIC Certificate of Achievement by Col. Leland G. Gagwin, department director.

HOSPITAL ACHIEVEMENT . . . Major Leslie J. Conroy has won an Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement for outstanding work as chief of the U. S. Hospital's Service Branch and Personnel Division from May 1952 to June 1954.

Band Leader Follows Family In Army Musician Tradition

M-Sgt. Eugene W. Allen of Meridian, Texas, dance band leader for the 31st Army Band here is following the old family career as a military musician.

"It runs in the family," the sergeant said. "My father and five brothers are professional musicians and all have served with military bands at one time."

Sgt. Allen's father, who is 75, still teaches music and directs a high school band in Crawford, Texas. Brother Vernon, four years with the Marine Band at Farris Island, owns a music store in Greenville, S. C. Another brother, Jewell, was with an Army band in Iceland and Europe in World War II and currently is a high school band director. Jack Allen now directs his own orchestra, after serving as an Air Force bandsman. Warrant Officer Daniel Allen is director of the 31st Army Band in Germany and Capt. J. F. Allen, Jr., a West Point graduate and a pilot in the Air Force, previously played with the First Armored Division Band.

Sgt. Allen enlisted in 1948 and was assigned to the Army Ground Forces in Washington, D. C., after receiving his musical training at North Texas State College and the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, Md. He toured the U. S., Canada, and Mexico with the band giving concerts and radio shows until May, 1950, when he was assigned to the Second Army Band at Fort Meade, Md.

Before coming to Fort Benning, he was assistant band leader of the Second Infantry Division Band in Korea.

Unit Patches Adorn Co. Mess Hall

Company F, 30th Infantry Regiment, has devised a system increasing "esprit de corps" and morale in the unit. M-Sgt. Troye Ward and Sic. Leutes Perez, steward, have decorated Fox Company mess hall with wooden replicas of shoulder patches of units in which the men from the company have served. The units represented are First Cavalry, First, Second, Third, Seventh, 24th, 46th, 75th and 83rd Divisions, plus the 82nd Airborne Div. and the 187th Airborne RCT. Over the serving counter is a replica of the Combat Infantryman Badge flanked by the 30th Infantry crest and the Follow Me patch.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THIS COOKIE!

He has a few million buddies all dressed up the same way—and just looking for someplace to go. He's already sowed his wild rice in Korea, he's apt to be making hay in Indo-China. And he's interested in the real estate around Thailand, Burma, Indonesia and points Southeast.

So you'd better keep your eye on this cocky Red rooster. You're likely to run into him one of these days.

But you don't want to concentrate on the Chinese Reds alone. It's just as important to keep up on Tito's quarrels—on Nehru's latest sulking sessions—and the latest attempts to slip the world a micky finn. There's some political jockeying you don't want to miss back home, and diplomatic sleight of hand that's worth keeping your eye on. And because you need a way to follow and measure the news quickly and completely, we hope you'll take advantage of this special offer.

TIE&E Conference
'Why We're in Europe' to be Topic

BY RAYMOND L. BIGGS
'Why We Serve in Europe,' will be the Troop Conference topic for next week, according to Lt. Col. Charles W. Hall, Troop Information and Education officer, TIC.

The United States must of necessity take an active interest in the defense of Western Europe. If we had to face the menace of a Communist attack alone, we would have to maintain far larger armed forces than we do at present.

Cut off from Western Europe's skilled manpower, industrial facilities, and raw materials, we would be hard pressed for essential military supplies and equipment. A serious, perhaps unbearable, strain would be placed on our national economy. This would delight the Communists.

The United States and our free-world Allies have found no magic formula to guarantee absolute safety from Communist aggression. But we have discovered that in only there is strength that offers free men their greatest hope of victory.

Our participation in Europe might be considered as an insurance premium on freedom for ourselves and for mankind. The benefits of the premiums might be summed up like this. They help promote our Allies' confidence in American policies, they provide

Two Young Lawyers Trying For Bars of Infantrymen

Two young lawyers, members of the District of Columbia Bar Association, are at Fort Benning training for a different type bar—that of a second lieutenant.

They are Chris Russell of New Britain, Conn., and John Ewald of Garden City, N. Y., both assigned to the 12th Officer Candidate Company.

Russell, who was born in Singapore, spent his early years in Malaya and Manila. He later accompanied his parents to Kasauli in the Himalayan foothills of Northern India, where his father, a doctor on the staff of the Rockefeller Foundation, was conducting a medical survey.

He entered Yale University and Harvard Law School where he graduated with honors.

1st Sergeants Are 'Analyzed'

OFFUTT, AFB, Nebr. (AFPS)—The first sergeant in the Air Force should be a leader rather than a chief clerk or administrator, according to a cross section of Strategic Air Command master sergeants.

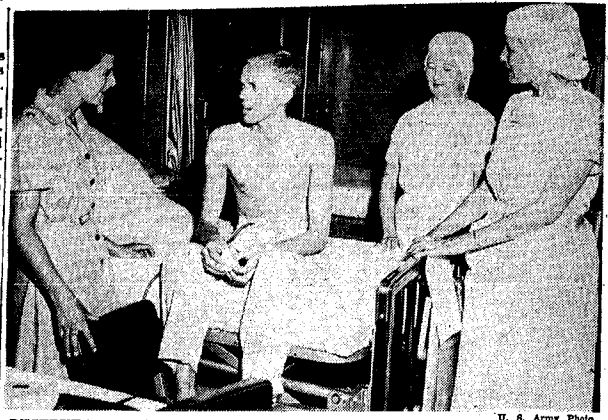

The following points were emphasized by 240 master sergeants, 120 of them first sergeants, who took part in a study, "The Role of the First Sergeant in the Air Force":

- 1—The first sergeant should be well qualified in leadership and all phases of military procedures.
- 2—He should carry brevet rank above all other NCOs in his squadron.
- 3—He should have a distinctive insignia.
- 4—The first sergeant should be in a command position rather than an administrative one.

The selection of a first sergeant, according to the study, should be on the basis of leadership, technical knowledge, military bearing, and experience.

Motor Work Reaps Dividends

The 747th Ord. Bn of the 47th Infantry Div. is saving U. S. taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars annually through its motor vehicle maintenance and parts rebuilding program. Lt. Col. Daniel E. Collier, CO of the battalion, announced this week.

Savings of more than $3,700 a month, or nearly $45,000 a year, are effected by the battalion's reclamation program in renewing old and worn parts of the division's automotive vehicles at a cost considerably below that of new parts.

Col. Collier said the battalion rebuilds an average of 40 starters a month for the numerous types of vehicles at a cost of $6.50 instead of buying new ones at an average cost of $35 each. Rebuilding the starters saves $28.50 on each one or more than $2,900 yearly.

The repair of 50 generators monthly at a cost of $6.50 each instead of paying $35 for new ones saves $1,425 a month. This adds up to $17,100 a year.

Spark plugs for Army vehicles cost an average of 70 cents apiece. But the battalion is able to salvage 80 per cent of the 75 plugs which are turned in every month for cleaning, spacing of the points, and testing. This salvage operation costs 15 cents for each plug. Thus, the battalion saves $243.20 a month, or $2,918.40 annually.

Fuel Pumps Rebuilt

The repair of the 747th rebuild something like 100 fuel pumps a month and save $8 on each. This comes to $800 a month—$9,600 a year.

Similar savings are made in the salvage and repair of carburetors. Figures indicate that 40 carburetors are repaired monthly at a saving of $37 under the $45 cost of new ones. This means an annual saving of $1,140.

The battalion does not recap worn tires or rebuild heavy vehicles but generally sends them to the Atlanta General Depot for repairs.

The repair work is done by the three platoons of Company A and Company B. Platoon members of Company A are technical personnel qualified in the maintenance of wheel and track vehicles, small arms, artillery weapons, and in giving assistance in organizational supply problems. The platoons are organized so that they are capable of moving out with a combat team on short notice.

Company A repairmen utilize mobile machine shop vans in which some 10 per cent of the necessary tools and parts are made on lathes, drill presses, shapers, and grinders carried in the vans. Other material turned out by these rebuild men are bushings, shafts and pins, valve guides, mounting brackets, nuts and bolts, and special types of tools.

This phase of the battalion's program doesn't save as much money as the repair of vehicle small parts but it does prevent the despatching of many vehicles for lengthy periods.

Company B, known as the "rear company," operates the field maintenance shops and the division ordnance supply point. Much of its work is to provide direct support ordnance service to rear elements of the division and supplemented support to the forward Company A.

Nothing New

Rebuilding weapons, vehicles, and parts to save the taxpayers' dollars and to provide the necessary equipment for the Army is no new experience for Col. Collier. Shortly before the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, he was assigned to the 229th Ordnance Base Depot at Yokohama, Japan, as chief of ordnance reclamation. Six months before the fighting started, Operation Rollup was begun as an economy move and a means of providing replacement vehicles, weapons and parts for those already in use in the Far East.

Abandoned weapons, vehicles, and other material which had been used in the war against Japan were gathered from the Philippines, Guam, Okinawa, and other islands. Worn and rusted tanks were sent to the Tokyo Ordnance Center for rebuilding. Old and apparently useless trucks and other vehicles were dispatched to the Oppana Ordnance Shops, and other material went to the Sugita shops near Yokohama.

The foresight of the officers who planned Operation Rollup and the value of the program were quickly realized after the fighting began in Korea. Operation Rollup had provided the only tanks available to U. S. forces there during the first six months of the conflict and also provided countless other weapons for use against the enemy.

"Without the benefit of Operation Rollup, U. S. combat troops in Korea would have been in a bad way," Col. Collier stated. "About 80 per cent of the material collected in the Rollup program was salvageable. The other 20 per cent was sold to Japanese industries, largely to fulfill contracts given by the Army."

Since moving to Fort Benning from Camp Rucker, the 747th Ord. Bn. has placed particular emphasis on the training of tank drivers, track, turret, organizational and field maintenance personnel for M48, M1 tanks, and other armored vehicles and new types of wheel vehicles.

5th Army Wins Golf Title

ROCKVILLE, Md. (APFS)—The Fifth Army golf team edged the defending champion Fourth Army, 583 to 585, to annex the All-Army Golf Championship at the Woodmont Country Club here.

Members of the championship aggregation, all corporals, include Monte M. Sanders, John B. Weaver, John H. Guenther Jr., and Ted Wickerman.

Cpl. Billy Maxwell of the Fourth Army, National Amateur Champion in 1951, fired a 71-70-72—a five under par 283—to win the Open title.

Fifth Army's Weaver posted a 285 to finish in the runner-up spot. Weaver dogged Maxwell throughout the tournament, trailing by just one stroke after 63 holes. However, Maxwell's one under par 73 while Weaver and the best he could do was finish two strokes off the pace.

In the Senior division, First Army's Lt. Col. Mannie L. Raley won the title by beating Lt. Gen. George Decker, Military District of Washington, 3 and 2. Col. Raley carded a one over par 73 while Gen. Decker came in with a 75. The colonel, a left-handed player who depends mostly on his iron play, has used the same putter for the past 30 years. His victory in the Senior division marks his first time since 1949 that Lt. Gen. Floyd Parks, CG, Second Army, has not copied the title. Gen. Parks was eliminated earlier in the tournament.

In a match with Maj. Frederic A. Potts, Third Army, Col. Raley blasted a 164-yard tee-in-one on the seventh, using a No. 4 iron. Maxwell was presented the Malin Craig Memorial Trophy to become the fifth winner of the cup. Col. Raley received the Gordon Gray Trophy.

China Team Off For Meet

The Chinese Nationalist Army team left Fort Benning last week for Camp Perry, Ohio, where it will compete in the National Trophy Rifle and Pistol Matches Aug. 11-Sept. 6.

The 14-man team, which has been practicing firing here since July 20, is the first Chinese group ever to enter the National Matches.

Representing the best shots in the Chinese Nationalist Army, the team is headed by Lt. Col. Wei Wah, officer in charge. The pistol team is comprised of Lt. Col. Feng Yu Chung, Capt. Wang Chi Chan, First Lt. Ma Chen Sun, First Lt. Ha Yin, Sfc. Shao Wu Yao and Sfc. Chi Shen To. Team coach is Capt. Wang Chen-Yen.

Rifle team experts are Second Lt. Hsiao Kuo Lin, Second Lt. Young Yu-To, M-Sgt. Qiang Chi Pei, M-Sgt. Quan Cha Jing, M-Sgt. Chie Yu-Tong, Pfc. Kuan Yu-San, Pfc. Han Shai Ling and Pfc. Ko Fen Tao. Their coach is Capt. Hsing Fee.

Scruton and Whitmoyer Win 3A Tennis Title

Led by Robert Scruton and Gene Whitmoyer, Fort Benning came from third place at the start of the Third Army Tennis Tournament last week to second by copying the doubles title to give them a total of 16 points.

Scruton and Whitmoyer teamed against Camp Gordon's B. H. Bonham and Jim Austin for the doubles victory to the tune of 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, and 9-7. Whitmoyer's service kept Austin and Bonham back DOUGHBOY POWERHOUSE . . . Garnering four hits out of six times at bat, Al Grandcolas is congratulated by Al Conway after homering in the second inning. Along with three singles and a total of eight RBIs, Grandcolas led the way in a 20 to 8 victory over Eglin AFB last Saturday.

Ole 'Carbine' Still Calls 'Em

When two teams get together in the TIC Invitational Softball League, you can be pretty sure that the umpire behind the plate will be Sgt. Wilbur Corbett.

Sgt. Corbett, who hails from Lake City, Fla., has been calling 'em since returning from Korea in '53. While in Korea he won the nickname "Carbine" Corbett and, although seriously wounded, made a phenomenal recovery. Now he is one of the busiest of umpires, calling a game nearly every night.

Knowing it to be a thankless job, he has won the admiration of the players, coaches, and spectators by his keen judgment and firm manner while on the field.

STC Slams Out 23 to 2 Victory

Special Troops Command slammed out a 23-2 victory over 506th Helicopter Company last week in the Infantry Center Invitational Softball League.

Pvt. Mike Posner of Portland, Me., furnished the bulk of the hitting power in the lopsided triumph which enabled the Special Troops nine to pull alongside League Air Force Base and 682nd Lt. Engineers for pole position.

Everything came in "fours" for Posner whose lethal bat exploded for four hits in as many trips, knocking in four runs and copying the spurge with a four-bagger. He also scored four runs.

on their heels and gave his team needed confidence.

Roger Platt won the singles title by defeating McPherson's John Hooker by the scores of 6-3, 6-0, and 6-1.

A final point breakdown by teams shows Gordon winning the overall team championship with 20 points, Benning, 16, Bragg, 15, Bonham, 13, McEllan, 9, Campbell, 7, McPherson, 6, Stewart, 4, Redstone Arsenal, 3, and Atlanta General Depot, 1.

Team Wins 5 Out of 6 Games On Outstanding Road Trip

BY GARY M. CORBETT
After winning five out of six games on a week-long road trip, the Fort Benning Doughboys have returned home for another tussle with the powerful Fort McPherson team who has split with the Doughboys in a previous series.

Vinegar Bend Mizell will probably hurt one game and undoubtedly Fred Kipp will throw one for Benning. Either John Gehhard or Art Amaya will pitch the second game for the locals.

The Doughboys have displayed ability on the road trip by their powerful hitting and base running. They have been weak defensively as there is no settled line-up as yet and there have been different men at each position almost every night. The defense will be air tight though as they have the men, but just need to work together.

The pitching staff has shown more than expected with John Lang, John McKinnon and Art Amaya all turning in above par games. Lang was battered in his first few innings, but settled down and finished one contest looking fresh, McKinnon, although beaten, pitched steady ball. Amaya was the big gun as he turned in the best effort on the trip, pitching a two runs, and scored one.

In the first game the Eagle pitchers couldn't stop the slugger soldiers. Al Grandcolas stole the show for Benning along with Dick Cormier. Al had four hits in six trips with a home run and drove eight runs across the plate while scoring three. Dick had three for four, walked, doubled and drove in four runs, and scored one.

George Ritchie started the game, but needed help from George Miles in the seventh inning. Miles only pitched one inning though as rain halted the game at the end of the seventh.

The second game was a tight pitchers duel until Bob Bush slammed his second home run of the road trip over the fence to give Benning a two run margin. The Doughboys talked and Sunday at Fort Walton, Fla. In the first game, the Doughboys took batting practice, pounding three Eagle pitchers to win 20-8.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Mizell Inspires Little Leaguers

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga.—"Judge. His footwork and maneuvering Major Leaguers" is the way Atlanta observers describe the Little League baseball players at Fort McPherson, Ga.

The "major league" accolade springs from the fact that the Post Little League team is coached and managed by Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, the famed St. Louis Cardinal pitcher of 1952 and 1953.

Mizell is now a private stationed here, and the Post youth are certainly glad of it. Mizell teams will Pfc. Arnold Martines, outfielder with the Post baseball team, to give the kids all kinds of excellent advice.

Even on the hottest summer days, the youngsters are present and ready to absorb the tips and coaching of Mizell and Martines. Mizell is also enthusiastic about the job, and throws himself into to perfect your control."

"You're young," he tells his wide-eyed listeners, "and you don't want to hurt your arm. What you want to learn now is what to throw and when to throw it. And you want to perfect your control."

"Of course, 'Vinegar Bend' does most of the coaching," says Martines, but, "I enjoy telling what I can to the youngsters. They catch beautiful movements around first

Post Swimmers Seek Moultrie Tank Victory

A 15 man team from Fort Benning will leave this week to enter the "Tobacco Land" swim meet at Moultrie, Ga., Saturday.

Led by Cpl. Robert Conteen, coach, the team hopes to win the championship for the second straight year. The sixth RCT won the title last year.

No event will be beyond the 220 yard freestyle and breaststroke. Other teams expected to enter are the Emory Swim Club of Atlanta, Miami Biltmore Swim Club, and the Oak Ridge Swim Team from Tennessee.

With Jack McCord, Eugene Cotter, Gordon Watson, and Masayoshi Ohama leading the way, the Benning aggregation poses as strong contenders for high honors.

On fast, and are eager students. With Mizell giving the advice, learn a lot myself that I didn't know."

After a delay of one week, football tickets are on sale in all orderly rooms throughout the post. Be sure and get your ticket now and don't forget the little lady.

Great expense is incurred by the Special Service and the money derived is used to purchase the necessary equipment and trophies for the winning team. So be sure to support your team and for the best in entertainment you will find anywhere.

We understand that plans are being formulated for a horseshoe tournament, so all you men who are so inclined better start getting the arm in shape to do a little ringing of the stakes.

Boxing which has become one of TV's best entertainment programs will soon be getting the most by Benning sport fans. This Post has in the past produced several Army champions and a likely group of men in the art of fistfights are making plans to defend their laurels in the squared ring. Competition should be at an all-time high between the various organizations located here.

In summing up, no one need look farther than Fort Benning to find the tops in sports — and take your pick. Ping pong, chess, billiard, bowling, etc., they're all here and just for your pleasure.

Wolverines Fall
Fort McClellan, the only team to defeat the Doughboys on their road trip, was 7-1 in the first game. The Benning nine won the first game 9-4, but dropped the second 5-1, Aug. 5 and 6 at the Alabama installation.

The first game was a 1-1 pitcher's duel for five innings. In the last of the fifth, McClellan hunched back with some "breaks" for three straight home runs. The first, by Tom Paddock was an ordinary line drive single which bounced high in the rough outfield over Ralph Sita's head. The second was a 400 foot smash by Frank Glamp which would have been good in any park. The third was the freak of the year. Bill Bergant hit a high pop down the left field line which hit and bounced at a 90 degree angle to the foul line into a deep bollow. The ball was in play, but there was no chance to make a play on the runner. This ended the Wolverine scoring for the night.

In the seventh the Doughboys scored twice on three singles to make it four to three. In the eighth all fury broke loose as the Doughboys loaded the bases with Dick Cormier coming to the plate. The runner had singled as a pinch hitter in the seventh, but Joe Smith, Doughboy manager, jerked him out for Hank Heffner. Hank stepped up to the plate and with two balls and one strike unleashed a 425 foot grand slam home run into right center field. Benning scored once in the ninth on Francon's wild pitch and a timely single by Goose Jones.

Doughboys Stunned
In the second game, the Wolverines played errorless ball before the fifth inning. The Benning bats failed to beat the Doughboys, 5-1. Jack McKinnon, starter for Benning allowed only five hits in seven.

innings before being removed for a pinch hitter. Big Bill Borgardt was the man of the hour as he singled twice, homered once and drove in three of the four McClellan tallies. Russ Davis playing after being injured the night before scored and drove in the only Benning run with a solo home run in the seventh.

Airmen Trounced

In the Doughboys' fifth game as a team, Bob Bush, the slugging second baseman led a 17 hit attack on Camp Seward Air Force team which bowed 15-6 under Benning's 15 run barrage, Aug. 4.

Bush in five trips to the plate had a single, a home run and three runs batted in. Running in close competition was Al Conway with a single and a triple to drive two runs home. Both Al and Bob stole seven runs on seven hits. Both Seward and Benning scored freely during the rest of the game.

Silver Star Winner Taking Training With NCO Class 4
One of a number of Silver Star winners currently training with Advanced Non-Commissioned Officer Class No. 4 is M-Sgt. William D. Schrader of the 123rd Infantry Regiment of Ft. Lewis' 44th Division.
Schrader won the Silver Star on March 17th, 1953, near Um-Dong, North Korea. At that time he was assigned to Company G, Ninth Infantry Regiment. Elements of the company were counterattacking when Sgt. Schrader came upon a strongly entrenched enemy machine gun position. Repeated efforts to destroy the position failed. Sgt. Schrader, though already wounded, rushed the emplacement and killed the enemy with hand grenades. Then he led a squad in a sweeping assault on the hill, inflicting many enemy casualties and routing him.
Sgt. Schrader entered the Army in August 1948. He is from Chelsea, Mich.

Solons' Service Agenda Housing Act Signed

BY CPL. JOE TAYLOR, AUS (AFPS Washington Correspondent)
A major item in the Defense Department's program for increased benefits came into being last week when President Eisenhower signed the National Housing Act of 1954. Under it career servicemen are now eligible for home loan benefits similar to those granted to WWII and Korean veterans.
Basically, the act applied to all career servicemen now on active duty and who have been for more than two years. To qualify for a home loan, the servicemen must get a certificate from the Secretary of Defense or his delegated representative verifying his status and that he requires housing.
Merchant Marine Academy
The House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill calling for the establishment of a permanent Merchant Marine Academy. It also provides for the extension of the existing academy until such time as a permanent facility would come into being. The permanent academy would be on an equal footing with the three Service academies and the Coast Guard Academy.
Assistant Secretaries
The bill creating two more assistant secretaries for each of the three Services has been passed by both Houses and sent on to the White House. When it is signed, the total number of top civilian aides in the Pentagon will be 29. Since the bill was introduced in Congress as an administration measure, it is expected that the President will sign it shortly.

A Fort Benning sergeant has received an engraved silver cigarette case from the Royal Thai Army's commander for service with the U. S. Military Mission in Thailand, Sfc. Richard F. Fitzgerald of Bronx, N. Y., assigned to the Small Arms Section of Army Field Forces Board No. 3 was presented the case by Col. Charles D'Orsa, board president.
The inscription on the case reads: "In appreciation of the services rendered to the Royal Thai Army as heavy weapons Infantry leader, First Army of Army Section Jusmag, Thailand." It was signed by Field Marshal P. Chulabhorn, commander of the Royal Thai Army and dated June 5, 1954.
For two years Fitzgerald, who entered the service in 1941, aided in training Thai soldiers in all types of small arms methods. He described the work as "very interesting" and pointed out that Thai soldiers are "very intelligent with most of the officers able to speak English well."

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town telephone number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster.
2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

To help you get faster service, you'll find out-of-town directories for the larger cities at each telephone center.

Two Awarded Job Ratings

The 41st was first organized as the 41st Field Artillery Regiment on Aug. 10, 1918, at Camp Custer, Mich. It did not get a chance to see action in World War II, and was demobilized in 1919.

In 1933, the 41st was reconstituted as an inactive Regular Army unit.

At the beginning of World War II, the regiment was broken up and the 41st Field Artillery Battalion was formed. The new battalion was assigned to the Third Infantry Division and fought in Europe throughout the war.

The 41st took part in four amphibious invasions: North Africa, Sicily, Italy and Southern France. At the Anzio Beachhead, the 105mm howitzers of the 41st were credited with helping save the Allied forces from being pushed back into the sea.

Deactivated after World War II, the 41st was reactivated after the outbreak of the Korean conflict. This time the 41st was reactivated with the Third Division at Fort Benning.

When the Third Division departed from Fort Benning for Korea, the 41st remained behind to become one of the original units forming the new Combat Training Command.

Today the 41st Field Artillery Battalion performs the mission of supporting The Infantry School by demonstrating the power and uses of artillery to students.

Two Columbus, Ga., residents have been awarded outstanding job performance ratings.

William L. Durham of 1124 Maple Street, an employe in the Quartermaster Section, and Miss Doris Jennings of Camellia Apartments, secretary to the post engineer, were cited for "outstanding performance in all aspects of assigned work which exceeds normal requirements."

Col. Richard F. Ebbs, former post engineer, presented Miss Jennings' rating, the second one she has received since coming to Benning in 1937.

Dorham, warehouse storage specialist, received his rating from Col. William R. Fields, post quartermaster. He has been employed in the Quartermaster Section since 1941.

Reserve Activities Hit Summer Peak

Summer training activities for Army Reservists reached a peak this week as more than 900 civilian-soldiers arrived for 15 days of active duty.

Units now undergoing their annual training include the 401st Engineer Brigade of Atlanta, with 24 attached units from seven states in the Third Army area, and the 20-man 3126th Army Service Unit of Charleston, S. C., which is staffing Third Army's Reserve Infantry School.

The engineer brigade with its attached units has 198 officers, 16 warrant officers and 534 enlisted men.

Engineer reserve groups from Orlando, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., and Vicksburg, Meridian and Jackson, Miss., returned to their homes this week after completing two weeks of training. The Reserve Quartermaster and Chaplain School of Durham, N. C., and Judge Advocate General School of Jacksonville, Fla., also trained here this summer.

In order to be eligible for naturalization, an alien must have served active duty in the Armed Forces for at least 90 days after June 24, 1950, and must have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or only two character witnesses will be needed to testify in behalf of all members of the unit.

OC Spirit Caught In Stirring March

Unique in the First Officer Candidate Regiment is the fact that 12th OC Company now has its own custom-tailored marching song. The stirring words and music were written by OC Ray H. Linford of Washington, D. C.

Linford, who is well-qualified to make this contribution to his company's esprit, studied music in the U. S. and Europe and introduced his song in a sturdy baritone voice.

The words, which convey only a part of the martial spirit of the march, are as follows:

You may ask me where I'm from, you may ask me what I do, if you do you'll see pride's light shine in my eye. For I'm from God's chosen land and I'm leading valiant men. I'm living for that land, perhaps to die. I'm from the 12th OC; so follow me

And we'll go to victory. We're above the rest. We will fight the best. Defending our country of the free. Our honor bright and clear. We will ever hold dear. And thus we'll win our glory bright. Fighting, leading, following in loyalty. With all our might.

CO and OC Both Get Stork Visit

It was cause for a double celebration last week in 13th Officer Candidate Company when the stork arrived within 24 hours at the home of Capt. Joe Mears, company commander, and Officer Candidate Robert S. Anderson of Stockton, Calif. For Capt. Mears it was a girl while for Candidate Anderson it was a 8 1/2 pound boy.

Japan Sites Beckon Tourists

The legendary nine-headed dragon of Lake Hakone heads should be highly pleased because the residents of the lakeshore are going all-out to make it a memorable event. It's also a top tourist attraction. Lake Hakone, also known as Lake Ashi, is one of Japan's largest mountain lakes. It is only about a three-hour drive from Tokyo via Route No. 1. Buddhist priests and parishioners of the nearby Hakone Shrine will go to the center of the lake in boats. There, following much colorful ceremony, they will offer boiled rice to the dragon, which for centuries have been the reigning spirit of the lake. Much of the event will be visible from the shore. Thousands of lanterns will be floated on the water during the evening. Lake Hakone, located in the heart of Hakone National Park, is about 13 miles in circumference. It is famous for its view of Mt. Fuji.

Clear, hot weather tends to slow down activities in Japan's lowlands, but in the cool, crisp environs of Mt. Fuji everybody seems to be on the move. Doing what? Climbing Fuji-san, of course.

Railway statisticians say that 8,500 climbers swarmed up Japan's sacred mountain last Saturday. From the air, the peak looked like a giant anthill, complete with ants. The crowd set a new postwar record for assaults on Fuji in one day.

If you're one of the many Japan visitors who wants to make the grueling hike, the season will be open for only one more month.—From Stars and Stripes.

End of AF KP in Sight?

A research project to determine the cost and desirability of a civilian firm handling U. S. Air Force dining room service was initiated Aug. 1 at Vance Air Force Base, Enid, Okla.

The experiment is scheduled for a year's duration, after which the Air Staff at Hqs. USAF will study the results to determine if civilian food service on a wider basis would be economical and desirable.

If successful the experiment eventually could mean the end of kitchen police at a number of Air Force bases, but this factor cannot be determined until the results are studied. In any event, there will be a continuing need in the Air Force for skilled military food service personnel. There are many units which must be self contained, able to move and set up their own food service immediately anywhere in the world.

However, in some overseas commands, where time and other factors permit, civilian nationals are hired to perform food service duties.

The civilian contractor at Vance will be provided military food rations on the Air Force menu. The individual airman will continue to get the same dollar value allowed by the Government for his subsistence under the military system of serving.—From the Air University Dispatch.

Fems Make AF Life Easier

Probably the most unpleasant of all military duties—kitchen police—may be erased in the future for Air-Force personnel.

EM of Vance Air Force Base, Okla., surrendered their brooms and GI brushes to civilians last week in what may be known in history as the most noble and notable experiment ever attempted by the Armed Services.

And if the experiment proves successful for the Air Force, the Army and Navy may well give it a go. (Of course, Navy efforts will be necessarily confined to shore, since civilians caterers might not like a six-month jaunt at sea).

But then there's more to the story than just the end of KP!

In some instances, the civilians taking over the kitchen were young pert, pink-cheeked girls.

The first meal, served last Saturday in the Vance kitchens, won the wholehearted support of Airmen there. Served cafeteria style, the system also did away with the odorous of emptying trays in garbage cans.

Pretty waitresses bounced through the mess hall to cart away the empty dishes.

Yes, the life of the soldier and airman looks as if it could get more attractive every day.—From the All-American Faraglido.

Realness of God Seen Everywhere

BY CHAPLAIN MALCOLM SADLER

Most of us at one time or another have feelings of uncertainty as to the existence of a Greater Being. No matter how great our faith or hope, there are moments when we wonder, "Is God real?" In order that we may clear up any uncertainty, there are three evidences of the realness of God which become apparent to us if we pause and think a moment.

The first evidence of the realness of God is the Bible itself. The 66 books, covering a period of 1,500 years, and written by 44 authors, have produced a harmony of documents which unfolds in a progressive manner. The last book in the Bible was written a hundred years after Jesus' presence on earth and the first one had been written 1600 years before Christ. From beginning to end, the Bible bears witness to ONE God. Predictions are made throughout the early part of the Bible which later are fulfilled by other events. The Bible teaches one redemption, one God, and a harmony of doctrines.

The second evidence of the realness of God can be found in things about us in our every-day lives. Stand you upon the earth in the evening hours and gaze up into the heavens at the great expanse of sky and stars, and there will come to you a feeling that somewhere in the heavens there is a great Creator who surely engineers the coordination of this universe. Look into the face of a new born infant, there in a great miracle of reproduction you can see manifest the handiwork of a Supreme Being.

The third evidence of the realness of God can be found in the beauty of man. As we listen to beautiful music peeling from the organ or to the voice of great singers, there comes somewhere inside a tingling feeling which is significant of the presence of God. Stand quietly at the graveside of a loved one, your heart overwhelmed with grief, crushed in spirit but yet felt inside a certain sense of the nearness of a Being which is truly God in your soul. Sit in the sanctuary or drive along the highway or rest quietly on your bed, and there can come to you the consciousness of a Supreme Being in your soul. This consciousness of the realness of God comes as one note of the great organ of our inner soul peeling forth a vibrating sound which thrills us through and through and makes us to know that our God is real.

Yes, there are some things that we do not know; there are some things that we cannot understand, but of one thing we can be sure: God can be real to our lives. He can be real because of the evidence of the Bible, He can be real because He can be seen in the things about us and He can be real to us because we can feel Him in our souls. The question for each one of us to answer then as individuals is: "Is God real to me?"

The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded posthumously to Cpl. Eugene V. Wetzel, USA, for his heroism in the "Punchbowl" area in Korea May 24, 1953. He was a member of Co. 2, 24th Inf. Regt., 40th Inf. Div. Cpl. Wetzel volunteered for a patrol sent out to capture an enemy soldier who had been sighted in the vicinity. The patrol set out with Cpl. Wetzel acting as point man. Wetzel, with complete disregard for his own safety, rushed forward. He killed one man and wounded four others. But he was caught in the small arms fire and was mortally wounded.

Weak from loss of blood, he saw an enemy soldier raise his arm to throw a grenade. Wetzel shot him dead, then threw himself on the grenade to protect his comrades from the explosion. The grenade never went off. The enemy soldier had failed to release the firing pin. But Cpl. Wetzel never found out. He had passed out from his wounds and died a short time later. (AFPS).

$10,477 a Month
Trans. Sect. Saves
U.S. Taxpayers Cash

The wheels of Fort Benning's Transportation Section have turned right into a $10,477 monthly savings for the U. S. taxpayer. Under the direction of Col. Sidney P. Kretlow, the section reduced the cost of its overall operation from $60,232 in April 1953 to $49,755 for the corresponding month this year. Reports indicate this reduction was accomplished even though Fort Benning's Transportation Corps activity has grown since that time to the largest of its kind in the U. S. The growth came about when the First Transportation Battalion and Transportation Motor Pool were placed under the technical and staff supervision of the transportation officer. This consolidation centralized control of all administrative activities, except those belonging to the 27th Car Company, and brought the total number of vehicles used in support of The Infantry School and Infantry Center to approximately 1,700. The largest government motor pools depicted in Army manuals have between 100 and 150 vehicles. After the consolidation, two of the five sub-pools and one of the three maintenance shops were closed, resulting in the elimination of 129 vehicles and 132 personnel spaces. In addition, approximately $2,000 worth of tools and equipment was declared surplus and turned in to supply channels. The report also shows that during the past year, the Commercial Traffic Division of the section received 79,716 tons of freight and shipped 34,166 short tons. It also processed 34,166 persons in and 24,621 persons out, for which 5,953 transportation requests and 7,025 meal tickets were issued. Over 490 dependents were given assistance and their papers processed for overseas travel.

The Bryonnet, Columbus, Ga., August 19, 1954 - Page Seven

Household goods shipments proved a major business. Approximately 2,118 shipments were unpacked, not including commercial van shipments. Shipments of household goods and military freight totaled 11,896 in and 10,976 out. Education Upsurges

Smash 3A Records

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga., — A record high of 104,621 enrollments in Third Army Education activities was marked up for Fiscal Year 1954 by Troop Information and Education Offices throughout the Third Army Area, according to information released by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army commander.

This shows an increase of nearly 10 per cent over last year's participation of 95,884. These figures represent the number of persons actually taking courses through either civilian institutions with partial tuition aid from the government, those taking correspondence courses through the United States Armed Forces Institute, those enrolled in classes set up by individual installations and those who were administered the so-called General Educational Development tests for the purpose of receiving the equivalent of a high school diploma or entering a certain level of college. It is a cumulative enrollment of all courses registered for.

A terrific rise in enrollment was shown at the college level, with 23,789 participating. Main reasons for this increase were the recent establishment of on-post centers at Third Army posts by several universities, and also the new policy by which officers as well as enlisted men may receive up to 75 per cent of their tuition costs from the government.

Intermediate - level education nearly doubled, going from 6,408 to 12,675, but the main reason for this was the recent requirement that all non-commissioned officers lacking in certain phases of intermediate education attend classes in these until they had fulfilled the requirements.

High School Up, Too
High school-level enrollment also increased, going from 42,243 to 46,568 but educators noted a downward trend last year in the number of people who actually completed the high school courses. New emphasis this year will be placed on encouraging students to complete the courses once they begin them. High school courses are mostly of the correspondence type and administered through the United States Armed Forces Institute, or USAFI as it is called.

Other reasons given for the astonishing rise in schooling within Third Army were increased support and implementation by the Department of the Army and also the increase in stability of assignments following the Korean Armistice.

Besides benefiting the soldier immediately in better jobs and quicker promotion, all this education is paying off toward better civilian opportunities, too. The number of certificates equivalent to diplomas issued during the past fiscal year more than doubled the previous year's number.

COMMENDED . . . Capt. R. T. Dunphy, student in First Co., First SR, recently received a certificate of commendation from Lt. Col. Warren Hecker, regimental commander, for outstanding work as CO of a training company.

Nearly 400 Men Tested So Far

65 Taking English at Center

Sixty-five enlisted men whose primary language is not English are now receiving instruction in speaking, reading and writing English at the Fort Benning Army Education Center.

The men are divided into classes according to their present knowledge of English. One class provides for men whose ability to speak English is very limited and who have had no previous instruction in English; another includes men who have already received some instruction but who are still unable to speak fluently. A special class is conducted for men who have attained the ability to speak English but who are unable to read or write the language.

Other classes are conducted evenings for the benefit of foreign born personnel who desire to receive advanced instruction in the English language. Particular emphasis in these advanced classes is given to increasing the ability of the students to read and write English so that they will be prepared to take courses and examinations required for completion of the elementary grades, high school, or college. During the course of instruction the students are given assistance in selecting courses which they need to study to complete the requirements for high school or college graduation.

Since April of this year more than 225 men whose primary language is not English have received instruction in speaking and reading the language in classes at the Army Education Center. Many of the students, after completing the courses in English instruction, have enrolled in United States Armed Forces Institute self-study courses or have taken USAFI tests to raise their educational level. Several have already received their high school diplomas as a result of their efforts at educational self-improvement.

In the program to raise the educational level of foreign born personnel, tests to determine their English fluency ability have been administered at the Army Education Center to nearly 400 men.

Never Had It So Good

Airmen 'Ditch' KP

At VANCE AFB, Okla. (AFPS) — You're an airman stationed here. You go into the chow hall one day expecting to get regular Air Force chow, prepared, served and dished out by airmen just like yourself. The kind of chow you've been eating for years.

Is that what you find? No! There is a bunch of dames in the mess hall. Pretty ones, wearing crisp blue and white waitress uniforms. Do you wait in line and get the chow on the tin trays like you're used to? No, again.

You gotta sit down at a table first. Then they bring the food over to you. Not on the trays with their cozy compartments that sort of keep the food close together, but on real china dishes. You know the same kind you got at home. Now, you gotta worry about breaking them.

And if you don't watch out, one of the gals is going to smile at you. This could upset a guy accustomed to seeing the scowls of KPs while he's eating. Then what's going to happen; you're going to be watching the girls, instead of the food. This is probably bad for your digestion.

Yeah, and what's happened to the KPs? Who's scouring the pots and pans, peeling the spuds and getting the grease pit real clean? Civilians that's who. They've taken over all the jobs that KPs have been doing for years. It's getting so a guy can't be sure of pulling KP unless he transfers to another base.

Even then, who can tell? This

Vet Corps Drops 2d Lt. Designation

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — The grade of second lieutenant has been abolished as far as veterinary officers are concerned, according to a recent message from the Department of the Army.

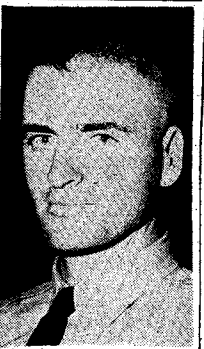

From now on, all who qualify for direct commissions in the Army Veterinary Corps will go in as first lieutenants, the same as Medical and Dental Corps officers. All now serving as second lieutenants will be notified by the Department of the Army if on active duty; or by Third Army Headquarters if not on active duty status, and residing within the Third Army Area. They will be considered for promotion to first lieutenant if they have less than five years practicing experience or to a possibly higher rank if they have more than five years experience.

The new policy is a result of Public Law 459, signed by the President on June 30th.

Suchon Tunnel Massacre

Playing Dead Paid

DARMSTADT, Germany (APPS) — Sgt. Robbie O. Bomberry, a member of the 46th FA Bn. here, played dead—and lived through the Suchon Tunnel massacre in Korea. He was one of 28 out of 138 men who survived the October 1950 Red atrocity.

Sgt. Bomberry, an American in the 24th Inf. Div. in July 1950. After engaging the enemy at Osan, his battalion was forced to retreat to Konju where it was told to maintain the position. Surrounded, the battalion was forced to withdraw again to Taekjon. But the sergeant didn't make it. Wounded and lost, Bomberry hid in a cave about 500 yards from the Red positions, evading capture for a week.

Taken prisoner, he watched men about him die of bad treatment.

told to get out in groups and walk into the fields so they could be fed.

Two groups of 25 had walked ahead of Sgt. Bomberry's group. He heard gunfire. Then he felt sharp pains in his legs and arms as the Reds sprayed his group with burp guns. Instinctively he fell to the ground.

The Reds combed the massacre site, killing those who had survived the withering hail of bullets. Sgt. Bomberry lay there without moving as a soldier jabbed him in the shoulder with a bayonet. Another kicked him in the head.

When the Reds left the murder scene, Sgt. Bomberry and four other survivors escaped into the hills.

Prospects Great for Well-Balanced Grid League

Defending Champion School Brigade Favored to Win Over Seven Star-Studded Rivals

With the baseball season nearing an end and football beginning to get more and more attention, it seems that the School Brigade is considered the team to beat.

The 47th Division will have four teams entered in the TIC league, 135th, 136th, 144th, and Divarty. Any one of these could carry off top honors by the end of the season. CTC should show a good account of themselves, along with Special Troops Command (composed of the Modies and Special Troops). Last but not least, is the 30th Infantry, (a threat). From all indications, this season should be one of the best Benning has seen in many a year.

Two CTC Squads
Combat Training Command is trying to furnish two teams for competition in the Main Post teams might present.

The 135th Inf. Regt. expects to battle mightily, but is not good enough in its coach's eyes to win the championship. Coach Joe Temays sums his feelings, "We will win a few and lose a few."

The Flickertails from the 144th broke even last year, at Camp Rucker winning four and losing four.

Divarty, under Lt. Rice, is another team in the process of rebuilding, although starting from scratch. Lot of enthusiasm has been shown and Divarty might be a sleeper in the league.

STC, under the coaching of former All-American Andy Kozar will be a threat, but as yet all plans and prospects are a deep secret.

This year promises to be one of the best in TIC football with the addition of the 47th Division to the league. The competition should be tremendous and the play fast and tough. Season tickets are on sale now and for 50 cents unbeatable fall entertainment is yours.

Doughboys Face Rugged Road Trip

AL CONWAY OUT AT FIRST ON CLOSE PLAY Bill Borgardt Tags The Doughboy Runner

6 Games Left Before Tourney, Win 3 Out of 4 in Home Stand

Sporting a 10-3 record, through Monday's game the high-stepping Fort Benning Doughboys tomorrow night enter their final week of action before the Third Army Baseball Tournament starts Aug. 30. The squad will play six games in seven days, four of them on the road.

The post aggregation, packed with stars of the 1954 intramural season, meets Camp Gordon Friday and Saturday at the Augusta, Ga. post. Then they move on to Atlanta for games with the ever-tough Fort McPherson nine, Monday and Tuesday.

The Doughboys return home victory over Fort McClellan, and a sweep of the two-game series at Dowdy both on four-hit hurling performance.

In his first starting assignment of the season, Miles was troubled only in the fifth inning when the Wolverines tallied their lone run. Third baseman Russ Davis grabbed a line drive with the bases loaded and converted it into an unassisted double play to snuff the rally.

Benning scored in the first as Hank Heffner walked, stole second, third, and home. In the next frame, Randy Dale forced Russ Davis, stole second, and scored as Bob Rush lashed a double to right center.

The Doughboys in the fifth added icing to the victory. Al Conway led off with a base hit followed by Joe Smith, who executed a perfect hit and run single which scored Conway from first. Joe went to second on the play to the plate and then advanced to third on a wild pitch. He trotted home on Russ Davis' single to left.

The Doughboys turned four double plays and the Wolverines one. Al Grandcolas and Bob Bush turned in three twin kills at the keystone.

"Valmas 'Valloper" Using a 13-hit attack, the Doughboys dumped the Wolverines, 9-4, Sunday behind the brilliant four hit pitching of John Gebhard.

Joe Valmas, Washington Nationals' property, was battered as the Doughboys avenged a previous defeat at Fort McClellan.

A five-run sixth, featuring RBI's by Heffner, Francona, Conway and Ned Davis iced the tilt.

The ninth gave Benning a scare as Gebhard walked the first four men to face him, struck out the fifth and then walked the sixth. However Art Amaya retired the last two overruns for the game.

Benning's best effort of the season, the Doughboys yielded McPherson a series split, 11-5, Saturday night at Dowdy.

The Macmen romped behind the fire pitching of sidearming Ted Abernathy as the Doughboys aided him with three errors.

Del Bandy, starter for Benning, was touched for two runs in the first on three singles and an error.

In the second the Doughboys struck back, but their rally started by singles from the bats of Al Conway and Dick Cormier, was cut short as Abernathy struck out George Jones and Randy Dale to retire the side.

MacPherson opened the flood-gates in the fourth as they scored five runs.

The Doughboys biggest and only three-run game in the seventh when Grandcolas walked, Conway singled and Jones doubled the second run across the plate. Randy Dale

RUSS DAVIS, SLUGGING THIRD SACKER, SWINGS HARD But Lifts A High Pop Fly To The Waiting Shortstop

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

Benning's baseball team this year is more than just nine men in uniforms trying to resemble players—the 22 men in uniform ARE players. Last year Benning spoiled a perfect year by beating Camp Rucker, 10-3. Had they lost, their season record would have been 0-12, instead of the unimpressive 1-11.

In the tournament, Benning was defeated in their first game, 9-1, by a powerful Jackson team, which went on to win the tourney. They bowed out of the series in the second game being beaten by Fort Bragg, 11-1. That was last year.

This year three teams are in contention for the Third Army Championship. Jackson, defending champs, are the favorites, pressed closely by Fort McPherson. The third, and possibly the dark horse of the tournament, is the Doughboys. Why?

Last year this column said that Benning's All Star team could not be expected to beat the other post teams in this Army area. They didn't have the material.

Here are the reasons for success:

Behind the plate are three catchers capable of playing top drawer ball. Carl Bentz is more seasoned and will probably get the starting nod. He is currently hitting .357 and has handled 34 chances without a bobble. Randy Dale and Ray Jamalkowski are the big reason that Bentz is on his toes. They are good enough to take over should Carl slip. Not one, then, but three first rate catchers.

At first base is the man picked by the coaches in the selection for the All-Star team, Tito Francona. Joe Smith, manager, is carrying only one first baseman, as he knows that Tito is his boy. This year, for the nine games played by the post team, Tito is batting .371, fielding .945, has scored 11 runs, driven three runs in and hit four extra base hits, one a home-run.

Second base is a problem. The Doughboys have three possibilities. Bob Bush has been the shining light so far, as his two competitors are playing other positions. Bob Mathews and Bob Durnbaugh are utility men deluxe and Durnbaugh is a starter in his own right. At present Bush is socking the ball at a .312 clip, has driven in seven runs and leads the team with his two home-runs. Durnbaugh, hitting below par, is one of the big base-stealing threats on the team. Mathews has played less than the other two Bob's, but is batting a respectable .375.

Al Grandcolas' ability at shortstop speaks for itself with his fielding brilliance and power hitting. Al, currently rapping the ball at .440 is leading the team in RBI's, with 14, and is tied for the lead in stolen bases, with three. He has scored 11 runs and has three extra base blows in the book, one a home-run. Bob Durnbaugh, the team man that he is, will have a hard time dethroning the "king" at short.

Third base is a "weak spot?" on the Doughboys. The little regular, Russ Davis, is hitting only .470. Russ thinks that with a few more games under his belt he will get his eye on the ball, no?

In the outfield are some good ball players. Al Conway has found himself a home in right field and a spot well noticed in the batting order. Al has had 8 hits in 23 tries for a .347 mark and is one of the six home-run sluggers on the team. Al leads the team in walks, with seven passes. In centerfield stands another permanent party. Hank Heffner is earning the title of the hardest man on the team to retire. Hank, hitting .381, has been on base 15 times out of 29. He has scored nine runs and should score many more due to his ability to steal second and be in scoring position.

Along with Conway and Heffner in the pasture is Dick Cormier. Al and Dick have two of the most dangerous throwing arms in the business. Dick is currently the lowest hitting regular on the team, but his capabilities far exceed the records. He has shown his stuff by blasting out of a minor slump in the game with Eglin Air Force Base. Dick had four hits in six trips, along with a walk. He drove in four runs in his best effort this year.

Fred Kipp heads the Benning pitching staff, and just his name is "enough said" around Third Army after shutting the Macmen out on one hit. A surprise developed when Art Amaya, the Big Chief, opened up on Eglin and won in his only start on two hits. This could be the big man to beat Jackson or Mac. John Gebhard and George Miles, who have been nursing sore arms the latter part of the season, are swiftly limbering up and will be a tremendous aide to the moundmen of Benning.

In the background, but definitely not out of the picture, are two right handers, John McKinnon and John Lang. They own the two losses of the Doughboys this year, but both lost to major league pitchers. Lang lost to Mizell and McKinnon was downed by Joe Valmas.

No, this year the Third Army should long remember the team called the Doughboys. This year it won't be babes against men; it will be ballplayer against ballplayer.

Bringing Home the Bacon? Benning Mermen Taking Part In 3A Swim Meet at Bragg

As The Bayonet went to press last night, hopes of bringing home the Bacon were high. The Third Army title were with the 15-man Fort Benning swimming team in the annual 1954 meet at Fort Bragg, N. C. which started tonight.

In a meeting of the swim team last week, co-captains were elected to lead the team to victory. The 15-man squad chose Robert Hynes and Masayoshi Ohama, two of the outstanding members of the team. The team is coached by Robert Conteen.

This is one of Fort Benning's best swimming aggregations in years according to Capt. Goldfarb, sports officer.

"They are pretty talented boys," he said. "Fort Bragg is their first threat." The North Carolina team won the 1953 title.

Capt. Goldfarb also has produced triumphs for six Fort Benning individuals and for the swift medley relay team that displayed championship form during the intramural season.

If past performances hold, the Doughboys should not be hard pressed in the breast stroke events. Two Chicagoans, Charles Laughlin and Robert Hynes showed excellent form in winning the 1953 meet. The team sports four better-than-average backstrokers, but Frank Mandol, a former New York titlist, appears to be the main cog. A durable athlete with endless stamina, Masayoshi Ohama is the man to beat in the grueling 800-meter free style race. He also is entered in the 400-meter event. Benning's best bet to deliver in the 400-meter individual medley is Big Seven Conference champ.

Runner-up honors were won by Charles Laughlin in the 200-yard breaststroke and Robert Hynes in the 100-yard butterfly event. The Doughboys were second in the 200-yard free style relay.

Next assignment for the Fort Benning team is the Third Army meet Aug. 19-19 at Fort Bragg, N. C.

108,000 Swimmers Flock To Post Pools in 1954

The astounding total of 108,000 swimmers have taken to the water at the various Fort Benning swimming pools so far this summer. Officers and their dependents amassed a total of 11,300 participants at the Officers Club pool on Main Post.

Swimming classes were conducted at Russ Pool, Main Post, for 225 children and 25 women. The classes were held by the lifeguards, who gave instruction in water safety, swimming, and lifesaving.

During July, Russ pool received the competent lifeguards, three of which 4,953 were women, 3,028 children, and the remainder men. Youngs Pool, located at the Post Rucker Club, was host to 3,350 swimmers. The Rucker Club pool offers swimming plus refreshments and drinks served at the pool.

Sand Hill Pool, in the 47th Division, has 15,440 mermen during the summer and Brian Wells Pool, the only indoor pool on post, accommodated 4,986.

Russ Pool is open every day of the week from 1 to 8 p.m., except on Friday when it is closed for cleaning. Youngs Pool is open to all on Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday and to members on Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday.

Owing to the watchful eyes of the competent lifeguards, there have been no fatal accidents at any of the pools this summer.

The Harmony Church swimming pool opened last Sunday and will remain open for the remainder of the summer.

The Doughboys won the 200-yard medley relay and Jack McCord and Eugene Cotter took first and second places in three-meter diving. Runner-up honors were won by Charles Laughlin in the 200-yard breaststroke and Robert Hynes in the 100-yard butterfly event. The Doughboys were second in the 200-yard free style relay.

EM TO AIR LIKES AND DISLIKES ON PERSONAL ITEMS OF EQUIPT.

One thousand Fort Benning enlisted men were being tested this week to determine why they like or dislike personal items of Army equipment.

Conducting the tests were Dr. William S. Barker of the Psychological Research Associates, Washington, D. C., and Lt. Clement Vicari of the Quartermaster Research and Development Field Evaluation Agency, Fort Lee, Va.

The troops include 250 infantry, artillery, signal and ordnance personnel from Combat Training Command, Special Troops Command, and 47th Infantry Division.

Groups of 100 are answering questionnaires relating to soldiers' acceptance of Quartermaster Corps items of personal equipment, such as canteen cups and uniforms which had been chosen following previous tests.

Left-Hand Salute Befuddles Payer

The mere sight of money can excite some people. It excited a corporal of the 773rd Tank Battalion so much that he committed a slight military error in the pay line.

Obviously intent upon receiving his monthly pay this Pfc. stepped gingerly before his pay officer, First Lt. James W. Vance, and saluted.

When he realized that everybody else was chuckling, he discovered that he was giving a left-handed salute. The mistake quickly corrected, his embarrassment was eased by the pay officer's sense of humor, and the green balm of money seemed ample to soothe his wounded pride.

Visible under the wings of the new light bomber are four napalm tanks. Near the wing tips are eight five-inch high velocity aircraft rockets, four on each side. The armament is variable and a completely different load could be substituted, depending on the mission. The B-57B, which also mounts eight 50-cal. machine guns, firing from the forward wing edges, has a crew of two, a pilot and a navigator-radar operator-bombardier.

NAVY UNVEILS NEW JET FIGHTER TO OPERATE FROM AIR CARRIERS

NEW YORK (APFS) — The Navy's new super sonic, swept-wing jet fighter plane—the F4U Tiger—made its debut in the skies over Long Island early this month. The jet will operate from carriers and is designed to fly faster than sound in level flight.

The Tiger will carry air-to-air and air-to-ground guided missiles. It is the first in a series of super sonic fighter craft to be built for the Navy by the Grumman Aircraft Co. under a $40,000,000 contract.

Under the sleek fighter appears to be shaped like a Coke bottle. The soft-drink-bottle line was developed by research on contours which would offer the least resistance at supersonic speed.

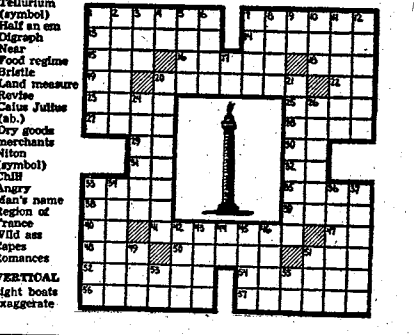

Powered by Curtiss-Wright J-65 Sapphire engines, the Tiger jets will be equipped with afterburners which give great bursts of additional speed. The Tiger incorporates single-sheet construction which reduces the number of parts. The wings do not have folding mechanisms but are folded manually for storage.

The first flight of the Tiger was made from the Grumman Peconic River plant on Long Island with test pilot Corwin Meyer at the controls.

He was featured on several TV programs while a member of the University of Toledo Orchestra. He graduated from that school with a degree in education. Besides beating the drum for classical orchestras, Lt. Jenkins acquired a reputation as a popular band leader in Illinois and Ohio. His dance hand engagements helped him through college.

OC Dick Mooney
Ever since he was six years old, Officer Candidate Dick Mooney has been studying music—voice, violin, and the bugle. While making professional appearances in New York City at the Club Oasis, the Club 80, the Miami Club, and the Nile Room, he was observed by an agent who suggested that he make a test recording. Once the critics heard his voice on wax he was asked to make out platters for Celtic Recording Studio. His most popular discs are "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

OC N. B. Pratt
The people of Mexico have a nickname for their neighbors north of the Rio Grande "Gringos" meaning "Yank" or American. One such "Gringo," born of an old Mormon American family that founded Chihuahua at the end of their pioneer trail, is Senior Candidate Noel B. Pratt of 11th O. C. Company. Pratt received his formal education at Juarez State Academy in Juarez, Mexico, and upon moving to California in 1950, joined the Oxnard, Calif., police department as a fingerprint and identification specialist. A highlight of his police work — until a few seasons ago — was a mainstay of the Metropolitan's repertoire. "Pagliacci" is being presented by the orchestra and chorus of the Metropolitan Opera Association with Fausto Cleva as conductor and Kurt Adler as chorus master.

Thousand$ Saved Ideas Reap Benefits

The Army, like civilian industry, has learned it is wise to rely on suggestions offered by its soldiers and civilian employees for more economic operation. At Fort Benning these suggestions are saving thousands of dollars yearly, according to a report from the Management Assistance Division of the Comptroller's Office. This division offers a work simplification course which is designed to make military and civilian supervisors more economy-conscious.

Col. Conway Named Chief Of Logistics

Lt. Col. L. W. Conway has been named chief of the Staff Department's Logistics Committee. He succeeds Lt. Col. R. E. Frizelle, who is attending the field grade officers refresher course before leaving for an assignment in Rome, Italy. Col. Conway entered the service in February, 1941, and is a 1943 graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate course. From January to September, 1942, he served with the 13th Infantry Regiment, 34th Division in North Ireland. He was with the 27th Infantry Regiment, 69th Division in England and Europe from November, 1944, to October, 1945. In 1946-1948, Col. Conway was an instructor in the Communications Department of The Infantry School, returning to Germany in 1950 for a three-year tour of duty with the U. S. Army Security Agency. A June graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., he wears the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and Combat Infantryman Badge.

Presentations were made by Col. Wolcott K. Dudley, deputy to the commanding general. Mrs. Kathleen H. McVay, secretary in the Infantry Center Chaplain's Section, received a superior accomplishment pay increase of $90 per year. Receiving suggestions awards were Joseph H. Avery assigned to the Engineering Section, $50, Mrs. Juanita A. Roberts Quartermaster Section, $40, and Albert L. Martin of Signal Section, $20.

'Copter Riding's Fun Writer Amazed After Journey in Air

BY CPL. FRED D. FRIEDMAN

I am walking along the road to Lawson Air Force Base when a large greasy hand picks me up and flips me around and says, "hello." The hand belongs to one Sgt. Saul Helfgot, helicopter crew chief and former school chum. "Friedman," he said, "I have a pretty helicopter all fixed up, leave us go for a ride."

I protest. No, I see to him, I get seasick, and besides — I like to keep me feet on terra firma, like the Bronx where we both come from. The hand waves my objections aside and deposits me in the Operations Office. "I have a buddy who is just dying to go on a whirlybird hop," says Saul. He is right. I am just about dying. He drags me over to a Warrant Officer that goes by the name of Schultz and is also from the Bronx. Schultz tries to reassure me. He says it is as easy as a subway ride. This does nothing to reassure me. A subway ride back in New York is murder. They each take an arm and help me over to a big sausage-shaped thing with a fan on top. "Aint she beautiful," says Saul. "No," I say, "and furthermore, I ain't riding in this thing." "All right," he says. "You don't have to ride in it, just go inside and look." I go.

Soon I see the fan is on. Nice, I think. It will cool with all that wind. I look out the door. While I am looking, the ground suddenly gets further away. I have been doubledressed. I am airborne with-out a parachute. Shultz tells me I do not need one. Helicopters do not crash, they drift to earth gently — he says.

We fly over Benning, Columbus, pretty girls bathing in swimming pools. I can spot places I know, up, down, and sideways. We part ways and forwards. I am beginning to enjoy it. There are no traffic lights or cops. Being an old infantryman I figure it beats walking.

Schultz tells me he learned to fly at the Army Aviation Center at Fort Sill, Okla. When you graduate they make you a Warrant Officer. He tries to sell me on the idea. He does a pretty good job. It is a deal. You go to school for six months and learn to fly an eggbeater. This helps in civilian life. You can fly one out of the kitchen window whenever the wife sticks you with the supper dishes. We land and I am really sorry to be out of the clouds. Saul is waiting and presents me with a card showing my membership in the "Hoverbug Club" which is an organization of men that have gone up, down, and sideways. We part still friends. I say so long to "the hand" and Schultz, but I will be back. I have a date to go helicopter hopping next week.

Oh yeah, I almost forgot. If you are interested in flying a helicopter, call Schultz at the 506th Helicopter Company. He is quite a nice guy. He will tell you how to be in the Army and get to be called "Mr.!" at the same time.

Anti-Tank Weapon Demonstration Viewed

Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander, attended a demonstration of a new anti-tank weapon Wednesday at Fort Bragg, N. C. He was accompanied by Col. Thomas H. Beck chief of the Combat Developments Office's Long Range Doctrine Section, and his aide Capt. John W. Callaghan.

5 Assigned Posts With Board No. 3

Five veteran officers have been assigned posts with Army Field Forces Board No. 3. They are Major Donald C. O'Rourke of Hudson Falls, N.Y., Major Theodore K. Hudson of Russellville, Ala., Major Charles LaChausse of Columbus, Ga., William B. Tuttle of Wallingford, Pa., and Capt. James C. Smith of Atlanta. Major O'Rourke, appointed executive officer of the board's field equipment and special projects, came to Fort Benning from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Major LaChausse, test officer in the board's Small Arms Department, has just graduated from the Command and General Staff College. Before that he served in Turkey as an infantry adviser to Turkish Army units. He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Commendation Ribbon and Purple Heart and a test officer. Major Hudson was an adviser to the Chinese Nationalist Army on Formosa before his assignment to the board. A veteran of 14 years service, he was in Europe during World War II.

Major Tuttle was at the Command and General Staff College before his arrival here. A veteran of 10 years service, he was a company commander in Korea and was with the 62nd Airborne Division during World War II. Capt. Smith, the new board pilot, came here from Korea where he was with the Seventh Aviation Company for 15 months and won the Bronze Star Medal and Air Medal. He was a reconnaissance platoon leader in Europe during World War II and was awarded the Silver Star and Purple Heart.

Following eight weeks' supply school training at Fort Jackson, Winder returned to Battery B and began the process of developing a superior supply room. He has been cited for many improvements in the battery's supply since his return.

This Thing Called Escape

There is much talk today about the thing from which a man is endeavoring to escape. If a man escapes from hunger by eating, and from cold by drawing near to a fire, is he therefore an escapist? Some say that religion is an escape—the refuge of the weak. Religion does for some offer a refuge from loneliness and an escape from inadequacy. But is that bad? Man is by nature a creature, a dependent being; he did not make himself, and he is not sufficient unto himself. In other words, man has need for God.

However, there is one thing from which anyone who wishes to conquer the habit of irrational worry must never dodge, and nor run away. That is reality. Worry comes largely because people will not face facts, and will not cultivate a sense of reality.

Cervantes has written an imperishable novel about a mad man, Don Quixote, who lived in a chimerical world, devoid of reality. He fantastically mistook windmills for giants, sheep for armies, and inns for castles. And there is something of Don Quixote in all of us. We have an eye for phantoms, for sombre shadows, and airy nothings, and we neglect the world of reality that could give us peace of mind and joy of spirit.

We should treasure reality, for it is real property; it is more interesting and far more amazing than fantasy. Truth is stranger than fiction.—From the Moody AFB Metéar.

The GI 'Open Door' Book

The new Seventh Edition of the United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) catalog has just been received at Fort Mason, and all military personnel are urged to study this latest issue.

This Seventh Edition carries a complete list of all new and revised courses offered, based on a grass-roots survey of troop interests and need made some time back. Included also is much data on USAFI history, accreditation services, group-study classes, enrollment procedures, reference and source materials, and civilian credit evaluation. Copies of the new catalog have been sent to all unit dayrooms.

On the elementary level, a series of courses (designed primarily for group study but also for individual enrollment) has been made available for all grade levels from the first through eighth to help meet Army minimum educational standards. Another complete list of courses is now available at high school level for those wishing to qualify for high school diplomas or meet college entrance requirements. Listed in the college section of the new catalog are 80 self-teaching and correspondence courses, literally covering university curricula from A to Z (Accounting to Zoology) for those wishing to work toward college degrees. All interested in technical and vocational work will find a selection of almost a hundred courses in farming, drawing, automobiles, aviation, shop, diesel and steam engines, electricity, radio and TV, navigation, photography, traffic management, and many other fields. All of these courses, complete with texts and other materials, are offered to military personnel at no cost save an initial $2 registration fee! Similar courses, if taken directly from civilian schools, would cost up to $100. Where could you find a better bargain?

Study this new catalog, and then contact your Post TIE Office, let us help you to help yourself.—From Fort Mason Report.

Engineer Reserves Training By Building Bypass on Post

Engineer reservists taking 15 days' active duty training here this month will leave behind proof that they were not here for a summer vacation.

Members of the 24-unit 401st Engineer Brigade are devoting much of their time to constructing a 6,100-foot permanent bypass as part of their training in the latest methods used by Army engineers. When planning their annual summer training, the reservists decided they could learn better by undertaking an actual construction project and requested that their training projects be of permanent benefit to the area.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

Cpl. James J. Brennan, USA, won a George Washington Honor Medal for his letter on "What America Means to Me." Cpl. Brennan, who enlisted in the Army in 1952 and served with Chem. Co., 8088th AU, wrote: "Dear Barbara: Ever since you remember, you have been going to church. You've learned that prayer is something we all need. As you grow older, you will find that not only do you need it, but so do your children. Some children are born in families that have different religions. As long as they believe in the Creator and He will go to heaven the same as you. These people are no different from us underneath. Keep this in mind as you go through life, and you will understand people always."

What does American mean to you? Fredrick Senda your letter of more than 500 words to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, 1016 McCadden Place, Los Angeles 38, Calif. Your letter must bear your name, rank, service number, and organization. It must be received before midnight Nov. 15, 1954. Your letter after that date will be considered for the next year's awards. (AFPS)

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS

For breaking up an enemy assembly area, Lt. James A. First Lt. James F. Murphy, a platoon leader with the Fifth RCT in Korea, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. It was in January 1953 when a three-pronged Communist force attacked the platoon's position. Inspired by Lt. Murphy's leadership, the platoon beat off the attack. Then, following the lieutenant, the men left their position and chased the Reds. Lt. Murphy directed the routing of the enemy with accurate carbine fire. He also hurled grenades into the fleeing enemy unit.

Later, hearing cries for help from a valley near his position, Lt. Murphy called for two volunteers. The three men made their way down an icy slope to the valley floor. There, they found a wounded American soldier who had been stripped of his clothes and left to die in the freezing Korean winter. Lt. Murphy, under enemy observation and fire, worked for three hours rigging a rope sling and carried the wounded man to safety. (AFPS)

Chap. Stolz Transferred

Fort Benning Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen H. Stolz of Hicksville, Long Island, N. Y., has been ordered to Europe. A Roman Catholic, Chaplain Stolz has been here since February. This will mark his fifth tour of overseas duty. He served in the South Pacific in 1942-43, in Europe in 1943-45 and in Korea in 1946-48 and again in 1952-54. He received his bachelor's degree from St. Francis College and his master's degree from St. John's University.

SB Blood Donors Exceed Pint Quota

Troops of the School Brigade exceeded their quota by contributing 522 pints of blood during the Red Cross Bloodmobile's August visit. By exceeding the quota by 132 pints, the donations raised the Infantry Center's total to 4,023 pints since December when the Bloodmobile began monthly visits.

Chaplain's Corner Keep Spiritually Attuned to God

Even the finest and most sensitive musical instrument must be constantly and periodically tuned in order that it may be effectively used by the artist, who, in uniting his piece with his melodic contribution to the chorus of others, serves to bring about the glorious harmony of a great symphony. God has created you and me in such a way that an likenessness of His own image, each of us has the wonderful potentiality of becoming a fine instrument of service to be used, through consecration by our Creator, to the bringing about of great good for the glory of His Kingdom.

Here, in our busy and varied experiences in the service, we all have countless opportunities each day to influence others for good. We are closely attuned to our Master's will for our lives. Today we do not see nearly as many of the elements which transform us into instruments of service as we did years ago. However, many of us doubtless have undergone the thrilling experience of walking up to one of these iron monsters as it stood on the tracks, possibly by a railroad station. Possibly it had just returned from a long run. Possibly it was waiting to be run out on the main track for another exciting trip to a distant city. Let us consider her as she sat there — now at rest, but in the same time with her great pistons and valves breathing with steam, as it were, breathing out heat energy, potential power for a great task which lies ahead of her. But it will be the engineer who climbs aboard her and it is not until he actually takes control of her, and by opening up the throttle and putting her once again in motion, that she directs her down the long track ahead of her, that she actually becomes a power put to use, conveying hundreds of passengers to their destination.

So it is with our lives. If our wills and personalities are completely attuned to our Creator's will, and if we allow Him to take complete control of our lives, then we will be constantly and effectively fitted into God's great overall plan for us.

In his inspiring and helpful little book entitled "The Art of Living," Dr. Norman Vincent Peale speaks of a certain hidden power that lives within each of us just waiting to be developed and used when we commit ourselves completely to God's care and guidance. "But man, in himself," writes Dr. Peale, "is not strong or great, although he possesses intrinsically the elements which transform him when in humility of spirit, and by the act of surrender, he opens himself to the grade of God, his creator, then, like a dynamo, ready for the power for which it was made, he is attached to a Source of an energy which transforms him from mute ineffectiveness to creative force."

MEDAL OF HONOR

It takes guts to get up after you've been knocked down. Before the attack on that hill last October, Lt. O'Brien crouched in a trench. It was a vital hill position on the main line of resistance that his outfit was to recapture. Heavy mortar and artillery fire was falling on the men of the platoon.

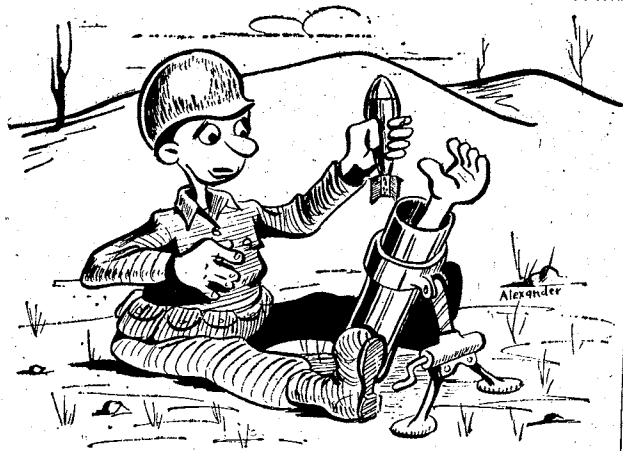

At the signal to attack, Lt. O'Brien bolted out of the trench, shouting for his men to follow. He led them through blistering fire across an exposed saddle and up the hill to the Chinese position. "The old man's down!" somebody shouted. But Lt. O'Brien—hit and thrown to the ground by automatic weapon fire—pulled himself up and started moving up the hill again, waving his men on with a bloody arm.

He stopped once—to help a wounded man. Lt. O'Brien fought like a madman—pitching hand grenades and shooting three enemy soldiers as he charged them. For four hours he directed the assault. Three times the concussion of grenades blasted him off his feet. But when the enemy was routed, Lt. O'Brien was there to direct the reorganization of the platoon. He checked each defensive position personally and refused to go back for medical care. Bleeding and exhausted, he stayed with his platoon. There might be a counterattack.

Only when his platoon was relieved by another outfit did Lt. O'Brien leave the battle—and then after making sure that all his men had been withdrawn safely. He was the first one to go up—and the last to come back. Lt. O'Brien was awarded the Medal of Honor for his gallant and heroic leadership in the recapture of a strategic position. (AFPS)

At The Theaters

BY DON LARSEN
The big news in pictures the coming week is "BROKEN LANCE" opening at Main Post Theater Sunday. With the rugged, picturesque Santa Cruz Valley in Arizona to give it visual beauty and a cast headed by Spencer Tracy, Richard Wagner, Jean Peters and Richard Widmark to add dramatic characteristics, "Broken Lance" turns out to be a special type of western film. Your reviewer says it's well worth the quarter.
Another must, although some of you have probably seen it last week, is the film based on the Broadway show "Sabrina Fair" now shortened to "Sabrina." Combining the talents of three Academy Award stars, Humphrey Bogart, Audrey Hepburn and William Holden, this modern day Cinderella story of a chauffeur's daughter who is transformed into a lovelick adolescent into a young lady of incredible charm, will be seen at Theaters No. 4 and New 5 Thursday and Wednesday and Theaters No. 2 and No. 3 Sunday and Monday.
Other shows of interest are "The Shanghai Story," starring Ruth Roman and Edmond O'Brien in a drama of international intrigue in Communist controlled Shanghai; "Naked Alibi," starring Sterling Hayden, Gloria Grahame and Gene Barry, a kill crazy man and the wild chase by the vengeance mad cop.

NCO Clubs Beehive of Activity With Fall Program

Memberships Show Big Increase As Branches Present Varied Shows

Although the Fort Benning NCO Clubs are open daily the old saying of "Business as usual" doesn't apply to any one of the six branches today.

Enlisted personnel are participating in the various club activities as they haven't done in a score of years. It may be due to the increased amount of entertainment on the Fall Entertainment Schedule, the big name bands that are being presented, or for other reasons. What ever it is, the clubs are bulging at the seams.

Two months ago at the Rocker Club only three or four couples would be there to enjoy dances. Now at least ten or more couples dance to the Juke Box on Thursday when there isn't any planned activity. With Sunday family day at the Rocker, more and more first, second, third and fourth graders, their family and friends are gathering for dinner.

Children's Activities
The children's activities have added to the club calendar's success. The first Kiddies Party at the Rocker Club in July was attended by about 20 children. The second party held at Pine Lodge, which will be the permanent location of the NCO Clubs regular monthly party, on Aug. 14th drew 20 more. The last party held at the Rocker Club, sponsored by the Enlisted Wives Club, drew a record attendance of 197 children and several dozen parents on Aug. 21st.

Prior to Aug. 21st, the beginning of the Fall Entertainment Schedule, many members paid their dues and that was all. For example, the members of the Rocker Club participating in activities more than ever before. Put to scale R looks like this: On dance night the attendance has increased from 25 to 30 members and guests present more than 150, an increased participation of approximately 400 per cent over last month.

Capt. Catharine Now Ass't, Sec.

Capt. Harry G. Catharine of Trenton, N. J., has been named assistant secretary of The Infantry Center general staff. The office of the general staff secretary was established last week to serve as a clearing house for policy and action papers and official correspondence to be acted upon by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, his deputy and the chief of staff. Lt. Col. S. E. Shoemaker is secretary.

NCO Clubs Election Due

president is selected. The senior member of the Board will then be M-Sgt. Albert M. Miller, vice president. Next in seniority is M-Sgt. Goff C. Coleman. These, along with M-Sgt. John Montgomery and Sgt. Hugh L. Lassiter, will serve until March 1, 1955. Elections are held twice yearly and ordinarily half of the Board of Governors positions come up. A member of the Board cannot be re-elected to fill his own vacancy. He may however, be re-elected after a lapse of one year. The names of the following master sergeants will be on the ballot: Special Troops Command: Ben R. Chakley, Harlan W. Kimmel, Clifford C. Martin, John C. Shelby, Charles H. Hibler and Erwin G. Gorman.

gram or entertainment will be curtailed in all Branches. A modernization plan has already started at the Post Rocker Club, Harmony Church and work is soon to start at Pine Lodge. Bandstands are to be repaired and rebuilt, spotlights installed. A horseback picnic is planned for Harmony Church and for careful planning and the assistance of many members will be required. All of these actions, both including entertainment and club improvements can become a reality, if the clubs are supported by all the enlisted personnel at Fort Benning.

Sarge Likes to Be A 'Roughneck'

Sic. Roger Slagle, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, was a roughneck at the age of 16. To those not familiar with the terminology of the oil fields, a "roughneck" is a person who works on a drilling rig. Most of his time is spent from 60 to 90 feet above the ground on the oil derricks. Sic. Slagle hails from Okemah, Okla., in the heart of the "black gold" belt. He has worked in oil fields from the Gulf of Mexico to Wyoming. An exceedingly hazardous job, the roughneck works from a "monkey board", a small platform placed on the side of a derrick at heights from 60 to 90 feet. From the monkey board the roughneck rig drilling pipes which will bring the valuable oil to the surface. Slagle once had the misfortune to take a dive from one of these monkey boards. A boom, swinging in the wind struck him knocking him from his perch. He was saved by his safety belt, but was left hanging upside down at the end of his 10 foot belt. Besides receiving a terrific jolt from the safety belt, Slagle also suffered the indignity of being laughed at by those watching on the ground as he dangled upside down in the air. According to Slagle, the insurance rates on a roughneck are rather stiff. But, few fatal accidents occur in this line of work despite the dangerous conditions involved. Sic. Slagle, now platoon sergeant in his company, is a veteran of three and a half years' service in the Army. He has served two tours of duty in Korea with the 15th Infantry Regiment, and much prefers

'Jack-of-all Trades' Sergeant Serves Post's Allied Visitors

Making ice water for an emperor, purchasing a new uniform for a visiting officer, or tracking down a lost bracelet for an Allied general are all part of the day's work for Sgt. Ellis W. McDaniel of Cartersville, Ga.

As major-domo for the Infantry Center Visitors' Bureau, the 26-year-old sergeant probably has a more intimate contact than anyone else with the hundreds of U. S. and Allied VIPs who pass through the Infantry School portals each month.

Sgt. McDaniel's job begins long before the scheduled arrival of a VIP. He assigns them rooms in guest houses and supervises cleaning of the houses.

If they are Allied visitors, he sees that their names and the flag of their country are on display in front of the houses. During their stay, Sgt. McDaniel also is responsible for handling their personal needs, such as laundry and dry cleaning.

"Best job I've ever had" is the way he sums up his multiple duties. From his behind-the-scenes post, he finds that the majority of the dignitaries who visit are "pretty fine human beings."

No language barrier. He has little trouble with the language barrier, since most of them speak English or have an intermediary.

In addition to the individual parties planned for the guests, the sergeant also takes care of official functions for such large groups as the Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences.

He assists in setting up table placards in the Main Officers' Mess, seeing that waiters set silverware correctly and that Allied

Since coming to Fort Benning in November 1953, he has taken care of the needs of approximately 50 VIPs, including Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, several Allied ministers of defense and chiefs of staff, and other military figures of practical value.

'Paper War' Relief Seen For Unit COs

WASHINGTON—Army company commanders, who hate paper work, are going to have to do less of it.

Proposed changes in the present distribution of Army Regulations and Special Regulations will whittle down for small unit commanders the stacks of regulations which they now dare not ignore for fear of missing something vital to them.

Complaints Valid

Undertaken as a result of paradoxical criticisms that the distribution was both inadequate and excessive, the project set off more than two months of detailed review and analysis of all AR's and SR's. It was discovered that the complaints were valid as a result of changes in administrative responsibilities over the years without corresponding changes in distribution.

For example, the one roster soldiers clamor to be on the payroll — used to be prepared by companies. Now that job is handled by finance sections. However, distribution of finance regulations have continued to pile up on company commanders' desks or add weight to groaning file cabinets.

"Need to Know" Basis

Colonel Roy N. Walker, chief of the Publications branch of the AG, and his staff found that the present formula does not permit distribution based on a "level of command and the degree of responsibility."

As Colonel Walker puts it, "By distributing AR's and SR's on a 'need-to-know' instead of a 'nice-to-know' basis, we'll not only save a lot of reading but printing costs will be reduced substantially."

Under the proposed plan, only those regulations which affect men under small unit commanders would go to them as a matter of course.

Heretofore, regulations have been written "from the top down." In other words, they outlined command duties beginning with the top unit on down through the smallest. Reading through these ponderous publications didn't help the eye strain rate one bit.

Saves on Printing

A reversal of this sequence, rewriting "from the bottom up," would permit pertinent parts to be "lifted" — extracted if the official term — from the whole and sent to the smaller units. In one case, a 43-page SR could be pared down to six pages for companies or battalions. As a result, not only are the units spared unnecessary work but the printing bill is lowered considerably.

Chief beneficiary of the project, of course, will be the small unit commander, who will be able to see over the "paper work" on his desk for the first time in years.

WASHINGTON (APFS)—A brief Defense Department announcement this week said that four of the six U. S. divisions now in Korea will be withdrawn "within the next several months."

The four divisions, said the Pentagon, would be assigned to other areas where it is believed they will better serve the strategic interests of the U. S. The Pentagon did not specify which divisions would be withdrawn or where they would be sent.

The Army has five divisions in Korea now: the Second, Third, Seventh, 24th and 25th. The First Marine Div. is also stationed there.

The Defense Department said the withdrawal plan was drawn up in line with President Eisenhower's policy of reducing American ground forces in Korea as circumstances warrant.

NCOs May Get U.S. Duties With Orders

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The Army is considering a plan to give all top-three grade NCOs leaving overseas stations for the United States specific unit assignments before their departure. The plan would also apply to specialists of the upper three grades. The new procedure would enable the top three graders to proceed directly from the Port of Debarkation to the new station, without being returned through reassignment stations. Specific station assignments would continue to be secured from army commanders and technical and administrative services under the proposed system. They would, however, be made in advance. At present, NCOs of the upper three grades whose dependents have been residing with them overseas are the only ones to receive specific station assignment orders by name.

Doughboys Lose 3 Out of 4 on Road Trip

BY GARY M. CORBETT

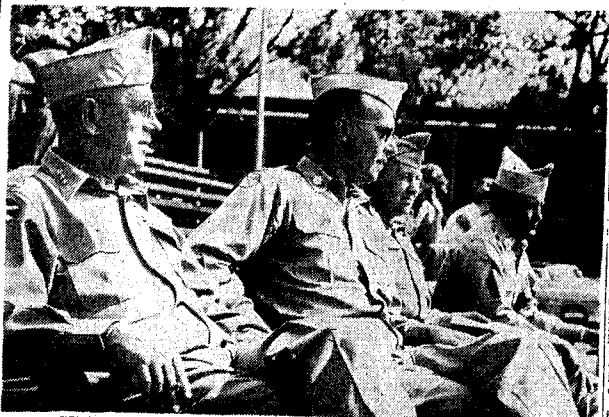

Fort Benning's Doughboys returned home Monday night from their second road trip which saw a five game winning streak go by the boards and in its place a three game losing streak started.

The Doughboys' fifth win came against Camp Gordon last Friday 12-9. Then Gordon topped the visitors 9-6 the next day and Fort McPherson finally won a series against Benning in its third try, 7-1 and 8-0.

Apparently Coach Bobby Dews from McPherson was taking no chances against his former teammates. Benning had split four games and the ex-Doughboy star threw his two aces, Wilmer Mizell and Ted Abernathy. The pair gave only one run and nine hits in 16 innings of pitching.

Overpowered by Mizell

In the first game Mizell overpowered all but one of the Doughboys. Al Grandcolas found his pitch in the eighth and belted a long home run into left center field. The blow was in vain as two Mac homers preceded Al's crowning bell.

Norm Seiborn, big all around star for the Mac Iron knocked his 15th home run while Bob Hartford whacked his fourth.

The only other Benning threat came in the first inning when Bob Bush singled to right, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. However, neither Tito Francona or Al Grandcolas could bring him around as Vinegar Bend bled down to retire the side.

Whitewashed by Mac

The second game was slaughter as the Doughboy pitcher continued their habit of walking too many men. Both teams got five hits, but Decaro and Lang, Doughboy pitchers, gave up 12 walks, while Ted Abernathy gave up only one. Walks set up five of the eight Mac runs.

Four of the winners' tallies came in the fifth when Al Le walked three straight men and feigned the "gopher ball" to Norm Seiborn who promptly whacked his 16th four bagger over the right field fence.

The Doughboys only threatened twice against Abernathy. In the first inning Tito Francona lined a triple to left center, but died on third as Al Grandcolas fanned. In the seventh, Al Conway led off with a single, his second of the day, and Dick Corbett was safe when he got hit by a pitched ball. Abernathy bled down and retired the next three men with ease, to rack up his 12th win.

Gordon Wins

Art Armay couldn't hold the rampaging Gordon nine in the second game there as they defeated the Doughboys, 9-6, in a nip and tuck ball game.

Again lack of pitching hurt the Benning nine as Art walked five and threw three wild pitches, giving Gordon five runs on seven hits. John McKinney fared just about as well, giving Gordon four runs on eight hits, one of four scored on a wild pitch.

Pacing the Gordon attack was Darrel Wade with four hits, and Chuck Cole with three hits. Russ Davis led the Benning sluggers with three hits while Bob Bush contributed a single and double.

The best inning for the Doughboys came in the eighth when Bush and Conway all doubled to produce three runs.

CONWAY DOUBLED OFF FIRST ON FLY TO LEFT HEARN TAKES THROW IN; RANDY DALE THE COACH

BOB HEARN SAFE AT THIRD ON VIC POWIS' SINGLE IN SIXTH BOB MATTHEWS, THIRD BASEMAN, WATCHES THROW TO PLATE

Fort Jackson and Fort McPherson are leading contenders for the Third Army Baseball crown in the Double Elimination Tournament to be held at Fort Jackson next week, with Fort Benning rated a dark horse power.

The Doughboys leave tomorrow with hopes of upsetting the pre-tourney plans of the two power houses.

"This Third Army baseball tournament will not be a pushover for anybody—Fort McPherson, Fort Jackson, or anybody else." That was the prophetic comment made this week by Bobby Dews, manager of the Fort McPherson baseball club.

Good Pitching

The defending champion, Fort Jackson, has a good pitching, but their strength lies primarily in their powerful batting order. Facing Faye Thornberry and Haywood Sullivan, both members of the Red Sox organization, they are blasting drive after drive over the fences in all parks and against all kinds of pitching.

Fort McPherson leaves no doubt in any one's mind that they would defeat any team in the Third Army area over a full season's play as they are superior in depth and their pitching is much too good for any teams in the area.

Mac Men Leaving

Seven of the Macmen will leave the team and Army next year to don the uniforms of AA ball teams or higher. Three will return to major league teams: Wilmer Mizell, to the Cardinals, Jim Brown to the Philadelphia A's, and Dick Powis to the Baltimore Orioles.

Bob Willis and Bob Hartford will contend for the keystone combination at Atlanta. Nick Siemasz will get his trial at Mobile next year while John Wall will be at Louisville.

How much difference is there between the two teams, both of whom have won over 66 games while losing less than 25 apiece. In nine Mac games between them, Fort Mac has a five-four edge with Mizell winning three and losing one.

Although their last road trip dealt a damaging blow to the hopes of the Doughboys they nevertheless remain darkhorses in the tournament behind the strong left arm of Fred Kipp. Kipp, in the short of Fred Kipp, Kipp, in the short of time he has pitched against Third Army competition has earned the reputation as the best left hander outside of Mizell. The Doughboys, before Wednesday's game Redstone had a 12-6 record.

Last year the Doughboys lost to Fort Jackson 9-1 and to Fort Bragg 11-2.

trip was in the first game with Gordon which Benning won, 12-9. Fred Kipp won his fourth game of the year, but continued to look shaky as he was hit hard for five runs.

Bob Bush, Hank Heffner and Bo Matthews each collected three safeties to lead the Fort's batting. Kipp aided his own game as he smacked his first two hits of the season, a double and a single scoring both times and driving in one run.

Fine pitching and timely hitting marked Fort Benning's 9-1 triumph over Edin Air Force Base at Camp Perry Ohio.

The Army foursome, which included Capt. M. O. Belson of Fort Eustis, Va. First Lt. H. B. Voelcker of Ft. Monmouth N. J., M-Sgt. Francis Conway of Fort Benning and Sic J. D. Martin of Camp Chaffee, Ark., scored 587 points out of a possible 600, edging a U. S. Marine Corps team by five points.

Major W. S. Brophy of Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., placed second in the Coast Guard Cup Match by firing a perfect score of 100 with 15 V's. He had the same score as the winner, but the tie was broken by NRA rules.

CWO Robert Schroeder of Fort Benning shot a perfect score of 100 in the match but placed fifth with only 11 V's.

The Army team practice fired at Camp Perry.

Midway in the matches Benning marksmen led the way as Conway fired a perfect 100 score with 16 V's while North and Schroeder were aggregate leaders in rifle competition.

Then on Friday it was announced officially that the Army had topped the National Rifle Team championship in almost a complete

Lawson, Food Nines In Softball Meet

Lawson Air Force Base shipped Third Army Food Service School, 4-4, and the post hospital downed Army Field Service School 3-1, Monday night in the opening games of the Fort Benning Softball Tournament.

The Lawson-Food Service School contest was decided in the last inning as pitcher Douald Kassing walked the winning run with one out.

The tournament is being played daily through Sept. 3, with two games on Aug. 27, 30 and 31, three games on Sept. 28 and 29, and the semifinals on Sept. 1 and 2 and finals on Sept. 3.

Over in the National League it will take an act of Congress to keep the Dodgers from their third pennant in a row. The Bums have easily the best pitching in the league, and could probably muster up two or three good chucking corps. In addition, there are fellows like Duke Snider, Carl Furillo, Jack Robinson, Gil Hodges, Peeewe Reese and Roy Campanella who have been known to swing bats effectively.

We look for the Giants to improve over their second division finish of last year. The return of Willie Mays will give them a big mental as well as physical boost and with the addition of Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle the pitching load can be distributed so as to better favor aging arms. Look for the New Yorkers to wind up third or fourth.

Milwaukee should be good for second place again with a fighting chance at the championship. The Cardinals, too, will cut quite a figure in the pennant chase should their high-priced rookie infielders come through for them. Note to senior circuit twirlers: Stan Musial has been hitting in spring training and may not wait until May or June this year to start his surge.

We predict, therefore, Cleveland and Brooklyn in the World Series and in a further bit of folly we pick the Yankees third with Boston second and Chicago fourth. There we go again.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: While rummaging through the files in The Bayonet office the following dog-eared manuscript came to light. Having always the desire to see a sportswriter's prediction for the major league baseball race at or near the end of the season, here are April's day dreams, by a transient writer, exposed to the hot August sun. Apparently the writer is an American League man since the prediction for the junior circuit is more accurate than the projected National League picture.)

Bringing home top honors in their respective events were Robert Hynes, 100 yard butterfly and Gene Cotter, 300 meter back stroke and three meter diving. Other team members who contributed their talent were Gordon Watson, Frank Mandel, Jack McCord and Charles Laughlin.

Final Standings in the meet were as follows: 1. Fort Bragg, 96 points; 2. Fort Campbell 72 points; 3. Fort Benning 60 points; 4. Fort McPherson 19 points; 5. Fort Jackson 10 points; 6. Camp Gordon 7 points.

Occasionally a misplaced prophetic streak inside us seems to swell up a n overflow and before we quite know what has happened we have strewed predictions concerning almost anything about the area with reckless abandon and negligible accuracy. In vain we have struggled against this, knowing that our chances of being right are several million to one, but somehow we always get stranded on the well-known limb.

Recently we took a peek into the future of the current major league flug chase, shuddered violently and turned away, muttering "Don't, for Heaven's sake, tell anyone this. It's ridiculous." Taking our life in our hands, however, we now wish to go on record as forecasting not only a new world champion but a new American League champion. In a word, then, we predict that the New York Yankees will NOT reign.

Madness? Probably. But let's rationalize for a moment. Dagnab it all, the majority of the Bombers are getting on in years, for one thing. For another, they have been accused of "fat cat" complacency by one of their executives and of "overconfidence" by another. Then, too, certain of the Yanks who contributed heavily to that quintuple world championship are no longer around. Replacements, proven ones, aren't apparent to the naked eye.

Vic Raschi, John Mize and Billy Martin will no longer grace the House That Ruth Built. Phil Rizzuto, Allie Reynolds and Eddie Lopat are a year older and are at that age when years begin to weigh heavily. Mickey Mantle will not open the season and may never again own a sound knee. Even if the hinge heels, he's still injury and home run prone. Jerry Coleman has been disappointing this spring and is several cuts below his old self. There is still an off-buffed object called the law of averages which frowns on such things as six consecutive pennants.

Well, then, who is going to dethrone the lordly Bombers? Who, indeed, The Red Sox, White Sox and Indians all have pennant aspirations and all are capable of grabbing the bunting. The Sox are definitely on the upswing, but with Ted Williams out for the first month or so they may lose too much ground on the start to be made up later. Paul Richards' White Sox are plenty solid, but can old Virg Trucks duplicate his 20 victories of last season? If not, that leaves Billy Pierce to carry the load and Bill has been known to slump in the latter weeks.

Cleveland? The perennial "bridesmaids" look like the best bet to move into the AL throne again. They have a three-man mound corps, but all three should be good for at least one more good season.

Of course, analyses similar to this have been made every spring for the last five years but still the Yankees have marched on. They may march again, but it looks to us like this is the year for them to falter.

Over in the National League it will take an act of Congress to keep the Dodgers from their third pennant in a row. The Bums have easily the best pitching in the league, and could probably muster up two or three good chucking corps. In addition, there are fellows like Duke Snider, Carl Furillo, Jack Robinson, Gil Hodges, Peeewe Reese and Roy Campanella who have been known to swing bats effectively.

We look for the Giants to improve over their second division finish of last year. The return of Willie Mays will give them a big mental as well as physical boost and with the addition of Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle the pitching load can be distributed so as to better favor aging arms. Look for the New Yorkers to wind up third or fourth.

We predict, therefore, Cleveland and Brooklyn in the World Series and in a further bit of folly we pick the Yankees third with Boston second and Chicago fourth. There we go again.

Benning Board Testing Uniforms for Desert Wear

44 Vikings Form 'Desert Corps' In Field Forces Board Experiment

A Fort Benning testing agency may soon have the answers to how the Infantry soldier can be provided greater combat mobility and comfort.

Some of the answers are expected to come from the army's testing station at Yuma, Ariz., where Army Field Forces Board No. 3 is testing the newly designed Infantry equipment under simulated combat conditions in desert areas.

Unwrapped for the first time are stylish desert uniforms and load-carrying devices being tested by a handpicked platoon of Fort Benning soldiers.

'Desert Rats'
Selected from the 47th Infantry Division, the 44 soldiers, dubbed the "Desert Rats," have been fitted against a lifeless desert where the relentless sun is seldom shielded and temperatures soar above 120 degrees.

The new desert uniform which combines the best features of the French "kepi," the British hunter's African bush-jacket and American material, is getting rough treatment.

The durability, comfort and protection of this uniform will be determined by a series of tests which include crawling and marching incidental to combat activities over burning desert sands.

Sateen Fabric
The uniform is made of a sateen fabric and is worn loosely. An adjustable belt can be used to give it a natty appearance.

Experiments centering around the load-carrying services stem partly from the need arising from the Korean conflict for lighter and more purposeful "carriers." Developed under the guidance of the Benning board, they are being a padded and wider shoulder strap and two ammunition pouches in front to counterbalance the weight of the pack on the soldier's back.

In the planning stage since 1952, these developments were given an added impetus by the Army's experiences in Korea. They now constitute a vital step in the board's overall mission: to improve and develop new Army equipment.

Meanwhile, Board No. 3 officials are planning another series of tests to be conducted here in the near future. These will determine the suitability of the clothing and equipment for use in temperate areas.

Pack Arrangements
The Viking troops also are trying out new pack arrangements made possible by a lightweight webbing device which replaces the familiar ammunition pouches and packboards.

HATFUL OF BEAUTY ... Gracing the beaches at Miami these days is lovely flaxen-haired Sandy Pendrey. Sandy doesn't think it odd to fan on a sombrero-shaped head wear. An ingenious gal, she figures to save a lot of towels and use the broad-brimmed hats for protection when it rains. In California, that is.

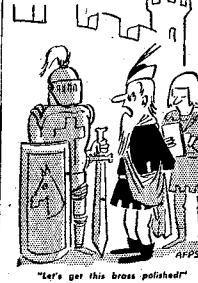

PIPE THE HOSE ... Even aging chorus girls will stop kicking when they hear about this. Fair-haired Jean Stuart models the new opera length hose as a part of a swim suit at Miami, Fla. Hosiery experts say the material used "contains" the flesh, and smooths out the bumps.

Here's How to Make the Safety Officer Eat His Figures

The combination of a long weekend and payday always stimulates the Safety people at TIC into making dire predictions of death and injuries — usually with depressing accuracy. Recently, however, TIC personnel have been making consistent liars of the Safety people — and the Safety people simply love it!

Nevertheless, the Safety Officer, in a reluctant rash of pessimism, predicts that Benning personnel will contribute three deaths and 16 injuries to the Labor Day weekend toll. So far this year there have been 26 fatalities to post personnel.

Records show that 70 per cent of fatalities occurring to Benning's personnel were caused by privately owned motor vehicles. Thirty out of every 100 disabling injuries were caused by privately owned motor vehicles. Correction please; these deaths, these injuries, were caused by DRIVERS of privately owned motor vehicles failing to observe some common-sense precaution.

Let's analyze these accidents further: In 94 out of 99 injury-producing accidents the Fort Benning soldier driver was at fault. In only the remaining five (5) accidents were the other drivers the cause of the injuries.

Seventy-nine percent of these drivers were 25-year-old or younger. Wonder why financial responsibility insurance rates are high for this age?

Seventy-seven (77) out of 100 of these accidents occurred between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Does that suggest when not to drive?

For many civilians, Labor Day is the end of summer outings, the last before buckling down to work for the fall season. In consequence, the roads, the beaches, the rivers, all spots for recreation, will be crowded. Dangers will be greatly increased due to mob carelessness in driving, in boating, in swimming, in fishing.

In cooperation with the National Program, "slow down and live," all the surrounding states are planning to have every available highway patrolman on duty to enforce traffic regulations on the highways of these states during the Labor Day holidays. Take heed!

WITH SUMMER VACATION OVER REGISTRATION BEGINS FOR NEW TERM Pupils And Parents Are Familiar Sights Once Again At The Main Post School

Children Returning To School Tuesday

Between 1,400 and 1,500 children are expected to answer roll call when Fort Benning schools open next Tuesday.

In addition to those enrolled in post schools, an estimated 100 will attend Muscogee County high schools, according to Major Frank McCall, school officer.

Kindergarten pupils will be divided

Bike-riding scholars will find it easier to recover lost, strayed, or stolen bicycles if they are registered with the Provost Marshal's Office. Kids or parents should be prepared to list the name of the manufacturer or brand name, color scheme, and distinguishing characteristics of their bike.

ed into two groups, one attending classes from 9 to 11:45 a.m. and the other, from 1 to 2:45 p.m. Hours for first grade pupils will be 9 to 11:45 a.m., second grade, 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m., third grade, 8:30 to 2:45 p.m. and fourth to eighth grades, 8:30 a.m. to 3:20 p.m.

Muscogee County high schools are in session from 9 a.m. to 3:40 p.m.

Kindergarten, first, second or third grade pupils residing in Custer Terrace, Upatol Terrace, Battle Park, Benning Park and Sand Hill will attend Custer Terrace School. Major McCall said that this is subject to change however, by enrollment figures.

Major McCall also announced that transportation will be available for children attending post schools.

Fort Benning and Muscogee County schools will be closed on the following holidays: Thanksgiving, Nov. 25-26; Christmas, Dec. 18 - Jan. 2; Washington's birthday, Feb. 22; Easter, April 8-11 and Memorial Day, May 30.

Holiday Monday

Sept. 6th, will be a legal holiday for military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning in observance of Labor Day. Only those persons necessary to operate the post will be on duty.

Western Union Changes Hours

Complying with economy measures the Communication Center and Western Union Office, TIC Annex will be closed every weekend from 4 p.m. Saturday until 7 a.m. Monday effective Sept. 4.

According to Signal Officer, Lt. Col. Edward C. Coffin, telegrams may be phoned into the Columbus Western Union office from pay phones.

Col. Coffin reminded personnel that in the event of personal emergency the Fort Benning Red Cross should be contacted.

When the post Western Union office is closed every effort will be made by the Columbus Western Union office to phone incoming messages to individuals concerned.

Post To Brief Incoming Personnel

Approximately 80 newly assigned personnel will receive a one-day briefing Friday on Infantry Center and Infantry School organization and functions.

The group, which ranges in rank from master sergeant to colonel, will be welcomed to Fort Benning by Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper, Infantry Center commander.

SB Regroups Into 6 Bns.

The second major change in Fort Benning's School Brigade within a year took place yesterday when the unit was reorganized into six battalions, eliminating the designation of regiments.

The brigade will be composed of the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Battalions and the Infantry School Detachment.

Officer candidates will be assigned to the Fifth Battalion, and the Infantry School Detachment will make up the Sixth Battalion. Airborne students will comprise the Fourth Battalion.

Reorganization will eliminate three regimental headquarters and allow direct action between brigade headquarters and the battalions.

Originally called the First Student Brigade, the command became known as the School Brigade in 1933 when the Infantry School Detachment, First Student Regiment, First Officer Candidate Regiment and the Second Student Regiment merged.

Last April the Second Student Regiment was discontinued and its students and cadre were absorbed by the Officer Candidate and First Student Regiments.

Balloting Slow In NCO Election

Today is the third day of voting in the post-wide election to fill vacancies to the Board of Governors for the Fort Benning NCO Clubs.

Only two days are left for the active members of the clubs to vote for seven of the 29 candidates.

A late tally of the balloting reveals that several of the candidates are tied or are within one or two votes of each other.

However, every candidate still has (Please See BALLOTING, Page 5)

Zip Your Lip

Many of you, when someone mentions espionage, immediately form a picture in your mind of Mata Hari, stripped for action, and out to make or break a nation by utilizing her female charms, alcohol, narcotics or money to gain valuable information. Well, that might be a fine picture, but seriously, do you think that is the only method of espionage used by the enemy. Of course not.

In general, the enemy doesn't depend on one central agent to gain all the information that is required or wanted. Instead he will set in motion an entire espionage system, involving many different types of agents. For instance, during World War II, it is alleged that the English Counter-Intelligence Corps had an espionage agent, who posing as a crippled beggar actually begged his way through the very innards of the infamous Nazi SS troops and gained invaluable information which set in motion many of the large and successful assaults made by the Allies. You must keep in mind that a good enemy agent will certainly never resemble what we have pictured as an agent. He won't have a Russian accent, and in all probability, you'll never find him drinking vodka.

You can feature our entire defense system as a large puzzle. Espionage is simply the gathering of small items of info through various means and different sources and piecing them all together in the same manner a puzzle is pieced together. If the enemy gets all the pieces, you can imagine what the results will be. YOU the individual must remember that if you withhold your small piece of the puzzle, the enemy will be unable to get the overall picture. Remember, you the individual, are the target of an enemy agent attempting to gather info which could eventually destroy us all. And in this, the "Hydrogen Age," that possibility is not so far fetched.

Our late President Roosevelt said three words that covers every phase of keeping the enemy guessing — and those words were "Zip your Lip!" — from Moody AF Base "Meteor".

Keep Cool, Man, Cool

Man, this is a real cool summer — if you dig heat. You may simmer, but don't turn red and get on your head, man. You just gotta beat this crazy heat. So if you don't want to reel and keel — then here's the deal.

Dig some wild water — it's a crazy drink, man. Slug the most you can — it's all gonna pour outa them mad holes in your skin and make you cool, man — real cool.

But watch that sweat, Dad. It's the saltiest! When the sweat pours from your pores — that salt's just gotta go! And you know you gotta put back in ya what the sun fries out!

But we've got a treat that's quite all-ree! The craziest life-savers you ever gulped. Not cherry, no lime, not berry — just halt, man, they taste like seaweed right from the wild — wild ocean. But don't be a creep, man. They're the most — and they're FREE!

Three salt pills a day keeps the embalmer away, Dad. So if you don't want to land in your bed — dead — stoke up on water and salt.

If you don't eat salt, man, it's all your fault! (AFPS)

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME

M-Sgt. G. J. Albert, USA, a veteran of WWII and Korea, was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and educated in Syria. He wrote: "From disenchanted foreign shores, 'To her land of Liberty; Flocked sorrow's down-trodden children To breathe her air of the free From these very humble beginnings. They envisioned a democracy; For which they fought; They fought — they died — Then passed it on to me! What does America mean to you? Enter the 1954 Freedoms Foundation Contest. Next Tuesday Night

Strauss' Operas Featured On Weekly Record Program
 A recorded concert featuring Richard Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben," "Der Rosenkavalier," and "Death and Transfiguration" will be presented at the Main Post Library on Tuesday, Sept. 7, 8:30 p.m. Of all Strauss' operas the most popular is "Der Rosenkavalier" a work which in certain of its more delicate passages and in its lively humor owes a debt to Mozart; and in the richness of its orchestration and the splendor of its conducted scenes pays its tribute to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." The suite gives a comprehensive picture of the long and intricate relation, here turned the wrong way, to the assistant gunner and moved forward through hostile fire to give aid to the wounded. When he returned he found two other machine gun positions over his head. He picked up a light machine gun and managed to relate both single-handedly. Despite a second wound he and a rifleman, to whom he gave hasty instruction, manned the two weapons. His third wound was inflicted when he was replenishing his ammunition.

Navy Cross

Cpl. Rodney J. Green, USMC, was awarded the Navy Cross for his heroism in Korea on the night of Sept. 4, 1952, while defending a hill sector of the main line of resistance. He was wounded the first time that night when his machine gun squad was hit by enemy mortar and artillery fire followed by an infantry assault by a numerically superior force. Although painfully wounded, Green—the squad leader—delivered effective machine gun fire to the enemy. Observing several wounded men in front of his position, he turned the weapon over to the assistant gunner and moved forward through hostile fire to give aid to the wounded. When he returned he found two other machine gun positions over his head. He picked up a light machine gun and managed to relate both single-handedly. Despite a second wound he and a rifleman, to whom he gave hasty instruction, manned the two weapons. His third wound was inflicted when he was replenishing his ammunition.

Opportunity Comes Once a Lifetime

By Chaplain (Capt.) Walter S. White
 30th Infantry Regiment
 "Master of human destinies am I."
 Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait.
 Clites and fields I walk; I penetrate
 Deserts and seas remote, and passing by Howel and mart and palace — soon or late
 I knock unbidden at every gate!
 If sleeping, wake — if feasting, rise before
 I turn away! It is the hour of fate!
 And they who follow me reach every state
 Of Mortals desire, and conquer every
 Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
 Condemned to failure, penury, and as they Seek me in vain, and uselessly implore.
 I answer not, and I return no more!
 This little poem, written by John J. Ingalls, three times senator from Kansas, is a masterpiece in philosophic thinking about "Opportunity." No young man or woman whose mind is alert and whose heart is burning with ambition and the desire to achieve could ever read it without being inspired and driven to new endeavor and achievement. That is why he wrote it. Just for people like you and me. That we might lift our heads new Al Capp character, Pvt. Lucky Scragg; have the leading roles in a comic book on safety. "Yo' Bets Yo' Life," being distributed to troops before the Labor Day weekend.

The 15-page comic book, however, is only part of the overall safety campaign being carried out by Post Safety Director Norman Evans in an effort to reduce accidents on the busy September holiday.

Along with the Al Capp characters, Evans' campaign includes safety trailers as part of the moving information hour program, safety trailers as part of the movie fare at all theaters, pamphlets on highway courtesy and safety, posters and instructions to company commanders on how to pass on safety precautions to all personnel.

The slogan adopted for the holiday by the National Safety Council is "Slow Down and Live."

New Post Created On General's Staff

Creation of the position of secretary of the Infantry Center General Staff has been announced by Commander Major Gen. Joseph H. Harper.

The new post will be filled by Lt.

Col. S. E. Shoemaker of Helena, Mont., who served in the same capacity for Gen. James A. Van Fleet in Korea.

Drop Shown In 3A Fires During Year

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Ft. McPherson, Ga.—Fire alarms at Third Army installations showed a 30 per cent decrease during the fiscal year just ended.

There were 45 fires reported during the last year, as compared to 64 for the previous year. Carelessness or negligence caused 39 of the fires last year. Examples of carelessness which plays a major role in causing fires are:

1. Use of smoking materials;
2. Cleaning floors with gasoline;
3. Overheated stoves, furnaces, etc.;
4. Storing combustible material against smoke pipes, and 5. Misuse of electrical appliances.

The secretary will assist Gen. Harper in handling the administration of the general and special staff sections and other activities of the Infantry Center. Col. Shoemaker's office will be a clearing house for policy and action papers and official correspondence to be acted upon by Gen. Harper, his deputy and the chief of staff.

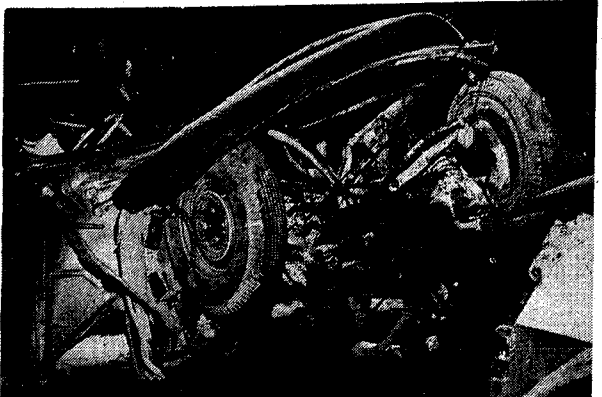

A former instructor on the Tactical Department's Regimental Committee, Col. Shoemaker was secretary of Gen. Van Fleet's general staff from May, 1952, to January, 1953. He returned to the Far East April 26 as a member of the retired general's special mission.

A veteran of 15 years of service, he served in Alaska for two years, and in Europe for nine months during World War II. In November, 1941, he went to Korea, a month later he was in Japan and he returned to Korea in May, 1952.

At Ceremonies 2 Colonels, M-Sgt. Bid Adieu to Army

Nearly 1,000 troops honored two veteran colonels and a master sergeant who took part in their last military ceremony last Saturday. Retiring from the Army after service that totals 89 years were Col. Harold Emery, Col. Stan Colner, and M-Sgt. Ferrell B. Wiggins.

Retirement ceremonies were held for Col. Emery and Col. Colner at French Field and for Sgt. Wiggins on the second court martial parade ground.

The two officers saluted as some 500 troops from the Combat Training Command and the 122nd Army Band passed in review. Taking part in the colorful ceremonies were the 30th Infantry Regiment's First Battalion, the 198th Field Artillery Battalion, 78th Engineer Battalion and the 406th Engineer Company.

Sgt. Wiggins saluted as 450 men of the Infantry School Detachment and the Special Troops Band paraded.

Col. Emery was a student when Fort Benning was a tent city in 1919. Twenty-three years passed, however, before the veteran of 37 years returned to the post, this time to take a special course under the stepped-up wartime program. He was on an interim assignment at The Infantry Center at the time of his retirement.

Although Col. Emery claims he "enjoyed all my Army assignments," he found his five-year job as a Law Department instructor at the U. S. Military Academy the "most interesting."

Originally from Orlando, Fla., Col. Emery will become a "gentleman farmer" in Whitesburg, Ga. following his retirement.

Infantry Center adjutant general at the time of his retirement, he rose from private to colonel in 26 years. He entered the Army in 1927, was commissioned in 1942 and promoted to colonel in 1953.

Col. Colner, who has been at Fort Benning since April 1, 1945, when he was assigned to the Adjutant General's Office, spent the years between 1942 and 1945 at the Infantry Center, and then at Fort Monroe, Va. He was in Europe from 1945 until 1948.

Sgt. Wiggins, who has been assigned to Company C, Infantry School Detachment since June 1953, came to Fort Benning after serving in Hawaii. He was on duty with the ROTC Advisory Group in the Non-Resident Instruction Department at the time of his retirement.

An old dog cannot learn new psychology at Fort Benning's tricks but he can be taught to use Human Research Unit No. 3, the ones he knows, according to The unit's researchers, who are studying human reactions under actual night conditions, have used methods of training men to fire accurately in night assaults.

One problem was to eliminate rifle bounce due to normal body movements while walking toward an assault. Instead of trying to teach the Infantryman a completely new and strange technique, the researchers decided to take advantage of old habits possessed by almost all men.

The technique they developed and are now testing requires the advancing man to thrust, or point, the weapon forward on each step, firing as he does so.

Better Than Expected

"It worked even better than we had expected," said Dr. Edgar L. Shiver of Canton, Ohio, leader of the project, which is named MOONLIGHT. "Apparently man has a whole lifetime of habits, based on throwing baseballs, footballs and the like, which enable him to master rapidly the technique of throwing the rifle at the target, he added.

Men trained in the new technique were compared with others instructed in the standard procedure by having both groups fire on a realistic night assault proficiency range.

The rhythm-thrust technique resulted in two to three times as many hits as the standard method.

For the test the soldiers first had to be put in the mood to be taught. Dr. Shiver said, "Prayer ammunition was used to show the training groups that they were shooting high and that they could correct these errors.

Fourth Phase
Work on the squad assault is the fourth phase of Moonlight. In the first phase, researchers found the exact distances at which targets could be detected under various degrees of light, from dark starlight to bright moonlight. They discovered that the average person on a typical night can see little more than 50 yards.

The other phases resulted in a new method of firing the M-1 rifle at night, and were the basis of training technique described in a Department of the Army training circular.

WASHINGTON (APPS) — A new joint command comprising elements of all branches of the military services soon will be set up by the Defense Department for defense of the U. S. against air attack.

The target date set for the establishment of the Continental Air Defense Command is September 1954 with headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Air Force has been designated as the executive agency and Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, USAF, will be the commander in chief of the new command. He will continue to function as commander of the Air Defense Command.

Lt. Gen. John T. Lewis, USA, will command the Army anti-aircraft command which will be the Army element of the new joint command. A Navy flag officer will be designated soon to command its naval elements.

In addition to permanent forces assigned to CADC, provisions have been made to utilize all available Army, Navy, AF and Marine forces as support troops in the air defense program.

In recommending the establishment of the command, the Joint Chiefs of Staff stated that they felt it was necessary in order to:

- 1) Provide for the development of coordinated plans and requirements for the air defense of the continental U. S.
- 2) Insure effective control and utilization during time of emergency of all available military activities and forces necessary to defend the U. S. against air attack.
- 3) Provide a single military agency to coordinate with the Federal Civil Defense Administration, state civil defense agencies and other governmental and civilian activities having responsibilities or capabilities relating to the defense of the U.S. against air attack.

Secretary of Defense Wilson announced that this step is being taken to formalize the defensive arrangements which have worked well in the past on a coordinated basis. He stated, however, the development of new weapons and increased forces available for continental air defense have made advisable a closer knit organization with central direction.

Mr. Wilson added that he felt that this new joint command would prove to be a means of strengthening our defensive arrangement.

Georgia Votes Tuesday

Voting Represents A Serious Business

Voting for a representative is a serious business. It is both a right and a duty. Soldiers are not relieved of this duty when they enter service. If anything, they should be more conscious of their responsibilities as citizens.

The Command Conference for this week is "Your Representative in Government". The unit voting officer will be present to answer any questions which may be raised and which are not covered by the material available.

Americans have fought to protect their right to vote, but they are not so eager to use it when the time comes to use it. The right to vote by secret ballot is a privilege and a responsibility given only to free men and women. It means we must give careful thought and some time to the exercise of this privilege. We must vote when we can even if it seems a little inconvenient at times to apply for an absentee ballot. It is only when we exercise our right to vote that we can be sure that men will be chosen who have the best interest of the community, state, and nation as their basis for running for public office.

Don't get the idea that if we vote we've done our full duty. We must vote intelligently. In order to do this, we must know as much as possible about the persons for whom we're voting and their position on issues to be decided. We must vote not just on the basis of promises but on whether we think the man we are voting for can and will keep these promises.

Only when we cast an intelligent vote can we be sure that we are getting what we want.

Soldiers with a Georgia residency should take note of the Democratic primary which takes place next Tuesday. Democrats will be nominating a full slate of state officers from governor down to the state representative.

To our many Friends of Labor and Military we would like to take this opportunity to wish You a Pleasant Labor Day Week End, and to extend to you a Hearty Welcome to visit our New Modern Super Market located at 2611 Lumpkin Road.

Hawaii Racing Called Best

The winding mountain roads that encircle the island of Oahu have proven quite a challenge to amateur motorcycleist Richard Murakami, now an Officer candidate with 10th OC Company, "In Hawaii," O. C. Murakami says, "motorcycling has become the mechanized counterpart of the old, familiar sport of horsemanship. Champion cycling requires brains, brawn, and a split-second reactions. It is a gentleman's and a sportsman's game."

O. C. Murakami has competed in the Oahu Endurance Races in which the contestants ride their motorized charges for 48 hours without stopping except for refueling. The curves and cliffs of the mountain roads make it the most dangerous automotive steepchase in the world.

Another event is the "Hare and Hound Race." The leading cyclist (the hare) drops bags of lime along the road to indicate which way he has turned. The cyclist who catches up with the hare is the winner.

A chip on the shoulder indicates wood higher up.

NEW COPTER IN SERVICE... Here's the Army's first transport helicopter of the 1 1/2-ton payload type, combat effectiveness. It is anticipated that the 508th Helicopter Corp. The 20-passenger troop and cargo transport is expected to greatly increase the Army's combat effectiveness. It is anticipated that the 508th Helicopter Co. will receive one of the new craft soon.

52 Complete Ranger Class

Twenty-one officers and 31 enlisted men of Ranger Class Number 1 were graduated last week, to climax eight weeks of rigorous training in the jungles of Florida and the mountains of North Georgia. Designed to improve the training capabilities and leadership of Infantry units throughout the Army.

The recommendations of the mental hygiene clinics are as varied as the problems the men bring. Some need pressure, others need a more protective attitude. Some need a more demanding job, others need identification and pride in their unit. All need to maintain their self-esteem.

Essentially, as Chambers puts it, the clinics make use of the positive in each man and minimize the negative.

"Whatever we do," he said, "we do it right now—during basic training. That's when it counts—for the man and for the Army."

More About the Mind Readers

Sensitive, Shy, Timid Boys Helped

(Second of three articles)

WASHINGTON — In 1953, 21,940 soldiers were referred to the Mental Hygiene Consultation Service of the U.S. Army, a group of medical teams which help emotionally disturbed trainees become good soldiers.

For the most part, according to Brigadier General Rowley E. Chambers of the Office of the Surgeon General, these young men were not mentally or emotionally ill.

Not much different from the boys next door, they perhaps were more sensitive, timid or shy; stubborn, rebellious or independent; sick too often or drank too heavily.

Unlike the average inductee, however, they were unable to establish new relationships easily and well. Under the pressure of Army living, what had been at home a small personality distinction became exaggerated—a handicap to the man and the Army.

At 18 Centers operated in 18 training centers by a psychiatrist, a clinical psychologist and a psychiatric case worker, most of these troubled young men found the guidance or support they needed to help them become soldiers. They came on the recommendation of their company commanders, post hospitals, chaplains or provost marshals.

Sometimes a change of job was indicated. However, as Chambers said, re-classification is resorted to only in extreme cases as it tends to "reward ineffectiveness."

One such extreme case at The Artillery Center involved a young man who had suffered severe headaches all his life. They became more frequent and more severe after he entered the Army. Repeated hospital examinations revealed no organic source of the pain, and he was referred to the Mental Hygiene Clinic.

By this time the soldier was bitter and hostile. He thought Army authorities either knew and would not tell him what caused his headaches or didn't care if he had them. He resented his assignment on a gunnery detail because the noise intensified his pain.

He Made Good

The psychiatrist convinced him that his headaches were due to long standing emotional conflicts. Furthermore, the soldier found out that his superior officers did care about his problem. On recommendation of the clinic, he was transferred to a fire direction control job where he could use his talent for mathematics.

The headaches did not disappear, but the man's hostile attitude did. He completed basic training and became a very good soldier.

Sometimes a change of approach on the part of the company commander can help the poorly-adjusted man fit into Army life.

A 23-year-old trainee fainted every time he had to face the eyes of a company officer. After each instance, he was sent to the hospital and time was lost to his training. The hospital could find nothing wrong, so the company commander sent him to the clinic.

Here the medical officers discovered that the soldier always had feared his father, a violent man who punished him constantly and often without cause. He fainted before him. The soldier reacted as he did before his officers, because they represented authority—something he had come to dread.

If he did not have to look authoritatively in the eye, however, he did not try to escape it by fainting.

The cooperative company officers explained to the man was not being insolent when he avoided their gaze.

The psychiatric company officers saw that the man got through basic training. The change of attitude on their part had such a healthy effect on the soldier that he began to change his viewpoint on authority.

3d Inf. Regt. Gets Battle Streamer Won in Indian War

FT. MYER, Va. (APPS)—The Army's oldest active regiment, the 3rd Inf. Regt., finally received a battle streamer it had earned in the Seminole Indian War in 1840.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, corrected the 114-year-old oversight at a colorful re-treat parade here.

The bejated tribute to the regiment came about through the efforts of the unit historian, C. P. Harvey Epstein, whose research indicated that the Third had participated in the Indian fighting for two and a half years, although the unit hadn't received the battle honor. A check with the Office of Military History proved him correct.

'Intelligence' Suggested for CO's, 3's

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of reviews of military and quasi-military books published by Combat Forces Press.)

FRONT-LINE INTELLIGENCE
By Lt. Col. Steadman Chandler and Col. Robert W. Robb $3.50.
Reviewed by Capt. Marion D. Joyce, Troop Information Officer, TIC.

"The Book had always taught us to follow corridors on the offensive... The advance was up valleys, draws and defiles... Combat taught us to seize the high ground... From high ground, the enemy looks down your throat. And he fills valleys, draws and defiles with fire. It was a costly lesson and we learned it fast..."

Sound familiar, Korean vets? Old stuff, WWII vets? It seems that sermons and military books suffer from the same major deficiency—they don't reach the people who could most profit therefrom.

"Front-Line Intelligence", which is much more than a concise, compact meaty handbook for S-2's, was published in 1946. A lot of people, particularly the EM 7-10 and 7-20 tacticians who directed our small unit tactical exercises during the Post WWII — pre-Korean period didn't get the word. Present and future commanders and 3's also might well profit from a perusal of this treatise.

The peace-time role of the 2 as a checker of garbage racks, conductor of investigations, checker of requests for background investigations and security clearances, and member of courts and boards ill prepares him for the vital function of combat intelligence. This book will assist in preparing him for the drastic shock in store when (and if) he becomes a functioning member of the Old Man's staff. It might even prepare the Old Man and his omnipotent 3 for that contingency — if it gets into the hands, and heads, of the right people.

No career officer can rest assured he will always escape the "stigma" of a 2 assignment; and certainly no future troop commander knowingly would deprive himself of his organs of sight and hearing.

"Front-Line Intelligence" is recommended reading for all echelons, OCAFF not excepted.

Reds Want Control

NEW YORK (APFS) — ADM. Jerauld Wright, USN, commander of NATO's Atlantic forces, has warned that Soviet shippers are "working around the clock" building surface fighting ships, subs and merchant marine vessels in making a "bold challenge for control of the seas."

The admiral told the annual convention of the New York State American Legion that "feverish" Soviet naval construction now underway was aimed at surpassing the West's traditional maritime supremacy. This development "should cause us all great concern," he said.

In any future war, he explained, Soviet strategy "would be to sever the Atlantic lifelines which connect the nations of Western Europe with the North American continent."

He estimated the Soviet submarine strength at 375-400 and asserted that this number already surpassed NATO's strength and was fast increasing. The Russians are far outbuilding the United States, he added, and have more high speed modern cruisers on active duty than any other nation.

In the last few years, the admiral reported, the Soviet Union has added to its fleets numerous destroyers, patrol vessels, miners, amphibious vessels and fleet auxiliaries, including aircraft tenders, "And above all, it must be remembered that the Soviet Navy is manned to strength and ready to go," he declared. "None of their ships are in mothballs."

ADM Wright sought to dispel what he called the widespread notion that Soviet ships are poor in quality, like much of their consumer goods." He emphasized that the "Russians are capable of building sturdy ships, and that their newest are fast, heavily gunned and sound."

He noted that the Soviets, to make their ambitious program of warship construction possible, were building their rapidly expanding merchant marine almost entirely in countries other than Russia.

Heading the judges was Mrs. Earl Sutton, wife of the CTC commander. The other judges were Mrs. Sidney Hilton, Mrs. George Melochick and Mrs. Harlan K. Peck. In addition to Pfc. Rhodebeck's cake, Sgt. Marvin Wiggins, Company K, Sgt. Robert Harrell, Company M, and Cpl. James Blakeney, Company I, each entered a cake. The four women judges awarded points for each piece of cake judged. A tie between Company M and Company K decided the second-place winner in the contest.

Super Carriers Will Hit Ways

NEW YORK (APFS) — The fourth super aircraft carrier of the USS Forrestal class will be built at the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn, N. Y., according to an announcement by the Navy Department.

The Brooklyn yard is already building the second carrier of the Forrestal class, the USS Saratoga. The Saratoga is expected to be launched next spring with final commissioning planned for 1956.

The USS Forrestal and the USS Ranger — the first and third ships of the super carrier class — were awarded to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Newport News, Va.

The latest super carrier — designated the CVA-62 — will be the seventh carrier to be built for the Navy at the Brooklyn yard. In addition to the Saratoga, the others were the Bennington, Bon Homme Richard, Kearsage, Oriskany and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A survey is being made to determine the feasibility of installing a Dictaphone system at headquarters of The Infantry Center and in the post hospital. The system would consist of a centrally-located pool of dictaphone machines to record dictation given by telephone. Secretaries then would type the dictation and return it to the originator by messenger within a few minutes. Miss Charlotte Struthers, industrial analyst, and Herbert Lanford, Columbus district manager of the Dictaphone Corporation, said the survey will take three weeks.

Post Upsets Jax In 3A Tournament

Fort Benning's Doughboys yesterday suddenly found themselves in the role of co-favorite to cop the Third Army Baseball championship after trimming defending champ Fort Jackson 4-3 Tuesday.

At the start of the tournament, being played now at Fort Jackson, S. C., Jackson and Fort McPherson were favored to eliminate all opponents and meet in the finals as they did last year.

Jackson started off by blasting Vinegar Bend Mizell and his Mac mates 9-2 on Monday but then Tuesday they were halted by lefty Fred Kipp of the Doughboys.

Although the Eagles' outthit the Doughboys 11 to 6, Kipp was tough in the pinches and held the powerful Jackson sluggers to only three runs while his mates were garnering one more.

By virtue of these two games the Benning's status of darkhorse was quickly changed to co-favorite.

Benning next will meet Fort Campbell at 10 a.m. today in the third round in the winner's bracket. Campbell took the measure of Fort McClellan and Fort Bragg in two games Monday.

The championship will be played Saturday with Third Army Commanding General Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling Jr., presenting the trophies after the game.

Skeet Club Preps For Annual Shoot

Fort Benning's Skeet Club has a hard time keeping an adequate supply of clay pigeons on hand for the forthcoming skeet shoot Sunday.

More than 20 expert skeet shooters gather at the club every Sunday to match skills with their 12-gauge shotguns, and the little clay disc is shown no mercy. From the size of the scores the shooters rack up, not many of the pigeons escape destruction.

The weekly shoots are provided by a committee headed by Col. Wolcott K. Dudley, deputy to the commanding general. Other committee members are Lt. Col. Benjamin Keist, secretary, Major W. M. Miley, and Capt. Rob-activities. Teaching the skills of gun-handling, preparing shooters for the fall hunting season, introducing beginners to the fundamentals of shooting and fostering better sportsmanship constitute important elements in the club's overall program. The club is open to both officers and enlisted men and skilled marksmen provide instruction for novices. Skeet-shooting events are planned by a committee headed by Col. Wolcott K. Dudley, deputy to the commanding general. Other committee members are Lt. Col. Benjamin Keist, secretary, Major W. M. Miley, and Capt. Rob-

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

BY M. D. JOYCE and GARY M. CORBETT

Elsewhere in today's Spotlighting, Gary Corbett summarizes the lengthy Benning baseball season, which included a split-season regimental-level schedule and an abbreviated post-level run culminating in the Third Army eliminations this week. As Corbett says, it has been a successful season — generally speaking.

From time to time during the regimental-level portion of the diamond season, various persons including this column expressed concern over the pitiful attendance at most of the games. Notable exceptions were the playoff tilts involving Divarty and two-post champs 136th. Played under the Gowdy lights, both games drew satisfactory "gates."

Main explanation for lack of spectator participation in the intramural baseball program, as advanced by the customary reliable sources, is two-faceted:

(1). The season was entirely too long, with resulting decreasing importance attached to each game.

(2). The long schedule required that most games be played during duty hours. Training and duty commitments do not permit a commander to dismiss even a minor portion of his command to attend a baseball game, and economy precludes providing GI transportation daily.

This segment of Spotlighting would like to add a third:

To most Benning personnel, the major unit or regiment is a remote entity. Members of TD units don't have the opportunity to become acquainted with other members of the same company—let alone higher echelons. And, with most games being played during duty hours, potential fans have slight opportunity to form personal attachments and choose favorite athletes, i.e., to assume identity with a team...

Notably, the post softball playoffs, comprising only a few, extremely crucial contests, drew crowds far in excess of the average Gowdy or Bullet field mob...

So much for the departed baseball season...

Football on post also will be played on Regimental level. It is cheering to note that both the 30th Inf. and the other units of CTC will each field teams. Thereby is created the intangible esprit de corps.

Present plans call for games Friday night and Saturday and Sunday afternoons. No problem of conflicting duty commitments and desire to support the unit athletes exists...

Even more significant, a single round-robin schedule is contemplated—every game will be important. Benning football, 1954 model, should outline the National Pastime in every department, particularly in providing soldier entertainment... MDJ

It's time for the final curtain on baseball at Benning. Many unforgettable moments have taken place this summer at Gowdy, Bullet and other fields played on by the Doughboys.

Who can forget the tense drama of the first half of the season which ended in a deadlock between Divarty and the 136th. Remember the first no-hitter—thrown by ISD's Conrad Deskins?

Then came the second half... Fred Kipp... Kipp... Fred... no one could touch the powerful Bearcats. Paced by Kipp, Heffner and Durmbaugh they were unbeatable. ISD pricked their bubble of invincibility, no one, not even John Boyd and the 135th, could turn the trick again. That was a tense battle... 1-0... Kipp won over Boyd on a wild throw by a catcher in the ninth... that game could still be going. In the next meeting... 9-0... Red Bulls were washed up.

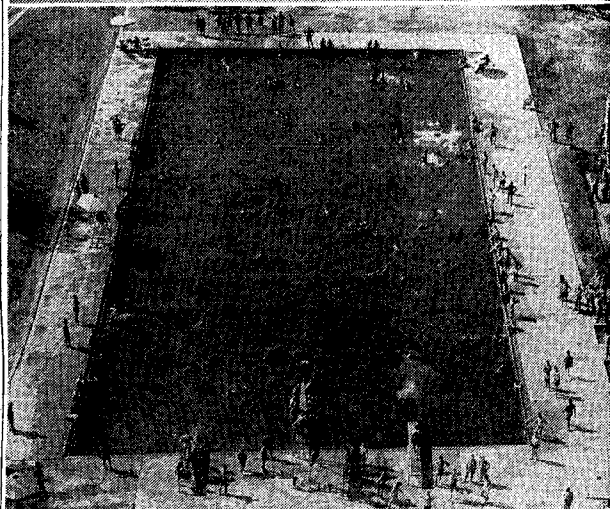

The playoffs... Divarty's final surge forced a replay of the Rucker run-offs.

Story of the playoffs... 4-3... Kipp homers and pitches... 6-4... Randy Dale drives four runs in with three hits... 136th Bearcats TIC Champs for 1954.

All Stars... Who made it? Francona and Kipp unanimous... Bentz... Durmbaugh... Smith... Kran... Boyd... Lang... Davis... Cormier... Burt Pair... that was it... a great team.

Award time... a proud Haskell B. Salter and Bob Durmbaugh, manager and captain of 136th, accept three trophies to adorn the "Regiment of Champions"... First half of season award... second half trophy... 1954 TIC Championship monument... Lt. Rice gathered the laurels for second place Divarty... 18 Redlegs filed by for individual cups... 18 Bearcats took slightly larger first place trophies... some of them in the uniform of the Doughboys...

Bottom, this aerial photo shows the new pool built by the 78th. The pool is located between the Harmony Church guest house and the gym. 3 Post Mermen Place in Army Meet

Three Olympic champions dominated the All-Army Swimming meet held last Thursday and Friday at Fort Bragg which the Third Army won in an unofficial point count.

The meet was not run on a team basis, but on an individual status to select men for the United States team to participate in the Pan-American games next spring.

Representing Benning at the meet were Gene Cotter who placed fourth in the three meter diving, Charles Loughlin, fourth in the 200 meter free style, Robert Hynes, third in the 100 meter butterfly, and Frank Mandel, 100 meter backstroke. Hynes is a possible candidate to train for the Pan-American Games, as he was rated 10th in the nation last year on the basis of his 1:25 time for the 100 meter butterfly. Hynes, who swam for ISD and set the post pool record in the recent TIC swim meet, started at Michigan State before entering the Army.

Officers Mess Features Aquatic Show Tomorrow

Big things are planned tomorrow night when members of the Officers Mess and their guests file out to the side of the pool for the first aquatic variety show in the history of the club. "Moonlight and Orchids" will be presented then under the direction of Thomas J. Glennan, chief life guard at the club, and Donald C. Lammers.

Nine acts will be included in the show and members of the club, their dependents and outstanding swimmers and divers on the post will all contribute to the success of the display. The highlight of the evening will be the sight, feel and fragrance of two thousand orchids flown from Hawaii exclusively for the "Moonlight and Orchids" show. Leis will be included in the program and will be presented to the wives of the general officers on hand for the activities.

The mermaids swimming through the ballet patterns will be wearing swim suits donated through the courtesy of Kirven's to aid in making a huge success of this first venture. Barbara McDonald, former AAU swimming champion will be swimming in shimmering silver suit also donated for the occasion by Kirven's.

The show will open with swimming races for boys and girls in six age groups. Winners in each group will receive trophies while second and third places will be given medals. The entertainment will continue with a water ballet based on the blossoming of the exotic orchid executed by six mermaids in the persons of Misses Sally Russell, Frankie Mitchell, Peggy McKissick, Karla Fritzsche, Joan Freeman and Marilyn Kurtz. This will be followed by a duet by Barbara McDonald and Kay Sales swimming through a hazy mist.

A solo by Barbara McDonald, will be followed by another appearance of the ballet sextet in a different aquatic pattern. The show will be ordered by comedy diving and a Gay Nineties act arranged by Special Services. Gasp will be furnished the audience as director Glennan attempts to escape from handcuffs, chains and other impedimenta after being dropped, no doubt completely helpless, to the bottom of the pool. Fancy diving exhibitions by the champions of the army area will add grace and beauty to the pageant which will close as a round dozen junior mermaids and mermen from ten to twelve paddle out with kickboards and spell out a thank-you message to the audience.

Four Standouts Mold Infield

Four stars from the TIC league molded themselves into an unbeatable infield combination this year to pace the Doughboys to one of their finest records. At first base was Tito Francona, unanimous selection by the managers; at second was Bob Bush, the kid that proved he couldn't be left on the bench; at shortstop was Al Grandcolas, redhot slugger from the 195th; and on third was Russ Davis, the Doughboys leading hitter.

Francona, a modest guy who loves baseball, is fancy dan with his glove. His fielding average was a good .963, but his greatest asset was at the plate as well. Francona thumped the ball for a .322 average with two doubles, two triples and a home run. Batting in the third spot he compiled 10 RBI's and stole four bases in 17 games.

Passed up by the managers for weak hitting, Bob Bush was always considered the best glove man in the TIC league and one of the sharpest pivot men for the double play ever seen at Fort Benning. On this premise he was named to the post. The rest is history. His batting prowess, third on the team, surpassed his fielding ability. Bob rapped the apple for a .355 average, tied the home run leader Al Grandcolas with two big blows, and poked three doubles down the baselines. He also stole four bases.

At shortstop is a top prospect in the St. Louis Cardinal organization. Batting .347 to capture the California State League batting title in 1952, Grandcolas secured himself a place in A ball or higher when he leaves the service. Batting well over .400 for the first ten games Al ended the season hitting .322 as he hit a last minute slump.

On third is Russ Davis. Russ felt right at home next to Grandcolas as they played that way all season together. Russ hit well in the TIC league, but he hit sensationally on the Doughboys. The better the pitching the better he splurged his way to a .400 average. This included 20 RBI's to tie with Grandcolas for the team lead.

OC Dreams of Ice Rinks And Hockey Playing Days

Officer Candidate Francis Daley of 10th OC Company dreams of the cool, slippery ice skating rink making cage stars out of the youngsters of immediate Conception Catholic Church in Cambridge, Mass. Daley brought his basketball team to the semi-finals in the Boston Catholic Youth Organization Tournament last year.

Daley continued his interest in hockey by playing with the Maiden American Legion Hockey Team. Standing guard over an iron cage at one end of a hockey rink is not O. C. Daley's only interest in sports. When basketball seasons roll around he switches cages.

GENERAL'S ORDERLY
Pfc. Herbert C. Taylor, Company F, 30th Infantry Regiment, has been selected to be orderly to Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Harper, commanding general of The Infantry Center. Pfc. Taylor has served in the Army for 11 months.

'Hollywood Stars' Invade CTC Unit

Dog Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, seems to have a lot of talent going to waste these days. Men with names like Gary Cooper, Ronald Coleman, Bill Elliott, George Brent and Leon Hardy should be entertaining the troops with their movie talents for acting instead of performing regular company duties.

Actually the men are Pvt. Cooper, Cpl. Coleman, Pfc. Elliott, Pvt. Brant and Pvt. Hardy. Because their names are identical to those of the famous movie stars, Dog Company is referred to by its members as the "Hollywood Company."

OC Sings Way Through Class

Clarence Taylor, of the 12th OC Co., is one soldier who stands out among others with the fine talent he possesses. Before his entry into the Army last year, Taylor sang on his own radio program and frequently appeared on TV.

In addition to his own personal appearances Taylor formed a singing group which called itself the "Chromatics." They recorded singing commercials and performed at conventions, political rallies and for private parties.

While Taylor attended Brigham Young University he did missionary work for his church and was active in football and track. But as for singing Taylor regards it as a way of replenishing the spirit and firing a man up to accomplish a job with a zest.

Q. HOW CAN YOU INVEST IN 100 OR MORE STOCKS FOR AS LITTLE AS $25 at a time

A. With programs for investment in shares of Mutual Investment Companies.

Through Mutual Investment Companies, you obtain a pro-rata interest in diversified lists of up to 100 or more securities (whether stocks, bonds, or stocks and bonds).

No large sum is needed to start such a Program. Additions of as little as $25 at a time can be made. Please note these facts:

1. Through a Mutual Investment Company, you share in the future of a broad cross-section of American business.
2. The securities held by Mutual Investment Companies are carefully selected and constantly supervised by professional investment management.
3. Through use of fractional shares, all money you pay in, under a Mutual Investment Company Program for periodic investment, is completely invested. Accumulation may be further speeded by reinvestment of dividends, if desired.
4. You pay only the usual sales charge for buying shares of the investment Company you select. You borrow no money, so you pay no interest. There are no "extras" or "penalties". You may discontinue the Program, without charge, at any time.

Nine Viking Battalions Taking Battery of Tests

Nine battalions of the 47th Infantry Division will undergo a series of tests at Fort Benning during September to determine the effectiveness of 20 weeks of training just completed.

The standard tests will serve as a climax to eight weeks of basic training, eight weeks of advanced individual training and 12 weeks of basic and advanced unit training.

Each battalion will be examined separately during the testing period which will end Sept. 20. Tests will be given in a series of problems under simulated combat conditions.

First unit to be tested will be the Third Battalion 13th Infantry Regiment. It will be followed by the First and Second Battalions Sept. 2-8.

The three battalions of the 16th Infantry Regiment will take the tests Sept. 9-16, and the three battalions of the 15th Infantry Regiment will take them Sept. 20-29.

Three Nurses, Two Dentists, Join Hospital

Three newly-arrived Army nurses and two dental officers have been assigned duties at Fort Benning.

The nurses are Capt. Mary R. Baker of Hardeeville, S. C., Capt. Miriam E. Young of Orwigsburg, Pa., and Capt. Josie K. Pritchard of Union Church, Miss. The dentists are First Lt. Madison W. Gaillard Jr. of Mobile, Ala., and First Lt. Joe S. Watson.

Capt. Baker came to The Infantry Center from Fort Sam Houston, Texas. An Army nurse since 1941, she has served in Japan and Korea.

This is Capt. Young's first assignment in the U. S. in three years. Commissioned in 1940, she served in India, Persia and Italy during World War II and came here after duty in Germany.

Capt. Pritchard also came here after three years of service in Germany. An 11-year veteran, she was in Europe during World War II.

This is the first Army assignment for Lie. Gaillard and Watson, both 1954 graduates of the University of Alabama Dental School.

Schedule Making Geared to Weather

Temperature, the length of the day and the direction of the sun play an important part in the job of a retired Army captain now employed by The Infantry School. Hunt C. Maxwell, Columbus, must consider these weather conditions when scheduling training problems for some 10,000 students.

He must arrange schedules so that students scheduled to witness a problem will not face the sun. He must also make sure that the class will have the benefit of as much shade as possible during the hottest part of the summer and as much sun as possible during the coldest part of the winter.

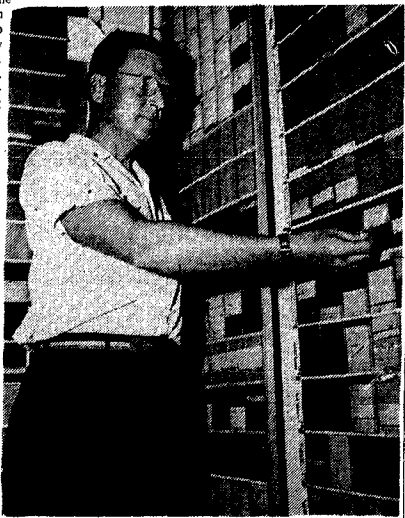

Operations Office
Employed in the Operations Office, Maxwell schedules problems for students eight to 12 weeks in advance. He keeps these schedules on multi-colored boards, standing approximately 12 feet high around his office.

Each board is marked to indicate the day of the week, with the different colored cards identifying the different problems. A glance at the board shows any conflicts in schedules.

Since many classes see the same problems, Maxwell must make sure there is no duplication.

15 Years Service
His 15 years of Army service began in 1937 when he enlisted as a private. He served in Europe during World War II and was retired in 1937 as a result of wounds received in Korea.

He wears the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with three Oak Leaf Clusters and Combat Infantryman Badge. His foreign decorations include the Belgian Croix de Guerre, Order of Leopold with Palm and Fourregere.

OC Keeps Cool, Thinks of Alaska

Is the heat about to get you down? All Officer Candidate Allen Jenks of 13th O. C. Company has to do is think of last winter.

Having never seen snow before he came in the Army, O. C. Jenks spent the winter in Alaska attached to the Arctic Survival Testing and Training Unit. There he was a ski instructor spending his afternoons gliding down mountains of ice.

But it is the thought of the average winter temperature in Alaska that causes Jenks to glance wistfully to the North: -35 degrees. Cool yet?

Lt. Homony Assigned Co. F, 30th Exec.

First Lt. George M. Homony, recruiting officer of the Combat Training Command, has been reassigned as executive officer of Company F, 30th Infantry Regiment.

Lt. Homony entered the Army in 1951 and served in Korea with the 45th Infantry Division. First Lt. Willard D. Hogan will replace Lt. Homony as CTC recruiting officer.

Col. Karrer Named Deputy Adj. General

Col. Robert J. Karrer, of West Newton, Mass., has been named deputy adjutant general at Fort Benning.

Col. Karrer, who graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1928, entered the Army in 1932. From December 1942 to September 1946, he was inspector general at 89th Infantry Division headquarters in North Africa and Italy. In 1951 he became adjutant general of the Japan Logistical Command and later chief of the Administrative Services Division, Army Forces Far East. He returned to the U. S. last month. He is a 1942 graduate of the Command and General Staff College and a 1949 graduate of the Adjutant General School.

Col. Shropshire Named HC Chief

Lt. Col. Lewis W. Shropshire of Roanoke, Va., has been appointed chief of the Housing and Construction Division in The Infantry Center's G-4 Section.

He makes all building and warehouse assignments and is responsible for construction and rehabilitation of buildings, bridges and roads.

A veteran of 22 years of service, Col. Shropshire attended The Infantry School in 1936, 1941, 1942 and 1943.

He was named coordinator of planning at The Infantry Center last February.

Col. Shropshire served with the 290th Infantry Regiment, 75th Division in Europe during World War II. From 1947 to 1949, he was with the Military Advisory Group in China.

He was with the 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Division in Korea from January to December, 1953.

CTC Opens Trophy Room

The Trophy Room of the 30th Infantry Regiment is now open to all visitors, civilian and military, each Sunday from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

The room, located in Building 2835, adjacent to 30th Infantry Headquarters, offers a variety of historical information and articles of historical value. Among the articles preserved are battle streamers dating to 1907 and the original A' L'Ordre de L'Arme, decoration presented to the 30th Infantry in 1918 for gallant action in combat.

In addition a pictorial history of the regiment dating back to 1685 is preserved in the show-room.

The Trophy Room is also open each week during duty hours.

Music Resounds In Harmony Hill

Organ music and their singing has begun to be a familiar sound at Harmony Hill on Sunday mornings.

It is heard at the Harmony Church Chapel and the music is certainly no competition for the mortar and artillery shells which burst week-days, but it is a sweet sound that seems to draw passer-by's attention.

Strains of "Ava Maria" and "Panie Angieleus" retain their startling beauty for officer candidates and cadre alike.

The music is being provided by James Montz of the 44th OC Co., who has directed the choir and played the organ on special occasions as well as on Sundays.

Navy to Build 2 More A-Subs

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The Navy will build two additional nuclear-powered submarines — the third and fourth in a series that began with the USS Nautilus—according to plans announced by RADM William D. Leggett, chief of the Bureau of Ships.

30th Review Honors Lt. Col. Gibson

Second Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment held a review last Saturday honoring Lt. Col. Charles M. Gibson, who recently terminated his duties as battalion commander. Col. Gibson has been appointed executive officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment.

The review was held in the 30th Infantry area. Troops from Headquarters Company, and Companies F, G and H participated in the review.

Lt. Col. Gibson is being replaced in Second Battalion command by Lt. Col. Arden W. Dow.

One of the atomic submarines will be assigned to the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Groton, Maine. The other will be built by the Electric Boat Div., General Dynamics Corp., Groton, Conn.

The Portsmouth shipyard contract provides a second yard equipped and trained to build nuclear-powered subs. The first two atomic-fueled submarines — the USS Nautilus and USS Sea Wolf—were assigned to the Groton shipyard.

The Nautilus, launched in January, is almost ready for trial runs. The Sea Wolf is now under construction.

The Portsmouth yard has also been assigned the construction of an attack submarine in the Navy's 1955 program.

14th OCs Break Record For Rifle Qualifying

On the heels of 10th Officer Candidate Company which broke Fort Benning M-1 firing records a month ago, 14th Officer Candidate Company smashed the new record recently. Firing in sweltering heat and thunderstorms the company qualified 99.2 per cent of their men.

Of the 117 candidates firing for record, 20 qualified as experts and 65 as sharpshooters. The company average was 105.90, well up in the sharpshooter category.

Top scorer for the day was Officer Candidate Frank E. Frey with a total of 231. Close behind were Officer Candidates Richard P. Barrere and Charles K. Aakhus with scores of 225 and 224 respectively. This was only Candidate Frey's second record firing experience with the M-1 rifle. Previously, he fired expert during basic training at Fort Ord, Calif.

The high scoring section of the company was the First Section of the First Platoon. Led by five candidates who fired higher than 221, the section averaged 203.6 and were awarded an unusual privilege: Sunday breakfast in bed, served by members of the low-scoring section. They also received passes for the weekend.

Ex-Aide Named To Staff Post

Major Lawrence G. Mathews, who served as aide de camp to Gen. James A. Van Fleet in Korea, has been appointed assistant secretary of The Infantry Center general staff at Fort Benning.

A former instructor on the Tactical Department's Company Committee at The Infantry School, Major Mathews assumed his new position after returning from temporary duty with Gen. Van Fleet's special mission to the Far East. He also was Gen. Van Fleet's aide for a year in Korea before his assignment to Fort Benning in April, 1952, following the former Eighth Army commander's retirement.

Officials Study Location Of New Benning Hospital

The proposed site of Fort Benning's new post hospital, to be built at an estimated cost of eight million dollars, was inspected last week by a nine-man team from the Bureau of the Budget. The officials were here to determine whether the 500-bed structure should be constructed on Houston Hill at Santa Fe and Marne Roads. They will present their findings to the Bureau of the Budget.

Fort Benning G-4 officials expressed hope that construction of the new hospital will get under way at an early date.

Team members were F. J. Cuscio, South Atlantic Division engineer, C. W. Hutchinson and Charles W. Maskell of the Office of the Army Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Lt. Col. A. M. Ciccone of the Army's G-4 Section, E. C. Wiggins and Lt. Col. R. C. Pfeil of the Savannah District Engineer Office, and Lt. Col. Ormen Boggs, Surgeon's Office, Lt. Col. R. G. Steckel, G-4 Section, and Richard G. Dupree, Engineer Section, all of Third Army headquarters.

Accompanying the team on its tour were Col. L. E. Roth, Infantry Center engineer, Lt. Col. J. A. Cook, G-4, and Capt. E. W. Bell, G-4 Section's installations and Services Branch.

C-Rations Dropped!

FORT McPHERSON, Ga.—GIs will have a respite from one of their main gripe for the next few months. Third Army Quartermaster officials have reported that C-rations will not grace the shelves of mess halls in the Third Army Area during the immediate future.

Acting upon a directive from the Department of the Army, Quartermaster officials have depleted their stock of C-rations sufficiently so that a normal rotation of such rations has been reached, and made possible the end of C-rations days for the time being.

But, all the news is not quite so appetizing. Assault rations will still be used three times a month. However, Lt. Col. Irving R. Shea, of Third Army Quartermaster, Food Service Division, pointed out that the assault rations, smaller and more varied in content than their predecessors, will be implemented with perishable items.

This is done, Col. Shea stated; to build up the caloric content necessary for a GI's diet and make the meals more appealing and nourishing and to meet with troop acceptance.

NEW DAYROOM FURNITURE ... The Post Special Service Office has just received new dayroom furniture which is being delivered to the 30th Inf. in their new quarters. Left to right are: Sgt. Roy J. Henry, 30th Inf.; Sfc. Reed A. Dobias, central post maintenance sergeant, SSO Col. Ralph Todd, and M-Sgt. James W. Click, warehouse manager.

Wester flew the three passenger utility helicopter, the XH 59, at 136.065 miles per hour.

The previous record was listed at 147 miles per hour set by the H-21 Piasquet, on Sept. 2, 1953 at the Dayton, Ohio National Air Show.

BENNING NURSERIES TO BE OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

BY MRS. S. K. McMURDO

Attention all parents! You will no longer be forced to miss that special service, those evening church services, or that belated invitation because the Nursery is closed. The Main Post Nursery is happy to announce that effective Sept. 15 it will be open every week-day night and all day Sunday.

This new policy is in response to the many requests for longer hours and is one of many improvements being planned by the new Nursery Advisory Board. This board was recently formed by the Infantry Center Chaplain's Section for the purpose of advising the nursery on various problems and considering suggestions. On the board are Chap. John S. Kelly, Col. Wolcott K. Dudley, Mrs. Joseph H. Harper, Mrs. Carl F. Fritzsche, Mrs. William Boyle, Mrs. William Silbert, Mrs. Glenn M. Harvey, and Mrs. DeBow Freed.

Growing Up

The nursery system has been growing up. Since November 1948 when the Chaplain's Section started it as a Sunday morning convenience for parents attending church services, it has expanded into three sections, the Main Post Nursery, the Battle-Park branch, and the Commissary Nursery. These three units are under the supervision of Mrs. Alise Hackett, assistant supervisor Mrs. Sollie Sanderson, and a staff of twelve. They handle 6,000 children monthly, ranging in age from three months to nine years. Sleeping arrangements can be provided for from 35 to over a 100 children during one evening.

The Commissary Nursery under the direction of Mrs. Helen Hinesman is open only during Commissary hours as a convenience to shoppers. Fees are 10 cents for the first hour and 50 cents for each additional hour.

The Main Post and Battle Park Nurseries are financially independent. Each charges a small fee of 25 cents per hour for the first child, and 35 cents per hour for two or more children of the same family.

Frequent inspections

The nurseries are subject to frequent inspections by post medical and fire authorities, and standards of sanitation and health are rigidly upheld. Care is taken to inspect each child on his arrival at the Nursery to be sure he is well.

Parents are asked to please put names on all diaper bags, bottles, coats, etc. brought to the nursery and to remember the children are not accepted after 9 p.m.

The nursery is a service to all Post personnel, and is anxious to best serve your baby-sitting needs. Any suggestions will be carefully considered and if feasible will be incorporated into the present policy. There have been many requests that food be served, or that parents be allowed to bring lunches for their children. With the present limited facilities this is not possible but you may rest assured that it will be kept under consideration as a future possibility.

Administrative Staff Named for Schools

Increased enrollment in the Children's School System at Fort Benning has made necessary the appointment of an administrative staff which includes a superintendent and three principals.

Heading the administrative staff will be Mrs. Hazel Scudder of Lexington, Ky., Children's School superintendent.

The three new principals are Dennis W. Robertson, Faith School; Miss Frances E. Grosch, Custer Terrace School; and Miss Margaret Ratterree, Main Post School. Robertson also will serve as guidance counselor for the Fort Benning school system.

Mrs. Scudder completed undergraduate studies at Ouachita College and graduate work at the University of Kentucky. She also studied at George Peabody Teachers College and the University of Chicago and has taught on elementary, high school and college levels.

FHA Will Insure Loans for GIs

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Members of the Armed Forces are now eligible to obtain housing benefits under provisions of the Housing Act of 1954 which has been signed by President Eisenhower.

The Federal Housing Administration Commissioner has been authorized to insure loans on homes purchased by members of the Coast Guard—up to 95 percent of the FHA appraised value of the property and not to exceed an insured loan of $17,000.

Personnel who have been on active duty for more than two years and who have a need for such housing will be able to get mortgage insurance for the purchase of new homes.

Both borrowers and property must meet FHA requirements.

Certificates of eligibility will be issued to servicemen. However, since issuance procedures have not been worked out completely yet, servicemen should not submit applications until an official announcement is made.

The Secretary of Defense will prescribe rules and regulations governing the issuance of certificates to members of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. Members of the Coast Guard will follow the regulations to be set down by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Official regulations on securing the certificates will be announced at an early date.
