Under the direction of Maj. Roy H. Oestreich, Infantry Board project officer, the rifles were tested under every type of extreme climatic conditions from Arctic cold to the mud swamps and heat of the Georgia and West Virginia mountains.

The rifles were fired as part of the "Infantry weapons" problem, demonstrating to the leaders of American business, labor and government attending the conference the advanced made by the Army to meet the requirements of the modern atomic battlefield.

Also fired was the new M-50 general purpose machine gun, which together with the rifles, rounds out a program for a new weapons system.

The new system offers many advantages. It gives the modern Army a better and lighter rifle and machine gun to provide forward Infantry units greater firepower, while cutting the number of small arms weapons from seven to three.

It also eliminates a logistical problem by reducing the types of ammunition and adopting the standard NATO cartridge.

In Letters to Gen. Powell

Letters of appreciation have been received by Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell from distinguished business, education, law and government officials, who visited the post in April for conferences and orientations.

The Scientific Advisory Panel met April 8-11. The education and orientation conference was held April 11-13, and the National Inventors' Council met April 12-14.

Dr. Charles F. Kefferling, 65-year vice-president of the General Motors Corp., wrote Gen. Powell, "I want to thank you for the many courtesies extended to me and the National Inventors' Council orientation."

Conceding the success of the educators' orientation, Alfred S. Curtis, principal of the High School, said that he would wish to press the deep enjoyment he felt for the "very fine" program in connection with the educators' orientation.

Brig. Gen. T. J. Conway of the Department of the Army Research and Development Office, praised Col. Gleszer in particular and Fort Benning in general for the program arranged for the National Inventors' Council, calling it the finest in the history of the council.

He said:

"I would like to express the appreciation of our entire group on the outstanding reception you gave us on the occasion of our recent visit to Fort Benning. Reports from the members of the council were uniformly enthusiastic. As you can imagine, this group has been exposed to many services, visits, receptions and demonstrations, but they were unanimous in saying this was the finest trip they ever had."

"A special word of appreciation is due Col. Gleszer. He was on the job throughout, exercised imagination and good judgment and was responsible to all requests for arrangements above and beyond those called for by the schedule. His performance of duty on this occasion was outstanding."

"I am sure that the members of the council will remember this visit for some time. Our fine Infantry soldiers were impressive. The obvious dispatch and efficiency with which the entire schedule was performed elicited many favorable comments."

Lieutenant Wins $1,500 In 'Spot Cash' Contest

A Benning Ranger instructor and his wife will soon enjoy a Florida vacation and a deep freeze unit as the result of winning $1,500 in a plane-spotting contest which appeared in The Army Times.

Fredia John R. Espey won the $1,500 top prize money for March in the nationwide "Spot Cash" contest for military personnel.

The 29-year-old Army career officer broke the contest tie to win first place with his slogan on "why civilians should help the military in aircraft detection."

Puzzled and somewhat concerned at an urgent request to appear with his wife before the director of the Ranger Department, Lt. Espey was unaware that he was the contest winner. As department director, Col. John J. Dalton presented the $1,500 check, the surprised lieutenant flashed a relieved smile at Mrs. Espey who had kept the news a secret.

Laughing later with her husband, Mrs. Espey explained, "He didn't trust me to mail the slogan letter in the box at our quarters, but put the postage on and took the envelope to the post office himself."

Commenting on the contest, Lt. Espey said, "It seemed wonderful and easy and only took a little time and thought. We thought it would be a good way to finance two of our current projects, a vacation trip to Florida and a deep freeze. Of course, we didn't seriously count on it."

A 1952 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., Lt. Espey served from November, 1952 to March 1955 with the 17th Inf.

General's Order

CHAP. (IST LT.) DON W. KINNEY, C.M.

In 1776 an order went out from the Continental Congress to the officers and men serving in the war against England. In fact it was very ordinary procedure. But this time—it wasn't at all ordinary. It was an injunction from General George Washington to the men of the Continental Army to not about the hardships of the war, nor argue with their officers, not encouraging them to get a set-back or a defeat, the order had to do with cursing and swearing!

"I hope the officers will endeavor to keep their tongues from wagging, and that every one of us will realize that we can have little hope of the blessing of heaven on our arms if we furnish it by our impurity and folly. Added to this it is a vice so common and low that temptation, that every man of sense and character detests it."

Seems like a strange order for a general to issue to his troops! Incidentally, it was recently printed in Washington and came out in all recruiting offices and camps of the U. S. Army. Be sure to note that these words are a part of the virtues that go to make a real man. They come from the Father of our country.

Note also the reasons Washington urged against profanity. It's contrary to the law of God first of all, it's "insult" to God. Profanity also

Pay Bill Introduced In Senate Last Week

Compiled From AFPS Sec. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) this week introduced in the Senate legislation which would revamp the military pay structure of the Armed Forces. The bill is sponsored by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and drafted along the lines of the Jordan Committee recommendation, the bill (S-2014) carries the full program of the Defense Department's blue ribbon pay panel.

The measure proposing revision of the Career Compensation Act of 1949 has been referred to the Senate Armed Services Committee. No date for committee hearings has been set.

Members of the separate services have said that they have not had sufficient time to lobby administrative officials of the proficiency pay announced for enlisted personnel by the Defense Department's Chief of Staff, Gen. Charles E. Wilson.

Wilson stated earlier this week that the "immediate action" on a "proficiency pay" bill is being held in abeyance until the Defense Department also will ask for new legislation on military advance pay and retention payments to reserve officers, he said.

The action will be started to deal with the "most urgent" aspects of the pay bill, according to Mr. Wilson. This involves a system of pay for personnel in occupations of "critical importance" which Wilson said (former study) who has to resort to a civilian job. The pay will be based on demonstrated ability in a skill of critical importance depending on rank and years of service, qualified personnel will receive pay increases ranging from $12 to $50 a month.

Mr. Wilson announced the new plan in explaining defense policy for a long-range program to improve the military manpower structure of the Armed Forces.

"The program is designed to meet increasing demands on our military forces by unprecedented technological progress and the need to retain skilled personnel."

The National Guard and Air National Guard will be reorganized as Nike units to become an integral part of the air defense system.

Bill Provides for Care By Two or More Doctors

Let Note: Here are more questions and answers on the Dependents' Medical Care program, which are commonly asked by servicemen and their wives concerning civilian care under the new program. This is one of a series of such type articles in the Bayonet.

Q—I had to buy some medicines following my release from the hospital where I had an operation for a hernia. I bought a civilian pharmacy. Mrs. A.

A—No. Drugs or medicines prescribed for you, the cost is covered by the program. Drugs bought from civilian sources will have to be paid for by the dependent, except in the case of pregnancy. In maternity cases, if your physician prescribes a drug from a civilian pharmacy for you, the cost is covered by the government. Remember, though, you can still obtain any needed medicines from your service pharmacies.

Q—My husband is a nurse transferred next month, and I'll have to change obstetrics for the care I've received from my present doctor, and will be reorganized as Nike units to become an integral part of the air defense system.

New Army Real 'Power for Peace'

This is Armed Forces Week, and on this occasion, let's take a look at our Army of today and see how it stands up as a powerful fighting force.

Yes, the strides which the Army has taken recently in the development of new weapons and modern methods of warfare, to the phrase, which is used quite frequently in the Bayonet—"Streamlined Army."

Army is Progressing. And we feel that this is quite important on Armed Forces Week, because it should make us proud to be members of the Army. It should cause us to realize that the Army is keeping up with the demands of modern warfare, and doing everything possible to provide that all-important person, the Infantryman, with the weapons and equipment which he needs on him, and behind him, when he goes into the action.

We saw, during the JCRC, the new, just-as-complex as any ever invented anywhere, and this brought to our attention that the Army has its share of highly trained troops, and these troops, any war will depend ultimately on the man behind the rifle.

However, weapons alone will not win a war. The man who should be paid particular respect is the man behind the rifle.

Immediately following the graduation, an aviation presentation is scheduled, demonstrating the role of Army aircraft both fixed-wing and helicopters in the doctrine of air mobility.

From noon to 4 p.m., a static display of Infantry and armor weapons and equipment as well as aircraft from the Army.

Navy and Air Force will be available for public inspection. A demonstrator will remain with each exhibit to answer any questions about the display.

Also from noon to 4 p.m., the post will maintain shuttle bus service between Lawson Field, the airborne training area, and the Ground Mobility Department of The U.S. Army Infantry School.

Tours will be conducted at intervals during the afternoon through the Ground Mobility Department, giving the public a look at one of the nation's finest automotive schools.

At the airborne area, persons will be given an opportunity to take a buddy seat ride, a simulated parachute jump from one of The Infantry School's 250-foot training towers.

A refreshment stand will be open at Lawson Field to provide light snacks and soft drinks for the visitors.

Should Save Time, Back Strain GI Invents Foot Locker Rack

BY J. D. HENRY
How much time is lost, and effort expended in lifting foot lockers to sweep or clean under them in an Army barracks? This question confronted Sgt. Dale Raper, Transmitter Section, Lawson Air Field Command, and he set about to get an answer and a remedy.

Sgt. Raper has developed an idea for a foot-locker rack which holds up the locker enabling personnel to sweep, mop and clean under and around it without picking it up.

The rack, which is made out of salvagable material and is so simple that anybody can construct it, according to Sgt. Raper, is designed to fit on the end of a bunk bed without the aid of belts or screws. It is as easily detached as it is positioned.

The idea and design, which Sgt. Raper is submitting to the Incentive Awards Committee, through the Management Engineering Division, Office of the Comptroller, USAIC, for possible approval, is a product of his work in the Army's techniques of work simplification course.

The course, directed by Mr. James R. Woolbert here, is designed to instruct Army personnel in the art of work simplification.

sonnel in studies and projects on the more effective use of manpower, equipment, material, and space, and in labor saving procedures.

It is a 10 hour course requiring five weeks for completion and involves the development of techniques and procedures of conducting work and efficiency studies.

It requires the student to prepare and present various work flow charts and efficiency planning charts, along with solutions for an ideal method of accomplishing a job, and then submit recommendations for its adoption.

The rack is now in use by the Transmitter Section where the works and by portions of the 1st and 2nd Squadrons, Lawson Air Field Command.

New Class Gets Welcome

A cosmopolitan, 210-man advanced class, which includes as students from 11 Allied nations and 59 U. S. Army Reserve personnel, was welcomed to the Post this week by Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School commandant.

"This class illustrates our combined efforts in these days of international tension as no other combine could," Gen. Powell said. The group will devote 31 weeks to intensive training in tactics, staff, weapons, ground mobility, airborne mobility and communications subjects.

"You are the first advanced class in this school to receive instruction from the beginning of your course in the new organization of the U. S. Army—the Pentomic or TOC/DI concept," he pointed out.

"We not only teach the new organization and tactics here, but also, as far as small units are concerned, the new tactics and doctrines are developed at The Infantry School," Gen. Powell added.

The speaker emphasized that "organization is only a tool towards an end. You and I are officers because we have the duty of leading men, not because of proficiency in weapons and tactics," he brought out.

"In future warfare we will always have the threat of powerful weapons with atomic capabilities. We will meet these with wide dispersion, fast movement, rapid concentration, and dispersing again to prevent presenting the enemy a target," Gen. Powell explained.

"The Infantry still is the arm of decision with your role as Infantrymen increasing in importance. On the front battlefield, small unit leaders are called upon to make decisions and exercise leadership as never before in history," Gen. Powell told the class.

Unit Begins Program To Train Mechanics

Producing mechanics "just as proficient" as those turned out by the Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Ala., is the goal of the on-the-job training program being initiated in the 1st Aviation Co., Lawson Air Field Command.

The "First" has been drawn recently from mechanics since its arrival here last September. During one period last fall the unit's twenty aircraft were maintained by six mechanics.

In order to maintain its high aircraft availability, crew chief duties were assigned to pilots and additional evening maintenance was performed by air mechanics.

The new program, under the direction of Capt. Charles Drummond, company maintenance officer, will have fifty fixed wing tactical transport aircraft capable of carrying supplies and troops.

The high degree of proficiency which Capt. Drummond hopes to obtain through on-the-job training will be the result of a maximum of practical application on the aircraft, with a minimum of class room study.

The graduate mechanics from this program will have received 150 hours of instruction covering airframes, engines, and records. Some of the individual subjects covered are tech orders, tech supply, basic aerodynamics, safety precautions, ground handling.

PLAN REUNION
FT. RILEY, Kan. (APPS)—The 1st Inf. Div. will hold its 20th annual reunion Aug. 25-28 in Washington. A WWII monument, counterpart to the division's WWI monument, will be unveiled at the meeting.

NEW CO... 1st Lt. Troy D. Pipkins recently assumed command of Hq. Co., 151st Engineer Group, filling a vacancy left by 1st Lt. Florian Tryjankowski, who has gone to flight school. Lt. Pipkins entered the Army Aug. 28, 1945 and prior to taking over his present duties, was communications officer for the 151st Engineer Group.

4 Pilots to Qualify in New H-37

Four pilots from the "fourth" are on their way to Ft. Rucker, Ala. to qualify in the Army's largest and newest helicopter, the H-37. A total of 500 hours of flight time is required in order to be eligible for qualification in this craft, 100 hours of which must be in the H-37 now used by the unit.

Two of the giant H-37's were at the recent JCOO, flying problems and demonstrating to members of the assembly. On several occasions last week the H-37s lifted heavy cargo tests on John's missile. These crafts were sent to Benning from Ft. Rucker and were piloted by CWO L. E. Brendt, formerly with the 4th, and CWO H. M. Fletcher.

The Army is now in the process of testing and proving the H-37 to evaluate the craft and to evaluate the ship and the serviceability of its major parts. Special maintenance tools needed for field repairs are also an object of the testing.

During the training, each H-37, powered by two 2100 horsepower radial engines mounted in pods on each side of the helicopter, is flown from 10 to 15 hours a day. Five different crews fly 1000 hours in five or six months. The pilots, beginning at 8 a.m., put the helicopters through a series of maneuvers, including normal landings and take-offs, engine failure or complete engine failure procedures. Eighty per cent of the flights are in maximum gross weight, 13,500 lbs.

Two officers recently left for Fort Monmouth, N.J., to participate in heavy cargo tests on new concepts on carrying signal equipment. They were 1st Lt. Kenneth L. Wren and WO CWO L. E. Brendt, formerly with the 4th, and CWO H. M. Fletcher.

Harry D. Donalowski was seen throwing away his old WO bars and replacing them with those of a CWO. He joined the 152nd in September 55 and has served as assistant maintenance officer. He has ten years of active service, serving in both Korea and Germany.

The 37th came to the aid of an injured GI last week. It was Pvt. George Jones, of Fort Benning, who was involved in a swimming mishap in Tallahassee, Fla. 1st Lt. Darwin E. Yorlan picked him up at the Tallahassee airport and treated him to the post hospital. Newly assigned personnel are Sgt. Calvin Eastman, new supply sergeant, and Pvt. Raymond Law, a radio-telephone operator.

Center to Aid Nuclear Age CO's Control

A new vehicle mounted coordinating center has been developed to give commanders tactical support elements, the Army has announced. Called the Tactical Support Center, the system provides a method for commanders to lead highly mobile, support forces into a single, power-packed team.

Equipment for two TSCs, built by the Army Signal Engineering Laboratories, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., was recently field tested by the XVIII Airborne Corps in the King Cole maneuvers at Ft. Polk, La. Housed in 13 vans and additional tents, the TSC is divided into five major sections: control, aviation, electronic warfare, artillery (fire support) and air defense.

Each section operates from a van while the control center and the aviation section have additional tents. Other vans contain supporting communications and photographic equipment. Because the TSC concept requires the use of radio, typewriter, television and other communication devices, the unit has its own power generators, and his specially designed cable plugs for rapid interconnection.

In addition, the center contains darkrooms for reproducing maps and photographs. To keep pace with the speed of modern armies, the entire package is capable of rapid movement and instant operation, the Army said.

39th Cops DivArty Meet

BY DAVID ROTHENBURG
The 39th Field Artillery held their week long meet in the DivArty track and field meet concluded Saturday morning at Dogbooby Stadium, after rain prolonged the scheduled two day meet.

Following the top total of 65 points accumulated by the 39th was the 10th with 37 points, followed by the 2d FA with 33. Training was the first FA with 27 markers.

With eight first places, led by Lyle Ashley's double win in the 100 and 200, the 20th FA gave DivArty track coach Andy James sufficient reason to be optimistic about the regiment's chances in the all post meet set for next week.

Ashley finished nicely in the two sprints on the rain soaked track in times of 10.8 and 23.3 respectively. He, however, was only one of three double winners in the meet. The 10th Field's team provided a pair of double winners, Martin Meeks and Bill Hannan.

Eight Errors by Commanders Give DivArty Easy 11-4 Victory

BY DICK SPENCER
DivArty took advantage of eight fielding lapses committed by the 20th ICC to take an 11-4 league decision in the first league game before 500 fans at Dogbooby Stadium, Saturday night.

The first inning of the game was set in the first inning when the 20th threw three times to left permit two unearned runs. Leadoff man for the Redlegs, Ken Campbell, rapped a single to center. Don Sien rolled to the pitcher, John Barnard, who threw wild to second. Joe Paulino missed the ball out in center and then threw into Shortz, the catcher, who dropped the ball. Result: One run and Sien on third.

The Commanders played the same game again in the fourth, fifth and six frames to allow six more unearned tallies. Dick - hitting shortstop, Don

Close provided another DivArty score in the fifth with an inside-the-park home run. In the meantime, Redleg holder, Dick Foote, held the Commanders at bay. The 20th collected two runs in the fourth on a walk to Doug Weststad, a single by Frank Lee, two hitless outs and passed ball.

Howie Williams relieved Barnard in the sixth inning and gave up one more run. Barnard deserved a better fate as he struck out seven, walked two and allowed seven hits during his stint on the mound. However, the weak Commanders defense kept him in trouble in every inning except the second and third.

The 20th scored twice in the eighth on a double by Julio Torres, a triple by Williams and a sacrifice fly. That ended the scoring for the evening.

Raiders Tied In Shortened Game, 2 to 2

BY DICK SPENCER
The Raiders, defending champs in the Doughboy League, played to a 2-2 tie with the Rock of the Marine in an abbreviated 11th at Fahn Field last Wednesday evening.

After waiting a half hour for the umpires to arrive, the game began to play a practice game. With that playing status of Dave Kirk still a question mark, John Radney took over the mound chores for the Raiders.

The Raiders jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Tex Osborn was hit by one of Warrington's pitches. Mickey Moore singled and Mickey Mackles doubled, sending Osborn home. Moore scored when leftfielder Mulvaney bobbed the ball.

In the bottom of the second, the Marine men knotted the count with singles by Gross and Saunders. Saunders knocked the ball out of the park but failed to touch third base. The alert Raiders retrived the ball and appealed to the umpire who declared Saunders out.

Rock of the Marine threatened in the third frame. They had the bases loaded and were out when Radney struck out Gross. Forged Massey to ground out.

The Raiders net games will be against the Flyers at Fahn Field at 5:45 a.m. next Monday. They have last week: Cat-tentblers 5, Green Wave 4; Can Doers 6, Commanders 4;

FLYING BILL HANNAN . . . with the 10th FA goes over a hurdle in the DivArty 120 yard high hurdle event at last Saturday's regimental track meet at Dogbooby Stadium. Hannan easily took the event, besides coping the high jump, although his team's efforts fell short of the winning 39th FA. Hannan will be a big man in both events in the upcoming all post meet.

Close provided another DivArty score in the fifth with an inside-the-park home run. In the meantime, Redleg holder, Dick Foote, held the Commanders at bay. The 20th collected two runs in the fourth on a walk to Doug Weststad, a single by Frank Lee, two hitless outs and passed ball.

The first movement through the Panama Canal was made April 22, 1954. More than 100 ships bound for the West Coast went through the canal in 47 hours.

TOM WIERZBICKI 2 Swimmers Have Big Responsibility

The Regimental baseball season is upon us and the post track and field meet is just around the corner (May 24-25) . . . our thoughts, however, lay with the upcoming post swimming meet, June 28-29.

Last year Fort Benning fielded a post team which went forward to dethrone Fort Bragg for the Third Army title with a resounding 118 to 48 trouncing.

This year, with the advent of regimental sports, the post will hold a post swimming and diving meet to decide who will represent Benning in the Third Army tournament July 11-13 at Fort Stewart (Ga.).

From last year's winning Third Army team, which placed six men on the All-Star team and went forward to All-Army at Fort MacArthur, Calif., there are only two returning veterans, Don Brown and Phil Ware.

Brown, an All-American swimmer at Denver University (1954-55) is the lad who could single handed lead a regimental team to victory. In Six Skyline Conference records, including

Last year as coach of the post team, his swimming left nothing to be desired. In the All-Army tournament at Fort MacArthur he set an All-Army record in the 100 meter backstroke with a time of 1:09.9. His performance was good enough to warrant him a chance to compete in the Olympic Tryouts in Detroit.

Brown was one of two Third Army swimmers who was given this opportunity.

In last year's Third Army tournament, All-American Brown took three first places and was a member of the post's winning 400 meter medley relay team. His three wins came in the 100 meter backstroke, 400 meter individual medley and the 100 meter freestyle.

In the All-Army competition, Brown managed to garner two firsts and a third place against the top competition in the Army. Along with his record in the 100 meter backstroke, Don also capped a first in the 400 meter individual medley and a third place finish in the 100 meter freestyle.

The other returning veteran, Phil Ware will also be a great asset to the post team which will be out to defend its Third Army swimming title.

Ware's performance in last year's Third Army event was second only to Don Brown's great show. Phil won two firsts and finished second to Brown in the 100 meter freestyle. He was the 200 meter freestyle and the 200 meter butterfly and was also a member of the winning 400 meter medley relay team.

With these two veterans the post has a foundation for building another Third Army winner.

A logical choice for coach of the team which will represent the post in the Third Army tournament would be none other than Don Brown, last year's winning coach.

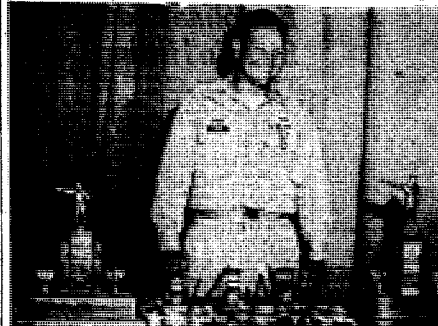

Aside from being an outstanding performer, Brown is also a topnotch handler of men. To give you just a little example, here's what one of last year's swimmers had to say about Lt. Brown:

"Lt. Brown was a coach first and a swimmer second," said Don Enos. "He spent the majority of his time around the pool helping out the other fellows rather than spending long tedious hours getting himself in the best of condition." Enos added, "I don't think you could find a better coach or competitor."

Word out of the post is that whether Brown will be swimming this year is not definite. We feel, and we're sure we speak for most swimming spectators, that it will be a crying shame if Brown doesn't hit the water with the rest of the boys come June 28. We want to see the best Fort Benning has to offer so why not let us see All-American Don Brown. . . . How about it, Don??"

Others among the team will be last year's member of the Olympic Smallbore rifle team, Lt. Les Vele F. Wright, Daniel B. Puckel an Olympic rifle alternate and John R. Shacter, Bloomfield, N. J., captain of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

Completing the competition will be the matches in Texas.

AWARDS . . . First Lt. Dave Cartes assigned to the 506th Airborne Infantry Combat Command at Fort Campbell, Ky., displays the awards he won during the Third U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Fort Benning April 28-May 4. Lt. Cartes copped more than 10 awards during the 16 pistol matches, including the aggregate 58 caliber and Third U.S. Army service pistol (.45 caliber) championships, which are represented by the two large trophies in the photo.

Three Matches Scheduled For Rifle, Pistol Teams

An eight-man delegation will represent the Army banner in the first of three matches slated for the U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol teams May 17-26, to be fired in three different states. The first match will be the "Fiesta of Five Flags Pistol Championships", scheduled for Pensacola, Fla. tomorrow.

Following the Florida match, U. S. Rifle squads will cover a two-state front with the U. S. Army International team competing in the Eighth Annual Virginia State Outdoor Championships at Dale, Va., May 19, and the service rifle (M-1) combined with match rifle (M-70) groups set to fire in the Texas State Rifle and Pistol Championships at Brownwood, Texas, May 24-26.

Heading the list of Army pistoliers will be a pair of highly regarded marksmen, Lt. Col. William A. Hancock and 1st Lt. David C. Miller, both members of the U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning.

Lt. Miller recently copped the "Holiday in Dixie Pistol Championships" at Shepopton, La., with a score of 2630, out of a possible 2700. Col. Hancock, head coach and team captain, won the 22 caliber championship in winning third place in the aggregate match.

At Virginia, the Informational Rifle squad will be matching their Swiss-made Hammett rifle frees against a field of 100 or more 22 caliber marksmen. This 13-man team will be headed by Capt. John W. Kohl team coach and the 1955 National Service Rifle Champion.

Others among the team will be last year's member of the Olympic Smallbore rifle team, Lt. Les Vele F. Wright, Daniel B. Puckel an Olympic rifle alternate and John R. Shacter, Bloomfield, N. J., captain of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

Completing the competition will be the matches in Texas.

Bartoline Leads RCT Stars in Hitting Dept.

Big John can cure your aches and pains every morning at Dispensary "B", but in the afternoon he launches into sharp line drives for the 20th RCT Commanders.

The 6'2", 275 pounder, John Bartoline, is not only the leader, but his unerring shortstop play has already labeled him as one of the outstanding ball players in the Regimental League.

John is an old hand at the diamond game. While attending Abraham Lincoln High School in Brooklyn, he was a four letterman in baseball. Bartoline also played basketball for Lincoln High.

While in high school, he was a consistent 200 hitter. Bartoline was honored in his Senior year by being named to the New York City All-Scholastic Team.

His fine hitting and fielding earned him a baseball scholarship to Long Island University, N. Y. After attending L.I.U. for one year, he entered the Army.

Upon completing of Basic Training at Ft. Dix, N. J., the specialist (third class) joined the 20th RCT. He is employed as a clerk at Dispensary "B".

Bill Consideine, coach of the Commanders, coaches the players but has now shifted him to third to take advantage of his good arm, speed, and quick pair of hands. About the team chances in the league, Bartoline said, "we have a good team with good balance and a good chance to go all the way."

John was a member of the 20th RCT Basketball which was runner-up in the Regimental League. He also was a member of the Medical Company volleyball team which was runner-up in the regimental tournament.

Upon completion of his tour of duty, Bartoline is undecided about the future.

FAST MOVING... Henri Geller with the Third Infantry Division's 30th ICC is considered the man to beat in the all post meet scheduled for Doughboy Stadium next week. Geller, a former star trackman with Oklahoma A&M and the New York Athletic Club, ran a 4:14 mile when he placed second to Wes Santee's American record of 4:03.5 seconds. The athlete in the Sooner state also runs the 600 yd race and the 2 mile run.

PROMOTED

John Magellan, of the 23rd FA Bn., recently received his promotion from PFC to SP4. The new specialist is from Hottel, Okla., and has been in the Army since April, 1956. He works as a clerk-typist in the S-1 section, battalion headquarters.

JERRY ARMSTRONG Woodland Course Offered to Post

This is the sixth in a series of columns which will feature 12 Fort Benning soldiers under the title of "New York Range Guards". Their duties, the areas of the post they patrol and a short synopsis of their background will be depicted.

During the five days, different areas of the post will be surveyed and many hours will be spent in the classroom discussing the practices used in a model, some of the most interested post people will be the range guards.

SFC Roy G. Cooper, who patrolled one of the post areas with the average amount of woodland this workshop will be of special interest.

A native of Bazelman, N. C., SFC Cooper has been near the post since he has through his many military experiences been in a variety of different trees in the world.

A trip to Korea from October, 1951 till November of the next year, gave him a good chance to see what the small hilly peninsula had in the way of treed.

Variety is a word fairly synonymous with SFC Cooper. After going to school in Flint Hill, N. C., he worked in his community. Then he tried his hand at working the U.S. Navy Shipyard in Portsmouth, Va.

Made Service Career

He came into the service exactly one year after an eventful bombing on a naval installation called Pearl Harbor. Since that time, he has served in many of the jobs, most of which have been with the Military Police.

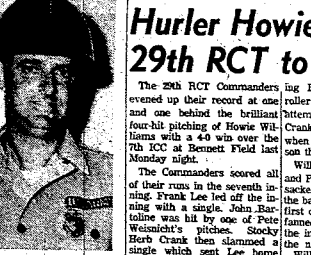

This is the second tour at Fort Benning for the veteran tour end endorser. His first assignment here was during his first months of basic training in 1952. It was exactly ten years later that he returned from Korea to the post.

SFC Cooper follows the trend of the range guards. Devoted family man, settled, hard working and with a keen interest for things outdoors. These men might be called a more fancy word, outdoorsmen.

He is married to the former Millie Small. They have one son, Roy Gregory Cooper, who has just passed his second birthday.

First Workshops

Around 70 persons, representing the Navy, Air Force, Army, Department of Defense, U. S. Forest Service, Atomic Energy Commission, Second, Fifth and Sixth Army commands will be on hand to see the woodland of this post become sort of a big "greenhouse".

The 25th RCT Commanders, Hurler Howie Williams, led off the 7th ICC at Bennett Field last Monday night.

The Commanders scored all of their runs in the seventh inning. Frank Lee led off the inning with a single. John Bartoline was hit by one of Pete Weisnicht's pitches. Stubby Herb Crank then slammed a single which sent Lee home and Bartoline to third.

Ralph Reed, pinch hitting for Julius Torres, dropped a bunt down the third base line score-

Williams has his fast ball popping as he struck out fifteen, walked four and gave four hits. Not one 7th ICC man reached third base as Williams got stronger as the game progressed.

The hard-working, right handed waffled eleven of the last fifteen men he faced. The Commanders defense added runs cause by playing errorless ball.

Weisnicht pitched well allowing only five hits, sending eight down on strikes and walking two. However, his mistakes committed five errors, two in the eighth, which hurt the 7th ICC cause.

The School Brigade has a man who made Ripley's Believe It or Not column for solving tops on a PT test of over a thousand men, with one arm in a cast.

While at Fort Gordon, Ga., Cpl. James W. Crang, Co. E, ISD, did 16 pullups, 62 pushups, 84 situps and the 300 yds. run in 48 seconds.

Some men who can only do one or two pullups and fifteen or twenty pushups, might find it hard to believe that a man high. Getting 401 of a possible 500 points he scored more with one arm than the average individual could with two.

Cpl. Crang's amazing feat can be credited not only to an exceptionally muscular physique, but to his extensive athletic background. While attending Beecher High School, in High, he earned 14 letters: four Football, four Baseball, three Track, and three Basketball, and was voted all-state halfback in 1932 and 1933. The Army recognized his physical prowess by assigning him to Fort Greeley, Alaska as a Ski and Glacier instructor when he enlisted in 1934.

Cpl. Crang was employed by AC Signs Plus Division, of General Motors in Flint, Mich. before entering the army.

Concert Slates Shaw Work

The recorded concert at the main Post Library next Tuesday evening will feature "Great Sacred Choruses" with the Robert Shaw Chorus. Music has been an approved part of divine service for as many years as history has recorded. It is our times this, of course, has been done with particular distinction by the Robert Shaw Chorus.

Included in this collection of sacred choruses is a variety of mood and musical appeal are represented. There is the contagious exuberance of Handel's "Hallelujah" chorus; the exaltation of Haydn's "The Heavens are Telling"; the hushed veneration of Mozart's "Ave Verum"; the earlier "Hallelujah" choruses; the confident and happy faith of Mendelssohn's "He Watching over Berlin"; "Thou Must Leave Thy Lowly Dwellings"; the majesty and brilliance of Gounod's "Sanctus"; and the acknowledgment of the supreme sacrifice so devoutly set forth in Stamer's "God So Loved the World." Each represents an aspect of devotion; all express religious impulses which, at one time or another, must be common to all of us.

Robert Shaw is the conductor and Hugh Porter at the organ. The concert will begin at 8:30 hours.

STC's Warren Paulk Hurls No-Hit Game

BY TOM WIERZICKI

M-Sgt. Warren A. Paulk, brilliant eighteenth pitcher in a line of 18, is starting where he left off last year, winning softball games the hard way by hurling no-hitters.

The 29-year-old sergeant, a veteran of 20 years on the softball diamond, hurled another no-hitter this past week against Co. C, 114 in the Special Troops Command League.

Actually Sgt. Paulk didn't go the full route. His catcher, Ralph Nicklin, took the mound in the final inning. However, Paulk garnered the win.

Paulk has been pitching baseball ever since high school when he led the rubber at Lynn High School in Okla. Fla. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Paulk, live at Live Oak, Fla.

Many No-Hitters have been credited to him, the veteran hurler said, "some around twenty." However, his figure is hardly a real estimate. The modest sergeant often as twice a day. He stands later admitted that he "has been averaging two to three a year since he has been pitching."

Paulk has a variety of pitches, but relies most heavily on a sizzling fastball and a hot, fling knuckler. Last year he recorded a sensational 29-0 record, leading his team to the 1st, championship and the 2nd place in the 3rd Army tournament.

In the 3rd Army tournament, the Benning team won the full route. His catcher, Ralph Nicklin, took the mound in the final inning. However, Paulk garnered the win.

Barefoot Runner Finishes Fourth in Six Mile Race

There was a great deal of excitement through the 24 mile race, his entire body blackened with mud that was successfully run his race in less than 41 minutes, his first in competition. Running forth in a large field, Skutans may not have scored any points for his team, but he captured the trophy of this viewed as a brave the year's worst rain fall.

Novice Skutans was apparently the least of the starters in the six mile event. Neither his well runned legs or his greatly chafed feet seemed less for the wear in the six mile marathon.

Through a skulchert of the season's heaviest precipitation, the 19 year old soldier plodded methodically and with determination. His pace never slackened, he maintained a season as he racked a 194 record.

Aside from Paulk, only one player has returned from last year's post softball champions. Consequently, the defending champions are going to be led for a rough time reorganizing. Like Skutans, Paulk, comments that it is definitely his last year on the mound.

The not getting any younger, he commented, "and one of these years I'm going to have to retire." Skutans is a junior assistant scoutmaster. He frequently liked and lived in the woods with the scouts, and at one period of two weeks, shortly before he enlisted in the US Army. Skutans, lived in the woods by himself surviving on the offerings provided by nature, for food and shelter.

Medical Service Corps to Note 40th Anniversary on May 17

BY JULIA BRUBENKE
Forty years of service, growth and development will be observed by members of the Army's Medical Service Corps here May 18.

Officers of the Medical Service Corps will celebrate the 40th anniversary of their organization with a formal dinner at the Main Officers' Mess May 17.

Special guests attending the affair will include Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, Mrs. T. A. Seely, guest of Gen. and Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Mrs. Cletian, Ala.

Col. Bernard Aabel is chief of the Army's Medical Service Corps. Col. Aabel visited the post last month while on tour of installation in the Third Army area.

Members of the Corps at Benning serve with the Medical Center, 25th Inf. Reg., Medical Hospital, Infantry School, the 37th Medical Detachment, the 54th Medical Group, II, S. Army Hospital, 46th Engineer Bn., Medical Detachment, and the 3rd Div.

Carrying forward the functions of the Sanitary Corps established May 18, 1917, the mission of the Corps today is to provide scientific, technical and administrative support in the care of the sick and wounded and in maintaining the health of the Army.

Established a requirement for officers which the Reserve Corps could not fill.

Accordingly, the first officers candidate school was opened at Camp Barkeley, Calif., Pa., on July 1, 1941. A year later in April, 1942 a second officers candidate school was opened at Camp Barkeley. The first class at Camp Barkeley had 220 enlisted personnel but classes soon expanded to train as many as 1,000 at a time.

In 1947, Public Law 337 established the present Medical Service Corps with its four sections—pharmacy, supply and administration, medical allied sciences, sanitary engineering, and optometry.

The Corps' strength of 1,699 members in 1941 rose to a total of 20,438 officers in 1945. It dropped to a low of 2,546 prior to the Korean conflict but rose again to 5,629 during the height of the Korean struggle. The present 4,100 officers, approximately 800 are Regular Army and 3,300 are National Guardsmen.

Self Inventory

BY CHAPLAIN (Capt.) LYNCOLN H. BARR

The spiritual approach to the problem of alcoholism assumes that man is a spirit and can be strengthened by prayer and to overcome his craving for alcohol.

The most widely known organization in this country has as its special mission the helping of alcoholics is Alcoholics Anonymous. Its method of treatment is described in their "Twelve Steps" program of Recovery.

I have admitted we were powerless over alcohol—that alcohol had become unmanageable.

2. We came to believe that a power greater than ourselves could restore us to sanity.

3. We made a decision to turn our will and lives over to the care of God as we understood Him.

4. We made a searching and fearless moral inventory of ourselves.

5. "I admitted to God, to ourselves, and to another human being the exact nature of our wrongs."

'2-Way Contract' Bill Introduced in House

COMPILED FROM APFS A Defense-sponsored bill, which would authorize "term retention" contracts for Reserve officers, has been introduced in Capitol Hill by Rep. Carl A. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

The measure is a two-year contract and higher "severance" payments for Army and Reserve officers upon release from active duty beyond two years.

Although present law permits "readjustment" or special severance payments for reserve officers under certain conditions of service and release the new proposal would increase such payments to two months basic pay for officers for each year of service up to a maximum of two years pay.

The new allocations have been released to major commanders, and they are expected to be approved because of a greater number of vacancies than previously authorized.

Group Insurance

The Army has authorized 4,888 additional promotions in grades E-4 through E-7 for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1957. The supplementary quotas for reserve officers are: E-4, 1,241; E-5, 1,250; and E-4, 1,812.

The new allocations have been released to major commanders, and they are expected to be approved because of a greater number of vacancies than previously authorized.

1st Aviation Co. Gets First Home Since Activated Two Years Ago

Another "first" for the 1st Aviation Co. moved into its first real "hanger home" since its activation May 21, 1955, this unit, then known as the 1st Aviation Co. has performed its maintenance requirements without facilities organically its own.

The hanger is the newest building on the Lawson Army Air Field site and is the first completed since the Army acquired the establishment from the Air Force.

The building is fully equipped to service the U-1A, largest of the Army fixed wing craft, and has latest facilities to accommodate its maintenance personnel.

This is just another in a long line of "firsts" the 1st Aviation Co. has had in part, it was the first tactical fixed wing aviation company in the Army with its activation in 1955. It was the first tactical fixed wing aviation company to be without, not only a "hanger home", but also without any aircraft. The first Otters did not arrive at Fort Riley, Kans., where the company was activated, until mid-

General Wooten Cited by Pope

Brig. General Sidney C. Wooten, who served as assistant to the deputy commander general at Fort Benning in 1955, now commanding general of the New Jersey Military District and former commander of Kilmorygan Camp, Center for Hungarian refugees, was awarded the Sené Merenti Medal by His Holiness Pope Pius XII, on the occasion of the closing of the refugee camp, Thursday, May 9.

The medal was presented to the general for "humanitarian services" and was bestowed at the request of Cardinal Spellman, The Cardinal and the general met when His Eminence made a day-long visit to Kilmorygan at the height of the refugee resettlement program.

The latest "first" it has achieved was the providing of continuous "battle field illumination" for a period of over three hours in recent test operations at Fort Stewart, Ga. Army aircraft to perform such a mission for such a prolonged period.

The 1st also has claim to one of the "lasts" of the Army. It was the last of the few remaining Army units to use the burro, adopted by the unit as a symbol, as a pack animal, the capability of the aviation company and is a continual reminder of the unit's mission in the Grand Canyon state.

The recovery operations following the crash of two command aircraft in the Grand Canyon in July of last year, costing the lives of 122 persons. When the call for aid was sent out by flight service, Maj. Jerome B. Feldt, commander of the 1st, was one of the first to respond, offering the services of the command to supply and evacuate missions to the disaster area, over 100 flying hours were recorded by Army aircraft in the execution of this recovery and the following investigation.

Twenty-four Army Aviators were decorated for their contributions in this operation. President Eisenhower made presentations personally in Washington, D. C. Maj. Feldt received both the Soldiers' Medal, given for peacetime heroism, and the Commandeering Ribbon, for efficient performance of duty.

Five other aviators from the 1st Aviation Co. also received the Otter award. They were Lt. John E. Ahrens, 1st Lt. Robert A. Hudson, 1st Lt. Kenneth R. Nied, and Capt. Kenneth McCaughey.

The company joined the Lawson Army Air Field Command in December, 1956, and has continued to add to its short but colorful history in the performance of its mission.

The reason for the temporary curtailment is the surprising degree of success of the program so far, according to the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Army Hugh M. Milton. "The number of men recruited under the program so far is far above even the most optimistic estimates," he said.

"Both the Reserve and the National Guard recruitment have soared. The growth of the Reserve component of the Army since January, 1957, has exceeded that of any other similar period in peacetime.

"The strength of the National Guard has risen to 436,000—a net increase of 33,000 men in the past four months. The total unit strength of the Army Reserve has reached an all-time high of approximately 280,000, including a net gain of 22,000 new enlistments since January 1.

"Authorized pay of $111 a month for the National Guard and Reserve for the same date is $56,000. That of the Army Reserve for the same date is $56,000.

"Whereas the number taking advantage of the six-month training program in December, 1956, was 1,823, the allocation for May for both the National Guard and Reserve is more than 12,000 spaces.

NEW HANGAR . . . A "first" always has news potential and this is no different. The 1st Army Aviation Co., the "first" aviation unit of its type in the Army, moves into its first hangar home since its activation in 1955. The new hangar is also the first such building constructed at Lawson Air Field since it came under Army control. Shown by one of the Otters as it is moved into the hangar are Col. Gilmon Huff, commander of LAAFC, Maj. Jerome Feldt, CO, 1st Aviation Co., Maj. Fredrick Franklin, Capt. Charles Drummond and Capt. William Cleveland.

Army to Stop 6 Month Program Until June 30 Due to Overflow

The Army Reserve "six-month program" will be suspended until June 30, 1957, for all except prior servicemen. The six-month program provides that enlistees may serve six months on active duty, followed by five and one-half years in the Ready Reserve.

The reason for the temporary curtailment is the surprising degree of success of the program so far, according to the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Army Hugh M. Milton. "The number of men recruited under the program so far is far above even the most optimistic estimates," he said.

"Both the Reserve and the National Guard recruitment have soared. The growth of the Reserve component of the Army since January, 1957, has exceeded that of any other similar period in peacetime.

"These figures do not include high school students who are deferred or individuals who have enlisted but will not enter training until sometime within 120 days after enlistment.

"Those who have already enlisted and are deferred will, of course, still be accepted under the program, despite the temporary suspension of the program.

"As a result of the influx of such deferred enlistees, the projected "total" man in June is about 26,000—bringing the training load to 64,000 that month.

"Under the current program it is estimated that the training load will reach a peak of nearly 72,000 in training during July, 1957.

"Therefore enlistment objectives for training through the fiscal year 1958 (June 30, 1958) have been substantially achieved in stockpiled enlistments now.

"Therefore, in order to have any appreciable number of spaces for volunteers for the program after July 1, 1957, the program is being temporarily suspended.

At Open House Flyers Demonstrate Aviation Capabilities

Message drops and pick-ups, aerial re-supply—both by fall and by parachute, were laying, vertical development, troop movements by helicopter, and other Army aviation capabilities were demonstrated by members of Lawson Army Air Field Command during the "open house" held at Lawson Army Air Field during the day for the display of Army equipment and various aircraft of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

A large crowd of spectators was present at the field during the day for the display of Army equipment and various aircraft of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Starting with a fly-by of a formation of L-19's trailing colored smoke, the aviation show continued for approximately 90 minutes, during which all of the Army's family of aircraft were taxied before the stands and their characteristics explained to the public.

Here's How Not To Try Fishing

Did you ever stop to think about the different illegal ways of catching fish? For many centuries men of all ages have taken to the muddy, clear, blue, green and some very corrupt water to this area of the South, swamp water, and most people here are black, in quest of our finny friend.

Several tribes of Indians, both in North and South America, devised some very ingenious methods for what should be called harvesting of fish, instead of catching them. These systems were used to feed the members of the tribe, so they weren't considered at all illegal by the Indians.

Times Have Changed As the pages of time have rolled along and man has become the civilized creature of the conservation program, many of these practices have now become quite illegal to say the least.

One of the first ways was by the use of rocks and clubs. Getting situated in shallow water, the Indians would wait till an unsuspecting fish swam leisurely into range, then bang! Next came a method, which is still in use today, called the gill-net. This is a net composed of very small mesh threads woven into a pattern and strung across part or the entirety of a stream.

Almost every fish which hits the net will become entangled as the tiny strands wrap around the head, mainly in the gills, whereas comes the name for the net.

Poison Very Effective Natives of the Amazon region in Brazil employ still today an ageless method of capturing great numbers of fish by use of drugs or poison found in the jungles, which line the banks of the huge river. By surrounding areas and causing the fish to move into a certain portion of the river, the Indians saturate the water with these homemade chemicals. Momentarily stunned by these chemicals, many of which only cause slight effects, the fish can be speared as they lose their power to move.

Modern man has now brought his creative skill into the picture and for finding ways of catching our fish, illegally, he is a master craftsman.

Several popular methods include a variety of skilled maneuvers in order to accomplish the goal—heap fish, without the use of the tangle hook and bait apparatus. One use something most common to all of us called dynamite, another employs generated electricity, while the shotgun can be very effective.

All Proven Methods One of the most successful ways of catching many species of fish, of the most variety, is by use of a telephone cable and a battery. The telephone wire is rolled out into the water and charged by the battery. This creates an electrical current in the water and electrocutes the fish. Many times, this method will not completely kill the fish, but they are stunned so greatly that they cannot remain under the water.

It is a peculiar sight to see this method used. In just a matter of minutes in water, which you may not have been able to see a fish during your entire weekend outing, all sizes and shapes of fish will begin to emerge on the surface.

It seems that some people will always find a method to get around the difficulties in life.

In this case, fishing with the accepted methods, sometimes finds a group of people trying to get away with illegal ways. This breaking of the law is just as bad as robbing a bank, because millions of people in our nation try their luck each year in our streams.

Is a good sport and member of it may give you a lot of trouble, if you get caught pulling one of these fishing stunts.

LEGAL METHOD . . . These are two popular methods used by sportsmen for catching the elusive creatures of the streams. But several other methods employ the use of everything from dynamite to a telephone wire and battery. Catching fish illegally is a menace to our streams of today. The use of the fyrod, left, and spinning outfits in the hands of people, who use these illegal methods for fishing, would show a definite change in the production and stability of angling in our streams.

Look behind the pretty face! Like a future Miss America, a fine time-piece has to have more than a beautiful appearance. After all, a watch is a precision engineering achievement, ticking off 18,000 times an hour, 432,000 times in a single day, 156,000,000 times in a year!

The watch, as a result of the tremendous friction of this remarkable machine, can render a mass-produced watch virtually useless, causing it to lose time or stop altogether. The reason is in the quality of the metal parts and the precision of their machining. For example, a balance screw is so tiny that several thousand can fit into a thimble! For 75 years Zodiac has been custom-making fine watches and through these long years has established a reputation for precision timekeeping that has endeared it to thousands of people throughout the world.

Look for...ask for...Zodiac fine watches at your Exchange. Take advantage of the low PX price of this world famous timepiece!

Dave Cartes Falls Short On 2 World Pistol Marks

1st Lt. David Cartes, an airborne infantryman from Fort Campbell, gave two world records a scare last week at Pensacola, Fla., as he won the 22 Caliber event in the "Fiesta of Five Flags" championship match firing with the Third Army pistol team.

Cartes missed by two points the record held by M.Sgt. Joe Bremer, of West Point, N. Y., as he fired a total of 891 out of a possible 900 points.

Cartes missed a world mark by the margin of two 25, which are smaller rings in the bullseye. He continued to lead the shooters through the Center fire stage of the shooting, but had to yield first place in the aggregate for the three caliber weapons, 22, Center Fire and 45, to 1st Lt. D. C. Miller of the U. S. Army Team.

Other award-winning members of the Third Army Team were Edward M. Szepessy, of the 4th FA Bn., Benning, taking first expert in the 22 caliber timed fire. He was also a member of the Gold Team which took the award for the first expert team in the center fire weapon team match. Capt. Fredric Mill of Fort Campbell, Ky., won third place in the center fire rapid fire match.

Sgt. Ralph Talbot IV, took first expert in the 45 caliber rapid fire, second expert in the 22 caliber timed fire, and was a member of the team which took first expert awards in the three team matches. M.Sgt. Dave Ballington of Fort Campbell, Ky., took first expert in the 22 caliber rapid fire and aggregate, center fire timed fire, rapid fire and aggregate, and was a member of the team which took first expert in the center fire and 45 caliber weapon team matches.

M.Sgt. Samuel B. McClure, also of Fort Campbell, took first expert in the 22 caliber slow fire, National match course, the center fire slow fire and the 45 caliber timed fire matches. He was also a member of the first expert 22 and 45 caliber team.

1st Lt. Rodney Kyle, of the 24 Inf. Div., won second place in the center fire slow fire match. M.Sgt. Gerald E. Jones, of Fort Campbell, placed as first expert in the 45 caliber slow fire and the national match course.

The Third Army Gold Team won first expert award in the team matches with the 22, 45 caliber and center fire weapons, thereby winning the first expert award in the team aggregate.

29th Brigade Sets Sights On Post Meet

The tinheads of the 29th Infantry Brigade will set the mark tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 at Doughboy Stadium in an effort to win the laurels for the Commanders in the Post Meet.

Coach Jim Skaines of the team will look for some stiff competition from teams representing the Third Division. However, Skaines appeared optimistic as he checked over his list of entrants early this week.

The former high school teacher says his all-around star John Strong should gather quite a few points for the number cause. Strong will enter the shot put, discus, javelin, high jump, long-jump and broad jump.

Strong is a big boy with enough stamina to give entries in all of these events a run for their money. He has shown steady improvement in practice sessions.

Domago Padilla, the forty-six year old runner, will be Skaines' choice to take the three and six mile events. One skinner at Doughboy Stadium wonder if Padilla has found the fountain of youth. He has to run his practice heats against the clock as no opponents are available.

Oliver Elders will run the quarter and half mile for the Infantry Brigade. Elders won the quarter in the Post Meet last year.

John Bodwell, Rollie Standford and Jim Ramasse are slated to run the dash events. Ramasse looks like the best bet but he hasn't had much time to prepare for the meet.

Ray Steyn will run the three and one mile events. Joe Paulsen will lose the hammer. Doug Stein will hit the javelin and the hammer. Carlos Cruz is entered in the quarter and half mile races.

WHAT A CURVE... Big John Banard, a member of last year's post baseball team, now pitching with the 29th Inf. Brigade, lets go with his best pitch, an overhand curve ball. John is slated to take the mound against Special Troops time is 2 p.m.

Army Pitcher Spins No-Hitter, Fans 18

FT. LEE, Va. (APFS)—Big Bruce rates his top achievement here, got a little better aim on his major league career in spinning a dazzling 18-strikeout no-hitter in the season's opener.

Facing the previously undefeated Norfolk, Va., NAS Flyers, Bruce faced 30 batters and only three got on base—two walks, hit batsman and an error accounting for the three.

Bob, a $20,000 Detroit Tiger baby, played for Augusta in the Sally League last year. His season was cut short at mid-year by induction but at the time he had a 9 and a record with a nifty 170 E.R.A.

It wasn't the first no-hitter for the baby Tiger, as he checked one in sandlot days.

Sometime ago the exact number of gloves needed were ordered, with a glove for a southpaw in the lot, since there's ALWAYS one southpaw on any team.

The gloves arrived, the team was formed, you guessed it—there's not a lefty on the squad.

Joey Rowans Heavyweight Contender Training With 3rd Div.

DAVID ROTHENBERG Outdoor boxing smokers with the Third Infantry Division's 30th ICC are abounding promising competition and promising prize money and aggressive trainers. However, their number one man with the fists at Fort Benning, Georgia, will be participating in the popular program for the Marine outfit.

Heavyweight Joey Rowans, training with the 6th Infantry Battalion will have to keep his powerful fists idle for a while. A boxer who has been around quite a while, Rowans has entered the ring with such formidable competition as Floyd Patterson, Harold Carter, Willie Pastrano, Bob Satterfield, and Wayne Bertine. But, by law, a professional boxer is not allowed to use his fists unless it is with another box-for-pay man.

The Pennsylvania, Pa., trainee has indicated a talent with his fists and has some set and will fight about the art of fistfights in this day of televisionized boxing.

Rowans has had a career as a top amateur, having taken the Pennsylvania state championship in 1952, losing the national amateur championship in the finals to a corner answering in the name of Floyd Patterson, who subsequently became the amateur and then professional heavyweight boxer in the world.

In June of '52, Rowans became a pro and has had 29 of 44 professional bouts, with 16 KO's to his credit. Many of these have been main events and against the very best competition available in the country today.

With his best boxing weight around 188 lbs., the 23 year old Pennsylvania athlete received thoughtfully about his civilized livelihood. Rowan leads

Socart Slates Mozart Work Next Tuesday

The record concert at the Main Post Library next Tuesday evening will feature Mozart's Quintet for Clarinet and strings in A Major.

The Clarinet Quintet was composed for Stadler and was completed in Vienna in September 1789. The time of its composition was a difficult one for Mozart, but there is no hint of these worries in his work. It is one of the foremost of all Mozart's later instrumental works. Admirably written for the combination of instruments, it exploits to the full the peculiar sonorities of the clarinet which blends with the string quartet to produce some of the most engaging local patterns to be found in the whole corpus of the composer's chamber music.

The new Italian Quartet featuring Antoine de Bavier at Clarinet presents the concert. The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Archeologists Find Pre-Historic Pottery

An explorative excavation of a major archeological find on the reservation has begun under the sponsorship of Dr. A. R. Kelly, head of the Archeological Department of the University of Georgia.

Department of Army approved the excavation request by Dr. Kelly after traces of five cultures, the oldest estimated at more than 4,000 years were accidentally discovered near Hallooa Creek.

The excavation is being performed by both civilian and military personnel who volunteered to work during their off-duty time because of their interest in science.

The university's laboratory of archeology will test and retain the scientific data of the relics which will be returned to the Fort Benning — Columbus (Ga.) area for local exhibition at the Bradley Museum.

The initial digging was started on a 20-foot square site on a tributary of the Ocknee Creek by Lt. Col. Howard A. MacCort, a Sustainment Battalion archeologist, on temporary duty here. SFC Richard Larner, and SFC David W. Chasie.

The excavators reported finding a great quantity of early prehistoric pottery, stone spear points and perhaps most important, an ancient grave belonging to the Swift Creek culture, one of the first to be found in Georgia.

They hope to gain much information about the people who inhabited Georgia thousands of years ago by means of these relics and artifacts obtained through future excavations.

Attempts will be made to obtain charcoal from each period represented in order to date it by the amount of radiocarbon activity in each specimen. This relatively new process has been the initial digging was started on a 20-foot square site on

Date Near For Deadline On ID Cards

Over 3,000 dependents of military personnel who live in this area, but whose sponsors have duty stations at other places, have less than two months to make application for their new uniformed services identification and privilege cards.

The privilege identification cards and the military dependent identification cards are being replaced by the new card (DD Form 1173), effective July 1.

The new card authorizes commissary, post exchange and theatre privileges in addition to medical care. Dependents must have this card in order to take advantage of these facilities.

Instruction sheets for filling out the applications (DD Form 1174) are available at the Reception Office, Building Division, Hq. Commandant Section, USAIC Annex.

Application for the new privilege cards should be instigated by the military sponsor at his unit, by submitting DD Form 1174 through his personnel officer who will verify the complete data of all eligible dependents of records.

The sponsor will then forward DD Form 1174 to his dependents for presentation to the reception office. In addition to the information required on DD Form 1174, the following information will be included under the "remarks" section: name, color of eyes, color of hair, weight and height.

A separate DD Form 1173 will be issued to each eligible dependent 10 years of age or older. Since photographs are required for the new ID card, it is necessary for each dependent 10 years of age or older to be present.

Unmarried widows with eligible dependents must present proof of dependency and status of widow when applying. Widows whose husbands died while on active duty are required to present copy of death certificate and proof that they have not remarried.

Widows whose husbands were retired at time of death are required to show copies of retirement orders and death certificate, together with proof that they have not remarried.

At Graduation Ceremonies

Vietnamese Hear Kunzig

One hundred and twenty-five Republic of Vietnam Army officers were told last week that they were the "backbone of the Vietnamese Army" one of the best in the world.

Col. Henry B. Kunzig, president of the Infantry Board, made this point to graduates of Allied associate company officers class No. 2 at commencement exercises May 16 in the Main Theater.

The class was the first to be graduated from the Republic of Vietnam Military Academy. With the flags of the U. S., Vietnam, and the Infantry School behind him, Col. Kunzig said, "The eyes of the world are on Vietnam and its fight against communism. The Army is the bulwark in this fight. You can be justly proud of your part in this fight."

Col. Kunzig, who served on the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Saigon, Vietnam, told the young officers, "You have established an enviable record here. Do not rest your record, however. There is still work to do in Vietnam. Your Country is depending upon you to do this work."

Queen of Battle

A very important question facing young men these days is military service. For approximately 150,000 men each year, military service means serving two years on active duty with the U. S. Army. There is a period of time in the Army Reserve. What sort of training do these young men receive—what is in store for them when they first enter the Army? The answer is the same for all concerned — basic combat training. This week "Queen of Battle" follows a young inductee through his first 30 days in the Army — provides a candid, basic combat training. "The First 30 Days" — this week on "Queen of Battle" — follows this interesting and informative program Saturday night at 10:30 p.m. over WRBL in Columbus.

Proficiency Pay Plan Called 'Good 1st Step'

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The proficiency system being established for some enlisted grades in the services is a "good first step" toward future military pay adjustments, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has asserted. Cautioning that "big moves" in government cannot be made quickly, Mr. Wilson explained that the Defense Department is working on pay legislation for the next Congress.

The bill (HR-473) seeking to increase pay for term retention contracts for sergeants and other non-commissioned officers introduced in the House by Rep. Carl Albert (D-Ga.) is the first proposal presented under the Defense program.

Mr. Wilson's measure is expected to be considered by the House Armed Services Committee after hearings on a Military Public Works Bill are completed.

The Defense Department agrees with the Civilian Committee legislative recommendations for two additional enlisted grades, E-5 and E-6.

There should be "latitude on top" to award proficiency pay for promotion, but the system being started for grades E-4, E-5 and E-6 under present law is a "good first step."

Meanwhile, Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Ia.) has introduced a bill to amend the House bill to include the pay for sergeants and other non-commissioned officers.

Mr. Van Zandt's proposal is similar to the method of computing base pay for members of the Armed Forces carries the same principle to the pay of the Cordier Committee report as does the Senate bill.

The bill completely exempts sergeants and other non-commissioned officers from the U.S. Army. The foreign army has its own uniforms and compasses for its members, traditions and history.

The Army is the aggressor force in the world, the only one that is developed over a 10 year period to add realism to the training of its members.

The confusion stemmed from the old Red and Blue armies existing in pre-WWII days. Those opposing forces were equipped with the same uniforms, the same vehicles and the same organization tables.

It Figures: Vacation's Coming

Today the Aggressor Center for Security, Ft. Rucker, the aggressor idea started, has a staff of 30 officers and 400 soldiers.

From its uniform factory and storage facilities the center can supply an army of 100,000 with the distinctive green olive drab uniforms and summer sun caps are dyed green, fitted with special buttons and insignia.

Columnist Bids Farewell to Arms

JIM CLARK

They say that it happens to everyone. For awhile I didn't believe that it would even happen to me. But now I am beginning to realize that it is.

I'm being promoted to civilian status.

On June 1 I will say good-bye to the Army and Fort Benning and go off seeking new pastures.

It's a little difficult to realize that two years have gone by since I first arrived at Fort Benning. I will be returning to the field of journalism in New York.

The School Brigade is leaving its share to, as Robert Hall has called it, "high above the Chattanooga school."

And it's been almost eighteen months that I have been associated with the Public Information Office and the Bayonet, and that eighteen month period has been one of the best yet, as far as my professional experience is concerned.

There are, although I am naturally anxious to see what awaits in the civilian world, many friends in the Army. Army people are the finest I have ever known.

But there comes a time in every man's life that he must go out and face the "cold, cruel world," and that time is now mine.

Hal McIntyre Brings Band Here June 5

They say that a band leader's best friend is his recording contract. And Hal McIntyre, whose orchestra will appear in person at the Main Officers' Club on Wednesday, June 5, at 8 p.m., has been knocking out one hit after another.

In the last few years it has been clearly demonstrated that there is no substitute for records in terms of reaching the top of the musical ladder.

McIntyre lost no time in getting on the recording hit parade. His band was just a few months old when RCA Victor signed him. "Commando Serenade" was his first real successful wax effort, and "Sentimental Journey" hit the juke boxes with a crushing effect.

It became the nation's top popular recording.

With a knack of fashioning popular recordings, Cromwell Cobb, a pride and joy, is really hitting the top.

New Dayrooms as Comfortable As Living Rooms in GI's Home

BY JERRY ARMSTRONG
Comfort and atmosphere, complete with modern lounging chairs, murals and the ever popular television sets, are the ingredients of the new "living room" type, newly completed, 32 company dayrooms in the Harmony Church area of Fort Benning.

The honey dayrooms are the result of an idea, originated last year by Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, 3rd Army commander.

Gen. Hickey's idea was to have the company recreational areas similar to the living room of the soldiers' civilian homes.

With this thought in mind, the general put four prototype dayrooms to the test at Fort Bragg, N. C. Illustrating their success, Bragg's original four increased to more than 20.

Campbell was second in the new dayrooms. From there, Benning became the third post within the Army area to benefit from Gen. Hickey's idea.

Since the Fort Bragg experiment, Gen. Hickey has turned ed the project over to Third Army Special Services to coordinate the plan throughout the seven-state Army area.

Pvt. Arthur Johnson, a sergeant, and Carl F. Hawkewessell, members of Third Army Special Services, have given the lack of touring posts within Third Army weekly to check the progress of this new dayroom program.

The new look in dayrooms has many innovations. One of the main features is the partitioning of the old styled one-room affairs. These will have two separate rooms, one of which will be divided again by two-man sofas and modern surfboard coffee tables.

Partitions these areas, which are frequently frequented by thousands of soldiers, will serve many purposes. One, which will be a major concern, is that it will afford maximum activity, but still allow some privacy.

Plans call for the completed dayroom to be similar to a combination den, library, game room and living room.

Entering from the front, the first room is the reading and lounging area. To the side, the writing and refreshment rooms are located. The television room is on the opposite side of the refreshment room which is sectioned from the reading area by a modernistic wrought iron magazine rack.

The four separate rooms are designed to offer a separation of more rigorous activities, like shooting pool from relaxing with the latest copy of Fort Benning's newspaper, "The Bayonet", to watching the dramas of television's "Gunsmoke".

Artistic Design
Another special feature, lending the artist's delicate strokes in creating a modern, relaxed feeling to the rooms, are the three pastel wall colors and attractive murals.

"Beige, rust and light sky blue have been the most popular colors, which are selected by the company commanders for each dayroom," added Pvt. Johnson.

The furniture is also in the same blending style to fully give the rooms a feeling of comfort and modern luxury. Striped, round coffee and surfboard tables, wrought iron chairs, blending leather-bound writing chairs and matching sofas, assorted chairs in the metal-trimmed fabric weave combine for the room's modern scheme.

101st Sends 1200 Men To Benning
Approximately 1200 officers and men of the 1st Battle Group, 506th Infantry of the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky. will arrive at Fort Benning June 5 to support the U. S. Army Reserve and Reserve Officer Training Corps summer training programs.

Commanded by Col. R. M. Minor, personnel of the organization will act as instructors, assistant instructors and demonstration troops, not only in airborne subjects but in basic and advanced infantry techniques as well.

An advanced party of 155 soldiers under the command of Capt. Frank L. Garrison of Lawton, Okla. have been at Fort Benning since last week to coordinate plans with U.S. Army Infantry Center officials.

The majority of the Fort Campbell troops will remain at Benning until mid-September.

FLUORIDATION CLINIC MOVES
The dental Fluoridation Clinic has been moved to Building No. 1003 (Ward A-20) in the hospital area, for the summer months. Parents with children of school age who wish the topical application of fluoride to their children's teeth as a make appointments for treatment by calling FB 3-2724, according to post dental officials.

PLEASANT READING... SP2 Charles N. Brown reads a magazine while lounging on one of the modern couches in the renovated dayrooms in the Harmony Church area. Behind him in one of the five types of modern murals that have been placed in the recreation areas.

Group to be Reorganized
WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Alaska-based elements of the division will continue to be 2nd Inf. Div. are being reorganized as Pentomic battle groups to meet the demands of future warfare, the Army has announced.

The units will be streamlined under the Army's plan for the self-contained, mobile groups smaller than regiments. The reorganization is expected to be completed by June 25. Elements of the 2nd stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., will not be affected.

The reduction in strength will be accomplished by the end of the year through normal attrition, the Army said.

Men Learn Savings Habit

Members of the 498th Engineer Battalion, recent arrivals at Fort Benning in Operation Gyroscope, have learned the savings habit.

Lt. Col. John G. Farmer, the Commanding Officer, has stressed the importance of systematic savings during his monthly Battalion meetings, bringing to the attention of the men the benefits of the interest rates of the savings bonds over that of the commercial banking houses, and pointing out that future benefits might be the ability to further their education or to start civilian life with money to help in establishing a home.

It was noted at the close of the drive on May 3 that 1300 men of the Battalion responded in an outstanding manner.

SUMMER HOURS

Unit Full Of Twins, Brothers

The trainees in question are Privates Eugene and Julian Pragle, from Wayland, New York, and the twins, Alexander and Anthony Datzak, hail from Waterbury, Conn.

The Pragle family is from German and Iroquois Indian heritage, including six sisters and seven brothers, six of which have served in the Armed Forces. The Pragles owned and operated a 300 acre truck farm in Wayland, where all the children were born.

The Merchants Association of Columbus Salutes You On May 30th-Fort Benning Day

On the occasion of Memorial Day, the Merchants Association pays tribute to Fort Benning—The Infantry Center, The Third Division, The Airborne Department—and all of the many supporting units that go to make up our military neighbor. We recognize the importance of the role Fort Benning has played in training personnel for the defense of our nation, and in the present personnel at Benning, we extend our warmest congratulations and best wishes on this day.

We are glad to be a part of a community which can boast of having "The World's Largest Infantry Center" right next door.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION OF COLUMBUS, INC.

For thirty years, Fort Benning has fulfilled its mission of developing and training leaders of the Army's greatest fighting force, the American Infantry. Originally, the Infantry School occupied a site east of Columbus, but it was shortly abandoned in favor of more spacious facilities on the present site of the Main Post.

Subsequently, with each passing threat of our national security, the Infantry School and Fort Benning have proven their value and expansion and enlargement has brought our great military neighbor to its present day pre-eminence both as an integral part of our defense system, and as a vital social and economic factor within our community.

It is today a complex military city with some 60,000 people, including dependents and civilian employees. Its sprawling perimeter includes over 183,000 acres in Georgia and Alabama on which the Infantry Center continues to fulfill its basic mission—instilled by today's modern weapons and advanced methods—the training of U.S. Infantry still unparalleled as "Queen of Battle".

Combat TV A Reality

A television pickup system using an aerial drone has been designed by the Army to aid combat commanders in obtaining immediate ground evaluation.

Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories' scientists say results will be "instantaneous ground evaluation" with broad potentialities. Live TV shots can be made of tactical terrain from the drone and then broadcast to a ground control station.

During the experimental period, the converted L-17 aircraft being used in the system will be flown by a pilot to observe the results of remote control operation. After the initial tests the aircraft will be flown as a pilotless system.

The pilotless system includes an L-17 modified for television photodupe operation, an autopilot and a radio frequency remote control by means of an off-type radio signals, and a ground control station, which can be carried in a jeep.

Upon completion of the drone mission, the ground controller flicks an "approach" switch that automatically positions landing gear.

Hannan's 3 Wins Give DivArty Title

With Bill Hannan leading the way with three firsts, Third Division Artillery captured the U.S. Army Infantry Center Track and Field Meet last Saturday at Doughboy Stadium.

The individual winners in the blue track, eight field and triathlon events will now represent Fort Benning in the 1957 Third Army Championship Meet at Fort Jackson, S. C., May 31-June 1.

Hannan, of Newark, N. J., captured both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 440-yard low hurdles in addition to registering a six-foot-two inch high jump victory.

Two of his victories, the high jump and 440-yard race, were recorded in the final two events of the meet.

Another winner of three events was miler Henry Geller, a former star with Oklahoma A&M College and the New York Athletic Club. Geller's win in the mile yesterday afternoon, two early firsts Friday afternoon in the 880 yard run and the 3-mile event, tied him with Hannan for individual honors.

Arthur Dennis, representing The U.S. Army Infantry School, garnered wins in the 100 and 200 yard dashes. The speedster's times in these two events were 10.4 seconds in the 100 yard run and 22.7 seconds in the 200 dash.

In a grueling six-mile run, 46-year-old Domingo Padilla of the 29th Infantry Brigade edged Charles Tussing of the 15th Infantry Command to win the race by five tenths of a second. His winning time for the marathon run was 38 minutes and 17.5 seconds.

One-Max Show The 29th Infantry Brigade's Johnny Strong virtually proved his name as placed in all seven events he entered. Aside from taking first place in the broad jump and hop, step and jump events Friday, Strong also placed second in the javelin throw and came in third in both the high jump and shotput. He also occupied a fourth place in the discus throw.

The total team points are as follows: Third Division Artillery, 974; 29th Infantry Brigade, Seventh Infantry members in baseball uniforms

BIG WINNERS . . . In the U.S. Army Infantry Center Track and Field Meet last Saturday at Doughboy stadium were: H. Enri Geller, left, and Bill Hannan, Geller, formerly of Oklahoma A&M College, won the mile, 3-mile and half-mile events for the 30th ICC. Hannan's victories were even sweeter as he helped DivArty to cop the team championship, taking firsts in the 120-yr. high hurdles, 440 yr. low hurdles and the high jump.

John Banard Hurls 3-Hitter As 29th Blanks STC, 3-0

The 29th Infantry Brigade rolled to its third straight victory behind the right three-hitter pitching of big John Banard who shut out STC 3-0 last Sunday afternoon at Gowdy Field.

The Commanders scored single tallies in the first, third and fourth innings. Meanwhile Banard limited the STC to three hits, struck out one free pass and struck out nine.

Stranding twelve men, the Brigade missed many scoring opportunities throughout the contest. Banard allowed only three STC men to reach third base as he faced only twenty-nine men during his five performance.

In the first inning, Bill Conditine led off for the Commanders by reaching base on a walk. Pete Vird tossed a wild pitch and Conditine scampered to second. Jack Bryant ers.

Tuesday June 4 Foxes, Braves Here On 'Game of the Day'

Fort Benning's Gowdy Field will play host to the first annual Broadcasting System's airing of a South-Atlantic baseball "Game of the Day" when the Columbus Braves meet the Jacksonville Braves this Tuesday at 1 p.m.

This contest will be a regular season game and will include all the regular features of a major league game. Art Gleason, National's sports announcer, is expected to have some distinguished Fort Benning personnel on his pre-game view.

Immediately following the game, Managers "Skeeter" Newsome of the Foxes and Mickey Owen of Jacksonville will join forces with Gleason in conducting a baseball clinic for some 350 members of the post Youth Activity Club.

Fort Benning personnel, along with civilians of the Columbus-Phoenix City area are invited to attend the game. A 25 cent admission fee will be charged with net proceeds going to Youth Activity organization. Children 12 years old and under, along with YAC members, are admitted free.

Memorial

The honor guard battery of the 29th Provisional Brigade will render "Old Glory" a 21-gun salute as the band plays the national anthem.

TOM WIERZBICKI Baseball's Main Artery Is Hurting

They're trying to cut the main artery of supplying player talent to the big time—the minor leagues.

Who this is doesn't really matter. Some say it's the dilemma of television; others assert it's individual major league general managers. But what really counts is that the minor leagues are slowly dwindling to nothing.

The minors have seen their ranks thinned from a high of 59 leagues and 448 clubs in 1949 to 28 leagues and about 200 clubs this year.

"In 10 years there will be no minors unless we solve the 'minor league problem,'" Branch Rickey, retired general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said recently. "If we're going to continue looking for every nickel we can grab without thinking of the minors, we'll soon be extinct."

Branch Rickey's statement certainly holds a lot of food for thought. And we here at Fort Benning are in a position to pay heed to his words.

Sally Game Here This coming Tuesday the Columbus Foxes and Jacksonville Braves will come out to the post to play a regular Sally league contest.

His name is Arnold Hickson. Owen, to base on him by Bert Shotton because of his similarity to the great Detroit backstop, Mickey Cochrane.

Long Remembered Incident

The Jacksonville manager is not remembered in major league baseball annals because of any outstanding defensive or offensive ability. No, Mickey Owen is better known as the "guy who missed the third strike in the 1941 World Series."

Actually the 1941 series wasn't anything new for the New York Yankees who beat out Boston by a mere 17 games. However, for Brooklyn it was their first big in 21 years and they had a ding-dong battle with St. Louis and beat the Cardinals by only two and one-half games.

Two unusual incidents marked this series. Freddy Fitzsimons had held the Yankees scoreless for seven innings in the third game. However, old Fitz was hit on the knee by a liner in the last play of that frame and was forced to retire. The Yankees went on to win the game and lead in the series, 2 games to 1.

Two Out in Ninth

The other unusual incident found Mickey Owen playing the major part. In the fourth contest, with two out in the ninth inning, the Dodgers were ahead, 4 to 3, and were well on their way to tying up the series. The batter was "Old Reliable," Tommy Henrich. Henrich lived up to his nickname, but it was through no credit on his part, as catcher Mickey Owen missed the ball on a would-be strikeout and Henrich reached first base safely. We need only add here the Yankees went on to stage a four run rally to win, 7-4, and eventually the series.

Call it ironical or whatever you will, but Owen is the same man that set a National League record for most consecutive chances accepted by a catcher without an error (508) from September 22, 1940 to August 29, 1941. And it was approximately one month from that day that Mickey was to make the most costly error of his life: the one they contended lost the World Series.

Jumping Johnny Strong 29th's 'Jim Thorpe' Places in Six Events

The "Jim Thorpe" of the 29th Infantry Brigade is truly Strong. PFC John E. Strong of Cabool, Mo., Co. C is the young man in question.

Last week in the Post Meet a burly, husky athlete was seen hurrying back and forth between the high jump pit and the shotput event. This was Strong who was kept busy competing in these two events simultaneously.

He placed third in the shot and third in the high jump. Despite all his running back and forth, he high jumped 5 feet 11 inches.

But that's only a third of the story. Strong entered six events and placed in every one of them as he amassed a total of 180 points for the 29th Infantry Brigade.

The Honor Guard member won the broad jump and the hop-step-and-jump on Friday. The next day he placed second in the javelin throw. Despite the fact that he never threw a javelin before this year, he missed winning this event by less than an inch. The man who beat him won the event in the Third Army Meet last year.

He had a full schedule on Saturday. In addition to the aforementioned feats, he placed first in the shot and fourth in the discus. This is indeed a fine performance when you consider that he needed a great deal of stamina to compete against the other men who were resting up while he rolled up his points.

Easy going Strong only completed his track and field season in high school. The eight-year-old broad jumper for Cabool High.

Biddy League Baseball Results

Results of last week's action in the post Biddy baseball league saw: Giants 9, Braves 8; Dodgers 4, Cardinals 2; Indians 12, Yankees 6.

The game between the Phillies and Tigers was postponed due to inclement weather. The game will be rescheduled.

Pigeon Racing Domingo Padilla Proves Not Strictly For the Birds

BY DICK SPENCER

Pvt. Ronald Hennigan, a trainer with the 1st Infantry Battalion thinks that pigeon racing is not for the birds alone but provides an interesting as an exciting pastime.

Fans at the Post Track Meet last week were provided a treat as they witnessed the perennial champion, Domingo Padilla, Company I, 29th Infantry Brigade, Third Battle Group win the six mile run and placed second in the three mile race.

The wiry runner is in his twenty-ninth year of running. At the age of forty six, he is an avid pigeon racing enthusiast. Before entering the United States Army, Pvt. Hennigan, an offset-pressman by trade, was the secretary of the Hudson County Pigeon Club.

During the last three years Hennigan won three major trophies in his field. In 1955-56 his racing homing pigeon took first place in the hundred mile race sponsored by the Hudson County Club. His specialty bird was released in Wilmington, Del. returning home to Hoboken flying at a speed of 1200 yards a minute. In 1954 he took first place in the 200 and 250 mile race releasing the birds at Washington, D.C. and Remington, Va. The rate of speed for the first was 1250 yards a minute and the latter went 1400 yards a minute.

PIGEON FANCIER

in his training for the Post Meet, he ran from the 29th out to Hartway Church and back daily. He runs every day of the year.

Track is not the only sport he excels in. As a featherweight, he fought 124 bouts, winning 115, losing ten, drawing seven and fighting two no-contests. He knocked out 83 of his opponents. This is exceptionally hard-hitting for a featherweight. He quit boxing in 1942 at his wife, Ana's request.

The iron man was an outstanding basketball player until he gave up the sport in 1942 to concentrate on track. He admits that track is his favorite sport but he added, "I like all three."

It's a hard job getting the runner to talk about himself. His old friend from Puerto Rico, Sgt. Carlos Gonzalez, helped provide much of the information for this article. Sgt. Gonzalez, who is now in the States, speaks of the deeds of his countryman. After serving in the same company with Padilla in Korea, Sgt. Gonzalez commented, "He does everything the same way. He works very hard to do his best. He's a fine soldier."

It has been difficult to reach the sergeant for an interview because he is always on the move. His most ardent rooter is his devoted wife, Ana, who follows him to every meet to cheer him "home," she is very proud of her husband.

Sgt. Padilla's trade mark is the white banderchief which he ties around his head for protection from the sun. For years track fans in Puerto Rico buzzed with excitement when he made his appearance in his white headress.

Track coach of the 20th Infantry Brigade, Jim Skaines, calls Padilla the finest competitor he's ever seen. "He's a tough man to beat. He gives all he's got," remarked Skaines. The team affectionately refers to the Sergeant as "Pop."

Padilla left Benning Wednesday to represent the Post in the Third Army Meet at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Organized Baseball's Top Hitter Playing With ICC

Baseball's best batter is swinging his lethal weapon these days for the Third Infantry Division's 30th ICC in the Fort Benning Regimental Baseball League.

Private Grover "Deacon" Jones, trainer with the 3d Tank Battalion, and property of the Chicago White Sox, last year boasted the highest batting average in organized baseball by connecting for a 400 mark with Duquesne in the Midwest League.

The 23 year old White Plains, NY slugger, was with the Sox at their spring training camp this year, and was set for his second season in their club with the Class A Colorado Springs team of the Western League. He entered the US Army in early April of '57.

The portside slugger initially began attracting the scouts from the big leagues with his play in American Legion ball. In 1951, Jones batted .409 in a Legion tournament play and standing the award for the outstanding player in Legion ball in the USA, after being the first schoolboy to connect for a homer in Detroit's Briggs Stadium. Jones attended four years at Tulsa College and received a B.S. in physical education. He is currently in the 3d Infantry Division at Fort Benning, Georgia. Last season, as a product of the Chicago White Sox, Jones batted .409 with Duquesne in the Midwest League.

Apparently doesn't end with appearance. In his first few games of Benning baseball, Jones has fielded smartly, displayed that Robinson type of hustle and drive, and attacked the rambunctious pitcher with the same vicious that Jones was a lack of all-trades. The stylish batter has handled the response as much ease as he's played the keystone sack and patroll.

Bearing a remarkable resemblance in the field to former major leaguer Jackie Robinson, Jones remarked that Tony Kubek as the finest player he has ever seen. Jones commented frequently about the similarity between the two athletes. The comparison in the Third I league.

Former All-State Back Performs as TSB SSO

From university football star on ground gained in '53. He was nominated to the All-American football team and the All-Mountain and Plains team in '54, and participated in the All-Star Sallid Bowl game at Tuscon, Arizona, a benefit game for polio victims.

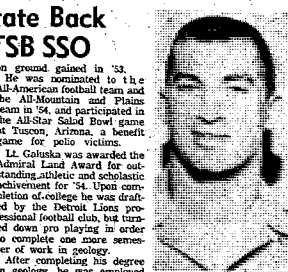

Lt. Galuska started his athletic career while a student at Arcadia High School, Arcadia, Wisconsin, where he lettered in four sports and made All-State football in '50. His other sports were baseball for three years as third baseman, basketball two years as a guard, and track for one year throwing the discus and broad jumping.

Upon graduation from high school, Lt. Galuska enrolled in the University of Wyoming. He lettered four years in football at fullback, made All-Conference in '53 and '54, holds the record for fullbacks.

After completing his degree in geology, he was employed by the Curtier Oil Company, Billings, Montana, as a petroleum engineer for six months performing surface and subsurface geology. Including the completion of five oil wells in Montana.

Asked his plans for the future, Lt. Galuska says "I'll go back to my engineering work. I thought of playing pro football, but have decided against it. Petroleum engineering is a most interesting profession. I'll make it my life's work."

Lt. Galuska is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Egan P. Galuska of Arcadia, Wisconsin.

Brooklyn's Carmelo Costa Fifth Ranking Featherweight Contender Takes Basic Here

DAVE RÖTHERBERG Since 13 years of age, when he began his basic training with the 1st Infantry Division, Carmelo Costa, the world-class featherweight has worked with former ringman Germy Salica. Salica handled Costa through P.A.I. competition and into the Golden Gloves championship in New York and Chicago.

Turned Pro at 15 with Salica as his trainer and manager, young Costa turned pro at the age of 18, and began a brilliant and exciting career, winning 30 of 41 bouts, with 8 draws included. He's been in ring combat with some of the best including Berrios, the Chestnut, a.o. Gene Smith. In the current ring season, the ring gathering for the crown held by Sanny Sad, Costa picks, with some hesitation, top-rated Cherrill

Costa to whip Kid Bassey. Costa recently succumbed to Berrios in a split decision 12-round as part of the tournament. Bassey trounced Berrios and moves on to Hamia for the big one.

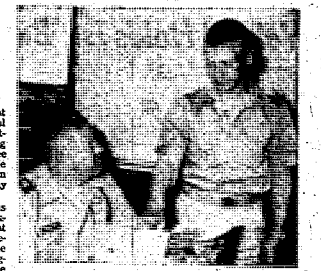

Of the sport in which he makes his living, Costa feels that it is a game which is clean, and marred by a few who make it hard for all. "I hurt the gate," he commented on another provocative aspect of boxing, "but it has made many new boxing fans. Many people sit home, drink some beer, and enjoy a sport which they never knew before."

Favorite Boxes: As a youngster, Costa's favorite man with the fists was Willie Pep, himself a featherweight. Costa picks, with some hesitation, top-rated Cherrill

Atomic Sub Is Launched On East Coast

GROTON, Conn. (APPS)—The world's first fleet type atomic submarine, the Skate, was launched here recently. The Skate, which is designated SSN-591, is the first of the third atom sub to join the Navy. The other two are the Nautilus and the Seawolf. Navy Undersecretary William B. Franke, principal speaker at the launching, said the Skate's significance lay in the fact that it was no longer considered a midget as was the larger Nautilus. The Skate displaces 2,300 tons and is 285 feet long in comparison to the 3,200-ton Nautilus and Seawolf which are about 325 feet long.

Two previous submarines have borne the name Skate. The Skate #34 was in a tragic end off Honolulu harbor in 1915 when it failed to resurface after a peccolite dive.

The WWII Skate-302 sank 10 Japanese subs and later was used as a target during the Bikini A-bomb tests.

The pressurized, water-cooled atomic reactor, which will power the new Skate, the SSN 591, still is under construction in Pittsburgh.

Thank You for Continuing that affords the reservation price of the purchase which was $4,235.93. With a program so successful as to net profits of such quantity, it was little wonder this post was selected as the ideal woodland management program. Necessary Space Another thing which makes the post's program ideal for display can be seen in the complexity of it by means of a staggering theoretical statement. It has been estimated that if every problem conducted by the U. S. Army Infantry School was carried on simultaneously, in separate areas, it would take 10,000,000 acres to provide the necessary space. "When you have as many activities being conducted just The Infantry School alone, it can readily be seen that Fort Benning's woodland management problem is quite a bit more complex than meets the average person's eye," concluded Mr. Force.

Ex-PW's Meet in Reunion Here

Twelve years later and a half a world away, a story that began in a German prison camp in 1945 came to a happy ending during the recent Joint Civilian Orientation Conference of Fort Benning.

Two officers, who were cell mates at the staid near Hammelbory, Germany, suddenly recognized each other during a crowded reception given for those attending the May 8 to 11 conference. They are Gilman A. Huff of Greenville, S.C., and Lt. Col. William H. Saunders of Lexington, Ky.

He also saw action in the First Cavalry Division. The last he been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and the Purple Heart for heroism in combat.

Col. Saunders, who is assigned to Second Army headquarters at Fort Meade, Md., was assigned to the Ninth Armed Division as a battalion executive officer during World War II. He is the recipient of the Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

Col. Huff was commissioned in the Army in 1941 at Fort Jackson, S.C. He served with the 7th Infantry Division in Europe from March, 1944, until his capture the following year.

Helicopter Class Starts

The first maintenance course on the H-34 helicopter given by the Sikorsky Helicopter Company began this week at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Air Field.

Twenty-six specially selected "dents" began three weeks of training designed to give them an up-to-date technical background on the aircraft that is one of the backbone of Army aviation.

The course was not instituted for novices but for Fort Benning maintenance officers, enlisted men and civilian employees with at least three or four months experience working with the helicopter.

Unit Finds Night Work Interesting

Since October of last year, the 3rd Combat Aviation Co. has been running a continuous night maintenance program. SFC James McLain, aircraft maintenance supervisor and his assistant, SFC Milton Lee, experimented for two weeks with the idea and it proved successful.

The supervisors are presently running the shift from 6 p.m. to midnight. This shift is comprised of a crew of seven men: three fixed wing mechanics, three rotary wing mechanics and an electrician. Also, one night maintenance officer and an NCO are scheduled for supervisory reasons.

SFC Laramillard, the assistant supervisor, stated that the overall morale of the section has improved because of this comparatively new program. The men have one week of night duty and one week of day duty. This enables them to have more daylight hours, periodically, for relaxation and recreation.

Also, the men find it much cooler in the evenings to work on their aircraft. There is also less noise and activity around the hangar in the evenings.

The two shifts presently in operation have SFCs Laurence Frank and Cleatus Taylor in charge.

Moss Gets Gold Bars At Hospital

Sgt. James A. Moss, Jr. of Decatur, Ga., assigned to the U.S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning, received his commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army Reserve May 22.

He is to report for active duty as an officer June 4 and will be assigned to the Army Medical Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Presenting his gold bars at a gathering of hospital personnel was Col. Albert H. Robinson of Hope, Ark., hospital commander.

Moss, who attended Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala., and was graduated from the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga. in 1955, entered the Army in October, 1956. After completing his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., he was assigned to Fort Benning's 54th Medical Group from December, 1956 to March, 1957.

He is married to the former Ann Fuller of Decatur, Ga.

Unit Plans Festivities For 9th Anniversary

The 499th Engineer Bn. will celebrate its ninth birthday June 1, highlighted by a special invitation to parents, guests and friends of its members to share in the anniversary festivities.

The 499th, located in the Hartman Church area, will set aside all training activities to devote the day to competition in sports and engineer events. The battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. John G. Farmer, was assigned to the 15th Engineer Group in February. The parent unit of the battalion, the 56th Engineer Shore Regt., was activated in September, 1942, at Camp Edwards, Mass.

It was redesignated the 540th Engineer Combat Regt., the following October. The unit was awarded battle streamers with Arrowheads for Algeria-French Morocco, Naples-Foggia, Sicily, Anzio and Southern France. It also has streamers for Italy, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Alsace, and a Central Europe Europe. Its wartime service included the regime's deactivation. The 1st Serv. Co. was redesignated the 283rd Engineer Central Postal Directory and was assigned to the Organized Reserve Corps. In June 1948, the unit was redesignated the 499th Engineer Combat Bn., its present designation, at Council Bluffs, Ia. In 1954, the battalion was withdrawn from the Organized Reserve Corps and assigned to the Regular Army.

In January, 1955, the 1600th Engineer Bn., then in Karlsruhe, Germany, with the members of Rhine River coastal, was redesignated the 499th Engineer Bn. (Combat).

At that time, the mighty Rhine was overflowing its banks, forcing civilians to flee their homes seeking higher ground. The battalion came to their rescue providing water supply teams, cranes to hoist cattle to the safety of farm buildings, second stories, and transportation to safe areas.

Tragedy struck the battalion Aug. 11, 1955, when the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Frank Little, and a company commander, Capt. Gerard Martin, with 55 members of their command, died during a training exercise in which two C-119 flying boxcars collided in mid-air over the Black Forest of Germany. All aboard died instantly.

The Camera Corner

Lens Are Important in Taking Pictures Which Have Purpose

By Sgt. George Katsarides
 In general terms, camera lenses are made of good quality, highly polished glass, crystal or, in some cases, plastic. With this highly polished surface, reflecting light waves are bent (refracted) through the optic or "diverted" or "inverted" to the plane of the film.

Camera lens have a speed determined by the opening (aperture). The lens are set in place a varying distance away from the film. This distance, determined by the film size and the diameter of the optic, is called the "focal length." The lens are also given a series of "stops," ranging from the large to the small. They are numbered, in most cases, from 2.5 to 16.

Most lenses today are coated with a special dye for color correction and light refraction. The density and quality of course, being dependent upon the cost of the camera.

Several figures For example, looking at a camera lens except those in a box camera, a person can see the figures 1:2.8, 1:3.5, or 1:4.5, etc. The first number is the density coating and correction of the lens. The next two numbers are the speed rating of the lens and the largest aperture for that particular optic.

The "stops" on the lens' mount generally are about the same in all cameras, as far as number of stops, and numbered sequences. A 2.5, 3.5, 4.5, 5.6, 8, 11, 16. Not all camera start with a 2.5 f-stop, however, since the faster the lens operated, the lower a number it will have.

A person must know the "why's" and the distance between lens and film in order to shoot effective pictures. There are six basic types of lens; namely, the double convex, the single convex, the versing concavo-convex, the double concave, the single concave, and the plano concave.

Coverage Light Waves The first three, the convex type lens, operate so that when waves of light pass through them, they converge in a series of waves, and bring them together at a short distance past the center of the optic. The concave type lens on the other hand, divert, or spread the waves of light as they pass through, and thus, there is no point of focus.

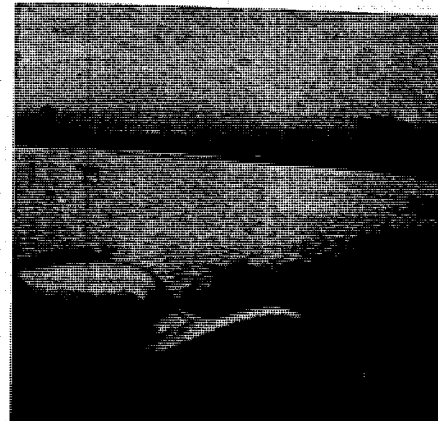

Except for a simple box camera, which has either a double convex, or a single convex, cameras use a compound of several different types used in the same lens.

Stamped on the lens mount are several different types of some cameras is the word "Amatighat," and usually has two or more lens in one combination. Some of the "Stano" and twin lens reflex cameras have as many as five, six, or seven lens mounted to give a highly accurate stigmatic lens.

The millimeter of a lens is the distance between the optic and the film. There are about 25mm to the inch, thus, if your camera has a 25 mm lens, it is located approximately 1 1/2 inches from the film. As a rule, for 25 mm cameras, the larger the area you will be in focus in front and just behind your subject. This is done automatically when you focus. You automatically when you focus. You automatically when you focus.

Distance in feet, to the point of focus also plays an important part. The greater the distance from you to your subject, the larger the area you will be in focus upon. The smaller the aperture, the more that you can bring into the range of focus.

Wood and Workshop Receives High Praise

Fort Benning, playing host to the first national-wide Woodland Management Workshop last week, was given high praise by the group of approximately 75 leading forestry representatives from government and military departments who attended the week-long event.

Using its vast reservation of approximately 122,000 acres as something of a model "greenhouse," Fort Benning's woodland management program was completely reviewed in all phases by the group.

This workshop was a result of almost two years of work and planning by Third U. S. Army headquarters in Fort MePherson, Ga. The purpose was to show how a woodland program can be operated on a military reservation, gaining a net profit, without hindrance of normal everyday activities.

"We tried by means of classroom activities and discussions, plus practical demonstrations and the proper use of the latest types of management equipment, to depict how Fort Benning's forestry program operates," said Norman Force, of Columbus, Ga., U. S. Army Infantry Center forester.

W. R. Beaman, Third Army forester, commented, "We hope that this workshop will be something of a seed, from which will germinate other programs throughout the nation's military reservations."

One point brought out in an address to the group by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of The U. S. Army Infantry Center, gave them a tangible example of what a well planned forestry management program can produce in profits.

So the result of sales from forestry products, the total cost of the reservation has been offset by profits. The purchase cost of the reservation was $4,338,983.

Several other special features of the workshop included a control burning program, fire fighting equipment display, a tour of the post's lumber yard and a demonstration of some of the latest types of management equipment.

Special guests were Frank Rutz, chief of the Buildings and Grounds Division, Maintenance Directorate, Office of the Secretary of Defense; Col. Louis J. Ferry, Office of the Army Chief of Engineers; Cyril Webster, forester, Land Management Branch, Buildings and Grounds Division, Engineers Office, and Edwin T. Johnson, Third Army fish and game management director.

25th Div. Plans To Hold Reunion

Fort Benning veterans of the 29th Infantry Division have been invited to a friend of the eighth annual reunion of the division association at the State Hotel in New York City July 21-22.
The Tropic Lightning Division served with distinction in World War II at Pearl Harbor, Guadalcanal, New Georgia, the Philippines and in the Korean conflict.
Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, U.S. Army Infantry Center commanding general, commanded the 29th Division in Hawaii from October, 1954, until April, 1956.

Gen. Ruggles Gives Graduation Address

BY MILICENT SCUDDER
Advising 108 eighth graders of the Fort Benning Children's Schools against pursuing "peace so rapid you neglect to take time out to think, analyze and prepare your life," Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, spoke at graduation ceremonies in Faith School June 3.
The speaker pointed out that such a course would lead to a life that is "floating, hectic and tragically devoid of personal expectations."
"You are beginning to assume the obligations, responsibilities and opportunities of an adult. You are emerging from the stage of basic learning to a high school level where there is a selection of courses to be made. Success depends to a large extent on the ability to choose the right channels in life," Gen. Ruggles said.
"It is essential to reason out the course of study you should pursue in high school. To stand up a field for which you are ideally suited," he added.
"Your ability to cope with strange new problems by analyzing them and your own resources are your basic foundations were

Post Hosts Big Match

All-Army Rifle and Pistol Titles Will Be at Stake

BY JERRY ARMSTRONG

More than 750 rifle and pistolmen from every major Army command in the U.S. and overseas will open fire June 10-20 during the 1957 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championships at Fort Benning.

The "cream" of the Army's marksmen today will be on display demonstrating the key to the success of the military shooting program—top shooters as instructors.
McAndrews and Fiske rifle and the Fort Benning Pistol Club ranges will be utilized to accommodate the throngs of shooters. The firing on the two rifle ranges will see the same matches being shot simultaneously to insure every event is completed on schedule.

Eight Day Event
Several innovations this year will be used to further give the eight days of actual firing competition even more color and audience appeal.

For the first time in many years, the marksmen matches will be resumed, both on an individual and team basis. These events follow almost directly the new trend of Army marksmanship training.

Trainers, which is the newest method now in operation for teaching marksmanship under simulated battlefield conditions, emphasized the use of fire distribution and silhouette targets, resembling the shape of a man.

During the marksmen matches, the individual is given 25 rounds of ammunition at which to fire at a target in a time limit of 30 seconds at distances of 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards. He must use his ability to hit

Competition is divided into two classes, professional and amateur. The professional class will be for persons who have completed civilian or military formalized courses of training in photography; worked as photographers or photographic technicians.

Persons who have previously won place awards in the All-Army or Inter-Service Photography Contest will have to compete in the professional class.

Amateur class contestants will comprise personnel whose personal whose photographic activities have consistently will return to the States for 31 months and then return to another overseas station. The 3rd Division will also be reorganized shortly under the new "Pentagon" concept.

'Copter Proves Success In Medical Evacuation

The helicopter is fastly proving itself in a wide range of military activities and missions, but one that has been long accepted and proven is that of medical evacuation. This is the mission of one of the units assigned to the Lawson USA Air Field Command, the 37th Medical Detachment (Helpt) (Amb).

The detachment, equipped with H-19 helicopters, is assigned the mission of medical evacuation, search and other type relief ministrations and occasional administrative duties for the Infantry Center.

Members of this unit have flown missions over the entire Southeastern United States in the transportation of injured sick military and civilian personnel.

Each pilot of the 37th is not only well qualified in the aircraft he has to operate, but is also technically prepared to administer whatever emergency treatment might be needed to save the life of one of his passengers.

Merely Minutes
As an example of the frequency of their missions during the recent "King Cole" exercises in Louisiana, the 37th was dispatched to that State to perform such "mercy missions" as might be necessary to support the operation.

During the later part of March and up till the 23rd of April, a total of 20 patients were transported in the helicopters to various Field Evacuation Hospitals at the Station Hospital at Fort Polk.

In addition to these emergency evacuations, the 37th also performed over 200 missions of the wide spread medical installations and exchanging in the transportation of the Station Hospital at Fort Polk.

Transport Injured
Since the return of the unit from Louisiana, they have flown four evacuation missions to Georgia, Alabama, and Florida. Many of the runs they are called on to make are to return injured servicemen stationed at Benning to the Post Hospital following traffic accidents at distant points surrounding the Fort.

All evacuation missions are received through the Post Evacuation Officer, who is assigned to the Station Hospital here. Within minutes after receiving the mission one of the H-19's on its way to the scene.

Upon returning to the Fort, the pilot contacts Base Operations in a few minutes.

HONOR GRAD . . .
Honor graduate of cooking class No. 37 at the Third U.S. Army Food Service School at Fort Benning was PFC Robert J. Wren of Williams town, N. J. PFC Wren, who has served 15 months in the Army, will now return to his unit, the 228th Armored Field Artillery at Camden, N. J. The class was graduated May 24.

Often only a few minutes elapse between the time injury until the patient is lying in the ward at the hospital due to the rapid evacuation by helicopter.

Chaplain

Thank you for continuing the community for its religious program.

In 1956 two chapels were completely renovated with three others in the completion stages now. A modern regimental chapel was built last year at the 29th Regimental Combat Team area. Progress in providing the post with facilities is continuing and growing.

In addition to routine duties as chaplain of one of the world's largest Army posts, Chaplain Conpton has been particularly active in additional community organizations including the school board and Parent-Teacher Association at Fort Benning and the Army Services YMCA, Kiwanis, and the Citizens Military Council in Columbus, Ga.

At the May meeting of the Citizens Council he was cited for his outstanding leadership in furthering the scope of the pulp exchange program resulting in an even greater degree of understanding between the civilian and military communities.

A graduate of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J. and New Brunswick Theological Seminary, the chaplain was ordained by the Reform Church in America in 1934. After serving parishes in Middletown, N. J., and Alexandria, Va., he entered the Regular Army in 1938. He is one of two chaplains now serving who has never held a Reserve commission.

Chaplain Conpton is a 1946 graduate of the Command and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and a 1955 graduate of the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. In 1948, he was assigned as chief of the Planning and Operations Division, Office of the Chief of Chaplains, Washington, D. C. He has served in Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, and became IX Corps chaplain in Korea; later being named Eighth Army Chaplain from 1961 to 1963 he served 29th Army chaplain in Chicago, Ill.

Chaplain and Mrs. Conpton, the former Edna Kullthaus, have two children, Mary Anne, 9, and Susan, 6, 3 years.

MATCHES
Thank you for continuing the target just rapidly to gain a high score.

The team marksmen event with six riflemen plus a coach and a captain are given 304 rounds at which to fire at eight targets with the same length of time can be directly associated with the task of meeting an enemy in combat.

Another added attraction in order to increase the volume of Army shooters this year a new regulation has been put into effect by U. S. Continental Army Command.

This rule states that beginning this year at least half of the firing members of each command team will be composed of individuals who have never before fired as competitors of any kind in the marksmen event in the past All-Army event.

Flight Standardization Program To Test Proficiency of Pilots

There's the right and the wrong way to do everything, and that includes flying. Insurance for all the pilots in the Lawson USA Airfield Command are proficient in all the maneuvers and they perform them in a standard manner is the object of the Flight Standardization Program carried on by this Command.

Each newly assigned pilot is scheduled in this week long course consisting of some 21 flying hours plus check ride to complete the program.

It provides training for the fixed wing aviator assigned to the Command, enabling him to maintain his proficiency, and standardize the techniques he employs. All the conditions to his ability to perform his missions safely and efficiently.

The same course is required for the brand new graduate from the Aviator Center at Fort Rucker, and the "old pro" of several years flying experience. Each is subjected to a review of the fundamentals of flight and the necessary habits of muscular coordination in control of the aircraft.

Some of the basic fundamental techniques that are reviewed are the techniques of normal take-offs, landings, level turns, climbing, steep, stalling, slow flight and similar exercises.

Two special techniques receiving emphasis during the week of instruction are maximum performance take offs and landings over a barrier. These two are among the most important the Army Aviator must master since so much of the tactical work is out of short, unimproved, forward fields.

Cross wind landings and road strip technique are also given special attention. All these maneuvers contribute substantially to the development of the pilot's judgment of speed and the effect of winds on lift aircraft.

Each instructor is assigned two students which he teaches during the 21 hours on these essential operating procedures. The close personal association between instructor and student allows sufficient flexibility in the program to advance the student as soon as he demonstrates his ability to master each phase of the instruction.

The flight safety record of this Command testifies to the effectiveness of this course. Capt. James F. Fletcher, officer in charge of the program, said, "especially in this time in the case of our new graduate pilots from flight school."

Instructors in the school are Lt. Ernest W. Ryan, Lt. William E. McHenry, and Lt. Alan F. Sweeney, all of whom say they themselves benefit almost as much as the student each time they take a man through the course.

The low-level cross-country flights included in the course schedule brought comments from several of the personnel during the four hours allowed for this type flying is valuable for the pilot's ability to fill his role in the Army today.

Other phases that received favorable comment from students and former students of the program were, the barrier work, cross wind landings and the vision of up-coming terrain features is extremely limited.

Young men throughout the United States are given the opportunity to enlist in the Army's Arts and Crafts Program, will be open to all new recruits and they will have been on active duty for at least 90 days.

Entry in the contest must be made on an official blank in four copies to The Infantry Center Special Services Office prior to the contest.

Competitions will be conducted in the following events: gun models, free flight and control line speed; jet models, outdoor hand-launched gliders, control line precision acrobatics, flying scale and combat models.

CO of Lawson Command, who often gives the final check ride to the students finishing the course, commented that this program not only makes a safer pilot, but produces one more cognizant of his aircraft, its capabilities and limitations when properly handled, and the art of proper flying.

Importance of Education

Education has always been an important stone in the foundation of a strong civilization. This has been recognized since the beginning of time.

The United States Army realizes the importance of education for the soldier. As the Army cognizes the need for men who are capable of handling the complicated machinery needed to make our Army formidable in war.

To meet the problem, the Army has enlarged the education program in order to give the soldier the education needed to use the tools of war.

An Army can have the finest equipment and weapons available but there still is one thing that we call "Yankee-Ingenuity." Lacking this quality, would render the best equipment useless. A fighting man must possess education and weapons to be a winner.

BE WISE and use the USAFI program. You will be able to carry out the duties of a soldier better. Thus, be a winner on yourself and make our Nation stronger and set an example for the free world.

Washington Report

New Allowances OK'd In Overseas Areas

WASHINGTON (APPS)—New and revised allowances to cover extra expense incurred by servicemen on assignment in 39 overseas areas have been approved by the Joint Personnel and Transportation Allowance Committee.

The new allowances will be payable to members of the Armed Forces, Coast Guard, Coast and Public Health Service assigned to foreign posts where living expenses are appreciably higher than in the U.S.

The present Overseas Station Allowance provisions also have been completely revised by the committee for the purpose of clarity. The additional payments provided are in no way related to the Family Separation Allowance ruled out late last year for servicemen with dependents by the Comptroller General.

A new endorsement called the Interim Housing Allowance is designed to help defray the cost of temporary family housing before travel facilities become available.

In such cases the quarters allowance, ranging up to about $8 a day will be paid.

The new provisions also authorize previously the JTR for the first 90 days after arrival at a new duty station in an amount equal to the travel allowance.

The revamped provision increases this period to 60 days and permits payment of 100 per cent of the per diem allowance for a single serviceman and 75 per cent for dependents accompanied by a family.

Commissary Hours

A three month trial period of extending sales Thursday will start at the post commissary store.

Queen of Battle

The U. S. Army is well known for its efficient manner of accomplishing every given task. Instantaneous obedience to orders is a traditional virtue born of confidence and trust in their leaders is one of the most valuable assets.

This has not always been true, however when our country was first born, our Army was sadly lacking in experienced military leaders. These first soldiers were untried, daring men who would lay down their life in an instant for the freedom they were seeking, but they needed drill and discipline to form a unit that was fighting until the very end.

On Sunday over WDAK at 12:45 p.m., the Third Infantry Center Information Section presents "Pass In Review."

Faith Necessary

BY CHAPLAIN E. HARTLE
 RALPH E. BISSLET

It seems that human nature invariably finds itself in search for a sense of personal well-being. We seek a vocation in life which appears to be stable and which offers many opportunities for advancement.

History has shown through its many pages of repetition that "man cannot live by bread alone." He needs a faith in life that will give him courage in his failures, hope in his despair and strength to overcome his weaknesses.

Engineer Corps Will Celebrate 182nd Anniversary

BY WILLIAM BOWLES

At the onset of the Revolutionary War the need was foreseen for military engineers who had knowledge of the construction, attack, and defense of fortified places. There were relatively few individuals in the colonies with engineering skill or talents, and it was important that they be appointed as engineer officers for the Continental Army. On June 16, 1775, the Continental Congress passed a resolution providing for one Chief Engineer of the Grand Army, with two assistants; and thus, June 16th has become the Anniversary Day for the Corps of Engineers.

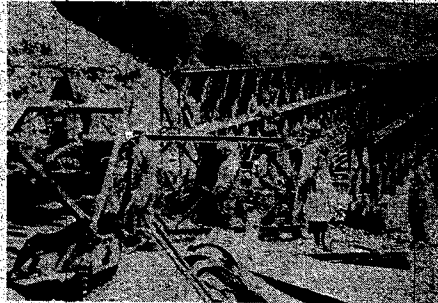

A week after General Washington assumed command he wrote to Congress to complain about the lack of engineering qualifications and the shortage of engineers in the Army. In answer, on December 27, 1776, Congress passed a resolution authorizing General Washington to organize a Corps of Engineers. Even at this early date in the history of our United States, the urgent need for such an organized corps was becoming self-evident in the minds of our nation's leaders. The first mission of the Corps of Engineers of increasing the combat power of the field forces by works of construction and destruction since that time has been expanded to include the construction of air bases for the Air Force and the furnishing of engineer services and supply for the field forces and the Air Force. In addition the Corps of Engineers, since 1924, when it was the only engineering agency available to our National Government, has had responsibility for civil works construction required for navigation and flood control measures needed for our expanding country. This organization of the Corps of Engineers for river and harbor construction also undertakes contract construction for the Army and Air Force, provides an organization for construction in being with an intimate knowledge of the civilian construction contractors for civil emergencies such as floods and hurricanes, and for war-time expansion of armed forces facilities, and gives peacetime training in large scale operations which has developed such outstanding leaders as Robert E. Lee, Douglas MacArthur, Goodrich, Somerville, Groves, Lucius Clay, William Hoge, Bruce Clark, and many others.

Organized Corps
At the time of the adoption of our present constitution, the Congress passed an act in 1784 providing for the organization of a corps of artilleryists and engineers for a term of three years. An act of March 16, 1802, separated the Artilleryists and Engineers and our present Corps of Engineers was organized and given responsibility for the newly established Military Academy at West Point. This was our nation's first engineering school, remained under the leadership of the Corps of Engineers until July 15, 1808, when it was passed to the Army at large.

Engineer Officers gained distinction wherever distinction was to be gained during the War of 1812. After the close of the war, the first engineer company, composed of 71 Regular Army men, was organized as the parent organization for the 1st Engineer Battalion (Company) of the First Division, the oldest Engineer Organization in the U. S. Army). When the War with Mexico broke out this company was sent into immediate action and performed magnificently in combat as well as in building roads needed in the campaign leading to the capture of Mexico City. In this war, many engineer officers gained experience which prepared them for leadership in the Civil War. Among these outstanding engineers was General Robert E. Lee who later led eight other engineer officers who became Generals in the Confederate Army while thirty-three former engineers became Generals in the Union Army, including eight Army and ten Corps Commanders. Possibly the major contribution of the Corps of Engineers in this war was the building of pontoon bridges and railroads, although the engineers on the battlefield, you can rest assured, did their part as usual.

In the war with Spain in 1898, the engineers were employed along the coast to protect the most important harbors and they also rendered services in road building, construction of temporary bridges, repairs on railroad bridges, and the preparation of maps in Cuba and the Philippine Islands.

Many Tasks
During World War I the Corps of Engineers had an outstanding record. When we think about it, we are amazed at the magnificent job that was done in a few short months in the United States and France in preparing landing facilities, building training camps, building hospitals, and building roads for handling of the troops, to name a few of the projects. The Combat Engineers played a dramatic role in various battles of this campaign. Their combat skill and ability to build and maintain roads and bridges under heavy fire and bombardment confounded the enemy needed for our Army and Air Force. One of the most outstanding non-combat accomplishments for the Corps of Engineers was the 1,600 mile Alcan Highway. Against rugged obstacles of weather, mud, musker swamps, and other difficulties, engineer soldiers completed the project ahead of schedule. Outstanding activities of the engineers in combat areas included the road, bridge, and mine clearing tasks required in the conquest of Meikong Valley, the work of the Engineer Special Brigades, which were the first troops to land on enemy soil at Normandy, the construction of the Ledo and Burma Roads, the laying of pipelines, and the splendid work of the Engineer Engineers all over the world. The Aviation Engineers constructed more than 200 runways from Australia to Okinawa from February 15, 1943 and August 15, 1945, and reconstructed 119 airfields in Western France from D-Day to November 15, 1944.

Ranks Increased
During World War II the personnel strength of the Corps of Engineers reached 700,000 officers and enlisted men, with a greater percentage of these serving overseas than any other branch of the service. In some areas of the Pacific there were more engineers than personnel in any other branch in order to provide for the lack of roads, ports, airfields, and other facilities. The advance element of the Corps of Engineers became the fastest growing of the Army's services. In the first 18-month period engineer units increased 200 per cent in building the engineer support

ment confounded the enemy and cut the length of the war considerably. World War II brought an unprecedented expansion to the Corps of Engineers. As in World War I, the engineers were again the advance element of operation, however, on a much broader scale. At this time the Corps of Engineers became the fastest growing of the Army's services. In the first 18-month period engineer units increased 200 per cent in building the engineer support

It will be months and years before the complete history of the Korean conflict will be written, but when this job is done the Corps of Engineers undoubtedly will be credited with playing a courageous role of first importance in the fighting. ## Military Investment Club Selects 1957 Officers

Over 100 members of the Military Investment Club, recently elected new officers for the coming year.

New president for the club will be Capt. Robert Arter of Massillon, Ohio, assigned to the Department of Non-Resident Instruction of the U. S. Army Infantry School, who succeeds Major Robert Crowley of Milwaukee, Wis., Headquarters Detachment, Third Infantry Division.

CWO George Matlock of McAdoo, Pa., assigned to the Quartermaster Section of the Infantry Center, was named the new vice-president and secretary to fill the post held by Capt. George Foster Jr. of Cocoa, Fla., Seventh Regiment, Third Division.

Quite a coincidence occurred when former treasurer, 1st Lt. David R. Waters, assigned to Seventh Regiment, Third Division, handed the "money bag" over to his successor, Capt. Frank D. Magliocco, a member of Quartermaster Section of the Infantry Center.

Both men found that they were from the same home town, Akron, Ohio, and had agreed upon by the members.

The club holds regular monthly meetings at different places, at which time some phase of investment is discussed in detail. Present holdings are reviewed and new acquisitions of common stock are agreed upon by the members.

Memorial Day Address Audience Told Survival Depends Upon Vigilance

"The price of our survival is eternal vigilance," Chaplain (Major) Lester J. Houghaling said at Fort Benning Memorial Day ceremonies paying tribute to those who gave their lives for our freedom.

"Their sacrifice was a promise of a glorious tomorrow where men live together in brotherhood. It is no longer a question of keeping faith with those who gave their lives to preserve faith and freedom; it is a question of survival. It does not fight to protect his beliefs then the strong will take his place," the speaker said.

Allies Hear Gen. Sanford At Graduation

"The interchange of students between nations has done more to accomplish better understanding among countries than one thing," Brig. Gen. Teddy H. Sanford said at Fort Benning May 31.

The logistics officer of Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., Gen. Sanford spoke at graduation ceremonies for the U. S. Army Infantry School's associate company officers class No. 2.

Fort Benning, Ga., June 4, 1957. The 165-man group included 46 students from Afghanistan, West Germany, Greece, India, Iran, Korea, Philippines, Thailand and Turkey. Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, introduced Gen. Sanford at the exercises, which were held at the main theater.

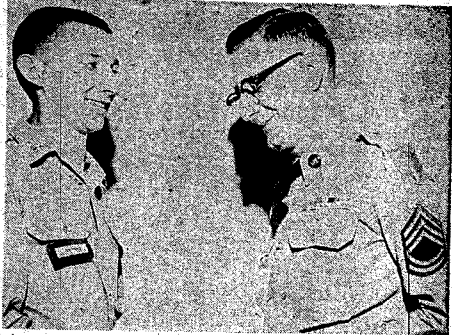

"The role of the Infantry soldier has not changed," the speaker said.

"Tactics, techniques, organization and weapons have changed and will continue to change, but the underlying principle of arms is timeless and changes. The individual soldier must still close with the enemy and defeat him," he added.

Gen. Sanford stressed the value of developing leadership abilities. He urges each graduate to rally yourself for greater responsibility and rewards. Collectively, you are establishing the standards of the Army of the future," he added.

"The military is not a relief agency to provide jobs for the otherwise unemployed. It is a great profession for those who wish to dedicate their energies, initiative and abilities to the service," he pointed out.

The invocation was given by Chaplain (Col.) Earl D. Canty, Infantry Center chaplain.

5000 Fans See Game of the Day

BY JERRY ARMSTRONG

A last inning rally by the Columbus Braves was halted by the Jacksonville Braves early in the game scoring four runs before 5,000 fans in Fort Benning's Gowdy Field.

This game was carried nationally by the Mutual Broadcasting System over "Game of the Day" by announcer Red Barber, who alternates with Art Gilson on the show.

A special highlight of the game from Gowdy Field came in the pre-game preview by Barber as he interviewed Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Special guests at the game included Gen. Powell, Major Gen. Roy E. Inge, commander of Third Infantry Division and Mrs. Lindquist, Brig. Gen. John F. Ruediger, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center.

Some other guests of the game were some 200 young baseball enthusiasts dressed in their uniforms of the many teams in the Fort Benning Youth Activities Club leagues. Directly following the game, the managers "Skeeter" Newsome of the Braves and Mickey Owen of Jacksonville held a baseball clinic for the members of the YAC teams.

During the clinic, Newsome, former major league infielder, gave the kids some of the fundamentals of fielding. Sugar, how to play different positions and correct bunting stances.

Newsome also talked with the youngsters. Owen, former catcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers and Los Angeles Cardinals, demonstrated proper techniques of hitting, positions and pointers to the young pitchers.

"One of the main things for all young pitchers to try and develop is the skill of throwing the ball where you want it to go," said Owen.

Newsome jumped on Foxe, starter of the Braves early in the game scoring four runs in the first and second frames to take the lead.

Then Columbus rallied back in the third to knot the score at 2-2. The Braves' Alvin Williams to deep left center almost drove the Braves ahead in the same inning, but a relay throw to catcher Owens nailed him coming to the plate. The winning marker for the Braves came across in the fifth when an attempted double play by the Braves failed to retire the man at first, paving the way for the rally.

Several radio stations other than Mutual also aired the game. The Fort Benning hospital radio station, and WPNX joined forces to send the play by play action to members of post and surrounding areas.

Southeastern Regionals Captured by Army Team

A strong 38-man U. S. Army Rifle Team outshot a field of 116 competitors over the week-end as they won all seven individual matches and captured the team championship during the 1957 Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle Championships at Fort Benning June 1-2.

Top honors for the team went to Capt. Robert W. Lowe, a member of the U. S. Army team, who fired a 494 score with 97's out of a possible 500 points to edge his teammate, 1st Lt. Henry H. Hall, by seven V's for the individual Regional Championship. The Vring is a small circle within the bulls eye used for breaking ties.

U. S. Army team members took all five awards for the five-match individual aggregate championship as each posted scores of 400 or better with their NRA Match Rifles (Bolt guns). Top gun in the special service rifle competition was Cpl. Billy H. Willard who took the aggregate title with a 490 total.

In the team competition, U. S. Army "Grey" posted a fourth place total of 385 out of a possible 1,000 points, three of the National Record, as they easily won the Regional Team Championship by a score of 385 to 375. Members of the Third Army squad topped 400 individual awards, while the lawnmower and gold teams took first and second expert team awards.

Track Team Finishes 4th In 3-A Meet

Fort Benning copped fourth place in the Third U. S. Army Track and Field Championships held last week at Fort Jackson, S. C.

First three places in the big seven-state meet went to Fort Campbell, Ky., 7-1, Fort Jackson, S. C., 56, and Fort Bragg, N. C., 48.8, in respective points.

Approximately 19 athletes, comprising a complete team, took the Fort Benning honors in capturing the second and five third place spots to gain fourth position with 28.6 points.

Winning second place spots were SP4 William A. Haman, high jump—1st place won with 5 feet 6 inches, PFC's Henri Geller, three-mile run—1st place won with time of 16:23.8 minutes and Paul Walker, who tied for runner-up spot in the mile with time of 12:27.5 minutes.

The other victor for runner-up honors was agesee 46 year old Domingo Rodilla, Company 1, 29th Provisional Brigade, who gave PFC William E. Lower the win in the 100 yard dash with time of 16:23.8 minutes.

TOM WIERZBICKI Baseball Players Bigger Than Ever

In an interesting article we read the other day the conclusion was drawn, that baseball players nowadays are bigger, but not necessarily better than ever.

In the past two to three years the deluge of home runs and the great distances of trajectory have caused many sports-minded individuals to start feeling the muscles of the baseball and the bat to try to find out why this avalanche of round trippers is occurring.

Let's face it, the athletes of today are taller, heavier, and stronger than those of 35 and 40 years ago, and although it is admitted the ball today had a lot more vitamins than in those days, it is doubtful the players of that era would have been hitting the ball into the stands as often as the men of today are.

Let's just do not have the muscles. The author of this particular article, Whitney Martin, checked over a Who's Who covering the 1919 baseball season, and discovered that only 20 of the 131 players listed, not counting pitchers, were six feet tall or over.

In contrast, the current Who's Who shows that 129 of 229 players are six footers. The Milwaukee Braves at the moment alone have 22 six footers on their roster.

Of course, there are players less than six feet tall who are tremendously powerful, but they carry plenty of solid beef on their frames. Players like Yogi Berra, whose five feet eight inches pack 194 pounds, and Mickey Mantle, whose five feet 11 inches carry 186.

Must be Strong. But a man has to have the weight if he is short and a great many of those old-timers some of whose names are still well known, had neither height nor weight.

The rosters of National League clubs this year showed only seven players who weigh 160 pounds or less. Of the 131 players listed for the 1919 season, 34 were 160 or less, some of them down in the 140's.

Now, all this does not mean that little men have no place in baseball. Phil Rizzuto did all right. The Waner boys, Lloyd and Paul, were standouts.

But they were not the power hitters. They would get a home run now and then when the wind was right. The men who got the reputations as sluggers were huskies almost without exception.

Mel Ott an Exception. Undoubtedly, the smallest of the famed sluggers was Mel Ott. He was certainly an exception for his compact 160 pounds on a five foot, nine inch frame was put into every swing.

The fact that, with few exceptions, the players hold their bats at the end today and swing from their heels possibly has something to do with the home run output.

The old-timers for the most part, used heavier bats (in contrast to our present day players light bats), and choked them. Ty Cobb not only choked his, but held his hands apart so he could place the ball. There are those who even contend that Cobb, who was a big man, could have made quite a name as a home run hitter, but he went for the batting average.

This discussion could go on and on, but it's our idea that, under similar conditions, the players of today would hit a lot more home runs than those of the so-called old days. The reason? It seems they're making ball players bigger, and stronger than before.

As Track Announcer Murray Has Earned 'Most Popular' Tag

BY JIM CLARK

Excitement seems to have a magnetic attraction for Murray Pendleton, production manager of the U. S. Army Radio Station WFBG at Fort Benning.

Pendleton, a former bomb disposal expert who was blown up twice during World War II, now finds his thrill through this association with stock car racing.

His close association with stock car racing has naturally led him to do a little driving himself, and he boasts a total of 15 races, one of which he led for nine laps in a 10 lap race, before being spun out.

There was one distinction, however, which he earned as a driver. He is the only person to require two safety belts, one around the chest and the other to stabilize the artificial leg he received after a bomb which he was working on, blew up in North Africa in 1943.

Relief Performance by Banard Gives Commanders 6-4 Victory

The 29th Infantry Brigade Commanders unleashed a 13 hit barrage coupled with the first two hit relief pitching of John Banard, to defeat the 30th ICC 6-4, last Sunday at Gowdy Field.

Banard came in in the fourth inning with one man on, one out and got out of trouble without allowing only two hits and no runs. This was Banard's second win with one loss.

The Commanders initiated the scoring in the third frame as Doug Walstad singled, Bill Considine hit a no run to Shortstop Lou Alcamo, who threw wild into right field sending Walstad to third and Considine to second. John Bartoline's single sent Walstad home. Considine scored on Joe Paulson's score to left.

The 30th ICC scored three runs in the fourth to go ahead. First baseman Ed Braswell opened the inning with a double down the right field line and when Jack Bryant, Commander second baseman, threw wild into third base and Howard Williams, pitcher, backing up third threw wild into third, trying to pick off the runner Braswell scored. Howard Williams' single started the inning, then hit Fred Storz with a pitched ball. Tony Datzuk then singled sending Storz to second. Storz was forced at third as Alcamo bunted to right with Datzuk starting pitcher, then hit Fred Storz with a pitched ball. Tony Datzuk then singled sending Storz to second. In the fifth the 30th scored their last run as "Deacon" Jones was hit with one of Williams' triples. Jones scored as Braswell pitched to right center. Storz struck out. Datzuk walked and Fireman Barnard came on to pitch for the Commanders. Barnard struck out

All-Army Events Open Next Week

Carbine lamps, shooting jackets and riddled targets will be the order of the day beginning next week, June 10-20, when approximately 750 of the finest marksmen in the Army arrive on post for the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches.

New features, which will include an old type of shooting and a new trend, will highlight these matches. Shooters who come out tops in the competition will get a chance to fire in the highest caliber of skill matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, where the National Championships are held each year.

"One of the newest types of shooting which will be a tremendous audience attraction will be the Musketry matches. These are for individuals and teams, which gives the shooter an opportunity to show his skill in accuracy, as well as his ability to fire rapidly as in combat," said Lt. Col. Carroll K. Smith, executive match officer.

The musketry matches use silhouette targets, shaped similar to a man, and a certain amount of ammunition to be fired in a given time limit. For instance in the individual match, a firer is given 32 rounds to shoot in 50 seconds. This may sound like a simple maneuver, but the average Army marksman can fire possibly less than 20 rounds accurately in this length of time.

To further increase the skill of events, the six shooting hornets, who have a control and captain for fire control, have to spread their fire over eight targets in 50 seconds.

So, it can be readily seen that the coach, captain and firer have to be closely coordinated to obtain hits on all eight targets. This hitting of all targets is known as "limo," in honor of a bonus is given the team if at least six hits are recorded on each silhouette.

Spectators interested in seeing these matches will be permitted on both McAndrews and Fiske Ranges on June 18 and 19. The first day will be the individual event, while the matches will be fired as the finale.

Another special attraction for persons wishing to see rifle skill in action will be the 1,000 yard match to be fired on June 17. This match will have only the top 200 qualifiers competing in the event.

Pistol competition will be fired for The Benning Hotel Club Range, located off Dixie Road near the post nursery. This shooting also is very good for audience appreciation because of the proximity to the shooters, and firing at such close ranges.

Top Competitors To Fire
Several of the best pistol shooters in the U. S. and overseas will set their sights on the X-ring. M-Sgt. Hoel's "Joe" Beamer, former world's champion 1st Miller and coach of the All-Army pistol team, Lt. Col. William Hancock, list just a few of the select group.

Lt. Miller recently set several new records in national matches and Lt. Miller completely topped the field of some 150 pistolmen in the Fort Benning Pistol Club's Spring Hand Gun Tournament, Col. Hancock who is one of the most well known firers and appears in the Army today, will be a top competitor.

ICC Begins New Information Program

A new information program was announced in the 12th Infantry (Combat) Command last week. The program, based on the division information program, is designed to establish an active program in public and troop information.

One of the outstanding new features in the plan, which was published in a directive to all subordinate units, was the assignment of one full-time MO information specialist in the information office of the battle groups in the ROCID Concept. An officer will be appointed information officer as part-time duties. Under the new Department of the Army plan, as outlined in AR 355-6, the information officer will perform both troop and public information staff functions, and in these capacities, function as a member of the commander's personal staff.

1st Lt. Richard S. McMahon, 12th ICC Information Officer, states that the command will take every advantage of new releases, hometown news center releases, radio tape recordings, and other news media to keep the troops informed and

Post Is Named After An Outstanding Man

Editor's Note: The name of one of the world's largest Army posts, Fort Benning, is a symbol among armies throughout the world representing the finest type of soldier, the U. S. Army Infantryman. The following article will relate how this post received its name.

Henry Lewis Bowling was born in Columbia county, Georgia, April 2, 1814. After thorough preparation in the best schools of his native State, he entered the University of Georgia, at Athens, in August, 1833, where he was graduated in August, 1834, being awarded the first honors in a class noted for men of eminence and distinction in later life. In September of the same year he began the study of law at Tallahassee, in the office of George W. Towns, afterward a member of Congress and governor of the State, and was admitted to the bar in May, 1835, at Columbus, where he then made his home.

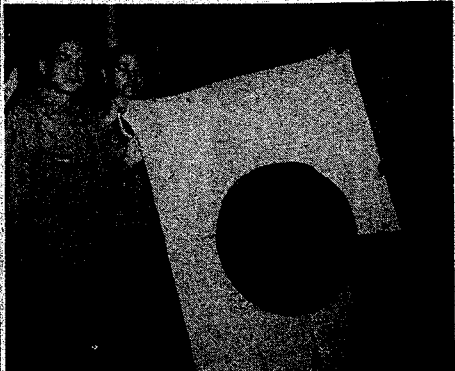

Being a young man of fine intellect, of indomitable ambition, and the most indefatigable industry, he quickly began to rise in the profession.

In 1837 he was appointed by Governor McDonald, solicitor-general of the Chattahoochee circuit to fill its vacancy, and in 1838 was elected by the general assembly for a full term of four years. Upon his marriage in the fall of the next year with Mary Howard, only daughter of Colonel Seaborn Jones, a very eminent lawyer of Columbus, he resigned his position and joined a partnership with Colonel Jones in the practice of law.

In 1839 he and Martin J. Crawford and James N. Ramsey were delegates to the Southern convention at Nashville, Tenn. In the fall of 1839, when less than forty years of age, he was elected one of the justices of the Supreme Court of Georgia, a position he held for the full term of six years. His decisions are noted for clearness, ability and loyalty to the best settled legal principles. He was a man of able and candid and directness of speech. He spoke with a logical tone and a syllabic precision, that heightened the force of his many forceful characters. He was able to take popular positions without loss of respect, so strong was the confidence in his sincerity.

In December, 1850, he was elected by the people of his county a member of the convention of Georgia, which adopted the ordinance of secession, and he was earnestly and able advocate of that measure. He was sent as commissioner to the Virginia convention in January, 1861. In a speech of great real ability and eloquence, he urged upon that body the adoption of a similar ordinance.

In August, 1861, he entered the Confederate service as colonel of the Seventeenth Georgia regiment, and for some time was in command of the Twenty-third brigade of the army in Virginia, in little more than a year from his enlistment he was promoted to brigadier-general, and he was frequently in command of Hood's famous division of the First corps, participating with gallantry in the battles of Second Manassas, Sharpsburg, Fredericksburg, Chickamauga, Wilder's near Thoroughfare Gap, Mt. Airy, Hill Lookout Valley, Fort Loudoun, Knoxville, Petersburg, Farmville and other bloody engagements. He was greatly distinguished for coolness and courage, and particularly for a sturdy steadfastness, which won for him the admiring title

Powell, right, commandant of Fort Benning's Infantry School, is presented a Japanese flag, the gift of the Japanese Ground Self-Defense Force's Officer Candidate School. of "Old Rock." In the second day's fight at the Wilderness he was severely wounded and lost the shoulder. He was in command of his Georgia brigade at the surrender of General Lee's army, and though greatly reduced in numbers, he was in fine discipline and ready for duty. "All present or accounted for."

At the close of the war he returned to Columbus and resumed the practice of his profession, which was large and lucrative. During the remainder of his life he was a noble and generous and patriotic citizen. He was a physical manhood, quite six feet tall, of noble presence and bearing. After a short and sudden illness he died on July 14, 1875. His wife had died on June 23, 1868.

Post Officers Look 'Real Cool' In Sleek New Summer Uniform

BY JOE ZEINIK
With smiling comments at "Doctor Livingston, I presume," U. S. Army officers at Fort Benning have taken kindly to the news of uniform changes this summer — the sun helmet.

The sun helmet, also called a Frank Buck helmet, a Hawley (one of the original manufacturers) helmet, and a pilli (you figure that one out) is the latest addition to a narrower uniform which is the height of practicality. The shade offered by this helmet is a pleasant change from the overseas cap, a soft, visored and brimless cap which fits snugly on the head. The "new" helmet is not really new, however. It was worn in the late 30's and early 40's but gradually fell by the wayside. These being purchased today bear the date 1944 inside them. Measure of Comfort With the rays of the Georgia sun beating down, the soldier has found a measure of comfort in the beret, shorts, short-sleeved shirts, and knee-length socks. Although at first greeted with some reservation, and the initial cause of mocking wolf calls and whistles, the leopards uniform quickly converted all but a few detractors to the fact that it was cooler than the ordinary khaki (sun tans, they were called) uniform of long trousers and long sleeved shirts. It is worth noting that the advent of slacks, too, was deplored at first even though they were replacing the wrag leggings which many old soldiers blamed for their various ills. The Army has not always been so choosy concerning the garb of its men. When General George Washington took over the first American Army, the only uniform article of clothing in the uniform was the frock-like, brown hunting shirt of common pattern which almost all men simply happened to have. A few volunteer militia companies had their own particular uniforms and blended together to make what may have been an unusual appearing Army, but one that won independence for the 13 colonies. During the Civil War, the multiplicity of uniforms was even more startling. Many of the uniforms were designed on the spur of the moment. The cut of the clothes was up to the eye of the men. The 7th New York (Highlanders), for example, wore kilts and leather pouches to dress uniform. The Zouaves, men who assumed the name and dress of the French Infantry Corps recruited from Algeria, were decked out in a red fez, embroidered short blue jackets, baggy red trousers, and white gaiters. By 1863, however, a degree of uniformity had been obtained and Union soldiers wore simple blouses of dark blue cloth and trousers of a lighter blue. A mounted man wore a light-tinting, shell jacket and a scarlet usually red wound about his neck. Fashion's head gear still differed, however. In the 1870's the army was the Indian. As if inspired by the lack of dress of the enemy, the Army was shirt-sleeved and to the informal in the field. The troops adopted from the common sense, wide-brimmed campaign hat of the West. In garrison, however, it was light and pocket with dress blues. The uniforms of the Army during World War I did not differ materially from those immediately preceding it. Full dress, dress, and mess jackets were abolished and only olive-drab and khaki uniforms were worn. Army regulations of 1924 prescribed that the service uniform of either woolen or cotton olive drab be the uniform for both officers and enlisted men for everyday wear and upon ceremonial occasions. During World War II, all but the service uniforms were discarded. Uniform changes have continued down through the ages. After the First World War, for example, the roll collar blouse replaced the choko-collar. But the choko-collar continued to be issued until as late as 1937 causing enlisted men to pay $10 to the post tailor to convert the blouse to the required roll collar for off-post wear. Different views on the hue of leather also have caused considerable consternation to the troops. A change of station was often meant costly reinvestment in belts, boots and shoes if one's leather did not match that fashionable on the post. No one has been able to trace the origin of the unit citation. But one year, from the excellent book Military Customs and Traditions by Major Mark M. Boster III, claims a general threatened to hang any member of a particular regiment he captured. The regiment showed its contempt by profaning the equipment a piece of rope with a hangman's noose on their shoulders. Thus was born the grand daddy of the unit citation. Few swaggers can be traced as far back as the present "swagger stick," however. It would seem, logically, to be the child of the riding crop and the leading cane. The leading cane was used in leading a parade and also for on-the-spot punishment for minor violations of regulations. But, long before the case was being tapped on recruits, it was being wielded more heartily as a sacrificial axe in prehistoric times and before that, as an ordinary bludgeon. Since there are many kinds of swagger sticks today, it remains the one exception to the uniformity of the U. S. Army uniform. There is the relatively plain, black, swagger stick which tells the organization and rank of the wearer. No matter what it looks like, however, the main purpose of the swagger stick is the military testimony of uniting hands in peace.

In considering the origin of our military uniform, it must be remembered that the uniforms in the sense we know them today, have been worn during the last 300 years. To the 17th century, soldiers conformed to the civilian dress of the time and were distinct. Please see UNIFORMS, page 21.

Uniform

Thank you for continuing interest in our military uniforms and equipment.

Malia Purposes The military uniform came about, it may be assumed, for two main purposes. First, it is helpful in distinguishing between friend and foe. Second is the economic factor that it is cheaper to buy in bulk lots.

As for the principles governing the appearance of the uniform, James Laver, in his book British Military Uniforms, has three most interesting suggestions. First, the "seduction principle." The uniform is intended to make the soldier look more masculine. Originally the purpose of this was to frighten the enemy. More recently, recruiting sergeants have not been above pointing out to prospective recruits the fact that girls tend to look longer at a man in uniform than in civilian.

Second, the "marchability principle." The uniform is designed to help in the distinction of military rank. Third, and last, comes the "utility principle. Laver insists that utility has little influence on military dress as civilian.

But if utility can be construed to mean the ability to stay cool in torrid temperature, then Laver should take a long look at Benning's be-mudias. It might lead him to re-write his book.

Jayne Mansfield is the subject of the "Saturday Evening Post" lead article in the current June 3 issue. Magazine lead in with the national release of Jayne's new picture, "The Wayward Bug," with big promotional campaign. Honestly, folks, it wasn't necessary to have Jayne's picture on the cover would have accomplished the mission.

"The Chief," to be seen over the ABC-TV network on June 11, as part of the "Telephone Time" series, will be the true story of M. Sgt. Roy "Moose" Morgan of the 37th FIS, George AFB, Calif. Story will concern a crisis in the life of "Moose," when he is tempted to chuck his career and not re-enlist.

Grechen Wyler, star of Broadway's "Diana Vreeland," was signed aboard the carrier Valley Forge as an "Honorary Crewman" when the flat-top was in NYC for Armed Forces Day.

Tina Louise "DIDN'T" get a little when she visited the destroyer-escort Oberg recently. But the shapely showgirl, wearing the brief costume she wears in the "Bway musical, "Lil' Abner," caused more confusion than general quarters in boot camp.

Fl. Riley's Don Campbell is in remarkably good shape for a young fellow who has "died" some 600 times. An ex-stunt man, Campbell is an expert on Hollywood deaths. His most spectacular "kill" was in "Rebel Without a Cause" in which he drove a car over a cliff.

Fl. Carson's Bebe Angelillo is almost an orchestra in himself — the string section anyway. The talented, 22-year-old musician plays the violin, harp, base fiddle, guitar and mandolin.

Veteran Sergeant Keeps Accounts Straight in TSB

A 66-year-old School Brigade soldier who signed up for his first "hitch" in 1911 is now an auditor for the 15th Finance Squadron, Ft. Benning, Ga. Sgt. Abram D. Cohen of Columbus, Georgia.

Sgt. Cohen, enlisted on December 23, 1911, at Savannah, Ga., and was sent to Fort Seward, N. Y., for recruit training. He was then sent to Fort Meade, Va., where he joined the 15th Cavalry. When that unit was reassigned to Fort Bliss, Texas, he went with them.

Still a private at the end of his three year "hitch", Sgt. Cohen reenlisted in the Quartermaster Corps, and in March of 1915 took an Army-wide examination for a SFC rating. He made the fifth highest score.

Cohen served ties in the Philippines and returned to his native Georgia where he took up civilian work as a buyer and inspector of timber and lumber products for another 21 years. With the advent of World War II, Cohen again volunteered as a private in the Army. After being assigned at many Stateside posts, he served over three years in Germany and three in Japan, finally ending up here at Fort Benning.

When asked one of his most outstanding experiences in the Army, he said "I think the time I set on the first combat martial where enlisted men were permitted to be a member of the staff judge advocate. It was a general court, and we tried two enlisted men for murder, making out seven years each."

With words of praise from the top military leaders in the land ringing in his ear, the foot soldier in quiet self-reflection on the fact that, although much has changed since the birth of the Infantry 182 years ago, his mission remains the same: to close with and destroy or capture the enemy. And he may well be proud that responsibility for the U. S. Army's victories from the Revolutionary War to the Korean conflict rests upon the foot soldier climbing out of his foxhole, crawling across his own's land and killing the enemy.

Despite the atomic power, rockets and guided missiles of the age of post-battle warfare the self-propelled foot soldier still remains as the Queen of Battle, the bulwark of the nation's freedom.

Summer Safety

With summer once again coming in, there will be plenty of opportunities for pleasant relaxation. There will also be many opportunities for trouble. Swimming and sun-bathing are two potential trouble-causers.

It's enjoyable to lie in the sun, and it's fine to have a radiant tan, but sun-burns must be avoided. A man is of no value to the service and is subject to disciplinary action if he is so badly burned that he can't perform his duties.

And swimming, as much fun as it is, requires extreme caution. The buddy system should be used whenever possible, and individual swimmers should be careful not to venture into treacherous currents. (AFPS)

Washington Report

Senate Allows Plea For Peacetime Bill

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A Senate Labor and Public Welfare subcommittee, in a move probably unprecedented, has given servicemen an opportunity to plead their own case for a peacetime GI bill.

The five-man veterans affairs subcommittee headed by Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) invited the first-hundredth anniversary of the birth of their own bill at formal hearings on six Senate proposals to extend GI benefits to those entering the Armed Forces after Feb. 1, 1955.

The cutoff date for Korea GI Bill benefits was Jan. 31, 1955.

The bills would provide some or all of the readjustment benefits, such as education, training and readjustment pay, for peacetime veterans.

In responding to letters written to the subcommittee members by inductees who said they had they were not yet veterans, Sen. Thurmond decided to set aside the issue of the hearings for eight months, so that servicemen in the Washington area to testify in support of the legislation.

Although the Veterans Administration is providing readjustment GI assistance to those entering the services in time of peace, the bill would reportedly consider several plans other than the readjustment benefits provided war veterans.

Several similar bills, on which the president has signed, also are before the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

PAY VOUCHER

The Army will extend for another year the proposed Military Pay Voucher System being run at eight posts in the U. S.

Providing soldiers with a monthly itemized accounting of their pay, the new system has been on trial since 1955 in units at Ft. Dix, Ft. Hood, Texas; Ft. Polk, La.; Ft. Monmouth, Texas; Ft. McNair and Ft. Myer and Cameron Station in Virginia.

Units of the test organization will continue to be held each month on the individual voucher until June 30, 1958.

Designed to avoid misunderstandings and to permit prompt adjustment of discrepancies, the system also allows EM to draw only a portion of their pay for any particular month.

TRANS-ATLANTIC HOPS

Army pilots will start trans-Atlantic hops to Europe in June for aerial delivery of command aircraft from the States.

TALMADGE F. McBRIDE

A young bride and groom shortly after their marriage, bought an old tumble-down house because it stood on a very desirable lot on which they wanted to build a home. A little after the contractor had begun work the young couple came to see how things were progressing. "Why, you haven't even started on this house yet," exclaimed the young wife to the contractor. "I thought it would be well under way, but you are still working on the old one!" she cried.

"Well, when you've got to build a house before you can't expect much speed," replied the contractor. "It will still be some time before we get started on the new house. All this rubbish will be a very desirable lot on which the ground cleared. We can't build a good house on rubbish."

He hasn't even started on this house yet," exclaimed the young wife to the contractor. "I thought it would be well under way, but you are still working on the old one!" she cried.

"That is a pretty good reason for being careful about the habits we form and the dispositions we tolerate in ourselves while we are young. There will not be so much rubbish to tear down later. The want of a good foundation does not always show at once, but sooner or later the testing time comes. People are often building something quite different from what they are really building a prison in which he finds himself confined. Some people go on building year after year, and the end have very little to show for their labors. A house built on rubbish will not stand.

There are several "rubbish piles" on which one can build. One is the "rubbish pile" of unkind thoughts, and low moral character until these are removed. We must build our character upon a strong religious faith, and a firm belief in God and His word.

Build your life, your character, your habits on a solid foundation upon the Word of God and the high moral law which He has revealed. These laws of God are the high moral law which we will hold dear and steady in the hour of adversity and how you way. You will then be glad your life has been anchored on a sure foundation that cannot be easily shaken.

"On what an building: Rock or Rubbish?"

'Flying Sergeant' Has Interesting Hobbies

By MSGT. Clark Blackburn, Washington, D. C. They also taught officers and enlisted men and their wives wherever he was assigned here in the States.

Asked if he was still active at both hobbies, he says that he hasn't been in for a while during World War II and a former "Flying Sergeant" was assigned to the 1st Fighter Group sent out a call for all who could fly a plane and had a license to volunteer as pilots. Forter immediately volunteered his services, and after lengthy examinations a pilot's license was accepted as an L-3 pilot.

"Our mission," according to Forter, "was to fly reconnaissance missions, taking photographs of enemy terrain along the coast of North Carolina, and finally got up to the Northern part of Luzon taking photographs of the bay and 'cayans River'."

He went on to say that flying was a lot more interesting than he had at times "we had some close calls. I came back from one mission with 15 holes in the tail of my plane, but fortunately none of us and no vital parts of the plane were hurt."

Asked about his other hobby, dancing, he says that both he and his wife look up dancing some years ago as a hobby, later becoming both professional performers and teachers. He performed and taught at the Royal Naval Academy at Lagnori, Italy, then both

Weather Brings Warnings To Observe Safety Rules

With the warm summer weather already here, Fort Benning officials have cautioned all military and civilian personnel to obey a few simple rules of water safety.

Last week two post soldiers lost their lives as a direct result of violating fundamental safety practices. The death of the first man occurred when he swam unaccompanied by a second soldier who had rendered aid and drowned just out of sight of a lifeguard.

The second soldier was killed when his boat overturned and he attempted to swim for shore instead of clinging to the boat which would have kept him afloat.

Business Evans, U. S. Army Infantry Center safety director reported that four injuries have occurred this year due to swimming.

4 Radiomen In One Unit

It is quite a phenomenon when three or four radiomen become taking Basic Training in the same organization. But it is even a more unusual fact that these four are training in the same platoon, the second platoon of Company A, 28th Infantry Battalion. The four talented trainees often discuss their common interests and experiences in the barracks.

The four radiomen are Private Richard W. Smith, who did sports announcing for WNAV-TV in Boston; Joseph E. Cannon, a news commentator and sports analyst for WYAF in Lawrence, Mass.; Alfred A. Longene, who is featured in the Music Section for Furman University's radio station in New York City; and George R. Johnson, who was chief announcer for WBSU at Wesleyan University in Connecticut.

An Amazing Dividend Record

In 1944 we introduced an unusual, unique idea in life insurance savings and protection. It was highly acceptable to the buying public. We then used this policy in the expansion of new territories. The twelve years experience with this plan has shown an amazing dividend, giving a low net cost contract without parallel. It is one which you are entitled to compare with any policy you now own or contemplate buying from any company anywhere.

The only wholly acceptable statement about policy dividends is the actual past record—not a future estimate or illustration.

At Last Kline Earns Sixth Stripe

Fred W. Kline, D Co., 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, was promoted to the grade of master sergeant last week. The native of Charleston, S.C., is a survivor of the Bataan Death March.

M-Sgt. Kline completed twenty years in the Army last March 25 but he plans to be in the main in the Army for a few more years.

He was mess steward for General McAthur for the first month of World War II. Kline then became the mess steward for Major General King who was captured during the fall of the Philippines. Kline was captured at this time and spent 12 months in Japanese prisoner of war camps.

The new master sergeant spent four months at Camp Klinger working with the Hun-gerian refugees. He worked as a mess steward at Klinger. He arrived in the 29th in Dec. 1955. M-Sgt. Kline is the proud father of three children, Wanda, age 10, Robert, age 7, and Herbert, age 4. He and wife now make their home in New Jersey.

His favorite sports are hunting and fishing. He had to admit that his luck so far this season has been "greedy captured at this time and spent had".

Oklahoma Soil Scientist In the Ranks of BIOC

A soil scientist who worked with the Choctaw Indians as an employee in the Indian Service at Hugo, Oklahoma, is a student officer assigned to one of the companies of the 152nd Unit, William M. Rigdon, a student officer, No. 12, 2nd Company, 21st Student Battalion, The Oklahoma Brigade.

Mr. Rigdon, a graduate of Oklahoma A & M College, Stillwater, Oklahoma, joined the Indian Service upon graduation. It was his responsibility to perform soil surveys for Choctaw Indian farmers to find the land's capabilities and just how the soil should be used to the best advantage.

"Most of the Indians with whom I worked were in a very meager circumstances and did not have any oil wells and a Cadillac for every member of the family as some Indian tribes in Oklahoma do have," says Mr. Rigdon. "Some of the Indians could speak only the Choctaw language, so I was hard put at times to get my suggestions over to them."

Asked his most exciting experience while working with the Choctaw Indians, he said "there was one farmer who had found dogs slaked out all over his farm, and my reception from the dogs as well as the Indian farmer was anything but cordial. I found out later that his principal crop was corn—the liquid kind that is—and that he couldn't care less about soil reclamation. I didn't press suggestions on him after that."

Mr. Rigdon plans on returning to his work with the Indians when he completes his Army tour, but expects to be moved to the Army Center. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Rigdon of Durant, Oklahoma.

152nd Unit Praised At Fort Rucker

The 152nd Transportation Detachment, (Cargo Hoist, Fld. Maint) performed mechanical magic during this past week when they were with the Transportation Company at Fort Rucker for the Air Show viewed by General Maxwell Taylor and other VIP's.

During the whole week not a single aircraft missed a flying day because of mechanical difficulties. This in spite of one that required a complete engine change, transmission overhaul, rotor blade replacement and thorough inspection.

The Detachment received the damaged helicopter at 3:00 p.m., and three crews worked a total of six man-hours to ready the craft for flying by noon the next day, in time to operate in its designated place in the demonstrations and displays.

The men worked until 2:00 a.m. and then were off until 7:00 a.m. when they returned to finish the work. Close cooperation with the crews and full knowledge of their work enabled them to complete this job in such short time.

Linville completed final arrangements during his three-day visit for his command to support the 1957 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Fort Benning June 10-20.

All-Army Firing Enters 3rd Day

Three individual winners will be decided today during the third day of the 1957 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Fort Benning Pistol Club ranges.

Both the U. S. All-Army rifle and pistol individual champions will be crowned. The other individual victor will be the winner of the special 1,000-yard rifle match.

New Event— Match No. 15, which is a new rifle event this year, also will be shot today. This match is a combined slow fire event with two stages. The first consists of 10 shots, at 200 yards, slow fire, standing position, with one minute per shot. In the second, 20 shots will be used from 500 yards, slow fire, prone position, also with one minute time limit.

Pistol Match No. 116 is the grand aggregate match which combines the scores of events 105, 22 caliber, 110, center fire, and 115, .45 caliber. Last year's defending champion is Huelser, "Joe" Benner coach of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, who fired a score of 2603 out of possible 2700.

100-0-0 Match— The special 1000-yard match will be fired first in qualification and then the top 20 shooters will compete in the final event. This event will use two fighting shots and 20 shots for record at slow fire, in a prone position with one and one-half minutes per shot.

Being a new match this year this event will prove a challenge to all the veteran marksmen, as well as the new fire-ers.

Several other innovations should prove to make tomorrow's and the matches set for Saturday appealing to the spectators's view in observing the firing.

Marksmanship Badge— Tomorrow's "big" matches for the rifle and pistol rifle scheduled for the ranges. These matches are the ones which give a shooter his third "leg" or step toward earning

Golden Gloves Champ Puerto Rican Boxer To Fight With TSB

By Sgt. Clark Blackburn

A Puerto Rican Golden Gloves boxing champion is now an Army fighter assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The School Brigade, He is Jesus Moret Jr., 19, from Guayama, Puerto Rico.

BRIGADE HOPEFUL . . . Pvt. Jesus Moret

Moret first began boxing while he was in high school, but as a student, but at civilian gyms and smokers. In 1953 and 1954 he won the South and Central Golden Gloves Puerto Rican championship but lost both years by decisions in the semi-finals for the All-Puerto Rican Championship.

Moret fought four more bouts in Puerto Rico after his last Golden Gloves tournament, winning all four, two by decision and two by KO's.

In February of 1956, he joined the United States Army and took basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., where he had two bouts, winning one by decision and one by KO.

Asked if he had aspirations of becoming another Jim Boyd, the great Olympic boxing champion of 1956, Moret said, "Yes, Boyd is working with me now and is quite an inspiration. I believe that with his help I can go places."

Specialist Second Class Boyd, also of Fort Benning, when questioned as to Moret's chances as a boxer, said, "I think he is a very strong boy. He leads a clean life, likes to fight, and is dedicated to the boxing game. Consequently, he should do very well for himself. He is a good puncher and can take a punch well. I know this first hand, for I have fought with him a number of times."

"During the forthcoming Summer Bouts here at Fort Benning," Boyd continued, "Moret is the man to watch. He has possibilities of becoming a champion. I'll see with him and find out some of his weak points."

Moret says that there is a possibility he will turn professional when he completes his Army service and to New York City, the Mecca of all

Saunders Hurls No-Hit Contest

Frankie Saunders pitched two no-hit, no-run games to lead his Rock of the Marne teammates their first two victories of the season in the Fort Benning Youth Activities Baseball League last week.

Hurler Saunders fanned 14 and didn't issue a walk in turning back the Flyers in the opening game of the season, 6-0.

Completely holding the edge in the second contest, Saunders sent 13 more via the straight route in copping the Cottonballers 6-0.

This is believed by the YAC officials to be a record in the semi-finals for the All-Puerto Rican Championship.

Engineers Produce Swimming Candidate

BY BILL BOWLES

Most of the smart-minded people today look upon swimming as a cool, enjoyable sport, especially during the hot summer months; but how many of these people would go as far as to say they are somewhat unhappy when they aren't in the water.

Headquarters and Service Company, 577th Engineer Battalion, is probably one of the very few persons that has made this statement. His love for swimming and deep competition in the sport overshadows his interest in other things so much that all his leisure time, if possible, is spent swimming.

At the age of 15, he was selected as a member of the Guatemala swimming team at Guatemala City High School in Guatemala and he also was lifeguard at San-Jose Beach in Guatemala City during the summer months. Rodolfo relates that on several occasions he had to dive underneath boats to rescue people from rough water while working at the beach.

The Central American Games were conducted for the first time in 1950. Rodolfo entered in the 100 meter swimming and took second place in hours at the finish. He also played on the water polo team for Guatemala.

In 1952 Rodolfo took training as a possible candidate for the Guatemala team for the Olympic Games but he was narrowly defeated by another competitor. Rodolfo's biggest event came in 1955, when he entered in the Pan American Olympics at Mexico City. He captured a first place gold medal by making the 400 meter swim in 4 minutes and 41 seconds. "Excellent respiratory control contributed more to my success than any other thing," related Rodolfo.

Rodolfo is a member of the 1164 Engineer Group Swimming Team which has been organized. As a new swimmer and participant in the post swimming team, he will compete in the 100 and 400 meter events.

Pvt. Cuevas-Horst plans to make his home in New York City when his tour with the Army is completed.

TOM WIERZBICKI Are Team Sports Individually Good?

The United States way or the Russian way . . . that is the question.

To be more specific . . . which is better; in trying to develop the fighting fiber of a nation team sports, Yankee style, or mass muscle building in the Soviet Union?

A famous five star general, who might have become a big league ballplayer if he had not chosen a military career, voices a firm vote for the United States way.

"I am convinced team sports, as we play them, produce better citizens and superior fighting men," says Gen. Omar Bradley, now one of the greatest field generals of World War II and chief of staff before he went on the inactive list in August, 1953.

The general's statement was not mere hearsay. "This point was graphically demonstrated to me at the river Elbe near the end of the European campaign in the last war. We had second lieutenants who showed more drive and initiative than Russian generals."

"The Russians always were having to refer back to Moscow for decision. Our lieutenants made decisions on the spot," said Gen. Bradley. "The reason for this is our men developed confidence in themselves and in their buddies."

But looking at the situation from the other side of the fence, in the 1956 Olympic Games the Russians beat out the United States in the unofficial team standing mainly through superiority in such muscle events as gymnastics and wrestling.

No one disclaims this to be fact, not even the general.

"I have no argument with calisthenics and gymnastics," he said. "They are wonderful for condition, and we have used them on large scale ourselves, but for developing men and soldiers, you cannot beat team sports."

The general certainly said a mouthful for anyone who has participated in such sports as baseball, football, basketball and the like has found that individual performance plays a minor part in team sports. For the ultimate end is a winning team performance—not individual performance.

Team sports build individual initiative, yes, but the main goal is strengthening confidence in yourself as a human being. Sure, individual performance is what we strive at directly, but even more direct is a team victory.

Gen. Bradley was a baseball and football star at West Point, and a teammate of President Eisenhower. Today he remains an avid sports fan, interested in big league baseball, football and racing. He can rattle off batting averages without a moment's hesitation.

"I think the Yankees are a sure bet in the American league, and Milwaukee should win in the National," says the general, "but these Brooklyn Dodgers may fool everybody. They've been wearing out every year for five years but are still going strong."

Omar Bradley is just another sports fan now, but behind him lays a past that started with sports and will undoubtedly end with sports a major part of his life.

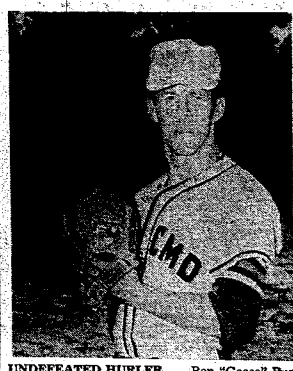

Eddie Feigner of Walla, Walla, Wash., claims to be the world's greatest leftball pitcher and there are few who will dispute his claim.

In his career, which covers 20 seasons, Feigner has tossed more than 320 no-hit games, 108 perfect games and has averaged 24 strikeouts per nine innings.

With that kind of a record established, Feigner tries to give the opposing team a break. Aside from him, only three players back him up instead of the usual eight. They include a shortstop, catcher and first baseman.

The record of this four man team is 917 wins, 82 losses and 11 ties.

Feigner gets his pitching mileage out of a 104-mile an hour speed and 19 different deliveries. It is a rare ball, indeed, who can put wood on the ball; let alone get a hit.

UNDEFEATED HURLER . . . Ron "Goose" Burbank with the Division Trains nine, has chalked up all of his team's three victories to date, in post regimental baseball competition. Burbank, formerly the property of the Chicago White Sox was his last time out, defeating the 54th Medical 4-2 as fanned 13 men. His club will be facing the 20th RCT at Bennett Field on Friday, 7 June with game time at 1830 hours.

Raiders Win Doughboy Tilt

The Raiders captured their third straight win in Doughboy League with a four run uprising in the fifth inning to defeat the Commanders 6-2 last week at Faith Field.

Tony Quinn's steady pitching paved the way for the champ's victory. The curvalling right-hander allowed two runs in the fourth and then proceeded to blank the Commanders the rest of the way.

The Raiders scored one run in the first inning to take a slim lead. The winners added another tally in the third frame to show a two run edge.

In the fourth inning, the Commanders fought back for two runs to tie the game. Mike McCarp's hit to centerfield was the big hit in this frame.

With the score knotted at 2-2 in the top of the fifth, the Raiders put on their "hitting shoes" and slammed out six hits good for four runs and the ballgame.

The entire Raider team had a share in the victory as their

AF Sarge Finalist Loser In British Amateur Golf

FORMBY, England (APPS)—Lt. Col. Harold Ridgley stopped just short of becoming the Chidreiteria man

The quiet, gentlemanly AF veteran, for three years a POW in WWII, and who doesn't possess an American golf record, lost his final match in the British Amateur Golf championship, but his coach revert to a pumpkin.

His opponent and only conquer in the chase for British amateur honors was Reid Jack of Glasgow, Scotland, a wartime, Communique peacetime basketballer.

Ridgley used only 17 puts on the first 11 holes of the final match, and then after three years, has won the two most important awards the Academy confers on its athletes.

The Army Athletic Association Trophy and the Hughes Award were presented to Ridgley by Lt. Gen. Garrison Davidson, academy sponsor, during the traditional athletic review during June Week.

The Athletic Association Trophy, dating back to 1906, is given annually to the member of the graduating class who has rendered the most valuable service to athletics during his career as a cadet.

The Hughes Award is presented to the most valuable player on the football squad. Other outstanding Biddy Knights who have won this award were Glenn Davis, Arnold Galina, Tom Bell and Don Hollender.

Frequently hampered by injuries, Ridgley turned to his football versatility by alternating between halfback, quarterback and fullback in his cadet career.

Hawaiian Judo Expert Takes Training Here

A Judo expert from Hawaii and former San Jose, Calif., policeman is now a student officer in ROTC No. 12, 2nd Company, 2d Student Battalion, The School Brigade, He is Lt. Melvin E. Soong from Kapa, Kaula, Hawaii.

Soong's taste for athletics began when he was a student at Kamehameha Boy's School, Honolulu, where he played football as right halfback for three years and captained his team in 1961. He also played on the basketball team for two years, left field on the baseball team for one year, and was a member of the Judo team for two years.

Sports, however, were not his only accomplishments. He was a member of the National Honor Society the four years he was in high school, was class president his junior year, and was Student Body Vice President his senior year.

Upon graduation from high school, Lt. Soong came stateside and enrolled in the University of Denver, Colorado, where he played left halfback on the freshman football team. He spent three and a half years at Soong, attended San Jose State College, San Jose, Calif.

Upon graduation from college Soong worked full-time as a policeman walking a beat and performing squad car duties. Asked his plans for the future Lt. Soong says he has three things in mind: "I like

JERRY ARMSTRONG

Reporter Covers Shooting Events

This week I have my necessary equipment: carbide lamp, shooting glasses, typewriter and protective helmet, along with me located behind target on McAdams rifle range and 100 Major Douglas J. Burrows, who is the technical task of the range, at the 1871 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches.

Point 22 is somewhat of a magical number. Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, fired the first round to open the matches this week at it and every target on the line scored a bull's eye. It must be a lucky eye, you'll admit.

On the pistol range, point 10 is across the street in a deep ditch. I don't want to be too close to these shooters, man they spit a goat's eye at 30 paces.

Fully Equipped
Anyway I'm equipped with lots of paper and a few rounds of mischief to give you some of the highlights of the All-Army Matches, which go into the third day of competition this morning.

The keynote this year is to produce the finest shooting rifle and pistol squads in the history of the matches, which began in 1854. In a special meeting of the officers-in-charge, coaches and captains of the teams, Lt. Col. William A. Hancock and Thomas Sharp emphasized this point.

Col. Hancock, along with help from M-Sgt. Frank Graham, will select and coach this year's All-Army pistol squad, while Col. Sharpe will have the same job with the riflemen.

Behind the Scenes
Sometimes it always seems that the "men behind the scenes" always get lost in the shuffle during matches of this kind. From my wanderings around so far, there were without a doubt fundamental "stuffs" in the success of the matches.

Finally, I can go back to Hawaii and join the Honolulu Police Department. Just which of these three possibilities I'll choose, I can't say. I'm on the fence right now but will have to make up my mind soon."

The changing noisiness heard around our end of the First Cavalry recently isn't from the village blacksmith. Instead, under the shade of our spreading trees has been installed a couple of pits designed for recreation with one of the chief objects of the blacksmith trade—HORSHOEING.

One pit is located in front of the 5424 Med Co. to serve the 5424 Med Co. The second pit is in front of the 6904 Med Co. to serve the 31st Med Co. Lt. Donald F. Maeder, Group A & R Officer, announcement will be held as soon as the final finishing touches are completed on the pits.

Complete Reorganization Of 29th Seen in Review

The 29th Infantry, demonstration unit for the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning, is conducting a change of colors ceremony and review on Sightsighting Field June 8. The Infantry School's demonstration unit, has been completely reorganized to provide a unit capable of performing the latest tactics of nuclear warfare.

Several hundred spectators witnessed the presentation of the new colors of Col. Claude M. Howard, commander of the U. S. Army Infantry School Troops Command, Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commander of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, reviewed the troops and presented the new colors to the commanders.

Col. Joseph C. Scandiff, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry commander, received the 29th colors from Col. Howard. Col. Joseph W. Sisson, Jr., Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry commander, received his new colors from Gen. Ruggles.

Lt. Col. Leo B. Jones, former commander of the 23d Field Artillery Battalion, was presented the colors of the 10th Artillery. The 23d Field Artillery Battalion has been redesignated the Second Field Artillery Battalion (Rocket-Howitzers), 10th Artillery.

The new changes in the make-up of the 29th are a result of the Army's new policy of establishing units for possible future battlefields. The introduction of atomic weapons to the battlefield will necessitate a wide dispersal of units both in the offensive and in defense. A battle group is, in effect, a scaled-down regiment and will be able to operate independently and defend in future battle areas.

Several of the old colors were retired as a result of the reorganization. As the Fort Ben-

Young Sculptor Gains Distinction in Marble

Since he was knee high to a grasshopper, Private Anthony Padavano, Company C, 6th Infantry Battalion, has been painting and drawing. He began sculpturing in Lincoln High School, Brooklyn, when he was fifteen. As a result, he was awarded a $800 scholarship to study art at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. After completing his year at the Institute, he decided upon becoming a sculptor. Anthony has always been absorbed with contemporary art, and he tried to find a teacher whose sculpture he was sympathetic to. After some time, he found this teacher. He was Ortonio Mardarelli, a prominent professor at Columbia University. Professor Mardarelli is considered one of the best contemporary sculptors in the world. Due to his feeling towards Anthony's talent, he used him as an apprentice, an honor afforded to very few. Through out this apprenticeship, Anthony was exposed to experiences in sculpting with which the ordinary student never becomes familiar. With Professor Mardarelli, Anthony began his rigorous training program which included the study of drawing, modeling, carving, anatomy, drafting, history, and many other subjects. However, Anthony's studies were not confined to the University. He acquired practical experience executing sculpture for the public. Because of the combined practical and theoretical work, Anthony's progress was rapid. One of his first works was a portrait in marble of his wife. When he had just married. This portrait required five months to complete. Professor Mardarelli and others were impressed by the work of this young sculptor. Many other works followed in various mediums. The quality of his work led Anthony to win a first prize competition and full tuition scholarship to Columbia. He was then able to unburden himself of tuition worries.

ROTC Summer Program Slated to Begin Saturday

The 1957 Reserve Officer Training Corps summer program opens June 22 as more than 1,200 cadets from Southeastern colleges and universities arrive at Fort Benning for six weeks of training.

Post Infested By Fire Ants, Officials Say

The Preventive Medicine Section of the U.S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning has requested the aid of Post personnel in locating fire ants on all buildings on the post.

Officials, calling the fire ant infestation "very bad," have undertaken a survey to determine where the fire ants are in preparation for a campaign to eradicate them. The ants are a pest which has infested the post since 1954. Personnel finding fire ant mounds are urged to report the location and size of the mounds to the Preventive Medicine Section at 2-205 or 2-206 or 2-207. Fire ant mounds range in size from a few inches to several feet in diameter. In the area, the mounds, which often grow three to four feet into the air, are covered with a mass of loose, red dirt and have no visible holes or openings since the ants are able to dig tunnels as far removed from the mound as 15 feet. The fire ants are one-eighth to one-quarter inch in length and are reddish brown in color. They are very destructive to plants and animals. Several types are able to bite humans.

Preventive medicine officials warn that children should be cautioned to keep away from the mounds since if they are disturbed, they become extremely and dangerously poisonous. The receipt of multiple stings or suffering an abnormal hypersensitive reaction to a sting as such as a high temperature should be taken to a physician at once, officials said.

130 Officials Attend Infantry Conference

The reorganization of the current Infantry, armor and airborne divisions has set in train a whole new tactical development. We have standardized and hope to have soon a whole new family of weapons, Gen. Powell said.

The speaker pointed out that the conference would not be a "one-way street." We want to hear from your ideas and experience," he added.

"We hope you face in training the basic jungle of our Army," he explained.

Gen. Powell emphasized the increasing importance of the understanding through you of the importance of the national defense scene.

Army Article Relates Role Of U. S. Army

WASHINGTON—Peace time progress in development of new weapons and new concepts of war in the United States only assurance of being able to keep ahead of any potential enemy, according to Brigadier General Frederick W. Gibb, commander of the Army's Combat Development and Demonstration Center at Fort Ord, Calif.

In an article appearing in the June issue of the official U. S. Army magazine, ARMY INFORMATION DIGEST, General Gibb stressed the importance of "developing tomorrow's Army today."

In the past the general said there was time to adjust to new conditions when war came. "A buffer of time and space allowed our Nation to re-equip and reorganize in time to meet the thrust of the future," he explained.

U. S. will not have the buffer of time and space to adjust to new concepts. When and if war comes, the Army will have to fight with the equipment, tactics, and concepts of the present.

Only by continuous study and experimentation, General Gibb declared, "can we assure that the United States Army will be armed, equipped and organized to meet any potential enemy with the finest fighting system in the world."

The Army's research and development and combat development agencies are, according to the article, seeking to produce tomorrow's weapons and concepts today and to give greater speed and inventiveness in technology.

A staff of 44 officers, 11 civilian scientists, and 10 enlisted men has been assembled at Fort Ord and nearby Monterey to accomplish the CDC's mission.

The purpose of their experiments is to determine the best possible combination of firepower, tactics, technique, logistical support, command and control, mobility, communications and information acceptance.

Army Testing Robot Tractor At Ft. Belvoir

FORT BELVOIR, Va.—The Army is testing a radio-controlled "robot" tractor here which is believed to represent the first application of the remote control principle to a piece of construction equipment.

The tractor can be operated anywhere within the range of the radio. It should prove invaluable in construction work in radioactive and combat zones and may also be useful in such other tasks as light and heavy lifting.

Former holders of American Red Cross life saving cards who are interested in becoming life guards at the post pools this summer can apply at once. Applicants must have an ETS extending into October.

BY MSGT. CLARK BLACKBURN
So you want to become an Infantry second lieutenant? The Army today offers qualified young men more of a chance to become an officer than ever before.

The Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning prides itself with turning out only top-quality men. And large numbers of enlisted men and warrant officers who desire to make the tough grind to a second lieutenant rating can qualify.

Requirements for acceptance to OCS are to be between the ages of 19½ and 27, have at least a high school diploma or its equivalent, pass two aptitude tests, have a high moral character, be recommended by your unit commander for leadership potentialities, and be approved by a board of senior officers.

At present there are only two at Fort Benning, and the Artillery OCS at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

The Infantry OCS program is the responsibility of the 5th Student Battalion, The School Brigade. The program started here in 1941 and remained in full operation until 1947. During this period approximately 102,000 candidates entered the school, with over 7,000 graduating as Infantry second lieutenants. During the period 1947-1954 a class a day was graduated.

The program was reinstated in February of 1951 and has remained in operation since that time. During this period there have been approximately 16,000 candidates, and of this number around 9,000 graduated.

Now, supposing you are qualified, you have applied, and have been accepted as an officer candidate. From your reporting date and for the duration of the 52-week course, your life will be no bed of roses.

Statistics, since the reopening of the program, shows that 56.7

percent of the candidates are graduated and commissioned as second lieutenants, with 43.3 percent not graduating. Of the 43.3 percent not passing, lack of leadership heads the list for failures by 21.8 percent, followed by lack of motivation as second with 15.1 percent. Physical disabilities accounts for 3.2 percent and 1.3 percent for disciplinary reasons.

When that great day comes and you have your gold bars pinned on, you can hold your head a little higher. The going has been rough and tough, but you're among a select group that has weathered all obstacles placed in your way, and you know you are ready and able to lead a platoon of Infantrymen into combat.

Bachelor Sgt. Adopts Family Of Five Pups

"Pop" Pasco, mess sergeant at H & S Co., 326th Tank Battalion, recently assumed the ambitious task of mothering five homeless orphans.

SFC T. P. Pasco, a bachelor with nearly 30 years in the Army, is raising five young puppies whose mother died shortly after giving birth to them. His fumbling, unsteady paws answer to Smokey, Beauty, Peanut, Boog, and Tuffy.

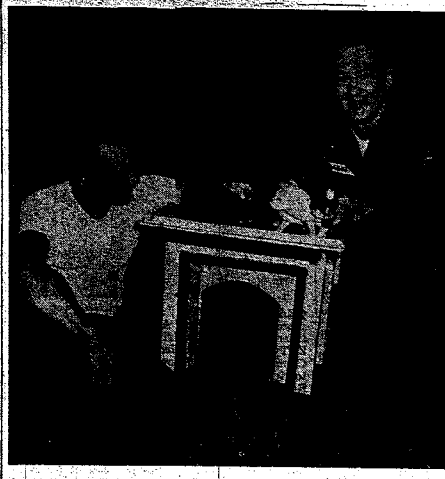

The mess sergeant opened his founding home five weeks ago when the pups were found under the building next to his mess hall. Their mother died two days after they were born.

"Pop" went to a Columbus veterinarian and obtained a food formula, composed of two parts milk, one part water and a teaspoon of syrup. The puppies are fed with nursing bottles.

With the help of Sgt. Frank Costanza, "Pop" built a fancy doghouse complete with linoleum floor and screened windows. The house has a screen door also.

Members of the 326th contributed money to help "Pop" buy the food and necessities for the dogs. Each puppy has his own nursing bottle.

"Pop" is now enjoying a 30 day leave in Illinois. During his absence, Sgt. Costanza is caring for the pups.

Foreign Officers Receiving Aid Through Unit's 'Buddie' System

BY MSGT CLARK BLACKBURN
The 'buddie' system with a new twist has been instituted by The School Brigade. The system is being applied by American officers to help foreign officers in having a more valuable and pleasant stay at Fort Benning. The idea was suggested by Capt. Clifford H. Vaughn, CO of the 3rd Company.

Seventy-five American officers and 25 Allied officers — representing 10 countries — are cooperating in the program. Countries represented are China, Indonesia, Japan, Pakistan, India, Italy, Thailand, Uruguay, Iraq, and Switzerland.

The idea initiated by Captain Vaughn is for the American student officer to invite the Allied student into his home for dinner; from time to time include him to go along on shopping trips; stay nearby while a social function to insure that he is not 'left out' to invite him to join sports activities, and in general aid the foreign officer in having a more valuable and pleasant stay at Fort Benning.

One Allied officer asked to visit an American farm. Another wanted to visit a used car lot and have the various makes and models explained to him. Still another wanted to be taken to the largest super market in this area to learn of fruits and vegetables and how they were grown.

These varied requests have been taken care of by the American officers.

Captain Vaughn explains that it's probably one of the most important things an officer can do both for himself and the Allied officer, since it will actually show the foreign officer the 'grass roots' American way of life and it gives the Ameri-

This is the first time that such a project has been tried, as company level. I hope to see the idea spread to other units," said Captain Vaughn.

Rugged Scot Seeks Citizenship Papers

A former British Marine Commando who recently transferred to the Army for three years to expedite his qualifications to U. S. citizenship has been assigned to Airborne training at Fort Benning.

The rugged Airborne outfit doesn't make Pvt. Thomas J. Hunter feel out of place at all. He spent almost two years in the British Royal Marine Commandos, England's toughest fighting unit.

However, the good-natured Scotman's aim in life is not a career in a commando-type outfit, even though he is scheduled for assignment to a Special Forces following training here.

Hunter, most of all wants to become an American citizen, then complete a plumbing apprenticeship.

He is assigned to HAS Co., Fourth Student Bn, The School Brigade, at Fort Benning.

Hunter's training with British Royal Marine Commandos was in England. The training, he says, was not unlike training given our Infantry squads. The Commando squad is made up of nine men, three of whom are cliff leaders, three are raiders, and three men a Vickers medium machine gun.

The nine man Commando squad is trained to scale high cliffs, infiltrate enemy lines, harass the rear and cut off supply lines. The training is rugged, he says, but "so was my basic training at Fort Carson, Colo."

After his tour with the British Commandos, Hunter returned to native Glasgow, Scotland. There he became an apprentice plumber. Deciding to fulfill a life-long desire to come to America, he decided to join an aunt and uncle living in Chicago, Ill.

THOMAS J. HUNTER Former Commando

While applying for his visa, he was told that he would be subject to the draft in the U.S., that if he volunteered for three years he could expedite his application of U. S. citizenship.

January 7, 1957, Hunter signed for a three-year hitch. He took basic training at Fort Carson.

Upon completion of Airborne training here, he will go to Fort Bragg, N. C., for assignment to a Special Forces unit. When his enlistment expires, Hunter plans to finish his apprenticeship in Chicago and work toward acceptance as an American.

Two Celebrated Army Canines Report to Scout Dog Unit Here

From Fort Carson

Two of the best-known dogs in the Army have reported to Fort Benning's 28th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

The decorated German shepherd is York, most decorated canine in the history of the Army, and Tony, a setter dog with a "bag full of tricks." They arrived at the post June 8.

Eleven-year-old York is considered the only living decorated war dog in the U. S. Holder of the Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman Badge, unit citations and a special citation, he is a veteran of 148 combat patrols in 19 months during the Korean conflict.

check-up at the post's Animal Clinic.

Welcome Visitor

A particularly welcome visitor, judging by York's friendly response, is SP3 Stewart Booth of Corpus Christi, Texas, a longtime member of the 28th Platoon. Booth, trained both York and his handler in the 28th in Korea. The trainer visited York at the kennels immediately after the latter's arrival to renew acquaintances.

They, seven years old, in the only setter dog at Fort Benning. Sentry dogs differ from Scout dogs in that they will attack on command and kill. Scout dogs, termed "sit-stand dogs," are trained to locate an adversary but refrain from attacking.

Also a Korean veteran, Tony joined the Army in 1953 and has participated in service dog demonstrations throughout the country. He is a veteran performer in dog shows, and parades on and television.

Among Tony's unusual tricks is his ability to abate face, double time, roll over and return to bell position, and back up, all on command alone, without being touched by his handler. SP3 James D. Ward of Blooming Grove, Texas, and of Blooming Grove, Texas, and of Blooming Grove, Texas, are partners in the 28th Platoon.

York and Tony came to Fort Benning from Fort Carson, where they were assigned to the recently closed Dog Training Center.

West Point Gets Tournament Bid

WEST POINT, N.Y. (APFS)—The U.S. Military Academy has been selected to compete in the Bluegrass Holiday Basketball Tournament in Louisville, Ky., next Dec. 30 and 31.

It will be the second time the Academy's basketball team has engaged in a post of pre-season tournament. The team played in the Richmond, Va., Invitational during the Christmas season of 1955.

Raiders Win Streak Halted By Can-Doers

Big Ed Rozanzy tossed a four hitter as the Raiders held the defending champs of the Doughboy League their first loss of the season.

The Can-Doers scored twice in the second inning and once in the third frame. Raiders pitchers walked in two of the runs. Jeff McDowell, Dick Keith and Rozanzy supplied the batting punch during the rallies.

Jose Rivera tallied the first run for the Raiders in the second by knocking out a base hit and then stealing second third and home. The Raiders scored again in the third when Mickey McKelton beat out an infield roller and romped home on an error after reaching second on a fender's throw.

Rozanzy allowed four hits and struck out six Raiders in his winning effort. The Can-Doers started on the mound for the Raiders but was relieved in the second inning by Sonny Justice. Jose Rivera came to Justice's rescue in the third with the bases loaded.

REFRESHING PAUSE . . . Members of the 29th Infantry commander baseball team take time out for a private session to enjoy a cold drink of water. SFC Anthony J. Gagliardo, mess steward at Hq. # Crank, Bernard Pace Commanders to Win

The 29th Infantry Commanders banged out nine hits, three for extra bases, to sound for a private session to enjoy a cold drink of water. SFC Anthony J. Gagliardo, mess steward at Hq. Co., 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, is the host for the players. Getting a drink are (left to right) Roger Schultz, Virgle Hazelrig and trainer Ben Gillman.

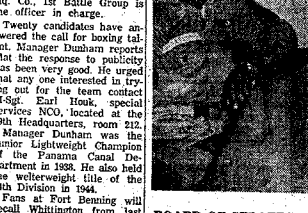

Herb Crank led the 29th at lack by knocking in four runs three of them in the sixth inning on a bases-loaded triple which hit the left field fence on one short bounce.

John Bernard, Commanders' hurler, scattered five safeties, walked one and struck out four. Medics to catch his third straight win. He also helped his own cause by batting in a run in the sixth.

After going hitless in the first three innings, the Commanders rapped out three straight hits in the fourth to score three runs. Frank Lee capped the Inter-Allied Armies Rifle Championship, with shootery coming from France, Belgium, Great Britain and the U. S., commented Col. Swindler.

From that first big victory, Col. Swindler has been participating in major matches. He was a competitor until the last eight to 10 years when he began serving coach and referee for the top rifle and pistol teams in the Army.

He came to Fort Benning in 1949 to head the marksmanship program for what was then a small aggregation of All-Army shooters. "When I had to get a team to represent the Army in some big match with other services and tournaments," Col. Swindler added, "I had to send out all over the Army posts in the nation and then only had about nine or 10 top rifers."

BOARD OF STRATEGY . . . The 29th Infantry is making preparations for the defense of their Post Boxing Championship. Sgt. Joe Whittington (left), 1st Battle Group, trainer, 1st Lt. # Father Referees While Son Fires

BY JERRY ARMSTRONG Some of his earlier shooters proved to be great in ability, if not in numbers. Both the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches, being fired at Fort Benning until June 20, has an added interest in the results this year—his son is firing.

His son, PFC Roger Swindler, is firing on the rifle team from the U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, which is located at Fort Benning.

PFC Swindler has only been a member of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit for a short time. He was assigned to the unit after re-enlisting for his second time in Jacksonville, Fla.

"Roger is planning to stay with the Marksmanship Unit until the National Championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August and September," said Col. Swindler.

After the Nationals in Ohio, young Swindler has plans of applying for Officers Candidate School.

Col. Swindler, who is probably one of the oldest marksmen in point of knowledge of rifle and pistol competition still active with the Army today. His participation in rifle shooting alone on an international basis go back to 1922.

"My first big international rifle victory came when I was stationed with the Fourth Division, Third Army, in Germany in 1922. That year I topped the Inter-Allied Armies Rifle Championship, with shootery coming from France, Belgium, Great Britain and the U. S.," commented Col. Swindler.

From that first big victory, Col. Swindler has been participating in major matches. He was a competitor until the last eight to 10 years when he began serving coach and referee for the top rifle and pistol teams in the Army.

He came to Fort Benning in 1949 to head the marksmanship program for what was then a small aggregation of All-Army shooters. "When I had to get a team to represent the Army in some big match with other services and tournaments," Col. Swindler added, "I had to send out all over the Army posts in the nation and then only had about nine or 10 top rifers."

The Commanders exploded for six runs in the sixth. The first three men up were issued free passes by Medic pitcher, Pete McLaughlin. Crank smashed his base-clearing triple and came home on Bernard's single.

The Commander's record stand at five wins and two losses alter the Medic game.

AFRS Highlights Top Sports Tilts

There's one thing about the Army . . . no matter where you are assigned, fifty, five hundred or two thousand miles from home, if you have a radio you can hear the Milwaukee Braves playing the Brooklyn Dodgers, championship fights, major horse races or football bowl games.

The reason is the armed forces radio service, which this year is finally realizing the full extent of its coverage.

It all started when AFRS offered its listeners pocket schedules for the major league games they planned to cover. Letters began to pour in from virtually the four corners of the globe.

Although AFRS is intended for service personnel, homesick civilians also applauded the voice from "home." Letters came from everywhere. From two missionaries in the Belgian Congo; from Seaman Terence McKidder aboard the USS Prairie in the Persian Gulf; from E. Leonard Grout in the embassy at Baghdad, and from a scientist in the Antarctic who wants to "vote in the All-Star game."

Why all the fuss? Well, in the course of a year AFRS has crammed the air waves with some 770 hours of sports. Last year, for example, they aired 160 baseball games, including the world series 50 top fights, 50 basketball games, the Indianapolis 500, four major horse races, including the Kentucky Derby, 11 weekends of college and pro football and a half hour daily sports show.

But the real beauty of the whole setup is — no commercials. Through a switching arrangement all commercials are slashed out. This alone must be the reason why so many would we have to hear "And now Earline, reach into that ice box for a cool, refreshing . . ."

Oh, well, you can't have your cake and eat it too!

With the post swimming meet fast approaching our sports agenda here at Benning, the talk "around the campus" has turned to the tales of the fin-flippers.

Two of the world's fastest sprint swimmers, Jon Henricks and Dawn Fraser, startled Australian swimming experts last year at Melbourne when they revealed the new training method they had adopted.

The swimmers, who won two gold medals each at the last Olympic games, are doing weight lifting to strengthen their muscles.

Most swimming coaches forbid the use of weights in training, on the grounds that it tightens swimmers' muscles. But Henricks and Fraser say a weights course helps their swimming.

"Weight lifting has improved me," said Fraser. "When I swim now, the water feels lighter. I don't feel the resistance and take longer to tire."

Anyone for a little weight lifting??

Baseball has always been referred to as the favorite national pastime of the United States. But, what is the favorite sport of one of every four men and one of every 11 women? According to a government survey, it's fishing.

The United States fish and wildlife service estimated that American anglers traveled 18 million miles on 343 million trips and spent 337 million man-days and two billion dollars in one year just to catch fish.

Post Officials Strengthen U. S., Canadian Relations

With visits to "Queen of England" and "The President of the United States" in the playing of the Canadian and United States National Anthems, the traditional and historical friendship between the United States and Canada was further cemented and strengthened last week on the occasion of the first visit of the Commandant of the United States Army Infantry School to the Royal Canadian School of Infantry.

Major General Herbert B. Powell, Commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, and eight of his key staff officers visited the Royal Canadian School of Infantry at Camp Borden, Ontario, June 15-18.

The Fort Benning guests were greeted upon arrival at Camp Borden with a guard of honor which General Powell respected. At a luncheon at the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers Mess in honor of General Powell, the commandant of the school, Colonel P. R. Bingham, USA, Colonel Bingham stated that he was honored to be host on the first visit of the Commandant of the U. S. Infantry School to the Royal Canadian School of Infantry.

The Fort Benning officers spent two days touring the School of Infantry observing training and witnessing demonstrations. One of the most interesting items of the tour was the visit to the United States officers saw a demonstration of the "RAT" vehicle which has been developed by Canada. The "RAT" is a small tracked vehicle which moves equally well over snow, marshland, water, hills and open terrain.

The "Fort Benning officers also examined and witnessed the firing of the new Canadian rifle which is modeled after the Belgian rifle. It fires the NATO round which is 7.62 millimeters and is the same round fired by the M-14 and M-16 U. S. rifles and the M-16 general purpose machine gun.

Also observed were the cadets from the Royal Canadian Military College who were undergoing summer training at Camp Borden.

The visiting U. S. group were guests at a Mess Reception and buffet supper on the evening of June 18 and were treated to roast beef, moose and buffalo, another first for most of the visitors.

At a formal Mess Dinner the next evening the United States officers were again honored. The Canadian officers in their formal mess uniforms which are the same shade of red as the house of the Royal Canadian (Mounted Police uniform, and their white dress uniforms made a colorful contrast. During the dinner the band of the "Queen of the North" played traditional tunes. Officers from the "Queen of the North" and "Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry" and the "Royal Canadian Regiment" were present. As a special official march of each Canadian Regiment was given to the officers of that regiment and rigidity at attention.

The traditional toasts to "The Queen of England" and "The President of the United States" were given in both English and French in which the national anthem of both countries was played as the officers of the two countries stood at attention.

Accompanying General Powell on the visit were Col. Henry B. Kump, president of the U. S. Army Infantry School, Col. Dured E. Townsend, chief of the Infantry School's Commandant's Office, Col. Samuel T. McDowell, Col. Frank M. Jensen, Col. John A. Dalton, Col. George A. McGee, Jr., directors of The Infantry School's Weapons, Tactics, Ranger and Staff Departments, respectively; Lt. Col. James R. Connor, U. S. Army Infantry Center information officer, and Lt. Col. Daniel B. Porter, deputy operations officer of the Infantry School.

Camp Borden, home of the United States Infantry School of Infantry, is located 17 miles west of Barrie, Ontario, and 70 miles north of Toronto. The camp encompasses an area of 28,000 acres at an elevation of 750 feet. In general, the area is a large, rolling, sandy peninsula, well wooded.

Camp Borden is named in honor of Sir Frederick William Borden, KCMG, BA, MD, who was Minister of Militia and Defence from 1907 to 1911. The camp has been used continuously since World War I by the Canadian Army.

3rd Army Show to Play At Ft. Benning June 28

Fort Benning will be one of many stops for the Third Army's talent-studded variety show, "Summer Daze," on its regular summer tour of the Army area.

The lively production, designed to please both young and old, will be at Fort Benning on Friday, June 28. The show, which features many show business professionals in uniform, will be at the U.S. Army Hospital recreation hall at 3 p.m. and at Theater No. 1 at 8:30 p.m.

"Summer Daze" ranges from rock and roll to the current popular culture. Among recently popular artists are: The Canadian National Ballet; Fredy Engel, formerly with the Balancing and Juggling Family Circus; Norberto of Ringling Circus; Jimmie F. Flanders, Jr.; Lamiramide and Bob Deakin, acrobatic roller-skaters.

Another attention-getter is Stuart Miller, a protégé of the great Blackstone, billed as "Summer Daze" on its regular summer tour of the Army area.

On the feminine side, "Rita and Peggy" specialize in clever pantomime, and the troupe's vocalist, Betty Ann Dieman, warmly sings up "pop" song favorites. The colorful female trio, Bobby Cook (formerly of Fort Benning), joins Rita and Peggy with Parkins in their calypso footwork.

Billy - laughs and country-style music is provided by the fabulous "Country Cousins," which features "Pappy" Burns, "Little Willie" Hoeged, and "Pewee" Walker. The entire show is backed by the "Woodmasters."

Benning Fire Ants Wane From Shots of Chlordane

Fort Benning officials report that the fire ants are being removed from the post's battalions.

An emergency treatment consisting of a spray with a combination of chlordane and dieldrin is being applied to mounds by men of the Board and Engineering Section of the U. S. Army Infantry Center. Engineers lay the eggs; winged females, which mate with the queen; and worker ants which are wingless females and usually sterile.

Injury to humans occurs frequently. Major Walter W. Piers, U. S. Army Infantry Center, said that the ants are being removed from the post's battalions.

Post Greet 527 Cadets

Fort Benning will welcome the train of America's future officers when 527 second classmen from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., arrive today for summer training.

Their stay at Fort Benning is part of a summing-up tour of military installations across the country designed to familiarize the cadets with all phases of the Army's services before they are commissioned in June, 1959.

The cadets will arrive at Lawson Army Air Field late today to depart early Friday morning for a one-day look at the Florida training camp of the U. S. Army Infantry School's Ranger Department at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. West Point students are to return to Fort Benning that evening and will begin training July 1.

During their two and a half-week stay at the post, the cadets will undergo academic instruction and practical exercises, preparing them for their first military assignment as platoon leaders. They will gain basic concepts of Infantry operations, primarily by witnessing various Infantry School combat conditions and designed to give the cadets a first-hand, in-action look at weapons and doctrines they have studied in the classrooms. The West Pointers have several special events planned for them. Please see Cadets, Page 5

Flouridation to Begin At Ft. Benning Aug. 1

Fort Benning is scheduled to have flouridation water by Aug. 1, U.S. Army Infantry Center engineer, Col. William S. Shoemaker, has announced.

Final approval of flouridation plans submitted to the Office of the Chief of Engineers, Washington, D. C., has been received. Necessary equipment and materials are on order and are expected to arrive the early part of July, with installation being completed by Aug. 1, officials said.

"We are now happy to say that the expensive water research and studies that have been conducted nationally and the surveys and reports of conditions at Fort Benning will return ample benefits in dental health and in the life expectancy of the post's personnel," said Col. Ostrom Jr., U. S. Army Infantry Center dental surgeon.

Surveys of the natural fluoride content of water and the number of children in different age groups, who would benefit from flouridation, were conducted by the Infantry Center Dental Surgeon's Office at the initial part of the project. The main phase of equipment installation is being completed by Aug. 1, officials said.

ROTC
Thank you for continuing training and practical exercises; second mission, to develop your leadership abilities. Regardless of branch of service, an officer must be a well-qualified combat man.

The general went on to say that not all of the time would be spent in training, that an intensive religious, athletic and social program had been arranged for the cadets and that he hoped they would avail themselves of it.

The cadets are invited and urged to take an active part in every extra-curricular activity which may appeal to the cadet's individual taste, he added.

In closing, Gen. Thompson advised the cadets to apply themselves to the course and that he was certain that they would look back upon this summer camp as one of the most interesting, valuable and rewarding experiences of their lives.

After welcoming the cadets, Gen. Thompson presented the Honor Plaque to Cadet Rafael E. Martine-Boucher of New York, N.Y., a student at New Citadel, and present company commander of Company F, 10th Infantry, which was selected as Honor Company at the conclusion of the 1956 summer camp.

In doing so, he advised Cadet Martine-Boucher that the Honor Plaque was for permanent retention of Company F, 10th Infantry, which was selected as Honor Company at the conclusion of the 1956 summer camp.

Upon conclusion of the opening ceremonies, the cadets marched to their barracks, received their khaki uniforms and moved their baggage to the 26-day training schedule.

Thank you for continuing (formly) adds the proper amount of sodium fluoride to the post's water system. Since the water in the Columbus-Fort Benning area has a natural content of 0.1 to 0.2 parts sodium fluoride per million parts water, it is a matter of increasing concern for dental and engineering authorities say.

The increase will be 0.8 parts per million.

Leaves for Germany Gen. Cook Honored For Service at Post

The presentation of a U.S. Continental Army Command Certificate of Achievement highlighted farewell ceremonies for Brig. Gen. Robert L. Cook at Fort Benning June 21.

Gen. Cook was cited "for his performance of outstanding service as assistant commander of the U.S. Army Infantry School" since July, 1955. He left Monday to serve as assistant commander of the 10th Infantry Division in Warsaw, Germany.

Signed by Gen. Willard G. Wynnan, commander of Continental Army Command, the certificate was awarded by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School Commandant, during an honor guard on Chapel Field.

"During this period of changing concepts and developments of new tactical and organizational doctrine, Gen. Cook displayed exceptional professional competence in solving many unusual and complex problems."

"Exercising great vision, determination and initiative, he raised the standards of instruction, expanded the allied student program and developed demonstrations reflecting the highest state of training of the Infantry. His intense personal interest in the problems of the Infantry School, its staff, faculty and students, has been an inspiration to his associates."

"I take pleasure in commending Gen. Cook for his dedicated service, initiative, resourcefulness and initiative."

Post Automobile Accidents Dip Sharply During Past 5 Months

BY NORMAN SOLON
Despite the fact that Fort Benning personnel own more motor vehicles than ever before, the post automobile death and injury rate has dipped sharply during the first five months of 1957.

During the period of January through May, the overall accident rate for Fort Benning was 5.0 per 1,000 operating vehicles as compared with 14.9 for the same time last year. In 1956, 100 accidents involving 130 vehicles were reported. This year, only 25 accidents involving 30 vehicles have been reported.

The biggest improvement was made by the School Brigade safety director, who reported that 95 fewer fatalities, had 25 fewer injuries requiring hospitalization and have committed 250 less traffic violations than during this period last year.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powel, U. S. Army Infantry Center commanding general, commended the officers and men who made the improvement possible.

"It is indicative," Gen. Powel stated, "that drivers are accepting their individual responsibilities for safe, mature conduct on post roads and public highways."

The 929 drivers of the U. S. Army Hospital were involved in only one accident this year as compared with two in 1956.

Norman M. Evans, Infantry Center safety director, said that there is a direct correlation between the improved safety record and the reduced number of traffic violations reported. He added that the Infantry Brigade had 92 less traffic reports and Special Troops Command reduced its total by 35.

Despite this achievement, Evans warned against a reduction in safety consciousness with today's warm weather. He cautioned drivers to beware of the increased congestion on the nation's highways at this time of year.

single accident from January through May. Last year they also had a perfect record for the period.

Special Troops Command with 1,380 vehicles reduced its accident rate for the five months from 14 in 1956 to five this year.

Ranger Raid Slated On Florida Fortress

Fort Pickett, Fla., which withstood the might of Confederate forces during the Civil War to stand as a Yankee fortress in the heart of the South will finally capitulate June 28 in the face of a U. S. Army Infantry School Ranger Department raid backed up by the combined effort of all branches of the Armed Forces.

The old fortress which was once the prison for the great Indian chief Geronimo, will be the objective of a student ranger company in a training maneuver which includes participation by the U. S. Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

According to Col. John J. Dalton of Boston, Mass., Ranger department commander this is the only exercise presently being conducted where all five services are involved.

"We believe," Col. Dalton stated, "that this maneuver will provide valuable training not only for Ranger students but for the NCOs and Junior officers of all the participating services.

Present plans call for the problem to be staged 11 times during the exercise.

The seaborne commando exercise involves a raid by friendly forces against an aggressor field atomic missile launching site located on the fort off the coast of Pensacola.

On the afternoon of June 25 Navy minesweepers will leave Panama City, Fla., for a rendezvous off the coast of Fort Walton, Fla. There a company of 112 Ranger students will row out to the craft in rubber boats to be transported to the site of the attack.

Under the cover of darkness, the Ranger group consisting of Army and Marine Corps officers and enlisted men and officers of three allied nations will again board their rubber craft and sneak silently to their objective on Santa Rosa Island and attempt to destroy the installation and kill or capture all of the aggressor force guarding the area.

The attacking force will be harassed by Eglin Air Force base which will drop flares and simulate straffing the Rangers.

The Coast Guard will have a number of ships present as a safety measure for any emergency.

Five Korean officers, the first ever to take Ranger training from their nation will be among the attacking Ranger force.

Mrs. Ward Honored . . . Mrs. Albert N. Ward Jr., was presented a lavender luncheon at the Fort Benning Country Club June 14. The affair was presided with a microphone ladies golf tournament.

Col. Ward, deputy director of the Infantry School's Tactical Department, will attend the Army War College at Castle Barracks, Va.

83d Infantry Div. to Hold Annual Meet Aug. 15-17

The famed 83d Infantry (Thunderbolt) Division of World Wars I and II will hold its annual meeting Aug. 15 to 17 at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City.

Principal speaker on the program will be Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Clarence R. Huebner, director of Civil Defense for New York state.

All present and former members are invited to attend. Reservations may be obtained by writing the Roosevelt Hotel.

After Army reductions in manpower in 1955, two U.S. Army Reserve divisions in the Second U.S. Army remained on a combat basis, the 83d and the 79th Infantry Division in Pennsylvania. The location of these two divisions in densely populated areas gives them a greater reserve manpower potential from which to draw in the event of rapid mobilization.

Organized in September, 1917 the 83rd fought in Italy and France in 1918. It was reconstituted Aug. 15, 1942, at Camp Atterbury, Ind., under the command of Major Gen. Frank W. Milburn.

In December, 1943, Brig. Gen. Robert C. Macnamer assumed command of the division for the remainder of the war and the early occupation duty. The unit sailed for England in April, 1944.

Mrs. Powell Enjoys Art Of Delicate Landscaping

BY JULIA BRUENKE
 Curio shops half a world life and scenes depicted in the away inspired Fort Benning's art. Her inquiries led to a con- gracious and talented Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, wife of Major Gen. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, who she and the general to delve into one of Japan's ancient cultural arts, Bankei, or tray landscaping.

A lover of miniatures, Mrs. Powell became interested in the tiny figures and objects she saw in the shops of Hawaii. She learned that they were used in creating the delicate

Gen. Powell was away in Korea," Mrs. Powell added.

"You know our hospitals had Bankei teachers working with the soldiers and even though the men usually had only a few weeks or months to practice and learn, the art was popular with them and certainly therapeutic," she said.

Like many of Japan's art and culture, Bankei was introduced from China more than 200 years ago. At first it was used only in the temples, spreading from there to the home shrines of the aristocracy and wealthy upper classes.

Although Japan's cultural activities have come to her from China, often through Korea, and from other Eastern places, through the centuries her people have added their characteristics and improvements until the culture has become truly Japanese, Mrs. Powell stated.

"It was enlightening to see how sincerely pleased the people in our area were to have an American display interest in their art and ways of life. With their very real interest toward their accomplishments, the Japanese are pleased and satisfied when their certificates are given to them," she said.

On the day of her "graduation" when she was presented with her certificates in Bankei, Mrs. Powell invited the master and teachers to her quarters. The women had never been in an automobile before, had never seen an American-type home, nor eaten with knives and forks.

"They examined every part of the house and wanted to see how the beds were made as well as our clothes. Though they didn't care much for our food, the kitchen fascinated them. It was a wonderful day," said Mrs. Powell.

High Percentage Asks Gyroscope With 9th FA Unit

The Third Infantry Division's 9th Field Artillery Battalion has a mounting percentage of gyroscope applications.

Of an allotted 427 enlisted men, 104 have applied to stay with the "Marine" Division and travel to Germany.

A total of 79 of the eligible 145 NCO's have been selected to make the trip. Leading the 100 commissioned officers are master sergeants with 17 of an eligible 23 making applications.

Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, assistant commander in chief of the Army Infantry School, headed a group of four infantry school officials attending the second annual Atomic Training Conference at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., June 26-28.

The faculty and staff of the Command and General Staff College are hosts for the meeting, which has drawn approximately 80 senior Army officers from throughout the nation. The conferees will deal with new doctrine and concepts of the employment of atomic weapons in support of ground operations and will recommend actions to improve the Army's capabilities with these weapons.

EXAMINATION . . . Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center at Fort Benning, examines the results of a suggestion which won a $10 incentive award for Berman P. ## Local Group Hears Gen. Ruggles Speak Alaska is the only point where the U. S. comes face to face with the Soviet while standing on our own soil, Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commander of the U. S. Army Infantry Center at Fort Benning, told members of the Military Order of World Wars June 26.

Gen. Ruggles, in an after dinner speech on "The Strategic Importance of Alaska" at the Main Officers' Mess at Fort Benning, pointed out that Alaska and Siberia are separated by only 56 miles of water at the closest point.

Gen. Ruggles served as commanding officer of the Fourth Infantry Regiment, 71st Division, with headquarters at Fort Air Force Base, near Fairbanks, Alaska, for 10 months before becoming commanding general of the Infantry Center at Fort Benning in April of this year.

The deputy commander of the Infantry Center traced the important dates in the development of Alaska from its discovery in 1741, to the resettlement of 200 families to Alaska in 1935 and the occupation of the island of Attu by the Japanese in 1942.

Gen. Ruggles pointed out that Seward's Kobok, an Alaskan was mockingly called after the then secretary of state, was purchased for slightly over $7 million.

"Today we build hospitals that cost more than that," the general commented. "And we've taken 600 million dollars school zone."

worth of gold out of Alaska since its discovery in the 1890's. He cited the tremendous wealth of natural resources in the country, but added that the major difficulty in the area was that of transportation. He explained that the airplane and dog sled were the principal means of transportation in the area, although water transportation was added in the summer.

Mentioning that Russian air fields on the tip of Siberia are the closest Soviet air fields to the U. S., the general pointed out that from Fairbanks, Alaska to Moscow, over the Arctic Circle route, is only 4300 miles. Gen. Ruggles illustrated the proximity of Alaska and the surrounding general of the Yukon Eskimos, who made frequent visits to friends and relatives in Siberia. The general stopped, however, the general added, when some of them were detained by the Soviets and treated roughly.

Major (Ret.) Charles Taylor, Military Order of World Wars commander, presided at the meeting, and Lt. Col. (Ret.) Ed Hooper, introduced the speaker. Honor guest at the meeting was Brig. Gen. William A. Harris, artillery commander of the Third Infantry Division.

Officer Is Old Hand At Fashioning Ukles

MSGT. CLARK BLACKBURN, Pullman, Wash., where he majored in police science and administration.

Having been active in athletics in high school and University of Hawaii, Kamaka tried out for four sports at the Washington school, but he dropped two. He quit football the second day of practice because frost was on the ground—his Hawaiian blood didn't take to the cold weather. Swimming was the other sport he quit—too much chlorine in the water. He did letter in track, however, and was on the volleyball team.

Finishing Washington State as a distinguished military graduate in ROTC, Kamaka accepted a Regular Army commission as an Infantry second lieutenant.

Lt. Kamaka says he is a career Army Officer but will retain interest in the ukulele manufacturing business.

Want to buy a genuine, hand-made ukulele from Honolulu, Hawaii? See Lt. Fredrick K. Kamaka, 3rd Co., 1st Student Bn., The School Brigade. The student officer is a partner in the Kamaka Manufacturing Company in Honolulu. The business turns out hand-made instruments exclusive-ly.

The company was founded in 1916 by his father. From his earliest recollections, Lt. Kamaka worked with ukuleles and during vacation periods learning the business, from the ground up.

You would think that Lt. Kamaka would be a champion ukulele player, but even though it is his business he dislikes the instrument. He says "I grew up with almost a hatred for all ukuleles. All I can remember about the work in my Dad's shop was the endless hours of sanding the native woods that went into the making of the pin-sized instruments. I didn't learn to play one until I finished high school."

Lt. Kamaka played the drums and clarinet, singing with various groups, however. Lt. Kamaka is now a "silent" partner with his brother, but still retains a keen interest in the firm's accomplishments. He says it takes three days to make a ukulele, and they sell from $16.00 to $50.00 each. A handomely-made ukulele he brought with him to Fort Benning was specially made by his brother out of koa, ohia and mahoe woods.

Service personnel are the largest purchasers of their product. "The three things a serviceman wants when he first comes to the islands," says Lt. Kamaka, "are a Hawaiian lei, a ukulele, and to watch the hula girls perform in their grass skirts."

Lt. Kamaka's military career began when he was inducted into the Army in November, 1948. After 4 months of service he reverted to civilian status and enrolled in the University of Hawaii. Completing one year's study, he transferred to Washington State

Post Offers
For Personnel

Fort Benning will launch July 1 a post-wide incentive awards program tabbed "Project Paydirt," to encourage military and civilian personnel to submit constructive ideas for improvement of Army operating efficiency and effectiveness according to officials.

Special committee meetings and awards ceremonies throughout the month of July will highlight activities to stimulate the Army-wide campaign. The Department of Army has designated the month of July as the "kick-off" period for this special project for the fiscal year 1958.

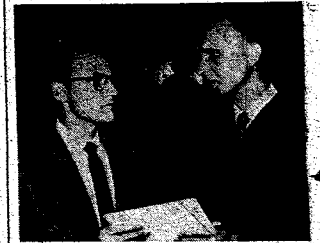

The creative spirit of the Army's personnel always has played an important part in increasing its effectiveness, officials stated. An increase over the 1956 suggestion rate of 136 per 1000 men not only will improve operating efficiency and morale.

In a letter to Fort Benning personnel, Major Gen. Herbert E. Fowler, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, said, "Increased participation in the Suggestion Program is one of our most effective tools in our effort to conserve resources. The personal interest of major unit commanders, chiefs of general and special staff sections, and all supervisors is required if maximum benefits are to be realized."

ROTC OFFICIALS . . . Fort Benning Reserve Officer Training Corps Summer Camp officials prepare for the more than 1,300 cadets from 26 Southeastern colleges and universities who will arrive at the Harmony Church area June 22 for six weeks of training. From left to right are, Lt. Col. Keith M. Roberts of the Georgia Institute of Technology, director of instruction, Col. Marvin A. Kriebert of the University of Florida, deputy camp commander, and Lt. Col. Sterling H. Abernathy of Fordyce, Ark., chief of the Civilian Component Section.

This program are to be realized. Designating the Army-wide campaign "Project Paydirt" and giving it his full support, Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Bricker said, "Through the Army Incentive Awards every imaginative employee is afforded a practical opportunity to make an outstanding contribution. It also enables the Army to recognize and reward both military and civilian personnel for worthy suggestions or exceptional performance."

Major Smith To Command Food School

New commandant at the Third U.S. Army Food Service School at Fort Benning is Major Maurice L. Smith. He replaces Lt. Col. Clyde M. Thornhill, who retired in April after more than 29 years of service.

Major Smith comes to Fort Benning from Korea, where he was chief of the Food Service Section for the Eighth U. S. Army headquarters.

A veteran of more than 16 years of service, Major Smith entered the Army in December, 1940, and was graduated from the Quartermaster Officer Candidate School at Fort Lee, Va., in 1942. He then served with the 35th Quartermaster Battalion of the 32d Infantry Division in Pasadena, Calif., until February, 1945.

After joining the 35th General Depot at Taunton, England, he landed in Normandy June 12, 1944. As company commander with a quarter-master group, Major Smith commanded the Third and Seventh U.S. Armies in their campaigns across France and Germany during World War II.

Returning to the U.S. in October, 1945, he was on inactive duty until 1948 when he was recalled to service. Assigned as an instructor at the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee from 1948 to 1952, he also attended the advanced Food Service School during this time.

In 1950 Major Smith went to Fort Richardson, Alaska, as post food adviser. Returning to Fort Lee in 1952, he again served as an instructor in the Food Service School.

After completing the subsistence technical course in Chicago, Ill., in 1955, Major Smith was assigned to the Eighth U.S. Army in Korea.

He is married to the former Gertrude Schneider. They have three children, Steven Lee, 7, Stephanie Ann, 7, and Danny Joe, 5.

Thank You for Continuing which any first sergeant would be proud of his shouting encouragement to the Commanders and harassing the ump's, he can be heard "for a country mile."
Since arriving at the 26th in Jan. 1956, he has yet to miss a one of his games. He lists baseball as his favorite sport but also enjoys basketball, football, tennis and hockey.
Company D's first sergeant played baseball when offered the service. He handled the third base duties but gave up playing the game a few years ago.
The master sergeant is a great fishing enthusiast. When he retires he plans to "fade away to Florida" like many another old soldier has done. He may run into several other ex-members of the 29th who are spending their leisure time trying to lure fish onto their hooks.

Local Army Association Membership Increasing

Almost 1,000 members have been enrolled in the Columbus Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army in the first five months of its existence, organization officials have announced.

The organization represents the Army in the same way that the American Medical Association does for the medical profession or the bar association of lawyers for the legal profession.

Lawson Army Air Field Command has reported 100 per cent of their officers and warrant officers have joined the local chapter.

The organization strives to consolidate the efforts of all who support the Army as an indispensable instrument of national security.

In addition, the association fosters and preserves the spirit of fellowship among former, present and future members, which they may utilize in bonds of comradeship. It also aims to perpetuate those Army and unit traditions that contribute to the honor and superior performance of duty.

Each Fort Benning unit has a membership drive project of honor and soldiers interested in joining are urged to contact men or their commanding officer.

Membership dues are $5 for one year, $9 for two or $2 for three years.

Plans have been made to hold a general meeting of the organization at Fort Benning in September.

Gogi Grant to do Movie Voice

(LAPPS Weekly Feature)
TRAINING methods of the Marine Corps at Parris Island, S.C., have been filmed and made a part of a series of documentary films on life in America for showing throughout Europe. Filmed under the direction of Francois Reichenbach of Paris, France, assistants were Philipo Guerrero, an Air Force Reserve lieutenant, and William Flores, Navy veteran. The Parris Island film will be entitled "Le But" (The Goal).

Watchers of the Dave Garraway NCB-TV show heard a dramatic plea for pennies (one penny from each viewer) from Navy CPO Murray Chase of the cargo ship Antares, spearheading a drive to build a school for underprivileged children in Barcelona, Spain. The chief had already reached $6,000 of his $20,000 goal.

Hollywood will call its film version of the Helen Morgan life story "Both Ends of the Candle." The sound track singing will be done by Gogi Grant, of "Wayward Winds" fame, with Ann Byth portraying the piano-top singer. . . CBS-TV and Pat Page will finally sing "The Big Record" this fall after a two-year delay. The live variety show will move into the Wednesday night spot long occupied and just vacated by Arthur Godfrey. . . Last music composed by the late Victor Young is the ballad "China Gate," title song of the film marking Nat (King) Cole's dramatic debut. . . For a western film, the wardrobe of Doni Crayne in "Shoot Out at Medicine Bend" opens eyes. It consists of such strictly indoor items as a brief dance costume, a nightgown, a negligee and three strapless, backless dresses. . . Belgian and American night club singer Maudie

Van Voorhis is making her first film in France. . . Ma Parkins' 24-year-old soap opera veteran of CBS Radio, has taken off into the wild blue yonder. ## Operation 'Web Foot' Proves Successful Operation "Web Foot", a highly successful river crossing exercise conducted by the "Marne Division", 30th Infantry Combat Command, has provided new amphibious techniques for small infantry units.

Under the direction of the regimental commander, Col. E. O. Beckham, the 30th Infantry with an understrength ROCID rifle company conducted the river crossing exercise, moving the entire company, less vehicles, across a large body of water, utilizing the equipment of the individual infantryman and natural materials normally found in the field. All equipment of the company, including M16mm Repeating Rifles, .50 caliber and .42 mortars and ammunition were moved across the water.

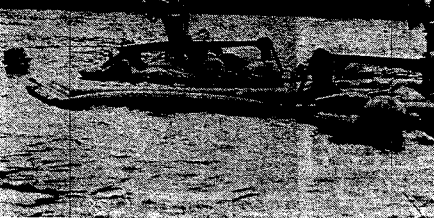

With the use of air mattresses, and better balls, and tent ropes, which are a part of each man's equipment, and a collection of small saplings common to the Georgia region, a series of highly efficient rafts were constructed by the infantrymen. On these rafts were placed the men, weapons, equipment, and ammunition to make the move across the water. The rafts were propelled by men swimming along side, or by other men floating on air mattresses and pushing the raft while paddling the air mattress across the stream. The only piece of equipment used for the exercise which is not normally found in a rifle company was some long lengths of rope.

Operation "Web Foot I" was conducted in May 1957, and was used to test the ability of the men to construct men rafts, load and move across stream.

Operation "Web Foot II" was held on Thursday, 19 June, and was the same type exercise with a tactical situation added. The objective of "Web Foot II" was to stage and air-land for helicopter operations, with a river to cross to reach that objective. The exercise was planned as a surprise maneuver taking place under simulated conditions of darkness and complete lack of noise.

Major General Roy E. Lindquist, Commanding General of the 3d Infantry Division, and other key officers of the "Marne Division" observed the conduct of the exercise, which was conducted at Fort Benning's Victory Pond.

During the exercise, it was found that an air mattress support 300 pound loads. In the conduct of river crossing, it was found that a load of 100 pounds could be handled very easily on a six air mattress raft, but 100 lbs. of greater weight were not practical because of load spreading problems. Sticks are the principal item used for load spreading purposes.

HEAVY EQUIPMENT . . . Is moved across stream during Exercise "Web Foot", conducted by the "Marne Division's" 30th Infantry Combat Command. All equipment of a rifle company was moved across on air mattress rafts, including 16mm Recaliber Rifle shown above.

New Concept Begins July 1 In Third Div.

Commanding General of the Third Infantry Division, Major Gen. Roy E. Lindquist, announced today that the unit will become one of the Army's new "Pentomic" divisions on July 1.

Formal ceremonies July 1 will officially mark the division's reorganization under the Reorganization of Current Infantry Division concept, which is designed to make the Army's infantry divisions more flexible fighting units on the atomic battlefield.

The reorganization will mean a decrease of some 3,000 infantrymen in the division. Yet, the men are to construct men rafts, load and move across stream.

The "Pentomic" Infantry Division is built around five Infantry Battle Groups in lieu of the former three regiments. The Battle Group is a self-contained organization of combat arms, plus necessary communication and administrative support. It is capable of fighting independently under sustained periods of combat.

Two of the battle groups that have joined the Third Division are former charter members of the unit. They are the 4th and 5th Infantry Battalions.

Better Management Saves in Manpower

Army manpower utilization procedures are saving millions of man-years in soldier effort, Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles told the Armed Forces Management Association at Fort Benning June 19.

The deputy commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center spoke at a dinner meeting of the management organization in the Main Officers' Mess.

Gen. Ruggles explained that in the early days of the Korean conflict, he was assigned to the Manpower Control Division of the Army's Office of the G-1 (personnel officer), serving as executive officer to the present commander of the Infantry Center, Major Gen. (Gen. Col.) Herbert B. Powell.

A grave manpower problem was that large numbers of troops trained in Army schools before shipment to Korea had to be retained in Japan to fill battlefields needs, the speaker added.

"Our military school system was operating at its full capacity without being geared to requirements. We were turning out people with no respect to military occupational specialties," Gen. Ruggles said.

"This was monstrous waste of manpower and effort. Electronic accounting machines were developed to forecast Korean requirements several months in advance. MOS, so we could train men for specific needs," he said.

"The machine also had to project losses," the speaker noted. "This machine was the answer and it's still operating."

today. It's cumbersome, but it turns out the data," Gen. Ruggles stressed.

The former commander of Yukon Command pointed out that the accounting machine forecasts Army needs in Alaska a year in advance.

"To survive in our competitive atmosphere, you have to develop a more effective way to get the job done. One of the things that makes our country great is the spirit of competition that prevails here. I think of this energetic spirit as management," Gen. Ruggles stated.

"There is a need for management organization, not only in the Army, but in our country," he emphasized.

Preceding his talk Gen. Ruggles installed the new officers of the organization. They are Col. Roy A. Murray, first vice-president; Dr. Francis E. Hunt, second vice-president; Capt. Helen Bowen, secretary; Mrs. Ida Evans, treasurer; Major Raymond J. Rufflae, chairman of the Arrangements Committee; and Dr. Francis S. Tate, Col. Kenneth W. Blackwell, Executive Council members.

Dr. Tate, outgoing president of the group, reported on his attending the Armed Forces Management Association national meeting at Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D.C., June 6 and 7.

At this convention, the Fort Benning chapter was awarded the organization's President's Award for activities for 1957.

Dr. Tate received a Certificate of Appreciation from the chapter. Mrs. Evans was recognized for having a perfect attendance record during her year and a half of membership.

Inf. Center Streamlines Staff Depts.
Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School Commandant, today announced that a review of the organization of The Infantry Center has resulted in a streamlining and integration of certain functions of the general staff of the Center and USAIS Staff.

It is believed that this action will eliminate areas of duplication and will permit the academic offices and departments of The Infantry School to devote their full efforts to primary work.

Specifically, the following changes have been made: Personal functions formerly performed by the secretary of the School have reverted to the assistant chief of Staff, G-1.

The funding operations formerly performed by the secretary of the School have been consolidated within the office of the assistant Chief of Staff, G-3.

The position of deputy assistant commandant has been combined with the functions assigned the director of instruction.

These changes have been under study for some time and are not a radical departure from the present organization and functioning and are expected to increase efficiency and produce certain economies of operations.

Cadets Greeted By Post Officials

BY NORMAN SOLON
The rewards and satisfactions of a career in military service were told to the 1957 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy by Fort Benning's Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles at a welcoming ceremony Monday at the post's Main Theater.

The cadets are visiting Fort Benning as part of their summer-long tour of military installations throughout the country. They will undergo two weeks training designed to prepare them for a junior command in the Army's combat arms.

Gen. Ruggles, acting assistant commandant of The Infantry School, said the Army offers as wide a variety of opportunities and assignments as any profession or industry.

"The cadets are to choose carefully the branch of the Army they apply for. 'Man in any profession does his best only when he is completely happy and satisfied in the work he does,' he stated.

Gen. Ruggles, himself an alumnus of West Point, recalled his own cadet days and related anecdotes about his life at the academy.

The post's general also commended the Infantry's role in America's defense picture. "The history of war," he stated, "is the development of weapons, detestables and counter weapons."

Despite the advent of new equipment, the most important weapons of war ever developed has always been and still is the fighting spirit of the Infantry, he added. The Infantry man is the man who must go to the homeland of the enemy, Gen. Ruggles pointed out.

The cadets also were oriented on The Infantry School's Ranger Department by Col. Albert H. Robinson.

Newly-commissioned as first lieutenants in the Army Medical Corps, the 18 young doctors received swaggers stickers from Col. Robinson as a token of welcome to Fort Benning and the Army.

Following Corps orientation, the interns met the chiefs of service and their sponsors to begin the first day of 22 months of training. The first day includes meeting personnel and becoming familiar with the facilities of the Infantry Center. They will assist in getting the hospital and the medical staff oriented to the post and started in the year's training. Briefing on the hospital and facilities of the Infantry Center will occupy a great portion of the day. See Page 2.

Everybody's Mess Drive to Fight Litterbugs

"Will the Yankees win the pennant? That's anybody's guess. But when you litter the streets—That's everybody's mess. KEEP FORT BENNING CLEAN!"

With this and many other slogans appearing in The Infantry Center bulletins several times weekly, the office of the provost marshal has opened war on litterbugs at Fort Benning.

Capt. Lloyd A. Thomas, who is in charge of the project, said that signs will be displayed at strategic spots on the post warning against the littering of the streets and grounds.

"We've got the most beautiful Army post in the country," said Capt. Thomas, "and we aim to keep it that way."

He pointed out that members of the military police had been alerted to pay strict attention to enforcing the garrison rules and regulations which forbid throwing trash and rubbish on the post.

Capt. Thomas said he expects little trouble from litterbugs. "Everybody likes Fort Benning," he said, "and treats it like they would their own home and yard. That's all we ask."

Newly-Commissioned Interns Arrive at Hospital To Train Under New Plan

BY JULIA BRUNIKKE
The first interns to train at Fort Benning's U. S. Army Hospital were welcomed Monday by hospital commandant, Col. Albert H. Robinson.

Newly-commissioned as first lieutenants in the Army Medical Corps, the 18 young doctors received swaggers stickers from Col. Robinson as a token of welcome to Fort Benning and the Army.

Third Goes 'Pentomic'

"Pentomic" Reorganization Day for the Third Infantry Division was held Tuesday in the "Marine Division's" area.

Plans for the observance of several weeks and were executed on July 2 when the activities of the day got underway at 9:00 o'clock in the morning, continuing until late in the evening.

The new program "affords Army Reserve warrant officers and non-commissioned officers opportunities for officer candidate schooling comparable to those in the National Guard," according to Army officials.

The training will be a nine-week condensed version of The Infantry School's 26-week officer candidate course. The Reserve candidates will be given 125 hours of weapons training, 100 hours of instruction in tactics with emphasis on the platoon on the offensive, 90 hours of staff work and orientation on airborne, communications and ground mobility operations.

The standards for qualifying the reserve candidates as officers, regardless of branch assignment, are those prescribed for an infantry combat platoon leader.

Candidates will be awarded certificates upon completing 125 hours of instruction and will be eligible to receive commissions from their respective Reserve units and National Guard units. Reserve military training and leadership evaluation are imparted by the Infantry School to prepare each candidate to serve as a Reserve or National Guard officer.

A similar 11-week officer candidate course will be offered reservists at the Army Artillery and Guided Missile School, Fort Sill, Okla., this summer.

Reserve applicants for officer candidate training must hold the rank of sergeant or higher, be between 18 and 24½ years of age, and have served 24 months active duty or two years in an organized unit of the Ready Reserve.

Awards Program

'Pay Dirt' Launched In Special Ceremony

Special awards ceremonies launching "Project Pay Dirt" were held at Fort Benning July 1, coinciding with presentations by the secretary of the Army in Washington in an Army-wide campaign.

July has been designated as a period of special emphasis in the Army's Incentive Awards Program. Project Pay Dirt is designed to stimulate and encourage military and civilian personnel to submit suggestions for improving the Army's efficiency as well as to provide recognition of such accomplishments.

1st Sgt. William S. Suggs of Tyler, Texas, assigned to the U. S. Army Infantry School's Operations Office, received $100 as first prize under the Third U. S. Army military suggestion contest for the quarter ending March 1. His proposal of a simple form of accounting management system is expected to result in an estimated annual saving of $4,820. The cash presentation market for fifth award Sgt. Suggs has received under the Incentive Award Program.

Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, acting assistant commander of The Infantry School, made the presentation.

A second ceremony gave special recognition to the cooperative efforts of a civilian and two military personnel. Joseph C. Morrow of Columbus; SP3 Ralph Jones, and PFC Vincent E. Bridge all assigned to The Infantry School's Signal Section, Sand Hill sea telephone exchange, were recipients of awards for a joint proposal expected to result in estimated annual savings of $2,000.

Morrow received an award of $40, and PFC Bridge and SP3 Jones each received $20, first prize under the military suggestion contest for May 1.

Their suggestion was the substitution of a new type test stand for dialing and switching telephone equipment. The new stand will save several operational steps as well as the work of three or four men.

Approximately 25 awards will be presented to Fort Benning personnel during Project Pay Dirt, officials stated.

SP2 Named Top Soldier At Lawson

Important Job

Getting along with people is an important part of your job. You, as a member of the Armed Forces, are being regarded by others directly affects the success of your unit's operation.

At an overseas base, a serviceman is looked upon as a representative of the United States. His conduct may be taken to be typical of the conduct of all Americans.

If he fails to be a creditable man, he brings discredit upon his country. If he wins friends and earns the respect of others, he creates a valuable bit of international goodwill.

A high government official has described American servicemen abroad as the nation's most influential unofficial ambassadors.

It's much the same in the States. Public opinion is affected by the way a man acts in uniform. It's the conduct of individuals that determines whether the public will be annoyed by servicemen, or proud of its Armed Forces. (APPS)

Ike Expresses View On New Pay System

WASHINGTON (APPS) — President Eisenhower told a recent news conference that he earnestly supported the Cordier Committee pay-enlisted personnel and certain groups of valuable young officers.

However, the President said that the pay system should not be used as an excuse for over-all pay raises.

The President said that the Department is in the preliminary implementation stage of awarding proficiency pay to enlisted men within the present administrative limitations, and that he would like to see the pay system extended to reservists.

A-BOMB SHIVERS CENTER. The fifth and most powerful storm bomb of the current series was exploded recently above the Nevada test site. Atomic Energy Commission scientists triggered the A-bomb which was suspended from a 15-foot tall mace anchored 700 feet from the desert floor, from 14 miles away.

Shock waves from the mace hit the steel and concrete control center, tearing swinging doors down from their hinges and cracking concrete walls at one entrance, International News Service reported.

Observers of the blast said that the explosion was followed by a blinding light flash more brilliant than the sun.

This test, the first of two in the Hubble series, was of primary interest to the Department of Defense.

Projects of special interest included:

1. An extensive biomedical study involving the use of 700 pigs which were exposed to detonation effects at various distances from ground zero.

2. A test of fabrics and materials to determine their resistance to damage-producing mechanisms of atomic detonations.

Other military tests included a continuation of flash blind tests using rabbits and tests of newly-developed radiological safety equipment in combat situations.

Approximately $5 million in observers viewed the shot from trenches at a distance of 4,500 yards, and inspected equipment exposed in a military display area after the detonation.

Fort fortifications, fashions, and gun emplacements, instruments by Army Engineers, tanks conducted tests to determine blast and heat effects. Other military units in the Japanese Islands.

The Japanese and Army supply personnel are not affected by the initial stage out of the country.

The communique noted that the U. S. plans further visits here, the U. S. consented to the prompt move-out of all ground combat troops and to "substantially reduce" other military units in the Japanese Islands.

CONCERT LISTS

Piano Concertos Of Liszt, Weber

The recorded concert is Tuesday at the main post library will include Weber's concerto No. 2 and Weber's concerto in F Minor. It begins at 7:30 pm.

The concert did not compose the Piano Concerto in A Minor primarily for his own use, and in this respect it is somewhat of a curiosity. It was written for and dedicated to one of his pupils, Hans von Bronsart, and the composer and conductor as well as a pianist. Bronsart was the when the concerto was first performed at the Grand Ducal Theatre in Weimar on 7 January 1857.

Like Liszt, Weber belonged to an elite group of creative musicians who were also his standing recreative artists. The full of Liszt's "Concerto in A" is its flashy brilliance; for primarily, it is a showpiece, with the emphasis on technical display.

How to Find God

BY CHAPLAIN (Lt. Lt.) MURRAY I. LERER

The last group comprises those individuals who think of God as some sort of "personal bodyguard." God is fashioned into an invisible, powerful and private overseer, who will save us from harm. God is known intimately, both as friend and watchman, but only for those near and dear. Emotional breakdowns, so common today, often disclose this warped teaching in the early and formative years of our adult population.

Where then do we begin and what should we teach? What shall we include on our curriculum, and at best we, as parents and teachers, should help the growing child to understand his environment, to relate himself to it, and to function happily in it. This is the concept that we should teach. It is his goodness that should consist only of those things which provide pleasure, safety and happiness. Finding God is learning to know God means observing the world as it is, and in the world about us. And if our homes give our children the feeling of security, if they confer status upon them, if they teach respect for others, if they give dependability, if they radiate warmth and hope, if they teach the thrill of new adventure, and, if above all, if they are loving and beloved, then God will be experienced by them through actions that speak louder than words.

Giant Fireworks Display Tops Fourth Celebration

A spectacular display of fireworks at Blue Field highlighted Fort Benning's Fourth of July celebration.

The sparkling 45-minute fireworks show climaxed an eight-hour day of entertainment. The display included rockets, shells, cannons, crackers and multiple misfires.

Adding drama and color to the evening's carnival was fireworks patterns of the American flag, the Statue of Liberty and the Infantry's "Follow Me" insignia.

Starting at 1 p.m. an aerial boom of skyrocket were set off each hour.

A project of Fort Benning's Youth Activities Club the July 4 program began with a full day's fun and frolic for the troops.

Preceding the fireworks display were the following:

182nd Anniversary

The Corps is not only responsible for the pay of the individual soldier but also for the maintenance of the fiscal records of one of the most complex industries of our great nation. These duties have been performed with efficiency and distinction, contributing immeasurably to the high state of morale and esprit de corps in the U. S. Army today.

"I am certain that the splendid record of the Finance Corps upheld in the past will be upheld in the future," Gen. Taylor's letter read.

"On behalf of the soldiers' and officers' records, congratulations on the 182nd anniversary of the Finance Corps."

Only two days younger than the Army itself, the Corps has served with marked efficiency throughout its history. ## Gen. Pence Says Small Unit Leaders Have Bigger Duties

New tactics of dispersal, depending on the Atomic Age, require increasing responsibility on the part of small unit leaders. Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Charles W. Pence said at Fort Benning, June 28.

Retired after 35 years of service, Gen. Pence said he spoke at the graduation exercises of the Infantry School's officer candidate class No. 4 in the Main Theater. Gen. Pence is president of the National Bank of Fort Benning.

Speaking on the duties and responsibilities of an officer, Gen. Pence pointed out that the ability to carry out the Army's mission resides in an ever-increasing degree in junior leaders.

To lead troops an officer must be outstanding in character, knowledge, ability and courage. Of these, strength of character and intelligence are outstanding because their foundations lie in personal integrity," he told the new officers.

Army Tests Better Mask

WASHINGTON (APPS) — A revolutionary protective face mask that guards troops against chemical, biological and radiological (CBR) agents is now undergoing final tests by the Army Chemical Corps.

Designed to give over-all protection against tabulated chemical and germ gases, and airborne radioactive fallout, the new mask offers superior vision, better speech transmission and lower breathing resistance.

The mask will not screen against direct radiation, the Army said.

In eliminating the protruding canister, used on current U. S. and foreign units, the mask uses a new lightweight, pliable gas-proof filter pads that are incased in cavities molded into the rubber face-piece.

Varied Training

Army Leaders of Future Get Concentrated Course

The U. S. Military Academy Class of 1959 began a concentrated two weeks of instruction at Fort Benning July 3 designed to prepare the cadets for assignments as junior officers in the Army's combat arms.

Five hundred and twenty-seven West Pointers were welcomed June 27 upon their arrival at Lawson Army Air Field by Col. O. Z. Tyler Jr., U. S. Army Infantry Center chief of staff, and other Fort Benning officials.

The cadets were guests at Englin Air Force Base, Fla., June 28 to witness an air fire power demonstration.

Saturday morning the West Pointers stood inspection and then released from duty for the weekend.

During their stay at the post, the future officers will receive practical instruction and witness Infantry School demonstrations, which will supplement their classroom work at West Point.

In addition, the military students will undergo preliminary phases of parachute training.

Classes Begin, End During This Week

Approximately 600 students will begin or complete courses at the Army Infantry Center July 1-4.

On July 1, 94 men entered Ranger training and 56 started cadet maintenance instruction. Three classes began July 3—a 208-man airborne class and automotive supervision with 50 and 63 members. Graduation ceremonies were held July 1 for the 48-man radio maintenance class No. 10 in a combat ready state.

There held July 3 for associate company officers class No. 3, totaling 78 students, in the Main Theater.

Three Units Arrive Here For Training

Three US Army Reserve units, Military Police Detachment 1 (Criminal Investigation) of about 240 persons. After a preliminary review of basic rifle techniques and map reading, the unit will take Medical Corps training. The U. S. Army Infantry School will stage a helicopter medical evacuation demonstration for the unit. The highlight of their training will occur June 21, when the organization will set up a hospital in the field and operate under simulated combat conditions.

The 207th Detachment with an officer, four warrant officers and eight enlisted men, and the 888th, consisting of an officer and eight enlisted men will combine for training purposes.

They will undergo basic military instruction under Special Troops Command and then train with the Fort Benning criminal investigation unit.

Scout Troop To Increase Post Activity

Fort Benning's Boy Scout Troop No. 37, the "Follow Me" troop, will sponsor an accelerated instruction and activity participation program for the coming year.

The program is part of a movement to build better Scout troops, Scout officials said.

Trained volunteer personnel will assist in a stepped-up plan for Merit Badge activities. They will provide instruction in such varied fields of scouting as archery, cooking, leadership, forestry, first aid, pioneering, safety, swimming, life saving, rowing and canoeing.

Boy Scout Troop No. 37 in the Center Area and No. 10 of Baker Village have been invited to participate in the Troop 27 program.

Life guards at the swimming pool on the post have qualified 11 Boy Scouts for the swimming Merit Badge this summer.

Designed to bring parents more actively into the program, mother-son, small-caliber rifle teams are being sponsored as well as father-son pistol teams. Such additional, varied activities will help to establish a stronger organization in scouting.

The Infantry Center, scout officials pointed out.

Boy Scouts of Troop No. 27 wear the "Follow Me" insignia of the Infantry School on their Infantry blue neckerchiefs.

Fort Benning's Scouting program is sponsored and supported by the Youth Activities Club.

Chairman of Troop No. 27 is Col. Howard W. Greer of the Infantry School's Staff Department.

"I think everyone is aware of the very real moral and mental values provided by the Boy Scouts for the youth of tomorrow's men—of our country. We have a wonderful opportunity to aid our own Boy Scouts here at Fort Benning, where we have so many highly trained individuals with true knowledge of so many of the subjects that Boy Scouts are required to learn. Certainly there is no more rewarding or enjoyable experience than working with these fine boys 11 to 14 years old," Col. Greer said.

'Big Picture' Film Slated On ABC-TV

WASHINGTON—The Army's filmed television series "The Big Picture" will be seen nationally on ABC-TV starting July 4 and each Thursday night thereafter.

As a special attraction marking this debut on ABC-TV, the staff of "Big Picture" will release for the first time on the air a new film, "Fifty Years of Aviation."

Distribution and audience response to "The Big Picture" hit a near peak in 1956-57, and the prospect of increasing the audience to the 20 million mark looks good for the new fall season, according to Army spokesmen.

The Army's seven-year-old documentary will still be mailed to the more than 300 stations in the U. S. and overseas that have been programming the show each week on a local basis during the past year.

CASH AWARD . . . Mrs. Jane D. Sandstrom, left, of Nevada, Iowa, a military personnel clerk in the Adjutant General Section of the U. S. Award Given To Mitchell

A Fort Benning sergeant to the instructor, Col. Rollin B. Durbin department directing rating, earned a letter of commendation and promotion in the Army for another six years last week.

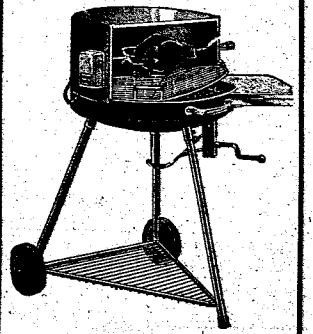

SFC James T. Mitchell (Jay) led, assigned to the U. S. Army Infantry School's Communication Department, was graduated June 15 from the Instructor Training Course at the Infantry School with an outstanding rating. Only 11 other enlisted personnel have achieved this rating for the course.

SFC Mitchell will enter the Army in 1949 reclassified in a letter which he presented June 19 for another six years.

'Coolwater to Coolidge' Mortar Committee Taps Water To Dry, Eroding Firing Range

Neither lightning nor water Moccasins deterred members of the Mortar Committee out Harmony Church's yard as they decided to get water to Coolidge Range firing point.

The project, labeled 'Coolwater for Coolidge' started last August. It seems there was no water at the 62 and 81mm range. Water was needed for drinking purposes and to water the area to stop soil erosion.

Members of the committee put their respective areas to the ground, and the first thing heard was that almost a mile of pipe in the amount needed lay on the reservation in Alabama. Post Engineers informed them that the pipe was theirs for the taking - but they'd have to retrieve the pipe themselves.

Now the pipe was not laid out in neat rows on the Alabama reservation. The pipe was buried all the way from two to six feet underground in their spare time, members of the committee went across the river and dug up the pipe transporting it to the Coolidge Range area.

Without them the entire project would have been a flop. "Yes, sir," says Lt. Garver, "we got from a both of lightning and the appearance of a snake didn't halt the project. Most important of all," he concludes, "we got 'Coolwater to Coolidge' and the beautiful covering of grass stopped erosion of the soil at the firing point site. ### Lawson Aircraft Given Colorful Indian Names

Visitors to Fort Benning's Lawson Army Air Field these days may believe the American Indians are planning a massed airborne attack in a belated attempt to recapture Georgia.

The Sioux and the Seminoles are the names of the control tower operators actually are not tribes on the warpath, but Army aircraft designated after the American natives.

Army helicopters and fixed-winged aircraft, many of which are utilized at Fort Benning have been given new names to supplement their letter-number type and model designations.

The H-19 helicopters, being flown by the Third Helicopter Transportation Battalion and Lawson Command, are now known as Sioux. The small aircraft that saved thousands of American lives during the Korean conflict as a medical evacuation helicopter is presently performing reconnaissance missions.

The 37th Medical (Helicopter) Detachment's H-19 has been designated the Chickasaw. The medical evacuation craft can carry six wounded soldiers.

The H-21 aircraft recently at Fort Benning with the Eighth Transportation Battalion and named the Cayuse. The light helicopter is used as a troop transport.

The Army's "flying jeep," the H-23 helicopter, is now known as the Raven. The aircraft is assigned to the Fourth Transportation Company, Lawson Command and the Third Battalion.

THIS IS THE WAY . . . Student officers of Basic Infantry Officers Course No. 10 in the 20th Company, 2d Student Battalion, The School Brigade, receive first hand information, as part of their training, on how to inspect equipment (it's their own being inspected). Showing them the intricacies of a proper inspection is Major Oswald J. Wines, 2d Student Battalion Evaluation Officer, who conducted the inspection last week.

WASHINGTON (APPS)—All members of the Armed Forces will be inoculated with a single-strain anti-influenza vaccine as soon as possible to combat a previously unknown virus in the Far East, the Department of Defense has announced.

The single-strain vaccine also will be made available to military dependents and civilian employees at overseas bases on a voluntary basis.

Dr. Frank B. Berry, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), said the outbreak of flu in the Far East is caused by a virus not previously identified and against which personnel are not protected by prior disease or immunization.

A multi-strain vaccine will be administered later, provided manufacturers can meet with the priority on the production of the single-strain vaccine.

7th Overruns Commanders 7-2 Saturday

The Seventh ICC combined a 12-14 attack with four-bit pitching of Bob Taylor to defeat The Infantry School Troops Command 7-2 last Saturday at Gowdy Field.

The 12 ICC scored two runs in the second inning to take the lead. Dale Foster and Roberto Vega singled after Pete Weisnitch struck out. After Jim Bennett went to George Greenuda singled, scoring Foster and sending Vega to third. The pitcher Taylor then aided his own cause by singling to left, scoring Vega.

In the fourth the Commanders tied the score. With two men out Bartoline walked and scored on Frank Lee's double down the right field line and, as the right fielder Weisnitch lobbed the ball, Lee went to third. Lee scored as the shortstop Hugdon Lumbard Howard Williams' grounder.

The Seventh put the game on ice by scoring five runs in the seventh inning. Gerunda and Taylor singled. At this point Henry Sewell came in to replace the starting pitcher John Harward. Don Pearce was safe on a bunt leading the bases. Bill Re was hit with one of Sewell's pitches to force in a run. With the count of three balls and one strike on Higgins, Howard Williams came on to pitch for the Commanders. Higgins then singled to center scoring Taylor and Pearce. Weisnitch and Foster each hit sacrifice flies to score Re and Higgins.

George Greenuda, hustling catcher, led the Seventh ICC at the plate with three hits in four times at bat. Taylor, while finishing the Commanders to four hits, struck out five and walked three. He also collected two hits to aid his own cause.

'Balers Capture Post Swim Meet

The Third Division's Seventh Infantry Command held its annual swim meet Saturday afternoon at the Fort Benning Provisional Recreation Center. The meet was the first of the season and was held at the post's swimming pool.

The championship team led runner-up Provisional by a narrow margin of four points at the end of the first half of the meet Friday.

The winners, however, topped the threatening Provisional swimmers by points when the final tally of the two-day meet was figured Saturday.

Seventh ICC racked up 33 points, many of them coming from second and third places. Provisional took 33 points to finish second.

Defending team champion, 30th ICC, came in third with 24 points. The meet was held at Harmony Church pool, with all major Fort Benning command units competing.

PETE HAS HUMOR ... Pete Rademacher won't be an altogether serious professional heavyweight champion should he defeat Floyd Patterson Aug. 22 in Seattle, Wash. The 1956 Olympic heavyweight champion who was discharged at Fort Benning a few months ago, displays part of his humor by posing with two meat hammers, after a noted sports writer said he'd bet on Patterson 10-1 if he gave Pete a cleaver in each hand. Actually, Pete says he won't need the meat hammers to give the champion a good fight.

Rifle Team Leaves Post Today to Train in N. Y.

The 1957 Army Rifle Team departs Fort Benning today for the lake - front ranges of Fort Niagara, N. Y., and an intensive training program being entering the National Rifle Championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August.

This year's Army team, selected from over 400 competitors in the All-Army matches held recently at Fort Benning, numbers 75 shooters, 11 assistant coaches, a team captain and coach, and its officer-in-charge, Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe.

Presently training on the Fort Benning ranges, this elite squad promises to be one of the finest ever to represent the Army at the National Matches.

One hundred and thirty-three naval training planes arrived at Lawson's Field, Fort Benning, June 26 as a safety precaution against possible damage by Hurricane Audrey.

The 128 SN-1, four T-38 and one SNB aircraft were from Pensacola Naval Air Station, Fla.

NBA Frowns Pete Works Out For Title Fight

Pete Rademacher got down to work this week in preparations for his August heavyweight championship fight with Floyd Patterson.

The 1956 Olympic heavyweight boxer, formerly a first lieutenant at Fort Benning, Monday began working out at Lake Houston, about 20 miles north of Columbus.

Rademacher is scheduled to fight Patterson Aug. 22 in Seattle, Wash. A contract has already been signed by both the world's champion amateur and professional heavyweights.

However, development during the week following inking the contract taking place officials of the National Boxing Commission trying to prevent the bout has been concerned, the fight is on, Hurley declared.

Jennings points out that the NBA has tried to block fights previously and that he and Rademacher aren't paying any attention to the national commission.

Sparring will come later, said the trainer, who arrived in Columbus Sunday.

AAU Chooses Service Athletes For International Track Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union, picking five track and field squads for an invasion of Europe, meets this summer, named five athletes of the Army and Forces for the junkets.

The squads were selected from the competitors in the 69th National AAU championships at Dayton, Ohio.

Boston Army Base's Tom Courtney, only serviceman with a first place finish in the AAU championships, was named to a squad which is participating in track meets in Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Courtney won his first national 880-yard title at Dayton, with a finishing burst to whip Arnie Sowell, his indoor nemesis, but practically an outdoor conula in the time of 1:50.1.

Assigned to a squad which will vie in Italian meets in early July and later compete in Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Portugal were Eddie Shelton, Presidio of San Francisco, and Jerry Webster, Lockbourne AFB, Ohio.

Shelton tied with Villanova's Phil Reavis for the title in the high jump championships with a leap of 6'9", and Wellbourne placed third in the pole vault event.

Assigned to the 16-man squad representing the United States in the French meets was the Army's Albert Hall. At Dayton, Hall placed second in the hammer throw and fifth in the 56-pound weight throw.

Hall's tremendous heave of 225 in the hammer throw was good enough to break the old meet record of 209'10" set by Harold Connolly in the 1956 championships. However, Connolly wound up and let fly a throw of 213" for a new meet record.

Quantic Marine star Josh Culbreth, an Villanova Black, was named to a 22-man squad which will compete in London July 19 and 20 and Manchester, on July 24. Olympic champion Courtney was also named to this squad.

The Marine speedster, placing second this year in the 440-yard hurdle, saw his meet record of 0:53 in this event, set in 1954 and equaled by him in 1955, crumbled by Ohio State's Glenn Davis. Davis' time of 0:50.3 bettered the lifetime world record mark 0:51.3 posted by Russia's Yuri Lituyev in 1953.

Murray Pendleton (I) of the Red Cross coordinated the program which allowed the hospital patient to hear, question and meet the famous athletes now training with the Marine Division.

Joey Rowan and Carmelo Costa, a pair of professional boxers taking basic training at the Third Infantry Division, spent an evening last week with patients at the Main Post Hospital.

The two men participated in a special hospital broadcast which was carried into all of the wards.

Accompanied by officials of the Red Cross, including Murray Pendleton, coordinator of the program which brought the talents of Floyd Patterson, Hurricane Jackson, Willie Francis, other names in the news.

Costa told how he first went into professional boxing, coming through New York's Police Athletic League to the Golden Gloves, and then into the big time.

Rowan, a heavyweight, was questioned as to why he left his left arm was in a cast.

"My wife-to-be accidentally hit many queries concerning it on it two weeks ago."

Rowan and Costa to the hospital, the men toured the wards, Rowan, concluding his training with the 8th Infantry Battalion, will be leaving Ft. Benning next week for his new assignment with the 1st Airborne at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Pitcher Took Classrooms; Not Pro Ball

PFC John Barnard, B Battery, 2nd Field Artillery Battalion, 10th Artillery, ace pitcher on The Infantry School Troops Command baseball team had offers to turn professional after graduating from high school. However, he decided to get an education first and enrolled in a prep school at Dean Academy in Franklin, Mass., on a combined baseball and basketball scholarship.

The six-foot, three-inch, 200-pound native of Ludlow, Vermont, has a record of four wins and one loss for the Commanders in the first ten games of the season. Barnard has shown good control. In 42.3 innings of pitching he has walked only five men while striking out 53 and allowing only 24 base hits.

Last year Barnard pitched for the post team and had a four and two record while pitching against some of the outstanding teams in the Third Army area.

At this point major league scouts tried to get him to sign a contract, but he enrolled in Dean Academy in 1953. Barnard pitched one year at the Academy before entering the service. In eight games during the 1954 season he had a seven and one record.

FIRST MEMBERSHIP... Col. Richard F. Kent, right, personnel officer for The Infantry Center, presents Brig. Gen. James V. Thompson, deputy commanding general, with the first purchased membership in the post's Fish and Game Maintenance Association for 1957-1958. Gen. Thompson purchased No. 3, the same number he used during the fishing and hunting seasons at Fort Benning last year.

State Hunting, Fishing Permits Required for Post Sportsmen

Fort Benning personnel must purchase state licenses for the coming 1957-1958 fishing and hunting seasons at the reservation, post Fish and Game Maintenance Association officials announced.

Effective July 1, military personnel will be required to have a Georgia or Alabama license to fish and hunt in the respective states of the reservation. One license will not entitle usage of both state post without having both state permits.

Purchase price of Georgia fishing license is $1.25 and hunting $2.25. While the combination license, which covers both hunting and fishing, can be purchased for $3.25.

New regulations concerning creel and bag limits, sizes and other specifications for the two states will be tested within a few days, officials said.

An agreement also being reached with the Georgia or Alabama Game Director, which would make either a Georgia or Alabama license honored in both parts of the reservation.

The Chattahoochee River is the boundary line which separates the reservation into segments of the two states.

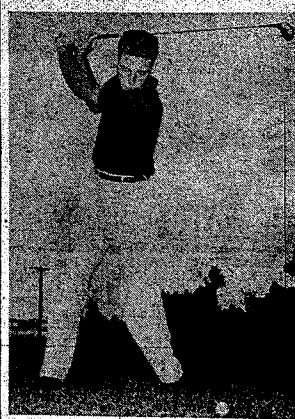

Fish and Game officials stated that this ruling would not affect the membership standing in the association and that all the privileges enjoyed during the last year would still remain in effect.

However, this new ruling does affect members who do not join or continue to belong to the association.

Daily hunting permits will have to be picked up at the association office, which means that those members who do not join or continue to belong to the association.

A penny increase in prices of regular-length cigarettes was scheduled, however, to take effect July 2.

Wholesale cigarette prices were raised recently.

Take It Easy On Hot Days

More than 1,000 cases of heat injury occur each year in the Army and most could be prevented.

Maj. Gen. Silas E. Hays, Army Surgeon General, made that statement in a recent warning on heat injuries.

After a heat stroke, an individual may have a low tolerance for heat conditions, the general said.

A new Army Surgeon General directive requires that recruits not accustomed to physical activity under conditions of high temperature and humidity should be acclimatized to these conditions by graduated exposure and gradual increase in workload, particularly during basic training.

General Hays suggested the following:

The heavy meal of the day should be served in the evening.

An hour of rest following the noon meal is beneficial.

Clothing and equipment should be worn loosely to permit free circulation of air between the uniform and body.

Water and salt should be consumed in sufficient amounts to make up for lost perspiration.

Driver Courtesy Program Opens

By JOE ZELINK, A Phantom Inspector Program emphasizing the importance of good motor manners will highlight a Driver Courtesy Program initiated this week according to Fort Benning Safety Director Norman M. Evans.

The program has been undertaken because of the serious driving practices have been observed frequently on the post.

Three basic means of education will continue to be reported as driver courtesy program are being planned. A series of slides will be shown in post theaters, a series of items will appear in the Daily Bulletin, and the full impact of stories and cartoons in THE BAYONET will be utilized.

The Phantom Inspector is expected to be the high spot of the safety campaign. Each member of the Safety Council will designate one Phantom Inspector for his command or activity and require the driver to report at least two observations per week, either of outstanding driver courtesy or driver discourtesy.

A typical Phantom Inspector report would say: "Driver of green '56 Chevrolet, red post tag No. 675. You were observed at 1200 hours, 17 June, stopping on Vibbert Avenue to permit car from side street to enter traffic stream. Your report was a friendly wave and a smile of gratitude. Your motor numbers are to be commended."

Or, "Driver of blue '57 Ford, green post tag No. 678. You were observed at 1300 hours, 22 June, on Mason Road driving at high speed, passing on a curve, and you, did it with only one hand. Your left hand was on the window supporting the roof. Your car should be equipped with a siren so other drivers could be alerted to get out of your way."

Other Phantom Inspector reports will continue to be reported as driver courtesy program are being planned. A series of slides will be shown in post theaters, a series of items will appear in the Daily Bulletin, and the full impact of stories and cartoons in THE BAYONET will be utilized.

3d Division Reorganized In Colorful Spectacle

The 3d Infantry Division, under the command of Major General Roy E. Lindquist, was reorganized under the RUCIC concept at colorful ceremonies at Knight Field, Fort Benning, on July 2, 1957.

The reorganization of the Division constituted a major change in structure and tactical doctrine. The strength of the Division is reduced from some 37,000 to about 13,700 officers and men. The reduction in strength does not represent a reduction in power. This is accomplished by the fact that the new Division contains over 450 more rifles in the rifle brigades than did the triangular divisions. It has atomic delivery means and greatly increased flexibility and mobility. The "Pentomic" Division is a hard-hitting, fast moving, and a flexible fighting machine especially tailored for the Atomic Battlefield.

The basic building blocks of the new Division are five Battle Groups in lieu of the former three infantry regiments. The battle group is an integrated unit of combined arms. There is no battalions organization in the battle group. The members of the 3d Infantry Division retain their direct lineage with the organic elements of the past. The 7th Infantry Regiment, 15th Infantry Regiment, and the 50th Infantry Regiment, which trace their histories back to 1861, 1861, and 1861, respectively, are represented in the 3d Infantry and 30th Infantry Regiments are once again represented in the Division by the 2d Battle Group, 4th and 20th Infantry. The 9th and 10th Field Artillery Regiments, which trace their histories to the World War I era, are represented by the 1st Field Artillery Battalion (Rocket-Howitz'er), 5th Artillery, and the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery. The renowned 7th Cavalry and the 68th Armored Regiment are represented by the 2d Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and the 1st Medium Tank Battalion (Patton).

They're Not Skirts! 'Black Watch' Officer Wears Colorful, Traditional Uniform

BY NORMAN SOLON
Though conditioned to the fads and fashions of U. S. and Allied uniforms, Fort Benning residents still raise their eyebrows when they spot Lt. Col. Angus D. R. Irwin, British Army liaison officer to The Infantry Board.

Definitely not designed by Christian Dior, Col. Irwin from the Scottish Highlands, nevertheless, proudly wears his kilt which bears the colors of his own Black Watch Regiment. According to the Scottish officer, each of the six Highland regiments wears those garments definitely not to be referred to as skirts. They are traditional dress on formal occasions, dating back to the days when family clans were autonomous. In fact, most of the regiments have names and colors originating from old families.

The Black Watch Regiment, whose home is at Perth, Scotland, however, originated in the 18th Century when a police force called Watch was founded to suppress a Scottish rebellion against England. But this militia remained loyal to Scotland and tipped off the revolutionary nationalists to British plans.

With the advent of peace, the police force was incorporated into the British Army. There it was known as the Watch Regiment. Later, its name was changed to Black Watch because the dark green kilt emblematic of the regiment looked black from a distance, Allied officer explained.

Each regiment belongs to a section of the country so his kilt serves with them of his own area, he added.

Another trademark of the British military service is the blue dress in both officers and lance, though very strong, too. A commissioned officer corps, A man makes his way to the first promotion to lance corporal equivalent to private first class. At this time he must give up all association with rank and even so in special NCO mess halls.

The regimental sergeant even has authority over junior officers and can reprimand a second lieutenant for executing an improper salute.

Though the British Army uses dismounted drill a great deal as a means of instilling discipline, Col. Irwin claimed that there is more "spit and polish" in the barracks in the American Army. The regular Saturday morning full-field inspection is not as prevalent in the British service, he pointed out.

"A kit (full-field) inspection usually only made when we are trying to acceptably the troops have a complete issue of equipment," Col. Irwin stated. "Our barracks sergeants usually can make sure the living areas is top shape," he added.

Family life is also highly stressed in British service, according to Col. Irwin. Any soldier from private to general is eligible for government quarters overseas and the troops are encouraged to bring their families.

"Moving to Fort Benning is merged with other survivor payments as the Survivor Benefits Law became effective. It provides for a new benefit—Dependency and Indemnity Compensation.

The new Indemnity Compensation covers the most cases greater financial security to survivors of military personnel than the old indemnity is paid to widows, or children if there is no widow, and to dependent parents. The program is administered by the Veterans Administration.

A widow receives $112 plus 2 per cent of her deceased husband's base pay (or a minimum of $125 per month) for life, or until she remarries. There are fixed payments for children and a sliding scale of $29.99 were provided by the Veterans Administration for 30 years to the survivors of Army personnel who were not covered by NSLI or USGLI government insurance.

Individuals who entered the Army after April 25, 1951, are not eligible for the government insurance available to military personnel before that date. However, the dependents were covered by the benefits of the Serviceman's Indemnity Act.

On January 1, the Serviceman's Indemnity ended as a separate benefit and was

Escapes From Red Poland, Star Swimmer With 'Balers

Third Division star swimmer Bogdan Ladny has travelled a path untraveled in courage and determination of a single goal. The ace tankman, who led the 7th Infantry Regiment to victory in the Division and post swimming and diving meets, is a member of the United States Army after escaping from his native Poland, a Communist controlled native land.

27 year old Ladny culminated his seven year dream of coming to America when he fled from a Polish fishing vessel docked in Western Germany.

Drafted into the Communist Police army after attending Chrobry College in Sopot, Ladny was chosen to the all-Polish army swimming team in 1951 and 1952. He began a series of jobs after his release from service, first as a civilian swimming instructor for naval officers and eventually with the Polish fishing vessel.

The latter job was assumed with full knowledge of arriving in a non-Communist country following freedom to the free world. Ladny had nurtured the idea and ideal of coming to the United States for nearly seven years when he was twenty years of age. Ladny began listening to programs of Radio Free Europe and the Voice of America, with the description of opportunities not allowed him under his Communist dominated native land.

He enlisted into the US Army in Heidelberg, Germany for a five year hitch, allowing him to come to this country and begin his processing for citizenship. Ladny took his basic training at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina following an eight week period

BOGDAN LADNY . . . Star swimmer of the 3d Infantry Division's 7th Regiment at Ft. Benning, Georgia has shown as much perseverance in the water as he did escaping from Communist Poland to the free world. The Division's number one swimmer arrived in the United States, fulfilling a seven year dream, of freedom from the Iron Curtain.

Coach Feels Post Can Take Title

Lt. Don Brown of Manitou Springs, Colo., coach of the U.S. Army Infantry Center swimming team expressed his hopes of Fort Benning repeating as Third Army Swimming and Diving champions in the upcoming tournament at Fort McPherson July 11-13.

Brown led a 45-man squad from the Infantry Center to Atlanta Wednesday (July 10) morning in quest of their second straight swimming crown. "We're not as strong as we were last year depth-wise," said coach Brown, "but we will field a good all around squad that should finish in the running."

In last year's Third Army meet, the defending champion, handily defeated Fort Bragg, N. C., to a tune of 19-to-52. Fort Bragg was defeated after finishing the two previous years in the spotlight.

Returning from last year's squad will be team coach Brown, a two-time All-American swimmer from Denver University (1954-55) and Lt. Philip Ware of Providence, R. I. Together these two captured their first places in last year's Third Army meet. Brown capped the 100 meter freestyle, 100 meter backstroke and the 400 meter individual medley. Ware won the 200 meter breast and 500 meter butterfly and finished second to Brown in the 100 meter freestyle. Both were members of the winning relay team from Fort Benning.

Other outstanding swimmers who make up this year's squad include: Bogdan Ladny, in the 100 and 200 breast stroke; Bill Aliverson, in the 100 and 200 meter butterfly; Fred Diefenbach, in the 100 and 200 meter backstroke; and Pete Elgo who will compete in the diving competition.

A pre-tournament banquet is slated for Wednesday evening and the first event will get underway Thursday morning. The meet will run for three days.

COTTONBALLER . . . Fred Diefenbach star swimmer with the powerful 7th Inf. swimming and diving club, will be a vital factor in the Ft. Benning chances of scoring big points at the 3rd Army meet, set for Ft. McPherson this coming weekend. Diefenbach, a former tankman with North Carolina U. hails from Tenafly, New Jersey.

Blankenship Sparks Pistol Team to Win

A 6-man U.S. Army pistol squad headed by SFC William B. Blankenship, Jr., of Fort Jay, N.Y., completely dominated the River Bend Hand Gun competition in Atlanta, Ga., last week.

Sgt. Blankenship captured the individual championship with a three-caliber, 22, 38 and 45 score of 2613 out of possible 2700. He also set a new national record for the 45 caliber event when he fired a total of 882.7's out of possible 900. Lt. Col. E. R. Mason, commanding officer of the U.S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning, trains and selects the U.S. Army pistol teams made the presentations of the individual awards to the members of the winning team in a brief ceremony on the post pistol range.

Final pairings of the U.S. Army Infantry Center stiples team in a brief ceremony on the post pistol range. The single elimination tournament will crown the points in deciding a team winner.

In the Open division (for men, preliminary rounds will see the best of two out of three deciding the winner. In the semifinals and finals the best three out of five will win.

In the Men's Senior and Women's divisions the best two out of three will decide a match.

Tom Wierzbicki Post Aids Pete's Quest for Crown

Aside from loads of moral support from Army personnel, Fort Benning, in particular, is contributing to former Army lieutenant Pete Rademacher's quest to capture the heavyweight championship of the world.

On two separate occasions we took time out from our everyday faldal to journey (over from post) to Lake Huston, training camp for Pete Rademacher, challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world.

We learned from "Powerful Pete" himself that Fort Benning, thanks to the efforts of assistant special services officer, Major W. V. Johnson, is providing the training camp with several material items. To mention just a few: ring, ropes, a canvas mat cover, electric round timer and a heavy training bag.

And as Pete said it . . . "plus loads and loads of support."

Wonderful Gesture

This certainly is a wonderful gesture and the Special Services section under Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Grimes should be highly commended for their thoughtfulness.

Another contribution from Fort Benning comes in the person of Sgt. Regis Blair, Sgt. Blair who is assigned to the Staff Department's organization and training section, has taken a 60-day leave to help train Rademacher for the big fight come August 22.

In a way the camp was reminiscent of the past year and a half when we watched Pete working out in the School Brigade gym with Blair in the corner barking out the orders.

No discredit to the Brigade gym, but the Lake Huston site is something to sit up and take notice of. The peacefulness and seclusionness is just what the doctor ordered.

New Face in Camp

And a new face, but certainly not an unfamiliar face as far as Rademacher is concerned, is there in the person of George Chemera. Chemera is a Seattle fight trainer who had worked with Pete in his college days. He was the instigator of developing Pete's fighting style often pegged "unorthodox" in boxing circles.

Here is a man who certainly impressed us with his knowledge of the ring. And his 23 year background in the boxing game speaks for itself. Without a doubt he certainly is a credit to the fine sport of boxing.

And the champ (world's amateur, that is) himself. Well, as far as we're concerned Pete is the same old guy as we knew him back in May of '56. He'll never change. The title he holds may certainly change come August, but Pete, the gentleman and friend, will always be the same.

Pitcher's Mound Folly It could only happen in the baseball crazy beer capital . . . Home of the Milwaukee Braves.

Four young men who hauled a pony of beer onto the baseball diamond "for a thrill" were hauled into the district court, after being caught red handed sitting Indian fashion around the pony of beer on the pitcher's mound.

Charged with disorderly conduct, the four men told Judge Robert A. Hansen that they "just wanted to get the thrill of drinking beer on the Pitcher's mound" (how they got the pony of beer in the ball park wasn't discovered).

Judge Hansen noted that Milwaukee lost to the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, and declared:

"If you were Cubs fans I'd excuse you, but as Braves fans, I can't. You shouldn't have added to the other indignities suffered by the team last night."

The judge held the case open until the end of the baseball season, (How thoughtful can one judge get?)

If the Braves don't win the national league pennant, I wonder what will become of the "beer happy" four?

Sgt. Regis Blair Former Fighter Under Pete Now Training Amateur Champ

Take it from Sgt. Regis Blair of Chicago, Ill. . . . Pete, as it turns out, is scheduled to challenge Floyd Patterson for the world's heavyweight crown in August. And everything a trainer looks for in a fighter included a lot of heart.

And who should know better than the 29-year-old sergeant from Fort Benning who has been in the amateur champion of the world's corner for everyone of his 29 Army months and will be there once again under the Seattle August moon.

Blair's only disappointment was that he wasn't able to be with the former Army lieutenant in Australia when the big heavyweight captured his 1956 Olympic title.

"I did get a chance to see the movies of Pete's fights in Australia," Blair said, "and it hurt even more not to have been there to shake the big guy's knee after he beat Lew Monahan to win the olympic title."

But as it stands now Sgt. Blair is willing to let bygones be bygones because he feels that he'll be in a better position to shake Pete's hand come August 22 in Sick Stadium in Seattle.

Does he think Rademacher can win? "I definitely do," the sergeant stated vehemently, "I wouldn't be here if I didn't think so."

And the sergeant wasn't kidding when he said it. Blair is presently on a 60-day leave from the U.S. Army Infantry Center where he is assigned to the Staff Department's organization and training section as an instructor.

"All this talk of Pete being an amateur and trying an incredible task of debarring the world's heavyweight champion is me to do so," said Blair. "I've been a Pro."

"Though he hasn't got a penny for fighting," Blair continues, "he has been training for the past six years to fight professionally."

est man for Pete was Johnny Johnson, a sergeant from Europe," Blair commented. "Pete had to beat him twice in order to get to the Olympics."

Rademacher's . . . win over Johnson came in the All-Army finals and in the finals of the Olympic Trials in San Francisco.

George Chemera, Rademacher's chief trainer, rates high with the Army as a trainer which he picks up immediately.

"Frankly," the sergeant continued, "he's just the type of person who improves with age."

The Fort Benning sergeant knows what he is talking about when he discusses boxing. And with little wonder for the veteran of ten years in the Army was himself a fighter who compiled an amateur record of 97 wins and six losses.

An ironical twist on this story is that Sgt. Blair in 1954 was fighting as a flyweight with Fort Benning and had as a coach Lt. Pete Rademacher. In his ring career Blair won the All Far East flyweight title along with the Eighth Army (1947-1948) and the Far East Interservice titles.

So take it from Sgt. Regis Blair, Pete Rademacher, the amateur heavyweight champion of the world, has the winning style and the winning combination to go all the way to the top.

Capt. Hastie

Former Professional Stock Car Driver Recalls Big Racing Thrill

VETERAN STOCK CAR DRIVER Captain John L. Hastie

Among the wide variety, often unusual talents and skills in the Stock Brigade is a former professional stock car driver, Capt. John L. Hastie. He is assigned as a student officer in the Advance Infantry Officers Course No. 13, The Co., First Student Bn., The School Brigade.

Capt. Hastie died most of his racing in California and Washington during 1947-48, but has also raced in Germany, Austria, and Italy.

He says that the cars raced are bought and a showroom floor just personal cars. The only modification allowed for official purposes is the modifications include the addition of heavy-duty shock absorbers, a new steering mechanism system, addition of safety belts, and a roll bar.

His most outstanding race, Capt. Hastie ventured, took place at Yakima, Wash., in August, 1947. He explains and started out in 17th place and worked up to second. It was on the third lap of the 150 lap race that I came out in the turn and was passing the leader when a loud explosion took place. I glanced out of the corners of my eye to see who was in trouble.

I could see anyone showing signs of a wreck or near wreck, so I kept my foot jammed on the accelerator. It was at this moment that I began to feel the car vibrating and I got a skid toward the outside fence, and I came out in the turn and was passing the leader when a loud explosion took place. I glanced out of the corners of my eye to see who was in trouble.

"My crew changed the tire and gassed me up, but by the time I got back on the track I had dropped back to 17th place. I finally ended up in sixth and won $150—a nice run of money back in those days."

Professional racing days for Hastie ended when he was over 30. He says he has never been able to get back on the track or the highway. "I do my own mechanical work on my automobile and it performs like a sewing machine. I have no hot rod attachments on my car, and never will have any. Safe and sane driving is my motto."

Div. Pistol Squad Back

The pistol section, Marksman Battalion, returned from the 3rd Division returned from Nashville, Tenn., where they competed in the Tennessee State Pistol Championships.

A total of 6 individual matches and three team matches were held. The 3d Division won a total of 31 places which included 19 firsts, 12 second places and nine third place finishes.

Top performances by "Marmaron" were turned in by Lt. Jack M. Ellis, Jr., 5d AVN.

YAC'tivity Holds Kids Golf Clinic

Youth Activities Club will sponsor a Golf clinic for boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 14.

The clinic will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday, July 17 at Fort Benning Country Club. Subsequent clinics will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 20, and Wednesday July 24. Youth attending the clinic are required to bring their own clubs; preferably a 5, 6, or 7 iron. The club must be marked with owner's name and telephone number.

To register for the clinic call Lt. Sgt. Williams at the YAC office, telephone 2-2216.

He still does a little racing as a hobby, and races about a week or so ago at Tuscaloosa, but his pro days are over.

He has advised relatives, I think, is the primary consideration in stock car racing. When the checkered flag goes on the track or the highway, "I do my own mechanical work on my automobile and it performs like a sewing machine. I have no hot rod attachments on my car, and never will have any. Safe and sane driving is my motto."

WRESTLER AND STRONGMAN Joseph Swiderski, trainee with the 3d Infantry Division at Fort Benning, Georgia lifts Spd Roy Morgan, also with the Marine organization, in a burst of strength. The huge 330 pound Syracuse, New York native wrestled in 37 bouts professionally on the west coast, prior to his induction into the army. The talented mauler has lost only one of his mat events and is considered among the tops in his field.

YAC Program Starts Talk On Grid Play

With the weather forecast of 90 degrees and high humidity, it may seem foolish to think about football, but the YAC program is preparing for this fall's pickup season.

The commanding officer of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry will be charge of the football leagues and is busy right now recruiting coaches and officials for the fall sport.

Anyone interested in helping out with the fall football festivities should contact Captain Thomas at 4-2115 or PFC Dick Spencer at 2-4253.

The bayonet assault and preliminary rifle instruction site at the junction of Victory Drive and Cutler Road in the Sand Hill area has been named Dare Field in memory of SFC Robert E. Dare.

Sgt. Dare, a member of the 3th Infantry Regiment during the Korean conflict, was killed in action July 20, 1950, and was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action in Hamilton, Ga.

West Coast Grappler Pro Wrestler Halts Career; Enters Army

BY DAVE NOTHBERG Big Joseph Swiderski, formerly of West coast professional wrestling fame, has retired his huge 6'3", 230 lb frame from the mats for the next two years. The now 27-year-old Swiderski is presently preoccupied with basic training in the 3d Infantry Division's 6th Tank Battalion at Fort Benning, Georgia.

The 22 years old, Syracuse, N.Y., bred Swiderski came to the Marine Division with a reputable record of wrestling performances in the San Francisco Bay area. In a sport where his large impressive frame is not considered unusual, Swiderski has achieved an enviable record of thirty-six victories and has suffered a lone setback. He has engaged in battle with Hahn, such as in his last pro battle, where he scaled at about 250 lbs. and reached the clouds with their 6'7" structure.

Swiderski apparently has a come into the sport of wrestling, he has suffered a setback. He has engaged in battle with Hahn, such as in his last pro battle, where he scaled at about 250 lbs. and reached the clouds with their 6'7" structure.

Swiderski's uncle has been a wrestling promoter on the west coast for the last few years and sponsored his nephew in the sport.

Hailing from Syracuse, Swiderski ventured to the west coast several years ago, graduating from Mantus Military Academy in California before entering the ring and then pursuing a career of professional wrestling.

While a student, he participated in the intercollegiate football and baseball. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

Deacon Jones Injured Div. All-Star Team Wins 10-9

In a game that featured a little of everything, the 3d Division All-Stars edged the 30th Infantry Regiment 10-9 at Benet Field, before a Reorganization Day capacity crowd. It was a match of the booming bats between the Marine Division's best players against the number one team. The 30th held the upper edge as long as the booming bat of third sacker Grover Jones was in the lineup. Jones put the 30th out in front again in the 4th as they tallied four times. The A-11 Stars pecked away at starter Taylor in the sixth, combining three timely hits with a pair of walks and two 30th errors to score five big runs. With Division Trainer Ben Burbanks on the mound, the 30th was stymied through the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Burbanks was credited with the win for the all-stars. Special ceremonies before the contest included introduction of the squads of both teams, lining up on the field for the playing of the national anthem. Pete Radenapich, commander for the world's heavyweight championship was also introduced to the large throng on hand.

JERRY ARMSTRONG Rest Camp Ideal For Vacationing

Five days in the warm atmosphere of the "Microbe Strip" at a point with Pensacola and Panama City on either side, everything expedited of a trip to the beach is right at hand.

I packed all my sailing equipment, food to fill a whole tub of Sea and Ski and also the wife into the car after reaching across the bay taking the first of the month. Leaving a vacation trail of carbon monoxide behind, we headed down Highway 27 to the "Sunshine State".

It was a nice day (June 30) for traveling and we took our time. The trip is about a pleasant four to five hours away from base or just under 290 miles. The roads are in fairly good condition, traffic is slack even on Fourth of July, and the scenery is very similar to Georgia's.

Ostle Prominent Feature However, the medium level pine areas do play out as the road winds into Florida and more and more of the longer type variety can be spotted. Truck farmers and cattle raising are the most prominent occupations noticeable from the road.

As we approached the coast, the scene changed drastically and the beach-lined Highway 10 runs for a few miles parallel to the mixtures of blue and green waters of the Gulf.

Then situated on the lower side of a white sand dune was a sign reading Destin. The entrance to the town is a line of motels and cottages of all shapes and sizes. The "Friendly House" of the more attractive ones and "Snyggins Inn".

Learn to Stay Alive During Summer Fun

The American Red Cross offers swimmers and boaters ten tips on a subject every man should know: staying cool.

1. Learn to swim. You can't think of a better sport to save your life. 2. Always swim with another person.

3. Swim in a safe place. The presence of life guards usually indicates the area is safe for swimming.

4. Know the area. Before diving, be sure the water is deep enough and that there are no hidden objects such as submerged logs.

5. Respect the water and know your limitations. Water is a good solvent and can be very slippery. Don't go beyond safe limits or your ability.

6. Keep safety equipment in your boat or canoe. Always use it to attach a self cushion life preserver to your body with a line.

7. Stay with your boat or canoe. Most small craft will float right over your head if you are overturned.

8. Keep safety equipment in your boat or canoe. Always use it to attach a self cushion life preserver to your body with a line.

Mother Shows Gratitude For Dead Son's Helmet

ATLANTA, Ga. — Fourteen years after her son was killed by three Japanese Army officers on Guadalcanal, a Japanese mother has given a gift of gratitude to an American soldier instrumental in returning her son's helmet.

This month George Rhodes of Atlanta received a small, hand-carved bear—a gift from the dead Japanese soldier's mother, Ai Mito. The bear is symbolic of the island of Hokkaido, the mainland of the dead Japanese and his mother's present home.

3d Division's NCO School Sells Classes

The Third Infantry Division's Non-Commissioned Officers' School resumes classes July 15. The last class of 1946 was held to attend the school were graduated on May 10.

The course was organized and the program of instruction changed to keep the NCOs in step with the changes in the Division's policies and ever-increasing responsibilities. The scope of instruction includes a general survey of the Army's organizational standards to conduct basic and advanced Army training programs, and the organization of the Current Infantry Division organization and doctrine.

The schedule of classes is as follows:

Class No. 1, July 15 — August 10
Class No. 2, August 12 — September 14
Class No. 3, September 16 — October 18

The basic objective of the school is to increase the knowledge, skill, and leadership qualities to enhance the prestige of the Division.

Noncommissioned officers and specialists in the grades of E7, E6, and E5 will be required to attend the NCO School unless exempt. Division personnel in one of the following categories may be exempt:

Those possessing a former de-commissioned status; administrative or technical personnel not required by their units to take present instruction; those having attended a noncommissioned officers course at a service school; and those men who attended the Division NCO School since February 16, 1956.

The Japanese officers that visited the Rhodes home met Suzuki at a Japanese Army school. When Suzuki heard they were going to the United States he gave them the gift of Ai Mito with instructions to deliver it to Rhodes. This they did on their first weekend in the United States.

Mrs. Rhodes was not forgotten. She received a small, hand-carved bear in the traditional Japanese style and playing a samisen, an oriental stringed instrument.

GIFT FROM GRATEFUL MOTHER. . . . Capt. George Rhodes, Atlanta, receives a gift from a Japanese mother whose son he helped kill 14 years ago at Guadalcanal. The present was for the son's helmet, which Capt. Rhodes was instrumental in returning. Presenting the gift are, left to right, Japanese officers, Lt. Col. Sumao Hara, Maj. Mutsuo Ando, and Lt. Col. ### Leader Must Know Men, Gen. Ruggles Tells Grads

A commander must be thoroughly familiar with his subordinates and spark an awareness in them of the importance of their individual assignments, Brig. Gen. John P. Ruggles emphasized to graduates of the Infantry School's associate company officers class No. 3 July 7.

"Two elements are vital to troop leading. You must know your men and handle them so they will feel that the job they have to do as an individual is important," Gen. Ruggles said.

The acting assistant commander of the Infantry School presented certificates to 79 members of the class in ceremonies in the Main Theater. He was introduced by Col. Robert H. York, the school's director of instruction.

"The Army officer must know the tools of his trade — they are men. His most fundamental tool is the soldier that he leads and he needs to know and understand him. If you are going to have the support and wholehearted loyalty of your men, you must know them well," Gen. Ruggles pointed out.

The most important man in the Army is the soldier, he said.

Col. Kawabe served in New Guinea, Col. Hara in Okinawa and Major Ando in Manchuria during World War II.

The conversation turned from the tale of the helmet and action in the South Pacific to the Japanese officers stay in the United States. The trio said they wanted to see Atlanta's largest department store and largest theater before their weekend visit to the Rhodes home ended.

And then it was dinner time the Japanese officers, once his enemies but now his friends sat down to eat with Rhodes, his wife and four children. His children are Patrick, 11; Mary, 9; Mike, 7; and Alice, 3.

Phantoms Cut Discourteous Acts on Road

Safety Director Norman M. Evans this week credited the phantom inspector phase of Fort Benning's driver courtesy program with a sharp reduction in discourteous driving.

"Our phantom inspectors have had a hard time finding enough driver discourteous acts to report," Evans said.

Approximately 20 phantom inspectors rove the post in search of discourteous and courteous driver acts, which are then written up and reported in the Daily Bulletin of The Bayonet, post newspaper.

The phantom inspectors will continue to be reported as required by regulation, and will not be reported by the phantom inspector, Mr. Evans pointed out.

Other action to implement the driver courtesy program includes a series of slides which are being shown in post theaters.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony at 10 a. m. at the new building, which will be initiated by a ribbon cutting ceremony, according to Brig. Gen. (Ret.) C. W. Pence, bank president.

Located on Wolf Avenue opposite the Main Library, the bank's hours are 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday and 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday.

All phases of banking will be included in the operation of the new bank, which is one of few National Banks in the nation located on an Army post. It has long been felt by many stationed at the U. S. Army Infantry Center that a National Bank would be a great asset to the facilities of the post. Gen. Pence pointed out.

For more than two years, individuals who were interested in such a bank have been carefully planning to make it more than a dream, a bank at Fort Benning specifically tailored to suit the needs of Army personnel and civilian employees, he added.

The bank also will offer its facilities to military personnel stationed at other posts, on civilian component duty and overseas.

The National Bank of Fort Benning was organized by a group of retired Army officers and has a capitalization of $400,000. A member of both the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Federal Reserve System, the new bank will be fully protected by federal laws and restrictions.

Total Surface Ant Attack Proves Big Improvement

The Roads and Grounds Branch of The Infantry Center Engineer Section this week reported that its total surface area attack on ants at Fort Benning was showing marked improvement over the previous mound-to-mound treatment.

Workers are now using granular heptachlor in their battle against the pesky red-tailed ants and results have been gratifying, according to officials. Plans now call for the entire post and Wherry housing to be covered by the total surface treatment with the result being the complete annihilation of the fire ant at Fort Benning.

Persons in the main post areas finding large mounds of the fire ants are reminded that they may still call the Engineer Section at 3-7665 for immediate treatment.

With more than 12 men out each day spreading the heptachlor, five per cent of the post has already been covered. The procedure calls for the area to be wet down after the heptachlor has been used so as to reduce the toxic danger to animals and humans.

Workers are also continuing their battle against individual mounds of the fire ants when they are called to their attention. The mounds are broken down and the residual-affecting heptachlor applied.

Previously, an emergency treatment consisting of a spray of a combination of chlordane and kerosene was being used in mound-to-mound treatment. Officials found this unsatisfactory, however, as the ants escaped by the mounds as far as 15 feet from the mounds as they treated. The new total surface treatment does away with that problem.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, was treated to greetings among the entirety of July 13 — his 54th birthday.

Beginning the Infantry Center staff surrounded his home and played a medley of his favorite songs, including the traditional "Happy Birthday" arrangement.

Gen. and Mrs. Powell's three favorite songs were played as they beamed with pleasure. These included "Shine On Harvest Moon," "Cuddle Up A Little Closer" and "Hawaiian War Chant."

Following his musical program, Gen. Powell went to his office and found the members of his staff waiting with a show of affection for their commander.

CLEAN-UP . . . Shown above is a map of the Main Post area depicting what major commands at Fort Benning are responsible for the police of various areas. Key to the map is at right. Thousands of military manhours are used each week in the police of the post. While police of the post is used to clean up the littering already done, an educational campaign by the Police and Beautification Section of the Office of the Provost Marshal is being used to prevent further littering of the post. KEEP FORT BENNING CLEAN is the theme of the major campaign. The page of the Daily Bulletin and THE BAYONET have been used to bring home the war on litterbugs now being waged. In addition, members of the Military Police have been alerted to pay strict attention to enforcing the garrison rules which forbid throwing trash and rubbish on the post. The two-pronged attack has already been successful, according to Capt. Lloyd A. Thomas who is in charge of the project. An expected increase in litterbugs due to the arrival of the summer months has failed to materialize. Publicity on the KEEP FORT BENNING CLEAN project and the soldier's natural pride in the beautiful post, have combined to keep littering to a minimum. Fort Benning officials have played up the idea of keeping the post as clean as one would his own home or back yard. Results have been gratifying. The most beautiful Army post in the country seems to be playing that way. With the exception of residential areas, the police of the main post is the responsibility of organization and unit commanders, staff sections, and the Infantry School Operations Officer, as designated in the map above. Sweeping of streets is the direct responsibility of the Provost Marshal. This does not relieve units from removing paper and debris from those streets during their daily police call. The police of other streets is the direct responsibility of the unit and or individual to whom the area is assigned. Units and or individuals will dispose of rubbish and trash only by burning or dumping in authorized dumps. The necessity for maintaining superior police of areas, roads, and routes of the reservation places an obligation on each individual to assure that no debris or trash is improperly disposed of on the reservation or left at any site. Direct responsibility for the cutting of grass and weed cutting within unit and individual quarters areas is the direct responsibility of the organization, using units and occupants. Grass will be moved as frequently as necessary and, unless specifically authorized, will not be mowed shorter than one and one half inches. Direct responsibility for the cutting of open areas such as parade fields, open training areas, and open athletic areas is assigned to the Post Engineer. Direct responsibility for main traffic arteries and or VIP routes rests with the Post Engineer for machine cutting.

The "Pentomic" 3d Infantry Division under the command of Major General Roy E. Reorganization Day on July 2 marked the beginning of the new 3d Infantry Division which will soon take its place along side other NATO units in Germany in defense of Western Europe. Beginning in September, the first of the "Marne" Division basic trainees designated GYROSCOPE will arrive for basic training. During the period of July and August, the Division will receive the majority of its officers and non-commissioned officers for Operation GYROSCOPE. Cadre personnel will be trained during this period in preparation for the extensive training program which begins in September. The Division NCO School will reopen on July 15 to train NCOs in the new tactical doctrine, weapons training, and leadership subjects for the new

Post Buildings Becoming Known By Wrong Names, Board Says

At a recent meeting of the Fort Benning Typographical Board, it was revealed that there are numerous buildings on the Main Post that are not being referred to by their correct names. All the buildings have been named in honor of military personnel who have been killed in action in World War II, awarded the Medal of Honor. The board strongly feels that it would be for the best interests of Fort Benning for the buildings to be called by their proper names. The buildings and the heroes for whom they have been named are as follows: The Main Post Library is named the Sayers Building after PFC Foster J. Sayers, 357th Infantry, 30th Division, who was killed in action in Germany. The Army Printing Plant is named the Kizer Building after Pvt. Harold G. Nelson of the 60th Infantry, Ninth Division, killed in action in the Philippines. The Dispensary A and the Dental Clinic (Building 56) is named the Parrish Building after Tec-4 Lavern Parrish, 1st Infantry, 24th Division, killed in action on Luzon Island in the Philippines. The western section of the Third Cuartel (Building 76) is named the Shockley Building after PFC William R. # Volunteers Sought for Medical Research

Military volunteers for medical research investigations are being sought monthly, according to Army officials.

Army Fort Benning military volunteers will be placed on 30-day temporary duty at the Army Chemical Center, Frederick, Md., for the purpose of assisting in investigations and treating of methods of defense against chemical warfare agents, officials said.

At the end of the 30-day period, or sooner if requested, the individual volunteer will return to his unit. The volunteer group is attached to a troop detachment for administration and supply. The group is not subject to fatigue or special duty details and will at all times be entitled to the customary pass and recreational facilities, officials pointed out.

The investigations are conducted at the Chemical Warfare Laboratories at the Army Chemical Center.

During normal duty hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., the volunteer identified by his volunteer arm brassard will be on duty at the laboratories. Since the majority of the tests require more observation time than actual performance, a combination day room and clinical facility has been established.

Adequate medical facilities are provided. Visits from friends, training, physical profile E-2, at least three months service remaining, and security clearance tests must be completed in the tests, but the increased scope of the activity, authorities stated.

Applications are usually submitted on the Standard Personnel Action Form 1405. Applicants must meet the following prerequisites for selection: aptitude area 1 with score 80 or higher; completed basic training, physical profile E-2, H-2, L-2, U-2, S-2, P-2 or higher, age group 17 to 35 years old, at least three months service remaining, and security clearance.

Participation of military personnel in these medical research investigations will materially assist the program designed to strengthen the defense of the U. S. against chemical warfare attack. It will be given official recognition through letters of commendation and certificates of participation which will become a part of the volunteer's permanent Army File, officials added.

Fort Benning military personnel who are interested in volunteering for the medical research volunteer program may contact the personnel officer of their units for further information.

Cadet Fled to Freedom As Reds Took Ukraine

By PVT. JOE ZELINK

If there is one West Point cadet who finds the sound and fury of military life nothing new, it is Nicholas S. Krawciw of Philadelphia, Pa., a member of the U. S. Military Academy's Class of 1959, who recently completed two weeks of summer training at Fort Benning.

He was Abroad

Nicholas, then only four, remembers little of their flight across the Slan River, which then divided the Russian and German forces. They were on a boat. It was night. There was the sound of bullets. And he was afraid. It was the first of many nights that would find the sounds of war rocking him to sleep.

The first 10 years in the life of this six-foot, 160-pound, good-looking cadet were spent in war-torn Europe. Nicholas was born in 1959 in the Western Ukraine, which was then under the domination of a Polish dictator. His father, Bobdan, was a highly nationalistic newspaper editor, poet and writer who wrote unceasingly against the Russian Communists. In 1939, when the Nazis and Russia invaded the Ukraine, Nicholas' father fled the day before the Communists arrived.

The American troops were kind to Nicholas. They converted him into an enthusiastic Boy Scout, and, already, he was dreaming of the U. S. and its military academy. The Army donated equipment used for scouting and sponsored camping trips.

Military School

In 1949 the Krawciws came to the U. S., to Philadelphia where they had relatives. Mr. Krawciw secured a position on a Ukrainian newspaper. Nicholas attended high school in Philadelphia for a year, then went on to Bordentown Military Institute at Bordentown, N. J. It was here that Nicholas secured his appointment to the U. S. Military Academy. After graduating from Bordentown it was necessary for him to attend Pennsylvania Military College in Chester for a year while waiting for the necessary five years' residency in the U. S. that would make him a naturalized citizen eligible for West Point. In 1955 he entered the academy.

Reservists Begin Work

With the arrival of active reservist SFC Cephas T. Evans and Sp4 Lawrence W. Hinkle, road, the 2nd Field Artillery Battalion (Rocket Howitzer), 10th Artillery will once again participate in the military education and training of our individual reserve training program.

The bombings became habitual, the people stopped going into the streets. "It got so we didn't care any more," Nicholas explained.

One day the little church across the street was gone. Another day the apartment house next door was hit. During one of the afternoons that Nicholas and his mother and sister were in the cellar and his father at work, their apartment was hit by 50 incendiary bombs. The fires were put out without loss of life, however. The bombings became worse

After two days under the constant attack of Allied bombers, Nicholas remembers the bombings. "The American planes came at two o'clock every day," he said. "You could see your own shadow in the British plane's trail in the night."

The Communists have seized Bobdan Krawciw to death three times for various "crimes" against the Soviet Union. For this reason, the Krawciws do not communicate with their friends in the Ukraine. It would mean trouble for them.

When asked the usual question about what he likes best in America, Nicholas did not come up with the usual answer of television or beautiful cities. To Nicholas Krawciw, the most beautiful and wonderful thing in America is his freedom.

Lawson Unit Helping Turn Out Better Pilots Through 'Trainer'

The Synthetic Trainer Section Lawson Army Air Field Command is helping turn out better-trained pilots at a fast rate with low-cost Link Trainers.
Established with only two trainers in 1954 under the supervision of Anthony Hatters, the section now serves some 300 pilots and students from the Third Aviation Co., Lawson Command; the Instrument School conducted by Lawson Command; and rated officers enrolled in schools at The Infantry Center.

This marks more than triple growth for the section since it began operations two years ago. A Link Trainer is a fully equipped, stationary cockpit designed for simulated flight instructions of all type. It shortens the training for instrument flight through clouds and fog, and for precision night flying. The simulated flight trainer gives pilots low-cost practice to maintain their skill in orientation and instrument flying, and helps the student gain a better understanding of the action of the various instruments and the resulting indications from different attitudes of the aircraft. It is an aid to instrument flying, and helps the student gain a better understanding of the action of the various instruments and the resulting indications from different attitudes of the aircraft.

Four civilian instructors are now operating each section. Hatters, has 15 years experience as a pilot and ground instructor. Norman A. Sims, Jim Roland J. Foulie, six years experience. Mr. Emmanuel Coop-

Pioneering in New Concept

Leadership Training with Films Developed by Infantry School

A new concept in the teaching of leadership—filmed production situations to be solved by the individual student—has been developed at Fort Benning's U. S. Army Infantry School.

Designed to arouse student interest, the pioneering leadership films seek to reduce intangible leadership theory to facts.

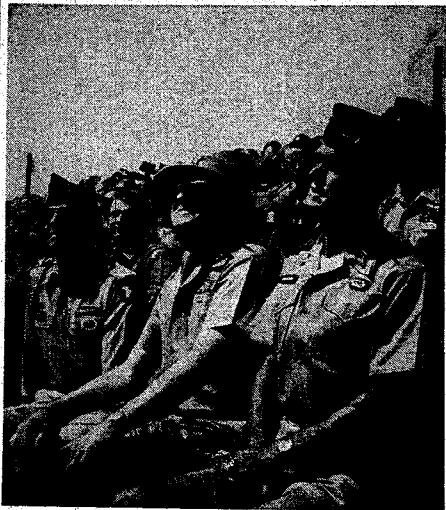

Dealing in everyday leadership situations the 8 to 10 minute movies will portray unit problems at every level, emphasizing good versus poor leadership. Each student will be able to view all facets of a problem before proposing a solution.

Production on two series, one for officer cadets in the ROTC, National Guard, U. S. Army Reserve and U. S. Military Academy and another for the post-commissioned group, will begin next month by the Army Pictorial Service. The Army Pictorial Service, which produces all Army movies, is expected to complete in 18 months. Several episodes will be shot at Fort Benning.

Appointed leadership monitors for the films are: Lt. Col. William A. Tuck, commander of the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; Lt. Col. John G. Zirkle of Savannah, Ga.; Lt. Col. George H. Bowman, Ft. Benning; Lt. Col. William Davenport, Adjutant General's School, Ft. Sill, Okla.; Lt. Col. Alton Dallas, Ordnance School, Ft. Ord, Calif.; Lt. Col. John E. Burns, Medical Service School, Ft. McClellan, Va.; Lt. Col. George W. Emrick, Armored School, Ft. Ord, Calif.; Lt. Col. John E. Burns, Medical Service School, Ft. McClellan, Va.; Lt. Col. George W. ### Division MP Wife Makes Brassards

Marsmen have noticed the attractive brassards worn on the left shoulder of the 3d Division Military Police, Career Counselors, and Public Information men, but are likely unaware that these descriptive arm-bands were skillfully made by the wife of Division MP.

Mrs. Robert L. Lancaster, wife of Sergeant First Class Lancaster, Military Police Detachment, 3d Infantry Division, can be credited with the outstanding workmanship.

Major General Roy E. Lindquist, Commanding General of the 3d Infantry Division stated in a Letter of Appreciation to Mrs. Lancaster: "The project have greatly assisted the Military Police and Career Counselors in maintaining the high standards toward which Marsmen constantly strive."

Flood Waters

The Army Engineer Corps has been given the herculean job of emptying more than 15 million acre-feet of water from five heretofore perennial drought-stricken Southwestern states.

Some 20 million acre-feet of runoff were caught in the reservoirs during the spring floods that began in April. The water must be released into streams gradually but as fast as possible to provide a margin of protection against further rains that could cause new floods over the already sodden area.

These five states represent an area where drought had persisted generally for the past five or six years. The water held in conservation storage will provide supplies for cities served by the reservoirs.

The 15 million acre-feet (one acre-foot of water covers one acre of ground to a depth of a foot) is enough water to cover the entire State of Connecticut to a depth of five feet, the Army said.

This project is one of many important contributions to national progress and development the Army has made in the field of hydrology. To improve flood-control work, the Corps of Engineers has investigated (or is now investigating) some 1,000 major storms of record, compiling basic precipitation data and accumulative rainfall curves for areas ranging from 10 square miles to 100,000 square miles.

According to the Army, a cooperative flood - forecasting service is also maintained that has proved valuable in flood-fighting and rescue operations.

Walters, English Win USAIC Golf Crowns

First Lt. James Walter and CWO Claude English captured the U. S. Army Infantry Center Open and Senior Division Golf Championship titles July 12 at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Lt. Walters, in the Open Division, won with a 72-hole round rally by 2nd Lt. Michael DiVenanzo to take a two-stroke victory with a 72-hole total of 364.

DiVenanzo, who won the Main Officers' Open Golf Tourney earlier this year, came in with a 72 on the final 18 holes picking up four strokes on Walters who fired an 80. However, Walters earlier rounds of 74-75 was enough of a cushion to bring him the win.

In the Senior Division, Mr. English virtually walked away with the honors with a 72-73-73-389 total with his nearest challenger, Major (Ret.) Ray H. Boff 15 strokes behind with a 244 total.

Tom Wierzbicki Fight Preparation Not an Easy Job

Early to bed, early to rise SHOULD make a man healthy, wealthy (??) and DEFINITELY stronger.

Wise, that is, to the extent that if he's a stranger to a heavyweight boxer's training camp he realizes that getting ready for a title fight is a tough grind.

Our previously acquired conception of what goes on in a fighter's training quarters certainly had to be readjusted for tough Pete's daily workout lasts only an hour to two hours in the afternoon it certainly doesn't begin and end quite there.

A Typical Day Everybody is out of the sack at 5:30 in the morning when Pete's chief trainer, George Chermers, shuts off the electric alarm clock and bellows his cheerful greeting "Up and at 'em boys!"

Pete and Clarence Hinant, the sixth-ranked light heavyweight of the world who is helping Rademacher train, put on heavy combat boots (and the real McCoy, fellas) and get ready for a little rowdier.

We were among the fortunate ones who observed the drudgery of six miles of running up and down hills in the back seat of a car along with the trainers, Chermers and Sgt. Regis Blair.

Working Hard Blair, who is helping train Rademacher for his title fight with Floyd Patterson, is on leave from Fort Benning. In some circles there are those who consider this the "ideal" leave, but watching Sgt. Blair in action for two days we can assure you that he's putting in a hard day's work.

After the rowdier the fighters take a quick shower and relax before sitting down to breakfast. The meals, incidentally are cooked by another member of our illustrious family, Leon Roudner. Leon, formerly was a SP3 assigned to Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 29th Infantry at Fort Benning. He was discharged last December.

After a scrumptious breakfast served by Leon, the fighters take one of a series of walks to be recorded in the daily grind.

Now, walking may be enjoyable to most people, but keeping time with a fighter one finds that he certainly burns up the shoe leather. The walk after breakfast usually lasts about an hour and a half.

Returning back to the cabin following the little "excursion", the fighters relax (that Georgia sun is hot, you know) talking "shop" or maybe playing a game of poker or casino, even though they had a fourth for bride.

The noon meal consisting of a green salad is served about 11:45. Following the meal . . . another walk. This brings us back around 12:45. At this time, the boys who are going to be featured in the afternoon workout get a little sack time till about 2:15.

The afternoon workout gets underway at 2:30 and runs, depending on how Rademacher looks to the "boss" anywhere from an hour to an hour and a half.

Back to the cabin for a shower and a short rest to cool off. Then another walk before supper. At this meal, which gets underway at 5:30, the fighter put away a lot of food. Steak, chicken, lamb chops or beef stew usually heads the menu.

Friendly Card Game Another walk after the meal and then a friendly (that's what they call it) game of cards or a gabfest follows till about 8:30. A rubdown to remove the kinks and soreness precedes lights out at 9 p.m.

Typical day in Rademacher's training camp . . . easy you say? Well, take it from here . . . we prefer our job on the sidelines to going through that daily grind of preparing for a fight.

Driving back to post Sunday evening that bed looked mighty inviting. And we didn't even do a pushup all weekend!!!

In the free pistol competition, Lt. Puckel, a member of the U. S. Army Pistol Team and winner of the recent River Bend Hand Gun Tournament in Atlanta, Ga., added another championship to his credit by posting a 546 score out of a possible 600 points for the top score in the slow fire competition.

Another U. S. Army Pistol Team member, 1st Lt. David C. Miller, USA Army, fourth place in the slow fire competition with a 540 total, then fired a 575, sixth place score in the rapid fire half score in the free pistol competition.

Lt. Col. E. R. Mason, Commanding Officer of the USA Army, expressed his congratulations to each member of the international squad for their fine showing on the West Coast and will present awards to each shooter during a brief ceremony in the unit's Trophy room, July 19.

BIG BOB BRASWELL . . . Rongy first baseman for the 30th Infantry displays lots of class around the initial sack for the Rock of the Marne outfit. Braswell's stick work makes him a "Mr. Big" for his club, as he has maintained a 400 batting average and leads the team in base hits. Bob Braswell has been a major factor in the success of the 30th nine this season.

Barnard Stops 15th On Six Hit, 9-1 Win

The United States Army Infantry School Troops Command defeated the 15th ICG 9-1 behind a strong thirteen hit attack and the fine six hit pitching of John Barnard.

The Commanders scored what proved to be enough runs in the first inning. With one out Frank Lee was safe on the base.

On the throw to plate Bartoline singled to left.

Roy Wilkins got the first of his three hits in the fourth as he tripled over the center fielder's head and came home on Weider Hall's single to left.

In the fifth Lee was safe on an error by the shortstop and went to third as Bryant nailed to the third baseman who threw low to first. Lee scored and Bryant went to third as Bartoline singled. Walstad singled scoring Bryant sending the runner in.

The 15th ICG scored in the ninth with one out Ray Humber singled. Media was safe on Bartoline's error. Humber scored as Ron Ament singled.

Barnard was backed by two double plays and other fine plays. Barnard struck out eight, walked one and gave up six hits.

Roy Wilkins paced the Commanders with three hits. Paulson, Bryant, Bartoline, Walstad, and Hall each picked up two hits.

Post Introduces New Quails Here

Fort Benning hunters will be in for two surprise packages in the form of two new species of quail introduced to the reservation.

These two fowls, one native from another part of the southeastern states and the other imported all the way from Asia, have been raised by the Fish and Game Maintenance Office for improving the post hunting.

Plans are for the first pair to be released in the early fall on different sectors of the reservation. Around 50 or 70 pairs of mostly the Asiatic variety will be turned to the wild in the first group.

Then as the birds are hatched and mature other pairs will be turned loose on the stock.

Hatching of the birds is being handled by M-Sgt. William S. Sikes, post range guard, at his home near located near the Fort Benning Pistol Club.

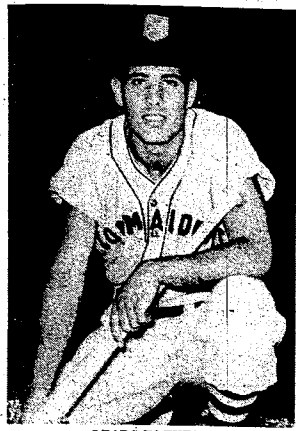

Increased Prolific Nature. Other than the contrast in visual character, the two birds also have other tendencies which differentiate them. The prolific nature of the Asiatic species probably the most apparent characteristic.

The Missouri Conservation Commission ran experimental tests with these quail in 1935-36. The main results found were: pen-raised birds have raised as many as five generations in a single season; birds mature in 35 to 56 days; fertile eggs from young birds are laid in the first few days of maturity; and laying early.

They are quick to take to the field, different from a bobwhite, it is surprising and long. Curious, similar to shooting of single bobwhite, as the birds do not, cover but swoop and scatter.

Further conclusions by the Missouri Commission are that there is a possibility of the birds being introduced in their original habitat, that to increase the availability of more game for the hunters and that our native bird is still more capable in most areas.

Purpose of Stocking. However, the Missouri Commission feels, the post game officials are stocking these native birds to help the native bobwhite. If they are well adapted, we may find them on post for being behind every bush.

Reel Leads Commanders In RBI's and Stolen Bases

Pvt. Ralph Reel, 5904 Transportation Company 2nd Battle Group 14th Infantry, led in hitting and fielding second base man of the United States Army Infantry School Troops Command baseball team leads the team in runs batted in and stolen bases.

The native of Queens, New York started the season as shortstop but was moved to second base to strengthen the infield of the Commanders.

His speed and quick hands are him greatly in the field as well as at bat.

Reel started his baseball in Barrera High School in Manhattan where he was a four year letterman in baseball at second base. In 1953 he led his team to the city championship in the Journal-American zone.

In his four years of high school play he had an average of 400 in his final year he was offered a contract with the St. Louis Browns organization.

During the summers Ralph played sandlot ball and led his team in 1953 to the Kiwanis baseball league championship with a .400 average. In 1951 he was a member of the team which won the Queens-Nassau League.

Mechanic Shortage Exists in 3rd Div.

A critical shortage of aviation mechanics exists in the 3d Infantry Division's 3d Aviation Company. This lack of personnel seriously hampers the operation of the company which has recently been reorganized under the Division's new "Pentomic" concept. Men who can meet the necessary prerequisites are encouraged to apply for training.

The Company's objective is to train a full force of men who desire to GYROSCOPE to Germany next Spring. Since only a relatively short time remains before the Division departs for its new home, and because of the extensive training required to mold capable aircraft mechanics, all interested personnel must act immediately. The 3d Aviation Company also welcomes all trained aviation mechanics who wish to GYRO.

Gen. Marshall:

Army Strength Lies In Unit Commander

Too great a dependence on new weapons and methods devalues human relationships requisite to military success, Reserve Brig. Gen. S. L. A. Marshall, one of the Army's foremost historians and editorial writer of The Detroit (Mich.) News, said at Fort Benning July 9.

"We go too eagerly to the new thing and may give it too big a place in the overall design. The strength of the Army lies in the strength, wisdom and generosity of its company commanders," he stated.

Speaking on combat leadership to U. S. Army Infantry School advanced officers class, Gen. Marshall was introduced by Brig. Gen. John F. Bugles, acting assistant commander of the school.

"It is possible for major problems to exist within any organization without anyone in particular being aware of them. There is more to be discovered about training, management and combat than has been discovered under the sun," the speaker stressed.

Gen. Marshall pointed out that when something new is discovered, one must develop the confidence necessary to communicate it to other people.

Col. Assigned New Battalion Commander

Lt. Col. Harry A. Dosch Jr., formerly an instructor in regimental tactics for almost three years with the Infantry School, assumed command of the 2d Student Battalion, The School Brigade, June 21, replacing Lt. Col. Edward S. Robbins, who was transferred to a new State College, Calif., as PMST.

Prior to his assignment with The Infantry School, Colonel Dosch completed the Associate Infantry Officers Advanced Course in September, 1954. Recalled to military service in April, 1951, he served for six months in the G3 Section, HQ Second Army, and 31 months with G3, MAAG, Japan.

During World War II, Colonel Dosch served with the 43d Inf. Div. in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater as company commander, battalion executive officer, regimental S1 and S3, aide de camp to the division commander, and division adjutant general. During the beginning of the war, he was company commander at Camp Wheeler, Ga.

A graduate of the University of Maryland in 1937, Colonel Dosch served from 1937 to 1939 under the ROTC program. He attended the Basic Infantry Officers Course of The Infantry School from January to April, 1941.

In 3d Army Area

Five Contracts Awarded For New Reserve Bldgs.

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP)—Contracts for five new Army Reserve Centers in the Third Army Area have been awarded.

The contracts have been let for centers with 400-man capacities at Clemson, S.C., and St. Petersburg, Fla. Additional contracts provide for the construction of 200-man centers at Fort Valley, Ga., and Livingston, Ala., and 200-man addition to present facilities at Opelika, Ala.

Construction on the centers will begin within 30 days in most cases.

The centers will have one-story buildings of modern design along the lines of other Reserve Centers constructed throughout the nation in the past seven years. They will consist of classrooms, supply rooms, office space, a day room, a kitchen, latrine facilities, a large assembly room and a maintenance shop.

The 200-man buildings will cost about $250,000, and the 400-man centers are expected to cost approximately $345,000.

Both the Fort Valley and Livingston centers are being constructed so that they can easily be enlarged if necessary.

The five contracts brought to 49 the number of Reserve Centers which have been contracted.

At least four other centers— at Dothan, Ala., Rocky Mount, N. C., Augusta, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla.— are slated to reach completion before the end of December.

Seal's Use Few

(By Army Forces Press Service)

If we had lived in the early years of the Republic, some of us would have had the design of the seal of the United States decorating the headboard of a bed, a wedding chest, a chair back, or a table, the wallpaper, or patterning the butter mold.

But in recent times, though no law prohibits reproduction of the seal for official purposes, American sentiment supports the State Department's view that the design of the seal of the United States is a distinguishing mark of honor and may not appropriately be used in the decoration of commercial articles.

Today the seal is affixed to the following types of documents after they have been signed by the President and countersigned by the Secretary of State: Presidential proclamations; instruments of ratification of treaties; documents granting full powers to persons named therein to negotiate and sign treaties or certain other agreements; exequaturs issued to foreign consular officers; Presidential warrants for the extradition of fugitives from the justice of the United States; orders of the Cabinet officers, ambassadors, ministers, and other Foreign Service officers, and all other civil officers who are appointed by the President and whose commissions are required by law to be issued under some other seal.

It is also affixed to the envelopes that contain letters of credence and recall and other communications from the President to heads of foreign governments.

If you are among the thousands of Americans who have visited the Department of State since July 1, 1955—when a permanent exhibit of the seal was established on the north mezzanine of the main State Department building—you have seen many types of documents carrying the impress of the seal, some of them quaint survivals of another world and time.

The exhibit includes the earliest known document to bear the seal. Dated Sept. 16, 1782, this is a grant of full powers and authority to George Washington to arrange with the British for the exchange, subsistence, and better treatment of prisoners of war.

Two other historic examples are a "sea letter" of June 18, 1793, for the brigantine Leopard, signed by President Washington and countersigned by Secretary of State Jefferson, and a passport for the ship Projector, victoriously captured at the top, dated Nov. 27, 1802, and signed by President Jefferson and Secretary of State Madison.

The exhibit carries us through the history of our nation to the present day. The focal point is the glass-walled room containing the press—a seal, both of which have been in use since 1945.

At certain hours visitors may watch the keeping of the seal-impressing it upon paper wafers pasted to documents requiring it.

Sometimes a visitor asks for a sample of the impress of the seal. But because the use of the seal is restricted by law, such requests cannot be granted.

Wilson Gives View On Overseas Trials

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The United States would ultimately have to give up its military operations overseas if it insisted on the exclusive right to try American troops, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has declared.

Wilson expressed this view in a letter to the NATO States of Forces Agreement, a treaty that recognizes that American troops are to be tried by local courts for crimes committed on foreign soil.

Wilson addressed his letter to the chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

The committee has recommended a resolution that would direct President Eisenhower to seek revision of the treaty dealing with criminal jurisdiction with a view to obtaining exclusive jurisdiction over American forces abroad.

In the event of failure to obtain such a resolution, Wilson would require denunciation of the treaty by the United States.

Chairman of the committee is Rep. Thomas B. Gore (D-Ill.).

Wilson noted that the United States reserves the right to try foreign troops who commit crimes in this country. He said that the United States would be willing to give up that right.

Wilson's letter was suggested by the President and countersigned by the Secretary of State: Presidential proclamations; instruments of ratification of treaties; documents granting full powers to persons named therein to negotiate and sign treaties or certain other agreements; exequaturs issued to foreign consular officers; Presidential warrants for the extradition of fugitives from the justice of the United States; orders of the Cabinet officers, ambassadors, ministers, and other Foreign Service officers, and all other civil officers who are appointed by the President and whose commissions are required by law to be issued under some other seal.

Life an Educator

BY CHAPLAIN (Capt.) HARRY G. CAMPBELL, Jr.

"However much the conditions of life conform to the standards which we are not wholly related to time and space."

Mr. Churchill, with his constant penetration, has struck at the heart of the matter. "The supreme question is— and all of us are concerned with the response we make to that question, for ignore it we cannot."

Throughout the ages, religion has affirmed that it has an answer to that supreme question of what is most worthy in life, and so the Church has necessarily assumed a role as educator. A religious person may be said to be one who agrees and acts on this answer of the Church. If we are to live in a wholly religious life, the task of religious education is to give to the members of society as a whole, and by the composite of religious, all will be well, that the world is not like that and perhaps it never will be.

William of Normandy wanted the Pope-willed Lady Matilda for his wife, and he won her in spite of her objections. She conducted a life of intelligence, and in the end it was through her that Henry II, King of England, first became King of England.

Ernie Struck Out As Pinch Hitter

Television viewers Sunday night got a chance to witness some of the reasons for the Ed Sullivan wasn't of the Ed Sullivan show that was dull it.

If there was any fresh air around this time, Ernie would have been pulled in a king-size cigar in the corner of his mouth.

For further satisfaction, Ernie unsuccessfully tried to blow a star and heart of the show.

Ernie Kovacs, substituting for Sullivan Sunday, protested this very well.

No doubt Sullivan's career as a newspaperman helps him recall talent for the show. Maybe this has given a slight edge on other video performers.

However, his willingness not to protect himself into acts with the public. Actually, he overlooked.

His guest stars their earned applause by themselves. The master of fact the Gene Stone did not seem surprised to keep out of the limelight.

He doesn't wear himself out with a fresh air in his presence. The audience sees him only a few minutes of each weekly performance.

When he does appear before the camera, Sullivan gives a long talk for the show. He shows on an assembly line basis in order to pack every bit of time into 30 minutes. There's no time for clowning around for Sullivan's guests.

This seems greatly to satisfy Sullivan. He has a feeling that Sullivan is working to produce the best of his talents. He can provide within the allotted time. His availability is doing him good.

MASTER INTERVIEWER

Another factor that helps keep Sullivan consistently high, is his master of the interview. Unquestionably, Sullivan developed this tribute long ago in the newspaper business.

Perhaps his art of interviewing is his greatest talent.

I couldn't but feel that Sullivan would have gotten much more for the $100 paid than he did after all, than did Kovacs.

Post Exchange Observes 62nd Year of Serving Servicemen

The Post Exchange system at Fort Benning and throughout the world will mark its 62nd year of service to American fighting men and their families July 25.

On that date in 1895, the War Department officially recognized exchanges as a part of the American military system.

From rather humble beginnings, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service as it is named today has expanded into a worldwide organization presently operating in 30 countries. Post Exchange facilities are now available at the larger reservations but at the remotest sites with even less than 200 personnel.

The Fort Benning Post Exchange system is under the direction of Lt. Col. J. J. Larson of Ft. Benning, Mich.

According to Col. Larson the maximum operation does not cost the U. S. taxpayer a cent. The system not only is self-sustaining but is a profit-making organization. Revenue collected from exchange sales goes into the Central Post Fund to support such activities as hobby shops and intramural sports.

The government only supplies the actual buildings for the Post Exchange system. All overhead such as the payroll, utilities and other operating expenses are paid by the individual exchange system.

At Fort Benning the local exchange contributes highly to the Chattahoochee Valley area providing a payroll of more than $7,000 monthly and employing over 300 civilian personnel. In addition the exchange purchases approximately half of its supplies and retail merchandise through local wholesale firms.

The Fort Benning Post Exchange also regulates 65 small locally owned businesses operated as concessions on the post, insuring both military personnel and merchants a fair price for the services performed.

The first Post Exchange building, a small wooden structure was erected at Fort Benning in 1899 on a site now occupied by Doughboy Stadium. In two years the tiny structure became obsolete and the building was enlarged. With

Crafts' Biggest Test Lawson Helicopters Begin Record Flight

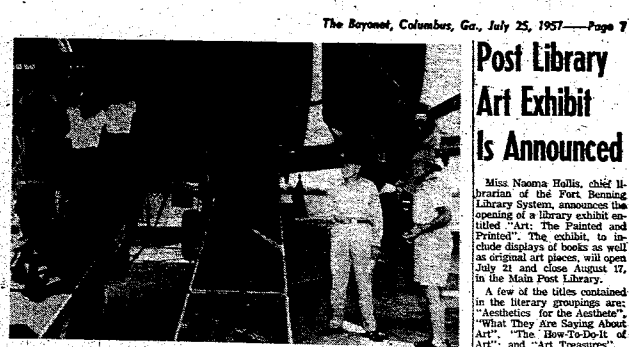

Possibly the longest flight ever made in the U. S. will begin July 22 when a group of 134 helicopters took off from Fort Benning's Lawson Army Air Field.

Twenty-one aircraft of the 31st Helicopter Company, Third Transportation Battalion, departed in three waves of seven aircraft each on their way across country. The farthest point west they will reach will be Ontario, Calif. Then they will fly to their destination at Camp Desert Rock, Nev. The helicopters left at 5:45, 6:45 and 7:45 a.m.

Lt. Col. Charles Ernest of Carmel, Third Battalion commander, piloted the lead plane in the group.

The purpose of this flight is to take part in the largest test ever conducted with helicopters in the U. S. and will be in conjunction with atomic tests, Exercise Desert Rock VII and VIII which are scheduled for August, said Capt. Albert E. Fitzgerald, operations officer for the project.

Two other units, Eighth Transportation Company and 140th Transportation Detachment from Fort Bragg, N.C., will join the Third Battalion, 31st Company and 15th Transportation (Maintenance) Detachment, to complete the group participating in the two atomic tests.

51st OCS Group Holds 'Turning Blue' Parade

The headline of this particular story could well read "51st Officer Candidate Company Turns Blue."

For the past two weeks, the 51st Co. has been in a state of excitement and expectation as the officer candidates made preparations for the traditional "Blue Parade". The parade and excitement signify that the OCS are achieving "senior status."

To the individual candidate, it means that he has started the "last lap" in fulfilling his ambition of becoming an officer in the U. S. Army. The day of "turning blue" marks the lifting of many restrictions and the gaining of privileges. Senior candidates are accorded all the courtesy due a commissioned officer by the junior candidates and are responsible for the correction of any deficiencies by a junior OCS.

German Officer Tells MOWW Of Army Problems in Homeland

Germany can't build an army greater than Russia and yet smaller than Luxembourg, Lt. Col. Walter Hartmann of the West German Army said July 18 at Fort Benning.

This need of a military force facing the new German Army were explained in a talk before the Columbus Chapter of Military Order of World Wars at the Main Officers Mess.

Col. Hartmann of Hof, Bavaria, a student at The Infantry School, admitted that it was difficult for some to understand how a nation that had built 60 divisions in one winter during World War II was unable to build only 12 in the last two years. He placed the blame on political and technical difficulties. He pointed out that the army was the only thing that Germany failed to rebuild immediately after World War II.

With the conclusion of World War II, he said, the German people moved from one extreme to another, from the militaristic Third Reich to a deep spirit of pacifism. In line with this, he explained, the former German feeling of being soldiers turned into one of condemnation as public opinion erases the military problems which the Nazi party member. The opposition of trade unions for the German Army because of what he called the "grace of zero," that is, the necessity to build from nothing which is, in reality, the opportunity to build from the experience of all other nations.

Col. Hartmann saw action during World War II in Poland, France, Russia, Finland, Austria and Italy. He used numerous charts, maps and pictures to give an informative account of the organization and limitations of the new German Army.

The speaker was introduced by Col. (Ret.) Charles B. Taylor, chapter commander. Guest of honor was Brig. Gen. James E. Leary, assistant commanding general of the 3rd Infantry Division.

Rifle Firers To Use New Front Sight

When the U. S. Army Rifle Team fires in the National Match at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August, a new National Match front sight will be used on the rifles, according to Lt. Col. E. R. Mason, commander of the U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning.

Col. Mason and members of his unit are responsible for the training of the U. S. Army rifle and pistol squads at Fort Benning and Fort Niagara, N. Y.

The new sight was produced by the Rock Island Arsenal in Illinois. It is designed to give a more exacting sight picture. The sight is currently being used by the marksmanship unit in training the rifle team, which is now at Fort Niagara.

The change in the sight, brought about through a series of tests conducted by the U. S. Army Rifle Team, is a summer blade than the standard. The old blade was .084 of an inch while the new blade is .082 of an inch. The new blade covers less of the target area when sighting, and enables the shooter to see more white portions on each side of it. One of the major aids in this elimination of sight width was the use of a fiber can tell more about whether or not he is centering his rifle.

Pistol Team Sets Match

A 12-man US Army Pistol Team is slated as match scores with over 200 competitors tomorrow, when the first round of the Northeastern Regional Pistol Championships gets underway at Attleboro, Mass.

Lt. Col. William A. Hancock, Head Coach and Team Captain, is sending the strong Army delegation to the New England tournament led by a pair of the country's finest pistolists in the personage of M-Sgt. H. L. "Joe" Bunker, 1956 National Champion, and Lt. David C. Miller, runner-up to Sgt. Bunker in last year's National Matches.

Lester Declares TSB Baseball Nine Comparable To The Average Big Ten Team

"The hot corner" ace of the USAIS-TSB baseball team is not a new hand at the game. He is Lt. Lester Hawthorne, assigned as a TAC officer with the 24th Company, 2d Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

"Hawthorne is a 1956 graduate of the University of Iowa, where he played on the varsity baseball team for three years as an outfielder, and was selected a member of the All-Big Ten team as a rightfielder the same year.

Lt. Hawthorne tried out for the Cleveland Indians' Class "B" team, but was called into the Army, he will play two-year stint that precluded his playing professional baseball at that time. As for his aspirations as a pro player, Hawthorne says "I'd like to play pro baseball, but not planning on it very long."

He goes on to say that the USAIS-TSB team is comparable to the average Big Ten

School to Begin For Small Arms

BY JERRY ARMSTRONG
A group of approximately 40 selected officers and enlisted men from the U.S. Army Infantry Weapons Department will conduct the annual Small Arms Training School in August at Camp Perry, Ohio, prior to the National Rifle and Pistol Matches.

The first part of the school will be held from August 31 to August 11 for all pistoliers, while the rifle course will be conducted from August 22 to August 29. These two times are for eliminating conflicts of having courses during the actual competition of the matches.

This is a nation-wide school which is expected to give instruction for over 3,000 rifle and pistoliers from all the services and civilian marksmen. All competitors who fire in the national matches are required to take one of the five different sections of the school before competing.

Col. John H. Chambers of Machine Island, Mich., committee chairman for special purpose weapons at Fort Benning, will direct the school. This year an addition to the four major components of the school, which include basic, advanced course for both rifle and pistol marksmanship, will be a special police school for military and civilian law enforcement.

Capt. John Preble of the Provost Marshal General's Section at Fort Gordon, Ga., will be in charge of the police school. Members are expected to be represented from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U. S. Treasury Department, and other departments throughout the nation and law enforcement units from all the military and civilian law enforcers.

The instruction for both the basic and advanced courses during this school will encompass a variety of subjects to include firing techniques of fire, operation of a competitive range, weapon maintenance and other related fields.

"This school was established by the National Defense Act of 1916 and has been an integrated part of the National Matches since that time. Only last week at the 30th ICC in a game for the National Rifle and Pistol Matches, it was the school for the Commanders and moved them into a fourth place tie in the Regimental Baseball League.

The Commanders opened their scoring in the third inning when Wedler Hall tied off with a single to center. John Barnard, winning pitcher, was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Howard Williams, singled sending Barnard to second. Barnard was out at third on Frank Les's grounder, when the third baseman threw to first trying to double up Lee. Williams went to third, Lee stole second and Williams scored on a wild pitch by Taylor with Lee moving to third. Lee then stole home as the

TOM WIERZBICKI 12 Milers Break 4-Minute Mark

For years the track world regarded the four minute mile as almost unattainable. Like prosperity in the 1930's, it was always just around the corner. And nobody ever turned it.

Then on May 6, 1954, along came Roger Bannister, the Englishman, to run a mile in 3 minutes 53.4 seconds. He was almost immediately followed by others, including John Landy of Australia. Six weeks after Bannister broke the barrier; on June 21, at Turku Stadium in Finland, Landy sped across the finish line in 3:58.

Landy's mark stood, though several others entered the distinguished circle of "breakers". Names like Chris Chataway, Lazo Tabort, Jim Bailey, Gunnar Nielsen, Ron Delany, and Derek Ibbotson.

And then last Saturday, July 20 to be exact, four men in the same race came across the finish line under four minutes. Derek Ibbotson, a 23-year-old airman, who became the ninth man to break the four minute mile, lead the group with a fantastic time of 3:57.2 for a new world's record.

More Psychological

With this past performance twelve men have now entered what many thought was an impossible circle. This prediction, that the four minute barrier was more psychological than physical.

Is it possible to set up track ultimates, to say that the fastest mile will be 3:56, that the fastest 100 yards nine seconds, the highest pole vault 16 feet?

According to Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, University of Illinois professor who has followed and studied track closely since 1929, talk of track ultimates is a foolish kind of generalization.

"We don't know yet how finely the human body can be trained. Scientific training methods are just now coming into the picture."

Assault Against Clock

Undoubtedly man will continue his assault against the clock. Races are that which a few decades he may even run the mile in 3:40, maybe even 3:30. A fast horse, however, can do it in little over 1:30. But no human runner will ever come near this time. The three-minute mile? Today's experts scoff at the idea.

A question puzzling most track enthusiasts is: Where are the American milers? All twelve who have broken the barrier represent different countries.

Dr. Cureton has the answer to that question: "Six months a year is not sufficient."

Dr. Cureton believes that if milers would follow Lauri Pihlakka's revolutionized conditioning with his system of interval training, they would be ready to start breaking records.

To be more specific, interval training consists in breaking up the over-all distance running into short distances. The runner, a miler for instance, would sprint 220 yards, walk 220 yards, sprint 220 yards and walk another 220, keeping this up until he had run several miles. Essentially it was a case of run, relax, run, relax.

Dr. Cureton says that the American milers would be the first to demolish the time barrier, turned in a never run the four minute mile. Running for the University of Kansas, Santee covered the mile in 4:01.3 on May 29. At the Compton Relay a week later, he beat his time down to 4:00.6. The Gibson sacrifice, James sent a slow roller down the ICC line which Barnard fouled for error and with Sins scoring. Howard Will hit Jack Beck, and Wedler Hall tied off with a single to center. John Barnard, winning pitcher, was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Howard Williams, singled sending Barnard to second. Barnard was out at third on Frank Les's grounder, when the third baseman threw to first trying to double up Lee. Williams went to third, Lee stole second and Williams scored on a wild pitch by Taylor with Lee moving to third. Lee then stole home as the

For National Matches

Army Marksmen Train Air Force Shooters Here

The Infantry Center and Adjutant General's School will co-host this summer to a 25-man U. S. Air Force Rifle and Pistol Team training at Fort Benning until the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August.

The squad, under the supervision of Col. Thomas C. Kellogg, represents the Air Force's first attempt at training a rifle and pistol team on a full time basis.

Lt. Col. E. R. Mason, commander of the marksmanship unit, has assigned four rifle and pistol instructors to the Air Force team.

The instructors include M-Sgt. Louis L. Coulter of Mailhead Flt. and Sgt. Wayne E. Fong of Fort Wayne, Ind., members of the U. S. Army rifle squad, who will train the Marksmanship Unit. Sellers of Phoenix, Ariz., and Richard P. Shoshan of San Marina, Calif., both on the U. S. Army Pistol Team, will be coaches for the pistoliers.

Full cooperation has been extended by Major Gen. Herbert H. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, to make available all facilities at the Air Force team.

"The more experienced and qualified shooters we have in the country, the more rewards we can expect from the realization that marksmanship, as part of our national heritage, is not only being preserved but made to foster as well," Col. Mason said in regard to the development of the Air Force's shooting program.

Division Cook Aids Youths At Boys' Club

Combining banking with base food - handling with fun games, and Hors d' Oeuvres with the hit and run in a trick, all to Sp Richard Sharts, first cook in Company C, 1st Battle Group, 25th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

Specialist Sharts is the manager of a real kick out of help. Softball team, a member of the South Columbus Boys' Club League.

Currently sporting a 5-4 record in league play, the Blue Boys says their coach, have a good chance to improve their record and are in contention for the league title.

When asked how cooking for the Army and coaching a Boys' Softball team happened to come about, Specialist Sharts said he volunteered to help the Boys' Club when his own two boys became members. In addition to coaching, Specialist Sharts umpires Babe Ruth League games, directs activities at the club, and takes the boys swimming by bus.

Specialist Sharts says he gets a real kick out of helping not only his own boys, but all the members of the club as well. In fact, he says, the boys are a lot easier to get along with than some of the KPs he works with in C Company's mess hall.

STC Drops School Brigade Nine With 4-Run Outburst in Eighth

Special Troops Command put a halt to the Infantry School Brigade baseball team's winning ways Tuesday as they fell last Wednesday at Gowdy Field.

Playing far below its usual standard, USAIS dropped the crucial game to seventh-place STC by its inability to bring home runs on bases. Three times USAIS failed to score with bases loaded. USAIS left 13 to die on base, while STC failed only on eight.

The winners needed but two big innings to win, scoring three in the fourth and four in the eighth. Infantry School failed to muster more than one run at a time, bringing home single runs in the second, third, sixth, eighth and ninth.

Although seemingly confused by the offerings of STC pitcher Dick Murray, USAIS outdid Special Troops 12-9. Murray went the route while USAIS used three pitchers, ending up with catcher Jamie Padgett who retired the last four STC batters in a row. Padgett started the game for USAIS and was replaced in the fifth by Dusty Rose, who garnered the loss.

STC won the game in the eighth inning with the team batting around the lineup. Mission Gerardi started off with a single and stole second. Ralph Nicklin walked, and Bob Groeters hit a ground ball forcing Gerardi at third. USAIS third baseman Lee Heasley started the game.

out to talk to pitcher Rose, Groeters and Hodge. John and Nicklin got ideas about stealing third. Hawthorne whipped ground and caught Nicklin just shy of third, making two outs.

Ron Hodge started a new rally with a single. Dick Ault followed with the same, and pitcher Murray slashed out what appeared to be a whoping ninth-inning rally.

SAFE . . . Lt. Lt. Jane C. Ansgore, shortstop for WAC Co. softball team, slides safely into home despite the futile attempt by SP2 Gladys Martin, catcher of the Ft. McClellan team. Ft. McClellan by the score of 18-13.

15th Anniversary

Transportation Unit To Mark Birthday

A massive display of the sedan to the tank, white land vehicles and Army aircraft will be fixed-wing aircraft will highlight the 15th anniversary celebration of the U. S. Army Transportation Corps at Fort Benning's Sightseeing Field July 21.

An invitation has been extended to residents of the Columbus-Plains City area to attend the anniversary celebration which begins at 9:30 a. m. In 1942, when a group of four trucks was utilized in extended tests. These tests revealed the need for vehicles with additional horse power and power application to all wheels for use in rough terrain.

The Transportation Corps assumed responsibility for water transport from Quartermaster Corps March 9, 1942. The railway service was placed under operational control of the corps in September during the same year.

In 1962, responsibility for maintenance and supply of all Army fixed-wing airplanes and helicopters was assigned to the corps. From the Ordnance Corps, the operational control of cargo helicopter corps is an additional function with the transportation officers flying and commanding operational helicopter units.

The mission of the Transportation Corps may be outlined as the movement of personnel and supplies of all services to the right place at the right time. This mission the corps has accomplished, keeping the theme of "Service to the User" foremost in mind.

Combat Veteran OCS Student Saw Action In Heated Korean Battle

Officer Candidate Francis M. Latchford, a member of the 5th Airborne Division, 5th Infantry Center, was one of a number of student candidates who has seen action in the Armed Forces of our country.

He took part in the Korean conflict and some of his heavy fighting after the 4th Division of the California National Guard was activated in September, 1950. Before he saw action, the Army gave him additional training to qualify him as "combat ready".

Latchford received his basic Camp McVair, near Mount Fujiyama in Japan. Here he was instructed in coordinated regimental combat team tactics, with emphasis on platoon, company and battalion tactics. Latchford was subsequently moved to Korea in 1952.

The Kunshong Valley, a point on the Iron Triangle and Kumsong Valley near Enping Ridge, was the scene of most of his action and just as other American soldiers, the superior training and firepower of the U.S. soldier were the important factors in his safe return to the States, in comparison to the heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy.

Republic of Panama Honors Div. Chaplain

The Division Chaplain of the 3d Infantry "Marine" Division was signally honored on Wednesday, July 10th, by the Republic of Panama. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Lawrence E. Ryan received the Order of Vasco Nunez de Balboa in the Rank of Knight at a ceremony held in the city of David, Republic of Panama.

Chaplain Ryan was cited for outstanding charitable work in behalf of the orphanages of Chiriqui Province during the period 1953-1956 while assigned as Post Chaplain, Fort Kobbe, Panama Canal Zone. In the citation which accompanied the Decoration, Chaplain Ryan received particular recognition for his untiring efforts in support of the annual "Operation Christmas" which involved the collection and distribution of toys, food, clothing, and equipment for the orphanages of the Province.

Governor Francisco Sages of Chiriqui Province pinned the Decoration on Chaplain Ryan on behalf of President Ernesto de la Guardia before a gathering of over 2000 persons, the first ceremony of its kind ever to be held at David. The ceremony, which included the presentation of a City Council Resolution of Recognition to Chaplain Ryan, was conducted by an address by Monsignor Thomas Claret, Bishop of David. Chaplain Ryan, in accepting the Decoration and honors, pointed out that he was accepting them not as an individual, but as a representative of all the American officers, enlisted men, and civilians without whom the charitable program could not have been successful.

A reception was held at the residence of Aristides Abad and later, Governor Sages hosted at a luncheon for 200 guests at the Club David.

Present at the ceremony and reception were the Honduran Ambassador, the Governor of the Province of Chiriqui, the Mayor of the District, and the Chancellor of the United States Embassy.

Chaplain Ryan flew to the Canal American Republic on Monday where he was the guest of Chaplain (Colonel) USAR-CAR, until his return to the "Marine Division" on the 15th.

Top officials of the Infantry Center and Infantry School, the new assistant commander, to Stetson Cadet Phillip D. Yonge (long), who soars some 6'5" upon winning the trophy for shooting high in Fox Company during recent qualification firing of the M-1 rifle at the 1957 Fort Benning ROTC Camp.

Army Infantry School, was welcomed to the post with honor guard ceremonies July 29 on Chapel Field. Left to right are Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School commander, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Larsen and Gen. Larsen. The 41-year-old officer served as assistant commander of the 10th Infantry Division in Germany before assuming his present assignment.

WASHINGTON — The Army announced today that it will reduce its strength in line with the cut directed by the Secretary of Defense of 5,200 officers and 44,470 enlisted men by December 31, 1957.

How the way the reduction plan will be accomplished. The number of officers called to active duty between now and January 1, 1958, will be reduced (persons affected here will be the Reserve officers, who were expected to apply for active duty) but ROTC graduates, already scheduled for two years active duty will be called as planned.

Approximately 1,500 officers now on active duty in the grades of colonel through captain will be given involuntary releases. They will be compensated for release by a Department of the Army promotion nomination of the chiefs of service and office assignment branches.

Officers designated for release will be notified by November 15 and afforded a 90-day separation period of 60 days plus travel time to their homes. The Army hopes to notify most persons of their separation by October 15. Under the reduced grade structure approximately 100 colonels, 300 lieutenant colonels, 570 majors and 490 captains will be released.

Certain officers who were slated to be separated after January, 1958, because of promotion passover or category denial will now be released from active duty in November, 1957. Other whose categories have been added to FY 58 and are not being accepted for continued active duty will also be separated by November 1957.

In the early part of 1958 the

Fund Drive Is Extended For Statue

The fund raising campaign to bring the Infantry Doughboy Statue to Fort Benning has been extended past payday. These extra days have been added to enable those who missed making a donation at the pay table to contribute to the fund. The recommended contribution is 25 cents for officers and enlisted men.

ROTC Camp Better Today Claims Grad

By COL WILLIAM R. NEALSON, chief of the Individual Weapons Committee at the Fort Benning ROTC Summer Camp, claims there's quite a difference between ROTC training today and 20 years ago.

He ought to know in 1937 he attended a similar camp at Camp Custer, Mich.

Col. Nealon, now professor of military science and tactics at Florida Southern College in Lakeland, said the biggest change is in the scope of training.

"The preparation of a candidate officer for his job now requires a far greater complexity of instruction," he added. "He has many more weapons at his disposal which he must learn to use and to fit into the pattern of today's type of warfare."

The basic weapon in the 1937 ROTC curriculum, Col. Nealon recalled, was the .03 Springfield 30 caliber rifle. Other weapons included the Browning automatic rifle, 193

Cadets Experience Eventful Camp

100 Cadets to Receive Second Lieutenant Bar

EXPLANATION: . . . Colonel Marvin A. Knudsen, Lt. Col. Frank W. Barrow, of So. Miami, Fla., and deputy camp commander of the 1957 ROTC Summer Camp here, explains the camp's organization to Mr. Albert E. Jones (left), assistant dean of faculties, University of Georgia, while Lt. Col. John H. Brown, assistant chief of the summer training committee, Mr. Jones visited the training committee to observe the 'Bulldogs' engaged in training activities.

They will be more qualified lieutenants. Approximately 100 of them will receive their commissions as second lieutenants at the ceremony. Others will return to their homes and to their fourth and final year as ROTC cadets. The year 1959 will find many of these returning to the Army Infantry School at Fort Benning as new second lieutenants.

The cadets have experienced an eventful six weeks at Fort Benning. They had a constant schedule of 26 hours of instruction, demonstration and practical application in such courses as marksmanship, guard duty, weapons training, small unit and individual type tactics, cross-country and problems, company command duties and signal communication. Primary emphasis was on military leadership, however.

It was not all work and no play for the future Army officers. They participated in a well-rounded, supervised athletic program planned by the Special Services Section which included popular sports on an individual basis as well as unit level. That the cadets played as hard as they worked can be shown by their much-revered wins over the cadets from the U. S. Military Academy in baseball and tennis.

In addition to several official receptions, the cadets staged a regimental review, took part in a Military Field Day, and were visited by institution heads from 25 of the 28 colleges represented at the camp. A high spot in their training was the visit of Gen. (Ret.) Mark W. Clark, president of The Citadel.

Commander of the camp is Major Gen. Hubert B. Powell, commander of the U. S. Army Infantry School. Deputy camp commander is Col. Marvin A. Knudsen, professor military science and tactics at the University of Florida.

JAYWALKER
A police officer who had no trouble nabbing five robbery suspects in Washington, D. C., had to call on fellow-policemen to help him bring in a red-headed woman jaywalker armed with an umbrella.

550th Tank Company Remains 'Graybeard' Among Post Units

The 550th Tank Company of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, is considered one of the oldest units at Fort Benning. It has been in existence since its organization at the turn of the century as Troop E, 15th Horse Cavalry, at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Serving under such notable military men as General John J. Pershing, General Leonard Wood, and General George S. Patton, the unit has earned a fine battle record.

Soon after its organization, the Troop sailed for the Philippines and received its first taste of battle when it participated in the pursuit of a band of insurgents led by Malvar and later scouted Mount Macajilum where some insurgents were found and destroyed. The next assignment was to lead the first scouting expedition Malaban in Mindanao on the Lake Lanao country.

Troop F returned to San Francisco in 1903 to be stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and participated in the Arkansas celebration at Omaha, Neb. in 1910.

Between the periods of 1903 and 1915 the Troop was stationed at Fort Meyer, Va., Fort Ethan Allan, Va., and Fort Sheridan, Ill. with time out to sail for Cuba where it took part in the Army of Cuban Pacification and in 1909 the Troop was returned to the United States and stationed at Fort Bliss, Tex. In 1915 it again set sail for the Philippines but the Mexican

STC Tops Blood Quota

The Bloodmobile Unit of Atlanta, Ga., conducted its annual Blood Drive at Special Troops Command Fort Benning July 25-26.

The Blood Drive was held at the 906 Ordnance Battalion, Special Troops Command.

The drive was under the supervision of Summie Howell, assistant field director of the American Expeditionary Force in World War I against the Kaiser. After the War Troop F returned to the United States and was made inactive.

War clouds over Europe in 1942 called Troop F back to duty. The technological progress of war had reached the point where horses were no longer needed. The Troop said a sad farewell to their horses and mounted those iron monsters called tanks as Troop B, 15th Horse Cavalry (Mechanized) and as such took part in World War II in the campaign of Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe.

The Troop was inactivated after its return to the United States in 1947 and reactivated as the 550th Tank Company at Fort Benning, Ga., on April 6, 1948 and occupies a beautiful wooded area in Harmony Church.

The 550th Tank Company has a long and enviable battle record.

It is entitled to the following battle streamers: Philippine Insurrection, Luzon 1902, Mindanao 1903, World War I streamer without inscription, World War II, Normandy, Northern France 1915-1 again set sail for the Philippines but the Mexican

Native of Poland

Smuggled Into U. S. in Barracks Bag, Ritchey Now Attends OCS

A Poland native, who the Second Infantry Division smuggled aboard an American-bound ship in a barracks bag shortly after World War II, has come to Fort Benning as a national guard officer candidate.

The tale behind Joseph E. Ritchey's life seems as if it were concocted for the theater. However, Ritchey vouches for the truth in his unusual life story.

And he has hundreds of former members of the Second Division to back him up. As a matter of fact, members of the entire battle unit were discovered conspirators in the plot that succeeded in bringing Ritchey to this country.

Ritchey is presently assigned to the 2d Company, 2d Battalion, The School Brigade.

He was born on a farm near Koczanema, Poland, in 1930. When World War II broke out he was in the first grade. His village was destroyed, along with the school house, by the Nazi forces.

Shortly thereafter, his father was called to active duty in the Polish Army but was soon captured. His mother and his two older sisters were made slave laborers.

In 1942 Ritchey, only 11 years old, was shipped to Germany in a box car and forced to work on a German farm where he was treated much like a prisoner of war. In March of 1945 he was liberated by the Second Division and became a mascot of Battery "C", 3rd Field Artillery Battalion. He was with this unit for over four months and was at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, when the war ended in Europe.

Ritchey planned to cross the Karpathian Mountains on foot and return to Poland, but the officers and men of his adopted battery had other ideas. After long consideration the unit decided to smuggle Ritchey aboard ship in a barracks bag for the trip to the United States.

The plan went according to schedule until an alert naval officer discovered him after they were 75 miles out in the Atlantic Ocean. He was taken to the ship's captain. Ritchey refused to identify the men who were instrumental in smuggling him aboard ship, but it was later found that the entire division, including the commanding general, were fellow conspirators.

Ritchey was adopted by Corporal Leroy Ritchey who took the young boy to Tulsa, Okla., and enrolled him in school. Upon graduation from school, Ritchey was drafted into the Army for 23 months. After his release he enrolled in Murray College, Tombigbee, Okla., for two years and while in college married an Oklahoma girl.

Ritchey joined the Oklahoma National Guard and later applied for National Guard Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Hospital Patients Get Invite to Valley Rodeo

The 1957 Valley Rodeo, scheduled for Sunday, August 4, is to be held in the Fort Mitchell Rest Area off the Fort Mitchell Road, Alabama State Highway 165, approximately 13 miles south of Phenix City and 1 mile south of the Fort Benning poston bridge exit on the Fort Mitchell Road.

The United States Army Hospital have been invited to guests of the rodeo. Miss Scott, hospital representative of the American Red Cross is coordinating the details of having the patients as guests and distributing the guest tickets to the patients desiring to attend. Transportation is being furnished for the patients. Buses will be located in front of the main hospital building to lead between 3:30 and 3:40 p.m.

All of the children of the Fort Benning YAC have also been invited as guests of the Rodeo. Tickets are available for the children through the Youth Activities office. In addition, the children of the Columbus Cerebral Palsy Center have been invited to the rodeo along with members of the staff of the Center to care for the children. Initial response from these children has been one of enthusiastic delight and it is anticipated that most will be able to attend.

The Rodeo will start promptly at 4 p.m. with the Grand Entry March. Following will be a presentation of the flag and the playing of the National Anthem. Some of the events to follow will be bronc busting, calf roping, men's and women's steer riding, wild cow milking, barrel racing, youth and men's best races, rising exhibitions, and racing. The rodeo is scheduled to end approximately at 7 p.m. when a Bar-B-Que supper will be available at $1.00 a plate for adults and $0.50 a plate for children under twelve.

The Rodeo Ring will be open to the public at 1 p.m. on Sunday. Admission will be $7.50 for adults and $2.25 for children over twelve years of age. Everyone is encouraged to come out early to avoid the last minute crowds and to watch all the competitors warming up and working out their horses.

Work Started On Standby Landing Strip

With preliminary surveys completed on July 28, 1957, the actual construction work is underway on an emergency landing strip at Fort Benning.

The landing strip, a 2,000-foot long, 100-foot wide, will be constructed by the 57th Engineer Battalion, which was activated in June, 1957, by the 282d Engineer Group and the 282d Detachment Company (Utilities), summer training reserve units from Montgomery, Alabama. They drew the plans and set the construction stakes during their two-week stay at Fort Benning.

The landing strip, when completed will be 400 feet long and 200 feet wide, and will be surfaced with 27,000 cubic yards of hard-pack, selective fill. An adjoining apron, 800 feet long by 150 feet wide, will be connected to the runway by a taxiway 80 feet in diameter. This area will be used for parking and handling aircraft.

In addition to serving as a landing place for transport planes, Army Air Force Liaison Planes, and Helicopters, the landing strip will also be used by Airborne Units during operations.

Since August 10th has been set as the completion date for the project, both morning and afternoon shifts have been detailed with work beginning at 4 a.m. in the morning and carried on until 8 p.m. in the evening. All four companies from the 57th Engr Bn, plus 20 heavy equipment operators from the 49th Engr Bn, are participating in the project. Lt. Daniel H. Gibson, Assistant S3 Officer of the Battalion, is in charge of the project.

Award Given To Stroder

CWO Wilbert F. Stroder, legal administrative assistant in the Infantry Center Judge Advocate Section, has been awarded the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

The citation was presented to Stroder for "meritorious service as Administrative Officer, Office of the Judge Advocate, Headquarters, U. S. Army Forces Far-East and Eighth U. S. Army in Japan from April 17, 1954 to March 17, 1957."

Col. Edwin A. Jones, Infantry Center staff judge advocate, made this presentation.

"Demonstrating an exceptional capacity for leadership and a high degree of competence, Stroder completed a difficult assignment in implementing the Legal Services Program. His diplomacy and tact and his sound, practical solutions to difficult problems were instrumental in the formulation of policies and procedures which proved of marked importance in implementing the Army Program System," the citation stated.

The "Statistical Bulletin" of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. says that information in a recent issue.

DEFOY PADGETT Brought Fast Baller Played Pro Baseball Young Speed Baller Old Hand on Mound

The fast-ball artist for the USAS School Brigade baseball team is getting to be an old hand on the mound even though he is only 23 years old.

Pro Defoy Padgett, assigned to Ft. & Ho. Co., 3d Student Battalion, The School Brigade, pitched four years for his Bowling Springs (S.C.) High School team. He also played two years of basketball as a guard and two years of baseball as a half-back. When his high school baseball season was over, he was drafted for three years on the Campess, S. C. American Legion team that won the district title each year and the state championship in 1951.

Upon graduation from high school, Padgett turned professional and pitched for the Maryville-Alcoa Team, Class D team in 1953 and pitched for another year when the team became Class C the next year.

In '56 he went on the volunteer retired list and played semi-pro for the Fairforest, S.C. Plant team, Fairforest, S.C. In November, 1955, Padgett was inducted into the Army. Upon completion of basic training he was assigned to the School Brigade. In 1956 he was star pitcher for the Post Champion Doughboy's baseball team and presently heads up the pitching staff for the USAS School Brigade team.

Asked his plans for the future, Padgett says "I'm undecided. I am under contract to the Cincinnati Red Legs but probably would play with their Class A Savannah, Ga. farm club as a pitcher. If I don't play pro ball, I'll join my father in the refrigeration business."

Officer Candidate Here Russian Native Fled Oppressed Homeland

BY THOMAS M. CLARK A Russian native who was an Evangelical minister who, along with his family, was forced to flee his homeland, is now a National Officer Candidate in the School Brigade. G.C. Peter M. Rodkin, presently assigned to the 33rd Company of the School Brigade, was born January 1, 1930, in Vladivostok, Russia, at a time when the Bolshevik Government instituted a gigantic religious extermination. Most representatives of religious faiths were either killed or sent to Russian prisons on long hard labor charges. When Rodkin was only one month old, his family made a try for escape across the Russian border into Manchuria. Only his father was successful in the attempt. His mother and brother were betrayed by their Korean guide, apprehended by a Russian patrol and sentenced to three months in prison. Upon release from prison, the small family went to Harbin, Manchuria, where they found Mr. Rodkin waiting for them. They made their home here, but in 1937 the Japanese forced them to seek a new haven in North China. They found refuge in Tientsin, China, where Rodkin received his elementary education in American schools. When WW II erupted, the Japanese Government took control of Tientsin. The family was again placed in a restricted area and forced to revert there until liberated by Allied forces at war's end. After War II, Rodkin attended a Russian high school in Tientsin, where he was ordered to sign a certificate of affiliation with the Communist Government. Refusing to sign this certificate, Rodkin attended the American high school in Peking and graduated a short time later. Upon graduation, Rodkin enrolled in Yenching University and studied there for a year. While attending school he obtained employment with the U. S. Occupational Forces. His work earned him the American Commendation Medal after from General George C. Marshall's headquarters for efficient performance of duty. He was peaceful until late 1947 when once again the family was driven from his refuge. This time they sought refuge in Shanghai where they resided for two years. In 1949 the Communist aggressors started the bombardment of Shanghai and the Rodkin family again vacated his home. They were shuttled to the Philippine Islands and quartered in an Army squad tent for two years. During this period Rodkin was employed by the United Nations Evacuation Center processing disabled and sick refugees for placement in the Free world. In 1952 the Rodkin family came to America and settled in the San Francisco area. Rodkin joined the California National Guard and worked for this organization as a civil engineer. His attendance here at officer candidate school is a dream come true. He understands the strong emphasis placed on a well trained, well disciplined and ready reserve force and wants to do his share to insure this important phase of our national defense.

Gen. Powell to Dedicate Two New Ranges Aug. 5

Two new ranges named in honor of officers killed in action during the Korean conflict will be dedicated at Fort Benning Aug. 5 at 2 p.m. by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the 1st Infantry Center. The ranges will be named in memory of 1st Lt. Elwood F. James and Henry C. Camp, who were posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Camp of Vidler, Ga., parents of Lt. Camp, will be guests at the dedication. Mrs. Camp will unveil the signs marking the entrances to the two ranges, which will be utilized for night firing. The ranges are located to the south of the road junction of Mountzias and Red Diamond Roads. Lt. Camp received the DSC when he was a member of Company C, 15th Infantry Regiment, Third Division, he distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism in action against the enemy near Sagin, Korea, Jan. 31, 1951. Company C was occupying positions on a hill near Sagin, with the First Platoon, 1st Infantry Center, when the enemy attacked the hill. Lt. James repeatedly displayed conspicuous gallantry as he led the platoon in a counter-attack. Casualties were high and the final defensive move. Lt. James was wounded. After receiving his injury, Lt. James continued to lead the attack to the crest of the hill. At this point he was again wounded, this time mortally. Dinosaur Missing Salt Lake City police took a walk-and-see approach after a local man called to report that, under bushes at his home, he had uncovered the 70-pound cast of a dinosaur footprint. No one had reported one missing.

96-Hour Exercise Students Participate In Post 'War Game'

Utilizing new tactical training and doctrine they have learned at the U.S. Army Infantry School since January, students in officers advanced class No. 2 are participating in a 96-hour "War Game" at Fort Benning.

Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, acting assistant commander of the Infantry School, opened the exercise July 26 in Theater No. 8.

Subtitled the "Life Cycle of an Infantry Regiment," the operation involves staff work in activating a regiment, processing overseas shipment, going into combat, occupying an area, bringing the unit back to the U.S. and deactivating the regiment.

Discussing the strains placed on the military by rapid expansion and depression, Gen. Ruggles pointed out that the exercise "will portray the experience an Infantry Regiment undergoes in these recurrent national crises."

"The war game will prepare you to perform the duties of any field grade officer in a hypothetical regiment assigned to duty at Fort Benning as the result of a national emergency," Gen. Ruggles explained.

"Using plans with atomic overtones, expansion must be even more rapid," the speaker added.

"The war game is the culmination of the 21-week advanced course and will extend through Aug. 15. It is being staged in buildings in the School Post grade headquarters area, with a critique each afternoon in Theater No. 8.

The 203-man class is divided into 32 regimental staffs. The students rotate within and between nine positions in five groups during the cycle, learning to work in different slots and with many members of the class.

The war game concept was originated by Brig. Gen. James V. Thompson, acting commanding general of the U. S. Army

Thurlow Gets Certificate

Capt. Madeline V. Thurlow of Philadelphia, Pa., assigned to the U. S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning, received a Certificate of Achievement July 26.

The award was presented to Capt. Thurlow for outstanding performance of duties as head nurse and assistant head nurse of the obstetrical ward of the 307th U. S. Army Hospital from January, 1956, to May, 1957. Col. Albert H. Robinson, commander of the Fort Benning hospital, made the presentation in behalf of Col. Robert B. Skinner, commander of the Tokyo Army Hospital.

"Capt. Thurlow displayed untiring energy, initiative and determination in accomplishing all of her duties in a most efficient and expeditious manner. One of her most outstanding attributes was her most pleasant and understanding attitude even during times of stress. Her smiling face was always in evidence and gave the necessary encouragement to other members of the staff," the citation stated.

A graduate of Temple University Hospital School of Nursing in Philadelphia, Capt. Thurlow entered the Army Nurses Corps in May, 1948. She served in Europe during World War II. Since then she has had assignments in Hawaii, the Far East and various installations in the U. S.

Horace Greeley Travels South to Third Division

"Go West, young man, go West!" the immortal quotation people here have been just coined by Horace Greeley, founder of the New York Herald Tribune, in the 1800's may have been quite the fad then, but here in 1957, we find Horace Greeley delving in Georgia with the 3d Infantry Division — and furthermore — he finds the South "a delightful place to live!"

Private First Class Greeley, the great great grandson of the famed Horace Greeley, is currently in his sixth week of basic training with "B Troop, 2d Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and although he took his noted relative's advice in the past when he moved from New York to Las Vegas and Nevada, he has no real preference as to where he eventually wants to settle down.

"Most places are about the same. I love the South. The ### books...

Readers who pick up a copy of Patrick White's latest novel, Voss, are in for a real adventure. It's the story of a German explorer obsessed with a sense of despotic destiny. Although this book is being published in the summer it is not any lightweight escapist fare. It's a full-bodied literary work that will demand and capture your complete interest once begun.

movies...

Only occasionally does a picture come out of Hollywood that will make the movies' lost audience desert their TV screens for a theatre screen. The Jeanne Eagels Story, produced by Columbia Pictures and starring Kim Novak and Jeff Chandler, is one of them.

It's the sensational saga of a carnival queen who rose to the top on Broadway and then went straight to the bottom.

records...

For the last few months collectors of pop records have been hearing that the Calypso craze was on its way out. Request Records' latest album, Ambassador of Calypso, is a strong argument to the contrary.

Of course it should be pointed out that the twelve songs included in the album are not typical of the average Calypso record. These are genuine Calypso songs sung by a genuine Calypso singer, Roy Thompson, rather than just a pop tune set to a calypso beat and sung by a Tin Pan Alley groaner.

The Waves

CUTTING CORNERS

by Barbara Sur Richards

The service wife's biggest bugaboo is moving. No matter how carefully it's handled, the furniture is bound to take a beating—especially when you move as often as does the average service family. And since the most expensive pieces are also usually the most delicate, it's the best things that get the worst beating.

One way to get around this, of course, is to rent furnished houses or apartments. But most service families, particularly those with children, want familiar things around them after a move to give them the semblance of roots.

Replacing the good pieces is naturally out on a young serviceman's pay. Besides, most of the time, the particular pieces of furniture you are locking for are no longer in stock. But there is an answer to the moving problem—unpainted furniture.

Unpainted furniture has three very distinct advantages. It's sturdier so it stands up under the pressures of moving. In the rare instances where a piece has to be replaced, similar pieces are almost always available. And most important of all, even including the cost of painting, it's a great deal cheaper.

To the uninitiated, unpainted furniture usually means only bookcases—and modern ones at that. That's no longer true. Today with several big manufacturers' turning out unpainted furniture and most big department stores carrying it, you can find the unpainted in as many period styles as the painted. And with the exception of the stuffed pieces, you can buy unpainted everything else needed to make a house a home.

TABLE TOP-IX

In this hot weather the clever hostess giving a party will do well to consider a one-dish meal that is at the same time simple to prepare and different to serve.

In this category it would be hard to top Creole Lambaly which is exceedingly tasty as well as festive looking. Served with a tossed salad, a fresh fruit dessert and iced coffee, it'll make a party meal long to be remembered.

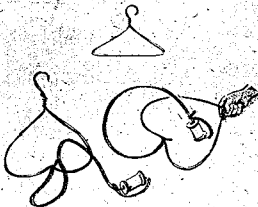

For a group of twelve, you'll need:

- |                                |                                           |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
| 2 pounds raw smoked ham        | 6 cups water                              |
| 4 large onions, chopped        | 2 bay leafs, crushed                      |
| 4 tablespoons butter           | 1 teaspoon thyme                          |
| 2 medium green peppers, cut up | 1 teaspoon chili powder                   |
| 4 large cans tomatoes          | 1/2 teaspoon pepper                       |
| 4 cloves garlic, minced        | 4 cups long-grain rice                    |
| 6 cups meat broth              | 2 pounds fresh shrimp, cooked and shelled |

Melt butter in a top-stove casserole or Dutch oven. Add onions, garlic and ham and cook until lightly browned. Add the remaining ingredients except the shrimp and the rice and bring to a boil. Gradually stir in the rice. Cover and let it simmer until the liquid is absorbed which should take about thirty minutes. Now add the shrimp and season to taste.

HERE'S HOW

"loop the spool"

On the next rainy afternoon, when the kids are stuck inside and clamoring for something to do, become a hero by suggesting they play "Loop the Spool." Though the playing of the game will require some skill and dexterity, the making of it requires none. In fact, if the child is old enough to read this, he can make the game himself. If not, you can prepare it in a few moments.

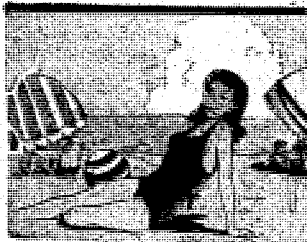

Take any wire hanger and bend it into a heart shape with the tip of the heart-pointing toward the hook end. Next take a twenty-four inch string and tie one end to the center of the heart. Now take the free end of the string and pass it through an empty spool and tie it so the spool can't slip off. You are now ready to play "Loop the Spool."

The object of the game is to manipulate the hanger so that the spool will make a complete circle through the heart without touching any part of the hanger. The child who can do this the most times in succession is the winner. If you hit the hanger, you lose your turn and have to start counting all over again the next time around to you.

One last note to the parents—make sure you give Junior a chance to play, too.

on the GLAMOUR FRONT

by Eleanor Kerrigan

If you haven't acquired that coat of tan by now play it smart and forget it. Wherever you go, you're bound to be surrounded by sunbored pretties, but a pale-face will stand out and get more attention than the rest of them put together. However, if you are going to keep that pastel look, make sure you play it up with the proper make-up. The correct face foundation and lipstick are essential for the most striking effect. The little extra time spent in selecting and applying them will pay off in the glint in the eyes of your husband, boyfriend or the bowing herd.

RATE YOUR I.Q.

Who has the keener sense of observation—man or woman? Obviously, your immediate reply will depend on your gender but the proof is in the quiz. Call in your mate, one-and-only or date for the evening as the case might be and go to work. Each of you write down your answers on a separate piece of paper and when you're finished switch so you can check each other's replies against the correct answers printed upside down at the bottom of the quiz. And remember the results are to help settle the continual war for supremacy between the sexes—not start a new battle.

BADLY HURT, GRIFF WAS UNDER CONSTANT MEDICAL CARE FOR THE NEXT TWO YEARS. THEN IN MAY, 1949, THE DECISION THEY ALL DREADED HAD TO BE MADE...

WE'LL HAVE TO AMPUTATE HER LEFT LEG BELOW THE KNEE.

GRIFF MADE A RECORD RECOVERY AND LESS THAN TWO MONTHS AFTER SHE TOOK HER FIRST STEPS ON HER BELOW THE KNEE.

NOW TAKE IT EASY, GRIFF.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME. IT WORKS JUST AS WELL AS A NORMAL LEG.

THOUGH RETIRED BECAUSE OF COURAGE WILL ACHIEVE, YOU CAN RENDER A UNIQUE SERVICE TO THE NAVY. ALTHOUGH IT'S A LOT TO ASK, WE'D LIKE YOU TO SERVE AT THE NAVY AMPUTEE CENTER IN OAKLAND.

SINCE YOU CAN DEMONSTRATE WHAT COURAGE WILL ACHIEVE, YOU CAN RENDER A UNIQUE SERVICE TO THE NAVY. ALTHOUGH IT'S A LOT TO ASK, WE'D LIKE YOU TO SERVE AT THE NAVY AMPUTEE CENTER IN OAKLAND.

SAY NO MORE, ADMIRAL. THE ANSWER IS YES! I'LL DRIVE TO CALIFORNIA IMMEDIATELY!

THE NOW LIEUTENANT CHAPMAN REPORTED FOR DUTY ON OCTOBER 12, 1952, THE REHABILITATION CENTER WAS JAMMED BECAUSE OF THE KOREAN WAR. HER JOB WAS TO GET THE MEN WHO HAD LOST ONE OR BOTH OF THEIR LEGS TO LEARN TO BALANCE AND WALK AGAIN. BUT MOST IMPORTANT TO HELP THEM GET OVER THE SHOCK OF AMPUTATION.

YOU'LL GET THE HANG OF IT IN NO TIME. IF I COULD DO IT, YOU CERTAINLY CAN!

FOR HER WORK AT THE OAKLAND HOSPITAL, GRIFF RECEIVED AN OFFICIAL NAVAL CITATION.

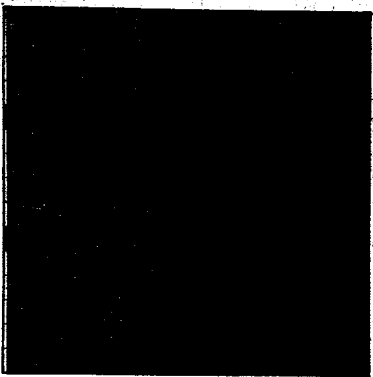

By her courage and persistence she managed to inspire all who observed her and was greatly commended for her work. She is a fine example of the spirit of the Navy and will be a great asset to the Navy.

Following eight weeks of training, he was assigned to the 16th Airborne Regimental Combat Team at Fort Bragg, N. C., for advanced training. He completed this training as a gunner on a 105 mm. howitzer.

Nazi Banner Given to Div.

A huge four-by-six-foot World War II "Nazi" flag has been donated to the 3rd Infantry Division for display in the Division Trophy Room by the former Commanding Officer of Company "B", 30th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division during the fighting for Munich, Germany, in World War II and his company comprised the first American troops to enter the bitterly contested town. The flag was captured from one of the prominent buildings in Munich during the ensuing fighting.

The Division Trophy Room is located in Library No. 2 at Camp Benning and promises to be one of the outstanding attractions for visitors to the Division.

Lt. Col. John R. Beebe, Jr., Division Historian, asks for names and present "Marine" who have items of historical nature to display them in the Division Trophy Room. Anyone desiring to make donations of historical items to the Division should contact Col. Beebe at the Division G-2.

After 30 Years Gen. Thompson Retires To New Columbus Home

Strains of Audie Lang Syne and "Fly over" by 15 planes and helicopters of Lawson Army Air Field Command accompanied the departure of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James V. Thompson from Fort Benning August 1st.

Gen. Thompson, who retired July 31, has served as deputy commanding general and assistant to the commanding general of the Infantry Center since last October.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general, headed the group of top Fort Benning officers gathered at 201 Lumpkin Road to bid farewell to the 20-year Army veteran and his wife. The Infantry Center band played for the occasion.

Gen. Thompson's sedan left the post via Lumpkin Road, Columbus, at 10:45 a.m. on July 31 ending his 30-year military career. The presentation was made by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, front right, Infantry School commandant and commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center. Gen. Thompson served as deputy commanding general and assistant to the commanding general of the Infantry Center since last October. Looking on is Brig. Gen. John P. Huggles, center, Infantry Center deputy commanding general.

Editorials Supporting Your Interests

During recent years Fort Benning has been cited many times for its superior community relations program. Less than a month ago Department of the Army cited "Fort Benning Day," sponsored by the Columbus Merchants' Association as additional evidence of the superior program carried on here.

Much has been stated in the newspapers about this program and mentioned on radio and television broadcasts. It is the end results of this program that is really important to the military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning and the civilian populace of the local community.

The local program has gained world-wide publicity and has been used as a guide at other Army Posts.

It is not a one-sided program. These friendly relations could not possibly exist without the sincere interest of individuals and organizations of the local community. One such organization, the Better Business Bureau of Columbus, an organization that does a tremendous job behind the scenes but is seldom publicized. Probably no other organization in the local community has done more for the military personnel at Fort Benning to insure him and his family of fair dealings with local merchants. When a question does arise occasionally, the Better Business Bureau is always on the spot to protect the serviceman's interest.

For instance, a Fort Benning officer and wife purchased a rug from a local firm, in March 1956. In February 1957 they discovered the rug was wearing down to ribbing. They called the dealer who sold them the rug who in turn contacted the manufacturer. A representative of the manufacturer called on the officer assuring him satisfactory adjustment would be made. The months rolled by with the officer continually calling the dealer for adjustment. On July 9 the officer filed a complaint with the Better Business Bureau. The bureau dispatched a letter to the manufacturer and an adjustment was made within 10 days. This is but one example of the assistance given by the bureau.

Under the able and highly competent leadership of its Executive Secretary, Mr. Cecil H. Garrett, the Better Business Bureau of Columbus, Ga., Inc. has proven to be truly an organization which has fostered superior community relations.

Doughboy Statue a Reality

Fort Benning will have its Doughboy statue. Through the contributions of The Infantry Center personnel, more than $100 has already been donated to the statue fund. The funds were needed to cover cost of shipping the statue from Germany and the base upon which it will permanently stand. Contributions are still coming in, and officials expect there will be no trouble in meeting the fund goal.

The enthusiastic response to support the Doughboy statue fund points out Fort Benning's interest in the giant statue which will become a permanent symbol of the Infantryman at the post.

A site is being chosen for the statue, and present plans call for it to be erected later this year. The statue will be shipped from Germany, where it was reproduced from an original statue that stands in Berlin. The nine foot, life-like statue depicting the Infantryman at parade rest in full battle dress was created by Ernest Kunst, a well-known German sculptor.

Fort Benning Infantrymen come and go, as is the custom in the army but with the erection of the Infantryman statue there will now be at least one old friend at the Infantry Center to greet new arrivals and old timers alike.

Army Tests 'Copter Support for Troops

WASHINGTON (APFS)—The Army is testing rockets and machine guns on helicopters for aerial support.

In the experimental study, had swollen the Arkansas River near Canon City, Colo. The jet was blasted apart by a fusel charge, pulled the Army H-13 helicopter.

The helicopter and a three-man demolition team were dispatched from Ft. Carson, Colo. to assist in the study.

The "choppers" have worked against enemy troop tactical movements on a battlefield, dug-in positions and road blocks.

The Army has adopted the tactics of the infantryman—pop up and strike, fire on the ground and rocket or machine gun blast, take cover and swing up again in a different position.

The firepower presently being used on the H-13 reconnaissance helicopter alone is equivalent to a reinforced infantry squad.

RESEARCH SPURS TRIP FOR AIRBORNE JEEP

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Recent advances in vertical take-off research have spurred the Army to try for an airborne jeep.

The Army has awarded three contracts totaling $1.7 million for the design, construction and testing of flying research vehicles.

The aerial idea is aimed at giving the Army a command vehicle with the versatility of a conventional jeep but also capable of hovering and propelling itself a few feet above ground, and not needing character for landing strips.

Army is now shooting for a general utility vehicle that can travel up to 50 mph, stay aloft for 15 minutes, carry up to 1,000 pounds of equipment or weapons.

'COPIER HELPS BREAK THREATENING LOG JAM

WASHINGTON (APFS)—A log jam from a hovering military helicopter, recently helped Civil Defense workers prevent a log jam from blocking the National Championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, this month.

Beware of Evils

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) FRANCIS D. BREWSTER
To become a man requires work. And the job begins by getting the right attitude. You've got to realize what it's all about. Putting on a uniform does not mean that your nature has changed. You still have your soul to save. And the same old temptations you find in civilian life follow you right into the camp. Only now they will haunt you more. You won't have the same old temptations you had back home. You won't have the folks to watch over you. Instead you will meet a lot of guys who will tell you that you might as well enjoy yourself. You'll get them and hear them. They are the flannel-mouths who don't like you. They'll get you for a few to fall in with them. And they get the doses to go straight to the real man. He knows that for the line. He knows that now is the time he makes his choice. He knows that the attitude you've got to have from the start: that you're going to win. You won't have a certain length of time. At that job you are the representative of our country at the job you so only want to come back alive, but you want your soul to be fully alive as a laborer of God.

Build Bridge in Columbus

Groups Commended For Emergency Aid

Fort Benning together with Third U. S. Army, National Guard and Georgia state and municipal officials were commended for their aid in the erection of the temporary Bailey Bridge in Columbus, Georgia, last June.

The Muscogee County, Georgia Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues passed a resolution thanking these agencies for alleviating a threat to the welfare of Columbus residents.

When the permanent Bailey Creek Bridge on Buena Vista Road was damaged in a flash flood which struck the Columbus area last spring, Gen. Man Via Griffin of Georgia declared an emergency because of the danger to the safety and welfare of the community. Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Third U. S. Army commanding general, immediately authorized Fort Benning to lead the city a Bailey bridge which was erected across Bailey Creek by the 500th Armored Engineer National Guard Battalion June 27.

The resolution reads:

"Whereas, the Bailey bridge used to cross Bull Creek on Buena Vista Road during the repairs of the permanent bridge at said location, very successfully aided in control traffic movement here and police protection, and in the control of other emergencies; and

"Whereas, Gov. Griffin, took prompt and immediate action upon being advised by Hon. Hubert Calhoun, Judge of the Superior Court of Muscogee County, of the need for said Bailey bridge."

The resolution added that the coordinating efforts of Gov. Griffin, Gen. Hickey, and the authorities at Fort Benning, Lt. Col. Ernest Higgins, commander of the 500th Armored Engineer Battalion, made the Bailey bridge available for use in crossing said Bull Creek.

It continued: "Whereas, the Muscogee County Board of Education and the family of Mrs. Lila Patrick Talbot made the necessary property available for a crossing site.

CWO Van Wie Retires After 25 Years in Army

An impression is an imprint left on one's mind by some thing, words, scenes, feelings, that returns to arouse the emotions through recreation by the process of remembering.

CWO Van Wie retired from the United States Army after 25 years service began at Houston, Tex., Dec. 1, 1932, and ending at Fort Benning on July 31, 1957. CWO Van Wie has drawn upon his memories to share with us the impressions he has gained and retained through his service.

CWO Van Wie's happiest memories are those he accumulated at Fort Sam Houston, where he served continuously from his enlistment date in 1932 until May, 1940. He and his wife were served forward to their early return to Houston, to their home and friends, and to their future. There are no other details please for after retirement except a decisive "no" to farming. With his background of Finance and Accounting, gained through 25 years of Army Finance experience, CWO Van Wie feels he would be happier continuing the work he knows and likes.

When CWO Van Wie enlisted at an early age, the army held three promises for him: An opportunity to serve his country; to travel; to retire while young. That he has accomplished the first of those evidenced by the medals awarded him by his government. He has received the Presidential Unit Citation with Two Oak Leaf Clusters, American Defense Medal, Asiatic Pacific Campaign, Philippine Defense, World War II Victory Medal, National Defense Service Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal. He is justly proud of them all.

CWO Van Wie has realized his ambition to travel. He has served in the Continental United States at Fort Sam Houston, Fort Crockett, and Kelly Field, Texas. Other assignments included Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Fort McClellan, Alabama, and Fort Benning. He has served in the Panama Canal Zone.

On 1 Nov. 1940, CWO Van Wie arrived at Fort Mills, Corregidor, Philippine Islands. Some of his most vivid memories begin with this date. On Corregidor, CWO Van Wie helped to verify all assets of foreign national banks deposited with the U. S. Government for safe keeping. It was there the famous submarine U.S. Trout

Indian Names Are Adopted For Aircraft

Major General Hamilton Howes revealed the new names for the Army's family of aircraft, and they take on a real American nature. Each has been given a call name closely associated with the American Indians.

Only one of the fixed wing aircraft will change since their designation already fit into his scheme. The Otter, Beaver, and Birdog will still be called by these names. The L-23 will now be the "Semite."

Our helicopters, however, will receive new call-names. The H-12 and H-14 will be known as the "Sioux" and "Chinawaw," respectively. The H-21 is to be called by "Oyuse," and the H-23 the "Haven."

H-23's, which are the aircraft organic to two of Lawton's units, the 1st and 4th Transportation Companies, will become the "Choctaw." The biggest Army helicopter, the H-37 is the "Mojava" now and one of the newly developed crafts, YH-1, will be the "Troquois." "Pawnee" will be the designation for the Hiller Flyer Platform (one-man helicopter).

Gen. Howes urged that these designations be used when referring to one of the crafts in order that the association will be rapidly accepted.

Board Boasts Safety Mark

The U. S. Army Infantry Board, commanded by Col. B. Kunzle, is proud of its safety record for the past nine months. During the past nine months the Board vehicles have driven 119,716 accident free miles and its members have completed 60,220 accident free man days of work. During this entire time the combined Board Members have had only one traffic violation. Considering the mission of the Board which is to test new weapons and equipment used by the Infantry Soldier and considering that the equipment and weapons tested are new to the man performing the tests, we feel that this record is indeed one every member of the Board can be proud of.

Major Robert E. Wisor, the Board Safety Officer, called attention to the fact that in the first six months of 1956 the Board Members had six accidents at a total cost to the Government of $8,630.00. Compared to that record the first six months of 1957, with no accidents has resulted in savings of $2,850.00.

Col. Cullison New Third Division G-3

Gen. Freeman Says Army Must Prepare For Limited Fighting

Predicting future wars will be limited rather than general conflicts, Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., of the Assistant Secretary of Defense Office, underscored the importance of the Army's new fluid strategy at Fort Benning Aug. 2.

A member of the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group, Gen. Freeman addressed 189 graduates of the U.S. Army Infantry School's associate officers advanced class. He is in the Main Theater. He was introduced by Brig. Gen. John F. Buggies, deputy commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

"We had to bog down in the quagmire of Korea to learn our deficiencies in limited war. I think we will have more limited wars in the future," the speaker said.

"I must praise the action of small units in Korea. They accomplished the nearly impossible in the highest tradition of The Infantry School," he brought out.

"But in Korea we lacked strategic and tactical mobility. Once the decision is made to intervene in a critical area, we must get there at once. And we had failed to learn that equipment suitable to wars in Europe in the classic style is not adaptable to an underdeveloped area," Gen. Freeman explained.

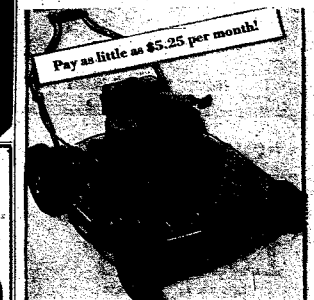

The speaker pointed out deficiencies in weapons, communications and logistics during the Korean conflict, noting that "supporting services were unable to fulfill their mission of replenishment and evacuation."

"After Korea came a realization of a new type of warfare and tactics is amazing. It challenges the imagination," Gen. Freeman stressed.

"The breakthroughs in technology provide a field in which every one of you can participate. After attending this course, I'm sure you've come to the realization that the infantry is forward looking," he stated.

Brigade Enlisted Man Worked In Mines as Communist Slave

BY M-GET. CLARK BLACKBURN
A former Communist slave laborer assigned to the School Brigade carries in his memory many tortuous hours of mining uranium for the Reds in Czechoslovakia's Ural mountains.

Pfc. Augustin Uherck, a driver in the Logistics Section of the School Brigade, is a native Czechoslovakian who served a year in prison for attempting to escape from the uranium mines. Later he did escape to Germany and joined the U.S. Army.

Uherck was in the fourth grade of a small Czechoslovakian village school when the Germans marched in and took over everything. School was out for the small boy, and living conditions bordered on the annual level until his home-ative, Czechoslovakia, was seized a year in prison for attempting to escape from the uranium mines. Later he did escape to Germany and joined the U.S. Army.

Uherck's father was permitted to buy a small farm, and young Uherck worked on it until the Communists took over in 1948. The Reds absorbed his father's farm into the collective system, forcing Uherck to attend a co-operators school.

Upon completion of the school, he was sent to the Ural mountains to mine uranium as a slave laborer. After six months of hard labor, he attempted to break for freedom into Germany, but was caught just short of his goal. He was questioned for 14 days, charged with sabotage work in the uranium mine and sentenced to prison for one year.

Upon release from prison, Uherck was allowed two choice of work—back to forced labor in the mines, or slave labor wherever the Communists decided. He chose the mines. He was issued enough money to buy his train ticket and to buy enough food for the trip to the mines.

At the train station he met a former fellow prisoner and found they were both headed for the same mine. Over a bottle of schnapple they decided to make a break for Germany and freedom at the earliest possible moment. Three months later they got their chance. They rode a train within 50 miles of the German border, then walked the rest of the way by night cross-country.

After crossing into Germany the two were picked up by German police on a routine check of credentials. When their captors discovered that the two were escapees from behind the Iron Curtain, they were turned over to the U. S. Army CIC Detachment for questioning. Uherck and his

Transportation Display Seen By Large Fort Benning Crowd

Approximately 1,100 persons viewed a moving transportation display at Fort Benning's Sighting Field July 31 as part of the 15th anniversary of the Army transportation Corps.
Vehicles and equipment ranging from an ordinary pedal bicycle to the latest, cargo helicopter were shown to the public to demonstrate the vital role played by the corps in the national defense picture.
Soldiers from various Fort Benning transportation units were assigned to each display to answer questions for visitors.
The Infantry Corps Transportation Section has the responsibility of moving troops to training areas on the Fort Benning reservation and to other posts. Under the direction of Col. Eugene M. Elliot, Jr., Washington, D. C., the section directs all passenger movements by air, rail or bus on the reservation and to and from Fort Benning, and handles freight on the post.
Another important transportation function is the post Mobilization Plan, which maintains and furnishes vehicles for Fort Benning personnel. Each month nearly 225 million tons of supplies within the continental limits of the U. S.
Fifteen hundred locomotives and nearly 10,000 rail cars were employed in the operation of utility Army railways. After the war, the Transportation Corps returned approximately 150,000 Army war dead to their homes without mishap.

Marne Division Grid Coaches Begin Shaping Football Squads

Many coaches of Third Division football teams, who are in the process of shaping up gridiron squads for this fall, will contribute heavily to their teams both on and off the playing field.

Named as coaches of the command teams are: Gen. Hanson, Divarty; Henry Thomas, 15th Infantry; John Morish, Division Armor; Ralph Wall, 7th Infantry; Vernon Scott, 28th Infantry; Robert Hoernig, Division Trains; Charles Herb, Division Combat Support Troops; J. R. Smith, 4th Infantry, and Dale Hollen, 4th Infantry.

Hanson, Divarty mentor this season, quarterbacked the Marne football team last year and will be in the starting lineup for the Redskins in the upcoming season. Hanson played his pre-war football for Jacksonville State College.

The 1934's Henry Thomas, both end and tackle, has played and coached football for 16 consecutive years, and played varsity ball at Lincoln University. Also coaching with Thomas is Thomas Gierstle, a former fullback with Pennsylvania Military College, who will repeat his play at last position for his present service outfit, the Can Doers of the 15th Infantry.

Big Ralph Wallace performed at Mississippi State and will be using his 6'4", 225 lb. frame to coach and play tackle for the "Cottobushers" of the 7th Infantry in the upcoming gridiron campaign.

Dale Hollen of the 4th Infantry club has extensive gridiron experience, using his solid frame and his coaching ability and will double as the team's coach. At a collegiate performer, Hollen was on the Michigan State team.

From the far northwest, Garrison LaBonge comes to the rank of the Marpers of the 15th Infantry to be the grid team. LaBonge, who is a halfback with the University of Washington, will play and coach his Marne outfit during the upcoming Division League.

Robert Hoernig, a husky 38th Infantry's team will be handled by Vernie Scott, Scott will also assume a handfield position for the club, as his coaching know-how.

New to Division competitive athletics will be the Division Combat Support Troops team, consisting of the 123d Signal Bn. and 10th Engineers. Former football star, Charles Herb will play for the new club, and will be the number one man for making decision on the gridiron.

Guards Protect Benning Ranges

This is the eighth in a series of columns which will feature Fort Benning's group of watchful soldiers under the title "Know Your Range Guards". Their duties, the areas of the post they patrol and a short synopsis of their background will be depicted.

Some people have asked the question as to why the post's range guards are members of the military police company. Well, let's examine the day in the life of one of these soldiers and see if he can qualify for the position.

It's a crisp fall morning and already the idea of the hunters may be a little too anxious on the trigger finger has entered the mind of Sgt. George A. Hegler.

Sgt. Hegler was driving slowly through his area of the post, not too positive but feeling that his jeep was becoming him closer and closer to something.

Approaching the spot where he had set one of his predator traps, Sgt. Hegler stopped in his tracks as the crack of a rifle broke the silence.

"A rifle fired on a reservation even as large as Fort Benning can mean instant trouble," thought Sgt. Hegler to himself.

His heart's action was to immediately shout to the guard post to hold his fire. As he raised his voice, he heard the lawbreaker crashing through the brush in an attempt to escape.

Pursual Brings Success
Protector Hegler then seeing the fleeing hunter running for the road crossing where his car was parked, raced to his jeep and halted the man before he could make his getaway.

After checking his identification, he found the man to possess no hunting license, no membership to the post fish and game club and upon further questioning even less knowledge on a reservation hunting rules.

Careless Alm Rife's
Yes, you probably did hunt in Germany and can fire your rifle, but take a look across the hill just back of the clearing. A house loomed big just outside the edge of the woods.

"This fine rifle is a small one compared to the one which could have been caused if your bullet had smacked into the house," added Sgt. Hegler.

Naturally, this was a hypothetical plot. But to illustrate the point that the range guards are just as much a part of post protection as the NIP who aids you or of the reservation, this is a fact.

As seems to be the trend, Sgt. Hegler is a career soldier

Regimental Baseball Burbank Hurls Division Trains To 7-3 Victory Over Brigade

Division Trains, formerly known as Support Command, outfit and outdid Infantry School - School Brigade in a hard fought game, winning 7-3 last Monday night at Gowdy Field.

Div Trains wasted little time getting started, scoring two runs in the first inning on two hits and a USAIS error. Infantry School-School Brigade tied up the game in the bottom half of the third but to no avail. Trains led the game with two in the fifth, two in the seventh, and one in the ninth.

When Mike Shuler singled to left field and went to third on Chuck Hinton's hit on error, Al Jones followed with a hard hit single down the right field line, his first of four hits for the evening. Shuler scored on a base on balls to Ted Harlow. Jones filled the bases, getting struck out for his fourth time in the game, and Jamie Padgett hit a weak fly ball to shortstop Tony Avilio who doubted Adamowicz off third.

Best play of the night was Larry Whitt's spectacular catch on the dead run to right field. Whitt's spectacular catch on the dead run to right field. Whitt's spectacular catch on the dead run to right field.

Individuals responsible for official, quasi-official, athletic and social events at the post are asked to register them on the master board in the U.S. Army Infantry Center's Protocol Division to ensure no conflicts between activities on the desired date.

Event Calendar Erected In Post Protocol Division

A Fort Benning "Master Calendar of Events" has been established in the Infantry Center's Protocol Division to eliminate possible conflicts between activities at the post. ## Future WAC Officers See Fort Benning

Nineteen perky cadets from throughout the U. S. visited Fort Benning last week while attending the Women's Army Corps' first course for college juniors who are prospective WAC officers.

Following their graduation they will be invited to take office candidate training at the WAC Center Fort McLean, Ala. At Fort Benning the group viewed an Infantry tank team in attack at Burns Hill and a rifle platoon in security during movement at Detroit Hill both presented by the Infantry School's Tactical Department. The visitors were briefed on activities of the Infantry School, Army Food Service School and observed instruction of students in basic cooking classes before eating lunch in the school mess. Cadettes of the 28th and 44th Infantry School Dog Platoon went through their paces at Bolling Bend for the ladies. The best dogs which are trained only to patrol and not to attack ran an obstacle course and demonstrated other feats. An Army guard dog which will attack on command also performed. The teenage WACs were shown that Fort Benning is not entirely a man's world.

Thrift Shop Offers Ideal Post Service

The Thrift Shop, an activity of the Fort Benning Woman's Club, helps Post families solve the problem of what to do about surplus furniture, appliances, clothing, etc. at moving time. The shop accepts merchandise on consignment and sends the consignee a check, less 10 per cent commission, when goods are sold. The seller fixes the price, which he may reduce once (after 30 days) if the merchandise is not sold. New people arriving often look first in the Thrift Shop for needed household equipment, so that there is a fast turn-over of goods left for sale. The shop is also glad to accept donations of merchandise. All profits from the Thrift Shop are turned over to the Woman's Club Welfare Fund.

The Judge Says

Editor's note: Beginning with this issue, "The Judge Says" will be a regular weekly feature in The Bayonet. It is prepared by the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, USAF.

Frequently, the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate receives questions that appear to be of interest throughout the entire command. Also, from time to time at informal gatherings or during a social conversation, members of the posts have related their problems, which are for the most part applicable to many of us, and have asked for guidance. With this in mind it has been decided to utilize a weekly column in The Bayonet to pass along to the members of our command information on comments on these general points of interest.

Also, it is hoped that if any of the readers of The Bayonet have a particular topic they would like to have discussed in this column, they should write to the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, United States Army, 1346 Broadway, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia 30309.

Nazi Youth Leader Serves U. S. Army

A former leader in the Hitler Youth movement has become a leader in the U. S. Army. He is Sgt. Heinz Ruby, 25, company of the 47th Inf. Regt. at Ft. Carson, Colo.

Sergeant Ruby, born in Germany, was forced to join the Hitler Youth when he was 10. He came to the U. S. in 1951 and joined the Army the next year.

Probably the bulk of our articles will concern matters of legal assistance that is offered to all military personnel and their dependents by the Staff Judge Advocate. However, however, other contributions will also be made concerning military justice, claims and military affairs.

Again, it is hoped that post personnel will take advantage of this column and let this section know of any problems that may be of interest. However, it is stressed that those of you who have pressing personal problems should visit the Legal Assistance Office in this section.

British Claim 'Copter Vital During Battle

The following is an extract from the British Army Review, March 1957:

"The employment of helicopters during the Suez Canal landings, has again emphasized the importance of these vehicles in modern warfare. Helicopters were used for casualty evacuation—one aircraft was on Canal Airport within 30 minutes of the parachute assault—and for an assault landing in which 500 officers and men were landed in an hour and a half.

"There was no ack ack opposition to the assault landing, and it is doubtful if it would have been possible if there had been. Nevertheless, the operation showed the capacity of the helicopter to concentrate troops for an assault, and to disperse them quickly afterwards. In limited or global wars, the helicopter should be the outstanding weapon for achieving mobility, economy of effort and surprise.

"The evacuation of casualties by helicopter is more than a matter of administrative convenience. It is one of the best ways of maintaining the morale of troops operating in semi-isolation, for which they know that normal evacuation will be slow and painful.

"The advantages of the helicopter do not come as a surprise. We have proved them to cold wars in Malaya, Kenya and Cyprus. The French are basing their operations in Algeria on helicopter-borne

Queen of Battle

Just a few days more than 12 years ago, the world entered a new era in the realm of power, for it was on the 6th of August, 1945 that the United States dropped the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima. But the explosion of that nuclear device and the many that have followed it mean a great deal more than just the harnessing of another source of power. It has meant a major change in the organizational and tactical thinking of the Army. This week, "QUEEN OF BATTLE" examines this change of thought, the reasons behind it and the future it will cause in the increasingly important field of radiological warfare. That's "QUEEN OF BATTLE" — this Saturday night at 10:05 p.m. over WRBL in Columbus.

Gene Allen and the Militaires make the regular appearance on "BENNING STANDSTAND" this Sunday at 11:30 a.m. on WRBA in Columbus. You'll enjoy the listenable, danceable music of the Militaires as transcribed direct from the Main Officer's Open Mess at Ft. Benning.

Ex-Coast Guardsman, Winner Of DSC, Attending Class Here

BY MSGT CLARE BLACKBURN

Most people would be satisfied with only one distinguished accomplishment in their military career. Time but not Captain Earl H. Woolley, assigned to Advanced Infantry Officers Course at 3d Company, 1st Student Battalion, The School Brigade. He is not only a winner of the Distinguished Service Cross second highest award for bravery in the nation, but he served as an infantry platoon leader in Korea during the recent conflict, made two combat jumps as a paratrooper and is a qualified Army third-wing pilot. Oddly enough, his best military career was in the U. S. Coast guard.

Captain Woolley enlisted in the Coast Guard in October, 42 at the age of 17. He was combat for two and one-half years in the Southwest Pacific as a member of the 5th Amphibious Force on landing Straits for attack transports due to the position of Coxswain.

Discharged from the Coast Guard in March '46, Woolley enlisted as a private in the Army three months later and attended jump school here at Benning. His military career was with the 11th Airborne Division on occupation duty as a sergeant in Japan.

Captain Woolley returned stateside in February of '49 in order to attend OCS at Fort Riley, Kansas, and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry in August, 1950. Assigned as a leader of the 2d Platoon, Company "G", 16th Airborne Infantry Regiment, then located at Camp Campbell, Ky., he had the opportunity to train his platoon and take them into combat in Korea where he led them for eight months.

It was during this stint that Captain Woolley was the DSC. He says this award: "My platoon won that medal for me. I can't say enough about the fine men in my unit. In my books, there was no finer group of men in my unit than those that served under me. I was extremely fortunate in having my platoon sergeant and two other men who had joined my platoon in Korea present at Fort Campbell when the DSC was awarded to me. I felt that these three represented the rest of the platoon that had done so much for me."

In 52 Captain Woolley attended Army flight school and was graduated as a fixed wing pilot. After a tour in Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia as Aviation Officer, he was assigned to the 3d Field Artillery Battalion, 1st Infantry Division, he was grossed with the unit to Fort Riley, Kansas, and here came to advanced Infantry Officers Course here.

Captain Woolley is the son of Mr. H. Walter Woolley of Vernal, Utah.

ROTC Chief Rates 1957 Cadets Tops

The Consolidated 1957 ROTC Camp Report was released last week. Section I of the report contains the views of the camp commander, Colonel Marvin A. Kreidberg, PMSAF at the University of Florida.

In his report Colonel Kreidberg reports: "The general operation of the camp, the standard of instruction and training, troop support, and cadet response were considered outstanding. The M1 Rifle firing continued to be, as it has been in previous years, one of the most outstanding accomplishments."

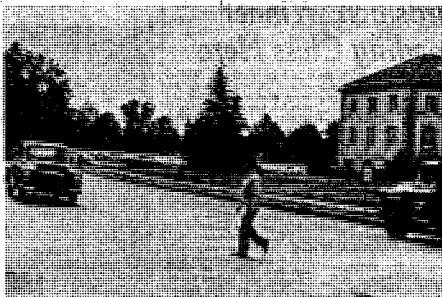

"The initial overall camp qualification was 97.3 per cent of the cadets who tried. This is believed to be an all-time high for the Fort Benning ROTC Camp. Each cadet who failed to qualify initially was retested once, raising the overall camp qualification to 98.3 per cent.

"The highest standards of instruction were maintained. This fact was most favorably commented upon by the visiting representatives of the colleges and universities, inspecting officers, and the cadets themselves."

"The moral, esprit, appearance, and general attitude of the cadets were considered exceptional. This also was the subject of most favorable comment."

"The physical examinations during reception were most expeditiously handled. Rejections for physical defects were very low (a total of 10) a ratio of approximately one per cent of these defects are correctable. Each cadet found physically unqualified was interviewed by the deputy camp commander prior to departure to boost his morale and urge the cadet to have the defect corrected before camp next year if at all possible.

"Disciplinary action was taken only in the case of one cadet. The Fort Benning organization of a special staff section charged with responsibility for ROTC activities on a year round basis capable of being integrated into the camp staff assured smooth administration, training, operation, and logistical support.

"There were no major supply problems. The standards of appearance, discipline, conduct and military efficiency of all cadets, administrative and training support troops were at all times exemplary."

Army Posts Eye 3-A Baseball Title

HEADQUARTERS THIRD UNITED STATES ARMY Fort McPherson, Ga. — With the baseball season rolling into its last few weeks, Third Army eyes are turning toward Fort Rucker, Ala. where the Area tournament will be held Sept. 27.

Fort McPherson's Colonel's spring a 1943 record will be favored to take their third consecutive Third Army championship. But the competition this year is expected to be the toughest in a number of years.

The contender which seems most likely to pull the big upset is Fort Stewart, Ga. The "Rocketts" have been rocking their opponents with a regularity topped only by Fort McPherson's Colonels. Stewart's record is 32 wins and seven losses against the All-Army champ Colonels.

Brilliant pitching by Ed Schneider (14-0) Duane Hornmans (5-1) and Gordon Courch (5-2) has been a major factor in the Rocketts' high record. Schneider, the team's ace, compiled a 22-11 record in the St. Louis Cardinal club in 1956 and 1958. His earned run average is 2.01 on the season.

The slugging trio of third baseman Gordon Whitehead, shortstop Fred Schuber and rightfielder Chico Chicino has backed the moundmen to the hill. Whitehead, power-hitting clean-up man, is leading the club with a .379 average; while Bohler is hitting in slugging .349. Chicino is .322 for the year and leads the club in RBIs with 46.

Fort Jackson SFC perennially Fort Mac's rival for the title, is also strong again this year. Flooding what is probably the strongest infield in the Army, the "Engines" from Columbia will be out to cause much trouble for everyone in their path. So far they have won 20, lost 8.

Shortstop Marvin Breeding, hitting .376 and Third baseman Dave Jacobs, a former New Orleans Pelican stalwart, form an airtight defense and also supply much of the offensive punch for the team. Ronald Weidenhammer and Charles McCracken, at second and first base, are both good fielders with .300-plus averages at the plate.

First Gordon G. Ramblers—one of the two Army teams to stop Fort McPherson this year—has lost three regular players since midseason but nevertheless figure as a strong contender. The main reason is Sammy Drake a fast, self-feeding 17rd baseman who led the South Atlantic league (Class A) in stolen bases in 1955. Drake is currently Third Army's leading batter at .460.

The Ramblers have a 15-11 record but it may well improve before the end of the season. In addition, they have a Yankee farmhand, and second A basement Paul Byrnes, formerly with "A" Nashville, begin to hit up to expectations.

Fort Rucker, the host team has consistently kept above the 500 mark this season and may prove a threat. Outfielder Ronald Geiger is the team's leading hitter with a cool .415.

In addition to all this array of opposing talent Fort McPherson may well look for trouble from the three largest posts to stop Fort McPherson this year. Fort Benning, Ga., Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Campbell, Ky., all had regional league caliber past teams. Each will pick an All-Star team to compete at Rucker and each will undoubtedly be tough. Fort McClellan, Ala., though it does have a team will not be represented at the tourney.

Still Fort McPherson is the team to beat. The team is batting a fancy .354, with every regular above the 300 mark. Four former world champions form the hard core of the team. Center fielder Al Spangier leads the team in batting with a .427 average. Former Boston Red Sox shortstop Don Budnik is swatting a .318 clip. Catcher-manager Steve Kordeck has a .375 record.

Fort Rucker, the host team has consistently kept above the 500 mark this season and may prove a threat. Outfielder Ronald Geiger is the team's leading hitter with a cool .415.

The Army swimmers will spend one week each in Nuremberg, Germany, and Copenhagen, Denmark, before heading to Cannes and the All-Army Swimming Meet in Cannes, France, Sept. 28.

The two swimmers chosen are 1st Lt. Don Brown of Manitou Springs, Colo., and Pvt. Bogdan Ladny of New York City. Brown is a lifetime All-Army swimmer from Denver University (1954-1955), where he set some 30 AAU records. Ladny is a refugee who fled from Red Poland, where he made the All-Polish Army Swim Team in 1951 and 1952.

The two Infantry Center swimmers will leave Aug. 10 for McGuire Air Force Base in Philadelphia, Pa. From there they will join six other Army swimmers who will also make the trip.

Champions in six categories will be chosen. These are: boys 10 and under, 11 and under, 11 to 13 and 14 to 17, and girls 10 and under, 11 to 13 and 14 to 17.

After trophies have been awarded, a general tennis clinic will be conducted by the Fort Benning tennis pro, Evert. The fun will be followed by a tennis exhibition played by Evert, Charles Bryan and Ed Lane of Columbus, Ga., and 2nd Lt. Lee Kane.

Plays 260 Holes During One Day
BERLIN, Germany (APFS). — Army Capt. Bert L. Seogren, 26th Infantry, completed 260 holes of golf course in the American Tunicus play on the American Golf Course at Berlin-Wannsee.

His objective was to better one of the longest continuous plays in one day held by an Australian, Capt. Seogren completed the feat in 18 and one-half hours, starting at 2:30 a.m. He walked 56 miles and hit 105 balls in the time in a drizzling rain. His lowest score was 18 holes during the day was 84.

PROUD WINNERS . . . 3d Division swimming stars, Bogdan Ladny (1) and Fred Diefenbach of the 7th Infantry stand behind their accumulated trophies, indicative of their success in the 3d Division, Ft. Benning, 3d Army and All-Army swimming meet. Ladny will continue his pool training when he travels to Europe, representing the US Army, in an extensive five week tour.

TOM WIERZBICKI Senior Circuit Is Not Tightest Race

Up till last weekend there were many baseball fans who would have told you that the National league pennant race was probably the closest scramble in the annals of the national pastime.

However, the recent surge by the Milwaukee Braves now has those same baseball fans wagering whether the Braves will be able to hold their substantial lead.

This may seem slightly incongruous, but just nine years ago a closer race, in another league, made this scramble seem like a conceded affair. It was on Aug. 3 that year, that six percentage points separated the first from fourth place club in the American league. Nine days before the end of the season, three teams were tied for the lead. Two were deadlocked when the regulation season was over and it took a playoff to establish the Cleveland Indians as the junior circuit champions.

As far as this corner's concerned we'll still stick with our pre-season choices the Braves and the New York Yankees to meet in the World Series come October.

Phoney Stroke?
Stanley Frank Musial of Donora, Pa., is as authentic a baseball star as modern day baseball has seen. Musial holds the best lifetime slugging percentage and most extra base hits of any player in National league history.

But baseball fans, this may come as a shock to you'll, but Musial's record string of 862 consecutive games is as phoney as a $3 bill.

Stanley has played in 862 consecutive games—only he hasn't. This "record" has already been accepted of bettering the 822 performances without a miss, established by Gus Suhr of Pittsburgh.

Approximately three weeks ago Musial failed to appear in the second game of a double header with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Failed To Appear
Due to the Pennsylvania curfew law, the games he thus far failed to appear in is not yet complete for it was called after eight innings. It is officially known as a suspended game, to be finished on Aug. 26.

Musial was on the injured list this particular day, but St. Louis manager at the time, Harry Walker, put his name on the official line-up card, batting third. The fun started when it was Musial's turn to bat. The injured Musial was removed for a pinch batter without having even set foot on the turf at Forbes field.

Synthetic Record
Sure, there was no violation of the rules so the move was permitted. President Warren Giles of the National league at the time said that, in his opinion, Musial's string was "synthetic" beyond that point. And he certainly said a mouthful.

In this modern day of suspended games which are replayed at a later date the possibility of it occurring is more than just a mere probability. Something should be done before it becomes a real farce.

Can you imagine Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak being wiped-out on the basis such as Musial's consecutive game streak was established? For one, it would be a true credit to the individual performer. Though I guess, just like an infield hit looks like a line drive in tomorrow's box score, so would this "record."

Logically speaking a record is something performers set their sights on. But Stanley Frank Musial's type of record isn't worth the effort it takes to walk across the street.

Local Firers Win Virginia State Match

Nine members of the Third U. S. Army Rifle Team dominated the field in the Virginia State Rifle Championships last week by coping two team and 17 individual awards.

The four-man Blue squad topped the team competition with a score of 487.9's out of a possible 1,000 with the Rucker four taking runner up honors.

Sgt. Shelly R. Eberfield of Tupelo, Miss., paced the Blue team backed by M-Sgt. James N. Stevens of Fayetteville, N. C., SFC William E. Reitz of Ft. Bragg, N. C., and SFC Drake of Winchester, Ill.

In the International open firing, Sheffield took second place honors with a score of 389.4's out of a possible 400.

Sgt. Clyde Malpas of Columbia, Pa., fired a 396.36's out of a possible 400 to capture the top military service rifle championship.

The Third Army rifle shooters are practicing at Fort Benning before competing in the National Rifle Championships at Camp Perry, Ohio, this month.

Digging Foxhole Fire-arms Cache Found by Pair

BERLIN (APFS). — A buried firearms collection was turned up near here recently by two soldiers digging a fox-hole.

The collection of about 250 weapons, included muzzle-loading rifles, early breech-loading, shot-guns, Mausers, Remingtons, and 1893 Winchester's. None was in usable condition. They were corroded, and stocks had rotted.

It was not known where they came from. One guess was that they had been buried during the Battle of Berlin, 12 years ago. The weapons were turned over to Army Ordnance.

Now in OCS Merman Willing to Trade Water Wings for Bars

By M-Sgt. Clark Blackburn a swimming champion who wants to trade his water wings for the gold bar of a second lieutenant is now in The School Brigade. He is Officer Candidate Jack Bunis, assigned to the 50th OCS Company, 3d Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Bunis was a swimming star during high school days when he attended Thomas Jefferson High Brooklyn, N. Y. He sparked his high school swimming team and was on the All-New York City Swimming Team as a back stroke ace. His high school awarded him best athlete and outstanding athlete awards.

Upon graduation from high school, Bunis enrolled in Long Island (N. Y.) University and joined the swimming team that was undefeated for the two years he was a member. His forte was the butterfly stroke and the individual medley.

While in college he also swam for the Brooklyn YMCA team that won the International YMCA championship two years in a row. He also swam for the New York Boys' Club that won the National Championship in 1954. During the summer months he worked as a supervisor of the swimming team that was undefeated for the two years he was a member. His forte was the butterfly stroke and the individual medley.

Upon graduation from college Bunis went to work as an accountant for Curtis - Wright and continued his life guard duties in his spare time.

In October of '56 Bunis was inducted into the Army and received basic training at Fort Dix, N. J. Upon completion of basic he was sent there for his advanced eight weeks of training. He was then assigned to the 3d Infantry Division.

He then participated in the 13th Infantry swim team during the 3d Infantry Division meet during the 200-meter butterfly.

Suggestion to Save $525,000 a Year
A civilian worker has received $115 for a suggestion officials said will save the Army $525,000 a year.

Officials said the money can be saved by re-using wooden boxes for 30 mm ammunition, instead of selling the 128 containers for 10 cents each.

The suggestion was made by James R. Fischer, an ammunition requisitioner at Ft. Knox, Ky.

In the USAIC meet Bunis won the 100-meter butterfly second place in the 200-meter butterfly and third place in the 400-meter individual medley.

Bunis was selected to represent Fort Benning at the Third Army meet but his appointment to OCS precluded his competing in the match.

"Swimming" says O.C. Bunis "will be only a hobby for me from here on. I have OCS to complete satisfactorily and then who knows. I am undecided about a career. The Infantry appeals to me as well as civilian public relations work. That coveted gold bar comes first before all other things."

Officer Candidate Bunis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bunis of Tennesse N. J.

Jeep Still in Army Despite WWII Use

ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany (AP)—Evidently there's one WWII jeep that decided long ago to make the Army a career.

At least that's the belief of motor pool personnel with Co. M, 8th Inf. Regt. here.

They advance as proof the jeep's low serial number which an enterprising sergeant checked back to the North African campaign, and a date tag in the cab that indicates a rebuild job and delivery late in 1951 to a regiment then fighting in Korea.

Whether the jeep has a rightful claim to fame may be doubted by skeptics, but it still remains a cherished and actively used vehicle here.

JERRY ARMSTRONG
Bird Lover Finds Post a Homeland

Did you know that the Dipper, a tiny bird living high in the Western mountains, frolics along under water searching for insects on stream beds and comes up occasionally for air?

Did you know that the symbol of our national emblem, the Bald Eagle, is sometimes called a carrion-eater, general low-liver and a coward?

Did you know that tradition says the Baltimore Oriole got his name because he wears the black and orange family colors of Lord Baltimore and that the Screech Owl doesn't screech at all but instead gives a low-pitched wail that floats easily on the night?

All these somewhat startling facts are contained in an interesting book authored by Robert S. Gardner, senior managing editor of House and Garden Magazine, published by the American Garden Guild and Doubleday and Company Inc.

Reservation Has Birds

While reading this unusual account, complete with realistic drawings by one of America's foremost bird painters, Don H. Robertson, it brought to mind I had seen many of these same birds at Fort Benning.

No I know we don't have any cold mountain streams for Dippers to play in, but the reservation has plenty of space for observing birds of other land and water birds.

For the amateur ornithologist, the 182,000 acres of Fort Benning offers habitats for studying birds. The song sparrow to the wild turkey. The many ponds on post give an added advantage for watching the oddities of the waterfowl.

Interesting Birds Need

The Strike, which is found frequently in this area is called a "butcher-bird" in the book. About the size of a robin, the Strike has a killer's instinct and even hangs its dead quarry on thorny limbs and barbed-wire fences.

Our symbol of the nation portrayed in majestic splendor by the Bald Eagle scores for many ornithologists as a feathered robber and coward in the eyes of bird lovers. It is smaller than its head. Equally wooden folk see it as a great and noble. Actually both facts are partly right, which perhaps goes to show that the big fellow with the white head is just a typical American after all.

Today, with the passport being speed, guided missiles and destructive force, the Peregrine or Duck Hawk is the answer in the bird family. For a bird which made falconry the top sport of the seventeenth-century king and inhabits every continent of the world, the Peregrine also is the fastest bird that flies.

School

Thank you for continuing registration can be obtained by telephoning Fort Benning 20112 or 3-5133.

Grimes pointed out that youths between the ages of six and 14 are required to have a permit for operating a bicycle on the post.

Youths who do not have a permit will be issued one if they attend the bicycle school, Grimes said.

Children will be picked up with their bicycles one hour before the school starts each day.

Aug. 26 picking up points will be Battle Park Nursery, Center Terrace Shopping Center and Benning Park Home.

The youngsters will be picked up Aug. 29-30 at Main Post School and Fort Benning Trailer Park.

Greer

Thank you for continuing Greer was named G-2 of the First Infantry Division in Germany.

He was in the G-2 section of the Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., from August, 1951, to April, 1954. In 1952 he was graduated from the Strategic Intelligence School in Washington.

Col. and Mrs. Greer, the former Mollie Hatten of Overland, Mo., have three children, Howard, Jr., 13, Ronald, 10, and Diana, 2.

Drive

In accordance with Presidential

dent Eisenhower's new policy for solicitations for Army installations and federal employees, two additional drives will be conducted on post. A request for funds will be set aside for an Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society drive.

From January to March a permit may be used by certain presidentially approved public health organizations which do not participate in annual commodity drives.

Fluoridation

Thank you for continuing since fluoride per cent is 10 cents, with the water plant producing about 11 million gallons per day at this period of the year.

Surveys of the natural fluorine content of water and the number of children in different age groups who would be protected from fluoridation were conducted on the office of the Dental Surgeon's Office at the Infantry Center.

Final approval of the plan was received this summer by the Army Chief of Engineers, Washington, D. C.

Installation of the equipment is under the supervision of George K. Ogletree of Columbus, Ga., chief of the Sanitation Branch, Infantry Center Engineer Section.

Plans Made to Minimize Labor Day Accidents

The United States Army Infantry Center Safety Director Norman M. Evans, has prepared special safety plans designed to minimize the possibility of accidents during the long three-day Labor Day week end.

In cooperation with the Troop Information Division, USAIC, special lesson plans "Safety Orientation - Labor Day week end 1957" has been distributed to all major command information officers for presentation during Troop Information Hours.

The lesson plan cites the contributing factors involving accidents and precautionary measures to be taken to prevent these accidents.

Evans reports, "Excluding the Christmas holidays, the three-day Labor Day week end has become the worst period of the year for fatal accidents. Last year, 435 people in the United States were killed in traffic accidents during this period. Drownings were the next worst killer.

On The Air

Over the years, one of the Army's best known and most respected groups has been the Army Medical Corps.

On the battlefield, medics "QUEEN OF BATTLE" — Saturday night at 10:05 p.m. over WRBL in Columbus. There's other good listening material as we share over the weekend too, the best of treatment at the earliest possible moment. Field hospitals, operated by the Medical Corps, also aid in this assurance.

In addition, the Medical Corps has a long history of lending a helping hand whenever it is needed during various civil disasters. This week, "QUEEN OF BATTLE" pays tribute to all this friend of the infantryman in a program which depicts some of the activities of the Army Medical Corps. That's WDAK.

The Judge Says...

"Just sign here at the bottom of the page, Sergeant Smart, and the car is yours. Tomorrow morning I'll have my secretary fill in all the forms exactly as we've agreed upon. Those were the words of the used car dealer, Sgt. Smart, who had inspected this car and found; nothing had been filled in.

"I can't sign that, it's just a blank form," Joe said.

"Now listen," blurted the dealer. "I've been fair with you all the way. I'm giving you a deal you can't get anywhere else in town. Our mechanics have inspected this car and it's in tip-top shape. And I've told you my secretary doesn't work on Saturday afternoons so we can't get the contract completed until Monday."

Joe signed the contract in blank. He thought he was buying a 1956 auto on a bill for $2500.00 according to the following terms: $250.00 down payment; $425.00 trade-in allowance on his 1952 car, and $1800.00 to be financed. When Joe's payment book arrived in the mail several days later he found that he owed 30 payments of $82.50 per month, or a total of $2475.00.

How much did the 1956 auto actually cost? Was it $2500.00, the price painted on the windshield? Was it $2475.00, the debt to the finance company? No, actually, Joe bought the car for the following:

Trade-in $425.00
Cash Down Payment $275.00
Remainder Plus Finance Charges $1800.00

Joe may have thought he was buying the newer car for $2500.00, but the true price was $1875.00. If Joe had known the true price he probably wouldn't have bought.

Is Joe stuck? Legally a person is presumed to know, understand, and agree to the terms of a contract which appears above his signature. If Joe could prove that the contract was in blank at the time he signed it and that the actual terms were different, he wouldn't be stuck. But he can't prove it, and the dealer has the contract with Joe's signature.

What should you do as the buyer to protect yourself when buying a used car? Here are some suggestions:

1. Determine the total time of use of the car. You know the finance charges. Don't be content to know just how much you pay per month and for how many months.
2. Insist upon having all terms of the agreement in writing. You can't legally enforce any of the oral statements of the dealer. That's just sales talk.
3. Get a copy of all written documents used in the transaction. If the seller can't supply you with copies, don't sign.
4. Have the car inspected at your expense. Generally, there is no guarantee for the performance of a used car, and the fact the mechanic at the used car lot didn't find anything wrong with the car doesn't give you any protection. If the dealer doesn't want you to have the car inspected, then don't buy the car.
5. Shop around. Don't take the first car you see without comparing prices. Remember that the price on the windshield is a true price only if you're buying for cash. If you buy on time, find out the real time price.
6. If you don't understand the terms of the contract, bring a copy by the Legal Assistance Office, Room 14, Building No. 5 (Armpit Building), before you sign. The Legal Assistance Office will gladly explain the terms in detail so that you will know exactly for what you are obligating yourself to before you sign.
7. Finally, don't sign blank contracts. If you find yourself in a situation like Sgt. Joe's, get the dealer that Smart guy, back Monday to sign the contract after the terms have been filled in.

M-Sgt. Seeks Commission In Reserves

Master Sergeant Grady L. Lancaster, Division Intelligence NCO and member of Headquarters Company, was rushed by Army plane to Third United States Army Headquarters at Fort Benning Aug. 16 to obtain his appointment as a Reserve Officer. Under a deadline due August 1, the 3d Division Aviation Company flight was made just two days before Sergeant Lancaster turned 28, the cut-off age for reserve appointments.

Realizing his key Non-Commissioned Officer's capability and his potential as an officer, the "Warrior" Division expedited his application.

Sergeant Lancaster said, "I don't realize until last Wednesday that my application had been made," and by then, time was running out. "I really appreciate the Division's effort in aiding me to realize an ambition of long standing."

Brooklyn-Born

Former Nazi Youth Member Here Now Attending OCS

A Brooklyn-born boy of German parents, who joined the Hitler Youth Organization in Germany during WWII and later served Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as a houseboy and general handyman, is an Officer Candidate here. He is Ralph G. Egenmaier, now assigned to the 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

OFFICER CANDIDATE ... Ralph Egenmaier

Egenmaier was born in 1929 in Brooklyn, N. Y., of German parents. In December of 1938, at the age of nine, he traveled to Germany to visit his grandparents and was still there in 1939 when WWII erupted. The German government refused to let him leave the country, declaring him a German citizen having been born of German parents.

His mother went to Germany to look after young Egenmaier and his sister who had gone with him his last trip over. The boy entered school, but in April of 1939 was drafted into Hitler's Junior Youth Organization. Egenmaier compares this organization to our own Scout groups. The main difference, he says, is that they were given military drill and quite a bit of politics. Egenmaier progressed from the Junior to Senior Hitler Youth Organization and chose the German Navy as his branch of service which he was called to military duty. At the age of 15 he was in the Naval Hitler Youth being trained and prepared for military service, even though he says there was no Navy left—it was all either sunk or bottled up in various ports throughout the world.

The end of the war found him in southern Germany where the French captured him and other youths thinking the boys were members of the military. When it was determined they weren't, the boys were put on farms to work. As soon as train service started again, Egenmaier and several of his friends hopped a freight for home in Frankfurt, Germany.

Both Egenmaier—who actually was an American citizen and his mother—who knew English and could cook American dishes—were recommended for jobs in General Ike's household. With the fast rate Ike's personal staff was rotating to the States, both were hired.

Egenmaier worked on table sets such as tablecloths, napkins, etc. as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's General. He worked as a waiter for Gen. Omar Bradley, General George Patton and others were guests of Eisenhower. The mother and son combination worked for the until he turned over the command to General MacArthur. They continued on with MacArthur until January 1947 when Egenmaier joined the U. S. Army. Egenmaier was accepted for OCS while he was stationed in Japan with the 1st Cavalry Division and arrived at Fort Benning in June for OCS Class No. 6.

He was cited for his service as an administrative specialist in the Office of the Secretary of the U. S. Army Infantry School since June, 1956. The certificate was presented by Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larson, Infantry School assistant commandant. The 21-year-old soldier was cited for meritorious service as an administrative specialist in The Infantry School's Office of the Secretary since June, 1956. At Fort Belvoir he will study to enter the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., next July.

Maj. Brammer Awarded Achievement Certificate

Major Winford W. Brammer of Worthington, Minn., received a U. S. Army Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement for outstanding service as Chief of the Logistics Section of the U. S. Army Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction. Major Brammer left the service, returning in January, 1951, with the outbreak of the Korean conflict. He served with X Corps and the United Nations Armistice Commission Support Unit and added a Oak Leaf Cluster to his Silver Star. He returned from the Far East in 1954, and was assigned to his present position at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Marion T. Felt of Seattle, Wash., director of the Non-Resident Instruction Department in presenting the certificate to Major Brammer called him "a credit both to himself and the U. S. Army." Major and Mrs. Brammer have two sons, Drake, 18, a plebe at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., and Richard, 10.

Reserve Engineers Save Construction Cost Here

The U. S. taxpayer's "milk" training dollar is accomplishing double duty at Fort Benning this month as the 47th U. S. Army Reserve Engineer Brigade is completing permanent post construction valued at more than $75,000. Approximately 2,000 officers and enlisted men of the 47th of Vicksburg, Miss., departed for home Aug. 18 after completing two weeks of training at Fort Benning. Personnel of the Brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. George A. Morris, are from five states in the Third U. S. Army area.

The largest of the brigade projects is the construction of a tank trail at Wood and Hourglass Roads worth approximately $25,000. Most of the other work consists of improving already existing roads and bridges. In addition a $2,500 permanent building was constructed in the Hampton Church area. Gen. Morris stated that the training received in this construction work has been of "great value." In addition the brigade commander thanked Fort Benning for the cooperation and support that greatly contributed to the success of the brigade mission. Much of the construction work is being accomplished under simulated battle conditions on a four-day tactical browser (Aug. 12-15). Harassment by aggressor forces added realism to the problem.

New Truck Tire Uses No Rubber

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A new, all synthetic, heavy duty truck tire may make the Army's independent of natural rubber imports. Made of butyl, a synthetic rubber produced from oil refinery gases, the perfected tire will not deteriorate in storage, the Army said. Developed after three years of research by the Pennsylvania Tire Co., Lancaster, Pa., Ohio, the tire now is being sized in the 9.00 x 20 in. size, the Army's most widely used type. Cross-country and highway let's have a v. e. shown the butyl products to be equal to or superior to military tires presently being manufactured. A program is underway to develop 100 per cent butyl tires in all other sizes for military vehicles.

Div. Conducts Aerial Class

With an eye toward the sky, an avirided Army keeps pace with nuclear warfare. The 3d Infantry Division is developing target acquisition techniques with a novel Aerial Observer Course.

The five week class is designed to train competent aerial observers who will be responsible to the division for reconnaissance, surveillance, photography and numerous other functions.

According to First Lieutenant Robert W. Huebner, Artillery Flight Commander, 3d Aviation Company, the ten officers who are presently participating in the course do everything, with the exception of actual flying. Most of the men have become so fascinated with the course for flight school after this is over," Huebner said.

The course is divided into two major divisions; 80 hours of ground school instruction and 30 hours of flying time related to the ground school subjects. The first class is scheduled to be graduated on August 28th.

The inception of the school came last March when "Mame" Assistant Division Commander, Brigadier General Frederick B. Gierlach, directed that the 3d Aviation Company under the command of Captain Robert A. Michelson start training men for an aerial observer course.

At that point, the wheels went into motion, and the flight school within the Aviation Company was given the responsibility to staff and conduct the school. Shortly after that, the entire idea became a reality.

Training for the course is extremely stringent, and a rigorous physical examination must be passed. The rewards for being accepted are fruitful. While in the school, the officers receive flight pay and a new challenge.

Ludwig Finishes Course

Pfc Donald Ludwig, Hq. & Co. 2d Battle Group 14th Infantry, has returned to his company after 8 weeks of tele-type school at Fort Gordon, Ga. This school, Teletype Operator Training, has placed Pfc Ludwig in the group of urgently needed personnel, since his MOS, 723, is rare in an Infantry unit. The course trains the personnel the operation and servicing of the teletype machines. Pfc Ludwig has been assigned to the USAISTC message center until the machines, which have been ordered, arrive, and are put into operation. He is assigned to the 11th Signal Battalion prior to attending the school.

Before entering the service in June 1956, Pfc Ludwig was a stock clerk in an apartment store in his home town, Seward, Nebraska. He took his basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

They've Changed Old Mess Hall Days Recalled by M-Sgt.

In the military changes are constant, new weapons are added, old ones modified, TDS & TDS's are altered to match the trend and, while not readily apparent, it even applies to feeding.

M-Sgt. (Ret) John W. Griffith now a civilian in Special Troops Command Ration Breakdown can recall many odd and interesting things that were ordinary when he enlisted over 20 years ago. Milk was obtained by purchasing cans in the Ordinary Room, vegetables purchased from peddlers at the mess hall door as grandmothers did at home and bread baked from the Post Bakery and almost unlimited quantities of fresh milk. Master messengers prepared by expert dieticians and recipes as far away as the nearest TM 412.

Special Troops Command Ration Breakdown has this responsibility. Catering to the culinary needs of approximately 3000 men and women daily. In addition to STC, other units serviced by this section are Detention Barracks, LAAP and 2nd USASFS. This is a full time job for no less than 18 men under the control of S1, STC, Mr. Griffith, and M-Sgt. ## TOM WIERZBICKI If Going's Tough Tough Get Going

When the going gets tough, the tough get going. . . . Such will be the plight of former Fort Benning Lieutenant Thomas "Pete" Rademacher when he steps into the ring tonight or rather early tomorrow morning to meet Floyd Patterson, the heavyweight champion of the world.

His goal? This is a rather confusing point for if you believe what you read "from the men who are supposed to know" Pete has already reached a goal by arranging the title fight. What will follow is strictly immaterial, they say, as to what round Patterson will end the bout. . . . Bookies Say "No Contest" Even the oddsmakers declare the bout "no contest" and refuse to take any money. To them there are not small enough odds to warrant that "one-in-a-million-shot".

The question before the house is "is that one in-a-million-shot possible? . . . As far as the corner is concerned the feasibility of such a preposterous notion does not follow our line of reasoning. Whoever started this business of a one-in-a-million shot should literally speaking be shot. . . . Why? First off, a game of sports is not like a game of chance. You just don't happen to end up on the winning side time after time. A sport, be it baseball, football, boxing or ping pong, is a game of offense versus defense. The old saying "the best offense is a good defense" couldn't be more accurate. A scabback scurrying through a hole in the line culminating a 60-year touchdown scamper is not simply a matter of personal ability. Nor is a fight dropping his opponent with one thunderous right hand blow for K.O. You have to overcome a defense to bring about results such as these.

A Cheese Champion? Starting with this premise we will go on record to say that Patterson, the boy who won the heavyweight title from an old man over the hill and defended it against another bum, is not the champion so-called experts make him out to be. Like a college football team which on paper looks unbeatable so is Patterson. The potential is there make no quibbles about it. Floyd is untried, though impressive, but certainly far from unbeatable.

And the other contestant in tonight's battle is also far from unbeatable. Pete's record is 72 wins in 79 bouts. But this really isn't the difference. According to boxing experts the fact that Pete is an amateur is reason enough for him to come out on the short end of the tussle. . . . This correspondent does not follow that school of thought. While he was here in Columbus, former heavyweight champion of the world, Rocky Marciano, was quoted saying the only thing he derived from his fist 25 pro fights was confidence. Experience was at a minimum for the Rock as he needed only some 15 rounds to dispose of his victims. Pete already has the confidence. And those of us who have seen Pete in action know he is a good enough fighter to be in there tonight.

A Bold Prediction Most writers like to predict the outcome of title fights. Our background on predictions is at the point where the law of average must, one of these times, make us a winner. . . . As far as we see the fight, the contest will not last more than seven rounds (or how else will I make reveille?). Both fighters are counter-punchers. This means a lot of clinching and a good night's work ahead for referee Tommy Loughran. We advise the people watching the fight (and we don't mean on TV) to keep their eyes glued to the ring because it's going to happen very fast. A couple of jolts to the body followed by a vicious left hook and a right hand follow through and one of the participants will go down. And that's any count necessary. The man standing will be heavyweight champion of the world.

Div. Firers Get Holiday

Members of the third platoon, Company "A", 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry, 3d Infantry Division, shot their way to a holiday at Ida Gosum Calhoun Gardens on Sunday, August 18th, as a result of obtaining the highest aggregate score in the target range in competition with the other three platoons of Company "A". . . . The group, accompanied by Second Lieutenant David C. Smith, left by Army bus for their destination. Upon reaching the Gardens, the men wasted no time in taking advantage of the available facilities. . . . As a finale to the day's activities, the men were served a scrumptious meal which included charcoal broiled steaks, roast chicken, potato salad, and many other delicacies.

Prophet months at Muhlberg, Germany, which he returned to the states and again stationed at Fort Benning. . . . At the start of World War II, Sgt. Prophet took time from his extensive athletics and joined the 42nd Regt. 106th Central Postal Directory. He was sent overseas. His first taste of combat came on Dec. 9, 1944 when he was moved to the Siegfried line. Sgt. Prophet was later taken prisoner by the Germans in the famous Battle of the Bulge. He remained prisoner for four months.

Adopted During War Korean Girl Marks First U.S. Birthday at Benning

A Korean assignment, an Army chaplain's friendship and a president's proclamation made Susie Brown's birthday at Fort Benning Aug. 20 a memorable one. Linda Sue Brown, four-year-old daughter of 1st Lt. and Mrs. Herman Brown celebrated her first American birthday with a swimming party for the neighborhood children. Behind the birthday party lies a "love at first sight" story. Susie, who has smoky brown eyes, a splash of freckles across her nose and cheeks, and a brand new pony tail hair-do, was a tiny Korean orphan in 1953. Chaplain Henry G. Campbell Jr. was chaplain for the 31st Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division in Korea. Lt. Brown was commander of the regimental personnel did. He was close friends. Back home in Texas was Charlotte, Lt. Brown's wife. Korea was the poorest, struggling orphanage of Ab Hood, its 30 to 40 children were hungry and badly in need of attention and medical care. The men of the regiment took over. Today they are still supporting the orphanage, carrying on the original good work. Chaplain Campbell, assisting with the project, went to inspect the orphanage and see the children. And there was Susie. "I lost my heart when I saw her, a tiny little thing with big brown eyes, running up to take my hand." With the help of the American Red Cross, a considerable amount of the fund goes to the Columbus United Givers which also takes funds to various agencies which give aid to military personnel and their families. Examples of this are as follows: The Armed Services YMCA, during the first five months of 1957, had a total of 86,668 military dependents and 3,861 military dependents. Please See Fund, Page 2

SUBJECT: Labor Day Weekend

TO: All Military and Civilian Personnel
United States Army Infantry Center
Fort Benning, Georgia

1. Excluding the Christmas holidays, Labor Day weekend has become the worst accident period of the year. The national toll last year was 435 persons killed in traffic accidents, with drownings accounting for the next greatest number. With the annual increase in numbers of vehicles, and a greater increase in water sports, the record for this year may be higher.

2. The past record indicates that most Fort Benning traffic and recreational type accidents occur on the weekend, or on a holiday immediately following a payday. These factors are all present in the forth-coming holiday period. In previous years, the average Labor Day toll has been one person killed, and eight injured. Last year, however, the record improved with no fatalities, and only three injured. There has also been a substantial reduction in these type accidents during all of this year.

3. This enviable record must be maintained. All personnel must be aware of the hazards likely to be encountered both on the public highways, and in recreational areas.

4. To assist commanders in this endeavor, promotional and educational material on holiday accident prevention is being distributed by this headquarters.

HERBERT B. POWELL
Major General, U. S. Army

Safety First

Labor Day week end is a combination pay day, holiday and long week end. Put all these factors together and they mean two things, one of Fort Benning the coming week end will fun or trouble. For the more than 61,000 personnel the last summer holiday with many people having family gatherings or picnicking, boating or taking motor trips to interesting places or a visit with friends.

Next Tuesday morning most all of these same people who are now looking forward with anticipation to the big week will return to their homes and jobs. Some will not. The Labor Day week end has become the worst period of the year for fatal accidents. Here at Fort Benning the average accident rate in past years has been one death and eight injuries for the three-day period. The Fort Benning accident rate has been decreasing each year and last year only three injuries took place over the Labor Day week end.

Mr. Norman Evans, Safety Director, United States Army Infantry Center has predicted that this year six persons will suffer injuries which will require prolonged hospitalization during the three-day week end.

Safety is everybody's business. Make it your business over the week end to enjoy a safe and happy holiday.

International Roundup

Globe-Wide Rocket Claimed by Soviets

MOSCOW — Soviet Russia said this week it has successfully tested an intercontinental rocket missile which can "hit any spot on the globe."

The announcement said the rocket was launched from the Baikonur space station in Kazakhstan. The missile was described as super range and multi-stage.

Recent nuclear and hydrogen tests also have been carried out successfully at great heights in recent days, the announcement said. The United States announced last Friday the Russians had resumed testing at Siberian proving grounds.

WASHINGTON — The United States, in a gesture of conciliation to Russia, agreed conditionally to accept a two-year suspension of nuclear weapons tests provided Russia agreed to a permanent cutoff of atomic weapons production.

STANBUL — Turkey announced this "significant change" in U. S. disarmament policy. It is a personal assurance immediately after it was presented to Russia in London. Previously the United States had insisted on a 10-month limit on suspending tests.

STANBUL — U. S. State Department spokesman said today a series of consultations with the Syrian premier "have found my talks most helpful."

WASHINGTON — The United States has reluctantly authorized 24 American newsmen to enter Cuba.

Teen-Age Marriages Within the Army

(Ed. note — The following article on teen age marriages was reprinted from 25th Infantry Div. newsmagazine, and was prepared by Chaplain (Capt) Michael A. Kameck, 16th Infantry.)

A TEEN-AGE soldier tramped the dingy hallway to his apartment, walked to the door, unlocked it, and turned the key. The door opened in silence. Each dresser drawer had been carefully closed. The closet was cleared except for some sports clothes and uniforms. A crib stood empty.

She hadn't yet turned 18 when the baby was born. She could put up with dirt and muck, but she wasn't going to raise a baby in a place like that. And now, she'd done what she had threatened.

Somewhere between 5,000 and 10,000 teenage soldiers, sailors, and airmen are scattered through experiences like these this year, victims of hasty, ill-considered marriages.

The legal officer of one of the largest Army posts in the country points to early marriages as the cause of over 60 per cent of the desertions and about 20 per cent of the suicides in his office.

The rate of saving teenage marriages from economic or emotional disaster fall most often to the chaplain. Patrick J. Ryan, the Army's chief of chaplains, says he is often in a dilemma to "impetuously" fear that "life is passing by."

It is recommended that the teen-age soldier entering a marriage until he has returned to his parents and has attained service status.

The problem starts with the teen-ager who, "just past" 17, enters a marriage. He is often a high school senior, and he is often in a strange environment, far from the comfort of home and the companionship of his sweetheart.

Do you after day, the young soldier sees his buddies receive "Dear John" letters from their girlfriends, announcing the end of their friendship. With four years of military service behind him, he finds what seems an eternity, the teen-ager becomes convinced that he has made a serious mistake soon or see his own romance go the way of the others. He becomes convinced that he has made a serious mistake soon or see his own romance go the way of the others.

Picture the problem [It is a young soldier who has just married on his first leave. He has used up his savings on wedding and honeymoon expenses or on purchase of a car. Now he and his bride are housed for a new station, hundreds of miles away from home and with no assurance of a place to live.

Marriages that would have been successful, given a normal environment and a few years to mature, have been wrecked by the doubts, suspicions, and insecurities that temptations led by the long separations made necessary by military life.

Even among the teen-age soldiers, there are some who are so sure of themselves that they will survive the hardships of military life that they will destroy the marriage in later life. Among the most serious is the teen-age soldier who has had to leave home and his family.

It is recommended that the teen-age soldier entering a marriage until he has returned to his parents and has attained service status.

REMER TYSON Shirley Temple Returns in Jan.

Shirley Temple, the golden-haired movie goddess in her more youthful days, will appear again in a changed world of show business.

Shirley, now 28, is scheduled to play hostess on a new series of hour-long fairy tales beginning in January.

The liberally "million dollar baby" of years back seems to be getting about as excited about the younger and older sects again—in some respects the same as did the greatest juvenile movie star of them all.

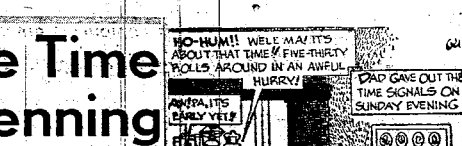

On the surface, one might guess that Shirley will attract only the Disney fans. A spot, however, her programs hold a promise of different exciting entertainment.

New System For Cadets

WEST POINT, N. Y. (ANS) —All competitive appointments to the United States Military Academy beginning with the class entering West Point next July will be selected under a new three-point method designed to improve the caliber of cadets.

The new Military Academy system will select about 100 percent of each class or approximately 100 vacancies. In the future under the three-point method, competitive appointments will be chosen on the basis of their mental abilities, physical aptitude, and leadership potential.

Only the scores attained on the College Entrance Examination Board mental tests have been used in the past to establish the order of merit for entrance under the competitive-nomination categories.

Competitive nominees include young men named by the President of the United States; those from the Regular and Reserve Components of the Army and Air Force; Sons of Deceased Veterans; and graduates of Honor Military and Honor Naval Schools.

The CEPB mental test and the West Point Physical Aptitude Test will be administered for nominees next March at selected military installations both in the United States and overseas to determine their mental and physical capabilities. In addition, each nominee's scholastic standing in his high school graduating class will be considered. The leadership potential will be determined by confidential evaluations of each nominee from teachers and coaches at each school he attended.

Responsibility for the final selection of all competitive candidates under the new system is vested in the Academic Board of the United States Military Academy, a spokesman said.

Col. Huff to Retire From Service Friday

Twenty-three years of active service will come to a close on Aug. 31 with the retirement of Col. Gilman A. Huff, age 41, Commanding Officer, Lawson Army Field Command. He expects to make his future home in Abbeville, South Carolina.

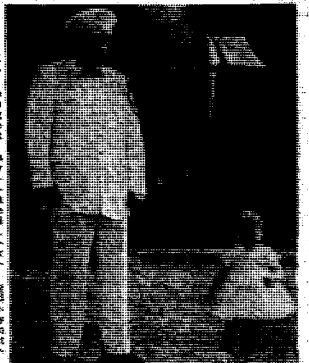

A veteran of two wars, he distinguished himself in combat as a battalion commander and regimental executive in both Europe and Korea. He has been decorated for action in both theaters and is a holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Croix de Guerre.

Born in Greenville, S. C., Nov. 2, 1915, Col. Huff attended Greenville High School and was graduated in 1935. The year before graduation, he joined the National Guard and in 1936 enlisted in the Regular Army.

Col. Huff enlisted in the Army before he was 19 years old as a private after leaving Greenville High School. He was commissioned a 2nd Lt. from a ROTC in 1941.

Captured by the Germans during World War II in early 1945, Col. Huff effected an escape and succeeded in returning to the friendly lines. At the close of World War II, he volunteered for the Pacific and later served in Japan. Col. Huff served six months in Korea as a battalion commander during the United Nations action, until wounded.

It was his action in rallying "disorganized" company and personally leading it to a successful assault on a heavily fortified position that was him the nation's second highest award, the Distinguished Service Cross.

Col. Gilman A. Huff, Lawson Army Air Field commander, is pictured with his daughter, Susan. Col. Huff will retire Aug. 31 after 23 years in the service. He plans to live in retirement at Abbeville, S.C.

Library Concert Sets Beethoven Work Tuesday

The recorded concert at the Main Post Library next Tuesday evening will feature Beethoven's Concerto for violin in D Major. It was composed in 1806 and first performed by Franz Clement at the Theater-an-der-Wein in Vienna, December 23, 1806. It was published in 1809 with a dedication to "his friend" Stephen von Breunig. Why Clement did not finally receive the dedication were not told; Beethoven had good reason to favor the leader of the violins at the opera. The score, according to accounts, was not completed until the last moment and Clement, receiving the solo part too late for final rehearsal, played the concerto at sight.

NG Expense Sliced by New Pool System

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga., a system of pooling National Guard tanks and heavy artillery in the Southern states is saving taxpayers $101,262 this year, according to a report made to Third Army Headquarters.

Col. Lewis L. Copley, Chief of Third Army's National Guard Section, said he arranged this year with the Adjutant General of the Third Army's seven states to pool certain items of equipment for summer training at Fort Stewart, Ga.

Previously National Guard units from these states brought two-week training sessions, and took it back to their states when they were through. This resulted in units from the different states transporting like kinds of equipment to and from Fort Stewart. They made up Col. Copley said the savings came mainly from reduced shipment of such items as tanks, armored personnel carriers, self-propelled artillery and anti-aircraft artillery guns.
