3 Units Cited For Safety

Three units at Fort Benning have won awards for outstanding safety records. They are the Fort Benning Army Exchange Service, 54th Medical Group and Infantry Center Quartermaster Section.

The Exchange Service was cited for its outstanding record from Nov. 1, 1956, to October, 1957, in competition with other Army and Air Force Exchange of the Southeastern area. Fort Benning's Exchange is the only such agency in the Third Army area to win this award. It is among the first recipients of the citation under the Army and Air Force Exchange Safety Award Program.

To earn the award an Exchange must have kept "lost-time" accidents at a minimum by sustaining no more than one "lost-time" accident per 200,000 man-hours worked during a 12 month period.

The Fort Benning Exchange had three "lost-time" accidents per 707,000 man-hours worked or an average of one accident per 235,666 man-hours worked.

The 54th Medical Group and the Quartermaster Section worked for the greatest net reduction in the unweighted average of all applicable accident and injury rates at the end of the calendar quarter.

The 54th Medical Group earned its citation for an accident-free record from January to March, 1958. The Quartermaster Section won its certificate for an accident-free record in all categories of accident experience for the same period.

TIS Briefs Laos Co's

The chief of staff of the Laos National Army, Brig. Gen. Ouane Rattikoum, visited Fort Benning for a two-day study of Infantry School training procedures.

In the allied dignitary's party were five other top Army officers from Laos, Brig. Gen. Sing Rattanasamay, commander of the Third Military Region; Lt. Col. Silic Pathammavong, chief signal officer; Major Phay Missiphon, Army G-3; Major Hongkeo Sadtan, assistant chief of the Quartermaster Department; and Major Tham Savasithsena, chief of ordnance.

The visitors conferred with Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., Infantry School commander, June 8, and were honored at an official dinner in the Main Officers' Mess.

They observed Infantry School classes receiving instruction in the weapons and assault gun platoon in attack, battle indoctrination, marksmanship training, Ranger activities, maintenance and inspection of communications equipment and familiarization with Army aircraft and cargo planes.

Gen. Ouane's group left the post at 4:45 p.m. June 10.

Capt. Albert R. Guertin of the 57th Engineer Battalion, and 1st Lt. Armand Arabian, commander of the School Brigade's Fourth Company, were the project officers.

HERE COMES GOOCH WITH HIS NEW GIRL!

—UHP—WHERE'D GOOCH GET THAT, IN A RAFFLE?

HE TOLD ME THIS IS THE REAL THING—HE'S NUTS ABOUT HER!

??.. AND HE'S THE GUY WHO'S ALWAYS BRAGGING ABOUT HIS 20-20 VISION?

THAT'S A REAL LOVE MATCH!

HER FATHER MAKES FIFTY THOUSAND A YEAR!

HER FATHER MAKES FIFTY THOUSAND A YEAR—AND YOU'RE TRYING TO TELL ME THAT'S A LOVE MATCH?

BE REASONABLE, ALVIN! ALL I SAID IS 'GOOCH LOVES MONEY!'

GEE, CORPORAL, I'M BEAT, I CAN'T SLEEP AT NIGHT.

DON'T WORRY, JOE, I'VE GOT A CURE FOR INSOMNIA.

WHEN THE LIGHTS GO OUT, TRY TO THINK OF ALL THE GOOD DEEDS YOU'VE DONE IN YOUR LIFE. BUT HOW'LL THAT PUT ME TO SLEEP?

IT'LL BE SO DIFFICULT, YOU'LL DROP OFF FROM EXHAUSTION!

BARNAKLE BARNEY

HOW ABOUT IT, BARNAKLES? WANNA GO UP WITH ME?

NOT IN THAT OLD CRATE! YOU DON'T EVEN HAVE A COMPASS!

I DON'T NEED ANY! I CAN BELIEVE I CAN FLY BY DEAD RECKONING!

I CAN BELIEVE THAT...

...IF YOU DON'T RECKON RIGHT, YOU'RE DEAD!

Dogface Shedy* was hounded by messy hair till he discovered Wildroot Cream-Oil!

Every Saturday it was the same story. The inspecting officer barked at J. Paul Shedy, you got a bird's nest under that helmet! "No sir," whimpered Shedy, "it's my hair, sir." Then one day his paw went him a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now his hair always looks neat and well-groomed, without a trace of grease. So if people are nosing about your hair, take a tip from J. Paul Shedy. Make tracks for the PX and get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Guaranteed to make your hair look terrific-like!

Get Wildroot Cream-Oil, Charlie... and feel good about your hair!

America's FIGHTING HEROES

The story of Lt. Arnold L. Bjorklund

ON SEPTEMBER 12, 1943, NEAR ALTAVILLA, ITALY, LT. ARNOLD L. BJORKLUND LED HIS PLATOON AGAINST A GERMAN POSITION ON HILL 424 ONLY TO BE RIPPED DOWN BY A HEAVY BARRAGE OF NAZI MACHINE-GUN AND RIFLE FIRE...

BJORKLUND'S PLATOON WAS THEN ABLE TO ADVANCE 150 YARDS TO THE TOP OF THE SLOPE-- BUT ONCE AGAIN THEY WERE STOPPED... THIS TIME BY ENEMY FIRE FROM A HEAVY MORTAR ON THE REVERSE SIDE OF THE SLOPE.

LOCATING THE MORTAR, THE LIEUTENANT, WITH PRACTICALLY NO COVER, WORKED HIS WAY TO WITHIN 10 YARDS OF IT. THEN HE THREW HIS THIRD AND LAST GRENADE.

WITH PERFECT AIM, BJORKLUND DESTROYED THE MORTAR, KILLED TWO GERMANS AND FRIGHTENED THE REMAINING THREE INTO FLEEING, ALLOWING HIS PLATOON TO TAKE ITS OBJECTIVE.

FOR CONSPICUOUS GALLANTRY AND INTREPIDITY AT THE RISK OF LIFE ABOVE AND BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY, LT. ARNOLD L. BJORKLUND WAS AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR!

View Advancement 81 Attending Post Infantry Confab

Eighty-one Infantry officers from service schools and Army headquarters throughout the nation are participating in the 1958 Infantry Constructors' Conference at Fort Benning June 23 through 27. The session provides a comprehensive view of technological advancement and organizational changes affecting the Infantry, in addition to acquainting the conferees with new weapons and equipment. Representatives from all service schools at all Infantry instructors are assigned to attend the meeting.

The "Trainfire" concept of rifle marksmanship instruction was demonstrated for the visitors on English, Simpson and Hook Ranges 25. Today the group will deal with weapons and instructor training. A reception was given for the conferees that evening in Bldg. 2755-B of the School Brigade area. The next day, the conferees attended an intelligence seminar and presentations on Infantry Board activities, effectiveness of Infantry weapons fires and air mobility. The "Trainfire" concept of rifle marksmanship instruction was demonstrated for the visitors on English, Simpson and Hook Ranges 25. Today the group will deal with weapons and instructor training.

Gen. Ruggles Addresses Opening Of 1958 ROTC Summer Camp

Ruggles and members of the 1958 Reserve Officers Training Corps Summer Camp were highlighted by an exchange of color and an address by Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, Infantry Center deputy commanding general. A plaque citing Reserve officer class A as the outstanding class for the 1957-58 school year was presented to the cadet ROTC Color Guard for 1958.

YAC Sets 'Fun and Fund' Project at Post July 4-5

The areas of Gowdy Field, Doughboy Stadium, Chapel Field and Ingersoll Street between Wood and Vibbert Avenues will serve as the setting for Fort Benning's Youth Activities Carnival July 4 and 5. A "fun and fund" project, the second annual Youth Activities Carnival featuring the Parade of Champions is planned as a post-wide community entertainment activity. The two-day event will serve a three-fold purpose. While providing post personnel with a combined Fourth of July program, it will promote competitive military spirit and raise funds for the Youth Activities Club program at Fort Benning. The featured Parade of Champions provides competitive fields for both military and non-military participation. Champions of events in these two categories will receive special recognition and awards for their exceptional military

Fresh From Civilian Life 29 Sentry Dogs Arrive Here for Basic Training

An Army sentry dog training program encompassing 29 dogs will be conducted this summer at Fort Benning. The new dogs began arriving this week. This will mark the first progress training of sentry dogs at Fort Benning, which is now the Army's sole source for the United States Army's sentry dogs. The 28th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, attached to the First end of last year's encampment, escorted to the field by the cadre and presented to the cadet ROTC Color Guard for 1958. Cadet regimental commander Kenneth L. Shepard of Stearns University received the cadet colors from the deputy ROTC camp commander, Col. Carl H. Hill, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Georgia. Cadet Shepard handed them to Color Guard whose members were Marion Mann of Atlanta, Ga.; Jesse Dumas of Forsyth, Ga.; James Boyd of Dahlonega, Ga.; Edward O. Johnson of Atlanta, Ga.; and Joseph J. Breedlove of Arlington, Va. The color group was composed of both sentry and scout dogs. Please see ROTC, Page 2.

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., Infantry School commander, will conclude the conference with a talk at 4:35 p.m. Lt. Col. Arthur L. Dean Jr. and Capt. James H. Hobson, both of The Infantry School's Office of the Director of Instruction, are in charge of arrangements for the affair. Major post conferees will include Major John W. Carley, U.S. Please see Confab, Page 2.

USAFI to Hike Cost of Course Beginning July
USAFI courses will cost Fort Benning personnel an extra $3 per course July 1. At beginning of new fiscal year, cost of USAFI courses will be increased from $2 a course to $5. Officials say average cost to Department of Defense of each 15-day course is $7. The new cost brings course fees more in line with actual cost of training point out. Information on USAFI course may be obtained from Education Services Center, Fort Benning, Building 2512, telephone 3-6211.

Dogs

German Shepherds averaging about one year old, will be fresh out of civilian life. The Army Quartermaster Office in Washington, D. C., has procured the canines from all over the country. The dogs are purchased on a conditional basis. They undergo a two-week testing and screening period before being purchased outright. The government pays between $100 and $150 for the dogs. Fort Benning has served as the Army dog training center since the canine establishment at Fort Carson, Colo., was eliminated last summer. Prior to the stepped up sentry dog replacement program, the 26th scout dog unit had been called on to train only five sentry dogs during the past year. Training begins in August. Actual training of the new arrivals is slated to get underway in August, giving the dogs a month to become acclimated to the environment. The Air Defense Corps will receive 16 weeks training and the Korean replacements will get 20 weeks. Training will be conducted at Bolling Base and Area Dog No. 1 in Washington, D. C., this summer, the dog platoon operates on an early morning schedule; the minimum exposure of the dogs to the heat. The 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon currently has 29 of its own dogs. One of these is a retired war hero in a retired status. Training of scout and sentry dogs is a secondary task for the platoon. Its primary mission is support of Infantry School programs.

One of the final highlights will be the trophy presentations to the winning participants of all events at a formal parade the evening of July 5. As a fund project, money raised by the carnival will go for Benning's Youth Activities Club which sponsors all the youth programs on the post. It will serve primarily as an aid to the fast-growing scouting activities. Wholesome activities for a vital growing stage of the children. As a community entertainment affair the Youth Activities carnival area will be filled with booths, concessions, games and events of all kinds found at a typical county fair. Fireworks, prizes, daytime and nighttime fun will be available for all persons of every age. A giant fireworks display will be a spectacular finale.

Lt. Saw War Uncertainties At First Hand

When class instructors at The Infantry School stress the uncertainties and inconveniences of wartime, and Lt. Lucien Zarnowski knows first-hand what they mean. Lt. Zarnowski, now taking the Basic Infantry Officers Course in the 24th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, was born in Paris, France, and lived in various parts of the country until 1949. His family left Paris and their home before Hitler's invading troops entered the city in the early stages of World War II, and settled in several different locations in France before they came to the United States in 1949.

Although he was too young to remember many of the details of his early years in France, Lt. Zarnowski recalls that his family traveled to a small town in the Pyrenees Mountains in Southwestern France after leaving Paris. They remained there for a year and then settled in the city of Nice. During that time, the native Frenchman was separated from his family for a year in the Loire Valley in the central part of the country. Although he did not spend any length of time in the sections of the country where combat was raging on the farm. From a field near the farm, he watched an element of the French underground forces as they surprised a German column. The underground troops planned down the convoy, and then contacted several planes from the British Royal Air Force, who came to their aid and demolished the convoy. Lt. Incidents Dip For Soldiers In Europe

HEIDELBERG, Germany—(AP)—Behavior trends of enlisted personnel within the U.S. Army, Europe, have recently shown significant improvement according to the commander, Gen. Henry I. Hodcs. General and special courts-martial on a steady decline during 1957, took a sharper downward trend the last two months of the year. Incidents rates, plunging about 10 per cent below those for the same months in 1956, were recorded during December as the lowest in the history of the command. The December rate per thousand for civil incidents was 2.9; for military incidents, 6.1; for crimes of violence, 0.35. Greatest improvement occurred in the last three months of 1957, immediately following the shipment of about 8,000 personnel to the U.S. during October and November for discharge under the job performance potential program. While the primary aim of this program continues to be lacking in ability to adapt themselves to the needs of a more modern Army, it is recognized that within the group being separated is a sizeable segment of "incidence-prone" individuals who, if retained, could be expected to receive about 80 per cent of the administrative discharges issued by the Army, and to account for more than 50 per cent of persons in confinement. The program is not a substitute for disciplinary action. Nevertheless, by the separation of "incidence-prone" before they become disciplinary problems, the necessity for later courts-martial and other punitive actions is materially reduced and the overall level of efficiency and behavior is proportionately enhanced.

Parts Sent to Bang Instead of BANG

NEW YORK (AP)—Parts for jets assigned to the Brooklyn Air National Guard (BRANG) at Floyd Bennett Field had been mysteriously delayed en route until recently. The delay was cleared up when the airman received some tardy parts and a note from a submarine crew reading: "Thanks, chaps, but we can't use these." The crew also visited the Brooklyn guardmen to give them a submarine crew reading: "Thanks, chaps, but we can't use these."

Five officers from the National War College at Fort Monmouth, Washington, D. C., visited Fort Benning for a week's observation of Infantry School demonstrations last week. The visitors were Cols. James Skelton, Richard G. Clocchillo, Frederick G. Woyard, Robert W. Kane and Granville A. Sharpe. The party viewed presentations dealing with the Infantry tank team in attack, leaders reaction testing, role of the infantry, atomic artillery, physical training, weapons of the Infantry, reinforced rifle company in night defense, airborne and Ranger instruction, Army aviation and Pathfinder activities supporting fires and platoon tactics. They left the post June 21. Capt. Lawrence H. Bulawski, Infantry School Weapons Department instructor, was the project officer.

Safeguard Privileges

Your identification card is one of your most important documents. This card DD Form 2A (green), issued only to active duty service personnel, is not only your primary means of identification, but in a sense is like a personal pass key to your "safe deposit box" of fringe benefits.

A factor as important as the condition of the card itself is the information contained on it. Your picture should be clear and look like you to the person checking the identification. That is why the ID photos are taken with a full face view. Be sure your name and service number are correct and that the expiration date is current. Be sure to request a new one prior to the expiration date, if authorized. An out dated card will not be honored.

In the event of loss or mutilation of an ID card, it is important that our commanding officer be informed immediately, giving a complete report of the circumstances, in order that your privileges will not be curtailed or abused.

The privileges extended by the ID card are available for your use and the use of your dependents. Use them.

If you have any dependents anywhere who are entitled to these privilege cards as set forth in current regulations, see to it that they have the cards and understand their full value, also that they know how to safeguard them.

The dependent ID card (DD Form 1173) is also an all purpose card. All authorized privileges are listed on the card. It is sometimes called the medic-care card. Like yours, it contains identifying information and a photo of the holder. These cards are issued to dependents 10 years of age and older.

You may ask, "How do I obtain one of these dependent ID cards?" Application for your dependent's privilege card (DD Form 1173) should be prepared and submitted to your commanding officer or personnel officer using the application form (DD Form 1171). If your dependents are living in the vicinity of your station you will be advised of the proper office issuing authority and you will be informed of any further action required by you or your dependents.

If your dependents are not living in the vicinity of your station your commanding officer or personnel officer will verify the eligibility of your dependents and return the application (DD Form 1171) to you. You must then forward the DD Form 1171 to your principal dependent (wife normally) and instruct her to present the form in person, preferably, or by mail to the headquarters of the nearest uniformed services installation. Be sure and advise your principal dependent by whom the application is mailed, if by one-and-half-inch high) of each dependent for whom a card is requested. The face and shoulders should just about fill the photo. If they go in person arrangements will be made by the installation headquarters to make photos free of charge.

After obtaining the cards it is a good idea to keep a personal record to facilitate a reissue in the event of loss or destruction. This record should include name, date and place of issue, expiration date and privileges authorized.

How long will my dependents and I be authorized these privileges? Your privileges stop on date of separation from the service, except under certain conditions. Cards issued to your dependents are valid until the expiration date shown on the card, however, should you be discharged, deceased, or relieved from active duty prior to that date, entitlement to the privileges cease on the date of such discharge, death or relief from active duty. In case you or your dependents (survivors if deceased) are eligible for privileges following the change in your status, a new card must be obtained to show the correct basis for the continued privileges under the new status. Valid cards in the hands of you or your dependents at the time of your discharge, release, or relief from active duty must be turned in at that point, mailed to The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., as soon as possible following separation.

Forget the Fifth!

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (J. C. COL.) ALBERT L. SMITH

The phrase, "Turn Back the Clock" expresses one of man's deepest desires. Even before man had an actual clock, man yearned the power to control the advance of time. In Greek mythology, there is a story of the god who permitted a glimpse of time to the people of time. In America, one can read in the past that there are many more heroes and more vital leaders in our history than occupy the scene today. In fact, we cannot turn back the page of time.

In the family life probably the greatest loss is felt when storm-buffed couples lose those first days of wedded bliss, the wonder and joy of the honeymoon, but we just cannot somehow make last year to come round again.

In our moral lives, we know we were better than we are. We do some things today with pride that would have a weep in the eyes of the men of the past. We would like another chance so that we could be better, but the machine is put into operation and time is reversed so that they and we arrive before the heroine is killed. "Turn Back the Clock." This yearning characteristic of every human is a life experience.

In childhood, we desire only to read all of the time, we dread the advance of darkness, we shall have to stop. In adolescence comes the moving excitement of first love. Life is so sweet we long to have it never change and time stand still. In fact, each morning when it comes time to arise from our beds, how few of us can resist that trait of thought and urge to "turn back the clock" and take that extra minute.

As a summer, let us all here resolve to turn back the clock of our lives. Let us go back to the good life, the good life of the Army, the good life of the better men and women we once were.

International Roundup Russian Mob Batters W. German Embassy

MOSCOW—An angry crowd of 1,500 shouting Russians marched on the West German Embassy here June 23 and battered it for two hours with stones, clubs and ink "grenades." Soviet mounted police and riot police were called out to break up the mob when it threatened to get out of hand.

The outbreak began as a disciplinary demonstration in response to an attack on the Soviet Embassy in West Germany June 22 against the execution of Hungarian ex-Premier Imre Nagy. But it soon boiled over into a violence not observed here in many years. The attack led the front of the two-story building a wreck. The front windows were smashed and the facade splattered with ink. The interior was damaged by missiles hurled through windows but all 22 German diplomats in Budapest escaped injury.

A number of Russian demonstrators were manhandled in the near-riot and ambulances took some of them away to hospitals.

The crowd turned on foreign correspondents and attempted to smash their cameras. But the role of the pressmen was injured.

REBUI BOMBED

BEIRUT, Lebanon—A bombing killed five persons in Beirut June 22. The explosion revealed a calm that had prevailed in the revolt-shaken capital since U. N. peace-making efforts began.

The Judge Says...

Although many people have a basic understanding of the requirements for filing personal income tax returns, few individuals other than lawyers or accountants will claim any knowledge as to the filing of amended returns. An understanding of the principles governing this subject can be helpful or indeed necessary.

If, after filing your return for a given year, you find that an error has been made, you should file an amended return on Form 1040. Since Form 1040K is not to be used for this purpose, your tax as computed on the amended return is greater than on the original return, you must make payment for the difference, plus six per cent annual interest on the original return.

Amended returns should be filed in the same District Office with the original return. The filing is less than the original return, then ask for a refund by filing in the refund claim form 1040.

Some common events which necessitate the filing of amended income tax returns resulting in higher tax are failure to include all wages, particularly where several different jobs were held during the year; failure to report interest or dividend income, failure to report sale of residence or other home which was sold during the period allowed by law or claiming of dependents to whom you are not entitled.

Navy Takes Army's H-25

FORT RUCKER, Ala.—The Army and the Navy got together here recently and made a deal that's saving the taxpayers about $5 million.

Back in 1951 the Army began buying H-25 helicopters—"Mules"—at a cost of $175,000 each for troop and cargo transportation. As time went on the H-21, better suited for the Army's needs, was developed. By 1954 the "mules" were headed for the corral except for training purposes.

The Navy liked the "chopper" tough, because its compactness makes it useful aboard aircraft carriers. So all last month Navy crews arrived at the Army Aviation Center here to pick up 24 of the helicopters an ferry the into the Norfolk, Va. Naval Air Station.

Reconditioned and redesigned the Navy HUP-4, they will be used for rescue missions.

Open House will be held in the afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Service Clubs in the Second Division area. At Sand Hill, Miss Madline Parks and Miss Willis Crawford will supervise the activities at Service Club No. 2. Miss Desea Smith and Miss Elizabeth Shanks will carry on in like manner at Service Club No. 3 at Harmony Church.

The two-hour informal get-acquainted period will include entertainment by the Mello-Tones, popular instrumental group from Tuskegee VA Hospital at Service Club No. 2 and a variety show at Service Club No. 3. Refreshments will be served during the two hours with the help of junior hostesses from Columbus.

Second Division Day will continue after sundown when buses, originating at Service Clubs

No. 2 and 3, will transport men to Columbus to the U.S.O.-YMCA, USO - NCCS, and the Armed Services YMCA.

Scheduled at the Fifth Avenue USO is an Open House Dance from 9 to 11 p.m. with dancing and refreshments.

The USO - NCCS plans a Coney Island Night complete with boardwalk, sidewalk girls in calypso costumes, and all the trimmings except, of course, the beach. There will be dancing from 8:30 to 11 p.m.

The Armed Services YMCA will feature an orchestra dance with a special floorshow at intermission presented by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Morris, professional dance team in Columbus. Dancing at the Y will begin at 8:30 and end at 11.

The junior hostess groups of each of these organizations are planning and carrying out these social events specifically for the Second Division as well as all other newcomers to Fort Benning.

Merchants in Columbus are lending support to the program with contributions of refreshments and door prizes. Girls in the city who are not regular members of the junior hostess

1st GIs Jump From C-130

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—The Airborne School of the 101st Airborne Division stepped into the 1st age record by as a class of students made qualifying jumps from the Air Force's new C-130 turboprop troop transport.

In entering their paratroop leech on the first strategic cargo aircraft designed with the paratrooper in mind, the four officers and 17 enlisted men were jumping from a plane which is capable of carrying 92 soldiers or 64 fully equipped paratroopers non-stop across the Atlantic.

The four-engine C-130, called Hercules, cruises at more than 300 mph and has successfully paraded a single platform supporting a 29,000-pound load.

Previously the Airborne School has used the C-119 Flying Boxcar as C-119 Provider in training its 7,000 graduates, who have made more than 55,000 jumps without a fatality.

M-Sgt. Willis Cited For Long Arm Role

M-Sgt. William E. Willis of Company A, Infantry School Detachment, has received his commendation ribbon with metal pendant, for meritorious service as project operations sergeant and control operations sergeant from Oct. 1, 1957, to March 25, 1958, for Project Long Arm.

During the project field tests were conducted to determine tactics and techniques for employment of higher performance observation aircraft support of infantry tactical operations.

A DAY TO REMEMBER... The family of the late 2nd Lt. Thomas W. Wigle was on hand to see Wigle Hall dedicated in his honor. At left, Mrs. Wigle, widow of the OCS graduate who was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously, stands with Major Jack Treadwell, Medal of Honor Winner, Right, Diane Wigle, the lieutenant's 15-year-old daughter, and A. Palmer Wigle, the lieutenant's father.

Wigle Family Views OCS Hall Dedication

Dedication ceremonies for the Infantry Officer Candidate School hall of fame were held June 21 at Fort Benning.

Special guests present for the dedication of Wigle Hall, the building which now houses the hall of fame, were the family and friends of 2nd Lt. Thomas W. Wigle, an OCS graduate who was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for his valor in battle during World War II in Italy. Attending were Mrs. Wigle, widow, a 15-year-old daughter, Diane, 15, and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. A. Palmer Wigle, all of Detroit, Mich.

OCs Values Ceremonies opened at 9 a.m. at the post's Main Theater. Major Jack Treadwell, commander of the School Brigade's Fifth Student Battalion, and a Medal of Honor winner gave the audience, through prepared scenes with OCS students and tactical officers, glimpses into the life of the officer candidate. In an orientation on the life of OCS, Major Treadwell provided an insight into the training and responsibilities of the officer candidate.

After the theater program, guests joined spectators at Stillwell Field to view an OCS review. The OCS troops were under the command of their fellow officer candidates, Congressional Speakers

Following the review, guests arrived in the Fifth Student Battalion area for refreshments and the dedication of Wigle Hall. Major Gen. Paul J. Freeman, commander of the Infantry School, introduced the dedication speaker, Charles E. Bennett, Democratic representative from Florida's Second Congressional District.

Mrs. Thomas W. Wigle cut the ribbon officially opening Wigle Hall and the Infantry OCS hall of fame. Catching the visitors eye upon entering the modernistic one-story building is a portrait of the lieutenant.

Col. Cole Was OC in 1942

Lt. Col. EARL F. COLE shown in 1942 in OCS uniform.

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of sketches of former officer candidates whose pictures will hang in Wigle Hall, recently designated Officer Candidate Hall of Fame.) Lt. Col. Earl F. Cole served as an assistant personnel officer and assistant adjutant at the Replacement Training Center, Camp Hood, Tex., immediately after graduating from the Infantry Officer Candidate School in 1942.

Some of his other assignments include duty as commanding officer, Headquarters Special Troops, Headquarters Commandant and as Assistant adjutant general while assigned to the First Infantry Division in Europe; side-de-camp to Major Gen. Dahlquist, then commanding V Corps, executive officer, Office of the Army Chief of Staff, G1, Department of the Army, chief, General Officer Branch, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, U. S. Army; adjutant general, The Infantry Center.

Lt. Col. Cole is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College. His decorations include the Army Commendation Ribbon and the Parachutist Badge.

Following the dedication of Wigle Hall, special guests were served luncheon in the 9th Student Company mess hall, and then toured the OCS area, and then toured the OCS area.

NG to Hold Unit Training For 1st Time

Headquarters Third Army Headquarters, Ga.—Department of Army has announced Army National Guard will conduct individual basic training for the last time at summer training exercises this year.

For the first time in the history of the Army National Guard, nearly all guardsmen will have completed basic training or its equivalent by Oct. 1.

The Third Army Reserve Command has announced that about 84 guardsmen will complete basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C., during the month of June. The projected figures for the rest of the summer show 688 completing basic at Fort Jackson in July, 586 in August, and 316 in September.

The guard will be able to conduct training by units as combat teams for the first time in its peacetime history once nearly all men have completed basic training.

Previously the training level of individual soldiers in guard units varied so much that unit combat training could not assume the rudiment of combat readiness.

The rapid climb in the Army National Guard's training level can be traced primarily to enlistment requirements. Since April, 1957, units have enlisted only men with prior military experience or individuals who agreed to take active duty training.

JUNGLE JILL... Blonde beauty Eve Brent has landed the role of Jane Tarzan's mate, in the Tarzan movies. She is the 19th Jane in the 40-year history of the series. Could Eve be the reason Rangers spend so much time in jungle training?

CWO Finds AEC Work Satisfying

FORT BRAGG, N.C.(ANF) In the atomic experiments at the Mechanical Electrical Eniwetok Atoll, McMaster is now with the post-war assignments. CWO Third Army Missile Command Alvin B. McMaster has found a mechanical assembly officer on the Honoluli retirement career; some organic field weapon which is prepared to give long-range atomic artillery support to post-atomic divisions.

He wants to work for the Atomic Energy Commission. Such a job should not be difficult to come by for McMaster, who, upon emergence from World War II as master sergeant, was quickly given a challenging post-war assignment to work with atomic weapons. This Manhattan Project assignment led to his participation in 1948 and 1952.

Assignments such as these with considerable authority and periodic promotions to the next-highest warrant officer rank have not come without a lot of hard study. Beginning with attendance

McMaster can and does say that "A conscientious man interested in learning and advancing himself has tremendous opportunities in the Army."

OPENING SATURDAY—Official opening of this new dining and dancing pavilion will take place this Saturday, June 29. The Pavilion is located in the Robin Lake Beach area in Ida Cason Callaway Gardens.

Opening Set For New Pavilion At Ida Cason Callaway Gardens

The recreational and side facilities of the Gardens include the world's largest man-made sand beach at Robin Lake, some of the South's finest game fishing, and all-season golf courses, picnic and hiking areas, a magnificent 50-unit motel and a CAA-approved dining with lounge and bar.

Robin Lake Beach, where the pavilion is located, is a natural beach bordered by tall pines and gleaming white sand. The lake is clear and cool, fed by mountain springs. In August, it will be the site of the National Water Ski Champions, ships of the American Water Ski Association, bringing guests from all over America to Georgia.

The beach entrance to the Gardens is on U. S. Highway 27, just 30 short minutes, driving North of Columbus. There are convenient parking areas for more than 2,000 cars as well as sparkling clean bathhouse and concession stand facilities.

Pfc Goes Out on Limb

FORT BRAGG, N. C. (ANF)—The 42nd Airborne Division here has in its ranks a private who is a qualified surgeon.

Pfc Michael G. Kinella left his job with the City of Rochester, N. Y., to join the Army at Ft. Benning. He is a tree surgeon and remembers more about trees than climbing dead ones.

During maneuvers last winter he recalled that the pitch of some trees is highly inflammable. "The carcasses of those birds were sure produced the heat when it was needed," he says.

Hot Weather Brings Many Health Hazards

The hot weather months of the year hold many hazards to the health of the uninitiated. Let us discuss two important health hazards and attempt to arrive at an understanding of their nature and how best to prevent them. There are sunburn and the various types of heat injury.

Now that schools are closed, thousands of children are home playing in the sunshine, swimming in pools, and taking part in summer camps, engaging in vigorous sports and games throughout the day. Most adults, bound throughout the week to their jobs, join their youngsters for a limited degree of exposure to the outdoors on the weekends. These are the times we are all subjected to the rays of the sun or periods of heat stress which may result in heat injury.

Health hazards people are exposed to. It consists in the burning of the tender, sensitive skin of the body. The amount of sunburn depends on the length of exposure, intensity of the sun's rays (ultra violet rays), and amount of natural protective pigment in the skin. Naturally, fair skinned people are most susceptible to sunburn, while dark skinned people are most resistant to sunburn. Little children tend to burn more rapidly than adults.

Sunburn is a preventable injury. The prevention of sunburn can be accomplished by the avoidance of direct and prolonged exposure to sunlight. In most people gradual increasing daily exposures habituate the skin and increase the tolerance to the rays of the sun. This will prevent painful, incapacitating days of suffering with preventable sunburn. Sun glasses, anti-sunburn oils and creams, light colored, well ventilated clothing, and a wide-brimmed hat will help to cut down the degree of exposure, but will not replace the need for gradual seasoning oneself to the sun's rays. The symptoms of sunburn will not show up immediately, but will usually appear from two to four hours after the exposure, so caution must be taken to prevent over exposure.

The symptoms of mild sunburn, consisting of redness of the skin, may be treated with gentle, cool showers. Do not apply soap to the sunburned skin. A bland baby powder or child baby lotion may be applied to the skin depending on the dryness of the skin. In cases where the redness is accompanied by a warm, itchy sensation, the above home treatment may be used.

In cases of sunburn where there is moderate to severe blister formations the individual should be seen by a physician. The associated sensations of warmth, burning, and occasional itching may be relieved by taking antihistamine tablets on the prescriptions of a physician.

Heat injury: In the summer time everyone is more or less subject to heat stress when exposed to the sun and engaged in increased physical activity. This may occur at the swimming pool, hiking in the woods, playing on the sports field, fishing, hunting, working on the lawn or in the garden, or engaged in some form of human activity requiring the expenditure of energy. This energy produces heat and it must be expended to maintain the body temperature within the normal limits. This is accomplished by a device in the body called the heat regulating mechanism, which allows the body to expend heat by many ways. One is by sweating, and this results in the loss of body water and salts which must be replaced or else the mild or moderate form of heat injury, heat exhaustion, and these are known as Heat Cramps and Heat Exhaustion.

The most serious form of heat injury is known as Heat Stroke and is not due to sweating or loss of salt, but to a defect in the body's heat regulating mechanism. When this defect occurs, the body gets rid of the produced heat and life is actually endangered. It is important that everyone know the signs and symptoms in order to be able to recognize sunstroke and take prompt steps to institute first aid measures which will limit and curtail the heat injury and preserve life.

Advanced indications of heat stroke are the diminution or cessation of sweating and frequency of vomiting. These symptoms can occur several hours in advance of an acute attack and definitely constitute a warning signal. The individual with these warning signs may or may not have weakness, headache, dizziness, nausea, increase in body temperature and pulse rate. Muscle cramps may or may not occur.

The onset of the acute attack of heat stroke is sudden and dramatic, with collapse and loss of consciousness. The victim will be deep and convulsions may occur. In the early stages of unconsciousness the skin is usually hot, red and dry. The body temperature is very high between 102 degree to 110 degree F. This type of heat injury calls for the institution of prompt, vigorous, heroic first aid measures, directed at lowering the patient's high temperature to save his life or prevent serious permanent injury. So, carry the patient to a cool shady spot, remove all clothing, massage the legs and arms to improve circulation, and allow the patient to drink all the water he can with the addition of water, quarter teaspoon of crushed salt tablets or table salt to a full container of water. This will relieve the symptoms, but the patient should be seen by a doctor as soon as is practical.

While engaged in arduous activities or sports individuals should pair off and utilize the "buddy system" in observing each other for early signs of heat injury.

Everyone must be able to recognize the early warning signs of heat injury and be able to initiate first aid measures.

100% Take Ed. Courses

CAMP HANFORD, W. Va. (ANP)—Join the Army and get an education appears to be the motto of the men of the 110th Engineer Detachment here. While they may have dozed Army Greaves for other reasons, every man in the unit is participating in at least one study course.

More than half are taking extension courses from the Army Eastern School at Fort Belvoir, Va. Another 16 per cent are enrolled in college level correspondence courses and 20 per cent are taking high school courses.

The remainder of the men are taking courses offered by mail from the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., or are attending Army's service schools. The high school and college level courses are made available to the men through the post's education center.

29TH'S SPUTNIK Makes All Formations

Pup Named Sputnik Gets Whirlwind Tour at 29th

A pup named Sputnik has had a whirlwind tour of the 29th during his six months of duty. He's made helicopterborne attacks, labored in the target pits, lived nearly two months with the Aggressors at the Ranger Mountain Training Camp, and worked out regularly with the Infantry School Troop Command team.

Fellowed Satellite—Sputnik, born shortly after the Russians put their first satellite into orbit in the mascot of Company B, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry. The six-month old German Shepherd belongs to 1st Lt. Wilbert Davis, weapons platoon leader. During a recent training test conducted by the 31st Transportation Company (Light Helicopter, H-34) and Company B, Sputnik landed with the rifle squad in a movement to set up a road block.

Checked Out (He checked out each chopper as they came in, running over to each and then reporting back to the field first sergeant), says Captain James J. DeFries, Company B commander. The lively pup, offspring of a Korean war dog, was only eight weeks old when he went with 29th troops to northern Georgia last January to support the Ranger mountain camp.

Near Zero For three weeks he lived with the men in wooden-floored tents in the near-zero temperatures. He made the 25-mile bus trip under the field jacket of M. Sgt. Dewey A. Crassey. In April, Sputnik returned to the mountains for a second three-week cycle with the company.

Sgt. Crassey says: "Sputnik loves field duty, but he especially enjoys working in the pits when the company supports range training. He barks and keeps the target area alert." Sputnik spent most afternoons last spring at Doonhey Stadium, working out with the Infantry School Troop Command track team. His master, Lt. Davis, is a coach on the team. Sputnik worked primarily with the runners, and is credited by Lt. Davis with a share of their improved speed. One day he stopped one of the runners, the lieutenant explained.

West Virginia Sputnik will leave the service with Lt. Davis in late August, when he goes to West Virginia State College together. Lt. Davis classifies Sputnik as "an It's with a two-month extension." The dog is billeted in a brand new dog house built by members of Company B.

First Sgt. William R. Posey, company first sergeant, said he always depends on Sputnik to make all formations and he never bothers you for a three-day pass.

Camera Used For Safety On Highway

PORT SAM HOUSTON, TEX. (ANF)—Photography is being put to use on this Army post as a means of increasing safety on highways. The Army of the future will be able to survive atomic hostilities with a self-protective armor. Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau has predicted that the Army of the future will wage nuclear war from tanks and space platforms. "There will be many changes in the Pentagon Army in the next decade," the Army's Chief of Research and Development recently told Penagon newsmen. "The Army can never be satisfied" with its equipment, he said. The prime objective always is to provide troops with better means to increase their ability to fight, such as lighter, faster vehicles, low-flying platforms, rockets and atomic weapons. The tank of today will not be the battlefield vehicle of 1970, Gen. Trudeau said. Although armor affords the best protection against nuclear blast and thermal effects, the tank of the future will be much lighter and capable of travel-

OC Worked In Boys Home In Baltimore

A former assistant director of McKim's Boys Haven, a home for incorrigible boys, and later a caseworker for the Baltimore City Department of Public Welfare in Maryland is now an officer, candidate at Fort Benning. He is OC Vernon R. Whitley Jr., 52nd Company, Fifth Student Battalion, The School Brigade. Whitley, a 1955 graduate of Wake Forest (N.C.) College, has always felt that a more varied program, particularly outside activities, would put a boy back on the right path. Fearing late practitioners of his studies as a college student, Whitley joined the McKim Boys Haven of Baltimore as an assistant director. He says of the boys he found at the home were boys who had "already been sentenced to the Maryland Training School but had been discharged after serving their sentence. Once again they had strayed from the path and had been sent to McKim's at their own request. "One boy I remember well and am proud of his record. He had been sent to the Maryland Training School after conviction of stealing automobile tires. He made a good adjustment and was released to our home where he attended one of the city high schools, assumed responsibility, and made good money during the summer months. Whitley said, "There were no bars on the windows and doors, but intense supervision was required for them all. This tire slasher is now working his way through college and will be a first-class citizen." Following his stint with McKim's Boys Haven, Whitley joined the Baltimore City Department of Public Welfare as a caseworker. He supervised young boys who had served time for various crimes and had been rehabilitated to some extent as they proved themselves adaptable to community living they required less and less supervision.

Airman Gets Immortality From Army

PORT SAM HOUSTON, TEX. (ANF)—Air Force Capt. Fred B. English has a name that a 20-year-old grandson of Army officials apparently likes the sound of. He's always appearing on Army orders. "His 'John Doe' career began when he was ten years old. His mother, Mrs. Ione Boothby, was a civilian worker then as she is now with the Fourth Army headquarters here. She began using her son's name on sample duty orders for summer camp training plans. For some years these samples were sent to ROTC schools in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico. Thus began the growth of a knotty ball of yarn not much more precise than Gull's. All Mrs. Boothby knows for sure is that recently she was examining a nation-wide plan drawn up last year by Headquarters, U.S. Continental Army Command, and in — there on a sample ROTC order was the name of Fred B. English, after 20 years well on his way to Army immortality.

2 of 29th Fire Perfect Scores with Machine Gun

Two non-commissioned officers of Company A, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, received perfect scores in a machine gun assistant instructors course at Fort Benning recently.

It was the first time in more than a year that anyone scored 100 percent in the test administered at the conclusion of the 15-hour course. The Machine Gun Committee of The Infantry School Weapons Department conducted the course.

Sgt. Billy J. Tippins and Sgt. Arthur L. Mchose posted the perfect scores.

The two-day course covers all aspects of mechanical training with the machine gun. It is conducted periodically for members of the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry and the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry.

Graduates of the course are qualified to serve as assistant instructors for Infantry School classes on the subject.

Sgt. Tippins and Sgt. Mchose were members of a class numbering about 100 students.

Air Force Cadets Feted At Formal Reception, Hop

A formal reception and hop at Fort Benning entertained the U.S. Air Force Academy Classes of 1959 and 1960 June 18.

In addition to the 451 cadets attending the affair in the Main Officers Mess, 300 young ladies from the post and surrounding civilian communities were present for the occasion.

Cadet managers William Zursen and Les Holcomb of the class of 1960 introduced the guests to the receiving lines.

In the first receiving line were Major Gen. Paul E. Freeman Jr., commanding general of The Infantry Center, Mrs. Freeman and Brig. Gen. Miller O. Perry, acting commander.

Air Force Promotes 2,000 to E-8 in Sept.

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The Air Force has announced plans to upgrade 2,000 master sergeants to the newly authorized pay grade E-8 on Sept. 1, agencies in Fiscal Year 1959. A total of 5,000 super-grade promotions.

The remainder of the E-8 advancements will be considered in the fiscal period ending next June 30 will be made on March 1. Initial pay grading to E-9, however, will not start until Dec. 1, 1959, and is the succeeding fiscal year.

In order to provide better control of top-grade manpower levels in the new enlisted structure, quarterly promotions to E-7 will be discontinued in favor of an annual cycle for the three ranks.

To phase in this 12-month cycle, E-7 stripes will be awarded on Sept. 1, 1958, and Mar. 1, 1959, to coincide with the 1958-59 promotion period. Thus, the annual cycle for grades E-7, E-8 and E-9 will begin on the following Dec. 1.

Master sergeants to be eligible for consideration for E-8 must:

- Possess a 7-level AFSC or skill.
- Have 10 years total active service and two years in grade E-7.
- For E-8, the service minimum will be 11 years and 12 months time in grade E-7.
- Achieve a satisfactory score on the USAF Supervisory Examination, PT 28, which must be completed by June 22 for FY '59 consideration.
- Have demonstrated leadership and supervisory ability and be informed by their immediate commanding officers.
- Successfully pass a promotion board evaluation and be recommended for advancement at wing or similar level.

All candidates meeting these requirements will be considered, but selections will be made through competitive comparisons with others in the same military specialty on a "best qualified" basis rather than against fixed standards.

As a matter of policy, super-grade promotions generally will be made to fill requirements where vacancies exist, the Air Force said.

Since the new military pay legislation, PL 85-42, authorized only two per cent of total enlisted strength in E-8 and one per cent in E-9 in any service, the existing ceiling for the Air Force is 14,000 E-8's and 7,000 E-9's.

The distribution of these grades, however, will depend upon the ratio of manpower in various skills and the funds available, personnel officials said.

Quotas by specialty for the first 2,000 E-8's will be issued to major commands about July 25 with a deadline of Aug. 31 for nominations to the Air Force.

Although no announcement has yet been made of the new titles and insignia for the top two grades, these are being "carefully considered at this time," the Air Force said, and are expected to be established prior to the Sept. 1 upgrading.

Co. D Takes Top Unit Trophy at 29th Infantry

A first place finish last week in group physical training gave Company D a 20-point margin over Company B at the concluding trophy contest of the 29th Infantry last week with first place finish in the final contest.

Company D will represent the 29th Infantry in the Infantry Center Parade of Champions competition July 4-5. It will seek to retain in the 29th the commanding general's trophy won last year by Company Maxwell, Troop 1.

Company B finished second in the group PT event. It needed the combination of a first place finish itself and a third place for Company D to take the trophy over the group.

Capt. Thomas F. Fell, commander of the winning company, said:

"Final scores of competing units were:

L-R: RICHARD DAVIS, BARRY MCCOY, TWO OF COUNTRIES TOP SCIENCE STUDENTS Found Airborne Training Interesting; Hope For Scientific Program When Their Time Comes Brigade Hosts 2 Visiting Former Teacher, Now Lt.

On June 12 the School of Artillery at Fort Benning hosted two of the country's most gifted high school science students. They were Richard Davis Jr. and Barry McCoy of Tucson, Arizona, who are now on their way to attend the National High School Institute's summer session at Northwestern University.

The two boys stopped by Fort Benning to see their old teacher and friend, Edward T. Kuhn, now 1st Lt. Kuhn, a student in Third Company's Associate Infantry Company Officer Course. Lt. Kuhn stated that these two boys were among the most outstanding students that he had ever worked with in high school. Both have been selected for the summer session along with students from every state in the country.

Closed Circuit
Barry McCoy, in addition to his brilliant work in mathematics and physics, has developed a closed circuit television circuit which promises to become one of the most advanced ever constructed by an "amateur." McCoy hopes to enter California Technical Institute after graduation in 1959.

Richard Davis Jr. is now working on a digital circuit computer which he hopes will perform all the mathematical calculations electronically in the line tradition of "Univac." Davis has already won several science prizes in the Arizona Science Fair and hopes to attend Cal. Tech, M.I.T., or University of California.

After a short guided tour of the post, the boys were taken to the Airborne Training Center where they were shown the various phases of the training program.

Benning Hosts Lt. Col. Tzur

Lt. Col. Amihai Tzur, quartermaster of the Central Command, Israel Defense Forces, was visiting Fort Benning to observe quartermaster and related activities.

He conferred with Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and was honored at an official luncheon June 24 in the Main Officers Mess.

Among Infantry School demonstrations to be viewed by the Altus officer are familiarization with cargo aircraft, aerial delivery and machine gun marksmanship. He will tour the Second Infantry Division's G-4 Section June 25 through 27. Col. Tzur will leave the post June 28.

Ft. Benning Visited By Belgian Officer

Major Gen. Frederick Paul de Selliers de Moranville, commanding general of the 16th Army Division of the Belgian Army, visited Fort Benning for a three-day visit last week.

Accompanying Gen. de Selliers was Col. Henri Fievez, director, operations and mobilization, headquarters of the Belgian Army. The Allied visitors were at Fort Benning for an orientation on The Infantry School and view special demonstrations.

AF 'Goes Navy' In Norfolk Tour

LITTLE CREEK, Va. (APPS) —The Navy pulled out to 400 Air Force Academy cadets at the Naval Amphibious Base here for six June days of naval warfare indoctrination at Norfolk bases and in Atlantic Fleet ships.

The cadets, members of the 1959 and 1960 classes, were the first to receive such instruction in the Academy's three-year history.

"No armed aggression has ever been initiated within the ranks of the guns of the United States Army," Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Their itinerary included demonstrations in cruisers, destroyers and submarines, and a one-day cruise aboard the carrier Ranger. They also saw patrol jet and anti-sub aircraft and visited nearby Oceana NAS. A highlight of the tour was witnessing a full-scale amphibious assault landing staged by seasoned Marine troops.

Lt. Joined With Delegates Of Farm Youth Exchange

One of the first delegates to the International Farm Youth Exchange Program to spend several months working with the people in the underdeveloped areas of Burma is now a student in The School Brigade's 20th Company. Visiting areas such as Rangon, Mandalay, The Shan State, and Meiktila, 2nd Lt. Philip O. Edwards, now a student of Basic Infantry Officers Course No. 15, Second Student Battalion, has had the opportunity to work directly with the people themselves and see first-hand their farm and economic problems.

The IFYE (International Farm Youth Exchange) program was begun in 1952 and was carried on with seven European countries. It has now spread to fifty countries in Latin America, Africa, Europe and the Middle East and Far East. Over 2,000 exchanges have been sent so far to live and work with farm families in other areas for four or five months each year. It is hoped that the program lays the foundation for a better understanding of all ways of life of people throughout the world by dealing with specific problems and attitudes of rural areas in every section of the world.

Edwards' first stop after arriving in Burma was a stay at Pyinmana where he lived and worked with the students of the State Agricultural Institute. "Our main objective was an exchange on a man to man level. We did not have a chance to live with a Burmese family (due to the fact that the program was so new in Burma that arrangements hadn't yet been made) but I did feel that on a cultural level we made some significant progress to ward mutual understanding of our two ways of life," Edwards said.

From Pyinmana, Lt. Edwards moved to the College of Mandalay where he studied the agricultural problems in the outlying districts and in small underdeveloped villages of the area. From here he moved to the Shan State in N. E. Burma and finally he worked for a period in the South Central dry area near Meiktila in the Cotton Belt. Throughout his stay he found the farmers and students very cooperative and ready to discuss their problems and plans for the future.

"The Burmese seem to be faced with several problems," he said. "Naturally the country is not highly mechanized so farm prices are so depressed that when a primarily agricultural country like Burma tries to sell their crops, there is no market for the goods. The Burmese government, which already has a food surplus, must buy even more to keep the farmers from starving. This contributes substantially to the most pressing problem is the lack of profitable markets for the crops that the Burmese do raise.

Edwards explained that the Chinese Communists, hoping to cause a political upheaval within Burma, were chiefly responsible for the situation. "The Chinese Communists and Communist food Burma's use their practice of ruining the agricultural markets with surplus food. The area.

Tutor Finds Army Brats No Different

FORT CARSON, Colo. (ANP) — "People feel that Army children should be different. We haven't found that the case," says John Holcomb, principal of Fort Carson Junior High School.

"True, they are unusually well traveled, with 74 per cent having visited or lived in any one of several of 23 foreign countries, and they have the drawback of frequent adjustment to new schools, teachers and classmates.

"But the main struggle," says Principal Holcomb, "is catching up on lost work. It is not uncommon for a student to be out of school for 60 days in moving from overseas. It's a problem to parents, teachers and students."

Otherwise, like teenagers everywhere, they are apt to feel their parents are hopelessly out-of-date, are more concerned with being popular than with grades, and would rather watch TV or go on a date than do their homework.

"Army discipline doesn't affect the children too much one way or another," Holcomb observed, but notes no gangdom and a total lack of racial discrimination.

Holcomb finds Army parents taking at least as much interest in school affairs as civilian mothers and fathers. In a recent series of parents' nights at the school, 77 per cent of the families were represented and these were school, not PTA events.

"We think these Army brats are a nice bunch of kids and we certainly enjoy working with them," says Holcomb, speaking for all the teachers who, as he points out, would find it more convenient to teach in their own cities and towns in the area than to commute to the post. But they like the good facilities, the modern school building, and parent cooperation.

Priest Aided By Military Duo, Actress

SEOUL, Korea (ANP) — A priest here, worried about his ailing father in Belgium, received comfort through the combined aid of a soldier, a Marine, and a Hollywood actress.

Father Meeus, who serves as Catholic priest for soldiers of the U. S. Army Advisory Group detachment and other units in the Taegsa area, received a letter telling him of his father's serious illness. It was suggested to him that perhaps he could get a later report through MARS (Military Attitude Radio System).

Sgt Pat P. De Sarno, chief MARS operator, was more than willing, but was unable to reach Belgium direct. Perhaps Father "Charlie" knew someone in the U. S. who could help the message relayed.

"Loretta Young is a friend of mine," answered the priest. A U. S. Marine operator of a MARS station at Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif., contacted the actress. She immediately telephoned Father Meeus' brother in Belgium.

The message, as well as can be expected for his age, reply was relayed to Taegsa by Miss Young herself, with MARS operators in the entire Far East network listening in. From 12:15 to 1:15, an hour had elapsed.

16 Years at Benning

Brigade to Celebrate Unit Day on June 28

The School Brigade will celebrate its 16th anniversary on June 28 with a morning competition and an afternoon of games, barbecued chicken and refreshments at the Infantry School Recreation Area. Brigade officers, enlisted men and civilians and their dependents are invited.

Official party expected at Doughboy Stadium will include the Fort Benning general, Major Gen. Paul H. Freeman Jr., commanding officer of School Brigade, Col. A. L. Hobeck, deputy commander of School Brigade, Col. Richard W. Mabee, and Brigade Chaplain Francis X. Wallace.

The Infantry Center Band, The Infantry Honor Guard, and six brass from Lawson Army Air Command will pass in review.

After a Unit Day address by Gen. Freeman, competitive field events will begin. Pistol, trap, of war, the 100, 200, 400, and 800-yard runs, broad jump, and hand grenade throw are among the events scheduled between 9 and 11:30 a.m. Teams that are entered in the competition include Hq. and Co. Company, First, Second, Fourth and Fifth Student Battalions, and The Infantry School Detachment.

Barbecue and refreshments will kick off afternoon entertainment for the members of the Brigade and their families. A demonstration by a scout dog team, a jazz class, a band concert and a dance will be on hand for the enjoyment of all.

Fitness Built By Hiking Korean Hills

SEOUL, Korea (ANF)— They don't do it for the panoramic view of Seoul (which is nevertheless appreciated) because it is part of a continuous physical conditioning program. Leading proponent of the program is Major Gen. Wilbur S. Matthews, a long-time Infantry officer who is now KMAC chief.

All KMAC detachments, scattered from the demilitarized zone on the north to the port city of Pusan in the south, here is equipped with such items for off-duty work-outs as weights, punching bags and a stationary bicycle.

Although General Matthews emphasizes mountain walking and use of the gym in his own program, others participate in team or individual sports. One of the points the KMAC chief makes in his enthusiastic polemic for the physical fitness program is its mental conditioning value. There are not many distractions for off-duty time in Korea and soldiers sometimes "sit around feeling sorry for themselves," he says.

826th Tank Reorganizes Today, Gets New CO; Trainees Graduate

Comrades at Tanker's Field today mark three significant developments in the 826th Tank Battalion—officially the Regular Army's 826th Tank Battalion—Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 826th Armor, Lt. Col. Ernest W. Ernst was welcomed as the new commanding officer, and nearly 300 trainees graduated their graduation ceremony. The 826th Tank Battalion was activated at the close of World War II. In 1951, it was again activated as the Regular Army's 826th Tank Battalion. In 1954, it was redesignated the 826th Tank Battalion. This 66th Armor has an illustrious battle tradition. It became part of the Second Army

292 Tankers of 826th to Gyro To Germany to Join NATO July 1

Some 292 tankers, having completed basic armor training with the 826th Tank Battalion will leave July 1 to join the Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 826th Armor, Schweinfurt, Germany.

Personnel will, in the first place, be transferred by train to Charleston, S. C., the port of embarkation. They will then be transported by ship to Bremerhaven at the Sunny Point Army Terminal in Charleston.

Training Cycle
The 292, together with the 61 tankers previously selected for specialized schooling, arrived at the 826th in mid-February and began the training cycle on the 22nd of that month. For the succeeding eight weeks, the trainees, most of whom completed their basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., and at Fort Jackson, S. C., by conference class, demonstrated and practical exercise received instruction in the operation and maintenance of the M-48 medium tank.

Those chosen for separate schooling at Fort Knox, Ky., Fort Gordon, Ga., Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., and at Fort Jackson, began their training to their new assignments after the initial eight-week training period. Such specialist personnel will be forwarded immediately to the Third as soon as their schooling is completed.

The remaining trainees continued tank familiarization, with special emphasis upon the "gyroscopes" of the 826th, a combat-ready organization maintained in fulfillment of this country's North Atlantic Treaty Organization obligations, the Third, utilizing personnel trained by the 826th, remains in an optimum defense posture, while the 826th, at the same time, is permitted to fill the mission of supporting the Infantry School.

Combat-Ready
The Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), formerly the 716th Tank Battalion, is, under the "gyroscopes" program of troop training and rotation, the extra-continental counterpart of the 826th, a combat-ready organization maintained in fulfillment of this country's North Atlantic Treaty Organization obligations, the Third, utilizing personnel trained by the 826th, remains in an optimum defense posture, while the 826th, at the same time, is permitted to fill the mission of supporting the Infantry School.

activated in 1940. The 66th first fought in French Morocco and then in Italy. In 1941, it arrived in England for extensive training prior to the invasion of Europe. It landed in 1944 on Omaha Beach and drove back Sixth Parachute Regiment and the 7th S. C. Paratrooper Battalion of the German Army. It participated in the St. Lo breakthrough, and struck rapidly through Belgium and Holland into Germany. It breached the Siegfried Line in October and reached the Rhur shortly afterwards, engaging German armor in what the German radio described as the "largest tank battle on the Western front."

During the German "bulge" offensive, the 66th destroyed the Second Panzer Division. Pushing back into Germany, it captured the Elbe at Magdeburg in April, 1945, after a 57-mile dash in less than 12 hours.

The Second Armored Division in World War II took 94,000 prisoners, captured 1,700 planes, fired more than 37,000 rounds of ammunition and destroyed or captured an uncounted number of tanks.

Came From MAAG
The new commanding officer, Lt. Col. Ernest was formerly assigned to G-2, Army section, with the Military Assistance

Advisory Group on Taiwan. Col. Ernest holds the Bronze Star Medal (Meritorious). He earned the Army Commendation Ribbon and was awarded the European-Africa-Middle Eastern campaign medal with three battle stars while serving with the 12th Armored Division during World War II. A native of Louisville, Ky., Col. Ernst attended Western Kentucky State College.

Col. Ernst will assume Lt. Col. Murch will succeed staff and faculty duties with the Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Major William H. Latimer has assumed the duties of the executive officer with the Second Medium Tank Battalion, Formerly 83d, with the 6th Armored, Major Latimer attended Mississippi State College. In Korea, he served with the 826th Field Artillery Battalion, and in the European Theater during World War II with the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion.

For 300 new tankers who have completed armor basic instruction in Hahnemann Church, today's ceremony marked the climax of another phase of their duty with the Army. Leaving for Germany July 2 from the Sunny Point Army Terminal, Charleston, S. C., they will become part of America's first line of defense.

Post Schools Hold '58 Honors Program

James R. Boatman received basketball championship to the Fort Benning Children's Schools activities award for 1957 at the annual honors program in Faith School last week.

The son of Col. and Mrs. Atford C. Boatman, James was active in numerous school activities and sports including service as an officer of his class and reporter of the "Bugle," school newspaper, and was honor graduate of the 111-member eighth grade. He was given an engraved fountain pen.

Carmen Casiano, Faith School fifth grader, and Waverly Burnley, Faith School sixth grader, were awarded gold field meet trophies. Students in fourth through eighth grade participated in 10 field events working within their own age level. Carmen is the daughter of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Domingo Casiano and Waverly is the son of Sfc and Mrs. Fred M. Burnley.

Sports Trophies
Major Thomas P. Gannon, school officer, presented engraved plaques for the girls' basketball championship to Miss Jamie Roberson's eighth grade and girls volleyball and softball championships to Mrs. Ardath Carmichael's eighth grade. Boys basketball, volleyball and softball awards went to Edward Black's eighth grade.

Mrs. Virginia Steel's class garnered the fourth grade Kick-ball blue ribbon and Nancy Martin's sixth grade placed first in the fifth-sixth grade Kickball competition.

Faith School Safety Patrol
Capt. William Hancock, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. A. Hancock, accepted certificates for the organization's 39 members.

Glenn Loney, captain of Custard Terrace School's 11-man Safety Patrol, received certificates for his group. He is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Ralph Loney.

His brother Ralph headed the Custard Terrace Patrol last year. Student Officers Incorporated Student Council leaders Wayne Oestreich, Faith council president and son of Major Sixteen band awards were presented to co-captains Esther Barr, daughter of Captain (Capt.) and Mrs. Lincoln H. Barr, and Tommy Sullivan, son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. W. T. Sullivan Jr.

The "Bugle" staff was recognized. Howard W. Greer Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Greer, edited the paper.

AMU Sweeps Tryouts At Post

Army marksmen collected all but two slots on the International rifle and International rapid fire pistol teams selected at Fort Benning June 20.

Range Best Fired
Competition also was held last week for the running deer team which will enter the World Championships as U.S. representatives.

Two AMU riders and two civilians earned places on the running deer team. They are 1st Lt. Joe A. Decker, 2nd Lt. Richard D. Wentworth, James F. Davis, Falls Church, Va., and Harry A. Lucker, El Paso, Tex.

Five Four Days
Selections came as a result of a torrid four-day session of final tryouts on the 50-meter and rapid fire ranges for the U.S. Rifle and Pistol Team. Announced by Col. (ret.) Perry D. Swindler, team captain, to be members of the 50-meter team were the Army's 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, 1st Lt. Verne Wright, 1st Lt. John Herr, 1st Lt. James S. Carter, 2nd Lt. James A. Elberwine, and civilian rifleman Gordon P. Faras of Pebble Beach, Calif.

Marine Leads
Marine Corps Capt. William M. McMillan was the leading selection for the rapid fire pistol team followed closely by the Army's M-Sgt. Huckle L. Benaer, 1st Lt. David Miller and Sgt. Aubrey won third and fourth place spots on the four-man team.

The deciding scores, shot on June 20, saw the leading contenders on both the rifle and the pistol ranges during the first time through the tryouts.

1st Lt. Wright turned in a score of 1149 points on the 50-meter range to top the 1147 first by 1st Lt. Puckel, to run up a four-day aggregate of 4651 behind Puckel's enormous 4627 out of a possible 4600 points.

By 5-4 Score 14th Nips ICTC, Ends Win Streak

The eight game winning streak of the Infantry Center Troop Command baseball team came to an end June 18 at Gowdy Field when the 14th Infantry beat them by a score of 5-4.

Pitcher John Barnard went all the way for the 14th. He got into a few jams during the game but managed to get out of them. An errorless defense and some timely hits by his team mates saved the day. A Garguilo, Troop Command pitcher, was the loser.

The 14th got six hits, but four errors by the Troop Command opened the gates for four of the 14th's five runs. The fifth run, however, was the result of a tremendous triple by Jack Bryant, second baseman of the winners.

Bryant, Clerk for Battery A, 1st Cavalry, came up on eighth inning with a runner on first and pounded a line drive into the deepest part of left-center field. In addition to his triple, Bryant got a bunt single.

Jim Stewart, Troop Command catcher, got his team a three-run lead in the fourth inning when he belted his second home run of the year. With two on base he caught into the smaller tryouts and had two men on with two out. Ron Hodge hit a ball into right centerfield which looked like it would fall for extra bases.

However, Joe Hicks, the 14th centerfielder caught the ball over his shoulder for the final out of the game and the end of the seasons longest winning streak.

Droll to Lead 34-Round Card in Columbus
Fort Benning's balling sergeant Bennie Droll will head-line a 34-round boxing card scheduled for July 1 at the Columbus Auditorium.

Columbus boxing promoter Ted Lyons announces that a "Triple Eight", three eight-round bouts will hold the spotlight. Tuesday will feature Bennie Droll featured in the main go against Roger Bono, a former All-Army champ, Jones was formerly boxing coach at Fort Benning. He is a member of the Olympic Champs', Pete Rademacher and Jimmy Boyd.

LT. WENTWORTH CITED
1st Lt. Richard D. Wentworth, member of the U.S. Rifle and Pistol Team, has been awarded a Marksmanship Unit for Excellence in Competition.

Post Anglers Fail To Topple Record

Some time back the column made the prediction that lunker bass would be taken from Fort Benning waters this year and added the offer of a $10 reward to anyone recording a bass larger than Ruth Strine's 11 lb. 4 oz. monster.

Well, to make a long story short, Mrs. Strine still holds the Benning record and the ten bucks still remains in the columns coffers'—even though two Leviathans have been reported. They were out through the hands of an unknown, out of Hedley's Pond but failed to report or record it. Following this rumor was the apparent hooking of a second whale-sized bass at King's Pond. According to M-Sgt. Bill Lee of the Range Guard Staff, the fish was 26 inches long and an estimated 12 pounds. It had been found dead and a subsequent examination disclosed that it had been hooked deep in the gorge of its throat, though fighting free (or having the hookery cut out through the gill) it was severely injured and had died but short time before being discovered. "Horsing" a fish is a bad thing all around. Someone lost a record fish and at least 20 bucks through this crude method and caused the death of a beautiful trophy bass.

The fertilizing program followed by the Fish and Game Maintenance Association has resulted in fabulous fishing on post. Harp's Pond has proved to be a producer above the wishes of any angler and other ponds are just about as good. Capt. Carlisle Owens, Tactical Department, and Capt. Ralph Salucci, 325th Infantry, took a string of bass out of Schley's Pond that made eyes pop. Too, Capt. Owen hung up the May bass award by landing a nine pounder at Hedley's Pond.

One more mention of Hedley's: an unthinking individual was reported to have nearly lost his life by swimming there. Just about a whole column was devoted to an explanation as to why swimming can not be allowed in our ponds and that statement was very neatly and tragically confirmed. The "No Swimming" regulations are going to be strictly enforced throughout the summer.

About bait prices: you've probably noted that the Fish and Game Association has had to increase the price of minnows to 65 cents. This price will be fixed just so long as it takes to get post minnow ponds producing. Victory Pond, where minnows have previously been seized, has been the scene of a lot of activity adverse to bait propagation.

To keep up with the minnow demand, the Association has been forced to resort to off-post sources, hence the 65 cent price tag. Let's repeat, though, that the advanced price will last only until our own minnow ponds produce.

Come July 5, Hill's, Kirk's and Patterson's Ponds will be opened after a two-year closed period during which they've been cleaned, fertilized and restocked with bass and minnow. If just one of these ponds prove to be half as good as Harp's has done, we'll have more fishing than we can handle and there's good reason to believe that all three are going to be top notch.

Granted that the fishing on post is as good or better than on any other military reservation you'd care to name and granted that it is enough to make any angler drool, it still isn't basis for calling buddy M-Sgt. Bill Lee at the Harmony Church area at 1:45 a.m. with questions which could have just as well been answered on the evening before or the following morning—after dawn, that is. A brother member of the Society of the Faded Hash Marks, Sgt. Lee has asked the column to publish a plea that phone calls be kept to a minimum outside reasonable hours. Red-eyed and haggard, the brother member has been almost on the verge of losing his usual aplomb in several instances.

However, he has kept his aplomb and kept his temper under a admirable restraint. To wit: "My goodness, Sergeant, you are an early riser. You can't know how much I appreciate your call. Here it is 1:45 a.m., half the day gone and I'm still in bed. The best bait to catch an Arctic grayling? Silver streamer, and thank you, thank you again for calling. More than a half hour's sleep is too much, don't you think?"

Bird Cover, Food Seen By Authority on Bobwhite

The country's most noted authority on the bobwhite quail, Harold L. Stoddard Sr., Thomasville, Ga., visited Fort Benning last week.

Stoddard, who has authored many books on the South's all-time favorite game bird, was the guest of 1st Lt. John H. Suberland, officer in charge of the Fort Benning Range Guard Section.

The famous author, known in national wildlife circles as "Mr. Quail," toured the Army Infantry Center's Fish and Game Maintenance Association facilities and was briefed on its quail propagation program. Included in the tour was an inspection by Stoddard of hundreds of acres of bi-colored speckled, fire thorn and other food and cover producing plants which the association has set out in wide-spread areas of the reservation.

Upon the completion of his tour Stoddard indicated that he will make suggestions and recommendations for possible improvement of the association's already huge program of wildlife conservation and propagation, especially in the field of the bobwhite.

Fort Benning's Fish and Game Maintenance Association, which boasts a membership of about 5,000 ardent hunters and fishermen, was organized shortly after World War II and has since served as a model for similar organizations on military reservations throughout the country.

Under the management of the Fort Benning Range Guard Section, a platoon of the Infantry Center's Military Police Company, the huge reservation has been expertly controlled and its ponds, streams and woodlands have been taken on the aspects of a fine game preserve. All operations have been accomplished through close cooperation with officials of the Fish and Game Department of Georgia and Alabama.

Established in 1954, the President's Safety Awards are now given annually to the two Federal agencies—plus with more than 30,000 civilian employees and the other with less—who have accomplished the most in safety for their employees.

Post-Wide Competition

Tennis Tourney Won By Brigade

The School Brigade easily swatted its way to the Infantry Center tennis championship June 9-14.

Brigade ran up 15 1/2 points to win. Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, was second with 4 1/2 points. Infantry Center Troop Command, 325th Infantry Regiment and School Brigade, downed 2nd 10th Division accumulated four points each. The 14th Medical Group scored two points.

Open doubles championship went to Lt. Col. Roger M. Lindley and Lt. Col. Donald W. Yoder, both of the School Brigade.

Summers-ups to them were Lt. Col. Ed B. Smith, School Brigade, and M-Sgt. Archie Hatfield, 14th Infantry.

Major Robert E. McHugh, School Brigade, and M-Sgt. Charles E. Fellman, Infantry Center Troop Command, won first place in senior doubles.

Major McHugh battled to the top spot in senior singles, winning over Lt. Col. Lindley, Second Lt. Ben Heckscher.

A member of the U. S. Modern Pentathlon squad that competed in the 1958 Olympics, Gen. Hains points out that "athletes, whether military or civilian, need not be world beaters to qualify for the Modern Pentathlon squad."

Right now Modern Pentathlon officials here are seeking new candidates to help bolster the squad. The U. S. team is expected to enter three international meets this year including the World Championships, Aderbort, England, in October.

Coming up, too, are the 1959 Pan American Games in Chicago and the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome plus numerous more shooting and fencing shows, running and swimming meets, and recognized National horse shows.

The 1912 Olympics were the first in which the Modern Pentathlon was introduced in official competition. This was the year a young American cavalry lieutenant named George S. Patton became the first U. S. entrant. He placed fifth in individual standings.

20 Firing 300 Meter Competition

Twenty persons, representing the best in Army, Marine and Navy marksmen, are competing in this week's 300-meter rifle tryouts at Fort Benning.

The high five in the four-day aggregate will be selected for the shooting team to compete in the world championships at Moscow.

Army shooter 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel is the top contender in the big bore tryouts. Last week he fired the highest score in the smaller tryouts and his performance is any criterion he should repeat.

It was Lt. Puckel who fired 1138 out of 1200 to qualify for the free rifle tryouts 1st month. That score is one point under the world record.

Girls who can swim and are at least 15 years old are urged to tryouts. At least one girls are needed, officials said.

Major McHugh, School Brigade, and M-Sgt. Charles E. Fellman, Infantry Center Troop Command, won first place in senior doubles.

Lt. Col. Sarsfield Gymnast Takes Set With Him on Trailer

If you happen to be in the "colony" of the First Student Battalion, The School Brigade, in the near future and see someone "flying through the air with the great ease of a cat" it is only Lt. Col. Robert Sarsfield, trampoliner expert.

Hq. Unit Wins 3 Straight Tilt in 14th

This unusual outlet for Col. Sarsfield's energy is natural for a man of his background. He teaches physical education and gymnastics at Central High in Cincinnati. His intense interest in coaching is reflected by the fact that for the last four years his teams have won the city championships in gymnastics. Not content with his school coaching alone, Col. Sarsfield also has conducted classes in "trampoline sports" in his home for a number of years.

Col. Sarsfield's personal background shows that he has had a marked interest in gymnastics since school days in Cincinnati. At the University of Cincinnati, he received a B.S. Degree in teaching and active duty entered all forms of gymnastics in his spare time...

League standings in the Army Group are as follows:
1st Lt. Col. Sarsfield
2nd Lt. Col. Sarsfield
3rd Lt. Col. Sarsfield
4th Lt. Col. Sarsfield

Army Sticks to 100 Year Old Maxim

NASHVILLE, (ING) — Tennessee, this July 13th is celebrating the 127th anniversary of the birth of one of its favorite sons: Gen. Nathan B. Forrest. Gen. Forrest is the cruxy, Confederate Army hero who gave the now famous advice: "Git that fustest with the mosdest means!"

His 100 year old maxim is still sound military policy in this Atomic Age. Last month in disclosing STRAC (The Army's new "fire brigade" for combatting "brush-fire" wars) the Army Information Digest said: "The ability to intervene quickly and to repel an aggressor is of basic importance in limited war and, in turn, to the deterrence of all-out war."

CROWDED FESTIVAL
More than 10,000 people attended the first annual Mitchell AFB, N.Y. Music Festival held recently. Two AFAP bands, a drum and bugle corps and a drill team were on hand to entertain.

44 Youngsters Entered YAC Closes '58 Archery Season With Tournament for Post Girls

Fort Benning Youth Activities Club has closed a successful archery season with a girls' tournament.

Competitors in the hotly-contested match numbered 44 young archers who lined up for a modified American round course and though all but a few were newcomers to the sport, gave a demonstration of shooting skills which amazed onlookers.

Medals were awarded to the winners of the first three places in each of three classes, Bowmen, Archers and Experts.

Participants ranged from first graders up to high school students. Tackle was issued to fit the shooters as closely as possible.

When "bounces" occurred, there was immediate call for an official decision from the scores which indicated the high spirit of competition which was reflected throughout the match.

High Scorer

The high score of the tournament was turned in by Sylvia Burrows, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. J. D. Burrows, who had taken up the bow a scant six weeks before the tournament. She was awarded the first place medal in the Archers Division. A second member of the Burrows family became a medal winner

Army Gets Award For Service to U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (ANS) — Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Bricker accepted the "Ballington and Maud Booth Memorial Award for Outstanding Service to the People of America" on behalf of the Army from the Volunteers of America during their 22nd annual national conference here recently.

The Army's contributions to "science, mankind and society in the space age," were given as reasons for the citation. In addition, the citation praised the Army for its contributions toward maintaining the prestige of our Nation throughout the world by its accomplishments in the field of science for the benefit of mankind.

Supervisor of the YAC Club's archery program is Pfc. James Lennon under whose control the sport has grown into one of "in the gold" to give her the top medal in the Bowmen Division while Frances Arnold, whose parents are Col. and Mrs. H. E. Arnold, gathered in the second place award.

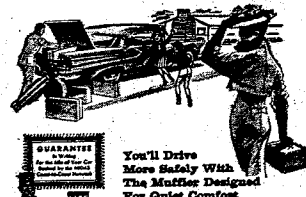

Runner-up to high scores Sylvia Burrows in the Archers Division was Patricia Walker, daughter of M-Sgt. and Mrs. L. M. Walker, who was followed closely by M-Sgt. and Mrs. V. J. Bevilacqua's Barbara Jean who walked off with the third place award.

Sister Team Places

Final scoring of the Expert Division also revealed that a second sister team had won two out of the three place awards when

Squash Champ Proves Adept on Tennis Courts

National Collegiate Athletic Association Squash Champion in 1956 and 1957 and the undefeated captain of the Harvard University squash squad of 1957 is a student in The School Brigade's Basic Infantry Officer Course No. 13.

Second Lt. Benjamin Hechscher, 28th Company, Second Student Battalion, has proved his skill, however, with a different kind of racquet by winning the open singles championships in Main Officers Open Area and The Infantry Center Tennis Tournaments since entering the Infantry class.

Although squash is Hechscher's special forte, the game of tennis is not unfamiliar to the Philadelphia native. While at Harvard, he held down the number three spot on an excellent team which posted a 20-1 record and took the Eastern Tennis Championship in 1956.

A graduate of Choate School, Wallingford, Conn. and Harvard, Hechscher won eight letters in squash and tennis and attained the skill and experience necessary to become a consistent winner in some of the country's larger tournaments.

Hechscher was fourth-ranked nationally in men's squash in both 1956-57, and he won the Montreal AA Open Tournament in 1956 and the DeForrest-Tyler Invitational at Plainfield, N. J., in January 1958.

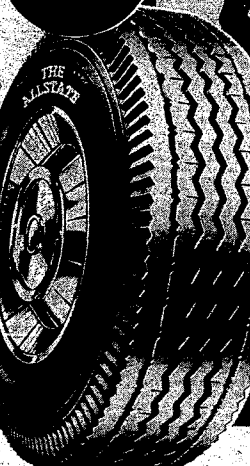

For those unfamiliar with the game of squash, it can best be

Glory and Sacrifice

2nd Division Earned Impressive Record After Being Born of War

The history of the Second Infantry Division is one of glory and sacrifice. In peace or in war, no soldier could serve with a more honored unit. The slogan, "Second to None" reflects the intense pride and spirit of the fighting Second Division.

Its impressive combat record began soon after it was organized in 1917 at Bourmont, France. It was born of war. In World War I, the Second Infantry Division won more decorations than any other American division. Participating in every major engagement involving the American troops, it captured one-fourth of the prisoners taken by the American Expeditionary Forces and suffered one-fourth of the American casualties.

Counter-Attack

In its first major campaign, the division was rushed to Chateau-Thierry, to aid in halting and counter-attacking a full-scale German drive on Paris, France. It was born of war. In World War I, the Second Infantry Division won more decorations than any other American division. Participating in every major engagement involving the American troops, it captured one-fourth of the prisoners taken by the American Expeditionary Forces and suffered one-fourth of the American casualties.

Reorganization

In 1940, reorganization of the Second Division took place. The infantry units were formed into three separate regiments—the Ninth, 22nd, and 28th—completing the "triangular" organization. The Second became the first such division.

Prepare For Europe

In April, 1941, it moved to Wales and prepared for the assault on continental Europe as part of the First Army.

On June 7, 1944, D Day plus one, the Indianhead Division returned to France for the second time, landing on "Omaha Beach" at St. Laurent sur-Mer while enemy shells were still pouring into the tiny held beach-head.

Road to St. Lo

The Second played a large part in winning the famous "Battle of the Hedegrove", the first of its five campaigns in World War II. On the heels of this encounter came the bitter fight for Hill 192, a commanding strong-point on the road to St. Lo. The Division remained on the defensive until the 11th of July and then jumped off to attack. With the aid of tremendous artillery and aerial bombardments, tanks, and engineers, this vital objective was finally taken.

The division continued to slum through Normandy during the fighting around St. Lo, and then went on to capture St. Jean des Bastans, Vire, and Tinchebray. Shortly after the battle for Tinchebray, the Second embarked on a 300-mile journey into Brittany to take part in the Battle of Brest, one of the Nazi naval strongholds on the Atlantic coast. Although Hitler had ordered Brest held for 30 months, it was captured in three days.

Siegfried Line

On October 1944, it moved to Southern Belgium facing the Siegfried Line. After three days of attack the Siegfried Line was penetrated. The division readied itself to resume the attack on the East when the great German counter-offensive struck the allied front. The Nazi Sixth Panzer Army poured through the Ardennes, but the Division held its ground in the snow-covered Elsenborn area until the Battle of the Bulge was won.

After that historic battle, the division began its sweep into Germany and by the end of the war, the men of the Indianhead Division had reached the ancient Czechoslovakian city of Eisen. The Second advanced 750 miles in combat during the 320 days of battle, had suffered 15,000 battle casualties and captured 70,000 prisoners in its fight for the liberation of Europe.

The Indianhead soldiers embarked from Le Havre, France, on July 12, 1945, and were stationed at Camp Swift, Tex. Less than a year later, the Regiment moved to California and then on the Fort Lewis, Wash., which remained its base until the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

On the autumn of 1946 until it was alerted for combat in Korea, the Second took part in a series of large-scale maneuvers which prepared it for the future.

Alerted for Korea

On July 4, 1950, the "Second to None" Division was alerted for Korea and 11 days later the first elements of the Division landed. The Indianhead Division was the first American unit to leave the United States for the fighting in Korea.

Units of the division were thrown into the defenses of the Nakdong River Line and were rejoin by the remainder of the Division south of Taegu. Moving swiftly to counter enemy thrusts, the Second halted the Red attempt to overrun the Nakdong Line in a battle which raged from the first to the 15th of September, 1950. The North Korean armies were forced to break and retreat, and the first wave of "Operation Breakthrough" was initiated.

With "Operation Breakthrough" underway, the Indianhead troops, as part of the Eighth Army, swept northward in the drive toward the Yalu River. With the entry of the Chinese Communists into the conflict, the division came under heavy attack. The overwhelming forces that the Chinese threw into the attack and loss of their thrust cut the Second off from the rest of the Eighth Army troops temporarily.

Again, the right flank of the United Nations forces was endangered. With the Netherlands and British units attached, the Second took a stand and protected the rear and right flank of the Eighth Army. They pushed north in a two-pronged attack aimed at Twin Tunnel and Chipyon-Ni and twin ward Hoengsong, which resulted in the first complete halt of Chinese forces since they entered the war.

On May 15, 1951, Chinese hordes launched an attack with full force against the Indianhead sector with the announced purpose of destroying the Second. After six days of heavy fighting, the Chinese were repulsed and began to withdraw. The determined defense then turned to a lashing offensive which caught the enemy off balance. His scattered, scattered armies broke in disorderly retreat. It was the worst defeat ever suffered by the Chinese Army.

For this action the Second Infantry Division was awarded the Distinguished Unit Citation, the highest decoration the United States bestows on a unit.

With the opening of armistice negotiations, the "Battle of the Hill" began. From August 15 to September 15, the division battled to seize Bloody Ridge. The period of September 12 to October 13, saw a hard fought battle which culminated in the capture of Heartbreak Ridge. The final capture of the ridge was made possible by "Operation Touchdown", launched just as the Chinese were relieving the North Koreans.

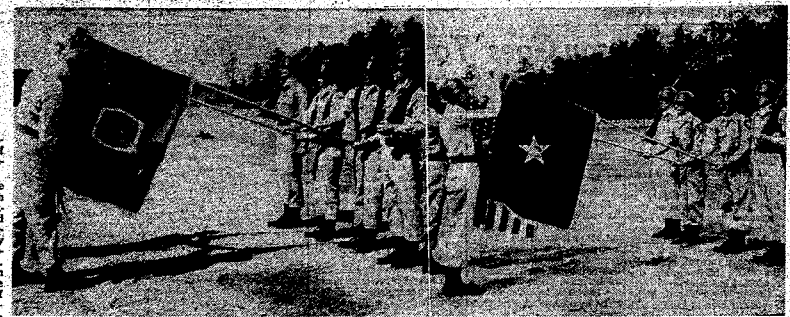

Old Ready

During the next 18 months the Second Division fought for and held other critical pieces of terrain. At this time members of the division and the attached Thailand Battalion fought repeated attacks against Old Baby, T-Rose and Pork Chop Hills. Aggressive patrolling and defense of these occupied the division for the remainder of the year.

Moving back to the line in early February, the Division defended positions in the Hook area.

The Second was still defending in the vicinity of Gwamun when the Armistice was signed. With the implementation of the agreement, the Division moved to positions along the southern boundary of the demilitarized zone and engaged in a rigorous training program.

On August 20, 1954, exactly four years after the last elements had arrived in Korea,

Indianhead Patch Started As ID for Supply Trains

Members of the Second Infantry Division have been wearing the famed Indianhead Patch in two wars. The insignia had its origin during World War I as the identifying insignia on the vehicles of the Division Supply Trains.

The commanding officer of the trains held a contest in March, 1918, to select a distinctive identifying symbol for use upon the vehicles after he had seen the vehicles of adjacent French units decorated in this manner. Through his adjutant he sent out a memorandum authorizing prizes for the best design submitted. The winning insignia, which had the Indianhead been authorized and was probably used on supply trains in all the vehicles of the trains at that time.

Major Gen. Omar Bundy, the division commander, and his chief of staff, Col. Preston Brown, later Major Gen. Brown, were riding in a command car one day in April when General Bundy's eye was caught by the insignia on a truck. According to a letter from Major Gen. Brown written sometime later, Gen. Bundy stopped the driver, asked the meaning of the device, and was told by the driver that it embodied him with a first prize of 40 francs. The letter does not bring out that the insignia had been authorized and was probably used on supply trains in all the vehicles of the trains at that time.

Major Swenson Goes To 82nd

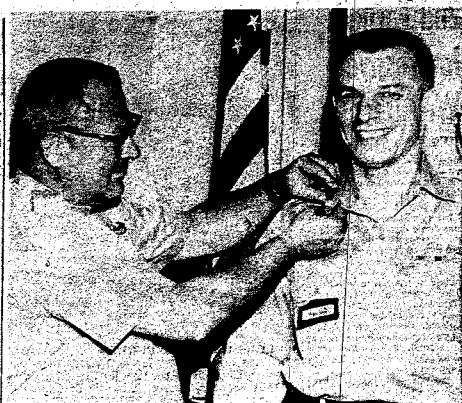

Major Richard W. Swenson, assistant executive officer of the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, left Fort Benning June 27 for duty with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

A second graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Major Swenson joined the 29th Infantry in April, 1957. He served as the organization supply and logistics officer for eight months and as assistant executive officer since May. A special farewell review by the entire battle group was conducted last week. During World War II, Major Swenson served in Europe with a Provisional Parachute Battalion and the 504th Parachute Infantry. He is a veteran of the Rhineland, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Northern France, and Central Europe campaigns.

He was commissioned an Army Reserve second lieutenant in March, 1942, as a graduate of Kemper Military Academy, Louisville, Ky. Last year he received a Regular Army commission.

He holds the bronze star, combat Infantry Badge, and the Master Parachute badge. Headquarters Company First Lt. Joseph H. McFarland served as escort for Brig. Gen. Michael J. Galvin, assistant commander of the 94th Infantry Reserve Division. The general, a former undersecretary of labor in the Truman administration, was attending the two-week Infantry officers refresher course at Fort Benning.

These officers joined the command and were assigned to battle group operations and training. On two separate active duty assignments, Major Thomas Peavy, duty as Major Thomas Peavy, PROMOTED TO CAPTAIN . . . Col. Max F. Schneider, commanding officer, USAIC Troop Command, affixed captain's insignia to the uniform of Stephen Przenka, commanding officer, Headquarters Company, USAIC Troop Command. Capt. Przenka was surprised when, upon a requested visit to the office of Col. Schneider, he was informed of his promotion.

Second Lt. Floyd A. Brown and a platoon of 24 men left for the Ranger mountain training camp near Dahlonega, Ga. The group will participate for three weeks with Company B in a test of a plan for field training of companies while they are supporting the Ranger camp.

Re-enlisting for six years were M-Sgt. Dewey A. Cressy and Sigs Elijah J. Taylor, Ishamel Rodriguez, and Milton E. Beasley.

Joining the unit were Second Lt. John G. Byrly, Sigs George James Johnson and Seymour K. Wilcox. Sigs Jesse T. Stringer, Jack R. Wharton, Harold D. Browning, and Richard W. Blanton, Hughey B. Stevens and Pfc James H. Stroud and Luke G.

The Infantry Center Honor Guard participated in the special parade for the 88th anniversary of the Army Signal Corps at Chapel field on June 20 and in retirement ceremonies for Col. Edwin Hakala on June 19.

The first phase, already underway, will consist chiefly of a series of conferences to reacquaint participants with fundamentals. During the second phase, each staff officer and his telephone radio operator will log a minimum of four hours of actual radio operation per month.

The third phase will consist of the quarter four-hour field communication exercise. Participating in it will be the battle group commanders, his company commanders, and assigned radio operators.

Members of the unit which recently won the battle group military skills competition are training for the Infantry Center Parade of Champions July 4-5.

Company A Revamps Entertainment Room

The company gymnasium is showing results of many hours of labor. A small group of men with the help of the sergeant have erected a snack counter, pool room, and television room complete with entertainment dividers. Sigs Edward E. Wingate is in charge of this project.

First Lt. Harley Sybers is currently on leave, and when he rejoins the company, he will have entered the ranks of married men. The wedding took place June 21 in Madison, Wis. to Miss Ruth Knight.

The company softball team played its first game last week. They beat 7th Chemical Company eight to seven while losing to Marlar Battery eight to five. Sigs Wingate is the new coach of the team.

Sigs James W. Bray Mess Steward of the company has advanced his education level from the seventh grade to a high school graduate. In March, 1957 Sigs Bray took the elementary school GED test, because of being transferred, he was unable to complete it. In April, Sigs Bray took his high school test and received his certificate. He then went on to pass the High School Test and is now planning to take the first year college GED test.

Sigs Lawrence F. Wilson, Pfc James H. Ellis and Pfc Anthony Eort have successfully completed the Advanced Class at the Fort Benning Education Center.

Twenty new men recently arrived for duty. In addition to the new arrivals, the members of the 1st aggressive detail supporting the Ranger Camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., have returned to the company.

Sights and Sounds 14th Helps Set Stage For Simulated Battles

An integral part and important goal of instruction given by the Infantry School in its presentations and demonstrations is the achievement of realism. Convincing sights and sounds of battle do much to set the mood and emphasize the situation during the problem.

In support of the Infantry School problems, units of the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, and attachments contribute much to the mechanics of setting the stage for realistic simulated battle conditions, such as incoming enemy fire, mortar fire, direct fire weapons and muzzles which are often simulated by use of demonstrations.

TONGUE, Korea (ANF)—They're growing vegetables inside the mess hall of a First Cavalry Division company, but the mess sergeant is worried about how he's going to convince the men that the plants are strictly ornamental.

Now he has a whole company of "green thumbs" taking an active interest in the growing process.

Army Trains NATO Allies

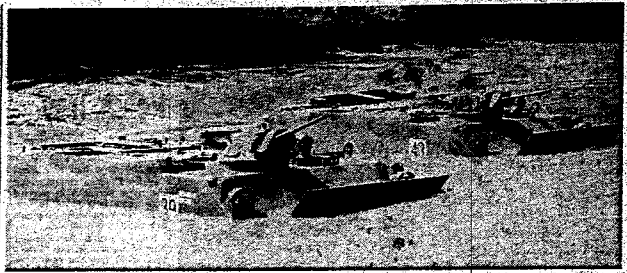

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANP)—The number of NATO nations with students in training at the U. S. Army Ordnance Guided Missile School here has grown to eight with the recent arrival of four Turkish officers, members of the joint U.S. Military Mission in Ankara.

They are enrolled in the 52-week guided missile maintenance supervisor course on the Nike Ajax anti-air missile and its associated ground handling equipment. Colonel Asim Unayral heads the group of three lieutenants.

Other NATO nations with student representation at the school are Canada, West Germany, Italy, France, Norway, Belgium and Denmark. The OGMS has also trained British students.

The School has a current enrollment of about 1,100 students. During the 12-month period ending in June, the school will have graduated more than 4,000 students, trained in the maintenance and repair of the Army's various field artillery or anti-aircraft artillery guided missiles.

FLOAT TESTS ARE GIVEN TO TWO NEW M-59 ARMORED PERSONNEL-CARRIERS Low Enough To Present A Bad Target, It Protects The Infantryman As It Moves Him

By 154th Transportation New M-59 Passes Float Testing at Victory Pond

The 19 new M-59 armored personnel carriers acquired by the 154th Transportation Company were given float tests at Victory Pond in Harmony Church June 9.

Modifications of the earlier model personnel carrier with which the 154th Transportation Company is supplied, these latest M-59's are equipped with a novel type of 50 caliber machine gun cupola mount. The recessed mount offers the gunner complete protection from means of periscope sights, combining unobstructed vision with a negligible silhouette.

Such personnel carriers are designed to accommodate the two fire teams which now comprise the rifle squad. When the ramp is employed in preference to the door as a means of discharging infantrymen, one fire team exits from each side of the vehicle. During such operations the commander's seat is normally occupied by the senior leader.

Powered by two engines identical to those employed in the M-48 and M-48A1 tank, the M-59 presents no unusual supply and service problems. It guarantees the infantryman a comfortable ride. The new model maintains 18 in. c h e s of freeboard in the water in contrast to the earlier model. It remains buoyant enough to present a target, while yet possessing a somewhat larger resistance to wave or surf. At night the waterborne M-59 is hardly visible.

Observed by CO The float tests were observed by Lt. Col. Gordon E. March, commanding officer, 688th Transportation Battalion, and were directed by the 154th Transportation Company commanding officer, 1st Lt. Roy A. Zepher. The 154th Transportation Company is attached to the 688th Transportation Battalion.

After the vehicles were checked for proper functioning of trim vanes and bilge pumps, they entered the water for careful appraisal of amphibious performance. The M-59 makes slightly over four miles per hour in the water. Control is maintained by the relative speed of track to track, as on land, and each track acts as a ratchet wheel to provide motive power.

Lifeboats and cranes which stowed by during the test were provided by the 154th Engineer Group.

KILLS WAR THOUGHT—General Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, speaking on the United States' deterrent forces, has said, "We hope that in the aggregate these forces impress upon any potential aggressor a certainty of defeat which will cause him to renounce any thought of initiating war against us, recognizing that in the long run he is bound to lose."

Engineers Converting Ranges to Trainfire

At present, one of the major projects at Fort Benning is to convert numerous ranges to trainfire ranges. Projects of this nature require engineers with "know how" and equipment to complete the task. The 151st Engineer Group has been assigned this project.

Eight ranges to include Simpson, Simpson and Eric, Wallis, Maerlett, Shelton, Eric, Wallis, Roosevelt, and Blackford are under construction by the 151st Engineer Group.

Phase one of trainfire ranges has been broken down into three sets. Each set consists of one 10 lane record firing range, one 35 point field fire range, one 110 point 2 1/2 inch range, and four detection ranges.

The 57th Engineer Battalion is working on set one which is approximately 80 per cent complete. The 49th Engineer Battalion is working on set two which is approximately 75 per cent complete. Both sets are expected to be completed by July 1, at which time the 57th will begin set three. The 49th will begin set three in August 15.

Off To The Field
Company A, 49th Engineer Battalion, along with its new commanding officer, Capt. Walter E. Russell, and new 1st Sgt. Sgt. Charles C. Landrum, departed the battalion June 16 to spend approximately 90 days in the field constructing firing ranges for the newly designated Second Infantry Group.

The mission of the company is to construct and maintain firing ranges for the 2nd Infantry Group. The 49th Engineer Battalion is working on set one which is approximately 80 per cent complete.

54th Medics
Three members of the 57th Medical Detachment, 54th Medical Group, have departed for Fort Knox, Ky., where they joined the 57th Transportation Company. The unit is to gyroscope to Germany this month.

The men are 1st Lt. Robert Baldwin and Carlton Bledsoe and Pfc. Ted Miller, all helicopter mechanics. Two helicopter crews are on TDY to Fort Knox to give a demonstration for West Point cadets training there. They include 1st Lt. Cecil Grimes, pilot; 1st Lt. William Killo, pilot; and Pfc. Horace Rock, crew chief.

Third Field Hospital is in the process of a 13-week training cycle which will last until September. Second Hospital unit, also in training, has only two weeks more to go on its schedule. Early this month Second Hospital unit and its personnel have received their maximum $5,000 Army suggestion award.

Pfc Rouse Selected 'Soldier of the Month'

First Student Battalion. Third Company—Pfc. Donald A. Rouse, clerk typist, was recently selected as the School Brigade "Soldier of the Month." He received an electric razor, three-day pass and a "Soldier of the Month" pin which will hang over his desk.

Proving Grounds Cover 390,000 Square Miles

WASHINGTON (AP)—An inviolable barrier encompasses 390,000 square miles northwest of the Marshall Islands in the Pacific. Pinned on the barrier is an imaginary sign reading: "No Entry to All Shipping." This is a sign not to be ignored.

For while that area is the Pacific Proving Grounds used for U.S. nuclear testing.

The Proving Grounds occupy a lonely spot in a vast, blue-green water wilderness. Until 1986, the islands in the area were practically ignored and the Polynesians fished in peace, according to the National Geographic Society.

In that year, however, many claimed the islands. The gentle fisherfolk soon got to know well the changing tide of world affairs.

Japan, a western ally in WWI, took over the islands and expelled the Germans in WW.

GI Called 'Ultimate'

WASHINGTON (AP)—William M. Brucker, Secretary of the Army, has once again emphasized that the fighting man on the ground is the fundamental element of warfare—the only "ultimate weapon."

"No amount of talk about the vast power of strategic nuclear weapons can obscure the pressing necessity for the balanced forces which are required to meet the Soviet troops ranged against our own and those of our allies in the front lines along the Iron and Bamboo Curtains," he told a group of field grade officers recently.

Brucker pointed to the group that although advanced weapons systems, strategic missiles and bombers are absolutely essential to the effectiveness of the Nation's combined forces and are thus a deterrent to aggression, they mean will never be able to win a war by themselves.

"No final decision can be obtained by remote control," he declared. "The control of the land, which is the ultimate objective of every military operation, can finally be achieved only on the ground."

"Ever since the first crude machines of war were contrived to extend the capabilities of men, all down through the years to the age of nuclear weapons and guided missiles," he said, "there have always been those who have needed to be shown again and again that it is the fighting man on the ground who is the fundamental element of warfare—the only ultimate weapon."

Officials Ask Care, Caution Over Holiday

The three-day Fourth of July holiday will require all personnel to be alert and careful to avoid accidents in private vehicles or water sports. Fort Benning safety officials pointed out.

The holiday can mean an increase in accident victims due to carelessness or indifference, they added.

Safety 71 Hours
All units at Fort Benning are including safety information hours to emphasize caution and common sense during the long weekend to avoid an increase in auto and water sports accidents.

Auto accidents due to excessive speed, fatigue and alcohol are being discussed in safety information hours for all units. Special emphasis is being placed on the return trip to post in private vehicles which have been a frequent source of accidents resulting in death and injuries, safety representatives said.

Water Sports
Accidents in water sports, a recreation particularly inviting over the Fourth of July, can be a source of incidents caused by diving and hitting underwater obstructions by swimmers unfamiliar with the body of water in which they are swimming, according to reports from the area.

Swimming in unknown waters, or where there are no life guards can increase drownings, officials added.

Buddy System
When swimming, use the "buddy system" in water sports, they said. Last year, accidents in water sports could have been reduced had this system been used, safety personnel pointed out.

Overcrowding of boats or use of intoxicants should be avoided and all boats should contain life rings or jackets for (Please See Holiday, Page 2)

No Entry Fee
Driving Course Scheduled For Youths on Aug. 4-15

An automobile road with prizes for the first and second place boy and girl winners will highlight the 1958 Fort Benning teen-age driving course Aug. 4 to 15.

The ten hour course, four hours per day, for a two week period will be held in the old building section of Harris Church area. It will be open to all Fort Benning dependents and to members of the Fort Benning command.

Promote Safety
The instructor is designed to teach teen-age drivers the proper and safe operation of motor vehicles, develop proper attitudes of responsibility while driving.

Registration for the course opens at the Fort Benning Youth Activities Club July 15 and continues to Aug. 4. There is no entry fee for registration.

Officials urged early registration since 200 children are expected to attend.

Objective of the course as approved by the commanding general of Fort Benning will be to present guidance in driving training to teen-agers who are members of the Fort Benning command.

Weapons Dept. Tests 'Swift Training Rifle'

A rifle marksmanship training aid, said by its makers to take all the guesswork out of such training, is being tested by the Infantry School's Weapons Department.

Known as the "Swift Training Rifle," the device, built by Butler, Weapons Department Rifle Committee, Abingdon, Va., is a compact, lightweight rifle, is an ingenious arrangement of springs and pointed pins which, its makers say, provides instant visual and recorded proof of a trainee's faults without expense of costly ammunition.

Post Opens New Hospital

Mrs. Joseph L. Martin, widow of Major Gen. Martin, unveiled the dedication plaque and her husband's portrait at the formal opening of the Benning's new Martin Army Hospital July 1.

The $1 million ultramodern medical institution is named for Gen. Martin, a former Infantry School graduate and Medical Corps officer.

With Mrs. Martin at the dedication services were members of the Martin family and a host of dignitaries. The Martin family attending the opening included John P. Martin of North Riverside, Ill., and Mrs. P. R. Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, daughters of the general; his sons, Lt. Col. G. W. Martin, Army physician at Ft. Benning, and Capt. Joseph L. Martin Jr., Medical Service Corps at Fort Meade, Md. Also present were Mrs. Martin of Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Guest speakers who gave the dedicatory address was Major Gen. James P. Cooney, 1st Army Infantry center general, Washington, D. C.

Carnival

American flag will bring the festivities to a close. Throughout July 4 and 5 military and wildlife displays will be exhibited on Chapel Road. More than 25 activity-type booths ranging from fortune-telling to the firing of the old-time recoilless rifle sub-caliber device will line the carnival area. Approximately 47 booths, concessions and games of skill in all will be in operation. Music by The Infantry Center band will enliven the festivities periodically through the afternoon and evening. Traditional carnival activities for the children will include a merry-go-round, a miniature train, pony rides, shooting galleries, and fish ponds. A favorite feature will be the jumbo jump lower with air-borne certificates for the youngsters who take the thrilling cable ride. The tower is a smaller model of the real one used in parachute jump training and will be set up on Sitwell Field.

Semifinals and finals in the military competition for the best unit and the best individual soldier in the Parade of Champions will be held during both evenings in Doughboy Stadium. At specified spots in the carnival areas athletic events for the Parade of Champions will be conducted throughout both days. Grand climax of the champion activities will be the presentation of trophies on Saturday evening just before the fireworks display. The commanding general's trophy will be presented to the military unit on the post and a prized individual trophy will go to the best soldier. Additional trophies will be awarded to the winners of the athletic events and for the winner of the cake baking event. Refreshments such as ice

Tests Slated For STRAC BY CONARC

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army's Continental Army Command, which supervises and coordinates training for STRAC units, has scheduled a series of Fiscal Year 1959 field exercises to test mobility and operations readiness, according to the Army Information Digest. The exercises, which will be conducted at Fort Campbell, Tenn., will provide combined-unit training for the 2nd Airborne Division, the 5th Infantry Division, and the 25th Infantry Brigade. Army Navy amphibious forces will also participate. The 25th Infantry Division will be conducted at Fort Benning, Ga., in late July. The 5th Infantry Division will be tested in Exercise Dry Hills in May 1959. It includes an airlift of one battle group from Fort Lewis to the Yakima Maneuver Area, Wash.

Training Rifle was adopted for use by the British Royal Air Force Regiment, and since that time several countries have evidenced interest in the training device. When the trigger of the rifle is squeezed a sharp pin starts from the muzzle of the piece to punch a hole in a target placed on a wooden frame a distance of one inch from the muzzle. A unique pin is present in a second and separated pin which is swiftly projected an inch and a half before the first. This pin cuts a tiny vortice sill in the paper of the target if the "vasepin" is properly fired. However, because the pin remains in the paper for a fraction of a second before recoiling into the rifle, the slightest movement while firing is instantly recorded by the shape of the resultant hole. In addition to the "M.I." rifle device, Mr. Bakanowski also has devised electronically operated training aids for the 'Army Nobody Knows'

The Army pays a cumulative dividend to the nation, not only in things material, such as contributions to better ways of living and making a living and in greater industrial power, but also in the most essential ingredient of the life of a nation—better men and women.

This is the consensus of an article in the July issue of the Army Information Digest titled "Army Dividends to the American Taxpayer."

Each month, the Army Information Digest is filled with articles and accounts which broaden the professional background of all Army personnel.

"Army Dividends to the American Taxpayer" is but one of the many articles of lasting interest available to groups and individuals in the July issue of Army Information Digest.

This American Mind

One hundred and eighty-two years ago the population of 13 British colonies in the eastern part of North America decided it had had enough of the inequities of British rule.

We celebrate July 4 not only because it is our country's birthday but because it marks a day on which a group of intelligently foresighted men founded a society upon ideas and democratic principles therefore reserved for idealists only.

Thomas Jefferson, the man who wrote the Declaration and was to become the third President of the United States, perhaps best summed up the document by calling it an "expression of the American mind."

And what is this American mind? It is the conviction that "all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed."

Jefferson and his colleagues knew that democracy rested with the people. They knew that "government of the people, by the people," as Abraham Lincoln was to say, is the only way.

Castro Cops 2 More Americans; 41 Held

HAVANA—Two more Americans were kidnapped by Fidel Castro's rebel force at the French port of Algiers.

Two U. S. consular officials were striving in rebel-occupied Havana to free the prisoners. One official made contact with rebel leaders, but was reported awaiting word from the insurgent high command on their release.

While the rebel kidnap campaign went on, there were reports of a new flare-up of violence by the dissident forces seeking to overthrow Cuban President Fulgencio Batista.

Dispatches from Cienfuegos on Cuba's south coast said rebel forces and two soldiers were killed in a clash in that area June 22. Several soldiers were reported wounded.

LEBANON BATTLE

BEBRIT, Lebanon—Government forces and mountain tribesmen fought a see-saw battle in the hills overlooking Beirut June 30 after the rebels drove followers to the capital then withdrew.

Followers of young rebel leader Kamal Jumblatt made a surprise dawn push into hills between Chouk and Krayoun, only five miles from Beirut International Airport.

Government forces counter-attacked with jet planes and armored cars and artillery. The rebels fell back from two hills.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) ALBERT C. WILLMAN

Many years ago the French Historian Tocqueville visited America for the purpose of studying the source of our national greatness. Upon his return to France he wrote:

"I went to the great money centers. Money is power but not the real source of national greatness. I went to the great manufacturing districts and observed the billions of wheels busily turning. I went to the great educational institutions and saw their capable, brilliant teachers, look on with admiration at the magnificent libraries and splendid equipment. Knowledge is power! I thought that knowledge is the source of our greatness, but no! I then went up and down the land, saw whole congregations gathered for the study of God's Word and to hear humble men of God preach. It is unmistakable that of Christ, worship, then go home to live the fruits ennobled and that is the source of America's greatness."

We rightly pride ourselves in America's material resources—her industrial capacity, her scientific skill, her military might, her wealth, her military might, and her standard of living. Let us never forget, however, that these material assets alone are not a sufficient foundation of security for the future, but that

Swimmers Warned About Ear Infections

Since the opening of the swimming season there has been a 500 per cent increase in external ear canal infections.

Practically all cases give a history of having been swimming several days prior to the onset of symptoms. Bacterial studies conducted in the hospital laboratory have revealed a multitude of organisms. Apparently swimming creates a situation whereby a small amount of water is trapped in the external ear canal.

The ear canal is a blindly ending, airless tube where evaporation of water takes place slowly, resulting in softening of the lining surfaces of the canal. Bacteria normally living on the surface of the ear canal are usually harmless, but softening of the ear canal surface tissues allows these bacteria to penetrate into the deeper tissues of the ear canal. The bacteria now becomes harmful, causing inflammations, infections which are painful, febrile and temporarily disabling.

This is one condition which is preventable if certain basic procedures are followed. When swimmers return home from a session at the pool they should dry their external ear canals by carefully rubbing a cotton tipped applicator in the canal so as to absorb the trapped water. These applicators are available in ordinary retail drug stores to assist the drying. This is the only way known in medicine to prevent external ear canal infections associated with swimming.

Swimming in unauthorised areas is seriously injurious by striking underwater obstacles. Each year many individuals are seriously injured by striking underwater obstacles. Ponds, and lake bottoms are uncharted and have a variety of underwater obstacles. Each year many individuals are seriously injured by striking underwater obstacles when diving.

Swimming in unauthorised areas is seriously injurious by striking underwater obstacles. Each year many individuals are seriously injured by striking underwater obstacles when diving. Unauthorised swimming at a resort, lack of lifeguards and the risk of drowning is much greater.

To prevent serious bodily injury and the possibility of drowning, always swim in authorized (post swimming pools) and cultivate the habit of swimming with a buddy. In this way, help will always be close at hand.

Concert Sets Early Septet By Beethoven

Attended OCS in 1942

The recorded concert at the Main Fort Benning Library July 8 at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Septet in E flat, opus 20" by Ludwig van Beethoven.

The ensemble was composed early in Beethoven's creative career. The compositions evolved during this period before the age of Mozart and Haydn. They show the heavy hand of subtlety and the past, and are characterized by classical form and style with an eighteenth-century charm. However, even in this period an occasional gesture of impatience with tradition is evident.

The Septet was received with enthusiasm by the public, and a contemporary review testified the taste and feeling of the work. Popular compositions sometimes become sources of irritation to their composers, however, and for the Beethoven of the Ninth Symphony this work of his earlier years was music to be scorned. But it is known that in later years his dislike of the composition was moderated and that he yielded to its charm at least once. After an amateur performance of the Septet one evening, he went to the piano and improvised for a full hour on the minutest theme of the third movement.

Important to Investigation

Officials Seek Equipment Lost in Jet Bomber Crash

Air Force and Army officers employed in the investigation of the aircraft crash northeast of Omaha, Ga., June 22 have been unable to locate several extremely important pieces of equipment which are known to have fallen clear of the aircraft, investigating officials said at Fort Benning. Among the items missing are two helmets which look much like plastic football helmets. They are the protective helmets which the pilot wears on his head and should have rubber oxygen mask and hose attached to the front. Also not yet located are two oxygen masks - large metal bucket-type seats with arm and head restraints attached weighing approximately 150 to 175 pounds, and one aircraft canopy which is a large roughly rectangular frame painted black on the outside with a top. The canopy is about 12 feet long, three feet wide and three feet high. There is a possibility that the plastic canopy was broken from the frame and the ground, officials stated.

These items are vitally important to the completion of the accident investigation, they added. Locating them may well save the Air Force a great deal in lives and equipment by preventing future accidents, investigators added.

Citizens are urged to report any finding or information concerning the whereabouts of these items to Major A. V. Julian, Safety Office, Lawson Army Airfield. The telephone number is FA 2-3831, extension 2-6194.

RESERVES FILL GAP
The Army never has had, and probably never will have, active forces sufficient to meet all its military requirements in the early months of a war. It looks to its reserve forces to fill the gaps made by the inevitable losses of the early stages of conflict, and to generate new units required for mobilization.

DOG, MASTER LEAVE ARMY . . . Scout Dog Joe Jones is congratulated with a handshake on his honorable discharge from the Army June 30 by Col. Erwin A. Jones, his master, who retired June 30. Col. Jones was Infantry Center staff judge advocate. The dog was purchased by Col. Jones last December under an Army reduction plan. He will accompany his master to Valparaiso (Ind.) University where Col. Jones will teach in the law school.

Col. Receives Ed. Rewards At Age of 40

PORT FOLK, La. (ANF)—Life is beginning at 40 for Lt. Col. Lawrence A. L. Schefel. He was promoted to his present rank in January of this year. February saw him integrated into the Regular Army. In March he learned that he had passed the bar examination to practice before the U.S. District Court, District of Columbia.

This was the culmination of a personal education program that has resulted in two college degrees earned at his own expense during off-duty time. The first milestone was passed in 1950 when Brooklyn Law School conferred a law degree on him, the result of more than three years' attendance at night classes after his working day at the New York Port of Embarkation was ended.

In 1946, while assigned to the office of the Army Chief of Transportation, he earned a master's degree in control-ship from George Washington University. Last year he spent six months taking evening "crash courses" to prepare for the District bar examinations. Schefel had a baccalaureate degree from City College of New York and an ROTC com-

Army Helps Youth Fitness

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (ANF)—School children of this area, 4,000-strong, converged on near by military installations on a recent Saturday to take physical fitness tests prescribed under a nationwide program of the President's Youth Fitness Council.

Facilities and manpower of Fort Sam Houston, headquarters of the Fourth Army, and of Randolph and Lackland Air Force bases were made available in this first mass testing of U.S. boys and girls who, on a non-competitive and voluntary basis, were straining every nerve to be eligible for an Amateur Athletic Union proficiency certificate. Events, modified according to age and sex, comprise sprinting, sit-ups, broad jumps, baseball throw, pull-ups, and the walk and run. The Army's participation in the local cooperative program was supervised by Major Robert J. Heckert, special services officer for Brooke Army Medical Center here, and David A. Gregg, San Houston's sports director.

"The kids need more training especially in elementary classes," said Heckert. "Even the high school youngsters could profit by participating in a stepped up sports program." He noted, however, that most were able to pass minimum requirements of the test.

About 50 schools in and around San Antonio were represented.

DIFFERENCE
A stranded British actor, down on his luck, went to a rather noisy restaurant for a cheap meal and recognized the waiter as a colleague who had played with him in London.

"Great, Scott!" he gasped. "Are you really a waiter in this place?"

Pvt. Watched U.S. Tanks Enter Nuremberg; Now at 826th Tank

"Feindliche Flieger haben die Stadt bombardiert. Es sind viele Menschen getötet worden. Die Bomben sind in die Häuser gefallen." These were Nuremberg radio messages that reported on the progress of the air attack and became silent. Werner Ruppert, his sister and his mother sat in the close darkness of a bunker and waited for the fall of the bombs. The air was filled with the rattling of the engines of the 2,000 aircraft overhead. Sleep was impossible, of course, and miserably to endure the din of the hockbusters the families in the shelter had to keep their fingers tightly to their ears.

Over Every Night it was the height of the war in the European theater and the bombers came over day and night if the weather permitted. Everyone was heavily laden. The great stores out of which the bunker had been constructed were damp with sweat and the air was hot. Between legs or upon legs were napkins or cardboard boxes of food—canned fish and dehydrated potatoes issued by the government. In the corners were water cans.

A Mere Three Minutes Ruppert was five years old when the outbreak of the war. His father, disabled from World War I, died in 1942, and his mother, older than he, was recruited into one of the KLV's, or children's camps, established to rear orphans and to give some money to children once the attacks had become intense. But Ruppert, his sister and his mother guarded the entire war in their Nuremberg home—and Nuremberg, because of its industries, was one of the two most heavily bombed German cities. Entire sections of the city were literally leveled, and incendiary bombs set castles ablaze. It is a persisted for several days, even though the fire departments of surrounding cities were sent to give aid to Nuremberg and nearby army camps provided still more aid. Sometimes a mere three minutes elapsed from alarm to bombing, and never was there an attack which did not at least rip a door from its hinges or crack a wall. At first some attempt was made to replace glass or restore foundations, but as around-the-clock assaults became commonplace there seemed to be no use and such attempts were abandoned.

After a heavy bombing there simply was no food available, the transportation networks had been so seriously interrupted, and Ruppert and his mother went into the surrounding countryside with silver or clothes to barter for potatoes and turnips. Even during the interims the weather sometimes provided, and generally a short supply in the winter that one was able to obtain a very little. Especially after the two armies began to fight over Nuremberg there was food scarce.

And tonight at that day they sounded the air alarm, and we all know that this time it was not a false alarm. The forces were approaching the city. The German army organization in which all children were constructed in every street. We sat in our shelters and listened to the awful sounds of the battle going on around us. We heard the tanks coming—Sperman's I think they were. For over a week the fighting progressed with no decision. Finally small arms fire was all we heard, and then nothing.

"The first American soldier I saw carried an M1. He came through the bunker checking to be sure we were all citizens. He was posted at the door and he was not at the door. He had a rifle and he had avoided any struggle for the possession of the bunker itself, but he was in a fair shape. Just before the German civil government was overthrown, he was led with food was packed at the station so that we would not starve. He was in the line of the battle. After that the Red Cross fed us, and subsequently the military government furnished our food.

"People ask me how we were fed. I learned it. It was all over. I would say we were fed. Everybody was a glad because of the bombing were perfect and the fighting. Fatigue in an illness, too, and sleep occupied a major portion of it.

In 1955, Ruppert, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Holly Wettemann of New York City, who arrived in this country, has learned English at night school and now speaks it fluently enough with the language to find work with an elevator manufacturer.

In 1957 Ruppert was inducted into the Army and assigned for basic training to Fort Dix, New Jersey. He became a member of the 826th Tank Battalion in February, 1958.

Personnel of the 826th Tank Battalion shortly will be transferred to Germany. "That young man who came into our bunker, holding his rifle in such a way as not to frighten us, might have been my brother; as things stand now it hardly seems possible."

101st Ready For Combat In 36 Hours

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—The 101st Airborne Division proved recently that it can ready every man and piece of fighting equipment for an air hop to combat in a day and a half.

At 4 a.m. one morning the division surprised more than 100 members of the 101st first full-scale practice alert.

By 4 p.m. the next day all infantry center Field Maintenance vehicles and supplies were ready for loading in aircraft capable of flying them anywhere in the world.

In the interim there were 30 hours of back-breaking work. It had weather for the division which characterized itself as "Army Center's brigade."

Many soldiers away from their units were called back. Every man separated his baggage from his personal belongings and packed the load for shipment home. He turned over his automobile and settled other personal matters with powers of attorney.

Units inventoried all property turned over to post agencies. Pictures came off the walls and non-essential papers were pulled out of field files. Mess halls were closed and cleaned and the soldiers were immediately on C-rations.

SCIENTIFIC CONTRIBUTION
 Nearly 15,000 professional civilian engineers are employed by the Army today. Two-thirds of them are engaged in research, design, development and testing of new weapons, equipment and techniques. Others are engaged in civil works and military construction. These skilled engineers, together with their assistants, mathematicians, metallurgists, bacteriologists, chemists and biologists, constitute a large part of the scientific nucleus of our modern Army and contribute materially to its progressive achievement.—(AAS)

Pilots Fly 'Blind' Cross Country

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—The first planned and authorized cross-country instrument flight in an Army helicopter was made here recently, foretelling a step forward in the tactical use of these rotary wing workhorses.

The flight of 160 nautical miles was made round-trip over airways beacons in weather that would have grounded all helicopters in the past. While Army "copter flyers" have a minimum of instrument training to enable them to recover and escape from bad weather suddenly encountered only graduates of the new helicopter instrument training course at the Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., and at the Seventh Army Army Aviation Training Center here are qualified to deliberately undertake cross-country instrument flights.

1960 Deadline CDEC Races Clock As Concepts Change

FORT ORD, Calif. (AP)—A far-advanced approach to ground warfare is under way at the huge Hunter Liggett Military Reservation, 115 miles south of this headquarters location for the Combat Development Experimentation Center.

CDEC is a radical and scientific laboratory approach to the military problem, operating in the premise that in future wars there will not be time to develop the tactics and tools to meet the enemy's standards after hostilities have begun.

Some 3,000 troops are at the call of 52 Army officers and 20 civilian scientists here to simulate controlled but realistic field experiments from which data is collected and analyzed.

CDEC was established in 1956 by Gen. William C. Wyman, commander of the Continental Army Command, CONARC is responsible for training today's Army while developing the Army of the future.

With Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Gibb at its head and Dr. Ian W. Tervet as research deputy, CDEC is racing the clock of survival to evaluate entirely new concepts of land warfare by 1960.

Their main goal is to figure out the best way to fight a limited atomic war. Their main concept is that, if war comes, it will have to be fought with the tactics and looks then in the hands of troops and that most of yesterday's weapons and tactics will be at the cost of lives, and even battles.

"One of the main purposes of the combat of the future," says Gen. Gibb, "will be to destroy the enemy without closing with him. We must strike in a way that the enemy is forced to group and thus leave himself exposed to a low yield atomic strike. On the other hand, we must develop 'bugging' tactics that follow the enemy to closely he is unable to drop a low yield weapon on us."

According to CDEC's experiments, the infantry company of the future might well have a complement of 5,000 to 14,000 men, as opposed to the present concept of 600 to 1,000 yards, tomorrow's "shoot and scoot" tactics require more firepower, more battlefield mobility and more advanced combat surveillance.

One way by which CDEC scientists are obtaining controlled realism is through the use of simulators, such as a camera-mounted weapon. When soldiers squeeze the trigger, they shoot pictures instead of bullets. Scientists then analyze the film for hits.

Dark goggles turn day into night for soldiers simulating a night problem. But trained observers minutely record and photograph their movements in daylight.

Major Frazier Gets Oak Leaf Cluster

Major Gael M. Frazier has been awarded a Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Commander's Ribbon with Metal Pendant at Fort Benning by Col. Norman E. Edwards, Army School director of instruction.

Major Frazier was cited for "performance of exceptional merit in his service since July, 1954, as chief of operations of the Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction." He has been instructed by Gen. Gibb, "to be a leader of the Infantry School."

EXPERIMENTATION... Sp2 Dennis Russo uses a 38mm gunsight camera mounted on an M1 rifle at Fort Ord, Calif., to record "hits" made on low-flying aircraft. The system was developed by the Army Combat Development Experimentation Center. (APF)

The occasion was the impressive "change of colors" portion of the day's activities when the National and ROTC colors are brought out of retirement and entrusted to a select cadet color guard. The colors will again be retired at the end of this year's camp August 1.

Div. Testing Sergeants' Proficiency

TONGUI, Korea (AP)—One of the most important men in the Army is taking a proficiency test in the First Cavalry Division to determine just how well he performs his job. He is the infantry squad leader, the experienced NCO with the "rockers" of a squad on his sleeve. The NCO depends upon his ability to lead a handful of men in combat. This is no theoretical paper test.

It's up to Irbry to select the route of advance and lead his men on to take the fortified position. On the way his squad is hit by a distant atomic blast, a gas attack, artillery and machine gun fire.

Irbry is graded on such factors as leadership and the security of his men, reaction under assembly area, gives him the simulated battle plan and the objective, then puts him on his own.

It's up to Irbry to select the route of advance and lead his men on to take the fortified position. On the way his squad is hit by a distant atomic blast, a gas attack, artillery and machine gun fire.

CLOSE SHAVE
Irish actor Noel Purcell is a victim of the "famous last will" situation. Purcell, who is starring in the Rank Organization's comedy "Rooney," told film producer George Brown that "I'd do anything for you George," and he meant it. Brown then asked Purcell to take a 100 role in "Rooney" as a dastard, in which Purcell would have to appear clean-shaven. The Irish actor liked the screen character, but he had to be shaved. The idea of shaving off his luxuriant and flourishing beard.

Gen. Freeman Says Nation Recognizing 'Limited War' Need

A trend is emerging in the U. S. to recognize the need for military capability to engage in a war which is less than one of survival. Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center, told members of the Columbus Chapter of Military Order of World Wars June 25 at Fort Benning. Gen. Freeman noted that in developing the capacity for engaging in total war, the nation is preparing for the least possible contingency. He added that the principal justification in preparing for total war lies in the fact that it may never be used.

The two-star general said that in his estimation, the U. S. should preserve its retaliatory force and be alert for such things as future space wars. Battles fought in remote areas are confined in the U. S. may not win clear-cut victories, he remarked, but for reasons of prestige the nation could not afford to lose one. "There will be conflicts between communism and the free world, he added, and the U. S. must step in and win the local conflicts to prevent piecemeal destruction of the world as well as to avoid total war." Gen. Freeman pointed out that within the Army, and at Fort Benning, there is a fighting force based on four fundamental principles developed to meet the requirements of deterrence, limited and total war. The Fort Benning commander listed the four fun-

Top Trainees Cited At Tank Changeover

At ceremonies marking the deactivation of the 826th Tank Battalion and the reactivation of the Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 62d Armor, June 26, three outstanding trainees were presented awards by Lt. Col. Gordon E. March, post commander of the 62d Tank Battalion. The three award winners who have completed basic armor training and will shortly be reassigned to the Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 57th Armor, Schweinfurt, Germany, are Pvt. Raymond F. Eckmeyer, Company A; and C. Robert M. Nathan, Company C. Development The three outstanding trainees received their awards from Lt. Col. Russell W. Ernst, who assumed command of the battalion, "the highest grade of development and native ability" among the more than 300 tankers receiving their armor basic with the 826th Tank Battalion. The outstanding trainees were chosen by their respective company commanders.

The battalion, in acquiring the designation of Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 62d Armor, was an impressive battle history. The 62d Armor spearheaded the Western European during World War II. The Infantry Center B and C received an appropriate musical background for the ceremonies. Major William H. Lathrop, executive officer who recently assumed his duties, acted as commander of troops. The orders inactivating the 826th Tank Battalion and activating the Third Medium Tank Battalion (Patton), 62d Armor, were published before the assembled units. As a visible sign of the change of command which was also marked on this occasion, Lt. Col. March, acting commander, pinned on Lt. Col. Ernst, who assumed command from Col. March, the 826th Tank Battalion crest. Both Col. March and Col. Ernst made appropriate remarks.

The 826th Tank Battalion colors were raised, and the colors of the Third Medium Tank Battalion, 62d Armor, uncased, to symbolize the inactivation and activation.

Advanced Officers Classes Hear Mutual Assistance Program Talk

U. S. efforts to "get at least a dollar's worth of security for every dollar spent" in the mutual assistance program, which receives the nation's largest outlay after military spending, was discussed at Fort Benning June 26 by Col. Daniel S. Munster of the Mutual Security Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Washington, D. C. Speaking to 400 students in the Infantry School's officers advanced classes, Col. Munster explained that the mutual security program includes military assistance, both in goods and training of personnel; technical cooperation; development assistance, and "Point Four" administrative and humanitarian programs such as refugee welfare.

Concentrating on the former, he laid the group that 64 nations received some aid in the program. "Thirty thousand U. S. officers are serving in 33 Military Assistance Advisory Groups overseas . . . to insure optimum use of what we provide," the speaker added. "The military assistance program has three divisions — the schooling of Allied students, mobile training teams, and technical instruction teams." Col. Munster said. "Ideal Example. "Thirty countries have students in U. S. service schools. Here Fort Benning has been an ideal example of how our doctrines and techniques are being communicated to our Allies," he declared. "The Infantry School is now training students from 20 Allied nations." Col. Munster traced the emergence after World War II of a mutual aid program to combat communism. Britain aided Greek resistance to the communist guerrillas and the U. S. helped ensure this financial burden in 1947, next expanding military assistance to Turkey which was resisting Russian demands for the Dardanelles. "Military aid is the binding force in mutual defense pacts such as NATO," he stressed. "All matters applied to our Allies must be in a new or like-new condition. These goods come from U. S. Military Depot stores, U. S. new production or off-shore procurement." Col. Munster explained.

He then outlined the off-shore program, which provides jobs, goods and facilities overseas and lessens the economic drain on the U. S. Col. Munster was introduced by Col. George A. McFee Jr., director of the Infantry School's Special Subjects Department.

S. O. S. The international Morse code signal "S O S" — three dots, three dashes, three dots, "was first used by the Italian John George Phillips, Chief Wireless Telegraphist of the RMS Titanic, which sank in mid-Atlantic in April, 1912, after striking an iceberg. Phillips' distress signal was heard by General David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America, who in 1912, was a wireless operator. A re-enactment of this historic incident took place in the Rank Organization's motion picture production of "A Night To Remember" which is based on Walter Lord's best-selling novel about the Titanic's first and last voyage.

Drs. Offer Visit Advice In Pamphlet

FORT BELVOIR, Va. (ANF)—A three-pound book is being mailed to someone who has to read it in bed, say the doctors at DeWitt Army Hospital here. That's one bit of advice included in a pamphlet given to visitors at this new, 350-bed hospital which serves military personnel and their dependents in the Northern Virginia area. Titled "Hints for Hospital Visitors," the booklet lists "do's" and "don'ts" for the visitors. High on the list of "don'ts" are "Don't sit on the bed," "Don't come in large numbers," and "If you don't visit the patient, why he's well, don't push yourself on him when he's sick."

As a special aid to nurses, visitors are asked to bring pot plants rather than cut flowers. The booklet points out that this is especially important in these times when nurses need six hands.

The booklet also suggests that the visitor be cheerful but not artificially cheery, and reminds him that he is not the one who is sick—"so don't leave it to the patient to entertain you."

PF GREEN CITED Pic James E. Green was selected as soldier-of-the-week in the First Battle Group, 26th Infantry recently.

Army Turns 'Doughnuts' Into Dough

ZAMA, Japan (ANF)—Both security and economy are served in the making here of 30 to 40 doughnuts a day. The "doughnuts," however, weigh 20 pounds each, and the recipe is simple if the process isn't a mass of classified documents no longer needed at this headquarters of the U. S. Army, Japan. The machinery, supplied by the Japanese contractor, chews up paper by the armload and spits it out as soggy pulp into a press that squeezes out the water, leaving a doughnut. Dried, the doughnut slims to 10 pounds in weight, and flattened into small sheets of pulp paper which are sold on the Japanese market.

As foolproof a method of disposing of classified papers as burning, the operation turns a profit to the Army and the contractor. The area in which the documents are fed into the macerator is accessible only to authorized persons, including a witnessing officer.

Weapon Built By M-Sgt. Baker

'Man Behind Gun' Helped Firer Set 300-Meter Free Rifle Score
The man behind the gun which enabled an Army lieutenant to set a national rifle record is M-Sgt. Glenn C. Baker, of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit. Baker built the weapon used by 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, AMU, to set a national record in 300-meter free rifle competition during preliminary tryouts for the International Team at Fort Benning in May. Lt. Puckel fired 1138 out of a possible 1200 points to set the record. He was only one point under the world record of 1139. Rifle Didn't Fit Lt. Puckel started about a year ago during an airplane ride back to Fort Benning from an international match in California. Lt. Puckel was complaining because he couldn't find a weapon to fit his tall, slender build. Baker suggested he might give it a try. Baker said he combined the experience of a life's work with guns with the knowledge of Lt. Puckel's physical characteristics to produce the record-breaking international rifle. Before starting the project, M-Sgt. Baker conferred with Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe, officer in charge of the AMU Rifle Company, to get his ideas of the type of rifle to build. He consulted Col. Sharpe's ideas with his own and the result was the gun. Has 3 Main Features The weapon has three features which M-Sgt. Baker believes are essential to a top-flight rifle. They are a good staff receiver, large diameter tube (three-fourth portion of the barrel) and simple firing system occurring on the firing line. Rapid, convenient removal of the trigger guard assembly in an emergency situation on the firing line also is a special feature of Lt. Puckel's weapon. He can change trigger assemblies in a matter of seconds if he should feel the one in his rifle at the time "loose" or not working smoothly. "All he has to do is remove the faulty mechanism and insert a new one without any loss of time," the Gastonia, N. C., sergeant said. Quick Trigger Change Lt. Puckel's gun box is equipped with two trigger assemblies that will almost certainly beat the rifles we have now.

MOBILITY PROBLEM
The Army has the problem of improving its ability to overcome obstacles, both natural and man-made. A major means of detecting and disposing of mines, for example, would be an increase in the mobility as well as a device for the more speedy bridging of a river.

U.S. Holds Final World Tryouts

The 300-meter International free rifle team which will represent America in World Championships at Moscow, Russia, in August was selected at Fort Benning June 27. Announcement of the selection was made by Col. (ret.) Perry D. Swindler, captain of U. S. Rifle and Pistol Team, after a week of shooting at team slots by 23 of the nation's most accomplished rifle marksmen. Heading a list of eight rifle men were the Army's Advanced Marksmanship Unit's 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, 1st Lt. Verle F. Wright, and 1st Lt. James S. Carter. Was Double Bertha All three marksmen previously had won slots on the U. S. team's 30-meter rifle squad. The fourth and fifth place slots were won by two U. S. Marines, S-Sgt. E. D. Dunant and T-Sgt. J. E. Hill, both of San Diego, Calif. Because Puckel, Wright and Carter had shot their way to positions on both teams, Col. Swindler announced that three additional riflemen have been chosen to fill out the 10 rifle slot complement of the big team. They are Capt. Allen and Capt. William Rabenstein, both of the AMU, and U. S. Marine Corps 1st. Frank Briggs of San Diego. Begins Training The U. S. team will swing into an intensive program of training which will include firing by the 30-meter free pistol.

On Stoup Field ROTC Schedules Field Day July 5

The annual Military Field Day competition for the more than 1300 student-cadets currently attending the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp will be held on Stoup Field, in the Harmony Church area, July 5. The individual and group events will start at 8 a. m. and continue through the morning until approximately noon, according to Col. Carl R. Hill, deputy camp commander and PMSM of the University of Georgia. The cadets, representing 29 universities and colleges in the Southeast and Puerto Rico, will compete in several events including disassembly and assembly of the M-1 rifle and the light machine gun; tug-of-war; physical fitness test; grenade throw; accuracy; best drill master in squad and platoon, and the best drill squad and platoon.

Charlie Quinn Watch for Danger Areas at Benning

Have you ever stepped on the upturned prongs of a rake in the yard and have the handle fly up to knock you back six months date rank, or climb a flight of strange stairs in the dark to step on a last step that wasn't there, or get shaved by a barber with St. Vitus' Dance? You may not, but you can make a fella an outstanding candidate for cultivation by the funny farmers and I've had my share. Any head measuring device applied to this cabaza would surely twang like a tuning fork and I have no one to blame but myself. It's this way . . .

In the normal course of a writing assignment, I walked into the office of the Range Control Section, just doing a job, when—WHOP!—up came the rake handle and I was under attack by three brother members of the Faded Hamstring Society: M-Sgts. Lavern Sloan, Bob Matkins and Virgil Woodall.

"A fine column you write! You've got people thinking that the Range Control is Xanthone Park without the restrictions," snaps Matkins. "Shady pine groves and tinkling brooks, huh? Take the wife and kiddies out for a nice picnic, huh? Well . . . la-de-DA," growled Woodall. Brother Sloan doesn't say anything. He just shows my nose into a map with areas shaded by red diagonal lines.

"Take a good look at those shaded areas and tell me what they are," he said. Normally, I obey all orders of those placed over me, but Sloan was behind me and he had my head shoved so close to the map that my eyes crossed and made the lines look like a game of Connect-the-dots.

By this time Matkins had gone into enfilade. "Don't you ever read the Daily Bulletin?" he fires at me, "don't you realize that it has carried a daily warning about entry into area without permission to do so?"

"Protocol will hear of this!" I gasp, and all three brothers jump me at the same time with Sloan in the lead. "Never mind Protocol, Dad, we're right and you know it . . . we've had four big problems held up in the last week alone because of picnicking and fishermen who decided to enjoy the bright sunshine in the middle of highly-dangerous impact areas."

"This is a military reservation and a darned busy one, bud. With reservists here we're shooting up a storm all over the reservation, artillery, mortars, everything, and right around the week and you've never written a word of warning."

"Yeh," adds Matkins, "but if we never fired another shot at Fort Benning, those pretty woodlands and fields of yours may have unexploded missiles which could blast the life of an inquisitive Woodall."

"Let's put it this way, Quinn," breaks in Sloan, "those diagonal red lines indicate PERMANENTLY CLOSED DANGER AND IMPACT AREAS which NO person enters without prior permission. It is all right there on that map. A copy of which should be on every unit Bulletin Board. Detailed information is published daily in the Daily Bulletin regarding additional areas complete disregard for any warnings which we put out. Personally, I don't get it."

"I like hunting and fishing as well as anybody, Sarge, but it has to be understood that hunting and fishing come second to our primary training requirements," explained Matkins. "We'd sit up 24 hours a day taking calls if it meant saving the lives of a picnicking family," Sloan said, "and we'd be glad to indicate safe areas if they only would call us at FB26223 or 35291. Put that column of yours to good use and pass that word, will you?" I took a deep breath, did a little thinking and came up with the revelation that these men were rough, but right. Perhaps, I'd rather they get rough with this column if, as Sgt. Sloan said, it means prevention of disaster. Make it a point to read the Daily Bulletin on this whole problem, huh?

Pacific Coast Star Made Honor Grades at Oregon

An outstanding athlete in the Pacific Coast Conference, who maintained honor roll grades for his last three years in College is an officer at Fort Benning. Second Lt. Phillip I. McHugh 2nd, Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, while attending University of Oregon, was named to the Pacific Coast Football Championship and almost beat Ohio State in the Rose Bowl last year. I guess the most outstanding thing the team had done before that time was to play three teams (during the regular season) which subsequently went on to play in major bowl games in January of 1957. We beat Colorado 62-7 (Orange Bowl), Oregon State 14-14 (Rose Bowl), and barely lost to Pittsburgh (Sugar Bowl)."

While at Portland (Oregon) Central Catholic High School, Lt. McHugh won all-state honors in both football and basketball and was picked to play in the high school all star game in 1952. He was elected the student body president and gained several scholastic honors before his matriculation at the University of Oregon. At Oregon, McHugh won six letters in football and basketball and was named to the All-Pacific Coast football squad, was elected the team's most valuable player, and won the Emerald Trophy indicative of the best all-around student athlete at the school. In his sophomore and junior years he was named to the Dean's list and was picked president of his class his last year. He declined to take any pay.

Company D defeated Headquarters Company by a score of 8 to 1 in First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, softball play recently. Rodriguez Arroyo pitched and slugged Company D to the victory. Arroyo had complete mastery over the Headquarters nine in going the distance on the mound. He wound up in two runs with a triple. Centerfielder Roy Wallace executed a home run for the winners on an inside drive down the left field line. Jim Keashley, Headquarters twirler, was tagged with the defeat.

Four Places Put On Off-Limits Status in City

Four Columbus establishments have been placed off-limits for members of the Armed Forces, effective June 26, according to Fort Benning officials. The establishments are the Congo Club, 746 Seventh Avenue; Cook's Blue Front Cafe, 828 Eighth Avenue; Mary's Drive-In, 161 28th Avenue, and the Paramount Grill, 818 Eighth Avenue. The commanding general of the Infantry Center approved recommendations made by the Disciplinary Board at their June meeting that the four establishments be placed off-limits. T. RINEDOLLAR CITED First Lt. John D. Rinedollar, member of the advanced Marksmanship Unit, has been awarded a Marksmanship Badge for Excellence in Competition. 82TH TOP SOLDIER Pte Rodney A. Vest was selected as soldier-of-the-week of the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry recently.

Golfers Planning Trip to Maxwell

The inter-club match with Maxwell Air Force Base has come and gone. It was a great success from our point of view as regards the score. Socially, it was successful for all concerned. The reaction of all players was enthusiastic. We journeyed to Montgomery July 12. Priority for the trip will be given to those players who participated in the first match but even if you didn't play here, sign up anyway. We will take a somewhat larger team to Maxwell than we brought to Benning, so we have room for more players.

All-Star Game Slated In Baltimore July 8

(APRS Sports Feature) Baseball's greatest extravaganza, the All-Star Game, will be played at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium July 8. Selection of the participants has been made by the major league players, coaches and managers, thus discarding the fan poll system. The new method was decreed by Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick following outright electioneering for Cincinnati players last year which frustrated the league's plan to make the National League starting team all Redlegs.

Army Needs EM in Atomic Power Plants

The Army is presently urging qualified enlisted men to apply for training and eventual duty in the Army's Atomic Power Program. Brigade Marks Unit Day At All-Day Ceremonies

Fort Benning's School Brigade celebrated its Unit Day June 28, with day-long ceremonies. Festivities started at 9 a.m. at Doughboy Stadium and progressed to the Infantry Center's recreational grounds in the Sand Hill area. The official party included the Fort Benning Commanding General, Major General L. Freeman Jr.; Col. A. L. Hoebecke, The School Brigade's commanding officer; Col. Elsiehart W. Mabey, deputy commander, The School Brigade, and Capt. Francis S. Wallace, The Brigade Chaplain. The Infantry Center Band and The School Brigade Honor Guard passed in review as aircraft from the Lawson Army Air Command performed an exhibition of precision flying. The activities of the day began with an invocation by Chaplain (Capt.) F. A. Wallace followed by an address by Col. Hoebecke. Following Col. Hoebecke's talk Gen. Freeman addressed the crowd and congratulated members of the Brigade for their excellent accomplishments in the support of The Infantry School and their fine esprit de corps. Following Gen. Freeman's address, competitive field events got under way. Platoon drill, tug of war, the 100, 200, 400 yard dashes, the broad jump, and the hand grenade throw were among the activities. Team winner was Fifth Battalion, with the Second Battalion and the Infantry School Detachment following in that order.

HAND GRENADE THROW WINNERS... OC John A. Dorsey, center, 52nd Company, Fifth Student Battalion; Pfc. Francis Kane, left, Company A, Infantry School Detachment, and 2nd Lt. Ronald B. Hitchcock, 26th Company, Second Student Battalion, finished in that order in the hand grenade throw competition held during The School Brigade Unit Day.

M-Sgt. James P. Lawhart, editor (letterpress tables). Hawaii - Lightning News, HANALEI, Hawaii, Lt. Col. S. Antonio S. Bernudez, editor, (letterpress overseas).

Barin Field to Close Around November 1
WASHINGTON (AFP S)—Barin Field MAAS near Foley, Ala., will be closed operation about Nov. 1; the Navy has announced. It is the second activity site station of the Basic Air Training Command to be closed. The reduction of nearly one-third in the Navy's pilot training rate, coupled with the planned transition to jet aircraft in the basic flight training program, is responsible for the closing of Barin Field.

Moore, Headquarters and Service Company, 377th Engineer Battalion (Construction), were the winners.

CARE OF CHANGE
The Army is a progressive service looking steadily ahead to the future. While respecting experience and avoiding fads, the Army concerns itself with the new war, not the last one. It has never made changes merely for the sake of change. By the same token, it has never hesitated to depart from old ways, if change is clearly called for in the national interest.

28 Offered Specialists RA Status

WASHINGTON (AAS)—Twenty-eight outstanding specialists in such critical fields as Mathematics, Physics, Hydrology, Guided Missiles, and Chemistry, have been recommended for Regular Army appointments under Project 28A.

The program was a "one shot" affair and an adjunct of the Armed Forces Regular Officer Appointment Act of 1956. The Regular Army Specialist Appointment Board selected these individuals only after carefully reviewing their academic backgrounds and experience in fields of specialization.

These officers will be used primarily in their specialty areas. They will be placed initially in jobs requiring their particular specialties provided they have the necessary professional military training in that field if deemed necessary.

Missile Artillery Has Tough Atomic Punch

WASHINGTON (AAS)—So in 1958 the Army started equipping its infantry, armor and airborne divisions with the Honest John, the rocket American "automatic artillery."

As good and effective as is the Honest John, Army planners looking ahead to later and lighter combat units using fleets of helicopters, developed a rocket with the punch of the Honest John but lighter in weight.

The answer is Little John, highly mobile in the field, well adapted to airborne operations; transportable in a helicopter, and easier to handle than the Honest John.

Latest planned addition to the Army's family of artillery missiles is the Sergeant, officially designated to succeed the Corporal.

The 30-foot-long Sergeant jacks an atomic punch and utilizes a solid-propellant rocket motor which provides better performance and storage capabilities than those of many other weapons systems.

A highly mobile weapon, the Sergeant can be quickly emplaced and fired by a very small crew under all conditions of weather and terrain.

Of Airman in Jet Crash

Daring Rescue Made By Helicopter Flyer

Having an H-13 helicopter one parachute and determined to feet straight down into a thickly wooded area with no trees or three-foot spaces between the rotor blades CWO Lorán E. Patterson made a daring rescue of an injured Air Force pilot recently.

Showing exceptional skill and courage Patterson made repeated trips into the tiny clearing to bring in a swivel, a doctor and a stretcher. He saved the injured pilot of a B-57 crash near Omaha, Ga., June 22.

Dangerous Last Trip
It was the last trip out which taxed CWO Patterson's ability and courage to the utmost.

By the time the injured pilot was prepared for evacuation darkness had set in and the tall pines encircling the rescue site blotted out the horizon so that it was necessary for night helicopter operation.

"It was the smallest area I have ever flown into or out of," said Patterson. "I was pretty worried, but the Air Force pilot had been on the ground five hours with a broken leg, so I decided to try a vertical take-off. I opened her up and even exceeded the maximum allowable RPM."

"Lorán Must Have Been There"

"The Lord must have been with us because we went straight up and never touched a level and I could distinguish the horizon I was the most relieved pilot on the continent. I would not like to try it again."

Aviator Patterson, a member of the Fourth Transportation Company, was practicing hoisting operations during his first year of flight when an eye-witness advised him of the crash. He found the crash site on June 22 and was told by another witness that two parachutes had been sighted shortly after the aircraft hit.

Starting a cross-country search of the area, Patterson found

700,000 Receive Dependents' Care

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Almost 700,000 Armed Forces dependents were provided medical care under the new Dependents' Medical Care Program during the first year of operation, the Defense Department has announced. Total cost to the Government approximately $116 million.

Since the start of the program in 1957, 252,000 dependents, 137,000 of whom are children, 115,000 are wives and 100,000 are dependents of the military. Hospital payments for the same period, on $42,846 claims, totaled $25,805,126.

AFSOUTH NATO Marks 7th Year Of Defensive Right Flank

NAPLES (AFPS)—Colorful ceremonies at its Naples headquarters marked the seventh anniversary of AFSOUTH (Allied Forces Southern Europe), the powerful defensive right flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

First established in June, 1951, for the defense of Italy, AFSOUTH assumed greater significance a year later when Greece and Turkey joined the alliance. Today, under the command of Adm. Robert P. Bristol, it protects a critical 2,000-mile frontier along the northern borders of the three Mediterranean nations.

AFSOUTH's defensive might ranges from six-equipped Alpine troops to the sub-freezing cavalry of eastern Turkey; from atomic retaliatory capability of the South European Front Force's guided missiles to the thermocouple striking power of several air forces and to the submarine traps of the hunter-killer groups in the Mediterranean.

The seven-year-old command forms a rough borderline between the free world and the Pay Bill Pen Given To Fleet Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 51,000-member Fleet Reserve Association has been given the pen with which President Eisenhower signed the military pay bill last May 21. The famous pen will be placed on perpetual display, alongside the pen presented to the group in 1952 for their assistance on the Career Incentive Act of that year, at their national headquarters here.

Interest Stays High In EM College Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Major Gen. Herbert M. Jones' interest in the EM college deal has not waned since the week. As the Adjutant General of the Army, he is on the receiving end of the hundreds of queries arriving in the Pentagon weekly since the Army announced its college education program for enlisted men last March.

Double that interest in higher education in the U.S. is low are dispelled by sampling the letters, most of which begin: "I read in the paper or heard on TV that soldiers can go to college. How do I apply?"

Actually it's not that simple. The Army set up the program to send enlisted men to college as a "soldier program" to produce better leaders and technical supervisors. Its aim is to raise the quality of career soldiers by offering the opportunity to obtain a well-rounded general education or high-caliber technical education to meet specific Army requirements.

MISS HARDAWAY

... A $100 cash incentive award for outstanding performance of duty has been awarded Miss Easter B. Hardaway, technician at the Harmony Church Dental Clinic. Miss Hardaway also was awarded an outstanding job rating.

According to geography, from business administration to bacteriology, and from 16 kinds of engineering to economics and entomology. Applications are still being accepted for rapid processing for the several hundred soldiers expected to enter college this fall. While in school, they will draw full pay and allowances, and the Army will pay for tuition and other fees and books.

FORT RICHARDSON, Alaska (AP)—M-Sgt. Orville E. Lee never sure how many dogs he has at any given moment. The count has gone as high as 90—but he is certain that 20 of them have been on temporary duty with the Army this winter.

Lee convinced the post operations section to which he is assigned that tests should be made of dog teams in rescue work, in reconnaissance during field problems, and in supplying sleds and other units.

With only one Army dog team in the Territory, stationed above the Alaskan Range, Lee's dogs are the only teams available to the Army in the Fort Richardson area. A sled is always ready for rescue operations in places where helicopters can't land.

Realistic Details Stressed In Army Troop Training

TONGUE, Korea (AP) — The two men sitting flat on their stomachs held their breaths at the crunching of the guard's footsteps nearby. They had reversed their field jackets and trouser liners to the white side so only a very close inspection would reveal their outlines against the blanket of snow. With a sigh of relief that melted the snow near their faces, the two soldiers of the First Cavalry Division saw the guard's silhouette against the sunset as he walked away over the hill. In a few moments it would be dark and they could make their escape.

Army Tests Wanigans For Arctic

FORT BELVOIR, Va. (AP)—There are three units in the new wanigan family: a 24-man bunk or mess unit, a 12-man bunk or mess unit, and a small four-man reconnaissance unit. They differ from previous wanigans principally in the outfitting, utilities and design details. They are equipped with the standard Corps of Engineers' hot-air heater, and in the mess wanigan the chairs and tables fold against the wall. All models can be disassembled completely, or eight feet of each end of the 13- and 24-man units, containing the bulk of the equipment such as heaters, snow melters, etc., can be left intact and the center section disassembled for storage.

The large unit weighs 10,000 pounds, less chassis and sled when used as a bunk unit, and 11,000 pounds when used as a mess wanigan.

The new wanigans will be engineer and user tested on the Greenland tundra this year by the Engineers Research and Development Detachment and the Transportation Corps Heavy and Light Companies.

Infantry Center Promotes First Three E-8s Under New Rank Plan

Three of Fort Benning's ranking enlisted men became the Infantry Center's first non-commissioned officers with promotion to the new "super-grade" of E-8.

Advanced to the new grade by order published June 20 were M-Sgt. J. C. McClung, Battery A, Second Field Artillery; M-Sgt. Joseph H. Garner, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry; and M-Sgt. James Edward Hickey, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, B, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry.

In accordance with Department of Army policy governing the promotions, the three NCOs were transferred to positions commensurate with their new grade.

Sgt. McClung was moved up to the position of sergeant major of the Second Field Artillery Battalion. Sgt. Piersch received the assignment of first sergeant, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry. Sgt. Garner now occupies the position of first sergeant, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, B, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry.

A veteran of Pacific campaign of World War II, he served with the First Cavalry Division until after the famous organization swept into Japan. During that time he was awarded the Bronze Star and was four Battle Stars and an Arrowhead for his Atlantic-Pacific Campaign ribbon.

After World War II, Sgt. McClung served for several years as an instructor with artillery units of the Texas National Guard at Lubbock, Tex. He has been a member of the Second Field Artillery Battalion since December, 1954, and makes his home on the main post with his wife, Anna, and two children, Anita, Ann, 11, and Jay, 10.

Woe Bronze Star

Sgt. Piersch, 47, also has passed the 20-year mark in service and wears the Bronze Star for Valor won while serving in the 14th Infantry. Please See NEW E-8's, Page 2.

29th Co. Wins Top Unit Trophy

Some 11,000 persons attended the Fourth of July carnival sponsored by the Youth Activities Club at Fort Benning July 4, and the commanding general's rotating Outstanding Unit Trophy went to Company C, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Myron E. Lee.

Second place was won by Second Company, The Student Guard, commanded by Capt. Norman Regan, while third spot went to the 14th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Robert J. Beeson.

From 29 Colleges Educators to Visit ROTCs July 16-17

Distinguished educators and officials representing 29 universities and colleges which have centers attending the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp will visit the post July 16 and 17.

Coming from senior educational institutions in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee and Puerto Rico, the group will be officially welcomed at the camp by Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center and the ROTC Camp, in the Infantry headquarters building.

TIS Orientation

After being oriented on the organization, scheduling of classes and instructional facilities of the Infantry School, the visitors will be escorted to the ROTC Camp in the Harmony Church Area.

There they will be greeted by Col. Carl R. Hill, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Georgia, who is serving as deputy commander-in-chief and senior resident officer of the encampment. Col. Hill will bring the party on the camp's training and demonstrations, including a visit to the ROTC field problem test area where cadets will be undergoing leadership test.

That evening the visitors will meet with cadets from their respective institutions for a normal talk and dinner in a cadet dining hall.

July 17 the officials will view additional cadet demonstrations at a company-grade class. Please See Educators, Page 2.

Hospital Has First Birth; Called Martin

The first infant born at Fort Benning's new Martin Army Hospital was delivered to Mrs. Harold A. Brown at 11:40 A.M. July 2.

The baby, a boy, has been named Martin Brown. His father is WO Brown, who is assigned to the 31st Transportation Company (Helicopter), Lawson Army Airfield Command.

Formal dedication ceremonies were held for the $8 million, nine-story hospital in the Kelley Hill area July 1. The structure is named in honor of the late Major Gen. Joseph I. Martin, a distinguished Army Medical Corps officer who also attended the U. S. Army Infantry School.

Young Martin, who weighed seven pounds and eight one-half ounces, is the Browns' third child. They have a daughter and another son.

Second to Greet Gen. Wienecke

Major Gen. Robert Wienecke will assume command of the Second Infantry Division at a change of command ceremony scheduled to be held July 16 at 8:30 a.m. at Welberry Field in its band. His predecessor, all military and civilian personnel are invited.

Hickey Succeeds Patten as Manager of Bayonet

James Edwin Hickey Jr. has been named manager of the Bayonet.

He succeeded L. Ray Patten, who retired last week after serving as Bayonet advertising manager since 1946.

Immediately prior to his appointment as Bayonet manager, Hickey was assistant to the business manager of Columbus Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers.

He began work at the Ledger-Enquirer Nov. 17, 1954, in the retail advertising department. Eight months later he transferred to the classified advertising department. Hickey also worked in the circulation office for six months.

He is a member of Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce and Columbus Rotary Club.

He has served as baseball manager in Columbus Little League on board of directors of Junior Chamber of Commerce, on advisory board of Salvation Army in Columbus, was advisor to Junior Achievement in Columbus, and has been Sunday School superintendent at Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus.

He has served in the Naval Air Reserves for three years. Hickey attended Georgia Military Academy, College Park, Ga., and University of Georgia, Athens, Ga. He studied business administration at the university.

He was president of Phi Delta Theta at the university.

Hickey is the husband of the former Miss Peggy Ashworth of Columbus. They have two sons, Richard Sanders Hickey, 3, and James Edwin Hickey, 19 months.

Four Hurt Over Fourth From Post

Fort Benning safety officials have reported that three of the three-day holiday period between July 3 and 5, and ending at 8 a.m. July 7.

Only two of the four injuries were due to accidents with privately-owned vehicles. The two vehicle accidents occurred in states other than Georgia. The two remaining injuries resulted from altercations in which the victims were engaged, officials added.

The number and scope of injuries for the Fourth of July period were no greater than those occurring on an average week end, Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety director, said.

Post Cited By Brucker For JCOC

Fort Benning has received a commendation from the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) for its performance during the conference. The conference was held from November 20 to May 7 and 8 and is to be commended. "The JCOC reports have received, the conference considered the Fort Benning plant as one of the highlights of the entire program. As a result of this demonstration, our industrial progress and ability of the enlisted parachute instructor; the luncheon with dignitaries at the Ranger demonstration; which followed, and the tremendous display of night firework.

Both Gen. Freeman and Gen. Willard G. Wynant, commanding general of the U.S. Army Center of Paratrooper Training, Fort Moore, Va., have added their commendation and appreciation to Fort Benning and its personnel for the JCOC performance.

Succeeds Col. Shuler

Col. Michau Named New Ft. Benning PM

Col. Herbert J. Michau, Union City, N.J., has assumed duties as Infantry Center provost marshal at Fort Benning.

He replaces Lt. Col. Allen C. Shuler Jr., who had been provost marshal since August, 1957. Col. Shuler has been assigned to XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N.C., until 1958 as provost marshal of the U.S. Army Center of Paratrooper Training at Fort Moore, Va.

Col. Michau comes to Fort Benning after serving as commander of the 73rd Military Police Battalion and provost marshal at Nurnberg, Germany, from 1957 to 1958.

He is a veteran of more than 34 years of military service. He enlisted into the Army at Newark, N. J., in May, 1924, and received his basic military training at Camp Shelby, Miss.

In July, 1941, he was assigned to U.S. Army 42nd Engineers, Greenland General Service Engineers, which was engaged in air strip and barrack construction. In July, 1942, he returned to the U. S. to attend Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning from August to November, 1942.

From November, 1942, to June, 1944, he was assigned as operations and training officer of Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, 342d Infantry Regiment, Camp McCain, Miss.

Col. Michau attended the advanced Infantry officers class at Fort Benning. The following June he left for New Guinea to join U. S. Army Forces, Far East, where he was assigned as assistant G-3 of the Replacement Command.

Smithsonian Slates Military History Hall

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A Hall of Military History has been established in the Arts and Industries Building of the Smithsonian Institute here.

Designed to attract and interest more than two million people expected to visit it each year, the hall, developed chronologically, traces the evolution and accomplishments of the Army from 7th Century Colonial Militia to the Pentomic Army of today.

A Smithsonian project, the planning and preparation of the hall were carried out in close cooperation with the Department of the Army through the Chief of Military History.

Portable Radar Provides Night-time 'Silent Sentry'

NEW YORK (AFPS)—A conference between Army and Air Force officials resulted in the production of "silent sentry" portable radar sets, designed to provide mobile advance forces with "electronic ears" capable of detecting enemy movements despite smoke, darkness or fog, has been awarded by the Army to Sperry Gyroscope Co.

Characterized by extreme lightness and ruggedness, the highly mobile radar sets were first disclosed by Army and Sperry in 1956. Any enemy movement, whether by vehicle or foot, is picked up by the set and, by distinctive sounds, transmits the information to the operator.

Able to detect a solitary individual walking a half-mile away, the device greatly reduces an enemy's prospects of maintaining an element of surprise. According to the Army, the radar set can reveal the

Young Ladies Give TSB Office Cosmopolitan Look

BY TOM MALLOY

To all of those who think that the headquarters of the United Nations is located in an imposing, modern, glass-sided skyscraper on New York's East River, drop in on the School Brigade's Student Officers Open Mess' Business Office sometime soon. While the office can not claim sheer numerical superiority over that famous Manhattan edifice, percentage-wise the Brigade can hold its own against all comers. Four young ladies out of six employed by the Business Office are foreign born — all from different countries of that hemisphere and national respect are the by-words as Mrs. Arlette Morway (French), Mrs. Bianca Nicoletti (Italian), Mrs. Lilli Busby (German) and Mrs. Yoko Whigham (Japanese) work side by side each day. Having been in this country for periods ranging from one to ten years, the ladies no longer find the English language a problem.

From Gaidon, France, Mrs. Arlette Morway, who holds the position of administrative secretary in the office, originally lived in Salsans, France. After marrying Sgt. Ralph Morway in Europe, she came to the United States with her husband in 1952 and proceeded directly to Fort Benning. Sgt. and Mrs. Morway now reside at 275 Mays Road, Columbus, with their three children. Since her arrival here, Mrs. Morway admitted to one extravaganza ago. She has five full-grown German Shepherds, seven rabbits and 21 chickens.

Mrs. Bianca Nicoletti, born in Naples, was a war bride who came to America in 1946. Since that time she and her husband, Sgt. Ernest Nicoletti, have traveled to 22 states and have been sent back to Europe twice with the Army. Mrs. Nicoletti's first home in this country was Philadelphia and she still has a place in her heart for the city and its people. She is presently in the office, Mrs. Nicoletti is living at 2718 Ramsey Road while her husband finishes a tour in Korea.

Miss Japan of 1950 Mrs. Yoko Whigham, an accountant for the Business Office, had the distinction of winning the "Miss Kobe" (Japan) beauty contest in 1950. She came to the United States in 1952 and is married to M-Sgt. W. J. Whigham, who also serves in The Student Officers Open Mess. The School Brigade, except for occasional trouble with prepositions, Mrs. Whigham has accomplished the difficult task of learning an entirely new alphabet, and now speaks English fluently. The Whighams and their son, Allen, live at 2718 Ramsey Road, Columbus.

The final member of the international quartet is Mrs. Lilli Busby, the one youngest of her life in Mannheim, Germany. Mrs. Busby came to this country in June, 1957, after having married Sgt. Gerald Busby in 1948 in Switzerland.

Man Called Weak Link In Automation

PORT MONROE, Va. (AP)—Man is the one weakness in the Army's quest to bring automation to the battlefield, so says Dr. Stuart L. Seaton.

His first home was West Palm Beach, Florida (while her husband was in Alaska on duty with the Army) but she joined him three months later at Fort Gordon, Ga. Mrs. Busby says she likes the south, particularly the warm weather although some of the Georgia summer days are a little too much of a good thing.

an electronic data processing consultant here with the Continental Army Command's Combat Developments Section. The section is making pioneer studies on the use of electronic computers to assemble thousands of minute details — on troop positions, terrain conditions, supplies, probable weather, intelligence — so that the commander in the field can reach a combat decision quickly. "Man isn't a very efficient calculator," says Dr. Seaton. In feeding data into and taking it out of the computers, he makes one error for every 200 digits. The machine makes an error only once in every 100,000,000,000,000 times it is fed data, according to this scientist, who has theories on eliminating human error as much as possible from the data processing chain. One idea is to give each number a color, a certain type of shading and unique shape so that it will be more easily remembered. Automation, he feels, forces a closer union between the engineering and psychological fields. But Dr. Seaton, a man who prefers to roll his own cigarettes, does not believe that man will become useless in future civilizations. He will merely be freed from trivialities. "The computing machine is a tool of the mental domain, just as the power shovel is a tool of the physical domain. People don't dig big holes by hand any more. In ten years, they won't make big piles of numbers by hand."

With Pershing in Mexico Cook Began Dishing Chow 42 Years Ago

If Sgt. Green L. Miller, Headquarters and Headquarters Company School Brigade had a nickel for every time he has called "chow time," in the Army he'd be a rich man. He started dishing up military chow 42 years ago when he joined Gen. John J. Pershing on the historic Mexican border expedition. Since then S-1 Miller has cooked his way through two world wars and the Korean conflict, with a few civilian "hitches" sandwiches in between.

The old-timer joined the Army for the first time June 19 1916. After basic training he was immediately "put in the kitchen." There was sound reason for this since Sgt. Miller had been cook on a boat plying the Choctawhatchee River in Florida.

He cooked for the 19th Regiment on the Mexican border for a year. In World War I his unit, Company G, 107th Regiment, 42nd Division, participated in seven major campaigns. A fire was built in the store and the meal cooked in Forest, Chateau Thery and Belleau Wood.

"The unit was in combat for a year and a half. At one time the men were in the front lines for 10 days without relief. Company G, which entered the battle of Chateau Thery 130 strong, had 50 surviving after the campaign ended. For five days, Sgt. Miller said, the kitchen was unable to cook the men, and they subsisted on dry rations which they carried with them.

World War II found Sgt. Miller assigned to skeletonized duty. But he was still in see action in Korea with the 17th Artillery. He was on hand when the Army he'd be a rich man. He started dishing up military chow 42 years ago when he joined Gen. John J. Pershing on the historic Mexican border expedition. Since then S-1 Miller has cooked his way through two world wars and the Korean conflict, with a few civilian "hitches" sandwiches in between.

Improved Chow Today He can testify that today's Army chow is much improved over World War I days. "The rations were simpler then because they didn't have proper refrigeration," he said. "Meats consisted almost entirely of meat, potatoes, gravy, canned vegetables and occasionally canned fruits for dessert. There was no milk, very little butter, no cheese, no fresh eggs, bacon, pie, cake or pudding."

Cooking on the front lines does not mean "rolling in a slicking," recalled Sgt. Miller, a chunky, gray-haired man with a ready smile. These consist of a ration cart, a water cart and a wood-burning stove, all joined together and driven by horses. When the kitchen halted, the three units were separated. A fire was built in the store and the meal cooked in short order.

Contrast this with the way the Army cooks in Korea with gasoline stoves. Rations were delivered all the way up to the front lines, and the troops were fed on the spot. Due to long stretches of climate, Sgt. Miller's wife is credited with only 24 years of military service. At one time he bought a tin of groceries from Ozark, Ala., and still calls that city his home. His wife managed the store while he was away until they sold it in 1952.

Army Set To Harness Missouri

The Army's Corps of Engineers has a new harness ready to throw on the mighty Missouri River. The engineers are wary they know the river, like a young colt, can be obstinate and uncooperative when it comes to harnessing.

Obstinate or not, on July 1 the engineers started construction on the final 300-foot section of the nation's largest roll-of-fill earth dam, Oahe, near Pierre, S.D.

The battle between the engineers and the river doesn't really get exciting until the last 25 feet of fill in. At this point the river begins to feel the squeeze of its new harness. And here is where the "Eucuk" enters the picture. Knowing that the final battle to close off the river will be tough and that the river has had an earth-moving velocity of unprecedented speed and size built for the job.

It is a machine that will carry 120 tons of earth and rock in a single load at a speed of 35 mph. It stands 14 feet high, with a hopper body 6 feet long and 15 1/2 feet wide. When the round-the-clock battle to completely harness the river begins on August 3, the Eucuk will be supported by a fleet of the latest built concrete trucks and power shovels available.

The climax of the battle will be reached when the Eucuk and its supporting equipment will be called upon to dump 20,000 tons of rock, shale and earth into the channel fast enough to keep the swift current away as it is placed. The earth and rock will form a temporary barrier that will force the river from its natural channel into six giant tunnels.

To Harness Missouri

3,200 feet long. This converted, the river will dry up and the final section of the dam can be completed. The $60 million dam has been under construction by the Army's Corps of Engineers since 1948. It is 1 and three-quarters miles long, stands 240 feet high and is nearly a mile thick at its base. When the river is finally tamed, as she will be, and the Oahe "stands" completed, the Army Engineers will have another notch of honor on their long line of peacetime achievement.

Coordinated Action Aids Caribbean Mercy Cases

PORT BRAGO, Canal Zone (AP)—"Bird-Dog" calling abroad. Location approximately 200 miles from Panama, and on course from Honduras. Patient doing well. Doctor requests ambulance stand by.

The Air Force is also active throughout its various interests... Obviously a "mercy mission" is almost routine at the U.S. Army Caribbean headquarters, where the surgeon's office reports a yearly figure of 100 such medical air evacuations from countries in Central and South America.

Grads Told Higher Skill Required

Personnel in these remote areas—either actually remote or only in the sense that they are far removed from medical attention at a large Army or U.S. government hospital—must be able to handle more complex and more unmanageable serious illness crises. As many as ten Army and Air Force medical officers are assigned to work in favor of coordinated emergency action as the call for help arrives.

Brig. Gen. Chester B. De Garry, said the medical and complexity of weapons requires higher skilled men to operate them. "Operators have increased the destruction and complexity of weapons, forgetting to provide for the improvement of men to operate these weapons," observed Gen. De Garry.

"You are members of an army composed of a small core with its few fall (pre-structure) drop and spot landing requirements. The thought is find plenty of takers among his fellow cadets when he returned to the Point and canvassed for a team. Scuba diving is a challenging sport, but its daredevil enthusiasts never complain about that "let-down feeling."

Miss Robson took off her polish.

Cadet Trains As Free Fall Sky Diver

PORT BRAGO, N.C. (AP)—"Go, Gabriel, go!" And Gabriel, following the pilot's shout, went—right out of the plane to become a free fall sky diver. Gabriel, who didn't give up in his campaign to go down.

But Gab persevered. Joined the Parachute Club of America and corresponded with its president, Jacques Bell, former U.S. experimental sky diver. And his big break came when he read that the Army was forming skydiving teams with airborne units.

Gen. Chester B. De Garry, said the medical and complexity of weapons requires higher skilled men to operate them. "Operators have increased the destruction and complexity of weapons, forgetting to provide for the improvement of men to operate these weapons," observed Gen. De Garry.

Nike-Ajax Tucks Sleeping Cities Beneath Its Wings

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—At the Army's Explorer, America's first earth-steller, circles the globe every 114 minutes. It passes over some of the 65 Nike-Ajax batteries of the Army Air Defense Command guarding American cities and worldwide defense installations, all powered by a single engine and mated in the past four years, all on guard night and day.

Nike-Ajax is the first member of this stock and deadly family to tuck sleeping cities under its wings. Capable of effectively engaging hostile aircraft, including supersonic bombers and fighters, it is soon to be reinforced by the Nike-Hercules and Hawk team, a destructive duo which, coordinated by the Nike-Master, is able to down high and low-flying planes, singly or in formation.

Nike-Ajax can tackle any one plane. The atomic-warhead second generation Hercules cannot only fly higher and faster than Ajax, but can destroy an entire formation of planes in the air today or on the drawing boards for the next few years.

Planes, however, are not its primary target. Hercules can hit and kill aerodynamically supported guided missiles flying over West Point. The Ajax liked the idea and passed it on to Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davis, Academy superintendent, with a promise of cooperation if permission was granted.

Both Nikes Ajax and Hercules had a weakness, however: that the Army quickly forgot and connected. They could fly high and fast but were off lesser protection against low-flying planes that could swoop against American cities underneath the eyes and ears of protective radar.

The answer to that poser wasn't long in coming. The Ajax was hatched and those quickly grown fledglings, mounted in crates on mobile loaders, tied into the Nike net.

Special Forces Train For Guerrilla Activity

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (ANP)—Paratroopers are being trained in guerrilla warfare on a mountainous terrain. The black belts will be issued to EM entitled to allowances and gratuity issues of clothing after Oct. 1, 1958. An EM will be required to own two black belts by April 15, 1959. Regular Army personnel, who have never been issued the new belts, must purchase them from their uniform maintenance allowance by that time.

Soundly taught it is. It has to be. These paratroopers of Fort Bragg's unique Special Warfare Center have the wartime mission of "infiltrating by land, sea or air into enemy-held territory for the conduct of guerrilla warfare." In every war up to and including Korea, the threat of guerrilla bands in rear areas has made the tyrant's role an uneasy one, keeping large portions of his forces pinned down seriously guarding rear areas. But ill-equipped guerrillas must battle ever-growing odds as warfare becomes more and more scientific. That's where the 77th comes in. It is part of a two-pronged attack the Army's Special Warfare Branch is prepared to launch to aid guerrillas in oppressed territories. Psychological warfare builds up civilian sympathy for guerrillas. At the same time, daring Special Forces operators parachute into enemy territory to give specialized training to guerrilla bands. "How did they teach me my job?" asks a young corporal. "Well, I spent six weeks sweating over demolitions work. That's my specialty. "While I was going through that my buddies were learning their jobs. Communications, medical, weapons—we have experts in all of these. "When we finished our special training we know our own jobs pretty well. Then they sent us into the second phase part of it to get the big picture. We were told how Special Forces doctrine has been developed and how the Army looks at Special Forces today. "The third part of our training was the key. We took a 12-week jungle-rookie course. Five weeks of it was in the field, teaching us to work together as a team. "In addition, the 77th's men go to ranger, survival, language, jungle warfare, mountain, cold weather, medical—all sorts of schools. "Some go to the Navy's frogman school and the Air Force survival school. The 77th has representatives at the Marine Officers School and the Special Warfare school here. They get ready for anything. They train from Pike's Peak in the Rockies to roisibly hot islands in the Caribbean. They stop over with the snakes and crocodiles in some of North Carolina's tidal swamp. But it's paraching that's the man talk about. Jumping is a constant activity in nearly 50,000 jumps made by the group's members there has never been a fatality. More than 90 per cent of the jumps are made at night, often on small, unmarked drop zones without the safety identification aids used by conventional airborne units.

When 49th Star Added Nation Must Purchase 40,000,000 New Flags

NEW YORK (AP)—When the 49th star for Alaska—the Army's Heraldic Division is going to have dollar signs as well as stars in its eyes. The division has the job of buying flags for the Army, Navy and Air Force. According to a recent estimate, there are 40,000,000 American flags in the country today. A goodly percentage of them, of course, in use by the Armed Services. They are obsolete with Alaska joining the Union, and no one can say with authority what the cost of replacement of the Union will be. But one thing's for sure—it will be steep enough to make the taxpayer with Betty Ross was still around to organize a sewing circle with a 40,000,000 membership. So far, government agencies have received about 400 proposals for the 49-star flag. Several of these would put the stars in circles; others would drop the blue field, which is against the law. One would have the stars spell out USA, and still another would put the 49th star in a row by itself. One logical solution would be seven rows of seven stars. It probably will fall to President Eisenhower to decide who will pick the new design.

Class Hears Col. Doerr

Col. Paul L. Doerr, deputy chief of the Mutual Security Division of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., spoke on the "Mutual Security Program" at Fort Benning June 26. He addressed students attending the 1st Lt. and 2nd Lt. officers advanced class No. 4 at 10 a.m. in the Main Theater. Col. Doerr was honored at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess.

CDEC Plans For Warfare Of 1965-70

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The Executive Editor of Army Magazine, John B. Spore, reports from Fort Ord, Calif., that the Army's Combat Development Experimentation Center there has the immediate and pressing task of conducting experiments designed to enable the commander to recommit the basic organization, tactics, equipment and weapons for use by the Army between 1965 and 1970. Quoted CDEC's command-er (Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Gibbs) Spore writes that CDEC is not attempting to predict what kind of tactics and techniques, and furnished with what kind of arms and equipment will be so efficient they can defeat any enemy on a battlefield of the future. In his experiments, Army's editor explains in the July issue of his magazine, CDEC were not realistic for a cowboy boot, or the infantryman's high field boot. Of obvious strength and with a high toe, it is 12 inches from bottom of heel to top of uppers, and has a corky way of wrinkling around the ankles. But there were jumpers before there were jump boots. The first U.S. Army paratroopers were cut-down cavalry boots, reinforced by a leather, spats-like arrangement tightly strapped around ankle and instep.

One of thousands of specific questions now being considered according to Spore, is: "Should company commanders be captains or majors?" "If CDEC's program seems ambitious," Spore concluded, "it is worth noting that higher authority thinks progress to date is worthwhile. Early in June, Secretary Brucker announced that CDEC was to be a permanent facility, thus giving a green light to its plans and programs."

Symbol of Courage Paratrooper Takes Pride in Jump Boots

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (ANP)—The rock-ribbed soldier who sings "Don't step on my blue suede shoes" doesn't have a thill on the Army paratrooper. His rubber inner sole was well meant, but caused more pain from the blisters it produced on the feet of hard-marching paratroopers than it alleviated as a shock absorber during jumps. Ties jammed against the rigid toe were inflated by the unyielding metal. Today's boot is essentially the same as that which came into use on the eve of World War II. It has a bowled, anti-trip heel and the rounded edges of the soles prevent cutting or fraying of parachute suspension lines should they tangle during deployment—a feat, the sharp-edged grommet boot. This boot and the soldiers wearing it have since proven they can take a lot of punishment during more than a dozen combat jumps behind enemy lines in two wars. The man and the boot go together, say paratroopers everywhere. They advertise prideful skill, toughness of body and spirit, and readiness around the clock.

The paratrooper boot would be a real boon for a cowboy boot, or the infantryman's high field boot. Of obvious strength and with a high toe, it is 12 inches from bottom of heel to top of uppers, and has a corky way of wrinkling around the ankles. But there were jumpers before there were jump boots. The first U.S. Army paratroopers were cut-down cavalry boots, reinforced by a leather, spats-like arrangement tightly strapped around ankle and instep.

Mail Goes To Detained

The American Red Cross will deliver mail as well as comfort parcels to the nine-man crew of an American Army helicopter held in East Germany since June 7. It was announced this week by President Alfred M. Gruenther. Arrangements for delivery of mail and parcels were made with the Red Cross Society of East Germany, which reported all nine American servicemen were in good health. Gen. Gruenther had previously reported agreement of the Red Cross in East Germany to accept Red Cross parcels for American army detainees, but word about transmittal of mail to the helicopter team was withheld until their families had been advised of their welfare by the Department of Defense. Eight of the nine soldiers had their wives with them in West Germany, with the ninth serviceman's wife being in this country. However, all have parents or other close relatives in the United States. An East German Red Cross report that "families need have no concern" about the condition of the crew has now been given, by relatives both at home and abroad, along with a notice that the Red Cross will get letters delivered to them. "We are now making further request to the Red Cross Society of East Germany to arrange permission for letters from the American servicemen to be transmitted through Red Cross channels to their families," Gen. Gruenther said.

Play Gains Momentum In 14th Inf.

Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, Softball League could be leading for a three way tie for first place.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company has won its last eight games to bring the company from sixth place to tie for second place with 72nd Engineer Company.

Company C has the first place slot but it is being pushed hard by the second place teams. Company C has a 15-4 record and the two second place teams are holding a 18-4 record, with several games remaining to be played by each team.

The league saw a big upset when 87th Chemical Company, the third place team, defeated Company C by a score of 21-7 and held the powerful Company "C" scoreless after the second inning. The game opened with the 87th Chemical Company "Smokers" scoring five runs, but Company C closed the gap and surged ahead with a two run lead. During the fifth inning, the Smokers started an onslaught that Company C could not stop.

Pfc. Robert Spitzer was credited with the victory for the 87th Chemical Company and Bud Young was credited with the loss for Company C.

Two-Mile Competition Denman Places Fourth In National Walk Event

The School Brigade's Olympic walker, Pfc. Elliott Denman set a new meet record when he won the Southern Pacific AAU two-mile walk at Los Angeles, Calif. June 13. Denman, assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, followed up the win June 21 by placing fourth against the best walkers of the United States in the two-mile event of the National AAU Track and Field Championships at Bakerfield, Calif.

Denman was a member of the All-Army team for the two meets on the West Coast. His record, with several games remaining to be played by each team.

Charlie Quinn Reds Can Expect Sharp Competition

"You have 800,000 men. What would you do if I were to march on you with 1,000,000 men?" Kaiser Wilhelm II is supposed to have asked the President of Switzerland.

"I'd order each of my men to fire twice," the Swiss leader was reported to have replied.

We know that the Kaiser didn't march on Switzerland but on Paris to meet the same feat inferred by the Swiss leader.

"The Americans fell back across the (Marne) river in apparent disorder," wrote a German officer eye witness, "and disappeared into the wheat fields beyond. Our elite battalions swept across after them and then—it was awful! The Americans hadn't run but had dropped into the wheat in a huge semi-circle and their ghostly rifle fire shot dead whole battalions. It was the most terrible thing I've ever seen." The historian was writing about 88th Infantry Regiment.

A mere handful of Finnish riflemen lay in the terrible cold of the shores of Lake Ladoga in the 1930's to methodically decimate horrified Red aggressor columns. Victory was lost to the Finns only because the Reds were foisted upon by a greater fear—that of their own so-called "leaders."

The traditional skill of the American rifleman might best be described by the following anecdote.

It is said that British military leaders were called on the carpet by Parliament during the War of 1812 and excoriated for losing the conflict. The generals took the accusations in silence and then turned to the British Parliament and said: "There, My Lords, is the reason we've lost the war."

It can be said that the quills which traced the Declaration of Independence merely wrote in ink those principles which had been first underlined by the streaking smokes of American rifles. Two tools are credited with the building of America: the rifle and the axe and the rifle came first.

In this day and age of the atom, nuclear weapons, inter-continental missiles and other devices for long range devastation, the Infantry's basic weapon is still the rifle.

American skill with the rifle must still be maintained, therefore, and continue to be a mandatory military necessity. Today the rifle and the pistol have taken on an added responsibility—that of maintaining Western prestige in the "cold war." This year America is sending some of its finest marksmen to compete in World Rifle and Pistol Championships at Moscow this fall. Shooting will be the Swiss, the Finns, Swedes and Germans, all of whom will be intent upon wresting any range supremacy from the Red grasp.

It is known that Soviet rifle and pistol teams are subsidized by the state and that they are just as much a part of the Red scheme as are the collective farm, the net of puppet states and the Kromin. The primary purpose is not the advance of rifle and pistol shooting as a sport but the advance of world Communism.

Against them will be shooting the American with his inherited love of the rifle; the Finn, who has carried a rifle in his vast forests for hundreds of years; the Swiss, one of whose favorite pastimes is "Schutzenfest" and the German, who has produced some of the world's finest sporting arms, among others.

This week the column title it print in salute to the U. S. Rifle and Pistol Team which will depart in a few days en route to world competition—a group of American marksmen of whom we all may well be proud.

Co. G Cops Field Day Competition

Thank You for Continuing our third place with 418.

The grenade throw for accuracy contest was won by John D. Tucker, Company G, Clemson College. Charles W. Linder, Company B, Furman University, won second place.

One day in the early nine-months work. Granted that was a little complicated, at least in the simplest to run but a little more complicated in the details. The explanation was that the individual and team medal play tournament works like this: Each player signs up as an individual when he is ready to start his round. He is placed in a group of players ranked by their handicaps, as for example, all players over and below in Group A, players between 11 and 18 in Group B, and all others in Group C. The player shoots his round and turns in his total score. The tournament committee then deducts the player's handicaps from their score and the lowest total score (raw score less handicap) is the winner. This type of tournament is the simplest to run but a little more complicated in the details. 499th Personnel Take Advantage Of Army Educational Opportunity Personnel in the 499th Engineer Battalion are taking advantage of opportunity to raise their education level through facilities of the Army Educational Development Center.

Personnel in the 499th Engineer Battalion are taking advantage of opportunity to raise their education level through facilities of the Army Educational Development Center.

First Lt. Lindenburgh H. Bell, commanding officer of Company B, 499th Engineer Battalion, since October, 1957, is preparing to attend the advanced enlistment officer course at Fort Belvoir, Va. Lt. Bell and Capt. William G. Kelton, who will succeed Lt. Bell as company commander, are in the process of inventoring the company prior to the actual change of command.

First Lt. John Tempelwill Medical Service Corps, has been assigned to the 499th Engineer Battalion as the commanding officer of the Medical detachment.

Playing Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Combat Group, Headquarters and Service Company, 37th Engineer Construction Battalion, encountered stiff competition June 23 in the Group Softball Tournament.

Sic. Jack E. Slusher was the starting pitcher for the 37th company team and continued through the bottom of the third inning to hold the visitors scoreless at 0-0. In the top of the third, the visitors tied the score.

Going into the sixth, the score again favored the visitors 12-10, but Sgt. Jack D. Howe, 37th catcher, hit the only home run for the home team, with one man on, and tied the score. Recognizing the visitors' 12-10 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning, Pfc. Thurman Johnson, 37th, squelched the visitors by hitting in two runs with a double to tie the score again. Pfc. Johnson also scored the winning run off the bat of Pfc. Henry Frederick. This see-saw tied ended with Headquarters and Service Company of the 37th winning 16-15.

Standing undefeated in the Group tourney with only four teams remaining in the elimination process, 37th, coached by Sgt. Dale Coover, faces a 60th Engineer Field Maintenance Company next.

Through the activities of the educational development section, several personnel in the battalion have received certificates showing completion of the eighth grade education level. Some personnel have successfully completed the high school level GED tests and have secured their high school diplomas.

The role of the 49th Engineer Company is to construct dummy and decoy targets, maintain targets, and a primary support unit to the Office of Human Resources Research.

Top Re-up NCO Sells Himself On 6 Years

Top re-enlistee of the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry has sold himself on his own re-enlistment program and will sign up for six more years this month.

M-Sgt. Louis D. Johnston, Headquarters Company turned in an 87.5 per cent record to help the Infantry School Troop Command attain the highest re-enlistment record of any major command at Fort Benning for the month of May.

Sgt. Johnston, holder of the Bronze Star for Valor for service in the army, before coming into the army, the sergeant served a two year hitch in the Merchant Marines.

The re-enlistment record set by Sgt. Johnston was accompanied by a letter from the sergeant concerning his problems.

"I'm a sergeant continued, "their problems consist mostly of overseas assignments, change of command, family wishes and many other things too numerous to mention. Every individual has a different re-enlistment problem."

Aerobee-Hawk New Missile Formed Through Army-Navy

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—An outstanding example of Army and Navy cooperation was demonstrated here with the firing of a revolutionary new velocity and temperatures 90 miles above the earth. Called the Aerobee-Hawk, the rocket was fired by the White Sands Signal Agency in recent initial tests. One of the unusual aspects of the new rocket is the variety of component parts, which are: a motor from the Army's Hawk, a missile designed for use against low-flying aircraft, a tail fin from a Navy-Army Signal Corps Aerobee. One nose cone from a Navy-Army Signal Corps Coyne. In addition, the new rocket is being fired from an Army Nike launcher at the Nike blanchard here.

Data collected from the firings is being given to scientists of 10,000 feet near Hesse, Calif., an assistant fire chief here, his badge. It was returned to him by a camp worker, who said it just fell into his pocket.

Enemy Minutes Away

Platoons in Korea Train Hard for Perilous Role

TONGGU, Korea (AP)— "We are an army in ourselves," is a common claim among soldiers of the reconnaissance platoons of the First Cavalry Division.
 Although small in numbers, a recon platoon in the new pentomic organization has become a potent fighting force in itself, ready to scout a sector, take a hillside, or carry out that most difficult of maneuvers, the delaying action.
 "Our principal mission is to be the eyes and ears" of the battle group," explains one recon platoon leader, 2nd Lt. Richard B. Toser. "But because our scouting job puts us into forward positions, we are also usually the first to enter an engagement and the last to withdraw from it. Since we operate so often on our own, our men must be infantry, artillery, armor, engineers, and signallers all rolled into one platoon."
 The platoon, for its size, gets exceptional mobility with armored personnel carriers and jeeps and exceptional firepower with several kinds of automatic weapons, mortars for as-illery support, medium tanks with 60mm guns, and a 3.5 rocket launcher.

 Demolitions may determine the success or failure of the delaying action, and recon soldiers are trained to use explosives as well as an unusual number of weapons.
 According to Sgt. Robert M. Della, a combat-seasoned sergeant of a First Cav recon platoon who recently returned to the States, they had to trail harder than an ordinary line unit.
 "The recon outfit has to work perfectly as a team in order to function at high speed when the chips are down. The right reaction to unexpected situations must be instinctive."
 Training realism is not sufficient in Korea. They are working over terrain on which they might have to fight. The knowledge that a potential enemy is only minutes away adds zest to the problems.

ULTIMATE MAN
 Quote of the week: "Although we are developing weapons of awesome power and vehicles and equipment of extended capabilities, their effectiveness in combat will be no greater than the skill and courage of the men who use and maintain them in battle."—General Maxwell D. Taylor.

Army Prepares Books Program

WASHINGTON (ANS) — A Contemporary Military Reading Program has been prepared by the Department of the Army to read current thought-provoking books about military science and related subjects.
 Currently 1,000 military science book kits containing 35 titles each are being purchased for Army-wide distribution to Special Services libraries.
 These kits, called "The Contemporary Military Reading List," will expand, not replace, local procurement of military science library materials, the Army said.

There has been a continuing shortage of instructor personnel in Army Service schools and qualified EM are urged to apply for this type of assignment under the provisions of AR 611-214, the Army said.

Hello and Goodbye

Brothers Crisscross At Benning's 29th

It was hello and goodbye when two brothers met in Company D, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry. They had not seen each other for over four years.
 When Sgt. Benicio Corrales joined the company June 1 his brother, Sgt. Eliseo Corrales, was in the process of leaving the post for a 30 day leave to Puerto Rico prior to leaving for three years duty in Germany. Eliseo departed Fort Benning June 18.
 Benicio and Eliseo last saw each other in Puerto Rico in 1954 when Eliseo came back there to re-enlist and Benicio was stationed there with the Third Infantry Division. Prior to this meeting, the brothers had not seen each other since 1950 when they said goodbye in Puerto Rico, and Benicio who had just joined the army was leaving for Korea.
 Benicio joined the army in Puerto Rico in 1950 and was assigned to the Third Infantry Center Ordnance Section, which was established there with the Third Infantry Division. Prior to this meeting, the brothers had not seen each other since 1950 when they said goodbye in Puerto Rico, and Benicio who had just joined the army was leaving for Korea.
 The brothers are from a family of nine brothers and two sisters. One of the brothers is in the National Guard and another in the regular army.
 Eliseo and Benicio played baseball on the same team in their home town of Carolina, Puerto Rico. This team was in the class A Amateur League in 1948 and 1949. Eliseo was the second baseman, and Benicio was the third catcher.
 Benicio plans to attend college under the new army plan. He hopes to attend New York University or the University of Puerto Rico where he will major in chemistry, a subject that he became interested in while attending high school. Eliseo plans on an army career.

assigned to the Third Infantry Division where he saw combat service in Korea.
 Eliseo, upon graduation from high school, followed in his brother's footsteps by joining the army in 1951. He was assigned to the Second Infantry Division and also saw combat service in Korea.
 During the 18 days that the brothers were together at Fort Benning, Eliseo stayed with Benicio's home on post quarters. Benicio's wife returned to Puerto Rico with Eliseo and his family for a short visit.
 Benicio was granted a request from his last duty station in Hawaii to transfer to D Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry. It was not until he had arrived that he learned that his brother was on orders to go to Germany.

MRS. HEARN... Mrs. Dorothy J. Hearn, Infantry Center Ordnance Section, has been awarded $12.50 for a joint suggestion that will simplify filing procedure.

Army to Test New 'Copter

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new two-man helicopter designed for simplicity and economy, will soon be put through operational tests at Fort Rucker, Ala., home of the U. S. Army Aviation Center.

Production of the first five of the new helicopters ordered by the Army is now under way at the Hughes Tool Corp. plant in Culver City, Calif., which is making the Model 269A, available first to the armed services.

The 269A weighs only 800 pounds empty, but carries a load of 800 pounds. Its top speed is 90 mph and it has a cruising range of 150 miles. It is powered by a 4-cylinder engine which is easily removed for maintenance.

ROTC Camp Holds Field Problem Test

The annual field problem test, formerly known as the leader's reaction course, will be conducted July 8 through 21. Conducted under simulated combat conditions, the course will last approximately four hours and will confront the potential military leader with 12 related and unrelated situations that may arise during an actual combat encounter. Each situation will require approximately 18 minutes to complete.

An active aggressor force composed of troops from Company B First Battle Group, 325th Infantry Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division, acting as camp support troops, will engage the cadets in each of the situations, to which there will be no defined school solution. Cadet leaders will change with each situation, giving each cadet the opportunity to participate in a command position. Each leader will be tested and graded on his immediate reaction to a particular problem, and his conduct of a solution to reduce it. Cadets acting as members of the squad or patrol will be graded on their individual actions and response to commands during the actual conduct of the situation.

Lt. Col. Edward H. Hendrickson, assistant professor of military science and tactics of The Citadel and chief of the camp's General Subjects Committee, has been designated as the responsible officer for the operation of the test.

AMERICA'S first surface-to-surface ballistic guided missile, the Army's Corporal E, was fired in May 1947. This research test vehicle attained a range of 62.4 miles.

At Ceremonies 2nd Welcomes Gen. Wienecke

Review ceremonies were held at Wetherby Field, Sand Hill area, July 16, welcoming Major Gen. Herbert H. Wienecke as new commander of Second Infantry Division.

Gen. Wienecke accepted the Division flag from Brig. Gen. Walter O. Perry, who has been commander of the division since its organization at Fort Benning last month.

Review held Some 400 troops, representing every unit of the Second Infantry Division, led by Col. William A. Purdy, commanding officer, First Battle Group, 67th Infantry, passed in review before their new commander.

Opening the morning ceremony was 13-gun salute from a battery of 105mm howitzers from Second Division Artillery. Concluding the review was a flyover with aircraft from the Second Aviation Company.

The new commander heard the Second Division March, by the Second Infantry Division Band, under the baton of CWO Mariano Morales.

Brig. Gen. Perry will take up his position as commanding general, Second Division this spring.

A reception for Gen. and Mrs. Wienecke will be held at the Main Officers' Mess, July 20.

The Second Division came to Fort Benning following a province swap between the 10th and Third Infantry Divisions this spring.

The Third Division moved to Germany under the move. It was replaced at Fort Benning by the 10th Division.

The 10th Division, however, was deactivated last month and the Second Division took its place here. Personnel and equipment of the 10th were transferred to the deactivated division.

Army Artillery will mark its 133rd year of service July 21.

Congratulations have been extended to the artillery on its anniversary by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, and Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., Fort Benning commander.

Gen. Taylor's message said: "On behalf of the men and women of the Army, I extend congratulations to the members of the Artillery on the 133rd anniversary of its establishment."

"With the unbroken record of service extending from the Revolutionary War to the present, the United States Artillery possesses a tradition of military distinction. While Artillery weapons have undergone revolutionary change from the smooth-bore cannon of the past to the rockets and guided missiles of today, the basis of the Artillery's tradition—the proven skill of American Artillerymen in the precise delivery of devastating firepower—remains the same. With enhanced capability of the United States Army may look forward to new developments in the future." (Please See Artillery, Page 2)

FORE... C. B. Fulton discusses the finer points of his hobby, golf, with Capt. Mohamad Ahanchi, right, during the captain's visit to the Fulton home as part of "Operation Hospitality."

Operation Hospitality' Birmingham Hosts 53 Allied Officers

In "Operation Hospitality" 53 Allied officers attending The Infantry School travelled 160 miles to be the weekend guests in Birmingham, Ala., families recently.

The unique occasion culminated careful planning by Birmingham's Chamber of Commerce and Club of All Nations and "The Infantry School's Allied Liaison Section. Officers from Afghanistan, Burma, Nationalist China, Ethiopia, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Jordan, Republic of Korea, Liberia, Libya, Norway, Philippines, Thailand and Turkey enthusiastically took advantage of the opportunity for a first-hand look at home life in a large American city.

Following the popularity of a bus trip to New Orleans, La., last Thanksgiving, when the Allied officers were housed at Camp Leroy Johnson, a day trip to Atlanta, Ga., Infantry School officials contacted Birmingham leaders on the possibility of the weekend visit.

Enthusiastic response provided the 53 travellers with more offers of host homes than there were visitors.

During their stay at Fort Benning, Allied students may tour Columbus business establishments, speak on their respective home cities. (See Birmingham, Page 9)

Army Emergency Relief performs the essential function of providing financial assistance to members of the Army and their dependents to relieve distress.

Similarly, the Army Relief Society assists needy wives and dependents of Regular Army officers and enlisted men.

The efforts of these two worthwhile organizations, supported by contributions from members of the Army, constitute an important benefit of military service.

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of The Infantry Center, has urged all-out support of the drive by Fort Benning personnel in order to hurdle over the top of the post's $20,000 goal.

Personnel may contribute to the campaign through the AER officer at company level.

CG Honors Top Troops First Place Trophy Given OC Stevens, Past Sailor

Winners in the Fort Benning annual Outstanding Soldier competition have received recognition by the commanding general of The Infantry Center, Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr.

Officer Candidate Robert L. Stevens of 52nd Company of the School Brigade was presented the Outstanding Soldier Trophy by Gen. Freeman.

Varied Events Stevens was the high-point man in a three-day competition in which contestants were required to amass points in such events as rifle and pistol competition, physical training, military knowledge, appearance, manual of the Army and grenade throwing.

Although Stevens has not been in the Army long, he is no new-comer to military service.

Aviation Ordnanceman He served in the Navy from 1948 to 1952 as an aviation ordnanceman and was a member of the first atomic warfare group to be formed by the Navy. Stevens served in the U. S. and Europe and was on several liaison missions in Turkey, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Germany, France and England.

After his discharge from service, Stevens entered Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg and completed 3 and one half years of pre-medical study, working part-time at Forrest General Hospital.

Medical Service Upon completion of Officer Candidate School, Stevens hopes to be commissioned in the Army Medical Service.

Stevens completed his medical studies while in the Army. He is an instructor on the Basic Airborne Course of the Infantry School's Airborne Mobility Dept.

He entered the Army after (Please See Troops, Page 2)

He was greeted at Lawson Army Airfield at 8:15 a.m. by Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center.

Gen. Ruffner traveled by helicopter from Lawson Field to Stroup Field in the Harmony Church area, where he attended a briefing at ROTC Camp headquarters and inspected facilities of the camp.

Later that morning, the three-star general visited a Reserve unit, the Third Army Engineers School, as it participated in barrier and denial operations in the Kelly Hill area.

He also visited ROTC students at an Infantry-Tank team attack at Buma Hill and rifle platoon in attack on Weigle Range and the 25th Ordnance Company (USAR) in on-the-job training in the Harmony Church Ordnance Area.

An official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess honored Gen. Ruffner before his departure.

heights of achievement in its continuing service to Country. Gen. Freeman said: "On the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the Artillery, I extend heartfelt congratulations and best wishes on behalf of all personnel of the United Army Infantry Center. The proud heritage and outstanding record of the Artillery are sources of pride to every member of the Army establishment. The members of the Artillery in meeting the challenge created by scientific and technological advances in modern weapons have displayed consummate skill and unfailing devotion to duty. I am confident that the Artillery, an indispensable element of the Army's military strength, will fulfill its future missions with the same efficiency which has characterized its marked record of the past."

3-A Food Service School Grew Up With Infantry Center at Benning

Not many military units have stood up with their home states. The post has been the home of the school for its entire 36-year history. From 1922 until 1939 the school was located in three temporary locations. In 1939 the Quartermaster Corps arranged to construct a building suitable for food service instruction. The resultant structure, Bldg. 89, has been the title of Fort Benning since 1949.

For Second Straight Year Johnson Named Top ROTC Aide-de-Camp

Edward Oliver Johnson Jr., Atlanta, Ga., a student at North Georgia College, has been selected for his second year of duty as aide-de-camp to Col. Carl H. Hill, commander of the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp. In accomplishing this feat, Cadet Johnson furthered the cause of North Georgia College and lengthened the gap between his school and The Citadel in their unofficial race to see which institution will furnish the most cadets. North Georgia has now had 11 cadets selected for the honor, while the runner-up, The Citadel, has furnished two.

Aides are selected each afternoon during the cadet guard mount and are carefully examined on military appearance, bearing and knowledge. Other universities and colleges who have had cadets selected as aides are Mercer University, University of Puerto Rico and the University of Georgia. Cadets from North Georgia College honored to date are: Johnson; William K. Williams, Alma, Ga.; Hunter W. Adams, Atlanta; James W. Elliott, New Holland, Ga.; John R. Smith, Dalton, Ga.; Samuel C. Allison Jr., Columbus; Joseph M. Clement, Mineral Bluff, Ga.; Curtis W. Barfield, Waycross, Ga.; John H. Covender, Waycross, Ga.; and Jesse D. Dumas, Forsyth, Ga. The Citadel is represented by William J. Buchanan, Charles-

Enlisted Men's Wives Club Does Big Job for Benning Community

Community and family welfare, educational projects and a growing social and recreational program highlighted the year's activities of one of Fort Benning's smallest organized groups, the Enlisted Men's Wives Club.

During the 1957-1958 season the enthusiasm of the approximately 45 active members of the organization has been responsible for a community and social development program usually attributed to a far larger group, according to official reports.

MRS. PHELPS... A $100 cash incentive award at the Infantry Center Adjutant General's Section and an outstanding job rating has been awarded Mrs. Edna G. Phelps, clerk-typist.

With a large percentage of membership employed in full time jobs, many of the group have contributed volunteer service to the American Red Cross and Girl Scout programs in addition to their full scale club activities.

One of the first big projects undertaken by the EM Wives Club at the beginning of the season was the preparation of their cook book, "Follow Me Into the Kitchen".

During the 1957 Christmas season, the club sponsored a children's "Yule" party at the Rocker Club. With the aid of the Non-Commissioned Officers Open House formal dinner was held for 100-odd dependents of all enlisted personnel.

Charity Dance The members arranged and held a charity benefit dance this spring to raise money for the exceptional children's clinic of the Fort Benning Children's School.

DUSA Gives Martin $100

One hundred dollars to purchase picture frames for the post's new Martin Army Hospital was donated by Daughters of the U. S. Army at its July luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess at Fort Benning.

The pictures to be framed are being provided by the American Red Cross and will be hung in the hospital corridors.

Guests for the luncheon were Mrs. James Hungeate and Mrs. James A. Reid. Thirty-two members attended the event.

Welcome to the organization were Miss Sewell Freeman,

Miss Linda Quinn, Miss Jean Hungeate, Miss Arden Edwards, Miss Sylvia Kuzing, Miss Loretta Casey, Miss Janet Isenhour, Mrs. Earl F. Holman, Mrs. J. B. Staker and Mrs. A. J. DeLuca.

A Fourth of July theme was carried out in the decorations, which were keyed by tiny flags and cutouts of minute trees and drums the length of the luncheon table.

The DUSA group will not hold a luncheon next month, but will entertain the Junior Army Daughters of America at a coffee Aug. 5.

Taylor Lauds 'Quality' Men In U. S. Army

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—It's always a pleasure, according to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, to go into the "field" and see the quality of the people wearing the United States Army uniform.

In his address to the 99th annual meeting of the United States Army Association (as reported by ARMOR magazine), the Army's Chief of Staff stated he was "implied by military history as I read it before becoming an active soldier" into believing that when the fighting is hardest the general comes up from the rear and slaps the men in the front line on the back and encourages them to take the hill and win the victory.

Instead," he commented, "I found in my combat experience that just the opposite was true. If I sat in my command post long enough and listened to all the shooting up front, I got scared. The only way I could become reassured was to go forward and see what the men were holding the battle front."

"I must say I share that feeling now as Chief of Staff," General Taylor continued, "because in the Pentagon with all the complexities of planning and organizing, and determining our national strategy, it is easy to become convinced that there are problems that are almost insolvable."

"However," he said, "I never return from a field trip where I have visited Army units without knowing there is nothing we cannot lick."

"And," he declared, "that is because of the quality of the personnel we have in the United States Army."

He is also the son of Major Gen. (Ret.) George A. Lynch, former chief of Infantry, U.S. Continental Army.

Col. Lynch, who is assigned to the 30th Infantry at Fort Sill, Okla., is at Fort Benning to take the Infantry of Color retrograde course no. 1 from July 6 to 19.

Firm to Open New Building

Grand opening of United Oil Corp.'s new building at 1100 13th St. is scheduled today at 9 a.m. and will continue through Saturday.

Housed in an ultra-modern split level brick building, the company has been carrying out operations at the new location since June 1.

The new building has over 27,000 feet of floor space and cost more than $200,000. It is located on a 150-by-170 foot lot. A courtyard provides 12,000 square feet of off-street parking—enough to handle 30 cars.

Facing the front, one can see two sections. The large section is the fire and appliance shop. The smaller is the wheel alignment department.

Behind the appliance and tire store are the general offices of the oil company, which distributes Shell products in the Columbus area.

Warehouse and storage facilities are located in a subterranean section of the structure. The entrance faces 13th Avenue.

The recapping department is one of the most modern in the South, according to Wyatt Gordon, head of outside commercial tire sales.

Six factory-trained men are able to process 100 tires a day. Fifteen recapping machines make up the $50,000 tire department.

The Bandrix method is used in recapping.

The recapping department is equipped to do sectional vulcanizing and can handle any tire through 1800 cross tread.

Besides recapping facilities, the company also sells Good-year tires, batteries, and rubber products.

Westinghouse appliances, RCA Victor radios, television sets, and records.

Capt. Departs 54th Medics

Capt. Donald Smith, former adjutant of the 54th Medical Group, left this week for a new assignment at Roddage Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.

Capt. Smith had served with the 54th Medical Group since February, 1953, and held the positions of operations and training staff officer, S-2 officer, and personnel staff officer and adjutant.

In addition to his duties with the 54th Medical Group, he found time to take part in several outside activities. His favorite League Baseball was his favorite avocation and he was a staunch supporter of the youngsters' teams.

Named Top Soldier Sgt Larry L. Morris, 80th Medical Company, was named soldier-of-the-month for June. He was awarded the honor by a board of officers composed of Major William C. Roach, 1st Lt. Edward H. Seaxaur and Thomas L. Truette for his military bearing, awareness of current events, and knowledge of military subjects.

All units of the 54th Medical Detachment are now missing on the Third Field Hospital Consolidated Mess Hall. The 60th Medical Company Mess Hall, formerly operated by the Third Army Food Service School personnel, has been closed because of lack of staffing of the Food Service School.

To Go Overseas Sgt John Malone, 542d Medical Company, a veteran of the war service, will leave for Germany in the near future. It will be Malone's fourth tour of duty in Europe. His first was as a tank commander during the invasion of France. He was in action on Omaha Beach and from there went into France, Belgium, Germany, and Austria with Gen. George S. Patton's 11th Armored Division.

In action near Bastogne, Malone received a bayonet wound in the hip, for which he was awarded the Purple Heart. The 60th Medical Company has three newly assigned officers, 1st Lt. Charles A. Mather and 2nd Lt. Thomas O. Mueller and Richard C. Proberg. They arrived here from the Brooks Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

1st Lt. Russell E. Dieter who was discharged on July 4 from the unit.

Two officers formerly members of the 50th Medical Group have departed. Capt. James J. Lash was transferred to the Main Recruiting Station in New York City and 1st Lt. Edward Seaxaur was discharged. Pfc Steven Walker, also formerly with the 50th Medical Company, is on a 30-day leave prior to going overseas for a new assignment in Europe.

Major George A. Worth has recently been assigned Battalion Executive Officer of the 57th Construction Engineers. Major Worth entered active service as a private at Valdosta, Ga., Oct. 9, 1952. After attaining the grade of master sergeant, he applied for and attended Officers Candidate School at Fort Belvoir, Va. in June, 1954. He was in combat during World War II with the 17th Armored Engineer Battalion, Second Armored Division, and the 29th Engineers Combat Battalion.

29th Honors Maj. Harrell At Ceremony

Major Edward M. Harrell, executive officer of the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, was accorded farewell honors in the School Troop Command parade area on July 16. He has been assigned to The Infantry Center G-3 Section.

Major Harrell had served as executive officer of the battle group since last February. He was the Infantry Center assistant inspector general prior to joining the 29th.

Major William F. Tansley, adjutant of the battle group since May, 1957, is the new acting executive officer. Capt. Claude H. Tolbert has assumed the duties of adjutant.

During World War II, Major Harrell served in the European Theater and participated in the Normandy, Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns. In 1954-55, he served with the Korean Military Assistance Group.

He is a graduate of the Advanced Infantry Officer course, Airborne school, and the Ranger course. He holds the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge, and Master Parachutist Badge.

Major Tansley joined the 28th Infantry in November, 1955. He commanded Headquarters Company prior to becoming adjutant.

1st Col. Noronha, Royal Indian Army, toured the battle group last week and was a special guest at an entertainment officers' swimming party. On his tour, he viewed a scout dog demonstration and inspected Headquarters Company and Company C.

Headquarters Company Capt. Felton J. Earis, USAR, Memphis, Tenn., joined the battle group intelligence section for 15-days on-the-job training. Another USAR officer, 1st Lt. Edwin H. Nottke, New York, N.Y., has been assigned to the organization, plans, training, and operations section.

Sgt. George Hoffman, battle group legal section, has left to attend the guided missile school at Fort Bliss, Tex.

On orders for duty in Europe are Sgt. S. Clifford S. Gilmore, Paul R. Smith and George McMullan. Pfc William, USAR, joined the unit for 15-days active duty training.

Company A The company staged last to some 75 ROTC cadets on July 2. They were introduced to the company administration, mess, and supply operations.

1st Sgt. Sherman Harris joined the unit last week.

Company B The company returned last Saturday after putting a new unit field training plan to test at the Ranger mountain camp. The unit conducted a comprehensive training schedule in addition to supporting the Ranger course. The size of the support detail was nearly doubled and the tour was lengthened by eight days to permit the training.

1st Col. Bunte, First Battle Group, 28th Infantry command, said the test results were being studied to determine whether the field training plan will be continued.

Joining the company were Sfc Pryor M. Booth and Raymond A. Harrison, Sfc. Paul D. Oden, and James D. Baldwin, and Pfc Otis L. Smith and David E. Bradley, Company C.

Sgt. McNeil Jenkins took leave to Cleveland, Ohio, to be with his wife and two children, son, born July 2.

Folkerts Wins Post Golf Tourney; 3-A Match Set Here July 21-26

Capt. Orville C. Folkerts, assigned to the School Brigade, became the 1958 Golf Champion of the Infantry Center July 17 when he posted a 72-hole total of 291 to win over some 42 starting competitors. Capt. Folkerts, playing in the Open Division of the links tournament, shot successive 18-hole rounds of 73-74-77-77 over the Fort Benning course to take the crown.

Played Cary Middlecoff

Folkerts Seen as Post's Top Hope in 3-A Contest

Capt. Orville C. Folkerts, 1958 Fort Benning golf champion, looks to be the post's brightest hope in the Third Army Championships scheduled here July 21-26. The first four finishers in The Infantry Center tournament are automatically picked to make up a four-man Fort Benning golf team which will compete against the top winners in the Southeast.

Capt. Folkerts' latest win is part of a brilliant and varied career. He once quit the game for 12 years, then came back to shoot a fantastic round of 62 at his home in Memphis, Tenn.

After several tournament wins during his high school days, Folkerts recalls that when he was 17, he faced Cary Middlecoff in a match. Middlecoff, who has since become one of the world's finest professionals, won the match, but only after Folkerts had given him a real battle. Folkerts shot 62 and an eagle on the first nine holes.

From shortly after his graduation from school in 1938, Capt. Folkerts did not touch a golf club for 12 years, but in 1951 he was back to his winning ways on the fairways. After a layoff that would have forced most men back to the "red" club, Folkerts won the Third Flight of the Southeastern Tournament that year, and in 1952 was the runner-up in the championships at Fort Benning. He also got to the semifinals of the Southeastern that year, finally being beaten by Doug Sanders on the 18th hole. Sanders has also become one of golf's well-known professionals.

After another layoff from the game from 1953 to 1956, Folkerts came back strongly and has won the Third Division

Post Plans One '58 Grid Team

Team tryouts and practice for the 1958 Fort Benning Doughboys football team will begin this fall. The team will have a single post team has been fielded. Last year there were 12 recreational teams at Fort Benning. Prospective gridsters will display their abilities in a 1 p.m. kickoff time as they vie for positions on the team. Applications for all team positions, including coaches, are now being accepted at Briant Wells Field House. More than 30 men are expected to attend the Saturday afternoon tryouts. The team will be limited to 45 players, including coaches and managers, and the selection of the footballers will be made after July 26. The Doughboys will play a other post teams in the Third Army area. The first game will be at Fort Gordon, Ga., Sept. 21. Capt. Deryle M. Mcbrinton, Infantry Center Special Services recreation officer, and Charles L. Finley of Special Services office will be in charge of tryouts.

World Championships U. S. Firers Off To Moscow Meet

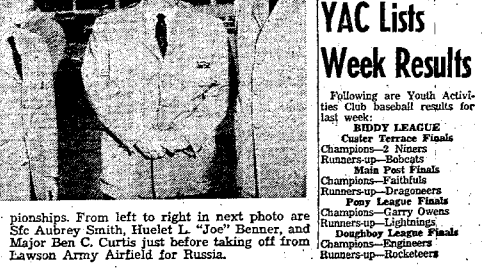

The U.S. Rifle and Pistol Team departed for Russia July 14 where it will compete in World Rifle and Pistol Championships next month. The team's departure was marked by formal ceremonies at Lawson Army Airfield during which Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center, extended his personal wishes for its success. Gen. Freeman, in speaking to each of the team members, also passed on wishes on success for all personnel of The Infantry Center.

Charlie Quinn Fishermen Advised Not To Harass Sick Anglers

Open letter to six strippers: You know and I know that the fishing fever is one of the most horrible diseases known to mankind. One who is never able until the victim goes fishing. We all know, too, that in steering our daily compass course, through this vale of tears, we often cause hurt to someone through a careless word or act. We are so intent upon the oscillations of the needles guiding our progress that we fail to consider that we might be affecting the progress of others, especially when they might be afflicted with the fishing fever and can't do anything about it.

You and I both know that fishing fever will cause the victim to jerk, twitch, fidget and go through red lights. He forgets to shave, his glassy eyes start to bug out and he can't do a lick of work. He becomes a broken hulk. Now — you are both rabid fishermen. You love the sport and have ample time to enjoy it. You're both expert anglers and you have pictures of land-locked striped bass from the Santee-Cooper Dam and South Carolina and seven and eight pound largemouths to prove it. You show the pictures around the office where you both work and talk about marvelous fishing, forgetting that a suffering victim of the fishing fever is within your hearing. Naming no names but the United States Army Infantry Center Finance and Accounting Officer is the poor sufferer. Men, as fishermen and fellow members of the Faded Hashmark Society, this has to stop, if not for the sake of one lieutenant colonel from Moultrie, Ga., for that of Fort Benning as a whole. First, it, men so that the colonel can go fishing and you'll not only stop his miseries but you'll help all who would like to see the next pay day pass without a hitch. Do this, men, and the names of Switzer and Pickett will be enshrined in our hearts forever. (end of Note).

2nd Cops 4 Rifle Medals At Lejune

A 12-man rifle team of the Second Infantry Division Messengers detachment returned to Fort Benning this week after participating in the 1958 U.S. Army Rifle Championship Matches at Camp Lejune, N. C. from July 10 through July 15. The first class competition saw over 300 competitors representing nearly 50 legions from the Continental Army Command, USAF, Pacific Command, Alaska, Hawaii and a team of Marines vie for honors, bringing to the ranges some of the top military rifle competition.

The Second Division team copped a total of four medals. Runners-up—Lighting Rifle, being home the first and eighth rapid fire respectively, plus a first sharpshooter in the 300 rapid fire and a fill sharpshooter in a combined rapid fire competition. Top scorers for the Indianapolis team were team captain, James Earl Blackman, firing a 471 aggregate and M-Sgt. Herschel Bay firing a 465. The team was some what of a letdown from the O a K Ridge Tennessee matches where the division took a total of 41 awards out of a possible 54 and Second, Fourth and Fifth place spots in team competition.

Third Straight Time 14th Infantry Drops Game to Medics 6-0

The league leading 54th Medical Group baseball club tonight pitted dual until the Medics broke loose for five runs in the sixth to put the game on ice. In that inning Bill Thompson singled off with a single for the Dragoners 6 to 0 on July 13 for the third straight time. John Bernard and John Alford again hooked up in the sixth after Coach Dale McCallum followed with a single and Bud Hay was safe on a drive through the pitcher's mound. This set the stage for Bill McLaughlin, three-run winner. Deacon Jones tripled to the wall in left center. The Medics added another marker in the seventh as Thompson led off with a single. Thompson forced him at second while John Alford followed with another single. Kruszins then scored Thompson with a single to right. Alford and Kruszins led the Medics hitters with two hits each while Chapman led the infantrymen with two hits. Bill McLaughlin extended his consecutive game hitting streak to 10.

Group Belts ROTC Camp

The 54th Medical Group played an exhibition game July 12 against the ROTC Camp and was victorious by a 10 to 4 score. The Medics jumped on Dodd, former Mississippi State College pitcher, for two runs in the first as Deacon Jones and Don Kruszins walked and Hay singled to score. McLaughlin fielded out scored Kruszins. The Medics scored again in the second inning when Trombino doubled and scored on Jones' single. The Medics made it 6 to 0 in the third when Dale McCallum singled. McLaughlin was safe on a fielder's choice, and b o t h runners scored on Harris' double off the left centerfield wall. The group added two more runs in the sixth after Coach Joe Shafran had put virtually a new team on the field. Tony Harris singled and Trombino and Carmochia walked. Harris scored on a wild pitch and Trombino followed him mugged later on Paul Erb's single.

54th Loses Close Tilt To 151st

The 54th Medical Group lost its first game of the season July 11 when they dropped a 6 to 4 game to the 151st Engineer Group in the Infantry Center Baseball League. The Engineers jumped off to six-run lead in the first inning and were never headed. The Medics outbid their opponents but were unable to make up the deficit. John Wagner started on the hill for the Medics but didn't last through the first inning as he gave up three hits and two walks. Two errors were made by the Medics, also. Bill McLaughlin came in to pitch, while Wagner gave up a two-run triple, and shut out the Engineers the rest of the way with only three hits. He struck out 11 during the rest of the game. The Medics scored two in the first as Deacon Jones doubled, Bud Hay was safe on an error, and McLaughlin singled both runners home after Hay had stolen second. The Medics were unable to score again until the seventh. Sal Carmochia was safe on an error and Ray Jones walked. Carmochia scored on Dale McCallum's double and Jones scored moments later on a pass ball.

The Medics threatened several times but couldn't push across the run. McLaughlin led the Medics batters with two hits in four trips to the plate. Let us say that you haven't been forewarned. The sport of archery and bow hunting has taken hold here on post to such an extent a complete field archers course has already been established, a practice range has been set up, picnic tables have been installed and on each Sunday afternoon, you'll find the whole toxophilite platoon engaged in shop talk and bow shooting. The new range is located off Old Warehouse Road (the first right on the Infantry Museum at Out Post No. 1 when coming on post). Take the dirt road just before the sign indicating the Small Animal cemetery.

Whitt's Automatic Transmission Service

Members are on the family style basis and are now open to all who'd like to join the Upatoi Bowmen Club. The annual membership fee is $5 for the whole family. It is suggested that you ride out to the Infantry Museum some Sunday p.m. Club members will be present after 2:30 p.m. and will be glad to sign you up or tell you how you may become a brother (or sister) toxophilite. You may have a little difficulty in understanding the strange vocabulary but interpreters will assist you. Once you begin to understand it all by yourself you've had it. You're a cooked goose! You're a toxophilite! The bow is a great piece of equipment and I know that you'll enjoy it. See you 'long about the middle of September after a tour at Camp Perry.

151st Engineer News

Top Units Presented Plaques

Monthly rotating plaques were presented recently at a 151st Engineer Group command staff conference by Col. C. C. Noble, group commander. The "best mass", "best supply", "best maintenance", "best safety", "best discipline", and "best re-entrant" awards were presented respectively to the 600th Engineer Company (Field Maintenance), 58th Engineer Company (Ft. Bridge), 58th Engineer Company (Ft. Bridge), 58th Engineer Company (Ft. Bridge), 58th Engineer Company (Ft. Bridge), and Headquarters and Service Company, 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat).

Receiving the annual "best safety" award was the 57th Engineer Battalion (Construction). The battalion was the rotating plaque six times during the period October, 1956, to September, 1957. Athletic-wise, trophies were presented to the following: Group Bowling, Company C, 151st Engineer Battalion; Group Volleyball, 600th Engineer Battalion; Group Rifle Marksmanship, Company C, 49th Engineer Battalion, and Group Pistol Marksmanship, Headquarters and Service Company, 49th Engineer Battalion.

Marine S-Sgt. Michael Piotrowski not only won the National Individual Service Rifle championship but also became the first man in history to make a perfect score in a higher score than that fired in the companion Open Rifle championship.

The stroke play for all individual championships will consist of 72 holes of stroke play. The competitor of each division who holes the stipulated rounds in the fewest strokes is the winner of the division in which he or she participates. In the event of a tie for first or second place in a division, a sudden death playoff will continue until a winner is determined.

Thank You for Continuing The Rapid Fire Pistol Team will be comprised of Marine Capt. William McKellan, Marine Corps Sgt. Huelo L. Benner, pistol coach at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., 1st Lt. David Miller, and Sgt. Smith.

All firing will be conducted under the rules of the International Shooting Union and will be shot over five courses: the 300-meter Free Rifle Course, 50-meter Free Rifle Course, International Running Deer Course, Free Pistol Course at 50 meters, and the Rapid Fire Pistol Course at 25 meters.

The 50-meter team consists of 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, 1st Lt. Verle F. Wright, 1st Lt. James Carter, 1st Sgt. James Hill, S-Sgt. Emmet Duncan, Cpl. William Barstain, Spt. Justus and 2nd Lt. Frank Briggs. Hill, Duncan and Briggs are members of the team while all others are members of the Army's Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning.

The 50-meter Rifle Team is 1st Lt. Puckel, Wright and Carter with 1st Lt. John Herr, 2nd Lt. James Eberwine, and civilian Gordon Toras.

"Running Deer" riflemen 1st Lt. Joe A. Decker, 1st Lt. Richard Westworth, 1st Sgt. J. M. Davis, and Harry Lucker, Decker and Westworth are members of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, and Davis and Lucker are top civilian marksmen.

AP Marks Recuse Role Of 29th Lt.

A Fort Benning lieutenant was cited by the Associated Press for his role in aiding injured passengers in a Greyhound bus-truck collision last week near St. Louis, Mo. Two persons were killed and 11 injured.

First Lt. Richard J. Jacobs, of Company A, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, was commended for helping his fellow passengers escape from the smashed vehicle through a rear window. The bus struck the rear of a truck loaded with cement, they careened through a tree and into a large frame house. Thirty-seven passengers were aboard the bus.

Lt. Jacobs was returning to Fort Benning from a leave spent in northern Wisconsin. He is a platoon leader and battle group public information officer.

TSB Names Sp3 Clark Top Soldier

Chosen over 2,500 School Brigade enlisted men at Fort Benning, Sp3 Albert K. Clark, of Second Company, First Battalion, has been awarded the Richard W. Mahoe "Soldier of the Month" plaque.

Head coach of the team is Col. Joseph Walter Walsh, Rifle coach will be Major Paul Schultz and the pistol shooter will be headed by Major Ben Curtis, both assigned to AAMU.

The powerful aggregation of American rifle and pistol shots represents the first chance to beat international teams at their own game. Previous attempts were largely on an individual basis such as the shooting of M-Sgt. Hulet L. (Doc) Benner which won him two World Championships.

However, the team on its way to Europe is a group of marksmen which has been welded into the most powerful competitive team of marksmen which U.S. has yet produced.

Jeep Driver Mastered Tough Course to Spark Win by 29th Unit

A 25-year-old Maine jeep driver was the hero of the recent Parade of Champions Victory by Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

For the second straight year, the 29th unit won the massive competition generally held as the outstanding unit at Fort Benning in military competition July 25.

Sgt. Reginald H. Toothaker was given the lion's share of the credit by members of the company. His first place finish in an elaborate jeep driving course gave Company C its greatest margin over the runner-up unit and assured victory with only one event remaining.

Narrowly Marginal Hills, Me., native singled out the tractor-backing exercise as the toughest, even though he executed it faster and with less trouble than his competitors.

"I've driven a lot of heavy equipment and that helped me a lot," Sp3 Toothaker said. He has nearly five years of military driving experience.

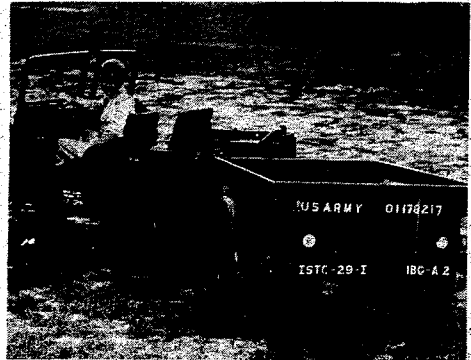

Trailer-Backing Worst The curly-haired Hampden Hills, Me., native singled out the tractor-backing exercise as the toughest, even though he executed it faster and with less trouble than his competitors.

Neither of the top two units bested the club by more than 10 points until the final two contests, when Sp3 Toothaker netted 30 points more than the 52nd Company entrant.

Toothaker executed the tough six-phase driving test with spectacular speed and skill. The course included a spiral drive between barrels, a straight-line run between golf balls set upon tees, a parallel parking exercise, and a trailer-backing test. A swimming pool in an elaborate jeep driving course gave Company C its greatest margin over the runner-up unit and assured victory with only one event remaining.

Company C retained the trophy by achieving a narrow 10-point margin over 52nd Company, Fifth Student Battalion, The School Brigade. The winners scored 550.2 points out of a possible 600.

With eight units from Fort Benning competing, the 29th Infantry and Fifth Student Battalion entrants each scored first places in three of the seven military events.

The spectacular fireworks display on the Fourth of July by the Youth Activities was due to the concerted efforts of Capt. Vernon W. Meyer, Sp3 Leland E. Scott, August A. Meyer, Sp3 L. Harny Freddie K. Roberts were recently attached to Headquarters Battery for training in artillery communications. They are SRCP trainees and will return to their home reserve unit.

Two M16 machine guns from the 12th Platoon (AW) were assigned to the 10th Artillery for children at the recent YAC Carnival.

The M16s, which were used to provide rides for the children, were driven by Pfc Richard R. Sharp, Sp3 Harold E. Gaudin, Sp3 Robert E. Gemicki, and Sgt. Eraldo Hernandez-Diaz.

Pvt. Theodore D. Thompson from Battery C assisted in the control of the Junior Jump Tower at Silver Field during the carnival.

Sgt. Ivey Mason, who has been a member of Battery C since Aug. 22, 1957, received orders sending him to Fort Lewis, Wash., en route to the Far East.

Sgt. Richard J. Schoppmeyer, 12th Platoon, recently re-enlisted for another three years. Schoppmeyer, a native of New York City, has been in the Army for 18 years.

On the Fourth of July, Battery B, The Infantry Center Honor Guard Battery, fired the traditional 48-gun salute in honor of each of the 48 states. This was the battery's first salute fired under its new battery commander, 1st Lt. Clarence L. Kearns.

Newly assigned to Battery B is Sp3 James D. Williford. Sp3 Williford will take over the duties of wire team chief.

Sgt. Arthur F. Williams is the latest member of the battery to receive orders sending him to the Far East. Sp3 Williams has been with the battery since October, 1957, and has served as a chief of section during this period.

Pfc Paul J. Gorkovich has returned to the battery after DUTYATION.

Benning Sets World-Wide Inf. Confab

A world-wide Infantry Conference, the first to be staged by the Army since 1946, will be held at Fort Benning Dec. 3 through 5.

The sessions will draw more than 200 of the nation's outstanding Infantry leaders to the post.

Advances and Changes

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commander of the Infantry School and host for the occasion, announces that the conference is being planned to provide a comprehensive view of the latest technological advances and organizational and doctrinal changes.

"The conferees will be afforded an opportunity to become familiar with new weapons and equipment, as well as plans for their integration into the Army system."

Open Discussion

Recently proposed changes in organization, techniques and facilities also will be topics for open discussion at the meeting.

Highlighting the four-day event will be presentations by representatives of the Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.; U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.; Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; Special Warfare School, Fort Bragg, N. C.; and The Infantry School.

GEN. H. B. POWELL, L. ARRIVES Greeted At Lawson By Gen. P. L. Freeman

Lt. Gen. Powell Visits Post To View Reserve Training

Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, deputy commanding general for Reserve Forces of Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., is at Fort Benning to observe training activities of the ROTC Summer Camp and U. S. Army Reserve units. He arrived July 23 and will depart today.

Gen. Powell served as commanding general of the Infantry Center and commandant of the Infantry School from Aug. 1956, through April, 1958. This will be his first visit to Fort Benning since assuming his new duties.

Provost Marshal to Open Bicycle Schools July 28

Fort Benning Provost Marshal's office has announced that a series of bicycle riding schools will be held on the post for children between the ages of 6 and 14 beginning at 9 a.m. on July 28.

These schools are to qualify the children for their bicycle sticker. Persons who do not have this sticker will not be allowed to operate a bicycle on the post, according to Major Albert J. Widmer, deputy provost marshal, and M-Sgt. Wil-is M. Grimes, safety sergeant. According to Sgt. Grimes and Major Widmer there has not been a fatality nor has any child been hospitalized due to an automobile-bicycle accident since the first school was conducted in 1955.

"Our primary purpose in these schools is to teach the children to obey ordinary traffic regulations," Major Widmer said. "Such regulations as proper signals, oil turns, stops and so forth and the proper maintenance of their bicycles such as is expected of drivers of other vehicles."

The first of these schools are scheduled at Faith School July 28-29 beginning at 9 a.m. and lasting until noon each day. On July 30, sessions will be held at Custer Terrace School. The first will be from 9 a.m. until noon and the second starting at 1 p.m. and lasting until 4 p.m.

No Provide Transportation

All that a person must do to enter any of these schools is call the Provost Marshal Section and register. Transportation will be provided for both the children and their bicycles from pick-up points in the outlying areas of the post. Pick-up (Please See Bicycles, Page 2)

1STC Changes To Inf. Brigade

The First Infantry Brigade, formed from elements of the Infantry School Troop Command, will be activated at Fort Benning July 25, Department of Army has disclosed.

Concurrently with the activation of the First Infantry Brigade, the Infantry School Troop Command will be discontinued.

Col. Ramsey is Commandant

Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey, 1STC commander, will serve as commanding officer of the new brigade. "I am authorized strength of the brigade is approximately 4,400 officers and men.

The First Infantry Brigade will inherit the history and tradition of the First Airborne Brigade. It is assigned to Third Army with the mission of supporting The Infantry School Under ROCID, a brigade headquarters section is organic to the Infantry division. It is used for special operations such as task forces.

Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey, commanding officer of the newly activated First Infantry Brigade, has commanded the Infantry School Troop Command since its organization in the early 1940's.

Only two other Infantry brigades exist in the U. S. Army: One was organized last May at Fort Devens, Mass., and the other is being organized in Germany.

Assigned as organic elements of the First Infantry Brigade are: Second Battle Group, 18th Infantry; First Battle Group, 29th Infantry; Second Field Artillery Battalion, 10th Artillery; 72nd Engineer Company; Company D, 69th Armor; 15th Transportation Company; 183 Chemical Platoon; and 11th Signal Platoon.

COL. L. B. RAMSEY, 1st Brigade Commander

Units Attached

The following units will be attached to the First Infantry Brigade: Third Medium Tank Battalion, 68th Armor; Battery B, 29th Artillery; 87th Chemical Company; 12th Platoon, 85th Artillery; and 29th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

These units were all formerly assigned or attached to the Infantry School Troop Command, which in effect had been performing as a brigade since its organization in May, 1957.

Typical Brigade

A typical separate brigade is a tactical organization consisting of a headquarters and two or more battle groups and supporting units.

The brigade is an old organizational structure which has come back into usage in the Infantry after nearly two decades in mothballs.

Standard Structure

The brigade was a standard structure in the old four-regiment Infantry division. There was no tactical need, however, for the brigade headquarters with the advent of the triangle

Post Hosts 250 Youths Of Ala., Ga.

More than 250 youths from organizations such as the Future Farmers of America, 4-H Clubs, and Future Homemakers of America will tour Fort Benning as part of the Columbus Youth Rally Day today.

Included on the group's schedule is lunch at the Infantry Center Transfer Point Mess Hall, a display of Army Aircraft at Lawson Army Airfield and a formal guard mount at Chapel Field.

From 24 Counties

The youngsters will represent 24 counties and Alabama counties comprising the Columbus trade area.

This is the 10th year that the Youth Rally Day group has visited the Infantry Center as part of their program.

Fort Benning project officer for the event is Capt. William J. Lewis who is assigned to The Infantry Center G-3 Section.

Brigade

The 46-year-old colonel, a highly decorated veteran of the World War II campaigns, came to Fort Benning last August for a three-year assignment as Secretary of the Joint Staff United Nations and Far East Command Headquarters in Tokyo, Japan.

Two years after he received a Regular Army commission in 1940 from the University of Kentucky as an honor ROTC student, he was serving as the executive officer of a battalion of the 28th Infantry Regiment, North Infantry Division, in the Mediterranean.

In May, 1943, he began a nine-month tour as aide-de-camp to British Gen. Harold Alexander. He next went to the Seventh Infantry Regiment of the Third Division, assuming command of the Third Battalion. At the close of the war in Europe, he was the Seventh Regiment executive officer.

Col. Ramsey next served a three-year tour at the Infantry School as an instructor on the command of the Third Battalion. After being graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. in 1950, he went to the Department of Army's Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence for three years.

He is a 1954 graduate of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with two Bars and Three Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart with one Bar, and the French Croix de Guerre.

He commanded the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, for five months prior to replacing Col. (ret.) Glende M. Howard as 197C commander.

Citadel Cops Highest Number of Leaders

In the selection of a cadet leader for the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp, annual Citadel Brigade Review July 20, more student-cadets from the Citadel were named than any of the other 23 senior educational institutions represented.

In capturing 10 of the key leadership slots, The Citadel topped out North Georgia College, with three selections; Florence State Teachers College, Mississippi State College, and the University of Tennessee each tied for third place with two selections.

Other institutions represented in the selections were Jacksonville (Ala.) State Teachers College, Florida A & M University, Florida Southern College, University of Florida, South Carolina State College, University of Puerto Rico, and Tennessee State College, with one selection each.

Cadets selected from The Citadel and their positions are: Arthur E. Richards, Pilot, Miss. command of the First Battle Group; David J. W. Wilder, Shobogyan, Wis., Second Battle Group; J. M. Williams, Philippi W. Landrum Jr., Jasper, Ga., adjutant of the Second Battle Group; Thomas L. Avant, Orangeburg, S. C., operations officer, Second Battle Group; and Schubert D. McPhail, Honey Path, S. C., supply officer, Second Battle Group.

Other Citadel selections include: Michael F. Davis, Tallahassee, Fla., National College Guard; Lloyd R. Gunn, Bennettsville, S. C., Company commander in the field with the cadets before returning to the main post at 1 p.m.

Informal Reception...
Gen. Powell was honored at an informal reception in the Main Officers' Mess from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

In addition to Gen. Powell, Col. George E. Bays, acting chief of the Georgia Military District, is inspecting ROTC and Reserve activities July 22-25. Also visiting the ROTC Camp during this period is Col. Paul A. Ray of the Georgia Military District.

Today and tomorrow, the ROTC encampment will be host to Lt. Col. R. W. Scheel of the Office of the Chief for Reserve and ROTC Affairs, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.; Col. Tullis F. Smith, USAR Command, Third Army, Fort MePherson, Ga.; and Major H. M. Brantley of Continental Army Command.

ROTC Conducts Annual Field Training Exercise

More than 1,300 student-cadets of the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp are participating in the annual Field Training Exercise through July 25.

Representing 20 universities and colleges in six Southeastern states and Puerto Rico, the total small unit leaders will be divided into two cadet battle groups consisting of four letter companies each. Exercise for the first battle group will end today. Cadets of second battle group will hold their maneuver through July 25.

The exercise is designed to provide 136 student-cadets with practical experience in various positions of leadership and command responsibility under tactical conditions. It is further designed to bring together all of the lessons learned by the participants during the initial weeks of the camp.

Primary emphasis will be placed on the small unit level and cadets will alternate leadership positions to that degree.

Col. Carl T. Hill, PMST of University of Georgia and deputy commander of the Infantry School, will be in charge of the exercise.

President's Message

(Editor's Note: Following is the text of President Eisenhower's July 15 message to the nation on sending troops to Lebanon.)

Yesterday morning I received from President Chamoun of Lebanon an urgent plea that some United States forces be stationed in Lebanon to help maintain security and to evidence the concern of the United States for the integrity and independence of Lebanon. President Chamoun's appeal was made with the concurrence of all of the members of the Lebanese cabinet.

President Chamoun made clear that he considered an immediate United States response imperative if Lebanon's independence already menaced from without, were to be preserved in the face of the grave developments which occurred yesterday in Baghdad whereby the lawful government was violently overthrown and many of its members martyred.

In response to the appeal from the government of Lebanon, the United States has dispatched a contingent of United States forces to Lebanon to protect American lives and by their presence there to encourage the Lebanese government in its defense of Lebanese sovereignty and integrity. These forces have not been sent as any act of war. They will demonstrate the concern of the United States for the independence and integrity of Lebanon, which we deem vital to the national interest and world peace. Our concern will also be shown by economic assistance. We shall act in accordance with these legitimate concerns.

The United States, this morning, will report its action to an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council. As the United Nations charter recognizes, there is an inherent right of collective self-defense. In conformity with the spirit of the charter, the United States is reporting the measures taken by it to the Security Council of the United Nations, making clear that these measures will be terminated as soon as the Security Council has itself taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security.

The United States believes that the United Nations can and should take measures which are adequate to preserve the independence and integrity of Lebanon. It is apparent however, that in the face of the tragic and shocking events that are occurring near the Lebanese government, the United States team of United Nations observers now in Lebanon. Therefore, the United States will support in the United Nations measures which seem to be adequate to meet the present situation which will enable the United States forces promptly to be withdrawn.

Lebanon is a small peace-loving state with which the United States has traditionally had the most friendly relations. There are in Lebanon about 2,500 American and we cannot, consistently with our historic relations and with the principles of the United Nations, stand idly by when Lebanon appeals itself for evidence of our concern and when Lebanon may not be able to preserve internal order and to defend itself against indirect aggression.

Look Ahead in Education

These hot July days may not be conducive to looking forward but cooler weather is at hand. September will bring the familiar school bells calling to students with time and energy enough for further study and advancement.

To you in the service, the call beckons as well. Your Army Education Center will soon be cleaning off the blackboards in preparation for another academic season. Have you thought about raising that low grade level for yourself? Would you like to qualify for a high school diploma? The time to start thinking and planning is now. See your unit education NCO or call 36111 to day.

Forces Provide Protection

From Army Information Digest: "Army forces deployed overseas are a constant reminder of United States willingness to share the hazards of day-to-day living in the shadow of Communism's guns. They stand as a positive symbol of our determination to protect those countries whose national ideology includes a sincere desire for peace and liberty."

Can He Get Him Back in the Bottle?

International Roundup Allied Note Rejects Soviet Summit Offer

WASHINGTON — The Western allies drafted a note to Soviet Premier Khrushchev July 21 challenging him to comply to the United Nations Security Council if he believes Anglo-American military action endangers international peace. This was understood to be their joint answer to Khrushchev's dramatic bid for an immediate Six Powers conference to consider the Middle East crisis.

JAPANESE COMPROMISE UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United Nations Security Council July 21 postponed until July 22 a vote on a Japanese compromise proposal designed to strengthen the UN observer corps in Lebanon and allow the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

FACT MEETS LONDON — The Commonwealth Committee of the Baghdad Pact met here July 21 without Iraq. Representatives of Britain, Iran, Pakistan and Turkey, the other pact members, discussed economic problems of the anti-Communist alignment.

THE MINISTERIAL COUNCIL OF the pact was scheduled to meet in London July 28. No final decision has been reached on whether to hold the meetings, now that the pro-Eastern monarchy has been overthrown in Iraq.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) RICHARD L. CARTY Nothing is of any value to us unless it is available. This is a self-evident statement. In terms of material wealth, the frozen assets of business, the minerals buried inside the mountain, those clouds overhead, and even the embryonic fruit in the orchards have real value to us until they become available.

We are constantly surrounded by many marvelous and wonderful ideas, but until we direct these thoughts in proper channels they are of no value to us.

After church, Grandmother took to the Sunday School to pick up Cheryl. On the way home the question was asked, "Cheryl, what did you learn this morning in Sunday School?" Cheryl's replies included God and His love for mankind and His ever-great and constant availability. When concluding her statements Cheryl said, "I heard the statement, 'I could be a better person if others heard about my faith.' I heard the statement, 'I could be a better person if others heard about my faith.' I heard the statement, 'I could be a better person if others heard about my faith.'"

The Judge Says...

Today's subject deals with the question of avoiding civil liability. Too often soldiers and officers appear requesting help to manage them from time to time or other has contracts to sign, real estate to buy or sell, automobile to purchase, etc. If they had sought legal advice and assistance before they signed such as are listed above without first consulting either a lawyer or your staff judge advocate, you are your staff judge advocate.

It Compares U.S., Commie Ideologies

Military personnel at the Infantry School are being advised of the benefits of the U.S. way of life as compared with the world situation as presented in the Troop Information program. Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., Chief of Staff, Infantry School, is presenting the program, adding that the efforts of the struggle against Communism and the reasons for it will be explained in the Troop Information series. Gen. Freeman stated "One of the ways of making soldiers understand the reasons for the struggle against Communism and the reasons for it will be explained in the Troop Information series."

Concert Sets Ravel Work

The recorded concert at the Main Fort Benning Library July 29 at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Daphnis and Chloe" by Maurice Ravel. "Daphnis and Chloe" was commissioned in 1910 by the famous impresario, Serge Diaghilev, for his Ballet Russe. The production was delayed by arguments between Diaghilev and Fokine, the choreographer. The premiere was finally held on June 8, 1912, with Nijinsky and Karavina dancing the title roles. Meanwhile, Ravel fashioned two orchestral suites from the score, each of them containing three movements.

U. S. Raises Postal Rates

NEW YORK (APFS)—The serviceman with the stamp of approval in August will be the serviceman who remembers that postal rates went up on the first of that month.

An ounce of domestic first class mail will cost an extra penny going from three to four cents. Domestic airmail will also cost a cent more a raise from six to seven cents an ounce.

Two-cent post cards will become three-cent and airmail post cards will go from four to five cents. Rates in second and third class mail will also go into effect August 1. It should be noted that Canada and Mexico are considered under U. S. domestic rates and require only the four-cent rate for first class and the seven-cent stamp for airmail.

For the serviceman, first class mail overseas will be covered by the new domestic rate. Airmail overseas will also be covered by the new seven-cent domestic stamp. For mail going overseas to a non-military address, the first class rate for the first ounce will remain at eight cents. However, such additional ounce will cost five cents instead of four. Overseas airmail rates for non-military addresses will remain unchanged at 15 cents.

The first class rate was last changed in 1944 when it rose from two to three cents. Post cards went from one to two cents in 1952 and airmail stamps rose from five to six cents in 1949.

U.S. Lands 1,600 Paratroops in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (APFS)—A battle group of 1,600 Army paratroopers of the 24th Infantry Division has been airlifted from Germany to the beachhead in Lebanon, in U. S. moves to stabilize the troubled Middle East.

The Army said the First Airborne Battle Group, 187th Infantry led by Lt. Col. Thomas W. Starkey, was shifted from the Augsburg-Munich area by Air Force C-124 Globemasters as an element of Adm. James L. Holloway's Specified Command, Middle East, which also includes the Sixth Fleet, an Air Force composite strike force and troop carrier planes.

The paratroops, former members of the deactivated 11th Airborne Division, became part of the Tenth Air Division, commanded by Major Gen. Ralph C. Cooper, on July 16.

One of five divisions of the Seventh Army in Europe, the 24th "Tero Lead" Division of WWII and Korea fame, is now composed of two airborne and three infantry battle groups. The 24th was the first division to fight in WWII—at Pearl Harbor—and in Korea, on the Pusan Perimeter.

At latest reports, standing off the beach at Beirut, Lebanon, in the landing of Second Marine Division battalions are 44 Sixth Fleet ships, which include the flagship of Adm. Holloway, the Taconic (AGC 17), commanded by Capt. Briscoe Chipman; the cruiser Des Moines, commanded by Capt. W. H. Gorman and flagship of Sixth Fleet commander Vice Adm. Charles R. Brown; the carrier Saratoga, commanded by Capt. R. M. Miller; flying the flag of Rear Adm. C. W. Anderson, head of Carrier Division Six; the carrier Wang Meisen, commanded by Capt. H. T. Utter, with Rear Adm. Edward A. Hanegan, commander, Carrier Division 14, embarked.

The Essex, skippered by Capt. T. A. Christopher, which was the first flat-top to furnish air cover for the Lebanon operation; the Pocono (AGC 16), commanded by Capt. C. E. Smith and flagship of Rear Adm. H. A. Yeager, commander, Amphibious Group Four, who is directing the landing; and the guided missile cruiser Boston, commanded by Capt. R. L. Taylor carrying the flag of Rear Adm. C. B. Martell.

By 1960 the integrated range will need at least 20,000 workers with an annual payroll of close to $100,000,000.

This year the Army and Navy are spending some $25,000,000 for new construction at the range which is devoted to research, development and testing of rockets and missiles. In 1957 more than 5,000 separate missile testing operations were carried out. The figure is expected to reach 7,500.

The Army has requested $85,000,000 for development of range instrumentation facilities over the next five years.

Youth Retreat Slated At Benning July 25

"Walking with God" will be the theme of an overnight youth retreat July 25 to be attended by members of the Fort Benning Fellowship Club and the high school department of the post Sunday School.

The group will meet at 3 p.m. July 25 at building 110 where they will leave by bus for the new Fort Benning Rifle Squad camp, the site for the one-night camping trip.

Boys and girls attending the camp will be able to gather around a campfire for a concentrated period of fellowship, Bible study and recreation. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Rev. J. Thornton Williams, pastor of First Baptist Church in LaGrange, Ga.

Camp Welcome
The youth will arrive at the camp by 2:45 p.m. and will be welcomed by Chaplain (1st Lt.) Ralph Harrell. The remainder of the afternoon will be spent in getting settled, bridging and organized games and athletic events.

Medical Corps Sets 183rd Anniversary

Members of Army Medical Corps have received letters of commendation on the observance of the 183rd Anniversary of the Corps' establishment.

A letter from Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, the Medical Corps was cited for "many accomplishments and our continued confidence in your continued success."

Gen. Taylor noted that "the high professional standards and the conscientious devotion of the members of the Army Medical Corps have contributed significantly to the health and welfare of the members of the Army throughout its history."

"The achievements of military medicine have not been confined to the battlefield, but have included major advances in public health which have benefited the populations of extensive geographical areas."

"The combat and in garrison, in the U. S. and overseas, the Army Medical Corps has provided leadership to an important element of the total effectiveness of the Army."

Writing on behalf of personal friends, the letter from Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general, extended congratulations to the Corps.

Gen. Freeman wrote: "The Medical Corps has made the valuable contributions to all mankind through research, service and the development of medicines and techniques in maintenance of health."

OCs Open New Club Called the 'Gold Bar'

July 12 marked the beginning of a new era for officer candidates at Fort Benning. This was the day that all OCs will remember as the Dedication Day for their new club, the "Gold Bar."

Honored guests present for this event included Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School Assistant Commandant, and Mrs. Larsen; Col. A. L. Hoebeke, commanding officer of TSB, and Mrs. Hoebeke; Lt. Col. Rae Smith, secretary of the Main Officers' Open Mess, and Mrs. Smith; and Major Jack L. Treadwell, commanding officer of the Fifth Student Battalion, and Mrs. Treadwell.

Ribbon Cutting
Cocktails were served in the ballroom, starting at 7 p.m. This was followed by the ribbon cutting ceremony in which Gen. Larsen opened the club.

The evening concluded with dancing in the ballroom, with made furnished by a five piece orchestra. Until a scant five months ago there were no arrangements on post for candidates to spend their off-duty hours. The club idea was conceived and approval to open the club was obtained in June with funds being appropriated from the Main Officers' Open Mess. The enthusiasm of having a club exclusive for OCs students is not new as Victory Lodge, located in the Barren Church area, was utilized for this purpose during the Korean conflict. Following Korea,

The overall chairman for the entire dedication program was Candidate Robert Walt. The idea for a club exclusive for OCs students is not new as Victory Lodge, located in the Barren Church area, was utilized for this purpose during the Korean conflict. Following Korea,

It is being provided through the Magazine Committee of the Columbus Rotary Club. J. M. Hargett is chairman of the committee.

Wives Hold July Meet

The Infantry School Communication Department Officers' wives held their July luncheon at the home of the hostess, Mrs. J. C. Pleasant, with Mrs. J. J. MacCoy as co-hostess. Favorites were bid and messages presented to Mrs. John Donnchick and Mrs. W. F. Miller.

Mrs. W. A. VanDyke was welcomed as a new member and also presented with a corsage.

Floral arrangements of yellow and orange marigolds decorated each individual table. The buffet table was arranged with tiny sinians in silver bells. A large arrangement of red and orange zinnias graced the living room.

Mrs. P. J. McDonnell, as vice president, opened the meeting and election of officers was held. Mrs. J. M. Martin, group president, and Mrs. J. E. Ruckelshaus, group secretary, were elected. The ladies then adjourned to the porch for bridge.

DA Clarifies Emergency Leave Travel

The continuation of emergency leave from overseas areas without cost to military personnel is considered essential by DA and current plans do not contemplate the discontinuance of this policy. Only under such circumstances can timely travel be assured for the affected personnel.

There is some doubt that the Army has authority to use appropriated funds to procure commercial air transportation for personnel traveling on emergency leave. In view of this doubt and the possible MATS operation after July 1958, the Department of Defense considered this subject and has authorized each service to issue TDY orders and use available appropriations to defray costs of emergency leave travel via MATS and MSTs for military personnel on emergency leave. AFMA Entertained By Ladies Program

Wives and women members of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association presented a "Famous Ladies" program at the organization's July dinner in the Main Officers Mess July 15.

A "live" television quiz show, "This Is Whom," was presented under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Scudder.

Emphasizing that women in management are busy and featuring the "466 million" program portrayed in costume with biographical sketches 13 international women of stature.

The surprise program was kept a well-guarded secret from the male members.

The audience was invited to guess the identity of the famous women. The man who tantalizingly offered "45 million, a chance to return next week to try for $10 million and a chance to take home the door prize, a ham."

Copping the event as the only entrant with a 100 per cent score was Mrs. George Heberling.

Appearing in the quiz characterizations were Miss Betty Funder, Mrs. Clayton Quigg, Mrs. Troy A. Murray, Mrs. William S. Terrell, Mrs. Myra Gross, and Mrs. Ida Love Evans.

They portrayed Anna Pavlova, Russian dancer (Mrs. Murray); Helen Willis Moody, tennis champion (Mrs. Quigg); Eleanor Roosevelt (Mrs. Gross); Emily Dickinson, poetess (Mrs. Funder); Lillian Hayes, stage actress, (Mrs. Murray); Madame Curie, scientist (Mrs. Evans); Amelia Earhart, aviator (Mrs. Quigg) and the "11" girl, Clara Bow (Mrs. Funder).

The program concluded with a fashion show of styles from the late 1920's. The serious thought for the evening, a poem, "The Glory of Life," was read by Mrs. James O'Gard.

An informal reception preceded the dinner. Approximately 80 members and guests were present for the affair.

Chaplaincy To Mark 183rd Anniversary

A retreat ceremony and a page daily attendance of 500 Protestant children. The Catholic summer training classes had an average daily attendance of 600.

During the past year the Chaplain's Section has organized a women's auxiliary group, the Protestant Women of the Chapel, and a Protestant Youth Fellowship. The women's organization is a very large civilian church. The Youth Fellowship is comparable to youth programs of various churches and meets each Sunday evening.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony.

A reception and dinner will be held at 7 p.m. at the Club Terrace club honoring the chaplains and their guests.

Instituted in the past year as part of the regular curriculum of the Infantry School for the basic Infantry officers course, the new program is a leadership course and the officer candidate course are two lectures presented by Chaplain Section. The lectures, "The Army Chaplain" and "The Army's Character Guidance Program," are to familiarize new officers with the mission and activities of the Army's chaplains.

The chaplaincy which is as old as the Army itself is established July 29, 1775 by a resolution of the Continental Congress. The chaplain's duty, then as now, was to provide freedom of worship and to preserve and strengthen the moral fiber of the American soldier. In carrying out their mission chaplains have served the U.S. in many major conflicts and many of them have made the supreme sacrifice.

At Fort Benning 14 chaplains of the Infantry Center and nine of the Second Division operate 23 chapels. Services are provided for Protestant, Catholic and Jewish personnel. In addition to general Protestant services, denominational services are held for Episcopalians, Lutherans and Christian Scientists.

A Protestant Sunday School is conducted under the guidance of a director of Christian Education. Other Sunday Schools include the Episcopal St. Michael's Mission and the Sunday School for the Harmony Church Trailer Court area. Catholic classes for children and children are held weekly from May to September. Activities for Jewish personnel are conducted at the post's Jewish Center.

A daily vacation Bible School is held each summer. This year the Bible School had an average daily attendance of 500 Protestant children.

The retreat ceremony will be held at 4:30 p.m. on Chapel Field on the main post. Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center, Major Gen. Herbert H. Wienceke, commander of the Second Infantry Center, Chaplain (Col) Albert C. Wildman and his staff of Infantry Center chaplains, and Chaplain (Lt. Col) Claude R. Ingram with the Second Division chaplains will review the troops. Special guest at the ceremony will be Chaplain (Col) John Gardner, Third Army chaplain.

Other religious organizations on the post include the Officers Christian Union, St. Andrew's Brotherhood, Holy Name Society, Scallies, and the Jewish married couples group.

LT. COL. JENSEN Heads 3rd Army Nurses

Succeeds Col. Bradley Col. Jensen Named Chief Of Third Army Nursing

Col. Jensen came here from the Office of the Surgeon General in Washington, D.C. where she was Personnel Staff Officer of the Nursing Division.

Col. Jensen is a member of the Army Nurse Corps and has been working as Head Nurse for obstetrics at Washington's Garfield Hospital.

Col. Jensen's career in the Army Nurse Corps has taken her from Weller Reed Hospital in Washington to Fort Monroe, Va.; to Europe in World War II to Korea and back to Washington.

In her new role here as chief, Third Army nurses will supervise Army nursing in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and part of Kentucky. Third Army has more troops than any other Army area.

Col. Jensen received her nursing degree from Immanuel Hospital School of Nursing in Omaha, Neb., in 1932. In 1940 she took her RNA in Anesthesia at the Jewish Hospital of Philadelphia, Pa. She won a BS in Nursing Education at Columbia University, New York City, in 1943; and in 1952, she was awarded an MA in Personnel Administration from George Washington University, Washington, D.C.

She is a member of the American Nurses Association and the National League for Nursing.

U.S. Grant Trains As Marine Private

It was early in the Army career of Ulysses S. Grant when an Apache scout needed a pronounceable name. He got one—Ulysses S. Grant.

Today the scout's great-great-grandson, undergoing recruit training at the Marine Corps Depot here, is again bear the historic name.

Private Grant, 19, is a full-blooded Apache. His father, the time had trouble pronouncing Indian names, that's why U. S. Grant permitted the scout to adopt his own.

TIS Briefs Gen. Upham Before 3rd Division Duty

A two-star general who will soon assume command of an Infantry Division completed a refresher course for Infantry officers July 19 at The Infantry School.

Major Gen. John S. Upham Jr., newly assigned commanding general of the Third Infantry Division, underwent a two-week program of instruction in the latest Infantry tactics and techniques before taking over his new duties in Germany with the "Marine" Division.

One of few Gen. Upham is one of the few general officers ever to attend The Infantry School as a full-time student in a class. As a member of officers refresher class No. 1, Gen. Upham and his fellow officers, including captains, majors, lieutenant colonels and colonels reviewed familiar subjects and getting acquainted with the Infantry's new methods including postwar warfare.

With the refresher course ending officers of a wide range of ranks, The Infantry School again successfully filled its mission of turning out combat-qualified leaders of all ranks. Through a course of battle group attack and defense, Gen. Upham and his classmates were reminded of how a leader should deploy his forces for the atomic and conventional battlefield.

They were indoctrinated with the role of the Infantry and studied the organization of both Infantry and airborne divisions.

Newest Techniques
The officers also were taught the newest techniques of Infantry rifle squad firing, tank and mortar fire in support and in offense, and many other subjects, all of which serve to emphasize the continuing importance of the Infantry as one of the most effective fighting arms of the U.S. military service.

Gen. Upham was assigned to the U.S. Army Element, Allied Forces Southern Europe, in Naples, Italy, prior to entering The Infantry School.

On graduating, he departed for Würzburg, Germany, where he will command the Third Division is located.

At Fort Benning National Bank Marks First Anniversary

National Bank of Fort Benning observed its first anniversary July 23 as a successfully established service and business venture, according to bank officials.

One of the few national banks in the country located on an Army post, the organization of the bank was completed July 23, 1957. It occupies a new, modern building on land loaned from the government on the main post.

At the year's end, according to the bank's reports, total accounts number 6,400. Total deposits run to $3,100,000 with total assets standing at $3,600,000. Because of the volume of business in the first year, the loan and bookkeeping departments have been expanded. Officers stated they have been extremely gratified with the bank's reception at Fort Benning.

The original officers who are still serving are Lt. Gen. (ret.) Manton S. Eddy, chairman of the board; Brig. Gen. (ret.) Charles W. Pence, president; William A. Lyman, executive vice president and cashier; and E. G. Sparks, assistant cashier. Sparks has recently been promoted to assistant vice president and cashier.

The bank is owned by stockholders who are Regular, Reserve and retired Army personnel, including both officers and enlisted men. "There are 438 shareholders, many of whom are stationed at Fort Benning so that the bank may well be called a Fort Benning Enterprise," Gen. Pence said.

The idea for the bank originated in September, 1955, when an application for a national bank charter was submitted. Two years later the charter was granted and the lease for the bank approved.

Serves Military, Civilians
Since this is a national, not a military bank, the institution's facilities are available to both military and civilians. Complete services offered include checking accounts, commercial banking, three per cent savings accounts, safe deposit boxes, night depository, individual and business loans of all kinds, travelers checks, money orders, cashiers checks and government bonds. Also offered is bank-by-mail service from anywhere in the world.

The bank is a member of the Federal Reserve System, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. It is open six days a week with hours specifically tailored for the convenience of post personnel. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays the bank is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

In a statement issued for the first anniversary, Gen. Pence and the board of directors said, "On the threshold of a new year of business, we look back on the first one and see very clearly that we owe our customers and friends a great debt of gratitude. As our bank has grown and made progress, we have them to thank for it. As we have progressed we have them to thank for that, too."

For weeks Rev. Edward A. Bradley, seismologist, and Louis Sangrebon, physicist, nursed their vegetable garden in a small plot of earth brought to Ellsworth by a supply ship.

So far, they've raised lettuce, radishes, peas, onions, carrots, tomatoes and lima beans—all in packing boxes under lamplight. Hqs. Company Wins Brigade Softball Title

With a come-from-behind victory over the Infantry School Detachment, Headquarters and Headquarters Company B became the new School Brigade Softball Champions.

The new champions won their second straight playoff game.

Featuring the heavy-hitting attack that had won them their division championship last week, Headquarters Company B found the range in the fifth inning and scored eight runs. Although Company E countered with three in their fall of the Al Garguilo pitched and Bob Crookers batted the Infantry Center Troop to a 5-1 victory July 16 over the 15th Engineers. This was the third straight win for the Crookers and put them one game behind the 5th Medics who are in first place in the second inning when the Engineers put together three of their six hits and scored their only run.

Troop Command scored one each in the first and fourth innings, two in the sixth and one more in the eighth. Bob Crookers with a double and a triple was the "big stick" for the winners aided by Jim Stewart who had a double and single and Rick Murray who maintained his 400-plus batting average with two singles.

Company C Captures 14th Softball Crown

Company C, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, has captured the championship of Battalion Group Softball League.

The team under coach, Sgt. Ed Kellerman, played consistently to win the championship with a 2-0 record. The team surged ahead early in the season but on several occasions dropped from top place only to regain the lead near the end of the season to claim the title. During the season, the top slot changed hands four times, and was tied between several teams five times before Company C gained the top with eight games remaining and without slackening their winning spirit captured the championship.

Capt. Charles Rauschenberg, company commander, said, "The team had the spirit that was required for winning, and combined this with good team work. I know we were going to be hard to beat."

Upon completion of the season, the team was treated to a steak dinner at the Rucker Club of the NCO Open Mess.

The 8th Chemical Company went out over the 72nd Engineer and Headquarters Company to take second place.

The 8th Chemical Company Snickers defeated Headquarters Company in the final game by a score of 3-2 to cap the runner-up trophy.

It was a hard fought game all the way with Headquarters Company leading 2-0 until the top of the seventh inning, when inning. The game ended with a decisive 15-9 win for Headquarters.

John Lashman, with three hits and four runs batted in, and Ted Czulinski with two hits, two runs, and three RBI led the attack for the winners. Unimpressed when faced with a 4-0 deficit in the second inning, Headquarters third baseman Lashman slammed a triple to right-center for two runs and scored himself minutes later when Bill Ivey singled.

The score stood at 6-3 and the faithful fans were cheering. Headquarters Company sent a 17 man parade to bet while putting the game out of reach of the ISD entry. Two-run singles by Lashman and Czulinski, and a booming two bagger by left fielder Herb Parker with the bases loaded were the big blows of the eight-run inning. Any hope of a possible victory by ISD faded when Headquarters ace hurler, Jim Powell, came in for the last two frames and pitched hitless ball.

For the winners the victory capped an uphill fight for both the division and Brigade championships. After a 5-1 win start, Headquarters Company came on strong to tie for the Division Championship with last year's winner, Fourth Street Battalion. Headquarters then earned the division championship with a close 4-3 playoff victory. Two successive victories over Company E, the undefeated ISD champs, brought the Brigade Championship.

An all-star team has now been picked to represent The School Brigade in the Infantry Center Major Unit Softball Tournament to be held August 23-28. Several men on Headquarters and Headquarters Company's team have been picked for the honor including base hurler Powell.

the smokers loaded the bases and scored twice on an outfield error. Then in the eighth inning, they scored the winning run to clinch second place.

Bisplinghoff, then a 20-year-old from Orlando, Fla., was playing a round in the tourney with Johnny Revolta and Jones caught the play on a few holes, riding in an electric cart.

Cpl. Fred Grant, one of Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's most promising young shooters, won the Southwestern regional pistol title July 20 in Fort Worth.

The 21-year-old shooter fired 2588-94X out of 2700 to win the national aggregate championship. His scores with the three guns — 22 center fire and 45 — were 865-282 and 864-28X.

1st Lt. Bill Cory Strides to Victory In Third Army Modern Triathlon

First Lt. Bill Cory represented Fort Benning in triathlon, a talented and dependable competitor in both distance races and the modern triathlon.

This year, Cory not only took the latter event in all-post competition but repeated his success at Fort Bragg, N. C., in the Third Army meet by lapsing and taking a 15-minute rest during the 5-mile run.

Career Began in 1946

Cory's track career began in 1946 when as a 15-year-old sophomore, he broke the Kansas state high school record in the one-mile run.

During his four years at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., he lettered in track and cross-country, acting as captain of the cross-country team in 1950.

His military career is now an instructor on the Special Purpose Weapons Committee of the Infantry School's Weapons Department, recalls that one of his biggest thrills as a hurdler came when he beat Dwight and John Joe Berry, National Collegiate Athletic Association champions in the one-mile and two-mile runs by over 800 yards in the West Point course.

Pushed All Way

"I pushed it all the way," Cory relates, "and I felt the strike of the gravel I was kicking up behind me sounded like the opposing runner's feet."

In Tokyo in 1956, Lt. Cory won the All-Japan Triathlon under the tutelage of Cap-

Florida State University student-cadet James C. Pike, who fired 2520 during annual M-1 rifle record firing, has named M-1 Rifle Champion for the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp.

Cadet Everett C. Embrey, The Citadel, and Capt. Robert Strickland, Florida State, posted an identical 2520-250 score to end up in a two-way tie for second place honors.

Embrey and Strickland were closely followed by Georgia Tech student-cadet Donald E. Lenkner with a score of 229.

Cadet, Company F, won out in the overall company aggregate average scoring by marking up a 184.8 average. In second place, Company B, was Company B with an average of 183.25. Company D averaged a 182.55 to wind up in third place.

Georgia Tech posted an aggregate average of 184.65 points to win the Colonel Hamilton award and the right to represent the Fort Benning Camp against institutions at other ROTC Camps in the annual Warrior of the Pacific competition.

Pike Named Top Shooter For ROTC

Florida State University student-cadet James C. Pike, who fired 2520 during annual M-1 rifle record firing, has named M-1 Rifle Champion for the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp.

Cadet Everett C. Embrey, The Citadel, and Capt. Robert Strickland, Florida State, posted an identical 2520-250 score to end up in a two-way tie for second place honors.

Embrey and Strickland were closely followed by Georgia Tech student-cadet Donald E. Lenkner with a score of 229.

Cadet, Company F, won out in the overall company aggregate average scoring by marking up a 184.8 average. In second place, Company B, was Company B with an average of 183.25. Company D averaged a 182.55 to wind up in third place.

Georgia Tech posted an aggregate average of 184.65 points to win the Colonel Hamilton award and the right to represent the Fort Benning Camp against institutions at other ROTC Camps in the annual Warrior of the Pacific competition.

Grant Captures Pistol Crown

Cpl. Fred Grant, one of Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's most promising young shooters, won the Southwestern regional pistol title July 20 in Fort Worth.

The 21-year-old shooter fired 2588-94X out of 2700 to win the national aggregate championship. His scores with the three guns — 22 center fire and 45 — were 865-282 and 864-28X.

Cadets Score 1-0 Victory

A sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the ROTC Cadet nine a 1-0 victory over the 25th Infantry Commanders at Gowdy Field, July 19.

Both teams were limited to six hits in a tight pitchers' duel.

With the bases loaded and one out in the last of the ninth, Clarence Coker, Clemson University, drove a fly deep to center field to score Bill Woods with the only run of the contest.

Woods, University of Georgia, had started things off for the cadets by doubling to center field in the ninth.

Jones Wins Pistol Club Tournament

Sgt. Marlewester Jones, Fort Lewis, Wash., topped a field of 50 competitors to win the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's "250 Club" pistol tournament July 20.

Sgt. Jones posted 259-94X, 18 points ahead of Dr. Guy C. Davis, Atlanta, who scored 257-84X over the three 500-yard-point course.

Dr. Davis took the National Rifle Association Building Fund match with a score of 1720-65X. The match was an aggregate of the scores fired with the .22 caliber and center fire pistols.

John R. Pettigrew, Atlanta, was high civilian with a total of 247-50X. Third Army dominated the 46 caliber team matches with its Blue Team taking the open class with 1117-22X and their White Team taking the first expert with 1102-23X. Total 900 for the four-man team is 1200 with each team member firing once over the 30-shot

Tech Shoots High Score For Colleges

Georgia Tech, Atlanta, Ga., rifle team composed of the 29 student-cadets attending the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp, has won the right of representing the camp in the annual competition for the coveted Warrior of the Pacific plaque by firing the high institution aggregate average during recent M-1 rifle record firing.

Faced by Cadet Donald Erenkoter, who fired a 229-28, the "Ramblin' Wrecka" led the other 22 colleges and universities represented at the camp by posting an aggregate average of 184-65-25. Cadet Erenkoter's 229 was also the high score of Cadet Company F for which he will receive a "high company" trophy.

Awarded on an annual nation-wide basis, the competition and trophy was initiated by officials of the University of Hawaii to be awarded to the institution whose group obtained the highest overall aggregate average marksmanship score in ROTC Camps in the United States and overseas possessions.

New Commander Sees Division Troops in Action

By 2nd Division PIO
Major Gen. Robert H. Wienecke, new commanding general of Second Infantry Division, completed the first inspection tour of unit areas and saw the division's basic training program in action on the ranges of Fort Benning July 18. Traveling by helicopter from division headquarters, Gen. Wienecke visited troops of First Battle Group, 11th Infantry, July 18 where he observed hand and rifle grenade training.

He also observed M-1 record firing by the trainees of Second Battle Group, First Infantry, and the 15th Artillery. The general later viewed the major ranges in the division's training areas from the air.

July 17, Gen. Wienecke visited the headquarters of every division unit. During the tour July 18, he was accompanied by Lt. Col. Roger H. Craddock, Second Division operations and training officer. Gen. Wienecke assumed command of the Second Infantry Division June 18 when 18 40-men platoon representing every unit in the division staged a ceremonial review in his honor.

Program Shifts into High Gear

4,000 Recruits Train With Second Inf. Division

Second Infantry Division's basic training program went into high gear this week as the total number of trainees reach 4,199. As new arrivals begin basic training, more than 3,000 who arrived earlier this summer, are preparing for 1964 proficiency testing, beginning July 28, thus bringing to a close their first eight week training cycle.

Approximately 1,200 trainees are expected to arrive here before Aug. 3 to fill the quotas of the remaining division units. The units to receive trainees in August are Battery A, 12th Artillery, Battery E, 15th Artillery, and Second Engineer Battalion.

Cycle Near End
Trainees assigned to the First Battle Group, 11th Infantry, will have completed their basic training Aug. 2. This unit will begin receiving new trainees about Aug. 5 for their second cycle.

The Indianhead Division's new soldiers undergo eight weeks of rigorous basic training, after which each trainee is considered for assignment. Some will be selected to receive advanced training, some will be sent to Army schools, and others will be selected to take on-the-job training for certain specialties.

As hundreds of basic trainees near completion of their eight-week cycle, the Second Division G-3 section is preparing to transfer them to other units.

Gen. Wienecke Greets Officers, EM. Of Second Infantry Division

It is with great pleasure that I greet the officers and men of the Second Infantry Division. As your new commanding general I pledge to you my every effort to keep the Indianhead Division the greatest of all infantry divisions.

With your support and loyalty we will perform memorable service here at Fort Benning.

USO Meeting Sketches Available Entertainment

By 2nd Div. PIO
Plans for entertaining troops of the Second Infantry Division at the three Columbus U.S.O. clubs were outlined to unit commanders and their representatives at a meeting last week at the Division Special Service Office.

Civilian officials of the U.S.O. and Y.M.C.A. who attended the meeting stated that present plans call for a unit dance to be held at three clubs on Saturday evenings. Four dances set to be scheduled as follows: First Battle Group, 11th Infantry on August 2, Second Battle Group of the First Infantry on August 2, First Battle Group, 27th Infantry on August 2, and the First Howitzer Battalion, 15 Artillery on August 16th.

The many facilities that are available to division soldiers at the U.S.O. clubs were stressed by officials. Snacks, television, magazines and a room for the night are only a few of the many things available at the Columbus clubs. Historic interest in U.S.O. activities include tours to local points of historical interest and various city and state recreational sites.

Officials pointed out that the U.S.O. and Y.M.C.A. are nonprofit organizations and here to serve the soldier. They also stated that it is their de-with various basic training units as assistant platoon leaders are finding out — the hard way — what it is like to fashion the individualistic civilian into a soldier, and to see — first hand — a company forming into a well-organized team.

Beneath the hot Georgia sun, from dawn to dusk, the cadets lead trainees on road marches, instruct on the range, give classes on military subjects, and conducting rifle weapons inspections in ranks.
These cadets are part of the bold, new concept, drastically affecting summer training procedure for cadets, which has been initiated by the superintendent and commandant of Cadets of the USMA. Under the new program sponsored by Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson and Brig. Gen. John L. Thurston, approximately two-thirds of the Second Class (junior) will receive practical on-the-job leadership training with three Regular Army divisions, the Second Infantry Division, the 101st Airborne, and the 82nd Airborne Division.
Prior summer training trips covered a seven-week period, during which time cadets observed demonstrations of training and equipment at various Army, Navy and Air Force installations. This year the trip was limited to about 16 days.

During the four weeks with the Second Infantry Division, the cadets are actively participating in the division's training program, so as to gain practical experience in the functioning of the command.

Units Cite Departing Lt. Col. MacDonald

Units of the 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat) passed in review July 22, in honor of departing commander, Lt. Col. Alex F. MacDonald, who is leaving to attend the Armed Forces Staff College New York.

Under Lt. Col. MacDonald's leadership, the battalion successfully completed an Army training test, trained a gyroscope packet for duty in Germany with the 78th Engineer Battalion (Combat) and has supported many USAF projects including the construction of Transair type ranges.

Lt. Col. MacDonald will be succeeded by Major Stephen C. Eggleston. Major Eggleston came to the battalion from Viet Nam, where he was assigned to the United States Assistance Advisory Group. His previous assignments include duty in France, Greenland, Fifth Army Headquarters, Fort Belvoir and Maxwell Field, Fla. Among his decorations are the Bronze Star for more than 15 years.

2nd Lt. Richard Hulcher and Frank Rivera have been temporarily attached to Battery C pending the beginning of BIOC. No. 4, Lt. Hulcher and Rivera both hold Regular Army commissions in the Infantry and are expected to remain with Battery C until mid-August.

Sgt. Charles W. Kennedy has been assigned to Battery C for a three year tour of duty as a motor sergeant in Germany and is member of the 4th Army Company (Cannonafe) departed TDY for Fort Rucker, Ala. He is married and the father of three children.

Headquarters Battery There were several changes made in Headquarters Battery's personnel roster in the past week. New faces in the unit are Pfc Norman Sidman, Pfc Robert W. Black, and Pvt. Tommie J. McCall. Pfc Sidman is no stranger, however, since he is coming to Headquarters Battery from Battery B of this battalion.

Two more increments are scheduled to follow the first departure of camoufleurs and will be comprised of ten personnel each. Upon arrival at Fort Rucker, the camoufleurs will furnish integral support to the office of Human Resources Research conducting "Task Observe". First Lt. C. F. Pinson, officer in charge, will accompany the first increment which includes Sgt. Andrew J. McBride, Sgt. Robert H. Lucas, Sgt. Eric D. Harmon, and Pvt. Charles P. Meny Jr.

"Sheedy, I never sausage sloppy hair", snorted J. Paul's topkick. "If you don't snap to, you're gonna be a 30-year man on the garbage detail". Poor Sheedy was stymied. Then a friend sent him a litter advising Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now Sheedy's hair stays snappy in place all day, in spite of sun, wind and his hot business lines. Why don't you try Wildroot Cream-Oil? It's guaranteed to make your hair-look handsome!

IN THE STRONG ACTION, MAJOR MCGUIRE FIGHTED TWO ENEMY AIRCRAFT AS HE CONTINUALLY CAME TO THE AID OF DOWNED COMRADES. AT TIMES HE WAS OVERWHELMED, TRICKED TO ONE.

THE NEXT DAY HE AGAIN VOLUNTEERED TO LEAD BOMBING PARTIES ON A MISSION TO STRIKE AN ENEMY CLAMP FIELD. DURING THE BATTLE HE AGAIN EXPOSED HIMSELF TO ATTACKS SO THAT HE MIGHT RESCUE A COMPALED SOLDIER.

FOR HIS GALLANT INITIATIVE, HIS DEEP AND UNSLASH CONCERN FOR THE SAFETY OF OTHERS, AND HIS HEROIC DETERMINATION TO DESTROY THE ENEMY AT ALL COSTS, MAJOR THOMAS B. MCGUIRE, JR. WAS AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR.

DOTS AND FLASHES CUTTING CORNERS on the GLAMOUR FRONT

Before storing woollen make sure you put loose moth balls and flakes in toes of nylon stockings before putting them in with the clothes. This prevents the balls from melting and staining the woollens... For the family who has everything, there is a midjet vacuum cleaner on the market especially designed to-dust clothes.

The biggest items involving daily care in the home are the porcelain enameled appliances in the kitchen, used both in food preparation and for those numerous clean-up jobs. Exercising a few precautions, as pointed out by the "Home Service" expert, Penny Edwards, will literally add years of life to the good looks of porcelain enamel surfaces. Metal markings on sink and stove tops, left by pots and pans and other utensils, are not scratches penetrating the surface. Frequently, it's a temptation to remove these marks with a strong quick-acting scouring powder. Resist this temptation, for this practice can in time dull the high gloss of the porcelain enamel. If soap and water and a little elbow grease won't remove the markings, use a very mildly abrasive scouring powder. Smoke stains which occasionally occur in even the most efficiently managed kitchen, can be easily wiped off with soap and water. Lime deposits can be removed by washing with water softener--rinse thoroughly. Nail polish remover will immediately dissolve nail polish. Never use oxalic acid on a porcelain enamel surface. The porcelain enamel interiors of refrigerators and freezers should be washed with soap and water, or mild soda solution. Avoid using a knife or sharp-pointed instrument to speed-up the removal of ice accumulation--instead, defrost with warm water. The ancient adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" certainly applies to long-range appearance of porcelain enamel appliances. Dripping faucets should be repaired before they can form unsightly water marks on sinks and bathtubs. A good bleach diluted according to instructions on the label, if applied to the spot and then quickly and thoroughly rinsed off, will remove water marks from older appliances--but why not avoid them in the first place?

NEW COMMUNICATIONS TESTED BY 29TH DURING EXERCISE Lt. Vincent Terrana, in Back, Pfc Herbert R. Jares Use New Devices

CONARC-Directed Operation 29th Infantry Unit Conducts Test Of Proposed Rifle Company Slash

A 191-man rifle company from the 29th Infantry underwent a night defensive capability test in a Continental Army Command-directed operation at Fort Benning July 15-16.

The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department conducted the exercise with Company B, First Battle Group 29th Infantry, serving as test unit.

The test was part of a CONARC study on the feasibility of reducing the current rifle company to permit an additional company-sized unit in a battle group without increasing total personnel strength.

The test company consisted of three rifle platoons, a weapons platoon and a platoon headquarters.

The Army, in realigning the enlisted structure, has set June 30, 1962, as the final date for a four-year transition to new 110s and insignia for NCOs in grades E-5, E-6 and E-7.

Instructions which are effective immediately, have been sent to field commanders clarifying the June 1 order to convert these NCO grades to new stripes and new titles, the Army said.

35,000 Promotions (The Army also recently authorized more than 35,000 promotions to pay grades E-4 through E-8 for the three-month period ending Sept. 30, 1958. Quotas by grade are: E-8, 700; E-7, 245; E-6, 845; E-5, 1,175; E-4, 27,300 for an Army-wide total of 35,700.)

Under the clarification of earlier directives for the grade structure changes, which provide for the super grades E-8 and E-9, an Army spokesman said future quotas E-6 and E-7 on May 31, 1958, are authorized to wear their present stripes until promoted or until June 20, 1962.

"Bust" Must-Those who are reduced in rank through disciplinary action or for inefficiency will be required to wear the insignia of the "bust" grade, the Army said.

83 Cadets to Get Gold Bars Friday

Eighty-three student-cadets are scheduled to receive second lieutenant commissions during closing ceremonies of the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp Aug. 1.

The ceremonies will be held at 11 a.m. at Strump Field in the Harmony Church Area.

Cadet Leader The Citadel with 20 cadets scheduled to receive their gold bars, leads the other 28 colleges and universities in the number of commissions to be awarded.

Clemson College is next in line with 16 cadets to be commissioned. The University of Florida and Mississippi State College follow with six commissions each.

There are 304 Distinguished Military Students attending the ROTC Camp in the DMS category, North Georgia College holds the lead with 90 students. The Citadel is in place with 22 DMS's, with Clemson College close behind for third place with 20 distinguished cadets.

Other Institutions Other institutions with number of cadets scheduled to be commissioned and the number of DMS's are: Florence State, 14; South Hill, 13; Jacksonville (Ala.) State, 2; Tuskegee Institute, 2; University of Alabama, 2; Florida Southern College, 2; University of Florida, 2; University of Miami, 2; Mercer, 2; University of Georgia, 2; Mississippi Southern College, 2; Mississippi State, 2; University of Tennessee, 2.

Symbolic Action Each scene in the film depicts an action symbolic or representing a different article of the six articles comprising the Code of Conduct. The situation involves a company, bypassed and cut off by enemy forces and unable to re-establish communications or evacuate.

After careful consideration, the company commander decides to continue to fight as long as possible. After two days and nights of enemy attack the commander concludes that escape and evasion by infiltration is the only course of action to avoid complete annihilation.

Before the plan can be carried out, the company, with the exception of the reserve platoon, is overrun. Most of the men on the main position are killed.

Officers, members of the cadre, and students of the 14th Company, First Student Battalion, The School Brigade, since October, 1957, have furnished through voluntary contributions over 20,000 Lollypops to the Immunization Section of the hospital. A child about to be "shot" is given a colored sticker of his or her choice just before the needle goes home. Like all children, even some grown-ups, the mind is taken off impending danger by the fascination over the delightful bit of candy and the shot is over and done with a notable lack of hysterics.

Stripes

May 31, 1958, with certificates carrying titles of the new system will be re-issued adjusted certificates under the transition policy.

Basically Sound
Prior to ordering changes in the enlisted structure, the Army said, field commanders were consulted and endorsed the new grade system as "basically sound" providing a phase-in period could be established to allow time for anticipated promotions to be made so that career NCO's would not "lose a stripe" in present grade.

"At the proposed rate of promotion and the present rate of attrition," the Army said, "it is anticipated that the transition can be completed by June 30, 1962, with increased prestige for career non-commissioned officers who earn their promotion in competition with their contemporaries."

Alternatives Considered
Before adopting the traditional six stripes of the master sergeant or E-6, many alternatives were considered, the Army said. As a result of this study, it was decided that additional stripes, or rockers, on the six-stripe chevrons did not change it sufficiently to be "recognizably different" when viewed from a distance.

The new grade structure and stripes will correct "lack of sequence" in enlisted insignia brought about by elimination of the "book sergeant" in 1948. These manpower management experts point out. They said the rank revision necessitated by the creation of two new pay grades presented an opportunity to "meet the criticism" that resulted from dropping the three-stripe sergeant.

create a pentagonal structure for the 1,427-man battle group. Adds Two Weapons

For the test, Company B was equipped with one additional 81 mm mortar and 106-mm recoilless rifle and a greatly-expanded communications system.

Conducted in the vicinity of Ash Hill near Underwood and Box Springs roads, the test consisted of two phases.

The first phase tested the defense and surveillance capabilities of Company B with two platoons forward and one in reserve. In the second phase, these capabilities were tested with the company deployed in a strong point type of defense.

Wide Frontage
The company was responsible for a 2,400-yard frontage in both phases.

The additional mortar and recoilless rifle were employed along with other weapons of the weapons group in simulated fire missions and displacement actions.

The extended communications set-up for the proposed company included platoon radio and telephone sets with each squad leader equipped with an AN-PRC-8 radio. The company also utilized two AN-VRC-18 radios and 17 AN-PRC-10 radios.

Confidence in your continued success
At Fort Benning, Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center, praised the members of the corps at the post.

"Professional competence," "Thought the history of the corps is relatively short," Gen. Freeman noted in his message, "the professional competence of its members has earned a position of esteem within the Army. Members of the corps discharge diverse responsibilities in a highly efficient manner and make an invaluable contribution to the effectiveness of the Army."

Gen. Freeman added that he is "confident that the corps will continue to perform its mission with the same marked ability that has characterized past achievements."

Actual shooting of the film will be conducted through Aug. 21 at Fort Benning. It is the longest training film ever made here, being approximately 50 minutes in length.

In order to achieve the realistic appearance of men in combat, some forty members of the 14th Infantry appearing in the film have been granted permission to disregard an established standard of military personnel. All forty men carry cards permitting them to go without shaving for the duration of the shooting at Fort Benning.

U.S. Must React Promptly

"The greatest danger to U.S. Security is that a little war will get out of control, and expand into all-out war. The likelihood of this increases with the length of the conflict. Long continued fighting may cause the political issues at stake to assume expanded, exaggerated significance, and almost certainly will result in whipped up emotional furies. That is the background that gives urgent meaning to General Taylor's statement: If we are forced to fight a limited war, it is essential that we react promptly and decisively."—Army Information Digest.

What to Do in Hurricane

American Red Cross lists 10 safety tips for persons who may find themselves in the paths of hurricanes during the coming months. "The next four months—from July to October—are the worst for hurricanes and there are certain steps the residents of the states along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts can take to minimize the loss of life and property." Robert C. Edson, national director of Red Cross Disaster Services, warned.

- 1. Read newspapers and listen to radios for official weather bureau hurricane reports.
2. Store garden furniture, tools, awnings, garbage and rubbish cans, and other loose objects in a safe place. Such items could become lethal weapons in a storm.
3. Board up windows and put storm shutters into place.
4. If you are told to evacuate, don't delay. Just get out and follow instructions—a minute could save your life.
5. Don't run the risk of being marooned. Get away and stay away from low-lying land, beaches or other places likely to be swept by high winds and tides.
6. Don't go outside during the storm. Stay indoors, preferably in a brick or concrete building.
7. If the center of the storm passes directly overhead, there will be a deceptive lull, lasting for as long as 30 minutes. Stay where you are during this calm period. The wind will re-turp from the opposite direction—perhaps with greater force.
8. Fill bath tub, bottles and cooking utensils with water. Keep extra food (which does not require cooking) handy. Be sure to have a flashlight or candles handy to use in the event of power failure.
9. Don't touch fallen wires. Report such damage to police or power companies.

Beats Warhead Problem

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The recent recovery of the Jupiter nose cone intact marks the third time an Army IRBM full-scale or model nose cone has been recovered after safely returning from a trip through outer space. Commented a Department of Defense news release: "These three recoveries affirm that Army missilemen have found a reliable method of solution to the warhead protection problem."

Ike, Nikita Exchange Summit Meet Views

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower refused to budge from his conditions for a summit conference July 29, despite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's tough new note on the subject.
White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty declined to comment on Khrushchev's latest note until it had been received officially.
But he noted that the President in two recent notes to the Soviet leader had insisted that any summit meeting be held at the UN Security Council and governed by its rules.

Beard Fighting Beirut, Lebanon

Hagerty said the President discussed the note with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in London at a meeting of the Baghdad Pact nations.
He said the official text had not yet been received by the State Department and consequently there has been no change as yet to study it.

Perhaps Moscow Moscow—Premier Khrushchev July 29 rejected British offers to help in the Middle East. He urged five-power talks among heads of government be held in some European city, perhaps Moscow.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (REV.) WILIAM E. LYTT
The Pastor and Superintendent of the Sunday School of a certain church were discussing the problem of a Sunday School teacher who had formerly been a wife and mother but who had gradually become un dependable and drift away. The superintendent commented: "Well, Pastor, you know Margaret has two boys who are physically and spiritually growth."
The pastor replied: "No, I insisted the lay leader has two little boys, one 6 and the other 30." Then the minister understood the childish things."

The Judge Says...

Everyone knows that soldiers can be tried by court-martial for military offenses such as willful disobedience or absence without official leave. However, it should be remembered that a court-martial may be convened to try a soldier who would have been a criminal in civilian life—such as robbery, murder, and so on. He is punishable for these crimes by civilian courts without being court-martialed.

Understanding the Power of a Court-Martial

In addition to soldiers, many civilians can be subject to trial by court-martial. This is true in the case of civilians closely connected with the Armed Services who are tried under the Military Code. In wartime, spies, prisoners of war, and those committing other war crimes can be tried under military jurisdiction.

Mid East Has Major Supply of World Oil

(APPS) Feature
On July 14, the day the coup in Iraq that replaced the pro-Western government there with pro-Nasser rebels, the label Middle East re-appeared in headlines of newspapers all over the world.

The next day 1,700 Marines landed in a place called Lebanon on a city called Beirut. Two days after that, on July 17, British forces landed in a country called Jordan. To many, these are strange places and prompt the question: "Just what is the Middle East?" The Arab world of the Middle East consists of 1,616,230 square miles of desert broken here and there by valleys, oases and mountain ranges. Its north-south axis is 1,900 miles long; its east-west axis, 1,500. Within this area the principal countries are the United Arab Republic (a union of Egypt and Syria), the Arab Union (Iraq and Jordan), Saudi Arabia and Lebanon, the most westerly of the Arab states.

Summers are hot and dry, winters cold and dry. When the wind blows the sand blows with it. In this harsh terrain live 46,000,000 people. The Arabs speak one common language, Arabic, and adhere to one common religion, Islam.

Lebanon, alone among the Arab states, is predominantly Christian. The only major non-Arab country in the Middle East is Israel, a state of about two million people.

Oil is the major economic stake in the Middle East. The area holds 63 per cent of the world's proved oil reserves. Western Europe depends on the Middle East for three-fourths of its oil requirements.

MIDDLE EAST... Britain has flown troops to Jordan (1) from Cyprus (2) as U.S. Marines in Lebanon (3) establish headquarters. Other American soldiers have gathered in Adana, Turkey (4). Rebel-controlled Baghdad (5) at last reported news was calm. The Army of Iran (6) has been alerted.

Eisenhower Tells Troops Lebanon Move's Purpose

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's recorded message to U. S. Military Forces in Lebanon and the Middle East. "I am talking to you from my office in the White House. I want to speak personally to the officers and men of our forces—Marines, sailors, soldiers, airmen—who are now in Lebanon, on the Mediterranean Sea, or in the side-Understanding of developments over the area.

"You are in Lebanon because that we have here at home. "As your first elements were landing on the beaches of Lebanon, your government was taking action in the United Nations in an attempt to protect its freedom. We have not yet succeeded in this attempt, but we will persevere. "As soon as the independence and integrity of Lebanon are secure, then you and your comrades will be withdrawn immediately from the country. "While you are in Lebanon, each of you is a personal representative of the United States—a symbol of the national aspirations for freedom for all people. "While on duty, you may be assailed by propaganda whipped up by skillful and ambitious men. There may be deliberate attempts to involve you as units or individuals—in incidents which will be greatly exaggerated by these propagandists to suit their own purposes. "Through it all, just remember you are representing the United States of America—that you are true to her ideals in helping a people to keep their freedom. We have no hostile intent toward any people anywhere in the world. "It will be a trying time for all of you. I know that. But I know that you are American servicemen, trained to do duty to your country. "Right now the importance of that duty is the greatest contribution you can make to the peace of the world—the saving of the freedom of a small and friendly country."

Resume Tells Mid-East Factors, Commitments

Following is resume of factors and commitments which must be taken into account in consideration of events in the Middle East:

The Eisenhower Doctrine: "The President was granted special permission by Congress to cooperate with and assist in the development of the economic strength of Middle Eastern nations and to undertake military assistance programs with those nations deemed to be in the national interest and world peace."

The Baghdad Pact: "The United States regards as vital to the national interest and world peace the preservation of the independence and national integrity of the nations of the Middle East. That is, if the President determines the necessity thereof, the United States is prepared to use Armed Forces to assist any such nation or group of such nations requesting assistance against armed aggression from any country controlled by international Communism."

The President's power is limited by the Treaty commitments of the United States, including the United Nations charter.

Chapter Article 51 of the Charter stated that "nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the U.N. until the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security."

This, in the interpretation of Secretary of State Dulles, empowers the United States to respond to pleas for help under any circumstance of aggression in default of affirmative Security Council action.

The Baghdad Pact: "Although the United States is not a member of the Baghdad Pact, it is a member of its Economic, Military and Security Committees in an advisory and advisory capacity. Baghdad Pact members are Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Great Britain. The Pact is not a formal military alliance and as such does not bind the members to give direct aid or to interfere. However, the partners would seriously consider military intervention if one of them formally requested it. Approval for such action must be unanimous among the members and states participation in the Committee and Turkey's committee members in NATO force the Baghdad Pact nations to consult the United States before taking military action to rescue any of their number."

The Pact continues in effect even if one member nation renounces it.

The Arab Union: "The Arab Union, comprising the federated states of Iraq and Jordan, was formed in answer to Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic. The two countries submitted to a joint legislature, a single executive and a joint judiciary."

Article 16 of the Union's constitution provides that in the event of the Union Assembly having been dissolved or not being available, "if... events cannot be delayed and require immediate action, the head of the Union may issue U.N. decrees which shall have the force of law."

The constitution also provides for the automatic succession of King Hussein of Jordan to the executive power first exercised by King Faisal II of Iraq, who was murdered in the rebellion. This makes it theoretically possible for King Hussein to call for outside help in his name of the Union and thus to legalize the entry of invited foreign troops into Iraq as well as into Jordan.

Of the two countries, only Iraq was a member of the Baghdad Pact. Because of a clause in the Union constitution which provides for separate international obligations separately, Jordan has no separate international obligations.

The United Arab Republic was formed through the merger of Egypt and Syria and was later joined by Yemen as an "associate." Its avowed purpose is to include eventually the entire Arab world.

The UAR has made it plain that it expects Iraq, after its successful coup, to join the Pact. The Rebel government has denounced the Eisenhower doctrine as colonialist and has branded the handling of foreign troops in Lebanon and Jordan as aggression, occupation and a breach of the United Nations charter.

Graduation Set For Airborne Class On Aug. 1
One hundred and fifty-five members of The Infantry School's airborne class No. 1 will receive parachutist badges in formal ceremonies Aug. 1 at 9:30 a.m. on Eubank St. in Ft. Benning.

The public is invited. Col. William E. Egan, director of the Infantry School Airborne - Air Mobility Department, will be the speaker at the graduation exercises. Officer leader class No. 2, totaling 200 students, will begin July 30. Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commandant, will open the course at 8:30 a.m. in the school's Walker Hall.

Woman's Club Sets Pre-Kindergrarten Registration in Aug.
The Pre-Kindergrarten School, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, has been enlarged and is open to all dependent children of the Army personnel, between the ages 3-5.

Registration will be held August 21 and 22 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Pre-Kindergrarten School, Bldg. 1102. For further information, telephone Mrs. Jack B. Matthews, chairman, at 2522.

SCOUT CAMP... A new mess hall, left, and log and plank footbridge have been constructed by units of the 577th Engineer Battalion for the Fort Benning scout camp. Company A built the mess hall, Company C the footbridge.

Camp Built for Scouts by Engineers

Under the direction of Col. Charles C. Noble, commanding officer, 151st Engineer Group (Combat), a new scout camp has been started on the banks of the Upatoi Creek at the Pineknut Creek junction. Col. Noble replaced Col. McClain, former commanding officer of the 54th Medical Group.

As institutional representative of the scout program of VAC at Fort Benning, various units of the 151st Engineer Group have been constructing facilities for the past month to make this camp site ready for the Boy Scouts summer camp from Aug. 3-17.

The scout camp is separated into two distinct areas by Pineknut Creek. Bridging the creek to the adirondack log cabin area is a log and plank footbridge built by Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction). These same engineers constructed a "stairway to heaven" which consists of 56 steps straight up from the creek bank to the adirondack log cabin site. This stairway was constructed and ready for use in one day.

The mess hall which is the only permanent type building constructed this first year was finished in five working days by Company A, 577th Engineer Battalion.

Ridge water tanks for showers as well as log cabin sites are only part of this year's first step in making an excellent scout camp for fun, adventure, and advancement in scouting skills for Fort Benning's Boy and Girl Scouts.

It is the Girl Scouts who claim the honor of being first in the new camp. The girls "roughed" it in the new area from July 13-18.

STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN... The 56 steps from the bank of Pineknut Creek to the adirondack log cabin were built by Company C of the 577th Engineer Battalion and named by the first Girl Scouts to stay at the camp.

Sgt. Mills, supply sergeant of the Hospital Dispensary Service, received a letter of commendation and a $10 prize in the Military Suggestion Contest for proposing an improvement in hospital supply procedures which is expected to result in intangible benefits.

Sgt. Sobczyk, commercial traffic non-commissioned officer of The Infantry Center Transportation Section, was presented a Suggestion Award Certificate for proposing steel racks to be used in lieu of wooden boxes for storing and transporting caliber .45 pistols.

Moncrieff, warehouse foreman of the Infantry Center Quartermaster Re-sale Warehouse, was awarded $25 for proposing a better tally for use in filling supply requests. Mrs. Williams, secretary to The Infantry Center information officer, received $25 for proposing utilization reverse side of incoming letters and correspondence for file copies of replies. Adoption of her suggestion is expected to result in intangible benefits.

Mrs. Fulford, clerk-typist, Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Office, was given $10 for proposing a mimeographed disposition form for use in requesting maternity leave.

Gov't. Helps War Orphans

NEW YORK (APPS)—When Pvt. Robert Francis Brett was killed at Anzio during WWII, his daughters were three, in age as well as number. Too young to sense their loss at the time, the triplets have good reason today to be grateful to Uncle Sam and his gesture of gratitude for Pvt. Brett's sacrifice.

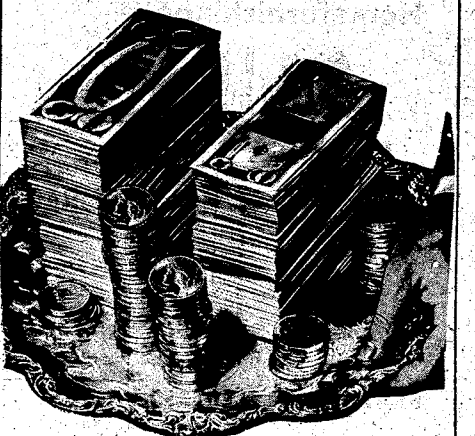

Under the War Orphan Education program, the three girls, now 17 and high school graduates, will get scholarship aid that could go as high as $11,800. Each will receive $110 a month for up to 36 months of college.

The Brett girls' case is far from unique. More than 6,000 war orphan students now are enrolled in schools and colleges across the nation.

Retiring TSB Sgt. Major Honored At Victory Lodge Farewell Dinner

A farewell dinner honoring retiring M-Sgt. Larnell Lacy, The School Brigade, was held at Victory Lodge July 23. The affair was attended by non-commissioned officers of the Brigade, their wives and other guests.

A cocktail hour was held beginning at 7 p.m., followed by a dinner at eight. Honored guests, besides Sgt. and Mrs. Lacy, included Col. E. A. Hoebecke, The School Brigade's commanding officer, and Col. Richard W. Mabree, deputy commander, and Mrs. Mabree.

A resume of Sgt. Lacy's 31 year career in the Army was given by M-Sgt. Floyd O. Holmes, Lacy's successor as sergeant major of the Brigade, and laudatory remarks were made by both Col's. Hoebecke and Mabree.

Sgt. Lacy was further honored at a School Brigade Non-commissioned Officer Review July 25 at France Field.

ROTC PARTIES
Commissioned and enlisted personnel of the 1958 Fort Benning ROTC Camp held their annual parties last week at Victory Lodge.

Officers both permanent party and ROTC Cadre, celebrated with a buffet supper and reception July 25. July 22, the enlisted personnel also entertained with a buffet supper.

TSB COFFEE
Advanced class No. 4 of the School Brigade's First Company, First Student Battalion, gave a desert-coffee at the Victory Lodge.

COFFEE AT POOL
Wives of Fifth Student Battalion held a coffee this month at the Main Officers' swimming pool.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames Norman Regan, Daniel Tobin and William Nankin.

Delightful refreshments were served the ladies. Mrs. John Vollenbaur presided at the serving table.

Mrs. Adrian L. Hoebecke was guest.

RANGER DINNER
Major and Mrs. M. N. Dams were honored with a farewell dinner party given by the Ranger Committee of the Fort Benning Ranger Camp July 19 at the Skeet Club.

Major and Mrs. Dams left Fort Benning July 28 en route to Germany after being with the Ranger Department since February, 1957.

Col. John J. Corley, director of the department, and Mrs. Corley planned the party, assisted by Capt. and Mrs. M. L. Jackson. The ladies of the Ranger Committee brought salads, breads and desserts and delicious steaks were prepared by the man on station grill. Couples sat at tables decorated with red checkered cloths and candles in the German theme.

Mrs. Dams wore a corsage of white gladioli given to her by the Ranger Committee. All Capt. Got Medal of Honor For Deeds While M-Sgt.

Capt. Charles L. McGaha, holder of the nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor, was now assigned to the Infantry School.

McGaha, chief of the Weapons Department's Rifle Committee, Capt. McGaha performed the act which won him the Medal of Honor while serving as a master sergeant with Company G, 35th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division. The heroic act occurred on Feb. 7, 1945, near Lopez on the Philippine island of Luzon as his regiment was attempting to withstand an extremely heavy enemy armored attack.

The citation accompanying the Medal of Honor reads in part:

Placed Down
"Sgt. McGaha's platoon and one other from Company G were pinned down in a roadside ditch by heavy fire from five enemy tanks supported by machine guns and a platoon of riflemen.

"When one of his men fell wounded 40 yards away, he displayed conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity by unhesitatingly crossed the road under a hail of bullets and moving the man 15 yards to safety. Although suffering from a deep arm wound, he returned to his post."

The citation continues to describe a second courageous act.

Realized Mrs.
"Finding his platoon leader seriously wounded, Sgt. McGaha assumed command and rallied his men. Once more he braved the enemy fire to go to the aid of a litter party removing another wounded soldier.

"A shell exploded in their midst, wounding him in the shoulder and killing two of the party. He picked up the remaining man, carried him to cover and then moved out in front of the platoon to receive the enemy fire while the American forces, thus protected without loss of life.

Loss of Blood
"When the last man had gained the new position he rejoiced his command and there collapsed from loss of blood and exhaustion. Sergeant McGaha set an example of courage and leadership in keeping with the highest traditions of the service.

He first entered the service in October, 1937, from Cozy and was assigned to the organization with which he served at the time he carried the country's most coveted decoration.

He also saw action in the Guadalcanal and Northern Solomons Campaigns in World War II.

Watch Out for Food Poisoning at Picnics

This is the time of year when most people seem to be planning some sort of a picnic. It may be a cold picnic and salad in the back yard for all members of the family, or a more involved picnic including a picnic table and chairs in the vicinity of a river. These events should be a time of keen enjoyment and real pleasure to all participants.

It seems that the usual foods served at picnics fall into the categories of the various types of salads using either mayonnaise or salad dressing, sandwiches, and in many cases to which is added some sort of pre-cooked meat or poultry.

Food is usually the point at which the health of the participants may be threatened. Happily, this threat is seldom realized and need never be if certain common sense preventive measures are observed in the handling and care of foods used in the picnic.

Persons preparing foods must realize the ease with which this food can be contaminated by bacteria in the weather. One of the most common bacterial contaminants is the Staphylococcus group of bacteria which is spread primarily by man. It is usually the family food handler who spreads the staphylococcus germs to the food, mainly by the hands from the throat by coughing or breathing on the food.

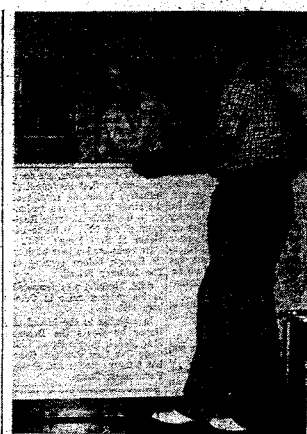

Bacteria needs a proper environment to multiply and grow, and salads made with mayonnaise or salad dressing and pre-cooked meats or poultry are ideal.

If these food items are promptly refrigerated at 42 degrees Fahrenheit or less following preparation there will be practically no growth and subsequent toxin formation.

Staphylococcus bacteria produces a poison which, when eaten by man, causes severe symptoms of food poisoning usually within two to four hours.

The symptoms may be mild to severe and disabling for a day or two.

They are principally related to the intestinal tract and are characterized by abdominal

CDEC Gets Stanford Unit For Support

FORT McHERSON, Ga.—The U. S. Army's Combat Development... Experimentation Center at Fort Ord, Calif., has equipped Stanford Research Institute of Menlo Park, Calif., to provide scientific support.

The announcement was made to this headquarters by Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Cizek, commanding general of CDEC.

CDEC is charged with the responsibility for determining the requirements for the Army of the future on the atomic battlefield or on a battlefield threatened with atomic weapons.

The $750,000.000 contract signed with the Stanford Institute will provide CDEC with a research office staffed initially by 25 scientists.

The scientists will work from offices located at Fort Ord. They will operate as an integral part of the CDEC staff in the fields of planning, conducting, evaluating and reporting on CDEC's experiments.

Additional scientific personnel and high speed computing facilities located at the Institute's Menlo Park headquarters will also be made available to the Army.

The Institute scientists, working as members of CDEC's unique soldier-scientist team, are responsible for maintaining scientific methodology and control in the experimentation programs. This includes as a major function the design and procedure for data collection and analysis.

As team members, the scientists will actively participate in experiments carried on at CDEC's quarter million acre field laboratory at Hunter Liggett military reservation a hundred miles south of Monterey.

The Stanford Research Institute, founded in 1947, is an independent non-profit research organization affiliated with Stanford University. It provides basic and applied research service to government and industry on a contract basis.

Before July 1, scientific support for CDEC was provided by Technical Operations, Inc., of Burlington, Mass.

Lt. Has Goal Of Reaching Metropolitan

A vocal student with plans for a singing career and an eventual goal of the Metropolitan Opera Company is a member of the 22nd Company, Second Student Battalion, School Brigade.

One of the Brigade's known talents can be found in 2nd Lt. James Pennington of Chattanooga, Tenn. Pennington has been a soloist at the School Brigade Chapel and has also helped occasionally to direct the choir.

The 28-year-old officer is a graduate of the University of Chattanooga where he received the degree of Bachelor of Music. One of the requirements for this degree was a formal recital in his senior year of studies. Lt. Pennington has sung with the Chattanooga Opera Association in a number of operas and operettas including "The Vagabond King" by Friml and Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta". He has also performed in the opera "Tosca" with the Tennessee Wesleyan Junior College Opera Workshop.

Presently he spends almost every Saturday traveling to Atlanta where he studies voice with ex-Metropolitan Opera Company tenor Ralph Errolle. Among his favorite operas, Pennington lists Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and "Rigoletto", and as his two favorite vocalists, Maria del Monaco and Leonard Warren.

Among his non-singing hobbies, Lt. Pennington likes to hunt, boat and deer and to return to the singing world.

Testers Use Videotape

WHITE SANDS, N. M. (FPS)—A magnetic recorder called Videotape, it is valued for that capture both sight and sound on tape is helping Army engineers keep watch over the weapons of tomorrow at this desert testing range.

The new type recorder recently won an "Emmy" award of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for outstanding technical achievement in (FPS). A White Sands electronics expert said the recorder, one of 13 prototypes produced, has never missed a complete missile shoot. Its wide frequency two-inch magnetic tape records three channels simultaneously.

"Like an ordinary home recorder, it can play back any portion of the shoot for further study," the expert said. "It may eliminate camera filming of missile shoots for data recording runs."

The Videotape was originally used by TV stations to record live studio telecasts.

Officials Study Mountain Training Results at 29th

The test unit in a plan which would enable companies of the Fort Benning Group, 29th Infantry, to conduct training in the mountains of northern Georgia returned to Fort Benning last week.

Company B returned after 30 days at the Ranger Mountain training camp near Dahlonega, Ga. The unit conducted basic field training concurrently with normal 29th aggressor phase of the 20-day mountain phase of the Ranger course.

Unit Training
Col. Lloyd B. Hurney, commander of The Infantry School Troop Command, fostered the plan as a measure to enable fuller conduct of training by ISTC organizations. He and Col. J. T. Corley, Ranger Department chief, coordinated the details of the test.

Lt. Col. Donald W. Bunte, commander of the battle group, said the test demonstrated that fruitful training could be accomplished and the Ranger Department efficiently supported the plan.

Reports Studied
The reports on the test are now being consolidated. A study to determine whether personnel commitments of The Infantry School Troop Command will permit continuance of the program is being extended to other ISTC elements will be made by Col. Hurney.

Nearly 85 per cent of the training consisted of practical exercises conducted over the same terrain used for Ranger operations.

Ideal Terrain
Capt. James J. De Prales, Company B commander, declared: "The terrain up here is ideal for training small unit leaders. It's excellent for patrolling exercises and is a real test of a man's map and compass skills."

Under the plan, the normal support detail was increased from 92 to 163 men and the tour of duty lengthened by eight days. Each soldier served as aggressor in Ranger problems for a total of 14 days and underwent training the remaining time.

Final Week
Training was conducted initially by platoon on a rotating basis, one platoon training for a week while the remainder of the company served as aggressors. In the final week, the entire unit engaged in company-level tactics.

Lt. Col. George T. Byerly, commanding officer of the Ranger Mountain camp, said:

LAAC Hosts Mrs. Ruggles

The Lawson Army Airfield Command Ladies Group of Fort Benning has Mrs. J. P. Ruggles as their special guest at a coffee held July 22nd at 10 a.m. at the Lawson Field Club. Hostesses for the affair were the wives of the First Aviation Company, assisted by Mrs. Emmett L. Hines III.

The tables were appointed with statuettes of white china and white Chinese goods entwined with ivy runners. The refreshment table was decorated with a watermelon basket filled with fruit sections, cantaloupe and watermelon halves surrounded with an arrangement of ivy and caladium.

Serving during the morning were Mesdames Frederic B. Franklin, John Obovnik, James P. Woods and Orman Hicks. During the business meeting, Mrs. Hines, president, welcomed new members, Mesdames Gerald Dyer, Patrick Sheley, William Fosshell, Orman Hicks and David London. Previous members were Mesdames Harry Zellmer, Richard Stallone, William Fosshell, Orman Hicks and Owens. Mrs. Armoviv J. Sullivan was elected new vice-president to fill the unexpired term left by Mrs. Owens.

The winner of the door prize was Mrs. Charles L. Crowell. Thirty-four ladies attended the coffee.

Working Short-handed Army Nurses Aiding In Health Education

CARLISTE BARRACKS, Pa. (ANP)—When the Army Nurse Corps began assigning nurses to Army health duties, it was natural that Major Helen Schneider should be among the first to get the nod in this new preventive medical field.

Holder since 1948 of a Certificate in Public Health from the University of Pennsylvania (her 1934 nursing school alma mater), she set up the Army Health Nursing Service at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., in 1949.

Today about 75 Army nurses trained in this special field are performing worldwide health education duties with thousands of Army families, as Major Schneider is now at Carlisle Barracks, not far from her home in Lancaster, Pa.

It's an important new project in the Army that can't reach full expansion and is threatened with some curtailment because of the shortages of Army nurses who qualify in this specialty.

This shortage has restricted the number of U.S. Army Health Nurses assigned to military health duties.

Rich Dividends Army Sparked Whitney's Modern Assembly Line

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—The Army Information Digest says that practically any schoolboy would associate the name of Eli Whitney with the inventor of the cotton gin. Whitney employed subcontractors of the economic effects thereof.

"But," the Digest continues in its July issue "rare would be the schoolboy—or even the advanced student—who would associate Whitney with modern mass production which has meant so much to the United States Army by its sponsorship of the economic and industrial life of the nation.

"Inventive, of course, it is true that somebody would have thought of the idea of interchangeable parts and of mass methods of production, concludes the article.

duction of arms during a crisis with France in 1800, who dumped 15 ascetics of hardy work before a group of Army officers and from the parts put together ten muskets. Whitney employed subcontractors and assembly line methods to fill his first order and during the War of 1812, produced some 15,000 muskets by this new method.

The incident is reported, according to AID, because it typifies the manner in which Whitney's contributions to the United States Army by its sponsorship has contributed to the economic and industrial life of the nation.

"Notably, of course, it is true that somebody would have thought of the idea of interchangeable parts and of mass methods of production, concludes the article.

Fort Benning Assigned Honor WAC Graduate

Pvt. Beverly A. Kovach, WAC honor graduate, has been assigned to the WAC Company at Fort Benning with duty in the Infantry Center Troop Command's Personnel Section.

Pvt. Kovach completed the clerical procedures and typing course at the Women's Army Corps School, Fort McClellan, Ala., in June. She was selected honor graduate on the basis of her excellent academic record and superior military conduct and discipline.

She was a member of the first class at the school to receive certificates from Col. Mary Louise Milligan, director of the Women's Army Corps. She has also received a WAC Center letter of commendation.

A graduate of Roosevelt High School, Fresno, Calif., Pvt. Kovach entered the service in January. Before entering the Army, she attended Fresno Business College in Fresno and was employed by the Travelers Insurance Company.

Pvt. Kovach's decision to enter the Women's Army Corps resulted from information sent out by various recruiting offices of the Army services. After following up the material often sent out to high school graduating classes, she and a friend chose the Women's Army Corps.

"It can be said of Washington that he founded the American nation, and of Lincoln that it can be said of Theodore Roosevelt that he revitalized it."

"Rough rider" T. R. himself, one of 19 U.S. presidents to have been in military service, once declared: "The things that will destroy America are prosperity - at any price; peace-at-any-price; safety-first; instead of duty-first, the love of soft living and the get-rich-quick theory of life."

DOD Devises Easy Method To Get Medal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former servicemen may now obtain all their military medals by making one simple request, the Defense Department has announced.

Nor do servicemen have to substantiate their right to wear the medals, according to the department.

Many veterans apparently fail to claim their service medals because they are unable to recall specific dates of military service and cannot name the medals to which they are entitled.

Actually, a veteran does not have to prove his right to a medal. The military service in which he served will obtain the proof from the veteran's service record.

The Defense Department stresses that it is most important that the ex-serviceman give full name, service number, current address and approximate dates of service. The department also urges that he request in writing. Follow-up or tracer inquiries will tend to cause delays in the receipt of medals.

Qualified personnel should send their requests to their pertinent Service Records Center, 5700 Page Blvd., St. Louis, Mo.

Marine and Coast Guard personnel should write to their respective commandants in Washington, D.C.

The Navy has requested that no inquiries be sent before Dec. 31, 1958.

Pvt. Walter Massey, Headquarters Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, claims you don't have to have a modern craft shop and electric tools to make a large piece of furniture for a dayroom. Using makeshift equipment and only basic tools such as a hand saw, hand plane and sander he constructed a five by five foot bookcase. He got the idea while watching the company carpenter re-decorate the dayroom. Deciding then to make his contribution to the company and the dayroom, he gathered, serap-lumber and managed to borrow the basic tools.

Pvt. Massey said, "You ordinarily would use such equipment as a power saw, plane, an electric edger, putter saw, and a band saw for such work, but I thought I would try it anyway."

Proof of his task is a beautifully constructed bookcase with a large shelf for the set of world books and two shelves for the collection of the novels that the men read so much. In addition, the bookcase has six flower vase spaces placed in the novelty on each side.

Authorized Book Col. Scoles Assumes Command At Medics

Lt. Col. Peter S. Scoles was appointed commanding officer of the 54th Medical Group, he succeeds Col. Harry S. McClain who was recently assigned to Resolute Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala. The new Medical Group commanding officer arrived here last week from Fort Widewater, N. Y., where he was the post surgeon in the U. S. Army Dispensary. Born in Long Branch, N. J., Lt. Col. Scoles received his college education at the University of Maryland where he was graduated in 1926 with a Bachelor of Science degree in pre-medicine. After completing three more years of medical training at the Maryland Institute's College of Medicine in 1930, he served his internship in hospitals in the New York and Massachusetts areas until 1946, when he enrolled in the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, for a two-year course of advanced medical study.

Lt. Col. Scoles entered the Army in 1948 as a first lieutenant and was assigned to Fort Monmouth as a medical officer. Subsequent assignments sent him to various posts in the U. S., the Far East, Middle East, and Europe. During his tour of duty in the Korean War he fought in three campaigns and was awarded the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Silver Star.

His tour in the Middle East was spent in Greece as a medical training officer. While in Europe he served as commander of the 118th and the Fifth Medical Battalions. Among his other awards and decorations are the Korean Presidential Unit Citation, Korean Service Medal, and the United Nations Service Medal. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Medical Club of Switzerland, a country in which he is licensed as a medical practitioner, and the Society of Military Surgeons, U. S. Army.

From his combat experience on the battlefield of Korea, Lt. Col. Scoles authored a book entitled, "Anecdotes of a Combat Medic," which was published by the Society of Military Surgeons in 1951. His literary effort probed into the operations and activities of a medical unit in combat.

Among the colonel's favorite avocations are fishing and golf, and he intends to spend much of his spare time at the fishing ponds and on the links on the post in the future. Another hobby that he enjoys is playing the piano, an art at which he has been adept for many years.

NEW HI-FI SYSTEM AT CO. E, ISD

Sp3 Builds Hi-Fi Set For ISD Unit

Under the direction of Sp3 James B. Painter, Company E, Infantry School Detachment, has constructed a Hi-Fi system that is so intricate that part of an old company day room has been rebuilt specifically to afford near-perfect acoustics for the new set.

The project grew in the mind of Sp3 Painter after he had had several years experience in the field as a hobby before entering the service. Through Lt. L. Bobby Hardgrove, Company Commander, Company E, he obtained the use of unit funds for the project. After careful planning, he decided that for about $150 he could build the sound system.

Using the Infantry Center Craft Shop, Sp3 Painter built a cabinet for the speakers that has been so carefully planned that even commercial sets selling for approximately $300 do not incorporate the more advanced features of his design.

Assembling the components proved to be a task that cost Sp3 Painter over 100 hours of personal time. "The system has a Garrard changer, a Lafayette amplifier, and base, mid and hi range speakers connected to a crossover system that keeps the high and low notes separate and undistorted," he said.

Painter attended the Newark School of Fine Industrial Arts, Newark, N. J., and was employed by Robert Ziesman and Associates, New York City, before entering the service.

where he remained until 1947. During this period he was a company commander, battalion commander and regimental sergeant major. He is a member of the Officer Candidate School will hang in Wigle Hall, recently designated Officer Candidate Hall of Fame. Among the portraits will be one of Lt. Col. Adrian D'Esmond.

Lt. Col. Adrian D'Esmond graduated from Officer Candidate Class No. 115 in November, 1942.

He served as a platoon leader and assistant sergeant with the 48th Infantry at Fort Benning in 1942 and 1943. In 1944, he was assigned to the 195th Infantry Regiment in the Philippines and Japan. He served as a deputy G-4 until he attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1946.

In July 1957 he came to Fort Benning where he is presently assigned as an instructor with the Battle Group Committee of the Command and Staff Department of the Infantry School.

His decorations include the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device and two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badge, second award.

SP3 W. G. BAUER, RIGHT, RECEIVES PURPLE HEART
Major W. G. Amburn Presents Decoration Eight Years Late

Sp3 Given Purple Heart 8 Years Late

A belated Purple Heart has been given to Sp3 William G. Bauer, administrative clerk of the 25th Transportation Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, by 1st Lt. battalion commander, Major Warren G. Amburn.

"I look almost eight years for the award to catch up to Sp3 Bauer. He was wounded while with the 29th Infantry Regiment, 24th Infantry Division, in Chinju, Korea, on July 30, 1950. He received multiple wounds on the chest and arms and was evacuated to Japan, pronounced unfit for further combat and returned to the United States.

Shortly thereafter, he was pronounced fit for duty and returned to Korea, this time to the 27th Infantry Regiment. His stay was short lived as he was wounded again. One of his legs more, he was evacuated to Japan, pronounced unfit for further combat and returned to the United States. Sp3 Bauer entered the Army in September, 1945, and upon his return from Korea was married to the former Mrs. Mary Loretta Lucille.

LT. COL. FELT, LEFT, PRESENTED AWARD CONGRATULATED BY GEN. F. L. FREEMAN ON VICTORY

Col. Felt Wins Senior Title in 3rd Army Golf

Awards were presented July 28 to the champions in the Third Army Golf Tournament held at Fort Benning July 22-26.

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center, presented the awards at informal ceremonies at the post's Country Club golf course.

Fort Benning's Lt. Col. Marion F. Felt walked down the championship of the Senior Division Col. Felt in second and third places, respectively, were McPerson, Ga., with 229, and Lt. Col. Joseph E. Robinson, Fort Jackson, S. C., 231.

A Fort Campbell, Ky., golfer, Sgt. Clifton Harrington, who dominated the Open Division from the beginning of the tournament, topped first place by a wide margin over 1st nearest competitor, 2nd Lt. Donald S. Fraser of Fort Buckner, Ala., Sgt. Harrington's 202 third place score was for the par 228.

Winner of the Women's Division in the four-day tournament was Fort Bragg's 1st Lt. Helen McGowan with 378. Runner-up to the first spot was M-Sgt. Elizabeth Baubles, Fort McEllison, with 396 while third place was taken by CW4 Joseph Harter, Fort McPerson, with 399 strokes.

Final standings in team competition, which was completed July 23 and based on the total aggregate score of four members in individual stroke play were: Fort Benning, 612; Fort Jackson, 619; Fort Bragg, 622; Fort McPerson, 623; Fort Campbell, 624; Fort McEllison and Fort McPerson, 625; Tennessee Military District, 714; Mississippi District, 724; and Fort Stewart, 729.

Gen. Freeman presented the championship trophy to the winners.

Three Army-Level Fighters Slated

Three fighters who have held Army-level championships are slated to headline Fort Benning's first boxing card of the season on Aug. 5 at Doughboy Stadium.

29th Infantry Entries to Dominate Benning Boxing Smoker on Aug. 5

The program, set to begin at 7:30 p.m., will be a "smoker" with participants entering as individuals and not members of a team.

Pair Takes 3-A Tennis Doubles Title

Two Fort Benning servicemen are champions of the men's doubles in the Third Army Tennis Tournament played July 14 through July 18 at Fort Bragg, N. C.

M-Sgt. Charles K. Pollman and Sgt. Terry H. Scott capped first place in the competition by defeating a hard-fighting Fort Bragg combination.

EM Wives To Form Bowling Loop Here

There will be an organizational meeting of the Entitled Men's Wives Bowling League at the Main Post Bowling Alley, Aug. 26, at 7:30 p.m.

Interested enlisted men's wives are urged to attend the meeting which will begin the 1958-59 bowling season.

170 Shooters Strong

Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit—170 shooters strong—is heavily favored to win the National Trophy Rifle and Pistol matches at the annual world series of shooting at Camp Perry, Ohio, starting Aug. 7.

AMU Favored In Perry Firing

AMU trans the Army's top rifle and pistol shooters. Last year at the National Matches the Army Rifle team won the National Trophy Rifle, Nevada Trophy, Infantry Trophy and Kounamin Trophy team matches.

Teams Asked For Football Tournament

Team entries are being accepted from the Fort Benning Special Services Section for the Infantry Center 1958-59 company-level invitational football tournament to be held at Gowdy Field Sept. 2-7.

54th Medics Down School Brigade, 8-0

The 54th Medical Group continued to lead the Infantry Center Baseball League shutting out the School Brigade 8-0 July 17 at Gowdy Field. Medic pitchers John Anderson and Roy Witt had given up only four hits to the losers when the game was halted at the end of the seventh inning because of rain.

151st Loses in 11 Innings

The number of entrants from the 29th is expected to far outnumber those from other Bowling commands. Last year the 29th placed six men on the team post 29th.

Stevens Pitches, Bats 29th to First Loop Win

Ron Stevens hurled six-hit ball for 11 innings and then singled home the winning run in a 3-2 victory by the 29th Infantry over the 151st Engineers last week at Gowdy Field.

Aggressive Southpaw

Anderson is an aggressive southpaw with a sharp counter-punch. The 17-year-old Norfolk, Pa., fighter has only 18 fights under his belt, seven of them as a professional.

Medics Took a One-Run Lead in Second on Four Straight Walks

Roy Witt, medic hurler, was chased in the third after giving up three safe batters, one of which was a vomiting home run which put the Vets out in front. John Wagner, who relieved Witt, pitched good ball until the fifth when he was chased with three hits and five runs, partly because of loose fielding by his team mates.

Soldier at 14th Builds Fishing Plug That Fizzes

Sgt. David Scriven, Company A, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, has made in a profitable business out of America's favorite pastime, the art of how to catch a big-ger fish.

29th to Dominate Smoker Aug. 5

Thank You for Continuing Army team candidate after he scored a major upset in the finals of the Third Army boxing tourney. The 29th Infantry boxer gained a decision over defending Third Army champion Joe, Whip Wilson of Fort Campbell, Ky.

Anderson was eliminated from U.S. Army team competition in semi-final action. In 1956, he won both the 24th Infantry Division and Korea middleweight crowns.

The 29th southpaw claims all of his knockout have been scored with his right hook. He and his teammates have been working out the past two weeks in the School Brigade gymnasium.

Company A, 499th Engineer Battalion, is new softball champions in 1958. The second Battle Group, First Infantry, Sgt. Robert Battle, a 141-pounder, and James Johnson, 156, are USEUR runners-up.

Both teams started off fast by scoring three runs in the first inning. However, it wasn't long until Company A jumped in front and remained there.

The Army maintains 398 chapels in the United States and more than 400 overseas.

Going into the final day and event, the U.S. team held a slim 14-point lead over Mexico. Then by sweeping five of the first six places in the 4,000 meter cross-country race, the Americans were assured of victory.

The Reserve components will play a major role in either the big or the little war. The Army believes that it needs this reserve strength to insure victory and a viable peace in either eventuality.

Essentials of football are maintained in flag play, with only a minimum of changes. Each player on the field wears three cloth flags tucked through his belt, one on each side of his body and one in the back.

335 to Fire At Perry From Post

Approximately 335 Army shooters from Fort Benning will fire in the 1958 National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, starting Aug. 6.

Some 170 shooters from the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit will compete in the matches.

Third Army team, commanded by Capt. Eugene Entwink, will send 45 shooters to the matches.

Four other Army teams which are training at Fort Benning will leave for Perry next month. They are Sixth Army, USARPAC (Pacific), USARAF (Alaskan) and USARUR (Europe).

The pistol groups in these teams will depart Aug. 1 and stop in Atlanta for a warmup match and then proceed to Perry.

The rifle groups will depart for Fort Meade, Md., Aug. 16 en route to Perry to participate in the third annual Cosmo C. Breeze Windsock Trophy match. Each group will enter two six-man teams in the invitational warm-up.

Benning Hosts Tenn. Reserve

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the 373d Quartermaster Battalion of Nashville, Tenn., under the command of Lt. Col. William N. Partain, is attending summer field training at Fort Benning for two weeks.

The Reserve unit, consisting of clerks and 10 enlisted men, is performing duties of an administrative and operations headquarters of three quartermaster companies.

In addition to the on-the-job training the units are receiving at the post quartermaster facilities, they will spend three days on bivouac. The training will conclude Aug. 3.

Stephen Brown Match Conducted Smoothly at Post

Everyone connected with the Third Army Golf Tournament conducted at Camp Perry, Ohio, last week is entitled to take a bow. It was as smoothly handled as the best of the big professional tournaments we've seen and a better than many. And a small frog jumped on his ball course no matter how well his affair is handled administratively, in the last analysis, the success depended on the conduct of the course. Our greenskeeper, Lester Lawrence was moaning about how much better he'd like to have had the course but don't let that fool you. That's just professional modesty. The course was in beautiful condition and Sgt. Lawrence and his crew deserve many compliments.

The winner of the tournament, Sgt. Clifton Harrington, Fort Campbell, Ky., finished like a champion. He is playing the last threesome of the last day of the tournament, he put together two great wood shots and a four foot putt for an eagle three on the 18th hole. If there was any doubt as to the man who deserved to win, that settled it. Harrington certainly didn't back into the championship.

Fort Benning's Lt. Col. Marion Felt of the Infantry School took the senior championship. Competition will cover free flight, combat flight, speed, stunt, hand launched glider, flying scale categories. There also will be an exhibition of radio control flight.

It will be held on the Ozark Army Airfield at Fort Rucker. Competition will cover free flight, combat flight, speed, stunt, hand launched glider, flying scale categories. There also will be an exhibition of radio control flight.

McLaughlin Strikes Out 19 in Win For Medics

Southpaw Milt McLaughlin struck out 19 men and came within two outs of a no-hitter last July 25 as the 29th Infantry romped to a 9-0 win over the 29th Infantry at Gowdy Field.

Ralph Martin, 28th second sacker, slashed a drive into short centerfield with one out in the bottom of the ninth to wreck McLaughlin's bid for a no-hitter.

In registering one of the top strikeout totals this season, McLaughlin baffled 29th Infantry batters by mixing a bullet-like fast ball with a good curve and slider. He did not permit a man to reach third base.

The league-leading Medicos scored all their runs in the fourth and eighth innings, tallying six times in the latter frame.

Tony Harris, rightfielder, walloped the big stick for the victors. He collected three hits, including a three-bagger.

Ron Stevens and Ray LaVerdue, hurlers for the 29th Infantry, pitched the big game. LaVerdue came on in relief in the big eighth inning.

Training Nears End for Alabama Reserve Unit

The 882d Quartermaster Company (Mechanical and Metal Repair) of Muscle Shoals, Ala., is nearing the end of its annual two-week active duty at Fort Benning.

The unit, composed of men from Florence, Sheffield, Tusculum, and Cherokee, Ala., is serving under the 373rd Quartermaster Battalion headquarters, commanded by Lt. Col. W. N. Parlain, Nashville, Tenn. Other units of the battalion are from Fort Valley, Ga., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Attendance Grows at Small Arms Firing School

Shooting Gaining in Popularity As Competitive American Sport

BY CHARLIE QUINN

It may be the accuracy of sharpshooters' homescreens triggering across TV screens or it may be an unexpected aftermath of recent warfare but, whatever the reason, rifle and pistol shooting as a sport is coming back into its own.

Shooting, in earlier years, was the American's only major competitive sport, but it was allowed to fade in favor of newer sports as they came on the scene. The handling of firearms was eventually left almost entirely to the military, law enforcement agencies and hunters. No so today.

Return Rapid The rapid return to shooting sports for American pastimes has been borne out in a number of ways. Memberships in Rifle and Gun and Rifle and Pistol Clubs have skyrocketed in the past half decade, sales of target weapons and ammunition have leaped to a new high, and the National Rifle Association, once considered a club of crusty old "gun cranks," is being deluged with new applications for membership.

The odd part of the whole new shooting business is the interest taken in the game by the so-called weaker sex. Women rifle and pistol shots have increased their prowess on the stage where they're grossly accepting winners trophies in the highest circles of shooting competition.

More Women Shooting Rifle teams are popping up in girls' schools and colleges where once even stray guns were given the jaundiced eye. But the "shooting bug" hasn't reserved its bite for the young. A salesman in one of the country's largest arm retail stores was fingered recently when a motherly type, after inspecting a target revolver, told him that "if he'll come, I'll trigger pull down to where it should be" she'd buy it.

THE SCHOOL WAS FIRST AUTHORIZED by the National Defense Act of 1916 and is operated annually by the National Rifle and Pistol Matches, the "World Series of Shooting." Attendance at the school does not necessitate participation in the matches.

The Small Arms Firing School is held under the supervision of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice and its matches are fired under the governing rules of the National Rifle Association. Conduct of the school is the responsibility of The Infantry School.

Instruction Personnel Though The Infantry School claims no credit for the marksmanship courses at its annual marksmanship course at Camp Perry, caliber of personnel instruction offered to each participant is a contributing factor in the huge growth in attendance by Americans of both sexes and all ages and from all walks of life.

The methods and means used during the course of instruction at the school, said Col. Samuel T. McDowell, director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, "are considered to be the 'standards of perfection' employed at the Infantry School in rifle and pistol marksmanship instruction. It is felt that anyone, regardless of previous shooting ability, would benefit greatly from participation in the 1958 Small Arms School."

"Faculty" Selected Selected to be the "faculty" for the school are 15 officers and 22 enlisted members of The Infantry School's Weapons Department rifle and pistol instructor groups. Each has repeatedly qualified as expert with rifle, carbine, automatic rifle and pistol. Each is a highly qualified instructor completely "sold" on his job.

Director of the Small Arms Firing School this year will be Major John P. McNulty Jr., Assistant directors will be Capt. Joseph F. Gregory, who will head the Pistol Section, Capt. Charles L. McGaha, head of both sexes and all ages and from all walks of life.

"The primary mission of the Small Arms Firing School is the promotion of interest in and the raising of the standards of American marksmanship," Capt. McGaha said. "We attempt to supply the latest methods of marksmanship instruction to military personnel, both active and reserve, law enforcement authorities and particularly civilians so they can help reach the school's mission. However, we're ready and very willing to help anyone to take the first steps in the game of shooting."

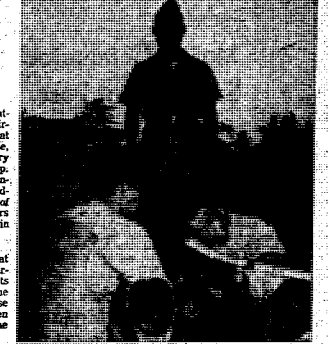

Neither Col. McDowell nor his corps of crack instructors offers guarantee that graduates of their fine course of instruction will be able to out-draw Marshal McDowell or handle a rifle like Chuck Connors, but they are confident that they'll disperse a huge class of new and advanced shooters who'll be well grounded in the game.

The pistol instruction is slated to run Aug. 3 through 11 while the rifle session will cover the period Aug. 24 through 27.

Under the command of Lt. Malcolm J. Marchant of Butler, Ga., the 994th, 40 members strong, arrived for July 20 to a two-week tour terminating Aug. 3.

Solicited on units of the Infantry Center, the support company is in the midst of completing its marksmanship training. The theme of this year's training is "Self-Sufficiency."

Primarily, the training emphasizes those phases which the Reserve unit does not have the facilities nor equipment to perform. The 25-day training takes the men through weapons qualification, bayonet and field functions, job specialty and proficiency training.

MARKSMANSHIP INSTRUCTION is the primary by product of the Small Arms Firing School, Department at Camp Perry, Ohio, next main purpose is to supplying the men with a "hand-to-hand" and other personal instruction during the Small Arms Firing School. At this in Capt. Sam McGaha, who is supervising the "recruit" shooter SP3 Richard T. Sybold, who has apparently found a new way to keep his rifle sling tight. Standing is Capt. Robert Gutter, who gives a detailed description of individual errors.

2nd to Send Pistol Team To Perry

A six-man pistol team from the Second Infantry Division is scheduled to enter the National Pistol Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 7-15.

The team will be led by team captain, MSgt. David G. Christie, Division Marksmanship Detachment.

The pistol team is also expected to enter the National Mid-winter Championship firing at Tampa, Fla. Following this match they are slated to enter the Ft. Benning Open Pistol tournament at Coral Gables, Fla. Dates for these two matches have not yet been announced.

The pistol team returned June 20 from Jacksonville, Fla., where they participated in the Southeast Regional Pistol Matches which were July 25-27, the 2000 aggregate contest was a three-man match featuring the 27, 30, and .45 calibre pistols.

In the Camp Perry matches, Second Division will also have a 14-man rifle team on the firing line. The rifle matches are scheduled to begin on Aug. 14.

'Infantry' Has 4 On Front Cover From 14th Unit

Four members of Company C, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, appear on the cover of the magazine "The Rifle" for the July-September issue.

The cover depicts a squad leader signaling his men forward with fixed bayonets.

Company C men appearing on the magazine cover are Sfc Floyd Lowery, Sp3 Roger Howell, Sp3 Ronald Staley, and Sp3 Arthur S. Lehne.

Scouts Receive Honors at Camp

Fort Benning's Boy Scout Troop No. 57 has received outstanding honors at Scouts and campers at the annual Georgia-Alabama Council of Boy Scouts summer camp.

Seventeen boys from Troop No. 57 attended a week's session at the council's Camp McKenzie, under the leadership of assistant Scoutmaster Pfc. Bob Ochsborn. They took the following honors: superior troop award, 100 per cent membership as honor campers, two banners for having the cleanest mess table, and outstanding troop project.

As their project, the troop erected a 34-foot signal tower made of logs and rope lashed with a fire belt attached to the top. In order to earn the mess banners the boys were required to have the cleanest table, the finest for one banner. All of the Scouts completed the entire week of camping.

Firing is conducted under the rules of the International Shooting Union and is shot over five courses, the 300 meter free rifle course, free pistol course at 50 meters and the rapid fire pistol course at 25 meters. Fort Benning shooters on the 300 meter team include Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, 1st Lt. Verle F. Wright, 1st Lt. James Carter, Col. William Rubenstein, and Sgt. Justus Allen. The 50 meter rifle team is composed of several Fort Ben- and the remainder of the group.

The English match, which is 30 shots at 50 meters and 30 shots at 100 meters, prone, on the international target, was fired with teams of the U.S., Germany, Austria and Venezuela, third with 2,292. Lt. Puckel placed first in the rifle match with a score of 594.

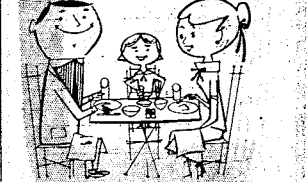

At the American Arts Hotel, Practice Shooting. On July 17, the slow-fire pistol, rapid-fire pistol and small bore shooters practiced on the excellent ranges about six miles east of Wiesbaden. July 18, welcoming ceremonies were conducted at the Wiesbaden Shooting Club with all members of the International Rifle Team present.

The U.S. team departed Wiesbaden July 22 to go to Sweden for the pistol matches at Gotteburg and the rifle matches at Stockholm. In St. Clouds Infantry Review Honors Retiring EM. The 29th Infantry is conducting a special retirement and awards review conducted by First Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

July 20, the four countries competed in a three-position, 50 meter rifle match which won the U.S. team with a score of 5,390. Germany was second with 5,385, and Austria third with 5,547. Fort Benning's Lt. Puckel was second with 1,140. In the full bore pistol match, which is a combination of slow fire on the bulls-eye target and rapid fire on the silhouette target, the U.S. team came in first with 2,304. Venezuela, sec-

14th Names Lt. Col. Todd To Position

Lt. Col. Walter B. Todd is the next executive officer of the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry.

In 1940, Col. Todd graduated from the Presbyterian College of Clinton, S. C., and entered the Army as a 2nd Lt. His first assignment was at Fort Benning with the Eighth Infantry Regiment of the Fourth Infantry Division. He then went to Europe with the division and participated in the assault on Utah beach, on June 6, 1941. Col. Todd served as platoon leader, company and battalion commander, and regimental executive officer with the Eighth Infantry.

After World War Two he was assigned to the First Army Headquarters G-3 section. Two years later he went to the General Headquarters Far East Command G-3 section for three years, then to the Department of Army General Staff for another three years. In 1955 he was assigned to the Joint Military Mission For Aid To Turkey.

In addition to his varied assignments, Col. Todd has attended the Advanced Infantry Officers Course at the Infantry School, Command and General Staff College, Armed Forces Staff College, and the Army War College where he graduated in June, 1958. The Colonel has been awarded the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with 11 Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Order Bans Rocket Firing By Amateurs

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Rocket firing by amateur science groups will be banned at most military installations under a new Defense Department directive. Although urging Armed Forces commanders to cooperate with amateur rocket club and student science organizations in any way short of permitting actual launchings, the new order said "it is necessary as a matter of general policy to limit firing on military installations to those missiles developed by qualified persons to serve a useful scientific purpose." The reasons for curbing experimental rocketeer shoots at military facilities, according to the DOD directive, are: The dangers inherent in the flight testing of explosively propelled projectiles of any size. The lack of personnel fully qualified to evaluate properly such proposals at the majority of installations.

Four From 14th to Tour World's Fair on Leave

A quartet from Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, have decided to become tourists and visit Europe. They are Sp3 William Testa, Pfc Helmut Scherle, Pfc Richard Noone and Pfc James Delaney all of Mortar Battery.

The idea for the plan came to Pfc Delaney when a Pfc Scherle was telling of his plans for a trip to West Germany, where he still has relatives. Pfc Delaney started the ball rolling by submitting a 1949 form, seeking permission to visit the World's Fair. The only other requirements to fulfill were the normal passport rules. It seems to be a simple operation but yards of red tape were encountered. By the time Scherle and Delaney received approval on the 1949 two more forms were already in the channels for Sp3 Testa and Pfc Noone.

Capt. Price Studies For Degree at Univ.

Capt. Reynold E. Price, commander of Mortar Battery, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, since last September, has taken 25-day leave to perform studies in residence at the University of Georgia. Capt. Warren S. Brown, battle group troop requirement officer, assumed command of the battery July 28.

Second Lt. Donald R. Keating, Company B platoon leader, has replaced Capt. Brown as troop requirement officer.

Capt. Price has attended off-campus courses conducted by the University of Georgia, at Columbus Center, since 1955. Next fall he plans to enroll at the university for a full term to obtain a bachelor degree in education under the Army's final semester plan for officers.

Under the plan, Capt. Price would receive full pay and allowances for six months while he attends the university. He would have to bear all travel, tuition, books, and fee expenses. To be eligible, a person must be able to obtain a degree in one semester or two quarters.

Lawson Gets 6 New Link Trainers

Instrument training section at Lawson Field recently received six new flight simulator trainers.

Army and Link Aviation Incorporated representatives are installing the new machines.

The Link trainer is a box which has all the instruments and flight characteristics of an airplane. A pilot inside the trainer sees nothing but the instrument panel and flies the trainer only by reference to instruments.

Though never leaving the ground, pilots obtain invaluable training.

According to Capt. Lyman W. Vasey and Anthony Hatters, two of the instrument section, the new trainers fly and are equipped almost exactly like an airplane.

New electronic equipment aboard and there is even horn which warns the pilot if the simulated landing gear is in the down position. As the throttle is pushed forward the sound of the engine increases.

A total of 11 new trainers will be delivered to the instrument training section this year and will eventually be housed in the proposed new Instrument Training Building.

19 Honored For Attending Sun. School

Nineteen members of the Junior Boys Department of the Fort Benning Sunday School have received awards for perfect Sunday School attendance for one or more quarters.

At a presentation ceremony the boys received recognition buttons. Having perfect attendance for one quarter were James Allen, Charlie Bannister, Alex Conley, Terry Adams, Don Meyer, Gary O'Ball, Chris Seab and Craig Averly.

Two boys were honored for perfect attendance for two consecutive quarters were Ricky Rold, William Horan, Douglas Sikes, John Blair, Conrad, Gary Bates, Stephen Facey, Bob Piper, Ricky Kellers, Ray McClure and Jack Osgard.

Company B Added to the roster of new members are Sgt. Eurrhribas Rivera, Sp2 James H. Griffin, Sp4 George R. Huff and Clarence Rogers and Pvt. Donald R. Lawrence.

Dix Losing Rods To Sword-Swallowing Pvt.

Pvt. Dix N. J. (AFPS) - To his buddies he looked as if he were a 25-year-old soldier, after three weeks of basic training, just couldn't take it. Or could he? When a man grabs a 26-inch rifle cleaning rod and plunges it down his throat, it's time to yell "Medic!"

But, actually Pvt. James Ball was merely demonstrating that he could indeed take it. Billed as "The World's Youngest Sword-Swallower," he dates his daunting feat back to the age of 12 under the professional guidance of his parents.

Lawson Field recently received six new flight simulator trainers.

Army and Link Aviation Incorporated representatives are installing the new machines. The Link trainer is a box which has all the instruments and flight characteristics of an airplane. A pilot inside the trainer sees nothing but the instrument panel and flies the trainer only by reference to instruments.

Though never leaving the ground, pilots obtain invaluable training. According to Capt. Lyman W. Vasey and Anthony Hatters, two of the instrument section, the new trainers fly and are equipped almost exactly like an airplane.

New electronic equipment aboard and there is even horn which warns the pilot if the simulated landing gear is in the down position. As the throttle is pushed forward the sound of the engine increases.

A total of 11 new trainers will be delivered to the instrument training section this year and will eventually be housed in the proposed new Instrument Training Building.

151st Engineer News Gen. Freeman Visits 151st Engineer Gp.

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., commanding general, Infantry Center, visited the 151st Engineer Group (Combat) July 17. After a brief visit and inspection of the Group Headquarters, Gen. Freeman was accompanied on a tour of the unit of the Group by Col. Charles C. Noble, executive officer, 151st Engineer Group; Lt. Col. Jack P. MacDonald, commander of the 499th Engineer Battalion; Lt. Col. John G. Farmer, commanding officer, 577th Engineer Battalion; and the general's Aide de Camp, 1st Lt. Frank J. Simmons.

Returns from Bivouac Company A, 499th Engineer Battalion (Combat), commanded by Capt. Walter E. Russell, is soon due to return from 20 day bivouac and work project in the vicinity of Buna, Vistas and Moore roads. During the period the company was in the field, they were busy with equipment organic to an engineer battalion; such as dozers, graders, and cranes. Included all Army vehicles from the truck, utility one quarter ton up to five ton tractors with trailers. Personnel necessary to perform all required maintenance and shop trucks for emergency repairs are included among the personnel and equipment accompanying the 59th Engineer Company (Combat) as the new personnel officer. WO Morris replaced CWO Lester C. Deane, who has been assigned to the personnel section of G-1, USAIC. CWO Deane had been in the battalion for a month, joining the battalion when it was stationed in Karlsruhe, Germany. During his stay in the battalion, he acted as adjutant and later as the personnel officer of the battalion. WO Morris comes to the 499th from the Seventh Army in Europe, where he was assigned to the Fourth Surgical Hospital in Ludwigsburg, Germany.

New Personnel Officer - Sgt. Norman K. Noble, formerly third platoon sergeant in the 67th Engineer Company, has been assigned to the 499th En-

Lawson Training Nation's Only Reserve 'Otter' Co.

The 300th Aviation Company from Fort Worth, Tex., the nation's only reserve "Otter" company is presently at Fort Benning, taking their summer training with the First Aviation Company (FW-TT).

Formed in September, 1956, the 300th was the brain child of Major Tim M. Carrigan of Fort Worth. With over 20 pilots in the Fort Worth area, Major Carrigan felt that better training, easier coordination and higher morale would result from the formation of an aviation company. Major Carrigan's beliefs and hard work have now grown into an aviation company composed of 20 pilots and 20 E.M.

The pilots came from all walks of life and include salesmen, a geologist, helicopter instructors, and mechanics.

Several are ex-Air Force pilots who reverted to the Army to join the 300th. An example is 1st Lt. George H. Ford of Fort Worth an ex B-29 tanker pilot.

The 300th arrived at Benning last week. Six Otters from the First were flown to Fort Worth to assist the reservists here. Six L-19s assigned to the 300th were also flown here to assist in the training.

Last year three of the reserve pilots were checked out in the Otter and it is expected that four more will receive their checkouts during this year. Sp2 Billy Spurgis, who has been a member of the First since it is being held there this until separated from the Army.

YAC Forms New Boy Scout Troop
A new Boy Scout Troop was formed last week in the Capehart Housing-area under sponsorship of Youth Activities Club.

The new scouting program in the Capehart area is open to boys 11 years of age or older. Plans are being formed to make it possible for members of the new troop to attend the annual Fort Benning Boy Scout summer camp Aug. 3-17.

Officials urge parents in the Capehart area to support the new troop. Additional information may be obtained at the Scout Section, Youth Activities Club, telephone 27216.

L.T. CULTON HONORED
First Lt. William H. Culton was named runner-up for academic honors in the Infantry School's associate company of officers class at Fort Benning.

TSB Honors Enlisted Men

Approximately 1,000 School Brigade troops honored two retiring Brigade master sergeants July 26 with a review on French Field.

Honored were M-Sgt. Larnell Lacy and M-Sgt. Hilliard E. Sharp.

The Infantry Center Band played.

Col. A. L. Hobeke, commanding officer of the School Brigade and reviewing officer, presented both sergeants certificates of appreciation signed by Army chief of staff, Gen. 1788.

Maxwell D. Taylor, for long and faithful service. Sgt. Lacy was also presented a commendation ribbon with metal pendant.

Following the presentation ceremony, six battalions of enlisted School Brigade personnel and one battalion of officer candidates from the Study Company, Fifth Student Battalion, passed in review.

Howard Bus Lines, Inc., has announced that, effective Aug. 15, rates of fare between Columbus and the Main Post and Columbus and the Sand Hill area will be increased from 21 to 25 cents. Rates of fare between Columbus and Harmony Church will be reduced from 26 to 25 cents.

Post Staging War Games

Officially opening the "War Games," in which students in advanced officers class No. 1 at Fort Benning participate, Brig. Gen. Stanley B. Larsen, assistant commander of The Infantry School, Aug. 4 emphasized the mobility of Armed Forces.

Gen. Larsen pointed out that as the conclusion of the course the officers will have gained "some idea of the importance of the problems that have been faced in the past and which may be expected again if we are ever called to complete mobilization."

The 96-hour War Game involves staff work in activating an infantry battle group, training, processing for overseas shipment, going into combat, occupying an area, bringing the unit back to the U.S. and deactivating the battle group. It is the culmination of the advanced course and will be staged in "buildings in the (Please See "Games", Page 2)

Review Cites Col. Sogard At Retirement

A colorful retirement review on the duties of secretary of The Infantry School and Col. James L. Osgard became deputy director of the school's Ranger Department Aug. 1.

Col. Sogard has served in the positions of adjutant general of the Infantry Center and president of the Physical Education Board since coming to the post in June, 1954.

"He plans to make his home in Columbus, Ga.

A complete company from the Infantry Center Troop Command and the Infantry Center band participated in the farewell ceremonies July 30.

Among the reviewing officers were Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., Infantry Center commanding general; Col. Robert H. York Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff.

A commendation ribbon with metal pendant was presented to Col. Sogard at the formation.

The six-year-old officer attended the University of Minnesota before entering active Army duty.

During World War II he was adjutant general of the Ninth Army Division from 1942 to 1946 and participated in three campaigns in Europe, including the capture of Remagen Bridge over the Rhine River.

In 1949 he joined the 24th Infantry Division in Japan as adjutant general and continued in that position when the division moved to Korea July 1, 1950. He participated in five campaigns before his assignment to IX Corps in Korea in January, 1951, as adjutant general.

Col. Sogard is a 1941 graduate of the Adjutant General School at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C. and a 1946 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Branch.

BEST DEFENSE

Says Headquarters, Second United States Army: "The best defense against enemy verbal attacks is preparation, both mentally and physically. . . . The body of the enemy may be broken without breaking his spirit, but the warrior who captures the spirit of the opponent can simply walk in and take over!"

Cols. Pavick, Osgard Take New Duties at Post's Infantry School

Col. John J. Pavick assumed the duties of secretary of The Infantry School and Col. James L. Osgard became deputy director of the school's Ranger Department Aug. 1.

Col. Pavick arrived at the post last August and has served as director of The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department since March. He previously was chief of The Infantry School Special Subjects Department's Intelligence Group.

Secretary of The Infantry School since June, 1957, Col. Osgard was chairman of the Special Subjects Department's Leadership Committee the preceding nine months.

Lt. Col. J. F. Nabors has been named acting director of the Ground Mobility Department.

Commissioned in the Coast Artillery Corps, Col. Pavick transferred to the Infantry five years after his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1939.

He was assigned to Fort Sherman, Canal Zone, Fort Bliss, Tex., and Camp Davis, N.C., before being graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. in 1944.

Following a two year tour as an instructor at the Military Academy, Col. Pavick served four with U. S. Navy Amphibious Forces Austria in Vienna from 1946 to 1947.

Col. Sogard is a 1941 graduate of the Adjutant General School at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C. and a 1946 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Branch.

Crabs Make GIs Crabby

FORT CLAYTON, C.Z. — Island, the more southern of the (ANP)—Tobago, a lush, tropical island located 16 miles off the coast of Panama, would be a new-found Paradise to many GIs. Here can be found crabmeat cocktail, crabmeat Newburg, crab gumbo; crabs stewed, baked, fried, broiled, sauteed or even fried-iced.

However, to the men of the Army's 76th AAA Battalion radar section, stationed on the island, the night, crawling over the corrugated roofs, setting up a racket that sounds like a platoon of youngsters strumming their guitars on the washboards.

Editorials Get Your Money's Worth

The overwhelming majority of dealers, banks, savings and loan associations, and finance companies are eager to advise you and help you keep from getting in over your head, but they are powerless if you let yourself get caught in the clutches of the sharp operators.

To be sure that you get your money's worth and that your easy monthly payments are as easy as you think they are going to be, The Better Business Bureau suggests the following rules:

1. Run up a danger signal when you see or hear claims that there is no down payment and that you can have years to pay. Even if there is no down payment, which is unlikely, you will have to pay much higher interest or financing charges if you buy in this way.
2. The reputation of the dealer is even more important when you buy on time than when you pay cash. ABOVE ALL ELSE, MAKE SURE THE AMOUNT AND DURATION OF YOUR PAYMENTS IS PUT DOWN IN WRITING BEFORE YOU SIGN, WITH A COPY PROVIDED FOR YOU.
3. There is no law that compels you to take the first financing agreement offered you. Make sure any agreement is comfortable and fits your pocketbook before you sign, and be sure you know who is going to handle the financing.
4. Remember that all kinds of people can lend money, often without any public scrutiny or license required. The firms that finance time payments or lend money, range from those among the most reputable in the nation to outright gyp artists. Make sure you deal with one that is well-known and has a good reputation.
5. Check on the reputation of the financing agency beforehand. If the firm that you ask the agency about the dealer is a good financing agency refuses to handle the paper of dealers who are a source of frequent complaints.
6. When you are sure of the reputation of the dealer and his financing agency, be sure to answer their questions truthfully, because a reputable firm always tries to keep you from getting in over your head and will try to give you good advice on just how much you can afford to pay in monthly installments.
7. Read carefully before you sign anything. There is no reason why the financing agreement cannot be included fully in any contract. If you are not certain what the contract means, show it to a lawyer. If it isn't possible to give your personnel manager or someone else whose opinion you value, before you sign it. Believe what you read, not what the salesman says.
8. Remember that it's no sin to pay cash. The higher your down payment, the more you save. Beware of people who try to make the easy monthly installments look too easy.
9. Once you sign, you're on the hook. You can be sued on your contract. If you don't pay, you buy is taken back because you fail to keep up your payments. Don't agree to buy unless you're sure the product is one of adequate quality.
10. Everyone faces the danger of sickness, layoff or other financial problems which can upset your ability to keep up your payments. If you have this problem, call the dealer or financing agency involved and tell them the truth. You will find reputable firms sympathetic and helpful. Credit life insurance also will pay off your time-debts and prevent a ruinous burden to your family if you should die.
11. Watch out for "debt-pooling" outfits which make big promises about settling your debts but are all too likely to add to your troubles instead of solving them.
12. Keep a little money in reserve at all times and maintain a regular savings program, so that you have a cushion if an emergency should hamper your ability to maintain your regular installment payments on goods or services you have bought on time.

Carefully observed these simple rules can truly save you trouble and money, and enable you to enjoy many fine products and services long before you could have them without the great credit system so vital to our nation's continued prosperity.

International Roundup Shehab Says Troop Withdrawal Is Aim

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Paul Shehab, in his first announcement since his election as president, declared Aug. 4 the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from Lebanon is "foremost" among our national interests.

At the same time President Camille Chamoun underscored his determination to keep Egyptian forces here, and indicated he does not intend to resign. He would like to attend a Middle East summit conference if it is held.

IRAQ AMBASSADOR BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—George Zaitzev, the new Soviet ambassador to the Iraq republic, arrived Aug. 4 from Moscow.

Zaitzev was charged de' Affaires in Baghdad when the late Premier Nur Said broke off relations with Russia in 1955 and look Iraq into the Baghdad Pact. After the coup of July 14, the new regime restored relations with Moscow.

NO RELATIONS PARIS — France has no present intention of seeking normal relations with Iraq, official sources indicated Aug. 4.

France broke off relations with the British-French invasion of Egypt's Suez Canal Zone.

Library Sets Piano Suite

The recorded concert at the Ft. Benning Library Aug. 12 at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Pictures at an Exhibition" by Modest Mussorgsky. "Pictures at an Exhibition" was written as a suite for the piano. It is sometimes heard in this form at piano recitals.

The work is most familiar to concertgoers as an orchestral composition. Many fine transcriptions exist, but the most popular transcription and the one usually regarded as the best was done by Maurice Ravel on a commission from the conductor, Serge Koussevitzky.

The composition is a result of a posthumous exhibition of paintings by Mussorgsky's friend, Victor Hartmann. The various sections are tonal representations of the paintings as seen through the eyes of the composer.

Lt. Ewing explained that his wife's job consisted of operating the slide rule to compute distance, speed and elapsed time in road rallies. The general idea of a sport rally, he explained, is not so much speed as the following of a complicated preplanned course and the maintaining of an exact prescribed rate of travel so as to arrive at certain points at exactly the right minute.

"Sounds complicated, doesn't it," he continued. "But that's where the wife comes in handy with her slide rule and charts."

Lt. Ewing's interest in racing and rallying was first awakened at the age of 17 while he was attending Cantwell High School in his hometown of Montebello, Calif. His interests branched into road racing while a sophomore at UCLA in 1954. That year he borrowed an MG (a small English sports car) and placed well in a large Palm Springs race. In 1957 he bought his own car and raced extensively in the Ekersfield, Calif., area.

Although he has been forced to sell his car now that he is in the Army, he has no plans about giving up his hobby. "Racing sportscars is exciting and fast," he stated. "It cost between $200 and $250 to enter one race."

Lt. Raced Sportscars in California

No soldier in his right mind would object to driving an Army vehicle if his young wife came along as a co-pilot.

Such was the case of 2nd Lt. Robert Ewing before he started Basic Infantry Officers Course with the 20th Company, The School Brigade. Lt. Ewing, a sportscare racer and fancier, spent his free time driving in races and rallying with his wife, Joan, acting as navigator and companion as he sped over the California countryside.

Study Shows Short-Timers' Future Plans

What are the future interests of training for the future as of young Army officers who are embarking on six month officers in the 20th Company Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, plan to pursue graduate work in colleges throughout the country.

The answer to this question can be found in the Infantry Officers' Leaders Course, which is a cross section of 49 states an equal number of ideas and future plans are in the minds of the student officers.

The greatest emphasis seems to be placed on a continuation of training for the future as of young Army officers who are embarking on six month officers in the 20th Company Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, plan to pursue graduate work in colleges throughout the country.

Award Goes To Departing Col. Peters

Col. Gus S. Peters has been presented a certificate of achievement for outstanding service as chief of the Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office since last January.

Left the post July 31 to attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larson, Infantry School assistant commandant, made the presentation.

Col. Peters was born in Athens, Greece. He is a 1938 graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism. Before entering active Army service in 1942, he was a staff member of The Lincoln Star.

From September, 1942, to February, 1946, Col. Peters commanded Company A, 502nd Air Base Security Battalion of the Army Service Air Training Command in the Pacific.

After five months' duty in the Office of the Provost Marshal, Camp Robinson, Ark., he served as a battalion commander in regimental combat teams at Fort McClellan, Ala., and Fort Knox, Ky.

From 1947 to 1949 he commanded battalions in the Third Armored and 101st Airborne Divisions at Fort Knox and Camp Breckinridge, Ky. Before his graduation from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1952, he served as senior Organized Reserve Corps instructor in San Antonio, Texas.

Following two years as operations and staff officer in the G-3 (Plans and Operations) Section of Seventh Army in Germany, Col. Peters served as a battalion commander and regimental executive officer of the 10th Infantry, First Infantry Division, in Germany until 1956.

Among his decorations are the Bronze Star Medal and commendation ribbon with metal pendant.

$85,000 Simulator Aids In Training Of Nike Units

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Military simulated sorties at the Fort Benning simulator for Gen. O. P. Newman, retired, former Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3 for the Continental Army Command has announced the development of a new "Training Aid" for Army Air Corps soldiers in the air defense field.

Commenting on the cost of the device, 185,000 General Newman said: "In today's operational Army equipped with complex weapons, the man charged with training can no longer approach his job armed with a sighting bar, a roll of brown wrapping paper and a grease pencil. Good training equipment must be expensive, but it is nevertheless cheap when its value is measured in terms of time to get ready, lives saved and even dollars."

"The simulator is now in production, according to the article, yet it would be innocuous to expect the Air Force to do."

AF Gives M-Sgts. 2nd E-8 Chance

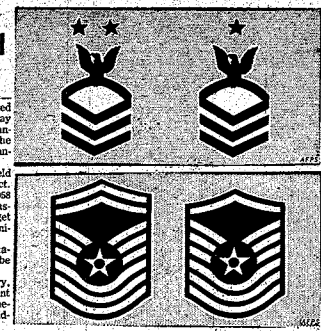

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Master sergeants who had the first E-8 test during May and June are soon to get another chance to make a grade, the Air Force has announced.

A recent message to the field has designated the period Oct. 13, 1958 through Nov. 21, 1958 as a relieving period for master sergeants who did not get a satisfactory score in the initial test.

The USAF Supervisor Examination, APPIT-28, will be the test administered. Retesting is not mandatory, the AF said, but achievement of a satisfactory score is necessary for promotion consideration to E-8.

Eligibility criteria is possession of a Plevel AFSC and 24 months in grade E-7 and 10 years active military service as of March 1, 1959.

Individuals who were not previously tested for any reason can also be tested during this period if they so desire, the AF said.

AWARD GOES TO COL. DUDA FOR SERVICE

Col. Edward Duda has been awarded a commendation ribbon with metal pendant for meritorious service in the Infantry School's Command Development Office since September, 1956.

He has been named to attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., this fall. The medal was presented by Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larson, Infantry School assistant commander, in ceremonies attended by Col. Duda's family and key personnel of the Infantry School.

Col. Duda came to Fort Benning in January, 1956, and was initially assigned to the Infantry Center G-3 Section. He served as executive officer of the 1566 Fort Benning ROTC Summer Camp.

A graduate of Ohio State University, he entered active Army duty in September, 1941.

During World War II, Col. Duda was a battalion commander and regimental adjutant with the 24th Division's 34th Infantry Regiment in Korea from June, 1954, to November, 1955.

He is a 1943 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Among his decorations is the Bronze Star Medal.

'S and P' Soldier Pfc Investigates Future Rocket Fuels at Redstone

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANF) — A 23-year-old soldier here spends his duty time trying to find the answers to questions that may not be asked in the foreseeable future.

He is Pfc David W. Howgate who has just the right background for the basic research he's carrying on in Redstone's "ivory cellar."

(There was no tower for the laboratory so the dozen or so civilian scientists, eight enlisted men and two junior officers have their equipment in the basement of one of the Arsenal's administrative buildings.)

In 1954 Howgate got his bachelor's degree in chemistry at Marshall College in Huntington, and followed up with a master's degree in physics at the University of West Virginia. Then he put in two years toward a Ph.D. in physics at the University of Pennsylvania — all before entering the Army last June.

Like the other "S and P's" — scientific and professional soldiers — working in the basic research laboratory, Howgate is given a great amount of freedom in his projects which may eventually have an important impact on America's military and civilian communities.

Right now Howgate's free radicals research is in reference to their possibilities as rocket fuels of the future. As he describes his subject, "Free radicals are pieces of molecules torn off from the main body of the molecule. If we can keep them stable and separate, then join them when we want to, we may have a tremendously greater source of energy than we're getting from the chemical fuels now being used in rockets."

He is also searching for the qualitative and quantitative description of the nature of free radicals, work which is closely related to his study at the University of West Virginia.

Intensely interested as he is in his work, Howgate burns little midnight oil in his lab. After his eight-hour day he either works out in the Arsenal's gym, plays tennis on the post team, or takes it easy in the service club. He does little scientific reading during off-duty time, preferring light novels for relaxation.

"Scientific reading I do as part of my job. When I'm not on the job I relax and find I can do better work as a result."

700 Submit New Ideas For Flag

NEW YORK (APFS) — Artists, teachers, school children, farmers and Americans in many other walks of life all have submitted ideas for the flag of the U. S. should be redesigned when Alaska becomes the 49th state and possibly — Hawaii the 50th.

Some submit their designs in completed cloth flags. Others paint or sketch them on paper or cardboard. They send them directly to the White House and to members of Congress and other government agencies. They all end up in the Office of the Army Quartermaster General to be preserved in its Heraldic Branch for future reference and consideration.

According to the QMG more than 700 such designs and proposals are on file, some of them dating back to when original discussion of a new flag for the United States began. Many are duplicates, with a 49-star flag having seven rows of seven stars each the favorite.

Other designs are more fanciful. Some have the stars arranged in circles within circles. In some the stars compose one large star. Another design has the stars so arranged as to compose the letters USA.

Whatever design is eventually approved, the Star Spangled Banner isn't likely to take on new colors. For by tradition they are white for purity and innocence, red for hardness and valor, and blue for vigilance.

YAC Dance Marks Opening of Barracks

The Fort Benning Youth Activities Club has officially opened its new Barracks Barracks. The first event held in the new, improved Tenage center was a dance for YAC members.

Opening night spotlighted the music of the Rhythm Team, a four-man instrumental group led by Alex Pickens. The large quarters were the result of YAC's efforts to obtain a more suitable building to meet the club's expanding requirements.

Boxing and basketball are planned, as well as future dances and parties. It houses the Youth Employment Bureau, the Youth Activities Office and Teenage Center all under one roof for better coordination.

600 Hear Col. Ramsey

Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey, First Infantry Brigade commander, welcomed nearly 600 Reserve drillmen to Fort Benning Aug. 6 for two weeks active duty training.

The 568-man camp command was drawn from Georgia, Mississippi, and Florida. It is being jointly supported by the First Infantry Brigade and The Infantry Center civilian components section.

Col. Ramsey, greeting the reservists on behalf of the commanding general of Fort Benning, emphasized the importance of the active duty training program.

"You have only to pick up the newspapers each morning and read the headlines to see that a conflict might break out at any time," he said.

Under New Directive

State Laws Control Reservations' Game

Hunting, fishing and trapping on military reservations are controlled by the fish and game laws of the states or territories in which the reservations are located according to a Defense Department announcement. In implementing the provisions of Public Law 85-537 enacted by the 85th Congress, the Secretary of Defense has issued a directive which spells out the policy governing the management, conservation and harvesting of fish and game resources on all military reservations containing land or water areas suitable for these activities.

The directive provides for punishing violators of state fish and game laws and also reserves the existing rights granted to Indian tribes and their members. Close cooperation between military commanders and state and local authorities is the keynote of the directive. To initiate action along this line, the defense secretary is sending letters to the governors of states and territories. In the letters the secretary offers to enter into cooperative agreements with the states or territories whereby conservation officials designated by each governor may have access to military reservations within their respective areas. Game officials would then assist the local commanders in effectively managing fish and game resources. Military personnel are urged to cooperate fully with state and local conservation authorities in order to maintain har-

U.S. Firing Way To World Match

The U.S. International Rifle and Pistol Team, which includes several members of the Fort Benning Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, has won four first places and one second place in competition during International Championships in Europe.

The team members are shooting their way toward a first place victory in Europe for a chance to compete in the 1958 World Rifle and Pistol Championships in Moscow.

Competition started at Wiesbaden, Germany, with the slow fire pistol match, 60 shots at 50 meters on the International target, between the U.S., Germany and Venezuela.

Take First Six Places The U.S. won with a score of 2,217 with U.S. shooters placing first through sixth. Fort Benning's Sgt. Nelson Lincoln was high man with a score of 586.

Targets of the U.S., Germany and Venezuela next fired in the 100-meter rifle match, which is the 22-millimeter rifle pistol match on silhouette targets.

Again, the U.S. placed first with a score of 2,291. Venezuela was second with 2,247, and Germany, third with 2,216.

The English match, which is 30 shots at 50 meters and 30 shots at 100 meters, prone, on the International target, was fired with teams of the U.S., Germany, Austria and Venezuela competing.

Germany First Germany placed first with a score of 2,317. The U.S. team placed second with its score of 2,212. Austria was third with 2,202, while Venezuela placed fourth with a 2,222 score. First Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, a member of the AMU, placed first in the rifle match with a score of 584. Later the four countries competed in a three-position, 50-meter match.

Denman Set For National AAU Walking The School Brigade's Olympic walker, Pfc. Elliot Denman, will compete in the National AAU 35-kilometer walking championship Aug. 9 at Fort Benning.

Denman, a clerk in the Infantry "Pay Section of 1st School Brigade, is one of the fastest walkers of the United States and Canada in the 22-mile mile walk.

Denman finished third in the race last year when it was held in Pittsburgh, Pa. His time there was three hours and 22 minutes. Since that time his times have been steadily improving.

The stiffest competition will come from Ley Sjogren, Los Angeles, Denmark's teammate on the 1956 Olympic team in Melbourne, Australia; former National Champion Arnold Otis, Seattle Athletic Club, and a former champion of Sweden, Vladimir Grand, Vancouver, B. C.

The race is one of the featured events in the week-long Seattle sports festival in Seattle. The Sports events will highlight the week.

Stephen Brown Course Plagued By Slow Golfers

How come all the slow players are so tangled up? They stand so reason. I know we have slow players on our course because I've been here a number of times in the last couple of years. But I've asked everyone I know at the "Are you?" "Yes," "No," "A slow player?" "Certainly not," they replied. "Is there other so-and-so?" Now what I'd like to know is where all those strangers come from? Who are they? I doubt if I'd like to live on them. They probably hold partitions for smashing buttons at the laundry or stalling cars at busy intersections.

You may think I'm exaggerating but it's not so. Follow I played with a couple of weeks ago. The three or four practice swings on every tee. When I suggested that this might be considered as slow play, he pointed out to me just how wrong I was. By taking his practice swings, he said, he was really speeding up play. He explained that if he didn't take those swings, he'd probably knock the ball into the rough and then he'd hold up other players while he looked for his ball. Well now, that's reasonable. I certainly feel ashamed for mentioning the matter. Of course, I noticed he sometimes knocked the ball into the rough anyway. But he was a real considerate fellow. You could tell just by listening to him that he wouldn't hold anybody up. Those slow players, anyhow. What was the tightest golf match ever played? Well, in 1957, a big tournament was held in the 1951 Open Championship. Billie Burke and George Van Eman were tied at the end of 72 holes with scores of 292. In a 36 hole playoff, they tied again with scores of 149. Then in a second 36 hole playoff Burke won from Van Eman by 148 to 158. One shot for a divided 1 if I doubt it the pay for holding up other golfers is high enough to live on. They probably hold partitions for smashing buttons at the laundry or stalling cars at busy intersections.

Officer Says Little League Has 2 Aims Little League baseball in recent years has become more than just a game with youngsters aged 8 to 12 can learn the rules of the game. Due to the efforts of men like 2nd Lt. Donald D. Bream, a student in the 22nd Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, young stars of the future are learning good sportsmanship along with gaining competitive spirit and leadership while enjoying their leisure time.

La Bream, a member of Basic Infantry Officer Course No. 16, is a 1957 graduate of Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa. He became interested in Little League baseball in 1951, and has coached the Rotary Tigers each year since that time. He has already led his team to one championship in 1957 where they also went on to the regional finals and after this tour with the Army, he hopes to return to coaching his future major leaguers.

La Bream stated that he has two aims in mind with the Little Leaguers. "Naturally the winning is important, but the premium on finishing first is often over-stressed. If the boys can learn to get along and work with each other and play the game to the best of their ability, that's all that is really important."

87th Selecting Softball, V'ball Tourny Teams

The First Battle Group, 87th Infantry Second Division, ball and volleyball fields were crowded with athletes this week as each company began selection tournaments to pick teams for participation in Battle Group playoffs.

Double elimination competition will be conducted at Battle Group level to pick the champions. Athletic and recreation officials stated that trophies will be awarded to the winning team of each company and the Battle Group champions.

Thank You for Continuing capture the crown will be the 1958 champs, Fort Benning. To pull the trick they will have to face powers from Fort Jackson, Bragg, McEllan, Stewart, Campbell, McPherson, Gordon, Tucker, Redisons, Arsenal, North Carolina and Tennessee Military District.

Ceremonies Set On the Hospital Field at 8:40 a.m. Aug. 11, the opening ceremonies will be held with all the teams participating. From 9 a.m. Aug. 11 until 8 p.m. Aug. 12, the dust will fly. All games will be played at the following fields—Hospital, Darty and Pony. The Hospital field is located at the corner of Hill Street and Jackson Blvd., and the Pony field is located on Jackson Blvd., south of Darty Blvd.

Entertainment Planned Visiting ball players won't find their stay at Fort Jackson limited only to the softball diamond. Through the auspices of Fort Jackson Special Services, "extra-curricular" activities will get underway with a golf banquet, complete with floor show, at the Main NCO Mess.

During the week, all visiting officers and enlisted men and women are welcome to the Officers Club and NCO annex. The theaters, with some fine movies, invite the patronage of the softball tourist participants. Libraries and Service Clubs will also be at their disposal. Activities will be coordinated with the presentation of trophies immediately after the last game Aug. 16.

These combat divisions also will be fully organized, although six will have higher authorized strength than the other four, the Army said. The remaining 13 will have a special Table of Organization to accomplish their mission. According to the Army, the plan preserves the present 27 National Guard combat divisions, provides the high-priority units required for war plans and maintains the number of Guard organizations needed for mobilization.

MALE OF DOWNED H-21 HELICOPTER HOISTED BY H-34 Transported Through Air From Comer, Ala. To Lawson Army Airfield

Moves Downed Craft Here Helicopter Performs Perilous Salvage Job
An H-34 helicopter from Fort Benning's 1st Transportation Company started in a tense but successful salvage mission of an H-21 helicopter July 16 near Comer, Ala.

In order to move the wreckage to Fort Benning, it was necessary first to separate the downed craft into two parts. This being accomplished, the crew moved into action. After two unsuccessful attempts to raise the 3,000-pound forward section of the H-21, during which time the H-34 and its crew were in danger because of the extreme weight and perilous position of the payload, the salvaging helicopter finally lifted an airborne, a D completed its first trip to Lawson Army Airfield.

Facilities Inspected by Laundry Advisor
Thomas H. Elliot, technical laundry advisor from the Office of the Quartermaster General, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., has made a nine-day inspection of the Infantry Center Quartermaster laundry and dry cleaning facilities at Fort Benning. He completed his visit at the post July 18.

Red Cross Sending Only 'Critical' Notes

American Red Cross has announced that because of the emergency nature of the Middle East operation only the most critical messages from families can be cabled to U. S. troops in Lebanon.

For the present, and at the direct request of military authorities, only notification of deaths in servicemen's immediate families, serious illness or other critical emergencies at home can be transmitted by Red Cross over military cable or radio circuits. These will be handled by Red Cross field directors in Lebanon, three of whom already are on duty there, with others to be sent in as transportation becomes available.

Less critical communications dealing with regular Red Cross activities to members of the armed forces in the Middle East will be airmailed to the Red Cross staff in Beirut. This applies particularly to messages inquiring about the health and welfare of men stationed in the Middle East. All such inquiries will be handled as long as the present crisis requires the use of radio circuits for more pressing military communications.

The three Red Cross field directors now on duty with the American troops in Lebanon—Edward J. O'Leary, Bloomville, N. Y.; Francis Russell Veeder, Tallahassee, Fla.; James P. Layton of Alameda, Calif.—have Red Cross experience dating back to World War II days. The Red Cross urged families of military personnel in the Middle East to continue to write letters to the latest address given by the servicemen in brief, the advice being given by military authorities to families is as follows:

Places to Write
Army and Air Force—Continue to communicate with the servicemen through the APO address he provided in his latest communication. All transferred personnel are permitted and urged to notify their families of new addresses when such transfers occur.

Sp4's Pies Make 14th Mouths Water
Sp4 Richard Lawrence of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry combines outstanding ability, and determination to create the pastries that bring him hundreds of compliments each day.

Sp4 Lawrence has been the baker for the company since December, 1957, when he completed Food Service School at the Infantry Center.

The specialty of Sp4 Lawrence is creating a tender crusted, mouth watering pie. This alone never fails to have the men line up for seconds. His work is not limited to satisfying the hunger pangs of the men of the company, for Sp4 Lawrence has also prepared pastry for an estimated 100 Allied Officers who have visited the 14th Infantry area.

Officer Candidate

Hall of Fame to Display Portrait of Lt. Col. Felt

Lt. Col. Marion F. Felt, deputy director of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction, will have his picture placed among other distinguished military leaders in Wigle Hall, the Officer Candidate Hall of Fame.

Lt. Col. Felt began his career in the officer corps with his production from OCS in July, 1943. He was then assigned to Camp Walters, Tex., for a short while before being assigned the 442d ROT, 100th Battalion, where he served as a platoon leader, and later in the staff sections of the battalion. Lt. Col. Felt was with the 442d ROT throughout the fighting in France and Italy.

In 1946, he was a detachment company commander for the American Mission to observe Greek elections in Athens, Greece.

Lt. Col. Felt had a short break in service in July, 1946, and returned to active duty in 1947. At this time, he was integrated into the Regular Army. His next assignment was to Seoul, Korea, as assistant G-4, Chief of Supply Branch with Headquarters XXIV Corps. He remained with XXIV Corps until 1948 when he was transferred to the Seventh Infantry Division at Camp Crawford, Japan.

In 1950, Lt. Col. Felt then Major Felt was assigned as a student at the Infantry School where he attended the Advanced Officers Course. From Fort Benning, Lt. Col. Felt continued his academic pursuit, this time however, at the

In California National Guard Mans First Nike-Ajax Sites

FORT McPHERSON, Ga.—The new era begins for the National Guard early in September when selected California units will take over Nike-Ajax sites from the Army. Department of the Army has announced that California's 20th AAA Missile Battalion will begin training at four Nike sites in the Los Angeles area Aug. 16. At the conclusion of this training Aug. 30, the guard units will become a permanent member of the Army Air Defense System and an element of the 47th Artillery Brigade.

Other units presently scheduled for conversion to missile control are in Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, Washington, and West Virginia. The National Guardmen in these battalions work in civilian occupations and are part-time soldiers. Three typical members of the unit are: Sgt. Robert J. Paus, a member of the fire department, would report immediately to the Nike site upon being alerted by the Army Air Defense Command of an impending or actual emergency. His work is not limited to satisfying the hunger pangs of the men of the company, for Sp4 Lawrence has also prepared pastry for an estimated 100 Allied Officers who have visited the 14th Infantry area.

Persons having knowledge of any war orphans in that area who may be eligible for benefits under the law, should notify the nearest contact the Veterans Administration, 414 Flowers Building, Columbus, Miss.

Teachers Use Summers To Attend Army Schools

Usually public school teachers spend the summer months in college attendance to improve their minds or else obtain a short-time job to supplement their income.

Such is not the case for about 15 teachers who are officer candidates at The Infantry School.

Three typical members of this group are OCS Kenneth H. Paus of Berwick, Pa.; Arthur A. Russo of Pine Bluff, Ark.; and Salvatore V. Russo of Glendale, Calif., all teachers of high school and reserve officer candidate class No. 1.

The trio represents the East, West, and South, but they all represent a trend for the teaching profession to take part actively in the Reserve program by attending Army schools in the summer. Ideally, these men have the entire summer free to devote to improve themselves militarily.

Through Aug. 17 60 Attending Summer Camp

Some 60 Fort Benning Boy Scouts are attending the annual Summer Boy Scout Camp. The following military personnel that will be in charge of the various activities:

Sp4 Robert A. Wulff, Martin Camp, Scoutmaster; Sp4 Robert A. Wulff, Martin Camp, Scoutmaster; Sp4 Robert A. Wulff, Martin Camp, Scoutmaster.

During each week at camp, the scouts will be engaged in scoutcraft, advancement, and other scouting activities. Archery, skeet shoot, hiking and handicraft are among the activities to be offered. A staff of qualified counselors, comprised mostly of military personnel, provides well-rounded scouting experience for instruction.

The pre-camp physical examination was conducted by Capt. Daniel Keel and Major Thomas S. Coleman, Martin Army Hospital. All Scouts have been examined according to the health and safety policy of the Boy Scouts of America. All five of Fort Benning Boy Scout Troops (10, 27, 97, 51) is taking part in this year's summer camp. The newly organized troop from Capohatchee is attending.

Each troop has a leader in camp at all times. Aside from being sponsor for the troops.

'Canoneers Post' Battery Prepares Hours For Moment's 'Pay Shot'

"Canoneers Post... Load... Stand By... One Fire!" To the highly trained men of Battery B, Second Field Artillery Battalion (Infantry Center) Artillery, these commands have a significant meaning—the initiation of an Artillery "Pay Shot." Pastaking effort is exerted by every man in the preparation of each salute to insure that personal appearance and general military knowledge are the hallmarks of the salute battery. All equipment is inspected for appearance and to insure against any malfunctions of the weapons. Once the Command, "Canoneers Post" is sounded, every thing must be done with clockwork precision. In true tradition, the men of Battery B will insure that all salutes are carried on in a highly satisfactory manner. Fort Benning can well be proud of its honor Guard Battery and its outstanding record of achievement.

3 Israeli Arrive For Orientation

Three top ranking Israeli Defense Force officers arrived at Fort Benning Aug. 5 for a five-day orientation on Infantry School methods of operation. They are Col. T. Shamir, chief of Infantry; J. Harpaz, commander of the Officers School; and Alon Yariv, Israeli military, naval and air attaché in Washington, D.C. Among demonstrations they will witness are battle group training, Ranger and Scout instruction, battle drill, conduct of defense and 106-mm recoilless rifle marksmanship. The party will leave the post Aug. 10.

John Jacob Astor Paid Bill For '98 Artillery Battery

NEW YORK (AP)—The saga of the "Astor Battery" is recalled in an article by the late Gen. John Jacob Astor. Such a patriot was John Jacob Astor IV who fought as a colonel in the war against the break of the Spanish-American War in April 1898. Tremendously wealthy, he was worth a hundred million dollars when he died in the sinking of the Titanic 14 years later. Astor had made the US a handsome present before going off to war. The gift: a 100-man battery of artillery, completely equipped for combat. The colorful saga of the "Astor Battery" is recalled in an article by the late Gen. John Jacob Astor.

Finn Feels At Home In Alaska

FORT CARSON, Colo. (AP)—Underground is not the ideal habitat of skiing experts, but one exception by necessity is Army Capt. Arvo J. Viiksten. When he reports for duty with the Armed Forces Ski Team at Fort Greely, Alaska, in the near future, he'll be getting an officer with plenty of ups and downs in a military career that began 25 years ago in the Finnish Army. The captain has reached the same rank in the Finnish service among the famous fighting men who valiantly repulsed an enormous superior Soviet force invading Finland early in WWI. When their early resistance finally was crushed by sheer weight of numbers, Capt. Viiksten went underground escaping first to Sweden, then Denmark, and finally reaching his country in 1947. Since enlisting as a private the next year, he has spent much of his U. S. Army career in mountain and arctic warfare training in Alaska and Iceland. In California, as a member of an Army team on duty with the Air Force.

John Jacob Astor Paid Bill For '98 Artillery Battery

NEW YORK (AP)—The saga of the "Astor Battery" is recalled in an article by the late Gen. John Jacob Astor. Such a patriot was John Jacob Astor IV who fought as a colonel in the war against the break of the Spanish-American War in April 1898. Tremendously wealthy, he was worth a hundred million dollars when he died in the sinking of the Titanic 14 years later. Astor had made the US a handsome present before going off to war. The gift: a 100-man battery of artillery, completely equipped for combat. The colorful saga of the "Astor Battery" is recalled in an article by the late Gen. John Jacob Astor.

Reunion Slated By 45th Division

Oklahoma City will host the 10th annual reunion of the 45th Infantry Division Association Oct. 31 - Nov. 2. Association President Raymond S. McLean said. The three-day gathering will be called the "reunion of the 45th" and will feature dedication of a $38,000 memorial to the Thunderbird division to be erected soon in Oklahoma City's civic center. More than 2,500 members and former members of the 45th Division are expected to attend the three-day event. The Thunderbirds and 45th Division Association, 2505 North Central, Oklahoma City 5, Okla.

Essential to Health Committee Asks Dental Services

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Dental care for dependents of servicemen has been recommended to the Office For Dependents' Medical Care by a special dental advisory committee. The committee's report, submitted to Dr. Frank Berry, assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), is the result of an extensive survey which began on April 29, 1957.

In January, 1958, questionnaires were circulated to Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, U. S. Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey personnel to determine:

- (1) The feelings of commissioned officers and enlisted men concerning the present status of dependents' dental care; and
- (2) The type of dependents denture program that officers and enlisted men wished to have for their dependents.

Highlights of the committee's findings were reported as follows:

"Comprehensive dental care is an integral part of basic health care and essential to health maintenance.

"The lack of a dental care provision is considered the primary defect of the Medicare Program.

"Dependents' dental care is one of several important factors considered by enlisted men and officers of uniformed service organizations.

"A sound dental care program for dependents of uniformed service personnel can be developed and administered.

"Facilities for fiscal administration of a dental care program are available.

"The establishment of a sound dental care program in dental facilities of the uniformed services should be limited by the availability of space and facilities, and the capabilities of the dental staff.

"In this respect, the committee thought the better.

29th Sends 3 Dog Teams To Far East

Three sentry dog teams—the first sentry-type canines and handlers to be trained at Fort Benning in the past months—departed Aug. 4 for overseas shipment as Korean replacements.

The teams recently completed eight weeks basic sentry dog training with the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, attached to the First Battle Group, 26th Infantry.

They were the vanguard of a large-scale sentry dog training program at Benning which began Aug. 4. A total of 29 dogs will undergo eight and 16-week sentry-type courses.

Travel by Train

The dogs and handlers are en route by rail to the Oakland, Calif., Army terminal for shipment to headquarters, Eighth Army, 65th Quartermaster Depot, in Korea.

Because the dogs have been trained to be vicious, the Army made special arrangements to enable the handlers to feed the dogs and control them when they are on trains, according to 1st Lt. Thomas J. O'Brien, 26th platoon leader.

5 Dependents

The departing trio were Sgt. Thomas Nunn and "Duke," Sgt. Larry Polard and "Rex." (Please See DOGS, Page 2)

For U. S. Armed Forces Reorganization Means New Military Era

WASHINGTON (APPS)—When President Eisenhower signed the "Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1958" into law, a new era in the U. S. military establishment emerged.

"The result for America," the President said, "will be a more efficient and more effective national defense."

Earlier, the compromise legislation had cleared the House of Representatives within hours. It passed both chambers on a voice vote.

As passed by Congress the reorganization bill, in general, does these things: The secretaries of defense now have increased authority, particularly in the fields of military and naval operations, and in the appointment of military and Air Force officers, and in the assignment of weapons to services.

It also expands the authority of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and increases the number of officers who may serve on the staff from 210 to 401.

The bill, as passed, creates a new post of Director of Research and Engineering.

There are three points in the bill that President Eisenhower asked to have changed. Congress met, the President's wishes with some modifications in language.

First, the secretary of a military department shall be responsible to the Secretary of Defense for the operation of such departments as well as its efficiency.

Second, Service Secretaries and Chiefs of Staff may go to Congress at their own initiative, after first advising the Secretary of Defense, with respect to recommendations relating to the Department of Defense.

This with respect to the transfer of preserved functions, Congress preserved the prerogative of making the final determination as to the military needs and requirements of the U. S. Army.

In his initial message to Congress, President Eisenhower said passage of the bill would do the following things for the U. S. Army:

Benning Gives 3-Day Orientation To 35 Visiting WAC Reservists

Some 35 young college and university women from the U. S. and Hawaii currently attending a WAC College Junior training course will visit Fort Benning Aug. 14-16.

The young women attending the course at the Women's Army Corps Center, Fort McClellan, Ala., are participating in a special summer training program for a career view of the Women's Army Corps. The four-week course, designed especially for girls who have completed their junior college and trial of life as a commissioned WAC officer. They serve in the trial period as WAC cadets under a program comparable to the college ROTC plan for young men.

Arrive From Rucker

The WAC cadets, representing 29 colleges and universities throughout the U. S. and the University of Hawaii, will arrive at Fort Benning following a two-day tour of Fort Rucker, Ala. While on the post, the schedule of activities includes a demonstration by the Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, attendance at a formal guard mount given by the Infantry Center honor guard company and a tour of Lawton Army Air Field.

Following the guard mount the girls will have an informal visit at coffee with troops of the honor guard company.

The WAC Reservists will also observe several Infantry problems including weapons handling, gun platoon in attack and a tank and armored infantry platoon in attack. During their visit they will be conducted on a tour of the new Martin Army Hospital.

While attending the month's course at Fort McClellan the college junior Reservists have a intensive classroom program covering such subjects as general military, military operations, management and administration, and military techniques. The trial period is scheduled to serve in the Infantry Center Aug. 16 to attend briefings on the summer training which will be held at the 412th Engineer Brigade of Vicksburg, Miss., in receiving week to attend to the post Aug. 22.

The commanding general of the 10th Infantry Division (Reserve) of Milwaukee, Wis., Brig. Gen. G. W. Embury, also is scheduled to arrive at the Infantry Center Aug. 16. Gen. Embury will attend a four-day orientation course at the U. S. Army Infantry School and serve as Officer Candidate School activities.

Drive Tops Goal at Post All Commands Support Army Emergency Relief

Fort Benning's Army Emergency Relief Drive has collected $22,585 to top its goal by $985.

Exceeding their individual goals were the Second Infantry Division, School Brigade and the 5th Engineer Group.

Annual Drive

The drive is held annually to familiarize post personnel with the assistance they and their families may receive through the AER program and the Army Relief Society and to provide an opportunity for them to contribute the necessary funds to meet the operating costs of these organizations.

The breakdown on AER funds collected, listed in order of percentage of goal reached with goals listed in parentheses is as follows:

Second Division, $4,263.15 ($4,000); School Brigade, $842.27 ($3,850); 151st Engineer Group, $1,727.72 ($1,700); Lawton Army Airfield Command, $810.58 ($850); Infantry School Detachment, $1,705 ($1,800); Infantry Center Troop Commander, $5,772.49 ($4,100); Martin Army Hospital, $1,943.88 ($1,500); 5th Medical Group. (Please See AER, Page 2)

Post Cited For Safety By Brucker

Personnel of the Infantry Center have received a letter of appreciation from Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker for the Army's winning 4th place in the President's Safety Award for 1957.

Brucker accepted the award June 26 on behalf of the Army. In his letter he cited all military and civilian personnel who made the award possible. "Particular credit should be given to commanders and safety personnel throughout the post who have integrated safe practices into all operations and activities of the Army without imposing on the real performance of duties," Brucker said.

The secretary pointed out that the steady decline in the number of work hours lost and dollars wasted as a result of accidents indicates that "we are capable of further progress."

He added, "We have established a pattern which can be sustained only by intensifying our efforts and continuing our unwavering interest in safe performance at every level."

In his letter, Brucker expressed his interest in safe practices and responsibility of every member of the Army to maintain and improve the fine record attained.

Benning to Host Two Generals From Reserves

Two Army Reserve generals will arrive at Fort Benning this week to review summer training activities of Reserve units.

Brig. Gen. George A. Morris is scheduled to arrive at the Infantry Center Aug. 15 to attend briefings on the summer training which will be held at the 412th Engineer Brigade of Vicksburg, Miss., in receiving week to attend to the post Aug. 22.

The commanding general of the 10th Infantry Division (Reserve) of Milwaukee, Wis., Brig. Gen. G. W. Embury, also is scheduled to arrive at the Infantry Center Aug. 16. Gen. Embury will attend a four-day orientation course at the U. S. Army Infantry School and serve as Officer Candidate School activities.

Brazilians Visit Infantry School

Five Brazilian Army officers are visiting The Infantry School for an intensive 10-day look at Ranger training.

They are Major Ivan Vieira Perdigao, Major Mario Rodrigues de Souza, Capt. Fernando Frederico Coelho de Castro, Capt. Aldo Frinshiro Rangel and Capt. Joao Mancini.

The group is observing Ranger students participating in the various stages of the 2 and one half week course of the Fort Benning camp and Ranger instruction areas at Dabogaega, Ga., and Elgin Air Force Base, Fla.

Woman's Club Presents 2 Scholarship Awards

The Woman's Club of Fort Benning presented the 1958 winners of the two $50 scholarship awards to Joyce M. Bottoms and Douglas A. Cassell.

The scholarship awards are given to the boy and girl of a military family, whose father is an active duty and who rated highest in scholastic achievement upon graduation from the Columbus or Phenix City High School system.

Joyce Bottoms is the daughter of Captain (Major) and Mrs. Wilmer R. Bottoms.

Douglas A. Cassell is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harold A. Cassell. The family resided in Columbus until Col. Cassell served in Korea. The Cassells recently moved to Prichard, Ala., where Col. Cassell is presently assigned.

Doag graduated first in his class at Columbus High School this past June and was a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Examination.

During his high school years Doag held the offices of Lt. Student Body President, 1956; Rifle Team Co-Captain, 1957 and Student Body Secretary, 1958.

He was a member of the Latin Club, 1955; 1956; the Jr. Chemical Society, 1956; the Rifle Club, 1956, 1957, 1958; and the Debators Club, 1958.

Participating dealers include Jno. A. Pope Motor Company, Chevrolet Motors, Inc., Hardaway Motor Company, Strickland Motors, Brooks and McCaskey Motors, Oldsmobile Motors and Kyle Motor Company.

The cars are being used for practice driving by the teenagers and will give them a hands-on insight on driving habits, rules and laws and other facts of automobile driving.

The course began Aug. 4 with approximately 30 students enrolled for the two-week instruction.

29th Gives War Games AI Support

A two-week war game exercise conducted for Advanced Officers Class No. 2 is being supported by an assistant instructor group from the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

In the exercise, the students act as battle group commanders and staff members in planning seven phases of battle group operation. Included are activation, training, movement, staging, combat, occupation, and inactivation.

Alpha committee of the Command and Staff Department is conducting the war games, which will conclude Aug. 18. Lt. Col. Leo C. Williamson is directing the exercise.

Brig. Gen. Stanley E. Larsen, assistant commander of The Infantry School, opened the exercise on Aug. 4 with an address to the 195-man class.

In Combat Development Col. Hayes Assumes Infantry School Post

COL. J. H. HAYES Succeeds Col. Duda

The 41-year-old officer received a bachelor of science degree from Drexel Institute of Technology in 1933. He was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1932 and taught mathematics at the Military Academy for two and one-half years after receiving the degree of science degree from Cornell University in 1948.

He served in the Pennsylvania National Guard from November, 1936, until entering the Military Academy in July, 1940.

Col. Hayes attended The Infantry School's basic officers' course from July to September, 1952. He was assigned to the 317th Infantry Regiment of the 80th Division at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and Alabama, newly assigned brigade headquarters.

Acting as host to Gen. Gen. and Gen. Mason were Col. Lewis C. Parrillo, brigade commander, and Col. James Hudson, Brigade executive officer.

After a 45-minute conference in headquarters, the general discussed training problems. Emphasis was placed on the Reserve Corps target of complete self-sufficiency.

The 401st arrived at Fort Benning last weekend for two weeks of active duty.

Named as Third Army Col. Hayes was named assistant secretary of the general staff of Third Army in Germany in November, 1945. Four months later he became aide-camp to Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, commanding general of Third Army.

In September, 1946, he assumed command of the 10th Contingent Squadron at Kitzingen, Germany. During this tour he was married to the former Earlene Flory, Detroit, Mich., assistant director of American Red Cross activities for the quadrant.

Returning to Korea in January, 1947, Col. Hayes became his graduate work at Cornell. After serving as an instructor at the Military Academy, he went to Korea in January, 1951, as chief of the Plans Branch, G-1 Section, U.S. Army Europe in Germany.

He was born in Turkey. He received BA from the joint Services Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1932. He served nine months in the Career Management Division, Department of Army, Washington, D. C., as assistant chief of the Military Academy in 1942 and chief of the Plans Branch.

He was a student at the joint Services Staff College of Latham, England, from November, 1933, to July, 1934. Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart. Col. and Mrs. Hayes have four children: James Jr., 8; Allen, 6; Keith, 4; and Heather, 2.

He went to England in July, 1944, participated in the Normandy breakthrough and was with the unit as it moved through France, Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

Suit Gives Protection To Crews

WASHINGTON (APPS)—An improved protective suit for missile-serving crews has been developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps.

The new ensemble covers the crewman from head to toe and protects him from the highly corrosive chemicals he must handle in line of duty. The haste protective material is a coating over a cotton fabric base of rain-modified butyl rubber which is impervious to the liquid oxygen, hydrogen peroxide, red fuming sulfuric acid and other chemicals used in missile fuels.

The suit employs the recently standardized Army Chemical Corps M-15 mask, a breathing apparatus which feeds compressed air from a pair of small tanks carried on the back.

Because heat builds up rapidly in the suit, a coverall of knit cotton fabric is worn over the protective garment.

Let Majority Rule—Vote

When President Eisenhower ran for re-election against Adlai E. Stevenson in 1956, national interest in the election was high...

more impressive number, however, is 102,743,000 because it represents the number who were eligible to vote in 1956...

But the right to vote is the obligation to vote. The serviceman, who must put up with fighting and hardship during war, should be the last citizen to ignore his responsibility to choose his leaders...

As Americans, we pride ourselves that ours is a country where majority rules. We are ready to fight anyone who would try to take such rule from us...

Watch Out for Poison Ivy

Mosquitoes and sand flies nip you. Bees and wasps and hornets sting you. The only all part of the good old summertime. But in avoiding them don't forget another hazard of the great outdoors—poison ivy.

Here are a few pointers on this seasonal nuisance—to which, incidentally, no one enjoys permanent immunity. You might handle the plant one without getting a rash, but the next time it's likely to get you.

Remember—poison ivy has three leaves to the stem, usually pointed with irregular edges. It grows in swamps, dry areas, on bushes, as vines on trees, or alone as bushy plants, usually in a bunch.

You can save yourself a lot of grief if, after contact with the pest, you wash the exposed areas with yellow soap or rub them with alcohol. Clothes and clothing after contact with poison ivy can irritate your skin unless they're thoroughly laundered.

The dermatitis caused by the plant usually appears as itchy red patches on hands, arms, legs or ankles. These will become "weepy" and spread, so it's a good idea to see a medic at the first sign of the rash.

World Fair Theme Marks TIS Weapons Department Luncheon

The Corridor Room of the Fort Benning Officers' Open Mess resembled a small Brussels World Fair when the ladies of the Infantry School Weapons Department attended a luncheon Aug. 9 hosted by the Special Purpose Weapons Committee ladies.

The theme was "Hidden Talent." Hand made furniture, ceramics of all shapes, embroidery, paintings, copper work and flower arrangements were on display. Cooking, cake decorating and home made jellies also were represented. Those who see were their own creations.

Door prizes were selected from the displays. They were a ceramic by Mrs. Alan Twitchell, a decorated cake by Mrs. T. A. Seelye, a felt picture by Mrs. Paul Roach, and a jar of jelly made by Mrs. Blackburn Stephens.

Winners of these were: Mrs. James B. N. Geocoma, David Anderson Jr., Senneans and John Dring. The flower arrangement on the head table was made by Mrs. J. E. Morrow in a popular "permanent arrangement" of artificial flowers in tangerine and green on driftwood.

Name tags were small art paper palettes colorfully decorated. Seating was made by matching colors to table decorations.

Mrs. Daniel White and Mrs. A. A. Simpson were guests. Mesdames Waldo K. Bess, Clarence Wollinger and Diring were greeted as newcomers. Mesdames Laura M. Gwathney, Paul Roach and Thomas Treadway made the decorations and invitations. Mesdames Robert G. Krebs, Dring, Thomas C. Delahunty, William Horan and William J. Hegen assisted at the luncheon.

JADA COFFEE

Members of Junior Army Daughters of America were fettered at a coffee given by Daughters of the U.S. Army Aug. 9 in the Main Officers' Mess at Fort Benning.

The annual DUSA event honoring the JADA's replaced the Army Daughters' August 1st luncheon.

Approximately 90 members of the Junior organization attended and enjoyed the occasion.

Mrs. Robert O. Lynch and Mrs. H. W. French were in charge of arrangements for the occasion.

Watermelon baskets filled with fresh fruit centered the serving tables.

Volunteers Meet

Grads Hear 1st Div. Cofs

A veteran combat soldier suggested aspects of leadership for graduates of the Infantry School's basic officers' class Aug. 8.

Col. William A. Cunningham III, chief of staff of the First Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans., told the graduates that they first of all must "have a human understanding of the men who are part of your command." He urged 115 young officers to take willingly the advice of the non-commissioned officer and share the problems of the enlisted man.

Col. Cunningham, a 1934 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., suggested that they should have a "flair, a life to live, an interest. Do something out of the ordinary," he remarked. "Be proud of your organization, and have a creed or belief that you can tie on to," the guest speaker added.

Col. Cunningham presented Infantry School academic certificates signed by Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, assistant commander of the school, to the graduates. The honor graduate was 2nd Lt. Carl A. Goffe.

Col. Cunningham has been associated with the First Division for six years, has been an instructor at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit and Purple Heart.

Dinner-Dance

A dinner-dance was held by Infantry School Detachment officers and wives Aug. 2 at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Capt. Athos W. Brannon and CWO John S. Malby were hosts for the occasion which was attended by 37 guests.

The centerpiece was a floral arrangement of white gladioli and blue-tipped chrysanthemums.

During the program, Lt. Col. Raymond O. Manasco presented a silver tray to Mrs. Hugh E. Toomey upon her recent marriage to Lt. Toomey. A baby cup was presented to Mrs. Eldaan M. Matheson.

Guests were entertained by Lt. William Fulton who played and sang "Springtime" and "Road to Home."

Special guests were Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Mabee and Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Campbell who were guests of Capt. and Mrs. Brannon.

MONTHLY GET-TOGETHER

Fort Benning's Fourth Battalion cadre wives held their monthly get-together July 7 in the Headquarters and Service Company dayroom.

Mrs. Ludwig D. Matkovich and Mrs. Eugene L. Falter were hostesses for the occasion.

Guests were Mrs. Adrian L. Bloebbe and Mrs. Bayard W. Hart.

Eleven ladies attended the affair.

DA Urges Applications For Program

WASHINGTON (ANSI)—The Department of the Army continues to urge qualified officers to apply for duty under the Foreign Area Specialist Training Program.

Officers returned to as FAST, the program which is outlined in AR 350-25, provided selected officers with essential foreign area training that enables them to meet anticipated national defense requirements.

These carefully picked officers will be trained to the highest practicable degree in culture, language, and physical aspects of the geographic area studied.

To be eligible for the program, officers must meet the following prerequisites:

- Be an American citizen and not have passed 37th birthday prior to beginning of training.
- Be in grade of major, captain, or first lieutenant, with a minimum of three years of troop duty and not have served more than 12 years of active duty.
- Must possess a bachelor's or advance degree from an accredited college or university.
- Have a general service physical qualification.

Have attained a qualifying score on the Army Language Aptitude Test in keeping with AF 41-2.

Must—if a member of a Reserve component—have been accepted for extended active duty under the provisions of AR 15-215, or must submit a request as an incentive to the application for this training.

Officers selected under this program must remain on active duty for not less than four years subsequent to the completion of the training.

Foreign area specialist training is usually conducted at post graduate level through cultural environment and psychological characteristics of the people concerned.

Area courses include geography, historical and cultural background, regional and international relations, and the structure of the economic, political, and social institutions of the country.

Third Army Holds Commanders Meet

Fort McPHERSON, Ga.—Twelve officers of general staff were included in the Third Army post commanders and chiefs of the military districts groups as they met with 15 civil leaders from the Southeast at Fort McPHERSON, Ga., Aug. 8.

In his welcoming remarks Brig. Gen. Rufner expressed his confidence that, in addition to normal training objectives, each commander should give proper consideration to the continued smooth functioning of community relations. He stated that good relations between the various military installations and their adjacent communities was a sound basis for continued efficient operations of the military program.

Following the briefings and conferences during the day an informal stag dinner was held at the Fort McPHERSON Officers' Club at 7:00 p.m.

Civic leaders attending: From Atlanta, Ga.—Dr. Allen D. Albert Jr. and Mr. Eric Cooke Jr., civilian aide to the Secretary of Army for the State of Georgia; Richard W. Clark, chairman, Army Advisory Committee; Freeman Strickland, vice-president, First National Bank of Atlanta, and Alf R. Abrams, businessman.

At Fayetteville, N.C., chairman, Army Advisory Committee, and George B. Herndon, mayor of Fayetteville.

AF Sec. Pleased By Atlas Firing

WASHINGTON (AFP S)—Secretary of the Air Force James H. Douglas said recently he was extremely gratified over the results of the successful and significant test firing of the Atlas ICBM Aug. 7.

He stated that the data reported to him established the test as a major military milestone in the Atlas program. He pointed out that the two boosters and engines and one sustainer engine projected an operational type nose cone several hundred miles into space at speeds in excess of 15,000 mph and for a distance of over 2,500 miles.

Room Named For Major At Gold Bar

As a final tribute to Memorial of Honor winner and former School Brigade Fifth Student Battalion's commanding officer Major Jack Treadwell, officers candidates of the 32nd Company named the dining room of their new "Gold Bar" in his honor. The dedication took place July 26 during a cocktail hour.

The Treadwell Room was decorated, for the occasion, in the fashion of a medieval castle. The official opening took place when Major Treadwell, using a sabre, slashed through a paper dragon that covered the entrance.

Major Treadwell and family have departed this station and he will attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Army Uses Stud Driver For Blasting

FORT BELVOIR, Va. (ANF)—A gun-type stud driver, developed by the Army's Engineer Research and Development Laboratories and Rammed Division, Olin Industries, Inc., makes possible the rapid attachment of special explosive charges on steel, wood, or concrete surfaces.

It is designed primarily for attaching canvas bags containing explosive charges to the surface of structures that would normally be encountered in demolition missions.

The gun is a non-shot repeater, enabling the operator to make ten separate fastenings without reloading. Special cartridges of .38 caliber provide the force. The gun will operate when held in any position, vertical or horizontal, and modifications have been made to permit its use under water up to depths of 20 feet.

As a safety feature, the gun barrel (the "rammed" tool) must be depressed to a predetermined position before it can be placed. This operation is effected by the operator firing it against the surface into which the fastener is to be placed. This operation also positions a shield to protect the operator from flying fragments.

REDSTONE FRASID
REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala., Hugh Odshaw, executive director of the U.S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year, has thanked the Army Ballistic Missile Agency here for "its magnificent contribution to the IGY earth satellite program. The explorer satellites launched by ABMA as part of this program and the invaluable data which they have made possible have been a source of gratification to the scientific community everywhere," he said.

Post Moves Workshop

The Fort Benning Entertainment Workshop branch of Post in arranging regular Special Services Soldier Shows is in the process of moving to a new location at Bldg. No. 4077, located in the Harmony Church area.

When the truckloads of scenery, props, lighting equipment and musical instruments have finally been unloaded, "The Bandocks Theater" will be the only theater on post in many a year to feature "live" entertainment exclusively.

The Entertainment Workshop is issuing an "On Stage" call to all civilians and military personnel who have taken part in, or who wish to take part in any of it's many and varied programs of drama, musical comedy, variety and revue type shows to grab a paint brush and take off for "The Bandocks."

"The Bandocks" seats about 400 and plans now are to add the cooperation of unit commanders in the Second Division area, as well as on Main Post in arranging regular Special Services Soldier Shows for their men and to furnish transportation to "The Bandocks."

YAC Captures Columbus Boys' Club Swim Meet

Youth Activities Club swimming team returned triumphantly from the annual Columbus Boys' Club Outdoor Invitational Swimming Meet Aug. 7 after taking first place and breaking two new pool records. Under the coaching of Eric Klodt, the boy's team captured first place spot against Columbus YMCA, Columbus Boys' Club, Pleasant City Boys' Club and South Columbus Boys' Club, while the girls' team came in a close second with the Columbus YAC taking first place. Records were broken by Bob Reed in the 50-yard freestyle with a timing of 28.7 and Martin Sargent in the 100-yard freestyle at 51.1. The records were previously set by Orville Daly and Buzz Hilday, both from YAC.

TSB Stages Senior Status Field Day

The 52nd Company, Fifth Battalion, The School Brigade, won the Senior Status Field Day held Aug. 2 in the Student Stadium. This Field Day is normally sponsored by the senior officer candidate class when it is one week away from senior status. Competing companies included besides the host, were 50th, 51st and 53d.

Gen. Stanley E. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commander, witnessed the afternoon's events with Lt. Col. Millard O. Eagen, Fifth Battalion commander, and presented medals to individual winners and trophies to winning team captain.

The field day was organized and coordinated by OC Alford Padlock, 52nd Company, with the help of OC James Kidd who captained the winning track team for the host. Candidate Padlock accepted the first place trophy from Gen. Larsen for the 52nd Company. By amassing 46 points during the afternoon's events, the 52nd Company became winner for the first time as senior candidate sponsor. The 50th and 51st Companies finished in the second and third positions respectively with 38 and 32 points.

Medics Capture Baseball Crown

The 54th Medical Group clinched The Infantry Center baseball championship by downing the 151st Engineer Group at Gowdy Field Aug. 4 by a score of 4-1 in a night game. Victory in the final game gave the Medics an over-all season record of eight wins and two losses.

Milton McLoughlin again put one of his fine pitching performances by giving up only two hits and striking out 13 batters. He also battled in two runs with a single in the seventh inning to raise his league-leading RBI total to 23.

Score in sixth
The Engineers scored their only run in the sixth when McLoughlin gave up his two hits. The Medics came back to score one run in the last of the sixth as Dale McCullum singled, moved to second on a passed ball and scored on Ray Jones' single.

The Medics went ahead for keeps in the seventh when they tallied three runs. Deacon Jones led off with a single. Don Kruszynski followed with another single to send Jones to third. Seaborn Bryant scored Jones on a squeeze bunt and was safe at first when the ball was dropped. McLoughlin's six scored Kruszynski and Jones. That ended the scoring and the championship went to the Medics.

Receive Award
The new champions received their individual and team awards in a presentation ceremony Aug. 7 at Service Club No. 1. Brig. Gen. John P. Ruggles, Infantry Center commander, presented the awards of pan and pencil sets to Lt. L. Verle E. Staman, team coach, and his team members.

Lt. Col. Peter S. Scholes, commander officer of the 54th Medical Group, accepted the team's victory trophy, a plaquette and a 151st Engineer Group's trophy.

Nine players from the Medics have been chosen to represent the 54th Medical Group and the Fort Benning post team in the Third Army competition. The players include, outfielders Bud Hay and Don Kruszynski, catcher John Trombino, shortstop Dale McCullum, second baseman Deacon Jones, and pitchers Roy Wirt, Millard O. Eagen, and John Allen.

Coaching duties for the newly formed post team will be shared by Lt. L. Verle Eagen, Lt. Col. Peter S. Scholes, George Dorer of the Command Training Command team, and Carmichael of the Medical Unit. Coaching will continue until 6 p.m.

Biddy-Weight Fighting Furious 29th Infantry Wins Four Out of Six Senior Matches in Benning Smoker

Boxers from the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, won four out of six senior matches in the last action 13-bout smoker Aug. 5 at Dougherty Stadium.

Seven biddy-weight events were included in the Benning 1958-59 boxing debut, which was witnessed by an estimated crowd of 750. Entrants from the 29th Infantry, fighting in all but one of the 12 bouts, were the welterweight, light - middleweight, and two featherweight events. The Youth Activities Club boxers won two out of three bouts with Columbus Boy's Club participants. Light-heavyweight Ted Beath, 1958 Third Army champion, swarmed all over Ben Robinson

Glory and Sacrifice WW I Vet Recalls Old Times With 2nd

An old friend of the Second Infantry Division and a veteran of its European campaigns during World War I stopped at Indianhead headquarters last week to see the newly organized Indianhead division first hand. Israel Kaufman, 60, accompanied by his wife and 17-year-old nephew, Larry Newman, was returning to the Kaufman home in Jacksonville Beach, Fla., when he decided to visit the Second Infantry Division headquarters. He was escorted to the office of Major Gen. R. H. Wienecke, Second Division commanding general when he met at the Indianhead Convention at Chicago a week ago.

Kaufman recalled that he served with the Fourth Marine Brigade as sergeant major in 1917 when the brigade was organized as part of the Second Division. "I served with the Indianhead Division until 1919," Kaufman said, "and I have been associated since that time." A veteran of 39 years of service in the Marines, Kaufman recalled that he served with the Indianhead Division from the campaign at Alsace and Chateau Thierry to its last battle at Meuse-Argonne where he

Division Museum Opens In Library September 1

Second Infantry Division officials announced today that the Indianhead Museum, located in the Sand Hill Library, is scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Museum will contain more than two hundred pictures, a large display of flags, captured World War weapons and numerous volumes of historical books.

Among the many pictures adorning the walls are portraits of former Division commanders, chiefs of staff, along with other noted officials and numerous historical pictures which depict the Division's activities since its birth in 1917.

Approximately 100 flags are displayed, several representing the current and former units of the division. Also among the flags is a German "Swastika" captured in the Second World War.

Beautiful glass fronted cases will hold the many honor trophies won by the Division since its origin. Rifles, Flak and Machine guns captured during World War II from the Japanese and Germans will be displayed. The German "Swastika" captured during the bitter fighting at the "Battle of the Bulge" in December, 1944.

The Japanese weapons portrayed in the museum are

First Picks Private Ball Best Trainee

By First Inf. PIO
The first soldier from the Second Battle Group, First Infantry, to be selected Best Trainee of the eight week training cycle just completed was presented a letter of commendation at a special retreat ceremony Aug. 11.

The letter was presented to Pvt. Donald M. Ball, Company A, First Battle Group, First Infantry, by Lt. Horace M. Youm, commanding officer of Company A.

Pvt. Ball was selected from the top eight men in the company as a result of demonstrated ability and a test given by a board consisting of the group commander, platoon leaders and platoon sergeants. The tests cover the basic military fundamentals and the soldier's appearance and bearing.

Pvt. Ronald G. Mills and James K. Griffin, also of Company A were given honorable mention for their standing in the competition.

School Hosts VIPs, Cadets

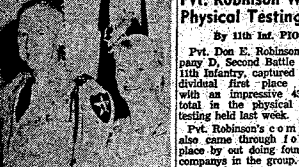

By 8th Inf. PIO
The Second Infantry Division NCO Academy played host to four VIPs and cadets last week, marking the most activity in the academy's short history.

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general of Fort Benning, accompanied by Major Gen. R. H. Wienecke, Second Division commander, was briefed and conducted on a tour of the academy to start the series of events.

The next day Brig. Gen. John E. Leary, assistant Second Division commander, was guest speaker at the academy's graduating class.

Sixty cadets from the U.S. Military Academy were given a two-hour course of instruction. The cadets commented to Capt. Jesse W. Bowley, commandant of the academy, that the methods and techniques of instruction were excellent.

The last part of the week the academy was visited by Col. Charles G. Froelich, USMA staff member from the Department of Military Psychology and Leadership.

Schools Slate Registration August 21-22

All school children residing on the military reservation in grades kindergarten through 12 will register at the Fort Benning Children's Schools, Aug. 21-22 between 9 a.m. and noon or 1 and 3 p.m.

Students in grades kindergarten through eight will attend the Fort Benning Children's Schools. High school pupils residing on the post must first register in the Home Living Room of Faith School and register again at the Mosegoe County High School of their choice Aug. 27-28.

Main Post School

Registration will be held at Main Post School, located at Baltzell Avenue and Lumpkin Road, for all children in kindergarten regardless of where they live on the post and all children in grades one and two who reside on the Post, Harmony Church Trailer Park or Benning Park Homes.

Custer Terrace School, which is located off Custer Road in the Wherry Housing area, will register all children in grades one through five residing in Custer Terrace, Battle Park and newly designed and improved protective mask.

Civilian Care Slashed

Medicare Curtailed For Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top civilian and military medical authorities met here recently and heard Defense Department plans for curtailment of some features of the Dependents Medical Care Program in the U.S., Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Most affected will be dependents living with their sponsors; however, all dependents will lose privileges they have had during the 29 months Medicare has been in operation.

Urges Safety For Holiday

Labor Day weekend will require personnel to exercise extra caution and carefulness to avoid accidents in private vehicles, boats and while swimming, Fort Benning safety officials warn.

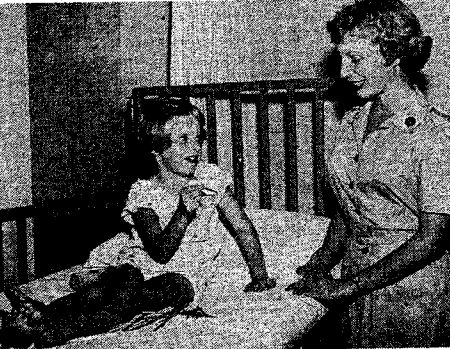

The holidays can mean an increase in accident victims due to carelessness or indifference, they said.

Fort Benning's troop information program will emphasize caution and common sense during the long weekend to avoid an increase in auto and water sports accidents.

The Infantry Center Safety Office urged that all personnel at the post adjust speed limits at the post adjust speed limits during the number of obstructions.

Because chances of death are doubled when speed is increased from 55 to 60 miles per hour, the time for detecting and avoiding a hazard is cut in half because of the increase in speed. The increase in speed causes the largest percentage of deaths result from speeding, nature thinking will all factors, major causes of accidents.

Mature thinking also dictates rest before and while driving. (Please See Safety, Page 2)

Human Research Testing New Protective Mask Here

A training test is being conducted through Aug. 23 by The Infantry Human Research Unit at Fort Benning to determine effects on troop combat performance while wearing a newly designed and improved protective mask.

The new mask is unlike the one currently in use in that two lightweight pads replace the heavier canister which tends to bounce when the soldier runs, and a voice-mitter has been installed in the mask to amplify the wearer's voice so that it may be heard more distinctly. The new mask also makes breathing easier.

The project is being conducted by George Washington University's Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO), Washington, D. C.

The research, known as "Task Protection," is designed to explore the problems and effects of the prolonged wearing of the mask under combat conditions.

Seventy-four experienced Infantrymen of the Second Infantry Division were selected for the tests. The Second Battle Group, Ninth Infantry, consists of 18 men, the 122nd Signal Battalion, 30, and the Second and Medium Tank Battalions, 89th Armor, 20. The men are key non-commissioned officers from the division.

Project Officer Second Division project officer is Capt. Stewart C. Moody of Fort Benning, Ga. Section, First Lt. R. A. Boccard of Teaneck, N. J., 43rd Company, Fourth Battalion, School Brigade, supported by personnel of that unit, will monitor troop performance in the evaluation tests.

Each man will be given the same test twice on two successive days, one day with the mask and one day without. The tests will evaluate initial performance and the effects of the mask.

Safety Drive

The funds are used to assist the Protestant Sunday School, drive the Veterans Army buses, the Christmas welfare baskets, and maintain other valuable community projects.

Chairman for the 1958 Community Activities Association drive is Col. Max F. Schneider, commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command and its family. Center headquarters commander, Assisting Col. Schneider as overall project officer for the campaign is Major Emmett C. Townsend, Infantry Center Special Services officer.

All personnel at Fort Benning, both military and civilians, will have an opportunity to participate through contributions to the community program.

Medicare

Secretary of Army Wilbur M. Brucker, Medicare executive agent, told those present that Medicare had been a great force for the health and welfare of the program was for the finest cause he could think of—the health and welfare of service dependents. He also said the program was a big factor when the reimbursement decision had to be made.

The plan is still to be coordinated with the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and the Bureau of the Budget, but there are the outstanding changes to take place in the Medicare program.

All eligible dependents who live with their sponsors must be included in the program. Dependents who are discharged or transferred? RENT A Nationwide Trailer LOCAL OR ONE WAY COLUMBUS TRAILER RENTAL 3161 Victory Dr. MU 9-7228 clear with appropriate designated informed service units. Where uniformed service hospital facilities are available, commanders will be required to have certificates as to the use of the hospital facilities as determined by the surgeon.

Eligible dependents who do not reside with their sponsors are not required to obtain authority other than their identification cards.

Emergency medical care, if authorized under the revised program, may be obtained from civilian sources by all eligible dependents without authority other than their identification cards.

Physicians will be required to certify the emergency. Eligible dependents residing with their sponsors may continue to obtain authorized maternity care from civilian sources under the revised program.

Discoun'ted will be all service not clearly specified in the law for both those dependent living with, and apart from their sponsors. Generally they are:

Schools

Updated Terrace and Sand Hill Registration will be conducted at Faith School for all dependents in grades three through five, residing on the Main Post, Ramsey Church Trailer Park and Benning Park; students in grades six through eight regardless of where they are residing, and students in grades nine through five residing in the Camp Hill area.

Mask

Their scores, with and without the mask, will be noted on a score sheet.

A voice communication test will be administered on the third and fourth days, as well as a radio communication test.

In the radio communication part of the test, the troops will be tested to discover if they can understand messages when the amplified human voice.

The fifth and sixth days will be devoted to binocular target shooting and terrain spot trap tests.

Particular target detection will be administered to determine the loss in performance caused by wearing the new mask. Troops will be wearing the mask while using binoculars to seek out long-range targets.

After being graduated from the three-month Task Force School of the Operations Division, War Department General Staff, in Washington, D.C., he went to New Delhi, India, in July, 1944, as assistant G-3 for operations for the China-Burma-India theater. His assignment may be a four-month assignment as U.S. Army liaison officer with the National Chinese Combat Command in Under the direction of Dr. Preston S. Abbott of Peabody, Mass., director of research, and Lt. Col. George R. Stevens III, of New Canton, Conn., unit chief, the Fort Benning project is also engaged in four other HUMRRIO projects.

NO FLOGGING
Army Progress: On Aug. 5, 1961, the Army abolished flogging as a punishment. This act followed by two days the inauguration of a limited scale retraining system. Today, one of the outstanding rewards of a successful Army career is the security offered by an adequate retirement system. In fact, a military career provides no fact security, and the education, travel, and comradeship, together with a feeling of accomplishment and pride, are being enjoyed honorably and successfully.

Wouldn't Stay

A dog-year-old dog coddly turned his tail on a hitch with the U. S. Army and walked away from efforts to "draft" him recently at Fort Benning. "King," an unassuming German Shepherd, was straggling beginning a tour of duty in Korea next spring.

Army Hitch

Their leader, 1st Lt. Thomas J. O'Brien, was insisted that King should "sit." "King" objected, but after listening politely for a few moments he got up and walked off again.

By this time an Army sedan had pulled onto the scene. A lone, private officer of the school's Combat Development Office.

He left the post Aug. 1 for an assignment with the Signal Section of U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monro, Va.

Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, assistant commander of the Infantry School, presented the commendation.

For half a mile, "King" continued to mosey on his way, ignoring the soldiers who were cautiously trailing him. Then a truck pulled up from the other direction and more soldiers confronted him.

Capt. Richard H. Lewandowski, a student in the Infantry School's officers advanced class No. 8, has been presented the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant. Capt. Lewandowski was cited for outstanding performance of duty during the period July, 1955, to April, 1956, while assigned to the National Security Agency.

Tank Useful in Cold War

WASHINGTON (ANS)—ARMOR—The Magazine of Mobile Warfare—quoting the Army's chief of staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, says a tank is useful in a cold war as well as in a limited or general war.

"In the Armor School, when you test your tank," Gen. Taylor is quoted as telling a group of armor officers, "you probably never think of the political effect of a tank. I can assure you, however, there is a great deal of psychological influence on the part of the tank, on as well as off, the battlefield."

About 1950 while he was commander in Berlin, the general said, the issue arose of whether the Sixth Infantry Regiment which garrisoned that city should have medium tanks.

"I had a great deal of difficulty in persuading my military superiors that it was indeed worthwhile, because from a military point of view it looked as if we might be putting valuable assets into Berlin to no avail," the chief of staff recalled.

"But the payoff came when we finally brought these tanks to Berlin," he said. "Every West Berliner lined the streets as we took the tanks off the rail cars and rolled them down the street to our kasernes."

According to the general, the Germans followed the tanks, cheering as they went. The next day's morning paper had great pictures of these medium American tanks on the front page with the caption U.S. Panzer—"Our Tanks."

"And," concluded Gen. Taylor, "to that city, exposed and surrounded on all sides by the Communist world, just a few medium tanks made all the difference in their morale between feeling abandoned and feeling reassured that real military power supported them."

"Biggest Fish I've Ever Seen!"

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Seven small nations led by Norway put a Western-backed Middle East peace plan before the U.N. emergency General Assembly Aug. 19.

International Roundup Peace Plan Opposed By Arab-Asian Bloc

It was introduced amid high level behind-the-scenes moves aimed at obtaining the widest possible support. But key Arab-Asian nations refused to accept the proposal.

It includes several features of President Eisenhower's Middle East program, but also gives Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld wide authority to work out arrangements for reducing Middle East tensions.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and other Western leaders predicted the proposal would win the required two-thirds majority. The Latin American group of 20 nations lined up behind it.

FISH FIGHT

LONDON—Britain reminded Iceland Aug. 19 that gunboats will guard British trawlers against interference inside Iceland's new 200-mile fishing limits.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Britain still has hopes "for an agreed solution of the quarrel" and that it "is not in the interest of either side to threaten to involve the U.N. in the event of a breakdown in the present talks on fishing."

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt) Harry G. Campbell Jr.

A couple of years ago the College world had an idiom that was terrifying in its accuracy. In describing a person who was "really out of it," the collegians and teenagers would call him a "mean and women body."

The present pronunciation with "adjustment," "compromise," "learning of the winning friends and influencing people," "being a good adjustment" are all variations of what seems to be at times an inexorable movement toward having everyone so completely adjusted to everyone else that everyone ends up by being just like everyone else and no one is "anybody."

The Judge Says . . .

The loss of a weapon is a serious affair. In combat it can be fatal and give in garrison such a loss is extremely serious. Loss of your weapon may subject you to pecuniary liability for the value of the weapon. In addition, such a loss may be a court-martial offense in violation of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Article 108.

Article 108 makes it a criminal offense for a soldier who "willfully or through neglect damages, destroys, or loses or willfully or through neglect suffers to be lost . . . any military property of the United States."

The punishment for a violation of Article 108 is as serious as the offense which it prohibits. For loss of military property of a value of $20 or less the maximum sentence is a Dishonorable Discharge, Total Forfeiture of all pay and allowances and confinement at hard labor for six months.

Remember loss through neglect is just as serious in the eyes of the law as intentional loss. The result of a lack of attention to the results of an individual's loss, where such an item was issued to the individual soldier and that soldier cannot satisfactorily explain the loss.

Nautilus on Top of World

Sub Makes Historic Voyage to North Pole

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The world's first atomic submarine, Nautilus, recently became the first ship to reach the North Pole by a submerged route.

The Nautilus steamed more than 1,000 miles underneath the 200-mile pack from Point Barrow, Alaska, to the Greenland Sea in 96 hours.

The voyage pioneered a new shorter route from the Pacific to the Atlantic and Europe—the long-sought North Pole Passage. It also showed the U.S. knowledge of subsurface conditions in the Arctic basin.

Leaving Honolulu, T.H., on July 25, Nautilus sailed north through the Bering Strait, submerged off Point Barrow, and emerged under the North Pole on Aug. 3.

The Nautilus steamed more than 129,000 miles on its first two charges of nuclear fuel. The continuous record of water temperature, water depth and ice thickness maintained during the voyage.

Thickness of the Arctic ice pack ranged from 12 to 50 feet at the depth of the North Pole is 3,440 feet, the Navy said.

The Nautilus is equipped with 13 sounding devices for detecting ice above and the distance to the ocean surface. It also has a circuit television system for observing ice formations.

Navigation problems were solved by the new inertial navigation system, which is not affected by magnetic fields as a gyro compass is. The Nautilus is the first combatant Navy ship to have this system.

During the cruise, life went on as usual. Two movies were shown, the crew dined and had a special dinner, complete with North Pole cake, was served just as the boat passed underneath the North Pole.

Following the historic Pacific-to-Atlantic passage of the atomic Nautilus under the North Pole, it will be sent to the West Coast.

Army Praises Red Cross For Aid In Freeing GIs

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American Red Cross received warm salutes from the Army for its success in obtaining release of nine helicopter soldiers detained in East Germany since June 7. Text of a wire received by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, ACP, President, from Secretary of Army William B. Brucker said:

"On behalf of the men and women of the United States Army, the able Army men released by the East Germans and their families, I wish to express to you and the American Red Cross personnel concerned my sincere appreciation for the manner in which action was taken to effect the release of the captives."

Freeing of Americans was arranged by negotiations between the American Red Cross and East German Red Cross. The release of the American soldiers dramatically shows how the close bonds between Red Cross societies of two nations can be helpful in situations like this, Gen. Gruenther said.

"Through our relationship with sister societies around the world, the American Red Cross is able to bridge the difference between nations to carry on its humanitarian services."

Within minutes after release of the Gen. Gruenther received a message from Gen. Henry H. Hodges, Commander of the U. S. Army in Europe, which stated:

"The release of the nine men, their families and the U. S. Army in Europe, I wish to express to you, the American Red Cross, and Messrs. Wilson and Suttis our sincere appreciation for American Red Cross expeditions action in effecting the release of these personnel."

Gen. Gruenther praised especially the part Dr. Ludwig played in the release. He recalled he first met Dr. Ludwig at the International Red Cross Conference held in New Delhi, last year and said he was particularly gratified the East Germany Society's president had been responsive to American Red Cross overtures in behalf of servicemen.

"We in the American Red Cross delegation got to know Dr. Ludwig fairly well at the New Delhi Conference," President Gruenther said. "It is the development of this sort of relationship that the Red Cross plays a role in international affairs that is unique and indispensable. It is heartwarming to see the effective cooperation of two national Red Cross societies."

Queen of Battle Adds New Radio Stations

The Fort Benning produced radio series "Queen of Battle" has once more displayed its information program, "Queen of Battle" in the Army Information Program with its acceptance by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters and its stations.

Written and recorded by the Radio-TV branch of the Infantry Center Information Section, "Queen of Battle" is only a little less than three years old, yet it is already being heard in more than 160 radio stations across the country.

With the addition of the new facilities in late fall, this number will increase to near 225.

"Queen of Battle" tells the story of the U.S. Infantryman in dramatized, documentary form, and particularly of the Service school, recently received a $20 award and a letter of appreciation in the monthly Military Suggestions Contest for proposing the use of a jeep with trailer rather than a two and one-half ton cargo truck in certain Field Service School activities.

A committee of representatives of the member stations and schools reviews and either accepts or rejects the programs submitted to the NAEB for consideration. Yearly an average of 10 different programs are distributed by the NAEB.

The NAEB tape network of these, however, approximately one-half are ones that had been prepared specifically for NAEB use and are automatically accepted. Usually in filing the remaining five openings, committee members have a free choice of five times that number of offerings. From this number, the needed programs are chosen on the basis of suitability, and writing, production and technical quality.

With the addition of NAEB facilities, a particularly responsive audience will be added to the already extensive listenership for the Fort Benning programs. Because NAEB stations are in college and university communities, their audiences will consist, to a great degree, of persons particularly interested in current activities of the military, such as young students with military service in their near future or recent past.

In the three years since it first appeared on only four stations in the Fort Benning area, "Queen of Battle" has expanded extensively both in the number of stations served and in the scope of the material covered. A weekly 15-minute program, "Queen of Battle" is the only program its type in the military establishment.

An important part of the Fort Benning produced radio series "Queen of Battle" has once more displayed its information program, "Queen of Battle" in the Army Information Program with its acceptance by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters and its stations.

Army Develops Full Size Missile Training Dummy

WASHINGTON, (ANS) — Development of a full size Redstone missile training dummy has just been announced by the Army's official magazine, The Army Information Digest. This training device is said to be identical, both inside and out, to the missile itself.

According to the magazine, this device can even be fired like the operations missile. The components are all three (dummies) and each must be checked, adjusted, repaired or replaced, just like the real parts. Their performance in puts a and out-puts read the same. If the real "black box" buzzes and vibrates in operation, so does the dummy's equivalent part. The dummies are activated by means of a "stimulator."

Describing the "stimulator," CHEAPSKATE "Then there's the fellow who reduced to a fine art the ability to fool everybody for the check. You have to hand it to him."

The President asked Congress to establish the agency last April, in a message outlining recent U.S. Soviet developments in the field of long-range rockets and earth satellites.

The NASA will plan, direct and conduct all U.S. air and space research or projects the Defense Department will continue to have jurisdiction over space activities primarily involving weapons and defense.

A $2,500-a-year administrative unit, the new agency, President Eisenhower will have the ultimate authority to coordinate the work of the various agencies and to appoint the National Aeronautics and Space Council, similar to the National Security Council, to advise the President.

President Eisenhower will preside over the new council, composed of the Secretaries of State and Defense, the Secretary of the Atomic Energy Commission, and four other Presidential appointees.

In a special statement, the President commended Congress for their prompt action on the measure. The bill clearly states that it is the country's policy to undertake space activities for the benefit of all mankind.

Dr. Hugh H. Dryden, secretary of the NAEB, estimated that the new agency will be functioning in two to three months. The NAEB was established in 1915 in an effort to advance U.S. civil and military aviation. Its staff and laboratories will provide the nucleus for the new NASA, the President said.

Veteran Got Draft Board Position to Draft Himself

FORT KNOX, Ky. (ANP)—Spa Edwin E. Ochs was 49 years old when he tried to get into the Army in 1942. His draft board would have none of him. "The World War I veteran made it though. He got himself appointed to the board, then nominated himself for the draft."

Ochs knew what he was getting into when he finished himself back into uniform during World War I. He served with the AEP in the Meuse-Argonne, Chateau Thierry and Belgium, was wounded and passed.

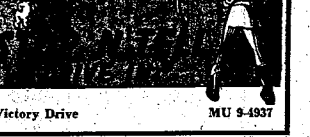

In his present assignment with the 30th Tank Battalion he has an opportunity to reminisce about armor. "In the Meuse-Argonne I was introduced to armor forces. As an infantryman I fought along with borrowed French tanks. This may have been one of the first times America ever used tanks."

Because of his age, Ochs saw limited service during World War II, spending most of his time in food service. In fact, in 1942 he helped cook the first meal for the initial group of race stationers here.

During the Korean War he served with the 6th Topographic Battalion in Korea and was with that unit when it printed the cease fire maps in 1953.

The 61-year-old soldier recalls the changes he has seen in infantry rifles since 1917. When he first joined the Army in 1917, he was issued a Krag-Jorgensen rifle. Ochs relates that he has "handled the Krag, Springfield and M1 and hope to see the M14 before I retire in 18 months."

SINGLE PURPOSE
"Army operations abroad and at home are varied and complex," says DA PAM 306-1. "They have, however, a single purpose—to deter conflict by being ready for war."

Gen. Wyman Expresses Appreciation to 3d Army

Before retiring from the active rolls of the Army, July 31, Gen. Willard G. Wyman, then commander of Continental Army Command, expressed appreciation to personnel in Third Army.

"I am acutely conscious that I leave this way of life at a time when it offers its greatest challenge. I leave at a time when the stakes are high and the danger is great. World tension, fostered and exploited by the Communist conspiracy, offers small hope of being relaxed within the scope of today's horizons. A shrinking globe, plus a sinister adversary holding a formidable arsenal, portends a heavy penalty for us if we are caught by surprise assaults. These conditions complicate the task of a soldier seeking only to preserve the safety and welfare of his land.

TIC Wives Club Coffee Attended By 97 at Custer Terrace Aug. 13

The Infantry Center Wives Club met at 10 a. m. at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club for their monthly coffee on Aug. 13.

Hostesses for the coffee, attended by some 97 ladies, were the wives of the Signal Quartermaster and Quartermaster Sections. The attractive table was centered with a miniature patio scene complete with swimming pool, patio furniture and tiny sunbathers.

Mrs. William M. Linton, president of the club, introduced Mrs. Robert H. Wienecke, wife of the Second Infantry Division's new commanding general, as a special guest. A farewell was bid to Mrs. John E. Larky, wife of the assistant division commander who is leaving the post to assume his new duties as Chief of Staff of Fifth Army, Chicago, Ill.

WUERBERG, Germany (APPS)—With a gold ring in his left ear and a gold earring in his left arm, this Army infantryman isn't just putting on the dog. It's the dog.

His comrades in the Fourth Infantry know him as SFC Emanuel J. Sebile Jr., but his friends call him "Stc" because of his "steeple" hair.

Stc is a 1974, who has fought 32 professional boxing matches, was a member of the US swimming team in the 1956 Olympics held in Berlin. Gypsies, he says, are no different than any other people except that "perhaps they worry less."

Jaffe to Take SJA Position At Redstone

Col. Morton S. Jaffe, legal subjects instructor at the Infantry School since September, 1956, has been named Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

He will leave the post Aug. 30 to assume his new duties.

Col. Jaffe was assigned to the Infantry Center in June, 1956, and initially served as legal assistance officer of the Staff Judge Advocate's Section.

As an Infantry School instructor he taught courses in military justice and legal aspects of civil emergencies and martial law in the spring of 1956, and this instruction was extended to officers of the entire Fort Benning garrison including the Third Infantry Division.

Army Band Starts U. S. Concert Tour

WASHINGTON (A F P S)—The 100-piece Army Field Band and Chorus has embarked upon a six-week concert tour of 11 states from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Northwest. Highlight of the tour is expected to be the premier public presentation of an arrangement of the "Peace Hymn of That Republic" in Seattle, Wash.

The band will also play at the 100th annual Minnesota State Fair in Minneapolis, play a series of community-sponsored concerts in the states of Washington and Montana, and perform at the Mountain Laurel Festival in Elkins, W. Va.

Pfc. Marvin H. James was chosen as the soldier-of-the-week in the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry last week. Before entering the Army, the 24-year-old soldier was a sheet glass inspector in a glass factory.

Allied Liaison Handles Problems Of TIS Students of 58 Countries

The task of handling, processing, and aiding hundreds of foreign officers and cadets from as many as 58 different countries is the difficult work of the Allied Liaison Section of Fort Benning.

Each day, with nearly routine regularity, this office (of one officer and four EMs) deals with students from all over the free world by letter in one or more of the Infantry School's courses. Some of the most excellent accounts of themselves in class and are often among the honor graduates of their various Infantry School courses.

Popular Courses
While at Fort Benning the foreign students can choose between any courses offered by the Infantry School. Some of the most splendid are the Adjutant's Course, the Associate Infantry Company Officers Course, the Communications and Intelligence Course, and Airborne and Ranger training.

The Allied Liaison Section comes under the jurisdiction of the Office of the Secretary, United States Army Infantry School and is commanded by Major George Hines. Below this office comes the section for the handling and processing of the foreign officers and enlisted personnel in liaison here for Jacques W. Bernier and Lt. Col. Tofroy.

Capt. Bernier, who is ably assisted in his work by an office staff that collectively speaks 14 languages, speaks fluent French, Sp. Grant Ippen (Danish, Swedish, Norwegian), Sp. Albert Cipriani (Portuguese, Spanish, Italian), Pfc. Marko Malinchevko (Bulgarian, Russian, German, Polish, Ukrainian, and Czechoslovakian), and M. Sgt. S. D. Jones (Mississippi). The liaison staff is more than a match for any linguistic problem that might arise with the students.

American Way of Life
"When the students arrive here at Fort Benning, stated Capt. Bernier, "they are immediately integrated into a company with American officers so as to get the feeling of belonging and becoming a part of the American way of life as

U. S. Rules On Children Citizenship

WASHINGTON (APPS)—In a new ruling, the State Department has clarified the citizenship status of children born to parents, one of whom is an alien and the other a U. S. citizen residing abroad at the time of the child's birth.

The ruling, outlined in a recent issue of the Foreign Personnel Newsletter, provides that children of such parents, born on or after Dec. 24, 1952, will lose their citizenship unless they have a qualifying and continuous residence in the U. S. of at least five years. Such residence according to the publication, must fall between the ages of 14 and 28 but may be interrupted by absences which total not less than 12 months.

MOBILE, COMPANY-SIZED TASK FORCE IN ACTION STAGED FOR 3 TIS CLASSES Rifle Squad From Company A, 29th Infantry, Charges Out Of Armored Infantry Vehicle

29th Troops Stage Task Force Show for Classes

A new demonstration of a mobile company-sized task force in action was staged Aug. 16 before three Infantry School classes.

Three platoons from Company A, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, served as the nucleus of the demonstration task force.

The presentation was presented near the junction of Moore and Lorraine roads by Delta Committee of the Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

A total of 220 troops participated in the demonstration, which was presented for the first time last June to the Infantry Instructors Conference and six Infantry School classes.

The task force was comprised of two rifle platoons and a weapons platoon from Company A, a M4 tank platoon.

Rockets Used To Measure Wind Speed

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (ANF) — Super-velocity winds in the high skies are being measured here by the help of Nike-Cajun rocket firings.

The shots obtain vital information on wind speeds 100 miles up where velocities reach 200 miles an hour, a critical zone in the firing of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Techniques developed in these firings can also be adapted into a tactical field unit to work side by side with the long range missile crews.

Fitted into the nose cone of the Nike-Cajun is a tiny, complete radio broadcasting and receiving station. As the rocket blasts into the sky, White Sands Signal Agency radar sets communicate with the minute radio station. The Nike-Cajun trajectory is thus tracked and the data on wind effect is calculated.

A second device incorporated in the rocket is a smoke generator which produces a dense vapor trail in regions where there is not enough oxygen for normal combustion of any material. Firings are scheduled at sunrise and sunset so that the sun, striking the smoke trail of the ascending rocket, will give it a ray glow.

Carriers set up at five stations on the range here easily record the shape of the smoke trail. By comparing these photographic records, the movement of the smoke at high altitudes can be calculated. This, in turn, applies wind measurements.

Concert Sets Piano Work Of Schumann

The recorded concert of the main Fort Benning Post 16 military Aug. 26 at 7:30 p.m. will feature the "Concerto in A Minor for Piano and Orchestra" by Robert Schumann.

Although Robert Schumann wrote innumerable works for piano alone, and although he was himself an excellent pianist until he suffered an injury to his hand, he composed only one piano concerto. That one work, however, is among the most completely expressive and movingly poetic of all his compositions.

At one time Schumann became so discouraged with the concerto that he abandoned the composition. In a letter to a friend he states, "My concerto is a compromise between a symphony, a concerto and a huge sonata."

Club Slates Dance Class Registration

Registration for The School of Dance, sponsored by The Women's Club of Fort Benning, will be held at the Women's Club House, 8916-1125 (the former Hospital Building) on Aug. 25 and 26 from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

In addition, a representative of The School of Dance will be at Main Post, Center Terrace, Fall and the Pre-Kindergarten School on Aug. 21 and 22. Children of both sexes and officer personnel between the ages of 4 to 15 will be accepted for enrollment.

Mrs. Dwight L. Adams, instructor, has just returned from the U.S. Masters of America, Inc. Normal school in New York City, a member of that organization for four years, this marks her tenth year of teaching and her 12th season as instructor for The School of Dance.

'Brain' Aids Artillerymen

FORT HILL, Okla. (ANF) — The "electronic brain" is inching closer to the battlefield.

A comparatively small electronic digital computer is figuring and recording complicated gunnery problems in minutes at the Artillery and Missile School here.

Its use allows the gunnery staff to solve problems it normally would not attack because of the prohibitive time spent in figuring.

"We can call for the range of all the rounds fired in Germany for instance, in a few moments we have it," explains Lt. Col. Louis van der Veger, chief of research and review.

A problem involving some 170 triangles for a recent field firing was totaled by the machine—a job that would have taken a month before the electronic computer was tested. In addition to saving time, the computer, with its magnetic tape recording hookup, will make a tremendous reduction possible in bulky files of world-wide historical gunnery data.

As computers become smaller and more mobile, it is envisioned that they will assist combat commanders in making quick decisions by instantaneously digesting hundreds of pertinent facts about the changing battle. They will also keep personnel records for frontline units.

Fort Niagara Started As Castle in 1726

Fort Niagara, N. Y. (ANF) — Some of the most exciting pages of American history are revived annually by a quarter of a million tourists who visit the Army's picturesque Fort Niagara, a few miles north of Niagara Falls and across the river from Ontario, Canada.

The fort dates to the seventeenth century when Louis XIV commissioned Robert Cavalier de La Salle to build a permanent fort for France in America. La Salle organized an expedition out of Quebec and in January 1679, constructed a crude fort at the mouth of the Niagara River, one of a chain of 60 forts which France eventually built to defend her claims and protect her fur trade. It was the cradle of civilization on the Niagara Frontier "key to the great unexplored West."

Today "New" Fort Niagara is a key in the air defense picture of the northeast, command headquarters for Nike guided missile sites strategically sited throughout a transportation and industrial area.

The present "Old Fort Niagara" was begun in 1725. The French "Castle" still stands, a stark fortification of stone, but designed to look like a chateau with the idea of deceiving the Indians.

Ever more ancient is the Porte Des Cinq—Gate of Five Nations — and its drawbridge, named for the five nations of the Iroquois Confederacy of Indians.

It was the British and Indians under Sir William Johnson who, in 1759, captured Niagara from the French, thereby cutting the lifeline of supplies from Quebec to the forts along the upper Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley, assuring the subsequent capture of Quebec and the conclusion of the French and Indian War.

During the American Revolution, Fort Niagara was a base of warfare against the unopposed colonists of central New York and Pennsylvania. Not until 15 years after this war was ended did Britain relinquish the fort and the first stars and stripes was raised on the historic parade ground.

The Fleur De Lys of France, the Union Jack, and the American flag with its 15 stars, representing the states in the union on that date, are still flown at Fort Niagara.

Except for a brief period when it was captured by the British during the War of 1812, a Fort Niagara — "Old" or "New" — has been a U.S. Army post since 1798, although its garrison dwindled to but 60 men in 1945. Today, as the Headquarters of the Second Air Defense Artillery Group, it is a small but important base of some 2,000 troops.

August Marks 13th A-Bomb Anniversary

NEW YORK (APFS)—August is the hottest month of the U. S. summer. The August 13 years ago was the hottest month in human history.

It was the month when the first atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima and the second on Nagasaki, causing a stunned and bleeding peace to sue for peace. It was the month when U. S. military might had become the greatest of all time.

From Aug. 6 (Hiroshima) through the weeks that followed a tense, hot-battered world hung on the negotiations that would end the most costly conflict it had ever known. How coolly, it is impossible to reckon. A Vatican estimate placed the number of war dead, civilian and military, at 32,000,000 and the wounded at 34,400,000. But these were only rough totals.

The building of the U. S. military machine to fight WWII had been called by Sir Winston Churchill "a success of improvisation, of improvisation, of improvisation, a wonder of military history. That's no exaggeration, consid-

SENTRY DOG TRAINED TO BE VICIOUS Pvt. Delbert O. Cannon Restrains 'Pubiscie'

Dog Handlers Begin Intensive Workouts

Sentry dog handler recruits at Fort Benning completed most of their basic classroom subjects and began intensive workouts with their canine recruits last week.

Twenty-nine dogs and 28 handlers began a 16-week course on Aug. 4 in the first large-scale training program for sentry dogs at Benning.

The 20th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, attached to the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, is conducting the training. The scout dog platoon is the only such unit remaining in the U. S.

Handler recruits, assigned from Army posts all over the nation, were paired off with the dogs midway in the first week of training. The dogs are fresh out of civilian life. Goal of the training course is to produce 25 well-trained sentry dog teams for the Army Air Defense Command. A team consists of one dog and handler.

In the first several days of training, the handlers completed studies of canine psychology, principles of training, first aid for dogs, canine diseases and parasites, grooming and kennel care, and dog foods and feeding procedures.

Training of the dogs to date has been limited mainly to basic obedience. The dogs are taught to heel, sit, and remain stationary upon both voice and visual commands.

Fort Benning is now the Army's sole source within the United States of both sentry and scout dogs. It has served as the Army dog training center since the Fort Carson, Colo., establishment was eliminated last summer. However, only five sentry-type dogs were trained here prior to the current class.

Sfc Receives QM Award

The presentation of an award for outstanding performance of duty while a student at the Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Va., to Sfc William E. Willis, marked the second consecutive year that such an award has been presented to a member of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

The award presented Sfc Willis was the Quartermaster Association Award for Enlisted Supervisor Course conducted at the Quartermaster School, which is presented annually to the enlisted man who achieves the most outstanding record while attending a course of instruction during the period for which the award is presented.

Sfc Willis attended the Parachute Packing, Maintenance and Aerial Delivery Course a period of four months and achieved the enviable scholarship record of 99.8 per cent. In addition, he won the prize of

Diet Seen 'Quart a Day' For Space

NEW YORK (APFS)—Space travelers of tomorrow may be living on a quart a day—and nothing else. But who these pink esophagus back under the bed, because they won't be traveling with you.

The "quart" could be a new all-liquid diet which a Washington cancer research specialist has developed. He says the diet has been tried on human patients who received no other nourishment for as long as three months and showed no ill effects.

A daily quart of this high-vitamin, high-protein solution appears to be all that is necessary to keep a normal adult healthy and vigorous, the researcher believes. He says it could be manufactured in quantity for about $5 a quart.

Re-Enlistment Poses Problems for Some

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on benefits of the Army as written by Sfc Roy W. Wagle, Fort Benning re-enlistment NCO.)

There are probably many at Fort Benning who are in a quandry at this time or soon will be, to take a slight liberty with Shakespeare, as many do. "To Re-enlist or not to Re-enlist. That is the question." This may sound like a very easy question with a simple solution, but stop and think on a moment.

A man who has spent three to six years or more in the Army should realize that he has very definite equity of his life and career at stake when he considers whether or not to reenlist. In fact, very few can expect to step out of uniform and walk into high salaried jobs, especially jobs with 30 days paid vacation each year and the many other benefits offered if they remain in the service.

You must consider for example that you have already spent a number of your most productive years, to say nothing of the credit toward retirement and seniority for advancement, in the military service.

A major point to consider is that if you entered the service directly from school you have probably had little or no previous experience in a civilian position. If you have, you have been in the army long enough to acquire a specialized knowledge of your field. It is difficult to locate desirable civilian employment.

Unless you are one of the more popular men, your civilian career job laid out and good, secure job just waiting for you to get out of uniform, you should think of the job hunting obstacles you will encounter at stake when the period you will surely go through.

In the final analysis, "TO RE-UP, OR NOT TO RE-UP" you should weigh, very carefully, the immediate as well as the future advantages that army life can provide. WHY WONDER??? RE-UP, ARMY.

Paratroopers Use Buddy System to Safeguard GIs

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (ANP)—The day was hot and the sun, reflecting from the soft Carolina sand, strained the eyes and made scanning the horizon for the enemy difficult.

Two paratroopers, members of the 82nd Airborne Division, deep in aggressor territory, were on a reconnaissance patrol during a training exercise.

Suddenly one recoiled, gasping and whirled and ran. Eyes wide with terror, he scrambled through the brush, and in his haste stumbled over a fallen log and lay momentarily stunned.

As his companion hurried to his side, the latter lay ready to strike again, then sensing the danger past, belatedly the friend began working dutifully. As the injured man's presence of mind returned, he calmed himself with effort, loosened his clothing and tried to relax, as he had been taught to do in first aid classes.

Slipping off his belt, the friend made a hasty tourniquet. He pulled his bayonet from its scabbard and made two cuts over each of the lacerations. He paused for a moment, then with a nod of decision bent over the oozing wounds and began to draw the congealed blood with his mouth.

The man loosening the injured man to admonish the tour-ned frequently, the friend retrieved his weapon and started at a lunge toward the nearest man.

A man's life had been saved. Had he been alone, the outcome might have been tragically different.

Today, with 900,000 soldiers, many in remote corners of the world, the possibility of accidents such as this has not been overlooked—especially important to a Strategic Army Corps outfit like the 82nd, read of a few hours' notice to be airlifted to a trouble spot anywhere in the world.

To safeguard against such occurrences, the Army has developed the "buddy system." Men are fighting units travel in pairs, whether in the jungles of Central America or the hills of North Carolina.

Each knows where the other is at any time. There is no chance that a soldier is lost in a storm or is lying somewhere waiting for help that never comes. His buddy makes sure of that.

Denman Cops Third Place In Walk Meet

Pfc Elliott Denman of The School Brigade remained in contention for a berth on the 1958 United States Olympic team by finishing third in the National Championship 35-Kilometer (22 Miles) Walk at Seattle, Wash., Aug. 9.

Denman walked the distance over a grueling uphill course in humid weather in three hours and 25 minutes to finish a quarter-mile behind the champion Leo Sjogren. Los Angeles, Calif. Valdemar Grandy of Canada, who was former champion of Sweden, was a scant hundred yards ahead of Denman in second place.

Sjogren, Grandy and Denman took turns setting the pace in the race. Sjogren led at six miles in 55-minutes. Denman was ahead at 13 miles in one hour, 49 minutes while Grandy took over at 15 1/2 hours, 19 minutes. It was in the final seven miles that Sjogren and Grandy pulled ahead of Denman.

By his performance in the second U. S. citizen to finish. Denman appears to be a leading contender for the U. S. team going to Rome, Italy for the 1960 Olympic Games, as well as the Pan-American Games to be held in Chicago in 1959.

Denman has walked the most time in their teaming races of all the walkers in the country.

AMU Sweeps Pistol Matches

Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit from Fort Benning took top team honors and dominated individual competition in the National Trophy Pistol Matches held at Camp Perry Aug. 15.

The AMU "Blue" team shot an 112 out of a possible 120 to win the National Team Trophy Championship, edging the Marine team by three and four points.

In the Individual Trophy Match, however, the Marines score but the major's 12 shots in the X ring bettered the 11 scored by Sgt. Sineman.

The USARPAC's Capt. John Weir took victory in the 288-10X. The victorious AMU "Blue" team was comprised of Sgt. Sineman, 229; Major Dunn, 220; Sfc Maurice Bejla, 278, and Cpl. Fred Grant 276.

In other awards won by Army men, Fort Benning's Sfc Frank Grahman captured the Senior Division Rifle with a score of 2516 out of 2700. The Senior Championship is for participants over 35 years of age.

Sgt. Emil Hoogater, AMU, won the National Rifle Association's Regular Service Championships and the National Trophy Matches.

He scored 2078 out of a possible 2300 in the small-bore rifle firing being Aug. 16 and will run through Aug. 23 at Camp Perry when his bare shooting will take over and run through Sept. 6.

The team, coached by Sfc Harold Hankins, is composed of Major Robert Lowe, Sfc Jacob Swales, Sfc Lawrence Latham, Sfc Eugene Spradlin, Sgt. Noah Bailey, and Cpl. Charles Davis.

Last month four AMU riflemen set a national record in a team match at the Northeastern Regional Rifle Championships at Fort Dix, N.J.

25 to Tour Jap Cinders WASHINGTON (APFS) — A 25-man track team will tour Japan Aug. 23 through Sept. 14. AF Special Services recently announced here.

Officially it is an AAU touring team competing in Japan under the invitation of the Japanese Amateur Athletic Federation.

Col. Ralph L. Stevenson, Director of Air Force Special Services and team manager on the tour, plans to leave the US about the middle of August with eight civilian athletes and pick up 17 AF trackmen in Japan to complete the team.

The eight civilians slated for the team are: Robert Charles, pole vaulter; Richard Howard, high and low hurdles and 400 meter; John Thomas, shot put and high jump; Stewart Thompson, shot put, discus and hammer; Jerome Walters, mile and 800; Jack Wilcox, 440 and 800; Joe Wiley, 100-yard dash and broad jump, and Buster Quist, javelin.

Col. Stevenson said John Morris, track coach at the University of Houston, would act as head coach. His assistants are Bob Lawrence, now at Johnson AB, Japan.

Itinerary for the tour is: The Oxford Miss., Tokyo, Yokohama; Aug. 30-31, Sapporo; Sept. 4, Toyama; Sept. 7, Osaka; Sept. 10, Fukuoka, and Sept. 14, Odawara.

WAS 80 Bonus The wiry fighter from the 26th has scored an 807 record in five years of amateur fighting. He began fighting in the ring in 1953.

DePriest won All-Korea championships 14 times in three different weight classes during 1955-57. He won 28 out of 29 fights, scoring 22 knockouts.

DePriest, boxer held the Far East Inter-Service Divisional crown twice in the 165-pound class and twice in the 156-pound class last year. In 1956, he won the Alabama Golden Gloves 165-pound title.

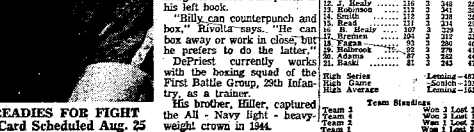

Undeclared in Professional In his only professional outing, DePriest beat Buddy Wilson, Columbus, on two occasions last month. He won the first bout by a split decision and then came back to a floor Wilson three times for a unanimous verdict.

"Billy can counterpunch and box," Rivolta says. "He can box away or work in close; he prefers to do the latter."

DePriest currently works with the boxing squad of the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, as a trainer.

His brother, Miller, captured the All-Navy Light-heavyweight crown in 1944.

AMU Seeks National '58 Rifle Crown

Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's Rifle Team from Fort Benning will be the team to watch in the National Rifle Matches this year.

The record-setting AMU team which is training now at Fort Niagara, N.Y., is a defending champion of the National Trophy, Nevada Trophy, Infantry Trophy and Kormann Trophy rifle matches.

In a practice session on the Niagara range, six AMU riflemen fired a record-shattering score over the national match course. Their combined score was 1464, 44 points over the national record.

Used M-1 In firing this record round, the Army riflemen used the M-1 rifle.

Cpl. Thomas J. Sharpe, officer-in-charge of the team, said the 1464 score turned in by the six marksmen is "quite possibly the highest team score ever recorded with an M-1 rifle."

The team, coached by Sfc Harold Hankins, is composed of Major Robert Lowe, Sfc Jacob Swales, Sfc Lawrence Latham, Sfc Eugene Spradlin, Sgt. Noah Bailey, and Cpl. Charles Davis.

Last month four AMU riflemen set a national record in a team match at the Northeastern Regional Rifle Championships at Fort Dix, N.J.

Seta New Record The team fired 991-122V out of 1000 over the national match course for the new record. The Marine Corps held the old record of 980-11V.

In the same match, a new record with the M-1 service rifle was posted by Capt. M. P. Foster in winning the 600-yard slow fire match. He shot 100-19V out of a possible 100-20V.

A "V" is the designation used for a shot that enters the small "V" ring in the bull's-eye. It is used to break tie scores.

The national match course includes 10 shots at 200 yards, including standing and sitting, 10 shots rapid fire at 300 yards prone, and 20 shots slow fire at 600 yards prone.

The AMU Rifle Team will leave Fort Niagara Aug. 23 for Camp Perry, Ohio, to compete in the National Rifle Matches.

Strategic Reserve Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commenting on America's strategic reserve, explained recently that the Army maintains about seven divisions in the United States. These forces would reinforce American overseas forces if the need were attached, or would provide an expeditionary force that would be sent to any portion of the Communist periphery where it was decided to employ military means to strategic purposes.

General Taylor declared, "must be ready, and well equipped."

Board Gets Avid Soccer Competitor

Pvt. Charles G. Patton, six-foot, 150-pound, who was assigned to the Infantry Board recently, is an enthusiastic soccer player.

Pvt. Patton learned the game at Columbia Military Academy of Lebanon, Tenn. He developed such an interest in the sport that after he had graduated from the preparatory school and entered St. Peter's College, he was instrumental in forming a soccer team at the school, even though soccer had never been played there.

The team developed to such a degree that it played on a competitive level with other colleges and military schools which included the University of Florida and Admiral Farragut Academy. Pvt. Patton has not one complaint concerning his assignment to Fort Benning. That complaint is that Fort Benning has no soccer team.

He has finished three years of college pursuing a degree in business administration and plans to continue his education while spending his three year tour in the Army.

Army Marksmanship Unit Earning Title of World's Best Shooters

CAMP PERRY, Ohio — Two years ago they called them the Army's best shooters. Last year they called them the Army's best shooters. Today they are earning the reputation of the world's best shooters.

That's the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, which put 20 shooters and coaches on the U. S. International team that is going to Moscow for the world championships this year and which now brings 120 shooters to Camp Perry's world series of shooting. The Army's purchase of marksmanship, headed by Col. E. R. Mason, is located at Fort Benning.

Although AMU was only organized in 1956, the history of Army marksmanship can be traced to the turn of the century. That's when the Army started sending its most qualified Only having a limited amount of equipment, ammunition and funds, the rifle and pistol teams trained summers at Fort Benning until 1956 when the AMU was formed. The present-day unit, with an authorized strength of 121 personnel, has the finest individual and team marksmanship equipment available. Included are a modern, completely equipped shop staffed with experienced armors, a recently constructed ammunition bunker and excellent range facilities.

These include the only permanent international range in the United States, a six-story, international rapid fire pistol range, a seven-point indoor pistol range and a six-point indoor smaller, rifle range. A new addition to the range facilities is the newly constructed international running program.

The unit headquarters exercises command and operational control and provides the unit's administrative, statistical, logistical and armor support. The Rifle Group, directed by Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe, furnishes instructors to the Infantry School to assist in the conduct of the advanced marksmanship coaching course and also sends rifle instructors to assist the Army areas in conducting small arms firing schools.

Two months later this group is reduced in size and the remaining shooters begin intensive training for the International Matches. The Army Rifle team goes to Fort Benning for training and the pistol team remains at Fort Benning. Both compete in several warm-up matches before the Camp Perry championships.

His partner chips and Harry replaces his ball. Not exactly where it was before you understand. Dogebrain noticed a light scar between his ball and the hole — wonder how it got there? — and he doesn't stand for it. He says he'll be in the hole and incidentally a few inches to the left. But now he lines up his put, he is standing over it, he brings the club down and he hits it. "Don't miss next week's installment. Will Harry Hacker sink his putt as a great put throw his ball off line? He is the first in your outfit to get next week's installment. There are answers to these and other vital questions.

Kills Two Deer Pfc Hunts Big Game With Bow, Arrows

Pfc Fred Namlik, Headquarters and Service Company Fourth Student Battalion, The School Brigade, has stalked and killed two deer in the eastern United States with a bow and arrow. "Anything on the North American continent, with the possible exception of the Kodiak (Alaska) bear, can be hunted with a bow," says Namlik. He has the patience and experience to wait for the perfect opportunity. "In fact, I've stalked a year a man Howard Hill, famed archer and hunter) even killed an elephant with a hunting arrow."

3-A Urges Polio Shots

FORT McPHERSON, Ga. — Col. W. D. Graham, now Third Army Surgeon, urges all military personnel and their dependents get Salk polio vaccine shots immediately. Col. James H. Gordon, Third Army Preventive Medicine Officer, said it is a "seasonal assumption" that the recent decline in polio cases is due almost entirely to the use of polio vaccine.

Col. Gordon cited figures from the U.S. Public Health Service showing that 619 cases of polio have been reported in the nation as of mid-July this year, compared with 1,979 for the same period last year.

The median figure for the same period in the years 1953-57 was 4,928 cases. Col. Gordon said, "our experience in the Third Army has shown similar results from the use of the vaccine."

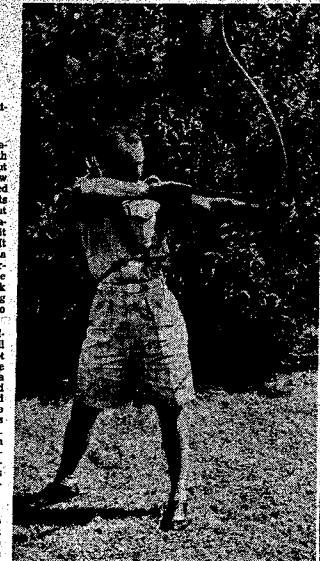

Col. Gordon said Third Army hospitals have received only three cases of polio so far this year, compared with six cases in July, 1957, four cases for the same period in 1956, six in 1955, 15 in 1954, and 16 in 1953.

"There is no doubt that the decrease is the result of using the vaccine," Col. Gordon said. "We have learned that the vaccine in its current form is as safe as 80 per cent, effective for persons taking all three doses."

"The big danger now," he said, "is that people will decide the polio problem is licked. Polio is still a major threat, but the threat can be greatly decreased with the vaccine."

Military personnel and their dependents can receive the vaccine free of charge. Orders for the second shot should be taken four to six weeks after the first, and the third seven months after the second.

However, Col. Gordon said, doctors recommend taking the third shot sooner if there is a polio epidemic in progress. And the third shot is still effective if taken after the seventh month.

Jews to Mark Holy Days During Sept.

NEW YORK (APPS)—The Jewish Welfare Board will aid Jewish servicemen in obtaining religious supplies for the High Holy Days this September. The High Holy Days (New Year) will begin at sundown Sept. 14 and continue through sundown Sept. 16. Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) will be observed from sundown Sept. 23 to sundown Sept. 24.

Further information may be obtained from your base or unit chaplain. "BREAKS STRING A Montgomery, Ala., service club used to give a certain member an award for his unbroken attendance record at meetings, called the ceremony off when the recipient forgot to show up.

How Has Advantages According to Namlik, most states make it possible for the archer to get a two-week early season for deer and certain other game. It more than makes up for the bow's lack of range to have the game undisturbed by the usual hordes of regular season hunters. Another advantage of the bow and arrow is the cost which is Army," he said.

New-Type Rifle Drawing Attention at Camp Perry

An experimental international type rifle developed by the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit drew much attention at the unit's display of the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio. The "high power rifle, used in the Army's international competition, was designed by Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe, officer in charge of the Army Rifle Group, and Sgt. Glenn Baker, AMU armorer.

The big bore rifle is similar to the type being used by crack AMU riflemen who will fire with the U. S. International Team in the World Championships at Moscow this month.

CWO Herbert Atkins Jr., AMU shop officer, pointed out that this rifle is one of the Fort Benning unit's most successful efforts to develop an American-made free rifle that will match the accuracy of the European-made weapons in world competition. Also displayed in the Camp

School Brigade Highlights

Students Assist Boy Scout Camp; Co. Assigned 7 From 'Who's Who'

Second Student Battalion 23rd Company — 2nd Lt. Marcellus Jago, Gregory Meek and John MacPhee, assigned to IOLC No. 3, volunteered as assistants at the Boy Scout Camp prior to beginning the course. Lt. Jago was an instructor in the handicraft, while Lt. Meek and MacPhee were counselors to some twenty scouts each. They also took the scouts on a 25-mile canoe trip down the Upper Creek on Aug. 7.

The company also has been assigned seven officers who were selected to the "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." They are Lt. E. E. Kelly VMI, T. W. Cotton, Florence State, Ala.; W. D. Fisher Jr., Jacksonville, Fla.; Alan T. S. Chenevix, DePaul University, P. N. Kane, Va. State College; R. S. Strick, Arkansas State; and W. Stahman, Siena College, N. Y.

21st Company — Last year under the leadership of student company commander, 2nd Lt. Noel J. Robinson of Stanford University, Infantry Officer Leadership Course No. 2 received instruction in map reading, communication, a rifle aviation techniques, the 50 caliber machine gun and infantry warfare. This heavy schedule was necessitated by the fact that the course was shortened from 15 and one half to eight weeks.

Comd'g Angelo J. Bafalos has marked his 33rd birthday. 22nd Company — The following lieutenants will be married on dates indicated: John D. Edwards to Miss Elizabeth Booth of Smyrna, Ga., Sept. 7. John B. Jones to Miss Josie Traylor Sept. 10. Leon E. Clancy Jr. to Miss Janet Drissell of Detroit, Mich., Sept. 12. John W. Bowyer to Miss Karen Elaine Palmer, Sept. 14. Paul M. Driscoll to Miss Beverly Richardson of Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 22. All of the lieutenants are students in BIOC No. 16.

25th Company — Graduation ceremonies for BIOC No. 16 were held in the Main Post Theater, Aug. 9. The guest speaker, Fest Col. N. A. Cunningham III, Chief of Staff, First Army Division, Fort G. K. Warren, Va., was cited as the honor graduate for academic achievement. Lt. Claret received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsch, Assistant Commandant, USAIS.

First Lieutenant Peter R. Rudolph left for his home in New Orleans, La., to announce his engagement to Miss Gwen Weeks, also of New Orleans. The big day is set for the middle of December.

Infantry School Detachment Company A — recently had three men receive 11st for six weeks. Going for the long hitch are Sgt. Alvin Stokes with the air motor and aerial delivery of the Airborne Department, Sgt. Steve L. Mellich of the Headquarters Section of the Airborne Department and Spt Philip D'Entremont of the 3rd Medical Section.

Sgt. James E. Henry and

W. Koon Jr. recently made an excellent showing during the company's rifle marksmanship training at McAndrews Range. In spite of the handicap imposed by the 90-plus degree weather, Sic Koon displayed amazing accuracy with the sparkling score of 229 out of a possible 250 points. He earned the military service as a Coast Guardman and received his basic training at Manhattan Beach, N. Y. After a tour of service with the sea-going service, he joined the Army and while a member of this service married the former Emily Bert of his hometown of Lexington, S. C.

Fourth Student Battalion H and S Company — Approximately 38 United States Air Force cadets are presently taking airborne training at H and S Company.

Sgt. Ernest M. Thomas has just returned from TDY at Fort Lee, Va. where he was attending Ranger School. 40th Company gained two new classes. The new Radio Class which will be Infantry Radio Maintenance No. 2 started with an enrollment of 53 and Spt Clinton Howard as class leader. The new Engineer Officer Basic Course at Fort Belvoir, Va., from March 4 to June 12. Assigned to the Infantry Center, June 30, the lieutenant was then assigned to this Battalion in July.

Assigned to Company E, 2nd Lt. James T. Moates Jr. came to be designated as a 2d platoon leader from the 15th Engineer Officer Basic Course. Fort Belvoir, Va. where he completed that course in June. Now a platoon leader in Company E, Lt. Moates received his formal education prior to military service at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute in Auburn, Ala., where he graduated in June, 1957.

Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering degree. Receiving his commission through the ARMY ROTC program at Auburn (API), the lieutenant worked at Van Dyke Mills, Inc., Montgomery, Ala., before his entry into active duty.

Third platoon leader, and personal and mess officer for the 2nd Co. is recently assigned to this Battalion. Lt. Emery G. Davis, Tech 1 in Atlanta, where he received a Bachelor of Industrial Engineering degree, and also attended the Army ROTC program at that institute, for which he received a commission in December, 1957.

Prior to entering active duty in May, 1958, Lt. Davis was an engineer at Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in Jacksonville, Fla. From May to July, 1957, he attended the Engineer Officer Basic Course at Fort Belvoir, Va. From that station, he was reassigned to the Infantry Center, and then to this Battalion.

After five years service with the 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat), Capt. Donald J. Steadman and S Company 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat) was among the 100 men trying out for the team. Last year he played defensive tackle and guard for the Special Troop (Special Construction Battalion) active duty in 1950, returned from the Associate Advance Course at Fort Belvoir and was assigned to the Engineer Replacement Training Center, the Engineer School. From there he was sent to Korea where he was assigned as the Peace Captain, 49th Engineer Battalion under Admiral John, senior delegate of the truce delegation. His service varied through the roads and grounds maintenance, patrol of the perimeter of the 49th Engineer Battalion remained outside the 1,000 yard circle, and control of the 12 1/2 inch mortar balloons down to mark the corners of the neutral zone.

Capt. Steadman joined the Battalion in Europe in 1953 when the Battalion was known as the 46th Engineer Battalion (Combat). Capt. Steadman has been assigned as adjutant of the 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat), a former unit of the California National Guard while in Germany. Capt. Steadman is a member of the 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat) when the unit changed designations. Capt. Steadman then left the Battalion to become a District Commander of Labor Service, having under his control an Engineer DUKW Company composed of German civilians.

JADA Presents Fashion Show At Post Aug. 27 Board Gets New Officer

Col. Richard C. Whitman has been assigned as director of the Mortar and Surveillance Department of the Infantry School at Fort Benning. Col. Whitman was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve upon graduating from the University of Nebraska in June, 1958. He continued post-graduate studies in chemistry and bacteriology until 1964. During World War II he served as an ordnance officer and later as G-3 of the Logistics Section of the China Burma India Theater. He later served with the G-3 Section, U.S. Forces in China.

Following World War II Col. Whitman served with the Fifth Army, was battalion commander and regimental second lieutenant at Fort Carson, Colo., assistant post engineer and S2 and S3 of Stuttgart Area Command, Germany. In 1954-1958 he was a regimental executive officer and deputy chief of staff for the Eighth Infantry Division at Fort Carson, in Korea.

The never ending task of the 86th Engineer Company to constantly maintain a ready Rescue and Recovery Team which can be dispatched from Fort Benning within the hour was once again called upon to aid civilian authorities in the search for a small Piper Cub airplane which was believed to have crashed in the vicinity of Jasper, Ga. The Rescue Team proceeded to Jasper, Ga., leaving Fort Benning at 2 a.m. Aug. 7 and arriving at their destination at 8:30 a.m. The search covered the rugged terrain surrounding Jasper, Ga., for several days. The search was successful in locating the plane which was found by civilian authorities in Tennessee.

CUTTING CORNERS on the GLAMOUR FRONT

By Richard Sue Richards
by Max Factor, Jr.

As an art, flower arrangements most closely resembles painting, adhering to the same principles of scale, color rhythm, and composition to achieve beauty.

The side triangle, crescent, half-circle, S-curve, full circle, perpendicular, oval, and triangle are basic forms which have appeared consistently throughout the history of flower arrangement. These compositions, or eight basic plans, are your simple guide to turning flower arrangements into living paintings.

Flowers are lovely in any circumstance—but to bring out all their natural beauty they should be arranged in containers which complement their colors and contours. Any container made of clear or light-tinted glass is a good choice.

Tumblers, stemmed or footed goblets, brandy inhalers, candy dishes and beer steins, are but a few examples of the household glassware that you can borrow to make sparkling flower arrangements.

No matter what piece of glassware you choose, nor which of the eight basic plans is most appropriate to it—you'll start by deciding on the scale of the arrangement. Scale is the relationship of the flowers to the size and shape of the container. Most visually satisfying is an arrangement whose proportions are at least 1 1/2 times a tall container's height or about 1 1/2 times a low container's width.

Color rules are simple. Since dark or heavy flowers tend

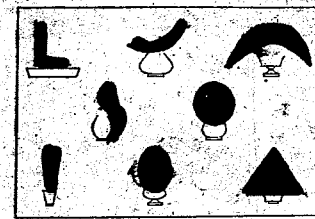

DEBBIE REYNOLDS
Lovely Motion Picture Star

Summer is upon us and with it has come the good old sunburn. It's a good idea to keep the degree of your burn in mind when you select your summer make-up.

More important, your make-up will appear more naturally beautiful if you consider your costume colors when you apply your make-up accents. Some women spend hours on their faces and then ruin the entire effect by wearing clothes that clash with their make-up.

Lipstick and rouge with a purplish undertone can impart an overly "made-up" look when worn with a bright red or yellow ensemble, and an orange lipstick can lose its beauty-giving power with a rose dress. When in doubt, choose a clear, clear red shade of lipstick which cuts across the color wheel with constant fatality. Always select your rouge in a matching shade, and you will be assured of the harmonious look of beauty that distinguishes such glamorous stars as lovely Debbie Reynolds no matter what costume colors they wear.

to give the feeling of weight; they look least too heavy when used at the bottom of an arrangement. Buds and lighter, smaller blossoms may be placed at the top and outer sides. Try to use color in groups—"family" colors like pinks and reds together—to lend coherence and harmony to the overall effect.

Flowers should be arranged so that the eye is led to a natural center of interest.

HERE'S HOW

The next time you want to impress the children make them their own printing press. All you'll need to make the kids think you're the family genius is a new potato, a paint brush, some vegetable coloring and a knife. In fact, the children can make this themselves if you have one of those plastic knives which they can use without hurting themselves.

Cut the potato in half. With a pencil, outline a design on one-half of the potato. Cut away all the potato around the design. Cut at least 1/4 inch deep. Apply the color to the design with the paint brush. You can now print the design on as many pieces of paper as you like by pressing the color-soaked potato on them.

If you prefer, you can use a simple picture of an animal or initials in place of the design.

Jenkins Speaks To Drive Heads

Bus Service For Schools Is Announced

The entire community is interested in activities of common good to both its civilian and military members, Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins said at Fort Benning's 1958 Community Activities Association Fund Drive kickoff meeting Aug. 25.

REUBEN E. JENKINS United Givers President

Gen. Jenkins, president of the Columbus United Givers, addressed some 800 drive captains and their key associates at a meeting officially opening a fund drive campaign in the total community effort to support the U. S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning's part through its own separate campaign.

Opening the session, Col. Max Schneider, Fort Benning campaign chairman, presented Major Gen. Paul I. Freeman Jr., commanding general of the Infantry Center and Fort Benning's official statements. Gen. Freeman introduced Major Gen. Robert H. Wiesner, commander of the Second Infantry Division, and then the guest speaker, Gen. Jenkins.

Gen. Freeman stated, "Every single individual benefits in some way from activities the fund supports whether on post or in the community."

Benning Spends $9 Million In Columbus Every Year

Fort Benning contributes more than $9 million a year to the Columbus economy. Chattahoochee Valley firms provide a variety of services for the huge Army post, such as utilities, subsistence, custodial duties, movement of household goods, medical supplies, cleaners and preservatives petroleum products and household effects for incoming and outgoing Fort Benning personnel.

CG to View Army-Wide Conference

Major Gen. Paul I. Freeman Jr., commander of the Infantry Center, will attend an Army-wide conference Sept. 8-9 at Continental Army Command headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va.

This will be the first conference of Army-wide scope to be held since Gen. Bruce C. Clarke assumed command of the Continental Army Command.

Attending the conference will be commanders of the six combat Armies, Military District of Washington and commanders of the 13 Continental Army Command service schools.

Instructions Set For Unit Chiefs On EES Reports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Detailed instructions for preparing and reporting on personnel reports on soldiers' under the Army's modern Enlisted Evaluation System (EES) will be announced soon.

The purpose of the new EES is to improve military personnel management by an objective evaluation of individual proficiency in military occupational specialties.

Sound Operators Section Drives 140,000 Miles Without Accident

The Infantry School's Sound Section has compiled a safe driving record of which it can be proud.

The section, driving 28 assorted vehicles with trailers 20,000 miles a month, has driven some 140,000 accident-free miles since January.

These thousands of miles covered the reservation in all kind of weather and at all hours of the day or night.

Chief of the Sound Section, Major Sam H. Adams, when queried as to how he accounts for such a record, said "it is the direct result of first of all, the close adherence of a policy of accepting for assignment to the section only those personnel who are qualified vehicles and operators. Secondly, to the conscientious cooperative supervision given to the problem by all NCOs who were directly responsible for supervising the operating personnel."

Enlisted men sharing Major Adams' pride in the record are: Staff Sgt. Charles M. Sizemore and Cpl. Coy E. Christian, SFC Grayson M. Taylor, chief clerk of the Sound Section, and the entire unit consisting of 96 enlisted men and two officers had become after mile is added to the accident-free record. "If we haven't set some sort of record, yet it isn't because everyone assigned is a '1' in there pitching," he said.

Post Due 1 Death Safe Driving Urged Over Weekend

The Infantry Center safety officials have predicted one fatality and eight injuries will be recorded for Fort Benning personnel in vehicle accidents over the approaching Labor Day weekend.

However, due to a vigorous safety campaign by post officials, unit commanders and troop information sections, injuries and fatalities are expected to drop below the prediction which is based on past statistics.

Personal traveling in private vehicles are encouraged to travel in the daylight hours, judge speed with conditions over the extreme caution while driving.

There have been 60 injuries and three fatalities so far this year, which would normally mean that approximately three more people would meet their end this year.

All personnel will be excused from duty for the week required for necessary operation of the post, officials said.

Urges Fund Drive Support

Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., Infantry Center commander, this week appealed to military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning to support Community Activities Fund Drive.

His message is: 1. During the period 25 August to 7 November 1958, an appeal will be made for your annual contribution to the 1958 Fort Benning Community Activities Association Fund. This fund supports Post welfare activities, helps to support Fort Benning Youth Activities, including Boy and Girl Scouts, Chaplain Christmas Activities, Welfare Nurses, Parent-Teacher Associations, and contributes to the American Red Cross and The Columbus Armed Services YMCA, Family Service Bureau, Traveler's Aid, and many other charity and welfare activities.

2. Our goal is to obtain 100 percent participation in this undertaking. Your generosity will help maintain and improve the security, health, welfare and happiness of the people of our community, both military and civilian. Since the Fort Benning Community Activities Association Fund has always made a substantial contribution to The Columbus United Givers, it is expected that all Fort Benning civilians will participate fully in the Post Drive.

3. In order to reach our goal you must open your hearts and your pocket books to help the sick, the needy and the deserving, who are not as fortunate as you. Let generosity and your conscience be your guide.

Teach After Retirement

Great demand for additional teachers in the nation's elementary and secondary schools and institutions of higher learning has become a matter of national concern and the Department of Army has organized a program to inform, motivate, and assist officer and enlisted personnel in preparing themselves, as appropriate, and offering their services as teachers in the nation's schools upon retirement.

Since a certain amount of professional training will be required of those who desire post-retirement professions as teachers, it is important that these persons prepare for the taking of this training before their retirement. The Army's program of General Educational Development provides an excellent means through which interested personnel can enhance their professional qualifications as teachers before retirement.

The Columbus Center of the University of Georgia offers courses to personnel of Fort Benning specifically preparing the individual for the teaching profession. Tuition assistance is available for those who take advantage of these college courses. USAFI College courses are also offered to high school graduates. Credit for these courses are acceptable at most accredited colleges and universities. Many universities and colleges offer a great variety of core subjects and teacher preparation courses by correspondence that may be had at a reduced fee for service personnel.

A name and credential file will be maintained by the Office of Adjutant General, all needed and retired personnel who express an interest in teaching as a post-retirement or post-release plan. The Army Education Center (Bldg. 2512) is prepared to offer guidance and counseling to personnel interested in preparing for a post-retirement career in teaching.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (1st. COL.) JOSEPH J. MORRELL

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." We have heard it so said from our youngest days and well we know it even then, for a brother proved himself neither more nor less than a friend when he troubled darkened childhood's sunlit hours. Then, as the years passed and the skies of life were more often filled with clouds and sometimes rent with fearful storms, we learned that those who smiled when life was radiant were all well to hold him. He always did his sound our grief and always lifted up again hearts that had grown weary. He has ever won our hearts and never once when we had come, did he send us away as we came. Always remember that "a friend in need" is one who stands out for your changeless friend.

The Judge Says . . .

Down in front! Out that noise! These and many other calls are often heard in movie theaters. All too often a rowdy person prevents a large number of other people from seeing the picture.

Such action is typical of the offense of disorderly conduct. Disorderly conduct at any time or place is punishable as an offense under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Article 134. It is a disorder which is prejudicial to good order and discipline of the Army. As such it is punishable by trial by court-martial. A violator of Article 134 for such an offense can be sentenced to confinement, at hard labor for one month and forfeiture of two-thirds of one month's pay.

In the case of such a disorder, Article 7c of the Code and paragraph 15c of the Manual for Courts-Martial give an officer the power to quell such a disorder and to apprehend the violator who caused the trouble. Long-standing custom requires any officer or non-commissioned officer who intervenes in such a disorderly conduct to identify himself to the violator and to state that it is necessary to quiet the disorder.

This action may be as serious as apprehension (the military code term for arrest) and is necessary to quiet the disorder. This action may be as serious as apprehension (the military code term for arrest) and is necessary to quiet the disorder.

The post theatres, as well as the exchanges, bar gardens, and snack bars are operated for the benefit and pleasure of all-military personnel. Disorderly conduct in any of these places is an offense under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Article 134.

OVER THE AIR

One year ago this week, TV channels as well as the radio stations in the Chattahoochee Valley were greeted with a new Saturday afternoon program on WRBL-TV Channel 41. The producers of the show faced the normal amount of headaches during the first few weeks. However "Benning Reports" has now become a regular weekend feature for thousands of valley viewers—both military and civilian.

Benning Reports is broadcast by WRBL at 9:35 p.m. on Saturdays and 12:45 p.m. on Sundays. The program is presented, as well as a report of this week's news-happenings at the post. Switch to WRBL-TV (Channel 41) this and every Saturday at 9:35 p.m. for "Fort Benning Reports." A variety of radio programs and news summaries are also broadcast. The program is dramatized-documentary type "News Parade."

As Soviet Ally Col. Calls Egypt Key To Mideast Troubles

Egypt is the key to all trouble in the Middle East, Col. Marcus W. Adams stated at a meeting of the Fort Benning Management Association meeting Aug. 19.

Adams, deputy director of the Infantry School's Personnel Department, was guest speaker at the association's monthly dinner meeting in the Main Officers Mess. Formerly U. S. Advisor to the Egyptian Army, he addressed the group on the troubled situation of the Middle East. "And there is trouble," Nasser finds ripe feeding grounds in internal strife, the group was reminded.

In a country by country summary Col. Adams discussed today's crisis in the strategic region of the Middle East. Europe, Asia and Africa where two-thirds of the world's oil reserves are found. The area is Egypt, the land of the Nile. Egypt, more than 90 per cent Moslem, has an armed force estimated at 100,000. Col. Adams proclaimed, Nasser's aim is to build an Arab empire in the Middle East under his control. France allies, is now deeply involved. With Nasser on the scene, the Middle East is a powder keg. The Middle East is a powder keg. The Middle East is a powder keg.

Another contributing factor in the area is oil. Although the Middle East is rich in oil, it all of the Arab states have oil. Only Saudi Arabia, the sheikdoms of the Arabian Peninsula, and Iraq produce oil in quantity. With Western help the former Iraq government had started to carry out an ambitious, progressive program for the development of the country, to which it was devoting 70 per cent of the oil revenue. In time the mass of Iraqis would be likely to see the benefits from the long-range program.

The Middle East supplies three-fourths of Western Europe's oil needs. Egypt, Syria and Lebanon, while not oil producers, are countries through which Middle East oil passes on its way to the Mediterranean. The Suez Canal in Egypt and the pipelines from Saudi Arabia and Iraq to the coasts of Lebanon and Syria are the lifelines of Europe.

More Dinar, Better Dinner

Pvt. Dodged Tito's Draft, Finds U.S. Army Palatable

A Yugoslavian youth who fled his homeland to escape being drafted into Tito's army has joined the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

Big reason why Pvt. Joseph Simovich, of Moracz, Hungary, would not serve in his country's Communist army: the pay.

25 Cents A Month Yugoslav soldiers receive 600 dinar, or about 32 cents, per month, enough to buy half a dozen packs of cigarettes over there.

Pvt. Simovich also did not like the economic standard of living in his native Yugoslavia, the state under communism. As a school-trained mechanic in Yugoslavia, he earned the equivalent of $18 per month.

So when he received his draft notice in March, 1954, he walked across the border into Austria and requested permission to come to the United States.

Take Care Of Everyone Is Very Rich clothing, duties, food, and, of course, pay.

He referred to the basic training he recently completed as "32's of fun."

Pvt. Simovich says he has no idea which way Marshall would turn in the event of a war between the Communist and Free World camps.

Smell of Money Draft-evader in his homeland, Pvt. Simovich finds life in the U.S. Army very palatable. His two brothers were Yugoslav soldiers and he says the American GI has superior

PVT. J. SIMONICH
Everyone Is Very Rich

Only those who work for the government and have good jobs are for communism because they are being taken care of, the 23-year-old soldier says.

Draft-evader in his homeland, Pvt. Simovich finds life in the U.S. Army very palatable. His two brothers were Yugoslav soldiers and he says the American GI has superior

The 23rd soldier says the Yugoslavian people do not like Russia and he thinks that Tito, a World War II hero against the Germans, would not win a free election in Yugoslavia today.

A Popular Idea He confesses that a popular idea in Yugoslavia that everyone in America is very rich influenced his decision to come here.

After a two-year passport hold-up, he came to the U.S. in 1956 and went to work immediately in Florida as a mechanic on British-made automobiles.

He plans to return to civilian life when his two years of service are up. Reason: he's not completely sold on the pay in Uncle Sam's army either.

Col. Kiely Cited For Achievement Lt. Col. Clara M. Kiely presented a certificate of achievement for outstanding service at Fort Benning as chief nurse of the U. S. Army Hospital from October, 1955, to July, 1958, and of Martin Army Hospital since July 1.

She left the post Aug. 18 for an assignment in Germany. The award was presented by Col. Robert B. Skinner, commander of Martin Hospital, in ceremonies attended by the hospital staff.

Speaker Says Army Faces Great Change

The Regular Army and National Guard are facing the most profound, comprehensive change in 150 years, according to a speaker at a weapons and training, necessitating effective leadership, the Army's assistant chief of staff for Reserve Components, Major Gen. John W. Bowen, said at Fort Benning Aug. 12.

Specialized graduates of the Infantry School's National Guard officer candidate class, the largest class in the history of the school, the two-star general stated that "in this time of rapid change, emphasis must be on efficiency."

"The Guard has always shown its willingness to serve, its success largely due to leadership materially within its own ranks," Gen. Bowen said.

"It is your responsibility to discharge the duties commensurate with your new leadership," he told the 17 graduates, who are now eligible to receive commissions as second lieutenants through their respective units.

Gen. Bowen also commended the "outstanding record of leadership by Army National Guardsmen in Army service schools. The National Guard aggressively fosters this program. Eight thousand men attended courses of two weeks to one-year duration each year."

One hundred and ninety-six Guardsmen from about 200 communities in 40 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico began The Infantry School's OCS course June 9.

Island Seen Perfect Spot For A-Blast

NEW YORK (APPS)—They couldn't have picked a better place! That's the predictable reaction of hundreds of thousands of servicemen and veterans when they read that tiny Johnston Island is figuring in the "hard-core" series of atomic tests.

For this bleak, sun-baked coral atoll, 825 miles southwest of Honolulu, from which short-range missiles will be fired, has never been the kind of Pacific island that a complete dream about.

But its importance as a main air stop on the 2,000-mile mid-Pacific route to Tokyo has never been disputed. Say that and you've said about everything about it that can be said about Johnston Island. Ask anyone who's ever stopped there.

Johnston is actually two low, sandy islets surrounded by a coral reef. The larger is only 100 yards long and 200 yards wide. There are few trees, virtually no grain, and no fresh water.

Like to swim? Don't try it at Johnston. The waters teem with shark and barracuda. Like to fish? Well, you can try Johnston's lagoon. Trouble is that many of its fish, such as puffers, triggerfish and skipjack, are poisonous to eat.

This unattractive blob of real estate was discovered by Capt. Johnston of HMS Cornwall in 1867. Nobody ever wanted the place badly until WWI when the Navy quickly recognized its value as a landing station. Later it was manned by Marines until 1946 when it came under the Air Force Pacific Command.

Sadie Hawkins Day Holds No Fear for Post Soldier

A member of the Second Band Group, 14th Infantry, has declared the second Sunday in May as his official "Sadie Hawkins Day" which is also Mothers Day on the calendar. The main factor for the soldier remaining single through the critical days that the people of "Dogpatch" fear no much is that he is the only son of Mrs. Sadie G. Hawkins, Indianapolis, Indiana. Sp4 Hawkins was recently assigned to the 14th Infantry from the Second Division and is assigned to the Engineer Platoon of Headquarters Company.

OC Review Followed By Reception, Dinner

Aug. 9 marked the end of the intermediate phase of training for the Officer Candidates of 50th Company, Fifth Student Battalion, School of Infantry, Fort Benning. A review was held in the morning on Sigbee Field with candidates from the 20th and 52nd Company's participating.

On hand to review the candidates was Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, assistant commander of the Infantry School. After decorating the candidates, Gen. Larsen, in his speech Col. Hobeke stated that, upon being commissioned, the candidates could expect a lot of hard work and would perhaps meet with failures in the beginning but to persevere and proficiency would come with experience.

Entire 7-A Area Toured By Ordnance Vagabonds

NELLENGEN, Germany (AP)—That's why most of the soldiers are "vagabonds" or have only a few months of temporary duty with the team before returning to fixed depot jobs, but some like the gypsy life. Sgt. Derryl A. Teegarden is into his third year on the job.

The soldiers of Detachment No. 1, 18th Ordnance Company, are specialists on the repair and overhaul of heavy engines, mostly the Continentals used in tanks, personnel carriers, General purpose missiles, rockets and prime movers.

Pentagon Operators Cited For 'Big Snow' Showing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon, largest office building in the world, needs the largest switchboard in the world. It has 175,000 calls daily. There are 285 switchboard positions through which operators put 100,000 calls daily (mostly 175,000 and dialled to) to the 46,000 phones of the Defense Telephone Service—Washington.

When February's big snow hit Washington on a Saturday, it soon became evident to Mrs. Sara E. LoPresti, the supervisor in charge, that a communication problem was in the making. She alerted the chief operator, Mrs. D. J. E. Foley, and the assistant chief operator, Miss Marian J. Bailey, at their homes.

Fort Gordon, Ga., was first and Fort Jackson, S. C., was second. During July, Fort Benning had 187 reenlistments, representing more than 85 per cent of re-enlistment-eligible personnel at the Post.

Out of the 183 total, 147 re-enlisted to fill their own vacancies, 18 re-enlisted for assignment by the Department of the Army, 4 for assignments in Europe, 6 for Army schools and 5 for the U. S. Army Guard, Fort Benning.

14th Moves Motor Pool

The Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, has transplanted its motor pool to another location in order to gain a larger area that will enable it to carry out its mission of supporting the Infantry School.

Capt. James Wallace was given the gigantic task of moving, and this he accomplished in neat and orderly manner assisted by Sgt. Ronald L. Cowman, and the 8 and 2 wing members of the Second Battle Group Motor Pool.

The operation started at 6 a.m. Aug. 11 with 77 vehicles all driven by their assigned drivers. Starting from the old location that was situated West of the 20th Infantry area, they

Cash Offered For SEATO Seal Design

NEW YORK (APPS)—A contest for the design of a SEATO emblem, open to U.S. servicemen and women, has been announced by the State Department.

SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) is a collective defensive alliance composed of the U.S., Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, France and the United Kingdom.

Designs should be simple and memorable with an immediate visual impact. They may be symbolic or non-symbolic, but they should convey the idea that SEATO is an organization for collective self-defense.

Also, they should not exceed three colors, incorporate lettering, or be made obsolete by any increase in the SEATO membership.

Entries should be sent directly to the Secretary-General, SEATO Headquarters, Bangkok, Thailand, in time to arrive not later than Oct. 31, 1952.

Rivals Tennis, Pool Typing Room Popular With 29th Infantry

Typing is a challenging table-top sport for troops as they relax after duty. One of the most popular innovations in the unit, the typewriters are mounted on "four-seater" typing tables.

The troops use the unique four-seater tables for the first time of its kind in an Army unit for USAI courses, homework, letters, home, and personal business.

Many men have sat down to try to peek out a letter to the girl friend for the first time.

The typewriters were obtained by Company D from the Central Post Fund in a recreational non-appropriated fund item.

Typewriters are kept busy every night by Pfc. Roy G. Wallace, an amateur saxophonist who types out orders for band arrangements for himself.

Sept. 15-22 Requested
Voters' Week in Services

Designation of the period Sept. 15-22 as "Armed Forces Voters' Week" was suggested to the governors of each of the States and Territories by Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy as a means of encouraging hand arrangements for the purpose of exercising their voting rights.

Describing the purpose of the absentee voting program—to promote greater participation in free government on local, state and national levels—Secretary McElroy said: "We need assistance in reminding parents and wives to write to their sons and husbands overseas, telling them how to type, and to learn how to type."

The secretary added: "We also need much attention directed to the Service families in this country, who are away from their home States."

Club Offers Dance Class By Gilmore

The Second Infantry Division Officers Wives' Club is sponsoring ballroom dancing lessons for boys and girls of all Divisions and Post personnel.

These ballroom classes, originally organized under the sponsorship of the Third Division Officers Wives' Club in 1956, have proved to be a great success, with two evening classes of over 40 students in each class learning the latest dance steps. This year, under the new sponsorship of the Second Infantry Division Officers Wives' Club, classes in ballroom dancing will be held Monday nights starting Sept. 8 in building 1086 located in the old hospital area.

Fifth and Sixth Graders will meet from 7 to 8 a. m., while Seventh and Eighth Graders will be instructed from 8 to 9 p. m. All Divisions and Post personnel are invited to register their children by phoning Mrs. Mariann Morales, the dance chairman, at MU 9-2427. The Fort Benning Ballet, also organized in 1956, will continue under sponsorship of the Second Division Officers Wives' Club. Ballet instruction is offered to all Divisions and Post children who are six years of age and older. Pointe work is offered only to those girls who have completed two years of basic ballet training, and who are at least ten years old.

As an added attraction, the Second Division Officers Wives' Club announces an adult class for beginning adults as well as those who have studied previously, to be held Thursday mornings from 10 to 11 a. m. All lessons are instructed by Rosalie Gilmore, whose college graduate work includes Radio City and Columbia and is enhanced by such teachers as Ted Shawn, Jose Limon and others. She has danced professionally three years in New York City, toured the United States with the Edwin Strawbridge production of "Christopher Columbus" and organized the Toledo Dance Theater in New York City under internationally famous ballet teachers and known dance lesson instructors, thereby keeping it formed as to the latest ballroom steps.

Grads Told To Prepare By Palladino

With communism and democracy meeting on every front of the world today, the U. S. Army officer must prepare himself with a combination of scientific and military knowledge, the chairman of the U. S. Army Reserve and ROTC Affairs for the Department of the Army, said Aug. 19 at Fort Benning.

Using the scientific and military blend, the officer has a tool with which he may not just lead, "but lead in the right direction." Major Gen. Ralph A. Palladino told Reserve and National Guard officer candidate class graduates of the Infantry School.

The two-star general urged the graduates to get as much education as they can since the officer's job has become more complex in today's modern Pentomic Army.

Gen. Palladino likened the proficiency of the Reserve School's training of the Reserve officers to the proficiency of training of the guards at Buckingham Palace and students at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

"You have been through the ROTC program, and you are a graduate of the Infantry School. You will be better citizens for having had the training at Fort Benning."

"The training that you have just completed is a beginning, a commencement for what is to follow," he remarked. "You will learn more as time goes by."

The need for educated young men to maintain the integrity of the Reserve forces were emphasized by the general.

The officer candidates' complete one-week course of instruction, a condensed version of the Infantry School's regular officer candidate course of 28 weeks.

Upon graduation, the Reserve officers are eligible to receive commissions, as second lieutenants from their Reserve or National Guard units.

29th Grabs Re-Up Plaque

The First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, possessor of 96 per cent Regular Army reenlistment record during the past quarter, was designated recently as custodian of the Infantry Center rotating reenlistment plaque by the First Infantry Brigade.

The brigade received the quarterly plaque for the highest percentage among major units of over an enlistment at Fort Benning for April through June.

The 29th Infantry led its parent organization during the period by reenlisting 48 out of 50 Regular Army eligibles.

Col. Lloyd B. Ramsey, former brigade commander, presented the plaque on a temporary basis to Lt. Col. Donald W. Bunte, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry commander.

Company B led the 29th during the quarter by enlisting 11 out of 12 eligibles. The enlistment non-commissioned officers of the battle group and Company B are MSGT. Louis Johnston and Sgt. William Nichols, respectively.

The First Infantry Brigade led Fort Benning major units with an overall 61.07 reenlistment mark for the quarter. The Infantry Center rotating reenlistment plaque was held by the 29th Infantry with 58.48.

The plaque was first awarded to the 29th Infantry by the War Department's Infantry Center in 1942.

The Infantry Center received it for the January-March quarter. The plaque will go permanently to the first unit on post to win it three times.

REAR OF KAYO SERV. STATION

Col. Sherrard Takes 1st Brigade Position

Col. Robert G. Sherrard Jr. assumed command of the 1st Infantry Brigade Aug. 23 at a change of command ceremony at Division Headquarters.

From January, 1951, to February, 1954, the colonel was stationed at Fort Benning during that period he served as an instructor and group chief with the Tactics Department and as a Deputy Assistant Commandant. In March, 1954, he moved to Camp Tortuga, Puerto Rico, to become commanding officer of the 7604th Air (HHC) and post commander concurrently.

Col. Sherrard is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and the Air War College, Maxwell Field, Ala.

His awards and decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, American Commendation Ribbon with Medal Pending, Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Medal, Bronze French Cross, American Campaign Medal, American Defense Medal, World War II Campaign Medal, AOM (Germany), RFK Presidential Unit Citation, Foreign Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal and UN Service Medal.

From April, 1943, to June, 1945, Col. Sherrard served in various capacities with the 4th Division at Camp Gruber, Okla., and in the European Theater of Operations. In April, 1945, he rose to chief of staff of the division.

Following V-E day, he went to the Pentagon where he served in the planning section for Headquarters, Army Service Forces, for a year and a half. He served as a member of the steering committee of the War Department's Equipment Board ("Silwell Board") at that time. Shortly thereafter, in February, 1946, the colonel attended a course in international relations at Columbia University. In late 1946 he was assigned to U. S. Army Forces Austria as Director of Civilian Supply and Military Logistics.

In July, 1954, Col. Sherrard went to Korea as a battalion commander with the 23d Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry Division. The Regiment participated in the Naktong river defense.

ABCs Differ From School Days of Old

NEW YORK (APFS) — Oh, for the good old days when kindergarten kids learned the alphabet from objects of homely reference. "A" was for apple and "C" for cat, and so on down to "Z" as in zebra.

But moppets of this missile age had better get on the ball and learn up their ballistics if they want to be with it. The space era will revolutionize the nursery as well as the college classroom, unit tomorrow's teacher's pet will be the manly little fellow who recites: "A" is for aphelion, which is that point farthest from the sun in the orbit of any member of the solar system. "C" is for conic section, or the curves generated by the intersection of a plane with cone of revolution. "Z" is for zero old buddy with the cone of revolution. And so on down to "Z." But there's our old buddy with the stripes! Well, the space age has put Zeke the Zebra out to pasture. "Z" is for zenith, the point in the celestial sphere directly overhead.

Here is just a few of the words common to satellite navigation, aerospace, astronomical, celestial mechanics, ellipse, hyperbola, perigee, perihelion and vector.

If they make your head swim be grateful for the common terms in the space-age's vocabulary — weight, work, gravity, mass and atmosphere. Do they pull you back to familiar ground? Maybe you only think they do work. For example, it's something you go looking for, and once you find it you go to it and come home from it daily. It's something you try to get out of. It's a headache.

Here's the missile meaning of work: "A measurement of the product of force exerted times the distance of displacement." Nice work if you can get it. Maybe it beats working.

Troops to Get Fresh Bread

WASHINGTON (APFS) — The Army has won another round in its running fight to spare combat troops from "iron" rations by producing an instant mix for making fresh bread in the field.

The time and labor-saving mix, developed by the Quartermaster Corps, is expected to revolutionize present methods of supplying combat units with bread, the Army said.

By substituting chemical shortening and dry flavoring materials for the usual refrigerating process in the present time required to bake bread will be cut 70 per cent with corresponding reductions in manpower and equipment.

In field operations, soldiers at present are supplied with crackers, canned bread or bread baked in a mobile bakery. Issuing troops canned bread is opposed to current logistics objectives of reducing weight and bulk because half the weight of the canned product is in the container and 35 per cent of the contents is water.

Mobile bakeries now used in the field by the Army can produce enough bread to feed 100-200 troops in an around-the-clock operation. The equipment however, runs to 50 tons; requires a force of 250 men and needs 50 vehicles to move it. There also is a problem of making deliveries to scattered units.

U.S. Launches Triton, World's Largest A-Sub

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy's mammoth, three-decked, self-subsiding submarine, Triton, a world-leading radar picket undersea craft—was launched Aug. 27 at Groton, Conn.

The largest of 33 U.S. missile-powered submarines under construction or authorized for the Navy, the 5,450-ton, twin-reactor Triton is the most recent of five A-sub's being constructed to join the Nautilus, Seawolf and Skate in the fleet.

The others being readied for commissioning are the Seward, fish, Sargo, Skipjack and Seachron.

Almost double the tonnage of the Nautilus (2,800 tons), the 427-foot-long Triton will carry a beam of 27 feet. It is the most expensive undersea vessel yet built, costing more than $100 million.

The first submarine to have three decks, to accommodate a

U. S. Needs Strong Spirit, Kiwanis Told

CHICAGO, ILL. (ANS)—Secretary of a Wm. Wilber M. Brucker warned here that to keep the United States free, Americans today need the courage symbolized by the Deerslayer of a Kiwanis Club.

Who's authors boldly laid upon the line no less than their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

Addressing the Kiwanis International Convention, U.S. Army's Secretary declared that although these are times of grave peril for America and the Free World of which we are an inseparable part, there is no fear for us to doubt our ability to preserve our liberty and our national integrity, and that we are confident of our ability to do so.

However, he added emphatically: "We must have a strong spirit of freedom successfully we must preserve the price in sacrifice."

Ranking with the development of the motel and "Alhambra" built in submarine advances, according to CDR. William T. Anderson, Nautilus skipper, the Sperry altitude recorder permits celestial navigation beneath the sea. Details of the system are classified.

The Gyrocompass compensates for "earth drift" of the gyro and rotates in opposite directions periodically to correct errors created by friction.

The NEA Autonavigator, described by the Navy as the "ultimate" in navigational aids, is an elaborate electro-mechanical device "heavy in gyro, mechanisms and electronics" that determines position (latitude and longitude), true north and speed. It operates independent of reference to any geographic point. Originally developed for the now-shelved Navaho missile, the system was modified by North American for the Navy.

Non-single navigational device or system, the Navy said, was responsible for the successful North Pole cruises. The instruments were used to cross-check against one another.

Complex Gadgets Guided Subs Through Polar Ice

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nautilus and Skate, in their epic trans-Polar demonstrations of the strategic impact of nuclear submarines, were guided by the most complex navigational equipment ever assembled for an undersea venture.

In addition to standard gyrocompasses, navigation aids in the ocean-to-ocean undersea explorations included: Automatic depth and course-keeping controls, a "celestial altimeter" unique, aircraft-type Gyrocompass system especially designed for the Polar region—all developed by Sperry Gyroscopic Co.

The NEA Autonavigator, an inertial system perfected for combatant ships by the Autonavigator division of North American Aviation, Inc., is a "vanguard" compass, designed by Bendix Corp. and used to check positions by gravitational lines.

The automatic depth and course controls enable the A-

Want Letter Postmarked Antarctic?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Covering of the Antarctic is postmarked at the Antarctic.

According to a Navy announcement, the post office at Byrd and South Pole will perform this service if you comply with a few simple rules.

Only one cover (piece of mail) may be submitted for postmarking at each station.

Covers must be addressed to intended recipients and bear U.S. postage stamps or be accompanied by International Reply Coupons to facilitate return postage.

Those addressed for delivery in the U.S. must bear the new four-cent airmail postage rate.

The covers must be enclosed in an envelope addressed to: Deep Freeze Philatelic Mail, Construction Mail Center, Davisville, R. I.

On the lower left-hand corner of the cover inside the postmark desired, either Byrd or South Pole station.

Covers must be mailed in time to reach Davisville before Sept. 15, 1958.

Service in Antarctica is suspended from March to October each year when the continent is isolated.

DUAL ROLE

Patrick Kirwan has a dual role in the Rank Organization's Irish comedy, "Rooney," to play off. Kirwan is the script for the motion picture which stars Barry Fitzgerald, John Culligan and Daniel O'Keefe. Secondly, Kirwan makes a brief appearance in the film—that of a man in a casting gown who likes his wife. Kirwan has always managed to secure a small role in all of his films.

Surgeon's Corner Bare Feet Occasion Sand Worm Trouble

During the summer months Martin Army Hospital pediatricians have seen a disturbing number of small children who have become infected with "sand worms," causing bare footed, itchy, or itchy lesions known by many names. But the most common is "Creeping Eruption." The sand worms are the infective larvae of dog and cat hookworms that enter into the skin of the victim.

Both wild and domestic animals constitute the normal reservoir host of this parasite, which is a small, worm-like creature, known by the name Ancylostoma Braziliense. The eggs of this worm are passed in the animal's stools and contaminate moist sandy soil where under-actaria migrate.

Lesions are produced by the migrations of the larvae in the skin. They develop within a few days after infection and they may persist for weeks or months. A typical case exhibits a narrow raised line of redness which advances at one cent for a few millimeters each day. Meanwhile the older part of the line gradually fades and disappears. This type of lesion is called creeping eruption or sandworm.

The lesions may be single, few or numerous and they may appear on any part of the body which has come in contact with damp soil containing infective larvae in the infection stage. They are intensely itchy (itching) and may cause usually the chief epidemic focus of loss of sleep, appetite, weight loss and secondary infections from sand boxes, sand piles, and scratching.

First Trials End For Sub Sargo

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—Sargo, the Navy's fourth operational nuclear powered sub, completed builders' trials in the Pacific early in August.

The Sargo, being built at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, near San Francisco, Calif., is the first atomic submarine to be constructed on the West Coast.

Officials at Mare Island reported the trials a success and announced that the boat would be commissioned about October 1.

Two Civilians Given $300 for Top Work

Two civilian employees at Fort Benning have received $300 in cash awards for sustained superior performance of duties and two soldiers have been presented suggestion award certificates for work improvement ideas.

Mrs. Janet H. Rouillard, secretary in the Allied Liaison Office of the Infantry School, received an outstanding job rating and $100 for sustained superior performance of duties from March, 1957, to March 31, 1958.

Miss Alice V. Wheeler, editorial clerk, Infantry School, was a part of a Department, was awarded $200 and an outstanding job rating for sustained superior performance of duties from February, 1957, to Jan. 31, 1958.

Second Lt. George R. Galuska, special services officer at the School Brigade, was presented a suggestion award certificate for proposing that a form to be used in preparing officers' efficiency reports.

Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larson, assistant quartermaster of the Infantry School, who presented the awards, expressed special appreciation to Sgt. Hobson for his suggestion and expressed the desire that all soldiers of Fort Benning would follow his example by submitting suggestions for work improvement ideas.

Succeeds Col. Sogard Col. James Assumes Board President Job

Col. Edward B. James has assumed the duties of president of the Physical Evaluation Board at Fort Benning. He succeeds Col. Sidney S. Sogard who retired from the Army July 31 following more than 26 years' military service. Col. James comes to the post following a three-year tour in Karlsruhe, Germany, as chief of the Historical Division of U.S. Army Europe.

A 1925 graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, he received a master's degree in education from the University of Tennessee. He was in administration from that institution in 1927. After coaching and teaching in Perry County (Ala.) school system from 1927 to 1934, Col. James served on the faculty of Ma-

He was chief of the Officers' Branch of the Fort Monmouth (N.J.) Separation Center until leaving active duty in May, 1946.

Col. James directed the Veterans Administration training program at Alabama Polytechnic Institute from May, 1946, until re-entering active service in June, 1947.

After nine months with the Enlisted Men's Branch of the Adjutant General's Section, Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., he went to Guam for a 22-month assignment as chief of Military Personnel of the Adjutant General's Division, Marianas-Bonin Islands Command.

He was adjutant general of the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., from January, 1950, to June, 1951.

Col. James next served on the staff and faculty of the Adjutant General's School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for two and one-half years. From October, 1953, until going to Germany in August, 1955, he was director of personnel for the Chemical Corps Training Command at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Col. and Mrs. James, the former Mabel Pointer de Catur, have two children, Edward, Jr., 18, who will be a freshman at Alabama Polytechnic Institute this fall, and Susan, 12.

SENATOR IN HALL OF FAME . . . Major Gen. J. H. Michaelis, left, chief of legislative liaison, presents an Infantry Hall of Fame certificate to Gen. Frank Church of Idaho. The certificate states that he has been selected for the Infantry Officers Candidate School Hall of Fame. The ceremony was held at the Capitol, Washington, D.C.

Post Oriens Ecuadorian Army Party

Col. N. A. Chiriboga Donoso, sub-director of the Ecuadorian Army War College, arrived at Fort Benning Aug. 24 for an orientation and view of Infantry School activities. During their stay they conferred with Brig. Gen. John F. Ruzicka, deputy commander in chief of the Infantry Center.

Col. Graham Named Third Army Surgeon

Col. W. D. Graham, president of the last graduating class at the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., was named to his new duties as Third Army Surgeon.

Col. Graham will direct Army medical activities for Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama and part of Kentucky.

He succeeds Col. Thair C. Beck, who was transferred to Europe.

Col. Graham was Post Surgeon and U.S. Army Hospital Commander at Fort Jackson, S.C. before his appointment to the War College last year. His other assignments have included England, the Canal Zone and Washington, D.C.

Col. Graham is a Fellow of the American College of Physicians, a Fellow of the American College of Hospital Administrators, and past president of the Medical Association of the Indian "Canal Zone, the equivalent of a state medical association.

One of his first acts as Third Army surgeon was to attend a conference on space medicine with Army and Navy experts, including Army Surgeon General, Major Gen. S. B. Hays, at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.

Col. Graham was born in Birmingham, England. When he was 10 years old, his family moved to St. Paul, Minn. He received his M. D. degree from the University of Minnesota in 1926 and served in the University of Indiana Hospital in Indianapolis, and practiced at Hanska, Minn.

In 1928, Graham went on duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps. A year later he officially entered the Army at Fort Riley, Kan.

He served twice in the Canal Zone, at Gomez and handled him as 42, and as commander of the Fort Clayton Army Hospital, 1943-45.

He received the Oak Leaf Cluster for the Commendation Ribbon for his work at Fort Clayton, the key hospital in the Canal Zone.

From 1944 to 1944 Col. Graham was executive officer of Atlanta's Lawson General Hospital, which has since become a Veterans Administration Hospital.

In 1944 he returned to England to command the General Hospital at Salisbury. The hospital had its own landing strip and its own wounded soldiers direct from the continent.

It was one of five permanent hospitals built by the British for emergency medical service during the Blitz, and taken over by the United States during the pre-D-Day period. It was operated as a neurosurgical center.

After the war Col. Graham became surgeon of the United Kingdom base and worked in closing down remaining hospitals and providing more than 50,000 war brides and their children, who were headed for the United States.

He received the Legion of Merit for his wartime work in England and the Commendation Ribbon for his postwar efforts.

Col. Graham went to the Office of the Surgeon General in Washington in 1946. He served there as Deputy Chief and later Chief of the Hospital Division.

In 1949 he was his Masters' degree in public health from the University of California.

M-Sgt. Helps Pick Future Leaders at NCO Academy

FORT MEADE, Md. (ANP)—If sergeants are the backbone of the Army, then M-Sgt. William T. Turner is one of the most important vertebrates. Turner is operations sergeant and assistant administrator to the commandant of the Non-Commissioned Officers' Academy here. He is a veteran of 22 years service, peacetime army structure and leadership. Before and during the four-week course every student and instructor comes to know the soft-spoken Turner who is very articulate on his enthusiasm—leadership.

He gets the first crack at interviewing prospective students before the class and he has already met the school's requirements. "Appearance, voice and how a man acts and handles himself are important," says Turner, "because if a man can't handle himself, he probably won't be able to handle anyone else."

For Turner the candidates pass on to Capt. Robert H. Simms, commandant, who has the final say on their acceptability.

Turner is equally insistent on high standards among instructors. Potential instructors

'Big Red One' Brings STRAC Top Record

FORT HILEY, Kans. (ANP)—Four decades of memories of World War II saw the First Veterans and members of the First Infantry Division met in reunion in Los Angeles.

With the talk of battles won and won, there was a lot of the newest mission of the Army's warhorse of two wars—the assignment of the First to STRAC — the Strategic Army Corps — tagged Sillied Tough, Ready Around the Clock.

The First, along with the Fourth Infantry Division and 22nd and 101st Airborne Divisions, has been selected as part of the specialty-ill-fort force to deal with limited wars and to move promptly to potential trouble spots anywhere in the world.

An assignment like this is not new to the "Big Red One." It was created in France on June 8, 1917, as the First Expeditionary Division.

"The first 'first' in action for the division was on May 29, 1918, when it took Cantigny in the first American action on a division level in World War I, then held the town despite a

Awards Go To 4 Groups

Four Fort Benning organizations have been awarded certificates of achievement for outstanding safety records. The organizations that won the First Airborne Battle Group, 25th Infantry, Infantry Center Engineer Section, First Infantry Brigade and the 15th Finance Disbursing Section. The 25th Infantry and Engineer Section were cited for the greatest net reductions over the target rate objective. The 15th Infantry's certificate was forwarded to Fort Bragg, N.C., for presentation by its parent unit, the 2nd Airborne Division.

The First Infantry Brigade earned an award for having reduced the non-Army motor vehicle accident rate by 78 per cent during the past six months over the preceding six months.

Cited for its accident-free record over the past three years was the 15th Finance Disbursing Section of the Infantry Center.

ONE OF THOSE THINGS A Ft. Knox, Ky., woman celebrated her 100th birthday by perching atop an Army tank, saying: "It's just one of those things I've always wanted to do."

TARGETS FORM It is only when invading forces pile up against the barriers of Army tactical formations on the ground that military targets begin to form.

BEST GIRL DRIVER . . . First place trophy in the Girls Division of the teenage drivers "Road-go" at Fort Benning's French Field Aug. 16 went to Sandy Etkman, left, daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. B. Etkman. Presenting the trophy is Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center.

Sgt. Devises Way to Halt Sliding Specs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raise a glass to salute a certain sergeant—Walter Reed Army Medical Center, here. Raise a pair of them — if you can't get them — if you can't get them. For Sgt. Cecil T. Butler has solved the problem of slipping and sliding spectacles.

Butler's military job is making artificial dentures. He figured that if false teeth could be technically inspected, so could glasses. His method: Take a plaster cast impression of the face behind the wearer's ear; then make a mold from the plaster and pour in a hard

The result, says Butler, is an ear piece which fits snugly, comfortably and immovably over and behind the ear. He guarantees that the wearer can stop, skip, jump or engage in any outdoor activity without his glasses slipping.

Immediate Benefits Listed Upon Army Re-Enlistment

Wondering about immediate benefits to be gained by re-enlistment in the United States Army? Here they are: First and foremost is the continuation of an honorable career as a guardian of the peace and security of the United States of America. With out a highly-trained, dedicated force of Regular Army personnel this peace and security would be in immediate jeopardy. The theme of the American way today is "POWER FOR PEACE."

You may re-enlist within a 90-day period and retain your former grade, but in order to fill your own vacancy you must re-enlist within 20 days of the same installation from which discharged. Re-enlistment during this 20-day period also qualifies you for some form of re-enlistment bonus. You may choose between the new bonus payable under Public Law 556, July, 1954, the Career Compensation Act, 1949, or a few may still be authorized payment under the Pre-1949 Enlistment Allowance Plan.

Let's discuss these plans. If you are authorized payment under the Enlistment Allowance Plan you will receive payment for the years of completed service for which you have been discharged, under the Career Compensation Act, 1949 you receive payment in accordance with the number of years for which you re-enlist up to a maximum of $1,440 and under Public Law 556 you receive payment for the number of years for which you re-enlist in accordance with the following formula: up to 20 years or $2,000 whichever comes first.

For a first re-enlistment you would receive one full month's basic pay, in the grade in which you were discharged, for each year of your re-enlistment period. For a second re-enlistment you receive two-thirds of one month's basic pay for each year and for a fourth re-enlistment one-sixth of one month's pay for each year.

In addition you are authorized to receive one-third of one month's basic pay for each year and for a fourth re-enlistment one-sixth of one month's pay for each year.

NATO's Ground Force

South Europe Defended By Men, Mules, Missiles
VERONA, Italy (ANP) — Men, mules and missiles — NATO's plans for the ground defense of Southern Europe call for the employment of all these.

Italy furnishes most of the men and the mules. The Army has the missiles and rockets — Corporals and Honest Joes.

Even in today's era of satellites and missiles, man and the mule play a traditional but indispensable role in the mountainous terrain of northern Italy where allied divisions and American Army units operate under NATO's Allied Land Forces Southern Europe (LandSouth).

This polylog command, possessing atomic capabilities, is headed by Italian Gen. Alessandro Albert. His headquarters, where Home Guard units serve as a nerve center for ground forces committed to NATO in the Italian area.

The staff includes soldiers from France, Greece, Turkey, Italy, the United Kingdom, and the U.S. They coordinate defensive plans with air and sea forces of other NATO activities based in Italy, Greece and Turkey.

Verona is not only the headquarters of LandSouth, it is also the command post of American Major Gen. Harvey H. Fischer's 602nd Airborne Division of "Army of Tomorrow". SETAP, the Southern European Task Force is the artillery support unit equipped with Corporals and Honest Joes.

Hear and See' Plan Saves New System Developed For Plane Maintenance

In the search for faster procedures in accomplishing maintenance of aircraft without sacrificing quality control, Fort Benning has developed "hear and see" systems which have resulted in a saving of more than $4,000 maintenance in only five months.

The first system is a new method of inspecting drive shafts, stripping drive shafts and re-installing. The solution came in the form of a portable X-Ray machine made in Denmark and borrowed from the Atlanta General Depot.

The maintenance crew proceeded to X-ray each rotor drive shaft. To accomplish a satisfactory result, two pictures were taken 90 degrees apart to receive a cross-section view. These pictures were taken with the drive shaft installed in the helicopter.

Shots through tail rotor portable X-ray unit, distributed by Picker X-ray Corp., of White Plains, N. Y., will show completely through the full rotor pylon of an aircraft.

Developing the X-ray film is a simple matter and interpretation of the negative is no problem to personnel familiar with aircraft maintenance.

The machine sells for approximately $8,000 and, according to maintenance personnel, that amount was saved on the inspections.

The X-ray method saved an average of seven days and a crew of three mechanics per aircraft possible detection of hidden fatigue cracks, which would have been missed by the old method.

The field maintenance section at Fort Benning has a support mission of 180 aircraft, including active Army units, attached stations, Reserve and National Guard aviation units.

In programming a workload of this magnitude with 60 direct-labor personnel, the section is constantly looking for new methods to get the job done faster.

The new "see and hear" systems of inspection were developed under the supervision of Capt. Theo C. Watkins, field maintenance officer, and SFC Patrick E. Pettigall, chief of inspection.

Reduced Time
When several F34 helicopters became due for inspections at approximately the same time due to mission demands and inability to stage flight time, aircraft maintenance personnel decided that something should be done to

Weather Observed By Air Force Station

Even though they may not be able to do anything about the weather, the personnel of Detachment 6, 751st Weather Squadron are constantly observing it and reporting their findings to interested agencies.

The station, an Air Force installation, has the mission of analyzing Lawson pilots and transmits military aircraft of weather conditions which might affect flying.

In addition to this, the station furnishes other weather data regarding climatology conditions in this area. Additional missions consist of providing warnings of severe weather conditions which might affect ground installations in the area, and furnishing a general planning forecast to aid in the scheduling of training problems by the Infantry School.

L. AIRMAN 2ND CLASS CLYDE KILGORE, CAPT. CHARLES DUNN CHECK TELETYPE R. FORECASTER T-SGT. TOM REED USES RADAR STORM DETECTOR TO SCAN SKIES FOR SEVERE WEATHER

Some of the things that they are interested in are the height of the clouds over the field, visibility, temperature, humidity, air pressure, and surface wind direction and speed. During severe weather conditions, the station co-ordinates with the U.S. Weather Bureau in Columbus, so that the two can provide better storm information.

In addition to the standard rain gauge, used to measure the amount of rainfall, and the standard wind recorder and thermometer, they have many other pieces of equipment that the average person probably knows very little about.

The ceilometer is an example of this. The 20 million watt light that shines straight up and is believed by many to be a beacon, is used to determine cloud height. A machine tells the angle at which the light bounces off the clouds and using the angle they can tell the altitude of the clouds. Humidity is measured with a psychrometer. There is also the

Senator Backs Voting Drive For Services

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Support for the Defense Department drive to establish Armed Forces Voters Week during wide Sept. 15-22 has been written into the Congressional Record by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.).

Speaking from the Senate floor on Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy's move to spur servicemen to cast ballots, the ranking minority member of the Armed Services Committee called on all citizens and elected officials to encourage military families to vote in federal and state elections.

In backing the Defense voting program, Sen. Saltonstall said, "A democracy depends for its vitality on the continued existence of an enlightened and active electorate."

Army Says VTOL Flight Successful

WASHINGTON (APFS)—The first transition flight of a tilt-wing VTOL (vertical take-off and landing) research aircraft, Model 76, has been successful, the Army has announced.

Developed for the Army by the Vertol Aircraft Corp., Montreal, Pa., under contract with the Office of Naval Research, Model 76 recently took off in a hover and flew through transition to forward flight for the full length of a 7,500-foot runway before returning to hover for landing.

The aircraft is part of the VTOL research program to develop a flying machine combining the high speed forward flight of the airplane with the vertical flight capabilities of the helicopter.

Band Begins Rolling Along On '58 Trail

NEW YORK (APFS)—The latest Army musical to be launched is a real "big-sister" "Rolling Along for 1958," the all-soldier musical, got off the ground Aug. 18 in a preview at Fort Jay, N.Y., prior to an itinerary of over 200 performances in the states of California, Alaska, Europe, the Pacific and the Caribbean.

The 32-man cast puts the accent on youth; its members are all in the 19-26 age group, but all have had professional show business experience. They represent the top-flight acts in the fourth annual All-Army Entertainment Competition, held at Fort Belvoir, Va., last June.

Typical nature of this year's act is evident in its distinctive tunes, "Blat Off" and the titles of its various scenes—"Terra Firma," "Swinging Up," "Columbia Cruise," "Space Station" and "Return Orbit."

Book and music for this latest "Rolling Along" are by Leonard Kobrick, former conductor and arranger at New York's Latin Quarter. The present production is under direction by Ernestine Mercer, also of the Latin Quarter.

The tour will include an ocean-hopping road until April, 1959.

Services Set Fewer Shots

WASHINGTON (APFS)—If you are a serviceman who turns a pale green at the mere mention of a hypodermic needle, then this story is for you.

The services have announced plans to reduce the size and frequency of some immunization booster shots, in new regulations which put into effect a "revoked" immunization program for the Armed Forces.

Under the old system typhoid-paratyphoid practices called for a booster shot every three years. Now, only two booster shots, given at four-year intervals, will be given to those who remain in the U.S., Canada, Alaska and Hawaii.

(Thank You For Continuing) Person pitching. Doughboys were damped by Fort McPherson 11-2 Aug. 19. The Colonels, aided by seven Fort Benning misuses, piled 14 hits on three Doughboy hurlers. Fort Benning's Al Gargallo kept the Colonels fairly well in check for seven innings, but it was the eventual eighth that decided the game. The Fort McPherson team exploded in that inning with a nine-run attack that led away the game for them.

Fort Benning was first to break into the scoring column in the third inning when Tony Harris, who got on base via a passed ball, scored on Steve Patarski's double to right field. The Doughboys quickly made it two-up over the colonels on Don Swan's single in the fifth frame, bringing in Patarski, who had walked to open the inning and had gone to second on a sacrifice by Gargallo.

In the sixth inning, Fort McPherson put together an earned run and an unearned run to match Fort Benning 2-2.

The first pitch from Gargallo in the sixth hit batter Andy Madalone. After John Russo popped up to the catcher, Jim Siewart, behind the plate, Gordon Coleman sacrificed Madalone to second.

Madalone touched home plate on Jerry Williams' single to left and an error by the Doughboys' left fielder, Don Swan, who overthrew the ball at home plate in an attempt to get Madalone.

Williams raced around to third on the throw and romped across the plate with the second run on Martin Breeding's single to short left field.

The hectic eighth inning saw a Fort Benning parade of three pitchers march to the mound to try to stop the onslaught of runs and hits by the Colonels. In this inning, the Colonels battered around twice.

Donations of $1 per tournament entry will be accepted when applications are made. These donations will sponsor and also refund the fee held the first day of the tournament, Sept. 6, in the Corridor Room at 7 p.m.

All entries must be turned in to the Pro Shop by 7 p.m. Openings will be held Sept. 4. All players and other persons interested are invited to the matches and trophy awards which will take place immediately following the final round.

Kirsten Jarrett

Post Youth Seeking Columbus Net Titles

Kirsten Jarrett, 16-year-old daughter of Col. and Mrs. Paul J. Jarrett, has stroked her way into opposition for a triple crown today in the Columbus City Tennis Tournament.

Earlier in the tournament despite recovering from an ear infection she contracted while swimming her second favorite sport, Kirsten finished with one perfect record in the Girl's Round Robin Play Division without a single defeat. She was her final match in the Girls Division Aug. 16 and the finale in all other divisions were scheduled for Aug. 17.

Matches postponed. However, bad weather for the past two Sundays postponed the final matches until today at Lakelotom Municipal Courts on 19th Street, Columbus.

Kirsten's play so far, in addition to becoming girls champion, has won her a berth in the finals of both the Women's Singles Division and a second with Sfc. Terry Scott, she will meet Major and Mrs. Robert McClung for the Doubled Deuces Division crown.

Kirsten began playing tennis in Honolulu, Hawaii, in the sixth grade. Later on her return to the U.S. she took lessons while living in Berkeley, Calif. A little over a year ago after her arrival at Fort Benning, her game really began to improve. She attended the dependents

Accuracy Trademark Weapons Designed By Expert at AMU

CHIEF PERRY, Ohio—"It's got the whole match in his hand." That's how an Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit pistol shooter feels when he is on the firing line. He has that feeling because he knows his gun is accurate. The AMU gunsmith, whose trademark is accuracy, has been with the unit since 1955. But his knowledge of guns goes back as far as he can remember.

"I've always liked guns," says Perry, the self-proclaimed "Squid" of the AMU. "I guess I've tinkered with them in one way or another all my life." But he didn't really get past the hobby stage until he began shooting pistols himself. That is when he got interested in accuracy and that is where his major contribution to the AMU marksmanship program lies.

"Nobody seemed to know anything about accuracy," Perry said. "So I brought my own pistol accuracy that I recognized by some of the United States foremost gunsmiths."

His "inking" led him to fashion special accuracy tools and to devise a method to prove pistol accuracy that he recognized by some of the United States foremost gunsmiths.

He even built a machine to gauge the accuracy of a pistol and to test its ammunition. He claims this accuracy device simulates as closely as possible the conditions under which a shooter fires a round.

Pistolers Take 3 of 5 First Places in Match

Army United Marksmanship Unit Pistol Team of Fort Benning took four of the top five places in the first round of the 25-meter rapid fire event at the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

8 Officers Receive New Positions Here

Eight officers from the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, were reassigned to positions in The Infantry School and The Infantry Center between Aug. 15-20. Four captains and three company executive officers were included.

A sixth officer from the First Battle Group is expected to be assigned here on Sept. 1.

Five of the officers were assigned to the 29th Infantry and began the 25-day instructor training course on Aug. 15. Two were reassigned to The Infantry Center and one was sent to The School Brigade.

First Lt. Charles G. Oerter, Company A, and First Lt. Robert H. Bender, Company D, were newly appointed as executive officers of 28th units. Reassigned to the Weapons Department of The Infantry School were 1st Lt. Desmond D. Dewey, former executive officer of Headquarters Company; Leonard R. Ketcham, former executive officer of Company D; and Richard E. Rahn, Jr., former Company A platoon leader.

Capt. Eugene Pignault, former assistant plans, training, and operations officer of the battle group, and 1st Lt. Herman L. Wade, former executive officer of Company A, were reassigned to the Ranger Department.

Capt. Claude T. Tubert, former acting adjutant, was reassigned to the Protocol Division of The Infantry Center, assigned formerly to the plans, training, and operations section, was sent to TIC G2 division.

Capt. Raymond E. Price, assigned to plans, training, and operations section, was reassigned to The School Brigade.

First Lt. Gerald F. Alexander, executive officer of Headquarters Company D, and Richard E. Rahn, Jr., is expected to be reassigned to the Ground Mobility Department of The Infantry Center within two weeks.

Headquarters Company Major Henry I. Hodges, a two-time winner of the Silver Star, joined the 29th for two weeks active duty and was assigned to the plans, training, and operations section of the 29th Infantry. He received the Silver Stars and Purple Heart as a platoon leader in the 3rd Tank Battalion, 28th Infantry Division, in Europe during World War II. In civilian life, he operated a medical supply business in Miami, Fla.

Sgt. Clifton Collins was selected as the battle group operations officer last week. He was selected on the basis of military bearing and courtesy, and general military knowledge.

Sgt. Robert L. Dickerson, and Sgt. Frank F. Flannery and James W. Heisterbrun are on orders for assignments in Europe.

Sgt. Paul Chelko and his wife, the former Barbara Hochstein, are honeymooning at Palm Beach, Fla.

Company A Second Lt. Sidney K. Teel, from the Alabama Military District, joined the company for 15 days active duty.

Receiving reassignment orders were Roger D. Huber, Europe; John P. Batts, Ranger Department; and James W. Cross, The Infantry Center military police company.

Welcome to the unit were Sgts. Scott Nang and S-Sgt. Wilford Pearce.

Sgt. Victor Jones is the father of a new son born last week at Martin Army Hospital, Company B.

Capt. James J. De Frates has returned from a 15-day leave spent in Oklahoma.

First Lt. Vincent Terrana received a silver bar last week. 2nd Lt. Gordon Turner is performing 15 days active duty at Martin Army Hospital.

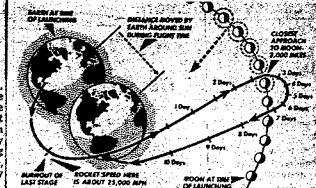

Sgt. Richard Starr married the former Shirley Ann Dungan, Gainesville, Fla. They spent a honeymoon in Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D.C.

Sic. Robert G. Walden and Pfc. Cling Brown, recruited for three-year terms last week.

Company C Returning from leaves were S-Sgt. Harlan T. Hoover, and Sp4s Frank D. Roussis and Charles J. McDonald.

Sic. John L. Montgomery has been reinstated to fill his own vacancy.

Group Meets For PW Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Joint Civilian-Military Committee on Prisoners of War met here recently in what may be its final session.

Charles C. Finocane, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower Personnel and Reserve), presided at the session as chairman.

Appointed by the Secretary of Defense in 1955, the committee's main purpose has been to indoctrinate members of the Armed Forces with a "simple, easily understood code to govern his conduct while a prisoner of war."

At the recent meeting of the committee, reports and discussions on various phases of the prisoner of war program, and its accomplishments.

In its first report about three years ago, the committee recommended both a standard and a training program. The standard, approved by the President, has become widely known as the Code of Conduct.

Army Says GIs Liable For Feet

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's a soldier's responsibility to keep his feet healthy at all times.

An article in a recent military medical journal points out that even in this age of antibiotics, warfare, the need remains to maintain proper foot health.

Frostbite, dermatological ailments, and foot injuries due to accidents, the article said, are the cause of many Army casualties. An estimated 90,000 cases of foot injuries due to cold were reported during WWII.

The Army has done its share to keep soldiers' feet healthy. One of the most comprehensive studies on shoes ever made in this country was begun in 1928 when the War Department appointed a board to study causes and cure of foot diseases of the foot.

The board's conclusions were published in 1937 by the Army Medical Department, Manassas, Md., who devised the "Munsion last" worn by soldiers in three ways.

Sgts. 'Create' At Huntsville

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—They'll never make a million-dollar building a better mousetrap, but a couple of old-time Regular Army sergeants here are helping to build better missiles.

After some of the nation's greatest scientists, who in 11 1/2 months drew the plans, it's up to Jack P. Marshall to get some of the paper turned into metal. He does this job with the help of a dozen other crack soldier metalworkers, machinists, and welders in the Test Laboratory Shop of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency here.

"It's a job in which it's not so much to create something," is the way the former artillery first sergeant explains his pride in his work. "It's only a small part of ABMA's missile testing work, but I sure feel that I'm making some kind of contribution in a broad new field," chimed in Marshall's colleague, S-Sgt. Edgar Marshall.

Marshall and Robison are among the small group of expert Army NCOs here building equipment for tests. The products of their hands and lathes range from missile models to equipment for food and survival cages that carried the rodent in flight. At bottom left is Wickie's home inside the missile's nose cone and at right, Capt. C. E. Griffith points to radio beacon and ballroom used to locate nose cone in the ocean after re-entry.

WICKIE... That is the name of the white mouse, upper left, that rode a Thor Able rocket into outer space July 23. At top right is dehydrated mouse food and survival cage that carried the rodent in flight. At bottom left is Wickie's home inside the missile's nose cone and at right, Capt. C. E. Fernandez Honored With Ribbon, Pendant

First Student Battalion and now makes his home in Jacksonville, Fla. The commendation ribbon with medal pendant was received by Capt. Victor M. Fernandez in Associate Advanced Course No. 2 recently for his efforts at the Panamerican meeting held at Panama City, Panama, in 1956. The meeting was attended by President Eisenhower and included many of the heads of Central and South American governments.

Capt. Fernandez, as commanding officer of the 546th Transportation Company, Fort Amador, Canal Zone, was responsible for furnishing a great deal of the necessary transportation for the meeting. Capt. Fernandez, a native of Cayey, Puerto Rico, has been in the Army for 15 and one-half years.

Contracts Total 58,700 Units Under Capehart
WASHINGTON (APPS) - Contracts for more than 58,700 homes for military and key civilian personnel have been awarded during the three years of the Capehart military housing program, the Defense Department has announced.
Projects containing 11,796 housing units have already been completed since the program was initiated in Aug. 1955, the announcement said.
In addition to providing urgently needed housing, the announcement stated, the program is giving employment to many construction workers and is putting life mortgage money to work.

Planes Powered By Turbo-Prop

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Procurement of the Mohawk, one of the largest fixed-wing airplanes to enter Army service and the first to use turbo-prop power, has been authorized, the Department of the Army has announced.

Nine prototype models of the new aircraft are being built by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. under a $20 million contract awarded last April. The twin motor Mohawk has a maximum flight speed of about 280 mph, a stall speed of 60 mph, and will be able to take off and land in relatively the same short distance and time as the Army's present light planes. It is designed to operate from unimproved fields and will be used primarily as an observation plane.

19 Div. Soldiers Receive Commendation Ribbons

Nineteen members of the Second Infantry Division have been awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon with postal pendant during the past week. Division Headquarters announced today.

The commendations were given for meritorious service with the 19th Infantry Division during its Gyrocopter tour in Germany.

Those receiving the awards are: Major Fred W. Hill, Capt. Wayne Robinson, Capt. Oliver J. Williford III, Lt. Calvin T. Smith and Sps Alfred Walther, all of Headquarters Company, 8th Infantry.

M-Sgt. Floyd L. Dye, M-Sgt. Billy Newell, Sgt. Roy Greer, and Sfc. Vasilav B. Kadlec, Capt. Robert C. Kendrick, Capt. Alton B. Moore, Capt.

C.G. Addresses Division Cooks

Food service personnel being commended by the Second Infantry Division. Major Gen. R. H. Wiencek, in an address to the Mess Officers and Stewards at their conference Aug. 15 in the 8th Infantry, Quartermaster's New Orleans Hall.

Fielding his full support of the food service program, Gen. Wiencek told the meeting that the division was fortunate in having so many qualified mess officers and stewards, and he emphasized the importance of "expert" supervision.

The commanding general introduced to the group by Lt. Col. Charles R. Scherer, Second Infantry Division Quartermaster.

Payday Aug. 30 EM Advised to Guard Against Holiday Hazards

With payday for the Second Infantry Division scheduled so that the soldiers of the Individualized Division will have their pay prior to the Labor Day holiday, Major Gen. R. H. Wiencek, commander, has cautioned that all soldiers are on the honor system for safety.

Gen. Wiencek made the announcement that payroll of the division would be ready on the morning of Aug. 30, when he toured division units to address the occupational safety of every soldier.

Safety, the general emphasized, is everybody's business. "I have no intention of penalizing the many for the very few who disregard safety as a regulation," Gen. Wiencek said.

"However," the general pointed out, "the responsibility of every soldier to inform their men of the necessity of adhering to rules and regulations aimed at reducing injury to themselves and others. It is the responsibility of every soldier to practice safety at all times."

2nd Division Promotes 23 NCOs to Grade E-8

Twenty-three E-7s of the Second Infantry Division were promoted to the new pay grade of E-8 at ceremonies held in the War Room at Division Headquarters Aug. 27.

Orders promoting the key non-commissioned officers were presented by the Second Division commander, Major Gen. R. H. Wiencek.

Presented as E-8 as matter of course during the period of Aug. 25 to Nov. 7.

Lt. Col. Noel L. Orr, assistant chief of staff, C.G., will serve as chairman for the campaign and Capt. Thomas V. Valente has been named Division project officer.

Div. Review Honors Assistant Army Sec.

Review of the Second Infantry Division passed in review Aug. 22, welcoming to the Division George H. Roderick, assistant secretary of Army for finance and management. The review was staged at the Headquarters, Second Infantry Division, Fort Benning.

Trooping the line with the Army secretary was the host commander, Major Gen. R. H. Wiencek, Second Infantry Division Commander, and Army comptroller, Lt. Gen. William S. Lawton.

Ceremonies began with the firing of a 75-mm salute by a battery of 100mm howitzers from Division Artillery.

The review was presided over by a battery of 100mm howitzers from Division Artillery.

Following ceremonies, Roderick and his party visited with the staff of the division. The assistant secretary's itinerary included an escorted tour of the Indianhead Division museum, which presently is being prepared for formal opening on Sept. 2.

Here, Roderick and his party viewed the hundreds of trophies and mementos that the historic division brought back from the campaigns of the Korean War. The review was accompanied on his visit to the Second Division by Lt. Gen. Lawton, Thomas A. Janney Jr., and other officials of the office of the assistant secretary of Army.

Div. to Issue Pay Vouchers To All Soon

The Second Division Finance Officer, Major Hugh S. McLaughlin, has indicated that there will be an individual pay record check and a new pay voucher inaugurated soon.

All individuals will be given the opportunity in September to personally check their pay records with finance personnel to determine existing errors.

Plans have been made for January, 1959, to put a new type pay voucher in use. Each time a soldier is paid, he will be given a copy of this voucher which will indicate all pay items, deductions, and allowances.

Major McLaughlin stated that this should satisfy any requirement for a pay voucher. The review project officer.

Division Launches Welfare Fund Drive

The Second Infantry Division will launch a Community Activities Association "Fund Drive" during the period of Aug. 25 to Nov. 7.

Lt. Col. Noel L. Orr, assistant chief of staff, C.G., will serve as chairman for the campaign and Capt. Thomas V. Valente has been named Division project officer.

151st Engineer News EM at 647th Go 811 Days Without AWOL

67th Company
As of Aug. 20, the enlisted men of the 67th Engineer Company (Camouflage) continued compilation of an outstanding record with 811 consecutive days without AWOL's, 197 days without DR's, and 333 days without accidents. Contributing factors to these noteworthy accomplishments are the interest each NCO takes in his men and the high morale of the NCO's and EM alike, who unflinchingly strive to keep the 67th "The Best of 114 Camoufleurs".

69th Co.
Under the supervision of 2nd Lt. Hilman L. Erickson, project officer, Company A, assumed the job of completing construction of Shoulder Training Range, New firing lines, targets and target lines, footlocks, target dials, and latrines are required in order to complete the range. Completion date for Station Range is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 15.

Company A recently returned from a 40-day deployment where they reconstructed five ranges for the Second Infantry Division.

Second Lt. John W. Buswell Jr. has been assigned to B Company with primary duty as a platoon leader. Lt. Buswell, who hails from Cincinnati, Ohio, joined the Battalion from Fort Belvoir, where he recently completed the Engineer Officer Basic Course. Lt. Buswell, who is a Mechanical Engineer by profession, attended high school in Amarillo, Tex., and received his college education at Oregon State College and Texas Tech. Prior to entering the Army, Lt. Buswell lived and worked in Foley, Fla.

On July 28, Company C, assumed the responsibility of completing Simpson Range. The range was initially the project of the 57th Engineer Battalion (Construction), but the 57th was relieved of responsibility because of previous commitment.

Although the 57th is no longer responsible for completion of the range, the Officer-in-Charge, 2nd Lt. Stanley R. Lukowski, has found it necessary to rely on support from

Of Arms, Equipment Values Determined By Infantry Board

The Infantry Board at Fort Benning is responsible for conducting user tests of weapons and equipment for the infantry soldier.

The laboratories in which these tests are conducted are not fancy buildings with impressive arrays of test tubes and super-electronic test equipment, but rather the ranges and maneuver areas of Fort Benning and other Army posts.

A "user" test of any piece of equipment must be conducted under conditions similar to that in which it would normally be used.

In the course of testing any item, whether a complicated and highly classified piece of electronic equipment or a pair of shoe laces for combat boots, there is an impressive collection of factual data compiled which must be analyzed, charted and interpreted.

Pfc Vasquez Picked Top Soldier of Month of July

Pfc Frank S. Vasquez of the Third Field Hospital was selected as soldier of the month in the 54th Medical Group for the month of July. He was named the outstanding soldier on the basis of his military bearing, awareness of current events, and knowledge of military subjects. The selection was made by a board of officers composed of 1st Lt. Wesley F. Moody, 2nd Lt. Richard C. Penney, and CWO Dan Self. Pfc Vasquez will be presented with a Parker 51 fountain pen in the near future by 1st Lt. Wesley F. Moody, 2nd Lt. Richard C. Penney, and CWO Dan Self.

The Third Field Hospital also has a new commanding officer in 2nd Lt. Thomas O. Mucker who assumed his new duties early in August. He replaces 1st Lt. Wesley Moody who will soon be separated from the service. A native of St. Louis, Mo., Lt. Mucker attended Spring Hill College, Mobile, Ala., and the University of Miami, Fla., where he was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1957. Upon entering the Army he received officers' training and was assigned to the 54th Medical Group.

New 69th CO
First Lt. Charles A. Mateer this month assumed command of the 69th Medical Company. He replaced Capt. Charles Richardson who was assigned to an overseas post. Educated at South Dakota State College where he was graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree, Lt. Mateer entered the Army in 1954.

Certificate Cites Capt. McCarthy

Capt. Edmund P. McCarthy has been awarded a certificate of achievement at Fort Benning for outstanding service since March, 1956, as assistant to the chief of the Miscellaneous Division, Infantry Center G-1 Section.

He left the post Aug. 20 for duty with the Seventh Infantry, Third Infantry Division, in Germany.

Crew Back From TDY At Sikorsky

31st Transportation Company crew recently returned from TDY to the Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation factory at Bridgeport, Conn., where they picked up one of the units H-34 (Cocoanut) helicopters that was at Bridgeport for maintenance.

The pilots were 1st Lt. John C. Neamitz, CWO George A. Clark and crew chief was Sp4 Harold E. Wetz Jr.

Capt. Edward J. King Jr., operations officer of the 31st, is on TDY to the Bell Helicopter Corporation at Fort Worth, Tex. Capt. King will ferry a new H-34 back to Lawson Field, where it will be put to use by the 31st.

Returning to the unit from the 31st, this week were: Major Robert E. Hicks, commanding officer; Capt. Thomas S. Steiman, Robert E. Morris, CWO Robert L. Wright, and W/O Edward James Lewis. Goodwin, James V. Brown, David H. Lindsey and Franklin D. Dornis. Crew chiefs on the 31st for his present assignment were: 1st Lt. James D. Lawson Jr. The officers and men delivered five units to the 31st.

Badminton Champ
Pfc Dale McCallum of the 69th Medical Company, the 1957 post badminton runnerup, won the regimental tournament again this year to qualify for the Post tourney. He was the top player among the 29 men who competed in the single bracket of the single elimination play.

McCallum advanced to the finals by beating Pfc Bob Imbriewicz, also of the 69th Medical Company. He then entered the finals to play Sgt. Carl Baber, who had advanced to the finals by beating Sgt. Bill Webster. Baber and Webster are members of the 69th Medical Company. Baber tangled for 45 minutes in the first match with the lead switching hands ten times before "Mac" was able to take the first match, 21-19. The second game also went to McCallum by the same score.

The 54th Medical Group played its doubles tournament on Aug. 25. McCallum and Baber are favored to be the finalists in the doubles competition. Lt. Col. Peter S. Scoles, 54th Medical Group commanding officer, will present awards to the winners and runnerups after the tournament.

Official Lists State Dept.'s 2 Objectives

WASHINGTON (AP)—Assistant Secretary of State William M. Rountree outlined recently a two-point program of objectives he feels will best serve our national interests.

Although referring primarily to nations in the Near East, South Asia and Africa, Rountree offered these objectives:

"First, to support the development of strong and independent nations able and willing to resist the subversive efforts of international communism; second, to contribute — if requested by the nations of the area — to their security, recognizing that in a broad sense of security is our security.

Concert Slates 4th Symphony

The recorded concert at the main Fort Benning Library Sept. 2 at 7:30 p.m. will feature the "Symphony No. 4 in E Minor" by Johannes Brahms.

Brahms' 4th Symphony was not always as well liked and so accepted by audiences as it has been in recent times. Some of its early auditors found it forbidding, difficult and grimly austere. Several critics defined it as "weird." Brahms himself had misgivings as to Oedipus.

Cadets Moving in Air Academy

BYRON SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—By the end of August 1,145 future Air Force leaders will have moved into their new home, here—the United States Air Force Academy.

By moving time on Labor Day weekend, about $100 million worth of buildings—almost 88 per cent of the authorized construction—will be complete. Enough facilities will be finished to permit practical reposition of the cadets and efficient operation of the complex Academy program. Classes begin the day after Labor Day.

Group Finds Mission Done By Medicare

WASHINGTON (APFS) — The Dependent's Medical Care Program is sound, accomplishing its mission, and should be continued, an advisory committee has determined.

The committee, authorized by the Medicare Act, reported its findings and recommendation to Defense Secretary Neil W. McElroy. It is made up of medical, dental, hospital and health insurance representatives.

Disclosing that Medicare has provided medical attention for 29 per cent more military families than in the year before the program was in effect, the panel said the program, under the leadership and guidance of Army Major Gen. Paul I. Robinson, Executive Director of Dependents' Medical Care, has carried out the objectives of the legislation and Congress.

Satisfaction

The committee reported that recent surveys by military and civilian officials indicate "a most universal satisfaction by the uniform services' dependents and their sponsors" with the program, in which more than 30 per cent of the nation's physicians have taken part.

Medicare privileges, the committee said, have "inspired and maintained a high morale" and have made military service more attractive than prior to their inception in December, 1956.

The figure of 39 per cent is "significant" in that information available to Congress before the Medicare Act became law was that 60 per cent of Armed Forces dependents were not receiving medical attention in the post-WWII period due to the geographic location of military units and the overcrowding or inadequacy of service facilities, according to the committee.

The Medicare Program, the advisors said, is an "extended provision" of the specified health benefits traditionally considered by Congress to be the right of servicemen and that "high-level" care is now available, "regardless of the sponsor's rank," to dependents. (Please See Medicare, Page 2)

VACATIONS VANISH . . . Three students cross the street with the help of military policeman at Faith School Sept. 2, leaving behind summer vacation and beginning fall session of school. Left to right are Crossie McDowell, Jackie Sargent, Jo Ann Izenour, and Sp4 Bobby Damm. The pupils are among more than 2,500 attending Fort Benning Children's Schools.

Chaplain Ryan Will Attend Dedication, Speak at Post

Chaplain (Major Gen.) Patrick J. Ryan, Army's chief chaplain, will visit Fort Benning Sept. 9 to attend dedication ceremonies and address advance classes of The Infantry School.

The chief chaplain will give his annual address to a combined session of The Infantry School's officers' advanced classes at 3:10 p.m. in Theater No. 1.

While at Fort Benning, Chaplain Ryan will dedicate a memorial plaque in The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel to service facilities.

Following Chaplain Ryan's address at the dedication, Miss Mary Lennon, a sister of Chaplain Lennon, will unveil the plaque. Another sister, Mrs. Mary Kiduff, and her family also will attend the ceremonies.

Outstanding Chaplain Chaplain Lennon is remembered as one of the early outstanding chaplains of the Army. He conducted a school for chaplains at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and wrote the texts of the Chaplains Corps. In his retirement in 1953 he received the number of the chorus office is 2,212.

Rehearsals are being held each Tuesday and Thursday at Service Club No. 1. Telephone number of the chorus office is 2,212.

With new music acquired, the Infantry Chorus' future plans include The Messiah to be held at Christmas. This is hoped to be a combined project of choirs from all post chapels as well as the women's Club choirs.

A three-man team from Fort Bragg, N. C., will be at Fort Benning Sept. 7 to procure personnel to gyroscope to Europe, with the 50th and 95th Airborne Battle Groups.

Regular Army personnel with less than 24 months service and their current tour may be discharged and immediately re-enlisted for three or more years to participate in this program.

Interested personnel may obtain additional information by contacting either their unit re-enlistment NCO or the Infantry Center Re-enlistment Office in Bldg. 17.

Drive Ups 1958 Goal $120,000 Target Slated; Hoebeke New Chairman

The overall goal for Fort Benning's 1958 Community Activities Association fund drive was announced this week. This exceeds last year's target by $10,000.

The first unit to report 100 per cent contribution in the all-out drive to reach the overall goal is the Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction, according to Major Emmett C. Townsend, post campaign project officer.

Just three days following the department drive captain, 1st Lt. Wilbur G. Bowles, received donations totaling $478.30 from the 75 military and civilian members of the unit. The sum contributed actively gave the Department of Non-Resident Instruction its 95 per cent participation.

Two More 100 Per Centers

At the end of the first week of Fort Benning's major fund campaign two other units participated in with 100 per cent. They are the Educational Development Section with Watson H. Crawford as drive captain, and Range Control Section with G. L. Pope captaining the team.

New chairman of the Community Activities Association campaign is Col. Adrian Hoebeke, commander of the School Brigade, Col. Hoebeke takes over the job from Col. Max Stensland who has received orders for a new assignment in Korea. Col. Hoebeke also is president of the Community Activities Association Fund Council.

Of the $110,000 set for the 1957 drive, a total of $100,000 was contributed, officials stated. The larger amount for this year's total effort for goal of 100 per cent participation by all Fort Benning personnel was established in view of increased costs in retaining services and of recent pay increases for Army military and civilian personnel, officials added.

DA Revises Mobilization Of Reserve

WASHINGTON (APFS) — A new Ready Reserve reassignment plan setting a "last out, first back" recall policy for partial or total mobilization has been announced by the Army.

The plan, outlined in a new directive, AR 158-40, spells out the priorities for the recall of Army Reservists and speeds their return to active duty.

Generally, the procedure provides that the last man out of active service will be the first back in time of mobilization.

This policy, the Army said, recognizes that the man most recently trained on active duty is the "best qualified" and is the same individual who "has the least amount of Ready Reserve service and therefore would be among the first to be called."

The plan primarily concerns some 800,000 officers and enlisted men in the Ready Reserve of the Army Reserve reinforcement pool. Not affected are about 260,000 members of Reserve units and reservists. (Please See Reserves, Page 2)

P-TA Slates First Meet

The first meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association for the 1958-1959 school term will be held Sept. 9 at 8 p.m. in Theater No. 8.

Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, general of The Infantry Center, will address the group. Searchlights from the 532d Field Artillery Battery will mark the site of the meeting.

Chairman of the P-TA president, will introduce the members of the P-TA Council.

The 100 faculty members of The Fort Benning Children's Schools will be introduced by Mrs. Hazel Scudder, school superintendent.

Following the meeting, refreshments will be served and parents will have an opportunity to meet their children's teachers.

1 Dies From Post 9 Others Injured Over Weekend

A Fort Benning sergeant was killed and nine others from the post were injured over the Labor Day weekend.

Infantry Center safety officials say 15 about eight miles north of Troy, Ala., Aug. 28. He fell from a truck.

Col. Kent Takes 29th Command; Lt. Col. Rashid New Exec. Officer

Col. Richard F. Kent assumed command of the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, in a colorful change-of-command ceremony yesterday at Fort Benning.

He succeeded Lt. Col. Donald W. Bumle who has been reassigned as executive officer of the Third Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment.

Col. Kent served as assistant chief of staff G-1, The Infantry Center since June, 1957.

Lt. Col. Ralph J. Rashid joined the battle group simultaneously with Col. Kent and took over the duties of executive officer. He recently returned to Fort Benning from a two-year advisory tour in Turkey.

The 29th Company C, Honor Guard of the Infantry Center, and the 28th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon represented the battle group in the special review. Guidons of all 28th units marched with Company C.

Col. and Mrs. Kent were initially welcomed to the 29th Infantry Sept. 2 at an informal coffee in the battle group headquarters lounge. An Honor Guard ramp escort and band greeted them.

A formal reception was held that evening at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Col. Kent is a 40-year-old veteran of eight European campaigns during World War II. His decorations include the Silver Star with an oak leaf cluster, the Bronze Star Medal for valor, and the French Croix de Guerre.

He is a 1956 graduate of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. In 1952, he completed the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The Lt. Col. Rashid, executive officer, came to Fort Benning in August, 1956, serving nearly a year as a group chief in the during World War II in Europe with the 6803rd and 692nd Reconnaissance Infantry battalions.

He also acted as provost marshal and commander of troops at the Shirven American University, and commanded the 968 and 619 Quartermaster battalions.

Lt. Col. Rashid entered the Army as an enlisted man in April, 1936, and was commissioned a reserve second lieutenant in June, 1942. He received a Regular Army commission last month.

He is a graduate of the Army Command and Management school at Fort Belvoir, Va., and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Gill Honored At Retirement

Sgt. John H. Gill, formerly first sergeant, Company G, First Battalion, USAIC Troop Command, was the guest at retirement ceremonies Aug. 26, which started in the office of Lt. Col. Doyre C. Jensen, battalion commander and concluded in the battalion mess hall. Sgt. Gill retired after more than 20 years in the Army.

He was presented a retirement certificate and two certificates of achievement, one from the Infantry Center, and the other from the Department of Army. Capt. Robert M. Taggart, commanding officer of Company G, read the inscription to Sgt. Gill at ceremonies in Paris' in Blue" held four years after his "Rhaphody in Blue" had proved that the better elements of jazz could be successfully incorporated into symphonic composition.

Fund Campaign Planned By Red Cross Leaders

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Leaders from all parts of the country met here recently to plan the organization's 1958-59 fund-raising effort to finance the Red Cross's humanitarian work.

The first is the continuing seriousness of the world situation which compels the United States to maintain a large military establishment. That means that the Red Cross must maintain its services to the Armed Forces at a proportionally high level. Added to this is the unpredictability of world political developments. The assignment of U. S. servicemen to Lebanon is a recent example.

Another other principal factor in the rapid and constant increase in our country's population. Gen. Gruenther outlined a growing population and new discoveries of use for blood mean an ever-growing need for blood. More people mean also a greater community need for our first aid, water safety, and nursing services.

There are two major reasons for the Red Cross fund needs in the 1959-60 fiscal year will be approximately $12,000,000 greater than the money raised this year, Gen. Gruenther predicted.

Many Benefits Provided By Making Army Career

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles written by Sgt. Roy W. Wagle, Fort Benning re-enlistment NCO.

A career in the Army carries many future benefits. Some of these may seem intangible at present but will become more and more real as time progresses and retirement nears.

For example, a soldier's monthly pay does not begin to reflect the true dollar value of current benefits or those which potentially may be worth many thousands of dollars.

French Theme Highlights BIOC Coffee at Custer Club Aug. 19

Wives of students attending the Infantry School's bi-annual BIOC (Battalion Officers' In-Camp) party, Second Battalion at Fort Benning, were led at a coffee Aug. 19 at the Custer Terrace Club.

Hostesses were Mesdames Jiraford Wasson, Joseph Reiter, Jerald Zintmanman, James E. Bradford and James Uehling.

The luncheon followed a French theme and decorations included travel folders, a d picture of France. The centerpiece was an original arrangement of French bread, wine baskets and cheese.

Mesdames Stanley R. Larsen, Adriaan L. Hoebeke, John E. Zanis and Paul Jarrett poured. They were relieved by Mesdames Joseph Maxwell, Douglas Vais, James Carby, Robert Legge, Thomas Sheehan, Allan Reed, Charles Linderman and Roger Jones.

In charge of invitations were Mesdames John Galt, chairman, Alfred Conroy, Harry Steinback, Joseph Reiter, Roger Jones, Keith Barker, Joseph Todd, Samuel Harman, Delbert Kohl and Bradford.

The names of committee included Mesdames John Galt, chairman, Robert Clark, Walter Benson, John Middleton, Billy Temperton, James Parker, Fred Ferguson, Jimmy Wasson and John Vilven.

Serving on the decorations committee were Mesdames Donald Vais, chairman, Joseph Mavrick, co-chairman and Frederick McCelliney.

RESERVE TEA
A tea was held Aug. 25 for wives of Reserve officers attending the last three sessions of summer school at Fort Benning.

Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Adriaan L. Hoebeke, wife of Col. A. L. Hoebeke, commander of the School Brigade. The affair was held at the Hoebeke's residence at 403 Baltzell Avenue, Fort Benning.

Coffee was poured by Mesdames James Bryan and John Zanis, while Mesdames Wilks Eckman and James Cook poured tea. The table decorations were composed of yellow and white ribbons and napkins.

Special guests included Mrs. Paul L. Freeman Jr., and Mrs. John F. Buegler. The honored guests included Mesdames Howard Rice of Oklahoma City Okla., Robert Trought, a U.S. Starr Jones, both of New York City, Gregg Turner of Pittsburgh, Pa., J. F. Braham of Charlotte, N. C., Gregory H. Ryan of Schenectady, N. Y., and Joseph A. Smith of Washington, D. C.

COMMO OFFICERS'
Officers' wives of the Infantry School's Communications Department were entertained with their monthly coffee Aug. 22 at the home of Mrs. Ausy P. Brown.

ADVANCED LUNcheon
Wives of student officers in advanced class No. 6 of the Second Battalion, School Brigade, were led at a luncheon Aug. 13 at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Gordon M. Ripley acted as senior hostess and chairman of reservations with Mrs. Stan Linn and Mrs. Wilber T. Darnon assisting.

In charge of luncheon arrangements was Mrs. John G. Greer, assisted by Mrs. Byron M. Bonham, Mrs. Kenneth R. Zintmanman, James E. Bradford and James Uehling.

The ladies received corsages of blue and white baby chrysanthemums and wheat with red ribbons. Arrangements were made by Mrs. James Uehling.

TSB Trains Former GI Entertainer

The male half of a comedy song and dance team which entertained Sixth Army area troops for six years, is currently attending Infantry Officers' Leaders Course No. 1, 20th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

He is Lt. Joseph L. Bondanza, a 1958 graduate of the University of San Francisco, with 10 years professional entertainment work to his credit.

Lt. Bondanza and his sister Diane, 19, perform comedy pantomime and dance novelty acts. The couple worked for six years for Special Services and were flown throughout the Sixth Army area performing with show troupes.

In 1951, the team was awarded a certificate of merit by the secretary of defense for contributing to the morale of servicemen.

Army-Wide Promotions 700 E-8s Included For First Quarter

FORT McPHERSON — Department of Army has announced there will be 35,200 Army-wide enlisted promotions that include 700 to the new super E-8. There will be 35,200 Army-wide enlisted promotions that include 700 to the new super E-8. These 700 E-8 appointments will bring the Army's super-grade strength to 1,300.

These E-8 quotas are for the first sergeant and sergeant combat-major duty positions in Army Training Centers and Category I, II, and III TO&E units. Of particular importance to top pay grades is the fact that the entire duty position structure of TO&E and TO&E units currently being reviewed at Department of Army to determine other positions that will be upgraded to pay grades E-8 and E-9. Future quota allocations will be based on these jobs that have been upgraded. This means that after Oct. 1 of this year the number of E-8 and E-9s to be appointed will depend on how many positions are raised in the various categories by the current review.

Criteria for promotion to grade E-8 are:

- (1) Have completed 14 months in pay grade E-7, 7 months of which may be waived by commanding officers under provisions of paragraph 12, AR 624-200.
- (2) Be recommended by immediate commander and be in appointable status pursuant to paragraph 6, AR 624-640.
- (3) Have completed 15 years of active Federal service, 10 of which must be cumulative years of enlisted service creditable in the computation of their basic pay.
- (4) Be qualified to perform duties in positions of sergeant and/or sergeant major, and must occupy such duty position upon appointment.
- (5) Must be assigned to an Army Training Center or a Category I, II, or III TO&E unit.

Criteria for promotion to grade E-9 are:

- (1) Have completed 8 months in grade E-8.
- (2) Have completed 18 or more years, active Federal service, 10 of which must be cumulative years of enlisted service creditable in the com-

101st Airborne Div. Gives Mobile Force to STRAC

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. — (ANF) — "Skilled, Tough, Ready Around the Clock." That's the slogan of the Strategic Army Corps, a specially tailored force organized to deal with limited wars and to move promptly to potential trouble spots anywhere in the world. It is also the slogan of the 101st Airborne Division, one of the four Army divisions included in the 101st Airborne Corps, STRAC force which is commanded by Major Gen. Robert P. Sink.

STRAC is the Army's mobile combat-ready force designed to meet the requirements of limited wars or to provide national reinforcements in a general war; its requirement is to be operationally ready on a moment's notice. Since its activation in August, 1942, the 101st has met these requirements.

The division arrived in England in September, 1943, with a mission to drop into Normandy on the night of June 6, 1944, beyond Utah Beach, take its objectives, ease the way for the amphibious forces, and hold the line until the lodgement was secure. This it did under the command of their Major Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now Army Chief of Staff.

It was at the crossroads of Bastogne in December, 1944, when completely surrounded by a powerful German force that the 101st answered the enemy ultimatum to surrender with one word, "Nuts." It held the town until reinforcements arrived and the last great German offensive of the war was blunted and finally stopped.

After a period of postwar inactivation, the division was reactivated in the active role of the Army at Fort Jackson, S. C. in May, 1954, and its fortunes arose again.

It was one of the first divisions to be armed with Honrad's John rockets, the 762mm rocket equipment with either conventional or atomic war heads, and in 1957 it was reorganized as the Army's first pentomic division. The 101st is completely adaptable and its five battalions, each with a strength of nearly 1600 men; are backed up by a division artillery of batteries of 107mm howitzers and a battery of Honest John's.

The "Screaming Eagles" are commanded by 44-year-old Major Gen. William C. Westmoreland, a West Pointer born in Saco, S. C. During his 22 years of Army service, Westmoreland, originally an artillery officer, has served as chief of staff of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., taught at the Command and General Staff and Army War Colleges, commanded the 197th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in combat in Korea, and served as assistant of the General Staff of the Army.

Boa Boo-Boo

Lt. Confuses Constrictor, Bushmaster

PORT SHERMAN, Can 1 Zone — Only begimner's luck stood between him and death. That's what Lt. William D. Cairns believes about his capture of a six-foot bushmaster while on an attack and defense problem of the Jungle Warfare Training Center.

A new student at the school, the 101st Airborne Division soldier from Fort Campbell, Ky., brought the deadly reptile back to the Center's zoo, maintained to orient students on Central American wildlife.

The trouble is — he thought it was a boa constrictor, which is of similar size and markings. He knew non-poisonous boas are handled regularly by the student officers and that they are practically harmless to man.

The bushmaster is the second largest species of poisonous snake in the world, according to JWTC zoo officials, who are happy about their new addition, the only one delivered to them that hasn't died of a broken back within a few hours. Unlike the boa, the bushmaster possesses a very fragile spine.

OCS Hall of Fame Slates Picture of M-H Winner

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of sketches of former officer candidates whose pictures will hang in Wigle Hall, recently designated Officer Candidate Hall of Fame.

Major Robert B. Nett, winner of the Medal of Honor, is being honored as one of several outstanding Fort Benning Officer Candidate School graduates. His picture is being placed in Wigle Hall, OCS Hall of Fame, along with a copy of his Medal of Honor citation and a resume of his military career.

Awarded Medal
Major Nett was awarded the Medal of Honor for his action Dec. 14, 19, near Copon, Leyte, Philippine Islands, in an attack against an enemy re-entranced battalion which had held up the American advance for two days from its entrenched positions around a three-story concrete building.

His citation read:
"With another Infantry company and armored vehicles, Company E (commanded by Major Nett, first a first lieutenant) advanced against heavy machine gun and other automatic weapons fire with Lt. Nett spearheading the assault against the strongpoint.

"During the fierce hand-to-hand encounter which ensued he killed seven deeply entrenched Japanese with his rifle and bayonet and although seriously wounded continued to lead his men forward, refusing to relinquish his command.

"Again he was seriously wounded but still unwilling to retire pressed ahead with his troops to insure the capture of the objective. Wounded once more in the final assault, he calmly made all arrangements for the resumption of the advance, turned over his command to another officer and then walked unaided to the headquarters of the Southwestern Area, Fort East Command. He remained in this position until July, 1951, when he received his medal.

Attended School
Next he attended the regular advanced course at The Infantry School. From June, 1952, to December, 1954, Major Nett was assigned to the Army General Staff School, Fort Riley, Kans., first as an Infantry tactics instructor, later as operations and training officer, and as adjutant and director.

From December, 1954, to August, 1958, he was station commander of Erlanger Station, Nuremberg Sub Area, Germany. In August, 1957, Major Nett returned to the U. S. to attend the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Upon completion of this school, Major Nett came to The Infantry School for assignment with the Platoon Tactics Committee.

Major Nett's decorations include the Medal of Honor, Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device, Combat Infantryman's Badge and many campaign, theater and occupation ribbons.

Billing's Chief
In 1945 Major Nett was assigned as chief of the Billing's Branch, War Department Personnel Center, Ft. Bragg, N.C. From Fort Bragg, Major Nett went to the Artillery Center, Fort Sill, Okla., to command Company C, 54th Infantry Regiment, Artillery Center School Troop. His next assignment sent him to the 19th Infantry Regiment, 24th Infantry Division, where he served as a company commander of the First Battalion.

In November, 1948, Major became inspector general, 24th Infantry Division, Kobe Base, Japan. In February, 1950, he left Japan and was assigned as commander of Company A, Seventh Infantry, Third Division. After leaving the Third Division, Major Nett was assigned as inspector general, headquarters of the Southwestern Area, Fort East Command. He remained in this position until July, 1951, when he received his medal.

Next he attended the regular advanced course at The Infantry School. From June, 1952, to December, 1954, Major Nett was assigned to the Army General Staff School, Fort Riley, Kans., first as an Infantry tactics instructor, later as operations and training officer, and as adjutant and director.

Daniels Set As Leader Of Pentathlon

PORT SAM HOUSTON, Texas (AFPS) — High scorer and captain of the U. S. Pentathlon team, the Army's Jack Daniels will be competing in his sixth international meet when the team travels to Aldershot, England, to compete in the World Championships there in October.

Inexperienced and untested, Daniels became a member of the Pentathlon squad as a replacement for an injured athlete just prior to the 1956 Olympics.

He surprised Pentathlon officials by finishing 13th and helping the U. S. to a second place finish. Since 1956, he has been the top performer on the U. S. team.

Because Pentathlon competitions are international, there have only been four since Daniels joined the team. In three of them he won the individual championship; in the fourth, the 1957 World Championships, he placed fourth.

The slender six-footer captured first place honors twice in international competition at who cleared the bar at 14 feet 11 inches, for second place honors.

The Army's Al Hall, Fort Lee, Va., chucked the hammer 233 feet 0.74 inch to walk away with fourth position in his pocket.

Missiles Get Rugged Tests Before Tried

HOLLOMAN AF, NM.
(AFPS) — In 34 seconds, a Lockheed X-7 missile rushes forward from a dead stop, hits top speed, then turns to a halt equivalent to a 60 mph head-on crash into a brick wall — all in less than two feet of travel.

This is the kind of punishment modern missiles, with their delicate and precision parts, must withstand if they are to perform properly.

The "G-Shooter," a special device developed by Lockheed, puts the missiles through rugged ground tests of electronic equipment and systems.

The X-7 is mounted on rails of the G-Shooter which blasts the bird to an 18G acceleration (18 times the force of gravity) to simulate the drive occurring when the missile is actually launched.

The test gives a realistic look at how the many instruments and electronic systems will stand the tremendous shock of the rocket, before being needed to bring the X-7 to a speed where its ramjet engine takes over.

CADET AWARD... West Point Cadet Erven S. Tyler receives The Infantry Trophy from Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commander of The Infantry Center, at ceremonies at the U. S. Army Military Academy. The trophy is presented annually to the cadet company which is most proficient in infantry subjects and tactics during the summer training period at Camp Buckner, N. Y., summer training camp for the Cadets.

Purple Heart Started For Combat Bravery
WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army was already more than seven years old — its birth date was June 14, 1778 — when Gen. George Washington recognized that soldiers who performed acts of heroism were entitled to certain emblems of distinction more lasting than money.

From his headquarters at Newburgh, N.Y., on Aug. 2, 1782, he ordered that "Honorary Badges of Distinction are authorized to wear the Purple Heart, which bears the likeness of Washington.

Most rare of all medals is the Medal of Honor, of which only 2199 have been presented since President Lincoln, on July 12, 1862, signed an act of Congress authorizing 2000 to be prepared and presented "in the name of Congress" to those who "shall most distinguish themselves by their gallantry in action, and other soldier-like qualities."

The first were given in a joint ceremony on March 26, 1863, to the six survivors of the band of 20 who had volunteered to cut Tennessee from the Confederacy by sabotaging the Western and Atlantic Railroad.

Only three men of the Continental Army are recorded as having received this award. It is worn today by hundreds of thousands of veterans of World Wars I and II and the Korean War, for it is now a symbol of a wound received from enemy action.

The Revolution the award of the Purple Heart was discontinued until Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army, published General Order 3 on February 22, 1952, resuming the award out of respect to Washington's memory and military achievements.

Soldiers who had been wounded in World War I and wore wound stripes on their blouse sleeves were retroactively au-

Same Job Gives Former GI Quintuple Military Pay

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N. M. (AFPS) — The Army's Scientific and Professional program has paid off in a big way for a former soldier-engineer.

Daniel J. Small, a retired Army specialist third class here, is back on his former Army job as a civilian mechanical engineer, but with a big difference.

Eight months ago his Army income was about $1400 a year. Today his salary has skyrocketed to $7400. Small thinks he is "pretty lucky" to have been classified in the S&P category while in the Army and is full of praise for the program which paved the way for the jump in salary to his present position.

Now employed in the Climatic Section of the Electro-Mechanical Laboratory, Small gave up a job with a major steel company to remain at his present post designing and supervising environmental tests of missile systems and their related components.

The tests are planned to determine how missile systems and their related components would react to weather conditions, including high and low temperatures, high humidity, rain, altitude, sand and dust, salt, fog, and fungus.

In addition to handling his former Army job, with added administrative responsibilities, Small is also busy with various research projects. One of these men was 1st Sgt. Henry Hagan. Among other "wearers of the green" to win the medal are 17 Murphys, ten Kellys, and six Kelleys. But they are outnumbered by the ubiquitous "Smiths" — 26.

Penny for Thoughts
Post Employees Receive Cash Awards for Ideas

A penny for your thoughts pays off for Fort Benning's civilian employees in the post's Incentive Awards Program.
Constructive thinking civilians can net cash awards ranging from $10 to as much as $75. In addition, many persons receive cash awards of $100, $200 or $300 for sustained superior performance of duties over a period of time. The amount received is based on the individual's salary. The program encourages both civilians and soldiers to enter suggestions to make jobs easier and more quickly accomplished. The program is designed to recognize such contributions and to promote ever-increasing efforts of outstanding job performance and efficiency.

Improvements in Army operations made possible by suggestions of civilian personnel are being cited in a Third Army campaign for continued suggestions.
Known as "Project Diamond Jubilee" in recognition of the 75th year of the Civil Service Act, the program encourages creative thinking by both civilian and military personnel.
Brig. Gen. Richard J. Werner, Third Army chief of staff, observed that while Third Army "is not outstanding in the number of suggestions submitted, it is gratifying to know the quality of the suggestions in such that the percentage of those adopted and the estimated first year savings placed this command well above average."
Gen. Werner added that "the need for continued improvements, with a resulting dollar savings, can not be over emphasized." The Diamond Jubilee campaign is "designed to stimulate the interest of military and civilian personnel in the suggestion program."
The Diamond Anniversary of the signing of the Civil Service Act was celebrated Jan. 16 at Fort Benning. The observance consisted of a busy, normal day on the part of the more than Civil Service has been in operation at Fort Benning since 1919, shortly after the post was established. Jobs cover almost every office at the Infantry Center and Infantry School and include every type required to operate a large city, with mayor and tax collector notable exceptions.

Ranging from office workers of all types to such posts as street repairmen, water plant operators, laundrymen, postal clerks, firemen, educators, scientists, executives and administrators, the Civil Service operation at Fort Benning helps The Infantry Center and School operate efficiently, effectively

NCOs Take Commanders' Job for Week

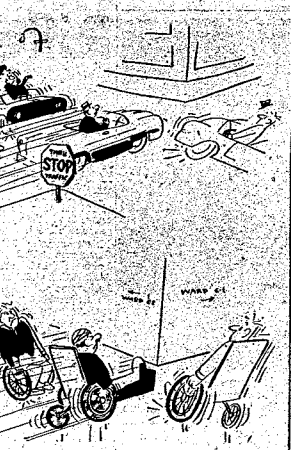

FORT RILEY, Kans. (ANF)—If the chance of battle should ever force the sergeant of the Ninth Transportation Battalion to take temporary command, they will be ready. The unit's commander, Lt. Colonel Karl H. Zornig recently placed his top NCOs in charge for a week—first sergeants as company commanders, headquarters sergeants in battalion staff positions, and the sergeant major as battalion commander.
Thus Zornig's job fell to 1st Sgt. Joseph E. R. Donovan, who, after noting that "the sergeant is almost constantly called upon to make decisions" at week's end to return to his sergeant's desk.
A veteran of more than 23 years in the Army, 16 of them with the First Infantry Division of which the Ninth is a part, Donovan says he has "known times in combat when an NCO commanded a battalion, 'but it never happened to me.'"
Donovan fought in North Africa, Italy and France during World War II with both the First and Third Infantry Divisions. The First is now part of the Strategic Army Corps, ready for quick deployment to trouble spots throughout the world.

Zornig has nothing but praise for the job his NCOs did during a week heavily scheduled with activities, including work with a Reserve Battalion taking its summer training at Riley.
One temporary company commander, Sgt. Everett C. Nelson, was singled out for his direction of a "lawless" demonstration of the Army's new armored personnel carriers.
As for the battalion's officers,

Base Gets Experience

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (NF)—The Army's famed missile base at Huntsville got a victim's taste of special warfare recently.
Two teams from the U.S. Army Special Warfare Center's 7th Special Forces Group (Airborne) from Fort Bragg, N.C., parachuted into the missile base to serve as aggressors in an eleven-day training test of the 47th Field Artillery Missile Battalion stationed here.
The 7th troopers, under the direction of Major John C. Pittman Jr., used on the missile-base the guerrilla warfare techniques for which they are specially trained.
In warfare, the wiping out or immobilization of a unit by long-range atomic missiles from the comparative safety of enemy territory would be a major triumph for infiltrating guerrillas, and the protection of these devastating weapons they spent the week receiving special instruction in the latest transportation concepts.

At a meeting of the Fort Benning Boxing Board at 28, 11 tentative matches were made for the first boxing bout of the Fort Benning season to be held in Doughboy Stadium at 7:30 p.m. today. At this meeting, units were represented by team coaches who indicated that bouts held in the future should be some of the best Fort Benning boxing fans have seen in several seasons.

Marine Wins Pistol Title At Moscow

MOSCOW (APFS) — Pistol ace Marine Capt. William W. McMillan was the world's best gun champion in international shooting competition held here Aug. 22. McMillan shot 266 out of 300 in the fall here, eight times three points ahead of Kuroda, to take top honors in the event. For his shooting accomplishments, McMillan received the world pistol and revolver championship. Previous honors bestowed upon the captain include the 1957 National Rifle Association's pistol championship at Camp Perry, Ohio. He also holds about half of the 70 out-door national pistol records. In 1957 Capt. McMillan bettered Army Sfc. H. L. (Doc) Benner's long-standing national aggregate record by 250, 2,664 by one point. Veteran shooters believed, up to that time, that Benner's record could never be broken. Since that time, the record-keeping officer has raised his aggregate total for the three weapon shoot (22, 38, and 45) to the present record of 2,668 of a possible 3,000.

ICTC Hosts Little League Baseballers

More than 40 Little League and their parents were guests of honor at a picnic at King's Road, Aug. 23. Rifle Title Copped By Post Shooter

A lieutenant from Fort Benning led the Army's crack riflemen to a clean sweep of the top three places in the international free rifle event at the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

First Lt. John R. Edwin led a team of 538 out of a possible 600 course to win the opening high power rifle event. His teammates, Sp5 Martin Gunnarsson and 1st Lt. Gerald Smith finished second and third. Both had 535 scores but Gunnarsson put more hits in the tie-breaking "X" ring to take runner-up honors. The match was fired over half the international free rifle course, consisting of three stages, 20 shots, 200 yds. kneeling, and 20 shots, standing, all fired at 300 meters. Edwin's victory in the three-hour match earned the Army team's second win in a row in the international free rifle title. Last year Sgt. Myles Brown won the event for the Army. All members of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit train the Army's best rifle and pistol shots.

Split Seasons Benning Announces Dove Dates

Officials of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Association have announced the opening dates for dove season on the Georgia side. Eleven areas have been designated for hunting and from all reports, the season promises to be a good one. All shooting will be controlled and the Fish and Game Association has drawn up a schedule for each area. The association cautions that hunters should be those authorized to use the Fort Benning game preserves. Each hunter must obtain a schedule at the Fish and Game Association Office, Building 304, as well as check with the Range Office before hunting. The association also cautions that all prescribed conservation practices must be observed.

Even Wolf Whistles Fish Talk It Up in Depths; Navy Records Language

NEW YORK (APFS)—Who ever called it "The Silent World"? He should have his ears examined. Or better still, he should check with the Office of Naval Research. For the fact is that the ocean depths fairly crackle with the conversation of marine life. You need not tune in on it and the proper listening devices. But anyway it's being recorded for posterity by the ONR, which already has built up a unique library of disks and magnetic tape. Why do creatures of the sea make sounds at all? Apparently for communications, offense and defense, warning, orientation and aggregation. At the Lerner Marine Laboratory in Bermuda, for example, a moth-baby embryo who had lost her baby perished over 800 excited whistles in about 10 minutes. Some fish, according to researchers, actually "wolf whistles" at other fish, and marine calls similar to those of birds have been recorded. The chirping makes a sharp, high-pitched note, the sculpin produces a sustained hum like that of an electric generator. Audio-tapes to date have in-

Sergeant Joins Navy To Fish Out Cones

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Sir William E. Foster of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency here is a fisherman — of sorts. He is a Junior Ensign in the United States Navy, and his immediate range ballistic missile cone cones.
Last month Foster joined the Navy temporarily to watch and recover a second full-size Jupiter nose cone.
He was also along, as a more than merely interested spectator, at the recovery of the first full-size Jupiter nose cone on May 18 and in August, 1957, when a scale model was recovered and subsequently shown to the President to emphasize television audience.
Foster's interest in the operation was highly technical. He assisted in installing and directing landing systems employed in the recovery and also was involved in the program for the past two years.
From the deck of the U.S.S. Snawdon, one of three Navy de-stroyer-escorts along the latest Jupiter's trajectory, he described the flight of the missile from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a message to the Missile Agency's Signal Office, to which he is assigned.
"I would estimate that we observed the flight a full 20 seconds, the aft section and the instrument compartment of the Jupiter as they streaked through the sky.
"Shortly after they became visible, they were very bright against the morning sky. The aft section and instrument compartment which are not protected against aerodynamic heating began to break up.
"The nose cone continued on its guided trajectory towards the target area, moving at an incredible speed. The objects left vapor trails which could be seen plainly.
"Three minutes after the cone plunged into the Atlantic, Navy aircraft hovering in the area spotted the recovery balloon bobbing on the surface, marking the exact location where the cone was suspended beneath it.
"The undamaged cone was on the deck of the U.S.S. Escapade (an auxiliary submarine rescue ship carrying special hoisting gear) which made the pickup exactly one hour and 36 minutes after Jupiter was launched at Cape Canaveral.
"Within the time period Foster mentored the Jupiter had

Bonus Go To Iowa Vets

Korean veterans from Iowa will receive bonuses for their service during that emergency period beginning Dec. 7, according to an Army announcement this week.
Applications should be submitted to the State Compensation Board, Korean Veterans, State House, Des Moines, Iowa.
Veterans who served in the United States Army and received pay up to $12.50 per month for foreign service between July 1, 1954, and July 27, 1953. Compensation is also payable to veterans for home-leave pay at the rate of $10 per day for the same period. All dates are inclusive.
The bonus is $100 per month, which is blood contributed. The veteran must have served honorably at least 120 days on or before Nov. 25, 1953, although the veteran is paid only to July 27, 1953.
Military applications (Form No. 11) may also be claimed with the immediate application of the deceased application to receive the maximum compensation payment, $500.

Like most do-it-yourself enthusiasts, Second Engineer Battalion's Sgt. Lamin Krutina swings a meat hammer in an attempt to improve anything.
From refrigerator boxes, ammunition boxes, and other salvage material, Sgt. Krutina and a volunteer crew of eight men rejuvenated Headquarters Company mess hall work benches in June and the remodeling was completed last week.
In the general "cleaning up" campaign the company constructed a new arms room and have had the opportunity to meet his German bride.

Col. Talley Named Div. Chem. Officer

By 2nd Div. PIO
Lt. Col. James W. Talley, formerly assigned to Douglas Proving Grounds, Wash., has been appointed chemical officer for Headquarters, Second Infantry Division.
Col. Talley assumes the position held by Capt. Aubrey A. Davis. Capt. Davis remains with the chemical section as Col. Talley's assistant.
Prior to his assignment here, Col. Talley was with the Procurement and Property, Douglas Proving Grounds. He has had the opportunity to meet his German bride.

USOs Sponsor Weekly Dances

By 87th Inf. PIO Armed Services organizations of Columbus have taken the initiative to make soldiers of the Infantry Division members of the Columbus community, especially with dances scheduled weekly in the city's USO and YMCA.

Three organizations, the Girls Service Organization, the Armed Services YMCA and the USO, have combined to present social events each week. The dances are held at the Armed Services YMCA and the USOs. The latter organizations make their facilities available while the Girls Service Organization furnishes volunteers as partners for the men at the dances. It was pointed out that the dances afford soldiers the opportunity to meet Columbus young people in a wholesome atmosphere.

E-100s Join SAC in Spain

Washington (APPS)—Some E-100s have been sent to Spain to fly protective cover for Strategic Air Command planes here, the Aerial Air Command has announced. The 1st Tactical Fighter Squadron is being deployed to Morocco AB, near Seville, from George AFB, Calif.

Although B-47 jet bombers and F-4E Sabre jets have been flying missions from Spanish runways, the F-100s are the first super-sonic fighters to join SAC in Spain.

Photos and airmen of the squadron are on temporary duty with SAC. After a six-month tour they will be replaced by another TAC squadron, as yet not selected. Commanding the "First" is Col. Charles "Chuck" Young, the first man to fly faster than sound. Col. Young returns to Spain 15 years after finding refuge in the neutral state during WWII when he was shot down by the Nazis.

Another oddity in the company is Sgt. Marie Gordon. When he reported to the company he gave his name as Marie Gordon. A check of his records showed that he was being carried as Maxine. To straighten out the record he wrote his home county for a birth certificate and found that he was registered there as Maxine Gordon, female, given all the details and letters later he is at last a bonafide Marie Gordon.

Twelve men from the company have gone to Redstone Arsenal on a winter training tour. The tour will be away from the company on TDY for 120 days.

Sgt. Albert V. Mitchell was promoted to sergeant on Aug. 20. He will return to his home in Philadelphia, Pa. after a tour of duty in Spain and Korea. Sgt. Wooding, who is a native of Gastonia, N.C., has taken over the duties of vehicle inspection NOC for the battalion motor pool.

Sgt. Darwood Chappell, motor pool inspection NOC, is inspecting personal getting ready for the coming annual IG inspection. He has completed the inspection.

The company lost one of its truck masters when Sgt. Earl L. Clarke left the company. His new assignment is with the 515th Transportation Company.

Company B had a change in high echelon NOCs recently. Sgt. P. C. Henry was replaced by Sgt. Wardie Tolson as first sergeant. Sgt. Tolson spent a year in the support of the USAF and still has an unblemished record to his credit.

The unit now has a new company commander. He is 1st Lt. Joseph H. Barrett III, who assumed command on Aug. 26, replacing Capt. Marlon E. Gilchrist. He will assume duties as S4 of Infantry Center Troop Command.

Sgt. and Mrs. Melvin J. Pitt became parents of a seven pound girl on Aug. 18. It is the first offspring for the parents. Pitt is a mechanic for this unit.

During his stay the two-star general will visit the Infantry School's Ranger, Special Subjects, Communications and Weapons Departments and will witness carbine, pistol, sub-machine gun, flame thrower and grenade instruction.

Members of the 68th have just completed support of the 101st. They drove a total of 85 one-fourth ton miles, 88, 632 total miles and hauled a total of 127,686 men without an accident. They are now in the support of the USAF and still have an unblemished record to their credit.

The unit now has a new company commander. He is 1st Lt. Joseph H. Barrett III, who assumed command on Aug. 26, replacing Capt. Marlon E. Gilchrist. He will assume duties as S4 of Infantry Center Troop Command.

Sgt. and Mrs. Melvin J. Pitt became parents of a seven pound girl on Aug. 18. It is the first offspring for the parents. Pitt is a mechanic for this unit.

One of the company officers who has been on TDY has returned. He is 2nd Lt. Kenneth Webster who was a platoon leader for "Operation Sandgrass" at Eglin Air Force Base. His six weeks duty here was to furnish transportation to newly assigned personnel to the 60th Engineer Company (Field Maintenance) and S-GT. Fred Brown Jr. and Sgt. Milford J. Sawyer.

Army to Present 3,900 Top EM Permanent Rank

WASHINGTON (AP)—Permanent promotions from enlisted grades for the past eight years, will be awarded to 3,900 E-5, E-6 and E-7 NCOs and specialists prior to Dec. 31, the Army has announced.

The quotas for regular Army permanent warrant promotions which started Sept. 1, by grade are: E-7, 900; E-6, 1,000; and E-5, 2,000. Permanent advancements in E-4 and below started last July 1.

To be considered for permanent appointment, E-7's must have 15 years service; E-6's, 11 years and E-5's 7 years and be recommended by their commanding officers. Time-in-grade requirements are two years or more in all three pay grades.

The only permanent enlisted promotions made since August, 1956, were to E-2 and a one-grade jump after 29 years service.

Soldiers promoted to super-grades E-8 and E-9 will not be eligible for permanent warrants for at least two years, the Army said.

'Don't Hurt My Little Girl'

"Today my daughter, who is 7 years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with white collar, she had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved goodbye and started off to the hall or learning.

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who is in the back of her head and the trees in the school yard, and about the girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

"She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep, with 'Princess Elizabeth' (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm.

"You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands."

"She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time. I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars."

"Please don't run over my little girl"—Author Unknown

Ballot: 1st Line of Support

The term politics often elicits contemptuous impressions of sly suggery. Any such sneering is unfortunate for politics is basic to our democratic progress.

Traditionally, ours has been a two-party system. Throughout our history there has been a number of smaller parties which rarely have held any great power. They have on occasion, passed on policies to either of both major parties, however.

The two-party system as we know it has several advantages. It keeps the people informed about the candidate; it assures us of maximum criticism of incumbents by members of the party not in power; it serves to bring members of a party together on important issues; and it keeps those in office aware of their responsibility to their constituents.

Your elected representative belongs to a political party, and so quite possibly do you. This is your privilege as a member of the Armed Forces and a citizen of the United States.

Aid Educators of Johnny

Educators for two decades have been loudly decrying the fact that Johnny can't read or think for himself. Now that Johnny has grown up and is in the Army, military leaders are deprecating the fact that Johnny can't read or think.

You perhaps may recognize Johnny in yourself. Formal schooling may have ended for you before you left your teens and civilian life; you may be one of those about whose educational status the Defense Department is now concerned as it has not been before. For as everyone must know who has kept abreast of the news, the very basic concepts of the military mission have been reviewed to indicate, most urgently, that the Army must have a more highly qualified and knowledgeable personnel. It is the duty of the individual soldier to see to it that he meets needed qualifications.

The objective of at least a high school education has been set by the Department of Army to insure the needed character of its non-commissioned officers and specialists. If you plan for promotion and do not meet this objective, it is your responsibility to get about doing so. Visit your Army Education Center on post to arrange for class instruction or testing; a successfully passed high school General Educational Development Test can earn you the needed high school equivalency.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (LT) WILSON D. PIGOTT
Isn't it strange that princes and kings,
And clowns that caper in sawdust rings,
And common people like you and me,
Are builders for eternity?
Each is given a bag of tools,
A shovels mass, a book of rules;
And each must make—like is to flow
A stumbling block or a stepping stone.

Are we builders for eternity? Man is not pitching a tent for a few hours. Nor is he toying with a temporary structure. He is building a house to dwell in perpetuity with the certainty that dangers will arise. The choice is not between building and not building; but between building well and building folly—a stepping stone or a stumbling block.

Crisis Shifts To Far East

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Although the tensions in the Middle East have by no means subsided, the Middle East stage appears to be over for the time being and the spotlight on world events has shifted to the Far East.

In recent weeks, the Chinese Communists have been bombarding with artillery the Quemoy, two small islands around the Formosa Strait, which the U. S. Seventh Fleet is alerted.

Center to Begin Fall High School Classes Sept. 16

Army Education Center, Building 2502, will begin its regular fall session of high school classes Sept. 16.

Classes will be conducted from 6:45 to 9:30 p.m. Tues, Wed and Thursday evenings. Qualified teachers will be on hand to conduct classes in English, History, Science and Mathematics.

Courses are open to military personnel who have completed the eighth grade and wish to earn a high school diploma by taking the high school General Educational Development Test. Individuals who must take a retest on any part of the high school GED should enroll in the course covering the test to be retaken.

Registration is now in progress and remnants of its armed forces look refuge on Formosa and surrounding islands after being driven from the mainland by the Chinese Communists.

In 1949 the Nationalist government and remnants of its armed forces look refuge on Formosa and surrounding islands after being driven from the mainland by the Chinese Communists.

The Judge Says . . .

Did you realize that if you are a borrower from a small loan company in Georgia, 15 cents may be paying as much interest as 1,900 per cent per year? This is the result of the Georgia Industrial Loan Act, instead of a single all-inclusive percentage per month charge.

The renewal charges are allowable every two months on loan balances of $100 or less, but the loan, insurance premiums, legal fees, renewal fees and provisions, recollection fees, five per cent per annum.

The delinquency provision in the Georgia Act is five per cent of the amount delinquent, not five per cent per annum. Most small loan operators are conscientious and honest. A Georgia citizen who operates improperly, when you are in urgent and legitimate need of a $100 loan, always first consult your Army Emergency Relief Fund. This is a loan, not a gift. You qualify here, but in the event this request is denied, select your lender with care.

CHANGE IN STUDENT WALKING ROUTES . . . At opening of Fort Benning schools, parents were informed of designated walking routes for students, location of military police and safety patrols. Since that time additional control has been added at Sigerfoos and Vibbert, allowing use of a more direct route for some students as shown by drawing. Parents are urged by post safety officials to encourage students to use the designated routes for safer journeys to school.

Army Slices Movement Frequency

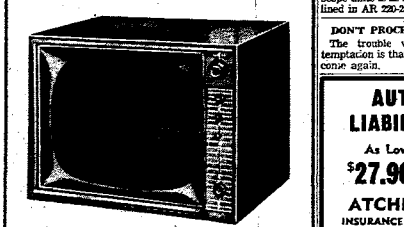

WASHINGTON (ANS)—In an effort to save money and achieve greater stabilization, the Department of Army has set a hard and fast rule that Permanent Change of Station travel will be authorized only on a "military necessity" basis in the future.

According to newly published AR 614-8, policies applicable to all personnel include:

- Individuals will not be reassigned just for the purpose of a change of assignment or because they have completed a stabilized tour.
- Personnel on stabilized tours of duty will not be moved except as provided in AR 614-8. The maximum number of facility replacements at Service Schools will be obtained from members of graduating classes attending courses of instruction in a PCS status from the replacement.
- Individuals normally will not be moved during the last year of their term of service or within a year of mandatory retirement except for return to the U.S. by personnel completing a normal foreign service tour.
- Personnel on overseas commands will not be moved except for compelling military reasons during the fiscal year in which they are scheduled to return to the U.S. or Territory of residence. If an individual has completed an intra-theater PCS move during the fiscal year of return, approval for return must be obtained from the Secretary of the Army.
- The minimum overseas tour requirement for career officers and Regular Army enlisted personnel assigned to gyroscopic units is 28 months as outlined in AR 220-20.

On Friday the readings will be conducted at 8 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1546 13th Avenue. Sunday and Monday they will be held at 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m., respectively, at the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, 1251 Wynnton Road.

The tryouts are open to the public and anyone interested in participating in any field of theatre is invited.

REP. CEDERBERG Outstanding Graduate

OCS Honors Cederberg Of Michigan

Rep. Elford "Al" Cederberg, Congressman from Michigan, is being honored as one of the outstanding graduates of Officer Candidate School. His picture and a brief summary of his civilian and military career are being placed in Wiggin Hall, the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame.

Representative Cederberg began his military career in 1941 and was commissioned in July, 1942, when he graduated from Officer Candidate School Class No. 28. He was assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division with which he served through the Korean War. He served as a platoon leader, battalion plans and operations officer, division headquarters commander, and executive officer division special troops. He landed with the 3rd Division at Normandy and fought with it across France and Germany. He won five campaign battle stars and the Bronze Star Medal. He was discharged with the rank of captain in 1945.

Rep. Cederberg first entered politics in 1949 when he successfully ran for mayor of Roy City, Mich. He held that office until he was elected to Congress in 1952. He is a member of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

TSB Leads In Re-Ups

Members of The School Brigade continue to take the six-man "Re-Up" seriously as 61.2 per cent of those eligible re-enlisted during August to lead all major units at Fort Benning.

Sgt. John H. Lennon, School Brigade re-enlistment NCO, has been named re-enlistment NCO of the month, after accomplishing the re-enlistment of an average of 51 men.

The School Brigade now also leads all other major units at Fort Benning with a yearly average of 61.2 per cent for the calendar year. Martin Army Hospital is second with 57.8 per cent.

Sgt. Lennon pointed out that the Infantry School Detachment's re-enlistment NCO, Sgt. John E. Farley, contributed 37 re-enlistments. This was more than any other unit in the Brigade.

YAC Will Elect New Officers September 16

Youth Activities Club will hold its annual election of officers Sept. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in Bldg. 1054 in the old hospital.

Officers to be elected are the president of the Board of Governors, first, second and third vice-presidents.

Col. Roy A. Murray, president of the Youth Activities Club and Infantry Center G-3, urges all members of the organization to attend the election meeting. Fort Benning parents of children from 5 to 20 years of age who are not members are also invited to attend and to join the club.

751 Begin, End Classes

Eight classes totaling 751 students will begin or end at The Infantry School this week. Sept. 8, 50 students entered airborne training and 55 began radio maintenance instruction. Ranger badges were awarded to 87 candidates on Training Field No. 21 in the Harmony Church area.

Other classes beginning during the week includes a 45-man motor transportation class. Sept. 10, Infantry officers leaders class, totaling 200 students. Sept. 11, and a rifle marks-

SEEK FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH
WASHINGTON (ANS) — A group of lively 80-year-old Massachusetts veterans has been amassing Veterans Administration doctors who are trying to learn the secret of the "old timers' long life and vitality. VA officials say 150 of these senior citizens have been examined and studied to date and they appear to be 20 years younger than their actual age. They seem typical of some 1,600 remaining veterans of the Spanish-American War. The VA doctors are probing the "why" of their long life in search of "leads" to the treatment and care of other aging veterans as well as non-vets.

COMMUNITY DRIVE... Key Fund drive sponsored by the 577th Engineer Battalion... Lt. Alton Howard, drive captain; Sgt. James P. Anderson, drive member for Company H and Lt. Col. Mel Lewis, drive member for Company H and Lt. Col. Edwin H. Fanning, battalion commander; Sgt. James H. Stapp, drive member for Company H; Sgt. E. McCarrick, drive member for Company A; and Sgt. Billy Drury, battalion sergeant major.

Community Drive $24,150 Contributed In First Two Weeks

At the end of its first two weeks the Fort Benning Community Activities Association fund drive has reached $24,150 exceeding the established, fair share target of $1,170 per unit.

Fort Benning's annual community fund raising campaign opened Aug. 25 and will run through Nov. 7. The first two weeks period covers one of the three military pay periods included in the total time in which the drive will be conducted.

Unit of the week for the second week period was the 577th Engineer Battalion of the 151st Engineer Group overhauling their goal with 100 per cent donations. The four companies of the battalion contributed $11,100 exceeding the established, fair share target of $1,170 per unit.

Additional units achieving 100 per cent participation in the past week include the office of the commanding general, assistant commander, deputy commanding general, chief of staff and secretary of the general staff, the Infantry Center G-3 Section and the Reserve Component Section which reached a 172 per cent.

The Second Infantry Division with a top unit goal of $27,000 has already reached $1,200. Lt. Col. Amel L. Cox is chairman of the division campaign with Capt. Thomas W. Valenteen serving as division project officer.

TO DISPLAY LATEST WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Association of the United States Army, at its annual meeting to be held Oct. 20-22, will present 16,000 square feet of exhibits in the latest industrial developments in military fields. The exhibits, as well as the meeting, will be in Washington's Sheraton Park Hotel.

They were honored at an official luncheon Sept. 8 in the Main Officers' Mess.

While at the post, the Allied guests will be oriented on the organization of the Infantry School's officers advanced basic, NCO, airborne and Ranger courses, prerequisites for selection of instructors and students, instructional facilities and student participation in field problems.

Before coming to Fort Benning, they visited Fort McPherson, Ga., Sept. 6 for discussions on the organization and functions of Third Army and Third Army's relationship to the ROTC program.

On Sept. 16 Coffman to Address Management Group

Joe W. Coffman, president of the Technifax Corporation of Holyoke, Mass., will address the Fort Benning chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association Tuesday night, (meeting Sept. 16 at the Main Officers' Open Mess. His presentation of the regular "Who's Why" as a "Professional manager." He is considered one of the outstanding speakers in the nation.

Although he is an inventor, a teacher and an enthusiastic aviator, Coffman is listed in "Who's Who" as a "Professional manager." He is considered one of the outstanding speakers in the nation. During World War I, he was an Army pilot in the AEP in France. He has maintained his interest in aviation and will fly his own plane when he comes here for this speaking engagement.

Coffman began his career as a teacher of visual education in a Georgia school. Later he held the position of Visual Education Supervisor in Atlanta. Leaving the teaching field, he entered the motion picture industry and directed the first sound picture of a grand opera. Although he enjoyed directing, his inventive abilities eventually led him into the film processing phase of the business. He became executive vice president of Consolidated Film and helped organize Republic Pictures.

For five years, Coffman was general manager of the Ozark Division of General Electric and Film Corporation. He left this position to establish the Technifax Corporation, which is now one of the largest manufacturers in the technical field. The corporation conducts continuing research on the development of projection equipment and the techniques of its use by the Armed Services as an instructional aid.

RC Had Key Role in Crisis With Cuba

The International Committee of the Red Cross played an important part in the release of 283 prisoners held by Fidel Castro's leader of the rebel forces in Cuba. On July 4, the ICRC received a message from Castro stating that he was prepared to hand over to a commission of the Cuban Red Cross the wounded and sick of the Cuban Government forces who were in his hands. The ICRC sent one of its delegates to Havana to assist the Cuban Red Cross in carrying out this humanitarian task.

Agreement had to be reached by the two parties as to the time and place for the transfer. This was a particularly difficult problem. The region is mountainous and difficult, and the journey would be a great ordeal for the severely wounded. It was quickly realized that, in these circumstances, the Cuban Red Cross could not effect the operation alone, and that assistance must be requested from the government.

AMU Sets Record In National Match

Army shooters blistered the National Match Course Sept. 5 to set a new record of 3,475 of a possible 1,500 points in the National Trophy Team Match.

The winners captured the first three places in the match with Advanced Marksmanship Unit teams grabbing first and third places in a Second Army team taking second.

The results were somewhat of an upset in view of record-breaking performances by a Marine team in Sept. 4, Enlisted Men's and Roundball Match.

Marines scored The best the Marine could manage in the National Trophy Match, however, was a distant fourth place, 19 points behind the winning Army team.

The Army AMU Blue Team was led by Pfc Philip Toloczko, who drilled 59 straight shots into the bull's eye for a perfect 250 score. Eighteen of the hits were in the inner ring.

Toloczko's performance overshadowed his teammates' efforts. Sgt. William Krilling added a 245-15, while Sgt. Norman Skarposas, a 245-24 and Sgt. Max Herrera, a 245-37, rounding out the team's total score. Sgt. Ronald Turner with 244-16 and M-Sgt. Alfred O'Neill with 244-15.

Beats Record The team score of 1,475-120 beat the old record of 1,440 by 35 points.

Record-breaking was the order of the day as all of the top seven teams bettered the previous mark.

Second Army's Red Team shot a 1,452-120 total for second money. The Fort Meade based team was paced by Sfc Charles Hamilton with a 245-18 total. Capt. William Bassham and Pfc Donald Watts added 244 scores, while Bassham hit and a 245-19, Sfc Col. E. R. Stevens had a 242-14 and Sgt. Roy Ambler racked up 246-10 to complete the team's total.

The AMU came back to grab third place with its Grey Team. (Please see AMU, Page 15)

Navy Cup Match Taken By AMU Fier at Perry

CAMP PERRY, Ohio — An Army specialist fired a "possible" score of 109-7 to win the coveted Navy Cup match in the National Rifle Championships here.

Sgt. Milton Nagrone firing with the Army Rifle Team, edged out Sgt. Frank Green, who fired the same score, but lost on the tie-breaking "v" count.

A "v" ring is a four-inch circle in the center of the bullseye, which is used to break ties.

Making his sixth appearance at the National Match, Nagrone fired his winning score over the difficult Navy Cup course consisting of 20 shots at 200 yards, slow fire, from the standing position.

Nagrone, who is a member of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit from Fort Benning, received the National Rifle and Pistol Championships at Peekskill, N. Y., and the Corresponding General's Match (USARFAC) at Hawaii. He received his Distinguished Marksman Badge in 1955, an award which indicates superior marksmanship in rifle competition.

AMU Claims Shooters Of 46 Areas Forty-three states, the District of Columbia and two territorial possessions of the U.S. are represented in the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit team to secure the flags of the National Rifle and Pistol Championships at Camp Perry, Ohio.

And the modern day counterpart of Daniel Boone, doesn't come from Kentucky but from California. Following the Horace Greeley tradition the young shooters went west. AMU has 25 shooters on its roster from that state.

In second place is that famed shooting iron state of Texas. Eighteen Texans are outstanding shots on the AMU rifle and pistol teams.

The new state, Alaska, boasts 14 rifle AMU shooters. The territorial possession of Hawaii has six of the unit's marksmen and Puerto Rico has one.

As a tribute to the wide representation in this unit, Col. E. R. Masson, of Columbia, S.C., commander, has started a program to secure the flags of the states represented.

The hopes to decorate the AMU headquarters at Fort Benning with the flags and also to display them at shooting on numerous occasions in the coming year.

29th Infantry Grabs Lead In Post Boxing Contests

First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, jumped to a hefty lead in boxing competition at Fort Benning by scoring 28 points in the 47-point major unit mitt open Sept. 4.

Boxers from 29th Infantry won four out of six bouts staged on the card and gained three victories by forfeits. Six fights on an originally scheduled 12-bout card were ruled forfeits.

The Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, chalked up four points, Second Division Trainees, Second Division Troop Command, and second Medium Tank Battalion, 98th Armored, three.

In one of the top bouts of the evening, Earnest Brown of the 29th gained revenge for an earlier defeat by Ronald Johnson with a clear cut decision over Johnson on a unanimous close call.

The match can be played by either threesomes or foursomes and may be played at any time during the period of the tournament.

Two Events Open To Golfer in Sept.

Stephen Brown

Local winter and USGA rules will prevail. Match play for the month of September. The first is on Sept. 13 when the monthly medal tournament will be played.

You can register now for the monthly medal at the Pro Shop. Prizes will be merchandise from the shop and just as a tip quite a lot of new fall golf apparel has arrived. In this tournament your fall handicaps counts and it's as difficult to win as you might think.

Paul Bumann, the club pro, says there'll be a surprise gimmick to this tournament that everyone should enjoy. The usual entrance fee of $2.00 applies. By the way, if a change or some unforeseen event prevents you from playing after you sign up, the club will call so other arrangements and pairings can be made.

Big Event of Month The second big event in September is the beginning of the Fall Handicap Tournament. This is one of the big golf events, if not the biggest, of the year. Starting date is Sept. 20 to sign up NOW. The tournament will run until Nov. 9.

All male officers members of the Officers' Club are eligible. Handicaps will be based on the member's last 10 posted scores to include those for rounds played Sept. 7. Entrants who have no handicap will be allowed to play at scratch if they wish. If anyone has a handicap posted score, the total of these will be doubled and the appropriate handicap selected. In case a member has more than five and less than 10 posted scores, the total of the five low scores will be doubled and the handicap selected. Pairings

Prizes Stated Prizes for each night winner and runner-up will be given. Trophies, in addition to flight prizes, will be awarded the tournament champion and runner-up. There'll be a cocktail party at which the prizes and trophies will be awarded at the end of the tournament.

Entries must be made prior to 6 p.m. Sept. 17. A $1 fee to be paid at time of entry is all it costs. An absent member can be entered by another member providing the entry fee is paid at that time. Pairings and playing schedule will be posted by Sept. 19.

Remember this is your tournament and your club. Make your entry for both these fine tournaments now. In addition each entrant has a chance to become the club handicap champion in the fall handicap tourney. See you on the links.

AMU (Thank You For Continuing) composed of Sgt. Noah Bailey, SP5 Milton Nagrone, Sfc Gordon Voss, Sgt. Lawrence LaCoe, Major Robert Lowe and Sfc Lloyd Crow.

High Score Bailey fired the squad's high score, a 246-20. Other individuals were: Sgt. Norman Sharpness, 246-19; Voss, 243-20; LaCoe, 243-18; Lowe, 242-19; and Crow, 239-15.

The AMU Grey total of 1,457-114 put them one point ahead of the top Marine unit, the Blue Squad which on Thursday broke records in both the Enlisted Men's and Roundball Trophy Matches. The Marine score of 1,456 included 59 write-offs.

A Navy team finished fifth with a 1,447-90 score. The Sept. 5 triumph gave the Army a sweep of the National Trophy Team events. An AMU team earlier had taken the National Trophy Team Match.

The double victory in the team competition ended the sting of losing both individual championships to Marine competitors.

Two Big Ten games to be announced Oct. 11 and Nov. 17. The first is between the Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 22; and Miami City, Oregon, Nov. 22; and the second is between the Holy Cross at Boston (split network) Dec. 6.

Tennis Finals Slated Sunday for Officers

The Fall Tennis Tournament continues its fall swing with semi-finals scheduled for Sept. 13 and finals in all divisions slated for Sept. 14. The event will play off to a fast start last Sept. 6 with a number of matches in all but mixed doubles being played. There have been few upsets or surprises thus far in the play. The established players seem to be holding their own and this is particularly true for the Annual Officers' Club Tournaments where in recent years a new comer has always shown up in one of the top slots. This has been particularly true in the men's singles division.

In men's singles it looks as though the strongest contenders are the veterans of previous tournaments, Col. D. W. Yoder, and Capt. Henry Sprague. In senior men's singles, there are three veterans still in the running, Col. Yoder, Col. Morrell and Major Owen O. Osborne. In the men's doubles another three way fight is shaping up between Col. Joseph J. Morrell and Col. Ed W. Smith, Col. Yoder and Major Sprague, and Capt. Sprague and Lt. Joseph J. Morrell. Morrell and Smith defeated in the finals of the Spring Tennis tourney due to leg injury suffered by Morrell. Col. Yoder was a member of the team that defeated the Marine team and having lost his partner, Col. Roger M. Lindley, he has teamed up with an old teammate from Fifth Army days, Major McHugh. Capt. Sprague was runner-up champion in the Spring tournament and his partner Lt. McDaniel is a relatively new comer to post, this being his second tournament but his first to play with the Captain.

The women's singles is still wide open, but it is expected that it will boil down to Mrs. Sprague and Mrs. J. J. Morrell. These are the same two who have been together only a short time. Due to their victory in the Columbus tournament, Mrs. Kearns won that match. Mrs. Kearns is newly arrived from Germany and Miss Jarecki is familiar face around the club formerly having worked at the Pro Shop at the Club and being girls' champion in the Columbus tournament as well as a veteran of the Spring Officers' Club Tournament.

Mixed doubles will certainly create considerable interest, since this is the first time they have been played in the Officers' Club Tournaments. There will be a number of strong but called by Chuck Everett, Guy hand and wife formed as well as some new teams. Immediately following these matches by Brig. Gen. John K. Ruppel, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center. The public is invited though soon to be the favorites. To see the matches.

Prizes Stated Prizes for each night winner and runner-up will be given. Trophies, in addition to flight prizes, will be awarded the tournament champion and runner-up. There'll be a cocktail party at which the prizes and trophies will be awarded at the end of the tournament.

Entries must be made prior to 6 p.m. Sept. 17. A $1 fee to be paid at time of entry is all it costs. An absent member can be entered by another member providing the entry fee is paid at that time. Pairings and playing schedule will be posted by Sept. 19.

Remember this is your tournament and your club. Make your entry for both these fine tournaments now. In addition each entrant has a chance to become the club handicap champion in the fall handicap tourney. See you on the links.

Battery C recently received three M-59 Armored Personnel Carriers to supplement the two M-52 Self-Propelled M16mm howitzers already on hand. The new M-59s are a full-tracked vehicle offering a high degree of mobility and protection from small arms fire for those personnel who are not members of the M-52 "hog" crews. The helicopter commander and executive officer, are each in command of an armored Personnel Carrier and the third M-59 is utilized by the detail section.

SFC Woodrow W. Bush, 13th Platoon, and Pfc John M. Kibben are on leaves with their families. Battery A The Labor Day weekend brought several changes to Batteries A and D in terms of assignments and leaves. New assignments were as follows: Capt. John C. Maurer, formerly with Battery C had been assigned as battery commander in place of Capt. Wesley S. Turner who moved to battalion staff as battalion liaison officer. Additional assignments were: 1st Lt. James B. Seibel, Headquarters Battery, and 1st Lt. Eddie C. Owen, Battery A, were assigned to Battery D.

1st Lt. Cecil H. Grimes, former supply officer and helicopter evaluation pilot of the 37th Medical Detachment, left last week to attend the Fried-Wing School at Camp Gray, Tex. He is being replaced as supply officer by 1st Lt. Singletary, who was assigned to the detachment from the Officers' Student Detachment, AMPS, at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. The 37th Medical Detachment's operations officer, Capt. Louis A. Evans, was promoted to his present grade in August. He is also a helicopter pilot. A mass casualty evacuation by two helicopters of the 37th Medical Detachment was conducted recently with providing first hospitalization and medical treatment for 12 patients. One person injured in a collision between two armored personnel carriers. The accident occurred late in the afternoon of Aug. 20 at the Schley "Pond" area when the helicopter was being refueled by the crew. The vehicle behind crashed into the carrier ahead of it and injured several of the occupants. A call to the 37th Medical Detachment for an emergency evacuation was made the first within five minutes the first helicopter was winged in way to the accident area. Arriving at the scene, the pilot, 1st Lt.

assigned to Headquarters Battery is assigned to S-1. Sgt. Joseph J. Parrish, Pfc Frank Langston Jr., Pfc Donald L. Williams, and Pfc William J. Bullock are on leave. Battery E S-2s-Artilery S-2s-Capt. O. B. Williams leaves the battery soon to attend the HEH HEH! YOUR FATHER TRUSTS GOOCH IMPLICITLY!

WELL, GOOCH--

NOT EXACTLY!

YOUR BROTHER MUST MAKE A LOT OF GREEN STUFF TO BE ABLE TO SEND YOU A WATCH LIKE THAT FOR YOUR BIRTHDAY.

HE'S BEEN MAKIN' A BUNDLE EVER SINCE HE JOINED THE CIRGUS.

HE GETS $300 A WEEK FOR SWALLOWIN' A FOUR FOOT SWORD.

WHAT'S SO SPECIAL ABOUT THAT? I'VE SEEN GUYS IN THE CIRGUS SWALLOW BIGGER SWORDS THAN FOUR FEET LONG.

GOODNIGHT, DADDY!

YEAH, BUT MY BROTHER'S ONLY THREE FEET TALL!

FLOSSIE

YOUR NEW CAR IS THE MOST, SARGE! HOW ABOUT LETTING ME DRIVE IT?

ER--OH--ER--I SUPPOSE IT'LL BE ALL RIGHT, FLOSSIE!

HEY, WHY DIDN'T YOU STOP FOR THAT RED LIGHT?

WHEN YOU'VE SEEN ONE, YOU'VE SEEN THEM ALL!

FLOSSIE, THIS CAR IS SO NEW--MAYBE I BETTER DRIVE!

WELL, IF YOU ARE GOING TO WORRY, I'LL STEP ON THE BRAKE!

OH, NOW SILLY OF ME! I STEPPED ON THE GAS INSTEAD!

I DON'T KNOW IF YOU'VE NOTICED, SARGE, BUT THE CAR DOESN'T LOOK SO NEW ANY LONGER, SO--

I DON'T SUPPOSE YOU'LL OBJECT TO MY DRIVING IT NOW!

Millie & Terry

HEY, MILLIE! HEY, TERRY!

IT'S THAT TELEVISION! THAT'S WHY THEY'RE NOT PAYING ANY ATTENTION TO US!

OH, ISN'T HE A SCREAM!

WOULDN'T MISS HIM FOR THE WORLD!

LOOKS LIKE WE AREN'T GOING TO GET ANY ATTENTION TONITE!

SAY

I'VE GOT AN IDEA, JACK! LET'S GO OUT AND BUY THE GALS A GIFT-- THAT'LL TAKE THEIR MINDS OFF TV!

NOW YOU'RE COOKIN' WITH GAS!!

OH, LOOK, TERRY! WHAT A LOVABLE, ADORABLE PUPPY!

P--SSST! THEY'VE FINALLY TAKEN THEIR EYES OFF THAT PICTURE BOX!

OH, HE'S A DOLL! SPEAK, BABY--SPEAK!

YOUR NOSE IS COLD-- YOU'RE A HEALTHY PUPPY!

HEY, MILLIE-- TERRY-- WE ARE OVER HERE!

ISN'T HE THE CUTEST LITTLE THING!

HE LOVES US, TERRY-- LOOK! HIS TAIL IS WAGGING!

OH, WELL-- WE MAY AS WELL WATCH TV!

CUTTING CORNERS

Bargain hunters will note that September is the best month to buy silverware, glassware, dishes, beef, honey and cosmetics. . . . Refinishing scratched furniture has almost been turned into a pleasure by a new liquid paint remover that eliminates scraping, sanding and all effort. Just wipe it on, leave for a few minutes, then wipe it off. . . . That "Sack Look" has even invaded the classic, cashmere sweater line. The waistline has disappeared and in its place is a straight hip-length model. . . . If you're still cooking outdoors, try a well-marbled steak, one with streaks of fat between the strips of lean meat. This insures the steak's tenderness.

It is estimated that 90 per cent of an automobile driver's actions and decisions are based on what he sees, says the Better Vision Institute. Yet in spite of the tremendous importance of keen vision, nearly all the States are lax about visual requirements for drivers. In two States a blind man could not be refused a driver's license on account of his eye condition, since no tests of vision are required. Furthermore, in most States you could continue to have your license renewed each year even though you had gone blind, since there is no re-examination of applicant's eyes. Driving a car demands the best vision it is possible to obtain. A normal pair of eyes can see things over a horizontal arc, to right and left, of nearly 180 degrees, while looking straight ahead. And you can see sideways nearly as well when driving, say, at 20 m.p.h. But as you rise to 60 the lines of vision swing in from the sides, like a closing fan pivoted on your eyes. At top speeds we really see very little at the side of the road. And you cannot actually see an object as it whizzes past the side of the car at 60, even if you turn to look at it. That's why you might completely fail to see a car coming down a side road toward you. Car vision also affects the eyes in another and far different way. This has to do with the all important matter of judging distances of objects coming at you in a straight line, which is the worst possible position for judging speed. Why? Because most of the cues and tips by which we judge speed, such as the movement of an object across the field of another which is not moving, are lacking or imperfect. What can be done about the tricky angles of car vision? First, the driver should keep in mind that he or she is in a of when you looked your worst, rather than your best. Each night before you retire, select the clothes you will wear the next day, inspect them, and repair any seams that need mending, iron creases out, and remove spots. Army Orders New Rifle, Machine Gun

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The Army has been given a green light by the Defense Department to start mass production of the test-proven new M16 rifle and M60 machine gun.

The improved, lightweight arms, which eventually will replace seven infantry weapons for soldiers and marines, will be built under an initial $30 million production program.

Dulles Reveals U. S. Policy for Far East

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the text of a statement made Sept. 4 by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles defining U. S. policy on the Far East crisis.)

"I have reviewed in detail with the President the serious situation which has resulted from aggressive Chinese Communist military actions in the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait area. The President has authorized me to make the following statement:

"1. Neither Taiwan nor the Pescadore and Matsui have ever been under the authority of the Chinese Communists. Since the end of the Second World War, a period of over thirteen years, they have continuously been under the authority of free China, that is, the Republic of China.

"2. The United States is bound by treaty to help to defend Taiwan from armed attack and the President is authorized by joint resolution of the Congress to employ the Armed Forces of the United States for the securing and protecting of related positions such as Quemoy and Matsu.

"3. Any attempt on the part of the Chinese Communist now to seize these positions or any of them would be a crude violation of the principles upon which order is based, namely, that no country should use armed force to seize new territory.

"4. The Chinese Communist have, for about two weeks, been subjecting Quemoy to heavy artillery bombardment and by air force and use of small naval craft, they have been harassing the regular supply of the civilian and military population of the Quemoy, which totals some 125,000 people. The official Peiping radio repeatedly announces the purpose of these military operations is to take by armed force Taiwan, as well as Quemoy and Matsui. In virtually every Peiping broadcast Taiwan and the offshore islands are linked as the objective of what is called the Chinese People's Liberation Army.

"5. Despite, however, what the Chinese Communists say, and as far as we know, it is not yet certain that their purpose is in fact to make an all-out effort to conquer by force Taiwan and the offshore islands. Neither is it apparent that such efforts as are being made or may be made, cannot be contained by the courageous, and purely defensive, efforts of the forces of the Republic of China, with such substantial logistical support as the United States is providing.

"6. The joint resolution of Congress, above referred to, includes a finding to the effect that the position by friendly governments of the western Pacific island chain, of which Formosa is a part, is essential to the vital interests of the United States and all friendly nations in the bordering upon the Pacific Ocean. It further authorizes the President to employ the Armed Forces of the United States for the protection not only of Formosa but for the securing and protection of such related positions and territories of that area now in friendly hands and the taking of such other measures as he judges to be required or appropriate in insuring the defense of Formosa in view of the situation outlined in the preceding paragraph. The President has not yet made any finding under that resolution that the employment of the Armed Forces of the United States as required or appropriate in insuring the defense of Formosa. The President would not, however, hesitate to make such a finding if he judged that the circumstances made this necessary to accomplish the purpose of the joint resolution.

J. E. HENDERSON Gets Hall of Fame Honor

OCS Honors Henderson

Rep. John E. Henderson, congressman from Ohio, is being honored as one of the outstanding graduates of Officer Candidate School. His picture and a brief summary of his civilian and military career are being placed in Wigle Hall, Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame.

Rep. Henderson entered the Army in August, 1942, graduate from Officer Candidate School and was assigned to the 26th Infantry Division. He saw combat service with the 29th Division in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. Toward the close of the war he received the assignment of combat historian and accompanied several combat units in strategic maneuvers with the enemy following hostilities. He was assigned to the Historical Division of the European Theater in Paris as an historical editor. Rep. Henderson was re-elected to Congress in 1956 and has served as a member of the Banking and Currency Committee.

any finding under that resolution that the employment of the Armed Forces of the United States as required or appropriate in insuring the defense of Formosa. The President would not, however, hesitate to make such a finding if he judged that the circumstances made this necessary to accomplish the purpose of the joint resolution.

"In this connection, we have recognized that the securing and protecting of Taiwan and the offshore islands are increasingly becoming related to the defense of Taiwan. This indeed also has been recognized by the Chinese Communists. Military dispositions have been made by the United States so that a presidential determination, if made, would be followed by action both timely and effective.

"7. The President and I earnestly hope that the Chinese Communist regime will not again, as in the case of Korea, defy the basic principle upon which world order depends, namely, that armed force should not be used to achieve territorial ambitions. Any such action, if taken, would pose an issue transcending the offshore islands and even the security of Taiwan. It would forecast a widespread use of force in the Far East which would endanger vital free world positions and the security of the United States. Acquisitive territoriality threatens peace everywhere.

"8. We believe that the civilized world can and will never condone open military conquests as a legitimate instrument of policy.

"9. The United States has not, however, abandoned hope that Peiping will stop short of an attempt at conquest for peace. This will not require it to abandon its claims, and I am confident that extended negotiations which the United States and Chinese Communist regime conducted at Geneva between 1953 and 1956, a sustained effort was made by the U.S. to secure, with particular reference to the Taiwan area, a declaration of mutual and reciprocal renunciation of force, except in self-defense which however, would be without prejudice to the pursuit of policies by peaceful means. We believe, however, that such a course of standard constitutes the only civilized and acceptable procedure. The United States intends to follow that course so far as is concerned, unless and until the Chinese Communists, by their acts, leave us no choice but to react in defense of the principles to which all peace-loving governments are dedicated."

LARGEST SUPPLIER

The Red Cross, a partner in the Community Activities Fund drive, is the biggest source of supplies for whole blood used by hospitals for transfusions; a recent survey showed that in the year it provided 38 per cent. Some 2,200 got all their blood from the Red Cross, and, in other, 1,700 obtained some of their supplies of the precious fluid from the ARC Blood Program.

54th Stages Mock Battles With Reserve

On Aug. 22 a small group of commando-type soldiers comprising the 54th Medical Group for Fort Mitchell, Ala., simulated an attack on reserve forces attached to the 54th Medical Group for summer training.

The small striking force was led by Lt. Col. Peter S. Soles, commanding officer of the 54th Medical Group. The invading group infiltrated the area, overpowered the reserves' security force, and overpowered the defenders. The attack was the climax to aggressor action which was in progress during the reserve training period.

The first attack in the series took place in the still of the evening and caught the defenders by surprise and enabled the invading force to overrun the reserves. Having won the initial attack against the defending forces, Lt. Col. Soles planned another onslaught on the foe. His planing was intensified when he received a letter of challenge from the reserves. The challenge was promptly acknowledged and the next battle was fought in the woods.

Fashion Show Highlights Center Wives Lunch

A fashion show highlighted the first fall luncheon of the Infantry Center Wives Group, held at 12:30 p.m. Sept. 10 in the Main Officers' Open Mess. The wives of the First Infantry Brigade, Infantry Center Comptroller and Finance Sections, were hostesses for the affair attended by 160 women. Arrangements for the luncheon and fashion show were made by Mesdames Lloyd B. Rams-

Paul J. Jarrett, Robert G. Sherrard and Robert A. Roberts. Fashion magazines spilling the latest in scarfs, gloves and jewelry in combination with fall leaves centered the white oval tables. Mrs. William M. Linton, president, welcomed the new members of the club and the many guests in attendance. During the brief business meeting, Mrs. Linton announced that there would not be a luncheon in October and that the annual USAIG party would be held Oct. 17 in the Main Officers' Mess. Announcements about the women's trip to Atlanta, a call for volunteers to work at the third shop and the date for tryouts for the Masquers were made.

Mrs. Linton then introduced Mrs. Glenn H. Gardner, commentator for the "Fashions for Fall" style show arranged by Southern Casual with an assist from Miller Taylor who provided the show. Models were Mesdames J. B. Monk Jr., Edwin A. Bessler, Lawrence B. H. King, Howard P. Peiss, Myron E. Lee and William A. Quinn.

Musical background was provided by Pfc. Jack Fuller of the Fort Benning Entertainment Workshop.

The door prize was won by Mrs. William R. Lettner. New members of the club include Mesdames John F. T. Murray, Ralph Raskin, Robert G. Sherrard Jr., Arthur H. Baldwin, Richard C. Wittman, Allen E. Beard, Stuart Mitchell, E. F. Holm, Freeman Jones and David Doane.

Infantry Board Unit Gets Col. Robbins As Test Chief

LT. Col. Hugh W. Robbins has been assigned as a test officer to the FE and SP Department of the Infantry Board.

Col. Robbins last assignment was assistant chief of staff, G-1, with the 23rd Infantry Division in Hawaii.

Capt. Thomas H. Wilson Jr. received an Infantry Board certification of achievement from Col. Henry B. Kungig, Board president, for his outstanding work as a test project officer with the Mortar and Surveillance Department, Capt. Wilson departed for a tour in Korea.

LT. Col. Woodward H. Myers, ordnance advisor, was promoted to the present rank of LTJG by department of Army special orders. Col. Myers was assigned to the Board in July. Capt. James C. Johnston has been assigned as supply officer of the Infantry Board to replace Major Robert L. Wiser who will be leaving shortly for an assignment in Korea. Capt. Johnston joined the Board from the Third Infantry Division in May and has been a test officer with the FE and SP Department.

Sgt. Glen Hall, who has been assigned as a cook in the Infantry Board's detachment, re-enlisted for six years to fill his own vacancy. Hall was assigned to the Board in June. Eighteen enlisted men from the Second Infantry division joined the Infantry Board during the week of Aug. 17. Assignments to the test department are delayed until security clearances are obtained, according to Capt. Richard Auger, detachment commander.

After occupying the same buildings for more than 16 years, the School Brigade, along with its Headquarters and Headquarters Company, has moved to older but more durable quarters.

Sept. 13 saw the end of a tenancy that began June 29, 1942, when the School Brigade (then the Student Training Regiment) was activated and has been housed in Buildings 1400 and 1403 without change since that time.

New location of Headquarters, School Brigade, is Section 1, Building 399 of the First Quarter, Headquarters and Headquarters Company is now located in Building 17 of the Second Quarter.

Battery Awarded $100 In Ticket-Selling Contest At Benning

Mortar Battery sold the most tickets for the Grande Prix, sponsored by the Fort Benning Hunt Club and won a prize of $100 for the effort. The Battery had its Pre-IG inspection Sept. 10.

Sgt. Mitchell Anderson, headquarters platoon, is awaiting arrival of a new offering. Pfc. Lowell Miller, canonier of 42 mortar has been discharged from service. He makes his home in Cullman, Ala.

Company B Several Company B NCOs have been placed on special duty with the Main Post motor pool.

The barracks and equipment have been getting a face lifting from the men as well as the Post Engineers due to the forthcoming Inspector General inspection to be held around Oct. 6.

Twenty-two men from Company A are currently fighting Korean students and the swamps at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., while playing the part of aggressor troops.

Richard Huffman was promoted to SP4 last week while Bobby Bradley, Patrick Bradley, Bobby Helm and Max Goshorn made Pfc.

29th Infantry News Capt. Phipps Assumes Company Command

Capt. Henry D. Phipps assumed command of Company B, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry Sept. 9. He succeeds Capt. James J. DeFratra, who has commanded the unit since June 1957.

Capt. Phipps joined the 29th Infantry Sept. 9. He succeeded Capt. James J. DeFratra, who has commanded the unit since June 1957.

Capt. DeFratra was re-assigned as assistant plans, training, and operations officer of the battle group. He is expecting a branch transfer to the Medical Service Corps shortly.

A native of Johnson City, Tenn., Capt. Phipps was commissioned in the Regular Army in 1952 upon graduation from the University of Tennessee. Between 1953-54, he served in Korea and received the Purple Heart and Bronze Star Medal.

In 1955, he completed a one-year course in Persian at the Army Language School at Fresno, Calif.

He served as an enlisted man from May, 1945 to November, 1946, including a tour of duty in Germany.

151st Engineer News 577th 1st Battalion To Top Drive's Goal

The 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) is the first unit in the 151st Engineer Group (Combat) to complete the "Fair Share Goal" with a contribution of 100 per cent in community activities each company.

The 577th was also the first battalion size unit on post to exceed its goal.

The 577th is preparing to go "all the way" for its Organizational Day program Sept. 19. Originally scheduled for July 15, commemorative of the day the organization was activated at Camp Pickett, Va. in 1942, military conditions deemed the postponement of a formal observance until Sept. 19.

The day will be observed with the unit holding an open house throughout the battalion area, and suspended normal training for the day. Competitive events have already scheduled the sports of friendly inter-company rivalry. Drill and competition will be held between companies, each to be represented by one platoon.

Composed of three 10-man squads, 1st Lt. DeFratra and a platoon sergeant drill master, Sgt. Paul J. Richards was selected last week as the 29th soldier-of-the-week for the second time. He is the first member of the battle group to win the honor twice. He was first elected last April.

43 to Receive Badges Today

Parachutists badges will be awarded to 43 new paratroopers on Fort Benning's Fryar Field today at 10 a.m.

Approximately 120 other graduates will receive the gold bars of second lieutenants in graduation ceremonies at 3 p.m. in the Main Theater Sept. 18.

Among the classes that will be at the Infantry School this week are a 50-man airborne class Sept. 15 and an officers associate advanced class, totaling 100 students, Sept. 17. Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larson, Infantry School assistant commander, spoke at welcoming ceremonies for the latter at 8:30 a.m. in Walker Hall.

Football Season Doughboys Open Here Sept. 25

Fort Benning football fans will get their first look at the Doughboy football team Sept. 25 when they take on the Bessemer Rebels, a strong semi-pro team from Birmingham, Ala. The Rebels will be led by Billy Hicks, a former All American fullback from Jackson State Teachers College and now the property of the Washington Redskins. All home games will be played at 8 p.m. on Thursdays at Doughboy football stadium. Admission will be free to both military and civilian personnel. The Doughboys will travel to Fort Gordon, Ga., Sept. 27 to open the football season. The team will be coached this year by Lt. Robert Hoerning. His assistance will be Lt. Doug Coughlin. Additional strength in the line will be furnished by Robert Hill, 260-pound, tackle from Detroit, Mich., and Dick Lyons, a bruising center from VMI and the Washington Redskins. This will be the first time Fort Benning has had a post team in three years.

AMU Rifle Competitor Says Continous Training Brought Russians World Championship

A program of continuous training and match competition with the top international shooters has brought Russia the marksmanship crown of the world. That's what 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel, of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit, said on his return from the 1958 World Championships at Moscow.

The Army lieutenant from Marion, Ind., finished second in the 300 meter free rifle event. His score was 1122 out of 1200. He fired 384 out of 400 in the second stage of the kneeling stage of the match and posted 289 out of 400 for a third in the prone stage.

His AMU teammate, 1st Lt. Verle Wright, won both the kneeling and prone stage of the 300 meter match. However, the steady shooting Russian team won the overall match with a combined score of 5275. The United States shoters lost their fourth straight year. "I'm quite sure the Russians shoot every day eight hours a day," Lt. Puckel said. "Their scores show a terrific amount of practice behind them."

Colonels Take Baseball Title

Fort McPherson Colonels advanced their fourth straight Third Army baseball championship for a second year in the kneeling stage of the match and posted 289 out of 400 for a third in the prone stage. The Army lieutenant from Marion, Ind., finished second in the 300 meter free rifle event. His score was 1122 out of 1200. He fired 384 out of 400 in the second stage of the kneeling stage of the match and posted 289 out of 400 for a third in the prone stage.

ALL-AMERICAN END JOHN BREDIGE To Switch To Quarterback Slot For Doughboys

Officers Set Fall Golf Tournament

The Fall Handicap Golf Tournament will be held Sept. 29 through Nov. 4 at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Match play will be used and local and U.S. Golfers Association rules will prevail.

Handicaps will be based on the individual's last 10 posted scores to include those for rounds played Sept. 17. Entrants who have no handicaps will be allowed to play at scratch if they desire. If anyone has posted five scores, the total of these will be doubled and the handicap selected. If the member has less than 10 and more than five scores, the five lowest scores will be doubled and the handicap based on these.

Ties will be decided by playing an additional nine holes. No extension of time to complete the match will be given due to ties.

Pairings will be from established or computed handicaps. The pairings and playing order will be posted by Sept. 19.

Second Smoker Set Tonight in Stadium

The second of the series of bi-weekly boxing matches to determine the major unit championship team is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today. The card, scheduled at Doughboy Stadium, will probably be the last outdoor card this year. At a meeting of the Fort Benning Boxing Board on Sept. 5, eight matches were made for this card. Entries are still being accepted for additional matches will be made at the weigh-in this morning.

Invitation Issued Post Personnel To Horse Show

Fort Benning personnel have been invited to enter the locally sponsored Shamrock Stables Horse Show, Sept. 28. Entry blank and additional information may be obtained at the Hunt Club at Fort Benning. Entry fee is $1. The horse show will consist of 13 classes of competition. Entry must be completed by Sept. 24. Prizes, trophies and ribbons will be awarded. Shamrock Stables is located on Moon and Weems Roads in Milledgeville, Ga. The horse show begins at 1 p.m., Sept. 28.

Charlie Quinn Dove Shooting Tops In Ft. Benning Fields

Benning hunters are enjoying some of the best dove shooting in years according to reports. The Dove season opened Sept. 9 and squads of shotgunners have been matching their shooting skills against the darting, zipping, evasive targets which have been showing up in large numbers.

The major factor in this picture of good shooting has been the tremendous amount of work put into the "dove fields" here on the reservation by our Range Guard Section. In past years few doves passed up civilian peanut fields in the area surrounding Fort Benning but this year whole flights are taking advantage of the plantings 'put out' by the Range Guards. Hunters won't have to be urged to take advantage, in turn, of the fine shooting provided at these fields for it will get even better as temperatures drop.

The daily bag limit on these birds is 10 but don't let that figure govern your purchase of shells unless, of course, you're one in a million shotgunners who can count on one dove for each shot expended. Buy at least a couple of boxes and then check in with the Range Guards at Fish and Game Maintenance Association Headquarters to get zeroed in on shooting regulations. Shooting is restricted to nine fields at which hunting will be permitted according to a schedule listed below. Location of the fields will be described on a map which will be provided for your convenience when you drop in at the Association office, Bldg. 384, Main Post, on Ingersoll Street just off Vibbert Avenue.

If you do plan to get in an afternoon of dove hunting, remember that you must clear with the Range Control Section, telephone 2-8223 or 2-5291 before entering any area of the reservation except King's Pond. Shooting is permitted from noon until sunset according to the scheduled listed here:

- Field No. 1 Open Saturday, Sunday only; Field No. 2A and 2B Open Tuesday, Friday only; Field No. 3 Open Monday, Thursday only; Field No. 4 Open Wednesday, Saturday only; Field No. 5 Open Saturday, Sunday only; Field No. 6 Open Wednesday, Sunday only; Field No. 7 Open Saturday, Sunday only; Field No. 8 Open Tuesday, Friday only; Field No. 9 Open Monday, Friday only.

These fields, represent a good percentage of the reservation area so you should have plenty of room in which to shoot. Distances between hunters should be kept open for a number of reasons—safety for one and just plain sportsmanship for another.

By the way, more than a few of our hunting buddies are wondering as to whether a Federal Migratory Game Bird Stamp is necessary to dove hunting. The answer is "No." This Stamp, commonly known as a "Duck Stamp," is required for migratory waterfowl hunting, ducks, geese, coot and so on.

The dove season will run until Oct. 4 when it will close to re-open Dec. 2 to run until Jan. 15. If you've never gunced for these tricky fliers you shouldn't pass up the fine chances now offered. For full information on licenses, areas and post hunting regulations drop into the association.

According to the latest word, there are going to be big doings on Nov. 23, the day slated for the Fish and Game Association's annual turkey shoot. This shoot gets bigger and better every year with bococo shooters, hams and other prizes handed out to lucky turkeyers. In addition, awards to be a load of hot, tight, tentacles awards to be made. The shoot is conducted for association members only — but why wait until that day to join. Membership costs but two everloving dollars and you should get in on membership privileges now.

In closing, if you do go out and get your share of dove, how about calling the Hunt Club at PB 2-8222, let us know. I know a lot of frustrated dove hunters would like to know how you do it... and that's it for this week.

In Second Division Baseball 1st Infantry Nips Special Troops 16-15

Special Troops softball team was beaten at WAC Field, Main Post, Sept. 15 by the First Infantry Team by a score of 16 to 15. The First Infantry Team scored six runs during the first inning of play but had no runs in the second. In the third inning Dan Skowicki, Company B, made the only home run that was made by the First Infantry.

Army Names 4 Athletes to U. S. World Team

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Four Army athletes were named to the U.S. Modern Pentathlon team which will compete at the Pentathlon World Championships in early October. Members of the U.S. squad are: 1st Lt. Jack Daniels, Missoula, Mont.; Col. Dick Stall, Minneapolis; Pfc. Leslie Bismaster, Downey, Calif.; and M. Sgt. Dick Ellis, Attleboro, Mass.

Candidates were subjected to rigid screening at Fort Benning before final eliminations were made. Candidates were subjected to rigid screening at Fort Benning before final eliminations were made.

Stephen Brown
It's A New Boy!
Freddie Hoping

Most of you golfers at the Country Club are well acquainted with the smiling Freddie Lee McKnight, the club caddy master.

Freddie has worked at the club for the past 14 years. Many a golfer is indebted to him for making a better score by having equipment kept in the best possible condition.

The purpose of this little profile on Freddie is to announce that there will be another new arrival in the McKnight household about the first week in October. Unusually so, not exactly because for each year of the past seven there has been a wonderful new addition in Freddie's family. Of interest, however, all but one have been girls; in order, Beatrice, 8, Shirley, 7, Jean, 6, Joan, 5, Ruth, 4, Francis, 3, and finally Freddie Jr., 2. Two other daughters also should be mentioned to complete the family circle, Blanche McKnight, Freddie's oldest, and Lillian, 13.

Freddie's point of view is that he has made the turn and that it just has to be another boy because one brother would really have it rough among all those sisters. So he's willing to take on all comers that it will be another boy.

Freddie also wants all his golfing friends to enter the Fall Handicap Tournament. He's got a practice driving range so there's no excuse, according to him, for not getting ready and having a real fine time in the tournament.

Private Proved His Endurance As Disc Jockey

FORT CARSON, Colo. (APPS) — Overnight bivouacs, guard duty, and Army endurance tests should present no problems of fatigue to a former disc jockey taking basic training with the 5th Inf. here.

Pvt. Leonard E. "Gene" Weed claims the world's record for dozejam stamina — continuous broadcasting for five full days without sleep in 1956. At least he hasn't heard of anyone surpassing his talkathon.

Weed's last job before entering the service was with Station WQAM, Miami.

Duncan Cited For Shooting By Ruffner

Sgt. Herbert Duncan, 1958 individual All-Army rifle champion from the First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, received a commendation last week from Lt. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, Third Army commander.

The Company D shooter captured the all-around individual championship and the new-shooter trophy in the All-Army matches last June at Fort Benning.

Gen. Ruffner's letter took special notice of Duncan's winning three individual matches and establishing a new overall record in his first major match competition.

His only previous competitive firing experience was with a battalion rifle team in Iceland last year.

MAJOR TAYLOR AND PAT . . . Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, when he was a major commanding the 12th Field Artillery Battalion, is shown with the last of the 12th's horses, 'Pat'. This photograph was taken for publication in the Second Division's newspaper, The Spearhead, in December, 1940, at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Gen. Taylor Visits 2d Division Today

Newspaper clippings from the division's archives recount that Major Maxwell Taylor, commanding officer of the 12th Field Artillery, has been assigned to the War Department in Washington, D.C.

The 12th gave their departing commander a review in May 1941. A photograph in the division newspaper, The Spearhead, pictures Major Taylor with his successor, Major S. R. Browning, and Pat, last of the field artillery horses who had just been placed on the retirement list.

Gen. Taylor will be greeted upon his arrival by Gen. Pyle, commanding the division, and by the new assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Chester Dahlen. He will be escorted to the division conference room where he will be briefed by members of the general staff.

Gen. Taylor is scheduled to visit the Second Infantry Division museum in the Sand Hill Library building following the briefing by division Headquarters.

The visit from the Army chief of staff marks the first time that Gen. Taylor has visited his former outfit since its organization here June 18.

However, it is not the first time that the general has visited with the officers and men that now make up the Second Infantry Division.

Before the personnel of the 10th Infantry Division were transferred to the Second in June, Gen. Taylor toured 10th Infantry Division Headquarters in Wuerzburg, Germany, in 1957.

Div. Encourages Savings Account For Personnel

A program devised to promote increased participation in Soldiers Deposit Savings has been launched in the Second Infantry Division. The program is designed to encourage members of the general staff to invest in the Soldiers Deposit as a long range savings program.

All deposits made with the soldiers savings program pay interest at the rate of four percent on money that has been on deposit six months or longer. If money is kept in the account for more than one year, interest is retroactive from the date of deposit. Money invested must be in even dollar amounts with a minimum of $5. Deposits are made through the unit personnel officer or commanding officer.

The savings program is popular with many service personnel, not only for the top interest rate but for other reasons as well. The money cannot be lost and the interest rate will not raise or lower. Another feature is that soldiers' deposits are not subject to forfeiture except after conviction by general court martial for the crime of desertion.

9th Inf. Gets First Trainees Since Organized

With the arrival last week-end of approximately 200 trainees, the Second Battle Group, Ninth Infantry, launched the program of advanced individual training for which it has been preparing since early July.

Returning from a two-week leave after completion of eight weeks basic combat training with other units of the Second Infantry Division, the trainees joined Company A, commanded by Capt. Robert D. Middleton.

Following formal orientation talks Sept. 15, the trainees began an intensive eight weeks of training in infantry weapons and tactics which will culminate in their taking the tests for the Expert Infantry Badge.

On successive Mondays similar contingents of trainees will report to the Ninth Infantry unit Oct. 13. The Battle Group will be training a maximum number of 1,000 men.

New Play Slated By Drama Group

With production of "Three Men On A Horse" pronounced "a success" in the division area, the drama group of Service Club No. 2 has announced that they are planning another play, "The Gambler's Deal," or "Love Was In The Cards."

This play is an original melodrama written by a Second Division soldier, Sgt. Clayton David Gribble, Company D, Ninth Infantry, and Sgt. Paul Weinbach, Infantry Centers Special Services Section.

Kelly Hill audiences will see the new play first as the premier schedule of the division at 8 p.m. at the service club there. Two showings are slated for Sept. 28 at Service Club No. 2 with curtain time at 8 p.m. and at Service Club No. 2 at 8 p.m. Sept. 28.

90 Enroll In Division H. S. Classes

By 2nd Div. PIO
 High School Classes began Sept. 11 at the Second Infantry Division Education Center, Sand Hill, for Second Division personnel.

Division Education Officer, 1st Lt. Jerald Rose, said the classes are of high school level and there are six subjects being offered at this time. They are general science, history, literature, mathematics, social science, and English. These classes will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week. There will be two class periods each evening the first from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. and the second from 8 to 9:15 p.m.
