FRONT VIEW OF PROPOSED MUSEUM IN MEMORIAL PARK AT BENNING—Monument To Infantry's Heritage Sponsored By U. S. Army Museum Society

Post Begins On Edifice

3-Year Plans Activated For Infantry Memorial

The first steps have been taken to convert approximately 30 acres of the Fort Benning reservation into a Memorial Park and museum to preserve the proud heritage of the U. S. Infantryman and his exploits from the Indian wars to the Korean conflict.

Backed by the U. S. Army Infantry Museum Society, Memorial Park is beginning its climb to becoming one of the truly scenic sites of the South.

Items Donated

Already a number of items have been donated to the museum which will be the highlight of the park. However, more contributions are needed to build the park into an authentic picture of the Infantry's heroic actions.

An appeal is being made to persons to donate or lend items to the museum. Clothing, weapons and equipment and pertinent documents and papers of Allied or enemy nations are desired. Items will be credited to the donor or lender and letters will be given each lender stating this. No loaned item may be withdrawn at any time. Persons interested in contributing items are asked to contact Sgt David W. Chase, museum curator, by telephoning Fort Benning 3-3100.

Temporary Location

While further plans are being made for the 30-acre landscaped Memorial Park on Highway 27, the Infantry Museum will open shortly at Fort Benning in a temporary location in Building 81, formerly the Visitors Information Center.

Eventually the museum collection will be enshrined in the park immediately east of Highway 27, one-half mile south of the Sand Hill area and near the highway span over the Upper Creek.

Project Tests Army Aircraft At Benning

The purpose of the test is to aid in determining tactics and techniques for employment of higher performance Army observation aircraft in support of Infantry tactical operations.

The three T-37 jet aircraft in the test unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Jack W. Ruby, are on loan to the Army from the U. S. Air Force. They are manufactured by the Cessna Aircraft Company.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commander of the Infantry School and test director, welcomed members of the T-37 Test Unit and of Project Long Arm Test Headquarters at the school Jan. 7. He discussed the need of the Army for higher performance Army observation aircraft.

The deputy test director is Col. William E. Ekman, director of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

2-Week Tour

CG Will Attend German Confab

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Jr., of the Tactical Department, chief of the Infantry Center command, and Major Harold I. Hayward of the Combat Development Office.

Following the conference, Gen. Powell and his party will visit the 10th Infantry Division in Germany. The 10th Division will gyroscope to Fort Benning this spring replacing the Third Infantry Division.

From Jan. 18 to 23, Gen. Powell and Col. Yoder will be at the British School of Infantry in Warminstar, England. During this period, the remainder of the Fort Benning party will tour Seventh Army units including the 11th Airborne Division.

Gen. Powell is scheduled to return to the post Jan. 27.

STORK DERBY WINNER... Winner of Fort Benning's annual Stork Derby is Melvin Hentz, son of Eric and Mrs. Melvin Hentz of Richmond, Va. The first and only baby born at the U. S. Army Hospital Jan. 1, Melvin, shown above with his mother, arrived at 10:48 a.m., weighing five pounds and 15 ounces. Eric Hentz, formerly assigned to Fort Benning, is stationed at Fort Eustis, Va. They have three other children. Mrs. Hentz is the former Helen Mitchell of Goldsboro, N.C. The winner of the Stork Derby, sponsored at Fort Benning by The Bayonet, will receive a number of gifts contributed by Columbus merchants.

Army Assumes Control At Custer, Upatoi Terrace

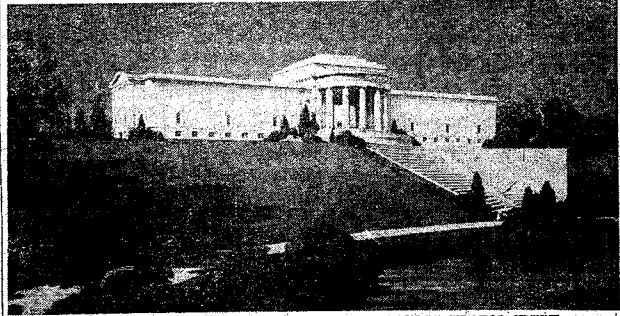

According to an agreement between Department of the Army and the Jordan Company of Columbus the Army assumed control Jan. 1 of the two Wherry Housing projects at Fort Benning - Custer Terrace and Benning Housing, known as Upatoi Terrace.

The purchase price will be set by the U. S. District Court at Macon, Ga., at a later date.

Museum

Thank You For Continuing for three years. Landscaping necessary to make this park an area of exceptional scenic beauty has already begun.

The museum will house weapons and equipment from all Army units depicting each period of the U. S. Army and the nation's history. Adequate area within the park will be allocated to each state to erect a suitable monument to its gallant soldiers. Large items of equipment and captured enemy equipment will be displayed throughout the park.

Memorial Hall will be the entrance and the center room of the museum. The walls will be adorned with basic and life-size figures of the Army's outstanding leaders of the past and present.

The main floor of the Memorial Park Museum will be 220 feet in length and will include two large exhibition rooms. Uniforms, pictures, dioramas and other historical and educational items will portray the history of this nation's Army from its birth in 1775 to its evolution to the Pentomic Army of today.

Membership

The 15,000 Infantry Museum Society has been established to provide the permanent home for the museum's moments. An opportunity to support the museum by membership in the society will be open to military personnel, both on active duty and retired, and civilian employes of the Army.

The Museum Society envisions an Army-wide membership. The initiation fee provides for lifetime membership and will be a sum well within the means of every soldier.

The future of the society will be administered by a council consisting of 12 active members elected to the society normally in August at the close of the organization's president.

Donations already made to the museum is an officer's dress belt of the gift given by Major Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center.

Col. Harry V. Baker, senior Army adviser, Fifth U. S. Army, donated a sober sash to the museum. It was worn by Lt. Isaac N. Thomas of Company K, 52nd Indiana Infantry, and a necktie made of a tunic of Lt. Thomas made around 1833.

Corps Uses Wind Tunnel In Germ Test

PORT DETRICK, Md. — A wind tunnel, a spray of atomic disease-producing organisms and some small laboratory animals—rats, guinea pigs or hamsters. That's what the Army Chemical Corps is using to determine the infectivity of a cloud of disease organisms.

By means of an apparatus originally designed by Dr. David W. Henderson of England, a spray of infectious microbes is generated at one end of a wind tunnel equipped with small portholes in the sides, into which the snouts of the laboratory animals are inserted.

As the aerol spray moves through the portholes the infectious material is inhaled by the animals. If the dosage and other conditions are favorable, the animals will become infected.

Samples of the cloud are used to determine the dosage inhaled by the animals and the material is directed toward a cyclotron to calculate the infectivity of the cloud.

In addition to obtaining a better understanding of the nature and spread of airborne disease, the apparatus can be used to study the protective effects of vaccines and other drugs. (ANP) of any armed force. Only

LT. COL. ERNEST... Three certificates of achievement were awarded to Lt. Col. Ernest Charles upon his retirement from the Army last month.

The former commanding officer of the Third Transportation Battalion (Helicopter) at Lawson Army Air Field Command received certificates signed by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, Major Gen. Paul E. Young, Army chief of transportation, and Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general at the Infantry center.

Jan. 4 Army-Navy-Air Force Register Gen. Powell Lauds Infantryman In Interview by Service Journal

The U. S. Infantry can deliver whatever degree of force needed on today's battlefield. He pointed out that Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of Fort Benning, said in an interview in the Jan. 4 issue of The Army-Navy-Air Force Register. The article was prominently displayed on page one of the service journal and included a picture of the two-star general.

Gen. Powell's interview with Steve Fulman, associate editor of the Register who recently visited Fort Benning, stressed that the Infantry will continue to play the dominant role in any type of war.

Pfc Lloyd Sells Soul In Masquers' Role

10 PERCENTER . . . Getting ready to sell 10 percent of his soul, Pfc Gary Lloyd, left, while Major Stephen L. Brown, right, watches. We are told this is the one part of his soul that Pfc. Lloyd never regrets selling since it gains him Rita Marlow.

Mephistopheles and Faust. Her ardent suitor, George McCauley, who sells his soul 10 percent at a time, is Pfc. Gary Lloyd. The Devil, Irving Lasalle, is portrayed by Major Stephen Brown. The playwright, Michael Freeman (who should really be a playwright since one masterpiece is all he could produce) will be in the capable hands of Pfc. "Smart Barber". Bronx Brannigan, Miss Marlowe's separated husband, played by M.E. John Hoopes, is seen but once, but in a gem of a pugilistic endeavor. Mrs. Lilian Hoopes plays the part of Miss Logan, an enterprising secretary.

This interesting barter is the theme of the Masquers' live-dramatic production, Thursday and Friday, Jan. 16-17 at Faith School. Unlike the Hollywood film version which recently played the Ft. Benning theaters, the Masquers' "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" adheres strictly to the Broadway script.

Playing the part of Rita Marlowe, the luscious blond bombshell heroine is Mrs. Sandra CONTROVERSIAL . . . Joan Fontaine co-stars with James Mason and Harry Belafonte in the controversial movie, Island In The Sun, now playing at Fort Benning theaters.

Pvt. Takes Long Route To Germany

Traveling from the Middle East to Germany via New Jersey and Fort Benning seems like the long way around, but a five-year veteran of the Jordan Legion is thankful for the opportunity of doing just that with the Third Infantry Division.

Pvt. Samuel T. Ajanian, 24, of B Battery in the Marine Division's 9th Artillery, was born in Jaffa, Israel after his parents had migrated from Armenia. Later they settled in Jordan where Pvt. Ajanian enlisted in the Jordan Legion. He served as an auto electrician for five years and was a corporal when he received his discharge.

When the opportunity came through the United Nations, the Ajanian family migrated to the United States and settled in New Jersey.

Before coming into the Third Division, Ajanian sang with the representatives of 44 countries in Billy Graham's choir in New York City for about 25 nights. He has long been interested in music and singing.

The chance to gyroscope to visit Germany with the 3d Division next spring is an "answer to many prayers and dreams." Pvt. Ajanian has been searching for a way to see Germany and the rest of Europe for many years.

"We were so close to Europe when we lived in the Middle East, it was a shame to miss Europe," Pvt. Ajanian said, "but we couldn't make the trip because of the political situation."

At Educational Development Officers Presented 4 Language Courses

Fort Benning officers are invited to enroll in foreign language courses being offered at the Educational Development Section, USAIC.

Language courses to be offered at the Education Center are Basic French, Spanish, Russian and Advanced German.

U. S. Army officers are currently stationed in 72 countries of the world and it appears that there will be no radical reduction in these worldwide requirements for some time. Experience has shown that the effectiveness of officers serving in these countries is increased if they speak the native language. The Department of the Army has initiated a program aimed toward providing language training opportunities on a voluntary basis for all officers who have an aptitude for such training. This training would be acquired either by attendance at the Army Language School or by attendance at installation education facilities.

Foreign language classes will meet at the Educational Development Section from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings for a period of 12 weeks. All officers who are interested in enrolling in these classes should report to the Educational Development Section, Building 2812, Indianhead Road, at 7 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 13.

Division Opens New York Office For Gyroscoping

Smoothing the way for the Third Infantry Division's movement to Germany in coming months will be the job of an eight-man team which left for New York City Jan. 4. The group, led by Capt. J. S. Loeber, movement officer of the 35th Transportation Battalion will set up a liaison office at the Brooklyn Army Terminal. Capt. Loeber will return to Fort Benning after the office is organized, but the other members will remain for some five months until the last units have completed movement to Germany.

Awards Go To Sfc 13 Years Late

Army Brigade Sergeant Major received the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Bronze Star — 13 years later. He is Sfc Leonard F. Ross, assigned to HQ & Hq Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

1. Lt. Col. John B. Zanina, Commanding Officer of the 2nd Student Battalion, was reviewing Ross's records for purposes of promotion when he realized that there was no evidence that either of the two awarded Ross. Knowing something of Ross's past combat record, Col. Zanina advised the Sergeant to write for a record check to find out more details on the subject. Within a short time an affirmative answer arrived from the Department of the Army on the form of two letters. One awarded Ross both the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Bronze Star.

Soldiers Retire Young, Embark on New Careers

In a time when Government and private agencies have become concerned with problems of the aged and the need to change Social Security laws to finance the program, the American people have come to realize the real value of progressive retirement programs like the one provided by the U.S. Army.

There are also other benefits available to the soldier under the Army's retirement system. Even after retirement, a soldier can receive $120.00 a month — a sum equal to one-half of his monthly income at retirement for the rest of his life. The amount increases with each year of active service after 20, until at the 30-year mark the master sergeant receives $231.50 a month, or 75 percent of his basic pay at retirement.

These figures, taken alone, do not tell the whole story. In many cases, the Army retirement program is unmatched and combined with any other pension plan or annuity. In the first place, the Army program is not geared to Social Security to supplement his income with Social Security payments.

Contract Given To Buffalo Firm

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—Department of Army has disclosed that it awarded the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Buffalo, N.Y., a two-year contract to develop new combat surveillance methods for the Army.

Purpose of the contract is to improve systems of surveillance of a battlefield by radar, infrared, sonic, meteorological, drone reconnaissance, photographic, and television means. This information is essential to Army commanders under the conditions of modern warfare. For example, a target for a guided missile might exist for only a brief period at a distance of hundreds of miles. The commander of the future must be able almost instantly to scan a large battle area, locate and identify a potential target, prepare missile guidance information, launch a missile.

No Backs in Way Walter Reed Med. Center Uses Closed Circuit Color Television

WASHINGTON—Closed circuit color television is proving a boon at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, one of the world's great research, teaching and treatment centers.

No longer is it necessary for a student to peer around the backs of operating room personnel at long distances to try to see what in many cases only the surgeon can see with exactitude. The operating room theater is a thing of the past at Walter Reed, where the TV system has been in operation for its first experimental year.

So is the confusion and danger to the maintenance of sterility in the presence of a cameraman. The ceiling-mounted TV camera is remotely controlled from the main studio, where the operator focuses, selects and changes lens, and pan controls. The camera mount can be turned 360 degrees and the camera moves on runners the length of the mount.

Students are therefore able to view the operation in minute detail from any of the 170 viewing locations throughout the Center. Or they may see it in an auditorium, projected on a 60-foot screen. Its entire area covers perhaps by an enlarged tooth while a teaching dentist demonstrates a new technique from the Central Dental Laboratory.

A unique piece of equipment is the color TV microscope camera mount, designed by the Television Department in cooperation with RCA engineers, and built by the Biophysical Instrumentation Division at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research.

This enables enlarged color reproductions of microscopic life to be viewed on a TV screen so that groups of students or biologists may study and discuss micro-organisms without taking turns to glaze their eyes to a microscope. The operating room, pathology lab and microscope cameras are adding another dimension to medical science. It is usual in certain cases for a surgeon to send to the pathologist a piece of tissue through a pneumatic tube any tissue resection. Now at Walter Reed the pathologist can televise the tissue slide to the operating room and discuss it with the surgeon while viewing the operating area himself.

Meanwhile, in the auditorium students can watch the scene in enlarged detail and listen to the experts' discussion or running commentary, spoken through a microphone inserted into the surgical field.

As an efficient teaching device, the TV system goes further afield than the Center's nurses, technicians, and post-graduate doctors, dentists, veterinarians, pathologists, biologists, prosthetic device researchers, etc. Live telecasts, inexpensive if recorded on 16mm color film, are mailed worldwide wherever there are Army doctors to keep them at a peak of up-to-minute competence.

Instruction from the Center's color-renowned medical authorities is piped by microwave network—with expansion planned—to the National Naval Medical Center and the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., and programs sent at private expense over leased telephone wires have been viewed at national professional meetings as far away as New York. As a possible answer to the shortage of science teachers, an experiment in teaching calculus to mathematics teachers is being made with WRIAM-TV facilities by the University of Maryland in association with the National Academy of Sciences' Research Council and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. PRETTY PARACHUTIST
Rank Organization star Virginia McKenna has been awarded the Army's Parachutist Proficiency Badge following a lengthy jump training course. Film Shows Fly Dropped By Aaron

NEW YORK (APPS) — Official motion pictures of the 1957 World Series, which were premiered in Milwaukee, feature a select audience including the National and American League presidents, now without question that Hank Aaron of the Braves dropped a fly ball that went into the record books as a sacrifice fly.

The play occurred in the first inning of the first game in Milwaukee when Yankee Gil McDougall tied to Aaron in centerfield, with Mantle and Berra on third and second respectively.

A photo sequence of the play in question was published in APFS Cinesheet No. 796, published Oct. 12, 1957.

Aaron caught the ball on the fly, but slipped to his knees and dropped both the ball and his glove to the ground. The umpires ruled it a sacrifice fly and permitted Mantle to score, but the movie shows the ball dribbling out of Aaron's glove before he retrieved it.

The Yanks won, 12-3.

TO FIGHT FOR BOYS' CLUB BENEFIT L-R: Steve Lugo, Andie Martinez, Theo Bethea, Andrew Jackson

Six to Participate In Local Matches

Six Fort Benning fighters will participate in a Boys' Club boxing benefit Jan. 10 in Columbus. The event will be held at the Municipal Auditorium at Columbus.

Proceeds from the matches will go toward supporting Boys' Club boxing team in the Golden Gloves at Marietta, Ga., later this year.

Rodemacher to Referee Pete Rodemacher, who won the world heavyweight Olympic title in 1936 while a first lieutenant at Fort Benning, will referee the fights. Rodemacher fought heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson for the world professional heavyweight crown last year in Seattle, Wash. Boxers from Fort Benning are all members of the Infantry School Troop Command.

Main Event Andie Martinez, post fighter recently named outstanding boxer in novice class during Florida's annual AAU Boxing Tournament in Jacksonville, will face Charley Harbour, Georgia Golden Gloves champion, in a welterweight go as part of the double main event. Fort Benning's Frank Amokwe will meet Robert Hammock, Alabama Boys' state championship play-

Club champion. Their bout will be lightweight. Post Boxers Other ITC boxers who will participate are Theodore Bethea, Steve Lugo, L. E. Eley, and Andrew Jackson. Other participants will be from Boys' Clubs of Columbus, Phoenix City, Griffin, Ga., and Columbus YMCA.

General admission will be 75 cents. Tickets may be purchased at Fort Benning Special Services, Fort Benning telephone 2-0122.

L. E. ELEY Ready for Bout

EM Booted In 3-Month Tootsie Test

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (APPS) — A hundred feet of boot tests are under way here. Fifty soldiers have been selected from a variety of units and duties to test the Army's new cold-war boot.

Fourth Div. troops, ranging from infantrymen to tankers and aircraft mechanics, will wear the boots for approximately three months.

Captain Donald C. Cline, 4th QM Co., project officer, said the tests will be limited to ordinary, everyday wear with no forced marches or obstacle course workouts.

He said the new footwear will be compared with the older Thermal Boot, also called the Mickey Mouse boot, Arctic boot and a few other names.

Each week the test group will wear the boots for three days covering suitability, warmth, comfort, effects of cold, dampness and suggestions for improving the boot.

WWII draftsman may not be eligible for the test. New methods are also getting a thorough examination.

The tests were planned by the US Infantry Boot at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Recreation Officer Fitted For Third Army Position

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY: Fort McPherson, Ga. — What does the military recreation officer do when he selects a recreation officer?

Admittedly there have, in the past, been many cases where personnel making assignments have erred. This certainly is not the case when the recreation officer Third Army recreation officer is concerned.

The man in question—Major Stuart W. Hoskins—has a fabulous athletic background. He all started when he was a standard performer at Fredericksburg, Va., where he picked up 14 letters in high school and another big boost when he added 13 more letters to his collection at the University of Richmond.

At Richmond, he was a guard on the all-state basketball team and football standout, but it was in basketball where he made his greatest showing and was named to both all-state and all-Southern and attracted the attention of major league scouts. After graduation in 1940, he was signed by the Boston Red Sox for a bonus and finished the season playing with Canton in the Middle Atlantic League and Centerville in the Class D Eastern Shore League. He finished the season with a .348 batting average but had not been at enough times to claim the title.

The following year he was traded to Washington and played for Charlotte in the Class B Piedmont League and Greenville in the Sally League. At the end of the year he was drafted into the Army and went on to earn his commission at Fort Lee, Va.

After serving in England, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Germany, he was discharged in 1946. While in England, he started on another phase of his career—that of a coach. His basketball team finished the season with a 24-1 record.

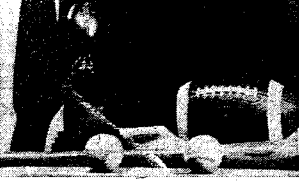

the Pittsburgh Steelers grid team and stayed with them eight weeks before being transferred to the Richmond Rebels. He finished his pro grid career there.

While at Richmond, he re-joined his coaching activities, serving as backfield coach and head basketball coach at Fort Lee's military academy. The following year he moved to Falmouth, Va., high school as head coach in football, basketball, and baseball. During his three years there his teams had a composite record of 154 wins and 23 losses. His basketball teams had a 6-6 record (including the 1948-49 team which won straight before losing in the state championship play-off; his grid teams posted a 2-4-3 record, and his baseballers chalked up 73 wins against only eight defeats.

In October, 1950 he was recalled by the Army and named special services officer at Fort Eustis, Va. He remained there until 1952, at which time he was transferred to Fort Lee, Va., in a similar capacity.

Following the Lee's assignment he was named sports officer and special services officer of the Military Post at Seoul, Korea. While there his teams produced nine championships out of 14 tries although he did not participate actively in RECREATION, Page 15

MEMORIES ARE MADE OF THESE... Major Stuart Hoskins is pictured with a few of his most treasured possessions as he holds one of the many sweaters he won at Richmond. The bat was a gift of Lefty Grove; two of the baseballs were given him by Dizzy Dean and Lew Burdette and the other was used in the exhibition game in which he caught Walter Johnson. The trophy was awarded to Hoskins as the outstanding blocking back on the Richmond team in 1938.

Kirrane Wins Berth On National Squad

Six servicemen have been selected for the U. S. National Hockey team, including Pvt. Edward T. Kirrane, Third Division.

Selections were made by the Selection Hockey Association, following six weeks of practice and tryouts at Minneapolis, Minn.

Kirrane was a member of the U. S. hockey team in the 1956 international games. They are Pvt. Richard Meredith, Pvt. Donald E. Rigazio, Pvt. Robert H. Schmidt, all of Fort Carson, Col.; Pvt. Edward F. Zitek, Fort Dix, N. J., and Airman Second Class Sheldon C. Olson, Griffis Air Force Base, N. Y.

Twenty servicemen and a similar number of amateur skaters were invited to try out for berths on the squad. The team will represent the U. S. in the 1958 World Ice Hockey Championship Games at Oslo, Norway, in February. Before leaving for the championships and exhibition matches in Europe, the skaters will participate in exhibitions in the midwest and eastern United States.

They are scheduled to leave for the States for Scotland on Feb. 8.

7th Div Arty Win Basketball Tjits In Marne Loop

Seventh Infantry and DivArty won a doubleheader Monday night in Third Division Basketball League. DivArty drubbed Fourth Infantry Warriors 12-0 in the opener. Ken Hammond scored 31 and Bill Ruge dropped in 12 points for DivArty. The red-hot Redies' team hit 67 per cent of their shots from the floor.

In the second game of the night, Seventh Infantry Cotton-catchers easily whipped DivArmy by 24-4. Scoring honors went to Seventh's Stan Matzke and DivArmy Bob Brown. The Sports Office is in Bldg. 303, telephone 4-2424.

AF to Offer Execs Study

WASHINGTON (ANF)—A post-college graduate correspondence course to help prepare executives in industry and government for continued efficient operation in time of national emergency is being offered by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

The Industrial College, now commanded, according to an inter-service rotation policy, by Lieutenant General George W. Mundy, U. S. Air Force, is the highest echelon military school of its type with a resident student body composed of top officers from the Armed Forces of comparable stature.

The correspondence course has been offered since 1950 at the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Approximately 8000 students have been graduated thus far. The current enrollment is 3300 students whose studies include resources and facilities, mobilization of resources, foreign relations, and managing the emergency economy.

There are no registration or tuition fees and texts and other materials used in the course are free. Completion of the course generally takes from a year to 18 months.

Men and women in the middle to top executive groups in industry and the professions are eligible to apply.

Dr. Siple Is Cited by Sec'y

WASHINGTON (ANS)—In a Pentagon ceremony last week, Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker presented a Department of the Army Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service to Dr. Paul A. Siple, the Army civilian employee who has spent more time in South Polar Regions than any other person.

As high-ranking military and civilian dignitaries looked on,

Sgt. Finally Gets Stateside Duty After 29 Years

WASHINGTON (ANS)—In a citation for his exceptional performance of duty as Deputy to the Officer-in-Charge Antarctic Program, Dr. Siple was awarded the Army Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service.

Dr. Siple, a scientific leader of the South Pole Station on assignment from the Office of the Chief of Research and Development, U. S. Army, guided the production of vital scientific information. In addition, he directed the planning for the support and operation of the U. S. Scientific stations in the Antarctic.

The 48-year-old scientist is a world recognized authority on the Antarctic. He has lived there off and on for over four years and at 19 was the youngest member of the first Admiral Byrd Antarctic Expedition (1928-30).

From October 5, 1956 to December 1, 1957, Dr. Siple served as a member of the U.S. Committee for International Geophysical Year (USCIGY), the Antarctic Committee and the Technical Panel for Glaciology (IGV).

Dr. Siple has amassed a wealth of climatological data on the Antarctic and has been the translator between theory and practice for the area. His award is the highest given to a Department of the Army civilian employee.

Army Needs EM to Work Behind Lines

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The Army's Special Forces, which operate within or behind enemy lines during wartime now have openings for qualified enlisted personnel in 57 Military Occupational Specialties. The Army announced this week. The announcement also said that revised regulations have established Special Forces tours of duty at 33 months, the first 22 weeks of which are used for training.

According to DA, there is a shortage of upper grade NCO's and an average of personnel in the lower grades in these units. Qualified individuals desiring to transfer, enlist or reenlist in the Special Forces should follow the procedures outlined in AR's 601-245 and 611-62. They may be assigned to one of three units in Europe, the 1st in the Pacific, or the 7th at Fort Bragg.

(Eligibility requirements include airborne qualification, a minimum of one year of active military service, a secret security clearance, and a score of 90 or higher in aptitude area CO.)

Vacancies currently exist in the following MOS's: 691, 692, 111, 112, 113, 256, 255, 411, 442, 460, 464, 516, 550, 558, 631, 701, 710, 711, 716, 717, 718, 720, 721, 722, 724, 726, 727, 728, 811, 813, 910, 911, 917, 940, 941, 980 and 985.

Co. C, ISD Plays Santa To 12 Underprivileged

Christmas day 1957 will long be remembered by 12 underprivileged children from Co. C, Columbus Company C, ISD, play-dinner. Santa gave the gifts to the youngsters and their mothers a n brought cheer and Christmas Spirit that is so necessary for children at Christmas time.

Under the supervision of 1st Lt. John A. Redmond, the project was enthusiastically supported by the men of Columbus Company C who donated over $300 towards the children's Christmas at Fort Benning. Some of the items bought with the donations besides the usual Christmas candy and goodies for the children included a complete set of clothing from hat to shoes for each child, and tops of all descriptions from tricycles to dolls.

Christmas may save the children's names were supplied through the Family Service Bureau except for two German children who were known by men in the Company. The wholehearted support of the project was evidenced not only by the men of the Company but also by Sears-Roebuck and Company who supplied the toys at a substantial reduction.

MORE INTELLIGENT

Beautiful, intense Greek actress Melina Mercouri, currently starring in the Rank Organization's production of "The Gypsy and The Gentleman," was recently asked what is the secret of her more intelligent attitude to life. Miss Mercouri, with a sigh, answered that "men are interested in power and ambition. Women are interested only in love."

Army Unites 8 Districts In 1st Army

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Following similar actions by three other Army areas, eight military districts in the First Army area are being consolidated into two U. S. Army Corps (Reserve). The Department of the Army said today. First Army's consolidation plan is geared after the new setup already in effect in the Second, Fifth and part of the Fourth Army areas. It is designed to improve the supervision and support of the Army Reserve and effect economies in personnel, funds, and facilities.

Army Ups Draft Training February

WASHINGTON (AEPF)—Selective Service induction for the Army in February will be raised to 13,000, an increase of 2,000 over January's call. The increased draft call is required to maintain the Army's authorized strength, after allowances for enlistments and reenlistments, a Defense spokesman explained.

German Native Tells About His Country

(Editor's Note: Pfc. Axel Niemez, author of the following article, is a native German who came to the U.S. two years ago. Assigned to the Military Police Company, 1st Infantry Division, West German Army, he is now in the make-up and function of the West German Army. He is the youngest of five children of a family of German immigrants from the West German state of North Rhine-Westphalia. He is now stationed at Fort Benning.)

BY PFC. AXEL NIEMER
West Germany has a population of approximately 52,000,000 and its area has a size of 36,000 square miles. This young state is 32 times smaller in land area than the United States.

The Spring of 1949, the United States, Britain and France agreed to an establishment of a West German Republic and early in the year of 1952, the peace contract between Western Germany and our country was signed.

The West German government is called the "Bundestag" and is similar to our form of government and is based on the old German Weimar Constitution from July 1919. The federal president is the head of the "Bundesrat" and his name is Professor Theodor Heuss. The President's duties are particularly court visits and receptions. Professor Heuss may appoint and remove Federal Judges. His term is five years. The President can be impeached by the Federal Parliament and he must be tried by a Constitutional court.

to 5 seats and votes in the Federal Council. The number of seats is according to the population of the States and there are approximately eleven States. The Bundestag consists of about 55 members. The highest seat of honor is announced by a West German Court, is imprisonment for life. There exists no death penalty whatsoever. The two highest courts are the "Supreme Federal Court" and "Federal Constitutional Tribunal." The Federal Supreme Court is concerned with preservation and restoration within the Federal Republic. Its members are elected by the Federal Parliament and by the Ministers of the States and there are approximately eleven members. Unit Will Fire In 7th-A March Third Infantry Division's 62nd Marksmanship Detachment will travel to Germany early in March, in time to participate in the Seventh Army Rifle and Pistol Matches.

The Seventh Army Rifle and Pistol Matches will be held during the fourth week in April. The Third Division detachment will hold a small arms firing school in Germany and will compete in the competition.

The election for the first Bundestag was held in August 1949. The Bundestag can ratify treaties and elects a Federal President and as mentioned before, it elects the Chancellor as well. The Bundestag can dismiss the Chancellor only if the members can provide an absolute majority vote for a successor.

With Demonstrations, Problems

14th Infantry Provides Vital Support to School

Effective simulated combat situations are vital to officer training at The Infantry School. That's where the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, gives the training program the true meaning of the subject. The demonstrations will give the students a cross-life view of a "Mock-Attack" and the company in defense, which could only be obtained in actual combat. Under the present organization the 14th Infantry has four rifle companies, a mortar battery, a chemical engineer and truck company may be at night, watch means and a signal platoon.

800 Begin Classes At Infantry School

Five courses totaling nearly 800 students are beginning at Fort Benning's Infantry School this week. The first class No. 7 with 174 men opened Jan. 6. Three classes began Jan. 8 associate company officers class No. 2 numbering 187 members, the 51-man patfinders class No. 2 and officers advanced class No. 2, with 200 students. Basic officers class No. 9 totaling 190 students will start today.

FAST FIRING . . . Machine gun crew of Company C, 14th Infantry, fire on Infantry School target. The machine gun fires a section of fire to show the students the accuracy and power of planned firing.

Guns Traded For Missiles

Most of the gun battalions have turned in their weapons and Army Nike missile sites ring the nation's major cities. These surface-to-air defenses are comprised of Nike Ajax missiles. In the near future the Nike Hercules, a larger, stiffer and more lethal weapon, will be integrated into the continental air defense system. This will give the North American Air Defense Command a missile capable of employing a nuclear warhead.

Army Trains Graduates

PORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.—A group of 21 teenagers developed into men at former Boys Town, Neb., and then to soldiers by the Army, recently completed six months training here under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. Many planned to return to civilian life to ply the trades they learned at the famed institution founded near Omaha in 1917 by the late Father Edward J. Flanagan. Officers plan to continue their education, several taking advantage of college scholarships they have earned. Except for a few who have decided to make a career of the Army, all will join Ready Reserve units wherever they settle to complete their military obligations.

Originally members of the Army Reserve's 33rd Military Company located in Boys Town, many of them had "frank" before they began their active duty training. "You really have to work in our unit," said RFA trainee Glenn Elliott, a former Boys Town commissionaire. "We have a lot of spit and polish, like an MP unit should."

Information NCO is Sgt Louise L. Stern who, along with her other duties, gives the troops twice weekly. Each barracks has its own Barracks Sergeant, an assistant, and a Platoon Sergeant. The barracks are partitioned off into cubicles so that each girl has her own and may arrange it to her taste and preference. Sprinkled throughout are various souvenirs of past posts and stations. Colorful bedspreads, rugs and curtains, along with pictures of homes and families, potted flowers and small animals help give a friendly, homely air.

The atmosphere wouldn't be complete without a few pets to cuddle. Baby, a playful collie whose home is under the third Army barracks, and Tally, the lovable cocker spaniel who lives beside the first platoon, owe luck for attention from the girls.

The Wacs, like their male counterparts, make a hot l. rev. and breakfast, the barracks are cleaned up and the girls spread out to all parts of the post to their various duties. And like all soldiers, they must

'Men, Nothing But Men,' Moans Jayne Mansfield on Service Tour

(AFPS Weekly Feature) Bundle of beauty and talent entertaining troops in the Far East during the holidays was Ruth Foster, with the USO show "Hollywood Zanies." Jayne Mansfield was in the Japan-Korea area with Bob Hope show, "Men, Nothing But Men." Jayne murmured when told she would be facing service audiences on the tour.

Tom Otake, local musician in Honolulu, played at a really "hot" jazz session; his electric guitar short-circuited but he recovered from the jolt. In the movie "Sayonara" you'll see a military order signed by Gen. Curtis Lemay that's written backward. A French version of recruit training and filmed at Paris Island, S. C. last summer called "Le But" (The Boot) is under consideration for a Louis Delluc Award, the equivalent of our "Oscar."

Kessler AFB, Miss., was host to the CBS Radio "Philippine Country Music Show" for two performances over the holidays. Screen Gems is now financing the TV "Comical Correspondent, USMC." Lin McCarrney is the star and narrator of these stories about Marine com-

One Missile Master Installed Controls Will Link Army Defense Units

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army plans to install the Missile Master, the air defense electronic control system which directs large numbers of Nike and Hawk guided missile batteries against enemy planes, at key points across the nation.

One already is in operation at Ft. Meade, Md., to coordinate fire of Army Air Defense Command anti-aircraft missile sites protecting the Washington-Baltimore area.

Another is planned for the New York City defense area, after which, the Army said, the Missile Master will be put in at other strategic, industrial and population centers in the US defended by Nike missiles.

The increased speed of aircraft and the high accuracy of the Nike has made necessary the development of a rapid automatic electronic system for transmitting and coordinating information to the Army.

The Missile Master, the Army explained, relays a tactical decision of one commander to all others as soon as it is made. The system collects radar information on the location and identity of aircraft, presents it on a TV-like screen and distributes it to the missile firing batteries.

Although the Missile Master operated independently, the Army said, it also can coordinate the fire of Nike batteries in cooperation with the Air Force SAGE interceptor aircraft control system in the overall defense of the country.

The system was explained this way: When enemy targets are in and is displayed in the operations center and at the batteries.

Controllers prevent more than one battery from firing at the same target.

Lawson Briefs Local Merchants

Approximately 30 members of the Columbus Merchants Association visited Fort Benning's Lawson Army Air Field Command Jan. 8.

The Columbusites joined unit commanders and staff officers at Lawson's, considered mess for coffee at 8:30 a.m. This gave the officers an opportunity to meet the merchants and have informal get-acquainted discussions.

Following coffee the visitors were oriented on the operation of Lawson and its weather station. They then were briefed on Lawson's operation tower, which will be followed by an inspection of a static display of all types of aircraft at the field.

This is one of a series of "get acquainted" coffees held for the Columbus merchants by Fort Benning personnel as a civilian-military community relations project.

Certificate Awarded Chaplain Bridenstine

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis D. Bridenstine has been presented a certificate of achievement for outstanding service as assistant post chaplain of the Infantry Center at Fort Benning since July 1955.

The citation was awarded by Brig. Gen. John F. Burgin, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, during World War II. Chaplain Bridenstine served months in the Pacific Theater.

From July, 1947, to March, 1950, he served in Japan as deputy chaplain of IX Corps; chaplain for Sagami Prison, where Japanese war criminals were held, and deputy chaplain of Eighth Army.

Col. Jarrett Named Center Comptroller

Col. Paul J. Jarrett of Honolulu, T. H., has succeeded Col. James B. Gall as comptroller of the Infantry Center at Fort Benning.

Gyros Toughen Up At Fort Stewart

The Third Infantry Division has sent a 70-man vanguard to Fort Stewart, Ga., to prepare for the arrival of hundreds of Marine Division troops who will undergo "toughening up" field training exercises at the East Georgia training center.

The 160-man Tank Battalion, 68th Armor, holds the list of Marine units participating in this large-scale training exercise. The 68th Tank units will spend about one month at Fort Stewart undergoing gunnery training, testing and testing the deadly accurate 90 mm gun mounted on the M48 Tank.

Each of the Division's five volunteer Battle Groups will send their tank elements, assault gun platoons and a rifle company for field training and weapons firing. The rifle companies will get their first taste of Tank-Infantry training techniques during their stay at the rugged training exercises including elements of the 1st Infantry Division, 7th Cavalry and the 10th Engineer Battalion.

Since after the units complete training at Fort Stewart they begin their move to ports of embarkation for their journey to Germany.

The 46-year-old officer was promoted to his present rank last June.

Medics Restitution To Aschaffenburg

Because of the crowded housing situation in Kitzingen, the Third Division's 3d Medical Battalion has been reconstituted to be stationed in Aschaffenburg, Germany.

Originally the 3d Medical Battalion was to have about 265 men in Kitzingen and 183 more, including the Division Surgeon, in Würzburg. The new plan will send nearly all 300 men and 42 families to Aschaffenburg.

Col. Jarrett came to the post last June and served as director of the Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction two months before being named chief of the Personnel Group of the Infantry School's Staff Department.

He is a 1937 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He served in the Communications Division of U. S. Army Pacific headquarters, Fort Shafter, T. H., from December, 1937, to December, 1945.

Col. Jarrett was graduated from the University of Hawaii in 1936 and entered active Army duty in 1941. He served with XXIV Corps in the Pacific Theater during World War II, participating in the Okinawa, New Guinea, Midway and Philippine campaigns.

During the Korean conflict, he was executive officer of the 56th Infantry Regiment, among his decorations are the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Aides Slate Ceremonies January 5

Presentation of caps, certificates and service awards will highlight a capping ceremony for Nurses Aides, Gray Ladies, Staff Aides and members of a home nursing class Jan. 5 at Fort Benning.

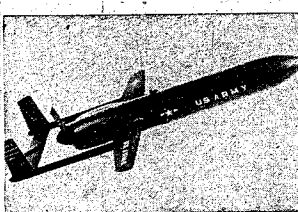

The event will begin at 4 p.m. in the American Red Cross recreation hall of the U. S. Army Hospital. The public is invited to attend.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, will address the group and present the certificates.

Approximately 21 Red Cross volunteers will receive caps and certificates marking the completion of courses for volunteer service. Eight members of a class in home care for the sick and injured also will receive certificates.

As honorary chairman of Fort Benning Red Cross volunteers, Mrs. Powell will present service bars to volunteers who have given more than 100 hours of service in the past year.

Sweeping Changes Planned Thru '62

Army Faces Three Fold Role in Long Range Look

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Military experts predict a revised role for the Army in the next five years under sweeping changes being made for war on an atomic battlefield.

By 1959, when these reorganizations are completed, the fighting forces of the "new" army, based on potential divisions, will have little resemblance to the field armies of World War I and Korea.

According to long-range predictions by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff and other top Pentagon authorities appearing in a special issue of the Army Information Digest which devotes its new January 1958 issue to the Army's future, many new and deadlier weapons will be in the field by 1962.

The Army will be organized, in order of priority, for three possible military situations: cold war, limited war and general war.

Employing more missiles, rockets, atomic, lightweight armored vehicles and complex electronic equipment, 4,000 units will have sufficient flexibility to permit application of varying degrees of force without sole dependence on weapons necessary by general action to warfare.

Post-to Participate In Polio Milestone

Fort Benning troops will form the honor guard and provide the musical background for the 50th anniversary ceremonies at Jan. 5 ceremonies in Warm Springs, Ga., marking the 50th anniversary of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

A unique Polio Hall of Fame will be unveiled during the celebration of the Army's 50th anniversary ceremonies. The honor guard unit, Company C of the 20th Infantry commanded by Capt. Myron E. Lee Jr., will be the honor guard for the unveiling Thursday morning.

The Infantry Center Band under the direction of CWO William R. Tremblay will play for the occasion.

The honor guard also will form a ring around a large birthday cake which will be unveiled during the polio poster family life program. Constructed of wood and iron and featuring the Army's 50th anniversary decorations, the cake is 30 feet in diameter.

In the Polio Hall of Fame, bronze busts of 17 scientists and lay citizens of the world who have led the fight against the dread disease will be unveiled. They will be set in marble in the walls of Founders' Hall at the Georgia birthplace of the polio movement.

The 12 living persons selected for the Hall of Fame are expected to attend the dedication ceremonies.

Thomas M. Rivers, dean of American virologists and chairman of the National Foundation Committee which planned the successful 1954 Salk vaccine, the first polio vaccine, and Dr. Jonas Salk, U. S. Public Health Service physician who discovered the polio virus and transmitted it to cotton rats, greatly simplifying some types of study; John R. Paul, Yale University biologist and first research grantee of the National Foundation (1938).

Eleven winners of the Christmas home-decoration contest at Fort Benning added to the community spirit and collected cash prizes for their holiday efforts.

First, second and third-place awards were made for house and yard or door and window decorations in the contest sponsored by the National Foundation of Fort Benning for quarters in the main area of Fort Benning.

At an informal ceremony Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Mrs. Powell presented prizes of $25, $15, $10, $5, $5 and $5 for the winners. Gen. Powell expressed appreciation on behalf of the entire post to all the participants for their interest and contributions to the community.

DA Slates Deadline On New Army Wear

All male officers and warrant officers except those in the field under conditions which require the wearing of prescribed field clothing, will be required to wear the 1958 all male officers and warrant officers of the active army will be required to own and wear the Army Blue Uniform for general duty wear.

This message does not alter the provisions of DA Messpage 804777, 5 March 1957, which requires that all uniform requirements for officers and warrant officers be met by the beginning of their next season or prior to 1 May 1958 in those areas where winter uniform is prescribed for wear the year around.

Officers and warrant officers of the active army may at their option wear either the officers' olive drab uniform (Pink and Green) or the Army Green Uniform both on duty and off duty until 1 February 1958.

March 1 Target Date Slated For Proficiency Pay

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The target date for starting proficiency advancements in grade E-3 through E-6 under present Armed Forces plans is March 1, according to the Defense Department.

Although the Oct. 3 directive authorizing "merit pay" promotions in these enlisted grades is subject to approval of the Secretary of Defense, it has been reported generally that the services would begin awarding one-step pay advances without commensurate rank on Jan. 1.

The proficiency pay programs proposed by the separate services are acceptable to the Defense Department, periodically will add to the number of personnel authorized to hold proficiency grades within the fields and pay levels which they will be awarded.

1st Baby Due Many Gifts

Columbus merchants came up with a long list of gifts in the Troop Information Section, Infantry Center Union Station Office, Building 1019, on Jan. 5.

The winner will be announced in next week's Bayonet. Gifts to be given to the baby will be given a certificate to obtain the gifts from local businesses.

Gifts that will come to the star's first visit to Fort Benning in 1958 are: 1. A Year of Fort Benning, a 1958 family. A certificate of birth will be required.

Education Need Grows

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpts are from an editorial appearing in Sound Off, weekly newspaper of Fort Meade, Md.

BY LOUIS Z. HAMMER

The sight of servicemen walking along the streets of Army posts with books tucked under their arms or seated in classrooms learning English or mathematics or history is no longer uncommon.

World War II saw the development of an educational program in the armed services of wide scope and applicability, allowing both individual and group study on the secondary and college level.

A program that started out primarily as a means of advancing the formal education of individual servicemen by the use of free hours has since grown into what the Army's attempt to evaluate its effectiveness to handle the problems of nuclear-age warfare.

No longer is education in the Army merely something that is "available" for the soldier who happens to want a useful way to spend some uncommitted hours. Formal book learning in conventional school subjects is now a preselected means of reaching specific educational objectives defined by Department of the Army.

With large-scale cuts in manpower now in progress, no secret is being made of the fact that mental ability is now the most important single criterion for keeping or getting rid of a man. Hand in hand with this goes the likelihood that educational level will soon play an extremely important role in determining advancement in the military service, both for officers and enlisted men.

The Army's reasoning is that modern warfare and defense are enormously complex and require theoretical knowledge of weapons and maneuvers from even the "hard-core" fighting man, one called the "front soldier." In order to acquire this kind of knowledge, a man must have certain basic educational equipment to build on. It is this basic equipment that the program of civilian-type education is expected to furnish.

Generally the Army realizes that much of what is learned in formal civilian education is not directly applicable to military activities, but composes a man's general background knowledge without which he is far less sensitive and perceptive person. With more general knowledge to draw on, a soldier is better able to think for himself and so becomes more valuable to the Army in situations where there is no alternative to individual thought.

In addition, many service schools must teach highly specialized material that presupposes basic courses in such fields as mathematics, physics and chemistry, and technical subjects such as radio and electronics.

Attendance at one of these service schools is often an important stepping-stone to advancement. But otherwise qualified man finds himself ineligible to attend a school because he lacks the necessary formal training. At this point the sting of an earlier neglect makes itself felt.

The Army provides the facilities to get the education job done. A fully-equipped Education Center on Post staffed by professional teachers and advisers is devoted primarily to providing civilian-type education.

In addition the Army pays for up to 75 percent of tuition costs in recognized civilian schools and colleges in which its personnel enroll on a regular basis during off-duty hours. The program then is fully supported on the highest levels of the Army.

No amount of outside assistance or goading, however, can replace the impetus that must come from within the person. Today the man who is not willing to help himself become better educated can forget about a career in the Army. The situation is as simple as that. It must be so because budget cracks permit only the most highly qualified men to be retained.

Some Bill Juggling, Too

The Judge Says . . .

Do you pay your state taxes? Are you one of those persons who believes that because he is in military service he is not obligated to pay taxes in any state while according the benefits of a citizen?

The entire theory of local taxation is a old and reasonable one. It is simply this: For taxes to be levied on the citizen who lives to live-state or county - reaping the benefits of that locality and the privilege of residence.

Along these same lines, it is wise, if you do not own real estate in the state where you are stationed, to continue to purchase your auto license tag in the state of your domicile. When this is done, the question of personal property or use tax in the state where you always have evidence of your residence, and you are supporting the state from which you and your family receive benefits.

Chaplain's Corner

Spendthrifts Can Change Direction

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) ALBERT L. SMITH

So he began to trade and he was pleased. He had to stop looking for awhile to catch up with the fact that the monthly payroll of Fort Benning exceeds $6 million, a tidy sum.

But to his utter amazement, he could not do so without a mistake. Spending is not bad, it is a favorite American recreation, but what are we getting for our spending? This is bad, but not hopeless. I can get me some worms and feed them back to the old man.

"Here, Old Father," he said. "Take these worms and give me back my feathers. The man laughed loudly and long. "No, No, my friend," he said. "I am selling worms to the old man."

Movie Time At Benning Theater Highlights

Blood Arrow, a family western starring Scott Brady, Paul Richards, Puylla Costas and Don Haggerty. Desperately needed action is safely brought through hostile Indian territory by three tough men and a girl.

Damn Citizen!, a mature crime drama with Keith Andes, Maggie Hayes, Gene Evans and Lynn Bari. Based on a real-life story, the picture dramatizes the efforts of an ex-army Colonel who takes over as head of the state police and smashes a racket ring.

Man On The Prowl, a mature drama featuring Mla Powers, James Best and Ted De Corsia. A highly dramatic and tough story of a sex-frenzied killer who murders a pretty housewife and her two small children before being shot by the police.

The Missouri Traveler, a family comedy-drama in technicolor starring Brandon DeWilde, Gary Merrill, John Van and Mary Hovorst. This is a heart-warming drama, richly spiced with humor, of a small Missouri town and its people, just before the outbreak of World War I, and of an orphan boy who became part of the town.

OVER THE AIR

During the Korean conflict, many Americans were shocked by the so-called "confessions" of U.S. servicemen taken prisoner by the Communists. Many of these people, secure in the comforts of their homes and families, paused to think when faced with the possibility of capture by the enemy - who would have if they were taken prisoner. Today, there is no doubt what is expected of American servicemen in combat. The recently adopted Code of Conduct clearly outlines every fighting man - how to resist capture, survival, and conduct in event of capture. This week's "Quest of Battle" tells the story of the Code of Conduct by providing an actual interview of a man's actions when faced with capture by the enemy. "Quest of Battle" - this Saturday at 9:30 p.m. over WRBL in Columbus.

In Alaska Army to Construct First Nuclear Plant

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga.—Department of the Army recently announced plans for constructing the Army's first operating field model nuclear power plant, to be located in Alaska. The go-ahead sign was given to the Corps of Engineers' Alaska District Engineer at Anchorage to proceed with necessary action to obtain a contract for building the plant at Fort Greely, Alaska, 60 miles south of Fairbanks on the Alaskan Highway. Energy for Post . . . The plant will generate both electricity and heat for the post and will be modeled after the prototype plant in operation at Fort Belvoir, Va. It will answer the problems of supplying conventional fuel in a remote area. Under emergency conditions it would be possible to fly the components of such a field plant to a remote site. However, the practical considerations of economy, construction means of transportation and other equipment even though normal supply lines might be disrupted, by enemy action. One loading of nuclear fuel will operate the reactor for an extended period, while conventional power plants require thousands of tons of fuel for a comparable period of operation. Basic design of the Fort Greely plant was completed recently by Alco Products, Company, Inc. of Schenectady, New York builder of the Army's package power reactor at Fort Belvoir. To cost $6 million Congress has authorized a total expenditure of $6,675,000 for the project. Construction officers in the Office, Chief of Engineers, expert about $1,500,000 will be spent for procurement of "long lead" items of equipment on which manufacture must be started well in advance, even before clearance of the site is begun. The Fort Greely reactor will produce 42,000,000 British Thermal Units per hour in steam for space heating and about 1,700 kilowatts of electricity. U.S. Troops Outwit Arctic Winter With Buried City

High on the Greenland icecap, 200 miles east of Thule AFB, Army Engineers have been beating the rigors of the Arctic winter, snug in a buried city. The soldiers, a detachment of the US Army Engineer Arctic Task Force based at Ft. Belvoir, Va., have outwitted the blizzards and 100 mph winds at F1st Clench, one of the engineers' Greenland research stations—a community of 24 insulated by 32 foot Jamesway "Huts" burrowed deep in the snow. (Camp F1st Clench, perched atop the 10,000' foot-high ice field, is manned throughout the summer by 50 officers and troops. They assist some 50 civilian engineers in year-long studies to exploit the strategic potentialities of the world's largest island other than the continent of Australia.) This station is the largest of six high arctic camps built and manned by the 500-man Task Force.

Virtually impossible in the past to continue these studies in the face of the bitter Greenland winters, the researchers previously started work about April 1 but returned to the US in mid-October.

for supply vehicles is now being tested. The roadway tunnels, using the same technique of cutting back-and-forth by snow, could be constructed cheaply, the engineers claim.

Greenland, extended beyond the Arctic Circle to a northern shore within 450 miles of the Pole, geographically connects the continents of Europe, Asia and North America and is located within a 2,500-mile range of the major portion of the industrial might of the entire world.

Although the native population of the 850,000-square-mile island—750,000 square miles of which is covered by the icecap—is only 22,000, Greenland is of prime importance to US and NATO defense.

In agreements between Denmark and the United States for protection of Greenland in 1941 and 1951, the US reaffirmed its recognition of Danish sovereignty over the whole island including areas used by American forces for defensive purposes under the agreements. The Army Corps of Engineers for the past 13 years has been engaged in investigations aimed at improving engineering methods and techniques to support establishment and maintenance of large facilities.

U.S. Takes Mayleigh Cup

The U.S. team has won the 1957 Mayleigh Cup International Pistol Team Match. The Mayleigh Cup Match is an annual pistol match fired in the respective home country of the competitors with an official witness in attendance. Scores are forwarded to the National Rifle Association of America for ranking.

The U.S. won the match with a score of 1,877 points, followed by Mexico with 1,576; Canada with 1,553 and Great Britain with 1,513.

Members of the U.S. team included Sgt. Nelson H. Lincoln, members of the U.S. Army Advanced Marksmanship unit at Fort Benning. Sgt. Lincoln fired the highest individual score in the match, 186 out of 200. Sgt. Ogden tied with William C. Joyner, of the U.S. Border Patrol for second place with a score of 181.

In winning this match, the U.S. retains possession of the Mayleigh Challenge Cup. The Mayleigh Challenge Cup was presented by the 22 caliber pistol shooters of Great Britain.

14th Led By Barnard In Scoring

Through the first nine games of the Infantry Center Regimental Basketball League the 14th Infantry Dragoons have shown a well-balanced scoring attack. With six games left the Dragoons have compiled a record of 7-2.

With an average of 70 points a game, it is their opponent Sgt. Barnard who has led the Dragoons scoring attack with 184 points. He is followed by player-coach D. T. Williams with 115 points. Williams also leads in shooting percentage at 47.4 per cent.

These place among the Dragoons is one of Wallace Lewis who is with 120 points. Lewis is among the league leaders in the rebounding department, leading the team with 116 rebounds.

Among the regulars, Barnard leads in free throw accuracy with 75.7 per cent. However, Jerome Mornant leads the team with a 83.7 per cent. Individual scoring is as follows:

TSB Unit Takes Post Journey

The 20th Company, School Brigade, won the Infantry Center Company level invitational basketball tournament last week in an overtime game with the Infantry Board.

After four successive victories, 20th Company beat the Infantry Board's overtime by a score of 40-37 for the tournament championship.

Led by Tom Kelly, who paced the winners with nine field goals and a free throw for 19 points, the 20th Company dominated the game in the final seconds 35-33. In an exciting three minute overtime, 20th Company outscored the Infantry Board 8-2 to win the game.

Service Gridders Named To 'Silver' All-America

NEW YORK (APPS)—Twenty-five years ago last month a college football season had just come to an end and the seniors who won football letters were getting ready on graduation, to launch lifetime careers. With the cooperation of American colleges and universities and the aid of a national board of judges, the magazine "Sports Illustrated" has compiled on 25 of these men its annual Silver Anniversary All-America award for outstanding career achievement since 1932.

Two of the 25 selected were Brig. Gen. Kenneth E. Fields (USA, ret.) and the late Captain William R. Kane, USN. General Fields was nominated by the Military Academy and Captain Kane by the Naval Academy.

The Army-Navy game of 1932 saw 79,000 fans jammed into Philadelphia's Franklin Field. Army won, 23-0, and the starting left halfback for the Cadets was Kenneth Fields. Despite the loss, the Middle right tackle, William Kane played a great game on both offense and defense.

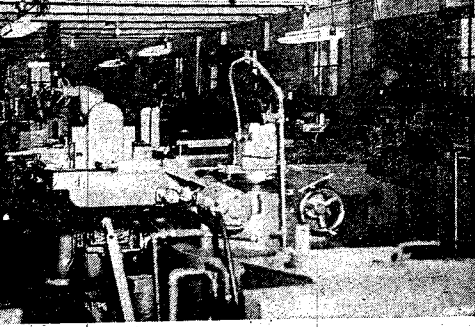

An explosive 65-yard boot by halfback Ken Fields kept the Army out of trouble early in the game. Late in the third quarter the Middle led by Bill Kane, stopped the second year Army in the late stages of the game. But not before Bill Kane and his teammates put up a goal line stand on the final score. Unable to go through the line, the Cadets circled the line 54 yards to a touchdown. He made the last two yards for the touchdown.

With Navy defense tiring in the late stages of the game, Army marched 40-yards to final score. But not before Bill Kane and his teammates put up a goal line stand on the final score. Unable to go through the line, the Cadets circled the line 54 yards to a touchdown. He made the last two yards for the touchdown.

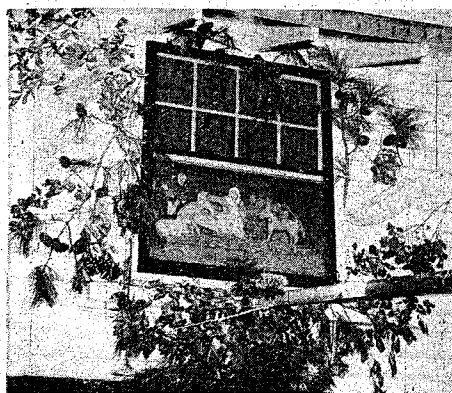

Handing the unit's bandgrips is M-Sgt. Herman D. Gano whose activities range from adjusting and replacing pistol parts to complete accuracy work. On occasion, the store manager sergeant revealed that he has built a complete pistol. Assisting Sgt. Gano is M-Sgt. Charley J. Barnett, veteran postal competitor and coach. Besides the various lathes, he made the last two yards for the touchdown.

These six technicians, some of whom are master-mechanics by trade, combine nearly a century of gunsmithing experience. Their job is to assure that each weapon fired by a member of the U. S. Army Rifle or Pistol team performs with clock-like accuracy. To this is added the task of constantly experimenting, improving and refining various aspects of a weapon in search for the ultimate in functional accuracy.

M-Sgt. Glenn R. Baker, an armorer, has built a complete pistol. Assisting Sgt. Gano is M-Sgt. Charley J. Barnett, veteran postal competitor and coach. Besides the various lathes, he made the last two yards for the touchdown.

Shop MPs Commended By Former Police

Thank You For Constructive, grinding, and other heavy equipment, the shop has a heat-treating furnace which will temper metal to a uniform degree. This process becomes important in treating a seat or hammer to a constant degree of hardness, resulting in a smoothly functioning trigger. Special tools, jigs, and fixtures can be made and tempered with this furnace.

USA AMU shop personnel are constantly improving their methods. Refinements have been made in glass-bedding a process which enables a weapon to maintain a constant zero by the application of liquid to various interdependent parts of a rifle. A thinner front sight blade on the M-1 has proven satisfactory, while current research is being made on a new bedding process for M-1A Manually Operated M-1s.

From the tuning of M-1 triggers to the complete rebuilding of a rifle, the shop is able to insure the highest degree of performance from match grade weapons. In its role of repairing, improving, and expending the USA AMU shop provides a definite service to the development of accurate small arms fire power and marksmanship in the Army.

With Navy defense tiring in the late stages of the game, Army marched 40-yards to final score. But not before Bill Kane and his teammates put up a goal line stand on the final score. Unable to go through the line, the Cadets circled the line 54 yards to a touchdown. He made the last two yards for the touchdown.

With the civilian police departments could benefit from the training that is given in the military police. One of the outstanding things is the way the MP's keep up their personal appearance and their way of directing traffic.

Award Goes To Departing Capt. Hayden

Capt. Wilson A. Hayden, foreign V.P. Protocol officer at the Infantry Center, has received a Certificate of Achievement for exceptionally meritorious service from Dec. 1, 1956 to Dec. 20, 1957.

At a ceremony in the office of Major Gen. Herbert B. Fowler, Chief of the Infantry Center, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Capt. Hayden was presented his award for "his detailed planning, constant supervising and enthusiastic assumption of responsibility of reception arrangements incident to visits of foreign military and civilian dignitaries. He is leaving Fort Benning to attend the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., before going to France for assignment in June.

"His demonstration of tact, initiative, knowledge, and ability was to the credit and prestige of The Infantry Center, Military Assistance Advisory Groups and embassies of the U.S.," his citation stated.

Before joining the Protocol Division he served as an instructor with the Logistics Group of the U.S. Army Infantry School's Staff Department. During World War II Capt. Hayden served in the European campaigns with the 63rd Infantry Division. He was with the 40th Infantry Division in Korea from October, 1952 to June, 1955, when he came to Fort Benning to attend the Infantry School's Associate Advanced class.

Capt. Hayden attended Western Kentucky State Teachers College at Bowling Green, where he is married to the former Dolores Lambert.

Masquers Put Final Touch on Production

BY ALVIN COHN
The holiday spirits are upon us and the cast of "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter" is taking its final touches on its rehearsal schedule. The members of the Masquers will have only a few days to put the finishing touches on their play when they return to ready it for production on Jan. 16-17.

Major Stephen L. Brown, of the IG Section, once again takes a lead role in the Masquers' play. Showing off his talents in the part of Irving Laszlo, Major Brown is newcomer to the stage. Besides acting, he has demonstrated his professional abilities as a playwright and an author.

The theater goes with the reseruation. Having worked feverishly on its rehearsal schedule, the members of the Masquers will have only a few days to put the finishing touches on their play when they return to ready it for production on Jan. 16-17.

It's Research For Giraffes By A Neck!

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Giraffes are sticking their necks out for military research.

Navy and Air Force researchers are exerting a full amount of information on high blood pressure and gravitational stress from the cashew-tasting animals.

Interested in learning how the giraffe can force blood 12 feet up its neck to its head, scientists began their study of the animal's blood system several years ago.

It was found that the long-legged leaf eater has a normal blood pressure of 200 to 300 times that of man.

A German doctor, Dr. Otto Grauer, reported that the hard, tight skin of the giraffe provides a sort of natural pressure suit, preventing the flow of excess blood to the giraffe's legs.

That is similar, he said, to the G-suit which protects fliers from blacking-out under gravitational stress.

The Office of Naval Research and the American Heart Assn. have joined in the giraffe study, but so far the timid beasts haven't uttered a sound of encouragement.

Awards Total $310 for 3

Three civilian employees at Fort Benning have been presented $310 in awards for outstanding performance of duties and a suggestion resulting in large estimated savings.

The awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Luten, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Ruth Wesley, librarian at the Infantry School, received $200 for sustained superior performance of duties from September 1956, to August 1957.

Mrs. Edith C. Higgins, civilian aide of the School Brigade's Classification and Assignment Section received a $100 award.

With Latest in Information Benning Keeps Pace Through Television

As it is a major responsibility of the Infantry to keep pace with the times in terms of the battlefield tactics and weapons, so it is a major responsibility to keep pace with the latest information methods and media.

The Infantry must be updated to be ready to make a successful military impact on any would-be aggressor. The Army's information program "Fort Benning Reports" is a short must be updated to reach the public with a successful flow of information.

"Fort Benning Reports," the Infantry Center's Information Office's weekly news telecast, establishes another reason why of the post. This cooperation enables the TV unit to operate efficiently yet economically, with its two-man staff. But irregular hours is the only item the men of the TV unit can expect with consistency when the news is being made and when feature material is available. The TV cameraman is there. The 30 second news story on Saturday can be the result of hours of film planning, the five-minute feature, picturing a phase in the training of atomic age Infantrymen at the Infantry School, may take a week of shooting and editing.

"Fort Benning Reports" became the first regularly scheduled program of its type in the Third Army area last August following several months of planning with WRBL-TV in Columbus, Ga.

lumbat. While personnel and equipment were being set up for the new Fort Benning venture, radio-TV officials held programming details with George Gingel, program director, and Ridley Bell, television manager of WRBL-TV. Through the fall months "Fort Benning Reports" proved itself to be a professional show produced by competent hands. Today the future of this show and Army information through television look bright, thanks to a good job done by a new type of Fort Benning pioneer.

School Option Draws Army Reenlistments

Today, more than ever before, soldiers are taking advantage of the opportunity to learn trades while serving in the Army. This is possible under Army regulations officially announced in 1955 which authorize reenlistment for the purpose of attending an Army school of the individual's choice, if otherwise qualified.

Career specialists who have chosen a specialty at one of the Army's 20 technical schools have voiced enthusiasm for the program. They find that they have gained needed and valuable technical skills, that they have obtained a solid foundation for beginning their own businesses after retirement.

Service men may submit applications indicating three preferences from among the 127 schools. A commitment to reenlist is not made until the Major Army Commander authorizes attendance at the school of a soldier's choice.

Concert Slates Beethoven Work

The recorded concert at the Main Fort Benning Library next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor."

Receiving honorable mention were Wards 2 and B-14. "Santa Claus in Comic Land" expressed the ingenuity of Ward 2. A comic strip Santa with reindeer was the central motif while various comic characters were placed strategically throughout the ward. Ward B-14 used "Modern Christmas" as it theme with colored paper ornaments.

Lt.'s Lane, Davis Named Honor Graduates of Instrument Course

1st Army Av. Co. Many of the First's personnel took advantage of the holiday season to spend their leave time at home.

Joining the unit are Sp2 William M. Hill Jr., who will join in the LAAC mess hall; Sp3 Joseph W. Helgrip, Pvt. Allen E. Baker, Pfc. Joseph L. Beach, and Pvt. Clarence W. Parker, all will serve as mechanics on the Otters of the First.

Lt. and Mrs. Raymond Cross, Pa. became the parents of a girl, Pamela Jean Dec. 3. Lt. Cross is a flight platoon leader.

1st Lt.'s James Lane and Willie Davis graduated number one and two in the Instrument Training Course conducted at Lawson Army Airfield.

A Christmas party was held by enlisted men of the Fourth and 12nd Maintenance Detachment Dec. 19. The party was held in Bldg. 301A Main hangar, from 2 to 8 P.M. with officers of the unit attending as guests.

Seven crews returned from Bridgeport, Conn., last weekend with seven new H-37's for the unit. CWO's James P. Ervin and William F. Pette are TDY to Sikorsky Factory, Bridgeport, to bring the last twin-engine helicopter to the unit. With the arrival of this helicopter, the fourth will be the first Army unit to be completely equipped with this type aircraft. The unit will have a total of 16.

CWO Thomas E. Knoblett, William D. Austin, Jack Brown and Stanton L. Beedy are TDY to Bridgeport, Conn., to ferry two H-34's to Mobile, Ala. CWO Knoblett is flight commander for the trip.

Also on TDY is CWO Charles R. Hall and WO Olin W. Stalon. They are delivering an H-34 for IFRAN inspection at Olmstead AFB, Middletown, Pa.

Two warrant officers and two enlisted men returned to the unit last week after completing seven weeks of maintenance instruction on the H-37 at Sikorsky factory, Bridgeport, Conn. Those returning to the unit were Louis Share, Harry Donajewski, Sgt. Jack Henderson and Sgt. John Summey.

Three new men were assigned to the unit recently. They are Sp2 A. C. Miltland and Sgt. Robert W. Curtis, duty with the Fourth, and Pvt. Elmer West Jr., duty with the 152nd Maintenance Detachment.

WO and Mrs. William K. Snyder became parents of a baby girl Dec. 2 at the Medical Center in Columbus.

The Lawson Army Airfield Command Children's Christmas Party was held Dec. 14. Decorations, entertainment, refreshments, gifts, and Santa Claus, were provided to make it a successful event. One of the hangars at Lawson field was completely decorated for the occasion. A Christmas tree was placed in the center of the hangar, and gifts were piled beneath it. Each child received both a gift and a stocking.

M-Sgt. Wins First Prize In 3-A Plan

First prize in the Third Army Army Infantry Center Contest for quarterly Military Suggestions of Achievement and $250.00 first prize in the Fort Benning monthly Military Suggestions Contest for his money-saving idea.

M-Sgt. John H. Wailes, in conjunction with Thomas C. Peacock, both of the Infantry School Operations Office's Weapons Pools proposed a more efficient and economical method of transporting 16mm recoilless rifles to and from ranges. Their suggestions will result in savings of $16,177 annually.

Sgt. Wailes received $100 for garnering the top award in the Third Army contest. He previously was awarded a U.S. Army Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement and $250.00 first prize in the Fort Benning monthly Military Suggestions Contest for his money-saving idea.

Formerly, one jeep and driver were required to transport each 16mm recoilless rifle. Wailes and Peacock proposed that an M-5 bomb-trailer with steel track be used for this purpose. With the trailers, only nine two-and-a-half-ton trucks and nine drivers can haul the 16mm recoilless rifles formerly needing the services of 70 jeeps and an equivalent number of drivers.

The Third Army prize was presented to Sgt. Wailes by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general.

Chaplain Praises Religion Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—American soldiers are more religious than civilians, according to Maj. Gen. Patrick Ryan, Army Chief of Chaplains.

In an address to a woman's club here Gen. Ryan said soldiers are "fine ambassadors wherever they go," and he attributed this mainly to the character guidance program of the Army.

General Ryan stated that the Army's religious program has never been so strong. "Percent-wise," he said, "more people are attending religious services than in comparable civilian communities."

Gen. Hickey Cites Post

Fort Benning has received a commendation from Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, commander of the Third U. S. Army, Fort McPherson, Ga., for its outstanding contribution to the American Red Cross blood drive.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, Gen. Hickey said, "I was very gratified to learn recently of the splendid record compiled by personnel of your installation in connection with the Red Cross blood drive conducted in December."

Continuing with his commendation Gen. Hickey stated, "As you know the need for human blood increases almost daily, and during this holiday season when we must expect our annual tragic increase in traffic accidents, requirements are more urgent than ever. That Fort Benning exceeded its blood quota of 500 pints by 323 is therefore doubly gratifying, particularly in view of the fact that recent collections among a number of agencies have proved disappointing."

"Mr. Virgil Milton, chairman of the Regional Blood Center here in Atlanta (Ga.), has been high in his praise for the spirit of cooperation shown by Fort Benning personnel in their support of this and previous blood drives. His comments have been a source of great pride to all of us here at Third Army," Gen. Hickey added in his letter.

Contract Let To Beautify New Hospital

The apparent low bid of $10,850.50 for landscaping the new hospital at Fort Benning has been made by Synnes Nursery of Atlanta, Ga.

This was one of six bids opened by the Savannah District engineers.

Included in the contract will be the providing and planting 400 trees, 220 shrubs and 4,000 house-scape vines. Among the trees and shrubs to be planted are oak, tulip, elm, pine, magnolia, red maple, holly dogwood, redbud and cedar, boxwood, juniper, pyracantha, pok phoenia, elaeagnus and laurel.

Skaggs Landscape Gardens, Inc., of Jacksonville, Fla., J. L. Hall of Augusta, Ga., Carolina Floral Nursery of Mt. Briley, S. C., J. E. Moses of Ewald, Ga., and Hickory Hill of Atlanta, were other bidders.

Estimated completion date of the more than $6 million hospital is early May. The Maguer construction of Will Success Spill Rock Hunter? 3,000 at Post Observe Civil Service Birth Today

Some 3,000 Fort Benning civilian employees of the world's largest employer, the U.S. Government, will observe the 75th anniversary of Civil Service Jan. 16.

America's government merit system was officially established Jan. 16, 1883, with the signing of the Civil Service Act by President Chester A. Arthur. It was through public opinion against the "spoils system" that an equitable government employment system was enacted into law.

At Post Since 1919 Civil Service has been in operation at Fort Benning since 1919 shortly after the post was established. Jobs cover almost every office at the Infantry Center and include every type required to operate a large city, except notably a tax collector and a mayor.

Civil Service operation at Fort Benning ranges from office workers of all types to such posts as street repairmen, water plant operators, laundrymen, postal clerks, firemen, educators, scientists, executives and administrators.

A Civilian Personnel Division headed by Tillman A. Barndt administers the system at the Infantry Center. Personnel at the post are Federal employees who serve under the Department of Defense, one of the more than 70 departments of the Merit System.

Fort Benning's 3,000 Civil Service employees help the Army operate efficiently, effectively and economically. They release military personnel necessary to conduct the vital defense and provide a greater range of skills often difficult to find in a strictly military sense. Justly important, too, is the continuity of operation they provide. The Infantry Center in their long-term employment status.

The hand-in-hand working of these public civil servants and the military public service also provides a well-traveled bridge between the military community of Fort Benning and the surrounding Georgia.

Drive Started For Joint Funds

Fort Benning's 1958 annual fund raising campaign for national health agencies and the Joint Crusade commenced yesterday, Feb. 28.

The drive, which is for agencies not included in the United Givers campaign, will consist of two phases staged concurrently. Prospective contributors will receive two envelopes, one for contributions to the Joint Crusade for CARE and Crusade for Freedom, and the other for donations to the national health agencies.

Contributors may indicate on designation cards and contributors envelopes particular agencies which they desire to receive their donations.

Participating agencies under the Joint Crusade drive are CARE and Crusade for Freedom. National health agencies to benefit from the campaign are the American Cancer Society, Inc., Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Inc., Georgia Association for Mental Health, Inc., and National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc.

Drive Chairmen . . . Col. Max E. Schneider, headquarters commandant of the Infantry Center, is 1958 drive chairman.

Coordinator is 1st Lt. C. T. Galby, chief of the Funds Division of the Headquarters Commandant Section.

The Federal area chairman for the Crusade for freedom and CARE, Inc. has been selected from Fort Benning. He is Dewey L. Posey, administrative officer of the Infantry Center Ordnance Section. He was appointed by Under-Secretary of Defense.

Favor 6-Year Tour Quota Exceeded By Post Re-Ups

Re-enlistments at the Infantry Center in 1957 totaled 1,474 out of 2,881 men eligible, 50.9 per cent.

Fort Benning recruiting officials reported that this 50.9 per cent exceeded the Third U.S. Army re-enlistment quota for the year by about 10 per cent.

According to the re-enlistment officer, Capt. August G. Seiber, at least one person has re-enlisted each day, including Sundays and holidays, since last August.

The total re-enlistment on the post, including the Third Infantry Division, was 2317.

The six-year tour was the choice of the majority of re-enlistees. A total of 1,863 selected this tour. Five hundred and forty re-enlistees for three years, 168 for four years, 45 for five years and one for an unspecified time. November was the top month for re-enlistments with 272 men signing new contracts. October was next with 251 while 222 signed in August.

The School Brigade was tops on the post in retaining its excellent re-enlistment record. Out of 292 men eligible to be discharged, 633 elected to remain in the service giving a re-enlistment percentage of 61.2.

Running a close second was Special Troops Command. This unit had 122 men to re-enlist out of 694 eligible for a percentage of 60.8.

One at Post 3-A Installs Six Boards For WP Test

Fort Benning is one of six installations in Third Army area which has been authorized to establish a semi-permanent West Point Application Board. The boards will implement Department of Army regulations concerning submission and processing of servicemen's applications for appointment to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Other boards in Third Army will be at Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Jackson S. C., Fort McPherson, Ga., Fort Campbell, Ky., and U. S. Army Military District of Mississippi in Jackson.

Unit commanders processing applications for appointment to the Military Academy will forward them to the board nearest the applicant concerned, regardless of component or branch of service of the applicant.

Unless they have withdrawn their applications, applicants cannot be reassigned outside the Third Army area without appearing before the applicant board concerned.

At Fort Benning, the board will be composed of: Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, presents a certificate to Staff Aide, Mrs. Leon McCall Jr., while Lt. Col. Clara M. Keely, second from right, hospital chief nurse, caps Gray Lady, Mrs. W. F. Graves.

Post Accidents Drop Over Holiday Period

Fort Benning military personnel scored 50 per cent less accidents in the 17-day period from Dec. 20, 1957, to Jan. 6, 1958, than an average 17-day period in 1957. It is also slightly better than the Christmas period of 1956.

Keep Up With Changes

Of vital importance to all Infantrymen, and to the officers and noncommissioned officers of other branches who work with the Infantry, is the official quarterly publication of The Infantry School, "INFANTRY."

During this period of unprecedented changes in Army organization and equipment, all field manuals, training texts and instructional literature are being revised.

The edition for the first quarter of 1958 is now off press. This issue discusses such important items as the newly adopted M14-M15 rifle; logistical support, staff procedures and the new brigade headquarters of the pentomic Infantry revision; nomenclature, TOEs and pentomic symbols for the new organization and the pentomic rifle company in the defense.

This material, along with numerous other articles on the noncommissioned officer, psychological warfare, stabilized free fall parachuting and feature items, such as the "QUARTERLY QUIZ," provide information for individuals and units throughout the Army.

U. S. Constitution

This is the second in a series of articles which tells the story of the creation and acceptance of the Constitution of the United States.

On his way to Philadelphia, Washington doubtless turned over in his mind the serious shortcomings of the Articles of Confederation.

Their basic weakness was that under them each state retained its full independence. The central government could act only through the states. If the states refused to cooperate, Congress could do nothing.

At one time the treasury of the Confederation was completely empty, but Congress could not levy taxes to fill it again; it could only request funds from the states.

Congress could not regulate interstate and foreign commerce. States levied tariffs on foreign countries or on each other as they saw fit.

Most of the states placed heavy tariffs on British goods. However, Connecticut admitted them duty free, but imposed a tariff against Massachusetts.

The Confederation could raise an army only by asking the states to supply troops. And even if it could raise an army in this way, the Congress had no money to pay the soldiers.

Finally, the Confederation had no real executive; its laws had to be enforced by the states—and the states could do as they pleased. The only courts were state courts.

International Round-Up Soviets Say Rumor Of Spaceman False

MOSCOW—Russian officials in a position to know said last week they have no information about a Russian rocket carrying a man into space.

A spokesman for the Soviet Academy of Sciences and the committee for cultural relations with foreign countries made this response to questions about unofficial reports that a Russian rocket shot 180 miles into space after New Year and that the man named parachuted to earth.

SUPPORT GROUPS LONDON—There was growing support in Britain's press and from some of its political leaders this week at a summit conference with the Russians.

Premier Nikolai Bulganin's letters have clearly won the British in the street over to the idea of talks—and Britons are being told in their newspapers that the Americans are beginning to feel the same way.

Even the loudest British advocates of the top-level conferences concede there are risks for the West but they seem willing to take the chance.

THE ANSWERS RED WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower told Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin in a personal message this week that "I am ready" to attend an East-West summit conference on condition that it is carefully prepared and shows "good hope" of promoting world peace.

At the same time Eisenhower proposed to the Soviet Premier a sweeping series of nuclear weapons tests "definitively" under a program to stop making nuclear weapons.

VATICAN REJECTS REEDS VATICAN CITY—Vatican sources said this week the Roman Catholic Church would not reject Russian suggestions of possible relations with the Vatican as a gesture whose only value was to further Soviet propaganda.

The sources said the Vatican attached no other importance whatsoever to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's statement that Russia is prepared to establish "solid and enduring" collaboration with the Vatican.

Chaplain's Corner Each Man Builds For Tomorrow

God is not greatly impressed with the false fronts of those who seek to appear righteous in the sight of men. He is not satisfied with the casual presence of those who are only looking for an easy "cut" out.

Therefore whosoever beareth these sayings of mine and doeth them, I will liken him to a wise man who built his house on a rock.

The Judge Says...

This is the first in a series of eight articles concerning Federal Income Taxation which will appear weekly in this column of The Bayonet.

Each year we get numerous inquiries in the Staff Judge Advisory Section with reference to what type of form to use in filing income tax.

Remember, everyone must fill out returns for the calendar year, and even if you do not earn $600 a year, and even if you do not earn $600 a year, you probably will have to fill one out in order to get a refund from the government.

Few to Escape Buying Car Tags By Gyroscoping

Some gyroscope-designated members of the Third Infantry Division will be exempt from purchasing 1958 license tags for their cars.

The majority of states, including Georgia where the law is registered, will require 1958 tags before the Division deems the cars eligible.

Now Captain Living-On-His Army Paycheck can also file the Form 1040 on the wage earner's return if he receives over $5,000 a year and has no outside income.

Now Colonel Outside-Income can also file the Form 1040 on his own income if he earns over $5,000 a year and has no outside income.

DANI CRAYNE... Movie Time at Benning did not make its customary appearance in time for Bayonet deadline this week.

Lt. Col. Gordon E. Sayre, chairman of the Atomic Committee of the Army Infantry School's Staff Department, was given honorable mention in the 1957 All-Army Photography Contest.

His color picture "Fireball" was entered in the contest's Amateur Class. Despite a simulated atomic explosion, the transparency was taken by Col. Sayre during Infantry Branch training exercises in Hawaii in the summer of 1956.

This is the third year Col. Sayre has received honorable mention in the All-Army Photography Contest.

He placed first in the Fort Benning phase of the 1957 Army-wide contest, Amateur Division and White Division, with a scene of four Infantrymen entitled "Follow Me."

OVER THE AIR

There's an old saying that "You can't please all the people all the time." At any rate, that's the principal reason behind the variety of programs produced by the Infantry Center Information Office.

On the entertainment side beginning this week end, Gene Allen and the Militaires will be making two appearances on the airways—both programs transcribed direct from Benning's Main Officers' Open Mess.

This week's "Queen of Battle" program portion of the importance of a weapon that's been in use for over 2,000 years. Even with the rapid advances made in weapons equipment and techniques, accurate information and intelligence remains vital to the success of any military engagement.

Armed Forces YMCA Wiener Roast Slated At Yuchi Reservation

A big night is in the offing for all who come to the Armed Services YMCA, Tuesday night, Jan. 21, and arrive by 6:30 p.m.

A bus will be on hand for 27 people who will load it at the appointed hour, pile in the hot dogs and all the trimmings and head for the Yuchi Reservation.

There's an evening of fun, music, and food will be served. GSO girls are sponsoring this event, servicemen are cordially invited to come along.

Other events for the coming week will include a dance on Friday, Jan. 17, at 8:30 on the 2nd floor lounge; GSO girls will have an indoor for this week activity.

Dance to the music of Merle Garrett's combo, 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 18, with lucky chair prize at intermission.

Show to Feature Army's Missiles On January 19

Army missile preparations will be featured on Dave Garrows' "Wide World" television program Jan. 19. The show entitled "Missile Men" will be telecast from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. on WTVL in Columbus, and will deal with nuclear developments in all the services.

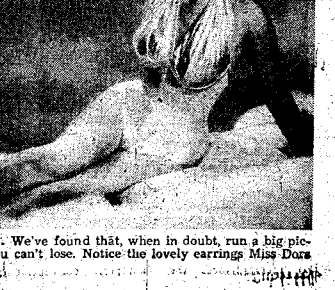

WE GOT MORE... Last week we mentioned that we had seen Luana Lee in only one movie, Raintree County, and would like to see more of her.

Concert Slates Broadway Tunes

Music from "My Fair Lady" will be featured at the recorded concert in the Main Fort Benning Library Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

There is little one can say about the musical comedy "My Fair Lady" that has not already been expressed by someone somewhere.

Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe first attracted Broadway attention with "The Day Before Spring." This was followed by "Brigadoon," which has already become a legend in the history of the theatre.

WHEN IN DOUBT... We've found that, when in doubt, run a big picture of Diana Dors. You can't lose. Notice the lovely earrings Miss Dors is wearing.

On the Bookshelf

Alr Spy by Constance Babington-Smith (Harper, c1957). The story of the plot to assassinate the President of the United States in 1937. Using the panoramic lens of her effectiveness, Babington-Smith tells of the intricate background of the plot, the talents of the assassins, the role of the press, the role of the police, the role of the military, the role of the intelligence agencies, the role of the public, the role of the President, the role of the nation.

8:30 Tonight and Tomorrow 'Rock Hunter' Rocks At Faith Aud. Tonight

BY ALVIN COHEN
Time is growing short and the cast and production crew of "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" are in last minute hurries readying the production. There are always late items to be fitted to, but a competent staff plunges headlong into the project; success can be its only last reward.

If the proverbial needle in a haystack was needed as a property, our production crew would find it. Nothing so minute is needed for WSSH, but large or small, all props will be in their proper place when the curtain goes up Jan. 26.

The backstage crew for this Masques' production is headed by Site Pierre Duranton, born in Paris, France, he is the fourth generation of a theatrical family. He is a double threat man for this play, since he is serving as set constructor and stage manager.

Also on the backstage crew are: Pfc. David F. Randall who designed the set; Pfc. Richard Zacharias, 2nd and 3rd mates; Pfc. Joseph L. Sevin, assistant sound man; and Dan Anderson and Jerry Anderson, artists and creators of the publicity flyer and billboards.

Mrs. Jean Forrester is serving as small properties manager for WSSH and Mrs. Elette Sayre is the costumer. One of the special problems is the Joan of Arc costume the leading lady will wear.

Two very important "behind the scenes" persons have given assistance to the Masques' production in the past and again for the current play. Mr. Lillian of Kayser-Lilli, Columbus, is supplying all the clothing to be worn in the production. Mrs. Jean Forrester is the theater-goers will see, the clothing will add a professional polish to the production.

Col. Harry McClain of the Fort Benning Boy Scouts has volunteered the use of his boys in promoting WSSH. During the course of the week, they will be handing out public liability flyers and going from door to door to offer residents an opportunity to purchase tickets for the show without having to locate a ticket booth.

January 21 Post AFMA to Hear National President

The national president of the Armed Forces Management Association, Carl Freedman of Washington, D. C., will speak on "The Planning Function in Management" at the Jan. 21 meeting of the organization's Fort Benning chapter at 7:30 p.m. in the Main Officers' Mess.

Mr. Freedman has served as assistant for financial management to the director of management analysis, U. S. Air Force Office of the Comptroller, since 1955. He is also chairman of the Board of Directors of the Armed Forces Management Association.

Also speaking at the Jan. 21 dinner session will be Lt. Col. Stephen H. White, editor of The Infantry School Quarterly.

The occasion will celebrate the third anniversary of the founding of the local chapter, which for the last two years has been named the outstanding chapter of the national association.

Reservations may be made with Major R. F. Ruyffelaere at Fort Benning 2-7203.

During World War II, Mr. Freedman served as an officer in the Army from 1942 to 1945. His assignments included tours as assistant to Brig. Gen. A. B. Warfield in activating the holding and reassignment depot at Adairville, Calif.; (now Sharp's General Depot) and as a staff officer in Army Service Forces.

Following the war, he was associated for five years with the Veterans Administration as assistant director of coordination and planning. Freedman began working as a management engineer in the Department of the Army's Office of the Comptroller in 1953 and dealt with the development of the Army Financial Management Plan.

Lt. Col. Donohue Named Instructor at Tac. Dept.

Lt. Col. Eugene M. Donohue has been named a battle group tactics instructor in the Infantry School's Tactical Department.

Following his graduation from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in April, 1956, he served as commander of the 706th Area Command in Korea before coming to the Infantry School.

Col. Donohue attended Ohio State College before entering active duty in November, 1941. He was graduated from Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning the following July and joined the 46th Infantry Regiment at Camp Maxey, Texas.

He went overseas with the unit in June, 1944, and served as a battalion commander in the regiment with the 102nd Division in Europe. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

The 46-year-old officer served with various Sixth U. S. Army units from 1946 to 1950, including a two-year tour at Sixth Army headquarters, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

From June, 1950, to August, 1952, he commanded the Third Battalion of the Fourth Regimental Combat Team in Alaska, then served for 40 months as U. S. Army Reserve adviser in Butte, Mont.

Col. Donohue completed the Infantry School's officers' advanced course in February, 1954.

M-Sgt. James Gets Memorial Award

Army M-Sgt. John T. James has received the sixth annual Hugh H. Casey Memorial Award as the most outstanding soldier of the 1st Battle Group, Seventh Infantry, Third Infantry Division.

The award was established Aug. 7, 1953 by Major Gen. Hugh H. Casey (Retired) in memory of his son, Major Hugh B. Casey, who served as executive officer of the Second Battalion, Seventh Infantry during the early days of the Korean conflict.

Third Army's Lt. Col. Bradley 'Farm Girl' Named Top '57 Lady As Army Nurse Corps Officer

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — When Lt. Col. Ruby Bradley, Army Nurse Corps, became the "Farm Girl" named Top '57 Lady in the "Favorite Daughter" of Boone County, she has been named "Lucky in fatigues," who has page-one headlines for her invaluable service as a nurse in a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines — and later as chief nurse in Korea. But to the folks back in West Virginia, she is still just "Ruby."

The 1957 "Lady of the Year" was born on a farm "up on Spring Creek," home folks will tell you. Her parents, like many other farm and mountain people, had a large family — four girls and two boys. Ruby was the fourth of six.

She attended school and Sunday school in her home community and decided early that she would like to be a nurse. Entered Army in 1934. She attended school and Sunday school in her home community and decided early that she would like to be a nurse.

After several routine slide assignments, she was sent to the Philippine Islands. And when the Japanese struck at the Philippines, she was captured. That began 37 months and five days of imprisonment in the hands of the enemy. Collectively, these three years are the colonel's most unusual experience.

She remembers vividly the capture and the friendly treatment of the Japanese officers — the rumbling fear of being at Kurt Loeb's. She remembers the luxury of the worn Tuffed Spring bedded furniture is a specialty. The combination of homemade upholstery with springing requires highly skilled workmanship in repairing. Her character service here for ALL apostolary recovering, repairing.

At Custer Terrace Club TSB Officers' Wives Delighted By 'June in January' Luncheon

Officers' wives of the School Brigade were entertained with a delightful "June in January" luncheon Jan. 9 at the Custer Terrace Club. Hostesses were cadre officers' wives of the First School Brigade, under the leadership of Mrs. James L. Bryan, wife of Lt. Col. Bryan, commander of the First Battalion.

Following the luncheon there was a fashion show featuring a bride's trousseau, bridesmaid dresses and three brides dresses, presented by Kayser-Lillenthal and narrated by Mrs. Theesinger. Highlights of the fashion show was a medley of appropriate songs sung by a trio composed of Mrs. Alvin L. Prichard Jr., David L. Young and George E. Dickson. They sang "June in January," "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The models presented the fashions before a dais composed of Mrs. Douglas J. Burrows, Hugh C. Holt, James M. Knox and Lewis. The Invitation Committee was composed of Mesdames Ikeda, Katz and d Schroeder. Chairman for the program was Mrs. James L. Bryan, assisted by Mrs. Winn. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Kaatz sold Woman's Club tickets and Bookbooks.

Eighty-three ladies attended the luncheon. New members welcomed to the School Brigade were Mesdames Richard W. Mabee, John Zamin, Jack T. P. Schramm, Ralph Fisher, Howard Morgan, David Hartigan, Donald Porter, William Ollivier, Gene Cristin, John Hornbill, and Florence Wallace. Cookies with a proverb baked inside.

Annual Banquet Set Tuesday for Scouts

The Georgia-Alabama Council of Boy Scouts of America will hold its annual awards banquet, Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Mess.

The installation of new officers and members of the 1958 executive board will highlight the evening's program.

Eugene Patterson, executive editor of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution will be the guest of honor.

Guest of honor will be Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, who will give the welcoming address.

Among the awards to be presented is the Silver Beaver, highest honor for adult contribution to the Boy Scout movement.

Each year names of outstanding Scout officials from the council are submitted for consideration. A committee of Silver Beaver holders reviews the names, submitting six nominees to the National Council in Washington, D.C. One of the names is chosen for the award presented at the annual dinner.

The coveted President's Arrowhead Trophy will also be presented to the district having the highest percentage of adult attendance during the past year.

Other awards include the Scout's Key, the Arrowhead, the National Scouters' Award, the National Scouters' Award, the National Scouters' Award, the National Scouters' Award.

CG Rates Long Arm Top Project

The test of the T-37 jet aircraft in support of Infantry tactical operations being conducted at Fort Benning will be one of the important tests of the year, Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School Commandant, announced.

Gen. Powell, director of Project Long Arm, welcomed members of the Infantry Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., and other members of the project.

The project began Jan. 6 with the arrival of three T-37's from Fort Rucker, and will continue until Jan. 23. It is being conducted by The Infantry School.

Its importance, the general stressed, is fused with the future when small units with specialized weapons maneuver on fluid battlefields requiring quick dispersion and regrouping as the tactical situation may require.

The experience with T-37 jet aircraft in support of tactical operations of Infantry units will be an important contribution to the development of Infantry operations: in the future, Gen. Powell said.

He should establish the best of the Department of Electrical Engineering at Auburn Polytechnic Institute in Auburn, will be principal speaker at the day's meeting of the Columbus Military Order of World War Veterans, 1945-1946, at the meeting.

Guests of honor at the meeting will be five exercises: Project Long Arm. They will be realistic and as near to actual combat as possible, according to officials.

King Chairman

At that meeting, the 25 persons composing the council elected Jack King of King's School of Aviation, chairman. Guy Kilgore of Muscogee County Airport, was elected vice chairman, and Capt. Adam Smith of Lawson Army Air Field, recorder-treasurer.

Some of the important action taken by the council at that meeting was agreement to develop a grid map for use of police agencies in reporting crash locations, thus speeding up rescue operations.

Deliberation

A second subject for action was agreement upon the delineation of areas for student training and preparation of a map indicating such areas. This first meeting resulted in tentative arrangements for the conduct of a training session on air rescue operations.

The council agreed on increased coordination in collecting and reporting of weather information between Lawson Army Air Field Weather and the station at Muscogee County Airport.

LT. COL. RUBY Heads T-37 Test Unit

The second meeting of the Joint Military-Civil Air Safety Council, Fort Benning, Muscogee County and the Columbus area will be held at the Ranch Restaurant in Columbus today at 3:30 p.m.

The main business for the meeting is the formalizing of a mutual rescue and evacuation plan for the entire area.

A training map for Fort Benning, King's School of Aviation and private aircraft at Muscogee County Airport will be discussed at the meeting.

Meeting Slated Today By Air Safety Group

Officials of Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., and Fort Rucker, Ala., have been invited to attend.

The Joint Military-Civil Air Safety Council held its first meeting Dec. 15, at which time the need for such a council was enthusiastically endorsed by the members present.

Richard King, chairman of the Muscogee County Commission, and J. A. Willman, city manager of Columbus, are also members.

Gen. Powell Tells Aides Red Cross Volunteers Provide Vital Service to Benning Hospital

Fort Benning's American Red Cross volunteers have established a noble tradition since one of the first volunteer training classes after Pearl Harbor was instituted on post Dec. 8, 1941, Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, told new graduates at recent graduation ceremonies.

Approximately 150 guests attended the capping and award presentation at the U.S. Army Hospital recreation hall. With impressive ceremonial traditions, caps were presented to 31 graduates of Nurses Aide, Gray Lady and Staff Aide courses.

Receiving awards for service from Oct. 10, 1956 to Nov. 30, 1957 has been presented to Capt. John L. Burt, chief of the U.S. Army Division, Headquarters, Commandant Section, Infantry Center.

Gen. Powell, guest speaker, pointed out the tremendous and essential value of Red Cross volunteers to the hospital's operation.

In the past two years approximately 9,500 hours of volunteer services have been given. Although our professional staff is the finest, they cannot handle all the details in a hospital of our size alone," he told graduates and guests.

Col. Edwin W. Hakala, chief of the hospital's orthopedic service, accepted the volunteers for service. Lt. Col. Clara M. Kieley, chief nurse, performed the capping, and Gen. Powell presented the certificates.

Awards Presented

Special and service awards were presented by Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, honorary chairman of Fort Benning volunteers.

Volunteer instructors for the program were Mrs. W. P. Fryer, Mrs. William R. Healy, Mrs. Leon McCall, Jr., Mrs. Charles T. Boyle, and Mrs. Glen H. Wood.

Arrangements for the program were made by Mrs. O. Z. Tyler Jr., chairman of Fort Benning Red Cross volunteers, and Mrs. Francis Matier, both registered nurses.

Color Guard

Fort Benning Boy Scouts provided a color guard for the ceremony.

Special letters of appreciation from Flaxton Mess, chairman of the Muscogee County Red Cross Chapter, went to Mrs. Archie Bishop, Columbus, for contributing 1,100 hours of service in the last two years, and to Mrs. Joseph Ramirez for her outstanding record of 647 hours served at the U.S. Army Hospital in Augsburg, Germany. Board Holds Golf, Kegler Tournaments

Two annual sports tournaments were conducted by officers of the Infantry Board during New Year's week. These were a golf championship and a kegler match.

In the golf matches prizes were awarded for low game score, low game with handicap, highest number of putts, lowest number of putts, most trees hit, most balls lost and distance drives from different tees with drivers and with nippers.

Following the golf match, a buffet lunch was served on the porch of the Fort Benning Country Club.

In the bowling match trophies were awarded to the high team with handicaps consisting of Col. Henry Neilson, Lt. Col. Gus Schlitzkus, Major Judson C. Spence Sr. and Lt. Harry R. Glidden. Col. Nielson was also recognized for high single game scratch. Individual high series with handicaps went to Lt. Col. Schlitzkus. Other prizes awarded were individual high strikes, Major Edward A. Carrigo Jr.; high spares, Lt. Col. Augustus E. Bannister; high splits, CWO Rando Regnier; most gutter balls, Major Judson C. Spence Sr. and most fouls, Lt. Col. C. T. Clagett.

A consolation prize was awarded the low team with handicaps which consisted of Lt. Col. Clagett, Lt. Col. Ramirez, Major John Crook and Martin Faber.

29th Led by Hagerman In Rebounding, Shooting

Pfc. Sam Hagerman, known as the Wisconsin Whiz by his teammates on the 29th Infantry basketball team, is leading the squad in rebounding and shooting percentage.

Hagerman usually plays 40 minutes a game. Since he does provide half of the team's rebounding, he is always called upon for the tough board work.

Only 19 years old, the ration breakdown worker has averaged 25 rebounds a game. He stands five feet, eleven inches.

The Wisconsin Whiz entered the service after he finished high school. He plans to enter Boy Scout work when he completes college.

Sam is getting some practical experience in the scouting field by working with a Scout troop at Custer Terrace. At

HAZEL WALKER'S 'TROUPE OF BASKETBALL WIZARDS
Arkansas Travelers to Meet All-Male Post Team Jan. 26

Hazel Walker '5' to Play At Fort Benning Jan. 26

Hazel Walker's sensational basketball play, the Arkansas Travelers will meet an all-male Fort Benning team at 8 p.m. Jan. 26 at Briant Wells Field House.

Pacing her team's action is Miss Walker, often called "Miss Basketball." She was selected on the All-American team 11 times, a record which has never been topped.

During the 14 years she spent in amateur ball, Hazel played on five national championship teams and runner-up three years. She won the national free throw title six years and international title two years. Her record of 49 out of 50 tries from the foul line has never been equaled in national tournament history.

Among the players on the team is Frances "Goose" Garrouse from Van Buren, Ark., the seven-year veteran of the group. She averages more than 40 points per game against the best male opposition in the first and has an excellent hook shot from the right or left and a one-hand "underhand" push shot few men stars can execute.

In an all-American selection on professional women's teams six years, Frances delights audiences with her fancy ball handling exhibition during warm-ups. The 5-foot, 11-inch, 155-pound star is floor manager of the team.

Others members of the basketball team include Toby Rayburn of Tyler, Miss., outstanding passer; Lavene Hurstfater of Tupelo and New Harmony, Miss., known as the "Queen of the Hardwood"; Virginia McGuffee of Monticello, Miss., outstanding on defense and offense, and the only Yankee on the team, Bobbie LaNoue of Brooklyn, N.Y., who has displayed her hall trickery on Steve Allen's television show.

Dragoneers Net 15 Pts. In Overtime for Victory

The 14th Infantry Dragoneers remained atop of the Infantry Center Basketball League with a 67-40 overtime victory The School Brigade Monday night. The Dragoneers victory was the third of the season over the Rams.

Don Bowman, 6'7" forward led the game up at 72-72 for the Dragoneers as he hit a ten foot jump shot with five seconds remaining in the regulation game.

Swap Leads
During the five minute overtime The School Brigade five started out with two quick baskets to take a 76-72 lead. However, the Dragoneers led by Doug Walstad's seven points in the overtime quickly overcame the deficit and went on to win.

At the end of the first half of the Infantry School Troop Command's Bowling League, the Redlegs are on top of the 324 floor's section, with Company 1st Company Snookers are leading the enlisted men's section.

The second half of the schedule has just begun on the Lawson Field Bowling Alley. Bowling in the league takes place on Wednesday nights starting at 6:30 and 8:30.

During the first half in the officer's section Major Jack C. Cook had the individual high game with 224 pins. Capt. Robert M. Dickson of the Redlegs had the high individual series with a 587 pin score.

In the enlisted men's section, the Redlegs are leading the high team game with 2800 pins.

Post Slates Swim Class
Special Services Athletic and Recreation Section of The Infantry Center is planning an extensive water safety program for 1958.

Plans have been made for Harry Kenning, southeastern safety instructor, to conduct classes at Briant Wells Field House pool Feb. 17-21.

The opening phase of the program will begin Jan. 27 when approximately 30 members of the major commands on the post will be screened for their ability as swimmers. Only the 20 strongest swimmers will be allowed to attend the water safety courses.

From Feb. 3 to 14 pre-training in water safety will be conducted in the field house pool by Sgt. James A. Sampson.

Two Shoot 68's In Golf Tourney
Major W. B. Strough and Capt. C. G. Boland shot 68's in a recent full handicap golf tournament sponsored by the Fort Benning Officers Golf Club.

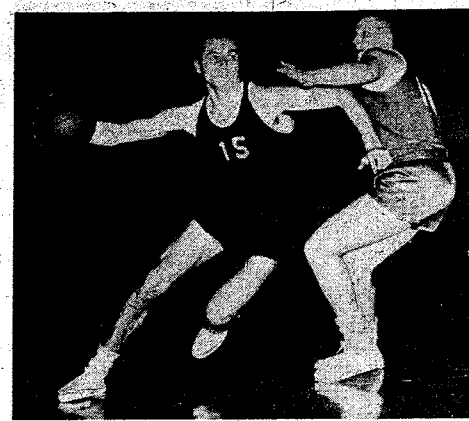

Golf equipment was awarded to 10 winners among 46 contestants. Winners were: 611 handicap, Capt. M. S. Carter, 69; Lt. Col. M. P. Feik, 71; Major W. C. Kilduff, 72; and CWO L. E. Wood, 72.

12-17 handicap, Capt. E. I. Tawell, 74; Capt. W. Z. Niddor, 75; and Major G. M. Prater, 76.

Moore Leads 38th to Win Over 15th

Joel Moore led the 38th Infantry to a victory over the 15th Infantry in a basketball game at the Harmony Church Field House, to move into a third place tie with them in the Marine League standings.

In the evening's nightcap, Division Trains scored their initial court triumph of the season with a 65-45 drubbing of Combat Support Troops.

Cutting the nets for 28 points, Moore led the Vikings to a surprising first half uprising, which found his club ahead of intermission 35-21.

Moore led the Vikings to a surprising first half uprising, which found his club ahead of intermission 35-21. The 15th made an earnest effort in the second half, coming within five points of the 38th, but Moore took charge once again and the Vikings romped to their win.

Dale MacCallum, versatile playmaker-coach of the Can Doers, pushed 24 points through the nets in a one man effort to hold on to third place. As a result of their second loss of the season, the Can Doers must now share third place with the Vikings.

Tom Ferkel and Fred Moore chipped in with 14 and 13 points respectively to help Moore in overcoming the stylish 15th quintet.

Division Trains floored a team of new faces with effective results, as they marched to a 65-45 victory. The contest score would indicate, however, as the Rams' were within six points with only eight minutes remaining in the contest.

U.S. to Play Iron Curtain Pucksters

NEW YORK (APPS)— The United States Amateur Hockey team, including six servicemen, will play four games with Russian and Czechoslovakian amateur hockey teams at the World Championship Games at Oslo, Norway.

In addition to the iron-curtain matches, are scheduled with teams from Scotland, England, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, and East Germany.

The first half was closely contested with the Dragoneers being on the long end of a 36-27 count. The 29th jumped to an early 9-9 lead which was short as the Dragoneers got their feet break working to good advantage.

$20,000 Hen House Gets Nod As Year's Whakiest Quiz Prize

(AFTS Weekly Feature) Joyce Gladwood is the new "Daisy Mae" in the Broadway musical comedy "42nd Street." She replaced Edie Adam who left the cast for a nightclub engagement with hubby Ernie Kovacs. To set the record straight, Kovacs (who spends $13,000 a year for his cigars) insists he didn't take two weeks to write his novel, "Zoomer." It only took 13 days.

Whakiest prize given away on the 1957 quiz shows and stuck on a railroad track as the result of a collision with another auto, was rannned by a freight train. Then police arrived and handed him a ticket Colorado Springs presentation for reckless driving.

"Paust" ... First live variety show to be telecast "over the horizon" will be the Steve Allen show of Jan. 19 from Havana, Cuba. ... James Garner, star of the ABC-TV show "Maverick" and the soon-to-be-released Hollywood treatment of "Darby's Rangers" ...

YAC Asks More Members at Post

After a long vacation I have returned to my little corner in the Bayonet with the hope that everyone had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Since I haven't had a column in several weeks, I thought I would try to get back on my feet by writing a column about the YAC membership drive. It is the duty of all parents with children between the ages of 8-18 to be an active member of this organization if they wish to insure their children clean, healthy, and wholesome activities. YAC would greatly appreciate the support of the parents by volunteering to help with coaching, chaperoning, refereeing games or to serve as a scout leader or den mother.

Special Week

Feb. 23 is Boy Scout week. The highlight of this week will be the parade in Columbus on Feb. 8. Many of our Boy Scout troops, Scout troops and Explorers are taking an active part in this affair.

The Explorers have a full schedule for the next six months. February is conservation month for this Explorer post. In March the boys are planning an air camp at Pensacola Naval Base or Edin Air Force Base. April is the month of the Explorer's Bus. In May the club will take a trip to Lockheed Air Plant. The Explorers' expedition to New Mexico is due.

The Senior Girl Scout troop received their pins Dec. 16 for completing the five point program. The girls have now started the hospital aid program.

As far as sports goes, haven't heard a thing. But Basketball will be starting soon.

Welcome Slated For First 10th Div. Personnel

A royal welcome will be extended to advance detachments of the 10th Division as they arrive at Fort Benning completing their gyroscope movement from Germany.

The first group, consisting of some 90 officers, enlisted men and dependents, will reach Field Air Force, New York, and proceed to Fort Benning. The first increment arriving will include the commanding officer, 10th Division Advance Detachment, and Division General Staff representatives.

"Welcome 10th Division" signs point the way from Columbus to the reception point at Sand Hill.

STINKER TAKES BREATH AFTER RETURNING HOME
Unit Mascot Took Holiday Leave Without Signing Out

Stinker Slinks Back After AWOL Jaunt

"Stinker" has returned to his home at Fort Benning. Stinker, mascot of Company A, 88th Tank Battalion, disappeared Christmas Eve. After an unannounced holiday leave, he has returned to the company.

A brownish-blond dog weighing about 40 pounds, Stinker was found in Germany as a pup by a former company first sergeant in 1952.

A lover of infantry marching troops, Stinker was thought to have joined some infantry outfit due to the lack of activity around his company at Christmas time, according to company personnel. He has had an illustrious career in the 88th Tank Battalion, participating in Battalion Reorganization Day ceremonies in December, 1954, four major field maneuvers, several trips to the German training area at Belsen-Haus, Baumholder and one to Fort Stewart, Ga. since his return to the U.S. He has participated in three permanent change of stations, two in Germany and one to Fort Benning. According to 1st Sgt. William E. Brown the cost of transporting Stinker via air to the U.S. was approximately $140 which was donated by members of Company A.

Stinker has been known to cause a great deal of confusion and embarrassment at times, such as when members of his company were receiving awards from Seventh U.S. Army representatives for outstanding tank gunners on the stage of a theater in Belsen-Haus he proceeded on stage and lined up for his award. Another time he chose to pick a fight with dogs of a scout dog platoon which were participating in a parade.

Stinker was officially made a member of Company A in 1956. He was promoted swiftly to sergeant, being appointed in the fall of 1956. He was reduced to corporal in the spring of 1957 for being out of ranks during a parade and barking. He was again reduced to private for failure to register and barking at a general during a parade. He was awarded the "Purple Heart" during the field training exercise "Saber Knoll" in Europe in 1958 when a simulator exploded in his face.

Col. Adams Named Chief of Personnel

Col. Marcus M. Adams of Whitesburg, Ky., has been named chief of the Personnel Group of the Infantry School's Staff Department at Fort Benning.

He succeeds Col. Paul J. Jarrett, who has assumed the duties of controller of the Infantry Center.

Col. Adams was U. S. Army adviser for 1 Corps of the Imperial Iranian Army from August, 1956 until he came to Fort Benning.

He attended Centre College in Danville, Ky., before entering active Army duty in September, 1940.

COL. M. M. ADAMS Heads Personnel Group

WWII Service

During World War II, Col. Adams served from February, 1944, to January, 1946 in The European Theater as a company, battalion and regimental commander of the 184th Infantry Regiment, 30th Infantry Division.

The following nine months he was executive officer of the 3rd Regiment at Fort Belvoir, Ill., and was graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in June, 1947.

Adviser in Greece

After a six-month assignment in the G-4 (Logistics) Section of Third Army Headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga., Col. Adams began a year's duty as U. S. Army adviser to the Greek Army's 15th Mountain Division.

In February, 1949, he was assigned to Fort Monroe, Va.

Article Tells Of Ranger Mt. Training

The rough training in the rugged North Georgia mountains which Ranger students of Fort Benning's Infantry School undergo was depicted in a recent edition of The Atlanta Journal.

In addition to an article which described the 8-week course, one of the toughest in the Army, The Journal published pictures of various aspects of training at Camp Wheeler, Ga., mountain camp of the Infantry School's Ranger Department.

The pictures showed student Rangers training in commando techniques, an ambush attack, moving a "wounded" man up a sheer cliff and moving in on the "enemy" before grade smoke clears.

HERE'S HOW

"silhouette sketches"

The next time you want to amuse your children, or even guests at a party, try making silhouette sketches of them. All you need is a few large sheets of white paper, a few thumbtacks, a pencil, scissors, and a strong light.

Tack the white paper on the wall. Then place your lamp so that it will cast a beam of light directly on the paper. Next have your child stand in between the light and the paper so that the reflection of his head and shoulders is cast in the center of the paper. Remember that the closer the child stands to the paper the clearer his image will be.

Have the child hold his position while you trace his shadow on the paper. All that's left to do now is cut around your pencil outline and you'll have a perfect silhouette sketch of your model. To dress it up you can paste the silhouette on a colored piece of cardboard.

Children old enough to use scissors can have lots of fun making these silhouettes themselves using you and their friends as models.

TABLE TOP-IX

If your family is getting a little tired of eating chicken, you might try serving it to them African style. It's not only different but a taste treat that'll leave them asking for more. For four people you'll need:

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1 frying chicken (2½ pounds) cut up | 5 sliced hard-boiled eggs |
| 1 fresh chopped tomato | Hot cooked rice |
| 2 minced cloves of garlic | 1 tablespoon ketchup |
| 1 chopped onion | ¼ teaspoon cayenne |
| 1 teaspoon salt | ¾ cup chunk-style peanut butter |
| | 5 cups water |

Mix the chicken, onion, garlic, salt, tomato and two cups of water. Bring this mixture to a boil, cover and then let it simmer for 30 minutes. Then add the ketchup. Blend the peanut butter with the remaining cup of water and add it to the chicken mixture. Cover and let it simmer for another hour. Finally add the eggs and cayenne and serve it on the hot rice.

DOTS AND FLASHES

There's an elevator bathtub now on the market for the person who has everything. Stand on a platform, press a button and you're lowered into the tub. When you're finished, press another button and you're lifted out of the water. You will have to dry yourself, though. . . If frost collects on your windows, a little alcohol or salt water applied to the outside will be a big help. . . Peanut lovers will be happy to learn that stale, salted, shelled peanuts may be freshened and eaten again. Add one tablespoon of butter for every cup of peanuts and heat in an oven.

IN REVIEW

If Annie Get Your Gun isn't the best score Irving Berlin has composed, it surely must rate among his top efforts. And as sung by Mary Martin and John Raitt who recently starred in the two-hour TV version of the famous musical, this new record album (Capitol) is a genuine gem.

MOVIES...

Peyton Place is bound to be a big money-making movie. Everyone will flock to it to see how Jerry Wald, who produced the picture for Twentieth Century Fox, transferred the movie's sordidness to the Cinemascope screen in color and with stereophonic sound. They are going to be disappointed. Since the book had nothing outside of its sensationalism, which the film censors have removed, the film-maker had very little to work with. The same goes for the star-studded cast which includes Lana Turner.

On the Road by Jack Kerouac is without question one of the best novels of the year. It's about the "Beat Generation", that group of young Americans who after World War II, lost their purpose in life and ever since have been living a wild Bohemian existence trying to find themselves and the meaning of life. On the Road is a compelling, soul-searching and vital book. (Viking, $9.95)

Funny man Robert Paul Smith has written an hilarious book that can be recommended only to a limited audience—to those people who had once been kids themselves. Called, "Where Did You Go? "Out." "What Did You Do?" "Nothing", it's a laugh-provoking look back to the times when the author and you were kids and how, in comparison, the children of today, don't really know what it means to be a child. The book is a real delight. (W. W. Norton, $2.95)

In The White Mouse, Russell Braddon is telling the remarkable true story of a beautiful French socialite, Nancy Wake, who gave up her life of luxury to lead a group of Maquis against the Germans during the Occupation. Known to the Nazis only as The White Mouse, the havoc she created made her one of the most searched for members of the Underground. Nancy Wake's story is thrilling reading. (W. W. Norton, $3.95)

In retrospect World War II had its funny side, too. If there's any doubt about it, get yourself a copy of You're Stepping On My Cloak and Dagger. It's Roger Hall's tickling account of what happened to him when he joined the O.S.S. to get out of the Infantry. The O.S.S., of course, is now dead. After reading Hall's uproarious recollections, it's a wonder they lasted as long as they did. (W. W. Norton, $3.75)

CUTTING CORNERS on the GLAMOUR FRONT

By Barbara Sue Richards

By Eleanor Kerrigan

If you're the ambitious type who likes to do your own painting around the house there are several things to remember that can keep the job from turning into a vegetable chore.

Before you start, here are some of the things to check out—that the surface to be painted is free from oil, wax, and grease and is thoroughly clean and dry; that you have enough of the right paint to see the job through; that the paint is thoroughly mixed; that your brushes and rollers are clean and the correct size for the particular job; that you have enough cloth or paper to cover areas you don't want to spot and, most important, that it's a clear day if you're doing outside work or that there's plenty of ventilation if it's an inside job.

Whether painting inside or out, never apply a second coat until the first is absolutely dry. If there are any cracks in the surface you are going to paint, don't try to fill them with paint or varnish. Use a filler and let it dry before you start to paint.

In selecting the color of the paint you want, keep in mind that a dark color paint will make a room look smaller and a ceiling lower. The reverse is true of a white or a light tone paint. When mixing your paint remember to keep the color lighter than the finished effect you wish since the same color will look darker when spread over a large area.

Paint also dries a different shade than it looks when wet so it's advisable to let a little of it dry on the actual surface to be painted before going ahead with the job. When you actually start to paint you'll find the best order to follow is first the ceiling, then the walls, woodwork, radiators and last, the floor.

Most service wives spend a great deal of time in the kitchen. The smart ones also keep some of their beauty aids there so that at the same time they're preparing meals, they can prepare themselves so they'll look pretty for their incoming children and homecoming spouses.

Since the hands take the worst beating in the kitchen, a jar of your favorite hand cream or a bottle of hand lotion should always be kept handy. Your hands will remain soft and smooth instead of taking on that boiled lobster-red hue if you use your hand preparation both before and after dipping your hands in soapy waters.

For the service wife who likes to put her best face forward at all times, powder, lipstick and a mirror are other kitchen glamour muses. They'll allow you time to do a quick pretying-up job when the door bell rings unexpectedly.

Yes sir, the old ice box has been replaced by the refrigerator, the coal stove by the gas and electric range and the kitchen drudge by a glamour doll.

New Defense Plan House Receives Bill to Hike Pay

By M-SGT. HERB SCOTT
(AFPS Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Defense Department has presented legislation to Congress proposing pay raises based on the 1957 Civilian Committee principles, or an optional six per cent increase, for most military personnel.

Scouts Slate Tues. Meet In Columbus

Fort Benning representatives will attend the annual meeting of the Conchary Council of Girl Scouts at the USO NCS Club on Ninth Street and First Avenue in Columbus Jan. 28 at 8 p.m.

Highlight of the program will be the announcement and presentation of "Leader of the Year," one of the highest civilian awards given in recognition for outstanding service to Girl Scouts and the community.

District 1 is the Fort Benning membership in the Conchary Council. Representatives include 150 adults and 36 Brownie and Girl Scout troops with a membership of 614 girls.

Honorary chairman of the POFort Benning Girl Scout program is Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, wife of Major Gen. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center.

Program for the evening will include election of officers and board, consideration of bylaws for a change to delegate assembly, certification of delegates from the neighborhoods, and information on plans for Mrs. Edward Mayer, chairman of Fort Benning Girl Scouts, and representatives to the National Convention in Philadelphia, Pa., and other representatives will give reports of their trip and exhibit displays.

Scouts who attended the Canadian World Camp in 1957 will give talks on the meeting and present films taken during the trip.

'Darby's Rangers' to Open Sunday at Main Theater

"Darby's Rangers," Warner Bros., salute to the elite combat force of World War II fame, opens at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Main Fort Benning Theater for a two-day run.

Showing of the movie will be continuous Sunday afternoon with the last show at 8:30 p.m.

The movie will be shown Monday at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

Partly Filmed at Post

Filmed partly at Fort Benning, home of today's Rangers, the movie depicts the formation, training and valorous exploits of the men who play the name from Brig. Gen. William O. Darby's World War II Rangers.

Col. Roy A. Murray, Infantry Center G-3 and a World War II member of Darby's Rangers, served as technical advisor during filming of the movie both at Fort Benning and in Hollywood, to play the role of a general in the movie.

Served with Darby

Col. Murray commanded the Fourth Battalion of Darby's Rangers during World War II and was wounded by the American Forces in the famous Dieppe raid. This was the American Rangers' first action in company strength.

Although they suffered heavy casualties, the Rangers succeeded in the shore guns for the two hours necessary to insure success of the raid. They also aided in the destruction of an

Koreans to Visit Infantry School

Four Republic of Korea Army officers receiving training at Atlanta General Depot will visit Fort Benning Jan. 25 to view Infantry School activities.

The visitors will include Col. San Kwan Pak, Capt. Kwan Gun Chon, Capt. Chou Whan Lee and Capt. Moon Whan Han. They will be accompanied by John H. MacDonald, public information officer of the depot.

The party will be briefed on Infantry School instruction and operations, followed by a tour of the post. They will eat lunch in the Main Officers' Mess before returning to Atlanta.

Health Agencies, CARE Personnel Get Envelopes For Drive Contributions

Project officers for Fort Benning's fund drive for National Health Agencies and the Joint Crusade for CARE and Freedom will distribute contribution envelopes to individuals throughout the post this week.

The fund raising campaign at Fort Benning gives personnel an opportunity for voluntary participation in the support of several health agencies and services not included in the community association drive.

The annual fund project to secure voluntary contributions from Federal employees is being conducted from Jan. 15 to Feb. 28. Two envelopes, one for the health agencies and one for the Joint Crusade, will be distributed to military and civilian personnel. Contributors may use one of both envelopes with donations marked for the agency desired to receive the gift. Unmarked donations will go to the health agencies participating organizations. A list of local groups benefiting from the drive is on page 2.

olier recommendations into legislation, the DOD has provided for converting and phasing-in the increases for officers and warrant officers and a "satisfactory services" contingency for enlisted step-grade advancements.

Enlisted personnel, however, automatically enter the new system with the establishment of the two additional pay grades under selective application of proficiency advances, reassignment controls and retraining program.

Pro Plan Skipped

The proficiency plan, awarding personnel who have advanced—without commensurate military rank—for demonstrated outstanding ability primarily in critical skills, has already been skipped by the services for grades E-3 through E-4, but has not been put into effect.

The new measure, establishing definite pay differentials between grades, would make the system fully effective by including grades E-7 and E-8.

The Defense proposal does not change—as did the Cordner plan—the pay of currently relevelled servicemen.

Drafted on three basic compensation principles the revised pay system 1) encourages "meritorious" performance of skills, and duty and makes "substantial" awards for assuming added responsibilities; 2) reflects more accurately compensation for degrees of skill and expertise; and 3) provides pay levels "reasonably comparable" with those of employees in similar occupations in private industry.

In addition to giving greater recognition for merit instead

National Guard Officers to Attend 2-Week Refresher Class at Post

National Guard representatives from major organized Infantry Guard units in the U.S. will get an intensive view of the new Pentomic Army, the group in action at Fort Benning, "The Home of the Infantry," during the early months of 1958.

Approximately 240 officers in the rank of major, lieutenant colonel or colonel have been selected to attend the two-week National Guard staff officers refresher class being conducted at the Infantry School this month and again in March.

Refresher Training

Providing refresher training for Infantry battle group commanders and staff officers, the course is the first to be given Guard members at the regimental staff level since World War II.

One hundred and seventeen National Guardsmen are students in the current (January) session. They are from units in California, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

The Guardsmen are receiving the new organization, tactics and staff procedures conducted by the Infantry School's Staff and Tactical Departments. The courses also includes orientations on improved Infantry weapons and communications and Army aviation.

Major Role

Brig Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School's commandant addressed the group Jan. 17 on the major role of the Infantry in future conflicts and the importance of new Army concepts. He requested the class to make suggestions for bettering the course.

A panel discussion will be conducted by the school's Office of the Director of Instruction at the close of the course to answer students' questions on material presented and to consider adjusting the program to best suit Guard needs.

Another feature of the "graduate seminar" type class is presentation by The Infantry School's Command and Development Office on weapons and organization concepts for the future.

No examinations will be administered in the course.

Staff Specialties

The first week of the program is spent on training in staff specialties, work as commander or a personnel, intelligence, plans and operations or logistics officer.

This phase includes instruction in personal procedures, combat intelligence, staff organization and functions, operations techniques and staff plans for movement by air. The students also study the military effects of atomic weapons, air defense plans and orders and the organization of the current Infantry Division (Armed Division).

The remainder of the course is devoted primarily to maneuvers in the classroom.

Tactical Situations

Tactical situations tackled by the National Guardsmen are of the offensive, combined, defensive, combat, retrograde movements, close support artillery and Army air-land operations.

On Hook Range the class saw a demonstration of Infantry weapons by personnel of the Infantry School's Weapons Development. Among the weapons displayed were the new lightweight, combat purpose M16 machine gun, 100-mm recoilless rifle and tank guns.

An orientation on familiarization with Army aircraft by the school's Airborne - A-1 Mobility Department. The Guardsmen were told the characteristics and capabilities of the various aircraft as each taxied down the field in front of the class and took off.

The demonstration included the two-man L-20 plane and the L-20 plane, which can carry 1,200 pounds of cargo, four modern Army PLANT.

WASHINGTON (APPS) — "The Pentomic Army," a film dealing with the reorganized storied army, will be released to the general public on Feb. 1. The Army has announced. It will be available in Army film libraries for unit screenings.

passengers of two litter patients in addition to the pilot and copilot.

Helicopters participating in the new system will be modified to the adaptable H-34 which can transport a load of 4,900 pounds, 12 troops or eight litter patients.

Communications Department instructors briefed the group on the means of communications and employment of command administrative nets. They demonstrated radioteletype at battle group, rifle company and mortar battery levels.

The students studied the organization and equipment of communications between a battalion group and division headquarters and observed a demonstration of the employment of communications in the approach march.

Nats Represented

United Guard units represented in the January class are:

- 192d Infantry, 194th Infantry, 195th Infantry, 196th Infantry, 197th Infantry, 198th Infantry, 199th Infantry, 200th Infantry, 201st Infantry, 202nd Infantry, 203rd Infantry, 204th Infantry, 205th Infantry, 206th Infantry, 207th Infantry, 208th Infantry, 209th Infantry, 210th Infantry, 211th Infantry, 212th Infantry, 213th Infantry, 214th Infantry, 215th Infantry, 216th Infantry, 217th Infantry, 218th Infantry, 219th Infantry, 220th Infantry, 221st Infantry, 222nd Infantry, 223rd Infantry, 224th Infantry, 225th Infantry, 226th Infantry, 227th Infantry, 228th Infantry, 229th Infantry, 230th Infantry, 231st Infantry, 232nd Infantry, 233rd Infantry, 234th Infantry, 235th Infantry, 236th Infantry, 237th Infantry, 238th Infantry, 239th Infantry, 240th Infantry.

COL. GAIL . . . Col. James B. Gail has been presented a Certificate of Achievement for exemplary service as commander of the Infantry Center since December, 1956.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commander. Col. Gail left the post Jan. 8 for an assignment with the Korean Military Assistance Advisory Group.

'My Very Best'

Abraham Lincoln, whose birth-date we observe Feb. 12, didn't have an easy job as 16th President of the United States.

The importance of the problems he faced is indicated by the fact that some of the most important developments in America today stem directly from the decisions he made almost 100 years ago.

He attained a reputation for doing the biggest things in a forthright and humble way. His writings and quoted remarks could serve as mottoes for anyone with a job to do.

It is reported he once said: "I do the very best I know how—the very best I can, and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference." In other words, the important thing is to try your best to fulfill your task, without fear of criticism, without lust for acclaim. The message has meaning for all of us. (AFPS)

U. S. Constitution

This is the third in a series of articles by AFPS, which tells the story of the creation and acceptance of the Constitution of the United States.

In response to the call for a convention of all the states, Washington rode into Philadelphia on a Sunday afternoon in May 1787 as a delegate from Virginia. He had considered not going at all. He was needed at Mount Vernon, and he was not optimistic about the convention's chances of success.

But he did not want to give the impression that he was opposed to what the convention was trying to do, and he felt that the effort should be made.

Upon arriving in Philadelphia, Washington called upon Benjamin Franklin, President of Pennsylvania. Franklin, too, was to be a delegate, as were many of our other leading statesmen.

Washington was unanimously elected presiding officer of the convention. Though he took little part in shaping the Constitution, he held the convention together and kept the delegates at their task.

Franklin also made little direct contribution to the convention's work, but his good humor often turned aside the heat of argument when it threatened to disrupt the proceedings, and his personal influence on various delegates was very great.

The chief contribution to the work of the convention was made by a young man from Virginia, James Madison, who is properly called the "Father of the Constitution."

Madison was only 26 years old at the time. Major William Pierce, the secretary of the convention, has described how valuable he was.

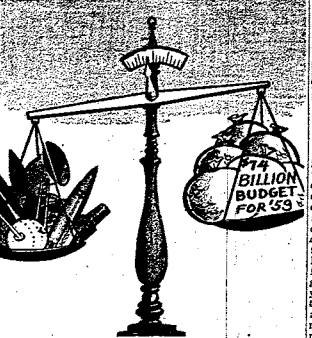

Pierce said: "Mr. Madison is a character who has long been in public life, and what is very remarkable, every person seems to acknowledge his greatness. He blends together the profound politician with the scholar."

"In the management of every great question he eventually took the lead in the convention, and thereby he cannot be called an orator, he is a most agreeable, eloquent and convincing speaker."

We are indebted to Madison for another great service: he kept very complete notes of the debates and discussions at the convention. Without these notes, which were not published until 1840, we would have only a sketchy idea of what went on there, since no official journal was kept.

Will It Budge It?

The Judge Says...

(This is a second in a series of eight articles on federal income taxation.)

In arriving at the amount of taxable income upon which your 1957 tax will be computed, there will be concerned with amounts you can deduct from your wages as with the actual wages limited by percentage of income.

Such other deductions include charitable contributions, medical expenses, and the standard deduction. Next week's article will set forth the advantages of using the standard deduction in lieu of itemizing other deductions.

If you are in the same boat as Captain Tish Contributor, who made substantial contributions to the church and charities, you may wish to itemize other deductions rather than use the standard deduction.

There is an illustrative list of additional other deductions allowable:

1. Taxes—state (not federal) gasoline tax, state license plate, state income tax, property taxes on home and automobiles, state sales tax on purchases, and particularly on a new car.

2. Interest—Interest on all borrowed money such as the portion of a house payment allocable to interest. Carrying charges computed at 6 per cent on the unpaid balance on such items as TV, car and deer freeze.

3. Medical Expenses—medical expenses in excess of 3 per cent of adjusted gross income.

Happiness Comes From Inside One

BY RICHARD L. CARRY
One of the most familiar expressions in the Army is "Polish your brass." To the soldier this order usually means to check on himself. Immaculate dress, shined shoes and polished brass make for a neater appearance. Pride in the accomplishment of a job well done, and the self-satisfaction of the individual is clearly seen when he walks around in a military manner. It is a good inner feeling to know that you are doing the right thing to the best of your ability. That attitude makes one feel happy and contented within and have a radiate happiness.

In our daily living we are constantly trying to find happiness without realizing that happiness must be created and worked for. Our brass does not polish itself. We must make the effort to clean and polish it or it will shine. If we neglect to polish our brass it becomes tarnished, dull and drab looking. In like manner, every promise of pleasure without a year's effort of earning it. These actions are in direct violation of the Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal." Stealing and cheating are not limited to the barracks or the classroom, but have many meanings in every phase of our duty to God, to our country and to our homes.

There are no short cuts to happiness. It must develop from within one's self, not with out. In the book "The Secret" (1927), we are given excellent advice. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Happiness depends not on what you have in possessions and the things that matter, but rather what is like inside. A tarnished mind is not an incentive for the pride of the wearer. The tarnished mind expresses ideas and inconsistent plans and procedures.

On the other side of the scale there is a joyous state of mind expressed qualities for everyone to recognize and appreciate. His mind, like the shining brass, is polished. Everyone sees his happy surroundings. Happiness therefore, is a joyous state of mind, a state of mind, using God and His Laws as a guide for all thinking and acting.

Tarnished brass can always be polished. All brass needs constant polishing. In like manner, all thinking can be renewed. One has ever expressed a tiny bit of real, lasting or satisfying happiness without being filled with a host of thoughts. Then, we will earn happiness. It must develop from within one's self, not with out.

DUSA Makes Final Plans For Annual '49er Party

Final plans for the Army Daughters gala '49er Party Feb. 8 were made at a luncheon given by the organization last week in the Main Officers' Mess at Fort Benning.

The annual DUSA affair to benefit post charities will be staged from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the Main Officers' Mess. The sparkling entertainment will include a variety of tap dancers, games, can-can girls and a pioneer quartet.

Honorees for the luncheon were Mrs. Harry L. Reeder and Mrs. A. M. Goodson. Thirty members attended the event. Silver candleabra holding white tapers and banked with silvered magnolia leaves graced the tables.

Mrs. Henry B. Kuznik, Army Daughters president, announced that the group's next luncheon would be held Feb. 4 in the Main Mess.

Prize will be awarded the DUSA member bringing the best white elephant item to the February luncheon. Articles will be collected at the affair to stock the white elephant booth at the '49er Party.

Persons other than Army Daughters who have white elephants they wish to donate for sale for the charity benefit are asked to call Mrs. Douglas W. Page at MU-90268.

In January Issue of 'Army' Magazine Infantry Supply Problems Outlined by Col. Tyler, Chief of Staff

Panismic Infantryman on the atopic battlefield will have to carry their supplies with them. Col. Drville E. Tyler Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff, writes in the January issue of Army, monthly publication of the Association of the U. S. Army.

"Until our air line of communications is a reality, a thing to be done, we must units with built-in supply, capable of fighting for several days at a time without resupply," Col. Tyler declared.

Time and modern development have brought little lightening to the 45-pound load. Both combat pack and will have to be with the soldier within the perimeter of the battle position, he said.

The Infantryman "must have his fat with him," Col. Tyler emphasized. He added that "better mechanics, more highly skilled specialists, will have to be in the unit to make spot repairs in the normally isolated situations."

Rapid Movement. The planner has given us greater, stronger strength, but fewer supporting troops in the division. Our new weapons, with fantastically rapid and lethal rates of fire, also expend maintenance quantities of ammunition at frightening speed. Rapid movement means more fuel for planes and trucks."

In the dispersed drops of the future, Col. Tyler envisions electronic machines to process, transmit and record supply data, improving accuracy and cutting time lag. "Depot stockage will concentrate on most-used items, there by saving tons of cargo space. Store-to-door that is, until delivery of supplies from the depot instead of the old (supply point) "Piggly Wiggly" distribution where units had to fetch their own," he added.

"Rightly, the composition of a division organization must rest solidly on the supported

Benning Visited By Gen. Reeder

Major Gen. (Ret.) William O. Reeder of the Army Commander School, Syracuse (N.Y.) University, visited Fort Benning Jan. 20 for conferences on the Infantry Center commander activities.

He was honored at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess.

Gen. Reeder's schedule included talks with Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, Col. Paul J. Jarrett, controller; Col. Kenneth W. Wallace, G-4, and Lt. Col. Jeremiah B. Monk Jr., finance and accounting officer.

Project officer for the visit was Lt. Ernest C. Strum to recognize the last 44 of them was at least 44.

3rd Drivers Taking German Road Sign Recognition Tests
Drivers of the Third Infantry Division have begun taking tests on their recognition of German road signs in preparation for the Division's movement overseas this Spring.

Learning the signs is a simple matter. In contrast to the relatively few American traffic signs, the Germans use 50. Drivers must be able to recognize at least 44 of them was at least 44.

Role of Modern Army Told on Air From Fort Benning's Radio Section

From the Military Crossroads of the World—Queen of Battle. From coast to coast and in several foreign countries, this statement introduces a dramatic 15-minute radio program, produced at Fort Benning, which has in two years grown from a local show to one international in scope. "Queen of Battle" program was broadcast by only two commercial radio stations in Georgia, WJBR in Columbus and WGBA in Atlanta. Since October, 1955, direct reference is made to this Army-produced program. It has increased the number of outlets until at present approximately 150 radio stations in 26 states broadcast the show each week as well as some of the stations on the Armed Forces Network overseas. "Queen of Battle" is produced and distributed by The Infantry Center Information Section at Fort Benning, home of the world-famous Infantry School. Each show is designed to meet specific Army Information objectives, and no direct reference is made to recruiting. Program officials feel that the Army's mission and activities are presented in a factual, dramatic manner, not only will the public know what the Army is doing, but a desire will be engendered among young men to learn more about today's modern Army. "Queen of Battle" begins his research in the Infantry School library. Every article written on the subject is carefully screened. Then, instructors at The Infantry School are consulted and classroom lectures and simulated combat field problems are observed and recorded. Straight commentary by the announcer and interviews are avoided insofar as possible. Instead, the story is told in skit form, dramatizing actual or fictional incidents to get the story across. Field recordings are sometimes used in the programs to increase listener interest. Recorded in Series Most of the programs are recorded in several segments. Skits, narration, sound effects, music and other special effects are taped in the recording studio maintained by the Information Section. "Actors" and "actresses" featured on the shows are not professionals—rather they are military and civilian personnel who donate their services. After all segments of the show are recorded and put together, the finished product is carefully edited and timed, and copies made for distribution. To date 78 complete package programs, or six series of 13 shows each, have been produced. While new shows are still being produced, much time is spent in revising older programs and bringing them up to date to keep the series current. Changing weapons, tactics, and training to keep pace with the

GETS STORY IN FIELD . . . An interview and recording session in the field is one of the many operations required to produce an authentic program on Army aviation for Fort Benning's radio show, "Queen-of-Battle." Sp5 William Schaeffler, Radio Division, Infantry Center, Information Section, gets on the spot information from Pfc Martin L. Brown, crew chief of an Army reconnaissance plane at Lawson Army Air Field. Queen of Battle is a dramatic, factual recorded program produced by The Infantry Center's Information Section and distributed to 150 radio stations in 26 states.

CHECKING UP . . . Keeping an inventory of "Queen of Battle" shows in distribution and those which are available is just one of many jobs in producing a radio show for 150 stations. Here Sp5 William Schaeffler checks up on the 78 complete programs, six series of 13 shows each, which have been produced thus far.

RECORDS 'BANDSTAND' MUSIC . . . A recording session for Fort Benning's musical radio broadcast, "Fort Benning Bandstand," is conducted by 2nd Lt. Alan G. Easton, left, assigned to Radio Branch, Infantry Center Information Section, with the Militaires, a dance orchestra composed of Fort Benning military personnel. The Militaires are regularly featured on the Bandstand program which is broadcast throughout Third Army area. It is one of three radio shows and one "live" TV show produced by The Infantry Center's Information Section.

NEAR AND FAR . . . The Radio Branch of the Information Section at Fort Benning produces radio programs for consumption both near and far. At left, William Bryant, announcer and chief of the Radio Branch, "Fort Benning News Parade," a weekly news show broadcast over local radio stations. At right, Sp5 William A. Schaeffler of the Radio Branch edits a recorded "Queen of Battle" show before timing the finished product which will be sent to 150 radio stations in 26 states.

Grandfather of Space Travel

New England Physicist Envisioned Rocket to Moon 40 Years Ago

WASHINGTON (APPS) — Four decades ago, a brilliant American physicist envisioned sending a rocket to the moon. No one took Dr. Robert H. Goddard seriously. Yet the New England professor was not indulging in Jules Verne fantasy. His was a coldly scientific view of the future, seen through his own trail-blazing research in rocket propulsion.

Today the late Dr. Goddard is recognized as a grandfather of space travel in Europe as well as the United States. His pioneer experiments in the 1920's and 1930's are credited with having opened the way to development of rockets capable of launching artificial satellites. A historic Goddard rocket wobbled skyward in 1926 from a farm near Auburn, Mass.

Dr. Goddard produced the first gyro-stabilized rocket. In 1925 one of his rockets rose 7,500 feet above New Mexico. Still another reached the incredible speed of 700 mph. One Goddard invention, a re-

On the Bookshelf

The Drumhead Tradition by Charles Mercer. (Putnam, 1957).
Charles Mercer has written a major contemporary novel full of life, action and romance. In the course of telling a superb story he examines a problem practically untouched in modern literature yet as old as civilization: the place of the military man in time of peace. It is an able, dramatic and important book.

The Killing Ground by E. J. Lester Trevor. (Macmillan, 1957).
A book which may be put beside Trevor's early successes, "The Big Pick-Up" and "Squadron Airborne" as a major chronicle of the Second World War.

The Wind In The Forest by Ingie Fletcher. (Bobbs-Merrill, 1957).
Another of the fine Fletcher novels. For the principal characters of this one she has chosen the bitter conflict between the frontier farmers of the western counties and the conservative planters of the Tidewater of North Carolina led by the Royal Governor.

How To Make Money Make Money by Henry Cellermann. (Crowell, 1957).
If you are a man or woman of moderate means, with enough money to invest without jeopardizing your bread and butter you will find this book by an executive of Bache and Company, investment bankers, an invaluable guide.

Sigrid And The Sergeant by Robert Buckner. (Appleton-Century, 1957).
Are American G.I.'s in Germany in mortal danger of life-long captivity? Read about the devilishly ingenious trap which has been set for them in this delightfully amusing novel.

Radio
Thank you for continuing "Queen of Battle" tapes and am pleased with the content and quality. After auditioning a special "Queen of Battle" show, WVBR, Ithaca, N.Y., wrote: "I might offer at this time my personal praise to you for the fine job on the Easter program. Your series of programs seems to be very interesting and I am looking forward to hearing them."

"We have been airing this program for nearly a year at 6:30 p.m. every Saturday," writes the program director of WWSN, Lake City, Florida. "It is a very enjoyable program, well prepared, and very well delivered. We have a heavy listening audience at that time. The comments that we have received concerning the program are very favorable. In addition to the "Queen of Battle" program, the Radio-TV Branch produces two other weekly quarter-hour radio shows and a local "live" television news program utilizing film and still photographs. One of the radio programs, "Fort Benning News Parade," is a local radio news show. The other, "Fort Benning Bandstand," is a musical program broadcast by approximately 16 radio stations throughout the Third Army Area.

The Radio Unit of the Information Section is staffed by one Civil Service employee who also supervises TV activities, one officer and one enlisted man.

Pershing Had Highest Rank

WASHINGTON (ANS)—General John J. Pershing, after whom the Army has just named the newly planned solid propellant missile, was the only officer ever to hold the grade "General of the Armies of the United States."

The new missile, which will be under development, will succeed the Army's Redstone. While retaining Redstone's mobility, field worthiness and accuracy, Pershing will be smaller, lighter, and of great more mobility.

General Pershing was Commander-in-Chief of American Forces in France during World War I and was designated General of the Armies by Congress in 1919. He was affectionately called "Black Jack" by his troops during WWI.

It is possible, one observer said, that Army troops, who are still prone to give nicknames to people and things, may begin calling the Pershing missile "Black Jack."

Austrians Get Tactics View At Inf. School

An insight into streamlined instruction on the Army's new Pentomic organization and tactic at the Infantry School will be given two key logistics officers of the Federal Austrian Army Jan. 22 to 25 at Fort Benning.

The visitors, Col. August Fischer-Sae, chief of the Weapons and Equipment Section, Supply Division, Federal Ministry for National Defense, and Lt. Col. Rudolf Frenschner, chief of supply, II Corps, will be honored at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess today.

The Allied officers will be oriented on officer candidate training and Infantry School operations and will view demonstrations of physical training testing and reinforced rifle platoon night defense.

They will tour supply facilities of the Infantry School (Third Command's 14th Infantry and 26th Infantry, Third Army Food Service School and The Infantry School's Non-Resident Instruction and Ground Mobility Departments.

DEADLY DART
The Dart, a small, low-level guided missile for use by the combat soldier against enemy tanks and field fortifications, was placed in production in 1957.

DAPPER DIGGER
German actor Hardy Kruger, who stars in the Rank Organization's production of "The One That Got Away," has become an expert on tunnels and tunneling following completion of the film which deals with the story of a German fighter pilot who escaped three times from British prison-of-war camps during World War II. Kruger spent days on the film set digging escape tunnels, and after finishing the film, he was notified by his agent that in his next picture he will be also digging tunnels. This time it will be the role of a man digging into a bank in a bid to rob the vault.

Accidents Dip For Stateside U.S. Soldiers

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Army Director of Safety Thomas H. Wilkinson said today that there was a record low in the number of soldiers accidentally killed during the recent Christmas - New Year holiday in the Continental United States.

According to the Director's figures, only 30 fatalities occurred during the 17 days starting on Dec. 20, 1957 compared with 33 for the same period last year, and 43 two years ago.

Mr. Wilkinson credited personnel in the field for this improved record. He stated:

"This progress reflects effective action by commanders and cooperation by all ranks. It constitutes a realistic support to the President's appeal to 'Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents.'"

The improvement is not limited to the holiday period. Mr. Wilkinson disclosed that during the first 11 months of 1957 there were 62 fewer soldiers killed than during the same period in 1956.

COL. J. L. OSGARD RECEIVES EAGLES
Wife Wins New Rank On Secretary Of TIS

TIS Sec'y Promoted To Rank of Colonel

James L. Osgard, secretary of the Infantry School, has been promoted from lieutenant colonel to colonel.

He was presented his silver eagles by Brig. Gen. Stanley B. Larsen, assistant commander of the Infantry School.

Col. Osgard served as chairman of the Infantry School's Staff Department from September, 1946, until assuming his present duties last June. He was U. S. Army adviser to the 28th Regimental Combat Team of the Hawaii National Guard for 38 months before coming to Fort Benning.

A 1941 graduate of the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, he entered active duty in December, 1941. During World War II, Col. Osgard served 33 months with the Third Infantry Division's Infantry Regiment participating in campaigns in North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

The 39-year old officer was assigned to the G-1 and G-3 Section of Army Field Forces (now Continental Army Staff) at Fort Monroe, Va., from 1946 to 1948 before beginning a three-year tour with the U. S. Navy Amphibious Groups III and IV in Norfolk, Va. and Korea. He served in Korea with the 3rd Marine Division from September, 1950, to the following June.

Col. Osgard was chief of the Manpower Division of Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., for three years preceding his assignment in Hawaii.

Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the French Fourragere.

9th Div. Group Visits Fort Benning 2 Days

A 10-man party from the Ninth Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Colo., was at Fort Benning for a two-day look at Infantry School methods of instruction last week.

They included Brig. Gen. Joseph B. Crawford, division commander; Col. Harold E. Hasselnett, commander of the 69th Infantry's First Battle Group; Col. Powell A. Fraser, commander of the 13th Infantry's Second Battle Group; Lt. Col. Edward W. McGregor, commander of the Fifth Infantry's Second Battle Group; Lt. Col. Charles A. Whitcomb, commander of Ninth Division Trains; Lt. Col. Alfred J. F.

Moody, division G-3; Major Richard B. Koss, executive officer of Ninth Division Artillery; Capt. Clyde H. Webster, Jr., division G-4 Section; Capt. Arthur S. Jackson, S-3 of the 69th Infantry's First Battle Group; and Lt. William C. Stinson Jr., aide-de-camp to Gen. Crawford.

The visitors viewed demonstrations of leaders reaction training, physical training test, instructor training and the obstacle and confidence course and were briefed on Infantry School operations. They also attended conferences on organization and offensive and defensive tactics of the current Infantry division.

Gen. Crawford spoke at final exercises for The Infantry School's basic officers class Jan. 19 at 10 a.m. in the Main Theater. He was honored at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess following the ceremonies.

The group left the post at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23. Capt. Martin A. Markley of the 150 WIN AWARDS

Some 150 awards were made last week for their outstanding performance in the Division's annual Fall Rifle and Pistol matches, held December 9-14.

U.S. Names Seven Skiers To Biathlon

PORT CARSON, COLO., (AP)—Seven top flight skiers, all members of the Armed Forces and chosen by the National Ski Team of America for their outstanding records in Nordic competition, are in training at nearby Camp Hale for the U. S. Biathlon Team.

The team will be composed of outstanding skiers, both service and civilian, and will compete in international events at Saalfelden, Austria, in early March.

Of the service ski experts, six are from the Army and one from the Marine Corps. Caronites are Gunnar Jansen and Alfred Land, attached to the Post's Mountain and Cold Weather Training Command; other Army personnel are Walter Jackson and Richard Mize of Fort Devens, Mass., John Burritt of Brooke Army Medical Center, Texas, and Lawrence Damon, APO 33, Germany.

The Marine is Roland E. Blood from Newport NS, R. I.

Top candidate for the team is Jansen, who captured Denver University's team in 1955 and who competed at Andermatt, Switzerland, for the US Army Military Ski Patrol.

The skiers, coached by Harry Wagner, former ski instructor at the MCWTC here, will fly from McGuire AFB, N. J., for Europe on Jan. 21.

After arrival in Europe, the team is scheduled for further training and will subsequently already organized ski patrols for the CISM events at Cortina, Italy, scheduled for the competition there Feb. 12-18.

Student Officer Shows Handball Skill During Holiday Tournament

By Thomas Malley
The Midwestern Amateur Athletic Union doubles handball champion and singles runner-up for 1956 and 1957 is now a member of the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course No. 1.

He is 1st Lt. John W. Blake, assigned to First Company, 2nd Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Over the Christmas holidays, Lt. Blake added the Fort Benning Holiday Handball Tournament Championship to his long list of victories, beating both the Third Army and post champions in the process.

Although the "student officer" has been playing handball for only a few years, he has already won every important tournament in the AAU's Midwestern area. Aside from his Midwestern AAU Championship, Lt. Blake's major victories include the City of Omaha and State of Nebraska AAU Championships and the Midwestern Invitational Doubles Championship of 1956.

Lt. Blake relates that it was not until attending college and law school at the University of Iowa that he became interested in handball, and that even then he took up the sport only as a means to keep physically fit for football and basketball. However, as his interest developed for handball, his natural skill became apparent. He left the school as a varsity player for only a few years, but has already won every important tournament in the AAU's Midwestern area. Aside from his Midwestern AAU Championship, Lt. 14th Clinches Tie For Cage Crown

The 14th Infantry Dragoners clinched at least a 2-1 record. They won the Basketball League Championship with a 60-51 victory over the 15th Engineer Group Monday night. To win the league, Dragoners must win one of their two remaining games with the 5th Medical Group and the 28th Infantry. To date the Dragoners have compiled a 2-1 record.

The Dragoners jumped to an early lead and were never headed by the redies. They had a 40-10 lead at halftime. Don Whitehouse and Doug Waldstad paced the first half attack with eight points each.

Tight Defense
During the second half the Dragoners defense tightened up and limited the Engineers to 20 points while the Dragoners were making 40.

Every man on the Dragoner squad saw action and got into the scoring column. Four men scored in the double figures for the 14th with player Coach Doug Waldstad leading the way with 18 points. Next in line were John Barnard, Don Whitehouse, and Frank Lee with 14, 12, and 10 points respectively.

Lackey Top Scorer
Lackey was high scorer for the Engineers with 19 points. The Dragoners final game of the season is Monday night at 8:30 p.m. with the 28th Infantry at Briant Wells Field House.

GETS SET FOR PASS... The School Brigade Rams' Babe Hawthorne (3) gets set to pass in a game with 14th Infantry Jan. 13 at Briant Wells Field House. 14th Infantry's Frank Lee (16) moves in for a block as the Rams lost in overtime 87-80.

Officials Open Post Registration For 3-A Boxing

Infantry Center sports officials announced this week that registrations to qualify for the Third Army Boxing Tournament are being accepted.

The Third Army tournament will be held Feb. 28 at Fort Gordon, S. C.

In order to screen and qualify Fort Benning participants for the matches, The Infantry Center Sports Officer, Building 533, will accept registrations. Registration may be made by major command athletic and recreation officers or by handball requires the use of nearly every muscle in the body, but handball has the advantage of affording all-weather, all-season participation with a minimum of space and expense. Handball is a great sport, and I hope that more people can soon become acquainted with it.

Baby Girl Born To Rademachers

"There's a new fighter in the family, but she won't learn to box."
That's what Pete Rademacher exclaimed Tuesday morning when his wife gave birth to a five-pound girl, to name her in Columbus. The baby was named Helen Jennings Rademacher.

Her father won the heavyweight championship in the 1956 Olympics while a first lieutenant at Fort Benning. Last August, he fought Professional Heavyweight Champion, Floyd Patterson for his only professional bout. The Rademachers have one other child, a three-year-old girl.

Co. D Leads 29th League

The hot-shooting cagers from Company D are setting the pace in the 29th Infantry Company Level Basketball League. Coach Ben Williams club has won four games and lost none to hold a slim lead over the 12th Tank Company.

Frank Brooks, former Georgia Tech football star, has been the big gun in the Company D attack. His 22-point, 10-rebound and drives have been the margin of victory in every contest. The 12th Tank Company has swept to an impressive 5-0 record. Their speed and height has proved too big a stumbling block for every opponent except Hq. and Company. The Hq. and Hq. quintet pooled an upset win over the Tankers.

With four wins and one loss, the 15th Transportation Company team is still in the title picture. League play will conclude in two weeks. Individual and team trophy will be awarded to the champs. The runner-ups also will receive a team trophy.

Rockets Regain Lead in Boxing

The 30th Infantry Rockets regained their slim lead in the Marine Ring League Jan. 14 when they defeated the Seventh Infantry at Harmony Church, Field House.

Dragoners Overrun STC by 90-69 Score

The 14th Infantry Dragoners, fore halftime when Don Whitehouse made a jump shot. Bill Pindar was the horn in the Dragoners' side as he made 21 points in the first half. He finished the night with 23, fouling out early in the fourth quarter. He was followed in the point column by Kenneth, 14, Doug Waldstad with 13, and Whitehouse scored 11.

With six minutes left in the game and the Dragoners possessing an eight point lead, STC was forced into a full court press, enabling the Dragoners to score some easy baskets and build up a big lead.

Boxer Fled From Reds, In U.S. Army

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—A top-ranked Polish boxer who escaped to freedom while touring Germany with a Communist-sponsored team is now an Army private here.

He is Joseph Pietron, 23, a 6' 4", 225-pound heavyweight who has posted 65 wins in his 101-fight amateur career, with 50 of his victories by knockouts. He has never been knocked out.

Two years ago Pietron, ranked second among Polish heavies and selected for the 1956 Olympics, walked out of a West Germany hotel which housed his touring Polish team and requested asylum.

After 14 months in Germany, he made his way to this country and settled in Irvington, N. J., where he was drafted in October, 1957. He hopes to fight professionally after his Army service.

Pietron began attempting a flight to freedom when he was 16. He was working on the docks of Gdynia, Poland's chief harbor, and attempted to stow away on an outgoing ship.

He attained his amateur ranking while a member of the Polish Army.

League Open To 4 Teams

Going into the second half of the 1957-58 basketball season, the Marine Division League is still anybody's, with four of the nine clubs still in the thick of the fight.

The pace setting Seventh Infantry Cottonbales, while perched atop the league with eight wins in the same number of contests, still have their work cut out for them.

The 30th, 38th, and 18th Infantry are still in the thick of the pennant fight. And while some early season disasters have put the Divarty Redies well out of the fight, their talent makes them a continual threat, capable of upsetting any of the loop hospitals on a given night.

Werner Cops Lauberhorn Ski Trophy

WENGEN SWITZERLAND of a second in the one and three-quarter mile Lauberhorn (Bad) Werner has become the first American to win the Lauberhorn Trophy, symbolic of victory in Switzerland's ski jumping classic.

The victory of the Fort Carson Col. Olympic skier, one of America's top downhill racers, was considered an upset, for the past two years, placed second to the Army skier in the 1956 Olympic champion, and 96 other skiers from 17 countries in flashing to victory.

Werner lost to Sailer by 1.7 seconds on two runs through the 72 gate course for a third place finish and first place in combined results.

Austria's Josef Rieder, winner of the Lauberhorn Trophy for the past two years, placed second to the Army skier in combined standings. Sailer, after his down hill victory, took a lead spill in the slalom and dropped behind in the competition.

A veteran skier at only 21 years Werner has won or placed in most of the recent international ski events. He went to Sweden in 1954 on the US Federation Internationale de Ski (FIS) team, finished 10th in downhill competition in the

Moore Vies With Brown In Scoring

Joel Moore has closed the gap on Div Armor's Bob Brown Marine Corps scoring lead. The 38th Infantry sharpshooter scored 28 and 29 points against the 15th and 4th Infantry respectively last week to challenge Brown's supremacy.

Now with 143 markers accumulated in seven contests, Moore trails the pace setting Brown by only 13, with the latter having performed in one extra contest. As a result of last week's activities, Moore now holds top honors in scoring average.

Brown, after a fine start this season, was almost totally stopped last Friday, as the 30th Infantry Rockets rolled to a 72-0 victory, while Brown could only manage to garner three points in the proceedings.

Stan Mataka of the league leading, undefeated Seventh Infantry Cottonbalters is a distant third in the scoring parade, with 124 markers. Billy Sims remains as the big point producer for the 20th, with 117 markers, fourth high.

Played for 49ers Pro Gridder Trains As Infantry Officer

By M. Sgt. Clark Blackburn
A former San Francisco professional football player and star athlete at the University of California, Lt. Riddon was called to active duty on Jan. 6 for a six months tour. He will complete his tour in time to join the 49ers in next season's football play. He plans on three more years of professional play, working towards a masters degree in Student Exchange.

Lt. Riddon's athletic career began at Nyack, N.Y. High School where he earned 14 letters as a football, basketball, and baseball player. He captained the football team his junior year, and the basketball and baseball teams his senior year.

Syracuse Star
Upon graduation from high school, Riddon enrolled at the University of Syracuse where he was an outstanding football and lacrosse player. At football he started at quarterback, halfback and end for three years, captaining the team his senior year. His junior year he made second string All-East as an end, and received honorable mention on the United Press and Associated Press All-American team as an end. His senior year, he repeated the honors as a halfback.

Played LaCrosse
Besides football, Lt. Riddon earned two letters at lacrosse, a game he termed rougher than football, but "the best sport in which I have ever participated."

His last football game as a defensive halfback with the College All-Stars in the game against the New York Giants at Chicago this past season.

Lt. Riddon says of his college football play that "the best always played his best against Army." In three games against them, he scored all 36 points. He made winning all three games with scores of 7-0, 19-0, and 6-0, a total of 36 points to Army's zero in 1955-57.

Upon graduation from Syracuse, Riddon was the first choice in their draft of college football stars. He played one full season as a defensive halfback.

Green Playing In Cage Games For Fishburne
Cadet Dave Green participated in the first six basketball games for Fishburne Military school, Waynesboro, Va. The Fishburne record now stands at three wins and three losses. Cadet Green has been an outstanding defensive man for the Fishburne cagers. Green is a 5'10", 145 lb. forward has scored 11 field goals and 13 points on fouls, for a total of 24.

He is the son of Col. Lynell H. Green of 402 Yeager Avenue, Fort Benning, Ga.

Unfortunately, I have to bring this column off by looking at the best of few people. It has been brought to my attention that the behavior of some people at Brat Barracks and the appearance of Brat Barracks is not all that it is cracked up to be. Now I'm not a preacher, so I'm not going to give a sermon but I do think you kids could be a little more careful with the equipment there. After all it is government property.

Also I've been asked to tell you boys to please stop swinging on the pipes. It would be terrible if you did. And if you're trying to impress the girls you're out in left field. We like boys, not girls, here. Let's also be a little neater, like putting Coke bottles where they belong. Just a few little things like that help a lot.

I'm sure that everyone who has been to Brat Barracks lately noticed the shuffle load. We can thank Col. H. W. Greer for that.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry A. Deaton donated an outfit piano to the Girl Scouts. A brass plate will be placed on the piano with an appropriate inscription.

The Fort Benning Youth Activities swimming team, captained by a member of the 1st Cavalry, will meet the Columbus YMCA swimming team at Briant Wells Field House Feb. 1 at 10 a.m. The events will be breast stroke, back stroke, free-style, and relay races. The age group is from eight to 17.

Articles Tell Army's Changed Look in '62
HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — Recent announcements by Army technical chiefs portray a vastly different Army for 1962—one of the fastest changing economic concepts and take advantage of the latest scientific advancements.

The future Army division will have an atomic fire power capability greater than entire Army groups had in World War II.

One of the most unique features in the February issue of the Army Information Digest is the introduction of food, ammunition, fuel, medicine, mail, will be delivered by helicopter and even isolated combat soldiers, will possibly eat oranges, and slices of chicken, with french fried potatoes.

Major Gen. J. D. O'Connell, Army's chief signal officer, points out that tactical commanders will have new communications to control firepower and mobility. He says that the squad leader, by use of a light-weight helmet radio, can easily control the actions of individual riflemen. A radio central, he says, will resemble a normal telephone switchboard and keep the battle group commander in touch with his far flung troops elements at all times.

The Army's chief of transportation, Major Gen. Paul F. Young, sees aerial cargo carrying nuclear powered devices, with vertical take-offs and landings, controlled through remote operations. He also foresees flying platforms: flying cars, radio controlled flying pallet sky-hook; and a helicopter that will lift 16 tons for short distances. He speaks glowingly of an aerial jeep—a vehicle that will perform all the tasks normally assigned to the land jeep.

Chief of Army medicine, Major Gen. S. B. Hays, says that

The three YAC basketball equipment this year, including warm-up jackets. The equipment has already arrived and the equipment is being put in place.

Col. Greer has gone to great pains to purchase salvage athletic equipment at the post-graduate yard. Items include gym and baseball shoes and punctured bags.

The boxing program seems to be going along quite well. At the tryouts on Dec. 7, there was a turnout of 100 boys between the ages of eight and 11. Scheduled matches will begin as soon as all the equipment arrives.

Well, it looks like that's the end of the year for now. See you next week.

Gen. S. B. Hays, says that in a mass casualty situation (likely to happen) all personnel will be trained in first-aid principles. He says that general practitioners will have to become surgeons, nurses will perform duties ordinarily performed by doctors, skilled enlisted men will take over nursing duties, and those less skilled will have to take over the tasks of the skilled.

War is coming to the features of the Army four years hence will be the wide use of irradiated food. In 1962, plan in Stockholm, Calif. will begin processing these foods for military use. Irradiation prevents contamination by killing microorganisms. New dehydration techniques have greatly improved flavor and palatability. Precooked foods need only the addition of water to make them completely edible.

The Army's chief chemical officer, Major Gen. William M. Creamy, foresees the need for preparedness against special chemicals the enemy might have that attack animal and plant life, but leave buildings intact.

Ordnance Chief Lt. General E. L. Cummings says the soldier will have a new family of small arms: the M16, the M14, will replace three former shoulder weapons.

Dr. Harris to Visit Post Schools For P-TA-Sponsored Program

Dr. Fred E. Harris, dean of Baldwin Wallace College, Cleveland, Ohio, will speak to the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association Jan. 22 at 8 p.m. in Faith School auditorium.

Dr. Harris, whose topic will be "Problems Facing Education Today," is nationally known for his 1963 publication "The Persistent Educational Problems: Grading, Promoting and Reporting to Parents."

He served as a specialist in fundamental education with the International Organization for the Administration in Cairo, Egypt, acting as consultant to the Egyptian public school system from September, 1954, to the following fall.

Training Program
Dr. Harris' talk is in conjunction with an in-service training program being conducted by the P-TA at the Fort Benning Children's Schools Jan. 27 through 30. During this period, the education staff will attend conferences with the school's teachers.

Each member of the faculty is serving on one of five discussion groups. They will deal with curriculum development, current grading practices, to promote or not to promote, reporting to parent, pupil and teacher and the parent-teacher conference technique of reporting.

The consultant also will meet with each grade level, kindergarten through eighth grade and special teachers of the faculty in seminars on the curriculum, according to Mrs. Richard Souder, superintendent of schools.

The entire faculty will meet

Army Develops Midget Detector To Spot Mines

WASHINGTON (APPS) — A mine detector that weighs only seven pounds, one-fourth as much as current models, has been developed by the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The detector is designed to find mines with metal parts. Big weight reductions have been made in the electronic assembly worn on the operators' cartridge belt. This unit measures seven inches by five inches by one inch and consists of four hermetically sealed plug-in sub-assemblies.

Repairs involve merely replacing one or more of these compact, plug-in units with a spare.

Army to Get $8.88 Billion Under 1959 Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (APPS) — President Eisenhower has asked Congress to approve a record spending rate of $8.88 billion for the Defense Department in fiscal year 1959. The bill supports his edict for "safety through strength."

The July 1, 1958, to June 30, 1959, budget for the military establishment provides for pay hikes to both military and civilian personnel and 10 percent force-level reductions in addition to the largest missile and space research and development programs since the Korean War.

Budget Breakdown

Defense Department, $2.15; 412,000; Operations Activities, $623,588,000; Army, $3,880,000,000; Navy, $10,913,000,000; Air Force, $14,738,000,000.

An additional $205 million for the DOD portion of the civilian personnel pay adjustment, bringing the total to $21.7, $4.2 billion more than in 1955.

Pay Plan Included

The cost of the proposed military pay increases based in part on the Cordiner Committee recommendations is estimated at $18 billion the first year and is included in the separate services budgets. The total cost for both wage adjustments is July 1, 1958.

Expenditures for FY '59 would be just less than $1 billion higher than the $38.8 billion in the current fiscal year for which the 80th Congress appropriated $36 billion in new money during its first session.

School Brigade Highlights
Morale Boosted by New Guidon For 104 Men of BIOC No. 7

26th Student Battalion, 2nd Student Battalion, Nov. 18, 1957. Capt. Roberto Guavea addressed the 104 men of the BIOC No. 7 for the first time. He told the group, "I take care of you." These words soon became the motto of this Unit.

The Student Officers decided to design a Guidon which would be symbolic of BIOC 7 and after much deliberation, the entry of Lt. Robert W. Lee was selected.

Lt. Lee's design consisted of a Guerrilla on a blue field with the words "Guavea's Guerrilla" above the animal. Below the guerrilla are the words "I take care of you." For the motto of BIOC 7, this serves as a great morale booster.

Artists Trains As Officer In BIOC 8

LT. H. WIERKUNEN
Cartoonist At Benning

A professional cartoonist, who has sold works to top slick magazines including Saturday Evening Post, has been appointed Basic Infantry Officers Course No. 7 at Fort Benning.

Lt. Harold Wierkunen, 26th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota who has been interested in cartooning and art since his youth. But his interest in cartooning as a profession began a reality during his four years at college.

He was on the University of Minnesota's newspaper staff for two years, was chief four years and did free lance work for various studios and trade magazines. He has been a member of the University. For a short period prior to call to active duty in the U.S. Army, he was a commercial artist and cartoonist for the Bokay Art Studio, Minneapolis, Minn.

Several of Lt. Wierkunen's cartoons have appeared in such magazines as Life, Time, Saturday Evening Post, and others. He is currently making a career of cartooning, preferably with one of the major magazines.

Second Sgt. as they took these points from Fourth Battalion.

Completed Supervision Course 25 Civilians Receive Training Certificates

Twenty-five Fort Benning civilian supervisors received certificates of training at an official ceremony in the Civilian Training Center Jan. 20.

Brig Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, presented certificates to those who completed the course, "Introduction to Supervision," last November.

DA System
The training program is part of the Department of Army's supervisory development system. New supervisors from the various organizational units of the Infantry Center are required to take the training. Also included are those who are potential supervisory personnel.

Primary objectives are to review basic fundamentals of supervision to insure that each participant is on firm supervisory ground, to help each trainee to understand more thoroughly his objectives and responsibilities and to re-emphasize the need for supervisors to practice democratic supervision and constantly strive to improve management techniques.

Course material, scientifically planned and tested is furnished by the Department of the Army.

Supervisors in the Finance and Accounting Office receiving certificates are Anne S. Chambliss, Eunice C. Hayes and Eugene Graham.

Post Visited By Dix CG

One hundred Republic of Vietnam Army officers received certificates at the 10 a.m. exercises in the Main Theater.

The visitor was honored at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess following the graduation.

Gen. Bergquist was assistant commander of the Third Infantry Division at Fort Benning from August, 1954, until February, 1956, when he went to Vietnam as deputy chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group.

The 65-year-old officer is a 1927 graduate of the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and attended The Infantry School's company officers course in 1934.

He was the speaker at graduation ceremonies for Allied associate company officers class, also composed of Vietnam officers, last February at The Infantry School.

Army Nurses Corps Marks 57th Anniversary Feb. 1

Sixty-six Army nurses at Fort Benning's U. S. Army Hospital will be honored at a formal guard mount on Chapel Field at 11 a.m. Feb. 1 in observance of the 57th anniversary of the Army Nurses Corps.

The public is invited. Special guests in the reviewing stand will be nurses from the hospital headed by Lt. Col. Clara M. Kieby, chief nurse.

Special guests invited to attend the ceremonies is Lt. Col. Ruby G. Bradley, chief nurse of the Third Army, who was named "Lady of the Year" for Skinner, hospital commander, and members of the general staff.

The only thing lit up at Fort Benning for over 25 minutes early Friday morning was the switchboard to post engineers.

Most personnel began work Friday without electric lighting due to power difficulties at the Georgia Power station that feeds electricity to Fort Benning.

Dedicated to the women of the Army Nurses Corps, oldest of the women's military services and first of the Federal nursing services, the guard mount will be held by Company C, 29th Infantry, Fort Benning's honor guard company.

Lady of the Year Special guest invited to attend the ceremonies is Lt. Col. Ruby G. Bradley, chief nurse of the Third Army, who was named "Lady of the Year" for Skinner, hospital commander, and members of the general staff.

On Feb. 2 the nurses at the hospital will observe the birthday of the corps at a tea in the Fort Benning Country Club from 2 to 4 p.m. The Nurses Corps began an official part of the Medical Service in the Army Reorganization Bill passed by Congress Feb. 2, 1901.

Special guests invited to attend the anniversary tea are Major Gen. Powell, and Mrs. Powell, Major Gen. Roy E. Lindquist, commander of the Third Infantry Division, and Mrs. Leary, Col. O. Z. Tyler, Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff, and Mrs. Tyler, Col. Sidney Skinner, and the chiefs of the hospitals services and divisions and their wives.

Highlight of the observance will be a cake cutting ceremony. (Please See Page 2)

Army Times Cites Press and Council Paper Lauds The Bayonet For Service

The Columbus Ledger-Examiner newspaper and the Citizens and Military Council of Columbus-Fort Benning-Phenix City will be presented Good Neighbor Awards by Army Times at a meeting of the council tomorrow.

Army Times selected the Columbus newspaper for the award because they have vigorously supported the aims and ideals of the Army in both their news and editorial columns since the establishment of Fort Benning in 1918.

The greatest neighborly service performed by these newspapers, said the citation, "is the publication of the weekly post newspaper, The Bayonet."

The council was selected as good neighbor because it has created between Fort Benning and Columbus "an atmosphere of mutual respect and understanding unsurpassed by any other communities where service members are stationed."

Scheduled to present the awards at the annual Ladies Night meeting of the Citizens and Military Council is Stephen F. Tillman, associate editor of the Army-Navy-Air Force Register and contributing editor of Army Times. Mr. Tillman, a Reserve Army Colonel, also is author of "Unaided," a history of military aviation.

The Good Neighbor awards and citations are mounted on mahogany plaques which have been laminated for preservation.

TIS Educator, Scientists Attend 3-Day Conference in Washington

The education advisor at the Infantry School and two Fort Benning scientists are representing the Infantry at a three-day conference of research, civilian scientists and educators in Washington, D.C.

Dr. H. S. Tate, the school's education advisor, Dr. Preston Abbott, director of research for the Infantry Human Resources Unit, and Dr. J. Daniel Lyons, group leader for BASIC TRAIN, an extensive research operation designed to improve Army basic training, are attending the U. S. Army Educational Advisors' Conference, sponsored by George Washington University's Human Resources Research Office.

Dr. Tate will speak at a panel discussion on the Function of the Educational Advisor. Dr. Tate will speak on his work at the Infantry School as a consultant on tests, measurements and grading.

Focus of attention for the top-civilian and military training experts during the conference will be the Army's human resources. The meeting will be held on the George Washington University campus, will afford military education specialists the opportunity to exchange ideas on improved training methods and techniques.

Fort Benning's Infantry Resources and Research Unit, part of the George Washington University Human Resources Research Office, has produced two revised programs for basic rifle marksmanship, known as TRAINFIRE I and TRAINFIRE II, both of which have been adopted for Army-wide use. These programs were devised to improve the marksmanship of basic trainees by providing them with life-size pop-up targets to shoot at rather than the old-style fixed targets fired at from a known distance.

Night firing package devised by the Infantry unit and incorporated into training doctrine was MOONLIGHT II, which dealt with rifle fire under conditions of low visibility or night firing instruction. Dr. Abbott is director of research for the Infantry unit at Fort Benning, and Lt. Col. George R. Stevens is military chief.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker will be introduced at the opening session of the conference by George Washington University President Cloyd H. Marvin. Brucker will welcome the group of more than 100 military and civilian delegates from nearly 60 schools and training centers, including the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. Gen. Willard G. Wynn, commanding general of Continental Army Command, will give the principal address. Serving as general chairman of the conference is Dr. T. R. Vallentyne, deputy director of the Human Resources Research Office.

Gen. Gavin Stated. Among the other distinguished speakers scheduled during the conference is Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of the Army's research and development. The Human Resources Research Office, has produced two revised programs for basic rifle marksmanship, known as TRAINFIRE I and TRAINFIRE II, both of which have been adopted for Army-wide use.

Appeal for Freedom

The Federal Service Joint Crusade is appealing to Federal employees and Military personnel throughout the continental United States to increase their own service to the country by sending a message of truth and friendship to the hungry of the world.

Hunger of the mind can be as painful as the pangs of actual physical starvation. But a timely message of truth and friendship will help still the want that besets millions of people on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The Crusade for Freedom, through Radio Free Europe, and CARE, through its Food Crusade, are the means by which we can answer the slanders and lies of totalitarian propaganda.

And yet another dollar invested in a CARE Food Crusade package will convince a hungry family in Italy or Hong Kong, Peru, or Pakistan that notwithstanding the propaganda of our enemies, Americans are an open-hearted people.

A dollar donated to the Joint Crusade will buy truth and hope for many and at the same time spread friendship and understanding for us throughout the world.

The secretary of state was technically an "observer" at the meeting because the United States is a full member of the pact.

U. S. Constitution

This is the fourth in a series of articles by AFPS which tells the story of the creation and acceptance of the Constitution of the United States.

Early in their discussion the delegates to the Philadelphia meeting decided not to amend the Articles of Confederation, but to draw up a whole new document.

In fact, it was not until 50 years later, when Madison's notes were published, that we got a good picture of what actually happened.

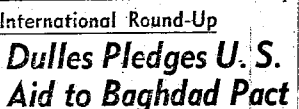

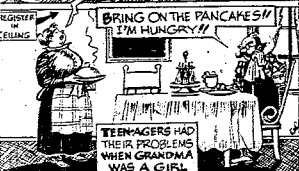

There were many conflicts of interest to be settled and many questions about the best way to achieve the aims agreed upon.

Some of the delegates were distrustful of the continent. Others thought that their section of the country had a more democratic spirit than any other.

The small states were afraid of being swallowed up. There were arguments about how the legislature should be organized, whether slaves should be counted for purposes of representation.

Only the combined prestige and influence of Washington and Franklin were able to keep the convention from breaking up over some of these issues.

Dulles Pledges U. S. Aid to Baghdad Pact

ANKARA, Turkey — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles pledged this week that the United States support the Baghdad Pact "with mobile power of great force" in event of Soviet aggression.

Dulles made the pledge of military aid in a speech at the opening of the Baghdad Pact ministers conference grouping leaders of the five "Western" alliance members — Britain, Pakistan, Iraq, Iran and Turkey.

The secretary of state was technically an "observer" at the meeting because the United States is a full member of the pact.

Chaplain's Corner

God Leads Those Who Request Aid

BY CHAPLAIN (LST.) RALPH E. HARRELL Does the hand of God guide? To ask such a question implies that some, in our rapidly moving age, are groping negatively, however, for the most part, the majority of mankind believe that the balance of no man down through the ages tends affirmatively to the question.

The Bible illustrates through its many pages a God who does not direct, there are even legends recordings that God hand divinely directs human affairs and that the universe is a moral universe in which God is working out His righteous purposes.

From generation to generation men have passed down their affirmations of faith in particular providence which has been exhibited in their lives.

Man sometimes speaks clearly of his experiences of sea captains and of the helmsmen were either washed overboard or were stranded by the engines.

Yet, by some unalterable law, their ships remained ruder to course and were saved. This was the present evidence of an "Unseen Providence" took the wheel and saved them.

God's hand has guided many a plane to safety when, by all measures of understanding, they should have crashed. The surety of His Supreme leadership. Believe in Him, call Him, and He will guide them.

The Judge Says . . .

Corps Gets Anniversary Salutations

The Army Nurse Corps this week was congratulated on its 57th anniversary and services the corps has rendered throughout the years by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general, and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff.

Gen. Powell's message is as follows:

"On behalf of the personnel at Fort Benning, I offer congratulations to the members of the Army Nurse Corps on the occasion of its fifty-seventh anniversary.

"By their dedicated performance of duty and their unselfish care of the sick and wounded, the members of the Corps have endeavored themselves to military personnel and their families throughout the years.

"The great traditions of the Army Nurse Corps live today in the outstanding manner in which the Army Nurses carry out their mission of service to the United States Army.

"Our best wishes go with the members of the Corps for future success in their chosen career.

Gen. Taylor's message is as follows:

"On behalf of the United States Army, I extend congratulations and best wishes to the members of the Army Nurse Corps on its 57th anniversary.

"In three great wars the Army Nurse Corps has taught skillfully to help preserve soldier lives by caring for the sick and wounded. The peacetime record of the Corps is likewise characterized by selflessly approved and able service and professional skill.

"It is my pleasure to join once again with other American soldiers in expressing pride in the Army Nurse Corps' achievement and in vouching confidence in its ability to render valuable service to the Army and the Nation in the future."

Sp3 Flipped By Daughters

FT. DEVENS, Mass. (AP)—When their father returns home, their little girls will greet them with a hug and kiss. This doesn't hold true for Sp3 Amos Burrow of Fort Devens. He has to enter carefully or one of his two daughters might throw him over her back.

The specialist's trip is full of stress from his daughters' fondness for the Japanese art of self defense, commonly called judo, and daddy's 200 pounds gives them handy weapons.

Sharon and Stella, five and ten years old respectively, learned their judo from two Wacs who were taught the sport in Japan.

Despite his bruises, Sp3 Burrow is relatively calm about his daughters' prowess. He says jokingly: "It's getting so I have to throw my hat in."

Woodruff

Thank You For Costing my impressions of the listed goals of the organization. At the outset of the business session, Ashworth offered a resolution that the chapter endorse a one-million-man Army. The resolution was unanimously approved and along with reasons for the million-man Army will be sent to the Department of the Army and the Armed Services Committee of both the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Other resolutions adopted unanimously by the chapter were:

1. Commendation to The Infantry Center commanding general, staff and command for support given the association and for fine relationships with the civilian community.
2. Good wishes to the Third Infantry Division commanding general, staff and personnel in its new assignment in Germany.
3. A welcome to the 10th Infantry Division and an invitation to join the association.

Classes Hear Gen. Tucker At Graduation

Brig. Gen. Reuben H. Tucker, Fort Campbell, Ky., spoke at the 101st Airborne Division graduation exercises at Fort Benning Jan. 25.

Approximately 500 students received parachutist wings at the 9:30 a.m. ceremony in the parachute towers area. The speaker was honored at an official luncheon in the main officers' mess following the graduation.

Gen. Tucker visited the post last October to speak at final ceremonies for the Infantry School's basic officers class. A native of Connecticut, he is a 1935 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. He attended the Infantry School's regular officers course in 1940.

Among the 47-year-old general's decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

Research Makes Possible Bigger Human Eye Bank

WASHINGTON (AP)—The human eye now can be preserved indefinitely for transplantation by a dehydration process developed at Walter Reed Army Hospital. The Ocular Research Unit at Walter Reed worked out the process to make possible a bigger and more permanent eye bank.

Previously the cornea had to be transplanted within a few days of the donor's death for the operation to be successful. Sergeant First Class Charles W. Furness, a member of the unit, played a key role in the work. He designed the clamp used to prevent damage to the cornea taken for dehydration before transplantation.

49er Boom Town Booms Feb. 8 At DUSA's Annual Benefit Ball

A program of acts, stunts and dances will lead additional color to the Western-style 49er Party Feb. 8 in Fort Benning's Main Officers' Mess. Professional and amateur talent join forces to provide a full evening of entertainment. Beginning at 8 p.m., the party program includes girls and boys cancan choruses, a dance ball with beautiful tuxidancers presided over by three "madames", two female singers, a male quartet, games and prizes.

The annual Army Daughters' 49er Party is Fort Benning's big charity social event. Proceeds from this year's affair again will go to such post offices as the Parent-Teacher Assn., Post Barracks, Boy Scouts, Youth Activities and Post Nursery which is solely supported, maintained and directed by the Army Daughters. Last year the party netted $6,000.

The Main Officers' Mess will be transformed into an old town town of the mining days. There will be the Silver Dollar Saloon with its Mile a Long Bar, scotchouses, card sharks, confidence men, dandies, cowboys, Indiana and belles of the 49er days.

The "behind-the-scenes" staff, presided over by Lt. Col. Northrup, includes Lt. Col. Adrian Hobbie in charge of games; Mrs. Martha Volentine, personnel; Mrs. Doug Bar, entertainment, and Lt. Mrs. J. W. Hingale, chairman of the Junior Army Daughters; Mrs. Harry Reed, production and distribution of publicity posters; and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Henry B. Kunzig, co-chairman of the party; Mrs. Lafe, food and proprietress of Maggie's Checkwagon; Mrs. William V. D. Gels, decorator; Major John Rogers, security; Major Boyd F. Heeder, banker; Mrs. Albert Edgerton, entertainment, and Lt. David Runbough, ticket sales.

Tickets on sale. Mrs. Burton J. Warrath Jr. is the artist responsible for the posters on display at the Main Officers' Mess. Col. Adrian Hobbie's games committee includes Col. Norman B. Edwards, Col. Samuel T. McDowell, Col. Jack Matthews, Col. D. E. Townsend, Col. R. S. Cain, Col. L. B. Ramsey and Col. C. C. Noble.

Tickets for the 49er Party, which are scarce, are available at the hotel desk in the Main Officers' Mess, U. S. Army Hospital Pharmacy and in major units of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and the Third Infantry Division.

Assault Boat Put Into Production

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Army has awarded Correct Craft Inc., Pine Bluff, Ark., a $1,653,428 contract to produce the recently standardized plastic assault boat developed by the U.S. Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Fort Belvoir, Va. The lightweight boat, designed primarily for assault crossings of rivers, streams, and other water obstacles, features fiberglass reinforced plastic construction.

BIOC Stages Benefit Show

A benefit show complete with a well-known Western entertainer was staged by the Infantry School's basic officers class No. 5 Jan. 28 in the Benning Hills School auditorium.

Proceeds of the production will go to the Teenage Club of Benning Hills in Columbus. The variety program, included a comedy auction routine, orchestra and glee club.

Highlighting the program was 2nd Lt. Montie C. Mickel, better known as Montie Montana Jr., of movie, television and rodeo fame. He demonstrated his talents with trick rope and guitar.

Other feature performers were 2nd Lt. Jerome Zimmerman, concert and jazz pianist who played selections from Bach to boggle; 2nd Lt. Roland H. Reese, professional auctioneer who offered such items on the auction block as a $2 bill, and 2nd Lt. Edward Booth who sang several selections.

The "Mellotones," teenage trio, and the "Flanders," a musical combo of three guitarists and drummer, were also on the bill.

National Pres. Speaks to Armed Forces Management Association

To make a significant contribution to the efficiency and effectiveness of the Armed Forces is the goal of the Armed Forces Management Association, the president of the national organization said at Fort Benning last week.

Carl Freedman, guest speaker at the January dinner meeting of the post's chapter of the association, stated:

"It (the AFMA) is an organization of managers and management specialists to teach better use of financial data in management, and the Infantry

School has applied these principles of management vigorously with great success."

He added that military management must demonstrate to the public it has a know-how about management and can use it.

He reviewed the work of the association's National Board of Directors which he said was outstanding, reporting that there were 20 active chapters with 1,100 members. He also outlined plans for an increased drive for new members of the organization.

For two years, Mr. Freedman added, the Fort Benning chapter has received an award for its management efforts, but advised the members not to rest on their laurels, lest other vigorous chapters overtake them.

Mr. Freedman sketched three steps, planning, execution and analysis, and related them to the forward planning of business enterprises by which such organizations keep ahead in the competitive fields of business and industry.

Space Age
"Military planning for the Space Age is directed towards meeting the challenges to our way of life in which our very survival is at stake," said the speaker.

It requires men to plan for suitable weapons to be used as deterrents or for combat with the enemy, he stated. It includes a study of improving weapons to meet the missions of the future, and these weapons must be on time and in sufficient quantities.

Mr. Freedman also pointed out that combat capabilities, time requirements, personnel, translated into budget requirements and financial resources to meet these budget requirements are a part of this planning.

Mythical Picture
Using multi-colored visual charts, he presented a picture of the mythical Grosstark Air Force of 1981, with 46 groups, two weapons systems including space fighters, missiles and magnetic projects and total personnel increasing from 225,000 to 310,000. He outlined for the audience the implications of this expansion in the Space Age.

A second group of visual charts indicated the status of the imaginary Grosstark Air Force in the period 1981-1986, with a total personnel of 370,000 and extremely complicated machines manned by space fighters whose training would take at least 12 months.

"Public Relations"
Also addressing the group was Lt. Col. Stephen A. White, editor of The Infantry School Quarterly, who spoke on "Public Relations."

He told the members of the association that any manager must be concerned with public relations, whether military or civilian. Public relations cannot be escaped or ignored. Col. White stated that any enterprise involved in public activity will have public relations

Sports Editor Praises Boy Scout Program for Youth Building Value

Scouting is one of the best youth-building programs for boys today, Atlanta Journal Sports Editor Furman Bisher told Scouts and guests Jan. 21 at Fort Benning. "A debt of gratitude goes constantly to the leaders of the Boy Scout world the scouting efforts provide a strong support for boys' development in time and efforts to guide and direct youth in the path of constructive living," Bisher said at the annual banquet of the Georgia-Alabama Council of Boy Scouts of America. Approximately 20 members and guests of the council attended the dinner meeting in the Main Officers' Mess. Bisher, who was introduced by Maynard Ashworth, publisher of The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, pointed out that in today's complex society and is their training ground too." Highlights of the evening were the presentation of approximately 64 adult Scouting awards. The Scoutmaster of the council received the Silver Beaver, highest adult honor. They were Judge J. Shannon Burch, Phenix City; Nathan Hunter, Columbus and John H. Woodall Jr., Woodland, Ga.

Gen. Ruggles Honored. Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, who welcomed the group to Fort Benning, was presented a statement for support given to the council's Scouting program. The Leadership Training Committee, SP3 Stroud is an assistant district commissioner. A Veteran Award for 18 years of service went to M. Sgt. Edgar E. Oatley, assigned to the Infantry Center Inspector General's Section, committee chairman of Troop No. 10. Fort Benning's Scouts belong to the United States District Court, Col. Henry C. Mc-

Five Named Consultants To McElroy

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Secretary Neil H. McElroy has mustered a banding of five top-flight civilian and military consultants to assist him in exploring the possibilities of improvements in the Defense Department.

Named to meet with Mr. McElroy in a Defense establishment study are: former Deputy Secretary of Defense William C. Foster; Nelson A. Rockefeller, Chairman, President's Advisory Committee on Government Organization; the Army's Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, both former chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, present chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

The Defense Secretary also announced the appointment of Charles A. Coolidge, an Assistant Secretary of Defense under Robert A. Lovett, as a full-time Special Assistant to help him in reviewing the Defense organization.

14th Captures Infantry Center Basketball Title

3-A to Hold Tournament at Benning

The 14th Infantry Dragoners topped the century mark in scoring last week to win the Infantry Center Basketball League by defeating the 54th Medical Group 105-71.

The Dragoners will keep five of the players and select five men from other teams in the league for Fort Benning's entry in the Third Army tournament to be held at Fort Benning in March.

Play Out Post
The first week in February this post team will leave for game time at North Dakota State. In his senior year, he was an All-Conference guard in the tenth March Central Conference. He was named honorable mention on the Little All-American team, also. While in high school, Central earned 11 letters at Moorhead in Moorhead, Minn. He earned three letters in basketball as a guard and was a unanimous choice for all conference guard. During the second year, he played the spring game on the baseball team and earned four letters. He also found time to earn two letters as a 440-yard dash man on the track team. Though participating only part time, he turned in a good time of 53.5 seconds. In football he earned two letters as a halfback.

Porter Scores 35
Russ Porter, who was the game's high scorer with 35 points, kept the Medics close for a short while with jump shots from all angles. Bernard and Lewis were high point men for the Dragoners as each hit for 20 points each.

LEAP FOR TIP . . . Joe Paulson (14), 14th Infantry forward, and Julian Holt (24), 54th Medical Group go up for the tip on a jump ball during last week's game. Bear Mason of the 54th waits for ball in background. Referee is J. B. Blount. 14th Infantry won the tilt 105-71 for the Infantry Center Basketball Championship.

Travelers Lose Successful Tilt

BY DICK SPENCER

Hazel Walker and her Arkansas Travelers put on a fine exhibition of basketball with the 14th Infantry Dragoners before a standing-room-only crowd at Brandt Wells Field House last Sunday night.

The score, as it mattered, was 69-58 in favor of the Infantry Center Champions. Few fans had time to notice the scoreboard as the Travelers whipped sharply around the court which, at times, bewildered the Dragoners.

Goose Scores 33
Garroutte gave a crowd-pleasing performance with her hook shots and 30-foot corker set shots. Taking most of her shots from 25 to 30 feet out, Goose accumulated 33 points during the show.

Even before the opening whistle sounded, the Travelers had won the praise and applause of the spectators as they displayed some fancy passing and Globetrotter, at mid-court.

Last Pace
John Barnard initiated the scoring by tossing in a layup on a fast-break play. Goose then dropped back and unleashed her one hander to knot the score.

Last pace was set in the first period as the Dragoners moved out to lead by 27-22. The 14th employed fast breaks and the Travelers countered with some eye-popping outside shooting.

Don Bowman seemed to enjoy the action thoroughly. He was caught holding four times by the refs.

The scoreboard read 44-33 in favor of the Dragoners at the half. Hazel Walker, who had been ill with the flu, showed her gameness by insisting that she put on her latrine during construction of her progress from the food line.

LAY UP . . . Doug Walstead shoots lay up, in Dragoners 105-71 victory over 54th Medical Group. Attempting to block shot is Tom Marks. Waiting for rebound is Jerry Beck (44) and Paul Settles.

Walstead Led Dragoners To Loop Win

Lt. Douglas D. Walstead, sharpshooting player-coach of Fort Benning basketball champions, is a main reason for the 14th Infantry's success.

Walstead leads the team in scoring and in shooting percentage. He has hit an 83 of 187 field goals attempted for an outstanding 44.4 per cent. This, with 31 free throws, gives the jump-shooting guard 197 points for 13 games.

Walstead, who leads the Dragoner fast break, played his college basketball at North Dakota State. In his senior year, he was an All-Conference guard in the tenth March Central Conference. He was named honorable mention on the Little All-American team, also. While in high school, Central earned 11 letters at Moorhead in Moorhead, Minn. He earned three letters in basketball as a guard and was a unanimous choice for all conference guard. During the second year, he played the spring game on the baseball team and earned four letters. He also found time to earn two letters as a 440-yard dash man on the track team. Though participating only part time, he turned in a good time of 53.5 seconds. In football he earned two letters as a halfback.

His outstanding play in high school earned him a basketball scholarship to North Dakota State where he earned three letters and completed a three-year average of 15 points a game. At the end of his college career, he had a chance to try out with the Milwaukee All-American team of the National Industrial Basketball League. However, he preferred to turn the chance down for Army service.

He received his Bachelor of Science Degree in 1956 with a major in physical education and a minor in business and a minor in education.

Walstead was a good second baseman and received four letters and had a batting average of .300 for his four years. Last summer he played first base as an Infantry Center baseball team.

While as the future, he is undecided between coaching and a career in business.

WACs Drub Maxwell

Fort Benning's WAC basketball team soundly trounced the Maxwell AFB "Bomberettes" Saturday by a score of 31-16.

The "Bomberettes" attempted to a three to two lead in the first quarter but were soon caught and passed by the Benning WACs at half time Benning led 19-6.

In the second half Benning took charge all the way. While at North Dakota State Walstead was a good second baseman and received four letters and had a batting average of .300 for his four years. Last summer he played first base as an Infantry Center baseball team.

While as the future, he is undecided between coaching and a career in business.

Nike Goes Operational

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—The Army revealed today that its new Nike Hercules missile system will become operational in four selected areas of the United States in June of this year. First to establish Hercules defenses are New York, Washington, Baltimore, Chicago, and Philadelphia.

The Hercules system will be located at converted Nike Ajax sites operated by elements of the Air Defense Command. Construction of the Hercules systems at these first four Nike-protected areas is the beginning of a nationwide conversion of the Army's surface-to-air missile sites to the dual capability of firing both Nike Ajax and Nike Hercules missiles.

What impressed Lt. Jordan most was the great stress on mental as well as physical training in American professional football. "Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns, not only puts us through hard physical tests, but once a week everybody gets a mental aptitude test. Failure to do well on these tests can result in being dropped from the squad, regardless of other considerations."

He was used mostly for spot substitutions such as kickoffs and punts, but everyone on the squad was required to learn all phases of the game. "I studied harder in professional football than I did in college," Jordan stated.

Reorganization Set Feb. 1 For 4th Trans. Company

Feb. 1 has been designated as reorganization day for the Fourth Transportation Company (Light Helicopter H-34) at Lawson Army Airfield Command.

Originally activated as the 506th Light Helicopter Company at Fort Sill, Okla., in June, 1952, the Fourth was assigned to Fort Benning in November of the same year. It remained a Light Helicopter Company until the acquisition of 16 H-37 helicopters this month by changing the Fourth from a light helicopter company to a medium helicopter company.

Commanded by Capt. James C. Evans, the Fourth Trans. Co. (LH H-37) will be officially designated the Fourth Trans.

2ND LT. MCDOWELL
Named detachment commander of the Third Army Food Service School is 2nd Lt. Jerry A. McDowell of Bledon Springs, Ala. The 29-year-old officer was commissioned June 2, 1957, and graduated from Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va., Dec. 20.

Sgt. Named Re-Up NCO At Benning

Sgt. John H. Lennon of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The School Brigade, has been designated as Reenlistment Non-Commissioned Officer for Fort Benning for 1957.

Primarily through St. Lennon's efforts, The School Brigade has led all post units in reenlistment percentage for the second consecutive year. The unit's winning year-end average showed that 61.2 per cent of those men eligible chose to reenlist — most of them to fill their own vacancies.

Particularly outstanding within the Brigade was the 515th Student Battalion which has had a 100 per cent reenlistment record each month since May 1957.

Sgt. Lennon, who holds the rank of Staff Sergeant, is a member of the Motor Committee at The Infantry School.

Major Townsend Named Special Services Officer

Major Ernest C. Townsend of Mill Valley, Calif., has been assigned as Special Services Officer of the Infantry Center. He replaces Major William V. Johnson.

Choo Choo Lose

Club Folds As Rails Fail

He is a veteran of 16 years of Army Service as a commissioned officer. He wears the Bronze Star Medal and Commendation Ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster awarded him for service during his tour in the Southwest Pacific from 1943 to 1947. He joined the Army and was assigned to Fort Riley, Kans., where he received his commission as a second lieutenant in 1945 upon completion of Officer Candidate School.

Major Townsend Assigned to Southwest Pacific Theater

Major Townsend was assigned to the Southwest Pacific Theater in 1944 where he served with the First Cavalry Division. He later was with the 125th Medical Group, South Army, as evacuation officer. Returning to the U.S. in 1947, he was assigned as Special Services Officer for the Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C., until 1950. From 1950 to 1953, he served as Special Services officer for the Vietnam Military Post in Austria. In 1953 he became the sports officer of the Sixth Army, serving in this capacity until 1955 when he entered the advanced Adjutant General School. He is a junior Harrison, Ind. After graduating in 1956, he went to Korea where he remained 12 months until returning to the U.S. in October, 1957.

Saturday Night Prizes to Mark Gala '49er Ball

General officers and their wives at Fort Benning are scheduled to highlight the post's '49er Party Feb. 8, by awarding prizes to the winners of the evening.

Mrs. John F. Rugless, Mrs. Stanley R. Larsen and Gen. Leary will make the presentation of other prizes during the evening.

Guests are reminded they must present valid club dependents' guest cards for admission to the party to be held in the Main Officers' Mess at 8 p.m.

The First Southeastern Corp. will sponsor a five-period course in money management at Fort Benning beginning Feb. 12.

Class will be held in Pat. Hall from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Feb. 12, 19 and 26 and March 5 and 12. John H. Barrett will instruct.

Fields of money management to be covered in the course include types of investments, mechanics of investing, financial statements and how to select stocks, bonds and mutual funds. A film prepared for the New York Stock Exchange, entitled "Your Share in Tomorrow," also will be shown.

Barrett said the objectives of the course are "to educate non-investors in types of securities, to explain risks involved as well as rewards expected and to describe sound methods of investing." It is designed to reach the family as well as the individual, he pointed out.

All Fort Benning personnel are invited to attend the sessions.

Bus Line Starts Hospital Service At Fort Benning

The Howard Bus Line of Columbus has inaugurated a new bus service between the Fort Benning Bus Station and the U.S. Army Hospital.

Buses are scheduled to leave the main bus station every hour on the half hour from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and return leaving the hospital every hour from 8:40 a.m. to 2:40 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. The hospital every hour will be 10 cents per person.

Upon leaving the main station, the bus will proceed down Wolf Avenue to Ballzard Avenue and to the main entrance of the hospital. On the return trip it will proceed down Running Avenue to First Division Road, to Wolf Avenue and the bus station.

Dr. Elson Describes Middle East As World's 'Most Strategic' Spot

The strife-ridden Middle East, "the most significant, strategic area in our world today," Edward L. R. Elson, minister of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., told the Citizens Military Council of Fort Benning-Columbus-Plexic City Jan. 31.

Speaking at the 11th anniversary dinner of the council, Dr. Elson discussed the trip he made recently through nine Middle East countries as president of the American Friends of the Middle East. In addition to being President Elson's pastor, the noted clergyman also is president of the Military Church Association of the Armed Forces.

"The Middle Eastern nations are between the great pools of world power and what they do may well determine the destiny of the world today. An accident of judgment or military action on their part could well trigger World War III," Dr. Elson declared.

Another highlight of the program was the presentation of Good Neighbor Awards by the Army Times to the Council and the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers. Stephen F. Tillman, co-publisher of the Army Times and associate editor of the Army-Navy-Air Force Register, presented the plaques in recognition of the "down to earth support between the community and the military" in the Fort Benning area.

Swirling Tension
The peril is the Middle East. Elson pointed out that each of the "caught in the cortex of swirling tensions" with the U.S. and Russian blocs and with one another.

The speaker termed Lebanon the "only distinctly Christian nation in the Middle East. It is slightly more than 50 per cent Christian. When Lebanon's president is Christian, the country minister is Moslem and vice versa."

"From the point of view of Arab world, Israel is the disrupting factor," Dr. Elson said.

"With people from nearly 60 nations in 8,000 square miles, Israel is integrated through her people," Dr. Elson, Page 2

Post to Host IADB Meet

60 Delegates to Attend Inter-American Sessions

The Inter-American Defense Board with representatives of Latin America will meet at Fort Benning Feb. 15 to 19. The Board is the inter-American military organ of the Organization of the American States, a diplomatic body for the cultural, economic, scientific and joint development of the hemisphere. It is similar in organization to NATO.

Approximately 60 Latin American and U.S. delegates will attend the conference. Gen. Lennel C. Shepherd Jr., former commander of the 1st Corps, will serve as chairman.

Other U.S. delegates expected to be at Fort Benning for the meeting are Rear Admiral James F. Peterson, Navy representative; Major Gen. Thomas C. Darcy, Air Force representative; Brig. Gen. William K. Skager, Air Force representative and staff director for the U.S. delegation. The Board was created at a 1942 meeting of the ministers of foreign affairs of the American republics. There is no limitation to the number of delegates a nation may place on the board, but each country has only one vote.

The mutual security planners will arrive at Lawson Army Air Field at 4 p.m. Feb. 13 where they will be greeted by 100 members of the 1st Corps and honor guard ceremonies.

The flags of each of the 21 nations which will be displayed behind the official party at the welcoming ceremonies.

From 5:30 to 6:30 that evening, the delegates will be guests of honor at an informal reception in the gymnasium of the Infantry School. A large area, also attending will be all Latin American students at the Infantry School.

A formal reception and banquet will be held at the Officers' Mess at 7:15 p.m. Feb. 13 in the Main Officers' Mess. Fort Benning officers and their wives will attend the affair, which will be highlighted by the presentation of an Infantry Plaque See IADB, Page 8

YAC Begins Annual Drive

Fort Benning's Youth Activities Club membership drive held annually during February is underway. The Brig. Gen. John E. Rugless, commanding general of the Army Infantry Center, has requested that all members of the club reach 100 per cent standing both for regular and full cooperation.

YAC is open to all families assigned to Fort Benning. It provides a complete, supervised and organized recreation program for boys and girls to a Boy and Girls Scoutmaster in Moslen and vice versa.

"From the point of view of the club, it is the most important factor," Dr. Elson said.

"With people from nearly 60 nations in 8,000 square miles, Israel is integrated through her people," Dr. Elson, Page 2

Editorials
U. S. Constitution

This is the last in a series of articles by AFPS which tells the story of the creation and acceptance of the Constitution of the United States.
In 1787 George Washington was elected presiding officer of the Philadelphia convention.

After the Constitution had been signed, it was submitted to the states to be ratified. The debate that followed was perhaps the most important in our history.

In some places it was bitter, but on the whole it was more dignified than any other in our history.

From the fall of 1787 to the spring of 1788, the whole population of the United States got an intensive political education.

A group of letters defending the Constitution appeared in the public press over the signature "Federalists." These papers we now call the Federalist Papers.

They were written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay. Hamilton wrote the largest number, but Madison wrote the most famous of them.

Although he thought it far from perfect, Hamilton supported the Constitution with great energy because he felt that it was a great improvement over the Articles of the Confederation.

To this day the Federalist Papers are one of the finest contributions that America has made to political theory. They have been cited many times in the countries of Europe and South America when a new constitution was under consideration.

This is all the more remarkable when we realize that they were written in the rush and heat of a political campaign. These papers are given much of the credit for winning over the state of New York, which was vital to the new government.

Although they originally appeared in New York newspapers, the letters were also printed and distributed in other states.

In many states the vote on the Constitution was close. Ratification was carried by such margins as these: Massachusetts, 187-168; New Hampshire, 57-47; Virginia, 89-79; New York, 30-27; Rhode Island, 34-32.

In the other states, the margins were more decisive. But the fight was closest in the crucial states of Virginia, New York and Massachusetts.

Much of the opposition originally sprang from the fact that the Constitution did not contain any guarantees of individual liberties.

Many members of the convention felt that the rights of the people were already adequately protected, but the majority of the people in the country insisted that the rights of the individual should be clearly stated.

Only when many of those who were supporting the ratification of the Constitution in the state conventions promised to work for the addition of a Bill of Rights was the Constitution finally ratified.

Nine states had to approve it, and the ninth, New Hampshire, did so on June 21, 1788.

Release Counter Stroke

A lightning atomic stroke out of the blue could not prevent the counter stroke against the country of the aggressor, but would rather release it. From a statement by Manfred von Ardenne, an East German scientist who won the Stalin prize for his post war atomic work in Russia, quoted in an article, "50,000 Atom Bombs Stored, East German Scientist Says", The Baltimore Sun.

Income Tax: I

Early Returns Urged By Revenue Service

First of six articles based on information from the Internal Revenue Service. Every citizen or resident of the United States, including minors, who had $600 or more gross income in 1957 must file a federal income tax return. If 65 or older by Jan. 1, 1958, no return is required unless gross income was at least $1,000. Those with less income should file to obtain a refund of any tax withheld.

Returns should be filed as soon as possible, but no later than April 15, 1958. Returns should be mailed to the District Director of Internal Revenue for the district where you live. The address is listed on the instruction booklet accompanying your blank form. Checks or money orders for any tax due should accompany the return, and should be made out to Internal Revenue Service.

Every taxpayer is entitled to at least one personal exemption of $600. If 65 or older, or blind, you get $600 exemptions. If both blind and 65 or older, three exemptions.

The same exemptions are allowed for your wife for joint returns. If you file a separate return, you may claim your wife's exemption if she had no other income and was not the dependent of another taxpayer. If your husband or wife died in 1957, the number of his or her exemptions is determined as of the date of death. Be sure to fill in the appropriate boxes on your return. You get only one $600 exemption for each dependent, regardless of his age or other circumstances.

Chaplain's Corner
God Sheds His Light On Our Daily Living

CLAPLAIN (CAPT.) TALMADGE F. McNABB
The journey of each day—and of every day of our life—is a walk of faith. Life is sometimes perplexing and in our short-sighted ignorance we cry out: "Lord, how can we know the way?" By faith the answer comes back to us from God: "I will lead the blind in paths they have not known; I will make the darkness light before them."

What are the happiest hours we spend in every day? I will venture to say they are those when we see busy in doing good to others and busy in doing good to ourselves. It is refreshing coolness may revive a soul that has been weary. Let us bear in mind that we lift up some fellow traveler and set him on his feet. Let us bear in mind that we lift up some fellow traveler and set him on his feet. Let us bear in mind that we lift up some fellow traveler and set him on his feet.

What are the happiest hours we spend in every day? I will venture to say they are those when we see busy in doing good to others and busy in doing good to ourselves. It is refreshing coolness may revive a soul that has been weary. Let us bear in mind that we lift up some fellow traveler and set him on his feet.

The Judge Says . . .

Lieutenant Per Diem made several trips during 1957, for which he received substantial payments of per diem and travel pay. Since the Army did not require an accounting for the manner in which he spent these funds, he felt there was no need to include them in his Gross Income.

Needless to say, Lieutenant Per Diem's reasoning was not sound. All per diem and travel pay allowances are items of income. They should be included in a separate income Schedule which sets forth earnings per W-2 Form to which is added the per diem and travel pay. Expenses incident to per diem and travel should be deducted on this same schedule and should be supported by an itemization of expenses. If you are allowed the rail-to-air or air-to-air travel allowance, you must file a separate schedule for that travel.

Of this second group of automatic depreciation allowances is the expense almost universally uncomprehended. Depreciation allowances include, in addition to a bonus, an allowance for wear and tear and a 2% return of cost, all payable in three years.

Let us take the case of Major Mercury whose car cost $4,000. Using four years as the useful life, his car would be depreciated each year. When the car is sold for $1,000, $3,000 depreciation in four years would be allowed. If the car is sold for $1,000, $3,000 depreciation in four years would be allowed. If the car is sold for $1,000, $3,000 depreciation in four years would be allowed.

STC to Celebrate Ninth Anniversary

On Feb. 10 a special birthday dinner featuring steak will be served in all STC mess halls as part of the celebration of Special Troops Command's ninth anniversary. Families and guests are invited to join in the festivities.

In a congratulatory message to STC, Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general, said:

CG's Message
"I wish to extend my warmest congratulations to the members of the Special Troops Command on the occasion of the ninth anniversary of its organization.

"The important mission of supporting the U. S. Army Infantry Center and the U. S. Army Infantry School has been accomplished by the Special Troops Command with diligence and enthusiasm. Throughout a period of many changes, the organization has performed all assigned tasks with efficiency and outstanding success.

"The loyalty and cooperation displayed by the personnel throughout the years indicate the high degree of esprit and moral inherent in the unit. I offer best wishes for continued success in the coming years to the members of the Special Troops Command."

Congratulations
To this message Col. Max F. Schneider, STC Commander, added his personal congratulations: "In observing our ninth anniversary, I wish to express my gratitude to Special Troops Command personnel, civilian and military, for another year of activity in which each of you has played a vital part in the successful operation of this command and in the accomplishment of our primary mission, support of the United States Army Infantry Center.

"The teamwork, cooperation, spirit and determination displayed by all, have made easier the performance of joint tasks we may all be proud of the outstanding standards of Special Troops Command and its many successful accomplishments.

"Let us look forward to another year with the same spirit and determination, and I am confident we will continue to uphold the fine traditions of the Army and of our command."

Established in 1949 as the Area Service Unit Provisional

COL. M. F. SCHNEIDER STC Executive Officer

Group, the unit was redesignated Special Troops Command on April 1, 1953. Its functions remain those of providing a parent organization for TD and POP service units supporting the Infantry Center; commanding, administering and training enlisted personnel who perform duties within a staff sections of the Infantry Center; operating a centralized transfer point for personnel assigned to Fort Benning, of base returnees, and personnel sent to this station from Third Army for processing; and furnish interim housing and subsistence to individuals and small groups of enlisted personnel who report to this station after normal duty hours.

Units within STC are probably as varied as will be found in any command of comparable size. The First Special Troops Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. John Caddie is composed of three lettered companies A, B, and C. The Band Center, 85th Ordnance Detachment and the 90th, 147th, 359th and 82nd Ordnance Companies. The Second Special Troops Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. Richard W. Ulrich is made up of two lettered companies A and B, the 56th Signal Company which recently arrived in the command from Germany, the 51st and 58th Transportation Companies, Military Police Company and 86th MP Detachment.

In addition, four separate companies are assigned to the unit, PWC Co. and Third Army Food Service School make up STC.

Success in Sports
The past year saw STC have repeated successes in the various sports which 115 members were called to contribute. Two Red Cross blood drives were over-subscribed to the extent that it was necessary to set a limit. The Special Troops Command's participation in the Community Activities Campaign was accomplished as in past campaigns.

A highly successful sports year was posted by the Command, with teams representing the sports crowd posing as champions. After winning locally, the Ha. Co. Volleyball team went on to victory in the Third Army tournament and a

PFC. CLOUSE Soldier of the Month

WAC Picked Top Soldier

Pfc. Edna F. Clouse, a member of Fort Benning's WAC detachment, has been named Special Troops Command's Soldier of the Month for December, 1957.

Pfc. Clouse received a pen and pencil set from Col. Max F. Schneider, STC commanding officer, in ceremonies at Schneider's office. The pretty WAC was picked from some 3,000 enlisted members of STC. Honor awards come naturally to Pfc. Clouse, who was selected the outstanding WAC in basic training and honor student at Control Tower School, Keosler Air Force Base, in May, 1957.

Pfc. Clouse is now assigned as an Air Field Control operator at Lawson Army Air Field Command.

Nine Horses Train For Caisson Work

WASHINGTON (APFS)
Nine black horses are being trained at Ft. Myer, Va., to draw the caisson used in the traditional funeral ceremonies held at Arlington National Cemetery.

The horses were thrusted with replacement by retired ex-horses last year, but Secretary of the Army Wilbur M. Brucker said the money saved would be "outweighed by the intangible values" involved in continuing the tradition of the horse-drawn caisson.

OVER THE AIR

What makes a good combatable and danceable music leader? What gives a leader that extra "something" that inspires confidence in his men? This week "Queen of Battle" takes you behind the scenes of officer candidate instruction at Fort Benning's Infantry School for a first-hand look at the transformation of a man into an officer. You'll travel with a typical officer candidate attending classes, participate in field exercises and listen as the ever-present tactical officer points out the candidate's strong and weak points. The story of officer candidate training this week on "Queen of Battle" over WRBL in Columbus, Saturday at 8:15 p.m.
Music, too, will be much in evidence this weekend as the "Fort Benning Bandstand" report of the anniversary observance of the Army Nurses. That's "Fort Benning News" over WRBL each Saturday at 12:45 p.m. in their own unique style of listening.

238,857 Miles to Go Moon Trip Expected In a Matter of Years

(APFS Feature) For centuries man has dreamed of setting foot on the moon. Today scientists are building seriously of accomplishing the feat in a matter of years, according to the National Geographic Society.

Why go to the moon? Scientists say that exploration of the moon will aid man's understanding of the universe, in which he lives.

Since the invention of the telescope, astronomers have been studying the surface of the moon. Early scientists, believing the dark patches seen on the moon's surface were water, but present day sky studies have determined that moon is completely devoid of plants.

Orbiting around the earth at an average distance of 238,857 miles, the moon is the earth's closest neighbor. Seemingly a long way off, the distance is small when compared to the stars.

No Sound When man first sets foot on the moon what will he find? Scientists say that because of the almost total lack of atmosphere humans will hear no sound, but will be able to see more clearly than on earth.

The visible face of the moon is a lifeless desert. Man will find himself faced with enormous mountains—some higher than any on earth—and countless craters or valleys.

In addition, if he were able to lift 500 pounds while on earth he could haul 3,000 on the moon. A seven-year-old child can break every Olympic high jump record.

A large canyon could fire a shell completely around the planet. All these things are possible because of the much weaker pull of gravity.

It is believed that if and when man gets to the moon, he will be able to put it to many uses. Better maps of the earth and stars can be charted, new sources of raw material might be found, and it could conceivably serve as an outlet for earth's skyrocketing population.

Before Congress

New Bill Permits RO Liberal Active Duty

WASHINGTON—The military incentive bill now before Congress would permit the services to enter into more liberal and specific active duty contracts with reserve officers for periods up to 18 years.

The new Defense legislation has been divided into two bills. One portion carrying the basic pay proposals is expected to be introduced in the House of Representatives by the House Armed Services Subcommittee headed by Rep. Paul A. Kilroy (D-Texas). The other, term retention provisions (H R 1077) for other than regular officers, will be considered first by the subcommittee of Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.).

Under the retention measure, the service secretaries would be authorized to contract with reservists, after two years' service, for any length of time beyond two years and up to 20-year retirement to fill needs for officers. The original Cordier Committee report made similar recommendations for these contracts would stipulate that an officer would be released or retained, without his consent, for a lesser or longer period than the agreement in only 1) because of force reductions as determined by a board of officers; and 2) in event of war or a national emergency.

A reserve officer would be eligible for higher term retention payments, which if the president bill passed would provide a lump sum equal to two months base pay for each year served beyond two years up to a maximum of 24 months pay, if: 1) he completes the prescribed four of duty; 2) is involuntarily released before expiration of his contract; or 3) a war or national emergency occurs before he completes the time specified in the agreement.

This retention plan originally was introduced in the earlier session of the 85th Congress but will be heard and considered with the later legislation.

Circumstances under which a reservist would be ineligible for term retention pay are: 1) release for appointment to a regular commission; 2) disciplinary dismissal; or 3) eligibility for retirement under any provision of law, or for severance pay for physical disability.

In computing term retention payments, an officer's years of broad, long term agreements. The contracts would be calculated at twice the rate of base pay he would be drawing at termination of his last contract.

Service credited under the term retention provision, however, would not be considered for readjustment pay, although this time would be counted to determine years of continuous active duty for eligibility for such assistance.

A savings clause in the new bill, nevertheless, protects the rights and benefits accruing to any individual under contracts made prior to enactment of the legislation.

At the same time, a proposed amendment to existing law would require that base pay for all officers be figured on the basis of time in grade rather than on cumulative years of service which would still be in computing retirement.

Other problems he mentioned are that many teachers have limited backgrounds in science and science facilities in secondary schools are meager.

Advanced Science Need

Discussing the effect of high school science on science achievement in college, he pointed out that "students with no science in high school except limited introductory courses do as well in college science as those who took advanced science courses in high school."

"This shows we need additional data for a changed program," Dr. Harris stressed.

For Crash Program

Dr. Harris Cautions Against Cut In Emphasis on Social Science

Cautions against too much emphasis on science in the field are not as great as we have been led to believe. Dr. Fred E. Harris, dean of Baldwin-Wallace College in Cleveland, Ohio, spoke on "Problems Facing Education Today" at the January meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association.

He identified the basic struggle in education as one between the liberal arts group and the basic public education group.

Commenting on current statements such as "We are the greatest nation in the world" up until yesterday," the speaker noted that "Spunk focused some of the criticism of education that has been building up over the past years."

Strange Mixture

"The program of criticism is a strange mixture of high professional purpose and crackpot fanaticism," he warned.

"Much of the additional time devoted to science in public social studies, not from such subjects as reading, spelling and arithmetic."

Other problems he mentioned are that many teachers have limited backgrounds in science and science facilities in secondary schools are meager.

Advanced Science Need

Discussing the effect of high school science on science achievement in college, he pointed out that "students with no science in high school except limited introductory courses do as well in college science as those who took advanced science courses in high school."

"This shows we need additional data for a changed program," Dr. Harris stressed.

"Russian achievements in science except in a narrow field are not as great as we have been led to believe. We have been listening to propaganda as well as basic facts he added.

He stated that many of our present national mistakes have been in the area of social science — statesmanship, economics and even our own Crash Program dangers.

"Nationwide, a crash program in any direction will probably throw us off. A crash program in science would create an antiscience reaction in 30 or 40 years," Dr. Harris said.

He urged parents to be inordinate, read with concern and be taken by propaganda in asking for curriculum change.

"Having starved education for so many years, first head it to death before it recovers," he pleaded.

In the Fort Benning Child-Schools science is taught beginning with the first grade. "It is very definitely instruction," the noted educator added.

Lausit Post Schools

"You have selected a good series; it should add to your program," he said of the post school's purchase of new science books for grades one through eight.

Lab Tests Firefighter Paper Suit

WASHINGTON (AP)—An alumined paper suit for fire fighters was put through large-scale tests recently in California forests by the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, the Army has announced.

First reports on the tests, set up by the Fort Belvoir, Va., laboratories to evaluate fire fighting equipment for troop use, indicate that men wearing the suit over duty uniforms were able to stand within two feet of a forest fire for two to three minutes without discomfort, although the heat was so intense that examination of portions of helmet liners were blistered.

The Army described the outfit as an expendable suit made of flame retardant treated aluminized kraft paper.

The suit consists of a parka with hood, a face mask, a pair of leg sleeves and a pair of mittens.

In tests of emergency water supply system, soldiers experienced difficulty in fighting blazes to couple 1,000 feet of pipe in three and a quarter minute and the hose was not successfully by a helicopter flying at tree-top level.

The tests, held with troops from Fort Lewis, Wash., were conducted in the Shasta-Trinity Alps in northern California.

Sergeant Chose Unknown Soldier Of WWI From 4 Gray Caskets

The choosing of America's Unknown Soldier of WWI was begun in October 1921, when the War Department directed that one unknown war victim be removed from each of four American military cemeteries in France.

Officers were sent to the cemeteries under sealed orders, which contained the registration numbers of the graves to be opened. The numbers had been chosen at random.

The remains were removed from the cemeteries, each victim was placed in a steel gray casket, and all records were destroyed.

The caskets were taken to the French city of Châlons-sur-Marne, where they were displayed in a small room in the city hall.

Thousands of Frenchmen came to view the caskets, which represented the four major fronts of the war. The cemeteries from which the bodies had been taken were Roubaix for the dead of the Argonne Forest; Bony for the victims of the Battle of the Somme; Thioucourt in the Meuse and Moselle area; and Belleau Woods.

On Oct. 21, 1921, Sgt. Edward F. Younger, a member of the US Army of Occupation, selected one casket to represent all the unknown American dead of the war.

He walked three times around the four caskets, then placed a bouquet of flowers on one to indicate his choice.

On Nov. 8, the casket was taken to Washington on the Presidential yacht Mayflower and was saluted by cannon along the Potomac River.

A cavalry regiment met the yacht and escorted the casket to the Capitol building. There the casket was placed on a memorial platform previously used only for the bodies of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. The body lay in state Nov. 10.

The Unknown Soldier's travels ended the next day, as the casket was taken to Arlington National Cemetery with pomp and ceremony seldom seen in this country.

Guns from Ft. Myer, Va., began sounding at 8:30 in the morning and continued past Harding, General of the Armies Court. The procession to the John J. Pershing and members of the cemetery included President of the Cabinet and Supreme Court Justices.

At the cemetery, President Harding planned on the casket and the Distinguished Servant rest.

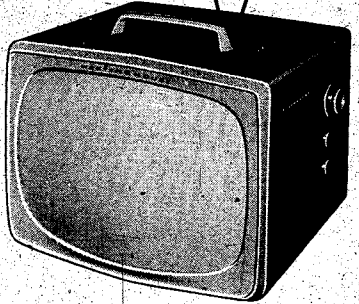

The nation's highest honors, the Ice Cross, Congressional Medal of Honor, The Unknown Soldier and the Distinguished Servant rest.

29th Begins Competitive Firing Plan

Members of the 29th Infantry are sharpening their shooting eyes in a competitive marksmanship program initiated by the unit's Plans and Training Section.

Each company or battery has formed a rifle team consisting of six riflemen, one alternate and a team captain. Four riflemen, an alternate and a team captain will comprise the pistol age-grade.

The best qualified marksmen as determined by competition will be selected to participate in the battle group rifle and pistol teams.

The new program will provide advanced marksmanship training for the individuals as well as supplying a reservoir of qualified instructors and coaches for small arms marksmanship training.

Teams from the First Battle Group will engage in a match the latter part of February.

The high team in the rifle division will receive a rotating award. The high individual shooter and members of the winning team also will be recipients of awards. This program for recognition and high performance will be used in the pistol shooting.

Olympic Fencer Instructs Art Of Swords at Club in Columbus

Shouts of "engarde" and "lechte" ring out each evening from the Armed Forces YMCA as the art of fencing is being learned and applied by the members of the "Columbus d'Esgrime" or "House of Fencing." Headed by Lt. Herman P. Velasco Jr., a group of experienced and novice fencers gather each Thursday evening to learn the use of the foil, saber, and epee.

Lt. Velasco is assigned to the 23rd Company, Second Infantry Battalion, The School Brigade, as executive officer. His interest in fencing was aroused as a student at Nicholas Senior High School, Chicago, Ill., in 1944. At school, Velasco earned three varsity letters, and was a member of the Illinois state championship fencing team in 1950, '51, and '52. He was an individual Chicago champion in 1952, and won the Illinois championship in 1951 and 1952.

NCAA Champ
Velasco entered the University of Illinois where he studied under Maxwell Garret, fencing coach and trainer of several All-American varsity fencers of Illinois. Under Garret, Velasco earned three varsity letters, the individual Big Ten Championship in 1954 and 1955, and the individual NCAA championship in 1955. He also earned All-American honors in 1954, '55, and '56, a berth on the NCAA championship team in 1956, and selection as the University of Illinois' most valuable athlete in 1954 and 1956.

In 1956 Velasco was the individual Midwest champion, a finalist in the U.S. national championships, and selected to the U.S. Olympic squad. He participated on the U.S. Olympic squad in Australia, and was ranked among the top 10 fencers in the country by the Amateur Fencing League of America.

Memorable Match
Velasco's most memorable fencing match was in the NCAA championships held at East Lansing, Mich., in 1955. "I was pitted against the Naval Academy's top fencer, Johann Gonzalez, and before I found myself, I was outpointed 4 and 1. I finally found his weakness and went on to win 5 and 4. Two later victories in that tournament gave me the NCAA individual championship."

The sport of fencing, whose forerunner was the offensive fatal duel of the 18th and 19th centuries, originated in the 19th century. Today's weapons, once the practice substitutes for the lethal dueling sword, are the foil, saber, and the epee. The foil is a lightweight flexible weapon with which you must score a point hit in an area consisting of the opponent's torso, side or back. Somewhat heavier than the foil is the sabre with its pointed and bladed blade. Any strike with the point or blade on the opponent's body from the waist up is a valid hit. Heavier than either the foil or sabre, the epee is scored by striking the opponent at any spot on his body with the point of the weapon.

The local club, "Columbus d'Esgrime" is instructed by Velasco and Anthony Mann, Columbus, who is co-founder and 1949 Eastern College champion. 2nd Lt. Hans Fischer, a one-time member of the University of Illinois' championship team, and presently assigned to the 568th Engineer Company, also acts as club members purchase their own equipment under the direction of Velasco.

Pistolers Defend '57 National Title

The Army Pistol Team will defend its National Title at Fort Benning Feb. 6-8.

The National Indoor Pistol Championships opened today at Fort Benning and will continue through Feb. 9.

Last year at Laurel, Md., the Army "Blue" team established a new National Indoor record in gaining their championship when they scored a 1186 score. The four-man team consisted of Lt. Col. William A. Hancock, Col. Art Army Pistol Team, 1st Lt. David Carter, 1st Lt. David C. Miller, and Sgt. Huel L. Bender. Major Russell, of the three-stage indoor course, scored the highest score on the team at the Fort Benning Sectional match this year. Col. Hancock scored the prominent shooter to join the team for the National Mid-winter championships at Jacksonville, Fla.

Athletes Sought For Pentathlon

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga.—A need for qualified athletes for the U.S. Modern Pentathlon Team was revealed this week by Major John W. Russell, of the U.S. Army Pentathlon Team.

Modern Pentathlon, by tradition, is the military event of the Olympic Games. It is a combination of five events which present a grueling test of a man's athletic ability. The events are riding, shooting, fencing, swimming, and running. Major Russell pointed out that athletes who are well qualified in the latter two events can, with good instruction and a reasonable amount of time, become proficient in the rest.

The usual manner for an athlete to be named to the team is based on his record in the triathlon event (running, swimming, and shooting) held at Fort Benning.

Major Russell pointed out that athletes who are well qualified in the latter two events can, with good instruction and a reasonable amount of time, become proficient in the rest.

Over 28 Points a Game

Porter Leads League In Scoring for 54th

A top candidate for the season's outstanding player in the Infantry Center Basketball League is Pfc Russ Porter, star of the Fort Benning team. Porter led the league in total points scored (42) and in average points per game (28.1).

He also broke the Bryant Wells Field House record for the most points scored by an individual in league play with 55 points against The School Brigade Jan. 27.

Standing only five feet, 10 inches, Russ is proof that lowering height does not lower the importance of skill in basketball. Porter's major accomplishment is his ability to spend a long, arcing jump shot whistling through the cords with amazing consistency. Equally important, however, is the mastery he shows in all phases of the game. He is a tricky ball handler who can outmaneuver an opponent with a slight faking movement of hand and body. Deceptively, he is always alert.

Russ played for Pikesville High School and later for Pikesville College, Md.

Brown Leads Pro League In Yardage

NEW YORK (APFS)—Official National Football League statistics show Jim Brown, rookie sensation of the Cleveland Browns, as the 1957 ball carrying champion with a record of 942 yards on 202 attempts, an average of 4.7 yards.

Detailing champion Rick Cessars, Bears' powerhouse who played his service football at Fort Jackson, S.C., finished in the runnerup spot with 700 yards on 204 attempts.

Enroute to his title, Brown established a new league record that of most yards gained in one game.

The former Syracuse four-year athlete, against Los Angeles last Nov. 24, crunched out 327 yards in 31 attempts to eclipse the previous record of 223 yards set by Los Angeles' Tom White in 1956.

Brown, first draft choice of Cleveland for the past season, is only the eighth driver since 1924 to win the championship in the rookie year. The last was Alan Ameche if the Baltimore Colts, two years ago.

Benning Marksmen Train 28 Air Force Personnel

Twenty-eight Air Force personnel from Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex., are at Fort Benning for a two-week course of intensive advanced marksmanship training under the direction of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit. Training began Jan. 27.

The group consists of seven sergeants and 21 airmen who are divided into three groups of three. The instructor, Lt. Herman P. Velasco, said that "Air men in the future may be called upon to defend installations in the event of a 'brush fire' in the world. We want our airmen to be ready to defend our country."

The Air Force marksmen will return to Lackland upon completion of the course and form the nucleus of an instructor team to be maintained after the Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning. They will train a two-week course of intensive advanced marksmanship training under the direction of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

The Air Force group is headed by Col. Tom Kelly, commander of the Air Force Marksmanship Training Center at Lackland. He said that "Air men in the future may be called upon to defend installations in the event of a 'brush fire' in the world. We want our airmen to be ready to defend our country."

The Air Force marksmen will return to Lackland upon completion of the course and form the nucleus of an instructor team to be maintained after the Advanced Marksmanship Unit at Fort Benning. Milton Praises Post For Range Program

Fort Benning personnel have received a letter from Hugh M. Milton, Lt. assistant secretary of the Army for manpower, commending them for opening Infantry Center ranges to civilians.

"As president of the National Board for the promotion of rifle practice, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the Army commanders and range personnel at all Army posts, camps and stations for their generous cooperation in allowing civilian marksmen the privilege of using military ranges when they are not being used for training.

"I am convinced that such cooperation will intensify the interest and tremendous growth of civilian marksmanship activities. In addition, the director of civilian marksmanship has informed me that many favorable unsolicited comments have been received from civilians regarding the instructor assistance made available at Army ranges throughout the country.

"On behalf of the members of the National Board and the director of civilian marksmanship, I wish to commend you, your staff and your subordinate for the range assistance to civilian organizations. Such cooperation reflects great credit on our military service and creates excellent military-civilian relationships."

Fort Benning probably has more ranges than any other post in the country. There are 10 rifle ranges, all of which are open to the public free of charge when not being used by the military. There are seven 30 caliber ranges, 11.75 caliber range, six of the .30 caliber ranges are standard year-round ranges, and the seven official Olympic metric measurements.

In addition to these ranges:

1956 All-American Went to School Brigade

BY THOMAS MALORY
A baseball All-American, who traveled to the Far East last summer on a good will tour with the University of Alabama baseball team, is now a member of Basic Infantry Officer Course No. 2, B Co and Lt. Frank H. Roland, assigned to the 23rd Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Lt. Roland had the opportunity of being a member of the first college baseball team to tour the Far East when he was a senior at the University of Alabama last spring. The team played a 30-game schedule in such areas as Hawaii, Minnesota, and Korea. Lt. Roland stated that most of their competition was against service teams although in a few instances the squad met local teams.

He chose baseball as his college sport although he started in both baseball and basketball at Central High School, Memphis, Tenn. Besides winning three letters in baseball, Lt. Roland was picked on the All-American High School basketball squad his last two years. In 1953, however, Roland entered the University of Alabama on a baseball scholarship.

Lt. Roland compiled the amazing record of 21 wins against only a single loss while pitching for four years at his alma mater. He was chosen All-Southeastern Conference in 1956 and 1957, and gained All-American honors in 1956. That he won 12 games without being defeated, Lt. Roland stated that his best game was in the senior year against Mississippi State for the Western Division of the Conference. "I had a no hit Championship," he had a no hit Championship.

Proposed Pay Plan Would Favor Career Servicemen

BY M-SCGT. HERR SCOTT (AFPS WASHINGTON Correspondent)

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The proposed new military pay structure linked to the proficiency plan, in addition to bringing raises to most Armed Forces members, would spur promotions in all skills, technical and otherwise.

All career servicemen eventually will benefit from the Defense Department's proposal, presented to Congress on Jan. 14, to reward achievement that is pay people for the job they're doing—through an accompanying management plan, assuring advancement to higher grades.

The original Corlinder Committee pay study was begun a year ago to find a practical means of giving men in highly technical skills equal compensation to those in the services without upsetting military grades. For the past several years, promotions in the adequately staffed leadership and combat military occupational specialties were frozen or practically so, in order to make new stripes available in critically needed skills. This is the only retention alternative under current law.

Under the legislation, due for retirement, would be considered for retention.

committee hearings about Feb. 1, 93.9 per cent of the officers on active duty and 66.6 per cent in enlisted grades would get immediate pay hikes if the measure is passed by Congress and signed into law by the President.

According to estimates of those who drafted the bill, 47.2 per cent of these officers would get six per cent raises calculated on present base pay while 46.6 per cent would receive higher amounts.

The equitable solution to this problem, worked out by the committee to make promotion opportunities for everyone, is the proficiency plan where combat and leadership skills will have a better chance for additional stripes and technical personnel will be rewarded with pay grade advances.

Reward Critical Men Although all military specialties will be eligible for promotion, pay advances primarily will be awarded to actual areas where shortages and critical needs exist.

Just as increases above six per cent in officer grades would be phased in over a four-year period, so would the maximum amount—set to be established of proficiency advances and E-8 and E-9 promotions. All new pay rates attained during the phase-in, however, would be considered for retention.

Longevity would not be entirely discarded but is limited, nevertheless, to progressive pay grade steps, adjusted according to time in grade while awaiting advancement to the next level.

The index shows that consumer prices, compiled from 10 metropolitan areas in the U.S. from March, 1945, to April, 1957, climbed percentage-wise as follows: food, 6.4; clothing, 3.3; housing, 5.1; rents, 4.2; transportation, 5.8; medical care, .9; personal care, 10.0; recreation, 5.6; and other, 5.6. In an overall index of 5.3 per cent.

The majority of the necessities listed, however, are further advanced than most servicemen meet.

Route Bill Must Follow Through House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Here is the route the new Defense Department pay legislation must follow across Capitol Hill to become law.

Bill introduced in Congress on Jan. 14 by chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Proposal is referred to a House Armed Services subcommittee for study and initial hearings on the measure.

Subcommittee reports findings to full Armed Services Committee.

House Armed Services Committee reports favorably with any recommendations for amendment to House of Representatives.

If passed on the floor of the House, bill is sent to Senate for consideration by Senate Armed Services Committee. Again favorably reported out of committee, either as submitted by House or amended, legislation is sent to Senate floor for a vote.

When passed by Senate, bill is sent to White House for President's signature.

On signing by President, new pay bill would become effective on one of two dates. First increase could be paid either at beginning of next fiscal year (July 1, 1958), or first month after the legislation is law.

ing draft obligations and consequently do not materially affect their living standards. But they do, come in for the higher rates and other advantages upon extending service beyond two years or recall to active duty for over 30 days.

Similarly, presently retired members are not included in the new DOD pay proposals—established on the principle of higher compensation for a greater contribution to maintain quality forces—since this plan has no application to those leaving the service prior to enactment of the system.

Benning Sees Rhumba King

Don Romero, brother of film legend's Caesar Romero, appeared in person with Faye Steege at the Main Theater at Fort Benning last night.

Acclaimed as rhumba king, Don Romero won his title in 1952 in Cuba when he defeated over 700 contestants for the rhumba crown. He has appeared on the movie screen in "Next to Closing", "Jocko", "The Sun is Low", "White Goddess", and was Ann Struedan's dancing partner in "Tori Zone".

The most unique twist of Don's performance was a complicated bit of foot-work called the "Stair Dance" which has caused him to lose as much as five pounds a performance.

Faye Steege, an Ohio beauty, is an accomplished performer in her own right, and complemented Don's dancing with sparkling and clever footwork, as well as exhibiting some of the finer attributes of feminine pickritude.

SECURITY A husband and wife wrote his wife that he liked it there because he didn't have to get up in the middle of the night, see if the door was locked.

33 of Co. C Leave For Florida Swamps

Company C

Thirty-three of Company C's officers left Saturday morning for the Florida swamps as a part of a group going down to do battle with some of the Army's finest. They will be the first of men taking "Jungle Combat Training," one of the phases one must pass to become a Ranger.

Company C's party last Friday night turned out to be a successful one. The troops enjoyed steak dinners with all the trimmings, pizza, and music supplied by a juke box. Everybody enjoyed themselves to the fullest. Credits to Capt. Charles Hauschberger and Lt. William J. Harrell for the planning and execution of a very successful party. Sgt. Pruitt Webb and his mess personnel deserve a pat on the back for preparing the fine feast.

Sgt. James P. Amaro of the company's platoon is the father of an 8-pound baby boy.

The 14th Infantry Company Sp2 Grady Hamm has recovered the pool tables in the dayroom in preparation for the forthcoming company basketball tournament. Sgt. Edward Gibson, 1st Sgt. and Sgt. Ernest Reed will defend their self-claimed championship while Lt. John D. Stein and Wayne Howard, the great top ace, will defend their honor.

Capt. James J. Sullivan is very proud of his company basketball team which tied for first place in the 14th Infantry company level basketball league. The team drew a bye in the playoff and will meet the winner of the game between Company A and Company D.

Army Gets Solid Fuel

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Army has been given top priority authority to develop a solid-propellant ballistic missile to replace the liquid-fueled Redstone.

Secretary of Defense Neil A. McElroy, in giving the Army a "Green light" for the weapon, said the 200-mile-range Redstone surface-to-surface artillery missile is "mobile, field worthy and accurate."

Recent advances, however, in solid propellant technology resulting in a great degree from the Army's Sergeant and the Navy's Polaris IRBM programs make it possible to start at once on the new missile, he said.

Yet unnamed, the Army missile will be smaller, lighter and even more mobile than the 30-foot Redstone.

The Sergeant is one of the Army's newest research and development projects. A ballistic guided missile, the weapon will be successor to the four-year-old 75-mile-range Corporal, with improvements in power, range and accuracy. It will be invulnerable to electronic countermeasures.

Wanta Lose Weight, Try This Menu

I-AWAUKUNI, Jappa (AFPS)—When the Army came out with an official diet for overweight soldiers, some 1,000 soldiers here were not left in the dust.

Their unofficial menu, guaranteed to produce results within 10 days, is called the ultra-low calorie diet.

Monday calls for: Breakfast, weak tea; Lunch, one bullion cube in one-half of diluted water; Dinner, one pigeon thigh (roasted) followed by a three ounce portion of prune juice.

Tuesday: Breakfast, crumbs scraped from one piece of burned toast; Lunch, one doughnut hole without sugar and one glass of dehydrated water; Dinner two canary drumsticks without dressing.

Must Keep Public, Troops Informed

Information Has Unprecedented Importance in Army, Says Brucker

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article by Army Secretary of the Army, Sec. Sec. Wilber M. Brucker, relating important and public information to today's Army, appeared in the Jan. 23 issue of Army Navy Air Force Journal.

BY WILBER M. BRUCKER
Secretary of the Army
The field of Army information—troop information—has unprecedented importance today in the conduct of our military affairs, and the information officer as a skillful leader in this field is an indispensable member of the command staff.

Public information is an essential factor of success. Information is inseparable from the staff. It would be futile to try to develop and maintain an effective public information program without well-informed military personnel to support it. The soldier represents the Army as he understands it. He interprets Army actions and policies as they are understood by him, and unless he is properly oriented and kept informed, he can be misled, protesting against policies and programs which he does not understand. Community relations are extremely important to the Army. They constitute a banner under which we may determine our standing among the American people. It is important that the men and women of the Army, and their families, too, become accepted neighbors in local communities, and that they be acknowledged as contributors to the betterment and progress of community life. The prestige of the Army can be immeasurably enhanced when Army people are recognized for their

Fuel Retains Properties Under Ice

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Army scientists have discovered that even gasoline improves when stored in this carved out of ice in the frigid U. S. Army Engineers have driven into the Arctic region. The fuel, which evaporates rapidly and takes on other impurities when stored in the conditions, can be stored in definitely in the pits under the ice. Scientists employed by the Snow, Ice and Permafrost Research Establishment, Wilkes, Ill., a Corps of Engineers laboratory, have found that the fuel retains all of its properties and is improved after an extended storage period. The tunnel, cut through the Arctic ice by the U. S. Army Engineer Arctic Task Force, reached the 170 foot depth last fall. The engineers and scientists attached to the unit have suspended the fuel in the pits since spring. The Task Force has returned to its winter headquarters at Fort Belvoir, Va.

If Outnumbered, Just Surrender
Men, there are times when you are outnumbered isn't as bad as you might think. Or is it?
Today there are two million more women than men over 14 years of age in the US. At the turn of the century men had the upper hand (so to speak) in the US. They were the dominant sex, and they were gaining steadily ever since.

Pat Boone's 'April Love' Goes Over Two Million Mark in Sales

(AFPS Weekly Feature) The Pat Boone recording of "April Love" has passed the two million mark in sales, the biggest seller since "White Christmas" by Bing Crosby. That perennial is nearing the ten million mark in sales. In this week's list of the nation's top ten juke box tunes, as published by "Cashbox Magazine," the first two, "At the Hop" (Danny and Juniors) and "Raunchy" (Bill Justis-Ernie Freeman), held their respective places from last week. Others in order, were: "Great Balls of Fire" (Jerry Lee Lewis); "Peggy Sue" (Buddy Holly); "The Strull" (Diamonds); "April Love" (Pat Boone); "Good Up" (Ricky Nelson); "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine" (Dinmie Rodgers); "You Send Me" (Sam Cooke); and "La Dee Dah" (Billy Ford's "Lunardine").

Donna Doak Barracks to Elect Officers Feb. 7

Friends, it seems an earth shaking problem is at hand, namely who will be the new officers of Brat Barracks. A new president, vice president, secretary, property chairman, sergeant-at-arms, and two program chairmen will be elected Feb. 7, at Brat Barracks. Now then, the problem arises here, it's fine to want your friend in office, but are they capable? Think the matter over seriously before you decide who to vote for. The success or failure of Brat Barracks depends on the people you elect as your leaders. There is a rumor that Brat Barracks may have a Valentine dance. We hope so. Don't we?

A new Girl Scout camp is being planned for this summer, which is to be located at the junction of Utopia and Pine Knot Creek. Work on the camp will start soon. However a name has not yet been chosen. You probably remember all that preaching I was doing a few weeks ago about the Youth Activities Club membership drive. Most everyone seems to be responding to the call very well, according to some reports I've heard. Those of you haven't as yet done anything about joining the club, get on the ball. YAC needs every last one of you. In case you're new here, or if you haven't read my column before, get full information on the Youth Activities Club, contact the office 2618, or stop by the office in building 1000 on Ballize Ave. You'll find the people there most willing to answer any

Units Report 100% YAC Membership

Two units have reported 100 per cent participation in Fort Benning's annual membership drive for the Youth Activities Club, which is conducted annually during February.

They are the 15th Transportation Company and the Infantry School's Weapons Department. The 15th Company has contributed 68 honorary memberships. The Weapons Department had four active family memberships and 25 honorary members.

Since the drive is in its second week other units on the post also will be turning in such favorable reports, Col. Howard W. Greer, president of YAC, pointed out.

The sincere and serious interest in the welfare of children at Fort Benning is strongly indicated and supported through these honorary and active memberships, Col. Greer stated.

Wholesome Program Active membership is open to all families assigned to Fort Benning. Honorary membership is open to other Fort Benning personnel who wish to assist in keeping the program alive.

The Youth Activities Club sponsors and supports all children's recreational activities including a complete athletic program for boys and girls, Boy and Girl Scouts, a teen-age club and other similarly supervised and organized programs.

A Youth Activity Club patch has been designed with the Infantry insignia to be given to children of active members, officials stated.

Delegates Arrive Today For Meet

Fifty-seven delegates and staff members of the Inter-American Defense Board, mutual security planning organization of the Latin American Republics, will arrive at Fort Benning today for an intensive orientation on the U.S. Army's Pentomic "new look" in tactics, doctrine and organization.

Defense Board members will attend from Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Mexico, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and the U. S.

Honor guard ceremonies will welcome the visitors to Lawson Army Air Field at 4 p.m. After meeting with the 10 Latin American students attending the Infantry School, the Defense Board will attend an official reception and banquet in the Main Officers' Mess.

On the visitors' schedule tomorrow are talks by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell and Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Luteson, commander and assistant commander of the Infantry School, and briefings on the school's operations and the reorganization of the Infantry division.

They also will view demonstrations of a rifle company helicopterborne assault, artillery supporting fires and a reinforced rifle company in night defense.

Gen. Luteson, former commander of the U. S. Marine Corps, will serve as chairman of the meeting. Vice-chairman of the Defense Board is Air Force Major Gen. Almaro Vierra Mascareñas of Brazil.

Army representatives of the allied countries will include: Gen. Jose A. Cordese of Uruguay; Major Gen. Armando

Post to Open 106 Capehart Units Feb. 17

One hundred and six units of Capehart family housing at Fort Benning will be opened for occupancy Feb. 17, Infantry Center officials announced.

The buildings are the first increment in a 1,600-unit Capehart housing unit program at the post.

The 50 officer units in 23 duplexes and 56 sets for enlisted personnel in four-apartment structures may be seen beginning today by personnel eligible for assignment to them.

A map showing the location of the newly-completed buildings is posted in the Family Quarters Office of the Infantry Center, Building Division, Building No. 5, opposite the Main Catholic Chapel. Families may choose the buildings they wish to occupy and these requests will be honored on the basis of rank and date of rank, complete by Nov. 30, 1958.

Temporary telephone service is planned for each increment of Capehart housing until regular facilities are installed.

A fire telephone installed by the Infantry Center's Signal Section and a public pay telephone installed by the Bell Telephone Company have been placed in a centralized location for both the officer and enlisted housing areas.

Groups of approximately 50 units are completed, additional fire and pay phones will be installed.

Rank and Date of Rank CG Restates Policy On Family Quarters

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, has recently restated the policy of assignment of family-type government quarters at Fort Benning.

The basic policy provides that personnel permanently assigned and present for duty are eligible for assignment to government quarters on a basis of rank and date of rank. Exceptions to the basic policy warranted by emergency or exceptional circumstances may be submitted in writing for approval by Infantry Center headquarters.

Capehart Units It is anticipated that the acquisition of 1,000 Capehart units on the post will alleviate to a marked degree the critical housing shortage in the Fort Benning area.

Permanent personnel are eligible for Capehart housing if they reside in off-post housing, in Battle Park Homes or in the Infantry Center's own quarters on a basis of rank and date of rank. Qualified personnel have been advised to make application at the Building Division in Building No. 5, opposite the Family Quarters Office.

Think You're Getting honor in one of the windows of the chapel at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., along with other militant saints including St. Bartholomew, patron saint of artillery. St. Maurice was a foot soldier of the Roman Army and leader of the Theban Legion, which was massacred at Agaunum about the year 307. He is depicted with a spear and a cross on his breast, bearing a standard and a palm.

The Theban Legion numbered more than 6,000 soldiers. They marched from the east to Gaul and proved their loyalty to their God, according to the legend. They were encamped near the Lake of Geneva under the Emperor Maximian when he ordered them to turn their backs against the Christian population.

The Christian soldiers refused to suppress a revolt of the Bagaudes in Gaul.

St. Maurice arranged his soldiers to preserve and follow their comrades to heaven. This words have since become the following prayer of the foot soldier, "Know, O Emperor, that we are your soldiers, but we are servants also of the true God. In all things lawful we will most readily obey but we cannot stain our hands in this innocent blood. We have seen our comrades slain, and we rejoice at their honor. We have arms, but we resist not, for we had rather die without shame than live by sin."

As the massacre began, the story states, these generous soldiers flung down their arms, offered their necks to the sword and suffered themselves to be butchered in silence. Because of his outstanding devotion to country, duty and God, St. Maurice has been named patron of the Infantry. Father Fitzpatrick stated. He is presented as a knight in full armor, a cross on his breast, bearing a standard and a palm.

Following Father Fitzpatrick's talk, cards with the history and prayers of St. Maurice were presented to the group by Col. Corley.

Quarters

Thank You for Considering Main Catholic Chapel. To provide a large number of moves between post quarters, present occupants of Custer and Upstal Terrace will not be permitted to move to Capehart housing or to change quarters in Custer or Upstal Terrace except as an exception to present policy.

Quarters Classified. Quarters have been classified: single units in Custer Terrace and apartments in Custer or Upstal Terrace, all officer and warrant officer grades; Capehart duplexes, all officer grades, and Capehart apartments, enlisted personnel. The Opposite movement of the Third and Tenth Infantry Divisions presents an additional housing problem since the post is required to provide for the incoming Tenth Infantry quarters in the number and type now occupied by Third Infantry personnel. This sometimes holding certain quarters vacant for a short period of time pending the arrival of Tenth Infantry occupants.

The Tenth Division has the responsibility to assign officers and non-commissioned officers to the initial allocation of quarters. Thereafter, it is anticipated that the Infantry Center Billing Division will assign all quarters to permanent quarters from one master quarters waiting list.

Cathy Made U. S. Citizen, WAC Officer

From German National to American in an honorary of being in the U. S. Army in them four hours. Army in unusual record for anyone but more meaning for a little four-year-old girl.

Cathy Ann Mason, who celebrated her fourth birthday Jan. 23, was born in Würzburg, Germany, and four months later was adopted by McGet and Mrs. Torrey Mason. At that time McGet Mason was stationed at Ansbach, Germany, with the First Infantry Division.

Last week Cathy Ann became an American citizen. She was ready for the occasion in all respects - smiling, excited, and well dressed in a tiny WAC uniform provided for the occasion by good friends in the Third Army WAC Procurement Division.

Cathy Ann is remarkably smart for a young lady her age. On the way to the naturalization ceremony she said, "Oh, I'm so excited. Today I'm going to be an American citizen." She was also prepared, after making her declaration, to recite the Pledge of Allegiance, although she was not required to do so because of her age.

Along with others in the large group she became a citizen.

McGet Mason is the Major Sergeant for the Third Army Recruiting District. He and Mrs. Mason have another daughter, Mary Elizabeth, 10, whom they adopted in August, Ga., in 1948.

Army to Assign Two-Year EM Directly Abroad

WASHINGTON (A.F.P.S.) - Two-year Army enlisted personnel who are going to fill overseas quotas will be assigned directly from training in their home states to the Army has announced.

Before this enlisted men on two years of active duty many times were assigned to units in the United States after finishing training and then, after a short period of time, were ordered overseas.

The Army related that this involves "excessive movement of personnel and shorter overseas service, and consequently less available utilization in both areas."

It also will eliminate from overseas service those enlisted personnel on active duty for 18 months who are permanently assigned to units or activities in the U.S., except where service requirement dictates the contrary.

Every H-23 Raven helicopter in the Army was grounded after an aircraft inspector spotted something wrong in the H-23's at Ft. Riley, Kan. officials there reported recently.

The inspector, a sergeant first class, had noticed that tail section control cables were being damaged by pulleys that were too hard. He passed the word along. All copers of the type were grounded until softer pulleys were installed.

There are some obvious mistakes. First, the defect was spotted because the sergeant was alert.

Then, the situation was corrected because he took action. Other units were informed because he spoke up about the corrected report. Officials at Ft. Riley said that, if not for the sergeant's alertness, it probably would have taken the loss of a copper and crew to make the trouble known. (APFS)

Ideals Spelled Out

It's not a pleasant thought, I am sure. I will take about military organizations and if they will do the sometimes good to war. And laws of those who sometimes members are placed over me and I will take up by the country.

A prison camp is a place where discipline and teamwork must be maintained. The members are to survive. The Army says, in a study recently made public, that failure to do these things in a prison camp is a failure.

The Code of Conduct, to hardship, and even death, to members of the armed forces. An American in an enemy prison in the future will know what his buddies are doing. If I become a prisoner of war, I will keep faith with the American fighting men who have lived and died through no information or lack of part in their Code of Conduct.

Chaplain's Corner

By CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) HARRY G. CAMPBELL, JR.

The Duke's personal check-book here was found indisputable evidence of what Whittington had cared most about. There are many ways of making a character study of an acquaintance that are much more reliable than the usual ones. Some of these are quick and even superficial but we all afford them some place. We look for polished shoes, a well pressed suit. Sometimes we may inquire about an individual's hobbies and his interests. Perhaps an even more subtle way is to look over his books to see what he reads here and there to find his interests and his heroes.

The Judge Says...

Were you in the hospital this year? Were you sick in quarters for a long period of time? If so, you may be able to save some money on your Federal Income Tax.

Teamwork Cited For U.S. 'Moon'

BY PFC JACK KELESO, AUSA
AFPS Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—As the work of his head and hands spun around the earth, Dr. Werner von Braun, who put the first U. S. satellite into space, cited interservice cooperation in the achievement.

Dr. von Braun, chief of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, said shortly after the American moon had rocketed into the heavens that "teamwork" and "close cooperation" among the services had led to the feat.

Report Says Space Safe

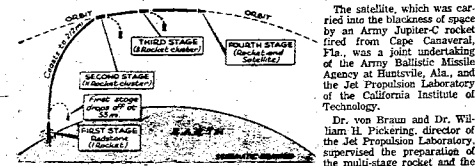

WASHINGTON (AP)—The forward section of the Explorer satellite was stripped with a coating of aluminum oxide, which is expected to keep temperatures in a range where the instruments inside will be protected.

The Explorer also is picking up information on the rate and density of meteor dust in space. A wire grid attached to the satellite is checking on the abrasive effect of this dust.

Geologists, through studying the path of the baby moon, hope to find some precise method of measuring the distances between continents. The geologists believe that continents drift a few feet each year, but until now there has been no method for establishing this as fact.

The satellite, which was carried into the blackness of space by an Army Jupiter-C rocket fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla., was a joint undertaking of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. von Braun and Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, supervised the preparation of the multi-stage rocket and the satellite. The project is part of the U. S. contribution to the International Geophysical Year.

Satellite to Reveal Space Facts to World Scientists

Department of Army this week released facts, figures and background material about how the first U. S. satellite was put into space and how Explorer sends valuable information back to earth. The release also tells types of information that the satellite is expected to reveal to U. S. scientists while it orbits the earth.

Following is information released by Department of Army:

On November 8, 1957, the Secretary of Defense directed the development of the Army to proceed with preparations for launching a scientific satellite by use of a modified Jupiter-C test vehicle. This program was to provide a second means to launch a satellite in support of the IGY studies.

Background

The Jupiter-C rocket was developed jointly by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Huntsville, Ala., commanded by Major Gen. J. B. Medaris, and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of California Institute of Technology, whose director is Dr. William H. Pickering. The rocket was developed in connection with the re-entry problem which arises when the nose cone of a ballistic missile leaves outer space and strikes the relatively thick earth atmosphere.

Sizes and Weights

The Jupiter-C rocket is approximately 70 feet long. The final stage, plus the pointed cylindrical satellite case containing the scientific instruments is 80 inches long and has a nominal diameter of six inches. Weight of the satellite proper — 15.15 pounds; of final stage — 12.67 pounds after burnout; total weight of satellite — 27.82 pounds. Payload instruments weigh about 11 pounds, exclusive of protecting steel cans, which weighs 7.5 pounds.

The satellite and final-stage rocket were designed to remain together and circle the earth as one unit. The satellite is not designed to be recovered.

Instrumentation

Instrumentation and telemetry in the satellite are designed to gather and transmit four types of information. These are: skin temperature (i.e., surface of the protective shield), internal temperature, cosmic dust erosion and cosmic ray data. The main part of the package is a cosmic radiation experiment, originally designed by Dr. James A. Van Allen of the State University of Iowa. The major element of this experiment is a geiger-muller counter.

The data gathered by the instruments are to be dispatched continuously by two transmitters.

The more powerful transmitter operates on a frequency of 108.00 megacycles, transmitting with a power of 80 milliwatts, or five hundredths of a watt. This signal can be readily received by amateur radio operators. It is expected that this transmitter, the more powerful one, will operate for a period of two to three weeks.

Second of the transmitters operates on 107.60 megacycles, with 10 milli-watts or one one-hundredth of a watt of power. Amateur radio operators probably will be unable to receive this signal. Lifetime of this transmitter is predicted at two to three months.

It is unlikely that the Army satellite will be visible to the naked eye, Army scientists predict. It will appear in its orbit about the brilliance of a fifth to sixth magnitude star, and a star of this brightness can hardly be seen without some magnification.

Launching Method

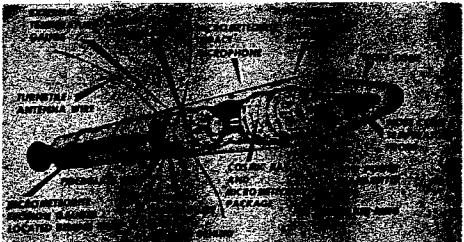

The first stage of the modified Jupiter-C is a liquid-propellant rocket. The entire length of the composite vehicle (all stages) is 823.3 inches. The main stage is 672.8 inches long and 80 inches in diameter. The high-speed assembly which is separated from the carrier vehicle, plus the final stage and orbiting satellite, is 180.5 inches in length.

During the ascent, the main power plant is expended; it separates and falls back to the earth. The upper stages shortly afterward reached the apex of the arc when the vehicle attains its maximum height, the high-speed element is activated.

The nose section of the main stage rocket, then completely detached from the upper stages, continues its normal trajectory to the earth's surface.

The first stage of the vehicle powers the payload (satellite) to the prescribed distance for the earth. All other stages of the rocket increase the speed for orbiting, but do not send the satellite to a greater height. The upper stages are spin-stabilized, in much the manner of a rifle ball, which the satellite somewhat resembles. This is done by electric motors mounted within the nose section of the main stage, the upper stages are solid-propellant systems.

Jupiter-C was developed jointly by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology.

30.8-Pound Explorer Beams Scientific Data To U. S. From Space

What Goes Up Must Come Down; But When Will Explorer Topple?

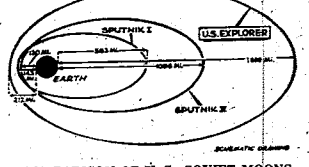

NEW YORK (AP)—Current horizontal data that it passes the atmosphere will slow it down even more. As the velocity lessens, the pull of gravity will take charge and the Explorer will come tumbling down.

How long it will be up is strictly a matter of conjecture at this time. Estimates run from months to years by some of the nation's leading scientists.

The Explorer loses energy to air particles and probably with meteor fragments.

As the Explorer loses energy it will gradually orbit closer to earth, but moves so the earth and the denseness of the atmosphere will slow it down even more. As the velocity lessens, the pull of gravity will take charge and the Explorer will come tumbling down.

How long it will be up is strictly a matter of conjecture at this time. Estimates run from months to years by some of the nation's leading scientists.

29 Civilian Employees Recognized For Curtailing QM Laundry Fire

Twenty-nine civilian employees at Fort Benning have been presented letters of appreciation for alert and quick action in preventing an electrical fire in the Quartermaster Laundry. The Jan. 22 fire occurred in a laundry roller. It had spread it would have caused destruction of the plant and loss of thousands of dollars to the government, according to officials.

In recognition of their action the employees were presented letters of appreciation signed by Col. O. Z. Tyler Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff. The letters cited in part: "I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to you, the civilian personnel of the Quartermaster Laundry whose efforts were so successful in containing the fire which occurred in the laundry on the morning of Jan. 22, 1958.

The alert and positive individual action with the equipment available to check the fire until the Fire Department arrived was largely responsible for preventing what could have meant complete destruction of the plant and loss of thousands of dollars to the government."

HERCULES ARGUMENTS Ajax at Nike Sites WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army's Nike-Hercules missile, the craft missile, which can carry an atomic warhead, will augment the Nike-Ajax at sites around New York, Washington, Baltimore, Chicago and Philadelphia next June. The Army has announced that construction at these first four Nike-protected areas is the beginning of a nation-wide program to use the Hercules as well as the Ajax. Original designs of the Ajax sites, the Army said, were made with an eye to the future accommodation of advanced members of the Nike family of missiles into the system with a maximum degree of economy.

ROTC Cadets Meet Top NCOs Early in Their College Training

LOUDONVILLE, N. Y. — Regular Army officers are now obtained from the lists of ROTC distinguished military graduates that enter from West Point. Typical of these top flight military teachers is Sgt. Robert E. Corcoran stationed at St. Bernard's of Siena College in Loudonville, who in the past two years has helped train more than 100 young officers now on active duty.

An artilleryman since entering the Army in 1948, Corcoran has the background and experience required for his job at Siena of preparing cadets for duty almost exclusively as artillerymen. He served with the First Cavalry Division in Japan, then went with the outfit to Korea in July, 1950. His artillery experience includes duties as sergeant, intelligence sergeant and operations sergeant, with a solid background of cannonwork.

Corcoran puts this background to work today in teaching his classes on artillery equipment, service of the piece in layman's language, how to shoot the gun — live direct fire, marksmanship, surveying, and the duties of an artillery battery executive officer. In addition to teaching, Corcoran, like the other assistants to the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, must bear his share of an administrative load. He handles cadet records, reports and correspondence, has served as acting supply sergeant and helped make training aids ranging from charts to mockups of artillery and other weapons. The mockups, however, are only for preliminary classroom instruction. The cadets train in the field with genuine weapons. He also has "semi-professional" duties. Corcoran, for example, has coached the Siena Rifle Team for two years and was instrumental in forming the Siena Artillery Club. This was more pleasure than work for him, however. While stationed at Fort Richardson, Alaska, he organized and coached the pistol team that won the U.S. Army Alaska championship. Most of his students go to Fort Sill, Okla., the Army's Artillery Center, to begin their tours of active duty. (ANP).

Pfc Stays 'In the Money' At Brigade Pay Branch

A soldier who handled daily transactions that involved hundreds of thousands of dollars at the world's financial hub of Wall Street is presently discharging his duties on a smaller scale in the Travel Pay Branch of the Personnel Section of The School Brigade.

PFC D. L. WOLFE
Worked On Wall Street

As an assistant to the Transfer Agent in the Treasury Department, he had power of attorney for transfer of ownership of the common and preferred stocks of the B and O and its subsidiaries. This called for contacts with most of the major banks and brokerage houses in the U. S. and throughout the free world.

Wolfe received his business and finance education at Champlain College in Plattsburgh, N. Y., and later studied at CCNY in New York City. At college he was vice choroid of his fraternity, Sigma Omicron, and vice president of the Newman Club in addition to other activities.

Wolfe claims his hobby is polo, and he has already won some experience in the field. He worked on the successful campaign to elect Averill Harriman to the Governorship of New York State in 1954, and has worked with many candidates for local office. Wolfe was elected to the post of Committeeman of the Democratic Party of Staten Island, N. Y., and was the youngest man in the State to hold that position.

In other activities he has served as Deputy Grand Knight of his Knights Of Columbus Council, Richmond Council No. 331, and is presently assistant secretary of the Holy Name Society of Fort Benning.

Post Visited By Uruguay Army Staff
Six officers of the Uruguayan Army General Staff were at Fort Benning last week for a two-day orientation on tactics, weapons and methods of instruction at the Infantry School. The party includes Col. Rodolfo Pio Leguizamón and Lt. Col. Miguel Angel Aguerre of the G-2 Section; Col. Nelson Domingo Costanzo and Lt. Col. Jose Vigo, G-3 Section, and Col. Juan Cesar Cuadro and Lt. Col. Alberto Zepherino, G-4 Section.

The visitors were honored at an officers luncheon Feb. 3 in the Main Officers' Mess. In addition to conferring with Brig. Gen. E. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, the Allied officers viewed demonstrations of river crossing techniques, manual of arms, 4.2 inch mortar firing, physical training testing and armor attack. They left the post Feb. 5 to visit Atlanta General Depot and Third Army headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga.

Other military installations visited by the Uruguayan group during their three-week tour of the U. S. were the Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.; Continental Army

Hospital Uses New Central Oxygen Setup

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. The U.S. Army Hospital at Fort McPherson has installed a centralized oxygen and vacuum system as part of the modernization program of the hospital.

Project Long Arm

Post Concludes Aerial Observation Exercise

The final phase of testing of the T-37 jet aircraft in Infantry tactical operations was concluded Feb. 4 at Fort Benning.

The test was an activity of Project Long Arm conducted by the Infantry School. The project began Jan. 6. Purpose of the test was to determine the tactics and techniques for employment of high performance Army observation aircraft in support of Infantry tactical operations.

Aerial Observation In conducting the T-37 jet aircraft tests at Fort Benning, an evaluation of training program for Army aerial observation was included. An aggressor force was organized from units of the 14th Infantry as part of the T-37 test.

The aggressor force was under command of Major William G. Brodley. An evaluation team of six officers, headed by Major John W. Roach, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, are collecting and analyzing the results of the tests to help determine how higher performance observation aircraft will be employed in support of Infantry tactical operations.

Valid Testing A control team of 11 officers and enlisted men, under the direction of Major Frank Quirk, Staff Department of the Infantry School, operated during the test maintaining controlled conditions necessary to achieve valid testing. Administrative and logistic support activities for the test were supervised by 1st Lt. Donald E. Sawyer, Weapons Department of the Infantry School.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commander of The School, was director for the T-37 test project.

Col. William E. Eisman, director of The School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, was deputy director.

at least this amount will be saved in labor and oxygen in about four years. The oxygen system consists of "the form," where the oxygen is stored; the tubes, which pipe it throughout the hospital; and the outlets in wards and surgical and delivery rooms. Previously, it had been necessary to transport unwieldy oxygen cylinders and equipment to the rooms in which they were needed. Now it is merely a matter of "plugging in" the form.

Fourteen tanks of oxygen "grown on the farm," ready for use when seven cylinders have been emptied, a buzzer and red light indicate that the system is ready to be switched to the other seven. Then the empty seven are replaced with full 150-gallon cylinders.

The vacuum, or suction, system was formerly a "step-by-step" operation, low the hospital say. But now there are 10 outlets in strategic rooms, throughout the 144-bed hospital. These include one in the delivery room, three outlets in surgery rooms, four in the procedure ward and the remaining two in recovery rooms.

A motor in the top of the hospital powers the suction system, which is used to extract body fluids from surgical and other patients who need the treatment.

Exemplary Performance

2 Lawson Officers Cited For Korea River Rescue

Two Fort Benning officers have been cited for exemplary performance during a rescue operation at the crash site of an Air Force C-124 transport.

They are Capt. Edward J. Beach, First Aviation Company, and 1st Lt. Robert M. McCreary, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment at Lawson Army Air Field.

The officers were presented certificates of achievement by Col. William H. Billings, commander of Lawson Command. The crash occurred at night in the Han River in Korea Feb. 9, 1957. Capt. Beach and Lt. McCreary were alerted and began the pick up of survivors by helicopter.

As the tide began to rise, the two pilots continued evacuation of the injured and finally when the tide was so high as to preclude further landings.

4 Budget Officers Visit Fort Benning for Talks

Four key budget officers in activities with Infantry Center personnel. They were Troy V. McKeeney of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Comptroller, Theodore A. Jansson, chief of the Budget Division of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army; W. J. Col. Andrew Mejia of Colombia and Lt. Col. Doroteo Montenegro of Guatemala.

U. S. Delegation The U. S. delegation will consist of Gen. Shepherd, Lt. Col. Joseph C. Fegan and Capt. Charles A. Webster of the Marine Corps; Major Gen. Thomas C. Dorsey, Brig. Gen. William K. Saier, Lt. Col. Herbert W. Ladd Jr., and Lt. Col. Harry M. Albright of the Air Force; Brig. Gen. Theodore F. Bogard, Col. James M. Church Jr., Lt. Col. Paul P. Hinkley, Lt. Col. William S. Coleman, Lt. Col. George B. Jochim, Lt. Col. Edward N. Fogler, Lt. Col. William D. Dickerman and Major Donald N. Cole of the Army and Capt. Mario F. Ramirez de Arellano of the Navy.

Also coming to the post for the conference will be Edward Prierson of the U. S. Information Agency and R. Balston Hughes, Leonard R. Carlson and Mario O. Garcia, interpreters.

The visitors will leave Lawson Field at 9 a.m. Feb. 15.

Allied Navy officers attending will be Rear Adm. Antonio J. Aznar of Mexico; Rear Adm. Pedro P. de Araujo Sazano of Brazil; Rear-Adm. Vincente M. Baroja of Argentina; Rear Adm. Guillermo Haywood of Paraguay; Capt. Washington N. Marroche of Uruguay; Capt. Alejandro Navarrete of Chile; Capt. Carlos A. Leon Sans of Cuba; Capt. Jamie Eras-Ananxy of Colombia; Capt. Federico Betances of the Dominican Republic; Cmdr. Geraldo Azevedo Henning of Brazil; Lt. Cmdr. Manuel Llaneras and Lt. Manuel P. Rodriguez Aloosa of Cuba.

In addition to Gen. Marshalls, Latin American Air Force delegates will be Major Gen. Manuel L. Aleman of Argentina; Col. Robert Cavalcante de Lencos of Brazil;

Stanley Williams, deputy chief of the Estimate and Fund Division, Office of the Secretary of the Army, all of Washington, D. C., and Clyde Bushin of the Third Army Comptroller, Section, Fort McPherson, Ga.

Feb. 11 the visitors conferred with Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general. Lt. Col. Jeremiah B. Monk Jr., liaison and accounting officer of the Infantry Center, and post management representatives.

The remainder of their visit was devoted to talks with Col. Paul J. Jarrett, Infantry Center comptroller, and pertinent personnel on controls and utilization of manpower, accounting system, management studies, recurring reports, review analysis, facilities maintenance problems, utilization rates for facilities, "cost based" budgets, problems relating to quarters obligations control by the budget program, and allocation of installation support costs to priority programs.

Capt. Donald E. Bohann of the 86th Tank Battalion was the project officer.

For All Armed Services

Rifle, Pistol Teams Hold Advanced Shooting Class

Members of the Army Rifle and Pistol Teams are conducting an advanced marksmanship coaching course at Fort Benning that is available not only to Army personnel but to the other branches of the service as well.

The two-week course is designed not only to improve marksmanship on the competitive level, but to further the shooting and coaching abilities of every rifle carrying member of the Armed Services.

The Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit officials hope to accomplish this by bringing personnel not only from the six Army areas but from other services as well to Fort Benning. Here they will receive both the theory and application of marksmanship from the best and most experienced shooters in the Army.

Varied Training

The course is not only concerned with the fundamentals of firing the M-1 rifle, but covers sniper training, marksmanship program planning and range operation.

Lt. Col. Thomas J. Sharpe, officer in charge of the Army Rifle Team, stated that "the first few shots a man shoots can mean the difference between a good shooter and just a shooter."

"The Army Rifle and Pistol Teams have experimented with three basic fundamentals of marksmanship. They are the best positions from which to fire in the time available, correct sight alignment and trigger squeeze. It is the belief of the Advanced Marksmanship Unit officials that information gathered through these experiments and new being taught in the advanced coaching course will greatly improve the quality of the shooter throughout the Armed Services."

Fighters Selected For 3-Army Bouts

Fort Benning boxing championships were held last week at Briant Wells Field House to decide top representatives to Third Army Boxing Tournament.

The Third Army tournament will be held Feb. 24-28 at Fort Jackson, S.C.

The state of fights included eight Fort Benning bouts and 10 bouts sponsored by Youth Activities Club. Four post fighters, who will participate in Third Army bouts, were unopposed.

Frank Annocke and Andrew Martinez each fought two bouts on the slate. Each won both of their fights.

Annocke defeated Wallace Manford by a decision in his first fight of the night. His second win of the night was over John Clarke by a decision.

Martinez scored a TKO over Osborne Henderson in 2-45 of the second round. Martinez grabbed a decision from Howard Moore for the second victory of the night.

Annocke will represent Fort Benning in Third Army as a light weight. Martinez will fight as a walter weight.

In other fights, David Anderson won a third-round decision over Clayton Rice in light-middle weight class.

Oliver Morgan, middle weight, Jose Rodriguez in a bantam weight bout.

In a light heavyweight battle, Theodore Bechea defeated Andrew Jackson in a decision.

Robert Harvard won in the heavy weight class by beating Joseph Williams.

Winners of the fights will represent Fort Benning at Third Army in their respective classes.

Unopposed boxers were Steve Lugo, flyweight; L. E. Ely, feather weight; Joseph Williamson, lightweight weight; and Ernest Broom, middle weight.

Top '5s' Vie In Ft. Wood Tournament

FT. WOOD, Mo. (APPS) — With the abolishment of All-Army competition, the Fort Wood Invitational Basketball Tournament, Feb. 10-16 appears to be the closest way of deciding the Army's best basketball team.

Taking part in the six-day tournament, a double elimination affair, will be teams from Fort Claiborne, Ark.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Fort Carson, Colo.; Fort Riley, Kan., and host Fort Wood.

The Air Force will have a representative, including five former All-America selections — K. C. Jones (San Francisco), Joe Bertrand (New Yorker), Carl Cain (Iowa), Bill Ridley (Illinois).

Arnold Short (Oklahoma and Phillips Oilers) and Bill Seaberg (Iowa) lead the Fort Claiborne squad. Two former Big Ten headliners, Bruce Brothers (Illinois) and Burke Scott (Indiana) give Fort Carson a potent offensive scoring punch.

Earlier this season Fort Wood ended a Fort Carson 11-game winning streak with a 78-72 victory.

Pistol Team Sets National Record

The U.S. Army "Gold" Pistol Team set a new national record at the four-day Fort Benning sectional tournament, when they fired an 1,106 score last week.

The previous record of 1,158 had been set only a day earlier when the U.S. Army "Red" Team broke the then existing record of 1,156 set last year at Laurel, Md., by the U.S. Army "Blue" Team.

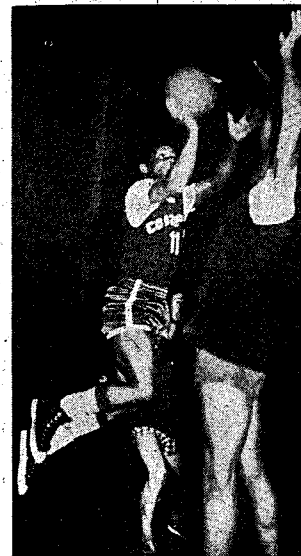

The first record fell on Feb. 8 when Sgt. Arthur G. Ogden, Sgt. Maurice L. Belisle, M-Sgt. Roy Radtke and Cpl. Fred A. Grant fired respective scores of 286, 291, 285, and 296 out of a possible 300 score.

Jan. 8, the record was bettered by two points when Sgt. Lawrence K. Mosely, fired 288; M-Sgt. Herbert Roberts Jr., 291; Sgt. Antonio V. Soza, 291, and Cpl. Troy D. Oney, 296. The record breaking "Gold" team, all of whose members are on TDY with the U.S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit as candidates for the U.S. Army Pistol Team which is now training for the National Mid-winters in Florida next month, was coached by 1st Lt. Gore E. Elsworth.

The individual aggregate was captured by M-Sgt. Richard Stineman, a member of the U.S. Army Pistol Team, who

Post Cites Sgt. Watkins

M-Sgt. James W. Watkins, Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department, has been presented a letter of commendation for an improvement suggestion for ordnance equipment.

A member of the department's Technical Training Group, M-Sgt. Watkins discovered a production defect during an inspection of a particular piece of automotive equipment. The vehicle, a new-type designed and produced for the Army. A shipment had been sent to Fort Benning and several distributed to other Army units.

As a result of a follow-up investigation to determine the cause of engine failure, M-Sgt. Watkins' findings, recommendations and modifications were submitted to the Army chief of ordnance. Further results indicated that appropriate corrective action is being taken to prevent recurrence in future production and to repair vehicles affected in the field.

The presentation was made by Col. Norman B. Edwards, director of the Ground Mobility Department.

AAMU Wins Brigade Loop Cage Crown

U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit copped The School Brigade basketball title Wednesday night by defeating Hq. and Hq. Co., 29th.

A standing-room-only crowd witnessed a tightly-fought contest in which the lead changed several times before the "Marksmen" forged ahead to stay in the final minutes.

Headquarters Company took an early four-point lead when Pfc. Pilarski hit on a long one hander and Pfc. Holzman drove through the AAMU defense, for a layup.

With Sp3 Hollingsworth and Sp3 Kerr hitting on consecutive jump shots, AAMU knotted the score at four.

Both teams seemed unable to find the range from the floor at this point and the rest of the scoring in the first half was done at the foul line. At the mid-way point Hq. and Hq. Co. lead 19-10.

Hollingsworth hit for two straight jump shots at the start of the second half to give the Marksmen a 14-12 lead, but moments later Pilarski's one hander evened the score.

Playing controlled basketball, Hq. and Hq. Co. held the ball and gained a 17-14 lead with less than three minutes remaining.

Pfc. Schweidel countered with a jump shot from the corner and the score read 17-16 with two minutes remaining.

Moments later AAMU stole the ball in the front court and Schweidel, scored on a fast break.

Headquarters Company still had to score and this time it game and the championship was Hollingsworth with a one for the Advanced Marksmanship jump shot that tied the ship Unit.

Denman Cops Third At Washington Meet

By PIC TOM MALLORY (Fort Benning as the National Champion. When does a man on active duty with the Army find time for the intensive training needed to compete against the top track men in the country? Denman has his own solution. "I have been doing most of my training on the post recently and in Doughboy Stadium. Naturally I can not get away during duty hours, so I did most of my training by moonlight." Denman is often accompanied in his routine practices by 2nd Lt. Russ Clancy and Wayne Nicoll, both of the School Brigade's 43rd Company, who are also training for future walking races.

To Move Outdoors. After the National Championships, Denman hopes to begin the outdoor long distance walking races. "I feel that my best event is the 54 kilometer (33 mile) race, and it is in this event that I have made my best showing to date. Finishing in the National 40 Kilometer (25 mile) Championship in Philadelphia, as well as the National Championships at the Olympic Distance of 50 Kilometers in Pittsburgh, Pa. in July." Denman's goal. The 1958 Olympics are to be held in Rome, Italy, and there will be competing against some of the event most famous stars. Don Thompson of England, Abdou Parnick of Italy, and Vladimir Sebastianov of Russia will provide some of the stiff foreign competition. Russia in particular will be out to avenge Denman's victory over their champion in the 1956 Olympics.

Scouts Send Post Note Of Thanks

A letter of appreciation from the Georgia-Alabama Council of Boy Scouts has been received for Fort Benning officials for the post's cooperation and aid in preparing the council's annual banquet.

Addressed to Capt. Donald Smith, 44th Medical Group, and signed by T. W. Little, Scout executive in Columbus, the letter stated:

"On behalf of the 7,000 Scouts and adult leaders of this council, I want to thank you for the fine cooperation and help you gave us in preparing for our annual banquet. "It was largely through the efforts of yourself and the other good people of Fort Benning, who are interested in the Scouting program, that made our banquet at the Main Officers' Mess on Jan. 21, 1958, a grand success. Again let me thank you for your interest in the youth of our community." The annual council awards dinner has been held for several years in January at Fort Benning's Main Officers' Mess.

341 Start; 358 Finish TIS Classes

Approximately 700 students will enter or complete classes at the Infantry School this week. A Ranger class with 151 men began Feb. 10. Col. John H. Sutton, director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, addressed the group at 8 a.m. in Vicksburg Hall.

Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commander, will open the 190-man basic officers class today at 10 a.m. in Vicksburg Hall. Graduation ceremonies were held in the Main Theater Feb. 11 at 10 a.m. for an officers advanced class totaling 115 students. A 44-member radio maintenance class will be awarded certificates Feb. 14 at 10 a.m. in Brown Hall. A basic officers class numbering 199 students will be graduated Feb. 15 at 10 a.m. in the Main Theater.

Class Undergoes Special Course At McClellan

Pathfinder Class No. 2 recently returned to Fort Benning after a short course of special instruction at the Chemical Warfare School, Fort McClellan, Ala. The instruction at Fort McClellan is part of a six-and-a-half-week Pathfinder course conducted by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department at the Infantry School. During the course, the students receive training in providing navigation assistance to aircraft, assisted in the assembly of personnel, map reading, communications, and radiological survey.

During its two days at Fort McClellan, the class received instruction in radiological survey techniques, use of survey instruments, operation of a survey control center, and performance of surveys in the field.

PERFECT P-T SCORE . . . Doing a push-up, one of a series of exercises he completed to achieve a maximum 500 points on the Army physical fitness test at Fort Benning, is 33-year-old M-Sgt. John B. Jenkins, Company 1, Infantry School Detachment. The test includes 18 pull-ups, 60 push-ups, 85 squat-jumps, 80 set-ups and five repetitions of a half mile run. Sgt. Jenkins used a planned daily physical exercise schedule to attain his 500-point physical achievement. He is a cadreman assigned to the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of the Infantry School.

Future Communications Course Starts to Develop Boys' Scientific Interest

The Infantry School's Communications Department is sponsoring a Future Communications course to develop scientific interest of boys age 10 to 15 on the post. Boys of civilian or military parents who work on the post are invited to attend the Future Communications meetings. The course consists of a series of classes for approximately two to three months, meeting each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. It will be conducted by instructors of the Communications Department.

Because of facilities groups will be limited to not more than 30 members. The boys will receive patches to be worn on their jackets and certificates of graduation. The first session met Feb. 1 at 10 a.m. in Communications Building No. 19 for a course orientation and tour of the department and display room. Plans for the course include an introduction to basic electricity with laboratory sessions for experimenting and basic communication and radio principles. The boys will study batteries and their function, voice, telephone and radio procedures.

DOG'S DAY IN COURT

Dogs do have their day, even in court. In Tulsa, Okla., police arrested a hit-and-run driver after his dog shot him in the chest by stepping on the trigger of a gun in the back seat of the car. "That's what I call poetic justice," said the judge as he fined the driver $100, let the dog off for good behavior.

Order Slates Rucker CG

Brig. Gen. Bogerhus, commanding general of the Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., will speak at the Feb. 20 meeting of the Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars. The dinner meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Mess at Fort Benning.

Gen. Cairns was commissioned a second lieutenant in the cavalry following his graduation from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1922. In 1930 he became an armor officer.

The colonel's general served as a combat commander in North Africa and Italy with the First Armored Division until his assignment to the War Department General Staff in August, 1944.

A native of New York, Gen. Cairns has served on the faculty and staff of both the Infantry Center and the Army Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky., and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

He was graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College in 1948 and completed the National War College six years later.

Rehabilitation

Company A, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) is rehabilitating buildings 2217, 2226, and 2229 in the Lawson Field Area. These three buildings will be used as orderly rooms by the 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat) when they move into this area. The work consists of standardizing buildings and making better utilization of the floor space. Sgt. Sam Mainstone is in charge of the work being done on these buildings. Company A, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) is enlarging the commissary nursery 22 feet by 20 feet.

Monthly Meeting

The 49th Engineer Battalion (Combat), commanded by Lt. Col. Alcock F. McDonald, recently re-established the policy of holding a monthly battalion meeting. Held on the last day of the month, and attended by all personnel present for duty, the meeting serves as an opportunity for the commander and his staff officers to orient the troops on all matters pertaining to the command, for presentation of awards, and a monthly discussion on safe driving and safety practices. At the meeting on Jan. 31, Lt. Col. McDonald had the honor of awarding to the battalion motor officer, CWO Hiram Williams, the Group Safety Award for the month of December. Company C of the battalion also received the award for the best supply room.

ARMED FORCES SET BROTHERHOOD WEEK Total Participation

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Armed Forces worldwide will take part with all other federal agencies in annual Brotherhood Week observations Feb. 16 to 24.

Headed originally by Charles E. Hughes, late Chief Justice of the U.S., Brotherhood Week was established in 1934 to promote greater understanding and cooperation among all religious faiths in fostering the principles of democracy.

Now a national institution as a foil against un-American activity, the observances, led yearly by the President, have focused the attention of the nation on the problems of religious, racial and cultural intolerance.

OUTSTANDING UNIT
WASHINGTON (ANS)
Pennsylvania's 708th AAA Battalion, Army National Guard, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been named the winner of the first Annual Commander's Trophy of the Army Air Defense Command as the outstanding national guard unit.

During World War II he trained with the 410th Infantry in France and went to Europe with that unit in September, 1944. Col. Boyle saw action in the Rhineland, Central Europe and Ardennes campaigns and was wounded in February, 1945.

Under the revised pay plan, enlisted personnel, warrant and commissioned officers initially would move into new brackets scaled upward according to time in grade. In making the conversion, however, no individual with over two years' service would receive an increase of less than six per cent of his present base pay.

The Cordier Committee study conducted last year revealed that almost 50,000 E-4s drew higher pay than 122,000 E-5s. Similar inequities in adjusting the pay scale based on longevity frequently gives those with less responsibility higher rewards than considerable numbers in higher grades and provides little incentive to strive for advancement.

At the same time, promotion actually is not fair compensation to an outstanding man when many of lesser rank draw higher pay solely by virtue of longer service.

With the proposed step-grade system, the increased responsibilities of high rank are recognized by an equitable scale in which the lowest pay in any grade is above that of the highest in the bracket below, and by discarding longevity as a basis for compensation. The new plan establishes the same income for all personnel moving up to the next level. Strict ability to do a better job is fundamental to sound practice of awarding pay increases; further enlisted step-grade advances awarded for experience or time in grade would be a direct relationship to improved performance.

There can be few valid arguments, Defense manpower experts say, against a compensation system based on these principles.

Death Claims Lt. Col. Boyle

Funeral services for Lt. Col. Charles T. Boyle, executive officer of the Infantry Center G-3 section, were held at 10 a.m. Feb. 6 in Main Catholic Chapel at Fort Benning.

A Lt. Col. Boyle died of a heart attack at the U. S. Army Home pilot at 1:30 a.m. Feb. 4.

But was the Fort Benning Cemetery. A firing squad from the post's long guard company and a bugler from The Infantry Center Band participated in services.

pallbearers were Col. Robert H. York, Col. Samuel L. McDowell, Col. Seymour B. Satterwhite, Col. Robert L. Crouch Jr., Lt. Col. Robert A. Cooper and Major David C. Butler.

Col. Boyle, 42, had been assigned to Fort Benning since July, 1954, first with the Third Infantry Division, and later with the Infantry School's Tactical Department.

Col. Boyle, who attended Suffolk College in Boston, Mass., was commissioned a second lieutenant from the Officers' Reserve School at Fort Benning in February, 1943. He also attended The Infantry School's advanced officers course.

During World War II he trained with the 410th Infantry in France and went to Europe with that unit in September, 1944. Col. Boyle saw action in the Rhineland, Central Europe and Ardennes campaigns and was wounded in February, 1945.

In July, 1946, he was assigned to duty with the Armed Forces, Western Pacific, returning to the U. S. in June, 1948.

For the next four years he served as a major in the U. S. Army Center of Excellence at Fort Benning in 1954.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

He began his assignment as executive officer of The Infantry Center G-3 Section in June, 1957.

Col. Boyle is survived by his wife, the former Frances Mosher of Boston, Mass., two children, Bonita Louise, 13, and Charles T., II, 6, and his mother, Mrs. Nora Boyle, Dorchester, Mass.

Tenth Stages Air Operation Despite Snow

KITZINGEN, Germany — The pilots and planes of the 10th Division's Aviation Company braved icy winds and a snow-patched Fokker Casper aircraft here last week to put on an air show and demonstration of Division air support for 120 members of two Senior NCO classes at the 10th Division Academy.

The NCO's got a first-hand glimpse of each type of support aircraft in the division as 10th Aviation pilots put H-13 and H-19 helicopters and L-19 and L-19B fixed wing craft through their paces in a series of simulated combat operations.

The "covert" demonstration combat casualty pick-ups and the delivery of supplies to front line troops in a net suspended below the "copter belly; while the L-19 and L-19B ran through demonstrations of short-field landings and take-offs and message drop and pick-up.

Ft. Benning Visited By Lt. Col. Miller

Gen. William Miller of the U. S. Army Intelligence Board, Fort Holabird, Md., visited Ft. Benning last week to discuss Army intelligence matters with officers of the Infantry School's Command Development Office and Staff Department.

He was briefed by Col. George D. Patterson, chief of Doctrine and Organization Section, Command Development Office, and Col. John J. Pavick, Intelligence Group chief of the Staff Department.

Led by Gen. Han Lim Lee Fort Benning Toured By Korean Generals

The superintendent of the Republic of Korea's Military Academy, Lt. Gen. Han Lim Lee, visited Fort Benning last week for a three-day comparison of the Infantry School and his institution's instruction at activities.

He was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Sang Chul Lee, chief of research and development of the Korean Army; and Brig. Gen. Kap Chung Ha, Korean Army planning coordinator for research and development.

Lawson Welcome
The allied party was welcomed at Lawson Army Air Field by Major Gen. Herbert R. Powell, Infantry School commandant and Infantry Center commanding general; Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center; Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commandant; and Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins of Columbus, former commander of the 1st Air Corps.

Personnel of Company C, 26th Infantry, formed an honor escort for the visitors. The Infantry Center Band played.

The visitors were presented Infantry School "Follow Me" pins by Gen. Powell in his office immediately after their arrival and then attended an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess. They were guests of honor at an informal reception given by Gen. and Mrs. Powell in their quarters Feb. 6 at 6:30 p.m. preceding an official dinner in the Main Officers' Mess.

Demonstration
The Korean officers viewed demonstrations of a Ranger training, armored personnel carrier on Victory Pond, M1 rifle and mortar firing, hand grenades and officer candidate instruction.

In addition to the operation of the Infantry School, they were oriented on tactical equipment of atomic weapons, land mines, and gas mask and gas reacting testing and instruction.

Major William F. Graves, Infantry School Staff Department instructor, was Fort Benning project officer.

Pay Bill Aims to End Ills of Longevity Plan

By M-Sgt. Herb Scott, USA (AFPS Washington Correspondent)
WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Changes in the military pay structure proposed to Congress in the new Defense legislation would couple experience to achievement in adjusting the inequities of the longevity system.

Essays O'Toole and McWilliam J. Lederer (Norton, 1957). A new and hilarious, and partly serious, satirical sketch in Lederer's friend and accomplice, Terrence O'Toole, the rook who exploits ruggedly and unscrupulously the lives of all successful bit of wartime espionage, disguised as a Japanese army doctor, to an escapee involving a fortune teller in Manila, a beautiful girl, and a gross lie which resulted in Captain Lederer's marriage.

Alarms And Diversions by James Thurber (Harper, 1957). Thurber believes this book contains the best-balanced collection of his writings the has never bothered to arrange his drawings, leaving that to the rest of us. The prose includes:

HFC has made loans promptly for 80 years

Since Grandfather's day HFC has been making prompt loans, in privacy, to people who need money for all kinds of good reasons. An Household you can borrow up to $1000 and take up to 18 months to repay. Life insurance is provided without extra cost to you.

Some 100 delegates to the annual Georgia Hospital Association convention will witness a demonstration on medical management of mass casualties at Fort Benning Feb. 20. The Hospital Association convention composed of professional and administrative representatives throughout the state will meet in Columbus at the Hales Hotel Feb. 20 and 21. At Benning, the demonstration will be a warring field of military operations. The 54th Medical Group at Fort Benning, headed by Col. Harry C. McCain, will present the demonstration from 2 to 4 p.m. at Burma Hill on the reservation. Approximately 185 personnel from the 54th Group will participate in the project. Focal point of the mass management problem will be the detonation of a simulated atomic bomb and the affected area and personnel. Emphasis is spotlighted on the stark reality of mass casualty under nuclear conditions and the establishment of medical relief and medical sorting. The demonstration is designed to be representative of a situation created by the explosion of an atomic bomb in any area where a concentration of people exists. For purposes of expediency and effectiveness, the scope created will be a warring field of military operations. Helicopter evacuation units will move into the scene providing supportive measures to the entire operation. Of particular interest and significance to the hospital visitors will be the extensive use of moulages, or simulated wound patches, applied to casualty personnel for more natural effects in carrying out the demonstration. Coordinator of the demonstration is Major William A. Pacey, 54th Group executive officer. Officer in charge of casualty preparation is 1st Lt. Thomas L. Trudeau.

Sgt. Sheedy* was up a tree till he discovered Wildroot Cream-Oil

Sgt. J. Paul Sheedy of the 29th Meskit Repair Battalion was serenading his sweetheart. "Gorilla my dreams, I love you", sang Sheedy. But she was playing it cagey. "Get lost, Gargantua", she said. "I've seen better heads on coconuts". Then Sheedy got wise to Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now he's proud of his appearance, because his hair looks handsome and healthy, without a trace of grease. So take a tip from the old sarge. Don't monkey around with messy hair. Get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, the serviceman's favorite hair tonic. Use it every day and you Congo wrong!

NEW SHAVING DISCOVERY FOR TENDER, SENSITIVE SKIN

RISE EXTRA COOL with MENTHOL gives you COOLER, SMOOTHER SHAVES in 1/2 the TIME

If you have a tender, sensitive skin, only a special kind of lather can give you a really close, cool, comfortable shave without that hot, scraped, burning feeling.

Rise Extra Cool with Menthol has a special aerated Menthol that gives your skin a cooling, soothing sensation never before possible. It's entirely unlike ordinary stinging menthol.

No other lather lets you shave so close, yet leaves your skin so cool. In hottest weather or in skin-chapping cold, shave in comfort with Rise Extra Cool with Menthol.

ORDINARY LATHER with its big, lary bubbles stays on top of whiskers. Can't soothe them. Your razor scrapes and pulls.

RISE SMALL-BUBBLE LATHER soaks your whiskers right down to the skinline. Cools and soothes skin with aerated menthol!

CUTTING CORNERS

by Barbara Sue Richards

If you have rugs or carpets in your home, you naturally will want to get as much wear out of them as possible. The simplest way to do this is by learning the particular characteristics of your floor covering.

There is an "old wives' tale" that daily vacuuming is harmful but actually it is dirt and grime that shortens the life of rugs and carpets. You can actually vacuum them as often as you like without doing any harm although twice a week is enough for expensive wool or wool blend rugs.

For cotton and rayon carpets, however, daily vacuuming is one of the best ways to prevent crushing of pile.

You can get a great deal more wear out of rugs if you turn them around at least once a year. This will prevent excessive wear of the normal trouble spots in front of doorways, couches and favorite chairs.

With wall-to-wall carpeting, you obviously can't do this. But you can do the next best thing—shift your furniture around. This will give a needed rest to the most trampled areas.

If you have a very sunny room, it's advisable to keep the shade down or blind drawn during the brightest part of the day. Otherwise you will find the color of your carpet faded wherever the sun hits it. This is true even of the most expensive quality floor covering.

Whenever your rugs or carpets begin to lose their lustre, it's time for a cleaning. There are several good absorbent powders on the market that will enable you to do the job yourself. However, if there are any stains that have been there for a long time, it's better to call in a professional carpet cleaner. They have the know-how to get them out without causing any permanent damage.

books . . .

In "Eugene O'Toole and Me" Captain William J. Lederer, USN, has written a book that is, at the same time, warm, touching, serious and hilariously funny. Making the unpredictable red-headed O'Toole's acquaintance is a reading pleasure you cannot afford to miss. His wild adventures, romantic and military, are nothing short of remarkable. (W. W. Norton $3.75) records . . .

Folksong enthusiasts have a real treat in store when they pick up the new LP album, "The Westers on Tour" (Vanguard). It's every bit as good as their previous album, "At Carnegie Hall", and there's no higher praise. The album includes two of the Westers' biggest hits, "Trens, Trens" and "On Top of Old Smokey."

HERE'S HOW

"original mask party"

The next time your children have a party, you can add to their fun by making it an "original mask party." All you need is some brown-paper bags large enough to go over a child's head, cutouts of facial features from newspapers and magazines and some cellophane tape.

Before your children's guests arrive, cut slits in the bags for the nose and eyes. Assort the facial cutouts into separate piles of eyes, ears, noses, hair, teeth, etc. As the children arrive, hand each a bag and let them make their own selection of facial appenditures which they can attach to the bag with the cellophane tape.

Not only will they have lots of fun making the masks, but the final results will start the party off with howls of gay laughter.

DOTS AND FLASHES

The next time a fuse blows, you can check whether it's because of a short or an overloaded circuit. Remove the blown fuse and screw a 25-watt bulb in its place. If the bulb lights up brightly, it means a short. If it lights dimly, the line is overloaded. . . . For members of the female sex who like to make an evening of it peeling the polish off their nails, a kiljoy has come along with a gadget to take all the fun out of their lives. It's an automatic nail polish remover. The lady just dunks her fingers into a set of little holes and all ten nails are cleaned of every last drop of polish in less than a minute.

Scouts Start Cookie Sale; Ends Mar. 3

More than 600 Brownies and Girl Scouts at Fort Benning launched their phase of the Girl Scout Cookie Sale of the Conchery Council yesterday. The annual cookie sale will continue through March 3.

Opening the two-week sale period with the first purchase of cookies was Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, wife of Major Gen. Powell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, and honorary chairman of Fort Benning's Girl Scout program. Yesterday the girls began their visits throughout the post to show and sell three specialty-designed types of cookies. This year a new cookie has been added, the crisp, short, delectable butter cookie. They will also have the mouth-watering chocolate mint wafers that made a hit last year. The traditional cream-filled sandwich cookie.

Each year the Girl Scout cookie sale is conducted by the Conchery Council to supplement troop budgets and set aside funds for the Scout camping program. The Girl Scout council dipped into money obtained from previous sales and purchased a site of mountain and meadow in Harris Field at Fort Benning. Brrrrrr Ft. Benning Shivers In Record Cold Wave

Queen of Battle donned long underwear this week as temperatures dipped to record lows at Fort Benning. Thermometers hovered near or below the freezing mark throughout the week causing a threat of natural gas shortage in Columbus area and driving post school children home.

The mercury dropped to 32 degrees Monday, the lowest since 1938. There are no Fort Benning weather records available prior to 1938.

Milder weather is expected over the week end. Temperatures are expected to reach the mid 50s during Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but may drop below freezing at night.

In cooperation with local authorities and officials, schools were closed at Fort Benning and buildings heated by gas at post kept temperatures at 55 degrees until the danger of a gas shortage in the area is alleviated.

While Fort Benning personnel shivered, employees of the Post Engineer Section were busy at work with repairs necessitated by the uncommon cold spell.

The plumbing crew of some 30 men and the heating shop with about 20 employees were swamped with hundreds of calls reporting frozen and broken water pipes and malfunctioning heating systems.

Officials said that orders for repairs doubled early this week due to the tumbling temperatures. (Please See COLD, Page 2)

Board Stresses Solidarity At Inter-American Meet

Friendship and unity among the Latin American republics in the promotion of hemispheric solidarity was emphasized at Fort Benning Feb. 13 at a banquet honoring the Inter-American Defense Board.

Each year the Girl Scout cookie sale is conducted by the Conchery Council to supplement troop budgets and set aside funds for the Scout camping program. The Girl Scout council dipped into money obtained from previous sales and purchased a site of mountain and meadow in Harris Field at Fort Benning.

An Infantry School "Follow Me" plaque was presented at the dinner by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center and Infantry School commandant, to Marine Corps Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr., chairman of the defense board.

"This plaque will have an honored place in our home," Gen. Shepherd said, noting that it will be placed in the board's headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Most fittingly the naked bayonet, symbol of aggressive action, imposed on the blue field of the foot soldier and your motto, Follow Me, is most fitting and truly recognizes the spirit of the Infantry which is the Queen of Battle," Gen. Shepherd added.

"This visit affords the delegates of our Latin American republics an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with the U. S. Army and the advances made in your training methods," the four-star general pointed out.

"It is these officers who are your guests who have the job of planning the defense of the countries and achieving the

Post Opens First Capehart Units

Opening ceremonies for the 1,000-unit Capehart Housing project at Fort Benning will be held tomorrow. Key Infantry Center officers and civilian officials from the Columbus area will tour the quarters of Major Letcher Crawford, Infantry School Technical Department instructor, and Major Samuel R. Bennett, Company B of the 82nd Air Battalion, at 3:30 and 4 p.m. respectively.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commandant, will address the group and Mrs. Powell will cut the ribbon at the twin ceremonies at 10-A Arrowhead Road and 103-11 Brostrom Street.

Gen. Powell will be introduced by Col. O. Z. Tyler, Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff. Also attending the ceremonies will be Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commandant.

The Infantry Center Band will play the national anthem and "There's No Place Like Home" during the festivities. Families began moving into the first increments of homes this week.

One hundred and twelve units have been ready for occupancy by officer and enlisted personnel.

The $14 million project which will consist of 248 units for officers and 728 "garden" apartments for enlisted men, is scheduled to be completed by Nov. 20, 1958. The contract with Williams Construction Company, Columbus, Ga., calls for three-bedroom, brick veneer structures.

Began in 1957, the construction, which is under the direction of the Savannah District Crops Engineers, began in January, 1957. The initial group to be completed consists of 56 units for officers in 28 duplexes and 52 sets for enlisted personnel in four - apartment structures.

The units feature the most modern kitchen equipment and other conveniences. A fire telephone installed by the Infantry Center Signal Section and a public pay telephone installed by the Bell Telephone Company have been placed in central locations in both the officer and enlisted housing areas. The Signal Section is planning the installation of circuits to be operated by a manual switchboard. In approximately one year, a switchboard in the Santa Fe (Please See Housing, Page 2)

Benning Sets Prayer Day

Fort Benning personnel will observe World Day of Prayer with special services at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel Feb. 21.

A continuous special prayer service will be held from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. so that all personnel on the post may attend for a brief session of prayer or for the entire service. A devotional program will be conducted with congregational singing.

The Fort Benning service is being sponsored by the Protestant Women of the Chapels and the Episcopal St. Michael's Women's Auxiliary. World-wide prayer for the day of prayer is "Brood Life."

A worldwide program of the World Day of Prayer is sponsored in the U.S. by the National Council of Churches. The first Friday of Lent each year is designated as the official day of observance.

Chairman of the Fort Benning program is Mrs. Rufus E. Hallmark.

Contract Let On Project In Kelly Hill

A lease bid of $21,135.35, submitted by the Jordan Company of Columbus, was the apparent low bid for the construction of motor park facilities in the Kelly Hill area.

Williams Construction Company, Buck Construction Company, Murphy-Pound Construction Company, C. E. Anderson Construction Company, and H. H. Wright and Associates, all of Columbus, and the Loh Construction Company of Miami Beach, Fla., were other bidders.

Li. Col. W. W. Watkins Jr., deputy Savannah District engineer, opened the bids.

The contract provides for the construction of a motor repair of Columbus, and the Loh Construction Company of Miami Beach, Fla., were other bidders.

The Jordan Company contractor for the new $6 million S. Army Hospital at post, was also the low bidder Jan. 29 for construction of a new telephone building at Fort Benning with a bid of $90,302.70.

'Big Picture' to Show U.S. Cavalry History

WASHINGTON (AP)—Beginning this month TV viewers of the Army show, "The Big Picture," will see the story of the U.S. Cavalry from the Revolution to the Yalu. The half-hour show, carried on 37 stations, will depict the story of regiments that still exist, without horses, in today's pentomic Army. The Fourth Cavalry, for example, a regiment born in 1855 as the First Cavalry, soon to be commanded by Colonel Robert E. Lee and to number among its junior officers Captain George B. McClellan and Second Lieutenant "Jeb" Stuart. Its saber-wielding, carbine-shooting troopers earned the first of nearly two score battle streamers fighting Comanches, Cheyennes and Apaches. Troop

Satellite Cuts Map Errors

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army expects to cut mapping errors from miles to feet with the Explorer space satellite. Dr. John O'Keefe, Army Map Service geodesist, says the Explorer as a tool that will help reduce mapping errors in the Pacific region from three-quarters of a mile to 500 feet. "As long as the Explorer is tracked by radio, information is being gathered which permits us to stand off and, so to speak, take a look at the earth, determine its exact shape and accurately measure intercontinental distances." TOUGH MULE—The Army's "mechanical mule" weighs only 850 pounds but can transport a thousand pounds of cargo over the roughest terrain at speeds up to 25 miles an hour. Spark of Celestial Fire

Historians today question whether the incident of George Washington and the cherry tree ever took place, but they point to other examples of the character of the boy who grew up to lead his country.

One example is a book, on display in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., in which 15-year-old George Washington copied down rules of behavior he thought important. In that book, he wrote:

"Labour to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire—conscience."

As we observe his birth-date on Feb. 22, we can keep in mind that, cherry tree or no cherry tree, young George Washington grew up through history as one who carried a belief in conscience with him on his way to becoming this nation's first military commander-in-chief, and later, our country's first president (AFPS).

Long Line of Firsts

The Army's launching of the first U.S. satellite Explorer, using a modified Jupiter-C rocket, is the latest and most dramatic of a long development program.

A notable "first" 60 years before the Explorer, was the successful work done by Major Walter Reed in the prevention of epidemics of yellow fever. More recently in other fields, Army Research and Development has made important advances in textiles and clothing, food, civil works, hydraulics, hydrology, water purification, electronics, bacteriology, agriculture, and many others. The same week the Explorer was launched, Army Engineers announced completion of tests of an alarmized fire-fighting outfit which besides its usefulness to the Army, will protect civilian forest fire-fighters.

Explaining that although Army Research and Development efforts often benefit the nation as a whole, one Pentagon spokesman emphasized that, "Such benefits are by-products of the military effort, and Army funds are not expended for non-military purposes."

Advances to the national well-being stemming from Army initiative range from such large scale projects as construction of the Panama Canal to such comparatively small items as devising a cushion - sole sock which is widely used by farmers, laborers, policemen, and others who spend much of their time on their feet. Other discoveries include irradiated food items, the wonder drugs atabrine and aralen, antiknock batteries, plastic windows, alkaline drycell batteries which can be used in hearing aids of extremely small size, the nuclear power reactor, and hundreds of others both large and small. WHAT NO PANIC BUTTON? Advertisement for a push-button device.

The push-button is becoming one of the biggest factors in our lives.

There are machines that peel potatoes, machines that pilot airplanes, machines that translate one language into another. There is every indication that technology will find machines for performing many other chores.

It's not hard, thus to forget that certain things can be accomplished by push-button. Chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, had this to say recently in a speech:

"... our system functions only when we all work at it. There is no other way for free men. Ours is not an automatic or authoritarian system based on a mastermind concept. There is no push-button freedom. Neither are there push-button solutions to complex national problems."

There's no panic button to push when it comes to maintaining our national and personal freedoms. And the man who looks for the push-button blinds himself to the fact that for some tasks, there's just no easy way. (AFPS)

Income Tax: III Deductions Allowed For 1957 Taxpayers

(Third of six articles by AFPS based on information from the Internal Revenue Service)

If you itemize deductions on page two of Form 1040, you can deduct most state and local taxes. Federal taxes are never deductible except for certain ones paid in connection with a business or profession.

You CAN deduct: Personal property taxes. State income taxes. Real estate taxes. State or local sales taxes. State gasoline taxes. Auto license fees.

State capitation or poll taxes YOU CANNOT deduct: Any federal excise taxes paid on your personal expenditures, such as taxes on the seller admissions, fairs, jewelry, cosmetics, transportation, telephone, etc.

Federal social security taxes. Housing allowances. Dog licenses. Water taxes. Auto inspection fees. State paid for another person.

Cigarette taxes are deductible by the consumer in only a few of the 48 states. Your local revenue office can advise you on this regarding your state.

Whenever real estate is sold, the deduction for real estate taxes is apportioned between the buyer and the seller according to the number of days in the real property year that each held the property.

The tax is apportioned to the seller up to but not including the date of sale and to the buyer beginning with the date of sale, regardless of the actual closing month.

Like of er passions, control of anger is essential to his proper use. Uncontrolled anger breeds misery. Anger springing from offended selfish pride is unjustified. If allowed free rein, such anger may necessarily result in spiteful, vindictive, inhuman action toward the neighbors.

National anger has moved vast peoples to decisive patriotic action, shaping the course of world events. Recurrently an angered man will die in defense of God-given rights, that such a man will rise to unlifted heights in the performance of God - given duties.

Apart from these all too usual occasions, anger is common to all men, enters into all daily activity. Anger, when uncontrolled, sparks a man to meet a challenge. Ability to anger in the face of unjust, unrighteous, and neglect of duty results in emphatic corrective action.

Anger, unrighteous, notably controlled indeed has its use. Parents know all too well the practical benefit of this effective application. A good "chewing" sensibly administered, presumes the recipient is willing to take it, it is often necessary, and will achieve desirable results.

As a general rule an exemption of 5000 may be taken for each dependent whose income for the calendar year in which the taxable year of the taxpayer begins is less than $600.

Top Army, Navy, Marine, Corps and Air Force officers wearing a total of 30 stars on their shoulders represented 15 nations at a meeting of the Inter-American Defense Board at Fort Benning last week.

Military leaders of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Mexico, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and the U.S. attended the two-day mutual security planning conference.

The 38 Allied visitors were headed by Air Force Major Gen. Ajlamar Vieira Mascarenhas of Brazil, vice-chairman of the Defense Board, and Army Gen. Jose A. Cortese, chief of the Uruguayan delegation.

See New Army Marine Corps Gen. Lemaire C. Shepherd Jr., of the U.S. is chairman of the conference. Among the 20 U.S. delegates and staff members who attended the meeting were Major Gen. Thomas C. Darcy and Brig. Gen. William K. Skar of the Air Force and Army Brig. Gen. Theodore F. Board.

The first year's work of the Defense Board dealt with a recommendation for the elimination of clandestine telecommunication stations; requests for continuous inter-governmental exchange of information concerning aviation and a legal procedure to facilitate the transit of military aircraft, and seven other resolutions dealing with war problems.

By December, 1945, the board had outlined the broad bases for inter-American military cooperation in resolutions dealing with security against sabotage, production of strategic materials, naval and air bases, anti-submarine defense, standardization of materiel, training and organization, utilization of manpower and teaching of hemisphere languages in military schools to eliminate the language barrier.

Valuable Agency With the end of World War II, the board had established itself as a valuable agency for coordinating defense measures and as a focal point where each nation could make known its short and long-range requirements.

The infant international military organization was continued and authorized to continue its functions by the Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace held in Mexico City in 1945. The charter of the U.N. signed in June of that year reaffirmed the right of nations to enter into regional agreements for maintaining peace and providing collective and individual self-defense.

Following the recommendations of the Fourth Meeting of the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Continental Peace and Security, which met at Rio de Janeiro in 1947, drafted an inter-American treaty of reciprocal assistance.

The conference enlarged the scope of the Defense Board's work by establishing a new mission for it, the "military planning of common defense."

Concert Sets 'The Planets'

The recorded concert at the Main Fort Benning Library Feb. 25, will feature "The Planets" by Gustav Holst. Gustav Holst was a close friend of Ralph Vaughan Williams, with whom he shared a passionate interest in English folk music. The flavor of this interest is a great influence in the works of both composers.

"The Planets," composed between 1914 and 1918, is a suite of seven movements. The movements include: "Mars, the Bringer of War"; "Venus, the Bringer of Peace"; "Jupiter, the Bringer of Jollity"; and "Neptune, the Mystic."

There is no program for the suite and the concert will be pointed out that it has no connection with the delirious of classical mythology. The only clues to the meaning of the music are the subtitles of the individual movements.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

MAKER OF GENERALS

Of all the officers who became generals during World War II, almost 60 per cent were trained at the Army's Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth. There they learned the art of careful analysis of military situations and problems, developed professional judgment, and acquired a readiness to accept responsibility and make decisions.

Armed Services YMCA 'Y' to Celebrate Birth Of International Club

The first anniversary of the formation of the International Club at the Armed Services YMCA will be celebrated at the Y Feb. 24 and all members are urged to be on hand for that party.

This group was originally formed by Mrs. Floyd Francisco, wife of the former and recently retired executive secretary of the Armed Services YMCA Branch in Columbus, and a group of women from the Wynnton Study Club who assisted here. The first meeting was held on Feb. 26, 1957. Ten members were present representing five foreign countries.

Through the year each country has taken one meeting night as its program and the people representing this particular country have introduced foods, songs, dances, customs, or items of interest to be shown to the group. In this way a mutual exchange of ideas and customs brings the groups together, and the very nature of the program brings people from all the same countries together to enjoy reminiscences in their own languages.

Many civic leaders in the city have come to know this group; the club has been entertained by local church and social groups; individuals have visited the club bringing interesting programs, and the American holidays have been celebrated in traditional style to further establish the American customs with those—now citizens—who have taken this big step from their homeland to America.

Membership at the present time numbers more than 40. During the course of the year people from nineteen countries have visited or joined the meetings. Germany, Japan, a D. Hungary top the list in number of members, in that order. Lesser representations find Italy, France, Chile, Afghanistan, Austria, Canada, England, Holland, Indonesia, Korea, Okinawa, Pakistan, Philippines, Sweden, Guatemala, and the Ukraine on the rolls.

As a special feature for this anniversary party, the group is pleased to announce that A. C. Wildman, Chief of Chaplains for people from all the same countries together to enjoy reminiscences in their own languages.

Members of the Advisory Board of the International Club will also be special guests for the occasion. A decorated birthday cake and ice cream will be served at refreshment time. Other events planned for the program at the Y include the "real george!" Dance Feb. 22, when the Auburn couples are expected to be in attendance as guests of our own GSO hostesses. Refreshments will be served by Virginia Beane and Linda Dunfee. Feb. 23 will find Linda and Joyce Murphy serving coffee and donuts at 9:00; Miss Louise Daniels serving punch and cookies at 9:30 in the lounge; and the Columbus Navy Mothers preparing and serving the Fellowship Buffet Supper at 5:30 p.m. The Feb. 25 Record Dance will be guided by Chris Zuccarini.

Guard Slates Traditional Muster Sat.

WASHINGTON (AP)—When the Army National Guard lines up for roll call on Feb. 22 it will not only be honoring a one-time Virginia militiaman, Col. George Washington, but will be carrying on a tradition as old as the hills.

In Colonial days it was the custom for all able-bodied men to assemble annually at the village green for roll call and inspection of arms.

As the country grew, militia units became more formal military organizations, some of which even had uniforms and engaged in periodic training.

Today's Army National Guard, a descendant of the first unadorned militia of 1775, has fought in every U.S. conflict since.

As organized today, 21 Infantry and six armored divisions, plus numerous smaller combat and combat support units, its 400,000 men, if called to active duty, would not only compose the Army's ranks by 40 per cent, but would add

Panama Girl Walks Now Thanks to Soldiers' Aid

FORT AMADOR, Canal Zone (AP)—Several years ago little Anafilda Gomez was admitted to the Episcopal Bella Vista Children's Home in Panama City at the request of the Panamanian government. She had been paralyzed in one knee and both feet with polio since the age of 17 months. Her home had neither the funds nor facilities to give her the treatment she required.

Newly assigned enlisted personnel at Fort Benning are: 151st Engineer Group: Sgt. Bernard C. Benson, Sgt. Leal T. Teal and Charles F. Walker from other units of the battalion.

Then the members of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Abou Saoud Temple in Balboa, P.F., entered the picture. They arranged for the little girl to enter the St. Francis Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield, Mass., with free therapy and treatment.

The money collected by the soldiers paid for her traveling expenses.

Middle's first trip to Springfield was made in 1956. Last year she went back for an additional four months on her return to Panama after her problem arose.

It was too late for her to enter school in Panama, so the men of Battery D clipped in to pay her tuition at the Ancon

Lt. Col. Allen Assumes Committee Chairmanship

Lt. Col. Richard J. Allen, recently assigned to the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of the Infantry School, has assumed duties as chairman of the Doctrine and Requirements Committee, Air Mobility Group.

The committee is primarily concerned with the development of new airborne doctrine. Before arriving at Fort Benning, Col. Allen attended the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. He is a graduate of Officers Candidate School, Command and General Staff College and the Armed Forces Staff College. He was commissioned as an Infantry officer in 1942 and qualified as a parachutist the same year.

TO REAL FOR COMFORT
The Rank Organization tries to make all of its motion picture productions as realistic as possible, but in the case of "Robbery Under Arms," realism almost became highly costly and almost resulted in a fatal accident.

While the film was being shot in Australia, four horses drawing a priceless 10-year-old coach pulled as the camera crew was climbing about the coach. After a swerving, lurching and uncontrolled run, the horses were brought to a stop only a few yards from the edge of a ravine. Control was gained only after one of the horses fell, and its weight dragged the other three horses to a standstill.

Reduction Reported In Injuries, Mishaps

A 22 per cent reduction in injuries from operation of private motor vehicles, 80 less traffic violations and a reduction in fatal injuries to military personnel in 1957 were highlights of the annual accident report published by Fort Benning safety officials.

The average injury per private motor vehicle involving military personnel was reduced from $70 in 1956 to $54 in 1957, according to the report. This cost is the amount each private motor vehicle owner at Fort Benning would have to pay if each of these drivers had to meet the hospitalization and injury cost of motor vehicle accidents involving military personnel.

The cost of all accidents was reduced from the 1956 total of $3,480,484 to a 1957 total of $2,683,492.

The Army Infantry Board, Lawson Army Field Command, Special Troops Command and School Brigade were Fort Benning units that reduced the number, cost and frequency rate of injuries in 1957.

In the total mileage driven last year, the number of accidents, their rate of frequency and damage cost, the Infantry Center Ordnance Section, Infantry Board, Infantry Center Engineer Section, Ervood Hospital Section, U. S. Army Hospital, Special Troops Command, Infantry School, School of Bridge and the Infantry School Troop Command equaled the best rates of one for the fiscal year 1958.

In the category of primary unsafe acts or conditions causing accidents, there were 99 cases of backing without looking or using a guide, constituting 71 per cent of the accidents in this classification. Other improper acts by drivers during the year which there were 39 cases, totaled 26 per cent. There were 55 accidents caused by unsafe speeds. This was 19 per cent of the accidents caused by primary unsafe acts or conditions.

Post Toured By Officials of CONARC

Four representatives of the Combat Operations Research Group, Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, Va., visited Fort Benning for three days of conferences on research activities and tactical demonstrations last week.

Feb. 14 they witnessed Infantry School Tactical and Weapons Department presentations of a helicopter rifle company assault with supporting fires and a reinforced rifle company in night defense. The demonstrations were staged for the American Defense Board meeting at Fort Benning Feb. 13 to 14 during which military leaders from 16 nations discussed hemisphere defense.

The Operations Research Group also conferred with officials of the Infantry School's Combat Developments Office and the Infantry Human Research Unit.

Unit Beginning Education Class For Personnel

School days for members of the Army Air Mobility Department who do not have the equivalent of a high school education began Feb. 15.

A group study course to prepare these personnel to take the Army Air Mobility Department's course will be initiated by 1st Lt. Freddie A. Dyer, Department Administrator.

Four subjects will be taught during the course which will be approximately 12 weeks in length. The course will be taught in phases; one phase for each of the subjects included in the course. The subjects to be taught include basic mathematics, English, history, and government. The purpose of instruction will be two hours, twice a week, during duty hours.

Sixteen people have enrolled in the initial phase of the instruction which will be a basic mathematics refresher. Upon the completion of each phase, it is anticipated that the students will take the GED test in the subject completed and then continue on to the next phase of instruction.

League to Present Production Today

The Junior League of Columbus will present its production of "Cinderella" for students of the Fort Benning Children's Schools today.

The 45-minute play will be staged at 9 and 10 a.m. in Faith School Auditorium.

Due to limited seating capacity, only first through eighth-grade students have been invited to attend.

Fire Doused After Alert Student's Call

Alert action by an Allied student at Fort Benning's Infantry School in discovering and reporting a fire resulted in saving equipment and records in the Kelly Hill office of the Ivey Brothers Construction Company.

Capt. Humannsd Iqbal of Pakistan discovered the fire at 2:30 a.m. Feb. 7. It was brought under control in five minutes by fire fighters of Fire Company No. 1 in the main post area and Fire Company No. 5 of the H A R M O Y Church area.

Capt. Iqbal reported the fire to military police, and removed some equipment to safety before arrival of the fire fighters. He remained on the scene and assisted firemen until 4:30 a.m.

News of the fire and the action of Capt. Iqbal became known with the receipt of a letter of commendation to Gilbert A. Ward, chief of the Fort Benning Fire Department, from the Ivey Construction Company, expressing appreciation for prompt action in putting out the fire.

The letter expressed appreciation for the care shown business machines and equipment in the office at the time of the fire. As a result, practically everything in the office was in working order and no records were destroyed, according to the letter signed by A. R. Haslett, project manager.

McPherson CG Ends 2-Year Tour at Post

HEADQUARTERS THIRD ARMY, Fort McPherson, Georgia — Lt. Col. Joseph D. McNally completed a two-year tour of duty as post commander at Fort McPherson recently. He is slated to attend the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., then will probably be given an assignment with a Joint Army Air Force Command in either Iceland or Greenland.

Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Third Army Commanding General, awarded McNally the Third Army certificate of achievement in an appropriate ceremony in the general's office.

The citation said in part that McNally "displayed exceptional professional knowledge, executive ability and determination in all phases of his operations, thereby providing Headquarters Third Army with invaluable support assistance and contributing materially to the successful accomplishment of his mission."

During his tour at Fort McPherson he launched a program of relocating various dispersed post activities to provide greater convenience and efficiency. Among items accomplished by the program are the following: the two former separate motor pools were consolidated; athletic facilities were relocated in the vicinity of Talmadge Field, a new larger commissary was put into operation, facilities at the Atlanta Recreation Center were expanded, a large parking lot was developed in the place formerly occupied by a motor pool, and the Post Library was doubled in size.

McNally started his Army career as an enlisted man in 1946 and by the end of World War II he was an infantry major. He participated in the Normandy invasion with the First Engineer Special Brigade for which he received the Croix de Guerre for meritorious service. He was awarded the Bronze Star for action in the battle of the Bulge.

Prior to his tour at Fort McPherson, he served in the Pentagon with the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. In this assignment he was one of three original planning officers for Operation Gyroscope.

He was graduated from the Infantry School at Fort Benning in 1942 and from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth in 1946.

Son of Army Colonel Former Actor Plays Student Officer Role

By M-Sgt. Clark Blackburn. A former New York City actor is now a student officer at Fort Benning. Lloyd B. Ramsey, son of Army Colonel John A. Farmer, presently assigned to the 24th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade. L. Farmer, whose father is an Army colonel, has lived with his parents throughout most of the world, and was graduated from Heidelberg's American High School in Germany in 1951.

Farmer, a top on graduate from high school, enrolled in his father's alma mater, the University of Washington at Seattle. During his four years there he took part in 24 theatrical productions and was voted the best actor in the school in 1956.

Upon completion of college, L. Farmer took part in Canadian summer stock productions for three years in Vancouver, B. C. His next stop was in New York City where he joined actors Equity and took part in summer stock there.

The last professional production in which he participated prior to his entry in the Army was "South Pacific" with Martha Wright playing the part of Nellie Forthright made famous by Mary Martin.

L. Farmer's aunt, Francis Farmer, well known screen star during the late 30s and early 40s, possibly had more to do with his becoming interested in acting than anyone else. "She was under contract to Metro-Goldwyn Studios, and appeared in movies in co-starring roles with such greats as Joan Crawford, George Sanders, Tyrone Power.

Russian Might Described By 'Information Digest'
WASHINGTON (ANS) — Today's Soviet Army weapons and equipment are of the highest quality and its firepower is second to no other nation, reports the U.S. Army Information Digest in its March issue. Evaluating the strength of new Russian weapons and vehicles displayed during a recent Moscow parade, this official Army magazine says: "It is evident that no effort or expense has been spared to equip the Soviet Ground Forces with the most effective weapons and equipment of all types that modern techniques can provide. Weapons and vehicles unveiled for the first time during the parade include: A 15-mile range rocket mounted and launched from a full-tracked amphibious vehicle. A 35-foot surface-to-surface missile mounted on a modified 351 heavy tank chassis and launcher fitted with a U-shaped platform for vertical launching. A 300-mile mobile ballistic missile similar to the World War II German V-2 missile. Two types of superheavy self-propelled artillery pieces mounted on heavy tank chassis with gun calibers of about 12 inches and 30 feet in length. Shells for these guns could carry nuclear warheads. A tracked amphibious armored personnel carrier capable of carrying 15 soldiers. It is armed with a 72.7 mm. heavy machine gun. A self-propelled twin 57 mm. anti-aircraft weapon that can provide effective defense against aircraft from heights up to 10,000 feet. Soldiers Aid Scout Work In Germany

VAHINGEN, Germany (ANF) — Scouting among military personnel stationed in Germany offers advantages and suffers from handicaps not duplicated in the United States. There is the shortage of trained adult leaders due to rotation of military personnel. Soldiers who volunteer as scout leaders also find several advantages: They receive training, which in practice affects other old jobs around the camp.

Sfc Disposes Of Trophies In Novel Way

SCHOFFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii — To the wife who grew tired of dusting and polishing her husband's sporting trophies, a soldier of the 23rd Infantry Division here may have the answer. Just encourage the spouse to emulate Sfc Frank Candella, whose co-horties are shooting and doing something to combat possible juvenile delinquency. Twice weekly, Candella presides at sessions of the Junior Hawaiian Nisei Gun Club and is gradually giving away all his many trophies and medals as performance incentives in Junior matches.

Unit Departs for Repair Project At Ranger Camp in Destin, Fla.

By BILL BOWLES
Company A, 49th Engineer Battalion, has been assigned a project to build and repair bunkers, repair picnic areas, and rebuild roads at the Ranger training camp near Destin, Fla.

An advanced party departed Feb. 26, with the remainder of the company following on Feb. 27. The project will take approximately 16 days.

Combat Course
The 49th Engineer Battalion began conducting a 12 week combat engineer course for approximately 350 trainees on Feb. 10. The cycle is being trained to replace personnel of the 78th Engineer Battalion (Contract), Karlsruhe, Germany.

An orientation was held on the first day by Lt. Col. Altek F. McDonald, battalion commander. He spoke on the history of the 49th Engineer Battalion, history of the Corps of Engineers, and gave a brief summary of subjects that the trainees will become familiar with.

Refresher Training
The 57th Engineer Battalion is now in the third week of its Army Training Program which started on Jan. 20. During this training the 57th will undergo refresher training in mine and land warfare, military constructions, road and airfield constructions, physical training, and dismounted drill. The ninth week of the program will be devoted to range firing and the eleventh and twelfth weeks to field exercises. In the thirteenth week the 57th will take the Army Training Test.

Resume Command
Lt. Col. John G. Farmer and Major Ralph S. Favorite, commanding officer and executive officer respectively of the 57th Engineer Battalion, resumed their duties on Feb. 10. Lt. Col. Farmer returned from the Federal Civil Defense Administration School at Olney, Md., and Major Favorite returned from Fort Stewart, Ga., where he was acting as chief umpire for the Army Training Test being administered to the 189th Engineer Battalion (Contract).

New Assignments
1st Lt. W. E. Mundy has been assigned as executive officer of the 49th Engineer Battalion training company. Prior to this assignment, Lt. Mundy was assigned to the 1st Battle Group, Ninth Infantry Division. He is a veteran of the Korean conflict and holds the Bronze Star Medal, Korean Service Medal, and the United Nations Service Medal. Major Capt. Higinio Gonzalez has been named assistant S-4 officer of the 49th Engineer Battalion. Lt. John R. Marcellio has replaced Capt. Gonzalez as commanding officer of Company B in the battalion.

DOD Reveals Silent Arms

WASHINGTON (APPS) — Medieval-looking weapons that can fire a deadly projectile silently and without a flash have been disclosed by the Defense Department. The weapons are souped-up bows and arrows — more specifically, crossbows — which were developed during WWII.

DEFENSE REVEALS SILENT WEAPONS Can Be Fired Without Flash, Deadly, Flexible

Advancement of Science. Work was done at Northwestern University. A one-hand model called little Joe could be used to fire darts with deadly effect up to 25 yards. It could be potentially useful to saboteurs as it can be carried under a coat. A two-hand model had a killing range of 80 yards.

Another crossbow was designed to throw a flare 900 feet. The bows used rubber for the firing force, something on the idea of a slingshot.

Mrs. Greer Hosts Monthly Luncheon Of Air Force Ladies Mrs. Harold E. Greer was hostess at the monthly luncheon of the Infantry School Air Force — Air Mobility Department's ladies group in her home Feb. 12.

Welcomed to the group were Mrs. William J. Beck and Mrs. Richard Allen. Farewells were said to Mrs. Marcia Coyne and Mrs. Horst Jost and Mrs. Leroy Ewing. Thirty guests were present for the event.

NAKED TRUTH No matter how hard scientists, an artist's model is nearly always unsuited for her work.

GE Veep Named Director Defense Agency Formed to Direct Military's Outer Space Projects

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Secretary Neil H. McElroy has formed a new Defense Department agency to direct advanced research in the development of antimissile missiles and the application of satellites and outer space projects to military purposes.

In announcing organization of the new office, to be called the Advanced Research Projects Agency, Mr. McElroy also revealed that:

The Army no longer is to be limited to the use of guided missiles with a 200-mile range. He feels the Air Force should operate unmanned space vehicles expected to be developed.

Roy W. Johnson, Executive Vice President of General Electric Co., will become Director of ARPA about April 1. Prior to that date, he will spend two or three days a week in his new Washington assignment.

William H. Holday retains his present responsibility as Director of Guided Missiles, while Mr. Johnson will take over in the antimissile missile, satellite and other outer space fields.

ARPA has been organized under a broad directive intended to permit assignment of other than space projects. This was done by the Defense Secretary explained, because technology is moving ahead so rapidly in uncharted fields and so that "we will not miss out on some potentially strong weapon device by the services."

The ban was lifted on the 200-mile range for Army missiles to permit development of

GLAD RAGS Two attractive 20-year-old Swedish girls, on a vacation in France, were delighted to be seized by apparently mad Rank Organization technicians, smeared with mud and dressed in rags. The girls, Ingegerd Jansson and Marianne Nilquist, both students at Upsala College, were chosen for the roles in the new Rank production of "A Tale of Two Cities."

The parts they were cast in were those of slum girls in the French pre-revolution days. Hence the mud and rags.

IMMEDIATE ACTION A nurse was showing the sergeant to his room. "Now," she said, "we want you to be happy in your room. You know while here, so if there's anything you want that we haven't got, let us know and I'll show you how to get along without it."

Guards Cited At Ceremony February 15

The Infantry Center honored 12 Range Guards from the 1st Military Police Company at a formal guard-mount on Chapel Field Feb. 15.

Honored were 2nd Lt. John H. Sutherland, M-Sgt. George George Davis, William Sikes, Lee Patterson, J. W. Hay, R. F. Scarborough, Kinard Lunch, Benjamin Seiny, George Lane, Sies Carl Train, John Reynolds and Robert Hatfield.

Their citation reads in part, "Since the days of World War I when Fort Benning was first founded, range guards have been engaged in law enforcement and prevention and the preservation of the fish and wildlife found through the huge military installation."

Armed Forces Day Big Exhibition Planned To Kickoff 1958 Event

WASHINGTON (APPS) — The 1958 observance of Armed Forces Day will be launched world-wide with the opening on May 10 of the biggest military exhibition ever attempted in the nation's capital. The Washington area celebration will be held at Andrews AFB, Md., and will start a week ahead of the traditional date for the military installation open houses. The annual Armed Forces Day parade in Washington will not be held this year in deference to ceremonies for the Unknown War Dead of WWII and Korea, according to Assistant Secretary of Defense Murray Spayd.

Although May 17, the third Saturday in the month, has been set aside as Armed Forces Day, commands and communities have been authorized to schedule programs during the preceding week to suit local conditions.

This year, so that feature displays and demonstrations presented in Washington may be moved to other cities for exhibition, the area observance has been scheduled a week earlier as a national "kick off" for open house activities and world wide military installations.

Active and reserve components of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard will participate in elaborate and spectacular displays of the theme "Power for Peace" at Andrews.

Mamie Tells Italian Producer No; She Won't Dye Her Hair Brunette

(AFPS Weekly Feature) Way back when the popularity of a hit song was measured by sheet music sales, instead of a juke box, Lew Brown wrote the lyrics for more than a thousand songs including the million-sellers "You're Top in Cream in My Coffee," "Black Bottom" and "Button Up Your Overcoat." In the 30s he transferred his talents to Hollywood and became a successful producer. Lew, another all-time great, died at the age of 64 on Feb. 5 in NYC.

Officials Ask Seal Returns

Officials of the Columbus-area Tuberculosis Association have asked Fort Benning personnel who have not returned their contribution envelopes for the annual Christmas TB Seals distributed before the holidays to do so at once. Although they expressed appreciation for those contributions already received, they pointed out that without the additional support of personnel who have not yet made donations, the cost of getting the seals to Fort Benning will be more than double the amount of returns.

Distributed in Dec. In December, 35,000 Christmas TB Seals with $5.00 fly-ers were distributed through authorized channels to Fort Benning military and civilian personnel. In January, $5,000 postage paid return envelopes were distributed so that post personnel could support with their donations the organized fight against tuberculosis.

Study Shows Forecasting Improvement WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Weather forecasting has been "markedly improved" south of the Equator through International Geophysical Year studies. That was brought out recently in an interim round-up report by Hugh Odishaw, executive secretary of the United States National Committee for the IGY. Mr. Odishaw said 12 nations had set up about 50 scientific observatories in Antarctica, which made it possible for the first time to prepare daily weather maps of the area. As a result, he said, "weather forecasting has already been markedly improved in the Southern Hemisphere."

Rangers Set Stag Dinner On March 11

A stag reception and dinner for all Ranger officers will be held on March 11, 1958 at Fort Benning. The affair is being sponsored by the officers of the Ranger Department and the Infantry School. The party will be in observance of the 20th anniversary of the founding of the first American unit bearing the title "Ranger."
For information on reservations, write to the Ranger Department, TIC, Fort Benning, or telephone Fort Benning, Extension 6-5213.
The affair will be staged and begin at 6 p.m. in the Main Officers Club. The occasion will be a reunion for all officers who served in Ranger units during World War I in Korea and graduates of the Ranger Course.
There is no direct connection between Ranger organizations which fought in the various wars involving the United States. Each war has produced its own Ranger counterpart. In the history of America, the first such organization was formed by Robert Rogers in 1768. The unit was made up of hardy men who enjoyed accepting the challenges of the rough terrain. They faced the hazards and hardships of living in the open with the boldness typical of our frontiersmen. Rogers' unit served with the British Army during the French and Indian Wars. The Rangers served as the main scouting arm of the British Army.
The military history of America is filled with records of Ranger exploits. The saga includes the exploits of the Rangers in Korea and the Ranger Battalions of World War II.

Post to Get 2d Division 10th Designation Slated For Retirement by Army

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powel, commanding general of the 10th Division, announced this week that he had been informed by the Department of the Army that designation of Second Infantry Division will be replaced that of 10th Infantry Division when the latter returns to Fort Benning from Germany this spring.
The 10th Division designation will be retired. The Second Division is presently on the active rolls of the Army but, at zero strength following a reduction of personnel and transfer of personnel units to other division elements to Army Command at Alaska last December.
Early in 1943, the Division was sent to Ireland. The "Second to Ninth" Division fought World War II battles at St. Jean des Basants, July, 1944, and Brest, September, 1944. It remained in garrison for 23 years.
In October, 1940, the Division underwent a streamlining, becoming the first triangular division.

Army Dental Corps Marks 47th Anniversary Mar. 3

Fort Benning's 53 Army dentists will observe the 47th anniversary of the Army Dental Corps March 3.
More than half a century of patience and conscientious efforts by the dental profession to secure the appointment of dental surgeons in the Army and Navy culminated in the formal establishment of the Dental Corps March 3, 1911.
Head of the Dental Section at the Infantry Center is Col. Clyde D. Outman Jr., post dental surgeon. His staff includes 53 officer dentists, one administrative officer, 60 enlisted laboratory and dental technicians and 29 civilian employees.
The Dental Section at Fort Benning operates four dental clinics, Dispensary A, at the Infantry Center, Ward A-14 at the U. S. Army Hospital, and the Sand Hill and Harmony Church clinics in the two outlying areas of the post. In addition there is a dental laboratory, the manufacturing plant for dentures, and the Third Army Orthodontic Treatment Center, the only one of its kind in the southeastern military area.
Headquarters Clinics:
Heading the four clinics are Lt. Col. Henry A. Goodall, deputy dental surgeon and chief of Dispensary A; Lt. Col. Elbert L. Fenske, oral surgeon and chief of Ward A-14; Major Fred F. Fox, chief of the Sand Hill clinic, and Lt. Col. Thomas B. Seay, chief of the Harmony Church clinic.
In 1957 the Dental Section handled 388,468 dental treatments for Fort Benning troops. Permanent fillings totaled 65,171; X-rays, 90,274, and teeth replacements, 31,562.
The Army Dental Corps, operating one of the most extensive adult dental care programs in the world, originated with Dr. Edward Maynard, one of 18 distinguished dentists of this day. From 1862 he had died in 1891 he kept the seed of dental medicine alive and fresh in the minds of succeeding administrations. Just 10 years after his death the major battle was won with the first permanent military dental legislation in the Army Reorganization Bill of 1901.

Rites Mark 1st Families In Capehart

Prominent Fort Benning and Columbus officials gathered at the post Feb. 22 for opening ceremonies of one of the largest Capehart Housing projects in the nation.
Ribbon-cutting ceremonies were staged at the quarters of Major and Mrs. Letcher Crawford and Major and Mrs. Samuel R. Bennett to officially open the $14 million, 1,000-unit project.
"Many thousands of Army families will live in these fine homes," Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, said at the ceremonies.
"It is our privilege to open them," Gen. Powell added.
Community Cooperation
The Fort Benning commander expressed his appreciation to Williams Congregation of Columbus for the "momentum they have built to community cooperation in this area" and to the Army.

To Meet Challenge 50 Per Cent Better Education at Benning

Slightly more than 50 per cent of military personnel at Fort Benning who should be bettering their education are taking advantage of educational opportunities provided by the Army, post education officials revealed this week.
The educational attainment of the individuals that make up the Armed Forces has become a matter of grave concern for the leaders of the Armed Forces. The challenge of the modern age with its increased technical and academic requirements has caused the leaders to stress repeatedly the necessity of higher educational qualifications of military personnel.
The Educational Development Section is prepared to help military personnel complete elementary, high school, and four years of college training.
There are several ways in which the serviceman can further his education training while serving at Fort Benning.
The most lucrative source for acquiring college credits is the University of Georgia at Columbus Center. Persons eligible for college credit may attend the evening classes at Baker High School on Tuesday and Thursday evening, or Jordan High School on Monday nights for Fort Benning troops. Permanent fillings totaled 65,171; X-rays, 90,274, and teeth replacements, 31,562.

Dinner to Mark West Point Birth

Graduates and former cadets of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., are invited to the anniversary day dinner March 15 in the Main Officers Mess at Fort Benning. Additional information may be obtained from Capt. Joseph Finley, Infantry Center Post Education Section, telephone Fort Benning 2-4211, or 2-3222.

Dental

Thank You For Continuing of military dental history that the Confederate Army recognized the need of Army dentistry and included dental surgeons in their organization while the Union Army had no dental care. During World War I, approximately 4,600 Army dental officers were on duty at one time and more than 15,000 in World War II.

The man at the head of this huge world-wide network of dental services, the Army Dental Corps, is scholarly Major

Education

Thank You For Continuing and Wednesday evenings. Three-fourths of the tuition for these courses will be paid by the government from the approval of enrollment by the Educational Development Section. USARV. Ten quarter hours of college work can be carried each quarter at the University of Georgia Centers.

Two Curricula The two curricula offered by the Centers are those of Business Administration and Education.

Another possibility for the earning of both high school and college credit is through the successful completion of United States Armed Forces Institute courses. Many of the institute freshman and sophomore college courses are offered through the expense of the Army. In pursuing these courses is negligible.

Correspondence courses can be obtained and work carried on directly with many of the leading Universities of this country. The government will pay approximately half the tuition fee for these correspondence courses, but they must be arranged for through the Educational Development Section.

Two-Year College

The Department of Defense will recognize the successful completion of many end-of-course tests and will accept them toward the two-year college equivalency required for officers' integration into the regular Army.

Foreign language classes are being conducted at the Army Educational Center in German, Russian, Spanish and French. The next cycle of the foreign language classes will begin during the first part of April. Additional information may be obtained from the Educational Development Center, Building 2512, Fort Benning, telephone 3-6111.

Housing

Thank You For Continuing Engineer Corps for its supervisory work. "This is one of the great projects that we are pushing to stabilize our Army—to provide for the backbone of our Army, the non-commissioned officer, and retain his services," he continued.

The newly opened first increment of Capehart Housing consists of 56 sets each for officers and enlisted personnel. The project will include 248 units for officers and 752 for enlisted men when completed next November.

All the structures are of brick veneer and contain three bedrooms and most modern equipment.

Mrs. Powell cut the ribbon at the ceremonies as The Infantry Center band played "There's No Place Like Home."

Gen. Powell was introduced by Col. O. Z. Tyler, Infantry Center chief of staff. Chaplain (LL Col.) Joseph J. Kernell, Infantry Center sacrist chaplain, delivered the invocation.

Attend State Convention in Columbus Hospital Assn. Delegates View Display of Medical Management

Approximately 140 delegates of the annual Georgia Hospital Association convention witnessed a demonstration on medical management of mass casualties at Fort Benning Feb. 26. The 54th Medical Group at Fort Benning, commanded by Col. Harry C. McCain, presented the dramatic demonstration from 2 to 4 p.m. at Burns Hill. Approximately 165 personnel from the 54th Group participated in the project.

Meets in Columbus The hospital association convention attended by professional and administrative representatives throughout the state met in Columbus at the Ralston Hotel Feb. 26 and 27. Also viewing the station problem was Civil Defense officials of the surrounding Georgia-Alabama communities, Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, personnel from Third Army headquarters, Fort McPherson, Ga., and Fort Benning military and dependent personnel.

Focal Point Focal point of the mass management problem was explosion of a simulated atomic bomb and the affected area and personnel. Emphasis was on the stark reality of mass casualty under nuclear conditions and the establishment of medical relief and sorting. The demonstration was designed to represent a situation created by the explosion of an atomic bomb in any area where a concentration of people exists. For purposes of exposure and effectiveness was a wartime field of military operations and the troops of a fighting force.

Simulated Blast Spectators in covered stands witnessed an atomic explosion in the midst of unwarned troops on the "fighting lines." Guests viewed a forceful sample of chaos, confusion and terror with all the components of human suffering and injury. Visitors then witnessed the detailed training, planning and preparation of Army medical units in conducting mass management of atomic casualties. They gave life-saving treatment and evacuation is the goal of medical care in a mass casualty situation, officials stated.

Copter Evacuation Helicopter evacuation units moved into the area providing supportive measures to the entire operation. Of particular interest and significance to the hospital visitor was the extensive use of monologues, or simulated wound patches, applied to "casualty personnel" for more natural effects in conducting the demonstration.

Cordinator of the demonstration was Major William A. Passey, 54th Group executive officer. Officer in charge of "casualty" preparation was Lt. Lt. Thomas L. Trydum, Headquarters Detachment, 54th Medical Group.

PROMOTED TO CAPTAIN Warren P. Brown of the 29th Infantry has been promoted to Captain. He received his bars in a ceremony at the office of Col. Joseph C. Sandlin, 29th commanding officer.

MAJOR AYLOR . . . A letter of commendation from the Republic of China Army has been presented to Major James L. Aylor, chief of the Publications Branch of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, for his service with the U. S. Army Military Assistance Group on Formosa from December, 1955, to September, 1957.

Deterring Force

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Citing cases of "Sputnik diplomacy," the Army Information Digest for March reported that today's Communist capabilities seem more likely to be applied to limited aggression rather than to general war.

"For one thing," this official Army magazine stated in a feature article entitled "The U. S. Army Deterrent Force," the Soviet rulers have nothing to gain and everything to lose by any act that would open their homeland the full might of nuclear retaliatory power.

Recent and much-publicized progress in Soviet weapons and technology increases the odds against an all-out war, the Digest said, adding: "Their (Soviet) recognition of this fact is demonstrated by recent examples of diplomatic Norway concerning United States bases in those countries; their charges that Turkey harbors aggressive designs against Syria. Other instances of so-called Sputnik diplomacy could be cited, and more can be expected."

Declaring on the other hand, that the one factor that can decrease the likelihood of limited war is the clear and convincing evidence that such an attack could not succeed without incurring prohibitive cost, the magazine explained: "A major part of this clear and convincing evidence must continue to be provided by an adequately manned, well-trained, suitably equipped, tactically and strategically mobile, and above all, high spirited United States Army."

"The Digest" then said that today's Army forces, both at home and overseas, are constantly improving their capabilities for deterrent and fighting missions. The improvements, it asserted, are both quantitative and cover all aspects of assigned functions.

Later, discussing the deterrent tasks of the United States Army, the magazine concluded: "Regardless of the importance of the equipment, the final importance of the Army as a deterrent force depends upon the skill, intelligence, and determined courage of the people who use these (new) implements."

Income Tax: IV

Taxpayers Can Deduct Interest on Debts

This is the fourth in a series of articles by AFPS on federal income taxes based on information from the Internal Revenue Service.

If you itemize deductions on page two of Form 1040, you can deduct interest paid on your personal debts, such as bank loans and home mortgages.

You cannot deduct interest paid on money borrowed to buy tax-exempt securities or single-premium life insurance, nor interest paid on behalf of another person unless you were legally liable to pay it.

You can deduct a portion of so-called "carrying charges" paid on installment purchases of personal property such as automobiles, television sets, etc., where the interest charges are not separately stated.

Compute the average unpaid monthly balance by adding up the unpaid balance at the beginning of each month and dividing the total by 12. For example, assume that on July 15, 1957, you bought a television set for $254 plus a carrying charge of $20. Assume you paid $50 and are paying the balance (starting Aug. 10) at the rate of $14 per month.

The portion of the carrying charge deductible as interest for 1957 is computed as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes unpaid balance including carrying charges, interest on cash balance, and average monthly unpaid balance.

Sometimes money is borrowed on a discount basis. That is, the interest is subtracted in advance and you sign a note for a larger amount than you receive. If you report on the cash basis on your tax return, you may deduct this discount as interest only at the time you pay the note.

BY CHAPLAIN (1st LT.) MURRAY L. LERER

On all sides today we are confronted with confusion and conflict. In this age of jet propulsion, of rocketry, of speed, of razor-sharp competition, when people are caught in a tangle of emotions and nervous strain, life seems aimless.

In like manner, we swing our religion to and fro. We institute forums and conferences, brotherhood weeks, attempt to make religion attractive by emphasizing other extra-curricular activities so that amidst the greater clamor of necessity become more of a social than a spiritual leader.

The Judge Says...

Are you a capitalist? If so, you have additional problems in reporting your income tax. Both Sergeant Bond-Alliment and Captain Share-Holder will have to go through some additional computation in arriving at a true and correct income tax return since Uncle Sam keeps complete dividend records to eventually determine who owns additional taxes, who does not.

Sergeant Bond-Alliment's income from savings bonds are classed as interest and are reported as such on page three of the return. Also, if he has money in a savings account or a savings and loan association, this is also interest and he must report this return. If the Sergeant has not checked up to see how much interest he has earned, this is no excuse. All interest must be reported. There is a choice in reporting interest on government bonds which Sergeant Bond-Alliment must make in reporting the earned interest on these bonds. He can look on the back of the bond and see how much interest that bond has earned for the year and report it, or he can wait until the Government bond holder has computed his interest, then he can report the interest earned on it at that time. For example, on a $25 bond, Sergeant Bond-Alliment paid $175 for it. When the bond matures he should report $62.25 as interest income. If he chooses to report annually, he cannot subsequently deduct the unreported but

Argentians Sweep Peronist to President

BUENOS AIRES — Lufit, lawyer Arturo Frondizi this week won the six-year presidential term in Argentina.

Shortly before midnight Monday, unofficial tallies gave Frondizi, who ran with Peron's blessing, 652,552 to 392,565 for his moderate opponent, Ricardo Balbo.

Peronists supporters abandoned blank ballot protest to give Frondizi an apparent smashing victory.

Official tallies lagged behind, but confirmed the trend and the fact that the Peronists were voting for him.

Frondizi claimed victory in a statement saying he had no commitments to any one and will rule for the good of all Argentines.

Reginaldo Manabens Calvet, chairman of the national committee in Buenos Aires Province, said the Radical party, virtually conceded defeat long before midnight as the counting of 81 million ballots progressed.

Illusionist Schedules Shows Feb. 27-28

Fort Benning will be host to one of the top illusionist shows in the nation when the Third Army Special Services presents the show of the post's Service Club Feb. 27-28.

The show will be held at the U. S. Army Hospital recreation hall at 2 p.m. Feb. 27. At 8:30 p.m. the show will be presented at Service Club No. 2. Feb. 28. It will appear at 8:30 p.m. at the post's Service Club No. 2 at 8:30 p.m.

Stuart Miller, billed as "Rollin and Company", is one of the few Army entertainers in his field. Now a boyish looking 22, he is no novice to the art of illusion.

He served his apprenticeship touring throughout North America with several of America's top magicians. He formed and published his repertoire of a series of engagements throughout the Northeast in theaters, clubs and at fairs.

Miller's act, built around ducks, doves, canaries, rabbits, guinea pigs and two attractive girl assistants, has been a great hit wherever he has appeared.

One of Miller's notable accomplishments took place in Houston, Texas, in June, 1957. At that time, the international convention of magicians was being held for entertainers. Miller was one of the few Americans to appear on the program. He was named "International Star of Magic."

Pilots Learn Instruments At Gordon

FORT GORDON, Ga. — The last escape from weather is UP," writes the author of safety tactics in an Army flying publication.

"Therefore the first requirement for an aviator, before he pushes the weather at all, is instrument training, and an instrument ticket."

More than 150 flyers, pilots of the Army's relatively low and slow-flying planes, are scheduled to get that training, and that ticket, at the Third Army's Contract Instrument Flight School at Augusta's Bush Field during the school's first year of operation that ends next August.

They are qualified pilots—some with long experience—but their instrument time is limited to the 40 hours the Army's basic flight school training includes. "For familiarization only."

To fly on instruments, a pilot must hold "the ticket." This new school is doing its part within Third Army to assure that its pilots have one by 1960.

The operating agency, under contract to Central American Airways Flying Service, has a staff of 15 civilian teachers, 30 classroom hours, 40 hours in the Link trainer, and 70 hours of instructor, and 10 on "buddy rides" with other students.

Final arbiter of the students' qualifications for getting "the ticket" is the Third Army Instrument Examination Board, headed by Captain Neely R. Brown.

Chaplain

Thank You For Continued Service. If we are to find a way out of this confusion and rid our hearts of fear, we must then seek new sources of strength both within and outside ourselves. Let us listen to the words of David the Psalmist for such a solution: "It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in man. It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in princes." Such confidence in the Divinity underlines the false foundation of fear and replaces it with a firm foundation of faith. Kindling the lantern in this manner, will give man a feeling of relatedness to God, the warmth of group fellowship and the subordination of his appetites and passions to the great moral, ethical and spiritual ends. The express purpose of religion, its design for living, is the achievement of the good life in a world abiding in brotherhood and peace. We may owe the lantern of faith, if we but kindle it in the way suggested by Solomon, the Wise Man of Proverbs. "Account not thyself with Him and be at peace."

RC Pledged '58 Support During Drive

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy has pledged Armed Forces support to the traditional March appeal for American Red Cross contributions.

The 1958 fund drive, with a nationwide goal of $80 million, will be conducted at all overseas military installations and in stateside areas where the Red Cross is not included in local Community Chest campaigns.

In an unprecedented series of tornadoes, storms and floods during 1956-57, the Red Cross spent $31 million for disaster relief to 122,000 U.S. families, depleting resources and emergency reserves.

The Red Cross is faced with current expenses of $38 million for services to Armed Forces members and veterans, and in 1958 is the most critical period in the 77-year history of the national well-known organization, according to Red Cross officials.

Last year, the Red Cross Home Service helped an average of 105,000 military families a month. This is in addition to assistance to more than 86,000 servicemen monthly at installations.

In a memorandum to the Secretary of the Army, Navy and Air Force, Mr. McElroy said: "The services of the Red Cross to members of 13 Armed Forces, its blood donor program, disaster relief, and community and international activities merit our admiration and support."

"I heartily endorse this appeal for needed funds that the Red Cross may continue its excellent humanitarian work."

The March drive for donations in the services will be based on voluntary giving with no quotas and no goals, as established by Defense directives governing campaigns for charities.

Army Starts Record Flight Of Seminoles

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Six were flown from the U.S. to Heideberg, Germany. To date, 11 Seminoles have been flown to Europe and two to Thailand.

An Army spokesman said the L-23D has a normal flying range of 800 miles but added fuel tanks extend its range to approximately 1,800 miles. Longest single hop of the flight will be the 1,200 miles from Fort Torrey, Newfoundland, to Lae, New Guinea.

The new airplanes are being delivered to Japan for assignment to Headquarters, Eighth U.S. Army.

Aerial delivery of Army aircraft to overseas destinations was initiated in June of last year when two L-23D Seminoles

Mr. Baruch by Margaret L. Colt. (Houghton, $1.95)

Miss Colt's first book, "John C. Calhoun: American Frontiers" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in biography when its author was only 22 years old. Baruch admired it so much he offered to give Miss Colt free access to the vast collection of papers covering his career. However, it is Miss Colt's book and by no means an "after-the-fact" biography written under the guidance of the subject.

Song of the Aze by N. C. McDonald. (Ballantine, $1.95)

A novel of the early 1900's, when Seattle was still a small town and a man could make his fortune cutting the virgin timber on Puget Sound.

Mrs. Barton Greeted at Luncheon By Officers' Wives of USAISTC

Mrs. Claude D. Barton, wife of Col. Barton, newly appointed commander of the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, was welcomed at a luncheon given by the officers' wives of the Infantry School Troop Command at the Cater Terrace Offices' Club Feb. 19.

Mrs. Lloyd B. Ramsey, wife of Col. Ramsey, commander of the School Troop Command, introduced other new members of the group. They are Mrs. John S. McCord, Mrs. Edward T. Bailey, Mrs. William E. Perry, Mrs. James Hegdon, Mrs. Edward S. McNulty, Mrs. Desmond D. Dwyer, Mrs. Warren P. Brown, Mrs. Lesmon Howell, Mrs. Hugh Madden and Mrs. Kenneth E. McGowdy.

Hostesses for the occasion were wives of the School Troop Command, Mrs. Lloyd B. Ramsey, Mrs. Walter E. Divers, Mrs. Edwin A. Ressler, Mrs. Thomas F. Pelt, Mrs. William J. Lober Jr., Mrs. Robert D. Lynch, Mrs. Joseph J. Odenbrett and Mrs. Hugh J. Hal Jr.

The decorations followed a George Washington Birthday luncheon ladies were centered with American flag, cherry trees and drums.

Among the nearly 75 ladies in attendance was Mrs. Minnie White of Bristol, Tenn., guest of Mrs. Kenneth H. Ferguson.

Four Tea Coffee

Fort Benning's Fourth Battalion cadre wives held their monthly coffee Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. Margaret A. Gonde. Ten ladies attended.

Mrs. Conde and Mrs. Charles D. Lang were hostesses.

The centerpiece was a big heart fashioned from ruffles of lace. A "Dan Cupid" picture was suspended from a heart amid attractive nosegays and little pastel bouquets.

Welcome to the group were Mrs. Clifford H. Bond and Mrs. Ludwig D. Matkovich.

DINNER DANCE

Candidate Company were guests at the Columbus Elks Club Friday evening for a dinner-dance. The Fourth Platoon presented a bygone skit which was most entertaining. An important event of the evening came when End Lt. W. R. Peterson was presented his first lieutenant bars by Capt. Steven R. Johnson, assisted by Mrs. Ethel Willis.

TSB OFFICERS

Wives of officers of the School Brigade headquarters were feted at a coffee Feb. 19. Co-hostesses for the event were Mrs. M. E. Mayre, Mrs. Norman B. Edwards, wife of the commanding general, and Mrs. Adrian L. Hocke.

A farewell was said to Mrs. Howard Carson, whose base is at Ft. Belvoir, Mo., attending the advanced class at the school. She was presented an engraved silver tray.

Mrs. N. J. Deutsch, wife of Capt. Deutsch, was welcomed to the group. Also welcomed to the event was Mrs. S. L. Hollis, wife of Capt. Hollis who is a member of the department. Capt. Hollis will return shortly and Mrs. Hollis has been in Orlando, Fla., readying their home there.

A most welcome guest was Mrs. W. A. Moody of Sylacauga, Ala. Mrs. James Nabors, wife of Lt. Col. Nabors.

ISD DINNER DANCE

A dinner-dance was enjoyed by Infantry School Detachment 15 at King's Pond at Fort Benning. Capt. V. J. McGulley and 1st Lt. A. F. Tost were in command for the occasion which was attended by 40 guests.

The centerpiece was a floral arrangement of double snapdragons and carnations and the mantle was decorated with similar arrangements.

During the program, promotional congratulations were extended to Capt. A. J. Diehl Jr., 1st Lt. B. L. Hardegre and 1st Lt. W. P. Putnam.

Guests were entertained by the master of ceremonies, a juggling act and antics on a unicycle.

Welcome to the group from the Second Battalion were Capt. and Mrs. L. E. Woodard. The Hal Bauer Trio played for dancing following the dinner.

MAJOR GEN. HERBERT B. POWELL For The Infantryman—A Blue Blazer

Ex-soldier's Army Training Pays At Cape Canaveral Missile Base

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (APF)—The knowledge that he is helping make history is helping make history Moser supervises six sections, employing 60 employees and ten military personnel. Eight of the soldiers are scientific and professional specialists, as was Moser himself while he was becoming one of the "second generation" of missile experts being developed by the Army.

The tall, spare "counter-down" is the son of Mrs. Edna E. Schlupe of West Point, Beach, Fla. He was born in Johnstown, Pa., was educated there, in Hagenstown, Md., and completed high school in Daytona Beach.

He was graduated in 1950 from Vanderbilt University as an electrical engineer, later worked as a systems engineer. His wife, the former Carolyn Montgomery of Cranoe, Va., and Greenville, S. C., is a mathematician employed on government contracts.

"It's a kind of crazy situation," says Moser, a quiet man, "but we don't talk about our work at home, though we sometimes know what each other is doing. That's the only way you can be sure you don't breach security."

Sluggers Renew Prison Program

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (APFS)—Kentucky State Prison was the scene of six action-packed fights when the Fort Campbell boxers defeated the prison pugilists, 42, in a team match recently.

Witnessed by more than 1,000 inmates of the penal institution, the bouts marked the second time that Campbell boxers have taken part in the prison's recreational program. The first fights were held one year ago.

Taking off his uniform in 1953, the ex-corporal continued in the same job under a civil service appointment.

Now responsible—at age 29—for coordinating all aspects of the test launching here, he also functions as Deputy Chief, Guidance and Control Group in the Missile Firing Laboratory, a position of nine supervised by Dr. Werner von Braun.

Moser emphasizes the importance of the "team" in the actual firing. "No one man pushes a button," he explains, "but we have none in front of me, but I am in telephone contact with all the people involved."

A participant in all but one Redstone, Jupiter and Juniper launches since August 1953, Moser says so far as his work is concerned one missile is "much the same as another" with the exception of the multi-stage Jupiter C that launched the satellite. It was

NOW

The Bayonet wishes to apologize for the errors in last week's ad which should have read as follows:— We are proud to announce the re-opening and establishment of a completely new film policy at the Village Theatre, located one block off Victory Drive at Baker High School. The Village will show outstanding movies of the past and distinctive, unusual first run films.

Pride and Prestige Blazer Showing Set For Post Next Week

The new Infantry School blazer will be displayed to the public for the first time next week at Fort Benning.

A representative of the manufacturer, Schwartz Tailoring Company of Baltimore and Washington is scheduled to hold showings of the distinctive jacket March 4, 5 and 6 at the Main Officers' Mess, Cater Room No. 1 (Pusan Hall) and the Main Sales Store of the Post Department.

Ancient Tradition

The concept of military personnel wearing a blazer during off duty hours and at social functions follows ancient tradition.

Units and organizations of the armed forces of the British Empire, steeped in history and tradition, have long utilized a blazer or jacket with the unit or organization crest embroidered on the face of the breast pocket. The blazer is worn by members of the unit on all appropriate occasions, readily indicating to all professional associates the parent or home organization of the individual.

The "regimental" blazer has since come to be a great source of admiration at all of the informal affairs where they were worn.

The Infantry School has now adopted an official blazer for optional off duty wear by all personnel of the Infantry Center and Infantry School.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center and commander of The Infantry School, made the final selection early this month and purchased the first blazer to become available. A small stock will be available for immediate sale during the scheduled showings.

Navy Blues

Fort Benning's blazer is navy blue in color, all wool and a single breasted model, featuring Infantry blue sleeve "Navy Blues" patch, is worn on the left breast pocket in the tradition of all blazers. It may be readily removed from the jacket to avoid damage to dry cleaning or pressing.

On completion of arrangements for the showings, schedules indicating time and location will appear in The Infantry Center Daily Bulletin and The Bayonet.

Army Warns Uniform Must Bear Labels

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The Army again cautions that some of its personnel may be spending money for unauthorized uniforms.

According to the Quartermaster General's Office, a variety of semi and dress uniforms for both men and women that have been purchased since Sept. 16, 1957, from sources outside the G.M. cloth, a small stock will be available for immediate sale during the scheduled showings.

The great, featuring embroidered crossed muskies in gold and a miniature silver and blue Infantry School "Pol-low Me" patch, is worn on the left breast pocket in the tradition of all blazers. It may be readily removed from the jacket to avoid damage to dry cleaning or pressing.

On completion of arrangements for the showings, schedules indicating time and location will appear in The Infantry Center Daily Bulletin and The Bayonet.

NANCY STILES, 1958 HOSPITAL Sweetheart
Her Lucky Sponsor is Pfc. Ronald Luken

For 1958 Miss Stiles Selected Hospital Sweetheart

Miss Nancy Ruth Stiles, Lynnfield, Mass., was chosen Sweetheart of the U. S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning for 1958 at an American Red Cross Valentine party for hospital patients.

Sponsor for Miss Stiles in the hospital-wide contest was Pfc. Ronald Luken, a patient at the Fort Benning hospital.

The Valentine party held in the hospital Red Cross room on each hospital ward by Gray Ladies and the Red Cross hospital staff. Patients submitted photographs of their girlfriends, wives, mothers or daughters from which were chosen individual ward Sweethearts.

Miss Stiles' sponsor for the occasion was Miss Jackie Arington of WRBL Radio and TV in Columbus, who conducted a disc jockey and musical quiz show which was broadcast throughout the wards.

Party hostesses and refreshments for patients on the wards as well as those in the recreation hall were arranged by Mrs. Rexell Fabiani of the Department and program "at home with Rosell."

Sweetheart winners for the 12 wards and their sponsors are: Ward 1, Shelia, Seattle, Wash., submitted by Pvt. James Bennett; Ward 2, Shir Ronald Luken, a patient at the Fort Benning hospital; Ward 3, submitted by Pfc. Gary W. Toner; Ward 4, Rose Marie Januszko, submitted by Pfc. Edward C. Fisher; Ward 5, submitted by 1st Lt. L. Abbot; Ward 6, Bernadette Robertson, submitted by 1st Lt. L. Abbot; Ward 7, submitted by 1st Lt. L. Abbot; Ward 8, Shirley A. Commo Wives View Average Army Wife

"The Average Army Wife" was the theme for the Feb. 26, 1958, average army wife of the officer's wives of the Communication Department held on Volusia Day, Feb. 14 in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Mess.

Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. John T. Corley, she was joined by Misses James C. Pleasant and C. Stullman, Patrick J. McDonnell, and E. J. Straker Jr.

Travel folders were placed around the inside edge of the Ustapage table which was decorated with displays depicting some phases in the life of an army wife: "Moving Day" included a moving van surrounded by tin furniture; "Changing Patches" contained a sewing kit, measuring tape, and a collection of shoulder patches; "World Traveler" consisted of a globe, dolls and gifts from foreign countries; "Busy Girl" spotlighted a hazy cocktail glass, bridge table and a miniature coffee service; and grocery items comprised the "Commissary Day" display. "Certificate of Achievement" were used as place cards.

Following a brief business meeting, the president, Mrs. James S. Pleasant, introduced a pageant, "The Average Army Wife" presented by members of the club. The chorus which introduced each scene, consisted of Mesdames Louis G. Gibson, Joseph J. Plaszczynski and Pericles L. Therianos. Shopping thru Mrs. Gregor T. Young enacted the roll of "Non-concurrent Travel" above the Black Hills of South Dakota to a height of 8,623 feet. It was named by three officers in the joint Army Air Corps-National Geographic Society effort to reach the top of the earth's atmosphere.

On Armistice Day, 1933, Explorer II carried Army Capt. Albert H. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson to a new record height of 72,385 feet. It was named by three officers in the joint Army Air Corps-National Geographic Society effort to reach the top of the earth's atmosphere.

Explorer II carried a ton of scientific equipment and added greatly to our store of knowledge of cosmic rays, high altitude ozone, light chemical and electrical conditions, and radio transmission from space.

This record stood for 21 years, until striven in 1956 and 1957 exceeded it in newer manned balloons and rocket planes.

Still another manned balloon, Explorer III, will attempt an even higher during experiment. Two Air Force paratroopers plan to take the new balloon 50,000 feet or higher and jump to test the survival of flyers forced to eject from rocket planes.

REUNION SET
NEW YORK (APFS) — A reunion of correspondents who were present March 7, 1945, when the Ninth Army Division captured the Remagen Bridge over the Rhine River is planned for March 6 at the Officers' Mess Club here.

Mrs. Riordan concludes her remarks to the average army wife of the officer's wives of the Communication Department.

Name Picked For Satellite By President

NEW YORK (APFS) — Did you know that Explorer, the name of the first American satellite, was chosen by President Eisenhower from a list of suggestions submitted by the Army?

But this was not the first U.S. Explorer to search out the secrets of the heavens and send valuable information to scientists.

Back in 1934 Explorer 1, a huge balloon inflated with hydrogen, rose above the Black Hills of South Dakota to a height of 8,623 feet. It was named by three officers in the joint Army Air Corps-National Geographic Society effort to reach the top of the earth's atmosphere.

On Armistice Day, 1933, Explorer II carried Army Capt. Albert H. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson to a new record height of 72,385 feet. It was named by three officers in the joint Army Air Corps-National Geographic Society effort to reach the top of the earth's atmosphere.

Company Stages Party In First Platoon's Honor

BIOC No. 8, 25th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade, held a reception and party Feb. 15 in honor of the First Platoon in recognition of the platoon's high average MI score on the KD Army.

Guest of honor for the occasion was Lt. Col. John B. Zantz, commanding officer of the Second Student Battalion, who presented marksmanship awards to the top five firers in the company, 2nd Lt. Richard A. Greer and Jesse Whitehead Jr. were presented engraved trophies for first and second place respectively; and 2nd Lt. Erwin A. Taurko, Philip D. Wolfe and Doyle W. Stamps were each awarded engraved swaggon sticks for their three-way tie for third place. Lt. Col. Zantz complimented the officers on their marksmanship and the company on its overall effort on the range.

Following the presentations, members of BIOC's heretofore unimpaired thesbian guild staged a musical presentation of the radio play "The attraction."

Won't Go 'Home' Again

BY DICK SPENCER
A 23-year-old native of Poland serving in the 29th Infantry has no desire to see his homeland again.
Before coming to this country, Pfc. Nicholas Shukovskiy, 20, saw people burned to death, boiled alive, and machine-gunned. He spent two years in a Nazi concentration camp and lived on a Russian collective farm. Four of his relatives were murdered by the Russians, and other starved, and a sixth disappeared in Siberia.
In the infamous Dachau concentration camp, young Shukovskiy saw people burned to death, boiled alive, and machine-gunned. Despite the horrors of Dachau, Shukovskiy has a greater hatred for the Russians than for the Nazis. The Germans, unlike the Soviets, at least treated their own people decently, he feels.

Forced Move
Shukovskiy was born in Wo-lyna, Poland, when that country was divided between Russia and Germany. The Shukovskiy family was compelled to move into Russia when Nicholas was two years old. Inside Russia, his father successfully fled from his Communist overlords. His mother was forced to work on a collective farm.
Siberia
Four brothers of his father were murdered by the regime. His grandmother, too old to work, died of starvation. His grandfather was sent to Siberia and was never heard from again.
When Hitler's armies pushed into Russia, Shukovskiy and his family were surrounded by the invaders, expecting good treatment.
Liberation
The Shukovskiy family came to this country in 1950. In Millville, N.J., the father found employment as a machine op-

CG Receives Gen. Vargas' Appreciation

The minister of defense of Chile and commander-in-chief of the Chilean Army, Major Gen. Luis Vidali Vargas, has written Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, expressing his appreciation for the professional knowledge and friendship imparted during his visit at Fort Benning. Gen. Vargas and his party viewed activities of the Infantry School Jan. 29 to 31.

His letter said in part: "It is gratifying . . . to express cordial congratulations and sincere gratitude for the magnificent efficiency that we (saw) evidenced in the forces of your command."

"For each of the esteemed members of your staff and their distinguished wives, and especially to you and Mrs. Powell, we most affectionately thought for the finest and most cordial situation you put me through during our stay at the post."

"This visit, apart from being a fine experience and of valuable professional help, has had the merit to strengthen the traditional ties of friendship and companionship for the staff of two institutions and certainly operates each time to make more operations and cooperation in the camp of the defense of the Western Hemisphere."

Wives View Color Slides

The Rangers Department wives met for luncheon at an exciting around the world adventure in color slides on Feb. 11 at the home of Mrs. Tom Harold. Co-hostessing with Mrs. Stan Zorichson, Mrs. Harold served as snacks while the canasta playing got under way. After several hands of cards, the hostesses brought out bubbling hot pizza pies to the pleasant surprise of all the guests.

After a delicious dessert of brownies and croissants, the slides taken by various members of the group were shown. Pictures of Italy, Washington, Korea and Vietnam, Japan, Korea and Virginia were shown, presenting a thrilling color slide

The guests included Mrs. J. J. Dalton, Mrs. E. E. Dyer, Mrs. Bill Stanberry, Mrs. Barbara Jackson, Mrs. Scott Howard, Mrs. John Roade, Mrs. Phila Waldo.

Nearly Six Miles Up in Helicopter

High-Flying Army Pilot Working For Bachelor of Science Degree

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (ANF)—with someone down below to help him figure out what was taking place. . . . But as soon as 11 helicopters are cramped for space and simply equipped. Just the addition of overhauls on his feet for nothing more scientific than to bring in that suddenly, even- ing night's small platform—a helicopter.

In fact, in the youthful face and wiry stature of the candidate for a Bachelor of Science degree, it can be excused for not recognizing a man old enough (48) to be an Army captain, and a test pilot so experienced that he serves on the Army Aviation Board here.

His three world altitude records were made last Dec. 28 at Wichita, Kans., when he flew a Cessna V-41 "Sevener" helicopter to 20,335 feet when weighing in at 2105 pounds, and to 22,290 feet when added fuel pushed the weight to 2283 pounds. The first flight gave him two records, one with no weight restrictions and one within the 1102-2204 pound range.

All earned for him a Distinguished Flying Cross presented a week later by Secretary of the Army Wilbur G. Brantner in his Pentagon office.

Hazards of the flight could be anticipated in broad outline only. They concerned such matters as blade stall, compressibility, vibration that might shake the engine loose, safe speed of descent and safe cruising speed at those altitudes.

How to meet them was in good part a matter of "feeling my way." No one else could ever had to solve quite the same problems. . . . It was a lonely feeling up there, in my plastic canopy," says a Bowman, "especially when you get into a situation where I wished then I had a radio so I could have talked it over."

Deterrent Force

Speaker Cites Role Of Military

The military establishment, under public scrutiny since the advent of Sputnik, has made massive reevaluation a two-way street, the director of plans in the office of the Army's deputy chief of staff for operations told school last week.

Speaking to 200 graduates of the school's basic infantry officers class, Brig. Gen. James K. Woolnough pointed out that the "big bang" period in the Army, when America's possession of the atomic bomb was enough to deter or meet aggression, has ended.

Another Korea

war, and of winning it, it occurred, he explained.

The U. S. forces overseas on the cold war frontier are the tangible evidence that the country will support its Allies if aggression comes, Gen. Woolnough stated.

The military will play a significant role in national affairs and in the writing of history. He told his listeners. The U. S. Army has the role of a deterrent force in the prevention of

GETS SENIOR WINGS

Capt. Joseph W. Thompson of the 20th Infantry has received his Senior Army Aviator wings for serving on flying status for seven years and flying over 1,500 hours in Army type aircraft.

He outlined the strategic Army units that are ready to act as a deterrent force to the active Army. They are the "tire brigades" which will be used in meeting any future aggression, he pointed out.

Gen. Woolnough told the graduates that the Army is a modern dynamic force in the nuclear and space age. Weapons for the Infantry in the future will have no comparison with the ones used in 1932, he added. They will be a constant challenge to future Infantry officers, the general said.

Honor graduate of the class was 2nd Lt. Jimmy G. Mather of the Engineer Training Center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Post Visited By Australian

The commander-designate of the Paratroop Training Wing of the Royal Australian Air Force, Squadron Leader W. J. Nielsen, visited Fort Benning last week for a study of airborne instruction at the Infantry School.

He was honored at an official luncheon Feb. 17 in the Main Officers' Mess and conferred with Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commander, and Col. William E. Ekman, director of the school's Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

In addition to observing basic airborne classes, Nielsen was oriented on air mobility tactics, Army aircraft and cargo planes. He also has been briefed on the organization, instructional facilities and scheduling of classes at the Infantry School.

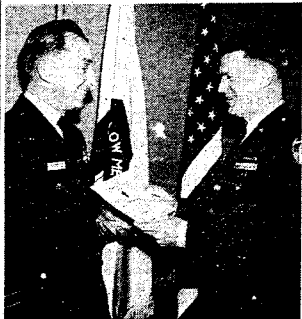

1st Lt. Robert M. Garrison, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, was project officer.

"THE METHOD"

Scottish-born actor John Laurie, now appearing in the Bank Organization's production of "Campbell's Kingdom," feels that "The Method" type of acting is wonderful and most stimulating. The 60-year-old actor of the traditional school, repertory, Old Vic, professional theatre and motion pictures, found that "The Method" forces an actor to be honest with himself, to disregard his audience, to submit himself to ruthless analysis and really get into the skin of his part. It is so superior to anything that is taught in Europe.

AIRBORNE AUSTRALIAN . . . Seated in an L-20 airplane before making a parachute jump at Fort Benning's Decker Strip is Squadron Leader W. J. Nielsen, left, commander-designate of the Paratroop Training Wing of the Royal Australian Air Force. At right is 1st Lt. Robert M. Garrison, Infantry School Airborne-Air Mobility Department instructor. The Allied officer got a first-hand look at Infantry School airborne and air mobility activities Feb. 17 to 22.

HONORARY DOUGHBODY . . . Squadron Leader W. J. Nielsen, left, commander-designate of the Royal Australian Air Force's Paratroop Training Wing, is presented an Infantry School certificate naming him an honorary Doughtboy by Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commander.

Now in Lawson Control Tower Weather Observers Get Closer To Sky for Better Information

Throughout the Air Force and Army at one time or another, the weatherman has been the brunt of the pun. "Go outside and take a look at the weather" or words to that effect.

This pun will no longer apply to the weather observers of Detachment 25th Weather Squadron at Lawson Army Airfield. They have moved out of the back room of the operations building into the high, glass-enclosed control tower, and now deal directly with the pilots in the air asking for timely weather information.

Two Services

Lt. Col. Raymond B. Girardo, commander of the 25th Weather Squadron and staff weather officer for the 12th Air Force, commanded by Major Gen. Chester E. McCarty, said that all 12th has now completed this project of having a weather observer in the tower under the clock, in addition to having pilot-forecaster radio service on a specially assigned radio frequency. These projects provide the Air Force and Army pilots with two important services. The pilot-forecaster radio service provides pilots on long missions with the latest enroute and destination forecasts, and the weather observer in the tower gives pilots up-to-the minute weather at that location.

Terminal Metwatch

Another relatively new feature of the Air Weather Service is the "Terminal Metwatch" which provides information to operation officers when an incoming aircraft is due to arrive during deteriorating weather. This is an important phase inasmuch as it is time for advance planning of an alternate course of action for the pilot when unexpected weather occurs. This service, properly utilized, gives the pilot ample time to change his course and proceed to an alternate base where weather conditions are suitable for landing before his fuel reaches a critical level.

At the present time, the weather observer in the tower at Lawson has at his disposal certain items of weather equipment. According to Capt. Charles M. Dunn, commanding officer of Detachment 25th Weather Squadron, "these include a wind indicator, ceiling measuring equipment, barometer, and Teletograph. The observer writes the latest observations on a transmitter in the control tower and simultaneously, it appears on receivers at interested base flight control agencies."

Even temperature and humidity readings, representative of runway conditions, will be continually reported by these automatic devices. These particular factors, coupled with runway wind direction and velocity measurements, are important to the safety of aircraft operations, especially helicopters.

Capt. Dunn believes that the placing of a weather observer in the control tower will be of immeasurable value to pilots flying in the local area.

Canadians Use Seal From U.S. In Glass Window

BETTER AND FASTER FORECASTING
L-R: A-2c M. G. Thomson, Capt. C. M. Dunn

FORT CHURCHILL, Manitoba (ANP) — The Seal of the U. S. Department of Defense is incorporated in the stained glass window in a chapel on this sub-arctic station of the Canadian Army.

Permission to use the seal was granted by former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson in what is believed to be its first authorized permanent display outside a U. S. establishment.

Although Fort Churchill is a Canadian Army installation, the Chapel of the Good Shepherd provides for the spiritual welfare of U. S. forces stationed at the post in the recent dedicatory ceremonies was Major General J. G. Van Houten, U. S. Army, commanding general of the Military District of Washington.

Pentagon Gives RFA Soldier Top Rating
ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. (ANF)—When Howard B. Robinson of Chlo, Ala., turned up in the Army for six months at RFA active duty training, he created a unique problem that got some very personalized attention in the Pentagon.
As a volunteer Reservist, he belonged to an Ordnance Company back home whose specialized job, if ever mobilized, would be to rebuild the tires on which the modern Army rolls. The Army is happily committed to train a soldier to fulfill a job in his specific Reserve unit when such training is readily available, and High School graduate Robinson had only had experience working on his father's farm.
The trouble is that such training is not, to say the least, "readily available" in the active Army in peacetime when commercial services are both ready and available to do the tire rebuild work.
It looked for a while as though Robinson would have to continue the more advanced level of infantry training—a necessary and challenging objective, but one which would not prepare him for his Ordnance Reserve assignment.
Then Lieutenant Colonel Joe M. Dietzel, chief of the Training Section, Office Chief of Ordnance, got his teeth into the problem.
How about putting Robinson out to school on a commercial contract? That created its own problems, partly financial, and it would hardly enhance Robinson's brief military experience, nor would it give him a familiarity with the equipment the Army uses in its tire work. Then how about Army on-the-job training?
More promising, but such tire inspection work as the Army does in civilianized and localized installations where there are few if any soldiers with whom Robinson could bunk, eat and be administratively cared for. Financially and militarily, a per diem pay arrangement was undesirable.
A "best" solution for both Robinson and the Army emerged after a survey of Ordnance

Ponton Bridge Spans Chattahoochee River

If you should have the occasion to dial Fort Benning telephone number 26252, your answer would be "Good Morning," or "Good Afternoon, M-4 Ponton Bridge, Sgt. Yow speaks."

This familiar voice has sounded into many ears from a telephone receiver, in the hands of those who wanted to know the answers to such questions as, "Can we cross the bridge today?" or "How long will the bridge be closed?"
Sgt. Yow, assigned to the M-4 Ponton Bridge and is in charge of operations and maintenance of the M-4 Ponton Bridge at Bradley Landing. The M-4 Bridge renders an important service to the Fort Benning area. It connects the post with Alabama by crossing the Chattahoochee River. It serves as a quicker route of travel for many Fort Benning service men and civilian employees who live in Alabama. It also serves as an emergency exit when the need arises. The M-4 Bridge is a military bridge, with aluminum Ponton supports, a flat deck of steel surface assembly called "Balks" with a trestle support at each end of the bridge. Most of the bridge is made of aluminum, and is a class 50 type bridge.
During the rainy season, there is much work involved. When an alert or warning is received, that the Chattahoochee will reach flood stage, the standby crew furnished by the Sixth Engineers gets busy jacking up the bridge with chain hoists.
When the completion of this action cannot insure further safety of the bridge, then the Reserve Team with additional bridges at Bradley Landing closes the bridge to prevent twist and breakage from flood water. Flood water once reached a height of 40 feet above the level of the bridge decking, but as soon as the water was normal, men and equipment of the 506th Engineers teamed together and the bridge was again across the Chattahoochee, carrying its civilian commuters to work.

Nobel Prize Holder Lauds Battle Development Unit
FORT ORD, Calif. (ANF)—Dr. William B. Shockley, 1956 Nobel Prize winner in physics for his work in the development of the transistor, recently said that the Army's Combat Development Experimentation Center "here represents a very important step in utilizing scientific methods in an area that has been regarded as purely military."
Dr. Shockley, now head of his own West Coast laboratory, made this observation as spokesman for a five-man scientific advisory committee studying CDEC operations.
Organized a year ago, CDEC is the 3600th man keystone in the Army's program of developing ways to fight in the future. Army schools and services develop ideas, frequently in theoretical form. CDEC finds out if they will work with men and real equipment under field conditions as near to combat as possible.
His top-flight scientific work with a staff of combat veterans, under command of Brigadier General Frederick W. Gobb, in conducting its tests of fighting organizations and tactics for the future Army.
"In this age of rapidly expanding technology, such a step is particularly important to maintain leadership in the areas of national defense," Dr. Shockley said, noting that the heart of CDEC's operations is the soldier - scientist team.
"Neither the skill of the military man alone nor the scientist alone can accomplish this end. The amalgamation of these abilities seen at CDEC is very reassuring in regard to the future of our defense position."
Other members of the scientific team who spent several days observing operations at the quarter-million acre field laboratory at nearby Hunter Liggett Military Reservation were Professors Philip Lightfoot and Kenneth Arrow, Stanford University; Professor David Blackwell, University of California; and Herbert Weiss, head of the weapons analysis department of Northrup Aircraft Corporation.

Rookie of Year

Jim Brown Takes Training at Post

BY M-SCGT. CLARK BBLACKBURN
Jim Brown, National Football League's rookie of the year and leading ground gainer for 1957, is undergoing infantry officer training at Fort Benning.

Now a second lieutenant, the age gained in a single game in two-time college all American is on active duty for six months.

He expects to complete his tour duty in time to rejoin the Cleveland Browns for the 1958 professional football season.

Brown is assigned to 21st Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade. To capture the individual rushing title his first year in the National League, Brown carried the ball 200 times for 942 yards from the fullback position.

Included in the year's total was 227 yards in a game against the Los Angeles Rams, a record for individual yards.

Firers Ready For Matches In Brigade

The recent sub-freezing weather failed to chill the enthusiasm of The School Brigade's aspiring rifle and marksmen members as they prepared for the approaching School Brigade rifle and marksmanship matches slated March 4-5.

Since Jan. 27 both pistol and rifle ranges have been open four days a week for practice for any military personnel assigned to The School Brigade who are interested in competing for one of the 14 places open on the Brigade's teams.

Prizes will be awarded in both divisions and members of the Brigade's teams will be chosen from the results of the matches to compete in the post matches. Capt. Macmillan stated that the rifle team would be made up of six members, a coach, a captain, and two alternates. The pistol team would be manned by four members, a coach, a captain, and two alternates.

On the post tournament coming up March 27, the teams will have a chance to compete against other units here at Fort Benning, and if successful, might be picked as one of Benning's representatives in the Third Army Tournament later this spring.

The rifle team was made up of men who have never shot competitively before—this gives any man with interest in shooting a chance to make the team, pointed out Capt. Macmillan.

151st Holds Elimination Kegler Meet

Elimination matches to determine a championship bowling team for the 151st Engineer Group were held Feb. 25 at Lawson Field Bowling Alley.

Winning berths on the No. 1 team went to Capt. Albert R. Gurtin, Headquarters, 577th Engineer Battalion; M-1 Sgt. George G. Johnson, Company A, 577th Engineer Battalion; Sgt. Harold E. Hamlen, Headquarters, 151st Engineer Group; Sfc. Arthur Doughboys Play Redstone In Field House at 8 p.m.

Fort Benning's Doughboy basketball team will take on tough Redstone Arsenal tonight in Briant Wells Field House. Game time is at 8 p.m. The Doughboys will be out to revenge a defeat earlier this season by Redstone. The Arsenal defeated Fort Benning 100 to 84 on their home court.

PFC J. W. JOHNSON Had Rheumatic Fever

Since the wind up of regimental basketball play, the Fort Benning team has been formed to compete in the upcoming Third Army Basketball Tournament.

The Doughboys have played four practice games in sharpening up for the Third Army competition. Although the Doughboys have dropped two of three games (results of the fourth game played Tuesday night were too late for The Bayonet's deadline this week), the team is rated as one of the top in Third Army area.

Fever Wins
The team's first win was over a fast-moving quintet from William Carey College of Hattiesburg, Miss., by a score of 28-24, at Briant Wells Field House Feb. 14.

On the following night the Doughboys shifted from fast break to stalling tactics to outlast the Doughboys 69-63. Basketball fans, both serv-

KNOW ANY OF THESE? . . . Second from right was Fort Benning's football coach in 1922, then Major Dwight D. Eisenhower, assigned to 24th Infantry. He's president of U. S. today. Other three are unidentified. If you know who they are contact Sfc David W. Chase, Infantry Center Museum curator, at Fort Benning telephone 35244. This picture was among a historical collection about Fort Benning owned by the late Major Gen. Charles S. Farnsworth, who commanded the post in 1919. The collection has been presented to the Infantry Museum by Gen. Farnsworth's son, Robert J. Farnsworth, Ladena, Calif. Anyone who wishes to contribute or loan items to the museum that portray the past history of the Infantry should contact Sfc Chase.

Johnson

Thank You For Continuing state championships. In the summer of 1955, he played in several major tournaments in Boise, Salt Lake, and Denver. In this important championship in Denver, he finished the tournament ranked second in junior boys doubles and third in singles.

While in his senior year, he started in football, and won the regional wrestling in the 175 pound class. With typical determination he went on to wrestle in the state championships and placed third. In the spring, Johnson captained the tennis squad, and was ranked number one in the state in boys doubles and third in singles.

Numerous College Offers The Spring, 1956, Johnson reaped rewards for his hard work and determination. He was offered two football and three tennis scholarships to colleges. The University of Georgia and Weaver College (Ogden, Utah) offered financial aid for his gridiron prowess, and the University of Utah, Utah State, and Brigham Young University all hoped to gain his tennis talents. Johnson chose Brigham Young University.

Developing all his free time to tennis, the summer of 1956 saw Johnson on the tennis circuit again. He won the doubles and mixed doubles of Salt Lake City's Diamond Jubilee Tournament where he met and defeated a former nationally ranked local favorite. In beating this man, who had been generally conceded to be the best player in the area, Johnson also won the best sportsmanship award and was voted the tournament's most improved player. By the end of the summer Johnson admits that he had collected the impressive number of nearly 50 trophies and medals.

After one quarter at Brigham Young University, Johnson volunteered for active duty with the Army as an airborne student. Bad luck again plagued him, and soon afterwards he lost a cartilage in his knee and had to withdraw from the class. Last summer, he turned to softball. A game he had never played, and as a pitcher for Fourth Battalion's School Brigade Champions, he posted a 13 win and only 2 lost record. Active in both battalion basketball and bowling this winter, Johnson has found time to take over another task—teaching Biddy League basketball.

Johnson says that before his release from active duty he would like to take airborne and ranger training if his knee heals sufficiently. Above all else, he wants to return to college and study for a degree in physical education. He now plans to eventually enter the coaching field.

QM Drops Watch Pocket to Cut Cost

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—The Army expects to save more than a quarter of a million dollars annually as the result of a Quartermaster General decision to eliminate watch pockets from most types of uniform trousers.

A QM spokesman said that in future procurements the only Army uniform trousers having watch pockets will be those worn with the cotton field uniform. They will be retained on the trousers because they are explained, because the watch pockets are excellent for carrying compasses or other small devices used by field soldiers.

In Cotton Bowl Twice

TCU End Undergoes Training at Benning

A veteran of two Cotton Bowl appearances with Texas Christian University is now a student in BIOC No. 8. As a member of TCU football squads of 1956 and 1957, 2nd Lt. Frank R. Winderger, presently assigned to 25th Company, 2nd Student Battalion, The School Brigade, played in the classic in Dallas, Texas on New Year's Day as an end. Born and reared in St. Louis, Mo., Lt. Winderger attended McKinley High School there from 1949 to 1953 and in the course of those four years, he earned 11 varsity letters in three major sports — four each in baseball and football, and three in basketball. Evidence of his athletic prowess was his selection to All-District teams for three years, and All-American laurels in his senior year. Moves To End On graduation from McKinley, Winderger was torn between signing a professional baseball contract and accepting a college scholarship. The opportunity for further education influenced his decision to enter Texas Christian University in 1953. A student of the formation school of gridiron tactics, Winderger hoped to move into the quarterback slot. Sophomore year saw him moved to right and position, however, and he started there for three years.

He played in the Cotton Bowl on two occasions. The "Horned Frogs" of TCU parlayed their 1956 conference championship into a bowl bid, but they dropped their New Year's game 13-14 to an inspired University of Mississippi team. In 1957, however, TCU ground out a 29-27 Cotton Bowl victory over Syracuse University's eleven, despite All-American Jim Brown's one-man offensive display. All-American teammates and friends of Winderger were college football greats Jim Swink, Norman Hamilton and High Pitts.

In his own mind, Lt. Winderger's most noteworthy achievement was picking Texas Christian as its first baseball championship in 20 years. Leading the 1956 conference in earned run averages, he compiled a 60 hurling record and represented the TCU team on the All-Conference team that year. He already rejected Canadian pro-football bid. Lt. Winderger has narrowed his post-service aspirations to either professional baseball or coaching football at his alma mater. He feels that he has coach Dutch Meyers of TCU is the dean of American coaches.

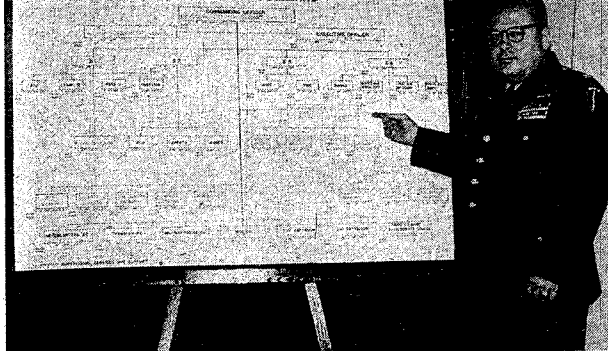

GRADUATES AT TOP . . . Holding an Infantry School Academic Certificate is 2nd Lt. Jimmy G. Matz, Jr., right, honor graduate of basic Infantry Officers Class No. 5, Brig. Gen. James K. Woolnough, director of plans, office of the deputy chief of staff for operations, Department of Army, was guest speaker at the graduation exercises and made the presentation.

Army Rushes Resources To Aid Civilian Disasters

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (ANP) — In time of disaster or emergency, civilians are most instinctively turn to the military, with its unique concentration of men and equipment, organized and disciplined. Last year the Army answered nearly 100 calls for assistance in the United States. USAIC TROOP COMMAND

COMBINED UNITS . . . Special Troops Command, one of seven major commands at The Infantry Center, and The Infantry Center Headquarters Commandant Section have been combined to form The Infantry Center Troop Command. The newly designated unit will continue the mission of its predecessors in providing administrative and logistical support for enlisted personnel assigned to Infantry Center headquarters and logistical support for officers assigned to Infantry Center headquarters. Shown above with TIC Troop Command's organizational chart is its commanding officer, Col. Max F. Schneider. Col. Schneider has served as commander of Special Troops Command and Infantry Center headquarters commandant since last May.

Programs to Boost Management in Army

Aspects of management which the Army comptroller has directed concern, Army programming, budgeting and utilization of manpower, were outlined at Fort Benning last week by Leonard W. Hoelscher, Army deputy comptroller. Speaking at the Armed Forces Management Association meeting, he defined management as the best use of the resources of today and the anticipated needs of the future. Essential step Systematic Army-wide programming has coordinated the scheduling of resources to accomplish efficient and effective operations, an essential step in achievement of management objectives, Hoelscher said. Army programming and budgeting are principal steps in command management, he said, to put more competent personnel in key positions, and to shake down and strengthen containing activities through the means of revolving funds, Hoelscher added. Rapid Changes Looking back, the management program has made new and rapid changes in the Army along with the new developments in nuclear and space technologies, he said. It has meant the introduction of skilled people in key positions, acceptance of decentralization in reporting, requiring detailed reports, and has brought an evolving and developing of management capabilities at each level, the deputy comptroller pointed out. Management of manpower utilization has meant quantitative use of manpower in programming and budgeting of activities which include U. S. Army Continental Command activities covering training and mobilization functions, he stated. Stronger Programs He said the Army comptroller is concerned with a continued effort to simplify processes and eliminate redundancies to put more competent personnel in key positions, and to shake down and strengthen

RECORD TIME . . . The temperature was 13 degrees as the men of the 72nd Engineer (C) Company constructed a floating footbridge across the Chattahoochee River in the record time of seven minutes. The bridge is used in the Infantry School problem, "The Battle Group in the Attack, River Crossing."

72nd Engineers Support TIS in River Crossings

The 72nd Engineer (C) Company plays an important part in the support of the Infantry School and has a strength of 66 enlisted men and three officers.

The 72nd Engineer Combat Company was reactivated in Korea and redesignated as the 72nd Engineer (C) Company on Jan. 3, 1949, after being inactivated in January, 1946. In 1953 until April 10, 1956 when the company was reactivated.

and served as a subordinate unit of the 29th RCT. In June 1957, the 14th Infantry was activated at Fort Benning and the 72nd Engineer Company was redesignated as a subordinate unit of the 2d Battle Group 14th Infantry.

Capt. Eugene Butler, company commander, has the job of keeping up with the problems the company demonstrates for the School.

The most spectacular of these is the building of the aluminum floating footbridge on the problem "The Battle Group in the Attack, River Crossing," which is run on the Chattahoochee River. This problem demonstrates the employment of light stream crossing equipment in a tactical situation.

Test Stated For Missiles Next Winter

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Cold weather trials of U. S. Army guided missiles will be held next winter at Fort Churchill, Manitoba, Canada. Canadian Army Headquarters and the U. S. Army made a joint announcement of the tests, in which the Nike Hercules and the Lacrosse will be used.

The Nike Hercules is a conventional and field army air defense missile, capable of carrying an atomic warhead, and the Lacrosse is a surface-to-surface field army missile system which is being fitted with a variety of warheads, including atomic.

Gen. Taylor Accents Limited War Threat

WASHINGTON (ANS)—In requirements on the United States Armed Forces.

"However," he stated, "it is safe to observe that in most cases they would be peripheral situations calling for a flexible, tempered application of military force." Emphasizing that such situations would occur in areas where long range missiles, thermionic weapons and the like would have little to offer, he declared, "The international military policeman is more likely to need his pistol than his thermionic weapons."

Speaking before a New York group, the Army's Chief of Staff said that the commitments of the United States world-wide are vast and comprehensive. He referred to NATO, Far East, Western Hemisphere and other alliances, then added:

"We are an appreciable partner in contributing to the collective security of 46 nations on five continents consisting of over 700,000,000 of nationalities other than our own."

He also pointed out the difficulty in conceiving the many situations arising from these obligations which may place

647th Engineer Co. Performs Camouflage Mission for USAIS

The 647th Engineer Company (Camouflage), based in the 151st Engineer Group, inherited its early history as part of the 602nd Engineer Camouflage Battalion, the 301st Engineer Camouflage Company, and the 47th Engineer Camouflage Company.

Landing on Omaha Beach after the onset of World War II, the 602nd Camouflage Battalion engaged in the Normandy Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes - Alsace, and Central European Campaigns.

To Fort Jackson Deactivated in March, 1946, at Camp Kilmer, N.J., the remaining personnel of the 602nd unit were sent to Fort Jackson, S.C. The 301st Engineer Camouflage Company was formed by distinguished units of the group. The company participated in operation "Oilslick" in 1948. After that maneuver the 301st was moved to Fort Riley, Kansas, where it was attached to the Army Aggressor Center.

As part of the aggressor troops at Fort Riley, the 301st participated in the following maneuvers: Semboles, 1947; Assembly, 1948; Mike, 1949; and Tarheel, 1949.

From Co. To Bn. On Aug. 15, 1949, the 301st Camouflage Company was redesignated as the 647th Engineer Camouflage Battalion.

The battalion was organized with four letter companies; A, B, C, and D, and was attached to the aggressor cadre at Fort Riley, Kansas. Its primary mission was designated as Camouflage and its secondary mission as support to the Aggressor Center.

The 647th Engineer Company (Camouflage) came into being at this point as Company "C", 47th Engineer Battalion (Camouflage). The engineer department of the Infantry School assigned the unit a series of individual and crew served weapons, foxholes, and positions to be camouflaged. This was completed in three weeks.

The screening and camouflage of an eight-inch Howitzer, two Honest John, two Little John, and a 280 mm Cannon were completed by the 647th for use in conjunction with the JCOOC show Oct. 8-12, 1957.

The largest project assigned to the 647th is the construction of an eleven station camouflage demonstration area. The area is 65 per cent complete. When completed, the stations will consist of camouflaged dummy's, strips with decoy planes, field artillery battery, storage area, field fortifications, fall-away house, tank, helicopter, two howitzers, two and one half ton truck, two jeeps, and pup tents.

As a participant in operation Long Arm, the 647th mission was to set up dummy enemy artillery batteries, simulate equipment damage to aggressor forces after simulated atomic explosions and conduct a motorized road march using pneumatic howitzers on truck beds.

The operation was designed to establish the benefit of higher performance observation aircraft in support of tactical operations of the Infantry.

The 647th Engineer Company (Camouflage), a welcomed asset to Fort Benning, is performing its primary mission of camouflage in a splendid manner. Under the command of Lt. Eldridge Ivy, the company is working diligently upon timely engaged in camouflage projects along with training and newly assigned men in various methods.

Records Moved For Insurance

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Veterans Administration has moved the records of 2.5 million insurance (NSLI) policies on Non GI insurance policy holders, including those of most servicemen paying premiums by allotment, to Philadelphia, Pa.

The insurance accounts affected by the transfer from here to the VA district office in Philadelphia are all U.S. Government - Life Insurance (USGLI), which originated in WWI and II; WWII or Post Korea National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policies on which premiums are paid by allotment from either active or retired military pay, or by those living in foreign countries.

The VA said future correspondence concerning these policies should be addressed to Veterans Administration District Office, PO Box 8079, Philadelphia 3, Pa.

Equipment Displayed By 596th Signal Co.

The 596th Signal Company (Support), latest addition to The Infantry Center Training Command, recently put on display some of its signal equipment that is being used by the unit in fulfilling its mission—supporting the post Signal Section.

Col. Max F. Schneider, commanding officer, USAIC Troop Command, and Lt. Col. John F. Caddle, commanding officer, First Battalion, USAIC Troop Command, plus other officers from the command, attended the demonstration.

Lt. James L. Mitchell welcomed the officers. He then explained the function of a signal support company, its responsibilities, mission, organization, and the role the 596th is performing here at Fort Benning. He said the 596th is capable of installing, operating, and maintaining signal communications for three sub-communications centers.

After the briefing by Lt. Mitchell, the group moved outdoors where they were treated to a demonstration and explanation of some of the more than $4 million worth of equipment used by the 596th.

DA Approves New Program for RA

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Department of the Army has approved a new program permitting appointment in the Regular Army of qualified former RA and Reserve Commissioned Officers direct from civil life. They will be offered Regular Army commissions in the basic branches and the Women's Army Corps.

Applications may be made by personal letter directed to The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., except Army NGUS officers must apply through their State Adjutant General.

Cash Awards Presented to 27 For Performance, Suggestions

Twenty-three civilian employees and four soldiers at Fort Benning have presented a total of $1,766 cash awards for job performance and suggestions for improvement during the last superior performance period.

Awards for suggestions resulted in about $9,857 cash savings and for outstanding service were presented by Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Musical Set For March 9

A musical prelude to the perennial April showers, "Shower of Song," featuring three top-notch vocalists, will be presented at Service Club No. 1 at 8 p.m. March 9.

Longtime favorites at Fort Benning, Sp3 George Bryant, Company B, First Battalion, USAIC Troop Command, and his wife of M-Sgt. Ragsdale, will solo and duet singing such outstanding tunes as "It's My Woman," "And This Is My Beloved," "You Are Love," "Body and Soul," and "Music By The Angels," among others.

Making his Fort Benning debut as a soloist, Pfc. Rod Comp, Transfer Point, USAIC Troop Command, will deliver renditions of "All The Way," "An Affair To Remember," "The Girl Next Door," and "You Can't Take That Away From Me," among others.

Ftc. Comp will be one of the contestants in the coming All - Army Entertainment Contest, to be held here in the near future.

As Master of Ceremonies for "Shower of Song," Lt. Donald C. Henley, Information Section, USAIC, will add his comic talent to the program between musical numbers.

Pfc. Jim Scovetti will accompany the vocalists on the piano.

Inspector, Transportation Aircraft Inspector, Transportation Aircraft Maintenance Shop; Mrs. Georgia W. King, stock control supervisor, Engineer Troop Supply Section; Jesse T. Hudson, leading supervisor, Engineer Central Heating Plant, and William B. Dixon, William supervisor, Quarter Master Supply Warehouse Office.

Columbuses cited were William G. Franks, administrative chief clerk, Block, F. U. S. Hospital; Mrs. Florence C. Branch, Infantry Center Quartermaster Section; Mrs. Odette C. Adams, chief telephone operator, Infantry Center Signal Section; Carl McDonald, administrative assistant, Signal Section, and Anne S. Chambliss, assistant chief of the Accounting Division, Infantry Center Finance and Accounting Office.

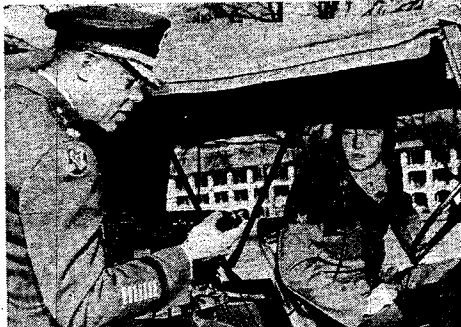

Woodrow W. Jones, employee utility representative, Civilian Personnel Section, and Mrs. E. S. and The Infantry Center, plane mechanic, First Aviation Company; M-Sgt. Alfred B. Kirkenbough, publications officer, Air Field Command; Mrs. Sarah P. Davis, property supply supervisor, Signal Section; Mrs. Essie M. Franklin, mail clerk, Civilian Personnel Section; and 1st Lt. Henry J. Van Dyke, administrative officer, Rifle Company, Weapons Department, Infantry School.

Gen. Ruggles pointed out that it is important to acknowledge good service by civilian employees and soldiers. He added that the incentive awards serve a dual purpose of recognizing outstanding service by both civilians and servicemen. They are a means of encouraging both groups to continued high standards of service for the

Gen. Shepherd Sends Appreciation Letter

Major Corps Gen. Lamuel C. Shepherd Jr., chairman of Inter-American Defense Board, has sent a letter of appreciation to Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commanding general, for the "enjoyable and profitable visit of the board to Fort Benning."

Gen. Shepherd expressed thanks for the Fort Benning program which "afforded our Latin American comrades-in-arms an opportunity to observe the operational procedures of the Infantry Center and the latest U. S. Army organization concepts."

Military leaders of 14 Latin American republics and the U. S. met at the post Feb. 13-15 for a mutual security planning session and a first-hand look at the latest U. S. Army tactics, weapons and organization.

"May I congratulate you and your staff on the splendid bringing which so clearly set forth the organization and concepts of the Pentomic Infantry Division." Gen. Shepherd's letter concluded.

"The highlight of our visit was the outstanding troop demonstration of the Army's new tactical doctrine, so well conducted by your School troops. Please extend to the command and the officers and men of the participating units my congratulations on a most excellent demonstration," he went on.

Gen. Powell also has received a telegram from Navy Capt. Jaime Braso-Anexey, Colombian delegate on the Defense Board.

"On behalf of the Colombian delegation to the Inter-American Defense Board, I would like to extend to you, your officers and men our gratitude for your hospitality when we paid our professional visit to Fort Benning. Furthermore, we would like to congratulate you and the officers and men of the participating units for the great spirit and professional capabilities demonstrated during the exercises."

Pfc Gore Selected to Instruct Life Guards in Swimming Season

Headquarters Company Pfc Samuel Gore made a high score in the Water Safety program conducted at Benning Wells Field House and has been selected as an instructor of life guards for the pool for the coming swimming season. Sp3 Kenyon Bounds will practice his culinary arts at Camp Bestin, Fla. for the next few weeks. He will be preparing meals for the men taking the jungle phase of Ranger Training. Warren F. Brown, former company executive officer, was promoted to captain last week. Pfc Erving Zimmerman welcomed his family who joined him this week.

The welcome mat was rolled out for the following new personnel: Major Edward H. Harrell, 29th Infantry executive officer; 1st Lt. Desmond D. Dewey, company executive officer; M-Sgt. Milton W. Jergens, supply sergeant, and Pfc Lawrence R. Irving. Pfc Ronald Holden was married to Miss Joyce Ellen Allen at Columbus, Ga. Feb. 7. The couple will make their home in Columbus. The company played its first volleyball game against Company C last week. Headquarters members lost two tough overtime decisions, 12-10 and 8-6. Copying the Headquarters colors were Chuck Nesbitt, Adam Blahut, Fos Edwards, Ralph Smith, Jimmy Roney, Danny Jarka and Dick Spencer.

Members of the company who made the 28th Infantry Rifle Team are Sgt Don H. Lousavere, Sfc Cecil Hartley, Sgt. Mills A. Gnesser and Sgt. Arthur L. McLoose. Sgt. Carl H. Hawks made the 29th Infantry Pistol Team.

2nd Lt. John Sacksteder joined the company this week. He formerly served with The School Brigade.

Sporting new private first class stripes are Joseph Lockhart, Hershel W. Stout and Carl C. Hughes. Pfc Frank A. Shaeffer and M-Sgt. McKinley M. Ferd are members of the Fort Benning Soldiers Chorus.

Brigade Lt. Made Switch From Flier to Footsoldier

From aviator to infantryman in one easy lesson. This was the unusual situation which confronted 1st Lt. Harold H. Marx one night on 1500 miles or about eight or nine hours flying time. As Lt. Marx remembers, "That is an awful long time to be sitting in one place."

During the unit's stay on the island, he was assigned to the 46th Fighter Squadron of the 20th Air Force. The 46th was assigned to be the first Army aviation unit to land on Iwo Jima. Lt. Marx and his group were landed on the beaches on D day plus four, but "It was almost ten days before the airstrip was secured and our P-51 Mustang fighters could be flown in from the aircraft carriers," he relates.

After the unit had set up operations on Iwo Jima, it was assigned the duty of securing B-29 bombers on their raids over the Japanese home islands. The 46th also took part in strafing missions on enemy Ijima," he says.

Lt. Marx is now assigned as executive officer of Company I, 127th Infantry, 32nd Division, 1st Cavalry Division, 25th Infantry Brigade. "This soldier comes naturally—don't forget I learned to be an infantryman twelve years ago on Iwo in strafing missions on enemy Ijima," he says.

Results of the General Educational Development tests for four members of the battery were returned this week and all were given diplomas.

Sfc Billy G. Whitehead is in the hospital for an operation.

All the cigar smoke from Company D is in celebration for the new baby daughter of 1st Lt. Leonard R. Kitcham. The little miss was named Joan Patricia.

Lorenzo Sautago was named first sergeant of the company.

9 Nations Enter Missile School

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (ANS) Students from the Republics of Turkey have been added to the roster of North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations now represented here at the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School.

This brings to nine the NATO nations that have sent students to the Missile School. Others include Norway, Denmark, Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Canada and Great Britain.

Gen. Trudeau Warns Of Weapons Stress

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau looks forward to taking over the Army's Research and Development Program warns against continuing today's thinking only to missiles and rockets.

"The field of research and development is an extremely broad one," General Trudeau declared during an interview on the Army's weekly radio program "The Army Hour," aired in the United States and

Hawaii over the Mutual Broadcasting System. "It covers all of the technical services and not merely weapons."

Asked what type of weapons he expected would be in the U.S. arsenal of the future, the general (who will succeed Lt. Gen. J. M. Gavin as Chief of R&D on April 1) replied, "Every type we can possibly develop and which has utility."

The interview brought out that General Trudeau was now a peacemaker to research and development work. During World War II, he was instrumental in setting up an R&D Section in the Amphibious Command. He pointed out that the Army developed improvements of the LCM-6—a Navy landing craft—which are still used today.

On the subject of future weapons, General Trudeau was asked, "Do you think that recent missile development might mean the end of artillery as we know it in the last few years?"

"I think conventional artillery is on the way out," he answered.

Upon further questioning, the general said there was one important field which should not be forgotten. That is, he explained, the field of human research in finding what man can do and how to use men better in connection with the work

In MOWW Address
General Cairns Tells 'Copter Capabilities'

The Army Aviation Center in the stress which will have can man and equip an Aerial Combat Reconnaissance Unit to fight in an engagement and fulfill the traditional missions of the cavalry, Brig. Gen. Bogardus S. Cairns, commanding general of the U.S. Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala., said Feb. 20 at the Military Order of World Wars at Fort Benning.

The Aviation Center is still developing concepts and machinery for the newly-authorized ACRU but that right now an operational unit could be formed and moved into combat, Gen. Cairns explained.

The general added that the ACRU has been authorized to replace the air cavalry and has been under development at Fort Rucker during recent months. Armament on helicopters has been improved and tactics have not been completely developed, but he added that he believes that the experimental helicopter could give Army commanders the mobile force that can win or withdraw atomic power-dominated modern battlefield.

In future battlefields there will be extensive unoccupied areas both forward and with-

Company Builds 'Running Deer' Range for Marksmanship Unit

Company B, 57th Engineer Battalion, is constructing a "running deer" range for the U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit. This range will have the novel feature of a life size deer that moves back and forth across the target area. The range will be used for the International Olympic trials in the spring in preparation for the matches to be held in Moscow, Russia, next fall. This will be the only range of this type in the Southeastern United States.

Medical Demonstration
Company C, 49th Engineer Battalion, fabricated an Atomic blast simulator for detonation in conjunction with the 54th Medical Group's demonstration at Burns Hill on Feb. 19, 1958. During this particular phase of the demonstration, the 54th Medical Group demonstrated and treated simulated casualties.

Volleyball Tournament
A volleyball tournament is under way to decide a championship team for the 151st Engineer Group. A "Columbus" play started Feb. 12, and will end March 22.

Five games, of a 22 game schedule, have been played. The 56th Engineer Company defeated Headquarters and Service Company, 57th Engineer Battalion; 67th Engineer Battalion; 49th Engineer Battalion; and the 60th Engineer Company.

Precautions Cited
Personnel Warned Of Handling Ammo

Fort Benning personnel have been cautioned about careless and unsafe handling of ammunition found on post.

Whenever any type ammunition supplies are found on post which appear to have been lost, abandoned, or not under the control of any individual or organization, the matter will be reported immediately to the post ordnance ammunition officer.

As provided in AR 738-5, it is the duty of the officer or other individual reporting the existence of ammunition supplies as indicated above, to take charge of and protect such supplies until the responsibility has been assumed by ordnance.

Organized in 1901 29th 'Leads Way' At Infantry School

Probably no other troop organization is as closely associated with the history and development of the Infantry School as is the 29th Infantry. When Company C recently won the postwide Commanding General's Trophy, it came as no surprise to the many regular members of the 29th Infantry living in the Columbus-Phoenix City area. Col. Joseph C. Sandlin's First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, is moving into the postmodern era with the traditional spirit of the Infantry School.

The 29th Infantry is not only of particular significance to the area. Since its organization in 1901 its records are replete with the names of outstanding army leaders. Just as many of the famed leaders of World War II and Korea were graduates of the Infantry School, so many of them have been members of the 29th.

Although the regiment has spent most of its time supporting the Infantry School in peacetime, a call to arms has always found the 29th in other theaters.

The list is long and distinguished—combat action in the Philippine Islands at the turn of the century, the Panama Canal against the Japanese in World War I—the battle of the Bulge in World War II and later the security of SHARP Headquarters—hard fighting in the critical Pusan Perimeter of Korea and the award of the Distinguished Unit Citation to the First Battalion. These are just some of the high points.

Two of the symbolic items on the regimental crest of the 29th are in honor of long service with the Infantry School. One is the Lamp of Knowledge and the other is the motto "We Lead The Way." Through its 57 years of effort with "Follow Me" in development, demonstration, and test of Infantry organizations, tactics and techniques the right to this motto was earned.

JOC DEMONSTRATIONS
An occasional Infantry School support problem will be seen in exciting and glamorous for peace time, a call to arms has always found the 29th in other theaters who are the leading actors in the show. The preparation of training films often falls in this category, as does the climax of the semi-annual JOC demonstration. This is the famed "Mad Minute" or "Reinforced Rifle Company in Defense" conducted at night on the 29th to assist the Infantry School in training young leaders of the split-second timing of the "battle," and admire the precision of the assistant instructors marking its course on luminous map boards, they are seeing the 29th Infantry in action. A typical problem that applies to the foot-wear Infantryman is the "Rifle Company in a Helicopter Attack." This one brings out all the latest in the forward look of an Infantry unit.

Although all its problems are not as dramatic, the above are typical of the effort of the 29th to assist the Infantry School in training young leaders of the split-second timing of the "battle," and admire the precision of the assistant instructors marking its course on luminous map boards, they are seeing the 29th Infantry in action. A typical problem that applies to the foot-wear Infantryman is the "Rifle Company in a Helicopter Attack." This one brings out all the latest in the forward look of an Infantry unit.

29TH INFANTRY CLOSE TO INFANTRY SCHOOL'S HISTORY. GROWTH Composite Picture Depicts 29th Backing Up School, Crest Is In Center

While the four rifle companies and mortar battery carry the bulk of the field work, platoons of Headquarters Company, such as Communications, Supply and Maintenance, Reconnaissance, Engineer, and Medical have their special role in teaching the new concepts of the atomic battlefield.

Scout Dope
An attached unit, the 29th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, is an honored member of the organization. Its scout dogs and their well-trained handlers often do "Lead The Way" as students learn the latest techniques of patrolling on the wooded hills along the Chattahoochee. It is not alone in the many field problems that the men of the 29th demonstrate their soldierly efforts. In the numerous honor guards and ceremonies, and in the exacting duties of guard, the 29th continues its long role as the premier troop unit of this famous post.

Columbus, Fort Benning, and the 29th Infantry are all looking forward to another upcoming event in the local history of the 29th Infantry. April will see the arrival of the Second Battle Group, 29th Infantry, from Germany, where it is now in the NATO line. At that time, Fort Benning will be the only post with two battle groups of the same regiment serving at same location. The First Battle Group plans a warm welcome to its sister unit. And to the many "old soldiers" in the area there could be no finer choice than to see "doubling" of the 29th at the post—the home of the Infantry.

29th's Second Battle Gp. to Come 'Home' to Post With 10th Division

BY MILICENT SUDDER
The 29th Infantry, famed regiment which more than 20 years ago adopted the Infantry Center as its traditional home, will be completely "at home" after the arrival of its Second Battle Group from Germany with the 10th Division this spring.

The 29th's First Battle Group has been stationed at the Infantry Center since its designation in June of 1954. Fort Benning has been the regiment's home for 39 years.

Came Here in 1919
Organized in 1901, the 29th came to the post in 1919, where it remained until the outbreak of World War II. It served in England, France, Germany, Okinawa and Korea before returning to its traditional home in 1954.

The 29th quickly resumed its challenging task of serving as the Infantry School's participant in three decades in the development and demonstration of new Infantry techniques earned it the motto, "We Lead The Way."

Col. Joseph C. Sandlin, commands the 29th's First Battle Group. Heading the unit's Second Battle Group is Col. K. R. Lindner.

Another distinguished regiment represented at the Infantry Center is the 14th Infantry. Its Second Battle Group, commanded by Col. Claude D. Barton, works in conjunction with the 29th's First Battle Group. The 14th Infantry's 15-17 in Grafenwoer, Germany.

First Battle Group is stationed in Hawaii.

New Policy
The emergence of the battle group in U.S. Army organization follows the Army's new policy of establishing units of the size of the 29th's battle groups. The introduction of atomic weapons necessitates wide dispersal of units in both offensive and defensive plans.

A battle group is, in effect, a scaled-down regiment able to operate independently in battle areas of the future.

The Infantry battle group is an integrated combat unit with a headquarters and four rifle companies and heavy mortar battery as its main elements.

The headquarters and headquarters and service company include battle group headquarters and assault gun, reconnaissance, engineer, medical and communications platoons. The latter four consist of personnel from the respective associate arms branches.

Genealogy Tangled
As changes in weapons and techniques of warfare have caused new units to take the place of old and periods of re-trenchment necessitate the breaking up, combining, redesignating or disbanding units, the genealogy of most of the older Army combat units has become woefully tangled.

Many units were found to have little or no history and some of the finest historic units were inactive.

With future tactical organization reflecting a trend toward even more flexibility in the structure of combat divisions, the need arose for a form of basic organization to maintain the traditions and esprit de corps of units.

"Home Outfit"
Traditionally the regiment is the "home outfit" of the line soldier. The new Combat Army Regimental System maintains the continuity of the Army's most distinguished regiments, regardless of changes in tactical organizations, in peace and war.

A specified number of traditional regiments are continuously active as "parent regiments" of all Infantry, Artillery and Armor individuals and tactical units. Member units of a regiment are assigned to a division or other tactical command. The regiment itself is not a tactical unit, but will be a family of units bearing the regimental name.

The concept of the regiment, which already is the principal repository of U.S. Army history and traditions, is being established in the Army's basic organization preserves and stabilizes the regiment in a new, more flexible form.

A large proportion of combat units are nondivisional and therefore have no firm or continuous identification with a specific tactical command. The regimental organization just established embraces both divisional and nondivisional units.

Basis For Retention
Regiments were selected for permanent retention on the basis of a combat history worthy of perpetuation by future generations of combat soldiers. They total 164 and may include any number of units.

Regimental headquarters as they are known today will not be established. Existing regiments will be withdrawn from the tactical organization as they are replaced by group, brigade, combat command or other tactical headquarters.

Parent regimental headquarters will be assigned to permanent locations in the Continental U.S. Their support functions may include maintaining the regimental history and traditions, maintaining records of members, performing personnel services for members, conducting regimental recruiting, supervising Reserve personnel and units, and operating regimental training units.

Until active regimental headquarters are established, elements of two battalions each, and will remain with a designated unit of the regiment, normally the first battle group. They total 164 and may include any number of units.

Patterned After British
The new U.S. Army regimental system is patterned after the British Army regimental organization.

Up to the middle of the 18th Century, British regiments were called by the names of their colonies. About 1761 the regiments were numbered and 11 years later county titles were added.

Under the Localization of Forces Act, single battalions of British line regiments were linked in pairs in 1872. Headquarters of each original double-battalion regiment and the newly linked single battalions were established in the county which title they bore and were termed a brigade district.

They were numbered consecutively from one to 70, quite irrespective of the original regimental numbers.

Readjustments
In 1861, slight readjustments resulted in the territorial regiments of two battalions each. The old brigade districts were reformed, regimental numbers and names of the old two-battalion regiments getting back their regimental numbers and the other receiving the number of the senior of the original single-battalion regiments.

Names of the regiments were readjusted as much as possible in compliance with regimental feeling.

The old facings were done away with and white facings worn by all English regiments. Purcell Act, single battalions of British line regiments were linked in pairs in 1872. Headquarters of each original double-battalion regiment and the newly linked single battalions were established in the county which title they bore and were termed a brigade district.

They were numbered consecutively from one to 70, quite

Rescue Map Given To Air Safety Group

A search and air rescue map equipped with this map, Capt. Warren, in response to a question by Wayne P. Cable, lower chief at the Muscogee County Airport, said aircraft crashes can be telephoned by location by telephone to 2-6667, Fort Benning extension 2-1523 at Lawson.

Council members voted to dispatch a letter to Civil Aeronautics Authority officials in Atlanta objecting to the construction of a projected radio tower within the city limits of Columbus and to point out the safety hazard involved in the erection of such a tower.

Accompanying the chart was a one 30,000-foot Army engineer map with 1,000 meter squares.

Sgt. W. Warren Jr., airways supervisor at Lawson Air Field, explained to the members that by using the grid square or the grid names on this map and reducing such information to grid squares or yards, crashed aircraft can be readily located.

Official Says Glide Rockets 'Attractive'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Of three types of hypersonic space vehicles now under study — ballistic, glide and skip rockets — the second may prove to be "attractive," said Julian Allen, Chief of the High Speed Div. of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, recently declared here.

Army Rotates Nurse Grads In Program

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The Army Surgeon General's office has announced that graduates of its Student Nurse Program are now receiving one year of rotating experience in different departments of military hospital services.

Modeled after the traditional plan now used for medical and dental internships, the Army Nurse Corps has instituted the program at 13 medical installations throughout the country.

The plan was developed to introduce the young professional officer nurse to the various aspects of nursing practiced in modern hospitals and give her an assist in choosing a specialty for her nursing career.

The first Army hospital system to develop this orientation experience was Walter Reed of Washington, D.C. Other hospitals scheduled to conduct the program are Fitzsimons, Denver, Colo.; Letterman, San Francisco, Calif.; DeWitt, Fort Belvoir, Va.; Ireland, Fort Knox, Ky.; and the U. S. Army Hospital at Fort Riley, Kan.; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind.; Fort Carson, Colo.; and Fort Jay, N. Y.

Except for some surface-mounted metal enclosures that may encounter high bending stresses, the structures of the ballistic and glide rockets will not cause "inshorable" problems, Mr. Allen said. Success or failure rests clear-cutly on the ingenuity of the metallurgist and structural engineer," he added.

INSTRUCTORS INSTRUCTED ... Two members of the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., fire the M-50 machine gun on Fort Benning's English Range.

They are M-Sgt. Cecil J. Cash, left, and 1st Lt. Gerald F. Wilson. Timing the exercise is Sfc Nick Bostich. Five officers and 50 enlisted men from the 101st received instruction in operating the new gun which is capable of firing from 550 to 800 rounds per minute. They will instruct members of their unit who will field test the new weapon.

13 Becomes Lucky Number for Flyers

CAMP GARY, Texas (AP)—On Friday the 13th, claim thirteen is a lucky number what they think is the first for a primary flight training perfect safety record in first-class here.

Army fliers in this school's 13th class, which began flying Oct. 13, claim the number 13 as a lucky number.

Sfc Makes Pals for PAL

GOVERNORS ISLAND, N.Y. Motorists in Freeport, N.Y., who've been saved from overdue parking fines have found a pal in the Army. It's Sfc. George G. Paltakos of Brooklyn, N.Y. In charge of a credit booth in Freeport, who's been putting his own coins in the meters of overdue cars.

Once himself the beneficiary of a similar Good Samaritan, Paltakos doesn't let the motorist get away without a message which is definitely NOT an Army recruiting pitch.

Each time, he ticks the car with the following tag: "The time on your parking meter has run out and coins have been put in for you. This is also running out for hundreds of kids who need the guidance of the Police Athletic League which may be forced to cut some of its youth activities because of lack of funds. If you desire to repay the money placed in the meter, please send it to your local PAL."

Full Colonel Rank Given Editorial, Pictorial Chief

Gus S. Peters, chief of the Editorial and Pictorial Office of the Infantry School, has been promoted from the rank of lieutenant colonel to colonel.

He came to his Fort Benning assignment from Iran where he was chief of the U. S. Army Field Training Team from 1956 to 1957.

16 Years' Service

Col. Peters is a veteran of 16 years of military service. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Infantry in the Reserve Officers Corps in April, 1942, from which he entered active duty as an Infantry unit commander at Omaha, Neb. He was executive officer of the 82nd Air Base Security Battalion at Fort Rucker, Ala., from July to September, 1942. From Sept. 1942 to February, 1946, he was commander of Company A, 92nd Air Base Security Battalion Army Service Training Air Command in the Pacific.

First Letter Sent By Missile Mail

NEW YORK (AP)—The mail always goes through, air mail faster than most, but when a letter is flown 1,500 miles in less than 20 minutes, that's real service.

The letter was enclosed in a Jupiter missile fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla. It was addressed to Major Gen. J. M. Madaris, Chief of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, and marked "via rocket mail."

The "mail-carrier" landed in the Atlantic Ocean, was picked up by a Navy vessel, and then carried by more conventional means to its ultimate destination in Huntsville, Ala.

Heralded as the first rocket mail delivered over a practical distance, the letter was read by Gen. Madaris during his recent appearance on a television show, "Meet the Press."

Soldiers Construct Chapel of Salvage

CARRIZOZA, N.M., (ANS) — Soldiers here at the Red Canyon Nike Missile Range wanted a real chapel so badly they recently handbuilt one with salvaged materials on off duty time.

Established as a temporary range in 1953, Red Canyon has only three authorized permanent buildings. Religious services were held in a quonset theater.

Army Chief of Chaplains Major General Patrick J. Ryan dedicated the homemade chapel and told the troops, "This has the heart and soul of you men in it. A building such as this means a great deal more than a large and more expensive chapel built by Congressional appropriations."

Democratic Assn. Official Benning Visited By Adm. Sorge

Rear Adm. (Ret.) Selgfried Sorge of West Germany, senior specialist on military affairs and lecturer for the Federation of Democratic Associations, is visiting at Fort Benning today.

He will be accompanied by Alexander Von Hase, also an official of the Federation, an organization sponsored by the West German government.

The two are visiting this

Officials Say Phones Near For Capehart

Individual telephone service for the new Capehart family housing at Fort Benning is expected to be available April 15 according to Col. Edward C. Coffin Jr., Infantry Center Signal officer.

Engineers will begin construction this week on buildings to house switchboards and other equipment necessary to provide telephone service, Col. Coffin stated. It will take approximately six weeks after the buildings are completed to install the manual boards and begin operation, he said.

Temporary Service

To provide temporary service until regular facilities are available a fire and Class C telephone and a public pay telephone will be placed in centralized locations for both officers and enlisted housing areas. The first of these telephones have been established. Others will be added as required by the opening of additional units.

Fire and Class C telephones installed by the Infantry Center Signal Section can be used to make local calls on the post.

Applications for regular telephone service may be submitted to the Signal office now, Col. Coffin announced.

The manual switchboards to be operating in April will provide individual and party line service similar to the old type. (Please See PHONES, Page 2)

Hiller Aircraft to Demonstrate New Rotocycle at Post March 12

A one-man helicopter, the small, light and portable new X-ROE-1 Rotocycle, a Hiller Aircraft Corp. product will be demonstrated March 12 at Fort Benning.

Five to six hundred civilian and military guests will view the demonstration at 1:30 p.m. in Building L-10 at Lawson Army Air Field. The demonstration will be presented through the courtesy of the Hiller Corp. at the invitation of officials of the Air Mobility Group of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department and other Infantry officers.

Hiller representatives expected to attend the demonstration are John Chedrick, vice-president of Hiller Aircraft Corp.; Raymond Chaney, project engineer; Dick Beck, test pilot, and John Trone, service mechanic.

The demonstration is being staged to generate thought on the potential military and non-military use of the one-man helicopter. Designed to give a vertical dimension to "ground" warfare, it has a 52-mile per mile sea-level cruising speed, a 166-mile per hour top speed, and 30 seconds of fuel.

The aircraft flight tested about a year ago, ranked as the best.

Work Starts For School Ground Breaking Held For $567,000 Building

Work began March 3 on a building and nine classrooms new elementary school in the Capehart Housing area of Fort Benning. The contract for $567,000 structure has been awarded to Williams Construction Company of Columbus, according to officials of the Atlanta, Ga. regional engineering office of the U. S. Housing and Home Finance Agency.

23 Classrooms

The building will bring to four the number of schools in the Fort Benning Children's Schools system. The modernistic concrete and glass structure will include 23 classrooms, a library and combination auditorium, gymnasium and cafeteria.

It will be located on the northeast side of Santa Fe Road north of Custer Road in the Capehart Housing area. The school is expected to be completed by Feb. 1, 1959.

The first increment in the $4 million, 1,000 unit Capehart Housing project was opened last week. Two hundred and forty-eight units for officers and 722 for enlisted personnel are slated to be completed by Nov. 30, 1958.

2,000 Enrolled

More than 2,000 students are enrolled in the Fort Benning Children's Schools, which consist of kindergarten through eighth grade.

Bill More Than Raise

The Department of Defense has asked Congress to pass legislation that would mean a raise in pay for everyone in the uniformed services who has served at least two years on active duty.

There is much more than just a pay raise at stake, though, for the Defense Department's plan amounts to a new way of paying military personnel.

The purposes of the proposal are 1) to help the service meet their urgent requirements for top-notch career people to officer, warrant and enlisted ranks, and 2) to reward career people at all echelons who have initiative and ability to qualify for increased responsibilities.

It is the Defense Department's objective to insure dedicated career personnel that their compensation will be sufficient to enable them to discharge their responsibilities to both their country and their families.

The plan grows out of the Cordiner Committee's recommendations for sweeping changes in our military pay structure.

The proposal now before Congress would provide higher rewards for individual contributions. It would make possible raises of at least six per cent to seven of every 10 persons in the Armed Forces.

Major Role in Space Age

It was a cold, blustery day in January 1946. Newspapers had started the day with nothing much to work with in headlines. It was just a run-of-the-mill news day.

The bulletin flashed out over the nation's tele-tubes. Editors were amazed at the news they had started: "The Army has successfully bounced radio signals off the moon."

The entire world devoured the news and tried to comprehend its meaning. It seemed incredible, fantastic, unbelievable and almost unbelievable to capture the imagination of the most earth-bound human.

Today this same news is commonplace. The Army's new radio transmitter Space Sentry recently bounced signals off the moon every other day for a period of two weeks.

Amateur radio operators throughout the Western Hemisphere picked up these returning signals and used them to calibrate satellite tracking instruments.

The signals assured all far-fung listening posts would be tuned to precisely the same frequency.

Transmissions of the signal tests were conducted at Fort Monmouth, N.J., home of the Army Signal Corps.

As man moves into the space age our Armed Forces continue to play a major role in scientific advancement. (AFPS)

Deductions Allowed On Loss of Property

(This is the fifth in a series of articles by AFPS on the subject of income tax deductions based on information from the Internal Revenue Service.)

If you deduct deductions on page two of Form 1040, you can deduct losses of your personal property resulting from fire, storm, flood, automobile accident, hurricane, or other similar event.

A deductible casualty loss can result from complete or partial destruction of property, but generally speaking, must result from an identifiable cause of a sudden, unexpected, or unusual nature.

Damage to your own car resulting from a collision or accident can be deducted only if due to your willful negligence or willful act.

On personal nonbusiness property, the amount of loss to be deducted is the difference between the value of the property just before the casualty and the value just after.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (1st Lt.) WILTON D. PIGOTT
It will seem strange to many people to hear that Christianity costs. All our lives we have been told that religion is free.

"In my hand no price I bring. Simply by Thy Cross I cling." Jesus was quite frank about the requirements of Christian Discipleship. He never hid the demands of discipleship, the "cost." A "burden" is the inevitable care and strain of earthly life. A "thorn" refers to a heavier anguish, about which a person almost never speaks to others.

There is nothing more common than to want to have the fruits of the Christian faith and discipleship without paying the "cost." Centuries ago, Meister Eckhart said, "Plenty there are who will follow the Lord halfheartedly, but few the other half. There are those who profess loyalty to Christ who are quick to turn back when the going gets hard. They are quick to compromise when the going gets tough. They had rather be popular than to be Christian."

Christian Discipleship starts with an act of decision. "If any man will," This is a determined decision. If any man will follow Jesus, there can be no compromises. If any man will follow Jesus, there can be no turning back. If any man will follow me, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily, and follow Me!"

The Judge Says

Deductions attributable to property held for the production of income, such as interest, taxes, repairs, and depreciation, may be taken even though the property is vacant during the tax year.

Sergeant Reidy purchased a home and had only lived in it for the first six months of 1957 when he received permanent Change of Station orders. Since his badge demanded that he attempt to rent the property, he listed his home with a Realtor who posted "For Rent" signs and advertised in the newspaper.

Upon this listing Sergeant Reidy's property was covered by a personal use to that being held for the production of income. He would be entitled to deduct all expenses incurred thereat, all expenses directly incurred in preparing the premises for rental, and one-half (6 months business use) of the expenses in interest to mortgage company, taxes, prior repairs during first six months, and depreciation.

The expenses in interest to mortgage company, taxes, prior repairs during first six months, and depreciation, are other than interest and taxes could be deducted on page three of Form 1040 unless the standard deduction was more advantageous. Had Sergeant Reidy's wife objected to renting his home, there would be no deduction allowable.

Schedules G and I on page 3, Form 1040 are utilized in reporting rental income and Deductions. Items 4 and 5 of schedule G should be supported by separate schedules, listing the types of Repairs and Other Expenses, such as plumbing and carpentry repairs and taxes and insurance for other expenses. Cancelled checks or paid bills should be retained to substantiate these schedules.

Device Gauges Missile's Speed

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AFPS) - A new highly sensitive device which can be used for gauging missile speeds, planes and missile launches, has been developed. The device consists of three cylinders, one inside the other. The innermost cylinder floats in a silicone fluid, and is sensitive to changes in air speed. A gyrometer is reportedly being developed. Sperry Gyroscope Co. is able to measure velocity so accurately that it can detect changes as small as 1,100,000 of the force of gravity.

The finder is called an accelerometer and carries a gyroscope to feed signals to a miniature computer for jam-proof guidance. The gyrometer is reportedly being developed. Sperry Gyroscope Co. is able to measure velocity so accurately that it can detect changes as small as 1,100,000 of the force of gravity.

RINGING OF BELL MARY. If he is proposed to you, let's see if he is a Jane. "No he is an engagement ring in his voice."

Concert Slates Stravinsky Work Tuesday Night

The recorded concert at the Main Fort Benning Library will feature "The Rite of Spring" by Igor Stravinsky at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Stravinsky drew an immense picture of pagan Russia. Each part describes some ritual of spring. The result is the adoration of nature by primitive man.

The world premiere of the ballet was a momentous occasion. Rumors of Nijinsky's unconventional choreography and Stravinsky's still more unusual music had spread through Paris like wildfire, and a distinguished audience had gathered to witness this initial performance by the Diaghilev company. The audience stirred restlessly as the introduction began. Then, with the increase of dissonant harmonies and relentless rhythms, actual fighting broke out. The noise grew in a crescendo matching that of the music, and the uproar did not subside until the final sacrificial dance.

At Service-Club No. 1 'Shower of Song' Set Sunday at Benning

The clever lyric of yesterday, "It's Always Fair Weather When Good Friends Get Together," will not be sung during the course of "Shower of Song," which Service Club No. 1 presents Sunday, 8 p.m., but it fitfully describes the "get-together" of two starting personalities in this vocal concert.

Both Sp4 George Bryant, Infantry Center Troop Command, and Doris Ragsdale, wife of Sfc Benny B. Ragsdale, 43rd Company, Fourth Student Battalion, School Brigade, have sung together at many Fort Benning social and musical events in the last two years.

"They have collected a multitude of fans with their spectacular way with a song, 'Shower of Song' reunites the singers in some outstanding duets: "Bess, You Is My Woman," from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," "And This Is My Beloved," from "Kismet," and "You Are Love," from "Show Boat."

Sole numbers by Bryant and Miss Ragsdale will include "Body and Soul," "Ole Devil Moon," "Music By The Angels" and "Grassie" among others.

Master of Ceremonies Lt. Donald C. Henley, Information Section, USAIC, will introduce a newcomer to the Benning spotlight. Hailing from Allentown, Penn., with considerable summer stock and nightclub work to his credit, Pfc. Rod Comp, Transfer Point, Infantry Center Troop Command, will deliver in his baritone voice, renditions of "All The Way," "An Affair To Remember," "You Can't Take That Away From Me" and "The Girl Next Door." With accompanying good looks and winning personality, Comp is a strong contender in the forthcoming All-Army Entertainment Contest.

Aside from his MC-ing chores Sunday evening, Lt. Henley, a gifted comedian and also a contest entry, will intersperse between song numbers his brand of spiced and spiked subtleties. Pfc. Jim Scovotti, Company C, First Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, will provide piano accompaniment.

FURNESS IS HOT... Betty Furness, a hot TV personality, stars in Columbia's live production of "The Thief with the Big Blue Eyes" tonight from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. over WRBL-TV (channel 4) in Columbus.

Chaplain Wildman Conducts Tour

Travelogue Viewed By International Club

More than 25 members of the Armed Services YMCA International Club and their guests viewed a travelogue of Europe and the Near East last week. Col. A. C. Wildman, chief of Chaplains at Fort Benning, conducted the tour on colored slides.

The occasion was the first anniversary of the founding of the International Club at the "Y".

Cuts Cake
 For this occasion, special plans were made and carried out by the club, including a decorated anniversary cake, cut by Mrs. William McFadden, a co-president of the group.

Each guest member was asked to sign the register and also sign a name tag and pin it to himself; the tags bore stickers of the flag of all nations.

The cake was surrounded by flags of foreign nations.

Flags of the 10 countries which have specific representation in the club were on the certain background directly behind the cake table.

Special Guests
 Special guests for the anniversary party included two of the Advisory Board who held the club in its initial phase — Mrs. M. C. Cooper and Mrs. J. Q. Davidson. Other guests included Major Gen. and Mrs. G. E. Lynch. Gen. Lynch is currently serving as Chairman of the Program Committee of the Armed Services YMCA Committee of Management, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stokes Jr., Mrs. R. C. Habel, as well as international members visiting for the first time — Mrs. Maureen Jones of Northern Ireland, Mrs. O. B. Martin of Germany, and Miss Peggy Villiers from England.

President Bill McFadden introduced the special guests and called upon the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Renate Waggoner, to read the birthday greetings received that day from Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Francisco now of Vallejo, Calif. He then introduced Chaplain Wildman.

The screen tour covered most of the European countries, the Near East, and North Africa.

After refreshments and the cake table, the group re-assembled to continue on into Spain, Portugal, Austria, Yugoslavia, and Sweden.

At the next meeting of the International Club will be held on March 10.

Invitation Given Former Cadets Wives to Dinner

Wives of graduates and former cadets of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., are invited to attend a dinner March 15 at 8 p.m. at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Academy men in the area will entertain with a stag dinner and offer vocational guidance to applicants seeking work. The facilities of this office are available to members of the 10th Division when they arrive in Columbus and it is the hope of the entire staff that they will have the opportunity of serving the members of this division.

Fashion Show Theme Marks BIOC Wives Luncheon Feb. 19

Wives of student officers attending the Infantry School's basic officers classes entertained with a luncheon Feb. 19 in Fort Benning's Main Officers' Mess.

Hostesses were wives of student officers from classes number 8 and 9. They were assisted by Cadre officers' wives, Mrs. James John B. Zain, Roy W. Turgeon, Wallace J. Moulis, Milton J. Morgan and David E. Hartigan Jr.

While caration corsages were presented to the guests of honor, Mrs. Norman B. Edwards, Mrs. Dured E. Townsend, Mrs. Adrain L. Hoebeke, Mrs. Richard W. Mayhew, Mrs. John B. Zain, Mrs. Robert Van Dyke Ochs Jr., Mrs. Zain in basic farwell to BIOC classes number 8 and 9 and welcomed classes number 10 and 11.

Decorations followed the theme of the entertainment; a fashion show. Hats, gloves, scarves, bags, jewelry, and spring flowers adorned the finger tables. The head table featured blue spring accessories placed on a mirror. Spring flowers with small butterflies edged the table. The walkway used by the models was covered with pastel shades of crepe paper. Rhinestone necklaces and earrings in the forms of clovers sat on the corners of the walkway.

Following the luncheon, the student officers' wives presented a fashion show featuring clothes and accessories furnished by Lovemans of the Traffic Circle shopping center. Narration for the show was Mrs. Joe Summers wearing a red "after-five" dress featuring the new harem skirt. The models were Mesdames Richard Ochs, Joseph C. Fantini, Giordano J. Forni, Robert E. Gralen, Earl T. Hamper, Terrell H. Hollingsworth, Rodney J. Kerber, David A. McCosker, Robert Huntington, and John Lockridge. The program was supervised by Mrs. Elaine L. Flecher.

Door prizes were drawn for by Amy Hartigan, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. David E. Hartigan Jr. Amy modeled "Easter outfit" furnished by Kideland of the Traffic Circle shopping center.

Invitations and nametags co-chairmen were Mrs. Ralph A. Mosburn and Mrs. Marvin D. Spivak assisted by Mesdames Terrell H. Hollingsworth, James E. Dwyer, Fred J. Blair, Peter Bodette, Harry A. Grant, and Richard A. Greer, Clay.

Infantry Center, School Faculty, Staff Feted By Class Members

A new event was added to graduation festivities for officer candidates when The Infantry School's OC class No. 1 entertained with a senior candidate luncheon Feb. 27 in the Main Officers' Mess. The 100-man class, whose members received commissions as second lieutenants in final exercises March 4, feted 90 faculty and staff members of The Infantry Center and Infantry School.

Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, Infantry Center deputy commanding general was the principal speaker for the occasion. Major Jack L. Treadwell, commander of the School Brigade's 5th Battalion, introduced the top ranking member of the class, OC Harry E. Warburg, and the four runners-up for honors, OCs Gary W. Bioedron, William D. Healy, George D. Burrow, and Walter G. Gen. Ruggles discussed the transition a soldier undergoes when changing from enlisted to officer status. He emphasized that each candidate should have confidence in his ability to become an officer because "your back ground in the OC course and your democratic heritage. "You are able and capable of assuming a place in the officer corps," Gen. Ruggles said. "We guard in the officer corps certain customs, certain traditions which mean a great deal to us," the speaker advised, adding the group to adhere to the fine traditions gleaned at home and through Army experience.

"Your training at The Infantry School has been practical in all its aspects," the general emphasized. He urged the graduates to apply in their new positions of responsibility the "top flight" instruction you've received from stem to stern. Col. Adrian L. Hoebbe, School Brigade commander, congratulated the class on its achievements.

Both the graduates were introduced by OC Warburg. The affair served the dual purpose of honoring Infantry School department directors and instructors the fine product of the Infantry Center and introducing the candidates an introduction to an official function at the officers mess.

44 Men Sent To Fort Knox

Forty-four members of Fort Benning's First Army Aviation Company left the post in 12 U-1A Otters March 2 to participate in a five-day aerial reconnaissance demonstration class at the Armor School at Fort Knox, Ky.

The flight was led by Capt. Ernest L. Hines, commander of the First Company at Lawton Army Air Field.

The unit will stage aerial drop, a feature of the aerial reconnaissance demonstration at Fort Knox. The First Army Aviation Company will support the Armor School in its staging of this particular maneuver. The group is scheduled to return to Fort Benning March 12.

Gen. Gallagher to Speak at Founder's Ceremony

Major Gen. (Ret.) Philip E. Gallagher, of Columbus, will speak at the annual U. S. Military Academy Founder's Day dinner March 15 at Fort Benning.

Graduates and former cadets of the Military Academy are invited to attend the event, which will begin at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Mess. Reservations may be made with Capt. Joe W. Finley, Infantry Center's Protocol Division, Fort Benning Telephone 2-2221, ext. 3-2622.

Gen. Gallagher is a 1919 graduate of the academy. Following a short course of instruction at The Infantry School of Arms, Fort Sill, Okla., he began his military career as an instructor at the newly-created Infantry School at Fort Benning.

He was graduated from The Infantry School's regular officer course in 1922 before going to West Point, Okla., for assignment with the 16th Infantry.

From June, 1929, to January, 1941, he was again stationed at Fort Benning. Initially assigned to The Infantry School to compile and edit training manuals, he later transferred to The Infantry Board.

Gen. Gallagher was Commandant of cadets at the Military Academy from February, 1945, to November, 1945. In this position he inaugurated and developed the brigade organization of the Corps of Cadets and effected tactical reorganization to meet the impact of World War II and a number of measures concerning an improved training program at the academy.

Honors Go To Top NG TIS Grads

National Guard officers from Virginia and Alaska captured first and second place honors in the new U. S. Army Hospital this spring by Lt. Col. (Ret.) Samuel C. Allison, coordinator of medical education for the structure; Col. Allison gave a talk on the new hospital at the luncheon.

The group plans to tour the hospital as soon as possible to select a welfare project for the club.

Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, president of the organization, congratulated the club's team on winning the annual Columbus City Bowling League Tournament. Mrs. Lamb announced that the club would sponsor a 20-hour course in public speaking. The talks will be given by personnel of the Instructor Training Section of the Infantry School's Office of the Director of Instruction.

Post Plans Ammunition Instruction

The Fort Benning Safety Office in conjunction with members of the 89th Ordnance Detachment (explosives disposal team) is planning an ammunition safety demonstration for school children of the Post.

The demonstration, the time and date of which will be announced will acquaint the children with dangers in playing with exploded or unexploded ammunition and the importance of each child reporting the location of any discarded ammunition he may discover.

HORSESHOEING SCHOOL... Knowing how to shoe a horse in 1929 was a vital part of the Army at Fort Benning. The post conducted horseshoeing schools such as is being inspected in photograph, which was in a collection of the late Major Gen. S. Farnsworth, Fort Benning commander in 1919. The collection has been contributed to The Infantry Museum at Fort Benning by Gen. Farnsworth's son, Robert J. Farnsworth, Altadena, Calif. Anyone who wishes to contribute or loan items to the museum that portray the past history of the Infantry should contact Sfc David W. Chase, Infantry Center Museum curator, Fort Benning telephone 3-5244.

Detachment Activated at Lawson Air Field

The 7th Army Operation Detachment was activated at Lawson Army Air Field March 1.
The unit has the mission of operating a complete airfield at designated areas in an emergency.
It is commanded by Capt. Paul H. Brown, former maintenance officer of the 31st Transportation Light Helicopter Company. He came to Fort Benning in January from an assignment as commander of the 571st Army Aircraft Repair transportation Detachment, Wheeler Air Force Base, Oahu, Hawaii.

The 7th has five officers and 89 enlisted men who came from units assigned to Lawson Field.
In executing its mission, the unit will establish an airfield, tower, runways, ground control approach devices, and have personnel for aircraft maintenance, radio operations, alert crews, crews for refueling planes and complete crews from man operating sections of the airfield in an emergency.

Weather information for the airfield will be supplied by the U. S. Air Force Weather Service. There also will be refueling trucks, crash trucks, and fire fighting equipment available.

When notified of an emergency the unit's first step is the designation of an area of operation. This is followed by the dispatch to the area of operating and clearance personnel for the airfield. Next, the alert crews, refueling trucks and maintenance personnel are dispatched to the area. The emergency field then will start receiving aircraft and commence refueling aircraft operations.

Assistant Judge Advocate General

Major Gen. Jones Confers With Officials at Benning

Accompanying Gen. Jones was Col. Theo E. Straight of the Judge Advocate General's Office, and Col. William P. Conally Jr., Third Army judge advocate.
Gen. Jones, who attended the regional conference of the American Bar Association in Atlanta Feb. 19 to 22, was at Fort Benning to talk with new Judge Advocate Corps officers attending The Infantry School's basic Infantry office officers class.
During his trip to the post he conferred with Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Gen. Powell honored the visitor with an official luncheon Feb. 25 in the Main Officers' Mess.

Gen. Jones also conferred with The Infantry Center staff judge advocate, Col. Erwin A. Jones, and members of his staff.
In addition, his schedule included a visit with Lt. Col. Morton S. Jaffe, Judge Advocate General Corps instructor at The Infantry School.

Soldiers Cover All Alaska In Aircraft Maintenance

FORT RICHARDSON, Alaska (ANP)— Sometimes it takes the help of a full dog sled team, but when they are out to recover a wrecked plane in the remote areas of Alaska, members of the Transportation Army Aircraft Maintenance unit stationed here usually succeed.
One of their hard jobs was in the minus 20 degree temperature of the Black Rapids area; when they had to build a bridge over a river to get to the crashed plane, then rig it for helicopter pickup.
The more routine mission of the team of two officers and 16 enlisted men is to perform all field maintenance on Army and National Guard planes in the Territory. It's work that keeps them traveling, and not in Alaska (ANP)— Sometimes it takes the help of a full dog sled team, but when they are out to recover a wrecked plane in the remote areas of Alaska, members of the Transportation Army Aircraft Maintenance unit stationed here usually succeed.
The commanding officer, for instance, Capt. Charles H. Mott is a graduate of the 14-copter mechanic. Spt John Ulmer is a graduate in helicopter course in a factory-trained aircraft maintenance specialist. Spt David Christe attended a 21-week course to qualify as an aircraft instrument specialist; Spt Alexander Hodges, chief of the chet metal shop, learned his trade at the Army Aviation Center, Fort Ruckkeeps them traveling, and not in Alaska.

3-A Tourny Set Here Next Week

The annual Third Army Basketball Tournament will be held at Fort Benning March 10-15.

All games, both men and women, will be played at the Bayonet Wells Field House with both afternoon and evening sessions planned.

It is expected that there will be 10 male teams representing posts throughout the Third Army area. Five installations are expected to send female teams.

Male teams expected to compete include Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, N. C. Fort Monmouth, Ga. Fort Jackson, S. C. Redstone Arsenal, Ala., Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort Campbell, Ky., Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort Stewart, Ga., and Fort Gordon, Ga.

The installations entering women's teams are, in addition to Fort Benning, Fort McPherson, Fort Jackson, Fort Bragg and Fort Gordon.

There will be both afternoon and some morning sessions during the double-elimination tournament with the finals being played on the evening of March 15.

There will be no admission at any of the sessions. Both civilian and military personnel are invited to the tournament.

LEG HOLD . . . Two Fort McPherson basketball players hang onto a kicking leg during a scramble for a free ball during a recent intra-post tilt. Dick Long (No. 21) moves in to give a helping hand. Fort Benning defeated Fort McPherson 91-88.

Denman Wins Second Place

The School Brigade's Olympic walker, Pfc Elliott Denman, proved his versatility by finishing second in the National Championship 1000-meter "Sprint" Walk at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Denman, who is better suited to the long distances, was only 32 yards behind the champion, John Hamcke of New York, in the big race before 15,000 people.

Denman's time was his best ever, seven minutes and one second, but it was not quite enough to win. Hamcke did six minutes, 50 seconds. However, Denman did win the unofficial inter-service walking title by beating Pvt. Ronald Laird, Fort Monmouth, N. J. and Air Force Lt. Rudy Halusa of Hondo Air Force Base, Texas.

The previous weekend at Madison Square Garden Denman also finished second to the big rival Hamcke in the annual New York Athletic Club Games. Denman did seven minutes and eight seconds to Hamcke's six minutes, 52 seconds.

Denman will now start training for the longer distance walking races scheduled for this spring. His major goal is the National Championship 20 Kilometer (12 1/2 mile) Walk at Baltimore, Md., April 27. The first two in this race probably will be selected for the American team which will oppose a Russian team in the international dual meet at Dynamo Stadium in Moscow July 27.

Pistoliers Holds Combined Meet
The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club featured the "Southern Shakedown" 2,700 aggregate pistol event during its quarterly match at the club's range March 12.

This National Rifle Association registered three aggregate tournament features the firing of the .22, .32 and .45 caliber pistols.

Post Team Bowling Championships

ICTC Wins Men's Kegler Crown; USAH Takes Women's Division

Fort Benning's USAIC Troop Command Bowling Team fell a total of 9,877 pins to take the Post Team Bowling Championship last week. Ten Men's Teams and two Ladies' Teams competed in the Championship Tournament which kept the Main Bowling alleys reverberating to the sounds of toppling pins and speeding bowling balls over the period of Feb. 24-28.

Turner-up slot in the Men's Team competition was won by the leaders of The School Brigade with a total pin fall of 8,729.

Sgt. Joe Hughes, Fourth Transportation Company, Law-son Army Airfield, tied out top spot in the Men's Singles Championship by bowling 563 over the 533 pins tumbled by Sgt. Bill Horan, U. S. Army Hospital, who took the runner-up position. Horan's steady bowling, however, won him a first place in the aggregate, where Hamcke's six minutes, 52 seconds.

The Distinguished Pistol Shot, proof positive of pistol marksmanship is a gold medal valued at $75.

Since it is not uncommon for a marksman to fire 50 or 20 years before gaining the coveted medal, there have been more Medal of Honor winners than distinguished pistol shooters.

The service concerned automatically presents the award when the pistolman wins three credits, or legs. Legs are awarded for hitting the highest score in regional or divisional matches; all-service matches, and the National matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

However, one of the legs must be won at the all-service level or National Matches before the distinguished award can be made. —(AFS)

ACTION IN BOWLING CHAMPIONSHIPS
Bill Woods, Hq. Co., 29th Inf., Takes Turn At Alley

he totaled a pin fall of 2,770 over the four-day stretch of strenuous competition. Second place in the all events went to Pfc. Glenn Jamieson, Company D, 14th Infantry, for his score of 4,028.

In the Women's Division of the championships, the bowling of the U. S. Army Hospital Team to take the Women's Championship could not overshadow the kegling skill of Sgt. Barbara Brakes, WAC Company.

She took the Ladies' Singles Championship with a 448, the all events with a 1591, the High Three Game Series with a 448 and the High Singles Game with a 171. The Ladies' Doubles competition was taken by Lt. Patricia Stevenson, U. S. Louise Andersland, USMC, with

Sgt. Barbara Brakes, WAC Company, Major Louise Andersland, U. S. Army Hospital, Capt. Phyllis Faubus, U. S. Army Hospital, and Capt. Macjorie Ivey, U. S. Army Hospital.

Two Fort Benning boxers last week won Third Army Championships at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The two championships and a runner up placed Fort Benning third in the Third Army Boxing Tournament.

Fort Campbell, Ky., defender of its 1957 Third Army boxing title successfully, taking five of 10 championships. Fort Bragg, N. C. placed second. Fort Campbell finished first with 20 points. Fort Bragg gathered 15 points. Fort Bragg was close in third place with 11 and Fort Jackson scored five points for fourth place.

JUMPSHOT FROM CORNER . . . Russ Porter, 54th Medical Group, (No. 3) shoots from the corner during an intra-post basketball fracas at Briant Wells Field House as the 14th Infantry's Frank Lee (No. 11) waits for rebound. Redstone Arsenal's center watches the try which was good for two points. Benning took the thriller 54-75 last week.

Two Post Fighters Win 3-Army Championships

Two Fort Benning boxers last week won Third Army Championships at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The two championships and a runner up placed Fort Benning third in the Third Army Boxing Tournament.

Fort Campbell, Ky., defender of its 1957 Third Army boxing title successfully, taking five of 10 championships. Fort Bragg, N. C. placed second. Fort Campbell finished first with 20 points. Fort Bragg gathered 15 points. Fort Bragg was close in third place with 11 and Fort Jackson scored five points for fourth place.

Fort Stewart failed to score. Fort Benning's two Third Army champions are Light Middleweight David Anderson and Light Heavyweight Theodore Betha.

Wallace Munford of Fort Benning was runner up in the featherweight division. Anderson's victory over 1957 light middleweight champion, Joel Wilson, Fort Campbell, was the major upset in the matches.

Betha won a split decision from Gil Benson, Fort Bragg, who was runner up in the featherweight bout.

Charley Quinn Post to Re-Open Gobbler Season

(Editor's Note: This is the beginning of a weekly column in The Bayonet by M. Sgt. Charley Quinn, an outdoor enthusiast at Fort Benning. M-Sgt. Quinn each week will bring readers the latest information on post sporting events, especially hunting and fishing.)

Don't put the old shot gun back in cosmo line just yet for, if you haven't bagged your wild turkey yet, you have a reprieve! Though the normal '57-'58 turkey hunting season closed on Feb. 25, Lt. John Sutherland, Range Guard Section, informs us of a special Gobbler Season now being planned and which is scheduled to run from April 1-12 in the Georgia area of the post. All this exciting arrangements are now in process to coordinate the Alabama Gobbler season to run concurrently with the Georgia open period. If completed, the turkey ranges of the entire Post will be open to you from April 1-12.

HUNTERS BAG 28 TURKEYS
But 28 wild turkeys fell to Benning gunners during the season just past. Compare this figure with those of the hunters who tried for them and the flocks of turkeys on post and you permit to some degree, the witness of America's most prized game bird. It takes some doing to outwit a crusty old Tom—so, if you wish to try your skill at outwitting one, check with the Range Guard Section for full particulars.

By the way, it goes without saying that you won't be eligible to hunt turkey during the coming open season if you have already your seasonal permit of two birds. Those who do take advantage of the gobbler season will be required to report birds killed. This information will be consolidated and forwarded to the Georgia Game and Fish Commission with whom our Range Guard Section is associated and working in close cooperation. Unlike our quail population, the turkeys on post aren't present as a result of propagation and restocking by our Association. They're truly wild turkeys and everything possible is being done to keep the big birds here for the enjoyment they afford.

10TH MEMBERS JOIN ASSOCIATION

We've also been informed by Lt. Sutherland that a number of incoming members of the 10th Infantry Division have lost little time in becoming members of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association. We talked to several men who stated that they'd never been interested in hunting or fishing until they had reached Germany and had tried the pike and trout fishing and hunted the German reabuck and hirsch. We're glad that their interest is continuing and we know that they will find hunting and fishing facilities at Benning as good, or better, than can be found on any other military post in the country.

ASSN. MEMBERSHIP PAYS OFF IN FUN

For the benefit of our newer Bayonet readers—membership in the Fish and Game Maintenance Association is open to all military members of the post. The objectives of the association are incorporated in its title . . . the maintenance and preservation of the fish and game and preservation of the boundaries of the reservation. The membership fee is but $2 a year, an amount which is quickly refunded through the vast enjoyment received through the pleasure experienced in the field or on the banks of our ponds and streams.

The "operating" personnel of the association are the Fort Benning Range Guards. A Section of the Benning Military Police Company, the Range Guards perform the actual duties of game propagation, pond maintenance and restocking, tilling and planting game food strips, predator control fertilizing and restocking of fishing waters to name but a few of the jobs entailed. Though they're overworked in keeping up with the vast projects facing them, they're never too busy to get you zoned in on the best hunting and fishing.

Qualifying Set For Open Mess Golf Meet

Qualifications for the annual Fort Benning Officers' Open Mess Golf Championship are being held at the Fort Benning Country Club. The qualifications began Feb. 23 and will run through March 23.

The tournament will begin with matches by flights March 1. Finals will played March 27 at the Country Club course.

Members of the Main Officers' Open Mess are eligible to compete. Entrance fee is $1.

Contestants may enter the golf competition at the Golf Shop at the Country Club.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Paul Bunn at Fort Benning telephone 36120.

Southern Shakedown Meet Dominated By Pistol Team

The U. S. Army Pistol Team completely dominated the Southern Shakedown Pistol Match held at Fort Benning March 12.

Under sunny skies and near perfect shooting conditions Lt. David Carter, U. S. Army, won the three-gun, 2,700 aggregate with an eye-catching score of 2,617-100X. Second place went to Sgt. William B. Blankenship who fired a 2,659-111X score. Lt. Col. William A. Hancock, officer in charge of the U. S. Army Pistol Group, captured third place with a 2,601-101X score.

In the 22 caliber match, Sgt. Blankenship fired an 886-44X score to edge past the 878-33X score fired by Sgt. John H. Lingle of the Third Army team. Sgt. Aubrey E. Smith, Advanced Marksmanship Unit, was the center fire match winner. Sgt. Smith's winning score of 869-32X was approached by Sgt. Blankenship and Cpl. Troy D. Oney, both of whom fired 867 scores.

The pistol score fired by Lt. Carter in the .45 caliber match was more than enough to win his closest challenger was Sgt. Smith who registered an 866-33X.

One Team Match . . . The only team match fired was the .45 caliber pistol and the U. S. Army "Blue" Team received the victory with a sparkling 1,150-41X score. Lt. Carter led the way in the Blue Team with a 265-11X score.

HONOR GRADUATE
Sgt. Clarence E. McCrea has been named honor graduate of cooking class No. 23 at the U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit commanded by Col. E. R. Mason, will depart for Tampa, Fla., March 14 to participate in the National Mid-Winter Championships.

Played in 4 Bowl Tilts Ga. Tech Star Takes Training in Brigade

BY TOM MALORY
The captain of the 1956 Georgia Tech football team, a unanimous pre-season All American selection, and a veteran of four post season bowl games, is now assigned to the School Brigade.

He is 2nd Lt. George A. Volkert, a member of Basic Infantry Officer Course 10, 21st Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Lt. Volkert attended Jasso Lillian High School in Nashville, Tenn., before enrolling at Tech. Although winning 18 letters in football, basketball, and baseball, it was on the gridiron that he developed in to a national prep sports figure. In 1953, Volkert scored a clean sweep in high school honors by being elected to the All City, All State, All Southern, and All American squads.

At college Volkert soon proved that he was a versatile performer as he made the switch from the single wing to Tech's split-T formation with little difficulty. For four years he inspired play from the backfield.

School Brigade Highlights Company Hosts Scout Instruction Confab for Southeast Counselors

Second Student Battalion Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Second Student Battalion, was host to the Southeastern Boy Scout Counselors' instruction conference on Feb. 21-22. A total of 90 counselors were present for instruction.

20th Company — After a holiday week end, BIOC No. 11 of the 20th Company, Second Student Battalion, started off to a taxing week of exams covering map reading, communication and ground mobility.

Also highlighting last week's schedule was the issuing of 1st Lieutenants' orders and the beginning of the busy week were tracked vehicle familiarization, capabilities via terrain, driving and daily maintenance, organization for maintenance and a physical conditioning.

21st Company — The "BA Greeks" completed their fourth week of training with the qualification test on the M-1 rifle. 2nd Lt. Charles H. Fook, Loyola College, led the company with a score of 220. 1st Lt. Gerald A. Greer, Central Michigan College, and 2nd Lt. Mark S. Hansen, University of Washington, scored 226 and 223 respectively.

The basketball team continued their winning ways by beating BIOC No. 8 89-58. The scoring honors again went to 2nd Lt. James Brown, Syracuse University, with 25 points. Two other members of the "BA Greeks", 2nd Lt. Stuart Murray, Lafayette University, and 2nd Lt. Robert Gundersen, University of Virginia, also scored in double figures, 24 and 21 points.

22nd Company — BIOC No. 9 had said farewell to the 47 first lieutenants of the Judge Advocate General's Corps who made it the fourth platoon of the 22nd Company. The company held a stag party at the Student Officers Branch of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Highlights of the evening was a series of slides presented by members of the departing JAG Corps, depicting their life as "visiting infantry officers" during their eight-week stay.

24th Company — Nearly 50 officers of BIOC No. 6 are participating in the Athletic Recreation Program established in the 24th Company, and Lt. Philip A. Oliver, who heads the program said the basketball team faced difficulty in scheduling games with other companies because of the tight training schedule.

25th Company — 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Thomas W. Kelly announce the birth of a daughter, Kathleen Anne, Feb. 29 at the Medical Center in Columbus. Lt. Kelly is a member of BIOC 6, 25th Company. The School Brigade. The Kellys reside at the Pine Terrace Apartments, Columbus.

Company F — Appointed to Private first class were Donald M. Friskner, a clerk typist in the Ground Mobility Department; Ronald E. Leaty and Joe O. Reep, both in the Operations Department; and Willie L. Mitchell who is a driver in the Post Office.

Marine Machine Gunner Testing Begins On New Vertical Takeoff Craft

WASHINGTON (AP)— Tests have started on an Army plane designed to takeoff and land like a helicopter but operate in the air like an ordinary airplane.

The plane has ducted propellers on the wing tips which rotate through 90 degrees to convert in flight from vertical takeoff and hovering to normal flight.

No airports or specialized takeoff or landing equipment are required.

The pilot simply rotates the propeller ducts to a vertical position for takeoff, and then returns them to normal horizontal position in the air. The plane remains horizontal as it rises or comes down.

Where airfields are available, the craft will takeoff and land like an ordinary plane. Then it can carry extra fuel tanks to increase the range, since ordinary takeoff requires less power.

The plane was developed by Doak Aircraft Company, Inc., Torrance, Calif.

First Student Battalion
Company 2nd Lt. Richard F. Lyons, executive officer, was admitted to the hospital last week with the measles.

Advance Class No. 1 will stage a dinner March 7. 2d Lt. Sgt. Alley lost his leg scheduled for a party March 8.

Second Company — Major William A. McClain, a student in Second Company, was presented a certificate of achievement for LoGrange last week. Major Gen. Martin J. Morin, CG 20th Group, Fort Hayes, by Lt. Col. James L. Bryan, commanding officer First Student Battalion, Feb. 25.

5th Student Battalion
51st Company — The midnight oil is burning at 51st Officer Candidate Company as candidates employ their talents remodeling the company day room.

Candidate Bruce A. Welch and his crew are changing the cinder block walls into a comfortable place where candidates may enjoy leisure hours. Besides being for the candidates, the day room is a good place for families and friends to visit members of the company.

Chaplain Floyd Assigned To 577th Engineer Bn.

Chaplain (1st Lt.) William Floyd was assigned to the 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) as battalion chaplain. Prior to this assignment he was Chaplain for the 499 Engineer Battalion (Combat).

Entering the Army in September, 1957, Chaplain Floyd attended the Chaplains School at Fort Slocum, N. Y., where he received his Chaplains Cross. He also attended the Associate Company Officer's Course at Fort Benning.

Before entering the Army, Chaplain Floyd was a machine gunner in the Marine Corps for two years. Upon his release from the Marines in 1948, he entered Presbyterian College in Clinton, S. C., where he graduated with a BA degree and a reserve commission in the U. S. Army. He later studied at the Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga., where he received his Bachelor's Degree in Divinity. He served as the Marines in the South Pacific during World War II.

A native of Athens, Ga., Chaplain Floyd has served nine months overseas and holds the World War II Victory Medal and the National Defense Medal. Not the only member of his family to serve in the Army, Chaplain Floyd's father, D. L. Floyd Sr., served with the 81st Division in France during World War I, and his brother, D. L. Floyd Jr., served with the Marines in the South Pacific during World War II.

Cabins Rehabilitated At TIC Rest Center

The rehabilitation of six cabins at the USAIC Rest Center, Destin, Fla., began Feb. 17, with 26 men from Company B, 57th Engineer Battalion supplying the man power for the project.

The work order for the project calls for repairing of ceilings, cinder and concrete block foundations, replacing floor joists, repair screens and porches, plumbing repairs in the showers and restrooms, and exterior and interior painting.

Food Improvement Company C, 49th Engineer Battalion, is installing culverts, repairing a breach in the dam, and making general improvements at Brittain's Pond. The completion of this project will provide a new recreation area for Fort Benning personnel.

Sunday School Company, 57th Engineer Battalion, is redecorating Sunday School classrooms in building 5100 in the Harmony Church area. The rooms will be used by children living in Post Trailer park No. 2.

The 60th Engineer Company and Company A, 57th Engineer Battalion, are leading superior efforts, bring credit to the field with only one game remaining in the first round play in the 151st Engineer Group volleyball tournament. The 64th Engineer Company follows these two units by a narrow margin. A second round play will follow the first round and the Group champions will be chosen by a play-off between the top two teams.

Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Group, and the 64th Engineer Company, completed their annual range qualification firing at Shelton Range Feb. 26. The M-1 and the Carbine were both used for qualification.

TIC Honors Rangé Guards

The Infantry Center honored range guards at a formal guard mount on Fort Benning's Chapel Field March 1.

The men were cited for outstanding performance of duty during the year with a new policy of standing performance of duty by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry Center commander.

Since World War I, when Fort Benning was founded, these men and those who came before them have worked hard and diligently to make the reservation the hunting and fishing paradise that it is today, according to officials.

In accomplishing their tasks, they have been subjected to long and irregular hours of duty, both day and night, in all conditions of weather, they added.

The Infantry Center welcomed this opportunity to laud these individuals for their initiative, tact and intelligence in enforcing the hunting and fishing regulations on the post, officials stated.

Defense Unwraps New Ballistic Arms

WASHINGTON (APFS)—The Defense Department has taken the wraps off ingenious missiles being developed to fortify the nation's arsenal of space-age ballistic weapons, rapidly approaching perfection.

With the Jupiter and the Thor intermediate range missiles expected to be operative at Air Force bases overseas before the end of the year, the Navy's Polaris IRBM and the Air Force's 5,500-mile Atlas will give the US a powerful array of devastating strategic armaments.

High on the list of priority new weapons is the Army's antimissile missile, the Nike-Zeus. Primarily being perfected for defense of the continent at U. S. against the ICBM, the Sixteen-year-old Nike-Zeus will be joined with the Army's recently disclosed Plato, a mobile antimissile missile system designed to protect American overseas bases and our allies from IRBM threats.

'Sergeant' to Replace 4-Year-Old 'Corporal'

WASHINGTON, (ANSI)—Sergeant, the Department of the Army's newest ballistic guided missile which represents the latest in technological achievements, is being hailed by DA officials as America's first truly "second generation" missile.

When placed in production, Sergeant will succeed the Army's four-year-old Corporal. It is more powerful and accurate than the Corporal and can deliver a nuclear blow far behind enemy lines via a highly accurate guidance system that is invulnerable to any known means of enemy countermeasures.

The Sergeant employs improved propellants and materials that incorporate advanced design characteristics which meet required temperature, shock, and vibration environments.

This highly-mobile weapon can be quickly employed and fired by a very small crew under all conditions of weather and terrain.

Francis Tells Congress Pay Measure Would Improve Services

WASHINGTON (APFS)—The new military pay and incentive bill will produce no miracles, Assistant Secretary of Defense William H. Francis Jr. told Congress, but will provide steady and dramatic improvement in the services.

Testifying in support of the pay legislation at the opening hearing of the House Armed Services Sub-committee, headed by Rep. Paul J. Kilgay (D-Texas), the manpower chief said, "Our country to survive needs now more than ever before in its history, a military force of truly professional stature."

"We do not presently have such a force," Francis declared.

Figures quoted later revealed that of 2.3 million men in the ranks, only 765,000 are experienced and fully trained.

"Unless we can offer our most able men a chance to move forward in accordance with demonstrated ability, we are in grave danger" of eventuality bogging down the service "with men who do not have confidence in their ability, do not have ambition or drive and are not the kind of men the modern Armed Forces so urgently require," he explained.

"We expect no miracles" through the proposed changes in the military pay structure, Francis told the legislators, "but we do expect a steady, and ultimately, a dramatic improvement in our order of readiness."

The Defense Department considers the proficiency pay system to be the most flexible of all the various compensation proposals that have been suggested and believes the plan offers the greatest benefits at the least cost, he added.

Francis said proficiency pay is precisely that—pay for pro-gram pay, skill pay, specialist pay or any of the other things that has been called.

"You might say it is a compromise, but I incline to use the word 'flexible.' Flexible in that it can be applied in one way by one service to solve one type of problem, another way by another service to solve its separate problem," Francis said.

For that reason, he continued, the proficiency system permits use in two ways: eth-

Molly Bee Becomes Queen Bee Of 'Seabees' Thru Telebeeshun

Queen Bee of the Seabees highlights the Second Army Molly Bee, and nobody's trying to get into the 10-year-old who soared to fame via TV and records, and recently signed a seven-year contract with Columbia Pictures, was shown on a reign over the 16th anniversary celebration of the Fort Huachuca, Calif., Seabees. Pat O'Brien and Spencer Tracy have shared several things: Navy service, one dress shirt long ago while applying for acting jobs, and now billing in "The Last Hurrah" in the Mounties always getting their man if her uniform was for real. Carol Passell, a DFC with first class curves, Way, has warbled a Lawrence Welk audition. The young singer made his first public appearance when he was three years old. Tops in Pops... Presley tried, but the nation's top juke box tunes as published in this week's "Cashbox Magazine" is still headed by "Get A Job" (Silhouettes). Others, in order were: "Don't" (Elvis Presley); "At the Hop" (Danny and Juniors); "The Street" (Diamonds); "Sail Along Silvery Moon" (Billy Vaughn); "Short Shorts" (Royal Tens); "Catch A Falling Star" (Ferry Corch); "Summer Time" (McGuire Sisters); "La Dee Dah" (Billy Ford's Thunderbirds); and "You Are My Destiny" (Paul Anka).

2 Mechanical Mules Introduced To TIS Problems by 29th Inf.

A pair of Army mechanical mules, assigned to the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, have been introduced to Infantry School problems. The new infantry light weapons carrier made their debut last month in the helicopterborne rifle company assault demonstrating stages of the Inter-American Defense Board. Sited for JCOC

Since then they've been incorporated in a tank gunny problem on Hook range. In May, they are slated again for use in the helicopterborne assault problem for JCOC. The versatile mule, M274, weighs only 800 pounds but can transport a thousand pounds of cargo over the roughest terrain at speeds up to 25 miles an hour. In the 14th demonstration, two mule-mounted 106 recoilless rifles were slung beneath H34 helicopters. They were landed along with the rifle platoons, raced uphill into firing positions, and sent support for the company's assault. "There was very high spectator interest in the mules," says Col. Millard G. Bowser, Jr., head of the Tactical Department and principal in the assault demonstration. "Low silhouette

The carrier is valuable because it is light weight, has a low silhouette and is a good cross-country vehicle. We are planning on using it in the JCOC training." Crew members of the two 106 weapons from the 29th Company A, which performed in the key role of the demonstration company, became thoroughly familiar with the mules. "On rough terrain it's hard to stay in the vehicle," comments Sgt. Clert Hartley, 106 runner in the demonstration. "It's sure not the most comfortable riding, I'm still kind of black and blue from the bumps."

Three Colonels Named to New Assignments at Infantry School

Three colonels have been named to new assignments at The Infantry School at Fort Benning. Col. Norman B. Edwards, March 4 assumed the duties of the school's director of instruction. Successor to him director of the Ground Mobility Department is Col. John J. Pavick, former chief of the Staff Department of Intelligence Group. Col. John T. Corley, director of the Communications Department, will replace Col. John J. Dalton as director of the Ranger Department March 17. Col. Dalton has been assigned to The Infantry Training Command at Fort Dix, N. J.

Col. Aussy P. Brown, executive officer of the Communications Department, will serve as acting director of the department. Col. Edwards came to Fort Benning last August after a three-year tour in Naples, Italy, with headquarters at the Allied Forces Southern Europe in the Strategic Plans Branch and later as secretary for his staff.

He attended the West Virginia Institute of Technology in Montgomery for three years before being graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in 1952. He is a 1946 graduate of the Infantry School's regular officers' course.

During World War II Col. Edwards was assistant G-3 and deputy chief of staff of III Corps in France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany from August, 1944, to May, 1945. After serving with the G-3 Section of Continental Army Command (Third Army Group) in Germany, he was assigned as a battalion command executive officer in the First Army Division Corps in France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany from August, 1944, to May, 1945. After serving with the G-3 and Banner and the Regiment of Continental Army Command (Third Army Group) in Germany, he was assigned as a battalion command executive officer in the First Army Division Corps in France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany from August, 1944, to May, 1945.

The 47-year-old officer went to the Joint Strategic Plans and Operations Group of Far East Command headquarters in Tokyo, Japan, in October, 1950. The latter five months of his 12-month tour he served on the United Nations Command Armistice Negotiation Team in Korea.

The following year he was commander of the 27th Infantry Regiment of the 25th Division and tactical advisor to the commanding general of the Eighth Army in Korea. Following a brief tour with III Corps at Fort Meade at Ft. Belvoir, Col. Edwards attended the National War College at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., in 1954-1954. Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Cross, three Oak Leaf Clusters to the Silver Star, and an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit for our gallantry, leadership, personal selflessness and tactical skill in these actions.

Col. Corley also wears the Purple Heart. He is a 1958 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy. Before coming to Fort Benning he served a three-year tour with Seventh Army headquarters in Stuttgart, Germany, as G-1 (personnel officer).

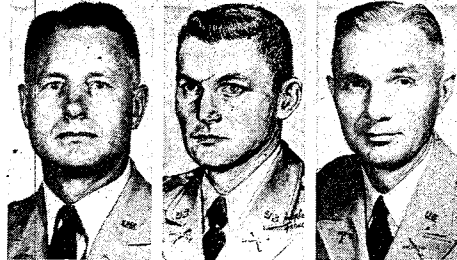

A 1939 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, he was assigned to Fort Sherman, C. Z., Fort Bliss, Texas, and Camp Davis, N. C., before being graduated from the commandant of the Central Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1944. Commissioned in the Coast Artillery Corps, he transferred to the Infantry in December, 1944.

Following a two-year tour as an instructor at the Military Academy, Col. Pavick served in the G-2 Section of U. S. Forces Austria in Vienna from 1946 to 1947. The following year he was a member of the Chinese Military Academy in Nanking.

Returning to the U. S. Forces Austria, the 42-year-old officer served three years with the G-2 Section in Salzburg preceding a two-year assignment as a battalion command executive officer in the First Army Division Corps in France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany from August, 1944, to May, 1945.

For deeds of heroism during World War II, Col. Corley won the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star with four Oak Leaf Clusters, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the French Croix de Guerre with Star.

In Korea, where he commanded the 24th Regiment of the 25th Infantry Division in 1950, he fought in three major campaigns. He was awarded an

Personnel Don Summer Wear April 1 at Post

Fort Benning personnel will change to the summer uniform April 1.

Summer uniform regulations will be published around March 20, officials said. There will be little changes in the regulations from 1957.

Basic uniform will be the cotton khaki continental and the cotton-kanbi abbreviated.

Officials recommended personnel that uniforms should be cleaned, ironed, pressed, laundered and fittings to insure readiness for the changeover.

Reassuring Report

WASHINGTON (ANS) — In the face of the Soviet Army's much publicized new weapons and Communism's recent diplomatic truce, today's news from the Combat Development Experiment Center at Fort Ord, Calif., is happily reassuring.

Just made public is the report of Dr. Ellis A. Johnson, director of the Johns Hopkins University Operations Research Office, who following his visit to CDEC, labelled the Center an "unqualified success."

"I can summarize my opinions of CDEC by saying that I believe marvelous results have been obtained so far — far beyond those that could reasonably have been expected in such a short time. This is a scientific venture both forward-looking and magnificent in concept," said the distinguished physicist.

Established a little over a year ago, CDEC experiments and studies continuously to find the best possible combination of firepower, tactics, techniques, logistical support, command and control, mobility, communications and information acquisition. From their research comes the know-how to put America's armament to best use in either a limited or general war.

Among the many pieces of modern Army equipment CDEC has tested in recent months is the new "mechanical mule." First it was tested through exhaustive terrain exercises, then CDEC personnel experimented by mounting the new 106mm recoilless rifle on it, and finally devised new tactics in which "the mule" was airlifted by an H-23 Helicopter. From such research CDEC develops the tactics and techniques by which new weapons can be used most effectively.

Dr. Johnson's report of unqualified success at CDEC is good news — for the work of that Center is a life-and-death matter to American soldiers who must be ready at all times to face any possible enemy on the field of battle.

Ode to Infantryman

Capt. Roy H. Hertz Jr., Headquarters, U.S. Training Center, Infantry, (G-3), Fort Ord, Calif., is author of the following poem. The poem was submitted to Infantry magazine for publication. Infantry magazine, however, does not use poetry. Capt. Hertz's composition was forwarded to The Bayonet.

QUEEN OF BATTLE

I am the "Queen of Battle," jealous monarch of brave men's hearts.

I have frozen at Valley Forge and written in the unrequited heat of the desert.

My sweat and blood are an integral part of the uncompromising battlefield.

I have felt the indescribable thrill of victory, grasped by a few from the fickle odds of fate,

And wept with unashamed tears at the frustration of the battle lost, the foe unconquered.

At times I have stumbled, only to have my banner lifted once again on high by those that have not the strength to lift themselves, nor life enough to know that they had become eternal.

(IN SUCH AS THESE ARE FOUND THE DIAMONDS OF MY REGAL CROWN)

I am the "Queen of Battle," mighty monarch of all conflict.

I find my strength in the fierce pride born of loyalty, the determined dedication to a cause, the deep devotion to an ideal.

My royalty lies not in pompous pageantry. My poeety grace is sanctified within the hearts of those that serve my cause.

An inward glow of satisfaction is all that lights my throne, it shines resplendent in the eyes of you who walk to fight, and live to die in my behalf.

(IN SUCH AS THESE ARE FOUND THE DIAMONDS OF MY REGAL CROWN)

Income Tax: VI Keep Copies of Tax Returns and Records

Beyond this requirement, however, taxpayers should find that keeping copies of returns should help them in filing next year, especially if they are interested in their financial status. In addition, it is suggested that records of 1958 expenditures—uncollected checks, receipts, sales taxes and other deductions—be kept in preparation of the return also should be kept.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJOR) ESTER J. HOUGHTALING History with the help of God... We are all familiar with the story of Belshazzar's Feast recorded in the Fifth Chapter of the book of Daniel. Belshazzar, king of Babylon, had a great celebration in the midst of a hand against Empires' Fall on the wall of the banquet hall. Interpreted by Daniel the vision said: "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting." Written centuries before the birth of Christ that message has come ringing down the ages. Empires and Kingdoms have been cut to pieces on the sharp edge of this sword of judgment, and with them have perished their rulers. They perished because they stubbornly refused to follow the counsel and advice of wise men who warned them that the pathway along which they traveled led to disaster. They were like a man in strange country who refuses to consult the road map in the compartment of his car. We know he's going to get lost, but you can't tell him that.

The Judge Says...

This office has received many inquiries about eligibility for educational benefits, especially under the GI Bill. Unfortunately, the GI Bill is not available for all those who entered service after Jan. 31, 1948. However this does not mean that there are no educational benefits that the Army is presently offering. The Army stands willing and able to help a soldier get all the education that he desires. First of all, there is the United States Army Educational Institute, better known as USAEI, which offers thousands of courses in all fields. Most of these are correspondence courses, although some may be given right here on post. Also available are correspondence courses with colleges and universities all over the United States. In addition, it is suggested that records of 1958 expenditures—uncollected checks, receipts, sales taxes and other deductions—be kept in preparation of the return also should be kept.

Movie Time At Benning

Theater Highlights

Seven Guns To Mesa, a family western with Charles Quinn-Tavares, Lola Albright and James Griffith. A band of lawless killers stake out in a western ghost town and plan the robbery of a large gold shipment. The picture is highlighted by a fight on the plains when the killers ambush the train and fight the cavalry troops that are guarding it. Legend of the Lost, a mature adventure drama in technicolor starring John Wayne, Sophia Loren and Rossano Brazzi. A rugged man of the desert, a fabled hunting adventurer and a mysterious native girl join in the search for a priceless treasure in the lost city of the Sahara Desert. Handle With Care, a family drama featuring Dean J. Agnew, Joan O'Brien and Thomas Mitchell. A young law student, trying to avenge his father's prison death, discovers during a mock trial that graft existed at one time in the administration of the Mayor's office. Eventually cleared, the Mayor convinces the student "District Attorney" that there is no reason for him to bear a cross against society. High Flight, a family service drama with Roy MacGregor, Kenneth Haigh and Anthony Newley. An RAF Wing Commander teaches a young pilot a stern lesson in teamwork and discipline he himself learned through bitter experience in World War II.

Cuba's Batista Alerts Police to Stop Strike

HAVANA, Cuba — President Fulgencio Batista called 7,000 heavily armed national police to duty Sunday and gave them orders to crush any general strike called by rebel leader Fidel Castro. Batista's army, navy and air force were put on standby duty in garraons throughout Cuba. Castro has threatened to call a general strike at any hour to try to topple the Batista regime. The government forces were alerted for the possibility they may come Monday — six anniversary of Batista's rise to power. Leaders of 60,000 striking high school and university students said they were ready to join in any strike against Batista. The students have been on strike protesting student arrests. OVER THE AIR

Each day added emphasis on the news scene, there's "Benning News" each evening (terminating factor in a future war. However, most of our military leaders still place prime importance on the ability and skill of the individual soldier. The next conflict might not be a nuclear war—not every task which may be suitable for a nuclear war or bomb. These targets must still be eliminated, however, and proven in Korea, many times this job falls on the individual rifeman—his marksmanship, his accuracy, his tenacity in the face of the enemy, and his ability to follow the mission. This week's "Queen of Battle" points out the necessity of good marksmanship and the extensive training given at Fort Benning and throughout the Army. "Queen of Battle" this Saturday at 8:15 p.m. over WRBL in Columbus. Several other programs are scheduled for this week. In addition to "Queen of Battle" in Columbus.

14th CO Takes Part in Exercise At Third Army

Col. Joseph C. Sarfain, commander of First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, is on temporary duty with the Third Army. Lt. Col. Donald W. Bunte, newly assigned executive officer, assumed duties as the unit's acting commander. Col. Bunte will participate in Exercise Cumberland Hills, a command post exercise which terminates June 15. In the exercise, he will be assisted by the nucleus staff for the control group and first evaluation group. Col. Bunte was transferred recently to the First Battle Group from the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, where he was executive officer.

YEMEN JOINS UNION

In Cairo last week, Gamal Abdel Nasser, president of the newly formed United Arab Republic, wore a broad smile. The Crown Prince of Yemen, Saif al-Islam Muhammad al-Badr, had signed an agreement federating his country with Egypt and Syria in the U.A.R. In Washington, the State Department said arrangements are being made for removing all Yemeni government officials from the area. Rebel sources said the U.S. Navy destroyers Eversole and Johnston were sent to the area. Sumatra to help with the evacuation of the first real.

Sputnik Caught By Movie Eye

FT. RICHARDSON, Alaska (AP)—Sgt. Stefan J. Wiedenmann, an Army moving picture photographer, succeeded in making a 16-second movie of Russia's Sputnik II satellite as it passed over Alaska.

The sergeant, who had unsuccessfully risen an hour early three days in a row to witness the launch, got a glimpse of the satellite not a break when clouds and haze parted.

He made the picture with the three-inch telephoto lens of a 16.5 and duPont high speed panchromatic reversal film.

On the Bookshelf

HANGMAN'S TRAIL by Peter Field. (Jefferson House, 1958)

When two desperadoes are captured by the enraged citizens of Dutch Springs, Peter Stevens and his friends, Sam and Era, step in to prevent a lynching. The result is that this trio find themselves saddled with the hazardous job of delivering three days in a row to living the prisoners to Yuma to stand trial there.

CASE OF THE LONG-LEGGED MODELS by Eric Stanley Gardner. (Morrow, 1958)

This mystery story concerns the murder of a gambler. Involved in the action are three glamorous ladies, all long-legged models; three guns and that well known trio, Perry Mason, Della Street and Paul Drake, whose detective work brings the case to an exciting courtroom climax.

BURRHEAD THE FLAG by Philip Mackie. (Norton, 1957)

Here are the author's humorous recollections of his experiences in Italy during World War II. As escaped German prisoners, he and his friends Private Larkin were saved by two Italian girls in the mountain village of Pietra. Mackie fell in love with one of the girls. Eventually he and Larkin made their way back to the British lines.

Later, by a coincidence, Mackie returned to Pietra with the British liberating force.

ANATOMY OF A MURDER by Robert Traver. (St. Martin's, 1958)

The story of an Army Lieutenant's wife, brutally attacked at a summer resort in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan; of her husband who shot and killed her assailant; and of the small-town lawyer who fought for the killer's freedom, for the sake of justice rather than for the man.

INTO THE AIR by Harry Carmichael. (Doubleday)

A British film star was not in her hotel room when John Piper, an insurance agent, arrived to keep his appointment with her. He used tools and some smudges which looked like bloodstains were the only evidence that she had ever been in the room. No one had War II. As escaped German prisoners, he and his friends Private Larkin were saved by two Italian girls in the mountain village of Pietra. Mackie fell in love with one of the

Italian Restaurant Effect Thrills Ranger Wives Monthly Luncheon

Mrs. John J. Dalton and Mrs. John C. Reade entertained the wives of the Fort Benning Ranger Department with a lovely luncheon Feb. 19 at the home of Mrs. John J. Dalton.

The guests were thrilled with the Italian Restaurant effect created by the hostess' original tables with red checkered table cloths topped by candles burning in old wine bottles. The delicious spaghetti luncheon was served buffet style from Mrs. Dalton's beautiful blue and white patterned china. An Italian tossed salad complemented the main dish and piping hot seasoned breads were served. Assorted cheeses and fruits were served with coffee for dessert. The abundant fruit was set in a lovely arrangement for the centerpiece of the buffet table. All of the

DENTAL LUNCHEON

The first signs of spring were in evidence at the Fort Benning Dental Wives' Luncheon Feb. 20, in the Aztec Room of the Main Officer's Club. The menu was the favorite of each placed on the luncheon table. The souvenir of each guest, and an array of spring jewelry and pastel gloves, the hostess table suggested that spring was just around the corner.

Mrs. Wallace Lancaster, program chairman, introduced Mrs. William Lisak, owner of the Helen Lisak Gift Shop at Clatt Shopping Center, and after a brief talk, Mrs. Lisak presented a showing of the latest trends in costume jewelry, pointing out how different types of jewelry plus an accessory, can entirely change the mood of a plain dress or guests enjoyed the luncheon to the utmost.

COMMO COFFEE
Officers' wives of the Communication Dept. held February coffee at the home of Mrs. William A. Flanagan Feb. 22. Co-hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Porter C. Leisk.

The lace-covered table was decorated with colorful floral and leaves arranged in a brass bowl with brass candlesticks to complete the centerpiece. Mrs. John T. Corley poured at the serving table.

Mrs. Lancaster held the winning ticket for the door prize which was a beautiful floral centerpiece, and an attractive ceramic planter was won by Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Charles Glenn, Mrs. Edward Gilberg, Mrs. Robert Hartman, and Mrs. Edward Scully were hostesses.

INP. BOARD LUNCHEON
The Infantry Board Ladies Group met in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers' Mess Feb. 18 for their monthly luncheon.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. R. R. Sine, Mrs. C. O. Shanahan, and Mrs. R. C. Wiley.

This being the month of George Washington's birthday, the tables were charmingly decorated in red and white. Miniature cherry trees were used as center pieces and red paper balloons were placed cards.

CANASTA SESSION
The officers wives of the Fort Benning Ranger Department enjoyed a lively Canasta session at the home of Mrs. Billy M. Johnson Feb. 20.

The guests were served Mrs. Stanley's famous homemade fudge, mixed nuts, popcorn and rice crispy balls along with coffee and cocoa.

A marvelous time was had by the entire group which included Mrs. John J. Dalton, Mrs. M. R. Dunn, Mrs. Thora as Harriah, Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. M. L. Jackson, Mrs. Scott Howard, and Mrs. Philip Walpole.

USMA Cadets Rank High in Liberal Arts

WEST POINT, N. Y. (ANS)—Compared to students in civilian colleges, graduates of the United States Military Academy here rank high in the "liberal arts."

According to the USMA Superintendent's Annual Report for 1957, tests in Social Science, the Humanities, and the Humanities were given to over 5,000 seniors at 13 accredited civilian colleges as well as to the three tested areas. Similar examinations were also given to all members of the West Point graduating class of 1955 and 56 and 57. The purpose of the tests was "to assess the broad outcomes of education in the liberal arts."

In the Social Science exam, the civilian college seniors had a mean score of 463; the social majors scored 477, while each of the last three West Point classes had a mean score of over 480 with the Class of 1955 setting a high mark of 570.

Humanities majors at the civilian colleges scored 506 in their exams, while seniors averaged only 445, and USMA students ranged from 463-500.

The future officers from the Military Academy made their best showing in the Natural Science test by scoring between 520 to 580 against the mean score of 537 for the Natural Science majors and a 471 mark for the civilian seniors.

A class of 1957 scored as follows:

Social Science, mean score for group, 538; Humanities, mean score for group, 485; Natural Science, mean score for group, 588.

Association Cited for Assists in Insurance

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor has commended the Army Mutual Aid Association for writing more than 100 million dollars worth of insurance in the Army.

"As a Counsellor to the Association, General Taylor said AMAA has reached an important milestone by having $100 million of insurance in force. This is an important milestone for any life insurance concern and is even more significant for an Association such as ours with its limitations on the amount of insurance which may be issued to each member."

Now that career Reserve officers may become members, the Army Mutual is truly the life insurance representative of the professional Army officer. I urge every eligible officer to consider carefully the benefits of membership, and I recommend that each member assure that all eligible in his organization or unit are informed of the advantages of joining.

The Association's assistance in planning for the protection of dependents, the prompt payments of $1,500 of the benefit, the substantially increased benefits now being paid, and the experienced and thoughtful help and guidance furnished to bereaved families make the Army Mutual an essential element of the life insurance program of every career officer."

Group Hears Colonel Kelly On March 9

The Holy Name Society of Fort Benning held its monthly Corporate Communion and Breakfast March 9.

Mass was held at 8 p.m. at the Main Catholic Chapel, followed by breakfast at Grain Hall.

Guest speaker at the breakfast was Col. (ret.) Henry E. Kelly. He spoke on the experiences of a Catholic officer.

The 64-year-old officer, presently military advisor for the Human Research Unit at Fort Benning, completed 37 years in the Army, serving from 1917 to 1954.

He came to Fort Benning in 1929 for the first of four tours here when he took the Basic Infantry Officers Course, A.D.C., at the Infantry School in 1933, served in the Weapons Department until 1937.

Col. Kelly was an instructor in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess at Fort Benning.

Students officers in charge of arrangements were Lt. Donald K. Rock, Clifford G. Carlsburg, William O. Anderson, John C. Dukes, Jr., James N. Brown, Robert E. Gunderman, Markes P. Sparks, Carl L. Jancy, Gene A. O'Neil, Horace Mann, III, and Charles D. Jones.

BIOCs Feted At Reception

Students attending the Infantry School's basic officers class No. 10 were feted at an official reception March 2 in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess at Fort Benning.

In the receiving line were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley R. Larsen, Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Mayers, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John B. Zann and Capt. and Mrs. Angelo J. Balas.

WAC Sfc Heads N-RI Certificate Processing

A Fort Benning WAC, Sfc. Gene Sobie was in charge of processing 10,000 subcourse completion certificates issued by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction at the Infantry School in 1957.

She was assisted in this tremendous task by two civilian typists. The processing branch is under the supervision of Capt. John B. Blount, executive officer of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Sgt. Sobie was a practical nurse serving on private cases in civilian life before coming into the Army. She completed her basic training at the WAC Training Center in December, 1942, when it was at Des Moines, Iowa.

She served with the U. S. Army Forces in Germany from November, 1944 to November, 1945. Later she was assigned as a member of the 85th WAC Detachment at headquarters of U. S. Eighth Army, Yokohama, Japan, from 1946 to 1948.

The Fort Benning WAC was awarded the Korean Service Medal while a member of the U. S. Army Base Post No. 15 at Osaka, Japan, to which she was assigned from December, 1950, to February, 1952, and a member of the U. S. Army Postal Unit No. 1021 from March, 1952 to November, 1953.

Guests were Mesdames Adrian L. Hoebke Jack L. Treadwell, William E. Wyrick and Hugh A. MacDonald.

Film Star Exhibits Unusual Statistics

The Rank Organization has a performer whose statistics are quite odd. However, they aren't worried for these statistics 38-40-29½—belong to an African dog named Bruno who appears in the film "No. 10 Moon By Night."

The measurement of Bruno are his chest, length and height. His make-up for the film, currently filming in South Africa, is as odd as his vital statistics. To give him the color for the picture, he has a meringue make-up of permanganate of Potash, mixed in with a dash of brown shoe polish. He really shines.

Only Pride Hurt Lt., Water Moccasin Share Well For 3 Hours After 25-Foot Fall

A 29th Infantry lieutenant fell into an abandoned well shaft during an Infantry School night problem last week and spent three hours in the hole with a water moccasin. Second Lieutenant George Livio Jr., Company D, First Battle Group, fell into the 25-foot well about 1 a.m. Saturday while serving as an umpire on an escape and evasion problem. The well is located on the reservation near LaFayette road and the Central of Georgia railroad tracks.

The 24-year-old native of Ashblatta, Ohio discovered the well had other occupants when his flashlight revealed a snake and a couple of frogs with him in the five-foot square hole. There was water up to his knees. "The water moccasin was half-submerged in the mud and water and the snake was disinterested," Lt. Livio said. He was participating in the "Other Occupants" problem.

A recent survey of personnel, almost 8,000, revealed that approximately every third person has been to college and more than 15 per cent have college degrees.

The group represents each of the 48 states, Washington, Alaska, Hawaii and 12 foreign countries.

The 3,000 Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps personnel include more than 400 having some college work.

Germany leads the list of foreign countries represented by 10 graduates from seven colleges. India has three graduates.

Other countries represented by college personnel include Mexico, Italy, France, Canada, Philippines, Denmark, Luxembourg, China, Puerto Rico and Austria.

In Texas, Texas leads with 141 graduates from 68 schools; New Mexico, 112 graduates from 49 schools; and New York with 39 graduates from 33 schools.

ROA Supports Reserve Officers, EM, Retirees in New Pay Plan

ROA has gone to bat for retirees and enlisted men as well as reserve officers — in Congressional versions of the new pay program. Spoken for by the Reserve Officers Association, in appeals both to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees, have urged the Congress to support principles of the Cardine modern pay plan. But they said some changes are needed.

Col. John T. Carlton, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association, said that the amendments should be effected:

1. Give to retired military personnel the same rate of increase.
2. Strike from the bill the provision withholding the raise for reservists serving for less than 30 days on active duty.
3. Protect the enlisted "fighting man" and insure him, better treatment.

In his statement, Col. Carlton said in part: "Delaying reservists full pay violates the spirit as well as the letter of the law which requires conformance to the principle of equal pay for all components. We fail to see why a reserve officer called to active duty, regardless of the period covered by such duty, should not receive the same pay as his counterpart on active duty extended beyond 30 days. This objectionable language would be the first provision knowingly directing discrimination against the reserves since World War II." He asked also that care be taken "that no further discrimination against the reservists be permitted to creep into this measure." He continued: "As you know, there are many reserve officers just released from active duty under the recent reduction in Force Program who are continuing their service in enlisted grades. These officers lacked only a few months qualifying for retirement and chose to remain in service until they qualified. If the above provision would adversely affect their rights and benefits under retirement laws now on the books, we urge you to knock it out."

as officers in the reserve. However, we are just as much interested in the problems affecting our enlisted personnel as we are in those affecting officers. "In connection with the proposed system of 'proficiency pay', he said, "Wars are still fought and won by the soldier, sailor and airman. Care must be taken not to permit over-indulgence of the technician, and cavalier treatment of the fighting man. We are disposed to be critical of an incentive plan which places the rewards of technical ability so far above those of combat readiness and competence. "As stated before, we are not overlooking the fact that the retirement plans of the Armed Forces serve as a career incentive; we must keep faith with those now retired as well as those who are to be retired."

3-A Cage Finals Slated March 15 at Ft. Benning

Finals of the Third Army Basketball Tournament will be held March 15 in Briant Wells Field House.

Finals for women are scheduled to begin at 1:15 p.m. and men's finals will start at 2:45. However, if extra games are played in the double-elimination finals will be held for women at 6 p.m. and for men at 7:30 p.m.

Elimination play will continue in the afternoon and night today and tomorrow.

The tournament opened March 10 at Fort Gordon, Ga. Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort Benning and Fort Jackson, S.C., copping opening-day victories.

Fort Gordon topped Redstone Arsenal, 92-79. Fort McClellan bested Fort Rucker, 92-79. Fort Benning pushed Fort Campbell to the loser's bracket, 88-78 and Fort Jackson defeated Fort Stewart, 102-62.

Unit Breaks Machine Gun Record Here

The Infantry School's officer candidate class set a record today by breaking the machine gun marksmanship at Fort Benning when 43 per cent of the company qualified as expert.

The previous high of 39 per cent was set in 1957 by OC class No. 2.

The course consists of two tables with the first, Table A, being a 500-inch course testing the gunner's ability to manipulate the gun. Table B is a transition type course with eight targets spaced from 400 to 800 yards apart.

In the critique after the record firing, Lt. Col. Boyd L. Shrew, Machine Gun Company commander and chief instructor, said he was highly pleased with the achievement, and that it was only recently that he believed such a high percentage of expert firing could be obtained.

Students of the class commended the help of the assistant instructors in making such a record possible.

Tourney Staged By Golf Group

Col. and Mrs. Harry A. Stella won a scotch foursome championship this week at the Fort Benning Country Club course by the Fort Benning Women's Golf Assn.

Elongated Fort Stewart center, Chester Webb, however, became the tourney's top scorer, with 39 tallies, as his club finished the Fort Jackson onslaught. Webb tried gallantly to keep his club in the contest, but Wilkinson, Floyd and Company were too experienced and adept.

Big Ben Wilkins, Bob Brunner and Greenfield Morgan all hit double figures for the winners, with the former piling equal agility with 18 points on Monday's final contest 106-82.

Former All-Americans Dick Wilkinson, Virginia University, and Darrel Floyd, Furman, provided the offensive spark for the victors. Collecting 22 and 23 markers, respectively, Wilkinson and Floyd demonstrated equal agility with 18 points on Monday's final contest 106-82.

17 Get Water Safety Certificates at Post

American Red Cross water safety instructor's certificate course was presented to Fort Benning personnel upon completion of a three-week course.

The rigorous course was conducted by Harry Kenning, Red Cross water safety examiner from Southeastern Area Headquarters, Atlanta.

Candidates for the certificate reported daily to Briant Wells Field House where Kenning conducted instruction in various drills and methods learned in the pool here.

A six-year member of the Detroit Boat Club before enlisting in the U.S. Army, Kenning gave individual instruction and demonstration of the latest water safety techniques. Other sessions were spent in group participation in various drills and methods learned and in perfecting individual proficiency.

Six of the men who were awarded certificates also were selected to instruct life guards who will patrol the Fort Benning swimming pools this summer.

Charley Quinn Cold Snap Failed To Stop Anglers

The warmer weather should bring some good fishing with it, but even though the record-breaking cold snap is some distance behind us, Benning waters still haven't quite recovered. However, the abnormal temperatures weren't abnormal enough to keep some of our more rabid anglers from their favorite sport. One line we know of kept freezing up to the extent that the rod tip guide became coated with ice. Few has been taken last month with M-Sgt. Jim Shackelford's 3 lb. 12 oz. largemouth taking first place in the Fish and Game Association monthly contest for February.

Jim, from the U. S. Army Hospital, took his fish from King's Pond on the 29th. The trophy prize was won with a 1 lb. 2 oz. fish taken from King's on Washington's Birthday by M-Sgt. Jim Brooks, Company G, Infantry School Detachment.

Pro Knocked Out Of Tournament By Doggone Dog

Fort Sam Houston, Texas (AFPS) — "Yes, sir, a doggone dog," lamented Roy Schneider, golf professional here, after a dog named Doggone had cost him a chance to qualify for the 31st Texas Open golf tourney.

He missed qualifying by one stroke and a dog's whim.

During his first round, Roy hit a tee shot on the 18th hole that landed close to a creek adjacent the hole. His second shot was headed for the cup when a dog took that moment to trot across the green. The ball hit the dog and was deflected into the creek. Result: a two stroke penalty.

His first round 75, coupled with his second card of 73, gave him a total of 148. The qualifying score was 147 or less. Subtract the two-stroke penalty and he would have made it by one stroke.

If Schneider had his way, the doggone dog would be long gone.

Among Top Cage Names Brown Dons Benning Colors in 3-A Tourney

Jim Brown, ex rookie of the National Football League, last year, has donned Fort Benning colors in the Third Army Basketball tournament at Briant Wells Field House this week.

Brown, the Cleveland Browns' powerful fullback and his league's top ground gainer for the 1957 football season, is no stranger to the basketball courts. He explained his high school team during his senior year at Mannasset, N.Y., and went on to Syracuse University to coach a forward position on the varsity hoop squad.

A multiple-letter man in football, basketball, lacrosse and tennis, he "also dabbled" in baseball, golf, tennis and aquatic sports.

A second lieutenant, Brown is an active cadet for 23 months and is presently undergoing training at The Infantry School but has managed to "get a little basketball in his schedule." The 6-foot, 2-inch, 215-pound athlete has been working with the Fort Benning team in preparation for the Third Army basketball season.

Some of the top names in basketball will be here for the Navy Goat Kicked by Mule

WEST POINT (AFPS)—For the first time since 1964, and only the second time in 100 years, a fighting Army basketball team found favored Navy 78-67 to cap a one-day, seven-event sweep of athletic competitions. In basketball, squash, racquetball, pistol shooting, wrestling, swimming, gymnastic and rifle competition it was the same story—complete and day-long debarring of the Navy goat by the Army mule.

Sophomore Darryl (Sammy) Kouns made cage history by netting 22 points and raising his season total to 397, a new Military Academy season scoring mark. The old mark was 370 points, set by Cadet Bill Hanson in 1954.

The cage upset was Coach Orvis Siger's first victory over Navy number nine in post, his first winning season (13-12) after three losing campaigns.

REGISTER YOUR CATCHES

New members of the Association shouldn't forget to record their largest catches in these two species for entry into the monthly contest. Official record is made at the Harmony Church Range Guards' area. If they happen to be the highest fish of the month, they will automatically be worth $10 each in fishing gear.

Though we've hung nice bass on artificial lures here on post, the majority of lunkers have been taken on bait minnows. Minnows run into money if purchased off-post at the going rate of $1 a dozen and the purchaser is lucky if he doesn't lose three or four before he can use them. This chlorine content of the water hereabouts — a thornier problem confronted M-Sgt. Bill Lee, Harmony Church Range Guards' area, for a while but, with the help of M-Sgt. Ben Swiney, he rigged up a circulating system for the Association's minnow tanks, lugged in pond water, and soon had the happiest, frickest minnows in the Deep South.

Association bait minnows cost 50 cents a dozen against the $1 charged by other outfits so a little rapid arithmetic can reveal the advantage of membership and attendant privileges.

WATCH FOR RABBIT ANIMALS

The column would like to pass on to its readers that the State of Alabama has experienced some difficulty with rabbits. Sick foxes had been observed in several instances in the areas across the Chattahoochee and Alabama Wildlife officials were quick to take action. It would be well, from now on, if all hunters, fishermen and picnickers would refrain from handling any wild animals which they run across. Too, owners of cats and dogs should set careful watch over their pets, particularly if they have access to wooded areas. Our Fish and Game, Maintenance people are keeping in close touch with the Wildlife authorities of both Alabama and Georgia with the intent of keeping an up-to-the-minute check on possible developments. The Range Guards are assisting in the study by submitting all predators trapped, under the predator-control program, to our Veterinarians for physical studies. This work is a little-known phase of Range Guard activities and one which could not be continued if it weren't for your support. At any rate, we thought it best that you should be alerted to the above condition across the river so that you may take normal precautions.

Don't forget that the Spring Gobbler Season is coming up during the first week in April. It'll be your last chance to bag one of the big fellows until next fall...and that's it for this week.

Wyatt Earp Style Colt Officer Collects Old Fire Arms as Hobby

Collecting old fire arms is like a lot of other hobbies once you start, you just can't stop," says Lt. Gerald R. Bennett of the 24th Company, Second Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Lt. Bennett began his fascinating hobby in 1933 as a result of his interest in the Civil War and the historical period between 1850 and 1880.

His collection began with a Colt Dragon dated 1847. His unusual collection has grown to 25 antique weapons valued in the thousands.

History Major

The 24-year-old officer is married and the father of one girl. He graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1957 with a history major. His special interest, of course, was in the Civil War Era.

"This period is the most colorful and exciting time in all of America's history," Lt. Bennett said.

His entire collection consists of Army-issued fire arms. However, they are divided into two major groups — the basic weapons of both the Confederacy and the Union, and those used in the settlement of the early west.

Prize Carbine

Among his carbine exhibits is his prize — a Confederate Carbine, standard in 1862. There were only 2,000 of these weapons manufactured because of their faulty operation, according to Lt. Bennett.

The plans for this piece were stolen from the Union-issued Sharp Carbine, which, along with the Spencer and Burgess Carbines, was the standard Union saddle arm.

Lt. Bennett, currently going through BIOC No. 6, explained that the term "sharp-shooter" is derived from the carbine invented by Sharps and was originally issued to only a few excellent marksmen.

Siebers Etmology

Another interesting but little-known fact points out Lt. Bennett, is that the inventor of one of the three Union Carbines — a fellow by the name of Burdette — could well have been Marshall Wyatt Earp's trusty side arm. However, the one owned by Lt. Bennett was issued in 1876 and has never been fired.

"Many people think that the 45 is the only weapon Colt ever made," said Lt. Bennett. "We get this idea from television and motion picture 'horse-operations'. However, Colt made other weapons. He pointed out that the pistol many cowboys used was the Colt #4, not the 45.

Company B Tightens Grip On 29th Volleyball Lead

Company B tightened its grip on first place in the First Bn Group, 29th Infantry, volleyball league by smothering the top contender last week.

The league leaders owned second-place Company C by scores of 15-0 and 15-0. The victory pushed Company B's win-loss record to 6-1 with only five games remaining on the regular season schedule.

It was the losers' second setback in seven outings.

Hospital Supervisor Capt. Williams Named Local Polio Chairman

Army Nurse Corps Capt. Mary Williams, night supervisor at U. S. Army Hospital, has been elected chairman of Muscogee County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Capt. Williams, who has served at Fort Benning representative to the polio organization since June, 1955, was voted to succeed W. J. Simpkins Jr. at World War II and in the Korean conflict.

Duke Graduate

A graduate of the Duke University School of Nursing, Durham, N. C. she also attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She entered the Army Nurse Corps in April, 1922.

As a civilian nurse Capt. Williams was supervisor in charge of polio patients at the Central Carolina Convalescent Hospital in Greensboro. She has served as medical social worker at North Carolina and was assistant instructor and supervisor in medical nursing at the Duke School of Nursing.

She has been awarded the Korean War Medal and was honored on seven occasions by the Korean government for services to the civilian population.

THE WINNER!
NASCAR GRAND NATIONAL, Daytona Beach Speedway

TO: Gene Miller Miller Pontiac, Inc. Subject: PONTIAC WINS AGAIN! Dear Gene,

Pontiac has done it again! Paul Goldsmith, never seriously challenged, swept to victory in a stock 1958 Pontiac, after qualifying for the Pole position. This NASCAR sponsored event climaxed activities of Daytona. A Pontiac has won the Grand National two years in a row.

Pontiac also outran all other cars in the medium and heavy car classes. Winning Pontiac achieved a speed of 144.356 MPH. Light car winners obtained only 130.058.

Pontiac for 1958 captured four of the top five positions in the 30 MPH phase and three out of five in the 50 MPH bracket of the safety control. Mrs. Vicki Wood, Detroit housewife, showed the men how easily a woman can handle a Pontiac by winning first place in the 50 MPH class.

Just thought you might be pleased to know that you are selling, for the second consecutive year, the Grand National Champion!

Mickey Meyers Sales Mgr. Miller Pontiac, Inc.

TO: Mickey Meyers Sales Mgr. Miller Pontiac, Inc. Dear Mickey,

Thanks for your letter but it came as no surprise to me that Pontiac has won the Grand National for the second consecutive year. I have known since I started selling Pontiac 5 years ago that I was selling a Champion! I am sure that the hundreds of folks that have bought this wonderful car during the past few years are aware of that fact too!

It is for the people who don't know that I am going to continue my "Get-Acquainted With Pontiac" sale through the month of March. I hope, and feel sure that we at Miller Pontiac will make many more additional people happy by selling them such a fine car at such a low cost!

Yours Truly Gene Miller Miller Pontiac, Inc.

Sandbags Get Test by Army

WASHINGTON (AP)—A limited paper sandbag is under development at the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The paper sandbags, which

Early tests showed the sandbags can survive 60 days under the most severe weather conditions and can take normal weathering conditions for more than six months.

The knitted paper doesn't unravel when punctured, resists the shock of a close blast and lasts about as long in water as burlap.

General Says Warm Tray Is Right Way

VAHINGEN, Germany (AP)—Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke is commanding general of the U.S. Seventh Army, the all-pentomic field army powering the NATO defense guard in Germany.

He is also a once-upon-a-time mess officer who learned a trick or two about good food and good atmosphere in which to serve it properly.

That's why the strong gastronomic campaign throughout Seventh Army in the past year or so.

Suggestions percolating down to mess sergeants include encouragement on careful seasoning, on warming trays (if brings out a bit more of the flavor while keeping the food warmer), and on preparing the basic foods in at least two ways for each meal.

So there might be a choice of mashed or fried potatoes at a meal, or perhaps baked or French fried ones. When this innovation is followed, enthusiasm picks up all up and down the mess lines.

With General Clarke's backing, mess officers are also doing something about the appearance of the dining rooms which drapes potted plants, murals and flowers.

151st Engineers Provisional Company Training Personnel to Gyro to Germany

Three hundred and fifty-five officers by Company C, 151st Engineer Battalion, Provisional, are in training company in their fifth week of a 12-week training period designed to prepare them for gyroscopic to the 78th Engineer Battalion (Combat), Karlsruhe, Germany.

The company was organized February 1. It has been placed under the command of Capt. Edward C. Wooten. Six officers and 56 Non-Commissioned officers comprise the cadre for the company. Courses to include both engineer and branch commercial subjects are being taught with day and night training encountered.

In addition to the men undergoing training, the 49th Engineer Battalion, approximately 25 trainees have been sent to educational specialized MOS training to prepare them for duty with the 78th Engineer Battalion.

Coming from England, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Mexico, and Puerto Rico, as well as a majority of the 46 states, the trainees have been on active duty for approximately four months.

Company B, 57th Engineer Battalion, is constructing an addition to the parking lot adjacent to the NCO Rucker Club. The project, which consists of enlarging the present parking area to an area 60 feet by 100 feet, will accommodate 300 vehicles when completed.

Battalion Honors
M-Sgt. Charles A. Montgomery, Provisional Training Company, 49th Engineer Battalion, has been selected as being NCO-of-the-Month at a ceremony held at Lawson Field, NCO of the Month at Sp3 Ronald Rossignol, Headquarters and Service Company, 57th Engineer Battalion, Karlsruhe, Germany.

Takes First Round
The 69th Engineer Company won the first round of play in the 151st Engineer Group volleyball tournament by defeating Company A, 57th Engineer Battalion, 15-9 and 15-13.

Pfc. Dion D. Brockett, and Pfc. Phillip Hill, both members of the 588th Engineer Company, have been selected as life guards and will work at Fort Benning swimming pools this summer. Pfc. Brockett was a life guard at Lake Side Amusement park in Denver, Colo., before entering service and also placed second in the AAU three meter board diving contest at Denver in 1955.

COMMENDATION RIBBON
Major Anthony A. Rozga, has received a Commendation Ribbon with metal pendant for "distinguishing himself by meritorious service from June 8, 1955, to Dec. 31, 1957," while serving as chief of the Instrument Flight Division, Department of Fixed Wing Training, Army Aviation School, and assistant to the G-3, Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala.

BIOC No. 6 Tops 6-Year Record In Escape and Invasion Problem

Second Student Battalion 34th Company - Basic Infantry Officer Class No. 6 set a record recently on the Escape and Invasion Problem. Sixty-four of the 164 officers taking part in the problem completed the 18-mile long grueling test of ability and initiative. An Escape and Evasion Committee representative said this was the greatest percentage of successful completions which any class has had during the six years the problem has been run.

20th Company - BIOC No. 11 was concerned primarily last week with the basic weapons of the Infantry, the M1 rifle; the bayonet, a popular accessory to the M1; and supply procedure. Training on the M1 consisted of basic techniques of rifle firing and was culminated by qualification firing Friday. The platoon which fired the highest average score will be guests at a company party.

Bayonet training, an essential part of a soldier's skill in hand-to-hand combat, including instruction in the basic positions and thrusts. The "BA 21st Company" won the student Brigade championship in basketball with a 57-46 victory over BIOC No. 6 at the TSB gym.

Upon completion of training with automatic weapons, the "Patrol," a novel by Fred Madsen about war in North Africa in 1943, has been published in the Ballantine War Book series.

Babies at U. S. Army Hospital arrive to inspect the new ward in about three days old. Shortly after entering the world — and the Army — like all new personnel they are assigned a unit, the hospital's premature and newborn nursery. Old timers might say, "And their two feet ban." Each Thursday morning the babies stand inspection. No less personnel than the hospital's chief nurse, Lt. Col. Clara E. Kelly, and hospital executive officer, Col. Earl A. Rich-

Lt. Col. Cole Named TIC Adjutant General

Lt. Col. Earl F. Cole has been named adjutant general of the Infantry Center. He succeeds Lt. Col. Thomas F. Spleek, Jr., who will serve as assistant G-1 of the Infantry Center staff reporting to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in June. Col. Cole is a January graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. Active Duty in 1948. He attended John Francis Polytechnic Institute in Los Angeles, Calif., before enlisting in Army duty in December, 1940. He also attended the University of Maryland from 1941 to 1941. The 38-year-old officer is an August, 1942 graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate course. He completed the basic administration course at Ft. 1 Washington, Md., the following December.

Tank Destroyer
From December, 1942, to March, 1948 Col. Cole was stationed with the Tank Destroyer Replacement Training Center at Fort Hood, Texas, serving as assistant personnel officer, assistant adjutant and personnel officer. After attending a two-month classification course at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, he assumed the duties of assistant classification officer at the Infantry Replacement Training Center Camp Wheeler, Texas. In May, 1946, he was named assistant classification officer of the Replacement and Separation Center, Fort Bragg, N. C.

China Duty
Col. Cole became civilian personnel officer of Executive Headquarters in Peking, China, in September of that year. Nine months later he was named administrative officer of the Extension Department of the Adjutant General's School, then located at Fort Lee, Va. At each inspection two babies, a boy and a girl, are selected as unofficial babies of the week to be dressed more formally for the occasion. As the other babies lie at "attention" in their best military manner, their two representatives display the pride of the whole nursery at inspection time.

Dressed Smartly
Naturally in the Army there is only "GI" dress with which to work. However, a little ingenuity, imagination and personality can easily produce smartly dressed babies. A regular hospital shirt donned upside down (for legs) and a second worn backwards, tucked in style, with a snug cap converted from a kitted stock- ing weight snow suit for any boy. A long worn backwards assumes simple elegance in a girl's baby dress touched off with a charming boy of white

Gen. Powell to Receive 3rd Star, New Position

Named to CONARC Post; Gen. Freeman New CG

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Fort Benning commander, has been nominated to the rank of lieutenant general and assigned as deputy commanding general of Reserve Forces of the Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.

With his promotion to three-star status sent by President Eisenhower to the U. S. Senate for confirmation, Gen. Powell is the first of 21 Infantry School commandants to be nominated to the rank of lieutenant general while at Fort Benning. Gen. Powell has the dual role of Infantry Center commanding general and Infantry School commandant at Fort Benning.

Replacing him at Fort Benning will be Major Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., currently commanding general of the 3d Infantry School commandant to be nominated to the rank of lieutenant general while at Fort Benning. Gen. Powell has the dual role of Infantry Center commanding general and Infantry School commandant at Fort Benning.

Leaves In April
Gen. Powell is expected to leave this post about the first of April for his new assignment. Gen. Freeman will report to The Infantry Center in May.

At CONARC, Gen. Powell will replace Lt. Gen. Ridgely Galtier who has been assigned as commanding general of the U. S. Army Caribbean Command.

Gen. Powell assumed command at Fort Benning on August 21, 1956. His last assignment previous to that was commanding general of headquarters, U. S. Army Pacific.

Talent Contest Slated Here for March 21

Fort Benning personnel will complete March 21 at 7 p. m. in Service Club No. 1. Preliminaries and eliminations prior to the 1958 Third Army level of the All-Army Entertainment Contest.

Seven categories in the entertainment contest include vocal soloists, instrumental soloists, individual specialties, vocal groups, instrumental groups, group specialties, musical and group specialties posthumous.

A minimum of three judges will rule the contestants on technical excellence and selection of material. The second plateau for contestants in their way to become All-Army finalists will take place from April 10 to 17. More than 100 male and female contestants from seven states are expected to be at the post that week for the Third Army contest.

Final Practice
Contestants from the various camps throughout the Third Army area are scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning between 9 a. m. April 8 and 5 p. m. April 9. April 10 to 13 will be devoted to final practices for (Please See TALENT, Page 2)

Statue Delayed Enroute to Post

The Doughboy Statue, originally scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning this week, has been delayed enroute from Germany.

The statue is expected to arrive here March 25. The infantrymen memorial was scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning either March 18 or 19.

However, the steamship Stacelburg, which is transporting the statue to Savannah, has been delayed, officials said.

St. Maurice Unveiling Set At Infantry School Mar. 22

Ceremonies for the unveiling of a painting of St. Maurice, Patron of the Infantry, will be held at Fort Benning in the Infantry School at 9 a. m., March 22.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, will unveil the picture in the main entrance of the building where it will be on display.

Mrs. M. C. Markham, artist for the portrait is Suzanne J. Markham, wife of Lt. Col. M. C. Markham, 40 serving with the U. S. Army in Germany. Mrs. Markham was an art student at the Iruanaculata Academy in Chicago, Ill., and later at the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, Ga. She has received private art instruction from her uncle, E. Strauss, commercial artist and sculptor, and studied under the Japanese artist, J. Nakama, while in Tokyo, Japan, during 1949 and 1950.

Present for the unveiling will be Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, Brig. Gen. Stanley F. Larsen, assistant commander of The Infantry School, Col. O. Z. Tyler Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff, Col. John T. Vorley, president of Fort Benning's Holy Name Society, Chaplain (Col.) Albert Wildman, Infantry Center Catholic chaplain, and other members of the general staff.

Initial interest in St. Maurice as the ideal patron of the foot soldier developed from his martyrdom as a Christiana soldier of Rome, was killed in a massacre with his entire legion at Aganum about the year 277. The slaughter was ordered by the Roman Emperor Maximian when the soldiers refused to harm the Christian population in the area where they were fighting.

After considerable research of background material and information on the life of St. Maurice, Mrs. Markham decided to portray the martyr in a composition combining a column of foot soldiers in the background with the "Fellow Christian" tradition of the Infantry School. The painting is done in the etched, or "cloud", effect similar to that developed by several of the old masters.

Col. Robert H. York, former Infantry School director of instruction who is attending Harvard University, will succeed Col. Tyler.

Acting Chief
Until Col. York returns, Col. Norman E. Edwards, director of instruction, will be acting chief of staff. Col. Frank M. Izenour, director of the Infantry School Tactical Department, will serve as director of instruction.

When Col. York assumes his new duties as chief of staff, Col. Edwards will return to his position as director of instruction and Col. Izenour will resume his position as director of the Tactical Department.

Col. Edwards, Izenour Get Temporary Posts

Col. O. Z. Tyler Jr., Infantry Center chief of staff since May 1956, will leave Fort Benning about April 26 for a new assignment as chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea.

Col. Robert H. York, former Infantry School director of instruction who is attending Harvard University, will succeed Col. Tyler.

Col. Tyler came to Fort Benning as director of The Infantry School's Staff Department in June, 1955, after being graduated from the Industrial College of Rome, St. Maurice, Fort McNair, Washington, D. C.

A 1925 graduate of New York Military Academy in 1941 was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. He also received an M. A. degree in international relations and a history from American University in 1952.

Col. Tyler's first Army assignment in 1921 was with the Eighth Infantry Regiment at Fort Screven, Ga., a unit he later commanded. The commanding officer at that station was Gen. George C. Marshall, then just beginning to gain military prominence.

After a three-year tour at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii, Col. Tyler attacked The Infantry School's advanced officers' class. After receiving air training at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, in 1932, he went to Fort Screven, Ga., to command Company F of the 10th Infantry Regiment.

During World War II, he served as adjutant of the 30th Infantry Regiment, operations officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment, 77th Division, as G-1 of the 9th Division and in G-1 Section of Army Ground Force.

Joined Ranks of Select Few Col. Compares Ranger Training With Combat at Reunion Dinner

The Infantry School's Ranger training was the toughest course in the Army and an unequalled experience for Col. John T. Corley, chief of staff of the Infantry's most decorated school, at a reunion dinner celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Rangers, said.

Nothing Equal
"Outside of combat, there is nothing in or out of the Army that can equal the experiences you have undergone. Not only was the terrain and the Ranger Department working against you, but you also had the cold of winter working against you."

Col. Corley, now the school's Communication Department director, will become Ranger Department director March 17. Adding an international flavor to the graduation was Capt. Sikandar Kahn of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, honor graduate. The U. S. honor graduate was Capt. Earl L. Keesling, assigned to the 10th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

No Extra Pay
"I know you must have wondered, 'Why am I here? Why did I volunteer?' You received no extra pay for your efforts. You merely earned the right to wear the Ranger tab. You are marked as men who are expected in field craft and patrolling. You have joined the ranks of a select few. You are to be known from here on as a qualified Ranger," Col. Corley told the graduates.
"Your work in the last eight weeks here at Fort Benning, the mountain training camp in Doleguez and amphibious jungle training camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., gave you specialized training in field craft, patrolling, amphibious operations and land navigation," Corley said.

Essentials Learned
"You have learned all the essentials for a small unit leader in combat. By practical exercises, you have improved your leadership ability and established a firm basis for future military command," he asserted.

"You have assured yourself that you have the physical and mental ability as well as the tactical know-how. You are to be congratulated for your initiative in selecting such a course of instruction and for your fortitude in completing the course," the officer remarked.

All Men Rangers
"Combat proves a leader. The knowledge and experience you have gained at the Fort Benning Ranger Department is yours alone unless in graduate you make every effort to instill in your men the Ranger spirit, attitude and tactical know-how. You must make all your men in your future units Rangers—in mind and spirit," Col. Corley said.

"You've heard a lot about the storm and its employment on battlefields of the future. Let me assure you that, despite the storm, the Ranger and his methods of operation are here to stay.

"Equipment Failure
"We will be operating on a dispersed battlefield with wide gaps between units and open flanks. New equipment and weapons will give us the capability of covering large fronts. However, such equipment is subject to failure.

"The most reliable means of covering a gap or open flank is by numerous small units equipped with adequate communication.
"Combat proves a leader. Ranger training also proves a leader," the speaker said.
"You can rest on your laurels as a proven leader or go on and further develop your capabilities as a Ranger," he

The Bayonet, Fort Benning, Ga., Mar. 20, 1958—Page 3 Post Visited by Members Of Moral Rearmament

Six representatives of Moral Rearmament, an international organization with headquarters at Mackay, Mich., visited Fort Benning March 14 for a day's look at post activities.
The party includes Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Twichell, Richard Dadds and Leland Holland.
Mrs. Twichell is the daughter of Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey. Dadds is a famed English cricket player.

Following luncheon in the Main Officers' Mess, they toured Lawson Army Air Field, Briant Wells Field House, the Infantry School's leaders reaction course, Capesart Housing project, new U. S. Army Hospital, Main Library and Infantry Center Chapel.
The visitors viewed barracks and mess facilities of the School Brigade's 50th Company and attended a formal ground and awards ceremony at Chapel Field.

Response Logging For Life Guards
Response to the Fort Benning life saving program this year trails by a large margin those of recent years. Qualified swimmers for life guards are in need for the coming months. The life-saving program, provided at the Briant Wells Field House pool, will continue through March 31.

BROADWAY'S BEST, 1897 by John Chapman. (Doubleday, 1957).

Contains the following plays, abridged: "Long day's journey into night," by E. O'Neill; "Small War on Murray Hill," by R. F. Sherwood; "Candle," adapted by L. Hellman & D. Moon for the Minskogates," by E. O'Neill.

WINTER OF THE BOMBS by Constantine Fitz Gibbon. (Norton, 1957).

During World War II the bombing of London by the Germans began in September, 1940, and ended in May, 1941. This account of that period is drawn largely from the author's interviews with people who lived through it — ambulance drivers, fire fighters, housewives, veterans of the Royal Air Force, and many others.

BACHELOR'S BABY by Owen Davernport. (Doubleday, 1958).

"Oliver Ouster's very efficient secretary left to have a baby. Oliver tried one secretary after another, but his business and personal problems became more and more of a mess. Oliver implored (her) to return, which she agreed to do on one condition — that she bring along the infant, Junior."

"BEST LOVE AND OTHER SORROWS" by Harold Brodkey. (Dial Press, 1957).

Except for "Trio for Three Guitars," which appeared in Mademoiselle, the stories in this collection appeared originally in the New Yorker.

Contents: State of grace; First love and other sorrows; The quartet; Sentimental education; Laurie dressing; Laura; Trio for three gentle voices; Flipping down the always; Dark woman of the sonnets.

STORY OF PAPER MONEY by Fred Meinfield. (Sterling, 1957).

"Traces the development of paper money from the days of Marco Polo and Kublai Khan right up to the latest bills to day."

Formerly at Benning Major Rosell Blasts 2 Major Tigers in Viet Nam

A former Fort Benning major has accomplished a most unusual feat.

He shot two large tigers within the space of ten minutes — at night.

Major Thomas G. Rosell shot the tigers while on a midnight patrol about 120 miles from Saigon, Viet Nam, where he is now stationed.

Another Pair of Eyes

"We proceeded along slowly for 20 or 30 yards, then reversed our direction. I didn't want to fool with reloading my shotgun, so picked up my rifle. . . . As we approached the location where I had first fired, I saw a pair of orange eyes which stared back at me. . . . I raised my rifle, put the crosshairs right between the eyes and fired. The eyes stared right back and I fired again, and I had hit him the first time. . . .

"We marked the spot, then moved back and forth for a half hour or so, sweeping the entire area with our lights, and returned to our know kill, deciding that that would be our get and get him.

One-Inch Hole

"As we approached the tiger we saw his back had hit him between and just above the eyes, causing about a one-inch hole in his forehead. . . . Still looking for the other one (the first kill), we scanned around and picked up the reflection of her still-open eyes about ten yards from where I had hit her. We finally approached her, found her dead, lit in the left side of the head and neck. . . . The two tigers' carcasses were loaded to the jeep and carried the 190 miles back to society. . . . The male weighed 400 pounds the female, 300.

PLENTY OF SOPHIA . . . Fort Benning personnel will be able to see a lot of Sophia Loren this week. She plays a ravishing slave girl lost in the desert with John Wayne in "Legend of the Lost" playing Fort Benning theaters. March 21 she will appear as a guest on Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" at 10:30 p.m. over WRBL-TV (Channel 4).

Library Week
CG Notes Importance Of Reading

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Fort Benning commanding general, has called upon post personnel to participate in National Library Week being held through March 22. His message is as follows:

"Whereas, the attention of the country is being focused on the rewards of reading during the comprehensive educational campaign which will come to a climax during National Library Week, 16-22 March 1958.

"Whereas, the drive is the first united effort by all media — newspapers, magazines, and radio and television — to dramatize the role of libraries as an important resource of education.

"Whereas, newspapers and magazines are essential for well-informed citizens.

"Whereas, books are the developing a 'better-read, better-informed America.'"

Next Five Years
Armed Forces Face Crisis in Personnel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Armed Forces will be confronted with personnel problems that could get progressively worse in the next five years.

Under present conditions, the great majority of promising young men who have the talents and capabilities to man and maintain complex modern weapons systems will be unable to fulfill their military obligations because pay and promotion opportunities are lacking.

This failure of the Armed Forces to retain high caliber men beyond obligatory service poses serious obstacles to successfully building adequate regular forces for the future, personnel officials say.

The same time, because only 70,000 or about one-third of those in the ranks are veterans, experienced in combat and military skills, the services would face a national emergency with insufficient numbers of fully trained personnel.

The pace of so-called conventional wars of the past has provided the military establishment with enough lead-time to prepare men for its expanding fighting forces.

In nuclear warfare, however, most skills in handling new weapons and equipment require long and extensive training while the demands for experienced soldiers, sailors and airmen would be instantaneous.

Any revisions of scales or pay structure under these circumstances must serve a dual purpose of holding promise to young servicemen and providing incentives to "old hands." The Armed Forces have a high stake in the first-itch groups, yet can ill-

Brigade Hosts Merchants

Fifteen members of the Columbus Merchants Association were special guests March 13 of the School Brigade at Fort Benning.

Welcoming the group was Col. Richard W. Mabee, commander of the School Brigade, and Lt. Col. Clayton A. Quigg, who was official host for the merchants.

After a briefing on the operations and missions of the School Brigade, the visitors received an orientation on the Officer Candidate School mission and evaluation program. An inspection of an officer candidate room and facilities in the Brigade's student housing area was held for the group.

Included on the morning's program was an inspection of the Brigade's 50th Company mess hall. During an informal coffee meeting the Columbus visitors had an opportunity to meet and talk with the personnel of the School Brigade.

Speaker Tells Post P-TA Chapter 'We're in War Against Ignorance'

Mrs. Ralph Hobbs, vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for Region III, which includes six Southern states, was speaker at the meeting of the Fort Benning chapter of the P-TA in Faith School auditorium March 11. She is president of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers. "Education does not cost money," Mrs. Hobbs emphasized.

War Against Ignorance "We are in a war against ignorance and we need to lend all our resources toward alleviating the situation," she went on.

The speaker explained that crowded classrooms cheat our children in four ways—double sessions rob the child of one hour a day of instruction; home schedules are upset by irregular school hours; the child loses the serenity given him by such things as a desk that is his, and he has no chance to be guided by the teacher.

"Without learning, the coming generation will be poorly equipped to serve our fellow men. Without serenity, there is no room for growth."

'Mealtime U.S.A.' to Provide Interesting, Helpful Food Facts

Four two-hour sessions are scheduled during "Mealtime U.S.A." cooking school to be held at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium March 25 through 28 under sponsorship of the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers.

Sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m. each day and run through noon. According to Bob Turner, promotion manager, every session is completely different, packed with a wealth of kitchen lore, including different recipes, new information and a variety of special features. Not only do the sessions differ from day to day, but each program is new and different from year to year. The National Live Stock and Meat Board, which has been conducting these cooking schools for more than 25 years, develops a constant new production every year. Homemakers are thus assured of constant variety in the presentation of interesting and helpful food facts.

Experienced Lecturers The lecturer, Miss Beatrice Berman and assistant lecturer, Miss Alice Walters, both of whom are experienced Meal Board home economists, are thoroughly familiar with all the material presented in the "Mealtime U. S. A." cooking school, because they helped plan it and set it up. All of the recipes used during the school as well as those in the "Mealtime U.S.A." recipe book have passed a test panel, in the Meal Board's modern test kitchen in Chicago, that checked them for taste, texture, tenderness, appearance and adaptability. Homemakers attending the school can be confident of the reliable information they receive both from the lecturers and the recipe book that each person attending the school receives.

Eye-appealing Dishes All foods receive more than adequate attention in each of the four daily sessions. Included are meats, fruits, vegetables, dairy products, salads, pastries, pies, cookies, and quickbreads. In short, homemakers will find the cooking program is a well-rounded demonstration of appetizing eye-appealing and nutritious dishes.

Although the recipes are drawn from all sections of the U.S., they have been carefully selected for ingredients which homemakers will have no difficulty in obtaining. While the lecturers will demonstrate many new and exciting dishes, they are all easy to prepare.

Each session closes with a generous Parade of Foods, a colorful display of all the dishes prepared on that day. The perfectly garnished mealtime favors in the parade inspire gasps of admiration from the audience. The lecturers are quick to point out that one does not need to be a "professional" to prepare such eye-appealing dishes. In fact, one of the purposes of the school is to demonstrate the fundamentals of garnishing that will win the praises of both family and guests.

M-Sgt. Has Seen Artillery Range Increase 75 Miles

KITZINGEN, Germany—The soldier from Chicago brings plenty of basic artillery knowledge and experience to his guided missile job. He has also had many years with both coast and anti-aircraft artillery.

Now a sergeant of a guidance platoon of the 89th Field Artillery Missile Battalion here, he likes to amuse the younger soldiers with stories of the days in 1940 when he served as "water man" and sometimes "stable polio" for field artillery units which still used the old French 75 gun of World War I fame.

Wpns Director Lauds Jupiter Development

WASHINGTON (ANS)—The Army's Director of Special Weapons in the Office of the Chief of Research and Development, Major Gen. John P. Danley, said here that he was confident the Army's Javelin Jupiter will furnish the United States a flexible, reliable intermediate range ballistic missile during 1958.

"I should make it clear," he stated to conferees at the Third Annual Jet Age Conference of the Air Force Association, "I come to praise Jupiter, not to bury it."

Pointing to the Jupiter development program, he listed four "firsts" for the missile: "First—1957—First successful solution of the nose cone re-entry problem. October, 1957—First U.S. IRBM to go to 'A' pre-selected target area. January, 1958—Jupiter-C. The Explorer which successfully placed a live world's first satellite into orbit.

Turning to Jupiter production, he stated that the missile is planned to have a demonstrated capacity to deliver a useful warhead to a selected target.

It is oversimplification to equate missile production with ballistic shell or airplane production, he said. He pointed out that there are five major components of a missile. Listing them as:

1. The structure, a ballistic shell.
2. The guidance and control system.
3. The propulsion system consisting of a rocket engine and its auxiliary equipment.
4. A delivery element capable of protecting the payload.
5. The adapter link capable of making the missile to the warhead.

"Now," he declared, "you fast have a useful missile in production—until you have successfully demonstrated the operation of one or two or three of these elements, but five of them."

"Our Army production planning is based on producing tactical missiles," he assured the assembled conferees, "and is planned to coincide with the progress of our development."

Nazi Victim Completing Citizenship Work at TSB

BY THOMAS MALLOY
A soldier who was born in Russia, experienced ten years of Nazi Concentration and finally received his chance to come to the United States, is now completing the first steps of work by his American Citizenship.
He is Pfc. Marko Melitschenko assigned to Company F, Infantry School Detachment, The School Brigade. He works in the Allied Officers Liaison Section as an interpreter for the many foreign student officers who are now enrolled in the First Student Battalion's classes.
Slave Labor Camp
Melitschenko related that he was only seven years of age when the Germans attacked the Ukraine and forced his whole family, including his grandmother and aunt, into the Ukraine labor camps. "The entire family moved from camp to camp in the ensuing months. We moved from Russia to Poland and then to Czechoslovakia before finally ending up in eastern Germany. It was in Germany that the prison train which he and his family were aboard was bombed and both his parents were killed.
After the English liberated his concentration camp near Hamburg at the war's end, Melitschenko was forced to spend the next several years in displaced persons camps hoping that he could someday enter either Australia or the United States. While waiting for six years for the chance to again be free, he managed to get a high school education and take a few college courses. Finally the United Ukrainian-American Community found a sponsor for him, and in 1952 he, his aunt, and his grandmother all moved to New York City and a new life.
From 1953 until he was drafted, Melitschenko divided his time between working and trying to increase his education. Most of the time life was not easy, and he remembers that on many occasions he had to wash dishes in restaurants until well into the night to make ends meet. His luck changed later however, and he began working in the art department of a large advertising agency in New Jersey during the day and studying at night.
In January, 1957, Melitschenko entered the Army and received his basic training at The Third Division at Fort Benning. The Army decided to utilize his unusual linguistic ability — he speaks six languages fluently (Bulgarian, Russian, German, Polish, Ukrainian, and Czechoslovakian) — and he was assigned to The School Brigade as an interpreter.
Melitschenko feels that the future holds many opportunities for him. At the present time physics holds a deep fascination for him and he is seriously considering making it his career. He realizes, however, that his language fluency would aid him in a job with the United Nations and he has seriously considered that field also. In any event, he feels that serving with the Army has given him a chance to speed along his citizenship proceedings, and Melitschenko now hopefully predicts that he will become an American citizen in the very near future.

Prices Turn Back, No Sale Prevails

Patrons of a small London store thought that they were going out of their minds. Prices of all articles, along with the stock, were turned back 17 years. The Rank Organization took over this store for the fitting of "Carve Her Name With Pride," which stars Virginia McKenna.
Everything was so realistic that a girl stopped at the counter in the shop, looked at a display of lipsticks, and then said, "I thought I was on a bargain," she said afterwards, "It's a pity that the 1941 prices aren't still with us."

Army Intends Astrophysics Grad. Course

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Army is presently negotiating with civilian schools to arrange graduate training in astrophysics for a specially selected group of officers.
These officers would be working for Masters degrees in the study of the physics of the sun and stars. The course is planned for two years duration but individuals showing exceptional qualifications could have their training extended for an additional year in order to obtain Doctorates.
In recognition of the scientific and technical aspects of modern warfare, the Army says, the course will contain introductory graduate classes in optics and spectroscopy, thermodynamics, quantum theory, modern physics, astronomy, nuclear physics and mathematics, as well as astrophysics.
According to present indications, these special courses also plan to correspond with Harvard, Princeton, California Institute of Technology, and other schools to explore the availability of establishing similar courses at these institutions.
An Army spokesman said that if the negotiations are successful, the first group of officers will begin this field of study in June.

Hunt Club

Group Elects New Board Of Officials

Fort Benning Hunt Club recently held its annual election for the Board of Governors. Elected were Col. C. W. Sargent, president; Col. A. C. Bestman, vice president; Lt. Col. W. B. Tyler, Lt. Col. D. W. Brewitt, Major Harry Reeder, Capt. Frank H. Armstrong, Capt. Thomas F. Valdespino, 1st Lt. Billy F. Andrews, and M. Sgt. Jesse O. Henson, members.

Official opening of the new stable is planned for April. Other activities for club members and their guests are being scheduled for the summer months. Due to demand, classes in equestrian are now being held seven days a week. Those interested in instruction for either themselves or their children may phone Mrs. William Van Dyke Oels Jr., Fort Benning 2416, or Mrs. Thomas F. Valdespino, Fort Benning 3018.

In order to accommodate riders for instruction and training, the club is planning to purchase mounts, and it is anticipated that by April the stable string will be completed.

Hunt Club added two new members recently. They are the families of Major and Mrs. R. H. Oestreich and Major and Mrs. Glenn A. West.

Major Oestreich is assigned to the Infantry School, Major West is at U. S. Army Hospital.

Fort Gordon defeated Fort Jackson's Eagles in an overtime session, 81-80. The Fort Gordon quietest went into the fracas favored to win handily, but will Wilkinson-McClellan and company changed the picture seconds after the game opened.

Trailed by 15, The Gordon Saints were trailing by 15 points midway in the third period but then began to show the offensive spark that had made them the tournament favorites. Closing the 45-50 deficit was no easy task to accomplish in a period. Losing star Jack Salles on fouls didn't help but the rebound play of Johnny McClellan and some hawk-eye shooting by Andy Brown brought the Saints to a striking distance with a minute to play.

Brown hit for a layup to make the score 73-91. McClellan provided the tying points with a one hander shortly before the buzzer sounded, ending regulation play. Undaunted, Gordon fought back in the overtime, leading 80-79 before Millard Smith hit with a hook shot and McClellan again assumed the role of streamer as he bucketed the winning basket with seconds left in the contest.

Gordon led at the outset of the contest but fell behind the effective Jackson club by a 34-23 half-time margin.

Girls Beat Hot Jackson's red hot third period play indicated that a playoff contest would be necessary.

All the Saints commended to drive. In winning the tournament, Gordon scored four straight wins, beginning with a 52-27 victory over Redstone Arsenal.

The annual competition, under the direction of Lt. Col. Theodorus W. Drobek, Infantry Center, Special Projects Officer, will include rifle and pistol teams from each major unit with units permitted to enter a minimum of one team and not more than four in each class. Individual team members may not include less than 50 per cent "two" marksmen, rifers who have never fired in post or division level competition.

In addition to firing for the post championship trophies as a team members, individual shooters will compete with the objective of shooting for places on the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Squads which will compete in the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Matches to be held at Fort Benning April 21-26.

In preparation for the first day's firing, next Monday, 50 per cent "two" marksmen, rifers who have never fired in post or division level competition.

The exhibition contests for the Medics will give Benning baseball enthusiasts an opportunity to witness a preview of the team that will be fielded for the season by the 54th Medics.

BOYKING CANDIDATE Pvt. David Anderson, Company B, First Battle Group, 26th Infantry, has been named as a candidate for the Army boxing team to compete in interservice championship.

Patroling the outer pastures along with veteran Benning star Storch, will be Seaborn Hay and Al Harris. Ready to step in and replace the outfield threesome, if need be, are a group of talented performers, Paul Erb, John Keeney and Dominic Southpaws. Allendorf, a d McLaughlin offer the 54th nine a pair of slick, stylish roundsmen.

Along with the experienced two-tone, pitching help will come from Roy Wirt, John Wagner, Dick Coura and Al Hedge.

With a "Play Ball" cry expected at 2 p.m. the Medics will display some of Benning's most highly trained performers. Boasting five members of last year's post all-star club that performed in the Third Army tournament last summer, the 54th looms as a strong club for 1958 post competition.

54th Medics to Meet College Nine Mar. 25-27

Baseball will be ushered into the Fort Benning sports scene when the 54th Medics nine will play a touring Springfield College in a three game series March 25-26-27 at Gowdy Field.

The defending post champion in the 588 yard run and in the mile event. Expected to lead the array of returning veterans during the upcoming diamond campaign are several fine players.

First base has two men vying for a start-in berth, with Marv Jones having the nod over baseball star Dale McClellan. Second base duties will be assumed by Durwood Faudemus, who will team with Geller around the keyhole sack. Flushing the starting infield will be Bill Thompson at the hot corner.

Outfielders Alenly Patrolling the outer pastures along with veteran Benning star Storch, will be Seaborn Hay and Al Harris. Ready to step in and replace the outfield threesome, if need be, are a group of talented performers, Paul Erb, John Keeney and Dominic Southpaws.

Along with the experienced two-tone, pitching help will come from Roy Wirt, John Wagner, Dick Coura and Al Hedge.

The exhibition contests for the Medics will give Benning baseball enthusiasts an opportunity to witness a preview of the team that will be fielded for the season by the 54th Medics.

BOYKING CANDIDATE Pvt. David Anderson, Company B, First Battle Group, 26th Infantry, has been named as a candidate for the Army boxing team to compete in interservice championship.

Charley Quinn Prize Offered For Record Bass

Let's make a prediction in this week's column — that a record bass will be taken from one of our Benning ponds within the next 90 days. The present record is held by Mrs. Ruth Strine, wife of M-Sgt. Paul E. Strine, Ground Mobility Department, who hooked, played and landed an 11 lb. 4.1-2 oz. largemouth, the prettiest bass these old eyes ever did see.

There are bigger fish in our waters and the column is willing to back up it's prediction by putting up an award of an item of sporting goods, the cost of which would not exceed $10.

That's an award for the bass, caught on post, which the Range Guard Section declares to have topped Mrs. Strine's record. The offer is good until the time we lose our by-line.

Forty tons of agricultural lime have been placed in King's Pond and were followed by a sack of commercial fertilizer per acre. The treatment was recommended by Georgia State Wildlife chemists who took a reading on the pond and the same procedures will be followed on some of our other ponds as part of a continuing program by the Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association to provide better fishing for us.

Even now there are lunker Benning bass who won't be dragged out of their natural habitat by anything less than a "six by" winch. But, according to Lt. John Sutherland, OIC, Range Guards' Section, the addition of the fertilizer will increase the growth of plankton, minute animal life which constitutes a basic fish food. It will also aid in the growth of desirable plant life, which, in turn, will force out undesirable weeds. Give our program another few weeks and your creel will see bigger fish and greater numbers.

NICE CATCH OF CATFISH Sgt. Morgan Wood, 542d Medical Company, reports a nice catch of catfish at Harp's Pond on March 10, right at the peak of the recent high water. Fishing rewarms on the bottom did the trick, he says. He also saw a moorhain "big around as a cypress pole". This report brings us to another point of "woods safety" — that of snakes.

WATCH OUT FOR SNAKES Granted that we do have snakes on the reservation — but there are few areas of the country which are completely free of them. The enjoyment of field sports should never be curtailed because of possible encounter with one of our reptilian buddies: "make consciousness" coupled with the least bit of common sense will make hunting, fishing and picnicing on the Reservation as safe as a mouse in a bale of cotton.

We can find no record of snake-bite even though both rattlesnakes and water moccasins are not uncommon here. Perhaps the greatest possibility of a bit lies with small children who might wander during a fishing session or picnic with their parents. The same situation also supports the argument against hunting or fishing alone. If by chance you are alone and do get hit, there are three basic rules to follow: (1) Don't panic (2) Apply self aid by applying a tourniquet and removing the venom by suction, moving as little as possible. (3) Draw attention to your position and let medical assistance come to you. If the snake can be dispatched with a minimum of effort it should be done so that the medics can select the proper anti-toxin through recognition of the species. But any great effort in killing the reptile would do more harm than good. We'll cover this matter in greater detail in a later column but, again, the fact that there are snakes on the reservation shouldn't be reason for not getting out for a bit of fishing every once in a while. Come to think of it, we'd personally rather choose a day's fishing accompanied by rattlers and moccasins some Sunday than spend the day contending with Sunday drivers on our highways.

That's it for this week — except that your Georgia State Fishing License expires come March 31st.

Tourney Rifle Team Captures Coral Gables Match

The U. S. Army International Rifle Team which trains at Fort Benning, won both the Iron Sights and Any Sights Position Team championships in the Sawgrass Smallbore Rifle Matches March 6-7 at Coral Gables, Fla.

The U. S. Army "Blue" and "Gray" Teams placed first and second, respectively, in both team matches. PUCKEL WINS 1st Lt. Daniel B. Puckel won the four-position grand aggregate, but was passed by his teammate, 2nd Lt. James Eberwine. Lt. Puckel edged Lt. Eberwine, 1,556-72X to 1,550-62X. Second Lt. John Herr placed third in the grand aggregate with a 1,646-62X score.

Lt. Eberwine had built up a lead by taking the Iron Sights positions aggregate with a 778-3X score in the Any Sights stage of the aggregate. Lt. Eberwine continued to lead until the offhand match.

First Lt. Puckel, defending champion of the Sawgrass Matches, fired a sensational 192-3X to win the Any Sights aggregate and the grand aggregate championship for the second straight year. The U. S. Army Blue Team, composed of Lt. Puckel, Lt. Eberwine, 1st Lt. Verlie F. Wright and 2nd Lt. John C. Harr, won both the Any Sights

With six games played in the second round of play of the 51st Engineer Group volleyball tournament, the 690th Engineer Company is in front and the 64th Engineer Company and Company A, 57th Engineer Battalion, are tied for second place with only one loss. Five more games are to be played and a playoff will be held to decide the top two teams to decide the 51st Engineer Group champs.

Hypos Lose To Tankers

Gary Jellison, racking up 11 points led the 16th Tankers to victory over the 37th Hypos in the Youth Activities Club Doughty League Basketball Championship Saturday morning at the Faith School Gym. This victory gave them a season record of seven wins and no losses in league play. Jerry Pool led the losers with six points.

Iron-sights team championship by posting 777 in the former match and 766 in the latter. The Army International Team began the National Mid-Winter Smallbore Rifle Tournament March 10 at St. Petersburg, Fla. The tournament will end March 14.

The Army Blue Team won the International Team championship last year by shooting 1,170.

Benning Begins Volleyball Meet Volleyball will bring into high gear at Fort Benning this week when company level competition gets under way at Briant Wells Field House, starting March 21 at 1 p.m.

Readying for the command level double elimination tournament in early April, company volleyball will determine that representation in the post-wide competition. Using official 1958 volleyball rules, squads for the competing clubs will be limited to 12 men. In addition to company staff units, teams will enter representing detachments, staff sections and similar sections at Fort Benning.

The tournament will continue throughout the weekend until Saturday, March 22. The winners will be crowned champions.

WWII Colors Returned To 29th's 1st Battle Gp.

World War II colors of the 29th Infantry—recovered from a storage box in an Okinawa basement—were returned recently to the 29th's First Battle Group.

The old 29th regimental flag was presented to Col. Joseph C. Sandlin, commanding officer by Capt. John F. Hathaway, Infantry School mortar committee. Capt. Hathaway served with the regiment on Okinawa two years ago.

Existence of the colors, carried into the "Battle of the Bulge," was unknown to First Battle Group personnel.

During World War II, the 29th Infantry was given the press' highway, participated in the Bulge action, and provided security for SHAEF headquarters.

The colors were discovered in the basement of the old 29th Infantry headquarters in the vicinity of Chnju a u o Masan.

The recovered colors will be placed as a memento in the First Battle Group trophy room.

MPs Escort Polio Victim To Clinic

Polio victim, Aaron E. Bassett, West Harwich, Mass., arrived at Fort Benning's Lawton Army Air Field March 16 en route to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at Warm Springs, Ga.

The 27-year-old patient, completely paralyzed since November, 1956, was evacuated from Boston, Mass., to Lawton Army Air Field by the 12th Army Medical Transportation Squadron, McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., Military Air Transport Service.

He was met at Fort Benning with an ambulance by Dr. Barjais of the foundation and Capt. Mary Williams, Army nurse at the U. S. Army Hospital and chairman of the Muscogee County chapter.

The transfer of the patient was arranged through the cooperation of the Muscogee-Chatahoochee County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the Boston chapter and the Southwest Georgia state NFIP office in Macon.

The polio victim still requires occasional use of a respirator and was furnished a chest respirator during the flight from Boston. Fort Benning military police escorted the ambulance to Warm Springs to avoid unnecessary stopping and starting which causes additional strain on the victim.

Army Streamlines 2nd Brigade for Modern War

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Army is regrouping the Fourth Regimental Combat Team at Fort Devens, Mass., as the Second Infantry Brigade, and streamlining it to meet the demands of modern warfare.

The new organization is to have 4,000 men, about the same strength as the Fourth Infantry was organized in 1917 and inactivated in 1940. It was reactivated in 1942 and returned the Second Infantry Brigade in 1943, and assigned in 1944 to First Army in Europe during WWII. The Second again was mustered out many after the war, and was in January 1945.

School Toured By Col. Ram Ron

Commanding officer of the Infantry School, Col. Ram Ron, visited the Infantry School for a first hand look at this country's instruction in the latest tactics and doctrine last week.

The Allied visitor was guest of honor at an official luncheon March 14 in the Main Officers' Mess.

Among the demonstrations he witnessed were night vision, assault gun platform in attack, engineers reaction testing, Ranger and officer candidate training and cargo aircraft.

Col. Ron concluded his three-day visit March 15. Capt. Roger M. Little, The Infantry School's Weapons Department, was project officer.

Starlets Favor Shorter Skirts

No one is in any doubt about the male reaction to the news that skirts are getting shorter, but women are facing the prospect with much interest, according to a survey taken at the Rank Organization's Snowwood Studios.

June Laverick sees shorter skirts as an aid to good grooming.

Muriel Pavlov says that shorter skirts are good for a girl's morale. They make her feel "frivolous."

Susan Bonnamy states that "if you're lucky enough to have pretty legs, then it is a waste of time to hide them."

Barb Whiting and Troupe Praise Audiences on Tour of Outposts

(AFPS WEEKLY FEATURE) Barrow Alaska, where thick snow and below zero temperatures made plumbing impossible, to a case of mistaken identity for bass virtuoso Ollie Harris who, with snow-white goatee, is a dead ringer for Soviet Premier Bulganin. At Bello.

But in one voice the troupe praised service audiences, particularly these at remote outposts. "I think I enjoy watching them more than they enjoy watching us," one member said. Exams Administered USMA Candidates

Candidates for admission to the United States Military Academy are currently undergoing mental, medical and physical aptitude tests at Fort Benning to determine their qualifications for admission with the class scheduled to enter the Academy in July, 1958. Identical examinations are being held simultaneously at approximately 75 other Army and Air Force installations throughout the United States and overseas. The local examinations are being conducted by a Board of Officers of which Col. Richard W. Mabree is president.

Permission to take the examination is limited to duly appointed candidates, who have been nominated from one of the sources provided by law and to whom letters of appointment have been issued by the Adjutant General, D.C. Col. Mabree emphasizes that these candidates do not have authority to issue appointments or to process applications for appointment.

The total authorized strength of the Corps of Cadets and all sources of appointment by law. About 750 new cadets are admitted each year. The largest quota, representing about 80 per cent of the total, is allotted to the various States and Congressional Districts for which the nominations are made by Senators and Representatives in Congress. Each Senatorial District may be represented at the Military Academy by no more than four cadets at any one time and new cadets may be admitted only as vacancies occur. Applicants seeking a Congressional appointment should apply directly to their Senators or Representative and Col. Mabree advises that this is done a year in advance of the intended date of admission to West Point. Only one class is admitted each year, the date of admission being the first Tuesday in July. Small quotas, all of which are competitive, are provided by law for enlisted men of the Army and Air Force (regular and reserve components) or deceased veterans whose death resulted from war service disabilities during World Wars I and II or between June 27, 1950, and Jan. 31, 1953, and for the sons of enlisted men or officers who are now, or who were at time of death, members of the Regular Army or the regular components of the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard.

Col. Mabree states that, although the standards are necessarily high, any healthy, normally intelligent young American citizen of good high school standing with good grades should be able to pass the required tests. The examination now in progress consist of tests in Intermediate Mathematics, English Composition, and Scholastic Aptitude; Physical Aptitude tests to measure coordination and development, and a very thorough mental examination. College credits are sufficient in some cases to exempt candidates from certain portions of the mental examination, but all must pass the Scholastic Aptitude, Physical Aptitude, and medical examination.

All young men interested in a military career based on the college training offered at West Point are urged by Col. Mabree to address a letter or postcard to The Adjutant General, Washington, D.C., at The Adjutant General, U.S. Military Academy, West Point, New York, requesting a copy of the West Point Catalogue. This publication, which is free, furnishes detailed information on all of the requirements for admission, an outline of the course of studies, and general information and history of the United States Military Academy.

AIRBORNE WANTED WASHINGTON (ANS) - The Army, this week, is urging qualified Non-Commissioned Officers to apply for airborne training. Vacancies exist in 11 MOS's (including MOS 02, 53, 71A, 71B, 75A, 76, 76T, 76S, 77S, 941 and 951) in airborne units located within the Third United States Army area. Vacancies by MOS and grade level are detailed in DA Circular 611-1 (14 Feb. 58). Applications may be made by mail should be submitted as provided in AR 611-7.

Physical Therapist Gets Promotion to Lt. Col.

Dorothy C. Tipton, physical therapist at Fort Benning Hospital, has promoted to lieutenant colonel. Col. Tipton began her training as a civilian student at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C. As a civilian employee of the Army she served at Fort Riley, Kansas, until December, 1954. Under Civil Service law she first four at Fort Benning was from 1948 to 1952.

Served in Panama - From 1942 to 1948 she was a physical therapist at the George Hospital in Panama under the Civil Service. In 1948 in a historic move, the Army opened commissioned rank to some of its women specialists.

Col. Tipton has served in Army hospitals at Jackson, Miss., and Fort Bragg, N.C., at Madigan General, Fort Lewis, Wash., and at Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio, Texas.

Although physical therapists and dietitians were granted Army commissions in 1942, it was 1947 before these specialties including occupational therapists became a part of the Regular Army in the Army Medical Specialist Corps.

Jap Charities Use Surplus Buildings

CAMP ZAMA, Japan - If a building were used by post many Japanese churches, troops as barracks, snack bars, mess halls, barber shops and other organizations seem to be housed in buildings that look like barracks. The recipients furnish as American tourists a few years from now, it will be more like architectural landmarks.

For during one recent two-month period the Army in Japan commuted its policy of disposing surplus structures—231 of them—in surplus organizations, mostly religious groups. Eighty in size from an 8-square-foot building room to a 100,000-sq-ft building.

and destroy the enemy has become synonymous with the preservation of American liberty and a free world. Hundreds of thousands of American foot soldiers have received vital training in the years since 1917 when a permanent school was established on a site of red Georgia clay bluffs with heavy brush and woods. Many technical advances have been made in the science of ground warfare since then—advances and developments which The Infantry School not only keeps abreast of but actually indicates. Courses at the institution include military subjects from parachute and Ranger training to the tactical deployment of an Infantry company in defense, planned carefully a and equally for use on a standard or nuclear battlefield as the future dictates. The success of this Infantry institution has been proven in the course of three powerful destructive wars.

Newsome Talks To Post Clinic

Steele Newsome, former major league shortstop and Columbus Fox manager, addressed a Fort Benning clinic for umpires and managers March 26 at Gowdy Field. A two part clinic, the program served as a training school for the Fort Benning baseball league. While Newsome was the featured speaker to the managers, officials and players, two graduates of George Barr's School for Umpires, headed the program for the league's umpires. Veteran umpires, Sgt. John Mallik and Billie Ross, conducted the officiating phase of the clinic. Newsome, currently affiliated

195,000-lb. Carrier Snow Train Arrives For Demonstration

A mammoth, 195,000-pound logistical cargo carrier, known as the "Snow Train," has arrived at Fort Benning for a demonstration later this month. The gigantic orange snow train, as the name implies, is designed to carry cargo over the arctic. It has one power train, consisting of a 600-horsepower diesel engine supplying electric power for one AC and one DC generator.

In the same unit there is an operator's compartment which provides banks and cooking facilities for the five-man crew. Each of the three 15-ton cargo cars has a carrying capacity of 15 tons and wheels which are operated exclusively by individual electric motors.

The most striking feature of the snow train, however, is the immense tires on which the vehicle rests. On each car there are four 2,255-pound tires that stand 10 feet in the air. These are tubeless tires that require but 15 pounds of inflation.

The snow train arrived at Fort Benning by rail complete. Within the power unit, Lt. Col. Yancey H.

WAC Has Small Claim to Fame

MACARTHUR, Calif. (APFS) — A member of the WAC detachment here claims she knows the smallest mascot and youngest Pfc in the US Army.

The claim was made by Sgt. Norma Wilson in behalf of Pfc. Pat, a pedigreed black and white female Chihuahua dog. Pfc. Pat, five months old, was made mascot of the WAC detachment and rose to the rank of honorary Pfc. after Sgt. Wilson's niece, for whom the pup had been purchased, said she didn't want a dog.

Pfc. Pat weighs one pound, is 14 inches long and six inches high, and wears, it is said, a man tag.

'Give Blood on Birthday'

WASHINGTON (ANS) — "Give Blood on Your Birthday!" Those important words constitute the slogan being used by the American Red Cross during its 1958 drive.

The Red Cross is presently trying to rebuild its seriously depleted blood reserve. Major disasters in the past two years including fires, accidents and Hurricane Audrey, which swept the Gulf Coast of Louisiana and Texas last June, have dug deeply into the Red Cross blood supply.

It takes $14,000,000 annual to pay the costs of the Red Cross Blood Program which provides life-saving blood products for the ill and injured in hospitals everywhere.

Honorary Chairman President Dwight D. Eisenhower named March as Red Cross Month in his Proclamation and said, "I urge all Americans to honor the Red Cross that month and to support its magnificent services through the year."

Volunteer blood donors are the real benefactors of the people who receive blood each year from the Red Cross. Last year, for instance, there was an average of 192,000 donors a month and there are still not enough blood to replace that used.

Red Cross is a medium through which these donors' generosity and public spirit can find true expression. It is the agent for collecting the blood and the channel from where it can flow to where it is needed.

Two big U. S. varsity teams — the Army and the Red Cross — have similar roles — both serve the American people. So remember the plea for the greatest wonder medicine of all time and make a pledge to "give blood on YOUR BIRTHDAY!"

Leadership Incentive

Just as there would be new incentives for enlisted personnel if Congress were to vote to revise military pay practice, so would there be new incentives for high-caliber people to follow careers in comparison to the experience and responsibilities of persons in civilian life.

Besides the obvious incentive of additional money, there would be the incentive of knowing that more adequate recognition was being given to the responsibilities of military officers in comparison to the experience and responsibilities of persons in civilian life.

The proposals the Department of Defense has made include the setting up of two new pay grades for officers, the provision of pay increases for time in grade, and pay scales that make it a certainty that promotion will bring with it an increase in pay.

There is an interesting significance in the fact that the proposals award the highest increases in grade to lieutenants colonel or commanders and above. That is in large part the result of suggestions by junior officers, who explained that most important to them would be a system that would provide increased rewards for meritorious services over a period of years.

Here is an example of the proposals. An O-6 (full colonel or Navy captain), who today must serve more than 30 years to reach top pay of $31,240 per month, would receive $3,950 a month to begin with, and would earn $1,865 after four years in grade.

It goes without saying that the Armed Forces needs high-quality leaders. The Defense Department's proposals would attract those leaders by eliminating the inequities and injustice of the present pay system. (AFPS)

Help Handicapped

The spirit of Easter is symbolized by a little white lily on a sheet of Easter Seals.

Each year these seals go out through the mails to families all over Georgia — as part of a nationwide appeal to aid handicapped children.

This year the Georgia Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the Easter Seal Society, is mailing seals to approximately 600,000 homes. There will be a return envelope in which contributions may be sent . . . contributions which will be used to aid as many of the state's 100,800 handicapped as possible.

So won't you contribute to Easter Seals . . . either through the return envelope that comes into your home or by dropping money into the nearest coin container to be found in schools, stores, or public places.

Greetings, Chum!

Soviets Send Summit Note; U. S. Blasts It

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union published Tuesday its criticism of the summit conference note, rejecting point by point every argument raised by the United States.

The Soviets dismissed a U.S. suggestion that a top level meeting might be used by Russia to stage a spectacle rather than reach meaningful decisions.

The note repeated previous Soviet proposals for a summit level meeting, including prohibition of nuclear weapons, creation of an atom-free zone in Central Europe and an East-West non-aggression pact.

It reiterated Soviet rejection of U.S. proposals to discuss the status of Russia's East European allies and reunification of Germany.

The Soviet note replied to an American note of March 6. U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson copies also went to the French and British Embassies.

Chaplain's Corner

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) ALBERT C. WILDMAN A friend of mine, Harold Wilkie, was born without any arms—not even a stub which might be attached to a mechanical arm. He says he was fortunate in having parents who did not pity him but encouraged him to play and enter into activities with other children.

When he wanted to go swimming with his other brothers his mother said, "surely you may give me a big time." At first he could not swim around; then he learned to float. Later with the use of an inflated support he learned to swim about by splashing with his feet. Then later he learned to swim without any support.

This is typical of the many skills he has mastered, many of which he performs with his feet as well as with his arms. He has learned to do many of the things which a normal child can do.

Harold Wilkie has not eliminated his problem but he has conquered it. Some people are frustrated and go to pieces in the face of tremendous problems which they do not understand.

Some problems can be eliminated; others cannot. However, there is no need for letting those that cannot be eliminated conquer us. We are either victims of events or we are victors. It is the face of the difficulties, some people go to pieces while others live gracefully.

In overcoming problems it is sensible, first of all, to use all the resources available. Unless the individual is interested in doing something about his own problem, no one else can solve it for him.

Secondly, it is sensible to use all the human resources available, such as, the counseling of close friends in whom one can confide; or, the counseling of a chaplain or other specialist in the field of personal problems.

Thirdly, the most important thing is to keep one's own problems in perspective. Many a strong man has been defeated because he depended on himself alone.

Concert Slates Cinderella Ballet

The ballet, "Cinderella," by Prokofiev will be featured in a recorded concert at the Main Branch of the Public Library at 7:30 p.m. April 1.

Certain fairy tales have achieved the position of near-universal myths. Cinderella is one such tale. The French poet Charles Perrault wrote the Cinderella story's impetus. It was included, along with stories about Snow White, Sleeping Beauty and others, in a series called "Mother Goose." Cinderella is the most popular of the tales.

Cinderella was Prokofiev's fifth ballet. He worked on it from 1929 to 1942 and the work had its premiere in November, 1945.

The Russian ballerina Galina Ulanova created the title role. The musical score is tuneful, inventive, and orchestrated by the great Russian composers. The pianos made low passages in a number of horns to the Tchaikovsky throughout the Ipswich district.

Duty, Honor, Country

Speaker Highlights Code of Honor At U.S Military Academy Dinner

The corps code of honor was highlighted among the endearing influences of West Point by Major Gen. (Ret.) Philip Gallagher of Columbus at the U. S. Military Academy Founders Day dinner at Fort Benning March 15.

The banquet paid tribute to the achievements of the 21,659 young men who have been graduated from the academy since its establishment in 1802.

"You can take a man out of West Point, but you can't take West Point out of the man," Gen. Gallagher told the 240 West Point graduates assembled for the anniversary celebration in the Main Officers' Mess.

The speaker is a 1918 graduate of the academy and also served as a tactical officer and commandant of cadets there. He completed 29 years of distinguished military service before his retirement last year.

Gen. Gallagher emphasized the pervasive good influence of the academy's code of honor. "No older group, and I include menistic orders, imposes such a terrific code of honor on itself as does the corps of cadets," he declared.

"The honor committee is not a cold blooded proposition, however. There is understanding in its decisions," he pointed out.

"The honor committee is a conscientious group of people realizing their responsibilities," Gen. Gallagher added.

The two-star general aptly epitomized the feeling of the cadets for their code by quoting a cadet's father who said, "I say one can't live a lie and live with the corps of cadets."

Duty, Honor, Country Gen. Gallagher spoke of the meaning that the words "duty, honor, country" on each West Point ring holds for the academy's graduates, noting the philosophy of his father, the late Col. Hugh Gallagher, who also was a graduate of the academy.

CG Writes in April Issue 'Infantry' Provides Latest on Foot Soldier

"The man who seizes and holds ground is an ever-present, effective deterrent to the aggressor," says Herbert Albert B. Powell, Infantry Center commander, in the April issue of Infantry magazine. You can count on him to be the official publication of The Infantry School.

In an article entitled "The Infantryman in the Atomic Age," Gen. Powell gives an analysis of the part the foot soldier will be called upon to play in any future war. He is non-atomic, limited atomic or all-out atomic.

More Important
"At no time in the history of the American Army has the role of the Infantryman been more important than it is today," he states. "To perform his role in the Atomic Age, the foot soldier must have increased capabilities. Changes in weapons, tactics and techniques become necessary. But change is not new to the Infantryman. Throughout history he has been necessary for him to adjust to new development in the means for waging war. The Infantry is now adjusting to requirements imposed by nuclear weapons. No facet of combat in atomic warfare is overlooked. To meet the challenge of the Atomic Age, the Infantryman is re-emphasizing his organization, his weapons and his tactics. As new technological developments occur and as new concepts are generated, the Infantryman will continue to adjust to the realities of modern warfare—atomic or non-atomic. And despite claims to the contrary, his effectiveness in combat will continue. The Infantryman will be on the battlefield at the moment of decision. He is the flesh and bone representative of our military might which includes the nuclear weapons, missiles, aircraft, tanks and all other tools in our arsenal which back him up. You can count on him to be a decisive factor in keeping the Hammer and Sickle off our front lawn in the Atomic Age.

Post Slates Larry Elliott March 31

A new approach to fine dance music will be the keynote in the appearance of Larry Elliott and his orchestra at Fort Benning's Main Theater at 7 p.m. March 31.

Contrary to the belief that it is impossible to convey danceable rhythms and retain a fresh and interesting style, the Larry Elliott Orchestra has chosen to lead the way by proving false this popular misconception. Dancers are amazed to find such easy dance rhythms, pretty melodies and a full-sounding style, all from the same band.

In addition, Mr. Elliott, besides playing the electric guitar, always attempts to present a number of entertaining specialties, such as amusing singing, trio, the Dupleaders, and vocalist, Elaine Powell.

The band's highly successful engagements throughout the country have made it well-deserving of the title— "America's Most Danceable Band."

VOCALIST... Elaine Powell is featured vocalist with the Larry Elliott orchestra appearing at post March 31.

PUPPET SHOW
The Suzari Marionettes and their version of "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be shown at Theater No. 1 at 6 p.m., April 2, sponsored by the Exalted Men's Wives Club.

Inf. Board Given Safety Certificate
The Infantry Board has been presented a Third Army certificate of safety by Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, commanding general, Third Army.

The certificate read: "This Certificate of Merit for safety is awarded to U. S. Army Infantry Board, Fort Benning, Georgia, for an Outstanding Safety Performance from 1 January 1957 to 1 January 1958."

TI Topic to Cover Wearing of Uniform
The Troop Information Topic for the week beginning March 31 is "Wearing the Uniform." Reference materials supporting this subject are: Circular 670-2 with Appendix 1 and Department of the Army pamphlet 355-10.

This subject was selected at this time because it ties in with the changeover from winter uniform to summer. Commanders are to acquaint personnel with approved summer uniforms. When the summer uniform may be worn, where it's not to be worn and other problems that arise concerning proper dress, whether in post or off duty, are covered.

Paris Filled Up
PARIS, FR. (AP)—Leading hotels here are "filled up" and are turning away reservations. Hotel managers ascribe the room shortage to the impact of the Lourdes celebration, coupled with the Brussels Fair and normal tourist travel. They expect crowded conditions to continue until the end of October.

The arresting decorations were designed by Mesdames Willoughby Nelson, Edward B. Harston Orville L. Grim, and Carl F. Gunderson. Committees were: Mesdames Robert Hood, Don Bauer, Ronald T. Terrell, Mark Hodgson, Alfred Fuxsler, T. H. Fradley, Robert E. Enger, Frank Rhoads, Gary Schab, Raymond Larry, Tom Ramage, and Larry Brown. Decorations included Mesdames Robert E. Enger, Patrick Brady, Don Watson, George Volker, James McClain, Art Caravato and Frank Rigney; finance committee, Mesdames P. J. Frank, Glen Jones, Pat Nelson, Jack Langford, Jim Murphy, William P. Bowdle and William F. Bigner; hospital committee, Mesdames Donald Garvais, John Cornell, Nestor Mercier, Myron Gantt, Kenney Peoples, Tommy Economy, Carmen Speranza, Robert Harris, J. A. Army Gets Wind Data With Paper

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army scientists are using metallic combs to measure the winds in the upper atmosphere. The tests are being made to get facts on wind at high altitudes that would affect intercontinental ballistic missiles on their way to the target.

The new method uses rockets that sprinkle combs in the air. A cloud of the aluminum combs is released and tracked by radar to produce a fast, accurate wind profile.

'March Winds' Theme Entertains Staff Dept. Wives at Luncheon

Officers' wives of the Infantry School's Staff Department were entertained with a "March Winds" luncheon March 19 at the Custer Terrace Club.

Following lunch was a show, Mrs. Hope Theiering, director of Kayser Liliethal in Columbus was commentator.

Hostesses were wives of the Intelligence Group under the leadership of Mrs. John J. Pavick.

The luncheon tables were decorated with the "March Winds" theme. Small "trees" and dolls from many nations flying miniature kites decorated each table. The head table also held a centerpiece of spring flowers. The stage had a large tree and a boy mannequin flying a kite. On one side of the stage was a windmill, chime made of paper mache with swelled eyes. Taped music "Holiday in Vienna" played throughout the luncheon.

Modeling the hats were: Medaress, George A. McGee, John E. Dugar, Hampton Row, Land Jr., Paul R. Kennedy, Robert H. Kadletz, Martin E. Jaffe, Leonard Lowry, Donn C. Yoder and John B. Starr.

Special guests for the occasion were Mrs. Stanley B. Larsen, wife of Brig. Gen. Larsen, as-

At the March 19 luncheon for the wives of graduates of the U.S. Military Academy held at the Fort Benning Country Club are, left to right, Mrs. Herbert B. Powell, wife of Major Gen. Powell, commanding general of the Infantry Center, Mrs. John M. Collins, chairman of the decorations committee, and Mrs. William M. Linton, general chairman for the occasion.

Col. and Mrs. John J. Dalton were entertained with a buffet covered fish supper held in their honor March 13.

Each of the couples in the Infantry School Ranger Department brought a covered dish to the home of Major and Mrs. M. R. Dame. The buffet supper was a farewell party for Col. and Mrs. Dalton, who left Fort Benning March 17.

Mrs. Dame arranged a lovely centerpiece of tulips and other spring flowers for the buffet table.

An array of special dishes, including chicken terradine, hens, assorted vegetables and salads, cakes and pie, were served.

Mrs. Dalton was presented sterling silver sandwich tray with Ranger emblem engraved in the center from the Ranger Department in appreciation for her unstinted service and contributions.

Capt. and Mrs. Thomas U. Harold, Capt. and Mrs. Bruce Wallace, and Capt. and Mrs. Philip Walpole were presented baby cups by Col. Dalton.

OPEN HOUSE

The first Officer Candidate Company celebrated its annual March 8 observance with an open house and dinner dance at the Officers' Club.

Included in a reading of an order officially announcing the attainment of Officer candidate class No. 2, 51st Company.

The revving officer, Brig. Gen. John F. Huggins, deputy commanding general of the Infantry Center, presented a streamer to be flown on the company guidon.

Clemson Banquet Hears Weapons Dept. Director

29th Honors M-Sgt. Kline

M-Sgt. Fred W. Kline, a survivor of the Bataan death march, trooped the line in a special retirement ceremony recently by the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

The 40-year-old sergeant from Company A will complete more than 21 years of service in March 31.

He was a prisoner of the Japanese for 43 months during World War II before he was liberated in Manchuria by Russian troops in November, 1945.

On his release, the six-foot-plus Kline weighed 97 pounds.

A native of Brown's Mill, N. J., M-Sgt. Kline was taken prisoner when Bataan fell. Three days after his capture, he was started on the infamous six-day march to the Japanese POW camp at Camp O'Donnell.

During the march, prisoners were given no food and their only water for drinking came from ditches along the roads. The prisoners were marched through the city of Manila as a demonstration of Japanese military power.

Transferred to a number of POW camps, M-Sgt. Kline was put to work in coal mines, steel mills, and other hard labors.

Upon liberation from Madien, Mindanao, M-Sgt. Kline was treated well by the Soviet troops, he said.

Among the honored guests at the affair were Mrs. B. F. Poole, wife of the president of the college; Dean Walter Col. George A. Douglas, professor of military science and tactics; Col. Lloyd Tull, professor of air science and Lt. Col. W. W. Blackburn and their wives, all of Clemson College, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. George C. Kimmel of Greenville, S.C.

Army Establishes New Research Spot

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Establishment of the Army Research Office, Va., has been announced by Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker.

The new agency has been set up "in keeping with the increased emphasis being given basic and applied research within the over-all Army research and development program," Mr. Brucker said.

The office, which will be under the direction of the Chief of Research and Development, also will provide "a central point of contact" with the civilian scientific community, he said.

M-Sgt. Opens Home to 4 Needy Kids

An Army master sergeant assigned to Fort Benning who was one of 11 children and whose parents raised four others, has now opened his home to foster children in spite of having four step children and two grand children of his own.

He is M-Sgt. Russell V. Ward, Intelligence NCO for the School Brigade.

Sgt. Ward and his wife, Marie, own a nine room home on a 12-acre tract of land on the Buena Vista Road in Columbus where they plan to erect play ground equipment for their growing family.

Last July the Wards took a baby boy into their home, the first of an anticipated two more. "The boy was suffering from malnutrition when he came to us, but in the past eight months has gained eight pounds and is as healthy as any child in the neighborhood," states Sgt. Ward.

"Our first knowledge of being able to take a foster child into our home came through our church-work. Both my wife and I taught Sunday School at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church in the Edgewood Addition of Columbus. We made application through the Muscogee County Welfare Department to have our home accepted as a foster home for underprivileged children."

"We expect to accept two more children within the next few days," stated Sgt. Ward and our main aim in taking these children into our home

Flower Show, Art Exhibit Linked; Horticulturist Speaks on April 9

The Flower Show originally scheduled for April 9 will be held April 13 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Country Club. This will be in conjunction with the art exhibit which will be held at the same time. The show and tea to be given by the Women's Club. In addition to members of the flower arrangement class, all officers and their families are invited to submit arrangements. Those interested should call Mrs. Mason at Fort Benning.

On April 9 at 10 a.m. Dr. Tok Furuta, head of the Horticulture Department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will give a talk on horticulture at the Country Club. All members of the Women's Club are invited to attend. At this time Mrs. Carl Frisby, instructor of the course, will present the flowers to the members of the class complete with the course.

FAREWELL DINNER

A farewell dinner party honoring departing members was given by the Rifle Committee of the Infantry School's Weapons Department March 9 in the Carved Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

After dinner Lt. Col. James H. Cook, chairman of the Rifle Committee, read scrolls which honored those members of the committee leaving soon. Lt. and Mrs. James T. Higgins are being assigned to Germany and Lt. Henry J. Van Dyke and Wesley B. Herrington will attend The Infantry School's advanced course.

Honored guests for the evening were Col. and Mrs. S. T. McDowell and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harold H. House. As newcomers as new members of the committee were Lt. and Mrs. Billie Ann Davis and Joan Herman.

Arrangements for this affair were made by Mrs. Maurice Belle and the Platoon Committee's wives. There were 72 guests present.

BUFFET LUNCHEON
Wives of officers of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department were entertained March 13 with a buffet luncheon in the home of Mrs. Robert M. Piper, with Mrs. Robert W. Kolb and Mrs. Joseph E. Fix, III, as co-hostesses.

The buffet table was covered with a white, linen tablecloth and centered with an arrangement of daisies. Flanking the table were silver candlesticks holding green candles. Scattered over the tablecloth were colorful shamrocks.

Mrs. John K. Hoyle, new-comer to the group, was introduced.

Farewells were made to Mrs. Horst K. Jost who is leaving shortly with her husband who will attend the Aviation School in Texas.

Guests present for this occasion included Mrs. Sanford Winston and Mrs. A. D. Ettrick, young mother of Mrs. Guy Campbell from "Botswana, N. D."

COMMO LUNCHEON
Wives of the officers in the Infantry School's Communications Department held their monthly luncheon in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Mess March 16.

Appetizers were served before the luncheon.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Alford C. Shelton and Mrs. Norman Musser, Mrs. and Mrs. Oliver M. Smith.

Table decorations followed a St. Patrick's Day theme. Green shamrocks extended down the middle of the table on either side of the floral centerpiece of pale green and white mums and carnations.

Bit Confusing at Times

Home Varies for Troops Assigned to Other Spots

FORT MONROE, Va. (AP)—Keeping up-to-date records on his soldiers is normally a business for Army personnel sections—but not here, in the case of 32 officers and seven enlisted men.

"They are the men who might be anywhere in the world but at Fort Monroe when we want to contact them," says Frank B. Carter in charge of post officers' records.

Because of outstanding abilities in specialized fields, they are the soldiers who serve as liaison officers, as instructors, or as special observers with the Air Force, the Navy, or the Marine Corps.

"While several officers, like James H. Harper, engineer staff officer, serve with SAC LANT (Supreme Allied Command Atlantic), they may be sent to any of our 100 posts given moment at its headquarters in Norfolk. They are just as likely to be aboard a ship in the mid-Atlantic, or in a Mediterranean port.

"It gets a bit confusing at times," says Carter.

Gen. Says Infantryman's Role Greater Than Past

The role of the Infantryman in the age of hydrogen and nuclear bomb warfare will be greater than in the past, Brig. Gen. Charles H. Chase, chief of staff of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C., said March 9 at Fort Benning.

He spoke at graduation exercises for the Infantry School's officers' basic class held in the Main Theater.

Destructiveness of a possibility exists that these units may not be used because of their complete destructiveness and the desire of a future aggressor to gain something concrete and useful to him before it is destroyed.

Gen. Chase told the 107 graduates.

However, hydrogen and nuclear bomb warfare remains a possibility in the future, he observed. The Infantryman will be more important in hydrogen and future nuclear warfare than previously, he emphasized.

National Guard and Reserve units are significant in the preparation for any future contingency, he said. This is indicated by more emphasis being put on these units so they will be ready, since leisurely preparation will not be available for the next conflict, he told the graduates.

Readiness of more light forces rapidly moving to combat areas, fire brigade or Minute Men, is a concept that also has the interest of the XVIII Airborne Corps, Gen. Chase added.

The Army has made great progress in equipment, communications, transportation, missiles and weapons in an economical way during a period of pressure for less funds for defense, the general said. Trained, all-sufficient Infantrymen will be a keynote to the added.

Leadership, Gen. Chase said, is presented from the psychological and academic approaches, which is good. Sometimes, it may convey an overly complex concept of leadership, he said.

"If you can give clear directions, supervise your men, attend to their proper needs and rights; you are qualified leaders," Gen. Chase added.

Honor graduate of the class was and Lt. James R. Sheely who received a final average of 88.8. He is being assigned to headquarters, Second Battalion, Fort Ord, Calif.

Hospital Needs RC Gray Ladies

Trained Gray Lady volunteers are urgently needed at Fort Benning's U. S. Army Hospital, according to hospital Red Cross officials.

Additional Gray Lady assistance is needed in personal and recreational service at the hospital, Fort Benning's Red Cross volunteer chairman, Mrs. O. Z. Tyler Jr. said.

Any Red Cross Gray Ladies who have recently transferred to the post or who have been inactive in their service are invited to join the active volunteer group.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Miss Lila Sullivan, Red Cross social worker, or Miss Claire Swensky, hospital Red Cross field director, at Fort Benning 3-2707.

Guardsmen Learning To Operate Nike Site

WASHINGTON, ANP—Large numbers of Army National Guardsmen are learning how to operate Nike guided missile sites located throughout the country.

A part of this largest component of the nation's Ready Reserve forces is now training to participate in the active defense of the United States against an enemy attacking from the air.

Some of the National Guardsmen are attending the Nike missile school at Fort Bliss, Tex. Others are receiving on-the-missile training at Nike installations in key cities and industrial centers.

Eventually these Guardsmen will take over the Nike sites from the active Army and man them on a 24-hour basis. Although the Guardsmen are not dominantly citizen-soldiers, their sites will be on constant alert as part of the air defense system.

The National Guard, upon taking over a Nike site, will department. An operational nucleus of fulltime technicians will keep the site in constant readiness while the remainder of the unit's men pursue their civilian vocations. They will participate in year-round drills and summer field training, but will be ready to move to the Nike site at a moment's notice.

The units participating in the "on-site" missile program were former anti-aircraft gun batteries that have been engaged in the air defense system since 1954.

Their missions were essentially the same as they will be in the future. It was this program of the past few years that proved to the Army that the National Guardsmen could perform the around-the-clock role necessary in the Nation's air defense.

So the National Guard, descendant of the Colonial militia dating back to 1788, is again in the original militiamen's business of defending their homes and towns, releasing the active Army for duties elsewhere.

School Hears Speaker Describe Diplomatic Role of Great Britain

Britain's diplomatic role between World Wars I and II was portrayed in a talk at Fort Benning by Peter Scott, deputy director general of the British Information Service, New York City.

The distinguished British speaker spoke to officers and advanced classes and the faculty of the Infantry School in the Main Theater.

"England was not guilty of bad faith or of shirking her duties in the League of Nations, but was guilty of incomprehension of the true state of mind of other governments, particularly those of Germany and Japan," Scott stressed.

"Britain has often enjoyed but seldom sought a dominant position in the councils of Europe. And World War I marked the end of Europe's being the center of world affairs," he added.

With the development of ideological warfare and the League of Nations, the speaker contended, the world "no longer depended on a concert of great powers but looked toward a collective security."

Scott explained that "collective security is a dangerous illusion" since most small nations contribute little militarily and "zero plus zero still equals zero."

"The League might have been successful in a stable and prosperous world," Scott said, adding that World War I had imposed almost perennial budget deficits for many nations due to such factors as war debts and lost markets.

He described the League's trying to circumvent weapon improvements by a unilateral embargo against inventions "is seeming like a 'Never-Never Land.'" However, he did emphasize that "the effect and prestige of the International Court at The Hague grow steadily."

2 Balloons to Soar High For Mars Life Lowdown

WASHINGTON (AFP)—A two Navy balloon flights this fall "should give a real clue as to the possibility of life on Mars."

Admiral Bennett said this flight "will inaugurate a new technique of high altitude astronomical observation, which a number of eminent astronomers and observatories predict will lead to startling advances in astronomy and astrophysics."

Summing up other Navy research, the admiral said: "Living organisms have been recovered from ocean depths before and after reaching us. We have received radiograms that have been sent curving two or three earth radii out into space to test whether a sparse medium actually fills the void between the earth and the sun."

"By probing more than 1,000 feet down into the Greenland ice cap, there have been reported covers which carry in their undisturbed annual layers of snowfall a record of the earth's climate reaching back as far as 2,000 years."

Hasn't Lost Touch

BIOC 'Ham' Has $2,800 MARS Station in BOQ

One of the country's foremost radio and electronic enthusiasts is a member of Basic Infantry Officers Course No. 8, Second Company, Second Battalion, The School Brigade.

In addition to the normal duties of a 2nd Lt. Michael R. Ferrell finds time to use the elaborate and expensive "ham" radio station which he has installed in his BOQ.

Ferrell, whose home is in Flint, Michigan, is a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 15th Infantry Regiment, 4th Infantry Division of the Michigan National Guard.

He graduated from Flint Central High School in 1937 and the General Motors Institute, also at Flint, in 1938. At GMI he studied industrial electronics engineering during the day and operated his own radio repair shop at night in order to finance his education.

In 1954, he accepted a position with AC Spark Plug Division, General Motors Corporation, as an electronics engineer to design test equipment and the machine which would develop and produce the T38 "skyscraper" anti-aircraft weapon. Later, Ferrell transferred to AC's automotive branch and began research and work to develop automotive electronic machinery for the automatically controlled manufacture of automotive parts.

Lt. Ferrell enlisted in the Michigan National Guard in June, 1946, as a radio operator. In 1948, he was made chief of the radio section of the 125th Infantry's communications platoon and in 1957 was awarded his commission as a 2nd Lt. in the Michigan National Guard. Ferrell's communications platoon built and installed Michigan's finest Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) station, complete with test bench, work bench and 600 watt radio in the Army at Flint. This equipment is utilized for regularly scheduled classes in code, radio procedures and "on the air" training.

One of Lt. Ferrell's missions, as a member of MARS, is to promote interest and further training in military radio communications. In an emergency, MARS provides a "system in being" designed to serve military commands as an auxiliary communications system. The MARS Headquarters Radio Station, WAR-AIR, located in Washington, D. C., operates twenty-four hours daily on a small choice.

Small choice. Wife: "Oh, John, that woman next door has a hat just like mine."
John: "Well, I guess that means you want to buy a new one."
Wife: "It would be cheaper than moving."

Post to Offer Youths Jobs This Summer

Over 350 boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 living on the Fort Benning reservation may be afforded the opportunity of earning some extra pocket money this summer.

Col. William E. Ekman, president of Fort Benning's Parents - Teachers Association, announced that several programs are now being considered that would give the teenagers of Fort Benning part-time work on post, but would not interfere with their family vacation plans.

Tentative study shows that there are many young people on the post between the ages of 14 and 18 that are looking for an opportunity to earn extra money over the summer months. Most of them are looking for jobs that do not require a great deal of skill or experience and that will not tie them down to a full time job for the entire summer.

Many odd jobs such as pick-up and delivery service, yard care, house cleaning, car washing, etc., could be handled easily and cheaply by this group if there were an efficient organization to contact by the people and organizations interested.

Fort Benning to Meet Tuskegee on April 4

Fort Benning's track team will take Georgia Tech's 100 yard dash, Hartenstein's 200 yard dash, and Back all-tile, Ala., in track competition April 4 at 2 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium. An array of former collegiate stars will be displayed by the Doughboy runners, with the School Brigade entering over a dozen top flight, experienced trackman. Syracuse's Jim Brown, who has made his mark as a pro-griker, and recently displayed his basketball talents to a local court fans witnessing the Third Army basketball tournament, is scheduled to throw the discus, a feat he performed with considerable success as an undergraduate.

Less heralded than Brown, but as effective as a trackman, are Houston's Jerry Beck, a 9.5, 100 yard sprinter; sprinter Earl Graves, Morgan State College; Hugo Hartenstein, Dartmouth's undefeated speedster; field stars Don Watson, Texas A&M broad jumper; Jack Ludner, Wake Forest javelin and discus expert; Arkansas' shot putter, Gerald Henderson; Iowa's hurdler, James Milani; Oregon State former NYU track captain and half miler Bob Hartley and half miler from Georgia Tech, Dick Gillem.

Within the collegiate ranks, the men have rated near the top in their respective events. Brown, while at Syracuse, has tossed the discus over 150 feet the last year, representing the best Texas Aggie Watson, who also had a football reputation in the southwest, has broad jumped a respectable 24'11". Of particular note, Iowa men Owen, will come here with a 22-man squad.

Ft. Benning Slates 2 Baseball Loops

Fort Benning baseball will have a two-league 1958 season with initial action scheduled to begin the proceedings April 18 at Gowdy Field. American League play will consist of Infantry Center teams playing a single round robin, with action getting under way with the April opener, and will continue through May 21.

March 27-April 3 Post to Take Part In MPA Tournament

Fort Benning will participate in the Military Police Association International Golf Day March 27 to April 3. It will be the second year of participation by the post's military police in the annual event in support of local charities. The tournament is sponsored by the Military Police Association, provost marshals and other military police officers at military installations throughout the world.

Play for YAC units vying in both leagues will be the Infantry School Infantry Center Troop Command, 14th Infantry, 28th Infantry, 151st Infantry, 5th Medic and 88th Tank Battalion. In the initial American League competition scheduled for 8 p.m. April 18 will be the ITC versus the 88th Tank Battalion.

Contests are set in the league for each Monday, Wednesday and Friday with the "Play Ball" cry scheduled for 8 p.m. Sunday games are scheduled for 2 p.m. Play April 18. Following the opening contest in the approaching American League season, the 14th Infantry will get its season underway when it locks grips with the 88th Tank Battalion.

Women golfers participating in the contest this year, may add seven strokes to their club handicap (no added handicap under the Galloway System). Doug Ford, 1527 Champion of the Masters, will be the man that entrants in the 1958 MPA International Golf Day will have to beat.

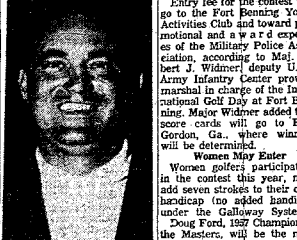

The Fort Benning contest will be played by units any day between March 27 and April 3 at the Fort Benning Country Club by club members and their dependents and at the Sand Hill golf course. Entry in the 16-hole event is accomplished by payment of an entry fee of $1.00 at the Country Club before playing.

Score cards will be turned in to the pro shop upon completion of the round and scores may play as many times as they wish but not after sundown April 3. Each score card calls for an additional fee.

A windproof cigarette lighter is the prize for the winner who who beat Ford using their club handicap or the Galloway System Automatic Handicap course where he plays April 3 and 4. The prize for the runner-up will be a pen and a pencil. The lighter is metallic green enamel with crossed pistol barrels and a target on the cover and on the other side the words, engraved "I Beat Doug Ford on 1958 MPA International Golf Day".

Benning to Open Spring Gobbler Season April 1. The Fort Benning spring gobbler hunting season will be held April 1. Fort Benning hunters will be permitted to hunt turkey gobblers in both the Alabama and Georgia regions during that period through cooperation received by the association. "We do have plans to hold a turkey gobbler hunt, however, to be in contention for the National Single Title this year," said Lt. John W. Blake, however, to be a team competition of Emory University players. They play the best collegiate handball in the country at Emory and should provide the Benning team with some good competition.

Charlie Quinn Festive Day Set April 10 by Assn.

Mark off April 10 as a day to be especially set aside—the day of the Fish and Game Maintenance Association's annual barbecue. All personnel at Fort Benning have been extended cordial invitations to the outing. We might add, too, that the day will prove interesting to all members of your families. The main dish of the barbecue will be chicken and the meal will be served at a cost of 50 cents a plate. Tickets should be readily available in all major commands and separate units.

A schedule of the major events planned is outlined as follows:

- 1 p.m.-2 p.m. — Fishing contest at Harp's and King's Ponds.
- 12:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m. — Skish contest at King's Pond.
- 2:45 p.m. — Award of fishing and skish tournament; prizes and drawing of attendance awards.
- 3 p.m.-4:30 p.m. — Barbecue at King's Pond Recreational Area.
- 5 p.m. until dark—Fish grab at Clear Creek Pond.

The fishing contest is open to all members of the Association and prizes are listed for:

- Largest bass—No. 300 Ocean City reel.
- Second largest bass—True Temper spinning rod.
- Third largest bass—Minnow bucket.
- Largest blue gill—No. 300 Ocean City reel.
- Second largest blue gill—True Temper spinning rod.
- Third largest blue gill—Minnow bucket.
- Largest shell cracker—South Bend spin reel.
- Second largest shell cracker—Pleasure Ice chest.
- Third largest shell cracker—Minnow bucket.
- Best string of bass—Zebco spin cast reel.
- Second best string—Umco tackle box.
- Third best string—Minnow bucket.
- Best string of blue gill—Mitchell cap reel.
- Second best string—Umco tackle box.
- Third best string—Minnow bucket.

Junior prizes are also slated and to the youngster who catches the largest fish of any species will go a Zebco spin cast reel and to the young angler who places second will take home a South Bend casting reel.

Prizes equivalent to those awarded in the fishing contest will go to nine place winners of the skish tournament in which three classes have been set up—bait casting, fly casting, and spin casting. In this tournament, Benning fishermen will show their skills in accurately placing their lures in plastic rings placed out in the water at varied angles and distances. It's quite a sport; a long-distance fly caster is really someone to see in action and his ability to place a fly in a floating mark 40 yards away is almost unbelievable.

Tickets are now available for attendance awards which include 30 valuable items. First place award is a 12-foot Feathercraft Boat with a seven-and-one-half horsepower Evinrude Outboard. Second place lists a No. 300 Mitchell spinning reel and 725L six-and-one-half foot True Temper spinning rod. Third is a No. 300 Ocean City Spinning Reel with a 257-7 foot Airex spinning rod and so on down the line. Be sure and pick up a ticket, or two.

If you can't make the tournaments or the barbecue, don't miss the fish grab! Clear Creek Pond is scheduled to be drained and Association members will be permitted to catch fish by hand. This operation. The fun for both participants and spectators alike—especially where there is plenty of mud and Clear Creek has its share! And . . . that's it for this week.

FISH GAME OFFICIALS . . . Shown is the board of directors, Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association, which met last week. Left to right: Lt. John H. Sutherland, O.I.C. Range & Guard Section; Major James P. Wells, executive officer, Infantry School Detachment; Col. Harry C. McClain, commanding officer, 54th Medical Group; Col. (ret.) Sam C. Allison, Col. Alfred C. Boatman, Inspector General, Infantry Center; Lt. Col. Gus W. Schlitzkus, Infantry Board; Maj. William S. Pye, Tactical Dept., The Infantry School; Capt. James L. Quinn, Adjutant General's Section, Third Division, and Major John Ollivohy, Headquarters Detachment, Lawson Army Airfield Command.

Company C Wins ISD's Volleyball Championship

Company C won the ISD volleyball championship last week when it defeated Company G in two games. Company C will advance to the Brigade playoffs and there will be matched against the winners of Group A and C next week.

ISD also announced that they will sponsor the Pony Baseball League of Fort Benning's Youth Activities Club this season. Lt. Col. Raymond O. Mariano, commanding officer, ISD, will act as baseball commissioner. He will be assisted by 2nd Lt. Eldon H. Matheson as league manager.

After almost six months of ISD league bowling, Company A goes into the final two weeks holding a slim three-and-one-half point lead over the Fourth Battalion. These two teams will meet in this coming week to decide the championship. The Fourth Student Battalion also must face Company B, ISD, on the final night of bowling. They hold a half-point lead over the ISD entry.

Rams Schedule First Baseball Game April 28

The curtain-raiser for the Infantry School baseball team takes place April 28 at Gowdy Field with the 88th Tank Battalion as their season opener. The rest of the team schedule calls for games with the 54th Medical Group on April 29; the 151st Engineer Group on May 2; First Battle Group, 28th Infantry, on May 7; the Second Battle Group, 14th Infantry, on May 12; and the final game against the USAIC Troop Command on May 18. According to Lt. George Galuska, SSO for The School Brigade, the Rams will field an aggregation of former university, college and professional players.

Company C Wins ISD's Volleyball Championship

Company C won the ISD volleyball championship last week when it defeated Company G in two games. Company C will advance to the Brigade playoffs and there will be matched against the winners of Group A and C next week.

Co. B Wins V'ball Crown In 29th Inf.

Company B clinched the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, volleyball championship with a two-set win over the 26th Scout Dog Platoon in the league finale last week.

Captain John Harper's aggregation averaged an early season loss to the Scout Dogs with a 11-0, 16-14 victory. The change concluded the regular campaign with an 11-1 record. Despite two setbacks in the last week of play, Company C retained second place in the league by edging them in a match which went three sets by scores of 7-5, 6-8 and 10-8. The Scout Dogs beat them 11-10, 13-15, and 15-5.

The 29th's two top teams are currently playing in the Infantry Center Invitational Volleyball Tournament at Brimley Field House, Company D, which finished fourth in the league, is entered in the event. Coach Harper will select a composite team to represent the battle group in the Infantry Center major unit volleyball tournament to be played April 1-3.

Lafayette Cager Enrolled In BIOC No. 8 at TSB

During his three years of varsity play, Lafayette had the highest scoring All-Americans, Ken Murray, and a basketball player who grew up to receive national recognition in his own right, is now a member of The School Brigade's Basic Infantry Officers Course number eight. The former high-scoring All-American from Lafayette College is assigned to the 1st Company, Second Student Battalion.

From his high school days, Lt. Murray has had the radar or fabulous distinction of playing in the shadow of his older brother, Ken Murray. The elder Murray, while playing with St. Bonaventure University, established himself as one of the basketball's most prolific scorers. He was one of the game's first stars to tally over 1,000 points in his college career.

After starring in baseball as well as basketball in high school, Lt. Murray entered Lafayette College where under the tutelage of coach James Van Breda, former New York State champion, he is entering his freshman year as the leading freshman scorer and moved into the varsity lineup midway through his next season.

29th Sends 25-Man Unit For Matches

A 25-man detail from the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, last week provided support for the National Mid-Winter Pistol matches in Tampa, Fla.

A headline in The Bayonet last week inadvertently stated that the 14th Infantry sent the support unit to the matches. The detail was headed by 1st Lt. John Hendricks, Company A, Sgt. Pleasner McCarver, Company C, was the non-commissioned officer-in-charge.

The U. S. Army and Third Army pistol teams, which have been training at Fort Benning, were entered in the matches. The nation's leading military, police, and civilian competitors participate annually.

'A Cool Fighter'

A Fort Benning boxer has been named as a candidate for the U. S. Army team which will compete for inter-service championship.

Pfc David Anderson, Company B, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, left March 22 at Fort Meade, Md. He is one of seven candidates from the Third Army area.

Booned Upset Anderson, a 156-pounder, was chosen after he scored a major upset in the finals of the light-middleweight crown. He fought as a member of the 24th Regiment.

Last January he spearheaded the School Troop Command team to the Fort Benning boxing championship, defeating Clayton Rice, 14th Infantry, in the USAIC finals.

The 29th southpaw claims that all his knockouts have been scored with his right hook.

Due for discharge next September, Anderson plans to acquire more experience in amateur circles before attempting a professional career.

Fort Benning placed third in the Third Army matches held at Fort Jackson, N.C. Defending champ Fort Campbell was lieutenant from a burning automobile March 18.

Last Tuesday about 8:15 p.m., Lt. James P. Johnson was pulled from a burning car on Lumpkin Road about one mile from Outpost No. 1. There was said to have been five or six people who helped rescue the officer. At present Fort Benning authorities have interviewed four known members of this group and are seeking the others.

It is requested that persons involved in the rescue of the lieutenant or persons having knowledge of such individuals, contact 1st Lt. Robert W. Hoerning, Adjutant General's Office, Infantry Center, by calling 2-1112 as soon as possible.

Pfc Anderson to Compete For Army Boxing Team

Aggressive Southpaw Anderson is an aggressive southpaw with a sharp counterpunch. The 19-year-old Norris-town, Pa. fighter has only five fights under his belt, six of them knockouts.

In the Third Army semi-finals, Anderson TKO'd his opponent in the third round. All of Anderson's fighting has been done in the two years he has been in the Army.

Fort Monmouth CG Visits Benning for 3-Day Meet

Major Gen. W. Preston Cordner, commanding general of Fort Monmouth, N.J., arrived at Fort Benning March 17 for a three-day conference dealing with the Department of the Army Officer Education and Training Review Board. He heads a board team composed of Col. Donald P. Christensen of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, and Lt. Col. Lee S. Stoneback of the Office of the Chief of Research and Development, all of the Department of the Army in Washington, D.C. One of the most significant Army boards in the past few years, the Officer Education and Training Review Board is studying the Army school system. Board teams are visiting the various service schools to work out changes and improvements if needed. The four visitors conferred with Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Infantry School commandant; Brig. Gen. Stanton L. Larsen, Infantry School assistant commandant, and Col. Norman B. Edwards, the school's director of instruction. Other education specialists at Fort Benning were called into certain sessions of the conference. The president of the board is Lt. Gen. Edward T. Williams, deputy commanding general of Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, Va.

Gen. Gundersman and his party were honored at an official luncheon March 18 in the Main Mess. Gen. Powell was host for the occasion.

The two-star visitor spoke to the Infantry School's officers communications class March 18.

Army Offers College Plan

WASHINGTON (APPS)—The Army is offering to pay for four years of college for soldiers who sign up for 12 years of service.

The program was started to give the Army a core of highly trained career specialists and non-commissioned officers. To be eligible, soldiers must be on active duty and must have completed one year of a two-year training hitch. They must finish their schooling before they reach 35.

The Army said the academic fields available may include business administration, bacteriology, cinematography, criminology, journalism, political science and many kinds of engineering.

Applicants must have graduated from an accredited high school or the equivalent. It is estimated that about 300 persons a year will enter the program.

Applications for the 1958 fall college term will be accepted up to May 1.

going basic officers training at Fort Benning. He is 2nd Lt. Robert E. Gundersman, assigned to the 21st Infantry School Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

L. Gundersman gained wide sports prominence at Franklin, N.J., High School, earning four letters each in football and basketball. Upon graduation in 1952, he was selected to the All-state team in both sports, and was also designated outstanding athlete of his high school class.

Sought by Schools—Sought after by many colleges and universities, Gundersman chose to continue his education at the University of Virginia. "Although I had more lucrative scholarship offers from several other schools, I chose Virginia after a thorough check," Gundersman said.

Displaying his basketball talents there for two years, Lt. Gundersman was a varsity starter his sophomore year, but gave up the sport to concentrate solely on football.

It was in 1952, on the Virginia Freedom football team that Gundersman was switched from tackle—his position throughout his college— to offensive end. It proved to be a good move as he went on to star at that position, gaining national recognition in his junior year when he was named national lineman-of-the-week by Associated Press. This honor was conferred on Gundersman for his outstanding play in Virginia's traditional game against Virginia Polytechnic institute, which also afforded him his biggest thrill in sports to date.

"It was hobbling around all week with water on the knee and finally submitted to favorable hospital treatment two days before the big VPI game, the stakes: "The Doc did a week's worth of work."

Went to Steelers—The Detroit Lions recognized Gundersman's superior football talent and immediately drafted him for their 1954 team. Coach Parker coached professional club. When Parker quit to coach the Pittsburgh Steelers, he took Gundersman along to help rebuild that organization.

Declared a free agent at the end of the season, Lt. Gundersman entered the Army in 1954. He has been in the best effort with seven pass receptions and several important tackles to his credit. His college efforts were rewarded when football his career.

Sgt. Mitchell Named Top Soldier in 29th Contest

Sgt. Buddy F. Mitchell won the title of outstanding soldier in the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry in military skills competition March 15.

The 29-year-old competitor from Heavy Mortar Battery... won the title of outstanding soldier in the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry in military skills competition March 15.

Harvey L. Wilson, Company B, was runner-up. Both men will be awarded trophies when group-type competition in the battle group concludes on April 5.

Sgt. Mitchell compiled a total of 125 points, nosing out Sgt. Wilson by a margin of 10. Sgt. Wilson by a margin of 10. Sgt. Wilson by a margin of 10.

John L. Ellison, Hq. Co., and Capt. James P. Kiehl, Company A, tied for third place with 110 points.

Margie of Victory PT championship of the 5th Field Artillery Group at Fort Bragg, N.C. His regards skip exercises as his best event. He can do 100 in two minutes.

An entryman for 10 years, Sgt. Mitchell rated the group grade throw as his highest event in the 29th trials.

Sgt. Wilson registered most of his points in military knowledge and appearance categories, finishing first in both.

Each company in the battle group entered two of its top soldiers in the individual events. The 29th Scout Dog Platoon entered one.

Group competitive events are slated for the next three weekends. Included will be squad and platoon drill, machine gun and mortar drill, a three-mile run, and group type.

Each unit of the battle group will enter a single team. The winning unit will receive the First Battle Group, 29th Infantry championship trophy, awarded semi-annually on a rotating basis.

Group Events... Capt. Warren P. Brown, director of the competition, said the events were being conducted to increase proficiency in military skills and to heighten esprit de corps.

2 Officers Fire Perfect Score on Battle Range

Two Army Reserve officers, attending The Infantry School, fired a perfect 200 points with a .0 caliber M1 rifle on the Simulated Battle Range, accomplishing a "first" in the history of the range.

A perfect shot is recorded only if the round hits in what is known as the "killing zone" of the target, the chest or head.

Following the fire and movement exercise the shooter must reload once, at a target with a 20-inch bull's-eye 500 yards distant.

This firing course is considered one of the most difficult ever developed at the Infantry School.

For Infantry Museum Class Suggests 100 Ways to Raise Funds

Over 100 ways to raise funds for the new Infantry Museum were suggested in a class on "creative problem solving" at Fort Benning.

The class, offered as a service of the Armed Forces Management Association, was conducted by Major Raymond A. Bayliss and the Fort Benning chapter of the association.

Group Attack... Speaking before officers and staff sections and major commands of the Infantry Center, Major Bayliss described the new system to be conceived and controlled group attack upon a problem for which no answer is readily apparent.

Under the rules, no member was permitted to interrupt or contradict another. As an idea was created, it would be offered by its originator for possible expansion by other members in turn.

After receiving the explanation of the method and the rules of panel procedure, the group considered the problem of "How to Raise Funds for the Infantry Museum."

No interruptions... Under the rules, no member was permitted to interrupt or contradict another.

The flying jeep has a low, flat chassis, with an operator's seat and passenger compartment. It is designed to be swept aloft by two rotors, one at the front and one at the rear.

The machine is intended to be flown close to the ground, but should be able to fly high enough to cross most of the mountainous regions of the United States.

Ground tests of the new craft's stability and thrust have been completed with a full-size, non-flying model.

National Pastime Around Corner

Baseball Soothsayers Pick Yanks, Braves Teams to Beat in '58 Race

(Editor's note: It's spring and baseball is just around the corner. Armed Forces Press Assn. has prepared a resume of best major league teams as shaping up for the coming season.)

When October, 1958, rolls around, the majority of baseball experts are looking for the Yankees and Braves to again meet in the battle for the world series championship.

However, none of them discount the possibility of their respective rivals catching fire and upsetting the early predictions. In other words, they look for an interesting pennant race in both leagues, and want to commit themselves to predicting exactly which way the baseball will bounce.

MILWAUKEE BRAVES
With a world's championship and some of the most rabid home-town rooters behind them, the Braves are definitely the team to beat for the National League title.

Strengthened in the pitching department by the acquisition of Bob Rush and Don Kuiser from the Cubs, the Milwaukee Braves should be stronger both in maturity and ability in 1958. Rookie hurlers Carpenter and Roy and they stay up from Wichita, will also bolster the pitching prospects. Al Spangler, service returns (Fort McPherson, Ga.), seems to be the answer to centerfielder Billy Brant's bad knee. There will be minor miseries, but Manager Fred Haney, who has won two league titles, is predicting exactly which way the baseball will bounce.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS
Freddie Hutchinson, named manager of the year by "Sporting News," has much the same Cardinal team for 1958. And no team that has the services of a man like Stan Musial can be counted out of the pennant fight.

Improved in both pitching and bench strength, the Cardinals jumped 19 games in the standings since 1955. The question is: Are they still on the "boom"? A lot will depend on the contributions of 28-year-old Mural and 25-year-old Alvin Dark.

NEW YORK YANKEES
The seemingly perennial American champion are once again installed in the favorite's role. Although picking a starting line-up of a Casey Stengel managed team is nearly an impossibility, the Yankee manager appears to have few real problems.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX
If the Chicago White Sox had won half of the games they lost in the eighth, ninth or overtime innings (27), the American League pennant would have been hanging over Comiskey Park for the first time in 40 years.

BALTIMORE ORIOLES
A notable Bird weakness last year was the lack of a long-hitter, and the addition of Larry Doby supplies some of the needed power. The Orioles need. Soutpaw Billy O'Dell may become a big winner and youngsters are being lined up to make the Baltimore picture an interesting one to watch.

BOSTON RED SOX
Needing left-handed pitching, Boston will be trying to fill this gap with Frank Baumann and Leo Kluwe. Returns from San Francisco, Haywood Sullivan may pry Sammy White away from the Red Sox. The Cleveland should not move back into the first division if a 29-game effort by Herb Score alone will do this. Add the newly acquired power of Mickey Vernon, plus a possible return for a keyposition to make the double play, and more sleepless nights are in prospect for the Yankee brass.

LOS ANGELES DODGERS
There is no question but that the loss of Roy Campanella will hurt the Dodgers badly. Since there were no trades made in the off-season, all of last year's headbashes plus the staggering Campanella blow will bear heavy on the shoulders of manager Walt Alton.

WASHINGTON SENATORS
The Senators are looking for great things from another Willie Kirtland in the last game. Willie No. 2, an outfielder; Paul Giel, another bright spot, is also a regular.

KANSAS CITY ATHLETICS
Tab the A's as likely to jump at the end of the season. The Yankees traded a fine prospect in Woody Held and Woody, along with Bill Tipton in a small, will improve K.C. defensively.

CHICAGO CUBS
Although the Cubs held their winter training to the swap of Bob Kline and the Kaiser to the Braves for Taylor Phillips and Sam Taylor, they filled a critical need by starting southpaw in getting Phillips. Better things can be expected of right-handed Moe Drabowsky and Dick Drott. The 22-year-old Drott, with a losing club, had an amazing 15-11 record last year.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES
Big Ted Kluszewski is the biggest "if" of the promising squad, aged only 25 with just four athletes out of their twenties. Hard-muscled rookie John B. Kennedy is to be trusted again and could be just what this squad needs. Add the batting prowess of Bob Skilling and Frank Thomas and the Pirates could cause a lot of commotion, particularly among the league's middle bracket teams.

DETROIT TIGERS
The Motor City outfit will make their big run for the Yankee this year, and it may happen. New faces like the Detroit landscape, and the zip and fire of Billy Martin could be the spark that would ignite the sluggish Tigers.

PHILADELPHIA PHILS
NYC's National League team this year, the Phillies are a serious contender for the opening hole at first base. Ed Bouchee, last year's solution to the years-long headache, probably will not be with the team. Likely, a pre-season trade will be made, and a likely candidate is Cincinnati with three experienced first sackers.

WASHINGTON SENATORS
The Senators are looking for great things from another Willie Kirtland in the last game. Willie No. 2, an outfielder; Paul Giel, another bright spot, is also a regular.

Group Demonstrates New Types Of Engr. Equipment to Symposium

Participating in the Association of the U. S. Army Symposium, "Battlefield Mobility," on March 24 to 26, the 151st Engineer Group (Combat Demos) demonstrated the newest types of engineer equipment designed to aid ground mobility. The 151st was responsible for the erection of the bridges and related engineering demonstrations on March 25 at the Victory Pond portion of the symposium.

Final sections of the newer types of military bridges were put in place for Department of Army and military personnel to observe while the processes were described by a narrator. The work, being done by the 151st Engineer Group (Combat Demos), included a M76 floating bridge and a 300-foot aluminum footbridge. When assembled, tanks, vehicles and personnel crossed them to prove their strength and capabilities.

With symposium volunteers aboard, two plastic and one pneumatic engineer assault boats, operated by members of the 586th, crossed the main portion of the pond and returned to the crowded beach area. A storm boat operation followed as the 151st Engineer Group demonstrated the newest types of engineer equipment designed to aid ground mobility.

New System First in Army NCO Instructor Group Included In Revamped Mortar Committee

Members of the Infantry School's Mortar Committee at Fort Benning believe that they have a first in the Army with a new system of instruction in techniques of fire and operation of the Infantry's 81mm and 4.2-inch mortars.

The Mortar Committee of the Weapons Department has been reorganized to include a Non-Commissioned Officer Instructor Group in addition to the three officer instructor sub-committees already existing.

This new system consists of using qualified senior NCOs, not as assistant instructors only but as instructors in their own right. The idea of an NCO instructor on a problem is not new at the school, but the concept of an NCO Instructor Group with duties of instruction, which include making lesson outlines and preparing training material, is considered "brand new."

Reasons for the new group are: to more effectively utilize the large reservoir of combat and training experience among the NCOs; to add instructor depth and continuity within the committee to offset sudden losses of experienced officer personnel; to lend prestige to the Non-Commissioned Officer Corps; to make maximum use of the training received by the NCOs who have attended the Infantry school instructor training course; to incorporate first hand knowledge and opinions of individuals closest to the mortars in school problems and training material; and to place the NCO in closer proximity to his reference material and give him more time for supervised rehearsal.

Under the new concept, which the NCO Instructor Group has the responsibility for, 15 mortar instructional problems are presented to a total of 264 instructors during hours during an average month. Although these instructors are assigned to different committees, each is capable of instructing in other phases of mortar training.

In addition to instructing and attendant instructor duties, they collaborate on many innovations to increase the standards of training. This is accomplished by using the committee and group systems.

As a typical case, a member of a committee has the idea to make a phase of training more efficient. Members of the group affected by the proposed change work on the idea until they feel that it is feasible. They then meet with members of other committees and present their plan. The entire group works out any further changes in the plan and when it is acceptable, the plan is forwarded to higher echelons for approval. If it is approved, the training group then draws up plans for the new or modified training methods and techniques.

Divided in Groups
The NCO's have been divided into three instructional groups paralleling the three parts of the indirect fire team. One group has mechanical training, another forward observation and the third fire direction center subgroup training.

There are three men assigned to each of the committees with Sgts. Charles L. Bryant, James H. Smith and Sfc. Robert Hotchkiss and Sfc. Bobby Powell, as his assistants.

The forward observer group is composed of Sgts. John W. Collins, who is in charge, Sfc. Robert Hotchkiss and Sfc. Bobby Powell, as his assistants.

Sgt. Edward M. Smith heads the fire direction center group, assisted by Sfc. Robert Otis and Sfc. Billy R. Lynn.

March 31-April 6 Ft. Benning to Observe Religious Emphasis Week

Religious Emphasis Week, to be conducted by the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, will be held at Fort Benning March 31 through April 6. Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Fort Benning commander, has asked full participation in religious activities during the special period.

Gen. Powell's message said: "In an effort to promote spiritual growth, you can do your part by attending services, bringing someone with you, persuading someone to attend and by announcing the time and place of services at all formations. Also, you can assist by providing necessary transportation for your personnel to attend these services."

4. "The theme of the week is 'God is Our Strength.' Let us demonstrate our faith in this theme by our wholehearted support."

2. "The Chaplains at Fort Benning have arranged for a full week of special religious services. These services will be held at the following times:

Cadets to Get Orientation Tour of Post

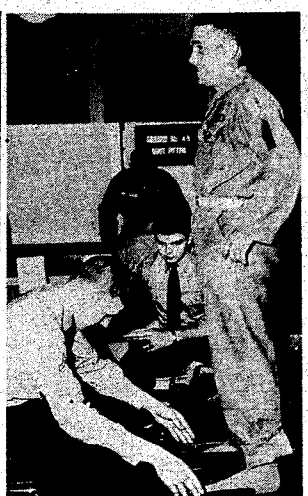

Some 100 cadets from three southern colleges and universities will be guests of the Infantry Center today and tomorrow while on a Reserve Officers Training Corps orientation tour of the post.

Arriving today will be 33 cadets from Mercer University at Macon, Ga. Ninety cadets from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, and 58 from Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, will arrive Friday.

The tour of the post will begin Friday at 8:30 a.m. with an orientation in Walker Hall in the Infantry School.

Following the orientation the cadets will observe maneuvers in the Infantry School Dog Platoon at Bolling Field. From 10:30 a.m. until noon they will be guests of the Third Army Food Service School where they will see the latest developments in Army cooking methods.

After lunch the group is scheduled to be briefed on infantry school Ranger activities. This will be followed by a tour of and orientation on the school's Albatross training towers. The cadets also will be given the opportunity to take a ride in a buddy seat, a simulated parachute jump from one of the 250-foot training towers.

IF SHOE FITS, WEAR IT . . . Sfc Roy Byrd, First Battle Group, 29th Infantry, has his feet measured for the upcoming test at Fort Benning to select the new Army combat boot. Pfc Marvin A. Kuhn, left, checks the size while Pfc David Hudob records the data. Kuhn and Hudob are quartermaster personnel from Fort Lee, Va.

DA Cites Regulations On Elasticity

Enlisted men have been warned against Department of Army that fabricating and wearing of the Army Green uniform made of elastic material is unauthorized on an Army Green uniform fabricating officers only.

Department of Army cited Circular 67-24, dated Feb. 26, 1954, in connection with wearing of the elastic uniform.

Information received in Headquarters, Department of Army indicates that enlisted sergeants, Army Green elastic material is authorized on an Army Green uniform fabricating officers only.

Commanders will insure that all Army personnel comply with the provisions of paragraphs 31 and 42, AR 670-670-2.

Firing Delayed For Vanguard I By Space Traffic

CAPES CANEVERAL, Fla. (APFS) — The Navy's Vanguard I satellite was launched 10 minutes of schedule to keep the heavens from becoming overcrowded.

The delay allowed the Army's Explorer I satellite to complete a passage overhead in its orbit.

Explorer's radio would have interfered with transmission from the Vanguard, and would have made the Vanguard difficult to track, it was explained.

GRAND FINALS SET FOR BELLVOUE (ANS) — The Army has just announced that the Grand Finals in the All-Army Entertainment Contest will be held here on June 18-19 this year. This is the first time the Grand Finals have ever been held in the Washington Area. Approximately 200 contestants coming from every major command are expected to participate.

Can you change a dollar bill into four quarters?
 Sure thing, Phineas.
 Can you change four quarters into twenty nickels?
 I reckon so.

Could you give me four quarters for twenty nickels?
 I can make it.

Would you have a dollar bill for four quarters?
 Yup.

What's goin' on, Phin? All week long you've been changing that buck into quarters, then nickels, and from nickels to quarters, and then back to a buck again. What are you tryin' to prove?
 One of these days somebody is gonna make a mistake...

...and it ain't gonna be me!

"Honorable Shady, sir," said J. Paul's First Sergeant, "pardon me for saying this sir, but your appearance looks fowl. Why not quack down on this shaggy hair with some Wildroot Cream-Oil?" So J. Paul washed down on the 2 X, and poked up a bottle. Now he's the sharpest duck in the battalion because his hair looks handsome and healthy, without a trace of grease. So if people are giving you the bird, better duck out for some Wildroot Cream-Oil... either a bottle or handy tube.

CUTTING CORNERS

by Barbara Sue Richards

With the war, manufacturers are constantly bringing out new electrical appliances, even the only thing the housewife will have around the house that isn't electrified for efficiency will be her husband and children.

The trouble is, though, that ninety percent of the homes and apartments aren't properly wired to handle all these modern appliances. This not only cuts down on the working power of the electrical equipment but can also be dangerous. Many a fire has started from an overloaded line.

You may be one of those suffering from insufficient wiring without being conscious of it. Here are a few signs that are proof of its lights dim when appliances are in use; television reception is bad when other electrical equipment is operating; fuses blow frequently; toasters, iron and other heating appliances are slow to warm up; "octopus" outlets are scattered all over the house; extension cords must be used to connect lamps and appliances or one appliance must be disconnected in order to connect another.

If any of these symptoms of insufficient wiring are familiar, the smart thing to do is to call in a good electrician immediately.

Lovers of the war-drama will find Hjalmar Hantelbeck's new novel, "Selling With A Gun," stimulating reading. It's a two-acted story about a rugged individualist whose love of freedom cannot be blotted out. The description of the hero's battle for survival in an Alaskan blizzard, while in the service, is a literary gem. (Pageant Press, Inc. $3.00)

DOTS AND FLASHES

There's good news in the wind. The Department of Defense, when it's not busy supporting President Eisenhower's submission to the Congress of a new military pay plan that is of vital importance to our national security and to every military man and his family, this proposed plan will mean new and substantial rewards for thousands of talented men, warrant officers, and officers.

The object of this is to encourage men and women in uniform to remain in service and put a stop to the excessive turnover of skilled military manpower.

There has been much discussion of late concerning fantastic weapons progress. But the important fact to remember is that new weapons will be of little avail against the great threat we face unless the U.S. Armed Forces are manned by skilled technicians and leaders.

The potential impact of the pay legislation on the combat effectiveness of the Armed Forces is pointed up by the fact that the bill, as sent to the Capitol, would provide increases for 7 out of every 10 persons on active duty. The Department of Defense's $518,000,000 military pay bill provides for a minimum 6% increase for every person who has served at least two years on active duty. All personnel with more than two years' service would be entitled to pay under the new pay scale or to their present pay plus 5%, whichever is greater.

The new plan provides strong incentives for every person in uniform to strive for greater. And most important of all, the new pay legislation is a big part of the answer to the massive numerical superiority of Communist military forces. This threat must be met by a maximum combat readiness of dedicated and skilled career men and women in all our services.

Patient's Letter Praises Physical Therapy Program at Post Hospital

The Army's physical therapy program has been commended by a patient at Fort McChellan, Ala., who spent eight months as a patient at the U.S. Army Hospital at Fort Benning.

Back on her job now as a member of the Information Section at the Women's Army Corps Center, SFC Marian E. Jones was in the Fort Benning Hospital from June, 1957, to February, 1958. The extent of her injury was such to require a spinal fusion followed by extensive physical therapy.

Deeply impressed with the therapy, she wrote a comprehensive study of the treatment, the only way she felt she could thank the hospital staff for its help.

It is as follows:

"The abbreviation PT to an old Army man immediately brings to mind the 'daddy doctor' he did during his physical training periods in basic. 'Since World War II PT has become something else in the minds of service personnel injured in line of duty—a help along in the return to an active life as their injury permits.

"This hospital PT, as opposed to the basic training PT, is physical therapy. Physical training develops the muscles of the new soldier and continues to keep him in top shape throughout his stay in U.S. Army. Comes the time when that soldier is hampered by physical injury, then physical therapy enters the picture.

"A fractured arm, leg, back or a polo or multiple shrapnel wounds are all helped through the Army's physical therapy program. The 'daily doctor' is replaced with a treatment program of exercise under the prescription of a doctor to suit the needs of the patient. Patients soon learn to speak of exercising their hand-strings, quads or static abdominals, straight-leg raising and others, depending on the part of the body afflicted. In the case of an arm or leg they also learn to use the terms flexion and extension. The physical therapist gains through the work indicated to the doctor, and the patient soon learns how much he has progressed.

"Various types of treatments—heat, water, light, electricity and massage, are used by the physical therapists in their treatment. Submerged in water the patient is no longer restricted by the pull of gravity and is able to do exercises he could not do otherwise. Muscles which have grown stiff and sore through long periods of casting may be relieved of pain and helped to gain mobility through the various heat and cold treatments. Don't Bug Out on Flag

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—Don't "Bug Out" on the flag, Master Specialist Herbert R. Reimers urges United States soldiers everywhere.

In an article told to James C.V.D. Brown and appearing in the April issue of ARMY (the magazine of the Association of the United States Army), M-Sp Reimers relates the true story of a Philippines-reared U.S. soldier who watched an enemy tear Old Glory from his map, tramp on it, spit on it, and trample it into the ground.

"He cried," Specialist Reimers said. "He cried as he had never cried before on seeing this happen to the sacred symbol of what he was convinced was the greatest country in the world because freedom and liberty were its watchwords."

Describing this soldier's feeling of patriotism, the author explained that to him the American flag was a symbol which a man feels deeply within himself but cannot express without tears coming to his eyes and his voice breaking. He added that the things a soldier cannot say, he can display by paying proper respect to the flag.

"So stop that car," Reimers concludes. "Get out and salute. Don't bug out on your country's flag. Stand out proudly under a free sky and salute your flag, honor its broad stripes and bright stars, the stars of a constellation of freedom!"

Successors of Bullets

If you were in combat with a fully loaded gun in your hand and saw the enemy would you do it? You'd act of course. If you didn't you'd risk not only your safety but that of your buddies.

The same applies in casting your absentee ballot. The citizen who fails to use his vote is like the serviceman who fails to use his weapons—each risks the safety and the welfare of the nation.

Three out of every four men and women in the Armed Forces today are of voting age. As citizens in uniform they should realize that other citizens have the responsibility of Americans to defend the nation's democratic institutions with votes just as quickly as they would by force of arms.

Abraham Lincoln put it this way: "Ballots are the rightful and peaceful successors of bullets." (AFPS)

Soviet Objective Cited

NEW YORK, N. Y. (ANS)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, said here recently that there is evidence that a primary Soviet objective is the development of overpowering military strength for the purpose of imposing Communistic policies on other nations of the world.

"For the accomplishment of this objective they appear willing to expend virtually unlimited effort," he told delegates to a legal convention at a leading hotel here.

Citing examples of vast Soviet resources expended in improving military forces, General Taylor said, "Its Army, since World War II, has been completely re-equipped with all types of modern weapons of the so-called conventional type. It has a new line of tanks, of field artillery, of motor transportation—all developed and produced after World War II."

The Soviet Navy, he continued, which at the end of World War II was a rather insignificant force, has developed a formidable underwater fleet now estimated at 500 submarines in contrast with this figure, the largest number of operational submarines which Germany ever had in World War II amounted to about 240.

"In recent years," the general added, "the Soviets have begun the development of a long-range bomber force, thus for the first time in history making possible air attack upon the continental United States. "When ascertaining that in the technological field of ultramodern weapons and satellites the Soviets seem to have expended great efforts, he said: "We have observed their feverish activity in the missile field, both surface-to-surface and surface-to-air. We are sure that they have integrated missiles into their ground and air forces in the role both of surface artillery and anti-aircraft artillery."

Chaplain's Corner

"Let your light so shine before men that they may glorify your Father which is in heaven." Matthew 5:16.

All of us as Christians represent the Church are teachers whenever we are involved in a formal classroom experience or not. Our Lord said it so clearly: "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is hid on a hill cannot be hid."

Yet, we tend to forget this and allow as much unillumination as we place by those with whom we are associated daily. The teacher who comes to class with little or no preparation is saying to his pupils, "I care not for Christian nurture, but not too much."

The parent who sends rarely to his child to Church, and Church School is showing that he also cares about the spiritual growth of his child, but, also, not too much. He is saying essentially by his example that the Christian education has meaning and strength for a child's mind and heart only rather than meaning that can best be understood by an adult mind and heart. It is his duty to lead that "A purveyor takes life, but his deed stops there. A teacher affects eternity for he works by his influence stops." And so it is with Christian teaching. Ours that is "teaching" should be positive! This season of Lent is a good time for us "teachers" to take stock of "teaching" by asking ourselves the following questions:

1. How strong is our witness (teaching - negative or positive)?
2. How great is our charity?
3. How fervent is our zeal? and by continuing our prayers for Religious Education.

"Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, who has committed to Thy Holy Church the care and nurture of children; Enlighten with Thy wisdom those who are entrusted to the care of Thy Church, and Thy Church School is showing that he also cares about the spiritual growth of his child, but, also, not too much. He is saying essentially by his example that the Christian education has meaning and strength for a child's mind and heart only rather than meaning that can best be understood by an adult mind and heart. It is his duty to lead that "A purveyor takes life, but his deed stops there. A teacher affects eternity for he works by his influence stops." And so it is with Christian teaching. Ours that is "teaching" should be positive! This season of Lent is a good time for us "teachers" to take stock of "teaching" by asking ourselves the following questions:

The Judge Says...

Recently I received a letter from an old friend asking about a problem that I thought might be interesting to everyone. It is of some common experience that I thought I would just "share you the letter."

The other day I was driving home from work when some idiot right in front of me pulled off the side of the road into my lane. I honked my horn. He was just going a little bit over the speed limit and I couldn't stop in time. I rained him out and did some damage to his car and mine too. But the worst of it was one of my car riders hit a broken leg and cut on the face. I was worried about because my insurance covered me for a whole lot of liability.

I am being sued now by the driver of the other car and also by the passenger in my car because of the accident. My insurance company says and "I don't want any claims because I was hauling people back and forth from work. Can they do this to me?"

This letter is typical of a condition that exists in the case of a great majority of persons who work not only at this installation, but in almost all places of employment. There are great numbers of people work, arrangements for transportation are common and are being made. There are two normal types of "carpools." One type consists of several people, each owning a vehicle and each contributing the use of his or her car during the work week on an equal basis. The other common type is where one person owning a vehicle furnishes transportation for one or more passengers for a nominal fee. This fee usually big enough to offset operating expenses only.

The question of whether normal liability insurance covers carpool activities tends to vary with the individual liability companies. A general rule may be stated, however, that the carpooler who does not necessarily apply, however, in the case of a carpool where the car is charged to the carpooler, such cases the facts in the individual case would determine whether such a car is being used as a public or livery conveyance. If a determination is made in a court of law that a carpool vehicle is being used as a public or livery conveyance, and most insurance policies are considered as voided. I want I thought I would just "share you the letter."

Dear Judge:
The other day I was driving home from work when some idiot right in front of me pulled off the side of the road into my lane. I honked my horn. He was just going a little bit over the speed limit and I couldn't stop in time. I rained him out and did some damage to his car and mine too. But the worst of it was one of my car riders hit a broken leg and cut on the face. I was worried about because my insurance covered me for a whole lot of liability.

I am being sued now by the driver of the other car and also by the passenger in my car because of the accident. My insurance company says and "I don't want any claims because I was hauling people back and forth from work. Can they do this to me?"

At the Fort Benning Army Hospital, a staff of five female registered physical therapists—members of the Army Medical Specialist Corps—and five male assistants—trained in the Army's Physical Therapy School at Brooks Army Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, treat an average of 100 patients per day. The total cost not only includes the soldiers at the Infantry Center and other nearby posts, but also includes the dependents as well.

There is a large percentage of patients in this maze of wooden buildings, which comprises the continental area of the hospital, are kept in the physical therapy staff, under the capable direction of Lt. Col. Robert A. Brink, who works closely with the chief of orthopedics, Col. Edward Hakala, and the chief of physical therapy, Capt. James B. Brink, who note any changes to be made in the therapy treatment.

One of the charges that is most limited duty. They are being used more extensively in service hospitals than in civilian hospitals. It also means a longer and more costly hospitalization, since, when possible, a civilian hospital will care for a patient who is casted.

Boatner Book Explains Army Custom, Tradition

WASHINGTON, (ANS)—How many career soldiers or officers know who had Army's first lieutenant general outranks a major general?

The answers to these and many other interesting questions on "Military Antiquities" are in a book titled "Military Customs and Traditions" by Major Mark M. Boatner III.

According to the book, the first serial number for officers ("O") was assigned to General John J. Pershing and for enlisted men "sergeant" ("S") was assigned to Arthur B. Cream, an Army major.

OVER THE AIR

Radio-TV-wise, this is perhaps one of the busiest weeks of the year in quite some time. This coming Sunday, Easter, there is a special program we'd like to call your attention to—Radio Station WRLB in Columbus will conduct its traditional broadcast of the Easter Sunrise Service direct from Doughboy Stadium. The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. If you're unable to attend the service in person, be sure and listen to the broadcast, which is a real "Spotlight" story of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

This week's "Queen of Battle" will be broadcast on WRLB, at 8:15 p.m. Saturday. Other Fort Benning radio programs to be broadcast this week include "Benning Bandstand"—making its two appearances this weekend on Sunday at 5:45 p.m. over WPXN, Phenix City, and WGBA in Columbus Saturday, 12:15 a.m. For a daily return of happenings at the Infantry Center Chapel Choir, this impressive religious program will be held with words and music the story of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

On The Bookshelf

TIME OF FEAR by Roderick MacLeish. (Wiking, 1957). This chronicle of the German Navy during World War II "commemorates the sea battles and fights, in victory and defeat, the ships and their commanders."

Major Boatner claims a lieutenant general ranks a major general because when Cromwell's "New Model Army" was raised in 1645, it was commanded by Captain General Sir Thomas Fairfax, the cavalry (the senior service) was commanded by Lieutenant General Oliver Cromwell and the infantry was under Sergeant Major General Skipton. That is why a lieutenant general ranks a major general.

"The rank we now call 'sergeant' was originally 'sergeant major.' Other interesting tidbits of information about the U. S. Army include why there is no 'Army' and the reason Edvard Allan Poe was dismissed from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Army Revising ROTC Program For Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army has established a new policy of short active duty tours for most ROTC graduates specializing in certain scientific fields.
 ROTC students majoring in chemistry, geology, geophysics, mathematics, microbiology, parasitology, pharmacology, physics, physiology and engineering, when not needed to fill branch quotas, will be ordered only to six-month tours of training, unless they prefer to serve for two years.
 Previously these graduates were not given preferential consideration in selection for the shorter active duty tour. The Army emphasized, however, that a limited number of science majors will be called for two years.
 The policy, which will apply to ROTC students commissioned between May 1, 1958, and April 30, 1959, is being put into effect to relieve critical needs for specialists in these fields in the civilian economy.

Set April 13 Art Show to Include Ceramics, Flowers

The Woman's Club annual Art Show, scheduled April 13 from 3 to 6 p. m. at the Fort Benning Country Club, will include the work of three groups for the first time.
 These groups are the art group, ceramics and flower arrangement classes.
 The art group consists of the adult and children's art classes. The adult class, composed of members of the Woman's Club, the majority of whom has had no previous art training, has created, under the direction of Thomas Doyle, a variety of compositions. Working in charcoal, pastels and oils throughout the year on still life studies, portrait and landscape, members have shown an avid interest and enthusiasm in their work, officials said.
 The children's art class has been busy throughout the year creating realistic still life compositions in charcoal and pastel, as well as abstracts in which their imaginations and sense of color have had full play.
 Figure drawing and modeling in colored clay captured their interest. Lt. John Pitarski teaches this class of 20 enthusiastic youngsters ranging from 8 to 13 years of age.
 Mrs. Rhett Taber is chairman of the art group; Mrs. Gordon Sayre is co-chairman. Officers and members of their families are also entering their paintings and drawings in the Art Show. However, the work of the art group will be judged in a separate category from non-members. It is important that non-members telephone Mrs. Taber at 3-5268 or Mrs. Sayre at 2-9128 before April 10.
 Entries must be delivered to the Country Club between 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. the day before the show.
 Edward Shorter, Mrs. Jack

Passalunghi and Mrs. Murphy Pound, all of Columbus, Ga., will judge the paintings and drawings.
 All ceramics on display will be the work of the ceramic group under the direction of Mrs. Glenn West. This is the first year such a group has been sponsored by the Woman's Club and should be particularly interesting since all exhibitors were created by women with no previous training in ceramics.
 On display will be examples of their first lesson, such as the Pennsylvania Dutch plates, executed in colored underglazes. More recent efforts will display their use of sgraffio, glazing and hand modeling.
 The ceramic judge will be Mrs. Samuel Allison, local seamstress and teacher.
 E. B. Mason is chairman and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby of Columbus and Auburn, Ala., is instructor and co-chairman of the flower arrangement course.
 Mrs. Frisby gave instruction in the use of dried materials in the fall workshops, and in the use of dried and other artificial materials, as well as fresh, for use in Christmas decorations.
 The spring workshops covered the garth curve, the triangle and the vertical methods of arrangement, and the use of artificial flowers and greenery which have become so popular.
 A flower show was held in January, at which time ribbons were awarded. Mrs. Herbert Powell, wife of the commanding general of Fort Benning, will be judged in the flower works at a meeting in February.

Social Notes Kitchen Shower Marks Ground Mobility Affair

The monthly luncheon of the ladies of The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department was held at the Main Officers' Mess March 29.
 Co-hostesses for the event were Mrs. W. F. Stabb and Mrs. D. T. Williams. The luncheon table was decorated with snapdragons in pastel shades and pale pink, accented in silver holders.
 Farewells were made to Mrs. Norman B. Edwards and Miss Arlene D. Edwards. They were presented traditional silver, engraved trays. Col. Edwards has received a new assignment on the post. Welcomed to the group was Mrs. John Pavick, whose husband, Col. John Pavick is the new director of the Ground Mobility Department.
 Highlight of the afternoon was a surprise kitchen shower for Mrs. Edwards, whose engagement to Lt. David C. Millard recently has been announced.

LAAC Starts EM Birthday Celebrations

Believing that the "Bachelor Soldier" is slighted on his birthday, Lawson Army Airfield Command has initiated a monthly birthday celebration for on-post personnel.

A list of all EM's whose birthdays fall in the same month is prepared and a party honoring the entire group is held in the Lawson Field Mess. The first party of this type was held March 19 with Col. William H. Billings, commanding officer of Lawson Army Airfield Command, giving the honor of cutting the cake which was a special creation for Pic's James Attaway, Joseph Quinn, Robert Smith, James Newwood, Neil Parcell, Richard Weversberg, Paul Reppening, Richard Virsik, Bobby Hutto and Carl Brandenburg; Sgts John Merri-man, Louis Engel, Dwight Shoby, Delbert Frieze, Edward Gibson, Charles Smith, Ronald Denton, Waymon Dyson, J. Meiden, Roy Edmund and Myron Smothers; Sgts. Kenneth Lair, David Hood and Freddie Stone.

WO Raymond C. Barr, Mess Officer, and M-Sgt. Patrick Samples supervised and planned the festive occasion. The delicious and attractive birthday cake was created and baked by the dough hands of Pfc George Dodds.

Sgt. Dodges 2nd Draft

BAMBERG, Germany — While the efficiency of the Army has never been questioned, a sergeant in the 10th Inf Div 25th Inf has had reason for some doubts about the efficiency of his hometown draft board.

St. Bruce A. Russell, a career soldier with eight years of active service, has been "drafted" twice since he began his Army career in 1948. He has been written up selective board in Cleveland, Ohio, that I'm already in the Army and have to serve for the last eight years," says a perplexed Russell, "but it doesn't do any good."

Army Uses Gas To Kill Germs

WASHINGTON (APPS)—Army Chemical Corps scientists have a germ-killing gas which could be used in defense against biological warfare.

Dr. Phillips said the gas also could be used to sterilize hospitals. The Chemical Corps started work in this field during WWII "when the possibility of biological warfare had to be considered," he explained.

TO OPEN SEASON

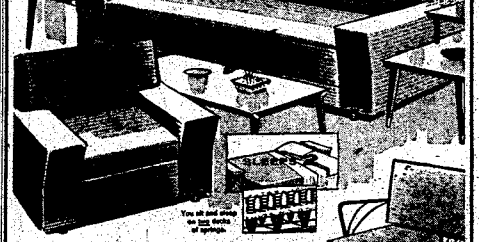

The Infantry Center Troop Command will open the 1958 baseball season April 16 at 8 p.m. against the 268th Tank Battalion in a regimental tilt.

P-TA to Hear Lt. Col. Hill On April 8

The future school program will be discussed by Lt. Col. Richard F. Hill, president of the Post Dependents School Council, at the April 8 meeting of the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association.

The session will begin at 8 p.m. in Faith School Auditorium. A highlight of the evening will be a science display in the auditorium which features an exhibit from the eighth grade annual Science Fair.

The fair is under the direction of Mrs. Ardath Carmichael, science instructor in the Fort Benning Children's Schools. Following the presentation of life memberships in P-TA, the school's choruses will present a musical program.

A 60-voice group composed of fifth and sixth grade students will sing "The Vision of Columbus" and "Chippewas." The seventh and eighth grade chorus consisting of 49 members will render "The Green Cathedral." This is My Country and "Oh! What a Beautiful Morning."

The groups will join in singing "Oklahoma." Emile E. Watson Jr., is the director of the choruses and Miss Martha Hoskins will provide the piano accompaniment.

A social hour will conclude the meeting. Winners of three-dollar attendance prize for the last meeting have been announced by Col. William E. Ekman, P-TA president.

They are Miss Olivia Evans; third grade, Main Post School; Miss Myrna Brown's second grade, Custer Terrace School; Mrs. Cynthia Gross' fourth grade, Faith School; Miss Arlene Burbank's sixth grade, Faith School; and Miss Margaret Smith's fifth grade through eight.

Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, (C, Fort Benning and Fort Snelling, Minn. He was again selected for staff duty in 1940 and served with headquarters of the V Corps area, Fort Sill, Okla., and the U. S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Aug. 21, 1946.

He will leave Fort Benning April 10 to replace Lt. Gen. Ridgely Gaither as deputy commanding general for Reserve Components, Continental Army Command.

Gen. Powell was recently recommended for promotion to lieutenant general.

Before coming to Fort Benning the general served as commanding general, headquarters of the U. S. Army Pacific following an assignment as commanding general of the famous 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii.

Gen. Powell, born July 13, 1905, in Monmouth, Ore., a city which his grandparents helped establish in 1851, began his outstanding military career after his graduation from the University of Oregon in 1926, when he was commissioned a second lieutenant, Infantry, in the Officers Reserve Corps.

Article Draws New Attention To Infantry

Gen. Powell's decision upon a military career was greatly influenced by the fact that members of his family have served with distinction in every war since the Revolution. His great-grandfather served as a major in the War of 1812.

As a result of competitive examination, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Infantry, Regular Army, shortly after his graduation. He then served normal junior officer assignments with the Seventh Infantry Regiment at Vauxhall Barracks, Wash., and the 28th Infantry Regiment at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. He was designated by the chief of Infantry to attend the Infantry School at Fort Benning, graduating in 1932.

Until July, 1939, Gen. Powell served with the 30th Infantry Regiment and Sixth Infantry Brigade at Fort Douglas, Utah, the 15th Infantry Brigade at Boston, Mass., the 22nd Infantry Brigade in Hawaii and the 10th Infantry Brigade at Fort Meade, Md.

Late in 1939, he was ordered to duty with the Sixth Infantry Division where he served in various command and staff assignments at Fort Jackson, S.

An article in the April issue of Army Information Digest, written by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell, Fort Benning commanding general, has been inserted into the Congressional Record and has drawn editorial comment in the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

The article, entitled "The Infantryman in the Atomic Age," reminded that in times when space weapons and potentials of nuclear warfare are being stressed, it is only the foot soldier who can seize and hold ground.

Gen. Powell's article was inserted into the Congressional Record by Rep. Martin (R-Penn.)

Memphis Commercial Appeal said in part: "Nation bemused by satellites, space weapons and potentials of nuclear warfare appears to have forgotten that foot soldier has more important role today than ever before in history. We are reminded of this by well-written hard-hitting article by Major Gen. Herbert B. Powell in April issue of Army Digest."

staff with the G-3 (Plans and Operations) Section. He was assigned to headquarters of Army Ground Forces, now U. S. Continental Army Command.

In 1943 Gen. Powell became chief of staff of the 78th Infantry Division, serving with the division throughout its combat training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and accompanying the division overseas in November, 1944. He participated in campaigns in the Ardennes, Rhineland, Central Europe and the "Admiral Pocket." For this outstanding service he was awarded the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with an Oak Leaf Cluster and the Army Commendation Ribbon.

European Duty.

In February, 1945, Gen. Powell was appointed deputy 1 (personnel officer) of First Army in Mainz, Germany. He was designated chief of the Redeployment Coordinating Group in the European theater.

In 1946, Gen. Powell served successively as assistant chief of staff, G-2 (intelligence officer) and assistant chief of staff, G-1 (Second Army at Fort Meade) for approximately a year before attending the National War College in 1948. Upon his graduation, the general became commander of the 17th Infantry Regiment of the Seventh Infantry Division in Japan.

In September, 1950, following the outbreak of Korean hostilities, Gen. Powell moved into combat with his regiment. The 17th Infantry spearheaded the advance of the United Nations' forces in the drive to the Manchuria border. This famous Infantry regiment was the only U. S. unit to reach the Yalu River. For his outstanding valor during this campaign, Gen. Powell was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. He was later named chief of staff of the Seventh Infantry Division, and served in this capacity until May, 1951.

In addition to the Distinguished Service Cross, he was awarded the Silver Star, an Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit, a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal, the Air Medal, Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's Badge for his service in Korea.

Gen. Powell Known As 'Soldier General'

In August, 1956, the world famous Infantry Center welcomed a new commanding general, a quiet, modest major general named Herbert Butler Powell.

Personnel then stationed at Fort Benning who had served with Gen. Powell before, knew what to expect from the newest successor in the long line of outstanding officers who have served as commander of Fort Benning and commandant of the Infantry School.

Those who had not served with him before soon came to know the policies which had given this lanky Oregonian an army-wide reputation of being a "soldier's general."

Devoted to Infantry

Gen. Powell brought to Fort Benning a devotion to the Infantry, a determination that the Infantry School would continue to provide the type of instruction which had given it a world-wide reputation, and a deep interest in the personnel, life and little of Fort Benning.

Recently nominated for promotion to lieutenant general, he will leave Fort Benning April 10 for his new job as deputy commanding general for Reserve Components, Continental Army Command.

When General Powell leaves, personnel of Fort Benning will not be the only ones to feel the loss of his leadership. Residents of Columbus and Phenix City will join the military population of this area in regret of his departure, but it is in the best wishes for his continuing successes in the Army wherever his future assignments may take him.
