The inimitable Danny Kaye, with his long-time accompanist, Sammy Fraeger, opened the new USO Pacific Hospital Circuit. Entertained were servicemen in hospitals in Japan, Okinawa, Guam, Philippines and Hawaii.

George Montgomery, popu-

and Elaine May is his next wife. "Luv" is a hilarious spoof on life and love — "Luv" is a bizarre comedy of manners (or errors) and tells of the attempts of a bright schemer to palm off his wife on an old college classmate, Jack Lemmon, in order to be free to marry another girl. Running time: 85 minutes.

THE APALLOOSA — Mar Fletcher (Marlon Brando) is wanted for the slaying of the man who violated his Indian wife, but is able to escape on a magnificent Apalooza stallion.

Tired from running, he is hijacked a shipload of gold bullion and is trying to arrange to smuggle it into Italy.

Matt faces up to Chuy in a fight to the death. Chuy and left to die from poisonous scorpion bites.

Chuy's woman "Trini" (Anjanette Comer) rescues Matt and helps him to recover. When Matt returns to Concan with Trini at his side to recover the Apalooza, Matt and Chuy face each other in a blazing gun battle with the Apalooza as the prize.

A return engagement. Running time: 89 minutes.

AFTER THE FOX — In prison, "The Fox" (Peter Sellers) learns that arch criminal Akim Tamiroff has hijacked a shipload of gold bullion and is trying to arrange to smuggle it into Italy.

This gives him an idea and he contacts Tamiroff who agrees to a split of the gold bullion if "The Fox" can get the loot into Italy.

Posing as a famous Italian film director, Sellers gets a police permit to take a movie in an old fishing village. The villagers, believing they were hired as movie extras, unload the gold bullion.

Some next morning the village is besieged by local police, Rome police and Interpol, which in turn leads to a wild chase.

New Vietnam War Novel Could Make Good Movie

By 1st Lt. Mary Wolf "A-18" By Thomas Taylor, Crown Publishers, New York.

1967. 276 pages. $5.95. A spoonful of sugar, the song goes, helps the medicine go down. And so it is with "A-18," Tom Taylor's first literary offering.

The sugar, enticingly displayed in the jacket design as "Special Forces Strike into Vietnam," is calculated to get the military or civilian reader interested in the book around such a strike.

But the real message of this book is a scathing indictment of the Army, its officers corps and its state of readiness.

The author sets the stage in his initial chapter with Cook's Tour of Vietnam, through the eyes of a U-2 pilot, and the startling premise that "Ho Chi Minh is missing" — and that this is his first.

Then he introduces his hero, Capt. Vincent Draelincourt, graduate of the school of hard knocks — Class of '51 — and a victim of an incompetent division operation officer. Draelincourt is not necessarily the qualities sum, that seemed to be sought in a peacetime Army.

Draelincourt is not necessarily the qualities sum, that seemed to be sought in a peacetime Army. He is a combat leader who is not necessarily the qualities sum, that seemed to be sought in a peacetime Army.

long look at this book. In "the system," might be handled by Lawrence Hare. The credo of Taylor's book seems to be "don't trust anyone over a major" — unless he's Special Forces. And then be a little wary anyway.

The author vents his spleen on the Army's efficiency report system, mentions in passing that it's the senior NCOs who actually get things done — often by the same methods he deplures in the officer ranks — and even manages to fit in a tremendous amount of background material on the Army and Special Forces. Perhaps he tries to cram too much.

Eventually, the various members of Special Forces Team A-18 come together, Jean Fonda might consent to appear briefly as Barbara Simpson — with omissions, in the South Sea area which includes being successfully attacked and frigidity, to be seduced by Barney (coarsely, with more refinement).

Another Cameo role, that of Sgt. Nance, who is signing, mostly in protest over the way his pal Draelincourt has been disadvantaged. It might make a great movie.

The Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club (FBSPC) had an active Veteran's Day weekend, Saturday morning the club practiced for a demonstration at Entebbe, Ala. The demonstration marked the formal adoption of the 271st Avn. Co. by that city. The parachute club did its part by jumping from one of the company's Chinooks. With two passes the helicopter dropped over 15 parachutists, all of whom landed within 30 meters of the target.

On the return trip to Fort Benning the Chinook made one pass over Dekkar Air Strip. The chutists scored a first for the club by having all 16 jumpers land in the target area which is only 11 meters in radius. Several people landed less than a yard away, with the closest jump being only two inches from target center.

The FBSPC invites all people of the Fort Benning-Columbus area to attend the club's most scheduled Thanksgiving weekend. The meet will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday and will continue until the same time Sunday.

Body in Free-Fall

Many people think that the human body tumbles awkwardly when falling through space, but this is quite to the contrary. The experienced jumper has amazing control while in free-fall. The novice jumper is taught to fall face-to-earth in a spread eagle position.

In this manner he will fall straight down at a rate of 120 m.p.h. The experienced parachutist moves both vertically and horizontally. It is possible to move one foot horizontally for every foot vertically.

On weekends the club members frequently join together in free fall to form three or four man star formations. Back loops, figure eights and barrel rolls are common movements for most club members.

At speeds of 120 to 200 m.p.h. the parachutist need only move his hands in order to make turns. By dropping his shoulder a jumper can bank similar to an airplane. At such tremendous speeds a turn of the head can cause temporary loss of control.

Defenders Snare ATC Basketball Double Victory

The Army Training Center Defenders defeated the first Engr. Bn., 94-78, giving them their second straight league basketball victory. They defeated the 25th Inf., 88-59, in the first outing.

The Defenders pulled into the lead in the opening minutes of play and never looked back, leading 46-32 at half time. ATC's Frank Loeffler tallied 13 points in the first half and added 11 more in the second to top the Defenders' scoring column.

Top scorers for the Engineers' team were Clarence Carter, with 26 points and Dave Browning with 21 points.

Ronald Norman's 16 points for the Defenders, shared the double figure scoring honors with Thomas Dermody and Arnet Gray, who each shot for 13 points.

Perry Leads TSB Netters To 83-79 Win Over 197th

The Student Brigade's basketball team, led by high-scoring Nathan Perry, continued its winning ways Monday defeating the 197th Inf. 83-79.

But to win the game the TSB hoopers had to break ties three times in the second-half before they could call it a night. TSB went out at half-time with a lead of 43-35 and only to see the lead dwindle several times during the second half of the contest.

TSB is now averaging nearly 106 points a game with Jim Brown with 21 points and Ted Irish with 18. John Griffin led the way for the 197th with 28 points and the 197th's "Trick" Adams led the way for 34 in his efforts.

TURKEY SHOOT
That Thanksgiving turkey did not elude the shooting eyes of Jim Murray last Saturday, when the Fort Benning Junior Rifle Club held its Fall turkey shoot. Murray took the first prize, an 18-pound turkey.

Sponsored by the Youth Activities Club (YAC) at the post, the pre-Thanksgiving "three-shot" match saw some close competition. Felling a 59 out of a possible 96 bird-points, Murray placed his three shots in a strategic high point area on the turkey silhouette target.

Army Pistol Team Sweeps Team Events in Monthly Open Tourney

The U.S. Army Pistol Team shared individual honors with the Navy while sweeping all four team events during the monthly Open Tourney completed last weekend at the Fort Benning, Pistol Range.

The four-day pistol match, combining International Fielding with NRA three gun events, found World Champion M. Sgt. William Blankenship dominating the international events and POI Donald Hamilton, U.S. Navy, former national pistol champion winning the three-gun championship.

In the International events, it was Army all the way. Blankenship won the 275 and took the Center Fire Contest with a 595 equating his world championship score.

M. Sgt. Ralph Thompson placed third in the Grand Aggregate of 588 but was outranked by SFC Robert Whitacre, He out of U.S. Navy, took the 45 team matches.

The 22 aggregate was won by Hamilton's 885 while Thompson placed second with 861.

Army Blue and Army won a 1166 and set a new team record in the 45 Service Pistol of 1170, breaking the old record by one point. Members of the record breaking team were S. Sgt. Hershel Anderson 262, 3d Sgt. Henry Weinbrecht 256-11, S. Sgt. Bonnie D. Harmon 250-10, and S. Sgt. James H. McNally 252-12.

Attention Hunters
Hunters are cautioned that Army maneuvers are being conducted continuously in Stewart and Quitman Counties west of Highway 27 and south of Hannabatchee Creek.

Vietnam-oriented training in guerrilla and counter-guerrilla tactics will be conducted by the Ranger Training Command of The Infantry School. Personnel will be moving in small groups throughout the wooded area.

Hunters are requested to exercise extreme caution. Serious accidents will be prevented if hunters will positively identify game before firing.

WACs Plan Basketball Action Here
The WACs at Fort Benning go to court again this year to prove that they are as glib as their male counterparts — guilty of being sports enthusiasts.

The WAC Co., 1st Bn., CTC, has not had a basketball team since 1966 but this year a group of young women in the WAC Co. are planning to make up for lost time.

The team has already made plans to start practicing twice a week in Brian Wells field house, although no games are scheduled to be played before the first part of next year.

According to Capt. Jane D. McCoy, basketball coach and WAC company commander, tentative plans for the team include games against other Third Army WAC teams, possible games against area high schools, and participation in the Third Army Tournament to be held sometime in March.

Giving Thanks Not Enough, We Must Show We Mean It

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Dale D. Burton Jr.
 There are many beautiful words in every language but "thanks" is one of the most beautiful regardless of the language. To say "thanks" means to acknowledge appreciation for something someone has done for you. It is beautiful to the ears of the one who has helped you because you acknowledged his efforts for you.
 There is something tragic about ungrateful people. They miss knowing that someone has extended themselves in an act of kindness and given their hand in friendship and love.
 The person who doesn't show his appreciation for what others do for him usually finds himself devoid of friends or unable to get help when he needs it. It hurts the one who has made an effort when no appreciation is shown.
 Even God must be pleased when we as individuals or as a nation take time to offer God our thanks for His care and guidance.
 An ungrateful nation that ignores the blessing of God is indeed impoverished in spirit. It is missing the blessing of knowing that God loves it and cares for it. Even worse, it must hurt God to see an ungrateful people use and expect His blessings and go their way without showing their appreciation. It is not enough to have a national Thanksgiving Day and allow the political and religious leaders make pious speeches about the past and invoke God's continued blessings upon our people.
 The personal conscience of every man must be searched and wiped clean of the hypocrisy of religious and national sham. We must practice what we profess if we are to avert national tragedy. Let us sing the beautiful song, "Thanks Be To God" when he needs it. It hurts the one who has made an effort when no appreciation is shown.

New Christmas, New Year Leave Policy To Bring More Men Home for Holidays

HQ, USCONARC - "Homecoming for the holidays" was the title of the Christmas Army Command (USCONARC) announced this week by the United States Continental Army Command (USCONARC). The Army will authorize the early separation of soldiers whose normal release dates occur between mid-December and Jan. 2, 1968. Individual release dates will be timed to permit them to be home for Christmas. Release dates will vary to prevent an overload of commercial transportation facilities and to help avoid highway traffic jams.

As an added Christmas gift, the Army will authorize the early separation of soldiers whose normal release dates occur between mid-December and Jan. 2, 1968. Individual release dates will be timed to permit them to be home for Christmas. Release dates will vary to prevent an overload of commercial transportation facilities and to help avoid highway traffic jams.

Past Post 'Army Brat' Enters Politics in Iowa

By YFC Ken Deas
 "An 'Army Brat' born at Fort Bennett has entered politics in her hometown 'to work for the same things my father is fighting for in Vietnam."
 Mrs. Ronald Brehm, 24, recently elected a member of the Shelbyburg, Iowa, city council, is the former Anna Marie Deal, a daughter of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. C. L. Deal. Deal is a member of the 87th Engr. Bn. in Vietnam.
 The new councilwoman's brother, Spec. A Michael Deal, is a student in the NCO Candidate Course at the Infantry School here.
 Mrs. Brehm had good publicity in her small Iowa town, and when asked why she was running, she replied, "I'm running for the council in Shelbyburg because I believe that is what my father in Vietnam is fighting for."
 Voting Privilege
 "I woman being able to run for office is unheard of in some countries," she said, adding that it is "a privilege, an honor, and a duty, to be able to vote for the candidate of your choice."
 "In society today there is a trend to emphasize the wrongs and to forget about the rights. We often overlook the good and our efforts to discover flaws and our own world, as a result, is more pessimistic than optimistic."
 "We maintain that we are being objective, but we really are being blinded to what is really the case."
 "A frequent victim of the kind of thinking that overlooks the good in its attempt to detect error is the child of military parents. He or she is stereotyped as being undisciplined, unentured and a non-achiever. He is tagged with the nickname Army brat, and rarely commended when he does well."
 "Let a young child break a window, and you will hear, 'Yeah, well, he's an Army brat anyway.' But if one of these brats accomplishes something worthwhile, and you will seldom hear a whisper."

Soldier Injured When Car Collides With Four Others

By PFC Mickey Sneed
The intersection of North Lumpkin Rd. and Victory Dr. in Columbus, was the location of this week's accident. It was recognized. Every week from now to the conclusion of the holiday season the BAYONET will feature an accident to emphasize the importance of careful driving.

The body of a Fort Benning soldier collided with a steering wheel and a dashboard, breaking the soldier's right arm, his nose, and knocked out several teeth. The accident occurred when the driver was doing 90 mph in a 40 mph zone and collided with four other cars.

He was in the left lane and changed lanes and hit the left rear of one car. He then bounced back into the left lane and hit the right rear of a second car. His car then spun around and hit a traffic box in the middle of the road, after which he continued in the left lane and hit the third car, which had stopped for a red light. His car then spun around and came to rest in the east-bound traffic.

Blues Issued

HAMPTON, Va. (ANP)—Officials of the U. S. Army Recruiting Command have announced that Army recruiters are now being issued the Army's dress blue uniforms.

Previously, the distinctive uniform was only available through personal purchase. Enlisted men and women assigned to recruiting stations and recruiting main stations across the United States and to Guam and Puerto Rico will receive special cash allowances to purchase the uniforms.

Recruiters assigned to duty in the future will be issued dress blues prior to reporting for recruiting assignments.

Heritage Theme In Army Digest

CAMERON STATION, Va., in the December ARMY DIGEST, the soldiers magazine. Articles in this issue are: "Progress or Stalemate?" by General Harold E. Heason sets forth answers to some searching questions on our national policies in Vietnam— "Who is Living Legend?" This VEH (Very Important Horse) at Fort Rife is the equivalent to a human's 100 years old and is the last surviving horse of the U. S. Cavalry.

ACS Lacking List of Units Aiding Needy

NEW ATC AG... Lt. Col. Donald H. Black (R) formerly the XO, Management and Budget Office, (left) is welcomed to the Training Center by Col. Herbert E. Wolf, commanding officer, Col. Black, assigned as adjutant general, USAFIC, replaces Lt. Col. Merwin K. Labar, a veteran of WWII, Korea and Vietnam. Col. Black's awards include the Bronze Star with 2nd Oak Leaf Cluster and the Army Commendation Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster. (Photo by Spec. 5 Bennie Baker)

Some needy military families may have to take it on the chin this Christmas instead of receiving assistance through the Army Community Service if the helping units do not notify ACS of their intent to participate.

This is the gist of the ACS report given to the RAVONEST Tuesday by J. L. Hearson, project officer at ACS. He said that initial screening of the families has been done and that the list of the needy is almost complete. But he emphasized that participating units must notify ACS of their assistance capabilities as soon as possible so that the effort can be fully coordinated.

Under the project, the largest of which ever undertaken at Fort Benning would bring Christmas help to some 600 needy military families. It is a joint effort of the post chaplains and ACS and was formally announced in a letter to all units October 26.

However, Hearson pointed out, too many units are dragging their feet on notifying ACS of their capabilities and that is "bogging down" the project.

He said that notification should be done through command channels—before the December 1 deadline.

"Fighting for Peace, Peace and Time"—Tells how the Office of Personnel Operations sees that the right man gets the right job at the right time.

This article dispels the theory of "assignment by dartboard" and shows how a blend of computer power and the personal touch has allowed OPD to match the man's potential with an enormous assortment of Army jobs.

"We Were Going to Get Hit"—A personal interview with Sergeant David C. Dolby, the machine gunner awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions during Operation Crazy Horse on May 1966. It's the story behind the official language of the citation, the story remembered by Sergeant Dolby.

The December issue contains the annual index for the many important articles which appeared in 1967 issues. This index of article titles and authors can be of assistance in research as well as a reference aid in the command information program.

President Johnson praised American fighting men serving in Vietnam in his annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation to the nation.

"We are proud of the spirit of our men who are risking their lives on Asar soil," the President said, adding, "We pray that their sacrifice will be redeemed in an honorable peace and the restoration of a land long torn by war."

Arms Collectors Told Of Proposed Museum

Members at the October 14th of the Georgia Arms Collectors Association, held recently in Atlanta, were carried by the American foot soldier, the Infantry Museum displays arms of allied and opposing armies in United States military history.

The Infantry Museum will provide an exhibit for the association's November gun show in Augusta. The museum is establishing one of the finest small arms collections in the country. Besides showing developmental models and those firearms carried by the American foot soldier, the Infantry Museum displays arms of allied and opposing armies in United States military history.

The rifle being the number one tool of the Infantryman, Mizey said that the museum is establishing one of the finest small arms collections in the country. Besides showing developmental models and those firearms carried by the American foot soldier, the Infantry Museum displays arms of allied and opposing armies in United States military history.

Dr. Andres Ramos of the Knoxville Gun Club requested the help of the Army Team to assist them with the more difficult style of international Trap Shooting which involves faster birds and greater flight variances in angles and elevation. The club has installed International Trap machines so that its members may practice and compete for shooting berths on future U. S. Shooting Teams.

SHORT SNORTS

Every year as the basketball season opens, there are loud cries that the game should be changed in some way to keep the big men from dominating the courts. Herewith are some suggestions:

Use a pulley to raise or lower the basket according to the height of the shooter . . . Put a trampoline under the basket for use of shooters only . . . Give every player an automatic 20 points for every inch he would need to be seven feet tall . . . Put the basket at the bottom of a ten-foot well.

Blindfold Bill Russell . . . Put Lew Alcindor in a potato sack . . . Make Elgin Baylor wear a catcher's mitt on both hands . . . Take away Oscar Robinson's sneakers and give him snow shoes . . . Get Wil Chamberlain to trade jobs with Willie Somerset.

But here's a better solution. Just face the fact that basketball is the tall men's game and the fans want to see Wil, Bill, Elgin, Lew, Oscar and the rest doing what tall men do best. The top players now have skill and agility to match their height. Gone is the game of yesterday.

There's only one word of advice to give the short folks: Charge!

BAN THE BUGLERS

"Some day I'm going to murder the bugler!" That's what Irving Berlin said in his 1918 song, "Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning!"

A number of us feel the same way about the baseball park buglers of 1967. The tooter plays "ta-ra-ra" and then a lot of boy sopranos in the grandstand scream "Charge!" The sequence is repeated often: first a dull commercial on a disc jockey program. And if no horn player is there, the residential organist will make like a trumpet.

The bit might be appropriate in moderation at a college football game. You could encourage your team to charge across the goal. But when does a baseball team charge except when they erupt from the bench to exchange phantom punches with a baseball pitcher? Might as well yell "Charge!" at a checker player.

So leave us murder the buglers and also Walter O'Malley, who did most to encourage them when his Dodgers were playing back in Brooklyn. Then the boy sopranos will have to go back to chanting, "We want a hit!" That may be just as monotonous but at least it's appropriate.

Does a girl go with every can of New Improved Rapid Shave?

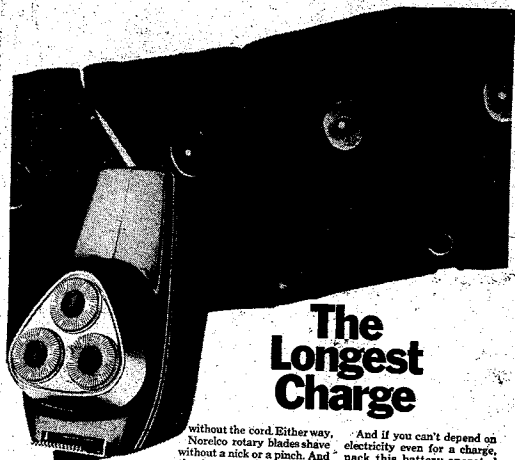

No, but girls certainly go for the men who use it. They notice how smooth and inviting it leaves a man's face. And no wonder. Rapid Shave has a great new formula which combines a really rich, creamy lather and 17 beard softeners — all working double-time to give those tough G.I. beards the closest, smoothest shave you've ever seen. Ask for new improved Rapid Shave at your PX, now in three formulas: Regular, cooling Menthol, and exciting new Lime, the tangy fragrance that makes shaving a tropical breeze.

And try Palmolive After Shave Lotion too... soothes in seconds, refreshes for hours.

The Longest Charge

It's packed away inside the new Norelco Rechargeable Tripleheader Speedshaver 48CT. And it makes this rechargeable deliver twice as many shaves per charge. Just one charge delivers more than two weeks of close, fast, comfortable Tripleheader shaves. And the Rechargeable Tripleheader works with or without the cord. Either way, Norelco rotary blades shave without a nick or a pinch. And the famous Microgroove™ 'floating heads' glide over the rough terrain of your face for a Norelco shave that's 35% closer. There's a pop-up trimmer, too. Even a 110/220 voltage selector. Altogether, it has more features than any other electric shaver on the market.

And if you can't depend on electricity even for a charge, pack this battery-operated Norelco Flip-Top™ Cordless Speedshaver 20B. Works on four penlight batteries to provide 30 days of close, fast, comfortable shaves. The 20B has Microgroove heads, a new battery ejector and a mirror/wallet too. Win the battle against whiskers with Norelco on your side.

DEAR MEG: I met a sailor. He's nice. But he kept trying to get me to take a drink though I don't drink. He tried to get me to have some scotch, rye, bourbon or beer. Finally he said, "At least take a little wine. Wine can't hurt you. How about a glass of port?" I said no, I'd have a Coke, and he walked out. Should I have taken some wine? Would it hurt me?

—SOFT DRINK SALLY

Dear Sally: Probably not, but you're probably better off without that kyll too. He sounds like one of those sailors who wants a port in every sweetheart.

DEAR MEG: Every time I reprimand my teen-age daughter or tell her I can't afford to increase her allowance or buy her new clothes or give her a color TV set, she threatens to run away and join the hippies. I'm going out of my mind with worry.

—L. B. G.

Dear L. B. G.: Quit worrying. A girl of her expansive tastes wouldn't last five minutes with the hippies who are ill-clothed, ill-bathed and ill-moneyed.

DEAR MEG: The people in the next apartment play their TV so loud I can't concentrate on my trumpet practice. What's the solution?

—UNHAPPY MUSICIAN

Dear Musician: Now that's funny—I just received a letter from some people who say that the GI in the next apartment plays his trumpet so loud they can't hear their TV.

DEAR MEG: What am I really like? No, Meg, that's not the question I'm asking you. It's one I ask myself, often. I call it search for identity and mom says it's typical teenage moodiness. Anyway, my usual answer to myself is that I'm a 16-year-old girl, medium height, medium weight, medium looks and medium personality. Good at drawing, fair dancer, poor in math and shy'er than average.

I get along with boys OK, kidding around and all, until one comes near me and then I begin to wonder if I've got bad breath or perspiration odor or something and I back off. What's really wrong with me?

—B. B. ?

Dear B.: Child, you have a painful (but never fatal) ailment called teen terror. Anybody old enough to vote has had it and survived. You'll outgrow it very soon. Meanwhile stay neat, clean, well-groomed and affable. And remember—those boys may think you're backing off because THEY'VE got bad breath!

DEAR MEG: I just read a headline, "Psychologist Says Adultery May Help Some Marriages." I tell you I love my husband but it wouldn't help OUR marriage to have him playing around with some floozie. No, ma'am!

Why do papers print such rot as that? Men get enough ideas without help from some egghead professor!

—MARRIED FOR KEEPS

Dear Married Etc.: As you say, the men, bless 'em, get enough "ideas" without help. The faithful will stay faithful and the rovers will rove, no matter what any psychologist says in the papers.

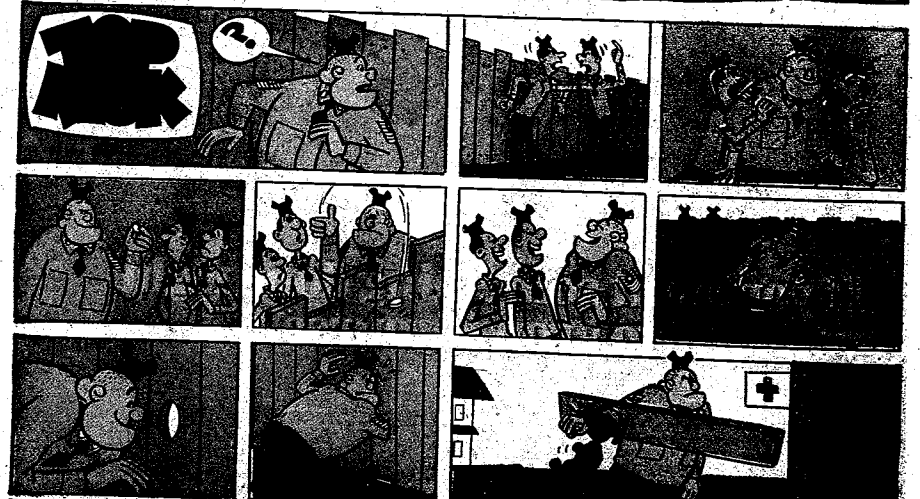

Anything nagging you? Drop Meg a note, c/o AMERICAN ARMY FOREIGN SERVICES, 480 Lexington Avenue, New York 17017, Room 61764, and she'll try to answer all your questions if possible. All letters must be signed, but names will be withheld.

THE GAME OF THE SEVEN GOOFS

These two look-alike drawings differ in at least seven ways. Check your findings with the answers printed upside down.

SOLUTION: (1) The upper corner of the trunk has been compressed. (2) A loop of the man's coat. (3) The 'A' in 'Tardis' has been re-placed with an 'E'. (4) The top of the man's head. (5) The man's neck has been stretched. (6) The bottom edge of the man's jacket has been altered. (7) The torso of the man's shirt. (8) As has been indicated beside his left arm.

American FIGHTING HEROES

The Story of Sgt. Emile Deleau, Jr.
On 1 February 1945, he led a squad in the night attack on Oberhoffen, France, where fierce house-to-house fighting took place.

AFTER CLEARING ONE BUILDING OF OPPOSITION, SGT. DELEAU MOVED HIS MEN TOWARD A SECOND HOUSE FROM WHICH HEAVY MACHINE-GUN FIRE CAME.

HE COURAGEOUSLY EXPLODED HIMSELF TO HOSTILE BULLETS AND FIRING HIS SUB-MACHINE GUN AS HE WENT, ADVANCED STEADILY TOWARD THE ENEMY POSITION UNTIL CLOSE ENOUGH TO HURL GRENADES THROUGH A WINDOW, KILLING THREE GERMANS AND WOUNDING THEIR CHIEF.

HIS PROGRESS WAS STOPPED BY HEAVY RIFLE AND MACHINE-GUN FIRE FROM ANOTHER HOUSE.

SGT. DELEAU DASHED THROUGH THE DOOR WITH HIS GUN BLAZING. WITHIN, HE CAPTURED TEN GERMANS.

THE SQUAD THEN TOOK UP A POSITION FOR THE NIGHT AND AWAITED DAWNLIGHT TO RESUME THE ATTACK.

AT DAWN OF 2 FEBRUARY SGT. DELEAU PRESSED FORWARD WITH HIS UNIT, KILLING TWO GERMANS AS HE ADVANCED TO A POINT WHERE MACHINE-GUN FIRE FROM A HOUSE BARRED THE WAY.

DESPITE VICIOUS SMALL-ARMS FIRE, SGT. DELEAU RAN ACROSS AN OPEN AREA TO REACH THE REAR OF THE BUILDING, WHERE HE DESTROYED ONE MACHINE GUN AND KILLED TWO OPERATORS WITH A GRENADE. HE WORKED TO THE FRONT OF THE STRUCTURE AND LOCATED A SECOND MASTING GUN, FINDING IT IMPOSSIBLE TO TOSS A GRENADE INTO THE HOUSE FROM HIS PROTECTED POSITION, HE FEARLESSLY MOVED AWAY FROM THE BUILDING AND WAS ABOUT TO HURL HIS EXPLOSIVE WHEN HE WAS INSTANTLY KILLED BY A BURST FROM THE GUN HE SOUGHT TO KNOCK OUT.

WITH HONORIFIC COURAGE AND DARING AGGRESSION, SGT. DELEAU CLEARED FOUR WELL-DEFENDED HOUSES OF GERMANS, INFLICTED SEVERE LOSSES ON THE ENEMY AND AT THE SACRIFICE OF HIS OWN LIFE AIDED HIS BATTALION TO REACH ITS OBJECTIVE WITH A MINIMUM OF CASUALTIES. SGT. EMILE DELEAU, JR. WAS AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR.

... In 165 A. D. a Roman general, Cassius, put to death 300,000 residents of Seleucia in Syria.

... A fulltime job from 40 to 51 A. D. for the Roman Army was to guard 30,000 slave laborers who built the Claudian Aqueduct in Rome.

... In London, England, in 1684, the East of Devonshire dragged a Colonel Culpepper by the nose from the Presence Chamber in Westminster — and later was fined 30,000 pounds and imprisoned for his moment of pleasure.

... On September 8, 1847, at the battle of El Molino del Rey, a force of 13,000 Mexican soldiers was defeated by but 4,000 Americans.

... Dr. R. J. Gatling invented his famous repeating gun in 1861.

... In 1739, the Persian Nadir Shah invaded India, carrying away treasure worth more than $600,000,000 — after slaughtering 150,000 captives.

... Ivan III conquered the Tartars in 1482 and then assumed the title of "Czar of All the Russias."

... On October 19, 1216, King John of England, compelled a year earlier to sign the Magna Carta, died from "eating pears and peaches and new cider in a beastly way."

... The K-9 Corps is not at all new. Historic records show that dogs were trained for warfare and security as early as 700 B. C.

... Dogs with their homing senses were used in World War I, World War II, and the Korean War as messengers, scouts, sentries, and snipers — in the name of DOG DAYS.

NO! WHAT DO YOU THINK YOU'VE GOT TWO FEET FOR?

ONE FOR THE GAS PEDAL AND ONE FOR THE BRAKE!

New! Schick Super Stainless Steel Injector blades—

SCHICK INJECTOR BLADES

with the Super Krona Comfort Edge

This triangle marks the Super Krona Comfort Edge—only Schick has it. Here's why:

1. New Schick Super Stainless Steel. Gives uniform smoothness blade after blade.
2. New 1,000 Foot Strip. Schick polishes the Comfort Edge to a flawless finish.
3. New Polymer Coating. Schick coats the edge so slippery smooth there's no pull at all.

Available now in 7 and 31 Blade packs and with this feature: Razor lock.

New Noncoms Praised By Top NCO in Army

By Al Spratley

Melvin C. Lervick of Hillington, Mont., was promoted to staff sergeant here last weekend. This is not an unusual event in the Army or at Fort Benning.

But it was different in Lervick's case as he was the distinguished graduate in the Army's first Infantry Non-commissioned Officer Candidate Course which began here September 3.

Sergeant Major of the Army William O. Woodridge delivered the graduation address and pinned the oew chevrons on Lervick as an array of visiting general officers and command sergeants major witnessed the milestone event.

Five other graduating candidates received promotion to staff sergeant, 66 received sergeant chevrons and 43 others who completed the course but were not awarded non-commissioned officer rating were promoted to specialist four.

Two Cited For Action In Vietnam

Candidates who entered the tough 12-week course were selected from those who had displayed leadership potential in basic and advanced individual training. At Benning this potential was developed as they trained for duty in Vietnam as fire team and squad leaders. Graduates go on to another nine weeks of on-the-job training before their Vietnam duty.

Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, spoke to the graduating class.

Christmas Decoration Contest Set

Plans for the 1967 Fort Benning Christmas decoration contest for individuals and units were announced this week.

"All individuals living in on post housing will have a chance to decorate their living quarters and each unit will also have an opportunity to enter into competition with other units of their own size," Lt. Norwood Vassar, USAAC Special Services Project Officer, said.

Measure went on to state that the quarters contest will be judged on four grade levels consisting of: E-6 and below, senior enlisted grades (E-7 to E-9), field

Gen. Larsen Speaks Here On Viet War

The deputy commander of CONARC, Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, pointed to the several positive signs of progress in the Vietnam war as he spoke to a news conference Monday morning in Infantry Hall.

Gen. Larsen, former assistant commandant of the Infantry School, served as commander of Field Force II area in Vietnam. His headquarters controlled the American and Korean units in the II Corps area, which covers half of South Vietnam's land mass.

"Two years ago, the Viet Cong commanded about 90 per cent of the highway system. Today 90 per cent can be used not only by military traffic, but by

Cuban Recalls Days as Prisoner

By Lt. Karen Bolton

"I've fought against Communism in three wars in two hemispheres." Capt. Emilio R. Borrego, S3 officer at 9th Maint. Bn., 16th Gen. Spt. Gp., CTC fought in the Cuban Army against Castro in the Bay of Pigs invasion as an artillery commander, and with the Big Red One in enlisted in the Constitutional Cuban Army in 1946 and served first as a general's clerk in 1952 he was assigned to the Cuban embassy in Mexico, returning two years later to serve as secretary to the Chief of the Cuban Army. He went to OCS in 1958; after being commissioned, Borrego took over as commanding officer of the 73rd Infantry Co. of the 7th Regt., based at Holguin in Oriente Province. His mission was to fight Castro and his guerrilla band in the Sierra Maestra.

Wounded

Borrego was wounded four months later, and while he was recovering in Havana, the Batista government was finally overthrown by Castro. He was arrested by Castro's followers, imprisoned for 15 days, and then released.

medical aid to the wounded, despite the possibility of an explosion from boxes of mortar rounds which had caught fire. He supervised the evacuation of the wounded and performed surgery on two men on board a helicopter while flying to a hospital.

His courage and devotion to duty is responsible for saving the lives of at least two men.

AWARD OF THE Soldier's Medal was made to Cpl. Leonard G. Hood of Co. C, 8th Bn., 21st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., recently in ceremonies at battalion headquarters. Lt. Col. Charles A. Smith, battalion commander, presented the medal to Hood, who was cited for heroism while serving with the 2nd Bn., 12th Cav. in Vietnam.

Hood distinguished himself by "courageous and selfless action" in assisting two men in his platoon, pinned beneath an armored personnel carrier which had overturned in a water-filled rice paddy. Threatened by the water and gasoline pouring from ruptured fuel tanks, Hood successfully attempted to extricate the two men.

Hood then remained with the men, offering encouragement and medical assistance during a precarious lifting operation which finally made removal of the two men possible.

Hood also received the Bronze Star and the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device during the same ceremonies for his service in Vietnam.

Contest

grade officers, and company officers and warrant officers and civilians combined in the least category. Entries in the contest must be either religious, traditional or contemporary and the division entered must be stated on an entree blank and submitted to Special Services before December 10.

Formal entry blanks ran in the Daily Bulletin last week, and those wishing to enter may submit their name, address, rank, telephone number and category of their exhibit on a piece of paper to the main Special Services Office, Bldg. No. 384 before the deadline. Cash prizes will be awarded to winners. $20 first prize, $15 second prize and $10 third prize, will be awarded in each grade level.

Judging will take place on December 16 thru December 20, winning displays must remain in tact until December 31, according to Manual.

At the same time, units on the post will be entering separate competition among themselves, he added.

The commanders of the various units on post are encouraged to participate by entering in the competition one of two categories: battalion size units or higher and company size units or similar size commands.

NCOs

class and introduced Maj. Woodriddle, Gen. Wright reminded the new NCOs that they would be decision-makers. He said these decisions would involve committing men's lives in combat situations and that he knew of "no greater responsibility."

Gen. Wright expressed his faith in the NCO program and in its first products but he said that in being the first class, it only added to the responsibilities of the graduates.

Watching Closely

The United States Army will be watching very closely your performance as you move on to your next assignments," Gen. Wright said. "But I want you to move into your next job with all the confidence in the world knowing that you have had the finest training that the Army has to offer, and you will do well."

Woodriddle told the graduates that as NCOs and leaders they would comprise the "glue" that holds together the team and the squad and that they would be the ones to give it direction and spirit and the ability to perform its mission.

The Army's ranking non-commissioned officer said further, "Great things are expected of you. Besides being the first class you also are the first group which has ever been trained this way . . . it has been a whole new idea in training."

The Army's top NCO told the graduating class that "the fact that you are here today is proof that you already are smart and quality." And he added, "In the twelve weeks of the training that you have just completed you showed that those who selected you were correct in their judgment."

"I know you will do it well, I have great confidence in you and great expectations for your future," he said in closing.

Many soldiers often forget importance of appearance

By PFC Mickey Seead
 "Standing tall and ready around the clock" (STRAC). There is no doubt in my mind that the Army is ready around the clock, but always standing tall!

A frequent sight throughout the Fort Benning community is a soldier wearing a pair of low quarters that have not seen polish for several days or a pair of fatigues that have never been introduced to starch. It is beginning to look as if spit-shined boots are no longer following close behind the boots and razor blade sales have dropped.

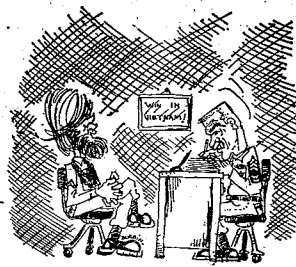

I have seen soldiers that look as if they are not required to dress in a clean uniform... they are! That once they complete basic and ALT they can dress as they please - they cannot! Soldiers should always remember that they are members of the Army and that their appearance does have a bearing on the military image.

It is the responsibility of every member of the Army to give guidance to soldiers in uniform. Not only privates and Spec5s but NCOs and officers could use a little advice on their appearance.

Top non-coms and officers should tighten up on the appearance of their soldiers in their command. Soldiers should not be permitted to wear sooty boots and they should be forced to break starch at least every two days.

If a punishment system is needed to get soldiers to polish their boots and clean their uniforms, then I think such a system should be established.

We would certainly be a trouble if the Army were not ready around the clock, but traditions are also important and sloppy soldiers whether they are commissioned or non-commissioned, are part of a STRAC Army.

"GOOD TO HAVE YOU BACK JONES, BY THE WAY, HOW WAS YOUR LEAVE?"

Bayonet Viewpoint

'67 saw many massacred on our nation's highways

This year has almost passed into history... one which will be remembered for the devaluation of the British pound, the riots in the cities, the continuation of the war in Vietnam and the many peace demonstrations around the country.

But all too sadly, it will not be remembered as the year in which masses took to the streets to protest the massacre on the nation's highways and the almost sanctified murder of thousands of innocents within the U.S.

A writer several years ago gained widespread publicity for his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed," and through this publicity, he was able to drive for safety requirements imposed on the automobile Big Three. However, the biggest safety hazard still seems to be the nut behind the wheel.

The National Safety Council has found that the safety regulations have reduced fatalities per accident from 5.5 per thousand to around 5.2.

Still, though, hundreds more people will die this year from traffic accidents than from all the enemy rounds thrown at our troops in Vietnam.

With today's cars at today's speeds, a very lucky driver might get more than one chance with an accident. However, the other driver may have already used up your supply of luck so don't risk it.

At all times of the year and particularly during the murderous holiday season, start a little sooner and if it is impossible to start sooner, then phone ahead and tell your friends that you may be a little late.

Pay attention to traffic signs and pay particular attention to the vehicles around you. It's just possible that they hold the nut we're talking about - Bayonet.

Bleeding of Birds

Bleed a game bird by severing the neck arteries and forcing the blood from the bird with slight pressure. Make every effort to remove the body heat as quickly as possible. Do not pile birds in the car, instead, spread them out as much as possible to allow for free circulation of air.

Pluck and draw game birds, wash thoroughly and wash in a vapor resistant material as you would poultry. If camping overnight, hang them where the cool air will circulate around them.

Other game, particularly big game, should be bled by severing neck arteries, and cleaned immediately after being shot. If possible, leave hanging overnight in the cool air to remove heat. Do not under any circumstances place a warm animal in the trunk of the car.

Keep Away From Heat

If the animal must be moved before it is thoroughly cooled, place it on top of the car or the outside away from engine heat. In situations where the carcass cannot be properly covered and drying, you may wish to leave the hide on.

Doctor warns of dangers of unsafe Christmas toys

An appeal was issued today by your Post Safety Officer and Preventive Medicine Division to use care when buying toys for gift - giving this Christmas. Dr. Madorosky, Chief of Preventive Medicine said, "A happy Christmas can quickly turn into a tragic one when unsafe toys are given to children."

He urged persons selecting toys to be on the lookout for features that make them unsafe. Among the points he discussed were:

1. Be sure paint on playthings contains no lead. Look on box or carton for a statement that paint is lead-free. If there is any doubt, do not give it to a child. Small children especially are likely to chew on toys. If paint containing lead is eaten, it is very harmful.
2. Avoid items which might be flammable, such as playclothes, costumes and the like. Look on the package for a statement that nonflammable material was used.
3. Watch out for toys that are small or have flammable, removable parts. A young child is prone to put everything into his mouth, and he could easily swallow and choke on a small toy or piece of one. Be certain that "eyes," buttons, etc., on stuffed toys are securely attached.
4. Select sturdy toys that will not break or crack easily. Choose those with smooth edges and rounded corners for the very young.
5. Use caution in giving children toys that shoot projectiles, such as bows and arrows, slings, guns or missiles.

One additional note of caution was sounded by Madorosky, "Well-meaning friends or relatives," he said, "may unintentionally give your child a potentially harmful toy. Parents should carefully examine each gift and use their best judgment to determine if the child should be allowed to play with it. Parents should not be afraid of sending the giver by quietly removing a possibly dangerous toy and saying it until the child is ready to 'have it.'"

Madorosky stated that the great majority of toys available today have been produced with a child's safety in mind. Also, many are appreciated to assist the public in selecting them. He called for common sense in buying toys and urged people to consider safety as well as enjoyment as a guide to choosing their gifts.

"Your thoughtfulness in giving a plaything to a child will be appreciated even more easily by parents when it presents no hazard to their child's health and well-being," Madorosky concluded.

New equipment has ended pain of tooth restoration

It is an accepted fact that a large segment of our population is guilty of conscious and continuing neglect of the care and treatment of its teeth. What are some of the reasons given for justification of this senseless disregard for good health practices? A few of the more common objections to routine dental care are the following: "Dental treatment is very painful," "My teeth aren't worth saving," "It's too late to do anything about my teeth."

Let's examine these statements one at a time. First, the objection that, "It hurts to go to the dentist." This fear of dentistry is frequently far more prevalent among adults than among teenagers or even among very young children. The adult's fear might very well be a carry-over back to those days of his childhood, when dental treatment was frequently an unpleasant experience. Take the preparation of the tooth to receive a restoration, or, as it is commonly called, "drilling."

Ten or 15 years ago, the belt-driven drill reminding many patients of the pneumatic hammer used by street crews to break up concrete. Most of these old-

The making of Christmas decorations and talk of holiday luncheon plans takes on special meaning these days for the Officers' Wives' Club as the club prepares for its Christmas luncheon to be held at noon, Wednesday, at the Main Officers' Club.

"Every Christmas is a Birthday" spells out the holiday theme as the hostesses, the wives of The Infantry Center staff, ready last minute details. Mrs. H. S. Cunningham is chairman.

Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, will be honored guest.

A program in song is to be featured in the gala atmosphere as the Officers' Wives' Club choral group, the "Polka Dots," present such Christmas songs as "Steigh Ride," "What Child Is This," and "Let It Snow."

The "Polka Dots," the group scheduled to appear on the Ted Mack Amateur Hour in January, will be accompanied during their Christmas luncheon program by guest harpist, Miss Regina Watson. Miss Watson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Watson of Columbus, will also play variations on "Adagio Fidelity" in 1966.

Miss Watson, a student at Columbus College, has played the harp for the last five years with the Columbus Symphony and has appeared in concert in Memphis, Tenn., Atlanta, Ga., Auburn, Ala., and LaGrange, Ga. She also has played second harp with

Dental Poster Contest Set for School Children

Reservations may be made until noon, Monday, on post cards by calling Mrs. Adams Jr., at 545-3947 for reservations; H-M, Mrs. Y. Phillips at 545-7335; N-S, Mrs. R. E. Penkott at 545-3229; V. Z. Mrs. John R. Walker at 545-2418; and club members whose last names begin with the letters A-G may call Mrs. Earl S. Claude W. Baker at 689-4971 or Mrs. Shelton J. Chom-pagne at 689-7782.

Because dental health has year-round emphasis at Fort Benning's schools, the observance of Dental Health Week, February 4-10, is an annual event.

This year is no exception as a Dental Health Week poster contest is being planned in each school for grades three, four, five, six, seven and eight. Children at each grade level will be vying for winning prizes, electric toothbrushes, by creating original dental posters.

At each school, three outstanding posters will be chosen from each grade. Members of The Infantry Center Dental Section then will select the six winning posters, one from each grade level.

Each participant will be subject to the following rules: poster sizes may not exceed 18 inches by 24 inches; posters may not have any attachments such as toothbrushes or toothpaste tubes; brand names may not be used; stencils may not be used; commercial slogans may not be used; each participant should print his name, grade, room number, and school on the back of his poster and all posters must be submitted on or before February 2.

Event Honors Mrs. Chapman

The Sergeants Major's major of The Infantry Wives of Fort Benning School Luncheon tables were decorated with orange and brown paper turkeys, orange streamers and white bowland. Sgt. Maj. Chapman, retired and who is now an instructor with the ROTC at Baker High School, was also presented a silver case-dish by Mrs. Lawrence Kennedy, wife of the sergeant.

BABY SITTER

Q. My 15 year old daughter, Brenda, is going to take a baby sitting job that will pay her $5 a week. Will she earn Social Security credits?

A. If Brenda works 10 or more weeks in a 13 week calendar quarter under the same employer, her earnings are under Social Security law says earnings of a baby-sitter must be reported if the sitter is paid at least $50 from one employer.

Mrs. Gerald "Joe" Purnell is a "short timer" at Fort Benning. He is an Army wife... not a wife who shortly wants to get out of the Army, but rather a shorter timer at being "in" the Army.

Her husband, S.Sgt. Gerald Purnell, who is now in Vietnam, has been in the Army for only three years. Moreover, for the first year of that, Mrs. Purnell stayed in her home town, Chambersburg, Pa., while her husband was stationed in Korea. She has had a real chance at being an Army wife, then, only since the autumn of 1965 when the Purnells came to Fort Benning.

During the first period of that time, she admits that she was much too busy with her three children, Michael, 6, Lisa, 4, and Greg, 17 months, to take advantage of the many opportunities at Fort Benning for wives.

Joined Wives' Club It was just last April that a friend induced her to be her guest at a fashion show and luncheon for the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club. She decided immediately that she wanted to join the club.

From the very beginning, Mrs. Purnell stepped into the club as one of its best members. In May she was asked to take the job as chairman of the NCO Wives' sponsored Army Community Service Hospitality House.

Her job as Hospitality House chairman was a totally new experience for her, she admits. She added, however, that she thoroughly enjoyed it. "Helping and greeting new people at the post and feeling their warmth and gratitude is more than rewarding," she recalls.

Gave Up Chairmanship She gave up the chairmanship after her husband left for Vietnam in October. Nevertheless, Mrs. Purnell refused to give up her service to the Hospitality House. She still works regularly as a volunteer at the welcoming center.

She also worked on the sales committee of the NCO Wives' Monte Carlo Night and pitched in on the club's project of sending 100 Red Cross "Wavy Bags" to Vietnam. She sewed the green canvas bags for the project. She grins that she hopes that her husband will be a recipient of one of the Red Cross Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Purnell also teaches catéchism classes at all the post Religious Education Center.

Her interests at home include cooking, sewing and gardening. She sews all of Lisa's clothes and nearly all of her own wardrobe.

Normandy Room Scene Of Hail, Farewell Event

A hall and farewell party well recently at the USAIC officers and ladies of Hq., 197th Inf. Bde., in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Club.

An engraved silver wedding tray was presented to Capt. and Mrs. R. E. Monson. Farewells were said to Maj. and Mrs. D. L. Quinlan and Capt. and Mrs. R. L. Wantland, both of whom were presented with silver trays. Capt. S. E. Thomas, Capt. and Mrs. T. D. Hampton and Lt. J. C. Bright were given engraved silver beakers on their departure from the brigade.

The officers and ladies of the 2nd Bn. (Comp.), 10th Army, 197th Inf. Bde., held their monthly hall and farewell recently at the USAIC recreation center. Two new brides, Mrs. Robert A. Thompson and Mrs. Daniel R. Vestal, were presented silver trays and welcomed to the unit.

New officers and wives welcomed by the battalion included Capt. and Mrs. Ass. E. Stewart, Capt. and Mrs. George Ruggles, Lt. and Mrs. David Saylor, and Lt. and Mrs. Norman B. St. Laurent. Other officers welcomed were Lt. George W. Farr, Lt. James E. Shurdix, Lt. David F. Mullis and Lt. Michael K. Robinson.

Lt. Col. Charles Tharp presented farewell gifts to Lt. and Mrs. Richard L. McLenahan and Lt. and Mrs. Charles A. Shipps. The officers and ladies of headquarters battery were hosts for the evening.

Models for the show were Mrs. Joe Messner, Mrs. Charles Pritchett and her daughter Miss Michele Pritchett, Mrs. Peter Satterlee, Mrs. Bill Tracey and Mrs. Gregory Yacovou.

Event Fetes Post Wives

Traditional fruit-filled luncheon, cornucopias and pine cones exemplified the theme for the November luncheon of the 10th Army Gp. Officers' Wives.

The invocation was given by Mrs. Charles R. Love, wife of the 10th Gp. chaplain.

Mrs. J. Y. Hammack, wife of the unit commander, introduced Mrs. G. W. Schlitzkus, special guest for the luncheon.

It was announced that the Officers' Wives' Club Christmas luncheon will be held Wednesday.

Mint Recipe Is Offered By Former First Lady

By Louise Domashewsky

Mint—symbol of hospitality. Mint historians claim that this mint originally came from the Mediterranean shore, but mythology offers a much more romantic story. Mint was once the favorite of Minerva, unfortunate to have attracted the eye of Pluto. Persephone, his jealous wife, persecuted Minerva and her ferociously underfoot. Pluto, unable to control his wife's fury, changed Minerva into a delightful herb, ever after sacred to this god of the underworld.

Mint was well known and highly esteemed in the ancient world. In the Bible Pharaohes said, "In the mint, anise and cumin. In Greece, crushed mint leaves were used as perfume for the arms and to sweet the bath. Mint could stop hiccup, provide an antidote for the stings of sea serpents and, if consumed just before antifreeze solid. Serves 10 or 12.

Leo's down and they are more likely to hang straight.

Housekeeping Hints: To protect fingernails from scouring pad, cover it with a sponge and grasp the sponge instead of the pad. . . string beads easily, rub soap and let it dry. . . when ironing curtains, always iron back and forth across the back and forth across the front. . . Leo's down and they are more likely to hang straight.

Local Groups Sponsor Calls Home for 9 Men

Thanksgiving Day was a little brighter for the servicemen at Martin Army Hospital thanks to local volunteers.

The Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning and Southern Bell Telephone Co., sponsored phone calls home for nine Florida. Each man talked approximately 10 minutes with loved ones at home. Calls went out to states as far apart as Connecticut, Nevada and Florida. The wives' club also served coffee, donuts and brownies to patients in the Red Cross Recreation Hall of the NCO Wives' Club, hospital ward. After seeing the joy brought by a call home, the wives' club plans a repeat performance of the project on Christmas Day.

Pictures Are Lt. Wolf's Language

BY JIM BAKER

"One ought, everyday at least, to hear a little song, read a good poem, see a fine picture, and if it were possible, to speak a few reasonable words . . ."—Goethe.

Pictures are some people's language. For others they are just pictures.

Lt. Mary Wolf, recent Third Army photo contest winner, is the man behind the camera—his medium of expression.

His camera has been to Korea, back and forth across the U.S. and has ranged from Vietnam to Japan and back again.

His career as a photographer started in Korea seven years ago with an inexpensive PX camera—that got him his first photo prize—$25 in an Eighth Army photo contest.

His most recent awards netted him $90 and two first place awards, one second place award, a third place award and nine honorable mentions, in Third Army competition.

Things have changed since that first PX camera. Wolf now has behind him photography and photo-journalism courses and a tour of duty in Vietnam as a public information specialist and photographer.

It was in Vietnam also that he was given a direct commission and soon after reassigned to Fort Benning as a member of the Public Information Office staff.

Rudyard Kipling once said "there aren't twelve hundred people in the world who understand pictures. The others pretend and don't care."

Reproduced on these pages are some of Wolf's words—a cut of life as he sees it through a camera lens . . . He cares, do you?

Highly-Decorated Chaplain Takes Part in Yule Parade

Float 37 in Tuesday's Christmas parade featured a highly-decorated veteran of Vietnam, Chaplain (Maj.) Conrad N. Walker. While serving in Vietnam, Chaplain Walker received the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Ribbon and the Purple Heart.

A Lutheran Christian, he was on the "Little" All-American football team when he played on the University of Washington football team in his undergraduate days. He was also heavyweight Golden Gloves Champion.

Others on the float from Fort Benning include Spec. 4 Robert Oda Kent, Spec. 4 Robert McGeigan, Spec. 4 Mark Carson, Pvt. Victor Eichel, and Spec. 4 Dennis Johnson.

The chaplain was created by act of the Continental Congress in 1775 upon recommendation of General George Washington. Since then Army chaplains have provided moral and spiritual leadership to generations of soldiers in peace and war.

During WWI, 2,363 chaplains served to meet the Army's religious needs at home and in France.

During the three years of the Korean War, 9,896 ministers, priests and rabbis were the U.S. Army chaplains throughout the world; 2,385 were decorated for services beyond the call to duty.

During the Korean War, many hundreds of chaplains served, many of them veterans of WWI.

Today the Army Chaplaincy has 1,887 chaplains of all faiths serving, approximately 400 are in Vietnam. Seven chaplains have died in Vietnam, many others have been wounded.

Position 37, Vietnam Mail Call float sponsored by the South Columbus Merchants Association, expressed season's greetings to "Our Gallant Men in Vietnam" with a huge Christmas card.

Col. Horne Addresses Lieutenants

The 75th officer candidate class to graduate in 1967 from Fort Benning's Infantry OCS last week heard Col. Richard C. Horne urge them to "keep your good names and I'll have no doubt about your success in the officer corps."

Col. Horne, director of the Communications & Electronics Department of The Infantry School, told the 178 new second lieutenants that responsibility is the keyword for an officer in any service.

"It is a very inspiring thing in these disturbed times to be connected with such young men," Horne said of the 5th Co. 5th Sst. Bn., The Student Brigade, "encouraging to see a group of young Americans with no doubts about their responsibility."

Named honor and distinguished graduate and first in leadership was 2nd Lt. Neil S. Koskie Jr. Academic honors went to 2nd Lt. Jack L. Butler.

Among guests at the graduation was retired Air Force General Robert M. Lee, who was here to pin the gold bars on his graduating son, and Lt. Robert M. Lee Jr.

WAC Finds Tombstone Near Creek

By Sgt. Juanita Coates

Scrambling down the bank of the Weracoba Creek in search of rocks, I came to a screeching halt and stared in amazement at the inscribed gravestone which was partially embedded in the sand.

Exactly, I turned and yelled at my companion who was lagging behind. After a few minutes, we finished our descent down the bank and proceeded to remove the wet sand which covered the name and birthdate. While digging in the sand we pondered on how the gravemarker could have arrived at that destination.

Finally, all of the inscription was uncovered and after several trips to the nearby creek for buckets of water the remaining sand was rinsed from the lettering.

Engraved on the stone was the following:
T. H. Brantley, Jr.
Nov. 21, 1903
Aug. 31, 1954
Suffer little Children to Come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of God.

How did the gravemarker from his grave get to its present location? Did Weracoba creek flood it banks and wash the marker from Portland to Riverdale Cemetery or did someone purposefully remove the marker and dump it in the creek? These questions will in all probability remain unanswered.

Sergeant Phoenix Collects Antiques and Credit Hours

By Spec. 4 Carol Aubin
In her house antiques nestled amidst paintings, ceramic figures, wood carvings, re-finished furniture and mounds of books used in over 2,000 hours of extension courses. A unique combination of antiquity and an adequate dab of modern made the absolute present seem momentarily lost.
A silver-smith's chest, marked 1878, still pierced by the original square nails, now housed blankets instead of tools. A 78-year-old tub, once used to store sugar and flour, snuggled by the back door awaiting winter to serve as a planter. The coffee-grinder, more than 100-years old, sitting idly on the table knew that it's working days were over, while a tall sturdy wash stand was in use with its built in knick knock shelves, taking away the previous severeness it had.

On the shelf a 100-year clock ticked solidly away, proudly displaying its silk-screened face, done by its owner.
Proud owner and innovator of all these antiques plus more is Loretta Phoenix, a member of the WAC Co., 1st Bn., Center Troop Command, S.Sgt. Phoenix, presently assigned to the Supply Services Div., has been stationed here since January 1966. She is an active member of the NCO Wives Ceramics Club.
Besides her interest in ceramics and antiques, S.Sgt. Phoenix does art work, carvings and continues her education by taking numerous extension courses. She has over 2,000 hours of accredited schooling since joining the Women's Army Corps.
The WAC sergeant entered active service in August 1965, and was previously in the reserve corps.
S.Sgt. Phoenix has an AB and MA Degree from Florida State University. She is qualified to teach all phases of art education. Prior to her enlistment she was the Art Supervisor of Elementary Schools in Petersburg, Fla., where she also taught night classes in art history and appreciation at the junior college at night.
S.Sgt. Phoenix was stationed at Ft. U.S. Army Recruiting District, Chicago, before her assignment here. Before her present assignment she worked as a draftsman for poster layouts for recruiting purposes here.

Recon Missions Not New to OC In 91st Company

The procedures of reconnaissance and search and destroy missions are nothing new to Officer Candidate Thomas K. Burniston of 91st Co., 9th Stu. Bn. (OC).
From November 66 to May 66, Burniston spent most of his time putting these procedures to practical use as a member of Co. A, 1st Bn., 27th Inf. 1st Bde., 101st Airborne Div., stationed in Vietnam.
During this time Burniston received a Silver Star and the Army Commendation Medal.
As a member of a recon patrol, Burniston dragged a fellow NCO some 150 meters from enemy fire to safety after being wounded himself.
Upon completion of OC's Vietnam assignment he returned to Burniston hopes to return to Vietnam as an Infantry platoon leader "to help further the fight for freedom."
Once undertook as an enlistment man.

Post's Col. Gooch Retires Following Colorful Career

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney

Negotiating for the WWII surrender of a German city . . . landing with one of the first combat units in Korea . . . commanding and expanding the Ranger Mountain camp at Dahlonega . . . developing the Army's "pugil stick" for bayonet training . . . in charge of the Rangers in Action demonstrations for Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy.

These are some of the milestones in the 26 year Army career of Lt. Col. Christopher M. Gooch Jr. That career ended Wednesday during ceremonies on York Field in front of The Infantry School.

Col. Gooch, a native of Nashville, Tenn., had most recently served as commanding officer of the Memphis Subsector Command, Tennessee Sector, XII Corps.

A much decorated Infantry officer, his military service was always associated with the Army's basic fighting branch.

Started as EM

He began it as an enlisted man in the southern training camps in the earliest days of WWII. When the 79th Inf. Div. landed in France for the Normandy Campaign, Gooch was in its ranks, and received a battlefield commission during the thick of the fighting.

Shortly before V-E Day, the young Tennessean and two other Americans selected followed a German civil official into Duisberg, a Ruhr Valley city still held by the disintegrating Wehrmacht.

Gooch, then a first lieutenant and battalion intelligence officer, and the two enlisted men, both interpreters, were unfolded by a German patrol and taken to the Nazi command post.

Though polite and attentive to the American officer who had come to negotiate the surrender of Duisberg, the German commanders would not surrender the city until orders came to them from higher headquarters. The three Americans were returned safely to their lines, and it was only a matter of days before orders came to the Germans to surrender Duisberg.

Reentered Service

Lt. Gooch, wearing the Silver Star, the Bronze Star and a Purple Heart, left the Army in 1946, but reentered service during the Berlin Blockade three years later. In 1950, he saw his second war, this one in Asia, as a captain in the 25th Inf. Div. in Korea.

After tours at Fort Bragg, N. C., and Frankfurt, Germany, the then Maj. Gooch assumed command of the Ranger Mountain Camp at Dahlonega in 1958.

It was during his command of the camp was first expanded to its permanent status, with a water and sewage system, mess halls, six helicopter pads throughout the Chattahoochee National Forest, roads, electrical systems and plans for future buildings.

In 1959, he came to Fort Benning's Ranger Dept. as chairman of its combat conditioning committee. His responsibilities included all physical training at Fort Benning. Another project of his was to practice bayonet fighting. Two Presidents were among the thousands of Americans who have seen the Ranger - in - Action demonstrations. Gooch served as officer - in - charge of the demonstrations for several years. Another part of Ranger training that fell to his hand was a combat survival program still being used in the elite small-unit leaders training.

Col. Gooch and his wife Wanda have two sons, Christopher M. III, 18, and Damon K. 8. Their home address is 286 Harding Place, Nashville, Tenn.

Post Motor Pool Gives Legs of Doughboy Bigger Stride

One of the biggest in the Army — that's Fort Benning's Transportation Motor Pool. The pool controls and maintains nearly 2300 vehicles, ranging in size from motor scooters to 50-ton capacity trailers; it's drivers roll up a total of 5,400,000 miles each month; its services range from taxis for one passenger to convoys and larger sized battalions from one end of the reservation to the other.

The Motor Pool's chief mission is the support of the Infantry School, The Student Brigade and Army Training Center activities. Each day 48-passenger buses and 60 - passenger trailers, and 2½ ton trucks carry Officer Candidates, NCO Candidates, Airborne and Ranger, basic trainees and other officer and enlisted students to training ranges around post.

It's a seven-day a week, 24 - hour - a - day operation, but the peak comes just as in a large city, at the morning and evening rush hours, when school bus-runs swell the need for vehicles.

Biggest Task
While the TMP's biggest task involves the Infantry School, it supports many other post activities small in scope but very important to the post as a whole. Martin Army Hospital's ambulances are maintained at the Main Post TMP, as are Military Police cars. A shuttle bus service links Martin with Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church.

Five thousand students ride 37 buses each day, and many ride to Sunday School on the same vehicles.

Seven refrigerated trailers and many other trucks bring rations from the breakdown point to the company mess halls. Military taxis carry passengers on official business. The vehicles are concentrated on Main Post, where Bldg. 4 and Bldg. 35 generate the most traffic.

Good Record

And all this activity is conducted with an enviable safety record — the TMP's drivers have not had a fatality or an injury in the past 14 months.

The Motor Pool is one of the many activities of the Services Section, and comes under the direct control of the post's Transportation Office, Maj. R. L. Henry Jr., head of the Transportation Services Division. Acting motor pool officer and also, maintenance officer is James Pate.

Leonard Pate, no relative, is the operations officer, and on his shoulders fall the tasks of the daily dispatching and control of drivers and vehicles on the numerous commitments. An administration section keeps the records and statistics on the motor pools operation, and serves as bookkeeper.

The operation employs over 500 military and civilian employees, over two-thirds of whom are civilians.

4 Motor Pools
TMP operates four motor pools at Fort Benning and is responsible for vehicles used at the Mountain and Florida Ranger Camps. The largest pool is on Main Post, and includes the maintenance and supply activities, as well as one of the five fueling stations.

Also on Main Post is a pool for medium trucks, the Army's terminology for the tractor trailer rigs of 12-ton capacity and below. The other pools are at Sand Hill and the Post Engineers pool on Main Post. Sand Hill serves the Army Training Center and the Harmony Church area.

TMP operates both tactical and commercial type vehicles. The commercial type units trucks and cabs perform many of the utility tasks not requiring the four-wheel drive and cross-country capability of the Army's rugged tactical vehicles.

Most numerous vehicles in TMP are the familiar pickup truck, a commercial design, followed close by the deuce - and - a - half, a tactical vehicle.

The most popular type of vehicle, according to M. Sgt. Allen W. McClure, operations NCO, are the 4½-passenger buses, which carry students to the Infantry school classes and to the dependent schools located on the reservation. TMP has over 125 of these buses, as well as several of the older 27-passenger ones, many of which serve the Sand Hill area.

Driver Service
In addition to its own drivers the TMP provides "user - driver" service to many school departments of the Infantry School and to other post activities.

Good drivers are always in demand, and one of the TMP's tasks is to train and test new drivers for post activities out part of TOE-type units. The driver training section handles 1700 new licenses and renews each month for military and civilian employees on post.

Keeping the 2300 vehicles of the TMP and supported activities in top shape is the task of the Maintenance Section. The mechanics and technicians perform the usual daily and monthly inspections, as well as the more involved work of changing engines and transmissions. Other sections store and fix tires and batteries.

TMP at the Home of the Doughboy gives the legs of the Doughboy a longer and faster stride, living up to the motto of the Transportation Corps, "Mobility for Defense."

Young Benning WACs Foster Mother

The Women's Army Corps counts few mothers among its members, but 19-year-old PFC Patricia Kennett is proud to be a mother — for her daughter is a 13-year-old Korean child, Cha Ki Ja.

WAC OC's Plan Visit to Benning

The Women's Army Corps population at Fort Benning will almost double next week when a group of six WACs arrive here for a visit. They are students from the WAC Officer Candidate School (OCS) at Fort McClellan, scheduled to arrive on their visit.

The candidates will be allowed an opportunity to view some of the training of their counterparts in Infantry OCS here at Fort Benning. The WACs also will be given a briefing on the Infantry Center and school during the morning of Dec. 6.

When PFC Kennett was in high school in Corning, N.Y., her boy friend returned from a tour of duty in Korea and she found out that he had a daughter. She saw Ki Ja for the first time at Foster Parent's Plan, Inc. advertisement on television.

She sends $15 a month, eight of which goes to Ki Ja's family and the rest to Ki Ja's school and for extra supplies and clothes. PFC Kennett receives a monthly letter with a translated copy from Ki Ja and an annual report on the child's progress.

Cha Ki Ja is in the sixth grade. Her father died six years ago, leaving her mother and two boys, and two girls and two boys, sister here.

A Signal Corps member, PFC Kennett is presently working in the S-1 office. With her mother working, Center Troop Command.

Battalion Surgeon Credited Fast Action Stops Bubonic Plague

CHU LAI, (196th INFO-10) First professional action by a battalion surgeon and his staff and a preventive medicine team has been credited with preventing a bubonic plague epidemic in Quang Ngai Province south of here.

"My first suspicions of the lymph nodes, the symptoms of bubonic plague, in the area came late in the day," said Capt. Mike J. Scott, Jr., a surgeon with the 1st Bn., 327th Light Infantry, 196th Light Infantry Battalion. Upon examination, I was still not positive it was bubonic plague. "At that time we received eight cases of a disease causing fever and a swelling of any black spots, usually visible around the third day of the infection, from which the plague got its name of Black Death, so I still had doubts. Bubonic plague is not a disease to take a chance on, so we immediately immunized the entire village and the surrounding area."

Officer Offers Beer Reward

CHU LAI — Three cases of beer have been posted for the return of a steel pot with a lieutenant colonel's insignia on it—but many takers are not expected.

Lt. Col. Gerald Morse, commander of the 1st Bn., 327th Inf., was directing gunship fire and marking targets with tracer rounds when enemy automatic weapons fire chewed off the tail rotor of his command and control helicopter. The helicopter spiraled from 500 feet and the pilot gunned the engine to break the impact. "My steel helmet fell out as the ship came to a halt on its side," said Morse. "Then we heard enemy shouts as the NVA closed in."

The command and control helicopter of another battalion came to the rescue under fire, lifting the downed party with NVA only 30 meters away.

Army soldiers turned scouts assist the Vietnamese Scouting program throughout the Republic strengthening the international bond that is characteristic of scouting.

Government Officials Tell Of Capture By Viet Cong

CU CI, (25th INF-10) — Two South Vietnamese government officials kidnapped by Viet Cong recently told how they spent two days chained and blindfolded before escaping to a nearby 25th Inf. Div. unit. They were abducted from an outpost near Trang Bang, 25 miles northwest of Saigon. They told 2nd Bde. officials a story of midnight escape while shackled and held pursuant by their armed captors. Running all night through thick jungle despite their chains, the two men stumbled into the forward base camp of the 1st Bn., 27th Inf. shortly after dawn.

Little English. Knowing little English, they shouted "Chieu Hoi" to perimeter guards and held their hands above their heads as if surrendering.

OC Grads Told Officers Must Be Good Listeners

Brig. Gen. (ret.) Harlan L. Mumma spoke to 143 new lieutenant graduates of Officer Candidate Class No. 67 in a ceremony at Marshall Auditorium last week. Mumma said that the graduates were the general's grandson, 2nd Lt. James H. Hedding. The general was introduced by Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy, assistant commander of the Infantry School. Gen. Mumma's first words to the young officers were, "I salute you. You are well qualified and understood. You will be a better officer for being so," he said. "It will help you get close to your men," he noted, "and teamwork is essential for the success of your unit." Honor, leadership and discipline to your men," he said. "Academic graduate was 2nd Lt. David F. Komegaya and 2nd Lt. Bruce B. Brusas.

High Standards Required Of Drivers From Protocol

By Bill Harbin

There are many requirements which a soldier must meet before he is accepted as a driver for the Protocol Division of the office of the Secretary General Staff, US-AIC. Because of the high standards, many men are not accepted for the position, and few are accepted among those who do make application.

There are three drivers in the Protocol Office, and when attempting to describe this trio, words such as: versatile, safe, busy, clean, neat, courteous, efficient and intelligent all come to mind.

The drivers are used not only to chauffeur distinguished visitors to the post, but in addition to their driving duties these young men also wash and wax their sedans, load and unload luggage for their passengers, assist in various missions and perform countless other duties which are necessary for the efficient operation of the Protocol Office.

Long Days Common
For three specialists four, Jesus Morales, James Ham, and Bobby Frame, a 20-hour duty day is not uncommon. These drivers arise an hour before the person to whom they are assigned is awakened and are on the job for an additional hour after they leave their commitment for the night.

Presently three men are called upon to drive the visitors over the post on an orientation tour, and with their thorough knowledge of Fort Benning, they are capable of giving a concise briefing on activities relating to the visit, and have received many compliments for their efforts.

The trio averages 50,000 miles on their sedans a year, and all three boast perfect driving records. None of the three have ever received an article 15, a traffic citation or a Delinquency Report, and none has ever been involved in an accident.

All three have completed requirements for the Drivers' Rigid Tests.

The drivers, members of Co. B, 1st Bn, 42d, had to pass rigid checks on moral standards and appearance before their selection, and must now maintain the high standards required in order to keep their assignment.
All three of the men have had previous commercial driving experience in civilian life and had driven for the post motor pool prior to their assignment to Protocol. During the first eight

Maertens Is Fifth in Family to Attain Rank of Colonel

By Lt. David Leonard

On November 14 Col. Thomas B. Maertens pinned on the eagle on his full colonel's rank. The fifth member of his family to attain that rank, joining his father, stepfather and two brothers. And waiting in the wings is his son, Thomas Jr., now in his second year at West Point, his father's alma mater.

The colonel has long been associated with Fort Benning from the early thirties when his father was stationed here at the Infantry School in its old wooden buildings until the present when the new colonel sits at his desk in Infantry Hall, flanked by pictures of his father and Col. Thomas Maertens, deputy director of the Company Operations Dept., noted "I've lived in 11 of our quarters here. This is my thirty-fourth year at Benning, counting the days when I was a boy here and attended Patch School, and later, graduated from Columbus High."

The long line of colonels began when Kameil Maertens joined the Army and was commissioned during WWI. His death in 1943 airplane crash that killed five other full colonels ended a promising career. At his death he was a member of the staff of Gen. Leslie J. McNair, then Army Chief of Staff. He had distinguished himself as one of the nation's top marksmen while participating as a member of United States Infantry Rifle and Pistol teams during the National Rifle and Pistol matches held annually at Camp Perry, Ohio.

In his honor, a known distance rifle range at Benning was named Maertens Range. It is located near Harmony Church, southwest of the intersection of 1st Div. and Jamestown Roads.

Career Infantryman
The stepfather, Col. (ret.) Joseph K. Bush, a career infantryman, now lives in Washington, D. C. He attained full colonel during the WWII and commanded one of the regiments in the famous Americal Div. which only recently was activated again, formed in Vietnam from units fighting in the northern area of the war-torn country.

The two brothers, one a West Point, the other a graduate of Fort Benning's Officers School, are serving overseas. Col. George K. Maertens, an Infantryman, is senior advisor to the South Vietnamese 18th Div. Col. James E. Maertens, the OCS graduate, served as an infantryman but transferred to Military Intelligence, and now commands the 507th Army Security Agency Group in Europe.

Kameil Maertens came to Fort Benning in the early thirties as a lieutenant and served in the Weapons Dept. with officers like Omar Bradley, later to be General of the Army; Claudius M. Eastley, later a brigadier general, and Russell B. Reynolds, now a retired major general and author of the Officers' Guide publication.

After serving as coach in previous years, he captained the team in 1940. In that year, the rifle coach was Lt. John L. Throckmorton, now Lt. Gen. Throckmorton, commander of Third Army.

The team used the bolt-action 1903 Springfield rifle, firing at bulls-eye targets up to 1,000 yards away. The elder Maertens was also a bayonet instructor, and took part in the production of one of the early Army training films, which dealt with the bayonet.

Thomas Maertens was born in Alaska in 1924 while his father was stationed there. After Columbus High, he went on to West Point where he graduated in 1945. Col. Thomas Maertens served in Vietnam as executive officer of the 1st Div.'s "Iron Brigade" (3rd Brigade). His colonel lives only a few doors, a scant 30 yards, from his boyhood quarters. Marks, director of the Infantry School's Brigade and Battalion Operations Department.

Both arrived in Vietnam and left days apart. They led the brigade through some of the big operations — Attleboro, Junction City, and Manhattan.

Captain Tells of Experience as Prisoner of Castro

He immediately left the country and, arriving in Miami in 1959, requested asylum in the U.S.

Shortly after going to work in a Miami steel factory, Borrego began receiving training for the Bay of Pigs invasion. "We were flown in the dark to secret training sites — we didn't know where we were or who our instructors were," Borrego said. The exiles received intensive training in jungle techniques, amphibious assaults and weapons employment.

The invasion was launched from Nicaragua. Borrego was an artillery officer with 1500 men — there were only two tanks at the Bay of Pigs, he said. They hit the beach and quickly took their objectives. An airplane where the invaders set up headquarters, two bridges, the sugar refinery and the beach.

Out of Ammo
Three days later Borrego's force had exhausted its last round of ammunition. "Our American advisor told us to dig in and wait for resupply. For nine days we waited back and forth along the beach looking for a ship — a plane — anything. We watched out two supply ships sink just out of reach — they carried our food, ammunition and medical supplies. We waited and no one came. We had no food — no water — nothing."

On the ninth day the invaders were captured by Castro's men. "We were all in bad shape by then — no food or water or rest for nearly 10 days," Borrego was taken prisoner with two of his men in the swamp that borders part of the Bay of Pigs. He gave his name and former rank in the Cuban Army and his captors decided to keep him at Fort. For some unknown reason they didn't, and after a day of threats and interrogation

"We were tied spread-eagle on the ground all night. The fire they crawled a 100 meters over us, biting at the crabs, spiders and mosquitoes. It was horrible."

The next day a helicopter flew them to a headquarters where the captives were being collected. Borrego was looked up with ten other captives — a couple of lawyers, a few ex-Cuban Army officers, an ex-Castro major. For two days they endured intense interrogation and extreme punishment — physical beatings — who backed the invasion? — who paid for it? Who trained you? Where?

They refused to talk. They were thrown into the infamous prison Camp 5 of the Bay of Pigs, he said. "Who? Where? How? What? Why? How? How?"

Still the invaders refused to talk. They were thrown into the infamous prison Camp 5 of the Bay of Pigs, he said. "Who? Where? How? What? Why? How? How?"

Borrego received a full set of college text books, let out of a large room in the center of the prison. Borrego, but no medicine or inmost of the food sent by our families. To keep our sanity and make time pass "we laughed each other all we could — medicine, French, English, German, Italian, history and so forth." There was constant pressure and interrogation.

Then came the trial. Just before it, all books, letters, clothes, etc. were taken away. The emaciated men, ragged except for a pair of worn-out shoes, were herded into a large room in the center of the prison. Borrego, but no medicine or insaid that officials walked at them, trying to terrorize them into giving information. When they would not, the guards goaded them, and the pent-up anger of 1100 men erupted into fight. The guards opened fire and charged with bayonets fixed, and to sterilize a knife was gotten hold of. Then the doctor removed a bullet from a man's leg.

On Sept. 8, 1961 — an important Cuban Holy Day, the men were executed — we don't know why."

The United States paid the ransom demanded by Castro, and two years after Borrego was captured he was again free. The U.S. had paid $50,000 for his release. He arrived again in Miami on Dec. 14, 1962, and was commissioned by President Kennedy as a Marine Corps officer.

"Nine men are still in Camp 5 of the Bay of Pigs. I don't know why they are still there — they were not especially important in the invasion or to Castro," the captain said.

Soon after being commissioned, Borrego switched to the Army. He also married a nurse, Sofia Casiano, who also with her family escaped Castro. In 1966 Borrego went to Vietnam with the "Big Red One." There he received the Bronze Star twice for heroism and the Air Medal.

Soldier Seriously Injured As Car Crashes Into Wall

A Fort Benning soldier suffered a fractured skull, concussion and second-degree burns last week when his 1967 Rambler struck a brick wall on an intersection on Sightseeing Road. The car burst into flames after the crash.

The soldier was taken to Martin Army Hospital where he was reported in serious condition Wednesday.

This increase of traffic accidents, a National Driving Director, said his office was encouraging all soldiers and their families to participate in the third annual National Drivers Test. Nearly 60 million viewers have watched the National Drivers Test around the holidays that even time cannot remove. The 271st Avn. Co. along with the 361st Maint. Det. left for thirty days of field maneuvers at Mc Kean Airfield recently. The 108th Trans. Co. will accompany the unit to provide general aircraft support for the sixteen CH-47B helicopters presently assigned to the 271st. The 108th Trans. Co. will also supply maintenance support for the twenty-seven surface vehicles to be used during the operation.

The simulated combat operation will give each man in the unit a chance to familiarize himself with his duties, and should be engaged in actual combat. The men will receive on-the-job training in their related MOS and work together as a team for the first time since the 271st's organization. The operation will also serve as a trainer-refresher course for the companies' aviators, most of whom have previous combat experience in the Republic of Vietnam. There are, however, a number of pilots who have not yet participated in actual combat missions. Working in conjunction with the 271st will be the 7th and 8th weeks of December.

1400 Expected At AUSA Meet

By PFC Jay Ligon
Approximately 1,400 people are expected to attend the December 12 Association of U.S. Army dinner meeting at Fort Benning.
More than 700 reservations have been made, according to Sgt. Maj. Lawrence Kennedy, sergeant major of the Infantry School, and that many more are expected. The dinner — meeting will feature Gen. James K. Woolnough, CONARC commander, as guest speaker, and the U.S. Army Infantry Center band will entertain.
The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a social hour held in Hanger 2492. Parachutes will be used for decorating.

Hiring Freeze Not to Affect Post Civilians

A Department of the Army temporary "freeze" on the hiring of civil service employees will not affect those presently working at Fort Benning, it was announced here this week.
The calling on direct hire of civilian manpower has been lowered but no release of personnel presently on duty is anticipated.

Airborne Student Averts Disaster

By Jay Ligon
A quick-thinking airborne trainee averted a potential disaster here Wednesday by clutching a buddy whose parachute failed to open hundreds of feet above the ground.
PFC Jacob Abegg and John Nicholas were making the last jump of the course before receiving their airborne wings. When Abegg jumped from the plane, his parachute opened under the air and sent Nicholas plummeting toward the ground with a collapsed chute.
"I saw somebody about to fall," Abegg said, "and I acted by instinct. I grabbed the lines." Abegg held Nicholas dangling from the lines until they were drifted safely onto the drop plans in the office of the zone minutes later.

Nicholas said, "I wasn't too scared because it happened so fast that I didn't have time to think about it." Unshaken by the mishap which might have cost his life, Nicholas said, "I had two brothers who were airborne. I'm airborne all the way."
Maj. Eric Hawley, chairman of the ground committee, said that it was a freak accident but it has happened twice this year. "We teach these men to be mostly alert," he said, "so that they can handle these situations."
Col. Lamar Welch pined the airborne wings on the two men shortly after their last jump and congratulated them for "a job well done."

THE OTHER FACES OF OCS . . . Spit and polish is the prevailing image of officer candidates at Fort Benning, but there's another side to the demanding 23-week course. This OC, grizzled and looking very much the field soldier, had just returned from five days of Ranger training in the piney barrens and clay gullies of Quitman County. Turn to page 26 for OC James Benfield's photographic look at "the other OCS."

Center to Begin Holiday Schedule

The Infantry Center will shift to a half-day duty schedule December 18 as thousands of Fort Benning soldiers, including men in their first weeks of basic combat training, head home for the holidays.
Military duty hours for December 18 through January 2 will be from 8 a.m. to noon, take leave.
Commanders and section chiefs have been instructed to approve the maximum number of leaves for permanent duty soldiers, consistent with their missions.
Training will be suspended at The Infantry School and at the Army Training (See HOLIDAY, Page 2)

Center during the holiday period. Some classes scheduled to graduate December 18-20 will follow normal schedules until the course is completed, however.

Men who have arrived at the Reception Center for basic training after December 4 are being processed and offered Christmas leave prior to beginning their eight weeks of basic on January 3.

These new soldiers will be oriented on the proper wear of a uniform and allowed to wear greens on leave if they wish. They will, however, be encouraged to wear civilian clothes.

Several cycles of basic trainees will be granted leave during their basic. They will return to the ATC to complete it after the holidays.

Award

In addition to the Best Production award, the Judges, Mrs. Lila Kennedy, Dr. Baldwin Burroughs and Robert Porterfield, bestowed four other awards upon the playhouse production. Spec. 4 Thomas Dickmann's portrayal of Edward Albee's "George" won the Best Actor award.

Mrs. Danny Murdoch was honored as the Best Supporting Actress. PFC Robert

Freeze

Hammel was the Best Set Designer and an honorable mention was given to Spec. 4 Michael Costello for his performance as Nick.

The judges return to Fort Benning sometime in January to view presentation of these awards and those won by the other installations at an awards ceremony. Representatives from Third Army headquarters and the winners in all categories of the tournament will assemble to honor those whose performances have been judged the highest.

The Benning Playhouse plans to produce more plays of this caliber in the future.

Freeze

Army's fiscal year ends June 30.

Fort Benning officials expect normal attrition, through resignations, retirements, deaths, etc., to offset any effect of the hiring "freeze."

Applicants tentatively selected for employment at Fort Benning will be given maximum consideration as vacancies occur after employment ceilings are reached.

Applications for employment will continue to be accepted for those positions covered by examination announcements.

Christmas and deaths

By PFC Mickey Sneed
The Christmas Holiday season is fast closing in on us. The usual shoppers are observed scurrying here and there with only the thought of getting their shopping done and the gifts wrapped in time for Christmas.

In addition to remembering one another with gifts and to spreading the holiday goodwill, the carefree spirit of Christmas can be converted into a horrible tragedy.

Statistics point to the fact that the traffic accident and death count during the Christmas-New Year holiday season exceeds that of any other period in the year.

Lead Charmed Life
In spite of the danger created by more motorists, and more pedestrians, particularly after dark when traffic hazards multiply, many people seem to operate on the theory that they lead some sort of charmed existence—utterly immune to traffic accidents.

If only these overconfident motorists or pedestrians were right, but they are not right and many of them will fall prey to a traffic mishap.

It is easy to forget those tragedies which occur over special holiday periods throughout the year, particularly if none of the victims were known to us.

Fall to Benefit
In fact, we forget these incidents so completely that we fail to benefit from whatever lesson they may have carried.

The average person who has been in an accident is apt to blame fate, bad luck, or the "other guy" for involving and causing his misfortune. Admit the truth... the accident came about because of your own carelessness, or negligence, or otherwise poor driving attitude.

As you approach the Christmas Season with its message of peace on earth—good will toward men, conduct yourselves in a manner which will not contribute to any deaths, but will disclose your sincere regard for the welfare of our fellow man.

Surgeon Says

Talking can not solve overweight problems

How often have you heard these statements? "My father and mother each weigh over 200 pounds. It's no wonder I'm overweight." Or "I've tried so many diets and none work for me." Or "I'm on a new diet and I can eat all I want and lose weight."

Overweight people are concerned about the problem and they talked about it. They have heard of the health hazards from overweight and the adjustments they should make in their eating habits. They would like to do something to lose weight and they are hoping to find an easy way. This is their undoing and one reason why few of us flourish temporarily year after year.

To name a few, fletcherizing, chewing each mouthful 32 times... sounds ridiculous, but it was followed for a while. We have had egg diets, banana diets, three-day prune diets, grapefruit diets, drinking man's diets and you can name a few more. As new fads in dieting appear, it is necessary to say again that safe and consistent weight loss can be attained only by reducing food intake.

You will gain weight if the number of calories you take in averages more than the number of calories your body uses, and you will lose weight if calories in are less than calories out. Not very complicated nor acceptable to many who are looking for a quick and easy way.

Caloric requirements for weight control vary from one person to another for several reasons; such as age, sex, physical activity, climate and body build. Consider age for example; after age 25, "the rate at which your body lives," which your metabolism begins to slow down and you need less food to maintain desirable weight than when you were 18. If you continue to eat as you did at 18, you will become overweight.

Now that Thanksgiving is over you may be well motivated to lose that extra weight. You may want to try the safe, varied diet restricted in calories and planned to train your appetite. Weight reducing diets prescribed in Army Hospitals include foods from six food lists: milk, meat, fruit, vegetable, bread and fat. Foods may be substituted within each list to provide meals you will enjoy.

By following the meal pattern prescribed by your physician and explained in interview by your dietitian, you will have a diet which is healthy and will cause you to lose weight gradually. Gradual weight loss will help you establish a program of weight control if you make weight control a personal habit, you will not have a weight problem in coming years.

"WOULD YOU BELIEVE... YOU'RE GOING TO LOSE CAMP TO THE POW. CAMP?"

New products, methods give no excuse for dental neglect

Anesthetics used in dentistry have changed considerably in recent years. Newer products not only provide deeper, more desirable anesthetic levels, but also eliminate unpleasant after effects.

There are tranquilizers to calm and soothe the disturbed and apprehensive individual, new drugs to reduce swelling and many other recent developments to make dentistry more pleasant.

A frequently heard excuse for dental neglect is the statement, "My teeth aren't worth saving." Actually, the patient is rarely qualified to make such a decision alone. He or she needs the professional advice of a dentist, advice which can be given only after a thorough examination of the teeth and surrounding tissues.

The dental profession has at its command many new techniques and methods for preserving natural teeth. It is urged that the patient's utmost to maintain his dentition being aware, as he is, that artificial teeth are a poor substitute for the natural organs.

Finally, it must be emphasized that only rarely is it "too late" to save the teeth. Today the dental profession is preserving many teeth that only a few short years ago, would have been extracted as hopelessly beyond salvage. With an ever broadening knowledge of the causes and treatment of oral disease and the cooperation of the enlightened patient, the teeth will assuredly last throughout one's lifetime as indeed they were intended to.

The Judge Will Address Local Group

Skepticism often causes bad lawyer-client relation

One of the most disturbing features of legal assistance was encountered by attorneys engaged in such work in their neighborhood. It is not uncommon to have a client ask whether lawyer X is honest, or to bear a client's state that, "You know, I think I'll go lawyer Z; he's a real shyster and will take my case."

An even more disturbing situation is encountered when a person comes to the legal assistance office after they have employed an attorney to check on whether he is doing "a good job" or given "good advice." Another disturbing and common complaint by individuals is that the fee required by the attorney engaged by them is excessive.

Good Relationship
However, confidence in the attorney is not alone sufficient to have a good attorney-client relationship. As it is necessary for the client to have confidence in the attorney, so it is necessary to have the attorney believe the client. An attorney who does not believe his client is completely honest will not do good for a client to be or color the facts of his case when he tells them to his attorney.

Discouraging
The situations just described are undeniably discouraging to lawyers who do legal assistance work. The vast majority of individuals who do this sort of thing demonstrate a complete lack of understanding of the law and the administration of justice as well as the role of the lawyer. The practice of law is and has traditionally been considered a profession. Those engaged in the profession are required to give very strict moral and educational requirements.

All lawyers recognize their role is to perform a service for their clients. This service is performed within the framework of the Canons of Ethics of the legal profession. A breach of the Canons of Ethics is not tolerated and in the few instances that they do occur are subject to very serious consequences.

Along these same lines, no one questions the importance of the fee the client must pay. Attorneys, like other individuals, have expenses and families to support. Thus, no one would expect that they are entitled to a fee for the valuable service they render.

Mutual Confidence
When an individual employs an attorney probably the most important aspect of the relationship is mutual confidence. If a client has no confidence in his attorney or feels he is losing confidence in him he should not hesitate to bring this out into the open with him. If there is a total lack of confidence, probably the best thing to do is to employ another attorney whom the client has confidence in.

If the client feels he is losing confidence in his attorney because he does not understand what he is

Civic Leader Will Address Local Group

A Savannah business and civic leader will address the monthly meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA) December 14, in the Supper Club of the Main Officers Club.

Phil W. Beckwith, manager of community and customer relations, Union Camp Corporation, will speak at the noon luncheon on "The History and Development of Packaging and Its Impact on Our Modern Day Economy."

A graduate from Porter Military Academy, Charleston, S.C., and Georgia Tech, Beckwith is a member of the Fort Benning Management Association (AFMA) December 14, in the Supper Club of the Main Officers Club.

The Armed Forces Management Association is a non-profit, professional organization dedicated to the improvement of management throughout the Defense establishment. The 125-member Fort Benning chapter is one of 24 of the national organization with a total of 2650 members.

Chapter membership for Fort Benning, during its 12-year history, has been expanded to include not only key military and civilian members at Fort Benning, but to executives of industry and educational institutions in the Columbus area.

Boost for cystic fibrosis

Child-killing Cystic Fibrosis is under attack as never before—in Columbus and throughout the nation. A Columbus headquarters had been set up to carry the fight in this area. And doctors have discovered a cheering new technique to detect the disease in the newborn.

Formerly, children were mysteriously sick with the disease, which defied diagnosis. Cystic Fibrosis rendered them defenseless against other ills. There was little hope they'd live out their teen years. Today, the outlook is much brighter.

Columbus area parents of a Cystic Fibrosis child now have a place to turn. It is the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation's new office, headed by Mrs. Fred L. Bryson at 1220 Second Ave., Columbus.

"Information and assistance are available to every one—military and civilian—through the Foundation's program," Mrs. Bryson said.

To support the war against C.F., the Columbus unit has planned an education-fund campaign December 9 and 10, with volunteers canvassing the city. Funds will be used to finance treatment and research.

Life Expectancy Lengthened

As recently as 10 years ago, most C-F children died before reaching school age. Today with early diagnosis and expert treatment, many affected youngsters stand a good chance of living beyond their teens.

C-F is at present, without a cure. Research is in progress to pinpoint the exact deficiency or error in hope of being able to supply what the body needs to correct it.

The disease affects only humans, so it cannot be studied in animals.

Life in full span is still beyond the reach of even those relatively active teen-age C-F victims who can know many normal experiences. But researchers work with the hope that a breakthrough will come against this disease—possibly in the next decade.

The schedule for 1968 includes: Apollo/Saturn 204, the first unmanned test of the Lunar Module in earth orbit; Apollo/Saturn 205, second unmanned flight test of the Saturn 5 launch vehicle and Apollo Command and Service Modules; Apollo/Saturn 206, third unmanned test of the Saturn 5 and Command and Service Modules; Apollo/Saturn 207, first Apollo manned flight, a 10-day mission qualifying the Command and Service Modules for further manned operations.

CG ADDRESSES NCO WIVES

Distaff members of Fort Benning's "family" were greeted by Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, as they gathered in Marshall Auditorium Wednesday morning to begin one of two scheduled NCO Wives Orientation Tours.

Following the general's welcome the ladies saw a presentation of the "I Am the Infantry" tableau, received a "family" theme as he quoted parts of the speech President Johnson made here during his visit November 10.

The President said, "Fort Benning is a family . . . the people here walk proud and tall. You can feel the warmth of pride that binds them. They stand together, giving and taking strength, sharing gallantry and grief, closing ranks in common love of country and loyalty to its cause."

Gen. Wright's welcoming remarks considered around the "family" theme as he quoted parts of the speech President Johnson made here during his visit November 10.

A similar tour for additional wives of NCOs E-4 through E-7 rank, is scheduled for Friday, December 15, beginning at 9:15 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium. Units are allocated quotas for wives' attendance.

As they watched the demonstrations of training, the wives expressed their views on what the Fort Benning tour meant to them. One NCO wife, Mrs. James Wilson, said, "My husband recently returned from Vietnam and my son had Airborne training here. My husband encouraged me to come, and I'm glad that he did. This tour is giving me a chance to see what my husband and my son have experienced."

Another wife, Mrs. Raiford Duan, perhaps summed it up when she added, "It's a real 'inside view' to what 'they're' doing."

OVER $50,000

Did you know that Social Security payments to families have in some cases exceeded $50,000?

He's the only one who flies more places than we do.

(We can help you beat him to your home and loved ones.)

The best way is to fly United Air Lines. We have more seats on more flights to more U.S. cities than any one else. In U.S. uniform, with military leave authority, you can fly United as a military stand-by for just 50% of the regular Coach fare. This also applies within 7 days of discharge. You can sit wherever the seats are—even First Class when the other seats are filled.

Most of the time it's easy getting home this way, but during December things can get a little tight. You might prefer making a reservation, just to be on the safe side.

But whichever way you choose, we hope you come to United first. There's no better way to get in the Christmas spirit than by flying home for the holidays in the friendly skies of United.

PWOC to Mark 10th Anniversary

The Protestant Women of the Chapel (PWOC) will be celebrating their 10th Anniversary Wednesday with a round-the-world Christmas tour.

The celebration is to begin at noon in the Religious Education Center, Bldg. No. 2005 with a salad luncheon. A program featuring the music and customs of six countries will follow. "Silent Night" sung in Japanese will be presented by Mrs. Gordon Luce, Mrs. Herbert Merriman, Mrs. Joe Burgess, Mrs. Robert Fushion, Mrs. Frank Spiers and Mrs. David Popham.

Frau Karl H. Von Wulffen will share the customs of Christmas in Germany. Mrs. Robert Shannon will sing a French carol and tell of Christmas in France. Mrs. Warren S. Goodwin will present the English Christmas customs of the Yule log and plum pudding.

Italian traditions will be explained by Mrs. Charles Love. Mrs. John Allen will tell how the Christmas customs of these countries have contributed to our holiday customs. PWOC invites all women in the area to "bring along a salad" and join in their anniversary celebration.

Protestant Women of the Chapel of Fort Benning was begun in December, 1957, when Chaplain Albert C. Widman, who had been inspired by PWOC chapters in all areas of the post, the Europe, led in the organization of the first chapter, the Student Brigade chapter, the Army Training Center chapter, the Evening Center chapter, the Episcopal Ladies chapter and the Spanish-Speaking chapter.

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels

For Mrs. Ronald L. Johnson, president of the Fort Benning Center Protestant Women of the Chapel (PWOC), everything has a connection with singing.

Singing is a constant part of her life. "Music is the biggest thing in my life. God gave me my voice and I feel that I should use it for Him," she explains. She especially enjoys singing sacred music, although she also enjoys singing blues, popular music and country music. She stresses that she strives "to sing all music well."

After coming to Fort Benning, she joined the Officers' Wives Club's choral group, the "Polka Dots," the group to which she was named the Ted Mack Amateur Hour. One thing led to another as other members of the "Polka Dots" discovered her talents and told her of other opportunities for singing. Now she sings with the choir of the St. Luke Methodist Church in Columbus.

Sang in Opera
Last October she sang in a comedy opera for the Orphan Club in Columbus. After the Christmas holidays, she plans to join the Choral Guild in Columbus.

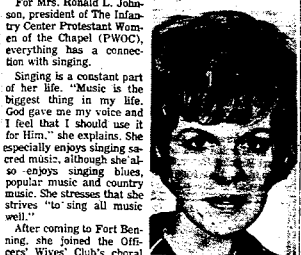

Because she has always been involved in religious activities, she quickly became involved in the activities of the PWOC. Her work as president of the Infantry Center Chapter of PWOC involved presiding at meetings, being a representative at the PWOC council and literally hours and hours of telephone calls.

Mrs. Johnson feels very deeply about all of her activities here. "I want to do everything well," she says.

Music and Religion
Music and religion have long been ingrained in her life. She grew up in Missouri and in Chicago, Ill. Her parents were both singers and literally, her whole family tree included instrumentalists and vocalists. As a result, music was a constant part in her home. By the time she was nine, a music teacher had discovered her singing talent and encouraged her to sing with the Chicago Children's Opera Guild. The director of her church choir and teacher of the famous Norman Luboff later encouraged her to study music at the Chicago Conservatory of Music. She also frequently sang for USO shows in Chicago.

She studied voice for two years at the conservatory, but she says, "I didn't understand the importance of the study of the theory of music. Consequently, I let this most important phase of music slip by."

Attended Bible College. Later she attended the Milwaukee Bible College and the Moody Bible Institute. There, teachers continued to give her encouragement in her study of music.

MRS. R. JOHNSON Loves to Sing

Through her many activities, her courses of study at the Christian schools, and her upbringing in both a rural community and in a large city, she has found that she has gained a deep understanding of people. "Being able to work with and to understand people is an important asset in any realm. I feel that my life has afforded me an opportunity to gain this important knowledge of people," she adds.

A large part of this knowledge of people has come as a result of her training at the Christian colleges, her subsequent counseling of young people, and through her later most interesting job as assistant to a plastic surgeon in Indianapolis.

'Yule Exercises' Relieve Tension

By Louise Domashevsky
Are you beginning to feel that you are the main contestant in the December olympics? Shopping, writing cards, wrapping gifts and baking cookies leaves most of us feeling like tense, defeated athletes. You can get back in the running with more vigor and vim if you stop to do a few "revitalizing exercises" such as:

Tassel Stretch: Rise up on your toes, arms up, with your hands try to touch the ceiling. Drop arms. Relax. Do 10 times.

Holiday Bends: Bend down from the waist, hands reaching for the floor. Stretch until you can touch the floor with the palms of your hands (no, I'm not kidding). You may not be able to on the first few tries, but with practice you will. Bend down as far as you can comfortably, and before you know it . . .

Santa Strug: Lift the shoulders to the ears and hold for 10 seconds. Relax. Repeat 10 times.

Gourmet Delights: A quarter cup of sherry in stewed apricots makes a top-notch dessert . . . add slivers of kumquat, peel and all, to fruit cocktail for merry eating. . . .

Soak ground blanched almonds with grated lemon rind and melted butter. Sprinkle over cooked spinach and broil until lightly browned.

Tiptoeing thru the Milky Way: Here are a few additional shopping hints from:

"These Chicken Days"
1/2 cup uncooked rice
1 pkg. vegetable soup mix
1 (14 oz.) jar chicken broth
1 cup oil fryer
1 can cream of chicken soup

Place rice in buttered casserole. Add fryer pieces. Sprinkle soup mix over chicken. Spoon on cream soup. Cover and bake 350 degrees for one and one half hours. In exchange Mrs. Leben would like a recipe for "no-bake fruitcake."

If you have a favorite recipe you would like to share with our readers, send it along with your name and address to: THE BAYONET, Infantry Hall, Fort Benning, Ga.

MRS. MENZI PRACTICES FOR 'NUTCRACKER' Has Three Roles in Le Petit Production (Photo by PFC Howard Allen)

Ballet 'Revitalizing' Hobby For 'Nutcracker' Dancer

BY JANE DANIELS
Many women describe a new exercise or a new hobby as "revitalizing." One of Fort Benning's wives, Mrs. Sonia Menzi, has found that the upcoming "Nutcracker" ballet production has been a real revitalization by recalling a way of life that she, her husband, had been put "on the shelf" for the past 11 years. Once a ballerina in Mannheim, Germany, Mrs. Menzi literally "grew up" with ballet. She started ballet at age six by dancing in children's operettas in the ancient Mannheim Theater. "I practiced four days a week, four hours a day. It seems perhaps, too much now," she adds, "but it wasn't then."

Group Dancer
After World War II, she danced her way into a contract as a group dancer with the city's ballet company. At 20, she started in her first role as BAYONET of the Le Petit solo ballerina. During this Ballet Co. at Fort Benning time, she also studied piano and voice at the conservatory at Mannheim.

A few of the ballets in which she danced were "Swan Lake," "The Nutcracker Suite," "Peter and the Wolf," "Carmina Burana," and "Catalini Carmina." She also sang as Esmeralda in the opera, "The Barber of Seville," and performed in the operas, "Aida," and "Carmen."
Put Ballet Aside
After she was married, she fulfilled her contract with the local theater, but in 1946, she decided to put aside ballet for a complete dedication to homemaking.
Only since coming to Fort Benning did she entertain the idea of again pursuing ballet, and only then at the insistence of her husband, Capt. Ralph Menzi. It was after Capt. Menzi read in the local paper that she had a complete dedication to homemaking.

'Redleg' Event Set Tomorrow At Main Club

Fort Benning's Artillery officers will gather in force to improve right at the Main Officers' Club for their annual Artillery Ball.
Over 250 "Redlegs" and guests will be on hand for the traditional special outing, which features dinner, dancing, entertainment and special awards. Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, will be guest of honor.
Col. Robert E. Hall, Infantry Center headquarters commandant, and Col. Arthur V. Corley, commander of the 16th Sp. Gp. will serve as co-hosts of the ball. All Fort Benning artillery units will be represented.

Entertainment for the evening will be provided by the Infantry Chorus, Lt. Col. Doka, the Statesmen band and the Dixie By-Gones.

The Polka Dots are members of the Officers' Wives' Club. The By-Gones represent the local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing of America.

In keeping with tradition, the outside of the club will feature a display of several types of artillery weapons, including 105 and 155-millimeter howitzers, Honest John missiles and searchlights.

General committees have been planning for the ball for weeks under the coordination of Maj. Ross Farrarson, project officer. Commandant Maj. Charles M. Robertson, 10th Avn. Co., and Capt. Robert Thompson, 10th Avn. Co., are also on the decorations; Maj. Thomas Miller, Arty. Committee, Invitations and programs; and Capt. Robert Barnhart, Arty. Committee, facilities.

Children Tour Benning On Yule Caroling Visit

The sound of youthful voices singing Christmas carols rang in the air Saturday evening when a group of military youngsters toured Fort Benning and Columbus to spread happiness and goodwill. Youths, ages 10 to 18, rode by bus to visit numerous places including the home of Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Martin Army Hospital, Columbus Stockade and various bachelors and officers quarters on post.

The group sang a medley of carols led by Mrs. Ruth I. Retzalk, wife of S. Sgt. Frederick M. Retzalk who is slated for reassignment to Vietnam soon. The carolers met at the Retzalk home where buses picked them up, and returned them after the evening's caroling. Two "angels" traveled with the group. They were twin sisters, Darlene and Melvyn, daughters of SFC and Mrs. Harold Craven.

The carolers proved to themselves and others, that the Christmas season is a time to remember the saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," Mrs. Retzalk said.

OVER 40 YEARS . . . A 41-year dedication to duty was recorded during a recent ceremony as Mrs. Allie M. Miles, right, retired from service at the Quartermaster Laundry, Mrs. Miles, who began work in Laundry No. 1 on March 1, 1926, was awarded a certificate of achievement from Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, a letter of appreciation from the laundry manager Samson Chai, and an engraved silver platter from fellow employees. The certificate and letter were presented by Col. C. W. Youngman, director of logistics of The Infantry Center.

By Lt. Col. Bob Wess, USAF
THE BATTLE FOR PEAK HARBOR
Published by Donald MacIntyre, Edited by W. W. Norton Co., Inc. at $6.
The attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, not only plunged the U.S. into World War II but also the greatest naval war in history. The Japanese began the battle for the Pacific with something of an edge—their main carriers were used. Pacific Fleet had been knocked out. Our aircraft carriers were used because they simply were not there. MacIntyre takes what most by a consensus view of Pearl Harbor, the opinion is that had any of the battleships been saved from the attack they would have been assigned to make up considerable part of the fleet. The Japanese navy, the only modern and effective navy in the Pacific and the carrier and what the aircraft carriers had done in the Pacific and the Atlantic. As a non-partisan, naval author, MacIntyre's book makes a good case in a good fashion for a very interesting and worthwhile book.

Officers' Club Is Scene Of OWC Fashion Show Party Set for College Students

If wives in the audience at the recent Officers' Wives' Club fashion show at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Club could have coined a title for their reaction, in probability, "Wish I could find that beautiful fashion under my Christmas tree," would have been it. The show and the wives' thoughts had Christmas parties and holiday giving in mind as the models, Mrs. David Edson, Mrs. Walter Wesley, Mrs. Marshall Stog, Mrs. Dan Martin and Mrs. John Dompe, showed off their new clothes. Fashions were presented by a Columbus dress store's Club, the evening will feature a pizza and soft drink feast and dancing for Fort Benning college students and their guests.

Pensioners Must Return Questionnaires on Income

ATLANTA—Some 45 thousand veterans and widows in Georgia who last year received over $4 million dollars in pension payments from the Veterans Administration are reminded they must report their 1967 income and widows in 1967 and go later than Jan. 31, 1968.

Pete Wheeler, Georgia Veterans Service Director, said, "The VA must have this information to determine whether pensions will decrease, increase or remain the same.

Failure to complete and return the questionnaire, which will be enclosed in the December 1 payments, will result in suspension of the benefits."

He added that this regulation is not to be confused by those veterans and widows receiving compensations for service-connected disabilities and deaths; that this applies only to veterans and widows receiving pensions and indemnity compensation. Field office managers of the Georgia Department of Veterans Services are specially prepared to assist veterans and widows in completing the income forms, which must be mailed to the VA no later than Jan. 31, 1968.

EARNING LIMIT
Q. I have heard that you can not earn more than $1500 after you start drawing Social Security. Is this so?
A. There is a good deal of misunderstanding about the Social Security retirement test. The law says if a retiree earns $1500 or less a year he is able to receive all of his Social Security checks. If he earns between $1500 and $2700 for every two dollars earned over $1500 his check is reduced one dollar.

Restrictions Removed On WAC Promotions

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The U. S. Senate has approved a bill that would remove promotion restrictions on women officers in the Armed Forces.

The bill which also has been passed by the House of Representatives, has been forwarded to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The bill would bring women officers under the general retirement and promotion statutes that apply to male officers.

"Fundamentally, the purpose of the bill is to remove inconsistent and inequitable legislative restrictions on the career opportunities available to our women officers," Senator Strom Thurmond said. "It would be passed."

The bill would authorize a woman to be appointed as a general or flag officer. Currently the highest grade a woman can hold is colonel.

RETIREMENT BENEFITS
Q. I was born in 1940. How many years of work will I need to be eligible for retirement benefits under Social Security?
A. You will need 10 years (40 calendar quarters) which is the most required of any worker for retirement benefits. After a person has achieved 40 quarters of employment or self-employment, he is considered to be insured for life which means that even if he fails to continue working he is assured of receiving monthly Social Security benefits upon reaching retirement age.

The bill also would remove restrictions on the number of women who may hold higher grades.

"This legislation is not a promotion bill," Senator Thurmond said. "It does not guarantee anyone a promotion. However, it does provide a woman officer filling an important billet the opportunity to advance to the rank appropriate to the billet she is holding."

Letter by Soldier Captures Unusual Holiday Spirit

By PFC Mickey Smead

In an unfinished letter to his cousin written Nov. 22, 1965, a soldier described his feeling for those who lost a member of their family in the Vietnam war.

His description of the Columbus community and the men who fight for our country had no duty on the other three days. For the first time since I started OCS I got close to eight hours sleep per night. Usually I average about four hours.

Home of Cav
As you probably knew from reading the newspapers, Fort Benning is the home of the 1st Cav. Div. (Air Mobile), which has been engaged in some of the toughest fighting of the Vietnam war. This weekend for the first time I got to see for myself the impact of the war on those left behind.

It is a strange feeling to walk the quiet streets of a city in mourning for its loved ones lost. Where families should have been together for the Thanksgiving day, and we had no duty on the other three days. For the first time since I started OCS I got close to eight hours sleep per night. Usually I average about four hours.

Who is right?
A. Both. Actually they are talking about two different deductibles. The $40 deductible applies to a 90 day spell of illness under part A hospital insurance benefits. The $50 deductible concerns medical bills during a calendar year under part B supplementary medical insurance benefits.

Column Attempts to Find Answer to Viet Questions

Several hundred thousand people in South Vietnam, collectively known as the Viet Cong (Vietnamese for "Vietnamese Communists"), are engaged in a violent effort to overthrow the government of that country.

What was the situation which gave rise to the development of the Viet Cong? Who are its leaders? How do they operate? The BAYONET seeks to answer these and related questions with a seven-part series beginning this week.

The Viet Minh from the close of World War II to 1954, Communist-led local forces known as the Viet Minh (Revolutionary League for the Independence of Vietnam) fought to expel France from Vietnam and other parts of Indochina.

The Viet Minh, like the present National Liberation Front (NLF), was a front organization including non-Communists; real power, however, always remained with the Communists.

Ho Chi Minh, present ruler of North Vietnam, organized and directed the Viet Minh movement. This veteran Communist was born in 1890 in North Vietnam. In 1921 he was a founding member of the French Communist Party. Fluent in French, English, Russian, and Chinese, he later spent years as an agent of the Communist International (Comintern). From a base in South Vietnam, he organized the Viet Minh movement toward the close of World War II.

Japanese troops in Indochina surrendered to Chinese, British, and American forces at the end of World War II, and shortly thereafter French authorities resumed control. The Viet Minh and non-Communist nationalists, in collaboration with the Viet Minh, fought the French for years. Finally, after the defeat of French forces at Dien Bien Phu, France conceded independence to Indochina.

China at the Geneva settlement of 1954. The Geneva agreements divided the Vietnamese portion of Indochina at the 17th parallel. A French Communist Minh, assumed control at Hanoi. Under the armistice provisions some 600,000 Vietnamese fled the North and sought the safety of the South. Roughly 100,000 of the Viet Minh moved from the South to the North, while an undetermined but large number remained behind.

Needle New Weapon For Pistol Champion

Maj. Richard B. Stoltz has laid his pistol down and gone to war. He is fighting a different battle with cringes fasten of hardball ammunition and Indian enemy often more elusive than "Carley." He turned down a lot of big-time shooting to get the job. Stoltz — a medical service corps officer and one of the Army's leading pistol marksmen — is the senior medical advisor to 1 Corps of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam, a force of more than two divisions operating in the five northernmost provinces of the country.

He also advises the commanding officer of the 1,200-bed Duy Tan General Hospital, one of two general hospitals operated by the Vietnamese Army.

Top Assignment "This is the most important assignment I've ever had," he says. "Competitive marksmanship is just a well-established hobby."

The former instructor at the Army's Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., is pretty good at his "hobby."

He has stacks of pistol shooting trophies. He recently turned down a billet on the Team — the unit that represents the U.S. Army in national and international competition.

As a shooter, Stoltz was the first man to fire a perfect 45-caliber slow fire score in the All Army Pistol Team Match here. He did that in 1962 as a member of the 4th Army. The perfect target is one of his "most prized possessions."

During those matches and some 200 others — including the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio — he also won a National Rifle Association lifetime rating as a distinguished master pistol shot and has been designated as a member of the NRA's 500 Club.

(The club, an honorary organization, is closed to all except those who have scored more than 2,000 points of the possible 2,700 over the three-pistol — 22, .38 and .45 National Match Course.)

Stoltz, a 35-year-old native of Indianapolis, Ind. — who has settled in San Antonio, Tex., with his wife, Joan — has been shooting since 1922. He broke into national competition.

BOND QUIZ Question: Can I name my 10-year-old son as a co-owner of Savings Bonds and gain a tax advantage for his education? Answer: No, the plan requires purchasing the bonds in your son's name.

petition in 1961 and 1962 first as a member of the 7th Army Support Command Team and later as a member of the team fielded by the U.S. Army in Europe (USAEUR).

He also advises the commanding officer of the 1,200-bed Duy Tan General Hospital, one of two general hospitals operated by the Vietnamese Army.

He still hopes to represent the United States in international competition "about the ultimate honor, a competitor can receive."

'Birddog' Pilot Directs Strikes Killing 22 VC

An Army "Birddog" pilot of the 183rd Recon. Airplane Co. directed airstrikes on enemy positions recently that resulted in 22 VC killed and seven bunkers destroyed.

While flying a normal reconnaissance mission in Binh Thuan Province, 115 miles northwest of Saigon, 1st Lieutenant Fred C. Hankinson, Leesburg, Fla., spotted seven VC in foxholes. The foxholes were well camouflaged with dark vegetation blending in with the terrain, but movement caught Hankinson's eye. He immediately called in enemy positions with marking rockets as the Air Force fighters came in to make their strike. Results of the strike were seven VC killed and three enemy bunkers destroyed.

Hankinson's second mission that day placed him flying low ship with an Air Force forward air controller as his high ship over enemy terrain.

Flying over a suspected large bunker complex, his Bird Dog took ground fire and one round hit the left wing flap. Airstrikes were immediately called in and stayed on the scene for the next two hours. Sky spots were combined throughout the night to spotlight enemy ground activity. The next morning a ground force found a total of 15 VC dead and 4 large tin-covered enemy bunkers with huge storage jars completely destroyed.

Data Chief Is Chosen 'Civilian of the Week'

This week as the beacon sweeps over the Infantry Center, the spotlight focuses on Charles B. Gay, chief of Data Systems Div., of the Comptroller's office.

A native of Georgia, he has been employed in Civil Service at Fort Benning since Aug. 28, 1940.

He originally went to work as a clerk in Cost Accounting with the Post Engineer. Other jobs which he held while in Cost Accounting were supervisory clerk (cost accounts) and accountant (auditor).

In May of 1954, Gay started to work as an accountant (auditor) in Internal Review, office of the Comptroller. Job titles Gay has held since 1954 are supervisory auditor, digital computer systems analyst, supervisor digital computer systems analyst and digital computer systems administrator.

Gay has attended two courses in Finance and Accounting School, Fort Benning, and the Army Accounting School, Fort Belvoir, Ill. He attended the Internal Review Course in 1958 and the Automatic Data Processing Systems Analysis Course in 1959.

He also attended the Personnel Management for Executives Course in Atlanta in 1964 and the Civil Service Academy, Kings Point, N.Y., in July, 1966 for the Skill and Goals of Management

Correspondence courses which he has completed are the Fundamentals of Management, the Army Management System and the Army Program System Finance, Budgeting Finance, Accounting Finance and Management Analysis.

Gay is an active member of the Association of the U. S. Army, the Data Processing Management Association, the Armed Forces Management Association and the Midland Masonic Lodge, All Shubah, Ga. in Macon, Ga. Gay's favorite hobby is fishing which occupies most of his free time. He proudly displays a newspaper clipping showing him with one of his prize catches.

He is married to the former Agnes V. Jones of Cochran, Ga., and they reside at 2821 Juniper Ave., Columbus and the Army Pro-bus, Ga.

37th Avn. Bn. Post Unit Giving Support For Maneuvers at Bragg

By Spec. 4 Barry Nelson
Late last week it was decided that the 37th Avn. Bn. would be the supporting unit for the 37th Avn. Div. at Fort Bragg. The task force from here at Fort Benning, it was later decided that it would be more beneficial to both units involved if they combined their training exercises into one total effort.

The back bone of the battalion, was alerted for movement to Fort Bragg. The unit which had already been engaged in field operations at McKenno Heliport was ready for deployment in a matter of hours.

Yule Decoration Contest Slated for Benning Units

By Spec. 4 Bill Wallis
The 1967 Fort Benning Christmas decoration contest for units will be held this year December 18-19, according to 1st Lt. Norwood Mansur, project officer for the event.

The exact number of men taking part in this task force has not yet been disclosed, but the figure at present is well over the 300 mark. Every unit in the 37th Avn. Bn. will be active in the maneuver. Along with the companies, a headquarters detachment has been deployed to handle operations, scheduling and administrative necessities.

Judging for the competition will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the 18th and 19th, but all entries must be completed by December 15 to be eligible for the contest. A lighted sign, 12 feet by 24 feet, showing the category entered, the unit designation and the building number of the command must accompany all entries in the contest. "The building number is being added for two reasons," Mansur said. "The first reason is for easy unit identification," he explained, "and the second is so the judges may plan the most practical route when viewing the displays."

Battalion commander, 1st Lt. Col. John H. Phillips has departed to take command of "Task Force 37." As soon as the 37th is underway "Task Force 37" will swing into a tactical status and begin the fulfillment of their mission.

Slots Available For Servicemen In Police Work

WASHINGTON (ANF)—A new program has been approved by the Department of Defense to help fill some of the 15,000 vacancies in state, county, and city police forces throughout the United States.

According to the plan, military personnel interested in civilian police work may now be interviewed and tested by law enforcement agencies before their discharge date. The program is directed at servicemen who have less than 90 days remaining in the military and who have indicated their intent to return to civilian life. The program has been initiated with Washington, D.C., Metropolitan Police Department officials who are interviewing men at eight Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps installations. It is anticipated that other law enforcement agencies will participate in the police recruiting program.

Pre-Inspection Idea Nets Additional $300 Award

Sgt. Bernie N. Crawford, QM Services Division, received an additional award of $300 for his suggestion that the deployment parachute bags be pre-inspected prior to being placed at the pack table.

This procedure can be performed by two parachute riggers and eliminates the additional time required in the repacking of parachutes, when rejected due to unserviceability of the deployment bags.

Adoption of this suggestion has increased efficiency, improved operations, and resulted in an estimated annual savings in manhours of $10,015. Crawford's previous award of $300 was awarded him $450 for his suggestion.

The pilot and crew returned to base camp, mission accomplished.

Green, who is now assigned to Hq. Det. 1st Bn, CTC, was a graves registration NCO with the 4th Inf. Div. at Tuy Hoa Run.

A graves registration NCO is not required to recover his own remains. He was listed as missing, but when a friend of Green's, was listed as missing, he volunteered for the search. The man was commander of an armored personnel carrier which hit a land mine in VC territory.

After a thorough air search of the area failed to turn up anything, Green pursued the search on the ground. He covered the area, and still finding nothing, he turned to the fast cold mountain stream that ran by the trail.

While the helicopter pilot stood guard, Green carried his search underwater. He let the current carry him downstream to a log jam where swirling water piled up debris, including a dead water buffalo.

Green dove repeatedly and finally found what he was looking for. He surfaced to find his pilot holding off a VC attack with his pistol. Green pulled the body up on dry land and made his way back to the helicopter for the pilot and crew. The VC finally withdrew and the pilot and crew returned to base camp, mission accomplished.

NATIVITY SCENE . . . Spec. 5 William M. Ndini, left, and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) John R. Diez, center, deputy chaplain of The Infantry Center, place Alice Gardiner, center, into position as Mary, and Don Dowie, right, as Joseph in a scene of the nativity pageant, "Our Brother Is Born." The pageant will be presented December 15, 7:30 p.m. in The Infantry Center Chapel.

Religion and Art Combined By Chaplain and Assistant

Spec. 5 William M. Ndini, professional actor, and Chaplain (Capt.) William E. Foreman have combined resources from different life works and varied experiences to relate the arts with the church.

Ndini, assistant to Chaplain Foreman, is well qualified to perfect drama within the church. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in the classics and English from Yale University.

During two between-semester summers, he performed 10 roles with the Williams-town Summer Theater in Williams-town, Mass. At Yale, he frequently directed original plays.

After completing his master's degree at Yale, he performed in professional theater in New York City where he was cast in the 14th century Medieval opera, "Play of Herod."

Somewhat, he also found time to work with retarded children in a Connecticut hospital.

At Fort Benning he is now putting his dramatic talent to work in his direction of two plays, "Everyman, 67" and "Our Brother Is Born."

While at Fort Benning, he has also, for the past three semesters, been a speech instructor for the American University. In addition, he and Mrs. Faith Curran teach a class of retarded children.

PWOC Initiates 4 New Courses For Bible Class

Four new courses have recently been initiated by the Protestant Women of the Chapel Bible Class.

Women are invited to join in the study of the Bible by the group. The group meets every Wednesday except the fourth Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. No. 2605.

The first of the new courses is a study of the book of James with a survey of the practical application of Christianity in preparation for studies in the book of Romans.

The second course is a study of the book of Hebrews with accompanying help from the book of Leviticus.

Topical studies on The Christian Life are included in the third course.

The fourth course is a Bible study class with the assistance of interpreters for ladies with an Oriental background.

A free nursery is provided in the upstairs of the Religious Education Center.

Did you know that Social Security is an insurance system that pays death benefits and monthly payments to eligible survivors?

Catholics, Protestants Join In Christmas Service Plans

Protestant and Catholic personnel at Fort Benning have joined hands to give joint Christmas services at The Infantry Center Chapel. Next Friday, a Christmas Nativity pageant entitled "Our Brother Is Born," will be presented at 7:30 p.m. A choir of 125 children, under the direction of John P. Grant, will tell the story of Christmas in the pageant as Spec. 5 William M. Ndini, the Bible Christmas story by Maj. and Mrs. William L. Underhill.

On December 12, at 7:30 p.m., the Catholic congregation is invited to worship with Protestants at The Infantry Center Chapel. Under the direction of Grantham, the "Childhood of Christ" by Hector Berlioz. On December 19, at 8 p.m., all denominations will participate in the production of the 15th century English mystery drama, "Everyman," under the direction of

Sir Launfel Learned The Secret of Giving

By Chap. (Capt.) R. R. Covington Jr., "The Vision of Sir Launfel" by James Russell Lowell tells of a young knight and his dream as he slept before the altar of the church on the day before he went in search of the Holy Grail, the cup which Jesus drank from the night he celebrated the last supper.

The knight, in the dream, leaves the castle door and notices a beggar at the gate. He throws him some gold coins. The beggar refuses them as he sees the score in the young knight's eyes.

Many years pass and the knight returns, without the Holy Grail, to the castle. This time the armor is dented, the mail rusty, his face strained with the search. Again he sees the beggar. Without come to give, the new disappointed knight shares that which he has with the beggar.

Suddenly, the beggar changes. The cup they were sharing becomes the Holy Grail and the beggar is revealed as Jesus.

The beggar speaks, "He who gives himself feeds three; himself, his hungering neighbor and me."

In a few days, almost two hundred million Americans will go on a spending spree unequalled in our history. We will purchase gifts for everyone, hoping that we leave out no one. We will be getting and spending and trying to manage to give in almost equal portions to that which we expect to receive.

This article will not change that fact. This might be a reminder to you. You cannot "prove" your love by that which you purchase for another. Going into debt for the

Inside OCS: A Candidate's View

Demanding Field Work Makes 2nd Lieutenants

BY LARRY MAHONEY

Officer candidate training at Fort Benning, contrary to some impressions, is not all spit and polish and lectures in Infantry Hall. The vast majority of these men will become leaders of infantry, so their most familiar classrooms are the fields and woodlands of Georgia and Alabama.

Illustrating the "other side" of OCS are these photographs taken from the inside by Candidate James C. Benfield, currently training with the 52nd Co., 8th Student Bn., TSB.

They capture the hard field work that goes into the making of a second lieutenant at Fort Benning: columns marching in the foggy first hours after dawn

... the tired, bearded face of Capt. Green after five days of Ranger training in the piney barrens and red clay gullies of Quitman County in contrast to the spit-shined helmet liner and stiffly starched fatigues of Tac Officer Shepard ... slugging it out with pugil sticks ... the 52nd Company plodding across a Chattahoochee River bridge ... a dash across a weedy assault course

... raising a stripped pine for use as a bivouac flagpole.

There is the barracks part of it, too — scrubbing mud and grease from entrenching tools and messkits in the latrine, which also will have to be shining when the lights go on at 5:30 a.m.

Benfield, the man behind the camera, worked part-time as a photographer for United Press International in Des Moines, Iowa, while getting a degree in economics at Drake University.

He calls Lombard, Ill., home, and took basic training at Fort Knox and advanced infantry at Fort McClellan before reporting here for the six-month OCS course.

This soldier considers himself more of a classical guitarist than photographer, and has his eyes on becoming the manager of a symphony orchestra when his Army stint ends.

Accident of the Week

Car Struck by Log Truck, Boy's Skull Is Fractured

Six-year-old Mitchell Glenn, son of Capt. and Mrs. Sidney Brown of Fort Benning, was admitted to the Army Hospital recently with skull fractures after he was struck by a log truck.

FLAMING CRASH... The driver of this 1967 Rambler was attempting to pass two vehicles on a curve. He had to apply his brakes causing his car to skid, go out of control and collide with a brick wall. The car is shown after bursting into flames and turning over in mid-air.

Both per-centages could be cut nearly 50 per cent with seat belts.

BRIEFLY NOTED... Is coffee sobering? This is the time of year you hear a lot about drinking and driving. One of the myths some drivers cling to is that strong black coffee will offset the effects of alcohol. To set the record straight, James E. Blount, safety director, said "Neither coffee nor other stimulants will do this. Only time can eliminate alcohol from the blood stream."

SPEED KILLS... Each 10 miles per hour increase in speed increases your chance of coming out of an accident alive. Crusting along at 40 mph or less, and result from being thrown from the car. Seventy-five per cent of car fatalities occur within 20 miles from home and result from being thrown from the car.

SYNOPSIS

TONY ROMA — Tony Roma (Frank Sinatra) is a rough and ready private eye, an ex-cop, serial killer, a self-made tycoon's demanding and dangerous clientele in Miami. His tours of Miami shows you the high spots and low spots, the caper begins when Travis sells the plane to a murky and a most hazardous present. The action is fast. Running time: 110 minutes.

NOT WITH MY WIFE — "Not with my wife" is the story of a man's race to reach the finish line first and the altar never. From swinging night clubs to the dust pits of the auto racing world, three of Hollywood's lovelies, Shari Paterson, Diane McBain and Deborah Walley, attempt in various ways to don the bride's veil and slip the ring on Presley's contented bachelor finger.

The film also features an elaborate lineup of racing cars and champion drivers. Running time: 86 minutes.

Mrs. Simmons Named Most Improved Golfer

For the winner of the "Most Improved Golfer" award at Fort Benning, the past year has been one of achievement in health as well as in her game.

Mrs. Vera Simmons, the winner, was hospitalized after a serious automobile accident in February, 1966. With a knee cap removed, multiple fractures of a foot and ribs and a four inch steel plate in her left arm, doctors predicted she would never play golf again. Recently she was named the most improved woman golfer at the Fort Benning Country Club.

When she was released from the hospital, Mrs. Simmons began swinging a golf club as part of her physical therapy. By July she was back on the golf course and the end of the year had improved her game enough to win first flight in the Ladies Annual Fall Championship.

Attention Hunters

Hunters are cautioned that Army maneuvers are being conducted continuously in Stewart and Outman Counties west of Highway 27 and south of Hamsatchee Creek. Vietnam oriented training in guerrilla and counter-guerrilla tactics will be conducted by the Ranger Training Command of the Infantry School. Personnel will be moving in small groups throughout the wooded areas.

Hunters are requested to exercise extreme caution. Serious accidents will be prevented if hunters will positively identify game before firing.

Basic Trainee Holds Wrestling Trophy From Coast College

A six-foot-three and one-half inch trainee, who weighs 210 pounds, is a first-place wrestler of the Rivers and Coast College, Calif. City College Wrestling Association. Pvt. Hudson Washington, first of the Coast, 5th Bn, 1st Bde, USARV, earned the trophy by his margins.

Washington wrestled for the Law Enforcement School in the high weight class. A graduate of Mary Beth-nam High School, Washington attended Texas Southern University, Houston, before enrolling in Riverside City College.

His wife, Martha Edna Washington, is a resident of 2215 20th St. North, Birmingham, Ala.

197th Leads Post-Level Hoop Action

197th Bde. Troops basket-cause against TSB. He is currently leading the league with 25 points while Bill Ivry averages 18.5 points per game.

31st Inf. tackled another match Monday night in an 80-57 win over the 88th Inf. team in postlevel play.

TSB kept the pressure on with the 53.4 points per game average.

197th Bde. Troops managed to split by posting their first win of the season against winless SFC Robert Lancaster, both of the U.S. Army Rifle Team, shared individual honors last weekend in the 1967 Long Range High Power Rifle Tournament in Phoenix, Ariz.

Falcon fired a perfect 200-yards with the bolt rifle to win the 1000 yard aggregate in the tournament, while Lancaster scored a total of 199-59's with the service rifle and outpointed teammate SFC Leslie Drake's 188-29.

Falcon, Lancaster Capture Long Range Firing Honors

Falcon put together scores of 100-17's and 100-15's in the two 1000 yard matches. SSGT. Richard Behde was next with a 97-20. U.S. Army team was second with a score of 189-88 total.

Post Basketball Standings

Murray Pledger is president of the new league, and Richard Kelly will function as league secretary. Mario Alonso is vice president.

The No. 9 team posted the first high series, 99 and first high team on total pins for the first week, knocking down 979.

Fred A. Young recorded the individual marks for the first week's bowling, a 283 and 281 in a 588 series.

6,000 Trout Are Released In Russ Pond

Russ Pond is now the home of 6,000 rainbow trout, de-livered Tuesday by truck from the Wahalla, S. C. Fish Hatchery. The fish weigh from 17 ounces to one pound.

According to Roy T. Johnson, wildlife manager, the pond will be opened Saturday and Sunday from noon to dark for youngsters under 16 who are accompanied by a sponsor authorized to fish on the reservation. After Sunday the pond will be open during daylight hours for anyone authorized to fish on the reservation.

According to Johnson, conditions for stocking the pond were almost ideal. The temperature of the water in the truck that brought the fish was only five degrees lower than the water in the pond.

Sport Car Rally Set

December 16 at 2 p.m. in the municipal auditorium parking lot, registration will be held for a sport car rally that will count towards the 1968 national championship.

CI/AVGA, region of the Sport Car Club of America, will conduct the rally and award trophies for the first three places.

Registration fees are $2 for club members and $3 for non-club members. A free party for 1,000 who are registered will follow the rally.

The Observer

—by Larry Mahoney—

This complaint is a little belated for 1967's football season, but the time seems ripe enough to ask why the all-important wire service polls ended when they did.

If you're like me about football, the absence of these agate "standings" from last Tuesday's sports pages was a disappointment. Even more disturbing was the announcement of final ratings on November 28, ignoring the most interesting football Saturday of December 2 when several members of the first 10 played crucial games.

Third-ranked Oklahoma and seventh-ranked Alabama each faced unpredictable tests from intrastate rivals Oklahoma State and Auburn. Both came through clean, but what if they hadn't? Surely an Alabama team that has lost to Auburn — and this was very nearly the case — should have fallen from the elite 10.

Carrying this further, surely the final ratings should consider the outcome of the holiday bowl games, which, at least in theory, pit the best against the best.

Shouldn't the Sooners, in historical record, be rated ahead of Tennessee if the Oklahomans win in the Orange Bowl? And what if those Indiana sophomores take their 10th one by whipping first-place Southern California in the Rose Bowl?

Talk to the Florida State people, muttering for a month now because the Seminoles never entered the first 10 of either poll. This is the classic offensive team that tied Alabama and closed the season with seven straight victories. Now Penn State lies ahead in the Cotton Bowl, and if the Floridians hump off the 10th-ranked Nittany Lions, well, don't mention polls or AP and UPI down in Tallahassee.

Granville Liggins is a name that must be on many Tennessee tongues today. This man, with the inevitable nickname "Granny," is the superstar of the surprising Oklahoma football team that came out of nowhere to take the Big Eight title, third place in both polls, and a berth in the Orange Bowl against the Big Orange out of Knoxville.

Also known as "Nose Guard," Granny is a lineman, a middle guard, with a rightful propensity for spilling the best of offensive pushes against the Sooners.

It's not often that you see references to a lineman's computer-like mind, but that's what the papers report about Liggins. He's supposed to be able to read attack patterns in the tick of a split second and respond with a quick thrust that unravels the whole thing.

This, of course, should make the big game in Miami all that much more interesting. Not only can we watch that flashy Tennessee backfield, there'll also be this 220-pound Oklahoman roaming around back there.

TECOM Commander Here Maintainability Is Subject of Conference

Maintainability of Army materiel came in for a major share of attention last week during the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command Commanders' Conference here. More than 70 conferees were welcomed to the Infantry Center for the conference by Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander.

The group included commanding officers and other representatives of TECOM's 25 proving grounds, service test boards and environmental test centers. Also on hand were the TECOM commander, Maj. Gen. Leland C. Cagwin and members of his staff.

The theme of the conference was set by an address on maintainability delivered by Gen. Frank S. Besson Jr., commanding general of the Army Materiel Command. The conference also heard from Brig. Gen. Thurston T. Paul Jr., Director of Plans and Programs in the Office of the Chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army.

He addressed a DA view of maintainability and testing, especially the origins of maintainability, how we get it, and how we know when we have it.

Industry representatives contributed to the discussion with presentations by John of services for higher machine availability.

McNally of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. and by Charles C. Wood of Sikorsky Aircraft. McVally traced the past of inter-relationship existing between maintainability, reliability and methods of development and testing. Wood is a member of the TECOM advising-demand on the partory panel.

Basic 4 Takes Tactics Award

Last week Col. George A. Scott of the Company Operations Department fastened the Tiger Tactics Award Ribbon to the guion of the 24th Co., 1st Stn. Bn., TSB. Accepting the streamer on behalf of the company was 1st Lt. Lee Brewer, the student officer arrived on post. The company responded to Brewer's challenge by setting its motto, "always to be the best."

This motto was first used 200 years ago by the First Greek Division under Ulysses in the Trojan War. Evidence of the fact that the company so esteemed this motto can be seen in the unanimous vote which it received from the Tiger rating committees.

The 240 Co. has benefited from the advice of four allied officers. The senior allied officer is Capt. Charles Florin from Liberia. Ford holds the United Nations Distinguished Service Medal for his work as commander of the Fifth Liberian Contingent in the Congo.

Lt. Col. John C. Dixon, chief quartermaster services division received a flag for the Quartermaster Services Division.

Lt. Col. Robert D. Sweeney received a four by eight flag for the Services Section.

Lt. Col. Joseph C. Wein, installations officer made the presentations.

Three Units Receive Bond Awards Here

Three Minuteman Flags with star were presented to activities of the Office of the Director of Logistics here last week.

Col. Samuel D. Wilder, post engineer, received a three foot by five foot flag for the Engineer Section.

Lt. Col. John C. Dixon, chief quartermaster services division received a flag for the Quartermaster Services Division.

Lt. Col. Robert D. Sweeney received a four by eight flag for the Services Section.

Lt. Col. Joseph C. Wein, installations officer made the presentations.

New CO Takes Reins of Army's Largest Battalion

By PFC John Kenney
 Career's end must finally come for all who make their home in the Army. For Lt. Col. Charles A. Smith, commanding officer of the 31st Inf., since its formation 14 months ago, the end of his long career came last Wednesday morning, when in a ceremony in the tented field house, Smith passed the battalion colors to his successor, Lt. Col. James P. Johnson.

As the soldiers of the large battalion in the Army looked on, the man who had been their commander received the Army Command and Organized Service Medal, relinquished his command and retired from the Army after 22 years of commissioned service.

Commander and Organizer Of Polar Bear Unit Retires

Lt. Col. Charles A. Smith, after 22 years of commissioned service, retired from active duty recently. For 12 months prior to retirement, Lt. Col. Smith commanded the 31st Inf., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., and was chiefly responsible for organization of the battalion.

Born in Paris, Tex., in 1926, Smith received his commission in 1946 from OCS here. From 1946 to 1949 he served with the 24th Div. in Japan, and in 1951 and 1952 was a platoon leader and later company commander with the 3rd Div. in Korea.

In 1953 he was assigned to Fort Benning where he remained until 1965 as a company commander in the 31st Inf. Regt. During this time he was also a student in the Advanced Career Course. In 1965 and 1966 Smith served as an advisor to Reserve Component Units in Texas, and in 1967 became Assistant G-1 and aide-de-camp to the commanding general, 4th Armored Div., Fort Hood, Tex. In 1959 and 1960 he attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He returned to Fort Benning in 1960 as executive officer of the Weapons Department and also served as deputy to the secretary of the school.

Reassigned in 1963 to the Canal Zone, he served as a platoon officer for three years before assuming command of the newly formed 31st Inf., 31st Inf., at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Directing the battalion during its period of organization, Smith moved with it to Fort Benning where, under his command, the largest battalion in the Army has served for the past year.

Among the awards Smith received are the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Bronze Star with "V" Device, the Joint Services Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart, the Greek Gold Medal for Bravery, the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal, and the American Campaign Medal.

Johnson comes to Benning from Vietnam where he served with the 19th Inf. Bde. as a battalion executive officer and later as the brigade S-3, and also has overseas assignments with the 1st Cav. Div. in Japan, the 7th Inf. Bn. in Korea, and as Inspector General, Area Command in Munich, Germany.

He also took the Advanced Course here from 1958-1959. As the ceremony drew to a close the 23rd Army Band played "Auld Lang Syne." Lieutenant Smith was heard to say: "It's hard to believe that this is the last formation, but it is."

Four Generals Top List Visiting Post Next Week

By Bill Hardin
 The commanding general of the Continental Army Command (CONARC) heads a list of four general officers scheduled to visit Fort Benning next week.

Gen. James K. Woolworth will arrive from CONARC headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va. Wednesday and will return the following day.

Gen. Woolworth, who last visited Fort Benning in September when he came here to address an officer career class, is coming this time to address the Columbus-Phoenix City - Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army (AUSA), on Wednesday night.

Corbin Visiting
 Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Corbin, United States Air Force commander, Special Air Warfare Center, (SAWC) Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., will pay a one day visit to Fort Benning on Monday.

SAWC has, in recent months, been providing aircraft support to Infantry School instructional problems, and also has been providing support for the Ranger Training Command.

Arriving Tuesday, will be Brig. Gen. Kenneth L. Johnson, who will make a presentation to advanced career officers' classes.

Johnson to Speak
 Gen. Johnson, who serves as the Deputy Director of Executive Personnel, Office of Personnel Operations, Washington, D. C., will speak to the classes on "Evaluating Personnel Management Systems."

Brig. Gen. Frank Messar, assistant commandant of the Aviation School, and commanding general of Fort Stewart, Ga., is coming to attend the AUSA dinner. Gen. Messar will arrive Wednesday afternoon and Tuesday night will make a presentation to advanced career officers' classes.

Also on the list of distinguished visitors during the week will be Dr. Merleth Crawford, Chief of the Human Research and Resources Office (HUMERO).
 Dr. Crawford, from George Washington University, is scheduled for a one day visit on the Monday.

NCOC CONQUERS HANDICAP

Donald L. Lee, a student at the NCOC Course, 24th Co., TISE, negotiates the run, dodge and jump course. Not unusual for the average soldier but an achievement for Lee, who doctors said would never walk again after a car accident left him seriously injured at the age of two.

New 19, the Mobile, Ala. native counts among his achievements the highest PCPT score in his basic training company — a remarkable 498 out of 500 possible points. (Photo by Spec. 6 Al Fendleton)

2nd NCOC Class Earns Diplomas

By PFC Jay Ligon
 "Success in combat is just about the highest honor a leader, a non-commissioned officer like yourself can achieve," Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott told the graduating Infantry Non-Commissioned Officer Candidate Class 2.

Sgt. Maj. Scott, sergeant major of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 5th Inf., 17th Inf. Bde., told the 136 graduates to use their past 12 weeks of training as a "launching point from which you personally endeavor to improve and continue to improve your military education."

Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy told them, "and take command."

Six graduates of the course became staff sergeants: Pacifico A. Aboya, leader and distinguished graduate, William L. Vincent, academic and honor graduate, James R. Nagle, Dean L. Lang, James R. Cook and William R. Barnes.

to another aid man who had been wounded. He administered first aid and removed the men to a rear area away from the immediate danger of the attack. He then returned to aid more of the wounded and to bring them out of the area which was under attack.

The Third Silver Star was gained for action in June, 1967, in a company which suddenly was ambushed. Foy was wounded by grenade fragments in an explosion that came so close that a piece of shrapnel caused temporary blindness. Despite his wounds, he picked up a dead machine gunner's weapon, and was responsible for being overrun by the enemy. As the battle continued, he sent out an ammunition request to his men as they continued to fire at the enemy.

1967 Marks Last Filming Of Newsreels

"Theater newsreels will be a thing of the past in 1968. The respective film companies have advised that "MGM News of the Day" and "Universal Newsreel" are the last two remaining theatrical newsreels, will be discussed in December.

The company attributes the demise of the newsreel to "many factors, mainly the speedy, free news coverage by television, the winding revenues, and the rise in production costs of the newsreels in recent years."

For many years the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service has maintained a policy of scheduling newsreels twice weekly with feature attractions that are booked for two-day showings. In the future, short subjects will be substituted for newsreels if the running time of the feature does not provide an adequate program. However, the supply of short subjects is limited and long running time features (in excess of 100 minutes) will be scheduled without short subjects.

producing 30,000 graduates. "I have the greatest confidence," Gen. Woolnough said, "that these courses will serve to meet all the Army's most urgent needs. And I hope," he added, "that their value will be as evident that it will soon be possible to suppress an all-volunteer program to supply our OCS and warrant officer flight training programs."

Between hangers were displays of helicopter weapons and equipment provided by the 10th Avn. Gp. and the Infantry Band, and the Infantry Chorus entertained during the affair.

Sergeants Major In Command Slots To Get New MOS

A new MOS for a command sergeant's major has been authorized by the Department of the Army. Command sergeant-major or those who hold the senior enlisted position in battalion size units or higher - will be reclassified in primary MOS 00Z upon receiving Department of Army authority.

Before the adoption of the new MOS, command sergeant's major could not be identified by MOS since they held the same MOS designation as operations sergeant's major and intelligence sergeant's majors.

Angels Sing." The Infantry Chorus will present a solo, "Oh Holy Night" by FFC Steven Rydell and two choral numbers, "Harken Ye" and "Christmas Song."

The two "Yule-trees" set up in front of Infantry Hall, will be lighted simultaneously with a sign reading "Season's Greetings" on the roof of the building when Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr. turns on the master switch. Gen. Wright, Fort Benning commander, will give a traditional Christmas message. At the conclusion of the program the two choral groups will sing the first verse of "Silent Night."

The ceremony is expected to last approximately half an hour. In case of inclement weather it will be held in the main entrance of Infantry Hall.

Post CG is Guest Speaker At OWC Christmas Event

A Christmas wish for, as the Officers' Wives' Clubs on "Adeste Fidelis" in a holiday message from "Happy Fort Benning" was in a program of Christmas music including "Every Christmas is a Birthday," theme of the luncheon, and "Let It Snow." The singing group, soon to star on the Main Officers' Club and its Supper Club, Gen. Wright also expressed his appreciation to the wives for the part that they play in accomplishing the mission of the post.

Another Christmas message was given to the wives at a 20-foot Christmas tree. The Supper Club was adorned with giant brass angels and holiday clothed ladies covered with snow-covered angels, and Santa Claus. Hostesses, with Mrs. H. S. Cunningham as chairman, were the wives of the Infantry Center staff.

Carrying out the Christmas theme, decorations in the Club featured scenes and props from the "Nutcracker" ballet production. Children from the production also posed in costume at each setting. Ballerinas in white snowflake costumes danced beside the woods scene, boys and girls dressed as miniature toy soldiers manned a gold cannon, two little "mice" stood beside a giant magic clock, and a group of youngsters in Russian styled silks and ser-

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels

People all over the world have dubbed Mrs. Ray Ochs "the professional secretary."

As recording secretary of the Officers' Wives' Club and as secretary for the Officers' Wives Club bowling league, her commercial talents are put to the test. The job of recording secretary requires her to keep detailed minutes of all OWC meetings and luncheons.

As secretary of the bowling league, she is responsible for keeping statistics on 36 lady bowlers.

Having two such secretarial jobs could be a "tough problem" for many women, she admits. She's quick to mention, however, that she truly enjoys it. Perhaps that enjoyment comes because she "knows her business."

Earned Degree

Before she married, she had earned a degree in business education. She has also held positions as a secretary and, at most of the places that she's lived, she has done substitute teaching in high school business and also elementary grades.

She admits that her family sometimes takes advantage of her talents by bringing home term papers for her to type, or business letters to transcribe.

That homework brings her to another favorite of hers . . . young people and teenagers. Of course, the "moms" are her own young people, her two sons, Ed, 18, and Rich, 20, both freshmen at the University of Houston, and her daughter, Pat, a sophomore at Baker High School.

Feel Young

"Young people and sports are the main reasons that my husband and I are always able to feel so 'young' ourselves," she says. "We never miss one of Baker's games. Football, basketball . . . we follow it all," she laughs.

An active member in the Officers' Wives' Club Ladies' Golf Association, she is also trophy co-chairman of the association.

Likes Sports

She likes sports she says, because she grew up as the only girl in a family of five boys. Playing bridge is also a favorite hobby of the entire Ochs family.

After she earned her degree in Eastern Illinois University and her husband-to-be had graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, they were married in 1946. Since then they've been stationed at Fort Benning; Japan; Stuttgart, Germany; Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; the U. S. Military Academy; Washington, D.C., and Carlisle Barracks, Pa. During her husband's two tours in Korea, she lived in her hometown in Illinois, and in California.

MRS. RAY OCHS "Busy Secretary"

Because they've been in Fort Benning three times, she describes being here as "being at home" . . . at home taking notes, at home playing golf and at home enjoying her family and friends.

Post Residents Invited To Participate in Tour

The Junior League of Columbus has invited Fort Benning and area citizens to join the league on a Christmas candlelight tour, December 17.

The tour, jointly sponsored by the League and the Historic Columbus Foundation, will give interested persons a chance to see many of the Columbus homes decked in Christmas decorations.

The tour is to begin at 5:30 p.m. at the Third Ave. side of the First Baptist Church in Columbus, where maps will be given to show the location of the tour's homes. Each person can then drive his own car to the homes, some of which will be open and all of which will be lighted and decorated for the holiday.

White House Reveals Wedding Cake Recipe

By Louise Donahewsky

Couldn't make it to THE wedding? Long to have a piece of wedding cake? The White House offered this recipe to some good proportions, for duplicating the wedding cake for Lynda Bird Johnson and Capt. Charles S. Robb.

1 lb. powdered sugar
1 lb. pound cake flour
Flavor with mace and lemon rind
1 lb. butter
12 eggs

Whip butter until light, add sugar and mix for three minutes; add eggs two at a time, continue to mix. Finally, add flour and mix lightly but thoroughly. Bake in paper-lined pans. Bake at 275 degrees for approximately one hour.

There are so many sentiments attached to a wedding, just as there are to many recipes. A classic of its kind, one that reflects a way of life with sage advice is "how to preserve a husband."

"Be careful in your selection. Do not choose too young. When selected, give your entire thoughts to preparation for domestic use. Some wives insist upon keeping them in a piecemeal, others are constantly getting them into hot water. This may make them bitter, hard and sometimes bitter, even more varieties may be made sweet, tender and good, by garnishing with patience, well sweetened love and seasoned with kisses. Wrap them in a manly of charity. Keep warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion and serve with peaches and cream. Thus prepared, they will keep for years."

But now back to the holiday season: Here are a few hints for baking fruit cakes. To blanch almonds, cover shelled nuts with water and bring to a full boil. Drain immediately and as soon as the almonds have cooled enough to handle, slip off their skins by pressing the nut between thumb and forefinger. In baking more than one fruit cake at a time, be sure to place them in the oven so the air can circulate between them. A shallow pan of water in the bottom of the oven during baking will give cakes a soft crust. Fruit cakes should be stored in a cool, dry place until ready to use. Chill thoroughly before slicing, as they cut easier when thoroughly cold.

Beauty Tips: Camouflage a double chin by brushing brown contourer or shadow under the chin and blending in well. . . if your lipstick tends to turn very pink after wearing it awhile, try a yellow lipstick underneath. It will help keep the color true. . . green lipstick makes pink lipstick look pinker.

Tip-teasing thru the Milky Way: You can best make your Arlen born husband happy by making him feel that you think he is the greatest man ever lured into captivity by a mere woman. . . your Leo born husband will be so content if you remember to never deflate his ego, consult him upon all matters. . . the Sagittarius male will not tolerate restrictions, allow him plenty of freedom.

Ranger Wives Club Is Formed At Eglin AFB

Fort Benning Ranger wives have a wide circle of "handicraft" members and friends including members of the newly formed Florida Ranger Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The new wives' club held its first event with a Christmas semi-formal dinner-and-dance recently at the Eglin NCO Beach Club.

Center of the festivities were the holiday decorations, a silver and blue Christmas tree, frosted snow flakes hung from the ceiling, and holly garlands, and soft illumination of candles.

Honored guests were Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Getz. Receiving the guests with the honorees were Mrs. R. LeBlanc, president of the wives' club, and her husband SFC LeBlanc, and Capt. and Mrs. James Grimshaw.

Mrs. Clifton Pierce and Capt. Grimshaw were awarded door prizes.

Dancing was to the music of the "Put Togethers."

For any further information about the newly formed club, interested persons may contact Mrs. J. L. Stephens of 271 Annabelle Drive, Mary Esther, Fla. 32520.

Country Club Dinner Honors Unit Members

Committee Group, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, held a dinner at the Country Club last Saturday night.

Mementos were given to departing and new officers were welcomed. The new officers welcomed were: Lt. and Mrs. William Crews and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward Radcliff. Farewell mementos were given to Lt. Michael Matthews and Lt. James A. Taylor; baby cups to the Taylors and Lt. and Mrs. Richard Massey; and a wedding gift to Lt. and Mrs. Glen Smith.

A Christmas skit, entitled "Santa Claus Visits Malone Complex" was provided by Committee Group personnel. Assistant fire marshal, Jack Garret's Combo provided the music.

NCO Wives Hold Christmas Event

The Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club combined a big "thank you" with a formal Christmas dinner and dance recently at the Sand Hill NCO Club.

The "thank you's" went to Mrs. Larry Alderman, chairman of the Monte Carlo Night Party held by the club Nov. 3 to raise money for post charities, and to M. Sgt. Leonard Shaw, military coordinator for the party. Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick, the wives' club first vice president presented a charm bracelet with a Monte Carlo charm to Mrs. Alderman; an engraved pewter mug was presented to Mrs. Wallace Colson also.

Post Payed Visit By Dr. M. Miles

One of the nation's career women, Dr. Minnie C. Miles, returned to Fort Benning recently, as she said, "learn more about the Infantryman."

Dr. Miles had made her first journey to the post last April 27 as chairman of the 50-member Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services (DACOWITS), committee appointed by the Secretary of Defense to advise the Defense Department on the utilization of women in the armed services.

In her day's schedule to learn more about the Infantryman," Dr. Miles visited Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, and Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy, assistant commander of The Infantry School, attended the graduation of Officer Candidate Class No. 58, toured instructional departments of The Infantry School, attended a luncheon in her honor, observed Airborne training, and visited Dr. Harold S. Tate, educational advisor to The Infantry School.

Dr. Miles was a return guest to Fort Benning at the invitation of Gen. Wigot and the hospitality of Col. and Mrs. Thomas B. Maertens, degree Alabama, was the house guest chairman to Col. Maertens' for the when he earned his masters weekend.

French Defeat Leaves Vacuum

Several hundred thousand people in South Vietnam, collectively known as the Viet Cong (Vietnamese for "Vietnamese Communist"), are engaged in a violent effort to overthrow the government of that country. Although there are many identified units of the regular North Vietnamese Army, ordered south by Hanoi by the thousands every month.

What was the situation which gave rise to the development of the Viet Cong? Who are its leaders? How do they operate? The BAYONET seeks to answer these and related questions with a seven-part series. Part two: The Two Regimes: 1954-1960

In South Vietnam, non-Communist groups worked to build an effective government. Much of the countryside, however, remained under local Viet Minh control. Ngo Dinh Diem was the leading figure in South Vietnam until his death in 1963. First as Prime Minister under Bao Dai, then as President after a 1955 referendum deposed Bao Dai, Diem sought to create a viable national government. His first problems were:

— to eliminate vestiges of both French and Viet Minh control;

- to provide for the 900,000 refugees from the North;
- to cut the strength of three independent armed groups which were fighting for control near Saigon; the Binh Xuyen (gangsters who controlled the Saigon police), the Cao Dai, and Hoa Hao (two extremist religious sects).

Steps for reducing the Viet Minh threat, most of this program was completed by 1958. In North Vietnam, the Communists consolidated control by police-state methods. Almost all of the North Vietnamese area was under Viet Minh control at the time of the Geneva settlement.

As the French withdrew and refugees fled south, Ho Chi Minh's government snatched all opposition. There was a broad-scale forced collectivization in 1956, during which an estimated 50,000 to 200,000 people were killed and a large number imprisoned. Once well entrenched in the North, Hanoi sought to expand its power by taking over the South. Its chief political instrument was the Lao Dong Party, the Communist Party of both North and South Vietnam until 1961.

Arms Caches Uncovered On 'VC Island' Stronghold

THU DUC, Vietnam — It was just another day of continuing search and clear operations for the men of Co. 2nd Bn., 3rd Inf., 196th Avn. Bde. As the morning grew old and the sun climbed higher in the sky, the company chopped its way through the almost impenetrable vegetation and tippa palm that enveloped the area. The area, which was approximately 16 kilometers east of Saigon, is known geographically as Ap Thue Khanh. But to most soldiers it is known as "VC Island."

There is only one village of about 300 people on the entire island, and the rest is unpopulated. The long abandoned rice paddies and fields would make an excellent stronghold for the VC, as the extremely thick and overgrown vegetation affords a great amount of concealment.

Discover Cache
Just before noon, PFC Tom Pompy was deep in tippa palm growth when he discovered the first of three large enemy caches within 100 feet of each other. There were placed upon woven and tied four foot high bamboo shelves was an arsenal of weapons, ammunition and personal equipment.

The cache was covered with ponchos and bamboo in such a way that air detection would have been impossible. The caches showed recent use and were placed in such a way that the lowest shelf would be above water when high tide came in. This would enable sampans to remove supplies at high tide.

Ammunition
Among the items found were over 10,000 rounds of small arms and automatic

First MUST Hospital Has Anniversary

The Army Medical Service's first MUST hospital, the 45th Surgical near Tay Ninh, celebrated its first anniversary last month, marking a year in which it successfully furnished frontline medical support to five major combat operations.

The MUST concept came into being through the efforts of the Army Medical Service and the Garrett Corporation in 1962.

In early 1965, the first prototype MUST elements were established at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and by late 1965 clinical evaluation of surgery and ward care on actual patients was conducted. In late 1966, the 45th Surg. Hosp., equipped with the MUST system in the major areas of patient care, was deployed in Vietnam. It has been so successful that three more MUST hospitals have been activated in Vietnam by the Army and Marines.

Since opening on November 13, 1966, the 60-bed facility has continued to prove the value of the MUST (Medical Unit Self-Contained portable) system, officials said. A total of 10,726 patients have been seen in its role as the largest ever designed in the brigade, was flown to battalion headquarters by helicopter. The weapons and documents were evacuated but the ammunition was blown up in place as it was more often than not faulty transmitter-receiver sets and unusable.

Deadly Snake Beaten Back With Repellant

From Army Times
CU CHI, Vietnam — Sgt. Phillip Williams, a squad leader with the 1st Bn., 3rd Inf., 196th Avn. Div. recently discovered that bug spray repellent was as a snake repellent.

After settling down for a night ambush, Williams heard rustling noises in the tall grass in front of him. At first he thought it was a rat until something raised out of the grass and headed back and forth.

A king cobra was coming to investigate the stranger who invaded his territory. Williams said he did not want to fire his rifle and spring the ambush. He grabbed the first thing he could get his hands on, a can of bug spray. And to his surprise, the spray sent the cobra slithering away for cover.

Combat Exemption Seen For Benefit of Objectors

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — Army regulations on conscientious objectors are being reviewed. In a message to the field, incorporating the language of the 1967 Selective Service Act, the Army says the law "provides an exemption from combatant training and service in the armed forces of the U. S. for any person who, by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form." The same section of the revised law, the Army said, specifies that "religious training and belief does not include essentially political, sociological or philosophical views or a merely personal moral code."

New Program Assists Separates In Transition Back to Civilian Life

WASHINGTON (ANF) — As a result of a pilot program initiated by the Army to aid service personnel prior to expiration of term of service, the Department of Defense will establish "Project TRANSITION" at all major installations which separates are assigned.

The program, planned to begin January 1968, will offer in-service training and educational opportunities to help the transition of personnel back to civilian life.

The U. S. Continental Army Command (USCONARC) estimates that 45 per cent of the total U. S. Army separates will request Project TRANSITION training at 42 installations during the last half of Fiscal Year 1968.

Highlights of the program include:

- Training conducted as an element of the General Educational Development (GED) Program by the Army, Governmental agencies, and private industries.
- Maximum use of off-duty time will be made to offset individuals are assigned.
- Excluding Reserve Enlistments Program personnel and those not having approval of their commanders, personnel having one to six months service time remaining are eligible to participate.

Training Stated — Personnel will be scheduled for training as early as possible and upon completion of their training will receive follow-up counseling on job information and procedures to be followed in obtaining employment or continuing their education.

Disabled servicemen will have priority for participation in the project followed by those with no civilian skill, those with some civilian skill but who require some additional training, those with an acquired civilian skill but who desire to upgrade it, and those who have a civilian skill but who desire to learn a new one.

Recent NCOC Graduate Is Peace Corps 'Veteran'

By Lt. David Leonard
Charles Waring, who graduated recently with the second NCO Candidate class at TIS, is already a "veteran" of overseas service with the Peace Corps.

Waring, from Saxton, Pa., spent two years in Iran teaching industrial arts, his college major.

"The Peace Corps training program maintains a harder pace than any basic training in the Army," Waring noted. "In addition to physical training, there are 350 hours of language instruction, plus hours of other subjects during a three - month period. We started at 6 a.m. and often finished at 9 p.m., six days a week."

As he looked back on the 12 weeks of the NOOC program, Waring viewed the field training as very realistic. "It's an almost true picture of what it is going to be like in Vietnam," he said.

After graduation from Stevens College in Lancaster, Pa., Waring joined the Peace Corps in 1964. He trained at Utah State University before going to Iran. There he lived and taught in Shiraz, a city in the Persian Gulf region.

He instructed future teachers in a practical - oriented program of woodworking and furniture making. The goal of the program was to develop a skilled middle class to meet the technical needs of Iran's development.

Waring also participated in classes on machine shop operation, building construction and drafting. For a semester, he taught geometry and algebra.

Completed Tour — After completing his two-year tour, Waring returned to Washington where he worked for the Peace Corps, setting up and coordinating training at various colleges and helping with the recruitment effort. Much of his time was spent away from Washington.

On his way home from Iran, he was vacationed in Europe for three months. During free periods in Iran, he visited the Holy Land and Egypt. "I've been in 18 countries, and now I'm on my way to the 19th."

Waring was drafted, and took his basic training at Fort Benning. He is advancing individual training at Fort Jackson, S. C., he was selected to attend the NCO Candidate Course.

Contrasting his Peace Corps and Army experience, Waring noted the Army carries with it greater personal responsibilities, and a career variety of them.

Waring has been assigned to Fort Jackson, S. C.

Civilian Spotlight

by Joanne Coates

This week as the beacon makes its sweep over The Infantry Center, the spotlight focuses on Mrs. Martha T. Lewis, Program Analysis Officer, office of the Director of Personnel.

A native of Georgia, she has been employed in Civil Service at Fort Benning since July 8, 1962.

She originally worked as a clerk typist and later as a clerk for the Provost Marshal, USAIC.

During April of 1967, she went to work as a budget assistant in the office of the Director of Personnel, USAIC. Since that time she has held job titles of accounting clerk, clerk (Program Analysis), program analyst and her present title.

Mrs. Lewis attended the Programming and Budgeting Course at the U.S. Army Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., in 1962 and the Army Installation Management Course at the U. S. Army Management School, Fort Belvoir, Va., in 1966.

Being a wife, mother and career woman is more than enough to make for a busy schedule, but Mrs. Lewis has found the time to complete correspondence courses in the Army Management System and the Army Program System, Budgeting, Introduction to Statistics, Military Comptrollership-Review and Analysis and Comptroller's Management and Financial Management Plan.

She is an active member of the Chattahoochee Chapter American Business Women's Association Chapter 13 and the Armed Forces Management Association.

She lists her favorite hobbies as cooking and sewing and gets a lot of experience with both.

She is married to Stanley E. Lewis of Moultrie, Ga., and they reside at 1002 Glenwood Road with their three children, Joel, 15, Ramona, 14, and David, 11.

215 Lieutenants Complete Basic Officer Course Here

An ROTC graduate of Cornell University, 2nd Lt. David F. Wilson, was named the distinguished honor graduate of Infantry Officer Basic Course (No. 4) which graduated in recent ceremonies conducted by Col. William E. Smith, director of instruction at The Infantry School.

Wilson achieved a 96 average in the course.

Winner of the Leadership Award was 1st Lt. Lee Brewer, a 1st Cav. veteran who served as student commander for the course.

Brewer served 14 years as an enlisted man before receiving his commission in August, 1967.

In his remarks to the graduates, Col. Smith urged continuation of a professional approach to military science. He said there was a constant necessity for improvement in each officer's technical and tactical competence.

The 215 graduates were introduced by Capt. James L. Smith, the cadre commander. Smith pointed out there were 163 Infantry officers, 68 intelligence officers, four allies, one armor officer and one engineer officer in the graduating class.

Smith paid special tribute to the allied delegation, Capt. Charles Ford, 1st Lt. Phillip Collins, 1st Lt. Willie Dennis, and 1st Lt. L. Phillip Rogers, Joseph W. Schultz, and Gerald J. Simmons.

Smith's special tribute to the allied delegation, Capt. Charles Ford, 1st Lt. Phillip Collins, 1st Lt. Willie Dennis, and 1st Lt. L. Phillip Rogers, Joseph W. Schultz, and Gerald J. Simmons.

Upon completion of a tour of duty in Pleiku, Vietnam, Sgt. Carroll K. King was assigned to Co. B, where his father was a senior drill sergeant. Shortly thereafter, his father, SFC Kenneth K. King received orders reassigning him to Pleiku.

Newly-promoted to sergeant, the younger King has enlisted for six years and plans to follow his father's footsteps and make the Army his career.

King's mother lives at 436 Sunnyside Lane, Fort Benning Ga. He is a member of the Physical Training Club.

Pancakes and Pot Luck

Scouts, Leaders Have Busy Week

BY JAY LIGON

Two young boys squatting by a campfire with charcoal smudged hands were pouring a lumpy, cream-colored batter into their frying pan. As it cooled into the greasy skillet, it began to sputter softly. The boys waited impatiently for the batter to cook, then flipped the flat disk.

The upturned side was barely brown, and the center glistened with uncooked batter. But that didn't matter.

They finished cooking their pancake and darted for the nearest judge who made them eat their own creation. The two boys were competing in the Great Pancake Contest, part of the three-day Fort Benning District Camporee held at Camp Pine Knot here.

10 Troops Participate

Ten troops from the district participated in the eating which was sponsored by the Yuchi Chapter of the Chatahoochee Order of the Arrow Lodge.

The troops were divided into patrols which competed against each other for honors, and the Pancake Contest was one of the events. The winner of the cooking contest was the first one finished with an eatable pancake.

Over 200 boys took part in the camporee which took them hiking through the woods, chopping logs, pitching tents, etc.

Pot Luck Dinner

Later that week, over 600 Cub and Scout leaders enjoyed a meal cooked with more attention to the eater at the annual Pot Luck Dinner held in the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

The 1968 slate of district officers was sworn into office at the dinner and Maj. Gen. John M. Wright presented distinguished leadership awards for the commissioner's staff and leaders. Allen Rhodes of Pack 227 received the leadership award for Cub Scouting. Capt. Arthur Tate received the leadership award for Boy Scouting. Bob Lumry received the leadership award for the commissioner's staff and Lt. Col. George Ellis received the leadership award for the district.

Gen. Timothy Gives Views on Army's Commitments

Editor's Note: The following is the text of a letter published in the Dartmouth Class of 1967 Newsletter. Written by Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy, Jr., assistant commander of the Infantry School, it expresses his views on the Army's world-wide commitments and the impact on Fort Benning.

The letter is a timely appraisal of our modern Army's capability to meet the challenges of international communism and the individual combat soldier. We want to share it with Bayonet readers.

In a recent letter you asked that I provide for our classmates who have some views concerning our Army today. I would like to address the current commitments of the Army and our effectiveness in discharging these commitments. With this setting as a prelude, I will comment on the Army's training of our young men for the various missions of the Army.

The U. S. Armed Forces constitute the Free World's sole significant military deterrent to the overt expansion of the Communist Bloc. A prerequisite to everything we aspire to as individuals and as a nation is our national defense. Our armed forces form the shield behind which not only our nation but the other nations of the Free World can live in peace and security.

In support of our country's political aims of opposing the expansion of communism, forty per cent of our Army of almost 1.5 million men are serving in 98 foreign countries. There are some six division equivalents serving in Germany and Italy, seven division equivalents in South Vietnam, and three division equivalents in Korea — with the remainder serving in Alaska, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, and in advisory capacities in missions or in attaché posts.

This far-flung dispersion of our Army, accompanied by a corresponding dispersion overseas of our Air Force and Navy, has evolved from our treaty commitments (NATO, CENTO, SEATO, OAS, etc.) following WWII. In this respect, it is emphasized that since the termination of WWII twenty — two years ago the world has experienced over 250 significant armed conflicts.

Of these 250 conflicts over 50 per cent have been of a subversive nature and over 50 per cent of these have been Communist inspired. From the foregoing, I would forecast continued Communist inspired "Wars of Liberation" which will be opposed by the United States and those allies who are directly affected. As General Johnson, the Army Chief of Staff, has stated, "Every generation of Americans must — somewhere, sometime, somehow — pay an installment in the currency of personal sacrifice for our freedom."

Following WWII we saw the disintegration of the British empire and inherited the mantle of the principal poleman and the principal defender of Western Civilization. To our armed forces has fallen the unenviable and often maligned role of the proto-rulers who guard the remote frontiers of the Free World against the incursions of Godless communism.

The price of discharging this mission has been high in terms of manpower as well as money, and I predict that this situation will continue into the foreseeable future. Since WWII we have invested billions of dollars to build the economy and military posture of free world countries, e.g., the Marshall Plan, the Truman Plan, etc. Our military budget today alone is over 70 billion dollars.

Correspondingly, we have been forced to maintain armed forces which have never fallen below a million men and which have continually expanded to meet the various crises imposed by the Communist Bloc — the two Berlin blockades, Korea, Lebanon, and Vietnam. In three of these crises, the Berlin blockades and Korea, the President has called up our Reserve forces to aid the Regular armed forces.

For the other crises or conflicts, in particular the current Vietnam conflict, the regular forces have undertaken the mission aided only by volunteers or draftees.

To discharge our mission today, as we have those in the past, our armed services need men not only willing to serve their country — but to serve as leaders. If it costs in the order of $70 billion a year to field our armed forces, it follows that the armed forces need competent men as junior executives (i.e., officers at the company grade level) to manage its men and material.

Speaking for the Army, our requirements in this age of computers, missiles, lasers, troop-sealer signal communications, etc., are for highly trained officers, especially in the technical branches such as the Engineers, Signal Corps, Ordnance and Quartermaster. Even the role of the doughboy has changed. As General Johnson has stated, "The choice is yours!"

Last Christmas the grim reaper had a very merry time from soldiers traveling home for the season.

the infantryman had to do was march fast, shoot straight and keep his powder dry.

Today our Infantry rifle company commander is charged with the training of his men who are equipped with highly complex materiel. To include sophisticated radior, mortars, anti-tank missiles and even armored personnel carriers. Other combat arms, Armor and Artillery, have even more complicated and costly equipment.

Only a small percentage of our junior officer requirements come from the service academies or from the reserve officer training program (ROTC) of the various services. The vast majority of our junior officers are selected from the ranks and are commissioned after successfully completing our Officer Candidate Schools.

Many of the Army's officer candidate graduates are young college graduates who have been selected for the OC program directly following their basic and advanced training — or after only a few weeks service. We need, however, far more college trained men in the services today for only men possessing their skills can provide adequate leadership — or management — at the lower grade levels of our armed forces.

I have addressed the commitments of today's Army and have emphasized that in the absence of a call to active duty of our Reserve Forces, must depend on the draft not only for the majority of its soldiers but the majority of its junior officers. I will now address the Army's effectiveness in training its soldiers and junior officers to discharge its world-wide commitments and to fight in Vietnam.

TIPS TO MOTORISTS
Come to a complete stop at all stop signs, refrain from driving if you have been drinking, turn only from proper lane, use the proper directional or arm signs, do not crowd the vehicle ahead, drive alertly, obey speed limits and drive defensively to make allowances for the mistakes made by other motorists.

Given the motive to drive more safely, the individual driver can respond. You, the drivers, are the only ones who can put an end to the whole sorry mess, this tragedy of errors in America — The choice is yours!

First, I would like to compare today's atmosphere with that of World War II which will be vividly remembered by our classmates, nearly all of whom were called to the colors. You will recall that we fielded vast armed forces based on a nucleus of very few regulars. In my case, there were but 2 regular officers and 8 regular NCOs in my battalion of 80 men. This situation does not exist today.

The Army, because of its standing size since WWII in the order of around 900,000 men, has the most highly trained and experienced cadre of officer and non-commissioned officer corps in the world today. General officers, colonels and senior NCOs are veterans of WWII, Korea and Vietnam. The majority of grades and the majority of NCOs are at least Korean veterans, and the younger officers and NCOs found in our training centers are generally Vietnam veterans.

Stemming from this wealth of experience which characterizes the Regular Army to-and- fro — the draftee enters an atmosphere of professionalism and esprit that bears no comparison with the "rat race" of WWII when draftees trained with wooden replicas of rifles in a unit that had only a minute percentage of Regular supervisors. Today's Army is truly a professional army and the draftee quickly learns to become a significant part of that army.

Based on my experience in commanding an independent airborne brigade in Vietnam, you will experience a sense of pride and confidence that the future of our nation will soon be entrusted to these fine young men — whether they become leaders within the Army or leaders in our nation's civil pursuits after discharging their military obligation.

With warmest regards,
Sincerely,
Pat

Infantry Board: Testing Infantry Weapons Since 1919

The Vietnamese jungle night was ominous. The stillness of the enshrouding darkness was broken only by the infantryman's methodical search for the enemy as he swung his night vision adapter around.

In changing focus, he could hear the low gear-mech like sound of the "diopiter" focusing adjustment of his search equipment. Suddenly in the darkness, as if it were illuminated by semi-light, the enemy soldier took shape, and then another.

The U. S. Army Infantry, using their advantage of detecting before being detected, sprung their trap and stopped the enemy night raiders with their small arms fire, thanks to the peering eye of the starlight scope. Result — the enemy thrust defeated.

All this was made possible through the Infantryman's use of the small starlight scope attached to his rifle. The night light from the heavens had illuminated the enemy to such a degree that his outline was visible to the searcher. The light reflected from the target was amplified in the infantryman's scope.

Step Forward

This development is a great step forward for our fighting men in the jungles of Vietnam, who are beset by the stealthy enemy using the cover of darkness to conceal approach. Similar to the other weapons and allied equipment of the Infantryman, this piece of equipment has been tested at the U. S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) here.

Charged with the responsibility of testing all weapons, equipment, clothing and vehicles developed for use by the Infantry, USAIB, a subordinate test activity of the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command (USATECOM) performs its vital functions on the terrain, various bodies of water, and ranges of Fort Benning.

The testing of all items is conducted under conditions as close to combat as possible. At the conclusion of testing an item, the board makes its recommendations as to suitability for army use.

The Infantry Board is not new to Benning or the U. S. Army. On Dec. 15, 1919, War Department orders established the board as a development and testing activity with permanent station at Fort Benning. The sole function of the board was "to consider with a continuity of effort, the improvements of the Infantry."

Prior to this board's existence, there was no permanent agency whose sole function was to consider the subjects vital to the Infantry. Various Infantry boards were formed at different periods for the consideration of specific matters.

In March 1903, a board was formed "for the purpose of consideration of the operations and equipment of the Infantry arm," with station at the General Services and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

This board's activities ceased in 1911 when personnel of the post formed the 13th Inf. and departed for the Mexican border. This board was the forerunner of the Infantry Board.

It was little more than a year after the guns of WWI were stilled that the War Department issued their order and the Infantry Board was "born" at Fort Benning, then Camp Benning.

Nearly a half century has passed and American Infantrymen have fought in Africa, Europe, the Pacific Islands, Korea and Vietnam. It has been the mission of the board to insure that the best weapons and equipment be developed for the men in battle.

Board's Motto

This mission inspired the Infantry Board's motto: "Only the Best for the Finest."

By the early 1920s, the board was busy on a variety of projects. Among the 40 plus projects in 1924 was a study on reduction of the load carried by the fighting men, an improved tripod for the Browning machinegun, and tests of the Garand and Thompson automatic loading rifles.

During the past year, the board has been working on 58 projects which included a variety of weapons and equipment such as the nylon webbing sling for rifles, lightweight carrying equipment, lightweight ponchos, night vision devices, antitank weapons, personnel carriers and small arms of various degrees.

Many of this country's most vital ground warfare weapons are tested by the Infantry Board. The board occupies a unique position at Benning. Its 38 officers and warrant officers, 85 enlisted men and 46 civilian employees work at the post but are otherwise a separate unit.

It is a tenant organization and one of 15 proving grounds, service test boards and environmental test centers of the USATECOM, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

The Infantry Board is concerned with everything the Infantryman shoots, wears, rides, uses, or eats in combat situations. The task is to give him superior arms, lighten his load and give him more endurance, speed and maneuverability, win any war he must fight, and bring him home alive.

OPTICALLY TRACKED TOW IS PREPARED FOR FIRING

The Infantry Board which has had other names in the past, officially celebrates its 48th anniversary today. Saturday morning, the Board will hold Open House at Sandy Patch Test Area in observance of the milestone. A cake cutting ceremony, welcome by the board president, demonstration of equipment, and static displays will be available for visitors.

Throughout the board's long history many distinguished Infantrymen have served as its members. Among these are Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. George Marshall, and Gen. Courtney Hodges. Col. James I. Muir, Jr., is the current president of the board and Col. Walter F. Johnston is deputy president. They are assisted in the administration field by Lt. Col. Kent S. Hasemeier as chief of operations, Maj. William B. Moser, Jr., as chief of supply and maintenance, and Lt. Gene W. Cole as Adjutant and CWO Smith Dawson as chief of personnel and administration.

Cole is also commanding officer of the board Hq. Co. The testing of clothing and equipment is conducted by three materiel test divisions.

A fourth test division, the Combat Conditions Test Div. recently was added to the board. This division has developed an instrumented range which with its new electronic equipment makes possible the determining of bullet paths that miss the target as well as successful strikes.

Yule Time Overshadowed By Traffic Death Threat

By PFC Mickey Sneed
We are on the threshold of a time that for some 190 years has signified peace on earth, good will toward men. What a pity that tragedy, human suffering and death should all but eclipse that joy and happiness the world eagerly anticipates each December.

Every driver makes a supreme effort to prevent highway tragedies, the accident and death toll will detract from the spirit of Christmas and add untold suffering and sorrow.

The USAIC safety director, states, "It would hardly seem necessary for safety officials to emphasize the necessity for drivers to practice extreme caution during this time of the year. Not impressive. But, apparently the past year's record of traffic accidents during the post-holiday and holiday season itself has not impressed us too vividly. Due to fewer daylight hours, many of us will have to drive after dark, which we are not accustomed to. Also shown in the records is the fact that we become so engrossed in our individual and personal plans that our minds wander far away from the task of driving in heavy traffic. We do these things which steer us into tragic accidents, forever ending our participation in Christmas holiday festivities."

Pages of those same records reveal that over 90 percent of holiday traffic victims had the idea that the best way to celebrate Christmas is to over indulge in drink. And the tragedy of such accidents is that the one who had been drinking usually managed to take someone along with him.

Share Fate
The innocent victim, through no fault of his own, is invited to share the fate of the drinking driver. The driver who is out to celebrate for the last time. Even more tragic are those traffic mishaps which are directly attributed to the complacent attitude which so many soldiers seem to have. They seem to believe that accidents just could not happen to them. They are laboring under the delusion that they lead some kind of charmed life. . . . and that accidents could only happen to the other fellow?

Many are in for a rude awakening, because eventually they will be brought face to face with the grim truth that accidents do not respect people. . . . no one is immune. During past Christmas holiday seasons, various types of campaigns have been carried on emphasizing the dangers of holiday hazards because of darkness, uncertain weather and holiday drinking. In spite of this emphasis, we hope against hope that the peaceful spirit of Christmas will not be dimmed by highway tragedies. . . . hopes that are in vain!

SHORT TRIP . . . Last year two soldiers left Fort Benning in this automobile on their Christmas Eve. They never celebrated the holiday.

Accidents Mar Christmas Holiday For Too Many Soldiers on Leave

A sergeant first class was driving his privately owned vehicle on Highway 27 when another soldier pulled out in front of him while negotiating a curve. The car smashed through a median divider and collided head-on with a truck.

A young man, stationed in a rural area of Pennsylvania, enroute home for Christmas. He applied his brakes for reasons unknown and causing the vehicle to leave the road, shear off a telephone pole and roll over twice, coming to a stop 130 feet from the pole.

Safety Follies Showings Set Around Post

Roger Miller's popular recording, "King of the Road," has taken on a new meaning.

The lyrics to Miller's song add many more have been changed to deal with safety in a variety show entitled "Highway Follies of '67." The 20-minute presentation will be staged in Fort Benning theaters, company day rooms and Marshall Auditorium.

Remaining performances will be conducted according to the following schedule with media tapes available for presentation throughout the community.

December 18
3:00 p.m. Bldg. 76 USAIB
7:00 p.m. Theater 2

A Fort Benning soldier was driving on a state highway in a rural area of Pennsylvania, enroute home for Christmas. He applied his brakes for reasons unknown and causing the vehicle to leave the road, shear off a telephone pole and roll over twice, coming to a stop 130 feet from the pole.

These accidents did not just happen. They were caused by people who did not care. Seventy-five per cent of last year's traffic fatalities were caused by people acting of their own when the driver, traveling at a high rate of speed, lost control while negotiating a curve. The car smashed through a median divider and collided head-on with a truck.

New CTC Chaplain Is Presented Bronze Star Award

An exuberant, out-going evangelist who was once kicked out of his high school considered hopeless by his boyhood Sunday school teacher, has been assigned to Fort Benning as Center Troop Command's chaplain.

Commissioned in '66

Moyer was awarded the Bronze Star this week for his service in Vietnam. Quoting the citation, "Chaplain Moyer repeatedly exposed himself to the hazards of aggression by accompanying the squadron on every field operation. He has many times been under hostile fire while assisting in the evacuation of the wounded."

Commissioned as chaplain in 1966, Moyer says that as a boy the ministry was the last thing he ever had in mind. "I was going to be a shortstop for the New York Yankees." A year after he started Bucknell University at Lewisburg, Pa., as a chemical engineering major, he was drafted. He was assigned to the Army Security Agency in Berlin as a Russian linguist, and finished his tour of duty as a special agent five.

Changed His Major
A year after returning to Bucknell he decided to study for the ministry and changed his major accordingly. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology, and religion in 1969 and went on to Colgate Rochester Divinity School. "Then I felt I needed a year to work in business — I wanted to see what it was like."

He dropped out of school and went to work for a furniture factory. Later he went back to school, to United Theological Seminary of Dayton, Ohio, which is a denominational seminary for the Evangelical United Brethren. In 1964 Moyer received his Bachelor of Divinity degree.

While serving the EUB parish of Port Trevorton, Pa., Moyer reached his decision to become a chaplain. "I felt this was where my ministry was to be," explains the chaplain. "and like it — it's very rewarding."

His wife, Carol, likes it too. Her father was a Lutheran chaplain in WW II. The couple met at college while she was a civilian minister's assistant.

Carol, an elementary education major at nearby Lock Haven State College, was dating the son of Moyer's fraternity brothers. They were married in 1960, and for a semester Carol commuted from Pennsylvania to New York every weekend. Carol and her two-year-old son Douglas are living here now.

Of his Vietnam experience, Moyer tells of an incident which showed for the first time that the men accepted him. "We had just moved from the staging area to where the base camp was being built and were just securing the area. Anything cold was extremely difficult to come by. Somewhere some of the men got a little cold beer, a can apiece. I had just gone into a pump tent and those men brought me an ice cold can of beer."

Wide interests in college Moyer was exposed to the full brunt of today's theology, including the "God is dead" theory. Partly as a result of his wide education, Moyer is a man of wide interests. His office library contains such diverse titles and authors as Kirkegaard, Bonhoeffer, and Freud and Yogi Berra, Exodus and Seven Days in May.

Moyer finds the ministry challenging. The ministry in the army, he says, "is concerned so much whether an individual follows a particular denominational theory. We're interested in helping to build better Christians, without the labels. The chaplain's responsibility is far greater than the civilian minister's."

Col. Galen Morey, chief of staff of the Army Training and Doctrine Center, addressed the graduating Officer Candidate Class, to 50 Monday giving them tips on how to profit from the experience of the non-commissioned officer (NCO).

This is a magnificent picture book. The publisher has compiled some 100 photographs of human expression and complete juxtaposition to the dozens of photographs represented. "and-or" is a collection of interrelated photos. About half are from the Vietnam war; the remainder are pure Americana. The book is well made and the printing quality good—but it is the striking similarities and paradoxes of the relationships between the photos—that is the manner in which they are arranged—that move the reader.

On one page, for example, is a Viet Cong guerrilla hanging upside down and being interrogated by South Vietnamese soldiers. On the opposite page is a newborn baby being measured with a tape-

ing page is a newborn baby being measured with a tape-measure by a doctor. The photographs are arranged in a striking similarity of poses. The same form, and death with a white flag, and a painful jolt to even the most casual reader.

But "and-or" is more than just a study of the contradictions of our age. It is also a collection of some of the most important photographs of our time, and probably the brilliant star of the work is B-11 Stroff, "Newspaper Photographer of the Year" for 1966 and now chief photographer for the "Louisville Courier." His near-rival is Ken Heyman, whose photographs, many from a book on America's Day for the White House, play counterpoint to the pictures of war.

L. Forgettable pictures by Pulitzer Prize winners Horst P. S. and the Associated Press. Yoshi Sawada of United Press International are coupled with work from Heyman, from Dorothea Lange, Alfred Eisenstein and other viewers of the American scene.

Some of the most compelling pictures are those that have appeared in Life magazine. The famous cover by Henri Huet, who was recently seriously wounded at Con Fien of 1st Cav. Div. medic Thomas Cole administering aid to a fallen comrade is included.

Other photographs from the pages of Life are by Charles Bonnay, Larry Burroughs, Cathy LeRoy and Lee Lockwood who managed by foot North Vietnam and photographed Hanoi.

Raw Emotion
It is the raw emotion conveyed by these wonderful photographs and the unique arrangement that are the basis for the success of the work. A picture, the proverb goes, is worth a thousand words. Here are nearly 200 outstanding photographs, whose messages have to be viewed to be understood.

If there is any criticism to be made, it is that the book would be even more memorable if it were of larger pages. If the paper was of print quality silk stock, and if there were even more of the superlative photographs. In summary, this is a collector's item—but it might be made a little better—and more expensive—by strictly mechanical devices.

THE WICKED DREAMS OF FAULA SCHULTZ
Romantic and suspenseful comedy about the defection of an East German athlete (Elke Sommer) to the West. Credit for the daring escape and for her defection to the United States goes to who?

OUR MOTHER'S HOUSE
An eerie, but sadly moving mood is captured in this compelling drama where seven children are orphaned when their mother dies. Instead of adhering to conventional funeral procedures,

The children adopt their own peculiar method of going for themselves.
When everything is going well their free-lancing father (Dick Bogarde) arrives on the premises destroying themselves near the Mexican border at the close of the Civil War.
A band of outlaws make off with the clan's horde of gold and the story centers on their efforts to capture the bandits and recover their gold.
Running time: 105 minutes.

Top Talent SSO Announces Contest Winners

Three enlisted men are richer this week as a result of their participation in the December Special Service Organization Entertainment Contest last Saturday evening at the South Harwich Church Service Club.

OC Osborne, T. Smallwood from the 60th Co. (DC), 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, walked away with top honors before nearly 200 people. Spec 5 Gary King and Pvt. Douglas Gules of the 23rd Army Band took second and third place respectively.

Judges for this month's contest were Maj. Henry G. Watson of the Martin Army Hospital command, Maj. William Lee of the Infantry Board and John Grantham, director of the Baker High School Band and chair director of the Main Post.

Ribbon Cutting Opens New Post Craft Shop

The Infantry Center opened its ninth craft shop for solder hobbyists last Friday.

Gen. John M. Wright Jr., commanding general of Fort Benning, cut the ribbon at formal dedication ceremonies of the new Kelley Hill facility.

"We always receive a fine return on Special Services facilities," Gen. Wright said, "as reflected in the morale and welfare of the troops."

Hugh Cook, crafts director for Special Services here, guided Gen. Wright and 25 guests from the Phenix City-Russell County Chamber of Commerce through the 5000 square-foot building.

Adjacent to the recently-completed Kelley Hill Bowling Center, the craft shop is divided into five rooms, including a photo lab with five stations, Alexandria, Va., 22895. The contest ends at April 1, 1968.

MRS. W. BENNETT, Director of New Shops

Army Shooters Have Good Week

Members of the U. S. Army Rifle, Pistol and Running Gun Shooting Teams enjoyed their best week of the season recently in competition that ranged from Phoenix, Ariz., to Lackland AFB, Tex., and to the ranges at Fort Benning, Ga. The teams had Phoenix scored a perfect 200 of their busiest weeks of competition of the fall (1000-yard line, which Lancaster mastered a 199-59's count

Led by M. Sgt. Alfred Falgout and Sgt. Robert Lan... the Army Rifle Team captured all individual first places in the 1987 Long Range High Power Rifle Tournament held at the ranges at Fort Benning, Ga. ## CG Kicks Off Trout Fishing At Russ Pond

At noon last Saturday Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, stood on the shore at Russ Pond and fired a revolver to signal the start of the day's fishing. The youngsters were after their share of the 6,000 rainbow trout put in the pond by the Fish and Wildlife Branch recently.

Post Cager Is Chosen For Olympic Tryouts

Some of the boys and girls did not have long to wait. The sound of the shot had hardly stopped echoing when some of the youngsters announced fish on the line. Eight year old Elaine Bunting, daughter of CWO James Bunting, post food advisor, was the first to land a fish. She was closely followed by at least a dozen others.

By Pvt. Lynette Herstein How does he feel about the possibility of being a representative of the U. S. at the Olympics in Mexico City? "I think it is a great honor to be selected for the tryouts because you have to be good just to be selected."

THE FORMER HOOSIERS

BY MIKE MCNULTY

John Pont is the man of the hour in Indiana. On December 6 he was named coach of the year by the members of the Football Writers Association of America; on January 1 he'll lead his young upstart football team against the No. 1 college team in the nation, the University of Southern California.

The football team he'll exhibit on that first day of 1968 is a rather strange one indeed: at first glance it seems to be anything but the co-champion of the powerful Big Ten Conference; one would suppose that, in fact, it should be on the other end of the standings. And this, of course, is exactly where the forecasters put the Hoosiers when making their pre-season picks.

Before the season began Pont's team sprouted out at every position. There were but one or two noteworthy holdovers returning from the 1966 club, which sported a dismal record of one win-eight losses-one tie, to possessibly put the Hoosier in the upper class—which meant that it was conceivable that Indiana could win as many as two or even three games in 1967.

But Pont knew better—and because he did Indiana is now standing in the winners' circle. Playing what at best can be called a gamble (which is a nice way of saying "a guess"), he came up with a backfield consisting of three sophomores and one senior, a fast offensive line led by all-American Gary Cassels, and a young but bold defense unit that would eventually put fear into the hearts of its opponents.

The coach added to this reckless brand of football. Often during the season he would fourth down with long yardage to go and, picking up a first down, succeed in scoring or tuckback throw when the situation called for a run, his ends would slip into the quarterfield and dart out unmolested with the football for long gains, his halfbacks became passers, his fullback turned up at the strangest places as a receiver or a decoy. But all this produced victories, more wins than the Hoosiers had totaled in the last four years combined. And no matter how close the scores were, the final standings found Indiana ranked No. 4 in the nation with a record of nine wins and one loss.

The 39 year old Pont coached in the same style at Miami of Ohio, his alma mater, from 1956 through 1962. His teams compiled a record of 43-22-1 during that period, and he was instrumental in raising the level of football played in the Mid-American Conference to what it is today. Pont then went on to the Ivy League and coached at Yale team to record of 12-5-1 in two seasons.

It was then that he decided to do the impossible. In 1966 he arrived in Blomington, Ind., to take over the job of trying to revitalize the habitual losers of Indiana University. This proved to be a much more difficult task than he initially believed it would be.

During his first two seasons there his teams produced an overall record of 3-16-1 and his future looked bleak. But then, the sportswriters wrote, you couldn't really expect any more out of the Hoosiers—they just couldn't win!

USC should prove to be the toughest opponent the Hoosiers have faced this year. And chances are good that Indiana will lose the game; certainly they'll be the underdog once again, as they were in each game they played during the regular season. But don't count them out, because they have a gambling coach named John Pont. And John Pont has a Tiger by the tail.

Benning NCOC Course Has Black Belt Holder in Ranks

Herbert Cho has thrown while in advanced infantry Green Berets, basic trainees training at Fort Polk, La. Before entering the Army, he demonstrated for groups of special forces troops undergoing training in Hawaii. He believes that a sharp knowledge of hand-to-hand techniques would give soldiers an added "psychological benefit" in combat. "25-20 years he has studied the techniques of karate and judo effectiveness and the effort of troops in Vietnam," he commented. Cho, from Los Angeles, Calif., is now assigned to the 75th Co., 7th Sst. Bn., 101st Air Asslt. Div., where he is attending the Noncommissioned Officers' Candidate Course.

Volleyball Clinic Scheduled Here

The 1968 Third U. S. Army Volleyball Clinic for officials and coaches will be held at Briant Wells field house from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. January 15-16. The purpose of the clinic is to train a representative of each company size unit in such areas as regulations of volleyball.

New Years Eve Party Set By Post Bowling Centers

By Spec. 4 Bill Walls
Soldiers remaining at Fort Benning over the New Year's holiday will have the opportunity to celebrate the evening at the two newest post bowling facilities.
Annually, the post bowling centers sponsor a New Year's Eve party from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. on January 1 and this year will be no exception. With the recent addition of the Kelley Hill bowling center, two parties will be held simultaneously at Main Post and at the new Kelley Hill facility for all soldiers with or without a date. "Cost for the entire evening's entertainment will be $2.50 per person or $5 per couple," said Jim Haymond, manager of the Main Post bowling center. "For this price, a soldier may enjoy bowling until 6 a.m., refreshments and breakfast at sunrise to see the New Year in."

Added Attraction
As an added attraction, Haymond explained that there would be a "scotch and doubles" tournament at the Main Post bowling center. The tournament will be open only to couples since the rules require that the lady play the first ball of each frame and her escort roll the second ball attempting to pick up those pins that remain, if any. This special event will cost an additional $1 entry fee, but all money taken in during this event will be returned to the patrons as prize money.
Open Bowling
After this event, open bowling will be held throughout the remainder of the evening and the snack bar will remain open for regular purchases. A juke box will provide music for dancing.

"To avoid confusion," Haymond continued, "the house will be closed of all patrons at 10:30 p.m. Sunday evening, December 31st. Only those with advance sale tickets will be permitted to re-enter the premises when the making their party reservation facility is re-opened at 11:00 p.m. for the party."
Haymond explained that the party would be a total of 86 couples entering the tournament.
Similar Event
Meanwhile, at Kelley Hill bowling center, manager Ed Dyes has scheduled a similar evening of entertainment. Anticipating that the soldiers coming to this party will be less likely to have dates, Dyes explained that the feature event for this party would be a "3-6-9 - no tap" tournament. This type of tournament must be entered individually. Dyes related, and the $1 entry fee will be returned to patrons as prize money.
All Fort Benning soldiers are invited to attend this year's party.

Local Alleys Plan Novelty Tournaments

The bowling centers at Main Post and Kelley Hill have announced plans for several novelty type tournaments during the holiday season, according to Jim Haymond, manager of the Main Post facility.
"Lucky 12," "269" and other novelty tournaments will be featured at both centers beginning Monday, and continuing through Dec. 31. Any one may enter these tournaments for the $1.50 entry fee and an individual may enter as many times as he wishes.
There will be prize money for one out of every 20 participants in the events since the majority of the entry fee will go for this purpose.
A person may enter one of these tournaments any time that lanes are available in open bowling at either facility. However, the Kelley Hill Center will be closed Monday and Tuesday for maintenance and both centers will be closed all day Christmas day.
Hours for the two centers remain unchanged for the holiday season except for the above dates.

At ITC Potential Instructors Learn New Concepts, Polish Old Techniques

Instructors and public speakers usually are not born with a presentable dress, but have to acquire it through training and experience. This philosophy, expressed by Lt. Col. H. L. Wirth, chief of the Infantry School's Instructional Methods Division, is a concise statement of the mission of the Instructor Training course. Every Infantry School instructor in the grade of lieutenant colonel and below must successfully complete the course, so the instruction must be concise and effective.

For some, the course polishes old instructional techniques; for others, it teaches entirely new concepts and sometimes uncovers heretofore hidden personalities. And while the course is challenging by design, it is not meant to be feared. Yet despite this, many would-be instructors seem to cringe in stark terror at the prospect of attending the course, commonly known as ITC. Maj. Glenn C. Stephens, the officer directly responsible for ITC, indicates that it is a unique thought to consider seasoned combat veterans quaking at the idea of presenting instruction. Stephens added that, "this fear is unfounded. It's not the function of ITC to eliminate instructors; the task is to train them." This training is conducted over a period of three and one-half weeks. This gives the students ample time in which to improve their instructional techniques, for almost 75 per cent of the course time is devoted to preparation, rehearsal, and presentation of student "itches." Formal instruction from ITC cadre is minimal. Wirth stated, "students learn by doing" and this idea is exemplified in the extensive use of groups of approximately nine students. Each group has a highly qualified ITC instructor, training students on a personal basis.

Initial Day
The first day of the course finds the student being oriented and received by members of the Instructor Training Course faculty. These officers and noncommissioned officers are all experts in their field. They are polished professionals in instruction. As Wirth noted, "The man who teaches instructors must be the best, and we have some of the best." During the first week, students receive extensive formal instruction in the techniques of presenting, or "pitching" classes. Concurrently, they are brought to the platform to speak in front of their student group. Their first chance to speak before the group is a three-minute personal history talk. And while the purpose of this is to help the student to relax, group instructors say that twitching muscles, quaking hands, and dry throats are not uncommon student maladies. Students are quick to add that although they have given many talks and briefings in their careers, none were like this. They admit that the challenge to their own ability is very obvious at the end of the first talk.

Following Weeks
During the next three weeks, these students will present lectures, demonstrations, and conferences ranging in length from five minutes to 20 minutes. Each of the various presentations is critiqued by members of the student groups as well as the group instructor. Capt. Ralph Burr, a senior group instructor, points out that, "... mistakes are made and corrected, and after all this is the process of learning." By the end of the three-week course the students are ready to present their 30-minute final. This is a block of instruction assigned by the student's instructional department and which the student will be required to present before resident classes. This final presentation serves two purposes; it is an evaluation tool for the group instructor and a qualification trial for the student's first full hour of instruction.

M-16 Might Require 5 Cleanings Per Day

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — It may be necessary for some soldiers to clean their M-16 rifles three to five times a day, the Army says. "Clean your rifle every chance you get—three to five times a day's not too often in some cases," the Army's preventive maintenance monthly PS urges.

Passing along seven suggestions from combat veterans, the maintenance comic book says:

- Keep your ammo and magazine as clean and dry as possible. The only part of the magazine that gets any lube is the spring—and it gets only a very light touch of 150 special M16 lubricant. Oil it up or you're headed for trouble.
- Inspect your ammo when you load the magazine. Never load dented or dirty ammo. Remember to load only 18 or 19 rounds.
- Clean your rifle every time a day's not too often. Cleanliness is a must—and it may save your life.
- Be sure to clean carbon and dirt from those barrel locking lugs. Pipe cleaners help here and in the gas port.
- Never be bashful about asking for cleaning materials when you need 'em. They're available. Get 'em and use 'em.
- Check your extractor and spring often. If they're worn or burred get new ones.
- Lube your rifle, using LSA only. It's the most. A light coat put on with a rag after cleaning is good. Work after cleaning is good. Work after cleaning is good. Work after cleaning is good.

PS advises combat soldiers to "be careful where (they) put it (the rifle) down and how (they) put it down."

"Never stop it in mud or water or sand."

New Army 1 1/4-Ton Truck Provides Speed, Comfort

Swap the headlights, put the grille back in, change the drab Army-style seats and throw on a fast-past job of something other than OD—voilà! The Army's new 1 1/4-ton truck becomes a snappy, powerful civilian model built for speed and comfort.

Stated as an interim replacement for the venerable, antique 3-ton truck in service since World War II days, a shipment of 300 "militarized" Willys "Jeep Gladia-tors" trucks has been put on the line by various units around post.

CAR Students Can Answer New Lieutenant's Questions

By Spec. 5 Larry Mahoney

After nearly 10 months of the most intensive training the Army can give a man, the young officer candidate at The Infantry School is long on training but almost always short on another vital factor in the making of an officer: experience.

branch and unit assignments. "Some of our group can give a man real particulars on the unit and how he'll be reporting to it. Gayer added, "and we usually carry along the aviation officers to advise them on going into that special-on the trucks, described as "comfortable" and "an improvement" by personnel. Earliest shipments of the "civvie" trucks, however, went to such units as 19th Supt. Bn., 197th Bde., which received 25 last week. They went "on the line" today as initial issue for the new unit, which had only a few of the old 3-ton trucks.

There is, of course, no way to get this polishing except in the crucible of combat itself. What is the war in Vietnam really like? Just what is expected of a very junior platoon leader? And how well does our training equip us for combat?

The new trucks are replacing the 3-tonners at other units, and in many cases "Jeep Gladia-tors" trucks has been put on the line by various units around post.

Cracking open the civilian-model hood, secured with standard army latches, Paul uncovered an ungovernored cylinder overhead cam engine housing 229 cubic inches displacement and putting out 132.5 brake horsepower at 4,000 RPM. Paul said, "The drivers are going to find this out anyway, but there are no governors on these things. They'll hit a pretty good speed." The drivers uttered a collective "Himmmmmmmm" at that news. Smiles and raised eyebrows were noted.

Tires and the transfer case for 4-wheel drive operation are the only items of equipment the new truck and the old 3-ton share. They are interchangeable, though Paul said he wondered why, in light of the chronic oil leakage problem in the long-used transfer case.

In procedures regarding the new truck said "They'll work out," as he moved around one of the new vehicles, pointing out advantages, disadvantages and interesting features.

He cautioned several drivers with the trucks to be careful as they tried to avoid hanging their heads on the low-hanging door-frame tops. He pointed out an engine windshield wiper mounting at the base of the windshield and the military wind-housings now at the top of the windshield.

197th Support Battalion To Get New Unit Crests

By Spec. 4 Paul Turk

Approval has been received at headquarters of the 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., for manufacture and distribution of a distinctive unit crest for the new organization. Initial procurement of uniform crests is expected in three months, according to Lt. Col. James O. Poulton, the battalion commander.

service and personnel and other administrative services for all elements of the brigade. Other aspects of the design, executed in scarlet, buff and blue include four blue fasces above the chevrons which represent the separate brigade which is being served by the support unit.

The support battalion organized during the past summer, is the latest addition to the Army's largest infantry brigade, and provides massive services which would otherwise have to be concentrated in a headquarters company unit of unwieldy size. Units include an administrative company, which handles the adjutant general personnel work, finance, public information, staff judge advocate and chaplain sections; medical personnel for duty with line units, and a transportation company for movement of large numbers of troops or amounts of equipment.

Old Tradition Gets Boost As Students Adopt Ocelot

By Larry Mahoney

ITEM: An ocelot from Colombia has left its Latin American birthplace to join an officer candidate (OC) company training at the Infantry School.

Pleasant disposition when raised in captivity, and limited by size in the playful harm it could do with claw and fang, the ocelot has become a favorite animal companion of the elegant ladies of the social cities in New York, Paris, etc.

The ocelot that went to war belongs to the 91st Co., 9th Sst. Bn. (OC), commanded by Capt. James D. Olenyck Jr., who remembers the old days in GCS when mascots were a celebrated and colorful custom. All that remained of this tradition, before the ocelot was one plain dog serving to stir the spirits of a lone company, Olenyck, mindful of the roosters and bobcats of yesteryear, regretted this.

Why An Ocelot? Why did the 91st choose an ocelot? All soldiers are aware of abbreviations—PFC, KP, PT... and when you go to officer candidate school you become an OC. Ocelot. Get it? The 91st, rejecting the more common "Tiger, Lion, Eager Beavers, etc." voted to become the Ocelots. ("We're the mighty ocelots," they sing in the cadence "Oce. Two. It took only 17 days and $225 at $13.50 a m.

most Infantry Center, evidenced only by the donkey that marches with the 45th Abn. Co., and an ape named Joe and a bull, goat belonging to basic training companies.

Harlin contacted a source in Columbia, and the little leopard-like cub got orders for Fort Banning. It arrived there weighing only nine pounds at age two months. The cub is doubtless confused about its new and colorful home, and having 200 green-suited masters might be traumatic, to say nothing of the rifle range and rising at 5:30 a. m.

Catholics and Protestants are busy adding to the lists of plans for a series of Christmas services. Last Thursday ladies of the Society for the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Protestant Women of the Chapel met at the Catholic Center to make contacts for the upcoming religious programs.

First of the joint services is the nativity play, "Our Brother Is Born," to be presented December 19, 7:30 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel.

Directed by Spec 5 William M. Nadin, the pageant will be highlighted by a chorus of 225 of the post's children.

Second in the series of programs is the "Everyman and Christmas," to be presented by the Infantry Center Chapel Choir on December 17, 7:30 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel.

The work, written in 1854 by the French master, Hector Berlioz, will be presented by the 30-member choir in the Infantry Center Chapel.

Directed by Spec 5 William M. Nadin, the pageant will be highlighted by a chorus of 225 of the post's children.

Second in the series of programs is the "Everyman and Christmas," to be presented by the Infantry Center Chapel Choir on December 17, 7:30 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel.

At the end of each service, candle lighters will lead the congregation outside in a candlelight procession as the service is closed with the music of "Joy to the World." Also at the Infantry Center Chapel, Protestants will observe a Christmas Day worship service at 10 a.m. and a watch night communion service at 11 p.m. of New Years Eve.

Chaplain (Capt.) William P. Foreman, of the Infantry Center Chapel, said he expected the Christmas season to be a most meaningful time for the soldiers.

Student Brigade Soldiers Re-Up In Record Time

By Spec 5 Larry Mahoney

There is always a new way to equip the U. S. Army. Soldiers do it astride camels in Ethiopia, suspended from the airborne lowers at Fort Benning, repelling from eyes and, rumor has it, once took a burst of six while on KP.

Now comes the mass re-up by 10 soldiers assigned to Hq. Co., The Student Brigade. They raised their right hands together for the six-year terms at what made it even more unusual was that some of them had been in the post for six years.

Until recently, a soldier was not allowed to re-enlist until he had been in the post for six years. Now his eight months and among the first to do it at this early point in their Army careers were Spec 4 Michael McBride, Pvt. Henry Aquire, Spec 5 Donald Beantni, Pvt. Demis Banton, Timothy Tyler, Pvt. Roy Sch, Lt. Pvt. Robt. Mitchell, Pvt. Patrick Greene and Spec 4 Robert Smith.

Man Asks, Who Is God? And What, Then, Is Man?

By Chap. (Capt.) R. R. Siebert

A new church year begins. Every man, woman and child in Sunday school before Christmas marks the beginning of the Advent season. This is a season of joy and sorrow, in which the people of God prepare for His coming into the world.

It is a time of joy because it carries the realization that God is not "a god afar off" but rather a God who rejoices in His people and brings them into a loving relationship with Himself.

It is a time of sorrow because it realizes the questions who is God? and what then is man? and what then is man?

Shadowed By Cross We face a manger shadowed by a cross. We face God entering human history to answer for man his greatest man?

Atlanta Scouts To Visit Here Over Weekend

Helicopter rides in the 10th Scout Co's Chinooks and a scout dog presentation highlighted the weekend activities of the Atlanta Explorer Council, hosted by the 100th Avn. Coy.

The Explorers will hold meetings in Marshall Auditorium but plan to find time with the Eagle Board of Review in an attempt to gain scouting's highest rank Wednesday.

Girl Scout troops will sing Christmas carols throughout main post housing areas on December 18. Also, a live nativity scene will be presented by Troops 17, 76, 82, 155 and 187 at the Girl Scout Hut. The presentation may be seen between 6-7 p.m. on December 21 and 22.

been fortunate enough to be assigned to.

"Particularly I am impressed with the desire of most of the students," Lewis explained, "that the added NOC prestige may be in part responsible for this desire, but it is more obvious that good old fashioned patriotism and the student's desire to give the Army his best is the most important factor behind this tremendous enthusiasm — an enthusiasm that I have seen grow steadily from my very first class."

First Sergeant's View
 Billy Schwartz, Academy first sergeant, sees the students from a slightly different angle. That of administration, inspection, conduct and military appearance, but his opinions are essentially the same as those voiced by the commandant, the instructors and the rest of the staff and faculty. "The men that come to us for this intensive six-week training, carry their responsibilities seriously 24 hours a day. It's surprising how often we get men that turn almost overnight from eight to 17 veterans to 20-hour-a-day soldiers."

The work, the imagination, the study, the enthusiasm shown by both students and the faculty have combined to ensure the success of this unique venture in Army schooling.

Col. Wolff's Summation
 Perhaps the most precise summation of the progressiveness of the school has been voiced by Col. Wolff in these words:

"The goal of preparing young men for the challenges of greater responsibility, while raising the performance skill level for current soldiers, is being attained. Everyone is being attracted to the Academy is particularly impressed with the high code of ethics, the peace-loving morality and the infectious integrity that prevails throughout the school."

Huge Levy To Europe Hits Post

By Spec. 5 Larry Mahoney

A massive levy for the U.S. Army Europe will send approximately 1,600 Fort Benning soldiers to West Germany in January and February.

Only enlisted men, grades E6 and below, are affected by the levy.

Some of the men on orders are shipping with orders to six months of service remaining. All are going through Fort Dix, N.J., and will report to the 21st Replacement Detachment in Frankfurt am Main for further assignment.

The overseas orders, which came down in mid-December, called originally for 1,712 Fort Benning men, but deletions of dental, medical and band specialists dropped it to near the 1,600 level.

Despite these deletions, every major command at the Infantry Center has been hit — and hit hard — by the levy which embraces most MOS's (military occupational specialty) in the book.

"The levy is taking many combat arms soldiers as well as those with clerical assign-

"And it came to pass, in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. . . . And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, (because he was of the house and lineage of David), to be registered with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that he should be born, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn." (LUKE 2:1-4,7) Photo by M. H. McCutchen.

10 Nominated For Boost To Full Colonel

Ten lieutenant colonels presently assigned to the United States Army Infantry Center here have been nominated for promotion to the rank of colonel.

The officers are among 3,287 considered by Army promotion selection, and boards, which placed only 1,066 on the promotion list.

Included on the list in alphabetical order are: Byron D. Greene Jr., Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, (BBOD); Joseph F. Ringston, Army Training Center (ATC); Alfred W. Kirchner, ATC; William J. Lober Jr., BBOD; James G.

CG Extends Greetings For Christmas Season

I wish to extend Christmas and Hanukkah greetings to all personnel of this command. May the season, with its depth of meaning to both faiths be a happy and significant one for all.

Christmas, with its glitter, its beauty, but yet with its meaning of giving and its celebration of the birthday of the Christian Savior, is truly a wonderful season. It is my hope that it will be a very meaningful holiday to all of you this year.

Hanukkah, with its overtones of freedom for the individual man, its celebration of the rededication of the Temple in Jerusalem is no less a very significant and meaningful day for the Jewish people. May we all rejoice together in the celebration and the meaning of these days.

I pray that this will be a Merry and Happy Christmas and Hanukkah for all.

JOHN M. WRIGHT, JR.
Major General, USA
Commanding

Universality Theme

Yule Service Set At Center Chapel

"The Universality of Jesus Christ" will emphasize the unity of men of all countries through Jesus Christ, a Christmas Day service to be held December 25, 10 a.m., at the Infantry Center Chapel.

With the universality of Christ as the central theme, men and women from eight countries of the world will proclaim the story of the birth of Christ in their own language.

Mal. Eugenio Rivera, a student of the Advanced Infantry Officers' Course 2 and a native of the Republic of Chile; Lt. Col. Karl Horst Von Wulffen, German Army liaison officer here and Col.

Charlie F. Konze, post dental surgeon and representative of the United States, will read the Christmas story from Luke 2: 1-18.

Maj. Tran-Dinh-Ngo, Army liaison officer from Vietnam; Capt. Kwasi Ost-Boateng, a student in the Advanced Infantry Officers' Course 2 and a native of Ghana.

Statistics Tell Story Of Mission

By Spec. 4 Peter Mestre

Helicopter units from Fort Benning compiled an impressive list of statistics during the 82nd Airborne Division's "Operation Ardennes" which ended December 8 in the frost-laden forests 40 miles from Fort Bragg.

Using 14 Chinook helicopters from Maj. John Heilmann's 271st Medium Helicopter Co. and 25 UH1D Hueys from Maj. Bobby Briggs' 182nd Light Altnobile Co., supplies and equipment were flown in to the paratroopers on combat operations.

The size of the effort can be shown in the figures for the second day of the war game. The two units accounted for 187 sorties, flown mostly at night, in which 324 passengers were hauled along with 83 tons of material. Flying time totaled 100 hours for the day.

Another Benning unit added to the exercise, mostly in the night, was the 1st Gen. Sp. Gp.'s 698th Sup. Co. (See STATISTICS, Page 14)

Huge Levy To Europe Hits Post

By Spec. 5 Larry Mahoney

A massive levy for the U.S. Army Europe will send approximately 1,500 Fort Benning soldiers to West Germany in January and February.

Only enlisted men, grades E8 and below, are affected by the levy.

Some of the men on orders are shipping with downy to six months of service remaining. All are going through Fort Dix, N.J., and will report to the 21st Replacement Detachment in Frankfurt am Main for further assignment. The overseas orders, which came down in mid-December, called originally for 1,772 Fort Benning men, but deletions of dental, medical and band specialists dropped it to near the 1,900 level.

Despite these deletions, every major command at the Infantry Center has been hit — and hit hard — by the levy which embraces most MOS's (military occupational specialty) in the book.

"The levy is taking many combat arms soldiers as well as those with clerical assign-

"And it came to pass, in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed... And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David), to be registered with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn." (LUKE 2:1-7) Photo by M. H. McCutchen.

10 Nominated For Boost To Full Colonel

Ten lieutenant colonels presently assigned to the United States Army Infantry Center here have been nominated for promotion to the rank of colonel.

The officers are among 3,327 considered by Army promotion selection and boards which placed only 1,056 on the promotion list.

Included on the list in alphabetical order are: Byron D. Greene Jr., Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, (BBOD), Joseph P. Kingston, Army Training Center (ATC), Alfred W. Kirchner, ATC, William J. Lober Jr., BBOD, James G.

CG Extends Greetings For Christmas Season

I wish to extend Christmas and Hanukkah greetings to all personnel of this command. May the season, with its depth of meaning to both faiths be a happy and significant one for all.

Christmas, with its glitter, its beauty, but yet with its meaning of giving and its celebration of the birthday of the Christian's Savior, is truly a wonderful season. It is my hope that it will be a very meaningful holiday to all of you this year.

Hanukkah, with its overtones of freedom for the individual man, its celebration of the rededication of the Temple in Jerusalem is no less a very significant and meaningful day for the Jewish people. May we all rejoice together in the celebration and the meaning of these days.

I pray that this will be a Merry and Happy Christmas and Hanukkah for all.

Yule Service Set At Center Chapel

"The Universality of Jesus Christ" will emphasize the unity of men of all countries through Jesus Christ in a Christmas Day service to be held December 25, 10 a.m., at the Infantry Center Chapel.

With the universality of Christ as the central theme, men and women from eight countries of the world will proclaim the story of the birth of Christ in their own language.

Maj. Eugenio Rivera, a student of the Advanced Infantry Officers' Course 2 and a native of the Republic of Chile; Lt. Col. Karl Horst Von Wulffen, German Army liaison officer here and Col.

Charlie F. Konze, post dental surgeon and representative of the United States, will read the Christmas story from Luke 2: 1-8.

Statistics Tell Story Of Mission

By Spec. 4 Peter Mestre

Using 14 Chinook helicopters, Maj. John Quire's 271st Medium Helicopter Co. and 25 UH1D's, Bobby Briggs' 182nd Light Airborne Co., supplies and equipment were flown in to the paratroopers on combat operations.

The size of the effort can be shown in the figures for the second day of the war game. The two units accounted for 187 sorties, flown mostly at night, in which 321 passengers were hauled along with 85 tons of material. Flying time totaled 100 hours.

Another Benning unit aided in the exercise, mostly in "creature comforts." The 16th Gen. Sp. Gp.'s 549th Sp. Co. (See STATISTICS, Page 18)

ments," said Vernon Pacer, the military personnel supervisor who is chief of the Overseas Levy Office of the Adjutant General Section here.

Before the deletions, this is how the levy was to affect the major commands at Fort Benning: Center Troop Command, 587 men; 191th Inf. Bde., 503; The Student Brigade, 222; Army Training Center, 205; 10th Arm. Gp., 115; and Martin Army Hospital, 110.

"This is one of the most difficult levies we've ever worked," Pacer said. "It hit at an inopportune time, when most of the men who are getting these orders were ready to take Christmas leave or already gone home."

"Their units are operating with skeletal staffs because of the holidays," he added, "and this increased the confusion which has caused long hours of extra work not only here in the levy section but throughout personnel."

"We believe that Fort Benning was just about the hardest hit by this levy in the Third Army area," Pacer said. "In the previous quarter, we processed 3,700 men for overseas shipment. This quarter it will be 5,700."

BULLETIN

In a specially prepared statement issued here today, personnel of The Infantry Center Information Office extended season's greetings to their many friends and associates. Although the statement took 385 days in its preparation, an information office spokesman declared there had never been any doubt in his mind that it would be released before the December 25 deadline.

The spokesman said that for the entire period since a similar statement was issued a year ago the office had received assistance and cooperation to a very high degree from all The Infantry Center staff sections, Infantry School departments and subordinate commands and agencies. "We are very appreciative of this," he said, "and would not have been able to accomplish our mission otherwise."

The spokesman said further, "All of us certainly wish each of you a VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS and the HAPPIEST of NEW YEARS."

End of theater newsreels is sad point in progress

December, 1967, will be remembered for many things in the future, and though it passes with little note, one very sad occurrence has taken place that we are not likely to ever correct. The theater newsreels are in their final stages. They will not grace our screens again.

Once, before the coming of boob tube and the "instant" news, theater newsreels through the newsreels, were relied upon to disseminate current news to the mass audience. It was done in a manner carrying all the drama and action that the Hollywood producers could muster on the screen. And it was backed with the authoritative background voice that left watchers with the sense that "this was the way it actually was."

This was the means that President Franklin D. Roosevelt used in his famous "fireside chats" to become a person to his people. Instead of merely a radio voice, it was through this medium that football All-Americans were recognized for their deeds on the gridiron. And it was in this way that the beginning and end of WWII was signaled to the American public.

Now it has gone:

In this electronic age of Early Bird, Telesat, national TV networks and newspapers that can be rushed into print even as news is happening, the theater newsreels are closing down shop. Their cost of production and their dwindling revenues have forced the discontinuance.

For the very young, the newsreels won't be missed, and for the TV fans, they would not trade a Huntley, Brinkley, Cronkite or Jennings for an Ed Herlihe but there are those of us who will miss the passage and lament its loss. Strike one up (or down) for progress.

Post Christmas thoughts go to soldiers in Vietnam

By PFC Mickey Snead

The beautiful carols of the Christmas story will be told over and over in the next week. Friends and family will gather and be joyful in the spirit of peace and good will.

But what about those who are in the darkened corners of the world where there are no colored lights or tinsel... are they remembered? To answer this question I conducted an interview at Fort Benning and asked one question: What does Christmas mean to you? (Never once did I mention the soldiers in Vietnam or their "dark corners" of the world.)

From the general down to the private in Co. C, 1st Bn., the answers were the same... Christmas to the soldier means a prayer for those in Vietnam. Sgt. Maj. Kennedy: Without hesitation said, "This Christmas marks the third year of heavy conflict in Vietnam and at this time I truly think of the family who lost a son. Maybe I am a little sentimental but that is what I think of at Christmas."

Lt. Col. Paul Kelly, USMC Representative: "I guess when I think of Christmas I remember the 80,000 Marines in Vietnam and hope that next year they will be home."

A LADY IN THE ELEVATOR: "She looked at me with cold eyes that were beginning to form a tear and said, 'I have three daughters and two sons, but this Christmas I will be thinking of only one of my sons. My boy in Vietnam. I pray that he and his friends are safe, all my thoughts and prayers are of them.'"

THE PRIVATE: "This year at Christmas I will be on leave (the block in New York) and you know I really feel that I will be thinking of my friend in Vietnam because I know he wants to come home, especially for Christmas."

Yes, from the top to the bottom... when soldiers think of Christmas, they think of the war and their friends that are serving in Vietnam. I feel their unselfish thoughts show the long-promised hope and salvation.

"FRANKLY SANTA... I NEED SOMEONE WITH A LITTLE WEIGHT TO HELP RUSH MY EARLY OUT THRU...!"

Medical records occupy unique military position

Medical records occupy a unique position among military records. Like all government records and reports, they are subject to ownership and control by the federal government and in addition they enjoy a special status because they contain information which is of concern only to the patient and his physician.

In view of the special status of medical records, release of such records and the information contained therein is strictly regulated. Misunderstandings frequently occur in the process of obtaining medical records from the hospital file room when military members are changing posts.

For the purposes of this discussion, the general rule is that inpatient and outpatient medical records will remain in the custody of the U. S. government, and information may be released only to the individual concerned or to appropriate private and governmental agencies when the individual...

The Judge Says

Estate planning provides best dependents benefit

Most service personnel are concerned with their family's welfare and the disposition of their property accumulations. This concern continues during their lifetime and reflects itself after death in the provisions made for those who are dependent upon them.

Estate planning is nothing more than a systematic projection of personal assets and present and probably future earning power in the manner most likely to attain the desired result. In order to best provide for dependents, it is necessary to stretch each dollar to its income producing limits consistent with the reasonable security of those it is designed to benefit.

As each person's desires and needs vary markedly from others, estate plans should be tailored to individual requirements and the personality of the individual beneficiaries. Because of the wide range of problems presented, any detailed plan involving substantial sums should be prepared with the aid of an attorney, an insurance underwriter and an investment counselor.

In providing for the welfare of himself and his dependents, some of the factors to be considered by the serviceman are: Final expenses incident to death, the government and military benefits, cost of educating children, need for reasonable contingent funds to cover unexpected contingencies, and augmentation of expected retirement income.

A plan to accomplish the above should not exclude expected retirement income. Dependents are not authorized to hand-carry their outpatient medical records, but may be supplied with an extract or copy to facilitate treatment en route, when authorized by the attending physician. Upon arrival at the new location, dependents should contact the registrar of the U. S. government medical treatment facility from which treatment will be received and request that be obtain the appropriate medical records.

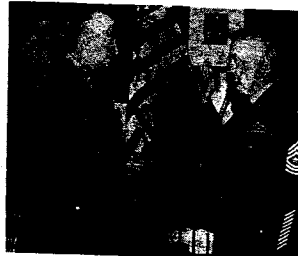

Service personnel are referred to the Judge Advocate.

Young children are most susceptible to tooth decay

Q. I recently took my three year old child to the dentist for the first time. The dentist told me that the child had tooth decay. What causes this? I thought very young children didn't get decay.

A. As soon as teeth erupt into the mouth, they are exposed to decay-causing attacks by acids, so even very young children can have decayed teeth. It is at this time that the teeth are most susceptible to decay. The important thing to remember is to protect your child by keeping his sweet intake down, because sweets are the leading cause of decay - in any age group.

Care of your child's teeth, then, should begin early in his life. Train him early to limit sweets. Often, wise parents establish a once-a-week candy treat routine for their children, giving them sweets - in small amounts - on Sunday perhaps. I would add, too, that these parents teach their children to brush their teeth right after eating meals, even snacks. And, these parents also prepare their children for professional cleanings about age 2 1/2 or 3, when all the primary teeth have erupted.

$870,000 Addition Set For War Veterans Home

A construction contract was signed last week for a $870,000 addition to the Georgia State Veterans Home at Milledgeville. The project will add an additional 140 beds to the facility. Pete Wheeler, Director of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, under the Georgia Department of the Home, is expected to complete the new wing. Upon completion some 150 veterans will be moved into the new wing, providing for the first time a significant degree of privacy for the patients.

A unique characteristic of the new wing is that it will completely reverse the present front of the building. In connection with the work program at the Home, a complete revision of the construction of a new occupational Therapy and Recreation building to replace one destroyed by fire last May. The new building will cost $800,000.

On hand for the signing were Mr. Richard Coody, Savannah Architect Dan Sewell, Veterans Service Facility Officer Robert Tomlinson, and Wheeler. Funds were provided from State insurance reimbursements on the old building and by the transfer of some funds from Governor Maddox from his emergency funds. This new building should be ready for early 1968 with construction to start by April, 1968.

'Polka Dots' Sing At Wives Meeting

"Merry Christmas" is the cheerful sign of the holiday season. "Merry Christmas" was a doubly cheerful wish to the wives of the Infantry School's Ranger and Training Command at their recent luncheon, as the "Polka Dots" Officers' Wives Club choral group, sang a program of holiday songs.

The program, presented by the Main Officers' Club, gave the Ranger wives a chance to see a preview of the "Polka Dots' talents, talents soon to be viewed Monday on the television show, the Ted Mack Amateur Hour.

Directed by Mrs. Robert Hertel and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Louis L. Holder, the group sang "The Christmas Song" and "Child Is This." "Let It Snow," and other holiday songs. Mrs. Irwin A. Edwards, wife of the director of the Ranger Training Command, introduced the new members, Mrs. Dorcas Koepfer, Mrs. James Brooks, Mrs. James Bethany and Mrs. Floyd Walters, and welcomed guests visiting their families for the Christmas holidays, Mrs. Joseph Gain.

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels

Her husband, Maj. Marshall Stogner, would proudly grin, "That's my Margaret." Other people have come to know by seeing her model in the frequent Officers' Wives' Club Churn and Modeling shows, working with her in her job as president of the Military Council of Catholic Women, seeing her teach catechism classes each Saturday morning, or perhaps her job as president of the Fort Benning - set "Green Berets."

All of this busy activity is a part of her series of "discoveries" during this past year. When her husband left for Vietnam one year ago, she first discovered that only by staying home could she see what would have been an extraordinarily long dragging year. Through her busy schedule and her close ties with her church, she has secondly "truly learned" that in giving, you receive.

Chief Job
Most of all, her chief job is her family. She and her two little daughters, Mary, 5, and Monique, 3, especially enjoy being together. "The three girls" especially enjoy reading stories, just talking and keeping house. They all wish that "Madeline" will be home from Vietnam in time for Christmas.

As president of the Military Council of Catholic Women, the group often referred to as Stability or the Society of the Blessed Virgin Mary, she contributes enthusiasm and planning for the ladies projects, of which one of the biggest now is the sponsorship of four Vietnamese nuns. The Fort Benning group plans to clothe and help sponsor the nuns, who are soon to leave Vietnam to attend Barry College in Florida.

OWC Modeling
Her modeling in the Officers' Wives' Club came about as a result of that "stay busy" discovery. She had once done some modeling in her hometown, Killeen, Tex., and had completed the beginners' modeling class at Fort Benning two years ago. When her husband left for overseas duty, she decided to continue modeling by taking the advanced modeling course. Throughout the fall, she has frequently been seen as a model in fashion shows at Fort Benning.

She insists that her parts in the filming of the "Green Berets" were more "accidental" than planned. At the start of the movie, when hopeful "extras" were invited to visit the set, she and another Fort Benning wife went to the film location out of curiosity. The casting director, to her surprise, picked her as an extra with a blintz. "You, the blonde."

Later, after first playing back to the set to play the part of a secretary in the scene filmed at the Supper Club, Describing it all as thrilling and something to remember, she adds that, "Making movies is anything but glamour."

Mrs. Stogner and her husband first met on a date at Fort Benning, at her Fort Hood, Tex. date, however, was with a friend of his. After their marriage, they've been stationed in Fort Hood, Okinawa, Dahlgren, Ga. and Fort Benning. Her husband was assigned with the Ranger Dept. and completed the Advanced Infantry Officers' Course.

Also at Fort Benning, whenever possible, she tries to indulge in making ceramics, horseback riding and reading.

TSB Bylines Yule Theme Highlights OC Wives Club Coffee

A brightly trimmed Christmas tree was the centerpiece for the 3rd Company's Wives Club coffee hour recently in the company dining room. This set the tempo for other decor of the wives' club meeting before the holiday season. Student wives served as hostesses.

Honored guests at the coffee hour were Mrs. J. Thiel, Mrs. Charles P. Cox and Mrs. Earl P. Hopper. Other guests included Mrs. Grimbly J. Waite and Mrs. David G. Mitchell.

Serving as hostesses for the event were Mrs. John V. Webb and Mrs. Calvin E. Green. Mrs. Bill W. May was presented as the new hospital chairman.

Newcomers welcomed were Mrs. Clifford M. Tatum and Mrs. Peter W. Russell, and Mrs. Marlin R. Schmidt, Mrs. William E. Ferguson, Mrs. Joseph A. DiDuardo and Mrs. Frank Spiers.

Cystic Fibrosis Control Is Now Possible

Cystic fibrosis, for many years carrying different names as a child-hood killer, can now be diagnosed and controlled if parents are lucky enough to recognize certain symptoms and get the child to an adequate medical facility soon enough.

The disease is hereditary and usually hits only white females. Negroes are rarely affected and it never occurs in Oriental peoples. As stated, the female is the one most likely to be hit and it is possible for the same parents to have male children without the disease and to have girls who will suffer or perhaps even die, from its suffocating effects.

It is estimated that one in every 1,000 babies has the disease and that approximately 25-30,000 Americans ranging from birth to young adulthood are suffering from its choking nature.

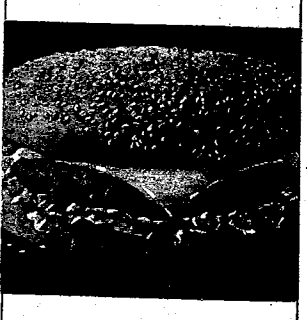

lung cells and by hampering digestion to the extent that the body can receive no nourishment from its intake of food. Both of these effects, however, can be controlled if a moisturizer is recognized soon enough. Respiration is greatly aided by the use of a moisturizer to break up the mucus and phlegm in the respiratory system and digestive problems can be partially solved with a proper diet and medication.

Findings in the above mentioned areas came as a result of exhaustive study by Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, New York. Work is currently being done in 38 CF research and teaching centers.

They may also consult with families sharing a similar problem and gain from others the actual practices to be followed to preserve the lives of their children until perhaps a cure can be found.

Past Handler Tells of Differences Between Sentry and Scout Dogs

By Lt. Karen Hollos, Fort Benning's scout dogs are one of the more romantic aspects of today's Army. They catch the imagination. Less well-known than the scout dogs are the sentry dogs, who patrol our missile sites in this country and our airfields and base camps in Vietnam.

These sentry dogs, as opposed to scout dogs, are trained to attack and kill. When the dogs, all German Shepherd types, enter the services at Lackland Air Force Base, they are sorted for the scout and sentry dog schools. The more vicious and aggressive become sentry dogs.

In Vietnam, sentry dogs are used primarily by the military police. Spec. 4 Louis A. Valverde of the 988th MP Co., CTC, recently returned from a tour of duty as a sentry dog handler in Vietnam. Valverde's interest in war dogs stems from his boyhood. His father had enlisted the family German Shepherd in the Army during the Korean War. The dog, whose name was Sergeant, won several medals during his tour of duty. When Valverde entered the service it was with the intent of working with dogs.

Selected for School Upon graduating from MP School, he was one of 25 volunteers selected for the fifth class at the new Sentry Dog School in Okinawa. There he signed a $2500 bond (received a black and silver shepherd named Prince. Prince, a ten-year Army veteran had already served a tour in Vietnam. "He had a sense of humor," Valverde said, "he could talk when I was in a bad mood." Sentry dogs work only at night, when there shouldn't be anyone friendly moving about. The dogs will alert on anybody—friendly or otherwise. When he does alert, he is silent; he barks the end of his chain in the direction of whatever he's alerting on and pulls so hard he walks on his hind legs.

Smells Humans He's trained to alert only on humans, but a good handler can read a sign that the dog has heard, for instance, an incoming mortar attack. The dogs are trained to attack on command, and can be turned loose on a detected enemy infiltrator. The dogs can also track, mainly on the scent in the air.

Under ideal conditions a sentry dog can alert on an enemy up to 250 meters away. One-Man Dogs (Prince has a new handler and is now serving his third tour in Vietnam.)

Sentry dogs, unlike scout dogs, are one-man dogs. If a handler is killed, his dog may have to be shot if he can't be controlled. Valverde was hospitalized once during his tour, and before he left for the hospital he had to chain Prince in a cage. When his tour ended he created the dog for transfer back to Okinawa, where special training NCO's handled him. (Prince has a new handler and is now serving his third tour in Vietnam.)

Series Explains Mission of Benning's Military Police

This is the first of a series of articles covering the mission of the Military Police at Fort Benning. The purpose of this series is to explain all sides of MP work and enable the public to better appreciate the job these men do.

By Lt. Karen Bolton

The basic requirements for MP work are among the toughest in the Army. MPs are selected while they are still in basic; the minimum age is 20, the minimum height 5'8". They must have scores of at least 100 on GT and the military battery of tests.

After basic the men go to the U. S. Army Military Police School for eight rigorous weeks of APT. Classes include such subjects as military and civil law, recognizing and preserving evidence, processing scenes, rights of individuals, technique of interrogation, advanced first aid, traffic control, convoy control, defile operations, weapons (M-60, M-79, riot shotgun, 50 caliber machine gun, 45 automatic), map reading, anti-injury training, search and destroy, unarmed defense (judo, karate, etc.) and riot control.

Officers are procured through normal channels — OCS, ROTC and direct commission. OCS graduates and ROTC graduates receive a four-week orientation course covering the same subjects, on an advanced level.

MP officers are procured through normal channels — OCS, ROTC and direct commission. OCS graduates and ROTC graduates receive a four-week orientation course covering the same subjects, on an advanced level.

The emphasis in both officer and enlisted military police work from the supervisory standpoint. In addition, officers and enlisted men frequently attend refresher courses at MP school and selected officers receive other training from civilian schools. These courses include such subjects as criminal investigation supervision, physical security, narcotics, traffic accident investigation and traffic engineering.

Company training schedules provide constant refreshers and additional training. Special emphasis is placed on public relations, one phase of which is handling an offense or like the MP would like to be handled — in essence the Golden Rule.

They are drilled constantly in riot control, apprehension and search, individual rights and security operations in the field.

Fort Benning has two MP companies under the 1st Troop Command, which work in close harmony though their missions are very different.

The 198th MP Co., commanded by Capt. James Kavanagh, was specifically designed for the police mission of the post. It is not organized or equipped for field duty. Company training consists of mission support.

The 988th MP Co., on the other hand, is designed as a company belonging to a major city, county, state and federal law enforcement agencies are seeking qualified military personnel to serve as police officers.

Training for the 988th is the same as for the 198th, plus training for its tactical role. Its secondary mission is to augment and support the strength of the 198th in support of the Provost Marshal's Office.

This is a brief picture of MP organization. It is a complex operation, little known, little understood, and too little appreciated.

Lighting of Tree Gives Post Look Of Yule Season

It began to look like Christmas around Infantry Hall when two Yule-trees and a splash of bright lights, wreaths and stars, and plywood or plastic Santas, reindeer, nativity scenes and wise men.

The tree-lighting is an annual event, and Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, turned on the master switch following seasonal remarks.

Winners Named in Decorating Contest

Like any other community, Fort Benning welcomes the Christmas season with a splash of bright lights, wreaths and stars, and plywood or plastic Santas, reindeer, nativity scenes and wise men.

Recognizing the artistic expression and many hours of work that go into these decorations of quarters and barracks alike, Fort Benning's Special Services Section has named the winners of a contest to pick the best.

First prize in the field grade category went to a joint display at 200 and 202 Blessing St. by Maj. Donald R. Rizzo and CWO Ivan B. Rose, Lt. Col. Charles L. Hughes, 112 Dublinsky, was second and Lt. Col. Robert M. Leon, 403 Benning Ave., took third place honors.

The 72nd Engineer Co., which decorated Bldg. 5018 at Kelley Hill, won first place in the company category. Second was the ATC's Bldg. 3233, decorated by Co. A, 8th Bn., 1st Trng. Brig., and the 46th Co., 4th Bn., TSB took third.

Winning in the senior NCO (E7-9) class was M. Sgt. Emmett J. Eure, 662 A Arrowhead Rd. Second place went to Sgt. Maj. Donald Potrafka, 129 Englander St., and SFC Thomas E. Curry, 149 C McGrath St., was named third best.

S. Sgt. Donald L. Elkins and Spec. 6 Paul J. Neiswonger, 846 Terry Dr. won first place in the NCO (E6 and below) class. Second in this group were S. Sgt. John C. Solesbee, 117D Brostrom St., and third was Staff Sgt. Carland Baker, 106 E Baker St.

Post Canine and Handler Travel to Ohio Dog Show

Spec 4 David E. Chaffon, a "rare breed" of canine, greeted dog lovers and the curious alike last Saturday as the 51st Annual Western Reserve Kennel Club Dog Show opened its doors in Cleveland, Ohio.

"That 'rare one' was Sport, a U. S. Army Scout Dog from the Hqs. Det. (Scout Dog), 19th Inf. Bde. here. Accompanied by his handler, SFC Armand Dubois and an assistant handler Sgt. Richard Postervold, Sport's appearance at the show marked the first time a U. S. Army Scout Dog had attended civilian dog competition.

Competition, however, was not the motive of Sport's presence. Explains Dubois, "Sport is an excellent dog, but he could have been competed in obedience, but heally encouraged interested parties to donate animals to the Animal Procurement Office at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. the central facility for all Armed Services dog programs.

Fort Benning, according to the detachment's headquarters, could not have sent a better team to represent its Scout Dog program. Dubois has been a senior field trainer over two years. He is also a veteran of 10 and a half months with the fifth Vietnamese Scout Dog Pl. as a senior advisor during which time he won the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Bronze Star, and the Vietnamese Medal of Honor (2nd Class).

Dubois's off-duty hours are also involved with dogs as Director of Training for the Chattahoochee Valley Obedience Training Club. He plans a career in handling and training of dogs after his 20 years of service.

Postervold, also a field trainer, is a veteran of scout and tracker dogs units with the 25th Inf. Div. in Vietnam, and as for Sport, he is a six-year Army veteran.

"No, if I were in your shoes as a young sergeant, I would attempt to be hard working - eager to learn, to apply what I've been taught - to support the mission of my unit whether that means to pacify the civilians or hunt the enemy."

"Sergeants," he concluded, "the choice is to be a sergeant."

Atlanta Explorers Guests Of Post Aviation Battalion

Last week the 7th Avn. Bn. was invaded by four hundred Explorers Scouts of the Atlanta Area Council.
Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander, welcomed eager faces to the Infantry School and a special presentation of "I am the Infantry."
Gen. Wright was presented a memento of the Scout's visit. The activity executive of the Atlanta Area Council, Lt. Col. Eubanks Field was the next objective; the assault of the jump towers kept the Abn. Dept's crew on their toes. Explorer scout Carey Waldrip of Post 144 remarked, "I didn't know what was coming off when we reached the top of the tower - you just lose all of your senses and feeling on your own sense."
The Quick Kill committee converted a group of two helicopters of the 17th Avn. Co. "Kill experts," some of whom were hitting dimes tossed in the air with the training rifles.
Sunday began with church services. From church, the Scouts motored to the Vee-Vee Village, and an M-40 Main Battle Tank were on static display.

Cake Decoration Course Graduates First Class Here

The Food Service Branch of the Quartermaster Service Section graduated the first class of a cake decorator course here last Friday.
The two-week course, attended by pastry men from all major units of the post, was taught by SFC William A. Wade, Food Service Branch.
Graduates of the course will organize and conduct cake decorating in their units.

Posthumously Officer Awarded Silver Star Here

Accepting the decorations was Swain's widow, Mrs. Hildegard Swain of Columbus. Swain was killed in action in Vietnam on April 26 while he was in command of Co. D, 8th Bn, 7th Cav., as he directed his company in a blocking action against enemy escape routes. He was killed when he came under enemy fire as he worked to direct the fire of his own men and to insure his men's safety.

The citation of his action read in part, "When it was reported that enemy soldiers were fleeing toward his position, Capt. Swain, disregarding his own safety, exposed himself to enemy fire to insure that each of his men completed OCS and Ranger training here and previously had been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with 'v' device, the Bronze Star Medal, the Air Medal with Purple Heart. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Swain of Miami, Fla.

Sergeant Major and 1st Lieutenant Form Father-Son Vietnam Tandem

One particular fighting unit in Vietnam, early in 1966, will have an oddity on its hands. At that time, if someone should yell "Rogers" for an individual by that name, and such is the manner in which a man is summoned usually, two heads might show up with a questioning look of "which one?" That particular unit will have a father-son combination on its rolls of 1st Lt. Jimmy Rogers, son, and his father, Sgt. Maj. James D. Rogers.

A veteran of the Rhineland Airborne Operation of WWII fame, Sgt. Maj. Rogers learned in November of Jimmy's projected Vietnam assignment, so he volunteered for a southeastern Asia assignment also. He was hoping to be near his boy and in the "right" down there too. He never dreamed that their assignments would eventually be to the same organization, so it was a very pleasant surprise to him recently when he received a telephone call informing him of that good news.

Sgt. Maj. Rogers is an army veteran of 28 years and has held the post of Sergeant Major of the U. S. Army Infantry Board since August 1965.

Gives Farwells The Infantry Board, a test activity of the U. S. Army, Test and Evaluation Command, said its farewells to the Rogers last week in many ways. On Wednesday, the 8th Airborne Club in honor of the sergeant major and his father and presented the elder Rogers an engraved silver cup; on Friday, the Infantry Board personnel, both military and civilian, surprised the departing sergeant major with a coffee and cake "Dan Voyage" get-together at which time the board president, Col. James S. Muir Jr., presented a Certificate of Achievement to the elder Rogers; then, particularly engaging in the during the week many acquaintances have been stopping by the office and bidding him farewell. Sgt. Maj. Rogers entered the service at Boston in 1939. In 1941, he took Airborne training at Fort Benning during World War II, served in the European Theater of Operations. There he joined the 17th Abn. Div. as a veteran jumper and participated in the "jump" at Rhineland. As a 1941 jump trainee, Sgt. Maj. Rogers is among the few airborne pioneers remaining on duty today and particularly engaging in the during the week many ac-

New Communication System Links 197th Bde. Units

By Spec. 4 Paul Turk
With an eye to generating quick response to infantry support command requirements, especially the "last minute" variety, the 197th Bde. has updated its intra-brigade communications through installation of parallel telephone and teletype systems.
M. Sgt. Crawford Clark, currently five brigade units are hooked into the system. Clark described the system as an attempt "to improve coordination between the units and the brigade troop requirements section." The chief function of the 197th is to support the Infantry School's various programs of instruction.
A total of 10 teletypewriters will be in operation once the full system is assembled. The troop requires, currently five brigade units are hooked into the system. Clark described the system as an attempt "to improve coordination between the units and the brigade troop requirements section." The chief function of the 197th is to support the Infantry School's various programs of instruction.
Some money will be saved through the system by eliminating some courier services it was reported, but one reason for the system is file copies to be available in the units and to brigade S-3. Clark said telephone communication was fine for general information, but for distribution of specifications and requirements, a printed copy is more reliable and more permanent.
The equipment already was held by the brigade for use with a landline teletype system. The system was needed to string together the system over the widespread Harmony Church-Kelley Hill area. The brigade's main post unit, the 26th Inf. Plt. Scout Dog Det., has no school support role and will not be tied into the system.
The system, in daily operation now, can be worked into a clerk-typist, and requires no special training.

Here was a man born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman.
He grew up in another obscure village.
He worked in a carpenter shop until He was thirty, and then for three years He was an itinerant preacher.
He never wrote a book.
He never held an office.
He never owned a home.
He never had a family.
He never went to college.
He never put his foot inside a big city.
He never traveled 200 miles from the place where He was born.
He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness.
He had no credentials but Himself. He had nothing to do with this world except the naked power of His divine manhood.
While still a young man, the tide of popular opinion turned against Him.
His friends ran away.
One of them denied Him.
He was turned over to His enemies.
He went through the mockery of a trial.
He was nailed to a cross between two thieves.
His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth while He was dying — and that was His coat!
When He was dead He was taken down and layed in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.
Nineteen wide centuries have come and gone and today He is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress. I am far within the mark when I say that all the armies that ever marched . . . and all the navies that ever were built . . . and all the parliaments that ever sat . . . and all the kings that ever reigned put together have not affected the life of man upon this earth as powerfully as has that . . . ### Post Choppers at Bragg

Statistics Tell Story of Mission

Choppers Are Kept Flying By 400 Man Support Co.

By Lt. Arthur Rice and Lt. David Leonard

The rapid growth of Army aviation has led to the formation of many new units, the swiftness and complexity of which often leave the non-flyer a bit mystified. What goes on behind the scenes? Who keeps the choppers flying?

At Fort Benning, the 609th Trans. Co. can be compared to a well equipped service department of a large auto dealer. The crews of the unit do the work of the service station to which a driver takes his car.

The 609th supports the 37th Avn. Bn. of the 10th Avn. Gp., but other units such as the 271st and 177th Avn. Companies as well as Lawson field craft call on the 609th for jobs which require skill with complex equipment.

The unit recently supported the 2nd Avn. Div.'s field exercise at Fort Bragg, forming a part of Task Force 37, the Fort Benning force which added a new form of mobility to the paratrooper's operation.

Out in the field or in garrison, Maj. Thomas MacGregor's unit has the same tasks—direct support Army aircraft, armament systems and a portion of the electronics equipment. In addition, the skill and equipment available enable the unit to provide supply and recovery capability.

Although the 609th is called a company, it has nearly 400 men in its platoons and sections. Attached are two signal corps detachments, the 230th and 800th, which maintain the communication and navigation equipment. The unit is organized into sections capable of handling Hueys, Chinooks and fixed-winged craft. The 609th's main task involved the Chinooks of the 177th and 271st Medium Helicopter Companies. Backing up the three platoons is a parts department, supply section and a shop section—capable of specialized tasks such as welding.

Heading the 609th operations. The 436 Benning troops were dubbed "Task Force 37" and placed under the command of Lt. Col. John H. Phillips, who also commands the 37th Avn. Bn. Rounding out the units from Benning were the 609th Trans. Co. and parts of the 109th Trans. Co. and the 187th Path-finder Co. An estimated 20,000 soldiers and airmen took part in the exercise.

and mechanics is oriented toward the tasks of the combat zone. The unit is highly mobile, with numerous vans and units. Pre-packaged parts containers and other pre-fab equipment enable the unit to move quickly, as they had to do for the Fort Bragg operation.

The key to the operation is the skilled men, many of them long veterans of Army maintenance. Many have been seasoned by service in Vietnam. Schooling for the new mechanics and technicians is conducted by the Transportation School at Fort Eustis, Va., and at Fort Rucker, Ala., the Army Aviation Center.

Skills represented among the men include fixed and rotary wing mechanics, sheet-metal repairmen, welders, supply specialists, hydraulic systems specialists, school-trained and sharpened by on-the-job experience and contact with Vietnam veterans or a tour in Vietnam.

Routine Tasks Among the routine tasks required to keep the aircraft flying are periodic inspections, called "hot end" inspections performed a few each 100 hours of flight time; servo and hydraulic system repair, sheetmetal and fiberglass repair, and the installation tion and modification of various equipment on the Chinooks and Hueys. Experience and skill are the contributions of the warrant officers and senior NCO's like 18-year veteran CW2 Elmer L. Garnett, shop aircraft maintenance officer who doubles as 10th Gp. technical supervisor and S. Sgt. Meritt W. Taylor, foreman of the shop section of the 609th. Taylor, a WWII veteran, re-entered the Army in 1955, during the period that Army aviation began the new era of helicopter warfare.

The model "B" Chinooks helped the paratroopers apply muscle when an aggressor unit needed softening. The helicopter airlifted artillery units into the scene of battle which scored a first in an 82nd exercise.

Phillips discussed the use of helicopters for shutting heavy artillery pieces around the combat zone. "Army aviators in Vietnam have airlifted the guns right into Viet Cong territory and blasted suspected enemy concentrations with effective results," he pointed out.

The shotgun, a weapon from America's frontier days, still has a place in the modern Army. At Fort Gordon, Ga., soldiers taking advanced individual training receive four hours of instruction with the shotgun—and the goal of this training is not to prepare them for the skeet range.

Since WWII, the Army has used the shotgun for guard duty and riot control. The weapon used in training is a model 12 Winchester pump action shotgun, adopted to military needs.

As quickly as the artillery is hauled in, it is redispersed to other areas where firepower is needed in large doses," he added. The Benning troops lived in relative luxury with a live-wire mess section keeping the men's spirits up. Hot coffee was the bill of fare 24 hours a day. It was the unresourceful soldier who couldn't get a snack at just about any hour of the day or night. S. Sgt. Donald J. Sullivan headed the list of mess stewards, with S. Sgt. Charlie Clayton of the 100th providing the supervision on the cooking shifts.

Generally reluctant and apprehensive to attend the Third U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy, the graduates, after returning to their units, are of the consensus that the six-week school has provided benefits to them commensurate with the effort they expended. If there were displeasures voiced, most were outgrowths of the failure of units to recognize their accomplishments or to utilize the skills of their newly-gained abilities.

These were some of the reflections of students expressed during a seminar of past graduates conducted by staff and faculty of the Academy designed to improve instruction presented. Range projected, and new goals planned.

Real Meaning The no-holds-barred seminar was held behind closed doors. Main interest was to dig out what the Academy really means to the students who have graduated. Sgt. Maj. Donald V. Wright, Academy commandant, summing up the value of the seminar said, "What we learned has given us a broad base from which to alter and adjust our concept of the Academy as a whole and the classes in specific."

Not necessarily typical of the graduates as a group, but exemplary of what the Academy must concentrate on our goal

Reluctant Candidates Often Finish NCO Academy With New Attitude

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a three-part series concerning the third U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy at Fort Benning's Army Training Center. This part dealing with reflections of graduates after return to their units, will be followed by a summation of the mission, aims, and progressive goals of the Academy.)

Not necessarily typical of the graduates as a group, but exemplary of what the Academy must concentrate on our goal

As Col. Herbert E. Wolff, commander of the U. S. Army Training Center said, "As much as we would like to educate officers and NCO's of the parent units to utilize the newly developed abilities of the graduates, we must concentrate on our goal of improving the man that comes to the Academy and send him home a better NCO than when he arrived. We hope that the quality of our instruction will add new abilities which will be self-evident; we anticipate that the graduates will, as a matter of course, rise to the top of the NCO strata in their own units."

Sgt. Maj. Wright, summing up the comments of the graduates concerning the instruction received and comments on it after a few weeks or months for adequate reflections, said: "All of the comments are valid. Those that we can incorporate into the Academy (the biggest problems we've beyond our scope, we can at this seminar may improve least make sure that our in this communications bottle - coming students get a thorough explanation. If we can come."

Among the subjects discussed freely by the graduates were physical training, drill and ceremonies, instructor and leadership training, general subjects, first aid, motor administration, weapons, map reading and land navigation and the faculty adviser system.

Operation at Bragg

Fort Benning Units Add Airmobility

AND LT. DAVID LEONARD

Army aviators from Fort Benning gave the paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Div. a taste of the airmobility concept — fostered at Fort Benning — during "Operation Ardennes" at Fort Bragg.

Task Force 37 and the 39 copters — came from the 10th Avn. Gp. and the 16th Gen. Spt. Gp. In charge of the operation was Lt. Col. John H. Phillips, commander of the 20th Avn. Co.

For the 82nd, the field training was the first contact with the large-scale use of helicopters. For the local flyers, it was the first experience as a unit working with troops. For many of the pilots and crews, however, the operation was a refresher course in the lessons they had learned in Vietnam with the 1st Cav. and numerous other aviation units. The aircraft came from the 271st Avn. Co., which flew 14 of its CH-47B Chinooks to Fort Bragg, and the 182nd Avn. Co., a Huey unit which operated 25 of the versatile craft during the exercise.

Notes Benefits

Maj. John P. Obermire, the 271st's commander, noted the benefit of the exercise to his men. "A helicopter unit and an infantry unit or airborne unit must be accustomed to working together. When the action is a matter of life or death, unfamiliarity with a new concept can cause a mission to fail."

Lt. Gen. Robert H. York, commander of the XVIII Abn. Corps at Bragg, and former Fort Benning commander, noted that the exercise added to the versatility and mobility of his paratroopers.

The short-notice exercise tested the aviators' ability to organize and move quickly. In a matter of days, the Task Force was assembled and dispatched by truck and helicopter to the North Carolina post.

During the exercise, the copters were busy day and night moving troops and supplies around the simulated Vietnam battlefield.

Missions ranged from carrying companies of troops to one lift which involved an entire artillery battalion.

Trickiest Move

Trickiest of the many moves occurred at night, when a company of paratroopers and artillery pieces was extracted from a perimeter defense.

The road convoy made news in its own way as it passed through Fort Valley, Ga. and found itself a part of the town's Christmas parade. The citizens reportedly thought the 40 vehicles were part of the original parade plan rather than a convoy passing through town.

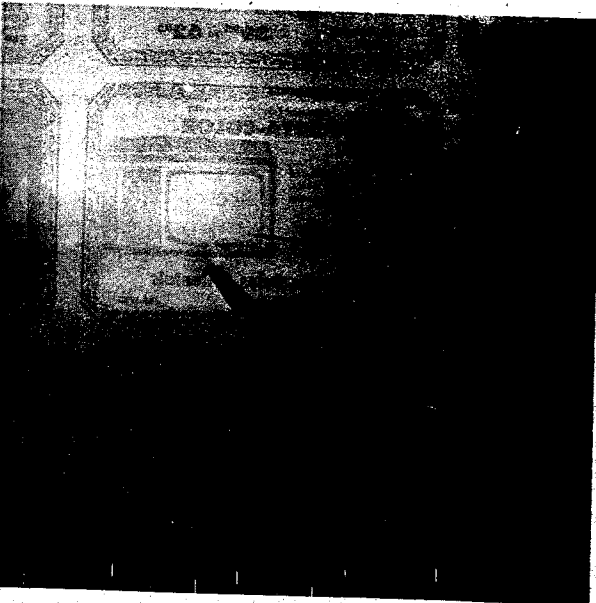

While the copters flew the support missions, maintenance and support personnel worked to keep the craft in top shape. Operating from the tents and vans located at an airstrip at Camp Mackall, the crews worked around the clock and established an enviable record—keeping 14 Chinooks always in service, and no fewer than 22 of 25 Hueys in the air.

Field maintenance involved quick repairs of defects which could put a Chinook or a Huey out of service. When needed, mechanics and technicians changed engines and rotor blades and repaired them.

The little comforts of daily life become more important in the field. The mess tent had customers at any hour, thanks to the initiative of the mess stewards, cooks and KPs. A laundry point located at the airfield provided same day service. Men of the 649th Supply and Service Co. operated the washers and dryers in a large tent called the "wash rack." In charge of the 649th contingent was 2nd Lt. Kenneth Hampton, fresh from quartermaster school.

SYNOPSIS

THE LIQUIDATOR When he accidentally saves Trevor Howard's life, Boyle is forced into joining the Secret Service where he is trained to become a kind of private executioner, expected to liquidate security risks when so ordered by his boss. Although Oakes hates killing and is invariably arrested in planes, he feels that the romantic life of an agent will coincide with his ever-growing eye for the girls. He thus compromises by hiring a professional killer to do the dirty work for him. A return engagement.

THE BIGGEST BUNDLE OF THEM ALL — Deported mobster Cesare Celli (Vito De Sica) is "taken for a ride" by gangster Harry Price (Robert Wagner) who wants a ransom of $50,000 for his safety. Celli convinces Harry that he is penniless and that the G-men took all of his money before he kicked him out. To prevent word of his decline from spreading, Celli proposes to the gang of amateurs that they join forces to steal $8 million in platinum.

Chess News and Tips

By Jim Gates

"Evergreen Game" — This term was used by Steiner to describe a brilliant game by Adolf Andersson in Berlin over 100 years ago. The game opens with the Evans Gambit and develops into what many chess writers consider a game so brilliant that it has no equal. Bogdanov with the 18th move by Anderson (white), which looks harmless, a magnificent sacrificial mating combination emerges.

Pay Facts

The recent raise meant a great deal to Fort Benning personnel. Over half a million dollars was paid to the members of the Fort Benning community.

Army-wide the raises entailed a mountain of paper work. According to a reliable estimate over 4,000 tons of paper were consumed in processing the raises at Fort Benning.

New Officers Hear Speech By Col. Sage

An Army career that may include seeing a deployment on other planets was predicted for 137 graduating officer candidates here recently.

Col. Rex R. Sage, deputy director, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of the Infantry School, the guest speaker, went on to advise the new lieutenants on what will be needed to "stay up with the program."

"Complete all your tasks," urged Col. Sage, "as failure in military operations costs lives, and, as you know, that will not be tolerated." He asked the officers to "go one step further and be ready to step in and take over when the line comes."

Col. Sage quoted from Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., commander of the school, who said, "Develop a set of objectives, including all aspects of your career. This will be necessary if you are to develop into a good officer."

The speaker continued, "Twenty-seven years separate our careers. I only hope your career will bring you the reward it has brought to me. If I had to do it all over, I would make mine the Army."

2nd Lt. Gregg P. Bronk received an award as the top leadership graduate. The distinguished honor graduate was 2nd Lt. Warren L. Smith, who had an overall average of 92.7 per cent.

CLEMMONS PREPARES TO MAKE JUMP Still Airborne Despite Loss of Hand

Airborne Instructor Makes Jump With Artificial Hand

By Bill Hardin

A Master Parachutist at Fort Benning who uses a hook instead of the hand he lost in combat in Vietnam sees little or no problem in jumping along with the men who have two hands.

The phrase "Airborne, all the way" perhaps best describes SFC Virgil W. Clemmons, an instructor in the Airborne Department, who made his first jump since the amputation last week.

Last February a faulty fuse on a booby trap with a trip wire, which the sergeant was attempting to disarm, exploded, causing the loss of his left hand.

Following a stay in Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D.C., he was assigned to Fort Benning. He was still on "jump status," and was anxious to earn his jump pay.

Clemmons scheduled a regular monthly jump. Just like any other jumper, he signed in on the manifest, drew his parachute and a reserve parachute, and went to the area where the instructors got into their gear.

He asked for an assistance in getting into his equipment. His fellow jumpers who would have taken time if he had needed help, offered none. "He performed better in this respect than many of us two hands," Y. Jones hands, "and commented one of the other instructors who jumped the same afternoon."

His jump looked like any other normal jump, perhaps a bit better. Because of his knowledge and experience, he was able to control his descent.

Two captains reassigned from Thailand to Fort Benning: Capt. Miles B. Hadley, Infantry, to the Infantry School, and Capt. Charles E. Baxter, Artillery, to the Training Center.

James M. Porter, quarter master Services Div., Serv-ant required one warehouse additional helpers for loading purposes. The proposed method requires a fork-lift operator and one helper to pick up each unit's ration issue and load the truck.

Adoption of this suggestion has greatly reduced time required for total ration issue, improved operations and resulted in an estimated 18 man-hours savings in manhours of work.

Civilian Employee Nets $150 For New Ration Procedure

James M. Porter, quarter master Services Div., Serv-ant received an award of $150 for an adopted suggestion proposing the revision of procedures used in the issue of troop rations to major units at Fort Benning.

Prior to adoption, rations were moved from a stock area in Warehouse 18 to a conveyor belt. This procedure was time consuming and required one warehouse additional helpers for loading purposes. The proposed method requires a fork-lift operator and one helper to pick up each unit's ration issue and load the truck.

Adoption of this suggestion has greatly reduced time required for total ration issue, improved operations and resulted in an estimated 18 man-hours savings in manhours of work.

On the ground, Clemmons told newsmen gathered to witness the jump that there was no problem, and said that he found very little difference from jumping when he had two hands.

Apparently the loss of his hand will not change the plans for an Army career for him who has been jumping since 1949. He told newsmen that he has been in the Army since 1943 and plans to remain for 26 or possibly, even 30 years.

A native of Columbus, Miss., the sergeant is married and is the father of a 12-year-old boy and nine-year-old twins, a boy and a girl.

Two lieutenant colonels have been reassigned here from Vietnam, the 197th Inf. Bde.

Three majors have been reassigned here from Vietnam, Maj. Donald J. Koepfer, Infantry, to the Infantry School, Maj. Robert W. Salley, Artillery, to the Infantry School, and William L. Scott, Armor, to the Training Center.

Four captains have been reassigned from Vietnam to the Infantry School: Edwin Y. Jones hands, "and commented one of the other instructors who jumped the same afternoon."

The Observer

—by Larry Mahoney—

Bowls bring to mind a group of glamour cities — New Orleans, Miami, Pasadena — in the sunny and palm sections of the country. There's a world of publicity for the place in something so splendid as the Orange Bowl, and dozens of cities have tried to get in on these post-season football spectacles with varying degrees of success.

One of these is Jacksonville, Fla., a sprawling Atlantic port city that went to seed in the 1930's and which has been running hard throughout the 60's to change its image. Even the gleaming skyscrapers sprouting along the St. Johns River and a rebirth of civic pride wouldn't make you want to honeymoon or spend a two-week vacation in Jacksonville. It's just not that kind of place.

Big Jax, as Floridians call her, does have a bowl game, however. Count the Gator Bowl among the comers in post-season football and this year's match — Penn State against Florida State — may put to shame the quality of play to be seen in the Sugar, Cotton, Rose and Orange classics.

When the Gator Bowl was born with Wake Forest thrashing South Carolina 26-14 in 1945, the Rose Bowl, granddaddy of them all, was 43 years old, the Orange Bowl, 12, the Sugar Bowl 10 and the Cotton Bowl, 12.

This year's Gator Bowl, which will not be played on New Year's Day but the Saturday before to gain maximum press exposure, has all the elements of football at its best.

Penn State, 6-2, is the finest football team in the East. It has the Lambert Trophy to support that fact. Coach Joe Paterno's Nittany Lions (the Pennsylvania folk name for mountain lion or cougar, in case the Nittany bothers you) hammered out an 8-2 record, losing only to UCLA and Navy and then by a bare margin.

Among those victories were masterings of Miami and North Carolina State, the tough Wolfpack that laid it to Georgia in last week's Liberty Bowl. The Wolfpack is the only team that played both Penn State and FSU, and they beat the Seminoles badly.

Florida State, of course, has an aerial attack that borders on being ungodly. Bill Peterson's Seminoles have built a national reputation around wide-open football. This year it has been 7-2-1—the seven victories coming straight after losses to Houston, North Carolina State and that incredible 37-37 draw with Alabama.

Quarterback Kim Hammond and his All-America flanker Ron Sellers pushed FSU's game yardage well above 450 yards in several late-season encounters and must be considered the flashiest passing pair in college football. The Seminoles are jealous, too, of Penn State's 10th-place rating in the AP and UPI polls, rightfully feeling neglected. It's too late to change the 1967 top tens, of course, but FSU will salvage a portion of its pride if it overcomes the Lions.

97th Co. Falls To 92nd Co. Team

After winning four games point attempts were also seen in a row the 97th Co., 304 Bn., (OC), were finally brought down recently by a much improved football team from the 92nd Co. 97th appeared to be the better team throughout the first half of play, however, 92nd was not about to give up even when they were down by a score of 12-7 at the end of the first half.

At the start of the second half 97th quickly scored again and matters even looked worse for the opposition. Then they began to come to life when they were 19 points behind, and the 97th Company defense literally fell apart. Their quarterback hit one pass in a row and they were good for 125 yards and two touchdowns. Both extra

Civilian Spotlight

This week as the Infantry Center spotlight focuses on Slaughter Jr., Chief Logistics Management Division of the Director of Logistics USAIC.

He began his career at Fort Benning in 1941, in the clerical position of the Medical Department. Slaughter entered the Army in June 1944, served until April, 1946, at Fort Benning, Ga., and then with the placement Depot in Ft. Bragg, N.C.

After completing his military service he entered the civil service at Fort Benning as an accounts clerk in the commissary.

Avid Waterskier

He transferred to the Army Audit Agency in May 1949, served two years in the Atlanta area and then returned to Fort Benning in 1952. Slaughter transferred to the audit staff of Comptroller, Army, in June 1953, and served there until March 1955, at which time he transferred to the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, (now Director of Logistics) as program analysis officer.

He is a graduate of Jordan Vocational High School in Columbus, Ga., and the University of Georgia Off-Campus College, Atlanta and Columbus.

Slaughter has also attended The Army Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for the Auditing and Accounting Course in 1951, Intermediate Auditing Course, 1953, and the Military Comptrollership Course in 1961.

He received the Meritorious Civilian Service Award in

Largest Battalion Conducts Largest Awards Ceremony

Polar Bear Field was the site here recently of what is believed to be the largest awards ceremony in the history of Fort Benning, with six companies standing on line, at least one medal was presented to each man of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

National Defense Service Medal has been requisitioned for 1,168 men and Vietnam Service Medals for 245. Although authorized, these medals are seldom presented. It was felt, however, that it would be beneficial to morale to publicly recognize the service of the men in the battalion.

Lt. Col. James P. Johnson, battalion commander, awarded medals to one man from each company while the platoon sergeants presented them to members of their respective platoons.

The ceremony was the occasion of a final farewell and expression of gratitude to 1st Sgt. James H. Price Jr., who has been reassigned after serving as sergeant major for the battalion since October, 1966. Johnson presented

Vietnam Textbook Subversive Hanoi Links Aid Organization, Control

Several hundred thousand people in South Vietnam, collectively known as the Viet Cong (Vietnamese Communist Party), are engaged in a violent effort to overthrow the government of that country. Alongside them are many identified units of the regular North Vietnamese Army, ordered south by Hanoi by the thousands every month.

What was the situation which gave rise to the development of the Viet Cong? Who are its leaders? How do they operate? The BAYONET seeks to answer these and related questions with a seven-part series. Part three: Organizing for Subversion 1965-1967.

Hanoi's field headquarters in South Vietnam has the title of the Central Office for South Vietnam (COSVN). This strategic site was overrun by U.S. troops in the early part of 1967, and large supplies of documents included detailed instructions from Hanoi, since COSVN provides the direct link with top Hanoi leaders. One particularly significant document was the text of an address by North Vietnamese Gen. Nguyen Van Vinh, chairman of the Lao Dong Party's Remuneration Department and the parallel Remuneration Commission in the North Vietnamese government. Gen. Vinh, who is also a deputy chief of staff command from Hanoi to COSVN headquarters in April 1966 to deliver his instructions in person.

Another key document was a letter of instructions from Le Duan, the first secretary of the Lao Dong Party in Hanoi. In addition, captured material included the text of a speech by COSVN commander Nguyen Chi Thanh, who served as deputy chief of the Lao Dong Party in Hanoi. ## Tropic Lightning Takes Over in HoBo Woods

CU CHI (25th INF-10) The dense jungles of the Ho Bo Woods, 35 miles northwest of Saigon, no longer exist. A 56-day combined land clearing and search and destroy operation conducted by the 23rd Division's 1st Brigade has leveled 90 percent of the 13,000-acre former Viet Cong sanctuary. Specially equipped helicopters made daily flights over the woods spraying the secondary growth with defoliating chemicals.

Working with the Infantry were elements of the 88th Engineer Battalion, who used explosives to destroy the trenches, bunkers, and tunnels that were upgraded by the engineers. The engineers also upgraded the portion of the main supply route running near the area with tons of latrine and bridge spans. The intensive search turned up some 157,000 rounds of ammunition, 134 individual weapons, 59 tons of rice and eight crew-served weapons. Even a late-model Simca sedan was uncovered, camouflaged in a field.

The center consisted of two tunnel complexes located in the same general area. From one, the "Tomahawks" brought three 25mm cannons and a movie camera; a photo enlarger, photographic chemicals, printing paper and film. From the other came two portable printing presses and 800 pounds of type in both English and Vietnamese.

197th Awards Ceremony Has Silver Star Winner

Spec. Larry D. Crisp of the 72nd Engr. Co., 257th Inf. Bde., was presented the Silver Star by the 197th commander, Col. Jack L. Treadwell, in recent ceremonies on Mayfield Hill.

Crisp was cited for his actions during a Viet Cong attack on his unit at Nui Da Den mountain. A platoon of Viet Cong infiltrated his unit's perimeter and with automatic weapons, grenades, and satchel charges began attacking sleeping men in their tents. Crisp managed to gain the shelter of a trench before his tent was hit but his buddy was not so lucky.

Spec. James O. Poulton, received the Bronze Star. Poulton was cited for his outstanding contributions to the counterinsurgency effort in the Republic of Vietnam.

After the award to Poulton, 1st Lt. John M. Meade, 197th, received the Bronze Star with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster for service in Vietnam. Also awarded the Bronze Star for service in Vietnam were S. Sgt. Robert L. Johnson, both of the 2nd and 10th Arty.

Spec. 4 Talmadge F. Marchbanks, 72nd Engr. Co., was awarded the Air Medal for Heroism with the 1st Oak Leaf Cluster. Marchbanks was cited as having contributed greatly to halting an enemy attack by his actions during an aerial resupply mission near Dak To, Republic of Vietnam.

Arms Collectors Conduct Dinner

During the same ceremony, the battalion commander of the 197th Sp. Bu., Lt. Col. Crisp leaped from the safety of the trench into plain blank automatic weapons fire, ran to the tent, and pulled his friend to safety behind sand bags.

For this unselfish act of risking almost certain death to save a comrade, Crisp was awarded the coveted medal. During the same ceremony, the battalion commander of the 197th Sp. Bu., Lt. Col. Crisp leaped from the safety of the trench into plain blank automatic weapons fire, ran to the tent, and pulled his friend to safety behind sand bags.

Ceremony Highlights Active Week at ATC

Three Bronze Stars, three Air Medals and 180 soldiers graduating at two battalion ceremonies highlighted an intensely active week at the Army Training Center here.

A personnel course on the end-of-cycle individual proficiency test, two maximum efforts on the physical combat proficiency test, and a 5.04 mile run record by 7 seconds.

Col. Gregory W. Audette, Co. A, was the recipient of the American Spirit Honor Medal. Company standard bearers were: Pvt. Jack L. Gaddis, Co. A; George L. Clark, Co. B; Dieter C. Geisler, Co. C; Ronald E. Hazabrook, Co. D; and John R. Smeiser, Co. E.

Under a speed-up process designed to get trainees home for Christmas, some 800 soldiers were graduated one week early from Lt. Col. Dan E. Schilling's 8th Bn., augmenting the 700 graduates of ceremonies of the 3rd Bn.

The 5th Battalion graduates had completed their eighth week of basic combat training in seven weeks to get under the home-for-Christmas wire.

An officer and two senior enlisted men received their awards during 3rd Bn. graduation ceremonies.

First Lt. Joseph E. O'Connell, training officer, Co. K; 2nd Lt. Clarence E. Linton, Co. C, and SFC Frank L. O'Neil, senior drill sergeant, each received the Bronze Star and Air Medal.

Pvt. John D. Smith, Co. D, became the 38th man of nearly 115,000 graduates to score the maximum 60 points on the end-of-cycle individual proficiency test.

18th Artillery 2 for Vietnam Service

In a special ceremony last week, two soldiers of the 18th Artillery were cited for their service in Vietnam.

The Soldiers Medal was awarded to S. Sgt. Ernest Campbell, a 16mm mortar section chief of Battery A, 7th Bn., 18 Art.; and the Army Commendation Medal was presented to Sgt. John B. Porterfield of Btry. C.

To earn the Soldiers Medal, given for heroism not involving actual conflict with an armed enemy, Campbell distinguished himself while serving as a gunner on an armed helicopter supporting Marine combat operations on October 23.

Campbell's aircraft received hits during a firing pass on Viet Cong positions which resulted in an electrical and fuel fire. His pilot managed to fly the crippled craft about a mile before the pilot had shut the engines. Campbell had climbed

International FIGHTING HEROES

The Story of Specialist Lawrence Joel

WHILE SERVING AS A MEDICAL ADMAN, HEADQUARTERS AND HEADQUARTERS COMPANY, 1ST BATTALION (AIRBORNE), 505th INFANTRY, ON A BATTLEFIELD IN THE REPUBLIC OF VIETNAM ON 8 NOVEMBER 1965, A CONCEALED VIET CONG ELEMENT LAUNCHED A VICIOUS ATTACK WHICH WOUNDED OR KILLED HEAVILY EVERY MAN IN THE LEAD SQUAD OF JOEL'S COMPANY.

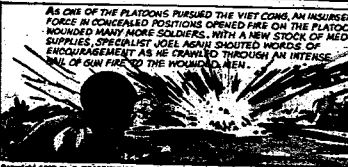

AFTER TREATING THE MEN WOUNDED BY THE INITIAL BURST OF GUN FIRE, HE BRIVELY MOVED FORWARD TO ASSIST OTHERS WHO WERE WOUNDED WHILE PROCEEDING TO THEIR OBJECTIVE. WHILE MOVING FROM MAN TO MAN, HE WAS STRUCK IN THE RIGHT LEG BY AN ENEMY GUN FIRE.

THEN, COMPLETELY IGNORING THE INJURIES OF OTHERS, AND HIS OWN PAIN, HE CONTINUED HIS SEARCH FOR WOUNDED MEN. HE DROPPED HIS GUN AND, AS BULLETS DUNG UP THE AREA AROUND HIM, HE LID PLASMA BOTTLES HIGH COMPLETELY ENGROSSSED IN HIS LIFE-SAVING MISSION.

ALTHOUGH PAINFULLY WOUNDED HIS DESIRE TO AID HIS FELLOW SOLDIERS TRANSCENDED ALL PERSONAL FEELINGS. HE BANDAIDED HIS OWN WOUND AND SELF ADMINISTERED ACCEPTING TO HIS DANGEROUS UNSETTLING. THROUGHOUT THIS PERIOD OF TIME, HE CONSTANTLY SHOUTED WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT TO ALL AROUND HIM.

THEN, AFTER BEING STRUCK A SECOND TIME AND WITH A BULLET LODGED IN HIS THIGH, HE DRAGGED HIMSELF OVER THE BATTLE FIELD AND SUCCEEDED IN TREATING THIRTEEN MORE MEN BEFORE HIS MEDICAL SUPPLIES RAN OUT. DISPLAYING THE LIFE OF ONE MAN BY BRAGGING A PLASTIC BAG OVER A SEVERE CHEST WOUND TO CONCEAL THE BLOOD.

AFTER THE TWENTY-FOUR HOUR BATTLE ENDED AND THE VIET CONG DEAD NUMBERED FOUR HUNDRED AND TEN, SURVIVORS CONTINUED TO HARRAS THE COMPANY THROUGHOUT THE LONG BATTLE. SPECIALIST JOEL NEVER LOST SIGHT OF HIS MISSION AS A MEDICAL ADMAN AND CONTINUED TO COMFORT AND TREAT THE WOUNDED WITH HIS OWN BLOOD. HIS DUTY SAVED A LARGE NUMBER OF LIVES AND HIS UNSELFISH, BRAVE EXAMPLE UNDER MOST ADVERSE CONDITIONS WAS AN INSPIRATION TO ALL.

HEY, HAL! EVER GET A DEAR JOHN FACE TO FACE?

THE GAME OF THE SEVEN GOOFS

These two cartoons have been drawn with at least seven subtle differences. Let's see if you can prove yourself by finding them. After you're finished, please check your answers printed upside down.

SOLUTION: (1) There is more crease in her jacket. (2) The woman on the right has one eye. (3) Under them, the nose is longer. (4) The guard's cap is smaller. (5) The guard's cap is longer. (6) The guard's man's glasses is different. (7) The shape of the service. (8) The woman on the left has one eye. (9) The woman on the right has one eye. (10) The woman on the left has one eye. (11) The woman on the right has one eye. (12) The woman on the left has one eye.

Sport Shorts

Just before spring training, a baseball manager accompanied his wife who was auditioning for an NBC panel show, "Hollywood Squares." But the baseball manager himself was chosen as a contestant and he won the first couple of rounds. Then he agreed with Morey Amsterdam that the plural of "cello" is "cellos." "Wrong," said the MC, "the answer is "celli."

The baseball manager was eliminated as a contestant but a few days later the rule-makers must have looked at a larger dictionary. They found "cellos" was also acceptable and brought the contestant back. He sailed on, undefeated, to win the maximum prize of $2,500.

A night-shift waiter who watches TV with breakfast observed all this and decided such a winner was worth backing. He placed a sawbuck with his friendly neighborhood bookie and at season's end his 100-to-1 shot had paid off. For the winning "Hollywood Squares" contestant was also that winning manager, Dick Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

THE ICEMEN

With league expansion, more U.S. residents are getting a chance to see live hockey, perhaps the roughest, toughest, fastest thrill-a-minute sport of them all. Witness just one live game and chances are you'll become a real hockey fan.

It would be ideal to break in by watching one of the great teams . . . the champion Chicago Black Hawks for example, with the bulls-eye shooting of Bobby Hull, the artful stick-handling of Stan Mikita, the skating speed of Kenny Wharram and the precision teamwork of the whole squad. But even an amateur match can be swift and exciting.

This pitch for hockey probably seems superfluous to readers from northern states and Canada. But the fact is, there are millions of U.S. kids who grow up in temperate areas where there is little or no natural ice. They are exposed to baseball, basketball and football as soon as they graduate from crawling. But hockey is practically unknown to them.

Hockey, with its comparatively small arena, is a fine, spectator sport. In fact, it's far better to watch than to play—if you value your front teeth.

FUNNYBONE

Dick Butkus, the Chicago Bear linebacker, has a sense of humor. He and a teammate rushed in to tackle a bull-carrier, each grabbing the fub on its ankle. Dick said to his teammate, "Okay, make a wish."

SHORT SHORTS

Carl Yastrzemski leads the American league in homers, ribys, batting average and getting his name misspelled.

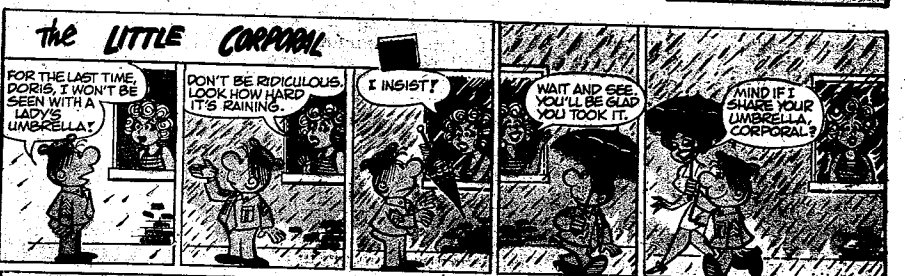

Howevr the Anti-Defamation League of Poultry Growers doesn't get after sports writers for referring to the banquet trail as "the rubber chicken circuit?"

Charley Weaver, explaining why he doesn't play the horses: "I never play anything I can't shuffle."

Who can remember the last time somebody called golf "cow-pasture pool?"

End of the Blues:

Other Band Razors should have their heads examined—you'll find they're not all there!

The action's in the new Schick 10-edge cartridge—with not just 6, but 10 new edges.

Equally Important, only Schick Science gives you a complete winding mechanism—new with every cartridge. While our competitor may think it's cheaper to put half the band mechanism in the razor and half in the cartridge, old and new parts do not always fit together.

Finally, the 10 Super Stainless Steel Edges are held taut by an exclusive slotted band for positive shaving control. Every Krona® Edge has the molecular Miron® coating for a surface of unequalled smoothness. Only Schick has the Krona Comfort Edge.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Tell It To Meg

You seem like a pretty good egg. So give me an answer, Dear Meg! When a girl says, "Not No! Here's as for as you go!"

Do you think I should sit up and beg? —LONGING FELLOW

Dear L. F.: Sure, if you want her to treat you like a dog. DEAR MEG: Isn't it disgusting to read about these co-ed colleges which permit unmarried women to room with men? Now I'm no old fogey and I play around plenty and know the score and realize that everybody in this day and age isn't as pure as the driven snow, as they used to say. But isn't it disgraceful that co-eds should do such things openly?

—DISGUSTED
Dear Disgusted: You prefer the sneaky type, eh? DEAR MEG: I'm madly in love with a handsome lieutenant but he smokes cigars. How can I break him of the habit?

—ANNE T.
Dear Anne: Tell him he must choose between you and his Coronas. This will make him break the habit—of dating you. DEAR MEG: My husband is a good soldier and I know he's doing the right thing fighting for his country. We have a son five-years-old. My fervent hope is that by the time he grows up there won't be any more wars. What worries me is, although the child has all kinds of toys, he likes mostly to play with things like cannons, tanks, missiles and so forth. Is because his father is in the army that he likes these war-like playthings?

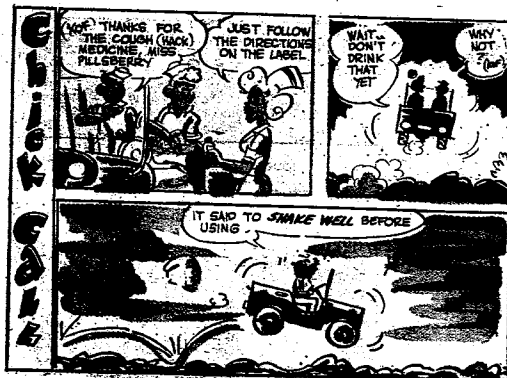

—YOUNG MOTHER.
Dear Ma: Relax! As long as anybody can remember, all little boys have played with toy guns, tin soldiers, etc., whether they were sons of preachers, grocers, poets, bricklayers or military men. If, praise be, there's no war when your boy grows up, he won't start one.

DEAR MEG: My girl friend keeps sending me boxes of cookies she made herself and they are so terrible even the biggest chow hound in the barracks can't eat them. Some of my buddies say I ought to write and tell her she's a rotten cook and should send me boughten cookies. They say a girl appreciates frankness.

—BENNY G.
Dear B. G.: It's hard to believe you're not putting me on. But in case you're not, believe me, no girl would appreciate that kind of frankness. Keep thanking her for the nice cookies. (They look nice, don't they?)

DEAR MEG: I'm sick of reading about hippies. The word for such characters is "bums."

—SGT. J. B.
Dear Sarge: Okay, but the bums may object.

This watch tells you what the moon will be like tonight.

In addition to what day it is, what time it is, what month it is, and what time it is, it is accurate and dependable, year after year. It's self-winding, ten karat gold-filled top, stainless steel back case, black or a white dial, with silver markers, and a matching band. Shock-resistant, electrically irreversible, sevenless jewels, electrically irreversible, waterproof and balance staff. 5th through 44th Prizes—$5.00

All you have to do to win one of the 44 cash prizes is send in a funny caption that fits the cartoon above. For example, a caption that could fit this picture is, "So you got the promotion?" You can send in as many original captions as you like, but they must be sent to the address: "CAPTION CONTEST NO. 1," AMERICAN ARMED FORCES FEDERATION, 405 Lexington Avenue, New York 10017. None of the entries can be returned, and the decision of judges, a panel selected from the National Cartoonist Society, is final. The contest is open only to Servicemen and their dependents. Please state rank or connection with the Service when you submit your caption. All entries must be in by February 28, 1968. All winners will be notified by mail and the top 40 winning captions will be printed along with all 44 winners' names.

THE MAN FROM S.P.Y.

How good a spy would you make? Interpol became suspicious of one of its confidential clerks. A new hypnotic bullet was invented, but before letting anyone know about it, the Chief Inspector, to test the clerk's honesty, left 16 bullets on his desk as shown in the sketch below.

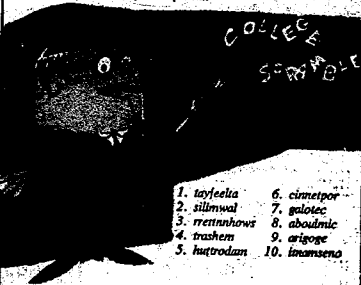

He counted the bullets from A to C and then from B to C. He noted that there were 11 bullets from A down to C and 11 from B down to G. He figured if any were taken he would immediately know it. In spite of this, however, the clerk managed to steal two of the bullets without being discovered. The following morning when the Chief Inspector recounted from A to C and from B to C, there were still 11. How did the spy manage it?

SPACE PUZZLE

THE NUMBERS GAME

As a group of servicemen entered a USO dance, the hostess greeted them with, "Good evening you ten handsome men." One of the servicemen replied, "We are not ten, but if we were twice as many more as we are, we would be just as many above ten as we are now under ten." Can you figure out how many servicemen were there?

SOLUTIONS:

College Scramble — 1. Lafayette 2. Williams 3. Northwestern 4. Amherst 5. Dartmouth 6. Princeton 7. Colgate 8. Columbia 9. Georgia 10. Minnesota. Space Puzzle — The identical twins are Kixnay and Nixnay. The Numbers Game — There were ten servicemen. Twice five is ten, plus five is 15, so if they were twice what they were plus their own number, that would make five either way.

Former Benning Commander Built Own Quarters

INDEPENDENT REPERING CENTER & CONTRACTOR FOR BUILDING
 Exchange Was Built by Former Post Sgt. Edward Walker

(Editor's note: Maj. Gen. Fred L. Walker (Ret.), in a visit to the Infantry Museum last July, noticed an old picture depicting dependent housing at Benning during the early 1920's. The house showed familiar lines and actually was constructed by the general during his duty here as an instructor in 1920-23 for himself and his family. It has long since been replaced by the more modern dependent housing but the general recalls how it came into being and what it was like. Gen. Walker was the commandant of The Infantry School in 1945-46. By Major General (Ret.) Fred L. Walker of August, 1920. No quarters were available on the post for families of permanent personnel except five or six converted farm buildings which were occupied by Gen. Charles Gordon, commandant; by Col. Paul B. Malone, assistant commandant, and by three or four senior instructors. I arrived with a wife and two children, one a baby less than two months old. I was told that I would have to live in Columbus, but nothing suitable was available there. At my request, the commandant gave me permission to build a cottage on the reservation at my own expense, with the proviso that I might sell it to another officer at the end of my tour of duty, but that I could not rent it nor tear it down. My family went home to Ohio, I took up residence with 20 or more other instructors on the second floor of a barracks. Our bunk beds were arranged in true barracks style—four feet between each. Made Plans I made a plan for my cottage and collected the building material which had been under construction, but which had been abandoned at the end of the war. To get the job started, I hid a few days help from a soldier, who was a carpenter. Thereafter, except for installation of the plumbing, I completed the cottage myself. (See QUARTERS, Page 2)

Vietnam Struggle Has Major Impact On Benning—1967

Vietnam. That word was in the mind of all Americans throughout 1967. At Fort Benning it was the biggest thing in the lives of thousands of young men training for the war. No other place in the United States was so closely connected to the intensifying conflict in Asia. For a review of 1967 as it was at The Infantry Center, please turn to page 18.

Rested Benning Resumes Full Schedule Wednesday

BY LARRY MAHONEY
 The Infantry center will get back to the serious full-time business of training for war Wednesday after a half-day work schedule ends after two weeks and thousands of soldiers, home for the holidays, return to the rigors of Army life. The trancel and lights of Christmas will be packed away as 1968 enters, rustling that transient grimness home, at least for the moment. This was Fort Benning's third Christmas at Fort Benning, involvement in the Vietnam war, which began with the dispatch of the 1st Cav. from here in the late summer of 1965. Candidates for bars and stripes will be back in the field, knowing that their Christmas will probably be spent in Asia, where the war rages. The truce each year at this time before returning with increased intensity.

Sgt. Maj.

Visitor for the 3rd Trans. Co at Davidson Army Airfield. In June 1961 he was sent to Korea as first sergeant to the 8th Helicopter Co.

Sgt. M. Bolen was assigned to the 11th Air Assault Div., the forerunner of the 1st Cav., on return from Korea.

He remained with the 1st Assault Div. until it became the 1st Cav. Div. and deployed to Vietnam. On Aug. 15, 1965, he rejoined the 1st Cav. as first sergeant of Co. B, 288th Avn. Bn. until Aug. 18, 1966.

Prior to his assignment to the 10th Avn. Gp. Sgt. Maj. Bolen served with the 600th Trans. Co. here. He replaces Sgt. Maj. Wade J. Vardeman.

First Baby

annual Stork Derby. The derby, sponsored annually by the BAYONET and the Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers, is won by the first baby of 1968 born to a military family stationed at Fort Benning.

Last year the prize went to Capt. and Mrs. Ralph F. Brown for their daughter born just four minutes after the winking hour.

Contrary to popular opinion, the child need not be born in Martin Army Hospital to qualify. However, the child must be born in Columbus-Phenix City-Benning area.

Merchants taking part in the derby this year include: National Bank of Fort Benning, $10 savings account; The Book Store, sterling silver baby cup; Bonanza Silver Pit, two steak dinners; Valley Brand Meat Co., 5 pounds of bone steaks.

Also Walt's Inc., $15 free merchandise; Brook's Super Market, $5 worth of baby food; Bill Heard Chevrolet, 15 gallons of gasoline; Love-man's, infant carrier seat; Maxwell Brothers, kiddie tricycle; Appliance Sales, 2 Rentals, deluxe hair dryer; Royal Crown Bottling Co., 2 cases of RC Cola.

Others are Martin Thers, $5 book of happiness; Miller Taylor Shoes, ladies' house slippers; Miller Dept. Store, Polaroid Swinger camera; One Hour

Jumbo Postcard

A jumbo postcard, measuring two - and - a - half by one - and - a - half feet, was sent to a 9th Inf Div. officer at Tan An, Vietnam, recently. Maj. Richard E. Conroy, commander of Hq. Co., 3rd Bde., received the card from American Legion Post 390 in Hempstead, N.Y., his hometown. The card, carried in a parade in Hempstead, reads, "Serving in Vietnam, Hq. Co., 3rd Bde., 9th Div. adopted by 390." Conroy is a member of Post 390. (ANF)

Valet, $5 worth of dry cleaning; Kentucky Fried Chicken, two chicken dinners; and the Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers, an $210 full-color portrait.

Quarters

Four other married officers were building houses at the same time. My cottage stood on concrete blocks about 15 inches above the ground. It was about 20 feet deep and 30 feet long, with a partition lengthwise through the middle.

The front half of the cottage was our living room. It had a dining area at one end, and a study area at the other. The rear half of the cottage was divided into a kitchen, two bedrooms and a very convenient bathroom with hot and cold running water.

Resumes

Kerosene heat and perhaps a telephone call to their distant homes. Only 11,295 soldiers and dependents ate the Army's Christmas dinner at Benning. This reflected the exodus for home. At Thanksgiving, nearly 40,000 sat down to the same kind of turkey and trimmings.

The New Year will be welcomed with festivities at the Officers and NCO clubs Sunday night. Monday, the first day of 1968, will be for bowl games on television, hog jowls and blackeyed peas if you're traditional, and resolutions for the year ahead.

Soon enough, Fort Benning will be itself again, alive with marching men, the barks of sergeants, volleys on the ranges, the helicopters overhead, and 60,000 people, soldier and civilian, doing their bit for the national defense. The holidays will have come and gone. It will be 1968, a war year and an election year, and Fort Benning's 56th as the home of America's foot soldiers.

As soon as the cottage was finished — the latter part of November — my family returned from Ohio to dedicate it. It was not much for looks, but it was a very comfortable home for two and a half years.

In the back yard, about 20 feet by 10 feet by 10 foot cubicle for Kate, our maid. The inner and outer walls were of canvas with a four-inch air space between. It was heated and lighted by kerosene. When Kate finished fixing it up, it was quite cozy. Of course, she cooked and bathed in our quarters, and spent most of her time there.

When my cottage was half finished, the post quartermaster began to set up tent houses.

Lost and found needs some legal clearing up

"Finders keepers, losers weepers." Is this old rhyme true or false?

Here are some rather fine distinctions and exceptions to the "finders keepers" maxim that have plagued the courts—and finders—for many years. In the first place, the finders is not entitled to keep the property unless the original owner is not known and cannot be located. Neither may he keep it unless the object is truly "lost," and not merely "mislaid."

Property is not lost in the legal sense when voluntarily left by the owner intending to pick it up later even though he fails to do so. Such property is "mislaid."

Thus, if one loses a watch or bracelet on the street by having the clasp break, not knowing where or when it was dropped, it is legally "lost." The same is true of a fountain pen falling through a hole in one's pocket unobserved. In such cases, the finder owns what he has found against all but the true owner.

On the other hand, a package left on the seat of a bus is "mislaid" rather than lost. The proper custodian to hold the property for the owner would be the driver or other person in charge.

Remaining unclaimed, the property sometimes goes to the custodian, sometimes to the finder. The distinction here is based on whether the property is found in a private or semi-private place, or a place used by the general public.

New Year Good Time For Self Improvement

Now that Christmas has run its hectic course through the pocketbooks and the lives of all Fort Benning and the surrounding communities, we should dig in with our heels and come up with some startling New Year's resolutions. In case you're low on ideas, try out some of these and see if the shoe fits...

I will try to be as sharp on any military duty that I ever have as I would be on the day I first try to get a job in civilian life.

I will be as thorough in my approach to my job as I would expect a heart surgeon to be if he were operating on my heart.

I will constantly try to set an example for all my coworkers in my enthusiasm and perseverance so that when the job is completed there is no reason to look back on it.

I will try to find a better way of doing things so that I, as well as my job, do not fall in to the "ole rut."

Regardless of what hardships I face, I will try to better my community and myself through constructive efforts on my part (even if some of it has to be done after duty hours).

I will try to be as pleasant in all circumstances as is humanly possible so as not to make life miserable for those around me.

I will be respectful in all cases of my superior officers and noncommissioned officers, my opinions when I have sufficient reason to believe I'm right.

I will try at all times to keep an open mind and strive to see the other person's viewpoint (however painful).

Public is often deceived by door-to-door salesman

Door-to-door selling was one of this country's first methods of distributing merchandise to the buyer and is still practiced by many reliable firms today. However, it has become a fertile field for the get-rich-quick operator who deceives and victimizes the public. This column is designed to give you information about authorized and prohibited solicitation procedures on military installations.

Recently, two book salesman approached company cadetmen at an Army Training Center. The salesmen flashed official correspondence (which actually denied their request for a solicitation permit) and falsely stated that post headquarters had given them permission to solicit trainees. The salesmen then permitted to address trainees in a company formation. After stressing the merits of continued education, these sales representatives concluded with a sales pitch: as a result, 10 soldiers signed up for a "package deal" of encyclopedias, membership in a "research" company, and these reference books. The cost to each soldier—$220. It was later learned from the Army library that the encyclopedias cost only $36.50 for home delivery and $129.50 if purchased on credit.

In another state, an Army newspaper carried

'Wandering eyes' easily corrected in early stage

Ocular muscle deviation is that condition in which the imaginary line we look down to see things of the two eyes is no longer straight. They may either cross, called esotropia or they may turn outward, and less frequently there may be vertical separation of the visual axes. The problem in general is a defect in which the eyes are no longer in their normal alignment.

Various factors may be responsible. Some of which are: near or far sightedness; faulty muscles; excessive or misdirected nervous supply from the brain to the eye muscles; hereditary; or certain diseases of the eye which interfere with the reception of light by the eye or those diseases which interfere with the transmission of vision from the brain.

However of these factors, excessive near or far sightedness plus heredity is the leading associated finding in children.

During the first three months of life, it is perfectly normal for a baby's eyes to "wander" at times. Even after that age the eyes may appear to be very close together. But this is sometimes an illusion created by the undeveloped bridge of the baby's nose.

Begin Early

Crossing of the eyes can begin at or shortly after birth. This early age of onset is often times associated with premature and/or excessive nervous supply. The crossing is generally of a large degree and is constant. A second age of onset for crossed eyes is around two to two and a half. At this age the child begins to focus his eyes. And if excessive far sightedness is present, an excessive amount of focusing is necessary in order to see clearly.

Because focusing of our eyes and in-turning of our eyes are connected together in one for one relationship, this child's eyes will cross when he tries to focus to see. This type of esotropia is generally at first intermittent, being present only when the child is tired or with fever, but gradually it becomes worse and a constant in-turning remains.

A third and less frequent age of onset is around 5 or 6, being associated with a less degree of farsightedness.

Noticeable At 4

Out-turning of the eyes can be noticeable at a very early age, but most frequently begins after age 4. The outturning is at first intermittent and only at distance or vision, but it too can gradually become worse resulting in a constant ocular deviation.

The symptoms of ocular deviations are few. The tendency to close one eye, or to rub one eye, or tilt the head are seen in children with child with. The brain of a child with strabismus receives two images.

The youngster sees double because his deviated eyes view an object from widely different angles. Thus the world seen by a strabismic child is probably a world of flat double images—flat because being unable to fuse the two images into one, it is difficult for him to perceive an object. The child is disturbed, but often too young to explain his difficulty or espouse his own view of the way. He squints his eyes and tilts his head, unconsciously trying either to combine the two images into one, or simply to ignore one image altogether. But neither attempt succeeds. So, he finally gives up trying to see with both eyes. Eliminates the image in one eye, now sees only one image, and actually becomes accustomed to "one-eyed" sight. Seeing with only one eye becomes perfectly normal. And by using only one eye, he is no longer plagued by double vision. However, the power of vision in the unused eye does not develop its full potential. After a certain age, it is possible to build the child's vision up to normal. This means that "half grown" the rest of his life — the "lazy eye."

The examination of children, even those less than one year of age is not difficult. An accurate visual acuity of most children and one half years and older can be obtained. An estimation of the degree of ocular muscle deviation is measured with prism lenses. A cycloplegic refraction, ("removal with drops") is most important in order to find the total amount of near or far sightedness.

While the pupils are well dilated a detailed examination of the inside of the eyes can be done.

Some forms of treatment can be started as early as six months. And even strabismic children up to nine or later can occasionally regain normal sight if they receive treatment.

Glasses Recommended

Glasses are a generally recommended form of treatment in certain children is placing a patch over the good eye. This idea is to force the youngster to use the weak eye; with increased work his vision will increase.

Excercises for the eye muscles may be used to teach the two eyes to work together again as a team. However, these do not take the place of surgery or glasses.

Sometimes an operation is necessary to help re-align the eyes. The operation is not dangerous; its effect on the child is equivalent to a tonsil removal. One operation may be all that is needed, but sometimes take two or three before the eyes are straight, since several eye muscles may be involved.

Chatty New Year Celebration Calls for Special Cake

By Louise Domaschewsky
Celebrating the first day of a new year is an age-old custom. Nearly all peoples have marked the coming of the year. However, the time selected as New Year's Day has varied widely. The First Day has been celebrated as early as the autumnal equinox, about September 21, and as late as the summer solstice, about June 21. In most European countries during the Middle Ages, approximately 25 minutes, or until delicately brown. Cool 10 minutes before removing from pan. Decorate as desired.

MCCW Visits Senior Citizens For Christmas.

Ladies of the Military Council of Catholic Women made a special trip December 16 to the Highland House in Columbus to wish a "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year" to the homes senior citizens.

Members of the group sang Christmas carols with the older folks to the accompaniment of guitar music played by three students of Fawcett High School, Terry Sovia, Patres Montesclaros, and Michelle Montesclaros.

The ladies also carried gifts, nativity scenes, and refreshments for the song-fest. Women on the Christmas visit were Mrs. C. J. De Sincere, Mrs. Lon Marlowe, Mrs. Melicia Montesclaros, Mrs. Helia Montesclaros, Mrs. E. Diaz, Mrs. Marshall Stogner, and Mrs. Andrew Bringle, project chairman. They were accompanied by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Leonard Paznoskas.

Armor Wives Attend Coffee

The monthly coffee for the wives of the 4th Bn. 50th Armor, was recently held at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Mrs. Harold Lusby, wife of the battalion commander, presided over a brief business meeting. A silver disk was presented to Mrs. James Watts, who has departed from the battalion.

Mrs. John Watts was welcomed as a guest. Cohesiveness for the affair were Mrs. Harold Lusby and Mrs. Jerry Thomas. Following the meeting, refreshments were served.

Children Feted At Yule Party

"And I'ma, what do you want most at Christmas?" and "Peter, I know you've been a good boy, haven't you?" old Santa asked as he made his guest appearance at a children's Christmas party, December 20, at the Main Officers' Club.

The party, sponsored by the Geographical Wives' Club and with attention on a holiday for the younger set, also featured Christmas refreshments, Christmas music, and Yule decorations.

Polka Dots Give Preview Of Network Appearance

The Officers' Wives' Club choral group, the "Polka Dots," barely took time out to catch a breath after going to Miami, Fla., to film their part in the Ted Mack Amateur Hour before they went "on show" again December 17 to present a special performance and reception at the Main Officers' Club.

The singing group gave the reception to guests at Fort Benning and Columbus as their way of saying "thank you," to the many people in the area who had helped them to go to Miami and as a way of giving a preview of their performance to be seen nationwide on television during January.

Among the guests were representatives of the ten area businesses that sponsored their trip to Miami, Burnham Van Service, Camellia Apartments and Motel, Columbus Bank and Trust, Gas Light Company of Columbus, First National Bank, Fourth National Bank, National Bank of Fort Benning, Royal Crown Cola, Tom Huston Peanut, and WRBL Radio and Television.

Besides singing "On a Wonderful Day Like Today," the song the group sang for the Ted Mack show, the group featured a selection of Christmas songs.

Petticoat Portraits

by Jane Daniels

For Mrs. Malvin Leibowitz and her husband, Capt. Leibowitz, a pediatrician at Martin Army Hospital, life revolves around the family and around children.

Mrs. Leibowitz, who for six years was an elementary school teacher and who now has two children of her own, thoroughly enjoys little people. That both she and her husband chose careers which center around children is to them a pleasant and slightly surprising circumstance. Although she knew that she wanted to be a doctor, she had no idea that he'd specialize in pediatric.

Of course, her ardent pleasure in children is especially evident when she's with her son, Renee, 3, and her daughter, Barbara, 9 months old. The whole family truly enjoys each other's company.

Love of Family
The love of family also takes on a broader concept for the Leibowitzes in their active involvement with the "Jewish Family" at Fort Benning. "When we move to a new place, we quickly become active members of the local Jewish center or synagogue," she says.

Being "an active member" means just that for her at Fort Benning, where she is now the president of the Jewish Sisterhood. In her job she is a "volunteer" in the group's many projects and a chief contact to the Jewish chaplain.

The Sisterhood, which meets once a month, has as its current list of projects the planning of a children's Hanukkah party, the hosting of an interfaith coffee on January 16, the constant encouragement of activities for young people, and the hosting of monthly Jewish family night services.

Part of Center
In explanation of her activities with the center, Mrs. Leibowitz says, "As a Jewish wife and mother I want to be a part of the center, family, and to help the center in any way that I can."

She also enjoys taking the Officers' Wives' Club group to an event cooking course, is an avid reader, and is an expert at embroidering and quilting. She collects cook-books and says that both she and her husband love to try new foods, she is a member of a sewing circle, and admits, "I haven't bought a sweater for my family in years."

Next on her list of projects to pursue, she says, is sewing.

Met in College
Capt. and Mrs. Leibowitz had both grown up in the same neighborhood but met only after they were both college students.

After she had earned her Bachelor of Arts Degree from Queen's College in New York City, the young couple was married. Later, she earned six years of teaching, she also earned the Master of Science Degree by attending night classes at Queen's College.

As for her future plans, she says that one day she hopes to go back to teaching, part time if not full time. "And even if I never teach again," she adds, "I will always have a great interest in schools through my own children and through P.T.A."

Accompanied at the piano by their teacher, Mrs. Charles H. Armstrong, the children used the instruments of a rhythm band to play "Rock Topik," "Up on the Housetop," and "Jingle Bells." They also sang such holiday favorites as "Silent Night" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas." Enthusiasm was especially evident as they sang "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Each child wore a paper hat shaped like a Christmas tree. To their side stood a huge green tree decorated with ornaments that the children had made.

Special guest for the performance was Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning commander.

Pre-Kindergarten School Children Present Program

No one enjoys the excitement and thrill of Christmas more than the children.

The children at the Pre-Kindergarten School were no exception as they presented a Christmas program entitled, "What Christmas Means to Us," December 18, to their parents, brothers and sisters, and friends.

Accompanied at the piano by their teacher, Mrs. Charles H. Armstrong, the children used the instruments of a rhythm band to play "Rock Topik," "Up on the Housetop," and "Jingle Bells." They also sang such holiday favorites as "Silent Night" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas." Enthusiasm was especially evident as they sang "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Benning Generals Attend 'Group' Christmas Party

The Main Officers' Club was the scene of this year's Christmas party for the officers of the 10th Army Group. The guests of honor for the occasion were Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., post commander, and Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy, assistant commander of The Infantry School.

The Main Ballroom of the club was decorated along the theme of the Christmas spirit, and the guests and their wives with dance music throughout the evening.

Immediately following the dinner which was held in the club's Fountain Room, Maj. Alvin J. Turner, commanding officer of the 10th Trans. Co., M.C.'ed the evening's entertainment, included in the program was a performance by the Columbus Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. Among the members of the chapter were four officers who will soon be departing the 10th Army Group, including a number of second lieutenants who are leaving for flight school.

Following the presentations, Gen. Wright extended his thanks to the guests, and Christmas wishes to the guests, and in concluding the program, Col. Hammack invited the guests into the main ballroom for an evening of dancing.

Kelley Hill Event Held

The ladies of Hq., 197th Inf. Bde. held their monthly coffee recently at Kelley Hill Chapel, the traditional meeting place at Christy. Mrs. Gerald G. Coady and Mrs. Jimmy R. Hill were co-hostesses. The mood was festive and the atmosphere enhanced by a much admired nativity scene.

During the coffee the ladies were visited by the brigade commander, Col. Jack L. Treadwell, the brigade deputy commander, Lt. Col. Gerald G. Coady, and the brigade adjutant, Maj. Anthony W. Davis.

Academy Presents Opportunity to Future Noncoms

Editor's Note: This is the third of a three-part series concerning the Third U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy of Fort Benning's Army Training Center. Parts one and two dealt with the reflections of the staff and faculty and of graduates alike.

Unique in concept, embryonic in formal and progressive in its goals, the Third U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy at the U.S. Army Training Center in Fort Benning has successfully negotiated its shake-down trials and is pointing toward new and greater success in 1968.

The only NCO Academy in the U. S. Army started solely with noncommissioned officers, the combat-experienced, professionally-trained staff and faculty has taken a bold inventory during the holiday respite from classes and is ready to continue its mission with a new zest, improved methods and tested concept.

Born of the necessity to give noncommissioned officers training to the 4,000 plus NCO's and potential NCO's at Fort Benning, the Academy opened its doors to the first student on September 5. Since then it has graduated 190 students, has 50 more in various stages of the curriculum, and is planning on a new 50-man class every two weeks.

6 Weeks Long
Each course, six weeks in duration, offers some 283 hours of intensive instruction from drill and ceremonies, physical training, leadership, instruction, tactics, weapons familiarization and other paragon type subjects. And in all cases, practical application and student participation is stressed over the sedentary lectures of the classroom.

Col. Herbert E. Wolf, commander of the Army Training Center under which the academy operates, credits much of the past success and promise potential to the unique and dedicated staff.

"These outstanding, carefully selected noncommissioned officers have insured the dynamic development and progress of the academy. I find it difficult to pinpoint any one member of the staff and faculty as outstanding, but I must mention Sgt. Maj. Rudolph G. Sailer, director of instruction; 1st Sgt. Billy R. Swartz; SFC David W. Bradley, chief of operations; 1st Sgt. Dennis L. Massey, chief of the tactics department; and SFC Thomas R. Spring, chief of the leadership department."

Students to Benefit
When classes start again Tuesday, students will benefit from the enthusiasm of Col. Wolf, combined with the abilities and desires of Sgt. Maj. Wright and his entire staff. Great things are in store for Fort Benning's junior NCO's, both potential and new. The opportunity is there, the rest of it will depend solely upon what those students get out of it up to them.

Deputy ATC CO Receives Coveted Korean Decoration

A distinguished Korean decoration, delayed nearly 12 years, has been presented to Col. Melcio Montescalros, deputy commander of the U. S. Army Training Center here.

The Chungmu Distinguished Military Service Medal with Gold Star, representing "excellent" service, was presented to Col. Montescalros by Col. Herbert E. Wolf, commander of The Training Center.

Col. Montescalros' Chungmu decoration is the first ever awarded at the Training Center.

The citation, dated Feb. 11, 1966 and signed by Yul Yil Sohn (then Minister of National Defense for the Republic of Korea) covered Col. Montescalros' assignments as supply officer for the Korean Communication Zone of the United States Army and as a logistical adviser of the Joint Military Assistance Group to Korea.

The decoration was awarded for "thorough planning, executive ability and untiring efforts, organizational ability, effective supervision and zealous application of military knowledge... his high sense of responsibility and close cooperation with his counterpart of the Republic of Korea Armed Forces."

Col. Montescalros was assigned as deputy commander of the Training Center in May 1967. He and his wife, Richard Freeze, commanding officer of the 301st Trans. Det. and their wives.

Dinner Marks City Adoption Of Group Units

The officers and wives of the 271st Avn. Co. and the 301st Trans. Co. of Fort Benning were guests for a reception at the Shorter Mansion Saturday night. Eugene has adopted these units.

Hosts were representatives from the civic clubs and organizations who recently went to Fort Benning in a Chinook helicopter where they toured the post and had lunch.

The mansion was beautifully decorated throughout in the Christmas theme, and was admired by the visitors.

Following the reception, 70 guests were served a delightful dinner. Among the guests were Maj. John Obermeyer, commanding officer of the 271st Avn. Co., and his wife, Richard Freeze, commanding officer of the 301st Trans. Det. and their wives.

ATC Unit Presented Bond Flag

A Minuteman Flag with Service Star (2nd award) has been presented to the 8th Bn., 2nd Sd. of USAFCA, in recognition of its 92.24 percent participation in the Savings Bond program. The flag was accepted by Col. Herbert E. Wolf, commanding officer, USAFCA, from Mr. M. L. Summers, representative of the Treasury Department.

Summers commended the 8th Bn., particularly the trainee personnel, for their second year of outstanding participation. He pointed out that they were not only helping their country physically, but mentally as well, and in turn, were developing an excellent individual savings plan.

In addition to Col. Wolf, Col. John E. Lance Jr., 2nd Bde. commander; Lt. Col. Milton F. Uffman, 8th Bn. commander; 2nd Bde. Sgt. Maj. William E. Hahn, and 8th Bn. Sgt. Maj. Samuel R. Jessee attended the ceremony held in the conference room, Hqs., USAFCA.

New Instructors

76 Graduate TIS Training Course No. 6

Twenty-one officers and fifty-four enlisted men were graduated from the Infantry School's Instructor Training Course number 6 last week in ceremonies in Marshall Auditorium.

This challenging 3½-week course, a prerequisite for all USAIS instructors, teaches the techniques of presenting formal instruction to classes at the Infantry School.

The guest speaker for the ceremonies was Col. J. M. Hollis, director of the USAIS Weapons Dept. Col. Hollis compared the role and responsibilities of Infantry School instructors to those of the leaders of big business. He further stressed that the instructor must be vitally concerned with his instructional input to insure maximum output of the finest military leaders possible.

Mobile Phone

Telephone calls to home from a foxhole in Vietnam? Not quite, but Sgt. Tony Ward promises fellow members of the 1st Airborne Bde. (Separate) that "a combat soldier can talk to his family and friends in the United States practically from his foxhole."

Ward, of St. Louis, Mo., carries out his pledge by packaging his portable Military Affiliate Radio Station (MARS) in a conical container and flying it by helicopter to the brigade's forward area.

WASHINGTON—Ten thousand military men in the United States and seven thousand civilians, most of whom are working on military installations, will be getting dental care questionnaires this month and next from the Department of Defense.

Defense is seeking data which could lead to a legislative proposal to add dental care to the present family medical care program. The queries were to go out between December 1 and January 15.

Respondents will be asked such things as the number of members in the family, how much their dental care costs and how far they have to go to get it.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers has promised a dental care bill for military families next year. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D., N. Y.) has already introduced such a bill.

The House Armed Services Committee last summer held hearings on dental care for the military.

Everything appears to suggest that "Go" for the measure, but the high cost of the program may result in a delay in passage.

National Liberation Front Is All Things to All People

Several hundred thousand people in South Vietnam, collectively known as the Viet Cong (Vietnamese for "Vietnamese Communists"), are engaged in a violent effort to overthrow the government of that country. What was the situation which gave rise to the development of the Viet Cong? Who are its leaders? These and related questions with a seven-part series.

Part Four.
The National Liberation Front at the close of 1960, authorities in Hanoi decided to concentrate their efforts on a flexible manner in order to new front organization to be based in the South, and that it could be won over neutrally all forces that should be broad masses in the North Vietnamese Lao Dong (Communist) Party third congress in September, stating that one of the strategic tasks of the South and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam was "to liberate South Vietnam from the ruling yoke of the U. S. imperialists and their henchmen."

In describing the forthcoming National Liberation Front of the Lao Dong Party resolution stated: "The front must carry out its work in a very flexible manner in order to rally all forces that can be rallied and win over neutralize all forces that should be broad masses in the North Vietnamese Lao Dong (Communist) Party third congress in September, stating that one of the strategic tasks of the South and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam was "to liberate South Vietnam from the ruling yoke of the U. S. imperialists and their henchmen."

Hanoi felt it could count on support from a variety of groups in the South. Most important were those entrenched Communists from the Viet Minh who had not gone North after the Geneva agreements. As Communists, they owed special loyalty to Ho Chi Minh. Some of them still control some rural areas which resisted government authority. Others had merely gone underground.

Other potential recruits were rural peasants who feared that the new regime in Saigon would bring increased taxes, increased rents, and few benefits.

Some members of the shattered Binh Xuyen, the Diem-Hoa Hao groups wished to continue their fight against the Communists. Finally, some people who at first had welcomed the increasingly authoritarian Diem regime were turning against it.

Realistic TV

GU CHI, Vietnam — Who said television these days isn't realistic? One 25th Inf. Div. soldier would disagree for he sat through the opening rounds of a mortar attack and thought that it was part of the television show he was watching.

Spec. 4 Richard Speitel had just settled down in front of a TV set at a neighboring signal unit when a "rip-roaring" combat movie came on.

About the same time, Viet Cong guerrillas opened fire on the division base camp with mortars and recoilless rifles.

Specialist Speitel, a member of the 1st Bn., 27th Inf., just sat and watched the show.

"I don't want to return to the North until the war is over," he explained. "Suddenly, I realized we weren't just hearing explosions from the screen. Mortars were landing all around us."

Grabbing his hat and heading out the door, Specialist Speitel raced through a hall of fire in the battalion motor pool area as he was ordered to return to the front.

Furthermore, the young men were forced into the front line. When he heard that the 1st Bn. was moving into the regiment's area he decided to embrace the Great Army Program.

The 25-year-old former NVA draftsman had never been happy with life in the

101st Elements Are Welcomed On Viet Arrival

The command elements of the U. S. Army's 101st Abn. Command, led by Maj. Gen. M. Barsanti, were officially welcomed to Vietnam last week by Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

The Division's colors were presented to Gen. Westmoreland by Gen. Barsanti at a short, festive ceremony following the flight from the United States aboard C-141 aircraft of the U. S. Air Force Military Airlift Command.

Air Force Gen. Howell M. Estes Jr., commander, Military Airlift Command, piloted the aircraft of the command element.

The operation, code named "Eagle Thrust," re-emphasized the combined capabilities of the U. S. forces to employ combat-ready elements into theater of action.

The operation saw the deployment of approximately 10,000 combat troops in the longest and largest aerial deployment in the history of modern warfare.

Surface logistical support for the first involved 18375 ships of the U. S. Navy. The 20,000 tons of cargo transported in Navy ships was primarily heavy equipment and non-combat essentials which will be used for maintenance and base support.

ARVN's Draw VC Blood At Mon Canal in Delta

SAIGON (MACV) — A multi-battalion force from the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN), tearing into three crack Viet Cong battalions which had massed along the O Mon Canal in the Mekong Delta, killed 456 of the enemy in explosive fighting recently.

The battle, which raged along the crucial waterway approximately 100 miles southwest of Saigon, represented a major victory for the ARVN forces. Elements of the 21st ARVN Inf. Div., including the 2nd and 3rd Bns., 31st Regt., the 3rd Bn., 33rd Inf. Regt., and the 5th Cav. Squadron, and elements of the 42nd, 43rd and 44th ARVN Ranger Bns. took part in the action.

The three enemy battalions, identified as the Tay Do, the 32nd, and the U Minh 10, were bloodied heavily in the fighting. The 32nd VC Main Force Bn., designated to control its operational area of Chuong Thien Province, had been avoiding contact since losing 300 killed last February to the ARVN's 21st Div.

The Tay Do Battalion, working out of Can Tho Province, had been operating in scattered, platoon-sized units. It was once considered one of the most active insurgent forces operating in the Delta.

The U Minh 10, operating in Kien Giang Province, had not had contact in force for over a year. It was engaged primarily in small-unit harassing forays.

Enemy units were hell-fired into positions encircling the remnants of the 10th Viet Cong Local Force Bn. and the 35th Viet Cong Bn. The encirclement was slowly and steadily closed through a series of thrusts. A troop of cavalry closed off the fourth side of the trap and then attacked through the circle into the enemy's positions.

At the end of the first day of fighting, the ARVN troops had killed 363 Viet Cong. The largest number of enemy killed by ARVN troops in a one-day single engagement.

On the next day, an estimated 456 Viet Cong were reported as killed and 128 wounded.

'I Will Be Sure Always' Is Foremost in Riggers Mind

BY BILL HARDIN

"Until men grow wings, their jobs set them apart from other soldiers, so does their work. It's a policy of absolute 'Zero Defects' in their work and a pocket of this comparatively small group of men with large responsibilities is assigned here as part of the Infantry Center's Quartermaster Services Division.

Just as the sensitivity of three officers, 121 enlisted men and 16 civilians. The packing of the parachutes is done by the enlisted men, who may be called upon to pack as many as 1,000 parachutes in a day.

No Defects During the 1966 calendar year, they packed 180,000 parachutes, and accomplished this with no known defects. They are a prime example of the effective application of the Zero Defects program.

A rigger's requirements are many, and an above the average man is recruited in order for him to be able to complete the training.

He first must complete airborne training and earn his parachute badge. Then he volunteers to attend the 12-week Parachute Packing, Maintenance and Air Delivery Course at the Airborne Department of the U. S. Army Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.

Upon completion of this course, and assignment to Fort Benning, he works in one specific phase of the operation, and thus his speed and proficiency are greatly increased during his on-the-job training.

T-10 Specialty
The riggers here pack and repack mostly the Army T-10 reserve parachute, and the chutes used by the Airborne Department for training basic airborne students.

They also pack the T-10 main-airborne pack, and numerous other training items, and the B-12 Freeback parachute, which is used by students in tower training.

Each parachute has a life expectancy of 100 jumps. Each parachute has a life expectancy of 100 jumps.

To follow a parachute suspension line, to replacing an entire new panel. Foremost in the mind of the rigger is the last sentence of the Rigger's Pledge: I WILL BE SURE ALWAYS.

From the loading dock, the riggers are taken to the packer who makes the initial inspection. This is a 100 per cent inspection of the chute, and the rigger, if he finds a defect, sends the chute to the chute maintenance unit, where it again is inspected, and the areas to be repaired are plainly marked. It is then sent to the repair section, repaired, and returned to the chute packing unit. It is then packed, and moved to a storage and issue point.

When a parachute comes to the parachute maintenance unit, and has been marked for repair, it is then turned over to one of the civilians. They are called upon to do anything from making

Benning's 1967: War, Wayne, LBJ, Stripes...

BY LARRY MAHONEY

Throughout 1967, Fort Benning, Ga., often called "the true home" of the American Army, continued to be the stateside military post most closely associated with the Vietnam war.

The impact of the Asian conflict on Benning, and vice versa, was often in the news, but three stories captured the biggest headlines. All three, like most of the smaller stories, reflected the growing U.S. involvement in Vietnam. These stories were:

—Fort Benning was the first stop of President Lyndon B. Johnson's whirlwind tour of military installations on Veterans Day Week. Accompanied by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the commander-in-chief presented 16 silver stars to Vietnam veterans, praised Fort Benning as "where it all begins" and "the home of the brave," and witnessed Airborne and Ranger training demonstrations.

NCO Class Graduates
—A new kind of trainee, the non-commissioned officer candidate, came to Fort Benning with the September establishment of a 12-week course designed to produce thousands of fire team leaders for Vietnam combat. The first of these young sergeants graduated in November, and the NCO course was recognized as a radical new way to earn rank in the enlisted grades.

—John Wayne and a host of other Hollywood stars came here in July to film "The Green Berets," the first feature-length film about the war in Vietnam. The rolling Benning reservation became South Vietnam's Central Highlands for the California cameramen, and many Fort Benning soldiers will appear as extras (some playing Viet Cong) when Batjac releases the movie next spring.

Gen. Wright Takes Command
Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr. assumed command of the world's largest Infantry center in July, replacing Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, now a lieutenant general and commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C. No stranger to Fort Benning, Gen. Wright led the advance party of the 1st Cav. Div. from here to Vietnam in 1965 and served as assistant division commander of the sky soldiers during their first year of combat there.

RANGER DROPS INTO VICTORY POND

There was a change in Fort Benning's top Walter C. Cannon replacing Sgt. Maj. John F. Whitley as sergeant major of the Infantry Center.

The Infantry Officer Candidate School operated in high gear for most of the year, commissioning 10,013 new second lieutenants, three quarters of them to serve as Infantry platoon leaders in Vietnam. The OCS here, largest in the Army, produced three times as many new officers in 1967 than in the preceding year.

22,692 Paratroopers Graduated
The elite Army Airborne units continued to be in the thick of Vietnam fighting — including the bloody battle of Dak To, costliest of the war — and it was at Fort Benning that 22,692 new paratroopers earned their parachutist badges in 1967.

BB rifles appeared on Fort Benning ranges in 1967 with the introduction and development of a new form of marksmanship training which eliminates aiming and vastly increases the accuracy of a rifleman fighting at close quarters or in the jungle. The new technique was called Quick Kill and has spread from here to training posts throughout the country. It has received high praise from Vietnam.

Ranger training was greatly expanded in 1967 because of the demand for highly-trained small unit leaders in Vietnam. A program to get more noncoms into the elite course was begun.

Fort Benning opened its first NCO Academy in September. It was something of an Army first, too — the only full-accredited NCO academy staffed and run by noncoms only. Training wasn't restricted to humans. Fort Benning sent several hundred war dogs to Vietnam, graduating hundreds of handlers and their canine comrades from the Infantry Center Scout Dog Det.

Infantry Museum Plans Made
The Infantry Museum Association, meeting in July, mapped plans for a multi-million-dollar building to house American and foreign war artifacts.

The Army Training Center continued to turn thousands of civilians into soldiers with its eight weeks of basic combat training. The center graduated 48,982 men in 1966. The ATC had a change in command at the top, with Col. Herbert E. Wolf, former deputy assistant commander of the Infantry School and chief of staff of the 1st Cav. Div., replacing Brig. Gen. Charles M. Mount Jr., who became a major general and chief of staff for the First U. S. Army at Fort Meade, Md.

Chinook helicopters and flying soldiers from Fort Benning brought relief to thousands of Mexican and Texan victims of the natural disaster that swept the Rio Grande Valley with hurricane winds and floorwater in the early fall.

Civilian Spotlight

This week as the beacon makes its sweep over the Infantry Center, the spotlight focuses on Mrs. Thelma W. Hearn, senior position classification specialist in the Position and Pay Management Division, Civilian Personnel Office, USAIC.

Mrs. Hearn was born and reared in Columbus, Ga. She entered Civil Service at Fort Benning in August, 1941. After serving three years as a secretary with the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, she went to work as a position classification specialist and has served in that capacity for 23 years.

THELMA W. HEARN Active in AUSA

Training Courses Mrs. Hearn attended the Advanced Position and Pay Management Training Course at the field office, Office of Civilian Personnel in Dallas, Tex., during June, 1965.

She is an active member of the Association of the U. S. Army.

Mrs. Hearn is a wife, mother, and grandmother in addition to her career with Civil Service.

Her oldest son, Ronald holds a Ph.D. and is a member of the faculty at Auburn University in Alabama. Mrs. Hearn's daughter, Connie Hearn Clark is a wife, mother of three boys and a senior at Auburn University. Her youngest son, Stephen is a senior digital computer systems operator in the Infantry School's Data Systems Office and the father of a son and daughter.

She also is a coin collector and is presently collecting the U. S. coins which were minted before the contact of the silver coins was changed. Mrs. Hearn, in addition, enjoys reading good books and listening to good music, preferably classical and semi-classical. She lists another interest which is browsing in antique shops and occasionally purchasing some piece of antique furniture. The coin collecting and browsing in antique shops are interests which she has acquired since her children grew up and of trips to Atlanta during the left home.

By Lt. Col. Rob White, USAF WITH PRELUDES by Lord Tedder. Published by Little, Brown and Co., N.Y.

Nearly all the military and civilian officers who served in World War II have written their memoirs. The latest is by Lord Tedder, and from the standpoint of historians and biographers, Tedder is a first-class writer. He looks back at history from a distance, and he may be the best to date.

This book is an extension of his apparent philosophy while Royal Air Force Commander and Deputy Supreme Commander under Gen. Eisenhower. Tedder writes: "In the main, I mean to record the course of events as I saw them. I shall be as objective as I feel possible to be, but I have no intention of securing, for any reason, from my own honest opinion as to the merits and demerits of the men about me. I am completely unprejudiced."

Consequently, Tedder makes Montgomery, Cunningham, Alpinke, and other officers and generals, over the years. Conversely, the often criticized Gen. Eisenhower, Bradley, and other officers and the general staff are defended by Tedder.

'What's Happening' Brought Beauty to the Boondocks

With 1967 tapering to close, one of the happy highlights for troops in Vietnam is the recollection of "What's Happening Back Home" — the former Miss America, Miss State and her court of state beauties to the combat zone for 17 patch-riddled days.

"What's Happening," a revue of magic, mimicry, music and dance, was performed for thousands of American

GI GI — Gigi is an impressive young girl brought to Paris and taught the "facts of life" by her grandfather and an aunt, both of whom lived a rich and full life without benefit of matrimony.

Her attempts to persuade the independent-minded Gigi that champagne and jewels are more important than love blossoms when the young girl's blossoms into a glamorous woman who finds that saying "no" to Louis Jourdan enables her in the end to get both security and respect.

A return engagement. Running time: 115 minutes.

EIGHT ON THE LAMB — Henry Dunsdale (Bob Hope), widowed and left with seven children and a dog to raise, is a bank teller who finds ten Golds (Phyllis Diller), his baby-sitter who is paid with IOU's, thinks he should keep it and Dunsdale, realizing it will buy necessities for his family and hasten his marriage to Ellie Shirley (Patricia), wrestles with his conscience.

A return engagement. Running time: 105 minutes.

HOW TO STEAL A MILLION DOLLARS — Eminent philanthropist Griffith, possesses a legendary art collection. Like his father and grandfather before him, Griffith is an art forger of genius.

His beautiful daughter, Audrey Hepburn, who regrets his life of crime but loves him dearly, has given up all hope of trying to reform him. Prominent art dealer, Charles Boyer, puzzled by Griffith's behavior, hires detective Peter O'Toole, a specialist in solving crimes peculiar to the art world, to investigate Griffith.

Bowl, Championship Games: 197th Bde. vs. Bayonet

Indiana Prophet Predicts Doom for USC Trojans

BY PAUL TURK
There's no fanatic like a recent convert, and as just such a convert, it's time to say I'm a Hoosier and pretty proud of it. Especially come Monday when Indiana's classy football team trots onto a Pasadena field for the 1968 Rose Bowl Game, reportedly against some people called the University of Southern California.
Before being drafted, the Saturday afternoon pilgrims to Bloomington to photograph games for my paper, the Columbus, Ind., Evening Republican, was a regular thing, since no one else on the staff was much interested. Space in the press box or along the sidelines was no problem. No congregation except when a ton or so of tacklers and-or ballcarriers arrived in a heap.
I don't remember seeing Indiana win at home during two seasons, come to think of it. Not that they lost every game. Just most of them.

All that changed.
All that, fortunately, has changed. Those of us who suffered, or who watched in the disinterested manner of jaded Romans almost disinterested in the Christians lose to the Lions, 43-0, must tighten our togas and check the Coliseum floor again. For a season, at least, the Christians have been chasing the Lions back into whatever lions use as a dressing room.
The Gladiators are next, Monday afternoon, and everybody is expecting blood on the sand, or grass, as the case may be. Christian (or Hoosier) blood at that.
But not the faithful. We who believe fully expect a tenth miracle from John (J.C.) Pont and the 11 letter-day disciples better known as the "Caroline Kids," Jade Butcher, Harry Gonso, Terry Cole, Jon Isenbarger and friends.

Speaking not as a learned student of college football, but as area Prophet for the Indiana miracle department, it becomes an article of faith that the Gladiators (USC's Trojans), will have no more good fortune than did the Lions all season.
Pagan unbelievers will be made believers Monday, Indiana by 2.
It's the first Rose Bowl trip for Indiana, the last Big Ten school to get a holiday trip to the west coast. In recent years, the Western teams have been the stronger, though the Big Ten still has a big advantage in terms of number of games won. USC's Trojans are rated the top college team, the nation, and most look on them to trample poor Indiana.
Cliffhanger Ball

For those who believe, this cannot and will not happen. Playing cliffhanger ball as they did all season, squeaking through the easy ones as well as the hard ones is the stuff which makes fandom kin to martyrdom.
The hardest one comes Monday, and we of the faith expect martyrdom again. At least until the closing moments of the game, come miracle time, when whoever is Allah to football will deliver all (all of Indiana) from the fiery pit of embarrassing defeat.
Repent, ye of Southern California, make way and join the faithful, for ye too, shall be believers by Monday night, Indiana by 2.

Two Articles Feature Post In New Issues

Two shooting sport magazines have articles concerning Fort Benning in their January issues.
For readers, the monthly publication "Guns & Ammo" has a story entitled "G. I. Handloads" by A. Q. Smith which deals with reloading centerfire match ammunition at the Marksmanship Training Unit here.
The other magazine, "Guns and Hunting" - also a monthly - has a story by handgunning champion Stephen Forster who was an aviator this year for the U.S. International Championships, which were the final tryouts for the Pan American Games.
Also in this issue of "Guns and Hunting" is an editorial concerning the Army's cancellation of participation in the National Rifle and Pistol Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio in 1968.

THE FORUM

BY MIKE MCNUALLY

"This is the year that was" the lead line to a familiar long states. As 1967 comes to an end, then, the signs that go with it will be coming from those gentlemen who make their living by predicting the outcome of forthcoming sporting events. The reason is, of course, that this was the year that the Underdog Revolution took form, continually botching up the sporting world, and predictions soon became something not to be taken too seriously.

We can look for more of the same in 1968. I think. Which means that the only safe place for a team to be before a season begins is at the bottom of the forecasters' lists. Because of this — or possibly despite it — looking ahead takes more than a little doing. An amateur predictor loves a challenge, though, so here goes a look at what I think will happen sports-wise in the coming year.

On New Year's Day the bowl victors will be Indiana, Oklahoma and Wyoming, all by close scores. After losing to Dallas for the NFL championship on December 31, the Green Bay Packers will give us a repeat of last year and walk home from the Super Bowl $50,000 richer per man.

UCLA, despite a brilliant scoring performance from Lew Alcindor, will finally lose a basketball game in 1968; however, the Bruins will go on to win the NCAA basketball championship. Leading the collegiate all-American basketball team will be Alcindor, Don May of Dayton and Pete Maravich of LSU. On the pro scene it will be the Boston Celtics returning to the king's chair in the National Basketball Association.

Come springtime, observers will be looking to Boston and a repeat of 1967 on the baseball diamond. However, Carl Yastrzemski, after spending the off-season at the banquet table (instead of conditioning, as he did prior to the 1967 season), and the Red Sox won't have the same hustle that put them at the top this year. I look for Baltimore, followed closely by Chicago and Cleveland, to win the American League race. The National League honors will once again go to St. Louis, after a battle with the Chicago Cubs, Atlanta, and Pittsburgh for the title. Baltimore will be the world champions after defeating the Cardinals in the seventh game of the World Series. Al Davis of the Cleveland Indians will be named manager of the year and Frank Robinson of Baltimore will become player of the year.

Order will return to the world of college football in 1968 and the upset won't be common. Purdue, with Leroy Keyes doing everything and Mike Phipps throwing touchdown passes by the number one team in the land. Notre Dame will be a close second, Alabama and USC will tie for third; the remainder of the top ten should be (1) North Carolina State, (6) Texas, (7) Nebraska, (8) Indiana, (9) Penn State, (10) Auburn.

The Heisman Trophy winner will be Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame; Keyes, O. J. Simpson of USC, and Brian Dawkins of Yale will be strong contenders for the prize. The all-American backfield will feature Hanratty at quarterback, Keyes and Chris Gilbert for Texas the halfbacks, and Simpson at fullback. Florida State University will be the top offensive team in the country.

Professional football will find the Dallas Cowboys at the top, beating Los Angeles for the NFL championship and Houston in the Super Bowl. Coach of the year will be Otto Graham of the Washington Redskins. Player of the year: Bob Hayes of Dallas.

My predicting of college games this year was approximately 65 per cent — a rather low average, indeed. Here's hoping that 1968 brings better luck not only to me, but to everyone, including Larry Mahoney. Happy New Year.

Sullivan Award

Paratrooper Is Nominee For Top Amateur Prize

HQ. FT. BRAGG — A Fort Bragg paratrooper assigned to the 82nd Air Div. Signal Bn. was nominated last week by the Amateur Athletic Union of New York for the nation's top amateur athletic prize, the Sullivan Award.

Sgt. James R. Wallington, a light welterweight boxer from Philadelphia, Penna., will be competing with the nation's top athletes for the coveted award presented annually to the country's top athlete.

Wallington, whose boxing career began as recently as 1964, made his first appearance on the national amateur boxing scene when he returned from combat duty in Vietnam and won the 1966 national championship with less than one month's training.

The tall, slim boxer said, "it all started when a friend, Spec. 3 Herbert Smith, former All-Army champion, introduced me to boxing. He trained and coached me so well I was Okinawa champ within two months."

Hard Panching

By February 1965, the hard-punching Army sergeant had fought throughout the Orient and was the U. S. Army Pacific champion.

As a champ, Wallington returned to the U. S. on special orders, entered and won the All-Army and Inter-Service Championships.

Returning to the 172d Abn. Bde., which was then in Vietnam, Wallington fought as a professional soldier for one year. He was then reassigned to the 82nd Abn. Div. for Ft. Bragg.

Since winning the 1966 national championship, the determined contestant has won numerous national and international competitions.

With the National Boxing Team, he was undefeated in the European tour. In June of 1967 he won the World U. S. Armed Forces. A month later, he won the Pan American Trials and was selected to represent the U. S. A. in the 1967 Pan American Games at Winnipeg, Canada.

Gold Medal Winner

As a member of the U.S.A. Pan American Team, he was undefeated in the Pan American Games and received a Gold Medal for the U. S.

As a relative new-comer to boxing, the 28-year-old light welterweight has lost only two decisions while racking up 50 victories.

One of his back-bags came at the hands of a Russian in the finals of the Little Olympics in Mexico City this year.

October when he ran "out of gas" at the high altitude.

Jim says he plans to better accclimate himself next year and hopes to reverse the decision.

Ask how much your loan will cost and HFC will tell you—before you borrow

Before you make a purchase, you naturally want to know the price. The same should be true when you borrow money. When you come to Household Finance, HFC will tell you in advance what your loan will cost. The HFC Manager will answer any questions you have to make sure you understand everything about your loan.

Remember, no matter what your need, wherever you're stationed, there's an HFC office nearby, where you can get prompt, understanding money help.

Every year, thousands of servicemen borrow confidently from Household, because they like doing business with people who know their business. If you need a loan, see HFC. You're always welcome.

CROSS-COUNTRY RIDE GOES SMOOTHLY

The ride to King's Pond was considered surprisingly well, considering a such a large group of riders was covering terrain that many had not

SUE HILLMAN PREPARES FOR RIDE Adjusts Cheyenne Rolloed Saddle

Jr. Hunt Club Makes Two-Day Trail Ride

The mist was thick, the earth damp, and the early morning cold saddled up their mounts. Nineteen girls, and their horses, some with exotic names like "Nite-Gleek-Rump," or "The Keeper," and some with names like "Whiskey" and "Sorry Horse" made final preparations for a two-day trail ride across Benning.

They were brushing, combing, and walking their mounts to warm them up for the ride which took them from the Hunt Club on past Martin Army Hospital along Santa Fe Road to their first check point about a mile and a half from the start.

Even those the single file moved parallel to the Division Road until it reached Eighth Division Road which it followed for a short distance before cutting cross country to intersect Victory Drive and Babbitt Road.

Along Babbitt and Hour-glass Roads, the riders moved to their final destination, King's Pond, where they prepared supper, set around the camp fire, and bedded down for the night.

Besides food and bedding, the girls took what young girls can be expected to take on an outing — transistor radios, portable record player, and, of course, pocket books.

Some rode English style, complete with English riding boots and caps, others decided to rough it western style, jeans and western hats.

Many girls wore their own horses, and take pride in grooming them. None of the riders looked inexperienced. Each had complete control of her horse.

traversed before; that on roadways had to be crossed, and the threat of changing weather was everpresent. These problems were minimized by the rain — rain training and experience at Fort Benning Hunt Club. The reconnaissance of trails and coordination with the Provost Marshal and Range Control personnel was excellent.

Additionally, the friendliness and patience displayed by the motorists and the Army truck drivers while the young riders were crossing Fort Benning's roadways gave everyone the feeling of being welcomed to the area.

Riding Safety
Insofar as riding safety was concerned the ride was almost without incident. This was due in part to the use of riders as advance scouts and a Moccasin standoff was established. Everyone wished each other a Merry Christmas as the riders continued their soggy retreat to the Hunt Club.

Trail riding is but one of the many activities of the Fort Benning Hunt Club. Both privately owned and mounts available for rental purposes are maintained by the club.

Lessons for Beginners
Private and group lessons for beginners and intermediate riders, taught by Sergeants (ret.) James R. Williams and John L. Colbert, may be arranged.

Fort Benning has a Pony Club recognized by the United States Pony Clubs for those interested in competition in dressage, stadium jumping, show and many other events.

Full information about riding facilities and activities may be obtained by contacting Sergeant (ret.) Leonard Martin at the club on Marne Road or telephone 545-3000.

At another time on the return trip the Junior Hunt Club riders camped in a wooded hillside into the 43rd Page area at an extended trot in a beautiful column of two's. (The only time this formation was really achieved.)

A soldier outside his barracks sounded the alarm, "They're being invaded by the cavalry!" At which time his friends came pouring out of the building ready to protect all government property in view.

It was soon discovered that the reported cavalry was not Phil Sheridan but the Junior Hunt Club (a friendly force) and a Moccasin standoff was established. Everyone wished each other a Merry Christmas as the riders continued their soggy retreat to the Hunt Club.

Incentive Pays

Awards Presented to 24 For Work Performance

Twenty-four Fort Benning personnel in six sections were presented incentive awards for achievement in 1967. Presently by Col. C. W. Youngman, director of logistics, in the Services Sec. Five employees were given cash awards for adopted suggestions improving working efficiency. They were Sgt. George L. Freeman, $50;

Clyde M. Osterman, $50; James M. Porter, $25 and Robert J. White, $75. Diane H. Strud, $50, Matthew B. Carlisle, $15, and Walter M. Dawkins, $15. Mary J. Clark was given an outstanding rating and a quality step increase of $160 annually. Roy T. Johnson was presented a sustained superior performance award of $200. He and Brady Sims, and Percy Hill who are retiring from Civil Service, received certificates of achievement. In Supply Control and Storage Sec. three individuals were given outstanding ratings. They were Mrs. Margalee B. Brannon, Clyde L. Powell, and Sam Collier. A quality step increase of $115 annually went to William J. Penkohl who was given $150 for sustained superior performance, and John A. Davidson received $40 for an adopted suggestion. Three Maint. Sec. employees received cash awards. Elizabeth C. McDaniel was given an outstanding rating and a $200 sustained superior performance award, Robert M. Lin-

Spec. 5 Awarded $125 For Form Revision Idea

Spec. 5 Daniel Phelps, 7th Student Bn., TSB, received an award of $125 for an adopted suggestion proposing the revision of Form Revision 1923. The form previously used had only one block for issuance and one for turn-in, providing an inefficient, time-consuming means of issuing equipment and clothing. The revised form has separate blocks for issue and turn-in date. Adoption of this suggestion has provided a more efficient, time-saving form, and resulted in an estimated annual savings in manhours of $2,963.50.

4-PHASE WAR

During his recent speech at the National Press Club Gen. William C. Westmoreland detailed the specifics of what he called the "four distinct phases (of) our common plan with the Vietnamese."

In Phase I, completed by the middle of 1966, he said, "we came to the aid of South Vietnam, prevented its collapse under the massive Communist threat, built up our bases and began to deploy our forces." During this phase, Gen. Westmoreland said, U.S. Forces planned and did the following:

- Built ports, airfields, and supply and maintenance areas.
- Set up a 10,000-mile-long supply pipeline.
- Constructed an extensive communication system.
- Brought in 400,000 men and several thousand aircraft.

Deployed troops throughout South Vietnam. Learned to work alongside the Vietnamese Army while encouraging development of a representative government.

Equipped and revitalized the Vietnamese Armed Forces.

Expanded the Armed Forces in South Vietnam in quantitative terms.

Defended South Vietnam against defeat and against being cut in half.

Set up an intelligence system for this new type of war.

Limited infiltration.

Developed our confidence that we could operate successfully in the environment of Southeast Asia.

PHASE TWO

In Phase II, which the MACV commander said will be completed "by the end of this year," U.S. military forces "continued the pattern and did the following:":

Drove the enemy divisions back to sanctuary or into hiding.

Trained, expanded and improved the quality of the Vietnamese Armed Forces.

Assisted Free World Forces of the Pacific area to join the battle against Communist aggression.

Raised enemy losses beyond his input capability.

Encouraged combined U.S.-Vietnamese operations.

Completed troop rotations within South Vietnam.

Encouraged enemy defection and resettlement.

Discovered and foiled the enemy's battle plans before they could be executed.

Unified the U.S. pacification assistance effort for better management of wide spread resources.

PHASE THREE

In Phase III, "in 1968," Gen. Westmoreland said, "we intend to do the following:":

Help the Vietnamese Armed Forces to continue improving their effectiveness.

Decrease our advisors in training centers and other places where the professional competence of Vietnamese officers makes this possible.

Increase our advisory effort with the younger brothers of the Vietnamese Army: the Regional Forces and Popular Forces.

Use U.S. and Free World forces to destroy North Vietnamese forays while we assist the Vietnamese to reorganize for territorial security.

Provide the new military equipment to revitalize the Vietnamese Army, and prepare it to take on an ever-increasing share of the war.

Continue pressure on North to prevent rebuilding and to make infiltration more costly.

Turn a major share of front line IMLZ defense over to the Vietnamese Army. Increase U.S. support in the high and populated Delta.

Help the Government of Vietnam single out and destroy the Communist-South Government.

Help the new Vietnamese government to respond to popular aspirations, and to reduce and eliminate corruption.

Open more roads and canals.

Continue to improve the Vietnamese economy and standard of living.

PHASE FOUR

Phase IV—"the final phase"—Gen. Westmoreland said, "will see the conclusion of our plan to weaken the enemy and strengthen our friends until we become progressively superior." He gave no specific time frame for completion of this phase, but did say that "we have come a long way," and that "we have reached an un-

New Chopper Is Given First Public Flight

The Army's newest and most advanced combat helicopter, the AH-56A Cheyenne, demonstrated its speed, versatility and maneuverability recently during its first public flight at Van Nuys, Calif.

Observers at the demonstration included ranking military and U.S. Government officials, representatives of the prime contractor, Lockheed-California Co., and some 800 sub-contractors who helped build the technologically advanced rotorcraft.

Termed a compound helicopter, the Cheyenne has rotor blades as well as stub wings and a push-propeller. The rotors provide conventional helicopter performance, and in conjunction with the stub wings and pusher prop permit level flight at speeds of more than 250 m.p.h.

The Cheyenne is the first Army aircraft to be designed and built as an integrated aerial vehicle—armament, avionics—fire control gunship and coincidentally the first compound helicopter to be developed by any of the U.S. military forces.

Although no weapons were carried in the flight, the versatile craft, when fully equipped, will be capable of firing 500 rounds of grenades, rockets and missiles. The swiveling belly turret can mount a 20 mm automatic gun. Both the pilot and gunner are protected by armor plating.

The extra beds will raise the capacity of the Home to around 400, whereas it is now operating at about 75 beds and dollar project designed to relieve severe overcrowding in the Veterans Home.

Fele Wheeler, director of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said, "I am glad to see this new building named for such a distinguished Georgian as Vinson... a man to whom we are all very grateful for his tireless efforts in behalf of Georgia's veterans."

We are expecting a large crowd on hand for the ceremonies. This event will mark one of the most important steps yet in this Department's plans to provide the best hospital and medical care for Georgia's veterans."

Vietnam MARS Section Phones Homes in States

From Army Times (evacuation unit are stationed at Soc Trang. As a civilian in Ekhart, Ind., Loney was a licensed citizen's band radio operator and worked at a radio repair store. "We got our license here in 1965," Loney said, "but it's only since I came that we've operated 24 hours a day."

Any man at Soc Trang can make a call at any time, says Loney. He telephones the station and tells the operator where he wants to call in the U.S. and where he can be reached when the call is received.

The most unusual call we had was between two brothers in one of the helicopter companies here and their mother and dad in the States," Loney said. "Each was on an individual phone."

The Officers' Wives' Club Ladies' Golf Association combined a day of golf with an informal Christmas party, December 20, at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Party hostesses were Lillie Huff and Arlene Webb. Ranger prizes and weekly comfort prizes were also awarded.

Third U.S. Army has over 18,000 pieces of equipment and 4 typewriters to missile systems that must be maintained.

When the end begins to come into view," he said "the Phase IV happening as follows:":

The Communist infrastructure will be cut up and near collapse. The Vietnamese government will prove its stability, and the Vietnamese Army will show that it can handle Viet Cong.

The military physical assets, bases and ports, will be progressively turned over to the Vietnamese. The Vietnam will take charge of the first step in the development of the community of Southeast Asia.

War Veterans Home Getting New Building

Governor Lester Maddox will lead a groundbreaking ceremony for a new 150 bed building at the Georgia veterans home at Milledgeville on Wednesday at 10 a.m.

Meanwhile, the Georgia Veterans Service Board has voted unanimously to name the new building in honor of former Congressman Carl Vinson of Milledgeville.

Construction is to start immediately on the $70 thousand project designed to relieve severe overcrowding in the Veterans Home.

Fele Wheeler, director of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said, "I am glad to see this new building named for such a distinguished Georgian as Vinson... a man to whom we are all very grateful for his tireless efforts in behalf of Georgia's veterans."

We are expecting a large crowd on hand for the ceremonies. This event will mark one of the most important steps yet in this Department's plans to provide the best hospital and medical care for Georgia's veterans."

BUY WHERE YOU WORK

Approximately 84 per cent of our fighting men in Viet Nam are buying Savings Bonds regularly. Are you best hospital and medical care for Georgia's veterans."

Cough may be warning of chronic lung disease

That "cigarette cough" may be just an annoyance, but could be the first step on the way to chronic lung disease? To many Americans now, that idea is laughable. But in 1955, more than 2 million Americans died of chronic lung disease. And in the past few years, respiratory ailments have become a leading cause of death in this country.

Respiratory ailments make up the second largest group of workers under 65 receiving Social Security disability pensions.

Enlarged Lungs

In emphysema, the lungs become enlarged — like a rubber ball — and lose their elasticity — and less efficient in removing oxygen from the air. The condition is becoming increasingly common in this country, and the past few years indicates that the rise is related to some change in our environment or way of life.

Epidemiological evidence has led many scientists to suspect smoking and air pollution, but proof has been hard to come by. The symptoms of chronic bronchitis and of the early stages of emphysema are so similar that even specialists cannot always tell the two conditions apart. Sometimes the diagnosis of emphysema is made with certainty until the patient dies and an autopsy is performed.

The National Society for Medical Research explains how a complicated disease such as emphysema starts and progresses — not how to prevent and treat it — unless they are able to study the disease in animals.

Horses and cow pneumonia suffer from what veterinarians call emphysema, but that is more like chronic bronchitis in humans. Until recently, investigators had no experimental animal model of the disease. But, pigs, dogs, sheep and Assateague ponies are now helping in the fight against this crippling disease.

Dr. Elmer Glauser at Temple University in Philadelphia found that pig-born piglets breathing air low in oxygen and high in carbon dioxide developed a lung condition closely resembling human emphysema. Their lungs had greatly expanded and developed a thin condition that was ruptured, thinned and degenerating.

Investigators at the Veterans Hospital in Orange, N. J., reported that dogs inhaling cigarette smoke and "cigarette pneumonia" developed emphysema. Two other groups of investigators also produced emphysema in dogs exposed to cigarette smoke.

Assateague Ponies

Researchers from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases are studying the famed Assateague ponies of Eastern Maryland. Some of the ponies have equine influenza, which causes lung damage and shortness of breath similar to the human emphysema. The ponies are easier to study than full-size horses, and are an inbred group, and the annual roundups make it convenient to observe them.

Smoking and air pollution are not the only suspected factors; viruses may also play a role in emphysema. At the Institute's Rocky Mountain Laboratory in Montana, scientists have shown that chronic pneumonitis in sheep, a condition that mimics symptoms of emphysema in humans, can be transmitted from one sheep to another and is caused by a virus-like organism.

The research findings — and others like them — are just the beginning of a search for the cause, prevention and cure of emphysema. They present, however, the independence of the battle.

Egg Nog Party Honors Wives At Club Event

The Geographical Wives Club celebrated Christmas with an egg nog party recently at the Main Officers' Club.

New members welcomed were Mrs. Jerry Grace, Mrs. Carl Morwitz and Mrs. Fred Darden.

Farwell was said to Mrs. Donald Drumm.

A holiday floral centerpiece was awarded to Mrs. Morwitz as the doorniece.
