Assure survivor income

You are on your last assignment before you change from military uniform to civilian clothes and add your name to the retired list. It's going to be pretty nice to either sit back and relax, or start that second career and receive your retirement check every month.

But remember, your retired pay stops when you die, it is not passed on to your family.

For this reason, there is a voluntary survivorship plan which can provide an income for your widow and children.

Called the Retirement Serviceman's Family Protection Plan (RSFPP), its purpose is to supplement personal insurance programs. It is a program for everyone, but especially for a serviceman who, for one reason or another, was not a survivor officer. Plan now for retirement (AFNB) able to start a commercial insurance program during his twenties.

Under the plan the retired serviceman's eligible survivors will receive a monthly check until eligibility ceases.

The plan applies only to the family of the retired serviceman and there is no coverage until retirement. Families of active duty personnel are covered by other programs.

If you decide to enroll in the plan, you must do so before you complete 18 years' service for pay purposes—three years before the first day on which you will be entitled to receive retired pay.

If you are a bachelor, investigate the program anyway as situations can change before you retire.

ATC To Kick Off 3rd Year Today

The United States Army Training Center, Infantry Center, today starts its third year of turning civilians into competent, well-trained soldiers ready to share in the defense of their country. Activated Sept. 15, 1965, under command of Col. Bob E. Edwards, the Training Center consisted of 10 battalions in two brigades. Early in the spring of 1966, the Training Center was expanded to three brigades and 31 training companies. The current phase out program of one brigade headquarters and two battalions is returning the Training Center to its original posture.

Kick-off Set
A kick-off for the Fort Benning Campaign will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in the Marshall Auditorium. Attendance will be all major units.

Visit

depart from Lawson Army Airfield.
Following graduation from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., his first assignment was here at Fort Benning with the 29th Inf. Regt. While here he attended the Infantry School, graduating in 1937.

A former commanding general of the 1st Cav. Div., Gen. Woolnough had his first duty with the "Cav" while in the 1st Cav. Div. in 1936. He was assigned as assistant chief of staff for the unit and saw combat during the early days of the Korean conflict. As a major general, he returned to the 1st Cav as its commanding general in July of 1945.

Married to the former Mary Agnes Porter of Waycross, Ga., General and Mrs. Woolnough have two sons, a daughter and seven grandchildren.

considerers, project officers, team captains and key men who will serve in the effort.

During the meeting, Col. Sherrard will describe the organization and campaign at Fort Benning, and Illyes for the civilian community will describe the bi-city campaign. Adding his support to the campaign, Gen. Wright will attend and speak at the kick-off meeting.

This year's goal exceeds the $97,000 net contribution which went to the civilian community organization last year from the post.

Prior to the kick-off meeting on Tuesday morning, Gen. Wright, Col. Sherrard and the commanders of the major units will be at Columbus Monday afternoon, to attend a briefing at CG headquarters, which will be followed by a tour of several major United Givers agencies, including the Cerebral Palsy Center, USO and The South Columbus Boys' Club.

Employees Being Contacted
Col. Sherrard noted that civilian employees are being contacted on post since this is the type of campaign where the opportunity to contribute is afforded the individual at his place of employment, rather than at home.

Col. Sherrard further stated that all contributions here will be forwarded to the downtown organization and contributed toward the $140,000 goal. He stressed that separate records and tally sheets for contributions are being maintained to assure this.

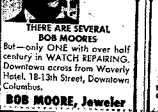

When asked what the "fair share" would be, Col. Sherrard commented that one half of one day's pay has been determined as an individual's "fair share."

From the Publisher...

To the Staff of The Bayonet

I want to convey to you the appreciation of this organization for the recognition given The Bayonet on its 25th anniversary.

The anniversary luncheon given at Fort Benning honored all those who have contributed, through these 25 years, both at Fort Benning and on these newspapers, toward the production of The Bayonet.

The anniversary luncheon was, to my way of thinking, a fitting tribute to the Bayonet staff members of today and yesterday. For it was here that we, years ago, dedicated ourselves to the publication of this military newspaper, and it is here that it has remained throughout the years—in the hearts of the staff members who have produced The Bayonet.

To every GI who has passed through Fort Benning, whether he now be stationed in the far corners of the world, or whether he be in mufti, The Bayonet has a meaning. It is his, the GI's, journal and I think it is thought that we are proudest of.

Again, I want to express our appreciation, and to recommit ourselves to a continuation of our best efforts toward the publishing of a military newspaper which will be, in the eyes of the GI, his newspaper, his source of news at Benning regarding all that Fort Benning is—in its many activities, successes and achievements. Best regards to your entire staff.

Most sincerely yours,
Maynard R. Ashworth

Judge Says

'Security' notes can result in legal charges if cashed

During the past week, a number of civil warrants have been received in the Staff Judge Advocate Section charging members of this command with making worthless checks. Upon interviewing the individuals concerned, the same story usually unfolds.

"Mr. X knew that I did not have enough money in the bank to cover this check. This check was given merely as 'security' for a pre-existing debt that I owed him. I did not know that Mr. X would deposit the check into banking channels for collection."

Many people could tell the holder's word versus what the intent of the parties were. The holder may immediately deposit the check for collection. If it is returned dishonored, he may possibly decide to notify either the military authorities or to swear out a criminal warrant charging the soldier with making a worthless check. If the holder believes the serviceman, the serviceman may find himself spending a maximum sentence of 18 months at the local Public Works Camp.

In order to save yourself the grief of facing a possible criminal charge, that which should be done in cases where a prospective creditor requires "security" for a debt is to execute a promissory note in his favor, rather than a check. Form promissory notes may be obtained from practically every type of stationery store. Furthermore, your Soldier's Advocate stands ready to advise you as to the legal implications of executing a promissory note prior to its actual execution.

From the Commander...

To the Staff of The Bayonet

Congratulations to the staff of the BAYONET on the occasion of the 25th birthday of the newspaper.

Since September of 1942, the BAYONET has served the unofficial GI of Fort Benning, recording an accurate history of the post from the rapid build-up of World War II, through the Korean conflict, to the accomplishments of the modern Army in Vietnam. With its wide distribution, it has kept the Infantry soldier throughout the world informed of the progress of the United States Army Infantry Center and, at the same time, has brought news and features to dependents and civilian employees.

The professional excellence of the BAYONET is attested to by the many personal accolades it has received from professional newsmen.

As the BAYONET enters its 26th year, I wish to extend to those responsible for its publication my personal appreciation for a job well done and best wishes for continued success.

Professional care is needed for proper cleaning of teeth

For MOST persons, it is virtually impossible to keep the teeth clean by brushing alone. Over a period of time, stains and calculus (tartar) will accumulate. Consequently, it frequently becomes necessary for professional cleaning of the teeth, by either a dentist or a dental hygienist.

Actually, periodic cleaning is important for both health and appearance. The removal of stains and deposits makes the smile more attractive and insures the health of the gums and bone surrounding the teeth.

Calculus is a hard, stony material. It forms where the crowns of the teeth and the gums meet, as well as under the gums. It is composed of bacteria, minerals from the saliva and other substances normally found in the mouth. Once it has formed, it can be removed only with the aid of special instruments. The amount that forms varies from person to person. Conscientious brushing slows its deposition but cannot entirely prevent its formation. If calculus is not removed, it collects more bacteria. This bacteria causes irritation and eventually infection of the gums which recede or strike away from the teeth. As the disease progresses, not only are the gums destroyed but the underlying bone as well. Ultimately, if this disease is unchecked, the teeth may loosen and removal become necessary.

The Chaplain Speaks

Prayer is means of relief of tensions and problems

By Chaplain (Col.) Holland Hope A Frenchman, as early as 1830 said, "The American is so restless that he has invented a rocking chair in which he can move while sitting." While the rocking chair has almost vanished from our homes, the tensions to which we are susceptible remain. However, in prayer we can rise above these tensions and find the peace we need.

It is reported that the great American, Oliver Wendell Holmes, when asked by a friend why he went to church every Sunday answered, "A plant called peace grows in my heart and in church every Sunday I water that plant."

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels Many Talents Keep Mrs. DeFrehn Busy Mrs. John DeFrehn is one of a whole family of fabulous DeFrehns. The center of attention to two sons and her husband, who is the first sergeant of the 2nd Co., 2nd Stn. Bn., of The Infantry School, Student Brigade, she encourages all the members of her family to develop their own unusual talents.

Sky diving, painting, wood work, hunting, stunt acting, leather work, ceramics, sewing and flower arranging are all on their list of talents. Mrs. DeFrehn herself enjoys arranging flowers, working with ceramics, sewing, cooking and making place for her family.

Home Shows Talents The DeFrehns' home shows the family's talents. In the den hang the skins of two animals that Sgt. DeFrehn "bagged" on some of his hunting trips in Alaska, a huge black bear and a wolverine. Nearby hangs a leather vest, almost level with the tail, that he made. The living room shows Mrs. DeFrehn's flowers and a California landscape painted by her son Jay's wife Frances. A shelf of Mrs. DeFrehn's ceramics is in their dining room.

Later when World War II began, Sgt. DeFrehn joined the Army. They have been stationed in Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Fort Riley, Kansas, Germany, Fort Benning and Fort Wainwright, Alaska. Sgt. DeFrehn also has had tours at Fort Polk, La., in the Philippines during World War II, and with the first occupational troops in Japan after World War II. The DeFrehns are now making long range plans for their future which include a new home on forty acres of land that they own in Idaho. There they hope to enjoy hunting, fishing, traveling and lots more of their many projects.

The Bayonet Celebrates

Front Page of First Issue, 1942

Oldest Paper of Its Kind Has Never Missed Issue

Stories Featured in the First Issue Included:

"Break Through Regiment is Here": The 117th Inf. of the 30th Div. arrived to replace the 151st Inf. as demonstration troops for the school, a job which is now performed by the 197th Ede.

"Cosmopolitan Benning is Crossroads of Army": Things have not changed, the story states "if you stay at Fort Benning long enough you'll see everybody you know in the service."

"Chief Warrant Officer Stanford Made Major": "One of the Army's greatest sprinters" back in the "20s" and an Olympic performer, Stanford was commissioned a major after 26 years of service.

"Bulletin": All civilians entering the Fort Benning reservation were called upon to present passes effective Thursday, Sept. 24, 1942.

"Laff Of The Week": The story of a sergeant who, during a training exercise, camouflaged his foxhole so well that he couldn't find it again "until an organized search by his squad located it for him."

This issue of the Fort Benning Bayonet marks an all important milestone in the history of the newspaper, known as the oldest civilian enterprise military publication in the country.

The Bayonet began its military career 25 years ago, on Sept. 17, 1942, and has served constantly for the past quarter of a century as the "voice" of Fort Benning.

Maynard R. Ashworth, president and publisher of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, was a captain stationed here during the early stage of WWII when he was given the task of creating a newspaper on post.

A prize of $25 was offered for the name submitted which would be chosen as the name of the publication, and two post soldiers, Lt. Henry T. Gayley and Cpl. James A. Wynne came up with the title "Bayonet", and split the prize. Gayley also designed the mast head which has been maintained over the years.

Like any paper, The Bayonet has had its problems over the years, but each problem faced by the paper has been met, and overcome, and never in the 25-year history of the paper has an issue failed to come off the press, a record which is the envy of many papers in the country.

PRESSES STOP

Although the Columbus papers who print The Bayonet were idle from six to eight weeks in 1948, publication continued with a commercial printing firm in Columbus who published the weekly editions.

The Bayonet began with a regular eight column format, and continued this style until after the war. In 1946, the smaller 6 column tabloid size was adopted, and has prevailed ever since.

The paper averaged 18 pages at the close of the war, and has constantly grown to its present average of more than three dozen pages in this issue.

With a circulation of 18,000, the paper is proud to boast of a readership of more than 100,000. Distribution is made without charge all over the post, to troop units, to dependents, quarters, and in addition, the publication is delivered along with the daily paper in all residential areas which are predominately occupied by military families.

Throughout the years the paper has achieved many honors, including awards from the Press Services.

PUBLICATION DAY CHANGE

Published on Thursday for many years, seven years ago in the 18th anniversary issue, an announcement was made that the paper would change its date of publication to Friday. The change was hailed as another "step forward in keeping The Bayonet, the most effective newspaper published anywhere for military members and their dependents."

In a letter to Maynard R. Ashworth, on whose presses the paper is printed, and in whose newspaper offices much of the work on the paper is done, Fort Benning's commanding general, John M. Wright Jr. sent warmest congratulations both to Ashworth and to The Bayonet staff.

Gen. Wright noted that The Bayonet has become an influential force in the lives of the hundreds of thousands of soldiers who have served at Fort Benning. "It not only fulfilled a definite information need at this post,

Officials Say

Airline Standbys Can Avoid Bumps

ATLANTA — "Much confusion exists among military standby travelers and, as a result, many servicemen are spending needless hours at airports," says Clarence E. Moses, director of military sales for Atlanta-headquartered Southern Airways.

"The major misunderstanding confronting the standby serviceman results from flights making intermediate stops," says Moses. "Too many servicemen have been led to believe that if they fly other than non-stop to their destination they are likely to be 'bumped' en route."

Moses points out that if the airline clears the military standby passenger through the intermediate stop to a given destination, he will not be removed enroute — even though the airline might have full-fare paying passengers available for the service-ther-man's seat at some enroute stop. "Of course," says Moses, "if a standby can be pulled off a flight at an intermediate point if he has not been cleared beyond this point in many cases, a serviceman can be rerouted to his destination by the airline in the city of departure."

Failure to understand this provision causes many military standbys to completely disregard flights with intermediate stops. As a result, the standby may wait several hours for a non-stop flight on which he still has no assurance of getting a seat.

Adding the time delay to the cost of airport meals, a serviceman undergoes inconvenience, oftentimes unnecessary had he inquired about other than non-stop flights.

Youth Fare Plan
Another benefit often overlooked by servicemen, is available for the service-

WEST POINT, N. Y. — Cadet Neil A. McLean, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Neil A. McLean Jr., of 144-D Arrowhead Road, Fort Benning, has been appointed a Cadet Captain at the U. S. Military Academy and will serve as company commander until December.

Bama City 'Adopts' Aviation Units

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney
The "flying soldiers" of the 271st Avn. Co. and the 261st Trans. Corps Det. here expressed strong appreciations after the city of Eufaula, Ala., adopted the new organization.

The Eufaula City Council unanimously voted to officially "adopt" the units, and along a block above the local civic clubs.
Forty miles south of Fort Benning, Eufaula is built along a bluff above the Chatahoochee River. It is a city of antebellum homes and tree-shaded streets, with a touch of the lower South's Spanish moss and palmettoes. Indian country until 1826

(Eufaula is corrupt Indian for beech tree), the city now has nearly 10,000 residents and is a trading center for agricultural market for Barbour County and other parts of the Alabama "Wiregrass" region.
Commander Prakes of the 271st Avn. Co. said, "I am pleased that the public-spirited people of Eufaula have taken this interest in their armed forces in general and the 271st Avn. Co. in particular."
"The adoption," he added, "has given myself and the soldiers of this unit a sense of belonging. It proves that they adopt a military unit someone care. It is wonderful that Eufaula would understand such a large project as a fight for freedom goes on." We will make you proud."
The 271st Avn. Co. (Medium Helicopter) has the mission of providing logistical and tactical airlift for the movement of troops and supplies.
It flies the new CH-53 Chinook helicopter, and is composed of approximately 100 aviators and men.
The huge Chinook helicopter still carries there is a need for a troop carrier but also serves as a mover of cargo up to eight tons.
Provides Support
Mission of the 261st Trans. Corps Det. (Direct Support, Medium Helicopter) is to provide direct support aircraft and avionics maintenance for the 271st.
The glory, what there is goes to the flight crew members, but behind every success is the support of the 271st Avn. Co. The 6th received a rating of 94.25 per cent on material, one of the highest ratings ever to be awarded a tank battalion.
In reference to these accomplishments, Luby said, "We hope to improve." Pointing out the unit's mission in partition land combat and the relatively few personnel in the battalion compared to other units in the 197th, Luby stated, "We are few in number, but our power is tremendous."

69th Armor Tanks Roll By To Mark Organization Day

By Spec. 4 David Chaffon
Reminiscent of their cavalry forbears, the tanks of the 69th Armor rolled by the reviewing stand Saturday at Warner Farms, highlighting the day's activities commemorating the unit's 27th anniversary.
On hand to view the 69th's organization day were Gen. John M. Wright Jr., posty commander, and Col. Jack L. Treadwell, commander of the 197th Inf. Bde.
In an address to the battalion, commander Lt. Col. Harold Luby cited the unit's "outstanding" achievements since its last organization day. In the past year the 69th supported 773 Infantry School commitments and 384 rated commitments for USAIG, receiving an "outstanding" rating on all of them.
During January and February at Fort Stewart, Ga., the entire battalion participated in the Tank Gunner Program, training and qualifying 111 soldiers as tank crewmen.
Also during February the battalion went through an extensive relocation, moving its motor and tank park, the battalion headquarters and three line companies.
Most noteworthy of the battalion's accomplishments, was the outstanding rating which the unit received on the recent Army GMEI. The 69th received a rating of 94.25 per cent on material, one of the highest ratings ever to be awarded a tank battalion.
In reference to these accomplishments, Luby said, "We hope to improve." Pointing out the unit's mission in partition land combat and the relatively few personnel in the battalion compared to other units in the 197th, Luby stated, "We are few in number, but our power is tremendous."

Newly Passed GI Bill Benefits to Go Into Effect Oct. 1

WASHINGTON - The new GI Bill, signed into law August 1, 1967, will provide new veterans benefits worth $285 million for the first year, and also will benefit. The new law's provisions go into effect October 1, 1967. Veterans Administration said. Meeting instructions are being provided.
The new law:
Boosts monthly GI Bill rates. Single vets will now get $130 for attending school full time, $65 for attending full time, $60 for attending half time, and $45 for attending on a cooperative basis.
Veterans with one dependent will get $135 for full time studies, $115 for 3/4 time, $75 for half time, and $125 for studying on a cooperative plan. Those with two dependents will get $175 for full time study, $155 for 3/4 time, $95 for half time, and $45 on the cooperative plan.
This means a vet awarded a 50 per cent disability, for example, will receive $115 a month rather than $90. Survivors of servicemen who have lost their lives in line of duty since the Gulf of Tonkin incident may be paid the $250 burial fee upon showing proof of having met burial expenses privately.
Servicemen who have served since Aug. 4, 1964 are now eligible for medical benefits such as care in state homes and use of contract private beds for non-service connected condition. Eligibility for these Vietnam era benefits ends when the President monthly allowances the Vietnam situation over.
Makes flight training benefits available to vets who either held private pilot licenses or have completed requirements for one. Applicants must meet the medical requirements for a commercial pilot's license. Under the new law veterans will be paid 96 per cent of their training.

costs in quarterly increments, and will be considered to have used one month of training eligibility by for every $120 spent. All courses taken must meet Federal Aviation Agency standards.
Provides on the job (OJT) and farm training to all 1966 GI Bill eligibles. These benefits were included in the earlier GI Bill and Korean GI Bills, but were left out last year when Congress enacted the so-called cold war Bill.
Monthly OJT benefits for single vets will be $40 the first six months, $70 the next six months, $80 the third six, and $90 for the fourth and all other six months periods.
Veterans with two or more dependents taking OJT will get $100 the first six months, $60 the second six, $60 the third six, and $40 the fourth and all other six months periods. These government allowances will be paid in addition to wages provided by employers and are not wages.

connected pension rates for veterans, widows and children. It has also provided a $1500 auto allowance to vets disabled in line of duty. The auto benefits applies to all who have served since Jan. 1, 1955.
Other parts of the law call for an increase to a maximum of $25,000 the amount the VA will spend on a home building veteran, and an increase in the length of time surviving children have to make use of the War Orphans Educational Assistance Act. The new law ups the age limit to 26. It had been 23.
Veterans taking farm co-operative training must take a minimum of 12 hours per week to qualify for benefits. They will receive $165 per month if they have no dependents, $125 a month if they have one, and $145 if they have two. Vets with more than two dependents will get $7 a month for each additional child.
The new law has extended the loan deadline for the few World War II veterans whose eligibility has yet to expire. The new law ups the age limit to 26. It had been 23.

Pension Program Revised; Veterans Get New Benefits

ATLANTA - The recently passed "Veterans Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967" provides extensive changes and improvements in the pension programs for veterans and widows. Pete Wheeler, Veterans Service director said last week.
The measure, Public Law 90-77, gives a 5.4 per cent cost of living increase in pension rates for "New Law" veterans and increases amounts to 8.5 per cent for widows in lowest pension categories. The cost of living increases are effective October 1 and will be reflected in the end of October pension checks.
Wheeler said, "This new law contains many of the important provisions including increases in household rates for veterans from $35 to $40 per month for 'New Law' cases and a new household rate of $100 for those payable in lieu of $45.15 and $73.75 for 'Old Law' cases."
The law presumes permanent and total disability for pension purposes at age 55 and presumes need for regular aid and attendance allowances for veterans and widows in public or private nursing homes.
In addition to increasing rates for widows under the "New Law" the act increases the rate for additional children to $16 a month for "New Law" cases, increases the pension rate to $70 a month for widows of veterans of wars prior to WWI, and provides additional allowances for regular aid and attendance in the amount of $60 for widows of veterans of all wars.
Wheeler added, "Other provisions reduce the 3-year post marriage requirement to 1 year for widows for pension and service-connected death benefit purposes, and authorize furnishing of therapeutic and rehabilitative devices and medical supplies for aid and attendance cases."
Wheeler said, "An important thing to remember is that only the cost of living increases in pensions are authorized. All other benefits under the new law must be applied for. Because of this our Department's field offices throughout Georgia stand ready to assist any veteran or widow on these matters."

ATLANTA - The recently passed "Veterans Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967" provides extensive changes and improvements in the pension programs for veterans and widows. Pete Wheeler, Veterans Service director said last week.
The measure, Public Law 90-77, gives a 5.4 per cent cost of living increase in pension rates for "New Law" veterans and increases amounts to 8.5 per cent for widows in lowest pension categories. The cost of living increases are effective October 1 and will be reflected in the end of October pension checks.

New Officers Take 'Biggest Step'

Graduates of the 53rd Co. (OC) took their "first and biggest step as an officer" when they were commissioned in a ceremony last week. Those were the words of Brig. Gen. Michael Paulick, commanding general of Fort Campbell's training center, as he spoke to the 158 new officers in Marshall Auditorium. The general, introduced by Fort Benning's commander, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., as his "close friend and former classmate at West Point," gave some practical advice to the lieutenants.
"Know your job," was his first rule for success as an officer. "You are not there to grace an organization with your presence. If you need to know something, look it up in regulations, or get a copy of the unit SOP and find out what you want to know."
"Know yourself," he continued. "Make an objective, honest self appraisal and compare this appraisal with your job requirements."
He explained that in this way a man finds out what aspects of his personality need improvement.
The next advice was "Know your officer." Paulick compared an officer to an athletic coach who has individual stars but who must still develop the collective potential of all his men to make an effective team.
Gen. Paulick concluded his talk by urging the men to continue growing and maturing. He explained that they would soon receive increased responsibilities and that these responsibilities would grow during their careers. He added, "I am confident that a conscientious application of the things I have just said will make your Army careers a success."

Graduating here were four officers who took basic Police (3), Adjutant General (7), Military Intelligence (1), Finance Corps (2), and Chemical Corps (1). Infantry awarded 133 commissions.

'Document Book' Relates Events Behind Cold War

H. L. Trefousse, ed. The Cold War: A Book of Documents. Putnam, 1965. Why is the world engaged in a Cold War that seems to have no end? Who is responsible for the troubled turn of events since 1945? The purpose of this book is to demonstrate, in terms of more than eighty documents from recent history, just how the Cold War developed and the forms it has taken in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

By documenting the "how," "when" and "what" of the Cold War, it reveals to the discerning reader a great deal about the "why" of this awesome state of affairs.

The documents that make up the principal text of this informative book are arranged in seven sections covering various aspects of the Cold War. They date back to Jans. 1, 1942, and continue through the Vietnam crisis of 1964.

Walter Bucher, Warriors' Weapons. Crowell, 1963. Here are the simple weapons, this exciting story up to the development of gunpowder. Here are the simple weapons of primitive people; the spear, the club, the blowgun, the remarkable booming of Australian Aborigines, and the South American's curious bola that winds itself around an enemy.

The author shows how man's ingenuity, spurred on by necessity, led to inventions on which modern society now depend, particularly in the field of metallurgy — copper refining, creation of bronze alloys, and the smelting of steel.

Warrior's Weapons discuss in detail such items as armor, siege machines, nearly impregnable castles, a even strategy and tactics of the development of which paralleled the evolution of hand weapons.

This is a fascinating and informative history book on the evolution of weapons.

Eugene M. Dime, ed. The Impact of Air Power: National Security and World Politics. Van Nostrand, 1965.

The Impact of Air Power is the outstanding compendium of significant statements on the subject of air power by world leaders and thinkers. Their statements are a brilliantly interpreted by the editor. The editor's commentaries, prefacing each chapter, draw together the many strands of thought and provide continuity on the many-fold implications of air power.

Each selection is also introduced by notes indicating the source of the selection and giving biographical information concerning the contributor.

This comprehensive volume gathers together the best that has been written or said about air power and space power. It explores the full meaning and influence of air power upon national security and world politics. It is a ready and useful reference book for the student, speaker, or writer interested in a broad-based military aviation: past, present, and future.

Gifted Sculptor Teaches Craft Shop Art Students

By PFC Ken Deas

A hammer and chisel are the tools of one who, with unbridled concentration and sheer sweat, transforms the shapelessness of stone to sculptured form. These tools in the skilled hands of the sculptor can impart life and emotion to rock which once lay dead and dormant.

The hands, in this case, belong to PFC Barry Woods Johnston, 26, of Huntsville, Ala., a talented young man whose work is highly praised. Johnston, now stationed at the Training Center at Fort Belvoir, studied architecture at Georgia Institute of Technology for five years, and sculpture at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts for two years.

The result of this educational background is displayed in his work which is a rich blend of architecture and fine arts.

His goal is to bridge the gap between the two art forms, architecture and sculpture. A recent attempt is a small model for a Vietnam war arch of triumph with American soldiers sculptured in an array of poses on the sides of a huge concrete arch. Observers would be offered a multitude of views from circling stairway climbing inside the concrete and steel structure.

Realistic

As an artist, Johnston could be considered a student of the classic tradition. His drawings and paintings exhibit a keen sense of detail in harmony with finely balanced form. His paintings are realistic rather than abstract. He prefers to deal with religious-philosophical subjects.

Johnston feels that an artist instead of putting his message in words, he expresses it in an artistic medium. His sculptured figures appear to be writing in a futile attempt to free themselves from the mass of rock which holds them portraying the philosophy that man is a small model for a Vietnam shackles of his own inadequacy. In this philosophy mankind is continually striving to overcome the bonds of "humanity."

PFC BARRY WOODS JOHNSTON

How has the Army affected his work? He finds that the Army offers him a "concentrated exposure to a wide variety of people under perhaps extreme conditions."

Presently assigned to the Co. Army Training Center, his duty assignment is to help run the fine arts craft shop at Sand Hill. His studio there is on a hillside overlooking the Sand Hill Golf Course.

It is a unique craft shop where instruction is given in drawing, painting pottery and sculpture. Johnston's students offer the interested art student a fine opportunity to learn in an artistic medium.

He conducts art classes in the evening hours for anyone wishing to learn. Classes are unburdened and relaxed. Attempting to increase the size of his classes, he is presently trying to reach the talented artists here on post who have not heard about the unique program.

Besides giving art instruction, Johnston is kept busy fulfilling commissions to design displays. For example, he helped on Project "Polar Bear" commissioned by Lt. Col. C. H. Smith, commander of the 3th Bn, 31st Inf., 19th Inf. Bde. Johnston designed the base for the huge monument made of angle iron, concrete, and stucco. The white base is located in the battalion area to remind soldiers of the battalion nickname won in the campaign in Siberia, 1917-20, "Polar Bear."

to become missionaries in Hawaii.
Conflict arises when Hale's religious fanaticism imposes his literal interpretation of Biblical precepts on the traditional pagan customs and beliefs of the Hawaiians. But Jerusha's warm, loving nature and faith in a compassionate God partly bridges the gap, and it is for Jerusha's sake that majestic Queen Malama is willing to let her people listen to Hale's new teachings, and to listen herself.

An unexpected reunion with a long lost love, a sea captain, tempts Jerusha, briefly with a glimpse of the life she has renounced, but she sends him away and helps Hale in bringing Christianity to the island.

Based on James A. Michener's monumental novel, "Hawaii," the story takes place on a small island nearly after a typhoon has beached a cargo junk owned by gangster Fernando Lamas.

The junk is loaded with Nitraz-2. Unable to find the

BATTLE OF THE BULGE
By December 1944, an optimistic feeling exists among the Allied forces as the German armies are on the brink of defeat.
One man who doubts this is Lt. Col. Killey (Henry Fonda). He suspects that the Germans are planning a renewed assault, but these suspicions are ridiculed by Col. Frichard (Dana Andrews) and questioned by General Grey (Robert Ryan).

Behind the Siegfried Line, German Panzer commander Col. Hessler (Robert Shaw) is mounting a surprise attack. From the initial clash of the German "tiger" tanks with the Allied Sherman's, the battle becomes a fight for gasoline, without which the German offensive will bog down.

This was the Battle of the Bulge, the German attempt of the Wehrmacht to turn the tide of history.
A return engagement. Running time: 140 minutes.

Anti-Tank Platoon Patrols 4-Mile 'Thunder Road'

CHU LAI, (196th INF-10)—Platoon, who patrol the four-mile distance with their 106mm recoilless rifle jeeps, is a lonely, wooded area and dangerous strip of road linking Headquarters, 4th Inf. Bde., and 196th Light Inf. Bde., an outlying infantry company.

"It is necessary, but wicked to hold onto this winding road that only the men of the battalion's Anti-Tank mine eight times before a heavier vehicle caused it to go off. Both times pieces of plastic and banana leaves were found."

This Mine "Shortly after our last trip a Marine armored vehicle had a mine that we had previously driven over four times. A similar incident happened on one morning at the gate yelling for someone to bring a jeep down to him."

LESSONS LEARNED in VIETNAM

Observation of a platoon leader in Vietnam — No. 4. NAVIGATION:

Thorough understanding and professional use of map reading and navigation are essential to the accomplishment of the mission. The importance of map reading ability is often not meaningful, nor appreciated, through the long hours of tedious classroom instruction.

Practical exercise in the field is where professional ability is founded. Believe me, you must be able to put your classroom knowledge of map reading to practical application in Vietnam.

The junior officer proficient in map reading and navigation is a most notable asset to his unit whether it be an American or Vietnamese unit.

In counter-insurgency operations in Vietnam where movement is critical, this is especially valid.

The platoon leader who fails to use and trust his non-commissioned officers with the map is creating a problem for himself. Most senior NCOs have had many years of experience in map reading and navigation.

They can offer much assistance. This does not, of course, relieve the leader of the responsibility for the actions of his unit. The platoon leader is a supervisor at all times and must be aware of, and check, the actions of his subordinates.

Sergeant Saved By VC Defector

RACH KIEN, (9th INF-10) A defector Viet Cong booby-trap setter was credited with saving the life of at least one soldier in the 9th Inf. Div. recently.

Phuc Van Cuc, who had surrendered as a Ho Chi Minh Scout for the soldiers in Co. A of the 8th Bde. 3rd Bn., 39th Inf.

During a search and destroy operation near here S.Sgt. James A. Swearingen started to enter a house.

The former VC "rap up and pushed me to the ground," Swearingen recalled. The scout had spotted an enemy grenade rigged to the door.

He uncovered two more death traps in the house and a total of 12 trip mines strung along nearby rice paddy dikes.

Later, as the soldiers continued to search, he pointed out a 14-inch claymore mine concealed near their path.

"He has eyes like a fox," said the grateful Swearingen afterward.

Bayonet to Challenge Football Forecasters

College football kicks off another season this weekend but most of the nation's top-rated teams will wait until next week before they begin competition.

All eyes are on Los Angeles where Tennessee goes against a strong team from UCLA Saturday. Another game worth noting is the Florida State-Houston contest which will be played tonight in Texas.

Action in the Southeastern Conference which includes such giants as Alabama and Georgia gets underway September 23. Defending champion Notre Dame, ranked by many as the number one team in the country, Miami of Florida and Michigan State also open their seasons next weekend.

Again this year, the Bayonet's fearless forecasters will attempt to predict the outcome of the week's major gridiron clashes. Beginning with next Friday's issue, the Bayonet team will match itself against teams from major units on post in choosing the winners of 14 important games.

However, Bayonet forecasters warn their opponents that during the 1966 season the newspaper's sports staff scored a remarkable correct prediction rate of 95 per cent and are out to better it this year.

A team from The Student Brigade will be this year's first opponent for the sports staff.

Spurred on by the enthusiasm of 90th Co., 9th Stn. Bn. (OC), spectators, the 90th Co. when he took a hand-off from quarterback Hays Moody, and then ran into the end zone. A ground attempt at the conversion points failed.

The Maudsanders then capitalized on the passing by Moody, who connected with left end Leon Mickens in the end zone in a 15-yard toss.

Another ground conversion attempt failed and the score stayed 12-0 at half-time.

In the third period 90th again employed the Moody-to-Mickens combination and scored with a catch by Mickens after a defensive effort failed and the score remained 18-0.

A 35-yard pass on the fourth down, thrown by the ground attempt, finally clicked, leaving the final tally at 18-0.

TSB Tops 197th, 2-1

TSB's baseball team went fourteen innings last Monday night to take the league lead 197th for a 2-1 victory. This win makes the second game dropped by the 197th to TSB and marks a league first.

In the past seven games TSB has won five and lost two in their end of the season push for the league's top quarter. TSB's big win was over Martin Army Hospital with a 20-0 landslide victory. One of the stars of this year's team is second baseman Jim Brown. Brown has a fine record in sports. A backing could prevent a 280-battling average for an all most complete season and a fine fielding record. Brown also played collegiate ball for Georgetown University as a member of GU's baseball team and was captain of GU's basketball team. Brown has also been chosen to head TSB's basketball team this winter as player-coach. He plans to begin practice at the TSB Gym October 3rd.

It might seem like a waste of time, but going a block or two out of the way to avoid backing could prevent a costly accident.

10th Gp. Scores Win Over MAH

Thirteen, usually an unlucky number, turned to magic for the 10th Avn. Gp. baseball team.

The bats of the 10th Gp. brought the game against MAH to a halt in the seventh inning with Group out in front 13 to 3. Joe Jojola got the win and Larry Mason the loss.

The game started with MAH getting on the scoreboard first in the 2nd 3 to 0. The slugging of group began a third inning rally, led off by Ronald Rockawich, which scored five runs.

The Observer - by Larry Mahoney

As a sometimes serious student of football since the early 1960's, I've long considered the best of it that I've ever seen to be the brand played by small college teams in the South, most notably Florida A&M and its lethal Rattlers.

The Tallahassee Democrat, which is a newspaper if the name confuses you, would send me across town to cover the Rattlers on their home ground. The foes, invariably, were from the other small and poor Negro schools of the Deep South—Southern of Baton Rouge, Tennessee A&I, South Carolina State, Morehouse of Atlanta, Jackson State of Mississippi, Prairie View A&M of East Texas. High up in the pressbox I would watch Jake Gaither's "mobile, agile and hostile" units use blood, sweat and tears to decimate the opposition.

One that I never got to see was Grambling College. If the Rattlers played them during my four years in Tallahassee, they must have met in the little Louisiana village of Grambling and we didn't visit the A&M away games. Obviously, I missed a lot, judging from an intriguing article in this month's Esquire. It's entitled "100 Yards And 60 Minutes of Black Power" and if you've more than a passing interest in this game, read it.

Writer George Frazier IV tells it well. The color of Negro football in Deepest Dixie can't be matched anywhere. Rivalries are old and heated, the student bodies haven't yet reached the level at which the game becomes impulsive, the atmosphere is all hot electric, and the hands are incomparable with their flawless formations and a stutter-step that keeps girls from marching with them because they couldn't keep up (At Grambling, Florida A&M, Southern and Tennessee A&I, it can be as much of a distinction for a young man to make the band as to don pads and a jersey).

Now all this says nothing about the men who do the playing. Their quality (and quantity, with 290-pound linemen the rule) is superb, and nothing speaks more of this than the reputation of these little colleges with pro football.

Consider this. Eighteen Grambling graduates played in the NFL and the AFL last year, and only one school, Notre Dame, had more, with 26. Now, Notre Dame's all-male student body is nearly five times as large as Grambling's male enrollment. This could be construed to mean that, proportionally, Notre Dame should have 90 alumni with the pros. Using this gauge, Michigan State should have 194, Louisiana State 101, and Purdue 142.

But, even a fan of long standing might ask, who has ever heard of Grambling? And this question and some of its connotations "All-throws much light on the much-vaunted "All-America" teams that we read so much about. Of Grambling's 18 pros, only Henry Dyer and Alphonse Dotson have ever been named to any major All-America team.

This indicates one thing. Most All-America football teams are more than meaningless, largely the products of a good college public information office or a newspaperman's campaign to get recognition for the "local boy up at State."

The wire service selectors constantly ignore not only the talent in these Negro colleges but that of the small white schools as well. For example, of 46 players named to the All-NFL and AFL teams last year, only six had been All-Americans. And seven of the 46 attended Negro colleges, and an eighth played at a small white school.

Royal Air Force Officers Learning Chinook Operation, Maintenance

By PFC Barry Nelson

The purpose of their assignment in the United States is to familiarize themselves with the operation and maintenance of the Army's CH-47B helicopter which the Royal Air Force will receive in the very near future.

The reason for their visit here was to observe first hand how the United States Army handles the support of this aircraft.

In order to see the actual performance of this operation, the officers were taken on a detailed tour of the support facilities at the 177th Avn. Co., by 2nd Lt. Robert D. Tournay and the Boeing Vertol resident engineer at Fort Benning, Howard J. M. Smith. The 177th Co. is the only aviation unit here that has the new "B" model Chinook.

Sleeping Gear Now Being Tested by Infantry Board

Test soldiers bivouacking and canopy. During the testing, both will be subjected to inclement weather in which at least one hour of moderate rain will be recorded in addition to being tested in the fording USAIB is a Capt. David Board (USAIB) is conducting the tests to determine their suitability for army use and provide a comparison of the two pieces of equipment.

The two systems, designated system "A" and system "B" for test purposes, will undergo testing by 20 men for 10 nights here. Ten men will use each system five nights and then exchanging systems for a personal comparison.

During the test period, each system will be used in both the hammock and ground configuration. This complete testing procedure will be repeated for seven cycles.

In addition to testing the systems for sleeping comfort, the gear will also be scrutinized for its conformity as to moisture resistance; ease of entering, closing, and exiting; ease of pitching and striking; adaptability to the soldier's pack, and ease of rolling for the pack.

Complete testing will be performed on each system under four different terrain conditions, once in mountainous terrain, once in wooded areas, once in swampy areas and in open terrain.

For the continuous operation, testing will be conducted at Dahlonga, the Mountain Hanger Camp; and for the swampy area, the tests will be performed at Eglin AFB, Fla. These tests will be performed under the most adverse weather conditions available in each area.

Each of the two systems weigh approximately 8 pounds and is made of nylon or synthetic fabric. Both conform to standard camouflage principles and also offer the sleeper protection from inclement weather by means of the water repellent fabric.

RIFLE FINDS HOME . . . The Infantry Museum became the final home of a 1917 American Enfield rifle manufactured for use in WWI. After passing through many hands, this adaptation of the British Enfield came into the possession of Lt. Col. Benjamin Albert, right, commander of the 76th Main Bn. here, who presented it to the museum. Accepting it for the museum was Col. Robert Hall, left, former assistant commander of the Infantry School, and other parts of the world who have experienced conflict with the enemy and have learned something from their experience have an opportunity to relate them to others. Project SAVE (Screen All Valuable Experiences) uses taped and filmed dramatizations of these experiences as teaching aids here at the Infantry School. "The Infantry School is using lessons they have learned in Vietnam for instructional purposes," said Capt. John Garrity, SAVE project officer. He said that tapes are short and to-the-point lessons which drive home a certain idea. Up-to-Date Information The lessons are used to keep the students' minds of what happens in Vietnam, how the individual reacts in a certain situation and if the situation could or should have been handled differently. "Basic war principles don't change," Garrity said, "but techniques do." And the Project SAVE lessons keep students on top of new technique changes. The experiences are not restricted to Vietnam. "Anything which might be of use to the individual soldier in Vietnam is fine," said 2nd Lt. Michael Wolfgang, technical producer of Project SAVE tapes. "All tapes are not concerned with tactics." Project SAVE was started here in January, 1965 by Brig. Gen. Ellis W. Williamson, now the commanding general of Fort Polk, La., and former assistant commander of the Infantry School, since that time, 57 tapes have been produced for instruction. CONARC picked up the idea and requested that all Army television stations take part in the project. Fort Benning still produces more tapes than any other station. Project SAVE relies chiefly on volunteers who come forward with their ideas. So far, mostly officers have offered their experiences for Project SAVE production. Capt. John Garrity, SAVE project officer, said a worthwhile message is well and urged to contribute.

OC Now Attends Classes He Once Taught

Seldom does the student know his subject as well as the teacher, but in the case of Candidate Marsola's, 97th Co., 9th Stu. Bn., and the mortar committee, USAIS, there lies an exception to the rule. The reason for this exception is simple - Marsola's used to teach the very same classes he is now attending. Besides teaching, he also wrote several blocks of instruction which are now included in the basic mortar course. "Although I miss the mortar committee it's nice just to sit and listen," replied Marsola when asked about his change in status. Evidently the mortar committee also misses Marsola's. For his outstanding performance as instructor and innovator, he was recently awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

One of Many Significant, it only marks one of a succession of Marsola's achievements. Airborne qualified, he attended demolition school under the aegis of the Special Forces. Upon graduation from this course, he proceeded to Fort Bragg, N. C. where he served with the 82nd Abn. Bde., and from there he was sent to Okinawa on orders to report to the 173rd Abn. Bde. His stay in Okinawa was short-lived. When the 173rd was transferred to Vietnam, Marsola's went with them. From May 1965 to Feb. 1966 he served as chief computer for a fire direction center. During this period, he participated in an operation designed to find and destroy the Phon-Loi Regt. The operation culminated in an exercise battle between the 1st Bn., 562nd Inf. and the Phon-Loi Regt. in War Zone D. For this engagement the battalion was awarded the Distinguished Unit Citation.

It was during his tour of duty in Vietnam that Marsola's first decided to attend OCS. "Although the motivation was always present, it took the experience in combat to provide the requisite self-confidence. I feel now that I could better serve myself and the Army in a leadership position." The men of the 97th Co. apparently feel the same way about Marsola's leadership ability as they have elected him to represent them on the Honor Council.

SAVE Experience Best Teacher According to Post Project

Project SAVE operates on the old philosophy that experience is the best teacher. Returns from Vietnam or other parts of the world who have experienced conflict with the enemy and have learned something from their experience have an opportunity to relate them to others. Project SAVE (Screen All Valuable Experiences) uses taped and filmed dramatizations of these experiences as teaching aids here at the Infantry School. "Anything which might be of use to the individual soldier in Vietnam is fine," said 2nd Lt. Michael Wolfgang, technical producer of Project SAVE tapes. "All tapes are not concerned with tactics." ## Reception Station Takes Top Spot in Enlistments

By Pvt. John F. Murphy

Fort Benning took over the Army's top spot in monthly enlistments at Reception Stations during August as 435 men, reporting as inductees, changed their minds and signed up for three years.

The magic 435 number set an all-time record among the four reception stations in the Third Army area and was the highest of all Continental Army Command's 11 reception stations during the past 12 months.

August marked the eighth consecutive month that the reception station here has shown an increase in enlistments having started in January of this year with 65.

The program, which was started by the Army in October, 1965, enables a draftee to enlist in the Regular and PFC Henry K. Barney, Army thus guaranteeing him enlistment clerk.

Company Clerk Positions Elevated from E-4 to E-5

From Army Times

WASHINGTON—Company and battery clerk positions throughout the Army were upgraded this week from grade E-4 to E-5.

The action puts thousands of men who hold MOS 7120 in line for promotion to specialist five.

Promotion to E-5 will boost a clerk's monthly pay $1.80 or more, under current pay rates, depending on his years of service. Pay raise legislation now pending in Congress would give E-5s with less than two years' service about $211 monthly, $36 more than the present E-4 rate.

E-5 soldiers with two to three years' service would get $200 under the proposed pay scale.

Benefit Draftees

Draftees make up a large portion of the soldiers who can expect to benefit by the increase in grade for clerk slots. Because of the Vietnam buildup, career men have been getting faster boosts to higher grades. This has left the lower grade jobs to be filled largely by short-termers.

Men who now hold clerk jobs won't be the only ones to win promotions as a result of the upgrading action.

The personnel in battalions or higher headquarters companies have several men with MOS 7120 in grade E-4 who will be in competition for promotion and assignment to the clerk slots.

In separate and non-headquarters companies or battalions, however, the incumbent clerk should have a clear track to a grade boost if he meets normal promotion requirements. In the past, the E-4 clerk job was a promotion dead-end.

Promotion Time

Promotion to E-5 now requires only 15 months' service with a waiver, or 21 months without a waiver. Rules still permit waiving of two standard requirements. Also, promotion quotas have been ample to cover the eligible soldiers during the past year and there is no indication that lack of quotas will be a problem in the immediate future.

For more draftees will be able to make grade E-5, it appears, before they complete their 24 months' service and return to civilian life.

Army's upgrading action fulfilled one of the recommendations submitted last year by the Command Sergeant's Major Conference here.

The increase for company clerks was linked to Army's growing need for more accurate staff reporting. To get more accurate morning reports, officials reasoned, men with higher qualifications must be retained in the job.

Higher qualifications call for higher rank, and the Army apparently discovered in recent years that E-4 was not high enough to encourage clerks to do their best work or remain in the service.

Congratulatory Message To Training Center CG

Dear General Mount:

On the occasion of the second anniversary of the United States Army Training Center, Infantry, today, I extend congratulations on behalf of all personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center.

The efficiency of your operation is evidenced not only by the recent graduation of the 18,000th trainee, but by the excellent job your graduates are doing each day as defenders of freedom in the Republic of South Vietnam. The skill and esprit displayed by these young men are a tribute to the professional instruction and leadership imparted by your personnel.

With the establishment of the Fort Benning Non-commissioned Officer Academy (Provisional), your mission takes on added importance. We extend best wishes for success in this significant new approach to training of noncommissioned officers.

Again, congratulations on this unit anniversary. Sincerely, JOHN M. WRIGHT, JR. Major General, USA Commanding

Post Colonel Enters 'Hall'

Col. Howard M. Thompson is due to retire September 30. He recently inducted into the Infantry Officer Hall of Fame by Col. Edward J. Geaney, deputy commander, The Student Brigade.

Col. Thompson, a 1960 graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School and the former Chief, Troop Program Section, Dept. of Manpower, Dept. of the Army, arrived in June to begin his new assignment as Chief, Office of Data Systems at the Infantry School. The colonel was born on Feb. 27, 1920 in Neal, Kansas.

More Officers Are Due Second Tour in Vietnam

WASHINGTON—At least 1,000 more officers than previously estimated may be returning to Vietnam voluntarily for second tours this year.

Previous Army estimates indicated about 3,000 officers would get second shots at Vietnam duty in the 12 months ending June 30, 1968. Now the estimate is up 1,000. This few officials will attribute the figure will not be topped.

Not apparently considered in the projections is the decision to send an extra 10,000 soldiers to Vietnam by next summer.

Officials have said they believe at least 2,000 non-aviation officers will be returned to Vietnam involuntarily while 1,800 others are sure to go.

In the past year aviators also led the second Vietnam tour parade with 666 repeats. Thirty-six aviators with sufficient skills also were ordered back for second tours.

Incentive Pays

Spec. 5 Vincent E. Battista, AG Section, ATC, received an award of $25 for suggesting that stock records cards be maintained on publications requested by various units from depot. Adoption of this suggestion has improved operations, increased efficiency and resulted in an estimated annual savings of $600 in manhours.

Col. Wolff will assume command of the Training Center on October 10.

Col. Wolff returned to Fort Benning in May of this year from Vietnam where he was chief of staff of the 1st Cav. Div. at An Khê. His last duty station before going to Vietnam was with the Infantry School, from 1964-1966 as Chief of Tactics and, later, as Director of Instruction.

Col. Wolff entered the service in 1943 as an Army enlisted man and served with the Alamo Scouts, a deep penetration intelligence unit of the Sixth Army, and received a battlefield commission to second lieutenant during the Luzon Campaign in the Philippine Islands in 1945.

He served in Korea with the 15th Inf. Regt., participated in the evacuation of Hungnam and the subsequent counteroffensives, and commanded, in succession, a 4.2 mortar company and an Infantry battalion.

Nation to observe signing of Constitution next week

This year, as in no other since it was signed into law 170 years ago, the Constitution of the United States has been subjected to stresses and strains far beyond what even envisioned by its architects.

Ongoing forces have met in violent confrontation, both pressing their cause to be under the aegis of rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution. Between the two, the agencies of law and order have valiantly tried to provide protection on both sides to assure that neither was denied its Constitutional rights.

Never Missed an Issue

but has earned world wide respect as a leading military newspaper," commented the general.

General Wright called the personal dedication of the publisher a factor which has resulted in a superior newspaper, which is now the U.S. Army and proudly recognized as "The Voice of Fort Benning."

News content is compiled by military members from the Fort Benning Information Office and the civilian business staff of The Bayonet is headed by Charles R. Rice.

These men have as their goal to continue the fine tradition of bringing to readers of The Bayonet, the finest "hometown" newspaper possible.

lors which would have caused a less sturdy structure to topple and crumble. Yet the Constitution, as the base upon which our government and our society rests, remained structural, sound; a tribute to those who designed its framework and built into it a system of checks and balances which imparts strength and durability.

It is not the intent here to debate or adjudicate the issues involved in the tug-of-war which has taken place this past summer, nor to condone or condemn the antagonists.

Rather, it is to bring sharply into focus the fact that each such onslaught our Constitution emerges ever stronger than before and the work of its authors ever more significant.

In his annual proclamation, the President proclaimed "the people of the United States to observe (that) single date of September 17, 1787, designating the period September 17-23 as Constitution Week."

Explosive Engineers Developing New Use for Charges

WASHINGTON (ANP)—U. S. Army engineers have made progress this summer in the development of ways to use nuclear explosives for civil construction.

In 1956, the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) originated the idea of devoting an entire week to commemoration of the Constitution, rather than a single date of September 17, the anniversary of its signing, which also is recognized as Citizenship Day.

A resolution was introduced into the Congress, passed and signed into law by the President on August 2, 1967, designating the period September 17-23 as Constitution Week.

Aerial Reconnaissance Co. Patrols the 'Killer Jungle'

PHU LOI, (1st AVN-10)—There is a swamp in Vietnam which appropriately fits its name. It is known as the Hung Sat. Literally translated, it means "Killer jungle."

It lies to the southeast of Saigon, covers hundreds of square miles, and is vitally important to the economic and military life of the Republic of South Vietnam.

Through the middle of it runs the only shipping channel to Saigon ports.

This area has most of the features of any swampy area:igators, snakes, crawling insects of unlimited description, and malaria-ridden mosquitoes. But there is an added attraction and a deadly one.

The Hung Sat is infested with Viet Cong elements. Virtually every phase of the war, and a style warfare may be found there.

The pilots of the 74th Reconnaissance Squadron, Airplane Co., are out flying their Bird Dog mission that they call the Hung Sat Special. They provide continuous daylight aerial coverage, seven days a week.

Trucks in this mission vary in size from the 10-ton to the 15-ton. The men check the movement of shipping in the channel, they locate possible ambush sites, and they fly low-level operations looking for the VC, his supply points, bunker, and trench lines.

They also direct Huey gunships against enemy positions, and call and adjust artillery on enemy installations, sampans and troop movements.

They also cooperate and coordination of the Assault Helicopter Companies in the area with Combat Avn. Bn., of which the 74th is a part. The Bird Dog pilots are able to will attend the course and aviation support the ground also serve as an instructor.

Sport Shorts

By Rod Ross

Joe Louis is elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame in the new Madison Square Garden and nobody, positively nobody—well, nobody in his right mind—would question Joe's right to be there.

Many knowledgeable people say Louis was the greatest heavyweight title-holder of all time. That can't be proved or disproved. But certainly during his reign, Joe was king of the ring, he kayaked many tough opponents, he didn't duck out on anybody. And always, the Brown Bomber was and is a credit to his race—the human race. (That line is stolen from Alexander Woolcott, who used it referring to somebody else, but a good line is worth repeating.)

Joe has to his credit a couple of warm deeds that don't appear in the record books. In Madison Square Garden in 1942 he kayaked Buddy Baer in one round, Abe Simon in six. He donated his purse, $65,200 and $45,882, to Army and Navy Relief. After the second bout the heavyweight wife was "frozen" for the duration of the war as the Brown Bomber entered the arena for.

Welcome to the Hall of Fame, Mr. Louis — a real champ!

BOWL GAMES

Now that bowling has come out of the alleys and onto the lanes, it's truly a respectable family sport. You may take your WAC or your wife, your granddaughter or your granddaughter to do a bit of tempus topping without fear that they will be subjected to unseemly language or slip on tobacco juice.

Most Bowleramas, Bowl-o-funs, etc., now have the decor and appointments of a supper club.

Still, most of us lie-men regard bowling as our game. We look up with amused tolerance as our sweetie minces up to the line and wobbles her ball into the gutter. "Weaker sex, and all that," we say to ourselves.

Well, we must not be so smug, all us chaps with the 165 averages. The gals are taking over!

"An Air Force wife in San Antonio, Tex., site of the 1968 WIBC Championship Tournament and Annual Meeting, had the honor of tying a WIBC record when she bowled a 300 game."

Shirley Mansfield rolled her perfect game in the Air Force Wives' League at Billy Mitchell Lanes, the 16th of the 1966-67 season among WIBC members.

The above item is from a magazine called, "The Woman Bowler," official publication of the Women's International Bowling Congress.

As if 16 perfect games in a season weren't impressive enough, another gal, Patricia Dwyer of Medford, Ore., knocked down 300 pins a few weeks later to make the figure seventeen in one season.

Even more alarming is the record showing 23 ladies with triples in the 700 class, ranging from 792 to 728. It's enough to make a fellow trade in his bowling ball for a set of kidlywinks.

Or else report to the stern measure taken by Bill Wagstaff of Zanesville, Ohio. After his wife Sylvia rolled a perfect game, he went out and duplicated the feat.

SHORT SNORTS

In his book, Leos Comes, ex-empire, puts the knuck on Leo Duracich. So what's new?

Glass is great material for vaulting poles, boat hulls and golf club shafts but it's still not recommended for a boxer's jaw.

OK, MEN, YOUR TEST PROBLEM IS TO MOVE—ALL THAT BEAR 250 MILES AWAY BY NIGHTFALL... WITHOUT ARMY VEHICLES

WHAT'LL WE DO? WE CAN'T AFFORD TO HAVE IT MOVED...AND WE HAVEN'T GOT THE TIME

LOOK! BEEF'S RENTED A U-HAUL MOVING VAN

GEN, HALFTRACK WON'T LIKE THIS... U-HAUL IS MAINLY FOR CIVILIAN MOVING

HE WON'T FIND OUT...WE CAN UNLOAD THESE AND TURN IN THE TRUCK TO A U-HAUL DEALER BEFORE NIGHTFALL

I'LL MEET YOU AT THIS POINT...GOOD LUCK

I STILL THINK I'LL BE MAD...ANYWAY, THERE WON'T BE A U-HAUL DEALER WAY OUT HERE, WILL THERE?

SURE! THERE ARE 6,000 OF THEM ALL OVER AMERICA!

NO...THE GENERAL WILL NEVER ACCEPT THIS...HE'S TOO MUCH "ALL ARMY"

U-HAUL

EVACUATION AREA #1

GREENS LIKE EVERYBODY IS MOVING WITH U-HAUL THESE DAYS—AND SAVING 50 TO 75% OF MOVING COSTS IN THE BARGAIN!

HAS "UNCLE" GOT MOVING PLANS FOR YOU? REMEMBER U-HAUL IS REIMBURSABLE UNDER NORMAL WEIGHT ALLOWANCES AND WITH U-HAUL, YOUR GOODS ARRIVE WITH YOU!

The Story of Major Bernard B. Fisher

ON 25 APRIL 1945 THE BOMBING OF THE JAPANESE ISLAND OF OKINAWA WAS UNDERWAY. THE AIR FORCE WAS STRIVING TO DESTROY THE ENEMY'S AIRCRAFT AND TO CLEAR THE ISLAND FOR THE ADVANCE OF THE ARMY.

THE TOPS OF THE 1,500-FOOT HILLS WERE OBTAINED BY AN 800 FOOT CEILING, LIMITED AIRCRAFT MANEUVERABILITY AND FORBIDING PILOTS TO OPERATE WITHIN RANGE OF HOSTILE GUN POSITIONS, WHICH OFTEN WERE ABLE TO FIRE DOWN ON THE ATTACKING AIRCRAFT.

DURING THE BATTLE, MAJOR FISHER OBSERVED A FELLOW AIRMAN CRASH LAND ON THE BATTLE TORN AIRSTRIP. IN THE BELIEF THAT THE DOWNED PILOT WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED AND IN IMMINENT DANGER OF CAPTURE, MAJOR FISHER ANNOUNCED HIS INTENTION TO LAND ON THE AIRSTRIP TO EFFECT A RESCUE...

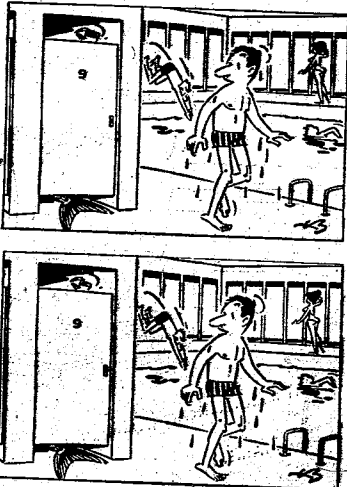

ALTHOUGH AWARE OF THE EXTREME DANGER AND LIKELY FAILURE OF SUCH AN ATTEMPT HE ELECTED TO CONTINUE, DIRECTING HIS OWN AIRCRAFT, HE LANDED HIS AIRCRAFT AND RAN ALONG THE FULL LENGTH OF THE RUNWAY, WHICH WAS LITTERED WITH BATTLE DEBRIS AND PARTS OF AN EXPLODED AIRCRAFT...

WHILE EFFECTING A SUCCESSFUL RESCUE OF THE DOWNED PILOT, HE APPLIED POWER AND GAINED ENOUGH SPEED TO LIFT OFF AT THE OVERTURN OF THE AIRSTRIP...

MAJOR FISHER'S CONSPICUOUS GALLANTRY, HIS PROFOUND CONCERN FOR HIS FELLOW AIRMAN, AND HIS INTERDITY AT THE RISK OF HIS LIFE ABOVE AND BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY ARE IN THE FINEST TRADITIONS OF THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE AND REFLECT GREAT CREDIT UPON HIMSELF AND THE ARMED FORCES OF HIS COUNTRY. MAJOR BERNARD FISHER WAS AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR BY PRESIDENT L. B. JOHNSON

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Tell It To Meg

Dear Meg: One of the boys from work kept pestering me for a date. He was a jolly sort with a good sense of humor and I thought he'd be agreeable company so I said okay. He was a perfect gentleman all evening but when it came time to go home he suggested I spend the night at his "pad."

As first I thought he must be kidding. When I said no dice, he got mad and asked if I didn't think he was as good as Johnny D. . . .

I was so shocked I could hardly breathe. The implication, the insult, made me speechless for a moment. I went out once with Johnny D. . . . and when he tried to get fresh I slapped his face. He must be getting revenge by telling everybody I'm a pushover. What can a girl do about such types?

— INNOCENT
Dear Innocent: They're both heels. Give 'em the boot!

Dear Meg: I've been dating steadily with a pretty girl and I guess we both took it for granted that we'd get married some day. But I just found out she's diabetic and has to take insulin shots watch her diet and so forth. I know it would be a dirty trick to break off with her but I don't want to be stuck with an invalid wife. How can I get — HEALTHY

Dear Healthy: The real dirty trick would be for you to marry her since it's obvious your "love" isn't strong enough to deal with any misfortunes life may have in store. Let her go and give her a chance to find a real man.

ASIDE TO BEE B.: Look around you. Many ugly women are happily married to attractive men. Those gals must have pretty personalities.

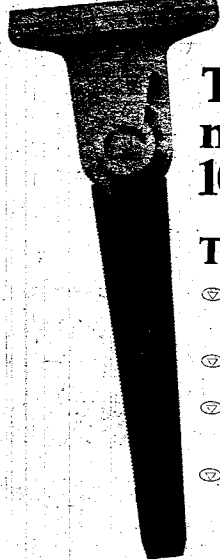

Dear Meg: We've been married just about a year and my husband is still my dream man. But every day he insists on having two cocktails before dinner and I'm deathly afraid he might become an alcoholic. Isn't a regular drinking habit dangerous?

— T. G.
Dear T. G.: Alcoholism is indeed a terrible and dangerous disease but if your man takes only two cocktails he is being quite moderate. Unless this pattern changes, better keep quiet about it. Nagging might drive him to secret boozing — the worst kind.

Dear Meg: I admit I faked an interest in sports when Eddie and I were going around together because he was such an avid fan. All girls do things like that. But now that we're married when I try to get him to go to worthwhile things like the ballet and the opera, he balks. He would rather watch the Red Sox playing the Green Bay Packers. How can I get it across to him that sports are silly?

—MRS. M
Dear Mrs. M.: Your case is hopeless. Let's pray your letter will serve as a warning to other unwarned young women. Don't try to trap a husband by pretending you like what you don't like.

VOL. 26, NO. 2 FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1967 32 PAGES - 70c

Army's Smallest Men Go Airborne

The two men who may be the Army's smallest soldiers became military parachutists Wednesday after completing three weeks of one of the most physically strenuous courses the Army offers.

Lt. Richard J. Flaherty, who stands 4 feet 9 and one quarter inches tall, received his silver airborne wings along with PFC Robert C. Daly, who is a quarter of an inch taller than Flaherty.

Flaherty, a 21-year-old native of Stamford, Conn., received waivers to enter the Army because of his height, and also to enter officer candidate training which was graduated from here in August.

Daly, of San Diego, Calif., also received special permission to take basic training. He completed it in April at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Flaherty will join the 101st Abn. Div. at Fort Campbell, Ky., while Daly reports to Fort Bragg, N. C., for Special Forces training.

"I think it was tough and good training," commented the 19-year-old Daly, when asked about his three weeks of calisthenics and running.

During the daily morning run Flaherty appeared dwarfed by his fellow soldiers, yet admitted, "I like outrunning all these big people."

About his height and his military career Flaherty said, "At first impression it will be a disadvantage... them to look down at me."

Both men received their wings after completing five jumps from C-119 aircraft onto Fryar Field in Alabama.

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney, deputy post commander and strong command interest will be placed on the campaign, but made it "very clear that there is to be no coercion in soliciting contributions."

Fort Benning's monetary goal is $100,000, and Col. Sherrard called it "our fair share to attain."

Of this $100,000 the Columbus-Phenix City UGF will receive $104,000 toward its total goal.

Our organization will reach every military and civilian employee on post," Col. Sherrard said. "Our objective is 100 per cent participation with each person giving one half of one day's pay, or more if he desires."

Military policemen at Fort Benning and throughout the Army will celebrate the 26th anniversary of the corps Tuesday.

175 Men Earn Diplomas From 'School of Soldier'

By Spec. 4 Howard Gaylor, 10th Avn. Gp.'s "School of the Soldier," graduated its fourth class during ceremonies held in the school building last Saturday.

The Group's first venture in developing leadership skills in its enlisted members began in May and to date the Academy has graduated over 175 men.

The course consists of an intensive review of basic military subjects, integrated with the latest advances in military skills. Discipline and leadership are developed by rotating students in chain of command positions. The students also conduct their own classes in drill and ceremonies, which gives them an opportunity to get the "feel" of handling a large group of men.

The guest speaker at Saturday's graduation was Vernon E. Appleby, sergeant major of the 44th Avn. Bn. Appleby spoke to the men on the quality of leadership that the Army is looking for in its men. He termed this 69th Train Co. and SFC Donald Lunceford, also of the 69th, top graduates of their respective ranks.

Appleby also presented honor graduate certificates to Spec. 4 William Schell of the 69th Train Co. and SFC Donald Lunceford, also of the 69th, top graduates of their respective ranks.

Appleby presented an honor graduate certificate to Sgt. Daniel Allen of the 181st Avn. Co. for being top graduate in his rank. Allen could not be promoted due to a lack of time in grade, however as soon as he meets this requirement he will be advanced.

Appleby also presented honor graduate certificates to Spec. 4 William Schell of the 69th Train Co. and SFC Donald Lunceford, also of the 69th, top graduates of their respective ranks.

The students also conduct their own classes in drill and ceremonies, which gives them an opportunity to get the "feel" of handling a large group of men.

The guest speaker at Saturday's graduation was Vernon E. Appleby, sergeant major of the 44th Avn. Bn. Appleby spoke to the men on the quality of leadership that the Army is looking for in its men. He termed this 69th Train Co. and SFC Donald Lunceford, also of the 69th, top graduates of their respective ranks.

The Judge Says...

Many benefits available for families of deceased

This article is addressed to the problems surrounding the death of members of the military service. The concern of legislators has been two-fold: (1) the orderly administration of the affairs of the deceased member insofar as these affairs affect the military establishment and (2) adequate provision for those who were dependent upon the deceased member for their support.

In line with the first concern, the statutes provide, under certain circumstances, for the appointment of a summary court to collect the effects of the decedent and perform certain duties of administration.

Insofar as the second purpose is concerned, an Army regulation provides for the appointment of a survivor assistance officer to render assistance to the dependents of deceased or missing Army personnel.

In addition to the assistance the Army offers in performing duties of administration and the dependents of the deceased, there are several other Federal benefits to which survivors of deceased service members may be entitled.

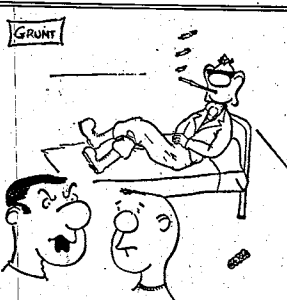

For example, when a member of the Army dies while on active duty, a lump sum gratuity of $8000 normally is payable to his surviving family.

Purpose of Gratuity
The purpose of the gratuity is to provide a clean-up fund to take care of obligations existing at the time of death; to aid in resettling the family; and to tide the family over until the application for dependent's and indemnity compensation has been filed and approved.

In addition to the death gratuity, the Army will make a settlement of the decedent's accounts. A member of the Army may designate one or more beneficiaries to receive, in the event of his death, amounts owed to him by the Department of the Army.

"Accounts" of a deceased member include sums payable as pay and allowances, principal and interest in a decedent's Soldiers Deposits account, retired pay accrued but unpaid at the deceased member's date of death and accrued leave pay, that is, any amount due a decedent from the service of which he was a member.

Finally, since the statutes and regulations which provide for survivors benefits are constantly changing, the attention herein should be used primarily as a guide.

Surgeon Says Exercise good prevention for back strains, sprains

Some minor sprains or strains which occur quite frequently can be treated at home. Such injuries often benefit from an ice massage or ice bath, followed immediately by active exercise. This helps prevent swelling, pain and limitation of motion about the involved joint. Normal motion of a part can be checked by comparing it with the uninvolved side. If pain and swelling persist go to see your doctor.

Backaches or back strains can be very uncomfortable, but may sometimes be eased by the use of hot packs or ice massage. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure", certainly holds true with this type of injury. The majority of back strains occur from a lack of knowledge of correct body mechanics in lifting, pushing, carrying a heavy object or in standing for a prolonged period.

Keep Back Straight
When lifting an object, always keep the back straight and bend the knees to grasp the object then straighten knees, keeping back straight and lift. This puts the major strain on the heavy leg and buttock muscles instead of on the back muscles. To carry a heavy object keep back straight and push the object held close to the body.

Deferent to Backaches
Acquiring the habit of good posture, sleeping on a firm mattress and spending a few minutes a day doing the exercises described above can serve as a deterrent to backaches as well as help cure an existing one.

Generally speaking the incident rate of minor injuries is decreased when one is in good physical condition. A few minutes out of every day will not only increase muscles strength but is beneficial for general health purposes.

Dental program proposed to aid in children's care

Now that medical treatment for the elderly is an accomplished fact, another administration major health objective is improved dental care for youngsters.

On April 8, 1966, President Johnson announced that he had directed John Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare "to create new plans for a new program that you haven't ever heard of before so assist in financing dental services for children."

Despite the formidable cost of this proposed dental program, Congress may soon consider an appropriation request which would provide free dental care for indigent school children. Equally important, a second proposal would protect all other parents from high dental bills by offering them a voluntary insurance plan covering each child's dental needs and costs with monthly premiums totaling perhaps $20 per year.

There are compelling arguments for the adoption of a program of this type.

Problems

During Pregnancy
Pregnancy poses special problems in posture. In the advance stages of pregnancy, the mother-to-be tends to hyperextend her back to counteract the protruding abdomen, thus tilting the pelvis uncorrectly, and causing painful backaches.

To strengthen the abdominal muscles, lie on the floor with knees bent and push the bottom of the back against the floor and then roll of a sitting position. Start by tucking chin to chest and lead with forehead. Keeping low back flat.

Leaving Bragg
Leaving Bragg, he headed assignment to Fort Benning as an Instructor in the Special Forces Dept. of the Infantry School, he attended the Command and Control Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, August, 1966. Peabody remained there as Chief of Organization and Training Division, U. S. Army, Vietnam, until August, 1967. That month, Peabody was assigned to the 19th.

Deerter to Backaches
Acquiring the habit of good posture, sleeping on a firm mattress and spending a few minutes a day doing the exercises described above can serve as a deterrent to backaches as well as help cure an existing one.

'Little Arts of Life' make-up joys and happiness of living

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Dominic Ferrelli
For a number of years Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, Rector of Saint Luke Church in Philadelphia, wrote a weekly column in the Philadelphia Bulletin. One of these brief talks has remained with me through the years. He speaks of the Little Arts of Life and says, "Life for most of us must of little time is made up of little things. It is made up of little things, like joys and service. But we must not let life itself become a jumble in a little way. Little things make people happy; and little things

Linda M. Mount Weds Lieutenant David Dial

Miss Linda Marie Mount, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles M. Mount Jr. and Lt. David Michael Dial, son of Mr. Wade Dial and Mrs. Mary Kingenstein, were wed in a morning ceremony last Saturday at the Post Chapel, Fort Knox, Ky. Chaplain (Capt.) Cyril Vrablik officiated and Mrs. John Neidig was organist.

The couple led the chapel under the traditional arch of white tapers surrounded by Gen. and Mrs. Mount were hosts at the reception which followed in the Main Officers' Club. Fort Knox, Mrs. Arminstead Peters, wife of Capt. Glenn Peters who is a student in the Infantry Officers' Career Course No. 2, leads a busy life spiced with tradition.

She gives at least one day a week in the hospital's emergency room and works every Tuesday in the Thrift Shop. Her love of nursing-related work comes out of an old desire. Even though she earned her associate degree in English from the Panama Canal Zone Junior College, she had always thought that perhaps she would like to be a nurse. Since, too, her grandmother was a nurse, nursing was a part of the "language" at her home and remains very much a part of her volunteer work here.

Besides the personal satisfaction that she gains from her volunteer Red Cross work, she strives "to ease the burden of the nurses so that they can give more time to their patients."

Someday, still she contemplates, she would like to go to school to become a registered nurse. She first became interested in Thrift Shop work when her mother was the president of a Thrift Shop. After being "volunteered" for the work by her mother, she saw the great job done by the shop. Since then she has been a loyal member on the Thrift Shop team at every post at which she has lived.

All of her volunteer hours give her pleasure and as she explains, it is part of her "in the Army." Certainly, as a member of a family with three generations of service in the Army, she is very much "in."

"Always," she says, "I knew that I'd want to remain a part of the Army. Even as a little girl, I think that I hoped that my fa-

Post PTA Holds Opening Meeting

"Both parents and children have a responsibility to instill in children the desire and ability to grow into adult citizens, approximately 800 members of the PTA were told here Monday night.

The speaker was Maj. Gen. John E. Wright Jr., who addressed parents of the opening meeting of the year for the association.

"This group here tonight has the most valuable asset of our nation in its collective hands — our men and women of tomorrow," the general said. "Only by a willing and responsible discharge of your inherent tasks, both as parents and as teachers, can we hope to continue our march toward a better life for our children and to progress as a free nation in today's troubled world."

Gen. Wright stressed the importance of the home when he said in your homes are daily demonstrated in the schools by your children. After all, he continued, "you control much more of their time than do the teachers and you are responsible for their conduct, both in and out of school."

The speaker said that parents and teachers together "make the school what it is — a flame when tempers our youth and prepares them for their future and our future in the world as we know it today."

Col. Richard C. Horne III, president of the Fort Benning PTA for the 1967-1968 school year, presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of schools, introduced the administrative staff, most of whom have been with the Fort Benning Schools for a number of years. Using a projector, she

At New NCO Course Candidates Getting Benefit of Combat Knowledge

By Pvt. Frank Kaufman
Six noncommissioned officers, fresh from Vietnam, are teaching their combat experience to teach the men who may soon fill their boots on the Southeast Asian battlefield.

Referred to as "tactical NCOs," and all on their first assignment since Vietnam, the men agree their combat knowledge cannot help but be beneficial to the candidates of the new Infantry Noncommissioned Officers Candidate Course just starting here.

In the words of Sgt. David F. Parker, who served as a squad leader in An Khe and Pleiku, these men are "getting a better chance than I did. I learned through the school of hard knocks, the candidates will benefit by our experience."

Another tactical NCO, Sgt. John E. Dittus, who was a platoon sergeant and helicopter door gunner in Pleiku, says the combination of experience and classroom teaching will be unbeatable.

The course, a rigorous program of classes and field exercises here and an additional 9 weeks of on-the-job training, is expected to turn out 8,200 fire team and rifle squad leaders by next June.

Already in training are three companies in the 7th Bn. of The Student Brigade with new classes expected to start each week until a total of 13 companies are filled in the 7th and 8th Battalions of TSB.

According to Lawrence E. Kennedy, Infantry School sergeant major, the course might serve as a forerunner of a program, perhaps "many years away" that will be required of all NCOs. In any event, Kennedy predicts the training will help reduce casualty rates on Infantry units primarily because the TAC NCOs can teach the "tricks of the trade" necessary for survival in Vietnam.

Kennedy said graduates of the course will have an advantage over their counterparts who went to Vietnam because they'll have a good idea of what to expect. In addition, he said it is two-thirds of the candidates who are designated as E-6 upon graduation. All candidates go through the course as E-4s. According to Sgt. Maj. William O. Woodridge, sergeant major of the Army, the course is "an extension of the long-standing Army policy to identify and record outstanding soldiers. It is not designed as a substitute for combat experience, but will provide leadership training for men with proven leadership ability before they go to Vietnam.

"The promotions given to men who complete the course will not directly affect promotion possibilities of other deserving soldiers in Vietnam or other parts of the world," Woodridge noted.

In his remarks, prepared for publication in the October issue of Army Digest, he said "the program will allow the Army to derive maximum benefit from the first two years of an outstanding soldier's service."

"A soldier selected for the NCO Candidate Course at the end of advanced individual training will spend most of his first year in service undergoing leadership training. During his second year, he will serve as an NCO leader in Vietnam."

The candidates receive 733 hours of training in subjects ranging from combined arms tactics to communications, weapons and general military subjects. Over half of the instruction, some 433 hours, will be spent in the field undergoing practical exercises.

The job of the instructor is to motivate as well as train the candidates, says Capt. Peter R. Lazik. He is commander of the 73rd Co., which is the first unit to use tactical NCO's.

With a total of 70 years experience in the Army, the first six tactical NCOs spend as much as 16 hours a day developing leadership potential, giving academic assistance and guidance to these future combat leaders.

Post E-9s Being Considered For Dept. of Army Program

A number of sergeants major from here are being considered for the new command sergeant major program recently initiated by the Department of the Army.

Under the program, sergeants major will be selected to hold command positions as senior enlisted men on the staff of a battalion or higher organizations.

Those selected will be awarded a single command sergeant major MOS, and will be controlled by the Department of the Army so that they can be most effectively used.

Commanders are asked to submit recommendations to the Pentagon to nominate sergeants major they want in the command plan. Requests will be screened by a DA board and they will be managed by a specially created board in the Directorate of Office of Personnel Operations career management. Command sergeants major will be trained and rated with those getting higher marks being selected for positions in higher commands. The Army may also borrow, at least temporarily, the officer efficiency report form for rating the command sergeants major.

Once selected for the program, there is no guarantee that a sergeant major will remain in the slot. Command sergeants major will retain their former MOS as an additional or secondary MOS as the year's estimated 11,500 of the 5,200 sergeants major were filling the so-called command sergeants major positions.

The Army also has authorized the promotion of outstanding E-8s in the program at battalion level. Starting this year an estimated 1,500 of the 5,200 sergeants major were filling the so-called command sergeants major positions.

It's a Lonely Town Without YMCA

Columbus can be a lonely town if you're a young soldier hundreds of miles from home. You're a stranger in uniform, without much money, and sometimes a trip into town isn't much better than sticking it out on post over the weekend.

Sure, it's an Army town and hundreds of divisions and activities for the GI have developed in the old Georgia river town since Fort Benning became the basic training ground for the Army's basic fighting branch.

Still, as a soldier, you're something of an outsider at most of these places. And the chances of meeting a girl—“How long has it been since I even talked to one?”—are practically nonexistent.

There is one place in downtown Columbus, however, that is strictly for the soldier.

When he enters the Armed Services YMCA, many of the problems disappear. Not much money? It's practically costless. Nothing to do? There's a wealth of varied activities. Girls? They're there for dancing, talking and just the plain intangible of female companionship.

Began in '39

The Armed Forces YMCA, which had its local beginnings in 1939 in a tent pitched alongside the Main Post Theater, has been in its present downtown location since two years before Pearl Harbor.

For these 27 years it has been housed in a three story brick building, 14 West 11th Street.

“The soldier is kingpin here,” says executive director Wade H. Stokes Jr., “because everything is planned with his welfare and happiness in mind.”

Stokes, a 25-year veteran of YMCA work who came to the Columbus facility five years ago, cites some impressive figures on the number of soldiers who visited the center since 1940.

“Through July 31 of this year,” he said, “we’ve had a door count of 8,166,309 since the day we opened. Average monthly attendance is 25,000 today.

Just what does the Armed Services YMCA offer, a Fort Benning soldier?

Weekends, of course, are the big days, when almost all soldiers are off duty.

Weekend Events

Let's look at what one soldier can do, using the “Y” as his Columbus headquarters during a weekend on the town.

It's mid-month and most of Pvt. Smith's $33 pay check has long been gone. Off work at 5 p.m. Friday and armed with a 48-hour pass, he has the time and the inclination to do something. Finances and transportation are the limitation.

A bus from Fort Benning will take him to within three blocks of the YMCA, where there will be lots happening this weekend. And the cost? Well, even a broke private can swing it.

Smith checks into the Y after a short walk. For $1.25 a night he can get a bed and shower rights in the third-floor dormitory, which he claims to have “the softest beds in town.”

There's not much going on in Friday night in the way of organized activity, but the first floor game room features billiards, ping-pong, chess and checkers and a variety of other games. There are corners for reading, books and magazines available, tables for writing and talking and a television room off to the side. All facilities in the bottom two floors are well conditioned.

A canteen counter provides a check cashing and money order service. Also available is a checking room for luggage and other valuable information on the city, church directory and telephone and mailing services.

Saturday, Smith can use all these facilities again, and by a 1 1/2 afternoon trainings and other fun functions of the “Y” on week-ends.

GSO membership is open to all young women in the area between 17 and 30 and unmarried. An application is required and each must be recommended by three local citizens before final approval is given by a membership committee.

So Smith, who has served with the foreign-born wives of soldiers, Stokes said, is welcomed to a free morning coffee hour at 9 a.m. After church service hours, picnics and outings are often held, and movies are offered at two different times in the late afternoon and early evening.

Fellowship suppers are scheduled each Sunday afternoon at 5:30 sponsored by local churches and service organizations.

This is how the Armed Services YMCA helps to solve Pvt. Smith's problems of what to do with a free weekend. Don't think, however, that this is a Saturday and Sunday only place.

Weekday Schedule

Far from it, the Y is busy every day. On Mondays and Fridays, its open house all day in the game room, on the sun-splashed patio in the rear, and in the basement weightlifting room.

Tuesday nights are for the chess club, beginners welcome, and at 8 there's a record hop with GSO hostesses.

The “Willing Wives Club” by earnings of the dormitory and canteen.

The Columbus Armed Services YMCA is not the biggest in the nation. The centers in Navy towns like Norfolk and San Diego claim that distinction. Still, Stokes and the hundreds of local citizens who have served with it over the years like to think that it has meant something to the hundreds of thousands of infantrymen and other soldiers who have passed through Columbus during the troubled days of World War I, Korea and Vietnam.

Post Scouts Win Annual Canoe Race

Two members of a Fort Benning scout troop were judged winners last week of the annual Canoe-A-Thon sponsored by the Columbus Jaycees and the Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America.

They are Wayne Wahner, son of SFC and Mrs. Arthur Wahner and Gerry Parody, son of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Armand W. Parody. The boys, both of Troop 37, were winners of the “A” Division, finishing the trip in 11 hours and 38 minutes. Second in the division, making the trip in 11 hours and 42 minutes, were Alan Braswell and Doug Speakman of Troop 56, Columbus.

A total of 62 Boy Scouts paddling 31 canoes down the Chattahoochee from the Columbus launch to Eufaula, Ala., last weekend completed the race, a first in the four-year Canoe-A-Thon history.

The race ended Sunday at the Cowles Marine landing in the Eufaula National Wildlife Refuge.

Tied for third place were Gerald Everett and Douglas Mote, of Troop 327, Mountville, Ga., and Tommy Edson and Tray Benson, Troop 30, Auburn, with a time of 11 hours, 43 minutes.

In “B” division, ages 11 to 12, winners were John Pritch III and Bill Gyzem, Troop 54, Fort Benning. Their time was 12 hours, 10 minutes.

Second place in that division went to Donald White and Kiel Bass, Troop 63, Columbus, who had a time of 13 hours, 23 minutes.

The boys left Columbus at about 4:30 Friday afternoon and made overnight stops at the Bradley Landing at Fort Benning and the Florence Marina at Omaha, Ga.

The chairman of the race for the Jaycees is Bill Bagley.

Civilians Are Cited For Their Service

An accumulation of 70 years of Federal Service and three official commendations for outstanding and superior performance of duty were recognized in an awards ceremony for seven Department of the Army civilian employees of the U. S. Army Infantry Board, recently held in the office of the Board President, Col. James I. Muir Jr.

Officially commended by the Army were three of the members of the group, Charles E. Costigan, equipment specialist in the Operation Maint. Div.; Nellie S. Lyle, clerical stenographer in the Personnel and Administration Div. and Morris Norris, photographer for the board.

Receiving recognition for their longevity of Federal Service were James Hardy, management analyst, and Wilbur Burs, budget analyst for 20 years service; William Gilmer, aircraft mechanic, equipment specialist in the Field Equipment Test Div., and Charles H. Costigan, equipment specialist for operations, for a period of 10 years.

In presenting the awards, Col. Muir congratulated each of their individual achievement and commended them for a "job well done."

The battalion average score of 91 per cent is particularly impressive in view of the fact that much of the equipment inspected had to be brought in from the field in order to be checked.

Because of heavy commitments, most necessary maintenance is performed after duty hours and on weekends. The job of supporting OCS, Soldier training, and the infantry school's recent tremendous strain on both men and material.

6th Infantry Division Set for Organization

WASHINGTON (ANE)— Plans for the addition of a new division to the U. S. Army have been announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The first brigade of the division will complete its training in September 1968. The addition of the 8th Div. will bring the total number of divisions in the active force to 19 and two-thirds. The number of divisions held in reserve in the United States will be five.

The net impact of this and special unit changes will result in an Army strength of 1,531,000 men at the end of the fiscal year 1968, the Secretary of Defense said.

Underhill served with the 7th Psychological Operations Group in Okinawa for nearly five years after graduating from Psychological Operations Battalion. He took both airborne and Ranger training here also.

He is a graduate of the U. S. Army Language School, Monterey, Calif., where he learned to speak Korean. Underhill has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the Air Medal and the Army Commendation Medal.

NEWLY STORY — Anthony Newley, who stars with Sandy Dennis in the modern love story, "Sweet November" for Warner Bros., is well known as the producer/director and writer of two stage hits, "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off" and "The Smell of the Grass" — the Road to the Crowd.

A psychological operations specialist will address the Muscogee Exchange Club Tuesday at 7 p.m.

After graduating from Infantry OCS here early in 1957, he was stationed in Japan with the U. S. Army Signal Overseas Contingent, 1st Battalion. He took both airborne and Ranger training here also.

Singing Society Sets Sunday Organization Meeting

A unique organization dedicated to preserving a traditional and unusual form of American music - barbershop quartet singing - will hold an organizational meeting in Columbus Sunday.

The membership, numbering over 30,000, includes people from every walk of life - doctors, lawyers, scientists and auto mechanics. Part of the reason for the society's success is the fact that a man can join without having a degree in music. All that is needed is the desire to sing.

The name of the organization? The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. The founder, Owen C. Cash, may not ring a bell to some folks, but to enthusiasts of barbershop singing, his name is spoken with grateful reverence.

In 1938 this one man rebelled against a trend which prevailed slowly but steadily - the popularity of a purely American music form. Threatened by the increasing dominance of radio, Cash decided to preserve this American tradition. He organized a song fest held on the roof garden of the YWCA Club in Oklahoma on April 11.

CHILDREN'S PARTY

The Marshall Morton Memorial Young Men's Club will be held in the Holiday Room at the Holiday Inn on Victory Drive at 3 p.m. The meeting will be conducted by Chat Fox, administrative field representative from the society's headquarters in Kenosha, Wis.

Interested military men are invited to bring their wives and children to the meeting. Highlighting the affair will be a performance by the Macon chapter, and a presentation by the "showboats", a quartet from Macon.

Infantryman Is Former Hollywood Stage Technician

HOPE, BASSETT WORKED TOGETHER IN HOLLYWOOD Two More Again in Vietnam

The screaming, ripping, rde. on post, a talented center with an unusual background is kept busy from day to day on many projects.

Directed by Hammer on the set after mail is not a commodity at least not officially - but in one unit of the 19th Inf.

Div., was put to work in his small carpentry shop shortly after being assigned to Fort Benning recently.

Co. A, 5th Bn, 1st Inf., on the basis of his civilian experience as a studio carpenter and stage technician with the NBC Television studios in Hollywood.

Bassett, a "point man" in Vietnam, is listed as a team leader, an NCO position in his unit, but spends much of his time constructing bookshelves, cabinets and other equipment needed for efficient management of the unit.

He said much of his spare time is spent in designing furniture for a home he has purchased in Pasadena, Calif.

As a carpenter in the television studio, he worked with such stars as Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Danny Thomas, Johnny Carson, Andy Williams, Ann-Margret and others.

He worked with Hope on an hour-long special before being drafted in 1965, and while serving with the 2nd Bn, 8th Inf of the 4th Div. in Pleiku, Vietnam, he was again called on to meet and work with the globe-trotting comedian on his 1966 Christmas show.

Hope has authored a book titled "I Never Left Home," and said the title never "him until he encountered his friend and former stage technician in the wilds of southeast Asia, some 9,000 miles from "home."

Bassett commented, "I was mighty glad to see him, too."

Work with a high school stage group got Bassett started on his career as a technician.

For scene changes and the organization of the stage crew.

The first measure of his capability was obtained when his school won first prize in National Thespian competition in 1962. Bassett won recognition not only as a set designer and builder and as a stage manager, but as a man capable of leading and directing others.

It took little time for him to reach his position as a part of the big-time shows with large audiences.

197th Captures Post Championship

By Spec. 4 Paul Turk

Planned by "ETS" losses of several hardballing players during the second half of the post major unit baseball season, the once all-most unbeatable 197th Infantry, captured the post championship with a 4-0 win over the 10th Av. Gp. in the final game of the season.

Had coach Jim Martin's Infantrymen dropped the post-season playoff would have been necessary to determine the championship. Martin announced that had there been a playoff, he would have had only seven men available due to the high losses encountered late in the season.

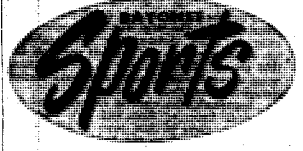

Those losses may be good news for opposing coaches next season as only two players from this year's powerful squad are expected to return, pitcher-infielder Tracy St. Pierre, who was 3-0 on the mound, and catcher Manny Crespo, who hit .351, good for three in third in the post season.

1,000 Men

Martin, however, comments, "With 7,000 men in the brigade you're bound to find and 18th Innings. He finished the season with more than 170 strikeouts, it was reported, though an exact figure was not available immediately. He could have played for any team on post all season."

In the final game, Albert Miller can hit receivers to 10-1, tops on the team, with a four-hit shutout of the aviators, using a chalking up five strikeouts.

Though the Infantry men nicked aviation pitching for only six hits, Ed Rivera started things with a rush by cracking the first pitch of the game to right center for a double. He died at second. Single runs were notched in the second, third, fourth and fifth innings. Jim Intihar rapped two singles for the champs.

THE FORUM LIFE LOOKS

By Mike McNulty

Hayden Fry, the coach of the storybook team of 1966—Southern Methodist University—took the wrappings off his present to the South-west Conference last Saturday and out jumped a football player wearing only one shoe. "How nice," shouted the athleticly petite female cheerleader, looking at the player's well-combed hair instead of the obvious bare foot. "He came back to Brycecream," she swooned.

"Kind of reminds you of Cinderella—you know, the girl who lost her shoe and found a prince instead," Gene Stallings, the head coach of Texas A&M, said to the tall student standing next to him.

"Maybe they don't have enough shoes to go around," the enthused student, a music major at A&M, replied. "Or else the player's pretty dumb," he added. Then the student was removed bodily from the playing field by a park official. "I wasn't a member of the football team or the band, and the game began."

The above, of course, is fictitious. But "Cinderella" is the only way to describe SMU after its upset victory over the Aggies in the opening college TV football game of the 1967 season. And, I'm sure, the win may cause many football analysts to have second thoughts about their line of work.

Apparently the experts thought that the storybook team of 1966 had left with the graduating class of this year, which included 21 lettersmen from the football team, and that the Mustangs would again return to their proper place in the cellar. So when they turned their TV set on last Saturday to view the nationally televised game, they must have felt confident when Texas A&M, a team they picked as one of the most likely candidates to win the crown, stalked out to impress this fact on their underdog foes.

But the predictors' confidence soon turned to that of irritating pessimism as Coach Fry's thrusters time and time again. When the Aggies didn't have the ball SMU's offensive unit, led by quarterback Mike Livingston and halfback Jerry LeVias, gave their opponents fits. Livingston's running and passing were the dominating forces in the first half while LeVias' brilliant pass receiving and running picked up needed yardage when the pressure was high. The halftime score found SMU unbelievably ahead by three points.

Throughout the third quarter the see-saw battle continued, with A&M starting to take command of the game. Then Livingston was injured and doom fell over the SMU team. His replacement was pint-sized Inez Perez, not quite five feet-five inches tall. At this point I decided to view the afternoon movie, but was forced by my friends from Florida and Oklahoma to turn back to the football game—they wanted to see the massacre.

The game continued with SMU still ahead by three points until, with less than a minute remaining in the game, A&M produced a breath taking touchdown. At this time it seemed as if the Mustangs would lose a heart breaker and begin a losing season. The predictors were now smiling; they put away the milk—their ulcers had calmed for earlier in the afternoon, and thoughts of that intrepid Tom Collins passed through their minds.

Their need for milk came back soon, though, as the tiny Perez completed four straight passes in the last 40 seconds of the game. His last pass, with four seconds remaining, found the leaping LeVias in the end zone—a superb catch that will be hard to equal by any player on the college scene today—and the game was over with SMU on top, 20-17.

The "Cinderella" team is back and running. Smaller but quicker than last year, the proud Mustangs may again leave a trail of upsets behind them.

Players Prepare For YAC Football Season Which Opens Monday

YAC to Kick Off '67 Grid Season

By PFC Ken Deats
Monday a group of youngsters will don their football gear, and hit the gridiron at Doughboy Stadium to touch off the 1967 Youth Activities Club (YAC) Football season.

That game will signal the end of this year's sandlot football for these youngsters. From then on it will be serious business. And, considering that their coaches, ranging from a full colonel to a private, have put in nearly 500 hours each in practice sessions, serious business is exactly what they mean. For the youngsters, touch football is for grownups; tackle is for kids. They will go by official high school rules, and will play in the safe, tough new uniforms.

The equipment, except for shoes and mouthpieces, has been supplied through YAC's employment and the cost per player is approximately $30. This includes helmet, shoulder pads, hip pads, jerseys and pants. A team of officials has been hired for the games.

This team includes an official timekeeper and 3 field referees, and will cost nearly $3,000 for the season. The cost of the uniforms and the official fee is being covered through YAC's employment program, the July 4th carnival and also from interested contributors.

YAC Football is divided into three leagues, each representing a different age group. The Biddies are boys from eight to 10, the Doughboys are the 11 and 12 year olds, and the Pony league is for 13, 14 and 15-year olds. Biddies play for six minutes, and the Pony league is a team trophy and the winners of that trophy will wear a distinctive patch on their uniforms. Each league will play its own competition among its own teams.

The teams have been organized by Spc. 5 Jim A. Sorrels, YAC's athletic director, and Sorrels says, "Since safety is an important factor, I've tried to give the little guys a fair chance." Sorrels is a former punting specialist for the Oklahoma State.

A schedule of 20 games, all to be played at Doughboy Stadium, has been compiled. The heaviest schedule belongs to the Doughboys who play eight games. The other two leagues play six each. Throughout the season, the youngsters will compete for carnivals and also from interest in team trophies and the winners of that trophy will wear a distinctive patch on their uniforms. Each league will play its own competition among its own teams.

Team support is expected to run high, according to Sorrels, and refreshments will be sold by YAC.

Top Gun Section Chosen In Direct Fire Exercise

By PFC John Ramannaskas

Rivalry was intense last week in direct fire competition operations between the top sections of Batteries A, B and C of 7th Bn, 10th Art, 19th Inf. Bde., to determine the battalion's best 105 mm Howitzer section.

Capt. Jerry M. Sollinger, newly-appointed battalion S-1 officer, umpired the firing last week at Cactus Observation Post from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Competition between sections began in the morning within the batteries to select each battery's best section. The top sections in each battery began their final firing at 9 a.m.

Honors were awarded to S Sgt. Ivory Hall's section firing as Btry. A representative. The battery scored three hits of a possible four, the best firing among the units.

The purpose of the operation was to use the batteries' howitzers in their direct fire role and to provide practice for setting up ground defenses that can be used in such places as Vietnam.

Direct fire, as the name implies, relies on firing at clearly visible targets within 500 meters or so, and for which little or no elevation above the horizontal is necessary for the gun barrel. In the artillery context, however, firing was not the only skill necessary to win it.

It was equally important to occupy positions in the least amount of time, which meant disconnecting the howitzer from the truck, "laying" the gun for firing and identifying the target.

According to battalion S-1, competitive training helps officers and noncommissioned officers evaluate the training and coordination of the gun sections.

The emphasis is on teamwork, speed and accuracy of the gun crews. Through this type of practice, the crewmen are able to become more proficient in the skills they have already been taught.

More competitive exercises, it was reported, will be scheduled in other firing procedures at a later date.

Unit Collects VC Materials For Museum

XUAN LOC, (11th ACR-10)

The 11th Armored Cav. Regt. is not only making armory history in Vietnam, but is helping to preserve it.

Since arriving last September, the Blackhorse Regiment has captured an assortment of material to the Patton Museum at Fort Knox, Ky.

The regiment also has raised more than $600 for the 33 million Patton Museum, soon to be constructed.

Included in the 100,000 square foot museum will be a Viet Cong rifle, machine-gun, carbine, and rocket launcher captured by the regiment.

A complete uniform and set of field gear will show the museum visitor how the individual VC is outfitted. Also displayed will be captured medicine, propaganda posters, grenades, and other equipment.

Maj. Bruce R. Nilsson, the regiment's historian, is in charge of the fund drive.

43rd Engineers Conduct Command Post Exercise

Proving that Engineers are combat ready and capable of operation in combat situations, the 43rd Engr. Bn. Hq. held a command post exercise this week. Hq. Co., and Bn. Hq. and Staff participated in the 24 hour test.

The main objective of the operation was to test the field operation ability of the staff sections and to determine any areas that need improvement. Capt. James H. Kivala, assistant S-3, CTC, was umpire for the problem.

Lt. Col. John L. Lillibridge, commanding officer of the battalion had an opportunity to see first-hand how his staff functioned in the field, and what areas of combat problems needed to be improved. This problem proved an opportunity.

In Dade County (Miami, Florida) the most dangerous intersections are marked with eye-catching red and black signs bearing the warning "Crash Corner."

EMs 'Double Lock-Ins' Facing Many Planning to Retire

From Army Times

WASHINGTON — Many career enlisted men facing retirement are running into a "double lock-in" problem, according to reports. The first lock-in, for two years, occurs when a soldier is promoted to one of the top three enlisted grades. The second lock-in, for one year, occurs if he is transferred on a PCS from six to 12 months before the promotion lock-in expires.

As a result, the soldier discovers that his original 24-month lock-in will actually run up to 30 months.

Those with ETS approaching before their extended lock-in is completed are told by local authorities that they have to re-up or extend their enlistment long enough to finish out the required tour. Otherwise, they are informed they can be discharged without retirement benefits.

"It doesn't have to work out that way, though. A man who speaks up and says he doesn't want to be discharged without retirement benefits, actually permits a different outcome — but parents do not guarantee it."

His promotion lock-in expires three months later, and his four was due to end, three months later, the man has the answer. In brief, was that if he declined to finish his tour, he might be denied retirement benefits upon separation but he probably would not be.

Here is the Army's complete answer, based on the assumption that the man has 20 years' active service:

If an individual makes application sufficiently in advance of his ETS to enable processing to effect retirement upon ETS. In the absence of such an application, the Army can separate him without a re-enlist to fill his own vacancy in RYN, providing he is not a member of the retirement date. Regulations (AR 601-210) provides that his case be handled as follows:

"Prior to ETS individual concerned would be returned to CONUS port for separation and six months prior to retirement date. Regulations (AR 601-210) provides that his case be handled as follows:

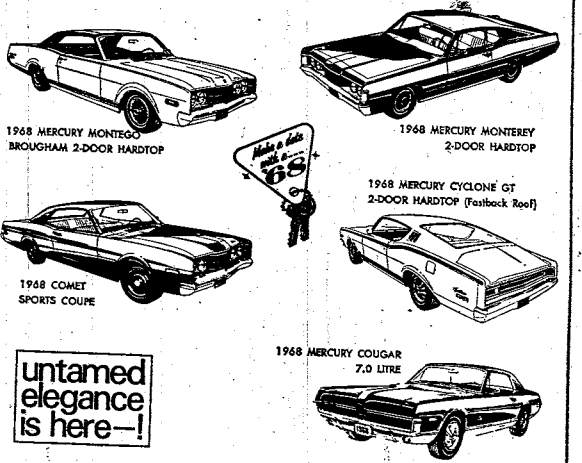

"Following separation individual would be requested to wait 93 days prior to re-enlistment at a one grade reduction in rank."

"Individual would have to meet the prerequisites for re-enlistment to include passing required physical examination."

"Upon arrival at the CONUS port the individual date of separation (ETS) would be extended with his concurrence for a period of approximately 60 days to afford adequate time to execute and process his retirement application, insuring that individual (eligible for retirement) was properly re-

OCs Utilize Other Voice On Sundays

The voices of certain officer candidates change from the traditional "cadence calling" to the singing of religious hymns for the OCs choir on Sunday mornings.

Volunteer candidates from the OCs battalions form two choirs of approximately 20 candidates in each. The choirs sing in Marshall Auditorium and Sightseeing Road Chapel for the services.

According to Chaplain (Capt.) Clyde M. Northrop the choirs were organized at the time of the officer candidate school expansion last fall. As each new company was formed the candidates were made aware of the choirs and the response of volunteers has been very good.

Chaplain Northrop directs one of the choirs while the other is directed by Charles Hiett and Donald J. Barry, a retired officer.

The choirs do not limit their singing to post religious services. Occasionally they are invited to church in the surrounding communities. Recently, the choirs sang at the MorningSide Baptist Church in Columbus and the First Methodist Church in Phenix City.

Infantrymen Are Taught Vietnamese

DUC PHO, (25th INF-10). The men of Co. C, 1st Bn, 25th Inf. are learning Vietnamese in an attempt to increase the possibility of successful operations in the Duc Pho District.

The instructions are being given by the battalion's interpreter. The classes are being held while the 25th Inf. Div. unit is taking its turn as security element for the battalion fire base.

During the brigade's first few months in the district, Co. C and the rest of the battalion drove out the enemy's main force. But now the men must search for hidden guerrillas who still terrorize the area south of here.

MPs

Fort Benning MPs have established excellent relationships with local, state and federal police agencies.

The military police enforce traffic regulations, keep heavy traffic flowing during the busy hours in the morning and evening and watch school zones and crossings to assist school children.

ANSWER

Working as a single unit, the 204th MP Det., the 62nd MP Guard Flt., the 194th MP Co. and the 988th MP Co. have established an impressive record for enforcing law and order and responding to emergencies.

Under the direction of Col. H. W. Blackledge of Greenville, Miss., provost marshal, and Lt. Col. D. S. Thompson, deputy, the military police maintain efficient and effective patrol of the neighboring communities providing assistance to military members and their families.

Aside from being charged with the responsibilities of enforcing laws and property, controlling military personnel and traffic, they also patrol the Chattahoochee River enforcing boating, hunting school zones and crossings to assist school children.

The Provost Marshal General's School and the Military Police Training Center at Fort Gordon, Ga., were established to fulfill these

Since the Continental Army days, the Office of the Provost Marshal was activated only when the need arose. It was not until WWI that a strong effort was made on behalf of a permanent police force.

In a short time the need for military police became more and more urgent to the expanding modern Army and the military police units grew with the need extending to all points of the world where Army men are stationed.

Although most of Fort Benning's military police will be working on their anniversary, the 194th MP Co. has a celebration planned for Saturday from noon until 4 p.m. Members of the company and their families will get together for a picnic at Weems Pond. The 988th MP's will be filling in for duty soldiers of the 120th. The 98th MP's recently had a picnic commemorating the formation of their unit.

Today's MPs proudly serve under their motto, "Of the Troops and For the Troops," and are skilled in many fields from processing prisoners of war to escorting distinguished guests.

"A flag for each family." That is the goal of a campaign designed to encourage Fort Benning families to fly the stars and stripes at their post quarters on all appropriate occasions.

The target date for this splash of national color in Benning residential areas is Veterans' Day November 11.

Throughout October, Boy Scouts will canvass selected housing areas, offering a complete flag kit for $35.00. It will include a three by five banner, a staff and bracket. The kits will also be on sale at the Main Post Exchange's Toy and Garden Shop.

Maj. Norman L. Williamson, project officer for the campaign, said that post engineers will begin installing masts in the next few weeks for the flag pole brackets. (See FLAG, Page 2)

Texas Disaster Scene

Chinooks Aiding Victims of Flood

BY SPEC. 4 LARRY MAHONEY

Four huge helicopters from Fort Benning are flying mercy missions in South Texas and into Mexico as the Rio Grande River continues to rampage through its heavily populated valley in the wake of hurricane Beulah's billion dollar destruction. Dispatched from Lawson Army Airfield a week ago today, the four new Chinook B-

Model "copters" from the 177th Av. Co., 37th Avn. Bn., raced to the flooded Texas cities via New Orleans. Their mission is to aid local authorities fighting the swollen Rio Grande, now an inland sea at the tip of E. Donley and Charles R. Graever. Especially hard hit are valley cities such as Harlingen, McAllen, Raymondville and Brownsville, Texas, and Matamoros and Camargo, Mexico. The Rio Grande Valley is a rich agricultural region and its citrus groves, cotton fields and cattle are bearing the brunt of the disaster. (See FLOOD, Page 2)

197th Sergeant Is Honored Here With Silver Star

An award of the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action was made to Sgt. Donald Garvin of Co. C, 1st Bn., 23d Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., Saturday during a battalion awards ceremony at Eschbacher Field.

Garvin was cited for his actions during a fire fight in May while he was serving with the 1st Cav. Div. (Airmobile) in Vietnam. He was a member of Co. C, 1st Bn. (Airmobile), 12th Cav. According to the citation, Garvin, near the village of

Local Residents Preparing For Annual AUSA Meeting

Although the annual meeting of the Association of the Serrator U. S. Army (AUSA) is still almost two weeks away, two Columbus residents, member of the local chapter, have been hard at work in preparation for it for the last three weeks.

James W. Woodruff Jr., general manager of WRB, radio and television, and a veteran of two years on the Association's Resolutions Committee, will chair the committee this year. Also on the committee is Sgt. Maj. (ret.) W. A. Callahan.

It is the first year the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Benning Chapter has had two representatives on the group which goes into continuous session two days before the convention starts and keeps working until ready for its report to the membership.

Committee members already have been furnished copies of resolutions submitted by the chapters and members so they will have an opportunity to study them before the caucus begins. The opening session of the annual meeting will be Monday, October 9 in the ballroom of the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington. Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor will make the report by AUSA president, Elvis J. Stahr, former secretary of the Army. The convention usually (See AUSA, Page 4)

Rod, Gun Club Sets Meeting

The annual general membership meeting of the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club will be held today at the clubhouse in the Harmony Church area.

Col. Lon Marlowe, president of the board of governors, will preside at the short business session and introduce members of the board to the membership. Refreshments will be served beginning at 5:30 p.m. The opening session of the annual meeting will be Monday, October 9. (See GUN, Page 2)

Payday Expected to Boost Fund Over Halfway Mark

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney
 With a handful of units and agencies already reporting 100 per cent participation, Fort Benning's 1968 United Givers Fund drive expects to go over the halfway mark with a big boost from payday — toward its goal of $180,000.

Today is the first payday of the drive, which began September 19 and will end the first week in November. An officer candidate company, the 50th Co. 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, became the first Fort Benning unit to reach the goal of full participation when it turned over its donations to drive headquarters last Friday.

And the entire 5th Bn., followed suit to become the only battalion-sized unit at 100 per cent as Tuesday. Civilians 100 Per Cent.

The National Bank of Fort Benning was the first civilian agency on the post to contribute fully, with a check for $500.

Total donations deposited as of Tuesday added up to $5,623, according to Capt. Preston T. Arnold, campaign project officer.

"We hope the payday will push us above halfway," Activities Club, the post surgeon on post is being made. The main objective of the campaign, according to drive chairman Col. David G. Sheppard, is 100 per cent participation with each person giving one half of one day's pay, or more if he desires.

Area Canvas. Fort Benning's drive is part of the overall area campaign which includes, besides the post, Columbus Muscogee County, Ga., and Phenix City-Russell County, Ala.

The Columbus-Phenix City UGF will receive $104,000 from Fort Benning toward its goal of $38,000. The remainder from Fort Benning, $76,000, will support on-post activities such as Army Community Service, the Youth Activities Club, the post nursery, and dental and health services not authorized at Martin Army Hospital.

The UGF supports 27 organizations in the civilian community. Most of them deal with large numbers of the military and their dependents. Included are health agencies, Boy and Girl Scouts, the Armed Forces YMCA, USO, and the South Columbus Boys Club.

Transporing Supplies. The Fort Benning helicopters, along with others from Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort Bliss, Tex., and the Texas National Guard, are transporting medical supplies, rescue vehicles, sandbags and other material to the stricken areas.

They are also flying hundreds of refugees to higher ground. At midweek, there were more than 150,000 refugees reported stranded on both sides of the border. The Chinooks can carry 35 people at a time.

Other helicopters were on alert here earlier in the week, but were called off Monday afternoon. A spokesman for the 10th Avn. Gp. said the Chinooks may stay in Texas "up to 14 days."

Surgeon Says Vision is often impaired by physical visual defects

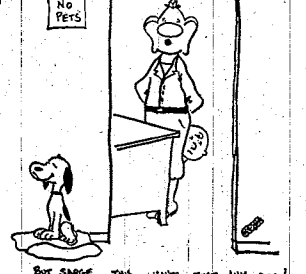

Efficient, comfortable vision is one of man's most valuable possessions. Through misunderstanding of what people intentionally deprive themselves and their families of this most important faculty. Although some visual defects result from pathological conditions, the majority are of physical nature. We will be concerned with some of these physical visual defects in this article.

Nearsightedness, a condition whereby people see better at near than at far, is probably the most well known visual problem. It usually begins in children between the second and fifth year of school, although onset can occur at any age. From infancy through teenage, nearsightedness later in life may indicate some general health problem or the onset of cataracts. The biggest problem with nearsightedness is that it usually begins so gradually that the child does not realize that he has decreased distant vision. The vision screening program performed by the school nurse is an effective means of detecting this condition.

Astigmatism
The old adage that if one can see 20-20 he possesses efficient vision does not always hold true. Astigmatism, farsightedness, and eye muscle imbalance are visual defects which can adversely affect the efficient operation of the visual apparatus. Astigmatism can interfere with the effectiveness of the eyes at both distance and near, blurred vision, headaches and burning of the eyes are the most common symptoms.

One of the most overlooked visual defects is farsightedness because, for short periods of time, the eyes appear to function normally. Symptoms usually found with farsightedness included blurred near vision, itching and burning of the eyes, and both visual and physical fatigue alter close work. Efficient vision at near is impossible when a large amount of farsightedness is present.

An imbalance of the eye muscles is a condition where the two eyes are not coordinated in their movement, that is one eye has a tendency to turn in, out, up, or down while the other eye looks straight ahead. This imbalance may be a permanent deviation, a periodic deviation, or a faulty coordination between the eyes. Any malfunction of the eye muscles can result in reading deficiencies, head-

Steps listed for obtaining Georgia auto plates, titles

The question often arises as to the procedure necessary to obtain Georgia license plates for your automobile. Unfortunately, much confusion exists as to Georgia licensing law in the minds of out-of-state military personnel. This article will describe the steps to be taken as to obtaining Georgia license plates and title certificate for your car.

If you purchase a new car from a dealer, the normal practice is for the dealer to fill in MV-1 form and forward the same to the Motor Vehicle Unit in Atlanta, Ga. The dealer's application will cost $1 for title certificate and $50 for the transfer fee. The license tag fee and any ad valorem (personal property tax) will be added to the above two basic charges. A purchaser may drive with the dealer's plates until the Motor Vehicle Bureau forwards the Georgia license tags.

The procedures are more complicated with used or second-hand cars which have Georgia plates already on the car. If the car is older than the 1963 model year, Georgia does not need a title certificate for the car. A party desiring Georgia tags must produce a bill of sale or evidence legally sufficient to show himself as owner of the car. This proof together with seller's MV-1 and prospective purchaser's MV-1 form and $50 transfer fee should be taken to the Muscogee County Court House. Registration will be issued here. This is the procedure if Georgia tags are already on the car.

Latest statistics prove dental diseases rising

The incidence of dental disease has been the subject of a great deal of intensive research in recent years. Some of the newer statistical findings are as follows:

Half of the children two years old have at least two cavities. By the time they enter school, children average three cavities. At the age of 15, Americans average 11 missing or decayed teeth. Every hundred dentures in the armamentariums of dentists in the United States have only half their teeth.

This situation, deplorable now, will inevitably worsen. Due to a combination of factors such as the usage of soft prepared foods, greatly increased per capita sugar consumption and, in some cases, an enormous increase in tooth decay and various gum diseases which all too frequently begin at a very early age.

To be continued next week.

The Chaplain Speaks

Couples should understand basic differences of sexes

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) John Dix Jr.
Recently at a Pre-Cana Conference in which I was speaking to a group of soldiers who were preparing to marry, I tried to bring out in general terms the basic differences between man and woman. As human beings, man and woman are the same but as sexual creatures they have deep physical and psychological differences.

The Family Life Bureau of Miami brings out the point that women, for example, should be aware that their man has some basic drives, needs, interests which are not hers and that when he begins to show these drives, she will know that these things are not hers and although she is not interested in them, she still loves her and the children.

Man is constituted so as to provide a living for himself. He is a protector. He needs responsibility to fulfill his longing to build, to do interesting things. His work is very important to him and it will consume much of his thinking hours. He is aggressive, even pugnant at times. In the level of thought he must realize that these differences are there. Do you agree?—or not?

Supply vs. demand

At birth, the supply is greater than the demand—more boys than girls are born each year in the U. S. Yet, our census shows there are one male for every female, the lag growing larger as time passes. Why? Well, one reason is that males between 15 and 24 are being killed, in accidents and in military action five times as fast as females. (Not we do not advocate an open season on women to even the score.) Men have always died at a faster rate than women, largely because they undertake more hazardous tasks and, by nature, take more chances.

The sad part of it is, this waste is unnecessary. Isn't it time the distasteful side took stock and quietly, but efficiently, set about preserving the "stronger" sex? And isn't home the best place to start, girls?

Junior Army Daughters Plan 'Country Store' Sale

Fort Benning Society Women's News

BY JANE DANIELS
The Junior Army Daughters Association of Fort Benning is busy making their contribution to the upcoming 49'er Party. The party, to be held at 7:30 p.m. October 7, at the Main Officers' Club, is sponsored by the Daughters of the U.S. Army.

The Junior Daughters, dressed in the Old West tradition of long gingham and calico frocks, are planning to sell their wares at the party's Country Store. Soon the young ladies and their dates will hold an old-time "stuffy pull" in order to make one of the confections to be offered at the store.

Other candies to be offered at the store will include chocolate fudge, peanut butter fudge, popcorn balls and rum lollipops.

The store, to be built as a replica of an old trading post, will also have in its inventory such handmade items as artificial flowers, lace garters and match boxes.

All of the girls in the association have either been making articles for the Country Store or decorations for the party.

Officers of the association are Miss Kathy Jennings, president; Miss Ann Maddigan, vice president; Miss Betty Eaton, corresponding secretary; Miss Julie Smeds, recording secretary; Miss Terri Riggs, treasurer; Miss Gayla McKonzie, historian; Miss Angie Oliver, chaplain; Miss Chris Zeranaki, membership chairman; and Miss Lee Clark, reservations chairman.

Daughters of military Reserve who are interested in joining the association may call Miss Zeranaki at 561-4653 for further information.

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels

For Mrs. Jackie LaMonte, president of the Geographical Wives Club, and for her four children, keeping busy is a deliberate never-ending project.

This project is carried on partly because the family loves doing things together and partly because keeping busy is excellent therapy for "missing Daddy."

Mrs. LaMonte's husband, Maj. Robert S. LaMonte, who has been in Vietnam for the last two-and-a-half years, will return home in a few short weeks to be reassigned here with the 10th Aviation Group.

Mrs. LaMonte, her son, Larry, 14, and her three daughters, Lynn, 11, Jan, 10, and Michaelle, 4, are all excited at the very thought of welcoming him back home.

Meanwhile, this summer they have all been enjoying camping, swimming and sailing. Whenver they have been able to snatch a few days from their busy schedule, they have spent their island, N. Y., where the then Mr. LaMonte worked for a bank and an insurance company.

Expert Sailer Mrs. LaMonte, an expert instructor, has been showing her husband to flight schools their boat and how to "surf" the native Florida shores. At Fort Hood, he came the leaving family tent. Now however, they remark simply, "It's the LaMontes."

As president of the Officers' Wives' Club's Geographical Wives, an organization of wives whose husbands are away on temporary, long-term or overseas assignments, she handles up a busy routine of activities including social functions and bridge for the wives, and frequent get-togethers for the children. "It helps us to be able to discuss our common problems and to have some wholesome activities outside of the home. It's part of making the best of the situation," she says.

Queen Chosen By Candidates

Mrs. Sara Lee Frier, wife of OC Jerry Frier, has been crowned queen of the 96th Co., 9th Stu. Bn. (OC), TSB. The queen, whose husband is a member of the company's third platoon, began her reign at the company's intermediate status party, held Friday, at the Sand Hill NGO Club. Mrs. Frier, married just four months, was chosen from 10 finalists, wives and sweethearts of the candidates. As the only Fort Benning

...wife of her husband's platoon, she has also been an active member of the company's wives' club. The young bride comments, "I almost feel like an OC's wife!" A native of Tampa, Fla., she graduated from the B. Plant High School in Tampa and attended Florida State University in Tallahassee. ## Dear Community Service

Dear Community Service: I am the widow of a military man who was killed in action over two years ago. Since that time my four children and I have been managing to get along on our pension and social security benefits. This month with all four of the children starting back to school I got caught short. We do not have enough money to take us until our pension check arrives. Can you help us?

Cought Short
Your situation is not unusual. Periodically we talk with other widows in similar situations. We recommend that you come out to our office in Bldg. The Army Relief Society provides a different function than the Army Emergency Relief program. Please contact us—we may be able to help.

THE OC WIFE

BY MRS. SAMUEL FISHER

Do you make laundry runs?
Are you always carrying fatigues?
Does something seem to be drawing your funds?
Then an OC wife you must be.

How many times have you waited for your husband to appear?
Then only to hear him say "to my desk cover I've been restricted, dear."
Oh yes, an OC wife you must be.

The big day comes and post privileges he receives. I'll get to spend some time with him you make yourself believe.
The PX, the Barber Shop and a flash is all you see. Oh yes, an OC wife you must be.

He turns "black" and you're so proud you could just bust.
But back at home things are beginning to rust. Oh yes, well, an OC wife you must be.

Happy day, he gets to come home for a night. Waiting until he arrives time really creeps.
But what does he do?
Catches up on much needed sleep.
Brother, you must be the wife of an OC.

He turns "blue" and the battle is almost won.
The weekend, the party, wasn't it fun?
And your heart is aching over, and you see.
An OC wife you, must be.

Now, as the time draws near and you look back.
The reason for all these things becomes very clear.
With a sense of dignity you see.
No longer an OC, but a lieutenant's wife you must be.

Future Events Planned At 10th Group Lunch

Upcoming activities were planned by the wives of the 10th Ar. Gp. at their recent luncheon at the Main Officers' Club.

With a Christmas work shop already taking precedence in plans, several wives showed some of the items which can be made at the shop. Mrs. J. V. Ham-mack, wife of the Group commander, showed a Christmas tree of styrofoam and macaroni, and Mrs. Morris Anderson, work shop chairman, showed a Christmas mailbox made from household items. The work shop is to be held October 24.

It was also announced that the 10th Group Christmas formal is to be held December 15.

The program also included a talk about the facilities of the post's Tot Town Nursery.

With the fall theme, "The Grape Harvest," tables were decorated with green wine bottles decorated with white candles and clusters of grapes.

Monthly Coffee

A fall scene of chrysanthemums and foliage was set for the September coffee of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives of the U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, at the Sand Hill NCO Club.

Third Brigade wives, hosting the coffee for the last time due to the training Center reorganization, served an array of home-baked cakes.

Hostesses were Mrs. Aldrin Walker, Mrs. Eldridge Sonnier, Mrs. George Panchak, Mrs. Charles Haver, and Mrs. Charles Cross with Mrs. C. C. Willis, chairman.

Diddy Bags for Vietnam

Ladies Preparing Gifts for Soldiers

"If it were our husbands, we'd want them to have a little touch of home here with them. Besides, we just want to send something of pleasure to the men in Vietnam."

For these expressed reasons, Mrs. William Colson, Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Ralph Robinson, Mrs. Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Joseph Purnell and Mrs. Bobby French, have been taking part in the American Red Cross project, "Diddy Bags for Vietnam."

One hundred Diddy Bags, small green canvas bags with draw-string closures, were filled by the wives with such items as chewing gum, cigarets cases, soap dishes, paperback books, pocket-sized games, photo cases, razor blades, tooth brushes and ballpoint pens. The filled bags were then taken to the Columbus American Red Cross Center for distribution in Vietnam.

The articles were partly purchased by money given by the post's Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club and largely donated by merchants of Columbus.

The wives' project started rolling because Mrs. French heard about the project from a local television program. She mentioned the project to other Fort Benning wives, who soon began shopping for the needed articles.

Mrs. Purnell, who made

'Know Your Men' New Officers Are Told

A class of officer candidates became second lieutenants in a ceremony held in Infantry Hall last week. Guest speaker was Col. Rex R. Sage, deputy director of the 1st Infantry School.

Col. Sage gave the young officers two rules to guide them to a successful career. "Know your men" was the first rule. "Continue to grow and develop" was the second.

It is not beyond our imagination that we will have sense forces on other planets during your career."

He explained that only those with a complete education will be able to take advantage of this "space age."

Col. Sage said, "If I had it to do over again, I would still go Army. The Army is a hard and demanding job, but its rewards are worth it all."

Timeworn Temple...

BY PFC JAY LIGON

Past the rolls of barbed wire and trenches spiked with punji sticks on the edge of the Vietnamese village looms an ancient Buddhist temple decaying from years of exposure to the elements.

The many monsoon seasons, the corrosive force of wind and time itself have taken their toll, and the walls have yielded crumbling slowly to dust. Fitting into the background of the rolling Fort Benning hills, the temple looks as though it has been here for centuries.

Located at the Special Forces "A" camp on the "The Green Berets" movie set the temple is a full-sized prop for the production. It is, however, only a few months old; the many years of decay and weathering took only about three weeks to feign.

Hank Wynands, the man responsible for building the temple and other scenery, began work on the village on July 27. The area was quickly transformed into a realistic replica of a primitive Vietnamese village.

An Artist.

"Hank the construction boss," as he is known to the cast and crew, is an artist at scene construction. Wynands built the temple from pictures and information he found in Hollywood libraries, clippings from National Geographic magazine and photographs from Vietnam.

Alongside the temple a tree, visibly decades old with roots exposed and dangling like fingers, climbs over the crumbled part of the temple wall. Wynands got the idea for the tree from a picture he saw of a Buddhist temple in Thailand with a tree growing in it.

Although the old temple appears to be made of sturdy material, it is actually made of plaster board.

"We are interested in how it looks on film," Wynands said "not in its sturdiness."

When asked the aging process used on the props, he said, "It is a trade secret."

Born in Amsterdam, Holland, Wynands moved to the United States about 11 years ago. He has been in the scene construction business about 10 years.

This is his first motion picture with John Wayne, the star of "The Green Berets," but he has worked on sets for such great movies as "West Side Story," "The Way, West," "Irma La Douce," and "Alvarez Kelly."

He has recently finished work on sets for a new motion picture starring William Holden, "The Devil's Brigade."

Now an American citizen, his home is in Covena, Calif. He and his wife, Nancy, have two children.

Most Cited Scout Dog Buried Here

"York," a former canine member of the 26th Inf. Scout Dog Pl., buried in a pet cemetery here, was the most decorated dog in the Army for his gallantry and skill in combat in Korea. For his courage and daring he was awarded a citation signed by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Williams, commander of the 26th Inf. Div.

The citation read, "The 26th takes grateful recognition of the faithful and distinguished service rendered in combat in Korea by U. S. war dog, York, a member of the 26th Inf. Scout Dog Pl., who performed 146 combat patrols between June 12, 1951, and Jan. 26, 1953."

On his patrols in combat, York never left through enemy action and was the handlers or a single man of his patrol units.

After the Korean truce, York was sent to Fort Benning to the 26th to be retired. In 1958 this gallant dog, which had won the hearts of his Infantry buddies, died.

For Ethiopian Visitors

Benning Sergeant Is 'Goodwill Ambassador'

Pvt. Sgt. Alfred Williams Jr., first sergeant of Co C, 1st Bn. Mech, 58th Inf. is often referred to as the unofficial goodwill ambassador for Ethiopian Army members visiting this country. Virtually every member of the Ethiopian Army who has come to this country in the last twelve years has been a guest in the home of Sergeant and Mrs. Williams.

"It all began," Williams said, "twelve years ago, while I was stationed at Fort Rucker, Ala. I was assigned a group of Ethiopian enlisted men taking instruction as aircraft mechanics."

Williams explained that when he first met them they seemed so bewildered by their new environment that he felt compelled to do something about it.

where they could relax. Once out of their assured surroundings, he was faced with a myriad of questions of all phases of the army and an American life in general. This session must have been enjoyed by the Ethiopians as much as it was by Sergeant and Mrs. Williams, for he has responded with his first group of visitors for the last twelve years.

Since that time the Williams' home has become the Southern "ama" of the Ethiopian embassy.

Recently the Williams had a rare treat. One of the original group at Fort Rucker returned to this country.

Williams explains, "When I first met Capt. Taddeose, he was one of the group of frightened corporals who came out to the house. His presence that first time was quite obvious because when Mrs. Williams offered to show them the kitchen, he looked as though she had just asked him to suffer eternal damnation."

When I asked him what was wrong, he explained that the man is Ethiopian never go near the kitchen. Taddeose further explained that a woman in his country would never consider asking a man to enter her kitchen.

When asked whether he had had the opportunity to visit with Capt. Taddeose and his comrades during their four week course of instruction in the Huey Program at Lawson Field, here Williams said that the group had been frequent guests at his home.

"In fact," Williams said, "the Ethiopian New Year comes in September and my wife and I decided we would bring in the New Year Ethiopian style. Unfortunately we celebrated on Friday night and I had to be at work the next day. New Year celebrations must be the same all over the world."

Posthumous War Medal Awarded Staff Sergeant

The widow, two sons and grandmother of Staff Sgt. Walter Haring, participated in a posthumous award ceremony held in his honor here last week.

Mrs. Corina Haring of Columbus, her sons, Walter, 13, and Mike, 12, and Haring's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, were presented a Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroism and an Army Commendation Medal.

Haring lost his life in Vietnam on February 16, during the action for which he was posthumously decorated.

A squad leader for the 1st Platoon, Co. A, 1st Bn., 22nd Inf., Haring was on a search and destroy mission in the dense jungle west of Pleiku. When the point squad was subjected to withering enemy automatic and small arms fire, Haring was ordered to go to their rescue. Maneuvering through intense enemy fire, he placed his squad's two machine guns in advanced positions and directed their fire on the enemy emplacements.

When the leader of the section and platoon's weapons squad fell, mortally wounded, Haring rushed through deadly fire to take over the direction of fire for his two machine guns.

Working his way back to his original position with the two machine guns, he placed them with those of the first platoon and staged a four gun counter attack on the enemy. His quick thinking, according to the citation, resulted in the destruction of many hostile emplacements.

Haring maintained his position in Vietnam, he was fatally wounded by mortar fragments.

The Army Commendation Medal was awarded for meritorious service at The Infantry School here from Oct. 26, 1964, to Sept. 30, 1966, before he went to Vietnam. Haring was an instructor with the Machinegun Team, Small Arms Committee, Weapons Dept.

Mrs. Haring received a Purple Heart in an earlier posthumous award ceremony here.

Vets Put Scout Dog Back in Action

TAM SON NHUT, (1st LOG, 10) If Ringo had been wounded in the Korean War, chances are he would have had to be destroyed. But Ringo was wounded in Vietnam and through the team efforts of two veteran officers and two dental officers of the 1st Log Command's 44th Medical Bde. While engaged in a fire fight with the Viet Cong, Jones unleashed Ringo and could return to the unit's base camp. Unknown to Jones at the time, Ringo was shot by a VC. The bullet struck Ringo in the nose and exited through his lower jaw bone. Darn's age from the gunshot wound left the dog minus one-fourth of his lower jaw, several teeth, and a small portion of his tongue.

For 11 days, Ringo was listed as missing in action. Driven by hunger — since his stomach was prevented from eating — and sheer courage, Ringo finally returned to his base camp at Dau Tieng. After the two-year-old scout dog was given first aid, he was brought to the 44th Medical Bde's 896th Veterinary Detachment at the air base here.

To repair Ringo's shattered jaw, a four-man team from the brigade was called in. Headed by Lt. Col. Donald B. Osborn, an oral surgeon assigned to the 24th Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh, the four doctors performed an operation that took four and one-half hours. The jaw was correctly positioned and then held in place with a strip of dental plastic secured with four screws. Although the appliance screwed to the exterior of Ringo's jaw, gives him a misshapen look, the dog is now functional. He drinks and eats normally and should be back in action in a few weeks when he regains some weight — this is the first time that a scout dog wounded like Ringo has been operated on in this manner and returned to full duty.

A Three Time Loser, VC Throws in Towel

DI AN, (USAECV-10) — A Viet Cong guerrilla recently turned himself in under the flow.

LESSONS LEARNED in VIETNAM

Maps: Units have been fortunate to have excellent maps of operational areas of Vietnam.

Maps are scaled 1:50,000. Aerial photographs are often of a larger scale. Large terrain features as well as accurate for navigational purposes as are villages and rice paddies to a lesser degree.

Map errors do exist, however, and this should be considered, especially when using fire support. In plotting a course of movement, the G-M angle for Vietnam is not so large to require consideration.

A good map reconnaissance is invaluable to any mission and should be included as an integral part of the planning phase. Such a reconnaissance does not stop at squad leader level but is conducted with each member of the unit.

Compass and Pace: The compass is used extensively everywhere in Vietnam. In the jungle and other densely vegetated areas where noticeable landmarks do not exist or are not observable, one must rely solely on the compass and pace for navigation.

A compass issued down to each fire team leader is desirable. Once in a semi-permanent or permanent base area, a unit should set up a compass check and pace course.

The plow, a bulldozer with a sharp slanted blade attached to the front, used especially for cutting jungle growth, was the major force which brought about the defection of the guerrilla. According to Maj. John D. Simpson, operations officer of the 168th Engr. Bn., 79th Engr. Cpt., the guerrilla turned himself in after being driven from his temporary homes three times.

Simpson explained that the defector's story began when the 27th Land Clearing Team of the 168th Bn. started clearing the last 500 acres of the Binh Phuoc jungle northeast of here.

Finding that his home there was being demolished, he moved to the Binh Tri jungle to the north.

Only a week later, Rome Plow from that area and force working in that area and force up his home there. So, he moved to the Co Mi woods further north.

One week after that, the plows were again destroying his jungle home. This time when his squad leader was killed the guerrilla threw in the towel and surrendered.

Splash! Splash! Basketball were not designed to be dribbled in mud, but sometimes it can't be helped. . . and then again it can. The men of Co. A, 1st Bn., 39th Inf., 8th Inf. Div. thought so. Choosing the only piece of ground available to them, a mud hole, they built a wooden court out of empty cans and pieces of tin.

Having conquered the elements, they now try to conquer their respective teams. From time to time, they even play the sport to see who will perform the comrade's details.

During a recent fire fight on the Bong Son Plain, word got back to his command that the soldier was again killed in action. Some time later, in an exact replay of the Pork Chop Hill incident, Hansen again marched into the command post, completely unaware of having been reported dead.

Signalmen Help Villagers By Writing Letters Home

LANG BIAN MOUNTAIN, (1st SIG-10) Despite the fact that the men of the signal site atop this mountain are 18 miles from the nearest town, they have sought and found some Vietnamese people in need of help. As many other units have done, the children are a rag-tag bunch. Most are dressed in faded clothing, some only in shirts that probably would be better off thrown away. Using letters printed by the company, the men have asked their parents and friends at home to send any unneeded clothing for these people. Dampness and cool weather make this village one of the few in Vietnam where warm clothing is necessary. Temperatures sometimes dip to 40 degrees. It is expected that some of the first replies to the letter sent out at the beginning of the summer, will not be in for a few weeks. Most packages of clothing will be sent by ship, which will take several weeks. Meanwhile, the Montagnards are supplementing their usual income, obtained from the sale of rice and charcoal, by working at the signal site where they are teaching some of the men their language in return for English lessons.

Citation Describes Action for Which Cav. Is Honored

FORT BELVOIR, Va.—The Presidential Unit Citation for extraordinary heroism against regular North Vietnamese Army units was presented to the First Cavalry Division (Airmobile) by President Lyndon B. Johnson at the White House recently. The award was accepted on behalf of the Division by Lieutenant General Harry W. O. Kinnard, Commanding General of the U. S. Army Combat Development Command, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, who was the first Commander of the unique organization.

The citation was read in the Rose Garden of the White House where the First Cav. colors, brought from Vietnam, were displayed. It read in part:

By virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States and as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States I have today awarded The Presidential Unit Citation For Extraordinary Heroism to the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) for its heroic actions in the Republic of Vietnam during the period October 1965 to 26 November 1966.

Following the attack on a Special Forces camp at Plei Me, in Pleiku Province, on Oct. 19, 1965 by regular units of the Army of North Vietnam, the 1st Cav. Div. (Airmobile) was committed to an offensive role to protect the key elements of the division and to destroy the North Vietnamese Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN) armor column dispatched to the relief of the besieged camp, and for the camp itself.

Young Unit

The 1st Cav. Div. having recently been organized under a completely new concept in tactical mobility, and having arrived in the Republic of Vietnam only a month earlier, responded quickly with an Infantry brigade and supporting forces. Using air assault techniques, the division deployed artillery batteries into firing positions deep within enemy-held terrain and provided the vital support needed by the ARVN forces to accomplish the relief of the Special Forces camp.

By Oct. 27, the tactical division in Pleiku Province necessitated a change in mission. The division was given an unlimited offensive role to seek out and destroy the enemy forces. With bold thrusts, elements of the division assaulted the North Vietnamese regiments across the dense and trackless jungles of the west-central highlands, seeking the enemy out in his presumed secure sanctuaries and giving him no quarter.

Unflinching Devotion

Unfavorable terrain and under logistical and tactical support would have stopped a unit with less capability, motivation and esprit, the cavalrymen repeatedly and decisively defeated numerically superior enemy forces.

The superb training, unflinching devotion to duty, and unsurpassed gallantry and intrepidity of the cavalrymen, individually and collectively, resulted in numerous victories and succeeded in driving the invading North Vietnamese division back from its positions at Plei Me to the foot of the Chu Pong Massif.

In Drang Valley

There, in the valley of the Drang, the enemy was reinforced by a fresh regiment and underwent preparations for more incursions into Pleiku Province. The 1st Cavalry Division deployed by air its men and weapons to launch an attack on this enemy staging area, which was 35 kilometers from the nearest road and 50 kilometers from the nearest logistical base.

Fully utilizing air mobility in applying their combat power in a series of offensive blows, the men of the division completely defeated the numerically superior enemy. When the enemy finally withdrew its broken forces from the battlefield, the offensive capability of the North Vietnamese Army in the II Corps tactical zone had been blunted.

Veterans of 1st Cavalry Cited in Ceremony Here

The Airborne Dept. here honored its 1st Cavalry members in a ceremony Monday at Eubanks Field where Lt. Col. Ardie E. McClure Jr. presented a citation medal to each of them.

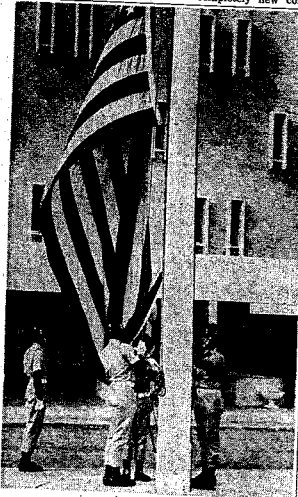

The individual recognition followed the award of the Presidential Unit Citation to the 1st Cav. Div. (Airmobile) by President Johnson in Washington earlier this month.

The citation was awarded for extraordinary heroism from October 23 to November 26, 1966. The action followed the attack on a Special Forces camp at Plei Me, in Pleiku Province, by regular units of the North Vietnamese army.

Using newly developed air assault techniques, the cavalrymen established firing positions deep within enemy-held territory and gave vital fire support to aid in the relief of the Special Forces camp.

Later, in the Ia Drang Valley, the 1st Cav. defeated the numerically superior North Vietnamese Army in a series of offensive blows.

The 1st Cav. saw this action after they arrived in Vietnam from Fort Benning, their training base.

187 Commissioned Lieutenants Advised of Coming Problems

A class of graduating officer candidates was advised last week about some of the problems they would face soon. Guest speaker Col. Samuel C. Smith said, "Right now I can predict what mistakes many of you will make. A number of you will get lost while trying to follow a map on a moving vehicle. Or some of you will drive your armored personnel carrier through water without checking the drain plugs."

The examples were used by the commander of the 2nd Lt. Bde. at the Army Training Center here as he spoke to 187 new officers graduating from the 33rd Co. OC. Col. Smith explained that senior officers naturally expect of you to make mistakes. The subject of his talk was aptly titled, "What a . . ."

Battalion Commander Expects of You."

He mentioned that traits of honesty, pride, leadership and good response from a member of the long and demanding 23-week course, Smith said, "I am sure you think you've learned a lot here, but I can assure you that you will find that there is much more to know."

Graduating with the highest honors was Honor and Distinguished Graduate 2nd Lt. Robert G. Greenfield Jr. AC. He is a 62-year-old infantryman. Commis- sions were awarded to Adjutant General (2), Military Police (3), Infantry (7) and Chemical (2). Infantry awarded 161 commissions.

A Myth-Shattering Guide To Survival of the Bomb

Lawrence, Mel, Colonel with John Clark Kimball, You Can Survive The Bomb; Quadrangle, 1957. This is a myth-shattering guide to bomb survival which offers new hope for millions of Americans.

It breaks the hypnotic spell of mass figures bleated into death and destruction. It firmly contradicts the "certain death" psychology advocated by well-meaning and mistaken propagandists of despair and futility. More specifically, this book is a manual for life.

Written in clear simple terms, the contents explain in depth how you and your family can survive the bomb in the event of an attack.

The authors, recognized for their experience in the field have gathered the facts from personal observation and tons of material - much not previously made available to the public.

This book is for the courageous, the indecisive, the unprepared, and - yes - the despairing. It is for those who are willing to prepare themselves for life.

Coffin, Tristram. The Passion of The Hawks; Militarism in Modern America. Macmillan, 1962. The author epitomizes the military mind in a biting portrait of "King Mike," General Douglas MacArthur, whom he calls "the most exquist product of the American military system and creator of the mob rivaling Marc Anthony."

To quote - "There is no evidence that we (Americans) are peace-loving or ever have been. We have taken what we wanted by force if need be, sometimes muttering a prayer over the quibbled." With these words veteran Washington political writer-novelist Tristram Coffin launches a daring satirical critique of the American military establishment and the American spirit.

VERNA LIST... Verna appears at post theaters this week as the girl in "The Girl and The General" with Rod Steiger and Umberto Orsini.

future of the civilized world is intimately tied to the military approach to international organization.

This incisive collection discusses functionalism in detail and its implications for the future of international politics.

Pope describes the events that led to the uprising, the action of the mutineers (usually in their own words), and the gruesome end of F. got and most of its officers.

He also includes a section on the adventures of "the black ship" after the mutiny in the Spanish and later, was insisted on rigid discipline still regarded as the finest made life hell for his crew.

The Black Ship is the first Navy.

Plans Discussed on Forming Of Post Basketball League

By Spec. 4 Paul Turk
A decision is expected by October 15 on whether or not a major-unit-level basketball league will be formed on post, while talk of a battalion level league, as was maintained last year, is still under discussion.
During the past season, the 197th Bde. had eight of the 12 teams in the league, and the playoffs representing would repeat itself this year, with lone teams representing such units as TSB and CTC. If major unit play were to be started, TSB, CTC, the 197th, MAH and 10th Avn. Gp. would be expected to field teams, as they did during the past baseball season. There reportedly has been a split between the commanders of the major units on whether or not to approve the big roundball league. A battalion level league might be used in conjunction with the major league, and the big games on weekends, and the secondary nights.
It is expected that a post team will be present for the all-Army tournament, as it was last year where several members of the 1st Bn, 29th Inf., team were selected on the post team after having the benefit of season-long practice and game pressure.
The post team, suffering from a lack of competition and picked from all units at post competition, fared well in the tournament before being eliminated by more experienced teams, according to Jim Martin, current 9th athletic director and coach of the post team last year.
A battalion level league planned in the 197th, he said, will be conducted despite any other plans made at post level. Brigade units would be expected to participate in a post league as well as in any lesser league here, according to Martin.

Saban Steers Sprite To Gymkhana Victory

Ingersoll Street's main post softball field will be the site tonight for the championship game in the post-level slow pitch softball tournament, to be decided between the defending champions, 197th Bde, Hq. Co., and Co. C, CTC; Hq. Army Training Center and Hq., 2nd Stu. Bn, 197th Hq. Co., winners of the brigade level and post level tournaments, repeated on the 29th. The 197th Hq. Co. has beaten CTC, 197th Hq. Co., in a double elimination meet.
The 6th Army defeated 2nd Stu. Bn. in the first match for the two teams, but the Student team went on from there to top the 197th Avn. Co. and 649th Spt. and Sev. to reach its game with 197th Hq. Co.
Games are played on the fenced, lighted post softball field near the Main Officers' Club at 6 and 7:30 a.m.
A total of nine teams were entered in the meet. "Early" games were held in the afternoon, with the winners of their first two games, to Hq. Co., Training Command and Stu. Bn., the 197th Hq. Co. and CTC, and 160th Trains. Co., who bowed to CTC and the Stu. Bn. team.
Wildcats hand the Hurricanes 12 to 7 shock. Only one forecaster, Mike McNulty of The Bayonet, went with USC which squeaked by Texas 17 to 13.
The Memphis State 27-17 triumph over Mississippi was won only by Burrows and Mabney and Burrows alone picked Houston which slaughtered the highly touted 11 from Michigan State 7 to 0. TSB's Thomas Griffin and McNulty were the only ones to pick Syracuse over the Bay-or. Syracuse won that one 7 to 0.
Today The Bayonet matches football with against challengers from the 197th Inf. Bde, with hopes that this weekend's contests will be a bit more predictable than the outcome of the Northwestern-Miami contest which saw the Second place winner was a Sgt. Douglass Carsley, Co. F, ISB, TSB, also driving a Sprite. Spec. 4 Thomas Ciolesco, Hq. Co., 10th Avn. Gp., with his Triumph Spitfire, took third place honors.

The cleanest car entry was a Volkswagen, driven by 2nd Lt. Peter Ford, 703 Co. (NCO), 7th Stu. Bn.
The course later modified to accommodate a station in which speed combined with accuracy as the determining factor. PFC John Wright, Student Enlistment Branch, TSB, won top honors in this event.
A first-time winner as a Service Club activity, Mrs. Billie Smith, club director, and Miss Anne True, entertainment director, plan future competitions of this type.
Judges and officials of the event were members of CHA-VAGA Region of Sports Club of America.

Bayonet Staff Edges TSB In College Football Picks

The Bayonet's forecasters slipped by their opponents from The Student Brigade by picking more winners of 13 college football contests played last weekend.
Started by four stunning upsets and one near upset, the Bayonet's three-man team managed in score only a 61 per cent correct prediction rate while TSB followed close behind with a 58 per cent rate.
The Bayonet's Larry Maboney and Donnie Burrows from TSB led the forecasters in telling the outcome of 18 of the gridiron battles.
Overall, the newspaper's sport staff had 22 correct picks while TSB had 21 out of a possible 36 picks.
Neither team foresaw the outcome of the Northwestern-Miami contest which saw the

'Chutists Needed to Jump With The Golden Knights

If falling thousands of feet the end of 1966, "The Golden Knights" held 43 of the world's 128 free-fall records may be interested in joining "The Golden Knights," Aeronautical International. "The Golden Knights," the United States Army Parachute Team, is looking for producers of two world champions to join their ranks. Beginning in October, 1969, "The Golden Knights" was known as the Strategic Army Corps Parachute Team. The original team was composed of 18 men who were brought to Fort Bragg, N. C., home of the airborne and the 82nd Airborne Div.

By the end of 1959, "The Golden Knights" had given seven free-fall demonstrations. Today, they have performed before more than 40 million people in 47 states and 15 countries. The team has made 4,983 solo jumps and 22,259 free-fall jumps. The team became known as the United States Army Parachute Team in 1961, and in 1962, they adopted the nickname, "The Golden Knights."

Wearing black and gold, symbolic of the Army's fighting spirit, the men in the team are some of the finest parachutists in the world. At the end of 1966, "The Golden Knights" held 43 of the world's 128 free-fall records established by the Federal Aeronautical International. In the past seven years, "The Golden Knights" have produced two world champions, five national champs, and one Helms Foundation Sport Parachute Athlete of the Year.

The Observer — by Larry Mahoney

A tie can be a sour experience. In football, a non-decision seems especially aggravating. Recall last season's shocking one, the 10-10 tie with Michigan State in a game touted as "the battle of the century." Nowhere was the disappointing score more discussed than way down south in Alabama.

Folks in the Cotton State, who take their football as serious as anyone, anywhere, were hopping mad that the Irish and the Spartans, each with the tie-blemished record of 9-1, still retained the first two spots in national ratings. In front of their beloved "Bama's" perils, Dr. Martin Luther King and the U.S. Supreme Court as public villains No. 1 in the eyes of most Alabamians.

Thus, it was a particularly cruel night last Saturday when Bear Bryant unveiled his 1967 Tide before 71,000 in Birmingham, only to have it end in a 37-37 deadlock with three-touchdown underdog Florida State. This, along with Houston's slashing rout of Michigan State, the fall of Miami's top-rated Hurricanes to Northwestern, and Memphis State's mauling of Ole Miss, signaled the start of what appears to be a most unlikely fall.

Perhaps the most famous bit of football wit and wisdom about a tie comes from Clemson's witty coach, Frank Howard. "A tie," he said, "is like a kiss on the cheek. It leaves something to be desired, and there are those who say they'd rather lose than have to live with it."

Let it be known that Howard's famous saying just doesn't apply to what happened in Birmingham's big Legion Stadium on this autumn-tinged evening. For Florida State, it was much more than snatching one of the prettiest non-relative you can think of. For Alabama, well, it quite closely resembled a punch in the teeth.

Cochs Ar Parsagian's decision to go for a tie against Michigan State in 1966, a much-criticized all over the country. Florida State's Coach Bill Peterson faced the same decision in Birmingham, but nobody could say that he made it even. His Seminole, inspired by an exceptionally intelligent quarterback, a courageous and capable receiver, and a half-back lethal as a runner and catcher, had won something more than a moral victory over legendary Alabama, a team that was supposed to beat their brains out.

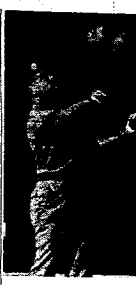

The quarterback's name was Kim Hammond, the receiver was flanker Ron Sellers, and little Larry Green was the halfback. They and their teammates put it to Alabama so hard that it was all but unrecognizable. FSU dominated the statistics, with 21 first downs to the Tide's 17, 120 yards rushing to 95, 287 yards via the air to 192. At the end of this wild improbability, it was very evident: This was very close to being as good as a victory for FSU.

TSB Boxing 45th Co. Slugs Way To Number Two Spot

Airborne's 45th Co. won five of its six matches in 4th Co. was four of its bouts while the 42nd proved victorious in two matches and the 46th finished last with all season standings.

The victory gave the 49th a season record of 15 wins and nine losses and put them some six wins away from the battalion leader, 44th Co. The 45th finished last week with a 14 and 13 record. The bouts that commanded the most attention last Friday at the Beans Street Arena were not the ones fought by the Airborne students themselves but by four box scouts from battalion-sponsored Pack 27. The bouts, which came to a close last week, awarded each week to the winning company. The fights began at 7:30 at the Beans Street Arena near the Lawson Field Officers' Club. Twelve bouts are scheduled, 15 and 14 record.

FIRST BALL ... Brig. Gen. James S. Timothy, assistant commander of the Infantry School, tosses out the first ball to kickoff the opening game of the 67-68 YAC football season Monday. YAC Football is divided into three leagues, each representing different age groups.

Standings now show the 44th Co. in the lead, followed by the 45th in second place. Holding down the third slot is the 43rd Co. whose fighters have a 14 and 13 record for the season and the 48th Co. in fourth with a 15 and 14 record. Action tonight will see fighters from the 43rd, 47th, 42nd and 46th Companies square off in an attempt to capture the rotating trophy awarded each week to the winning company. The fights begin at 7:30 at the Beans Street Arena near the Lawson Field Officers' Club. Twelve bouts are scheduled, 15 and 14 record.

10th Avn. Gp. Finishes Season With 24-2 Victory

By Spec 4 Gary Miles it was not an uncommon sight to see him taking an active interest in the progress of the team. Col. Hammack pitched three and two-thirds innings, struck out three members of the MAH team allowing one hit, and saving the last game of this season by striking out one of the team members their last ever in the Army.

Lifting the spirits of the team was their pitcher, Col. Hammack, who received his first win of the season. Rivers of the MAH took the loss. The team scored four runs in the first inning, five runs in the second, one in the third, four in the fourth, two in the fifth and eight runs in the sixth inning, totaling 24.

Lenon Is Following In Fathers Steps

"Like father, like son" is an old saying that has been used throughout history. The father is Lt. Col. James Lenon Jr., OIC of the Army Rifle team, and the son is James Lenon III, a student at Baker High School who recently competed in the National Rifle Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, for the first time.

Jimmy, firing the service rifle in the junior division, did not place first, either. He was last but his final tally put him midway in his classification.

MTU Slated to Host Gunsmiths Conference

Gunsmiths from the Armed Forces and Civilian manufacturers will attend the Third Annual Gunsmiths and Armors Conference being held Oct. 1-5 at the MTU in Ft. Benning, Ga. The conference will bring together technically qualified personnel to discuss existing equipment and evaluate new ideas and innovations in gunsmithing.

The conference, usually held in December was moved up to October because of the coming Olympic Games in Mexico City in 1968. This year's conference will include Colt, Remington, Smith and Wesson and Browning.

OBSERVER

(Continued from Page 35) were miserably unhappy. Birmingham calls itself the "football capital of the South," and all the downtown hotels and restaurants, bars and night clubs, were prepared for the routine celebrations of a "Bama victory." "Heck, boys, we can't lose. We got the Bear and George Wallace."

Birmingham was quiet Saturday night, except for the several thousand Floridians who drove up. The Alabama reaction was summed up by the marquee outside the Albert Pick Motor Hotel: "FSU Won."

Some credit for FSU's outstanding effort should be given to an announcement that Coach Peterson made to his men shortly before game time. The news came out of East Lansing, Mich. Houston's Cougars, 23-13 victors over the Seminoles the week before, had just decimated Michigan State 37-7. After their Astrodome defeat, the Seminoles had been down in spirit. "Well, if Houston's that good maybe we've got something after all." It was obvious to Alabama from the opening kickoff that FSU did, indeed, have something.

DRIVER GIVES IDEA OF 'MECHANICAL MONSTERS' SIZE

Maintenance Company Gets 'Big Lift' By Acquiring 'Mechanical Monster'

By Spec. 4 John Olsen
 To the men of the 11th Spt Gp, the old axiom "in order to move mountains" can become a reality.
 With the addition of a so-called "mechanical monster" to the group's 511th Heavy Equip. Maint. Co., large jobs needing a big lift can be so complicated.
 A 30-ton rough terrain crane has been added to the 511th's stock of equipment which can hoist 20-ton loads and clear its path through most types of land.
 "This machine will enable us to perform heavier maintenance than normally found in a unit of our type," said Spec. 6 Raymond Nielsen, who heads the section.
 Giving an idea of the machine's size, the crane's driver, PFC Ronald L. Harel, said it's quite as tall as the 300 pound tires. Tire changes are no problem because the crane carries its own hydraulic jack system.
 Powered by a six-cylinder diesel engine, the 30-foot boom is capable of changing booms, all parts of tracked vehicles can be replaced in minimum time.
 A scoop adapter enables the crane to dig, as a dredging machine deepening streams for small boat traffic. With an independent suspension system, the crane maneuvers with ease on marshy and uneven ground.

WAC Team Set to Mark First Year

The WAC Co. drill team, 1st Bn., CTC, will celebrate its first anniversary in the Company area Tuesday, at 1:30 p.m. and the public is invited.

The precision drill team, under the direction of S. Sgt. Godie M. Doss, has performed numerous times, and on various post functions, and in occasion for distinguished visitors here.

The drill team performs "silent drill" with "Forward march," and "Drill team halt!" as the only verbal commands. It has three women front with five ranks and averages 15 members. This is voluntary for the women and they practice two to three nights a week. For their anniversary, the drill team has worked out a new routine, which, according to S. Sgt. Doss, "should far outshine any of our other performances."

Training, Education Theme In November's Army Digest

The general theme for the November ARMY DIGEST is Education and Training. Among articles in this issue are:

- "Regency Is Also a Weapon" — conventional items of equipment put to rather unconventional use when the occasion demands. Example of the American soldier's ingenuity in Vietnam.
- "The Young American's Obligations" — a brief history of the "draft" and a check list of current regulations on obligated military service.
- "Cooperative Education Program" — tells how the Army combines education and on-the-job training, counseling and guidance to fill the nation's need for scientists and engineers. Co-op students gain education and worthwhile job experience by serving in Army research and development activities.
- "On Getting Ahead After Getting Out" — a plan to prepare the young man leaving the service for a good start in civilian life. The Army's armobile division gains experience and education for use "on the outside" are presented in this feature.
- "Snakebite in Vietnam" — a report on some of the 130 known species of snakes to be found in Vietnam. Though he may encounter anything from a python to a tiny worm snake, the soldier exercising common sense will avoid being bitten.
- "The Cavalry Squadron" — Crawford is the article, "provides exceptional reconnaissance for the service around battalion and brigade areas. It can do little, however, to deal off the overall battle area, even during critical battle phases."

Airmobility Is Criticised In Magazine

During the battle of Ia Drang, a serious visual reconnaissance defect appeared in the service for a good start in civilian life. The Army's armobile division gains experience and education for use "on the outside" are presented in this feature. # Early Leaders Termed Concept Unfeasible

Today's 'Jumpers' Share in 48-Year-Old Tradition

By Spec. 4 Richard Benson
Over 300 men who wear their Airborne wings here every week share in a 48-year-old tradition that began with the first military airborne jump in 1919.

The jump was arranged by Gen. Billy Mitchell at Kelly Field in Texas, where Army heads who witnessed it dismissed it as unfeasible.

Russia was then the first country to develop the concept into a national sport, and by 1933 military paratroopers were used in maneuvers in Veronezh, Russia.

Germany was the second military power to develop Airborne soldiers, which were used at the outbreak of WWI.

On July 11, 1940, a test platoon was selected from 200 volunteers from Fort Benning's 28th Inf. Regt. to begin Airborne training.

The 48 men were moved into tents near Lawson Field, and subsequently to Heighstown, N. J., where they trained on 250-foot towers used at the New York World's Fair in 1933.

With the success of using the towers, they were later purchased and reassembled at their present location behind the Infantry School on Eubanks Field.

Following their tower training the platoon returned here for more physical training in preparation for their first jump.

Pvt. Joseph King won a drawing to be the first man out of the 25-foot tower at Lawson Field on Aug. 15, 1940.

The 501st Parachute Bn. was formed in October, 1940, after a mass jump was made by the test platoon. The 502nd was activated in July 1941, using men of the 501st as cadres.

Glider Pilots Trained
During this time the "Airborne School," as it was known in 1946, trained not only military paratroopers, but qualified glider pilots as well. Glider training was discontinued in 1950 due to the increasing number of glider accidents.

"Tower Training" is taught during the second week, with the student using methods learned during the first segment, applying the first segment, applying to a "stick" of jumpers making a mass exit. He also experiences a simulated aircraft jump from the 250-foot towers, as members of the first test platoon did.

The third week is "Jump Week" where the student puts his training to the test. The men "chute" up at hangers at Lawson Field, and receive a short briefing on jumping and emergency procedures in McCarthy Hall.

Top Sgt. Maj. Views Post's NCO Course

The top NCO in the Continental Army Command viewed progress at Fort Benning's Infantry Noncommissioned Officer Candidate course last week. Sgt. Maj. Frank J. Bennett watched the candidates, now in their third week of the classes, as they went through the leadership reaction course.

The program which includes 12 weeks of training here and another nine at other posts in the U.S. for the job training. Graduates will become squad and fire team leaders, the cornerstone of Infantry leadership.

Bennett commented that the course was the "best opportunity" for future small unit leaders.

The sergeant major, who accompanied Gen. James K.

Woolnough, CONARC commander, on his three-day visit here was joined in his orientation by three other sergeants major: William A. Craig, Third Army; John M. Whitley, Fort Benning's top NCO, and Lawrence E. Kenstantini, who will go to Rigger School at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Soldier Joined by Father During Qualifying Jumps

CWO Louis T. Constantini is keeping the Airborne tradition in the family as he jumped last week with his second son to become "Airborne."

This made the third time the 1946 Airborne graduate has participated in Airborne qualifying jumps in his military career. In December 1956, Constantini made all five qualifying jumps with his son Louis.

2nd Lt. Louis O. Constantini, a recent graduate of the Officers Candidate School, has 19 jumps to his credit, and is well ahead of his brother Stanley, the family's most recent Airborne graduate.

Lt. Constantini is currently attending Jacksonville University and is also a member of the reserve unit, Co. F, 11th Special Forces Gp., to which his father belongs in his hometown of Jacksonville, Fla. The Constantini family's newest Airborne addition, Pvt. Stanley E. Constantini will go to Rigger School at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Looking for a job on an ice cream route? The men of the 2nd Bn., 39th Inf., 9th Inf. Div. have just such a job on their 20-mile route between Tan An and Rach Kein.

The vehicle for the route is a converted 3-ton truck with a kitchen freezer mounted on the back. The inventor, CWO Raymond Steward of Chesapeake, Va., put the wagon together to speed delivery of bulk frozen foods to the forward base camp. The major frozen food... ice cream.

The eight-week course was started in response to a "critical" shortage of trained cooks in units of the 16th. Before the class started reports from the service accounted for 22 vacancies, according to SFC Charles A. Edwards, instructor in charge of the food service section. S Sgt. Jack R. Boso and S Sgt. ### Military Studies Roadside Areas

WASHINGTON (ANF) The Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service (MTMITS) is studying present and planned roadside rest areas along the Nation's highways to see if they are satisfactory rest points for military convoys.

Of special concern to the military is whether future rest areas will be capable of providing adequate facilities for convoy drivers to rest and perform maintenance checks.

Last summer nearly 200,000 men were moved by military convoys, usually in groups of about 20 vehicles, over U.S. public highways.

Spec. 4 William E. Cefaloni of the 433rd Trans. Co., fired a 308 at Porter Range last week to be the highest qualified with the .45 caliber pistol in the 16th Sp. Gp.

Eighty-five men from the range, firing was done from the standing, kneeling, crouched and prone positions.

Tennessee Rotarians Hear Talk By Benning Sgt. Maj.

Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., received a standing ovation for a recent talk he gave to members of the Jackson, Tenn. Rotary Club. Scott, a member of the speaker's forum of the Information Office here, has spoken to audiences in numerous cities throughout the South.

The response to Scott's talk is described in a letter of appreciation to him from the Rotary Club president, which says, "I doubt if our club, which meets weekly, gives a standing ovation to a speaker over twice a year, so you know your program was well received."

Scott's lecture consisted of a 90-minute trip to Vietnam via Panama, California and Hawaii.

Officer Enrollment Increases In Special Career Programs

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Special career programs for U. S. Army officers are becoming increasingly popular, according to figures just released by the Department of the Army.

Since December 1966 the enrollment has risen from 2,941 to 3,578. The reason for this sudden growth has been an awareness on the part of prospective members of how the program enhances promotion chances.

The percentage of promotions among the members of specialist programs has been consistently higher than the U. S. Army average.

There are, however, many openings still left for qualified officers in any of the 11 special career programs. Officers may either apply or be nominated for membership in the areas of atomic energy, automatic data processing, civil affairs, comptroller, foreign area studies, intelligence, operations research, and development.

Selections are made on the basis of the candidate's overall performance of duty and qualifications in a specialty. About 75 per cent of officer applicants and 89 per cent of the nominees are accepted.

Those accepted for a program will receive any necessary training, and afterwards will alternate between specialist and branch assignments. It is emphasized that members do not lose their branch identification, that programs are voluntary, and that members may withdraw at any time.

U. S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson made clear the need to have officers in special career programs in an article he wrote while Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations. "Today's world imposes insatiable demands for multi-specialized knowledge. To stay abreast, much less stay out, in front of the Army must maintain a large reservoir of technical specialists."

Post Engineers Fighting Deadline at Fort Gordon

FORT GORDON, Ga. — A 4th Engr. Bn., said the 157-site where tests are now in kit form from California, company of Fort Benning is fighting a deadline to build 67 quonset hut line at Fort Gordon's Camp Creek for use by members of the 2nd Training Bde. L. Julian E. Pylant, commanding officer of Co. D, man company must complete its mission by the end of October because the quarters in which they are billeted here will be razed starting November 1 as part of a massive rebuilding project. The engineers are to construct the huts on the camp-site where tests are now in kit form from California. Plans call for 41 double huts, measuring 96 by 20 feet, and 26 single huts, 40 by 20 feet.

Quonset huts are semi-circular metal buildings originally designed as temporary housing facilities. The huts were shipped to Fort Gordon from California. Plans call for 41 double huts, measuring 96 by 20 feet, and 26 single huts, 40 by 20 feet.

An earthmoving platoon first grades an area and then the company's two construction platoons move in to start building. Each platoon is divided into four crews, each responsible for erecting a different part of a hut.

Pylant said each platoon has been putting up about one quonset hut a day. With the four-crew system, two crews can be worked on simultaneously by each platoon. Building quonset huts is fairly simple, according to Pylant, but his company's progress, "five kitchen complexes have been completed in time to feed Boy Scouts while they were on a camporee over the weekend."

Simple Operation Building quonset huts is fairly simple, according to Pylant, but his company's progress, "five kitchen complexes have been completed in time to feed Boy Scouts while they were on a camporee over the weekend."

"In fact," he said, indicating the lieutenant.

Attitude of Red Chinese Explored In Coming Issue of Army Review

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan.—Eleven original articles appear in the October issue of the U. S. Army professional journal, the MILITARY REVIEW.

"Red Paper Tiger" by Army Col. John B. McKinley, "Operation Steel Horse" by Army Lt. Col. Lloyd J. Picos and "Aden: Strategic Crossroads" by Anthony Harrigan, associate editor of the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier, are the front cover features for the month.

"Red Paper Tiger"—Col. McKinley feels that China, in time, may temper her attitude toward the Soviet Union, and other nations of the world, in order to survive. For his ideas, read "Red Paper Tiger."

"Operation Steel Horse"—Once the Viet Cong elements had been pushed beyond aillery range, our artillery was useless or was hit. "Operation Steel Horse" mobilized our artillery and had a psychological impact on the enemy.

Roads Closed
Two roads leading into Fort Benning are closed temporarily to allow for repairs.

flag kits as a "patriotic example." Over 365 homes in the immediate area purchased the kits, and 35 other FTA's in Muscogee County joined the campaign. Over 1,500 flags were sold.

Now Fort Benning is hoping to follow Field Avenue's lead. A campaign has begun to encourage all Fort Benning families to fly the stars and stripes at their post quarters.

Boy Scouts have canvassed and selected housing areas, and selling a complete flag kit for $3.50. The kits are also on sale at the Main post Exchange's Toy and Garden Shop.

Post engineers are installing mountings on all main post quarters for the flag pole brackets. This is being done free of charge, and without requests by residents of the quarters.

The flag kit includes three by five flag, a staff and brackets.

Fort Benning is aiming for a splash of national color in its residential areas on Veterans' Day, November 11.

—one is a bolt — and can be disassembled. Now instead of taking the tent apart, the hook comes apart and can be replaced on the spot. The job of hauling the tent to the repair has been eliminated.

Big Job

"It was a big job," Steele said, "you always wound up with a 300-pound tent in your lap."

Steele, 38, has been an employee at Fort Benning since 1961. He is married to Dorothy Juanita Steele and the father of two. The Steeles live at Rt. 1, Manchester, Ga.

Steele's new hook provides simple, quick installation resulting in a more efficient, cheaper operation — certainly worth a handshaker.

49'er

The party is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Main Officers' Club. Games, a floor show, plenty of food and drink from Maggie's Chuck Wagon, music, and a Country Store will all be offered during the night of entertainment.

Tickets may be purchased at the door. Officers' Club membership card will be required for admittance. (See story, picture on Society Page.)

AUSA

Such tours are strongly encouraged by Kavanaugh and other campaign officials. Any unit or office can arrange them through his office. The number is 545-1900.

"These tours can really help you understand where your gut goes," Kavanaugh said.

The drive is an overall campaign held once a year in Columbus, Phenix City, Fort Benning, Muscogee and Russell Counties.

Fort Benning's $180,000 will be split two ways. The Columbus Phenix City UGP will receive $104,000 of this total of $228,000. The remaining $76,000 will support on-post activities such as Army Community Service, the Youth Activities Club, and post nursery, and dental and health services.

The final conference Wednesday morning, on the subject of "American Soldiers in Combat-Vietnam," will be conducted by Maj. Gen. Ellis W. Williamson, former assistant commandant of the Infantry School and now at Fort Polk, La., Maj. Gen. William E. Dupuy, Joint Chiefs of Staff, and sergeant major of the Army Woodbridge.

A business meeting and awards ceremony will be held in the afternoon at which time the local AUSA chapter will be in the spotlight as it receives a plaque for having the largest membership, the organization's 119 units and another for the largest input of new members during the preceding year.

The convention will conclude Wednesday morning with the formal opening dinner at the hotel's exhibit tent at which Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge will receive the Marshall Medal and will make the principle address.

During the entire three days, over 92,000 square feet of space in the hotel's exhibit rooms, lobby and outside mall will be taken over by industrial firms and defense suppliers who will show the latest in newly developed weapons, equipment and military hardware. Other displays will depict the activities of Army commands and agencies.

The local group of conferees will depart Washington Thursday morning for the return to Columbus and Fort Benning.

Commanding General Issues Post Anniversary Message

It gives me great pleasure on the occasion of the 49th anniversary of the establishment of this post, Oct. 7, 1918, to extend my personal congratulations and best wishes to all personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Now is an appropriate time to review the accomplishments of the past year with pride and satisfaction. It is also time to look forward to the coming year and to anticipate the heavy responsibilities we face as we continue to put forth a maximum effort to achieve the objectives of our assigned missions. Your past efforts have been most gratifying and have contributed directly to the defense of a free world.

You have my sincere appreciation and best wishes as you begin another year of service.

Surgeon Says

Rabies 100 per cent fatal if treatment is neglected

"Although rabies is an uncommon disease, you should be aware that it is always fatal, however, it can be prevented," warned Dr. David Madorsky of the preventive medicine division of the Surgeon's office. Despite the fact that it is seldom seen today, rabies is still an important problem, he said. Each year approximately two million persons are bitten and about 30,000 of them undergo treatment for rabies.

Madorsky described rabies as a disease caused by a virus found mainly in the brain, salivary glands and saliva of dogs, cats, raccoons, monkeys, skunks, rabbits, bats, foxes and other warm blooded animals. It can be present in these animals for a short time or for a long period before signs of the disease appear.

Transmitted by saliva, the virus is transmitted by saliva through an open wound such as a bite. The virus generally is present in the saliva only for the two to three day period before the animal shows external evidence of having the disease. Thus, an animal that has attacked and bitten may outwardly appear normal. The virus usually associated with rabid dogs, which is drooling from the mouth, snarling and unnatural stance, does not appear until the disease is in its late stages. This is why it is important that an animal which has bitten someone be captured and confined for observation to determine if it actually has rabies.

Time Varies

In humans the time between being bitten by a rabid animal and the onset of symptoms is also variable. They can occur within ten days or as long as seven months. Once symptoms have appeared, however, the disease is always fatal. The important thing to remember, he said, is to get proper medical attention quickly.

Treatment is most effective when started soon after the bite and it has been determined the attacking animal was diseased by rabies.

Treatment is often painful and sometimes carries with it an element of danger. Every effort must be made to locate the animal because if it is not rabid, there is no need for the antirabies treatment and the victim, frequently a child, is spared pain and days of worry. A person who is bitten must be given as complete a description as possible of the animal and the situation under which he was attacked to aid in location and capture.

Constantly on Guard

"Your Preventive Medicine Div., in cooperation with the Station Veterinarian, is constantly guarding against rabies outbreaks, and stands ready to offer his full assistance in any event of an attack on any person by a rabid animal," Madorsky stated. "These two agencies also work closely with their counterparts to insure that protection extends to both the military and the surrounding civilian community."

Madorsky asks that each person with pets consider it his duty to protect both animals and people against this disease by insuring that all pets over three months of age are currently vaccinated against rabies.

The following check list is a handy rabies reference.

1. DO report to Emergency Room of Martin Army Hospital if bitten.
2. DO attempt to discover the owner of the animal and/or where it can be located so it may be observed for a period of time.
3. DO keep all pets currently vaccinated. (Vaccination service is available at the Veterinary Clinic each week day afternoon between 1 - 3 p.m.)
4. DO teach children not to pet wild animals.
5. DO teach children not to pet animals they do not know.
6. DO cooperate with medical and other authorities when questions are asked regarding the bite and bite circumstances.

The Chaplain Speaks

Jewish faith observes beginning of new year

By Chaplain (Capt.) Jonas Goldberg

As the sun set October 4, Jews all over the world gathered to observe the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashana, one of the most sacred days in their history. According to the Hebrew calendar, we marked the beginning of the year 5728.

The Jewish New Year is a profoundly serious Holy Day, during which Jews come together to pray, to examine their deeds and their relationship to God and to each other, to remember the past and to dedicate themselves to the future. It is the first of the great "Days of Awe," a 10-day period, culminating in Yom Kipur, the Day of Atonement. According to Jewish tradition, man's fate is written down on Rosh Hashana and sealed on Yom Kipur.

The traditional Rosh Hashana service centers around prayer and self-examination, and it reaches a dramatic note when the "shofar" (a hollow ram's horn) is sounded. The sound is piercing and powerful; it symbolizes many things to Jews: a call to battle, the passing of the old year, the redemption of a holy shrine such as the Western Wall of Solomon's Temple, a call to repentance, a plea to God that he remember man and an alarm to arouse man to the awareness of his responsibility to God and his fellow man.

Through the High Holy Days is solemn, it is colored with an underlying joyousness in its traditional songs and poetry. The wish for a "sweet year" of happiness and fulfillment is expressed when a piece of bread or apple is dipped into honey in the hope that "sweetness" will favor the coming year.

From sundown October 13 through sundown of the following day, Jews throughout the world will observe Yom Kipur, the most sacred and solemn of the Jewish Holy Days. Yom Kipur is observed by fasting, prayer and a searching reappraisal of the individual's behavior. Yom Kipur is described in the Bible, as the "Sabbath of the Sabbaths," and is for all Jews, the holiest day of the year.

The opening service on Yom Kipur Eve is called "Kol Nidre" (all wrong), and is a plea for God's forgiveness of human fallibility, should man fail to keep the promises made to God. In the words of one of the Jewish codes of Law, "For transgressions between man and God, Yom Kipur, makes atonement, but for transgressions between man and his fellow man, Yom Kipur does not make atonement until his fellow man has been placated." The melody which accompanies "Kol Nidre" is one of the most haunting and beautiful of all liturgical works.

The Yom Kipur service continues throughout the day. A section of the Torah (Five Books of Moses) read on this day, is taken from the Book of Deuteronomy. "Behold, I have set before you this day life and good, and death and evil. . . . Many years ago if Rover was inclined to supplement his diet with human flesh, he was allowed one free bit under the "first bite rule." This is not the case today. Most states impose liability on Rover's owner where the animal has vicious propensities toward the possibility of injuring a person who is not provoking him."

A minority of states place strict liability on the dog owner. Some of these states hold that there has to be prior knowledge of the dog's viciousness. The state of Washington provides that the owner may be held responsible regardless of former viciousness of the dog. The owner's knowledge of such viciousness. This applies where the victim is bitten in a public place or where he is lawfully in or on a private place, the definition of which includes property of the owner.

One of the major obstacles to an immediate denture program enactment, is the cost estimates. All authorities agree that the most practical way to launch a new program of this type is to start with children entering the first grade of public or parochial school and then extend it to each new class.

Approximately 4 million children reach the age of six each year. The cost of examining and treating a child would average $30 or a total of $120-million the first full year of denture care.

Thereafter, the maintenance of each child's teeth would run to about $15 a year. At the end of eight years, therefore, the annual total would be $540 million. How much of this enormous sum the federal government will or can subsidize is anyone's guess.

There are many compelling factors inherent in this type of planning. For one thing, it would impose severe strains on the dental profession whose total numbers would be far short of those required for the implementation of denture care.

One cannot criticize governmental emphasis on oral health for children, but perhaps some form of federal dental insurance for adults should be considered. This might be visionary thinking, at present, but in the not-too-distant future we may yet reap the benefits of such much needed legislation.

In the meantime, it behooves us all to pursue a program of vigorous home care, adequate professional treatment and limitation of dietary sweets to assure ourselves freedom from dental disease.

3rd Army Commander Sends Benning Anniversary Message

Dear General Wright:

On behalf of the men and women of the Third United States Army, I congratulate you and the members of your command on the forty-ninth anniversary of the United States Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, on October 7, 1918.

Established during WWI, Fort Benning has provided the Army with superbly trained Infantrymen—both officer and enlisted—for nearly half a century. Since 1946, when it became the United States Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning has been instrumental in the development of doctrine for the ever-expanding requirements of modern warfare. Fort Benning occupies a position of unique importance in the military training system.

We are proud of your past accomplishments and wish you continued success in carrying out your vital mission.

Sincerely,
J. L. THROCKMORTON
Lieutenant General, USA
Commanding

Dog owners should be aware of liabilities concerning bites

There are approximately 13 million pet dogs in the United States. Some of them bite. Therefore, dog owners should become familiar with their potential liability occasioned by their pet biting people.

Many years ago if Rover was inclined to supplement his diet with human flesh, he was allowed one free bit under the "first bite rule." This is not the case today. Most states impose liability on Rover's owner where the animal has vicious propensities toward the possibility of injuring a person who is not provoking him."

This applies where the victim is bitten in a public place or where he is lawfully in or on a private place, the definition of which includes property of the owner.

Cost is major obstacle for denture program

One of the major obstacles to an immediate denture program enactment, is the cost estimates. All authorities agree that the most practical way to launch a new program of this type is to start with children entering the first grade of public or parochial school and then extend it to each new class.

'Linen Fashions' Shown At Post Wives Meeting

At the luncheon for the wives of the Missile Committee, supervised by Mrs. Milford Downey, School's Westport Dept., were hostesses. The suggestion was, "The next time that you haven't a thing to wear, look into your linen closet." The luncheon was held recently at the Benning Country Club. The linen closet was demonstrated as a source of fashion in a program which featured the latest styles created from towels, sheets, bedspreads and shower curtains.
 Styles ranging from Russian pant-suits to formal hostess gowns were modeled by Charles Edwards and her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Webb. Mrs. Glenn West and Mrs. Narrator and representative of a local store, Mrs. Ward Miller, explained each fashion could be created at home wearing assistance. Mrs. Albert Muehke and Mrs. Walter Gemmill.

by Jane Daniels

Spec. 6 Hazel Taylor, wife of S.Sgt. Bassett Taylor, is another one of those Army wives pulling double duty.

Specialist Taylor has been a member of the Women's Army Corps for the last four years. Married almost two years, she says that keeping the double duties separated is no problem for her. "After we were married," she says, "People used to try to tease me by asking, 'Well, now who's boss at your house?'" Without hesitation she grins, "That answer is simple. My husband is boss."

Nevertheless, the separation of household duties and of Army duties were not always distinct. Remembering back to the time when she and her husband were living in the Capehart area, she laughs. "I was the only housewife on the block to stand morning routine."

Husband in Vietnam

Recently Sgt. Taylor left for Vietnam and Spec. Taylor moved into the WAC Bachelor Enlisted Quarters on post. Even before her husband left for overseas duty, however, Mrs. Taylor had many hours to fill with reading and housekeeping. For Sgt. Taylor spent long hours at the Army Training Center as a drill instructor. His time-consuming job limited their time together, but the Army wife relates that their favorite activities together were lawing and fishing.

She is making plans to meet her husband this winter in Hawaii while he takes his rest and recreation leave there.

Staying Busy

New, too, she is staying busy in her job as personnel specialist at the Infantry Center's Troop Commandery.

The Taylors met while they were stationed at Fort Ord, Calif. He was a drill instructor and she was a textile equipment specialist. They met during a practice session for an Armed Forces Day parade. After the outcome of that practice, Spec. Taylor says that she cannot honestly complain about parade practice "ever again."

Soon after their meeting at Fort Ord, her future husband was reassigned to Fort Benning. She re-enlisted so that she could follow him and on Nov. 27, 1965, they were married in Columbus, Ga.

Wanted to Travel

Asked why she wanted to become a member of the Women's Army Corps, she answers that she "wanted to travel and to meet people." One of her prevailing wishes is to travel throughout Europe.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beasley of Beaumont, Tex., she joined

Mrs. James I. Muir Jr., wife of the president of the U. S. Army Infantry Board, was the hostess for a tea for the ladies of the board.

The event, held in Mrs. Muir's home recently, was a special way of saying goodbye to Mrs. George M. Griswold, whose husband, Col. Griswold, recently retired.

A gift was also presented to Mrs. Griswold.

NEW PISTOL EXPLAINED BY HELLSTROM

Demonstration Shows Advantages Of Newly Developed Machine Pistol

A new concept in automatic firing was demonstrated to members of the Infantry Center and members of the annual Gunsmiths and Artisans Conference here this week.

A new machine pistol, Model 76, developed by Smith and Wesson Inc., was demonstrated to members of the Infantry Board, Infantry Center, Hq., Weapons Dept. and the Infantry Human Research Unit.

Douglas R. Hellstrom, executive vice president of Smith and Wesson Inc., and W. W. Charlton, research engineer, conducted the demonstration at Lower Shelton Range pointing out the advantages of the weapon.

"Firing a standard gauge 9 mm cartridge, the Model 76 is capable of belching out 720 rounds of ammunition per minute—more than either the Thompson submachine gun or the M3 Greasegun.

The compact machine is built of semi-automatic and automatic weapon with an effective range of about 200 yards.

Hellstrom said the machine pistol could be a good jungle weapon because it is light—lighter than either the Thompson or the M3—and is easy to handle. He said the gun can easily be carried long distances.

To prove that there is little recoil Charlton fired the Model 76 from his hip with one hand. Hellstrom said the little recoil gives the shooter more control of the weapon.

"It is fast firing, very effective at intermediate ranges," Hellstrom said. "It is mechanically simple, relatively cheap and very reliable."

"Being easy to handle," he said, "the Model 76 provides more fire power by firing more accurate rounds."

The weapon is equipped with a standard eight-inch barrel which can be replaced with a six-inch barrel.

Another advantage of the machine pistol is that the cartridge is a 9 mm Parabellum, a smaller, more compact round than the .45 Thompson.

Many more of the lighter, smaller rounds can be carried with the same amount of effort, he said.

Glasses Can Kill

Sunglasses can kill you. That's the advice from S. Sgt. Edwin Beck of Newport, Ky., who teaches replacements for the avoight Light Inf. Bde. how to avoid death or injury from Viet Cong mines and booby traps.

Sunglasses, even with prescription lenses, blind soldiers by decreasing their ability to see trip mechanisms of booby traps, he says. Beck reports men wearing sunglasses consistently do poorly on the booby trap reaction course he uses to acquaint newcomers with enemy concealment and camouflage techniques.

"In my opinion, a soldier wearing sunglasses will be unable to see the trip mechanism of a booby trap," Beck said.

Aid Is Offered Handicapped Through ACS

Active duty military personnel can obtain information concerning assistance available to them in the care of handicapped dependents by contacting their Army Community Service office here, said a spokesman here, said that jobs are carefully evaluated to determine what skills they require and what demands they make upon the worker.

Job applicants are selected to fill positions where their abilities will be utilized fully.

Hammond B. Smith, director of the Civil Service Commission's regional office in Atlanta, said opportunities are better than ever this year for selective placement of handicapped persons in Federal employment.

"We are engaged in a committed and continuing effort to broaden opportunity bases for the handicapped," he said. "It is my conviction that these people have time and time again proved they are qualified for the jobs, and where there is ability to do the job, the disability becomes totally irrelevant."

During the calendar year 1966, Federal agencies hired 17,125 physically handicapped men and women—3,006 more than during the preceding year.

The Fort Benning ACS facility is located in Bldg. No. 3.

Post Observing Employ The Handicapped Week

In recognition of the 23rd observance of National Employ the Handicapped Week this week, Civil Service officials here are re-emphasizing the Army's policy for hiring an individual on a basis of what he can do, rather than what he cannot do.

T. A. Barefoot, civilian personnel officer here, said that jobs are carefully evaluated to determine what skills they require and what demands they make upon the worker.

'Dolly Derby' Planned For Area Girl Scouts

The Goodwill Industries of the Chattahoochee Valley will sponsor the public on November 17-18-19.

"Local First - Place winners will compete in the National Dolly Derby in Cleveland, Ohio, in February or March," Mrs. Gallops pointed out.

"Dolls dressed in the contest will be placed on sale in the Goodwill retail stores at 1021 Broadway and 2621 Hamilton Road on November 21st. Proceeds will supplement wages of handicapped clients and assist in the Goodwill training and rehabilitation program," Mrs. Gallops said.

A clinic will be held for scouts entering the contest in the Goodwill Chapel at 2621 Hamilton Road Saturday, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Dolls will be picked up, pointers given on sewing and dressing and the judging scorecard reviewed for the young seamstresses. Rule book is pointed out that "on scout's honor" the contestant must spend more than one dollar on materials (though remnants and scraps may be used) and must dress the doll without help.

"The Goodwill - Scout Dolly Derby has been co-sponsored throughout the nation since 1957 and is designed to encourage creative talent in the scout and give them a chance to aid Goodwill's handicapped clients," Mrs. Teasley said.

Scout cadets, juniors and seniors have been invited to participate, according to Mrs. Marianna K. Gallops, Goodwill Auxiliary president, who is coordinating the "dolly" activities.

"The participation of the cadets will serve as preparation for working on their dressmaker badge and for juniors it will fill a requirement for either the "Sign of the Arrow" or "Sign of the Star" badges," Mrs. Gallops said.

Senior scouts will serve as registration clerks at the "clinic" and later as hostesses for the open house at Goodwill Industries when the dressed dolls will be displayed.

After attending the Artillery Advanced Course at Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Bliss, Tex., in 1939, he took command of Btry. D, 1st Rocker-Howitzzer Bn. of the 16th Arty. at Fort Bliss. Also during 1939, Tharp pulled his first tour here and graduated from the Ranger Course.

After various staff positions with the personnel headquarters in Washington, D. C., Tharp returned to Korea to serve first as plans and policies officer, 3-3 Div., for Hq. of United Nations Command United States Forces - Korea, and later as executive officer with the same headquarters. He remained there until his assignment to Fort Benning and the 10th Arty.

Tharp lists among his military educational achievements graduation from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va.

Decorations

Tharp's awards and decorations include the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Medal, Korean Service Medal, UNCS Service Medal, Senior Parachutist's Badge and the Ranger Tab.

In a farewell speech to the battalion, Hall, who leaves to become Chief of The Combat Support Group here, praised the unit highly for their recent performance on Third Army CMMI inspections and the annual IG inspection.

In the first address to his new unit Tharp stated that command of the 2nd Bn. was "an assignment that any artilleryman would want."

Chaplain Starts Civic Action Project in VC Country

Months of hard work and perseverance by chaplain assigned to the 25th Inf. Div., 1st Bde, has led the way for one of the largest and most comprehensive civic action projects yet undertaken by the division.

The village of Phu Hoa Dong, located at the edge of the notorious FII Ho! Plantation, 25 miles northwest of in conjunction with three Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN) infantry battalions, sealed the village and permitted no traffic in or out of it.

Registration of the inhabitants and an intensive house-to-house search followed. Then it was the turn of the civil affairs teams. Extension of the Medical Civic Action Programs (MEDCAP) were held to treat the sick.

Schools were surveyed to determine what equipment was needed and all areas pertaining to the health and welfare of the villagers were examined to decide how the government could help make improvements.

Several months prior to the operation Chaplain (Maj.) James A. Peterman learned that Phu Hoa Dong had a church, but no priest.

Working with his assistants, he came unarmed and without security to the heavily-infested enemy area.

It was always risky. Once the day before their weekly visit, the VC mortared the hamlet.

On another occasion Peter-man and his associates were waiting to be picked up by a helicopter when they were hit by mortar and small arms fire. No one was injured.

From an empty, non-functioning church, the joint Vietnamese-American project has been rewarded with capacity-filled masses and confessions.

At first only a few of the Catholic villagers attended confession and masses. Peterman, however, persisted until he finally gained the confidence and respect of the villagers.

LESSONS LEARNED in VIETNAM

Formations and Tactics: In covering the tactics used by the American forces in Vietnam, it should be noted that our small unit tactics are for the most part conventional.

Most officers have the idea that duty in Vietnam means divorcing oneself from former tactics instruction. This is not true. Although the peculiarities of the war in Vietnam have resulted in the revision of certain tactics and the formulation of new techniques, basic infantry tactics form a foundation for any operation or action.

Further, this conflict gives the Army the opportunity to test and perfect old and new tactical concepts in a counter-insurgency environment.

Movement: In a guerrilla infested area, the leader must keep one principle in mind above all else—security. It is mandatory to move with all around security when terrain permits. This is executed by providing point, flank, and rear security teams.

An explanation of the duties of each element and team would be repetitious of selected manuals and training. Some points, however, are worthy of comment. The machine gun positioned behind the platoon leader gives him control of a forward column. The rear security element drops away from the column periodically to detect and destroy a trailing enemy. Such security is essential for the commonly used file and column formations.

Over-Anxious Enemy Foils Ambush Attempt

DUC PHO, (101st ABN) — An over-anxious enemy soldier foiled a recent Viet Cong ambush by firing too quickly on a 101st ABN Div. platoon during Operation Cook near here.

The early warning alerted the paratroopers of the 1st Pz. Co. B, 2nd Bn., 327th Inf., and resulted in three VC killed.

As the platoon waded through rice paddies, a VC weapons squad lay hidden in a tree line. When the column approached, a single shot was fired and the Screaming Eagles.

Taking cover, 1st Lt. Howard L. Helfman, the platoon leader, and Sgt. Sharon L. McCracken, of the 2nd Bn., 390th Arty., called in supporting fire.

The pointman for the column, Spec. 4 John F. Amity, was receiving heavy fire from enemy machine guns and grenade launchers.

197h Provides Realism For Green Beret Movie

By Spec 4 Jay Olson
 Operation "Extra" proved a big success last week as more than 100 Fort Benning soldiers made their screen debut in the Vietnam epic "The Green Berets" being filmed here by John Wayne's Batjac Productions.

As he made his adjustments and counseled the actors, there appeared to be no doubt who was the boss. It was time for shooting to begin, and a huge camera approached. "That's the first camera I've ever seen with a California license plate," someone quipped. Looking like a gigantic mechanized dinosaur, the crane-mounted camera on wheels swung into position near one of the sets.

THE FORUM THE LOBBY

BY MIKE McNULTY

For twenty-one years the long-suffering baseball fans of Boston waited for their Red Sox to exert themselves and bring home a pennant victory. Last Sunday their dream became a reality when, on a gorgeous New England afternoon, the miracle team of 1907 upended the Minnesota Twins and slipped away with the American League crown. With the victory came cries of delight from all champions of the underdog across the country. "Baseball lives," the shout went—and immediately proponents of the sport enthusiastically stated that baseball had regained all of the glamor that it once possessed.

And for the moment they are correct: baseball has been an exciting past time throughout 1967—but only because of such teams as Boston, the Chicago Cubs, and the St. Louis Cardinals. Had these teams not pulled the unexpected this year, the game would certainly have continued its drop of the last few years. The last bit of American League pennant race ever and the drive of the Cardinals, despite costly injuries, in the National League saved it, at least for the time being. And because of this brilliant baseball season the game's biggest highlight, the World Series, will have to be considered anti-climactic compared to the happenings in the latter part of the regular season play.

Nonetheless, now that the life-saving process of baseball has begun, with the resurgence of an exciting brand of ball, a revitalization of the game and the rules that govern it is in order.

For instance, the game itself is entirely too long, with the pitcher too often the culprit. This is not to say that a good pitcher's battle isn't exciting and that his opponent often be the main character of the drama on the field. What is irritating, though, is the amount of time he and the batter take in trying to pitch and hit. In a 9-inning game, many minutes elapse between pitches, and eventually those minutes stretch into what seems like hours. This leads to a dry, dull game no matter who wins.

Another strong revision that is desperately needed is more protection for the player once he has signed a contract with a team. As soon as his name is on the dotted line there is no out for him if he becomes dissatisfied with his club unless he is traded, released or quits the game entirely; and two of those are up to the professional football player, who allows him to play out a season with a team at a cut in pay with hopes of signing with another team the following year.

The clubs reserve the right to do whatever they wish with a player, despite the wishes that he may have, for as long a time as they deem necessary. If a player decides that he doesn't wish to sign a contract he can't be picked up by another team until such time as he is released as a free agent—which is a rare case indeed.

He, of course, can always pull a Ken Harrelson and start a name calling campaign against management, get fired—and releasing him as a free agent—and hopefully signing with the top bidder. But this can only be done by the top caliber player, who is normally highly paid and quite satisfied no matter what position his team ends up in.

At Memorial Stadium Georgia Military Set To Meet Tech's 'Best'

BY DAN COOK

Gordon Military College booked around like an old tin can by four-year schools on its schedule, would ordinarily be getting a new lease on life here Saturday night.

The Bulldogs, who have battled insurmountable odds in two games with four-year schools, face Georgia Tech freshmen in the Elks Charity Game at Memorial Stadium. But the game, pitting a fresh team against Tech's best team ever and a team that hasn't lost a junior college battle in three years, doesn't figure to be a push-over for either.

A crowd of 10,000 is anticipated for the 8 p.m. kickoff. Gordon, forced to play every Saturday, welcomes an opportunity to face opposition of the net gate receipts will be more on its level and hopes to end a two-game losing streak. But there are easier ways to try a come back, Gordon coach George Robinson agrees.

"The Tech freshmen beat the varsity by two touchdowns in a scrimmage. That doesn't make things any easier," he said. Columbus Elks Lodge No. 111 is sponsoring the game. The game opens a six-game freshman schedule for Tech and eyes and ears of the Yellow Jacket athletic department await a report of their first-year men under fire.

Gordon, 1-3 for the season, laid claim to a portion of the mythical Georgia-Alabama junior college championship in its lone win, a 42-28 decision over Marion Institute of Alabama. The two schools represent the lone football-playing junior colleges of the neighboring states. They play once again this season and Gordon can take sole claim to the title with a win or tie.

GEORGIA TECH chief of recruiting Spec Landrum expects this edition of the Baby Jackets to be as strong as any the school has had in recent years. "We've got some great prospects coming in and we certainly count on them to help us on the varsity in later years," he said.

Robert L. (Bobby) Dodd, Georgia Tech athletic director, calls the fresh schedule the best Tech has had. "Not only will it allow our freshmen to develop, but at the same time we'll be helping worthy causes and helping people across the south," said Dodd.

All six Tech fresh games will be played for charity. Objective of the game here is: two-fold, according to Paul F. Morrison, chairman of the project: 1. To further the Elks work with crippled children; 2. To bring at least some form of college football back to Columbus. A minimum of 75 per cent of the net gate receipts will be used to further the Georgia Elks work with crippled children through Aidmore Hospital in Atlanta. The 68-bed facility is supported entirely by Elks throughout the state.

Former Baker High star Paul Achey will serve as one of the co-captains for Tech. Buck Shiver, who played for Americas High last season, will be the other. Former West Point players Lewis Tillery and Bubba Roberts will see action for Gordon.

The Pennant... ...Never!

BY FRANK KAUFFMAN

Fenway Park, Boston's ancient excuse for a stadium, sits just above Kenmore Square around the corner from the Commonwealth Ave. campus of Boston University.

The last time I was here was in July of 1966. I had passed by many times before rushing to an early morning class at E.U. or to pick-up a date in one of the dormitories on the State Road but on that night in July I stopped to see the ninth place Red Sox play baseball.

The Red Sox lost that one as they managed to do much more often than not in these days. But that was yesterday. Now, the first game in October when the cobwebs usually take their place on Fenway's ticket booths and Mrs. Carl Yastrzemski goes back to making mustard commercials for local television, dozens of children are playing in a world series.

Back in April the groundskeepers methodically went through their annual routine of re-seeding Fenway Park for another season. The swan boats were running at Public Gardens, the coffee houses moved their tables in Harvard Square and nobody thought much about the Red Sox. They never did.

Dick Williams, the golden boy manager who came down from Canada to make the Red Sox look respectable if nothing else, hoped to pull the team out of the second division. But a pennant never. The Revere Beach bookies were betting 100 to 1 against it and even the Globe's sportswriters were reluctant about covering the games.

But last Saturday Sen. Ted Kennedy came to Fenway Park and this is not even being an election year. Kennedy was the only one there Saturday. More than 32,000 fans jammed the park to witness the start of a miracle.

And on Sunday the dream of every schoolboy who ever skipped classes to sit in the bleachers at the Fenway became a reality. The Red Sox, with an assist from the California Angels, won the pennant and the excitement in Beantown was probably greater than when Paul Revere rode through the streets with his warning many years ago.

From staid old Beacon Hill to the Roxbury slums Boston exploded. At McCarthy's Tavern the drinkers were so intent on watching the last game of the season they didn't realize the place was on fire.

Someone will probably suggest that Carl Yastrzemski, the triple crown winning outfielder who plays baseball as if he's Viet Cong though he might win hands down personally hope "Yaz" decides to stick to baseball. Boston needs its miracle makers.

Whatever happens to the Red Sox in the series Bostonians will have more to talk about this winter than just the cold weather. When the Harvard Square coffee houses move their tables back inside, and the swan boats are put in dry dock until next Spring all Boston will speak of its newest folk heroes who go by the names of Lonborg, Yastrzemski and Williams.

The bookies on Revere Beach will lower their odds and maybe even Mrs. Yastrzemski can stop selling mustard on television. She could probably have the company anyway.

11 Slots Open for Benning In 3rd Army Boxing Event

The 1967 USAIC Special Services Novice Boxing Program is now under way.

Beginning last Monday, and running through Nov. 10th, soldiers who met the qualifications are encouraged to enter the 11 positions open to Fort Benning personnel at the Third Army Boxing Tournament at Fort Bragg, N. C., November 13-17.

"The soldier wishing to enter the Fort Benning competition must meet some requirements," said Skip Odum, USAIC Special Services sports director. "The requirements include at least 80 days active duty, a signed certificate verifying that the soldier is an amateur athlete and the soldier must never have competed in any type of organized boxing contest (military or civilian), prior to entering this year's program." Odum added.

The tournament matches will be held in the Harmony Church Field House, but training centers have already been established in both the field house and at TSB Gymnasium located on Indianhead Road on Main Post.

"Basic training and USAIC students are not eligible for competition above the post level," Odum continued, "and all contestants will wear a 'foul proof' cup, a mouth piece and competitive head gear for all matches."

A physical examination and weigh-in will be conducted on the morning prior to each day's contests. Qualified coaches and trainers are now on duty at both training sites.

Why Do People Have Low Back Pains?
By Dr. R.P. Spillane

The spine is strong enough to support many pounds of weight. Yet it is flexible to enable movement in any direction. There are 24 movable bones or vertebra in the spine. Between each bone is a soft cushion or disc, which serves as a ball bearing and shock absorber.

Inside the spinal bones, the spinal cord, which is the life line of the nervous system, runs from top to bottom. And between each vertebral bone heavy nerve trunks exist carrying millions of nerve fibers to all parts of the body. If one or more of these spinal bones become displaced, nerve fibers become impinged with pressure and the affected nerve can no longer carry its life energy to the body in normal quantity. Pain and muscle spasms may occur, or soreness and stiffness and even more serious diseased conditions can result from such an event. People who have a structural problem are more susceptible to such back disorders as low back pains, but they can also occur from falls, accidents and various occupational hazards. Chiropractic adjustments restore the vertebral alignment, thus releasing pressure, removing tension and pain, restoring normal nerve impulses to affected part of the body, and patients recover. ## Unexpected Upsets Open College Football Season

By PFC John Merrill

With the beginning of the 1967 college football season, the Notre Dame Fighting Irish were supposed to reign as the supreme and unbeatable power on the gridiron. However, last weekend, the Irish were scheduled to meet the Bolshoi-makers from the University of Purdue.

Bowling Results

The Hurricanes of Miami, who were ranked high by all sports prognosticators, have now lost two games in a row. The Hurricanes dropped their first game to a supposedly weak team from Northwest. Looking for revenge in their second game of the season, they lost to a strong Eastern contender from Penn State.

It means that Houston, who dumped the Spartans in their first game, are strong contenders for the national title. Michigan State, last week, faced Southern Cal and dropped their second game of the season.

Other potential powers in the football world seem to be having a rough time early in the season. Arkansas has dropped its first two games to the University of Tennessee. Mississippi dropped its opener to Memphis State and Tulane lost to Miami of Ohio.

If the early weeks of this season are any indication of what is to be expected then the battle for the National title could be as hectic as the American League pennant race. As the football forecasters gaze at the games now on record it may seem that a few teams have been overlooked as contenders.

TOUR ACADEMY . . . During a recent tour of the Third Army NCO Academy here, commandant Sgt. Maj. Donald V. Wright, right, explains its role and purpose to Sgt. Maj. Hans-Joergen Kuehlmer, German liaison; Sgt. Maj. Raiford Ivy and Sgt. Maj. George King. The three were part of 80 sergeants major and top NCOs of Fort Benning who were taken on a tour of the Harmony Church based academy.

New Truck Praised By Ammo Co.

"Be prepared" is an understatement to the men of the 608th Ord Co. involved with the operation of the unit's contact maintenance truck. This versatile piece of equipment is mounted on a three-quarter ton truck bed. If it were sold at retail value the price would be $30,000 which includes $1,400 worth of equipment. Equipment on the truck runs from simple vises, grips and hand tools to an acetylene and arc welder. SFC Harry Roman, 608th first sergeant said, "This piece of equipment is the most economical and useful for moving ammunition I have seen."

During his recent tour in Vietnam, Roman was with the 661st Ord. Co. in support of First Air Cav. operations. Commenting on the truck's abilities in combat he said, "The job it did was simply beautiful."

An ammunition company is 65 per cent mobile and at times the unit may be split into ammo supply points 20 to 60 miles apart. This is where the versatility and mobility of the contact maintenance truck is appreciated. "If at the ammo supply point a piece of equipment has broken down, its ammunition mobility is greatly affected."

90th Co. OC Is Veteran Of 300 Ambush Patrols

The tactics of the combat patrol and ambush techniques are no news to OC William L. Mynatt of 90th Co. Mynatt has served on more than 300 ambush patrols in Korea's demilitarized zones. The former sergeant began his Army career at Fort Knox, Ky., and completed A.I.T. at Fort Ord, Calif. in June, 1966.

Mynatt was deployed with the 23rd Inf. Div. in South Korea's demilitarized zone and was assigned as an anti-tank section leader in a weapons platoon.

He served on over 300 combat patrols, made enemy contact on over 20 occasions and was awarded the Korean DMZ medal for completing his first 60 patrols.

One combat experience that remains vivid in this soldier's mind occurred while he and ten others from his unit were deployed on a dug-in ambush patrol. In the early morning his patrol was observing their front when they heard voices to their rear that was distinctly North Korean.

When the patrol found about they spotted, identified and opened fire on three North Koreans. When the patrol ceased fire, they could hear heavy machine gun and grenade, and about 2200 rounds were thrown at the enemy force. Mynatt said his patrol asked for permission to recover the North Koreans, but were denied the authority until daybreak.

About an hour later, two grenades were thrown at Mynatt's position from the direction of the enemy force, but the North Koreans were so sapped of energy that they had not pulled the firing pins.

Personnel Company Gets New 'Mechanical Clerk'

When a commander places a call to his personnel section and wants to know how many of his 8,000 men have secondary MOSs of cooks he can usually expect his answer within a few hours after a careful screening of records.

But now he can get his information within minutes. It is the case in the 18th Spt. Gp. as its 524th Pers. Svc. Co. was moved into the electronic age.

The mechanical personnel clerk is the Univac 1065, a highly advanced computer that does the work of 80 men.

Univac 1065 is assigned to the 524th Co. and the unit is awaiting arrival of support equipment before it is put into full operation.

The 524th can deal in diverse personnel matters from getting men paid to compiling combat casualty reports. They find Army jobs for qualified men ready for promotion, process hardship discharges and compassionate reassignments.

"The computer can handle these jobs in minutes where clerks hours and at times days," Walter Fonseca of the 524th said that the machine will be responsible for maintaining a file on group strength and all individual personnel data. "Through the use of the computer a soldier can be processed into or out of units faster and more efficiently," he said.

Transportation Company Opens New Mess Hall

The officers and men of the 69th Trans. Co., 37th Avn. Bn., 19th Avn. Gp. recently opened their new mess hall at Lt. Col. John P. Phillips, 37th Avn. Bn. CO out the ribbon. Maj. Thomas McGregor, commanding officer of the company was also on hand for the ceremony.

In the words of McGregor the new mess hall, complete with background music, is "a place where the men can relax and have a good meal."

At the ceremony McGregor expressed his thanks to S. Sgt. George Alston, mess sergeant, who with the assistance of the men of the 79th Trans. Co., restored the old building to its present condition.

Scout Training Being Held Here

Cubbers and scouters from throughout the metropolitan area of Columbus and Phenix City will descend on Infantry Hall here this week to participate in the fall series of leadership training.

According to Lt. Col. George V. Ellis, Fort Benning district training chairman, the series is highlighting the new, improved Cub Scout program, including sessions on the "Den Leader Coach," program planning, "The Wabeco Den Leader," and den and pack operation. All Cub Scout leaders, committeemen and parents are taking the orientation and program planning phases, and the next session will be conducted Thursday.

Den leaders will receive information on den operation and working with den chiefs, while the men of the packs attend the sessions on pack operation and pack administration. A new position, the Den Leader Coach, and the Wabeco Den Leaders will be offered training specifically designed to help them to be more effective in bringing quality scouting to boys.

To highlight the entire Cub Scout leader's training, the program planning, advancement, troop financing and boy behavior.

The finest instructors having just last January and February, and many already have expressed a desire to return.

Cool Shower Becomes Hot For Trooper

DUC PRO, (101st ABN-IO) shower turned into a hot exit for P. Sgt. John E. Quinn when a Viet Cong sniper zeroed in on the bathing paratrooper.

Quinn, serving with the 101st Abn. Div's 2nd Bn., 327th Inf., was washing away the jungle grime when a sniper's bullet pinged off the Australian shower bucket.

"The only thing I could grab was my pants," said Quinn. "I think Charlie fired at me because I was enjoying the bath."

Other 101st paratroopers silenced the sniper.

Quinn returned to the shower.

across the chest to permit a slight drap effect, rather than a snug fit, and provide ease under the arms. The back of the coat is also designed to have a slight drap...

The bottom of the trousers must rest on top of the shoes without a break in the front and one inch above the top of the shoe heel in the back. Both measurements are to be taken when wearing low-quarters.

The cuff width should be in proportion to the waist size. For example, 28 inch waist trousers have a 17 1/2 inch wide cuff; 46 inch waist trousers have 19 1/2 inch wide cuff.

A soldier in a properly fitting uniform who presents a smart military appearance does best to win the support and confidence of the public.

'DEATH MARCH' RECALLED BY FORMER SCOUT

By Spec. A Richard Benson

Twenty-five years ago advancing Japanese Infantry men surrounded and captured American and Filipino Scout troops defending the Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines, thus beginning one of the most famous marches of World War II — "The Bataan Death March."

"We were sent to the north to defend the peninsula when we had to retreat to Bataan. We were there for a month when replacements came, and as soon as they did the Japanese broke our lines. We were captured on Signal Hill."

Daniel Dangulan, of the Student Brigade postal section, vividly recalls his days as a Filipino Scout with the 57th Inf. of the 12th Div. as they were captured shortly after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"The Japanese forced over 75,000 American and Filipino soldiers to march 65 miles to a prisoner of war camp on the outskirts of Manila."

"After the capture we were put into 300-man groups, with four guards, one on the front and back of us, and one on each side. They marched us during the hottest part of the day, not letting us drink any water. Those who were caught trying to drink water from the artesian wells along the roadway were shot and left where they lay."

"At night they put us in rice fields and surrounded us with barb wire. We had to sleep sitting down because they wouldn't let us lie on the ground," Dangulan relates.

Of the 75,000 men that began the march, around 7,000 to 10,000 men died in route.

"Along the way we were passed by Japanese soldiers who would take anything they could from you. They took a watch and cigarette case from me, and I saw them behead an American officer for having a large amount of Japanese currency, thinking that he had taken it from their soldiers."

"I had many chances to escape along the way but I was looking for my older brother who had also been captured on Signal Hill. When we came to a road junction near Manila they separated the prisoners. The Americans were sent to Camp O'Donnell, northwest of the capital city. At the camp, our 300-man (See RETIRED, Page 12)

Fort Benning's 197th Avn. Co., 10th Avn. Gp., recently made a medical first for Columbus when it dispatched a helicopter to transfer a patient from the local Medical Center to the Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta.

First Lt. Joe T. Stroud piloted the UH1B "Huey" that raced across the entire state of Georgia with Robert L. Williams, a veteran who became the first patient to leave the hospital by helicopter.

Williams was listed in satisfactory condition upon arrival at the Augusta hospital.

the extremely close relationship between Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning, and the fact that Columbus is a good Army town," Gen. Mount said.

Gen. Mount talked about his duty at Fort Benning as one of the most satisfying of his Army career.

Will Remember Trainees "A honor memory" will take with me is that of today's young men of America. We receive them in all shapes and forms, we've graduated 104,000 since the Army Training Center was organized. They are smarter, bigger and healthier... a credit to parents and to organizations like this one that does so much for our youth," Mount said.

The former assistant commander of the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam, native of Atlanta, recalled that his first tour of duty was at Fort Benning, 29 years ago, and that he met his wife, former Mildred Louise Collins of Montgomery, Ala., and that the oldest of his three children was born here.

"It was too long between that first tour and my second tour here, the one I am just completing. I hope to return sooner than that next time," the general said.

Introduced Successor He introduced his successor, Col. Herbert E. Wolf, deputy commander of the Infantry School who will take command of the Army Training Center at ceremonies to be held here tomorrow at 11 a.m. Both Gen. Mount and Col. Wolf have been nominated for promotions.

Col. Wolf returned here in May after serving as chief of staff of the 1st Inf Div. He had served as chief of tactics, then as director of instruction, at Fort Benning during 1964-66.

Rosh Hashanna can serve as message for all faiths

During the past week, Jewish people everywhere have attempted to demonstrate to their Creator that they have the potential to improve themselves. This was the meaning of the Jewish New Year now being celebrated.

"Would you BELIEVE HAM & LAMBS?"

But it is the dawn of the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanna, strictly for Jews. In a literal sense, it is the anniversary of the Jews' liberation from Egypt. The Jews have been celebrating the high holy days for 5728 years. There must be a message for all mankind in that devotion.

Judge Says Serious problems can result by giving power of attorney

"Why" is a quite difficult question to answer for most persons who enter their permanent legal Assistance Office stating their need for a general power of attorney.

Seat belts could save 5,000 lives each year

You can avoid having an accident by maintaining a positive attitude, and by diligent, skillful driving. This has been proven by numerous military and civilian personnel, including dependents, who have been driving for years without scratching a tender. But if you should happen to get beligerent behind the wheel of your car, or relax your vigilance, and have an accident or if the unsafe actions of another driver make a collision inevitable, how can you avoid being injured?

that his wife arrange for shipment of their household goods to their permanent home, close out any accounts in his name at local banks, and dispose of his car if the need should arise. These powers can be easily granted in a special power, completely avoiding the problems which might arise if the uncontrolled powers of buying and selling involved in a general power were given.

Since the power of attorney allows the Agent to bind the Principal by his actions, it should not be given for an indefinite period of time, but the time limit should be stated in the instrument. If desired, the period may be shortened by merely removing the power of attorney from the Agent's hands and destroying it. Revocation in writing is also possible, but persons dealing with the Agent are ordinarily not bound by the written revocation unless they have actual knowledge of the revocation.

If some transaction must be completed in your absence, make sure that you choose the best method of authorizing another to act in your place. See your attorney for the legal aspects of your departure, he may desire

Chaplain Speaks In this world of unrest we can still have peace

By Chaplain (Capt) Carter E. Hudson

We grapple with the problems of the world. We decide the answers to national conflicts. We are able to be so positive of our decisions about such important things? Maybe it is because these big problems are not personal enough for all the fringe things to matter very much. It is much like a man who can readily decide to pay $4,000 for an automobile but has difficulty spending four dollars for a small item. He does not have the large amount so he readily does not understand. But he does have four dollars. He knows how much he wanted to get. He understands what this will do to the family budget.

That is why we can solve the problems of the world? But never make peace with ourselves. As long as we can project our thoughts on the problems of society, we tend to neglect dealing with our own feelings. The real solutions that will improve society hide us. One reason is that we forget who our society

Authorities prove fluoride does reduce tooth decay

Does fluoridation of public water supplies actually reduce tooth decay? Yes! It says every authoritative health and scientific organization in the country. To name a few, the American Medical Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, all the named forces, plus 99 per cent of the physicians and dentists in this country. An official endorsement of the AMA reads in part: "On the basis of available evidence, it appears that fluoridation decreases the incidence of caries (tooth decay) during childhood. Other evidence indicates as well a reduction in the rate of dental caries up to at least 44 years of age."

loses heavily in the ballot boxes. It has evolved into a political rather than a scientific issue and during a period of 15 years it was passed in only 394 of 392 community referendums. In other words, in nearly two out of three communities voted to deprive themselves of this vital health measure. How could this possibly occur in this enlightened age? To be combated next week.

Army Increases Flights to Hawaii

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii — RAR flights of military members from Vietnam to Hawaii have been increased to 45 a month beginning October 1. It was announced last week by Maj. Roy Lasseter, commanding general, U. S. Army Hawaii. This will result in an increase in military men and dependents to 145,000 from 120,000 in June 1967. The program, which has grown from one flight a week in August of 1966 to 45 flights in May, now is the largest single group travel source of Hawaii visitors, according to Allan J. McGuire, RAR coordinator for the Hawaii Visitors Bureau. From the inception of the program through June 30, 1967, flights have arrived here. Flights were reduced during the peak summer period in Hawaii to 4500.

tel, included a cast of Black Bart, Fifi LaBloom, Dirty Dan, Darling Dottie, Hand some Harry, Bouncing Betty, Kitty S'More, Norma Nor man and others. "Hit" show tunes were "Good Clean

After the meeting, the Baker High faculty hosted the luncheon for PTA members for refreshments.

Baker High School's next PTA meeting is planned for December 7, when the annual band and choral Christmas concert will be presented.

Petticoat Portraits by Jane Daniels

Mrs. Marjorie Fitzpatrick, wife of 1st Sgt. Thomas Fitzpatrick, is a lady with her own-ordered schedule of events.

As first vice-president of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club, mother of four boys, a member of the board which is now planning the forthcoming Monte Carlo Night, a "regular" on all sorts of projects for the wives' club, and a secretary for the fourth grade department of the Main Post Sunday School, she finds that a calendar is a must for keeping all of her activities in line.

Her main activity is keeping up with all the men in her life. Her husband and the four boys, Terry, 10, Gary, 6, and the twins, Michael and Dennis, 13, all love outdoor games, going hunting or fishing.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick says that she sometimes accompanies them to the games but that when it comes to field and stream, she stays at home.

Wall to Wall
"On weekends, our house is almost 'wall to wall kids,'" she laughs. The Fitzpatrick home always has many guests. Dennis, who plays an electric guitar, frequently has his friends by for combo practice. Michael, who aspires to be a commercial artist, often works on a new design for poster or art project. Terry plays football with the "Red Devils" on the biddy league and Gary loves being with people.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick's statement, "I just can't put a good book down," and glance at the many bookshelves in her home are the telltale signs of her addiction to reading. Her wonderful malady usually strikes just after the men have slipped away to a game or on a fishing trip.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, who currently has membership in three book clubs, admits that she can even snatch glances at a favorite book while she's cooking dinner.

She also has a love for being "Army" - related. "That's because I love traveling," she says. And here in our own North America," she explains.

Meets Husband
She met her husband, who is also from Michigan, while he was home on a leave. A mutual friend arranged their first date. They were married in 1953.

Since then they have been stationed at Fort Custer, Mich., Fort Ord, Calif., Fort Lewis, Wash., Bad Nauheim, Germany, Vicksburg, Germany and Fort Benning. During her husband's tour in Korea, she stayed at Lynwood, Calif.

When she indulges in a little wishful thinking, she imagines traveling throughout the United States and Canada "from end to end."

"We want to see the land and meet the people right here in our own North America," she explains.

A unique and unhurried way to entertain

CHATTY

Tips and Hints Offered On Cooking, Styles Etc.

By Louise Domashewsky
The world's most interesting woman lives right here in our community. YOU are going to be devoted to you for you and about you. It will contain topics of interest, by offering various ideas on how to make housework easier, cooking more appealing and various hints for a more glamorous you.

I hope all of you will enjoy reading "Chatty," and that you will inform me of your particular interest.

The fall season begins with our legs remaining in outer stage, and those bright lights really focus on our knees. Here's an exercise that will help slim down "heavy knees"; it actually does more than that, it also firms the calves and thighs.

Here we go... Stand erect, hands on hips. Count of one, bend knees halfway while extending arms forward, palms down. Count of two, return to original position.

This is not a difficult exercise, and with ten faithful repetitions per day, should bring results in a short period of time. Keep in mind, when you are ready to give up because you don't see progress, (and this applies to any exercise) that there's more to making housework easier, exercising than reducing it; helps you to feel better, look better and stay younger.

Color plays such an important role in our life. All of us know that the right touch of color, whether it be in our wearing apparel, or in the meals we prepare, have the ability to enhance. We should try to make color work for us, and aid us in obtaining a perfect figure. Here are some hints:
To look taller: Choose light colors.

and contrasting pastel colors; light skirt colors, wide and average width belts.
To reduce broad hips: Wear dark skirts with a jacket or blouse in a lighter tone.
To appear heavier: Wear drab colors, red, yellow and bright greens.

These are just a few and I'll offer more later. By the way, did you know that red conveys passion, health, vivacity; pink festivity, gaiety; white, purity, delicacy, femininity; and blue sincerity, honesty.

McLeod Sisters Enjoy Ballet Dancing Studies

By Marilyn Larsen

From the moment she is fitted for her first pair of ballet slippers, every would-be ballerina dreams of the day when she graduates to toe shoes. Nine year old Jennifer McLeod is no exception. She is anticipating the time when she, like her older sister, Beth, will dance on "pointe."

Both girls are students at the Fort Benning School of Dance, and for the past year Beth has been a member of Le Petit Ballet, the performing outfit of the Ballet School.

Beth began "taking" in Germany, she was seven years old but did not begin serious study of the dance until three years ago when she came to Fort Benning. "I love swimming and twirling," says Beth, "but the increasing demands of my ballet classes have limited my participation in them so far."

Beth does manage to model and has appeared in many local fashion shows.

Old Whistle Still on Duty

A WWI whistle remains on active duty at the U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, A gift from his father, S.Sgt. Alfred L. Beebe, Co. E 3rd Br., 1st Bde., received the whistle upon completion of Drill Sergeant School.

The whistle was issued to Frank Beebe when he entered the Army in 1917. During the two years of active duty, the elder Beebe attained the rank of sergeant.

The younger Beebe, assigned as a drill sergeant, has made good use of the whistle during seven cycles of basic combat training. Asked if he intended to take the whistle with him on a future assignment to Vietnam, Beebe readily replied, "Certainly — it's my good luck charm."

Combat Veteran Local Marine in Training With Post Scout Dog Unit

By PFC Jay Olset
A Marine, whose home is in Columbus, has found one of man's best friends even though he had to come to the Army to do it.

Making a temporary transition from "Leather Neck" to "GI" is Lance Corporal David Purser, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Purser of 2020 Walker St. in Columbus.

The local native is spending 12 weeks here with the Scout Dog Unit. He is a three-year-old German Shepherd dog. Both are undergoing intensive training at the Army's only Scout Dog school.

the schedule, the soldiering canine team practices in simulated combat situations. The dog might seek out lost comrades or flush out snipers in swampy areas.

Unlike sentry dogs the scout dog must remain silent in order to be effective. "After eight weeks of school I can tell where the enemy is just by the direction Rusty is pointing," remarked the marine.

Since some of the canines had gone through previous training, their alertness amazed many of the handlers. "At times Rusty would make up my own mind about the service," Purser said. His father is a master sergeant serving with the 8th Army in Seoul, Korea.

Military Votes May Alter Next Presidential Election

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — Next year's presidential election will be the hottest one we've ever had as far as the military is concerned, a Defense Department voting official told a retired officers group here.

John Wells, consultant to the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, told the Uniformed Services Rethree Group that there will be "a tremendous interest in the military vote" in 1968 because of the controversy over the war in Vietnam.

He reminded his listeners at an Army - Navy Club luncheon that the military vote of over 735,000 in 1960 may have been decisive in the Kennedy-Nixon contest of that year.

Wells also announced that Texas has relaxed some of its voting restrictions so they conform with policies in other states and the result will be that the more than 120,000 servicemen from Texas and their dependents will find it easier to register and vote from now on.

Previously Texans voting absentee had to register by the last day of January in the year they wanted to vote. Now they may register and apply for a ballot up until the time it takes to get the

'Jack of All Trades' Battalion Celebrating 50th Year

67th COMMANDER
Lt. Col. B. B. Albert

By S. Sgt. Pat Moser

A battalion that dubs itself "jack of all trades" is celebrating a lineage this week that started 50 years ago on the West Texas plains during WWI.

The 67th Main Bn. is in its golden anniversary year whose theme appears to be "diversity and specialize." Repairs in 1917 for Mechanical Repair Shop No. 308, the 67th fore-runner. By today's standards were a simple matter. But repair now has moved into the advanced fields of avionics, radar and chemical components.

If any unit in the Army could chart the technical progress of the past 50 years, the 67th would be the one. The old 308 shops at Fort

Bliss, Tex., were modest, but at the same time were the latest answer to giving a vintage engine the soothing touch of a trained mechanic. Later the outfit was renamed the Motor Repair Unit No. 308. Moved to Quartermaster. The unit's designation moved from motor repair to quartermaster during the WWI years. It was not until June 1, 1941 that its present numerical "67" was assigned. During the pre-war years the changes in the battalion's name reflected the advances made throughout the Army as military planning looked for more ways to use the horseless carriages in its growing demands for logistical support of combat troops.

The 1920s and '30s reached the unit for its North African and Italian campaigns. The battalion's service record reads like a whirlwind tour of the Mediterranean with its men setting up shop in Algeria, Sicily, Rome, the northern Apennines and the Po Valley.

The 67th was inactivated in Italy after the War. After reactivation on Okinawa added five Korean War campaigns to its battle streamers. It was inactivated in June 1955 in Korea.

After reactivation at Sandia Base, N. M. in March, 1957, the battalion was inactivated at Seneca Ordnance Depot in September, 1958.

Dominican Action
Trouble brewed in 1965 in a new theater for the battalion, the Caribbean Dominican Republic. Army responded to a need for maintenance companies to service the Inter-American Peace Force formed by stragglers of the Western Hemisphere to quell a bloody Dominican revolution. The 67th was picked for the job. They arrived there in December of that year.

A year ago the 67th took up residence at Fort Benning. It was placed under the command of 16th Spt. Gp. who also arrived on the fort at the same time from Santo Domingo.

In its year at Benning it has added two units that have further diversified its operations. Within its organization are light and heavy equipment maintenance companies, a headquarters and third echelon repair unit in the form of the office of the Director of Logistics.

timers" are assigned to Headquarters and A Co. They are the nucleus around which the battalion rallied in its Pennington supply warehouse and pick it off the shelf."

The unit is designed to fix avionics equipment, radar and chemical components with men who hold what the Army calls "hard skills" requiring extensive advanced training.

Another "end of the fit line" unit is the 511th Heavy Equip. Maint. Co. If a part can't be fixed, it isn't repairable, company soldiers explained. Its ranks are filled with men who can take a component, overhaul it and place it back into the Army's supply system. An example is engine overhaul for a general of Army hardware from jets to tanks.

"The real value of the battalion is its diversified organization," explained Lt. Col. Benjamin B. Albert, its commander. "With its inventory of equipment, specialized unit capable of performing a large variety of missions. With its expanding organization and influx of new men, the battalion has designed a crest around which its members can rally. Its motto is, 'Strength Through Support.'"

Andersonville Southern Military Prison Is Reminder of Civil War

By Special Richard Benson

One of the grimmest reminders of the war between the states, Andersonville Prison, is located 78 miles from Columbus, Ga. It is the site of a look into part of the early history of the South. Once known as Camp Sumner, the Confederate States Military Prison, Andersonville had over 50,000 Union prisoners behind its view of pine-log walls during the Civil War.

The stockade area covers 28 acres, sited by a national cemetery filled with rows of short, white headstones of Union soldiers who became victims of the food shortages and diseases in the camp.

More recent markers tell of American soldiers felled on battlefields from WWI to Vietnam.

Plans to move the Confederate prisons that were located near Richmond, Va., in 1863, were started because of the growing shortage of food in that area, and a changing tide of the war. A survey team traveled south during a drought in August, 1864, when Sweetwater Creek no longer provided enough water for the army. Named Providence Spring, Va., slaves were taken from a monument with a running nearby plantations to help clear the land and erect a double wall of twenty-foot pine logs in the sandy soil. The first group of inmates were met by the prison superintendent, Capt. Henry Wirz, on Feb. 15, 1864.

The stockade area during the war is depicted in a painting that hangs in the gate house near the cemetery. Painted by a former prisoner, it shows an overall view of the confinement area with starting prisoners crowding the barren ground behind the pine walls.

Walking along the manicured grounds today it is hard to imagine that 500 men died monthly on the same soil during the camp's 13-month existence.

A branch of Sweetwater Creek, which was a source of water for the prisoners, still runs through the middle of the prison grounds.

A small stone house stands over the spot where legend claims a bolt of lightning struck and produced a fresh water spring. It happened during a drought in August, 1864, when Sweetwater Creek no longer provided enough water for the army. Named Providence Spring, Va., slaves were taken from a monument with a running Scattered throughout the park are wells and escape tunnels dug by the prisoners. Now fenced and partly overgrown by huge oak trees, the tunnels were once used by Yankee escapees.

Earthworks stand near the southern end of the prison where mounted cannon defended Andersonville from invaders.

The aftermath of the number of deaths in the prison is shown in the burial records of the neighboring cemetery: 12,746 known, and 322 unknown. Several Northern states have erected monuments in the prison park and national cemetery to honor their Civil War dead.

Subject of novels, historical reports, and the play "Andersonville Trial," the Andersonville Prison Park and National Cemetery projects a message of peace and brotherhood. Lightly more than an hour, slightly more than an hour, slightly more than an hour, slightly more than an hour.

group was put into a platoon-sized barracks, and we were given one bowl of half-cooked rice each to eat. At first there was no running water, and a four-man detail had to bring water from a nearby stream every day. I was on that detail one day when I met my brother. We told each other of our many chances to escape and our being unable to do so, not knowing of each other whereabouts," he continued.

"At this time I saw many men who were so undernourished they were buried alive by mistake, only to crawl out from their shallow graves. "Shortly after I arrived at the camp I was helping unload a truck filled with rice sacks when a Filipino officer asked me if I would like to be a cook. I soon found myself cooking for the Filipino officers there. I even made pies from yams."

For entertainment Danguilan was asked to put together a volleyball team for the camp. During one of the matches a Filipino general observed Danguilan's quick movements and remarked, "Who is that man? He sure doesn't play like a man in a concentration camp."

"I was 22 years old, just married, and I had a six-month-old son. I kept telling myself that I was going to get out of there. I didn't even catch any of the diseases that were in the camp," explained the black-haired Philippine native.

When Danguilan was released he joined a band of guerrilla fighters in Manila, making friends with the Japanese during the day and blowing up their garrisons at night. He came into the Army in 1945 and was assigned to a Military Police battalion in Manila. Over the years Danguilan has used his volleyball talents to win various championships, including the Third Army Volleyball Championships in 1961 and 1963, while assigned to the Infantry Board here.

During a tour in Italy he joined the International Council of Military Sport (CISM) and represented the United States playing volleyball in contests all over Europe. The 49-year-old Danguilan retired from the Army in February, after many championship volleyball matches and one march too many.

Hurricane Beulah

Post Specialist Reports from Mexico Disaster Scene

EDITOR'S NOTE: Spec. 4 Barry Nelson, public information specialist with the 37th Avn. Bn. (Prov.), recently returned from the flood-stricken Rio Grande Valley of Texas and Mexico. This is his story, accompanied by photographs he made, of mercy missions flown by four Fort Benning helicopters.

SOMEWHERE IN MEXICO—The big helicopters cast glaucous shadows on the water—ravaged Mexican landscape as they scoured across the sky. The Chinooks came from Georgia, more than a thousand miles to the north and east, and their mission is to render aid and comfort to thousands of refugees left homeless by the floods that followed Hurricane Beulah.

The men and choppers of the 177th Avn. Co. and the 66th Trans. Co., 37th Avn. Bn., are on the scene of what is, up to now, the worst natural disaster of 1967 in North America. They are assisting civil defense, Red Cross, Texas National Guard and Mexican Army workers combat the human misery that rose with the waters when the rivers went wild with Beulah's deluge.

Each morning, as the sun strikes, unsuccessfully, to break the cloud cover, the Chinooks, four of them, lift off for the hinterlands, loaded with food, fresh water and medical supplies.

It is not unusual for a ship to go out in the early morning and not return to the crude airstrip until mid-evening, only to refuse and take off on another mission.

All four of the Fort Benning choppers are equipped with internal ferry tanks, capable of carrying 600 gallons of fuel each and enabling the craft to stay up two hours longer than their normal flight time.

This capability means that the Fort Benning ships are the only aircraft around here capable of operating deep into Mexico, where most of the human damage has been done.

Medical Airlift
The first stop after crossing into Mexico is an airport under construction at Reynosa. The nearly-completed terminal has been turned into a control room for flight operations in Mexico. Food and medical supplies have been stockpiled in and around the building.

A doctor and a nurse almost always go along on every flight. Inoculations and checkups are being given to thousands of people in the remote villages and farm areas.

What happened in the minute village of El Amcar is an example of the tremendous work of helicopters in a situation like this. The Chinook sat down on outskirts with a load of emergency food. The doctor examined dozens of villagers, and discovered two cases needing immediate and serious hospital treatment, a small baby and her mother, and a badly ill teenage girl. Rubbed about, they were flown directly to the Reynosa hospital center, where an ambulance was tied to take them to the local hospital.

Another job is assisting the Red Cross in establishing food supplies in centrally-located villages where it will be easily accessible for thousands of rural folk.

Statistics Tell Story Of Rescue In Flood Hit Rio Grande Valley

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney
Statistics help tell the story of four Fort Benning helicopters and 20 "flying soldiers" who labored for nearly two weeks in the hurricane and flood—devastated Rio Grande Valley.

Flying 251 missions over a flood area, the light crews logged 175 hours, 117 of them over northern Mexico. The CH-47 Chinooks carried over 1,300 passengers in and out of inundated areas, and transported 200,000 pounds of food to stranded refugees.

More than statistics, however, it was a human story, and the words of the men who flew the missions tell it well.

"Walk-to-wall people." That is how Capt. Jim Asenberry, a flight commander, described his Chinook after the largest mass rescue of the mission.

"We took 205 people off some boxcars when the railroad tracks were awash," he said. "The current was truly good and they were in danger of losing their lives. If the boxcars had gone, they would have gone too."

"We went up there and found 200 or 300 people camped out around this tall mound of some type, quite a way from the river and the water," he said. "That was where we first started hauling pregnant women out. We had several of them there in one spot."

Another pilot, CWO Richard L. Simpkins, summed it up like this:

"Without the helicopters down there, they would drown. They could have starved to death, too. There was a real food problem when they got isolated with roads and railroads blocked off by the water."

"I was in the area for 12 p.m. Sunday. The water was high and the palm trees were being beaten. But still stand after deluge."

CWO Frank W. Cross told of rescue operations after "somebody down in the village said there were people starving up on a hilltop."

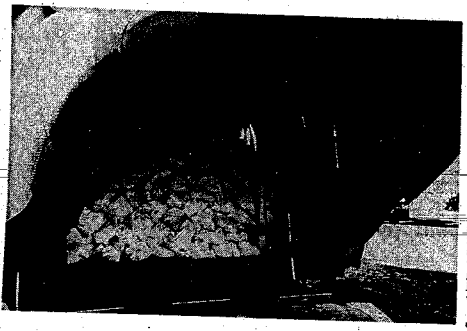

Without the helicopters down there, they would drown. They could have starved to death, too. There was a real food problem when they got isolated with roads and railroads blocked off by the water.

TV's 'Big Picture' Series Focuses on Fighting Man

The Big Picture, the U.S. Army's television program, begins its 17th season this fall. This makes it the oldest continuous documentary series on the air.

Army film-makers, however, make sure that the Big Picture is an up-to-date old-timer, to say the least. With color footage of the latest action in Vietnam the program offers something that few others can.

Also, with Army experience and knowhow behind every special and interesting assignment, the Big Picture is equipped to give the public the most knowledgeable coverage of Vietnam available.

This season, Big Picture's Army Command Information Unit for the Chief of Information, reports 25 different film packages to over 250 commercial stations in the U.S. and 34 Armed Forces outposts overseas.

A number of program contributions: "The Screaming Eagles," the story of the 11th Air Div. "The Big Red One," about the 1st Infantry Div. "The Sky Soldiers" about the 117th Avn. Bde.

The Big Picture will also follow soldiers through many special and interesting assignments. "The Shotgun Ride" portrays the role of the man who protects helicopters with his machine gun.

In all, the Big Picture, which is produced by the U.S. Army Command Information Unit for the Chief of Information, reports 25 different film packages to over 250 commercial stations in the U.S. and 34 Armed Forces outposts overseas.

Soldier Trains Viet Labor Force

LONG BINY, (USARV-10) - A 24-year-old Vietnamese-speaking Army engineer is providing the Republic of Vietnam with skilled Vietnamese workers to help build the country into an economically stable nation.

Spec. 4 Ernest R. Irgras is supervisor of the Vietnam Central Training Institute (CTI) here, responsible for training Vietnamese as heavy equipment operators, carpenters, electricians, masons, plumbers, and mechanics.

Donald R. Barrett, employee development officer, Office of the Civilian Personnel Director, said that "Irgras is invaluable. He not only knows the Vietnamese language, but understands their thinking and dispositions. If there's something wrong in a classroom, he can detect it."

Classes are taught by Vietnamese instructors who receive daily guidance from 26-month Vietnam veterans. Teachers comprise the majority of the students in the mechanics course while masonry, heavy equipment, plumbing, carpentry, and electrical classes are attended by older men.

"I was told my job would be supervising classes," said Irgras, "but checking to see if classes are being taught correctly is only part of my student completes his class- and paperwork."

First 'DR' Given To Unit's Mascot

BEAR CAT, (1st AVN-10) - Rufus, a member of the 200th Assault Support Helicopter (ASB) Co., has a criminal record. He is the first member of the 200th to receive a delinquency report in Vietnam.

It started back in the States at Fort Benning, Ga., when Rufus came to the helicopter support unit. Spec. 5 Phillip Roscoe, flight engineer, took him under wing as a new arrival.

When it came time for the 200th to move to the West Coast for deployment to Vietnam, a deal was made with the Air Force to fly Rufus to California.

The Navy took over at the coast and Rufus was put aboard an aircraft carrier and, after 18 days at sea, put ashore at Vung Tau. There Rufus was met by a Chinook helicopter and carried here.

The first thing Rufus did after rejoining his unit was to go into Bien Hoa and get picked up and impounded by the MP's, becoming the subject of the first DR to the commanding officer of the 200th Combat Avn. Bn., the 200th's support command.

A letter from the battalion commander freed Rufus and made him an authorized member of the 200th ASB Co.

Rufus you see, is a dog - the mascot of the 200th. But Rufus is going to have to seal the dog out of the compound at Bear Cat now because Rufus is a she - and pregnant.

LESSONS LEARNED IN VIETNAM

The wedge formation is used for relatively open areas where danger exists on both flanks and to the front.

Here the placement of weapons and the firepower is to the front and flanks. Security is provided wherever needed, to the front and flanks, by virtue of the formation.

When a danger area such as a river exists on the flank, the column formation is used. Here again, security is provided to a particular flank, by virtue of the formation.

The conventional "V" formation is also used and while none of these formations are new, they can be employed effectively against the important principle, security is emphasized.

The difficulty of movement in the terrain common to the Central Highlands and jungles is lessened greatly by the proper selection of routes prior to a mission.

As stated in the FMS, avoid crossing compartments because such a practice is time consuming and thing. Instead plan routes along ridges lines and other arteries. Time limitations often make the use of such routes a mandatory in order to accomplish the mission.

The old proverb derived from past experiences in counter - insurgency situations - "Never use roads that applies here. "Never use roads and trails unless the route can be sniped."

Next week, enemy sniper.

Before you borrow money, make three phone calls

Call a finance company. Call a bank. Then call financial house.

COMPARE terms and payments... friendliness and convenience... and ask what collateral is required. Then, you be the judge. Fair enough?

Special Services Sets Small Games Tourney

By Spec. 4 Bill Wallis

The USAIC Special Services Sports Section announced that the 1967 Small Games Tournament, which includes basketball, table tennis, handball and horse shoes will be held at Briam Wells Field House from October 23 to 27.

The tournament is being held to determine the best championship team and all major units are authorized to enter the tournament. Four men may enter each of the four sports from the following units: 197th Inf Bde., The Student Brigade and U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (combined), Center Command and U.S. Infantry Board (combined), 10th Ave. Gp. and Martin Army Hospital and Lawson Army Aviation Command (combined), and U.S. Army Training Center.

Although four men are allowed to enter each event from these various major units, an individual may only represent his unit in one of the four sports because of the concurrent competition schedule. Both doubles and singles matches will be held and the individual will be determined by single elimination.

The major unit championship team will be determined on a point system. The semi-final rounds must be completed by next Sunday. Results of last week's matches and pairings for this week will be as follows:

Championship Match
John Brown Detachment, Green Hart Troop, Hq. Troop defeated C. I. B. Troop, Hq. Troop, 2-1. The match was held at the 10th Arty. Club from 13:00 to 14:00 on Oct. 10, 1967.

Consolation Match
Dart Co. Troop defeated the 10th Arty. Troop, 2-1. The match was held at the 10th Arty. Club from 13:00 to 14:00 on Oct. 10, 1967.

Final Match
The 10th Arty. Troop defeated the Dart Co. Troop, 2-1. The match was held at the 10th Arty. Club from 13:00 to 14:00 on Oct. 10, 1967.

Team One Leads ATC Grid Play After 1st Week

The first week in the 1967 Training Center touch football season ended with Hq. Co., Team No. 1, on top of the league with two convincing victories—scoring 29-0 over Hq. Det. at 8:00 a.m. and 13-0 over Hq. Co., Team No. 2.

Hq. Co.'s Team No. 3 and Team No. 4 fought to a 6-6 tie. Under a no tie ruling, the winner is decided after each team is allowed four downs from the 20 yard line.

The team gaining the most yardage is the victor. Team No. 3 drove two more yards during the over-time to gain the victory, 7-6.

More experienced after their first tie game, Team No. 4 defeated 5th Bn., in a penetration playoff, gaining 23 yards to 0.

In other action, the Reception Station team smashed Team No. 3, 19-0, while Team No. 2 defeated 5th Bn., 6-0. A & R officer.

Trophies Presented at 197th For Post Athletic Victories

Trophies representing a pair of post athletic championships found their "homes" on Fort Benning's Kelley Hill last week, where members of the 197th Inf. Bde. baseball team and title-winning Hq. Co. slow-pitch softball team were honored.

M. Sgt. Jimmy V. Martin presented the post baseball trophy to Col. Jack L. Treadwell, 197th commander, at a Tuesday night banquet in the Hq. Co. mess hall.

About 15 persons connected with the baseball team were present at the banquet along with commanders of the various 197th battalions and their sergeants major.

The brigade team won the major unit baseball title with a 28-4 record, winning both halves of the season schedule.

Col. Treadwell presented the slow-pitch softball trophy to Capt. James Neale and 1st Sgt. James Fox of Hq. Co. Friday after the unit's team won a second straight post title recently.

Firing Competition Is Stiff In Moving Target Contest

The U.S. Trap, Skeet and Running Bird teams returned from Bologna, Italy, last week where they competed against the world's best shooters in the World's Moving Target Championship.

In the trap contest, the U.S. team placed second behind a strong Italian team and three points ahead of the favored Russian foursome to win a Silver Medal. Sgt. James Beck of the Army Trap squad was a member of that team.

A rugged USSR team won the Running Bird crowning in the top three places.

The Observer

— by Larry Mahoney —

The name of the game is names. Few things are so important. A good one can be a strong asset to a man, a movement, a product or a place. And there are weak names, funny names and names of no consequence that can only be a liability to whatever carries them. Obviously, Adolph Hitler, horn a Schickelgruber, could never have become master of Germany and unleashed his Wehrmacht on the world with his real name, "Hiel Schickelgruber?" Other totalitarian, most notably Lenin and Stalin, and those fiery names, in America, the moviemaker would never let a Morton Muscovgo go very far, no matter how talented or handsome, but the same man can switch to Rip Torn and make it big.

I suspect that this is a factor of some strength in sports, too. A big part of the color of local and regional loyalties is in the names. Nicknames have always been popular with Americans, and in football they flower. Categorizing them can be interesting.

The largest numbers seem to fall into two distinct groups. Predatory beasts seem to be slightly more popular than the names of rough bands of men.

In the first category is a menagerie including Wildcats, Bears, Tigers, Cougars, Bruins, Beards, Lions, Leopards, Bengals, Grizzlies, the Wolfpack, Bobcats, Lobos, Panthers. And you can throw in the Razorback hogs of Arkansas and the presume, the Nittany Lions of Penn State.

The second largest number of teams carry names of storied bands of men. These are the Seminoles, the Cowboys and the Indians, the Pirates and the Crusaders, Jayhawks and Volunteers, Boilemakers, Engineers, Texans and Spartans, Plainsmen, Musketeers and Cavaliers, Orangetan and Scarlet Knights, Rebels and Soothers, Miners, Middies, Cadets, Commodores, China Bandits and the Irish, Illini and Hoosiers, all preceded by the adjective "Fightin'". The Vandals from the University of Idaho should be included here.

After these two large groups, the number of teams in each category dwindles sharply.

Teams named for meteorological disturbances include the Hurricanes, Tornadoes and Cyclones. Perhaps, Alabama's Crimson Tide and the Green Wave of Tulane can be included here.

Only one major college team is named for an insect, Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets. Some might include the University of Richmond's Spiders here, but, as anyone who sat through 10th grade biology knows, these crawlers are not insects but belong to the family araneida.

Eagles, Owls, Falcons and Gamecocks are among the birds that lend their names to the game. Put the Gobblers of Virginia Tech here, too, and the Ducks — the Ducks — of Oregon. Small wonder Oregon finished 3-7 last season. "All right, you Ducks, get out there and nail those Trojans."

Reptilian names are rare, too, restricted to Florida with its Gators and Rattlers, and Texas with its Horned Frogs, and Maryland with her Terps. There are hooved beasts, the Bison, the Longhorns, Mustangs, Rams and Buffaloes. The canine family is represented by Bulldogs, Terriers and Huskies. Unclassifiable are friendly little animals, the Coopers of Minnesota and Badgers of Wisconsin.

State names are applied to a few, the Tar Heels, Sooners, Buckeyes and Hawkeyes. Straight from hell come a variety of Devils, red, blue and what have you. And the least colorful of all are called by colors, such as Harvard's Crimson and Penn's Red and Blue.

Pardon my wandering, but there are two names, belonging to high school football teams in my part of the country, that I

Bayonet Suffers 1st Loss In College Football Picks

The 16th Sgt. Gp. handed picked right in 27 games for The Bayonet's football fore- casters their first loss of the season in picks of gridiron contests played last weekend. The three-man team from the 16th Sgt. Gp. scored a 69 per cent correct rate, picking 29 games out of a possible 42. The best one by a forecaster so far this year, Chris Bellard, was The Bayonet's forecaster who Forecasters from both teams missed North Carolina State's surprising 16-6 victory over Houston but managed to score well in most of the other games as favorites Alabama, Missouri, Purdue, Notre Dame, Southern Cal and UCLA proved victorious.

Contests Foreseen For YAC Gridders By GAC This Fall

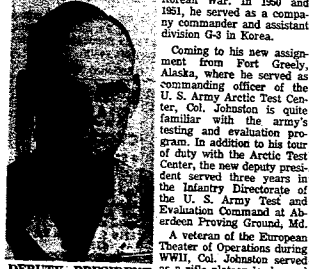

Football, basketball and track are generally the province of men only, but if Port Benning's Youth Activities Club has its way there is a "powder puff" side to the sports here this fall. YAC is organizing two squads of girl gridlers for a game in November. Anyone interested can contact YAC at 545 2130 for more details. A girls' basketball league is also in the planning stages, according to YAC's Spec. 4 Horace Pickett. The Georgia High School Athletic Association has also been contacted about a program of track and field events for boys and girls, he added.

Col. Johnston Infantry Board Deputy Assigned

A change of command with- at USAID. Col. Walter F. Johnston replaced Col. George W. Griswold, who retired on September 30. Not a new man here, Col. Johnston received his commission at Infantry OCS in August 1962 and served here again as an instructor at the Infantry School prior to the Korean War. In 1950 and 1951, he served as a company commander and assistant division G-3 in Korea.

DEPUTY PRESIDENT Col. Walter Johnston

Coming to his new assignment from Fort Greely, Alaska, where he served as commanding officer of the U. S. Army Arctic Test Center, Col. Johnston is quite familiar with the army's testing and evaluation program. In addition to his tour of duty with the Arctic Test Center, the new deputy president served three years in the Infantry Directorate of the Infantry School at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. A veteran of the European Theater of Operations during WWII, Col. Johnston served as a rifle platoon leader and company commander in the North African, Italian and Southern France Campaigns. Following his discharge as the Advanced Infantry Officer's Course here and the command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the colonel served with the 4th Armored Div. in Germany, commanding personnel of an armored infantry battalion.

Post CG, 25 Commandants To Attend CONARC Meet

The conference is being held in order to give Gen. James K. Woolnough, US- CONARC commander, an opportunity to discuss with the heads of the schools individual training problems and to clarify policy matters through the exchange of ideas. The Fort Monroe conference is phase two of a working level conference held at the U. S. Army Missile and Munitions School, Redstone Arsenal, Ala., in August.

OBSERVER

can't resist mentioning. These are the Mulletts of Carrabelle, Fla., and the Sidney Lanier High Poets from Montgomery, Ala. The Poets, despite that fine name, are traditionally tough. But the Mulletts? Well, a Mullett is a low-grade fish found by the thousands in Florida waters. Quite common, and most people eat them only when there's nothing else available. And I can never remember those football Mulletts winning more than three games a season.

In closing my contentions about the importance of names, consider this week's top 10 like this: 1. Trojans, 2. Bulldogmakers, 3. Bulldogs, 4. Bruins, 5. Fighting Irish, 6. Bulldogs, 7. Crimson Tide, 8. Cornhuskers, 9. The Wolfpack, 10. Cougars.

SELL under half way toward its goal of $180,000. Fort Benning's 1968 United Givers Fund Drive is in its last three weeks.

Only $51,000 has been contributed, but military payroll remains and is expected to boost the campaign to its goal of 100 per cent participation by all military and civilian personnel.

Campaign keymen and other leaders met at midweek to discuss the drive's progress. Capt. Robert S. Kavanagh (See UGF, Page 2)

MOWW Told Media Hazes True Picture Of Viet War

By Lt. David Leonard

Is the American public getting the full story of the war in Vietnam? Does the war really know what it wants to be?

Those were the key questions which Brig. Gen. Lloyd B. Rastetter, Third Army's chief of staff and former deputy chief of information for the U.S. Army, posed to 60 listeners at the monthly meeting of the Military Order of the World Wars Tuesday evening at Fort Benning's Country Club.

Col. Wolff Takes Command at ATC

Col. Herbert E. Wolff, who assumed command of the Philippine Islands in 1946. After the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, Wolff moved overseas with the 10th Inf. Regt. During 19 months in Korea, he participated in the evacuation of Hungnam and the subsequent counteroffensive.

Returned Here
Col. Wolff returned to Fort Benning in May 1967 as deputy assistant commander of all units of the organization.

Under a brilliant October sun, Col. Wolff accepted the Training Center colors from Gen. Mount, signifying the official assumption of command.

In expressing his appreciation of the officers and men of the Training Center, and speaking of the more than 107,000 soldiers who have been graduated, Gen. Mount said, "Some feel that our country's future is as sound as our country's youth. If this is true, I guarantee you that we, as a nation, are in the best of shape."

Commander of Troops for the ceremony was Col. Melvin Montecarlo, deputy commander of the Training Center, joining Gen. Mount and Col. Wolff on the reviewing stand was Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon, Gen. Mount, who has been selected to receive his second star, will assume chief of staff duties at First Army on November 1. Col. Wolff has been selected for promotion to brigadier general. Born in Germany in 1925, Col. Wolff enlisted in the Army in 1943 and received his

Bittorie Gets Top NCO Slot In Army's Largest Brigade

By Spec. 4 David Chaffon

John H. Bittorie, a combat veteran of WWII and Vietnam, has been assigned as the new sergeant major of the 197th Inf. Bde.

He replaces Sgt. Maj. Bob L. Williams, who leaves to fill a post with the 101st Abn. Div. at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Bittorie first came to Fort Benning after completing basic training at Camp Pendleton in November 1942. Winning his wings, he was assigned to the 511th Parachute Inf. Regt. for the duration of WWII. While with the 511th, Bittorie participated in the famed combat drop over Tugay Ridge in the Philippines.

He also spent 6 months there in 1947, graduating from the Senior Infantry NCO Course.

From 1949-52 Bittorie was assigned to his first sergeant major post with the 1st Abn. Battle Gp. of the 101st Inf. in Germany. He was then assigned as sergeant major of the 4th Inf. Div. (86th). He was reassigned as sergeant major of the 2nd Bde, 4th Inf. Div. when that unit reorganized.

few reporters who out cover the battles from the front lines. "Only by writing in depth and detail can they give you the full truth about this war." He had a special word of praise for Charles Black, military writer for the Columbus Enquirer, who recently returned from his fourth front-line tour in Vietnam.

Referring to a recent statement by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, he agreed that the "television camera view is a narrow one, the one selected by the man behind the camera. The public gets perhaps 15 degrees out of a 360 degree circle. The rest of the circle may be peaceful, but the public sees the 15 degrees of violence."

"You've seen many pictures of burning villages, and terror-stricken Vietnamese peasants. But does the camera ever show the follow-up medical aid, the building of schools, the agricultural aid?"

He concluded "Many Americans do not realize that we are building a nation — its economic, political and social structure."

Chaplain Speaks Service gives many chances to express loyalty, sacrifice

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James R. Karnet
The serviceman has always had the opportunity to demonstrate his loyalty. History's pages are replete with instances of the soldier giving himself to his country. He has always lived at the frontier of society where spots of disorder and chaos were erupted.

He lives also at the headlines that describe the hero who received the Medal of Honor, there is the soldier ever ready to his task who was alert to the challenge of his responsibilities. He makes personal sacrifices, unknown to the larger group, but he has the personal satisfaction of service at the frontier of history. It is easier to be a hero on the field of battle than to hold the line day after day. He may feel like an unknown soldier, with no one cheering him on, but there is the satisfaction in doing a job.

In this fight it is a matter of life or death; you are your "brother's keeper." Knowing this should give personal satisfaction of your loyalty which is paid in untold dividends through a conscience that speaks peace to your soul. Two words mark the victorious fighting soldier: sacrifice and loyalty. He makes many sacrifices. He faces many dangers, but he takes strength from the Holy writer of old who said: "Endure hardness as a good soldier."

The challenge of the impossible and difficult bring out the true sacrificial nature, but where does loyalty stand in days of training, preparation and waiting? Second only to sacrifice, a

'Attractive nuisances' cause numerous rear-end crashes

The Fort Benning safety director tells us rear-end collisions occur with alarming frequency where traffic congestion is heavy—why?
One reason is what we call "attractive nuisances." Disturbances, accidents, odd sights, displays, front end things like flashy automobiles all take their toll in causing momentary distractions. Distractions that cause drivers to look directly off the side result in many rear end collisions.

Do not drive blind. Drivers who are not attracted to the different situations alongside a highway are still subject to rear end collisions if they permit their clear distance vision to be cut off by remaining close behind a bus or other large commercial vehicle.

"BUT HAVEN'T THEY HEARD OF AUTOMATION?"

Judge Says Army law assistance limited to military court rooms only

Many members of the Army and their dependents have a misconception concerning the extent to which military lawyers can assist them with their legal problems. The Army Legal Assistance Program is primarily advisory in nature. In general, servicemen and their dependents are advised as to their legal rights and causes of action. In addition, simple legal papers are prepared. This includes simple wills, powers of attorney and bills of sale. The more complicated cases, involving trusts or civil litigation, are essentially legal matters. These cases must be handled by private attorneys.

While a lawyer with The Judge Advocate General Corps is a member of the bar of at least one of the 50 states, he is transferred from post to post as are other servicemen. Therefore, chances are that he is not a member of the bar of the state in which he is stationed. Even if he were, the Judge Advocate General has stated that lawyers in the Army will not engage in the civilian

Dental progress stalled by fluoridation critics

A few years ago, Wellesley, Mass., a prosperous, progressive town in England community considered a proposal to fluoridate their drinking water. One week earlier, the Washington, D. C. Public Health Dept. released statistics indicating a 12 percent reduction in dental caries of 6.5 per cent among its seven-year-old children.

In the Wellesley campaign, one of the opponents publicly uttered the following statements: "Fluoride is a poison." This is not a question on which the group has a right to vote. No group has the right to force taxpayers to pay for a measure not recommended by their own doctor."

Anti-fluoridation groups in other states flooded Wellesley with letters. They are acting on orders from Moscow to soften American brains. The net effect of these "peace" tactics was to raise a 1000 doubt and create a "yuck" take-chance attitude among the citizenry. The proposal to fluoridate the drinking water was emphatically defeated.

There are those who oppose fluoridation on purely religious grounds, regarding it as staining of the body. The sponsors of these bills are not one who has a "grope" against legitimate scientific progress."

Vietnam critic's views may be 'for the birds'

California Senator George Murphy who recently chided both hawks and doves by stating all should back the American Eagle, "had it great solution for both sides of the spectrum. After all, why should the average citizen not have a choice as to what he wants to call himself depending on the degree to which he believes in escalation or deescalation?"

Mr. Average American should not feel cramped into just one of two categories because he cannot choose. For the man who cannot see it straight to voicing his own opinion, there is the Parrot, which can be easily identified by his flashy show, loud voice and colorful speech.

At the opposite end of the spectrum is the Ostrich: Those who wish to follow this bird's example do not have to do much—any Ostrich knows he can hide from hawks and doves by sticking his head in the sand. Perhaps the Ostrich is not the answer for some. After all, a large segment of the public prefers to follow the Mocking Bird. Everybody knows this bird. He has a happy, bubbly every thing he considers bad. Unfortunately, he does not consider anything good.

Other agencies by the opposition, including the American Dental Association, have considered the question of fluoridation, and have urged the right of the community to fluoridate. Also, the U. S. Supreme Court, on four occasions, has refused to review lower court decisions favoring fluoridation.

Fluoridation is promoted for commercial purposes by those who manufacture the chemicals and machinery; that irresponsible scientists and public officials have been "bought"; that it is all part of a vast Communist conspiracy; that staining of the teeth and irreversible physical injury is inevitable; and many others, too numerous to list, should be considered. In the words of the Honorable Arthur S. Fleming, the sponsors of these bills are not one who has a "grope" against legitimate scientific progress."

The home nurses, under supervision of the department, had a year of training by registered nurses and have had at least one year of experience as nurses in nursing homes or hospitals. The training program is financially sponsored by federal funds.

Cost of the service varies with the care provided to each patient. Night care also is available. Persons desiring to employ a home nurse can arrange interviews either at home or at the department by calling Miss Ellen Skinner or Mrs. Stanley Tomblin at 324-4833, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

PERSONS DESIRING TO EMPLOY A HOME NURSE (CHANGING LOCATION) SHOULD CONTACT: Captain Joseph D. Mann, Room 301, 324-4833, STANLEY TOMBLIN, 324-4833, MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY, 8 A.M. UNTIL 5 P.M. ALL INTERVIEWS.

NCO Duties Nothing New to Academy Honor Grad

By Spec 4 Paul Turk
Martin McDonald has been performing NCO duties for the day he entered boot training, serving as a Fort Polk platoon guide on to the present as a weapons squad leader in Co. A, 5th Bn., 1st Inf. The "Polar Bears" of the 1st Infantry Division are largely a reinforcement of his self-confidence.

Self Confidence
On departing for the academy's first class more than six weeks ago, he employed that full unit described himself as an "outstanding young man, one to whom we have looked to provide leadership among the younger men, and one always capable of accomplishing his mission." Before being commissioned, indicated a

Added Services Made Available To Post Families

The Muscogee County Department of Family and Children's Services has recently announced that another service is available to families at Fort Benning and Columbus.

The department now has a staff of trained home nurses who are prepared to give nursing care to bedridden, aged and ambulatory patients at home as well as in the hospital.

The home nurses, under supervision of the department, had a year of training by registered nurses and have had at least one year of experience as nurses in nursing homes or hospitals. The training program is financially sponsored by federal funds.

Cost of the service varies with the care provided to each patient. Night care also is available.

PERSONS DESIRING TO EMPLOY A HOME NURSE (CHANGING LOCATION) SHOULD CONTACT: Captain Joseph D. Mann, Room 301, 324-4833, STANLEY TOMBLIN, 324-4833, MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY, 8 A.M. UNTIL 5 P.M. ALL INTERVIEWS.

Floral Arranging Shown At Infantry Wives Event

How to "Say it with Flowers," and particularly with the golden-hued autumn flowers was the main attraction for the wives of the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course I, 20th Co., 2nd Bn., at their luncheon, held recently at the Main Officers' Club.

Mrs. Kathleen Henderson of a Columbus florist shop, demonstrated how to use fall flowers and candles in creating floral arrangements for the home.

A wooden candlestick and candle in Early American design were awarded as a door prize.

Guests were Mrs. John B. Wine, Mrs. Martin J. Slominski, Mrs. John Winkler, Mrs. Donald Penny and Mrs. Alberta Hagen, mother of Mrs. M. McDonald.

Payne Home Is Scene Of Local Wives Meet

Imagine a lady with a soldering iron, pieces of iron, and bits and pieces of colored glass. Then wonder what the lady could do with such an array of oddly assorted items.

That is exactly what the 4th Bn. Armored, held their monthly coffee recently at the Main Officers' Club. The setting was the Benning Room and the hostesses were Mrs. John C. Edwards and Mrs. Joseph B. Birdwell.

Mrs. Harold Luby presided over a brief business meeting. Plans for the 19th Bde. luncheon on November 15 were discussed.

Newcomers welcomed to the battalion were Mrs. David D. Moss and Mrs. Duane C. Powers.

Farewells were bid to Mrs. Charles L. Baker, Mrs. James W. Watts and Mrs. Robert S. Walden.

The waitresses, modeling gowns with wide lace and tulle, will be serving their guests amid the music and festivities of the "casino" party.

Other wives are busy making items such as glassware, gifts, ceramics and lace garments to be sold in the European-styled souvenir shop. Meanwhile, costumes are being sewn, tickets being sold and posters being mounted in preparation for the big night.

Tickets may be purchased by 2-4's through 2-9's throughout the month of October from members of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club or at the door on the night of the party.

With the background of a large bow-tie and amid many books, Miss Barbara Collier, extension librarian, presented a report concerning our libraries and books for all ages. Bookmarkers for each lady were presented as favors.

MRS. KONZE Many Young Friends

Little folks and big folks alike are fans of Mrs. Charles Konze, wife of the post dental surgeon.

Because she is the supervisor and secretary for the Main Post Protestant Sunday School and because she has four children of her own, she has a wide circle of friends from among the "younger set."

It is quite often that when Mrs. Konze is out in her yard, a child going by throws up his hands, grins broadly and calls out, "Hello Mrs. Konze."

During her four years at Fort Benning she has been treasurer, projects chairman, and secretary for the Protestant Women of the Chapel, a frequent worker at the Thrift Shop, and a busy member of the Parents-Teachers Association.

She'd like to try her hand at golf.

She's always been a wife with no desire for a "I Hate to Cook Cookbook." Homemaking, with cooking and baking being special joys, is a pleasure to her. Desserts are her specialty.

As one might have guessed if they had been around for that football game, the Konzes both hail from Texas. They met while they were both students at the University of Texas. After they were married and while he was still in dental school, she worked as an IBM operator in Houston.

After dental school, they came into the Army for two years. In 1946, Dr. Konze set up his private practice in Eden, Tex., but by 1949, they were back into the Army.

Almost immediately they went to Salzburg, Austria. Later they spent four years at Fort Hood, Tex., spent one year at the University of Iowa for her husband's studies for his masters degree, three years at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and three years at Tripler Army Hospital at Honolulu, Hawaii, before coming to Fort Benning.

Being an Army wife, she says, is thoroughly enjoyable and ever interesting.

Enjoys Hiking

She and her family also enjoy family hiking trips, picnics, and volleyball. "I used to play a lot of tennis," she chuckles. "An 'I was pretty good' too." She's decided that next

Ideas Listed for Waging The 'Battle of the Bulge'

By Louise Domashewsky

Are you in the midst of your fall "dieting campaign?" Are you smiling less and moaning more? Why not let in a few rays of sunshine and proceed to enter the "Battle of the Bulge" with a smile!

The first mistake we all make is to regard a piece of chocolate cake or french fries as a friend; a friend that we dearly love and whose parted company will be tastelessly missed.

Let's face it, all those cakes, candies, etc. are enemies! Enemies that have to be conquered. If we want the latest fashions in our closets. So gals, let's start the battle. Here are the plan:

Step 1. Know your enemy - buy yourself a calorie book and keep it handy.

Step 2. Join forces with the allies - see your doctor and have him advise you of the best way to lose those pounds easily.

Step 3. Locate enemy headquarters - all those goodies in the cupboards, refrigerator, have got to get!

Step 4. Sneak attack - learn to prepare your favorite dishes without all those heavy laden calories.

Step 5. Bring in reinforcements - join a club, or get together with a friend and it's more fun if togetherness is part of your campaign.

Step 6. Advance tactics - exercise at least 10 minutes daily.

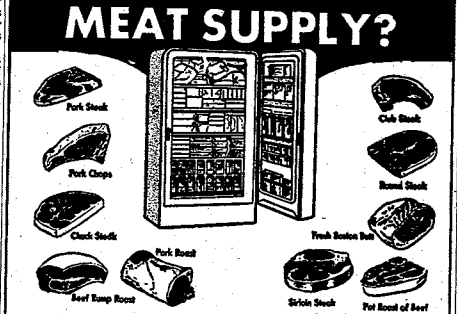

Step 7. Use propaganda - buy a dress in the desired size; paste a photograph of a healthy woman on your refrigerator.

Tour Takes Post Wives To 58th Inf.

The wives and sweethearts of the men of the 1st Bn. (Mech) 58th Inf., recently visited the South Harmony Church area to see what their men do during the day.

The group, headed by Mrs. John M. Allen, wife of the battalion chaplain, received a short briefing from the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Charles D. Wright and then proceeded on a tour of battalion headquarters, the S-2, 3 and 4 shops, the new battalion dayroom and the billets and mess hall of Co. C.

The visit also included a tour of the battalion motor pool complete with a ride in a tracked vehicle. Mrs. Harry Holloway, wife of the battalion S-4, said "I have always heard my husband talk about tracks and I had seen them in the movies and newsreels, but this is the first time I ever rode in one."

The fashions were shown by a Columbus dress shop. Narration was given by Mrs. Virginia Goodsell, store representative.

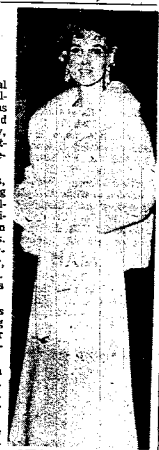

The show was one of the fashion shows which is presented each month at the Supper Club by the Charm and Modeling School. The next show will be given November 30.

The school also frequently presents fashion shows at post social functions. On November 4, a show will be given for a luncheon of the wives of The Infantry School's Student Brigade, and holiday fashions will be highlighted at the December 8 luncheon for the Medical Services Officers' Wives' Club.

Dear Community Service, I'm taking out two children and going to my mother's for about two weeks. My husband is assigned to Vietnam and won't be home for another six months. My question is, who should I leave my address with while I'm visiting home just in case the Army wants to get in touch with me.

197th Units Adopt Forebear's Crest

By Spec 4 Paul Turk Long buried in the records of Army heraldic facilities, a distinctive gold and blue unit crest authorized 25 years ago, but never manufactured or issued, has become the official symbol of a segment of the 197th Inf. Bde. here.

A yellow caltrap, set against a blue background, seen in an oval framed by the motto, "Forever Forward," is the new symbol of non-color bearing units of the brigade, to include the brigade headquarters, scout dog units and an engineer company.

The device was authorized Oct. 8, 1942, as the insignia of the 90th Reconnaissance Troops, though the emblem was never manufactured because of wartime restrictions.

The blue background is designed to represent the Infantry origin of the troop as the 197th Inf. Bde.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE U. S. Savings Bonds are the choice of millions of Americans for building to the forward economic security for sign. The crest was discovered after a search of heraldry.

101st Abn. Div. 200 Paratroopers Arrive Monday For Jungle Patrolling Instruction

Two-hundred members of the 101st Abn. Div. arrived here Monday for two weeks of intensive jungle patrolling instruction from the Ranger Command.

The unit is comprised of volunteers from airborne units from the U. S., Panama and Germany. After coming to the 101st they were screened and selected for the two week school.

Training began Tuesday with the basic fundamentals of patrolling taught. After classroom instruction the students went through a simulated search with Ranger cadres pointing out their mistakes. At night a combat patrol led by the students was given, stressing team work and warning signals.

During the remainder of the week increased significance was placed on more specialized operations. Base camps and reconnaissance points were set up by the students. While surveilling an imagined enemy, strict light and noise discipline was kept. On one practice operation an English method of "Sheparding" was practiced with the men keeping to two-man teams for a surprise effect.

Ambushes of all kinds are being invented by the Ranger cadre. The students are taught how to avoid attacks while fording streams and occupied areas. Many of the evasion techniques are given while the students are under simulated enemy fire.

Cox, commanding officer of Saturday the troopers will be the airborne men.

16 Resolutions Presented To Conventi on Members

Fort Benning Chapter submitted the basic document positioning for support of the museum association. The local chapter had specifically cited the newly chartered Infantry Museum Association, but the committee modified the resolution to encompass all branches of the Army.

Other resolutions stated the association's support of the anti-ballistic missile system announced September 11 by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara; called for state and federal laws to declare desecration of the American flag an act of treason and punishable; equal opportunity in adequate off-post housing for military personnel and endorsed the worldwide deployment of U. S. Army forces as a deterrent to aggression in a convincing demonstration of support for our allies.

Also serving on the 1967 resolutions committee was Sgt. Maj. (ret.) W. A. Calahan, former sergeant major of The Infantry Center.

In this, and succeeding issues of the BAYONET, complete texts of the resolutions will be published as a service to the post's many AUSA members and as an answer to the question frequently asked, "What does AUSA do and what does it stand for?"

The complete text of the resolution concerning the national and post cemeteries is as follows:

WHEREAS, it has long been the policy of the United States to revere the nation's dead who have served our country honorably; and

WHEREAS, the present policy against expansion of post and national cemeteries was adopted in the late 1940s, and reiterated by each subsequent administration; and

WHEREAS, the armed forces of the United States have been in almost continuous combat since this restriction was established and as a result, the need for burial space has increased, it is apparent that said policy is now obsolete and should be changed; and

WHEREAS, this is a matter of great general public interest and of vital concern to veterans and their dependents who are concerned about a proper burial place; and

WHEREAS, the establishment of a national policy providing facilities for suitable burial space in a military cemetery will be an important morale booster for all military personnel who have served, are presently serving, and will serve in the future; and

WHEREAS, this need for additional burial space can be met at a minimal cost by utilizing unused space already available in many military establishments throughout the country;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that it is the considered opinion of the Association of the U. S. Army that the best interests of the nation and the members of our armed forces and their dependents will be served by the expansion of national and post cemetery facilities immediately to insure that the members of our armed forces who have served honorably will be provided a resting place in a military cemetery as a tribute to their service.

Proposed Pay Hike Calls for 5.6 Per Cent Boost

From Army Times

WASHINGTON — The military pay raise in the form considered by the House Armed Services Committee, will put $10.4 million a year into military pockets. Where does this money go? Who gets what? About 74 per cent of the money goes directly into the 5.6 per cent raise in basic pay (it must be remembered this figure could be changed before Congress sends the bill to President Johnson for his signature). This means a basic pay increase of $42.7 million a year, assuming that the services remain at their present manpower levels.

This includes a 22 per cent pay raise — $140 a month extra — for the senior enlisted man of each of the four services. A House Armed Services Committee amendment to the pay bill makes it certain that these men will not be paid during retirement pay, even if they go before retiring.

Things based on basic pay will go up $43.6 million per year. These include reenlistment bonuses, separation pay, social security pay-crawled cost to the taxpayer.

Separate Ratios

In his pay presentation to Congress, Assistant Defense Secretary Thomas Morris included, as an element of increased cost to the taxpayer, separate ratios for each of the four services. The ratios are based on the pay of a private first class in the Army, a private first class in the Navy, a private first class in the Air Force, and a private first class in the Marine Corps. The ratios are: Army, 1.00; Navy, 1.00; Air Force, 1.00; Marine Corps, 1.00.

Extras Not Included

Also, the above figures do not include the extra money to be paid to people in non-defense uniformed services. These are the people in the Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and Environmental Sciences Administration, and their increase totals $8.6 million per year.

Similar physicians: The bill contains a provision which authorizes up to four months extra pay for each additional year that key senior physicians volunteer to remain on active duty.

Secretary Morris estimated that 100 career medics would collect three or four months continuation pay and this would mean $5.2 million more in their pockets in the first year.

250 Tribesmen Escape From VC Starvation Plot

BONG SON (lat CAVJO)—Some 250 mountain tribesmen have come out of the hills of the An Lao Valley seeking refuge from a systematic Viet Cong attempt to starve them to death.

LESSONS LEARNED in VIETNAM

Enemy Sniper—More often than the enemy will be encountered in small units. The sniper is a good example of the type of small unit action frequently encountered.

The mission of the sniper varies. Most often he is employed to harass. The sniper, however, is used in areas where enemy strength is nominal. Here he is used to demonstrate to the inhabitants of the area that the Viet Cong can resist a larger government or American force. Primarily, much light resistance is for propaganda purposes.

In a delaying mission the sniper is very effective. A single sniper can hold up a greatly superior force while his comrades effect withdrawal. Very often too, the sniper is utilized to bait an ambush by withdrawing into the proposed trap.

The effectiveness of the sniper depends on the type of country and the terrain. When the enemy is greatly outnumbered or when his experience and equipment make him other than a regular, he will usually engage at ranges which will allow immediate retreat after initiating the action.

Main force Viet Cong and NVA snipers are bolder and possess better weapons, often complete with telescopes. This type of sniper will allow forces to closely approach his position before engaging them. Obviously the latter sniper is more effective and casualties are higher for opposing forces.

Next week—Enemy Sniper continued.

First, 146 Montagnards came out of the An Lao where they were being hunted by sowing gangs of VC. The next week 104 more refugees arrived at a temporary camp near the lat. CAVJO forward headquarters here.

The VC were forcing the Montagnards to work for them in the fields, then taking whatever their farms produced, the tribesmen said. When they reached Bong Son, the tribesmen were emancipated.

"Someone should have to answer for the condition these people are in," said a young cavalman watching Montagnards enter it. "I've seen them in the past. They would get sick to their stomachs if they saw children this close to death."

An officer watching the same scene said, "This is worse than anything I've ever seen—even in India."

The officer said that some of the other Montagnards in the An Lao sent representatives to the Cav to see whether it was safe for them to come out.

Capt. Asa R. Talbot, flight surgeon for the Cavalry's 2nd Bn., 20th Arty., treated the tribesmen as they arrived and evacuated several of the more serious cases of malnutrition to hospitals.

"The basic medical problem is malnutrition," said Talbot. "They lack the natural defenses to fight disease. The New Zealand doctors at the hospital here can take care of the worst cases and send the rest home. I've already had one baby die from malnutrition."

"It's unfortunate that many American's don't realize how much we are doing for these desperately needy people," the 32-year-old doctor continued. "Unfortunately, this is one side of military operations many people back home don't know about."

62nd OCs See Falcons Play

Approximately 200 officer candidates of the 62nd Co., 8th Sta. Bn. (OC) took a trip to Atlanta Sunday to attend a professional football game. The candidates saw the Atlanta Falcons play the Washington Redskins in a game which ended in a 20-20 tie. The candidates arose early Sunday morning to decorate the sides of their chartered buses with signs which read: "62nd Officer Candidate Co." and "make way."

Holter, Goodin Set To Battle For Post Golf Championship

John Holter and Marion Goodin are slated to meet Sunday in a 26 hole match play to determine the Fort Benning Country Club Golf champion. Holter defeated Roy Tugan two up and Goodin defeated Bob Himes three and two to gain the final.

Results of other matches and final pairings are as follows:

44th Snares Abn. League Boxing Title

The final tally has been counted and the 44th Co. (Abn) has been declared this year's champion of the Airborne Boxing League. The formal presentation of the boxing trophy was held at 8:00 p.m. last Saturday. The trophy was presented by Maj. Herbert M. Payne, XO 4th Bn., to Capt. John A. Boggs, CO 44th Co. and Roosevelt Sturkey, the top rated fighter of the 44th team. Sturkey's record is three wins for three fights with three TKO's. The coaching of Sgt. Gerald L. Wilson and Sgt. Wilbert Garner was the key to 44th's success. Wilson and Garner were able to maintain a winning percentage of .667 (24 wins and 12 losses) even though 14 of 16 personnel changed every three weeks. Wilson pointed out that the 44th Co. was the first company in the Airborne League to win all six fights of an evening's schedule.

LEAGUE LEADING RED DEVILS ROUT TIGERS

This week the off-post Biddy League saw the league leading Red Devils trounce the Tigers, 27-0. The Red Devils took the lead in the second quarter when fullback Clanton Boyd, following a series of plays, scored from the one yard line. Earlier in the game they had scored however the TD was called back for backfield in motion. The Red Devils added two more TD's to their score with halfback Greg Crow and George Gonzalez crossing the goal. Although the Tigers put on their best defensive efforts, which were led by David Mills, Richard Tubal and Steve Tyson, they still could not stop the strong offensive drive of the Red Devils.

THE FORUM THE BROWNIE

BY MIKE MCNUITY

Fran Tarkenton is a wheeler-dealer, a man of unbelievable stamina. His profession is that of quarterback in the National Football League—a rather dangerous job which literally finds him running for his life. In 1966, his brand of football found him dodging to the tune of 396 yards gained on the ground—all for the Minnesota Vikings, a team he didn't enjoy playing for.

The New York Giants have been on the losing end of almost every contest they've played since the slow moving but straight throwing Y. A. Tittle retired a few years back. Last year, under the direction of three quarterbacks, the Giants finished the season with a record of one victory, twelve defeats, and one tie.

The Giants needed a winner in 1967 or at least a box office attraction in the form of a super-star, mostly because the American Football League's Jets were also housed in New York and had strong drawing appeal in Joe Namath. The Jets, too, had all the makings of a first division team while the Giants resembled the lowly New York Mets — and New Yorkers, no matter how big their hearts may be, have room for only one loser.

At the end of the 1966 season, Tarkenton sent a now famous letter to the Viking management publicly announcing his unwillingness to quarterback their team another year. The Minnesota brass grudgingly decided to part with him and the race was on to see which team could offer the most to get The Scrambler.

The Giants won — but only after they gave up everything but the hot dog concession stand at Yankee Stadium to do so. No matter, though, they now had a super-star — one who would please the crowd with his eccentric scrambling proclivities.

However, they actually got more. They found a leader who turned a herd of football players into a professional team. Witness the fact that the Giants are now tied for the No. 1 spot in the Century Division of the Eastern Conference.

And for an instance of what Tarkington has done to rejuvenate the Giants would be last Sunday's game against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The elusive quarterback started the game off with a 43-yard touchdown pass to halfback Joe Morrison. His team then set back and looked like the Giants of 1966. Pittsburgh, behind a solid running game, proceeded to score three touchdowns and a field goal and late in the third quarter were ahead 24-14. Enter The Scrambler with his bag of tricks.

Tarkington maneuvered the Giants into scoring position with a wizard-like performance, slipping out of the frantic grasp of the Steeler linemen, throwing his famed short pass or running for important gains. From seven yards out he maneuvered around the bewildered defenders and scored.

Then with two minutes remaining in the game Tarkington pulled a storybook razzle-dazzle play out of his hat. He handed the ball off to Ernie Foy, who pitched it back to Homer Jones, who lateralled to Tarkington, who threw a 59 yard touchdown pass to Morrison. Final score: New York 27, Pittsburgh 24.

Even in the unpredictable world of pro football this type of play doesn't happen too often, if ever.

The Giants face the Green Bay Packers this coming Sunday, a task I'm sure they don't relish. But even if New York doesn't beat the Packers, Tarkington will at least stage an exciting show for a club that had little to offer a year ago. And that's really all the Giants expect to get in the first place.

Army Shooters Lead National Competition

The ones who make the least mistakes usually win the game, is a known fact around competition circles. It is football, golf or target shooting.

In recent years four shooters from the Army shooting teams have turned in stellar performances and have dominated the National competitive scene since 1966.

The High Power Rifle Team has Barbara Rife, six times the National Woman's Service Rifle Champion. During the years she has fired on the Army team she has outperformed many of the men and challenged them to a better achievement. Hailing from Michigan where she learned to shoot on her father's farm, she attributes her success with the big gun to hard work and a natural knack for fire-arms.

During the years she has set many records but she is proud of the one she set at the Nationals in 1966, 728-75V. Four years in a row she has won the National title, then in 1965 a new star appeared on the horizon and equipped her for awhile, Margaret Thompson edged her out for the National Championship that year but she bounced back the next two years and proved herself champion. Thompson went on to fame with her National and International smallbore shooting.

Pistol Champ Sallie Carroll represents the outfit side of the Pistol competition. Since her assignment to the MTU, she has set many individual records and has broken the 2000 mark. She is the present National Woman's Pistol Champion, having won the title in 1967 for the third time. Her Powder Puff Team holds several Team records firing under the banner of the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Thompson created fame and prestige for herself and the U. S. Army when she won the venerable Navy Cup in 1965 and the Womens National Pistol title in 1967. She is the first woman to win a gold medal in rifle shooting in the Pan-Am competition.

And the one who has made, perhaps the least mistakes of all is M.Sgt. William Blankenship, who as the six-time winner of the National Pistol title has placed himself on a plane with former Army great M.Sgt. Hueket "Doc" Benner and Ret. Detroit police inspector Harry Reeves, who are also six-time title holders. Joe was the first Army man to ever win the championship. Only two Army men have held the National title.

Since 1940 the National Matches have been dominated by three men, Reeves, Benner and Blankenship. Discounting the five years of non-competition during this time these men won 18 of the remaining 21 championships.

For years now, Blankenship, who is the Army Team Coach, has been the backbone of the Army Pistol Team. He is the only man in the Army on active duty who holds the three highest shooting awards given by the United States. He has been awarded the Distinguished Pistol Badge and the International Distinguished Badge.

Not only is Blankenship a threat with the conventional three guns, he is also a champion in International shooting. In 1966 he won the World's Center Fire Championship and at the 1967 Pan-Am Games he fired on all winning Pistol Teams. In the 1963 Pan-Am Games, he won a silver medal for a U. S. team that won the world's Fire Pistol Team.

Aside from all this and the many records that he holds, he has been awarded the Legion of Merit for his shooting prowess.

There have been good shooters in the future, but the four champions on today's team have left their mark. They are hard hitting cool competitors who practice making less mistakes than their competitors.

Notre Dame, looking for a victory that would, again lift it into the football spotlight, could never get their offense cranked up against the spirited eleven from Southern Cal.

Again last week, as the previous weekends of collegiate football winners joined a couple of the elite teams, Vince Dooley and his Georgia Bulldogs dropped their first game of the season to Mississippi. Also, Nebraska lost to Kansas which hadn't won a game all season. It was the first time that Nebraska coach Bob Devaney had been shut out in six years as a coach. The score 10-0.

Polls Rate USC No. 1

By PFC John Merrill

John McKay's Trojans continue to hold the number one position in the Associated Press football poll this week after a stunning victory over Notre Dame.

The men from Southern Cal removed any doubt in the minds of the football partisans as to whether or not they should be rated the number one team. Led by O. J. Simpson, a junior college transfer, the Trojans reversed last year's humiliating loss to the Irish by completely dominating the game at South Bend, Ind.

Florida Caves Are Used For Testing Local Divers

An element of danger gra-complex which plunges to the final test administrator a depth of 200 feet at Mor-ed to would the divers trained prison Springs, Fla., a cave-lish officer currently on ex- change duty at adjacent to the Club—a dive in a three-cave of eight adventures already, the 197th Inf. Bde. on Kelly Hill, recently completed the SCUBA club's training by going through two of the three caves at Morrison Springs, and 20 feet into the first cave. Davis, having completed this, went on to the second cave, entered through narrow vertical passages made hazardous by a treacherous current rushing up from the bottom of the complex.

TROPHY AWARDED—Col. Granville A. Sharpe (L) commanding officer, TSB, extends his congratulations as he presents the brigade Southland Championship trophy to Lt. Col. Martin J. Slominski. Slominski's 2nd Stu. Bn. won the championship in a playoff series with MTU recently. MTU took the first half of league play while the 2nd took the second half forcing a playoff. ## Novice Boxing Program Now Under Way

The 1967 USAIC Special Services Novice Boxing Program is now under way. Beginning last Monday and running through November 18th, soldiers who meet the qualifications are encouraged to train and compete for 11 positions open at Fort Benning personnel at th-

The cave complex is entered through a hole in the top of Morrison Spring Lake, and to qualify, divers must descend 20 feet into the first cave. Davis, having completed this, went on to the second cave, entered through narrow vertical passages made hazardous by a treacherous current rushing up from the bottom of the complex.

To Quality
The first test is of swimming ability, with the prospective student asked to lap the pool underwater, tread water without using hands and pull another man across the pool without assistance. Would-be divers then are introduced to the equipment to be used, such as a face mask, air tanks and the breathing apparatus. The purpose of the demonstration is to familiarize students with the equipment and to give them some self-confidence.

Breathing Exercise
The next major phase of the diver's training is an air breathing exercise where two trainees survive on a single breathing apparatus. By passing the mouthpiece back and forth, two men can sustain themselves for as long as the air supply holds out. This operation is conducted in almost 12 feet of water.

Students are required to cover all their equipment from 12 feet, and to remain submerged for 30 minutes. Surfacing before the half hour is completed immediately disqualifies a man. The Morrison Springs last comes after all preliminary work is in the past. Because of the hazards involved, divers are paired off with members of the Benning club. Marine Lt. Cpl. Frank Norris accompanied Davis and Lt. Col. John H. Phillips, president of the post club, went down with them as a photographer.

days active duty, a signed certificate verifying that the soldier is an amateur athlete and the soldier must never have competed in any type of organized boxing contest (military or civilian) prior to entering this year's program," Odum continued.

The tournament matches will be held in the Harrovy Church Field House, but training centers have already been established in both the field house and the Student Brigade Gymnasium on Indianhead Road on Main Post, Odum explained.

A physical examination and weigh-in will be conducted on the morning prior to each day's contests. Qualified coaches and trainers are now on duty at both training sites and professional boxers or other personnel may act as coaches, trainers or managers for individual fighters provided they meet the approval of the Special Services trainer at the training site.

It is a grim reminder of the perils of that third cave. Davis and Norris completed the dive by returning to the mouth of the first cave where a bar is suspended for divers to grasp while they readjust to the lessening pressure. Pressure of the water on the diver is proportionately greater as he descends, and lessens as he ascends. President of the post SCUBA club is Lt. Col. John H. Phillips.

Retreat Is Moment for All To Laud Our Nation's Flag

By Spec 4 Larry Mahoney

Customs are important to any community's way of life, and the military, more than most, has a tradition of observing them. A ceremony involving the flag is as old as the nation and its Army.

The Retreat ceremony honors the flag at the end of day. It is sounded by bugle at 6:30 p.m. when the flag is lowered. This is a brief moment when soldiers and civilians, women as well as men, pause to pay respect to their nation's flag.

Exactly what is expected from Fort Benning's personnel, military and civilian, during retreat? Soldiers who receive instruction in military courtesy and custom while in basic training, are perhaps better informed about it. Many civilian employees seem unaware of what is expected of them.

When retreat is sounded, soldiers and civilians should face the flag, or the music and stand at attention. Soldiers in formation stand at parade rest.

To the Colors
When the bugle call salutes to the flag, "To The Colors," begins, a soldier in uniform presents arms. A civilian, or soldier not in uniform, places his right hand over his heart. If wearing a hat, he removes it and holds it at his left shoulder with his hand over his heart.

Most people assume that the custom for a civilian participating in Retreat retreat to man only. Far from it. With one minor difference, a civilian woman in the area who retreat sounds should follow the same routine. She does not remove a hat she may be wearing.

SCTS. M. BAILY (L) AND B. JOHNSON MEND CHILD'S TRACTOR. Toys Are Repaired and Distributed to Needy Children at Christmas

Santa's Benning Workshop Short Of Toys To Repair for Christmas

When the volume of work at Santa Claus' North Pole toy shop became too large, an extension was opened in Harmony Church for the benefit of some of the local children.

SFC Chris Lobere, a member of the Weapon Department and chief elf at the toy shop, has been repairing toys and games for underprivileged children for 15 years.

With the help of four assistant elves, Lobere repairs and paints old bicycles, tricycles, swings and hobby horses. Even Mrs. Lobere gets into the act by sewing and mending used clothing and fixing and dressing dolls.

Last year the toy shop, sponsored by the Women's Mortar Committee, helped to bring about more than 8,000 Merry Christmas toys to needy children.

Thirteen truckloads of shiny wagons, dolls and other Christmas delights were repaired at the shop and given to needy children. All of these toys and gifts were donated to the committee and repaired at the shop.

This year only about 500 toys have been repaired and about 100 more are waiting to be repaired.

Anyone wishing to contact Lobere to lend a hand may call the Mortar Committee our mark of last year. It is 546-6757.

book "attention," it is permissible for a civilian woman to just stand with her shoulders erect and hands at her sides as retreat sounds. Then, with "To The Colors," she places her right hand over her heart.

Customs, of course, must adjust to the times, and the automobile presents some problems at Retreat.

All drivers should bring their vehicles to a halt at the sounding of Retreat. Soldier and civilian passengers should get out of taxis or privately-owned autos and observe the ceremony in the same manner as men do.

With the exception of a vehicle commander, soldiers in military trucks and busses should remain seated, but at attention throughout the entire ceremony.

58TH STAGES VOTING DRIVE

By PFC John Levis
Special attention is being given in at least one post unit to voter registration for upcoming fall elections, reportedly to be held in some 48 of the nation's 50 states.

Voting officers in 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., are making troops "are you registered to vote?" in an attempt to determine the number of eligible voters within the view coming of the November elections and is designed to make sure that those eligible to vote are permitted to vote the necessary absentee application.

The registration process is simple — just filling in the Standard Form 76, federal post card absentee ballot application used by the military. Submission of the application constitutes registration as well as a request for a ballot.

For several months, special attention has been given to the project in the 58th and 197th units over 50 percent of eligible personnel within the unit have requested absentee ballots. Generally, these ballots are not mailed by the home state or community until two weeks prior to the elections.

Although 1967 is not a federal election year, many states have special elections to fill unexpired terms in offices which have become vacant through death or resignation or hold municipal and state elections for many offices.

The percentage of eligible voters actually casting ballots is generally low and is often attributed to the fact that many times service members are too late in submitting their requests for ballots.

Action taken by the 58th in starting a registration drive will in advance of fall elections is in an attempt to overcome the late registration or non-registration problem in order to increase the number of military personnel voting.

The first prototype of a new and highly sophisticated battle tank (MBT-70), developed jointly by the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany, was shown publicly for the first time last week in Washington, D. C., during the annual meeting of the Association of the U. S. Army.

The main weapon of the MBT-70 is a 152mm gun capable of firing both conventional ammunition and Shillelagh guided missiles. Introduction of an automatic loading system permits elimination of the crew member and represents an improvement over the manual system of the currently operational M-60 main battle tank.

The MBT-70 offers other significant advances in tank design: a unique environmental control capsule, a more accurate fire control system, and more powerful engine-transmission combination and improved armor protection.

Four-Week Cook School In Operation

BY PVT. ROD GOWDIN

Combat boots are not out of style in the world of baking. Fort Benning's four-week pastry school located on Kelley Hill in Bldg. No. 9008 proves this by turning out 15 to 20 fully qualified bakers per class.

Men going to the 30-day school range from newly arrived privates to the experienced mess stewards from mess halls around the post. Civilians who work in the officer's and non commissioned officer's clubs and on past caterers also can attend this course.

The man in charge of the school, S. Sgt. William A. Weda, said "Army cooking schools normally give a man only one week of baking instruction. But this is not enough for someone to grasp fully the scope of making good pastry. This school teaches the new and old cooks how to prepare everything in the pastry field that is to be found on the Army's dinner table."

The school itself is very compact, with the classroom and kitchen area in the same room. The student gets one hour of lecture in the morning and then goes to work.

Pastries turned out during the day are distributed to mess halls on Kelley Hill. The last hour of a school day is devoted to a critique on the day's activities.

On Saturday the cooks get a chance to try their culinary artistry with an extra-curricular course.

Graduation for the current class is set for October 27 at 3 p.m. at the school.

Sunday Attendance Rises Due to Chaplains Efforts
 A chaplain is on the tide of increased chapel attendance and he is looking ahead for ways to overflow the pews for Sunday morning.
 Protestant Chaplain (Capt.) Lawrence A. Kelly Jr., whose parish is the 2,500-man 16th Spt. Gp., has been congregating since its formation in May 7. His early attendance numbers less than 10.
 Before his arrival the group had been without an assigned chaplain since its formation in the Dominican Republic more than a year earlier.
 The past two Sundays the chaplain has had more than 60 worshippers in his church.
 Spans Post
 The group's units span Fort Benning, from Main Post to Harmony Church and Sand Hill. The chaplain feels that he has to instill a more active religious life among the group's men.
 He faces a geographic problem. The chapel is located on the eastern corner of Sand Hill with several of the units located miles away. Initially he asked for transportation and received a 2 1/2 ton truck to shuttle churchgoers.
 Meanwhile, he continued to receive support from commanders "which was heartening" and the effects were felt at the October 1 service. Sixty-three greeted him, and the commander of the group's largest unit, the 7th Maint. Bn., Lt. Col. Benjamin B. Albert Jr.
 A 45-passenger bus picks up group members Sunday on Main Post at 10:15 a.m. and makes two stops on Sand Hill, 10:35 at the 67th headquarters, and 10 minutes later at the 610th Light Maint. Co.
 He looks realistically at the religious life of his parish. He observed that "men get out of practices away from home," and "may not have time to bone up in combat."
 He credits the beginnings of success with the support given by 16th Gp. commander Col. Arthur V. Conley, and the commander of the group's largest unit, the 7th Maint. Bn., Lt. Col. Benjamin B. Albert Jr.
 "Most of the congregation is from the married men whose families are here at Benning," he said. "It is the young unmarried men, along and away from home, that is in the most need for spiritual guidance."
 The encouraging climb in attendance has started him looking for ways to add to his services. As a first step he has started a search for singers to form a choir.

Exchange Club Presented Talk On Viet Village
 Members of the Columbus Exchange Club were given the opportunity to learn about a Vietnamese hamlet during the club's regular weekly meeting last Thursday in the Ralston Motor Hotel.
 "Montagnard Villages" was the topic of a speech given by the Columbus civic club by Capt. Ted E. Drum, special projects officer, Office of the Director of Operations and Training, United States Army Infantry Center.
 Drum, a native of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., holds a BS degree in insurance and real estate from Florida State University in Tallahassee.
 The Fort Benning officer entered active duty service in 1961, and since that time has served a total of 42 months overseas, including assignments in Vietnam with the 25th Inf. Div.

Benning's Top Noncom

Sergeant Major Whitley to Close 31-Year Military Career Monday

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney

Three decades ago will come to close at the same post when Sgt. Maj. John P. Whitley, The Infantry Center's top non-commissioned officer, retires during Monday ceremonies.

Soldiers from the Army Training Center, the 197th Inf. Bde., Center Troop Company, the Student Brigade and the 10th Avn. Co. will pass in review for the sergeant major on York Field at 2:30 p.m.

In 1936, Whitley, then a 17-year-old from nearby Ellerslie, Ga., enlisted at the Columbus recruiting station and received a free bus ticket to Fort Benning.

He reported to the 23rd Inf. Regt.'s cuartel, beginning 31 years as a soldier that carried him around the globe—WWII combat duty with the Army's earliest parachute units in the Pacific; Cold War service with the Airborne in Japan, and as sergeant major of an infantry battalion in West Germany during the final months of World War II, he served as a first sergeant with the 10th Inf. in occupied Czechoslovakia and Germany.

In October of 1956 he reported from Fort Gordon to the First Infantry in Vietnam. He became its sergeant major last November.

Highly decorated, Cannon has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the United Givers Fund and others their final week with a big push for contributions scheduled Tuesday, a military payday.

At midweek only 82 percent $94,000 — had been tabulated in campaign headquarters, according to Capt. Robert S. Kavanaugh, UGF project officer.

"The Center Troop Command and the 197th Infantry Brigade are making their big push for contributions this Friday," Kavanaugh said, "and other smaller units are doing the same."

Wednesday, 25 Columbus children — Boy and Girl Scouts, patients at the Cerebral Palsy Clinic and members of the South Columbus Boys Club — were guests for lunch at the 197th. They were invited to help show the infantrymen just who is aided by their UGF contributions.

The HueyCobra is the first helicopter designed solely as an aerial weapons platform. Its speed and agility will enable it to: Reach the objective in half the time, deliver twice the firepower, operate in the objective area three times as long, and provide substantially improved protection for crew and aircraft.

PATRIOTIC PURCHASE . . . Boy Scout John Ross Walker of Fort Benning's oldest troop, No. 27, struck paydirt this week as he solicited on-post quarters residents seeking American flag Cuffing Center Chief of Staff Col. H. S. Cunningham bought one of the kits which are being sold by Boy Scouts throughout the post and at the Post Exchange hardware store in a drive for maximum display of the colors on Veterans Day, November 11. ## UGF Fund Far Short of Goal As Drive Enters Last Week high praise from the Benning UGF headquarters. The 1968 United Givers Fund drive enters its final week with a big push for contributions scheduled Tuesday, a military payday.

HueyCobra Display Set At Lawson

The HueyCobra, the Army's new armed helicopter, will demonstrate its speed and maneuverability for Fort Benning officials next Friday.

May. Gen. John M. Wright, Jr. will be the main commander and staff of officers to take demonstration rides in the craft.

A static display of the craft and its armament systems is scheduled between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on the Salute Field near Infantry Center.

Halloween can be dangerous for young trick-or-treaters

Halloween, one of our oldest and most interesting holidays, is often the occasion of tragic accidents, a Fort Benning doctor warns.

Maj. David D. Madorsky of the Preventive Medicine Division said that in recent years there have been some "grisly aspects" of the holiday involving young trick-or-treaters whose masks limit their side vision as they cross streets.

Madorsky urged parents to check how well their children can see to all sides before letting them begin rounds, and advised giving them flashlights or putting reflectorized tape on their costumes. Those made with flame-resistant or fireproof materials are best.

In many neighborhoods it is a practice to leave porch lights on, both to help light the street and to let children know where they are welcome. In all neighborhoods smaller children should be accompanied by an adult.

Madorsky said one way to assure all girls is a thrilling Halloween is for parents to limit the amount they eat to prevent stomach aches and late night visions of spirits.

“I AM COME ON NOW RANGER LET ME HEAR YOU SAY...AAAAARHGIG—AGAIN!!!”

Surgeon Says

Carbon monoxide causes high death rate in winter

Winter driving holds many hazards, but the most treacherous menace is carbon monoxide poisoning. Inhalation of this gas causes more deaths than all other toxic gases combined, and the death toll is steadily climbing each year.

The perils of carbon monoxide may be ignored here in the South because of the relatively mild winters. Many of us are guilty of keeping our car motors running while waiting for someone. With car windows shut, a death trap is set and a leak in the muffler or manifold will trigger the trap. Before the occupants realize they are in danger, they are overcome by gas fumes.

Remember this, a new car can have a leak in the connections, so do not assume this can happen only to people with older cars.

Pure carbon monoxide is an odorless, colorless, tasteless, non-irritating and most of all, lethal gas. Carbon monoxide is, however, usually mixed with other gases with an irritating odor which warns people of the impending danger. However, when the irritants are absent, there is no warning to the driver or his passengers.

The surgeon says that you avoid the danger of carbon monoxide by keeping the exhaust system of your car in good condition and by not following too closely in bumper to bumper traffic. It is wise to keep car windows open a little for ventilation.

If you see a vehicle in a parking lot with the windows up, the motor running and the occupants slumped over, rap on the window immediately, open the doors, remove the occupants and start artificial respiration. Have someone call an ambulance.

Anyone who has been partially asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas should be examined by a doctor.

The Chaplain Speaks

You Can Break Bad Habits By Cultivating Good Habits

Chaplain (Capt.) Owen P. Pharris

“What’s so tough about quitting smoking? Or drinking? Or cursing? Or eating desserts? I’ve done it quite a few times.”

We are told so often that character is formed by habits deliberately cultivated, that to read it again may mean the height or depth of redundancy. But gaining control of our will requires precisely this - to cultivate, deliberately, habits that we wish to make part of our nature.

The law of habit is as present in the normal order as is the law of gravity in the physical order. Can anyone deny that the human will answer the gravitational pull of habit. A bad will can be turned into a good

Judge Says

Property left unprotected can tempt honest people

It has been wisely said that “locks are for honest people.” The saying means substantially that, an otherwise honest person is tempted to steal property which is unprotected and easy to take, but if the same property were locked up, and hence difficult to take, that same person would entertain no thought of breaking the lock and stealing.

Let’s face it, if a car thief wants to steal your car bad enough, the fact that the doors, windows and ignition are locked will not stop him at all. On the other hand, a car with the key in the ignition is a temptation to a passing juvenile who would not bother it if locked.

This same principle applies to life in the barracks. Military police reports reveal very few thefts in those same police reports show numerous thefts of property which was lying on a bunk, dresser or hanging up and unattended.

Most barracks thieves are eventually caught and the great majority are those persons with no prior incidents of criminal conduct. Invariably they say, “It was just lying there. So I took it,” and often they add, “I don’t know why.”

Good ‘form’ for flying

Each year, millions of Americans travel on commercial airlines. A large portion of these travelers are servicemen and women.

Often separated from their families by great distances because of duty and limited time in their available time for travel, men and women of the Armed Forces sometimes rely on rapid air transportation to get maximum value from their leaves and passes.

Along with the special discount for military fares, the Department of Defense and the airline industry have agreed to issue and use a new form which can make your reduced-rate airline travel smoother and more enjoyable. It is DD Form 1580, Military Standby Authorization for Commercial Air Travel.

When the form is properly completed by the authority issuing your leave papers or liberty pass, it will confirm your leave or liberty status and your entitlement to reduced military fares. The airlines may also use the form in establishing priorities among military standbys.

It is, however, your responsibility to initiate the request for sufficient DD 1580’s to cover every leg of your trip, both coming and going to any case, you should obtain not less than five completed copies of the form from the command authorizing your leave, liberty or pass.

Even in the case of emergency leave when travel and leave authorizations are prepared on short notice, be sure you don’t forget to get your DD 1580 forms.

An added advantage of DD 1580 is that Vietnam servicemen granted R&R leave in Hawaii can provide their wives with copies of their leave orders and DD 1580’s so they can travel from the West Coast to Hawaii and return at a special rate.

Although not now required by all airlines, the DD Form 1580 will be accepted and will go a long way to make your air travel easier.

Public is being robbed of fluoridation benefits

Public opinion polls indicate that a majority of citizens wish to take advantage of fluoridated water supplies, yet the issue of fluoridation is being grossly misrepresented to the American voters by a misguided, vociferous (and sometimes influential) few.

Opposition generally falls into one of four categories: those who feel that fluoridation is an invasion of the rights of the individual; those who take advantage of the controversy over fluoridation to achieve personal gain or status; those who oppose any new health measure, and the uninformed or misinformed.

This kind of opposition to fluoridation is by no means new in the field of health. Indeed, this opposition is similar to that which arose during the early days of such invaluable health measures as chlorination of water supplies, pasteurization of milk and vaccination. Anti-fluoridationists have found that appeal to public emotion is a much more effective means of gaining support for a measure (or against a measure) than a presentation of precise, scientific information. They have thus used varying tactics to create doubt and fear in the minds of people who ordinarily would accept the advice of recognized authorities.

Mrs. Lee A. Goff, whose husband, Lt. Col. Lee A. Goff is the chief of the Applied Communications communications school's Communications-1. Electronics Department, is an Army wife with cosmopolitan interests.

A member of a family with a rich Swiss heritage, she is also a fluent linguist.

Her father had come from Switzerland to the United States as a young man. After 25 years in this country, he decided that he would like to return to Switzerland so that his children could see Switzerland and meet all of his relatives there. Mrs. Goff was only 11 when she, her father and brother enjoyed a three-month stay there, even so, that trip sparked a desire in her to travel and an interest in Europe that has never been quenched.

Enrolled in Switzerland Later after she completed two years of studies in languages at Alfred University in Alfred, N. Y., she enrolled in the University of Geneva, Switzerland, for a year. "That's when I really learned to speak French," she says. "Because she had Swiss-American dual citizenship, the university enrolled her as a Swiss citizen. It was a totally fascinating and priceless year of experience for her."

Worked in New York After completing her degree in languages at Alfred University, she worked two years for the First National City Bank in New York City as a translator in French and Spanish. She translated business correspondence from all parts of the world.

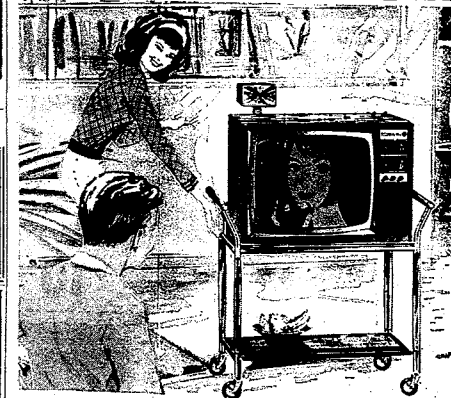

"It was a wonderful position," she recalls, "but I wanted to go back to Europe." So when the Army Special Services interviewed her for a job as a recreation director in Germany, she grabbed the opportunity.

Meet Husband It was during her job time there in Crailsheim, Germany, that she met, and after a year's time, married her husband.

Since then they have been stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Leavenworth, Kans., the University of Omaha, Omaha, Neb., and Fort Benning. During their stay at Fort Bragg, her husband had a tour in Laos. During his later tour in Vietnam, she and her daughter Karen lived in Alameda, Calif.

She has always continued her studies. At Fort Bragg, Fort Leavenworth and at Omaha she continued to take college courses in language and in education. She also continues to read French novels and books in other languages.

A NASA satellite in synchronous orbit over the Pacific is being used experimentally to help weathermen keep tabs on storms originating in the Caribbean during their progress a third of the way around the globe.

The satellite, ATS-1, is positioned over the Christmas Islands in the Pacific at an altitude of 22,000 miles and is being used experimentally to relay weather photographs of current storms to the U.S. Weather Bureau's National Hurricane Center in Miami and other hurricane watchers in the Caribbean.

Photographs are recorded and radiated to earth by the ESSA weather satellite which passes over the storm area.

Speakers indicate that the magnetosphere, which shields man from high-energy solar particles, extends approximately 2,500,000 miles from the earth.

Dear Community Service

Dear Community Service, I am writing you because I do not know who else to turn to for help. My husband is assigned to Korea. I receive an allotment and he sends me some additional money each month to meet my bills. He just wrote me that he will not be able to send any additional money for the next three months because he has to pay back an overpayment to the government. I can not figure out how to pay our bills without this additional money. We have no savings and the children need clothes. We will make an appointment with you for financial management counseling. With some cooperation from you and your creditors we may be able to avoid any serious hardship on your family, and hopefully be able to keep the creditors from having to take legal action against your family.

'Polka Dots' Are Selected For Ted Mack TV Show

It's not a national epidemic—group presented a half-hour of "spots before you Western musical comedy include Mrs. Hertel, Mrs. C. Berthoff, Jr., Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Richard Kost, Mrs. Arnold Larsen Jr., Mrs. John Barnes, Mrs. Donald

The "Polka Dots," the choral group of the Officers' Wives' Club, was recently selected from the Columbus Phenix City-Fort Benning area to appear on the national television program, "Ted Mack Amateur Hour."

Approximately 30 members of the group received the good news of their forthcoming stardom after a Ted Mack talent scout heard them sing in the Little Theater. The talent scout could not immediately date of their national TV appearance but he assured them that they would tape the show on December 5.

Organized in Feb. Mrs. Robert G. Hertel, director of the chorus, organized the group last February because of her love of music. The chorus, which frequently performs for social organizations on post, stayed together in spite of the fact that old members are constantly leaving and new members are joining. In one of their recent performances, members of the Members of the group now include Mrs. Hertel, Mrs. C. Berthoff, Jr., Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Richard Kost, Mrs. Arnold Larsen Jr., Mrs. John Barnes, Mrs. Donald Floyd B. Kelly, Mrs. Robert Yearout, Mrs. Robert Yearout, Mrs. Charles Adams, Mrs. Frank Moore, Mrs. John Leane, Mrs. Theodora Moore, Mrs. William DeBrocke.

Practice Twice Weekly
They combine being mothers and singers in a unique way. When they come to their twice-weekly practice sessions at Fort Benning's Teen Square, the mothers sing, the children come along.

Mrs. Hertel states her group's purpose by saying, "As our husbands have a mission to guard and protect our country, we too feel that we have a mission to speak out for all American military wives by letting the world know who we are, how lucky we are to be living in the United States of America, and how proud we are of our men who serve her so well. Right now the "Polka Dots" are in the unique position of being able to do just that."

Test and Evaluation Command

'Home of Infantry' to Host Commanders Conference

"The Home of the Infantry" will host a 5-day commanders conference of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command November 20-24, 1967. It was announced this week by Col. James M. Muir, Jr., president of the U.S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB).

The Georgia post will be the meeting place at which commanders from 16 Test and Evaluation installations and activities throughout the continental US, Alaska, and Panama will convene.

The commanders will gather during the period of this conference to discuss the various problems of the command, the testing program and plans for the coming year. The Infantry Board, a test and evaluation facility at Fort Benning, will be the host of the USAIBECOM activity.

Past Experience Will Help Soldier As NCO Candidate

While serving as a VISTA Volunteer (Volunteers in Service to America), Spec. 4 Michael E. Risber saw America as few other do. Risber spent a year living with the people of Clay County, Ky., one of the most undeveloped areas of the country. He shared in their few pleasures and their hard work for a better life.

VISTA is an organization dedicated to help the people of undeveloped areas of the United States and is part of the President's "War on Poverty."

Risber's chief duties were as community organizer, but he also was a volunteer leader and assistant field officer. These jobs entailed the coordination of other volunteers as well as working with the people of Bright Shade, Ky.

According to Risber this experience will certainly prove valuable in his new capacity as a noncommissioned officer candidate. "The people and their reactions to doing things for themselves were the most meaningful experiences," Risber noted. "I was there to help people help themselves and when they started getting organized, after many fruitless efforts, my sense of accomplishment was satisfied even for a minor success."

"They wanted something better than what they had and needed someone to give them that little push to get started."

NCOO Risber is from Fairfax, Va. He attended The University of Southwestern Louisiana. He is currently attending the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Combat Leadership Course, and is assigned to the 73rd Co.

The command is concerned, directly and indirectly, with the entire range of tests associated with each of the four phases into which the cycle of Army materiel is divided—research, development, production and post-production. USAIBECOM's primary mission is to perform engineering, service and environmental tests during the development phase to insure that every piece of equipment that gets into the hands of the American soldier is ready for safe, efficient use.

This mission, coupled with the mission of USAIB has led to the adoption of the Infantry Board motto, "Only the Best for the Finest."

Planned Schedule

The tentative schedule of activities for the 5-day conference will be 3 days here, to include a visit to USAIB instrumented range facilities, the fourth day at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and on the fifth day the conferees will fly to Fort Rucker, Ala., where they will visit the U.S. Army Aviation Test Board.

The conference will terminate at Fort Benning on December 1 and the commanders will return to their respective stations.

Guests for the conference will include the commanding generals of the U.S. Army Materiel Command, Combat Developments Command, representatives from the Department of Defense, Chief of Research and Development, and civilian industrialists.

Civilian Cited In Ceremony

In a special awards ceremony Monday morning in his office, Col. James M. Muir, Jr., president of the U.S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB), presented an outstanding and sustained performance of duty certificate to Bob F. Spitzmuller, Dept. of the Army Civilian employed with the Board.

Complimentary of his outstanding work and accomplishment, Spitzmuller, equipment specialist with the Field Equipment Test Div., was recognized with the special award which also included a monetary award of $200.

Spitzmuller has been with the Infantry Board test facility of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, since July 1966. He had seven years prior service with USAIB.

During the period July 1966 through July 1967 he demonstrated a vast knowledge of developmental items which enabled him to maintain an overall superior surveillance of the many test projects assigned to his test division and effectively eliminate daily problems for greater efficiency in operation.

The professional skill, expeditious manner, cooperative spirit and devoted duty contributed immeasurably to the successful accomplishment of the board's mission.

'Walk-In' Psychiatric Clinic Opens at Martin Army

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney

A new "walk-in" clinic staffed by Army psychiatrists and social workers has opened at Fort Benning.

Alimed at immediate care for emotional and family crises, the clinic is part of a nationwide mental health trend toward treating these problems before they become critical and incapacitating.

Fort Benning's clinic, operating in Martin Army Hospital's Annex (Bldg. 208) on Monday evenings, 6:30-9:00 p.m., is available to anyone eligible for Army medical care, including dependents and retired soldiers. No appointment is necessary and paperwork is kept at a minimum.

"We've set up to help people who are faced with upsetting family situations or sudden change in behavior," said Maj. Carl Segal, chief of mental hygiene at Fort Benning.

Evaluate Problems

He and Lt. Col. Norman Eggleston, chief social work officer, are the men behind the new clinic.

"Families are encouraged to accompany the troubled person," Col. Eggleston said. "The clinic will be prepared to evaluate problems, offer some type of immediate correction, or perhaps refer to a specialist."

Motor vehicle tags issued in New York State are permitted license plates that "heal themselves" when scratched. Made of galvanized steel and painted with durable enamel, the plates will not rust even if scratched because the zinc coating "sacrifices" itself to protect exposed steel.

Best Treatment

Like other problems of mental illness, the clinic is held on the second floor of the MAH Annex, and signs there will direct persons coming for treatment to the correct room. Those coming for the first are encouraged to arrive early. The hours are set as a convenience for persons holding jobs or attending school.

The clinic is currently staffed by four people, psychiatrists and social workers, all volunteers working on their own time.

"If the need exists," Col. Eggleston said, "we can expand to four psychiatrists, six social workers, a psychologist and enlisted social workers."

'Don't Forget Nothing' Advice Given First Rangers

BY PFC JOHN MERRILL
 "Don't forget nothing" and "Don't never take a chance you don't want to take" are two of the original standing orders established by Maj. Robert Rogers when he organized the first American Rangers.

During the French and Indian War, the Americans sided with the British against the French, Maj. Rogers recruited nine companies of men and organized the Rangers. The major and his men utilized their woodland warfare skill as the scouting arm of the British force.

The Ranger tradition continued on through the Revolutionary War period, 1775-1781, during which Col. Daniel Morgan was leader of the famed fighters. His men, known as "Morgan's Riflemen," successfully made surprise attacks on the British.

Also during this period in history, Francis Marion, known as the Swamp Fox, contributed greatly to the American war effort.

Marion's men were a constant thorn to the British because of their ability to attack rapidly and then retreat into the deep southern swamps. At one time the British Col. Tarleton pursued Marion's men for miles through the swamp without catching them. Finally giving up he said, "... the damned fox, the devil himself could not catch him."

The next famed Ranger was probably the Confederate Col. John S. Mosby. Mosby and his men continuously broke through the Federalist lines and cut telegraph wires to shut off Union communications.

The most daring feat performed by Mosby's Rangers occurred at Fairfax Court-house in Virginia. During the night, with a small band of men, Mosby infiltrated the Union lines to where the officers were sleeping. Before anyone realized what was happening the Rangers escaped with a general, members of his staff and more than one hundred men and horses.

This was just one of the many successful Ranger attacks of the war and an example of how well trained and skilled Mosby's Rangers were.

During the next few years Ranger units seemed to fade out of the military. Occasionally a few units were organized as cavalry troops to cope with Indian uprisings in the west. With the outbreak of WW II the 1st Ranger Bn. was organized under the command of Maj. William A. Darby. This marked possibly the greatest era in the history of the Rangers.

These men were, hand-picked volunteers whose skill contributed to the Allied cause. They participated in the North Africa landing, the Tunisia battles, the Normandy and Sicily invasions as well as the Pacific theater.

The Rangers carried on their tradition during the Korean War and today use their training in Vietnam. Men who volunteer for today's Ranger course are trained thoroughly, with emphasis put on practical field work designed to confront the student with realistic situations.

During most of the training, the men are forced into patrols and often trained at night. The program is divided into three phases, the first of which is conducted here. During this segment the student learns combat skills including aerial photograph reading, intelligence and patrol reporting.

To build his confidence he must negotiate the combat conditioning course composed of many obstacles which may be encountered on actual combat missions.

Mountain training teaches the student military mountaineering techniques and mountain operations. The final phase involves jungle and swamp training in the Florida marshes where the student learns how to conduct beach landings, waterborne raids and most of all how to live off the land.

He also must undergo two Ranger confidence tests designed to enable him to overcome his fear of height, water and the fear of being injured. Following the Benning phase, the Ranger student moves to mountain training at Dahlgren, Ga.

'Berets' Blast Benning Bridge

Members of the cast and crew watch the destruction of a 75-year-old span on Sunshine Road over Red Mill Creek as crew members get a "birds eye view" of the action. The scene was captured on film for an important segment in John Wayne's Batjac production, "The Green Berets." Two hundred sticks of dynamite and 30 blocks of C-4 explosive, wired to explode in three separate blasts did the job. (Photo by Spec. 4 Robert D. Reed)

Marvin Nets Extra Check As Stuntman

Although Academy Award winner Lee Marvin rates among Hollywood's best paid stars, the actor nevertheless received a bonus for his work in MGM's suspense drama, "Point Blank," in which he co-stars with Angie Dickinson.

At the party held on the set at the end of filming of the Panavision and Metrocolor attraction, Marvin received a gift from the cast and crew members. It was a stuntman's check.

Marvin had performed his own dangerous stunts in the Judd Bernard-irwin Winkler production, including getting caught on a barbed wire fence at Alcatraz and swimming in San Francisco Bay in 38 degrees water — hence the well-deserved bonus.

'It All Started at Fort Benning,' Says Robin Moore

By PFC Jay Ligon
 "It all started at Fort Benning," said Robin Moore, author of the bestselling novel "The Green Berets." In recounting the incidents which led to the writing of his book, Moore said that it began with airborne training here in June, 1963. "I think I am the only civilian to go through the course, but never regretted doing it."
 "I made a lot of friends in jump school and later in training at Fort Bragg, N. C. I made a lot of friends because we jumped together."
 After airborne training, Moore took 12 weeks of training at the John F. Kennedy Warfare Center at Fort Bragg. He graduated from Special Forces training in November, 1963, again the first civilian to do so, and shipped out to Vietnam.
 Arriving in Saigon in January, 1964, he set out for Na Trang to set up his headquarters quarters and to find out where he could get in on the action. Using a small beach cottage near Na Trang as his home base, Moore traveled the countryside going from camp to camp, working with Special Forces teams, and staying a week or two at each.

 Moore is now back at Fort Benning where it all began, playing a small part in the motion picture "The Green Berets," taken from his best-seller. He is playing the part of a grizzled, veteran Special Forces sergeant who receives training in a battle field commission in the movies.
 Moore was looking for the action when he arrived in Vietnam and he found it. "Nearly everytime we went out on patrol we were under fire," Moore said, "and I deliberately chose the places where I was most likely to find trouble so that I could see what was going on. Ho Chi Minh's birthday, for example, Moore made arrangements to be in Tan Lang. "Mortars were dropping all over the place," he said. "On several occasions, Moore led patrols through the Viet. "Sometimes there would be only two Americans on patrol, with a company of Montagnards, myself and a soldier."

 "Often we would split up, and his New York office and companions work on a new book. "I like to go to a good assignment, he said, "I would like to go back."
 "It is a spooky feeling being the only American with a whole platoon of Montagnards," he said. "I left my typewriter at the headquarters in Na Trang," Moore said, "and wrote notes by hand. I carried a machine gun with me on patrol which was much more effective than a typewriter," he said.
 The writer became interested in guerrilla operations during Castro's campaign in Cuba. He visited Cuba before Batista was overthrown and after Castro had taken control. From his observations emerged a book called "The Devil to Pay," a book on guerrilla operations. "The theory is that in order to capture a guerrilla, you've got to be one," he said. ## Merv Griffin Interviewed On Batjac's Filming Site

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two reporters from the information office were watching the night shooting of "The Green Berets" last week when they noticed a familiar television personality, who has come to Georgia to gather information for his television program. Impressed with the actor's friendly manner and interesting ideas, PFC Jay Ligon interviewed the star.
 Dressed in a double-breasted blazer and a dark-bristled turtle-neck sweater, Merv Griffin drew a sharp contrast to the "Tiger Man" and the "covered soldier" in camouflage fatigues at "The Green Berets" "A" Camp.
 Trying to look as inconspicuous as possible, Ligon followed and watched him interview some of the actors on the set. He was finishing up a last bit of video tape with Aldo Ray and his two children, when I finally got enough nerve to approach him.
 "Let's have a seat over here and talk a while," Merv said, pointing to a couple of dirty chairs in the corner of what used to be a team house. It was partially blown away from several encounters with the "Viet Cong." Merv sat comfortably on his box and leaned back against the buildings as if he were back in his New York office easy chair.
 "Trying not to blow my cool," I asked him what he thought of "The Green Berets" set.
 "I can't believe it," he said leaning forward. "I've been on a lot of sets, but I've never seen anything like it." He spoke in a warm, easy voice, like an old friend.
 "Earlier this year, we got some film from 'The War Wagon' which starred John Wayne, and we thought it would be fun to come down here to Columbus and shoot some of 'The Green Berets.' He was interested in learning about what Fort Benning and the Army were like. He asked how people felt about the war in Vietnam.

 "You know its ironic," he said, "that those guys are over there fighting to preserve another person's right to protest the war."
 He was starting at a corner of the team house that had been darkened by hungry flames in a previous scene. Then he looked up and began going to miss this scene. "I'm don't bury."
 "It was nice talking to you," he said. "Look me up if you are ever in New York."

Phonebook Is Source Of Humor

Thumbing through the phone book can be other than a sense of humor. Listed in those pages are people whose names match their addresses, or people named after great men in history, or just folks whose names sound catchy.

In the Fort Benning telephone book are Capt. C. A. Archer of Arrowhead Road, and Capt. Voyes S. Bishop of Blessing Street. Captains Daniel R. Boone and Robert E. Lee provide names from the past.

For S. Sgt. Captain Kennedy, and Major Minor whose first name is William, there must be the problem of keeping their proper rank in the face of misunderstanding.

DA Approves New Report For Officers

WASHINGTON (ANP)—A new officer efficiency report has been approved by the Department of the Army for use beginning Apr. 1, 1968.

The new form is designed to permit selection boards and assignment officers to determine more accurately an officer's true performance.

It will include specific evaluations not included in the current form, such as performance of duty factors, promotion, schooling, assignment potential and overall value to the service.

Other changes eliminate the Letter Report and prescribe 90 days as the minimum rated period for field grade officers in the same principal assignment.

The current report form has been in use since Sept. 30, 1961.

Incentive Pays

James M. Porter, QM Services Div., Services Sect., received an award of $25 for proposing the procurement of portable steel ramps to extend from the dock of commissary warehouse 13 and connect to the door of rail cars, thus allowing more rail cars to be unloaded simultaneously.

Adoption of this suggestion has expedited handling car lot shipments, eliminated safety hazards, and resulted in an estimated annual saving in manhours of $75,715.

JEOP CONTRACT

The Ford tractor division of the Ford Motor Company has been awarded a $99.3 million contract to manufacture the M551 quarter-ton truck for the U. S. Army.

The contract calls for 32,818 units, including modified models to be used as 106 mm recoilless rifle carriers or as ambulances. Ford has been the sole producer of the M551 since 1964.

The Observer - by Larry Mahoney

Random notes on college football as it has been, the harder they fall:

A gloomy year for most Americans, troubled by war in Asia and crisis in their cities. Athletically, however, its first 10 months indicate a vintage 1967 for the sports fan. Baseball is in its heyday, the American League's free-all for valiant Boston seized our imaginations. From the beginning, the football season, with upset after upset, has been astounding.

The human drama of the game has never been keener. Take the Bear Bryant Alabama football special last Monday night. Alabama's football monarch was pictured in all his splendor. The camera caught the Bear playing his role as field general from the sidelines. The intense pressures, Bryant's ulcer pills bouncing in his big hands. His voice booming from the mob of Be-jer-seyed players, their faces twisted by tension — "What the Hell's happening?"

Alabama, the storied Tide, was being tied. The first game of 1967. An indicator of the unexpected ahead. Last week it happened, and only midway the season. Alabama beaten. Tennessee upsets Barna 24-13. At mid-season, Alabama 3-1-1.

Then you look at the Top Ten. Everyone, coach, writer, speculator, doubts the validity of the wire service ratings. But nothing is more important, not conference titles nor invitations to bowl games, than how you stand in that little brag list in the Tuesday and Wednesday papers. And Alabama isn't in it. Nor is Notre Dame. Nor Michigan State. They meet each other tomorrow. What a difference a year makes. Recall 1966's "Game of the Century" this time it won't really matter, with the Irish 2-2 of the Spartans 3-3.

The summit is being tallied, at least for the moment, to the Far West. The Trojans of Southern Cal, making their way with seamanship through one of the toughest national schedules, are the best bet. Their crowdston sister school, UCLA, is plugging away at second place with an identical 6-0 record. And please, don't anybody call it "Game of the Century." And Colorado waiting in the wings.

What of the proud Southland, outside of previously mentioned Alabama, which really should be considered a national institution as far as football goes?

Well, boys, it's sad but true. Other than North Carolina State — and, all credit to the Wolfpack, it's still not one of our big bad ones — everybody's been whipped at least once. Even the Big Orange out of Knoxville, Tennessee, the top-ranked Southern team, has that disturbing 20-16 loss to UCLA on its record.

Not that the football down here this year hasn't been fine. Old Georgia's in there strong. And we're even claiming Houston, Texas, 50 miles from the Gulf, and is traditionally southern, if tradition means anything. Keep Auburn in mind, too; (no dispute about where middle Alabama is) because Shug Jordan's fall to Oregon State is a record and five victories count as upsets, the Indians are still being pegged by the bookies as expected losers against Arizona.

Eastern football, with few exceptions from year to year, is uninteresting except to Easterners. Except for Army and I never cared for the service academies, is that way in '67. With Notre Dame and Michigan State limping along in the dumps this year, par-ticularly after Purdue's fall to Oregon State last week. There is unbeaten Indiana, however, and how about that? Nobody can believe the Hoosiers have done it. Even with a 5-0 record and five victories count as upsets, the bookies as expected losers against Arizona.

Believe it, because we're unlikely to see so interesting a sports year anytime soon.

Post Pond Is Stocked With Fish

By Spec. A Larry Mahaney

A crop of catfish — 36,000 wriggling fingerlings — was planted in Fort Benning's Victory Pond Wednesday.

Six to eight inches long when they entered their new home, at planting woods pond just off Eighth Div. The little channel cats are big enough to bite a hook yet.

However, 95 per cent of them are expected to survive to reach eating size, according to Roy Johnson, chief of the Post Engineer's Fish and Wildlife Management Branch.

"We stocked the pond two years ago," he said, "and the 14,000 to 15,000 they haven't brought their weight between two and six pounds."

The fingerlings were spawned this year at nearby Warm Springs, Ga., National Fish Hatchery.

USC Holding Top Position In Grid Polls

By PFC John Merrill

Southern California retained the No. 1 position in the college football ratings by defeating Washington for their sixth win against no defeats. Following the Trojans in second place are the Bruins from UCLA. UCLA replaced Purdue which lost an upset game to Oregon State. With the two California arch-rivals rated number one and two the game between them should rate equal with the Notre Dame vs. Michigan State battle last year.

Tennessee vaulted into the No. 4 position riding their upset over the Clemson Tide from Alabama. The loss of Alabama was their first since the opening of the 1966 season. Tennessee's victory throws the title for the South eastern Conference lead up for grabs between several teams. One of the teams is the Georgia Bulldogs which had no trouble defeating VMI last week. The Bulldogs are rated No. 6 in the polls.

In other games Colorado tightened its hold in the ratings with a Big Eight victory over conference rival Nebraska. N. C. State remained undefeated by trouncing over Wake Forest 24-7. Wyoming defeated Wichita State 17-0. Houston got its offense rolling again by trouncing Mississippi State. A newcomer to the elite group and a challenger for the Big Ten title is Indiana. The Hoosiers are undefeated for the season after last week's victory over Michigan.

The standings for the week according to the Associated Press are: 1. Southern California 2. UCLA 3. Colorado 4. Tennessee 5. North Carolina State 6. Georgia 7. Purdue 8. Wyoming 9. Houston and 10. Indiana.

106th Cops Win Over 181st Avn. In 10th Gp. Play

In the 10th Avn. Gp. Touch Football League the 106th Trans. Co. defeated the 181st Avn. Co. in overtime last Sunday at a 6 to 0. For the first time in league play the overtime rule was applied, by the official referees supplied by Special Services.

Six Super Stocks made the scene to vie for the $100 up for grabs. Herman Moore from Daleville, Ala., in his 1966 Dodge SS-AA, "The Albanian," waded through traffic with an elapsed time of 1:19.0 E. T., 123.11 m.p.h.

1st Division Helps Children Celebrate Autumn Festival

DI AN (1st INF-10)—hundreds of bright-eyed children, talking and laughing, gathered around the 1st Inf. Div. soldiers as they unloaded their jeep full of boxes at the home of the district chief, Capt. Frank Clou.

The large cardboard boxes marked "gift of the people of the U.S." contained hundreds of small celophane packages of sandal, clothes, balloons, toys, candy and paper lanterns to help the children celebrate the first — Autumn festival at the school.

The children took part in the program, singing the national anthem and giving a welcome speech.

The school principal, Nguyen Van Thieu, and the president of the parents' association, Le Van Hang, congratulated the children and welcomed the Big Red One soldiers, thanking them for their help in the celebration.

The 1st Inf. Div. civic action team, led by Capt. George A. Garrity, carried cakes baked by cooks of the division base camp in the schedule of gifts they were given to the children.

The day was a holiday for the children of the schools here. After studying their lessons, they spent the afternoon singing, playing, and watching the gifts when the gift boxes were distributed.

Dateline Vietnam Benning Trained Scout Dogs Successful Against VC

Each dog and its handler spent several weeks training together at the 25th Scout Dog Training Center, Fort Benning, where they lived and learned together. The transition from dog to scout dog gradually took place as the handler and dog mastered basic obedience tasks. During movement to contact with a patrol unit, the dogs are generally employed at point. That is where their training pays off as they detect body traps and enemy wire.

The open areas predominantly found in the flat rice regions are critical danger areas. Here, well emplaced small forces and snipers taking advantage of terrain obstacles such as rivers and canals can effectively delay and aggressiveness by virtue of the other hand, densely populated areas cause engagement to be at much closer range.

The sniper presents a particular problem in closing with and destroying the sniper a problem arises in the range involved. Closure must be executed with speed and aggressiveness by virtue of the sniper's ability to escape on preplanned avenues.

This is where fire and maneuver comes into play. Utilize grenade launchers to the utmost, concentrating on trees and other suspected sniper locations.

Aggressiveness is often the key to success or failure in destroying a sniper. A unit adept in rapidly neutralizing snipers will discourage their use of snipers in their areas of operations.

Artillery and mortar support may be employed. Such support, however, requires valuable time in obtaining and adjusting the fire, time which slows rapid closure.

Heavy support can be used effectively to close off suspected avenues of withdrawal. This support, however, is most often neither needed nor desired in engagements with the sniper unless fire and maneuver cannot be executed.

Avoid over-reaction to the situation involving the sniper. Be cautious of the baited ambush.

They remember what they were taught, and do their job quite well.

To look out after the physical welfare of the dogs, the 25th Scout Dog FH has an Army trained technician-terminarian, Spec. 4 James Lowe, who performs blood tests every few weeks to make sure the dogs are in top condition.

Warner concluded by saying, "After twelve months of working with the dogs, it's pretty hard to leave them here. Many of the handlers want to take them home with them but of course this is impossible."

Sgt. Samuel Warner and his dog, Lux, a three year old German Shepherd, trained together at Fort Benning and arrived at the 4th Scout Dog Platoon the middle of March.

According to Warner, dogs and handlers are trained for an additional 4 to 6 weeks in Vietnam before being sent out with patrols. To maintain proficiency, a four day refresher course for the scout dog teams is conducted every two months by detachment instructors.

When asked how he liked being a scout dog handler, Warner commented, "This scout dog becomes pretty much a part of your life. He gets to know you and you get to know him."

Marale Factor

He pointed out that the infantrymen have a lot of respect for the scout dog. "The dogs actually become morale factor with the troops, but the troops like to have the dogs with them," he continued.

In commenting on the dog's actions in fire, Warner said, "the dogs get excited during fire. They may not know what's going on, but

At CONARC Installations TV Fills Major Educational Role

HQ, USCONARC — Twenty-three U.S. Continental Army Training Centers are now using educational television (ETV) to ease learning and promote retention of instruction by using monitors, inclement weather conditions can not delay the progress of classroom work (television monitors are highly mobile and can be moved to sheltered areas, continuing any instruction which would normally be slowed or halted by weather conditions).

ETV also speeds learning through a front-row seat during periods of instruction and is able to devote most of his attention to the subject matter. One instructor can teach more than one class simultaneously through the use of multiple systems of TV monitors, inclement weather conditions can not delay the progress of classroom work (television monitors are highly mobile and can be moved to sheltered areas, continuing any instruction which would normally be slowed or halted by weather conditions).

Parade Field To Be Given Hero's Name

A field which has been known as Sighting Field for many years, has been renamed in honor of a former Fort Benning soldier who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor August 25, 1962.

Sgt. Jimmy G. Stewart, whose widow, Mrs. Gertrude H. Stewart, and sons Robert, 7, and John, 2, live at 1833 Gardiner Drive, was killed in combat May 18, 1962, while a member of Co. B, 1st Cav., 11th Air Assault Div.

The late Sgt. Stewart and his family first came to Fort Benning in November 1962 when he was assigned to the 11th Air Assault (test) Div. He was later assigned to the 2nd Bn. of the 8th Cav. when the 1st Cav. was formed, and subsequently to the 12th Cav. when the division was deployed to Vietnam in August 1965.

Stewart was born on Dec. 25, 1902, in West Columbia, W. Va. His mother, Mrs. Ethel M. Stitt, resides at Route 1, Raritan, Ohio. Stewart graduated from the Middletown Ohio High School in 1928.

He enlisted in the Army in April, 1960, took basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., advanced training at Fort Dix, N. J., and was stationed with the 3rd Inf. Div. at Schweinfurt, Germany before coming to Fort Benning in 1962.

Incentive Pays

William J. Payne, Engr. Sect., received an award of $40 for suggesting a change in the present method of providing overload protection of ballfield lighting.

At the present time, it is provided by use of amperage breakers mounted in a weather-proof panel. To replace this with an oil switch and a five KVA transformer would eliminate the necessity of replacing breakers each year.

Adoption of this suggestion has provided better operation, increased efficiency, and resulted in an estimated annual savings of $1,219.

United fares you well.

Twice For years you've been able to fly standby on United for just one-half the regular Coach fare. You still can. Now we've introduced another fare, perfect for those times you need to fly somewhere in a hurry and can't take the chance of missing a certain flight as a standby.

It gives you a reserved Coach seat for just two-thirds the regular fare. It's good to anywhere United flies, almost anytime you want to fly there.

Both fares are available to servicemen and women in U.S. uniform, with DD Form 1580 or official leave papers.

Next time you travel, call United. Whether you fly standby (and save one-half), or make a reservation (and save one-third) you're bound to fare fly the friendly skies of United.

For information and tickets, visit or call your JAMTO office located at Bldg. 19, Tele. No. 543-3498.

War Veterans Benefit From New Provision

ATLANTA — Many veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance policies may add a total disability income provision, reports Veterans Service director, Peter Wheeler.

Available to veterans since Jan. 1, 1965, the rider provides veterans a monthly income of $10 for each $1,000 of insurance in force if total disability occurs prior to the veteran's 65th birthday.

Wheeler said, "A veteran who has insurance in force, has not reached age 65 and shows evidence of good health may apply for this additional protection at only a small increase in premiums.

"For example, if a veteran now holds $10,000 in NSLI, he may qualify for $100 monthly income after six continuous months of total disability without decreasing the face value of his policy."

Service disabled veterans holding "RH" policies are not eligible for the total disability income provision.

Wheeler added, "It also urges veterans to recognize the importance of keeping their insurance beneficiaries up to date. This can be done by notifying the VA center which has jurisdiction over the policy.

Forms for this purpose can be supplied by this department.

British Officer Lectures At Eastside High School

2nd Lt. Christopher Johnson, son of British Air Marshal J. E. Johnson, was guest speaker during a World Geography class at Eastside High School last week.

Johnson was here as a student in Pathfinder Course No. 3 and he was assigned to Hq. Co., 4th Stu. Bn. (Abn.), The Student Brigade.

The World Geography class had been studying Great Britain and Johnson's visit gave the students an opportunity to ask questions they had concerning the country.

Johnson did not limit his lecture only to geography. Along with the students he discussed the political system of Great Britain, world problems and the British Commonwealth. He commented that the Commonwealth is becoming more and more important in world affairs.

Other subjects that the lieutenant covered were the British school system, cinema, sports and fashions, particularly Carnaby Street.

Johnson, before attending the Pathfinder Course was assigned to a parachute regiment in the British Army. He is from Saganu Market, Overton Rutland, England.

RIVER CLOSED

The Chattahoochee River will be closed near Eddy Bridge to all non-military traffic Thursday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. while Fort Benning units conduct river-crossing exercises.

On navigation charts, the area to be closed lies between mile 141 up stream to mile 143. Eddy Bridge is approximately 12 miles south of Columbus, adjacent to Fort Benning's Lawson Airfield.

Post Scouts To Receive '50-Miler'

Late in August, 16 Boy Scouts and two adult leaders braved the elements and spent 5 days canoeing 50 miles down the Chattahoochee River to qualify for the much sought after 50-miler Scout award.

On Wednesday, the Scouts and Scouters will receive the award at a ceremony to be held at the 2nd Bn., 42nd Arty. at Kelley Hill.

The sixteen boys and their leaders, in seven canoes, left Fort Benning in a downpour — their companion for the next four days. They spent the nights camped at various points on the banks of the Chattahoochee before ending the trip at Georgetown, Ga., on Lake Lanier.

Holiday Travel To Be Kept Low

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of the Army is again programming December 1967 passenger movements from CONUS to overseas to assure that travel will be held to a minimum between December 22 and 31.

While some travel is unavoidable, the intent of the U. S. Army program is to reduce the number of personnel actually moving overseas and eliminate the transient population at Army Personnel Centers during the holiday season.

During the holiday season last year 220 service members were in transient status at the three Army Personnel Centers on December 24-25 in comparison to the normal population of 3,000 at the centers.

CTC Soldier Is Rewarded For Honesty

By PFC Jay Lyon
Spec. 4 Dennis P. DeGallery, of Co. C, Center Troop Command, discovered Monday that it pays to be honest, sometimes very well.

DeGallery, who works in the Range Control Section, was presented a letter of appreciation from J. C. McClung, assistant cashier of the Fourth National Bank and a check for $10.

DeGallery found a wallet belonging to McClung's son last week and returned it to its owner. The wallet containing money, ID card and several personal items was lost when McClung's son took his dogs out for a jaunt last Wednesday.

In his letter McClung wrote: "I am pleased to know that we have such fine men as you representing us in the Armed Forces."

Clung has a personal interest in the Armed Forces. He is a retired sergeant major formerly assigned to the Weapons Department at The Infantry School.

1st Lt. Warren Barker, Co. C commander, presented the check and the letter to DeGallery and personally thanked him for his honesty.

Mount has been nominated for the promotion.

AUSA Moves to Maintain Reserves

In its report to the membership at the 13th Annual Meeting of the Association of the U. S. Army (AUSA) in Washington, D. C., the Resolution Committee extended even further the association's objectives of a stronger army and stronger reserve force.

As one of 16 resolutions passed by the committee and adopted by the delegates, the association stated:

WHEREAS, the United States and the Free World are deployed in key areas overseas, engaged in global military assistance activities, and maintained in the strategic reserve and continental United States defense forces must be capable of coping with multiple crises originating in widely separated areas;

WHEREAS, the advent of nuclear weapons increases the probability of mutual deterrence in the use of nuclear weapons; and WHEREAS, the national military policy of the United States requires a strategy of forward deployment and flexible response employing all elements of military power in concert with other national power elements to counter any threats, as appropriate;

WHEREAS, the United States, as the Free World

Eyeglasses Now Fitted Before Basic Training

Basic trainees are now receiving prescription fitted eyeglasses before they leave the Reception Station. This represents a saving of 10 days and 50 per cent in administrative procedures over the previous method.

1A. Col. Richard J. Backus, chief of optometry at Martin Army Hospital and the person responsible for the streamlined process, stated, "It is now possible to screen, examine, order and fit the individuals with eyeglasses in three days."

He added that better results are assured since the trainees are individually fitted by qualified specialists. Formerly they received them through distribution to the companies.

Barber Recalls Post Top Noncom's 1st Army Haircut

By Spec 4 Larry Mahoney shines and Brasso. That his P. (Nick) Bennett, a barber, is nothing new can be attested to by retiring Sgt. Maj. John F. Whitley and Norman

When I joined the 29th, it was the roughest the Army had," he recalls. "The unit haircut was the first haircut I had in the Army. It was a real haircut. If you were discharged, your papers read, 'From the Infantry School.' It was a different Army and a different Fort Benning. There were Infantry units in the Georgia swamp were home to various vintages. Vegetable farms grew turkeys, field peas and yams on the fields where paratroopers train today. Instead of the Duce and a -a Half, mule drawn vehicles carried men and arms to the ranges.

"In those days, a man could remain a private or a sergeant for 30 years, and many did," Bennett said. "Transfers were rare, and if a sergeant wanted to go serve in say, Hawaii, he or had to take a bust to private to do it." Served 17 Years Bennett served 17 years in the Regular Army and the reserves before retiring on medical discharge in 1935. A master sergeant on retirement, he was an old Asia hand, soldiering with the 1st Inf. (the old "can-do" outfit) in China and the early 1930's, and in the South Pacific during WWII. After leaving the Army, Bennett barbered for years in Columbus shops. When the vast new Infantry Hall was completed at Benning in 1963, Nick Bennett came back to work at the post. One of his many regular customers — and in the Army, haircuts are a regular thing — has been Sgt. Maj. John F. Whitley, the Infantry Commander's top noncom since the summer of 1965. ("Gave like a trim in 1941," Shooting for a half century and he counts the sergeant of cutting hair, much of it in major among this distinguished company.

Remember Well "I remember the sergeant major well from then," Bennett said this week. "The electric clippers swept across the scalp of a soldier, 1967 version. 'A lot of distinguished men came through there.' Pvt. Whitley's first Army haircut cost him a quarter. (They got 50 cents today). Of that haircut, in the First Courtlet which still is home to thousands of soldiers, Bennett remembers: 'I shaved it all off, and there was a lot of it.' Bennett, a Georgia boy like Whitley, enlisted in the 29th in 1928, three years after completing a course at the Jacksonville (Fla.) Barber College, close to his Jessup, Ga., boyhood home.

ASK how much your loan will cost and HFC will tell you—before you borrow

Before you make a purchase, you naturally want to know the price. The same should be true when you borrow money. When you come to Household Finance, HFC will tell you in advance what your loan will cost. The HFC Manager will answer any questions you have to make sure you understand everything about your loan. Remember, no matter what your loan, wherever you're stationed, there's an HFC office nearby, where you can get prompt, understanding money help.

Every year, thousands of servicemen borrow confidence from Household, because they like doing business with people who know their business. If you need a loan, see HFC. You're always welcome.

OBSERVER

Tonight the seventh week of it begins, with Auburn down in the Orange Bowl against Miami, the team picked by Playboy to win two games. The Hurricanes seem to be coming out of it, however, with last week's 58-0 mauling of Pitt attesting to that. Can Miami, the golden team that fell fast, now come back at the expense of Auburn, the also-ran that started running? Interesting? You're right.

Sport Snorts

By Rod Reed

"It's just another ball game," say the liars. But the truth is, a World Series contest usually sparks a tingling excitement that you don't find in just another ball game. Often an ordinary player gets so keyed up he becomes a hero; and just as often, the big star is comically affected and is the goat.

There are always surprises. Certainly, last year nobody expected the sore-arm Oriole pitchers to hold the Dodgers to two runs in four games. In 1956, it was a SURPRISE in capital letters that Don Larsen could face Brooklyn's power-packed lineup of Gilliam, Rose, Snider, Robinson, Hodges, Amos, Furillo and Campanella and pitch a perfect game—first and only one in World Series history, first and only no-hitter in World Series history.

Certainly, the Giants started everyone in 1954 when they swept four straight from a Cleveland team that had hurlers named Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Hal Newhouser. In '53, Mickey Mantle, expected to shine, struck out five times in a row, eight times altogether. And the unlikely star was Billy Martin who averaged .500 with two homers, two triples, one double and seven singles—after batting only 257 in the regular season.

BABE RUTH'S RECORD

The matter of the big shot proving to be something of a bust started in the very first Series in 1903. Pittsburgh's great Homei Wagner, National League batting champ at .355, was horse-collared in four games and got only six hits in the other four to average .272.

It might surprise some of the younger customers to learn that one of Babe Ruth's many records was pitching 29 consecutive scoreless innings in World Series play, a mark that stood up until Whitey Ford topped it only a fortnight ago.

Biggest surprise of all came in 1919 when the Reds beat the White Sox, five games to three. That is, it surprised everybody but the gamblers and eight members of the Chicago club who were, subsequently banned from baseball forever.

MIGHTY CASEY

Luckily, baseball was able to recover from that scandal and in 1923 provided a showcase for a New York Giant centerfielder named Casey Stengel. John McGraw's men were able to take only two games from the Yankees. Both wins came on Stengel homers. The Yanks had been getting on Stengel all through the series, so when he was trotting around the bases on the second home run, he kept gaily thumbing his nose at the Yankee bench.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, thought this was outrageous conduct, and he filed a formal protest with Commissioner Landis, calling Casey's act undignified and an insult. The usually stern Landis threw out the complaint. He said, "Stengel just can't help being Stengel."

It's unlikely that Stengel's antics will be repeated this Fall, but it's entirely possible that some 190 hitner will thumb his nose at statistics and become a batting terror. Surprise is still the word for the World Series.

SHORT SNORTS

In athletics, the amateur champ gets a gold medal, the pro champ gets a gold mine.

Golfer Gay Brewer gives slicing lessons. So who needs 'em?

The people who say baseball is too slow must not be chess fans, either.

They've invented a solid golf ball you can't cut with a knife—but you can still slice it with a driver.

End of the Blues:

Other Band Razors should have their heads examined - you'll find they're not all there!

The action's in the new Schick 10-edge cartridge—with not just 6, but 10 new edges.

Equally important, only Schick Science gives you a complete winding mechanism—new with every cartridge. While our competitor may think it's cheaper to put half the band mechanism in the razor and half in the cartridge, old and new parts do not always fit together.

Finally, the 10 Super Stainless Steel Edges are held taut by an exclusive slotted band for positive shaving control. Every Krona® Edge has the molecular Miron® coating for a surface of unequalled smoothness. Only Schick has the Krona Comfort Edge.

Compiled by Joseph Menchel

... Most accounts of Hannibal were written after his death. Livy wrote about the Carthaginian general 200 years after he died, and Polybius the Greek wrote of his Alp crossing 60 years after it happened.

... Poking fun at the American colonists, British Army Surgeon R. Schackbury, on the staff of General Amherst, headquartered in 1758 in a manse and place of defense known as Fort Crano, wrote "Yankee Doodle" — but the colonists adopted the song as their own, thus establishing the Rensselaer's 1642 relic as a place of historic significance to the Britons' enemy.

... Enlisted men were favored in September 1867 when log huts were built for their comfort for that year's winter at Fort D. A. Russell near Cheyenne, Wyo.—while the officers remained in their tents for most of that severe season. Permanent company barracks went up in October and November that same year as well as a 20-bed hospital, but the first officers' quarters were not completed until February 1868, thanks to Col. John D. Stevenson, commander of the 30th U.S. Infantry.

... In 1934 Congress accepted from Virginia the statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee that it had refused in 1909. Lee was depicted wearing a Confederate uniform.

... World War II's specific campaigns have been pegged at 34—in both the European and Pacific Theaters of Operations.

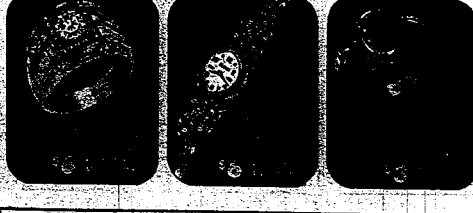

... With the end of World War I, 250 communes in the Department of the Somme, France, cleaned their areas of barbed wire placed there during the fighting: 65,000 tons were collected, wound in balls, and sent to a factory for conversion into more useful metal products.

... This nation's first Unknown Soldier was one of 150 revolutionary war irregulars killed by the British while defending a point in Tuckahoe, N.Y. The soldier's skeleton was found in the Westchester hills. Schoolchildren paid tribute to him in the Tuckahoe Town Hall in 1923.

... Fort Leavenworth was built by Col. Henry Leavenworth, 3d Infantry, in 1827—the oldest permanent settlement in Kansas.

THE GAME OF THE SEVEN GOOFS

Here is another clever cartoon for everyone. In its similar takes there are at least seven subtle mistakes. To find out how good you are, turn the page upside down.

SOLUTIONS: (1) Left hand no longer shown. (2) Left foot shown in man's shoes. (3) Woman's left arm is seen. (4) There is extra tubing on lower part of instrument board. (5) An extra wire connects largest clock. (6) Left leg appears on soldier at entrance. (7) Forearm of specimen is longer than leg.

Tell It To Meg

Dear Meg: A couple of newbies invited my wife and me to dinner. After dinner, my wife offered to help our hostess with the dishes. She said she wasn't going to wash the dishes. "It's Roger's turn," she said, and sure enough Rog put on an apron and went to work.

I was outraged. I don't say a man should never lift a hand in the kitchen but I don't think his bride should have humiliated him that way in front of company. Besides, now my own wife has been hinting that we should take turns getting dishes hands.

— MAN OF THE HOUSE

Dear Man: This matter needs further study. Does Roger's wife also take her turn changing tires, putting up storm windows, carrying out the garbage, repairing the lawn mower, and moving the piano?

Dear Meg: Dad is a career man and I grew up as an "Army brat." Now, woe is me, I've fallen in love with a Navy lieutenant. What can I do? If I tell father I want to marry a Navy man he'll simply die!

— AT SEA

Dear At Sea: No he won't. Army men aren't all that sensitive. If your fellow shapes up, Dad will soon get used to the idea of a floating son-in-law. That is, unless the lad's in the Russian Navy.

Dear Meg: My husband has one night out a week to play poker with the boys. I thought this was a good idea 'till my neighbor, an older woman, started smirking about it. She says, "He's not playing poker, he's playing around. All men are alike and you're a fool if you don't realize it."

— UNEASY

Dear Uneasy: You are a fool — if you pay any attention to that trouble-making busybody. Tell her to go jump in the proverbial lake.

Dear Meg: It drives me nuts to see these "boys" with the long, ugly, dirty hair appearing on TV all the time. Just their looks are disgusting without saying anything about their so-called music. It's all very well to say there's no law saying I have to look at them. But they have a bad influence on many otherwise decent youngsters who let their own hair grow in the same ratty way. I even have a dreadful fight with my own son every time I send him for a haircut.

The adults who run the television business are to blame for letting these creeps appear. Doesn't neatness count any more?

— SQUARE AND PROUD OF IT

Dear Square: Oddly enough, some of these hairate groups increase TV ratings. What the producers like neat is neat stacks of money.

Dear Meg: I say all unwed mothers should be thrown off the welfare rolls. It's their own fault they got that way.

— TAXPAYER

Dear Taxpayer: Better see a heart doctor and find out where yours went.

The last time you had so many bits of real orange in your juice, you probably squeezed it yourself.

Or someone squeezed it for you. Snow Crop orange juice as you remember it. The thick thousands and thousands of bits of real orange. Not over smooth or over strained like other frozen orange juices.

Snow Crop is as rich as the orange juice you'd squeeze yourself.

Maybe richer. Because Snow Crop is a blend of five of the world's great oranges. Could you equal that?

IN HIS LETTER TO A GERMAN CISM DELEGATE, VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHREY SET THE KEYNOTE FOR THE XXTH CISM BOXING CHAMPIONSHIPS WHEN HE WROTE IN PART: "MAY YOU AND EACH OF THE OTHER CHIEF DELEGATES, COACHES, TRAINERS, REFEREES AND BOXERS TAKE HOME HAPPY MEMORIES OF YOUR BRIEF STAY HERE... AND OF FULL-FILLING SPORTS COMPETITION."

IN JUNE 1967, THE PAGEENTRY AND COLOR OF THE CISM BOXING CHAMPIONSHIPS WERE BRINGED TO UNITED STATES SHORES. FORT GEORGE MEADE, MARYLAND, WAS THE SCENE FOR 44 BOXERS FROM 7 NATIONS. THE LARGEST AUDIENCE IN THE POST FIELD HOUSE ROSE AS EACH COUNTRY'S NATIONAL ANTHEM WAS PLAYED.

ONE OF THE CLASSIEST 106-LB AMATEURS IN THE WORLD, THE U.S. ARMY'S HENRI MARLEY, DEFEATED BOTH GOUGE OF THE IVORY COAST.

BOLD MEDALS IN THE FEATHER-WEIGHT (125 LB) AND LIGHT-WEIGHT (132 LB) DIVISIONS WENT TO KOREANS KIM AND LEE CHANG KIL, WHO THRILLED THE CROWD WITH THEIR SKILLS...

OUT OF THE ELEVEN FINAL BOUTS TWO OF THEM ENDED IN KO'S BOTH ENGINEERED BY AMERICANS. LIGHT-MIDDLEWEIGHT RAY OWENS KNOCKED OUT KARL JASCHKE OF FRANCE...

...AND HEAVYWEIGHT TYRONE BRUTE HOLINS WHO, BY KNOCKING OUT GERMAN'S WERNER LARSMANN, PICKED UP HIS 45TH KO AND 51ST WIN IN 53 FIGHTS...

OF GREAT INTEREST WAS THE BOUT BETWEEN MARTIN BERZEWSKI, A FORMER GERMAN CITIZEN WHO CAME TO THE STATES IN 1959, AND ENWALD WICHERT OF GERMANY. BERZEWSKI WON ON A TKO WHEN THE RING PHYSICIAN STOPPED THE FIGHT IN THE THIRD ROUND...

WHEN THE TOURNAMENT CAME TO AN END, AMERICAN BOXERS WON 7 GOLD MEDALS, KOREA WON 2 AND GERMANY AND FRANCE TOOK ONE EACH. WE GET THE TRUE VALUE OF CISM WHEN WE QUOTE MR. HUMPHREY AGAIN: "ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT RESULTS HAS BEEN INCREASED UNDERSTANDING AND MUTUAL RESPECT AMONG MEMBER NATIONS."

All of us can be heroes in normal everyday life

It has often been said that being a hero consists to a large part of being in the right place at the right time. Such opportunities come to most people only in rare instances in their lifetimes. However, life-saving acts can be performed during the normal course of a day's work with no risk and with little, if any, pain.

Two such acts that are brought to mind are the donations being sought through the United Givers Fund and the Bloodmobile.

There is nothing heroic in either of these actions—in the American sense of the word—but it would be hard to convince the victim of a traffic accident that the pints of blood he received were not life-saving. Or the swimmer who was rescued by a Red Cross-trained life saver.

Neither of these activities will detain you or keep you from completing your job. Nor will they get your picture printed in the paper for some heroic deed. But your reward will be there in that when the need for blood was noted, the life was saved and when the swimmer called for help, the trained person was present. The life saved and the doctor may receive the publicity, but they're only treading water without your help.—BAYONET

Quote of the Week

"The Long Gray Line has never-failed us. Where you do it, a million stars in olive khaki, in blue and gray would rise from their white crosses thundering their magic words: Duty, Honor, Country.—General of the U.S. Douglas MacArthur, at the U.S. Military Academy, May 12, 1962.

Surgeon Says

High fever often indicates body is fighting infection

Fever is a common occurrence in children. Usually it occurs while the child is sick, but it may occur when the child is well.

Fever by itself means nothing. The amount of the fever is of far less importance than the fact that the child has a fever.

How much temperature is a fever? Usually a temperature of over 100 degrees is considered a fever. Temperatures should not be taken if the child has been playing or exercising and feels hot.

What does fever mean? Usually it means that the child's body is fighting an infection of some kind. The body knows that dangerous germs do not grow well at high temperatures. Therefore, fever occurs and helps the body fight the infection. Strenuous efforts to bring a sick person's temperature back to normal after the infection is cured is harmful.

What Fever Means Does fever mean the child is sick? Usually, yes, but occasionally a child, especially a little one, will have a "fever" for several hours without any illness of any kind. If the child does not act sick the fever means nothing, and nothing should be done to treat it except to give the child some extra water or juices.

A sick child with fever is best treated by first, an aspirin tablet on the dose is one baby aspirin for each year of age, given four times a day. Children, 10-years-old, may take two adult aspirin. All children will take aspirin, especially if crushed and put with apple sauce or chocolate syrup.

If Fever Persists If fever persists and the child looks ill, then a visit to the family doctor is in order. In most doctor's offices and hospitals, the most expert and best care is given during normal office hours. Your doctor will tell you how to treat the fever.

Occasionally the fever rises usually high temporarily (105-106). At these times it is best to give the child a cool tub bath for 20 minutes and repeat it as necessary. A tub bath is much more effective than an alcohol sponge.

Drink Fluids In general, a child with a fever should wear as little as possible. A shirt may be too much. Large amounts of fluids should be given—at least a 6-8 ounce glass of water, milk, juice or tea each waking hour, and as often as possible during the night. If the child is worried about food, the child will catch up on his feedings after he is well.

Of special importance to remember is that you must not give more than the recommended dose of aspirin. It is not "aspirin" if it is medicine. "Accidental" overdoses of aspirin kill 11 children each year. More than polo and measles together.

"YOU DROP DRILL SERGEANT!"

Toothpaste users comprise only 76% of the population

"Approximately 94 per cent of all American households purchased toothpaste last year. However, only 76 per cent of the population is brushing an average of 1.4 times a day."

This was reported to a professional meeting in Washington, D.C., by A. C. Nielsen, head of the A. C. Nielsen Co. which rates the popularity of television programs and does market research for some 2,000 corporations.

Toothpaste sales seem to have reached a plateau, going from 2.1 billion ounces three years ago to 2.2 billion ounces last year. This is not due to any slackening of advertising efforts, Nielsen noted. Actually, more than $61 million was spent on toothpaste advertising last year, compared with slightly more than $59 million three years ago.

It is significant to note that toothbrush sales have declined 1.1 per cent from 543 per capita three years ago to 537 last year. The money outlay for toothbrush advertising last year was only half as great as that of three years ago. The consumer now spends 41 times as much for toothpaste ($22 million) as he does for toothbrushes, and in spite of our rapidly increasing population, toothpaste sales are leveling off and toothbrush sales are decreasing.

If every American were to brush his teeth twice a day, toothpaste sales would probably increase at least 87 per cent and this is the minimum recommended brushing frequency.

Judge Says

Soldiers should know rights when held by civilian police

This column is intended to summarize the rights of the serviceman—or any citizen—when arrested by civilian authorities. It is important to understand what your rights are and to secure proper legal assistance to enforce them.

Initially, the fact of arrest and the charge on which it was based should be recorded in the arrest book. If any personal property is taken from the serviceman, he should be given a receipt or list thereof. The serviceman is entitled to:

1. A statement as to why he has been arrested and the charges against him.
2. Immediate release or an opportunity to obtain bail.
3. Communication with a lawyer at once in order to ascertain his legal rights.
4. Contact family or friends by telephone or mail.
5. Contact the unit to avoid an entry of absent from duty or absent without leave.
6. While there is no general limitation to one telephone call, the serviceman arrested cannot disrupt the orderly routine of the police station. The only restriction in this area is that he cannot be held "incommunicado."

7. He has the right to refrain from making any statements or submitting to any tests which might incriminate him. Generally, confessions or admissions elicited by coercion or illegal promises are not admissible in a later trial.

Further, any promises of leniency made by law enforcement officials are not binding upon them. The tests which cannot be imposed without the serviceman's consent are: Handwriting samples, modeling what your rights are and to secure proper legal assistance to enforce them.

The serviceman has a right to be brought before a judge, magistrate or other authorized public official as soon as practicable. The purpose of this arrangement is to ascertain whether there is a reasonable basis for holding the serviceman on the charges brought.

Local law may vary the general precepts enumerated above. In order to insure that the serviceman's civil rights are being observed, he should enlist the assistance of personal counsel or the local Judge Advocate's Office as soon as possible after arrest. A Judge Advocate will advocate member cannot take part in the court proceedings elicited by coercion or illegal promises are not admissible in a later trial.

Further, any promises of leniency made by law enforcement officials are not binding upon them. The tests which cannot be imposed without the serviceman's consent are: Handwriting samples, modeling what your rights are and to secure proper legal assistance to enforce them.

Rights mean responsibility

"Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom, must, like men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it." Freedom was not easily won, nor has it been easily maintained.

Those who wish to enjoy the rights and privileges of citizenship must also labor to earn them. For along with the rights of citizenship come the duties.

For every right, there is a responsibility; for every opportunity, there is an obligation. You who serve in the Armed Forces are fulfilling one of the responsibilities of citizenship—providing for the defense of our Nation.

But to fully meet the obligations of citizenship and reap its benefits, every citizen must not only obey the letter of the laws, but the spirit as well. It is also the responsibility of every citizen to be well informed about current political and economic questions.

And, it is not only the right, but the responsibility of every citizen to exercise his franchise by voting in every election and urging others to do the same.

History has shown that the democracies which prove to be the most enduring are those in which the individual has the highest sense of civic responsibility and fully participates in government.

The preservation of freedom, equality and justice requires not only the intelligent exercise of the rights and privileges of citizenship, but willing, determined and intelligent assumption of all the responsibilities of citizenship as well. (AFNB)

Berkley 'rag' trouble for U.S. servicemen

EDITOR'S NOTE: Servicemen and their families should note the following article with great concern and should receive copies of the publication, take every measure possible to discontinue the subscription. Most servicemen will recognize the subversive qualities of a magazine could be a discrediting factor in a National Agency Check or in obtaining a security clearance for civilian employment.

Copies of a newspaper entitled "BOND" have been referred to specific individuals all assigned to one unit.

This newspaper is printed and disseminated from Berkeley, Calif. Attempts are made by its publishers to identify it as a "Servicemen's Newspaper." A review and analysis of its contents would indicate that it is a propaganda sheet which is an extension of the anti-U.S. Forces, anti-U.S. Government policies in Vietnam, of the type disseminated by such groups as the Communist Party USA, Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), National Student Reluctant Committee (NSRC), Vietnam Day Committee (VDC), to name a few.

The "BOND" (a four page sheet) displays the technique of printing letters from disgruntled and dissident Armed Forces personnel, reprinting articles published by groups similarly dedicated to discredit the United States and its policies, and including the results of an interview with some unidentified but disloyal, anti-American man.

For example, the lead arti-

Vet's benefits increased

President Johnson has signed into law the Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Act of 1967, which will, he said, "keep faith with this generation of our servicemen and women who served in Vietnam and elsewhere 'that America does not forget.'"

The new bill increases the benefits for veterans of the Vietnam era as well as for older veterans.

The new law designates a Vietnam veteran as one who has served on or after Aug. 5, 1964, and provides compensation at full war-time rates for veterans of this period.

The bill also qualifies them for nonservice-connected pensions on the same basis as older veterans and makes their widows and children eligible for nonservice-connected benefits.

Other major provisions of the bill provide more money to assist them in continuing their education. New entitlements give single men $130 a month, $155 for those with one dependent, $175 for those with two dependents and an additional $10 each month for each dependent over two.

It also extends the type of training for new jobs and skills under the 1966 GI Bill for which a veteran may receive payment.

Veterans of earlier periods were not forgotten in the new law which extends the cut-off date on eligibility for World War II GI Loans to July 25, 1970. Other benefits are extended to veterans of other conflicts, from the Spanish-American War to the Vietnam conflict.

In signing the 1967 Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Act, President Johnson termed it one of the best investments the people of the United States have made. It offers our servicemen recognition for the great sacrifices they have made for their country throughout the years and particularly in Vietnam today.

le on page one is a reprint, according to the BOND, of an article from "THE MOVEMENT" (a Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) affiliated newspaper). Subject of the article is "Life is Hell in The Navy" and purports to be an interview with an unidentified sailor, allegedly stationed on the U.S. Coral Sea.

This article in response to questions asked by a reporter (obviously not in sympathy with the U. S.), its policies, its leaders or its Armed Forces) portrays a picture of exceedingly heavy ship casualties, detaining statements against the President, expressions on how to organize "the boys home" movement, and including the oppressive work and living conditions aboard the carrier (14 to 16 hours a day) and a lengthy discussion of the extremely poor safety conditions on board ship. This is done by citing isolated cases of sailors who might have back-into injured propellers, fallen down hatches or were injured as a result of obsolete equipment.

In one case the reporter asked the sailor, "How many atomic weapons does the U.S. Coral carry?" He replied, "I can't tell you exactly how many, because I don't have clearance to get near them. But we have enough to blow half of Asia off the map."

This somewhat detailed analysis of the newspaper's contents was made to alert our personnel to the subversive nature of this sheet and to recognize the propaganda attempts to undermine our country's efforts in Vietnam, our institutions and our leaders, not only in this sheet, but in the numerous propaganda organizations currently active throughout the United States.

This sheet encourages individuals to submit names of servicemen, so that they may be made the target of its propaganda. It is emphasized that men in the military service enjoy the basic freedoms of reading and discussing published materials concerning U. S. participation in Vietnam. It is recommended that personnel be cautioned not to solicit or submit names of other servicemen to this or similar propaganda sheets, or to any organization or movement whose actions or writings are not in the best interests of our country in general and our Armed Forces in particular.

Anyone receiving such information or solicitation should contact his superior who in turn, through channels would notify the Director of Intelligence, USAIC. Recipients would be well advised after reporting such incidents to return such material to the sender with a note advising that he does not desire to receive such mail, did not request it and to refrain from sending any more. The danger to the individual exists in that many of the current organizations engaged in the organized attempt to discredit, undermine and vilify the U. S. exchange mailing addresses when it suits their purpose.

Some of these organizations are on the Attorney General's list. Others while not on it, count by their activities, membership and objectives well quality.

Open House Planned Post Center to Observe American Education Week

PTA Invites All to Visit Schools During Education Week Here

The week of November 5-11 is designated American Education Week. Your PTA most heartily endorses the aims of American Education week and urges visit your post schools that week.

As November 10 is a holiday, you may visit any school on the post on November 6, 7, 8 and 9 during school hours. Teachers and school officials are most anxious to have you see your schools in action.

In addition, Tuesday, November 7, is PTA night. Instead of a regular business meeting we want you to visit the school (or schools) attended by your children, meet their teachers, and see where the action is. All schools will be open at 7 p.m. complete with teachers.

The formal membership drive is over, resulting in almost 2,200 memberships, a 10 per cent increase in our budget planning figure. We are most grateful for your interest and support.

Don't forget American Education Week. Don't fall to visit your schools during school hours and on Tuesday evening, November 7.

RICHARD C. HORNE, III
Colonel, Signal Corps
President, Fort Benning PTA

American Education Week individual can improve himself through learning and that this process does not stop with the completion of formal education.

It is a lifelong process. If military members are to achieve their maximum potential both during and after military service, continuing education is essential.

Role Emphasized

There is an increased awareness of the role of education in the success of the Army. Leadership at all levels of command requires new methods and increased technical skill. The success of these programs is due to the support given by the military community.

Unit commanders not only approve but encourage participation in both on-duty and off-duty classes. Minimum education goals of high school graduation for all commissioned officers and four year college degrees for all officers are set by Department of the Army. Eligibility for participation in GED programs is not restricted by the length of enlistment. These programs are aimed at helping the soldier attain his desired goals in education.

Tests Utilized

Secondly, they are pointed toward developing better soldiers and citizens. United States Armed Forces Institute courses utilize standard tests courses at all Army college classes.

Silver Star Awarded To Sergeant at 58th

For the second time in as many weeks a member of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. has presented the Silver Star. Sgt. Bill L. Larsen, Co. D, was awarded the Silver Star by Col. Jack L. Treadwell, commanding officer, for his gallantry in action May 31 while serving as squad leader with the 1st Bn. Abn. 12th Cav. at An Qui village. Upon entering the village, Larsen's company came under intense enemy automatic weapon's fire from a well-entrenched, superior North Vietnamese force.

Larsen immediately exposed himself to the intense fire to deploy his men against the hostile emplacements, personally destroying four enemy bunkers and killing seven North Vietnamese soldiers in the process. As his squad moved forward, one of his men was hit by enemy machine gun fire from a bunker to their front.

Ordering his men to take cover, Larsen ran with only his pistol and hand grenades, assaulted the emplacement single-handedly under a hail of enemy fire while eliminating the bunker. He captured the enemy machine gun and directed his squad in a further assault.

Larsen's display of bravery and aggressive leadership in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, and reflects a great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

Larsen, 21, is native of Lake Isabella, Calif. He is single and plans to attend Bakersfield College, Bakersfield, Calif., following his separation from active duty October 20.

Following the award ceremony, Lt. Col. Charles D. Wright, commanding officer of the 58th Inf., presented the standard of Co. D from Capt. John C. Reid to 1st Lt. Herschel R. Hudson, signifying a change of command in that company. Reid is departing the 58th to form new duties at the Scout Dog Detachment.

Post Tac NCO Has Worn Many Hats in Career

Talk about wearing many hats. SFC Marvin Mills, senior tactical non-commissioned officer with the Infantry NCO Candidate Course, has worn five of them in his 14 years with the Army.

Mills' headgear has included the black beret of the 7th Corps Long Range Reconnaissance Co. in Europe, the campaign hat of a Fort Dix, N. J. drill instructor, the chrome helmet of the Fort Benning Honor Guard, and the brown beret of a U.S. advisor to the Vietnamese Infantry.

Most recently Mills, who is assigned to the 72d Co., 7th Bn., 173d Airborne, has been wearing the glossy black and blue helmet liner that distinguishes instructors on the NCO Candidate Course here. The program is training fire team and rifle squad leaders for duty in Vietnam.

In addition to his variety of positions he has worn branch insignias for infantry, artillery and armor.

BOND QUIZ

Question: Since I have no relatives, how do I go about naming my church as beneficiary or co-owner of the Savings Bonds I own? Answer: Unfortunately, you can't. Regulations prohibit that bonds issued in either case must name natural persons only. But you could write a will leaving the bonds to your church. Bonds may, of course, be purchased by you in the name of the church as sole owner.

The costumes are made ready to spin, and Monte Carlo Night is set to begin. The party will get underway at 5 p.m. at Crain Hall tonight. The evening is planned to last until 2 a.m.

The Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club, sponsors for the party, have many "fun" activities planned for the continental-style event.

A mainstay of entertainment will be the many different kinds of games which will be operated by the noncommissioned officers. Prizes given are to be given away, good food will be on order, and pictures will be on sale for all those who want to say "cheese" for the party photographer.

Another party spotlight is the "Boutique Parisienne," the souvenir shop which will sell painted ceramics, perfumes, kitchen glassware, and other items designed for Christmas giving. Two of the Christmas centered items are a hand-painted plate showing carolers singing Yuletide tunes and a tiny ceramic Santa.

Also to be spotlighted are the decorations, life-sized girls, waiters and continental casino scenes.

All proceeds will be used to support post charities such as the Tol Town Nursery, scholarships for military children and the Hospitality House of Army Community Service.

All E-4's through E-9's and their dependents and guests are invited to attend the event.

Mrs. Larry Alderman is party chairman. Perhaps one of the highest compliments that could be paid to a mother can be summed up in what one young Fort Benning man said of his mother when he stated, "She makes a full-time job of taking care of our family. Nothing else comes first." That young man, Mike LaVoie, made that remark of his mother, Mrs. Bea LaVoie.

Mrs. LaVoie, wife of Sgt. Maj. John F. LaVoie who is sergeant major of The Infantry School's Airborne Department, is a dedicated wife, mother and home maker. Her family truly comes first.

Her sons, Mike, a sophomore at Columbus College, and Terry, a sixth grader in the Columbus Reese Road School, are again busy in school activities and, naturally so, Mrs. LaVoie finds herself active in the Parents-Teachers Association and in the projects of the room mothers at Reese Road School.

Purchased lot

She also enjoys doing other things with and for her family. The LaVoies recently purchased a lot at Meadow Lakes, Ga., where the family goes fishing, boating and swimming together. Mrs. LaVoie confesses that she had never tried fishing before but that during the summer, fishing became her favorite sport. Mike and Terry know, too, that their friends are always welcome at the LaVoie house.

Awarded Pin

She was recently awarded a service pin for the time that she gives as a volunteer worker in the Fort Benning Army Community Service. For her idea of "family" is an aspect broad enough to include the whole Army, Army Community Service, with its slogan of "caring for its own" is especially meaningful to her.

Young people and that family aspect have always been very much a part of her activities. Perhaps that is why Sgt. Maj. LaVoie, while the family was stationed in Germany, volunteered his wife for the job of program director of the American Youth Activities Group there by saying, "Bea would love it."

Met as Teenagers

Mrs. LaVoie's hometown is Riverside, R. I., and Sgt. Maj. LaVoie hails from North Adams, Mass. They met as teenagers during family vacations at a New England shore-side beach, a circumstance that usually happens only in wintertime. At the end of the vacation, she went back home with her family and Sgt. Maj. LaVoie joined the Army. All during World War-II the romance was continued by letters. Short-

Local Wives Planning Atlanta Shopping Trip

By Jane Daniels
The holiday season is approaching and the officers' wives of Fort Benning are making last-minute preparations for a Christmas shopping spree in Atlanta.

Two hundred and twenty eight wives have accepted the Officers' Wives' Club's sell-out invitation to join the spend-the-day party on November 14. The "party" includes plenty of time for holiday shopping, also has plans for a box lunch, a fashion show and a tea.

Six buses will leave promptly from the parking lot near the tennis courts of the Main Officers' Club at 7:30 a.m. All shoppers are asked to board the buses by 7:15 a.m. The buses are to leave Atlanta at 8:00 a.m.

The trip plans are under the direction of Mrs. Hal B. Jennings, chairman, and Mrs. Roy E. Brooks, chairman of the Officers' Wives' Club. The club also annually sponsors a shopping trip, to be held some time in March.

Chatty Yoga Easy Way to Build Endurance

By Louise Dowshewsky
From fashionable health resorts to gym classes, Yoga exercises are becoming more and more popular. The nicest thing about these exercises is that whether you are eight or 80 you can perform them. For Yoga is non-strenuous. You never tug, strain or pull strenuously while doing them.

One of the simplest exercises to perform is the Yoga rhythmic, reverse breathing. Not only will you feel better afterwards, you will actually be feeding your blood stream with its prime requirement... oxygen.

Ready... (do this about 10 times)... Take a very deep breath, pushing your stomach muscles out as you inhale, hold the air in your lungs for a few seconds and then exhale slowly and completely through your nostrils (pulling in the stomach muscles).

Yoga experts claim that by performing this exercise you will increase your vitality and endurance, improve your complexion and make your mind clear and alert. You may practice this while sitting, standing or walking... could you ask more of one little exercise?

FASHION NOTE: A quick trick to eliminate a lot of button sewing and making buttonholes on skirt bands is to use a metal snap for the closing... women who sew their own clothes should start by cutting the lining from the skirt pattern pieces. Attach it only at the waistline, stitching it into that area. Item separately, one inch shorter than the skirt.

Party Honors Local Children

Traditionally, Halloween is the time when spoons and goblins come to life, black cats slither down dark paths and witches haunt every nook.

Just as much a part of the tradition, Halloween is for children.

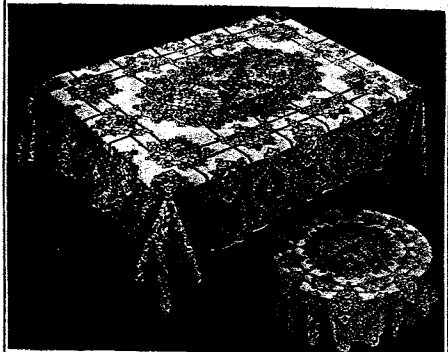

Fort Benning's Geographical Wives Club staged a Halloween party for the children, Saturday at the Main Officers' Club.

Approximately 70 children were greeted by Mrs. Bernard Doyle, club president, who was dressed in black robe and peaked hat as Granny Good Witch.

The children, who were also expertly disguised as ghosts, gypsies, witches and other spooks, were treated to refreshments, games and enthusiastic costume judging.

Dear Community Service

Dear Community Service:
Recently I referred two men with indebtedness problems to the Financial Management Counseling service. I am wholeheartedly in agreement with the service you offer but one question bothers me. As a commander I have a training schedule that must be adhered to. Both men I referred are vital to the accomplishment of the company's mission. The question is this: Why does the soldier referred to have to make one to three trips to accomplish his purpose, and there some means of accomplishing the counseling on a one visit basis or on a planned basis.

Answer:
I am glad you brought this problem up. The most common cause of repeated trips to our office is failure to bring adequate documents on his first visit. Ideally he should bring all letters of indebtedness, copies of contracts, a prepared list of creditors, with amounts owed, current pay voucher and a detailed list of household expenses. From this a clear financial status can be readily determined and in most cases some decision can be made on a one time basis. Calling ahead of time for a definite appointment is encouraged.

Elements of 101st Airborne End Training Phase Here

By Spec. 4 John Olsen
 Reconnaissance elements of the 101st Abn. Div., Fort Campbell, Ky., completed the final phase of Vietnam oriented patrolling instruction at the Fort Benning Ranger Command Saturday. At a remote training site 30 miles south of Benning in Stewart County, 200 troopers met with near-real combat conditions. For six days the students put classroom instruction into action. "We made training as real as actual combat in Vietnam in order to build confidence," reported Maj. Robert Turner, end of Ranger patrol instruction. "Added emphasis was placed on squad leadership with each mission under a different leader. Each man was thoroughly versed in map reading, tracking, and noise and light discipline." On one exercise, a patrol was required to invade a POW camp and release allied prisoners. Since Benning supplied no aggressor force, 101st platoons were paired off. This inspired great competition among the 101st "Screaming Eagles." After every mission, a Ranger instructor critiqued the unit on its alertness or its deficiencies noted. "It's to the student's benefit that an instructor be there to correct mistakes," Capt. John Overcash said. He helped plan the training for the 101st. Throughout the training area, villages and underground encampments were set up. On search and destroy missions the patrol moved into location and quickly captured any weapons or food. The students were taught to look in unusual places for enemy caches. In one simulated village attack, ammunition was located under a supposed cooking fire. Since tunnels play an important role in Viet Cong strategy, the troopers spent a lot of time locating underground strongholds.

Post Flight Unit Captures 'Breakfast in Bed' Honors

By Lt. David Leonard
 What soldier hasn't dreamed of breakfast in bed on a Saturday morning? That's just what the second platoon of the 271st Avn. Co. got recently — served by members of the first platoon.

The bacon-and-eggs event was the result of a competition devised to give a training exercise held earlier in the week when the platoons went to fire their Chinooks' doorguns. Maj. John P. Obermire, company commander, announced that the platoon scoring the most hits in the air-ground competition firing would be served above in bed by the losing platoon.

On the range, the first platoon scored 50 hits on the silhouette targets set up in column and line formations; the second platoon outdid them with 128 hits. Each of the crewmen poured a continuous stream of fire from the M-60 machine guns as the Chinook made three passes over the target area.

The payoff came before dawn Saturday morning. The men of the losing platoon went through the serving line in the mess hall, ate and then returned through the line into clean trays to pick upchow for their buddies waiting in bed. On hand to watch them were Maj. Obermire, the first sergeant, Willie B. Williams, and pilots of both platoons.

New Blank Firing Attachment Tested

By Infantry Board
 Service tests were completed this week on the modified M12 blank firing attachment (BFA) for the M14 rifle. The tests, conducted by the U. S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) on post ranges, revealed a much safer BFA for future combat training. Incorporating a curved projection of hardened steel over the front end of the standard modified M12 affords the safety of deflected gases and particles at point-blank range. Through the adoption of the modified BFA, the Infantryman-Trainee will be safer in combat training situations. Prior to the new development, injuries resulting from flash burns and expelled particles have been sustained by troops during close combat training courses. Many of the trainees forwarded test results with their enthusiasm for training objectives and realism of the combat would fire the previous model at close range, thus causing the injuries particularly within the 15-foot range. The new version will cause a significant reduction in these injuries. Lt. Gerald M. Morton, test officer with the Small Arms Test Division of USAIB, was in charge of the BFA test. Evaluation Command, has forwarded test results with its recommendation to high-ranking headquarters for review and action.

Colonel Peabody Presented Legion of Merit at 197th Hq.

By Spec. 4 David Chaffon
One of the nation's highest non-combat awards, the Legion of Merit, was presented Saturday, to Col. Herbert "Gale" Peabody in ceremonies held at headquarters of the 197th Inf. Bde., on Kelley Hill.

COLONEL PEABODY
197th Deputy

Col. Peabody, a veteran of WW II, and Vietnam, was presented the decoration by Col. Jack L. Treadwell, the commander of the 197th. Peabody was recently assigned as deputy commander of the 197th, coming to Fort Benning from Vietnam.

It was his recent assignment to Vietnam as Chief of the Organization and Training Division (later, the Force Division), Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, U. S. Army, Vietnam, that won for Peabody the coveted Legion of Merit.

According to the citation, Peabody "demonstrated consummate skill in surmounting the many difficult and complex problems encountered during the unprecedented buildup of American military forces in South Asia."

It further stated that Col. Peabody "was able to exact the full utilization of assigned personnel in a manner which not only capitalized upon individual talents, but also simultaneously molded the division into a cohesive and harmonious unit. He inspired his subordinates to strive continually for perfection, by his own relentless efforts."

Finally Col. Peabody was cited as having "materially contributed to the counter insurgency effort in the Republic of Vietnam."

No newcomer to Vietnam during his recent tour, Peabody had previously been one of the first advisors to that country with the Military Assistance and Advisory Group in 1965. Peabody is no newcomer to Fort Benning, either, as his first active duty assignment was here with the 20th Infantry in 1940, shortly after his graduation from Wofford College.

Second Anniversary Today

16th Group to Celebrate Birthday

der different combat situations. A "fix-it" battalion squats astride a list of units whose equipment spans the history of military hardware development.

There is an ordnance storage unit that avoids explosions at all costs while it bobs disposal neighbors strives to make one.

The man who commands this near-attraction of opposites is a colonel whose qualifications are predominantly 20 years of campaigning. The 16th is designed to support combat troops. Its commander has — up to now been on the receiving end of a support group's productions.

He is Col. Arthur V. Corley, who took the reins of the 16th last spring after three years of duty in the Pentagon. A casual observer would say that Corley had been roped into the 16th Sp. Gp. job.

Answered Yes
"My first answer was 'Yes,'" Corley said. "Then I asked, 'What is it?'"
What Col. Corley found when he arrived here was a unit that was in the throes of expansion, fresh from duty in the Dominican Republic and prepared to head for Vietnam. The ranks of the unit's "old timers" were thinning rapidly.

Meanwhile the Army's planners were drawing up new units for the group to organize, equip and train.

The 22nd Engineer Co. and the 511th Heavy Equip. Maint. Co. last spring joined other recent arrivals into the 16th ranks.

The 281st Replacement Co. and the 660th Trans. Co. had arrived earlier from the drawing boards. The 886th Engineer Co., and 432d Trans. Co. were placed under the group's wing.

With the addition of the 588th Light Equip. Maint. Co. and the 31st and 380th Ord. Det. this summer, Col. Corley's command now spans 16 separate companies or detachments and a maintenance battalion.

Dissimilar Units
"I can't jump all units together at the same time. It isn't like the artillery, where units have the same organization and mission. In the 16th, I have to consider each unit alone."

This makes Col. Corley's job of commanding a little tougher. When he makes a decision he has to carefully tailor it to each unit before he issues the order. Then, he can expect the order to be followed.

He has a variety of advisers on his staff. His executive officer, Lt. Col. Kenneth B. Facey, knows the importance of logistics. He is an airborne-qualified infantryman with Vietnam experience with the 5th Special Forces.

The man who knows the group inside and out is Lt. Col. Robert G. Wallace, the security, plans and operations officer. Wallace was involved in the Dominican pullout in September 1966. He is one of the unit's original members. His branch is armor.

Lt. Col. Junie Clough is the logistics officer. His branch is transportation. Under his hand and Wallace's, the 654th Supply and Services Co., 23rd Public Information Det. and the 589th Army Postal Unit.

Logistical support hasn't ended since arriving at Benning a year ago. On a mission basis, platoons and companies support the U. S. Army's Infantry Center and the Infantry School.

These missions might range from staging a bridge-building operation to running a shower room under canvas during field training exercises. Transportation, repairs of all types of equipment, storage of ammunition, running a post office, establishing of "odd" artillery rounds, and running the Benning procession unit for new replacements, is just a scant listing of the 16th's capabilities.

"We're merely in the business of helping the Army to fight any war," Lt. Col. Benjamin B. Albert, commander of the 67th Maint. Bn., summed up.

Though the soldier in Vietnam might not give it a second thought, there is a unit like the 16th laundering his uniforms, issuing his food, fixing his rifle and repairing his boots. Soldiers in that business don't expect a chest full of medals, but they seem to feel a sense of satisfaction when they can keep the combat soldier fully supported.

When we were in Santo Domingo during the pullout, the group kept the mess hall supplied with fresh bread right up to the last day," Lt. Col. Wallace said with obvious pride.

Fresh bread just about puts the 16th's ideas of support in a nutshell.

Group Initiated
The beginnings of the 16th Support Group resulted from the organizational shuffling of the logistical operations in Santo Domingo. Originally when airborne troops were dispatched there, the 5th Logistical Command from Fort Bragg, N. C., was given the mission of logistical support.

As the troop strength dwindled during the easing of the tension, the support units began changing in size and scope. The 5th Logistical Command became a more austere organization, the 12th Spt. Bde., with ties still at Fort Bragg.

The 16th Spt. Gp. sprang from the cadre that had landed in the early days of the Dominican crisis. When the group was organized, it severed its tie with Fort Bragg and set out on its own.

Its mission remained the same as its predecessors: support a peace force drawn from six nations in the Western Hemisphere.

After Santo Domingo, those units of the 16th that were not disbanded found their way to the U. S. in September 1966, with orders for Benning. Here they were again placed under the group. Some of the original members are still with these units.

"I remember two years ago that we had a large number of young and inexperienced soldiers," Sgt. Maj. Norman Hillard, the operations sergeant said. "But they quickly learned the score and gave us outstanding service."

The original units who helped write the history are the 97th Maint. Bn., 524th Personnel Services Co., 654th Supply and Services Co., 23rd Public Information Det. and the 589th Army Postal Unit.

Flying Is Hobby Of Local Couple

By Jane Daniels

A Fort Benning couple, WO Jack Bolton and his wife, Lt. Karen Bolton, share an interest when it comes to "taking to the air."

It comes naturally for WO Bolton, who is a Chinook helicopter pilot in the 271st Avn. Co. Lt. Bolton, who is a staff officer in The Infantry Center's Troop Command, is an avid flier whose only regret is that flight school is closed to women.

As a member of the military, she is permitted to fly in Army aircraft, however, and takes full advantage of the fact to fly with her husband. She also plans to earn her own private pilot's license soon.

Meet in California
The Boltons met six years ago in California's high Sierras, while they were both working in summer jobs. Jack, who had previously served eight years with the U. S. Air Force, was then working for the U.S. Forestry Service and Karen was managing a pack stable nearby. During the following year, he went back to college to study agriscience and she went to college to study animal husbandry. They were married in the mountains after final exams in June.

Worked as a Team
For the next few years they worked as a team to earn their way through college. He worked for the Forest Service each summer; she "broke" and trained horses year around. They raised almost all of their own food, butchered their own beef and chickens, sold beef, cut and sold firewood, and made good sales with superb leather work. During this time they started a herd of registered Angus cattle.

After college, she went back to the mountains to teach school while he went to Army Flight School. Later his wife joined him at Fort Wolters, Texas, and at Fort Rucker, Ala., while he completed advanced flight school.

Decided to Join Army
It was sometime after WO Bolton graduated as an aviator that his wife decided to join the Army herself. Lt. Bolton, relates, "I didn't tell him of my decision, and after I was committed, I told my husband what I had done. He was stunned."

While she was in the Women's Basic Officer Course at Fort McClellan, WO Bolton was assigned to Fort Benning as executive officer in the 271st Avn. Co. After her graduation she also received assignment to Fort Benning.

Busy Couple
Today's they are still a busy couple. Lt. Bolton has found that it requires close budgeting of time to be both a soldier and homemaker. Yet she manages to cram in painting, sewing, sculpture, needlework, reading, furniture refinishing and classes in scuba diving and judo along with an occasional game of tennis. WO Bolton, who maintains a rigid training schedule, is now attending Instrument School, and enjoys working with leather, flying a private plane and playing tennis.

Their only thrill that still goes unquenched is their longing to be back in the mountains of the West. One day, perhaps, they hope to retire from the Army, buy a mountain ranch and raise cattle.

Waterborne Infantry Brigade Patrols Delta

Out in the Mekong Delta of Vietnam where the roads are water and often the land is not much firmer, U. S. Army soldiers are participating in a modern adaptation of a traditional military idea.

In riverine operations in Vietnam, the Army component of the waterborne force is the 2d Bde. of the 8th Lt. Div. The Navy component is U. S. Navy River flotilla units.

"Riverine Warfare" is carried to the enemy by the swift movement of soldiers and firepower into areas isolated in a web of rivers, canals, and tangled swamps. This necessitates travel by boat.

Today in Vietnam, Army and Navy men in joint riverine operations are providing a waterborne force used in conjunction with amphibious and regular ground forces to secure specific objectives.

Riverine Area
This force operates in a "riverine area," generally defined as a land environment dominated by waterlines of communications with an extensive network of rivers, streams, canals, swamps, and bays extending over broad, level terrain, parts of which may be inundated periodically.

Riverine operations are characterized by extensive use of waterborne forces, in coordination with ground mobile and airmobile units.

Combat actions are coupled with an awareness of civil affairs programs and psychological warfare operations.

Navy river assault craft act as, or in support of, blocking forces, provide direct and indirect fire support, conduct reconnaissance, perform resupply tasks, serve as an aid station or mess facility, provide a command facility, and extract or deploy troops.

In support of these operations, the Navy employs a variety of craft capable of maneuvering in rivers or shallow channels and canals. In addition to various resupply and repair vessels, these special craft include the armored troop carrier, with the primary mission of transporting troops into combat areas; the command and communications boat; the Monitor, with the primary mission of fire support; and the self-propelled barracks ship, which billets troops and serves as an operations center for waterborne activities.

Special Advantages
Making use of the special advantages of these craft, soldiers participating in riverine operations are able to carry out movement similar to that of mechanized infantry.

This mobility also means troops can be replaced during the conduct of an operation, giving soldiers a chance to rest and dry out.

Work on adapting the technique of riverine operations, which had been used by U.S. and Confederate forces on the Mississippi River in the Civil War and in other encounters, began last summer.

USO Important to Soldier and Community

By LARRY MAHONEY

When asked to donate to the 1968 United Givens Fund Drive, a soldier may rightly wonder, "What's in it for me?" The USO, in downtown Columbus is the good answer.

On weekends, the club sponsored 64 dances, 27 card parties, 18 family nights, 18 open discussions, 24 cake and pie socials, 22 cookouts, four theater parties, nine 01 birthday parties and three law parties.

Exactly what can a soldier expect to find at the Fifth St. Club? The list of leisure-time activities and services is lengthy, and the prices—when there is a charge—are right for an enlisted man's meager pay.

Over 50 services are listed on the USO's calendar of daily events, including chevron sewing, employment aid, package wrapping, shoe shining, showers, housing, training boards, banking service, checkers, notary public, overnight sleeping in a 100-man dormitory, stenography, typewriters, writing material, a canteen service and mail facilities.

Over 134,000 soldiers, by Maurice Kravtin, secretary-door count, entered the USO during the first seven months of 1967. In addition, 7,536 military dependents and 6,138 civilian guests and volunteer workers were counted.

Columbus is an Army town, and the USO keeps soldiers and civilians in close contact. Five volunteer service groups help USO activities. There is the Girls' Service Organization, older girls and young women 17-25 who attend the dances and date the soldiers. The Volunteer Service Organization, older girls and married women, tend a hand at socials and cookouts.

'Virginia Woolf' Entered In 3rd Army Competition

Four more performances of Edward Albee's prize-winning play, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" entered the competition of Archibald MacLise's "B. B.," which was selected by the Playhouse staff for presentation in November and December respectively.

According to Roy Lohner, USAIC Special Services entertainment director, the Third U.S. Army annually sponsors an Army-wide tournament of plays and drama to the recent success of "Virginia Woolf" here, it was decided to enter this production in the competition.

"We are really out to win the contest this year," Lohner said. "Fort Bragg has won for the past two years and I personally would like to see Fort Benning win the title of presenting the "Best Play" in this year's competition."

The judging of Fort Benning's entry will be on Monday evening, November 20, at the Post Playhouse and for those who were unable to see the original production in the contest, the cast will be presenting three other performances at the playhouse prior to the judging, on November 17, 18 and 19 at 8 p.m.

According to the rules of the contest, anyone may participate in the production as long as 50 per cent of the group are active military personnel. This will be no problem for the playhouse staff, since most of them are in the military.

Spec. 4 Thomas Dickman, the play's director and leading man, has extended his personal invitation to anyone wishing to try out for available parts in the cast and crew, to contact him at 549-2982 as soon as possible. Lohner said that the tentative dates for December production of "J. B.," are December 5-7 and 12-14. # Le Petit Ballet Rehearsing 'Nutcracker' Performance

By Jane Daniels

A world of a Sugar Plum Queen, a wonderland of candies, walking flowers, and a magical nutcracker will soon be at Fort Benning.

This year's fantasy is part of the "Nutcracker" ballet to be performed December 9 and 10 by the Le Petit Ballet.

Tchaikovsky's world famous "Nutcracker" is a story of an enchanted girl, named Clara, a little Uncle Drosselmeyer, a guest at a grand Christmas ball, gives the nutcracker to Clara. That night the nutcracker comes to life. A violent battle ensues with an army of rats. An adventure through the Land of Snow and the Kingdom of the Sugar and the aluring tales of Arabians and cavaliers all combine to present one of the most colorful and well known ballets of all ages.

Le Petit Ballet has begun rehearsals for this production. Special guest artist, Andrea Vedehal and Eugene Collins of the National Ballet, Washington, D. C. headed a cast of local well-known performers, including Shelly Noble, Torrell Frazier and the Marietta Civic Ballet.

Clara is artistic director and choreographer, sets and costumes by Gail Carr and Dave Bassett is technical director. The entire ballet is staged by Wes Carr and sponsored by the Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning.

The young-at-heart of all ages can begin now to make plans to see production. Three performances will be given, a matinee at 2:30 p.m., and an 8:30 evening performance on December 9 and 10. Matinee performance at 2:30

10 Commandments of Shooting

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
2. Watch that muzzle: Carry your gun safely; keep safety on until ready to shoot.
3. Unload guns when not in use: Take down or have actions open; guns should be carried in cases to shooting area.
4. Be sure barrel is clear of obstructions and that you have ammunition only of the proper size for the gun you carry.
5. Be sure of target before you pull trigger: Know identifying features of game you hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; Avoid all horseplay.
7. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. Never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
8. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water: At target practice, be sure your backdrop is adequate.
9. Store guns and ammunition separately: Beyond the reach of children.
10. Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

At 197th Teams Formed for Basketball Play

Three members of last year's all-post basketball league will face the bayonet this season for the 197th Infantry's "Brigade Troops" team, composed of men from 197th Hq. Co., the 183rd Chemical Platoon, 197th Support Bn. and 4th Bn., 89th Armor.

The team will play in the 12-team post battalion-level league with four other entries from the 197th, including 5th Bn., 31st Inf., and 1st Bn., 29th Inf., the defending post champions; 1st Bn., 10th Arty., and 7th Bn., 16th Arty.

Coach Jim Martin, who handled last year's post team and likely will do the same this year, considers the Brigade Troops team to be one of the toughest in the league along with the entry from the 31st Inf. and from Sand Hill's 18th Gen. Sp. Co.

In a practice scrimmage recently, the Brigade Troops team outswished TSB 88-81.

The team also scored handsy wins over the 29th Inf. and 197th Arty. teams.

Starring on the team are returning Nat. Hardaway of the 183rd Chem. Platoon, and John Griffin and Ed Adams of the best deer hunting in the middle will be Robert Chappel of the same unit, according to Martin.

Season play begins November 13 at Briant Wells field house where CTC meets 58th Inf. and 16th G. meets 31st Inf. At Kelley Hill field house that same night, ATC meets 29th Inf. and Brigade Troops (197th Inf.) meets 197th Arty.

TSB, 89th Engrs., 4th Arty. and 29th Arty. will play the following night at the two gyms. Teams will play a single round-robin season first half through December 14, then go into a double-round second half. First and second-half winners will play off for the post championship at the close of the season.

Female Gridders Set for Contest

The Fort Benning Youth Activities Club is sponsoring two Powder Puff Girls Football Games tomorrow. The games will be held at Doughboy Stadium. Time of the first game is 3 p.m. Teams will be made up from girls who acted as cheerleaders for the boys games this season.

THE FORUM

Spec. 4 Mike McNulty
Hoosier fans are hlep and opponents are bewildered, but the hamp underdog football team from Indiana University just does not want to die. It seems that every time final rites are about to be performed over that reckless team an inexperienced sophomore comes along and brings the Big Red back to life.

Take the 21-17 defeat of Iowa, for example. Twice the Hoosiers ran from a punt formation on fourth down and long yardage to go — the first time they got away with it, but the second time it backfired into a touch-down that put Iowa ahead 17-14. Then, with 1:14 remaining to go in the game, fourth and 12 on the Iowa 22, quarterback Harry Gonso faked a field goal and ran to the four yard line. On the next play he passed to Jake Butcher for the winning touch-down.

"We gamble," explains coach John Pont, "because we can't afford the luxury of sitting back and waiting for something to happen."

This sort of gambling, of course, is not at all new to college football — the game thrives on this type of excitement. But Pont, who at 39 years of age is in his third year route by beginning with a gamble and stretching it for all it is worth.

To start with, he packed his 1967 team, which finished with a record of one win-eight losses—one the overall last year, with 10 sophomores returning from 1966. One upper classman, senior halfback Mike Critchfield, who finished second to Michigan State's Clint Jones in Big Ten rushing last year, has found that he's still cast in the role of runner-up. He has been replaced on the first team by sophomore John Isenbarger, a former quarterback, who thus far has been instrumental in all of the Indiana victories.

"Success in football, as I see it," Pont states, "is the result of having skilled athletes at the skill-demanding positions" — quarterback, split end, and flanker halfback. To get these jobs done he inserted rookies Butcher at end, Isenbarger at halfback, and Gonso at quarterback. Together, and in that order, their initials spell out B-I-G. All of this is quite unusual for the normally senior-dominated Big Ten.

Nonetheless, it is obvious that these gambles have paid off in numerous rewards. Indiana now owns a record of 6 wins and no losses and has jumped to the elite group of nationally ranked collegiate football teams. Too, the Hoosiers' emergence as powerhouse gives the state of Indiana three of the top ten teams in the nation, joining neighbors Notre Dame and Purdue.

But more important to the fans is the fact that the Big Red has won only one Big Ten championship in the last 31 years, and that was back in 1945. With victories over Kentucky, Kansas, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, and Arizona, their Rose Bowl chances are certainly the highest ever. In order to make this dream a reality, though, they must conquer their four remaining foes — three of which are Michigan State, Minnesota, and on Nov. 25, Purdue. The latter game could turn out to be the top game of the year.

Through sheer luck or whatever you want to call it — maybe even skill — the Hoosiers are far and above the leader of the Underdog Revolution of 1967. We know for sure that any game they play won't be decided unless the final whistle has blown. This should cause a relief to all Big Ten schools, too, causing all of that rustling in the woods.

125 Field Grade Officers Attend Refresher Course

By Bill Hardin

During the past two weeks, three general officers, two from Oklahoma, and one from Alabama, have been among the 125 field grade officers attending a refresher course at the Infantry School.

They are Maj. Gen. James T. Hardin, commanding general of the 1st Inf. (Div.) Div., Maj. Gen. Lavern E. Weber, adjutant general of the state of Oklahoma, and Brig. Gen. David E. Matthews, assistant division commander of the 6th Inf. Div., Oklahoma National Guard.

All three generals were high in their praise, not only for the course, but for the school and Fort Benning.

Gen. Hardin stated that the refresher course is of "excellent benefit." He said he was impressed with the "all new concepts which are coming into use."

The Alabama Guardsman told "worthwhile talks with men who have been to Vietnam," and commented on how he was pleased to see these individuals teaching in the refresher course.

"With a limited time, such a course is extremely beneficial," Gen. Hardin said. "Alabama has the fifth largest National Guard in the nation, and a substantial number of 15,000 guardsmen in the state are infantrymen."

"The refresher course deals with Infantry tactics as currently being employed in Vietnam, providing specialized training for Infantrymen who are bound for a combat tour," the general said.

In referring to the overall Infantry School, the Dixie Division commander said, "The school has been very solicitous of our needs. The staff and faculty have put themselves at our disposal, I intend to have other officers from the Dixie Division come over and take the course."

"The Dixie Division, comprised of Alabama and Mississippi units, has in the past conducted much of its training at Fort Benning. Many of the men currently assigned to the division have received

Anderson Captures Title In Coast Firing Matches

World champion Lt. Gary Anderson, former member of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, captured the 1967 California State International Rifle Championship at Richmond, Calif., last weekend.

Anderson fired a 1748 out of a possible 1800 for the championship. He was closely followed by Capt. John Foster and Lt. John Writter of the U. S. Army with 1741 and 1720 respectively.

The match was close all the way. Anderson, Writter and George W. Hadley from the Air Force fired 388's in the Prone Match, but Anderson's was the ranking score followed by Writter. Identical scores of the 394-400 were also fired in the Kneeling Match, but Writter had to settle for second again with his score being outranked by civilian Gordon Taras. Foster placed third with 383.

The Standing contest was won by Anderson with a 381-400 while Foster and Writter captured second and third respectively.

The Three Position aggregate found Foster and Anderson tied with 1165-1200 and Writter only three points behind with 1160. There was a quick Free Rifle aggregate. Anderson banged away for second again with a 558-600 compared to Foster's 578 to win the championship. Presley Konrad also fired a 578 in the Free Rifle aggregate but placed third according to the breaking procedures.

Staff Sgt. Edmund Moeller, member of the U. S. Army's Running Bear Team was the U. S. Air Force Invitational Shooting Bear Match at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., last week.

Moeller of the Marksman-ship Training Unit took first place honors the first two days of the three-day match with a 165 and 189 respectively, and managed to place fourth the final day. His 491 first place win. His closest competitor was Lt. Sgt. Ted McGillion, USAF, who was three points off the pace with a 498.

A strong Air Force team scored 1983 in the team match to outpoint the Army's 1854.

Misunderstood by Many Law Emphasizes Rules of Flag Respect, Courtesy

There is considerable misunderstanding among the general public as to the proper manner of rendering courtesy and respect to the United States flag.

On Dec. 22, 1942 Congress approved Public Law 829, commonly known as the "Flag Law," which codifies and emphasizes existing rules of flag etiquette. These interpretations are based on provisions of the law. Here are some questions and answers.

Q. Is it proper to fly the flag of the United States of America outdoors all night long?

A. No, not for individuals. The U. S. flag flies night and day by specific legal authority over: 1. Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Md., under Presidential Proclamation of July 2, 1948; 2. Flag House Square, Baltimore, Md., via an Act of Congress, Public Law 319, Chapter 109, March 26, 1954; 3. U. S. Marine Corps Memorial in Arlington, Va., via Presidential Proclamation of June 12, 1961.

By custom, the flag flies constantly over the East and West coasts of the U. S., Capitol Building in Washington, D.C., since 1918; Birthplace of Francis Scott Key, Sevierville, Md., and his gravesite at Frederick, Md.; World War Memorial, Worcester, Mass.

In addition, the flag flies by custom, tradition or by a loose interpretation of Section 2a of Public Law 829, Chapter 829 (known as the Flag Code) at Pike's Peak, Colo., Mount Stover, Colton, Calif., Little Bighorn Battlefield, Mont., Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima in the Pacific, and marking the sunken hull of the Arizona at Pearl Harbor; Plaza Tasso, New Mexico; and Cemetery (Civilian) Deadwood, S. D.

There are many other places in the U. S. and foreign countries where the flag flies 24 hours a day, but not all have been confirmed. Although there is no requirement that a night and day display be authorized by law, Section 2a of the Flag Code indicates as follows: "It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flag-staffs in the open. However, the flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect."

Q. What interpretation is placed on that part of Public Law 829 which reads: "The flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect." A. The term, "special occasions" means athletic events, bond campaigns, ceremonies, patriotic pageants, parades, etc.

Q. Is it proper to carry the flag with a band or other marching unit at night at an athletic event and to display it as a parade or in a review?

A. Yes, it is entirely proper. As provided in section 2 of the Flag Law for display of the flag on special occasions for patriotic effect.

Q. When the flag is not to be displayed, how should it be disposed of?

A. It should be displayed, whether indoors or out, so suspended that its folds fall free as though the flag were staffed. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall or in a window, the union should be uppermost and to the left of the observer in the street.

Q. What is proper respect to the flag during the ceremony of hoisting or lowering it, or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review?

A. Those present in uniform should give the military salute (men and women). When not in uniform, a man should remove his hat with his right hand, hold it over his left shoulder, his hand being over his heart. A woman salutes by placing her right hand over her heart.

Q. Is it proper to fly the flag during bad weather?

A. In addition to the cases noted earlier, the Armed Forces have special storm flags for display in inclement weather.

Q. Is there any difference in the position of honor for the flag whether on platform, in channel, or on the floor or ground level?

A. Yes, the position of the flag of the United States is determined by the displayer who displays it on his right (to the observer's left), whether he is on a platform, stage, in a channel, or on the same level as the congregation or audience.

Section 2(k) of the National Flag Code states: "The National flag should occupy the position of honor and be placed to the right of the speaker as he faces the congregation or audience, with any other flag being placed to the left."

Q. In advancing and retiring colors, should the flag of the United States and other flags be carried together?

A. Yes, the flag of the United States and other flags should be carried together in a review.

Q. How should the United States flag be displayed when flown with the flag of the United Nations or any other national colors?

A. Senate Bill 654, which became law when President Eisenhower signed it July 9, 1953, prescribed rules and guidance for this. The American flag is to be given the position of honor at all times, as set forth in the National Flag Code. This means the flag flown above the Stars and Stripes.

As a general rule, the United States flag shall be in the same level and to the right of the United Nations flag.

Q. When should the flag be flown at half-mast?

A. On Memorial Day (May 30) when it flies at half-mast from sunrise until noon. That it is raised to full staff until sunset.

The determination as to when and for whom the flag is displayed at half-staff is generally established by local custom, but may be the subject of state law, local ordinance, or other regulation.

Q. How may worn-out or unserviceable flags be destroyed?

A. The flag should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning, and in private without ceremony. An approved custom, the Union is first cut from the flag; and then the two pieces, which no longer form a flag, are cremated.

Q. May the flag be washed or dry-cleaned?

A. The flag should be cleaned in the manner best suited for the material of the flag.

Q. How may worn-out or unserviceable flags be destroyed?

A. The flag should be cleaned in the manner best suited for the material of the flag.

'Pop' Rosenberger Learns Age No Problem for NCO

By PFC Frank Kaufman

Gordon C. Rosenberger is "Pop" and "Old Man" to the candidates of Fort Benning's Non-Commissioned Officers Course but it doesn't bother him a bit.

For at the age of 35, he is the oldest student at Benning's NCO course. He says "It takes us old-timers to run these young troops through."

A native of Kalamazoo, Mich., Rosenberger saw combat in Korea with the Air Force and served three years with the Michigan National Guard before enlisting for active Army duty last April. Married and the father of two young daughters and a step-son on duty with the Air Force in Arkansas, Rosenberger completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. and advanced infantry training at Fort Polk, La. before coming here in September. He is assigned to the 2nd Co., 7th Sig. Bn., TSB.

Rosenberger says he is back in uniform to see Vietnam first hand and to complete 18 more years of service. He needs to qualify for retirement.

Although he admits he is

ROTC Cadets From Auburn Visit Rangers

Sixty-two Auburn University ROTC cadets visited last Friday and Saturday with the Ranger Training Command here, putting into practical application their classroom knowledge of patrolling.

The instruction was given at Camp Dade area of the post. Capt. Benjamin Willis was in charge of the Auburn contingent.

Maj. Barney A. Gill and his instructors put the cadets through classes on patrolling and action at the objective, followed by a work-out on the combat conditioning course.

After a night spent on a tactical bivouac, advanced course cadets, who are members of a counter-insurgency training unit, went on a patrol led by members of their group. Freshmen and sophomore cadets, in the basic ROTC course, went on a camouflaged patrol.

Late Saturday afternoon, the group moved to Victory Pond where they took Ranger Confidence test "side for side," a rope slide from a 75-foot tower into the pond.

Bama Citizens Visit Post Units

Twenty-five Bufaula, Ala. citizens boarded a large Army helicopter in their city Wednesday for a flight here. The group visited the post for a first hand look at their recently adopted units, the 271st Avn. Co., and the 361st Maint. Det.

Since claiming the 271st and 361st as Bufaula's own, the city has entertained many of the men from the units. A special tour of the city was arranged on a recent weekend for wives of the men.

In addition to keeping-up with young men, he physically with young men, he says "It takes us old-timers to run these young troops through."

The campaign, shooting for $180,000, reached the 75 per cent mark Monday — its original closing date.

"Our office and the unit commanders and key men will continue to encourage contributions from soldiers and civilian workers," Capt. Robert S. Kavanagh, UGF project officer, said.

On Saturday morning, a number of Columbus area dignitaries will visit Fort Benning to participate in the post's observance of Veterans Day.

The Fort Benning ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 10:45 a.m. at the flag staff in front of Infantry Hall when the 283rd Army Band opens the program with five minutes of patriotic music. The music will be followed by the sounding of "attention" and a prayer by Chaplain (Col.) Roland Hoge, post chaplain. Next on the program will be an address by Col. Herbert E. The event concludes with the playing of the National Anthem, and the benediction. Several Boy Scouts from each Fort Benning troop will

In addition to Veterans' Day observance on post, Fort Benning will schedule a number of speakers, marching units and displays for various other communities in both Georgia and Alabama.

Fort Benning's commander, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright, Jr., will go to Birmingham, Ala., to address the Birmingham Citizen Club, and to participate in a Veterans' Day parade in that city.

Col. Charles W. Davis, who was awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism on Guadalcanal, and now commands Infantry Center Troop Command, will participate in the annual parade in LaGrange, Ga., as will the 291st Army Band.

The Army's new helicopter gunship, the HueyCobra, put on a demonstration of its speed and maneuverability for observers at Fort Benning Friday morning.

The 15-minute flight near Infantry Hall included several high-speed passes, steep climbs and dives and banking turns.

The new copter is the latest member of the Huey family of Bell helicopters, familiar to observers in the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Benning area. The craft has increased speed, greater range and improved protection for the copter and its crew of two men.

The feature which makes the HueyCobra easily recognizable is the slim fuselage, only three feet wide. The pilot's seat is seated behind and slightly above the gunner's cockpit.

Can We Wave The Flag Too Much?

It is possible to wave the flag too much! Provided, of course, that you wave it with integrity. It is possible to study Lincoln or Shakespeare too much. It is possible to read the Bible too much. The great, the good, the true, are inexhaustible for inspiration, example and strength. I believe that we are not waving our flag enough, not nearly enough. It is so much to me that we are developing a tendency to be kind or even apologetic about waving the stars and stripes. Walk up and down the streets on July 4th and count the flags. It is our nation's birthday, a sacred day in world history, the most important day flag. It is a symbol of national unity. It is the spirit of our undying devotion to our country. It stands for the best that is in us. For loyalty, character, and faith in democracy. It is our flag a synonym of the United States of America! Does it not represent man's greatest, noblest, most sublime dream? Is it not the result of achievement, the goal to which generations have aspired? Ladies and gentlemen, I believe it is time for us... for the mad, raving, Twentieth Century American... to stop for a moment and think. Let us stress our reverence admiration of material success and return to the spiritual and ethical values. Let us infuse and rekindle in the principles and ideals upon which our country was founded. It should not every home own and proudly display the colors on holidays and other such occasions! Isn't the flag Parick Henry, Jefferson, Franklin, Washington, Nathan Hale, George Washington, Paul Revere, Jackson and other great men and women who have given us our heritage. When you see the flag can't you see the Alamo, Corcoran, Pearl Harbor, The Monitor, The Merrimack, Wake Island, and Korea? Let us wave the flag Phloxian Field, Bataan, Iwo Jima, Normandy, Bala Ruth and Davy Crockett? The great events of our past and present are wrapped up in our flag. It is a symbol of this blessed nation, a great in industry, education and commerce. Millions of fertile square miles, wheatlands, coal mines, steel plants. Our great republic, the chosen nation destined to be man's last and remaining hope for suffering humanity, a shining beacon of light, noble and glorious, the haven for the oppressed and persecuted and truly God's gift to mankind. It is this flag that we wave. Can we wave it too much? I don't think so.

OC Organization Day Is Highlighted By Sky Divers' Performance, Parade

A full day of activities and maximum participation marked the second annual Organizational Day for the 6th Stu. Bn. here last week.

Morning activities opened with a team of sky divers, which included two senior candidates, jumping from nine thousand feet and landing in front of the reviewing stand. One of the senior candidates, Robert E. Lanham Jr., a former Airborne Dept. NCO, landed two feet in front of the spectators, and presented a scroll to Lt. Col. George V. Ellis, battalion commander. The scroll proclaimed the day as Battalion Organizational Day.

Next on the schedule was a parade staged by the two senior companies of the battalion, the 61st and 62nd. Special guests who witnessed the review were: Col. Edward J. Geary, deputy commander of The Student Body (TSB), and Mrs. Geary; Lt. Col. Calvin E. Green, S. of TSB, and Mrs. Green; Lt. Col. Charles R. Cox, commander of the 7th Stu. and Mrs. Cox; Lt. Col. Richard A. Pite, commander of the 9th Stu. Bn. and Mrs. Pite; and Mrs. Jack Nikas, wife of Lt. Col. Jack J. Nikas, a former commander of the 6th Stu. Bn.

The parade was followed by a tour of static displays which had been set up within the battalion area. The displays were designed to depict the life of the officer candidate from his initial day of training until graduation.

Displays included missiles, and various types of vehicles and crew cutters by the student during his training.

The new 'copter can be armed with a variety of weapons. A turret underneath the nose of the craft contains a minigu which can fire 2,000 rounds per minute from its six rotating barrels. Short wings on either side of the fuselage can carry four rocket pods, for a total of as many as 78 rockets.

The 'copter's primary missions are to escort unarmed helicopters and support of ground operations. Its added speed and endurance enables the HueyCobra to react faster and remain longer in the objective area.

Commanding General's Veterans Day Message

On this Veterans Day we salute the individual soldier, both past and present. This national observance honors the American fighting men of all wars who have been willing to stand up for what is right in the face of conflict. These veterans living and dead, serve as an inspiration for those soldiers in Vietnam who continue the struggle for freedom that began in our own land almost two centuries ago.

We now pay our homage at a time in history when we must search diligently for strength through every move and, in turn, draw strength from our resolve.

Let us all be united on this Veterans Day in the firm belief that a Soldier's burden is not nearly as heavy as the weight of oppression.

JOHN M. WRIGHT, JR.
Major General, USA
Commanding

"BUT SARGE—IT KEEPS MY HANDS YOUNG LOOKING..."

Age no longer a factor in straightening teeth

Not too long ago, orthodontic treatment of the protruding teeth was reserved almost strictly for youngsters. But today, thanks to the tremendous advances made in dentistry, age is not a factor in treatment. As a matter of fact, adults in their 30's and 40's or older are undergoing this type of therapy and very successfully at that.

An adult may be treated satisfactorily as long as his teeth, bones and supporting tissues are in good health. Orthodontic treatment has been performed on men and women up to the age of 65. In fact, one grandmother said it was the most exciting thing that had happened to her in many years. She only regretted that she had not had the protruding teeth corrected when she was "a young girl of 50."

As a matter of fact, someone recently remarked that the day may come when there will be as many grandmothers wearing artificial dentures as there are grandmothers using artificial dentures.

The average adult undergoing this type of therapy immediately thinks "I'd feel funny wearing braces at my age." Now, this is not true. However, social attitudes are undergoing drastic changes these days and certainly, appliances on the teeth of adults would be readily acceptable when viewed in the light of the exotic and bizarre behavior pattern in evidence today.

Judge Says

Formal adoption can save many legal complications

Sometimes a couple will rear a relative or step-child but will not bother to adopt the child formally and legally. Such informal arrangements can be very harmful to the child, legally speaking. A child legally adopted by a person or couple usually assumes adopting parent's name and by law becomes the parent's heir just as if he or she were a natural child of that parent.

To adopt a child legally, one must file a petition in an appropriate court, usually this court being in the county where the petitioner resides. Also, in most cases there must be written consent of the child's own parent, 14 years old, or he or she must also agree to the adoption.

The judge must then satisfy himself as to the genuineness of the consent, moral character of the prospective parents and their ability to support the child, the mental and physical condition of all parties in the best interest of the child.

Accident rate on upswing among motorcycle riders

By Julian Marbot

Editor's Note: Motorcycle riding is an increasingly popular sport in the United States. The volume has increased tremendously in the past five years. With the increase of the new cyclists, the hazards of operating a two-wheeled vehicle has also increased. The following is the first of a series of articles pertaining to the operation and safety procedures of the power-driven, two-wheeled "bike."

Motorcycling is fun millions of Americans can testify to that. However, it is dangerous also.

Fatal and non-fatal accidents involving the two wheelers have been increasing at an alarming rate over the past five years. One cause of this great increase can be attributed to the fact that many new Americans have discovered the pleasure of riding the bike for fun and business ventures.

Registration increasing

Take for example, the states of Montana, Alaska, Delaware and Minnesota have increased their registration of motorcycles over 300 per cent. This brings to surface the fact that many new cyclists are inexperienced and uneducated in the field of motorcycle driving. And if you have just bought yourself a new motorcycle, there is nothing so directed to a message is directed to you than just steering the handle in order to drive the vehicle safely. You have to know the machine, its operation with its functions and know the various hazards connected with cycling.

Attitude and Behavior

A few of these points I will try to bring out and describe, but the most important is you. Your attitude and behavior while controlling a machine of this or any other type is the greatest by far of any rule or regulation.

Motorcycling, from a road, can be broken down into several categories. Unfortunately, my knowledge will not cover all of these,

To be an efficient cyclist, you need to know how to dress properly. Not the style of clothing, but safeguards.

The crash helmet is of utmost importance. In fact, most states (including Georgia) require a helmet by law. It is common sense that if an accident occurs, a protective helmet will come in handy. In fact, it may save your life, or you are thrown off the bike, the proper clothing will prevent more serious injuries. Especially the helmet. Over half the injuries received from motorcycle accidents are directed to the head according to a national survey. This is, if you are wearing a helmet, the chance you may sustain a serious injury is greatly reduced.

As suggested, but not required, are gloves for driving. This gives the driver a better grip and lessens the chance of the hand slipping off the controls. It also saves skin in the event you skid and attempt to catch yourself.

Goggles are considered by many as foolish. However, national safety experts think otherwise. Their appearance may not look in the best of taste but when you do a mask in fencing. It is the purpose of the goggles that counts.

When ever the hands are wetted, for whatever the purpose, rinse them with lukewarm water, dry thoroughly, and apply an emollient hand cream or lotion. The emollient should be used at least three times a day.

Housewives should also guard against minor injuries such as cuts and burns, which also render the skin more susceptible to irritation by common household substances.

If, despite preventive measures and emollients, the skin problem persists or becomes progressively worse, the Dermatologist, Martin A. My Hospital, should be made.

Veteran's Day is the time for us all to honor and pay tribute... but will we?

By PFC Mickey Saeed

On June 1, 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed an act of Congress to commemorate the signing on November 11, 1918, of the armistice that brought an end to World War I. On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, veterans the world over are honored for their services. It is a time dedicated to national pride.

Thus, Veterans Day came into being as a more meaningful holiday. Suitable observances are held throughout the nation on this date with the most widely known ceremony taking place in the amphitheater at the Tomb of the Unknown in Arlington National Cemetery on the D.C. Americans everywhere have been urged to participate in observances of this day by the President of the United States. In honor of the day the command of Fort Benning have planned a well-rounded program to pay our respect to those Americans who fought and died in defense of their country.

Boy Scouts from Fort Benning have been canvassing the housing area selling and distributing flag pins. Post engineers have installed bracket pegs at all on-post quarters to post to consider holidays. This year Fort Benning personnel are scheduled to pay tribute to the Veterans of all branches of the United States armed services this Saturday. But, will the personnel of Fort Benning be present for the scheduled ceremony and will the flags fly?

Unwritten Decision

In the past it has become somewhat of an unwritten decision, sometimes it seems even to be the desired objective for some of the soldiers of this post to consider holidays just an extra day to sleep, play golf or write letters home. If this, "decision" holds true again this year, very few men in uniform will even bother to pay tribute or be present for the ceremony.

After nearly half a century of paying tribute, Veterans Day should not be taken with such an air of indifference as it is here at Fort Benning by some, not all, but some of the personnel. A very fine program of observance has been planned and the soldiers of this post should participate to show their appreciation for those who fought before them.

Day of Honor

Surely this is not a day to go fishing or get a few hours of extra sleep. This is a day to honor, a day to recognize, a day to learn the history behind the many wars fought to maintain freedom, a day to take pride in being a soldier, a day to at least fly the flag and be present to observe the Veterans Day ceremonies.

Veterans Day Message Issued To Continental Army Command

On this eleventh day of November, Veterans Day, it is fitting that we of the United States Continental Army Command join with our fellow Americans and cause at the eleventh hour for silent reflection honoring the men who have fought and who have died to preserve our Nation's greatest heritage — freedom.

Freedom is not an idle word; it is an actual, tangible way of life for thousands of people. It is also a responsibility; it is not something gained without struggle and sacrifice.

For this reason, I ask each of you to take this occasion to honor not only our veterans but our present soldiers, sailors, and airmen who fought and are still fighting for the perpetuation of the basic principles of freedom.

Halloween Party Fetes Pre-School Children

On his television special, Charlie Brown decided that nothing could be more exciting than Halloween. Especially exciting, he went on to say, is a Halloween party.

The children at the Fort Benning Pre-kindergarten School, after having a school Halloween party of their own on Tuesday, October 31, would agree with him.

The children, already excited over the very idea of gathering goodies during trick-or-treat excursions on Halloween night, considered the party a special treat.

Star of the party was the Good Witch, the friendly witch who went from room to room to wish each child a gay Halloween and to give out candy. The witch, disguised in black flowing robe, black wig, peaked hat and carrying a straw broom was played by Mrs. David Edson.

In every room, the children's eyes grew wide with astonishment as the Good Witch approached, until one tiny voice ventured to ask, "Are you really a good witch?"

The Kindergarten School is sponsored by the Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning. School chairman Mrs. R. J. Huber and school principal is Mrs. Gregory Brickhouse.

NCO Wives Party Monte Carlo Draws Large Crowd

By Jane Daniels

If someone had been at Fort Benning last weekend looking for fun and gaiety, he could have found most of it Friday at the Monte Carlo party at Crain Hall. A huge attendance was there to join in the fun.

The continental-styled party, sponsored by the Non-commissioned Officers' Wives' Club, was a festival of games, a bazaar, good eating, prizes and picture-taking.

The games, operated by the men in black slacks, black bow ties, white shirts and red vests, offered special interest to those partygoers out to "break the bank."

A bazaar-like souvenir store, the Parisienne Boutique, offered ceramic figurines, glassware, fuzzy stuffed animals, knitted woolsens and household items for sale. First to be sold out were the cutters as the men purchased the lacy, flowered accessories for their wives.

To one side, the club transformed the restaurant into a sidewalk cafe for the guests. All during the party, the party photographer, armed with a polaroid camera, took snapshots of guests at the event.

Prizes were awarded to J. W. Tyler, who won a television set; to Mrs. Charles Spencer, who won a $25 prize; and to Mrs. Charles Wells, who won a $50 prize.

Special guests were Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., the Infantry Center commander, and Col. H. S. Cunningham, the Infantry Center chief of staff and Mrs. Cunningham. Special thanks for party success went to Mrs. Larry Alderman, party chairman, Sgt. Leonard Shaw, military coordinator, and all club members and military members who worked on the party.

53 Capped as Red Cross Workers

In a candlelight chapel service recently 53 women were capped as Red Cross Volunteers. Presiding at the ceremony was Mrs. Jack L. Treadwell, post chairman of volunteers. Following the invocation by Chaplain (Col.) Holland Hope, Mrs. Treadwell introduced guest speaker, Col. H. S. Cunningham, chief of staff of the Infantry Center.

The colonel said, "Nowhere, except perhaps in the clergy, is the wife so important as in the military service. At times she has even fought shoulder to shoulder with her husband, and here, with the Red Cross, she is dedicated to the service of the military community."

He called attention to the volunteer pledge, with its emphasis on loyalty, personal discretion, and conduct, and praised the caliber of Red Cross Volunteers.

Capped Volunteers
Lt. Col. Willis V. Hestley, chief nurse at Martin Army Hospital, and Mrs. Treadwell placed a light blue cap on each volunteer as she knelt briefly on the platform.

Dear Community Service

I am the widow of a military man who was killed in action over two years ago. Since that time my four children and I have been managing to get along on our pension and social security benefits. This month with all four of the children starting back to school I got caught short. We do not have enough money to take us until our pension check arrives. Can you help us?

Caught Short
Dear Caught Short:
Your situation is not unusual. Periodically we talk with other widows in similar situations. We recommend that you come out to our office in Bldg. No. 5 and talk with our representative for the Army Relief Society. The Army Relief Society is designed to assist the dependents of deceased military personnel with financial problems. The Army Relief Society provides a different function than the Army Emergency Relief program. Please contact us—we may be able to help.

Mrs. James Madison, wife of Lt. Col. Madison, deputy chief of the Combat Support Group of The Infantry School Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, is a lady with many and varied talents and a hostess with Alabama charm.

None of her talents are idle. Mrs. Madison is always involved in activities with young people. Now she is the chairman for the Fort Benning Neighborhood No. 3 of Girl Scouts of America, president of the Fort Benning Panhellenic Chapter, fourth grade Sunday School teacher at the Main Post Protestant Sunday School, room mother for the sixth grade at Faith School, and an active member of the Women's Bible Study Group.

Girl Scout's Chairwoman
Perhaps the most time-consuming of these activities is that of being chairman for Fort Benning Girl Scouts. As chairman she heads the planning for 22 troops on post. "We didn't have scouts in my little hometown," she says, "so by being active in Girl Scouting here, I'm enjoying that part of being a kid again."

Fort Benning now has a troop of Senior Girl Scouts, every one of the other troops is filled to capacity, and the scouting calendar of events is spectacularly bursting. Mrs. Madison can't help but be proud.

MRS. J. MADISON
Girl Scout Chairwoman

not help being excited, either, about the great influx of young ideas. The leaders models and even judo experts, all ready and anxious to share their skills with the girls.

Trip to Tampa
A highlight of her scouting activities was a recent trip to Tampa, Fla., as a representative to the Regional Girl Scout Conference. At the four-day conference, she met with other representatives from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, to discuss their activities and to help in planning regional Girl Scout goals such as international camping and national scholarship.

As president of Panhellenic, Mrs. Madison's aims are also for the young people. After being in the Army she saw the need for aid to Army daughters who are going to college. The chapter here helps to procure recommendations for college entrance and sorority acceptance, and frequently holds coffees for senior girls to answer their questions about courses of study, college life, sororities and expenses.

Enjoys Young People
As to why she is so involved with young people, the answer is simple that she enjoys them. It is certainly no burden or obligation.

Benning Visited By Beauty Queen

Fort Benning welcomed a queen for a day recently when Miss Maureen Bassett, "Miss Oregon" and "Miss Travel America," visited the military installation.

Miss Bassett, currently touring the United States in support of the President's "Discover America" program, was at the post as the special guest of Senior Officer Candidate Steven R. Suberland, a member of the 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn. (OC).

The beauty queen made Fort Benning the first stop on her tour of public appearances and speaking engagements in 47 cities.

"See America First" — as "Miss Travel America," she will be telling Americans to "See America first." She also will be telling her audience how to plan a vacation and how to travel with children, as well as telling businessmen how to promote tourism in their area.

Miss Bassett is well qualified to give tips on traveling. She has traveled in all 50 states, has lived in four states, and has been an entertainer with several USO tours to Europe and Hawaii.

The last of the 50 states that she visited, she concedes, was Florida. That visit to Miami is now remembered as one of her most exciting for it was in Miami that she was a contestant in the "Miss Universe Pageant."

Monthly Event Honors Wives

The Combat Support Group officers' wives held their monthly coffee last Thursday in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers' Club.

Chatty 'Beauty Tips' Offered By Doctor of Year 1100

By Louise Demaschewski

Did you ever wonder why your "beauty tips" were offered to the fair damsels of the 11th century? Well, here is something to think about.

Whether the above "tips" work or not, they are fun to read about, but here is a "beauty tip" that does work.

It was given to me by a cosmetician who had extremely dry skin, she stated that nothing helped her as much as a "Vaseline Facial" and gals it is so inexpensive.

To keep skin, she prescribed bathing in sea water; to keep your gums healthy, rinse them with lukewarm wine (whether or not to swallow, was left up to the individual).

You might want to try this next one when you are about to arrive. Dame Troie felt that a woman who wore her husband's socks, while she cleaned the nearest bell tower and encircled the biggest bell with his wife's belt while smooth.

LESSONS LEARNED in VIETNAM

Search and Clear, Destroy: The basic difference between a search mission and the movement to contact mission is the time allotted. Proper execution of the search mission requires adequate time, while the latter is concerned with contact and pursuit and, therefore, is conducted quite rapidly.

A common example presents itself many times. A unit receives fire from a village or inhabited area. Upon closing on the village, it is found that the enemy has fled. Now the question confronts the leader whether to pursue or to search the village.

In a counter-insurgency environment to gain and maintain contact is the goal and thus the unit should pursue. If there is reason to suspect that the village may contain supplies, weapons, or intelligence data, a unit may elect to leave a group in the village to deny it to the enemy while the remainder offers pursuit.

Any such separation of forces should not be made over a great distance unless each group is strong enough to sustain itself. Remember here too that over-reaction is dangerous.

The systematic and thorough search of a village is rarely conducted. Time limitations or a situation requiring pursuit is often the cause. If the mission dictates a search, time must be allocated to make the search thorough.

The mine detector is excellent in village searching to locate caches and hidden weapons in addition to its primary role.

The sniper or harasser will often hide his weapon in a nearby rice paddy, a well, or a dung heap after initiating the action. He then carries on normal activity in the presence of troops. Unless located the weapon will be cleaned and used again.

BIG PAUL! GUARDS OC MESS HALL Students Give Idea of Bunyan's Size

20-Foot-Tall 'Candidate' Now in OC Ranks Here

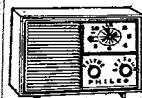

Paul Bunyan, that mythical and black combat boots and folk hero of lumberjacking fame, has become a senior officer candidate here.

But this Paul Bunyan is a 20-foot tall model built of fiberglass and guards the mess hall at the 8th St. Stu. Bn. of The Student Brigade.

The model, on loan from a local tire company, was put up last week by the men of the company to mark their senior status and entrance into the final phase of the Infantry Officer Candidate Course.

Bunyan, kept standing by six 500lb. test lines, is dressed in traditional Army green matter... he's bigger than we are you know." Emerson also said that but it's doubtful that salute would be returned.

Future Noncoms Replace OCs as Battalion Closes.

The 8th Co. (OC), 8th Stu. Bn. recently held its last command retreat before converting to the Non Commissioned Officers Candidate Course. This activity marked the closing of the 8th Stu. Bn. (OC), commanded by Lt. Col. Hilton D. Payne.

The 8th Co. commanded by Capt. Theodore McDonald III was the first OC company activated in the 8th Bn. in July 1966 and was the last OC Class in cycle upon the activation of the NOOC program in October.

Over 1800 new second lieutenants have been commissioned during the first year of operation. Now the battalion mission is to train selected enlisted men to become fire team and squad leaders through a 12-week course modified after the OCS concept.

West Point Scouts Visit Scout Dogs

Twenty-five Columbus Girl Scouts combined with Cub Scouts from West Point, Ga., visited the scout dogs here recently.

At the detachment the young scouts received a briefing from Lt. Teddy D. Hampton, executive officer. He explained the purpose of scout dog training, and told the group that the primary purpose of the detachment is to train the dogs for Vietnam. The lieutenant also told the group that the dogs used are regular "civilian-type" dogs. He said that the dogs are German Shepherds, just like they might have at home.

After the briefing, there was a demonstration of the basic principles of scout dog training. Two dogs, Benny and Sport, were used to demonstrate "leadership drills" in which they followed silent and verbal commands.

The dogs then went through an obstacle course showing their ability to overcome the various obstacles that might be encountered in Vietnam. The canine scouts ran up and down ladders, and crawled through pipes and other devices.

Following the drills the scouts toured the dog kennel.

Promotion OK

The Department of The Army has announced that promotion to grade E7 will no longer be prohibited by the lack of a favorable National Agency Check.

Effective immediately, commanders having promotion authority are authorized to promote individuals to grade E-7 if candidates can qualify for an Interim Security Clearance and if a request for a NAC has been submitted. A completed National Agency Check is still required for promotion to E-8 and E-9.

Oliver for serving with the 8th Special Forces Gp. in Vietnam. The Bronze Star was presented to OC Gregorio R. Machado for meritorious service with the 173rd Abn. Bde. in Vietnam.

A special letter of Commendation was presented to Capt. McDonald, by Payne recognizing the superior academic performance of the 8th Co. when they set a new Infantry School record for examination scores on the Intelligence and counterintelligence tests.

"I encourage each of you to uphold the standards you have set thus far," Payne told the assembled candidates, "and to work hard for your new company. Remember to carry the spirit of leadership and academic excellence with you throughout your military career."

The 8th Co. will move to the 94th Co. to make way for 200 arriving NOOC Candidates in early November. Presently the 8th St. Bn. has four operating NOOC companies and plans to graduate over 3000 qualified junior noncommissioned officers in the coming year.

Batjac's Steve Weaver in Action During 'Green Beret' Filming Session

Cameraman Captures Scenes for Movie's Promotion

With cameras dangling from each shoulder and in front of him, Steve Weaver moves behind "The Green Berets" scenes looking for new angles, shots and ideas. Weaver, a free lance photographer whose home base is in southern Florida, is responsible for capturing the action of the movie in still form. He handles one of the most important parts of the motion picture business—promotion. His photographs will be blown up to be used on the fronts of movie theaters around the country to induce curious movie-goers inside the house. They will also be used for press kits to be sent to different newspapers and magazines for publicity. Some of his shots are used on the set to help set designers re-create a scene for re-shooting.

Since the filming began here, Weaver has taken about 200 photographs a day capturing the action on and off the set. "I guess I've taken

JOE KRAMER (L) OF BATJAC; MERVYN LEROY OF WARNER BROS. Pair Praises Reception Given Film Company Here

TWO MOVIEMAKERS LAUD COOPERATION

Fort Benning's part in the first feature-length motion picture on the war in Vietnam will soon be played out. After two and a half months of filming, "The Green Berets" will wind-up shooting here soon.

Mervyn Leroy, a director of the film, had only one complaint about the Georgia background. The California native said, "I don't like the cold weather." Leroy came to Benning as a favor to John Wayne. "I came down here to help Duke," he said. "Everybody at Fort Benning was wonderful," he concluded.

Joe Kramer, assistant director, also was pleased with the cooperation Batjac, the company producing the film, has received. "We've had wonderful cooperation all the way," he said. "And, we have developed a lot of friendships."

Kramer, who has known Wayne since 1948, began his motion picture business as an electrician. After World War II, he worked his way into production.

Before coming to work on "The Green Berets," he was assistant studio production manager.

Pictures have been his business for nearly 30 years. He was a staff photographer for the Miami Herald for 15 years.

With a degree in photography and a little experience in the field, Weaver was offered a direct commission as a combat photographer during WWII. He flew missions for the Army over Sicily, North Africa and Italy.

What are his plans after the "The Green Berets" filming? "I just plan to spend some time at home and relax," he said.

Eufaula Citizens Pay Visit To Benning Aviation Units

BY BILL HADWIN

A group of two dozen citizens from Eufaula, Ala., were here last week to visit aviation units recently adopted by the east Alabama city.

As guests of the 271st Avn. Co., and the 261st Trans. Det., the men and women who made the trip were given an orientation of the post, and spent most of their time with-in the area of the units.

The Eufaulans were brought to Fort Benning in a large CH-47B (Chinook) helicopter, one of the tandem rotor aircraft with which the two units function.

The helicopter was piloted by Maj. John P. Obermire, commanding officer of the 271st. After landing on York Field, the guests were given a briefing at Infantry Hall on the Infantry Center and School. The official welcome was made by Col. J. Y. Hammack, 10th Avn. Gp.

The visitors then observed the airborne training, followed by a tour of Infantry Hall. The group was greeted for welcome messages by the 271st Avn. Co. mess.

After lunch the men and women went on a tour of the training and maintenance activities of the units. In the building which houses the company operations, the serving line just as the men of the 271st company do, each of these areas was given by key members. The touring party then moved by bus to Lawson Army Airfield for a look at the company operations, and as the company operations, the by Fort Benning's commanding general, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr. Late in the afternoon the party returned to Eufaula. Arrangements have been made for the 271st to fly three of their helicopters to Eufaula for display on Veterans' Day, November 11.

Unfamiliar Tone in Phones Caused by New System

The unfamiliar sound completely transistorized, is more heard over Fort Benning tele-compact and space-saving phone lines these days is and more maintenance-free created by new ringing, tone than his bulky predecessor. and power equipment recent-It promises to offer better service by elimination of line noise.

Installation of the equipment was done by inside plant employees of the Telephone Branch of the Signal Service Division. "Normally such installation would be accomplished under contract or by an installer team from Strategic Communications Command, Washington, D. C.," said J. R. Roswell, in-charge foreman, Telephone Branch.

"With installation done by station employees," he said, "a substantial amount of money was saved." Boswell explained that his men were able to accomplish the difficult installation and cut-over of telephone service with only slight interruptions of service.

In Full Operation
The new equipment, which replaces antiquated equipment for which spare parts were no longer available, is in full operation in the Main Post and Sand Hill telephone exchanges. "In the not too distant future," Boswell said, "we hope to have this type of equipment installed in all four telephone exchanges."

This new system will be used, in part, to convert AC power to DC power for the 48-volt system on which the telephone equipment operates. It also provides dial and busy tones and ringing current. The new power panel and ringing and tone bay in the Sand Hill Exchange was installed at a cost of approximately $14,000, with a tripled capacity for ringing set when dealing with new type services, such as direct distance dialing (DDD), because of its compatibility with commercial telephone system equipment.

"Telephone Branch, Signal Service Division, is constantly striving to obtain the best equipment possible in an effort to aid in the overall program of offering the finest service to the 176,000 local telephone subscribers who use the Fort Benning Telephone System," concluded Boswell.

When asked about problems with the new equipment, Foreman Boswell readily admitted that in any new installation of this type, there are always some bugs. He said that his men are rapidly eliminating these along with certain strange sounds which also have occurred in several lines in recent days.

The Dial Central Office foreman added that the new equipment will be a great as-

CAN CHIROPRACTIC REALLY HELP BACK PROBLEMS!

It is considered the most effective treatment for the majority of back and neck conditions and related malfunctioning of body organs due to impinged nerves! The chiropractic profession has been conducting research studies on spinal and related subjects on the human body, monkeys, rabbits and most everything with a spinal column. Recently one such study has been color filmed and taped which shows live rabbits with different vertebra twisted out of place impinging specific nerve leading to body organs. In one study the nerves to the heart were impinged and the rabbits developed functional heart disturbances just like man does; when the vertebra were replaced and the nerves released from pressure the heart functioned normally again. When the procedure was utilized on the stomach nerves the rabbits developed gas, gastritis and other disorders of the stomach. When the vertebra were replaced and the impinged nerves freed from spinal pressure the stomach healed and normal functioning resumed. These studies have indicated that Chiropractic care is most effective in spinal and muscular conditions and in many cases far superior to Chemotherapy in related nerve and body organ disorders.

The labor is not begrudged by any member of the scores of men and women who are working as performers, prop and set designers, lighting technicians, costume designers and directors.

What makes people donate literally hundreds of hours of hard work to a cause? In this case, it's because of enthusiasm for giving the Columbus-Phoenix City-Fort Benning area a beautiful production of a world famous ballet.

For two of the people who are working behind the scenes, Mrs. William H. Gavan and Spec. 4 David Bassett, the works is gladly given in order to achieve perfection in the production.

Mrs. Gavan, is becoming an expert "scrounger" as she recently began ballet herself by taking the Fort Benning School of Dance adult lessons, says that her work as the chairman of stage hand properties was a natural outgrowth of her new found interest in ballet and her long standing interest in the staging of productions.

"In both high school and college I have always done a lot of backstage work for theater productions. I've always liked the backstage work and from a height of eight feet to now that I can lie it all in with ballet, I'm even more enthusiastic about the "Nutcracker" production," she said.

Stage Technician One of the people who has had a great part in turning the NBC television studios in Hollywood into a stage set, worked with Bob Hope on an hour-long special before coming into the Army in 1952. He was later serving as an Infantryman in Vietnam, he was again called on to meet and work with the famous comedian on his 1966 Christmas show there.

As a soldier who puts his "all" into the work as stage technician, he devotes his talents to the "Nutcracker" production because he truly enjoys the work.

Builds Clock A major project of his in staging the ballet is the building of a huge grandfather clock, complete with wings that magically appear during the scene in which a little girl's world of love and dreams all come alive.

He has also built the great fans and masks that will form the backdrops for the production. Another project is the building of a cannon, a life-like replica built of wood, iron, and tin.

Quite amazingly the big gun actually shoots... and does during a battle scene with the wicked Rat King.

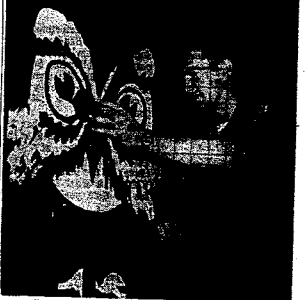

As a boy, Bassett worked with his father as a carpenter and first became interested in stage carpentry as a junior and senior high school. Luckily, his talents have been discovered at Fort Benning and put to great use for the ballet staging.

Splendid Display Just from seeing the forming of the backdrops and from catching the gleam of zeal in each worker's eyes, one can already tell that this year's ballet will be a splendid display of talents.

The ballet is to be presented in Marshall Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. and at 8:30 p.m. on December 9, and at 2:30 p.m. on December 10.

The young-at-heart of all ages can assure themselves a seat for the production by buying tickets at the Post Exchange area at Fort Benning and in the civic booth at Columbus Square.

All proceeds will be used to support post charities and worthwhile projects.

Archery Range is Opened Here

Officials of the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club officially opened the new Charlotte Archery Club and Range located on First Division Road about a quarter mile south of Highway 27 recently.

Membership in the Rod and Gun Club is open to active and retired military personnel and Department of the Army civilians. Other civilians may hold a membership limited to use of the Snack Bar and Archery Club facilities.

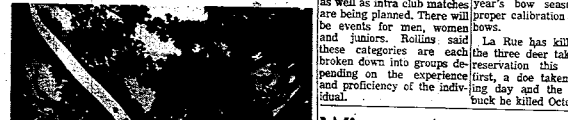

The new archery range consists of a 10 point target range with firing positions from 15 to 70 yards and two half mile field ranges with 14 firing positions each. Targets are silhouettes of various types of game found in this area.

According to S. Sgt. Robbins, manager of the range, the purpose of the new club is to promote interest in archery. Interest in club matches are being planned. There will be events for men, women and juniors.

Robbins said these categories are broken down into groups depending on the experience and proficiency of the individual.

S. Sgt. Clarence La Rue, a local high school ROTC instructor and avid bow hunter, pointed out that the target range will also be useful to hunters in calibrating their hunting bows. La Rue believes that one of the reasons a few deer have been taken on the reservation during this year's bow season is improper calibration of hunting bows.

La Rue has killed two of these three deer taken on the reservation this year, the first, a doe taken on opening day and the second, a buck he killed October 29.

Local Gunner Snares First In Trap Meet

Two Army men from the U. S. Army International Trap Team dominated the two-day Clay Pigeon Match in Montreal, Canada, last week.

The matches fired in cold windy and rainy weather found Spec. 4 Gene Lumsden and Spec. 4 Edward Leavendy of the Marksmanship Training Unit placing first and second in the aggregate, respectively.

Lumsden won the championship by killing 186 birds in a possible 200 while Leavendy fired a 188 for second.

During the first day of the match, teammates Lumsden and Leavendy and Sgt. James Beck tied with 95 kills out of 100 for first place honors.

The second day Lumsden's 88 members were Beck and Sgt. Stephen Thole who both fired 178.

Attention Hunters

Hunters are cautioned that Army maneuvers are being conducted continuously in Stewart and Quitman Counties west of Highway 27 and south of Egan's Creek of Egan's Creek.

Vietnam oriented training in guerrilla and counter-guerrilla tactics will be conducted by the Ranger Training Command.

Personnel will be moving in small groups throughout the wooded areas.

Hunters are requested to exercise extreme caution. Serious accidents will be prevented if hunters will positively identify game before firing.

The Observer

— by Larry Mahoney —

It seems to be a little premature, but the first symptoms of a malady called bowl fever are cropping up across the nation, intrigued by an unlikely football year. The New Year's Day battles, set in a handful of cities in the sunshine belt, seem to be attracting the kind of attention once reserved for the World Series. Speculation starts early on a thing like this, and anyone reading last Sunday's sports pages saw the first of it.

So, as things stand now, who'll it be in Miami's Orange Bowl, Pasadena's Rose Bowl, the Sugar Bowl of New Orleans, Jacksonville's Gator Bowl, and the three Texas showdowns — the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Bluebonnet at Houston, and the Sun Bowl at El Paso?

Nobody knows for sure yet, of course, but it's interesting to think about.

As usual, the Rose Bowl selections are clouded by a peculiar Big Ten Conference rule that bans the same team from playing two years in a row at Pasadena. This year when Michigan State was the Midwest league's best, runner-up Purdue got the nod to meet and beat Southern Cal, 14-13. This season, the same thing will keep the Rollermakers away from the coast, and look for either Minnesota or Indiana to make the trip. The Far West should be either No. 1-ranked USC or once-tied UCLA, depending on how it comes out in Los Angeles November 18.

There is almost always a disproportionate number of Southeastern Conference teams in the post-season spectaculars. Two major reasons account for it, first the quality of the Deep South giants and, secondly, the factor of regional loyalty that demands a Southern team for the audiences at the bottom of Dixie.

This season, however, the real glamor teams of the South with the exception of loaded Tennessee, play their ball outside of the SEC. I'm thinking of unbeaten North Carolina State of the Atlantic Coast Conference, and a pair of independents from Florida, resurgent Miami and FSU, with as lethal an offense as there is in the land.

The Orange Bowl selection committee couldn't do better than pitting The Big Orange of Tennessee against NC State's lean and mean Wolfpack. They can call it the game that decides the championship of the South.

It looks like a good choice for the Gator Bowl, too. Look at it this way. State rivals Miami and FSU could be matched because this is the first of many years when won't see the two tear at each other during the regular season. Or, why not a repeat of the 1964 game between the Seminoles and Oklahoma, the team that appears to be the best of the Big Eight.

Way down in New Orleans, the Sugar Bowl always has a representative of the Cotton South. One of Birmingham's December 2 intrastate — Alabama or Auburn. The opponents will come out of the West with Houston, Oklahoma, Texas or Nebraska facing whichever set of Alabamians it is.

The Cotton Bowl, while not one of the big three, is usually worth watching. At least one Texas team, either the Longhorns or the Cougars will be strongly sought. Out of state interest will be provided by a Deep South power, likely one of the previously mentioned.

Last and, to be honest about it, least, are the Sun and Bluebonnet pairings. Wyoming's Cowboys, unbeaten and nationally ranked, should be a popular repeat out in El Paso, where they put Florida State down 28-20 last year. Wyoming-Colorado would be intriguing. The Bluebonnet people are looking strongly, of course, at the powers of the Southwest and will doubtlessly get a "Yes, thank you" from either Ole Miss or LSU if they ask.

Who will it be? That's like asking, at this stage of the game, if it will be Nixon or Kennedy, Reagan or Rockefeller, Gavin, Lindsay or Percy. Speculation is fun, but don't take it too seriously.

Gen. Wright Cuts Ribbon At New Lanes

Maj. Gen. John M. Wright, Infantry Center commander, snipped a ribbon and opened the new 12-lane bowling alley at Kelley Hill recently.

After the ribbon cutting at the front entrance, Gen. Wright addressed the spectators and guests expressing the hope that the new bowling center would be used by all.

Col. J. L. Treadwell, commander of the 197th Inf. Bde., Col. James W. Haley, director of personnel at the Infantry School, and Sgt. Maj. John B. Bricciorie, sergeant major of the 197th Inf. Bde., rolled the first balls down the new lanes.

Professional bowler Jim Schroeder, representing the AMP bowling staff, gave an exhibition of his talents and showed the crowd some of the fine points of the game.

QUESTION:
How can Schwobilt sell such good clothes so inexpensively?

ANSWER:
Because Schwobilt sells the clothes they make directly to you!

Middlemen are middlemen . . .

because they don't make what they sell. They buy it from a manufacturer, raise the price, and sell it to the customer at a profit.

We at Schwobilt make our own clothes. No middleman here; we sell directly to you in our own stores. What the middleman would make, you save. Get better-made Schwobilt Clothes — and more of them — at prices made possible only because we cut out the middleman!

With the numerous recent activities of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club (FBSPC), many people have been called to find out more about sport parachuting. This article will be the first of a regular column to appear in "THE BAYONET." Our purpose is to keep the people of the Fort Benning area informed of our club activities and to give some background to sport parachuting, more commonly known as skydiving.

There are three types of sport jumping done at Fort Benning, demonstration, competition and just plain "fun-jumping." An example of a demonstration was a performance last week put on for the 6th St. Bu. by OCS Robert Lanham and Timothy Harris, S.Sgt. Richard Vest, S.Sgt. Steve Biehart and Sp4 S. Curtis Tracy. These five club members jumped from a U-6 "Beaver" aircraft at 8000 feet and fell through space for more than 30 seconds before deploying their parachutes. During this half a minute of free-fall, they were able to maneuver their bodies horizontally, thus enabling them to link together with their hands. By moving arms and legs a parachutist may vary his rate of descent between 120 and 200 miles per hour. He is also able to travel one foot horizontally for every two feet vertically.

Competition jumping is an international sport. Each year the United States sends a team to meet in Europe. On a more local level military and civilian clubs in the Southeastern United States have a competitive conference. A skydiving meet consists of two major events, accuracy and style. The style event is done prior to the parachute opening. The contestant does a series of turns and loops while in free-fall, all of which are timed. The accuracy event is performed after the parachute opens. The competitor steers his highly maneuverable canopies towards a six-inch diameter target on the ground. An actual hit on the target, or "disc," is called a "dead center."

The final type, "fun-jumping," is what most club members do on weekends. The parachutists do whatever they please within safety regulations. Last weekend Sp4 Linda Stewart jumped dressed as a witch, and Lt. Larry Spencer and OCS Bobby Lanham passed a spectator's shoe while free-falling.

The FBSPC is open to all military personnel, male or female. No experience is necessary to join, nor is being airborne qualified a prerequisite. The public is invited to watch the jumps on most Saturday and Sunday afternoons at Dekkar Air Strip next to Fryar Drop Zone. For directions call the clubhouse at 945-4847.

Lois Sutton Nabs Elebash Trophy

Lois Sutton defeated Lorene Pearce in the finals of the annual Ladies Interclub Golf Tournament last Friday at the Columbus Country Club and was awarded the traditional Elebash Trophy. Mrs. Sutton had earlier won the tournament medal honors, winning over Ella Kirvin in a playoff after each had fired 87 on the first day. In the special events Mrs. Sutton was closest to the hole on number nine and Louise Snyder was closest on number 16. Mrs. Snyder also won the 18 hole putting contest while Ann Winsom won the nine hole contest. In the losers tournament, Ruby Willett won the 18 hole prize and Mary Lou Cundiff the nine hole division. Other flight winners, runner-up and consolation voters included: First Flight — Sequa Wood, Betty Britton and Loisaine Snyder.

Indy Race Driver Was First to Use Rear View Mirror

The first rear view mirror is believed to have been used at the first Indianapolis 500 race in 1911. Ray Harroun, famed racing driver of the era and winner of the first "500," installed the mirror directly over the dashboard of his Marmon "Wasp" racer. The mirror served a dual purpose in the race and was a major factor in Harroun's victory. It enabled Harroun to drive alone, eliminating the weight disadvantage of an observer-mechanic, and gave him a full view of any rivals threatening to overtake him.

Reception Point Captures Trophy In ATC Football

By PFC George O. Hansen
A fourth-quarter touchdown pass to Johnny Moore gave the Reception Station Team a six-point edge over Hq. Co. Team No. 1, and the championship trophy in the second and final playoff game in the Trining Center Touch Football League. The victory was the second in a row for Reception Station, having won the first contest, 4-0. Championship and runner-up trophies were presented to the team captains by Col. Melicio Montecarlo, Training Center deputy commander, in ceremonies following the game. In the first quarter Team No. 1 scored on a long pass to Frank Loeffler following an interception by Russ Davis. Reception Station's Johnny Moore ran back the following kickoff to knot the score at 6-6. With less than a minute left in the first half, Team No. 1's quarterback, Wayne Stacey, hit Timmy Floyd for a go-ahead touchdown. Dave Warren snagged the ball over the center for an additional two points. Not to be outdone, the Reception Station Team scored on a short pass from David Bovio to Gary Robbins. A pass to Johnny Moore evened the score at 14-14 as the first half ended. Defense was the key word in the third quarter with both teams unable to reach the end zone. Moore's fourth quarter touchdown pushed the Reception Station Team ahead, 20-14, to give them the victory.

TWINS EARN JUMP WINGS

Identical twins are remaining together for their military service in at least one instance, which covers duty at several posts.
Second lieutenants Don and Dan Outland, natives of Memphis, Tenn., entered the Army simultaneously, went through basic training in the same company, and remained together when they attended OCS at Fort Benning, Va., and when both volunteered for airborne training. They came together to Fort Benning where they both successfully completed their parachute training, each receiving their wings the following day. According to Dan it was a long night Wednesday back in the BOQ with brother Dan tensing his final jump while brother Dan was forced to wait until the next day.
Don was waiting on the drop zone when Dan made the final jump, and the twins accompanied each other off the drop zone to receive their wings.

Reduced Rates For Bus Travel In West Limited

Reference is made to the following paragraph of DOD Fact Sheet 44, entitled "Reduced Fares for Military Air Travelers."
"Most bus lines offer military leave fares between major cities which are generally 10 to 25 percent lower than regular fares. Servicemen must be in uniform and must have proper leave or pass authorization, or travel orders. DD Form 1386 is not needed."
After the fact sheet was published, most bus lines either discontinued the reduced fares policy or curtailed the number of points between which the reduced fares are available.

Hueys Arrive, Strengthen Support Role in Kentucky

By Spec. 4 Howard Gaylor
The sky over Fort Campbell, Ky., pulsed with the sound of beating rotor blades as 16 UH-1D Huey helicopters arrived from Fort Benning. The arrival of the Huey aircraft was to strengthen the support that the 10th Aviation Group has been giving the 101st Air Div. throughout their training exercises.
The 10th Avn. Gr.'s mission of training the 101st Air Div. began their training in air-mobility tactics on Oct. 22. The Huey aircraft were sent to aid in the training of the division's artillery batteries.
The role of the Chinooks was to provide air mobility to the unit's engineers and crews. The "cannoners" of the 101st received their training when they participated in the displacement and movement of the artillery pieces provided by the Chinooks.
With the arrival of the Huey aircraft the training angle shifted from big guns to the individual soldiers as the Huey units of the 101st began their training in air-mobility assaults.
The Hueys were sent as a task force from the 4th Avn. Bn. under the command of Maj. Carl O. Johnson. He had the responsibility of coordinating all the flight missions and assuring that the ten aircraft from the 182nd Avn. Co. and the six from the 181st Avn. Co. were kept in top operating condition at all times.
The maintenance end of the mission was supported by the 690th Trans. Co. which supplied two field maintenance vans. Due to the heavy demands for air support during day operations, the maintenance men worked throughout the night to keep the "choppers" flying.
The present training program is instructing the men in safety points that must be followed in order to insure

Scouts to Attend Congress Here

Next weekend Fort Benning will see some 150 Explorers from the Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America, visit here for their annual congress. These Scouts represent the 25 Explorer posts active in the Chattahoochee Council area, which includes 14 neighboring counties in Georgia and Alabama.

During the course of their visit the Explorers will hold elections for officers of their congress. The elections will be preceded by a nomination meeting and by a period of pre-election campaign speeches.

In addition to conducting their own congress affairs, the Explorers will first observe a weapons firing demonstration and will participate in the Army's new BB Gun "Quick Kill" course presented by the Weapons Department, USAIS.

This will be followed by a demonstration of parachute training presented by the Airborne Department. Then the 19th Inf. Bde. will take over.

Mess Attendant Jobs Open Here

Jobs are open at Fort Benning for mess attendants to perform kitchen cleaning tasks and assist in preparing food for cooking.

Applicants for the position must have had enough training and experience to be trusted to perform tasks on their own initiative, subject to inspection by a supervisor.

Mess attendants will be paid at the rate of $1.43 per hour and will receive benefits such as annual leave and sick leave.

Non veterans will be considered for the positions after efforts to fill the vacancies with veterans, who have a preference by law.

CG Commends All

It is with great pleasure and satisfaction that I commend the military and civilian personnel of this command for their outstanding performance during the visit of the President of the United States on November 18.

Working under a handicap of extremely short notice, you put forth a professional effort, placing loyalty ahead of personal comfort and convenience. I personally observed many of you working long hours late the night and early morning to insure the success of what will be a memorable day in the pages of Fort Benning's history.

Because of your efforts, our distinguished visitors took away with them a picture of Fort Benning that will be a source of pride for years to come.

You have shown my sincere appreciation and esteem for a truly outstanding performance.

President Honors 14 War Vets

For 25 Fort Benning soldiers, Friday, Nov. 10, 1967, will be a date long remembered. The men, all veterans of Vietnam combat, receive a rare distinction that day. For 14 of them, the memory will be like this: The President of the United States, their commander-in-chief, a big man with silver hair and in a blue suit pinning the nation's third highest medal for bravery in battle on their chests.

For the 11 others, recollections will be of this: The Army's chief of staff, a four-star general, presenting them with a Distinguished Flying Cross, a Bronze Star, or a Purple Heart.

On the green turf of Doughboy Stadium, President Lyndon B. Johnson marched down a rank of 14 soldiers, pausing briefly but unburied in front of each to present the Silver Star, wands of congratulation and a handshake.

Those Decorated

These men and the Fort Benning units they now belong to were:

Chief Exec Has Praise For 'Queen'

By Al Sperry

The Queen of Battle finished straightening up this week and went back to her routine chores at the Home of the Infantry after having been momentarily diverted while entertaining a guest, her Commander-in-Chief, the President of the United States, Lyndon Baines Johnson.

No one could blame her if there appeared to be even greater dignity in her step and if her proud head was just a little bit higher.

The Chief Executive had told the world, from that platform at Doughboy Stadium, "Fort Benning is a cradle, a college and a crossroads. But it is more than that. Benning is a family."

He began his Veterans Day weekend tour of military posts at Fort Benning because, "Here is where it starts . . ." He cited the alumni of Fort Benning, the

Col. Herbert E. He added that our most recent veterans remind us that those who protest in the name of civil rights or under some other "cloak of conscience," choose to do so by violence, and destruction, there by, in fact, encroaching upon the civil rights of others.

paratroopers, the Rangers, the basic trainees, the officer candidate graduates, combat infantrymen from back private to career officer and said, "It is here that so many dreams of freedom are refreshed. Here, in this vast arsenal of war, soldier and family devote life and honor to ending war."

President Johnson paid tribute to the service families who have a chair at the hearthside which never will be filled. He said, "Chief eyes of widows and children show it. The eyes of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, know it."

The city of Columbus, with which Fort Benning shares such a close affinity for so many reasons, also basked in the President's spotlight. Speaking of the military families that have become part of Columbus and the neighboring areas, he said, "... the people here walk proud and tall. You can feel the warmth of pride that binds them. You are a community of courage. You are a family of patriots. He was gone as suddenly as he came. And yet that short visit touched so many, from the Ranger and neophyte paratrooper who anxiously found themselves under the scrutiny of a man they never hoped to see, to the Vietnam hero whose decoration took in added meaning because it was presented by the President to the schoolboy who had another reason for not wishing his hands to be the President of the United States.

But, as stated at the beginning of the ceremony, Gen. Norton began his career as a jumper here at Fort Benning in 1943 when he received airborne training and was awarded his parachute badge.

Gen. Norton Plans Visit Next Week

Maj. Gen. John Norton, a former assistant commander of the Infantry School, and a former commanding general of the 1st Cav. Div., will visit Fort Benning next week.

Gen. Norton will arrive Tuesday to address advanced career officer classes and will depart following his speech.

Gen. Norton is presently assigned as commanding general of the United States Army Aviation Materiel Command, a position which he assumed following his duty as commanding general of the 1st Cav. Div. in Vietnam.

A former student of the Infantry School from late 1942 to early 1943, he returned to Fort Benning in May 1963 to become the assistant commander of the Infantry School, a position which he held until he began a series of assignments in Vietnam in April 1965.

Norton began his career as a jumper here at Fort Benning in 1943 when he received airborne training and was awarded his parachute badge.

ing, the Queen of Belette to day is even more grand. And the city of Columbus must share in that pride; for Columbus is really the Mother of the Infantry.

All of these soldiers wore the patches of combat units now in Vietnam, including the 1st Cav. Div. which was ordered from Fort Benning to the Asian war by a historic order from the President who was here to honor his veterans on this Friday over two years later.

Later in the day, after Air Force One had roared off over Alabama, headed for California and the Marine Corps Base that was the President's second stop on a whirlwind tour of military bases, 11 more Fort Benning soldiers gathered to be decorated for valor in Vietnam.

They came to Infantry Hall, to the offices of Fort Benning's commanding general, where Gen. Zevlow E. Johnson, the ranking general officer in their Army, presented the medals.

Receiving a Silver Star there was Capt. Hamor R. Hanson, of the Ranger Dept. Distinguished Flying Crosses were presented to three men from the 10th Avn. Gp., Capt. William R. Covington, CWO Clarence E. Gabbard, and Spec. 4 Michael L. Phillips.

Bronze Stars were pinned to the tunics of P. Sgt. Roy Worley, P. Sgt. James W. Bonds, S. Sgt. Lorraine White and Sgt. Bobby E. Clayton, all of the 41st Co., 4th Stu. Bn. (Abn.), TSB; and S. Sgt. Willie E. Green, HQ Co., 1st Bn., CTC.

Receiving Purple Hearts were Spec. 4 Daniel P. Berni and Spec. 4 Jose E. Correa, both of the 197th Inf. Bde.

GOOD EXCHANGE Series H Savings Bonds may be obtained in exchange for Series E Bonds, when current income is wanted. That's good to remember your retirement time comes.

A master parachutist, Gen. Norton began his career as a jumper here at Fort Benning in 1943 when he received airborne training and was awarded his parachute badge.

Benning will long remember President Johnson's visit

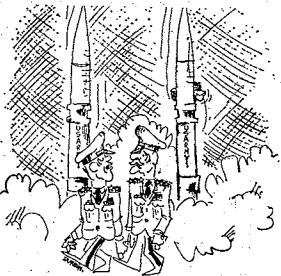

Veteran's Day, 1967, is a day never to be forgotten by the more than 50,000 members of the Benning family. The President's visit to the whole story of the behind the scenes effort by the Military Police, the troop commands, transportation and the way who was connected in any way with the visit will probably never be told in full.

It was fitting that the President chose Fort Benning to begin his trip. For while the Army's story may rest in Washington, its heart is surely here. The school children will never forget that day even if they should happen to rise to the office of the presidency. Nor will the 14 recipients of the Silver Star.

There is something electric about the President, regardless of the man in office at the particular time. Regardless of personal politics, it is something to see and hear the President on the same field or on the same street with you. President Johnson also gained by the trip, his first as President to Benning. He got to see first hand the families of the soldiers in Vietnam and in exchange the families found that ultimately their husbands, fathers and sons are led by a man instead of a faceless DA.

One unfortunate happening of the past weekend was that the Secretary of Defense and the Chief of Staff for the Army were also on post and scarcely drew any notice. On another day with lesser figures present, either would probably have caused as much furor as the President did. In all it was a great Day weekend and the people at Benning, along with those on the other bases visited, did a great job in making it possible.—Bayonet.

Dental treatment can be done on patients with heart trouble

Q. My dad had a heart attack a year ago. He needs to have some dental work done but is afraid that it will cause another attack. Is there some way that this can be done safely?

A. Many individuals survive acute heart attacks and continue to live long useful lives. With proper therapy and well regulated activity as prescribed by competent physicians, the heart patient can lead a fairly active existence. Dental treatment, if required, can usually be accomplished without any serious complications.

The patient's attending physician should be consulted prior to initiation of treatment. The physician may prescribe certain rest or tranquilizing drugs which will calm the patient and reduce his anxiety, if any. Special local anesthetics are available which facilitate treatment.

Surgeon Says

Cancer is curable illness if detected in early stages

No age is free from cancer, and certain forms of it, notably leukemia, are most often found in young children. Cancer takes the lives of children as well as adults and the same vigilance should be exercised. Heart disease remains the number one cause of death today, however, cancer is the number two killer.

They may be detected and removed in their early stages. 1. Any sore that does not heal. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 4. Any change in a wart or mole. 5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 6. Persistent hoarseness or cough. 7. Any change in normal bowel habits.

Population increases, the growing number of older people, improved diagnosis, better reporting of deaths and other factors contribute to the growing cancer statistics. Alarming as they may appear, cancer is curable if detected and treated in its early stages.

For years the American Cancer Society reported that one in every four who had cancer was being saved. Today, one in every three is being saved. A physician detects his patient's cancer in its early stages, he can do just as much. If suspected victims will learn the warning signs of cancer, physicians can save thousands of more lives.

Seven Danger Signs: If you value living, help your doctor by helping yourself first. Learn the following 7 danger signals.

Quote of the Week

"The military strength of our Nation rests upon the united, balanced effort of all the Services, each contributing the best in its own field, each supporting the others in their fields." — Gen. William M. Henshaw, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps

Judge Says Laws prohibit misuse of military property

From time to time the attitude is found in the military establishment that because items of supply and equipment are designated as public property belonging to no one and to all, that anyone can take and use these items as private property. There has been expression of the view that it is permissible to "steal from Uncle Sam if you can get away with it."

A failure to deal with such property economically may not lead to the result of the loss of the battle but the shoe and the horse yield the same irrefragable irresponsible attitude. Ward such property will go far toward promoting deterioration and demoralization in the Army. In a very real sense, such an attitude will compromise military preparedness and efficiency, and ultimately success in battle.

It should be noted that Congress, in enactment of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, denounced, among other things, dereliction, wrongful appropriation or noncommissioned status, are more important than the exposure of those who have, in fact, been tried and found guilty of crime.

The individual's sense of responsibility and the example set by all leaders, whether in commissioned or noncommissioned status, are more important than the exposure of those who have, in fact, been tried and found guilty of crime. It is, therefore, important that every member of the military community, take it upon himself to insure not only that the official appropriation, but also that he, himself, by his daily conduct and attitude, shows his sense of responsibility and his feeling that no one can violate the accepted standards without suffering not only the stigma flowing from court action but also the censure and disfavor of his neighbors and associates.

Such an attitude will contribute greatly to building that state of discipline, honor and efficiency which is essential to efficient government and the maintenance of the honor and respect of the Army's mission.

All motorcyclists must obey same laws as other drivers

By Julian Marbut The motorcyclist and his machine are subjected to the same laws of the highways as any other vehicle. Just because they are on a rail and more versatile gives the bike no special privileges. As has been said previously, many people think riding a motorcycle is next to nothing. But the people that say this usually know how to handle one. As in most everything, the beginner has to learn the ropes, know the pitfalls and know how to get out of jams.

What would you do, as an inexperienced driver, if your bike went into a ditch, started sliding on a railroad track or bit a ball of sand. The answer, of course, is that the novice driver would not know what to do. They say that you learn by experience, but sometimes you get only one chance.

Recognize Dangers This is why a new driver should be aware of these dangers, watch the road and observe carefully. Take for example, crossing a railroad. The newcomer probably does not know that the bike's wheels should cross the tracks at a right angle. As these things have to be learned and, as we said, experience is the best teacher. That is why for the first several months the rider should be extremely cautious as well as more familiar with his machine. Other things that should be watched for are leaves in the road, sand, gravel and loose dirt, even soft shoulders on the roadway. Driving a car is different. Leaves or loose dirt present no serious problem. That is just one of the many different aspects between driving an automobile and a motorcycle. Also, a motorcycle needs a few extras.

Rear View Mirror A rear view mirror is almost essential. If without one, the driver has to turn completely around to see behind him. And on many occasions, he may not bother and thus an accident occurs. Adequate lights are another requirement for a motorcycle. The correct type headlights and tail-lights are extremely important. You must be seen. Reflector tape is a good safety measure. It is suggested that this type tape be also applied to the head gear of the driver; everything will gradually come into place. Braking Action Another important thing to remember about motorcycles is the braking action. You can not stop as quickly guiding a bike as you can an automobile. The driver should allow extra distance when driving behind another vehicle. The actual applying of the brakes is important. The rear brake is applied first and then, if necessary, the front brake. If the operator presses the front brakes first, quite often the front wheel "locks up." As has been stressed before, experience is the best teacher and the best method of learning. If the driver will just take it easy for the first couple of months, everything will gradually come into place.

Commanding General's Thanksgiving Day Message

On Thanksgiving, as we pause to give thanks for our blessings of the past year, let us give special thanks for our most cherished possession—freedom. While participating in the festivities of this occasion, let us be ever mindful of the true meaning of this day of thanks for our blessings. In the same spirit that prompted the Pilgrims to express their gratitude for a bountiful harvest after the rigors of that first winter in America, we must give thanks for the freedom and way of life that we enjoy in our great country today. At the same time, let us be ever mindful that our blessings are again being defended by our soldiers who serve on distant shores. I send best wishes to all members of this command and their families for a pleasant and meaningful Thanksgiving.

Waiting Wives Sending Gifts to Vietnamese Children

One by one, the waiting wives of the Columbus-Miami City - Fort Benning area had begun getting letters from their husbands in Vietnam asking for help for children in that ravaged country.

One husband said that near his unit, nuns were operating an orphanage to care for children whose parents had been lost or killed in the war. He added that he knew that the nuns would appreciate clothes for the youngsters.

Another husband wrote that he wished that he could do more to help orphans who lived near his unit.

Soon churches, stores and civic clubs in Columbus heard about the husbands' pleas and offered to help the wives send gifts to children in Vietnam.

Weekly Meets

Children's clothes, picture books and youthful games came in for the wives who, in turn, turned their weekly meetings into sessions for package wrapping, weighing and stamping letters.

Later, so that they could have a closer touch with a group of children, the wives club would like to sponsor one particular children's orphanage.

Other people who are interested in donating gifts for Vietnamese children may call Wade H. Stokes Jr. at the

Coffee Honors Dental Wives

Such questions as "Where's your hometown?" "Where were you stationed last?" and "My goodness, doesn't your son play on the same little league team that Johnny plays on?" were very much a part of the let's-get-better-acquainted coffee held recently for wives of Fort Benning dentists.

Mrs. Charles F. Konze, wife of the post dental surgeon was hostess for the event at the Main Officers' Club.

Wives of newly arrived dentists, Mrs. Harvey Alpert, Mrs. Thurman Morgan, and Mrs. Leonard Goldstein, were welcomed by Mrs. Konze.

Hat Show Is Highlight Of Local Wives Coffee

A popular American ideology says that women love new clothes, hate to wash and frequently forget their car fenders. Perhaps above all, the woman's image is pictured as a lady buying a new hat.

The officers wives of the Infantry School's Weapons Department were not buying hats, but with a hat show, they were doing the best thing. The hat show was the highlight of the wives' coffee held recently at the Fort Benning Country Club.

The show, featuring hats from a Columbus hat shop, spotlighted all kinds of hats from the huge brimmed hat to the little feathered hat.

Hostesses for the coffee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joe H. Rodriguez, were the wives of the Rifle Marksmanship Team of the department's Small Arms Committee. ## Black Speaks to Sgt. Maj. Wives

By JANE DANIELS

Charles Black, the Enquirer staff writer and correspondent to Vietnam who is known to be comrade to our men in Vietnam, pulled a switch recently by talking to the ladies. He was most speaker to the wives of sergeants major at their coffee at the 7-9 club at Fort Benning.

as they asked, "What should we send to the men in Vietnam? What items do they appreciate the most? Are they receiving enough of the things from 'back home'?" Black's answer, "Somebody's care mantoned popcorn and kool-aid. That's great. Of course, they could never get away as a doorprize."

Vietnam was the subject of his talk as he said, "When the orders (for Vietnam) come down, you make the best of it. You've made your husbands what they are. You know that the men may fuss about some of the particulars but you know too that every man is proud of what his country is doing there."

"We're there so that the Vietnamese people can be free to raise their 'baby-sar' into a better world!" The wives' concern for the men in Vietnam was evident

Petticoat Portraits

by Jane Daniels

If the currently popular television series "Mission Impossible" were looking for new recruits to handle its difficult tasks, it would surely be interested in Mrs. John K. Roberts Jr.

No task seems too tough for her. Perhaps it is because she has conquered all the nearly impossible jobs that an Army wife faces, such as moving every six weeks or so. Perhaps it is because she has raised four children. Or perhaps it is because whenever the Army has said, "It's safe for wives to join your husbands now," she was always one of the first to go.

MRS. JOHN ROBERTS No Task Too Tough

Roberts household with four daughters, is almost a woman's world as Col. Roberts, Fort Benning Inspector General, admits. Their daughters are Kathy, Sandy, Lynda and Karyn. Kathy, now Mrs. Wadsworth, is married to a Coast Guard lieutenant in Miami. Sandy, now Mrs. James Keller of Fort Bragg, N. C. is married to an Army captain. Lynda is now the wife of Capt. Robert Fullerton at Fort Benning. Karyn is a junior at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, Tenn.

Their five grandchildren are Greg and Doug Mondcrief, 4 and 1, Sandy and Michelle Keller, 4 and 1, and Andy Fullerton, 2 months.

School Children Greet President

Last Friday, the day before Veterans' Day, was a holiday for Fort Benning school children. For 1860 children and 73 teachers and principals, it was a holiday that will be long remembered.

Forty bus loads of children in grades 2-8, from every school on post except Patch School, a school for kindergarten and special education classes, went to Lawson Field to greet the President.

As the ramp was pushed toward the plane's opening door, the students surged forward. Some of the smaller boys, with a plea for a better view, managed to obtain a boost onto some adult's shoulder.

As the President appeared, the children screamed, laughed, and waved in welcome. Handmade signs saying, "Welcome Mr. President," "Welcome Mr. Johnson" danced over the children's way from Lawson Field to Douglas Stadium, the other celebrity. Col. J. U. Cross, the Air Force commander of the big Presidential plane came to the crowd to sign autographs and to answer questions about what it's like to pilot for a President.

The children then stayed on hand to give the President a farewell at his departure. The students' day was coordinated by Lt. Col. (ret.) Calvin T. Roush, Fort Benning schools' officer. When he heard the news Thursday that President Johnson would be at Fort Benning, he started the plans rolling. "We wanted to insure that each child would have an opportunity to see our President on his visit to the post."

Soon he had an approximate count of the children who wanted to greet the President. The transportation motor pool aboard the transport arranged the Army school buses.

Chatty Cranberry Dishes Add To Thanksgiving Menu

By Louise Domaszewsky

Cranberry — a firm sour edible red berry. These rubies grow wild in swamps from Newfoundland to the Carolinas, and west as far as Wisconsin. Cranberries were most likely eaten by the Pilgrims, since the American Indians first discovered that cranberries were good to eat with wild turkey.

It is said that the pointed oval pink bud hanging at the end of an inch-long stem reminded someone of a cranberry. From this circumstance came the name cranberry, later shortened to cranberry.

Whether our thanks should go to the American Indians or to the Pilgrims, what would be the pilgrims' feast with out turkey and cranberries. No matter how you use them, in a sauce or a relish for meats, nestled in a pie or stirred in a beverage, it all spells delicious.

And delicious is exactly how you and your family and friends will describe this cranberry beverage. ... Cranberry Frost.

Cranberry Frost

1 pt cranberry juice
1 lemon juice
1 egg white
1 Nutmeg

Chill cranberry juice; combine with lemon juice. Beat egg white stiff. Add cranberry mixture; beat until frothy.

Recipe Swap Shop

Rice-Almond Stuffing

Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine; add 1 cup minced onion, 1 cup diced celery and cook until tender. Add 4 cups cooked rice (1 cup before cooking), ¼ cup sliced almonds, ¼ cup chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon each ground sage and thyme leaves and salt and pepper to taste. Toss lightly. Stuff neck and cavity. Enough for a 14-lb pound turkey.

If you have a favorite recipe you would like to share with our readers, send it along with your name and address to THE BAYONET, Infantry Hall, Fort Benning, Ga.

Christmas Ideas Told At Local Wives Event

While most of us were concentrating on Christmas balls, ghosts and welcoming The Great Pumpkin, ladies of the 10th Avn. Gp. already had "visions of sugar plums dancing in their heads." These "visions" materialized at an informal workshop held recently at 44th Bn. Ft. Benning.

Each item was created by a 10th Gp. lady and displayed with copies of instructions for all who attended. Chairman of the Christmas workshop was Mrs. Morris D. Anderson with special arrangements coordinated by Mrs. J. Y. Hammack.

Christmas stockings will be fashioned from many fabrics in styles from high-top boots to baby stockings. Trees and wreaths were also done in varying fabrics and styles. Some of the materials used for construction were macaroni, rice, cotton candy, toothpicks and cotton balls.

A candle-making demonstration was also on the agenda.

Also featured were angels of all descriptions in velvet, lace, and of gold.

The next social function for the 10th Gp. Officers' wives will be a luncheon on November 21.

Nurses Celebrate 4th Anniversary

The Fort Benning Regiment Nurses' Association marked four years of service to the post recently.

The anniversary was celebrated by the association's members with a luncheon at the Main Officers' Club.

The association, an organization of registered nurses from the Fort Benning - Columbus - Phenix City area, was organized four years ago by wives who no longer worked as professional nurses but who were still anxious to give part-time volunteer service to nursing. Their volunteer work has grown to include such activities as assisting with pre-school physicals, eye and hearing examinations to school children, working in bloodmobiles, nursing at Martin Army Hospital and teaching various Red Cross Courses.

Later, a monthly program of lectures by speakers in the field of nursing or medicine was added to their activities. Their volunteer service at both the American Red Cross and the American Red Cross Hostesses for the celebration were Mrs. Joseph E. Flesch, Mrs. John Garrity, Mrs. Kenneth P. Tanner and Mrs. Watson.

Anyone interested in further information about the association may call Mrs. David Hacking at 545-8845 or Mrs. Watson at 544-3733.

POST CHAPLAIN ISSUES THANKSGIVING MESSAGE

Some persons may raise the question, "What is there in this year of war, internal strife, demonstrations, increased lawlessness, rising prices, continued draft and relentless pressure from all sides for which I should be thankful?"

The answer is "MUCH." Although comparisons are often offensive, we need only look around the world and nowhere will you find a people as blessed as we are Americans.

Nowhere is there individual freedom as we enjoy, nowhere is there the material prosperity which is ours, and nowhere else can we find the peace of mind, heart and health that is available to the American. "MUCH!"

Who, in a serious moment, but could pause and be truly grateful for the rewards, the gains, the blessings we Americans have received? Only those who are totally ingrate, only those who are so blinded by their narrow views, and only those who refuse to see can deny our great and numerous blessings.

"What is there for which I should be grateful?" The sun and sky, the rivers and oceans, the grains and forests, the harvests and the factories, the freedom that dignifies me as a child of God, the obligations of service to my nation, the responsibilities that with being a free man, under God—for these and many more, I bow my head in deep gratitude this Thanksgiving Day of 1967.

Jonah Found Solution To Whale of Problem

How often we say to ourselves from loneliness? The consoles "I have a whale of a problem." Many times we approach a solution by trying harder, thinking positive, getting more rest or just simply blaming it on someone else, "a whale of a problem!"

If we are a kindly sort and person we may not blame others but simply try to forget the problem.

There was a character in history who confronted just such a situation. His name was Jonah. A mission was given to this man by his God.

Jonah's reaction to the command was to take off in the opposite direction. He may have rationalized that God could get someone else to do His will or maybe He needed more experience or preparation before going on his way.

The story tells us that God didn't accept these excuses and continued to call him. Thus it was that Jonah was swallowed by a whale. An interesting situation. Yet, one we often find hard to believe. We might look at it this way:

Can you remember occasion when you received shocking news, a "Dear John" or "Dear Mary" letter, a defeat, or suffered from loneliness? The consoles "I have a whale of a problem." Many times we approach a solution by trying harder, thinking positive, getting more rest or just simply blaming it on someone else, "a whale of a problem!"

As we wrestle with our problems and their solutions I might be wise to see how Jonah resolved his situation. Jonah found that his problem rested solely on being disobedient to the Will of God. When he decided to obey, his life began to take on new meaning.

Could it be that our lives may have more meaning if we try to grips with the Will of our God?

Manager of Supply Center Receives Second Highest Award for Civilians

Robert P. Lindley, USAIC, Supply Center manager, received the army's second highest civilian award, Meritorious Civilian Service Award, last week at Infantry Hall.

Col. David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, made the presentation in the absence of the commanding general, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr.

Lindley was delegated complete authority and full responsibility for the entire management and operation of the Supply Center in November, 1965. This comprised the Self Service Supply Center, and the Central Issue Point.

In the third quarter of fiscal 1966, the Supply Center

Time Requirement Is Cut For Promotion to Captain

The U. S. Army is reducing the time-in-grade eligibility requirement for promotion to captain from 18 months to 12 months.

DA Message 87557 establishes the new policy for temporary promotion to captain, AUS, which will become effective May 2, 1968. The gradual reduction in time-in-grade eligibility will begin November 1.

Non-Regular Army first lieutenants who are promoted under the new policy will remain on active duty to complete whichever of the following service obligations occurs first:

- Thirty-six months active federal commissioned service computed from date of entry on active duty as a second lieutenant.
- Twelve months active service in the grade of captain.
- Any other service obligation that a promoted officer has incurred which is of longer duration than either of these two will remain unchanged.

The DA Message states that promoting authorities grade.

will advise non-regular first lieutenants in advance of the date they become eligible for promotion, on or after May 2, of the service obligation they will incur as a result of accepting promotion to captain.

First lieutenants who are otherwise eligible for promotion but who desire relief from active duty at the end of their 24-month obligated term of service will be required to state this in a letter to a promotion authority.

First lieutenants who decline promotion to captain to avoid an additional service obligation will not be promoted prior to relief from active duty.

The gradual reduction will begin with first lieutenants who have date of rank from Aug. 2, 1966, through Sept. 1, 1966, becoming eligible for promotion on November 1.

This reduction will continue monthly until May 2, when first lieutenants serving on active duty will attain eligibility for temporary promotion to captain, AUS, upon completion of 12 months in that promoting authorities grade.

Engineer Battalion Lives Up to Motto Since Spring

By Lt. Winfield Sherman

Since its reactivation last spring the 42nd Engr. Bn. has lived up to its "Power For Service" motto. The 43rd was originally organized as an Engineer forestry battalion. The battalion later served in the Pacific during WWII and in Korea as a construction battalion.

The training mission assigned to the battalion includes:

- The equipment and maintenance platoon for battalion support in third echelon maintenance for engineer equipment, and an equipment platoon having an equipment section, asphalt and quarry sections.
- The battalion has 300 major items of engineer equipment, the most impressive being the 17-ton, 18 cubic-yard motorized tractor and scraper units now being used on improvement projects of River road and of Moyer road.
- Company C, then commanded by Captain Ward L. Sears, was at Fort Gordon, Ga. this spring, where they completed 23 construction projects. This included construction of target detection ranges, roads, ditcher covers and classroom remodeling. The company also did extensive work on the Mirror Lake Recreation area.
- Built Quonset's
- Company D, commanded by Capt. Julian Pylant, recently returned from Fort Gordon where they erected 115 quonset huts in a troop containment area at Camp Crockett.
- Company B completed projects at the Destin recreation area and at the Dahlonga Ranger camp during the past year.
- At the present time construction is underway on River Road and Moyer Road. The River Road project, is being built in three stages.
- The Moyer Road project provides for improving and surfacing a 2.5 mile section of this important Post road. It also a warehouse loading dock is under construction.
- Company A is continuing their operation of the rock quarry located approximately ten miles north of main post at Fortson, Ga. Training at the quarry has been conducted since spring. The rock crusher is powered by a diesel-electric engine combination and is capable of producing 75 tons an hour. The quarry provides valuable construction materials as well as a training facility.

Cut Air Fares Will Not Apply During Holidays

Officials of a majority of U. S. civilian airlines have informed the Defense Department that Military Reservation Fares will not apply during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Normally, servicemen on leave can travel on civilian airlines at two-thirds the usual fare, but the special rates will not apply because of the high rate of travel during the holiday season.

Military reservation fares will not apply during the following times:

- 1 p.m. December 15 through midnight December 16.
- Noon December 17 through noon December 18.
- 1 p.m. December 20 through noon December 23.
- Noon December 24 through midnight December 25.
- Noon December 29 through noon December 30.
- Noon December 31 through midnight January 1.

Additionally, servicemen are cautioned that unreserved seats will be extremely limited during the holidays, making travel by Military Standby Fares difficult.

58th Provides Security Guard For President

The 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., was chosen to provide a special Security Guard at Lyndon B. Johnson on his visit to Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Charles D. Wright, commanding officer of the 58th, assisted by Maj. John A. Hardaway, battalion S-3, selected 183 men and four platoon leaders to make up the guard. Company "A" provided 25 men, and 47 were taken from Co. D.

The remaining 80 guards and the 4 platoon leaders were from Co. C. Capt. Martin L. Gundersen, commanding officer of Co. C, headed the contingent.

The guards were posted along the runway and on Dixie Road, where a motorcade was waiting. When the President's plane arrived, the 183 men successfully controlled the 3000 people who had come to greet him.

A double row of guards cleared a path to the motorcade. As the procession moved off, several hundred schoolchildren ran to get a better view. About thirty slipped past the MPs and continued toward the President's limousine but were contained by Co. C guards.

World's Most Famous Jet Hosted By Post's Jet-Age Lawson Airfield

By Spec. 4 Larry Mahoney

The Jet Age has roared into Fort Benning's Lawson Airfield, and the world's most famous jet—Air Force One—demonstrated the expanded capabilities of the landing strip.

A year before the President's sleek blue and silver jettison touched down here on the first stop of a tour of military bases across the country, the Lawson runway was lengthened and strengthened to accommodate the huge new airplanes.

Rebuilt and extended from its original 7,000 feet, the runway is now 8,200 feet long and heavy enough for the biggest jets.

New Taxiway

An entire new taxiway and parking area were also built, and, according to the Y. Warren Jr., assistant airfield operations officer, Lawson can now handle the "largest aircraft with ease and safety."

Since November of 1966, the shrieks and whines of jet engines have rattled windows and hangars at Lawson. Civilian jetties, on combat flights, are frequent users of the strip, along with the Air Force's massive C141 Starlifters.

"Air Force One is the latest model of the Boeing VC 119," Warren said, "and the press plane that followed the President was a Boeing 707."

Not First Visit

Warren, who has worked at Lawson for 21 years, recalled that last week was not the first time an Air Force One, the designation of the President's personal airplane, landed at Fort Benning's airfield.

In 1960, he said, an earlier version flew here with President Eisenhower aboard. This Air Force One also was VC 119, though smaller and without the Starlifter's "hump."

The Army airfield that appeared just east of the muddy Chattahoochee was a familiar sight to the pilot of Air Force One, Warren reported. Air Force Col. Jim Cross came here often in the 1950's, then a captain and standardization officer on an inspection team.

"Jim's an old friend," Warren said, "and we got together briefly while the President was speaking at the stadium."

President Lauds 'Benning Family,' Cites Courage

I will visit eight military installations over this Veterans Day Weekend.

Being to cast a gift of this nation's heart—our pride, our admiration, our gratitude.

I will offer them in the name of the American people to the bravest of Americans, sons, daughters and families.

I go to honor each of the six million men and women of our Armed Services and the millions of homes whose girls they are to us all.

I think it is fitting that I begin my journey here at Fort Benning.

For you are the beginning of so much that ends in glory for your country and hope for every man.

It is here that so much of our hope for peace really begins. It is here that so many dreams of freedom are refreshed. It is here, in this vast expanse of war, that soldier and family devote life and honor to ending war. It is a purpose rare and wonderful in the history of nations. Never has mankind found so much to inspire in the midst of so much to fear. Never have men seen the equal of America's armies—men who march not for conquest, but with compassion—men whose courage and convictions command respect instead of fear.

Here is where it starts. In the history and instruction of Fort Benning. Few people can match the brightness of your traditions, or the greatness of your role in Vietnam today.

—Here, each week, eleven hundred men train as combat Infantrymen.

—Here, each day, eleven thousand men, from buck private to career officer, receive special Vietnam training.

—Here, each year, 250 classes totaling 55,000 students graduate from the Infantry School. Trainees of them go to Vietnam.

—Every Army paratrooper takes his basic jump training here at Fort Benning.

—Hundreds of small-unit leaders are graduates of your special Ranger courses—America's first airborne course trained here, the famous 1st Cav. Div.

—Since your Army Training Center opened in 1965, it has equipped more than 111,000 soldiers to earn the complement General Westmoreland has paid them: "Soldiers are the best trained in the world." I agree with him. The enemy in Vietnam has learned to agree with him.

Benning is a cradle, and college and a crossroads. But it is more than that.

Benning is a family. Here and nearby live more than 1200 families of officers and men who fight at this hour in Vietnam. There are 3400 military families on this post, and another 8000 in Columbus and neighboring communities. Another 10,000 families belong to civilians who work here.

For these Americans, Vietnam is an academic question. It is not a topic for cocktail parties, office arguments, or debates from the comfort of some distant sideline.

These Americans do not live on the sidelines. They live as they are and bleed in Vietnam. Talk does not come cheap for them. The cost of duty is too cruel. The price of patriotism comes too high.

Last night in my office, I read of one of your local families who paid the tragic cost only days ago. Lt. Col. Arthur Sigall, commander of 1st Inf. Div. Battalion, gave his life in Vietnam. He was a much decorated Veteran of three wars. His wife, Marguerite, and daughter, Susan, live on Scott Street in Columbus.

If I single out this family today, it is to pay them a tribute in which many of their friends and other local families must surely share. Many of them are here with us. Others are near in the neighborhood—whole blocks of homes in some communities—where a loved one is gone or a son is given.

Grief walks with gallantry here. The eyes of widows and children show it. The eyes of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, show it. And yet the people here walk proud and tall. You can feel the warmth of pride that binds them together. They stand together, giving gallantry and grief, closing ranks in common line of their nation's cause.

It is a humble task to thank you at the best of times. I have come here today to thank you and bless you, so that you might take away some comfort for the worst of times.

Fort Benning is many things, among them a military shrine and monument. But the very best that can be said of you is this: The Benning Family displays to all the world the very best of the American Family.

And all our families share the pride and gratitude I bring you. Each of our homes can look into your hearts, and through your windows, and find inspiration in your unity. That is the rock of your resolve, so that you might take courage. You are a family of patriots. That must be our nation's proud claim, too—freedom finds no crack in our courage—and no spilt in our resolve—and no encouragement to prolong his war in the shortness of our path—this war if it takes our lives to you.

I believe them. I believe in you.

I wanted to share this letter with you because it comes from Infantrymen—the ordinary but always extraordinary "dogface" who knows that Fort Benning is The Home of the Infantry—and the Infantry is the Queen of Battles.

And so you will always be the Home of the Brave. I will travel on this weekend with that thought to lift my heart. And I will leave you with a pledge.

Your bravery will be rewarded.

As it is here that we find the beginning peace, it will be here that we celebrate the end of war.

God grant that we may share in that blessed day out here, so there is no reason.

New Unit Commander Is Greeted By Chorus of Barks and Growls

By Spec 4 Jay Olsen

A chorus of barks and growls greeted the new commander Monday, during a change of command at the USAIC Headquarters Scout Dog Detachment.

Capt. John C. Reid accepted the strange welcome however, as he succeeded Maj. John W. McKinney.

More than 100 canines passed in review while music for the ceremony was played by the 291st U. S. Army Band.

After the exchanging of company colors, the brigade commander Col. J. L. Treadwell presented McKinney with the Army Commendation Medal, First Oak Leaf Cluster, for meritorious service while with the detachment.

Reid assumed command after a short stay as commander of Co. D, 58th Inf. here. His prior service includes Assistant Army Attaché duty in Laos.

Awaiting McKinney is a staff job with the S-3 section at 10th Bde. Hq. Before coming here McKinney had served with the 10th Special Forces in Germany and the 10th Special Forces in Vietnam.

Two other members of the Scout Dog Det. also received awards. S.Sgt. Ed Koubek received the Air Medal and Army Commendation Medal for service in Vietnam. Sgt. Richard M. Botti was presented a Certificate of Achievement of service as the unit chief guide.

In his outgoing speech, McKinney said he felt both a great sense of pride and achievement with serving with the scout dog unit.

"I'll forever feel the greatest respect when I hear this unit and its men mentioned," he remarked.

During the past two years the school has trained more than 700 men as scout dog handlers.

President's Visit

Cold Pizza... And Other Things

By AL SPRATLEY

How did it all start, this Great Visitation? A Wednesday morning for every inch, and it was a matter of his and everything bush bush. But then, 48 hours later, the whole world knew, and it was a matter of his and everything bush bush. Fort Benning play- ed host to the President of the United States! Over-simplification, so much happened between the first alert and that moment when Air Force No. 1, its jets screaming, disappeared into the distance on route to California. There were the mundane things like reams and reams of paper, over-worked copying machines, gallons and gallons of coffee, cold pizza, brown-stained cups and ash trays overflowing, Infantry Hall, Building 4, ablaze with lights far into the morning hours Thursday and Friday. But also there were the more tangible things, the muscle, the lumber, nails, paint and a thousand ancillary items, who's to say which is more important, the plans, or the execution, one can't resist without the other, one can't succeed without the other.

MPs Role For the Military Police it's one thing, utilization of all manpower for control of the traffic, directions for those seeking a vantage point, assistance to the White House security force in the sensitive job of crowd control for a presidential visit, and many added requirements. For Protocol in the CG's office and Special Projects in the office of the Director of Operations and Training, this is protocol at its zenith and a special project in the ultimate conception of the words, "literaries, route of travel, every minute planned with nothing left to chance in the unforeseen. LBJ FIFTH PRESIDENT TO VISIT POST

By SPEC 4 LARRY MAHONEY

President Lyndon B. Johnson was not the first chief executive to visit Fort Benning, the sprawling Georgia post that is the home of the Army's Infantry. Four other Presidents — Warren G. Harding, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower — have toured the post, which celebrates its 50th anniversary next year.

For Eisenhower, Fort Benning was a familiar place. He served here as a young officer in the 24th Infantry in the 1920's and as a coach of Fort Benning's famed Doughboy football team.

As President, Eisenhower returned to Fort Benning in May of 1960 to observe the Army's massive Project MAN (Modern Army Needs), a display of the Infantry's potent arsenal.

FDR was a frequent visitor here too. His Georgia White House was at Warm Springs, only 40 miles from Fort Benning. He first came to the post in 1923 when he was stump- ing the South for Democratic candidate Al Smith. Roosevelt's last tour of Fort Benning was in 1943, when the fort was producing thousands of soldiers for WWII combat.

President Truman came here in 1950 with several of his top cabinet officers to see a fire- power demonstration of the 105 millimeter howitzer and review troops of the 3rd Inf. Div.

The first commander-in-chief to see Fort Benning was President Harding. The post was only four years old when the "President's Special" rolled into Columbus in October of 1921. Infantrymen in pleated helmets and leggings marched in review for the President and his First Lady.

WARREN G. HARDING First to Visit

K. Johnson, Georgia Congressman Jack Brinkley and Texas Congressman J. J. Pickle, the President spoke of Fort Benning, and the neighboring communities which have taken to their hearts the many service families, and especially those be- liefs of husband, father, son or brother, he included them all as he spoke of the Benning "family," and called for unity in the Viet- nam war effort.

News Personalities On the sidelines, in the press area, a "sideliner" in itself, newspaper, magazine, radio and tele- vision personalities, one small white-haired man, hunched over from the many cameras slung around his neck, only a pulsing vein in his temple betraying the excitement that even he, an old "pro" of life magazine, from an- other, a question, an- swered matter of, factly and then a "double-take", the questioner was Walter Winchell... it was like that.

Other familiar names on the manifest of the huge press plane which preced- ed the President, Dan Rather, CBS, Robert Pierpoint, CBS, Roy Scherer, NBC, Forrest Boyd, Mutual, Sam Salmontall, Time, Donaldson, ABC, Larry Lescaer, Voice of America, the wire news service, Washington, Chicago, New York and Baltimore news- papers, all mixed up with regional newsmen who had arrived overnight from Atlanta, Birmingham, Montgomery, and local ra- dio, TV and newspaper rep- resentatives.

And then, almost as sud- denly as it all came about, it was over, but not com- pletely, there was the section set aside for de- pendents waiting for their husbands and fathers pres- ently serving in Vietnam, he strode into their area to greet as many as pos- sible, and then a grand tour completely around the bottom wall of the stand- ion, flanked fore and aft by security guards, reach- ing and shaking hands with as many of those he could, there were no Republicans, or Democrats, only Ameri- cans, and their leader.

Finally, a stop at Bu- banks Field to brief- ly watch airborne training and then on to Lawson for a greeting from some 2 to 3 thousand school children even more numerous than had greeted him upon his arrival a short hour and a half previously, school children who, like grown- ups and I, will tell some future generation about the time they were there, on November 10, 1967, when the President of the United States came to Fort Benning.

'Big Picture' Filming Stars 91st Candidates

Members of the 91st Co., 9th Sth. Bn. (OO), were used as a showcase platoon for Department of the Army's Big Picture television series recently. During two days of filming, candidates of the 91st Co. displayed several typical scenes which are reenacted daily by the OCS of the Student Brigade.

Activities such as precision drill were filmed under the shadows of Infantry Hall in the background. Spiffshined boots, parade liners and starched fatigues, were put to the test as cameras moved in close and panned each candidate as he

Candidate William David, son, was chosen for the only solo part by virtue of his appearance. # Posts' Film Role Ends This Week

John Wayne, Batjac Crew Praise Military Police Assigned to Movie

That sometimes misadventured, spitshined, white-gloved group of men, the Fort Benning Military Police received a special word of praise recently from John Wayne and Batjac crew members as filming of "The Green Berets" came to a close here.

"I don't know what we've done without them," said Wayne.

On duty 15 to 16 hours at a time, the MPs were responsible for directing the flow of traffic, both human and mechanical, on and near the movie set and keeping the anxious onlookers out of camera range.

Judging Slated Wednesday For Monthly Crafts Contest

Judging for the November USAIO Special Services Monthly Arts and Crafts Contest will be held Wednesday at the Main Post Craft Shop.

As in the past, all entries will be judged in the established eight categories including molded ceramics, creative ceramics, leathercrafts, woodworking, sculpture, metalworking, painting and drawing.

A first prize ($15), a second prize ($10), a third prize ($5) and honorable mentions will be selected in each category, but only one cash award may be won by any single individual in any one category.

All entries in this month's contest must be accompanied by a completed entry form available at any post craft shop. Craftsmanship, imagination, and originality are points being weighed heavily by the judges.

All entries must be brought to the Crafts Administration Office in Bldg. No. 329 no later than Monday, in order to be eligible for this month's contest. There are some size and weight limitations on entries, but this information is available at any post craft shop.

Friday the music will be provided by the "Swinging Blue Rhythms," while Saturday night's sounds will be those of "The Antique Zoo." Saturday's dance will honor the visiting Explorers.

Members of Teen Square, under the direction of Mrs. Daisy Fraker, will provide food for a Thanksgiving dinner for a needy family. Members are bringing canned goods to Teen Square.

On Friday November 24 there will be a Grub dance at Teen Square with "The Stolen Children" presenting the music. Saturday November 25 "The Sweet Young-ster" will provide the dance music. This band comes from Auburn, Ala.

Teen Square was honored to have Mrs. Robert H. York pay the club a visit last week. Mrs. York is the wife of Lt. Gen. Robert H. York, commander at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Incentive Pays

SFC Harrison C. Summerfield, Comm. Elect. Dept., received an award of $45 for proposing the construction of a portable structure to house batteries while being re-charged.

The structure, located outside room W-75, Infantry Hall, will eliminate a substantial health hazard.

New Ranges In Operation At Gun Club

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club has added archery, trap and skeet ranges to the facilities available to members.

The new ranges, located in the vicinity of Rod and Gun Club Headquarters on First Division Road about a quarter mile south of Highway 27 will be open Wednesday from noon to 5 p.m., on from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

According to Col. Lon D. Marlowe, president of the Rod and Gun Club, membership is open to retired and active duty military personnel, Department of the Army civilians and their dependents.

Other civilians may hold a membership limited to use of the snack bar and archery, trap and skeet activities. Application for membership may be made at Rod and Gun Headquarters.

Col. Marlowe said the new ranges conform to all specifications required for holding state and national matches. Members of the U.S. Army Trap and Skeet team who fired a skeet demonstration at the recent opening of the Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club, El Monte, Calif.

Whiter scored 3199 with 257 X's just one point shy of a perfect 3200 score. In the Any Sight Smallbore Rifle contest, Whiter fired a perfect 100-100, but was out-ranked in the scoring by a X's for the championship.

The Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club Ladies Golf Association will be doing the gobble "shootout" with guns, but rather with golf clubs in the Turkey Shoot Golf Tournament to be held at the Fort Benning Country Club this Sunday.

All lady golfers are invited to compete by signing up at the Country Club no later than Sunday. Handicap play will be the rule of the tournament.

Of course, grand prizes will be Thanksgiving turkey!

THE FORUM THE FORUM

By Spec. 4 Mike McNulty
It's been a classic period, this year of 1967—one of the finest ever in the world of sports. The too often quiet, normally steady houses of baseball and football have been completely disrupted as one underdog after another has come along to make a shambles out of ratings, standings and predictions.

Boston fooled everyone on the baseball diamond, so did St. Louis and the Chicago Cubs. Colgate football finds perpetual underdog Indiana still undefeated, while Oregon State and Penn State continually beat nationally ranked opponents but lose to lesser powers. Every team in the National Football League, save Baltimore, has been scared once or twice leaving the field open for just one of any team to play representative in the Super Bowl. And I hope Lou Alcindor and company from UCLA have been keeping an eye on all of these unexpected happenings—this could be the year that they too might happen up on a defeat.

There haven't been that many years like this one—a sports writers dream—and when an observer does find an example it's normally located in only one department of sports, not anywhere near the several that this year has produced. Still, one clear cut underdog has from time to time emerged and produced headlines similar to those we see weekly today. At prime time occurred in the National Football League in 1950.

At that time a refugee team from Cleveland, Ohio, called the Browns, was allowed to join the powerful ranks of the NFL after the All-American Conference had disbanded. The Browns had been champions of that league, which was sneered at by old pros with comments like, "Tell them to get a football." Sportscasters called the league "The Red Ink League" and "The All Amateur Conference."

The first NFL opponent the Browns had to face was the Philadelphia Eagles—champions of the league the year before. Spectators went to see the supposed unevenly matched contest only because they felt the upstarts from Cleveland needed a sound reminder of what "real" football was like. And because the game was being played in the Friendly City, the fans thought that an ideal way to begin a season was to beat a foe by a lopsided score before a partisan crowd.

At the beginning of the game, a peculiar thing happened. Not everyone was seated when the team from the comedy league got a man over the goal line; but the touchdown was called back. An obvious mistake. Somebody must have slipped. The fans sighed with relief and muttered sounds of nervous laughter could be heard throughout the stadium. What a disgrace it would be to be scored on by a minor league team!

Before the coming was over, however, they got used to it. The "amateur" Browns, some of whose names were Otto Graham, Mac Speedie, Dan Lavelle, and Marion Motley, scored five touchdowns that were not called back and rolled up a total of 497 yards rushing and passing. Ah, yes, the final score was lopsided! 59-10. But the Browns had the 35, not the home-town Eagles. As a matter of fact, Lou Groza didn't even bother kicking a field goal.

And it was no one-night fluke, either. The Browns went on to win over all opposition in the Eastern Division that had lapsed at them and climaxed a disillusioning year for NFL fans when they defeated the mighty Los Angeles Rams from the Western Division in the Championship Game. Groza (by then called "The Toe") kicked a celebrated field goal with 20 seconds remaining in the game to give Cleveland the victory 30-28.

That's pretty much the way 1967 has gone so far. Too many Browns, of course. Now Cleveland is the giant and too often among the beaten.

Tree Falling with Chris Needles

Several members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club are nearing qualification for their class "A" or expert parachutist license. This rating requires 200 free-fall parachute jumps from various altitudes, including one water jump, one night jump and 40 jumps landing within 20 meters of the target center. Last Friday afternoon the club worked on getting these few people their water and night jumps. Parachuting into water is basically simple, however, preparation is fairly detailed. Prior to the jump the Area Safety Officer (ASO) or one of his designated representatives gives a detailed briefing on the proper procedure for safely landing in water. He further inspects for special equipment such as personal flotation gear.

At the drop zone, which was Victory Pond, S.Sgt. Richard Vest was in a motor boat to retrieve the jumpers. Spec 4 Linda Stewart and S.Sgt. Steve Beisner made the jump successfully, with their only complaint being the water temperature.

The parachuting activities moved to Dekar Air Strip for the night jumps. Unfortunately, other operations in the area curtailed jumping just prior to the required total darkness.

Many people have inquired about the multicolored, strangely shaped parachutes seen over Dekar Air Strip or at demonstrations around Fort Benning and Columbus. The simplest parachutes seen in the area are the military T-10 and the Air Force orange and white emergency parachute. These canopies are circular or rectangular shaped and are made of nylon material. They have no holes in them except for the one at the top called the apex. On a calm day these parachutes descend straight down. The sport parachutist, not hesitating with descending in this manner nor desiring to be at the mercy of the winds, has holes cut in his canopy. Normally air trapped under the parachute escapes through the apex and around the edges.

However, if a hole is cut somewhere in the side of the canopy, then air will rapidly escape

Former Grid Star Is Referee in OCS

Loren H. Rudisill, a three-year varsity football letterman at Temple University, now only gets to see the gridiron as a referee for local football games at Fort Benning.

He is presently attending Officer Candidate School and is scheduled to graduate February 9, 1968.

Rudisill was an all-conference end at Temple. He played freshman ball while Bill Cosby was playing ball-back for the varsity.

Rudisill graduated from Temple in January, 1967.

OC May Follow Dad's Footsteps

Officer Candidate Frank Lee Weisner may try to follow his father's footsteps but it will have to be with one significant change. While Weisner studies in the 91st Co. (OC) to become an Infantry officer in the Army, his father, Rear Admiral M. F. Weisner, works at the Pentagon in the Department of the Navy's Bureau of Personnel, assigning other admirals to various duties.

Numbers Tell Story Of Eating

FORT MCPIERSON, Georgia - Military members dining in Third U. S. Army mess halls on Thanksgiving day will consume 122,350 pounds of the traditional bird according to food service personnel. In preparation of the five course dinner 45 ingredients will be used. Cooks will be preparing over 24,000 pounds of shrimp, slicing 10,000 pounds of fruit cake and displaying 72,217 pounds of fresh fruit, candy and assorted nuts for consumption. Needless to say the first item on the official menu is turkey rice soup.

Just six months ago the admiral left the Yankee Team in the waters off Vietnam where he was commander of the First Fleet. When Weisner was asked why he enlisted in the Army instead of following in his father's footsteps, he replied, "It was primarily the type of training offered... such as weapons and Ranger-type training. I also wanted to be a pilot and the time for the Navy flight program was too great. I have applied for Army Aviation upon completion of OCS."

When asked to comment on his OCS program, he declared, "This is the finest training I have ever seen." Being the son of a naval officer raised the question of his father's views on Candidate Weisner being in the Army. Weisner claimed, "My father said that the service was the most important thing - what is important is that the country is served."

Posthumous Awards Given Widow at Ceremony Here

The Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to SFC William A. Scott during a recent ceremony here. Accepting the decorations was Scott's widow, Mrs. Pearl Scott of Columbus. Scott, who was killed in action in Vietnam on July 10, 1967, was serving with Co. B of the 4th Bn., 503rd Inf., at the time of his death.

Chief Nurse Lauds Combat Medical Care

THIRD U.S. ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. - "Army nurses in Vietnam are giving the best care I've ever seen," said Lt. Col. Marion A. Thayer, former Chief Nurse in Vietnam and currently the most decorated woman in the Army. She was here to attend the Third U. S. Army Chief Nurses Conference. "The helicopter and infantile hospital have revolutionized the combat medical army hospitals can treat even the most severely wounded in time. The injured actually reach hospitals faster than they would in civilian life." Also a veteran of WWII, Col. Tierney returned from Vietnam last April. There she emerged as one of the major heroines of the war, winning the Soldier's Medal for her actions following a plane crash. "It was enroute to a hospital near An Khe when our plane hit a mountain," she recalled. "Around twenty of us were spilled about the wreckage."

The citation states: "Lt. Col. Tierney immediately took charge and through her extreme courage and the fine example she inspired the others. After she had successfully cleared the aircraft, she began the task of treating the injured, even though badly in need of medical aid herself."

"We were first discovered by Korean soldiers," she said, noting the humorous side of tragedy. "My ankle was so badly hurt that one of the Koreans, who was only about half my size, chose to carry me on his back."

Basic Trainees to Get Quick Kill Instruction

HQ. USCONARC - There will be a new sound this winter - the popping of spring-operated BB guns on trainee ranges in the U. S. Continental Army Center. The units giving basic combat training.

The rifles are training aids for the Army's Operation Quick Kill, designed to give the basic trainee practice in reacting instinctively to a sudden threat. The rifle, equipped with special stocks to fit a man's body proportions, has the sights reversed.

Instructors say, keep both eyes open... concentrate on the top of the target and fire the BB gun as if it were an extension of the arm. With such technique the trainee can soon hit three-inch discs flying through the air. With practice some trainees are eventually able to turn aspirin tablets to powder in flight.

Low Cost Factor
BB guns were chosen as training weapons because of cost factors in the program. They are later supplemented in Quick-Kill training by practice with the standard rifle, the M-16.

The Quick-Kill course, suggested in December 1965 by a civilian businessman and athlete, Pete Rademacher, was demonstrated for CONARC members in January 1966.

The course will include 11 hours of Quick Kill training as part of the 30-hour basic rifle marksmanship course. There are scheduled to be 11 instructors at each post to implement the program, which will be taught at night-firing ranges or at any range 75 meters or less in length. The program is eventually expected to expand beyond its present restriction to BCT units. According to Maj. L. M. Takahashi, of CONARC's Combat Arms Branch, the program fills an important gap in marksmanship training for the kind of terrain found in Vietnam or in the close-in fight that the American soldier might encounter.

Weather Station Opened

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies marked the opening Thursday of Fort Benning's first multi-purpose weather station at Kelley Hill.

Operated by the 2nd Bn., 10th Army of 197th Inf. Bde., the station will give meteorological support to artillery, chemical, medical, and Air Force units on post.

Col. J. L. Treadwell, brigade commander, will perform the ribbon cutting. Also in attendance at the ceremony will be senior officers from the brigade's artillery battalions and officers from the Infantry Center.

Two huge balloons nearing 15-feet in diameter will be sent aloft to record atmospheric data.

The main function of the weather station will be to provide weather data in support of the brigade's artillery units.

"Our computations of (atmospheric) conditions will aid battery commanders in effective first round firing," remarked the station's director, WO Charles H. Ames. Throughout the year, the station will assist officers at the Infantry Center in forecasting severe cold or hot weather spells.

1st Senior Class Receives NCO Academy Diplomas

A member of the Student Marshal Auditorium, was Baker, Sgt. Clarence W. Baker, was selected distinguished honor graduate of the first senior class to complete the Third U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officers Academy.

Sgt. John D. Jacobs, assigned to the 58th Inf. Bde., was named honor graduate.

Guest speaker for the graduation ceremonies, held in the Marshall Auditorium, was CONARC Sgt. Maj. Frank J. Bennett.

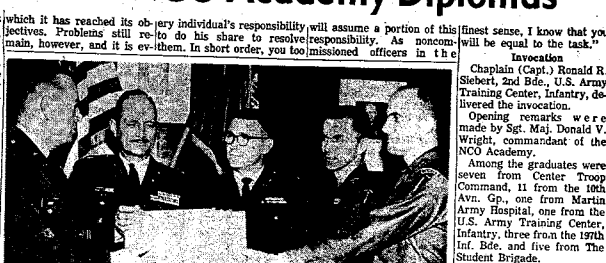

In his address, Sgt. Maj. Bennett addressed the class, "Every ounce of your patriotism, moral and physical strength and dedication must be devoted to preserve our American way of life."

Discussing the qualifications each graduate had to meet, Bennett said, "These challenges required the greatest of dedication and I congratulate each of you on successfully completing this senior course."

He pointed out that even greater challenges lie ahead. "You will occupy positions which are vested in the responsibility not only for your own life, but the lives of many other Americans, too. In many cases the success or failure of the mission of your unit may depend on you."

Bennett continued to address explaining the scope and mission of the U. S. Army Continental Command. He concluded,

"In summary, we can all be proud of the United States Army and the manner in which it has reached its objectives. Problems still remain, however, and it is to them that we must turn. In short order, you will assume a portion of this responsibility. As noncommissioned officers in the finest sense, I know that you will be equal to the task."

CTC TOPS GOAL... Members of the Third Troop Command recently volunteered to work on their day off as extras for the "Green Berets" movie. In addition to their own pay, they donated one-half day's pay to the United Givers Fund. The amount sent CTC over their goal for the drive. From left, Col. Charles W. ## Thrift Award Honors Benning Credit Union

The Bureau of Federal Credit Unions presented the Thrift Award to the TIC Federal Credit Union at Fort Benning last week.

Col. David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, presented the award to Dock Slaughter, president of the Credit Union Board of Directors. Also present at the ceremony was Lemuel Johnson, vice president, and Warren Wyrick, a member of the board.

One of the functions of a Federal Credit Union is to impress on its members the advantages of systematic thrift through a savings program. The Thrift Award is given in recognition of achievement in this area.

TIC Federal Credit Union is among 600 of the 12,000 operating Federal credit unions throughout the nation that qualified for the award this year. It was considered one of the most successful federal credit unions of its size in encouraging savings among its medium and small savers (those with accounts of $1,000 or less).

Speaking about the rapid expansion of the TIC Federal Credit Union, Lemuel Johnson said, "The union has nearly three million dollars in assets, and if it continues to grow at this rate, it will be one of the largest Federal Credit unions in the country."

In recognition of achievement, the names of winners of the Thrift Award will be published in the Bureau's Annual Report, which is distributed to all Federal credit unions.

ACS Program to Benefit Needy Military Families

The worthy, needy military families in the Fort Benning area will benefit greatly from a plan underway by Army Community Service and the post chaplains. In the plan, needy families will get Christmas assistance in one form or another and the help will come from units on post or company size or larger.

Coordination is being handled by ACS and lists of needy families are being compiled by ACS and the post chaplains.

As usual, some will grip and say that this is only in help out the men who will not help themselves," but the BAYONET has been assured that every effort is being made to see that this does not happen.

Chaplain (Col.) Holland Hope, post chaplain, said that as much emphasis is being placed on the "worthy" this year as on the "needy."

We feel that it is Companies should notify their other unit chaplain or ACS of their capabilities to help in the program as soon as possible and all commanders should mentally scan their men to see if they have anyone who might need assistance in the coming holiday season. The deadline for both lists is November 22.

General Kinnard To Visit Benning For Conference

A familiar figure will reappear here later this month when Lt. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, U. S. Army Combat Developments Command, arrives as a guest of Fort Benning for the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command Army Materiel Command conference. General Kinnard established a close kinship at Fort Benning and made many friends here when he activated and commanded the 11th Air Assault Div., later designated the 1st Cav. (Airborne) Div. He took the 1st Cav. to combat in Vietnam. The general will arrive November 28. He will be present for the five-day conference which will begin November 27. Other ranking commanders to participate in the conference will include Gen. Frank S. Besson Jr., commanding general of the U. S. Army Materiel Command; and Maj. Gen. Leland G. Cagwin, commanding general of the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command. Commanders will be gathered here from 16 Test and Evaluation Command installations and activities. Commanders will be represented from as far away as Alaska and Panama with the remainder coming from continental U. S. installations. The U. S. Army Infantry Board, a test facility of the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, will be the host USATECOM event. The command is concerned with the entire range of tests associated with each of the four phases into which the life cycle of army materiel is divided — research, development, production and post-production. USATECOM's primary mission is to perform engineering, service and environmental tests during the development phase to insure that every piece of equipment that gets into the hands of the American soldier is ready, efficient and effective use.

64th OC Co. Is Graduated

Col. James W. Haley, Director of Personnel, United States Army Infantry Center, addressed 168 graduates from the 64th Co. 6th Stu. Bn. (OC) The Student Brigade at commencement exercises recently.

Col. Haley told the graduates, "Your success, we feel, will result in the achievement of our goals. However, we can not make you a success but we will give you the ingredients."

He outlined three areas that must be utilized in order to gain the success expected of new officers—training, experience and opportunity.

Col. Haley urged the graduates to "accept your extra duties as a challenge and do the best you can." He made a special plea for all the graduates to "improve your civilian education and take advantage of every opportunity to do so." The 64th Co. has an average wages under Social Security.

Jaycee Chapters Backing Viet Phone Call Promotion

A phone call spanning the road, from a combat field in 5,000 miles to Vietnam will be made each of the 18 families in which the life cycle of army materiel is divided — research, development, production and post-production. Each of the 18 Jaycee chapters in Georgia is helping to sponsor "Operation Vietnam Phone Call" and minutes later the family heard familiar voices from the North Side. Back in Atlanta, Libowsky joined the Jaycees and spearheaded the idea of the state-wide "Operation Vietnam Phone Call" project which will cost the Jaycees about $5,000. The project was conceived more than a year ago when Martin Stephen Libowsky tried to place a call to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Libowsky, of River Valley, Ga.

Shorter Course Designed To Fill Drill Sergeant Gap

HQ, USCONARC — Graduate Army drill sergeants can look forward to becoming drill sergeants faster than ever before, thanks to a new, modified course instituted by U. S. Continental Army Command (USCONARC).

A great need for qualified drill sergeants exists in USCONARC because approximately 3,000 of the 9,066 slots for drill sergeants at the 16 Army training centers are unfilled.

Under the provisions of CONARC Regulation 350-12, drill sergeant schools, a modified drill sergeant course qualifies experienced drill sergeants as drill sergeants in only three weeks, as compared to the former six-week course.

The new course consists of 132 hours instruction in general subjects, recruit handling, effective military instruction, Army Training Program (ATP), rifle marksmanship, drill, physical training, leadership, inspections, miscellaneous subjects, and a general review.

Drill sergeant school is open to soldiers who are graduates of a four-week drill sergeant course, proficient in their primary or secondary military occupational specialties (MOS), in grades E-4 through E-7, 38 years old or less and physically fit to perform drill sergeant duties.

Good military bearing and demonstration of leadership and soldierly qualities are also essential. Applicants

 Spec. 4 James R. Adams, member of the 173rd ABN, was working at the Special Forces hospital at Dak Pek six miles from the Laos-Cambodian border.
 Two infantry battalions of paratroopers were sent to help defend the villagers from North Vietnamese Army rocket and mortar attacks.

"A Montagnard came to the hospital and told us his wife was going to have a baby," said Adams. "He explained that the baby had been expected for three days and had not been born yet."
 Adams and Sgt. James Phillips, a Special Forces medic, went to the nearby village and brought the pregnant woman back to the Dak Pek hospital.
 "When we first brought her to the hospital, she was having pains every 10 minutes, then they came

This eight-man section, located at the regiment's base camp here, provides the timely information for operations planning.
 Their work begins when they receive a series of overlapping photographs taken on missions flown by reconnaissance planes.
 Distribute findings. The information they derive from these photographs is then passed on to any units requesting the intelligence, primarily to the regimental and squadron operations and service section staffs, and the Long Range Reconnaissance Patrol.
 By looking at the photos through a stereoscope, a pair of well-trained eyes, the interpreters see the objects in three-dimension, instead of the usual two-dimension.
 "Because of this depth perception, we can identify images on the photograph as rising or dropping," said 2nd Lt. William Schultz.

"We spot small objects in the jungle such as foxholes, trenches, trails, and tunnel entrances."
 Since much of Long Khanh Province is covered by jungle, often with triple canopies, little information can be derived from standard aerial photographs.
 At times the image interpreters use a third method of photography, hand-held photographs.
 These photos are taken from low-flying aircraft and taken at an angle to the ground, which brings out more details of a particular area than does a vertical aerial photograph.

Candy Is Proven Strong Weapon Against Enemy

An ordinary chocolate candy bar proved itself an effective weapon against the Viet Cong during a 25th Div. operation.
 Co. A of the 1st Bn., 5th Inf., had been providing security for a road building project by the 68th Combat Engineer Bn. As the armored personnel carriers moved into their positions near the small town of Loc Thanh in Hau Ngha Province, a group of children converged on the vehicles.
 "I was sitting on my APC when a small boy came up to me and wanted gum," said PFC John McCabe, a rifleman. "I couldn't resist the look on his face, so I gave him a candy bar instead."
 With the candy in his pocket, the boy and four of his friends motioned to McCabe to follow them. McCabe and several other men were led to a hedgerow about 50 meters from their position.
 "When we got there," continued McCabe, "my little friends pointed out three butterfly bombs that were hooked up with trip wires and one 100mm artillery shell hidden in a hole."

 When the optical portion of their work has been completed, the image interpreters make a dense overlay of their findings, showing significant objects on a map of the area, and dating them.

 Usually recorded in the coolness of the night, the infrared penetrates the jungle canopy, locating fires, activity on jungle paths, and movement over water.

Soldier Tutoring Buddhist Monks
CAN THO, (IV CORPS-10) — Walk into a Buddhist monastery of the Hinayana sect and you may be greeted by an orange-robed monk speaking perfect English.
 Everyone of the 40 novices studying in the monastery speak English in varying degrees of fluency. They are all Vietnamese-born, but of Cambodian descent, and were raised in a bi-lingual atmosphere.
 The man who is responsible for their mastery of that language is a young soldier who was studying at St. Joseph's Abbey in Covington, La., to become a monk in the Roman Catholic Church.
 PFC Eugene Sykes Jr. has been in Vietnam for ten months as a member of Co. A, 52nd Signal Bn. For the last few months he has devoted most of his spare time to teaching English at the monastery.
 He first learned of the need for people to teach English here through the Vietnamese American Association, which is teaching English, Sykes is also learning to speak Vietnamese and acquiring a knowledge of the teachings of Buddha.
 "Perhaps one of the reasons I have gotten along so well here," Sykes said, "is because the life while training to become a Roman Catholic monk is similar to that lived by the Buddhist novice."
 After graduating from high school in Houston, Tex., Sykes entered St. Joseph's Abbey as a novice of the Benedictine Order, but his studies were interrupted by military service.

 The worn-out tires have the old tread cut away and the surfaces prepared to receive new caps.
 A complete tire recapping plant, utilizing production-line methods, has been in operation there for a number of years.
 One of a dozen shops in the depot, the recapping plant has been expanded to include use on vehicles of the United States forces in Vietnam.
 The output from this plant soon will be expanded to include use on vehicles of the United States forces in Vietnam.
 The 80th Ordnance Depot, under an ARVN director, is manned by about 650 ARVN specialists and 750 technicians. The ARVN specialists also provide nighttime security for the depot and for the northern border of nearby Tan Son Nhut Air Base.
 The depot is the only such facility in the Vietnamese Army.

23-Year-Old Lieutenant Has All But Medal of Honor

By Spec. & Larry Mahoney
Most of the men in Fort Benning's Infantry Officer Candidate School have never heard a shot fired in anger. Philip L. Nichols, a recent graduate of the 60th Co. (OC), TSB was an exception.

As a combat medic in Vietnam, the West Virginian won every decoration this nation has to offer to a ground soldier for valor except the Medal of Honor.

On July 23, Nichols is a veteran of four years with a chest splashed by ribbons representing service in Vietnam and the Dominican Republic.

Nichols, who was commissioned a second lieutenant last week, wears the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, The Army Commendation Medal, Three Purple Hearts and the Combat Medic Badge. With 30 jumps, he is eligible for the Senior Parachutist Badge.

The action for which Nichols received his DSC took place on an anonymous hill numbered 258. Spec 5 Nichols and other "Scramming Eagles" of the 101st Airborne, leaped onto Hill 258 from a swarm of helicopters, and were met immediately by intense fire from entrenched Viet Cong.

Sgt. Maj. Cannon Arrives To Assume Top NCO Slot

Fresh from combat duty assigned to the 16th Inf. in Vietnam, Sgt. Maj. Walter C. Cannon has arrived at Fort Benning to become the post's top non-commissioned officer.

Cannon, a veteran of 24 years, replaces Sgt. Maj. John F. Whitley, who retired at the end of October.

The new post sergeant major, born Feb. 19, 1921 at Pleasant Grove, Ark., was the "Big Red ones" ranking noncom while in Vietnam.

He met with sergeants major from major Benning commands and others from school and staff positions Monday. A reception was held in his honor Wednesday at the 748 Club.

First Combat Cannon first saw combat as a 19-year-old rifleman with the 79th Inf. Div. in the European Campaign of WWII. He was wounded in action.

Released from a hospital, he rejoined his unit and served briefly in occupied Czechoslovakia. A short staidie tour followed, then he was whisked back to Europe and

3rd Army Aides End 2-Day Visit

By Bill Hardin
A former Fort Benning commanding general, Third Army civilian aides, and foreign officers were among the list of persons visiting the post this week.

Lt. Gen. Robert H. York, commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps, and immediate past commanding general of Fort Benning, flew here Tuesday from Fort Rucker, Ala., to present a posthumous purple heart, silver star and air medal to Mrs. Betty F. Person, 2451 Wise St., widow of Maj. David E. Person, killed in Vietnam Sept. 22. The general departed for the post after a two-day visit.

The drive officially ended November 17, he said, but contributions continued to come in past the deadline.

The drive, slow until the week Monday for a series of final weeks, has climbed steadily toward the goal of 100 per cent post participation by military and civilian employees and 180,000.

Post Soars Over Goal In UG Drive

The group arrived shortly before noon on Monday, and were taken to the Main Officers' Club for an official luncheon. The group was

Dear General Wright:

I am still buoyed by the gifts of spirit I found among the men and women of Fort Benning. Yours, as I was proud to declare, is a community of courage and a family of patriots.

It is my great hope that I left all of you with a personal sense of this nation's deep gratitude and admiration. You have surely left me with fresh strength and confidence that freedom will be upheld and peace regained in Vietnam.

You and your staff have my personal thanks for a warm welcome and unforgettable experience. The leaders of your Ranger and Airborne programs deserve special recognition. But you are all to be congratulated on the calibre of your leadership and the quality of your convictions. I am heartened to know that you will continue to produce the best-trained soldiers in our history.

That history will always be brighter so long as Fort Benning remains the Home of the Infantry and of the brave.

MP's aid deer hunting

Members of the 139th MP's can take a well-deserved tip of the hat from all true sportsmen on Fort Benning, for their excellent enforcement procedures and inspections of hunters and vehicles in hunting.

The MP's, with the cooperation of the Rod and Gun Club, are running periodic inspections to make sure that poachers and persons taking deer illegally are apprehended and act as a deterrent to those who would take such an action.

This is especially helpful in promoting a good hunting season for all who care to try their luck and it safeguards a better hunting future for sportsmen in coming years with the good enforcement of the game regulations.

The post is experiencing a banner year in the number of deer taken and the work of the MP's and the Rod and Gun Club lends us to believe that this could be the case for years to come. — BAYONET.

"Ah, don't worry, you can hear those aggressors a mile away!"

Many new superstitions now replace old misconceptions

Old superstition, unlike old soldiers, do not fade away. They are replaced by new superstitions and new misconceptions.

This is particularly true of superstitions and misconceptions about health. New scientific advances and discoveries breed a whole new crop of health superstitions.

Some of the new ones cataloged in the health book are—

Today, we have the mistaken idea that necessary and harmless chemicals used in processing foodstuffs may cause mysterious diseases like cancer. (They won't.)

We see people afraid to cook with aluminum foil for fear of poisoning the food. (They will not.)

We observe people who refuse to wear glasses and others who shun much-needed hearing aids. (Both are completely accepted by society today.)

Fluoridation

People oppose fluoridation of public water supplies because the same chemical has also been used for poisoning rats.

overlooking the fact that the whole difference lies in the matter of dosage. (Fluoridated water is completely safe.)

Many people blame civilian changes on the atomic bomb; past generations attributed such changes to artillery fire, to the whole new crop of health superstitions.

(The bomb has not changed climate.)

Countless mothers live in fear for their children's lives because a heart murmur had been reported. Although murmurs should be checked by a physician most heart murmurs are harmless.

Vaccination

There is still active opposition to the use of immunizing procedures, such as vaccination and immunization, because of superstitious dread of introducing a poison into the system. (The vaccines now in general use are safe.)

There is a modern cult of naturalism which holds that only "natural foods" are wholesome because foods grown with the aid of chemical fertilizers are inadequate. (This isn't true.)

Medical research uncovers more benefits of fluoridation

There is additional good news relative to the use of fluorides to control oral disease. Medical research has indicated the possibility of two additional significant effects on adults, both of them beneficial.

First, fluorides appear to reduce the risk of osteoporosis among older persons. This is the medical term for a condition in which bones become porous and fragile. This disease often produces a fracture, especially among the elderly.

We also have to believe that fluorides help to prevent hardening of the arteries. Both of these benefits were brought to light by a Harvard University research study. Commenting on this study, the journal of the American Medical Association stated, "If these findings are confirmed... fluoride will indeed assume an important preventive role in two of the main diseases of aging—osteoporosis and hardening of the arteries."

Speaking of aging, it used to be that people accepted certain stereotyped ideas about getting older. They thought it was natural to start putting on weight and losing teeth. Well, it is common knowledge today that it is not necessary to pile on the pounds; in fact, it is one of the most harmful things you can do. And your dentist will tell you that neither is it necessary to lose your teeth.

Today we know that gaining years and losing teeth do not necessarily go hand in hand. With proper care, you should be able to enjoy your teeth throughout your lifetime—and it is not really hard to do.

Judge Says Never sign contracts if not fully understood

What is a written contract? Is it merely a necessary piece of paper to be signed in order to obtain merchandise? Is it a meaningless document specifying how much must be paid each month in order to keep merchandise? Contrary to the popular belief, the answer to the latter two questions is an emphatic no.

A contract represents the final manifestations of intent of the parties involved in a transaction. It represents how the parties to the contract will conduct themselves in the future. Its terms and conditions must be fulfilled. If they are not the law will enforce it. Its terms and conditions are final and oral promises and representations relating to the subject matter of the contract generally will not be recognized by the law.

Practically speaking this means that you should never sign a blank contract or sign a blank contract because the other party may fill in what terms and conditions he desires. These principles mean that you should never sign a contract without reading it in full. While reading the contract you must make sure that it contains proper expression of what you promised to do, and just as important, proper expression of what you expect the other party to do.

To properly read a contract, you should understand each and every term of the contract. If you do not understand each term, then consult your legal assistance officer before you sign.

Increasing number of cycles causing accident rate to rise

Ninety-two per cent of the 50 states have doubled the motorcycles on their highways in the last six years. New Mexico was the lowest and it still increased by 24 per cent.

Naturally, the more motorcycles the better chance of an accident. Add that to the overwhelming increase in automobiles on the nation's highways and it spells disaster.

When a person wants to learn to fly, he just gets into an airplane and take off. Same thing for a locomotive engineer. He doesn't top into the cab of the engine and go chugging down the tracks. What if your father thought swimming was that easy and just threw you into the nearest lake when you didn't know how to swim? The same goes for operating a motorcycle. You have to learn step by step.

It is not good enough to know how to fly a plane. You also have to know how to land and lift off the craft. The same goes for the two wheelers. You can't master a skill, such as riding a motorcycle, in a shorter period.

Remember that a cycle should be ridden in the middle of the lane, not to the extreme right or left. In many cases when riding near the side, automobile drivers tend to pass while in the same lane.

Also, and unfortunately, many drivers of motorcycles take advantage of the small size of the vehicle. Weaving in and out of traffic is easy, but it is also extremely dangerous. You do not have the right to take advantage of your vehicle's size and pass a long line of traffic.

An individual does not know the reaction of another driver. When you "blip" to the right of another vehicle, you can not ever tell what that driver might do. Instead of the unexpected, it might be the unexpected and you may wind up in a serious accident.

Remember in your hands you have a very powerful weapon. Knowing how to use it, and use it well depends on your judgment.

West Coast teenage girl recounts experience of taking 'trip' on LSD

The question has arisen as to what society should do about the problem of illicit use of potent hallucinogens such as LSD. There is obviously no facile answer, but any rational approach must judiciously combine continued research, education and law.

What's it like to "take a trip" on drugs? A 19-year-old California girl recounts her experience:

The halo around the candle flickered brighter. Anchovy tingling crept up my legs, slowly gaining momentum. Finally, pricking my face and neck, it hit my brain. The room went black and white. Then, just as suddenly, it was all warm and glowing and bright.

I sat swaying back and forth. I couldn't stop. The music from a radio was a physical thing. Something dark opened in my mind. Then my mouth and eyes began to move all over my face. I could only talk slowly. Listening to myself like a stranger, like I was standing outside my body.

It was then that I began to be afraid. I had never experienced that kind of fear. I glanced sideways at the guy I was with and from the corner of my eye his face took on a twisted shape. I was too afraid to scream.

I kept receding deeper and deeper into myself, becoming completely unaware of what was happening.

"I had heard you could force yourself out of a 'trip' by willing it. I tried desperately to free my mind of the sensations that were whirling through it. For a moment, my vision cleared and the music was just a radio. Then I began slipping again.

I prayed to God that I could get control of my mind but I continued to plunge deeper into the depths of depression. Later, the pot began to wear

POVs cause 80 per cent of local deaths last year

By PFC Mickey Sheard

Soldiers and civilians will be thoroughly oriented within 48 hours prior to Thanksgiving Day on the causes of holiday traffic accidents and the necessary preventive measures.

The orientation will include precautionary measures to minimize the commission of illegal or non-safety driver acts, exposure to unsafe environmental driving factors, and other dictates of the moment which induce people to discard caution.

This is the beginning of a series of safety measures that will be introduced to minimize traffic deaths in private vehicles. The new and progressive ideas aimed at educating the soldier on the consequences of traffic accidents may be the solution to the accident problems that accounted for 80 per cent of the deaths at Fort Benning last year.

Driving Safety

James E. Blount, safety director, emphasized the importance of driving safely and of making the soldier understand the consequences with the command: "Some people can never be reached until they are picked up in a box."

One consequence that

Many Hours Spent Sewing Costumes for 'Nutcracker'

Fort Benning Society Women's News

WIVES PREPARE COSTUMES FOR UPCOMING BALLET

By Jane Daniels
The Nutcracker Ballet that will be performed at Fort Benning December 9 and 10 in the Marshall Auditorium will feature many costumes of gold lace, sparkling sequins, rustling satin and royal brocades.

Hundreds of hours have gone into the making of the dancers' costumes. It is no small task to style, fashion, fit and tailor the costumes for 12 snow princesses, eight soldiers, eight rats, three Arabs, eight Russians and 10 Nutcracker prince to name but a few of the costumes needed for the upcoming production.

The work has been taken on by the wives at Fort Benning under the chairmanship of Mrs. John K. Roberts Jr.

Center of Activity
The center for their activity is Mrs. Robert's home at Fort Benning. The upstairs is covered with miles of net, lace, stays, patterns and elastic. Three sewing machines stay in a steady hum. Hard work is interrupted only by an occasional question from one seamstress to another, or by a "break" for a cup of coffee or a quick snack for lunch.

For the wives who do not sew, lack of skill is no handicap. They turn out the trimming, cutting and the making of accessories such as hats or sashes.

Fitted Three Times
All of the costumes they make are fitted, not once, but three times, on each performer. Fitting is Mrs. Robert's task, a job that she says, "insures not only perfect fit but also maximum movement in the intricate dance steps."

All the costumes give credit to Mrs. Wes Carr, costume designer, and to seamstresses, Mrs. James Breck, Mrs. Walter Hutcho, Mrs. Donald Evans, Mrs. William Cargo, Mrs. Warner Goodwin, Mrs. Ralph Holterman, Mrs. William Westgard, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Ken Phipps, Mrs. Carl Van Bibber, and Mrs. Donald Barclough.

Tickets for the production are now on sale in the post exchange area of Fort Benning and at the civic booth at Columbus Square.

Thompson Gives Talk at Coffee

The NCO wives of the Marksmanship Training Unit held their monthly coffee at the Fort Benning, Trap and Arms training. ## Petticoat Portraits

by Jane Daniels

The Army frequently speaks of transforming its men from recreational into combat-ready soldiers, or from boys into men.

One of Fort Benning's ladies, Mrs. Wallace Colson, says that the Army, perhaps unknowingly, also transforms military wives.

"Or at least I think that I'm a completely different person than I was when I first became an Army wife. I was once shy. I certainly had no desire to get out of my house to meet new people," she says.

Of course, a lot of credit for her new outgoing personality, she has to admit, goes with her husband, Sgt. Maj. Colson, assistant general, sergeant major of the 197th Inf. Bde.

Joined Wives' Club
"It was when we were living in Heidelberg, Germany, that my husband encouraged me to join the wives' club and to begin meeting new people," she adds.

No one would ever be able to tell now that people were once strangers to her. As program chairman for the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club, a committee chairman for the recent Monte Carlo Night, and an active worker in the club's recent project for sending packages to Vietnam, meeting people is her constant business.

Being program chairman for the NCO Wives' Club means that she does plenty of creative thinking in planning programs for the wives' meetings. Programs that she has planned this fall have included children's fashion shows, a ladies' style show, a Columbus tour and beauty demonstrations. It is also her responsibility to assist in acquiring hostesses for the club's social gatherings.

Rewarding Activity
As a member of the project for sending gifts to servicemen in Vietnam, "Ditty Bags to Vietnam," a project which she calls one of her most rewarding activities, she helped in filling 100 Red Cross canvas bags with small games, paperback books, toothbrushes, ball point pens and other small items.

She is also on a wives' club committee to purchase gifts for the pediatric ward at Martin Army Hospital and works each Tuesday as a volunteer at Army Community Service Hospital House.

And, of course, she is a devoted mother to her six-year-old daughter, Danielle. Colson's home, decorated with Early American furniture in golds and bronzes, is a reflection of her new-found personality. What sells Mrs. Colson on her home, however, is the abundance of bookshelves. Her appreciation of bookshelves comes about because she is an avid collector. Those bookshelves contain tiny keepsakes from world travel such as Hummel figurines from Germany, an antique bowl from Berlin, lace dolls from Brussels, and numerous sets of china. "I have more china than they had ever seen before," she sympathetically laughs.

Benning Queen Chosen For Christmas Parade

By Spec. 4 Carol Anblin
This year four anxious little ladies representatives of each third and fourth grade class on post, sat nervously on the edge of their chairs recently awaiting the announcement of the "El Neighbor Queen" for Fort Benning.

The queen will be Fort Benning's representative in the Columbus Christmas parade. Each young competitor drew a picture of a queen of her classroom by her classmates and teacher. This day was the finale for the ladies.

There were no judges for the "beauty contest" instead, each third and fourth grader drew a piece of paper from a box, first for a position, then for the lucky piece of paper that told her she was queen.

At the beginning of the program each girl introduced herself, giving her name, school, grade and classroom teacher. The "position drawing" was then held, under the supervision of Todd Yates, principal of Loyd School, where the drawing gave each one a number designating the order in which the girls drew their "lucky" piece of paper.

The young ladies were then seated according to number as the box again was passed for the final drawing. With eyes closed and hand clasped tightly, they waited until the last contestant had drawn her paper.

The winning ticket was drawn by Debra Martin, a fourth grader at Loyd School. Debra is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Gerald Martin.

Letter From Santa

Dear Children,
 Since last January, my little helpers and I have been busy building, sewing, painting and testing new toys to bring to you on Christmas Eve. I have also been trying to keep my reindeer in top condition, a hoof; but thanks to Mrs. Chas. both of them should be up and ready to go on Christmas Eve night.

I would make an extra visit this year. I am happy to announce that I will, in fact, speak with Col. Charles Welch, commander, Fort Benning Airborne Arriving by parachute at 11 a.m. Saturday at Stillwell Field.

The general manager of the Post Exchange, W. B. Holtburton, has made plans for me to chat with all of you in the PX toy store following my arrival, and each Friday and Saturday until December 16. I am looking forward to seeing all of you when I get there. I will have free gifts for everyone.

I must close now, for there are still many things I must do before leaving here. The reindeer must be fed, and the new toys must be stored away.

In the meantime, be good.

Merrily yours,
 Santa Claus

Explorer Scouts Guests Of 10th Gp. for Congress

By Spec 4 Howard Gaynor
 The 10th Avn. Gp. was host to more than 200 Explorer Scouts this past weekend as the scouts held their fourth annual congress. The purpose of this annual meeting is to afford the representatives of the Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America and community to elect their officers for the coming year. Representatives from the Explorer posts active in the Chattahoochee Council attended the week-end meeting. After the scouts arrived Friday afternoon guides from the 10th Avn. Gp. led them to the billets where they stayed. After the scouts arrived, they were taken to Marshall Auditorium where Chaplain (Col.) Holland Hope, post chaplain, opened the congress with a brief invocation.

Lesson all three scouts were hitting the targets with accuracy of an old pro. Following the weapons demonstration, the scouts were taken to Eubanks Field where the Airborne Dept. gave them rides in the "bud-bud" seat. After their drop from the 250 foot towers, the scouts returned to the Company for lunch. The explorers were then taken to the 1st Bn., 58th (Mech) where the scouts and their adult leaders were loaded into 15 armored personnel carriers for a two-hour trip through the woods. After returning, the boys were taken to Lawson Army Airfield where the 10th Avn. Gp. had set up a static display. The first group was taken to see a film on air-mobile operations in Vietnam. While they were seeing the film, the second group was shown the static display, including a display of a CH-47B Chinook. The craft was stripped for display and the functions of the exposed components were explained. After seeing the Chinook, the group moved to the UH-1 Huey gun ship. Helicopter Ride. While the second group was touring the static display, the third group was loaded on a Chinook and taken over the post by Maj. John P. Ladd, 17th Avn. Co. commander and CWO Stewart Whisenant also of the 17th. The three groups rotated stations and all the scouts and their adult leaders were taken for an aerial tour of

Following the helicopter ride, the scouts headed back to the 10th Avn. Co. for supper. After eating they were taken to Infantry Hall for the dominating speeches of the Explorers running for positions in the council. Sundry morning candidates running for office were voted on by the representatives from the various posts. Elected to chairman was Randy Redden, Post 188, Lagrange; vice chairman was Jim Hall, Post 300, Columbus; and secretary was Dennis Lennon, Post 100, Columbus. After the winners had made their acceptance speeches, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., post commander, spoke to the scouts. He expressed his wish to see the scouting program expanded and told the scouts that this expansion could come about from their example to the public. General Wright ended his speech by offering the facilities of Fort Benning to the scouts any time they needed them.

After the congress, the scouts were taken to the 10th Avn. Co. mess hall. Following breakfast, they left by bus for a hand-to-hand combat class courtesy of the USAIS Ranger Command at Watson Field. After the class, they went to the USAIS kennel area where 1st Lt. Jon I. Akesson, training officer for the Scout Dog Det., explained to the scouts the mission of the scout dog, their training, and then put two of his dogs through basic obedience command and an obstacle course. Following a tour of the kennels, the explorers went to Lower Shelton Range for a demonstration of "quick kill" and "kill." Here they taught the principles of "quick kill" and "kill" and then put two of his dogs through basic obedience command and an obstacle course. ## Direct VA Loans Available To Many Georgia Counties

ATLANTA—There are now more than one hundred twelve Georgia counties on the Veterans Administration's list of "direct" home loan counties. Pete Wheeler, Veterans Service Director, said, "Direct VA loans can be made in areas where private capital is not generally available."

Wheeler added that many of the counties on the direct loan list are restricted in that certain municipalities within the counties are not open to the direct loans. Any field office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service can supply interested veterans with a list of direct home loan areas.

In addition the Veterans Administration may guarantee a home loan by a private lender to an eligible veteran up to $7,500 or 50 per cent of the loan, whichever is less. The Veterans Administration estimates that about 85 per cent of the GI home loans now being made are to Old War and Vietnam Era veterans. Under recently passed legislation WW II veterans may still apply for home loans using the regular formula for computing eligibility.

There is no maximum on amounts of guarantee or insured loans made to veterans.

Disposal Branch Is Multi-Million Dollar Business

A $19 million business is conducted each year at Fort Benning's Property Disposal Branch where some material is channeled back into service and the remainder is sold at public auction.

Local spot bid sales are usually conducted at two-month intervals and staged on a Wednesday in the middle of the month whenever possible.

Each spot bid sale attracts approximately 100 buyers that come mostly from the Georgia-Alabama area. These buyers are given an opportunity to inspect the property before the sale and then to bid competitively in person, along with other people interested in the same items.

The sale is similar to an auction in this respect, and the highest bidder is awarded the items on which he bids successfully. The purchaser then has five days in which to remove his property from the disposal yard.

Local spot bid sales are conducted at Fort Benning by Atlanta's contracting office.

13 Per Cent Sold

Usually 13 per cent of all material which comes to the yard is actually sold. The other 87 per cent is returned to service if the items can be used by the Army and other military departments, various federal agencies and service educational activities. They are authorized, in that order, to receive the property, claiming whatever they want before the remainder finally goes up for sale.

The property disposal activity at Fort Benning, a function of Quartermaster Services, may have on hand as many as 2,300 items at one time.

Staff of 18

The activity is headed by J. R. Rhodes, with a staff of 18.

During fiscal year 1967 about $19 million worth of material was received and disposed of. Of this, property valued at $4 million was used within the Department of Defense (DOD), transferred to other federal agency or donated to agencies of special interest to DOD, and scheduled classes oriented to their specific needs.

The eight-week course, given on each Saturday morning, includes leadership trails, land navigation and map reading, inspections, first aid, and drill and ceremonies.

Capt. Vernon K. Hansen, company commander, explained the main objective of the program is to "develop the junior NCOs leadership ability and basic military knowledge."

Unable to lean on any prototypes of such a program, Lt. Herbert V. Körner, executive officer, found it necessary to conceive and develop the entire program of instruction. He was aided by personnel from the Training Center's NCO Academy and Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School.

Col. Herbert E. Wolff, commander of the Training Center, taking a personal interest in this program of instruction for his administrative and "desk soldiers," has characterized the efforts of Hq. Co. as "a logical extension of scheduled professional schooling."

Initiative: Enthusiasm

"Through the initiative and enthusiasm of all our personnel," he explained, "every man of the Training Center maintains a posture of professional competence and combat readiness. We must be prepared to make a rapid transition from administrative supervisor to combat leader."

ATC Offers Unique NCO Program

By PFC George O. Hansen

In addition to instruction given by the company officers, all of whom are OCS graduates, first aid is taught by Committee Gp. First Sgt. Henry Miller, a veteran of 21 years, service. He is in charge of that part of the program concerning inspection techniques.

According to Miller, "the men initially were reluctant to attend the Saturday classes; however as the training progressed, I've received nothing but favorable comments."

welcomed by both Gen. Throckmorton, and Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., Fort Benning's Commandant.

Following the mid-day meal, the aides were taken to Infantry Hall, where they viewed the presentation, "I am the Infantry."

Next, the group received a briefing on the Infantry Center and Infantry School activities.

A visit to Lower Shelton range was next on the visitors' itinerary, and there the aides learned about "Quick Kill," an instant firing technique which eliminates the aiming of the weapon. The Benning, and fired the weapons used in this phase of training.

Held Conference

The party returned to Infantry Hall after the "Quick Kill" visit, and held their conference.

The men observed night vision devices in operation on Glenn Field, prior to returning to the Main Officers' Club for an official reception, hosted by Gen. Throckmorton.

and Sgt. Maj. George Sweeney, enlisted branch, office of personnel operations.

The graduation is scheduled for 11 a.m. in George C. Marshall Auditorium. A guest sergeant's major will follow at 12 in the 7-6 Club. Commanded by Capt. Robert E. Lee, the 72nd Co., 7th Stu. Bn., The Student Brigade, moved into billets vacated by officer candidates and began 12 weeks of Vietnam-oriented training on September 6.

The perimeter was methodically overrun, and soldiers scheduled to receive the 678-hour course in 41 classes here in the second year. The NCOC program has had an input of a company a week since the 72nd started it, and 2,100 men in 11 companies are engaged in the training as the first prepares to finish.

Withdraw

The two Americans pulled back to another hilltop, carrying with them the squad's M-16 machinegun and 170 rounds. The belts of bullets were soon gone, but the enemy's Infantry came on.

Screaming like madmen, Nichols and the first sergeant barked their way with machine, and he yodeled through groups of guerrillas—and somehow—managed to link up with his platoon pressing to their relief.

From a hospital bed in Japan, Nichols learned the details of that long night. By body count, 300 Vietnamese dead were strewn about, 27 of them butchered by bayonets and machetes.

Doctors removed 46 pieces of shrapnel from Nichols. Shot in the posterior, his books had been blown off during the attack by either mortar round or a mine.

Despite the terror of that night, Nichols hopes to return to Vietnam as a combat platoon leader. He'd particularly like to serve as a head of the class will wear the three stripes and rocker he says, "There was always someone who tries to do someone's good, and I want to do my best to defend it."

Landing System Installed at Lawson Army Airfield

By Bill Hardin

Lawson Army Aviation Command has boosted a new air navigation system which will afford a great service to Fort Benning and all commands and agencies flying into Lawson Army Airfield.

The new facility is known as an Instrument Landing System (ILS) and has just been installed at a cost in excess of $160,000.

The installation began in the summer of 1965 with site preparation, which was accomplished by a civilian contractor, under the supervision of the resident engineer, from the Savannah District, of the Army corps of Engineers.

Equipment installation was accomplished by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

In addition to the installation of the localizer and glide slope transmitters on Lawson Airfield, two other radar transmitters, known as marker beacons or beacons have been installed at points approximately one half mile and four and one-half miles southeast of the field. Each of these marker beacons transmits a coded identification and are aligned with the center of the runway.

Source of Pride

The new addition to the airfield, according to Lawson Airfield Operations Officer, Maj. James E. Lybrand "is a source of great pride to members of the aviation command and to the pilots who fly in and out of Lawson."

ILS enables a fixed wing pilot to make a precision approach to the runway in minimum weather, to the extent of land when there is but a 200-foot ceiling, and a visibility of only one-half mile or runway visibility of but 2000 feet.

The new equipment is also available for use by rotary wing aircraft (helicopters) which are capable of being operated under instrument conditions.

Aircraft using the new service must be equipped with proper radio receivers used in making the approach.

Mainline Altitude

The pilots of such planes are able to maintain their proper altitude and course on the final approach by both visual and audio use of the radio receivers mounted on the instrument panel.

This equipment provides guidance, even though the pilot is not actually able to view the runway until he is but a few seconds away from landing.

ILS consists of three different types of radio transmitters and requires no one to man the ground installed equipment, although it must be constantly monitored. It is in constant operation.

The new facility provides guidance after the pilot has been given a radar vector to the final approach course. It may also be used when a radar vector service is available.

Soldiers Find Aid From AER

Know where to turn for emergency financial aid? Help may be at the nearest Army Emergency Relief (AER) Office. All United States Continental Army Command installations have AER available to those with a genuine need for assistance.

In keeping with its motto "The Army Takes Care of Its Own," the AER has given financial assistance to thousands of military members and dependents since the program's inception in 1942.

Assistance may be in the form of loans without interest or grants, whenever repayment would cause undue hardship.

Common Situation

Some of the more common situations in which emergency financial help is rendered include: loss of pay or other personal funds; emergency medical, dental and hospital expenses; travel expenses during an emergency leave; and emergency transportation of dependents including dependents involved in meeting port calls.

AER statistics for August show that in USCONARC alone, 3,242 cases were handled, and $91,652.67 was loaned or granted.

Maj. Gen. George A. Carter (Ret.), Army-wide AER director, said, "The turbulent times created by the war in Vietnam and the resultant shifting of personnel throughout the Army, both in CONUS and overseas, has added considerably to the number of requests for emergency financial assistance."

Real Meaning

The true meaning of assistance for a loan and said he always had supported AER and intended to continue doing so. Men and women of the Army should be thoroughly familiar with the way AER works, how it helps and what it provides, as outlined in AR 910-10, Army Emergency Relief. Even those who may have had their own requests for AER help rejected for cause, must realize that in cases of genuine need, AER does its meritorious mission and does deserve the support of all.

Fort Benning Movie Schedule

SYNOPSIS

THE LAST SAFARI
The story of one man's courageous fight to preserve the wild life of Africa against the unconcern of white hunters. Running time: 106 minutes.

CUTE CAPER... Shapely Katherine Walsh plays the part of a beautiful young "hippie" who resides in a flower bed in American International Pictures' color and Panavision film, "The Trip."

Galaxy of Stars Orbits Overseas Installations

A galaxy of stars, under the firm star, also made the sponsorship of the USO, have been orbiting military installations in recent months to entertain U. S. servicemen overseas.

To mention a few: The Frank Fontaine Show, a variety group spent 17 days in Vietnam with the troops. Charlton Heston, well known to movie fans, has appeared at bases, hospitals and outdoors in RVN.

Wendell Corey, stage, screen and TV star, visited men in Thailand and RVN. Miss America, Jane Anne Jayroe, and a bevy of beauties, were received with open arms by troops in Vietnam. The 17-day trip marked the first time that a Miss America had traveled overseas to meet and greet U. S. servicemen.

George Jessel was a smashing hit with troops in Europe during his three-week tour there.
