Conference To Draw 50 Generals

Girl Born at 12:04 A.M. Is MAH Stork Derby Winner

The toll of the bells announcing the new year had just faded away when little Cynthia Elizabeth Brown arrived to win the 1967 Stork Derby at Martin Army Hospital.

The 7½-pound baby girl was born to CPT and Mrs. Ralph F. Brown at 12:04 a.m. Sunday. CPT Brown is assigned to the Hq. 5th Student Bn. (OC), TSB.

As winner of the derby, sponsored annually by the BAYONET and The Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, Cynthia and her parents will receive a galaxy of gifts from the area merchants.

Merchants taking part in the derby this year include: National Bank of Fort Benning, $10 savings account; The Book Store, sterling silver baby cup; Berling Appliances, musical TV & radio toy; Bonanza Sirofin Pit, two steak dinners; Valley Bread Meat Co., 5 pounds T-bone steak; Continental Tire Co., balance & rotate four tires; Tony's Pizza, large Tony's special pizza; Wall's Inc., $15 free merchandise or allowance; Golden's Military Store, $5 worth of free tailoring; Brooks S & P & Market, $5 worth of baby food; Bill Heard Chevrolet, 15 gallons of gasoline; Love-man's, infant carrier seat; Fieldcrest Store, $5 gift certificate; Maxwell Brothers, kiddie fire truck; Appliance Sales & Rentals, $5 per hair dryer; Royal Crown Bottling Co., 3 cases of Royal Crown Cola; Martin Theaters, $5 book of happiness; Carp's Dept. Store, 22 pieces lavette feeding set; Miller Taylor Shoes, ladies' hosiery & 5 u.s. slippers; Shaky's Pizza Parlor, two pizzas; Ledger-Enquirer Co., $10 full color portrait.

Fort Benning is host to many dignitaries and high-ranking officers, but 50 generals on one time may be a radical departure from the norm.

Yet that is the approximate number that will be here January 8-13, along with over 130 other conferees, for a U. S. Army Reserve (USAR) training divisions-commanders conference.

The influx of USAR commanders and staffs will begin early Sunday as the visitors arrive at Mosegoe and Lawson Army airports and by private automobile.

The five-day conference begins Monday morning with an official welcome by MG Robert A. York, Fort Benning commander.

Individual sessions will be conducted by representatives of The Infantry Center, The Infantry School, Army Training Center, Third Army installations and the Central Army Command (CONARC).

In addition to the conferees, other general officers expected for all or part of the week (See MEETING, Page 2)

MG YORK OFFICIALLY WELCOMES OFFICERS, EM OF TWO INFANTRY BATTALIONS ASSIGNED HERE

Two recently arrived organizations were officially welcomed Wednesday by MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

The general spoke to a formation at Harmony Church of the 2nd Bn., 505th Inf., 2nd Airborne Division, here on a temporary change of assignment from Fort Bragg, N. C.

Commanded by LTC Hanz K. Dreuner, the airborne battalion will assist the 197th Inf. Brigade in its commitments of support in the administration of training. It replaces the 1st Bn., 502d Inf., which returned to Fort Bragg in mid-December after serving here since August.

The newest permanently assigned organization, the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., which arrived in several increments from Rucker, Ala.

Commanded by LTC Charles A. Smith, the battalion is presently going through additional training phases and later will supply manpower needed by the 197th Inf. Brigade for the post's expanded training programs.

When the 5th Battalion arrived at Fort Rucker in 1960, it marked the first time any element of the 31st Infantry had been stationed in the U. S.

The 31st was activated in 1911 in the Philippines and fought in Russia in 1918-1919, where it received its nickname, "Polar Bears."

After serving in Russia during the Bolshevik Revolution for two years, the 31st moved back to the Philippines. In 1950, it went to Korea to serve with the 7th Inf. Div. before moving to Fort Rucker.

The 5th Battalion was reorganized in October, 1966, and earmarked for transfer to Fort Benning.

Members of the Dental Section will select winners by grades.

Each winner will receive an electric toothbrush.

Schools Planning Poster Contest On Dental Care For 3-8 Graders

A poster contest on dental health will be conducted in the third through the eighth grades of the Fort Benning dependent schools this month.

All posters must be submitted on or before February 9 in order to be judged for the opening of Dental Health Week February 9-11.

No commercial grades or stencils may be used.

At each school, three posters will be selected for each grade level to compete in the post-wide contest.

Center Sets Orientation On USMA

The Infantry Center inauguration on the USMA, West Point, New York, at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday at Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall.

CPT James Matheson of the admissions office, USMA, will cover all the facets of admission and attendance at the Military Academy and will show a short movie.

Center Sets Orientation On USMA

All persons and parents of those who are interested in attending the USMA are cordially invited to attend.

MAJ Houston P. Matheson, USMA Liaison officer for Fort Benning, may be contacted during duty hours at 564-7211 for information about West Point throughout the year.

Home professional care is a must for 'permanent' teeth

Webster's dictionary defines the word "permanent" as follows: Continuing or enduring, fixed, lasting, not temporary or transient.

We have long been accustomed to the use of this word in referring to our teeth. Yet, in a study conducted by the American Dental Association, it was revealed that a majority of adult dental patients believed that loss of teeth and wearing of dentures was inevitable.

Actually, "permanent teeth" are meant to be just that—permanent. But it's not difficult to understand how such ideas came into existence.

When more than half of the population over 45 years of age is in need of dentures, it would seem reasonable for many individuals to assume that their dental future is not too bright.

Loss of teeth is not inevitable and to think otherwise and give up dental care for the expectation of dentures is like allowing an injured leg to become gangrenous because an artificial leg can be substituted. Obviously, artificial teeth cannot be expected to be as efficient as natural teeth.

If a generation of children and their parents can be made aware of, and convinced of, the vital importance of positive dental health as well as early and regular dental care, present knowledge and professional skills can maintain oral tissues in an advanced state of health and function throughout life.

We can save our teeth and the teeth of our children, if only we take care, home and professional.

Q. I live in an area where there is little fluoride in the water. One of my neighbors suggested giving my children fluoride tablets. Is this a safe way to give my children fluoride? Does it really work?

A. You should first discuss the possibility of using these tablets with your dentist. He will know or can determine the exact amount of fluoride in your water, and can prescribe accordingly.

He may also recommend the application of a fluoride solution to the teeth to supplement the tablets. Tablets are thought to be as effective as fluoridated water, provided they are administered regularly.

This demands a good deal of diligence on the part of the parent, and it is often difficult to make certain the child takes his tablet daily.

To assure maximum effectiveness, you must give your child his tablet every day, preferably from the day he is born until he reaches the age of about 12. Skipping the dosage one day and dosing the next might be harmful.

If you take family vacations, be sure to take the tablets along.

Assuredly, if you get in the habit of giving your child his daily tablet, his dentition will be better protected. Don't forget, however, to emphasize regular toothbrushing habits and to watch his consumption of sweets.

This is as important as the fluoride treatment. Such regular attention to your child's oral hygiene will assure him a lifetime of good health.

Surgeon Says

Birth is most critical period during life of a human being

This is how Doctor Clement Smith of Boston, one of our great teachers and scholars of American pediatrics, referred to the interval between the birth of a baby and the time when its continued living is established.

This is always a dramatic period. There is no time more critical in human life. Never again must so many intricate adjustments be made so rapidly.

In most instances these adjustments are made by the baby itself and the vital processes which support life function smoothly and effectively with a minimum of assistance.

But, if we marvel that an infant will breathe spontaneously within seconds of delivery, let us not presume that in every instance there is assurance of continued normal breathing.

The respirations of a newborn baby must be watched and evaluated frequently—at times, supported for several days. Because a baby only seconds old can suck and swallow is no guarantee that its early feedings can be given without expert care.

It would be unsafe to assume that in every instance when these vital functions begin normally that there is no need for continued attention.

Vigilance on the part of all those who care for infants in the newborn nursery is vital for their continued well being. All babies are observed and breathing, their appearances and actions - all have meaning for the pediatrician.

The sum total of our observations over a period of days (and nights) allows us to send most infants home with their mothers three to four days after birth with confidence that they will do well.

At times babies must remain in the nursery for a longer period. Progress in feeding to nurse may be unusually slow and it may require further special care in being fed. Another infant's breathing may not be satisfactory and it will be kept under watchful eyes for a few days longer until breathing is normal and serious disease avoided.

Some babies are born months too early and require the special care of a premature nursery team of physicians, nurses and many other trained and experienced staff members. The most frequent reasons why the homecoming of some babies may be delayed.

There are other more serious situations which occur and which are detected only by repeated careful examinations. The baby who "just isn't doing well," who is growing too slowly, who becomes more listless as its infection worsens, and whose life is threatened, is rare. But during the past year we had a few and our treatment was effective in saving the babies.

Space does not permit a longer detailed discussion of pediatrics in the newborn nursery. However, it is hoped that what we have written will give some insight into how much importance we attach to this aspect of our specialty and how much of our time and attention we must give to it.

Success of Viet War Depends on 4 Phases

There are four kinds of war going on simultaneously in Vietnam and failure in any one will undercut success in the others, according to Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

He said the military and political war is going quite well, and described the economic war as a satisfactory accomplishment "although it is not perfect."

The pacification war, or control over Viet Cong terrorists, he termed a tedious, tiresome business "that is not yet rolling as it should be. There are some good doctrines in this respect, he said, and some pilot projects show promise.

Ambassador Lodge said the "great edge of East Asia" has been denied to Peking expansionism, explaining "this would surely not have happened had we been driven out of Vietnam, or had we abandoned Vietnam."

The ambassador said he could not think of an aggressive threat to Australia and Japan, for example, that would not almost immediately involve World War III.

He said he believed that what the U. S. is doing in Vietnam is not only something the Vietnamese, but a limited action to prevent an unlimited holocaust.

New Amendments Offer Added Medical Security

The Military Medical Benefits Amendments of 1966 are major steps in providing medical care for military personnel and their families at civilian facilities.

When a military family is assigned to a remote area or the service member is separated from his family due to overseas assignment, it is often necessary to rely on civilian medical services if sickness or accident strikes.

Knowledge that large medical bills will not deplete the family savings and that adequate medical care is available for his care is available for his family is vital to a serviceman's peace of mind.

The 1966 program brings this assurance. It expands the existing civilian medical program for dependents of active duty personnel and, for the first time, extends civilian care to relatives of the dependents and eligible dependents of deceased military personnel.

Benefits for most dependents of active duty personnel went into effect Oct. 1 of this year.

For you, the man in uniform, the Medical Benefits Amendments of 1966 provide necessary health care at minimal personal expense for your family when government medical facilities are not available.

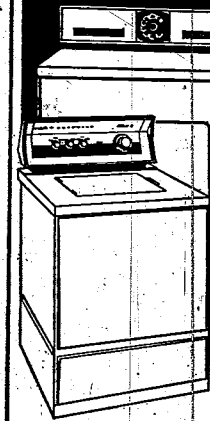

You can expect to hear a great deal more about the new medical benefits.

To keep your personal affairs in good order, make sure the year's complete information on the new program, that you understand it and that your dependents understand it. (AFBN)

Hails and Farewells Are Routine For Benning's Hospitality House

To many Army people their lives seem to be punctuated with "hails and farewells," as assignment follows assignment, but at Hospitality House here, hail and farewell is a daily and thriving business.

The Army Community Service welcome center in Bldg. 274 on Dixie Road is the first place newcomers look for, and in many cases, it is their last stop when they clear the post.

ACS Aid Comes In All Languages

Assistance in any language can be translated "Army Community Service" at Fort Benning where military personnel and their dependents can get help in solving personal problems even if they do not speak English.

Fort Benning, Columbus, Georgia and Phenix City, Alabama, comprise a cosmopolitan area with residents from all over the world many of whom have volunteered to serve as interpreters.

Among the volunteers are those who know French, German, Japanese, Portuguese, Spanish and Tagalog.

Army Community Service is located in Bldg. 5, Room 2. Its purpose is to assemble in one place all available resources to assist military personnel and their families in the solution of problems.

This assistance center makes sure that the office or agency best equipped to resolve a family's problem is put in contact with the family.

Not a welfare agency, Army Community Service has its motto, "Self-help, Service and Stability."

Fort Benning Society Women's News

Established in November, 1964, as the Community Service Agency, Army Community Service provides help in such areas as child care and adjustment, financial, household supplies, housing, legal, marital, mental and physical handicaps, transportation and off the post, and many other problems related to military service.

Advice and assistance are provided to dependents whose sponsors are overseas.

Activities Announced By OWC

New charm and modeling classes with an emphasis on the "new you" for the new year will be offered members of Officers' Wives' Club.

Mrs. Stephen McIntyre, chairman of the Charm and Modeling School may be contacted for enrollment and complete information. Call her at 545-4560.

The classes are instructed by Mrs. Frank Roberts, a professional model.

New classes for knitting will begin next Thursday from 1:30 p.m. at the OWC Lounge. There's still time to enroll by calling Mrs. William Gillingham at 545-5587.

To participate in these activities, you must be a member of the Officers' Wives Club. To join contact either Mrs. William Jenkins at 687-2970 or Mrs. Truman Maynard at 545-3590.

More than 85 women at Fort Benning serve as training volunteers to assist Army Community Service with administrative, emergency, translation, publicity, transportation, casualty assistance, and in other areas.

To register call 545-7813 or 545-4043.

Army Community Service

Dear Readers,

Army Community Service suspects that the season of "good will to men" is a year-round season for some people who serve their fellow-men quietly and without fanfare when they see an opportunity to do so.

The identities in the following stories are not known at this time, but steps are being taken to give recognition for services rendered.

During the week before Christmas a new baby arrived. The mother had managed very well until the day before Christmas. There were some things the baby had to have and she could not get them. A call was placed to ACS and the wheels were set in motion to assist the mother.

Following up the next day, ACS checked with the agency involved and the mother to discover that the tax-driver who had been called to provide transportation financed the purchases himself without being asked.

The mother reported that this taxi driver was well known for courteous actions.

Basic Trainees Learn Life Saving

"The life you save may be your own!"
Soldiers undergoing basic training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, hear these words early in the eight weeks of concentrated training.
They are spoken during a block of instruction known as "First Aid" and by people who have discovered by experience how true they are.
"Stop the bleeding! Clear the airway! Protect the wound! Treat or prevent shock! Again and again committee group instructors repeat the four life saving steps to trainees assembled to learn basic first aid procedures.

Four Steps Important
LT David Brian, officer-in-charge of the committee group general subject committee, which supervises the eight-hour first aid course given to the new soldiers, feels that the importance of the four steps cannot be over emphasized.
"When the soldier learns to practice these steps," the Lieutenant says, "he will be prepared to save his own life or the lives of his fellow soldiers if other help is not available in difficult combat situations."

First aid instructors are assigned to committee groups which bear the responsibility for one-third of the 32 hours of instruction received by the basic trainees. Besides first aid, committees are responsible for military justice and CBR instruction. Two committee groups directly supervise the range firing and related instruction.

Instructors are SFC Stanley Yelko and SSG Earl Keith. Both served in Vietnam, receiving extensive credit the falling ratio of American combat deaths to the wounded in Vietnam to the beamed up first aid program given all basic trainees of the Army.

In the second week of training, the soldier trainees receive the first of two four-hour blocks of first aid instruction. This first block deals with common medical emergencies as fractures, weather injuries and situations which may require the use of artificial respiration.

Wounds of the head and jaw are particularly dangerous because bleeding is generally severe and difficult to check.
"We have a two-fold purpose in introducing common medical emergency first aid this early in basic training," says Keith.

Practical Knowledge
"We do it so that trainees can put the practical knowledge into practice—even during an occasional rare. Occasional one of the trainees has a fainting spell or, perhaps, breaks an arm and the other soldiers are able to cope with the situation until competent medical help arrives because of this early training," he said.

"The key, beginning this early with the four life saving steps, we are able to make the maximum impression. Hearing the steps repeated constantly helps to make response automatic in an emergency situation," Keith added.

A good portion of the instruction leans on the "do it yourself" technique.
The first block of instruction is set up with a team of four instructors. Following a preliminary lecture, a company of basic trainees is split into four groups who rotate, attending a lecture and demonstration period with each instructor.

Basic Instruction
The instructor gives a few minutes of basic instruction to handle the injured person with greatest care, apply a dressing to any wound present, stop any bleeding, but do not apply a tourniquet unless the trainees are allowed to practice applying splints to each other.
Soldiers are encouraged to use materials at hand.

since under combat conditions proper materials may not be readily available.
Donald Nutter, another Vietnam veteran, says, "But, just as important, the soldiers should know when to give the morphine—or rather, when not to give it. Pain can often be relieved by simple measures, such as keeping the casualty warm and quiet," he noted.

Shock Treatment
The next step in training is the treatment and prevention of shock. In its initial phase, shock, defined as great body weakness, may be hard to identify.
But its treatment and prevention are particularly important, since even the less seriously wounded may die from shock if left untreated.
At the third station trainees learn the proper use of morphine to arrive, if will be too late. And, he should not give up too soon," says SSG Joseph Avery.

Medical Emergencies
The second block also deals with common medical emergencies, the difference being that the later phase of training deals with some types of emergencies that the trainee probably will not see until he reaches a combat zone.
The first of these stations deals with the treatment of first, second and third degree burns. Also included are white phosphorus burns, the type caused by certain kinds of grenades or artillery fire, since this particular sort of burn does not respond to ordinary treatment.
At the second station how soldiers are taught how to control the excessive bleeding which can result from various types of serious wounds.

Soldiers Impressed
The soldiers are impressed with the fact that hemorrhaging must be checked as quickly as possible, since the loss of blood induces shock and death.
Again, proper methods of applying the tourniquet are demonstrated.
As at the other stations, trainees are put through practical training. One trainee acts as the casualty while the other administrators first aid.

Carries Demonstrated
The soldiers are next shown how to move the sick and wounded. Four methods are demonstrated.
The most commonly used, according to Yelko, is the fireman's carry. Using the fireman's carry, the soldier lifts the casualty from a face down position to his own down position.

necessary for untrained personnel to give morphine. If the second four-hour block could kill the casualty," SFC Donald Nutter, another Vietnam veteran, says.
"But, just as important, the soldiers should know when to give the morphine—or rather, when not to give it. Pain can often be relieved by simple measures, such as keeping the casualty warm and quiet," he noted.

Fourth Station
At the fourth and final station trainees are taught various methods of artificial respiration. Using an inflatable mannikin, the instructor demonstrates the preferred method, mouth-to-mouth or mouth-to-nose respiration. Trainees are also taught the chest pressure-arm lift method.
"Seconds count. So the soldiers must begin right away if he waits for qualified personnel to arrive, it will be too late. And, he should not give up too soon," says SSG Joseph Avery.

Joseph Avery.
The second four-hour block of first aid instruction is given to the basic trainees in the seventh week of training. Like the first block, the second period is broken down into four stations, each handled by an instructor who lectures initially and then supervises practical application of the appropriate procedures.

Medical Emergencies
The second block also deals with common medical emergencies, the difference being that the later phase of training deals with some types of emergencies that the trainee probably will not see until he reaches a combat zone.
The first of these stations deals with the treatment of first, second and third degree burns. Also included are white phosphorus burns, the type caused by certain kinds of grenades or artillery fire, since this particular sort of burn does not respond to ordinary treatment.

back and carries the injured man prone across his shoulders.
If the victim is less seriously injured, he might be carried "saddle-back." Or, for short distances, the pack strap carry is useful. And if the injured man can walk, the soldier might use the supporting carry.

Trainees Practice
Trainees practice the pistol-belt carry, by means of which an unconscious man may be lifted onto a soldier's back and carried for longer distances.
The last station in the second block of instruction deals with chest and abdominal wounds.
Moulages—plastic imitation wounds which may be strapped on a "casualty" for demonstration purposes—are used for realism.

Severe Wounds
Since the life of the soldier with a severe chest wound may depend upon how quickly his chest is sealed, trainees are instructed on how to make improvised bandages from a rolled up poncho belt.
When dealing with the more serious wounds, trainees are encouraged to help prevent unnecessary loss of life, not to attempt extensive treatment.

Goal
"If the company medical officers are wounded or killed during the fighting, one of these trainees might have to fill in until qualified medical help arrives," Keith says. "And that is our goal—to prepare the new soldier to help himself or others if the help should arise."

USMA Candidate Testing Is Set for Next Week

Candidates for admission to the United States Military Academy will undergo academic, medical and physical aptitude examinations here January 11-14 to determine their qualifications for admission with the class scheduled to enter the academy in July, 1967.

Identical examinations are being held simultaneously at approximately 36 other Army, Navy and Air Force installations in the United States and overseas.

The local examinations are being conducted by a board of officers of which COL David C. Sherrard, deputy post commander, United States Army Infantry Center, is president.

Permission to take the examinations is limited to duly nominated candidates, who have been nominated for one of the sources provided; by law, to whom letters of nomination have been issued by the Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

COL Sherrard said that the local examining board does not have authority to issue nominations or to process applications for a nomination.

The total authorized strength of the Corps of Cadets and all sources of appointment and admission are specified by law. About 1,650 new cadets are admitted each year.

The largest quota, representing about 85 per cent of the total, is allotted to the various states and Congressional districts for which the nominations are made by senators and representatives in Congress.

Each Senatorial seat and each Congressional district may be represented at the Military Academy by no more than five cadets at any one time and new cadets may be admitted only as vacancies occur.

Applicants seeking a Congressional nomination should apply directly to their Senators or Representative.

Sherrard advises that the intended date of admission to West Point. Only one class is admitted each year, the date of admission this year being July 1, 1967. Applicants who are service connected, June 27, 1950 and January 1, 1955, for sons of enlisted men or officers who are listed men of the Army and Air Force (regular and Reserve components), sons of deceased veterans who died in service, and sons of service-disabled persons who were in the Regular Army or the Regular Army of the United States, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and for non-graduate of honor military or honor naval schools.

COL Sherrard said that although the standards for admission are necessarily high, any healthy, intelligent young man or woman who has good grades in mathematics, English composition, and scholastic aptitude; a series of physical aptitude examinations to measure coordination and development; and a thorough medical examination.

District Engineer Reviews 1966

Page 14—The Bayonet, Fort Benning, Ga., Jan. 6, 1967

The Savannah District Engineer of construction being built by timber sales were produced at the Fort Stewart military reservation, where the ground was set an all-time record of $1.4 million. Fort Benning also in the April of this year, the construction of the $4.9 West Point dam and reservoir project on the Chattahoochee River above West Point, Ga.

Another highlight of particular significance in 1966 was the presentation of the "Distinguished Architectural Achievement Award" to the Savannah Engineer District by the U. S. Army Chief of Engineers.

The award was made for the design and construction of the $1.2 million Kennedy Hall, academic and headquarters building for the Special Warfare Center for the Eastern Signal School, near Fort Benning, Ga.

This is the second consecutive year that Savannah District has won the award. The "Distinguished Architectural Award" is given for their design and construction of the $8.7 million expansion of Officer Candidates School facilities, ranges and supporting utilities (Southeast Asia), $490,000; steam distributor system extension, $465,000; and procurement of 17 prefabricated buildings for $160,000.

The Engineers forecast of major work to be awarded during the first six months in 1967 included more than $32 million of new construction at Fort Gordon.

An enlisted men's barracks complex, consisting of four each of battalion mess buildings, battalion headquarters, a d classroom buildings, battalion administration - supply buildings, a regimental chapel, 8 troop headquarters, 2 gymnasium, PX, etc, will cost approximately $12 million to complete.

Four other smaller jobs are programmed.

Enlistment Option Spurs Volunteers for RVN Duty

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Department of the Army has announced a 15-month enlistment program in the U.S. Army Reserves with concurrent call to active duty for service in Vietnam, Vietnam and processing. Accepted individuals will hold the grade they held when last separated from active duty or the current grade reserve status must be current.

Those eligible for the enlistment option must be former active Army personnel who are currently in the National Guard or U.S. Army Reserves. Accepted personnel will serve 12 months in Vietnam, then hold their National Guard or Reserve unit. Applicants must be qualified in an MOS for which a requirement exists in Vietnam. Those completing the 15-month duty who desire an extension must receive specific authority from the Office of Personnel Operations.

UNCLE Star Operates on Split-Second Schedule

Recently, a man who had a "business dinner date" with a woman, left to do the work of a waiter at a restaurant at a specified time received a call from the actor telling him to wait for eight minutes.

He was. This is only one of countless instances which have been cited about the punctuality of the man who became internationally famous because of his connection with a national TV organization known as U.N.C.L.E.

So dependable is Vaughn that MGM was able to schedule an important feature picture, "The Venetian Affair," so that it could be made with Vaughn as star, partly in Venice, Italy, and partly on studio sound stages in Hollywood entirely within the short time he had between sessions on the popular television series.

Those who know Vaughn well describe him as a courteous, personable, and functional on an acting schedule with split-second precision. He is considered the epitome of the well-organized actor-businessman.

But inside that shell is the soul of a rebel of the Hagar-Gable-Cagney type. A brilliant scholar in private life, Vaughn has opinions, political and otherwise, for which he is not afraid to fight.

Educationally, he is a few short steps away from being entitled to call himself Doctor Vaughn. He has been working toward a Ph.D. degree at the University of Southern California for several years and has little more to do than write his thesis, which will be on the psychology of acting.

When working on a motion picture set, Vaughn is as terminally reticent, sometimes giving the impression of being cold and aloof. It is a screen which hides a keen sense of humor and friendliness reserved for his intimates.

In "The Venetian Affair," the actor is surrounded by three gorgeous femmes: Elke Sommer, Felicia Farr, and Luciana Paluzzi. In real life he lives in bachelor splendor in a 12-room house filled with antiques.

He takes bombardment by teenage fans in stride. Vaughn is lauded by 1st in London in advance of shooting on "The Venetian Affair," several hundred screaming girls and shouting boys mobbed him to the degree that he had to be dragged to safety in a lavatory.

At home in Hollywood, his only defense has been a light fence around his sprawling homestead.

Based on the prize-winning Tennessee Williams play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," tells the story of a divided family and the conflict between its members when they are faced with the impending death of the father.

The crisis brings to the surface the innate character of the two sons and their wives. It also tells the story of one of these couples, Paul Pollitt (Paul Newman) who takes refuge in alcohol and Maggie (Faye Dunaway), obsessed with a passion for her disturbed husband and determined as a "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" to break down his resistance to her love. The bright, fun, story of two dedicated airline hostess jaspers who are kept at keeping one up, one down, and one pending.

Based on the prize-winning Tennessee Williams play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," tells the story of a divided family and the conflict between its members when they are faced with the impending death of the father.

The crisis brings to the surface the innate character of the two sons and their wives. It also tells the story of one of these couples, Paul Pollitt (Paul Newman) who takes refuge in alcohol and Maggie (Faye Dunaway), obsessed with a passion for her disturbed husband and determined as a "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" to break down his resistance to her love. Running time: 106 minutes. A return engagement.

SYNOPSIS

FUNERAL IN BERLIN — Ex-Army corporal Harry Palmer (Michael Caine) is again thrown into the spotlight this time, the hero of "The Ipcress File" is in Berlin to smuggle a Russian intelligence officer out of East Germany.

After elaborate arrangements are made, the plan is thwarted by a double cross. Further complications are due to the cost of the operation, over $50,000, the necessity to use former Nazis to execute the plan, and the interference of a beautiful Israeli agent (Eva Renzi), who wants the funds for her country's purposes.

The suspense builds as the plot develops to a dramatic climax wherein the easy-going Palmer must baffle the person responsible for the failure. Based on the novel by Len Deighton.

Order Strengthens Role Given CDC for Testing

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — Combat Development Command's role in service testing of newly developed equipment is being strengthened by order of the Chief of Staff.

Also, the Army chief has set up strict new rules designed to safeguard the accuracy of reports on the results of service tests.

Under the new policies, Army Materiel Command will continue to have responsibility for carrying out the tests. However, the tests must be run according to a plan okayed by the intended "user" of the equipment.

In nearly all cases, CDC acts as the representative of Army elements that are the "users."

An agency's report on a service test cannot be changed or "adjusted" by any other agency or headquarters, the new policy guidance provides.

Other elements may comment on the results or call for additional tests, but the "user" still has to approve the additional test plans.

Dunn's 139 Wins Holiday Tourney

TROPHIES AWARDED GOLF WINNERS

Keith Dunn, whose father is retired Army MAJ Alfred Dunn, finished Thursday with a handicapped score of 139 to win top honors in the Golf Tournament played at Sand Hill.

Dunn, who shot an 82 scratch the first day of play and an 84 the second, was presented the first flight trophy by MAJ Norman Williamson, officer in charge of the director of personnel, USAIC, immediately following the final round of play.

First play trophy winner in the second flight was SFC (Aber Nainoa, USA Marksmanship Training Unit, with a handicap score of 139. SFC Nathan Parks, (USA Ret.), captured the third flight trophy with a 130.

THE AFTERMATH
BY LARRY MAHONEY

One side of the story is a familiar one, a saga of opportunity and fame in the arena. This is how Joe Willie Namath rose from the coal harrers of Pennsylvania, became an Alabamian of sorts and went to work for $400,000 after four years of expense-free education. It is the route taken by Ray Perkins, another Crim-Cobra, whose athletic abilities were "purchased by Baltimore for $250,000 this week.

Of course it is not limited to Alabama, though it reaches an apex there. In Texas, in Ohio in Florida and Oregon and in all but a handful of our other states, the promising preps graduate high school with stars (or is it football?) in their eyes. Not for them the worries of financing the high price of college. Sometimes the scholarships come complete with convertibles, pocket money, palaces called athletic dormitories, and of course the girls.

There is another story here, however, a bleak one. Is it possible that our colleges short-change their football players? Sadly, they do.

Mike Shaara is an articulate exponent of this idea. A teacher of creative writing at Florida State University, he was once a catastrophe sergeant, a policeman and an amateur boxer. He lettered in three sports in high school and is a dedicated follower of football.

The man is unhappy with the game's grinding impact on the players. In November, Shaara spoke out in a Saturday Evening Post essay. What he wrote is not favorable to the American institution of football.

The liberty will be taken here to condense his contentions:

"College football is an abuse of the university, of the coaches and the parents, but more than anything else it is a tragic abuse of the kids."

Title Race Tightens In Loop Play

The Fort Benning basketball season was scheduled to resume last night with the undefeated TSB five pitted against the second place 44th Avn. Bn. The game shaped up as the strongest challenge to date for the leading TSB eagles.

The game also threw up for grabs the individual scoring leadership. The 44th's Benny Cobb has netted 294 points for a 25.5 per game average. In last night's tilt at Briant Wells Field House with 11m Rates of TSB only two spots off the pace.

The 15th Gen. Spt. Gp. CTC, tied for second with the 44th Avn. Bn. with a 71 record was to face ATO in the other half of the twin-bill at Briant Wells.

In other action last night, the 10th Arty. was to face the 197th Inf. Bde. and the 69th Armor was going against an improved Marine Army football quintet in the double header at Kelly Hill Field House.

The results of the games were not available at press time.

The league defeaters are clinging last night's action as the beginning of a tight race for the league title.

The league, depending on last night's action, could be sitting with a three-way knot for first place. If the 44th Avn. topped TSB and the 16th successfully handled ATO, all three teams would have identical 81 records.

AFTERMATH

been the star of a college team. His bitterness lay in a realization that he had missed something very important.

"They take everything you've got. All your time and energy for four years. If you're unlucky they 'redshirt' you and take five years. You take easy courses so you won't have to waste time studying. You live most of your life with guys who're doing the same of your life with some free time, you raise hell. When you have some free time, you raise hell. You end up with a bum knee, talking like a scholar, fit for nothing. They call it a scholarship."

"I never learned half as much in classes as I learned outside, and I suspect that's true of many another professor. I learned from bull sessions, and long walks, and one else happened to be reading them. This time is denied the football player on the lucky break called a scholarship. In his free time he raises hell and blames him."

"At the end of the term he must make up the work he missed. He rarely does. But then if a ballplayer fails, well, it was expected of him. During the dead of winter our boy finally breaks it free time, but if you think he uses it to broaden his mind, you are inaccurate. Soon spring practice begins, and the spring scrimmages, the fight for next year's job. I submit that under these conditions any kind of decent education is obviously impossible."

Shaara makes a cold appraisal of the game: "The fact is that there is very little sport, and we all know it. The fact is that college football is a multimillion-dollar business built upon the blood and sweat of thousands of kids who are promised a lot and given precious little in return."

He tempers his criticism with some suggestions. The proposals are strange, but they make sense.

"I am suggesting that college football players ought to be paid. They are producing a valuable commodity, and they ought to be rewarded for it."

Shaara sees, basically, two types of college footballers.

"The first came to school to play football, period. He will tell you that his only interest is going to the pros, and for him most classes are a joke. To consider him a student is to make a farce of education. But doesn't football support thousands and please millions? Then why not let the boy who is interested in it, MAJOR in it. And let him get credit for his work on the field, which is, make no mistake about it, work of a serious and dangerous nature."

The next there is the student who genuinely has taken a football scholarship as his only path to an education. For God's sake, let's give him a chance for one. The rules require that a boy take at least a 12-hour load during the football season. I think that's barbarous. Let's have our student play football untroubled by classes, and then go to classes untroubled by football. In short, don't require anything of him during the season, but let him on campus in the summer. And if his eligibility should run out, continue his scholarship until he gets the degree of his choice."

Military Invited to Jump In '67 Skydiving Pageant

Military parachutists invited by the National Skydivers Association to participate in an International Parachuting Pageant to be held August 1-14 in Athens, Ga.

Deadline for entering the event is Feb. 1, 1967, according to Robert Fair, executive director of the association, who said an entry fee of $50 is required.

Fair said the pageant has the approval of the FAA and Tennessee Aeronautics Commission and will be sanctioned by the National Skydivers Association.

The estimated cost for each entrant, in addition to the entry fee, is $28 for 14 days lodging and $56 dollars for a total of 42 meals. Fair said. Top prize in the pageant is $3,000 and a foot trophy.

Competition is open in Classes A, B, C and D. Type of competition includes accuracy at 3,500 feet (10 second delay allowed) with three jumps required for Class A and accuracy at 4,500 feet (10 second delay allowed) for Classes B, C and D.

Additional information may be obtained from Fair at P.O. Box 135, Athens, Tenn.

Old Six-Pounder Guards OCS Hall of Fame Here

By SP4 David Tharrs
A relic of the "old Army" has been displayed before the Infantry Officer C and i-date Hall of Fame where it is ready for viewing by visitors to the Hall as well as the general public.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN
Cannon Brought Here From Fort Jay

The old Army referred to is that of the last century and the relic is a brass cannon which may have fired during the Mexican War of 1845 - 1848 and saw service with both the Grand Army of the Republic and the Confederate Army during the American Civil War.

The cannon was cast in bronze by the J. T. Ames Founders of Chicopee, Mass., and delivered to the U.S. Army in October, 1845.

It was one of six such cannon ordered and was constructed to fire a six-pound ball. Although no records were kept on the gun at the time, historians feel that it must have seen combat during the Mexican War.

It was called into action by Union Forces again when the Civil War began in 1860. It did not stay with the Union Forces long as it was among several lost at the battle of Chickamauga to the Confederate Forces.

Records later kept by Department of the Army revealed that the cannon was mounted at the entrance to Fort Jay on Governor's Island, New York in 1862.

The latter fact indicates that the cannon was soon recaptured from the Confederate forces during the 1862 short tour with the Confederate forces, however it is the name by which it is still known, the Confederate Six-Pounder.

The cannon was retired to duty director of The Infantry U.S. Field Artillery was furnished with the new Napoleon 12 pounder that year. The weapon remained at a Fort until last year when it was de-activated with the merging of the First and Second U.S. Armies. Col. Nett sought to transfer one of the cannons here.

With the help of BG John T. Corley, chief of staff of the First Army, the Confederate Six-Pounder came to the 5th Battalion area late last year.

Surgeon Says

Household items are often killers

Common household chemicals can cause poisoning among young children because adults do not always show proper precautions for their safety.

Children between the ages of one and five are most prone to poisoning accidents, according to statistics.

These chemicals have a purpose - to clean, heal, kill rats or decorate, but if they should be accidentally eaten or misused, they become a killer because of a toxin they produce in the body.

This toxin is more deadly than that generated by germs causing diseases such as tuberculosis or typhoid fever. These chemicals which are ready made and often highly "virulent" are "test tube toxins" put together by modern industry and used in millions of households for everyday tasks.

Essily Obtained It is no longer necessary to go to the drug store for poisonous killing agents. Arsenic, rat poison, carburetor, tetrachloride, kerosene, hair lotions or sprays, bleaches, paints and other agents may be purchased at any supermarket.

Together with food in the shopping basket, it is hard to distinguish at a glance which is edible and which is not, especially for a young child. Brought into the home with edible items, the child's immature judgment will associate them with food, something tasty, unless he is instructed otherwise.

For every hundred fatal cases of poisoning recorded annually, one can confidently assert that there are thousands of nonfatal, but often crippling cases.

Regardless of the exact number of cases of poisoning, they are so frequent that each of us probably has personal knowledge of one or more cases where a child accidentally ingested a poisonous substance. Thus, poisoning now looms as a major public health problem.

Moreover, at the rate new chemical compounds are being invented, an even greater threat to health from poisoning is likely to occur in the future.

Prevention Measures You can use the following measures to protect your child and your family against poisoning:

Storage: Keep all poisons... Duty - Honor - Country. These three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, what you will be. They are the rallying points to build courage when you are weary, when you are weary when there seems to be little chance for faith, to create a hope when hope becomes forlorn.

OCS is worthwhile when you consider advantages

Army Officer Candidate School is rough. There are no two ways about it. You are down physically, you are down academically, you can be built up, if you are weak academically, you can be tutored. But it is the grit to keep going when the chips are down that is so difficult to acquire.

Why should you want to go to OCS if it is so difficult? Simply, because the advantages make it worthwhile. You will be a soldier, physically, mentally and morally equipped to handle the responsibilities of a leader in today's modern Army.

You must, however, take a good look at yourself before filling out the application papers. Do you truly want to be a leader of others? Do you welcome the added burdens of responsibility that come with a commission? Officers are required to make important decisions, initiate ideas and, in any case, carry the load of others.

Soldiers who do not want increased responsibility should not apply. Do you have the determination? Determination is...

The Judge Says...

Observe these points to protect your wishes

Most people realize the importance of making a will. However, after your will has been made there are certain things that you should know in order to insure that your wishes are carried into effect.

You should put your will in a safe place where it will not be lost or damaged. If you wish you may send the will to The Adjutant General in Washington, D.C., with the instructions that upon your death the will be mailed to your next of kin. If you do this the will should be enclosed in a plain envelope stating what it is and where it should be sent.

You may also place your will in a safety deposit box, with a public official, or a strong box. The most important thing is to notify your family or a close friend where your will may be found upon your death. Do not sign more than one copy of your will and give any additional copies that you may have to your executor or executor for informational purposes only.

If you are not Regular Army personnel or a Reserve contemplating making the service a career it will be best to see an attorney in your home town about your will, checking on local law, and securing witnesses on your will that are from your home community. Even in the event you are making the service a career it is best to have witnesses from your home community or where you list your legal residence as that will be the place where your will will be probated.

Dentist's x-rays used to eliminate guesswork

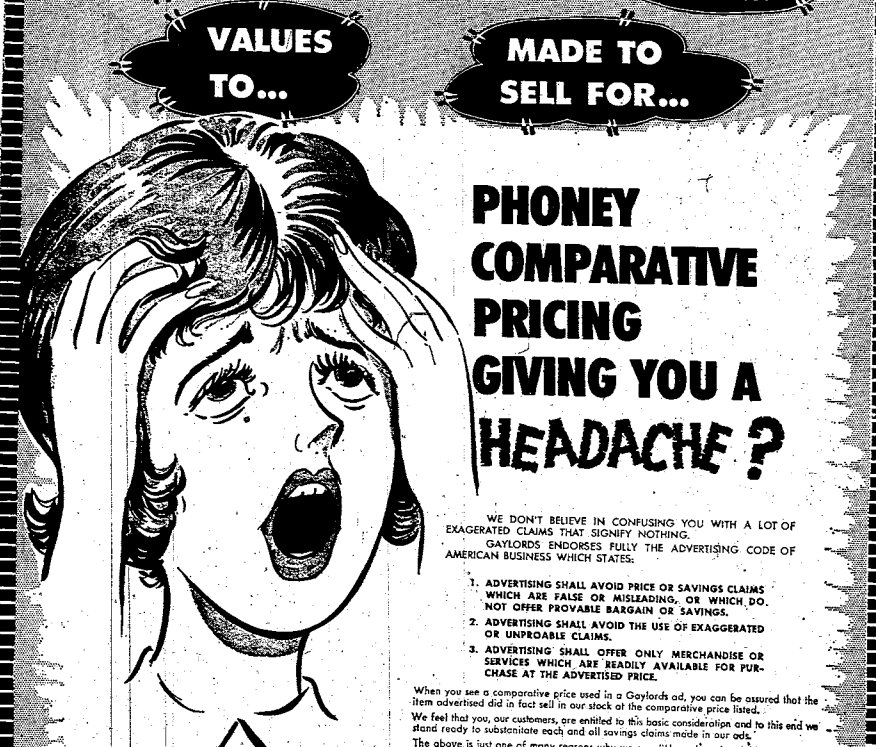

A well known paint manufacturer once employed the slogan "Saving the Surface is Saving Art." This may be appropriate in the paint industry, but is hardly applicable to the human teeth. We might even go one step further and state, "Saving the Surface is Not Saving All!"

When a dentist looks into your mouth, he sees a small portion of the total tooth; the remainder is hidden by other teeth or buried in soft tissues and bone.

The x-ray has been called the dentist's "third eye." It enables him to peer beneath the surface and identify "conditions not otherwise visible." It complements his basic diagnostic skills. With it, the dentist can determine the condition and status of fillings and restorations, and discover the new carious process within the tooth.

State Offers Assistance To All Vets

The Georgia Department of Veterans Service will assist any veteran, or his dependents, in obtaining benefits provided under existing veterans' law. Pete Wheeler, the department's director, said today.

These programs provide for those injured during their service careers; veterans totally disabled, not the result of military service, and with small incomes; the widows and children of deceased veterans; and dependent parents and disabled veterans requiring hospitalization.

World War II, Korean War, and post-Korean veterans are also eligible to apply for Veterans Administration assistance in home buying.

Approximately 125,000 Georgians are eligible for educational training under the new GI Bill which was effective June 1, 1965, and approximately 5,000 are in training at the present time.

None of these benefits is granted automatically.

HOW TO BEAT THE INCOME TAX

Sharpen your pencil and compare the taxes you pay on interest received from Series E Savings Bonds as against those from other investments. Even if you do pay some tax eventually, you can postpone payment for many years—until a time when your income tax rate is lower than today. Examine this table of comparisons which is based on the Federal income tax rate for a married taxpayer filing a joint return. The interest returns in all cases are based on semi-annual compounding. In addition, the Series E rate is an annual average over the 10-year maturity period. The owner's tax-free, such as in retirement, for example.

WHEN YOUR NET TAXABLE INCOME EXCEEDS—	AND YOUR TAX RATE IS—	YOU INVEST $1,000 AT 4 1/2% AFTER TAXES YOU WILL HAVE LEFT—	YOU INVEST $1,000 AT 4 1/2% AFTER TAXES YOU WILL HAVE LEFT—	YOU INVEST $1,000 AT 4 1/2% AFTER TAXES YOU WILL HAVE LEFT—	BUT WITH SAVINGS BONDS AND TAX DEFERRAL YOU WILL HAVE LEFT—	AND IT IS EQUIVALENT TO RETURN OF—
$1,000	15%	$38.51	$8.68	$40.85	$41.50	4.88%
2,000	16%	30.08	38.22	40.37	41.50	4.84%
3,000	17%	25.65	35.77	38.89	41.50	5.00%
4,000	18%	24.70	36.83	38.93	41.50	5.12%
5,000	22%	33.50	35.40	37.49	41.50	5.32%
6,000	25%	32.21	34.13	36.05	41.50	5.53%
7,000	28%	30.02	32.76	34.60	41.50	5.75%
8,000	32%	29.21	30.94	32.68	41.50	6.10%
9,000	36%	27.49	29.12	30.73	41.50	6.49%
10,000	39%	26.20	27.76	29.22	41.50	6.90%
12,000	42%	24.91	26.38	27.87	41.50	7.16%
14,000	45%	23.62	25.03	26.43	41.50	7.55%
16,000	48%	22.33	23.68	24.99	41.50	7.98%

This tax deferral privilege gives the Series E Bond owner the right to redeem his bonds and report his income tax liability at the time most advantageous to himself, instead of having to report his interest income annually, as with most other investments. It is even possible that no tax on bond interest will be due at all, if bonds are redeemed in retirement years when income is low enough to be tax-free. That is the assumption made in the above example.

NOTE.—The table does not take into account State and local income taxes, which never apply to U.S. Savings Bonds. With these included, the difference would be even greater.

STAGGERING RESULTS

After the Thoncomb, England, village soccer team lost its first match, a local pub owner made a promise: "I'll give each of you a pint every time you win." Since then 11 men have played twice, and collected 22 pints. "I have never seen such a transformation come over a team," one player said.

Army Ends Automatic Hikes in Some MOSs

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — Automatic promotions for 200 enlisted men ended this week for certain grades in 47 enlisted MOSs. In seven MOSs which were dropped entirely from the program, automatic promotions to either grade E-6, grade E-7 or both.

Scouts to Assist Goodwill Program Through Collection

Scout Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts from Fort Benning and south Columbus will distribute Goodwill Industries collection sacks on January 21.

They will be delivered to all post quarters as well as residences in south Columbus.

It is requested any usable unneeded items such as books, toys, small appliances and clothing be put in these sacks.

This is an ideal time to clear out closets, cellars and attics and contribute excess to a worthy cause.

Sacks will be picked up at homes on January 23.

Articles too large for the sacks such as furniture and appliances will also be picked up at this time and, if possible, should be placed by the front door.

If additional information is desired, call 345-2241, 8921.

Boasts to grade E-7 under the program were halted in 10 other MOS, although promotions still may be to E-6.

Automatic grade hikes in one or both of the grades involved continue to be authorized on a revised list sent to the field in DA Message 7932-44.

The special promotion policy began last July to give active duty people the same break being given to a limited group of recalled retirees.

Under the program, grade E-5 and E-6 men in the critical MOSs get a one-grade promotion when they complete 20 years' service, provided they're recommended by their commanders.

The original MOS list published in Army Times' July 20 issue, contained 105 critical skills. These were trimmed to 94 MOSs on a revised list as reported in the "Times" October 5 issue.

Show Set At 3 Arts Next Week

Post children and their parents have been invited to attend "A Thousand Faces in Billionaire Sketches" by pantomimist Tony Montanaro January 21 in the Three Arts Theatre.

The event is under the sponsorship of the Christian Fellowship Association (C.F.A.) of Columbus.

Performance tickets will be given at 2 and 4 p.m. by Montanaro who has worked with the world renowned Marcel Marceau.

His performance has been called "a spellbinding experience in theatre for children."

Tickets are $1.50 for the mezzanine and orchestra or $1.10 for the balcony. Children in groups of 10 or more will receive a 10 per cent discount. Reservations may be made by telephone to 322-1886.

Mrs. S. C. Butler, president of C.F.A., has announced that the final production of the season will be "Aladdin" on February 25.

25th Div. Converts Battalion to Mechanized Unit

CU CHI, Vietnam — Due to the evident successes of the "Tropic Lightning" Division's 1st Bn. (Mechanized), 5th Inf., the 25th Inf. Div. has recently converted another of its battalions into a mechanized unit.

The 15th "Bobcats", with its thick-skinned armored vehicles, arrived in Cu Chi in January, 1966. Its powerful tracks and machine guns tore the well hidden Viet Cong from the thick brush of what is now the 25th Inf. Div.'s base camp.

Through the brambles of the Hoia Wood, the dense forests of the Boi Loi, mud holes of Tay Ninh, and over the hard laterite areas of the Fihlon Plantation, the men of the 15th successfully encountered the enemy in operations such as "Whaha-wa," "Makha," "Hinghulu," "Menehure," "Coco Fainhu," and "Atlabora." Each operation showed the resourcefulness and practicality of mechanized infantry in the Vietnamese war.

Observing success after success, Maj Fred C. Weyand, the division commander, asked for additional tracked vehicles to complete the effectiveness of his command. Within a month the Department of the Army approved the request and made arrangements to have the new vehicles added to the ever-increasing force of the "Tropic Lightning" Division.

Back at 25th Inf. Div. headquarters preparations to accommodate the vehicles were under way. It was decided that a battalion would have to be transformed from a conventional infantry unit to a mechanized unit. The problem of picking a suitable unit for such a transition would be the next to be solved.

The 2nd Bde. composed of two conventional infantry battalions and the sole mechanized unit in the division, needed no additions, and so attention was immediately shifted to the 1st Bde, which claimed a complete lack of tracked vehicles. A choice of would have to be made from Louis J. North, "Tomahawk" command, commented that the changeover would "enhance the mobility and shock action of the battalion."

"It will," he continued, "simplify the problems of getting through heavily booby-trapped areas, and give the ability to close on the enemy faster, and with more power."

"Even with the addition of the new tracks," the colonel went on, "the mission of the 'Tomahawks' will remain the same. . . it will be the same find - them - and beat - them mission we've always had."

Ninety-three armored carriers were scheduled to arrive at the Cu Chi base camp before the Christmas holidays. The 42nd "Tomahawks" had to begin preparations for the transition immediately so that mechanized operations could commence promptly at the beginning of the new year.

Dump trucks, tractors and scores of men from the 75th Engineer Bn. cleared, dumped and laid hard layers of earth throughout a selected tract of land that was to be the new motor pool.

Drivers for the new tracks began their training. Wheelbarrow vehicles were turned into mechanized infantry tactics. And all the officers of the command awaited the arrival of the new equipment.

In mid-December the vehicles arrived. The "Tomahawks" were mechanized and ready to continue their great achievements for the 25th Inf. Div. which has now claimed a complete lack of tracked vehicles. A choice of of Health in Saigon revealed that there are no dental hygienists in South Vietnam and there are no training programs currently underway to produce teachers qualified for the field. The schools have no scheduled programs of dental hygiene.

Morrow, the deputy commander of the 25th Dental Detachment, supporting the 1st Inf. Div., and MAJ Nicholas J. Code, subsector advisor for the Lai Thieu district, knew that it was important to train Vietnamese people, because of the language barrier and the necessity of many consecutive periods of instruction. They are faced with the problem of finding willing Vietnamese candidates who have a sufficient educational background and understanding of English to be able to learn the subject in a few months.

Marianne's course will take two months, as she studies from a curriculum planned by Morrow.

Trio 'Share' Combat Experiences

When LTC Robert L. Lyons, deputy commander, Center Troop Command, and his two sons, Richard and Gerald, get together, it is certain talk will be about the United States Army in general and about Vietnam in particular. All three are in the Army, and presently are serving at Fort Benning.

Each has been presented the Purple Heart for wounds received in combat and each earned the Combat Infantryman's Badge as well as the Parachute Badge.

Lyons was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in Korea during the first breakout of the Pusan perimeter. He was hit in the neck by mortar fragments.

Richard was shot in the leg in 1965 in Vietnam during a firefight against North Vietnamese regulars.

Gerald was participating in landing operation in Vietnam when a punji stake landed by Viet Cong penetrated his hand.

All three were serving with Company when wounded, although with different parent organizations.

The Lyons family held a reunion where a punji stake member of Co. A, 24th Bn. 508th Inf., arrived at Fort Benning December 22, 1966. He is presently assigned as a career counselor.

Gerald is assigned to Co. B, 1st Infantry School, where he works in operations of the School's Requirements Division.

Both were administered the oath of enlistment by Lyons in 1964 and both hold the rank of sergeant.

ACS Program Said 'Solid Success' in '66

The Army Community Service program had a solid year of success in 1966. Began in July 1965, by Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson to fill the need for a centrally located, responsive and professionally-oriented service to assist members of each Army community, the service is the Army's way of helping the soldier and his family resolve problems beyond their own resources.

Every Army installation with 500 or more military personnel whose families may join them has an ACS officer. However, the core of the program relies on the hundreds of volunteers—mostly service wives—who provide everything from emergency child care to automobile driving lessons.

Over the past year, responses to more than 160,000 requests for help from Army members have been answered at some 100 ACS centers throughout the world.

As a result of the tremendous impact of this program and in recognition for the excellent work being done at the various ACS centers, the Department of the Army honored the top Community Service program in each of three categories, statesides, overseas, and small installations.

IV Corps Named To Conduct CPX

Headquarters, IV U. S. Army Corps in Birmingham, Ala., commanded by MG Joe C. Lambert, will conduct the Third Army Mobilization Command Post Exercise (CPEX), nickname "Roll Call," during March and April.

This exercise is one of a continuing series of exercises on mobilization and in no way implies actual mobilization of the various ACS centers, the planned call-up of Reserve Component Forces.

OC Is Known In Classroom

Senior Officer Candidate Richard M. Cronk, 75th Co., 7th Stu. Bn. (OCS), TSE, attends classes at the Infantry School as a student under his father, LTC Robert A. Cronk, chief, Logistics Company, USAIS.

Cronk came to OCS from Tarkio State College, Tarkio, Mo., where he majored in biology and German for two years.

He expects to be commissioned February 8 in the Infantry. His immediate hope is to be a USAIS weapons department instructor.

The colonel attended OCS during the early phases of World War II and received an Armored commision. He saw action in World War II and since has served all over the world.

Prior to his assignment at USAIS, Cronk was at the Command General Staff College, at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

When OC Cronk was asked he felt about attending his father's classes, he said "It is seldom, especially in the service, for a son to un-derstand and participate in the work his father is performing, and I consider it a huge thrill for $1.55 in change. Very rewarding experience."

Sergeant Planning Pair Of Important Events

A member of the Mohawk Indian tribe, SFC Louis C. Fraser, will have the distinction of taking two oaths during the month of January. He will take one for a Regular Army and the other as a United States citizen.

Fraser, supply sergeant for Co. C, 2nd Bn., 1st Bde., U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, was administered the re-enlistment oath by LTC Cheney L. Berthoff, battalion commander. The ceremony was witnessed by SFC James M. Gibson, the center's recruitment counselor.

Born in St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, Fraser lived in Niagara Falls, N. Y., before entering the service.

His personal file is bulging with letters of commendation and appreciation attesting to his ability in the field of supply. Most recently he was awarded two consecutive medals for his service.

Using his actual place of birth as a guide, it was determined that the sergeant was indeed a Canadian. He expects to take the oath that will make him an American citizen later this month. His Army career began in January, 1963, when he enlisted at Buffalo, N. Y. The enlistment was for a six-year term and he was shipped to Hawaii for his basic training.

On completion of this training, he was assigned to Fort Benning and remained here as a supply sergeant until 1967. He also is a graduate of Fort Benning's Chemical School and NCO School.

Fraser's 15 years in the Army have found him in supply rooms in Korea and Germany as well as the United States.

While serving in Germany with the 1st Bn., 21st Inf. Div., Fraser was awarded the Commendation Medal.

Services Survey Results Readied

(The following is the first of a series of articles on the results of a survey conducted last August regarding personnel services provided at Fort Benning.)

A post-wide survey was conducted in August to determine if Army members of Fort Benning and their dependents were satisfied with the personal services provided by the installation and to insure that these services were keeping abreast with improvements in similar operations on other installations.

Activities and services included in the survey were: Post Exchange, Officers and Noncommissioned Officers Clubs, Youth Activities Club, Special Services, On-post family housing, Medical services, Army Community Services, Adjutant General Services, General Educational Development, Dependent Schools, Quartermaster Services, Religious Services, American Red Cross.

The project was conducted in the same manner as a commercial marketing research study.

A total of 1,387 persons on active duty and 299 dependent wives were surveyed. This represented 2 per cent of the total installation population.

Questionnaires returned were carefully reviewed and analyzed to pinpoint areas of improvement.

One of the most significant factors revealed was that those aware of many services and facilities that are available and the limitations and conditions of these facilities and services.

The survey also revealed that there are several services and activities which are in need of improvement. Areas possible and to pinpoint those areas in which still greater improvement can be made.

Soldiers' RYN Contribution Said 'Significant' in Combatting Reds

Soldiers of the U.S. Army made significant contributions during 1966 in the pledge of Free World Forces to give military and economic assistance in the Republic of Vietnam's struggle against Communist aggression.

The buildup of U.S. Military forces in the Republic rose from some 181,000 personnel last January to more than 370,000 by the end of December. The U. S. Army added more than 120,000 soldiers to its early 1966 total of some 111,000 troops.

New Army units in Vietnam during the year included the 25th Infantry Division, 4th Infantry Division, 196th Light Infantry Brigade, 199th Light Infantry Brigade, 21st Armored Cavalry Regiment and elements of the 5th Infantry Division.

American forces collaborated with units of the Republic of Vietnam, Republic of Korea, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand to form the 1965 military (standstill) into a year in which enemy forces could initiate few major battles.

The Free World Forces made important gains in search-and-clear missions including Operations ATTLEBORO, RON SONG and PAELREVE II, conducted by U. S. Army units in conjunction with allied troops.

Logical support operations contributed greatly to the decreased effectiveness of Communist actions.

The U. S. Army's 1st Logistical Command supplied large numbers of helicopters for air assault and transportation missions, along with other supply projects. Army engineers helped complete the construction of supply bases at Cam Ranh Bay, Dan Nang, Qui Nhon and Vung Tau.

New dimensions were also reached in Civic Action projects. The Army played a major role in building schools, hospitals, roads and water supply systems, and in treating sick and wounded civilians. Soldiers voluntarily assisted in civic action programs.

The result at the end of 1966 was that many more Vietnamese people came to realize the United States had come to their land for one purpose: to help. (ANF)

TSB Wraps Up Title for 1st Half

By SSG Pat Moser

First-place TSB sewed up the first-half championship of the post battalion-level basketball league with a 69-68 win over the second place 16th on Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House.

The win kept TSB's unbeaten record intact while the loss threw the 16th into a tie with 44th Avn. for the runner-up spot, each sporting an 8-2 date.

The game was in doubt until the final 30 seconds when TSB's hot-handed guard Jim Rates drove in for a field goal.

The game looked like a 19-7 lead. The 16th kept the pace until the final five minutes of the half when Rates found his range and started overcoming a 14-point deficit.

The winners picked up a field goal and two foul shots with 15 seconds remaining to tie the half to retire to the locker room with a 34-31 deficit.

The second half was a see-saw battle with neither team taking command of the action. The 16th pulled to an early seven point lead with a strong bench to subdue the offensive punch which gave sole possession of second place in the standings after the 44th loss to TSB.

The teams battled evenly in the early minutes with the 16th taking a six point bulge down to the wire. Rates and Gardner staged a scoring duel with the 16th's Patton and Gardner.

Rates top man for short jumpers and layups with four and a half minutes to go in the second half. In the 18th widened the lead to 16 points and ended ATC's hopes to remain within a challenging position.

Gardner and Gary Patton book scoring honors for the winners with 22 and 19 points respectively. Carroll Busch gathered 21 points for ATC.

In other league action Tuesday night the 7th Avn. slipped past Martin Army Hospital 73-70 at Briant Wells Field House. ATC squeaked past the 10th Arty. 81-79 while the 69th Armer bested Winchester 49-28.

For 3rd Army Tourney Picking All Stars Is Tough Job for Coach Jim Martin

By SSG Show Wilson

"Picking this team is the toughest on my career," said Jim Martin, Fort Benning Doughty basketball coach, this week.

Martin, who has 16 years of Army basketball coaching behind him, is faced with choosing a group of 25 hopefuls to a squad of ten to compete in the Third Army tourney at Fort Jackson, S. C., January 27-28.

He went on to add that everyone of the prospects, who average 23 years old, named by the various post league coaches, has played college ball and some with four years experience.

The final cut will be made next Tuesday when the All Star "Doughty" basketball team will be named.

"Right now I'm looking for height and speed, as well as continuity between the men," Coach Martin said when asked about possible choices for the team.

As yet no final selections have actually been made.

Coffee, Martin Set Appearance At Service Club

Post soldiers who plan to watch Sunday's Super Bowl classic at Sand Hill Service Club No. 2, are in for an additional treat.

Atlanta Falcon star half-back Junior Coffee and offensive end Billy Martin have been invited to the club for a pre-game interview and will be on hand for a question and answer ses-sion after the AFL-NFL clash.

The pair, who began basic training here Monday, will arrive at 3:30 p.m. SFC Larry Jones, assistant Sports Services sports director, will conduct the interview.

CHAVAGAS GETTING TUNED FOR RALLY THIS WEEKEND

By SSG Show Wilson

If a glassy eyed driver in a sports car, lost on a back road in the Chattahoochee Valley, asks for directions tomorrow, don't help him. He's in a sports car rally. And regardless of his com-ments to the contrary, re- mind him the other person in his car, surrounded by maps, stop watches and scribbled paper, is supposed to be his navigator.

Saturday's rally, spelled rallye in Europe, is the fifth event, during the past six months, by Chevrolet in Chattahoochee Valley Sports Car Club.

The rally will test the driver - navigator team's ability in following directions, maintaining the posted legal limits and the accuracy of their odometers.

An odometer is that part of a speedometer indicating miles traveled. Penalties are awarded for arriving at different check points along the route of the rally ahead or behind sched-uled time.

This type of popular American sports car event di-rected by the European "rallye" where no penalties are imposed for speeding.

Under local club rules, a run will test the ability of driver - navigator teams in following directions, main-taining the posted legal limits and the accuracy of their cars' odometers.

The Aftermath

BY LARRY MAHONEY

The past year might, in the Asian cus-tom, be called The Year of The Amateur. Cer-tainly this is true of a portion of our politics, with Chairman Georgia and Alabama elec-tion, respectively, an actor, a fried chicken restaurant and a housewife to their high-est governmental offices. There, was Senator Dirks's debut on the jubebox with his "3-12-Men" and a Cleveland newspaperman turned actor and tamed the Atlantic in his "Gal-Tinkerbell."

Then there was George Plimpton, and the odds are that even if you are as dedi-cated a follower of football as you may never have heard of him unless you count your-self among the intelligentsia who read The Review or among the larger group known as fans of the Detroit Lions. ## Pro Soccer Officials Meet In Atlanta, Discuss Season

The National Professional Soccer League, established two months away from opening America's first season of pro soccer, met in Atlanta this week as guest of the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves own Atlanta's franchise in the brand new league of ten teams, and welcomed representatives from Baltimore, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Francisco and Toronto to Atlanta this week for two days of talks at Atlanta Stadium.

According to Atlanta officials the meeting was most important one. Each of the league's ten teams will play 32 games, and CBS television will broadcast a "Game of the Week" for 18 Sundays beginning April 16.

Among the items discussed were:

- Announcement of the 1967 schedule;
- The possibility of naming a league commissioner; and
- A draft of college soccer players.

Some of the sports figures who represented franchises at the meeting are Atlanta's William C. Bartholomay, who is the league's director and chairman of its television committee; Jerry Hoffberger of Baltimore, Dan Martin of Los Angeles, John Rooney of Philadelphia and William Bidwell of St. Louis.

The NFLS will name a champion in its very first year. Member teams will play league which opens Amer-ica's first season of pro soccer this April, Bartholomay will serve the Atlanta entry as president.

He has named Richard A. Cecil and James A. Fascholz as Chiefs' vice - pres-idents and Frank H. Summer-ly as team treasurer. Cecil, Fascholz and Summer-ly are all Braves' of-ficials.

Furthermore, Braves' ex-ecutive vice - president Thom-as A. Reynolds is going to serve the new soccer league as secretary, and Bartholomay is chairman of its im-portant television committee.

That something was a book, "The Paper Lion" is a succinct book and is selling well. What it offers is a participant's picture of the players so familiar to Americans on their screens and in their stadiums.

Plimpton, who won the respect of the pro because he took their skills seriously, used their own words to describe the game as few have.

He quotes one awed Lion on Night Train Lane: "It's a piece for legs, all bones, with just strings of muscle holding him together."

He reports that Y. A. Tittle, after picking himself up from a shattering tackle, stumbled back into the huddle gasping, "Chris, I don't... I can't think of any plays."

"The Paper Lion" stands recommended here. After Sunday's Super Bowl, he'll be the game on television or in the papers. If you can't get your mind off it and if baseball doesn't move you, the book might help see you through to Football 1967.

Expansion Being Planned For Off-Duty Facilities

The recreation branch of Special Services, USAIC, is planning an expansion of services and facilities available to the Fort Benning military community.

Expansion plans call for the addition of roads and trails to be used from the recreation office, along with 14-foot aluminum boats with motors and trailers, which are now being assembled and readied for use.

Featured in the recreation program developments are the expansion of the facilities at Destin, and the addition of fully equipped Apache "Chief" camping trailers to be made available to Post service members.

Improvements at the Destin Recreation area will include preparation of camping sites, installed camping trailers, new latrine facilities with hot and cold water and showers, beach improvements, expanded recreation pavilion and snack bar.

There will be no interruption to regular operations at the area while the improvements are in progress.

Baseball Rates Cut For 'Senior Folks'

"Senior Citizens" (persons over 60 years of age) are going to be able to see Braves' games on "family nights" next season for a $1 reduction in the ticket price in upper and lower levels.

The announcement was made by public relations director Jerry Sachs, who says to enjoy this benefit, a person over 60 does not have to belong to any "Senior Citizen" organization.

SSG Boyle Trying Hard For Pan American Berth

It takes a lot of practice to become a major rifle shooter, but to become a distinguished marksman rifle shooter, it takes determination, confidence, guts and a fierce desire to excel.

Day after day, hours on end, along with other members of the U. S. International Rifle Team, SSG Patrick J. Boyle practices firing at targets 5000 meters away. Strapped in his leather shooting coat, Boyle religiously gets into position.

Each of his movements is precise. No hurry, no hustle, no haste. Just quiet deliberation. Confidence exudes from his eyes as he checks his position, lines up his sights and fires his shot.

Since last September when Boyle transferred from the high power rifle division, he has been training and shooting like a man possessed with a purpose.

"The reason I'm training so hard is really simple," Boyle said. "First, I want to be a top shooter on the international team and, secondly, I want to be a shooting member of the team representing the United States in the Pan-American Games to be held in Winnipeg, Canada this summer.

Boyle is not a new shooter. He has been in stiff competition before. A veteran of seven National Matches, he holds a Civilian Distinguished Rifle Badge and the DRB (he was while a member of the Air Force Rifle Team).

While with the Air Force and subsequently with the Army Team, SSG Boyle won many championships.

During 1956, Boyle won the Texas Long Range Championship, the El Paso Southwestern Regional and the Interservice Long Range Championship.

He fired on the four man team at the Southwestern Regionals here and set a new national record with 999-1399's, only one point from a perfect score.

At the National Matches he was a member of the winning National Troop Team. Only time will tell whether Boyle makes the Pan-American team or not. He has made his presence known. His coaches say, "Boyle is full of promise." Boyle, himself, is full of optimism.

Reservations for the Destin area may also be made at the Recreation Office.

During the hunting season, the recreation branch initiated a new program of making 12, 16 and 20 gauge shotguns available on an overnight basis to service members in possession of proper identification and licenses. These shotguns may be picked up or returned from 8 a.m. noon daily at the recreation office, first floor of Building 994.

For further information on any of Special Services' recreation programs, contact the recreation branch, Special Services USAIC, first floor in Building 994, or call 545-7416.

Olympic Prospect In Training Here

By SPS Heary Halpern

A member of the 1962 Ohio State University National Collegiate championship swimming team, PVT Charles James Hunter is presently training at basic combat and training at the Army Training Center here.

Originally from Lima, Ohio and now making his residence in Columbus, Ohio, Hunter was once regarded as the second fastest backstroke swimmer in the country.

Hunter, now in his final week of training with Company B, 1st Bn., is looking forward to the completion of basic and advanced individual training (AIT) so he can start training for the upcoming Olympic trials, to be held in 1958. He said, "I have already applied through the Army Sports Program, part of the Special Service Branch of the Adjutant General's Office."

The Training Center's Special Service Officer said he stands an excellent chance of being assigned to this program, "especially since Hunter has an excellent military record." The officer added, "However, under Army Regulations Hunter will have to first complete his AIT before being accepted in the sports program."

Unique Bowling Meet Staged at Post Lanes

By SP4 David Ybarra

The Main Post Bowling Center provided plenty of vacation time activity recently for post dependents and their parents with a first ever father-son and mother-daughter bowling tournament.

As an added feature, the tournament was 3-6 type frame an automatic strike.

The tournament was opened to all post members of the American Junior Bowling Congress and their parents.

Participating members of the Congress ranged in age from 11 to 16 years.

Handicaps for the tabulation of scores were determined for the youngsters based on their current averages.

Handicaps for the parents were determined from the three games each bowled during the actual competition.

The tournament was the idea of James R. Hammond, bowling center manager and Charles Board, bowling congress instructor.

"The response was very enthusiastic," said Board. "The youngsters were really after their parents so we even had regular bowlers."

Board, first sergeant of Det. 2, 2nd Bn., TSB, said that because of the response the tournament could be an annual event.

Winners in the tournament were first, Paul Pinkham and son, Tom, second, and John Thompson and son, John Jr., third.

In the men's division, George Vachon and son, Billy, 19, were first, Paul Pinkham and son, Tom, second, and John Thompson and son, John Jr., third.

Winners were presented trophies last Saturday at the Bowling Center.

Hunter was asked why it was that 80 to 90 per cent of the better swimmers come from California. "I'd have to dispute those figures. However, the reason for the majority of the better swimmers coming from there is their overall age-ground program. This especially holds true for the 6-year-old and under swimmer. Their program is far superior to that of any other state."

When asked the inevitable, why are the best swimmers in the 12-15 years age group as compared to the 20 years olds, Hunter, 24, said, "I believe the peak age for a swimmer should be between 24 and 28. Agreed that isn't true, I shall try to prove it this next year."

"The main reason the 14-year-old is such a strong swimmer is his conditioning

Part of the conditioning program. The teen-ager has twice-a-day workouts, which are very strenuous. Swimming is all they have ever had an interest in, since a very early age," he said.

"But naturally, as the state gets older, he or she starts to get other interests. The first thing you know is that the twice-a-day workouts become one-a-day, and obviously this doesn't improve their swimming ability."

Hunter says once he is accepted by the Army Sports Program, "I am going to train and try to get myself in such a condition that I will be able to give the younger swimmer real good competition."

MGM Gross Is Up 28 Per Cent

Robert H. O'Brien, president and chief executive officer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc., announced in New York recently that "Revenue and profits for the first 12 weeks of fiscal 1967 established a new first-quarter record for MGM, with earnings 50 per cent ahead of the same quarter last year."

"This gain," O'Brien pointed out, "was achieved on an increase in gross revenues from $37,250,000 to $47,690,000, which was 28 per cent over the period last year; an increase in operating earnings from $4,379,000 to $6,083,000, and an increase in net earnings from $2,684,000 to $3,152,000."

Earnings for this latest quarter, which ended on November 24, were equivalent to 62 cents per share compared to 42 cents per share when the shares in the same year ago are adjusted for a 2-for-1 split effective June 24. The quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share, which was declared on January 16, will be paid on January 31.

The improvement in the quarter resulted from an increase in revenues and earnings, which was due to higher production-distribution income due to higher theatrical revenues.

Elke Sommer will never be seen in public looking any thing less than the lovely picture star she has become. Between scenes of MGM's "The Venetian Affair," in which she plays the lovely wife of Robert Vaughn in a super-suspense story from the novel "Elle et MacIntosh," Miss Sommer took to task Hollywood newcomers who shop or drive to work looking as though they had just leaped from a shower into the first ready-made garment they could reach.

"A motion picture actress has a responsibility to present the best aspects of her," she said. "Fans go to see you because you are someone they admire. They are interested in your favorite actors or actresses and who we appear on the screen should be grateful."

Miss Sommer admits that she is a bit of a shopaholic.

HOLLYWOOD — Academy Award winner Lee Marvin will star in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Point Blank," a contemporary drama set in San Francisco, it was announced recently by Robert Altman, who is directing the picture. The Judd Berrard-Robert Winkler production, to be produced by Bernard and Barry Winkler, is scheduled to go before the cameras on February 15. The World Circuit Young English director John Boorman has been signed to direct the drama, which will have an all star cast. Rafe and David Newhouse have written the screenplay, based on Richard Stark's suspenseful novel, "The Hunter." Marvin will mark his cinematic debut in "Point Blank," which will be distributed by MGM. He is currently in England where he is starring in MGM's "The Dirty Duo," a war film directed by Robert Altman. Marvin won the Oscar last year for his performance in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and is currently being seen in "The Professionals."

The actor is now at MGM's Culver City Studios for preliminary meetings with Berrard and Winkler. Additional casting announcements will be made shortly.

SP4 Dennis Aldrich has been seriously wounded in the steaming jungles of Vietnam. Both the elements of military field hospital attention are proper medical attention for this young soldier's life. Quickly under enemy fire, Aldrich is hit in the chest and injured soldier to the operating room where 17 people labor to keep him alive.

Having stayed off death, the cameras follow Aldrich on his path to recovery, from the field hospital in Vietnam to the military hospital at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines, and then on for further treatment in the States.

Finally, a warm homecoming for Aldrich with his parents serves to reflect the end to another successful mission of some of the thousands of currently stationed in Vietnam.

The exciting detailed account of the people involved in an actual combat operation is the subject of ABC-TV's special documentary dealing with the war in Vietnam. Entitled "To Save A Soldier," this program captures the spirit and dedication of those whose function is to work in saving lives of wounded Americans in Vietnam, from Gen. Howell Estes, commander of the Military Airlift Command to flight nurses and helicopter crews who risk their lives daily while carrying out their duties.

Due to an extraordinary amount of audience response to the original telecast of "To Save A Soldier," the program will be re-broadcast in color on behalf of The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co., January 19, 1967, 10-11 p.m. on Channel 9.

WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOL? — You are cordially invited to George and Martha's for an evening of fun and games. Martha (Elizabeth Taylor), a frustrated, vulgar, loud-mouthed slattern, is the daughter of the college president. Sharp-tongued, witty, intelligent husband George (Richard Burton) is the history professor who suffers from lost idealism.

You'll also meet: Nicky (George Segal), an ambitious colleague, and his wife Helen (Sandy Dennis), an ingenue who is in love with George and Martha for the all night drinking session in which the games of "Humili-ate the Host" and "Get the Guest" are used to display the mutual disgust and scorn they have for one another. Oh yes, be sure to join!

Admission: Adults 50c, children 25c.

THE ARMED SERVICES Y.M.C.A. 14 West 11th Street in Columbus, is open daily from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. and continuously from 9 a.m. on Friday to 11 p.m. on Sunday.

AWAKENED BY A SUDDEN ATTACK, HE QUICKLY OPENED FIRE WITH HIS CARTRIDGE AND KILLED TWO OF THE ENEMY WHO WERE CLOSING IN FROM A BAYNET IN THE LIGHT EMERGED FROM A STAR-SHAPED CRACK.

UNMINDFUL OF HIS DANGER AS HE PUSHED THE SPUTTERING GRENADE WITH HIS GOOD RIGHT HAND, AND GRABBING IT FRantically TO HOLD THE CRACKING SOLDIER, SAM HIS GRENADE NEAR HIS HEAD.

HE WAS VAINLY ATTEMPTING TO RELOAD THE CARTRIDGE WHEN HIS COMMANDER SHOUTED FOR HIM TO STOP THE COMMAND POST WITH ANOTHER WEAPON.

WOUNDED AGAIN BY JAPANESE WHO RUSHED TO HIS POSITION HE SUCCEEDED IN DRAWING HIS FIRE AND ORDERED HIS WOUNDED COMPANION TO A PLACE OF SAFETY.

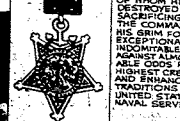

REINFORCED BY PROFUSE BLEEDING BUT STILL UNREATER, HE FEARLESSLY MET THE CHALLENGE OF TWO MORE ENEMY TROOPS WHO CHARGED HIS POSITION AND CARRIED HIS GRENADE NEAR HIS HEAD.

KILLING ONE MAN WITH HIS PISTOL, HE GRABBED THE SPUTTERING GRENADE WITH HIS GOOD RIGHT HAND, AND GRABBING IT FRantically TO HOLD THE CRACKING SOLDIER, SAM HIS GRENADE NEAR HIS HEAD.

HE WAS VAINLY ATTEMPTING TO RELOAD THE CARTRIDGE WHEN HIS COMMANDER SHOUTED FOR HIM TO STOP THE COMMAND POST WITH ANOTHER WEAPON.

WOUNDED AGAIN BY JAPANESE WHO RUSHED TO HIS POSITION HE SUCCEEDED IN DRAWING HIS FIRE AND ORDERED HIS WOUNDED COMPANION TO A PLACE OF SAFETY.

upper atmosphere. Two-stage Nike Trogon rockets are used to burn vaporized barium to altitudes between 50 and 125 miles. The undulating barium clouds are then studied to measure wind speeds and directions in the upper atmosphere.

The early morning test was seen throughout the southern U. S., with points as distant as Beaumont, Tex., Miami and Memphis reporting stirred up citizens.

Two more rockets were fired in the late afternoon and early evening, prompting more calls to police departments about "flying saucers."

Service Club Plans Contest on Sunday

An entertainment contest will be held at Sand Hill 111 Service Club No. 2 next Sunday at 2 p.m.

The three top entries will compete in the post-entertainment contest to be held at 7:30 p.m. January 28 at the Sand Hill Club.

Entries may include solo and/or group vocals and instrumentalists and specialty acts such as comedians or magicians.

Acts will be judged according to selection of appropriate material, microphone and sound technique, physical appearance, showmanship and stage personality, performance capacity and technical excellence.

A $25 prize will be awarded to each of the three winners of the post contest.

AWARD

Born in New Bern June 2, 1941, LT Williams was graduated from high school in this city.

He holds an A.B. degree in sociology from East Carolina College in Greenville, N. C., where he was graduated Magna Cum Laude.

Williams was an enlisted man in the U.S. Army Reserve, serving on active duty from 1959 to 1962 with the 18th Infantry at Fort Benning and 18th Infantry in Germany.

A member of the inactive Reserves from 1962 until 1965, Williams re-enlisted under the College Option Program and was enrolled in the officer candidate course.

The 1967 Patterson award will be made on the eve of the 76th anniversary of the birth of the late Secretary of War.

During 21 years of government work, Secretary Patterson earned the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart. He served both as an enlisted man on border patrol duty in 1916 and as an officer in France during World War I.

He was judge of the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit before appointment as assistant secretary of war in 1940. He was named undersecretary of war in December of that year and in 1945 succeeded Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war.

Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash at Elizabeth, N. J., in 1962.

Secretary of State Voices Hope Of Conference on Viet Conflict

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has voiced hope that the Vietnam conflict would reach the conference table this year, noting that the United States is prepared to talk about the problem without any preconditions of any sort from either side.

He noted that the U.N. Secretary-General U Thant has maximum leeway in his backed effort to get Vietnam peace discussions underway.

The secretary of state said, "We are prepared to have preliminary discussions with the other side about preconditions, if they want to talk about those," the secretary said.

"But it is very hard," Secretary Rusk said, "to find someone on the other side who is prepared to talk seriously about bringing this matter to a peaceful conclusion; we are prepared to use intermediaries; we are prepared to have discreet and private contacts."

New Fund Raising Guidelines Set

WASHINGTON (AP) - Army Chief of Staff General Harold K. Johnson has issued guidelines for fund-raising and savings programs.

Senior staff officers to follow concerning fund-raising and savings campaigns.

GEN Johnson said the new criteria may produce less favorable, short-run results than the Army has enjoyed in the past.

He added that in the long run, however, the attitude of Army participants will be far better.

GEN Johnson devised four points for commanders and Dollar goals for officers, units or commanders do not have to be established, but may be established. Commands or offices will not report the amount given by each individual participant.

The assignment of dollar quotas or goals for each of the ranks and grades of personnel participation has been eliminated.

The flag and you

The Flag symbolizes our Nation. It represents all Americans, past and present, their efforts and achievements, and their hopes for tomorrow's generations. It is the banner of the people who fulfilled the dream of building the world's greatest democracy.

that the Flag is never used as a disciplinary or deprecative bunting, do we know where to place it in relation to other flags? Do we know on which side to place the Union?

We know that the Flag should never touch the ground or be soiled, but do we know the proper way to dispose of a worn flag? And do we know what to do during a flag-raising or lowering ceremony or when the Flag passes in a parade?

The rules are not difficult to learn. As stated in the formal Code of Flag Etiquette, which was made law in 1923, they are both guides and responsibilities for every American. The Code is printed and distributed in "Da Pamphlet" by our friends from children's nations.

The proper manner of displaying and caring for the Flag should be familiar to all of us. While most know

The Judge Says... How, when and where to file your tax return

Federal Income Tax, Who Must File: Every citizen or resident of the United States under 65 years of age who had income of $600 or more during 1966 must file a federal income tax return. Citizens or residents of the United States who are 65 years of age or older must file a return if they receive $1200 or more of income during 1966.

Note that a minor is not excused from filing an income tax return because of his minority. Of course, a minor would not have to file if he earned less than $600 during the year, but he should in order to obtain a refund of taxes withheld, if any.

How? There are three types of forms to be used by individuals in filing federal income tax returns.

1. Form 1040A.
  2. Form 1040 without Schedule B.
  3. Form 1040 with Schedule B (and other Schedules if necessary).
- You can use Form 1040A if your income during 1966 was less than $10,000 and consisted of wages reported on withholding statements and not more than $200 total of other wages, dividends, and interest.

The advantage of using this form is that it is simple to fill out. However, if you use Form 1040A, you cannot itemize your deductions, and you cannot take advantage of the four-per-cent credit for dividends received.

You can use Form 1040 without Schedule B if your income consisted of salary and did not include more than a total of $200 in dividends and interest. However, you cannot use Form

Excess files, paper attacked by directive from President

Are you and your staff buried in paper work? Are files of worthless value clogging up high-cost office space?

A clean-up drive has long been the symbol of American executive efficiency. This assumption has been that an efficient manager is one who stays clear of paper work and devotes himself to decisions, policies and people that will make money for his company.

The fact is that the work of checking out cluttered files. Moreover, some managers lately have begun to realize that a far better symbol of executive efficiency would be a full wastebasket and are acting accordingly.

Yet paper work remains undeniably the least efficient operation, largely because executives have paid little attention to the papers choking up their office.

Executives of many corporations and state government have been amazed to discover that they can cut their office files down by two-thirds or more by destroying half of their old records and shifting much of the rest into low-cost archives.

Management is finally finding out how inefficient paper-work operations really are, and, in a few cases, the action is beginning to practice what records specialists call "birth control". Many of the records stored have never been created in the first place. Another simple tool is File No. 13 - the wastebasket.

Some managers simply may not be aware of office inefficiencies, but more often managers have built up their files either to protect their positions and decisions against future participation or to enhance their status.

Time for Close Look
The time has come for the executives of the Army to take a close look at the records maintained within the offices which are their area of responsibility. These executives should look at the records in the same light that many of the executives of the industry have previously viewed their records and records program.

The records program for the Army is spelled out in AR 345-200, AR 345-210 and AR 345-215. The program is a good one but requires action on a day-to-day basis on the part of the executives as well as the supervisors and file clerks.

The Army uses the Functional Files System as the only authorized system. The system is a numerical scheme classifying papers for filing, reference and disposition. The paper-by-paper screening is no longer used since the system provides for progressive screening at the time of filing disposition of records to be made in block periods. The block periods are usually quarterly, semiannually or annually.

Directed by President
The President has directed that a special campaign to reduce volume of records be conducted by all departments and agencies of the Government during January, 1967.

Implementing instructions from the President's directive are contained in a letter published by Headquarters United States Army Infantry Center on Dec. 15, 1966, the Installation Records Management Officer is charged with operating responsibilities in connection with the campaign.

This month, action is to be taken to dispose of all records authorized for disposition at the end of calendar year 1966. Disposition action is to include disposal of records authorized for destruction and transfer of records authorized for retention.

For larger units there is a kit containing a battery operated radio, record player and public address system, as well as a bingo set, guitar, ukulele and harmonica.

The third set, for areas serviced by a Special Services mobile recreation director, combines the contents of the other two kits, with certain additional items, including a tape recorder.

The results of the tests will be evaluated by the Army for possible use of the kits in the Republic of Vietnam.

The new officers, who won their commissions in the State Co. 5th St. Bn., were headed by 2LT George K. Clardy Jr., the honor and distinguished graduate.

Academic honors went to 2LT Raymond L. Sawyer and the leadership honor graduate was 2LT John R. Robinson.

Commissions in eight branches were awarded, with Infantry leading the field with 64. Other branches represented were Intelligence, Chemical, Transportation, Military Police, Adjutant General, Pharmacy and Ordnance.

END OF DEMONSTRATION - As trainees and visitors looked on, Mrs. Burchwell, and LTC James M. Townsend, deputy director of the Airborne Demonstration here last week, Ashland F. Burchwell was commissioned a second lieutenant by direct appointment. Shown during the ceremony.

Army Is Conducting Tests Of Mobile Recreation Kits

WASHINGTON (ANF) - portable kits are designed for do-it-yourself entertainment during off-duty hours. Army commands in the stateside and overseas are testing mobile recreation kits which could be used by troops in remote areas where there are no service club facilities.

Digest Plans Color Spread In New Issue

A total of 17 pages of full color material will be one of the highlights of the March issue of ARMY DIGEST. Included in the color section will be a feature on the "Golden Knights" - Army Parachutists.

Also scheduled in full color is a feature showing the unit patches for all major Army elements in Vietnam.

"Individual Readiness" is the primary theme for the issue. "The Hidden Enemy," an article dealing with booby traps used by the Viet Cong is one of the major supporting stories.

Others include "Personal Readiness Pays Off - 12 Dollars," which tells what the Army's Enlisted Evaluation

Medicare offers limited dental assistance to many

One of the least publicized aspects of Medicare, this is a provision for limited dental care. Thus far, more than three-fourths of the states have approved (13 in all) offer dental care to a variety of persons—the needy aged, needy families, the blind, the permanently and totally disabled and families that aren't on social security but can't afford dental medical care.

The actual care provided varies with the state concerned. At one end of the spectrum, New York's about-to-be-approved plan offers complete dental medical care to persons who qualify financially whereas Puerto Rico will provide emergency care only.

From present trends, it appears that eventually perhaps 75 per cent of the public will be assured of medical care and perhaps 60 per cent assured of dental care. Some will continue to meet their own bills as now.

Others will come under Medicare. The remainder will be assured of attention if their incomes are in the low or low-middle bracket, with exact income limitations determined by the individual states.

Children's Dental Week to emphasize daily care

The importance of daily dental care will be highlighted Feb. 6-10, 1967, which is 20th National Children's Dental Health Week. Sponsored by the American Dental Association, the observance is only week set aside each year to remind parents and children of the importance of regular dental care. More than 80,000 dentists in communities in the nation will participate in the week.

Dr. William A. Garrett, president of the ADA, asked parents to discuss the four dental health rules to their children. He said the rules are:

1. Brush teeth as soon as possible after eating, in

ATC Wives Hold Stylish Luncheon At Officers' Club

"Fashions for Fun" entertained the wives of the U. S. Army Training Center at their January luncheon in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Club, Monday.

Mrs. Pat Miller, representative of a local business establishment, presented an array of outfits created from bath and bedroom fashions. Wives from the 7th and 8th Battalions were "hostesses for the luncheon, and served as models. They were Mrs. Clarence R. Duncan, Mrs. Thomas C. Fisher, Mrs. Charles R. Lovdahl and Mrs. Charles Stockwell.

Table decorations, cued by the fashions, featured arrangements of decorative vases and towels accented by aqua and white. The centerpiece at the head table simulated a bubbling fountain set against a background of forest green tones and red candles.

Following a welcome by Mrs. Robert W. Saden, 2nd Brigade commander's wife, the opening prayer was given by Mrs. J. R. Barrett Jr., wife of the Training Center staff chaplain.

Honored guests, Mrs. Hal

95th OCs Stage Party With a Frontier Theme

Last Saturday, the 95th Co. The candidates' dates came 9th Stu. Bn. (OC) stage party from local colleges a and their first party after eight weeks of training.

As a theme for the occasion the 95th selected "Frontier Fiesta" to honor their commander, LT Billie McClesky.

The honorary guests attending were LTC and Mrs. Bertman J. Bishop, commander of the 5th Bn.

The decorations created a western atmosphere which was very appropriate for the draft beer which was served. One area of the party, which was held in the dayroom mess hall complex of 95th Co. was the "Silver Dollar"—a "saloon" which included red and white check table cloths, oaken beer barrels, roulette wheel, swinging doors and a bartender in realistic western costume.

The "Country Jail" was constructed in another area close to the "OK Corral". Music was furnished by the "Four Rivers".

Dear Community Service, a doctor to examine your child. This is the same thing about this, but I know I need help. My husband has never been assigned to Fort Benning, and I am not registered with you. I've heard you send out booklets about the post. Somewhere on the post there is a place that helps with retarded children. I think my little girl is retarded, even though she's not old enough to be in school. I'm afraid people will get the wrong idea if I start asking my neighbors about somebody to take her to. Can you help me?

Annual Exams for USMA Draw 50 at Fort Benning

PHYSICAL TEST FOR EXAMINEES Calls for Prospect to Throw Basketball

Would-be cadets of a future long grey line queued up at Kelley Hill last week for four days of examinations to qualify them for admission to the United States Military Academy.

The aspiring cadets — numbering about 50 — were welcomed to Fort Benning on the morning of January 11 by COL David C. Sherrard, deputy post commander. COL Sherrard served as president of this year's local West Point Examining Board.

The high school-age prospects being tested had already received nominations for appointment to the academy from their U. S. senators or representatives in Congress.

Those who qualified here last week will be admitted to West Point in July of this year.

The examinations, conducted by a board of officers, were held simultaneously at 36 other Army, Navy and Air Force installations in the U. S. and overseas.

'America's Foreign Legion' Boasts Fifty Years of Colorful Tradition

By SPS Michael McMullan
The newest "gem" at Kelley Hill is the 31st Infantry, an element of a regiment that became known as America's "Foreign Legion."

The Battalion joined the 19th Infantry Brigade in December to help meet support requirements of The Infantry 1916, as a result of legislation calling for an increase in U. S. forces.

About eight months after its formation at Manila in the Philippines, America entered World War I. But, being far removed from the battlefront of Europe, it secured unlikely support.

'Bonus' Said No Incentive

By SPS Snow Wilson
One can't say the camp re-enlisted in the Army last Tuesday for the bonus—he got only $5.

But even with 22 years of service now behind him there must be a little doubt he signed up for only three more years—not the maximum of six allowed.

Actually, the $5 was not a bonus but travel pay for Camp to his home in nearby Rockford, Ala. The Army doesn't give a requirement bonus to soldiers with over 20 years who are eligible to retire.

Observers probably reason that being a sergeant major is bonus enough to keep Camp at his job as top enlisted man for the director of logistics at The Infantry Center.

Camp has served his 22 years continuously since November, 1944. Doing the honors of swearing him in for another three years present boss, COL C. W. Youngman, the director of logistics.

Commanders are encouraged to obtain one copy of ARMY DIGEST for each officer and one copy for each enlisted man. DA circulars and DA Circular 363-17 to alter this distribution to fit the needs of their commands.

The ARMY DIGEST should be ordered on DA Form 12-1. Procedures are in DA Circular 316-1, (AMP)

44 WACs Packing Bags For Vietnam Duty Tour

FORT MONROE, Va. — Specialist V a n December of her husband. The girls were young — the oldest not yet 21. They were in a staff message center going to Vietnam. And they were scared.

That they were WACs with a few months service behind them and scared — all mixed up in one."

Specialist Mitchell of Clifton, Pa., a receptionist-typist in the office at the base headquarters commandant mentioned, "I've helped type out papers for men going overseas. I never thought I'd be doing my own."

"What a shock — and would you believe it, I just went out and bought some chapstick," she said.

Caught up in the routine of processing out and preparing for leave at home before departing for their new assignment, the girls' initial reactions of "shock" and "disbelief" soon gave way to a sense of "new experience" and "a chance to travel."

"It will be the first time I've been that far west in my life," said Specialist Hoyer.

But these five are among the first clerk typists to be assigned to the Vietnam tour in Southeast Asia.

The assignment of the WACs to Vietnam was not unknown.

"We knew a WAC level was coming down," said Specialist V a n December of her husband.

"If he can arrange to be transferred over there — even if it's 60 miles away — I won't mind going at all," she said.

For the Coventry, R. I., family of Specialist Smith the unusual isn't so much so. Snyder, a WAC during World War II. "She drove a truck — they didn't have any other body else, so she had to be an executive officer in basic training," said Specialist Smith.

"This Hayward, Calif., WAC who claims to be the first in her recruiting to go to Vietnam, explains that many of the girls were recruited together in basic training at the WAC Center and in the clerk typist school at Fort McClellan, Ala.

"It will be sort of like old home week," said Specialist Bala. "And I understand that the commanding officer of the detachment is a GI body else, so she had to be an executive officer in basic training."

"This Hayward, Calif., WAC who claims to be the first in her recruiting to go to Vietnam, explains that many of the girls were recruited together in basic training at the WAC Center and in the clerk typist school at Fort McClellan, Ala.

And are lots of WACs volunteering. But you have to have a sense of humor," she said.

Maybe our '67 Pontiac is breaking sales records because people don't want to wait until '68 for a copy.

Our engineers have become used to seeing their ideas show up on other cars. Two years later. And apparently so have a lot of car buyers. Because '67 Pontiacs are selling faster than 1966 Pontiacs. And more people bought Pontiacs in 1966 than ever before.

When you think about it, why should you wait around for somebody else to come up with innovations like our disappearing windshield wipers? Or for imaginative options like our exclusive hood-mounted tank?

Especially when you consider that our engineers wouldn't turn a Pontiac loose with anything less than a standard 400 cubic inch V-8. Or a Tempest with anything less than our revolutionary Overhead Cam Six. (Not to mention all those new safety features like GM's new energy absorbing steering column and a dual master cylinder brake system with warning lamp.)

And as for the Pontiac features other carmakers have already tried to copy—like our split grille, our stacked headlights, even Wide-Track (is nothing sacred?)—why should you settle for anything less than the real thing?

In short, our engineers seem to have done it again. They may even start asking for royalties on the copies.

Post Pilots Aid Drive For Enlisted Trainees

Two Fort Benning pilots have been selected to help the course from a student's eyes.

They also expect to help volunteers in getting applications processed quicker.

To assist them, personnel officers already are screening records for qualified applicants.

Although waivers are available, present qualifications call for a GT score of 115, ability to pass a Class I flight physical and a passing score on the Army aviation aptitude test.

Schedules for the talks will be listed in each post's daily bulletin. Interested enlisted men should see their unit commanders.

Accepted volunteers receive nine months flight training and are qualified to fly cargo and passenger type helicopters upon completion of training.

Americans to Be Subject Next Month To ROK Law

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — American servicemen in Korea become subject to the laws of that country under the terms of a Status of Forces agreement which goes into effect February 9.

The agreement, similar to those we have with other countries, gives the U.S. the right to try those who commit offenses against the "pro- tected States, against the person or property of another member of the U.S. Armed Forces, and offenses arising out of any act or omission of force in the performance of official duty."

Korea has "prime jurisdiction" in all other cases but the U.S. has agreed to waive this right in all except those cases which are deemed of "particular importance." Crimes which fall into the "particular importance" category include: offenses against the security of Korea, offenses causing the death of a human being, robbery, rape and attempts to commit such offenses.

The agreement sets forth certain fair trial guarantees which will be afforded each serviceman tried by Korean courts. These include the basic rights to a prompt and speedy trial, be informed of the charge against him, be confronted by witnesses against him, have a lawyer of his own choice, communicate with a representative of the U.S. Government, and if he chooses, to have the services of a competent interpreter.

It also includes provisions for affording American servicemen many of the same rights they would have if they were tried in the U.S. They will be protected against double jeopardy, "cruel and unusual punishment," etc. American authorities will have the right to inspect the Korean confinement facilities.

Also contained in the agreement are articles on subjects such as: entry and exit of personnel and equipment; customs and tax exemptions; access of vessels and aircraft; nonappropriated funds; APOs, contractors, local procurement and others.

CONARC Lists Housing For Separated Families

FORT MONROE, VA. — Ground, 6 three-bedroom available housing units at military installations for families of soldiers, sailors and airmen serving unaccompanied overseas troops were announced today by Hq., U. S. Continental Army Command (CONARC), Fort Monroe, Va.

A consolidated listing of units exchanged between branches of the Armed Forces, indicates that housing is readily available.

CONARC also announced that dependents desiring the available family housing must not make preparations for their move until they learn from the family housing officer of the prospective post or base that quarters are being reserved.

Appropriate orders should be in the possession of the family making a move to new quarters.

Critics Pick 'Blow Up' Best Of '66

NEW YORK. — The National Society of Film Critics has selected "Blow-Up" as the best motion picture of 1966. The film, an English-language film, was announced here recently at a reception held at the Algonquin Hotel.

Antonio, the acclaimed Italian filmmaker, was cited as the year's best director by the group, representing film critics from 10 national publications.

Members of the National Society are: Stanley Kauffmann, movie reviewer of editorial WNDP and chairman of the group; Hollis Alpert and Arthur Knight, The Saturday Review; Brad Darrach, Time Magazine; Brendan Gill, The New Yorker; Philip H. Harkness, Commonwealth; P. A. Line, The New Republic; Joe Kroll, The New York Times; Andrew Sarris, The Village Voice; Richard Schickel, Life and John Simon, The New Leader.

"Blow-Up," a Carlo Ponti production starring Vanessa Redgrave, David Hemmings and Sarah Miles, is currently in the United States at the Coronet Theater in New York and the Lido Theater in Los Angeles.

Flimed in color in London, the drama was written for the screen by Antonio and Tompkins, and is being re-released in the United States by Premier Production Company, Inc.

Luciana Paluzzi is receiving more offers from American movie producers than she can handle. This is due not only to her beauty but to her ability to speak flawless English.

However, the ambitious hard-working Latina did not achieve her fluency in the language without considerable effort and months of lessons.

When she was cast as the temptress secretary to a news bureau chief in Venice who becomes involved with Robert Vaughn in MGM's suspenseful drama, "The Venetian Affair," she felt confident in being able to speak her lines clearly and without an accent.

As it turned out, her confidence was unrealistic for, although she was trained for it, she had to be re-taught the English language. Vaughn, who she previously had appeared in "To Trap a Spy," a feature-length film from the popular "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." television series.

"What did she think of her co-star? 'He's beautiful,'" she said. Told of this, Vaughn shrugged and said that Lillian Gish and Paul Ford, who she had to get the meaning of her lines across without

Short Stories Contain Many Writers' 'Best'

Are you a short story fan? If not, perhaps, you will be through the intriguing selections in the Post Special Services Libraries.

Short stories often contain some of the best unpublished literary efforts of a writer. They generally deal with the development of a character through his thoughts, separate situations and adventures.

The following titles are a representative listing of the current books:

Boll, Heinrich, EIGHTEEN STORIES, McGraw Hill, $1.98. Eight introspective stories weigh the values of life, eroticism and death.

Hammitt, Dashiell, THE BIG KNIGHT, Random, $1.98. Nine long short-stories are brought together in order to reflect the authenticity about the times and places of which he wrote, and the authority of his expression which Hammett possessed.

Household, Geoffrey, SABBATHS ON THE SAND, Little Brown, $1.98. Sixteen short adventures, false, ranging widely in time and locale include stories about four inmates in an Italian prison camp, an impetuous Englishman who finds an unlikely date and a seaman who believes he has found a clue to the lost continent of Atlantis.

Janifer, Laurence M., MASTER'S CHOICE, S & S, $1.98. Twenty renowned science fiction authors voted for the best nineteen science fiction stories ever written. Chosen from over one hundred and fifty candidates, they are now brought together under one cover.

Ledlow, Wioletta, THE WOMAN WITH THE LITTLE FOX, Farrar, Straus, Giroux, $1.98. Three novellas, translated from the French, present eccentric characters and bizarre situations of tenderness, desperation, poverty and love.

O'Hara, John, WAITING FOR WINTER, Random, $1.98. Twenty-one stories, of the finest quality, have thus far been printed are collected and added to the prolific author's list of credits.

SYNOPSIS

TORBUK — During the African campaign in WW II a small group comprised of elements of the British Long Range Desert Group and the Palestinian Special Unitification Group are sent to Torbuk where they are to blow up the fuel supplies. Rommel needs to complete his drive to the Suez Canal. Their mission is hampered by the fact that his creation, Rock Hudson, feels that the idea was conceived.

Also, there is distrust between the British and the Palestinians, who are led by George Peppard.

Action, danger and suspense follow the group as they move across the desert to keep their rendezvous with death.

THE WAR LORD — The War Lord, starring Charlton Heston in the title role, is one of the rarest of motion picture entertainments. It has grandeur, scope and spectacle combining vivid, pulsating action.

Heston is a mercenary Norman knight who becomes the ruler of a small village in 11th century Europe. He is practically bewitched by a beautiful peasant girl (Rosemary Forsyth), who has been promised in wedlock to a childhood sweetheart.

To add to his troubles, Heston's village is under constant threat from a hostile army.

Which brings love affair and a climactic battle by enemy forces, led by Henry Wilcoxon, make for a powerful, spectacular motion picture. A regular engagement.

AN AMERICAN DREAM — Successful television commentator Steve Rojick (Stuart Whitman) specializes in peddling the police and the gangster element, inferring they are in cahoots with one another.

When his wife (Eleanor Parker), from whom he has been separated, calls him during a program, he agrees to meet her in hopes that she will give him a divorce.

The meeting is a disaster. It shifts to Somalia, culminating in a violent argument and Mrs. Rojick's nuclear submarine.

Meanwhile in Berlin, deep cover agent Henry Fonda, behind the Iron Curtain for 17 years, fights off an army of assassins in a violent struggle to pass a vital secret to American headquarters.

Soviet agents stay on his trail and make numerous attempts to trap his efforts. They finally find Fonda in his locked hotel room.

Before his death, Fonda manages to write a cryptic message, "Opera 3," a solution of which provides the exciting climax.

THE DIRTY GAME — Archibuteo, an American intelligence collection element, GEN Robert Ryan remains close to the chain of events involving espionage agents under his supervision.

He starts with his agent in Rome, Vittorio Gassman, who successfully abducts a top scientist from the Russians. It shifts to Somalia, culminating in a violent argument and Mrs. Rojick's nuclear submarine.

Meanwhile in Berlin, deep cover agent Henry Fonda, behind the Iron Curtain for 17 years, fights off an army of assassins in a violent struggle to pass a vital secret to American headquarters.

Soviet agents stay on his trail and make numerous attempts to trap his efforts. They finally find Fonda in his locked hotel room.

Before his death, Fonda manages to write a cryptic message, "Opera 3," a solution of which provides the exciting climax.

Doughboy All-Star Squad Chosen

By SSG Snow Wilson
"I think it's one of my best teams," said Coach Jim Martin Tuesday as he announced the names of Fort Benning's "Doughboy" All-Star basketball team.
Martin, a master sergeant with over 16 years of Army coaching experience, said his team will average about six feet three, 195 pounds and 22 years old.
The team will have two players for each position plus a player-manager who plays almost as well as the members.
Talent from all over the United States is represented and one player was a member of last year's Far East Team.
"They're strong," Martin went on as he described that team's members who are big-ber than a lot of football players.

Going into details about each man Martin started out with the team's captain SSG Clyde K. Thomas of Co. A, 1st Bn., CTC.
Strong Rebounder
Six foot six Thomas hits the scales at 265 and has several years of Army ball behind him in division level teams in Korea and the States.
"A real strong rebounder," the coach added.
Thomas also has a good inside shot.
The other center chosen is PFC Ronnie L. Cobb, 29 year old two year veteran of Gonzaga University in Washington. He's a supply clerk with the 182 Aviation Co. in six foot four and weighs 220.
An exceptionally strong rebounder who shoots well inside and out. Cobb is originally from Chicago, Ill., a defender.

Probably the best jump shot on the team is PFC (Nathaniel) Hardaway of the 183rd Chemical Pl.
Hardaway, a forward, is 22 years old, six foot two and weighs 165.
He is from Memphis, Tenn. and played for Springs College at Holly Springs, Army nine months ago.
Quick and agile Hardaway is real strong on the boards.
Good Jump Shot
Six footer PFC Alonzo Williams out of Florida A&M, the other forward, can stuff the ball and is exceptionally fast.
Williams was named to the Florida All State High School team in 64-65 and has a good jump shot.
He is 20 years old, weighs 188, and was named to the team from Btry A, 2nd Bn., 10th Army.
Williams says the Army plays a different style but Coach Martin added "He's caught on - fast!"
Another forward, PFC Willard, spreads his 205 pounds over a six foot three frame.
This 20-year-old from the Albarne Battalion's 41st Co. is real strong on the boards and very fast. He's another player from Chicago.
Another ball stuff is six foot two William Jackson from the 3rd Ranger Co. Jackson, also a forward, is 22 and weighs 180.
A good play maker with a good jump shot Jackson played on the 2d Division team in Korea last year and is from Mexico, Texas.
Team Midget
The relative midget on the team is SGT Glen E. Hamilton who stands only five foot eight and barely tips the scales at 140.
"But he's the best ball handler on the team," reasoned Martin who then spent ten minutes describing Hamilton's speed, deception and shooting ability that makes him the best set shot on the team.
A guard, Hamilton was selected from the 1st Eng. Bn. and has been playing the Army's brand of basketball since coming into the service seven years ago.
Now 25 years old, Hamilton got his start with the industrial leagues in Wichita, Kan.
He was on the 26th Division team in Hawaii from '62 to '65 and was chosen to play that time to play on the Army All-Star Team at Hawaii that competed against other services all-star teams in the islands.

Benning Sending YAC Swimmers To Invitational

Members of the YAC swimming team will represent Fort Benning tomorrow in the third annual "Georgia 100" Invitational Swimming Meet in Forest Park, Ga.
The meet, sponsored by the Georgia Aquatic Council, Inc. and sanctioned by the Georgia Association of the A.A.U., will be held at the Forest Park Recreation Center.
The events, which will begin approximately two hours after the qualifying heats, will be conducted on a time-trial basis with the top six qualifiers swimming in the finals.
Medals will be awarded for the first three places in the individual events and for first place in the relays.
Fourth through sixth place in the individual events and second and third place in the relays will be ribbon awards.
Members representing Fort Benning's YAC team will be: Larry Swain, Wayne Wagner, Patty O'Neill, Bob Pelotico, Anne Daley, Ken Sanders, Jim Wise, Karen Kason, Cynthia Gorman, Sari Wise and Barb Johnson.

Army Pistol Team Cops Lockheed Gallery Meet

The U. S. Army pistol team dominated the Lockheed Gallery Pistol Matches last weekend at Marietta, Ga.
U. S. Army Gray Team finished 119-24 to win the team championship. SFC Robert D. Whitacre fired 888-24 to win the individual aggregate.
MAJ Sallie Carroll, the 1966 Woman National Pistol Champion, set a new match record in the rapid fire match with 107-11. Her individual aggregate score was 857-29.
Individual Match Results:
1st - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 888-24
2nd - MAJ Sallie Carroll, 857-29
3rd - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
4th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
5th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
6th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
7th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
8th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
9th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29
10th - SFC Robert D. Whitacre, 857-29

The Aftermath

BY LARRY MAHONEY
Within its own sphere, it has the quality of shock. There are few certain things anymore — if there ever were — but basketball baron Adolph Rupp and his Kentuckians could be counted on across the country. This, however, is a new year and it appears that we can scratch another sure thing: The Wildcats are dead last on rock bottom, squatting in the SEC cellar and unmentioned in national ratings.
The baron is a red one now. His equivalent of Snoopy in a Sopwith Camel is a surprising group of Gators from the University of Florida, a football-conscious school of Florida, a football-conscious school of Kentucky has won 22 under Rupp.
This year's football battle was a close one among five SEC giants. The basketball picture, at this early point, looks much the same with Florida, Vanderbilt, Tennessee and Mississippi State entering strong bids for conference primary.
The big difference is this. In the SEC, Kentucky is to basketball what Alabama is to football. Future, if possible, a Bear Bryant football team at the wrong end of his conference's standing.
It is an advantage in any sport to play at home. In basketball, a familiar court is earned decisive, and Rupp's Lexington gym has earned the reputation of an inviolable bastion. When Florida whipped the Wildcats there a few days ago, it was the first time ever that a Gator five had won in Lexington.
At this writing, Kentucky, having fallen in a penalty shoot-out for the first time in 17 years, owns a 0-4 in SEC play, all but eliminating the Baron's befuddled boys from any title aspirations.
It still goes without saying, however, that Adolph Rupp deserves, if any man does, the honor of being called the world's greatest basketball coach. In 916 games over a 37-year career at Kentucky, his teams have lost only 159.
Rupp, as eager and gruff as ever, is not counting 1967 off yet. He has been quick to point out the 1958 Kentucky campaign, which after a 0-2 start saw the Wildcats scratch their way to both the SEC and national championships.
Rupp's riflemen get a shot at Auburn in Lexington tomorrow night. If they lose this one, even the Baron might have to accept, for the year at least, Kentucky's curious descent.
"The Southeastern Conference," the Baron said, "has changed complexion. It is much stronger this year."
Florida's lively Gators, under new coach Tomamy Bartlett, are the main reason behind the complex change. Rupp included. Bartlett, who won a SEC title at Tennessee last year, appears to have fashioned another winner with his strapping, efficient first five.
Lest you feel somewhat left out on Bartlett, don't let the reference to his 1966 title at Tennessee confuse things. He wasn't coaching basketball, it was the Volunteer tennis squad.
One of the things that makes 'Sports Illustrated' the best magazine in its field is its recognition of the vital variety of human activities which can be classified as sports.
This week's issue contains articles on football, basketball and boxing, and ventures into less conventional topics such as bathing suits, banking, radio, boys, and Elizabeth Taylor's horseback riding.
There's a Fort Benning angle to the brief article on Liz's riding. Her latest movie is "Rebel Without a Cause." Eye the story of a Fort Benning officer's tortured relations with

'World's Best Marksmen' Getting Ready to Defend Their Reputation

By Bob Robinson
Rifle, pistol and shotgun shooters assigned to the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning are preparing for shooting camps that will carry them across the United States, Mexico, Panama, Canada and Europe during the next nine months.
Outlining one of the busiest seasons on record, COL J. J. Peot, USAMTU commander, said, "We cannot rest on the laurels gained in 1966."
The "National" will be our first real test in 1967," said MAJ Messersmith Bull, officer in charge of the pistol team.
Bull added, "The pistol team will follow their indoor shooting with mid-winter matches in Florida." Their full schedule will continue through the National Matches in August.
Early in February the rifle team will conduct a shooting clinic in Panama for the best marksmen and interservice training matches ending with the Nationals in August.
The running bear, trap and skeet teams have intensified training in preparation for the Worlds Moving Target Championships to be held in Rome, Italy, in the fall.
The trap and skeet teams are in the process of rebuilding with untired personnel who show great promise of developing into top Olympic shooters for the 1968 Olympics.
The International rifle team is getting down to serious shooting, preparing to defend their successes of the 1966 season.
All teams will be conducting preliminary try-outs for the Pan American Games being held this summer in Winnipeg, Canada. Final selections for the U.S. Shooting Team will be made after the try-outs.
A squad of all-stars will be selected from past teams to enter the U.S. International Rifle Team to be held here in Fort Benning, July.

"Regardless of the intermediate matches being fired," COL Peot explained, "the real goal for most of the shooters will be the Pan American Games. Here the shooter will be representing the United States as well as the Army. It's a heretofore shooting for. It brings with it prestige, honor, fame and a lot of satisfaction."
Current national champions are sharpening their sights preparing to defend their titles. MAJ Sallie Carroll is looking to win the National Woman's Pistol Championship for the third time.
SSG Barbara Hill, now a novice pistol shooter, will defend her heretofore rifle crown. The Woman's Small Bore Rifle Position Championship will be defended by Rifle Champion Margaret Thompson.
And you can bet that SFC William E. Blankenship, just returned from Korea, will be shooting to win the National Division teams in Knoxville to Army play he was on teams in Covington, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio.

Another outstanding defenseman and exceptional ball handler is six foot SP4 William Smith from Hq. & Co., 10th Avn. Co.
Now holding down a guard spot Smith played for Cleveland Ohio Tech and was on teams in that city's class A industrial league. He's 22 and weighs 190.

Slick Roads Halt Contest For Drivers

Georgia's clay and rain were named the overall winner of the Chavaga road rally last Saturday.
Rally officials at the Chattahoochee Valley Sports Car Club called an end to the mud-slinging contest after 45 miles of a scheduled 90 mile run.
After a refund of entry fees, the club announced it would hold another rally, on paved roads, January 29, for the already engraved trophies.
Most contestants, covered with red clay and dirty from swapping ends on mud slick back roads, were quite happy with the decision to call off the event. The leader had already collected more penalties than was allowed for the test.
The disappearance of a rally official, slithering and doing circles midst great confusion, led to the cancellation of the test.
He took the test and did very well - but not well enough. Although he had the highest score of the morning, he was worried that it might be beaten in the afternoon when the remainder of the company took the test.
So, he took the test again. The afternoon and scored, 150 - a perfect score.

Soldier Assures Himself of Pass With 2 PIT Tests

A soldier will do a lot for three day pass. But will he do what PFC Joe M. Pagan did?
When the CO of Co. A, 1st Bn., (M), 26th Infantry pronounced a three day pass to the highest score on the company PT test Pagan became a man possessed.
He took the test and did very well - but not well enough. Although he had the highest score of the morning, he was worried that it might be beaten in the afternoon when the remainder of the company took the test.
So, he took the test again. The afternoon and scored, 150 - a perfect score.

his wife. The book was written by Carson McCullers, a Columbus author.

Bliding was an important activity at the Infantry School in the 1930's, and it plays a prominent role in both the book and the movie. Liz had not ridden for 15 years, but Sports Illustrated reports that she does most of the leading man, and Liz is reportedly riding circles around Jim. "She has a good seat," director John Huston said.

Atlanta Braves Sign 3 Players From Dominican

Jim Fanning, the Atlanta Braves' new farm director, returned from nearly a month of travel in Latin America last week and announced he signed three young prospects from the Dominican Republic to Braves' contracts. The most promising of the newest Braves is the starting second baseman on the Dominican League's strongest team, Escogido. He's 20-year-old Juan Luis Guo, who was batting .306 at last year's meeting.

That average was good enough to rank Joa third on the club behind Matty Alou (of the Pittsburgh Pirates) and Felipe Alou (Atlanta). "Joa is one of the most impressive unsigned native players in the league," Fanning reports.

The other Fanning signings are pitchers Pedro Beltran and Andres Abreu. Beltran contract means a second chance to make the big leagues in the United States. He played in the Florida rookie league in 1965 but was released by the Braves in spring training in 1966.

"Beltran is now a much improved pitcher," Fanning explains. The third Brave signing, Abreu, was picked by Fanning and Adair from "about 60 or 70" young prospects attending a tryout in one Dominican town. When Abreu pitched well the following night before a Dominican League game at San Pedro de Macoris, Fanning signed him to a Braves' contract.

Fanning says these three scouting young hopefuls in Dominica, Puerto Rico and Venezuela.

All-Stars

Parker of Hq. Etry, 42nd Arty.

Six foot six Parker, who's 23 years old, is forward and played four years at Oglethorpe in Atlanta when it was the state college in the nation's small college team in the 1930s.

Having just returned from Vietnam, he served with the 8th of the 27 Army. Parker is still a little rough but Martin wants him along in case of an emergency. His knowledge of the game is also of great help to the other players.

Candidate Sowa Quits White Sox To Be an Officer

The 70th Co., 7th Bn. (OC) TSF has a foundation for a winning team in baseball this season.

One reason for this prediction is because of Officer Candidate Stanley V. Sowa. Sowa a former University of Southern California student, signed a professional baseball contract in 1961 with the Chicago White Sox for what at that time was a substantial bonus.

He played his first two seasons on the White Sox's minor league team. Last season he started with the major league team and played with them for the first month of the season until he joined the Army in June, 1966.

Prior to signing his initial professional contract, he participated on the first Olympic baseball team in 1964 in Japan. Needless to say Sowa is a very good hand at throwing grenades too.

Cycle Club Sets 'Enduro' Feb. 5

By SSG Snow Wilson
To some it might appear a little odd that SP4 Bobby Brooks of Martin Army Hospital and Sgt. Don Howell of 10th Aviation Squadron are preparing to ride their motorcycles through the worst mud holes they can find.

The "two wheel" enthusiasts, however, recognize them immediately as Enduro competition training fun. An event to be held in Columbus February 5.

Brooks and Howell, and courses such as SGT Robert Summerville and 2LT Max Byrd are part of an ever growing group of motorcycle enthusiasts, called the Sportcycle Club of Columbus, who are finding Enduros an answer to sports in the field.

Byrd was the overall winner of one held through the local country during December 18 and Summerville won in his class for the event. Although similar to the sport usually called an Enduro, it doesn't call for skill in map reading or mathematics. The course is plainly marked and the speed is easy to compute (20 mph-1 mile every 3 minutes, 24 mph-2 miles every 3 minutes).

An official average speed is set for the entire course with the instrument. It takes all the while to the finish line. Byrd took his win in December with only one penalty.

Enduros are run with two riders starting every minute with a credit of 1,000 points. A point is lost for each minute late and two for each minute early at various check points around the course.

With the route going through rough country, Enduro is a test of both man and machine. Really tough terrain swamps, woods and hills, are alternated with fairly easy stretches over trails and dirt roads.

Surprisingly as it may seem, an Enduro contestant actually de-tunes his "bike." By lowering the compression ratio the engine pulls better through a wide power range and is much more reliable than a high "revving" machine such as those found in racing motorcycles.

More than four years in the transmission presents problems which is either strapped to the inside of the arm or mounted in view on the handlebars. The abuse metted out by the rough terrain can knock out any machine's suspension. Should a constant break down is allowed an hour for repairs before being disassembled.

The Sportcycle Club's Enduro training fun is open to all motorcycle riders and starts at 1 p.m. from the Tommy Wailes Motor Sports on 18th Street at the Express.

Wide bars are a help in the "biker" and keep you on the "bike" and keep from being disqualified. The more experience, however, usually have a large easily read instrument.

It looks like a sick dog's tongue hanging there but it means mud and water out of the engine and your face," said one.

Novice Enduro riders evidently need little in the way of instruction. It takes all of their ability to stay on the "bike" and keep from being disqualified. The more experience, however, usually have a large easily read instrument.

Why not take time in the 1967 OPEL Today GM's lowest priced automobile.

Three Posthumous Awards Presented Here

A Silver Star for gallantry in action in Vietnam was posthumously awarded to PFC Charlie G. Walker of Ashburn, Ga., here recently.

COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, presented the decoration to PFC Walker's mother, Mrs. Arthur W. Walker, at the ceremony at the presence of members of the immediate family and close relatives.

The action for which PFC Walker was cited took place March 17, 1966, during an attack by the Viet Cong near Phouc Vinh.

During a five-hour battle, Walker, a member of Co. G, 2nd Bn. (Airborne), 503rd Inf., 173 Airborne Bde. (Sep.), held a vital position on the left flank.

When the Viet Cong launched a mass attack, using rockets and hand grenades, Walker withstood the attack and repulsed the enemy with a machine rifle. He then fired a grenade launcher relinquished by a wounded comrade. Walker disrupted another enemy attack on his position.

He used the weapon successfully to eliminate several snipers who were attempting to destroy the position of a hold of automatic weapons operated by Walker's fellow soldiers.

Walker, who continued this gallant action until he was mortally wounded, was cited for "extraordinary gallantry in action" in combat against a numerically superior "hostile force" which was attacking with the highest traditions of the military service.

SP4 Stephen Robinson of Ellaville, Ga., who died Feb. 18, 1966, during an attack in combat in Vietnam, was posthumously awarded a Purple Heart in a ceremony at Infantry Hall here recently.

Mrs. Betty E. Robinson, widow of SP4 Robinson, accepted the decoration which was presented by COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander.

SP4 Robinson was a member of Co. B, 2nd Bn. 12th Cav. 1st Cav. Div. (Alpb.), Fort Benning, Ga. He was killed in action in a helicopter crash near the home of his mother in Miami, Fla.

A Purple Heart was posthumously awarded to PFC Marvin Dowdell of Route 3, Cordele, Ga., in a ceremony at Infantry Hall here recently.

COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, presented the decoration to Mrs. Dessie B. Dowdell, Marvin Dowdell's mother.

PFC Dowdell was a member of Co. D, 1st Bn., 5th Cav. 1st Cav. Div. (Alpb.), Fort Benning, Ga.

PVT Saves NCO From Sink Hole

A young soldier of the 8th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., has been credited for rescuing his squad leader from death in a sink hole.

He is PVT Gregory V. Schauer and his courageous efforts saved SGT Sidney E. Cook while on a training problem near Kelley Hill January 13.

Cook and his men, a rifle squad of the 3rd platoon, Co. B, 501st, were on a patrol problem moving along a stream in a wooded area.

On a command to assault, the squad formed a line and began moving forward at a trot toward their objective, a road.

As they dashed forward, Cook plunged into the sink hole, estimated to be 20 feet in diameter. Within a minute, he had sunk to his armpits.

Schauer made a fast search for the immediate area for a long pole or some other item that would help free his squad leader, but was unable to find anything.

He saw that Cook was still sinking and would probably meet his death by suffocation within seconds. Without regard to his own personal safety, Schauer jumped into the pit and extended his rifle to Cook.

Cook grasped the weapon and pulled himself up, finally freeing himself from the mire. But, by this time, Schauer himself was up to his chest in the mud.

Other members of the squad, including PVT Gregory V. Schauer, who witnessed the event testified to the 19-year-old soldier's prompt action. Schauer's company commander, 2LT Robert N. Rivoli, said he has recommended the soldier for an award.

New Members Sought In Local AUSA Drive

A membership drive for the Columbus - Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, largest of the Association of the United States Army, began this week.

Spurring the start of the drive were a letter from MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, and a meeting of the Sergeants Major Association with BG James S. Timothy, assistant commander of The Infantry School.

In his command letter, MG York cited the local chapter's accomplishment of being the largest in AUSA history, saying he felt deep pride in the knowledge that "the dedicated interest of our career soldiers reflects a keen understanding of the aims and objectives of (AUSA) that so closely parallel our own."

The local chapter began its (See AUSA, Page 2)

OC Bns. Win Bond Awards For Top Rate

The south Georgia area representative of the U. S. Treasury Department, Marvin Summers, presented Minuteman Flags to the 8th and 9th Battalions (OC) of the Student Brigade, Monday.

In a morning ceremony at 8th Battalion headquarters, Summers presented the 8th Battalion LTC Bertram Bishop, battalion commander.

Later, with the officers and men of the 8th Battalion assembled, Summers presented another flag to LTC Oliver Willford III, commander of the 9th Battalion.

In qualifying for the award, the 8th Battalion reported 89.2 percent participation in the program by its 1190 men, while the 9th Battalion reported 89.5 percent by its 1200 men.

In achieving the high participation rate, both battalions also qualified for the Secretary of the Army's Savings Award and the Third United States Army award.

George L. Sherling, G-3 testing officer, USAIC, and MSG Wayne D. Child, G-3 Testing Group, USAIC. GEN Johnson was placed by Stewart's unit commander, the final Physical Combat Proficiency Test.

Tri-Faith Workshop to Draw 10 Visiting Religious Educators Here

A Tri-Faith Religious Education Workshop here January 30 - February 2 will be staffed by ten visiting religious educators.

The workshop is an annual event of the Religious Education Branch of the Chaplain Section and is held for Fort Benning lay teachers and chaplains of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths.

Keynote speaker will be Hans Erman of Atlanta, who will address the conferees at a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Supper Club and during the day.

After the address, there will be departmental classification Bureau of Jewish Education. The following three days, classes will be conducted at the center at 7 p.m. The workshop will close with a joint meeting at Jewish Center, Bldg., 2221, at 8 p.m. Thursday. In addition to evening classes, personal and departmental conferences with the consultants may be scheduled during the day.

son and past president Oscar E. Bates Jr., as well as MG (retired) modernization of the Army's budget is not allowed to divide dangerously and putting legislation for adequate pay for military personnel.

Thursday, at a luncheon in the 7-9 NCO Club, BG Trimble met with the sergeants major, urging every troop leader to make this year to maintain the chapter's No. 1 rating. He asked them to assure that all officers and noncommissioned officers are fully aware of the need to join with AUSA in its work for the Army and the serviceman.

MG York's letter also covered the subject of "reward" from membership. He concluded, "I expect all direct, materialistic reward should not be expected, but the 'real reward is more individual is made aware of the benefits of this organization." He stated the "great contributions" the association has made through membership.

Surgeon Says

Mental Hygiene offers rules for healthy mind

By CPT Joseph E. Murray
Mental hygiene has become an increasingly familiar phrase. Its meaning, however, may be somewhat unclear to most people. Usually the term "hygiene" refers to the body, and in this usage it means a set of rules which are designed to preserve physical health.

Mental hygiene also refers to a set of rules. But rather than the preservation of physical health, the rules of mental hygiene are designed to assist in the achievement and maintenance of mental health. If mental hygiene is practiced, that is, the rules are followed, the individual will be able to make a good psychological adjustment to the environment and the people around him. In other words, the rules of mental hygiene help to prevent psychological problems.

For example, just as we can say that adequate rest and proper diet contribute to physical health, we might say that ridding oneself of feelings of inferiority will contribute to mental health. We can say this because we know that lack of sleep and poor diet can lead to physical distress of one kind or another, while inferiority feelings inevitably lead to disabling psychological symptoms.

Rules of Health
What are the rules, then, for preserving mental health? First, it is very important that the individual be physically healthy. Mental and physical health are closely related. Anyone who has suffered great physical pain knows how difficult it is to adjust psychologically to such a condition.

Second, mental health depends on how well a person fulfills the moral, intellectual, social and emotional aspects of man's nature. Hatred of people, aggressiveness against others, depression, feelings of inferiority, continual lying or stealing, etc., are all contrary to man's natural way of responding to himself and the people around him.

Self-Control
Third, mental health depends on self-control and self-knowledge. Without self-control it is difficult to respond appropriately to a given situation. We all have had experiences in which we acted too hastily and were sorry for it. The person who frequently acts too hastily is unable to cope with the demands and frustrations of daily life. Quote of the Week

"The military strength of our Nation rests upon the united, balanced effort of all the Services, each contributing the best it can to each supporting the others in their fields." — Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps.

SEE MY MOTHER ALL YEAR LONG MY DENTIST ONLY TWICE -

Judge Says

Property that is unprotected often tempts honest to steal

It has been wisely said that "locks are for honest people." With the saying means substantially that, an otherwise honest person is tempted to steal property which is unprotected and easy to take, but if the same property were locked up, and same person would entertain no thought of breaking the lock and stealing.

Such information is of great importance to police investigators because in about 75 per cent of the cases, the stolen property is "hooked" or sold to pawn shops or dealers in second hand merchandise.

The Judge says - by recording serial numbers and keeping your property locked up when unattended, you will be assisting in crime prevention. Most barracks thieves are eventually caught and the great majority are those persons with no prior record.

CIB currently authorized for service in five wars

The Combat Infantryman Badge, first awarded in World War II, is now authorized for service in Korea, Laos, Dominican Republic and Vietnam.

An individual must be an infantry officer in the grade of colonel or below, or an enlisted man or warrant officer with an Infantry MOS to be awarded the badge. He must have satisfactorily performed duty while assigned or attached as a member of an infantry unit of regimental or smaller size during any period since Dec. 6, 1941, provided his unit was engaged in active ground combat. One award is given for each war in which the individual has participated.

This Far...No Further

President Lyndon B. Johnson delivered his State of the Union Message to Congress recently. This extract from the message reviews the essential points of why we are in Vietnam.

We are in Vietnam because the United States of America and our allies are committed by the SEATO treaty to "act to meet the common danger" of aggression in Southeast Asia.

We are there because the people of South Vietnam have as much right to remain non-Communist - if that is what they choose - as North Vietnam has to remain Communist. We are there because the Congress has pledged by solemn vote to take all necessary measures to prevent further aggression.

No better words could describe our present course there than those once spoken by the great Thomas Jefferson: "It is the manufacture of law of human societies to be compelled sometimes to choose a great evil in order to ward off a greater evil."

We have chosen to fight a limited war in Vietnam in an attempt to prevent a larger war - a war almost certain to follow, I believe if the Communists succeeded in overrunning and taking over South Vietnam by aggression and by force.

I believe and I am supported by some authority, that if they are not checked now, the world can expect to pay a greater price to check them later. That is what the statesmen said when they debated this treaty, and that is why it was ratified 82 to 1 by the Senate many years ago.

Often they will remember that we stood in Western Europe 20 years ago. Is there anyone in this chamber tonight who doubts that the course of freedom was not changed for the better because of the courage of the men who stood there? Sixteen years ago we and others stopped another kind of aggression - this time it was in Korea. And imagine how different Asia might be today if we had failed to act when the Communist army of North Korea marched south.

"The Asia of tomorrow will be far different because we have said in Vietnam as we said 16 years ago in Korea: 'This far, and no further.'" (ANF)

Ten Instructors From Benning Attend Two-Day Air Force Visual Aids Seminar

MAXWELL AFB, Ala. - Academic Instructor and Allied Officer School made Air University history recently as ten Army instructors from Ft. Benning arrived for a two-day visual aids seminar. The ten, nine enlisted men and one officer, are instructors at the U. S. Army Infantry School. This was the first inter-service visual aids course to be conducted at AIAOS.

MAJ Marshall A. Dean, Chief, Instructional Media Division at AIAOS, said, "Through this program, we are trying to show them the simple way of making visual aids, along with the more complicated and advanced techniques." As an example of the simple method, the students-felt tip marker pens, coloring and cotton swabs in posters and signs using the students-felt tip marker pens.

Fantasia Ballet Planned

By Lynn Jones
The Three Arts Theatre has presented the National Ballet Company, the Bradley Theatre has featured Elisha Ballet, '67, and so to carry out a popular theme, Le Petit Ballet will perform "Le Ballet Fantasia" for the February 1 Officers' Wives Luncheon.

Hosted by the Medical Services Officers' Wives Club, the luncheon will feature the ballet company in excerpts from Act II of Tchaikovsky's Swan Lake.

In this act, the prince is on a hunting party for swans. He sees a swan approaching, but when reaching the shore, the swan is transformed into a maiden.

She tells the prince that she been turned into swans by an evil magician and she can only at night are they allowed to return to human form.

Only the undying love of a prince can break the spell. With the approach of dawn, the swan returns to the lake.

Terrill Faulk, director of the Le Petit Ballet, will perform at noon January 30. The first names begin with A—F. On post members whose last names begin with A—F, phone Mrs. Stephen Faylis at 545-7610; G—M, Mrs. Cecil Murrain, Linda Morris, Beth McLeod and Sandra Ortiz, 545-5539; N—S, Mrs. Richard Maloney, 545-2566; T—Z, Mrs. Robert Armstrong, 545-2007.

Ranger Wives Conduct 'Old Fashioned' Lunch

Reliving the last years of the 19th century, the wives of the Ranger Department spent an afternoon at a local "gay nineties pub" for their luncheon last week.

The ladies were advised in the invitations to "Don your skirt with the backside bustle, down to the old saloon you should have for your pickering and old fashioned fun, some sans your hat and sans your gun!"

Besides listening to the banjo player and the player piano, the group joined in for such songs as "Bill Bailey," "Carolina Moon," and "Bye-bye Blackbird."

Mrs. Irvin A. Edwards, wife of the director of the Ranger Department, welcomed newcomers Mrs. William B. Bernier, Mrs. Arthur

Dear Community Service

Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Leonard F. Mytych, Mrs. Ronnie L. Quigley and Mrs. Hilario Trevino.

THE WIVES of 4 officers do have to get a temporary card? My husband is overwell as my time and trouble to come to you for a temporary card and then 30 days later, have to go back to get a permanent one.

LAZY I understand your concern. We don't like the idea of duplication or wasted time and effort either.

A temporary card is a means of eliminating hardship for a family who would be without its benefits unless we did issue it when the regular is not available.

However, in your case, your suggestion may make it possible for you and other wives in the same position to save the expensive duplication. There are two ways: If your husband can arrange to have DD Form 1172 completed by his personnel officer and mailed to reach you on or before the day your card expires, you may go to slide 35 with that form and obtain a permanent card.

If you do not believe he is in a position to do this, we will be glad to mail the forms to his personnel officer at your request.

Either of these actions completed before your card expires, may make it possible to eliminate the temporary card issue.

Humorous Incidents Show Lighter Side of Grim War

DI AN, VIETNAM — The Big Red One saw its share of unusual and often amusing incidents last year.

A look through past issues of "The American Flyer" reveals several of these, but don't laugh too hard, because amusing incidents are the "Candid Camera" show: When you least expect it, you're elected.

Take the case of CPT Richard Sones, a helicopter pilot who was flying a mission in December, 1965, when an enemy bullet crashed through the bubble of his chopper and hit him in the right foot.

On Feb. 5, 1966, with foot and boot repaired, Sones was flying the same helicopter, with the same crew, when once again a bullet crashed through the bubble and hit him in the right heel.

As a door guard helped him to the medical detachment after the second incident, the gumer remarked, "Sir, those boots aren't made for walkin'!"

The captain managed a grin and answered, "Yep, and they're not made for flyin' either!"

Then there is the case of a Big Red One armored personnel carrier driver, SP4 Frederick Schaller who discovered his lucky number last May.

While driving during an operation, Schaller's helmet was pierced by a sniper's bullet. The round entered his helmet over his right eye, crossed over his forehead and made its exit over his left ear. He was later treated for a slight burn on his forehead.

Schaller's lucky number was painted on his personnel carrier and his helmet in bold letters. It read: "13".

Last June, PFCs Larry Johnson, Michael Kerdin and Vernon Kolb were all treated to a shower by the VC. The men were filling a water trailer at a list Inf. Div. base camp when Viet Cong snipers opened up on them with grenades and automatic weapons. The men jumped under the nearest cover — their water trailer.

As the firing continued, the trailer filled up and began to overflow; pouring gallons of water on the men who couldn't risk getting up to shut it off.

When the shooting stopped, three dripping figures emerged from beneath the trailer. "When those rounds started coming, we started to sweat, and a shower was just what we needed," said Johnson, as he turned off the hose.

Then there was a major who had a button on his jacket broken by a VC round.

MAJ A. A. Hiyamoto was flying a helicopter assault mission last February when the chopper he was in took 20 hits from automatic and small arms fire.

One of the rounds slammed through the chopper's Plexiglas shield, and struck the major's chest plate.

The armored vest slowed the bullet, but it didn't stop until it came to rest against a button on his fatigue jacket.

The major's comment: "I wish Charlie hadn't ruined that button, it was a brand new jacket!"

A Viet Cong sampan paroled was broken up last November by a "dew" line Vietnamese style.

A 1st Inf. Div. ambush party moved through the dark one night to an ambush site to find a flock of ducks ready "dug-in" at their proposed ambush site.

Deciding to make the best of it, the men set the ambush and waited. A couple of hours later, the "Ducks"

Early Warning" system alerted the men.

A VC sampan was trying to sneak past the ducks' position and the ducks reacted with loud quacks, followed immediately by the louder, headier sounds of the ambush opening up on the sampan.

The VC learned a lesson about no parking zones last November when their well hidden base camp suddenly became a target for U. S. artillery and air strike. The VC patrol who discovered a low of bicycles, lined up and neatly parked on a trail, right beside the enemy base camp!

Chap. (MAJ) David F. Tate, 23d Gp. chaplain and sermons to the men of 23d Gp. for their work, Sgt. Etry, Div. Arty., the funds and imaginative ideas.

The presentation was made by LTC Colin M. Carter, commanding officer, 88th Engr. Bn. while COL Lawrence H. Caruthers, commanding officer, 1st Inf. Div. Arty. accepted the chapel on behalf of his men.

COL Thomas H. Sayes, the 23d Arty. Gp. commander, was also present. The benediction was conducted by Chaplain (CPT) Meredith R. Standley, Div. Arty. chaplain.

Also participating in the ceremony was the 1st Inf. Div. Arty. choir, "The Chorus Singers," and the Phu Cuong Protestant children's choir under the direction of Pastor Huyuh van Thien.

The chapel, which stands 30 feet tall, is 80 feet long and 30 feet wide. It has a tile floor, a new Hammond organ and, for the holiday season, a set of statuettes depicting the birth of Christ.

IDEAS SOUGHT DURING ARMY-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor has implemented an Army-wide promotional effort to encourage civilian and military participation in the Army Suggestion Program during the period January 1 - March 31. MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, said in a recent command letter: "It is my desire that positive action be taken to assure continued opportunity and encouragement for all Army personnel to submit constructive ideas for improving efficiency, utilization of manpower and effecting economies in Army operations." MG York also pointed out the personal reward gained by participating in this program. He said, "... you will have a sense of accomplishment."

Safety Practice

Personnel are urged to practice "defensive driving," especially during the hazardous winter months. Army safety officials and commanders at all levels should stress to their personnel that special attention should be paid to speed, braking, clear windows, and tire pressure.

ment, receive individual recognition, enjoy your improved work area and profit by personal gains through cash reward. The role of the evaluator in the suggestion program also was stressed, demanding an open-minded attitude combined with a positive and realistic approach. MG York's letter continued, "I urge you to accept this suggestion challenge as a special opportunity to assist our government in achieving utmost thrift and frugality in its operations. Judiciously review your work areas and strive to improve your daily operation."

Emphasis is being directed toward on-the-job improvements in such areas as the administrative practices, the improvement of supply procedures and record keeping, and a more effective utilization of manpower resources. Ideas for economies and improvements should be submitted on forms available in the administrative section of each department. Completed forms are to be turned in to the immediate supervisors.

Jaycess Say Army Captain Up In Top 10

JEKVELL ISLAND, Ga. (ANF)—Army CPT William S. Carpenter Jr., was honored here this month by the United States Jaycees as one of the nation's Ten Outstanding Young Men of 1966. Carpenter, 29, a recent aide to GEN W. C. Westmoreland, commander of the Allied Forces in Vietnam, distinguished himself in June, 1966, by ordering air attacks on his 10th Airborne Div., 1st Bde. company's position to prevent it from being overrun by the enemy. He became an All-American football player as "lonesome end" on the U. S. Military Academy team.

Other men between the ages of 21 and 35 who were awarded at the Jaycees' Jan. 24 ceremonies included Special Assistant to the President Joseph Califano, who formerly served as special assistant to the Secretary of the Army and general counsel of the Department of the Army.

Ceremony Sees 69th Armor CO Leave Command

A change-of-command ceremony is set for 4:30 p.m. today at Harmony Church, where the colors of the 69th Arm., 197th Inf. Bde. will pass to a new commander. LTC Vincent deP. Gannon, who has commanded the battalion since July, 1965, will turn over his command to LTC Harold L. Lusby. Gannon is being reassigned to duties with the U.S. Military Assistance Command in Vietnam.

The new commanding officer is a recent returnee from Vietnam, where he served as an assistant sector advisor in the II Corps Area. He entered military service with the U.S. Navy in March, 1944, and came into the Army in 1947. Lusby was commissioned through Officer Candidate School here in 1951.

OCS Moulds 'Rare Breed' Says Speaker

Officer candidate schools "mould a rare breed of warrior-leader," BG Elvy B. Roberts told 146 graduates of the Infantry OCS here last Friday.

BG Roberts, the deputy commanding general of Fort Jackson, S. C., served in Vietnam as a brigade commander of the 1st Cav. Div. He won the Silver Star at Bong Son.

He told the new officers, members of the 9th Co., 9th Stu. Battalion, that OCS "has a heritage proven on the crucibles of 100 battlefields." Distinguished honor graduate and the class's top man academically was 2LT Robert C. Marbourg.

Man's Burden Is Viewed In Army Aviation Digest

"The average American woman's burden is becoming easier whereas that of her spouse follows an opposite trend."

This is an interesting observation found in the February issue of the U. S. ARMY AVIATION DIGEST. It's in an article called "An Appeal to the Ladies." The article goes on to say that the woman is due to the modern conveniences available to her. But to get all these conveniences, the man of the house must put up with excessive worry, frustration fatigue. The article ends by asking the wives of aviators to help her man by taking some of the worry off his shoulders. She's asked to see that his house is peaceful and quiet. Another article describes the way "mimics" are being built in Vietnam. In building these little helicopters a new system is used that greatly reduces the dust problem. Among the other articles are "Smoke in the Cockpit" which deals with checklists, "Need Help at Your Destination" which explains runway visual range and sliding scales, "Engine Missing—Doesn't Know—But Should" dealing with DA Form 2486 which is about, of all things, "The Man Who's the instrument examiner."

At Ease.

Ever see anyone more relaxed and trouble-free? Maybe it's because of his two-week leave. Or perhaps he's dreaming of his welcome home. We like to think it's because he's enjoying the friendly skies of United.

Sure, the stewardess is pretty. The chow? Almost as good as Mom's! And that seat's soft enough to sleep in. But, best of all, he didn't waste his leave lounging around the airport. He started winging his way home fast because he went to where the seats are. He went to United, the airline with the world's largest jet fleet.

Men and women in uniform, with authorized military leave or furlough papers, fly (stand-by) at 50% off regular Coach fare. (This rate also applies within 7 days after discharge.) They can sit wherever the seats are, even in First Class when the other seats are filled.

So, next time you travel, put yourself at ease. Fly United.

CONARC Anniversary Follows Active Year

FORT MONROE, Va. The United States Continental Army Command (CONARC) training crucible of the individual soldier and of units preparing for "missions unlimited," faced continually rising demands for its talents and resources during 1966.

In mid-1965, the Department of Defense announced an Army strength increase of 235,000 men to cover projected commitments in Vietnam. Thus, events in Southeast Asia became the prime consideration in the expansion of the CONARC training structure to accommodate the more than 490,000 new men that were to flow through 16 Army training centers.

This total included 427,000 active Army troops and over 61,000 members of the Reserve Enlistment Program (REP) of the Army Reserve and the National Guard.

The increasing demands for CONARC's top priority product — the trained soldier — made the opening of new training centers necessary. By the middle of 1966, centers were opened at Fort Lewis, Wash., Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Campbell, Ky.

In September, advanced individual training facilities were established at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and Fort McClellan, Ala. As a matter of comparison, in 1965, 300 individuals were trained in 11 centers. Under the current expanded program, CONARC expects almost 700,000 young Americans to pass through its vast training complex in 1967.

From these training centers, thousands of men and women entered CONARC's sprawling school system for advanced training. As "dean" of the world's largest school system, CONARC operates 29 schools, offering more than 800 courses of instruction in some 350 occupational specialties.

CONARC is also credited with having the most extensive educational television network (ETV). Closed circuit and — or production facilities are in operation at 24 installations, with more planned for the future. Long a pioneer in the field, the Army has been using ETV since 1953.

As the demands for trained soldiers increased, the services school system reorganized, adjusting to heavier student loads and special Reserve Force units was undoubtedly the best trained and most successful reserve in our Nation's history.

Concurrent with the expansion of the training base, CONARC received and deployed three divisions, two separate brigades, an armored Cavalry regiment, and numerous assorted support units to Vietnam — and routinely furnished trained replacements for our forces in Europe, Korea, and other overseas areas.

At the end of 1965, the advanced individual training programs at Fort Polk, La., and Fort Gordon, Ga., were oriented toward Vietnam by the addition of a ninth week of training, devoted to extended field problems under simulated Southeast Asian conditions.

Early in 1966, this RVN-oriented training underwent a major expansion as CONARC announced that an additional 11,000 soldiers — boosting the annual total to 24,000 — would take the nine-week course. Then, in August, 1966, a second major expansion pushed the Army's goal in this phase of training to almost 45,000 annually.

A month after the August expansion, RVN-oriented training was phased into the cycles at Fort Jackson, S.C. When the Army build-up was announced in mid-1965, CONARC facilities were available at Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Rensselaer, Ga., and Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The initial scheduled input for this program for 1966 was a modest 3,420. This figure was revised upward to over 11,000, more than tripling the original program. Current planning for fiscal year 1967 has programmed an input of 42,000.

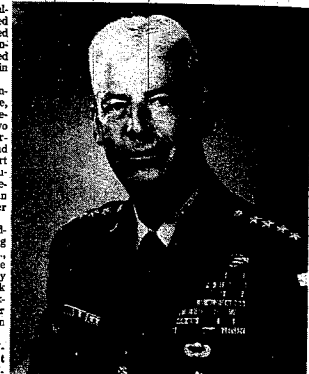

To accommodate these growing pains, the Infantry and Artillery OCS were expanded. In the fall of 1966, programs were established at Fort Belvoir, Va., for Engineer Corps candidates, and at Fort Gordon, Ga., for Signal Corps prospectives.

Also under way at this point were programs for officer candidates in Ordnance, Transportation and Quartermaster.

In July, 1966, the OCS for Infantry, Artillery, Armor, Engineers and Signal Corps were further expanded and outgrowth of a program expansion at Fort Knox, Ky., were established at the Ordnance School at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., the Transportation School at Fort Belvoir, Va., and The Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.

Despite the number of units, CONARC continued to maintain quality in training.

No less an authority than the U. S. commander in Vietnam, GEN William C. Westmoreland, has attested to this. In a letter to the Army chief of staff, GEN Westmoreland stated "that the

ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE

MEMBERS OF
UNITED STATES CONTINENTAL ARMY COMMAND
February 1, 1967

On the 12th anniversary of the United States Continental Army Command, I take this opportunity to extend to all my congratulations and sincere appreciation for the accomplishments during the past year.

During the past 12 months we were confronted by many complex and varied tasks connected with the training base in units activations, deployments, and the mobilization and dedication extended by both military and civilian personnel in attacking these challenges were outstanding.

I am certain that the challenges of the coming year will continue to be met with the highest standards of duty and professional competence by all personnel of USCONARC.

Red Ball Express, came out of retirement in 1966. Selected during the second World War, The Red Ball Express became just that, a legendary chapter in the history of my history in Europe. Toting tonnage more than 70 million tons in 1918, the trucks carried vital needed supplies to the front line. These trucks had priority over all traffic and used all routes.

Today, the Red Ball Express is back — only the distance and methods of transport have changed. This is the way it works. When a high priority supply request cannot be met from existing stocks, a request is flushed to a central office at Fort Mason, Calif., and then to supply sources. If these initial sources cannot meet the need, messages are sent to the five Armed Forces of the United States and installations where, if required, it is available. It is shipped by the fastest means available to Travis Air Force Base, Calif., and then to Vietnam via special aircraft.

CONARC directs the shipments from its installations in this country and the modern Red Ball Express is the responsibility of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics at CONARC Headquarters.

Since its inception in December, 1965, today's seven-day-a-week Red Ball Express operation at CONARC has filled 7,86 overseas requirements, representing 15,411 individual items that were consigned to Vietnam.

Logically, the Red Ball Express was but one of CONARC's accomplishments. There were many others.

In January, 1966, the Computerized Airlift Planning System (CAPS) was developed by CONARC, and developed as a joint U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force project. The purpose of CAPS is to develop a new technique to manage a new program to improve the planning processes for air-lifted movement of mail.

In furtherance of this mission, computer programs were designed and written to expedite planning by the production of aircraft loading tables for supported Army and Air Force units. A supporting CAPS element was organized at Fort Eustis, Va., and is responsible for developing type loads to be computer-processed type loads to produce aircraft load tables.

During 1966, military construction objectives of CONARC were completed. CONARC was to provide the facilities required to expand its training establishments leading a considerable increase in aviator training and, therefore, its training base to support increased U. S. Army commitments in Southeast Asia.

To accomplish this expanded mission, 20 CONARC installations and facilities began construction of additional troop housing, operational and training facilities, classrooms and training facilities. The supporting facilities to accom-moderate an increased input of basic trainees, advanced trainees, specialist trainees and officer candidates. The facilities required to support this increased input totaled more than $70 million. During the period from April through December, 1966, practically all of this construction was placed under contract. A considerable amount of this construction is completed and in use with the remainder rapidly nearing completion.

Too, CONARC was to continue to provide the more essential permanent facilities in its long-range mission.

CONARC's regular construction program in 1966 amounted to approximately $60 million. Only the more essential permanent facilities have been constructed.

These facilities include advanced training underarmories, tactical equipment shops, utilities plants and systems, medical facilities, and enlisted barracks.

Family housing construction in 1966 totaled $17.3 million and will accommodate an additional 1,051 enlisted and officer families at seven installations throughout the United States.

During 1966, CONARC has been a big customer of merchants, manufacturers and other business concerns in numerous communities and trade areas throughout the United States.

CONARC's 66 purchasing offices have executed three million transactions representing in excess of $68 million. Small business concerns throughout the nation have received almost 47 percent of the dollars spent for goods and services within CONARC.

The major portion of these goods and services required to support the day-to-day operation of installations and activities for which CONARC has command responsibility. A recognition of the value of the Automated Data for Unit Movement (ADUM) system resulted in the activation during 1966 of CONARC's ADUM Augmentation Section of a Movements Branch within CONARC Headquarters.

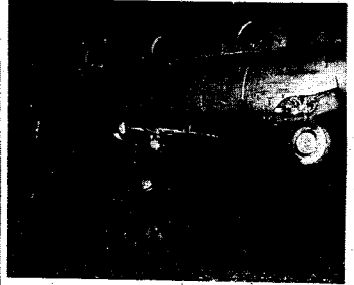

This section has made considerable progress toward establishing a Movements Data master file to provide a more rapid response to movement planning requirements.

Remember last year's long airborne strike?

As a result of this extended grounding of the nation's carriers, CONARC coordinated with the five Armies for the daily movement of more than 1,400 Army personnel on military leave via the U. S. Air Force's Operation Command Leave.

The deployment of troops by CONARC was not confined to Southeast Asia. During 1966, approximately 6,500 troops with organizational equipment were redeployed to the Dominican Republic.

And, finally, in the realm of helicopter operations, CONARC has sought ways to save dollars. And it did — more than $7 million between July, 1965, and June, 1966.

200TH'S CHINOOKS HAVE GUNS, TRAVEL

Modern Army ideas and technology spawned one of the newest achievements in Army Aviation, the transport of Artillery pieces by helicopters. Recently, one unit, the 200th Avn. Co., commanded by MAJ William F. Lang Jr. and equipped with CH-47 Chinooks, was given a readiness test. This is nothing unusual except that morning Artillery is the 200th's specialty. Following an extended training period, the 280 officers and men of the unit reacted to the problems of the test well enough to merit a superior rating. The pictures show some of their experiences. At left, above, a helicopter brings a 105mm howitzer to a battery position as the first gun delivered prepares for a fire mission. The choppers can move an entire battery some 10 miles in nine minutes. At upper right, Artillerymen prepare their gun for movement by night, an extremely hazardous operation. At right, a CH-47 Chinook is shown as it moves a gun to a new position during the test. The platform holds ammunition. The gun crew rides in the 'copper.

military proficiency, the element and the combat readiness of these men are of the highest order. The Army training centers, the several service schools, and Continental Army Command have ever right to point with pride to the accomplishments in the Republic of Vietnam; these accomplishments are a reflection of their achievement and the results of their labors.

Late in 1966, CONARC announced that the Department of the Army would double the number of four-year Army ROTC scholarships to be awarded during 1967, and would increase its two-year scholarships by more than 250.

This set the stage for the 1967-68 program, in which 800 ROTC scholarships will be awarded to outstanding high school graduates. This is a $10 million increase from the 550 two-year awards, which will serve this "problem" students who have completed two years of Army ROTC training.

Two transfers of considerable impact on CONARC took place in 1966. Responsibility for recruiting, and the Army and Air Force commands, passed from CONARC to Department of the Army. Responsibility for the Reserve Officer training Corps (ROTC) program, and the organization of a staff directorate for ROTC affairs, began moving from DA to CONARC in the fall, with the transfer scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

At CONARC's Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, a new 22-room quarters was established, and it was an Army "first" — the operation, repair and maintenance of earth-based communications systems.

The American commitment in Southeast Asia has been a problem of supply and demand back to CONARC. The "problem" is this: World War II Legend, the supporting facilities to accom-

Booth Is Opened At Air Terminal For Servicemen

The Department of Defense has recently opened at the Atlanta Municipal Airport one of five air terminal information booths in the United States. It will operate on a 90-day trial basis.

The booth, presently occupying a portion of the Eastern Airlines ticket counters, will enable the military traveler to obtain travel information without undue waiting in commercial ticket lines.

The Atlanta Defense Information Booth is staffed mainly by civilians 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

A total of 6,650 members of the Armed Forces and their dependents were aided at the booth between Dec. 15, 1966 and Jan. 4, 1967.

During this period, provision for 2,275 military travelers was provided.

Employees at the information booth also coordinate travel with bus and train stations.

OCs Have Twin Careers

Officer Candidates Robert W. Hutto and Rodney Richie are assigned to 84th Co. 8th BN (OC) The Str. Bde. How they fit these together is a study in coincidence.

Hutto and Richie grew up together in Ozark, Ala., a small town just east of Bruckner. Upon completion of high school, both decided on a military career. They applied and were accepted for the warrant officer flight program.

They enlisted in the Regular Army Sept. 9, 1964, with no expectations for a dual career. Hutto had completed six months active duty with the Alabama National Guard the previous December.

To their surprise, they received notice of the same reporting date to begin flight training. They completed the course Sept. 14, 1965, and that day received their warrants and wings.

After graduation, they were both selected to remain at the Aviation School at Fort Benning.

DEFER PAYMENT
If you're in a 15 per cent tax bracket, you'll only pay 85 cents of every dollar in interest your savings earn each year. But if you buy Series E Savings Bonds, payment of that tax can be deferred until you cash the bonds.

Army Seeks 'New Breed of Tiger'

The ranks of a "new breed of tiger"—skilfully trained, determined, dedicated and ready to serve on the ground commander's team in carrying out the Army's mission—are open to those interested in applying for aviation warrant officer training.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 30, be a high school graduate or have satisfactorily completed the General Educational Development (GED) test.

Also, they must have scored at least 115 on the Army Classification Battery test, meet all physical requirements as prescribed in chapter 4, AR 40-501, have two years' remaining in service prior to ETS) have had no major military or civilian law violations, and have completed or be undergoing basic training.

First, see the first sergeant or company wing aircraft. The Next, complete a Letter of Application, (DA Form 1049), Armed Forces Security Questionnaire DD Form 96, and provide a statement to the effect that "I have not been eliminated from a previous course of flying instruction."

List all previous experience in piloting, engineering and mechanics, and furnish a copy of any airman's certificate or orders if now on previously licensed as a civilian or military pilot.

Does this seem like a lot of red tape just for applying for Army schooling? It takes nine months of intensive instruction and about $50,000 to train a pilot before the Army gains any benefit.

After the necessary paperwork, supervisors rate ability and potential of applicants. Company commanders hold interviews and arrange for orientation and an evaluation flight.

This consists of basic maneuvers, usually in an Army or company wing aircraft. The company commander comments on potential as an aviation warrant officer and then forwards the application to the next higher headquarters.

Battalion commanders, or level, then arrange for the Battalion Aptitude Selection Test and appearance before an officer candidate-type examining board.

A series of questions is asked to determine whether applicants have the motivation and determination to become an aviation warrant officer.

A composite score of 200 or higher means the major commander forwards the application to Department of the Army.

A National Agency Check is immediately begun on prospective candidates. When selected, Department of the Army will notify them personally.

Guide to Good Reading

Post Libraries Offer Superb Intrigue Books

Do you like the James Bond series? If so, you will be delighted with the superb collection of political intrigues at the Post Special Services Libraries.

You will travel behind the Iron Curtain and to the Far East to find high-level espionage, defectors, and political blackmail.

Select copies that are available for circulation to find out how our Washington agents help to solve international plights.

The following titles are a representative listing of current books:

Blackie, Iron R. SEARCH AND DESTROY. Random, c. 1966. A secret mission to destroy a North Vietnamese base is planned in Washington. Precuations are taken to avoid starting an all-out war. Enroute, a dangerous error is discovered and must be corrected to eliminate the terror that would ensue.

Chapmans (MAJ's) C. G. Causey, Gordon O' Garraun and Ira G. Moss, left to right, all assigned at Fort Benning, are among seven chaplains selected Army-wide to attend Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. They will enter the class which begins Aug. 16, 1967, and ends June 7, 1968.

Blacker, Iron R. SEARCH AND DESTROY. Random, c. 1966. A secret mission to destroy a North Vietnamese base is planned in Washington. Precuations are taken to avoid starting an all-out war. Enroute, a dangerous error is discovered and must be corrected to eliminate the terror that would ensue.

Browne, Courtney. THE ANCIENT POND. Harper, c. 1966. An exciting search for a much-wanted Japanese war criminal by a former POW pilot and a journalist provides adventures for them in the streets, countryside, geisha houses and brothels of occupied Japan.

Davis, Dorothy S. ENEMY AND BROTHER. Scribner, c. 1966. The Greek Communist rebellion of 1948 produces the murder of an American reporter and the accusation of another American as his murderer. The CIA and the State Department combine to extradite him, but when he returns to the U. S. he must identify anonymously for 17 years, continually in a effort to unearh the real culprit.

Drummond, June. CABLE. Harper, c. 1966. A successful glimmer returns to his Alpine birthplace to build a dam and is met by a tension-filled political battle which culminates in a kidnapping which links the victims reporters in a cable car suspended high over a valley and controlled by a madman at the crest of the mountain.

Jaeger, Henry. FORTRESS. Harper, c. 1966. Hugo Starosta's features from a Russian POW camp to his native Germany and is greeted by a broken family. His son is a petty criminal, his daughter a prostitute, his wife drawn into religious fanaticism.

SYNOPSIS

MURDERER'S ROW
Former counter-espionage agent Matt Helm (Dean Martin) is called from his multi-purpose backdoor pad, complete with private pool and private secretary Lover Kravetz, to again foil the plans of some evil doers.

Armed with booze and super-secret-weapons, he tangles with Ann-Margaret, Camilla Sparo and 12 beautiful playgirls. With such entanglements, who has time for spies?

Apparently Helm does, for he prevents the plot to blow up the U. S., England, France and Matt Helm, while collecting his just rewards along the way. Based on the novel by Donald Hamilton.

THE 10TH VICTIM—It is the 21st Century and war has been replaced by legalized sport as an outlet for man's aggressions and violence. It is called the Big Hunt and its rules are simple.

Each participant is licensed to kill ten victims with fame and glory as rewards. As determined by a computer, however, he may be either the hunter or the quarry.

American Ursula Anders, having just disposed of her ninth victim, is assigned Italian Marcello Mastrotinto in Rome as her final kill. He is also a nine-time winner.

This cat and mouse game begins between the Latin lover as the quarry and his bickering blonde huntress.

At the final moment, fickle, feckless fate steps in to decide who will be the survivor. A return engagement.

TERROR OF THE MAD DOCTOR—Inspector Lohmann (Gene Trier) is celebrating and planning a long needed vacation when he is advised by telephone that a masked gang has cleverly seized a large gold shipment.

This is followed by a perfectly timed robbery of the diamond exchange and the inspector concludes that only one man could be capable of such clever deeds... Dr. Mabuse!

But the doctor has been confined in a sanitarium under heavy guard where he writes and draws incessantly. He should be able to committing any wrong.

When the police learn of a planned bank robbery, they pull a raid and discover a secret hide-out.

The inspector, however, is captured and tortured on an electric shock machine.

Rescued, he and the police chase only to find that the real and true menace has been Dr. Mabuse, whose brain power has been transferred to another man!

THE DESPERADO TRAIL—After the Civil War, marauders, desperados and renegades drift westward, stirring up trouble between the Indians and the settlers. Frontiersman "Old Shatterhand" (Lex Barker) and his men (Pierre Brice) attempt to keep the peace, but their efforts are thwarted when Winnetou is unjustly accused of murdering the son of the local chief.

Shatterhand and Winnetou escape, but are followed by the renegades responsible for the murder.

In a delaying action, the two men hold off the attacking renegades until help arrives.

Although the band is captured and the lawlessness ended, Winnetou stays with the peace with his life.

Six U.S. Films on Tokyo Top Ten

TOKYO—Two Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions, "Doctor Zhivago" and "The Peaches of Shive," have been named among the top ten foreign films of the year by the Tokyo Press Critics Association, it was announced here recently.

MGM has more films on the list than any other distributor. Six films were selected from the United States, two from India, and one each from France and the Soviet Union.

In addition, the association honored Toshio Mifune with a special "Blue Ribbon Award" for his performance in "Grand Prix," his first English-language film. The M.G.M. presentation of the nearly all the previous years he had lived a lean and hungry life as a Hollywood extra. For two years he drove a truck for a local construction company.

In 1951 he was signed to play the grotesque monster created by the mysterious Dr. Frankenstein in the movie version of "Frankenstein." A warm look comes onto Karlloff's face when he thinks of those days. That monster was the best friend I ever had," he says. "From then on, things got better and better and I played in almost every horror movie that came along."

One of the reasons for which Karlloff feels he is fortunate is that success did not come until midway in his life. He was in his forties when he first put on the make-up that transformed him into Frankenstein's monster and made him an overnight success that was 25 years in the making.

"You can't really enjoy the fruits of success unless you know the other extreme as well as the others. I can still remember corners in Hollywood where I stood in years past wondering where my meal was coming from. In 'The Venetian Affair,' Karloff plays Dr. Pierre Vauglain, who is the victim to a diabolical plot. When his role was completed he returned home to England.

Karloff remembers the picture not because of the plot but because that was the year the Olympics were held in California and sometimes the producer would let him work early enough in the afternoon so that Karloff and a group of his British friends could have a cricket game with the championship Australian team who were here at the time.

Karloff had worked at MGM prior to 1932. But for

Handgunners Meet Won By Hamilton, Blankenship

BY LARRY MAHONEY

The slight exchange student from Taiwan, a bespectacled physics major, created a moment of confusion at the sports desk of a college newspaper. This rail of a young man, all 120 pounds of him, was talking about football. He wasn't interested in watching it, marching with the band, photographing it, or writing for the sports pages.

He wanted to play. What's more, he'd be willing to organize the vally and set up an 11-game season with other Southern colleges.

Well, he was gently told by a fledgling journalist, the school's already got a coach who's paid $20,000 a year; legions of lessers who assist him in the athletic department; a 55,000-seat stadium; and a collection of athletes, none weighing under 160 pounds and many above 200.

Then, the exchange student, realizing he had misused with a word, corrected the error. "Soccer. Yes, that's what it is called here."

This began Florida State University's brief encounter with the world's paramount spectator sport. A varsity team was organized and outfitted. The squad was an international one, composed of a Scott, two Koreans, a Colombian, a smattering of Americans, a South African, a Hungarian, and the instigator of it all, the Chinese physics student.

The soccer Seminoles managed to schedule three matches, their opponents coming to Tallahassee from Florida Southern, Emory and a North Carolina college. The action was spirited and swift. But the game never caught on. Student and community interest in sports was owned almost entirely by the American giants: football, basketball and baseball.

Soccer Coming to the South

Now, soccer is coming back to the South. Not in the colleges. This time around, it is going to be professional, part of a national program designed to introduce Americans, and hopefully win them over, to the international sport of sports.

A band of Englishmen is behind it. They call their infant project the National Professional Soccer League. Atlanta will have an entry, the Chiefs. A coach has been hired, 32-year-old Phil Woosnam, a Welshman with a physics degree (what is the special appeal of this "football" to physics types?).

Woosnam is spreading his gospel to Atlantans. "Soccer," he asserts, "is the greatest game in the world."

That, of course, is a matter of opinion. It is closer to fact, however, to say that more people watch of futbol, as Spanish-speaking devotees call it, in more parts of the world than any other sport.

Nations, great and small, industrial and primitive, are enthralled by it on both sides of what used to be called the Iron Curtain.

In Brazil's gleaming cities on the South Atlantic, millions are obsessed with it to a degree than even exceeds our World Series fever. The drama of the World Cup matches, most last year by England, even gripped capital like North Korea's Pyongyang. There's a darkhorse squad, making a determined bid for the world title, had these spartan Asian communists about as excited over soccer as the Red Guards are with the works of Mao.

To Play High Caliber Ball

Atlanta's Chiefs, Woosnam says, "will play a high standard of soccer from the word go."

Twenty talented players from the British Isles and several African nations are being signed up as temporary Georgians. "It is true that we are running into certain political problems such as visas," Woosnam said, "but we are confident the transaction can be accomplished." (It is a bit, a success in Florida, solved the same problem, most of its professionals coming from the Basque regions of Spain and France, from Cuba and other Latin lands.)

"Within five years, at least within 10, the Chiefs and the rest of the teams in our league will be able to com-

Competition was stiff last weekend as the top service pistol teams of the country and the national police champions fired in the first 1967 Outdoor Pistol Matches sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Perfect weather prevailed as FOJ Donald Hamilton, the 1966-66 national pistol champion, set the pace right from the start and won the grand aggregate with a 289-187X.

The national service pistol champion, SFC William B. Blankenship, just returned from Korea, was runner-up with a 286-157.

Hamilton and Blankenship only won one match and one aggregate apiece while dominating the three gun championship.

MAJ Sallie Carroll, the national woman pistol champion, fired a 257-80 to place as third master and high woman.

was high in the sharpshooter class with 248-51.

Hamilton won the service pistol championship with an 882-35. High police was Burnett of the Michigan State Police.

Hamilton fired a 289-57 to win the 22 caliber aggregate. Blankenship's 891-54 won the center fire competition. SFC Merrivater Jones took the 45 caliber aggregate with 888-45.

The teams of the service were about evenly matched with the Air Force winning the 22 match with an 1184-04. Army won the Center Fire Match with 1181-59 and the Navy fired 1145-50 to win the 45 caliber competition.

In the service pistol championship, U. S. Army Blue won with a near record 1167-45.

The Michigan State Police won all three of their matches in the police category.

INTRODUCING . . . The Firebird. Pontiac's new personal sports car, is shown in the foreground above the 400 option. The Firebird 400 features a 400 cubic-inch V-8 engine, special hood with dual air scoops and wide oval red line tires. The Firebird is also available in a hardtop coupe and other engines offered include the overhead camshaft six-cylinder standard and the 326 cubic-inch V-8 optional. The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on General Motors' dramatic gas turbine powered car, Firebird I, shown in the background.

pete with the best teams in the world," the Atlanta coach said.

The day may come when Atlanta meets Manchester, Manchester or maybe even those hot North Koreans in that big new stadium in Seoul.

"Our ultimate goal," Woosnam said, "is to produce American players. Within five years, we would like our player ratio to be 75 per cent American, 25 per cent foreign."

What kind of an athlete excels at soccer? First, size like that demanded by American football is not needed. "The best soccer players in the world weigh anywhere from 145 to 175 pounds." Woosnam said. His playing weight was 155. "But," he added, "the game does require great physical stamina and a high degree of fitness. In Europe, we play two 45-minute halves without a timeout and without substitution."

Here's a wish and a prediction that soccer will catch on in our country. But I'll keep my fingers crossed, remembering that Chinese physics student at FSU and his international brigade of "footballers."

All-Stars Climb to 3rd Army Finals

Winning it's first game 91-89 Tuesday night, the Doughboy All-Stars gained a berth in the third bracket of the Army's double elimination.

The Fort Benning All-Stars stopped Fort Campbell, host, in the third bracket of the Third Army competition Wednesday to earn a slot in the tourney finals last night's championship basketball journey at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Capt. Jim Martin's Doughboys, in beating Fort Gordon, Ga., found they were really going to have to put out to take the championship.

Drawing a bye Monday night players like center Clyde Thomas and forward Alonzo Williams of Fort Benning watched Fort Campbell, easily take Fort Jackson in the first game and Fort Gordon trump Fort Rucker with 111 points in the second.

In the early game Tuesday Campbell showed it's strength and put down Fort Bragg 82-63.

Bragg had also drawn a bye the first night. Wednesday's play saw the Doughboys against Fort Jackson meeting Jackson.

Players for an All-Star team will be chosen after the Fort Benning tourney to represent the Third Army at the All-Army tourney to be held in San Francisco in February.

Services Survey Results Post Votes Approval Of Religious Services

Fort Benning is a city with itself. Every city in America, whether large or small, has its character, its people, its clergyman, and religious leaders.

Fort Benning is no exception. Here we find a total of 27 chapels and related buildings where religious services are being conducted on a daily and weekly basis.

There is a total of 32 chaplains who conduct approximately 77 services each week. Also, 26 buildings are in use for religious education and seven different groups provide special denominational services.

There is a religious service conducted where on Fort Benning every day of the week.

Recently, a post-wide survey was conducted to determine the adequacy of religious services. In announcing the results of this survey, the post chaplain has stated that there the percentage of dissatisfaction on any one question was very small.

This indicates that the services and facilities provided are adequately meeting the needs here.

However, the purpose of any survey is to point out weaknesses which need improvement, no matter how small the percentage of dissatisfaction. In light of this, several things have been accomplished or initiated in order to improve these services.

There have been six new religious services instituted since last September in an effort to provide a wider opportunity of times and locations for worship.

There is an effort to improve the publicity of these services, primarily through the daily bulletin and the Bayonet. Posters are being prepared for use in company areas and public facilities to announce regular worship services.

An effort is being made to improve the general appearance of the chapels and religious facilities in order to enhance a worshipful atmosphere.

A new emphasis has been placed on religious education and the facilities in which this is conducted. A new Catholic center has recently been opened and work is being done to improve the buildings in which a large number of activities are conducted.

Instruction is being improved through classes and workshops. A continuing effort is made to enlist, train, and develop this large group of volunteer laymen who work hand-in-hand with the chaplains.

Volunteers Needed
The Army is looking for volunteers for its Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) program. Qualified personnel will go to Nuclear Weapons School after initial training. EOD experts can receive maximum of $80 a month in proficiency pay in addition to hazardous duty pay. Requirements for applications are listed in DA Pamphlet 350-10. (AMP)

Officer Has Day to Remember

Birthdays come and go, but it is unlikely that Michael Rubin will forget his 23rd, which fell on January 26. It was a big day for the young officer, a former enlisted Russian language specialist at the Presidio of Monterey, in at least three ways.

— He won his commission as an Infantry second lieutenant after completing a 23-week officer candidate course here.

— He was top man in leadership for his company, with a 94.1 per cent rating in this vital area for officers.

— He was named distinguished honor graduate, the top spot among 133 other graduates.

Present to pin the gold bars on the former University of Maryland student was his sister, Elizabeth Rubin. Both call Betaville, Md., their home.

MG Kinnard To Speak To CAR Classes Here

By AL SPRATLEY

MG Harry W. O. Kinnard, former commander of the Army's first air mobile division, will deliver a classified address today to Infantry career officer classes in Marshall Auditorium.

MG Kinnard guided the 11th Air Assault Division through its training and build-up phases here when the air mobility concept was implemented and was its combat commander when the division was redesignated as the 1st Cav. Div. and deployed to Vietnam in August, 1965.

Presently assigned to the Pentagon as deputy assistant chief of staff for force development, MG Kinnard has a distinguished and colorful Army career dating back to his graduation from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1949.

He was at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, helped organize the 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment at Toccon, Ga., in November, 1942, parachuted into Normandy during the night of June 5-6, 1944, participated in the

21 Here Receive Incentive Awards

Work improvement suggestions and outstanding job achievements paid off in cash awards and certificates of merit for 21 military and civilian employees here last Tuesday.

BG James S. Timothy, assistant commander of the Infantry School, presented $200 to Mrs. Thomas G. White for proposing that marksmanship training units be maintained organizationally. The general presented suggestion awards to Matthew R. Carlisle, Engineer Section, who received $100, and SFC Robert S. Evans, $100, and SSG Donald G. Martin, $75, both assigned to the Quartermaster Services Division.

Thomas Molding received an annual increase of $178. Outstanding performance ratings were presented to Durward Lake and Ernest Casady, each $150, and Robert S. Evans, $100.

System

director of a newly established bureau of executive manpower, to place the new system into operation.

When it is the President announced the new program, he said:

"... Laws are only as good as the people who are assigned to carry them out. And nowhere is this responsibility greater than in the upper levels of the Civil Service."

"I believe we have the finest Civil Service system in the world. But in these complex times, we see the need for improvement."

"The need is seen, he said, when:

"Talented executives must remain tied to their old jobs even though a more pressing need for their skill exists in other parts of the government."

"Cabinet officers and agency heads lack a government-wide view of the talent that is available."

"Experienced men and women would like to serve their government in some challenging capacity but do not know where they are needed."

"Promising young civil servants leave the government because their talents are not being used."

"Let us be clear," the President said, "about one thing: We need, in the upper echelons of government, all the talent, all the dedication, and all the experience we can find. It was in recognition of this that I promised, in my state of the union address last January to restructure our Civil Service in the top grades so that men and women can easily be assigned to jobs where they are most needed, and ability will be both required as well as rewarded."

Boys Choir to Sing

The Columbus Boys Optimist Choir will present a program of familiar songs at the Valley Hill Service Club at 2 p.m. February 12.

The 34-voice choir is made up of boys, ages 9 through 17, and is directed by Bill Collins. Their pianist is Miss Dee Pridgeon.

The program will consist of four selections from the Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway Musical: "The Sound of Music" and four patriotic songs — "No Man is an Island," "This Land is Your Land," "This is My Country," and "The Ballad of the Green Berets."

Speaker

borne invasion of Holland and was with the 101st "Screaming Eagles" Airborne Division at Bastogne during the "Battle of the Bulge."

He attained the rank of full colonel at the age of 29.

Other highlights of his career, in addition to combat positions with the 101st Airborne and the World War II, include an assignment to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film studios as technical adviser for the film "Battleground," which told the story of the 101st at Bastogne; in England working with the British on the standardization of military equipment; commanding as an infantry officer, the 101st Division Artillery for almost a year; and as executive to the Secretary of the Army from February 1961, until July, 1962.

The much decorated soldier is mentioned frequently in a number of publications including two by E. A. Marshall; in "The Brethren Diaries" by LTC Lewis H. Laurence Critchell; "Paratrooper Padre," by Chaplain Francis L. Sampson, and was inducted into the "The Longest Day," by Corneille Day.

Judge Says

Car owner usually liable in most negligence cases

Perhaps one of the most dangerous instrumentalities used in our modern day society is the automobile. Because improper use of the automobile causes harm, the law governing its use and manner of employment have grown to tremendous proportions.

Generally, a person is liable for any damage he does by improperly using his automobile. This is true whether the damage is done to either property or person.

By "improper" it is meant that if a person negligently drives his vehicle and is the cause of damage to another person, the driver will be held liable. The idea of "negligence" in our law is very old, and many things which would not at a glance be considered negligent are negligence in the eyes of the law.

Owner Liable
As an example of just how far the law has gone in this area, some states have held the owner of an automobile liable where he left the keys in the car and a thief stole the car and hit a pedestrian. The courts ruled the owner negligent by leaving his keys in the ignition.

Another area where the law has gone far to protect the public from mistakes of the automobile is in the misuse of an automobile by a person other than the owner.

An example of this would be the situation when a person loans his car to a person who is intoxicated. If the intoxicated borrower has an accident with the car and causes personal or property damage to a third person, the owner of the car will be held responsible for the damages sustained.

Once again the law reasons that a person who loans his car to one who is intoxicated is negligent and is obviously putting a dangerous instrument in the hands of a person not capable of controlling it.

Family Car

A third area which gives rise to liability is the area termed by the law as the "family car." In many cases where an automobile is used frequently by members of the family, the law will hold the owner, which is usually the husband or father, liable for his negligent use. This means the husband or father will be liable for any personal or property damage caused by a member of the family.

As shown above, the law is pretty harsh on those who do not exercise care to insure that their automobile is used properly. It is the position of the law that if a person is willing to disregard the rights of other people by misuse of his automobile then the courts will see to it that the public is protected.

New amendments provide improved dependent care

A serviceman gets a warm feeling when he knows his loved ones are well-cared for and safe.

American fighting men separated from their families because of overseas assignment, or a service family in a remote area, now have renewed insurance that depends upon adequate medical care.

The Military Medical Benefits Amendments of 1966 passed by the 89th Congress is now law.

The new Uniformed Services Health Benefits Program lists major changes in medical benefits provided by the Government.

These benefits are for dependents of active duty, retired, and deceased members of the uniformed services, plus retired members of the Armed Forces.

In a nutshell, the new health benefits fall into three broad categories:

Civilian outpatient care for the wives, children and dependent husbands of active duty personnel.

Civilian inpatient and outpatient care for retired members and their wives, children and dependent husbands, and the wives, children, and dependent husbands of members who died while on active duty or in a retired status.

Institutional care, training, rehabilitation, and special education in civilian facilities for wives, children, and dependent husbands of active duty members who are moderately or severely mentally retarded or who have a serious physical handicap.

The new law eliminates restrictions on types of hospitalization which may be provided dependents, such as treatment for nervous and mental disorders and chronic conditions.

If used wisely, the Military Medical Benefits Amendments of 1966 should prove advantageous to the serviceman and his family, providing the necessary health care for wives and children of those wearing uniforms of this country's Armed Forces. (AFNB)

Surgeon Says

Wild game said possible hazard

Since the hunting season in Georgia and Alabama is in full swing it seems appropriate to offer a few words of caution about food poisoning and other conditions prevalent in situations where wild game is used for food.

The possibility of meat items causing food poisoning is especially true in the case of wild game where the product has been prepared under amateur and hasty cleaning and dressing procedures. In general, the meat of all game is characterized by its high blood content which favors its decomposition. This tendency is greatly increased when subjected to careless and improper handling.

It is advisable to employ great care in the cleaning and dressing of all game soon after being killed. The first step in the proper preparation of game for food is to bleed the animal before the blood engorged and remove entrails of the animal in such a manner as to prevent contamination of the carcass with any of the intestinal contents.

Careless Methods
Just remember that careless or improper methods of cleaning and dressing of game or subsequent handling may result in loss of the product as a food item or even be the cause of food poisoning.

Another situation which presents a problem in connection with the use of game for food purposes is delayed gutting. Bacterial putrefaction which develops early will pass over into the abdominal wall and impart a green to bluish green color to the area. Such a condition may adversely affect the quality and taste of the meat.

Expose Carcass
After cleaning the carcass of game should be exposed to the air for a sufficient time to permit the loss of body heat. This cooling should be accomplished soon after killing and certainly before packing or transporting to the locker plant for further processing.

Wild game should be rejected for food purposes when there is evidence of disease or other unsatisfactory conditions. In summary, a few specific and important suggestions are offered for each class of game being prepared for freezing which starts immediately after killing.

Game Birds
Bleed a game bird by severing the neck arteries and forcing the blood from the bird with a slight hand pressure. Make every effort to remove the body heat as quickly as possible. Do not pile birds in the car or truck. Instead, spread them out as much as possible to allow air circulation. Pluck and draw game birds, wash thoroughly and wrap in a vapor resistant material as soon as possible. If camping overnight, hang them in a tree or where the cool air will circulate around them.

Other Game
Other game, particularly big game, should be properly bled by severing neck arteries, and cleaned immediately after being shot. If possible, leave hanging overnight in the cool air to remove animal heat. Don't under any circumstances place a warm animal in the trunk of the car.

If the animal must be moved before it is thoroughly cooled, place it on top of the car or the side away from engine heat. In situations where the carcass cannot be properly covered after skinning, you may wish to leave the hide on. Be sure not to slow freeze the carcass. This will cause the meat to lose its juices which thaws and makes a very big game the same as beef or better still, let your locker plant make a hamburger from game add 1-3 pork fat trimmings to the lean meat for a more flavorful and juicy taste.

Fish
Fish upon capture are usually left to die rather than be killed and cleaned. The deterioration rate is high and fast where fish are concerned even under the best of conditions. Bacterial invasion takes place through the gills into the blood, from the intestinal tract, and from the area present on and between the scales.

Much of the rapid deterioration of fish is due to bacteria with which they become infected during the cleaning and storing. Fresh fish must be kept cool or otherwise in a properly chilled condition at all times after being taken from the water until they are consumed fresh or placed in cold storage.

The best care should be given fresh fish and absolute cleanliness is essential in preventing contamination. Scalded and cleaned fish must be regarded as any other ready-to-cook, product being packaged and preserved but at a much lower temperature.

Observing the above suggestions for the care and handling of fish and wild game intended for food will insure a safer and better quality meat for you to enjoy on your table. As a parting word—Cook all game with care. Even you have a very successful hunting season.

Dental Week Will Serve As a Reminder to Adults

For the nineteenth consecutive year, the first week in February (5-11) shall again be designated "National Children's Dental Health Week."

This period serves as a foretold reminder to all adults, interested in child welfare, of the dreadful ravages of dental caries or tooth decay, one of the foremost health hazards affecting our school-age children.

We are, in our time, witnessing the rapid elimination of the so-called childhood diseases. Dental caries, on the other hand, is continuously increasing in incidence and severity. It attacks children shortly after their teeth erupt and it is estimated that fully 80 per cent of our boys and girls 15 years old and younger require dental care. In the two-year group alone, approximately 40 per cent are already affected by this disease.

Dentists have long been aware of this high susceptibility to dental caries and are continuously increasing their efforts to find reasons for it. They are simply:

1. Excessive amounts of dietary sweets.
2. Frequent snacks between meals.
3. Improper and infrequent brushing.

Lack of professional care.

With the observance of basic dietary principles and oral hygiene practices and adequate professional care beginning somewhere between ages 5-6 when all the primary teeth have made their appearance, the average parent can assure his child a lifetime of radiant, functional, oral health.

Travel Is Theme At TIS Luncheon

"Know Your World" was the theme for a recent luncheon of the wives of the U.S. Army Infantry School's Company Operations Department.

Held in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club, the room was decorated with colorful travel posters and dolls from every part of the world contributed by ladies who had visited the different countries.

Captain Timothy Bates of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, presently assigned as an allied student in the Infantry Officers' Career Course, was the guest speaker for the day. His British Army life in England was his topic as he informed the group of the highlights, differences and similarities of the life of a British Army family as it compares to Army living.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. William R. Gillingham, chairman, Mrs. William A. Jordan, Mrs. David Hacking, Mrs. Douglas C. Colliander, Mrs. Audrey J. Holloway, Mrs. John W. Vies, Mrs. Herb Meininger, Mrs. Willie J. Hunt and Mrs. Richard T. Terry.

Wives attending whose husbands are overseas were Mrs. Stephen Cookley, Mrs. Eugene Griffith, Mrs. Ira C. Owens, Mrs. William Lauderdale and Mrs. Meininger.

The group's best wishes went with departing wives Mrs. Benjamin O'Neal, Mrs. Paul De La Mater and Mrs. Colliander.

Newcomers welcomed were Mrs. John Fog, Mrs. T. Kirby, Mrs. Elwyn L. Payne, Mrs. Harry T. Rasheim, Mrs. Robert J.

Fashion Show Highlights Lunch for BBOD Women

The ladies of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department witnessed a "show and tell" for fun and a show for imagination. Mrs. Willard Miller, guest speaker, presented the latest in clothing styles made from towels, bedspreads, tablecloths, pillowcases, and shower curtains.

One highlight of the show was children's fashions made from towels. These looked as fancy as velvet party dresses. They can be thrown in the washer and dryer and then on a larger ironing and cannot be ruined by chocolate ice cream or strawberry punch.

A large green sea trunk surrounded by beautiful fabrics in linens, towels and accessories decorated the dining room with arrangements of smaller towels, sewing machine cases and baskets ornamenting the tables.

A buffet luncheon was served of Chicken Country Captain, ham, peas with anchovies, rice, and chocolate or lemon cream pie.

Hostesses for the luncheon were the wives of the staff group. Cochairmen were Mrs. Elwood Shemwell and Mrs. John E. Wine.

Committee heads were Mrs. Robert Cronk, program, Mrs. Jack E. Cook, menu, Mrs. Earl Adams, decorations, Mrs. John Cunningham, refreshments.

Modeling the fashions were Mrs. Bobby Jones, Mrs. Lynn Mooneyham, Mrs. Colin L. Powell and Mrs. Stephanie Pawlik.

La Petite Ballet Entertains OWC At Main Officers' Club Luncheon

By LYNN JONES
"La Petite Ballet Fantasia," the Officers' Wives' Club February luncheon was held Wednesday at the Main Officers' Club, hosted by ladies of the Medical Services Officers' Wives' Club.

The classical elegance suggested by the theme was carried out in both the Supper Club, where the sherry hour and luncheon were held, and the Main Ballroom, where the ladies adjourned for the program.

A miniature "Swan Lake" provided the focal point for the formal landscaped garden setting of the Supper Club, hosted by ladies of the Medical Services Officers' Wives' Club for presentation of excerpts from his "Swan Lake" Ballet.

A lavish pink ostrich plumed design above intricate gold and white latticed screens provided the backdrop, while ribbon streamers in shades of pink were draped gracefully from the chandeliers.

Quarterly Luncheon Held by Wives Of 10th Aviation at Officers' Club

The ladies of the 10th Aviation Group held their quarterly luncheon last week, impossible with the harmonizing of the brilliant fabrics and accessories collected from various departments decorated the tables. The luncheon was a collage of color against color.

Mrs. Charles M. Mount Jr. and Mrs. H. S. Cunningham were the hosts. Other guests were Mrs. Payne Wall, mother of Mr. Wall, visiting from Chicago; Mrs. Charles C. Frank, guest of Mrs. Charles R. Jones; Mrs. Eszell Phillips, guest of Mrs. Joseph C. Rollins; Mrs. Richard Simkins, guest of Mrs. Don G. Rogers; and Mrs. Ruth Hogue, mother of Mrs. Floyd Dierhard.

Newcomers greeted were Mrs. George M. Dent and Mrs. Gordon D. Gehram.

Wives of the 177th Aviation Co. and the 66th Transportation Co., 57th Battalion hosted the luncheon.

As you can tell from my address, I am not at Fort Benning. I came home before my husband received orders to go to Fort Benning. He went from there to Vietnam. I could have gone to Benning with him, but it was too hard. I needed to move to his home because she is ill. Will the Army move me? If so, what do I do?

Dear ESW: From what you say in your letter, it appears that your orders must be checked by Transportation to be sure. Secondly, do you have your husband's authorization to move? Please send me copies of this order and let me know if you have his power of attorney. This office will ask Transportation to send information to you. Also include a telephone number where you can be reached if it is necessary.

COURT OF HONOR MARKS PROGRESS Scouting Develops Boy's Character From Tenderfoot to Eagle Scout

By SSG Shaw Wilson

A Silver Beaver, Boy Scouting's highest award for district leaders, was presented to SFC Howard Brunges of Fort Benning during the Chattahoochee Council's annual dinner at the Ralston Hotel in Columbus last Tuesday night.

The dinner preceded a week-long celebration, starting February 7, marking the Boy Scouts of America's 57th anniversary.

Displays and exhibits will be set up at various places around the post and special Boy Scout programs will be presented during Protestant and Catholic church services February 12 at each of the local observance.

Over 40 million American boys have participated in the movement started by Lord Robert S. S. Baden-Powell over 80 years ago in England.

The BSA was incorporated in the United States in 1910 with President William H. Taft as honorary president and Theodore Roosevelt as the chief Scout citizen. Daniel Carter Beard, better known in scouting as "Uncle Dan," was the first national scout commissioner.

By the end of its second year, the BSA membership numbered over 61,000 scouts and scouters.

In 1931, the first Silver Beaver awards were made to scouters for distinguished service to boyhood within a council. Usually only one individual from each of the council's districts is chosen yearly.

It's the BSA way of recognizing the volunteers who make scouting in America a success.

CUBS LEARN TO WORK TOGETHER Projects Whet Their Interest and Absorb Energy Early in Life

Within the Fort Benning district, which also includes portions of Muscogee County, these volunteers give boys, ranging in age from 8 to 17, a program of scouting that typifies this year's theme of "Scouting rounds a guy out."

The district is made up of 14 Cub Scout Packs, 13 Boy Scout Troops, four Explorer Posts and numbers over 700 boys.

But boys alone do not make the Boy Scouts. Adult men and women, many unlisted in the records, probably bring the total number involved in the district's scouting program to over 1500.

This figure includes not only the Cubmasters, Scoutmasters and Explorer advisors, but a host of district officials, committee men and commission's. Added to this group are the same type of volunteers but those with much closer day to day ties with the boys, working with each Den, Pack, Troop and Explorer unit.

Within Fort Benning district the chairman is COL Richard O'Neill, The Scout Executive to Ralph Spencer, District Committee heads are COL Arthur R. Daboff, organization and extension; COL Robert E. Nett, leadership and training; COL Hal B. Jennings, health and safety; COL William Zimmerman, camping; Robert F. Helge, advancement; COL J. Elmore Swenson, activities; and LTC Dan E. Schilling, finance.

LTC John LaTrent serves as the district commissioner and his assistants are SFC Brunges and WO George Freeman.

Riggers Keep Troopers Shufflin' at Fort Benning

The paratroopers are outPacking Branch here. The door and drifting — but Headed by CPT Landy T. Nelson, the primary mission which states: "I will pack without the aid of men or animals. I will pack every parachute as though I am to jump with it myself. I will maintain all personnel and cargo parachutes used by and stand ready to jump with any parachute that I have certified as properly packed and ready for use."

The riggers live by a pledge every parachute as though I am to jump with it myself. I will maintain all personnel and cargo parachutes used by and stand ready to jump with any parachute that I have certified as properly packed and ready for use."

with any parachute which I have certified as properly packed and ready for use."

Riggers are Airborne School graduates who volunteer for the 15-week Parachute Packing, Maintenance and Air Delivery Course at the U.S. Army Quartermaster School at Ft. Lee, Virginia.

The course includes not only the packing and maintenance of personnel and cargo parachutes but the air delivery of equipment.

After completion of the course, riggers are assigned to various units and stateside and overseas with airborne units. Some riggers return to Ft. Benning for assignment at the Parachute Packing Branch.

The branch maintains separate packing and maintenance buildings located on Indianahead road and at Lawson Army Airfield.

Covering the work space in the packing building are 31 50-foot packing tables where a rigger can turn out a fully packed parachute in about 15 minutes.

Nelson said, "The branch packs the T-10 Troop Back Parachute, which is the standard jump chute for the student and air-borne operations, and the T-10 Reserve parachute which chutes."

Maintenance is handled in a brightly lit building where students and workers pre-10 Reserve patches for the jumpers wear for emergency use. Old undamaged parachutes are sometimes used as patches. All patches are placed on the damaged chute so as to conform to the pattern of the chute. This insures strength and others who habitually ride aircraft but do not work in the maintenance

Nelson said that the shop has been connected with airborne activities for 12 years. He graduated from Airborne School here in 1942 as a sergeant.

Goodner has worked for three years as a civilian at the branch.

"Depending on the size of the patches, I turn out around four mended parachutes a day," Goodner stated. "If a gear is more than 3 inches in length in any one section, the entire 3-foot section must be replaced."

The service life of the Army T-10 Parachute used by the Airborne Students is 10 years or 10 jumps whichever occurs first. Each parachute has a record kept on it as to age and number of jumps. From this, maintenance inspectors can determine if a damaged parachute is economically repairable.

Services Survey Results Special Services Says Facilities Not Known

A post-wide survey, conducted in August at this installation, indicated that members of the post and dependents were not aware of the many recreational facilities available to them through the Special Services program.

Of those responding, approximately 6 per cent expressed dissatisfaction with some aspects of the Special Services program.

Patrons expressed a desire to have the operating hours of the craft shops extended. Copies of printed programs are also placed on unit bulletin boards.

The craft shops located on post feature such crafts as woodworking, ceramics, photography, leathercraft, oil painting, model building and auto repair. All shops are staffed with trained personnel. Tools and materials used are the best available.

The recreation and entertainment division handles requests for use of the post recreation areas and for the recreation area at Destin, Fla. Reservations are made on a first come, first served basis.

This section also operates check-out service on shotguns, bows to be added in the near future. Extension of operating hours of crafts shops can be made within the near future. Extension of hours of operations of Special Services facilities will be announced in the Daily Bulletin.

To improve library services to those in outlying areas and to meet the needs of individuals in the field for extended periods of time, Special Services is procuring a bookmobile. It is expected that the bookmobile will be in operation sometime this year.

A program to give wide publicity to Special Services activities has been initiated. In addition to publicity media presently being utilized, Special Services is procuring a booklet and a bi-monthly Special Services calendar will be published and distributed.

Sports and athletic facilities for use by military personnel and their dependents include field houses, gymnasiums, swimming pools, bowling alleys and a nine hole golf course.

The six theaters at Fort Benning have a schedule of movies posted in the Daily Bulletin and the Bayonet. Patrons may obtain a printed schedule of programs at the theaters and the commissary.

High School Graduates May Seek Army Training Worth $50,000

Fort Monroe, Va. — Forty thousand dollars worth of valuable training is ready and waiting for school graduates, 18-30 years old, who are undergoing or have completed basic training.

Contingent Army Command will select 610 applicants a month under its examination program.

Soldiers with two years of service remaining at high time of selection, and who are physically fit are eligible to apply.

Applicants must be recommended by their company commanders before they have an orientation and evaluation flight. They also will receive either rotary or fixed wing flight training at Fort Wolters, Fort Stewart, Ga., or Fort Rucker, Ala.

Successful completion of warrant officer flight training means flight pay in addition to base pay, wearing the gold and brass bars of a warrant officer and silver badge of an Army aviator.

MAH Wins Savings Bond Award

Martin Army Hospital has been awarded the Secretary of the Army Savings Bond Certificate for achieving 82 per cent participation in the payroll deduction savings program.

The certificate was presented to COL Hal R. Jennings, Jr., hospital commander, recently by MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

The hospital increased its savings bond participation from 49 per cent in January, 1966, to 82.7 per cent in November, 1966.

COL Jennings said the increase, which has been gradual, is the result of an educational program instituted at the hospital.

MAJ Arnold E. Tyndall, personal officer, has talked to every new officer and civilian assigned to the hospital explaining the advantages of buying bonds on the payroll deduction plan.

In addition to Tyndall's help, the program got on their own.

MAJ Francis Quinn, an Army social worker, now assigned to Army Community Service, COL Jennings said, brought to the hospital the experience he had in civilian life with United Giver fund drives.

In August, Tyndall began selling the idea of buying bonds to new personnel. Addition to this, COL Jennings wrote a letter to non-participating officers at the hospital urging them to sign up for a bond allotment even if they were already buying bonds.

The colonel appealed to hospital personnel to reach a goal of 90 per cent.

"That is still our goal," he said. "We received a Minute man award recently and the Secretary of the Army Certificate today. We have our hearts set on reaching 90 per cent and qualifying for a Minute man Flag."

Guide to Good Reading

Books Better Outlook, Change Life's Routine

Do you ever find yourself bored with life's daily routine? Do your reading habits resemble this routine?

Possibly you are limiting your reading to the same type of literature year after year. Why not expand your selection list and at the same time improve your outlook and increase your knowledge?

You can by selecting one of the several new varieties of books available for circulation at the Post Special Services Libraries.

The following titles are a representative listing of current books:

Bosworth, Allan. AMERICAN CONCENTRATION CAMPS. Norton, c1966. While an entire regiment of Whites are fighting valiantly in the ETOW during World War II, 110,000 (70,000 native - born U. S. citizens) are interned in ten camps across the country. Exposed to the greed, prejudice, hysteria and unwitting cooperation from people in high places that caused the injustice.

Hunter, Jack D. ONE OF US WORKS FOR THEM. Dutton, c1966. A free-swinging Army intelligence operative seemingly sells out to the Reds and must set up a trap to cover his manufactured guilt.

Montgomery, Ruth. SEARCH FOR THE TRUTH. Morrow, c1966. Psychic phenomena such as extrasensory perception and automatic writing are shown to illustrate the wisdom of the spiritual world as the situation to earthly problems, extending to those who hold high positions in many fields including governmental.

Olsen, Jack. JACK IS BEST. Putnam, c1966. Out of travels and interviews with boxing's heavyweight champion of the world comes the story of Cassius Clay's Public and private lives.

Schwand, Dick. TURNED ON. New American Library, c1966. The truth about the Friede-Cresshaw drug and manslaughter case is purported to be stated in this behind-the-scenes report, as it describes a young couple's addiction to potent narcotics.

Full Program Planned at Benning For National Dental Health Week

Puppet shows, visits by a huge fibreglass, giant tooth, toothbrush kits and on-the-spot dental examinations are part of the 1967 observance of National Dental Health Week planned for the dependent schools here.

Beginning in advance of the official February 5-11 dates, the national observance, the preventive dentistry of schools here, "Grace's a I.D. Club," LTC Nathan Grace, and two hygienists, will have examined the teeth of more than 3000 students by the time the event is over.

"Dental health education is a continuing project in the schools here," said Grace. "Our special effort at this time of year merely enhances the health programs I have seen anywhere."

The hygienists, Mrs. Janet Walters and Mrs. Jerry C. Johns, and Grace, will visit at the Pre-kindergarten and school by the Officers' Wives Club.

The puppet shows were written by two students at Faith School. The "Man from D.S.N.T.I.S.T." was written by Doris Slate, daughter of the show's author, Carol Tyler, and Mrs. Steve Grace.

Characters in the show are the opposing agents of D.E.M.T.H.I.S.T. and G.A.V.I.T.I.E.S.

The fibreglass tooth began making the rounds of the schools January 26. Approximately 5-foot high and wearing a gleaming white gloss and a painted face, the training aid is known as "Tom-Southwood. Puppet workers will be Carol Tyler, Steve Pale and Steve Grace. Angel will reveal the talents of the left to right, stage manager Angel Zambrana, puppet workers Steve Grace and Steve Pale, author Carol Tyler, and narrator Doris Slate.

The puppet shows will be staged at Faith School next Tuesday during two assembly programs beginning at 8:40 and 9:42 a.m.

The program will begin with a "Tooth Brush Dance." Following the puppet show, there will be a skit, "A Tooth, the Whole Tooth and Nothing but the Tooth."

Award Made To Ex-5GM For Service

W. A. Callahan, (USA, Ret.) post served major for almost five years, returned to the commanding general's office here last Monday to be decorated with the Legion of Merit.

Callahan, who retired June 30 after almost 32 years of service, was presented the decoration by his former "boss," MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

The citation accompanying the award lauded Callahan's "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services," during the period August, 1961 - June, 1966.

The document stated that in the highest position of a noncommissioned officer at Fort Benning, Callahan "devoted all his time and efforts toward enhancing the prestige of the . . . soldier, the noncommissioned officer and the United States Army."

Also cited was his "broad professional background and experience, sound judgment and reasonable approach."

It credited him with being instrumental in effecting innumerable improvements and additions to the facilities available to the enlisted personnel of the post.

Callahan's recommendations on the assignment of key noncommissioned officers were said to be "valued and of inestimable assistance to the staff."

PTA Hears Educator Describe Emphasis in Schools

Parents and teachers attending a PTA meeting last Tuesday at Faith School were given a picture of current emphasis on vitalizing education by Dr. Rodney Tillman, who has traveled throughout the United States as an executive of the National Education Association.

Prefacing his talk on "Innovations in Elementary Education," Dr. Tillman outlined the Fort Benning teachers by saying that at present in the country as a whole, as much preparatory planning for these workshops as the two he has attended here.

The new impact of extending education through the television medium, particularly to the first grades, was attributed to findings that children's physical, social and mental characteristics are stabilized 80 per cent at age 8 and 80 per cent at age 5.

Further research, Dr. Tillman stated, has proved that children really leave school, most often in the third or fourth grade. The one common characteristic of most dropouts is a negative picture of self, Dr. Tillman said.

To correct this, he said, teachers are trying to give youngsters a more realistic picture of what they can hope to become.

Dr. Tillman attributed the great things being done to improve educational advancement since he last spoke here two years ago, to financial aid being granted by Congress to schools with outstanding creative ideas.

With the large grants made available by Public Law 8910, teachers, educators and community specialists have blended interests to come up with new approaches to develop understanding, he said.

Better use of all human and mechanical resources in making education a richer experience for children, the doctor noted.

In Minneapolis, where Dr. Tillman is in charge of elementary education, a community resources file, by subject matter, lists citizens with special knowledge who volunteer their services to the schools.

CSC Has Published Revised Personnel Jobs Standards

New and revised standards for personnel occupations, designed to assure that Federal personnel staffs will be ready to cope with future demands, have been published by the Civil Service Commission.

About 20,500 jobs throughout the Federal service are covered. Positions affected range from personnel clerks and assistants through specialists in personnel management, position classification, staffing, employee relations, and training, to personnel officers.

Several important changes are included in the new standards. Among them:

- Improved basic qualification requirements.
- Better techniques for considering candidates in terms of the requirements necessary for work in the particular job to be filled.
- New provisions for making it easier for employees to move from one personnel occupation to another, or into personnel work from other fields.
- New provisions for filling top level personnel officer jobs.
- In addition to the usual study of personnel job standards were based, in part upon a comprehensive survey of personnel employees. A questionnaire was sent to a personnel work at full journeyman grades without loss of rank.
- The competition and selection for movement into personnel work is based on knowledge, abilities, and personal qualities of the individual rather than insistence on particular kinds of experience.

— 22 per cent of the sample were above age 50 and 61 per cent were under age 29.

Half of the personnel staffs first entered Federal civilian service before 1946. Only 11 per cent entered in 1951 or later.

— 52 per cent of the total sample entered the personnel service on a Federal position in another field of work.

— 28 per cent of the sample were women.

— 79 per cent of those in the sample reported some education beyond high school; 31 per cent had graduate degrees or later.

— The five most important abilities and skills believed necessary for work in the personnel field were ability to write, to convey ideas orally, to plan, to analyze problems, and to show superior technical competence.

The pace of recruiting for personnel specialist jobs is expected to increase as many of the present workforce retire during the next few years. The goal is to attract high-caliber talent from a variety of sources, inside Government or outside.

The new standards open up other fields to personnel work at full journeyman grades without loss of rank.

The competition and selection for movement into personnel work is based on knowledge, abilities, and personal qualities of the individual rather than insistence on particular kinds of experience.

GREEN TAPE BINDS ARMY

By SSG Pat Moser
The Army of today may be stuck together by rolls and rolls of green tape. The evidence, in most units, would seem conclusive.

The workshop ended yesterday with class sessions for teachers of various age groups in the educational programs of the three faalls.

The Secretary of Defense announced recently that here- after Reserve officers may not be retained on active duty without their consent.

A bookbinder is at a dis- advantage if he has not stum- bled into its use for repair work. An orderly rooms long- time simple name of "Tape Green" which probably elimi- nates any confusion one might encounter when pho- tographing it. This could explain its abundance and the resultant endless uses.

Reserve officers now serv- ing on active duty involuntarily will be released as soon as possible under the circum- stances, but in no event will they be retained later than June 30, 1967.

At any rate, the list of green tape uses is as vast as the imagination of its owner. The multi-purpose tape appears to have all the prospects of becoming a familiar Army tradition, taking its place be- side recruit haircuts, short- term magazines together for a quick switch from an empty line.

Operations Begin Aboard Floating N-Power Plant

A United States Army nu- clear power station began op- erating on a test basis at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, last week.

The nuclear power plant, STURGIS, was designed and built for the Corps of En- gineers by the Martin Com- pany of Baltimore.

The STURGIS, MR-1A (Mobile High Power Plant No. 1A) was named for the World War II Liberty Ship which can be towed to any port in the world to support military operations or pro- duce nuclear power plants for civil use.

Army Asks Counseling For SGLI The Army has directed men and women being processed for either discharge or separation from service will be counseled on conversion of the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance policy.

A recent message from the Department of the Army said: "Personnel being separated from the military service will be advised during separation counseling of their right to convert their Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) to a commercial policy."

The message noted that commanders of transfer activities will counsel members of the Army being processed for separation or discharge from the active Army "that they may convert their SGLI to a commercial policy within the 120 day period immediately following the date of separation."

The message added, "Commanders will insure at the time of separation that VA Form 29-8264, Certification of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, is completed and provided each member participating in the SGLI program."

The program provides $10,000 coverage for participants at a monthly cost of $2.

When a serviceman leaves active duty, he may convert the group plan to a permanent plan with a commercial company without having to take a physical examination.

Premium rates, however, are priced according to the type of insurance and amount elected by the individual with the commercial firm.

Report Lists Services For Post During 1966

It took over a million pounds of bread to feed the Infantry Center's population last year according to a yearly summation recently issued by the Services Section.

The summation was published under the signature of COL Hudson Hurst, chief of Services Section, which is part of the Infantry Center's Logistics Office.

According to the report, the post laundry washed, ironed, cleaned, and pressed over 7 million pieces, while over $15 million in merchandise was sold or disposed of by the sales store.

An indication of the increase in Airborne trainees was evident as the report disclosed that more than 192,000 parachutes were packed by quartermaster experts.

Excess and surplus property, valued at more than $10 million when new, was also sold or disposed of by the section.

The section assisted in processing and supporting the 82,000 military trainees going through Fort Benning's reception center.

Iraqi Visitors See Training Highlights During a brief visit here last Monday, MG Hassan Sabri Muhammad Ali, deputy chief of general staff for operations, Iraq, and four other Iraqi officers, observed and were briefed on Infantry School operations and instruction.

Following a conference with MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, the Iraqi general and his party attended briefings and then went to Buhanks Field for an Airborne orientation.

This was followed by a trip to Garnsey Road for observation of a live fire, rifle platoon in the attack program being conducted as a part of officer candidate training.

The group left the next day for Fort Sill, Okla.

Medal Awarded Valorous Soldier Posthumously

A Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroism was posthumously awarded SP4 Ernest E. McAlum here.

His widow and 21-month-old son, Curtis, of Warner Robins, Ga., accepted the decoration from COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander.

Mrs. McAlum and Curtis recently accepted a Purple Heart in a ceremony here. Curtis, 21 months old, was awarded for heroism in the result of wounds received in combat in Vietnam.

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" was awarded for heroism in the result of wounds received in combat in Vietnam.

10 Men Receive Achievement Certificates

Certificates of achievement were awarded to 10 enlisted men of the 804th Pers. Svc. Co. for performance of duty during operations in the Dominican Republic and as members of the six-nation Inter-American Peace Force.

SP4 Marvin L. Miller's duty as a clerk in the Enlisted Records Section earned accolades. SP4 Jimmy E. Sims' performance as a clerk in the Officers Records Section merited the award.

SP4 Curtis D. Strumborg earned a certificate as a clerk in the Morning Reports Section and Sp4 Dwight C. McClain received the citation for duty as a clerk in the Enlisted Records Section.

The certificates of achievement were presented at a 10th Gun Spt. Gp. parade Tuesday by LTC Kenneth H. McGill, group commander.

The 12 units of the group participated in the awards ceremony and parade. LTC Andrew Anton, deputy group commander, was commander of troops.

Over 1000 Years of Service 32 Employees Honored

Over 1000 years of government service was represented at a ceremony here last week when 40 year pins were awarded to eight employees and 24 others receive pins for 30 years of Federal employment.

BG James S. Timothy, assistant commander of The Infantry School, presented the service pins at Infantry Hall, the school's headquarters building.

Receiving 40-year emblems were June D. Eyles, Harvey Hunter and Aquilla Oyner, all of the Engineer Section; Frank L. Bales, Maintenance Section; John T. Gabe (Retired), Services Section; Sylvester C. Duncan, Infantry School Operations Office; De-sequiel (sic) Gonzalez, Supply Center, and Mrs. Minnie G. Homery, Martin Army Hospital.

The 30-year emblems were presented to Granville P. Call and Charley L. King, both of the Signal Services Division; Ed Evans Jr., Training Aids Center; Ray Orton, U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit; and Jimmie L. Jones and Harry C. Wood, Transportation Services.

Also Oscar Rain, Miss Sylvia E. Hall and Mrs. Margaret Lee, all of the Services Section; Bill J. Brooks and William E. Taylor, both of the Army Field Printing Plant; and Clyde D. Cumlin, Maintenance Operations Division.

Others were Early T. Hendrix, Hoke S. McLeod, James L. Mosley, Elmer Silverthorn and Dennis C. Smith, all of the Engineer Section; and Mrs. Myra H. Armstrong, Rudolph E. Butler and Leonard H. Moore, all of the Finance and Accounting Office.

The remainder were Kenneth E. Worrell, Supply Control and Storage Section; Daniel P. Tart, Office of the Director of Logistics; and William G. Franks and Wilroy Reid, Martin Army Hospital.

He has also written such hit tunes as "The Thro-Bells", "Cowpoke" and "An- other Stretch of Track".

IT MAKES THE SEXIEST NOISE EVER EMITTED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

A seductive, deep-throated sound. Exciting. Evoked. Coveted. The enhancements continue—a most luxurious cockpit, polished ash-tray, front-padded bucket seats, one-hand adjustable seat, three-spoke steering wheel, 2.9 liter engine, accelerates to 80 in 16.5 seconds, cruises at 100, and top speed that exceeds 125 mph, large 11-inch over-sized disc brakes (top of rear) keep the beast under control. Few men have been able to resist the siren call of the Austin Healey.

Trainees Form Band During BCT

Not every basic combat trainee company can boast a band, but that is the case at Co. B, 11th Bn., 3rd Bde., U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

In fact, 1LT William Kirby, CO of Company B and 1SGT Lawrence Adkisson have had trainee bands during each of the last four cycles.

The band not only provides music for trainees as they move from one training area to another, but performs at the company's graduation ceremony.

The most recent band included drummers, cornet and trumpet players and a flutist.

The trainee band's final performance took place at the graduation of Company B last week.

Taking part in the ceremony were BG Charles M.

Mount Jr., Training Center; PVT Ronald W. Black received the American Spirit Honor Medal as well as the EPC Carl M. Zillan, 11th Battalion commander.

Awards were presented by BG Mount to trainees who had shown outstanding achievement during basic combat training.

Speaker Tells OCS Grads Polk's Tigers Everywhere

"You'll find Fort Polk 'Tigers' throughout your units after it's over, I think most would be disappointed if they did not go."

Distinguished honor graduate and top man in leadership of the 8th Co, 8th Stn Bn, was 1LT Michael D. Rustin.

Academic honors went to 2LT Arthur G. Steger.

BG Lipscomb is deputy commander of the Louisiana post's Infantry Center, where thousands of soldiers have completed advanced combat training for Vietnam.

"My business is training new recruits for the Army," he said. "In particular, an advanced infantry course designed for Southeast Asia."

A Fort Polk "Tiger," BG Lipscomb said, is a product of the post's Third Brigade, which graduates 700 men a week.

"They are told the first day they join the third: 'You are going to Vietnam and no where else'," he said. "Unde-

Voluntary Surrender Program Yields VC Officer

CU CHI, Vietnam — The Allied Forces "Chieu Hoi" voluntary surrender program netted positive results recently when a VC lieutenant, carrying a flag of truce, turned himself in to 1LT Jeffrey P. Dunning, platoon leader of the 2nd Battalion, Troop B, 3rd Sqdn., 4th Cav., 25th Inf. Div.

The VC officer was first sighted crossing an open field with truce flag held high heading for the unit's base camp. Dunning, who at the time had his hands full conducting operations, radioed ahead to the base camp giving instructions on handling the man.

As soon as he was able, Dunning returned to the base camp where he supervised the disarming, feeding and preliminary interrogation of the prisoner.

The "Chieu Hoi" program is conducted by the allied forces under the authorization of the South Vietnamese government. The program allows the Viet Cong the opportunity to either become an Army Reserve or a Viet Nam soldier or if he chooses, the chance to learn a useful trade.

Under the provisions of the program, the returnee is given food and clothing, money for his family and later on, he is paid while learning his trade if he no longer wishes to soldier. Additionally, he is paid reasonable value for equipment that he may wish to retain at the time of his surrender.

Following the initial interrogation, Dunning said that the VC officer surrendered because of the "cold and starry of food." The VC was a platoon leader of some 15 VC operating in the area of the Ho Bo Woods.

After being treated with due respect of the rules of the Geneva Convention, the prisoner, fed and clothed, was sent on to higher headquarters for more detailed questioning.

LAI KHE, Vietnam—Sharp eyes can pay off in more than experience. PFC James R. Hill has found that alertness and immediate reaction can be profitable. Hill is a flame thrower operator in Co. A, 2nd Bn., 28th Inf. "Black Lions".

His battalion is combing the dense jungle of the Iron Triangle on operation Cedar Falls, searching out Viet Cong, rice caches, and military supplies.

SECURITY!

PFC Chris James Zaima, clock typist for the CPO, sees that all the records are correct and up to date. Assistants are four civilians, Nguyen Thuan, Miss Nguyen Hoa, and Miss Lam Thi Ngoc Mai.

The CPO is responsible for seeing that the correct needs of workers for medical care or examination is provided.

TUY HOA, Vietnam. Some soldiers of the 1st Bde, 4th Inf. Div., always have their hands in the clouds.

Eight men, from Hqs. Co, 1st Bde, and Hq. Btry, 6th Bn., 28th Arty., operate the radio relay point between brigade headquarters and battalions in the field.

Located high on a mountain top north of Tuy Hoa, Vietnam, the men live under somewhat strange conditions.

The soldiers under the leadership of SGT Edward L. Thatcher, have been on the mountain top for over three weeks. They are supplied by helicopter and usually get at least one hot meal a day.

Discussion arose as to whether it was a military or personal discovery. The ultimate ruling, by Hill, reminded bystanders that "possession is nine points of the law" and "finders keepers" special laminated pass which must be kept in their possession far as long as they work for the base.

A biographical file card system, maintained by PSG Joseph Kubier, civilian personnel sergeant, aids in detecting pretenders who come into possession of a pass.

DI AN, Vietnam—Beginning its operations in October, the Civilian Personnel Office (CPO) for Di An Base Camp, headquarters for the Big Red One, now handles some 4,000 civilian workers. The CPO works out of a small office under the direction of CPT Evelio Borrego.

Conversion Nears Finish For BOQ

Over 40 years ago construction was started on the current building on Wolf Avenue.

An inspection of the building found the roof and exterior walls in sound condition, according to the resident engineer of the Savannah District, Herbert E. Mayo Jr.

Plans were then drawn in Savannah by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers covering the current into bachelor officer quarters (BOQs).

The building itself is a mile around the outside and is termed the largest U. S. Army billets under one roof.

Work on the new BOQ is 90 per cent completed, with an April 4, 1967 completion date.

Two sections of the building are now occupied and under the control of the post Engineers. The rooms are being used by Combat Platoon

MGM Announces New Productions

NEW YORK—Fourteen major motion pictures will go before the cameras at MGM's Culver City Studios between now and September, it was announced recently by MGM president Robert H. O'Brien and Robert M. Weisman, vice president in charge of production.

These pictures represent a total investment of $40 million.

"Point Blank," starring Lee Remick, will launch the program. The Judd Bernard-William Barby production, directed by Jerry Thorpe from an original screenplay by Eric Bergovici. The adventure drama, set in the post-Civil War era, concerns the efforts of two rival lovers who join forces to rescue one of their wives following her kidnapping by the Comanches.

"The Hunter," set in San Francisco, "Phantom Tollbooth," a full-length animated feature based on the popular book by Norton Juster, to be filmed by Oscar-winner Chuck Jones, creative director of film is currently being negotiated. "Cry Havoc," a Max Elster production, "An Extraordinary Youngstein—David Karr production, is based on the novel by Richard Martin. John Frankenhelmer will direct. "The Hostages," written by Ernest Bercovici. The adventure drama, set in the post-Civil War era, concerns the efforts of two rival lovers who join forces to rescue one of their wives following her kidnapping by the Comanches.

"Sol Madrid," is an exciting drama dealing with the smuggling of narcotics across the Mexican—United States border. Hal Barlett will produce with Jerry Greenstein and Elliott Kastner as executive producers. Screenplay was written by Burton Wohl from the Robert Wilder novel. "Fruit of the Poppo," a star for David McCallum to deal in the of the same title. Edward Lewis will produce. "The Impossible Years," starring Peter Sellers, will be produced by Lawrence Weinstein. The comedy by Bob Fisher and Arthur Mary, now in its second year in production, will be written for the screen by George Wells. "Very Special People," will star James Webb who wrote the screenplay from the book by William Barby Fabry, S. J.

RUGBY PLAYERS 'SCRUM' FOR BALL AFTER MINOR RULE INFRACTION One of the Distinguishing Characteristics of the Game

OC Helps Start Rugby at Indiana Now Number One Team in Nation

BY OC KENNETH CUNEO
One of the newer yet toughest sports introduced to American schools and universities is rugby. Officer Candidate Philip C. Bryant of the 78th Co., 7th Stu. Bn. (OC), TSD, has played this unique sport for several years.

Bryant was a founder of the Indiana University Rugby Club and played in many rugged contests.

Rugby, English in origin, is similar to American football. There are 15 men on each team. They wear no protective equipment or helmets and play with a round ball. Forward passes as well as time outs are not allowed.

The ball is moved forward by a series of lateral passes, rucks and a touchdown (called a try) occurs when the rounded rugby ball is actually touched down across the goal line. A rugby try is only worth three points and conversion counts another two points.

The Scrum

One of the more distinguishing characteristics of rugby is the scrum. This formation is used when there has been a minor infraction of the rules. The teams lock arms while suspending two players called hookers. As both teams push vigorously forward, both hookers attempt to kick the ball back through their scrum. Once the ball clears the scrum it may be picked up and play resumes.

At Indiana University, Bryant teamed with Englishmen, Scots, Welshmen, Australians, Rhodesians and South Africans to form a powerful club. Sixteen was provided by teams representing the University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, Michigan State, University of Michigan, Princeton, Yale and Brown. The main rival was with Notre Dame.

PARACHUTE CLUB

The Fort Benning Parachute Club is holding its annual election of officers on Feb. 27, 7 p.m. February 15, 1967. Members are urged to attend.

Eagles Top Doughboys In Tourney

With two seconds on the clock, Fort Campbell's Dartmouth team won a clutch basket to give the Screaming Eagles an 80-78 victory in the 'A' Division Finals of the Third U. S. Army Basketball Tournament over Fort Benning's Doughboys.

Fort Campbell thus became the 'A' Division champion for this year's tourney. Fort Benning's runner up, the Screaming Eagles led through March 5 at Fort Campbell employ its "patented" press in the first half, isolating the Doughboy guards.

Led by standouts Edward Adams with 26 points and Ronnie Cobb with 16 points, the Benning Doughboys maintained a steady attack in the second stanza.

However, the Campbell clutch play of Campbell (Cunningham) who tallied 16 of his 22 points in the second stanza, was enough to give the Eagles the game and the championship.

Jack Williams added considerably to the Campbell attack with 21 counters while Sam Brown, William Brown and Bobby Heria tallied 12, 12 and 10 points respectively.

For Benning, in addition to co-captains Adams and Cobb, Nathaniel Hardaway and Alton Williams placed in double figures with 4 and 10 points, respectively.

The "B" division finals saw Fort McClellan's Raiders sweep Fort McPherson's Warriors 110-82, for the Division crown. Fort McPherson was declared runner up.

Following the "A" finals, MG Gines Perez, commanding general of Fort Jackson, presented trophies to the winners and runner up of each division.

In addition, each member of the four teams received individual awards. For members of the winning teams, the awards were a watch and for the runners up, a transistor radio.

Accepting the championship trophy for Fort Campbell were co-captains Williams and Cunningham, and Fort Benning's runner up trophy for Fort McClellan were co-captains Vertie Johnson and Robert Dawson.

Co-captains Eddie Cobb and Edward Adams accepted Fort Benning's division runner-up trophy, while captain Al...

The Aftermath

BY LARRY MAHONEY
A favorite story among followers of both Southern football and the peculiar politics practiced down here is that of Huey P. Long and the elephant dip.

It was back in the Depression days, when the "Kingfish" reigned over Louisiana from the governor's powerful Baton Rouge perch. Verily, Huey P. Long did love the people, and may have even believed his slogan, "Every Man a King." But, more than the people, he loved football.

A football Saturday was approaching. Louisiana State's Tigers were at home. Home was, and is, Baton Rouge, possibly the most fanatical football city in the nation. There was one hitch, however, a herd of elephants, real ones, threatened the beloved Bengals' homecoming.

A carnival was coming to the capital. The Legislature was in session, and Huey P. Long was its master undisputed. Anyhow, Deep South legislatures have this thing about "outside agitators," and this was clearly a case for immediate action.

A bill was proposed, requiring the dipping of any large, foreign-born beast before a public performance. It was shouted through, as were most of Long's measures. The law spelled out in detail the complicated chemical makeup of elephant dip. It, of course, was necessarily vague on just how to dip one.

Louisiana State drew its regular capacity crowd that Saturday night, while, on the outskirts of Baton Rouge, a herd of unsanitary elephants had the evening off.

Jim Corbett, LSU's athletic director who died in New Orleans this week, was no "Kingfish" (that means only the flamboyance of a Huey P. Long, not the good and effective works are the criteria, Jim Corbett was a Louisiana "Kingfish" of the finest calibre).

Under his regime, LSU attained the football summit. There were the days of Dietzel and Billy Cannon, when the Bayou Bengals took the national championship. It was Corbett who hired Paul Dietzel, then an unknown assistant at West Point.

When Dietzel, despite promises to the contrary, left Louisiana State and re-upped with Army, Corbett took it all in stride and gave the job to Charlie McClendon.

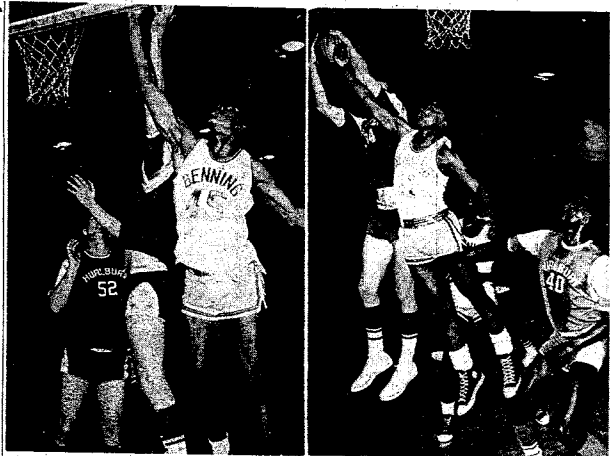

After the ebullient Dietzel, McClendon seemed to lack the luster expected by Louisianians. A governor went to McClendon's head after a few losses. Corbett backed his man all the way in a behind-scenes battle with the state's big and mighty. Jim Corbett won, and Charlie McClendon guided the Tigers into four straight bowls.

Football is far more than just a sport. It is a big business, and that means big money. Corbett, as athletic director of one of the nation's largest universities, knew this and was a master merchandiser.

The LSU stadium was enlarged to 68,000 seats under his direction, and he made sure they were used. LSU annually leads the Southeastern Conference in attendance. Baton Rouge produces capacity six or seven times a year. This means money.

Many felt Corbett put too much emphasis on football. They called the athletic director a football director. His rebuttal was that football furnished the funds for the golf, basketball, track and swimming at which LSU athletes excel.

Jim Corbett was popular with the press. First, as Jesse Outlar of The Atlanta Constitution put it, "He was simply one helluva nice guy." Corbett had respect for a man who did his job so well, a man of ideas for improvements and the ability to make them, reality.

DOUGHBOY'S COBB, 11, UP FOR REBOUND WILLIAMS, R, TAPS IN TWO FOR ALL-STARS Benning Split with Airmen in 2-Game Series Led Doughboy Scoring in Both Games

Post Five Splits Pair With AF

Fort Benning's All Stars, still warm from a second place finish in the 8th Army play offs at Fort Jackson, S.C., split a two-game series with the USAF Hurlbert Field, Fla. quintet here last week end.

James Hoffman, 6-foot 6-inch Hurlbert center, led the Airmen to a 7-74 edge in the first contest netting 24 points. Top scorer for the losers was Alonzo Williams with 22.

Sgt. Ernest Hayes of the 1st Air Cav. Div., 1st Bn., 12th Cav., carried three wounded companions from a minefield to safety, returned to retrieve the weapons left behind, and under intense enemy fire, ran back to safety.

Other Doughboy scorers in the 100 yard dash, squared past the Air Force boys All Stars came back to even the series and secured past the Air Force squad 65-62. Williams was open fire, I don't believe again high man for the Doughboys with 20 counters in.

Top Handgunners Compete In International Match Here

By Bob Robinson
The cream of the Armed Forces pistol shooters assembled here last week to compete in an international pistol match featuring five pistol, rapid fire and center fire competition.

The heavy hitters from the Air Force, Navy and Army shared victories in all the events.

In the individual contests the Air Force won two matches and the Army one. However, it was the Army Marksmanship Training Unit team all the way as they swept the team matches.

SGT Arnold Vitarbo, Air Force, won the free pistol match with 560.32X. P.O. Donald Hamilton, Navy, the 1966 national pistol champion, placed second with 556.23. SSG Harland Renolds, Army, was third with 554.69.

Army Grey won the free pistol team match with a 2193.90. Second place went to the Air Force Blue with 2182.90. World champion William B. Blankenship edged out Vitarbo's 538-60 with a winning 564-60 while SFC A. E. Smith, Army, was third with 554.69 in rapid fire competition.

World Champion Arm Wrestler Is in OCS Here

Officer Candidate Michael D. Rowe, 83d Co. 8th Stn. Bn. (OC) is 75th in the world in the 1966 World Wrestling Championship. He won his title last year from former champion Arnie Klize who had not been in 19 years.

The World's Arm Wrestling Championship is held each year in January at Petaluma, Calif. Contestants come from all over the United States and Canada to compete in this event which draws crowds of 2,000.

Army was third with 554.69 in rapid fire competition. Army Blue's 2327 outscored the Air Force's 2284 in the weight fire team match. The center fire contest turned out to be a three man duel with CPT Franklin Gine, Air Force, winning the tiebreaker with 594. Blankenship's 538 was second while an Arm Wrestler.

Jumping Is Sport for Both Participant and Spectator

By SSG Snow Wilson
 (The first of a series of articles covering recreational activities at Fort Benning available for personnel visiting or assigned to the post either as students, trainees or permanent party and their dependents or guests.)

It's only natural that the sport of stepping out of an aircraft, falling free for thousands of feet, and trying to land on a foot wide target on the ground after opening the parachute, should have a very active group at the post where Army parachuting was started over 20 years ago.

Called the Sport Parachute Club of Fort Benning, you can find it's members every weekend and holiday at Decker Air Strip on the Alabama side of Fort Benning competing against one another or jumping for sheer enjoyment.

Visitors are welcome to watch. To get to Decker Air Strip go across the Chattahoochee River bridge at Lawson Field and turn left on the first paved road. Continue on this road and after a considerable distance you will pass the air strip on your left.

For the more seriously inclined, the club's building is No. 1223 located near the Infantry Museum and NCO Club on Main Post. Members can be met there almost daily after 5 p.m. or by calling 2875.

President of the club at the present time is SSG Robert Lanham of the Infantry Center's Airborne Department.

Chartered by the Parachute Club America and a part of the Cotton Belt Council, members of the club compete throughout the south, some at national meets and a few at world events.

Nobis Arrives For Training

Another Atlanta Falcon has come to join the nine already in training at the U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

Tommy Nobis, middle linebacker for the National League Falcons, arrived this week at the USATCI Reception Station enroute to Co. A, 5th Bn., 2nd Bde.

During his eight weeks at the Center, Nobis will be taught the basic fundamentals of soldiering — hand-to-hand combat, rifle marksmanship, first aid and many other subjects — all compressed into 324 hours of strenuous activity, designed to prepare him physically and mentally for his future assignment to a Regular Army unit.

Nobis graduated from the University of Texas in 1959.

Some have moved up for charity drives. from the local club to join the Army's parachute team. On the local level members often make demonstrations jump and put on shows for visiting or assigned to the post either as students, trainees or permanent party and their dependents or guests.)

Benning OC Accustomed To The Cold

Most people are anxious to get away from the winter weather. But not one officer candidate of the 72nd Co. 1st Bn., (OC), TSB. He is William F. Cross, who has returned from Madison, Wis., where winters are known for lots of snow plus lots of skiing. Cross has competed in skiing events since he was ten years old and has won over fifteen trophies plus a wide array of ribbons and awards.

The particular event which he competes in is ski jumping. In 1962, he placed twenty-fifth in the Junior National Ski Jumping Meet. In order for Cross to reach the Nationals, he had to enter numerous events and literally work his way through the regionals.

After the regionals, he was in the Central Meet which encompassed twelve States. From there, he went to the Junior Nationals. Two years later, he was in the Senior Ski Jumping National Meet. This time, the event was on the "Wide World of Sports". The last two seasons he has spent time at the Olympic Training Camp.

OC Cross started skiing at an early age and attended several ski classes where he developed his abilities and became interested in competition. This one-time recreation became a full-fledged science after a short time. He had his father take home movies of his jumping and used these to pick out every minute flaw in his form and execution of jumps.

time, the day's Drop Zone competition occurs often (with the jumpers drawing for positions on the total distance the paratroopers jump from the center of the target during their jumps. Being Army airborne qualified gets the novice out of the PLF portion of the pre-jump training but is not a requirement. One of the club members, a "leg" in airborne soldier's terminology, licensed guest jumpers are always welcome.

Initiation fee for qualified sport parachutists, those with a license from the PCA, into the club is $20. Dues are $3 per month. For the novice it's $35 but this also covers the cost of a 40 hour course of pre-jump instruction. The initiation covers the pack days.

More than 4400 free falls were made by club members during the past year. Sport parachuting is a sport for both spectators and participants and at Fort Benning it's recreation for off-duty week-ends and host instruction covers the pack days.

Soccer Team Signs African Sammy Zoom

Sammy Zoom one of the most colorful and popular soccer players in all of Atlanta, has signed to play with the Atlanta Chiefs of the National Professional Soccer League.

Phil Woosnam, the former Welsh star who will coach the team that begins its season April 2 in Atlanta Stadium, announced that Zoom and Vic Rouse, goalkeeper for the Welsh International team, have signed contracts to play here with the Chiefs.

Zoom and Rouse thus became the third and fourth members of the Chiefs announced by Woosnam. Earlier, he signed Vic Crowe, an old friend and captain of the Welsh national team, and Peter McParland, Irish international winger.

Zoom is a native of Zambia and at 29 is a former captain of that nation's national team. His correct name is Samuel Zoom Ndlovu, but he has thrilled African soccer fans as "Sammy Zoom."

The signing of Bloomfield and Ferry bring to six the number of Chiefs signed for the opening game. Bloomfield is the third player Woosnam has hired from Aston Villa, one of Europe's most famous teams. The others were Vic Crowe and Peter McParland.

Woosnam himself was a Villa player before becoming the Chiefs' coach and manager.

Only 22, Bloomfield can play half-back or forward and has an uncle, Jimmy Bloomfield, who is one of the most famous players in Britain.

Ferry is only 23, but has played with two of London's best teams, Arsenal and Leyton Orient.

Training Meets Slated by MTU Pistol Shooters

Ten members of the U. S. Army International Pistolship, the world's center for pistol championship, is coach of the international group. Also in the team is SSG Emil FB, Texas, and Tampico and Mexico City, Mexico, in February. SFC William B. Blankenship, instructor of the team, stated, "We are training now for the Pan American Matches in July but our trip to Mexico has a dual purpose. There we will have tough competition and see how the altitude affects our shooting."

Kiefer added, "The 1968 Olympics will be held in Mexico City where the altitude is almost 7400 feet above sea level. Such elevation is sure to effect our shooting."

Officer Candidate Posts Impressive Golf Record

BY OC James L. Mascetti
 The name of the game is golf... for some it's a tough game to master, but for Officer Candidate Charles J. Jurgons of 72nd Co., 7th Bn., TSB, it's the best competitive sport around.

He started playing at the age of 11 and without ever having had a professional lesson, won his first tournament at the age of 14—the Junior Club Championship at Chase Country Club, Westport, Conn. This was the first of three times.

Jurgons later went on to win the club championship in 1963 and 1965. After his second victory, he was called "the complete golfer" by Pro Frank Guerrera. He was the first ever to win both medal (1963) and match (1965) play.

Green Throwing For Army Now—Not the Dodgers

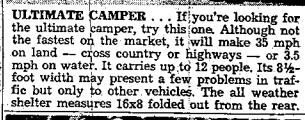

The golfer is the present co-coordinator of the Chase Country Club course record with a six under par 66.

At Watertown Country Club, he became finalist in the Connecticut State Junior Championship Tournament and in 1963 he was a finalist in the City Amateur Tournament at Watertown, Conn. In Westchester County, he played in a tough field of competitors—it was won by Billy Casper.

For two years, Jurgons played varsity golf at Syracuse University. In his first year he lost one match, that will long be remembered. It was also the athletic encounter that led to basketball coach Jack Guiley, who had been at Syracuse for 20 years, would coach before retiring.

At the conclusion of seven individual matches, the score stood 3-3 with the tie. It was decided to play a "sudden death". The first extra hole brought another tie. On the 20th hole, Jurgons felt confident after hitting a beautiful tee shot. Taking out a nine iron brought disaster. The ball flew into the vines. Jurgons reflects, "I just count trying to get the ball back into play. By the time I did, it was hopeless. But Mr. Guiley never said a word about it."

In 1964, Jurgons joined the Army, where he continued to play golf while stationed at Fort Dix, N.J. He received the Open Championship trophy for the post from MG John Highower, commanding general. In the match, he ceded a 72 hole total of 297 to win by five strokes. Currently, the Connecticut State Golf Association rates Jurgons as having a handicap of one.

ENDURO PRACTICE... Chuck Bentford literally flies out of a hole while practicing for a cross country "Enduro" to be held by the Sportcycle Club of Columbus Sunday. Bentford, and others of the club, will start the event, which is similar to a sports car rally, from the Tommy Wages Motor Sport, at 18th Street and the Expressway at 1 p.m. Competition is open to all motorcycle enthusiasts. Columbiana Gardens first Kentucky Fried Chicken for about a million folks every day. His chicken goes home with more people more often than any other chicken in the world.

Must be pretty good! It is. Take some home tonight.

Take it from the Colonel

100 Will Get Confirmation Here Sunday

More than 100 soldiers and military dependents will be confirmed by Bishop William J. Moran of New York City at 4:30 p.m. Sunday at the Main Post Catholic Chapel here.

Bishop Moran is a member of the endorsing board for all Catholic chaplains entering the service. He is assigned to the office of the Military Ordinariate in New York.

A retired brigadier general in the Chaplain Corps, Bishop Moran was deputy chief of Chaplains in 1959.

During World War II, he served as a chaplain in North Africa and Italy. Later he was the award is based on military bearing, knowledge of military subjects, manner of behavior and personal appearance.

Joining the Battalion last November, Bogard was selected as "Orderly of the Day" to the Commanding General."

Hollywood to Pay $1000 for a Song

A cash prize of $1000 plus a week's accommodation and meals for two at the Hollywood Beach Hotel are being offered by Hollywood, Florida, for an original song which can be used to promote the city.

The contest is open to all amateur and professionals. Deadline is Aug. 15, 1967.

No registration fee is required. Application for entry may be obtained from the Entertainment Division, Special Services, USAC, Bldg. 394.

Anniversary 394

The U.S. Army Chaplain School will celebrate its 68th anniversary February 9.

Now at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., the school was established in 1918 at Fort Monroe, Va.

The first commandant was Chaplain (MAJ) Alfred Fuden.

After several moves, the Chaplain School was located at Fort Hamilton Sept. 15, 1962.

Ceremony Here Includes 12 Silver Star Awards

Awards of the Distinguished Service Cross to a platoon sergeant and the Silver Star to a son of a high-ranking retired Army general were included in a ceremony held in Marshall Auditorium last Monday.

PSG Ralph J. Bleskan of The Infantry School Airborne Department, was decorated with the nation's second highest award for valor, and also received the Air Medal.

MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, made the presentation.

CPT Thomas H. Taylor, presently assigned to The Student Brigade while attending the Infantry Career Officers Course, received the Silver Star, third highest award.

He is a son of GEN Maxwell D. Taylor, (USA Ret.), World War II combat commander of the 101st Airborne Division, the Eighth Army in Korea, and a chief of staff of the Army in the mid-50s.

Bleskan's award of the Distinguished Service Cross was for extraordinary heroism while acting as platoon leader, Co. B, 1st Bn. (Airborne), 327th Inf., 101st Airborne Div.

On Feb. 7, 1966 he was assigned the mission of advancing on insurgent lines to assault a numerically superior and hostile force that had a friendly rifle company pinned down for four hours.

He led his men forward, overrunning the first Viet Cong line of defense. During the rush, he received a serious wound in the neck which he disregarded.

Bleskan noted his right elbow, the Air Medal and the Army Commendation Medal; CPT George W. Reynolds, Silver Star; LTJ Fred P. Crepeau, Silver Star, Bronze Star with V and Purple Heart.

Also, CPT Michael A. Kalla, Silver Star and Air Medal; CPT William R. Covington, the Air Medal and the Army Commendation Medal; CPT George W. Reynolds, Silver Star; LTJ Fred P. Crepeau, Silver Star, Bronze Star with V and Purple Heart.

Other decorations included: PSG Wilmer D. Nelson, Silver Star and Bronze Star; CPT Gordon P. Roanant, Silver Star; CPT Walter V. and Purple Heart; CPT Michael Moore, Silver Star; CPT James L. Brown, Silver Star; CPT Thomas E. Foley Jr., Silver Star and Bronze Star.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club.

General Dean is presently Deputy Commander in Chief of the U.S. STRIKE Command and Deputy U.S. Commander in Chief for the Middle East, Southern Asia and year, 2LT Herbert D. Williams II, will be Mrs. Robert F. Patterson. The award is named for her husband, the late Secretary of War.

The official party will include COL Arthur W. Allen, (USA Ret.), deputy undersecretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Forces, and LTC John L. Throckmorton, director of Special Studies, Secretary General Staff, Office of the Chief of Staff.

The award ceremony will begin at 11 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium at Infantry Hall with the dramatic tableau and poem, "I Am the Infantry."

MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander and commander of The Infantry School, will introduce Mrs. Patterson and the other officials on the program.

Mrs. Patterson will present an engraved service plaque and $500 to Williams, awards made possible by a trust fund established by friends of Secretary Patterson.

COL Allen will present the Patterson Award to the lieutenant and GEN Throckmorton will give him a "Follow Me" plaque.

There will be an official luncheon for the visitors at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Mrs. Patterson and her party will leave the post for Washington in the early afternoon.

British Marine Lauds ATC's Trainees

Concluding a visit to a battery, for five months before the exchange part of his training began at Camp Lejeune with the 2nd Marine Division. He has been serving as assistant intelligence officer.

Asked if a captain in the British Royal Marines is equivalent in rank to a captain in the U.S. Marines, Estlick said, "Yes. Ranks are the same but there are differences in the scope. The main difference is in the staff systems. In the American system you have a junior officer in command of a company level organization and you have senior officers on the staff. The British system works the opposite way around. We have major junior captains in staff positions."

About his newly gained parachutist wings, the captain said, "My reason for being here at Fort Benning is that I've always wanted to take part in American individual training as opposed to the academic training I had at the school at Quantico. "I have always wanted to be a parachutist so the Marine Corps was kind enough to send me to your jump school. And I just completed the school two days ago."

Asked about his main purpose for touring at the Training School, he said, "The Department of the Army has delegated authority to GEN W. C. Westmoreland, commander of the Allied Forces in Vietnam, to approve the award of the Valorous Unit award and Meritorious Unit Commendation to U.S. and free world units serving in Vietnam."

The delegation of this authority will give GEN Westmoreland a faster means of providing recognition to units which distinguish themselves by heroic actions and meritorious service. (ANF)

Post Hosts MG Tolson For 3 Days

MG John J. Tolson, III, commanding general of the U.S. Army Aviation Center at Fort Rucker, Ala., visited here for a three-day tour of the Infantry Center.

Tolson, who soon will assume new duties with the U.S. Army, Pacific, received a briefing on liaison visits to Vietnam, followed by a reading of highlights of letters from soldiers in Vietnam.

The Infantry School Brigade and Battalion Operations Department briefed the visiting general on the Viet Cong, how he operates and how the war is being fought.

Other briefings were scheduled on infantry communications and vehicles. Also, he saw demonstrations of night devices, infantry weapons and "instant firing."

General Dean is presently Deputy Commander in Chief of the U.S. STRIKE Command and Deputy U.S. Commander in Chief for the Middle East, Southern Asia and

The Judge Says ...

The time has arrived for filing tax returns

The time has come to begin preparing your income tax return. The Staff Judge Advocate has provided distributor of the required forms and instructions down to the unit level.

Also, a course of instruction has been given by the Internal Revenue Service to representatives of the various units on the post. They have been instructed in the proper procedures and applicable tax regulations to help and advise you in filing out your tax returns.

Thus, if you are preparing your tax return, use your unit tax representative for the forms and the information.

Other important points to remember are:

1. Be sure that your Social Security number is correct and also if filing a joint return, your wife's is also correct.
2. Make sure that you write legibly and preferably in pen.
3. Attach your W-2 form.
4. Be sure that you sign your return and if your wife's signature is necessary, be sure she also signs.

Further, assistance is being given to you here in the Army. Thus, it will not be necessary for you to seek assistance elsewhere.

For complicated and intricate questions, the Staff Judge Advocate Legal Assistance Office and the local office of the Internal Revenue Service, are ready and willing to help.

"The Point of the Spear"

"We must continue to have a strong military and a strong navy to have a strong country and a strong peace in a strong Army which is the pride of the Army."

JOHN W. KENNEDY
34th President

Role of military man has undergone many changes

There is a saying among some old-timers in the armed forces that "The service just isn't what it used to be." Understandably so. The role of the military man has undergone many changes in the 191 years, since we became a nation.

The primary mission of the military man is still to defend this nation "against all enemies, both foreign and domestic."

In this, the United States' armed forces has no equal. The soldier, sailor, airman and Marine of today has repeatedly shown he is just as tough, courageous, well-trained and dedicated to the principles of freedom as the men of Valley Forge, Bull Run, Bealieu Wood, Corrigator and Pork Chop Hill.

However, in today's fast-paced, tension-filled world, the military man must be more than simply a combat-ready guardian of freedom. He must also be a diplomat, teacher, humanist, scientist and public relations man in uniform.

In these capacities America's service personnel have proven their worth. Whether seeking marauding VC, giving medical care in a disaster-stricken town, soaring through space to further man's scientific knowledge, teaching a class on democratic principles or sharing rations with a starving child, the military man of today serves the nation well.

Some of the old-timers are right! The service isn't what it used to be. It's a lot more.

Lincoln was not likely choice for presidency

ABRAHAM Lincoln was a very unlikely choice to become President of the United States, particularly at a time when the Nation was torn with civil strife.

Even with the exception of a single term in Congress, he assumed the duties of President in an untried public forum.

His lack of family position, affluence and formal education caused ambassadors and influential people to ridicule his awkward, homespun ways. Even the leaders of his own party felt he was unequal to the task that lay before him.

Yet Lincoln amazed them all.

Firmly grasping the reins of government, he took unprecedented steps to fulfill his oath of office to "preserve, protect, and defend the government."

His dedication to a course of action that would accomplish that end could not be swayed. His integrity could not be shaken; his sense of justice could not be corrupted; his compassion and mercy were steadfast.

His fondest hope was for the terrible conflict to come to an end and for the Nation to be reunited.

In a time of crises that had no precedent in our history Lincoln stood firm to guide the Nation to peace.

That man of humble birth, whose birthday we celebrate February 12, proved to be one of our greatest Presidents. (AFNB)

Vietnamese mark holiday, their biggest of the year

The Vietnamese people are celebrating their biggest holiday of the year—a celebration corresponding in significance to Christmas, New Year's and everybody's birthday.

Tet, a holiday which originated around 200 B. C., is a time of solemnity, gaiety and hope for the Vietnamese.

Since U. S. soldiers in Vietnam encourage the Vietnamese to observe the American traditions of Christmas and New Year's, the servicemen in return will respect the customs of Vietnam's three-day celebration.

The first day of Tet marks the beginning of the Vietnamese new year and spring. It is also the Chinese birthday of every citizen.

During the holiday, the Vietnamese participate in family reunions, prayer, parades, dances and the exchange of gifts.

Stores, streets, and homes are decorated with flowers, such as the narcissus (symbol of prosperity) and the apricot flower (signifying spring and peace).

Families erect a brightly decorated, 30-foot bamboo pole, called a "cay nuu," in front of their homes. Many Vietnamese also display peach tree branches in front of the house to serve as good luck charms.

One of Tet's most popular features is the colorful uniform dance. Three men inside the mythical uniform, made of paper, cloth and bamboo, dance in the streets where crowds gather around.

In keeping with Tet's theme of good will, friends visit with each other and send greeting cards, bearing such phrases as "Cung Chuc Tan Xuan," Many Wishes for the New Spring.

Surgeon Says Preventive care necessary to avoid cause of backache

Preventive maintenance is designed to keep a machine or a building in good condition. It is avoiding costly repairs by practicing preventive maintenance on their guns, their automobiles and their lawnmowers, yet neglect a most important machine, themselves. A case in point is the lack of preventive maintenance, or rather the mistreatment of their backs.

He can choose a proper mattress. While asleep the muscles in the back are in a state of relaxation and a sagging mattress, like a hammock, causes a stress on the ligaments of the back. An individual can suspect his mattress if his pain is worse in the morning.

He has two choices: He can buy a firm mattress or insert a ¾ inch plywood board, the size of the mattress, between the mattress and springs.

Learn to lift. The individual can learn to lift properly. The housewife picking up light objects will get a backache as easily as the stevedore lifting heavy objects, if she bends over at the back.

Bending the knees and hips while keeping the back straight is the proper way to lift and is excellent preventive maintenance of the spine.

Preventive maintenance of the back is largely, therefore, a matter of common sense. The individual, by keeping trim through diet and exercise, by using a proper mattress and by learning to lift properly, can spare his back, his disposition and to a certain extent, the surgeon.

CSC Comments on Community Affairs Participation

The Civil Service Commission neither requires nor advises that a clear line of distinction be drawn between the kind of participation in community affairs that is required and expected in the Equal Employment Opportunity program, and the kind of community activity in which individuals may participate on a purely private and voluntary basis.

Agency managers and officials who have responsibility for staffing and the employment of candidates, are expected to participate at the community level with other employees, with schools and universities, and with other public and private groups in cooperative action to improve employment opportunities and community activities that affect employability.

The Civil Service Commission neither requires nor advises that a clear line of distinction be drawn between the kind of participation in community affairs that is required and expected in the Equal Employment Opportunity program, and the kind of community activity in which individuals may participate on a purely private and voluntary basis.

Using as a manpower source, and working with local community action agencies, job corps, national youth corps, MDTA training programs, and other similar programs, are other means of making it possible for people to get to work, or to obtain training and employment opportunities. Participating with community organizations, public and private, to improve motivation and develop interest among all citizens in potential employment opportunities. Federal government, or to enter training which will prepare them for entrance into Federal occupations.

In issuing its clarification, the Commission said: "In summary, the Commission's regulations establish agency responsibility for participating in community activities and affect only those employees who represent the agency in their official capacity."

"The prevailing standard that an employee's behavior on and off the job should not reflect adversely upon the agency or impede the discharge of official duties and such participation will be discouraged or viewed with disfavor."

Dividend Due For 67,000 Holding NSLI

ATLANTA—Dividends will be paid again on the anniversary date of a veteran's GI insurance policy this year, Pete Wheeler, director, Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said recently.

In Georgia, approximately 67,000 GI insurance policy holders will receive more than $3 million in dividends, payable through 1967.

The regular dividend is a return to the policyholder of part of his premium payment. It is paid annually because the death rate among GI policyholders continues to be lower than the rate upon which the premium was established by law.

Although the amounts due individual veterans will vary considerably, depending upon the veterans age, the amount and type of insurance in force, and other factors, the 1967 dividend will average out to $47.50 for World War II policyholders.

A total of $224 million in dividends will be distributed throughout the year to the nation's 4.6 million veterans who hold GI insurance policies.

Tea Marks 66th Year For Nurses

Commemorating the 66th anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps, a tea was held at 2:30 p.m. February 2, in the American Red Cross Recreation Hall at Marine Army Hospital.

The hall was decorated in honor of the many women who have in the past 66 years belonged to the nursing profession, with its tradition that dates back to "the first heartbeat of man."

There were officials from the post and student nurses from a local hospital among the invited guests.

A class from St. Francis Hospital in Columbus, Ga., spent the day at Marine, serving techniques used in the orthopedic ward. In the afternoon, the students and their instructor attended the tea.

The director of nurses at St. Francis and The Medical Center in Columbus, and Cobb Memorial Hospital in Phenix City, Ala., were invited.

Food Donated to ACS Bank By NCO Wives

At a recent Sergeants Major Wives' Monthly coffee at the 7-89 Club a large contribution of food was made for the Army Community Service food freezer bank.

This is a food service offered by ACS for the benefit of emergency and casualty cases encountered by the agency.

The wives prepared numerous dishes suitable for small and large family consumption with full cost in mind. These food contributions have been added to others which have been collected for several months in the food freezer at ACS in Bldg. 5, Room 2.

Individuals, club groups or units wishing to add to the food freezer bank may contact Mrs. Donald Blinn (689-9948 or ACS (545-7818). Any contribution, large or small, will be welcomed.

Theatre to Show French Comedy

The classic French comedy, "The Imaginary Invalid" (Le Malade Imaginaire) by Moliere, will be presented next week by the Columbus Little Theatre.

The rollicking French farce will open Monday and run through Saturday at the theatre.

In addition to Jones, the cast includes Alice Austin, Gail Carr, Jared Davis, Elizabeth Jones, Karen Davis, Joe Elliott, Robert Wood, Hanson, Eagan, Sam Ewald, Chuck Pemberton, Bud Glasgow, Sue Slaughter and Joe James.

According to Jones, the play will feature one of the most lavishly and attractive sets ever to be seen in a production in this area. It was designed by Walter Rosin and will sparkle with decorative touches.

Jones will portray Argan, the play's pivotal character and the prototype of the hypochondriac who travels in the self-styled Hires and the attitudes of members of the medical profession.

Betty Assant is acting assistant director of the production and Aaron Smith is production coordinator. Zan

Coffee Staged by OC Wives

The officer candidate wives of the 28th Co., 7th Ft. (OC) held their monthly coffee February 6 in the company day room.

CAR Course Wives Are Treated To Imaginary South Seas Cruise

The wives of officers attending the Infantry Officers' Career Course No. 1 were taken on an imaginary South Seas cruise at their recent luncheon in the Main Officers' Club.

Hostesses for the morning were the wives of the fourth platoon headed by the first sergeant, Mrs. William Simpson and Mrs. Wallace West.

The ladies were treated to a brunch arranged by Mrs. David Rogers and Mrs. Malcolm Wallace.

The tables were decorated with heart and cupid trees while the buffet table was enhanced by a fresh flower centerpiece of white mums and red carnations.

Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Donald Wolstenholme and Mrs. Richard Sklar were responsible for the decorations.

The invocation was given by Mrs. John Winkler. Mrs. Lyons Williams II, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Willard

Miller, representative from a local shop. Mrs. Miller, acting as cruise director, showed facts about wear on shipboard from dawn to dusk. All were made from items found in any linen closet.

Mrs. William Terry, Mrs. Paul Vallery, Mrs. Ronald Marley, Mrs. Harvey Backe and Mrs. Katie Lowery, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mark

Lowery, modeled the clothes made from towels, sheets, pillowcases, bedspreads and shower curtains. Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Warren Miller, Mrs. Jimmie Anderson, Mrs. Robert Canady and Mrs. Ina Wustiska.

The ladies are planning an officers party to be given for their husbands on the day of their husbands' orders.

Doors open at 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tickets for the comedy may be obtained at the Springer Opera House box office between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The box office will also be open during the run of the play during the same hours: 10 a.m. until curtain time. All seats are reserved.

Valentine Theme Highlights 83rd OC Wives' Coffee

The student wives of the 83rd Co., 8th Stu. Bn. (OC) held their monthly coffee recently in the company day room. A factory with paper flowing from the chimney was the theme.

The carried point of decorations that dated as the Valentine theme. Buildings of love, happiness, kindness, cheer and sweetness composed the structure while a shower of red hearts bedecked the day.

J. Bishop, Mrs. Rathbone and Mrs. George L. Moses, Student wife hostesses for the coffee, were Mrs. Brian MacDonald, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Charles W. Thorn, and Mrs. Michael Patrick. The wives exchanged their favorite meat recipes and new recipes for the coffee. Mrs. Conrad G. Madano and Mrs. Lane H. Wilson were welcomed to the battalion.

Dear Community Service

Dear Community Service, My husband is overseas. My ID card is going to expire next week. Some of my friends have gone to court ofice to have a temporary ID card authorized, but my problem is a little different. You see, my husband's enlistment will terminate on the same day as my card. Of course, he will re-enlist immediately but even if he sends me copies of his re-enlistment orders in the first mail after they're issued I will be without post privileges for two weeks. Can you help me?

Dear Disturbed, Indeed, we can help you.

No. 1 Hazard To Children

As the nineteenth National Children's Dental Health Week draws to a close, it behooves all parents to pause for a moment and reflect upon the fact that tooth decay represents the No. 1 health hazard to our children.

By observing a few basic rules and constant vigilance, we can assure our youngsters of a radiant healthy transition into adulthood free of the unpleasant symptoms of dental caries.

'Fasching' Party Fetes Third Brigade Couples

'Fasching', the traditional German pre-Lenten holiday, climaxed the January social scene for the officers and ladies of the 3rd Brigade, U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

In keeping with the "Fasching" theme, King's Pond Lodge was gayly decorated and the guests were served German cuisine including sausage and schnitzel.

LTC and Mrs. Carl Zilian and LTC and Mrs. Edward Matney were awarded prizes for the most humorous costumes. Both couples dressed as Raggedy Ann and Andy.

The most beautiful costumes were worn by CPT and Mrs. Joseph Bonifacio, who arrived as the King and Queen of "Fasching"; in costumes made by Mrs. Bonifacio from "velvet" toweling.

LT and Mrs. George C. Coburn as Siegfried and Brunhilde were declared to have the most original costumes. Judges were LTC Marcus W. Coyle, MAJ Michael McAdams, CPT David Barry and CPT Robert Dykstra.

283rd Band Played 700 Events in '66

More than 700 scheduled events in 1966 were played by the 283rd Army Band of the Center Troop Command at Fort Benning.

Directed by CWO William A. James, a veteran Army musician, members of the 283rd also furnished combos for local social events at the various clubs here.

Meeting the requirement of fulfilling the great number of engagements called for effort on the part of all the bandsmen, James said.

They spent many hours in rehearsals, preparing for scheduled performances and for professional improvement, he noted.

James, the father of six children, in past years has been bandmaster of division bands of the 3rd and 8th Inf. Divs., the 8th Army Band at Fort Wainwright, Alaska, and organized the band of the 1st Cav. Div. (Air Mobile).

He went with his band to Vietnam and came to the 283rd following a tour of duty in the combat zone.

A number of the band members have professional experience and have played with name bands, he said.

For example, SFC Clinton Edwards, who plays baritone sax, was once with Lionel Hampton. PFC James Moffett, first trombone, played with Johnny Mathis and Stan

Valued at $123 Million CSC Chairman Reports Suggestions Reach High

Cut-out suggestions by federal employees rose to an all-time high during fiscal year 1966 and produced economies in government operations valued at more than $123 million.

Chairman John W. Macey Jr., of the Civil Service Commission reported to President Johnson that the following new records were set:

Adopted employee suggestions totaled 140,778—a 5.5 per cent increase over fiscal year 1965.

Measurable benefits from adopted suggestions amounted to $123,265,578—a 28.7 per cent increase.

Awards to employees for adopted suggestions totaled $4.2 million—a 6.8 per cent increase.

An additional 80,533 employees received superior performance awards for week achievements which went "beyond the call of duty" and which totaled over $130 million in measurable benefits to the government, plus important intangibles, according to Macey.

CTC Observes Anniversary Today

By PFC Jerry F. Boone
Photos By SSG Betty Frazier

Every branch of service the Army has is represented here," says SGM Miner D. Tierrell, sergeant major of the U.S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command.

Center Troop Command, or CTC, celebrates its ninth anniversary today. For all, it is another duty day. No special activities are planned.

It has come a long way since 1958, when it was known as the Special Troops Command, and in 1953 when it went by the title of the Army's Service Unit Provisional. Hardly a function on post, it is independent of some influence of the more than 4,000 soldiers of CTC, commanded here by COL Lon D. Mazlowe Jr.

Subordinate organizations include the 1st Battalion, 16th General Support Group, the 43rd Engineer Battalion and four separate companies.

The 5th Battalion, Center Troop Command, is commanded by LTC Albert L. Walker.

The Battalion provides support troops for the entire post. The men work in jobs ranging from drivers to clerks, maintenance, bakers to sign operators.

The 280th Army Band is attached to the battalion. Also in the battalion is The Honorable Army Corps Company which provides maintenance technicians and clerks to various units on post, and the Finance and Disbursing Detachment which supports the Finance Center.

All of the enlisted men and sergeants of The Infantry Center general and special staff sections come from the 1st Battalion.

The 10th General Support Group, recently returned from the Dominican Republic, is commanded by LTC Kenneth H. McGill. The 10th Group has nine subordinate units with general logistical support missions at Ft. Benning.

The 67th Maintenance Battalion presently consists of Company A which gives direct support on equipment employed throughout the 16th Group. A major responsibility is to replace faulty components in the equipment being used.

The men of the 43rd and 16th Light Truck Companies provide transportation for Army Infantry Training Center and various other schools at Fort Benning.

All of the personnel functions of the group are handled by the 324th Personnel Service Company. The 838th Postal Unit staffs the post office and operates a mobile money order service.

The 13th Public Information Detachment (Field Service) augments the post's public gathering capabilities of the post information office, and is composed of news teams ready for any mission.

The 868th Engineer Company supplies men and equipment to support the Engineers Committee of the Infantry School in river crossing problems and demonstrations. The 64th Supply and Services Company supports the post laundry and mortuary, in addition to supplying the 10th Aviation Group with POL and supporting the post stock control and storage units.

The 43rd Engineer Battalion commanded by LTC Jose L. Ramos, was activated in April, 1966. The battalion is currently constructing many projects at Ft. Benning, including range roads and parking areas. The four companies, each trained in a separate aspect of Army engineering, are equipped with the facilities to build roads, bridges, buildings and do complex landscaping.

The four units directly under CTC include Headquarters and Headquarters Company, the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 32nd, 33rd, 34th, 35th, 36th, 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 42nd, 43rd, 44th, 45th, 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, 50th, 51st, 52nd, 53rd, 54th, 55th, 56th, 57th, 58th, 59th, 60th, 61st, 62nd, 63rd, 64th, 65th, 66th, 67th, 68th, 69th, 70th, 71st, 72nd, 73rd, 74th, 75th, 76th, 77th, 78th, 79th, 80th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th, 87th, 88th, 89th, 90th, 91st, 92nd, 93rd, 94th, 95th, 96th, 97th, 98th, 99th, 100th.

The 14th Military Police (Criminal Investigation) Detachment was assigned to CTC and is presently in a training status.

64th Candidates Conduct Unique Training Problem

Viet Cong guerrillas in estimated platoon strength attacked and harassed an American patrol today inflicting heavy casualties on elements of the 64th Company (OC). The Americans, operating in company strength, were greatly hampered by the torrential rains and hit-and-run tactics of the VC.

The Americans, on a search and destroy mission in the highlands, fell victim to light machine guns, automatic rifles, M-60 machine guns, trip flares, star clusters and scout dogs with heavy losses also.

Members of the Sixth Platoon played the role of the VC aggressors. They successfully ambushed a detachment of the 64th Company as it proceeded on a tactical march along a road, but tapered off as they dressed in black clothing simulating the black pajamas of the Viet Cong and armed with automatic weapons. The exercise provided a realistic challenge to the remaining five platoons of the company.

The five platoon candidates countered this formidable threat with a heavy volume of fire provided by automatic and semi-automatic weapons, artillery simulators, and used scout dogs supplied by the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, 107th Airborne.

In the early hours, the company went on the offensive and moved out in force from their base. The search and destroy mission was a success as they managed to rout the aggressors by weight of numbers and effective fire and maneuver techniques.

The day's activities were capped by a consolidation of all forces and a nine mile forced march.

The problem was deemed a success by all who participated. The candidates learned a great deal about the difficulties of combat and the advantages of combined arms tactics under adverse conditions.

High School Grads to Get Early Introduction to Training as Pilot

FORT MONROE, Va. — An opportunity to attend Army Warrant Officer Flight Training (WOFT) will be offered high school graduates during reception station processing, according to a spokesman for Headquarters, Continental Army Command (COMAR). A potential flight trainee must be 18 to 26 years of age, have completed high school and have scored 115 or higher on the General Technical Aptitude Area Tests (GAT) before entering the Army.

He must also have (corrected) 20-20 vision, a "B" physical profile, be 5'4" to 7'0" tall and weigh not more than 200 pounds.

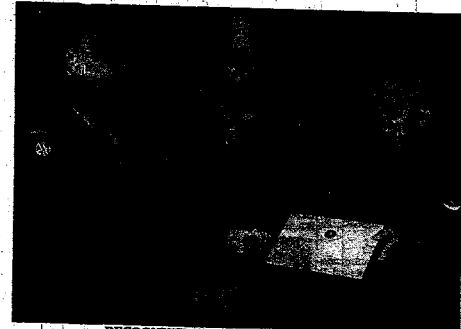

Beginning February 1, all qualified men will receive an orientation, describing the prerequisites for WOFT and the advantages of service as an aviation warrant officer.

Award Given To 10th Gp. For Safety

A Third Army citation for outstanding achievement in aviation safety was presented to the 10th Aviation Group during ceremonies held recently.

MG John A. Beall, chief of staff, Third U. S. Army, presented the award to MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

COL J. Edmund Swenson, commanding officer of the 10th Aviation Group, accepted the award from MG York on behalf of the Group.

In achieving the Fiscal Year 1966 award, 10th Aviation Group units flew 38,000 hours in support of missions throughout the continental United States and supported the training and development of numerous aviation units and individual replacements. Continuing emphasis on accomplishing the mission in the safest possible manner enabled the group to maintain the lowest aircraft accident rate from the rate of 1965.

Army Announces Award Winners In Safety Field

The Department of the Army has announced the winners of the safety program Fiscal Year 1966.

The U. S. Army Materiel Command was chosen overall winner among major commands and has been presented with the Army safety award of honor.

Division safety awards during the last fiscal year went to the 1st Inf. Div. and the 4th Inf. Div.

Award determinations are based on the ability of Army elements to maintain superior safety performance, show reductions in accidents and injuries, and to demonstrate improvements in safety program efforts.

Viet Cong's Attempt to Trick Infantrymen Is Failure

Tuy Hoa, Vietnam — The Viet Cong (VC) were up to some new tricks, trying to do to an American unit as they work their way to other Americans.

However, Co. A, 3rd Battalion, 1st Infantry, didn't fall for the ruse.

The company, platoons operating separately, was moving westward in its operations area. While the first and second platoons moved through a valley, the third platoon and the company CP were approaching their flank along a mountain ridge overlooking the valley. The finger ended in a sheer cliff.

Suddenly, from a cave in the face of the cliff, the units in the valley were taken under fire from automatic and small arms weapons.

The two platoons returned fire and the ricochettes from their firings began splattering about the third platoon. "Perhaps the VC were trying to have us fire on our own units," said 1LT Christopher Dorney, company commander, after the VC fired at them and they dropped down in the paddy. He said, "Then we moved in from both sides and should they be armed. (I turned out they weren't armed.) All they were looking for was a place to hide. They tried to crawl away but soon found that they were surrounded. Then they just gave up. We moved in and began to search their belongings. I found 800 piasters on one of them."

He was apprehended by an ambush patrol from Co. A, 1st Bn, 28th Inf., at the beginning of Operation Cedar Falls, a multi-division operation being conducted in the northwest of Saigon, by the American and Vietnamese forces.

The patrol, led by SSG Joe Salano spotted two figures moving across a rice paddy. It seemed to SP4 Lawrence D. Mortenson that the two men were trying to flee from the Allied soldiers by swimming the Saigon River. "They had their belongings all wrapped around his neck so he would not lose it in the current," he said.

MOH Presented to LT Killed in RVN Fighting

The Secretary of the Army, acting for the President, in the name of Congress, presented the Medal of Honor (Posthumous) to 2LT Robert J. Hibbs, United States Army, in ceremonies held at Fort Myer, Va., January 26, 1966.

Lieutenant Hibbs' heroism included the ambush of another Viet Cong company, and the rescue of a wounded member of his unit. He died of wounds received during the action to charge two enemy machine gun emplacements in order to cover the safe withdrawal of his men.

men stumbled upon the scene suddenly. Everyone was surprised, including the cows, one of which ran off. The boys swam a stream and ambled away into the cane fields.

Stunned by the whole affair, the little girl suddenly realized the presence of catching her cow and burst into tears. The platoon leader looked for volunteers to round up the cow. SP4 Rudy Kotash and PFC Ronny Hayes stepped forward.

Tether in hand, the two soldiers herded the stream and plunged into the brush in pursuit of the wayward cow.

An hour later, the platoon's rear security element reported Kotash and Hayes approaching, cow in tow.

Plaque for Platoon Infantrymen Honor SGM, Trainee Groups

Members of 1st Bn., 28th Inf. assembled at Kelley Hill's Presidential Square recently to pay tribute to a sergeant major and to award diplomas to the largest group to date to graduate from scout dog training here.

A special plaque was presented to SGM Frank C. Plass as a token of the appreciation and esteem of the Battalion. Plass left the 28th to become sergeant major of The Student Brigade.

After receiving the plaque, Plass accompanied COL Jack Treadwell and Marine LTC John J. Tomlin, battalion commander, as they trooped the line to the music of the 28th Army Band.

The ceremonies concluded with presentations by COL Treadwell and Marine LTC Paul Kelly of diplomas to the three platoons which made up the largest single class to graduate from scout dog training under the guidance of the 28th Infantry's 28th Infantry Platoon (Scout Dog).

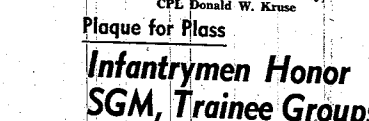

Special certificates were also presented to two sergeants to honor graduates of each platoon for their outstanding achievement during the 12-week training course.

They were PFC Larry J. Hayes, 4th IPSP, PVT Joe D. Lovelace, 50th IPSP, and CPL Donald W. Kruse, 3rd U.S. Marine Corps Scout Dog Platoon.

Graduation certificates were also presented to two sergeants of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam who completed the course.

War Hero Joins OC Ranks Here

The 73rd Co. 7th Bn. (OC), TSB, reported recently with many prior servicemen in its ranks, some with combat experience in Vietnam.

However, none can match the combat record of OC 1st Lt. Daniel F. Carpenter, former Special Forces sergeant and holder of the Distinguished Service Cross for valor in Vietnam.

Carpenter earned the award July 20, 1965, when the Special Forces Camp at Bu Dup was attacked by a Viet Cong force estimated at two battalions in strength.

The enemy opened the attack at approximately 1 a.m. with a barrage of mortar, rocket, weapons and small arms fire. Carpenter, who was communications sergeant for Detachment A-341, 5th U. S. Army Special Forces Group, positioned himself in the camp mess hall and immediately radioed higher headquarters to request flare and fighter support.

Equipment Destroyed. As the barrage increased in intensity, the mess hall and Carpenter's radio equipment were destroyed. The sergeant then attempted to enter the camp's communications bunker with the aid of a wounded comrade to whom he had previously given first aid. They were then attacked after repairing the camp's radio equipment, he directed higher headquarters to request flare and fighter support.

ACS Program Needs Publicity

(As a result of the post-wide survey, a total of 207 responses were received pertaining to the Army Community Services Branch and specifically the Hospitality House. Only three per cent of the respondents indicated knowledge of the Hospitality House is open from 8:30-5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8:30-11:30 a.m. on Saturdays and can be reached at 565-7000 and 565-7722.

Some of the daily services ACS provides are: processing of dependents for temporary ID cards, altimeter checks with the Army Finance Center, financial counseling, information on the availability of housing, transportation and medical care, guidance in applying for dependent care, referrals to civilian facilities for guidance, etc.

In 1966, Fort Benning ACS processed over 2500 individual requests for assistance. In the last six months ACS volunteers, composed entirely of interested and dedicated Army wives, have provided over 7000 manhours of work helping to promote stability within Army families.

In an effort to bring attention to the ACS program, pamphlets have been distributed to all major troop units explaining the program, including the Army Community Services Branch. In addition, posters have been placed in public facilities such as transportation depots and hospitals, and road signs have been erected on highways.

The main staff check points have been established at the Hospitality House. These check points have been established at the Hospitality House. These check points have been established at the Hospitality House.

LTC E. L. Murphy Named Post Information Officer

LTC E. Lloyd Murphy has assumed the duties of Information Officer here to fill the high degree of success as that achieved by his predecessor, Lt. Col. J. J. McNeilly.

McNeilly, who had been the Post Information Officer since June, 1964, has received orders to Vietnam. He will attend a Vietnam Officer course at Fort Bliss, Texas, before assuming command of a public information detachment in the Southeast Asian country.

Commenting on his new assignment, Murphy said he was well aware that with an in-station of Fort Benning's size and scope, the public and information programs must be of equal magnitude. He said the job pro-

Speaker Says Army Looks For Potential

Potential, not past performance, is the Army's major interest in its men, COL Claude W. Baker told 189 new second lieutenants at graduation ceremonies of an officer candidate class here last week.

COL Baker, who received his commission at Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School in 1942, is chief of data processing at the Infantry School.

This class, the eighth of 1967, has an average education level of 13.7 years, COL Baker said. He urged those who have not completed college to do so, "because service in the commissioned ranks is highly competitive today."

Named distinguished honor graduate of the 1st Co., 8th Stu. Bn. (OC), was 2LT Jonathan R. Wilpughly. He also took academic honors, with a 96 per cent average.

First in leadership was 2LT Jerry H. Durre.

Rifle Team Holds Clinic for ATC Cadre

Members of the U.S. Army Rifle Team conducted a Rifle Marksmanship Clinic for the U.S. Army Training Center recently.

Over 40 drill instructors, training officers and commanding officers from Benning's basic training units were present for the instruction held at the Main Post range complex.

SFC Kenneth Hamill, a distinguished rifleman, gave instruction on the proper aiming method and the firing positions. Hamill was assisted by team members throughout the instruction. They emphasized check points of aiming where over 5,000 persons at sight alignment, sight picture, eye relief, and proper breathing control. The important of a natural and consistent shooting position was also stressed.

After the instruction period, MTU members assisted in a practical application of rifle marksmanship.

The U.S. Army Team conducted a question and answer period which was held in the afternoon.

Wigger Wins Sawgrass With Near-Perfect Score

By ROB ROBINSON
Olympic champion CP T. Lones Wigger Jr. of the U.S. Army International Rifle Team won the 14th Annual Sawgrass Championship last weekend in Miami, Fla., with a 2197-2502's.

His score, only three points below a perfect 3200, was tied by team mate SSG Martin Gummerson and civilian Augie Westergard, but Wigger's X count was the highest.

The U.S. Army International Rifle Team captured eight first places with LT Larry Sampson and MAJ Tommy Pool sharing two victories each. The Marines and Air Force accounted for three first place while top civilian shooters placed first in two events.

MTU team shooters fired a 2264 to outscore the U.S. Air Force's 2240 and the Marines' 2211. The Army shooters are continuing their training match in Florida at the National

NCO League Announces Slots for Lady Bowlers

Now in the middle of its winter season, the NCO find the afternoon of bowling a wonderful way to get out of the house.

The league's ten teams have been depleted by a rash of resignation orders hitting husbands.

Meeting each Tuesday afternoon at the Main Post bowling lanes, league play starts at 1 p.m. A supervised nursery, at the bowling lanes, is available for those with small children.

League president Nita Valent, whose husband is in Korea, said, "Many of the other wives in the league are also sitting out the return of basic Spanish conducted by MSG Fernando Muniz who will be in charge of instruction for the Spanish speaking rifle shots.

Muniz, a top Army coach stated, "We will teach these teams some of what we have learned over the years stressing firing positions, aiming, breath control and trigger control."

"Our shooters are really enthusiasts of good will," stated LTC James E. Leno Jr., chief of the Rifle Division.

"We have a wealth of talent, a tremendous desire to win, but more important, we want and are able to share this knowledge and experience with others," the colonel added.

Boy Scout Benefit Race Set by Cycle Club Sunday

By SSG Saw Wilson
The wild machines of professional motorcycle racers will thunder Sunday in benefit races for the Boy Scouts of America at the half-mile Pheasant City motorcycle track.

Tracking the list by riders such as Bobby Christian of Atlanta on a BSA 650, Ed Buck of Columbus on a 500 cc Harley Davidson and former national champion Bobby Herring of Columbus on a 632 Triumph.

Over 40 professionals from all over the South will compete in six scheduled scrambles on the dirt track, are promoted by the Columbus Motorcycle Club and co-sponsored by the Sportcycle Club of Columbus.

Other professionals signed up for the events are Tommy Pearson of Montgomery on a Honda 650, Cleo Robay of Albany with a Harley Davidson.

There are 33 lanes now available, 24 at the Main Post Bowling Center, eight at Annex No. 2 and six at Annex No. 2 with 12 more planned for the Kelley Hill area.

The Main Post Bowling Center is located at the corner of Sightsseeing Road and Eckel Street, Annex No. 1 on Douglasby Street near the Doughtyby Stadium and Annex No. 2 in Sand Hill on Bovington Street.

Although 246 teams make up league play at the Main Post Bowling Center, only 100 open bowling is allowed at the other two establishments.

Sand Hill lanes open weekdays at 8 p.m. and at noon on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Annex No. 1 near Doughtyby Stadium, opens at noon daily.

Open bowling is also available at the Main Post Bowling Center at 9:30 p.m. daily, on Saturday after 2 p.m., and all day Sunday.

Over 28 teams of dependent children take over these lanes Saturday mornings. With league teams open for more bowlers, and plenty of Colombus riding a Suzuki 250 and Eddie Graves of Columbus who has a factory racing special Triumph 650.

To be classed as a professional, motorcycle racer must have either a license from the American Motorcycle Association or have raced for over two years in competition.

Speeds of over 90 mph will be seen during the races and a hump on the track's longest straight puts the riders airborne for 40 to 50 feet. Some riders have already turned the half-mile course in 25 seconds or over 70 mph. Practiced is slated to start at noon Sunday and the Boy Scouts will present the opening ceremonies at 1 p.m. Time trials will start at 1:30 p.m.

At 2 p.m. a production class race for stock factory motorcycles will start the competition.

Five other classes will race with over 25 experts already entered in the 201 to 250 cc class scramble.

The 500-untimed cc class will be the final race.

Fort Benning's oldest league, the "Soldier's Major" with 14 teams, and the "Officers Crimson" with 10 meet on Thursday.

A ten team men's "classic" and a ladies' handicap with 14 teams meet on Friday nights.

Women's league play starts each Tuesday afternoon when the ten team NCO wives meet.

The Doctors Wives meet on Wednesday with the Officers' Wives on Thursday. On Fridays the 10th Aviation Wives and a league called the "Work Droggers" meet.

If you just want to watch, refreshments are always available at the three bowling establishments with a full fledged snack bar at the Bowling Center.

A bold coach who stood by the novel belief that college football should be fun for the players, too, stepped down from his Georgia Tech command post this week.

Bobby Dodd's retirement after 22 successful years came as no surprise, but the press and the people who like football made much of it. There was much to be said about the man and his career.

Dodd spent his entire career at the Atlanta school. For 14 years before taking full command in 1946, he served as an assistant there. The man they name to succeed him will be only the fourth Georgia Tech head coach in 63 years of football.

The writers had a name for Dodd, "The Tall Grey Fox," but it never seemed to stick like "The Bear" did for his competitor at Alabama. What did stick was admiration for his decisiveness, and the reputation.

An easy-going attitude toward the drudgery of practice was a Dodd trademark. As an All-America player at Tennessee, he didn't like it. As Georgia Tech's coach, he knew his men didn't like it.

He realized that a tough football team could be whipped together through such iron-clad drills, but toughness wasn't his sole goal. Rather, he frowned on the unpleasant fact that some college teams win because they are meaner and not better.

It may have been this attitude that prompted him to break off athletic relations with the University of Alabama after an unfortunate incident of brutality on the field.

There are other examples of Dodd's strong man. Most prominent was when he took the Yellow Jackets out of the Southeastern Conference because of scholarship regulations he considered unfair to academically superior schools.

Then there were the shock waves from his suggestion that Spring training should be abolished so that football athletes could compete in baseball, track, swimming and like sports. This was heresy in some quarters, particularly in the South.

Dodd was an unconventional coach and his record is an unconventional one. He bowed out with 165 victories, 64 losses. He took the Engineers to 12 bowls, winning all but four. There were only two losing seasons along the way.

Despite the poor health that forced him to leave coaching, Dodd will stay on as Tech's athletic director. His influence, a positive one, will remain on the game.

Of all the tributes I've seen in the Georgia papers to Coach Bobby Dodd this week, one stands out.

It came from All-American center Jim Brennan, who remarked that he left the Naval Academy and transferred to Georgia Tech "because I heard it was fun to play football for Coach Dodd — and it is."

PROJECT KEEPS ENGINEER SKILLS UP TO STANDARD
Men of Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn, Construct Concrete Building Adjacent To Infantry Bn (U. S. Army Photo).

Engineers Pursue Projects to Keep Skills

In keeping with the motto of the 43rd Engr. Bn, "Power. Progress. Planning," members of the 43rd Engr. Bn, G-1, under the command of Capt. James H. ... have completed a number of projects since their reorganization here in April, 1966.

The battalion has a head-quarter company, three construction companies each with one earth-moving platoon, plus a heavy equipment company. Some of the projects completed during the past few months were holding of a parking lot in the Camp Hill area, of a tank trail which required extensive tree cutting, grading and building of drainage ditches and culverts, and the renovation of the craft shop and PX branch in the Harnsey Church area.

Two of the biggest projects completed by the battalion were the construction of a road at Easley Range and the improvement of the area near the Team Square.

The road project was completed in two weeks by working around the clock. The men used 4,200 cubic yards of fill and 325 cubic yards of rock to build the 3,900-yard long road. At the Team Square site, the men required trees.

Trainees Attend Musical Program
Trainees at Service Club No. 2, USATC, recently saw a musical program involving the Fort Benning Monthly Entertainment Council. The three winning acts collecting a $25 prize were PFC Richard Eschbacher, a pianist with the 282d Army Band, Jerry Borchard, 57th Co. 3d Sig Bn, and the 4thiffans. Judges for the event were Miss Pat Hagle, Mrs. Marie Davis, both music teachers at Fort Benning, and PFC Bennett Britt, with the Third Army Orchestra. The SFV Michael Holcomb-emceed the contest.

OC Unit Has 15.6 Year Average Education Level

Officers candidates of the 1st Company came from a variety of backgrounds, but all seem to have a common quality. They are long on education. The average level of education may set the pace for Officer Candidate School. It is 15.6 years.

Over 150 candidates of the class have graduated from college. Eight of these have masters degrees. The degrees were obtained in more than 30 subject areas, with concentrations in business administration, accounting and economics. Candidates of the 61st have

Drill Sergeants Said Key BCT Platoon Has 40 Rifle Experts

By Greta Badgett
For a recruit to qualify as a marksman with his basic weapons, the M14 rifle, is no simple task, but one unit here saw 40 trainees in a platoon qualify as "experts," recently.

SFC Roy L. Meadows and SGT Dan C. Parsons, drill instructors with the 1st Platoon, Co. C, 11th Bn., 3rd Bde., know how it was done during the latest training cycle.

While attending Basic Combat Training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, a trainee received 10 hours of instruction with his basic weapon on the firing ranges, instruction provided by Training Center Community Group.

This is supplemented by marksmanship training, usually given by drill sergeants specifically assigned this duty within the company.

Each eight-week cycle of trainees presents a new challenge to the platoon sergeant and his assistant. Eighty-seven hours combined with concurrent training sounds sufficient to qualify and train recruits, but the drill sergeants say this is only a "drop in the bucket."

What is the difference between a platoon that merely qualifies and one that has "experts"?

It is the platoon sergeant and his assistant. They give each man in their platoon an hour after hour of their "off-time" in order to give much needed additional instruction, according to SGM Russell R. Keane of the 3rd Brigade.

The added instruction given by these sergeants is geared to individual need.

When told that their platoon had accomplished the annual feat, both Meadows and Parsons were elated. This was their reward for all the extra hours they spent so that each man in their platoon might fire at his best.

They were asked what it took — how much time? Both were reluctant to give any details. They felt the credit should go to the trainees and their determination to do a good job. However, the company commander, CPT Dennis J. Reimer, had a different opinion.

"Saturday afternoons Sergeant Meadows was with the platoon and Sunday afternoons, Sergeant Parsons also was in extra time. Completed with other duties, he was there, when there was no mandatory training scheduled, these hours made the difference," Reimer said.

Of the 40 men in the platoon who qualified as experts, the majority came from Alabama. Four came from adjoining states — three from Georgia and one from Florida.

Benning Tankers Travel To Fort Stewart Ranges

The familiar fire commands of tankers were heard on the firing ranges of Fort Stewart, Ga., recently as members of the 4th Bn. 68th Armor, blasted through annual tank gunnery qualification firing.

This year, five officers and 105 enlisted men, under the command of MAJ John E. Phillips, the battalion executive officer, moved to the post near Savannah, Georgia, where the Army maintains its armor and artillery firing ranges.

Their mission was the completion of Advanced Individual Training and qualification of 113 men assigned to the 4th Bn. 68th Armor, blasted through annual tank gunnery qualification firing.

The advance party arrived at Fort Stewart January 9, with the main body moving in three days later. The detachment moved to the ranges the following day to begin 16 days of firing exercises.

The training included a series of exercises in which the crews fired both the main guns and the coaxially-mounted machine guns of their M4A1 tanks at stationary and moving targets while the tanks remained in place.

The exercises were repeated with the tanks in motion.

For the final crew proficiency firing test, each tank was maneuvered along a course engaging a series of different targets with appropriate weapons.

During this phase of training, 200 rounds of 90 mm tank ammunition and 50,000 rounds of small arms ammo were expended.

Prior to the movement to Fort Stewart, qualification had been completed with smaller caliber arms and the crews had received their training in crew duties, communications and basic military skills.

On their return to Fort Benning January 11, 112 listed men were awarded MOS 11E — Armor Crewman.

One of those completing the training was PVT Wiley Graham of Hazlehurst, Ga., a member of HHC, who said, "I believe I can do my job as a tank crewman. It has been hard work, but I have enjoyed it. This has convinced me, more than ever, to stay 'Armor. All the Way.'" close friends of Secretary Patterson soon after his death in a plane crash in 1962.

The Patterson Award certificate was presented to Williams by COL Arthur W. Allen Jr. (USA Ret.), deputy undersecretary of the Army for manpower and Reserve.

LTG John L. Throckmorton presented the lieutenant with a "Follow Me" plaque. LTG Throckmorton is director of special studies, Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army, and is senior member of the military staff committee.

Benning Bank Sets '67 Meeting Date For Stockholders

Stockholders of the National Bank of Fort Benning will hold their annual meeting of the bank at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

A bank spokesman said that the holders of some 88,000 shares of common stock will meet to make official the bank's annual report which lists assets of $12,249,266.26 on Dec. 30, 1966.

The report says that "1966 has been a most profitable year for your bank," and continues with "Your bank, as you know, has had a continuous growth since we opened in 1957."

Chaplain Estes Set As Guest Speaker

Chaplain (COL) Arthur J. Estes will be guest minister at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services at The Infantry Center Chapel here Sunday.

The services will be conducted by Chaplain (COL) Joseph E. Andrews, post chaplain, and Chaplain Estes, who will speak on "God's Estimation of Your Success."

Prior to his tour in Vietnam, where he served with the 1st Aviation Brigade, Chaplain Estes was in succession, Student Brigade chaplain, post chaplain and assistant post chaplain at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Arrey previously was presented with a Purple Heart for her husband.

A Bronze Star Medal and a Purple Heart recently were posthumously awarded to SSG James H. Gray here at a ceremony in the office of COL David G. Sherrard, the deputy post commander.

A graduate of East Carolina College in Greenville, N. C., Williams considers the officer candidate course "the most of all available, roughest training of my life."

"It is an experience in which leadership becomes second nature to man," he said.

Referring to the Patterson award as "one of the highest forms of incentive for a young officer," Williams pledged himself to "justify the faith of all concerned in my selection as The Infantry School's outstanding Officer Candidate course graduate in 1966."

The Judge Says...

Handling personal goods falls in three categories

A bailment arises when one leaves his clothes at a cleaners or tailors, leaves a radio for repair, parks a car in a parking lot, borrows a car from a friend, borrows a car from a repairman while his car is being repaired, parks his watch, etc.

Any of these arrangements fall into one of three categories for determination of the legal consequences involved.

The first classification is termed a "bailment for the bailor's benefit." The bailor is the one who owns the article and entrusts its possession to another. The distinguishing feature in this case is the absence of any compensation to the bailee (the one with whom the goods are entrusted).

Delivery Mistake

An example of this type of arrangement would be a delivery of some item to an individual's home or property by mistake, such as a delivery of a set of encyclopedias to the wrong person. The bailee, or recipient in this example, could not ignore the delivery. He must exercise some degree of care to the goods even though the degree of care demanded is slight.

This small degree of care has been interpreted to mean that the bailee has no right to use the item. It has been described as that degree of care which would be exercised by a prudent person in the same circumstances.

The second classification is termed a "bailment for the bailee's benefit." The distinguishing feature of this arrangement is that the bailment is for the beneficial use of the bailee, without compensation to the bailor. It is sometimes termed a gratuitous bailment for use. An example would be where an individual lends a car to a friend.

In this type of bailment the bailee is held to the exercise of great or extraordinary care or diligence with respect to the goods, i.e., the car in the example above. This does not mean that the bailee is absolutely responsible as an insurer for loss or injury, but he is responsible for his negligence or the failure to exercise the requisite degree of care.

The care required in this classification has been defined as that diligence that a person of more than ordinary prudence would bestow upon his own property under like circumstances.

Mutual Benefit

Thirdly, the final classification is termed a "bailment for the mutual benefit of the bailor and bailee."

The distinguishing feature of this arrangement is that the bailment offers some benefit to both parties. This is the most common arrangement, for example one leaves his clothes with a cleaner or repairs his car with a mechanic.

The degree of care to be exercised by the bailee is the highest with respect to the goods involved. Ordinary care or diligence is that degree of care which men of ordinary prudence would exercise under the like circumstances.

The distinction made in each classification above is the guide to liability of the bailee in his handling of the bailed goods.

In any problem involving such issues, the Legal Assistance Officer should be consulted.

Soldier's best bargain is Servicemen's Insurance

A soldier coming into the service is now automatically covered by insurance in amounts of $5,000 or $10,000. It costs him only $1 or $2 per month.

All new soldiers are informed about the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance and are given the choice of declining if they wish.

However, if a person has declined coverage and later changes his mind, he must then take a physical examination and fill out an application form, VA Form 28-8283.

Other Policies

The policy may be added to a National Service Life Insurance or U. S. Government life insurance which the soldier may have at the time.

The method of settlement is limited to a lump sum payment or a 36-month settlement in equal monthly installments.

The soldier may designate any person as the beneficiary of his insurance policy.

When the person is discharged from the service, he is protected in the full amount for 120 days, the cost of which is covered by premiums paid during his active service.

Equal Amounts

The individual may then obtain an insurance policy without medical examination from any insurance company participating in the program. The amount, however, must be equal to his group insurance policy.

Complete details on the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance may be obtained from the Legal Assistance Officer. (ANF)

Washington's life was built around code of duty, honor

George Washington, whose birth date we observe February 22, is perhaps the outstanding example of famous men in the history of our Nation.

Washington's life was governed by an unalterable personal code built on duty and honor. To him no duty was greater, no honor more satisfying, than service to one's country.

When he could have been enjoying the pleasant life of a prosperous country gentleman, his country called him. He answered that call, suffering personal hardship and exposing himself to almost constant danger during the long, arduous and often frustrating campaigns of the war.

As military commander of the small, ill-equipped, ill-trained American Army during the Revolutionary War, his leadership and genius were instrumental in the American success against the finest army in the world at that time.

As our first President under the Constitution, his fact, judgment, ability and devotion guided our government through its critical formative period, establishing a solid foundation on which future generations could build.

But equally important is the other heritage left by Washington, that of selfless, dedicated service to his country, regardless of the hardships or sacrifices.

His example is no less inspiring today than it was to the cold, ragged men at Valley Forge. If this Nation is to continue as the beacon of freedom for the world, Washington's example of selfless dedicated service must be followed. (AFNB)

Surgeon Says Lessen the risk of heart disease

By CPT Earl Baker, MC

Heart disease caused by narrowing and blockage of the blood vessels of the heart is the commonest cause of death in the United States. Heart attack, heart failure and angina pectoris are some of the well-known signs of this condition.

All of these forms are caused by inadequate circulation of blood to the heart through these damaged vessels. The actual blockage is caused by different substances including a fatty compound, cholesterol, which is deposited in the inner lining of the vessel.

Not only is the bore of the artery gradually reduced by this process but blood clots tend to form on the damaged lining. A clot can narrow the vessel further or even block it completely.

Chest Pain

A person with this coronary artery disease usually experience a certain type of chest pain called angina during work. This pain signifies that the vessels cannot deliver enough blood to nourish the heart during the work. If the chest pain is severe enough it may be a real part in making heart trouble more livable in those who already have it or are faced to develop it. Even while gradual insidious narrowing of the coronary arteries is taking place, regular exercise at moderate degree helps to enlarge other blood vessels of the heart at the same time.

Strenuous exercise is not necessarily more effective than regular. The key word is "regular." One who usually indicates that strenuous and even moderate exercise has led to chest pain such as in vacation sports or once a month or week is ineffective and perhaps harmful when experienced on a background of a sedentary daily routine.

Young men are brought to peak physical condition by military training but this advantage is thrown away by so many when they move to easier assignments. Few keep up an exercise routine voluntarily.

Regularly walking a mile or so or spending ten minutes every day or several days a week in a modest effort is the fact that the same would fulfill the need.

Twice the Risk

Cigarette smokers suffer more than twice the risk of coronary artery disease as nonsmokers. It is true that a great deal of research is still being done on this subject but a recent report by physicians indicates that tobacco's guilt is established. Those who have been smoking for 20 years or more say, "It's too late to make a difference, so why stop?"

The statistics show that stopping improves a person's chances.

Proper control of all these factors can make a tremendous difference in the outlook of everyone. Remember, what happens to your heart at age 40, 45 or 50 is present in everyone's circulation. A high level of blood cholesterol predisposes to a much higher incidence of coronary heart disease.

Food Problem

The food problem is also the cholesterol problem. Cholesterol is not a novelty present in everyone's circulation. A high level of blood cholesterol predisposes to a much higher incidence of coronary heart disease.

The reasonable question arises, how to get a normal level of cholesterol? Animal fat, predominate in the American diet, is the worst offender. It comes in many delicious forms as the fatty meats such as pork, heavy beef, and delicatessen meats, dairy products like whole milk, butter, cream, ice cream, cheese (except cottage), and eggs, heavy oils and grease such as lard and margarine, and most pastries.

Lean meats and all kinds of poultry and fish are beneficial. For cooking purposes the lightest oils, generally vegetable oil, are the best. Vegetables, fruits and cereals are no problem.

Post Little Theatre Set For Monthly Workshop

The Fort Benning Little Theatre will conduct the first of a series of monthly technical theatre workshops Tuesday.

The workshops will include lectures in all phases of the theatre. All members of the workshop group will work with the performing group in its major productions and short plays.

Participants have a choice to work in any phase of the theatre backstage including lighting, scene painting, costumes, make-up, etc.

The theatre will be doing four major productions during 1967 plus miscellaneous one-act and variety type shows. Also a summer acting workshop will be conducted and coordinated with the technical theatre workshop to present a play as the end result of both programs.

The first meeting will be held at Bldg. 1237, behind the Infantry Museum on Main Post Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m.

Those planning to make a career of theatre will have a chance to apply for scholarships offered through the Army to all military personnel.

Petticoat Portraits OWC President Enjoys Her Job

BY LYNN JONES

"Now that redhead of mine is really something!" was one of the first things I ever heard COL J. Elmore Swenson say at a dinner before his wife had arrived here. Little did he know then that those words were to be somewhat prophetic. That they would be seconded by the membership of one of the largest women's clubs in the United States.

To be elected president of the Fort Benning Officers' Wives Club certainly does take "something," for it is an industrious organization encompassing over 40 various activities and projects. As mentor of this vast club, Myrtle Swenson is a player in the "something" and more.

She is called upon as counselor, confidante, and most important, friend. Her warmth and gentleness mark her as a very understanding woman and her red hair belies her infinite patience.

Mrs. Swenson very much enjoys her difficult job as OWC president and she says, "The position of OWC president has been very rewarding. The board members are wonderful to work with. If it continues as it has, the presidency will have been a tremendous experience."

Not only is Mrs. Swenson president of the OWC, she is first lady of the 10th Aviation Group as well and, as such, attends most of the company coffees and social gatherings.

One would think that these two responsibilities would absorb every waking hour, yet Mrs. Swenson bowls regularly (a favorite hobby) in both the OWC and the 10th Aviation Leagues.

The OWC Thrift Shop is of particular interest to Mrs. Swenson and she spends as a volunteer hours at the consignment desk.

The colonel and Mrs. Swenson have two children: They are Steve, who attends college in Virginia, and Shirley, who lives with her parents along with two children while her husband MAJ Richard Gilmant, is an advisor in Vietnam.

Mrs. Swenson was born and raised in Salt Lake City, Utah, and until her marriage had never left the state. Since that time she has more than made up for her lack of travel during her childhood.

Married Swenson a year and a half after graduating from high school, Myrtle Swenson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Swenson, married J. Elmore Swenson, keeping the same name she had carried for more than 18 years.

Her husband enrolled in the University of Utah and

The maintenance supervisor transferred to Fort Sill, Okla., while he attended the first flight class ever held by the Army and was among the first Army Aviators to be sent overseas.

In 1951, COL Swenson left for Korea and Mrs. Swenson, with her two children, packed up and went home to Salt Lake City for two more years.

When he returned they were once again assigned to Fort Sill, which by this time had become a second home.

In 1955, the Swenson family moved to Norfolk, Va. and from there, COL Swenson was assigned to the 13th Air Force at the Pentagon for three years. After a quick tour at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., the Swensons left for Germany where their daughter Shirley, met and married a young Artillery officer, LT Gallant.

In 1962, the Swensons returned to the states and were assigned to Fort Monroe, Va. for three years and were then transferred to Fort Benning in the Spring of 1965.

In May, COL Swenson would like to visit Vietnam. When he goes this time, Mrs. Swenson plans to stay at Fort Benning instead of returning to Utah as she did in the past.

"I enjoy the post so much and have met so many nice people here and in Columbus that I feel far more at home here than I would in Salt Lake City."

'Aladdin' to Be Shown At Three Arts Theater

An extravaganza for the elementary school crowd comes to Columbus' Three Arts Theatre February 25 when FUNTASIA Children's Theatre, sponsored by the Christian Fellowship Association, presents Aladdin, a spectacularly staged and acted by a professional New York cast.

Premiered in New York last Spring, this lavishly costumed drama set in the land of Arabian nights is produced by the famed Traveling Playhouse Company of Manhattan.

The enchanting and stirring adaptation of the story of the youngster Aladdin and his mystic adventures is written and directed by Kay Rockafeller. Mrs. Rockafeller, with her husband Ken, have been the geni in the creation of special children's theatrical productions throughout the world by rivaling the best of Broadway!

During the past 18 years, the Traveling Playhouse has been on stage all over the country, for more than 3000 performances and played to over two million youngsters. The Christian Fellowship Association has co-sponsored their monthly meet and coffee at Mrs. Thomas Orr, center, and Mrs. Robert Walsh, NCO wives of the Marksmanship Training Unit field

Persons interested in attending are asked to call 527-2999 or 544-1745.

DUSA will host the cocktail party at 7 p.m. The get-together will provide a meal and place where officers, Army brats and their husbands and wives may renew old acquaintances.

The figures were given in the introduction of MAJ Benner (USA Ret.), the new accountant for the children's nursery fund.

Ranieri spoke of the nursery as being the second largest non-appropriated fund operation on the post. Under DUSA supervision the nursery has grown during the past 10 years, caring for more children each year.

Thirty members and guests attended the event in the Corridor Room of the Officers' Club.

Among prospective members were Mrs. J. T. Carallo, Mrs. Ralph R. Garrett, son, Mrs. Robert R. Glass, Mrs. Donald E. Gonsuval, Mrs. David E. Peterson, Mrs. Robert T. Beideman was the guest of Mrs. T. A. Davampot.

Hostesses were Mrs. Paul R. Buckley and Mrs. Earl S. Greason III.

Mobility Party Fetes Officers

The maintenance supervisor transferred to Fort Sill, Okla., while he attended the first flight class ever held by the Army and was among the first Army Aviators to be sent overseas.

In 1951, COL Swenson left for Korea and Mrs. Swenson, with her two children, packed up and went home to Salt Lake City for two more years.

When he returned they were once again assigned to Fort Sill, which by this time had become a second home.

In 1955, the Swenson family moved to Norfolk, Va. and from there, COL Swenson was assigned to the 13th Air Force at the Pentagon for three years. After a quick tour at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., the Swensons left for Germany where their daughter Shirley, met and married a young Artillery officer, LT Gallant.

In 1962, the Swensons returned to the states and were assigned to Fort Monroe, Va. for three years and were then transferred to Fort Benning in the Spring of 1965.

In May, COL Swenson would like to visit Vietnam. When he goes this time, Mrs. Swenson plans to stay at Fort Benning instead of returning to Utah as she did in the past.

OC Wives Attend Main Club Lunch

Officer candidate wives of the 75th Co. 7th Stu. Bn. (OC) held a luncheon in the Dining Room of the Main Officers' Club recently. With the theme, "Partner-Perfection" several of the wives put together a patchwork coat representing the different branches of the Army. Each branch was explained as the pieces were attached to form a coat symbol of the Armed Forces. Those participating in the entertainment were Mrs. Terrence L. Raddatz, Mrs. John C. Gregg, Mrs. Barry Meyerson and Mrs. Larry G. Faulkner. The decorations consisted of spoils of thread representing the qualities required in an Army officer. At the head table a centerpiece made up of a sewing box contained scarves that depicted the various branches of the Army. Mrs. Raymond F. Murphy headed the decorations committee and Mrs. Daniel Nixon was in charge of the program committee. The program was in the form of a tailor's-pattern depicting those that could be used to make officer greens and dress blues. Honored guests at the luncheon were Mrs. H. S. Cunningham, Mrs. Edward J. Geany and Mrs. Raymond Fleigh.  Cadre hostesses were Mrs. Warren L. Copeland, Mrs. Johnnie L. Kirk, Mrs. Phillip S. Elmer and Mrs. Ronald G. Compton.  Student wife hostesses were Mrs. Raddatz, Mrs. Richard D. Rankin and Mrs. Harold B. Winters.  THE SHAPE of a helmet liner covered with Infantry blue feathers and complemented by a silver glitter candle was the centerpiece for a recent coffee held for the wives of officer candidates in the 6th Co., 6th Stu. Bn. (OC), in the company dayroom. Lt Stephen B. Lee spoke to the wives on the forthcoming senior status review and gave the students' wives briefing on the training and the equipment used by an airborne trooper. Mrs. James L. Patterson and Mrs. Ernest Jones Jr. were hostesses for the occasion.  I wouldn't mind not having all the furniture so much if I could just have my pots and pans and some beds. I am rather new at Army life and I am wondering what other Army people do about this problem.  WORRIED Dear Worried, Welcome to Fort Benning! I am glad you have written about your concern with this problem because I believe I can relieve your mind and you can settle down to enjoying your trip to Georgia. When you arrive at Fort Benning, inquire first about post housing at Bldg. 35. From Bldg. 35 follow the signs to Hospitality House, Bldg. 27A. There you will find a selection of pots, pans and utensils plus an ironing board and iron which will be loaned to you until your furniture arrives. Coffee Held by Wives Of Airborne Officers

The Airborne wives accompanied their husbands at Hospitality House Friday and will in turn be joined by the men at a luncheon February 23. At the close of the occasion, Mrs. James Townsends announced a formal to be held at the Country Club March 11.  Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Stephens and Mrs. Jerry Laird. The wives took part in a game of "Friendship Bingo" and prizes were won by Mrs. Eric Hawley and Mrs. Larry Algood. Mrs. Hawley was welcomed to the group. Visiting was Miss Ann Blessie. Mrs. George Sles and Mrs. Robert Fullerton agreed to assist the hospitality chairman. Mrs. Calvin Dodd, Mrs. Stanley Schrader will be the new publicity chairman. Other recent activities include a couple's bridge meet at the home of CPT James Revere. A Ladies Bridge was hosted last Wednesday by Mrs. John Zell.

Dear Community Service, My husband has received orders to report to Fort Benning in two weeks. I'm sure it will take longer than that to have our furniture packed and shipped there and we just can't afford a furnished house. The Hospitality House provided a spot to relax while you consult newspapers for rentals or realtors and make the necessary telephone calls incident to your arrival.

Coffee Set By Golfers

The Officers' Wives Club Ladies Golf Group will have their opening coffee of the spring season at the Country Club at 9:30 a.m. next Friday. During the meeting the tournaments and a program for Spring will be announced. New lady golfers are urged to attend and may register that day at the golf shop.

Glimpse Into Army's Future

USACDC Exhibit Due Here Soon

A glimpse into the U. S. Army's future is in store for residents of Fort Benning, Ga., when a special exhibit entitled "TODAY'S VISION—TOMORROW'S VICTORY" appears on Infantry Hall's west parking lot.

It will open at 11 a.m. The mobile van display tells the story of U. S. Army Combat Development Command (USACDC), sometimes referred to as the Army's "think factory."

The exhibit's story revolves around USACDC's main mission — to provide the Army chief of staff with answers to three questions: How should the Army fight? How should the Army be equipped? How should the Army be organized?

Questions Answered
These questions are answered for viewers by means of a motion picture, color slide show, animated and technimated panels and colorful photo-artwork. One section of the exhibit features a "build your own division" panel on the ROAD (Reorganization Objective Army Divisions) concept. By pushing selected "combat needs" buttons on the panel, viewers can tailor fighting units to meet specific tactical requirements based on the enemy's capability, the weather and terrain. Another panel enables viewers to actually lift the relative weights soldiers throughout the battlefield. It also highlights USACDC's program for lightening the future soldier's load without decreasing his mobility or increasing his vulnerability.

War Gaming
USACDC's methods of evaluating new ideas is presented in the form of a simplified game. The objective is to capture the enemy's jungle strong point by using one of four platoon-sized units. By pressing a button to employ the force of his choice, the viewer will see the result of his tactics. Only when the correct force is chosen will he see his objective accomplished.

Drill Sergeant Has Historic Forebears

An Army drill sergeant here is a direct descendant of Indian chiefs Hollow Horn Bear, Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse.

He is SGT William S. DeCory who has served both in the U.S. Marines and U.S. Army and today is one of the high caliber drill sergeants at work in the U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

Following graduation in 1954 from Rapid City High School, S. D., where he was crowned King Football, DeCory entered the Marine Corps.

During six years in the Marines, he went through pathfinder and beach reconnaissance training. He was stationed both in Okinawa and Hawaii.

While on Okinawa, DeCory was awarded the first degree black belt for judo. He enjoyed participating in judo and karate, as well as hunting big game in South Dakota.

The Resolub Reservation, S. D., was his home until junior high days. During high school, he was a bull rider in rodeos.

Research Centers Planned For American Universities

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced a new program which will establish Department of Defense research centers throughout the nation.

According to Secretary McNamara, the program, Project THESIS, was designed to strengthen the scientific and engineering capabilities of selected academic institutions throughout the country, and to enable a larger number of them to carry out research of a higher quality.

It is expected that the subject areas that need research at the doctorate level could eventually contribute to long-range U.S. security. These subject areas include the physical engineering, environmental, and medical sciences.

Plans Are OK'd Revising DAC Management Area

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Under Secretary of the Army David E. McGittert has approved plans to revise the Army's civilian career management system.

The new policy framework will provide for improved operating procedures and help refine the fundamental principles of career management for civilian employees.

The policies will be put into effect by the deputy chief of personnel as soon as possible.

Major commands will be assigned more active leadership roles in career management. They will assure recruitment and assignment of junior-level employees responsibilities for advancement, training, and development, and assure regular appraisal and career counseling.

The responsibilities of the functional chief—the highest official responsible for the performance of employees in a given occupational field—will be revised.

Responsibilities for management include the power requirement for control and entry of civilian employees into the career management area.

The committee tested weapons and rooming methods for changes.

Serves Now With USATCI ISG Has Three Decades Of Service as Infantryman

The soldier in the 2nd Ed. U.S. Army Training Center Infantry, with the greatest amount of military service since the beginning of the invasion of Normandy.

On March 30, ISG D. McComb, Co. C, 7th Inf. Bde., USATCI, will have served 31 years.

McComb grew up in Spencer town, N. Y., and attended Chatham High School, N. Y. He entered the service in the middle of March, 1936, enlisting for three years at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

In England

His first overseas assignment came in 1942 when the 1st Inf. Div. went to England and Scotland. Later that year the division participated in the African invasion at Arzew, Algeria, 90 to 140 miles from Oran.

Two weeks after arriving in Tunisia, a French province, his regiment, the 18th Infantry, joined with the British 1st Army to fight the Nazis.

While in Tunisia, McComb was awarded the Silver Star for valor.

The African campaign was over in the spring of 1943. After two months of training the 1st Infantry Division, He received the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Combat Infantryman's Badge in England to prepare for the invasion of Normandy.

During World War II, McComb remained in England after the war, where he assisted in processing of U.S. troops back to the United States.

He came to Fort Benning in 1947 when he was assigned to the 37th Inf. Div. He worked with the Weapons Department in Germany as his next overseas tour. He remained

Units Rated 'Superior' At USATCI

Three companies of the 8th Bn, 2nd Ed. U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry were rated superior on Annual General Inspection. Two others have received ratings of excellent.

Company A was declared the best company in the inspection.

The other two units receiving superior ratings were Company C and Company E. MAJ Charles W. Burns, USATCI IG, said.

The battalion's overall rating was superior.

CPT Gerald L. Koch, CO, Company A, received a trophy from LTC GAEN C. H. Frey, who commanded the 8th Battalion until his promotion last Monday.

The inspection team of 15 men spent seven days checking administration, training, mess management, buildings and grounds, physical security, safety and fire prevention, recruitment program, supply administration and Quartermaster equipment in all five companies of the battalion.

STATUE PRESENTED TO HONOR GRADUATE

BG Irzyk Speaks to 119 New LTs

"You have reason to be proud and so has your family. The course you have just completed has been a tough and demanding one," BG Irzyk, assistant commander of the Army School, Fort Knox, Ky., told 119 infantry officers candidate graduates here last Friday. "It's that way purposely."

109 Receive LT Insignia From OCS

Early assignments to positions of responsibility and authority above the platoon level are being received by newly commissioned officers, BG Kelly G. Lemmon told 109 graduates of an officers' candidate course here last week.

BG Lemmon is assistant division commander of the 2nd Arm. Div. at Fort Hood, Tex.

Frasing the Infantry school, he said, "You gentlemen are fortunate to report to your first units with the Fort Benning stamp already affixed to you."

Due to a shortage of captains and majors in his division, BG Lemmon said, more than 25 second lieutenants are already commanding troops. "They are responding magnificently," he added.

Honor and distinguished graduate of the 75th Co., 8th Stu. Bn. (OC) was 2LT Thomas M. Brumby IV. Matthew H. Yardley earned the title of leadership he continued. "It takes a young, intelligent man to make the road from candidate to commission."

BG Irzyk told the new officers, assembled in Marshall Auditorium, "We watch you very closely during the 22 weeks of training."

He said "you will come here as an enlisted man and your attitude changes to that of a candidate and then to that of a commissioned officer. As your attitude changes, so does your responsibility to yourself, your country and your Army."

"You have become leaders now and you will take command of the Army's most important commodity, men. They will work for you, live for you, and in some cases, die for you. As you leave here this morning, you will be joining the world's greatest fraternity, that of an American soldier. Good luck and God speed to you on your new assignment, the general said.

The academic honor and distinguished graduate of the 8th Co., 8th Stu. Bn. (OC) was 2LT Thomas M. Brumby IV. Matthew H. Yardley earned the title of leadership

Services Survey Results 80 Per Cent Say ARC Does OK

American Red Cross Three hundred and forty-six questionnaires from soldiers and dependents were completed and returned as a result of the post-wide survey conducted on services at Fort Benning concerning the American Red-Cross. Eighty percent of these questionnaires indicated satisfaction with the service of the Red Cross.

The many services of Red Cross such as communications, reports, leaves, leave extensions, transfers, discharge and counseling or referral services were not included in the questionnaire.

Little or no mention was made of our related sister service programs of Red Cross such as volunteer services, blood, disaster and safety services extended to the military as well as the civilian communities.

For clarification, our volunteer program consisting of over 300 active volunteers are performing daily functions of a personal and administrative nature as assigned by hospital authorities at Martin Army Hospital and other service sections on the installation.

Our blood program furnishes the blood and blood derivatives required at Martin Army Hospital and veterans hospitals in the region. This involves the collecting, processing and shipping of the volunteer donors' blood.

The major portion of this work is also accomplished by the 1st Army, Denver, Colo., 82040.

mand authority could greatly assist the organization in that interpretation which could alleviate a certain degree of misunderstanding that exists. Such action would enable the organization to provide more extensive and efficient service.

During 1966, The American Red Cross offices at Fort Benning serviced over 21,000 individual cases involving appropriate expenditures of $250,000. These figures do not include the cost of operations in the civilian communities of Columbus and Phenix City. The success of our service program is determined by the devotion and ability of the Red Cross staff at Fort Benning to administer it and the resources available to us. The American Red Cross at Fort Benning pledges to continue to strive for improvement in our services as well as acting upon constructive suggestions submitted by the public to better meet the needs of our military community.

Administration Approves Proposal to Raise SGLI

From Army Times
WASHINGTON — A legislative proposal to permit servicemen to buy from $200 to $20,000 worth of additional service members' Group Life Insurance (SGLI) along with the current $10,000 maximum has won Administration endorsement.

The VA proposal has lingered in the Budget Bureau since last year. It has now been pushed off an Administration legislative recommendations for the new Congress.

In addition, six other proposals designed to close loopholes in the SGLI program have already been forwarded to Capitol Hill for action. They include a proposal to permit cadets at the three service academies to take out coverage.

The present SGLI maximum is $10,000, although the law does permit service personnel to limit SGLI coverage to $5,000 or drop it entirely. Only a few service personnel have elected to stay out of the program, however. More than three million or 90 per cent of those eligible have policies in force.

Under the Administration proposal, the maximum coverage would be raised from $10,000 to $12,000 for every body. Depending on grade and salary, noncoms and officers would be given the option of taking out additional amounts up to $30,000. Details as to the amount and cost of additional coverage to be permitted each grade, above $12,000 were unavailable at press time. It is known, however, that the additional coverage would be offered in lumps of $1,000 each.

The proposal would continue in force the servicemen's option of not taking out any of the insurance or limiting his coverage to $500.

President Johnson told Congress in his annual budget message that he will propose legislation in the near future to "substantially" increase insurance protection for service families.

One of the proposals already sent to Capitol Hill would limit a serviceman from converting SGLI to a permanent commercial insurance.

LOANED TO MUSEUM ... An intricately ornamented bronze cannon, presumed to have been cast by Spanish artisans in the 16th century, is checked against historical documents at Fort Benning's Infantry Museum.

State Veterans Aide Says Benefits Income Tax-Free

ATLANTA — Veterans' benefits are tax-free, in which the serviceman was killed or in the year in which he dies of wounds, disease, or injury sustained in the combat zone; if he entered the combat zone in the year previous to the one in which he was killed, all taxes for that year are forgiven and benefits paid to survivors of veterans are all exempt and need not be reported as income on the Federal tax return," Wheeler said.

Excluded, however, is interest earned by life insurance dividends left on deposit with the Veterans Administration.

Also, excluded from federal taxation are the incomes of military personnel serving in Vietnam or its adjacent waters, after Jan. 1, 1964. Enlisted personnel may exclude from gross income the entire amount of military pay received for this service. Commissioned officers may exclude amounts up to $500 for each month of service.

These exclusions apply during the months the taxpayer serves in the combat zone; during the months he is hospitalized as a result of wounds, disease or injuries incurred in the combat zone.

Another section of the Internal Revenue Code cancels income tax liabilities for servicemen who die as a result of wounds, disease or injury while serving in a combat zone.

Under this section: All Federal income taxes, whether on military pay or not, are forgiven for the year in which the serviceman was killed or in the year in which he dies of wounds, disease, or injury sustained in the combat zone; if he entered the combat zone in the year previous to the one in which he was killed, all taxes for that year are forgiven and benefits paid to survivors of veterans are all exempt and need not be reported as income on the Federal tax return, those taxes are forgiven.

Applications for a tax refund should be filed with the Internal Revenue Service District Office where the tax return was filed.

State income tax on all military pay of enlisted men and up to $2,000 paid commissioned officers serving in a combat area during 1965, is excluded.

OC Was Once Assistant To Pennsylvania Senator

A member of the 61st Company in the Officer Candidate School here once worked as a research assistant for United States Senator Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.)

OC John E. McLaughlin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., completed in formation for topics such as international trade and the war in Vietnam for the senator who served on the international trade and the Senate foreign relations committees.

He was employed while a student at John Hopkins University in a masters degree program on international relations which he completed in 1966.

Some of his experiences in include meeting and talking with persons on the news of San. Robert Kennedy, Democrat of New York and Sen. Everett Dirksen, Republican Senate minority leader.

Concerning his field of interest, McLaughlin did research on U. S. trade with the European Common Market which was a pet project with the senator. One of the candidate's chief educational aims was to study the economic and political integration in European nations. One of his chief duties was handling the senator's correspondence.

McLaughlin's studies brought him into the subject he studied.

He left his job just a few days before moving to Italy for his final semester of study at the Bologna Center for European Studies of John Hopkins University.

He said he found his experiences on the senator's studies to relate closely to the subjects he studied.

'Three Bites of the Apple' Said to Be Hilarious Flick

This new MGM attraction has everything going for it: a topnotch cast headed by David McCallum and costars Irlby's glamorous Sylvia Koscina, Broadway's Tammy Grimes in her screen debut as comedian Harvey Korman's Italian Riviera and other points.

A fascinating plot involving a tourist guide (McCallum) who becomes the victim of a beautiful but scheming adventuress (Koscina) as she makes a killing at the gambling tables, plus magnificent scenic background filmed in Panavision and color, photographed on locations in Rome, Verona, Venice and Portofino.

poise, romance and humor in his story of mild-mannered young Englishman Stanley Thurum, who guides voyagers on a tour of the Italian Riviera and other points.

Among his passengers is the predatory spinster Miss Sparrow (Tammy Grimes) who has marked him for her prize, but who subsequently has all the fury of a woman scorned when Thurum takes her over heels with the cunning Carla.

The machinations of the latter is her attempt to receive Thurum of his $30,000 in the casino winnings, aided by her slick, double-talking ex-husband, Remo (Molugno), the subsequent events in which Thurum discovers he has been duped and pursues the crook up a mountain and even into the car of a ski lift in misty air, the manner in which Miss Sparrow takes her revenge, and the happily solved outcome of the plot make "Three Bites of the Apple" a picture of unremitting entertainment.

Almost against his will, the versatile McCallum writes the wrong interpretation on McCallum's attention, Harvey Korman's impersonation of an unimpeachable drunkard, and the hilarious chicanery of Domenico Modugno, probably the most likeable villain ever introduced to the screen.

When you come away from "Three Bites of the Apple," you will most likely be humming a song from the film, titled "In the Garden—On Jim Brown Farewell Day."

the former Cleveland Browns football star, actor, and writer by the versatile McCallum, with lyrics by Francis Webster. A second part, arrived here from MGM's offices, where he is starring in MGM's "Dark of the Sun" opposite Rod Taylor and Betsy Drake.

Third Time
 During the program, Cleveland Browns' president Art Modell presented Brown with his famed No. 52 star, which was retired from the Browns. This marks only the third time in the Browns' history that a player has been honored. The other two numbers retired by the team were Otto Graham's 14 and Don Fleming's "46."

Another highlight of the farewell day activities was the introduction of a new song, entitled "A Ballad To Jim Brown," which was spontaneous for the occasion and sung by Carla Thomas. All major news media covered the event.

Among the notables who attended Jim Brown Day were U.S. Senator Frank J. Lausche and world heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali (Cassius Clay).

In the Paris movie studios, filming starts at mid-day under the so-called "French hours" system. Consequently, actors usually sleep late and have an early lunch before they face the cameras.

Paulinho Boreal, production manager for the new Carlo Fontana film for MGM, "The 25th Hour," was conscious of this when she made out the call sheet for a scene in which actor Jan Werich, as a Rumanian laborer, mauls a man, eats a hearty meal while prisoner Anthony Quinn is forced to stand by and watch.

The Days Requirements
 Requirements on the day's property list included a large pot of goulash with fresh bread and butter, various pies, pastries and fruit and plenty of wine. To which list Mlle. Boreal added: "It is recommended that Mr. Werich do without

Fort Benning Movie Schedule

SYNOPSIS
KISS THE GIRLS AND MAKE THEM DIE — Undercover agent Michael Conners is assigned to observe industrialist Raf Vallone for several girls with whom Vallone was associated, disappear.

Conners discovers that Vallone has discovered a laser type beam which can sterilize people and that he has referred to it to Red China.

With the aid of British agent Dorothy Provine and her assistant Terry Thornton, Conners discovers the plot and destroys the apparatus and Vallone's laboratory.

HOTEL — In his attempts to take control of the financially failing but still elegant St. Gregory Hotel, business tycoon Kevin McCarthy first stages a poney-chill rights incident and then offers a bribe to general manager Roy Taylor.

Both attempts fail but Taylor does become romantically involved with McCarthy's mistress, Catherine Speaks. Concurrently, hotel guests Michael Rennie and Merle Oberon are victimized by Karl Malden and Richard Conte, who use the hotel as a base of operations for theft and blackmail.

When Rennie is killed in an elevator accident, the police discover and arrest Malden and Conte, but the result is that Melvyn Douglas decides to sell out to a real estate firm, thus ending the St. Gregory. Based on the novel by Arthur Hailey.

SMOKY — After he corral a wild horse (Smoky), Fess Parker is hired by ranch owner Diana Byland. Subsequently Parker trains Smoky into a fine cow pony. Parker's brother, guitar-playing singing cowhand Hoyt Axton, gets a job on the same ranch but is killed by "bad apple." In trying to show-off with Smoky, he is almost killed. Seeking revenge, Hoyt starts beating the horse with a chain and is trampled to death.

Smoky escapes and is picked up by a rodeo man. Parker is drafted into the Army and is unable to pursue the animal.

MSG MAX L. QUICK Sketee Veteran. QUANTICO CHAMP SP4 S. K. Thoele. MAJ T. GILLMORE Trap and Sketee Coach.

Trap and Sketee Team Steps Up Training, Prepares for Stiffer Competition in '67

The U. S. Army Trap and Sketee Team has intensified training in preparation of the 1967 shooting season. The U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit has fielded practically a new team following the loss of top shooters to overseas assignment and civilian life. Five former junior shooters are now trying out for a berth on the team. They are being given a 90-day trial to show shooting potential and competitive spirit. Led by veteran coach and shooter MSG Max Quick, the team has shown improvement. Quick explained that international trap and sketee has caught the fancy of U. S. shooters. The number of competitors has increased steadily which means competition will be tougher. "The Army trap and sketee team has the mission of representing the Army in international competition and civilian life. United States championships," said MAJ Thomas D. Gillmore, chief of the shotgun team. "Also, to promote international shooting among military and civilians and to furnish a nucleus of shooters to compete for positions on United States shoot team." Gillmore continued, "Our team potential is really good. We have depth and several men who can shoot both trap and sketee." Last week the sketee team competed in the Dixie Open at Winter Haven, Fla. and will go to Palm Beach for the Royal Palm contest, while the trap team competes the first week in March here. A tough shooting schedule will carry the teams across the country and ultimately to the world moving target championships in Europe this fall.

Offensive Leader TSB Holds Pace In Loop Tourney

By PVT John Olsen
First half champion TSB kept intact his unbeaten record by easily disposing of his first three opponents at the 90th Artillery. Second place and a game next opponent, the 16th General, behind in the first position.

The 19th Brigade, placed in the upper third of the first half standings, made a fast second half start defeating its first three opponents to keep in a first place tie with TSB.

Winning its opening contest in an 87-86 squeaker from 1st Battalion, CTC, the 96-87 win over the 98th Infantry won its next two games by good margins, 94-86 over 1st Armor and 80-71 over the 90th Artillery.

Leading the league in team offense and second in defense, TSB had little trouble handling the 88th Infantry 95-45. The next two victims in fall to the league powerhouse were the 29th Infantry 73-42, and the 43rd Engineers 85-42.

The 19th Brigade, placed in the upper third of the first half standings, made a fast second half start defeating its first three opponents to keep in a first place tie with TSB.

The Atlanta club will begin twice a day workouts February 15 at Emory University. Opening game for Coach Bill Wosman's team is Sunday April 16 at Balfour, followed by the club's first home date, Saturday, April 22 against Los Angeles.

Champion Pointer Warhoop Dapper

Dan, 19-month-old pointer of SSG O. N. Bennett, took the Derby Championship at the Continental Field (Trail recently). The black and white bird dog, handled by Herman Smith, won the competition without any mishap. The Livingston Plantation in Quitman, Ala. The pointer also placed third in the American Quail Futurity at Carbonate, Ill., earlier in the season.

Members Trophy Match in Phoenix, Ariz., with a 19-11's on the new rifle target. Powell has served as a MAAG advisor to the Vietnamese Army for which he received a Bronze Star for Meritorious Service. A 1966 OCS graduate, Powell has completed the Associate Career Officers Course and has had a tour with the 1st Infantry Division. LTC James E. Lenon Jr., chief of the rifle division, says, "MAJ Powell, a perfect man to head the coaching staff of the hard shooting Army team. He's cool, unshakable, a product of the MTU training program."

The Observer by Larry Mahoney

BY LARRY MAHONEY
The notorious champion is not a Joe Palooka. That Cassius Clay or Muhammad Ali, whichever you choose to call the heavyweight titlist, is quite different from anyone or anything to appear on the American sporting scene has been obvious for some time. He has developed into a heavy, in the movie villain sense of the word.

Yet the sports pages still manage to convey a shocked kind of innocence about the man and his sport. It was evident in the commentary after Clay's eighth successful defense of his title, the methodical mauling of Ernie Terrell in 15 rounds described by various writers as "an exercise in brutality," "a barbarous display of cruelty," "disgusting," "almost heinous," and further.

A new book might well be worthy reading for those of you who find only perplexion and indignation in the fighter who refuses to play Palooka. Its title is "BLACK IS BEST: The Riddle of Cassius Clay." The author is Jack Olsen, a writer and editor on Sports Illustrated.

The heavyweight champion of the world is traditionally a public hero, a man strong and kind, humble and appreciative of his opportunities that boxing has given the less-privileged, and always full of gentle words for the poor fellow he has just brained in the ring.

Olsen's book, according to The New York Times reviewer, attempts to explain why. The author suggests that the intensely hypocritical public-image demands of boxing are simply above Clay and recognizes that his boss basically involves beating people up. A very good fighter by any man's standards, Clay, in his brutality, just doesn't protect the spectator from the bloodlust of the sport like his predecessors did.

FROM OVER in Alabama comes news of considerable football importance. The University of Alabama's provincial football schedules have long been criticized, particularly from north of Kentucky. Thus, the announcement by Coach Paul Bryant that his 'Bama has agreed to inter-sectional games with Southern California, Nebraska and Texas as Christian made major sports news. It has been decades since 'Bama played inter-sectional.

Of course, the Heart of Dixie is notable for doing things slowly, so don't expect to see Bryant's troops in Los Angeles, Fort Worth or Omaha next year. The first of these inter-sectionals is on the calendar for Oct. 26, 1974.

Bennie Marshall of The Birmingham News reports that the Bear expects to be with the Alabamians out west. His contract is good for 17 more years. That's 1984 and the man will be 70 years old.

THE LIST of prospective candidates for the governorship of Mississippi includes a Jerome Dean, known better as Dirty Dean of baseball and television renown.

Old Diz, information has it, is dead serious about joining Ronald Reagan, Lester Maddox and Lurleen Wallace as a chief executive.

Those who have heard his colorful press announcing can appreciate just how formidable the man could be on a Mississippi stamp. Though Diz's never held a public office and isn't exactly an expert on state government, the good citizens of Mississippi might well consider his candidacy.

TSB, 197th Top Smallbore Meet

Presley Kendall, TSB, won the individual rifle and SP4 Kenneth White, 197th Inf, won the pistol title. The matches included individual and team competitions fired at the post small bore range last week. The matches included individual and team competitions.

Karate Ace Training Here To Become Infantry Officer

The candidates of 90th Co., 9th Stu. Bn., TSB, thought OC Otto Vandergroen was just clowning when he came into the mess hall last week with a white karate uniform and a black belt. Their minds were changed quickly, however. The company soon found Vandergroen to be a fourth degree black belt expert.

Vandergroen, who was born in Indonesia, was an early success in karate competition and won his first degree black belt at the age of 17. He joined the Army at 19 and went on to become West Coast champion in 1969 and earn his second degree black belt.

When he served in Korea during 1968-69, he studied Hapkido (a cross between karate and jujitsu) and became the first non-Korean to become a black belt.

Unit Fives Start USATCI League

A company-level basketball league will begin at U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, Saturday according to 2LT Carl Taylor, Special Services officer. Nine teams have submitted entries for competition which will last through April 2. League play will consist of a single round robin schedule. The team with the best record upon completion of league play will be declared the league champion.

Appropriate team awards will be presented to the winner and runner-up teams upon completion of league play. All games will be played on Saturday and Sunday at Kimbro Gym, Sand Hill.

Others qualifying for individual awards were CPT Thomas Gunning, TSB, rifle, second place; CPT Phillip Barnett, CTO rifle, third place; LT Randall Shafter, 197th Inf, Bde., pistol, second place; and PFC Richard Day, 505th Abn. Inf. Bn., pistol, third place.

In the team competition, CTC won the rifle championship and was third with the pistol. The 56th Abn. Inf. Bn. took the pistol title and placed second with the rifle. The 197th Inf. Bde. placed second with pistol and third with the rifle.

After the matches COL George A. Clayton, deputy USAIC Operations, presented awards to those placing first, second and third in each event. Record fire targets of the winners in each event will be forwarded to Third Army. The Army champions will be determined by a comparison of record fire targets submitted by all installations in the Army area.

Sports Car Club Sets Last Meeting Monday

By SSG Snow Wilson
"Chavaga", the Chattanooga Valley Sports Car Club, will hold its final meeting at 8 p.m. Monday night, at the Villa Nova Restaurant. The only active group of sports car enthusiasts in the local area is not quitting, however and will go "big time" on March 6 when they take the SOWEGA (Southwestern Georgia) Region 80 of the Sports Car Club of America.

The SOWEGA regional executive, Jerry Rogers, has called for a special election of new SOWEGA officers to be held during the meeting that will see Chavaga become a part of SCCA.

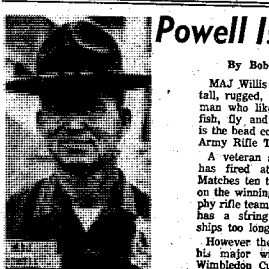

Chavaga, started last summer by a few civilian and military sports car owners, has grown to over 50 members. It has held seven full scale rallies during its short life as an independent club. Its members decided at their last meeting to join the SOWEGA Region of the SCCA in order to take advantage of events held by that organization throughout

Powell Is 'Perfect Man' to Head Rifle Team

By Bob Robinson
MAJ Willis L. Powell is a tall, rugged, outdoor type of man with a head and fish, fly and play golf. He is the head coach of the U.S. Army Rifle Team.

A veteran shooter, Powell has fired at the National Matches ten times, has fired on the winning National Trophy rifle team four times and has a string of championships too long to remember. However the record shows he has never won the Wimbledon Cup in 1960, national running deer championship in 1961-62, and winner of a bronze medal in the running deer event at the 1962 World Championships at Cairo, Egypt.

Blankenship Cops Crown At Lackland

SFC William B. Blankenship of the 3rd Squadron team won a triple crown recently at the International Field Marks - U.S. Matches held at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

The Army team was in preparation of trying to win the triple crown matches in Tampa and Mexico City.

Blankenship won the free pistol match with a 572 while teammates SSG James H. McNally and SFC Robert D. Whitacre fired 584 and 542 respectively for second and third place.

In the rapid fire pistol match it was Blankenship again with a 590 that Creedmore, Donald R. Rupp, USAF, scored.

The center fire match was taken by Blankenship's 597. This was two points above his world mark of 595 fired last July at Weisbaden, Germany.

TSG John A. Ditmore, USAF, and Rupp placed second and third with 592 each.

OCs Undertake Dugout Project For YAC Teams

Under construction here are four baseball dugouts for the Youth Activity Club and supplying labor for the task is the 65th Co., 6th Stu. Bn. (OC) TSB.

LTC Nick J. Nikas, battalion CO, initiated the undertaking within his battalion.

OC William Kuperle is directing candidates Noel Lane, James Mackenzie, James Holmes, Marion E. Jones, Jules Hazen and Richard Omen on the project scheduled for completion in four weeks.

The candidates obtained equipment from post engineers and coordinated with the Youth Activity Club on the design and dimensions of the dugouts.

Two of the dugouts will be on the Don C. Faith Elementary School Field and two on the yet - to - be - named little league field adjacent to Blue Field off First Division Road.

YOUNG PITCHER Ron Schuler, 16-year-old righthanded pitcher who won 21 games and lost five as a high school and American Legion pitcher last year has become the first January draft choice of the Braves to sign a contract.

Righthander Tony Cloning er will be among Braves pitchers reporting to spring training February 15th.

Edges Wigger CPT Wigger Breaks Tie, Wins Silver Dollar Meet

CPT Lonas W. Wigger Jr., Olympic medalist, proved again to be the smallbore shooting world that he is truly a Round-up, held at Winter Haven, Fla., last week-end.

It was nip and tuck right up to the last shot with Wigger and his teammates: CPT Presley Kendall and CPT Martin Gunnarsson, also an Olympic medal winner, finishing almost identical scores.

Wigger's 3199-288 crested Gunnarsson's score which Gunnarsson fired a 2197-289 for third place.

The week before Wigger won the Savagess (Championships in Miami, Fla., with a 2197-289X.

On his way to the Silver Dollar Round-up, Wigger won the following: 40 shots - prone - 100 yds Iron Sights 400-33, 40 Shots - prone - 100 yds - Iron Sights 400-33. Any sight aggregate 1600-142, Dewar Aggregate 800-46 and Iron Sight Aggregate (second place) - 1559-126.

In the Any Sight aggregate, MTU shooters took the first three places - Wigger, 1598-126; Gunnarsson, 1600-142; and CPT Bruce Meredith, 1600-140.

Again, in the Iron Sight aggregate it was MTU all the way, paced by Kendall: 1598-121; Wiggers, 1598-126; and CPT Bruce Meredith, 1598-125 was third.

His two boats, Wayward Wind and Second Wind, with crews of seven each fish out of Panama City all year around in the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean Sea. They use steel nets in fishing for snapper and grouper, but cast nets in shrimp operations.

An average snapper fishing trip takes 25 days. Each boat can bring back 20 tons of fish.

Strickland buys seafood from other boats as well as his own. His fish house, Quality Seafood of Panama City, in turn sells to Fulton Market, a New York exchange.

Fish entrails and shrimp heads are removed with each catch. The seafood is packed in ice and shipped by truck to New York.

PVT Strickland Owns, Operates Fishy Business

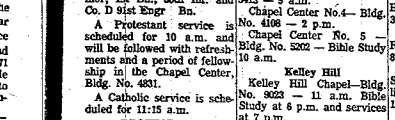

A 21-year-old trainee from Co. B, 5th Bn., 2nd Sd., U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, knows first hand the problems, rewards and headaches of operating his own business.

PVT Danny E. Strickland, Panama City, Fla., owns and manages two fishing boats and operates his own fish house.

He came into the fishing industry quite naturally. His father is a fisherman and Strickland has been involved in the fishing business since childhood.

His two boats, Wayward Wind and Second Wind, with crews of seven each fish out of Panama City all year around in the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean Sea. They use steel nets in fishing for snapper and grouper, but cast nets in shrimp operations.

'Training School' 1st Stop for Replacements in RVN

DI AN, Vietnam — When a new soldier arrives in the 2nd Bde, his first stop after the supply room is the replacement training school.

The fresh troops, with un-tanned skin and clean camouflage helmet covers, are given detailed instructions on weapons, tactics, booby traps, radio procedure and other information about combat in Vietnam.

Near the end of the week the new soldiers are not so green and the training is in the field.

More often than not it is fully utilized because the VC provide realism by planting surprises in the path of the patrols.

One patrol recently was a good example of the effectiveness of the school.

The instructor in front, SSG Anthony Young kept in touch with the student patrol leader, SGT Ervin Wheeler, while SSG Curtis Torry brought up the rear.

As the patrol came to clearings, the men remembered the lessons learned in class and crossed them in the proper fashion.

If they bunched up, Torry would pass the word to spread out. If there was a deviation in the proper direction of march, Young would advise the point man.

"The VC must have known we were coming," said Wheeler. "We were just starting back, by different route of course, and four of five men walked right past a booby-trapped grenade tied to a small tree. When I got to it I almost tripped it. It was starting me right in the face."

Wheeler halted the patrol in the area, Torry gave a replacement training school is giving the newly arrived soldiers a first hand in training.

The company was setting up a perimeter for the night, digging foxholes and placing claymore mines, when a voice rang out, "Look out! Loose water buffalo!"

Like a freight train, the animal stomped past, crushing a hoof down on one of Owensby's ankles, bringing a loud groan of pain from the flattened man.

Owensby, feeling somewhat like a fallen martyr, was taken to the aid station at Phu Loi for a complete examination.

Acting like a combination human fly and stilted walker, troops cross the skeletal remains of a once sturdy bridge.

Obstacle course. The instructor in front, SSG Anthony Young kept in touch with the student patrol leader, SGT Ervin Wheeler, while SSG Curtis Torry brought up the rear.

Meanwhile some Vietnamese farmers had arrived at the scene of the stampede to claim the water buffalo.

Most of the time a water buffalo is a docile animal, but the men of Co. G, 1st Bn, 38th Lt. of the Big Red One found out they can be dangerous.

No soldier had gotten out when 700 pounds of stampeding buffalo charged him from some nearby brush.

Army's Map Service Will Provide EXPO-67 Visitors Moon Scenes

Visitors to EXPO-67 in Montreal, Canada, can see the moon's surface—completing the U. S. Army Map Service, Corps of Engineers. The Army Map Service will erect a 37 x 80-foot replica of the moon's surface which will give sightseers a glimpse of what the first lunar astronaut can expect.

The replica will appear in the U. S. Pavilion's Space Exhibit, organized by the United States Information Agency (USIA), when EXPO-67 opens in April.

The floor-level moonscape was developed from photographs data obtained by the spacecraft, Surveyor 1. Samples of volcanic lava from Sunset Crater National Monument in Arizona will be shipped to the exhibit to provide a highly realistic surface. Scientists say this lava is very similar in color and texture to the coating on the moon.

PFC Harold Lilly, of Headquarters, 2d Ede., a pianist, will provide accompaniment.

The program will consist of American folk songs, camp songs and special sing-alongs featuring special numbers by local soldier talent.

This program is being conducted in conjunction with the Parade of American Music, under the sponsorship of the National Federation of Music. Everyone is invited to participate.

Space Exhibit include a detailed relief map of the visible surface of the moon and a large photograph of the earth taken from behind the moon by Orbiter 1 last August.

The lunar surface portion of the USA exhibit was assigned to the U. S. Army because its mapping agency has been lunar — mapping since 1958. The model, map and panel were all designed and are being constructed at Army Map Service headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is supplying technical advice and furnishing the surveyor 1 photographs used in preparing the model. (ANF)

Aid Sought From State By 11,000

Some 11,000 Georgia veterans have applied for educational benefits under the new GI Bill, Pete Wheeler, director of Veterans Service, said today.

"The enthusiastic response to the bill's educational opportunities was predictable in Georgia, on the basis of the World War II and Korean bills. The percentage of eligible Georgians who received training under past GI Bills was much higher than in other states," Wheeler said.

These 11,000 veterans, all undergoing educational training, will receive approximately 41 million a month in subsistence payments.

The new law also provides VA-guaranteed and direct home loans for those who have served in the armed forces since Feb. 1, 1955. The GI Bill like its predecessor, also provides Veterans Administration hospital and medical care.

There are approximately 100,000 Georgians eligible for the benefits of the new GI Bill, Wheeler said.

Field managers of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service will assist veterans, or their dependents, in obtaining veterans' benefits.

... Calamity Jane was an Army scout and a Pony Express rider as well as an aide to General Miles and Custer.

... The oldest enlistee in World War I was Frederick Gottlieb Mullinger, who, in September 1918, volunteered for service and was accepted although he was more than 67 years of age. He served in the Quartermaster Corps until January 1919, when he was honorably discharged.

... Dr. Mary Walker served as a surgeon in the Civil War—and wore a man's field uniform by special permission of Congress.

... The famous Lincoln Memorial statue in Washington was carved by the six Italian Piccirilli brothers—with American sculptor Daniel Chester French going over their work to finish the details.

... During the war with England in 1812 the United States was busy with two more at the same time: with Algiers, and with the Creek Indians, commanded by the great Tecumseh.

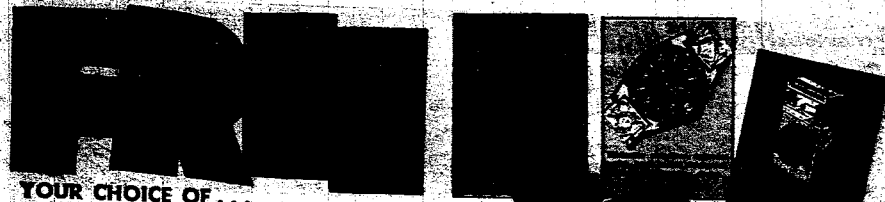

... The shortest standard railroad in the world, with 134 miles of track, was the Governors Island Road, New York, when the area contained Army's Fort Jay and First Army headquarters, but now a Coast Guard district headquarters.

... Ben Franklin believed the half eagle was a Caesarian symbol and wanted the United States to adopt the wild turkey as our national bird.

... In World War I, Sgt. Harry J. Adams, Co. K, 353rd Infantry, captured 374 Germans in a single copy. 1. Bombardment colonel, 18 staff officers, and 355 enlisted men—WITH AN EMPTY GUN!

... The Bon Homme Richard, on September 23, 1779, went down with her colors flying as the Serapis, a British man-of-war that remained afloat, lowered her flag in surrender.

... Sgt. Ruth Farnum was the only American woman soldier of World War I. She gave the signal for the Royal Serbian Army to shell the Bulgarian trenches, and was three times decorated for valor by the king of Serbia.

American FIGHTING HEROES

The Story of one Joe F. Valdez

ON 25 JANUARY 1945, NEAR ROSENKANTZ, FRANCE, PVT. VALDEZ WAS ON OUTPOST DUTY WITH FIVE OTHERS WHEN THE ENEMY COUNTERATTACKED WITH OVERWHELMING STRENGTH. FROM HIS POSITION NEAR SOME WOODS 500 YARDS BEYOND THE AMERICAN LINES HE OBSERVED A HOSTILE TANK ABOUT 75 YARDS AWAY AND RAKED IT WITH AUTOMATIC RIFLE FIRE UNTIL IT WITHDREW.

SOON AFTERWARD HE SAW THREE GERMANS STEALTHILY APPROACHING THROUGH THE WOODS.

SCORNING COVER AS THE ENEMY SOLDIERS OPENED UP WITH HEAVY AUTOMATIC WEAPONS, HE ENGAGED IN A FIRE FIGHT WITH THE ATTACKERS UNTIL HE HAD KILLED ALL THREE.

THE ENEMY QUICKLY LAUNCHED AN ATTACK WITH TWO FULL COMPANIES OF INFANTRYMEN, BLASTING UP AUTOMATIC AND RIFLE FIRE AND BEGINNING AN ENCIRCLING MOVEMENT WHICH FORCED THE PATROL LEADER TO ORDER A WITHDRAWAL.

DESPITE THE TERRIBLE ODDS, PVT. VALDEZ IMMEDIATELY VOLUNTEERED TO COVER THE REAR. AS THE MAN IN THE PATROL PLUNGED THROUGH A HAIL OF BULLETS TOWARD THE AMERICAN LINES, HE FIRED BURST AFTER BURST INTO THE SWARMING ENEMY.

THREE OF HIS COMPANIONS WERE WOUNDED IN THEIR DASH FOR SAFETY, AND HE WAS STRUCK BY A BULLET THAT ENTERED HIS STOMACH AND, PRESSING THROUGH HIS BODY, EMERGED FROM HIS BACK.

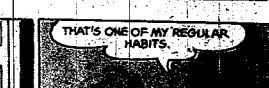

OVERCOMING AGONIZING PAIN, HE RESUMED CONTROL OF HIMSELF AND RESUMED HIS FIRING POSITION, DELIVERING A PROTECTIVE SCREEN OF BULLETS UNTIL ALL OTHERS OF THE PATROL WERE SAFE.

BY FIELD TELEPHONE HE CALLED FOR ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE ON THE GERMANS AND CORRECTED THE RANGE UNTIL HE HAD SWELLED HIS POSITION. FOR 15 MINUTES HE REFUSED TO BE DISLOGGED BY MORE THAN 200 OF THE ENEMY. THEN, SEEING THAT THE BARRAGE HAD BROKEN THE COUNTERATTACK, HE DRAGGED HIMSELF BACK TO HIS OWN LINES. HE DIED LATER AS A RESULT OF HIS WOUNDS.

THROUGH HIS VALIANT, UNREQUITED STAND AND AT THE COST OF HIS OWN LIFE, PVT. JOSE VALDEZ MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR HIS COMPANES TO ESCAPE, AND WAS DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR REPULSING AN ATTACK BY VASTLY SUPERIOR ENEMY FORCES. FOR HIS GALLANTRY HE WAS AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT TIME IT IS? IF I WERE THE SARGE, I'D PUNISH YOU FOR COMING IN SO LATE.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION I HAVE REGULAR HABITS.

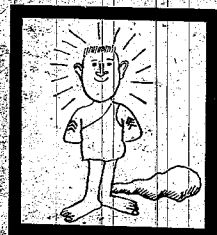

HOW CAN YOU SAY THAT I'VE SEEN YOU COME IN AT ALL HOURS OF THE NIGHT?

THAT'S ONE OF MY REGULAR HABITS.

It's good grooming, guile! At your exchange!

Sport Snorts

A year-round baseball fan reports that he and his buddies have evolved a novel method of choosing all-star teams. Any number can play and plenty of gratifying, rip-roaring arguments are guaranteed.

First, you write a number of common first names on separate slips of paper, fold, and place in a hat. Then each participant draws one name. The idea is to make up a whole team of baseball stars who share that name. If you draw "George," you can start your team with the greatest home run-hitter of all, remembering that was Babe Ruth's first name. Quickly, you add Sinker, Kelly and Scott. Nicknames make it tricky because you might not think of Moose Earnshaw and Whitey Kuroski as Georges.

The person who picks "Bill" will probably be into a big hassle before he gets past first base, where he might choose Bill Terry and Moose Skowron. When he nominates Willie Mays, the others will cry, "Foul!" Bill and Willie are not the same; they will contend.

Sometimes it's wise to set up ground rules. How about "John"? Is "Jackie" allowed in that category? ... should be, or the game gets too tough. Likewise with Chuck and Charley. Any "Bill" should be permitted whether Albert, Alfred, Allen, Alvin or Alviner. Just getting a "win" together this way is a test of baseball savvy. And afterward you have the delightful debate over which name truly produced the best team. No facituffs, please.

A variation is to take an initial from the hat. You then make up your team of players whose last names start with that initial.

If you get "AY" you can have a lot of Alous. "D" provides a set of Dillanages to start with. "K" is for Kosfer and plenty of K's in the lineup.

Our all-weather fan says, "The toughest game of all is to try to put together a team of players all sharing the same last name. Robinson offers a good nucleus with six World Series vets and a rookie outfielder, Bill, who is expected to be the new superstar for the Yankees.

Also in that outfield you have Floyd, traded to Cincinnati during the winter, and Frank, MVP in two leagues, triple crown winner and hero of the World Champion Baltimore Orioles.

From Baltimore, too, you get your third baseman, slick-fielding, clutch-hitting Brooks. There's a Hall-of-Famer at second, the incomparable Jackie. Ed Robinson, the old Cleveland slugger, is at first, and Aaron, one-time Yankee, does the catching. Manager would be Uncle Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn Dodger fame.

How's the thought of a shortstop? ... but an considering Bojangles. At least he'd be entertaining. And for a quick pitcher, how about Jack Robinson who is quicker than you can say?

Five. And the head scout can be Cruse Robinson.

SHORT SNORTS
Let-let is a terrific spectator sport, even without the wadding.

Whatever became of the soft softball?
Boxing is making a mild TV comeback, perhaps because of the low rating of the other situation comedies.

Why do the Humane Society permit winter harness races for hibernating animals? They should protect those dumb horses the better.

A basketball player is a fellow who is sick of hearing, "How's the weather up there?"

Does a girl go with every can of New Improved Rapid Shave?

No, but girls certainly go for the men who use it. They notice how smooth and inviting it leaves a man's face. And no wonder. Rapid Shave has a great new formula which combines a really rich, creamy lather and 17 beard softeners — all working double-time to give those tough G. I. beards the closest, smoothest shaves you've ever seen. Ask for new improved Rapid Shave at your F. I., now in three formulas: Regular, cooling Menthol, and exciting new Lime, the tangy fragrance that makes shaving a tropical breeze.

And try Palmolive After Shave Lotion too ... soothes in seconds, refreshes for hours.

1966 MILITARY OLYMPICS

FOR MANY YEARS THE ARMED FORCES HAVE BEEN THE SOLE SOURCE OF ATHLETES FOR THE MODERN PENTATHLON... CONSISTING OF RIDING, FENCING, SHOOTING, SWIMMING AND RUNNING... EARLY IN SEPT. 1966, A UNITED STATES TEAM OF YOUNG PENTATHLETES FROM FORT SAM HOUSTON, TEXAS, ARRIVED IN WARENDORF, GERMANY, NOT ONLY TO CARRY THEIR NATION'S HOPES IN THESE CISM CHAMPIONSHIPS, BUT ALSO IN FUTURE INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIONS...

IN 1965 U.S. PENTATHLETES TOOK FIRST PLACE IN THE COMPETITIONS HELD IN ROMA. THEY HOSEDOWN TO 7TH PLACE IN 1964 AND FINISHED 5TH IN 1965. NOW, IN THIS ANCIENT GERMAN CITY, AS GUESTS OF THE WEST GERMAN ARMY, THE FINEST PENTATHLETES OF NINE NATIONS PREPARED TO START THE EVENTS THAT WOULD RUN FROM 6 THROUGH 10 SEPTEMBER.

THE OPENING DAYS RIDING COMPETITION ENDED WITH THE AMERICANS IN 6TH PLACE IN THE TEAM STANDINGS...

ON 9 SEPTEMBER, 1ST LT. JAMES H. COOTS WON THE 300-METER SWIM. THIS WAS AN ALL-IMPORTANT VICTORY, FOR THE U.S. TEAM WOULD HAVE HAD LITTLE CHANCE FOR A HIGH FINISH WITHOUT IT...

WHEN THE FINAL DAY OF THE GRUELING FIVE-DAY MEET ENDED, THE AMERICANS' STRONG SHOWING IN THE 4000-METER CROSS COUNTRY RUN, WHICH THEY WON WITH SP/5 ORLIN LARSON BREAKING THE TIME FIRST, WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR SECOND PLACE TEAM FINISH, 256 POINTS BEHIND THE WINNING ITALIAN TEAM...

IN THEIR HIGHEST FINISH SINCE 1963, THE U.S. TEAM WAS 342 POINTS AHEAD OF THIRD-PLACE FRANCE, AND 1,072 POINTS IN FRONT OF THEIR 5TH PLACE GERMAN HOSTS...

MOST IMPORTANT, FROM THE STANDPOINT OF FUTURE INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIONS, WAS THE EXCELLENT SHOWING OF THE NEW, YOUNG U.S. PENTATHLETES. INDIVIDUALLY, MATHESON WAS HIGH FOR THE U.S. WITH 4,840 POINTS, GOOD ENOUGH TO PLACE HIM FOURTH AMONG ALL OF THE 24 COMPETITORS. AN ENCOURAGING SIGN FOR OUR PENTATHLON HOPES IN THE NEXT PAN AMERICAN AND 1968 OLYMPIC GAMES.

Army EM Awarded Freedoms Foundation Top Honor Posthumously

An Army enlisted man killed in action in Vietnam Feb. 1, 1968, has been awarded posthumously the highest award of Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

PCF Hiram D. Strickland, 20-years-old when he died, received the honor for a letter he penned which expressed his premonition of death and his feelings about his country, his job as a soldier, freedom, God and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Strickland, of Graham, N.C., accepted the George Washington Award and a check for $3000 during the foundation's 18th Annual National and School awards ceremony last Wednesday, the 235th birthday anniversary of GEN George Washington.

Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, Freedoms Foundation president, announced the award winners. Included were four enlisted men and an officer assigned at Fort Benning and the time they entered the annual letter writing contest for servicemen and women.

Strickland's letter said: "Dear Folks: 'I'm writing this letter as my last one. You've probably already received word that I'm dead and that the government wishes to express its deepest regret. 'Believe me, I didn't want to die, but I know it was part of my job. I want my country to live for billions and billions of years to come. 'I want it to stand as a light to all people oppressed and guide them to the same freedom we know. If we can stand and fight for Freedom, then I think we have done the job God set down for us. It's up to every American to fight for the freedom we hold so dear. If we don't, the smells of free air could become dark and damp as in a prison cell. 'We won't be able to look at our-sons and daughters, because we know we have failed our God, country, and our future generations. 'I can hold my head high because I fought, whether it be in heaven or hell. Besides, the saying goes, 'One more GI from Vietnam, St. Peter, I've served my time in hell.' 'I fought for Sandy, Nell, Gale (his sisters), Mom and Dad. But when the news and Sandy's kids get old enough, they'll probably hate to fight, too. Tell them to go proudly and without fear of death because it is worth keeping the land free. 'I remember a story from Mr. William (Thomas) Williams, a teacher at Strickland's high school) English classes when I was a freshman that said, 'The cowards die a thousand times, the brave die but once.' 'Don't mourn me, Mother, for I'm happy I died fighting my country's enemies, and I will live forever in people's minds. I've done what I've always dreamed of. Don't mourn me, for I died a soldier of the United States of America. 'God bless you all and take care. I'll be seeing you in heaven. 'Your loving son and brother, 'Hiram'".

The winners from Fort Benning were: PFC Mark L. Kallan, George Washington Honor Medal award. PFC Robert L. Mossey, Honor Certificate award. SSG Antonio Padron, George Washington Honor Medal award. 1LT Michael L. Rogers, SSG and George Washington Honor Medal award. SGT George M. Solmon Jr., SSG and George Washington Honor Medal award. All five won the awards for letters written on the topic, "Defending Freedom Safeguards America."

CG Presents 26 Incentive Awards At Infantry Hall

A proposal to use pre-cut material in repairing T-10 parachute canopies has earned a $175 award for SSG L. C. McCalla, a member of the Services Section here.

The suggestion is expected to save $264 per year in time, material and manhours formerly required to make the repairs.

McCalla received the award from MG Robert J. West, Fort Benning commander, in a ceremony at 9 a.m. yesterday at Infantry Hall.

SSG Bennie N. Crawford, also a member of the Services Section, was given $150 for suggesting an improved routine for checking parachute bags.

Outstanding Ratings

MG West presented outstanding job ratings to Mrs. Martha Nelson and Raymond F. Brown, both of the Operations Office. Mrs. Eleanor R. Chestnut, Weapons Department; Mrs. Edith McCullough, Office of the Director of Instruction; and Mrs. Martha M. Messery, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department.

Also Robert H. Quinn, Engineer Section, and Dock B. Slaughter Jr., Office of the Director of Logistics, were recognized.

Outstanding ratings and salary increases for high quality work went to Edwin Eddy, Department of Nonresident Instruction, $213 p.e.r. year; Mrs. Ollie M. Browning, Martin Army Hospital, and Mrs. Margie H. Tharpe, Company Operations Department, each $176 per year, and (See CG, Page 3)

16th Group Marks Arrival Of New CO With Parade

A former Pentagon staff officer will assume command of one of Fort Benning's new units and Korea, serving both times with the 4th Inf. Div. After Korea, he served as an Artillery instructor specializing in medium weapons at both Fort Sill, Okla., and Sandia Base, N. M.

From 1960 to 1963 he was stationed in Germany with the U. S. Army Europe's Inspector General Division and the 9th Artillery at Bamberg.

Following completion of the Armed Forces Staff College in 1964, he was assigned to the Pentagon.

His newest command, the 16th General Support Group, was formed in the Dominican Republic in 1962.

He is a former nuclear policy staff officer, was plans division, the Pentagon, and succeeds LTC Kenneth R. McGill.

COL Corley began his Army career with five years as an enlisted man. He rose to first sergeant and then received a direct appointment as a second lieutenant.

The Judge Says . . .

Minors often have option to declare contract void

John Minor, 18-years-old, was struck by a truck while crossing the street. Both of his legs were broken as a result of the accident and he was hospitalized for six months.

The truck company admitted that it was responsible for the accident and agreed to pay all hospital bills plus an award of $500. When Minor was released from the hospital he signed a contract which absolved the company from all liability for injuries.

About a year after his release from the hospital, Minor discovered that his leg had not properly healed and required further treatment. When the truck company refused to make additional payments to him, Minor sued them for the cost of additional treatment.

At the trial the company contended that the contract which had been signed by Minor was a defense to the law and absolved them from further liability. At the trial Minor did not deny signing the contract. However, he contended that since he signed the contract releasing the company before he was 21-years-old, it was not binding upon him.

The judge ruled that the contract was voidable and thus not enforceable. Minor recovered damages from the company to pay his additional treatment.

Daily preparation a must to stay physically ready

Science, in many ways, has been a boon to man. Perhaps its most apparent success has been in producing devices designed to reduce our physical labor and save time.

Americans, however, have so vigorously and extensively applied these devices to their everyday life that their physical activity has been alarmingly reduced. The most vigorous activity of many in sedentary jobs is the daily walk to and from the parking lot.

Yet physical fitness, particularly for the soldier, is essential. He, no matter what his assignment, must remain in top condition. Without warning, he may be called upon to tax, not only his mental capabilities, but also his physical strength to the maximum. And, unless his preparation has been daily, that soldier will not be prepared.

The job of keeping in shape is often not an easy one. It requires extra time and initiative. It may mean getting up an hour early to run a mile before breakfast, or working out at a gym during off-duty hours. But the investment of time and energy will bring immediate and long-range benefits.

Regardless of who he is, or where he serves at the moment, every soldier in today's Army must be ready physically to assist in carrying out the Army's mission. He cannot afford to be found wanting. (ANF)

Diplomacy has special meaning to the soldier

Try asking various people what diplomacy means to them and they respond with different definitions.

To a member of the diplomatic corps, it means furthering the national goals and objectives of our country. To the businessman, the art of diplomacy may have an economic basis; to the tourist it means an opportunity to learn, study, and understand.

And to the soldier, this phrase has special application—overseas and at home.

Those stationed overseas keep in mind that they represent the American way of life and act accordingly. They also appreciate the fact that people of other countries are different from Americans.

Thus, our soldiers concern themselves with the rules and regulations that the local population abides by. The soldier's willingness to establish contact with a nation's people creates a favorable impression and promotes good will for our country—the art of diplomacy.

The application of this principle is just as important to the soldier stationed at some post in the United States. He may come from the Western states but find himself on duty in the East where regional customs and traditions may vary somewhat from those he has grown up with.

Once again, thoughtfulness and understanding must be exercised. Courtesy and respect have no boundaries.

Whether at home or overseas, the American soldier is, after all, a citizen. It is the local populace that watches him, judges him, and through him the Army and the United States.

DA Management Program Covers Civilian Employees in Information

The first Army-wide career management program for civilian employees covers operational series: Public information, writing and editing, technical writing and editing, visual information, and audio-visual production.

The new program should significantly improve development and advancement opportunities for information and editorial careers while providing management with a reservoir of qualified individuals to staff all of the essential elements of staff of other civilian career programs: planned intake, systems, training, periodic appraisal and counseling, and mandatory registration and referral.

Surgeon Says

Overbreathing often masks symptoms of many ailments

There are thousands of persons in all walks of life suffering from hyperventilation. This is an ailment as simple as breathing, yet so complex that its symptoms mimic heart failure and many other diseases.

Hyperventilation is defined as overbreathing caused by anxiety and fear and with greater rapidity than is normal, and the trouble lies with each rushing exhalation, the body comes more alkaline. As the overbreathing continues, the blood vessels in the brain become constricted and a decrease in the flow of blood to the brain occurs. Then the patient begins to feel lightheaded and the tingling or numbness appears.

Since the symptoms are frightening, the anxiety is increased. Further overbreathing results in even more severe symptoms, such as dizziness, nausea, and fainting. The patient may feel a neediness, the fear of dying, and the fear of a doctor or of the emergency ward of a hospital.

What the victim of overbreathing ought to do is increase the amount of breath he takes to stop breathing at all momentarily. He ought simply to hold his breath for the body to produce more carbon dioxide which would, in turn, begin to restore the proper balance between acidity and alkalinity. The frightening symptoms would slowly disappear. After this the victim should take slow, shallow breaths for awhile.

Doctors agree on several other ways to overcome hyperventilation symptoms. One is to breathe into a paper bag, rebreathing the carbon dioxide that is being exhaled with each exhalation. Still another is to quieten the anxiety of the patient and let the respiratory center in the brain regain control of the breathing process.

Doctors never take the hyperventilation syndrome lightly. They always make the necessary tests for organic disease, even though overbreathing is immediately evident.

Overbreathing brings unnecessary ailments which we can control by heeding the above precautions and when we become tense and anxious.

196 Hear BG Hollis, Given Bars

The Army officer must prepare himself for war in peacetime because combat cannot be left to the untrained. BG Harris W. Hollis told 196 graduates of an Officer Candidate course here last Friday.

BG Hollis is deputy director of operations Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Washington, D. C.

"You don't get gold bars at a time when the only security is to recognize insecurity," he said.

Referring to the "frontiers of freedom" in Southeast Asia, BG Hollis said the U.S. is in Vietnam "to stop the killing, the terror, and to restore the country to the people."

"We are making great strides," he added, "and the Army, in its professional capacity, has never looked better."

Honor and distinguished by the Army, BG Hollis was 2LT Raymond T. Hammerschmidt.

First Leadership was 2LT Hugh L. Allen. Academic honors went to 2LT Bruce H. White.

ACS's MAJ Sneed Departs Post To Fill Slot at Fort McPherson

FORT BENNING, Ga. — MAJ Shirley Sneed, Army Community Service officer here since May, 1966, has been assigned to Third U. S. Army at Fort McPherson, Ga. She will serve as assistant chief of the Personal Services Division, Deputy Chief of Staff for Perroneel.

Since coming to the post, MAJ Sneed, who is described by her associates as "dynamic and inexhaustible," has handled more than 3,500 cases including aid for dependents of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) and the 18th Infantry Brigade. With the conviction that the morale of the troops is in-

72nd OCs Are Feted At Formal

At the Main Officers Club, the 72nd Co. (OC) TSB, held a senior status review formal.

The decor for the event was done in the theme of a Spanish Valentine's Day party.

Guest of honor was COL. Claude Baker who spoke on the important responsibility of a senior candidate.

COL Baker said, "No matter how change or transition took place when you became a senior candidate. However, your duties and responsibilities have increased ten-fold."

The majority of dates for the candidates were from Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Ala. Dean Owens and his wife escorted 60 Huntingdon students to the hall.

This was a first for the girls. All dressed in full length formal.

After a dinner entertainment consisted of songs by a quartet and a short skit on a candidate's life in OCS featuring members of the company. Dance music was provided by "The Cavaliers."

Earlier in the day, a review was held on Chapel Field. Both the review ceremony and the formal were supported by 54th Co. (OC), TSB.

Under MAJ Sneed's leadership, the Fort Benning Army Community Service has operated efficiently to help solve the problems of all who have needed assistance.

Volunteers and staff members of ACS have pledged themselves to continue the work here by encouraging self-help, stability and service in keeping with the policy, "The Army Takes Care of Its Own."

197th Brigade Wives Hold Fountain Room Luncheon

The ladies of the 197th Infantry Brigade held their February luncheon recently in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers Club.

Mrs. A. J. Pfeifer of the Cluster Terrace beauty salon presented a program on hair styling and a demonstration of hair pieces.

She closed with a question and answer session.

Paper curler trees in pastel shades and magnolia leaves with paper blossoms decorated the tables.

Introduced as a guest of Mrs. Robert E. Hagen was Mrs. Emma McDonald.

Newcomers greeted were Mrs. Emil M. Belinski, Mrs. Niewarner, Mrs. Monte R. Brown, Mrs. Marvin G. Whitley, Mrs. D. L. Watts, Mrs. Kenneth R. Kirby, Mrs. Michael M. Amick and Mrs. Robin Marriot.

Also Mrs. Randall G. Sharfer, Mrs. Charles R. Moore, Mrs. Albert J. Snyder, Mrs. John D. Jackson, Mrs. Roger E. Howse, Mrs. Daniel Quinlan, Mrs. Charles Lumm.

Coffee Greet's Mobility Wives

The officers' wives of the Mobility Department attended a coffee at the home of Mrs. Norman Vaughn last Wednesday. Co-hostesses for the gathering were Mrs. John Walker and Mrs. Charles Carlsson.

The refreshment table was decorated with a centerpiece of pink carnations. Coffee, cake, cheese sticks and assorted fruit pieces were served with coffee and special tea.

Mrs. R. Davenport, a guest, was introduced to the group.

After coffee, the ladies had lunch at a local restaurant.

Dear Community Service, I like to be independent and don't like to ask for help but I have a problem that is too much for me. My daughter is severely handicapped; completely blind and also retarded.

Her father, who is in the Army, and I were divorced quite a few years ago and the court ordered him to pay her $50 a month until she is 21 years-old. She will reach that age in two months and she will still be dependent as a baby; she will always be dependent.

I work but my salary is not large. I really need that $50 to care for my daughter. What can I do?

DEAR BURDENED.
Go to an attorney at once, if convenient the same attorney who represented you in the divorce case and tell him your problem.

He can ask the court to amend the decree, in view of tea.

Dance Is Attended By NCO Couples

Petticoat Portraits Mrs. Ward Stays Eager To Please

By Bonnie Mehner

Once in a while we come upon a phenomenon where one who does not want to analyze people but just wholeheartedly enjoys them and who in turn is appreciated, loved and respected by those around her. Such a person is "Kitty" Ward, the wife of COL Ben Ward, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

Calling herself the "jolly gray giant," Mrs. Ward is the epitome of elegance. A silver-haired woman of height, Mrs. Ward is not embarrassed by her tallness but wears it with the distinctiveness of a successful model.

She is known among her friends and acquaintances for her warmth, her generosity and her hospitality to put people at ease.

Her enjoyment of those around her leads itself to working with various community organizations.

Liaison Chairman

Mrs. Ward is busy with many activities. Presently, she is chairman of the Officers' Wives Club Allied Liaison Committee which welcomes the wives of all allied students attending courses here, to interest them in post activities and to make them feel a part of the wives' group on post.

Mrs. Ward also is this year's vice president of the Fort Benning Council of Protestant Women of the Chapel, an organization she has been active with for over 10 years. In 1969, she was president of the European Council and in that capacity traveled all over Europe. Last year she was president of the Fort Benning Council.

A member of the Army and Community Services emergency committee, Mrs. Ward also is with the auxiliary of Good Will Industries. She was the guest speaker for the Good Will organizational meeting held in April and also wrote a series of articles published in the Bayonet called "Good Willy Says."

However active she may be in community affairs, Mrs. Ward believes that her first duty outside of her immediate family, lies with her "official" family, the ladies of the 1st Brigade, Army Training Center.

Essential to her official duties are the coffeees she holds in her home regularly to welcome the new

Engineers Are Feted at Party

At a recent gathering of the officers and ladies of the 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.) in the Benning Room at the Main Officers' Club several promotions and officer departures were announced by the battalion commander LTC J. L. Ramos.

Promoted from first lieutenant was CPT Myles B. Caggins Jr. Presented with silver bars were 1LT Robert L. Ryser, commanding officer of Co. D, and 1LT Kenneth J. Boehling, Company B's construction officer.

Plaques bearing the battalion crest, a small bulldozer symbol of the mission, and the officer's name were presented to departing LTs Arthur L. Dickerman, Taylor N. Gauthier, Robert L. Hayes and James A. Mann.

Making the presentations were the honored guests of the battalion, COL and Mrs. Charles W. Youngman, USAIC director of logistics, COL and Mrs. Robert L. Easton, USAIC director of personnel, USAIC director of maintenance and MAJ and Mrs. Ronald C. Crowley from the USAIC personnel office.

Morning-side Grad

Graduating from Morningside, she attended Nebraska State Teacher's College and then taught kindergarten. With a yen for more adventurous life, Mrs. Ward joined the American Red Cross in 1944 and was sent to Europe for two years. Then, in 1946, she was transferred to duty in Korea at the port of Inchon where she met and married her husband, then an Army major.

From Horses to Horsepower CWO Entered Army Life As Infantryman in 1931

By PFC John Otero

A battalion maintenance officer describes his 31-year career spanning three wars as one from horses to horsepower.

"We used our feet to get places and horses pulled the supplies," recalled CWO Philip W. Foley of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, 1st Infantry Division, as he recounted his life as an infantryman in 1931.

Like many young men caught in the Great Depression, Foley looked at the Army as a chance for a regular diet and having some spending money besides. He waited three weeks after applying to a board of sergeants. They accepted him.

Infantry Recruit

From that beginning 36 years ago as an infantry recruit from Brooklyn, he has entered the Army, fought three wars and seen Army life change from parade field drill to one of almost unimaginable technical advancement.

"Eating hard tack and beans on maneuvers in the 30's was the common lot of the infantryman," he said. "It could be beyond our dreams to expect three hot meals a day."

"Since horses were the mainstay of transportation, they received special care. Before we were allowed to transport, the animal's stalls had to be spotless and the harness equipment had to shine, remarked Foley.

With the major military buildup in the late 30's and early 40's, soldiers found themselves in a different situation. Instead of tending horses and marching long distances before Foley himself was directing the operation of trucks and bulldozers.

At the close of WWII, Mr. Foley was discharged from the service and spent five years as a civilian before reentering the Army.

He pointed out many changes that had taken place during his separation.

"Men are being fed better and the Army has far greater mobilization," he remembered. "Many illnesses that had plagued troops in WWII were treated quickly."

Mr. Foley received a war

Engineers Are Feted at Party

At a recent gathering of the officers and ladies of the 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.) in the Benning Room at the Main Officers' Club several promotions and officer departures were announced by the battalion commander LTC J. L. Ramos.

Morning-side Grad

Graduating from Morningside, she attended Nebraska State Teacher's College and then taught kindergarten. With a yen for more adventurous life, Mrs. Ward joined the American Red Cross in 1944 and was sent to Europe for two years. Then, in 1946, she was transferred to duty in Korea at the port of Inchon where she met and married her husband, then an Army major.

'Chieu Hoi' Said Path To Freedom

XUAN LOC, Vietnam (APF) — The village resembles any one of hundreds of Vietnamese communities. The men and women of Xuan Loc work in the fields and shops. . . Children help their parents or chase ants around the streets. One young asks a soldier to join him and his companions in a game of volleyball. Others will near a visiting U. S. Army dental officer. Xuan Loc, however, is different from most villages. Each resident was recently a soldier, informer, laborer or food provider for the Viet Cong or the North Vietnamese regulars.

Xuan Loc is a 'Chieu Hoi' (open arms) province center. Its residents have surrendered voluntarily, some as recently as a week ago, to Free World Forces — convinced of the advantages of a free society's way of life.

The Republic of Vietnam government's Chieu Hoi program is providing the people with an opportunity to end their existence under communist tyranny and begin a new life in such centers as Xuan Loc.

These returnees have been granted full pardons. They are separated from prisoners of war, provided with food, housing, clothing, and medical care until they can return to their former communities or are permanently relocated to other villages.

American and other allied forces turn all "Boe Chanh" (returnees) over to the Republic of Vietnam officials and assist in caring for "op-er-arms" citizens. One returnee at Xuan Loc was asked by an American soldier about his experiences as a communist guerrilla. "The Viet Cong told me that foreigners had come to Vietnam to take over the country, and they promised me five plasters and a pound of rice a day if I joined. So I did."

The returnee said he never received any pay or reward during his year with the Viet Cong, and added: "You never get enough to eat."

Lubricants Under Test

To insure that the U. S. Army Arctic Test Center is equipped for all weather conditions, the center is conducting a series of tests on a variety of lubricants. The tests are being conducted by the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command.

The United States Army Arctic Test Center is located at Fort Benning, Ga. The center is conducting a series of tests on a variety of lubricants. The tests are being conducted by the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command.

Five different products are currently under study in the test program. The products are being tested for their ability to perform in extreme cold temperatures. Standard lubricants, reports indicate, have not proved satisfactory in cold weather operations and their use sometimes results in disabled weapons. Oils become stiff, weapons operate sluggishly and rust, moving parts freeze or break.

The tests are being conducted under arctic winter conditions by 12 test officers and soldiers of the environment.

Operates 24-Hours Daily Transient Mess Said One of Best

By SSG John Perkins
It seems traditional that Army mess stewards be picked as rather short, rotund, cigar-smoking sergeants and that mess halls are greasy spoons.
The Lawrence Army Airfield Command's transient mess unit on both coasts.
The mess steward, SFC Emory L. Williams, is a tall, wiry sergeant and the mess hall is a one story wooden building with a highly polished floor and varnished wall paneling.
Light orange ruffled curtains, large checkered tablecloths, imitation flowers and large pictures of mountains, wild life and seashore scenes decorate the mess hall to give it a home-like atmosphere.
Although only an average of 20 men eat regularly at the Transient Mess, dignitaries from incoming and outbound planes, transients and visitors frequently change the amount of food and number of persons served.
"One year, we even fed two Thanksgiving dinners," said Williams. "One we prepared and served the day before Thanksgiving so that one of the local TV stations could film it to show on their Thanksgiving Day program. We even invited a few family members to our 'Pre-Thanksgiving Day feast'."

The dependent schools of Fort Benning provide complete educational services for all resident dependents in the kindergarten through the eighth grade.

Public education is an integral and vital part of the community of Fort Benning as in any other community.

There are seven schools on the reservation providing approximately 150 classrooms and related facilities such as libraries, lunchrooms, auditoriums, health clinics and physical activity areas.

regulations, policies and the child's progress.

This two-way exchange of information—about the child at home as well as at school—is invaluable for his well-rounded development. Needs for additional personal contacts as identified by the parents or teachers will be recognized and conferences scheduled.

More Athletics

Some parents expressed a need for more organized athletic or physical development programs. Organized athletics in elementary programs is not allowed in schools accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

A few respondents felt that provisions for social development were inadequate.

The program for development of social learning in our schools provides a myriad of opportunities for children to develop socially and become good citizens by learning to work well with and respect the opinions of others, understanding and appreciate the United States of America and the high school locations off post.

peoples of all nations.

Clubs have been organized according to special interests or hobbies in the seventh and eighth grades located at Faith School. Organized activities are being scheduled, sponsored by the Teen Club and coordinated by parents.

Transportation

In the area of transportation service, approximately 5 per cent of those responding to the survey were critical of the scheduling which caused their children to miss the school bus occasionally or arrive late at school.

An analysis of the variables in the structure of the transportation schedules will be helpful in promoting an understanding of the difficulties involved in accomplishing precision execution.

Thirty-two buses and two motor vans are required to transport approximately 4000 passengers daily to and from seven different school locations on post having three bell schedules and five different high school locations off post.

Accredited

The post schools have been accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools for several years.

Meeting the specific evaluation criteria for initial accreditation gives status to the school system and assures a continuing quality program as improvement is required for continuing accreditation.

The statistical requirements such as class-pupil ratio, library books and certification of administrative staff and teachers are important but the real heart and core value of accreditation is the fact that plans for improvement and progress reports must be submitted each year.

A school that is not evaluating its own performance and introducing changes accordingly cannot adequately serve the needs of a rapidly changing society.

Appraisal

The recent survey providing parents an opportunity to appraise the schools from a parent's point of view was prepared as a means of assisting school staffs in a study of current status of our schools and served as a point of direction for systematic planning to strengthen weaknesses and to broaden spheres of interest needed for sensitivity and constructive approach to continuing improvement.

A completion of the evaluation of on-post schools revealing that 94 per cent of the respondents classified post schools as either "among the best in their experience" or "compared favorably with other schools their children had attended."

Since the primary purpose of the school is to serve the children by providing an adequate source of learning, the fact that most of the parents felt their children were interested in school and found the work challenging indicates that the school is doing an acceptable job in the fulfillment of its most important function.

Review to Honor 197th's SGM; 32 Years in Army

A brigade review will be staged on Presidential Square at Kelley Hill at 11 a. m. next Tuesday to mark the retirement of SGM Cecil R. Bedford, the 197th Inf. Brigade's top soldier since May, 1963.

Bedford will close out almost 32 years of service which began here in May, 1935, when he enlisted and was assigned to Co. E, 28th Inf.

Twenty-eight years later, in October, 1963, he became sergeant major of the 29th, a position he held until he moved up last year to the brigade's senior noncommissioned officer slot.

Born and educated in Atlanta, Bedford was with the 29th Infantry from enlistment to June, 1941, when he went with the 2nd Arm. Div. on its push through Africa to Berlin.

Later, in May, 1953, again assigned to Fort Benning, he was first sergeant of Co. F, Infantry School Battalion, until 1959, to sergeant major.

Following a tour of duty as sergeant major of 18B, he was assigned the same duty with the 34th Inf. in Korea and returned here in 1962 as senior noncommissioned officer.

Graduates Hear BG J. S. Timothy

BG James S. Timothy, assistant commandant, The Infantry School, was guest speaker when 229 officers and enlisted men were graduated from Military Assistance Training Advisor (MATA) courses at Fort Bragg last week.

The ceremony was held in Kennedy Hall, headquarters of the Center for Special Warfare.

Conducted by the special Warfare School, the three classes began in January. The majority of the students will go directly to Vietnam to serve as advisors. Others will attend a language school at another installation before going to Southeast Asia.

BG Timothy also presented diplomas to the present-

Guide to Good Reading

History Is Discovered With Autobiographies

Are you interested in discovering the history behind a famous person's philosophy of contributions to the world? Then you will enjoy reading the autobiographies available for circulation at the Post Special Services Libraries.

Autobiographies generally expose the underlying reasons or motives for the author's achievements or unusual dedication to a cause.

The following titles are a representative listing of current books:

Cohen, Guelah. WOMAN OF VIOLENCE. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, c1966. Translated from Hebrew to French, and now, to English, this is a statement telling why a gentle woman committed to peace decided to dedicate her life to violence as a means to an end. Buelah Cohen joined the Jewish underground - the Stern Gang - during World War II, to ensure the achievement of a free Palestine.

Guareschi, Giovanni. MY HOME, SWEET HOME. Farrar, Straus, c1966. The author of "The Little World of Dynamite" writes of his own world and transports the reader to the story of his own family.

Hallet, Jean-Pierre. CONGO KITABU. Random, c1966. The diary of an adventurous government agronomist who introduced agriculture to African tribes, gives an account of a series of courageous adventures and descriptions of astounding physical feats such as wrestling a leopard to its death, and driving two-hundred miles to a hospital after losing a hand to dynamite.

Jackson, Mahalia. MOVING UP. Hawthorne, c1968. Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson speaks of her life starting with her early days in New Orleans, her birthplace, her periods of adversity, her religious dedication, her role in the civil rights' movement and her career.

Pontiac announces not one, two, three or four, but five magnificent new Firebirds for every kind of driving.

Now you can choose from five new Firebirds with the same advanced Pontiac styling, but with five entirely different driving personalities. And they all come with simple expanded vinyl interiors, wood grain styled dash, exclusive space-saver collapsible spare, bucket seats and wide-oval tires.

Firebird 400. Coiled under these dual scoops is a 400 cubic inch V-8 that shreds off 325 hp. It's connected to a floor-mounted heavy-duty three-speed. On special suspension with retine wide-oval tires. This could be called the ultimate in grand touring. After this, there isn't any more.

Firebird HO. HO stands for High Output. As a split second behind the wheel will attest to. The Firebird HO boasts a 288-hp V-8 with a four-barrel carburetor, dual exhaust and sport striping. Standard stick is a column-mounted three-speed. Naturally, all Firebird options are available.

Firebird Sprint. Now you don't have to go to Europe for a sophisticated road machine. This is the 216-hp version of our eager Overhead Cam Six. It's mounted on special suspension that practically welds it to the road. (Any road!) With a floor-mounted all-synchro 3-speed.

Firebird. This is our economy Firebird—with the same exciting options and interiors as the more exotic ones. It's Overhead Cam Six squeezes 165 hp from regular for inexpensive fun driving. See them all at your Pontiac dealer's.

USAIB Now Conducting Tests With Lightweight Poncho

A contemporary study to conserve the energy of the combat infantryman stressed the fact that one means of conserving the energy is to reduce the weight of the clothing and equipment he is required to carry.

Development of a lightweight clothing and equipment system was undertaken by the U.S. Army Natick Laboratories (USANLABS). The first component of this system developed in response to the requirement was a lightweight poncho. The U. S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) here, has the mission of planning, conducting, and reporting on service tests to compare the suitability of equipment for Army use.

The first test of the lightweight poncho was completed in March, 1966.

USAIB determined that the first development was unsuitable due to deficiencies in durability. The item was returned to USANLABS for further development.

An improved lightweight poncho arrived at USAIB for test last month. It is made of rip-stop nylon twill covering on the outside and incorporates a total weight reduction of 1 pound 2 ounces.

Forty of the lightweight ponchos are presently being tested by troops of Co. C, 1st Bde., under the supervision of USAIB.

Subsequent tests will be undertaken which submit the lightweight poncho to all the rigors of combat.

NEW PONCHO GETS TRIAL USAIB Supervising Test Of 40 (U.S. Army Photo) OC Fled Red Country To Seek Opportunity

"Eight years ago I was in a Communist country. I had a chance to become an officer in the U. S. Army," says OC John D. Siara, 25, of the 6th Co. (OC), 6th Sig. Bn., TSB, during World War II.

He graduated from high school there under the Communist regime but was denied entrance to college because his mother was an American citizen and his father a former leather factory general manager.

Wanted Education

The inability to continue his education was a primary factor in Siara's decision to act upon a decade-long desire to leave Rumania and settle in America.

That was in 1957. Two years later he and his mother arrived at New York.

Siara states that his reasons for coming to the United States go deeper than a desire to receive more education.

War College to Conduct Annual Seminar in June

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The National War College here will conduct its eighth annual Defense Strategy Seminar this year from June 18-20 for selected officers in the National Guard and Reserve forces of all U.S. military branches.

Some 250 officers are expected to attend the Seminar to study the full range of international political affairs affecting the United States.

The Army's quota of participants is 67 from the National Guard and Reserve plus 10 active duty officers in the grade of colonel.

The Seminar is conducted by the Commandant of the National War College at Fort McNair, under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Authorities from the U.S. Government and academic institutions will address the group on international politics and the objectives of the United States.

In civilian life, the participating officers are leaders in various fields, having in common an active interest in world affairs.

Army National Guard officers can apply for the Seminar through their State Adjutant General, while Army Reserve officers can apply through their Corps Headquarters.

Soldiers Praise Scout Dogs for Valuable Support

Pleiku, Vietnam — "It's like having a silent partner." That's SFC John E. Barr's modest appraisal of one of the scout dogs of the 40th Scout Dog Platoon, presently supporting the 3rd ETC Force, 25th Inf. Div.

The dog platoon, commanded by LT Robert W. Thacker, joined the "Bronco" brigade in September, and since that date has proven invaluable.

Before deploying to Vietnam each handler and dog, all German Shepherds, the most intelligent and best suited canine for this type of work, underwent a 12-week training course, at Fort Benning.

The training included a basic obedience course, practice of long range patrols, outpost procedures and river crossings.

In addition, the dogs and handlers are trained for waterborne and helicopter assaults. As SGT Barr commented, "The dogs are really eager to ride in the choppers."

On one occasion a platoon was on a night ambush position when word came over their radio from PFC David G. Foltner, a dog handler, that his scout dog, Lochvihar, had spotted an approaching group of North Vietnamese soldiers.

Thanks to the early warning of Lochvihar, they managed to kill four enemy soldiers without taking a casualty.

On another occasion, Turk, another scout dog, was working with his handler, SGT Russell L. Castle, while on patrol with the 14th Inf. Artillery crossing a small stream. Turk scrambled up the steep bank and fell into a punji pit.

Activated during WW II, the 40th Scout Dog Platoon was first activated during WW II for use in the Philippines. For outstanding performance in combat, the platoon was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation.

The dog platoon was reactivated during the Korean War and again on May 12, 1966, for use in the Vietnam war.

Since their arrival, the scout dog platoon has been performing very effectively, and the dogs have become real popular with all the Infantry units.

The men of the brigade are aware of their capability and value. Their presence on all search and destroy patrols is a great morale booster.

"Just having a trained dog working in front of a patrol is a great confidence builder," LTC Procter, battalion commander stated.

The VC saying that a dog is a man's best friend will not be disputed by the men of the brigade.

On Chl, Vietnam — All PFC Wafas was "I wanted to do was to help set up an ambush one night during a recent 25th Inf. Div. operation five miles northeast of here. He had little luck, though — everywhere he walked, he found himself stepping on Viet Cong.

Wafas and the rest of his platoon from Co. A of the 27th Inf. Div. were riding sampans down a canal near the Saigon River to find a good location for the night mission. Part way down the canal, the Infantryman spotted a Viet Cong lying on the bank with all but his head under water.

The VC was very much alive and the platoon detained him. With the mission halted, Wafas was asked about the bank to look for reasons.

"I stepped on something while I was walking in the water," said the 21-year-old point man. "When I reached him, I found a handful of hair pulled out under my VC."

"The 'Woolheads' returned seven detainees to the battalion's forward base were riding sampans down camp, all captured by Wafas.

State Veterans Aide Cites Need For Cemetery System Expansion

ATLANTA — New limitations on burial in Arlington National Cemetery again point out the need for expansion of the national cemetery system, Pete Wheeler, director, Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said here last week.

Speaking before veterans of the famed Rainbow Division at their annual reunion at the Baltimore Hotel, Wheeler said that Congressional action on improving the cemetery system did not get out of a Congressional committee last year.

Previously any wartime veteran who was honorably discharged was eligible for burial in Arlington Cemetery, GEN Douglas McArthur pointed out the need for expansion of the national cemetery system, Pete Wheeler, director, Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said here last week.

The Department of the Army, which has jurisdiction over most national cemeteries, has announced plans for expanding a few of them, Wheeler said.

"Practically every state needs more national cemetery space," Wheeler told those who have defended this nation's freedom," Wheeler said.

"In our own state, the Marietta National Cemetery is being filled at such a rate that in one or two more years there will be no more space. We have proposed that some of the land owned by the U. S. Department of the Interior in Cobb County be turned over to the Department of the Army to be used for the expansion of this beautiful cemetery," Wheeler said.

Letter Home Eases Fears of Families of Trainees

By SP5 Heary Halpern
 A letter to the family of every trainee starting basic combat training in COL Basil H. Ward's 1st Brigade of the United States Army Training Center, Infantry, is part of the routine in the brigade today. "Parents, or the soldier's wife, receive the letter from Chaplain (MAJ) Emil Dinkel telling them that he and his staff are available for information or help of any sort which a chaplain can best provide. The letters are received at home generally before the trainee finishes his first week of training. Chaplain Dinkel said, "We urge the family to write us if there is anything we can do to assist them, their son or husband. Within our brigade, we are equipped to solve most of the problems of a new soldier is likely to have."
 Agencies
 "Further, we are in a position to refer those problems which we cannot solve to the agencies or authorities that can," the chaplain said. The letters originated last July when the brigade's command section expressed its thoughts by telling Chaplain Dinkel, "What we need is a letter of a proper nature, sent to the parents or wife of a trainee giving them the opportunity to seek needed help. Also, from our point of view, we might intercept a few problems that may be changed in the wrong direction. What we want is to offer these families someone to contact."
 Chaplain Dinkel and his assistants Chaplains (CPT) Rolin C. Hill and (CPT) Angelo J. Kiteley, set out to compose the type of letter that would show families the brigade's ever present concern for their soldier-son.
 Test Unit
 One experimental command or LTC Todd S. March's companies served as a test unit to gauge response, if any, to the letter.
 Chaplain Dinkel said, "The response at first was heavy. But, of course, it leveled off as the men became adjusted and the problems got sorted out and solved."

 "An interesting result of this letter is the multitude of long distance phone calls I get as a result of parents having someone's name at Fort Benning they can shelter at or ease something goes

VA in Vietnam

Two Veterans Administration (VA) representatives are in the Republic of Vietnam to conduct counseling on VA benefits for U. S. Army personnel being processed for return to Stateside for separation. The program is now on an experimental basis until April 30. If successful, it will be permanently established with rotation of VA personnel every 90 to 120 days.
 Chaplain Dinkel said, "The wrong," he said. "For instance, if a son has come home from training on an unauthorized leave of absence (AWOL), and the parents don't know what to do, they will call me up," he continued.

 Purpose Served
 The staff study showed that the letter serves a real purpose in giving the parents, or the wife, a contact — a confidential one — so that they don't have to write the man's unit commander.
 "Some of them are inclined to trust us right away and say, 'help me,'" he said. "Well now, it may be none of my business, really, as far as a professional field goes; but I can either advise him what to do or get them into the right channels," the chaplain said.
 Most of the replies, however, simply say "Thank You" for the opportunity to have somebody to write in case of trouble, according to the chaplain.
 Other Stations
 Will chaplains at other duty stations (where the trainees go at the completion of BCT) welcome letters mailed as a result of the parents of Fort Benning's trainees being encouraged to write the chaplain?
 Chaplain Dinkel said, "By all means. However, some

AMS-Aero Service Set to Map Portions of Mekong River Basin

Acting on behalf of the Agency for International Development (AID), officials of the Army Map Service (AMS) have signed a contract with the PalMong, Sanbor, and Aero Service, a division of Toulon Sea.
 The contract arrangement is the latest step in the U. S. support of the United Nations-Mekong Committee project for development in Southeast Asia.
 The committee, comprising representatives from Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam, requested U. S. assistance in developing a water resource program which gives high priority to investigations of three Mekong River main stream projects in Thailand, Sanbor, and Aero Service, a division of Toulon Sea.
 The aerial photography and topographic mapping to be obtained under the AMS-Aero Service contract will provide basic data for carrying out the feasibility and project planning studies.
 Preliminary study on the eight-year program was completed in June, 1965. The second phase, an advanced reconnaissance study is presently underway. The final phase will be undertaken only if the current investigation indicates a reasonable promise of economic feasibility.

In-Grade Hikes Said OK While in Temporary Job

When an employee is promoted to a temporary position that pays more than his regular job, is he entitled to within-grade increases in the temporary job?
 The Comptroller General and the Civil Service Commission say yes.
 And when the employee returns to his regular job, can he be counted the time spent in a temporary, higher grade as his waiting time for the next in-grade increase in his regular job? Again yes, the commission says.
 This is true despite the fact that the employee earns within-grade increases in his regular position to which he is temporarily promoted.
 For more details, see 30 Comp. Gen. 52.

The film Doctor Zhivago, (dine Chaplin), which evokes the whole course of Russia in the past 50 years, opens at Theater No. 1 tomorrow.

The picture stars Academy Award winner Julie Christie as Lara, Omar Sharif as Yuri Zhivago, and a huge international cast headed by Gertrude Chaplin, Tom Courtenay, Alex Guinness, Siobhan McKenna, Ralph Richardson, Rod Stuger and Rita Tushingham.

Filmed in Panavision and Metrocolor, it chronicles the events of what is considered one of the most important happenings of this century, the Russian revolution, and tells the dramatic story of people who were caught in the whirlwind of war and civil strife.

Raised according to the standards of the old Russian aristocracy, Yuri Zhivago looks forward to a life of medicine, which he will share with his wife Tonya (Gertrude Chaplin).

In spite of his wealthy circumstances, he cannot help being sympathetic toward those whose destitution serves as a breeding ground for revolution. One of these is Pasha (Tom Courtenay), an active revolutionist engaged to Lara.

The outbreak of WW I separates Zhivago from his family to the Urals where once more the madly six weeks of additional exterior photography.

Based on the International best-seller by Graham Greene, "The Comedians" promises to be one of the most important motion pictures of the year. The drama is being filmed in Panavision and Technicolor and was written for the screen by the noted author.

HOLLYWOOD - Warner Bros. will distribute Boulting Brothers' new motion picture production, "The Family Way," under an agreement announced by Benj. Kohnson, president of Warner Bros., and John and Roy Boulting, who produced and directed the British film which is the current rage of the United Kingdom.

Starring a grown-up Hayley Mills in her first married role, "The Family Way" is the story of newlyweds whose marriage gets a slow start.

After a whirlwind courtship they race off to sea in the U. S. station on the moon, the honeymooners are waylaid by a Russian cosmonaut, Luciana Anna Soblova (Anita Ekberg), who has had a split with Igor (Dietrich) at the Russian weather station.

Connie is shocked to hear that she is married but follows, bringing a jug of instant vodka to toast the American couple. They all get roaring drunk.

Through a nasty Anna gets Igor to marry her on TV (Dietrich) at the Russian weather station.

On Target Quickly Mortarmen Demonstrate Firing Without FDC Aid

By SSG Snow Wilson

Doing without must be important because once a week the Infantry School's mortar committee devotes an entire day to just that. They do without a fire direction center, better known in the Army as an FDC, and getting 30mm mortar rounds on target quickly without the FDC is the technique taught. Called "Technique of fire without a fire direction center," the methods have already been combat tested in Vietnam.

Mortar instructors such as SSG Robert L. Howell and 1LT Charles Vernon are making sure Officer Candidates and young officers know how to use it before leaving Fort Benning.

In Vietnam, Vernon, who took a mortar platoon to Vietnam with the 1st Cav. Div., is one of the principal instructors and Howell, one of the committee's enlisted instructors.

Designed for use by smallward observer can locate unit commanders, when an FDC is impractical, the technique is best used when a single mortar squad is attached to a rifle platoon for the combat patrol, on a combat outpost line, in helicopter operations or when an ambush is laid.

A single mortar squad can start firing quickly, and accurately, without the usual computations necessary when using an FDC. The main disadvantage, mortarmen complain, is the exposure of the crew to the enemy's direct fire.

(Normally mortar positions are hidden behind hills and are given some protection.)

Methods Taught

"We teach direct lay and indirect alignment methods," said Howell, who joined the Army seven years ago at Fort Benning since last June. Howell, who has been at Fort Benning since last June, pointed out that no computations are necessary if the for-

10 Original Articles Slated In March Issue of Journal

F.T. LEAVENWORTH, senior scientist at George Washington University, discusses "The Skills of Leadership." He writes that given the requisite skills, style or combination of styles may be useful, derived from the individual commander and the problem and the situation.

In one of the cover features, "From the Battlefield," retired LTC William M. Hartness describes the three major elements of the Communist insurgent organization—the party core, more civil organization, and the military forces.

He feels that a true and lasting victory over a Communist-dominated insurgency involves bringing about the collapse of the organization, not the infliction of casualties.

U.S.-Panama Act To Preserve Fort Four Centuries Old

On the isthmus of Panama, the U. S. Army Forces Southern Command is sponsoring a project to preserve a 400-year-old abandoned fort slowly being covered over by jungle vegetation.

Through the joint U.S.-Panama civil action project, Boy Scouts and other volunteer workers in the area have already cleared a large amount of jungle growth covering Fort San Lorenzo, which guarded the Caribbean entry to a principal Spanish treasure route across the isthmus in the 16th century.

For their rehabilitation work so far, the Panamanian and Canal Zone Scouts were awarded shoulder patches by the Southern Command and local Boy Scout officials. Restoration of the San Lorenzo continues, and Army officials hope that the project will result in additional archeological data about the area.

senior scientist at George Washington University, discusses "The Skills of Leadership." He writes that given the requisite skills, style or combination of styles may be useful, derived from the individual commander and the problem and the situation.

In the third front cover feature, "The Communist Insurgent Organization," Charles S. Stevenson, civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army, reports that the total strength of the forces of these 27 African nations is about 300,000. Stevenson goes on to say that the small armed forces have been quite successful in decreasing Communist activity in their part of the world and that St. Cyr, Sandhurst and Ft. Leavenworth have undoubtedly been important factors in the success of the officers of these armed forces.

Other articles in the March edition are "The Professional Automaton" by retired Army COL Anthony L. Wormuth; "Armed Development in the Weimar Republic" by Army MAJ Raymond E. Bell; "The Economic Movement and the Military" by Army Chaplain LTC William G. Devanny.

Also "R&D for Counterinsurgency in the Middle East" by Army LTC Kirby LaFollette; "Flexibility in the Fish" by Ernest F. Miller; "MAPCAT (Military All-Purpose Container and Transporter)" by Army COL Joseph D. Hughes; and "SIG" by Army COL Emmett R. Arnold.

Announced as the Military Review award article for January 1967 is "Inner Leadership" by Anthony Harrigan.

The MILITARY REVIEW is published monthly and is the official journal of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College.

Some Reservists Face Active Duty Call

New Book Cites History Of U.S. Army Logistics

The logistical experience of the United States Army from its birth through the period of the Korean War is told in the latest volume of the ARMY HISTORICAL SERIES, The Sinses of War.

Although not part of the course, true "field expedients" are demonstrated to wind up the day. With Daly holding and aiming the tube without a tripod or sight, Wertz drops the rounds in. Student eggs are soon shattered when targets start disappearing.

Occasionally the mortar committee demonstrates their empty artillery shell containers buried in the ground.

Great Dispersion

"They are not very accurate but dispersion is great," laughed one instructor who described the devices as ideal for a not so bright crewman, or a lot of ammunition and a few extra 31 mm mortar tubes.

Designed for defensive work, the shell containers are placed in the ground pointing in the general direction of the enemy, and without the base plate, they are placed inside the correct elevation and deflection are set and the containers are set firmly.

A single man can then cover a large area with tubes by sliding the containers into the containers when an enemy attacks, and dropping the rounds as fast as possible.

Two OCs Aiming At '68 Olympics

By Arthur Dunn

Two officer candidates from 94th Co. (OC), TSB are hoping to compete in the upcoming Pan-American Games and possibly the 1968 Olympics.

Joseph Stager, named the best inter-collegiate cyclist in biology, Linscomb broke the school broad jump record in the 30-Mile Iris Festival in Columbia, S. C., April 2.

Ronald Linscomb is in the process of applying for a position in the Army track team and hopes to compete at the All Services Track Meet June 14-16 at Quantico, Va., "if I can get into shape in time."

Impressive Record

The long jump is Linscomb's specialty and his credentials are impressive. As a senior at North Texas State, he set the Missouri Valley Conference record with a jump of 25 feet 3/4 inches in the conference meet at Denton, Texas. This record still stands.

RON LINSCOMB Olympic Hopeful

This effort was the senior Texas captures several firsts in dual and open meets. Included among these hauls were meet records at the Dallas Indoor and Fort Worth Recreational and winning efforts in the West Texas Relays, Border Olympics and Gulf Coast Federation.

At the Labbock Invitational, Linscomb finished second to Florence Robinson, the New Mexico star, who received the best jump of the 1965 NCAA season, 25 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

The ever-smiling young man is anxious to compete for the Army. "I understand the coaches are good and I'm confident I can jump 25 feet," he says.

This is not an unrealistic goal for him. At the Fort Worth Recreational (where he broke a 32-year-old meet record), Linscomb jumped 25 feet, 9 1/2 inches, but could not keep his balance when he landed.

Couples who have competed against Linscomb have expressed their confidence in him. Several have written recommendations to Special Services.

The Observer

—by Larry Mahoney—

A certain sign of Spring's approach is the southward shift of datelines on the sports pages. Small cities in the sunshine belts of Florida, California and Arizona become centers of national attention. It is the baseball life of Spring, and a torrent of articles and photographs from places like Sarasota and Casa Grande, and Vero Beach and Palm Springs is now flooding north to where the real diamond devotees still contend with ice and snow.

At Fort Benning it is easy to appreciate photographs like the one out of St. Petersburg showing a growing group of St. Louis Cardinals engaged in deep knee bends. Many of us have recently been through eight weeks of it (spring training is just seven), and we wore baseball caps, too.

Anticipation is often better than the actual thing, and this may explain why baseball people get so worked up over spring training. Before the pennant dash begins April 10, even the best of the 20 major league teams entertain frag fantasies. By early summer, it's usually over for all but a handful.

A baseball man I'm not, but if a prognostication on the outcome of 1967's season is in order for a sports column this time of year, I'll pass on what the experts are saying.

Wide-open is the word for the National League, with Pittsburgh and San Francisco generally seen out front of a strong seven. The chief competition for the Bucs and the Giants should come from the Dodgers, despite Koufax's retirement. The Braves and the Reds, the Cardinals and the Phillies should be capable of mounting determined drives for the top.

A repeat performance by Baltimore is what most factors indicate, the biggest of these being a fallow named Frank Robinson. The Twins could wreck things for the Orioles, however, and the White Sox, the Tigers and maybe even the Indians are not to be overlooked. Neither will the Yankees, shaken after a plunge to a 106-pipe finish. Losers are not mentioned (remember the Mets) and the Yankee rehabilitation efforts will be interesting to watch. No miracles expected, however.

THE 10-TEAM NATIONAL Professional Soccer League, still in the throes of birth, is receiving remarkable support from the press. The Atlanta Constitution flew its sports chief, Purman Bisher, to London for a look at the game's English apex. His reports were enthusiastic, and, to me, refreshing after a steady diet of football, baseball and basketball.

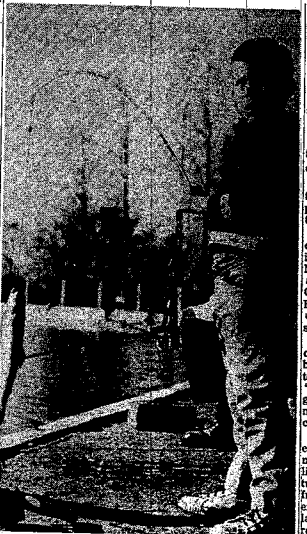

Atlanta is among the American cities where interest in soccer appears to be blossoming. The Georgia capital's Chiefs have signed an international coach with a roster reading like this: seven Englishmen, four Zambians, two Welshmen, two Jamaicans, a Ghanaian, a Swede, an Irishman, a Bulgarian-born Israeli and whatever you call a fellow from Trinidad.

WHEN THE SUPER NATIONAL Football League, the union of the two professional conferences, arrives in 1970, a fourth southern city may be represented.

Birmingham, the Alabama steel city with a population nearing 800,000, may be in there with the Falcons of Atlanta, the Dolphins of Miami and the Saints of New Orleans.

The Birmingham News reports that Cincinnati and Birmingham are regarded by American Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle as the choicest spots for the next franchise.

Certainly there are few big cities so football conscious as B'Ham, but almost all the loyalities seem to go toward the college level of the game. There is strong interest in a professional team among a group of Birmingham financiers, however, and people who like college football shouldn't be difficult to win over to the men who play for money.

YOUNG ANGLER

Seven-year-old Leon Rosendahl gets ready to test his catch during a recent fishing spree at Fort Benning's Russ Pool. The swimming facility, closed to swimmers and stocked with rainbow trout, was outlined by over 100 young anglers trying their hand on opening day earlier this month. The pool is now open daily for trout fishing to all members of the Post Fish and Game Association. (Photo by SSG Snow Wilson)

Yankee Player With ATC Unit

Rather than firing fast orling with the Yankees in Sepcru balls for the New York Times, 1964, Yankees, PVT Duke A. During the 1963 and 1966 Shuckellford of Atlanta is receiving remarkable support from the press. The Atlanta Constitution flew its sports chief, Purman Bisher, to London for a look at the game's English apex. His reports were enthusiastic, and, to me, refreshing after a steady diet of football, baseball and basketball.

OC Found Rodeo Life Challenging, Exciting

The challenge of competition, the excitement of travel, and the opportunities for building friendships were the three most appealing aspects of rodeo life as OC Riley V. Boothe experienced it in the two years immediately preceding his entrance into the service.

Boothe, 21, of Snyder, Tex., competed extensively in junior and amateur rodeos in North Central Texas in 1963 and 1964. Now with the 68th Co., 8th Stu. Bn. (OC), TSB, Boothe at one time entertained thought of turning professional.

"It's a good deal of financial backing would have been required and I wanted to get married," Boothe says. "Right now I'm intent upon gaining my commission and making the Army my career."

Boothe grew up in a western environment, one which made his interest in rodeo life seem almost second-nature. Many relatives and friends owned ranches and encouragement was seldom lacking. Boothe tried various rodeo activities before concentrating on two of the most difficult ones — bull-riding and barrel racing.

"Hitting yourself against a 1300-pound bull was a tremendous challenge," Boothe comments. "You'd tie a rope around his chest, right behind the front legs, wrap it around your hands, dig your feet in and then hold on for the longest eight seconds of your life."

Second only to the challenge of the sport was the general atmosphere of competition, for a rodeo in Texas always evokes an aura of excitement.

Boothe always traveled with three or four others, good friends, yet fellow competitors, in order to help defray expenses. It was this aspect of the sport which became especially significant to him.

Olympic Champion Finds Life Isn't All Down Hill

By PFC Jerry Boone

A young soldier here has learned that life is not all down hill, as he trades the Olympic slopes of Austria for the sandy ridges of the Officer Candidate School course.

Candidate Tom Elliott joined the Army in June, after 20 years of skiing, highlighted by placing highest on the American skiing team at the 1964 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria.

He spent the past five winters skiing in the United States and Europe, competing in more than 50 events. In 1964, he competed in the 1964 Olympics in the 15, 30, and 50 kilometer cross country races and in the team two years, while attending Fort Lewis College, he won the NCAA Cross Country Skiing Award.

He was also selected to retrace the Finlandia Cup in 1964 and 1965. It honors cross country skiing excellence in the U.S.

"I'd like to go on the snow as soon as I can to start training for the '68 Olympics. To train for the cross country events I usually ski from 80 to 125 miles a week," he said.

25 and Glenn Hamilton posting 23.

Ribb's Jerry Shipp, former Oklahoma ace, was high for the game with 40. Teammate Herbert Barkside scored 32, while 15 and Columbus game standout, Lawton Garrio was third for the Bibb squad with 14.

CAR Course Students Using Sport Of 'Flickerball' to Stay in Shape

By SSG Snow Wilson

Coaches at your backboard backboards worn out? The Infantry School has found a use for them. It's called "Flickerball."

Some of the combat conditioning committee's instructors however, claim it should be titled "argue ball."

It's played with a football, has eight men on a team, and the rules are the rules of basketball, hockey and football.

"That's where the argument is," says SSG Paul S. Goglietta of the Combat Conditioning Committee.

The curious at Fort Benning, mystified by a bunch of boards with holes in them stuck up recently on sight-seeing field, can get the answer by stopping by during

After a half time lead of 48-45, the Fort Benning All Stars increased the pace and routed the Bibb City quintet of the Columbus Industrial League 105-94 last Sunday at Bryant Well's Field House.

This was the second meeting of the two teams in as many weeks. Bibb City taking the first contest in a 88-88 squeaker.

High scorer for the All Stars was William Jackson, 22, with 26 points followed by Alton Williams with 20 and Glenn Hamilton posting 23.

Post Clips Bibb City, Now Even

Putting the ball through the hole is worth three points and hitting the board itself scores one.

Although the Combat Conditioning Committee doesn't admit it, Fort Benning's new sport was evidently caused by the overly competitive spirit of students attending the Infantry Officer Career Course.

Football, as played by the officers, became a true contact sport. Most of the students are fresh from Vietnam and the games often evolve into hand to hand combat. Basketball is ruled out from a lack of facilities, it is hard to dribble a ball in mud and hockey was not even considered.

"After what we saw them do to football," commented

300 Attend Swim Meet Last Week

By SSG Johnny Perkins
Nearly 300 kids, representing nine teams from Georgia and Alabama, attended the 2nd Annual Invitational Swim Meet for the Georgia District Indoor Age Group Championships sponsored by the Youth Activities Club at Briant Wells Field House here Saturday.

Rows of chairs lined two sides of the indoor pool permitting most of the people to sit while cheering for their favorite swimmers in each heat.

The meet got under way at 9:30 a.m. and lasted until nearly 1:30 p.m. when the swimmers broke for lunch and a rest period. The meet continued at 4 p.m. when the DeKalb Dynamites and the day-long indoor swimming meet ended when L.T. James M. Croushore Jr., the custodian of the Youth Activities Club, presented the winning team trophy to the boys swimming team, the DeKalb Dynamites from Atlanta with 76 points, 13 and 14—DeKalb Dynamites girls team for their 215 points.

Hq. Halted In Opening ATC Game

Co. D, 10th Bn., 3rd Bde, kicked off the U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, basketball season Sunday night by thumping Hq. Det., 2nd Bde., 40-28.

Bob Watkins paced a second half victory surge by netting 17 points on eight field goals and one charity toss.

The Delta Dynamite barged into an early lead, but the 2nd Brigade squad fought back to knif the score at halftime. They managed to remain within range until late in the third quarter when Delta cranked up a 30-19 lead behind Watkins' marksmanship and the winners coasted to victory.

Fullscale action will resume in the league at Kimbro Gym in Sand Hill Saturday and Sunday with eight contests on tap.

Co. B, 3rd Bn., tangles with Co. E, 3rd Bn., Saturday at 2 p.m.; Co. C, 3rd Bn., meets Co. D, 10th Bn., at 3 p.m.; Hq. Det., 2nd Bde., battles Co. E, 8th Bn., at 6 p.m.; and Co. A, 3rd Bn., plays Reception Station in the field at 7 p.m.

Skarpness Top Individual MTU Outranks AF, Navy In Running Boar Matches

By Bob Robinson
The best running boar shooter in the U. S. Army and Air Force together with two novices from the Navy competed last weekend in a tournament that produced some amazingly high scores.

In the team match, the MTU shooters scored the boar for a 658 to beat the Air Force teams 591.

Team members were SSG Edmond Moeller-172, SSG Norman Skarpness-163, SSG John Kingeter-161 and SSG Lloyd Crow-159. Both Moeller and Kingeter were members of the U. S. shooting team that won a Silver Medal in the world championships at Wiesbaden, Germany last year.

In that match the United States team was outscored by USSR's 637. "Since that time," Fred Kellner, director of International teams at the MTU said, "the MTU team has exceeded the Russians in every competition, running boar for the first time, were interested in the fundamentals of the event with the idea of developing a similar program in the Navy.

Event to Honor USMA Founders

The annual West Point Founders' Day dinner to commemorate the 16th anniversary of the founding of the U. S. Military Academy will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 4 at the Main Officers Open Mess.

The dinner is sponsored by the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus. Uniform for the affair will be dress blue with bow tie blue mess, or tuxedo.

The principal speaker will be MG Donald V. Bennett, commandant of the academy, on attendance of the academy.

COL Robert E. Baden, commanding officer of the Training School, Fort Benning, will act as master of ceremonies.

COL Baden is chairman of this year's dinner committee. MAJ Dean A. Longbottom, SS, 2nd Training Squadron, USATCI, is in charge of the entertainments and decorations.

The shares will be sold only in conjunction with the purchase of Savings Bonds. Under the plan, one Freedom Share may be purchased for each Series E bond purchased which has an equal or higher value.

In other words, an individual purchasing a $20 Series E bond under the payroll deduction plan may purchase either a $25 or a $50 Freedom Share.

A limitation of $150 in Freedom Share purchases per annum has been imposed for each individual.

The Freedom Shares will be available for purchase for a period of two years or the duration of the war in Vietnam, whichever is longer.

CPT Carney died in Vietnam June 15, 1966.

Mrs. Carney had previously received a Bronze Star Medal with "V" device awarded to her husband for heroic action on Mar. 1, 1966, and an Air Medal for more than 100 missions he flew between Sept. 18, 1965, and March 5, 1966.

U.S. Plans New Bond On May 1

A new type of Savings Bonds called "Freedom Shares" will be introduced by the Federal government May 1.

Available only to those participating in the payroll savings plan for the purchase of Series E Savings Bonds, Freedom Shares will bear denominations of $25, $50, $75 and $100 and will be sold at purchase prices of $20.25, $40.20, $60.75 and $81.

The Freedom Shares will mature in 4 1/2 years at an annual rate of 4.74 per cent. The shares will be sold only in conjunction with the purchase of Savings Bonds. Under the plan, one Freedom Share may be purchased for each Series E bond purchased which has an equal or higher value.

In other words, an individual purchasing a $20 Series E bond under the payroll deduction plan may purchase either a $25 or a $50 Freedom Share.

A limitation of $150 in Freedom Share purchases per annum has been imposed for each individual.

Talmadge Is Set For AUSA Talk

Local chapter officials of the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) received word this week that Sen. Herman Talmadge, governor of Georgia from 1948 to 1955, has accepted an invitation to speak here March 27 at the chapter's annual spring dinner meeting.

R. L. Hinson, president of the Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning chapter, said that complete details would be announced later but that because of the large membership, the meeting will have to be restricted to members only.

Wounded Americans Rescued SP4 Awarded DFC Here

SP4 David C. Adams was commanding officer of the 10th Aviation Group, made distinguished Flying Cross for the presentation at the 57th Avn. Bn. headquarters.

Adams distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous action July 15, 1966, while serving as an aerial gunner on a fire support mission.

His aircraft, upon completion of a mission, volunteered to pick up wounded American soldiers sighted in an area heavily infested with Viet Cong forces.

Throughout the approach and during the time the aircraft was in the pickup zone, Adams was voluntarily exposed himself to intense hostile fire while placing machinegun fire on the Vietcong positions.

After rescuing three wounded men, he again placed accurate fire on the VC positions as the helicopter departed the area.

Adams was assigned to the 80th Avn. Det. while serving in Vietnam. He was an aerial gunner on one of a group of armed Chinooks known as "Guns A Go Go."

RN Group to Meet At MAH on Monday

The Fort Benning Registered Nurses Association will meet at 9:30 a.m. next Monday in the second floor conference room at Martin Army Hospital.

Guest speaker will be Miss Essie Nugent, chief nurse at the regional blood center, American Red Cross, in Atlanta. She will discuss the blood program and give instruction in techniques of venipuncture.

All registered nurses in the Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning area are invited.

For further information about the association, telephone Mrs. Alan Nauman, 54-3460, or Mrs. Carl Groth, 89-8419.

Award Presented CPT Posthumously

A young widow and her three small children were presented a Purple Heart here recently in a posthumous award ceremony held to honor CPT Thomas E. Carney.

Mrs. Carney, Thomas Jr., Timothy Allen, 5, and Larry Lynn, 4 of 76 Lafayette Drive, Columbus were presented the decoration by COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, CPT.

CPT Carney died in Vietnam June 15, 1966.

Mrs. Carney had previously received a Bronze Star Medal with "V" device awarded to her husband for heroic action on Mar. 1, 1966, and an Air Medal for more than 100 missions he flew between Sept. 18, 1965, and March 5, 1966.

Exhibit Open On Airborne At Museum

An exhibit displaying the history and activities of the 82nd Airborne Division was unveiled at the Infantry Museum here Monday.

Draped with a parachute emblem of the 82nd, the display was officially presented by LTC Hans F. Orum, commandant of the 2nd Bn., 505th Airborne Pz, 82nd Airborne Div., presently at Fort Benning on temporary duty.

The exhibit was accepted by COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander, on behalf of Fort Benning commander, MG Robert H. York.

The entrance to the museum was flanked by two honor guard members of the 82nd in battle dress. COL Sherrard and Drumer were welcomed by COL T. E. Thiele, director of personnel.

157 Receive Commissions As Officers

The shadow of nuclear disaster has had drastic impact on man's concept of warfare. COL. William E. Smith told 157 graduates of an officer candidates course here last Monday.

COL. Smith is director of instruction at The Infantry School, where the new second lieutenants, members of the 82nd Co., 8th Student Bn., completed a 23-week training program leading to their commissions.

"The war in Vietnam is war not between states but within states," COL. Smith emphasized. "A new kind of war, it is total but inconclusive, a war for the minds of men."

"The best we can do is maintain our security in an insecure world," he said. "I don't think so. Thank why I want to be locked up."

Manager: "You're 30 minutes late. Don't you know what time we start work here?"

New office boy: "No, sir. They're always working when I get here."

Wife (showing husband an expensive fur coat): "One really can't help but feel sorry for the poor thing that was skinned for this."

Husband: "I appreciate your sympathy."

STRICTLY FRESH

A drunk staggered into the police station and confessed that he had pushed his wife out of the window of a ten-story building.

"Did you kill her?" asked the desk sergeant.

"I don't think so. Thank why I want to be locked up."

Manager: "You're 30 minutes late. Don't you know what time we start work here?"

New office boy: "No, sir. They're always working when I get here."

The Judge Says...

Insurable interest needed before a policy is issued

In England, when the practice of insuring a man's life was in its youth, the usual public clientele began a divination of the possibility of speculating upon how much longer a public figure would have to live.

Whenever the newspapers would announce that a popular personage was in bad health, a series of wagers would be placed as to how long this person would live. These wagers grew in popularity and in size.

Some speculators would take this rather seriously, and after placing a heavy wager, would retain the services of the underworld, which somehow would precipitate the death of the insured at the specified time. Consequently, the speculator would reap the reward of the "insurance."

Practices Abolished The antipathy passing of noted figures, as well as of secure persons, did not go without attention, so the courts and Parliament announced that these practices were against public policy as well as safety and should be abolished.

These statements have been woven into the texture of our law over the years. Thus, before a life insurance policy can be valid, the party taking out the insurance must have an insurable interest in the life of the party insured.

This insurable interest must be existing at the time the contract is entered into, regardless of whether it exists later or not.

For instance, a husband insures the life of his wife, making himself the beneficiary, and later the marriage ends in divorce. This policy would still be valid, though the two subsequently become estranged.

Insurance upon tangible property, on the other hand, to be valid, requires an insurable interest at the time of the loss. The latter are contracts of indemnity, i.e., the restoration of the value of the thing lost. A

THE MAN WITH A RIFLE

Men may argue forever on what wins their wars, And walter in cons and tricks, And seek for their answers at history's doors, But the man with the rifle knows.

He must stand on the ground on his own two feet, If it's won he's there; if he's not, it's defeat. That's his test, when the fighting is done.

When he carries the fight, it's not with a roar Of armored wings spitting death, It's creep and crawl on the earthen floor, But down and holding his breath.

Saving his strength for the last low rush, Grenade throw and bayonet thrust; And the whispered prayer, before he goes in, Of a man who does what he must.

And when he's attacked, he can't zoom away, When the shells fill the world with their sound, He stays where he is, looses his spade, And digs his defense in the ground.

That ground isn't ours till he's there in the flesh, Not a gadget or bomb but a man, He's the answer to theories which start afresh, With each peace since war began.

So let the wild circle of argument rage On what wins, as war comes and goes, Many new theories may hold the stage, But the man with the rifle knows.

Surgeon Says

Acne most common problem dealt with by dermatologist

The most common cause for consulting a dermatologist in any dermatology clinic in the country is acne. The large number of medical prescriptions for "teen-age skin problems," in the drug store shelves is evidence that those who seek professional attention are only a small portion of the total number of people afflicted with this condition.

At one time or another, almost all adolescents will develop a few acne lesions. One recent medical study showed that about one-third of all young men and women between 12 and 20 still have some active acne.

Overactive Glands This condition, which affects so many people, is the result of overactive sebaceous glands of the skin. This overactivity is due to hormones produced by the male and female endocrine glands that begin functioning at puberty.

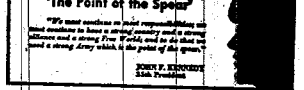

The hair canals, into which the oil glands open, often become plugged and the oily material accumulates in them. This forms the familiar blackhead inflammation around the plugs and infection by the patients who continue to have trouble despite these measures should seek an appointment with a dermatologist. All treatment for acne aims for control rather than cure. Acne does not cure completely with time, as the oil glands become less sensitive to stimulation, by very undesirable other effects on the general health.

Therefore, it is important to treat acne during its active phase, understanding that a spontaneous disappearance of this condition will eventually occur in almost all patients.

How much are you learning from the area in which you are stationed? No matter where you are stationed, you can broaden your education. There are sights to see, people to meet, and, possibly, a new language to speak.

Whether in this country or overseas, almost every area has points of scenic or historical interest to visit which can make your tour of duty more enjoyable.

People of the area to which you are assigned can help you gain greater understanding of the area, culture and customs. As America's ambassadors in uniform, getting to know and understand people of a foreign country will not only make your tour of duty more interesting, but will help our nation as well.

If you are stationed stateside, there are unlimited activities to occupy your off-duty time. Most areas have museums, universities, concerts, sporting events and stage productions that furnish entertainment year round.

With few exceptions, servicemen have more opportunity to travel and visit new places than any other segment of our population. Millions of people spend billions of dollars each year to travel to the far corners of our own country and the world, squeezing into two or three weeks' vacation many of the sights and activities we take for granted or ignore.

Get the most from your time in the Armed Forces. Take full advantage of every opportunity you have to see and learn about our own country and the rest of the world. (AFMFB)

Minority Group Employment

CSC Cites Rise Over Past Year

The Civil Service Commission's report on the employment of Negroes in 1966, based on a study of minority groups in the Federal civilian work force, showed that total employment in 1966 increased by 1.5 percent over 1965. The study also showed that the number of Negroes in the middle and upper salary ranges increased by 1.5 percent over 1965.

Highlights of the report: Minority group employees reported in the current year: 422,574 or 18 percent of the total work force included in the report. There was a continuation as well as at higher levels.

Name, Rank and...Er!

From Army Times

WASHINGTON - The Secretary of the Army (JAMES V. HANCOCK) is on his way to inspect the payroll operation.

Defense has ruled that beginning July 1 all new men in the service will be issued Social Security numbers in the future.

And from that date on the Social Security Administration and the Internal Revenue Service. For this reason, Defense comptroller officials have reasoned there is no need for a dual system of numbers.

Men now in service will continue to use their serial numbers, at least for a while, but eventually all will be issued Social Security numbers in the future.

The change came about as a result of the so-called "one-man" agreement of the Army and the Joint Unions.

In 1966, Negroes comprised 108,600 or 9.7 percent of total employment last year. The so-called white-collar occupations reported, as compared to 108,700 or 9.5 percent of total General Schedule employees in 1965.

In GS grades 5 through 8, Negroes totaled 21,208 or 10.1 percent compared to 20,025 or 9.6 percent in 1965. At GS grades 9 through 11, the number was 9,642 or 3.8 percent of those reported in 1965 as compared to 9,128 or 3.4 percent of the total in 1965.

At the highest GS grades, 12 through 16, the number of Negroes was 3,283 or 1.6 percent of those reported, compared to 2,815 or 1.3 percent of the total in 1965.

Negroes in the Postal Field Service increased by 2,422 positions, from 15,7 to 15,3 percent of the work force.

Other groups of American Indian, Spanish-American and Oriental groups in selected States included in the study are also being compared as follows:

Spanish-Americans comprised 10.2 percent of the work force reported in the southwestern States were the percentage was 8.2 percent of the total in 1965.

American Indians comprised 3.2 percent of the identified work force in the seven selected States where the percentage was 2.5 percent of total employment last year. Oriental Americans comprised 3.89 persons, or 2.8 percent, a slight loss, in the three selected States where they were reported in 1965.

Two Receive Recognition

Miss Betty A. Langford and LTC George C. Handgrove (USA Ret.), two civil service employees of the Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency (CDCAA), were commended for high quality performance of duty at a recent ceremony here.

Miss Langford was cited for exceptional knowledge of the many facets of operations within the Infantry Agency and the ability to perform in an administrative position of high responsibility as the secretary in the office of the agency's commanding officer.

Handgrove was cited for outstanding ability in the manner in which he recognized and supervised the operations and administration of the Combat Material Program. He received a quality award of $250 with his citation.

Dentists at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oklahoma City practically dropped their jaws when they discovered dentures a patient made himself from furnace cement, liquid solder and wood screws.

The VA said this happened during a checkup on a 78-year-old veteran who told them he had been wearing the plates for 25 years.

What's more, the patient told them he had made another pair with a billiard ball by sawing it in half and chopping the inside out to fit his mouth.

The billiard plates were

TEACHERS MODEL FOR ATLANTA BALL. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cox Set for Centennial

Post Teachers Preview Costumes To Be Worn at Centennial Formal

By Ida Love Evans
 The clocks were rolled back 100 years at the dependent schools here last Thursday when the Fort Benning Education Association (FBEA) saw a preview of costumes some of their members will wear March 16 at the Centennial Educational Association. By Ida Love Evans
 At the Centennial Ball in Atlanta, the former "Teacher of the Year," Mrs. Sarah Shaw, 17 years service in the dependent Schools system. Others included Miss Ham, 16 years; Mrs. Mary Sherritt, 14; Miss Martha Hoskins, 14; Herbert Jones, Max Spurlin, W. A. S. on, Mrs. Brakonecke, Mrs. Southwood, and Miss Ann Spencer, all 11 years; Mrs. Sara Lee, Miss Mildred Johnston, Mrs. Lou Ella Williamson, Miss O'Brian and Mrs. Carter, all 12 years; Mrs. Martha Harding and Rupert of service awards to 19 Nannally, 11 years, Miss Reanna Dean and Mrs. O'Hern, 10 years.

Made from authentic patterns of the 1860s, the costumes were worn by Pearl Brakonecke, Miss Benjie Booth, Mrs. Evelyn Southwood, Mrs. Nan Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cox and Mrs. Mildred Carter; Miss Colson O'Brian, and George Coggins.

The fashion show was staged during the 17th anniversary meeting of the Fort Benning Education Association. Mrs. Carter, centennial chairman, presided at the meeting.

The show was narrated by Bill Dunagan to a piano accompaniment by Emilip Watson.

Aiskii, "A Proud Past and an Unlimited Future," by Grace Kanney, GEA's director of professional services, was presented by Mrs. Anna Gundersman, Miss Lynn Power and Mrs. Southwood.

Mrs. Carter presented mementos of the anniversary to Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, Fort Benning's first and present superintendent of schools; PBEA's only life-time NEA member.

Mrs. York Guest at Tea Staged by NCO Wives

Mrs. Robert H. York, wife of the post commander, was the guest of honor at a tea given by the NCO Wives Club last week at the 7-8-9 Club. Mrs. Gene Ridner, club president, presented Mrs. York with the club's honorary membership card number one and a silver engraved card tray.

Other honored guests present were Mrs. David Sierard, Mrs. John Leksan and Mrs. Elmore Swenson.

Also attending was a former member of the club, Mrs. William Craig, wife of the Third Army sergeant major.

The table was centered by a large arrangement of red and white flowers in a silver and crystal centerpiece. Flanking the flowers were red candles in silver candelabras.

Members of the club who assisted with pointing were Mrs. W. A. Callahan, Mrs. Henry Gris, Mrs. H. J. Hand, Mrs. Robert Lamb and Mrs. Raymond Field.

Exhibits depicting club activities, including the model for Atlanta Ball, were displayed.

By JANE DANIELS
 Mrs. John F. Whitley, wife of the Post Sergeant Major, is a warm and vibrant person whose personality is reflected in her home. She welcomes everyone with her charming manner and is a person one truly enjoys being with.

Warm-toned paneling, the first crackling in the stone den fireplace, the warm rose tones in the living and dining rooms, and the small gingerbread or perhaps pop-pie are the things one remembers about her home.

The Whitley's home is an old house across from Columbus College. They chose it out of their desire to make it into the home that they had planned, out of their pride in handwork, and because of the spaciousness of its rooms and of the grounds. Since they bought it 15 years ago, they have had time to completely remake the house.

Each time they were stationed at Fort Benning, they repainted it by tearing out walls, partitioning and paneling. They did all the work. Gradually it's become their friendly, inviting home.

Mrs. Whitley really can feel at home in Columbus. She was born in Maulrie, Ga., but came to Columbus where her husband has been sheriff for 13 years in 1942.

She attended a business school here although she only learned "business signs," and met her husband here after he came home from the South Pacific.

They married Dec. 23, 1944. Their only daughter, Brenda, was born in Columbus as was their son Frank, a student at Georgia Elementary School here.

MRS. JOHN WHITLEY Post SGM's Wife

After three years in Germany at Erlangen and Nurnberg, they returned to Benning. Probably no other couple could feel more at home at Fort Benning.

In Japan they lived in a Japanese home in a small village. Mrs. Whitley says, "We got to know the people and how they lived, in a way that would have been impossible living on the post." She said they loved to watch the Japanese and sat for hours observing them, fascinated by their customs, friendliness and charm. They grew close to a Japanese girl, Saiko, who took them to other small villages and introduced them to the Japanese people.

In Germany, the Whitleys again decided to get closer to the countryside. They took their first camping trip, an extended trip to Italy, Austria, and Switzerland.

Of their many off-filled experiences in Germany, Mrs. Whitley recalls that the most memorable ones came with the house they rented, heated only by a coal stove. They moved in just before Christmas.

The family couldn't bear the thought of no baked Christmas "goodies," so she first baked a Christmas cake on the coal stove, and then a ham with all the trimmings. Mrs. Whitley says, still amazed, "I never thought the old stove would get hot enough to cook anything, much less ham and cake."

Mrs. Whitley lives by her motto, "Part of being happy is giving of yourself to others." She works with the committees of the Army

She works with the March of Dimes, is parliamentary for the NCO Wives Club, and holds monthly coffee with the other sergeants' major wives. Their activities include helping to fill the Army Community Service's food freezer bank and collecting items for the Hospitality House.

Mrs. Whitley, in her final remarks to a visitor in her home, says, "It is wonderful to live in a country where families can be with their husbands and fathers, even if you have to cook on a coal stove." The visitor, in turn, replies, "It is wonderful to have the opportunity to meet such a lovely lady in such a marvelous family."

Contest Highlight At Club Breakfast

The Fort Benning NCO Club celebrated George Washington's birthday last week with a "Crazy Contest" getting a breakfast at the 7-4 Club.

Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick won the "most original" category with a design fashion set in the shape of a birthday cake decorated in red, white and blue in honor of the first president. The hat was also selected "most appropriate" for the day.

The "prettiest" hat was worn by Mrs. Dennis Reaston. It was a straw design draped with fruit.

Taking the "funniest" category was Mrs. Roger Beatty whose hat was a stuffed toy dog. She acted out a short skit to show how she made the hat.

A small label decoration made of a blue paper accented with peppermint candy represented cherries was presented to all who attended. Hostesses for the breakfast, Mrs. Larry Alderman and Mrs. Robert Mosko, prepared the decorations.

Silver trays were presented to Mrs. Robert Smith and Mrs. Robert Harding who are departing soon.

SGM Bob L. Williams Fills Slot With 197th Brigade

SGM Bob L. Williams has been named the ranking non-commissioned officer of the 197th Infantry Brigade. Williams succeeded SGM Cecil R. Bedford as brigadier sergeant major when Bedford retired February 28. Williams, 39, was born in Beckley, Va., and attended Wilson High School there before joining the Army in 1966. One of his first assignments in the Army was Fort Benning's Airborne school, where he trained from August to October in 1966. He returned to Fort Benning five years later as a first sergeant in the 506th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. A master parachutist, Williams has spent a major portion of his 21-year military career with airborne units. From November, 1964, to November, 1966, he was assigned to the 188th Parachute Infantry in Japan. On his return to the U.S., he went to the 506th Airborne Infantry Regiment at Fort Bragg. From July, 1966, to August, 1967, Williams was first sergeant of the 302d Airborne Battle Group, 101st Airborne Div. at Fort Campbell, Ky. The next five years found him overseas again - this time with the 8th Inf. Div. in Germany, where he was first sergeant of Co. D, 50th Airborne Battle Group from August, 1961, to August, 1964. Williams was sergeant major of 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 509th Airborne from August, 1964, to April, 1966. The sergeant major began his third tour at Fort Benning last April as NCOE in the 11th Bn., 2nd Training Bde., at the Army Training Center.

Men Here Respond To Mother's Plea For Blood's Ploa

A number of soldiers here came to the aid of a Phenix City family recently with donations of blood to replenish the supply used for a young child victim. SFC James E. Dixon of the Student Brigade and SFC Eldridge E. Ship, 10th Aviation Group, neighbors of 16-year-old Blanchard Davis, rushed for volunteers within their units following an appeal from the boy's mother, Mrs. Peggy Davis, Route 1, Phenix City. Officer candidates and members of the 10th Aviation Group provided the needed blood. The youth was struck by an auto on the way home from St. Francis School. He was admitted to St. Francis Hospital.

Exams Held For USMA Applicants

Academic, medical and physical aptitude examinations for candidates for admission to the U.S. Military Academy are being held here March 14.

The examinations will determine qualifications of candidates for admission with the class scheduled in July of this year.

A board of officers, headed by COL David C. Sherrard, deputy post commander, is conducting the examinations.

Identical examinations are being held simultaneously at 36 other Army, Navy and Air Force installations in the U.S. and overseas.

Participants are those duly nominated candidates who have been nominated from U.S. troops in Germany, England, Korea, Japan and Alaska.

The Curley Money band is a local group.

While in the Columbus area, Cousin Jody will appear with Sonny James, Ray Pillow, Lorene Mann and others in a show scheduled for tomorrow at the Columbus auditorium.

COL Sherrard said the local examining board does not have authority to issue nominations or to process applications for a nomination.

Combat Volunteers

The Army's Vietnam volunteer program has been both active and productive during the past year.

Since the plan was initiated July 1, 1964, 6000 officers and about 50,000 enlisted men have submitted their volunteer applications for duty in Vietnam.

In 1966, the Army assigned more than 40,000 officers and men who had volunteered for Vietnam. (ANP)

Services Survey Results

Army Medical Services Are Said Satisfactory, Professionally OK

An analysis of the 1330 questionnaires returned to Martin Army Hospital in the recent adequacy of services survey disclosed an overall acceptance and satisfaction with medical service at Fort Benning.

All phases of inpatient or hospitalization care were found to be highly satisfactory. Particularly satisfactory was the professional and competent treatment provided.

Many suggestions made during the survey have been evaluated and considered for implementation at Martin Army Hospital. As a result, these practices will continue, with other eligible personnel provided medical support on a "facility available" basis.

Another of the most frequently mentioned items in the survey concerned the waiting time experienced by outpatients. The staff of Martin Army Hospital has long recognized this problem area and has devoted much time and effort in improving this situation.

However, improvement in this area also requires the understanding and cooperation of personnel using the outpatient clinic.

In other improvement areas, Martin Army Hospital recently unrolled its outpatient clinic by improving existing facilities and constructing additional facilities. Additional personnel were also required to staff the renovated clinic.

This improvement will allow the outpatient clinic to provide much more extensive eye care to dependent personnel at Fort Benning as well as more efficient troop handling.

One item which was frequently mentioned was the two ways in which this assistance and cooperation may be offered.

The first of these is to utilize the emergency room only in truly emergency situations. The medical officers assigned to the emergency room are usually busy caring for true emergency patients.

As a result, they cannot act immediately to examine and treat nonemergency patients. Various clinics in the hospital are provided for this latter type of care.

The second area of assistance concerns utilization of the appointment system provided for in these clinics. This system allows an orderly flow of patients into the clinic and provides more time to treat each patient.

Family Welcome Center Assists USATCI Visitors

By Lee LaCombe

The couple stood in the doorway, thoroughly bewildered, then, hesitatingly, entered the one-story frame building.

A moment later they were approached by a soldier and as he spoke the two smiled and began talking animatedly.

This scene and others like it are repeated hundreds of times every week at the family welcome center in Sand Hill, operated by the U.S. Army Training Center, 1st Infantry.

Families Helped

"Our job is to help relatives and friends locate the soldier they want to see," says SSG Irwin D. White, one of three men who man the center.

A weekend at the center shows how much White understated the task.

The tide of visitors begins on Friday, rises to a peak Saturday, and tapers off Sunday morning and then slowly ebbs Sunday afternoon and evening.

Travel Far

The visitors come from as far away as Canada and Massachusetts. The soldiers trainee they want to see might still be at the reception station, graduating from basic combat training or occasionally not even at Fort Benning yet.

"We have them sign in," SSG Saunders Strayhorn, non-commissioned officer in charge of the family welcome center, explained. "On a sign-in sheet the family indicates their name, where they are from, number in the party and the name of the trainee they wish to see."

With the brief formalities over the center crew swings into smooth action.

Soldiers Located

A telephone call is often all that is needed to locate the soldier at his unit and obtain permission for the family to visit.

White added, "Only once in the seven months that I have been here have we been unable to locate a man. The only thing we can figure is that the man was still in an induction station somewhere."

The situation of parents or relatives arriving at Fort Benning before a man does is not too uncommon.

"We get a couple every weekend," White says.

Efforts Appreciated

The efforts of the Training Center are appreciated. Not once since the family welcome center was opened in November, 1965, has the command received a derogatory letter or uncomplimentary comments from parents who have been served by it.

Indicative of the appreciation of the visitors is a letter received from the parents of one new soldier taking training some months ago in the States.

The trainee's father wrote from Waycross, Ga., "I wish to commend you on the courteous and helpful assistance given us by LT Van Oosten (MSG) Chadwick (who staffed the center) (at that time) and the men in the family welcome center."

Visitors Assisted

Not only do the center personnel help the families locate the men they want to see but often become involved in assisting the visitors to obtain quarters in nearby hotels and furnishing information about location of places to eat, churches and places to see while at Fort Benning.

An average of 200 families now find their way to the welcome center each week seeking assistance.

The center stays open from 1:10 p.m. Mondays through Thursday; 8 a.m. - midnight Fridays and Saturdays and from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sundays, with at least two members of the three-man staff constantly on duty. They are assisted by two trainees each weekend.

"We have seen nearly 28,000 people from 13,000 families since we opened in '65," White said. "And we find many of them coming back because they are so confident that the men they want to see are here for basic combat training."

Since the Training Center has trained nearly 75,000 men since its activation in 1952, it can be seen that more than one out of every 10 trainees has a family member visit him while he is at Fort Benning.

Looking out the front door of the center as he awaited his weekend in Ft. Benning, White said, "I think every trainee's family has arrived for the weekend at least once in the last 12 months. It is ready to help them."

28 Years in Food Service

Veteran Mess Steward Ascribes Morale to Efficiency, Good Food

By PFC John Olsen

"If you have an efficient mess hall and you feed your troops well, you'll have high morale in the unit," says MSG Willie A. Clendenon, mess steward for the 39th Consolidated Mess.

After serving as a club manager and mess steward for various units at Fort Benning for the past 12 years, Clendenon is leaving the post later this month for assignment at Fort Stewart, Ga.

A 28-year veteran, Clendenon has always kept the same policy, "The last man in line should get the same quality of food as the first."

However, Clendenon says that at certain times the task is difficult.

While with the 68th Infantry in Europe during WW II, Clendenon cooked many meals on the move with makeshift equipment. "I usually managed to give the front line troops at least one hot meal a day," he recalled.

Since coming to Fort Benning, Clendenon has achieved an impressive record in both mess hall operation and community service.

Among his military awards are a half dozen bronze medals, the Best Mess of the Year award for 1958, and the Army Commendation Medal, bestowed upon him by LT Van Oosten over his 28 years as a mess steward.

Clendenon's appreciation for military and civilian agencies he has aided.

Among his community services have been the setting up and operation of emergency kitchen facilities during the Columbus Food two years ago and assisting Boy Scouts and charity agencies throughout the area.

Looking back on his 12 years and more than 3 million meals at Fort Benning, Clendenon said, "A large part of my success is due to the assistance I have received from the units I have worked for while I've been here."

988th MP Co Said Partner in Enforcement

By SSG Pat Moser

Since its beginning six months ago, a 150-man MP company has assumed a near partnership in the post law enforcement duties, training 43 qualified men for overseas assignments, and is now readying for its Army Training Test.

Activated Aug. 25, 1966, the 988th MP Co, had SSG Willie H. Griffin as its commander, CPT Phillip G. Barnett, took command January 18 after an assignment with the 1st Air Cav. Div. in Vietnam.

The big boost in the 988th's early days came from its sister unit, the 198th MP Co. The 198th has the primary mission of law enforcement for the post. Experienced men from that unit moved into the 988th to form a cadre capable of training the inexperienced new men.

"This unit owes quite a lot to those who came to us from the 198th," Griffin said. "We leaned heavily on their experience to get us over that big hump of starting an effective ATF program."

The 988th's first commander, 1LT (now CPT) William York, arrived four days after Griffin and O'Neil. He and later assumed duties at the Benning Post Marshal's Office. The present commander, CPT Phillip G. Barnett, took command January 18 after an assignment with the 1st Air Cav. Div. in Vietnam.

"We used classroom instruction and practical exercises which would duplicate the curriculum of the MP School at Fort Gordon, Ga., as much as possible," explained Griffin. "Our first training session listed 25 men."

The training cycle called for advanced individual training to produce MOS-qualified Military Policemen within eight weeks. The unit met its deadline.

The company, organized into three platoons, started its on-the-job training program. Two of the platoons plied Provost Marshal duty alongside the men of the 198th. The remaining platoon continued unit training.

By alternating platoons, balance between formal instruction and experience in everyday police duties was accomplished.

MOS Awarded

"I awarded the new men their MOS as MPs in December and a month later 43 of them were on orders overseas," Griffin remarked. "We that many of them are from the best overseas assignments with a liberal sprinkling of Vietnam veterans."

The original members of the unit look back on their first six months with the 988th as one of the most challenging periods in their Army careers.

Nowadays the MP direct patrol during rush hours, investigating an accident or patrolling a dimly lit neighborhood might be one of the things that a man who grew up professional with Fort Benning daily, might induce decay in the youngest Military Police outfit, the 988th.

P-TA Meets On March 7 At Baker HS

Baker High School Parent-Teacher Association will hold its March 7, 1967 in the school auditorium.

The program theme will be "Services Offered in the Muscogee County School District for your High School Student", planned by the program chairman, LTC Mark W. Maggan.

The first part of this three phase program will consist of a panel of several educational leaders who will discuss aspects of the many services offered and available to high school students in the local area.

The second phase will be presented at the April 10 meeting, with the final phase discussed at the May 9 meeting.

A short business meeting will precede the program and refreshments will be served in the cafeteria immediately following the program.

An invitation is extended to all parents of high school students to attend these sessions designed to assist in planning students' future development.

Rockets Destroy Enemy Minefield From Distance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Remotely controlled blasting of enemy minefields by rockets trailing strings of explosives launched from amphibious demolition "skids" is a new technique developed by the U.S. Army.

The rowboat-like skids, loaded with explosives, can be towed over land or water and remotely fired.

Constructed of waterproof fiberglass, the skids are 12 feet long, 5 feet wide, and when ready for action, weigh 300 pounds.

A 300-foot-long charge of plastic explosives is coiled on the skid and attached to a rocket.

Fired across a mine field and trailing a line of explosives, the rocket is halted by an arresting wire, with the explosives then detonated when they have come to rest in the minefield.

Chamber Officials Tour Fort Benning, Meet CG

Charles Crowder, recently appointed executive director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, is at Fort Benning Monday made a day-long tour of this installation.

Accompanied by Chamber President James W. Blanchard and James W. Woodruff Jr., chairman of the Chamber's military affairs committee, Crowder began his day with a half-hour conference with MG Robert H. Vets May Borrow On Life Insurance

A veteran who holds permanent GI life insurance may borrow up to 94 per cent of the policy's cash surrender value, Pete Wheeler, director of Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said today.

Borrowing will reduce the policyholder's total amount of protection. However, the policy will remain in force. On surrendering the policy, the rocket is halted by an arresting wire, with the explosives then detonated when they have come to rest in the minefield.

Interest on loans from GI policies is 4 per cent on the unpaid balance. Repayment on the principal may be made in amounts of $5 or any multiple thereof and at any time before default in payment of premiums.

The Soldier's Soldier Drill Sergeant Said First Contact With Leadership

"This week, THE RAYON-ET begins a special series featuring the dedicated men who help prepare young Americans for duty as combat Infantrymen — The Army Drill Sergeants. This series may be said to be a tribute to the drill sergeants. However, the real tribute paid them is the performance in battle of the men they train."

By SP5 Henry Halpern
The campaign-hatted drill sergeant, representative of the Army's tough basic combat training program, is the recruit's first contact with Army leadership. It is a deliberate confrontation, for the drill sergeant is the "soldier's soldier."

When the recruit tumbles out of his bunk at reveille, the drill sergeant is waiting — spit and polish in the pre-dawn darkness.

As the day wears on, the campaign hat stands out amid a sea of olive green fatigues and helmet liners. The sergeant's guides, instructs and advises — sometimes gruffly and always with a critical eye toward the recruit's progress in his first, hesitant Army experiences.

The Chamber officers received a briefing on the Infantry School and Center activities and were guests at an official luncheon at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Monday afternoon the group observed airborne training at Eubanks Field, toured the Officer candidate area and the OC Hall of Fame at Wigle Hall, visited the parachute packing facility and toured shops and warehouses.

The balance of the day was spent at the Army Training Center where the visitors received a briefing and observed processing and training phases encountered by the new soldiers.

"No rides anyone strive for more perfection than he." Cuevas arrived at the training center upon his assignment in September, 1965, coming from Fort Ord, Calif. where he was also a drill sergeant.

"The biggest reward that a drill sergeant gets," he said, "is the end result. We get 200 civilians and spend 17½ hours a day for eight weeks trying to turn these trainees into the world's finest soldiers. If all goes well, they graduate from basic training, then we feel we've accomplished our primary mission. That is my reward."

Another day of training is closer to being a soldier. He is a day's distance to understanding the mettle and skill of the drill sergeant — A professional military man.

The officers and men connected with the CONUS Army training base are performing a major task in an outstanding manner. The Army training centers, the several service schools, and Continental Army Command have every right to polt with pride to the accomplishments of the Republic of Vietnam; these accomplishments are a reflection of their achievements and the results of their efforts. The Drill Sergeants, the military instructors, the platoon commanders, and those who plan programs of instruction and training cycles deserve the credit and they have the admiration of this command."

Another day of training is closer to being a soldier. He is a day's distance to understanding the mettle and skill of the drill sergeant — A professional military man.

THIS IS THE AUSTIN HEALEY 3000 MK111

IT MAKES THE SILENT NOISE EVER EMITTED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

A soft, deep-throated animal sound. Exciting. Evoked. The excitement continues — a most luxurious cockpit, padded leather seats, four-spoke steering wheel, one-touch convertible top. There's more — 150 bhp, 2.9 liter engine, accelerates to 80 in 15.5 seconds, cruises at 100, and has a top speed that exceeds 120 mph. Large 11-inch, semi-independent disc brakes (stems at rest) take the beast under control. Few men have been able to resist the siren call of the Austin Healey 3000 MK111.

'Business as Usual'

USAMTU Has Anniversary

It was "business as usual" last Wednesday when the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit observed its eleven anniversary.

The pistol team left for training matches in Florida. The rifle team had just returned from a successful coaching clinic in Panama and the trap and skeet teams were ready for a weekend match at the skeet range.

The running bear shooters and the international rifle team worked hard at practice sessions.

COL Jos. J. Post, CO said, "We've not taken the time to celebrate but all of us know it's our birthday. We're proud of our accomplishments. 1956 was perhaps the greatest year the MTU has had, but that is history and now we are concentrating on 1967. We've got to shape our teams into championship form again."

Center to Honor GEN MacArthur

The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., is planning a GEN Douglas MacArthur patriotic research center which will contain information and exhibits on the United States flag.

The research center, named after the late General of the Army, will also contain material and information on other national symbols.

The center will be part of the growing library building complex on the 100-acre American Freedom Center at Valley Forge.

The initial money gift for the research center was recently presented to the foundation by the National Guardsmen, a group of master masons who are commissioned officers and warrant officers of the Armed Forces.

Insurance Dividend
Veterans holding NSLI insurance will be paid $211 million in dividends this year. The VA has announced. Payments will be made on the anniversary date of the veteran's policy, as in 1966.

The 4,222,000 World War II veterans who retained their NSLI insurance will receive average payments of about $42. In addition, 96,000 World War I veterans will receive an average payment of $76.

Medical Units in Vietnam Now Receiving Newly Developed Field Anesthesia Device

A new field anesthesia machine for use by medical units in Vietnam has been developed and approved for procurement by the Army Medical Service.

The first seven models built by the contractor, the Ohio Chemical Company of Madison, Wis., are now being used by the 4th Surgical Hospital (MUST) at Tay Ninh. A total of 42 more were shipped to Vietnam during January.

Present plans call for production of 25 machines a week for delivery to Vietnam, USAFEUR supply units.

In Europe, all hospital units in readiness or availability of oxygen to afford the surgical patient an anesthetic tailored to physiological needs.

Provision is made for the use of air in the anesthetic mixture, should oxygen be unavailable, should it be used with modern assist-ventilator devices should these be available and/or necessary.

This is the first new field anesthesia machine since 1960.

Certain facets of its design anticipated future improvements, to be easily incorporated. It can be carried by hand, by truck, by air and is deliverable by air drop. It meets crucial logistic criteria as well as peace-time hospital requirements.

All entries must be submitted on an official form which can be obtained by writing to the Contest Chairman, Armed Forces Writers League, George Washington Station, Alexandria, Va. 22304.

Deadline Set for April 1 To Enter Story Contest

Soldiers Play Santa Claus to Vietnamese Children

SAIGON — Pacific Architects & Engineers, Inc. (PA&E), joined with the U. S. Army's 1st Log. Command's civic action committee to distribute 2283 plaster-filled Tet envelopes to children at orphanages and refugee centers in the greater Saigon area.

The donations are given at Tet, the beginning of the Lunar New Year, because it is the custom to exchange money during the lunar celebration as a symbol of good luck. Tet is observed by the Vietnamese as a type of combination Christmas and New Year's.

Using money from the company's Christmas drive, coupled with more than 17,000 plasters donated by the men of the 1st Log. Command, the committee scheduled 25,000 plasters worth of 5 plaster notes for the children. Also earmarked for distribution are another 35,000 plasters for the building funds at an orphanage and a refugee center.

MAJ. Charles H. Nelson Jr., head of the Log's civic action committee, and three members of the P & A & E committee distributed the envelopes to children at the orphanages, schools and refugee camps.

Nelson pointed out, "Without PA&E's help, it would have been impossible to reach such a tremendous number of children. The donations also illustrate to the children the fact that Americans and third country national civilians take a great interest in their welfare."

Contributions to the building funds will help build a new dormitory near Saigon at St. Elizabeth's school and an orphanage, which has 35 orphans at present, but will soon have facilities for nearly three times that number. A new roof will also be constructed at the orphanage and help unload the rice bags.

DIAM. — Many American units serving in Vietnam have voluntarily adopted orphanages, schools, individual families or contributed to various other worthwhile charitable organizations. Few have accepted the challenge with as much enthusiasm as the 1st Inf Div's 2nd Bn, 16th Inf, "Rangers." They adopted the Due Minh Orphanage in Thu Duc, just north of Saigon, last year. Besides sponsoring a Christmas party and building a playground, many of the individual "Rangers" have agreed to pay the tuition of some of the children. Their latest contribution to the orphanage was the rice the Infantrymen captured during Operation Cedar Falls in the Iron Triangle. The rice was brought to the orphanage in two truck loads and Father Hein, the Catholic priest who is the director of the orphanage, was on hand to greet the 2nd Bn soldiers when they arrived. Father Hein was extremely happy to receive the rice, as now the money previously spent on the buying of food could be used for the purchase of other necessities for the children. "This captured VC rice should go a long way in feeding the more than 20 kids that are living at the orphanage," said SGT Carl Irtzinger, one of the men that delivered the rice. "The kids were not exactly overwhelmed at seeing the rice," said Irtzinger. "They were a lot happier when we handed toys and goodies for them. They were still as smiling and as playful as ever, and even the littlest and completing the editorial staff is SP4 Carl T. Moore from the commo section. Chapters for the book are written by members of the unit and are based on their experiences in Vietnam. The novel is far from being completed, but some of its most interesting chapters have already been written.

The first chapter, entitled "Run Along Little Congo" was written in memory of highway 13 and was contributed by the track commanders of Company B.

The second, called "Jungle Bunny Rock," commemorates the days when the company traveled by foot before becoming mechanized.

Chapter three, "All Night Serenade," was written by SP4 Richard New. New dedicated this chapter to members of the night patrols and the company's listening personnel.

"Echo Chamber," the fourth chapter of the book was written by the mortar platoon in recognition of the noisy mortar carrying armed personnel carriers.

The latest chapter, "The Big Hunt" is a humorous article written by PFC Victor Basilio, working with the Artillery forward observer. "Charlie would really get a bang out of this one," Basilio chuckled.

Army in Vietnam and Alaska, the reports from the field can't be a sucker" which explains how Fort Rucker Ala., Fort Hood, Texas, and the U. S. Military Academy Preparatory School call on artillery support installations at Fort Belvoir, Va.

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor has approved the designation of "Vietnam Counteroffensive" as the third U. S. Army campaign in Vietnam.

The period covered by this designation is from Dec. 25, 1965, to June 30, 1966, inclusive. The campaign streamer bearing the approved designation will become the 148th streamer attached to the U. S. Army flag. The two previous campaign designations for actions in Vietnam were "Vietnam Advisory Campaign" from March 8, 1966 to Dec. 24, 1966.

COL Lekson Awarded Legion of Merit Here

COL John S. Lekson, deputy assistant commander of The Infantry School and nominee for brigadier general, was awarded the Legion of Merit here recently.

MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, made the presentation.

The medal was presented to COL Lekson for "exceptional, meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services" while assigned to Headquarters, Allied Forces, Southern Europe, Naples, Italy, from September, 1963, to July, 1966.

COL Lekson, who assumed his present position after returning from Europe in July, graduated from Western Reserve University with an education degree in 1940.

He joined the Army in Cleveland, Ohio, and was sent to Camp Shelby, Miss., where he served as an enlisted man before attending OCS here in 1942.

During World War II, he served with the 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment and the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe. When the war ended, he was a major.

Since then, COL Lekson has served in Austria, Korea, Italy and at various stateside assignments. He is a graduate of the Advanced Infantry Course, the Command and General Staff College and the Air War College.

His other decorations and awards include the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Military Order of Wilhelm (Dutch), the Belgian Fourragere, Senior Parachutist Badge and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

IRS Aide Gives Refund Answers

"When will I get my refund?"

This is one of the questions most frequently asked by Georgia taxpayers. District Director of Internal Revenue, A. C. Ross said today.

He said that thousands of refund checks are returned to Internal Revenue every year because the postman cannot deliver them.

Humble names or addresses cause many refund checks to be returned undelivered. This can be avoided by carefully printing in block letters your name, address and zip code at the top of the return, and entering your correct social security number in the space provided, Ross said.

If you move after you file your return, leave your forwarding address with the Post Office. It is also a good idea to send your new address to the Internal Revenue Service.

MOH Winner Speaks To 132 New Officers

An Infantry officer who won the Medal of Honor urged 132 graduates of an officer candidate course last week "to have the courage to make and stand by a difficult decision."

He was COL Robert B. Nett, deputy director of The Infantry School's company operations department.

Questions: I want to convert my E Bonds holdings into H Bonds and have been advised that it will be necessary to sell the E Bonds and use the proceeds to buy H Bonds. Is this correct?

Answer: No, and it would be to your disadvantage to do so. E Bonds may be exchanged at their current redemption value for H Bonds in the smallest denomination of which is $500. Under the exchange procedure, interest which has accrued on your E Bonds would not have to be reported for Federal income tax purposes until the H Bonds were cashed or reached final maturity. To sell your E Bonds first would make this interest subject to taxation immediately.

He himself a product of OCS, he received the nation's highest military honor for valor while fighting the Japanese in the Philippines during World War II.

Reminding the new officers, members of the 9th Co., 7th Student Bn., that The Infantry School "teaches the requirements of success in OCS has produced nine general officers, over 400 colonels who are on active duty today and 18 winners of the Medal of Honor.

Honor and distinguished graduate and the top man in leadership ratings was 2LT Bruno Schulz. Academic honors went to 2LT Stephen V. C. Wilberding.

PROMOTED . . . Robert Lewis Eaton was promoted recently here to colonel in a ceremony in the office of MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander. COL Eaton was commissioned a second lieutenant here in 1943 from Officer Candidate School.

MGM Signs Angie Dickinson to Role in 'Point Blank'

HOLLYWOOD. Angie Dickinson has the leading role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Point Blank," the contemporary suspense drama starring Academy Award winner Lee Remick.

The Judd Bernard-Irwin Winkler production began shooting here recently as the first motion picture on the studio's impressive 1947 production schedule.

"Point Blank" is Miss Dickinson's second consecutive assignment at MGM, where she recently starred in the western drama, "The Last Challenge," opposite Everett Ford and Chas E. Everett.

"Point Blank" will also mark the second time she has teamed with Marvin. They were previously seen in the film version of Ernest Hemingway's "The Killers."

"Point Blank" is Miss Dickinson's second consecutive assignment at MGM, where she recently starred in the western drama, "The Last Challenge," opposite Everett Ford and Chas E. Everett.

evidence in any adventure story, who has an important part in the hair-raising thrills, is Nigel Green.

Director

Ralph Thomas, who started in the technical side of British film making in 1932, is the director. He moves the hectic murder story at a furious pace, from one climactic episode to another. The bevy of gangsters who handle the case are each one's distinct personality.

ies play an important part in the story's progress. Jimmy Sangster, David O'Brien and Liz Charles Williams have tremendous ingenuity in their screenplay.

Richard Johnson's Bulldog Drummond is a dashing, highly intelligent insurance investigator who is never daunted in tracking down the assassin who is never far from his hands. A bar-keep on the beach, a pilot diver in a cigar that shoots sea bullets when the stogie is lit, a dart with a paralyzing effect on the victim who can be thrown from the penthouse balcony of a tall apartment building, a bomb attached to a timer set to blow up after the perpetrator has long since gone, and a highly powerful explosive capsule dropped in the wig of its female victim.

Pianist Is First In Talent Finals

Finals for the monthly entertainment contest were held at Kelley Hill Service Club last Saturday.

First place winner was pianist Antonio Stephano playing Chopin's "Impromptu" in C sharp minor.

Second place Barry Bennett sang "Maria" and accompanied himself on the 12 string guitar.

Third place Paul Siabaras played "Misty" and "The Shades of Your Smile" on the organ.

JUDGES for the contest were COL Milton G. Schneider, Father Martin Assisi and Marquis L. Pitts. Each of the top three winners received a $25 cash award.

Next month's entertainment contest will be held March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at South Harmony Church, Southaven Club. All military personnel are eligible and encouraged to enter. Entry blanks are available at all service clubs.

One Way to Win in Vietnam

Army Radio Program Assists Villagers of Nam Dang

WASHINGTON (ANP)—The power and appeal of Army radio programs was brought to the attention of the people of the refugee village of Nam Dang, Vietnam, when this community was virtually inundated with gifts of clothing, food, soap, and money.

This windfall resulted from a visit to Nam Dang last year by ARMY HOUR radio show over the Mutual Broadcasting System and by more than 100 other radio stations in the United States. Additionally, the program was aired by more than 100 Armed Forces Radio Stations overseas, and short-wave stations around the world by Armed Forces News Bureau.

Hueys in RVN Will Get New Smoke Generators

NATICK, Mass. (INF)—The U. S. Army Limited War Laboratory recently developed smoke generators for UH-1 helicopters scheduled to be sent to Vietnam late this month.

Twenty of the prototype integral smoke generators developed here are scheduled for operational evaluation by Army units.

The generators can produce a 100 meter linear smoke screen, lasting two minutes in moderate winds.

The device consists of a smoke agent tank, pump, piping, and a spray nozzle attachment which is mounted on the aircraft turbine exhaust stack so that the smoke agent is directed into the hot exhaust gases where it is vaporized.

One of the laboratory's engineering models of the generator successfully screened the airlifting operation of a UH-1D by a CH-47 helicopter in Vietnam.

Included in the reviewing party were COL Ned B. Masber, commanding officer of The Student Brigade Platoon, and SGM Bilbo Nowell, commander of troops.

Another visit by the ARMY HOUR reporter, less than one year later, found a much different village—a village of healthy, happy people working to build themselves a brighter future.

The story of Nam Dang reflects the magnitude of the audience reached by the ARMY HOUR. "The result was phenomenal," says David Eskind, a Department of Army employee who is the "father" and top-notch producer, director, and writer of ARMY HOUR.

Golf Tourney Free Tickets Being Given For 'Masters'

Post Special Services has announced that a number of free tickets to the Masters Golf Tournament in Augusta, Ga., April 6-9, are available to members of the Armed Forces here.

Selection of individuals to receive tickets will be determined by lottery.

Tickets will be issued to military personnel only, and only one ticket per person. In order to permit attendance by the maximum number, priority will be given to one-day tickets.

Tickets for attendance on two days and four days will be issued in that order, only if an insufficient number of persons request one-day tickets.

These complimentary tickets will not be transferable. They will be issued at Fort Gordon, Ga. (near Augusta) on the day of use, and will be issued only to the individuals selected by the lottery and reported to officials at Gordon.

Travel to the Masters Tournament must be accomplished in leave or pass status at the expense of the individual. Officials at Fort Gordon said that military tickets will not be available for personnel from other stations.

All service members desiring to use a complimentary ticket for attendance at the tournament will submit application, to their unit commander.

Unit commanders will attend to the availability of the individual to use the ticket if selected and will insure that only one application per individual is submitted.

Requests for tickets will be available at Post Special Services, Building 204, on Monday, March 7.

Post Club Giving Scuba Instruction

It may seem early in the year to talk about swimming, but Fort Benning's Scuba Club says now is the time to start training if you want to skin dive this summer.

The club presently meets each Tuesday night at the indoor pool of Briant Wells Field House.

Primary purpose of the group is instruction, by experienced instructors, in the use of Scuba self-contained underwater breathing apparatus.

After certification by experts, skin divers are eligible to check out and use the Scuba on recreational available through the Fort Benning Special Services.

Getting certified, however, takes about six weeks.

Prior to any training on the equipment, new club members must certify they are physically qualified and are without a history of ear trouble.

A swimming examination, which includes six laps of the indoor pool using any free style and one lap underwater.

Post Steamrolls Norsworthy Five 104-61 Sunday

It was the Doughboys all the way as the Fort Benning basketball team overpowered the Norsworthy 104-61 Sunday afternoon at Kelley High Gym.

Seven Benning players scored in the double figures as they paced the team from a half-time lead of 51-29 to the final 43-point victory.

Top man for the game was Ed Adams, Co. A, 1st Bn. CTC, with 24 points. Alonzo Williams, Bn. A, 2nd Bn. 10th Art., hit for 19. John Griffin, HHC, 17th Inf. Bde., had 15 and Nathaniel Hardaway, 1st Cdr. Chemical Plt., scored 14.

Women Set 6 Records Navy's Hamilton Winner At Mid-Winter Tune-Up

Donald Hamilton, U. S. Navy, national pistol champion, showed true championship form last weekend by firing 2667-134 to win the Mid-Winter Tune-Up Pistol Match held at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Hamilton's victory was crowned with Open and Service Records in the Center Fire National Match Course, 300-20 and the center fire aggregate with 884-57.

While the best pistol shooter in the Armed Services were hacking away at each other in a battle of tens and Xs, the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club "Powder Puffs" powdered away at the bullseye and set six new national women's records.

DONALD HAMILTON National Pistol Champ

The "Powder Puffs" started off their record firing with a 1001 score in international rapid fire followed by a 1341-33 for the Free Pistol. In the NRA Matches they fired 1127-27 in the 32 match, 1072-18 in the 32 match, and 1084-18 in the 43 match. Then they fired the Service Pistol and set a record of 1075-29.

The Observer — by Larry Mahoney —

Score one for Newsweek in its magazine rack battle with mighty Time. I usually try to buy both, but the wages of a private first class do not allow such luxuries at the end of the month. Time's coverboy was the director of the CIA, while looking across the front of Newsweek was Lew Alcindor, the most spectacular basketball player in the game's 75-year history.

Eccespism, I suppose, is why I chose the man from UCLA over the man from CIA. Spies and espionage are getting rather tedious. I greet with favor the reports that James Bond finally gets it in this next, and hopefully final, film.

What this leads toward is my subject, a youth of 19 who has become the sporting scene's most discussed individual in the course of a few months. Lew Alcindor's story is as awesome as his size. Physically, he is a phenomenon — 7 feet, 1 1/2 inches, leaning over 235 pounds with a grace that belies his gawking limbs (his horizontal reach, fingertip to fingertip, spans 7 feet, 5 inches).

Both the Associated Press and United Press polls fix the University of California at Los Angeles as the overwhelmingly best basketball team in the nation. At this writing, the Bruins own 23 victories. There are, of course, no defeats. Lew is becoming a legend within this setting.

Imagine, if you can, the psychological impact the sight of Alcindor has on Bruin opponents, mere six-foot, six-inchers. When the whistle blows their worst fears become real. During the course of an average game, the nimble giant peaks in 30 points, snatches 15 rebounds and shows his defensive mettle by slapping down a half-dozen or so enemy shots.

The prospect of two more years of Alcindor-paced UCLA quietude that make men squirm at other basketball courts of power. Louisville, Texas Western, Carolina, Kansas and the rest really can't expect the crown while Lew wears the blue and gold of the Bruins.

There is, however, the long chance that Alcindor would follow the example of Wilt Chamberlain, the 7 feet, 1 1/2-inch cager who left the University of Kansas to play for the Harlem Globetrotters for $50,000. Newsweek reports that the Globetrotters sent out a feeler to Big Lew a few weeks ago: "Come with us on a million dollar lifetime contract."

It would be surprising, however, if Alcindor, a serious student and a young man apparently deeply committed to taking a place of leadership in the Negro community, foregoes a college education.

The big money must tempt him but it will still be there in 1969 and probably in larger quantity. Attendance in the National Basketball Association rose above three million in 1966 and is soaring again this season. Two new teams, Seattle and San Diego, will join the league next year, and others are sure to follow.

Fort Benning soldiers will have an opportunity to see some circus-style basketball this month when the Harlem Globetrotters come to Columbus. These wizards of the court, a troupe that has bounced basketballs in just about every country in the world, will perform in the Columbus Municipal Auditorium (at the foot of Victory Drive (downtown) Monday, March 18. It starts at 8 p.m.

His uncle, Willard Hutchinson, is also a well known professional in southern California. Hutch, 25, has lived with golf since his birth. His friends say that he was born with a club (rather than a spoon) in his mouth. His home and his trips across the country have brought him many personal friendships with famous personalities of the world of golf.

Choirboy Turns To Quarterback For Iowa College
Not all choir boys turn into first string football players. But OC Richard J. Rizzo was an exception. As a boy, he attended St. Thomas Choir School, New York City. Students of the school are selected on a basis of musical ability and all sing in the St. Thomas Choir. All of the boys are on full scholarship while they sing in the choir. The choir tours the East annually and gives performances in Carnegie Hall. Rizzo, of the 82nd Company (CO), did not use this as a path to a musical career, however. Following his last year at the choir school, he attended a military school for a year, then public high school until graduation, and finally took a major in biology at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, where he lettered in football for three years. His senior year he was first-string quarterback, and of leadership in the Negro community, foregoes a college education.

Collegiate Golf Ace Training Here With 90th OCs

Former intercollegiate golf champion of the Middle Atlantic Collegiate Conference, OC John "Hutch" Hutchinson is now training with the 90th Co., 9th St. Bn., OC TSB. His father, Ralph Hutchinson, is a well known professional golfer at the Saucun Valley Country Club in Bethlehem, Pa., and in the Cotton Bay Club in the Bahamas Islands.

Hutch applied for the position of golf coach which has been recently vacated and was given the job. This time a year ago he was starting the golf season at Lehigh which had been awarded him the most valuable golfer award. During his summer vacation he transferred to Moravian College where he leads his college team to three very successful years. His college record was 20 victories and two defeats; the biggest accomplishment being the Middle Atlantic Collegiate Golf Championships in 1962. Moravian finished second to Rutgers in the team title. This conference has 33 teams in the largest athletic conference in the country. Hutch applied for the position of golf coach which has been recently vacated and was given the job.

'Gymkhana' Spectators Brave Cold
Freezing temperatures added zest to a "gymkhana" held by the Junior Hunt Club of Fort Benning last Saturday. However, after a few of the scheduled events, horses and riders settled down to serious competition. Top ribbon winners for the day were Nan Brady and Jeanette Andrews with three wins each. Winners were: Pick up race — Nan Brady and Anne Becker, Egg and Spoon race — Pat Wightman, Saddle race — Kristie Aurr, Back Alley Jumping — Vicky Chapman, Barrelchuck Jumping — Tammy Cain, Flag Race — Larry Cherry, Tandem Jumping — Ted Gregory and Jeanette Andrews.

His golf was curtailed upon his graduation from Lehigh University where he received his MA degree in international relations. He began working for a major steel corporation as a "logger" in the management trainee program. He did in a game to team up with a few well-known collegiate golfers in better ball tournaments. George Boutwell of Arizona was his partner in one event (Boutwell is current Eastern Amateur Champion). Also, he teamed with former Big Ten Champion Bill Newton to be runner-up in Fred Wareing, "Waite Memorial Memorial Tournament." They lost in the finals to Jim Taylor of Penn State and Dennis Hogan of Yale.

Golf to Hutch has been an exciting and wonderful experience. It has taken him to every state and to Canada, the Bahamas Islands, England and Scotland to play in tournaments. The two summers on the golf tour enabled him to play rounds of golf with Gene Litter, Jack Nicklaus, Phil Rodgers, Julius Borus and George Bayer. At the Cleveland Open and later at the U.S. Open he worked with Chris Sebeko on the television broadcasts of these events.

ROK-U.S. SOFA Said Milestone in Relations

SEOUL, Korea (ANS)—Eight U. S. Army GEN. Charles H. Bonesteel III says the new Status of Forces Agreement between the United States and the Republic of Korea is "a milestone in promoting friendly relations" between the governments and people of these nations.

GEN Bonesteel, commander in chief of United Nations Command and the U. S. Force in Korea, said the agreement, effective February 8, is a "fair and workable" arrangement between two independent nations and close allies who proved the value of their friendship during the Korean war and the years of reconstruction which followed.

 Attained Much Sought Goal Through Army Service (Photo by SP4 Richard Carr)

Ninety-three student and faculty members of the Brazilian Command and General Staff College today arrived at Fort Benning and a two-day orientation tour of Fort Benning training facilities.

Headed by COL Francisco de Mattos Junior, the group arrived at Lawson Airfield Wednesday morning and was welcomed officially by MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

Following observation of officer candidates in the Leaders' Reaction Course at Dixie Village, the Brazilian Army officers, all of whom were major or above were transported to the Army Training Center for a tour of activities there.

Included on the itinerary for Thursday morning was a series of briefings on training literature and doctrine and a visit to Eubank Field where the officers watched airborne training and took "buggy seat rides" on the 250-foot simulated jump tower.

NCO Wins Naturalization Papers

By SPS Michael McMillan

Most people take their citizenship for granted, seldom remembering the toil and sacrifice given to insure the freedoms America's citizens know. SGT Wolfgang H. Liebrich is not one of those.

For him, American citizenship was a high and important goal demanding years of study of a new language, new customs, a new national history and a new system of government. But the reward, he believes, was worth the effort.

Liebrich, 28, left his native Frankfurt, Germany, to come to the United States in 1961 after saving for two years to pay for the trip. In October of that year, he was drafted into the U.S. Army.

Opportunity Found

"In the Army, he found a unique opportunity to pursue the qualifications necessary:

for citizenship and to serve his adopted country while building a rewarding career. So, when his initial obligation was completed, he chose to remain in the Army.

A humorous note was sounded when he found himself crossing the Atlantic again, this time bound for his first overseas assignment. His destination was Germany.

His tour in Germany was curtailed, though, and in 1962 he returned to the United States.

Thus, citizenship means a little more to Wolfgang Liebrich than to most people because it was earned rather than inherited. He shows no hesitation about defending it, if necessary.

About the prospects of having to do that very thing in Vietnam, he says simply, "Send me... and let me do my share."

March, 1966, he reported to the 17th Inf. Bde. in Columbus. Liebrich never lost sight of his ultimate goal and this year, with more than adequate fluency in English attained and paperwork completed, he stood the examinations required for naturalization as a U.S. citizen.

He was administered the oath of citizenship January 23 in Columbus.

Thus, citizenship means a little more to Wolfgang Liebrich than to most people because it was earned rather than inherited. He shows no hesitation about defending it, if necessary.

About the prospects of having to do that very thing in Vietnam, he says simply, "Send me... and let me do my share."

Easter Sunrise Service Planned

Fort Benning's annual Easter Sunrise Service will be held at 6 a.m. March 26 in Doughboy Stadium.

Guest speaker will be Chaplain (COL) Wallace M. Hale, president of the U. S. Army Chaplain Board at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Special music for the service will be provided by a combined chapel choir. Rehearsals are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. March 22, and 9 a.m. March 23 at Doughboy Stadium. Singers who want to participate in the Easter program are asked to attend the rehearsals.

Project officer for the service is Chaplain (CPT) William E. Foreman.

In case of rain, the sunrise service will be conducted in Marshall Auditorium, Bldg. 4.

P-TA Hosts COL Tisdale; Election Set

COL T. E. Tisdale, Infantry Center director of personnel, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Fort Benning P-TA at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium at Faith School.

Using the subject, "Come in World," COL Tisdale will discuss some aspects of the educational system and cultural activities in Vietnam.

The address will be illustrated with slides.

The P-TA officers for the school year 1967-68 will be elected. In addition to a slate of officers to be presented by the nominating committee, nominations from the floor will be accepted.

In Fuel: Consumption

Cost Reduction Seen As Issue Point Opens

By SSG Pat Moser

Fuel costs for Army multi-city will have a $6,000 take a tumble beginning Monday when Fort Benning's first cost issue point goes into operation on Main Post. The fuel dump will be located in the Infantry Center Troop Com and is 540th Main, Co. motor pool.

Truck drivers will be encouraged by bearing officials to draw from the new facility rather than using gasoline within their own units.

A post Logistics spokesman pointed out that the new system is intended to reduce consumption costs. It is improving the building available lower grade Compression Ignition Turbine Engine (CIT) fuel.

Truck Unit Expanding Operations

The 16th Gen. Spt. Group's 648th Supply Svc. Co. will be expanding its operations today from unit training to direct support of the Infantry Hill area later this month.

The operation follows a "Third U. S. Army record" commendation which called for the cost-saving system.

The 648th operation will use 10,000-gallon storage tanks and the Sand Hill facility to Dalton, Ga., 241 miles from here.

SEABEE ANNIVERSARY Training exercises have been the order of the day since the company was formed eight months ago and last year placed under the 16th Gen. Spt. Co. headquarters.

2LT Phillip G. Kelly will be in charge of the mission, respect and admiration of the 29 men of the first truck platoon. They will be equipped with 20 of the afternoon included a tour of the Infantry Museum, briefings on nonresident instruction and a demonstration of ground vehicles available to the Infantry commander.

Before the group left Friday the visitors toured closed circuit television facilities of The Infantry School, visited the officers candidate area and Wigle Hall and observed a demonstration of hand-to-hand combat training.

Promotion Break

Deserving privates first class of the Army who are in overstrength units and are unable to compete for promotion because of lack of authorized position vacancies get a break this month. As an exception to regulations, Army commanders have authorized to promote enlisted men to the E-4 pay grade provided that those selected for promotion are fully qualified and requiring no additional waivers.

A light truck company will be expanding its operations today from unit training to direct support of the Infantry Hill area later this month.

Men of the 493 Trans. Co. CTC, commanded by CPT Gerald J. Winch, will put into practice their motto, "Mission First", by transporting Ranger class No. 7 to Dalton, Ga., 241 miles from here.

Training exercises have been the order of the day since the company was formed eight months ago and last year placed under the 16th Gen. Spt. Co. headquarters.

Surgeon Says

The alphabet is often a guide to child's reading problems

How Much Can You Learn From Your Child's ABC's? a d c b E f g H I k j L m n o p q r t s u v x z " This is Mike's alphabet. It exhibits several problems common to children who have difficulty learning to read.

The first of these problems may be shown by either the inconsistent use of upper and lower case letters, mixture of printed and script letters, or variations in the size of the letters. When Mike reads the word "box" on one page, he may not recognize the word "BOX" on another page because the "y" takes on a different shape and the "ox" becomes larger. When letters change form and size, words are difficult for Mike to recognize just as "fort" becomes "fort" in "fortnight" would be unrecognizable for anyone to read.

Another problem noted in Mike's alphabet is the tendency to reverse "b's" and "d's" and "p's" and "q's".

Reversals also occur when he reads "tus," "was" may appear as "saw." Since Mike's vision and intelligence are normal, the cause of his reversals must originate elsewhere.

While testing and observing some of Mike's actions, he is found to be indecisive about distinguishing between his right and left sides, and he is clumsy at activities which require following specific directions such as right, left, up, down, in front, behind, and so on.

Because Mike has difficulty determining the position of his own body and its movements, position of similar letters on a printed page would then prove to be an additional stumbling block in reading. For if there is no clear distinction between right and left, letters would be the difference between "b" and "d" and "p" and "q".

Letters Missing
In Mike's alphabet several letters are missing and a few are misplaced. These errors indicate that he may have trouble organizing his letters into definite patterns. Each word on a page is a group of letters in a specific pattern. Because Mike's pattern is deficient, he may read the word "string," "to recognize" a pattern. Mike must first be able to recognize his own body movements according to basic rhythms such as those of skipping and dancing.

If his body doesn't know what a pattern is, then with objects and movements outside of his own body, he may have difficulty forming patterns as with puzzles or symbols like the alphabet which is a pattern of twenty-six symbols.

Occupational Therapy
Mike is now participating in an Occupational Therapy training program. This program offers activities which stimulate development of these areas in which Mike has difficulty. These include visual, visual and tactical skills, and gross and fine motor coordination. Once Mike increases his ability to use his senses and body movements to a greater capacity, he will have more tools with which to learn.

How much can you learn about your child's ability to learn from his ABC's?

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

...LET'S HAVE ONE MORE FOR THE ROAD...

Sober driving is must for safety on the road

Do you think you can drive after drinking alcoholic beverages? Let's see! Scientific experiments with average sized men, weighing 160 pounds, show conclusively that alcohol in the human body slows down reaction time.

Reaction time is that period required by the body muscles to react to the impulses of the brain. Alcohol is absorbed quickly and directly into the bloodstream. It affects the brain within a few minutes after drinking.

The brain controls our behavior, our driving our vision, hence, reaction time and behavior are affected soon after drinking. After drinking two and one half ounces of whiskey, the average person is 50 per cent less efficient. His reaction time is slowed down. It will take more time and longer distance to stop his car than if he had not been drinking.

Affects Vision
Alcohol has four effects on the vision.
1. Alcohol causes blurred and double vision. The driver is not sure whether he saw another car or whether he saw two cars.
2. Alcohol reduces side

Judge Says Damage claim can alter person's sense of values

One thing which never ceases to amaze lawyers is how people's values change when they think they have a claim against someone. A person who never thought in terms of more than a couple of hundred dollars will forget that money comes in less amounts than the thousand dollar bills when he becomes a plaintiff in a lawsuit.

FOR EXAMPLE: A man sends a telegram to his brother to come and visit him. The telegram is never delivered and right away the sender is in the lawyer's office demanding that a suit be instituted against the telegraph company. Even assuming the sender has a valid claim, the first question that faces the lawyer is the amount of damages.

True enough, the sender is entitled to recover the amount he gave the company for sending the telegram, but this is hardly worth suing to recover, but the rate sender insists that he has been damaged much more, because he states his brother no longer talks to him.

The only trouble with this is that the law does not give damages, under these circumstances, for the brother's lack of brotherly love.

Another common example of a claimant who often feels he is entitled to very little, is the case of the person who has been damaged by a drunk driver.

Alcohol creates over-confidence. Drinking drivers feel they can make the curve in the road at higher than safe speeds. They are falsely confident that they can pass a car before the oncoming vehicle gets too close.

Decide in advance that you will not drive after taking a drink. Even small amounts of alcohol will influence your driving judgment and reduce your driving performance and lower your driving efficiency. Don't drive after drinking alcoholic beverages, and don't drink when you drive!

Measles is more serious than most parents realize

It's time to stop thinking of measles as a slightly humorous childhood disease, says the American Medical Association.

Many people don't realize how important these about measles are to children. First, it's a crippling and killer. Measles strikes millions of children, but the spots left with deafness or mental defects or other complications — or even the ones who die — seem to be forgotten by the public.

Measles isn't at all a fun disease; it's one whose tragedy isn't fully realized. Second, measles could be eliminated as a major health threat. Some medical officials believe it could be eradicated in this country within a year. There's no doubt that it should be.

Several types of anti-measles vaccine are available. They are easily administered by your physician and have been proven safe and effective.

Measles-susceptible children can be immunized by their family physician. The best time is when they are approximately 15 months old. Older susceptible children—should be immunized as soon as possible, particularly if they are of school age.

In some communities, and in the states of Rhode Island and Delaware, measles has been practically eliminated by concerted, statewide immunization campaigns.

Such campaigns have been endorsed by the A.M.A.'s Council on Environmental and Public Health, but their organization requires the counsel of the local health officer and health organizations. Local health officers in a position to determine the best way to conduct an immunization campaign in this community.

Stop—don't kiss that girl, you might transmit decay

Is tooth decay contagious? Can it be transmitted from one person to another by kissing or other means? Recent animal studies and research give the possibility that the above is entirely likely.

Tests with animals show that different strains of bacteria produce different types of caries, some types more destructive of tooth structure than others. The strain of bacteria known as streptococcus is the subject of intensive investigation in many quarters.

In rats and hamsters, caries can be produced in will with streptococci taken from other animals or human mouths. It is significant to note that these animals are most susceptible when the infection, and the bacteria, is combined with a high sugar diet at a young age. Significantly, other factors being

54th OCs Hold Party to Mark Status Change

Last week the men of the 54th Officer Candidate Company held an eighteen week formal dinner and dance at the Main Officers Club celebrating the achievement of Senior Status.

A special plaque was presented to the honored guest, COL. Albert N. Ward Jr. in recognition of his distinguished military career.

Other honored guests were COL. Edward Geaney, the deputy brigade commander, and LTC Robert M. Robinson, commander of the 5th Blk. Det.

CPT Roberto Macia, 54th Co. commander presided over the activities of the evening, assisted by Student Council President, Charles E. John.

The co-chairmen in charge of the party were Candidates Kenneth F. Hedger, and Roland C. Ficken. The decorations were made by the men of the company around a Spanish theme "Siesta Al Camino" ("Rest Along the Way").

A steak dinner was followed by entertainment with Candidate Daniel Balman as master of ceremonies. The "Statesmen" played for the evening's entertainment.

They were occasionally relieved by an amateur group comprised of four candidates from the company.

Petticoat Portraits OWC Golf Head Leads Busy Life

By Jane Daniels

Graciousness and talent typify Mrs. Frank Weaver, a lady gifted in the musical arts, a lady of charm, a linguist and an active golfer.

Mrs. Weaver, a native of southern California, received a degree in music, with emphasis on the piano and the violin, and in education from Pomona College of Claremont, Calif. She taught music in secondary schools after graduation and worked as an engineering aide in map reading before going back to school for graduate work at the University of Southern California.

Moved to Kentucky She then went for the Army in Special Services in Kentucky. Here her career was cut short, however, she met a young Army officer, now LTC Frank Weaver. After he served in Korea, they were married at Staunton, Va. From 1956 - 1959, the Weavers were stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. There from 1959-1959, she was the vice president of OWC. A room at the height of the entrance ball in the Weaver home reminds one of a sheet from their Hawaiian travels. A bar made of monkey pod and kahlua matting stands there near a beautiful portrait of a Polynesian girl painted in black velvet. A coconut beach boy and his girl adorn the bar and oriental objects decorate the room.

Moved to Fort Meade After Hawaii, the Weavers lived at Fort Meade, Md., for three years. Mrs. Weaver taught music in the public schools for one year, helped to organize a women's golf club, and in both Hawaii and in Fort Meade, she provided music for the many variety shows and performances sponsored by the OWC.

"Going back to school" came next for the Weavers when they were sent to the United States at Fort Meade, Calif., for a year. Both Mrs. Weaver and her husband studied Korean.

Returning to the classroom was a hard experience. The oldest student in the class other than herself was 52, and all of the young students were acutely alert to studying. The Weavers will might take pride in their academic accomplishments.

Korean Paid Off Their hard study of the Korean language seemed worth while, however, during their next two years in Korea. Mrs. Weaver says, "Having learned the language, we think that we got a lot more out of the tour than otherwise possible. I taught English and music with other American wives."

She also held classes for wives of the Korean cabinet ministers, with whom she still corresponds. One year she directed a choral six parts. She was the only American there, too, even with all her other activities, she managed to perform the duties of vice-chairman of the ladies golf group. Of the Korean people, she comments that the one thing that impressed her besides the Korean colorful festival was the tremendous pride and good will shown by the Koreans in sending their troops to Vietnam.

From Korea, the Weavers came to Fort Benning in April, 1966. Here her chief activity among many is her work as the chairman of the OWC Golf Ladies Group. She is now busy preparing for the upcoming spring tournaments and invitations and planning for their activities. She also participates in the monthly activities of the OWC, the Company Operations Department and its Leadership Committee as well as acting as a representative to the Thrift Shop.

For St. Patrick's Day Officers' Wives Ready A La Mode Fashion Show

By Lynn Jones

"A La Mode" to most people means ice cream toppings for a favorite pie or cake. And a tempting treat it is. And to countless Officers' Wives and many participating Columbus merchants. "A La Mode" refers to the gala fashion show to be sponsored by the OWC next Friday.

This unusual St. Patrick's Day celebration will be held in Theatre No. 1 beginning at 8:30 p. m. and will be open to the public. It has everything to proclaim a tempting treat. Spring fashions from numerous Columbus stores will be featured. Newest designs for children, teenagers, men and women.

There will be a Parisienne stage setting to rival the Champs Elysees in the spring, a combo for entertainment and fashion models. Fashion show tickets cost $1.00 per person with all profits benefiting postwar relief projects, with special emphasis now on the OWC scholarship fund. Mrs. Terry Yarbrough and Wes Carr will be the fashion commentators for "A La Mode." Coordinators for the event are Mrs. Stephen McIntyre III and Mrs. Theodore Sucher. The stage decoration committee is headed by Mrs. Bobby G. Berry. Other committee heads include Mrs. Frank Roberts, models; Mrs. Jack B. Cummings, program; Frank Frummetto, Johnny Wilson, and Juan Pina, lighting and sound; Mrs. Jack L. Treadwell and Mrs. Chester L. Christie, tickets; and program advertising; Mrs. Cummings, chairman; and Mrs. Danny Byard, Mrs. John Castro, Mrs. Wayne Davis, Mrs. Marcus Humble and Mrs. Jane Payne.

Mardi Gras Luncheon Entertains 52nd OC Wives

"New Orleans, during Mardi Gras" was the theme at a recent luncheon held in the Main Officers' Supper Club for the wives of the 52nd OC. The decorations portrayed "Al Hirt's Place" with miniature boats parading down the center of the tables. Place cards decorated with clowns heads.

Singers, a dancer and a mock band performed with Al Hirt, making up the entertainment. Committee chairman for the luncheon were: Menu, Mrs. Bruce Johnson; finance, Mrs. Salvatore Ferrovicchio; decorations, Mrs. Paul Beismeyer; entertainment, Mrs. William Hoey; and invitations, Mrs. Oliver Johnson III. Honored guests attending the luncheon were Mrs. Robert H. Stecker and Mrs. Donald G. Miller. Mrs. Ronald B. Drees and Mrs. Heman D. Halterman. Cadre hostesses were Mrs. Larry J. Zedyk and Mrs. Donald A. Grey.

Chapel Lounge Site of Coffee Held by Wives

A follow-up coffee was held for the wives of Officer Students in Combat Platoon Leaders Course No. 8, Det. 22, 2nd Stu. Bn., 75B, in the Chapel Lounge.

The Battalion Commander's wife, Mrs. Maria Stuminski, gave a talk on the customs and courtesies of the army.

After coffee and doughnuts, Mrs. Robert Selzer, introduced the social chairman, Mrs. Ashland Birchwell, who outlined the schedule of activities, which the social committee had planned for the remainder of their stay at Fort Benning.

Some of these included a catered supper, a pizza party and a bowling night.

Losing Your Fat Often Causes Mental Effects

Not all grossly overweight individuals ought to consider weight reduction, according to a speaker at the annual meeting of the "Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine" held recently in Las Vegas, Nev.

He stated that when food intake is restricted and the weight reduction program is actively instituted, serious mental problems often appear, whereas none existed prior to the onset of the program.

Based on the results of a study of enlisted men in the Navy and Marine Corps it was noted that the most important factor in a person's return to a fat condition may not be the need to overeat but a need to be overweight.

In some cases, fat people, even though they are disturbed and depressed about their additional weight, may find that their condition has its own rewards in providing excuses for avoiding previously embarrassing social contacts and demands. Thus, it is probable that many extremely obese persons unconsciously make the choice to remain fat because of the emotional advantages offered by the situation.

Women Feted In Atmosphere Of Gay 1890s

The wives of the Headquarters and Academic Staff held a luncheon Tuesday in the nostalgic atmosphere of a local gay nineties pub.

Among the antiques of bygone days and under the light of a massive Tiffany chandelier, the wives were entertained with banjo and player piano music.

Special guests were Mrs. Robert H. York, Mrs. Albert N. Ward, Mrs. George A. Graybe Sr., Mrs. Marlin Slominski, Mrs. Earle K. Adams Jr. and Mrs. Byron D. Greene Jr.

Ladies of the Office of the Secretary, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Melecio J. Montecarlo, were the hostesses.

After the luncheon, the wives toured the historic Springer Opera House.

CAR Wives Entertained With Skit

"The Basic Black Dress," skit about the Army wife's wardrobe, highlighted the program presented to the wives of the Infantry Office's Career Course No. 1 at the Main Officers' Club.

Actresses in the skit were Mrs. James Booker, winner of the doorgripe, a centerpiece if white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Leet Anderson presented a silver farewell gift to Mrs. Ronald W. Marley, wife of the commanding officer of Detachment No. 1. The Marleys will leave soon for an assignment in Bangkok, Thailand.

Infantry Board Wives Greeted At Coffee Here

A charming miniature cherry tree complete with George Washington's hatchet greeted the ladies of the Infantry Board at their Washington birthday coffee recently.

Mrs. Marcus D. Moreman, assisted by Mrs. Richard F. Daley, created the tree and was hostess for the coffee.

The ladies, who met in the Corridor Room of the Main Officers' Club, wore name tags shaped like tiny hatchets.

Several of the members who have been traveling were welcomed back by the wives' club.

Insurance Plan

A change in Civil Service regulations permits retired Federal civil servants who are reemployed to be covered under the Federal Employees Group Life Insurance program, so long as their employment is not on a temporary or intermittent basis.

In addition, they will be assured of life insurance benefits while employed which are at least equal to the benefits they had as annuitants.

The action, effective December 8, was taken in line with the President's directive to the Attorney General to seek to clarify the application of the Federal insurance law with respect to reemployment.

FATHER AND SON ENROUTE TO DZ From Left, PVT Don Knable and Father, Howard

Howard Knable doesn't take his son fishing — he takes his son parachuting. And, with even more care equipment than that which is required for jumping, they checked each other's 1200 feet over the drop zone. Don — he stepped out.

Knable, of Bellevue, Pa., evidently wanted to make sure his son Donald qualified as a paratrooper here recently so he jumped with him.

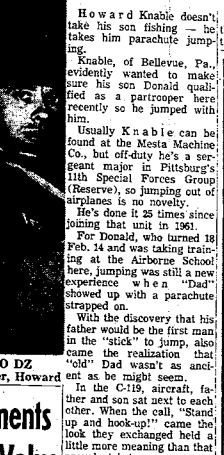

Usually Knable can be found at the Mesta Machine Co., but off-duty he's a sergeant major in Pittsburgh's 11th Special Forces Group (Reserve), so jumping out of airplanes is no novelty.

He's done it 25 times since joining that unit in 1961.

For Donald, who turned 18 Feb. 14 and was taking training at the Airborne School here, jumping was still a new experience when "Dad" showed up with a parachute strapped on.

With the discovery that his father would be the first man in the "stick" to jump, also came the realization that "old" Dad wasn't as ancient as he might seem.

In the C-119 aircraft, father and son sat next to each other. When the call, "Stand up and hook-up!" came the look they exchanged held a little more meaning than that prevalent between most paratroopers as they hook their static lines to the anchor cable.

Retired General Comments On Civilian Employee Value

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Civilian employees provide needed abilities, administrative continuity, and stability for the Army, according to GEN John K. Waters (Ret.), the former commander-in-chief of U.S. Army Pacific.

"In addition," he said, "they free military personnel for primarily military duties." This is illustrated by the increased employment of civilians by the Army during the past year to release soldiers to meet the demands of the build-up in Southeast Asia.

A recent analysis of the Army's civilian recruitment efforts shows an excellent job done while maintaining a high level of effectiveness. This study, the Annual Evaluation of Civilian Personnel Management for 1966, was based on special survey findings, Civil Service Commission inspections.

58TH ENGR. CO. AT WORK ON CHATTAHOOCHEE
Float Bridge Will Be Used in River Crossing Demonstration
(U.S. Army Photo)

Engineers Bridging Chatahoochee River

Soldiers of the 58th Engr. Co. are spanning the Chatahoochee River at Benning, landing with a float bridge destined to be part of a river crossing demonstration by the Infantry School March 17.

The Infantry Center Troop Command unit, commanded by 1LT Alan Daninirsch, is assisting the construction as part of its unit training.

Daninirsch said that the bridge on the Chatahoochee will be 100 yards shorter than the one built in the Dominican Republic. However, the current here is swifter.

"The company is combining the construction with formal classroom instruction on site to gain the most complete training possible for the bridge crews," he stated. In addition to the bridge construction, a platoon is building a light tactical raft capable of ferrying a 2½-ton truck across the river.

Services Survey Results

Opinions Varying on Quarters' Adequacy

The post-wide survey on adequacy of services which was conducted in August 1966, indicated a varying degree of opinion on the adequacy of family quarters and their state of maintenance.

A total of 582 respondents indicated that some repair work was needed in their particular quarters, with the greatest number of requests for interior painting.

Another complaint lodged indicated a need for screen replacements or repair and this was followed by other minor repair and maintenance jobs which would fall under the category of preventive maintenance and/or self-help.

Difficulties

Nine percent of the respondents indicated that telephone requests for repairs are difficult to place, while 20 percent indicated written work order requests are slow in being processed and difficult to submit.

On the questions relating to adequacy of quarters, 79 percent of respondents indicated satisfaction. The largest single number of dissatisfaction expressed 14 percent stemmed from the lack of parking areas, storage space, etc.

It was interesting to note that 91 percent of the respondents indicated satisfaction with the self-help program, indicating that this particular facet of operation is effective and well received.

In an effort to upgrade the condition of quarters at Fort Benning, numerous projects have been initiated during the past several months.

Teams Established

Preventive maintenance teams have been established by the Post Engineer and these teams will eventually accomplish minor maintenance and repair work in all Park Homes.

A maintenance contract has just been awarded to accomplish all such work at Benning Park Homes, the first of many such contracts to be awarded to Post Engineers working for duty in other housing areas.

Since the Post Engineer is operating with considerable less personnel than that required to accomplish of much work in family quarters by contractual services, it is being emphasized.

For example, projects have been prepared for total replacement of gutters and downspouts in the 800 sets of Wherry Housing in Custer Terrace. Also being worked up is a project for replacement of window screens in that area.

Practically all painting is done by contract. However, it should be noted that Department of Army regulations impose stringent restrictions on any modification or alteration of type work.

Usually, maintenance and repair requests can be quickly processed. However, requests for modifications must be thoroughly analyzed and estimated prior to any approval action.

The self-help program provides an extremely effective means for the quarters occupant to accomplish numerous minor jobs. Issues of necessary supplies are made to the quarters occupant upon request.

Although a relatively minor number of respondents indicated that telephone calls for repairs to the Post Engineer work order desk are hard to place, this problem is recognized and efforts are constantly being made to improve this service.

Many Calls Made

In this connection, however, over 40 telephone calls are received daily which at times creates a log jam.

In connection with written work order requests, Department of Army regulations impose stringent restrictions on any modification or alteration of type work.

Usually, maintenance and repair requests can be quickly processed. However, requests for modifications must be thoroughly analyzed and estimated prior to any approval action.

Army Is Offering Soldier Job-Related Instruction

TWO TOURS
CPT Robin K. Miller
Captain Gets 45th Cluster To Air Medal

CPT Robin K. Miller, 181st Avn. Co. recently received the 45th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal from LTC Joseph J. Lahmstein, commanding officer, 44th Avn. Bn.

Miller served in Vietnam from April, 1963, to May, 1964, with the 114th Avn. Co. and from April, 1965, to April, 1966, with Co. A, 101st Avn. Bn.

During these two tours he accumulated 1710 combat flight hours.

He is a graduate of OCS at Fort Benning and has attended airborne, ranger and rotary wing schools.

Miller has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, Silver Star, Air Medal with 45 Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

FORT MONROE, Va., — Courses of instruction have been announced by the U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC), Fort Monroe, Va., under its General Educational Development (GED) program.

For the soldier, the courses promise increased opportunities for advancement and higher assignments. For the Army, the benefits are expected to be improved job proficiency among individuals and units and a means for overcoming skill shortages.

The program was developed by the education branch, personnel services division, Office, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel and is based on practical courses of military occupational specialties (MOS) related instruction. It is used by commanders to supplement service school, unit and on-the-job training.

Over One Million
More than one million such courses have been completed by Army personnel in the past 10 years.

MOS related courses of instruction are designed to help commanders develop the specialized skills of enlisted personnel, provide initial or review instruction in shortage skills, assist personnel in completing service in new CONARC pamphlet No. 621-1, "General Educational Development, MOS-Related Instruction."

Courses outlined in the pamphlet outline more than 50 courses in academic, scientific and technical - vocational subjects which commanders may use in the training of their personnel. These courses are designed to provide essential and background information to personnel being trained in a variety of MOS skills.

The program of MOS-related courses of instruction serves a dual purpose.

Guide to Good Reading

Libraries List Books Among 'Best Sellers'

The following titles of which a number are among the best seller list, are available for circulation at post Special Services libraries:

Buck, Pearl. The Time is Now. John Day Company, c1966. This is the story of a woman as daughter, sister, wife and mother as she grows into womanhood in an American town between the two World Wars.

Ellen, S. House of Cards. Random, c1967. This is the story of a romantic who must learn to become a realist, a man who must face the fact that the woman he is falling in love with may be as treacherous as she is desirable.

Kazen, Ella. The Arrangement. Stein & Day, c1967. When a successful advertising man Eddie Anderson realized that he was in love with both his wife, and his secret, he had a breakdown. What had his many mistresses and success done for him?

Mallenhoff, C. R. The Pen-tagon. Putnam, c1967. The bitter disputes that surround major policies are examined in depth and in historical perspective.

Montgomery, Ruth. A Search for Truth. Morrow, c1966. The author tells how her own initial skepticism about extrasensory perception has been changed into a conviction that there is a psychic talent in all of us capable of being developed.

Plagemann, R. The Best in Us. Yet To Be. Morrow, c1967. This novel reveals what happens when children are grown up and gone, and the parents are free... or at least think they are.

Yours, Jan. The Gypsies. Simon & Schuster, c1967. The author, who ran away with a band of gypsies when he was 12 and stayed with them for 10 years, describes their customs, their language, their social and religious life, and their stubborn determination to preserve their way of life.

Benning Sending Seven Teachers To State Event

Seven Fort Benning teachers will be official delegates representing the post's dependent schools at the 100th annual meeting of the Georgia Education Association in Atlanta, March 16-18.

Delegates to the centennial meeting are Mrs. Pearl Bracke, president of the Fort Benning Education Association, Miss Bennie Booth, Mrs. Nancy Southwood, Mrs. Nan Matthews, Ronald Cox, Mrs. Colleen O'Brian and George Coggins.

Others from Fort Benning schools who will participate in the meeting are Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of schools, Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, assistant superintendent for instruction, Mrs. Mildred Carter, centennial chairman, and Mrs. Cox.

1st Bn., 29th Inf. Marks 66th Year Since Formed

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Infantry battalion, a buffer unit, will celebrate the 66th anniversary of its formation on the 66th anniversary of the organization of the 29th Infantry Regiment on March 3, 1881, at Fort Benning, Ga. The day will begin with a review followed by a series of activities highlighted by a demonstration by the 26th Inf. Platoon (Squad Dog), commanded by MAJ John W. McKinney, a performance by the USAIC Honor Guard drill team, commanded by CPT James B. Byrnes, and a skydiving performance by the Fort Benning Skydiving Club.

Other events will include a static display of weapons and equipment organic to an Infantry battalion, a buffet luncheon and competitive games.

Organized 1901
The 29th Inf. Regt. was organized March 3, 1881, at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and was deployed a short time later to the Philippine Islands.

In 1910 the regiment was selected as the principal support unit for the newly established Infantry School at Fort Benning.

Today's Mission
Today, the 1st Battalion, the 29th Inf. Regt., is still supporting the Infantry School, as well as maintaining its combat readiness, conducting advanced Infantry training and training scout dog units for the Army and the Marine Corps.

The battalion is commanded by LTC John T. Tomlin, II. The executive officer is MAJ Harold J. Perry.

Richard Cummings, a former bridge instructor and instructor player, was soon recognized as a game player. As a result, Cummings was soon teaching bridge fundamentals to student groups at Tuskegee.

Cummings rapidly assumed the role of instructor, playing in and in a short time won three trophies in various tournaments.

Cummings reached a high point in his playing career in

Instructors Favor Burnoose Practicality

BURNOOSE HANDY ON BENNING RANGES

By SSG Snow Wilson

Instructors of The Infantry School's weapons department want to adopt the "burnoose."

The latest group of students, 20 Saudi Arabian students, 20 Saudi Arabian students, and an officer, showed how handy the colorful headgear is in keeping Georgia sand kicked up from the blast of recoilless rifles, from blowing down their necks.

The Arabians, whose red checked head coverings have brightened an otherwise drab winter at The Infantry Center for the past month, have been taking special courses in recoilless rifles, machine guns and mortars.

February is hardly the time for mirages but "after catching men with names like Saad Bin Sa'ad Al-Qahtani and Ahmed Bin Mohsin Al-Rashia for awhile," said SSG Harry F. Dreyer, "you start seeing camels down range."

Although language problems were solved by two interpreters, "We had some worry about military courtesy," added Dreyer. "Especially when it came to giving orders to Suitan Bin Khil Al-Qahani."

The "burnoose" probably will never become an official part of the uniform but don't be surprised if next summer, when you too see camels in the hot swirling sand down range at Fort Benning, they appear under the helmets of some instructors.

Some of the group, headed by CPT Hassen Shubail, also are officer candidates and all received a three-month course in English at their training at Fort Benning.

After completing their training here early this month, they are scheduled for more military instruction at Fort Lee, Va.

Extra Chapel Services Held To Serve OCS 'Overflow'

Protestant and Catholic "overflow" services for officer candidates and guests are conducted in Marshall Auditorium of The Infantry School headquarters building here each Sunday.

With officer candidate church attendance at more than 200, the commander of The Student Brigade, COL Ned B. Mabry, has arranged for two services to be conducted each Sunday morning in the auditorium in addition to those held in the regular chapels.

Aide Requests $42 Increase For Clothing

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Rising uniforms costs have prompted the assistant secretary of the Army for financial management to request the Secretary of Defense to increase the supplemental clothing allowance from its present $83 limitation to $125.

Within the past year, clothing prices have increased to a point where expenditures for the Army supplemental clothing allowance in five of the special categories exceeds the $83 limitation. The five categories, together with their Jan. 1, 1967, costs are: Military Ties, $31.80; escort duty, $91.80; recruiting duty, $87.50; and EW—$81.30; and band-aid allowance for enlisted women, $109.40.

There is a Protestant service at 9 a. m. in the auditorium conducted by either Chaplain (CPT) Clyde Northrop or Chaplain (MAJ) Ernie St. L. Stephens.

A Catholic service at 10:15 a. m. is conducted by Chaplain (MAJ) Edward Christoph.

Other services for candidates are the 9:30 and 11 a. m. Protestant and 12:15 p. m. Catholic worship hours at Sightsseeing Road Chapel, and 8 and 10 a. m. Episcopal services at Indianhead Road Chapel.

A fellowship hour for worshippers at all services is held at 10:30 a. m. each Sunday at Sightsseeing Road Chapel.

Realistic Training in Survival

Recruits See Snakes in Hands of Expert During Survival Training Instruction

By Greta Badgett

A touch of realism was added to the survival class for Co. B and Bn. 1st Bde, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, as recruits saw snakes in the hands of an expert instructor.

Trainers in the open-air demonstration, really as poisonous snakes as they are slithered on the ground—box turtle and four snakes, a few of the trainees had a feeling of "oh my" when they saw the snakes.

Steve Dobbs, curator of the reptile house at the Atlanta Zoo, is highly poisonous. The Eastern diamondback rattlesnake and copperhead are the most dangerous.

At the request of 2LT Joseph E. O'Connor, unit training officer, Dobbs made the trip to the training center, donating his time and, therefore, for the past nine years, in treating any snake bite.

Dobbs pointed out that snakes are edible. However, he said that the snakes are not to be eaten. He explained to the class that the marine toad, used in the demonstration, was highly poisonous. Pockets were located on each side of the toad's cankerbake rattlesnake.

The box turtle, although not poisonous, can become inedible once it has been re-toasted in the United States.

Observers of the class in the 1st Brigade, CPT Tom Noble, Company 2 commander, extended thanks and appreciation to Dobbs and the other officers of the 1st Brigade, CPT Tom Noble, Company 2 commander, LTC Ian-Besher, at the conclusion of the class.

The water moccasin, sometimes called cottonmouth, causes death and its bite inflicts tremendous pain. The diamondback rattlesnake is considered to be the most dangerous. Dobbs noted that only one-tenth of one per cent of the deaths in the U. S. are caused by snakebite. He stressed quick and accurate in nature—was of the utmost importance.

Dateline Vietnam

Army Aviation Plays Indispensable Part in Viet War

LONG BINH, Vietnam—When pondering over the Army's contributions to the combat effort during times of conflict, one immediately thinks of aggressive bayonet charges, massive tons of rolling steel mounted on tracks and the heavy, ominous artillery barrages.

But to what else does the Army contribute in both the offensive and support role? Quite simply, Army Aviation, which has become indispensable to the counterinsurgency endeavors in the Vietnamese conflict.

Vietnam has been in many ways the proving ground for Army Aviation and most particularly for the new developments and concepts which will permit even greater battlefield mobility and further enhance the fortunes of the ground soldiers in the overall Army effort.

Daily, Army aviators fly more sorties than all other services combined, providing support to all of the American Army units as well as many of the units of the other free world military forces.

Thousands of combat troops are transported all over Vietnam daily in any location that the supported ground unit commander designates. Hundreds of tons of cargo are hauled by both fixed and rotary wing aircraft, ranging from artillery pieces to badly needed medical supplies.

To make manifest Army aviator's role, a reference to past statistics is most pertinent. During a six month period from July 1 to December 31, 1966, the Army aviation command, the 10th Combat Avn. Gp., commanded by COL Raymond P. Campbell Jr., and presently composed of the 11th, 15th, and 22nd Combat Avn. Bns. was credited with the fantastic number of 794 confirmed VC KIA's and an estimated of 670 more KIA's. The same period saw a total of 700 structures destroyed by aviators of the group. Eighty-nine sampans were damaged and 68 were completely destroyed.

With the advent of the new rotary wing aircraft, developed by the 504th Armed Helicopter Co., a total of 900 sampans were destroyed during the month of December alone. In a single night, an additional 300 sampans were sunk during the six month period.

Considering that sampans are one of the Vietcong's primary means of transportation, the total devastation supporting every American Army and ARVN unit in the III Corps area.

Rotary Wing Assaults
Hundreds of combat assaults were executed as rotary wing aviators logged 113 thousand flying hours. Some 200 thousand rotary wing sorties were flown, delivering thousands of troops to hundreds of landing zones. An additional 110 thousand rotary wing logistical sorties were down transporting 400,000 lbs. of supplies, ammunition, medical supplies and rations.

A total of 541 thousand troops were airlifted during the six month period with a weekly average of more than 20 thousand. In the cargo capacity Group aviators flying versatile UH-1's and OH-67 Chinooks, transported approximately 1600 tons per week, with a six month total of 41 thousand tons.

Of 101 Bird Dogs, U-1 Otters, O-2's Mohawks, and CV-2 Caribous of the group, 11 flew over 75 thousand sorties while logging over 62 thousand flying hours during the six month period.

The ever present Bird Dog's unobstructed observation for a multitude of engagements in support of ground units. OH-1 aviators flew thousands of hours, adjusting artillery and directing air strikes.

Hundreds of observation sorties were flown in support of the VC in this vital area becomes even more significant.

Remarkable as the often vital role is, the main job of the group remains airlifting troops and cargo to any location on the battlefield. Flying in all types of adverse weather conditions, aviators registered over 175 thousand flying hours during the six month period while and combat troops transported, mainly by the CV-2 Caribous.

The sinister, looking eagle-eyed Mohawks provided daily flights, rendering battlefield radar surveillance all over the III Corps area and the vital Mokong Delta.

Group aviators, in their efforts to render all possible support to ground commanders, suffered normal combat losses.

Atlanta Airport Authority Has Relocated Booth Assisting Armed Forces Travelers

HQ, THIRD U.S. ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — The Armed Forces Transportation booth for military travelers at Atlanta Airport has been moved to a new location provided by the Atlanta Airport Authority.

The booth is now located in the center of the lobby at the airport. It was initially established to assist military personnel during the Christmas holiday period.

It is one of six such military information desks in the United States which has continued to operate on a 90-day trial basis.

POB Trial
The Department of Defense directed the continued operation of these booths to assess marking the opening of the booth at its new location was jointly with COL Scott M. Case, deputy post commander, Fort McPherson, Ga., of military men and women year-around permanent installations.

The booth, operated by the Fort McPherson Transportation Office, aided 8075 members of the Armed Forces and their dependents between January 15 and Feb. 15, 1967. During this period assistance was provided for 7888 military travelers.

Travel Coordinated
Workers at the information desk coordinate travel between air lines and bus and train stations and assist personnel of all the military services in many ways.

Five young women served as counselors at the booth, open for 24 hours each day. They are military and civilian personnel staffing the desk from the Post Transportation Office, headed by Frank W. O'Neal, post transportation officer.

Among other officials participating in the ribbon-cutting ceremony were LTC Kathleen O'Connor, M. S. Barbara Wheeler and Mrs. Charles D. Holton, director of Logistics, Fort McPherson; Carolyn McEever, counselors.

SSG H. B. Hartsorn, movement specialist; Grady Ridgeway, manager, Atlanta Airport, Mr. O'Neal, and Miss Kathleen O'Connor, M. S. Barbara Wheeler and Mrs. Charles D. Holton, director of Logistics, Fort McPherson; Carolyn McEever, counselors.

West Georgia Area Support Center Opens Here

A group of Army and Air Force Exchange Service employees played briefly at their work here last Monday with the traditional ribbon snipped to officially put them in business.

COL T. E. Tidale, Infantry Center director of personnel, cut the ribbon to announce the opening of the West Georgia Area Support Center (ASC).

Also present were COL A. G. Fraser Jr., deputy chief of Continental U. S. (CONUS) Operations Headquarters for Exchange services, Air Force COL J. C. Keardon, chief of Southern Services Center, and LTC J. G. Lovins, deputy director of personnel, The Infantry Center.

The ASC is, in effect, a business in itself, with a work force of about 70 people under the direction of S. Smith and deputy chief Philip Little.

Their area of activity will encompass inventory, procurement, supply and storage for AAFES facilities at Moody and Turner Air Force Bases and Forts McPherson and Benning in Georgia, along with Redstone Arsenal and Fort McClellan in Alabama.

The new agency is located in the old gymnasium on Ingraham street, the interior of which has been completely remodeled to provide offices, buyers' rooms and its own finance and accounting department.

In describing the reason for ASC, Smith said it was the result of reorganization within the Exchange system which made maximum use of existing Fort Benning's AAFES inventory and supply has been computerized for some time to provide better service. This service now will be extended to include the installations linked with ASC.

There will be little change in local procurement, Smith said, although it is feasible that from time to time local price or contracts offered by ASC eventually will become so attractive that the procurement for some items will be made here for all the installations within ASC.

There will be some boost to the local economy, Smith said, from ASC's payroll. Although a number of its employees already were residing in the Columbus area, and working at Fort Benning, a large proportion may be classified as "new blood" in either earning power or residency, or both.

Smith emphasized that his employees are not "warehouse people." Although ASC eventually will become responsible for existing storage facilities at each of the installations, its function here will be the initial processing of invoices for payment, procurement, and negotiation with buyers and contractors.

With the control of inventory levels and forecast of needs available through the computers' memory banks, Smith said it will assure that each installation serviced by ASC, as well as at Fort Benning, a customer need will be looking for and the size of pair of black socks will be met.

Scientists Seeking An Emulsified Fuel

BG Kenneth F. Dawalt, the deputy chief of the Army's Research and Development program, announced recently that Army scientists are working on a new emulsified fuel which is less flammable and splashes over a smaller area than present fuel mixtures.

This development stemmed from a study showing that most fatal aircraft takeoff and landing accidents resulted from fires.

Tests indicate that the fuel provides the new safety features at little cost of efficiency.

Spikers Enter Finals Of Volleyball Tourney

Spikers Enter Finals Of Volleyball Tourney

The cream of the volleyball on the shoulders of the six top teams in Benning's six-day tourney are placed. The School Bridge's two entries, the 41st Co. (Abn.) and Hq. Co., TSB, are roundly favored to win the national title.

1ST BN, NETTERS STOPPED 11TH BN. FOR ATC TITLE

1st Bn. Cops Volleyball Top Honors

The U. S. Army "Blue" pistol team overcame stiff opposition last week-end from the top service pistol teams to win the pistol team trophy in the 11th Bn. volley ball championship was captured last Friday night by 1st Bn.

The 1st Bn. entry did it the hard way when they charged through the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament to reach the finals and then clipped 11th Bn. four straight games in the finals.

In the first pair of games 1st Bn. took an early lead three times, but 11th Bn. fought back to keep the matches close. But 1st Bn. National pistol champion, closed strong each time and took both games by identical scores of 5-10.

After the break 1st Bn. had little trouble wrapping up the first game 10-4, but 11th Bn. put on a determined effort in the last contest before bowing 15-14.

The victory put 1st Bn. on the top volleyball championships as the USATCI representative.

Flyers' Bid to Tie Cut Short by 197th, CTC

By SSG Pat Moser

The 4th Avn. Bn. fluffed their chances to dethrone the best for first place between post battalion - level basket- ball and the 197th. Both suball race into a four-way tie for first place in the final round of play.

The CTC contingent has a 10-10, 21-21, and a 7-55 debacle which the 197th had a final test last night against House.

The two games were billed as the final hope for the 4th Avn. Bn. as the final hope for the 197th was to win the national title.

The 197th ran scared in the first half of their tussle with the 4th Tuesday night with one point separating them at mid-point. The second half proved a disaster for the aviators with the 197th winning easily, 73-55.

The 197th win kept alive the Infantryman's chance to get a shot at the CTC team in a playoff. The 197th had to get by the ATC last night at Kelley Field House to be assured of the chance.

Meanwhile the 43rd Engr. Bn. notched their first win of the season when the 68th Armor failed to show for their game Tuesday night at Kelley Hill. None of the Engineer losses have been due to forfeit. This is the second time that the 68th missed their appointment on the multiple court during the second half of the season.

Leavendusky Is Top Firer At Skeet Club

The International clay pigeon preliminary try outs held at the Fort Benning Trap and Skeet Club over the weekend were won by PVT Edward Leavendusky who posted an amazing 186, two points off the 1954 Olympic high fired by Ennio Maltarello of Italy.

Leavendusky, of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, repeated his Saturday 98 'fill' performance with his second 98 in as many days. His closest competitor was teammate SP4 Jim Beck who fired 94-85 for a 189 in the two-day match.

Leavendusky, a 19-year-old from Kansas City, was a junior All American trap shooter four years straight and is a top figure skater in the U. S. Figure Skating Association.

Norman Pritchett, of Columbus, Ga., posted an 89 Saturday to lead all civilian entries, but registered only 79 Sunday for his second place civilian total of 168.

Harry Howell, a civilian from Atlanta fired 87-95 for a 182 and first civilian honors. High military went to Alan Henderson of the Navy who ended up with a 178.

An amateur Trapshooting Association representative Hugh L. McKinley of Vandalia, Ill., presented the awards following Sunday's shooting.

The 197th ran scared in the first half of their tussle with the 4th Tuesday night with one point separating them at mid-point. The second half proved a disaster for the aviators with the 197th winning easily, 73-55.

MTU Edges Competition, Tops Mark at Dade Meet

The U. S. Army "Blue" pistol team overcame stiff opposition last week-end from the top service pistol teams to win the pistol team trophy in the 11th Bn. volley ball championship was captured last Friday night by 1st Bn.

SSG Bonnie Harrison won the center fire aggregate with 884-40, while Hamilton fired 882-48 for second place.

In the 45 Caliber Aggregate, LT Anthony Mucci, USAF, fired 890-47 for first place. SSG Dwight Thyarks placed second with 880-40 and SSG Hartland Remond placed third with 883-34.

On his way to the Service Pistol aggregate victory, Thompson won the rapid fire match with 200-15 and the National Match Course with 288-15.

Blankenship won the slow match with 191-5 and the Haugalter took the timed center fire rapid fire with 200-12.

The 197th ran scared in the first half of their tussle with the 4th Tuesday night with one point separating them at mid-point. The second half proved a disaster for the aviators with the 197th winning easily, 73-55.

The 197th win kept alive the Infantryman's chance to get a shot at the CTC team in a playoff. The 197th had to get by the ATC last night at Kelley Field House to be assured of the chance.

Meanwhile the 43rd Engr. Bn. notched their first win of the season when the 68th Armor failed to show for their game Tuesday night at Kelley Hill. None of the Engineer losses have been due to forfeit. This is the second time that the 68th missed their appointment on the multiple court during the second half of the season.

The 197th ran scared in the first half of their tussle with the 4th Tuesday night with one point separating them at mid-point. The second half proved a disaster for the aviators with the 197th winning easily, 73-55.

The Observer

—by Larry Mahoney—

Thumbing through the sports pages of Sunday's New York Times in search for a bit of information that might inspire a column, I began to realize that a desperate time of year this is for a man not inclined toward baseball, ignorant of horse racing and bored by track. There were, however, two articles which held my attention, being in the military that I am, so I'll pass them on.

The first, datelined St. Petersburg, Fla., dealt with one Tog McGraw, a 22-year-old pitcher for the New York Mets who is best known as the first Met hurler to defeat Sandy Koufax. Like most young men, McGraw is contending with a hitch in the service. He is PFC Edgar McGraw, a Marine Corps Reserve rifleman, trained to kill with the M-16, the M-60 and karate.

The other article came from Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, and it, concerned an athlete who wears the uniform of his country. This is LT Ababa Bahata of Ethiopia's Imperial Bodyguard. He is expected to run away with the marathon in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City. Abbebe was the world's best in that event at Rome in 1960 and at Tokyo in 1964.

At Fort Benning we've seen more than a few sack soldier - athletes this year, most of them reservists in basic training. The Atlanta Falcons have been most numerous, with professional football giants like Junior Coffey, Steve Sloan and Tommy Nobis, NFL rookie of the year, dominating pot and sack until the 1967 season begins.

But back to the Marine and the Imperial Guard. PFC McGraw, a left-hander, had just completed the Marine Corps school in counter-guerrilla warfare before his civilian occupation called him south for still more rigorous training. He told the Times reporter of similarities he could see between baseball and guerrilla war — that aggressiveness, pride and instant reactions are crucial to both. The man who at 28 beat Koufax summed up his military experience like this: "We're called 'grunts' in the Marines. We're ground troops. They harass you in camp, they paych you. They yell you that now you know all this counter-guerrilla warfare, you're a trained killer."

LT Abbebe Bikila is, unlike McGraw, a career military man. Since the days when Ethiopia's barefoot soldiers ran circles around the Italian legions of Mussolini, his country's army has been famed for producing lean long distance runners. "Training is important," the 35-year-old guardsman says, "if someone is serious about Mexico City, it just means that the person did more training than I did."

To those of us who grunt and groan through our periodic mile runs in the Army, Abbebe's ability can seem astounding. Each morning, he's out of bed at six and running up the hills of Addis Ababa, 10 long miles without getting out of breath.

Don't look for the million-dollar speed war between Ferrari and Ford to break out again at Sebring April 1. A showdown is coming soon, June 18-21 at Le Mans, so the Italian automaker has decided to skip Sebring and stake all on retaining the manufacturers' championship at Le Mans.

It was at Le Mans last that Henry Ford II, after investing something like $5,500,000, watched his Ford end Ferrari's five-year walkway with all first, second and third places. Since then, Ford has humiliated by the masterful Ferrari team at Daytona. According to The London Observer, the last one at Le Mans was a five 702cc prototypes entered by Ford, and three 430cc Ferraris.

At Rifle, Pistol Club Range Available For Any Shooter

It's ready on the right and ready on the left at Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club at any time. Whether you fire a rifle or pistol they have got a range for you. On the 50-point pistol range equipped with 25 yard and 50 yard target frames, the "Army's finest" pistol shooters have been "bused" since 1961 when the club was formed. And even before this, they stuck frames in the ground, paced off the required distance and banged away at the slow and rapid fire targets. Starting with just a few stationary target frames and a rough shooting stand, the range has grown into an elaborate range with a covered firing point and electrically operated targets. Thomas Kirkman, the club manager, says, "This range is the home of the U. S. Army Pistol Team but our club has facilities for rifle shooters as well."

Now OC Here Porsche Driver Has Run With Racing's Greatest

In his Junior year of high school, OC Dan Neiswander made his debut in the sports car arena. In July, 1963, in his '37 stock Porsche, he raced his way to second place in the Porsche Club of America's Tijuana - Ensenada Race. With his brother Greg as navigator, Neiswander completed the 100 miles of grueling roadway, nearly running off a mountain side as a donkey sauntered onto the road.

Observed by Vasek Polak, famous international Porsche dealer, he was offered a position driving one of Polak's fastest models, a fresh from Germany, in the Laguna Sica Race. In 1963 and '64 he placed first in this annual class.

Serviceman Wins Whirlwind Trip From Vietnam to Daytona '500'

A serviceman stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., was chosen from over 20,000 commercial club open to all servicemen and offers up-to-date information on happenings at the Daytona '500. Hobbs, of Fort Worth, Tex., has just completed an auto-racing filled week far from his Vietnam post. As winner of the Hurst Armed Forces Club sponsored "Date at Daytona" contest, Hobbs was whisked from his combat post 150 miles south of Saigon last week around the world to Daytona Beach, Fla., for the annual Daytona 500 stock car race.

The "Date at Daytona" contest was a project of the Hurst Armed Forces Club under the leadership of George Hurst. (The Armed Forces Club is a free non-commercial club open to all servicemen and offers up-to-date information on happenings at the Daytona '500.)

After the contest winner was chosen, the Defense Department immediately notified Hobbs and arrangements were soon made to air-lift him from his Army installation, 150 miles south of Saigon, and start the trip back to the states. Only 20 hours later he was back in San Diego, enroute to Florida.

Unknown to Hobbs beforehand, the special plane carrying him made a surprise stop in California to pick up his wife.

After arriving in Daytona Beach, being greeted by civic officials, and given a key to the city, he was given a special escort to a hotel on the beach. A special version of the newly released Pontiac Firebird was made available for his use. Since Hobbs was married, Linda A. Vaughn quickly assumed the role of "big sister" to him and his wife. Hobbs kept up his flying time with a special ride in the famous Goodyear Blimp.

The young sailor took very special pride in his first day at Daytona International Speedway. He thanks and appreciation to the crowd of almost 100,000 fans. He then joined the crowd in the special pace car 1/4 mile tri-oval to a start in the 500. During the race, Hobbs occupied a vantage point in the pits where the race cars

NCOIC of Rifle Team MTU's Day Quite Proud Of Pan Am Participation

MSG William E. Day, NCOIC of the Denver, Colo., NCOIC of the Forces Southern Command, Marksmanship Training Unit, MTU here, expressed pride in what he termed the first participation in the Eighth Pan American Invitational. The sergeant continued, "It's too bad that our team and commitments are so heavy, for often countries write to our unit heads asking that we visit their participating nations during the off-season to help coach their team members. We wish we could," he said. "It was impossible."

Each year the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Denver, Colo., NCOIC of the Forces Southern Command, Marksmanship Training Unit, MTU here, expressed pride in what he termed the first participation in the Eighth Pan American Invitational. The sergeant continued, "It's too bad that our team and commitments are so heavy, for often countries write to our unit heads asking that we visit their participating nations during the off-season to help coach their team members. ## Pro Soccer Atlanta Chiefs to Be Backed By Elks in Opening Contest

Georgia's 22,000 Elks, anxious to help get Atlanta's first professional soccer team off the ground, will sponsor the opening game of the Atlanta Chiefs April 22. The announcement was made last week by the Chiefs and Roy Jaekel, club president of the Georgia Elks Association directs the activities of 42 Elks lodges around the state.

Season ticket prices are $40 for the first seat purchased, $45 for the second seat purchased, and $40 for every seat purchased thereafter. These prices apply to upper, field, and dugout level seats at Atlanta Stadium. Club level seats may be purchased for $80. These purchasing tickets to the club level will be granted free parking for all of the Chiefs 12 home games.

The Chiefs meet the Los Angeles Toros in the first home game for Atlanta's new entry in the National Professional Soccer League (NPSL), April 22 at Atlanta Stadium. According to Chiefs officials, a substantial portion of the gate receipts will be turned over to the Elks, who will in turn donate it to Atlanta's Admore Children's Hospital.

The Chiefs' opener will be the first of 16 games at home. Coach Phil Wosman's team will debut a week earlier, meeting the Baltimore Bays April 16 at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, 10 teams.

The National Professional Soccer League is composed of 10 teams including the Chiefs. Others are: The Stars, The New York Generals, The Philadelphia Spartans, The Pittsburgh Phantoms, The Chicago Spurs, The Los Angeles Toros, The St. Louis All Stars, The California Clippers and the Toronto Falcons.

Season or single game tickets for the Chiefs' 1967 home games may be ordered from: Atlanta Chiefs ticket office, Atlanta Stadium, Atlanta, Ga., 30312.

THE DRILL SERGEANT 'Average' Drill Sergeant Spends 14 Hours Daily Training Recruits

How many hours a day does a drill sergeant spend with his platoon? This question was posed to SFC Catalina Neris, Co. C, 12th Bn., 8th Afd., U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, by GEN Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, during a recent visit to Fort Benning.

Neris answered, "Sir, just as many as it takes. It averages about 14 hours a day."

The general then asked him about his family — did he have children and did he find time to spend with them?

The sergeant replied, "I guess you would say my wife is raising the family now, during a recent visit to Fort Benning."

To that the general responded that evidently while the drill sergeants were raising the Army's children, their wives had the responsibility at home.

Said Capable According to SGM Calvin C. Willis, 12th Battalion, the general could not have questioned a more capable drill sergeant.

He said, "Sergeant Neris has every attribute it takes to make an outstanding drill sergeant. He is dedicated, efficient and loyal. He not only takes an interest in his platoon as a whole, but is personally concerned with each individual trainee."

The sergeant earned the commandant's trophy, awarded as the Drill Sergeant's School, Fort Jackson, S. C., to the individual who has shown outstanding performance, appearance and displayed superior leadership qualities.

By Performing Excelling in performance of duties is "old hat" to Neris. His most recent challenge — turning basic trainees in the 3rd Platoon into exemplary soldiers — resulted in his receiving the 12th Battalion rotating Platoon Sergeant's Plaque.

At the completion of each training cycle, one of the platoons in the battalion is cited for achieving the highest average score in all phases of testing — rifle marksmanship, physical combat proficiency and individual proficiency. This plaque was presented to Neris during the commanders orientation of the present training cycle by LTC Lawrence D. Thompson, 12th Battalion commander.

At that time, Neris remarked, "It's a big job converting civilians to soldiers in eight weeks — we have to know what we're doing."

Army Cites Volunteers For Vietnam

WASHINGTON (ANF)—The Army's Vietnam volunteer program has been both active and productive this year—reflecting the "esprit de corps" of the individual soldier and local community emphasis placed on the program.

Since the program was begun on July 1, 1964, 67,987 officers and 59,804 enlisted men have submitted volunteer applications for Vietnam duty.

During calendar year 1966, a total of 41,556 of those who had volunteered for this duty were assigned to Vietnam during 1966. More than doubled the number assigned under the program during the previous 19 months.

Presently, over 60,000 soldiers have been assigned to Vietnam as volunteers.

Founders Day Dinner Here Draws Nearly 220 of 'Long Grey Line'

Nearly 220 members of the long grey line gathered Tuesday to celebrate the 165th anniversary of the founding of the United States Military Academy.

The dinner, sponsored by the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus, was held at the Main Officers Open Mess.

MG Donald V. Bennett, superintendent, USMA, talked with the West Pointers about the old, the new and the continuing factors unique to the academy.

He prefaced his remarks by saying that West Point is the only military academy in the United States the mission of which is to train and educate capable leaders.

In addition, he said, the common environment of the cadets at the academy allows them to learn readily from each other.

The mutuality of interest between the instructors and cadets is another factor which he stressed. West Point instructors are Regular Army officers who have volunteered to teach and have been prepared to do so by earning a graduate degree in a particular discipline. They are military and academic professionals who possess a keen interest in their students, he said.

Hinson said only 1500 guests can be accommodated and only tickets for 1500 have been distributed. Tickets have been allocated to units in ratio to their AUSA membership and

Post Is Toured By 14 Visitors From Bundestag

Fourteen members of the Federal Republic of Germany Bundestag arrived here yesterday for a two-day tour of post facilities and observation of training techniques.

The group is headed by Josef Rommelskirchen of the Bundestag Defense Committee.

The visitors arrived at Lawson Army Airfield at 10:30 a.m. with the balance of the morning devoted to a series of briefings after an official welcome from MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander.

During their stay, the visitors toured, observed demonstrations, and attended briefings on phases of airborne training, instant firing, helicopter employment and classical circuit television instruction.

Tickets Distributed Here for AUSA Dinner

Tickets were distributed to post units and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce this week for the semi-annual dinner to be held in two hangars at Lawson Army Airfield.

According to R. L. Hinson, president of the local AUSA chapter, hangar 202 will be used for a social hour beginning at 7 p.m., after which guests will move into hangar 201 for the dinner and the senator's address.

Only 1500 guests can be accommodated and only tickets for 1500 have been distributed. Tickets have been allocated to units in ratio to their AUSA membership and

Campaign Underway to Rid Post Of Potential Sources of Rabies

The Wildlife Management Section here is engaged in a campaign to get rid of potential rabies — carrying predators — aiming for skunks, foxes, woods. Dogs should not be permitted to accompany hunters nor fishermen during the rabies control program.

The rabies control program provides protection for troops training in the area, game animals and livestock.

Infantry School To Offer Newest Advanced Course For First Time This June

The U. S. Army Infantry School will offer for the first time this summer a new phase of the time Infantry Officer Mobilization Advanced Course which will replace the 14-week Associate Career resident course, to be discontinued after next September.

The new course, results from a recommendation of a special board appointed by GEN Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff and headed by LTG Ralph Haines.

It is designed to prepare officers of the Reserve components not on active duty for Infantry command and staff duties at battalion through brigade levels. The course also provides such officers with a faster means of obtaining their military education and qualifications for promotion.

Concept of the course includes a nonresident phase of 13,000 soldiers at the other end of the spectrum. BG Mount spoke on the theme of "professionalism."

Following the monthly luncheon of the senior sergeants at the 7-8-9 NCO Club, BG Mount spoke on the theme of "professionalism."

He pointed up the fact that current wartime expansion has created vacancies in key military positions. "This highest enlisted plateau, you thereby must possess the highest degree of military competence."

He called upon the veteran soldiers to use that competence in furthering the professional development not only of the young noncommissioned officers but also of the junior lieutenants and captains, with advice and assistance from the sergeant.

BG Mount closed by saying that the proper development of these young officers and enlisted men is perhaps "our most important mission."

"Not only are they the nucleus of our war effort in Vietnam, but in their ranks also contained the policymakers and executives of the Army's future," the general said.

Sergeants Major Hear BG Mount at Luncheon

BG Charles M. Mount Jr. whose mission as commander here centers around some 13,000 soldiers at the other end of the spectrum, said that "Our first term soldiers are being sent and trained by young sergeants with as few as two years service."

He said these young non-commissioned officers have earned their stripes through hard work and ambition but still lacked practical experience and opportunity to apply their own training to a combat situation.

BG Mount told the assembled sergeants major that "Having reached the Army's highest enlisted plateau, you thereby must possess the highest degree of military competence."

He called upon the veteran soldiers to use that competence in furthering the professional development not only of the young noncommissioned officers but also of the junior lieutenants and captains, with advice and assistance from the sergeant.

BG Mount closed by saying that the proper development of these young officers and enlisted men is perhaps "our most important mission."

"Not only are they the nucleus of our war effort in Vietnam, but in their ranks also contained the policymakers and executives of the Army's future," the general said.

pect the 1500 tickets to be around very long."

Civilian members may get tickets through the Chamber of Commerce or by mailing a check to the chapter secretary-treasurer, P.O. Box 2086.

School

(four weeks) of the course will be conducted at Fort Benning June 24 to July 22 and the second phase (six weeks) will be held July 22 to September 2. The two week increments will start June 24, July 8, July 22, August 5, and August 19.

For those students who are unable to attend all or any of the resident blocks of instruction in the new course, the Infantry School has redesigned its current career extension subcourses in equivalents to the resident phases of the mobilization advanced course.

No Overlap

Thus, an officer can attend complete blocks of instruction and substitute extension subcourses for those not attended without a gap or overlap in the sequence of instruction, or he can complete the entire program by extension course.

The three-year requirement for completion will also apply to this category of students.

The Army Extension Course Committee, Department of

169 Become Lieutenants In Ceremony

Increasingly difficult challenges consistent with the growth of their capabilities could be expected in their new careers, BG Winant said. He told 169 graduates of an Officer Candidate class here last week.

BG Sidle, director of Defense Information Office of the Secretary of Defense, was introduced by BG James S. Timothy, assistant commander of the Infantry School.

BG Sidle also discussed United States political objectives and military plans for Vietnam.

Distinguished honor graduate was 2LT Wayne E. Glover who also was first in leadership. Academic honors went to 2LT Billy W. Hyre. Commendations were awarded in six branches. Infantry led with 101, Military Police 24, Intelligence 22, Adjutant General 11, Chemical nine and Finance three.

SSO To Host Concert

The Entertainment Section of Special Services will host a free concert by the 80 senior members of the Canton High School Band of Canton, Illinois.

The performance will take place at Kelley Hill Service Club on Sunday at 2 p.m. Everyone is cordially invited.

Nonresident Instruction of the Infantry School is now accepting new applications or requests for conversion to the mobilization course.

Qualifications: To qualify for the resident phases, a student must be a commissioned officer of the Army Reserve or components not on active duty, whose actual or anticipated assignment is Infantry, or whose duties, actual or anticipated, require a working knowledge of the Infantry branch.

They must not have received actual or constructive credit for the Infantry Advanced or Career Course, must be physically qualified for service as prescribed in AR 40-501, have a SECRET security clearance, have a minimum of three years, and preferably not more than 12 years of commissioned service, and must have completed Phase I, the preparatory extension portion of the course.

Waivers from this last requirement may be requested from the Infantry School, desiring to attend the first or second phase.

The Infantry School has announced that his class States Army Reserve School Program of Instruction will continue as presently constituted, at least for the next complete school year.

develop the complete personnel file. All cadets must complete the total course of instruction. Their training is academic, military and physical.

MG Bennett said that two opposing characteristics stressed — an attempt to instill in its men a willing, disciplined obedience to instructions and a desire to search for knowledge, to ask "why?" Obedience and an inquiring, challenging mind help to make for a successful leader, he added.

When you drive too fast -- you gamble with your life

At 20 years of age, the average person has about 25 million minutes to live. At age 60, there are still 5 million left according to our present life span.

When you drive "too fast for conditions" or cheat a little on the posted speed limits, you are gambling. You may not agree with this, of course. In fact, you will probably be thinking of how many times you've done it "and nothing happened."

How many minutes have you actually saved? A hundred, a thousand, or more? Whatever they amount to, they cannot compare to the being equal odds of the minutes left in your life.

Amendment solves problem of Presidential succession

After 160 years of constitutional ambiguity and many years of careful study and research, the problem of Presidential disability and succession has been resolved and defined within the limits of human foresight and planning.

The 25th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, ratified Feb. 10, 1967, gives the Nation an explicit means of dealing with a variety of disability of the President.

Section One of the amendment specifically authorizes the Vice President to become President in the event of the death or resignation of the President, rather than assuming only the "powers and duties" of the office.

Although this has been the custom since 1841 when John Tyler succeeded President William Henry Harrison, it was never officially stated in the Constitution.

To further insure that a qualified alternate is always available to assume the responsibilities of the Presidency in the event of crises, Section Two of the amendment gives the President authority to appoint, with the consent of both houses of Congress, a new Vice President whenever that office is vacant.

Thus, whenever a Vice President succeeds to the Presidency or dies in office and the office of Vice President is unfilled, the President is assured of being able to fill the office almost immediately rather than waiting until the next national election.

Section Three of the amendment provides a method for the President to temporarily transfer power to the Vice President at any time and to resume that power on his own option. This will allow an exhausted or ill President to gain respite from the burdens of his office.

Disagreements over a President's physical or mental condition and the automatic exercise of his powers and duties by the Vice President under certain conditions are covered by Section Four of the amendment.

Thus the question of Presidential disability, long a serious problem, has been resolved, and the Nation is assured of continuity in the exercise of the powers and duties of our most important office. (AFNB)

Location Controls

Many of the questions which do arise will be controlled by the place or state in which the acts or relationship arose.

The majority of our parent-child problems arise out of the failure to pay child support payments which a court in a divorce proceeding has ordered to be paid. The usual rule is that the father or parent must pay these payments or be faced with the prospect of being held in confinement by civilian courts until the payments are made.

Condition of teeth affects a person's general health

The following is an adaptation of an article from the "Journal of the District of Columbia Dental Society." The following article, written by a physician, appeared in the "American Medical Times" dated June 23, 1961.

It is almost needless to refer to the necessity for having good teeth in our Army and Navy; first for mastication, and second but most important, for their effect on general health.

It is well known to the dental profession that all diseases common to the teeth cannot only be cured, but may be prevented by proper and timely treatment. Therefore, we desire to urge upon the professional authorities that a corps of dentists or a dental staff be attached to the United States Army.

During the last year, draft examinations of recruits disclosed that many of these had bad teeth. A recruit was required to have six opposing front teeth, not for chewing food but to bite the cartridge in battle.

Brushing the teeth was the fashion of the day in Europe, but was not generally practiced in the United States. In France, a recruit was issued to every soldier as standard equipment. (To Be Continued)

'Unmentionable' diseases often blind, cripple, kill

The diseases that nobody wants to talk about are among the very ones that can blind, cripple or even kill.

If VD is to be conquered, however, it must be by a straight-forward approach. The AMA and medical societies throughout the country are encouraging people to (1) avoid exposure to VD, (2) seek prompt examination and necessary treatment, and (3) report to their doctor, abnormally and completely, their possible contacts with the disease.

Only by this lawful method can VD be eliminated. And only then can conscientious people stop talking about it.

Venereal disease is passed by intimate personal contact.

VA Psychiatrist Views Problem of Overweights

A government psychiatrist says the old belief that fat people are happier than thin people may be true — for some people, anyway.

In any case, he suggests it might sometimes be better to let well enough alone.

Dr. Howard D. Kurland, chief of the psychiatric service at the VA research hospital in Chicago, said some very fat people have no serious mental problems "until their food intake is reduced and weight reduction is required."

He based his findings on a study of 30 service men and reported that the most realistic demands

The Judge Says ...

Father is required by law to provide child's support

Just what is the duty a father owes his child? To what extent is he liable to law for the child's support and maintenance?

The primary duty owed by the parents to the child is to maintain him and to provide for all necessities of life. In Georgia and in many other states this duty is owed by the father even though the child be illegitimate. This duty is supported by illegitimate children in support of statute.

Just what does this support consist of and what things are necessities? Of course, food and clothing and shelter are items which must be furnished. Furthermore, the father would be held responsible for luxuries furnished the child, but reasonable standards are required.

Length of Duty

Just how long does this duty exist? The duty exists until the child reaches majority, which is usually 21 years of age. This duty may also be terminated through emancipation. Emancipation may result when the parents consent to the child's living apart from them and keeping his own wages, which the father is entitled to while he is maintaining the child.

However, a divorce decree awarding custody of minor children to the mother does not relieve the father from the legal obligation to properly support his children.

It should be noted also that the custody of a child may be taken away when the child is found under circumstances of destitution or status; such as adoption, liability of the parent for the child's torts or wrongful acts, and the parents right to recover for services rendered by a child or injuries inflicted upon the child.

Quote of the Week

"The Long Gray Line has never failed us. We are now 40, a million ghosts in olive drab, in brown khaki, in blue and gray would rise from their white crosses thundering these magic words: Duty, Honor, Country!" — General of the Army, Douglas MacArthur, at the U.S. Military Academy, May 12, 1962.

CAR Wives 'Top It Off' At Country Club Lunch

"Topping it off" was the object of a March 9 brunch at the Country Club for the student wives of the Infantry Officers' Career Course No. 2. The program was a fashion show of new spring bonnets.

While seated at tables decorated with hats displayed on tree limb pedestals draped with jewelry and scarves, the wives watched a gay parade of stylish straw and flowered hats.

Models for the style show were Mrs. Henry J. Kenny,

Mrs. Ronald E. Gray, Mrs. Carl J. Koppis, Mrs. Thomas A. Koontop and Mrs. John E. Murphy.

Mrs. Chris G. Gigicos narrated at the colorful program from a local millinery store. Background piano music was provided by Mrs. Ralph B. Garretson.

Fashion Editor Speaks to 84th Wives at Luncheon

"HINTS ON FASHION" was the theme at a recent luncheon held for the student wives of the 84th Co., 8th Stn. Bn. (GC), in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club.

Miss Mary Margaret Byrne, fashion editor of The Columbus Ledger - Enquirer, spoke to the wives on the world of high fashion.

Using pictures of the Spring fashions, including a party suit, an evening dress and one of the new test dresses, she illustrated the coming styles.

Miss Byrne also discussed the different figure types that are complemented by these styles.

Each candidate wife was presented an honorary diploma in P.H.T. (Pushin Hubby Thrift) by Mrs. John R. Milroy.

Mrs. Robert H. York, Mrs. Ned B. Mabry, Mrs. Oliver J. Willford III, Mrs. Robert H. Stecker and Mrs. John R. Milroy were honored guests attending the luncheon.

THE LADIES OF ACAR III recently held their monthly luncheon in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Club.

A representative from a local department store presented a show featuring Spring fashions. The clothes previewed were for a complete day, from lounging to evening apparel.

The decorations featured garlands of colorful artificial flowers arranged down the center of each table and cascading from greenery in the fountain.

Mrs. Wallace Viau greeted the ladies and welcomed the guests. They were Mrs. Nayson Saff, wife of Major Saff of Iraq, Mrs. Dale Burroughs,

Easter Theme Used by Wives For Luncheon

With Easter as the theme of the luncheon, the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club was converted into a veritable Easter Egg for the ladies of the Infantry Agency last week.

The invitations were in the shape of Easter eggs and the table decorations were multi-colored eggs hung from trees with individual Easter baskets.

A short business meeting was held by Mrs. DeBrooke. Mrs. Joseph Schmalhorst was installed as hospitality chairman succeeding Mrs. Don Walden.

IT'S BRAGG RIGHT... The NCO Wives Club featured a display of hats at its luncheon Wednesday in Crain Hall, but Mrs. William V. Webb departed from that theme to model a sharmock-bedecked dress and wish the guests a hearty "Eier go bragg" in tribute to St. Patrick's Day. (Photo by Ken Prater)

Sodality President Takes Office at 7-8-9 Breakfast

Mrs. Marshall Stogner recently was installed as president of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary here. Chaplain (LTC) John R. Diez, post Catholic chaplain, conducted the installation ceremony at a breakfast at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Edward Cummings, vice president, Mrs. Herbert Kerner, secretary, Mrs. James Wiggins, and Chaplain Diez presented a Bible and a plaque of the Virgin Mary to the outgoing president, Mrs. Stogner. Mrs. Stogner presented a St. Christopher Medal and chain, and Chaplain (LTC) John J. Kowlsky, who received a plaque.

Chaplain Litekay has been assigned to Vietnam and Chaplain Kowlsky to the staff of The Chaplain School at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

Two new priests, Chaplain (MAJ) Edward J. Christoph and Chaplain (CPT) Oscar W. Carlson, were welcomed to the post.

All Catholic women here are invited to attend the Holy sacrifice of the mass with Sodality on the first Friday of each month at 9:30 a.m. at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Dear Community Service

My husband is in Vietnam and I am living here in Columbus with my four children ages 8, 6, 2 and 2 months. Next week I will need to be in the hospital for about three days to have a major but necessary operation, and I do not know what to do with my children.

My neighbors cannot care for my children, even though they are well behaved, because all my neighbors have their own children to look after.

Also, I cannot afford to pay anybody to take care of the children for that amount of time. Do you know who I can do with them?

CONCERNED MOTHER

Your situation is by no means unique. Our office has worked with many wives in similar situations. Our recommendations in getting someone to care for your children while you are hospitalized are:

First, contact your relatives and in-laws to see if they can care for the children. As your neighbors are unable to assist we suggest that secondly you discuss with your minister or preacher your dilemma in hope that he may be able to call on church organizations or parishioners to be able to care for your children as properly cared for in your absence.

Our third recommendation is that if you have unsuccessfully exhausted the previous two resources please contact Army Community Service as we do have a limited number of Army wives who have volunteered to provide emergency short term child care in event the parent or parents become incapacitated.

Golf Clinic Set For Post Wives

The first ladies golf clinic at Sand Hill Golf Course will be held April 4 with golf pro Jim McMahon instructing. Five one-hour sessions will be held from 10 - 11 a.m. on April 4, 6, 7, 11 and 13. Dependents of active duty and retired military can register for the clinic by calling 544-7428. Deadline for registration is 5 p.m. April 2. Some equipment will be provided by Special Services during the clinic, McMahon said.

One of the few left-handed professionals in golfing, McMahon said.

Gem Theme Highlights Medical Wives' Lunch

Diamonds, pearls and jade, mums and daisies adorned the "gems" at last week's luncheon of the Medical Services Officers' Wives' Club at the Main Officers' Club.

Newcomers who were welcomed into the club were Mrs. Elwood F. Wilkins Jr., Mrs. Paul L'Homme, Mrs. Joseph Lihorette, Mrs. Lloyd Johnson, Mrs. Tommy Byers, Mrs. Frank Broome, Mrs. William J. Irvine Jr., Mrs. Mel S. Pelot, Mrs. Michael Simpson and Mrs. Wayne Mitchell.

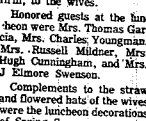

The luncheon tables were decorated with pink and white hyacinths in flower baskets.

The jewels and jewelry were the subject of a talk by Howard Glover, representative of a downtown jewelry firm, to the wives.

Honored guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Thomas Garcia, Mrs. Charles Youngman, Mrs. Russell Midler, Mrs. Hugh Cunningham, and Mrs. J. Emore Swenson.

Complements to the straw and flowered hats of the wives were the luncheon decorations of Spring flowers.

A mass Spring arrangement of gladioli, chrysanthemums and daisies adorned the center table.

What About Eggs?

Today, there is some controversy about eating such foods as chilton pies which are made with raw egg whites.

However, if a few precautions are taken, there should be little hazard in eating them.

First, be sure that eggs have been refrigerated, and refrigerate the pie or other product immediately after making it.

Keep it cool before serving and refrigerate leftovers.

Wash the eggs that you use in the pie and avoid cracked eggs. Clean, cool eggs and products that are kept cool reduce chances of food poisoning.

Lots of Dough

If your family loves hot dinner rolls, you seldom find time to make them. The way out of your problem may be to use refrigerated yeast dough.

You mix the dough when you have the time and refrigerate it until about two hours before baking. Then you shape the rolls, let them rise and bake them.

Doughs made with at least 1/4 cup sugar and milk will keep about three days. Doughs made with water will keep about five days.

Place dough in refrigerator after mixing.

Cut off as much dough as you'll need and put the remainder back into the refrigerator.

Mrs. J. I. Muir, Lady on the Go

BY JANE DANIELS

Mrs. James I. Muir, the wife of the president of the Infantry Board, is a lady on the go.

She is the "first lady" of a family of three children, the third-vice president of OWC and as such the chairman of the Thrift Shop, a member of the administrative committee of Army Community Services, the mother of three children, a wonderfully efficient homemaker and a genuinely amiable person.

With her constant whirl of activities, she must be satisfied with a minimum time left over for her hobbies of gardening and needlepoint.

MRS. JAMES MUIR
Froud Heritage

It is hard to imagine her as a grandmother, but a grandmother she is.

Kathleen the little granddaughter will be coming to Fort Benning soon with her father, CPT James I. Muir III, who will return from Vietnam in April to report for duty at Fort Benning's Infantry School.

In 1891 the Muirs began a two year tour in Vietnam which Mrs. Muir enjoyed. At that time, travel was not menaced by Viet Cong and she was able to visit many of the beautiful places and plantations that are now ravaged by war.

While in Vietnam she worked with a wives group that helped Vietnamese war-orphans; carried cigarettes, candy, and magazines to the Vietnamese and started a rehabilitation program for the Vietnamese.

Brass conchshell lamps, delicate tables made from fishing traps, and oriental elephants are some of the beautiful articles which the Muirs added to their home during that tour.

From 1929 - 1962, Mrs. Muir was back in Hawaii, at Fort Shafter and at Schofield Barracks. Even first time in 20 years, even though her family had moved to California by then, she enjoyed being at Schofield Barracks. The wife of her father's old firm; she was manager of the Thrift Shop there and worked with the Thrift Shop and with the Red Cross at Schofield Barracks.

After another three years in Washington, the Muirs came to Fort Benning, in 1966.

Besides noting the love-

Fashion Show to Feature Styles for Entire Family

BY LYNN JONES

A "La Mode" fashion show aimed at children, teenagers and adults will be presented at Fort Benning's Theater No. 1 tonight at 8:30. It is sponsored by the Officers' Wives Club.

Many Columbus merchants will be represented and first shown from their shops will reflect the new colors and styles of spring.

A Parisienne outdoor setting will be featured as the backdrop interest for the fashion show and a combo will provide music to set the tempo for each creation.

Coordinators for the production are Mrs. Stephen McIntyre and Mrs. Theodore Sappington.

Tickets for A La Mode Theater No. 1 for $1. Profits from the show will be used primarily for the OWC Scholarship fund which will provide six $500 college scholarships for high school seniors in the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area.

Mrs. Robert H. York will be a special guest fashion model and will be escorted by her husband, MG Robert H. York.

One of the features of the show will be a 39 foot strand of pearls valued at $20,000 and said to be the world's longest of matched cultured pearls. They are part of a $100,000 jewelry collection that will be on display from a local merchant.

Other models, who were instructed by Mrs. Ann Roberts of the OWC chair and modeling school include Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Sucher, Mrs. Patrick V. Thomas, Mrs. Daniel Martin, Mrs. Norman Vaughn, and Mrs. G. Raymond O'Kord.

Others are Mrs. Robert J. Fullerton, Mrs. Larry Sadler, Mrs. Charles Ramsey, Mrs. David Rogers, Mrs. Andrew Bringle, Mrs. Arthur Littlewood III, Mrs. Thomas H. McPherson, Mrs. Reuben Dixon Jr., and Mrs. Frederick T. McPherson.

Also Mrs. Wayne Boles, Mrs. Jarrett Robertson, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Tyler Dugan, Mrs. Walter Wesley, Mrs. John Morton, Mrs. Rueben Pate, Mrs. James Townsend and Mrs. Edward Anderson.

Teenage models are Kathy Kent, Kit Smothers, Madeleine Carper, Beth McLeod, Susan Headley, Joanne Shennell, Laura Fox, Julia Smeds, Teresa Powers, Leslie Newton, Nancy Patterson and Sari Wise.

VALUABLE
Necklace To Be Shown

Equally exciting finds are the dress West Point uniforms of each of the five men, a raft of weapons used by COL Muir's grandfather during the Indian Wars, a letter written from the Dakota Territory in 1881 by CPT Clarence E. Bennett to his little daughter, and a lovely oriental brass container which had been presented to COL Muir's grandfather during the Boxer Rebellion.

There is also an interesting history on Mrs. Muir's side of the family. Her grandfather had gone to live in Hawaii, in the 19th century, and her mother and brother, from their home front porch overlooking Honolulu, witnessed the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Truly a remarkable lady and a remarkable family.

Unit Achieves Record On Range in Trainfire

Statistics and records are again to the best of their ability that seemed to be the attitude of soldiers of Co. B, 11th Infantry, 3rd Bde, when they averaged 82 hits of a possible 84 on the trainfire range.

The former U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, record of 82.1 average was held by Company A of the second week of training the sergeant had achieved in July, 1966.

Company B failed to surpass the actual number of experts, as Company A had 157 compared to Company B's 153.

Over 70 of the record of Company B were spotlighted by the fact that 27 fired 70 or better, and only two men failed to qualify as sharpshooters.

High marksman for the company was PVT James H. Harding who scored a total of 79 hits out of the possible 84.

The question arises what is it that motivates the trainees to turn in such an exemplary performance? The answer is always found in the quality of training they receive and the zeal and determination of their drill sergeants.

SFC Charles W. Wallace, the company's senior drill sergeant, along with SSG James McCrady, concurrent training in a field training exercise, deserve a lot of credit, as do each of the individual platoon sergeants, according to COL William R. Hanks, brigade commander.

Without the vital interest of these sergeants in each trainee and his capabilities and without many of duty hours devoted to training the company, records such as this are not set. The trainees themselves are a credit for their willingness to do the job they were given.

As the last order completed its firing and the scores were being totaled, COL Wallace reminded Wallace that during the second week of training the sergeant had predicted that his company would have at least 150 experts.

According to company commander, 1LT William D. Kaitby, this particular cycle of trainees has been extremely cooperative and has done all possible to receive the maximum benefit from only two men failed to qualify as sharpshooters.

The company also set a new night firing record with an average of 11.6 out of 16 possible hits. The previous record had been 10.2 hits.

NCO Saves U.S. $1000 Repair Bill

Members of Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn., Center Troop Company, were returning from training in a field training exercise, when they were informed that one of the hull-dozers was destroyed.

Inspectors wrote it off as destroyed.

However, the initiative of SFC Oliver L. Stringer saved the bear and put it into working condition.

It would have cost the Army approximately $1000 to replace it and would have cost the dozer for many weeks.

60 Combat Engineers Complete Training With Unit

By SPS Michael McMillan
That Infantrymen are made at Fort Benning is well known. But men who support the Infantry — Artillerymen, the tankers and Engineers — also learn their skills here.

The 72nd Engr. Co. (Combat) of the 197th Inf. Bde. has just completed training 60 new combat Engineers in the techniques they need to help the company carry out its mission of providing support to The Infantry School.

The 18-week training program, devised by the company training NCO, SGT Jack Crump Jr., gave the men two days of formal basic Engineer instruction each week.

The remaining three days of the week were spent in on-the-job training and participation in support problems.

Learned Skills

During this period, the young Engineers learned all the skills normally taught in an eight-week service school course.

At the same time, they were able to get a look at the practical aspects of combat Engineering and contribute themselves to the unit's mission.

ENGINEERS ACQUIRE PROFICIENCY IN PRACTICE

Bridge Construction Requires Team Work and Strong Backs

SSG Donald Moore, the field, a timber trestle bridge using only the materials available to them at the construction site.

Practical work with float oneing bridges was done at Vic-

Construction begins with the erection of the rubber pontoons by a crew using an air compressor. When the bridge is dismantled later, this same air compressor is used to pump air out of the pontoons, thereby speeding up the operation.

When the pontoons have been inflated and fastened to the framework, the entire assembly is lifted by a crane and lowered into the water.

This procedure can be done in as little as 10 minutes.

Platform Added

With the pontoon assembly in the water, the bridge platform itself must be added.

To the framework, called "stiffeners", are added "backs" — 15-foot lengths of aluminum resembling a square log and weighing 265 pounds each.

These are firmly connected in an interlaced pattern by metal pins hammered into place. The final touch comes with the addition to each end of an inclined end-section that allows a vehicle to be driven onto the raft.

Important Mission

When the raft, is loaded with equipment or a vehicle, it can be moved in an opposite shore or maneuvered in any direction by one or more bridge erection boats. These 19-foot boats, powered by 11hp gasoline engine, attach lines at the sides of the raft and pull or push the raft into the desired position.

Savings Deposits Use OK On Special Leave Status

WASHINGTON (ANP) — Soldiers who are authorized a special 30-day leave for voluntarily extending their tours of duty in a hostile fire area are reminded that they are still able to withdraw all or a portion of their savings deposits after arriving in the United States.

Such "emergency withdrawals" can only be made after their stateside arrival, but the request may be submitted in advance through the local unit commander.

The commander then dispatches a message to the Commanding General, Finance Center, U. S. Army, ATTN: Allotments and Deposits Operations. The message will contain the following information: "Subject: USSDP Withdrawal—[Name], [735], name, serial number, grade and assigned organization; dollar amount requested; and address within the United States or its possessions to which the check is to be mailed.

The amount that is requested will not exceed the amount of the principal on deposit. The account will not be closed.

Payment will be made by the Finance Center, U. S. Army, and the check will be mailed only to an address within the United States or its possessions as designated by the serviceman.

Tax Guide Readied

DOD has published a new guide to help servicemen take advantage of special provisions of the tax law for their benefit in making out income tax returns for 1966.

"Federal Income Tax Information for Service Personnel" may be purchased for 29 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402. April 17 is the income tax deadline.

every pond. There they built an aluminum trestle bridge (10-foot normal raft and five-foot reinforced raft).

The rafts were sections of regular floating bridge assembly used like a ferry rather than being built to connect opposite shores.

Largest Raft

The biggest of the rafts was the five-foot reinforced raft, about 80 feet long, capable of supporting a fully-loaded 5-ton truck, a crane or a tank.

Construction begins with the erection of the rubber pontoons by a crew using an air compressor. When the bridge is dismantled later, this same air compressor is used to pump air out of the pontoons, thereby speeding up the operation.

When the pontoons have been inflated and fastened to the framework, the entire assembly is lifted by a crane and lowered into the water.

With the completion of bridge training, these men are fully-qualified members of a unit with a job that is important to the brigade and to The Infantry School. It is a unit with an outstanding record of accomplishment in the past.

The company, now commanded by CPT Carl Gledhill, boasts a combat record that includes participation in the Normandy, Rhineland, Northern France, Ardennes-Aisace and Central Europe campaigns of World War II, during which the company staged pine river crossings and constructed 9,780 feet of bridges.

The unit took part in nine campaigns of the Korean War, winning a U.S. Distinguished Unit Citation and five Presidential Unit Citations from the Republic of Korea.

Former Post Chaplain Set for Easter Service Here

A former post chaplain will return to Fort Benning to preach at the Easter Sunrise Service at 6 a.m. March 26 at Doughboy Stadium.

Chaplain (COL) Wallace M. Hale, president of the U. S. Army Chaplain Board at Fort Meade, Md., was Infantry Center chaplain here from July, 1947, to July, 1959.

A Southern Baptist minister, Chaplain Hale is a graduate of Baylor University in Waco, Tex., and the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex.

In addition to basic and advanced courses at The U. S. Army Chaplain School, Chaplain Hale has studied at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the U. S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., the University of Pittsburgh, Pa., and George Washington University where he received a masters degree in international affairs.

A senior parachutist, Chaplain Hale is jumpmaster and holds a rope and a glider qualification badge.

Training as Smoke Jumper Said Comparable to Three Week OCS

"It was like a three-week OCS," said Peter T. Fallini, 21, of 70th Company (OC), about the training. He took to become a smoke jumper. Fallini worked two summers as a smoke jumper before the Forest Service. Before he was qualified to jump, he worked a summer as a fire fighter, then underwent vigorous jump training. A smoke jumper, Fallini said, is employed as a quick reaction to forest fires in inaccessible places. He said that most fires are caused by lightning and that a two-man jump team can extinguish most of them before the fire gets out of control.

Fallini, stationed in a 25-man unit in Idaho City, Idaho, worked in the Boise National Forest, the largest in Idaho. He has made 19 jumps, 12 of them to fires. He said that smoke jumpers were effective in small teams because they are able to react quickly. Average time to become airborne after receiving a call from a lookout, was eight minutes. Whether the firefighters arrive by helicopter or are forced to jump, their immediate action is to try to isolate the fire by digging a circle around it.

First Week
The first week is devoted to physical conditioning and learning to roll and the second week is devoted to chute handling techniques. Fallini said that the jumpers are trained to move out of pickups which are moving up to 20 miles per hour. Before the first roll in a hot balloon, the trainees carried a 120 pound pack for five miles, as quickly as possible.

Moving to Sand Hill Prepares Battalion For Expanded Role in Maintenance Field

By PFC Jerry F. Boone
An armorer on wheels? A rolling radio repair shop? A complete engine swap in the field? The job calls for direct support maintenance wherever in the 16th General Support Group, the 67th Maintenance Battalion can do it. The battalion, whose motto is "Strength Through Support," completed a move to its Sand Hill location last Monday and is now ready to expand operations. "With the move, all of our equipment and facilities will be centrally located and we will be able to operate more effectively," says MAJ Thomas C. Powers, battalion commander. Before moving to Sand Hill, the 67th relied on three small shops in the main post area for third and fourth echelon jobs (replace and rebuild) for all the machinery and equipment used in the 16th Group of Center Troop Command. "Our primary goal as a STAR (Combat Service Support to the Army) unit is to train our men to make major repairs and replace parts anywhere at any time. Right now we are doing our normal combat support mission right here at a rapid pace. Training for this is all expanding Army that is all ways on the move," said MAJ Thomas C. Powers, a veteran of that 20 years with Army maintenance. "Can Move to Field" The battalion is designed to go into the field and make repairs when and where they are needed most. The 67th is equipped with mobile welders, radio repair units, type rolling radio repair shops, writer shops, armament repair trucks and vehicle maintenance equipment, all able to be dispatched anywhere. "Right now we have the facilities to fix anything from portable field typewriters and converters to a supercharged multi-fuel engine. Most of these can be fixed right on the spot, without the long delay of having to bring it to the shop," the major said. "In addition to the men and equipment we have, we are designed to be able to add or delete units to suit our maintenance needs," he added.

Pair Enter Hall of Fame of OCS Here

The Officer Candidates School at Fort Benning last Saturday inducted two men who earned the Medal of Honor for heroism in Vietnam into its Hall of Fame. Added to the list of OCS graduates who have gained fame were 1LT Walter J. Marm Jr., now an instructor at Fort Benning's Ranger School, and 2LT Robert J. Hibbs, whose parents accepted his posthumous award.

Marm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hibbs of Cedar Falls, Iowa. During the presentation, Hibbs' father said, "The proudest day of my son's life was when he was commissioned in the United States Army Infantry. I am proud that my son could serve his country well."

In accepting his Hall of Fame membership, Hibbs said, "I am very proud to be part of the 5th Student Battalion. I was determined to be commissioned when I first entered the Infantry School." While making the presentations to Hibbs and Marm, Marm and LT Hibbs not only into the OCS Hall of Fame but also that of the nation. "LT Hibbs paid the supreme sacrifice in winning his award. The same could have happened to LT Marm," Hibbs said. "Both realized this but placed their duty above everything else."

Marm was awarded the Medal of Honor in Washington, Dec. 18, 1966. He was cited for single handedly destroying an enemy machinegun bunker and killing 18 men. Hibbs was killed during action in Vietnam in March, 1966, while a platoon leader with the 1st Infantry Division. He was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for charging two enemy machinegun emplacements in order to cover the safe withdrawal of his ambushed patrol.

REDESIGNED XM-148 GL SIGHT. . . The U. S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) at Fort Benning is continually testing and evaluating equipment for the Infantryman to insure that he receives the best equipment for combat conditions and training. Presently, the Board is testing a new quadrant sight for the M16A1 rifle. The new sight features two range scales and is lighter, smaller, and less complex than the earlier sight. Featuring either an aperture rear sight or a square notch open sight, the new sight is attached to the carrying handle of the rifle instead of being attached to the grenade launcher as is the current sight. The sight can be quickly re-mounted on the carrying handle. The two range scales on the sight, one for temperate zone use and one for arctic use, are graduated in 25 meter increments, the arctic scale from zero to 350 meters and the temperate from zero to 400 meters. Zeroing adjustments are made on the front sight post for elevation and on the rear sight for windage. Adjustments are made by the use of an Allen wrench for zeroing while range adjustments are made by moving the range indicator along the range scale. Being smaller, simpler and lighter in weight, the new sight should make the weapon handler for use and carry by the Infantryman than the current sight used on the M16. (U. S. Army Photo.)

Nearly 3.5 Million Pieces Weekly

QM Laundry Has Tough Wash Day

Imagine a laundry problem like this each week—3,477,038 different pieces of clothing to wash, press, starch and fluff-dry. The Quartermaster Laundry, recently expanded to serve The Student Brigade, solves this problem each week through the use of modern equipment and hard working employees. The chief goal of the QM laundry is to serve the trainees assigned to Basic Combat Training Units. The increase in the number of men assigned to BSB resulted in a need for additional laundry service. Also, the QM laundry has a special daily service for the officer candidates which adds to the work load. Rates are set at a standard to meet the soldier's budget.

Work is Good. Samson J. Chal, laundry manager said "We have the modern equipment and personnel to handle the increased requests at a faster rate. Our work is as good as any other firm despite the fact that we handle much more volume. The need for highly starched fatigues hinders the faster service of the laundry today as compared to the fluff-dried fatigues of past years." Modern machinery has increased the number of units of his finger can send him from completed each hour by approximately 80. The number of bundles handled by the QM per week has increased by nearly 9000 since October 1, 1961. Employed 350 There were 349 civilian employees and one military man at that time. CPT Lester Parker was the laundry officer. Organizational items Bulk work including items such as sleeping bags, pillow cases and other organizational-type items keep employees bustling all week to meet deadlines. ## OC Helped Young People Reach for New Outlook

Officer Candidate Joseph J. Samson, 21, 72nd Company (OC), has had experience as a probation officer in California. Years ago, when Samson lived on the "wrong side of the tracks" as he described it, there were a lot of teenagers in trouble with the law. He said he witnessed first-hand the coolness, aloofness and seeming lack of understanding among city juvenile authorities and that he saw punishment without correction and probation without rehabilitation. The authorities were knowledgeable but they did not seem to understand the problems involved, Samson said. Later, at the University of Washington at Spokane, Samson majored in sociology. There he had his first practical experience in setting up a youth recreation center and working with the youth of that town.

"The primary goal of the program is education," he says. "These kids were missing school. They didn't join the Army because they thought they were hard to correct," he said. "When you're talking to these kids you've got to know what you're talking about. You can't be shocked by the shoulder length hair on the boys and you've got to be prepared for anything. Understanding them is the first step in helping them," Samson said.

Reserves Win Tribute Of DOD's Cyrus Vance

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus Vance has paid tribute to the nation's military Reserve Forces for their "increasing role and important contributions" in supporting and assisting active forces. In a memorandum to Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Reser and the secretaries of the Air Force and Navy, Vance said the ability of the Reserve Forces to "increase their strength and readiness to respond promptly when and where needed" has helped the United States meet its "treaty commitments and react to other contingencies," despite the number of troops deployed to Southeast Asia.

He said the Reserve Forces "shall always be needed as an integral part of our military posture." Vance listed three areas in which the Reserve Forces are powerful factors: "Protecting the determination of the United States" in fulfilling its political and military commitments. "Deterring actions by foreign nations "which would be inimical to United States national interests." Providing a "credible military foundation" for the nation in international affairs.

Engineers Learning Rock Crusher Operations

By PVT Dennis H. Ray
Living under field conditions, men of Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., Center Troop Command, currently are being trained at the Fortson rock quarry.

Always on the alert for mock attack, they are learning to maintain and operate a new 75-ton rock crusher located there.

Headed by 2LT Dennis W. Griffith and with SSG Captain M. Kennedy as superintendent, the quarry is located approximately 10 miles north of main post.

Started January 15
Training started January 15 at the old rock quarry. The rock crusher, however, was not operational until March 7 and is not yet in full production.

The quarry is being used strictly for training purposes and many types of training are offered at the site.

Training in security goes along with the operation of the crusher. Aggressors may at any time try to infiltrate and attack the workers.

Large Group
All told, there are 147 men attached to the quarry operation. Those not being trained at the crusher are either aggressors or are working at improving the site.

The men are not being trained for one specialized job but are cross-trained to handle any one of the many tasks required to keep the

The state land office in Little Rock, Ark., received a letter containing a $21 check. The check was O.K., but the stamp on the letter was a crusher producing. The gravel obtained will go to improve the site for further classes. When this is completed, the unit plans to use some of the surplus gravel for one of their parking lots while the rest will be stockpiled for immediate or further use by the post.

The crusher is powered by a Diesel-electric combination. It has a maximum output of 75 tons an hour. The type of rock being crushed is "blue granite," which is, according to Kennedey, "rough on machinery." The rock at the quarry site is located too deep under the earth to give the site any commercial value but the 43rd believes that this problem helps in the training of their men. In many cases in a combat zone, they would have to dig even deeper to get to the rock base, Griffith said.

Destin Has Everything

How about a week's vacation this summer on a pure white beach, water shallow enough for the little ones, free fishing boats and fishing tackle, and your own private cottage equipped with a modern kitchen—for $25. Of course if your clan is larger than some it could cost you $40.

Quit dreaming and put your name into the Special Services vacation drawings this Spring.

Drawings will be held early enough to give the winners time to put in for their leaves.

The vacations, starting May 26 and ending September 5, are at Fort Benning's recreation area near Destin, Fla., on Choctawhatchee Bay.

With 10 modern cabins available, more than 210 will be named as winners in the drawings. If your name is not pulled out of the hat you can go on a waiting list in case of cancellations. Missing that, you can still take advantage of the 12 zero playground. There are spaces for 10 camping trailers, with hook-ups for water, lights and sewage, at a nominal fee.

And if you don't have a trailer, take a tent. Free shaded areas will guarantee a delightful time, even if you rough it, and a new bath house solves your worries about these facilities.

Vacation winners will find cottages furnished with innerspring mattresses on bunk and double beds. Dining areas have modern tables and chairs. Kitchens include a modern sink, electric range and large refrigerator with freezer compartment. Plenty of dishes and silverware are provided as well as some pots and pans.

Some of the luckier winners will even have an air conditioned living room.

Each cottage also has a modern inside bathroom. Outside the newer models are showers to rinse off the kids when they come in covered with sand and silt.

All are equipped with television.

Although sheets and pillow cases are provided, guests must bring their own towels—including ones for the dishes.

Recreational equipment of all types, such as horse shoes, badminton, volleyball and basketball, is available to all guests. If you just want to rest, some pocket books can be checked out of a small library in the office.

The free fishing boats come equipped with oars—but for $2 a day you get a motor and gas.

Two ski boats are also on hand, at $1.50 an hour, and the water skis are included in the price.

A completely stocked snack bar will be in operation this summer for those who do not want to take time to cook. In addition to the normal assortment of hot dogs, hamburgers and other sandwiches, will be ice cream and beverages of all types.

Milk and bread will also be sold at the snack bar as well as fish balls.

Scattered throughout the area are individual barbecues; The cottages each have one too, and screened pavilions inclose three large barbecue pits to provide protection when campers eat outdoors.

Nearby Eglin Air Force Base has extended use of its three different beach club facilities on the Gulf of Mexico at Fort Walton Beach. Officers and NCOs need only to show a valid Fort Benning club card and lower grades their ID cards.

Scuba and skin divers will find the clear water of the area one of the finest places on the Gulf to dive. One of the best equipped "air stations" on the coast is located in Destin and complete suits can be rented there if you don't have your own (Qualified Scuba Club members can check out equipment at Fort Benning).

The "Follow Me", Fort Benning's new 38-foot deep sea fishing boat, is available for that type of venture but reservations must be made well in advance through the Fort Benning Special Services office. Other deep sea fishing charter boats are available in the Destin-Fort Walton area.

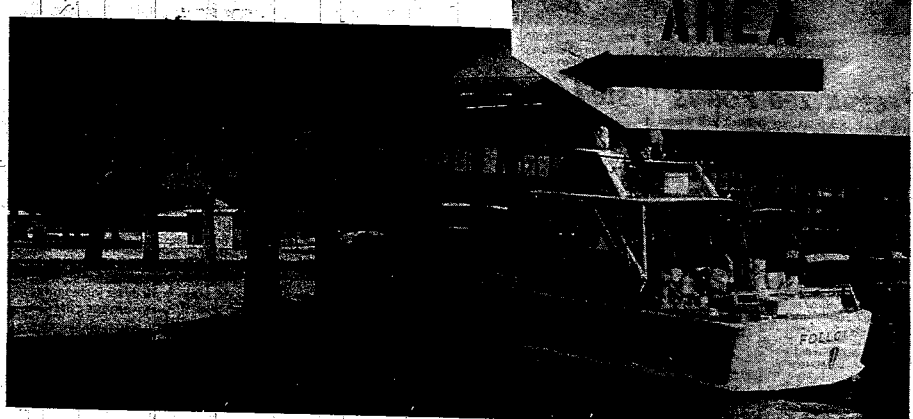

For those keen on night life, Panama City is located 30 miles southeast of the recreation area and Pensacola 30 miles to the west.

One added feature at The Infantry Center's vacation playground and boon to those with small children, is a free laundry room with dryers. Of course, a commissary is located at Eglin AFB. Several large grocery stores are located in Destin itself.

When you sign up, Special Services will give you the full details in a handy little booklet complete with a

Organization Day Marked By Day-Long Observance

By SPS Michael McMillan

Over 2000 steaks were downed last Saturday as the members of the 1st Bn, 29th Inf., and their families and guests celebrated the 66th anniversary of the outfit's organization.

The day-long observance at Kelley Hill's, Essebauger Field began at 9 a.m. with a battalion review.

Addressing those assembled for the review, including Fort Benning's three general officers, LTC John J. Tomlinac, commander of the battalion, spoke of the importance of the Infantry in warfare.

Infantry The Key

Drawing quotes from a 1927 speech by former Army Chief of Staff GEN Charles P. Sumner, Tomlinac declared the Infantry to be the key element in all of our past and in those that may lie in the future. "As in the past," he said, "the Infantry is taking the ground today in Vietnam."

As part of the review ceremony, Tomlinac presented a trophy to SP4 Jimmy R. Parker of Company A, who was chosen the battalion's Soldier of the Year.

Awards also went to six graduates of the battalion's advanced individual training program. Chosen AIT Soldier of the Year was PFC Eddie J. Harley, Company C. Harley scored 64 at a possible 100 points on the Physical Combat Proficiency Test and 192 out of a possible 200 points on his MOS Proficiency Test.

EM Honored

Selected Distinguished AIT Graduate was PFC Peter E. Rohr, Company A. Other AIT graduates honored were PFC Ronald Marchant, Company D; and PVT Levestor Baker, PFC Walter R. Summers Jr., and PFC Arthur J. Miner, all of Company B.

Civil Service Sets 'Common Pattern' To Hire Leaders

The platoon, attached to the battalion, trains scout dogs and handlers for the Army and the Marine Corps. Noon brought a picnic-style lunch at which those 2000 steaks were the main course. The meal was prepared by six members of the Fort Benning Skydiving Club kicked off the afternoon schedule of activities.

The day concluded with a series of individual and unit competitions in which Company A made a clean sweep of all the top prizes. The company won the 10-man tug of war, five man sack race, egg throw, high jump and six man volleyball game.

State Vets Aide Outlines VA Loan Uses

ATLANTA — Eligible veterans will bear an interest rate of 6 per cent.

Home loans can be made for a maximum of 30 years, farm real estate loans for a maximum of 40 years and non-real estate loans for a maximum of 10 years, according to Wheeler. The VA does not require a down payment. However, lenders may require it.

Eligibility for World War II Veterans to use VA loans has been expiring according to a formula that adds 10 years to the date of discharge from service plus one year for each 90 days of that service. Wheeler explained. Eligibility for all World War II GIs will expire on July 25, 1967.

Veterans discharged for a service-connected disability will be eligible until that date.

The formula for Korean Conflict veterans is the same, with the final deadline set at Jan. 31, 1975.

Veterans who were on active duty for 181 or more days, any part of which occurred after Jan. 31, 1955, and who were discharged or released under honorable conditions, are eligible for a minimum of 10 years from the date of their separation from the armed forces.

PRESSURIZED POD DESIGNED FOR USE UNDER TOXIC CONDITIONS Infantrymen of 1st Bn, 29th Inf., Aid Army Infantry Board in Testing Here (U. S. Army Photo)

Pressurized Pod Is Tested for Combat Use

The U. S. Army Infantry Board (USAIB) at Fort Benning is currently testing a chemical biological (CB) pressurized pod which is designed for use in a combat theater under toxic conditions.

This highly mobile pod makes up into a 10-man rest center or can double for a forward command post.

The greatest but slightest of the pod has dual inflated rubberized walls and its interior atmosphere is pressurized sufficiently to keep out contaminated air by the means of an airtight entrance.

Four Men Needed

The pod, weighing approximately 400 pounds, can be erected by four soldiers in a forward area in less than 30 minutes.

On short notice, it can be dismantled and loaded on a accompanying two-wheel trailer and moved to a new location. This small cargo trailer also carries the gas filtration unit and the environmental control unit (air conditioning) along with the airlock for the pod.

The airlock is a collapsible rubberized fayer-like frame which permits individuals to be decontaminated before entering the shelter and prevents contaminated air from entering the shelter when personnel enter or exit.

Through the use of the filter unit, all air is cleaned of dust particles, biological agents and toxic gases while the environmental unit controls the air temperature and humidity.

March 8 Important Date

Former Air Force Pilot Recalls POW Life; Now Serves U.S. Infantry

March 8 is a significant day for Rex Ellis, retired officer for the U. S. Army Infantry Board at Fort Benning.

It is not a date of prominence for a birthday, but yet a day never to be forgotten. It was on this day in 1948 that Ellis, then a young lieutenant and Army Air Force pilot flying a B-17 over Germany, was shot down and made a reluctant guest of the Germans.

All Memories

To Ellis this is all memory. He is now flying for the Infantry Board, assisting them in their various tied test programs which, in turn, helps to give the Infantry...

Retiring from the Air Force on April 1, 1966, Ellis came to the Infantry Board in December to fill the vacancy of a military pilot, created when Ellis was released for other duties.

Ellis is from Luway, Kansas. He entered the Army in May, 1942, at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Entering the aviation cadet program, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army upon graduation from the Army's Advanced Single Engine Fighter School at Luke Field, Ariz., July, 1943.

Following graduation, he spent some time in training

Was Concert Pianist

OC Knows Training Rigors

Robert Antonian, a member of 90th Co, 8th Stu. Bn (OC) TSB, is already familiar with long hours of training.

Before entering the service, Antonian was a concert pianist whose performances were televised live and by video tape across the eastern seaboard.

His skill earned him the honor of being selected by the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts to give a series of concerts for young people in the State of New York.

Starts Young

Antonian began studying the piano at the age of eight in Providence, R. I.

He made his solo debut when he was 17 and after graduation from high school he was awarded a scholarship to the Juillard School of Music in New York City.

There he completed a seven-year program in six years and went on to receive a master's degree in 1963. He then accepted a position on the piano faculty at the New York University campus at Verdonia, which boasts the largest music staff of any university in the East.

Begins Concerts

While on the NYU staff, Antonian began giving concerts for young people under a contract with the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

He entered into what he considers the most fulfilling period of his career. "The response was fantastic," he said.

Dateline Vietnam

Updated Supply System Is Asset to 1st Infantrymen

Di An, Vietnam. - The job of keeping the 1st Infantry supplied has proved a monumental task in Vietnam. New systems are now coming into being, like the Forward Support Coordinating Teams (FSC) adopted by a 1st Inf. Div. unit.

The new system was devised by CPT William S. Orlow, the supply officer of the 2nd Bn., 17th Inf.

Each team consists of sergeant and radio-telephone operator (RTO). Their job is to accompany the Infantrymen during an operation and maintain contact with the rear supply force. Sudden changes in plans or unexpected requisitions are handled by the FSC team.

"When the Infantry makes an assault landing, we're right there with them," explains SP4 John Keyes.

Only in recent years have helicopters played such an important part in the resupply of troops. There is still the job of controlling all resupply aircraft from the time they arrive at their landing zone until the men return from their operation.

Loading and Unloading He plans the loading and unloading of the ships and supplies for his unit. He also informs the commanding officer of all logistical problems.

"Before we had a supply team like this, we had all kinds of problems," explains Johnson. "On one occasion, a helicopter load of medical supplies was not received. That's when CPT Orlow decided that we needed to improve the conventional system we'd been using."

Sgt Timothy Meighan, who is in charge of supplying the FSC team with ammunition, says, "With this system we are now getting maximum use of the limited number of helicopters we have for resupply."

Only in recent years have helicopters played such an important part in the resupply of troops. There is still the job of controlling all resupply aircraft from the time they arrive at their landing zone until the men return from their operation.

with the civilian police as a result of working together in these classes," says CPT Kenneth Mitchell, who teaches classes on commodity control check points and search, seizure and raids.

Traffic control and police patrols are the two subjects taught by LT Joseph Bigby, who notes, "We now have joint patrols in which we often have an MP, a QJ and an NP in a single vehicle."

Karate chops are a specialty with SGT Jerry Burgin, who teaches unarmed defense. Burgin finds the men very enthusiastic about this class.

Instruction in the firing of different weapons is given by LT Felix Hoffmann. Riot control is taught by LT Stephen Kotch of Tuscarora, Penn.

First aid classes are given by members of the 1st Med. Bn.

The program was initiated by the 1st Inf. Div. Provost Marshal, LTC Paul M. Timmerberg, who felt that it was important for the local police to coordinate with Military Police.

The National Policemen take a real interest in the classes and Timmerberg feels that the understanding gained through this program will prove valuable, as the civilian police learn about the duties of the military police, and the MPs, in turn, gain knowledge of their civilian counterparts.

The Drill Sergeant

PSG Said Marked by Dedication

BY LINDA GRIFFIN

PSG Charles G. Dorris, senior drill sergeant, Co. E, 5th Bn., 2nd Bde., U. S. Army Training Center Infantry, is marked by a dedication and strong liking for his job.

As senior drill sergeant of the 1st platoon, he is responsible for the training and conduct of the entire platoon. Dorris feels that it is a real challenge to see that each trainee within the platoon gains the skills and knowledge of soldiering.

He tries to provide individual training whenever possible to insure that each trainee gains the necessary competence and obtains confidence in his ability as a soldier.

Depot, Fort Richardson, Alaska.

First Time Here
He came to Fort Benning for the first time as an assistant operations sergeant with the 3rd Int. Div. in August, 1964, and participated in the Third Army testing of the Fenwick concept.

The next few years were busy. Dorris attended the Army Language School, Monterey, Calif., served a tour in Germany, where he was honored as the most interesting of his or graduate at the Seventh Army NCO Academy, returned to Benning as an instructor in the weapons department of The Infantry School, and for his outstanding service to Korea as an assault weapons platoon sergeant, and then to Fort Carson, Colo., with the 5th Inf. Div.

Before returning to Fort Benning for his present assignment, Dorris was assigned to the U. S. Army Arctic Test Center at Fort Greeley, Alaska, where he assisted in the testing of weapons, material and equipment under frigid weather conditions.

Dorris has twice received an assignment in the Army Commendation Medal for his outstanding service in the Army.

Services Survey Results 90 Per Cent Here Indicate NCO Mess Is Satisfactory

As a result of the post-wide survey conducted at Fort Benning, over 90 per cent of the completed questionnaires indicated satisfaction with the services of the NCO Open Mess system.

Continuous effort is made to inform the personnel of the facilities and activities being conducted within the Open Mess by publishing a weekly newsletter that is distributed down to company level and to enlisted quarters on Fort Benning.

To better acquaint the personnel at Fort Benning with the facilities available, clubs are located on Main Post, Crain Hall (Building 229), and Lawson Field, Annex No. 1 (Building 286), Harmony Church, Victory Lodge (Building 4164), and Annex No. 2 (Building 6842); Kelley Hill, Annex No. 9, and Sand Hill, Annex No. 8 (Building 3790), and Patton House (Building 3778).

Package stores are available on post for the membership.

The Open Mess has six guest cottages located in the Sand Hill area under the supervision of the manager of Annex No. 8. These cottages are operated for primary use of incoming or outgoing personnel and their families.

Entertainment is planned for the enjoyment of its members.

Rangers Go Into 'Action' At Maxwell

A "Rangers in Action" demonstration was presented to the Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala., last Wednesday by selected members of the Infantry School's Ranger Company.

"Rangers in Action" demonstrated the hand-to-hand combat techniques and military mountaineering skills taught during the nine-week Ranger Course.

The special demonstration, attended by 15 to 20 times as many visitors as usual, included visiting dignitaries and general officers. The late President Kennedy witnessed the show during his visit to the Infantry Center in 1963.

A D. Boy Scout group from Cleveland, Ohio, was guests at the next "Rangers in Action" set for March 28.

Principal instructor for the show is CPT Samuel W. Smith. Members of the hand-to-hand combat team are SFC Robert Itzoe, SFC Robert Schroeder, SSG James Frederick and SSG Thomas Bragg.

Members of the military mountaineering demonstration team are CPT Peter Meyer, CPT Chad Johnson, L1T Lewis Jefferson, MSG Thomas J. Gonsky, SFC John Heydt, SFC Romie McGinnis, SFC Walter Vieg, SSG David Stizelle, SSG Ernest Crandall, SSG Robert Frank and SSG Ronald Hart.

All are with the Fort Benning Ranger Company.

Benning EW Win Contest Awards At Army Level

A pair of Ft. Benning soldiers netted two Savings Bonds awards as they placed first and second in the Special Services All-Army designer craftsman contest.

PFC John L. Pendleton, Hq. & Hq. Co., 520th Trans Bn., received a $100 bond for first place in the functional crafts (small crafts) division. He entered a brass powder box.

A covered jar in the pottery section of the functional crafts division gained for PVT Lawrence J. Gonsky, SFC Johnson of the Officer Candidate School, a second place award of $75 bond.

Both men also received engraved sterling silver bowls.

The two soldiers were winners in the first All-Army Craftsman Contest, scheduled to be held each year by Special Services.

The categories in the contest are decorative crafts, functional crafts and design for large craft projects. Contact Special Services for further information.

Awards Given Eight in CDCIA Last Friday

Eight awards were presented by the agency here last Friday to members of the U.S. Army Combat Development Command Infantry Agency (CDCIA) in a ceremony at COL Leroy B. Wilson.

Unit Wins Title As Best in '66

The title of the battalions' Best Company of the Year has been given to the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, for the 1976-77. Each of the battalion's five infantry Brigade units' outstanding achievement for 1966 was presented to the company of administration, intelligence, supply, and maintenance, led by LTC Vernon J. Consideration is also given to such factors as basic training, day room facilities, discipline, reports, and overall performance of the company.

197th's Coach Is Impressed With Tryouts for Ball Team

By SP4 David Chaffon An impressive number of players have turned out for Coach Jim Martin's 197th Infantry Brigade baseball team.

Of the 85 troops who have already tried out, Martin will pick 20 for his squad. Nine are sure to be returning veterans on whom Martin is relying heavily.

Baseball Tryouts Get Underway For CTC Units

Baseball practice began this week for Center Troop Command units, as tryouts for pitcher and catcher positions were held Monday at the third quartet baseball field.

Indo and outfield tryouts will be held at a later date. Men in units under CTC who would like to sign up for the baseball team can contact MSG George H. Doran, A and R NCO, for CTC.

Post Hoop Play ATC Snuffs Out 197th Title Hopes

A red-hot ATC quiet snuffed out the 197th Inf. Bde. basketball championship hopes last Thursday night with an 81-76 win which opened the playoffs doors to the 1st Bn., CTC.

The 197th needed the win to tie for the second round lead. The Troop Command team faced first round champion TSB last night in the first encounter of the best two out of three series for the Fort Benning hoop crown.

For CTC, the 197th loss was sweet revenge for the 87-86 squeaker they suffered at the hands of the Infantrymen on their maiden trip through the basketball circuit in the second-half curtain raiser February 8.

TSB finished in a three-way tie for sixth position in the second round runoff but earned the right to enter the basketball sweepstakes by posting a 10 and 11 first round finish.

The hospital moved into the three-way second place finish by running slipshod over the 28th Inf. 79-83 Friday night in the final scheduled night of play.

The second game of the CTC-TSB playoff is scheduled for 7:30 tonight at Briant Wells Field House. The third game if needed for the best two out of three is slated for Sunday at 2 p.m., also at Briant Wells.

CLYDE THOMAS Lays Up for CTC

Scattered thoughts on a scattered sports scene, including a bit about blackouts, the wit and wisdom of Charley Brown, an allergy, the draft (pro football), the more important one) and the Japanese invasion of the Los Angeles Dodgers' spring training camp.

Remember back in the fall how upset thousands of people got over the television blackout of what was hailed, rather incorrectly, as the football game of the decade?

Well, the hue and cry they raised did allow most of us to see Michigan State and Notre Dame in inconclusive combat. Now comes another strike at the blackout, a nasty word in itself, reminiscent of 1940 London and 1965 New York.

Television blackouts of sporting events in Georgia which are sold out in advance would be forbidden under a bill recently passed by the Senate in Atlanta.

The current Japanese invasion of the U. S. is not limited to transistorized radio and television, Datsuns and Toyotas, Hondas and Suzukis, and films like "Frankenstein Conquers the World" and "What's New, Mr. Lily" Down at Vero Beach, on Florida's east coast, a 22-man professional baseball team from the land of the risen sun is sharing the training facilities of Walter O'Malley's Dodgers.

Paratroopers Clip Redlegs To Cop Post Volleyball Title

OC Boots Stands Above Fellow 92nd Candidates

By O. C. James Agra one candidate missing from the 92nd Airborne's list of candidates for the position of Officer in Charge (OC) of the 92nd Airborne Division.

OC David Boots, Indianapolis, Ind., loves the game of volleyball, but he is not a member, because Boots is six feet, seven inches tall. Needless to say, it isn't very hard to pick him out in a formation.

Boots attended the University of Richmond in Richmond, Va., and Evansville College in Evansville, Ind., where he earned an accounting degree.

Boots was known on the basketball court, particularly by his opponents. Though both schools are in good basketball territory, Boots rarely turned in a poor performance and compiled a 14 point average.

Boots joined the Army in October last year, on the College Option Plan. He took basic training and AIT at Fort Dix, N.J. While there, he played center and forward for his AIT company and averaged 10.25 points.

Field Trial Set To Be Run Here

The Georgia-Alabama word horse field trial and rental Sportsman's Club, Inc. will have horses will be available for trial on the field grounds on the gallery.

Boots is presently one of the stalwarts of 82nd's team and hopes to help make it the team to beat in the 8th Stu. Bn. Tournament.

Refreshments, food and rest rooms will be available. Bleachers are located where spectators can see the dogs.

Calorie Counter's Curse

Art of Baking Taught Cooks of ATC Units

Flaky biscuits, oatmeal cookies, Danish pastry, coffee cake, lemon meringue pie and pineapple upside down cake are just some of the pastries that students of the 2nd

Brigade Food Service pastry school, U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, have learned to prepare. The students find, on the first day of the week-long course, that pastry baking is a science and requires a knowledge of the characteristics of the ingredients. During baking, the ingredients undergo chemical changes and thus the cook must be skillful in order to obtain the desired results.

Rally Starts 1967 Drive Of NHA-FSC

Better health for everyone... and 100 per cent generation giving.

These are the goals for the annual Federal Services Campaign of the National Health Agencies, a six-week fund drive launched at a kickoff rally in Marshall Auditorium here yesterday.

Endorsed by President Lyndon B. Johnson, military commanders and Federal department heads, the drive is seeking contributions from all servicemen and civilian employees.

At the rally MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, and officials from the NHA's Atlanta office told team captains just how contributions will be put to work.

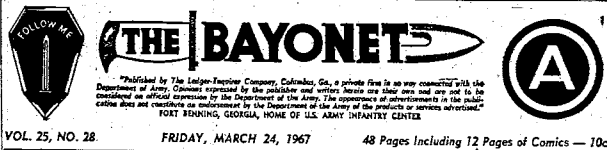

MG York said, "Regardless of how much each man gives, we will certainly try for full participation. I have no doubt about the generosity of our people."

All gifts go to the volunteer agencies for programs of research, education and community services. Here are examples of ways in which the money is used:

- For $25 a diagnostic team can give a handicapped child a comprehensive

Four Sunrise Services Mark Holy Week End

Holy Week observances will end with four Easter sunrise services Sunday. On Main Post, a sunrise service is scheduled for 6:30 a.m. at Doughboy Stadium. In the Harmony Church, similar services will be conducted on Stroup Field at 6:15 a.m., and at Chapel No. 3 at 6:30 a.m. and at Sand Hill, a sunrise service will be held in Kimbro Gym at 6:30 a.m. At Doughboy Stadium, "Christ is Risen," will be the topic of the Sunrise Service, sermon by Chaplain James J. James. The entire service will be broadcast by Radio Station WRBL in Columbus. A combined Easter choir will sing "The Hallelujah Chorus," from Handel's "The Messiah," and will lead the congregation in singing Easter hymns. John F. Grant-ner is president of the choir. ## Post Plans Workshop For Middle Managers

Self-development of middle managers will come under close scrutiny at a workshop to be conducted here by the Civilian Personnel Section beginning next Monday. Military and civilian leaders will take part in the weeklong program which is intended to provide the manager an opportunity to take perspective and to plan for future growth and development.

The workshop will open with a welcome to participants by COL David G. Sherrard, deputy post commander. Lemuel D. Johnson, employee development specialist, will conduct the initial session to outline the week's objectives. Major presentations during the week will be made by George A. Giggel, director of public affairs for WRBL Radio and TV; COL M. G. Schreiber, American University; A. J. McClung, executive secretary, Atlanta Street YMCA; and William A. Lyman, president, National Bank of Fort Benning. Other major presentations will be given by BG Charles M. Mount Jr., Army Training Center commander, on "Management in the Future," and COL J. S. Leckson, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School on the subject, "Increased Productivity Through Recognition."

Largest Telephone Cable ...

Presently being installed at Fort Benning is one-half mile of 2400-pair cable, the largest capacity cable to be located here. Consisting of 4849 individual wires and costing $7.33 a foot, the cable is being placed between the main post central telephone exchange and the quartel area to accommodate an additional telephone load created by the renovation and conversion of the quartels to BOQs. Shown are Eldred J. Daigre, right, communications assistant, Signal Services Division, looking on as Lee Temple, left, Beckler and Shaw Contractors, guides the cable into a manhole. (Photo by Ken Prater)

Twenty-six military and civilian employees will attend the workshop. All fall within the category of "middle managers," defined as managers who have supervisors reporting to them and who, themselves, report to higher level managers. (See 26, Page 2) fundamentals of being in accordance with proven Army recipes.

More Planned

Plans call for the school to be held in the other three battalions of the brigade. As was done in the 8th Battalion, the school will be held at the end of a training cycle when approximately 250 training halls are vacant for a full week and four qualified mess stewards can devote full time to the program.

On the last afternoon of the school, a reception was held for the training center staff.

After a briefing on the school's purpose by Galliarone, the students were presented diplomas by Brig. Charles M. Mount Jr., commanding general, USATC.

managers in a specific activity.

The Department of the Army, in establishing the workshop format, believes it will permit the middle manager to: Assess his place in the organizational structure by examining his managerial role; explore certain management theories, concepts and practices; broaden his interest; and extend the habit of inquiry and reflection; and plan for his further growth and development.

Four

ham will direct the choir.

Chaplain Hale will be assisted in the service by Chaplain LTC Gray G. Johnson, Infantry Center Troop Command chaplain, and Chaplain (COL) Joseph R. Andrews. Chaplain Johnson will give the call to worship and invocation and will lead the responsive reading. Chaplain Andrews will give the pastoral prayer and the benediction.

Boy Scouts Usher

Ushers for the service will be Boy Scouts under the direction of Ralph Spence, Scout coordinator.

After the service, the Super Club, 7-89 Club and Crain Hall will be open for breakfast.

In case of rain, the service will be conducted in Marshall Auditorium. Announcement of any change will be made.

Mortality rate said higher in accidents of small cars

This is a debatable question since statistics show that small cars are not involved in more accidents than standard sized cars but the number of fatalities and serious injuries resulting from small car accidents are greater.

This is because the small car offers less protection to the occupants involved in an accident and is involved in more rollover type accidents, which generally result in severe damage.

Also, ejection of the occupants from the car in an accident is more frequent in smaller cars than in larger cars, and there is a higher mortality rate among ejected occupants than among non-ejected occupants.

Since there is a greater chance for serious or fatal injury in smaller cars, it is important that the drivers of these cars realize that some of their car's attractive features are also accidents.

The Judge Says . . .

Nonsupport can produce expensive consequences

During a man's lifetime, he will assume many obligations. One of the foremost of these obligations is the obligation to support his wife and children. Many servicemen are today finding themselves in a great deal of trouble because they have shirked their duty of support.

Let's take a look at the possible legal consequences that may result from nonsupport.

First of all, your wife may modify your unit command through your failure to provide support for your family. At the least, this will cause great embarrassment to you and possibly it will then lead to administrative or disciplinary action.

Secondly, there are many civil consequences that may result from shirking your responsibility. All states provide for civil proceedings for nonsupport. In these proceedings the husband is brought into court and either pays up or he can go to jail.

Also, as few men can testify, you cannot escape this civil proceeding by being stationed in a state other than that in which your family resides. By means of the Uniform Reciprocal Information Act, the law can reach you in any state. Some states even

Take corrective measures against poisoning accidents

It has been variously estimated that over a million accidental ingestions of potentially toxic substances occur each year, the bulk of these being among children under the age of five years. A campaign which highlights this problem for one week, National Poison Prevention Week, hopefully will result in an informed public able to take corrective measures to permit year-round safety against this hazard.

Children less than five years old are particularly susceptible to poisoning accidents because this age group is in the learning process. They learn by exploring their environment. What they see, they try to reach, and what they reach, they put into their mouths.

They are completely dependent upon adults for protection and when poisoning accidents happen, they are, in the main, the direct result of adult carelessness or lack of awareness of these potential dangers.

How Do They Happen

We ask ourselves, "How do these accidents happen?" Generally, because these products are within reach of the child. As the child grows, his agility, his energy and mobility will allow him to get into storage areas previously considered inaccessible. Also, specifically, a poisoning accident can result from one or a combination of the following situations:

1. Mother is polishing the furniture when the telephone rings. She leaves the bottle on the coffee table. She should take it with her.

2. Or, a young child may be ill, and for convenience, the medicine is left on the bedside table, within reach of the other children. Medicines should be put away, preferably in a locked cabinet, when not in immediate use.

3. Internal medicines are stored on the same shelf as other household products. Many containers are similar and many products have the same appearance, and in an unpredictable moment, these may be confused. Camphorated oil, for example, often has been mistakenly substituted for castor oil.

4. Caps, glasses or soft-drink bottles are often used as containers of non-edible medicines, even missing from the containers. Don't take a chance - discard the contents and get a new supply.

Unread Labels

Labels often go unread even though they give specific directions for use. No matter how frequently the product has been used, the label should be checked before each re-use.

Medicines are given or taken without turning on the

Dental care was scarce during the Confederacy

Dentistry and The War Between the States-Part 2.

As the fighting continued, soldiers in the field were desperately in need of dental attention. When Sherman's army marched into Savannah in 1864, many of his 100,000 men besieged the dental offices from daylight to dark for dental attention.

One dentist estimated that the emergency need alone would have required 100 dentists to work for six months on these troops. Dental instruments and supplies became extremely scarce and charlatans, who pretended to practice dentistry, often followed the troops.

Since neither side offered dental care, soldiers had to pay private practitioners for treatment. The expense was prohibitive, especially for the Confederate soldier in 1864 and 1865.

This soldier made $18 a month but gold fell cost $64 per ounce in gold coin currency and $13,850 in the dollar.

USAFI marks 25th year

Education often can be compared to the weather. That is, "everyone talks about it but no one does anything about it."

There is, however, an organization that has done a great deal for servicemen's education.

The United States Armed Forces Institute, more commonly referred as USAFI, has served over six million students during its 25 years of educational service to the armed forces.

Beginning as the Army Institute on April 1, 1942, there were 64 correspondence courses in technical and academic subjects and a few hundred university and high school courses from the extension divisions of participating colleges and universities available to Army personnel.

Since then, USAFI has become a worldwide, all-service, comprehensive, educational effort.

Located in Madison, Wis., USAFI's catalogs now list more than 6000 available courses from 47 participating colleges and universities. USAFI itself has developed 222 courses.

Continuing application of research and innovation in the USAFI program, such as the general examinations of the college level examination program, seek to improve the learning process of service personnel.

In addition, thousands of service personnel have earned high school diplomas and college credits through the USAFI General Educational Development (GED) tests.

The USAFI contribution to the military community is immeasurable and has earned the respect, appreciation and admiration of all the Armed Forces. (AFNB)

Post Sets Busy Schedule For Visiting Ohio Scouts

After next week over 150 Explorer Scouts from northern Ohio will know what it takes to be an Infantryman.

As host for the Greater Cleveland Ohio Explorer Scout Encampment March 26-April 1, The Infantry Center has scheduled a week of weapons firing, helicopter rides, airborne and infantry ranger training, guaranteed to satisfy any boy's thirst for adventure.

Every hour of the group's visit has been filled with samples of Army life and is topped off with an "Explorer Ball" at Fort Benning's Teen Center.

The Explorers, older boys of the Boy Scouts of America, will start their days at 5:45 a.m. with first call for reveille and lights out will not come until 10:30 p.m.

Arriving at 7 p.m. Sunday at Lawson Army Airfield, their first night will be spent in barracks, personal sanitation and drill.

At that time they will be organized into platoons and will get to know four Fort Benning sergeants who will be with them constantly during their stay.

Each day after reveille, they will start with physical training by the Ranger Department. The Infantry School Commandant will welcome them early Monday morning. An encampment briefing will follow and the first of Monday morning will be filled with machine gun and firing of machine guns at Fort Benning's Wagon Range.

It will be "Airborne - All The Way!" that afternoon. After watching the Airborne Department's hour long demonstration of its training that ends with a dramatic four man free fall parachute jump from 10,000 feet, the scouts themselves will get into the act.

On a strictly volunteer basis, they will be allowed to ride the 250-foot "buddy seat" parachute and jump from the 24-foot towers.

Stick training at the Army Training Center, and the famous pistol Tuesday morning "Hangers in Action" presentation that afternoon.

Retirement Ceremony Scheduled

A mass retirement ceremony for 20 officers and enlisted men will be conducted at 9 a.m. March 29 on York Field here.

MG Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, will present awards and retirement certificates.

The retirees will join MG York as the honor guard, Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., passes in review.

A color guard from Company C will carry the National colors and unit colors of The Infantry Center Troop Command, The Infantry Center, 197th Inf. Ede, Martin Army Hospital, U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry and 10th Avn. Gp.

Music for the parade, to be played by The Infantry Center Band, will include the National anthem and "Auld Lang Syne."

In case of rain, the retirement ceremony will be held in Marshall Auditorium.

Adding spice to the day will be Ranger survival techniques with two platoons being introduced to hand-to-hand combat that night. The other two platoons have movies during the evening.

Moving into the field on foot Wednesday morning, the scouts will set up a bivouac and then watch a 7 a.m. ground vehicles in action. After lunch in the field they will ride armored personnel carriers and tanks.

Later they will meet the members of Fort Benning's Air Explorer Scout Post at Lawson Army Air Field and be given a tour of the Army Air Command operations and aircraft.

A glimpse of OCS life will also be shown that afternoon with a tour of an officer candidate company.

Plans to hand combat will be one of parades in awards ceremonies and a talk Tuesday night will fill out the evening with movies for the scouts.

Moving back to the barracks Friday morning the scouts will get a chance to clean up before watching a scout dog demonstration at Kelley Hill.

It's to the leaders' reaction course that afternoon and the Explorer Ball that night at Teen Square.

The final day of Fort Benning ceremonies and a talk Tuesday night will fill out the evening with movies for the outstanding scout, COL Robert B. Nett.

Crazy Hats Featured at Luncheon For 197th Wives at Officers' Club

A crazy hat show was the main attraction at the monthly luncheon of the 197th Infantry Brigade officers' wives held recently in the Fountain Club.

Title Selected by OWC For Election Luncheon

"A Breath of Spring" has been chosen as the theme for the April election luncheon of the Officers' Wives' Club. The luncheon will be held April 5 at the Main Officers' Club under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles M. Mount Jr. and hosted by ladies of the Army Training Center.

A special program will be presented by Charles Mount, Columbus television personality and Little Theatre director. Decorations chairman is Mrs. Ben Ward with Mrs. Walter Gemmill and Mrs. Henry Hardenberg. Their assistants will be ladies of the 1st Bde. reception station and committee group. Mrs. Robert Leon is coordinating chairman with Mrs. John Parker, Mrs. William White and Mrs. Patrick Thomas.

Election Held By OC Wives

The wives of the officer candidates of the 72d Co. (OC) held a tea recently during which they elected officers of the wives club and took a tour of the area with CPT Billy W. May, company commander.

In the elections, Mrs. Jose Vasquez was chosen as chair-lady, Mrs. Lawrence Sandri, secretary, and Mrs. Richard Skaria treasurer.

May explained to the assembled wives and their guests, Mrs. Ned Mabry, wife of The Student Brigade commander, Mrs. Raymond Fleigh, wife of the 7th Stu. Bn. commander, and Mrs. Warren Copenhafer, wife of the battalion executive officer, that the OCS program was presented in three phases.

NCO Wives Stage Show Of Spring Hats at Lunch

In spring, a woman's fancy turns to hats. Naturally, a Spring hat show was the focus of attention for the 106 noncommissioned officers' wives at a recent luncheon at Crain Hall. Flowers, ribbons and colorful straws adorned the hats modeled by Mrs. Joe A. Chapman, Mrs. Thomas E. Fish, Mrs. Othon O. Valenti, Mrs. Frederick Galick, Mrs. Richard G. Croy, Mrs. Thomas Becker and Mrs. Ardelle Hansen.

The hats for the fashion show were furnished by a Columbus military shop. Decorations followed a St. Patrick's Day theme as announced by the ladies. The surprise of the luncheon was the shamrock covered dress and matching green Irish hat modeled by Mrs. William V. Webb.

Newcomers welcomed into the club were Mrs. James McNeil, Mrs. Bobby Yeargan, Mrs. Billy Euland and Mrs. Webb. Door prize winners Mrs. H. Meyer, Mrs. Ike Franklin and Mrs. Gerald Partell were presented yellow chrysanthemum plants. Mrs. Phillip Cuevas was awarded a bottle of wine, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Fish won spring hats, and Mrs. Marion Chapman was awarded a yellow bunny cake centerpiece.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Wallace Colson, Mrs. Williams Rainbridge, Mrs. Joe Blackwell and Mrs. Webb. Devotions were given by Mrs. Gene Purvis and the program, entitled "Symbol of Easter," was presented by Mrs. Edward R. Lillich. Honored guests included Mrs. Bob Edwards, Mrs. Ned B. Mabry, Mrs. Earl P. Hopper and Mrs. William Hanks.

The Student Brigade chapter holds its regular meetings on the third Thursday of every month at 1 p.m. in the 26th. Free nursery is available and all ladies of the Student Brigade cadres and students are invited to attend the meetings.

A La Mode Fashion Show Entertains Post Families

By Jane Daniels

If you had allowed yourself to forget where you were, you would have thought that you were on a beautiful street in Paris at springtime, seeing the most beautiful fashions in France.

Such imaginings would have been quite understood by anyone at "A La Mode," the spring fashion show of the Officers Wives' Club at the Main Post Theater Friday night.

The Paris street scene was a perfect backdrop for the men's, women's and children's fashions from 17 Columbus stores.

In the window of a little dress shop stood a fashionable mannequin, a different model in each sequence of the program.

A little lawn bench under a big green tree and a sidewalk cafe completed the setting.

Soft pale pink hydrangeas accented the air of spring.

The program opened with a swinging mod scene as the teenage models Madeline Carper, Laurie Fox, Susan Headley, Kathy Kent, Beth McLeod, Leslie Newton, Nancy Patterson, Teresa Powers, Jo Anne Shenwell, Julie Smeets, Kit Smothers and Sari Wise danced a completely modern number to comb music.

The men, COL Donald F. Barracough, CPT Robert J. Fullerton, CPT Herbert B. Erb, and Peter E. Bartlett, escorted the ladies and showed that they also could be stylish as they modeled golf sportswear, bathing suits, and dress suits.

The little girls, Yvonne Bringuel, Beth and Teri Lefebvre, Jennifer and Cathy Oxford, Sally O'Sullivan and Kathy Martin, stole the show in their lacy, frilly Easter outfits.

Fashion for beach, home, coffees and luncheons, cocktails and formal wear were elegantly modeled by Mrs. Wayne T. Boles, Mrs. Andrew J. Brington, Mrs. Reuben W. Dixon Jr., Mrs. Robert J. Fullerton, Mrs. John C. Hoover Jr., Mrs. Walter Kuehl, Mrs. Arthur R. Littlewood III, Mrs. Daniel J. Martin and Mrs. Stephen McIntyre III.

Also Mrs. Thomas H. McPherson, Mrs. Grady E. Oxford, Mrs. Reuben M. Pate, Mrs. Jarratt J. Robertson, Mrs. David H. Rogers, Mrs. Larry D. Sadler, Mrs. Theodore B. Sichel III, Mrs. Patrick Thomas, Mrs. James M. Townsend, Mrs. Frederick Tzoz, Mrs. Tyler Tugwell, Mrs. Norman M. Vaughn, Mrs. Jerry E. Ward and Mrs. Walter B. Wesley.

The models were trained by Mrs. Frank Roberts of the OWO charm and modeling school.

Highlight of the show was Mrs. Robert E. York guest model in a pink silk formal gown with a petti-point bodice. Mrs. York was escorted by MG York, Fort Benning commander.

Commentators for the show were Mrs. Willard H. Miller and Wes Carr.

Coordinators for the program were Mrs. McIntyre and Mrs. Stuber.

Every detail was coordinated with the beautiful clothes, hairstyles, makeup, carpet, flowers and precious gifts were provided by Columbus stores.

The show even boasted a $20,000 pearl necklace, a lustrous single strand 20 feet long.

Petticoat Portraits Mrs. Cliff Offers Hospitality to All

By Jane Daniels

One Fort Benning wife is remembered by many wives as the one who was their salvation during their first few days on post. She gave them a place to stay during the long processing in and helped them with kitchen supplies and bedding until their household goods came.

She acted as a generous source of information for wives seeking a place to rent, gave tips on finding their way around and was a friendly face to incoming families.

The friendly face the wives remember is that of Mrs. Wayne Cliff, chairman of the Hospitality House and wife of the acting sergeant major of the 11th Bn., Army Training Center.

Many of Fort Benning's newly arrived and departing wives have received her services. Recently, she received a certificate from Army Community Services for over 1000 hours of service at the Hospitality House.

Other Activities Besides this tremendous job, she manages to "take out" work for the PTA, the cancer drive, the heart fund and the March of Dimes.

Mrs. Cliff and her husband were both born in Jackson, Mich., and had both attended the same school.

They managed to "discover" each other, however, only years later through the friendship of their two families.

After they married, they were stationed in Detroit, Mich., Fort Bliss, Tex., and Germany.

Enjoyed Tours The Cliffs really enjoyed their two stations in Germany at Munich and Homburg. They were able to become very close with a German couple and were welcomed just as though they were a part of the German family.

They stayed with the family during the holidays and were welcomed at all the German family homes. Of all of the things in their home, the Cliffs particularly value gifts from their German friends, a wood carving, which dates back to the 1700's, the father's traditional wedding ring and a crystal fruit bowl.

MRS. WAYNE CLIFF
'Hospitality' Chief

Also from Germany came an eight-day Black Forest clock and oil paintings of the country's beautiful scenery. "My most cherished treasure from Germany, though," Mrs. Cliff says, "is our daughter Theresia Louise."

Theresia, 11, is now a student at Wesley Heights Elementary School in Columbus.

Named Delegate While abroad, Mrs. Cliff was chosen as a delegate to the American Association of Women Activities in Germany and helped to sponsor an orphanage.

After Germany, the Cliffs came to Fort Benning in 1959. Here Mrs. Cliff has been a coordinator of the Rota Wives' Club, president of the 2nd Inf. Div. NCO Wives' Club, the corresponding secretary of the Wesley Heights Elementary School, emergency committee chairman of the 2nd Division Family Service Center and was a charter member of the Ladies of the Big Indian head.

Mrs. Cliff seems to thrive on her many activities. Perhaps the secret to her vibrant life is constant service to others.

Luncheon Fetes Weapon's Wives

A St. Patrick's Day theme highlighted a recent luncheon held at the Country Club for the wives of the Infantry School's Weapons Department.

An enormous leprechaun greeted the wives from a mushroom perch and giant shamrocks and rows of ivy lined each table. Miniature shamrocks, leprechaun hats and Irish harps were used for name tags and place cards.

The guest speaker, Mrs. V. Vick, gave a talk on silver and china. She stressed the significance of choosing a pattern of silver or china that expresses ones personality and told the wives the best routine care for silver.

Wives of the small arms welcomed newcomers Mrs. George Sykes, Mrs. Nelson Garcia, Mrs. Lorenzo Phillips Jr., Mrs. Richard Hoff, Mrs. William Myers, and Mrs. Edwin Risberg and bade farewells to departing wives Mrs. Holterman, Mrs. Edward Blue, Mrs. William Dandorff, Mrs. R. B. Durant Jr., Mrs. Gerald Godbey, Mrs. Donald Evans and Mrs. Drury D. King.

MRS. CALVERT RECEIVES STOCK TIPS Robert Martin Spoke to Wives on Finances (Photo by Vernon Paul)

Dear Community Service, I don't have a problem, but I have been reading your column for some time, and I still don't have a very clear idea about your office and what it is supposed to do. Does it belong to the Army with an official staff or is it made up of volunteers? Maybe it is part of the Officers Wives Club or the NCOs Wives Club. The only poster I have ever seen was that one about CSA and being sure to register.

I've been told that CSA is now ACS, and I know that means Army Community Service, but that's all.

Dear Curious, CURIOUS Army Community Service or Community Services Agency, as it was originally titled, provides military families with a means of bringing together all available resources for the relief of personal problems. That is making sure that the office of agency best equipped to resolve a family's problem is put in contact with the family.

Established initially as a Wives' Mobility Coffee

The monthly Mobility Officers' Wives' Coffee was held last week at the home of Mrs. L. E. Thomas.

The table was decorated with a St. Patrick Day motif. A green and white floral center piece graced the table. The matching table cloth and napkins were printed with a shamrock and leprechaun design.

Mrs. W. J. Mason, a newcomer to the group, was introduced to the ladies. Mrs. J. R. Walker won the door-prize, a white and gold water pitcher.

The co-hostesses for the event were Mrs. L. E. Thomas, Mrs. W. W. Ash, Mrs. D. G. Dunkberger, Mrs. R. A. Dutton and Mrs. M. J. Lochner.

Wives Hear Talk By Stock Broker

For Geographical Wives, whose husbands are overseas, TDY, or Bootstraps, a recent coffee at the Main Officers' Club was the answer to many problems about finances. The topic of the program was "Enigma of Investment." The wives, very conscious about stocks, bonds and mutual funds, were name tags representing dollar bills.

Robert Martin, assisted by Tommy White, gave the wives a talk concerning the history of the stock markets and told them some of the pitfalls involved. Martin is a representative of a Columbus brokerage firm and a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

The wives, very conscious about stocks, bonds and mutual funds, were name tags representing dollar bills. Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Thomas H. Miller.

Special guests were Mrs. Iby McInnis and Mrs. M. Stanford.

Post Wives Visit 'Iglloo' Tour Supply Facilities

Wives in 'igloos' at Fort post ammunition supply point at Harmony Church and wound up their view of what's "all in a day's work" for their husbands.

The ladies of the tour were Mrs. Charles A. Youngman, Mrs. Warren Phillips, Mrs. Louis C. Fry, Mrs. K. D. Hestand, Mrs. John C. Royer and Mrs. William J. Holt.

Also Mrs. William S. Bush, Mrs. William L. Duhann, Mrs. Judge W. Martin, Mrs. James F. Loudernick, Mrs. Gladys Davis, Mrs. Stanley E. Fillion, and Mrs. Vincent Slonka.

They began their tour at the old post headquarters building, where MAJ. L. D. Hestand, chief of supply control and storage, briefed them on the complexity of their husbands' jobs in supplying the post with practically everything from scout dogs to chairs.

Each wife acted as her own supply sergeant as she started out with a requisition card for one of the 65,000 different items in storage at Fort Benning. After seeing what work was required on her request in the administrative and availability editing section, keypunch section and document control, she found the item in the issue warehouse.

Finally, the wives saw the official staff is expected to total three officers, three E4 and one civilian. However, if the mission is to be accomplished, Army Community Service must develop a substantial volunteer service in order to meet personnel requirements.

Presently volunteers are needed for administrative work, preparation of publicity material, provision of transportation, child care and other emergency services, in addition to assistance upon casualty notification.

Army wives are the best qualified people to insure that Army Community Service develops self-help and promotes stability at the same time that it is giving service.

The Drill Sergeant NCO Keeps Eye On New Recruits

SFC Hedefonso D. Tayam, senior drill sergeant, is called "doctor" by the other drill sergeants of Co. B, 6th BN, 2nd Bde, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, for that is his middle name.

Soon after his arrival at the training center in October, 1966, Tayam attended the drill sergeant school at Fort Jackson, S. C. Upon graduation he received the campaign hat he had first seen and admired as a young boy in the Philippines.

Tayam, who saw Japanese planes dive bombing in the vicinity of his home on Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day, 1954, was forced to discontinue his schooling at that time.

He and other young men of his age helped Filipino guerrillas and American soldiers by acting as guards and messengers during the war and occupation.

After the war, while working in Guam for the armed services, Tayam enlisted in the Army in 1952.

He took basic combat training at Schofield Barracks with the 29th Inf. Regt. in Korea in 1953.

New York Parade

Tayam returned by ship to the United States and took part in a big "welcome home" parade in New York City in April, 1954. And in 1954 he became an American citizen.

From 1954 to 1957 he served as a squad leader in the 25th Inf. Div. in Hawaii.

His next assignment was to the support group, The Infantry School at Fort Benning.

European Tour

Tayam later was assigned to a basic training unit at Fort Ord, Calif., for three years before joining the 24th Inf. Div. at Eugendorf, Germany. While on duty with his unit in Berlin, he trained with the French, West Berliners and British.

While in Ostel, Germany training with West German Army units, Tayam received orders to report to USAFOT Fort Benning.

As senior drill sergeant he coordinates all the training received by the men in his company. He confirms the location of each class, and checks both equipment and uniforms.

Nearly 500 Are Entered In Foreign Area Training

Officer manpower provided through the Army's Foreign Area Specialist Training (FAST) program is nearing the 500 mark in the seven categories offered.

The course has graduated 378 officers, is now training another 86 and has 13 more officers awaiting classes for a total participation of 476.

FAST started in 1956, is one of 12 officer special career programs. It prepares an officer for foreign service by giving him background on the environment, the people and their cultures.

Officers may specialize in these regional categories:

Medal Presented To PVT's Parents

A Silver Star for gallantry in Vietnam was posthumously awarded to Pvt. Emmitt Mays Jr. here last week when his parents Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Mays Sr. of Columbus accepted the decoration.

Courses Provide Training in MOS

Soldiers now have more than 50 MOS-related courses from which to choose in the new USCONARC Pamphlet (No. 621-1, General Education, Development, MOS-related Instruction).

The courses prepare military personnel to professionally qualify for proficiency pay and higher assignments, while the Army benefits through more highly-skilled soldiers.

The courses cover academic, scientific, and technical vocational subjects. Army personnel have completed more than one million such courses in the past 10 years. (ANF)

ARMY'S LARGEST AMPHIBIAN ON FORT STORY, VA. BEACH Covered 1700 Miles of Inland and Coastal Waterways in Recent Trip (U. S. Army Photo)

New Series of Amphibious Lighters

Evaluation of LARC Accelerated

Evaluation of the Army's ability to embark and disembark its amphibious lighters from various types of landing craft.

The LARC XV, second largest amphibian of its type in the world, is undergoing confirmatory tests conducted by the U. S. Army Equipment Test Activity, Fort Lee, Va. Participating in the round-the-clock, seven-days-a-week test schedule are men and equipment of the U. S. Army Transportation Center, Fort Eustis, Va.

Designed for use in cargo operations in areas where fixed water terminal facilities are not available, the three amphibians — LARC XV, LARC XV and LARC LX — are capable of operating over land and water with normal payloads of 5, 15 and 60 tons, respectively.

Off-shore Operations

They are expected to load or discharge vessels lying offshore, receiving or delivering cargo at shipside and transporting it over the beach to or from inland supply areas.

With a 15-ton payload aboard, the LARC XV, constructed of welded aluminum and powered by two diesel engines, can travel at 25 mph on a smooth hard surface. The four-wheel all-wheel-drive vehicle makes about 10 mph in the water with the same load.

The LARC XV trials are being pushed to completion to determine the suitability of production models and associated maintenance packages for Army use. The evaluation includes a review of modifications installed as a result of findings in previous tests.

Simulated Conditions

How well the test vehicle performs under simulated tactical field conditions is also under consideration. These studies cover its capabilities in light and heavy surf and

Ex-WAC Directors Aid in Filming Picture to Be Used for Training

Five former directors of the Women's Army Corps joined the current director, COL Elizabeth P. Housington, on March 14 for the purpose of participating in a training film outlining the accomplishments of the Corps during the past 25 years.

This is the first meeting ever attended by all living former directors who are still alive, beginning with COL Hobbs O. Galloway, in May, 1942.

The fourth Director, COL William Rasmuson and Lt. Col. Gorman, is described the acting director of the Corps during her tenure of office, beginning with COL Hobbs O. Galloway, in May, 1942.

Far From Home But . . . Trainee Is Close to Service Clubs

By Jane Daniels
The Fort Benning soldier who perhaps feels the farthest from home is the trainee. He is not, however, very far from the fellowship and recreation offered by the four post service clubs.
One of these clubs, the South Harmony Church Service Club, works mainly with the trainee and his cadre. Its over-all goal is to provide an organized program of recreation for enlisted men. More in particular, it makes a man's free time a lot more enjoyable.
February, for example, was "Parade of American Music Month" with a musical variety series at the South Harmony Club.
Musical Programs
A classical concert, a musical quiz given by a live combo, and a concert of unrecorded folk music by the trainees themselves, made the series a complete success with the men.
In January, a fashion show was given by a Columbus store. Settings for the show were complete in every detail, down to a 15-foot boat and fish netting to use as a backdrop for beach fashions.
At almost any time at the club, ping pong, shuffle board, pool, James Bond chess and other games are in full swing.

Dead Wrong
A hearse, speeding down the Connecticut Turnpike at 75 miles per hour near Westport, was halted by state police. The vehicle bore a body bound for New York City.
"You people have no respect for the dead in this state," snapped the driver of the hearse.
"Yes, we do," replied Sgt. Donald Waite of the radar patrol. "That's why I stopped you."

OC Unit Helping in Search for Answer To Question on Vitamin Use By Troops

Can the use of vitamins help make a better soldier? Members of the 90th Co., 1st Sst. Bn. (OC), The School Brigade, are helping to find the answer.
The Army, in cooperation with a civilian pharmaceutical manufacturer, is checking into the effects upon the body of a few new vitamins. In spite of a few new names such as "vitamin company," the candidates are being 100 per cent cooperative and tactical officers who have been asking why Officer Candidates do not take more vitamins in the morning.
Purpose Stated
Purpose of the program is to study every competitive area in which a candidate works to see if vitamin pills in the normal diet of an Officer Candidate make a significant difference.
These areas include scholarship and physical training as well as frequency of sick calls and general alertness.
A weight check was made on each candidate when he entered the company. These figures also will be used for comparison at the end of the program.
The study is being conducted by dividing the company into a control group and an experimental group using a random choice system.
No one candidate knows which group he is in. Each candidate takes a "vitamin" pill twice daily at morning and evening meals. All of the pills look the same but the pills for each group arrive in separately marked containers.
Information on the chemical content of the pills, is not available. What is known, however, is that the pill takes approximately 20 times as potent as the average daily vitamin pill available on the consumer market today. The human body, in respect to what it needs, rejects by normal processes what it does not require.

165 Complete Infantry OCS; Ceremony Held
Mistakes should be made early — in an academic or training environment — and not in combat where it costs lives. COL Donald F. Barracough told 165 graduates of an officer candidate course here recently.
Himself a graduate of OCS, COL Barracough is executive officer of the Weapons Department at The Infantry School.
"Don't be afraid to ask either your superiors or subordinates for advice," he urged the new lieutenants, members of the 84th Co., 8th Sst. Bn.
Distinguished honor graduates and first in academics were Gall W. Wood, Leadership honors were shared by 2LT Brett A. Francis, and 2LT Kay M. Moo.

Don't be stood up on stand-by.

Going home, you'll want to fly on military stand-by. You save half the regular fare, and that's worth saving.
So come to United Air Lines first. You'll find us at airports serving 111 U.S. cities. From most of them, we have more flights to more cities than any other airline.
And United has the largest commercial jet fleet in the air, so there are more seats available, less chance of having to wait around on stand-by.
Men and women in United States uniform, with authorized military leave or furlough papers, fly stand-by at 50% off regular Coach fare. (This fare also applies within 7 days after discharge.) You can sit wherever the seats are — even First Class when the other seats are filled.
Here's hoping we see you soon. Back home, they miss you.

For information and tickets, visit or call your JAMTO office located at Bldg. 19, Tele. No. 545-3438.

Post P-TA Elects COL Horne

COL Richard C. Horne III, director of The Infantry School Communications Electronics Department, was elected president of the Fort Benning Dependable School's P-TA at the meeting held last Friday at Faith School.

COL T. E. Tisdale, director of personnel at the Infantry Center, was guest speaker. With slides taken on two tours in the Republic of Vietnam, COL Tisdale illustrated the beauty and architecture of the country and the work being done by Americans in the midst of the war, to make a better world for the Vietnamese.

Ann Ealick led Girl Scouts from Troop 193 in the opening flag ceremony. Assisting were Cheryl Larson, Juanita Warden, Linda Lilla, Teri King, Sharon Sweet and Renee Harding.

Mrs. William Hanks, first vice president of the P-TA, presided at the election and meeting. Mrs. Jack L. Treadwell, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the state of officers for 1967.

In addition to COL Horne, those elected were: MAJ Arnold Tyndall, first vice president; SGT Donald Potrafed, second vice president; Mrs. Warren Phillips, third vice president; Evelyn South, school secretary; Mrs. Edgar Kelly, assistant secretary; SGT Willie May, treasurer; and MSGR Ronald Gardner, assistant treasurer.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the May meeting.

Dinner Held For Retired Chaplain
 Chaplain (COL) Albert C. Wildman, USAF, retired post chaplain who retired here in 1960, is visiting Fort Benning in connection with his work as associate executive secretary, Department of Chaplains and Services Personnel, United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The Infantry Center Chapel section gave a dinner at the Main Officers' Open Mess yesterday in honor of Chaplain Wildman, three Presbyterian chaplains assigned to Fort Benning and their superior officers.

The honored guests included COL T. E. Tisdale, Infantry Center director of personnel; COL Lon D. Marlow, commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command; COL J. Commanding General's Message
EASTER AND PASSOVER MESSAGE TO ALL FORT BENNING PERSONNEL
 On the eve of the Christian Easter Season and the Jewish Passover observance, I extend my best wishes.

Both the Protestant and Roman Catholic traditions have a priceless heritage and find new strength, assurance and blessing during the Easter season. Through Holy Week and on Easter Sunday I trust that each of you will enjoy the privilege of attending the religious services of your choice.

The period April 25-May 2 marks Passover which is one of the most sacred days for the Jewish personnel. I extend to all personnel of that major faith my sincere wishes for genuine spiritual renewal during this observance at Fort Benning.

It is my hope that each of you will find renewed dedications and spiritual strength during these days of religious emphasis.

Infantrymen Donate Clothing to Vietnam Children

PHUOC VINH, Vietnam - Happiness for the village children of Bau Ou is a surprise package from the "Black Lions" of the 1st Bu.

On several occasions the 1st Bu soldiers have made trips to the small village adjacent to their perimeter to give the children a treat and on these occasions they have brought much happiness.

Recently they went to the village and presented the residents with boxes of clothing which were sent to the Bayview Baptist Church of the Columbia, S.C.

From the beginning of his tour in Vietnam, Taylor had corresponded with the Bayview Baptist Church and mentioned that when not engaged in combat operations, the 28th actively participates in local civic action programs.

After receiving Taylor's letters, the church started a campaign to collect as much clothing as possible and shipped it to the 28th. They took the clothes from the the village. All the clothing was packed into a trailer and transported to the village for distribution. As the jeep pulled into the village they were immediately surrounded by the smiling faces of the children who enthusiastically climbed aboard the vehicles.

Jeep Ride
 SP4 Charles B. Freitag, driver of one vehicle, asked a little boy if he would like to ride along in the jeep. As the youngster boarded the jeep, the other children saw him and before Freitag could do anything about it he had a whole jeep load to drive around the school yard.

All the boxes were unloaded and put on the front steps of the schoolhouse. The children gathered around and watched with bawful and eager eyes. As the boxes were opened, SGT Richard P. Zielgenies coaxed one of the little girls to pick up a dress and then one by one the others started exploring the contents of the boxes. They took the clothes from the es, held them up, tried them on and laughed with happiness. After the clothes had been distributed, the children sang to entertain the soldiers. This was their way of showing their appreciation.

 DI AN, Vietnam - "AWOL" is not a term ordinarily used when referring to Army wives. There is a group of wives, however, that claim they are just that and have even formed a club called "AWOL."

In this case, "AWOL" stands for "Always Writing Overseas Letters." The club's president is Mrs. Roger Harano, the wife of a 1st Inf. Div. chaplain.

The club was first organized last November and its original membership consisted of three women whose husbands were serving in Vietnam.

With increased publicity the club grew and now claims 10 and 15 members with husbands serving in all four branches of the service throughout the Pacific area.

Meetings Held
 The meetings are held once a month in one of the homes of a club member. Both social and informative projects are discussed and information on such things as Red Cross service and tax benefits is made available.

Comparing pictures, slides, souvenirs and "war stories" also helps keep morale up.

The club also plays an important part in community affairs. It helps encourage the buying of bonds to support the war and the displaying of call cards on the families of several flags on national holidays, victims killed in action. They have also made person-to-person visits to offer assistance.

"The women all share a similar view," explained the 2nd Div. chaplain. "Through the club they can find comradeship and at the same time help each other with some of the common problems that often arise among the dependents of servicemen serving away from home."

New Method of Wind Measuring Set Use Is Devised

By LTC Clyde F. Stewart, 42nd Artillery, and Capt. Roy H. Gunn, 2nd Missile Battalion, 42nd Artillery. In the early months of 1966, a new method of employing the Little John Rocket wind measuring set was devised.

Even though the Army did not adopt Gunn's idea at the time, missilemen the world over who have seen the new set have been enthusiastic in their praise for it.

LTC Herbert H. Martin, commanding officer of the 42nd Artillery, did more than merely recognize the economic and tactical advantages offered.

Idea incorporated into the 42nd Artillery's tactical operations. Demonstrations before members of the 8th Troop Command, the 106th Signal Battalion, and the Tank Battalion followed. Recently, Martin reviewed an improved version of Gunn's idea at the Ford Motor Plant in Detroit, Mich.

Martin stated that improvements were made on the basic idea and that the 42nd Artillery is now studying the possibility of adopting the jeep-mounted version of the ANPMO 6 Windset to all Little John launchers.

Assigned as a Little John launcher section chief in what was then Battery C of the 42nd Artillery, Gunn came up with his idea in the interest of saving time and space in the transportation and utilization of the windset.

Basically, his idea made the windset part of the jeep and used a system of compressed air to elevate it. The windset in the Little John battalion is used to obtain a low-level wind correction prior to rocket firings in conventional passages. The windset are cut and tied down to a jeep and the mechanism is elevated using a hand pump attached to the jeep.

The process formerly took 15 minutes or more, whereas Gunn's method is removed from the jeep to approximately six minutes.

Air Compressor Used. Gunn's idea combines an M151 mounted windset and an air compressor installed under the hood of the jeep which is used to elevate the telescopic windset mast.

With the removal of a regular M151 jeep windset and the installation of a 106mm recoilless windshield, windless travels in much the same position as the 106mm recoilless rifle.

Mounting of the windset to the jeep in Gunn's system is accomplished by use of a bracket constructed to fit the base of the windset.

Attached To Floor. This bracket attaches the windset to the floor of the jeep and also contains the device with which the windset is leveled. The bracket can be transferred from one vehicle to another simply by the removal of four bolts.

Mounting of the windset in this manner eliminates a great amount of bulky and heavy accessory equipment from the 42nd's loading pluck. Where it formerly took 30-35 minutes, it now takes 15 minutes after arriving at a firing point. The method formerly employed required 30-35 minutes. Gunn entered the Army on June 23, 1952, and has been with the 42nd Artillery since July, 1964. He was a member of the Korean Conflict and

Atlantic Command Slates Joint Exercise in April

HQES, THIRD U. S. ARMY, Fort Monmouth, N.J., announced Atlantic Command will conduct a joint amphibious and airborne training exercise in the Caribbean April 8-30.

The exercise will involve some 21,000 members of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines assigned to the Atlantic Command and units of the Puerto Rico Air National Guard.

Named CLOVER HITCH III, the exercise will test tactical concepts in joint operations in a e s t e r n Puerto Rico and the neighboring islands of Vieques and Culebra.

Non-Stop Trip. The paratroopers, stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., will be airlifted non-stop more than 1,300 miles in C-141 Starlifters to Puerto Rico for the first major exercise in shore bombardment.

Airborne Assault. Movement of forces to the Caribbean will culminate with a D-Day Airborne assault on "occupied" Vieques Island. The C-141 will be used to airdrop paratroopers. Simultaneously with the airdrop, Marines from the 8th Air Expeditionary Bde., based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., will storm the beaches along with shore bombardment by Atlantic fleet destroyers and cruisers will "soften" enemy positions on Puerto Rico.

Following the air strikes and shore bombardment, the Military Airlift Command will airdrop 1800 82nd Airborne Div. paratroopers on Vieques Island.

The Marines will use "over-the-beach" and helicopter "vertical envelopment" techniques.

Navy ships and submarines will operate in Caribbean waters near Puerto Rico throughout the exercise period, clearing simulated minefields, conducting carrier air strikes, antisubmarine warfare operations and "on call" for the first major exercise in shore bombardment.

All units plan to return to their U. S. home bases or other assigned tasks by April 30.

Director Named. CLOVE HITCH III will be directed by ADM Thomas H. Moorer, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet and its headquarters in Norfolk, Va. The on-scene commander will be ADM Bernard A. Clary, USN, commander of Joint Task Force 12, aboard his flagship, the heavy cruiser USS Newport News.

Participating Army and Air Force forces will be provided by the U. S. Strike Command, Atlantic, from its headquarters in Norfolk, Va. The Marine assault landing force will be commanded by BG E. B. Wheeler, USMC, commanding general of the 8th Marine Expeditionary Bde. GEN Paul L. Freeman Jr., commander-in-chief, U. S. Air Force and Puerto Rico Air National Guard will be coordinated by GEN Gabriel P. Discovsky, commander-in-chief, U. S. Air Force Atlantic, at Fort Monmouth, Va. The senior ashore commander of U. S. Forces will be LTJG John L. Throckmorton, commanding general, XVIII Airborne Corps.

Naval forces in the exercise will be drawn from the U. S. Atlantic Fleet and are commanded by ADM Moorer. The "on-scene" naval amphibious task force will be commanded by RADM Edwin Bell, USN, commander, Amphibious Group Four.

The Marine assault landing force will be commanded by BG E. B. Wheeler, USMC, commanding general of the 8th Marine Expeditionary Bde. GEN Paul L. Freeman Jr., commander-in-chief, U. S. Air Force and Puerto

Columbus Little Theatre Reading 'Separate Tables'

In a forthcoming production of Terence Rattigan's "Separate Tables," the Columbus Little Theatre turns once again to drama.

Unlike the situation drama of their earlier production of Arthur Miller's, "The Crucible," this is a play of character.

"Separate Tables" is two plays in one. Both involve most of the same people in the same setting.

The action takes place in a shabby but genteel English resort hotel. It is peopled with a variety of individuals... The first play, called "Tribble by the Window" concerns a dissolute journalist who has recently been released from prison.

The production, directed by Mike Deszias, is slated to run the weekends of March 31 and April 7.

Julie's parents, the American ambassadors, are Ray Rick Stola, is the son of the "general," who manages to rock diplomatic relations like nothing since "the bomb."

The plot thickens and the confusion turns to chaos as the two lovers, betrothed, come for a visit, and "the general" starts telling diplomatic secrets that should not be told.

Baker High Offers Students Continuous Counseling

Some 1550 dependents of Fort Benning families attending Baker High School are provided a continuous program of counseling and guidance.

Starting in the freshman year, the program is designed to assist in the selection and preparation for their future profession or occupation.

Currently, there are three full-time professionally qualified counselors authorized by the school system.

The goals of this program are to provide personal assistance for each student, to help each individual with personal and social adjustment, to develop understanding of individual aptitudes and abilities, and to assist in plans for higher education.

Additional Goals

Also, to provide information, technical and professional information and occupational and educational brochures for selection of a career.

Problems of financial planning, eligibility for loans, grants, and scholarships should be discussed with parents.

Since more than 2000 students attend Baker High, parents should request appointments in advance with guidance personnel to allow enough time to study confidential records of personal data.

The next such program is scheduled for 8 p.m. April 10 in the high school auditorium.

LTC Mark Magan, program chairman for the Baker High School P-T-A, has arranged for a professional staff to present the second in this series of counseling programs.

Students attend group counseling sessions and are encouraged to apply for appropriate evaluation tests, to determine potential.

Work With P-T-A

Since much of this information seldom reaches the parents, school counselors in conjunction with the P-T-A present counseling programs for parents.

The next such program is scheduled for 8 p.m. April 10 in the high school auditorium.

LTC Mark Magan, program chairman for the Baker High School P-T-A, has arranged for a professional staff to present the second in this series of counseling programs.

Students Aided

Participation in further training beyond the secondary school level is essential for the majority of students. Counseling and guidance efforts are directed toward helping students select an occupation or profession as early as possible in their high school program.

Cooperation of parents with students and counselors in discussing future plans assures a higher degree of success. Selection of goals which are within capabilities of the student prevents frustration, sense of failure, and school drop outs.

High school administrators are most anxious to help military families with plans for their dependents regardless of real or anticipated orders to a new duty station.

AIDED IN MEDICAL EVACUATION MISSION

Helped Move Injured to MAH CH-47 Crew Responds to Call for Aid

A CH-47 "Chinook" assigned to the 242nd Avn. Co., proved to be instrumental in the evacuation of injured OCS candidates involved in an accident March 14, 1967.

A 5 p.m., CPT Harold Stanford and CWO Henry A. Powell of the unit were returning to Lawson Army Air Field from what was to have been a routine training mission.

Upon arriving at the airfield they received an urgent request from Lawson control tower for assistance in contacting several H-19 medical evacuation helicopters based at the field.

When it seemed that the attempts in establishing radio contact with the H-19's were useless, the tower then asked the pilots of the CH-47 for assistance in evacuating the injured.

Stanford and Powell informed the Muscogee County and Fort Benning rescue units that additional H-19 emergency evacuation helicopters would not arrive and they had been sent as an emergency replacement.

Two emergency evacuation helicopters had already arrived and taken some of the more seriously injured men to Martin Army Hospital.

Eighteen additional litter cases were quickly loaded aboard the Chinook. SFG Harold Henderson, crew members aboard the CH-47, assisted rescue units with the loading of the injured.

Hospital attendants were on hand at the hospital helipad to receive the injured. It was later disclosed that 10 of the men were admitted to hospital, none in serious condition.

Others were treated for scratches and abrasions and released.

Cash Awaits Best Entries Of Lensmen

More than $400 cash prize money awaits winners in Fort Benning's semi-annual photography contest.

The competition, open to all those in uniform here, is sponsored through the crafts shops of Special Services.

The contest is conducted on an installation level, with winning photos selected to compete in Third Army, Department of the Army and interservice level competitions.

Three groups, black and white photographs, color transparencies and photo journalism, are available. All entries must have been taken after Dec. 1, 1964, and must be submitted no later than June 1.

Craft shop facilities and technical help is offered by shop personnel to anyone wishing to enter the contest," says Hugh E. Cook, craft shop supervisor, "and samples of winning photographs in the past years are available for comparison."

Further information about separate categories can be obtained at the Special Services photo lab at 545-3386 or the craft shop office at 545-1743.

Dixie Pistol Meet Blankenship Captures Fourth Win At Jacksonville Shooting Matches

Despite gusting winds and a cold that sent scores plunging to a low of 24, Jacksonville, Fla., was the site of the Dixie pistol match of the U. S. Army pistol team overcame an early deficit and won the match fire with a 2413 to become a four-time winner of the Jacksonville, Fla., classic.

Only four 2500 scores were fired in the three gun competition. SFC Robert Whitacre, U. S. Army, placed second with 2310. SSG Dwight Thyrkars, USAF, fired 2605 for third position and LT Anthony Mucci, USMC, was fourth with 2601.

U. S. Army Blue, the national pistol champions, won the Dixie team aggregate outpointing the Air Force Silver team 3469 to 3464.

Previously the army team had won the team events at the Palmto matches in Miami, and the National Mid-west matches in Tampa, defeating the top Navy, Air Force and Marine Teams.

Win All Three

Army Blue's triple win was the longest since they captured championship and the distinction of being the first service team to win all three of the team competitions in one year.

MAJ Sallie Carroll, U. S. Army, the 1966 national women's pistol champion, outpointed her nearest competitor, Frude Schlenker, from Michigan, for the women's title 2554 to 2497.

Blankenship won the 45 caliber aggregate by creaming the Navy 1149 to 1138 while the Air Force came in third with 1132.

National pistol champion, PO1 Donald Hamilton, won the center fire competition with an 835 followed by Army's MSG R. O. Thompson, and Whitacre with 833 and 820 respectively.

Army Blue won the center fire team match defeating the Navy 1170 to 1166.

Marines Won

In the 22 caliber match GSG R. C. USMC, won with 822, while Hamilton was second with 819, and MAJ Franklin Green, USAF, was third with 817.

The Marines won the 22 team match beating the Air Force 1169 to 1162.

Galkic has only been knocking down pins for four years. He bought his first bowling ball in 1963 and now competes in five leagues. He rolls about 30 lines a week, 15 of them in league play.

He maintains a high average of 187 and a low of 181. He says he has never taken a bowling lesson but feels he has picked up a good deal of valuable information watching the better bowlers in action.

Street Frenzy

In the preliminary street tryouts at Lackland Air Force Base Monday and Tuesday PFC Dan Boordess of the USAMTU Street Team captured the individual honors in the 220 ball competition with a 100 kills Bonus.

Only 13 days earlier, Galkic topped the 700 mark for the first time, with a 783 in the R. C. Cola League, also at Victory Lanes. That night he rolled the game scores of 247 and 230.

Perfect Game Is Bowled By Post Warrant Officer

Frank Galkic, property clerk, 4th Ordnance Squadron, United States Army Training Center Infantry, has done the near impossible. He has rolled the bowler's dream—a perfect 300.

He accomplished the feat while rolling in the Tillman and Loveman's League at Victory Lanes in Columbus. Galkic insists that he was not nervous while rolling the 300, even after the seventh strike when he was only five away from the perfect game.

The perfect game was the first of a 713 series as he added on games of 209 and 204. The 713 total was also his individual high.

The 300 game is Galkic's first and only second in the history of the Columbus bowling alleys.

Only 13 days earlier, Galkic topped the 700 mark for the first time, with a 783 in the R. C. Cola League, also at Victory Lanes. That night he rolled the game scores of 247 and 230.

CTC Nips TSB, Takes Loop Title

By PFC Jerry Bessie

Net scores of 1st Ed. Center School Command, edged out an over-time victory over the School Brigade last Friday to share the battalion level baseball championship at Fort Benning.

Going into the final minutes of play, the score stood at 6-6 when, with only three seconds on the clock, Albert Johnson snagged a jump-ball in a three way tie with the score.

Midway in overtime, Roosevelt Johnson scored on a foul/fantry or sixth place in the trophy, but four of their quintet also ranked among the league top scorers.

High on the list was TSB's Roosevelt Johnson with 21.5, while Johnson of CTC placed second on the charts with 18.5. Third place went to CTC's Adams with 16.5 while Jerry Young and Clyde Thomas tied for fourth place averaging 16.5 each.

Not only did Troop Command take the tournament averaging 16.5 each.
